

They're products of era's greed, corruption

By RANDALL SULLIVAN and
MIGUEL PEREZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Cocaine people, police call them, as if they were a new species — mutants of the modern era's greed and corruption — in Jackson Heights, a once quiet neighborhood in the New York City Borough of Queens, these nervous, furtive men — mostly Colombians — do an estimated $1 billion trade in cocaine each year.

But they are not like Harlem's flashy heroin dealers. They wear their bullet proof vests under cheap suits. They drive aging cars blocks out of the way to buy discount gas as they head to six figure deals that will fatten their seven figure bank accounts.

They live in modest apartments, protecting an almost standardized range of possessions: 6 to 10 pounds of cocaine with street value of up to $350,000, wads of $50,000 to $100,000 in twenty dollar bills, arsenals of weapons — and little black books in which they jot $60 spent on a used TV in red ink next to a $1 million sale in black ink.

This picture emerges from a month long Associated Press inquiry in Jackson Heights, which police call the U.S. capital of cocaine. Even cocaine shipped through the major entry point of Miami is sent here first to be cut before it goes back south for sale on the street.

And Jackson Heights' new "carriage trade" — the rich elsewhere are the customers for the white powder drug — has changed the old Irish and Italian area where television's "All in the Family" is set.

Twenty-seven murders in the area in two years have been linked to cocaine trade. A curious business resurgence has seen real estate offices, notaries and travel agents spring up to serve the dealers. Those at neighborhood meetings talk not only about crime and dirty streets but about foreign relations — what is being done by the United States and Colombia to stem the cocaine tide.

The dealers — a tiny minority of Colombians here — "can easily accept the necessity of a murder or two" to protect the business that has taken them out of poverty, one federal agent says.

Despite the violence, the dealers remain inconspicuous. One's American girlfriend says of him "Tito is probably the only millionaire in New York who looks more like a garage mechanic."

The dealers keep several apartments — and identities — to stay ahead of police. They fold themselves into the Latin community — some 200,000 Colombians and thousands of other Latins live in Jackson Heights — and use the new neighborhood businesses to maintain apartments, false IDs and a schedule of trips back to Colombia.

"I've seen a dealer I've arrested get out on bail, walk into a travel agency in Jackson Heights the next day and come out an hour later a completely different person, with all the papers to prove it," says one federal agent.

There is another reason for the dealers' modest lives. They are greedy, explains an agent. "If they should, for instance, move the cocaine into the country inside a shipment of canned goods, they will remove the specially marked cans with the coke in them, then sell the rest of the shipment ... at a profit."

Profits add up. The trade here is part of a $7 billion annual leak in the U.S. economy from cocaine, making the drug second only to oil as a drain on America's income. Profits make the dealers hard to fight, too.

"They're like an international corporation," says an agent of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration. "It's like trying to battle ITT or something. They have more money than we do, more equipment, more organization ... and more cooperation from their government and ours."

DEA spokesman James Judge says: "It is the most difficult criminal group to penetrate of any we have ever dealt with."

And says another DEA agent: "They are the first group we've ever

Judge to deny sheriff request

By LINDA HILL
R-T Staff Writer

District Judge Perry D. Pickett today said he plans to deny a request from Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith to gain access to impounded election records concerning the race for county commissioner, Precinct 2.

In that race, Republican challenger Sam Snoddy originally was reported to have won by 21 votes. But a subsequent recount, which has been certified by county commissioners acting as a canvassing board, indicated incumbent Democrat Charlie Welch to be the winner by a 21 vote margin.

Pickett ordered the records, along with the rest of the contents of the election room, impounded Tuesday. He said he issued the order at the oral request of County Clerk Rosnell Cherry.

Under the terms of the impoundment order, no one, including county officials, may have access to the room or its contents without permission of the court.

In today's "request to enter election room," Smith said he has "received information which may reflect upon the validity of some of the mail out ballots used in a Nov. 7 election."

Smith said the information deals with a "complaint involving a discrepancy about whether an elderly lady had voted or not voted."

Smith today emphasized he is not attacking County Clerk Rosnell Cherry, but rather is seeking what he claims are public records. Smith said he does not know if the complaints are based on fact.

That's the idea of an investigation.

Egyptians sticking by demand for timetable

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat's chief negotiator at the Washington peace talks was flying home today for consultations following Israel's rejection of the Egyptian demand for a timetable for home rule for the Palestinians in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Egypt is sticking to its demand for a timetable regarding Gaza and the West Bank, operating under a conviction that the peace we are working for must be real, just and comprehensive, a Foreign Ministry official told Egypt's official Middle East News Agency.

Sadat ordered Gen. Kamal Hassan Aly, his defense minister, home from Washington after Prime Minister Menachem Begin and his cabinet approved a draft Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, almost identical to one proposed by the United States in October but rejected by Egypt's subsequent demand for Palestinian self rule in the two occupied territories within nine months of the signing of the treaty.

Egyptian sources in Washington said Aly would return to the U.S. capital in a few days.

The Egyptian government is studying the situation in light of the Israeli cabinet decision, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil told The Associated Press. "It is now necessary for us to consult with Gen. Kamal Hassan

Holiday to bring Tall City to real slowdown

Midland will come to a slowdown Thursday when Turkey Day arrives for its annual visit.

Most firms, companies and businesses, including banks and savings and loan associations, will be closed Thursday. A few retail businesses will be open, however. And the majority of those closed Thursday will reopen for business Friday.

City Hall, the Midland County Courthouse and state offices will be closed Thursday and Friday, but the Federal Building will be closed only on Thursday to celebrate Thanksgiving.

holiday of all five days. The public, private and parochial schools in Midland and the Greenwood public school dismissed their students either at noon Tuesday or following classes that day.

"It's wonderful," said a school staffer.

However, though students were free from classes beginning today, most of their teachers were to attend in-service workshops today.

"The teachers have to work, but the pupils have a holiday (today)," said another staffer.

In-service workshops were being conducted today at Greenwood, in Midland public schools, at St. Ann's School and at Midland Christian School.

The holiday for students at Midland College and the University of Texas at the Permian Basin at Odessa begins Thursday morning. No night classes will be held today at Midland College.

The Midland County Public Library will be closed Thursday and Friday and will reopen Saturday.

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library & Hall of Fame will observe the holiday. However, the Museum of the Southwest will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday.

State offices, including the Texas Department of Public Safety, will be closed Thursday and Friday.

As usual, Thanksgiving Day will not be a holiday for men and women in the emergency services, law enforcers, fire fighters and hospital workers.

The Reporter-Telegram will be delivered on a morning basis Thursday so that employees of the newspaper may spend the holiday with their friends and families.

The Reporter-Telegram's circulation department will be open Thursday only until 9:30 a.m. to handle subscriber service and the classified advertising department will be open to accept want ad cancellations and corrections only, also until 9:30 a.m.

For the classified advertising department, dial 682-6222.

All other R-T departments will be closed all day Thursday.

Head-on crash kills Odessan

ODESSA — A head-on traffic accident on the far east side of Odessa Tuesday night resulted in the death of a 49-year-old Odessa man, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Chester Joseph Bohula was pronounced dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital shortly after 6:15 p.m. A medical spokesman said he died of internal injuries.

Bohula's car was traveling west on University near Polaris Street, reports indicated. It was in collision with a pickup truck being driven by James Marvin Mayo, 63, according to officials.

Mayo was treated and released for minor injuries.

The accident was investigated by DPS Trooper R.W. Reynolds.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

You may expect and somewhat dread more verbiage on the blessings of Thanksgiving. Well, just lay your fears aside and take your medicine or dump it down the drain.

Crying about the virtues of Thanksgiving is done most every year in broadsides, in newspaper editorials, columns and features and in news stories telling about an unfortunate being or family who deserves a chance to say thanks and mean it, in magazines, over television and radio, in the sermonizing of priest types, and maybe you subconsciously reel off your given and earned blessing.

As always and as long as man haphazardly controls his fate, some people always will have less to give thanks about than others.

Some always will have more than they possibly could need, use or really want — maybe inordinately crave — but always seek more for gain's sake.

Rarely is man content with "just enough," and who is to criticize that? Even the monks who deny themselves won't — and couldn't anyway — deny man of ambition, dreams and of his duthers.

Even the relatively comfortable —

Recycling can save critical water

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today, in the fourth article in a seven-part series on West Texas water, The Reporter-Telegram discusses how waste water and runoff from rains could be recycled for use.

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

Millions and millions of gallons of useable water are going down the drain each week in cities scattered throughout the Texas High Plains, only to evaporate or to be contaminated through stagnation on the region's surface soils.

State officials and water resource experts say the waste water, consisting mostly of treated sewage effluent or storm water, could be recycled to help alleviate a "very possible" water shortage of the future.

Through proper treatment, such water could serve a multitude of purposes: municipal, industrial, agricultural and recreational among them, according to state officials.

"Waste water recycling is certainly not going to be the solution to the shortage of irrigation water on the Texas High Plains, but it certainly holds a bright future as one of the alternatives which could help us stretch current reserves in the Ogallala Aquifer," said Lloyd V. Urban of the civil engineering department at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

The city of Lubbock represents an example of how treated effluent and waste water can be recycled. Much research by agriculturalists and scientists has gone on at the university, exploring the re-use of water.

Frank Gray is a Lubbockite who has developed a green thumb by sticking it in water which some people might call swampy at best.

Gray owns one of the oldest and largest sewage effluent irrigated farms in the U.S.

The city of Lubbock pumps about 17 million gallons of water to his farm every day, regardless of whether he can use it.

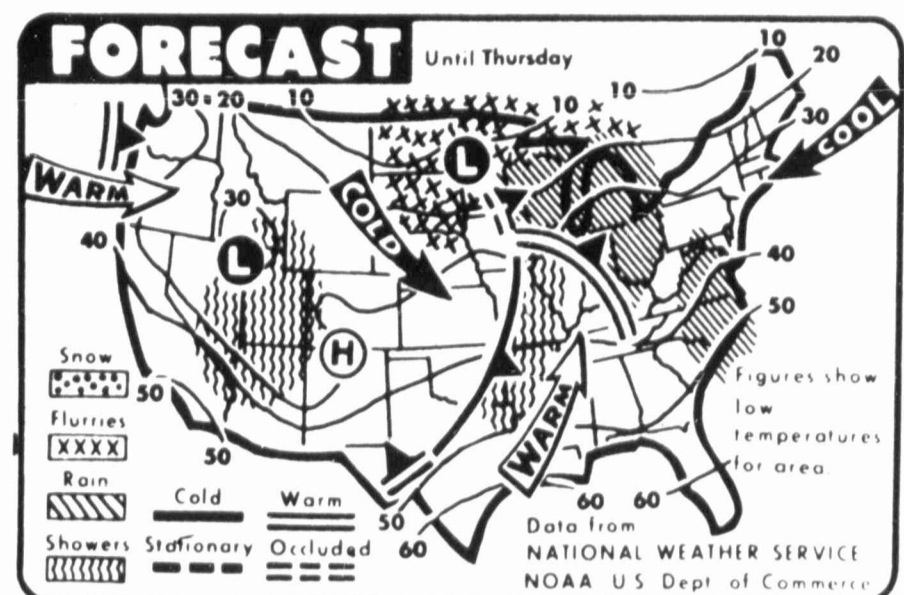

Some of the water assuredly does get used on Gray's farm. The remainder is stored in reservoirs, sold to neighbors for irrigation purposes or peddled to a utility generating plant near his farm.

Gray doesn't need to purchase high-priced fertilizer because the water he uses is rich in nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

And the heavy use of effluent to irrigate his 2,000 acres has resulted in the water table having risen to within

Sewage effluent allows irrigation

Sewage effluent enables some farmers in the Midland-Odessa area to grow crops which demand considerable irrigation, such as alfalfa, which normally wouldn't grow in the area because of a shortage of available ground water.

Recycling can save critical water

Land County residents would be eliminated if Odessans could take advantage of up to 4.5 million gallons of free, treated effluent that goes down the draw each day.

The irrigation pump in the background is used by O.V. Buck, an Ector County farmer, to draw treated effluent from Monahans Draw to irrigate his alfalfa fields.

Who owns that funny-looking building?

By KEN HERMAN

Ralph Friedmann, a 75-year-old auto mechanic, says the city of Brownsville, Texas, violated a 24-year-old condemnation action when they built this tourist center. The unoccupied building is on a tract that state has an easement on for road purposes, Friedmann, in a lawsuit, claims the building in the background is not for a road purpose and therefore he should be given the building. (AP Laserphoto)

ing was not going up on the Friedmann property.

"I could not believe that a respectable entity such as the city would build a building on someone else's property," the lawyer said. But he added that his research showed that was the case. Friedmann filed suit against the city — claiming the $85,000 building is on his land and therefore is his building.

"Hell, I want to be fair with them," Friedmann said on the porch swing of his modest frame home. "But Jesus, I'm not going to give them the land. They've been so ornery about it that I'm going to make them pay through the nose."

The confusion about the land stems from a 1954 condemnation by which the state got an easement on Friedmann's property.

City attorney Gerald Zwernemann said the easement — when read in full — gives the state the right to use the land for road purposes. A

"As I understand it," Garza said, "the then city attorney was aware that Friedmann still owned the land. The district engineer told him not to worry about it."

They went ahead based on an engineer's decision."

Zwernemann also claims that Friedmann was paid for the easement in 1954. Friedmann says he did get $10,000 for it; but Garza says the money was just for the road easement — not for a building.

Land in the area is now selling for up to $100,000 an acre.

The courts have granted an injunction preventing the city from completing or using the building until the litigation is settled.

"If the city wants to use the building," Garza said, "they should sit down and work out an agreement for it."

The city attorney said there had been talk of leasing the land and building from Friedmann.

tourist center, he argues, is a road purpose.

Not so, says Garza. He points out that the 1954 condemnation offered a specific list of uses for the easement. The final paragraph states the land could be used for "construction, laying out, re-construction and widening" of the highway. The tourist center, claims Garza, is out of bounds.

Hence, he continues, the state has abandoned the easement by violating it.

"It's a constitutional question. You can't use a person's property without paying for it."

Zwernemann argues that Friedmann intentionally watched the building go up before complaining. But Garza says the city engineer was notified in the spring of 1977 shortly after site preparation began.

"As I understand it," Garza said, "the then city attorney was aware that Friedmann still owned the land. The district engineer told him not to worry about it."

They went ahead based on an engineer's decision."

Zwernemann also claims that Friedmann was paid for the easement in 1954. Friedmann says he did get $10,000 for it; but Garza says the money was just for the road easement — not for a building.

Land in the area is now selling for up to $100,000 an acre.

The courts have granted an injunction preventing the city from completing or using the building until the litigation is settled.

"If the city wants to use the building," Garza said, "they should sit down and work out an agreement for it."

The city attorney said there had been talk of leasing the land and building from Friedmann.

"But there's no way the commissioners are going to pay $800 per month for something they just bought for $85,000," Zwernemann said.

So the stalemate remains and the weeds are sprouting around the almost completed white building.

"If he can show that the state violated the condemnation then he has a gold mine there," Zwernemann said.

What might Friedmann use the building for?

"It kind of looks like a taco stand to me," the city attorney said sarcastically.

Tennessee millionaire spending it cautiously

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — What would you do if you suddenly came into a million dollars?

Most everybody has had this wishful thought at one time or another but few have ever really had to answer it.

But for Peter M. Roberts, 33, this became more than an idle rhetorical question last Oct. 11 when he was handed a $1 million check from Sears, Roebuck & Co., after a successful nine-year court battle over a quick-release socket wrench Roberts had invented.

In our fanciful flights on what we would do with a million bucks, we usually think of sleek cars, mansions, trips to exotic places.

Not Roberts. He's playing it cautiously. So far, he has put most of the money into treasury certificates.

"I don't know what the economy is going to do and I didn't want to invest in a business at the present time," he said Tuesday in an interview.

His only extravagance, he said, was to buy a motor home and take a long-delayed vacation.

"I hadn't had but one real vacation in the last four or five years," he said, explaining that he usually had had to work three jobs at a time to make ends meet.

But now, his money worries are over and, "I am trying to de-program myself from working so much."

He still owns a small convenience grocery store in suburban Red Bank but has given up his job as manager of the apartment complex where he lives. He plans to use his free time to tinker and perhaps come up with other inventions.

Roberts said he used his vacation to take his mother, Mrs. Dora Roberts, 76, to Florida hoping specialists could cure her progressively worsening eye condition.

Predictably, there have been a few who have tried to capitalize on Roberts' bonanza for themselves.

"One guy had a scheme to get back $10 for every dollar I invested but I just couldn't put too much confidence in it," he said.

"You'd be surprised how many bankers have been nice to me," he said. But he recalls that back when he was trying to get his food store going, he ran into a cash-flow problem and went to his bank for a loan.

He filled in the forms and answered interminable questions but the loan wasn't forthcoming. Then he ran into another banker who gave him the loan right away.

That's the banker who has Roberts' business now and helps him with his financial affairs.

U.S. dollar holds steady

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar held steady in quiet trading on foreign exchange markets today. Gold prices fell in reaction to the auction Tuesday from the American gold reserve.

The steadiness of the dollar suggested it may have found its place after three weeks of fluctuation in the wake of President Carter's announcement Nov. 1 of tight-money measures to halt the slide of the American currency.

"Bless the Lord, O my soul..."

"and forget not all his benefits." (Psalm 103) Remembering God's goodness — gratefully, humbly acknowledging His love — you can find yourself feeling a new kind of joy. One that steadies and grows, and blesses others too.

Midlanders give thanks for variety of reasons

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Several Midlanders expressed a variety of thoughts Tuesday about what they have to be thankful for on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

A Laotian family in Midland said they are thankful to be moving into their own home after living two years in Thailand refugee camps and several months in motels and the houses of relatives here.

Rev. Larry Grimm of the First Presbyterian Church of Midland said the Khamvongsas and their six children are expected to move into a three-bedroom home, which congregation members voted to purchase Sunday.

"They are real excited about moving into their own home," said Rev. Grimm. "We are grateful for the friendliness and help the family has received."

He said during this Thanksgiving the eight-member family from Laos "will really have something to be thankful for."

The Midland Association of Churches is having a Thanksgiving service at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at St. Luke's Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., where persons of all faiths have been invited to worship together led by the Rev. Dr. John Long of Memorial Christian Church.

Midland County District Attorney Vern Martin said Tuesday he is thankful his staff has "caught up" with the backlog of cases as much as they have in trying to comply with the Speedy Trial Act.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Alan Black of Midland expressed thanks for having their daughter, Corrie Black, 4, back home along with other children who were missing a few days last week.

"We're thankful that the kids are all back safe," he said.

Midland Police Chief Gideon said he is thankful for "good health and happiness."

Sheriff Dallas Smith said he and his wife, Gayle, are happy and thankful that she is expecting their third child, due next spring.

Smith said he also is thankful for the couple's two other children, Renee, 3 1/2 years, and Blake, 1 1/2 years.

"When you can say that you and your family are happy and healthy and you live in a good area like Midland, what more could a guy ask for?" Sheriff Smith asked.

On the other hand, those with no place to go and those who will be otherwise alone can be appreciative of a Thanksgiving dinner to be offered at the Salvation Army between noon and 1:30 p.m. Thursday, said Captain Bob Vincent.

He said the meal will be served at Midland Salvation Army offices located at 300 South Baird Street "for all those who are staying with us and for those who are alone or who are stranded."

The feast, he said, is paid for by the Midland Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Capt. Vincent said those who find themselves without transportation may call the Salvation Army for aid at 683-3614.

U.S. Post Department employees and federal government employees will be thankful to have a holiday off Thursday, according to spokesmen for those groups.

Mrs. Truman treated

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman is being treated at Research Medical Center for abdominal stress and high blood pressure, a hospital spokesman said.

The 93-year-old widow of former President Harry Truman underwent tests Tuesday, but the results will not be known for several days, the spokesman said. She was listed in satisfactory condition.

Mrs. Truman was at the hospital 15 days last June for what was described as a nerve-muscle disorder combined with arthritis. She was admitted to the hospital in June 1977 after falling in the 17-room Victorian house in Independence that she rarely leaves. She also was treated for arthritis at the hospital in July 1976.

