"Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink."
Thus goes the lament of the man set adrift on a raft in an ocean seemingly without end.
"Water, water dripping away. Waste it now and thirst in the morrow."
And therein is the warning to the landlocked city dweller to whom excesses is a blessing and a way of life.
But the time is about up.
It's not that there's any less or more water than there ever was, since the beginning. The rain forests still get their daily drenchings, and deserts still go dry—at least on the surface.
The rains still come in their phenomenal earth-to-heaven and back again cycle. And the rainbow is ever with earthlings.
The rivers flow, but not with the purity and aesthetic beauty of a wild derness.
Probably today there are more lakes, man-made and natural, than ever before. And there are increasingly more wells tapping the maze of underground streams.
But more and more people are using—and wasting—more and more water.
And many, excluding West Texans, of course, who once thought water was as limitless as the sky, are finding out differently.
Benjamin Franklin, alias Richard Saunders, more than two centuries ago allegorically wrote in his "Poor Richard's Almanac":
"When the well's dry, we know the worth of water."
That's like anything else. You don't miss it until it's gone. How could it be otherwise?
Poor Richard, the ever frugal wise man, also says to "Beware of little expenses. A small leak will sink a great ship."
The point of those Franklin proverbs, in the context of the Texas Department of Water Resources' propaganda, is to hold down faucet time.
The department's water watchers tell of two score and 10 ways to "save" water—from cutting down on shower time to putting bulk (such as water-filled plastic quart bottles) in commode tanks and plugging those leaks around the house, farm and office.
Most of the water saving suggestions, become obvious when reviewed, and you probably could come up with 50 more by just giving it a thought or two.
Just wait. If the water crisis trend continues, and it will, resourceful folks may be forced to conserve precious water in ways not yet conjured up.
Necessity and urgency have spawned many an innovation.

Guyana body count at 775, still rising

BY LEW WHEATON
GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Searchers have found at least 775 bodies at the scene of the Jonestown mass suicide-murder, almost twice as many as previously counted, the U.S. Embassy reported today. It said many of the newly discovered bodies were those of children huddled beneath their parents' corpses.
For days investigators had been unable to determine the whereabouts of hundreds of camp residents who apparently were missing. It was believed many may have fled the death ritual, hiding in the jungle. The grisly new discoveries gave the answer.
Embassy spokeswoman Patricia Moser said that as of 1 p.m. local time 10 a.m. CST — 485 bodies had been removed from Jonestown.
She said 20 more had been placed in body bags and a still continuing hand count had located an additional 270.
She emphasized that the count was still continuing and more bodies were being found, many under previously counted corpses.
"We understand the bodies have been found piled and there were a lot of children. Many children were found under the bodies of their parents and were not counted originally," she said.
The official toll reported here previously was 408 or 409 dead at Jonestown.
A U.S. Embassy official had said Thursday that 803 passports were found at the colony, which at that time meant 300 or more persons were unaccounted for. Officials and survivors had variously estimated that from 100 to 800 members of the Jonestown commune were unaccounted for.

Although precise figures are not expected for days, if ever, today's discoveries apparently meant that almost all of the missing were being found dead.
There had been speculation that many cultists were hiding out in the jungle fearing reprisals for having escaped the suicide rite, but other sources had said only a handful of Jonestown residents may have fled because estimates of the camp's population were put too high.
An eyewitness to the Jonestown mass suicide said today some reluctant sect members were forced to swallow poison as the Rev. Jim Jones exhorted hundreds of his followers to "die with dignity."
Peoples Temple member Odell Rhodes, who fled from the Jonestown camp midway through the death ritual last Saturday, told reporters the population of the agricultural commune was more than 600, though never as much as 1,000. This would indicate that at least 100 residents may be unaccounted for.
Some camp residents are known to have fled into the surrounding jungle rather than take poison, and about 10 have since emerged.
U.S. military airlift today continued flying bodies from Jonestown back to the United States. Air Force Capt. John Moscatelli said he expects orders to conduct helicopter searches of the jungle after the body evacuation is complete.

Jones led his Peoples Temple followers in the suicide after a squad from the commune allegedly gunned down a U.S. congressman, three newsmen and a defecting cultist, Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., was in Guyana investigating the commune.
The 36-year-old Rhodes, a Detroit native who was a crafts teacher at Jonestown, said the camp medical team administered the poison with needle-less syringes, squirting the liquid into the mouths of babies and children first.
He said many people were crying and Jones tried to calm them, "asking kids not to cry and saying people should die with dignity."
Most took the cyanide poison voluntarily, but some resisted, he said.
One woman named Christine Miller objected to taking poison, and Jones' followers shouted abuse at her, calling her a "traitor," Rhodes said. "She was still alive when I left and I think she probably would have resisted," he said.
"I saw a girl named Julie Reynolds being forced to take the poison," he said. "She kept spitting it out and the nurses kept forcing her to take it."
The Miller woman's name, but not

U.S. officials baffled by Egyptian plan publication

BY NICOLAS B. TATRO
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — With Israeli-Egyptian peace talks stalled, and Israel insisting Egypt must make the next move, the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram today published what it said was the text of a U.S. draft peace treaty.
There was no immediate State Department comment on the draft, but some American officials were reportedly baffled at Egypt's motives in releasing the text at this time. It was believed the government was behind publication of the draft in the semi-official daily.
Israel and Egypt have agreed in general terms to the U.S. draft, but their negotiations in Washington have deadlocked over Egypt's insistence that the treaty be linked to a solution of the Palestinian problem and include a timetable for Palestinian self rule on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip.
Israel has rejected any such linkage and fears a timetable will allow Egypt to back out of the peace treaty if negotiators cannot work out a Palestinian settlement within a given time.

The treaty published in Al-Ahram believed to be a copy of the draft accepted Tuesday by the Israeli cabinet, made no direct mention of linkage between the two parts. The newspaper quoted the preamble of the purported text saying the treaty is to be an "important step toward a comprehensive Mideast settlement and resolving all aspects of the Arab-Israeli conflict."
Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, declaring there is nothing left to negotiate, said Thursday, "I don't see any point or any need to return to Washington to conduct or renew negotiations." (The agreement) can be signed or not signed, approved or not approved. It's up to President Sadat now."
Israel, waiting for the outcome of Sadat's meetings with his top negotiators, hopes Carter will persuade Egypt to accept the draft.

Salvation 'family' enjoys holiday

BY GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

"Boxcar Ray" is an 18-year-old from Midland who has spent two years "riding the freight trains."
He dropped by the Midland Salvation Army office Thursday for a Thanksgiving dinner with turkey and the trimmings.
The young man was one of about 14 persons who had nowhere else to go and nothing to do on the holiday when families traditionally get together.
Captain Bob Vincent didn't mind. He sees people who are stranded and seeking food and shelter every day.
Besides, for some people there are few choices.
"Boxcar Ray" has decided how he wants to live his life. And right now, he said, it seems like the road is the best life for him. He and other men began wandering down to the Salvation Army office on Baird Street shortly after 11 a.m. Thursday.
Among the group was Rick from Alabama and Carl from Pennsylvania.
Carl had been stranded in El Paso after a trip from Las Vegas, Nev. Were it not for a kind trucker, Carl said, he would still be limping down the road, thumbing for a ride to Houston.
Carl wants to get to Houston because that's where the man who drove him to El Paso and left him said he was headed.
Some of these men just seem to prefer their lifestyles, which may involve a month of hard work before a drinking binge in some city and then an inevitable drying out period.
"Boxcar Ray" said Thursday: "I left here because it wasn't right for me. I felt like I really needed to get out on the road."
He packed his stuff, met some road tramps and headed out.
"You can't walk on your feet for hundreds of miles, so we ride the freight trains," said the traveling man.
He said he just enjoys traveling, going into a town, making a few bucks at work and then moving on.
"When you can't find that work, you just sell some of your blood to a plasma center to earn a few bucks and then move on."
He rolled up his sleeves to reveal red blotches where many needles had

Midland woman dies in two-vehicle crash

A 20-year-old Midland woman died early Thursday as a result of injuries she received in a two-vehicle traffic accident.
Peace Justice John Biggs pronounced Nancy Irene Lee of 607 Watson Ave. dead at the scene in the 1800 block of the Rankin Highway shortly after 2:22 a.m.

The victim's car was in collision with a pickup truck driven by Himo Garza, 28, of 1505 S. Jefferson St.
Police said the woman was traveling north on Rankin Highway when Garza, driving his truck southbound, attempted to make a left turn east onto Gist Avenue, resulting in a near head-on collision.

It was reported to be foggy and raining at the time of the mishap.
Both drivers were alone in their vehicles. The accident is still under investigation, police said.
Garza was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital with minor injuries.

Fooling 'Mother Nature' may be answer

Editor's Note: Today, in the sixth article in a seven-part series on water in West Texas, The Reporter-Telegram reviews two controversial proposals — importation of out-of-state water and weather modification.
By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer
Some water resource experts are so hard-pressed to find solutions to Texas High Plains water problems that they literally are willing to go that extra mile or reach for the sky.
The big question mark is, of course, is it right to interfere with Mother Nature?

Officials of the Texas Department of Water Resources say it's okay to "mess with nature." They advocate undoing nature, in a sense, to provide more water for irrigation of one of America's richest agricultural areas.
Officials of the agency say importation of water from as far away as Arkansas and seeding cumulus clouds to make it rain are two promising methods of replenishing depleted water supplies of the Ogallala Aquifer, the underground life-source of this region.
But environmentalists and other critics of these two controversial water-gathering concepts say state officials may be worse than all wet.

Either in transporting apparent water surpluses to the plains of West Texas, or by inducing a cloud to rain over a particular area, mankind will have done nothing more than "rob from Peter to pay Paul," according to some environmentalists.

They also warn there may be far-reaching ecological damage nobody has yet considered.
Water importation, they claim, will divert water which ordinarily would go into bays and estuaries, and possibly alter the habitats of fish and wildlife.
And forcing clouds to cough up rain from otherwise reluctant clouds constitutes going against the laws of nature, according to some critics. They point to situations where rain-making devices allegedly have been linked to flooding, suppression of rain clouds and instigation of hail storms.

As always, economics is another concern on people's minds. In the case of water importation, there are many in the eastern part of the state who do not want to pay the cost of piping Arkansas water several hundred miles to the Texas High Plains to take care of what they view as someone else's "local problem."
And there are some who, like Jay Tapp, a Houston business consultant, predict that the cost of water importation would be so high as to make imported water too expensive to drink.
Tapp said "water hustlers," his

Nazi war crimes trial dragging into fourth year

By DAVID MINTHORN

LUBLIN, Poland (AP) — Gas chambers, crematory ovens and mounds of human ashes at Majdanek death camp are sickening reminders of the Holocaust. Some 600 miles to the West, the trial of 14 Nazi camp guards for World War II atrocities here drags into its fourth year.

"It's a phantom trial, a classic case of stalling," Professor Czelsaw Pilichowski, chief of Poland's war-crimes investigation commission, told The Associated Press.

Pilichowski reflected the anger and frustration of a number of Polish officials over defense delaying tactics at the Majdanek trial in Duesseldorf, West Germany.

Former New York housewife Hermine Braunstewner Ryan, extradited to West Germany to stand trial after surrendering her U.S. citizenship, is one of the five women and nine men charged with the murders.

The trial passes its third anniversary Sunday, and court officials say the verdict is at least another year away.

Polish officials say 360,000 men, women and children were gassed, shot, hanged, drowned, beaten or starved to death at Majdanek between 1941 and 1944. Victims came from 28 countries, but the majority were rounded up in the Nazi occupation of Poland.

Pilichowski said the German prosecutors have conducted an excellent case against the 14 defendants, who face maximum sentences of life imprisonment. "But," he said, "the defense lawyers have delayed the trial with a variety of time-consuming protest motions. The case is certain to drag on into 1980."

The controversial West German statute of limitations, which would expire Dec. 31, 1979, for war crimes unless it's extended, has no effect on the Duesseldorf trial. It applies to German war-crime suspects not under investigation or indictment by the deadline.

Pilichowski was bitterly critical of the defense lawyers' tactics of badgering Polish witnesses who survived Majdanek.

"A Polish woman physician testified that she was forced by Nazi guards to carry canisters of poison gas," said the lawyer. "Everybody knows she didn't act voluntarily. But a defense lawyer accused her of cooperating in murder and demanded she be arrested."

The harassment of Polish witnesses in the courtroom has gotten so bad, 64-year-old Pilichowski said, that many survivors have refused to appear in person and instead gave written depositions.

He said 20 Poles have gone to Duesseldorf, 10 others are slated to go and 770 have given the court written statements.

The court has had five sessions in Poland, including visits to the camp site near Lublin, an industrial city of 250,000 residents. A sixth session is scheduled here, Pilichowski said, but several defense lawyers have been barred from entering the country to attend.

"We don't give them visas because of their behavior," he said. "One of them was even coming to Poland to try to bribe witnesses."

Pilichowski and other Polish officials are also pressing West Germany to abolish its statute of limitations on war crime murders.

"The statute is a violation of international law and principles of human morality," Pilichowski said. "We could never accept a limitation on crimes of this immensity."

About 5.5 million Poles, including many Jews, were among the estimated 10 million persons killed by the Nazis in World War II camps and reprisal shootings. Another 540,000 were killed in battle. The 6 million total was the highest death rate for a European nation.

Since 1959 Pilichowski's commission has sent more than 130,000 microfilms, 30,000 witnesses' statements and 25,000 documents on Nazi atrocities to West Germany.

The results of this cooperation have been disappointing, he said, with West Germany having the worst record in punishing Nazi war criminals. "Of 84,000 suspects investigated in West Germany, only 6,425, or 7.6 percent, have actually been convicted," he said.

The West Germans maintain they are hindered by the difficulty of finding witnesses, especially as survivors grow older.

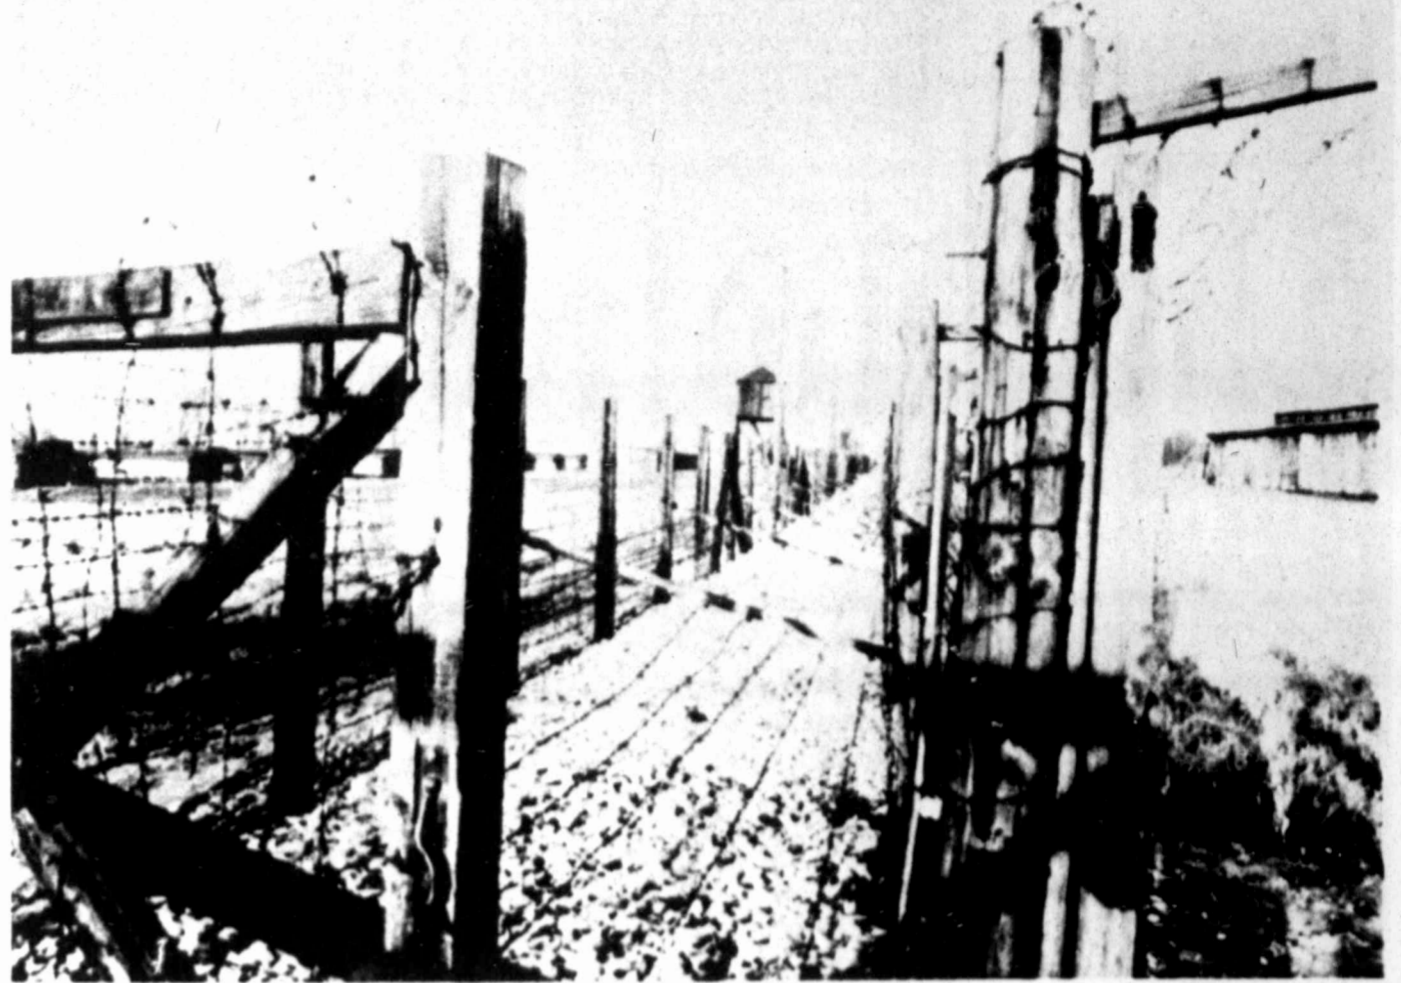

Pilichowski estimated that European courts have sentenced 50,000 Nazi war criminals, or only one-tenth of the total.