DEAR FRIENDS WELCOME to Our Thanksgiving Day Service at 10:00 a.m.

- It is a time to thank God for all the blessings He has showered on us.
- It is a time to thank God for sending His Son Jesus to save the world.
- It is a time to thank God for sending His Son to pay for my sins and save me.
- It is a time to thank God for keeping wars from our land.
- It is a time to thank God for our country and freedoms we enjoy.
- It is a time to do whatever we can, with God's help, to retain the freedoms God has given.
- It is a time to pray that God will spare America from the threat of our enemies from within and from without.

Suicide victims may have been on narcotics

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The followers of the Rev. Jim Jones who committed mass suicide in Guyana may have been under the influence of narcotics when they lined up for cups of cyanide-laced Kool-Aid, the San Francisco Examiner said Wednesday in a copyright story.

In a story filed by City Editor Jim Wilsell from Jonestown, Guyana, the paper said empty bottles that had contained "massive amounts" of narcotics and hallucinogenic drugs were found where Jones led his faithful to death last Saturday after Rep. Leo Ryan, three newsmen and a temple defector were slain at a landing strip near the jungle commune. Dr. Lynn Crook, a pathologist from South Carolina aiding the Guyanese in the grisly task of caring for the dead, is quoted as saying: "They had stores of narcotics and hallucinogenic drugs. It was a total and complete pharmacy — much more than was needed to supply a community that size, or even the city of Georgetown (population 66,000)."

Near the open pavilion where most of the more than 400 dead were found, there was a classroom that had been converted into a drug emporium, with a picnic table covered with bottles of various drugs. Most of the bottles, which had come from Europe, were empty.

The story said officials speculated the narcotics probably were used to ease the excruciating pain of a cyanide death and may have been poured into the Kool-Aid and poison concoction.

Crates of empty drug bottles and used syringes were found near the bodies, the newspaper said. Labels on the bottles indicated the drugs included Thorazine, Sodium Pentathol, Valium and halothane.

Thorazine is commonly used as a tranquilizer or sedative. Valium is a tranquilizer.

Man charged in Ryan slayings

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Californian Larry Leyton, 32, was charged today with murder in the jungle slayings of Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., three newsmen and a woman.

Enraged man charged with murder

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A man who allegedly became enraged after a stick was thrown at his van from a foot bridge has been charged with first-degree murder in the shooting of a 14-year-old boy.

Donald Dargatz, 35, was held on $75,000 bond after an appearance Tuesday before Judge Elliott Fry of Sedgewick County District Court.

Dargatz, a woman and three juveniles in his van were arrested Sunday for questioning about the fatal shooting on Friday of Everett Ross.

Police Lt. Bernie Drowatzky said Ross' friends were on the bridge when a van drove past. He said one person in the group threw a stick.

Ross approached the bridge on a bicycle a few minutes later, just as the van pulled up and Ross' friends scattered. Ross was shot in the base of the skull as he tried to flee, police said.

Dargatz was charged with murder in the commission of a felony and with inciting a riot. The woman was not charged and was released from custody.

Drowatzky said a 14-year-old boy was charged in juvenile court Tuesday with second-degree murder, another 14-year-old was charged with inciting a riot and a 17-year-old was charged with aggravated assault.

Program forced to end

BORDENTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Little Bordentown has been ordered to end its maverick welfare program forcing able-bodied residents to work for their money and told to rejoin a state system the mayor calls "degrading" because it gives "handouts."

Superior Court Judge Alexander Wood III struck down Bordentown's "workfare" program Tuesday, saying "no work requirements shall be imposed on any applicant" except those laid down by the state.

"Workfare" led to a decrease in Bordentown's welfare rolls from about 30 to seven, city officials said, but state officials branded it "calous and illegal."

Only one resident actually received a job under "workfare," a woman who scrubbed chairs at the community center.

State Human Services Commissioner Ann Klein said Wood's ruling was crucial to "the fundamental issues of fair play."

She said there is "no dispute" between the state and Bordentown over the desirability of employing persons receiving general assistance, but a welfare program must be administered "as uniformly as possible throughout the state."

Bordentown Mayor Joseph Malone III yanked the town of 4,400 persons out of the state welfare program in June, claiming it was too bureaucratic and denied healthy adults the chance to work.

He and two city commissioners took over public assistance operations following the retirement of Bordentown's part-time welfare director.

Wood ordered Malone to appoint a new director and replacements on the city's welfare board by Dec. 15. In the meantime, the city should "conduct the general assistance program to the end that the immediate needs of the persons qualified and applying for assistance may be promptly met," Wood said.

City officials indicated Wood's ruling may be appealed.

Services for Mrs. Taylor are pending at Larry D. Sheppard Funeral Home.

Costa Rica severs ties

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza's political foes broke off talks with the dictator as Costa Rica severed diplomatic relations with his government after a series of border shootings.

Despite these developments, Somoza lifted the nightly curfew in Managua because of the start of the cotton and coffee harvests. The national guard, his army, stepped up its patrols throughout the sprawling capital, and no violence was reported.

Martial law, which allows shooting on sight, remained in effect.

The Broad Opposition Front, a coalition of anti-Somoza political factions, broke off negotiations for a political settlement with Somoza because he again rejected its demand that he resign and go into voluntary exile with his family, opposition spokesman Alfonso Robelo said.

The Front had given Somoza until midnight Tuesday to meet its demand.

The negotiations were fostered by the United States and several Latin American governments in hopes that they would avert a resumption of the two-week war between rebels and Somoza's forces in which more than 1,500 people were killed last September.

Sheriff's access request to be denied and I can't do it without public records."

In his request, Smith asked for access to applications for mail-out ballots and their envelopes, envelopes in which mail-out ballots were returned to the county clerk and other records reflecting daily mailing of ballots, specifically a list of numbered ballots mailed on certain dates.

With that information, he said, he could determine whether an individual requested an absentee ballot and whether the completed ballot was returned.

Smith said he is not seeking access to the ballots themselves or the boxes in which they are kept.

"I'm going to turn it down unless there's some compelling reason not to," Pickett said of the request. However, he indicated he would hold a hearing if asked to do so.

Smith said today he intends to request such a hearing.

"I have no other choice...At least, somebody's going to have to say no," said Smith.

"I thought public records were public records as simple as that," the sheriff said.

Asked if the material in question is part of the public record, Pickett said, "They're public records until they're impounded by the court."

Earlier this week, Pickett forwarded to the foreman of the grand jury a request from Mrs. Cherry for a grand jury investigation into reported inaccuracies in totaling votes in the Precinct 2 county commissioner's race.

Pickett said the grand jury will be allowed access to election materials if that body requests it. And, he said, parties to an expected election contest suit will be allowed to examine pertinent materials.

He said Smith is free to take any allegations of criminal activity in the election to the grand jury.

"He can take anything to the grand jury that he hears...I just don't want anybody in there till we get this thing settled," said Pickett.

Smith said he has "no choice" except to go through the grand jury if his request is turned down.

Snoddy Monday announced his intentions to file a civil suit contesting the election, but today said he does not know when it will be filed. He has up to 30 days from the time the results were canvassed Friday.

Snoddy would not comment otherwise on the case, refusing to name the attorney representing him.

Neither Mrs. Cherry nor Welch would comment today on the situation.

Sadat orders minister home from Washington

Aly to review the whole case and plan our strategy."

In Washington, State Department spokesman George Sherman said the U.S. government would contact the Egyptians through diplomatic channels to try to resolve the Palestinian issue.

The draft treaty accepted by the Israelis was worked out by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance after the Israeli Cabinet rejected an almost identical U.S. draft on Oct. 25. In accepting the new draft, the Israelis retreated from their refusal to link the Egyptian peace treaty with the negotiations Israel has promised to give the West Bank and Gaza Palestinians home rule.

The "linkage" in the new draft is in the preamble, which contains a commitment by Israel to negotiate the status of the Palestinians. The Carter administration welcomed this change in the Israeli position, but Sherman noted Israel did not accept a compromise proposed by the United States to get around the timetable dispute.

Recount bid fails in Ector County

ODESSA — Supporters of Democrats John Hill and Bob Krueger lost their bid for a recount of votes cast Nov. 7 in Ector County in the gubernatorial and U.S. Senate races when they failed to meet a 10 a.m. Monday deadline for filing $500 deposits with the district clerk.

District Court Judge Joe Connally Friday morning had set the deadline for filing the deposits, required under Texas law.

Ector County was one of 42 counties in Texas in which the two losing Democratic candidates in the races had sought recounts.

An American legend

Many persons across the width and breadth of the land undoubtedly have forgotten that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, founded in 1908, rose to national prominence during the 1930s because of its effective work in reducing the many bank robberies at that time.

Nevertheless it is a fact that robbing a bank became a most profitable way of life for criminals in those days because the police in the average city were unable to cope with this problem.

It was then that the President and Congress turned the FBI loose, and the situation changed. Federal agents soon were able to make bank robbery among the least appealing of crimes.

The nation's "G Men," as they then were known, coordinated their efforts nationwide in apprehending bank robbers. The success of the G Men in putting these criminals behind bars became an authentic American legend. Such crimes have continued, and, in fact, they have increased with the urbanization of America, but the FBI, working with local authorities, has kept pace.

Unfortunately, the FBI's successful efforts in battling bank thefts has led to complacency in Washington. Congress' investigative arm, the General Accounting Office, is urging Congress to reduce the FBI's investigative and prosecutive roles in this particular crime. This is a strange development. The GAO, however, minimizes bank robberies as being a local law-enforcement problem. It wants the FBI to concentrate more on other types of crime.

Even without congressional action, Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell has taken his cue and announced a Department of Justice policy of reducing the FBI's role in fighting bank crimes. Another very strange action.

Bell has, however, assured financial institutions of continued FBI assistance where state and local police lack resources and ask for it.

But there absolutely is no way of getting around the fact that the FBI, for the first time since 1934, has been pulled back from its bank beat. And the attorney general well may rue the day that he instituted such a policy.

His action simply must be viewed as a bad mistake. We most certainly favor law enforcement at the local level insofar as possible, but when it comes to bank robberies, local law enforcement needs all the help it can muster. Local agencies are better prepared and equipped to handle such cases now than they were in the '30s, but they yet need the assistance and expertise of the FBI when it comes to bank robberies.

Police Chief William Kolender of San Diego, Calif., hit the nail squarely on the head in his written report to the House subcommittee which is considering this question:

"The withdrawal of the FBI from bank robbery investigation would carry with it the potential of recreating the environment which originally prompted federal intervention into this area initially. Bank robberies are increasing, not decreasing. The removal of the Bureau would leave a void which we at the local level are incapable of filling...."

We are in complete accord with this assessment. It is hoped sincerely that Attorney General Bell will reconsider his new policy.

That failing, it is recommended that the President and Congress use a bit of arm-twisting to bring him around to a more realistic view.

This certainly is no time to weaken the nation's defense against crime anywhere. This seemingly would be false economy which punishes the American people.

WASHINGTON — Manipulating the press is a time-honored goal of politicians at every level. They feed exclusive tidbits to favorite reporters, plant friendly questions to be asked at press conferences and throw every obstacle they can in the way of reporters whom they consider hostile. It's all part of the fascinating game of politics.

But the federal courts are supposed to be above such shenanigans. A provision granting life tenure for federal judges was written into the Constitution in the explicit hope that it would keep politics out of the judicial system.

Chief Justice Warren Burger has managed to thwart the Founding Fathers' wishes in that respect, however. He works with publications which he apparently perceives as sympathetic to his conservative views, or with which he has professional connections. He lavishes cooperation on writers whom he can count on for puff pieces or innocuous feature stories. He refuses all interviews — except with the U.S. News and World Report, which allows him to edit his remarks prior to publication.

Burger's special relationship with this publication stems from more than the magazine's well-known conservative leanings and its compliance with his censorship rule. One of the magazine's former editors, Paul Martin, was described by a U.S. News reporter as "a Burger in-imate." On at least one occasion, Martin called Burger's administrative assistant Mark Cannon to tip him off to the questions that would be asked in an interview.

And two years ago Cannon called Martin to suggest that a poll be taken of judges and lawyers — Cannon's idea of a conservative "silent majority" — comparing the Burger Court with its predecessor under Earl Warren. Cannon supplied a detailed list of questions, some of them plainly loaded in the Burger Court's favor. Not surprisingly, the rigged poll overwhelmingly supported the Burger Court.

Two other publications have basked in the sunshine of Burger's cooperation, and not without reason. One was the Smithsonian Magazine; the Chief Justice is ex officio head of the Smithsonian Institution. The other was a book written by the National Geographic Society; the chief justice is on the society's board of trustees. "They were remarkably nice," said the Smithsonian's writer, Richard Williams. "My impression is that they don't talk to everyone as readily as they did to me." His photographer was even allowed to take candid shots of the justices.

A source told our reporters Tom Rosenstiel and David Ansley that the court's press office was unusually helpful because Burger knew the article would not be critical. He was right. The two illustrated stories were straight, non-interpretive features. Uncomplimentary remarks were rare and did not identify the justices in ART BUCHWALD Anyone for civil defense plan at $2 billion cost?

WASHINGTON — I have good news for all of you who were wondering how you were going to survive World War III. President Carter has a plan. At least he's given the go-ahead to the civil defense people in the government to come up with a plan, which would protect 140 million Americans in the event of a Soviet nuclear attack.

The cost of designing the plan, (as opposed to the plan itself), is $2 billion, and unlike previous civil defense ideas this one does not include building bomb shelters. Instead the emphasis will be on evacuating people from the cities to the countryside as soon as hostilities begin.

This is not a joke — this is a real drill — this is a real, bona fide plan which the President is asking Congress to finance.

According to Pentagon experts, all the U.S. would need is warning of a Soviet missile attack, and it would then put its evacuation plan into effect. The success of the program would depend, of course, on how fast we could move everybody out of the cities, presumably by automobile and bus. The Pentagon says we need the plan in the worst way because the Soviets are going ahead with their civil defense plans, and we must maintain a "crisis stability" with them. This means that if the Soviets thought we could survive an attack by them, they wouldn't dare to try to kill us.

Art Buchwald

Okay. But before we spend $2 billion on an evacuation feasibility study, I have one favor to ask of the President. And that is, the next time he decides to spend a weekend at Camp David in the Maryland mountains, he go by car instead of by helicopter.

As soon as the President nears the Beltway surrounding Washington, he will realize that there is absolutely no way of getting out of the city on a Friday night, much less if we have a real live nuclear alert.

The truth of the matter is the Soviets know that we could do more damage to ourselves through civil defense than they could ever do by starting a war.

This is the scenario that the Russians have planned for us: They aim a series of dummy missiles, with condemned Pintos as warheads, at the major cities in the U.S. We go on red alert and the sirens start whining, ordering everybody to leave at once.

People pile into cars, taxis and trucks and head for the outskirts of town. The Pintos are pinpointed to land on the arteries to every major expressway, tying up traffic for miles.

The panic-stricken city dwellers jump out of their cars and start beating up the people in the vehicles in front of them. Other drivers attempt to push stalled autos off the road. Still others start running across the roofs of the cars to get away from what they believe are mushroom clouds, which are really autos that have overheated.

Under present American driving conditions, it is my belief that the Soviets could do more damage with 100 Pintos than they could with 100 nuclear warheads.

Therefore, before the President tells Congress that civil defense is the moral equivalent of war, I urge him to get behind the wheel of Billy's pickup truck and drive from the White House to Alexandria, Va., during rush hour. If he can make it in less than an hour, I'll give him the $2 billion out of my own pocket.

Mark Russell says

The shortest span of time that can be measured falls between the final election results and the announcement that food prices are going up.

That's too bad because it would be nice to have a hearty meal before the recession.

President Carter wants a 7 percent ceiling on wage increases, but food prices are going up 7.5 to 10 percent. That sets you back even if you don't add hamburger to the helper.

Watch for Julia Child's new book — "Gourmet Scraps."

Beef and veal prices will be highest. Soon people will be lining up in the stores to view the Hope Cutlet.

NICK THIMMESCH

How to drive souls into the arms of Howard Jarvis

WASHINGTON — This past election showed that people are fed up with government and its excesses in spending, bureaucratic confusion and rudeness. Indeed, a slick candidate who could come off as an "aginner" without being obnoxious had a good chance of ousting an incumbent tied to the government monster.

Thus, some poor devils holding office lost, and a batch of outside rascals won, giving credence to H.L. Mencken's observation: "The saddest life is that of a political aspirant under democracy. His failure is ignominious and his success is disgraceful."

Whatever, the quick assessment is that the citizenry thumbed its nose at government because of burdensome taxes, and that Howard Jarvis and his Proposition 13 epistle were prophetic. As it turned out, voters in 16 states approved 80 percent of the referendums calling for tax cuts and other handcuff devices for government.

Who can deny that concern for the pocketbook is a prime mover at the polls? But in the case of the current anti-government binge, I also suspect that the bad experiences many citizens have in dealing with government at all levels hardly endeared the monster to voters. Anyone compelled to fill out a government form or application, the businessman snowed in government-issued paper, the poor soul courageous enough to phone a government office — all are driven to fits of anguish.

Such inefficiency is exasperating, but the final stroke is when a government employee, particularly a fed, is downright rude and is oblivious to who his or her customers are. When a citizen is treated rudely by a government employee, U.S. senator, representative or state legislator cannot provide much relief. When it jolts the taxpayer on the municipal level, however, the mayor can catch hell.

Indeed, mayors are the elected officials who promise the most about making their charges more courteous to the public. When he was campaigning, Washington D.C.'s Mayor-elect, Marion Barry, described his bad experiences with D.C. government employees and pledged to put them on better manners. When John V. Lindsay was running New York City he constantly implored his vast army of employees to be more civil with the public. Lindsay failed in this noble effort.

Some of the worst manners and biggest runarounds in all government are experienced in Washington. Those folks whose business it is to regularly phone government offices are accustomed to having an inquiry transferred from one to five times before reaching someone with backbone enough to address it. The patience required for such forays into the bureaucracy can be learned.

But who can stand the impudence and stupidity that some government telephone operators regularly display? The biggest dolts on this score are operators at the departments of Health, Education and Welfare; Housing and Urban Development, and Energy. A pox upon them.

Like many in the bureaucracy, they are blank-faced, unimaginative, and shielded by their unions and the civil service foliage. They often respond with all the enthusiasm of a dog sleeping in the sun on some dusty street in a fresh water town. In many instances, they will not help you find the right office, person, or way.

We who must take after this lot become inured while disgusted. But what of the uninitiated soul making that single or occasional call? Bad telephone manners by a federal operator or by the federal servant who finally picks up the phone, can drive even the decent and unsuspecting Aunt Marge in our Republic to the arms of Howard Jarvis and beyond.

Now Jimmy Carter has pried the bureaucratic vault open a bit for reform of the civil service system. If federal executives in the upper reaches are now allowed the challenge of trying for a higher position, at the risk of being demoted, perhaps initiative will creep into their demeanor. Initiative is sometimes accompanied by civility.

But will such civility filter to the lower reaches? Since we can't count on that prospect, I recommend that citizens assert themselves when engaging the monster. Tell any public servant, afflicted with bad manners or indifference, that you are a taxpayer and want your money's worth. But do not expect immediate satisfactory

The public is invited to an open meeting on "Alternatives for Community Involvement in Child Welfare" to be held Nov. 30. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Midland Room of The Midland National Bank.

Public response from the seminars held last spring, coordinated by the Department of Human Resources and the Human Relations Council, has indicated a growing interest for greater volunteer participation in various forms of citizen assistance. This meeting will help to gather interested citizens together to discuss alternatives that the community could adopt to help the abused-neglected child and family.

For more information, or if you are interested and cannot attend this meeting, contact the Human Relations Council at 684-5866 or Ann Bradford at the Department of Human Resources at 683-5411.

...RICHARD B. DUNIVEN is the Midland representative for the Elks National Free Throw Hoop Shoot contest slated for 10 a.m. Dec. 9 at the Texas National Guard Armory. The contest is open to both boys and girls ages 8-13. Local winners advance to district, state, regional and national competition. For more information, contact Duniven at 683-6533.

...ALL MIDLAND WOMEN, both college actives and alumnae, who have been initiated into a college social sorority, are invited to attend a gourmet affair at the home of Mrs. Courtney Cowden of No. 1 Churchill Way in Saddle Club North. The event will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and a $1 donation is requested for the tasting tea. A broth and different assortment of foods will be served. The donation will go to the Panhellenic Association, sponsor of the affair.

...FOR INTERESTED MIDLANDERS, recording artist Steve Fromholz will be appearing Nov. 24 and 25 at Eden Restaurant and Lounge in San Miguel Square. The Texas born singer's song "I'd Have To Be Crazy" was recorded by Willie Nelson, with Steve on background vocals. It went to Number One on the country charts. Steve will perform twice each night.

Darvon under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader's Health Research Group asked the government Tuesday to ban the painkiller Darvon and related compounds, charging it "is the deadliest prescription drug in the United States."

An analyst at the National Institute on Drug Abuse said there are indications that propoxyphene, widely promoted under the trade name Darvon, actually kills substantially more people across the country than the illicit drug heroin.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the Nader group, told Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. that the relatively mild painkiller ought to be banned immediately as "an imminent hazard to the public health."

In a simultaneous petition to the Justice Department, Wolfe said if propoxyphene is not banned, it at least ought to be restricted as a so-called Schedule II drug, which would set production limits and prohibit re-filling of prescriptions.

Propoxyphene is manufactured by several pharmaceutical companies but promoted under the trade name Darvon by Eli Lilly and Co.

Earlier this year, based on studies conducted by Lilly and Co., the Food and Drug Administration ordered manufacturers to warn physicians prescribing the widely used painkiller that it should not be taken with alcohol, tranquilizers or other depressants. The combination may result in convulsions or even death.

In 1971, the American Medical Association said the substance "is less effective than codeine and is no more effective than aspirin in usual doses; its popularity is probably due to the fact that it does not require a narcotic prescription rather than to its effectiveness as an analgesic."

Propoxyphene is not very effective as a pain reliever but in excessive doses is capable of producing "a euphoric high, which makes it attractive as a drug of abuse," said Wolfe.

A spokesman for Eli Lilly, Russell L. Durbin, defended the drug as having been "carefully and thoroughly evaluated" with "a long history of safe and effective use."

"It's been on the market for 21 years," Durbin added. "Hundreds of millions of patients have taken literally billions of doses of propoxyphene with an extremely high ratio of safety and relative freedom from side effects."

Nicholas Kozel, a public health analyst with the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said government figures show Darvon or other propoxyphene compounds were implicated in at least 486 deaths in 24 major cities between May 1977 and April 1978. Heroin-related deaths in the same cities totaled 609 during that period.

But most heroin use in the country is confined to those metropolitan areas, which represent about one-third of the U.S. population, Kozel said, whereas propoxyphene is prescribed throughout the nation.

"We can't be sure," Kozel cautioned, "but based on the pieces of the puzzle we know about, it does appear that Darvon is involved in more deaths than heroin."

Court orders reimbursement

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury has ordered Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. to pay most of the cost of an artificial breast for a woman whose breast was surgically removed.

Marjorie Aaron filed suit in Nassau District Court after the insurance company reimbursed her $64 for an $804 prosthesis. The Florida resident told the jury of four men and two women she needed the artificial breast to ease the emotional trauma of the surgery.

Metropolitan Life had maintained the device was "elaborate" and not "reasonable, customary or necessary."

The jury awarded the former Merrick, N.Y., resident $604 Monday, saying the artificial breast may not have been medically necessary but it was psychologically required. The amount was the allowable limit on her medical policy.

Judge Anthony Barbiero had told jurors that because the insurance policy specified no limit on the cost of prosthetic devices, the ambiguity should be held against the company.

Mrs. Aaron's attorney, Rudy Hirschheimer, told jurors that "if you feel Mrs. Aaron found it was necessary to be whole again, to be a complete woman again, then the cost was reasonable."

DEAR ABBY

Should she tattle on boss' prattle?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrific job as assistant to the head of a professional firm. I've been here only three months and love it.

My boss gets frequent calls from women who are in reality his girlfriends.

I know for a fact that he is divorced. His ex-wife phones him—and he calls her often to discuss their children. They have a friendly and even close relationship.

I have heard my boss tell his girlfriends that he is only separated, and that his wife will never give him a divorce.

He is aware that I have heard him lying, and he's asked me to answer no questions about his personal life. I never have.

I feel that by not volunteering the truth I am lying. My mother thinks I should quit my job and tell my boss why. I don't think I could ever get a job I like as much, and I don't want to quit. My mother and I have agreed to follow your advice.—CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: It is not your place as an employee to volunteer the facts to interested girlfriends concerning your boss's private life.

But if you feel that you are lying by withholding the truth, and your conscience can't handle it, quit.

DEAR ABBY: Last month our teen-age daughter ran off and got married. She realized within two weeks that it was a terrible mistake and came home.

We succeeded in having the marriage annulled and are now trying to live down the embarrassing episode. We don't care to discuss it with anyone, but this is a small town and news of this kind travels fast. When people ask us for the "details," what should we tell them?—EMBARRASSED IN IOWA

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Don't tell them anything. Your friends won't ask. And your enemies won't believe you anyway.

DEAR ABBY: My dearest friend talks about her two grandchildren constantly. Not only that, but she always drags her daughter and grandchildren along with her whenever she visits or is invited out socially. Daughter and children always seem to pop up at Mom's whenever Mom has company.

The grandchildren are cute, but they are always "on" and their mother and grandmother encourage them to be the center of attention.

I resent having toddlers underfoot when I plan to relax and socialize with adults.

Abby, don't you think that young mother should take her little ones and socialize with the diaper crowd where they can all enjoy the cute antics and baby talk?—A TIME FOR ADULTS

DEAR TIME: Yes. But you are addressing your complaints to the wrong person. If you want results, tell your dearest friend in your most diplomatic manner what you've told me.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ANYONE FOR WHOM IT IS NOT YET TOO LATE": The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies.

PTA fights violence, sex on TV

By MARC WILSON

CHICAGO (AP)—It might make a good television series: angry mothers fighting gargantuan "evil forces," fearful that they are corrupting children and warping society.

But you can bet it won't ever be on TV because the "evil forces" are the three television networks.

The National Parent Teachers Association is trying to teach the mothers, and a few fathers, how to challenge the licenses of five network-owned TV stations that expire next year.

They hope such action—or just the threat—will force ABC, NBC and CBS to reduce violence and sex on television.

The stations are in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland. The PTA conducted seminars within the last week in those cities to train members how to challenge broadcast licenses.

One angry mother of six, Jackie Sipple of Birmingham, Mich., explained why she attended the Detroit seminar: "My family lived in Europe for six years in the 1960s. We returned home to a different world. The impact of TV on this country was incredible."

"We were naive at first, thinking petitions and letters would do some good because broadcasters are supposed to act in the public interest. The networks and stations just laughed at us. They felt very secure that they were so strong and we were so weak."

Dr. William Young, director of the PTA TV Project, denied this. "The First Amendment protects the press because anyone can get a mimeograph machine and start a newspaper,"

"Now we're hitting them where it hurts, at their licenses, their pocketbooks. The public does have rights. The networks aren't laughing at us now," Mrs. Sipple said.

At the seminars, members were given a guide which said, "Despite the licensee's requirement to meet public interests, the television industry has too often allowed greed for profit and ratings to dictate a callous attitude toward very serious public concerns."

At Detroit's WXYZ-TV, an ABC station, program director Jeanne Findlater called the PTA action "monstrous."

"This is the first step towards government censorship," she said, adding that the PTA is setting itself up as "moral guardian for people who may want to watch 'Charlie's Angels' or whatever. They're challenging our First Amendment rights."

Dr. William Young, director of the PTA TV Project, denied this. "The First Amendment protects the press because anyone can get a mimeograph machine and start a newspaper," he said. "But the airwaves are limited, and controlled by very few people. So their First Amendment rights are limited."

He said the three network vice presidents for program standards decide what goes into American homes, adding: "These three men—who are all white and middle-aged—are totally New Yorkized or Los Angelesized. We're saying other people should have an input."

Young said he didn't know how that extra input could be attained, but "lots of research can find the way." He said the PTA's real target isn't the five stations but network programming.

"The best way to attack the networks is through the licenses they hold. They don't have to hold a license to be a network, but they have to have licenses to own stations," he said.

The Chicago stations are NBC's WMAQ, ABC's WLS and CBS' WBBM. NBC's WKYC in Cleveland is targeted too, as is Detroit's ABC station, WXYZ.

Young said 3,000 PTA members have just finished a survey of prime-time TV, which will be compiled by January, when the PTA will decide if any or all of the five licenses will be challenged.

With the exception of WXYZ's Ms. Findlater, television officials were reluctant to talk about the PTA effort. One network official said privately, "How can the networks attack the PTA, motherhood and all that. It just wouldn't look good."

George Dessart, executive assistant general manager at CBS, said, "We're not sure what they're concerned about. But we take the position that we're delighted people are taking a look at what we're doing. We don't operate in a vacuum. CBS took the lead in supporting the PTA. We provided them with their first contribution, $30,000—that's all they would take from us."

Bud Rukeyser, vice president of NBC public relations, said, "Responsible criticism of our business is something we welcome, and we have gotten that from the PTA in the past ... Our stations are responsibly run and we're not fearful of license challenges."

Young brushes aside claims that viewers are getting sex and violence because that's what they want. "Good shows can get good ratings, too—look at 'Little House on the Prairie' and '60 Minutes,'" he said.

The race to finish first in the ratings "is a fine madness," Young added. "The network that finishes third in the ratings is still making a 30 or 40 percent profit, but that isn't good enough, so the people at the top get fired based on ratings, not program quality."

Young brushes aside claims that viewers are getting sex and violence because that's what they want. "Good shows can get good ratings, too—look at 'Little House on the Prairie' and '60 Minutes,'" he said.

Dr. William Young, director of the National Parent Teachers Association Project, conducts a day-long training session in Chicago recently for a possible challenge to television license renewals in Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago. Financial support of PLO draws congressman's wrath

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of American dollars being used to "improve the image" of the Palestine Liberation Organization has drawn sharp criticism from a Texas congressman, U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson of Lufkin.

Wilson wrote President Carter Tuesday and expressed his outrage.

American funds have been set aside to help finance a film starring Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat that attempts to improve the PLO's image, Wilson said.

The democrat was specifically angered that about $190,000 of funds included in money the United States appropriates to go to the United Nations will be used Nov. 29 for the U.N. Day of Solidarity in support of the PLO.

"It is my understanding that as part of the observances on that date, a film will be premiered entitled, 'Palestinians Do Have Rights.' This film, which stars Arafat, attempts to justify Palestinian terrorist acts by having Palestinians defend their use of guerrilla tactics as a 'last resort approach.' There is a movement to put the film on national television."

The United States and eight other nations voted against the U.N. resolution that established the committee in charge of the Nov. 29 activities, Wilson pointed out.

"I also understand that our U.S. official position is that we have a binding international legal obligation to pay our share of assessed costs to the U.N. although we might not approve of all of the activities funded," added Wilson.

"But I would like to know what our U.S. officials at the U.N. are doing to make a change whereby obviously biased programs such as this one, which is attempting to make terrorists appear moderate, are not funded from assessed contributions.

IRA and KEOGH Retirement Plans at First Savings are the sure way to build for a secure retirement, and get a tax break at the same time.

With an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at First Savings you can save for the future at the impressive rate of 8% (effective annual yield 8.33%). Deduct whatever you save - up to $1500 - from your gross income. And defer every penny in taxes on your IRA until you withdraw it, normally after retiring. Then, you'll probably have less income and possibly be in a lower tax bracket.

(NOTE: There are severe penalties for early withdrawals.)

Here's an example of what an IRA can do for you. If you start an IRA at age 30, and deposit the maximum of $1500 per year until age 65, at the current interest rate, your IRA will be worth over $300,000. That's a tidy sum to start retirement, if you want to retire that young. By the way, your IRA is in addition to standard social security benefits. But remember, the deadline is the date your tax return is due in order to get your full tax deduction.

A Keogh Plan works much the same as an IRA except that it is designed for the self-employed individual, whereas the IRA is designed for the individual not covered by a pension or retirement plan. A Keogh Plan permits an annual deposit of up to $7500. With a Keogh Plan, you get the same tax advantages and interest rate as an IRA. However, the deadline for starting a Keogh is December the 31st, and you can make your final deposit on the day you file your taxes.

So stop by the First Savings offices downtown or San Miguel Square and let the "FISCAL FITNESS PEOPLE" show you the sure way to save for your retirement. It's getting later than you think...

T is for turkey, the noble bird that Benjamin Franklin thought would be a better symbol for our new nation than the eagle. But then what would we have for dinner?

H is for holiday which Thanksgiving has been since 1863 when President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed it as a national observance.

A is for All-American, because this is a day when we remember the many blessings and freedoms derived from living in this country.

N is for November.

K is for the kith and kin whom you count among your blessings.

S is for stuffing. Noun and adjective. Everyone has their own recipe, from oyster to chestnut, cornbread to sage.

G is for gobbie, gobbie. See T for turkey and S for stuffing.

I is for the Indians, the truly original settlers.

V is for Virginia where the first Thanksgiving in the New World was celebrated in 1619 at Berkeley Plantation.

I is for indigenous and many of the traditional Thanksgiving menu items are native to North America; squash, corn, beans, pumpkins, sweet potatoes and of course tobacco.

N is for nap which you take after dinner.

G is for the good graces and blessings remembered on this day of Thanksgiving.

This gas oil fractionator is representative of the enormous pieces of equipment required at Amoco Texas Refining Co.'s oil refinery in Texas City. Weighing 180,000 pounds and measuring 130 feet long and 13 feet in diameter, it was moved by truck from Longview. Amoco representatives say the 47,000-barrel, multimillion-dollar expansion will help slake America's energy thirst.

Operators announce drillsites for explorers

Wildcat projects have been announced in Glasscock, Pecos and Crockett counties, and a deep Ellenburger confirmation test has been slated in Winkler County.

Patrick Petroleum Co. of Michigan, operating from Midland, spotted drillsite for a 10,400-foot wildcat in Glasscock County, 18 miles southeast of Garden City.

The project is No. 1 Cantey, 2,250 feet from north and 800 feet from west lines of CB&CG survey No. 1, abstract A-20. It is two miles northeast of the Barbee (Wichita-Albany) pool.

It is 5,837 feet from south and 671 feet from east lines of section 37, block 9, H&GN survey.

The site is 1/3 mile north of a 4,190-foot dry hole and 7/8 mile northwest of an undesigned Tubb discovery.

FIELD TEST

Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 2 Wolfe Unit is to be drilled as a 21,800-foot Ellenburger test in Winkler County, 10 miles northwest of Kermit.

It is 5/8 mile south of the Ellenburger discovery of the Crittendon multiphase field and one location south of Atoka gas production. The Ellenburger discovery is the old Sinclair Oil & Gas No. 1 Tubb Estate.

The new gas project is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 24, block C-23, psi survey.

PECOS FIELD TRY

Mobil Oil Corp. No. 2-35 Vollmar Section 35 is a re-entry project in the Four C (Middle Clear Fork) area of Pecos County, 7.5 miles east of Imperial.

Originally completed as an oil well in the Clear Fork, the operator will recomplete as a gas producer. Total depth is 4,100 feet and hole will be plugged back to approximately 3,470 feet.

It is 3/4 mile southeast of the middle Clear Fork discovery and 660 feet from south and 850 feet from east lines of section 35, block 9, H&GN survey.

Odessa Natural Corp. No. 1-4 Odes-

Priority rule proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Energy proposed Tuesday a rule to assign natural gas on a priority basis to essential agricultural uses in times of gas shortages.

A department announcement said the proposal would keep interstate pipelines from curtailing natural gas for such uses unless it is required for even higher priority uses, or unless alternative fuels are available.

The highest priority for gas delivery is usually assigned to homes and small businesses.

The department scheduled public hearings on the proposal for January, and must adopt a final rule by next March 9, under provisions of the National Energy Act, signed into law 12 days ago.

Before it adopts final rules, the announcement said, the department wants comments on where essential agriculture should fit into the rest of the priority list; whether, for example, it should receive gas in preference to apartment buildings, schools and hospitals with the capability of switching to other fuels.

Pool gains seventh well

Flag Redfern Oil Co. of Midland No. 3-A-28-1 Atlantic, former Tubb 3335 gas well in the Roberdeau, West multiphase field of Crane County, has been recompleted as a Tubb 3335 oil producer.

It pumped 1.75 barrels of 40.8-gravity oil and two barrels of water on 24-hour potential test, with a gas-oil ratio of 9,142-1.

Production is through perforations from 3,296 to 3,369 feet after 500 gallons of acid and 2,000 gallons of fracture solution.

The well, the seventh from that oil pay in the field, is one location northwest of other 3335 Tubb oil production.

Location is 760 feet from northwest and 660 feet from northeast lines of section 28, block 35, H&TC survey.

It was completed in 1970 for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1,040,000 cubic feet of gas per day through the same set of perforations. The well is 13 miles southwest of Crane.

Energy consumption pattern making change

TULSA, Okla. — West Germany's energy consumption pattern is changing in response to higher prices.

Especially attentive to the changes, according to the Oil & Gas Journal, are strategists for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which will meet in Abu Dhabi next month to fix the global price of crude oil.

The strategists need to know how much higher oil prices can go before industrialized countries cut their oil demand growth even more than they already have. West Germany can serve as a good guide.

The country has Western Europe's strongest economy and a dire need of imported energy. In addition, it has a detailed national energy plan, implemented quickly in 1974 to cut its dependence on oil. The Journal's Nov. 20 issue says a new energy scene is unfolding in that country.

The West German government's energy policy calls for a reduction in petroleum's contribution to total energy supply to 46 percent in 1985 and 27 percent in 2000 from 53 percent this year.

To accomplish those goals, the nation is pushing production of coal and lignite. German coal is deep and expensive and is subsidized by taxes on electricity from generating stations using heavy fuel oil.

Even with increased coal output, nuclear power—now furnishing 3 percent of energy requirements—must be boosted to meet 10 percent of requirements in 1985 and 27 percent in 2000, the Journal says.

But there is strong opposition to new nuclear generating stations in West Germany, and the problem of disposing of nuclear wastes has not been resolved.

Any long delay in nuclear energy development will increase demand for heavy fuel oil.

West Germans are beginning to realize that they haven't felt the full effects of global crude oil price increases. That's because world prices are established in U.S. dollars, which have been weak against the Deutsche mark.

The world price of crude jumped nine-fold during 1970-77 but increased only six-fold in German terms. And, because of transportation and crude quality factors, the price actually paid in German is quadrupled.

Petroleum product prices, meanwhile, have been depressed because of the refining capacity surplus that has plagued Germany as well as the rest of Western Europe.

During the first nine months of this year, refinery utilization has been about 60 percent, but refiners, especially those who can convert to lighter products, think utilization rates soon will increase.

There is a growing theory in West Germany that high crude prices following the Arab oil embargo of 1973 actually have been good for the country.

According to this theory, the cash that flowed into the hands of Arab oil producers has increased Arab spending for German industrial goods.

One major West German bank estimates exports due to this increased purchasing power have created 250,000 jobs.

Explorer site staked

McClellan Oil Corp. and J. Penrod Toles of Roswell spotted location for a 4,800-foot wildcat in Chaves County, 19 miles north of Dexter.

The project, No. 1 Penjack, is five miles northwest of the shallow Grayburg-San Andres production in the Brown field and 660 feet from north and west lines of section 6-10s-26e. Ground elevation is 3,694 feet.

Spraberry well final

Durham, Inc., of Midland No. 1 F. E. Sneldl has been completed in the Breedlove (Spraberry) field of Martin County, 18 miles south of Lamesa.

The new oiler finalized for 1.15 barrels of oil and 30 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 869-1, through perforations from 8,289 to 8,375 feet after a 40,000-gallon acid treatment.

Total depth is 8,490 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom. Plugged back depth is 8,451 feet.

Location is 60 feet from south and west lines of labor 7, league 259, Borden County School Land survey.

Superport work starts

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Construction work has started on the first phase of Louisiana's offshore superport with drilling of a shaft into an underground salt dome in coastal Lafourche Parish.