"It is a well-known fact that most of the major criminals are hidden in South America," Law and Life, the newspaper of the Polish lawyers association, said in its latest edition. "But there are also many former Gestapo and SS members living well in West Germany."

"After the amnesty, they will make themselves heroes of the fight for 'Deutschland, Deutschland ueber alles.'" Majdanek, the second-largest Nazi extermination camp after Auschwitz, has been attracting thousands of foreign visitors in recent years, officials said. It has been preserved as a memorial.

The visit to Majdanek begins with a horrifying film of the camp on the day

The double barbed wire fence that was built around the Majdanek concentration camp near Lublin, Poland in World War II still stands today. Some 600 miles to the west, in Duesseldorf, West it was liberated by Soviet troops, July 23, 1944. Pathetic mementos of the dead are on display. Blood-stained, blue-and-white prisoners' garb hang on clothes lines. Shoes, eye glasses, dentures and other articles stripped from corpses are piled on the floors. "Let our fate be a warning to you," says an inscription over the tons of human ashes burned in the mausoleum built to honor victims. Camp guide Wieslaw Pielecha said many German visitors still have difficulty believing the evidence of genocide. (AP Laserphoto)

Wheelchair set rolls into karate in a very special kind of way

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Lorene Oslin puffs hard as she maneuvers around her assailant. She punctuates the air with a karate punch, then another.

The maneuver would be routine exercise for an aspiring karate student with visions of a black belt, but in this instance the athlete is in a wheelchair, a victim of cerebral palsy.

Miss Oslin, 39, is among four wheelchair bound persons learning to defend themselves at The Special Karate Club.

"This is an art, a skill that normally these people don't get a chance to pick up on," says instructor Jack Gustafson, a black belt who has adapted karate techniques to the unique abilities of each club member.

"It's a terrific aerobic exercise," he says. "And it's an excellent form of release." Club members learn standard karate punches, evasive moves, and in some instances, even kicks.

The students use their wheelchairs as weapons, says Gustafson. Those with motorized chairs shift them into fast forward and ram their attackers, keeping them off balance.

"If a guy is coming at me from the front, I hit him with my good (right) hand," says Miss Oslin. "Then, I turn and move in with my chair, ramming him in the shins. If he wants to get in back of me, I keep moving in a circle until I can pin him with my chair."

Volunteers attend sessions and pretend to be attackers, some holding leather mitts as targets for the students' punches.

Miss Oslin, who is also working on a degree in psychology, learned of the karate class about a year ago, she says.

"At first, I thought it was crazy. But, I went and watched and soon realized I was a lot stronger than I ever thought."

Miss Oslin says she views karate not only as a means of self-defense but as a way to get needed exercise. "It's good for keeping your muscles in tone, because when you sit so much, you need all the muscle tone you can get," she says.

It also provides incentive to the students. "I may never get a black belt, but I'm sure going to try," says Miss Oslin. "It's important to be as actively involved in an able-bodied society as I can be. That makes me forget my disability."

Carter people approach majority on reserve board

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, the money managing Federal Reserve Board will soon have appointees of President Carter in the majority, but it is unlikely to bring any change in the board's high interest rate policy.

The seven member Federal Reserve Board has been carrying most of the load lately in trying to control inflation — by pushing interest rates to record and near record levels. The goal is to slow the economy and take pressure off prices.

It's a calculated risk, because if there is a serious recession next year, the board will get much of the blame, as will Carter.

But it's also a load the board can't easily rid itself of because there isn't anybody else who can carry it right now. There's little confidence either among the public or even within the administration that Carter's voluntary wage and price guidelines will succeed in slowing inflation.

Carter has also made clear he agrees the board has no other real option at this point except to keep interest rates high. His administration has encouraged some of the most recent increases.

Although Carter nominates members of the board, subject to Senate confirmation, the board is independent of the administration and is responsible to Congress. Members are named for 14-year terms although few actually serve that long.

Although policy probably will remain the same, there still will be comfort to Carter in having the board controlled by people he has appointed.

Carter has filled two vacancies so far this year and two more have occurred in recent weeks, one with the resignation for personal reasons of Philip C. Jackson and the second with the death Sunday by cancer of Stephen S. Gardner, 59, the board's vice chairman.

Not since 1936 has a president had an opportunity to name four members in a single year. At the beginning of this year, the board was made up entirely of members appointed by Republican presidents, including the chairman, Arthur Burns.

Carter's first appointment was G. William Miller, named to succeed Burns, who resigned. While Miller is independent of the administration, he has worked closely with Carter and his advisers in coordinating Fed policy with administration actions and objectives.

Carter's second appointment came in August when he named Nancy Teeters, the first woman ever on the board, to fill another resignation.

It is understood Carter has not made a decision on who to nominate to the vacant posts, although North Carolina banker Luther H. Hodge Jr. and Lyle C. Gramley, a member of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, have been mentioned as possible candidates for Jackson's seat.

No injuries reported in family house fire 10 miles south of Midland

Heavy heat and smoke damage, but no injuries were reported when a fire broke out today in a one-story family dwelling in Midland County, about 10 miles south of the city.

The blaze, which resulted in heavy damage to the house's living room, started shortly before 9 a.m. while a child reportedly was lighting a woodburning stove in the home of G.L. Marroquin on CR 1160, according to a fire department official.

Firefighters had the fire under control by 11:04 a.m.

The stucco house is owned by Frank Davidson of Tower Road, according to officials.

Ryan's accused slayer is former pacifist

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A former Berkeley man charged with murder in the jungle airstrip slaying of Rep. Leo Ryan and four others is the son of a Quaker couple and was a conscientious objector during the Vietnam War, a Berkeley newspaper says.

A copyright story Thursday in the Independent & Gazette identified Laurence John (Larry) Layton, 32, as a fierce devotee of the Rev. Jim Jones who, friends say, was capable of killing in the name of the Peoples Temple despite his pacifist background — a man who "did as he was told."

Layton was charged Wednesday in the South American nation of Guyana in connection with the ambush at the Port Kaituma airstrip Saturday. He faces five counts of murder and three counts of attempted murder in connection with the ambush of the California congressman's fact-finding delegation after a visit to Jones' commune, Jonestown. Guyana's maximum penalty for murder is death by hanging.

In a related development, Layton told the Chicago Tribune on Thursday that he fears a cult assassin with instructions to kill him is roaming free in Georgetown, Guyana.

"I wanted to be taken into custody," the newspaper's Friday edition quotes Layton as saying in a copyright story. "I wanted to go to the police station. I did not want to go back."

Layton spoke briefly of Ryan. "He sounded like a friendly man who didn't want to hurt us," Layton said. "I remember going in the vehicle (to the runway). I remember turning around. I remember getting in the plane. I remember being there."

The Independent & Gazette story offered this profile of the cultist:

—His family belonged to a Quaker church in Berkeley for several years, and later joined the Berkeley Fellowship of Unitarians.

—His father is a chemist at the Western Regional Research Laboratory in Albany, Calif. Former in-laws of Layton's told The Associated Press that his mother was a survivor of a Nazi concentration camp.

—Faced with the draft during the Vietnam War, he sought and gained conscientious objector status.

—Counselors and teachers remember him as a bright and "solid" young man and a former classmate, state Assemblyman Elihu Harris, recalled: "He was very political and very serious — perhaps a lot more serious than any of us."

The newspaper said Layton's life began to change drastically when he met Jones while studying sociology at the University of California at Davis.

Tom Layton said his brother became "brainwashed and programmed. He became a dedicated follower, uncritically accepting Jones' philosophy. Over the years he became less and less able to analyze current events...."

He disputed reports that his brother served as a personal bodyguard to Jones, saying he performed only menial tasks at the temple.

"He was not viewed as being an important member of the temple," he said. "He did what he was told."

Tom Layton and his father, Laurence, spent Thanksgiving at home behind shuttered windows, waiting for word on Mrs. Layton and still trying to grasp the fact that a member of their once pacifist family had been arrested on murder charges.

Tom Layton said his family's involvement with the temple "has been an 11-year family tragedy."

"Now that the nightmare is ending, a nightmare that started many years ago for us, we are hopeful that he will receive treatment and will be restored as a functioning member of society," he said.

Jonestown corpses now in U.S.; Task of identifying continues

By PATRICK BRESLIN

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — The body of the Rev. Jim Jones — positively identified by the FBI — lay side by side with those of a growing number of his followers today in the chill of a military morgue.

The decomposing corpses of more than half of the 408 People's Temple followers who died in a mass cult suicide in Guyana were returned to the United States by early Friday, but the grisly task of identifying and cleaning the bodies remained.

The C-141 Air Force cargo planes carrying the bodies were scheduled to arrive throughout the day. By early morning, four planes bearing 270 bodies had landed at the base, which military spokesmen said was the only morgue in the country equipped to handle the large number of casualties.

Air Force spokesmen said two more flights would be required to complete the airlift.

Maj. Brigham Shuler, chief press officer for the base, said Jones' adopted daughter had been notified of the identification. He said the State Department had raised the issue of an autopsy of Jones' remains with the woman, who was not identified.

However, Charles Carson, mortuary officer at the base, said no autopsies would be performed here.

Former People's Temple members had said the body might not be Jones' because he sometimes had lookalikes to stand in for him in dangerous situations.

But three hours after the second plane arrived, carrying a body in an aluminum case labeled "13B" and "Rev. Jimmie Jones," the FBI announced the identification was official.

FBI Director William Webster, in a statement, said the FBI disaster squad had positively identified the body as that of James Warren Jones.

Dollar up slightly, gold lower

LONDON (AP) — The dollar posted some fractional gains on European currency markets Friday in light trading following the American Thanksgiving holiday. Gold prices turned lower.

The dollar seemed likely to wind up slightly ahead for the week. It appears to have found stability after three weeks of fluctuation following the announcement of President Carter's new plan to bolster the U.S. currency.

In Tokyo, where the business day ends before

Europe's begins, the dollar ended the week at 193.975 yen — more than a yen up from last Friday but down slightly from Wednesday's 194.575. Tokyo markets were closed for a holiday Thursday.

The British pound sagged in London to a mid-morning level of $1.9405 from a late rate Thursday of $1.9465. Last Friday a pound cost $1.9330.

Morning dollar rates at other European centers: with late Thursday quotes and last Friday's rates in brackets:

Frankfurt — 1.9200 marks, up from the late Thursday quote of 1.9180 and last Friday's late price of 1.9192.

Zurich — 1.7225 Swiss francs, up from 1.7200 Thursday and 1.7105 last Friday.

Paris — 4.4113 French francs, up from Thursday's 4.4075 and last Friday's rate of 4.3775.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Cool to cold temperatures are expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning, for most of the country. Warm weather is expected for the Gulf and southern coastal states.

Midland statistics

MIDLAND, ODESSA, RANKIN, BIG LAKE, GARDEN CITY FORECAST: Early morning fog. Otherwise cloudy through Saturday with a chance of showers and possibly a few thunderstorms tonight and Saturday.

Table with columns for High, Low, Precip, and other weather statistics for Midland and surrounding areas.

Table titled 'LOCAL TEMPERATURES' showing temperatures for various cities like Abilene, Amarillo, and Austin.

Table titled 'TEXAS THERMOMETER' showing high and low temperatures for numerous Texas cities.

Jonestown body count hits 775, still climbs

Reynolds, appeared on the first partial list of dead. Rhodes said he escaped about 20 minutes after the death ritual began. Asked how many persons he believed were missing from the camp, he said it was difficult to estimate, but he said the Jonestown population was never a low as 600, as some have suggested, or as high as 1,000.

Egyptian motives baffle officials

Sadat told reporters in Cairo Thursday he would "exchange reassessments" of the negotiations next week with Carter. One National Democratic Party member said Sadat told party leaders there were "clauses (in the draft treaty) which can get us out of this impasse."

Did you hear fog horn?

Midlanders lately could be awakened in the early morning quite appropriately by the ominous sound of a fog horn and the advisory to pack raincoats. Early-morning heavy fog which cuts the visibility to one-quarter of a mile greeted area folks today.

So far this month, Midland has experienced 12 days of measurable rain, "which is well above normal," said the weatherman. "Measurable rainfall" takes in everything from a trace on up. And on seven of those 12 days, .01 inch or more of rainfall was gauged, the weatherman said.

The weather also has featured six days of heavy fog, with visibility one-quarter of a mile or less, and six days of light fog with visibility of more than a quarter mile.

Precipitation so far this month has totaled 2.23 inches, which is almost three-fourths of an inch more than November's normal 1.49-inch rainfall. The 17.05 inches of moisture registered to date this year is more than 3 1/2 inches beyond the year's normal precipitation of 13.51 inches.

The low tonight is expected to be in mid-40s, and Saturday's high should be in the upper 50s.

The record high reading for a Nov. 23 is 84 degrees in 1965. The record low for a Nov. 24 is 10 degrees in 1938.

The lowest reading on record here is a minus eight degrees recorded in January of 1962. Before that, the low was a minus one degree in February of 1950.

Winds tonight are to be southerly at 5 to 10 mph.

Shooting leaves 1 dead, 2 hurt

ODESSA — One man is dead and two are in the intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital after a shooting incident Thursday night in an Odessa lounge.

Abel O. Ramos, 46, was dead at the scene after being wounded in the head and wrist with a .25 caliber automatic pistol, police said. Also wounded were Armando M. Enriquez, 36, who is listed in guarded condition, and Danny R. Minharez, 18, who is listed in guarded to critical condition.

The declining water level of Lake J.B. Thomas in Scurry and Borden Counties was a consideration eight years ago when the Colorado River Municipal Water District initiated a weather modification program.

Water: No easy answer

(Continued from Page 1A) name for major proponents of importation, want to increase from eight to 21 million the number of acres under irrigation in the Texas High Plains, without making any effort — Tapp claimed — to switch to crops requiring less water.

Tapp speculated that imported water might sell for $200 to $300 an acre foot. Even that price is conservative, according to other critics' predictions.

RESEARCHERS SAY $20 to $35 per acre foot is the highest price farmers can pay and still break even financially.

An acre foot is the amount of water needed to flood one acre with one foot of water — 325,850 gallons.

The Department of Water Resources has taken the position time is running out and that importation is a vital part of the state's water management program. Otherwise, according to department officials, the Ogallala's supplies will dwindle drastically, and irrigation on the Texas High Plains will decrease by about 50 percent within the next 20 years.

Some experts hold that unless the region can come up with new water reserves, it could have to shift to dryland farming and thereby considerably reduce the amount of agricultural goods it supplies to the nation and the world.

WATER IRRIGATION in the Texas High Plains, which includes Midland County, yields 18 percent of the nation's cotton and 25 percent of its grain sorghum — a primary cattle feed.

OFFICIALS OF THE Water Resources Department, along with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, have had more success with weather modification.

All the same, the emotionally charged issue of rainmaking already has become the subject of court suits. Considered by water experts to be a still-unproven experimental approach to alleviating a water crisis, rainmaking has been tried with some degree of success for many years.

UNDER HIPLEX, rainfall from seeded and unseeded clouds is studied carefully at stations in Miles City, Mont., Colby-Goodland, Kan. and Big Spring, to determine the effects of weather modification.

The idea of weather modification is to pick a cloud which, through aerial application of silver iodide, could yield raindrops at a time when precipitation is needed for agriculture or replenishing water reserves.

When silver iodide is discharged into the center, below or atop the cloud, the chemical combines with ice crystals and falls toward the ground and melts into rain as the temperature drops.

It's been proven to be environmentally sound and cost effective, and could easily be justified to the General Accounting Office in Washington, D.C., as an important expense.

canals and pressurized conduits to transport water from the White River below DeValls Bluff southwestward across Arkansas.

The mostly down-hill channel route would pick up additional waters from the Arkansas, Quachita and Little Rivers, with termination in Wright Patman Reservoir west of Texarkana in the extreme northeast corner of Texas.

More than 10 years ago, Texas voters narrowly defeated a $3.5 billion bond issue to haul Mississippi River water across Texas into the Panhandle and eastern New Mexico.

HERBERT A. GRUBB, director of planning and development for the Department of Water Resources, said the vote was "mistakenly equated" as a vote against water importation.

The official said the real issue, which didn't have any direct relation to the issue of importation, was whether debt-financing provisions of the Texas Constitution should be amended to provide enough money to allow the Texas Water Development Fund to finance the $3.5 billion project.

"It was looked upon as a vote against the Texas Water Plan, when it really wasn't," he said. Though residents of the states involved in any water importation program would have to give their consent before such a project could begin, several state and federal agencies have expressed a serious interest in importation, and are working with water resource experts of the Texas High Plains on ongoing studies.

During a four-year period prior to the late 1960s bond election, Texas state government had spent approximately $10 million in studies to convince citizens importation was the only way to go to avoid a critical water shortage in West Texas.

O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, claimed that, if used to its full potential, weather modification should be able to increase annual rainfall by up to 1.8 inches — enough to enhance crop production and increase runoff into the district's reservoirs.

"We don't expect it to solve the water shortage problems. But we do believe it will be a good supplemental source of water. Right now, I don't think we are doing everything to help alleviate the forthcoming water crisis that's going to exceed the crisis of energy, particularly in West Texas," Ivie said.

CRMWWD SERVES approximately 300,000 persons in the communities of Odessa, Big Spring, Snyder, Midland, Stanton, San Angelo and Coahoma. Ivie said the district decided to experiment with weather modification in 1971, when water reserves in Lake Spence in Coke County and Lake J.B. Thomas in Scurry and Borden Counties were at an all-time low.

The official said that he believes as much as 1.8 inches of additional rain has fallen on the area each year as a result of the program. However, he admitted he has no documented evidence to back up his claims.

Over the last eight years, rainfall in the target area — the area where the cloudseeding was carried out — has increased from 10.57 inches of rain to 15.3 inches, while the average in an area outside the target region has risen from 11.14 to 13.29 inches, according to Ivie.

"We don't know whether we increased it or not. But we can make the statement which nobody can dispute — that the reservoirs would have been lower if we had not done this," he said.

claimed the project was breaking up some of their rain clouds and, in some instances, actually causing heavy hail storms which badly damaged crops.

Others against the process have charged cloud seeding may have been one cause of summer floods which swept through the Texas Hill Country and the cities of Albany and Pecos, resulting in 25 deaths and millions of dollars in property damage in the three areas.

In all three areas, the cloud seeding apparatus of a Palm Springs, Calif., rainmaking company happened to be in the area shortly before the storms hit.

The state Water Resources Department has licensed several modification programs, some which could wind up in endless legal battles as scientists search for more answers to the question of whether man can actually make rain.

Some say the practice of rainmaking takes away rain from someone else's field or actually suppresses rainfall. That seems to be the contention of several dryland farmers in the southern plains, who won a court case last year.

Grubb of the Department of Water Resources told a different story — one of successes which indicate weather modification may fit into the state's long-range water management program.

HE RECALLED use of cloudseeding was accompanied by rainfall in the San Angelo area during the early 1970s, after drought conditions there threatened agriculture.

"We're working on a number of ideas pertaining to marginal effects of weather modification to see if we can cause a few more inches of rain," Grubb said.

"If we can increase precipitation by a few percentage points, we could increase crop yields to farmers and might even create more recharge to the ground system. It's a possibility that might work."

O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, claimed that, if used to its full potential, weather modification should be able to increase annual rainfall by up to 1.8 inches — enough to enhance crop production and increase runoff into the district's reservoirs.

"We don't expect it to solve the water shortage problems. But we do believe it will be a good supplemental source of water. Right now, I don't think we are doing everything to help alleviate the forthcoming water crisis that's going to exceed the crisis of energy, particularly in West Texas," Ivie said.

Bob Hope

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope says it was Fatty Arbuckle who helped him get his start in show business in a touring vaudeville show called Curly's Jolly Follies.

Hope, in an interview with Jack Linkletter on NBC's "America Alive" show to be telecast Dec. 1, recalled how he started in show business at 14 doing a take-off of Charlie Chaplin.

Hope, 75, says he has no intention of retiring. He said he finds laughter the best therapy for growing old.

He also complimented former first lady Betty Ford on her facelift and said, "When she came home from the hospital she asked Jerry, 'Do you love me?' and he said, 'Yes, but if my wife finds out she'll kill me.'"

LIMA, Peru (AP) — King Juan Carlos of Spain and his wife Queen Sofia spent their first full day of a visit to Peru talking with President Francisco Morales Bermudez and visiting monuments.

Spain's royal couple arrived here Wednesday from Mexico. The talks with the Peruvian president were held privately in the national palace, which was built more than 400 years ago by the Spanish conquistador Francisco Pizarro.

After going to the palace, the king and queen visited monuments to Pizarro and Manco Capac, the first Inca ruler of the vast empire which was destroyed by Pizarro and his soldiers.

Security around the Spanish couple has been tight because of demonstrations by students protesting increased bus fares and a teachers' strike called by a union dissatisfied with the terms of a settlement reached after an 81-day strike two months ago.

On Sunday, the king will visit Arequipa, a colonial city south of Lima, and from there go to Argentina, the final stop on the three-nation visit.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward Koch says two men with submachine guns stopped him on his way to bed in Gracie Mansion last May when Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was in town.

Koch, in a radio interview Thursday, said he arrived at the official mayoral residence about midnight. Begin had gone to bed earlier.

"The prime minister's bedroom was on the same floor as mine," Koch said. "I climbed the stairs, and suddenly there are these two guys with submachine guns."

"I said, 'It's only me!'" The two Israeli security guards recognized him and lowered their weapons, he said.

"In a way it's nice that it happened," Koch said, saying he was pleased with the security surrounding Begin.

MONACO (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco has cut a children's record entitled "The Bird of the North and the Bird of the Sun" which will be released in the next few days in the United States and Europe.

One side of the record is in French and the other in English. Proceeds from sales of the record will go to a children's organization not yet chosen by the princess, a palace spokesman said.

American Airlines chief won't stand for boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines chief Albert V. Casey says he will move even more jobs, personnel and business from New York City if threats of boycotts against the carrier continue because of American's plan to relocate its headquarters in Texas.

"We spend $400 million in New York," Casey claimed in an interview published in today's editions of the Daily News. "There are other jobs we can move out. We have a lot of flexibility."

The executive said he was angry after Warner Communications said it would cancel its annual $1 million worth of travel business with the airline and after unions representing police officers, firefighters and state civil service workers called for a boycott of American.

The planned boycotts are to protest the proposed move of American's headquarters and 900 jobs from New York City to the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Some 10,000 jobs will remain in New York City.

Casey, an original member of the city's Emergency Financial Control Board which helped pulled the city from the brink of fiscal ruin, said he was "shocked" by the Warner boycott. "But I'm still going to show Warner Brothers (a subsidiary of Warner Communications) films on my planes," he said.

Casey said the relocation was based on economic and productivity benefits to the airline. The carrier's headquarters also will be more centrally located here said. The airline already has facilities at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and its most profitable runs are from New York to Los Angeles, Chicago and San Juan.

A Daily News survey indicated the headquarters relocation stemmed from what it called a "Sun Belt power play" and not economic considerations. A coalition of banking and political interests out-muscled New York counterparts after a six-month campaign for the relocation, according to the survey.

The campaign included a promise of Washington power, and pressure from American Airlines executives and extensive letter-writing by Texas businessmen in favor of the move, according to the newspaper.

In the battle, the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Commission lured the airline with a multi-million dollar package. It included $50 million for new headquarters facilities, $3 million for the purchase of 57 acres currently owned by the airline in Texas.

Bank denies making political contributions

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not the same as a political contribution, the Republican Party says, when Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. pays the GOP $2 for each registered Republican in New York state who signs up for one of the bank's Visa credit cards.

"The bank is not making a contribution," Business Week magazine quoted an unidentified GOP official as saying in its Dec. 4 issue. "It's a payment to the RNC (Republican National Committee), just as if we had opened a popcorn stand."

Corporate contributions to political parties are barred by federal law. But the magazine says that rather than being a political donation, the $2 payments will amount to fees for the bank's use of GOP mailing lists.

Bank officials were unavailable for comment on the story in the current issue of Business Week.

The bank campaign, which begins Dec. 1 here, and which could extend nationwide, apparently will benefit both the bank and the GOP.

The magazine says Republicans will be able to charge party contributions to their Visa cards, while the bank stands to gain a new roster of customers. "This will make it easier for a guy to, say, contribute $5 a month and charge it," Republican National Committee spokesman Peter Teeley was quoted as saying.

Survivors and descendants of death camp give thanks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Steinbergs once flourished in a small Jewish village in Poland. That was before Hitler's death camps.

Now more than 200 farflung survivors and descendants are gathered here to share a special four-day celebration that began, appropriately, on Thanksgiving day.

Relatives came Thursday from Canada, France, England, Argentina, Colombia, Israel and at least 13 cities across the United States.

"It's fabulous," said Iris Krasnow of Chicago. "There are five generations here — from 3 months old to 85. People are crying and having a wonderful time. It's almost like a World War II refugee reunion."

Sam Klaparda of Tel Aviv was awestruck by an extensive family tree set up in the lounge of the Marriott Hotel at Los Angeles International Airport. "It's fantastic...how many relatives I have," he said.

The idea for the pilgrimage came from Joe and Gladys Steinberg of Los Angeles. They enlisted the help of several relatives, including an in-law, Elaine Steinberg, in their search for family members.

"The first incentive for tracing relatives came from watching 'Roots,'" said Ms. Steinberg. That television mini-series recreated the history of author Alex Haley's family, which he traced back through slavery in the United States to Africa.

"Then, after 'Holocaust' (another TV mini-series), we really got going," she said. The Los Angeles branch of the family sought information from cousins and through advertisements in Jewish newspapers around the world.

Finding family members was not easy. "Hundreds," Ms. Steinberg said, "were annihilated in Hitler's holocaust."

The Steinbergs' roots were in the village of Skarszeika-Kamienna, Poland, before World War II.

"There's very little left there now," said Joe Steinberg. "For some, this is really extra special because they didn't think they had any family."

Such was the case of Houston architect Arthur Steinberg and his sister, Francis Rosslyn of New York City. Neither thought any relative made it through Hitler's scourge.

The Steinbergs gobbled down 23 turkeys at their Thanksgiving dinner, then started a holiday weekend which was to include city tours, tournaments in ping pong, backgammon and bridge, a Saturday night dinner-dance, and seminars on home movies, health care, consumer affairs, real estate, financial planning and handicrafts.

For Iris Krasnow's mother, Helene, who left Poland for France and then the United States, it was a joyous occasion.

"I'm crying," she said. "I can't believe so many people survived the holocaust. There is so much life here — another generation. It's beautiful."

"If Hitler knew about this, he'd turn over in his grave," she said.

Hold the 'China card'

The Carter administration has shown every indication that it intends to establish full diplomatic relations with mainland China — a move which will probably entail abandonment of Taiwan, this country's faithful ally and trading partner.

This should not be allowed to happen. Far from the shrewd diplomacy supposedly inherent in playing the "China card" against the Soviet Union, full recognition of Peking would seem to offer fewer advantages to the United States than maintenance of the current, de facto, two-China policy.

As its present leadership admits, China essentially is an underdeveloped country. It is barely able to feed its population, and its obsolescent industrial base is grossly inefficient.

China is a regional power. Even assuming technological transfusions from Japan and the West, China is decades away from achieving the economic strength which alone could push it into the rarefied ranks of its superpowers.

Thus, cooperation between Washington and Peking on any prudent scale provides no quick fix for the problems created by the Soviet Union's drive for global military supremacy.

So, if Peking cannot immediately redress the imbalance imposed by Soviet power, the most the China card could yield for Washington over the next few years would be limited leverage with Moscow. While it is probably true that inching closer to Peking strengthens Washington's hand with Moscow, too close an embrace with China could have the reverse effect.

Full diplomatic relations, technological assistance and even direct military aid to China would be an investment that could not bear fruit for the West for many years.

In the meantime, the Soviets could be driven to an even greater military buildup which the United States probably would be unwilling to match. In the critical decade of the 1980s, an already unfavorable balance of power could thus shift further in Moscow's favor.

And if it appeared that the Soviet's hard-won superiority were transitory or fading, might not the Russians be tempted to exploit it while they could?

In addition to removing what little incentive the China-card option provides for Soviet good behavior, Washington's embrace of Peking would leave Taiwan bereft of powerful friends and perhaps ripe for a marriage of convenience with the Soviet Union — a potential development hardly more improbable than cooperation between Capitalists in Washington and Communists in Peking.

The United States very definitely should be warned by history and instinct that we are playing with fire when we court Communist China.

There is no guarantee that, having built up China as a hedge against the Soviet Union, we might not someday find ourselves confronting a reconstituted, and far stronger, Sino-Soviet alliance.

Power politics knows no incongruities. The powers that be in the United States government certainly should know this by now.

There is something to be gained by retaining the mainland China option. For the here and now, it seems that keeping that option open is worth far more than exercising it.

CHARLEY REESE

People today are afraid to think for themselves

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

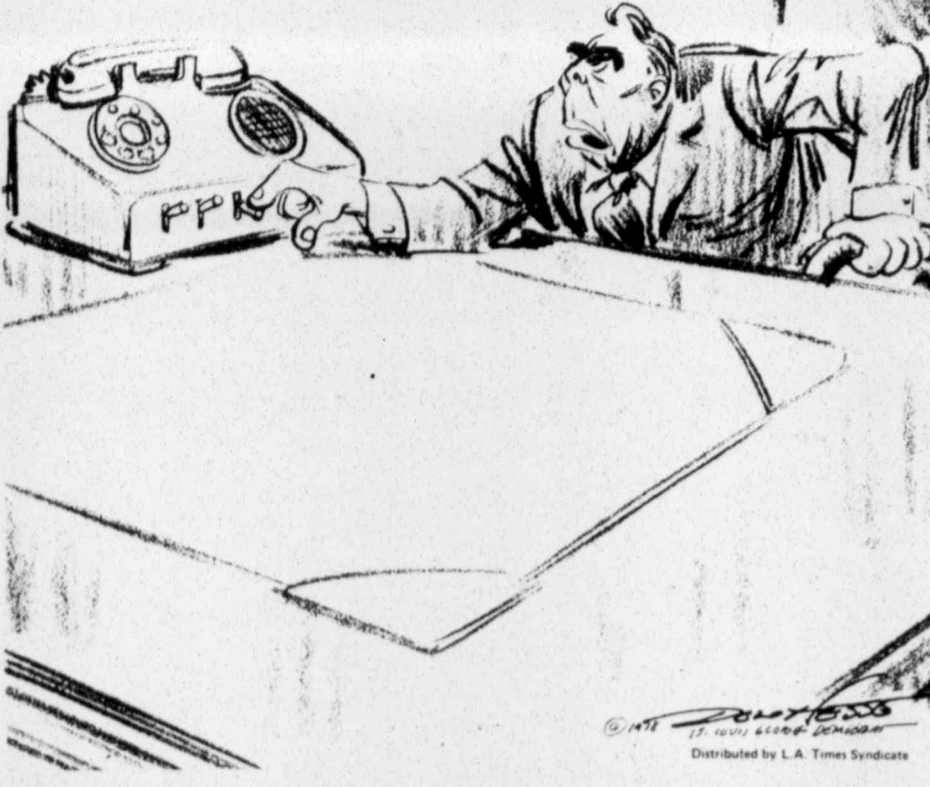

ORLANDO, Fla. — I got a funny letter the other day from a fellow in New York City. The first sentence was a long list of all his degrees with due note of the year of graduation and the school. The second sentence was a long description of his vast experience. The third sentence said I was a dope.

It's rather flattering that he felt he had to establish his authority and provide me with his credentials just to decide I was a dope. Heck, I decided he was a donkey in the blink of an eye without the benefit of a single degree.

I mention this poor guy who is so insecure that he has to justify a simple judgment because intellectual timidity is becoming a large problem. People are afraid to think for themselves. People are afraid to make judgments. People are in awe of experts.

Well, think about this. The world has always been ruled by elites and experts and elites are ordinary human beings with the superficial trappings of formal education, money and power.

Look at Great Britain. Ruled by an elite with the finest of educations, the grand old country has gone down the tube of history. The U.S. State Department is bulging with experts who have credentials up to their armpits.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Long, costly list of boo-boos

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — There's no such thing as a small mistake where Defense Department purchases are concerned. When military procurement officers order too much of an item, or the wrong item entirely, the loss to the taxpayers is mind-boggling.

To make matters worse, the people who do the shopping for the military have a marvelous hiding place in which to squirrel away their boo-boos. It's an accounting category called the "contingency reserve."