"This is the first work to be started and it'll probably be the last thing to be completed," said Terry Trovato, spokesman for Louisiana Offshore Oil Port (LOOP) Inc., which is building the superport.

The superport, expected to start operations in two years, will be a floating terminal in water deep enough to handle huge supertankers that cannot get into natural harbors along the Gulf and East coasts.

Underwater pipelines will connect the terminal 18 miles south of Grand Isle to the mainland.

The well being drilled on shore will be one of 40 that will be sunk into the onshore Clovelly salt dome. After the wells are drilled, water will be pumped in to leach out cavities where oil will be stored.

Oil does not dissolve salt, so the salt domes will hold the oil like a giant bottle.

Eight separate cavities will be leached out, and each will have five wells where oil will be pumped in and taken out at a rate as fast as 1,000 gallons a second.

The separate cavities are necessary to keep different grades of oil separate, Trovato said.

LOOP has begun receiving 48-inch pipe for the pipeline that will carry the oil to the salt dome storage caverns, Trovato said. Workers will begin laying the pipe in January, he said.

Schleicher gains tester

Way & Mills of Midland announced location for a 7,550 feet project in the Velux, Southeast (Canyon gas) area of Schleicher County, 14 miles northwest of Eldorado. It is No. 2 R. I. Cass.

It is 3,774 feet southwest of the discovery well and only producer in the pool and 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 23, block TT, TCCR survey. Ground elevation is 2,500 feet.

IRION TEST

Indian Wells Oil Co. of Ozona No. 1-58 Probandt is to be drilled as a one-mile south outpost to the Probandt(Canyon oil and gas) pool of Crockett County. The site is in Irion County, 22 miles northwest of Mertzon.

Location for the 7,300-foot operation is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 58, block 7, H&TC survey. Elevation is 1,472 feet.

U.S. to get Chinese oil

HOUSTON (AP) — China will export oil to the United States for the first time early next year.

Coastal States Gas Corp. said Tuesday it has reached agreement with the Chinese on importing the oil and said shipments of low sulphur crude from the Taching Field in northeastern China are expected to begin arriving on the West Coast early next year.

Coastal said a subsidiary, Coastal States Trading Inc., signed an agreement last week in Peking with China National Chemicals Import and Export Corp. for the purchase of more than 3.6 million barrels of oil.

Thanksgiving thanks to old salt, old ship

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LONDON (AP)—Capt. Christopher Jones, master of the Mayflower, regarded her as "a sweet ship": 180 tons, broad of beam, double decked, with high superstructures or "castles" fore and aft. She even smelled sweet, from years of service in the Mediterranean wine trade.

But the old salt, whose kindness and concern for his passengers helped found a nation, went to his grave in a churchyard near the London docks without ever dreaming that centuries later — especially on Thanksgiving Day — families would claim with pride and passion and sometimes a touch of perjury to have been descended from the cruise roster of his 1620 voyage to the New World. No ship's company, not even the Ark or the Titanic, bred such Boston's Mayflower too.

When last seen, in 1624, she was riding at anchor at Rotherhithe "in very poor trim, being valued at 138 pounds and 8 shillings, with all her fittings and one suit of worn sails."

And so they both ended their days, too soon, at Rotherhithe, these noble bearers of the American dream, the old salt and the old ship who made Thanksgiving possible. Had they known what history had in store for them, they might have rocked with laughter in their final anchorage at the pretension born of that stormy North Atlantic passage or sighed in sorrow, like the wind in the worn rigging, at what has become of the commonplace values of hard work and faith in their God that made these commoners from the lower classes of England such uncommonly courageous colonists in the New World.

Going down the passenger list, there were no bluebloods among them. Their common bond, at a time when society was rigidly stratified, was that they came from the cottages of England, not the castles.

Ironically, too, there were no pilgrims landing at Plymouth Rock, because the term did not come into use until the early 19th century. But there were "saints," as the 41 called themselves who belonged to the Separatist church of Robert "Troublechurch" Browne, a famous dissenter from the Church of England. The rest of the ship's company were "strangers," members of the established church who were hired to work for and settle in the colony. Myles Standish, Priscilla Mullens and John Alden, the "pilgrims" made famous by Longfellow, were among the strangers, not the saints.

There were no aristocrats, no landed gentry, no bankers, no lawyers, no bishops, no college professors on the Mayflower passenger list, but there were 18 indentured servants and such blue-collar types as blacksmith, cooper, linen weaver, tailor, hat maker, soldier, sailor, wood carver, silk worker, wool comber, merchant, printer, shopkeeper, cloth maker, sawyer and carpenter.

In addition to the saints, there were a number of celebrated sinners. John Billington was hanged in 1630 for the blunderbuss murder of John Newcomen. His wife, Ellen Billington, was fined five pounds and made "to sit in the stocks and be publicly whipped" for slandering Deacon John Doane. The Bollington boys, 9-year-old Francis and 7-year-old John, were America's first juvenile delinquents. Francis set fire to and almost blew up the Mayflower by firing off a fowling piece in the powder magazine. The other ran away from home and "lost himself in the woods," as Governor Bradford wrote, "and wandered up and down some five days, living on berries and what he could find."

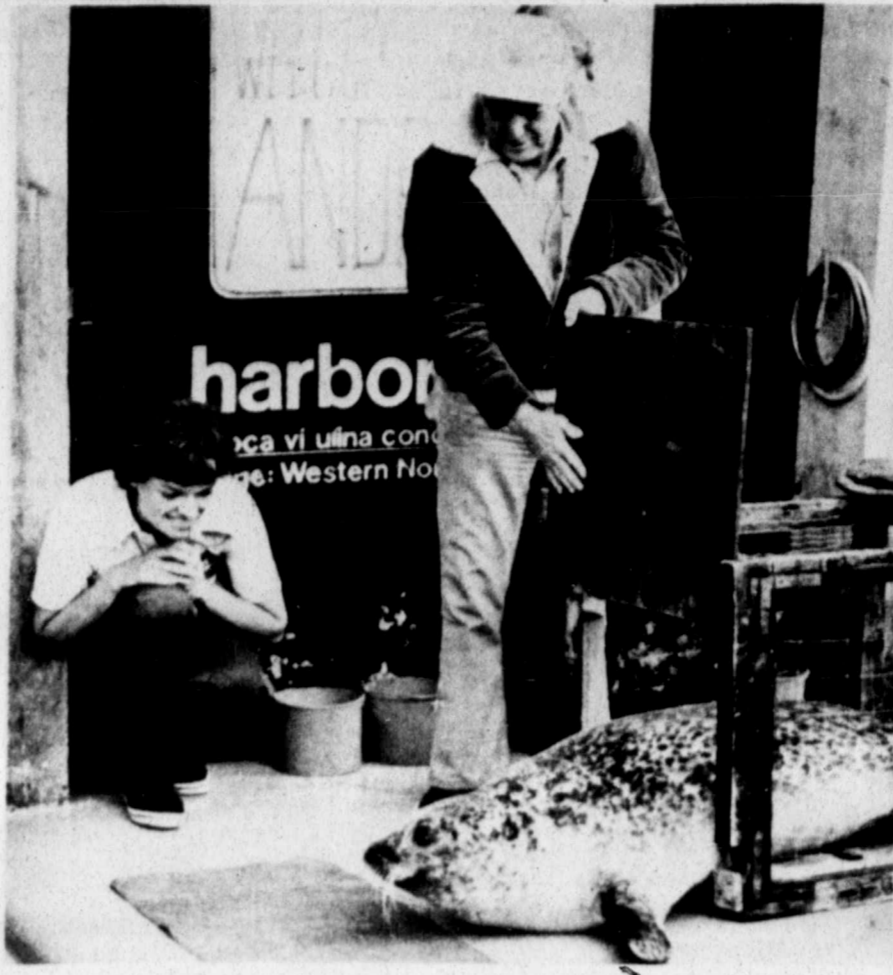

Colonist Isaac Allerton, the tailor, was forced to leave Plymouth in disgrace for shady dealings after being elected business agent. Edward Doty and Edward Leister, both indentured servants, fought the colony's first duel almost as soon as the Mayflower landed, for which they were "tied together heels and heads."

John Cooke, 8-year-old son of the wool comber, grew up to become a church deacon in Plymouth but was "deprived of office and excommunicated for turning Baptist during religious troubles." America's first born-again Christian ended up his days as a Baptist preacher in New Bedford, Mass. John Alden, the bashful suitor, finally married Priscilla Mullens, had a varied career in which he rose from barrel maker to assistant governor, was arrested for murder in Boston, led persecutions against the Baptists and Quakers and at the end of his days "being in low estate" was granted 10 pounds welfare.

John Howland, a servant who bought his freedom, also rose to assistant governor and was implicated in the same murder as Alden, which involved a feud with rival settlers over beaver hunting territories. Both beat the rap but never held public office again.

There were also in that famous Mayflower company "wise and discrete" William Brewster, John Carver "of singular piety," Gov. William Bradford "a common blessing and father to them all," Samuel Fuller "a great help and comfort," Richard Warren "a useful instrument" and linen weaver John Goodman, who brought the only dogs on board, "a large mastiff bitch and a spaniel."

Even in those days, you met all kinds of people on a ship, and it took all kinds to make a new world.

Doctors work to create artificial ear for deaf

By ROBERT LOCKE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Imagine a world in which there is no sound — where birds don't sing and dogs don't bark; where lullabies and symphonies are never heard. All about you, all the time, is silence.

That is the world of the deaf. Now doctors and engineers at a handful of research centers around the world are combining their talents to open that world — to build an artificial ear that will bring meaningful sound to the deaf.

And with sound should come speech, a power that's almost always denied those who have never heard, said Dr. Robert A. Schindler of the University of California-San Francisco. He said an estimated 300,000 deaf Americans, beyond the help of hearing aids or surgery, are isolated from a society they can neither hear nor talk to.

Schindler, Dr. Robert P. Michelson and other UCSF researchers are developing a device to convert sound into tiny electrical impulses that would bypass faulty natural equipment in the ear and go directly into the auditory nerve.

The impulses, properly coded and applied in the right places, would produce nerve signals the brain interprets as sound, Schindler said.

He said the sophisticated device, compressed to the size of a matchbook, could be implanted near the patient's ear and connected to the nerve by electrodes.

Simple nerve stimulators already are being used experimentally at a number of laboratories. Schindler said they reproduce a crude sensation of sound by stimulating a single chunk of nerve fibers.

Patients equipped with the implants can recognize such sounds as a passing car. Their ability to read lips is dramatically improved. But, Schindler said, the spoken word is still beyond their grasp.

The UCSF team hopes to refine that device into an implant that gives meaning to sounds by dividing them into different frequencies. The proposed implant would stimulate at least eight distinct points on the nerve. Each point records a separate frequency.

"With the simple nerve stimulators, it's like banging all the keys on a piano at the same time," Schindler said in an interview. "We are designing electrodes that, for the first time, will be able to stimulate the nerve selectively.

"Then we can begin playing the piano, if not with our fingers, at least with our hands ... to provide some of the tonality and the fullness of normal sound."

Schindler said tests with laboratory animals prove the device is feasible — that the nerve can survive the operation and specific points can be stimulated.

The first tests with humans are planned within six months.

"If there are no major problems," he said, "I would think this might become widely available in the next five years."

He said the cost of the implant, including surgery and maintenance, would probably total about $10,000.

"With this device," Schindler said, "there is, for the first time, a sense of hope for the totally deaf."

Schindler describes deafness as "a silent and lonely handicap. A child who is born without hearing will almost never develop speech. So the deaf are often dismissed as dumb or stupid."

breeding. There were 102 of them, subtracting the two who died at sea and adding the two who were born before the landing at Plymouth, and Jones knew them all intimately ... or at least well enough to give his life for them. Rather than abandon them on that wintry New England coast, he kept the Mayflower at anchor through the next spring, helping the colonists with the planting that brought forth that first harvest, for which they gave thanks at the first Thanksgiving.

But Jones died of chills and fever a few months after his return to his birthplace near Boston's Rotherhithe docks, another victim of that first terrible winter at Plymouth that left only 55 survivors to sit down to the famous first Thanksgiving dinner. That winter had been rough on the stout little

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Why do you discourage drinking a lot of coffee?—B.R.

DEAR B.R.: Caffeine is a strong stimulant with druglike properties and is considered to have an unfavorable effect on nutrient absorption. Caffeine also is known to stimulate insulin release from the pancreas which can cause a drop in blood sugar and an increase in hunger. Caffeine can also exacerbate a condition of low blood sugar called hypoglycemia. That's why both regular coffee and cola drinks in excess are discouraged. Decaffeinated coffee is okay since the intake of actual caffeine is minimized.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Why are eggs recommended on your diet? I thought it was intended to reduce cholesterol consumption and when a person goes on a low cholesterol diet, the one thing he can't have is eggs?—Annette

DEAR ANNETTE: If you don't have a cholesterol problem, eating eggs is not bad for you. It is true that eggs are a major source of dietary cholesterol. However, eggs have a very high-quality protein and many other nutrient values. The majority of the cholesterol in your blood does not come from the cholesterol in the food you eat, but it comes from the cholesterol which your liver makes from non-cholesterol substances. In any event, you should check with your doctor about how much cholesterol to eat and follow his advice.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: I can't seem to stay on any diet. Do you have any suggestions?—S.S.

DEAR S.S.: My first suggestion is THINK THIN. Don't think about how you are being "deprived"; that's a negative goal. Think about the positive goals. Tell yourself many times a day "I want to look better in my clothes" or "I want to be happier with myself and the way I look."

My second suggestion is REWARD YOURSELF. After being faithful to your diet for two days, reward yourself with a treat such as a night out with your spouse—or, if you are not married, a friend. Plan to reward yourself with a new article of clothing—preferably in a smaller size—after you have achieved a certain weight loss.

My third suggestion is INCREASE YOUR EXERCISE. Walk longer or do your exercises more frequently, unless restricted by your doctor. You can find a good exercise program in my new paperback book "Dr. Solomon's Proven Master Plan for Total Body Fitness and Maintenance" published by Berkeley.

My fourth suggestion is GET A BUDDY—some member of the family or close friend who will join you in following the diet. You can encourage each other and bolster your determination to achieve your goals. A fairly sizeable wager that you will achieve your goals also helps.

As a final suggestion, try CALORIE COUNTING. This will quickly tell you the types of food that are your weakness. Actually, you can make a game of calorie counting. It can be fun instead of a chore.

Indian bridge trick sometimes pays off

In the old Indian rope trick you throw a rope up in the air, climb to the top, throw the rope up again and so on. You play some bridge hands the same way, basing one unsupported assumption on another.

West takes the two diamonds and then leads the deuce of hearts. Should you play the king or the jack from dummy?

Every alert reader can see whether West holds the ace or the queen of hearts, but wouldn't have this slight advantage in actual play. What should you do at the table?

You must assume that West has the king of spades because you can't afford to lose a spade trick even if you make the winning play in hearts. You must also assume that West has either the queen or ace of hearts because otherwise East will take two heart tricks.

NOT UNIMPORTANT
 These assumptions are unsupported but not unimportant. If East has the king of spades or the A-Q of hearts you are going down, and your assumptions won't matter.

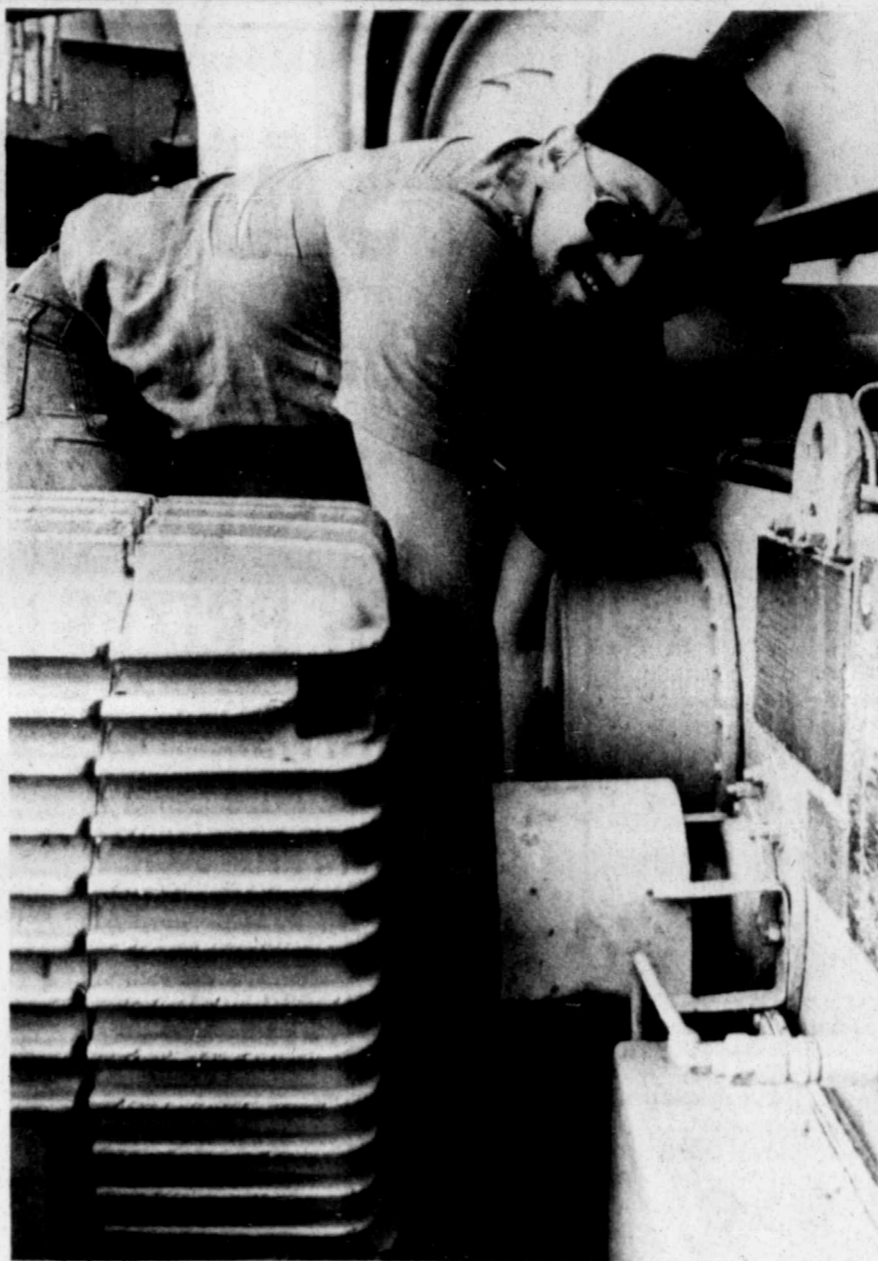

If West does have the king of spades he cannot have the ace of hearts because he would have opened the bidding with two aces and two kings. Your only hope is to play West for the queen of hearts.

Your answer to the question: Play dummy's jack of hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold: S K 6; H Q 8 5 2; D A K 8 3; C 7 6 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Some experts would bid one diamond on this borderline hand; others would pass. Perhaps more experts would pass than would bid, but the vote would go the other way if the hand contained a couple of tens or nines.

Sailor Benny A. Schur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. McCormack of Midland, works as an electrician's mate aboard the Navy ammunition ship USS Mount Baker, one of 34 ships participating in Gulf Ex 79, a joint service training exercise in the Gulf of Mexico.

Family, sailor son to meet at Houston

ABOARD THE USS MOUNT BAKER — "It's about 600 miles from Midland to Houston, but my folks will be meeting the ship," said Benny A. Schur of Midland.

The 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. McCormack of 2507 W. Francis Ave. will be arriving in the Lone Star state aboard the Navy ammunition ship USS Mount Baker.

The 20,000-ton vessel will be one of two visiting Houston Friday through Monday. The visit of the ship and the frigate USS Richard L. Page come near the end of a massive naval training exercise, Gulf Ex 79.

More than 12,000 people aboard 20 U.S. Navy ships are participating in the largest joint service, bilateral training exercise ever conducted in the northwestern Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico area.

Nearly 6,000 U.S. Air Force, Air National Guard and Coast Guard people, along with 2,500 British Royal Navy participants, also are involved in the 21-day exercise.

As part of this effort, Navy fireman Schur is training as an electrician's mate aboard the USS Mount Baker.