Procurement officials stoutly deny that the contingency reserve is used to cover up their blunders. With unintended frankness, one supply officer told our associate Peter Grant, "If we wanted to hide mistakes we could find a lot better places than that."

The official justification for the contingency reserve is that it is a repository for materials not usually kept in the nation's stockpiles for war. The goods are sometimes used in other emergencies, or are sold to other countries.

The facts show otherwise. Until very recently, a trip through the contingency reserve warehouses would have shown $84.3 million worth of white elephants, including the following:

- $2,088,000 worth of Marine Corps raincoats — 232,000 of them — ordered in 1967. The $9 coats wrinkled in shipping, and the Marines refused to accept them even at half price. The contractor would not consent to give back his money. Into the contingency reserve went the wrinkled raincoats.
- $3 million worth of boots.
- $2.7 million worth of Army fatigue pants.
- $600,000 worth of hammocks.
- $120,000 worth of electric circuit boards.
- $42,000 worth of cone and roller bearings.

worth of excess footlockers was dumped into the contingency reserve.

The contractor had already been paid and refused to reimburse the Defense Department. Company officials insisted that they had received permission to use the substitute fabric.

This time, instead of the contingency reserve, an even more ambiguous hiding place for the goof was discovered in the accounting books: "economic retention." It is identical in everything but name to the contingency reserve.

"Hopefully we'll find a use for them," a supply official said of the raincoats. "We'll sell them or dump them and maybe get reimbursed."

Footnote: We are asking our readers to help us deter the mis-spending of tax dollars. Those who have knowledge of specific incidences of government waste can write to Jack Anderson's Watch on Waste, Box 2300, Washington, D.C. 20013.

MISSING THE MARK: Reports in the press would lead the reader to believe that Soviet-American relations are improving. But many of the stories have been planted by President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and they're not quite true.

The Russians have been giving our ambassador to Moscow, Malcolm Toon, a bad time. A career diplomat, he has never had good relations with Kremlin's leaders. Once he had to break through a barrier at an official reception to deliver a message from President Carter to Soviet boss Leonid Brezhnev.

Now the Kremlin has included Toon in its smear campaign against Soviet Jews. The official press has denounced him as "a big Zionist and anti-Soviet Jew."

One minor error: Toon is not Jewish.

yet our foreign policy is one of the longest running comedies on the international stage.

God does not distribute intelligence on the basis of race, religion, family income, nationality, or geography. All of those can be factors in where a person finds himself positioned in society, but not human beings, most especially non-American citizen, should ever bow and scrape to another.

We are obviously not all equal in intelligence, education, income or opportunity, but we are equal in our sovereignty as individual human beings and equal in our right to freedom and to respect and dignity.

God gave each of us a brain. It is our principal means of survival. If you forfeit your right to think for yourself, then you are placing your life in somebody else's hands. The only "credentials" you need for thinking are eyes, ears and a brain.

A formal education is a fine thing. If it is a good one, it is a tremendous aid to thinking. Unfortunately, there are today a great many more people with degrees than with educations. The point to remember is that while lack of formal education may be an impediment to getting a job, it is not an impediment to clear thinking.

Thomas Edison had no formal education but I dare say few if any electrical engineers today could hold a lightbulb to his brain.

The proper approach to the expert is to listen with the same respect and alertness with which you listen to your beautician or to your fellow passenger on the bus. If the expert says something useful and reasonable, fine, but if he says something foolish, don't be disappointed. The Lord created the human brain to be adequate, not infallible.

As for making judgments, don't be shy. If you are wrong, you'll find out and you can correct your thinking. To live tentatively is to miss half the fun of life.

But most of all don't fall into the trap of putting yourself down and kowtowing to the Snobocracy. We are all manufactured by the same God and He makes only one basic model.

One reason I'm so often critical of politicians is that I have seen how many of them are snobs. They are buddy-buddy with the press and return our phone calls, but they walk right past the janitor without so much as a nod.

Well, the janitor has exactly the same right to courtesy and attention as a newspaperman. The politician who won't return a janitor's phone call will earn no Brownie points by returning mine because I know he is an insincere rat motivated by a fear of unfavorable publicity.

Think, judge, and declare should be your motto. And be bold. If you think I'm a dope, just say so, don't send me your pedigree.

INSIDE REPORT:

Japanese scared by fragmentation of power in D.C.

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

TOKYO — A nightmare haunts the upper reaches of the Japanese establishment: that the political influence of this nation's cattle raisers and citrus growers will provoke a protectionist reaction by the U.S. Congress, with ruinous consequences for the U.S.-Japanese alliance and the Western economy.

That nightmare was sufficiently vivid even without explicit warnings last week from American congressmen junketing through the Orient following the U.S. elections. Thanks to dependence of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) on the small but strategically placed farm vote, there is no chance of lifting all quotas on fruit and beef. That political fact of life, though trivial in broad economic terms, could unlock the floodgates of trade protection.

Ironically, relations between the two countries are at their warmest since before the "Nixon shocks" of 1971 (President Nixon's unexpected China initiative and import tax imposition). Today's doubts in Tokyo concern not President Carter's good intentions but his mastery over events.

"President Carter is much more of a free trader than President Nixon," said Nobuhiko Ushiba, who as minister for external economic affairs is the counterpart of U.S. trade negotiator Robert Strauss. "But can Carter do as well as Nixon in controlling the Congress?"

Ushiba and the other Japanese leaders, accustomed to orderly decision-making, are bewildered — and a little frightened — by fragmentation of power in Washington. Apart from Carter's weakness in Congress, they yearn for the good old days when they could concentrate on Wilbur Mills, in assurance that he could guarantee the outcome of trade legislation.

Retired Sen. Mike Mansfield, who has emerged as probably the most widely respected and popular U.S. ambassador to Japan, has tried to explain the new congressional reality to Japanese officials. Symbolically, he has placed photographs of the joint congressional leadership on his office walls. "I did this not because they are my old friends," Mansfield told us, "but to show that it is not enough only to talk to the president and the secretary of state."

When hordes of congressmen turned up here Nov. 14 on their post-election migrations, Mansfield urged them to speak frankly to Japanese Diet members. They did just that. Three House Ways and Means Committee members — Reps. Sam Gibbons of Florida, Jimmy Jones of Oklahoma and William French of Minnesota — bluntly warned that the protectionist tiger will be let out of its cage unless Japan does more to ease U.S. imports. The English-speaking Kiichi Miyazawa, director of economic planning, listened in obvious displeasure.

Gibbons stressed the dire consequences of not removing trade barriers against the oranges of his Florida constituents, which sounds like threatening World War III because of a border incident. Maximum additional citrus and beef imports would not exceed $500 million — hardly a dent in Japan's current $18 billion trade surplus over the U.S. ($6 billion more than last year).

To foreign service professionals in the U.S. embassy, all this smacks of "Jap bashing." However emotionally irrational it may be, the stakes are enormous. There is real fear here by both government and business of a protectionist trade war set off by Congress that would be a tragedy for Japan, which must trade to survive.

Why not try to keep this tiger caged by dropping the last agricultural import quotas? That is a question asked by influential Japanese businessmen, who grumble about Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda's caution. But the mal-apportioned farm vote is so vital to Fukuda's conservative LDP that he must tread carefully. Nor would his defeat by factional rival Masayoshi Ohira in the current LDP leadership election make the slightest difference.

In the absence of dramatic action ending agricultural quotas, the Fukuda government hopes and prays that serious efforts to hold down Japanese exports will soon be reflected in the U.S.-Japanese trade balance. But that may be too late to forestall a runaway protectionist Congress.

In the meantime, anger has begun to simmer here. "Don't push us too hard," warned an angry business executive, normally pro-American, after hearing of the threats by the three visiting congressmen. Such Japanese leaders feel Americans ignore Japan's painful efforts to curb its export mentality at a time when Japanese shipyards are closing and steel mills are laying off workers.

To them, fomenting a world crisis over a few oranges is madness, considering common strategic interests of the two nations in the Western Pacific and amid inexorable growth of Soviet power — the subject of the next column from here.

Hugh White

ALPINE — Hugh S. White, a long-time resident and former mayor of Alpine, died Thursday night in a Texarkana, Texas, hospital. He had been residing with a son, W.D. at Texarkana the last several months. Funeral services are pending, but will be held here, probably on Sunday. White was a native of Midland, where he spent his childhood.

Mrs. Walter B. Smith and Mrs. Mayme Stokes, both of Midland, are his cousins. White moved to Alpine in the early 1950's from East Texas where he had resided for a number of years previously. He served as mayor of Alpine in the 1960s and later was manager of the Alpine Chamber of Commerce. He owned and operated a motel and grocery store here prior to his retirement several years ago. He also was a life-time member of the Alpine Lions Club.

Survivors, in addition to the son in Texarkana and the Midland cousins, include a daughter, Mrs. Betty Spitzer of Galveston, and several grandchildren.

FAA investigators probing crashes

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators planned to begin gathering data in an effort to explain a rash of fatal plane crashes here this week.

The FAA representatives arrived at Daytona Beach Wednesday night and "secured" flight data. Today, they were to search for any common factors in the four small-plane crashes that killed eight persons in the Volusia County area.

The sheriff's department on Thursday identified the eighth victim as Kenneth Parsons, 38, of Charlotte, N.C.

Parsons was killed when the single-engine plane he was piloting crashed about 21 miles south of Daytona Beach Regional Airport en route to Miami on Wednesday night. Two other Charlotte men, Joe Tetreault and Robert Sabates, were treated and released at a local hospital.

A sheriff's spokeswoman said the survivors said Parsons flew the Piper-Cherokee plane from below some low clouds and caught a wing on a tree.

Party line hog under investigation

GOODELLS, Mich. (AP)—An incident in which a 13-year-old girl was refused access to a party line while trying to report her house afire is under investigation by General Telephone Co. officials.

Kathy Teokecki, 13, told police she tried to report a fire at her parents' home on Tuesday. But she said other parties refused to relinquish the line and the house burned down.

Refusing to hang up a party line when another person is trying to report an emergency is a violation of state law.

Christmas parties for the residents of Midland nursing homes, sponsored by the Midland County Chapter of the American Red Cross, have been set for Dec. 11-14.

The Dec. 11 party will be at Terrace Gardens, 2901 W. Ohio Ave., while the Dec. 12 party will be at Midland Care Center, 2000 N. Main St., the Dec. 13 party at Southwest Care Center, 3203 Sage St. and the last one at Westgate, 2800 Midland Drive.

Mrs. Tom R. Scott, chairman of the Red Cross auxiliary, said anyone desiring to have a part in bringing the Christmas cheer to the residents can do so by contributing either money or gifts to the Red Cross. Gifts should be at the chapter house no later than Dec. 8.

More information can be obtained by calling the Red Cross at 684-6161.

...PAT HARRIS, Midland freshman student at Odessa College and member of the school's forensics team, took top honors in debate by placing first and beating Tulane University at a speech tournament held on the campus of Eastern New Mexico State University in Portales.

Harris took a second in informative speaking and third in extemporaneous speaking, persuasive speaking and rhetorical analysis. She also won outstanding speaker of the tourney.

The OC forensics team will complete in the next tournament Dec. 1-2 at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls.

...NAVY AIRMAN LARRY J. MILLS, son of Joe L. Mills and Jean Ekman of 16 Sweet Briar and Route 3, respectively, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center at San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

...MIDLAND-ODESSA SINGLES ASSOCIATION members will be welcomed by the Eagles Club of Odessa tonight for a shrimp boil and dance beginning at 8 p.m. at the club. The dance will start at 9 and end at 1 a.m. Saturday.

On Saturday, surprises are in store for the singles in this West Texas area. Members are urged to bring a gift to the Holiday Inn to enjoy an evening of dancing. Cost to members is $3.50 and guests $5. The first beverage is free and 3904 W. Wall Ave. in Midland is the address. The times are 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sunday. Gary Vaughn will do the pickin' and singing.

MOSA is planning four live band dances in December.

MOSA directors are Dean and Larry Magee, 333-3583, Odessa, and Margaret Coon, 563-2321, the number for the 24-hour answering service of the club.

The planning committee for the group consists of Bill Luse, 362-2472, Odessa, Sharon Ledbetter, 683-8217, and Robin Walraven, 682-5965, both Midland.

...THE WOMEN of the Christian Fellowship of Midland is having an arts and crafts sale from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dec. 2 in the Parks and Recreation Building, located across the street from Dennis the Menace Park. Original arts and crafts items will be available...

...WALTER ZIMMERMAN was elected president of the Midland County 4-H Adult Leaders Association at a recent meeting of the group. Other new officers include Don Collier, vice president; Nina McBride, secretary-treasurer, and Dolly Calhoun, reporter. At the meeting, Collier reported the Veterinary Science Project Group would begin on Tuesday, with other classes scheduled Dec. 5 and Dec. 12. All 4-H'ers interested in participating should register at the county extension office in the courthouse annex at 218 W. Illinois Ave...

...SPEAKING OF 4-H: The Cotton Flat 4-H Club has made tentative plans to organize Dec. 7 a rifle team. All 4-H'ers who have completed the Hunter Safety Course are eligible to participate. They should contact the extension office for further details.

The club also plans to enter a float in the Dec. 9 Christmas parade. Members have been working on decorations for their vehicle.

New members of the club are Jeff and Tim Longabaugh, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Warrick.

The December meeting of the group will be held beginning at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 in Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Flame Room.

Sabbaticals: Rewards for firms, workers

By BETH MOHR
Copley Syndicate

Forget the job for six months or a year. Work on a favorite project, go back to school or do whatever you want — without losing one day's pay.

That eternal wage-earner's dream is becoming a reality. An increasing number of firms are granting workers extended leaves, with various stipulations.

Some employees go back to school to increase job skills, others participate in social service or educational programs helping others and some have the freedom to do whatever they like. A few are given partial pay, but most receive full pay. All have the assurance that their jobs are secure.

An attorney on a sabbatical from a local firm will combine studies at Oxford with travel in Britain. A Los Angeles attorney took a nine-month leave to teach at a law school in Philadelphia and another, from Boston, spent a year in Kabul as adviser to the supreme court of Afghanistan. Their families went along.

The San Diego, Calif., law firm of Luce, Forward, Hamilton and Scripps offers free choice and full compensation in its new sabbatical program.

Bruce Berry, one of the committee which began working out the plan in 1976, explained that lawyers entitled to leaves are encouraged to take at least six months and may extend the period as much as a year.

The "milestone effect" was a benefit listed by a number of firms. Berry spoke of it in reference to lawyers, but it could apply to many workers.

"A lawyer can expect a busy professional life to span 30 to 35 years or more. There are times when the tunnel seems very, very long. It helps to have milestones along the way. The sabbatical can be one of the milestones."

The program was introduced this year. The first lawyers, selected by "starting at the top of the tenure ladder," are now on leave — one in Britain, the other also with plans for projects related to travel. Wives are included in both.

"We thought a lot about whether to have structured sabbaticals, such as those in the academic community where educators are expected to further their careers by some proposed educational or teaching experience approved by the university," Berry said.

"We decided that we would be far better off if the lawyers be allowed to do what they want. Our only rule is that they not practice law."

Preparation is more complex than planning customary vacations.

"Time is needed for mental adjustment," Berry said. "We have to decide what to do with six months or more. Most of us haven't had that much free time since we started kindergarten."

Once the employee gets used to the idea and is ready to leave town, arrangements have to be made for living in the new location.

Simon Lorne, an attorney with Munger, Tolles and Rickerhauser in Los Angeles, spent a nine-month sabbatical last year as acting director for the Center for the Study of Financial Institutions and visiting professor at a law school in Philadelphia.

His wife and their four children, ages 2, 4, 6 and 8, went along.

"We spent a week in Philadelphia before we found a place to live," Lorne said. "Once we were settled, there was no question that the leave was good for all of us."

AARP has holiday meal

The Midland chapter of American Association of Retired Persons met Monday for its annual Thanksgiving program and banquet in the West Fellowship Hall at First Christian Church.

The Rev. E. T. Penick gave the invocation and the "His Group" from the First Baptist Church presented Thanksgiving music. Solo numbers on the bassoon, French flute, piano, guitars, oboe and drums were on the program. The group is under the direction of the Rev. David Campbell, minister of music at the Baptist church.

The Rev. D. A. McGee from Bellevue Baptist Church offered the Thanksgiving address.

The banquet hall was decorated in orange and red pyracantha, Della Robbia ropes, leaves, geese and China turkeys, cornucopias, ivy, mums and leaves of harvest tones adorned each table. The head table featured an old-fashioned Thanksgiving harvest scene.

Mrs. Margaret Pittard and Alma B. Tiner were in charge of decorations and Mary Key and Alta Williams arranged the program.

Ernest Steward was public relations host for the evening.

Thirty-four guests and 78 members attended.

The Christmas program and meeting will be held beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 4 in the West Fellowship Hall. There also will be a Christmas program Dec. 16 at 6:30 p.m. at the church located at 1310 W. Louisiana Ave.

Richard C. Csaplár Jr., of Csaplár and Bok in Boston, took his family along for his year as adviser to the supreme court of Afghanistan. His wife and three sons decided that they, too, would fulfill some meaningful form of work or study.

His wife served as a speech therapist, and his two oldest sons taught English to Afghan adults. The youngest son attended high school at the American International School in Kabul.

The Xerox Social Service program, open to all employees, offers fully paid leaves for as long as a year. The employee must work on a social service project for a non-profit, non-political and non-sectarian agency of his or her choice.

Joyce Albright-Larralde, on leave from her job as product specialist for Xerox Computer Services in Marina Del Rey, Calif., to work at a rape treatment center, called the opportunity a luxury.

"Rape has become the most serious and life-threatening crime against women today, and it is becoming more and more prevalent throughout the country," she said. "I want to do all I can to help those trying to meet the problem."

Sandra Scherer, a quality engineer at Xerox in El Segundo, Calif., is a Loyola Law School graduate who recently took her bar examination. She is spending her sabbatical year at the Loyola Law Clinic helping elderly and poor with welfare, social security, unemployment insurance and immigration problems.

Dallas test tube hearing set

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The ethics advisory board of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will hold a public hearing in Dallas Dec. 12 on whether the department should support research on test tube babies.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano Jr. has called for a "national debate" on the laboratory fertilization of human eggs, and the Dallas hearing will be one of several throughout the nation.

The hearing will be in the Cabell Federal Building from noon to 9 p.m.

The Dallas hearing will be for the region that includes Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Regional official Eddie Bernice Johnson said, "Research on 'in vitro' fertilization and on embryo transplantation holds enormous promise. At the same time, it raises questions that reach to our most profound moral and ethical beliefs."

Anyone wishing to speak at the meeting has been asked to notify the ethics advisory board in Bethesda, Md., by Dec. 2.

James Gaither, a San Francisco lawyer, is chairman of the 14-member board.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For years I have suffered from an inferiority complex because of my height. It has ruined my whole life. I am a woman, 5 feet 9. I love to dance, but I'm taller than the average man and I feel like a fool when a man looks up at me.

I am uncomfortable unless I wear flats. I won't even walk to the coffee machine at work because I feel so conspicuous. I became so desperate I even asked my doctor if he knew of some kind of operation to shorten the bones in my legs, but he said no one has ever attempted such an operation. I told him I would be more than willing to be the first.

Abby, you can't imagine what a miserable feeling it is to walk into a room and pray to God that there is someone there taller than you are. Would you believe that I have considered taking my life? I'm sure there are other girls who feel the same way.

Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. Don't tell me to see a psychiatrist because that is where my problem has already landed me.—TALL IN CANADA

DEAR TALL: Since you've already wisely consulted a psychiatrist, you must surely know that it's your ATTITUDE—not your ALTITUDE—that needs changing.

You are much too self-centered in assuming all eyes are constantly focused on you. Not true.

Instead of those negative feelings you have about your height, stand tall, throw your shoulders back, chin up, and come on proud, confident and alive! If you have two good arms, legs, eyes, a voice and a mind, thank God in your prayers.

Get rid of those flats (they make you shuffle); wear heels. It will improve your figure. Practice walking with grace and dignity. You get no sympathy from here, dear. Now get going, and remember those prayers of gratitude.

Frieda Calhoun marries Crawford

Frieda Marie Calhoun and David Brian Crawford of Odessa exchanged vows at 4 p.m. Sunday in the ballroom of the Best Western Inn of Midland.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Calhoun, 4727 Leisure Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Faye Crawford of Roswell, N.M.

Officiating the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Carl Forest.

The bride was attended by Gena Kay Hall of Midland. Mr. Crawford was best man for his son. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Freddie L. Calhoun and Patrick W. Calhoun.

Music was provided by Hank Pitts, pianist. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie.

The empire waistline was outlined in lace encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of baby's breath, roses, iris, azalea and nasturtiums spelling out the bridegroom's name.

A reception was held in the ballroom after the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside in Odessa.

Petrees mark special day

Golden anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Petree of Stanton will be celebrated with a reception Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Texas Electric Reddi-Room in Stanton.

The reception will be hosted by the couple's children and grandchildren.

Petree and his wife, the former Erlene Lockley, were married Nov. 29, 1928, in Abilene. The couple moved to Stanton in 1929 and resided there until 1960 when they moved to Midland in 1960. They made their home in Stanton again in 1975.

Petree is a past master of the Mason's Stanton Lodge and is also a member of York Rite and Scottish Rite. He and Mrs. Petree are both members of the Eastern Star. She is a past matron.

The couple has four children, including Bobby Petree of Stanton, Joyce Allen of Lubbock, Wayne Petree of Lovington, N.M., and Maurice Petree of Midland. They have eight grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Petree

Woman's Club provided program

Paula Cahoon, accompanied by Shirley Hansen, provided the entertainment at the Woman's Club's Thanksgiving luncheon and program. The program, "A Potpourri of Famous Women of Broadway from Anne to Annie," was presented at the Hogan Park Clubhouse.

The program was a resume of Broadway musicals.

The house party receiving guests and pouring included Kathy Peters, president; Ruth Cochrane, vice president; Wilma Key, second vice president; Mrs. Jack Samples, third vice president; Mrs. Stanley Erskine, recording secretary; Mrs. Taylor E. Bowers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. W. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Eugene Clements, assistant treasurer; Mrs. R. T. German, hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Cecil Chapman, decorations chairman.

Prior to the musical portion of the program, Evelyn Heard gave a Thanksgiving inspirational reading.

Mrs. Samples reported on the ways and means project that will aid the paving around the clubhouse.

A tribute to Col and Mrs. Walter B. Smith was given by Mrs. Cochrane for the couple's many years of work and contributions of furniture and furnishings to the Gold Room, all projects and a recent gift of a new studio piano to the auditorium. Mrs. Smith was presented a corsage and Smith a boutonniere.

New members introduced were Mrs. Lorene Martin, Mrs. George Atters, Mrs. Don Johnson, Mrs. Ted Bicknell, Mrs. R. A. Estes, Mrs. T. W. Guthrie and Dorothy Perkins.

Mrs. Paly Thorp introduced Carolyn Walker as the artist-of-the-month and showed a display of her paintings.

The next meetings at the Woman's Club will be Play Day Tuesday, A Book Review Unit Christmas program by Mrs. Charles Lutrick Dec. 4 and a Dec. 14 Christmas luncheon and program by Midland College choir, "The College Singers."

The Woman's Club directors are Evelyn Melear, Ewal Donovan, Velma Flannery and Jane Hynd.

Memorial contributions to the parking lot fund "are really appreciated," said Mrs. Peters.

The Woman's Club is the largest woman's organization in Midland and has always been a prestigious group with outstanding programs and activities. It is debt free, with building paid for. Extensive paving in the back and sides of the club are now being completed. The clubhouse also has lovely furnishings and landscaped grounds.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

The Midland Woman's Club Play Day Unit will meet from 9:45 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Hogan Park Clubhouse.

Reservations should be made. There will be no December meeting, but the next Play Day will be Jan. 30.

Test your Christmas tree for fire safety

By AL CARRELL

After your Christmas tree is cut, shipped and then sits on a lot for a while, it can start to dry out. If it gets too dry, it becomes a fire hazard. In picking out a tree, there are some things to check to help get the freshest on the lot. The first test is the thump test. Pick the tree up by the trunk and rap the bottom of the trunk sharply against the ground. If a whole bunch of needles fall off in a your tree fresh and take away the risk of a fire that could spoil even the whitest Christmas.

Dear Super:

A nurseryman told me about a formula that can be sprayed on a cut Christmas tree to make it fire retardant. It involves a cup of ammonium sulphate added to a gallon of water. Then add a half-cup of boric acid, 2 tablespoons of borax powder and 2 tablespoons of detergent. This is sprayed on the tree a couple of times before putting it up. I found the ideal place to spray and to leave the tree until we're ready to put it up, and that's the guest bath tub. —W.A.W.

And you have a fireproof tub now too. There is also a formula that requires 9 parts water glass measure up from the bottom of the depth of the water container. Then take a hammer and beat the trunk to crush the fibers. The crushed part will be in the water, and the holder will still clamp onto solid trunk. The crushed end will absorb much more water. —B.B.

A SUPER HINT — In addition to maintaining moisture in the holder, there is a potion you can start off with that helps keep the tree green and fresh longer. Mix this when you first set up the tree. From the nursery, get iron powder. Use 1/2 cup of the iron, 2 cups of light corn syrup, 4 teaspoons of laundry bleach and a gallon of hot water. When mixed, fill the holder container with (sodium silicate) to part water to which detergent is added as a wetting agent. The water glass can be ordered through your druggist. This is also sprayed on the tree.

Dear Al:

There is a great way to make the Christmas tree take on more water from the holder. Before putting it in place, measure this. The cut trunk and hole with a wick can help here too. Save whatever is left over and add it each day as needed. When the potion runs out, add hot water daily. This will keep the tree green and prevent it from drying out.

Dear Al:

I've always been a little afraid of a Christmas tree as a fire hazard, but hate the way artificial trees look. To be safe, I have bought some small battery-powered fire alarms that I hang from the limbs of the tree. I've sprayed these alarms green and dipped them in glitter while still wet, and they just look like a sort of unimaginative ornament. —S.R.

SHOP TALK — If fake trees aren't your bag, why not go for a living tree that you can transplant outside after the holidays? It will make your money do double duty.

Science warns California beaches dying

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's famed beaches are dying. Geologists and engineers warn that much of the glistening coastline, ravaged by nature and starved by man, is disappearing into the sea.

Once rivers fed the beaches, collecting sand from the inland mountains to replace that stolen from the coast by waves and surf. The balance of nature at its amazing best.

But along came civilized man and one-by-one the flood-prone rivers that flow west out of the Coast Range were tamed by giant dams and concrete channels. Sand no longer tumbles freely to the sea.

Instead of feeding the beaches, said Brent D. Taylor of the California Institute of Technology, "it's going into our flood-control reservoirs and in our water supply reservoirs. The reservoirs are gradually filling up with sediments" needed by the beaches for survival.

To rescue the beaches, he said, convoys of dump trucks or giant pipelines may have to do the rivers' work, shuttling sand from clogged reservoirs to the hungry coast — man bridging a gap in nature's cycle that he once spent millions to carve out.

Taylor is heading a 3-year-old study by Caltech's Environmental Quality Laboratory and the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. The study, which involves nine major rivers between Point Conception and the Mexican border, is to assess damage and seek solutions.

He said the rivers are carrying barely half as much sand and sediment as they gave the beaches 50 years ago. "It looks like about a million cubic yards (of sand) a year is being delivered to the (southern) shoreline by the major rivers and ... streams," Taylor said. "Under natural conditions, you'd be delivering maybe two million cubic yards."

He blames most of the loss on dams built throughout the region.

Yet others believe nature is mostly to blame. "Up until last winter, we've had a drought cycle of at least 10 years. The rivers haven't had enough water in them to deliver the sand, whether or not they had dams on them," said Perry Davis, executive assistant to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' district engineer.

"The question is very complex. That's why we're paying for part of this Caltech study."

A classic example of man's impact on the shoreline is the cobblestone beach at Ocean side. Once, Taylor said, the stones were covered by a layer of sand. But, he said, the San Luis Rey River was dammed in 1927 and the San Marguerita in 1947. "Our studies indicate that the reduction (in sand and sediment carried to Ocean side) has been 30 to 50 percent on those two rivers."

And then there's the nearby military harbor, built during World War II, that "interferes with the natural transportation of sand down the coast."

Wave action carries sand continually southward, taking from one beach to give to another. Some also disappears along the way, sliding into undersea canyons near the coast.

"These things have starved the beach," Taylor said. The harbor blocks the sand drifting down from northern beaches and dams take what the river once supplied.

"So now you've got a cobblestone beach — all you have left are the larger particles that the waves can't move."

But the ocean has been winning the battle against the shoreline in parts of San Diego County since long before the dams were built: At some places, officials say, erosion has eaten more than 800 feet into the coast during the past century.

"In California," Davis said, "the ocean is chewing away at the coast all the time. At least 75 percent of the California coastline is subject to this continual erosion."

He said manmade structures — dams, channels, harbors and jetties — have an impact in some areas, "but we would have an erosion problem whether there were any people here or not."

Drugs at birth said longlasting

By GINA KOLATA
Special to The Washington Post

Despite the movement toward natural childbirth and home births, the use of drugs during labor and delivery is increasing. In 1965, 85 percent of all pregnant women received anesthesia during childbirth; now, 95 percent receive these drugs.

Although most medical experts agree there is a place for pain-killing drugs during childbirth, it is becoming increasingly clear these drugs may not be as innocuous as their widespread use indicates. The drugs are reported to exert long-lasting effects on the behavior of children exposed to them at birth. Moreover, the effects of these drugs seem to be dose-related: the more drugs or the greater the total dose of drugs a woman is given, the greater the effects on the behavior of her child.

These drugs vary markedly in their strength. The weakest are the barbiturates, tranquilizers and analgesics, generally given to women in the early stages of labor to relax them and deaden their labor pains. The strongest are the anesthetics, used to eliminate the pains of childbirth. Anesthetics are of two types, regional and general. Regional anesthetics deaden all sensations from the waist down; general anesthetics render women unconscious and are considered stronger than regional anesthetics.

Obstetricians have long been aware that babies born to anesthetized women tend to be sluggish at birth. But the conventional wisdom says these effects of the drugs are transient — the babies are thought to recover completely and quickly and to be indistinguishable from babies of women who received no drugs.

There have been hints, however, from several studies that anesthetics, as well as the other drugs given during childbirth, may have long-lasting effects on babies. These studies were generally disregarded by obstetricians because they were published in journals of behavior, which are not read by most obstetricians, and because they were small in scale.

Recently, however, the results from these small-scale studies have been confirmed and extended by a study that cannot easily be dismissed.

The study was conducted in the 1950s, but only now has its data been analyzed. Known as the Collaborative Perinatal Project, it was government-sponsored and involved more than 50,000 children who were followed from before birth to 7 years of age. It was specifically designed so that, among other things, the effects of drugs given during labor and delivery could be ascertained. Children born to women who received drugs during labor and delivery were compared to children of women who did not receive these drugs.

The data from the project are being examined by Yvonne Brackbill of the University of Florida and Sarah Broman of the National Institutes of Health, psychologists specializing in infant and child development.

Brackbill emphasizes that she and Broman studied data on the 3,500 women in the project who were the healthiest and who had the most uncomplicated pregnancies, labors and deliveries. In this way, they tried to rule out the possibility that the women in their sample who had medicated labors and deliveries also had more complicated pregnancies and births. Had that been so, any less-healthy babies might have been a consequence of the complications rather than the drugs.

In this select group, Brackbill and Broman found that obstetrical medications affected the children's behavior at least through 7 years of age. According to Brackbill, these results generally agree with results of 35 previous smaller-scale studies.

During the first year of life, babies whose mothers were given these drugs tended to lag or be impaired in their development of the ability to sit, stand or move about.

They were deficient in their ability to stop responding, such as the ability to stop crying when comforted. But the babies were unaffected in their development of the type of coordination needed to grasp a rattle or bring a spoon to their mouths. They also were unaffected in their ability to start responding, such as the ability to be startled by a loud noise.

As the children exposed to obstetrical medications grew older, they were slow to develop certain mental skills, such as the ability to talk and to read. In testimony for the Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research, Brackbill reported that, "At all ages, the effects are more clearly visible when the tasks are difficult, that is, when they require the child to exert itself, to make an effort to cope with problems."

In hindsight, it is perhaps not surprising that obstetrical medications may have effects on children's behavior.

These drugs act on cells of the brain and central nervous system, and when babies are born, important areas of their brains are not fully developed and so are particularly vulnerable to damage. Drugs given during labor and delivery cross the placenta rapidly and easily reach the fetus' brain because the so-called "barrier" that screens the brain from many substances in the blood is not fully developed in newborn infants. Once the drugs enter the baby's bloodstream, they are only slowly cleared from the baby's body because the newborn's liver and kidneys, which normally break down drugs and excrete them, are not fully functioning at birth.

Drugs have been given during childbirth for more than 100 years, and the current crop of drugs has been used for three decades. Why, then, haven't the adverse effects of obstetrical drugs on babies been discovered long ago?

One reason seems to be there is no requirement that drugs used on babies be tested on immature animals. All of the drugs used during labor and delivery have been cleared for clinical use by the Food and Drug Administration. But the FDA tested these drugs only on mature animals and on adults, who, however, are physically different from newborns and often respond quite differently to drugs.

Another hindrance to discovering the effects of drugs on children's behavior is that such effects can be extremely hard to trace.

Richard E. Butcher of the Children's Hospital Research Foundation in Cincinnati explained this problem in his testimony before the Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research: "Many of you are aware of the difficulty with which thalidomide was identified as a teratogen (agent that produces birth defects) under circumstances in which the abnormality produced was gross, unique and obvious at birth. Consider, in light of that history, how small would be the probability of detecting the cause-and-effect relationships between an agent administered during pregnancy and an impairment in attention or learning ability. Such an impairment would not be an uncommon event."