"This job is making me familiar with electrical and mechanical equipment working in unison toward a common goal," said the West Texan.

The stocky Navyman is a 1975 graduate of Amherst, Tex., High School, where he played football for two years.

His family moved to Midland shortly after his graduation and Schur worked for the Rocky Ford Moving Co. before enlisting in the Navy in December 1976.

Psychologist says cult chief deranged

Agence-France-Presse

COPENHAGEN — The self-styled Rev. Jim Jones, who headed the suicidal Peoples Temple community at Jonestown, Guyana, was mentally deranged and thought he was Lenin, a Danish psychologist who visited the camp recently said here Tuesday.

Speaking to reporters, Peter Elsass, 31, who returned last week from a six-month study visit to Latin America, which included a 48-hour stay at Jonestown, said he had been able to speak to Jim Jones only by radio telephone.

He said Jones feared that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was poisoning his food, and that Jones was so absorbed in socialism that he sometimes thought he was Lenin and spoke in the former Soviet leader's voice.

Elsass said that during his visit he was watched over by bodyguards even when he went to the lavatory, and that while he was shown what appeared to be an idyllic existence, he had not been able to see how the sect members lived and realized after leaving that he had not been shown everything.

Elsass added, however, that he had been provided with excellent sleeping accommodations and was treated well, adding that he was sorry the sect's alternative life society had had such a tragic end.

Fraud inquiry under way

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Department of Human Resources announced Tuesday that its investigators — some working undercover — have completed a major crackdown on the buying and selling of food stamps in Central Texas.

The 16 complaints to be filed with local prosecutors, the department said, is the first move in a statewide campaign against food stamp fraud.

Of the 16 complaints, the department added, seven will be filed in Waco, five in Travis County, two in Bell County and one each in Brazos and Williamson counties.

Bryan Chenault, supervisor of investigations for the department, said the complaints involve illegal purchases by a barber, liquor store owner, college instructor and various merchants, including grocers.

It is against the law to buy or sell food stamps, Chenault noted, and 12 of the 16 complaints are felony complaints, which could result in prison sentences of up to 10 years.

More than 200 Vietnamese drowned after boat capsizes

KUALA TRENGGANU, Malaysia (AP) — More than 200 Vietnamese refugees were believed drowned today when their boat capsized off the northeast coast of the Malaysian peninsula after officials refused to let them land.

Local reporters said a survivor told them there were 254 people aboard the wooden boat. A police spokesman said 51 survivors were accounted for and five bodies had been recovered, including those of two children.

The survivor who talked to the reporters said the boat capsized in rough water after hitting a sandbar at 9:30 a.m. as it was moving out of the Trengganu River estuary.

Police said villagers rescued some who were struggling in the water by throwing them inflated inner tubes.

The boat, which was reported to have been between 50 and 70 feet long, went down a few miles from the offshore island of Pulau Bidong, on which Malaysia's largest refugee camp is located. There are 22,000 Vietnamese in the camp.

The tragedy was certain to produce more foreign pressure on the Malaysian government to ease its efforts to check the flow of Vietnamese refugees to its shores. This has become a major international issue since the freighter Hai Hong arrived off the west coast two weeks ago and the government refused to let the 2,500 refugees from Vietnam land.

Despite the bar on the Hai Hong passengers, 7,000 Vietnamese refugees in small boats have been allowed to land at island refugee camps off the Trengganu coast or on the coast since Nov. 1. But the report that the boatload had been turned away Tuesday indicated that the government might be extending its ban.

The disaster was among the worst known in terms of lives lost among the boat people who have fled from Vietnam since the Communist victory in 1975. However, there has been much speculation that hundreds or thousands of refugees in overcrowded boats have been drowned.

Officials in Kuala Lumpur were unhappy because the United States, while adding 2,500 to its 1978 refugee quota because of the Hai Hong, wants the 2,500 to come from the camps and not from the freighter.

"They want to go on the basis that the first refugees to land here should be chosen first and not those on the Hai Hong who reached here only two weeks ago," said a senior refugee specialist.

YMCA Fun Club Friday

The Alamo YMCA will offer a Thanksgiving Fun Club on Friday for youngsters.

Those who are interested should report to the Alamo Junior High School west parking lot by 8:30 a.m. Friday. Fee will be $4 for Alamo Y members and $6 for non-members.

Participants will be taken to the Central YMCA at 800 N. Big Spring St. for a day of movies, swimming and games. Each youngster should bring a swimsuit and towel, money for cold drinks and a sack lunch.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning 694-9571 or 694-2529.

Midland schools take first two berths in competition

Midland High School took first place and Lee took second in the overall sweepstakes competition at the El Paso Eastwood Invitational Speech Tournament last weekend. Midland ended with 201 points to Lee's 160.

Twenty-one schools participated in the Texas Forensic Association qualifying meet.

Midland's team of Ralph Kenney and Anthony Folger took first place in standard debate. Lee's Teresa Scardino and Deanne Durfee placed third in the event.

In cross-examination debate, Lee placed first with Mike Shaunessy and Tim Norman, second with Eric Fryar and John Kimberly and third with Paul Raymond and Ernest Angelo. Midland's Joni Brown and Therese Folger placed fourth.

In impromptu speaking Midland's Jane Forsyth took first and Mark Stanley took second place. Bryan McNary from Lee took third place in the event.

Therese Folger from Midland took first in original oratory. Lee's Teresa Scardino got fourth place in oratory.

Lee's Tim Norman took first in boys' extemporaneous speaking. Jane Forsyth from Midland was third in girls' extemp.

Dode Harvey from Midland took first in poetry interpretation. Lee's Meri Jo Strawn placed third in the event.

Midland's Connie Velasco was second in both humorous and dramatic interpretations. Lee's John Gould was fourth in prose interpretation.

The team of Mark White and Matt Vaughn took first place in duet acting for Midland. Lee's Gary Hamilton and Edwin Scherzer took fourth in the event.

Other Midland High School finalists and their events were Dode Harvey and Matt Vaughn in prose reading, Phillip Coffield in poetry interpretation, Starr Boldrick and Valerie Van Pelt in girls' extemporaneous speaking and Valerie Van Pelt in impromptu speaking.

Semifinalists from Midland were Joni Brown in girls' extemporaneous speaking, Rayford Graves and Mark Stanley in boys' extemporaneous speaking and Starr Boldrick in impromptu speaking.

Lee semifinalists were Brenda Woods and Jim LaFontaine in poetry interpretation; Meri Jo Strawn and Bryan McNary in humorous interpretation; Angel Durr and Brenda Woods in duet acting; John Kimberly and Mike Shaunessy in oratory; Mike Cummins, Billy Forest, Ernest Angelo and Paul Raymons in boys' extemporaneous speaking.

Students from Midland High School who qualified for the March TFA state tournament in Waco were Jane Forsyth, Valerie Van Pelt and Starr Boldrick in girls' extemp, Connie Velasco in dramatic and humorous interpretation and Mark White and Matt Vaughn in duet acting.

Lee High School students to qualify for the state meet were Tim Norman in boys' extemp, Teresa Scardino in oratory and Eric Fryar and John Kimberly in cross examination debate.

Two Lee groups placed in a non-sweepstakes event, group dramatic improvisation.

The group of Mike Harrell, David Walton, Angel Durr, Brenda Woods and Bryan McNary took first place honors with a presentation of "2175 A.D.: Live It Up." The group of Kathy Shaw, Gary Hamilton, Edwin Scherzer, John Gould and Meri Jo Strawn took fourth with a presentation of "Life Raft."

College faculty postpones cutback policy

A proposed retrenchment policy for cutting back faculty if student enrollments drop was postponed for further study by the Midland College trustees at their meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The policy presented by MC President Dr. Al G. Langford called for cutting the teaching staff if student loads in a department fell below the normally require level for three consecutive full semesters. Every effort would be made to retain teaching staff by reassigning them to other areas or giving them counseling duties, Langford said.

A committee of trustees was appointed to study the proposal and make a recommendation at the January meeting of the board.

In other business, trustees agree to obtain liability insurance for all campus buildings and medical payments insurance for Chaparral Center.

The $500,000-limit liability insurance and $50,000-limit property damage coverage for all campus buildings will cost $5,177. Providing medical payments for audience members in Chaparral Center will cost an additional $478.

The medical payments insurance would allow the college to pay for treatment of minor injuries to persons attending events at the center immediately and could prevent later more costly lawsuits, trustees were told.

In other business, trustees agreed to obtain liability insurance for all campus buildings and medical and heard the annual audit report.

Fidel Castro offering jail release

By IKE FLORES

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro, offering to release more than 3,000 political prisoners, said today the United States "cannot deny its obligation" to accept those who want to immigrate.

Castro, in announcing the planned releases, said he was also relaxing travel restrictions for Cubans wishing to go to the United States and for exiles around the world seeking to visit their homeland. He said the travel restrictions would be eased on "a humanitarian basis" to reunite families, and that the visits could begin in January.

Castro said the 3,000 inmates constituted 80 percent of the political prisoners in Cuba, and would include the about 50 women held as political prisoners. The inmates who will not be freed committed serious crimes, generally of terrorist nature, he said.

Military airlift underway

By GEORGE ESPER

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — American military forces were preparing the decaying bodies of the 405 Jonestown suicides today for transfer to the United States. The U.S. Air Force said the first plane loads should arrive in Delaware on Thanksgiving Day.

The search continued for hundreds of Americans believed to have fled from the mass suicide-by-poison which the Rev. Jim Jones of the Peoples Temple led Saturday at Jonestown, his cult's jungle settlement in northwest Guyana.

About 40 survivors were reported to have turned up. Because of uncertainty about the number in the settlement at the time, estimates of the missing ranged from 200 to 700.

Meanwhile, the FBI announced in Washington Tuesday night that it had opened an investigation of the slaying of Calif. Rep. Leo Ryan by the Peoples Temple cult at a Jonestown airstrip. The agency said it was doing so under the congressional assassinations law, which makes it a federal crime to kill a congressman, and said the investigation was being conducted in the United States and in Guyana. The Peoples Temple has its headquarters in San Francisco.

Defectors from the death-marred

Peoples Temple claimed that hit squads were scattered around the United States hoping to murder those who broke away from the cult.

"I know there are 200 people that Jones set up to stay alive and to assassinate us," Wanda Johnson, a former believer in the Jones movement, said in Berkeley, Calif..

In addition to the hit squads, Mrs. Johnson said, Jones "set aside money, that if the assassination squads did not accomplish their mission, the Mafia was to be contacted and contracts were to be taken on our lives."

The FBI in San Francisco confirmed that its agents were investigating rumors that members of the Peoples Temple in California planned to kidnap or assassinate high-ranking U.S. officials and others to avenge Jones.

In New York a spokesman for Bantam Books Inc. said it would issue its 64th "instant" book the week of Dec. 3 entitled, "The Suicide Cult: The Untold Story of the Peoples Temple Sect and The Massacre in Guyana."

Police Commissioner Lloyd A. Barker said the teams searching for the fleeing cultists had gone to friendly Indian villages in the area, but there was no report from them yet. The Guyana government also asked the United States for helicopters with loudspeakers to fly over the jungle and broadcast that it was safe to come out.

Barker said about 40 surviving members of the colony had been found in the area, but the U.S. Embassy said it had been informed of only 14. Stephan Jones, the 19-year-old son of the leader of the cult, reported he and 44 others were in Georgetown and escaped the suicide.

Jones, a former San Francisco city official who led members of his cult to Guyana four years ago, ordered the mass suicide after a group of his followers killed Ryan and three U.S. newsmen with him on an investigation of charges that Jonestown settlers were abused and kept against their will. A woman attempting to flee the colony also was killed in the attack.

Guyana officials said they had arrested three prime suspects in the killing of Ryan and his companions. They were identified as Michael Prokes, 31, a former Stockton, Calif., television reporter; Tim Carter, 30, a former U.S. Marine from Garden City, Idaho; and Larry Layton, 32, whose hometown was not known.

Forty U.S. specialists were flown Tuesday to Jonestown to begin sealing the rotting remains of the suicides in bags for the trip back to the United States.

Military helicopters were being flown dismantled from the United States, and their assembly was expected to begin today. Then they were to be flown to Jonestown to ferry the bagged bodies to Matthews Ridge, an airstrip 12 miles from the settlement, where they were to be loaded on Air Force cargo planes.

Twenty cargo planes left the United States late Tuesday for Georgetown, the Air Force reported. A spokesman at McGuire Air Force Base, in New Jersey, said the first plane loads of bodies were expected Thursday at the Dover, Del., Air Force Base.

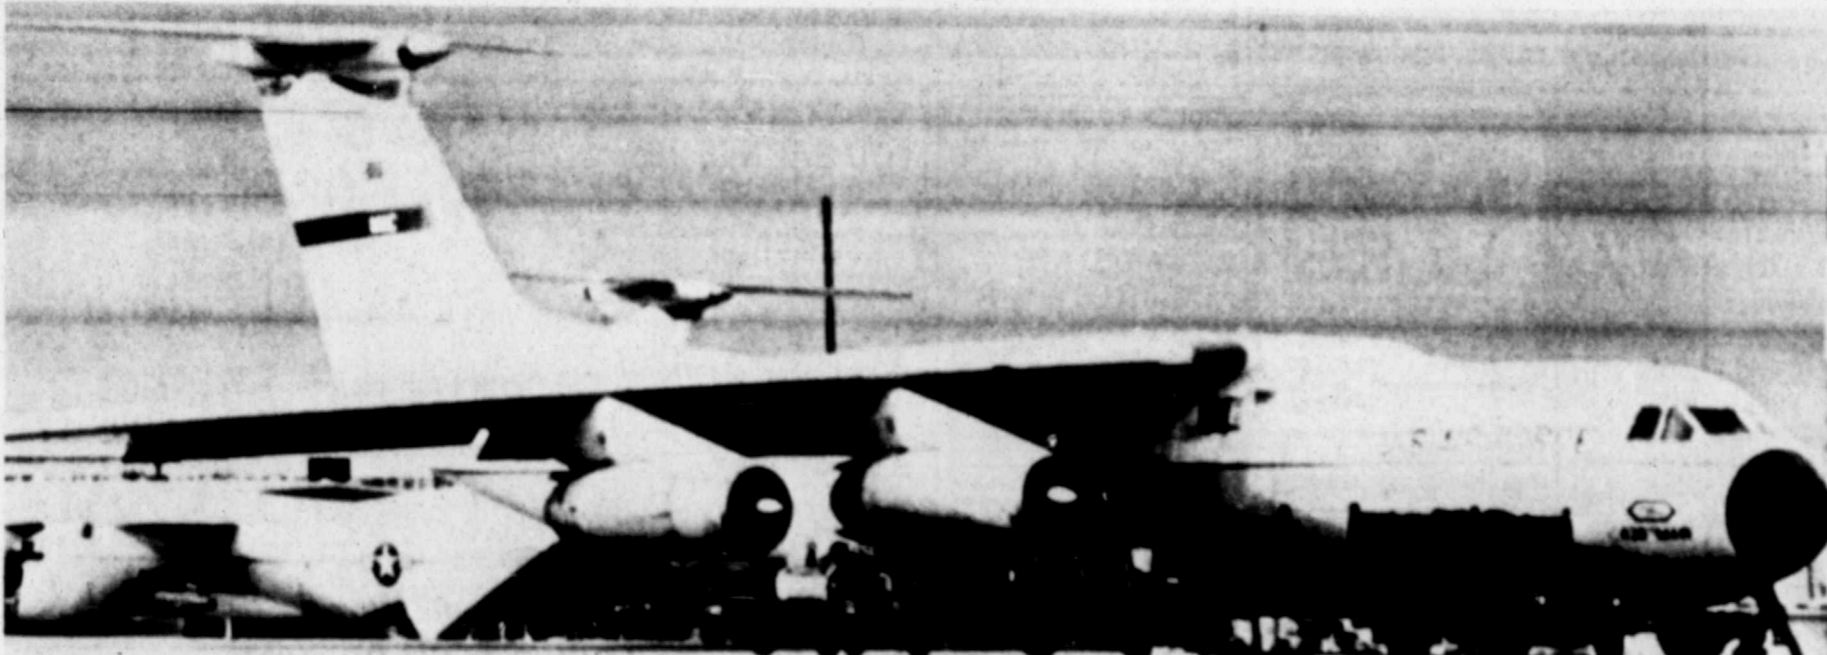

The Air Force mortuary is located at the Delaware air base, and the spokesman said the identification of the bodies would be made there.

The Guyanan information ministry made public a partial list of the dead, but there were many apparent errors in spelling and it contained no hometowns.

The U.S. government authorized the Guyana government to begin mass burials of the suicides because of the deterioration of the bodies in the tropical heat. But the Guyana government requested that the U.S. government remove the bodies of all the victims.

The plan is for American military helicopters to ferry the bodies from Jonestown to an airstrip near Georgetown where transport duties will be taken over by Air Force C-141 jet cargo planes. The first bodies are expected in Delaware Thanksgiving Day.

Air Force C-141 cargo planes prepare to leave McGuire Air Force base Tuesday for the flight to Guyana and the grisly business of transporting the bodies of 405 Americans who committed mass suicide Saturday.

Ex-Marine, former TV newsmen arrested

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — A one-time television reporter and an ex-Marine, both members of the Peoples Temple, were arrested by Guyana police in connection with the killings of a California congressman and four others at an airstrip near the sect's jungle enclave.

Guyana officials said Tuesday they arrested Michael Prokes, 31, of Stockton, Calif., and Tim Carter, 30, of Garden City, Idaho, as prime suspects in Saturday's deaths of Rep. Leo Ryan, three newsmen and a cult member. Ten others were wounded.

Another sect member, Larry Layton, 32, has been in custody since Sunday.

Authorities say they found the bodies of 405 Peoples Temple members, including their leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, at the jungle colony. Most had committed suicide following the airstrip attack.

Guyana officials have issued no charges against Prokes, who also had an adopted son at the settlement, or Carter, who was with two brothers and a sister at Jonestown.

Prokes, a Stockton bureau chief for Sacramento station KXTV for two years, met Jones during an interview, a friend said Tuesday. He quit his job in 1972 to join the Peoples Temple.

"He apparently was just completely captivated by Jim Jones," said KXTV newscaster Dick Cable. He and other associates described Prokes as quiet, stable and sensible.

Prokes' brother, Tom, said the State Department reported Prokes' 3-year-old adopted son was dead at the Jonestown enclave. No other family members were in Guyana, he said.

Family members said they had not seen Prokes for more than two years, but had spoken to him by phone about a month ago and were to visit him in Guyana.

Carter's 74-year-old father called his son "an ordinary kid."

"He was on the football team. He went to all the dances. He wasn't a particularly good student. He wasn't unintelligent," Mike Carter said.

Two other sons of the elder Carter survived the Jonestown mass suicides, the State Department said, but no word has been received on the fate of his daughter, Terri, 24, who was married to one of Jones' adopted sons who also is unaccounted for.

The elder Carter said Tim joined the "hippie movement" in San Francisco following his discharge from the Marines. "He was leaning towards something to join. The reason he got mixed up in this group was because it was doing good work," he said.

Tim visited his father last month while on a mission to San Francisco. "He was the same as I've always known him," Carter said.

Temple leader amassed uncounted millions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Keeping track of money was a simple task for Peoples Temple members: "If you were on welfare, you gave your welfare check to Jim Jones. If you owned a house, you...gave it to Jim Jones."

This formula, according to Toni Alston of Bakersfield, Calif., whose cousins are missing in Guyana, was how temple leader Jones amassed a fortune of untold millions.

Along with more than 400 poisoned bodies found at the temple's jungle commune in Jonestown, Guyana, authorities found $500,000 cash and a safe full of jewelry. Unconfirmed reports said another $500,000 in gold and hundreds of Social Security checks also were found.

Deborah Layton Blakey, who managed finances for Jones in Guyana before escaping last May, confirmed that more than $65,000 in Social Security checks came into the jungle mission each month. She reported Jones had bank accounts totalling as much as $10 million in European, South American and California banks.

Stephan Jones, the messianic reverend's son, said he had been "reliably informed" that his father had at least $3 million stashed away at the camp.

The temple also holds title to at least 25 parcels of land in Ukiah, Calif., and properties in Mendocino and San Francisco counties valued at an estimated $1.5 million.

Although the extent of the church's wealth is not known, how Jones raised funds is an all too familiar story to friends and families of impoverished church members.

Real estate records on file in San Francisco show that several people gave their homes to the temple, free and clear. The homes were sold when the church needed cash.

In 1973, for example, Ruby Lee Johnson gave her house to the temple, which sold it four years later for $42,000. Vernell Henderson's home was sold in June for $127,500, four months after he deeded it over.

One former member told a reporter she and other temple members who owned property were ordered by sect officials to sign blank power-of-attorney forms and blank deed papers.

"We had so many papers to sign, and we really didn't understand what they were about," she said.

The church raised money other ways from its members.

"Our son would stand on the street corner and beg," said Nadyne Houston, the wife of Associated Press photographer Sammy Houston.

Besides begging, Robert Houston, 33, "worked to exhaustion" on two jobs as a probation officer and railroad employee so he could keep up his monthly $2,000 contribution to the Temple, Mrs. Houston said.

"He must have contributed quite a bit," she said. "I remember once he asked me, 'Mother, could you buy us a coffee pot?'"

Houston, a member since 1969, was accused of breaking church rules. He was killed in a mysterious train accident in 1976.

Mrs. Houston accompanied Rep. Leo Ryan on his ill-fated visit to the Guyana colony, hoping to bring back her two young grandchildren. Ryan, three newsmen and a woman were killed Saturday as they tried to leave from a jungle airstrip.

Published reports indicate full-fledged members who lived outside the church, like Houston, were required to pledge 25 percent of their earnings to the temple. Those who lived inside were made to give all their income and property to Jones, who gave them $2 a week allowance.

Pleas for money never stopped. In the early 1970s, during exhausting weekly bus trips to church services in Los Angeles, church members were repeatedly hit for money.

Temple leader wanted it all

By PAT LEISNER

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — He called on governments to lay down arms, while his lieutenants amassed an arsenal. He preached non-violence but flew into a rage when contradicted.

And he was "clever enough to instill fear in his faithful, not of Jim Jones, but rather of God."

So says Tom Dickson, a former follower of the Rev. Jim Jones — the Peoples Temple leader who directed the apparent mass suicide of more than 400 Americans in the jungles of Guyana.

Jones wanted all his followers could give — money, possessions and love, Dickson says.

He dealt in threats, shouting from the pulpit to those who would leave his flock: "You will have a heart attack or an accident before you get home."

"It's hard to describe the attraction," says the 53-year-old Dickson. "But he had a way of convincing people he was something he wasn't."

"He was pleasant, well-spoken, appealing. He always had the right words at the right time to fit the right occasion."

Dickson, now chief of security for a Tampa firm, says he met Jones in Indiana in the mid-1960s, later becoming a confidant and one of a dozen members of the Peoples Temple's central committee.

"He was dynamic in voice and gesture and imposing in appearance," Dickson says. "He knew when to shout or lower his voice. He would praise people and boost their ego. ... He had faith healings that attracted people. And he could convince them it was all God's plan."

Dickson says he went to one of Jones' meetings at the urging of friends. "He preached a humanistic purpose. ... And I thought he sincerely preached the Gospel — it never seemed distorted..."

Dickson says he stayed with Jones for three years before becoming disenchanted. "But there was always something suspicious about him, I just couldn't put my finger on it," he says now.

Jones' committeemen were his henchmen, Dickson says. "We would visit people who left the church to get them back. We told them we were concerned about their salvation, their soul, we missed them, we loved them."

"Jimmy would call a committee meeting, but he never ordered his men to do something. It was always a suggestion...."

"He never wanted anybody to leave. He couldn't stand it. He couldn't tolerate rejection by anyone. If anyone would go against him he would go into a rage."

'Dogs blister Pecos; set scoring mark

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

Midland's Bulldogs are ready for the Tall City Tournament. Coach Don Humphrey's Midland Bulldogs blistered the nets here Tuesday night in gunning down the Class AAA Pecos Eagle, 106-55, in a warm-up for this weekend's 11th annual Tall City Basketball Tournament at the Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus.

With six players scoring in the double figures, the run-and-shoot Pack set a new school record for the most points in a single game. The old mark was Midland's 96-55 win over the Hobbs, N.M. Eagles five years ago when Gary Brewster and Compnay played for MHS.

Leading the way was Charles Johnson, a 6-foot-4 senior, who pumped in 24 points and 14 of those were in the first half. He sat out the entire third period with four fouls and then added 10 more in the final eight minutes. Next came Tim Spirling, 6-6 junior with 20 followed by Milton Sanders and Darrin Matlock with 18 and 12 points, respectively. Sanders is a 6-5 senior and Matlock, a 6-1 junior. The other two Bulldogs in the double figures were Roy Lee Jefferson and Archie Booth. Jefferson is a 6-2 senior and Booth a 6-3 senior. Herbert Johnson, the 6-7 sophomore, added seven more before fouling out late in the third period.

MIDLAND JUMPED off to a 23-11 first period lead and never looked back as the pressing Pack forced the shorter and outclassed Eagles into numerous turnovers in the game. It was 51-18 at the half after the Pack outscored the Warbirds, 28-7 in the second period and Midland ripped the cords for 33 points in the third stanza for a commanding 84-36 lead going into the final period.

In the fourth period, Midland scored 22 points to Pecos' 19 to go over the century mark.

Midland cashed on 20 of 27 free throws while Pecos managed to hit 15 of 20 charity tosses, but it was in the field goal department that Humphrey's crew stood out, hitting 43 of them to the Eagles' 20.

THE BULLDOGS scored just about every way imaginable and played well on defense. Their superior height also hurt the game, but battling Eagles. Midland's speed was also very impressive and the Pack, even though losing two games in El Paso over the weekend, looks like they will field a solid contender for the District 4-5A basketball title this year.

The crowd went wild when Charles Johnson scored the 100th point on a tip-in with 58 seconds left in the game to make it 100-53. Pecos scored once more and the Pack added six more points before the final buzzer. Johnson also brought the house down in the second period when he stuffed a shot into the basket on a driving layup down the middle.

WHILE HUMPHREY'S crew was impressing their backers in the varsity game, Coach Eddie Shirley's Midland Bullpups also stormed to an easy win over the Pecos JV, winning, 79-26 with Perry Bolger and Homer Brown paving the way with 16 and 10 points, respectively.

Midland rests until Friday when the Purple Pack takes on El Paso Parkland in the 11:30 a.m. game to open play in the opening round of the Tall City Invitational at Midland College.

Truck leads Jazz with 51 points

By The Associated Press

The book on Truck Robinson is that he's a great inside player, virtually unstoppable around the basket. Give the rugged New Orleans forward the outside shot, the book says, but don't let him work inside.

Well, it may be time to rewrite the book.

Robinson, shooting mostly from 15-18 feet, hit on 20 of 26 shots from the field — including 12 in a row starting in the second period, many of them bank shots — en route to a career-high 51 points as the New Orleans Jazz ended a five-game losing streak by beating the New Jersey Nets 140-118 Tuesday night.

"Forwards in the NBA really aren't supposed to shoot from that distance, except for guys like Rick Barry," said Robinson. "But guys have a tendency to leave me alone from 15 feet and worry about my strength, which is going to the basket."

"I hope they keep giving me that shot."

Robinson's 51 points were the most by any NBA player this season, surpassing the 46 posted by San Antonio's George Gervin and New York's Spencer Haywood earlier.

Elsewhere, the Golden State Warriors beat the Philadelphia 76ers 115-105, the New York Knicks defeated the Detroit Pistons 96-79, the Phoenix Suns edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 110-108, the Milwaukee Bucks blasted the Portland Trail Blazers 123-93, the Indiana Pacers trimmed the San Antonio Spurs 108-103 and the Atlanta Hawks beat the San Diego Clippers 113-107.

Robinson, who led the NBA in rebounding last year and ranks seventh in scoring and second in rebounding this season, also grabbed 16 rebounds and made 11 of 13 free throws in his big game. Center Rich Kelley added 23 points and 15 rebounds.

"The guys kept telling me that the way I've been playing, it will come sooner or later," said Robinson. "Tonight was one of the nights when it came. Everything was in total order."

"We tried three or four different players guarding Robinson," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, "but he just had a great night."

New Orleans broke the game open with 42 points in the second quarter for a 72-58 halftime lead. They were ahead by as many as 27 points in the second half.

Warriors 115, 76ers 105

John Lucas scored 35 points, handed out 17 assists and made five steals in leading the Warriors to their sixth victory in seven road games this season. "You don't win on the road unless you play well and that's what we've been doing," said Warriors Coach Al Attles.

"We were undisciplined tonight," said Philadelphia's Julius Erving. "We turned the ball over too much and that hurt us."

Knicks 96, Pistons 79

New York scored 38 points in the final period to pull away from the Pistons and raise its record to 5-0 since Red Holzman replaced Willis Reed as coach. New York has allowed 100 points or less in each of those five games, and Detroit's 79 points equalled the lowest of the season in the NBA.

With forward Bob McAdoo sidelined by a bruised toe, Spencer Haywood picked up the slack for New York with 27 points and 13 rebounds.

Bucks 123, Blazers 93

Milwaukee snapped a four-game losing streak behind 24 points by Marques Johnson and 23 by Kent Benson. Milwaukee scored 12 in a row late in the second quarter to lead 63-51 at halftime and then pulled away in the second half.

Rookie guard Ron Brewer led the Blazers with 25 points.

Suns 110, Cavaliers 108

Alvan Adams scored 20 of his 22 points in the second half as the Suns wiped out a 16-point halftime deficit and handed Cleveland its eighth straight loss and 14th in the last 15 games.

Paul Westphal made two free throws with 1:25 to play to give Phoenix the lead for good at 107-106 and added another free throw with 12 seconds left to close out the scoring.

Pacers 108, Spurs 103

Indiana ended a six-game, 13-day road trip by upsetting San Antonio to snap a seven-game losing streak. Center James Edwards had 26 points for Indiana and guard Ricky Sobers added 24.

The Spurs took a 10-point lead into the fourth quarter but were outscored 31-16 over the final 12 minutes. Larry Kenon led San Antonio with 27 points but George Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer, managed just 14.

Hawks 113, Clippers 107

Dan Roundfield scored a career-high 38 points and John Drew added 25 as Atlanta beat San Diego.

With the score tied 99-99, the Hawks reeled off six in a row — four by Roundfield — to take the lead to stay. The Clippers drew within two at 105-103 but Drew made four straight free throws to clinch it.

San Antonio's Larry Kenon zeroes in on the goal without a view of the basket as an unidentified Indiana Pacer swats for the ball in NBA action Tuesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

$2 million package expected to lure Rose to Phillies

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Since the money's not in Cincinnati, free agent Pete Rose will sign a three-year contract with the Philadelphia Phillies before the end of next week, according to the Wilmington Evening Journal.

In a copyrighted column, Journal Sports Editor Hal Bodley said the contract would be worth nearly $2 million, and that only an unlikely last-ditch effort by the Cincinnati Reds would allow them to keep their star third baseman.

Rose, returning today from an exhibition baseball tour in Japan, scheduled a press conference to present 10 jeeps to members of the Reds' coaching staff and clubhouse crew. Some say it is his goodbye to the city where he was born and played all of his major league career.

According to Bodley, a meeting with the Phillies will be arranged. "The Phils' lucrative offer will be examined, then accepted, and a full dress press conference will be held next week to announce the signing," Bodley wrote.

In Cincinnati however, Rose's attorney, Reuven Katz, said, "almost all of the teams that drafted Pete are still in it. We've had some very interesting and surprising offers."

Katz added that there was "nothing in the works" with Cincinnati and said Rose would make a decision in 10 days.

Besides the Phillies, the New York Mets have also reportedly offered Rose a three-year pact totalling $1.5 million. Rose was drafted by 13 clubs.

The 37-year-old third baseman, who hit .302 for the year and tied a National League record with hits in 44 consecutive games, entered the free-agent draft at the end of the season after his two-year contract expired.

"He has repeatedly told me he wants to be the highest-paid player in baseball and I have told him we are not going to do that," Bodley quoted Dick Wagner, president of the Reds.

Wagner, in a telephone interview from Los Angeles, denied to Bodley a report that the Reds had offered Rose a two-year, $1.2 million package.

"That is totally inaccurate. I have been the only person in the Reds' organization to handle negotiations with Pete Rose or any of the other players," Wagner said.

"Just before I left Japan, I spoke briefly to Rose. I said, 'Pete, I think we should get together one more time to see if we have any common ground.' He agreed and that's where we left it," Wagner said.

McClendon in line for Colorado job

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Charles McClendon of Louisiana State University is under consideration for the just-opened head football coach's job at Colorado, the New Orleans Times-Picayune reported in its Wednesday editions.

Colorado Coach Bill Mallory was fired Tuesday after a 6-5 season and the newspaper quoted unnamed sources as saying McClendon was one of three men under consideration for the job.

McClendon would not say if the comments about his possible move were true or false, answering only: "Interesting, aren't they?"

In addition to McClendon, former California Coach Mike White and Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne are under consideration at Colorado, the Times-Picayune said.

McClendon has been head football at LSU for 17 years, winning 70 percent of his games. The LSU Board of Supervisors voted last week, however, not to extend his contract past 1979.

Lombardi Award candidates include Hogs' Hampton

HOUSTON (AP) — Penn State and Notre Dame each have two players among the top 10 candidates for the annual Lombardi Award honoring the nation's outstanding collegiate line-man.

Names of the top 10 were released Tuesday as the sponsoring Downtown Rotary Club prepared to announce next weekend the four finalists who will be honored Jan. 18 at a $100-a-plate dinner.

Penn State's candidates are defensive tackles Bruce Clark and Matt Millen. Bob Golic, a middle linebacker, and Dave Huffman, a center, are the Notre Dame candidates.

Others on the top 10 list include defensive tackles Mike Bell, Colorado State; Dan Hampton, Arkansas, and Marty Lyon, Alabama; defensive end Al Harris, Arizona State; offensive guard Greg Roberts, Oklahoma, and linebacker Jerry Robinson, UCLA.

The 10 leading candidates were determined by a nationwide panel of coaches, sportswriters and broadcasters.

Whitaker named AL's top rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Whitaker, the classy, confident second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, was named the American League's Rookie of the Year today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Whitaker won the annual Ford C. Frick Award in a runaway, polling 21 of 28 possible votes from the BBWAA. Paul Molitor, Milwaukee's fine infielder, was a distant second in the voting with three ballots.

California infielder Carney Lansford finished third with two votes and Kansas City pitcher Rich Gale and Whitaker's teammate, shortstop Alan Trammell, were tied for fourth with one vote apiece.

Two writers from each AL city cast ballots in the voting.

Whitaker, a left-handed hitter, played 139 games for Detroit and compiled a .285 batting average and 58 runs batted in. He teamed with Trammell to give the Tigers one of the best double-play combinations in the game in 1978.

Detroit Manager Ralph Houk had said somewhat prophetically during the season:

"If Lou gets Rookie of the Year, he should split it with Alan."

The 21-year-old Whitaker showed uncommon poise for a rookie, once drawing this remark from Houk:

"He plays every day and doesn't choke. And you'll find that that's unusual for a rookie."

Whitaker agreed that his first major league season ran pretty smoothly for him.

"Playing baseball is very easy for me," he said at one point near the end of the year.

Then, referring to his relationship with Trammell on the field, he said unabashedly, "We've played very well as a pair and we feel very experienced, even though we're still called rookies."

Molitor agreed in kind that the BBWAA had selected the right man. Chosen as the AL's Rookie of the Year by a leading national sports publication earlier this year, Molitor reflected that Whitaker should have won the award instead.

"Whitaker was more consistent than I was," Molitor said. "He had less ups and downs than me."

Whitaker is the third Tiger to win the award, but the second in three years. Mark Fidrych won in 1976 and Harvey Kuenn was the last to win before that in Detroit, in 1953.

Though struggling through an occasional slump, Molitor finished with a .273 average. Lansford hit .294 and Trammell .268, while Gale posted a 14-8 mark with Kansas City.

Dallas anxiously awaits Cowboys-Indians showdown

IRVING — Just visiting with the Dallas Cowboys.

The mood among the Dallas Cowboys seems to be much lighter than in recent weeks, and they are enjoying their new found success while looking forward to the rematch with Washington Thursday with much delight.

"I hope they don't miss their plane on the way down here," defensive end Harvey Martin said. "It would be a shame to miss some of the old gang from Washington."

Defensive tackle Randy White, however, seemed to be the most unemotional Cowboy when asked about Washington. "Well, it's a big ball game for us because we can go into first place, but I don't get into all that mud slinging that both teams seem to crave. They (the Redskins) say things to try to get our minds off our business, and I guess we do the same thing, but neither team really takes it seriously."

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Defensive safety Cliff Harris, who is supposedly No. 1 on the 'Skins hate list, countered, "Well, maybe that's true for Randy. After all, it takes a lot to disturb him. If I was half monster like Randy, nothing would phase me. But I do know that Washington is not to fond of me, and the feeling is mutual. I don't like to lose to those guys ever, and it always seems like we are in a revenge match. It doesn't take much to get my blood flowing when the Redskins are involved."

Linebacker Thomas Henderson, who admitted to getting his best tackle of the year on a blitz of New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning, is another Cowboy who likes to meet the Redskins. "The 'Skins are our biggest rivalry. I hope (Billy) Kilmer gets to start. He is one of my favorite friends. It will be the Cowboys and Indians on Thursday, a real shootout. The turkeys are gonna have to come on in here, and we're waiting for them."

Henderson was on Cloud 109 after the game with the Saints Sunday. Not only did he have his best game of the year, but movie star Clint Eastwood made a trip to the Cowboys' locker room after the game.

"Look who's here. Dirty Harry himself," Henderson said while extending finger in a Magnum Force style. "I've seen all your flicks, but you ain't been in a picture yet until Hollywood and Harry is made, and I'm going to be the good guy."

Another high flying Cowboy Sunday was defensive tackle Larry Cole. Cole intercepted the third pass of his career, and he seemed to be enjoying all the attention he was getting from the press. He hasn't exactly been No. 1 on the question and answer circuit in a while.

"I haven't dropped a pass since I've been with the Cowboys. I'm 100 percent on interceptions, and I'm averaging about 17 yards per catch," Cole responded.

Cole's other two interceptions have both come against Washington. Asked if he remembered the first two, he replied, "Of course I do. Both came in my rookie season against Washington. One was for an eight-yard touchdown and the other was for 41 yards. I think I was just warming up for Washington with that one today, but I got 13 yards on the return."

Skip Bayless, new columnist for "The Dallas Morning News," had fun with Cole in Monday's edition. Bayless said Cole stayed late after the game and grabbed every reporter that walked by. It wasn't far from the truth. Cole was more than willing to talk.

Randy Hughes also intercepted a Manning misfire and returned it 56 yards before finally being tackled at the four-yard line. Hughes was disappointed that he didn't get into the end zone.

"I really wanted that touchdown, and when I cut back across the grain, I thought I was home free," Hughes recalled. "I just laid there after I was tackled. I just couldn't believe that I didn't score. I thought to myself

"You've come all this way and you're just going to stop here." Our secondary is down in turnovers from last year, and we have to improve in that area. That was one thing that makes me happy about the interception even if it was late in the game. It wouldn't have made any difference if I had scored because we already had a wrap on the win. But I'd be lying if I said I didn't want that touchdown."

Tom Landry is also holding his head a little higher now. "We started the turnaround at Miami even though we lost," Landry observed. "We played well at Green Bay and today was a good game. We don't have turnovers now because of concentration and hard work. The team got it together at Miami and we've looked good the past two weeks. We're playing well and tough, and that's a good sign at this time of year."

And that's about it—until Thursday.

Stanley plans to sue OSU to keep job

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Ousted Oklahoma State University football Coach Jim Stanley plans to sue the school to keep his job, at least for the remaining two years of his contract, Stanley's attorney claims.

Tuesday, Dr. L.L. Boger, university president, said in a statement that Stanley had been "relieved of his responsibilities as head coach," and added, "I will recommend that he be reassigned to other duties within the university."

Later, Oklahoma City attorney James P. Linn said Stanley will sue to retain his position and to collect the approximately $74,000 due him in salary.