BRIDGE

Habit or brains? Both are important

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

For the ordinary bridge hand an ounce of habit is worth a pound of brains. All you need is an alarm that will ring automatically when the extraordinary hand comes your way.

East played the ten of spades at the first trick, following the habit of bridge players. South won and lost a finesse to the king of diamonds.

The heart return went to the ace, and back came another spade. East took two spades, for a total of four defensive tricks; but then declarer easily won the rest.

ALARM BELL

Dummy's long diamonds should have set off an alarm in East's mind. Unless East could find five defensive tricks in a big hurry, declarer would bring in the diamonds for at least nine tricks.

East should take the ace of spades at the first trick in order to return the jack of hearts without the slightest delay. East cannot be sure that this will defeat the contract, but it's unlikely that any other play will.

West would capture an honor with the ace of hearts and would return a heart. East would get in with the king of diamonds in time to defeat the contract with the rest of the hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S K 5 3 2 H 5 D A Q J 10 6 3 C A J. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three diamonds. Partner can probably make a slam with a minimum opening bid if he has a decent spade suit. If partner opened with one heart, you would bid only two diamonds.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Clergymen do live longer

By Neil Solomon, M.D.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Could you help settle a little argument we had with some friends the other night—namely, is there anything to the old theory that clergymen tend to live longer than other people? Or is this just because their calling makes them appear more venerable than most of us poor sinners?—Gerald H.

Dear Gerald: Apparently clergymen actually do live longer than the average. At any rate that is the report of Dr. Haitung King of the National Cancer Institute and Georgetown University.

Dr. King surveyed nearly 25,000 ministers of four Protestant denominations—the United Lutheran Church in America (now the Lutheran Church in America), the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the United Presbyterian Church (in the U.S. and the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The mortality rate, he found, was about 30 percent lower than for all white males of comparable age in the United States. Expressing the overall rate as 100, the figures came out 73 and 71 for Lutherans, 72 for Presbyterians, and 72 for the Episcopalians.

In each group, there were extremely low rates of death from lung cancer, stomach cancer, suicide and accidents, and moderately low ones

Police capture lone hijacker

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A North Central Airlines DC-9 jet with about a dozen passengers aboard was commandeered for about 20 minutes as it sat on the runway by a man wielding a knife and claiming he had a bomb in a paper bag, police said.

No one was injured in the Thursday evening incident. Police Sgt. Ray Warner said the man, in his 20s, was convinced by authorities to allow the passengers and crew to leave the aircraft. The man then locked himself in the cockpit.

Warner said police forced open the door, apprehended the man and found that he had no bomb.

for heart disease and stroke.

Other studies show that clergymen do a good deal better than lawyers (93) and doctors (91). Dr. King notes that studies going back to the early 18th century generally show that clergies have low mortality rates. As the Medical Tribune recalls: "He liveth long who liveth well."

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine is taking cocaine but I need to know more about it before I try to get him to stop. Please help.—D.R.

Dear D.R.: The principal active ingredient of the South American coca plant, cocaine is the strongest stimulant of natural origin. In the Andean highlands, where it has been cultivated since prehistoric times, the leaves of the plant are chewed for refreshment and relief from fatigue, much as North Americans once chewed tobacco.

While most of the crop serves the needs of a domestic subsistence economy, some cocaine is legally exported to the United States. In this country the decocainized leaves yield flavoring extracts for cola beverages, and the pure cocaine extract supplies a dwindling world market for medical purposes. Cocaine as a local anesthetic has been largely supplanted by synthetic substitutes, its medical applications now mainly restricted to ear, nose, and throat surgery.

While the demand for licit cocaine has been going down, the supply of illicit cocaine in recent years has been rapidly rising. Virtually all the cocaine available in this country today is of illicit origin. It is sold on the street in the form of a white crystalline powder containing usually from 5 to 10 percent pure cocaine "cut" with other white powders such as procaine, lidocaine and lactose. It is administered by sniffing or "snorting" and for heightened effect by intravenous injection, producing intense euphoria with increased heartbeat, blood pressure and body temperature. Due to the intensity of its pleasurable effects, a strong psychic dependency can develop.

I hope you are now armed with enough facts to get your friend to stop taking cocaine.

Filmmaker still zestful

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After three weeks of touring and 250 interviews, Joe Levine remained as zestful as a film school graduate with his first feature.

He is 73, and he limps because of torn cartilage in one leg. But don't let the walking stick fool you. He has trimmed down 75 pounds to 180, largely by giving up booze ("I was a night-time alcoholic, and that made me overeat."). His enthusiasm for filmmaking and film selling is boundless.

Last time around, Joseph E. Levine was hustling "A Bridge Too Far," into which he had poured $26 million. He admitted that he was disappointed with the reception in the United States, but thanks to a whopping TV sale and record business in Japan, England, Australia, Holland and elsewhere, more millions poured into Joseph E. Levine Presents, Inc.

His offering this month is "Magic," which cost a relatively modest "under $6 million."

"That's still a lot of money for a picture that has only four and a half people in it," Levine remarked.

The principal players are Anthony Hopkins as a bearded magician, Ann-Margret as an ambitious beauty, Burgess Meredith as a cunning manager, Ed Lauter as the women's jealous husband. The half-member is the ventriloquist's dummy, Fats, a kind of evil Charlie McCarthy.

Producer Levine explained that he chose the smaller subject this time because he has "a yen for Bill Goldman." Other producers have the same yen, because of Goldman's scripts for "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," "Harper," "All the President's Men," "Marathon Man," and so on.

Levine beat competitors with a $1 million bid for the "Magic" screen play — "I can move fast because I don't have to consult a committee."

His first choice for the magician-ventriloquist: Jack Nicholson.

"Jack had made 'Carnal Knowledge' for me, and we are good friends," said Levine. "He told me that he was going to direct a Western and then make a $14 million picture with Stanley Kubrick. I realized I would have to wait two years, so I gave up on Nicholson."

Levine reasoned that "only two or three guys could play" the lead in "Magic." One of them was Anthony Hopkins, who had created the role of the psychiatrist in the play "Equus." He had also worked for Levine in "A Lion in Winter" and "A Bridge Too Far."

Although Hopkins is one of the most acclaimed of actors, his name meant little at the box office. The five major companies that had been wooing Levine for the release of "Magic" "dropped me like a hot potato."

The producer went ahead on his own. When "Magic" was nearly complete, the five companies began showing interest again. He showed a rough assembly to 21 officials of 20th Century-Fox. "I could feel that they liked it," said Levine. "And after 43 years in the business, I can tell whether they're being honest or if they're full of it."

Lacking a superstar name, Levine wasn't able to make individual deals in different countries, as he had with "A Bridge Too Far." He made a deal with Fox for world rights.

Joe Levine shows no evidence of cutting his pace.

Emmys belong to Sunday's overdramatic fullbacks

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Isn't it high time the people who select the Emmy awards woke up to the fact that some of the finest acting on TV these days takes place during the Sunday afternoon and Monday evening pro football games?

For sheer emotional impact, few performances can match the Lear-like rage of a 280-pound linebacker accused by a kerchief-tossing official of having mugged the kicker, or the

was a theatrical landmark in portraying the pathos of indecision. His "to be or not to be" was everyman coping with the moral dilemma of choice while suffering the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

But that was before tragedian John McVay emoted before an audience of millions his weekly weepy classic of trying to decide whether to go with Joe Pisarcik or Jerry Golsteyn at quarterback. In McVay's tragedy, the fans and sports writers provide the slings and arrows.

McVay's "Hamlet," almost schizoid in its indecisiveness and constant plot turn-arounds, could also qualify for best story line in the soap opera category, although the Washington Redskins offer some late season competition in the Emmy sweepstakes with a spinoff plot that calls on soap addicts to choose between the aging Billy Kilmer and the slumping superstar Joe Theismann in the quarterback slot. Will it be Joe or Jerry? Billy or Joe? Tune in next week when raw, naked emotions again run amok in the lockerroom.

Since the Forsythe Saga and the Pallisers at long last reached their final tear-stained episodes, no continuing drama series around the dial can match the dramaturgical effects on display week after week when the tubskin pros are dominating the tube.

If you thought Jolyon Forsythe could suffer, you should have caught Colt quarterback Bert Jones playing the death scene with a separated shoulder while throwing bullets into the end zone past the hypnotized Washington defense.

Love scenes, with parental guidance recommended, are torridly enacted in the end zones by consenting adults in an orgy of fondling, embracing and bussing everytime a touchdown is scored. In the case of a pass, these are usually preceded by the flamboyant, quintessentially macho gesture of downing the ball, slamming into the turf with a cool look of soulful arrogance or, if the receiver is as surprised as the fans, a toothless grin of unalloyed joy.

Bear hugs, rump patting and other tender emotions are also on display whenever a quarterback is decked, a fumble recovered or a punt blocked, and such scenes are in the repertoire of all the players, even the rookies, who are early tutored in the acting skills of humanizing their brutish trade.

Emmy selectors, however, should be on the lookout for a truly gifted gridiron GielGud like the inimitable and still irreplaceable Broadway Joe Namath or the unforgettable Gene Big Daddy Lipscomb or, among current performers, Ed Too-Tall Jones, all versatile entertainers who can fake an injury, feign innocence at a clipping penalty, weep for a squashed opponent while magnanimously assisting him from the turf, laugh at a fumble or other adversity, rage at an official, intimidate a linesman or a journalist, sneer at an ungrateful crowd, project humility amid adulation, valor amidst violence, grace among grossness and perform any histrionic feat within the gamut of a professional wrestler without surrendering credibility.

Head coaches reflecting the weekly glories and goofs unfolding before them in their tortured, sensitive faces should be top contenders for best supporting actor, while their $600 camel haired topcoats and feathered fedoras and rain hats should rate a nomination in the best costume drama category.

Other possible nominations: An Emmy for best musical performance to Phyllis Kelly, that Louisiana coloratura who sang the "Star-Spangled Banner" in key with all the words correct at the start of the 1978 Superbowl in New Orleans.

An Emmy for incidental dialogue to Dandy Don Meredith for inventing all those imaginary conversations with players down on the field during the Monday night football telecast and for filling a much needed void in those rare moments when Howard Cosell is off mike. If there is an Emmy category for whatever entertainment values are on display in "Charlie's Angels," "Las Vegas" and similar epidermal extravaganzas pro football's controversial halftime variety shows are worthy of consideration.

Come to think of it, the whole brouhaha over whether these generously endowed darlings of the daring decolletage did violence to football's motherhood and apple pie image by revealing all their game secrets to the nudie magazines should rate an Emmy nomination in the category of situation comedy. Or low farce with a high morale tone provided by the commissioner's office, if the judges are looking for a meaningful mini-series.

Mulligan's Stew

look of utter despair, anguish and torment that transfixes the features of a wide receiver who has just dropped a pass in the end zone.

John Gielgud's "Hamlet," they say,

Carter staying at Camp David

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — After a one-day holiday break, President Carter planned to get back to work today on the new budget he will submit to Congress next year.

The president, however, will remain at Camp David until Sunday when he returns to the White House.

He and Mrs. Carter hosted a traditional Thanksgiving dinner Thursday evening for about 30 relatives.

A cold rain on Thanksgiving day hampered plans for the president and his guests to get in some swimming in the mountain retreat's heated outdoor pool.

Carter losing speechwriters

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter, who has relied relatively little on prepared speech texts for his public remarks, is about to lose two speechwriters in addition to his chief speechwriter, Jim Fallows.

Caryl Conner, who joined the White House staff last spring, says that she plans to resign about Jan. 1 to do freelance work and public television commentaries.

Meanwhile, Jerome Doolittle, a Carter speechwriter since the beginning of the administration, said he plans to leave the White House soon to work for another government agency.

Fallows, who announced his resignation several weeks ago, will leave the White House at the end of this week to become Washington correspondent for the Atlantic magazine.

Although White House officials insisted that neither Conner nor Doolittle was being forced out, the exodus follows by a few months the placing of the speechwriting office under the direction of the president's assistant for communications, Gerald Rafshoon.

Officials said it had not been decided whether Fallows will be replaced with another "chief speechwriter," but it is widely assumed that Rafshoon's deputy, Greg Schneiders, will take over day-to-day control of the speechwriting apparatus.

Commerce Department releases energy requirement figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a breakdown of the amount of energy each state is expected to need in the year 2000 as compared to the amount of energy consumed in 1976, according to Commerce Department figures.

Amounts for each state are listed in trillions of British thermal units. One Btu is the amount of heat required to increase the temperature of a pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

In the following table, each category of energy contains two figures. The first is the 1976 energy consumption level in trillions of Btu. The second figure, also in trillions of Btu, is the projected need for the year 2000.

"Other" includes nuclear, solar, trash converted to energy, windmills, etc.

tion. It said oil consumption will continue to increase through 1985, but then decrease sharply through the rest of the century, and that natural gas consumption will decline steadily except in Texas.

"Coal consumption, on the other hand, is expected to increase steadily through 1985 and rise sharply thereafter through the rest of the century," it said.

While stopping short of concluding which energy approaches are best, the report asked: "If we do not build the nuclear plants ... or mine these large amounts of coal, will we face massive electric power shortages during the 1990s?"

In compiling the report, the Commerce Department said it assumed fuel consumption will grow at a slower rate than in the past, that the U.S. population will increase 22 percent by the turn of the century and that the population will continue shifting toward the South and West.

Windmills figure in energy future

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will be relying on windmills, solar energy collectors and other new and rediscovered technology to help meet its energy needs by the year 2000, says the Commerce Department.

But a report issued Wednesday indicated that the bulk of the nation's energy for the rest of this century — and even beyond 2000 — will come from increased reliance on nuclear-powered and coal-fired electric generating plants and more direct use of coal as a fuel.

"Emerging energy demand is expected to necessitate the construction of a large number of new coal-fired electric generating plants," the report said. "Similarly, a substantial number of nuclear facilities are likely to be needed to keep pace with demand."

The report predicted coal output will have to double in the Appalachian states and that increased demands also will be placed on various Eastern states to expand their coal produc-

Four-day workweek in energy crisis plans

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal planners, studying ways to cope with any future energy crises, are considering such options as diverting power from Navy ships, reducing use of elevators and encouraging four-day workweeks.

In the preparation of an "energy emergency planning guide," the government included these possibilities heavier loads includes three possible drawbacks: trucks will wear out faster, accidents may be more severe and roads will deteriorate faster.

"The energy planning guide is still being worked on so it's not in final form," said Bill Webb, a spokesman for the Economic Regulatory Administration, which is preparing the document. Thus, he said, some proposals contained in the draft may be changed or eliminated by time the final version is completed.

Other steps proposed include increasing fuel imports, temporarily diverting to civilian uses the vast amounts of electricity used by the government for producing nuclear reactor fuels, waiving environmental rules that prohibit power plants from burning pollution-loaded high-sulfur coal, limiting hours that stores and other businesses could operate and guaranteeing temporary government jobs to people thrown out of work because of an energy shortage.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

among a host of strategies for dealing with sudden energy disruptions, ranging from power blackouts to another coal strike.

Last summer, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger ordered the guide prepared in time for use if needed during the coming winter season.

Its completion is scheduled for sometime next month. A preliminary 238-page draft was made available to The Associated Press.

The document spells out options for alleviating energy shortages caused by severe cold spells, oil embargoes, natural disasters and work stoppages in energy-related industries.

But some of the recommended measures may seem a little far-fetched.

For instance, one suggestion is "to provide emergency power from Navy ships for certain coastal cities." Under the plan, shipboard generators would be plugged into a city's power supply at docks.

Another proposal would have states "direct the curtailment of escalator and elevator service" to conserve energy, although the report notes that "workers or shoppers might be delayed somewhat" and handicapped individuals would be inconvenienced.

Bans on outdoor decorative lighting and air conditioning also are among the suggestions as possible emergency steps in times of power shortages. Such bans also would apply to Christmas lights.

The guide also discloses U.S. energy strategists harbor second thoughts about some of their own energy-saving recommendations.

A proposal to encourage four-day workweeks, involving 10 daily work hours instead of five 8-hour days, is accompanied by an assertion that it "might or might not save fuel."

Fuel might be saved in office buildings — but at the expense of having workers use "more energy for heating their homes" on their extra day off.

And a proposal to conserve gasoline and diesel fuel by letting trucks haul

'Hungry dogs' fight over energy bones

By MICHAEL GETLER The Washington Post

FRANKFURT — "There are a lot of hungry dogs fighting over a few bones these days," says Klaus Barthel, chairman of West Germany's Kraftwerk Union, the largest nuclear-power-station construction firm in this country and one of the largest in the world.

Though KWU still has about $11 billion worth of back orders on its books, and thus is not exactly among Germany's neediest cases, the firm has received no new domestic orders for three years. Without domestic orders, KWU official Joachim Hospe says, export orders also are hard to get because foreign customers want to buy proven systems.

GRINDING HALT

The reason KWU has no new domestic orders is that West Germany's nuclear-power program — the fifth largest in the world behind the United States, the Soviet Union, Japan and England — has come to a grinding halt because of a variety of legal, environmental, political and safety considerations.

The abrupt change of pace, in what was after the 1973-74 oil crisis a thriving, multi-billion-dollar industry, reflects "a crazy, unpredictable situation," as one KWU official describes it, in several European countries.

In Sweden last month the government of Premier Thorbjorn Falldin fell on the same issue that brought it to power. Falldin's successful campaign in 1976 was based largely on vigorous opposition to nuclear power, including pledges not to start any more plants, and even threats to shut off five already operating.

ATTITUDES CHANGE

But attitudes have changed in Sweden, and the premier's coalition partners now favor an increase in nuclear power to get away from foreign-oil dependence. With no more compromises left, the premier stepped down.

In Austria last week voters decided by a tiny majority of 50.4 percent not to let the state-run utility company push the start button on the country's first nuclear-power plant, which had been under development for eight years and was completed months ago at a cost of almost $600 million.

By most accounts, the Austrian reactor probably would be operating now were it not for a political blunder by the usually adroit Chancellor Bruno Kreisky. Opinion polls earlier this year indicated majority support for the plant commissioning. The two main parties, Kreisky's ruling Socialists and the opposition Peoples Party, supported it.

POLITICAL GAIN

Yet Kreisky, perhaps sensing an easy political gain, insisted on putting it to a public referendum, something rare in Austria, and hung his political prestige on it.

The result was that the vote became a polarized political battle, while opponents of the plant at Zwentendorf, north of Vienna, used the opportunity of the plant to inform voters about the potential dangers of nuclear power. What happens now, nobody knows, except that the unused plant costs $80,000 a day to maintain.

KWU, which built the reactor, still has 600 workers there.

One reason Austria ultimately teetered before joining the nuclear power club — it is the only West European country with a program — is that, like West Germany, there is growing concern over where to store the radioactive nuclear waste. Also like West Germany, Austria is a federal republic with considerable autonomy in the individual states, and so far neither federal government has been able to find a state governor willing to run the political risk of having the waste buried in his home state.

HIGHER STAKES

In West Germany the situation has produced a stalemate with stakes many times higher than in Austria because of the dimensions of Bonn's nuclear program, the enormous requirement for energy in this highly industrialized country and the sheer number of employees in the nuclear and related industries. KWU, which also builds conventional power plants, employs 17,500 workers and officials estimated about 700 companies in one way or another are involved in the nuclear plant and reactor field.

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has said more than $13 billion in industrial investments in this field are held up around the country because of legal and environmental challenges, though Economic Ministry officials privately point out that not all of this is nuclear power. There have also been some local challenges to new coal plants.

On the other side, of course, is the risk that opponents of nuclear power see to the environment and, in the worst case, to the population.

HALT ORDERED

Court decisions in two of Germany's 10 federal states last year ordered a halt to new nuclear power plant commissioning until a permanent and safe long-term solution was found to the waste-disposal issue. Since then, work has stopped on three plants under construction at Brokdorf, Wyhl and Grohnde that called for investment of more than $2 billion.

The court orders have had a nationwide impact and that is why there are no new orders on KWU books. In effect, there is a de facto moratorium on starting new nuclear plants in Germany and unless the waste issue is solved, government and industry officials agree the economic effects could be severe.

BURIAL SITE

The Germans have identified a burial site in the salt domes of Gorleben in the state of Lower Saxony, which is supposed to be geologically suitable for the waste storage. Building a complex there would have some local economic appeal since it would cost about $3 billion, making it the largest construction project undertaken in Germany.

The problem, however, is that environmental groups are especially active and powerful in Lower Saxony and the governor, Ernst Albrecht, is one of the most attractive young leaders of the Christian Democratic Party, the main conservative opposition party.

Nevertheless, the Bonn government and the opposition parties remain committed to the idea that Germany must have more nuclear energy development on a "cautious but steady basis" and have brought pressure on the state. Albrecht agreed in September to make a decision on developing the site by the middle of 1979, after further technical analysis and public debate.

NEW ROUND

Bonn's plan was to have plants producing 24,000 megawatts of nuclear power by 1985 that would supply about 10 percent of the country's energy consumption. A new round of plants in the next decade would eventually push nuclear power to 27 percent by the year 2000.

West Germany will not meet its 1985 goal. But officials see no immediate crisis, in part because the post-oil crisis economic slowdown and energy conservation efforts have reduced the rate at which energy consumption was forecast to grow.

West Germany now has 15 nuclear power plants in operation generating 8,660 megawatts. In a sign that Bonn officials view as hopeful, courts in another state this week approved a partial operating permit for a ninth plant near Karlsruhe which, if given final approval, would increase the total to 9,560 megawatts by next year.

Eight other plants, under construction in states where no legal challenges have been made, also are scheduled to be ready by 1985. They would bring the total power to just over 18,000 megawatts.

PROBLEM NOT SEVERE

That is still well below the plan but specialists say it would not be a severe problem. The crunch, they say, will come later if there are no new building permits soon because it takes 8 to 10 years to build a plant.

What has been saving Germany's nuclear industry from much more severe problems is the heavy flow of foreign orders. But now that, too, is in some danger and not only because the domestic orders are down.

Aside from Austria, KWU won contracts in Argentina, Spain, Switzerland, Holland and two potentially huge projects in Brazil and Iran.

In Spain, however, the doubts about nuclear power that have fueled opposition groups in many countries are also appearing. While one KWU plant there is under construction, the second one is now in doubt as the Spanish government reconsiders its energy program, Bonn officials say.

COMPLETION DATE

In Iran, two KWU plants under construction are expected to be completed in 1981 and 1982 and the work paid for despite that country's domestic turmoil.

But the huge $5 billion project to build four more is now in serious doubt.

Even in Brazil, where West German exporters got their biggest sale for a network of reactors and reprocessing plants worth more than $5 billion in 1975, there are now the first signs of trouble.

Discussions are under way over allegations that plant security questions had not been sufficiently discussed beforehand. Nevertheless, the Brazilian government has reaffirmed its commitment to move ahead.

Cowboys destroy Washington, 37-10

Benny Barnes (31), Cowboy cornerback, drops Washington quarterback Joe Theismann for no gain during Thursday's 37-10 rout of the Redskins in Texas Stadium. (AP Laserphoto).

Laidlaw, Staubach, Pearson lead big offensive explosion

DALLAS (AP) — Like a good jockey, waiting until the crucial moment on the backstretch, Dallas Coach Tom Landry has applied the whip to his National Football League champion Cowboys.

THEY FLEW past Washington like a thoroughbred Thanksgiving Day in a 37-10 rout that gave the Cowboys a game lead over the Redskins in the National Conference Eastern Division with three games to play.

"We were ready to play — this is the best we've played," said Landry whose teams characteristically flatten out in the middle of the season then breathe fire when it counts. "We were just going so strong it would have been difficult for any team to stop us today regardless of who we played."

Washington quarterback Joe Theismann concluded, "All you can say is the Cowboys kicked the hell out of us. I know they kicked the hell out of me."

Dallas is 9-4 to Washington's 8-5. The Cowboys, should the teams again fall into a tie, have an insurmountable tie-breaker edge over the Redskins.

"We have jelled and it could carry us into the playoffs," Landry said. "This type of game stands out in the back of your mind and you think you can do it again ... it gives you a lot of confidence."

"Dallas is certainly in an advantageous position," said Washington Coach Jack Pardee. "They would have to lose two out of three not to make the playoffs."

Washington, of course, is still very much alive in the wild card scramble. Two teams from each conference get a wild card berth this year.

DALLAS JUMPED on Washington with 13 first-quarter points — the most for the Cowboys in the opening 15 minutes this year — then pounded the scrambling Redskins in revenge for an earlier 9-5 loss to Washington.

"It was a big plus to move the ball early and get some points on the board," said Cowboy wide receiver Drew Pearson who combined with quarterback Roger Staubach on a 57-yard pass-and-run touchdown. "We have been having trouble in the first quarter. We got it all together today. We were really sky high. We were at our emotional peak. We were hitting and sticking. When you get 488 yards against the 'Skins I'd say your offense is in good shape."

Rafael Septien kicked three field goals and reserve fullback Scott Laidlaw rushed for 122 yards on 16 carries, scoring twice, as the Cowboy offense purred.

Mark Moseley's 44-yard field goal and Theismann's late 16-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jean Fugett was all Washington could muster.

The Dallas defense, which sacked Theismann four times, didn't allow Washington a first down until Cliff Harris was flagged for interference late in the second quarter.

DALLAS LED 20-0 at halftime as Staubach, who scrambled seven times when he didn't find a receiver, came up with some big third-down plays.

BUT IT was his bomb to Pearson that put the game away. Pearson sneaked behind Joe Lavender and caught the radar-guided spiral at the Redskins 9 and just loafed into the end zone in the game's most spectacular play.

When it didn't count, third-string fullback Larry Brinson bolted 39 yards for Dallas' final touchdown. "It was just a rotten day," said Theismann. "When you get 20 points down, there is no mystery what you have to do — you have to throw the football. And those guys just tee off and when those four guys up front want to play football, there is nobody like them in the NFL. There is no two ways about it. You kid yourself if you don't realize that."

Scott Laidlaw goes over top for Dallas touchdown.

Roger carves the turkey

IRVING — In keeping with tradition, Roger Staubach, ceremonial head of the Dallas Cowboy family, was given the honor of carving the Thanksgiving Day turkey here Thursday in Texas Stadium. And he did a magnificent job.

By Cowboy linebacker Thomas Henderson's own definition, the turkey was none other than the Washington Redskins. The dressing for this holiday feast was sole possession of first place in the NFC East.

"The Big Shootout" between the Cowboys and Redskins, long-time rivals and previously co-holders of the top spot in the conference with identical 8-4 records, turned out to be "The Big Blowout" as the surging Cowboys jumped out to a 20-0 lead enroute to a 37-10 blitz of the fast-fading Redskins.

STAUBACH HAD his usual outstanding afternoon, dissecting the befuddled Washingtonians with short passes and several nifty scrambles on third down situations. But, it was a pair of long-distance Staubach aerials that sealed the Redskins' doom.

A 53-yard Staubach-to-Drew Pearson touchdown pass early in the second quarter rocked the 'Skins back on their heels as the Cowboys took a 20-0 lead. Then when Washington broke the ice with Mark Moseley's 48-yard field goal at the second half's onset, Staubach found Tony Hill for a 37-yard gainer which set up Rafael Septien's third field goal of the day to deflate all hopes of a Washington comeback.

The pass to Pearson was easily one of the game's most exciting plays, coming when the outcome was still in doubt. By Staubach's own admission the play was designed especially for the Redskins. "It was a streak pattern," Pearson recalled after the game. "(Coach Tom) Landry called it. Dan Reeves noticed the cornerbacks sitting down on us — freezing on us. We decided I could go by them."

"I PUT A post move on and that put him (the cornerback) in an awkward position. Roger just laid it in there," Pearson said, adding, "He was throwing real well today."

Staubach, who left the game early in the fourth quarter, was indeed throwing well as he finished with nine completions in 19 attempts for a whopping 218 yards.

But for all of the field general's antics, it was far from a one-man show. Scott Laidlaw, who replaced the injured Robert Newhouse at fullback, ran roughshod over the Redskins, picking up 122 yards on 16 carries and scoring a pair of touchdowns. He had already passed the century mark by halftime with 103 yards on 10 carries. The bulk of that yardage came on a 59-yard run on the final play of the opening stanza. He was hauled down just nine yards short of the Washington goal but the Cowboys failed to capitalize on that opportunity.

"I NEVER SAID I was fast," Laidlaw laughed afterwards when asked about being caught from behind. "The hole was there, right off tackle. Our guys just chopped a couple of people down and I broke loose. Sure, I wanted to score, but like I said I never said I was fast."

It was a joyous occasion for the fourth-year Stanford product who has been asked to fill the very large shoes of Newhouse. But, Laidlaw insisted,

Lions upset Denver by 17-14

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — English settlers celebrated the first Thanksgiving 357 years ago. Thursday at the Pontiac Silverdome it was Doug English doing most of the celebrating.

HE LED the Plymouth Rock-hard Detroit defensive line that sacked Denver quarterback Craig Morton six times as the Lions defeated the Broncos, 17-14, in their nationally televised National Football League game.

English, a fifth-year tackle from Texas, where he was an All-American, tackled Morton four times behind the line of scrimmage. He and his linemates — rookie Al "Bubba" Baker, John Woodcock and Dave Pureifery — harassed Morton continually to key the upset over the defending American Conference champion.

THE LOSS dropped Denver to 8-5 and out of a first-place tie with Oakland in the AFC west. The Broncos' next game is at Oakland.

Detroit, at least until Sunday, climbed out of a tie with Chicago for the cellar of the central division of the National Conference. The Lions, who have won four their last six, lifted their record to 5-8.

"Doug English got a game ball," said Detroit Coach Monte Clark. "He was captain today, indicating what I think of him."

The sacks lifted Detroit's league-leading total to 48.

DENVER GAINED 128 yards rushing and 105 passing. It was the first time in seven games the Broncos didn't go over 300 yards.

"We always go into the game to get the quarterback," English said. "Defensively, (assistant) coach Floyd Peters has done a great job with each of his. He has helped me 1,000 percent."

"We think we've progressed where we can stay with the good teams in the league," English added.

Denver Coach Red Miller was upset.

"We knew we had to win this game," he said. "Now our title chances hinge on what we do against Oakland. The Lions didn't surprise us defensively. We knew what they could do up front and they did it."

Former University of Michigan star Rob Lyle, who gained 39 yards for the Broncos, said: "Ordinarily, we're loose. But we were a little tight today ... we can't lose any more."

Rick Kane (32), scores TD for Detroit Lions.

Philadelphia still has playoff hopes

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia Eagles, having received the season's biggest gift last Sunday, are looking for a way to avoid offering the St. Louis Cardinals a present this time out.

A week ago the Eagles were less than half a minute away from their sixth loss. Then the New York Giants fumbled the ball away, defensive back Herman Edwards picked it up and ran for the touchdown for a 19-17 victory to put the Eagles' record at 7-5 and keep alive their playoff hopes.

NOW THE EAGLES face the Cardinals — birds of prey as far as Philadelphia is concerned. St. Louis has beaten Philly nine times in a row, most recently 16-10 for the first of what has become four straight triumphs by the previously winless Cardinals.

In Sunday's other National Football League game it's Los Angeles at Cleveland, New Orleans at Atlanta, the Giants at Buffalo, New England at Baltimore, the New York Jets at Miami, Cincinnati at Houston, Minnesota at Green Bay, San Diego at Kansas City, Tampa Bay at Chicago and Seattle at Oakland. Monday night's game is Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

On Thursday, Detroit defeated Denver 17-14 and Dallas beat Washington 37-10.

"I know from talking to some of their players in the off-season that the Eagles really believe we have the hex on 'em," says tackle Dan Dierdorf of St. Louis. "It's one of those things you try not to think about."

Philadelphia, beaten in the teams' first meeting on Jim Hart's touchdown bomb to rookie wide receiver Dave Stief, a play covering 55 yards, was perhaps one play away from pulling out another victory. A last-minute end-zone interception by St. Louis cornerback Roger Wehrli of a Ron Jaworski pass nailed down the Eagles triumph.

Even if they don't win all their remaining games (the Eagles play Minnesota, Dallas and the Giants again), Coach Dick Vermeil believes his Eagles are legitimate contenders for a wild-card playoff berth.

LOS ANGELES HAS a chance to become the first team to wrap up a divisional title. The Rams, the National Conference's winningest team at 10-2 (tied for the league's best record with Pittsburgh of the American Conference), lead Atlanta in the NFC West by three games. If the Rams beat Cleveland and the Falcons lose to New Orleans, LA will have a four-game edge with three to go.

With the exception of the Steelers' two-game lead over Houston in the AFC Central Division, the rest of the races are very tight — New England leading Miami by a game in the AFC East, Denver and Oakland separated by one-half game in the AFC West, Dallas and Washington one game apart in the NFC East and Minnesota and Green Bay tied for first in the NFC Central race.

Tall City cage invitational opening today

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

Action in the 11th annual Tall City Invitational Basketball Tournament got underway this morning in the Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus with 12 teams entered in the gigantic high school tourney.

The first game got underway at 8:30 a.m. with El Paso Burges taking on Big Spring followed by the Midland-Snyder battle at 10 a.m. Midland Lee and El Paso Parkland were set to tip off in the 11:30 a.m. game followed by the Dallas Carter-El Paso Austin confrontation at 1 p.m.

In the 2:30 p.m. game, San Antonio Jefferson, the defending champion, was set to take on Amarillo Tascosa and winding up the opening round session at 4 p.m. is the El Paso Eastwood-Fort Worth Richland contest.

There are four games on tap in the night session starting at 5:30 p.m. at which time the loser of the Lee-Parkland tilt, tries the loser of the Burges-Big Spring game in the loser's bracket. Also in a loser's bracket contest starting at 7 p.m., the loser of the Carter-Austin battle, faces the loser of the Midland-Snyder tussle.