"Jim Stanley was hired as head football coach at Oklahoma State University and Oklahoma State University has to honor that contract," Linn said. "If they don't want to keep him as head football coach, then they can fire him and pay him off."

"But they don't want to do that. They don't want to pay him. They want to reassign him to another job. You can't do that."

Linn said he and Stanley planned a press conference for early today to discuss the legal ramifications of the ouster.

There were rumors earlier in the day that Stanley had been fired last Thursday and had informed the team of this on Monday. This was denied by Richard A. Young, Oklahoma State athletic director, who noted that both he and Boger were out of town last Thursday.

But just hours later Boger issued his announcement.

Both the Big Eight Conference and the NCAA are probing allegations of a reported slush fund for Oklahoma State athletes. To add to Stanley's problems, the school is in its first year of a two-year probation for recruiting violations. The team also had a 3-8 record this season.

Last week Dr. Richard A. Young, director of intercollegiate athletics, said that the findings of the slush fund probe were "substantial," but he has refused to detail them.

"In view of all the circumstances, it appeared that a change in the leadership of our football program would be in the best interest of the university," Boger's statement said.

He added he would ask Young to expedite a nationwide search for a successor to Stanley.

According to the rumors earlier in the day, Stanley already had been replaced by Hayden Fry, former Southern Methodist coach who has built a winning program at North Texas State.

"I keep hearing those rumors," said Fry, who counted Oklahoma

State as one of his nine victims this fall. "I don't know anything about it."

"I'm sincere about that. I haven't discussed anything with Oklahoma State. I'm honored that my name is rumored to be with them. I think they have a great university and a great opportunity to have an outstanding program."

Asked whether he would be interested in the job here, Fry added, "If something develops at Oklahoma State, it doesn't cost anything to listen."

Among other names unofficially listed as possible successors were Stanley's assistant Kent Stephenson; OSU product F.A. Dry, who now coaches at Texas Christian; Larry Lacey, the former defensive coordinator at Oklahoma University; Oklahoma State assistant Lee Snider and Nebraska assistant Lance Van Zandt.

Young several months ago confirmed that Oklahoma State had received the allegations from an investigation the Big Eight had started last June and admitted they were "serious." The current probation includes bans on bowl and television appearances and the loss of five scholarships each year of the probation period.

A Big Eight meeting later this month is expected to produce some kind of verdict on Oklahoma State's future. After that, the NCAA will decide whether the penalty — if there is any — is severe enough.

Ironically, until this year Stanley was the most successful football coach for Oklahoma State, with a 32-23-2 record over five years. Included in there were two bowl victories, the 1974 Fiesta Bowl and the 1976 Tangerine Bowl.

In addition, he led Oklahoma State to a share of the 1976 Big Eight championship.

Stanley played under Paul "Bear" Bryant at Texas A&M. After graduating from college, he was assistant coach at Amarillo, Texas, High School 1959-60; assistant line coach at Southern Methodist in 1961; assistant coach at Texas-El Paso in 1962 and then came to Oklahoma State as assistant coach and defensive coordinator in 1963.

He left here in 1968 and spent 1969-70 as defensive coordinator at the U.S. Naval Academy, then moved to Winnipeg of the professional Canadian Football League in 1971.

He returned to Oklahoma State as defensive coordinator and assistant coach in 1972 and moved up to head coach in 1973.

Rozelle may resign NFL position

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pete Rozelle, Commissioner of the National Football League, is thinking of resigning the position and leaving New York to become executive director of the 1984 Los Angeles Olympic Games, according to Los Angeles Times columnist John Hall.

The Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, headed by John Argue, has been in contact with Rozelle, who is definitely interested, Hall said.

The Los Angeles Committee declined comment, according to Hall, who said that Rozelle's only comment was: "I have no plans to make any change at this time."

But, Hall added, "the source is good."

The position of executive director of the 1984 Games is a seven-year job and the money, Hall said, would be less than pro football presently pays its commissioner. Rozelle is originally from Southern California.

Selection of the executive director is due to be finalized within six weeks, Hall said.

Georgia ready to take on HEW

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — The University of Georgia is ready to fight the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare over financing for athletics, university President Fred C. Davison said Tuesday.

The conflict centers on how strictly HEW will enforce provisions of the Title IX law forbidding sex discrimination in college athletics.

The law could hurt the university's self-supporting football program, which the administration said finances most of the school's $3.3 million sports program.

Davison said the school is prepared to take HEW to court if it tries to impose budget allocations on university sports based on Title IX male-female quota restrictions.

"If HEW demands proportional expenditures, they will kill the only revenue-producing sport we have," Davison said.

Athletic Director Joel Eaves said the university would have to come up with nearly $1 million more each year to finance across-the-board increases in women's athletics if budget allocations are based on the percentages of male and female team members.

The university currently has 221 men and 80 women in intercollegiate competition.

"The university is certainly prepared to protect its interests..." Davison said. "Through one regulation or another, the federal establishment is getting into the position of telling us what to teach, when to teach it and how to teach. Now, it is here telling us how to play."

Davison referred to an investigation of the university's intercollegiate sports program in September.

A team of HEW staffers visited the campus with a two-year-old complaint of sexual discrimination from female students. It was the first of its kind in college sports. Dozens of administrators and athletes were questioned.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 prohibits sex discrimination in any "education program or activity" receiving federal aid.

TCU signs Dry to six-year pact

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Coach F.A. Dry of Texas Christian has a new six-year contract for making "excellent progress" with TCU's staggering football program.

The Horned Frogs had a 2-9 record under Dry last year and have only won two games this season.

Rumors had flown in recent weeks that Dry might either become the offensive coordinator for the Houston Oilers in the National Football League or head coach at his alma mater, Oklahoma State.

But Athletic Director Frank Winddegger said Tuesday, "F.A. stabilized the football program. We felt excellent progress has been made in our football program in 1977 and 1978. This progress is attributed to F.A.'s leadership and his ability to make the years ahead prosperous for TCU football."

Dry said "I'm pleased with the confidence the University has shown in me and my staff. We intend to repay that confidence in the near future with not only improvement of the football team but the improvement in the ability to win."

Dry recently gave the TCU Board of Governors a report on what was wrong with the TCU football program after Jim Shofner had resigned under fire.

Dry said the biggest weakness was that the school had recruited almost no football talent.

TCU has defeated Tulane and Oregon this year with a game remaining against the Texas Aggies.

Watts wins SWC award

DALLAS (AP) — Ted Watts wanted to play so bad against Southern Methodist last Saturday that the Texas Tech safety talked his doctors into unwiring his broken jaw. Late on game day he was wondering why.

Watts broke his nose in the first half, and late in the contest he got a penalty that almost cost his team the game.

He was late getting on the field another time and arrived just in time to knock down a pass in the end zone that would have been a winning touchdown for SMU.

However, Watts made a touchdown-saving tackle and then intercepted a Mike Ford pass to preserve Tech's 19-16 victory over the Mustangs.

The clutch performance earned Watts The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week award.

"He played an amazing game when you considered how bad his face had to be hurting," said Tech Coach Rex Dockery. "That was some kind of hit he put on down at the goal. No doubt he saved the game for us. It was no ordinary tackle."

Watts, a 6-foot, 175-pound transfer from Independence (Kan.) Junior College, stopped SMU's Darold Turner cold on a fourth-and-one at the Tech one late in the game, when Tech was clinging to a 19-14 lead.

The previous play, a teammate had dumped SMU quarterback Mike Ford at the 7 on a fourth-down play, but a holding penalty was called against Watts, giving SMU another chance.

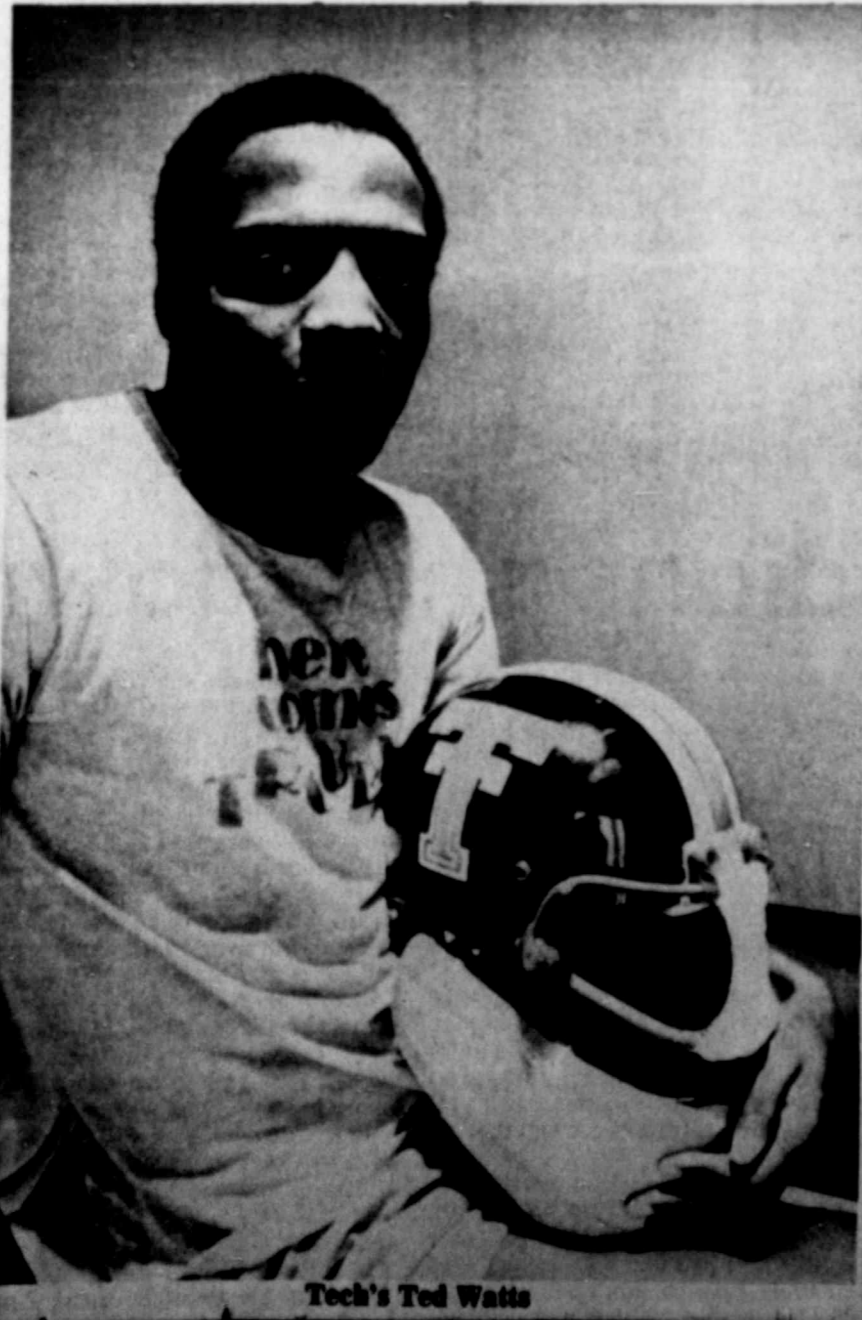

"I didn't hold but when I got another chance I sure was glad," said Watts. "I sure was scared."

On the same series of plays, Watts was involved in a bizarre play. He arrived on the field just as Ford was calling signals. Ford checked signals to pass to Emanuel Tolbert, who was open.

Only Tolbert wasn't open long, as Watts arrived just in time to help bat the ball away.

"That was our moving zone," cracked Dockery.

"I guess I should have had that pass," said Watts, who wore a (face) guard similar to the one sported last year by Red Raider basketball player Kent Williams. "I really couldn't see the ball too well."

Gold Glove team set

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Four members of the Philadelphia Phillies head major league Gold Glove teams announced Tuesday by the Sporting News.

The Phillies contingent on the National League team includes holdovers Mike Schmidt, third base; Larry Bowa, shortstop; Garry Maddox, outfield, in addition to Bob Boone, a newcomer at catcher, replacing perennial Gold Glove winner Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds.

The awards are made on the basis of voting by writers, broadcasters and club managers.

New York Yankees honored for their fielding accomplishments on the American League team are Chris Chambliss, first base, and Graig Nettles, third base, who join two members each from the Baltimore Orioles and Boston Red Sox.

Also in the NL lineup are Keith Hernandez, St. Louis, first base; Davey Lopes, Los Angeles, second base; Phil Niekro, Atlanta, pitcher, and Ellis Valentine, Montreal, and Dave Parker, Pittsburgh, outfield.

Shortstop Mark Belanger and pitcher Jim Palmer represent Baltimore on an AL team which also features Red Sox outfielders Fred Lynn and Dwight Evans. Other AL selections are Frank White, Kansas City, second base; Jim Sundberg, Texas, catcher, and Rick Miller, California, outfield.

A major shakeup featured the final week of voting in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll but Temple, Brownwood, Newton and Lexington all maintained their top ranks going into the state playoffs this weekend.

Temple continued to rule over Class 4A by a 157-131 point margin over runner-up Garland, also unbeaten, while Houston Stratford, San Antonio Churchill and Odessa Permian round out the top five.

Brownwood moved into the first round of the playoffs with a 28-14 victory over Marlin while the 3A supporting cast was crumbling beneath the Lions.

Second ranked Beaumont Hebert exited the playoff picture and the top 10 when it lost a zone playoff with Crosby, No. 3 Fort Stockton completed an unbeaten season by defeating Odessa Ector, 30-0 and No. 5 New Braunfels finished its season with a zone loss to Kerrville Tivy.

Bay City moved into the No. 2 3A position this week while Fort Stockton remained third Cagle assumed the No. 4 spot and Gregory-Portland jumped from 10th to No. 5.

Hebert was replaced by Atlanta while Kerrville Tivy returned to the top 10 as No. 8.

Newton kept its top billing in 2A by the slimmest of margins over No. 2 Cameron. Newton held its No. 1 rank by a 138-137 point total.

Mount Vernon lost for the second time in 2A and was replaced in the final poll by San Antonio Randolph, 9-0-1 in the No. 10 spot.

Lovelady was the only loser among the Class A teams and dropped from the poll after a 19-14 loss to Groveson.

Rocky Balboa was real People's Champion

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Who is the individual who rose from obscurity to the pinnacle overnight through prizefighting, became the toast of five continents; whose name became a household word and image a magazine cover; and whose place in history is secure on the basis of one fight? I'll give you a clue: He came from humble beginnings, was raised in a ghetto, struggled, then as a result of one fight he was suddenly transformed into a Cinderella man with wealth, power, fast cars, women, the good life. And he had hardly any fighting experience when lightning struck.

Leon Spinks? Heavens, no! Leon Spinks is just a one-shot pug. A traveling traffic accident. I'm talking about a Big Star. I'm talking about a guy who made more out of fighting in one year than Dempsey, Tunney, Ali, Spinks put together. I'm talking about the real People's Champ, Sylvester Stallone. Rocky Balboa himself.

STALLONE IS the guy who reversed the well-worn Golden Boy scenario of the movies, who turned Clifford Odets around, reversed the reel, and scorned those gloomy Chekhov or Dostoevski endings and put the fairytale back into life. He didn't tell the story of a gifted champ betrayed by the system, by wine, women, or song, corrupt managers or a rotten society. He told the story of a South Philly nobody, an "opponent" in the strictest Cauliflower Alley sense of the word, who goes the distance for once in his life.

"Rocky" was one of the most-acclaimed movies of all time, the story of a skill-less brawler who was fighting for hero sandwiches, his faded wallflower girlfriend and a chance to escape the slaughterhouses of life, the ones with beef hanging in them, and the ones on the docks where he makes a living beating up underworld dead-beats.

Sylvester Stallone knew exactly how Rocky felt. He was himself behind on all cards in life in the late rounds when he began to peddle his script of "Rocky" around the plush offices of Hollywood. He was at the time eking out a living playing the guard in gangster movies or letting Jack Lemmon beat him up or driving the getaway car.

HOLLYWOOD DIDN'T want his script. It was too upbeat. The few producers who did express interest wanted Robert Redford or James Caan for the role. But Stallone had already promised it to someone. Himself. He didn't want anyone who hadn't been there to play it. And his own credentials were perfect. A product of South Philadelphia, he was as ripe for the role as Cagney for the electric chair.

The critics gave it grudging respect for "old-fashioned moviemaking," as though sentimentality were a flaw like bad lighting. But the public loved it. They broke down the doors to see it, laughed, cried and cheered when they did, and Rocky Balboa became a symbol for every guy who ever woke up on a cold winter morning, shaved in a cracked mirror, had a cruller for breakfast, and took the subway downtown to a job fixing elevators. While Hollywood was busy with scripts as joyless as Hungarian songs, Stallone gave audiences something they hadn't had since Tom Mix — something to cheer over.

THE REAL Sylvester Stallone is a guy who would almost rather be the heavyweight contender he played. He did all his own fight scenes in the film. That isn't ketchup he's spilling in Round 15. He didn't get that eye in makeup, he got it toe to toe.

Stallone is going the distance in his business, too. He has just finished "Paradise Alley," another big box-office picture he wrote and produced, and he is filming "Rocky II" which figures to catch "Star Wars" in bucks.

Stallone thinks the world is full of guys who will never get their hands raised in real life either, but who can still dream. "Rocky was a guy who wanted to go the distance just once in his life. That's all everybody wants at bottom. Just once, everybody wants to be a star.

"IT'S TOO EASY to write the other way, where you have 50 people at the Cannes Festival swearing you're a genius, only nobody comes to the theater because they don't have to pay four bucks to see death and hatred. They'll pay four bucks to see somebody reaching for the moon."

Instead of eight reels of seagulls, Stallone gave them heroes. It made him the reigning heavyweight champion of Hollywood. Thus, his fight against Apollo Creed should go down along with Dempsey-Firpo as among the Greatest Fights in Boxing History.

NBA uninterested in cheerleaders

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Sex on the sidelines may be fine for football, but the majority of teams around the National Basketball Association are not interested in cheese-cake cheerleading.

"We're trying to get a wholesome look, rather than the way the NFL is going," says Lee Daniel, a spokesman for the Indiana Pacers, whose Pacers are the oldest cheerleading group working for an NBA team.

Actually, the Pacers don't have all that much competition. Of the 22 NBA teams, only seven have organized cheerleading groups, although a few other clubs are considering getting them going.

It's a far cry from the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders, the Embraceable Ewes, the Chicago Honey Bears and the other flashy, fleshy groups which have made sideline-watching a feature attraction at National Football League games.

Besides Indiana, other NBA teams with cheerleaders are Atlanta, Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, San Diego and Washington.

As for the remaining 15 teams, their attitude was summarized by publicity director Bill King of the Milwaukee Bucks, a club that regularly plays to capacity or near-capacity crowds.

"It wasn't the type of image we wanted to promote," said King. "Also, we have one of the smallest arenas in the NBA and we felt there just wasn't room."

TOM AMBROSE, a spokesman for the Phoenix Suns, says his team has received letters from fans thanking them for not having cheerleaders. "We feel we are successful doing things we've done already and don't need them," he said, noting the close proximity of the seats to court-side means cheerleaders would only get in the fans' way.

And in Portland, where every home game since the middle of the 1976-77 season has been sold out, Trail Blazers spokesman John White says the idea of cheerleaders has been discussed from time to time. "But we don't see any need for them. We're too crowded already."

Some teams which do not draw as well, however, have turned to cheerleaders as added attractions. Of the seven teams with cheerleaders, only one — Indiana — ranked among the top dozen in home attendance last season. Four placed among the bottom five.

The NBA as a league has no policy on cheerleaders. "What each team does is up to them," said league spokesman Matt Winick.

INDIANA'S Pacers are in their seventh year, but all the other groups are in either their first or second year.

Age limits for Pacers are 18 to 25, with this year's group averaging 22. They come from the Indianapolis area, mostly high school graduates who have full-time jobs during the day. They are paid $10 a game (they get in free, of course), are sponsored by a local department store and do some outside publicity work for the club.

They have two outfits, consisting of short skirts and form-fitting tops. They dance to records played over the public address system at Market Square Arena during timeouts and between quarters, doing routines that are choreographed by a former Pacers.

THE ATLANTA Hawks have the Fast Breaks. They wear basketball-type uniforms and do dance routines after the first and third quarters and during timeouts. Among their members is a former Miss Georgia World, a one-time Dallas Cowboy cheerleader and an aspiring attorney.

The NBA champion Washington Bullets have cheerleaders who perform at 15 of the team's 41 home games. They dance during the breaks between periods but not during timeouts. That's when commercials are shown on the tele screen at the Capital Centre.

They have received a mixed response from the crowd; some question their absence at certain games, some question their presence at others.

The Kansas City Kings have the Glitter Girls, nine women who are paid $12.50 a game plus a bonus if they attend all games. They also make personal appearances, earning as much as $50. They were selected from a group of 60 who showed up at this year's tryout and all have had dance experience, some professionally. They have been very well received by fans at the Kemper Arena.

CLEVELAND has the Cavaliers, volunteers ranging from late teens to early 30s who get only free admission and free parking. They wear hot pants and revealing V-neck tops in the Cavaliers' colors of wine and gold, cheering from the sideline during the game and doing some disco dancing at halftime. They draw some catcalls and whistles, but fans still manage to find time to head to the refreshment stands at halftime.

Detroit has the Classy Chassis, women who work for a modeling agency hired to select and run the cheerleading program. They wear red satin hot pants and low-cut tops, putting on a halftime show and kicking up their heels during timeouts.

This is the first year of existence for the Clippers, who were the Buffalo Braves last year before the move to San Diego. This is also the first year for the Clipper Line, unpaid volunteers from the San Diego area ranging in age from 18 to 23.

They wear basketball-type shorts and pullover T shirts with warmup pants and jackets in the Clippers' colors of orange, blue and white. They sit at court-side and do dance routines during timeouts.

THE NEW Orleans Jazz doesn't have cheerleaders, preferring to go with a jazz band to liven things up in the Superdome. "Being in New Orleans, with a name like the Jazz, we felt we were unique and that a jazz band would be more appropriate than cheerleaders," said club spokesman Dave Fredman.

The San Antonio Spurs had cheerleaders for three years but decided to drop them.

"It was an expensive proposition," said Spurs spokesman Wayne Witt. "By the time you hired them, outfitted them and hired a choreographer, it was a full-time job. The third year, we tried to have a group of six each night, but they'd get mad at the director and quit or just not show up. We'd have substitutes who didn't know the dance routines. It got to be a mess. "We just decided to put them all on waivers."

As for the possibility of cheerleaders posing nude in magazine layouts, which caused such a clamor around the NFL, Clippers spokesman Hal Childs said no guidelines have been set by his team. Whatever the members of the Clipper Line do, he said, "is their business as long as they behave with taste."

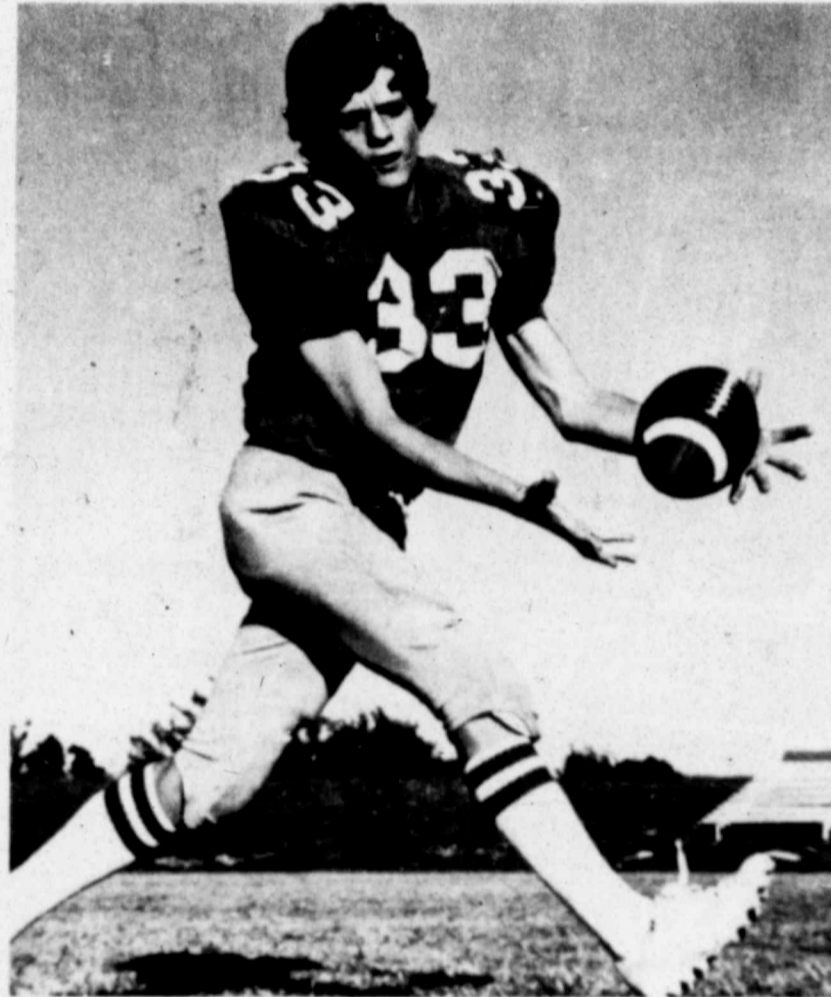

CLIPPER FANS also can enjoy the antics of the KGB Chicken, a young man in a chicken suit who gained nationwide acclaim this summer as the mascot of baseball's San Diego Padres. The Chicken, who turned down a reported offer of $100,000 to fly the coop and do his thing in Atlanta, prances about the court during timeouts and is extremely popular with fans at the San Diego Sports Arena.

The Chicken is not unique, however. The Denver Nuggets, who had cheerleaders for the past three seasons but dropped them when the head of the group graduated from college and moved away, also have a mascot in the chicken costume. He does acrobatics on the floor during timeouts and also leads cheers.

Denver's Chicken also has the distinction of being the first bird to be ejected from an NBA game. He was razzing referee Earl Strom during a playoff contest last spring when he got his wings clipped.

"Get that chicken out of here," Strom told security personnel — with pluck, no doubt.

Trinity goes unbeaten

Trinity's John Hibbitts

After a long football drought that saw only one victory in the last two years, Trinity School, under the guidance of Coach Bill Coombes, recently completed an undefeated season in the Eighth grade B league.

It also marked a successful comeback for Coombes, who had coached Trinity three years ago before stepping down from that position for two years. It was during Coombes' absence that Trinity could manage only one victory.

Trinity put the final touch on their perfect season with last week's 12-0 victory over the San Jacinto Green team.

The season was highlighted by a hard-fought 6-0 win over Midland Christian and by the superb all-around play of co-captain John Hibbitts. Hibbitts rushed for over 1,000 yards in eight games with a season-high of 215 yards and five touchdowns against Goddard. He also led the team defensively with over 50 unassisted tackles.

Trinity outscored all opponents 146-36 while generating over 200 yards of total offense per game and holding the opposition to less than 90 total yards per game.

It was Trinity's first perfect season since 1966.

Paul Coleman was the team's assistant coach.

Stargell wins Hutch Award

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Willie Stargell, veteran slugger and team leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been voted winner of baseball's Hutch Award for 1978.

The 37-year-old Stargell appeared in only 63 games during the 1977 season as a result of an illness and later a pinched nerve in his elbow. But he came on strong this year, appearing in 122 games and helping his team make a rush against Philadelphia in the National League Eastern Division race.

Stargell's statistics included a .295 batting average, 28 home runs — raising his career total to 429 — and 97 RBIs.

The award honors the memory of Fred Hutchinson, who was manager of the Cincinnati Reds when he died of cancer in 1964.

Basis of the voting by major league sports writers and broadcasters is overcoming some form of adversity while displaying the competitive instincts and character of Hutchinson, a major league pitcher and manager of the Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals before taking over the Reds.

Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants won the award for 1977. Former winners still active include Pete Rose, John Hiller, Tommy John and Carl Yastrzemski.

Milwaukee pitcher Mike Caldwell and Chicago Cubs first baseman Bill Buckner finished 2-3 in the voting, announced Tuesday by Ritter Collett, sports editor of the Dayton Journal Herald and secretary-treasurer of the sponsoring organization.

It's time for Duke Blue Devils to get serious

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It's time for Bill Foster to get serious.

Last year, his lightly-regarded Duke basketball team laughed all the way to the NCAA finals before suffering a sobering knockout punch by the Kentucky Wildcats.

The Blue Devils might not take things so lightly this season, now that they're starting out with the No. 1 ranking in the country.

Like Kentucky before them, the Blue Devils must live up to their top billing from the start. And like Kentucky, they may have the talent to do it.

The players who won applause for their blazing style and admiration for their light-hearted approach are all back — including the ubiquitous Gene Banks, who prophetically stated after last year's finals:

"Well, at least we'll be No. 1 next year."

THAT, OF COURSE, will eventually depend on how Banks, Mike Gminski and Jim Spanarkel and Co. can handle the pressure in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference.

There, the Blue Devils must face competition in a league recognized as one of the toughest in the country. Virtually everyone in the ACC is stronger this year, with the possible exception of North Carolina, which lost the redoubtable Phil Ford.

Banks at forward and Gminski at center are two of the very best at their positions in what most certainly looks like the Year of the Sophomore in college basketball.

Another good one is Earvin "Magic" Johnson, the passing wizard who led Michigan State to the Big Ten championship last season. Johnson alone makes the Spartans a palpable threat on the national scene and the foremost team in a league that many consider as strong as any in the country this season.

THERE WOULD SEEM to be almost as many contenders in the Big Ten as there are members. Along with Michigan State and its magical guard, the competitive teams there include arch-rival Michigan, Indiana, Ohio State and Illinois. Minnesota, with one of the best recruiting crops in the country, and Purdue — coached by incoming Lee Rose — also are worth watching.

Notre Dame features another of the nation's most celebrated sophomores — forward Kelly Tripucka. As a freshman, Tripucka was instrumental in leading the Irish into the Final Four last season. And Digger Phelps' team could be there again this year, with an outstanding collection of frontcourt players and plenty of depth.

In Darnell Valentine, the Kansas Jayhawks have another highly-prized sophomore, making Ted Owens' team the Big One in the Big Eight. The Jayhawks reportedly had the best recruiting year in the conference this season.

Meanwhile, Kentucky's fall from national power is inevitable with the loss of four of its top six players. Yet the Wildcats might have enough to hold their own in the weakened Southeastern Conference.

THE SEC WILL be as balanced as it ever has been, with Mississippi State and big man Ricky Brown rated a good chance to supplant Kentucky as league champion. New coaches abound this year in the SEC, with Mississippi State, Georgia, Tennessee and Auburn all presenting new faces.

The other member of last year's Final Four, Arkansas, is in a position similar to Kentucky's — suffering irreplaceable losses in Ron Brewer and Marvin Delph. The Razorbacks might have to take a back seat to Texas, the class of the Southwest Conference. Witty Abe Lemons' sharpshooters, led by Jim Krivacs, won the National Invitation Tournament last year.

In its short history, the Metro Seven Conference has moved up among the heavyweight leagues in college basketball and this season will feature one of the country's heavyweight teams in Louisville. Denny Crum had a sparkling recruiting year there and his top prospects figure to blend in well with the likes of Darrell Griffith, Bobby Turner and Larry Williams.

In the Pacific-10 Conference, UCLA once again rates as the favorite — and not only because of its lustrous history. In David Greenwood, the Bruins have one of America's top forwards. The defending league champions will probably be pressed by cross-town rival Southern Cal, Washington State, Oregon State and newcomer Arizona.

SOME OF San Francisco's power is gone as a result of the hardship route taken by James Hardy and Winford Boynes, but the Dons still have one of the best centers in the country in Bill Cartwright. They won't dominate the West Coast Conference as they have in past years, however, and Nevada-Reno rates as a worthy opponent in the race.

Fullerton State, the Cinderella team in last year's NCAA playoffs, has four regulars back for the Pacific Coast Athletic Association race. Long Beach State and Fresno State are also among the powers of the league.

Back in the East, the top products will probably be the independents. These include the annual evergreens — Syracuse, St. Bonaventure and St. John's — as well as Iona, Holy Cross, Rhode Island, Fairfield and Boston College.

Rutgers is the early favorite in the Eastern Eight; La Salle rates that position in the East Coast Conference and Penn, Princeton and Columbia appear to be the strongest teams in the Ivy League.

THE MISSOURI Valley Conference features one of the country's most celebrated players in Larry Bird, although his Indiana State team will be hard-pressed by Southern Illinois and New Mexico State for the title.

The Mid-American Conference is wide open with Bowling Green the possible champion in a dogfight. Furman had the best recruiting year and has the best all-around talent in the Southern Conference. Brigham Young is the consensus pick to win the Western Athletic Conference.

Along with the aforementioned independents, such entries as Marquette, Detroit, Illinois State and DePaul are among the nation's elite.

Slow-starting Cowboys favored to beat Redskins in showdown

An AP Sports Analysis
By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Traditionally, professional football games are divided into four periods, each lasting 15 minutes. So how come the Dallas Cowboys keep insisting on playing only the last three quarters?

Not even the vaunted Dallas computer has been able to figure out why the Cowboys have been outscored 69-21 in the opening periods of their 12 games this season. For the last three quarters, Dallas holds a commanding 248-99 point edge.

The slow starting-finishing Cowboy offense goes up against the Washington Redskins Thursday in an NFC East showdown that is the second half of the National Football League's traditional Thanksgiving Day doubleheader. In the other game, Denver, sharing the AFC West lead with Oakland, takes on the Detroit Lions.

Last weekend's 10-4 raised the season mark to 100-67 for 1978.

The holiday picks:

Cowboys 24, Redskins 14
Roger Staubach and Co. owe this one to the Redskins defense that embarrassed the Cowboys on national television Oct. 2, winning 9-5 and holding Dallas without a touchdown for the first time since Nov. 7, 1976. The Cowboys gained 309 yards in that game, marching up and down the field but never crossing the Washington goal line.

That victory, constructed around three Mark Moseley field goals, thrust the Redskins into a 2-game lead in the NFC East. That bulge has melted and now the two teams are tied for the top, both at 8-4.

Both teams will be without key players. Dallas has lost running back Robert Newhouse with a broken leg, meaning a heavier burden on 1,000-yard man Tony Dorsett and more playing time for swingman Preston Pearson. Washington has lost defensive tackle Diron Talbert for the season with a knee injury.

Broncos 21, Lions 10
Speaking of offenses, Denver's isn't exactly devastating. But Craig Morton should generate enough points to beat the Lions. The game is, after all, more vital to the Broncos than it is to Detroit.

What attack Denver does generate usually revolves around wide receiver Haven Moses, who's had two straight 100-yard games now that Morton has resumed fulltime work at quarterback. Rob Lytle's 110-yard rushing, his first 100-yard game as a pro, complemented the Broncos' air game against Green Bay.

Defensively, Denver leads the AFC with only 151 points allowed this season.

Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson moved the Lions to 328 total yards against Oakland but the Lion defense came up short. Expect the same thing to happen against the Broncos.

For Penn State, Pitt only numbers that count will be on scoreboard

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Penn State is ranked No. 1, and Pitt is ranked No. 15. But the numbers that count will be on the scoreboard.

"I said it last year. I say it every time we play Pitt. It doesn't matter what happened previously," Coach Joe Paterno said by telephone from Penn State, where the nationally televised game will be played Friday.

"We'll just line up, play with emotion and let things happen," said Coach Jackie Sherrill of Pitt.

Penn State takes a 10-0 record into the game, while Pitt is 8-2, and Paterno predicted a "good, old-fashioned, backyard fight."

But it will be in Paterno's backyard — Beaver Stadium.

And his team is coming off an open date with extra time to heal and prepare for Pitt, which had a tough weekend game with Army and now faces a short work week and a bumpy, three-hour bus ride.

"It's like we're gonna have a backyard brawl with Muhammad Ali," kidded Pitt defensive coach Jimmy Johnson.

"I'd much rather have a backyard brawl with Dean Billick," he added, referring to Pitt's sports information director.

Nonetheless, Johnson had a square set to his jaw, as did Sherrill, when they spoke Tuesday at a media luncheon. "They may be the best team in the country. From what I hear, they are. But I'd like to find out for myself," said Johnson.

"They deserve their No. 1 ranking," said Sherrill.

"But I think the biggest advantage for our players will be that they are more relaxed... We've got to be reckless. The players have to cut loose, play with a lot of intensity and not worry about mistakes."

For Tangerine Bowl-bound Pitt, the game means a chance to get back in the Top Ten in the national rankings.

For Penn State, it will decide whether the Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions have a chance for their first national title.

Yet Paterno said Tuesday that he doesn't see the No. 1 ranking as a burden for his team, which will be playing its first game atop the polls.

"A lot of people in town, the student body, the alumni and all that stuff have gotten excited about it," Paterno said. "But I haven't detected that in the squad. All our kids are really talking about is Pitt. I think this is a good, old-fashioned, backyard fight, the way football ought to be played... It's a question of going out, having a good football game, having a little fun, everybody taking off after each other and what happens, happens."

Tommy John on verge of signing with Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can't beat 'em, join 'em, the saying goes.

Well, the New York Yankees have put a new twist to the old philosophy: If someone beats the Yankees, they get him to join THEIR team instead.

For the second time in three years, a pitcher who beat the Yankees in the World Series appears about to defect to them.

The Yankees have called what they term a major press conference for today, presumably to announce the signing of free agent pitcher Tommy John, a 35-year-old left-hander who won 17 games with the Los Angeles Dodgers last season.

"He's important to us," Yankee owner George Steinbrenner said Tuesday shortly before announcing the press conference. "If he's sitting there, that gives us time to develop our younger players in the minors."

Neither John nor his lawyer, Robert Cohen, were available for comment Tuesday and a Yankee spokesman said he would not comment on the situation, but it is known that John has been interested in playing in New York for some time.

"As of the other day, they were very close together," said a close observer of the John-Yankee contract negotiations.

John became a free agent this year when the Dodgers wouldn't meet his demand for a three-year contract and a signing bonus. He was the Yankees' No. 1 choice in the Nov. 3 re-entry draft and their top target in the free-

John was the winning pitcher for the Dodgers in the first game of this year's World Series, which was eventually won by the Yankees over Los Angeles in six games.

Two years ago, in the first free agent draft under baseball's reserve system, Don Gullett, also a left-hander, signed with the Yankees after having defeated them in the first game of the 1976 Series.

The Yankees have already been busy in the free-agent market this year. On Nov. 13, they picked up another pitcher they often found hard to beat — veteran Luis Tiant of the Boston Red Sox.

After that deal, Yankee President Al Rosen pledged that the team would continue to pursue more players.

"You know me well enough," Rosen told newsmen. "I don't stop."

The Yankees have set a fast enough tempo in the past few years, signing along with Gullett and Tiant such illustrious free agents as Reggie Jackson, Catfish Hunter, Rich Gosage and Rawley Eastwick for millions of dollars.

John, a sinker-ball specialist, supplied one of baseball's most dramatic comeback stories after undergoing delicate tendon surgery on his left arm in 1974. He sat out the 1975 season recuperating and came back strong, pitching with what fanciful writers called a "bionic arm."

In the next three years, the left-hander posted 47 victories for the Dodgers, leading them to National League pennants in 1977 and 1978.

WHITES Home and Auto

Our every intention is to have all advertised items in stock and on our shelves. If for any unforeseen reason, an advertised item is not available, Whites will cheerfully issue a RAIN CHECK on request for the merchandise at the sale price when it becomes available, or Whites will offer a comparable item at a similar reduction in price. This does not apply to special purchases, clearance and closeout sales during quantities are limited.

If a stock item is not advertised as reduced or as a special purchase, it is at the regular Whites' low price. A special purchase item, though not at a reduced price, represents an exceptional value.

Charge it! Use Whites convenient credit plan.

New National Smoker Study:

"Best Move Yet."

Extensive research conclusive: MERIT taste scores high marks with former high tar smokers.

Can the taste of low tar MERIT, with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco, continue to satisfy the smokers it attracts from high tar brands?

Read the results of new, detailed, nationwide research conducted among current MERIT smokers — and among high tar smokers who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Research Confirms Taste Satisfaction

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first real alternative for high tar smokers.