In winner's bracket games, the winner of the Lee-Parkland game, takes on the winner of the Burges-Big Spring tilt at 8:30 p.m. followed by the 10 p.m.

game which will pit the winner of the Midland-Snyder game facing the winner of the Carter-Austin clash.

Winner of the Jefferson-Tascosa game, will advance to the 11:30 a.m. winner's bracket contest on Saturday while the winner of the Eastwood-Richland game, moves into the next round at 1 p.m. Saturday.

All of the games, but the seventh and consolation finals will be played in the new Chaparral Center with those two games being held in the P.E. Gymnasium which Midland College used prior to the building of the new complex.

Tickets for each session are $2 for adults and $1 per student with the finals set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Lee's starting lineup for its game with Parkland this morning included Tyler Alcorn, 5-11 senior at the point or guard slot; high post Ken Van Hoozer, a 6-2 senior; low post Mike McGaha, 6-5 senior and at the wings were Ernest Merritt, a 6-1 senior and 6-2 senior Doug Crawford.

Midland High's starters against Snyder included Darrin Matlock, 6-1 junior; Charles Johnson, 6-5 senior; Tim Spirling, 6-6 junior; Roy Lee Jefferson, a 6-2 senior and Milton Sanders, a 6-5 senior. Herbert Johnson, 6-8 sophomore and Archie Booth, a 6-3 senior, were also set to see duty for the Purple Pack.

Vikings, Colts get nod in NFL tilts

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Talk about your basic showdowns, the National Football League had two beauties cooking for its Thanksgiving weekend.

First, on Thursday, Washington and Dallas, tied at 8-4, went head-to-head for first place in the National Conference East, Dallas coming away with a 37-10 victory.

The picks:

Vikings 17, Packers 10
Green Bay has fallen on hard times after a 6-1 start and the Vikings returned from oblivion with four straight wins before losing to San Diego.

Patriots, 31, Colts 14
Now that it has the AFC lead, New England could be tough to overtake. Baltimore without Bert Jones is like a day without sunshine.

Dolphins 23, Jets 14
Without Earl Campbell to worry about Miami should be in good shape against the Jets, who've had a sea-saw season.

Raiders 27, Seahawks 21
Seattle should have lost to Kansas City last week. Oakland is a tad better than the Chiefs and should handle the troublesome Seahawks.

Rams 34, Browns 21
Los Angeles plays well enough to win, which ought to be good enough but doesn't seem to be for the team's harsh West Coast critics.

Eagles 24, Cardinals 13
That gift win Philadelphia got from the Giants last week has the Eagles on Cloud 9.

Chargers 17, Chiefs 7
San Diego has won four straight. If the Chargers could beat Minnesota on the road, they ought to handle Kansas City.

Saints 24, Falcons 14
It's get-even time for New Orleans, which lost the first time around to Atlanta on Steve Bartkowski's miracle deflected pass.

Giants 17, Bills 14
No laughing now. Sure, New York's lost four straight but the last two could have been wins. Eventually, the worm has to turn.

Bucs 19, Bears 10
Tampa Bay believes in itself and that's half the fight in pro football. Chicago still needs some convincing.

Oilers 31, Bengals 13
Is there anybody who still wants to know why Houston traded for the No. 1 pick in last May's draft?

Steelers 27, 49ers 17
This one matches the AFC's best record, owned by Pittsburgh against the NFC's worst, owned by San Francisco. Any doubters?

Oilers face Bengals

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston, impressive against the top-ranked National Football League clubs but depressive against the lower echelon, has a rematch with the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday amid reports of strife within the Oilers' management.

Cincinnati has won only one of 12 games this season, that a solid victory over Houston.

The Oilers have looked like playoff contenders the past two weeks, with victories over strong New England and Miami.

In recent days, however, there have been rumbles of discontent from Coach Bum Phillips because he has not been offered a new contract. His two-year contract expires Jan. 31.

Phillips said recently, "I guess I'm coaching out my option. I don't want to be, but I am."

"I would like to know something. It's not fair to my coaches. If they don't know my situation, they can't make plans of their own," he said.

he never felt any pressure. "Sure, I felt a little uptight because I wanted to do a good job because a lot of people were depending on me. But the biggest amount of pressure was just making this team. That's that. I was just trying to do good and I was ready for it. There was no pressure on me."

For the Cowboys, who have been notoriously slow starters throughout this season, the Washington fiasco marked only the fifth time this season they have scored in the first quarter and the first time they've tallied more than seven points.

BUT WHILE the Dallas offense was running up 507 yards of offense Thursday, the Cowboy defense was at its Doomsday best. Washington finished with only 202 yards of total offense and didn't score their lone touchdown until only 2:17 was left in the game. It was midway through the second quarter that Washington got their initial first down of the game, and then only via a pass interference call on Cliff Harris.

Harris may have been the goat on that particular play, but it was hard to find fault with the rest of his performance. The kamakazie free safety made nine tackles, four of them solos, and showed a national television audience and 64,905 Texas Stadium viewers exactly why he's earned the nickname "Captain Crash."

Just how good did the three-time All-Pro play? "It was really probably one of the best days I've ever had playing," Harris said later.

Even Washington quarterback Joe Theismann admitted the 'Skins were no match for Dallas this day. "All you can say is the Cowboys kicked the hell out of us," Theismann said. "I know they kicked the hell out of me."

Holtz thinks his team needs to pass more

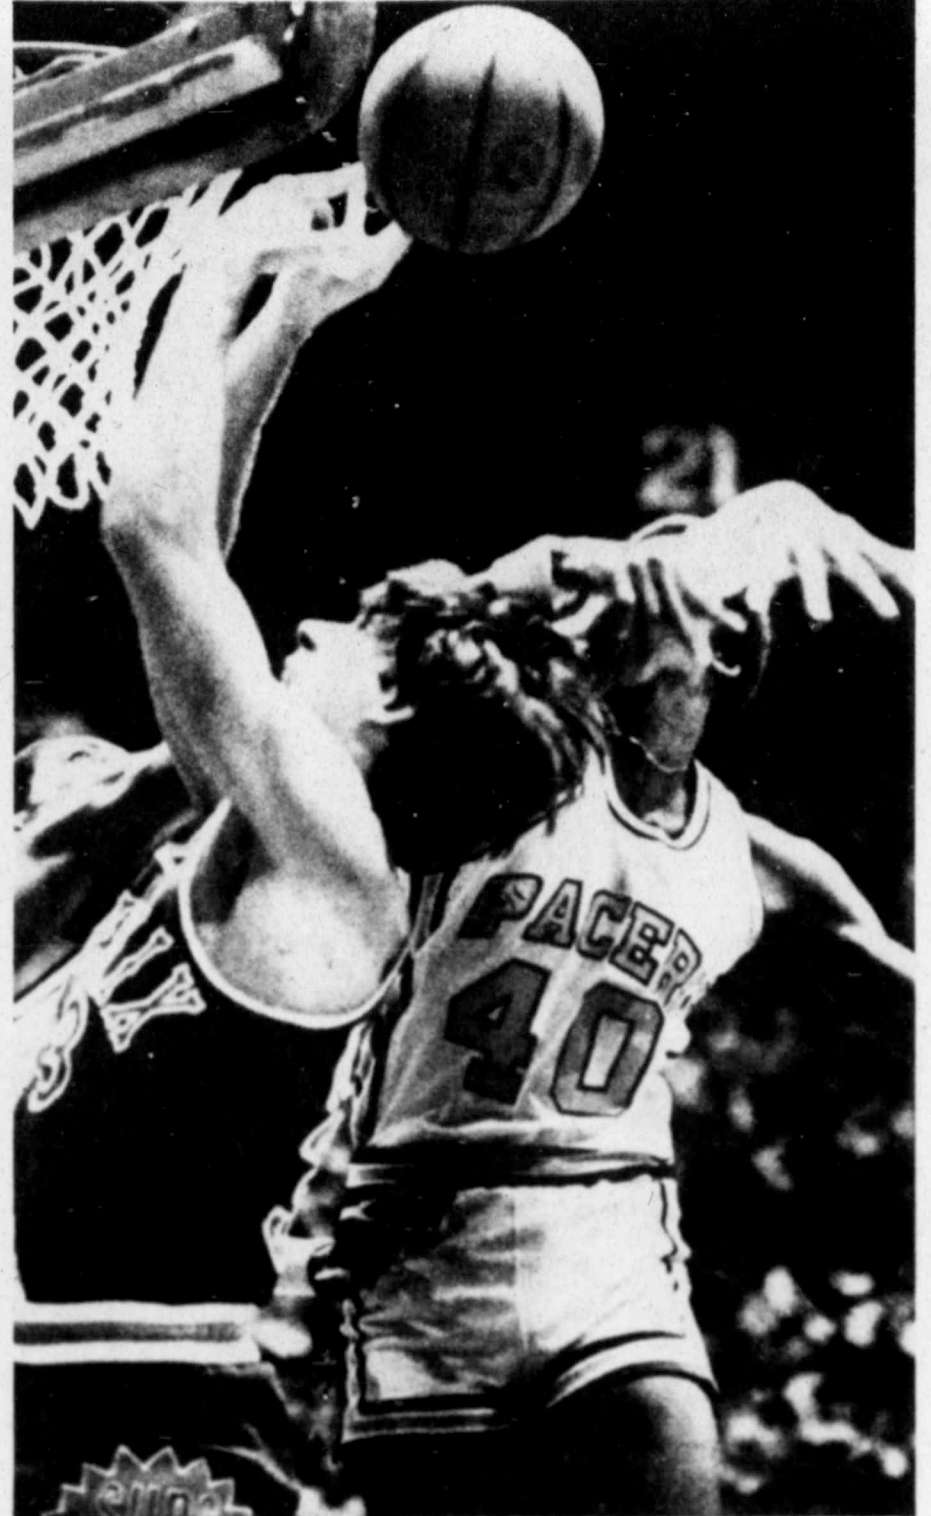

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz said his team may have to use its passing attack more than usual in Saturday's game in Dallas against SMU.

"We may have to throw the ball more than I like because of SMU's defense," Holtz said. "And, I am concerned about SMU's passing game."

"We just tried to refresh everything," Holtz said after a 90-minute practice Thursday.

"It doesn't seem like Thanksgiving. We have a lot to be thankful for, but I'm used to Thanksgiving being cold and it was warm today. I'm also used to football season being over on Thanksgiving and we're right in the middle of it," Holtz said.

The Porkers plan a light workout Friday morning before flying to Dallas.

Alex English, left, of the Indiana Pacers and James Edwards, combine to block shot attempt by Alvin Adams of the Phoenix Suns during first half action of NBA game in Indianapolis Thursday afternoon. Phoenix won, 115-110. (AP Laserphoto).

St. John's Carnesecca worries over opener

By The Associated Press

After five straight 20-victory seasons and 14 consecutive post-season invitations, you'd think that Lou Carnesecca would stop worrying about opening day.

But Carnesecca is, well, Carnesecca. "I'm approaching this season with fear and trepidation," says the coach of the St. John's basketball team. "I don't know what to expect tonight — I'm a pessimist by nature."

Carnesecca will expect the worst, as usual, when his team opens the college basketball season along with three others in the Joe Lapchick Memorial Tournament at St. John's in New York.

Other teams in the field include American University, Wagner and Alabama, the nation's 19th-ranked team.

"It's going to be a different ballclub," Carnesecca says of his 1978-79 edition.

It is certainly going to be a club without center George Johnson for the first time in four years. One of St. John's all-time greats has graduated to the pros and Carnesecca justifiably feels his rebounding won't be as formidable as in recent seasons.

The Redmen's strength this season will be in the backcourt with Reggie Carter, Bernard Rencher and Tom Calabrese. Calabrese, especially, has taken affront at some of the local pre-season criticism against the team.

"Some articles said some things and we're out to prove them wrong," said Calabrese.

The Lapchick tourney is one of six such events on stage tonight as the college basketball season opens with a bang.

In the Charlotte (N.C.) Invitational, the field features Connecticut, Davidson, Canisius and Long Island University. New Orleans, North Texas, Fairfield and Tennessee Tech will participate in the New Orleans Classic.

Robinson denies offer for Iowa job

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Grambling University football Coach Eddie Robinson said he has had no contact with the University of Iowa regarding a coaching position.

A five column advertisement, placed in an Iowa newspaper by a lawyer from Los Angeles, said Robinson could revitalize the University of Iowa's football program. Robinson, 58, said during a telephone interview he was "quite elated that people are concerned" about him — whether or not he is mentioned for a job interview.

However, Robinson said, "Nobody's made me an offer from the University of Iowa that I can't refuse. I haven't had any contact with them."

The ad appeared Thursday in the Iowa City Press-Citizen. It showed a photograph of Robinson, above which was emblazoned, "The one coach who could turn around the Iowa football fortunes."

It said Robinson could lead the Hawkeyes, 2-8 this season under Coach Bob Commings, to the top of the Big Ten.

"I don't know whether I'm attractive enough in football that they would really want to hire me," Robinson said.

Robinson, who received his master's degree in physical education in 1954 from Iowa, was under consideration last season for head coach of the National Football League's Los Angeles Rams.

The advertisement was placed by Al Schallau, 36, an Iowa alumnus.

"Iowa has been getting stomped on — that's what it amounts to," Schallau said Thursday in a telephone interview from his home in suburban Westminster, Calif.

"The University of Iowa, during the 1970s, has not been able to recruit blue chip athletes," Schallau said. "Iowa has been getting the athletes that Nebraska, Michigan, Ohio State and Notre Dame don't want."

Fort Stockton seeks bi-district grid crown tonight

By STEVE O'BRIEN
R-T Sports Writer

When Lubbock Estacado Coach Louis Kelley says, "We just feel honored to be in the playoffs," take him at his word. After the first game of the season it sure didn't appear the Matadors would have to worry about practicing over the Thanksgiving holiday.

It almost seems an eternity ago that Plainview, currently rated among the Class AAAA football elite, devastated Escatado, 40-6, in the season opener for both squads. But, the Matadors recouped in hurry and have since reeled off nine straight victories and as a result find themselves matched against third-ranked Fort Stockton in today's 7:30 p.m. bi-district contest in Midland's Memorial Stadium.

The capper to Escatado's string of nine victories was last week's 16-7 win over unbeaten Canyon for the District

1-AAA crown. "It was a real tough district race," Kelley said. "It went right down to the wire."

TONIGHT'S GAME marks Escatado's reappearance in the playoffs after a three year absence. In 1975, when the Matadors were a member of District 3-AAA, they reached the quarterfinals before bowing to Pecos, the District 2-AAA representative.

That may or may not be an omen for their encounter with Fort Stockton, this year's version of the District 2-AAA champions. "We just feel honored to be in the playoffs, we're excited about the challenge," Kelley said. "We're especially excited about playing one of the top teams in the state right off the bat."

But calling Fort Stockton one of the top teams in the state somehow seems an understatement. The phrase seems much too simple relay an accurate description of the way the Panthers have played this year.

Fort Stockton is rated among the top contenders for the AAA state title with good reason. The Panthers rolled past every team on their 10-game schedule enroute to their first playoff appearance since 1953. In the process they unbelievably shut out nine of 10 opponents, giving up only a pair of touchdowns to Andrews in the ninth game of the season.

FORT STOCKTON Coach John Blocker even predicted before the season's start that his squad's fate would hinge on the play of his defensive crew. The 10-0 record is firm evidence they've been everything that Blocker had hoped they'd be, and much more.

During the regular season the Panther defense limited opponents to a meager 152 yards per game, 91 on the ground and 61 in the air. Is Blocker proud of his defense's accomplishments? — You bet! "But I'm exceptionally pleased with all of our kids," he added. "They've shown a lot of poise and the ability to play well in tense situations."

Well none of those situations will have been more tense than the one Fort Stockton is about to face. Escatado boasts a potent offensive attack led by tailback Kelvin White. Though just a sophomore White has had what Kelley calls "an exceptional season" with 1,051 yards rushing.

THE PANTHERS can expect to be seeing a lot of White because, Kelley admits, Escatado will line up in the Slot-I "and give it to tailback 65 percent of the time."

But while White will no doubt see extensive duty, the Matadors are far from reluctant to pass. And when they do pass, the target is usually huge tight end Dewey Turner, who packs 220 pounds on his 6-4 frame. "We can both run and throw the ball well," Kelley said. "We have a big tight end and we like to use him quite a bit. We're gonna sprint out, throw the football and make the game exciting. They (Fort Stockton) are not going to be able to key on any one player."

Kelley's nemesis agrees wholeheartedly. "They are very well-balanced," Blocker said. "Offensively they run primarily, but they use the pass very well." The key to tonight's outcome is ball control, Blocker believes. "We're going to have to keep the ball our share of the time offensively. We'll have to keep it away from them."

"THEY HAVE super speed," Blocker continued, "not just a few individuals, but tremendous overall team speed."

And though defense has been the name of the game in Fort Stockton this year, the Panthers can also play offense. And very well at that, thank you. Quarterback Rick McIvor, who doubles as strong safety on defense, is the man that makes the Fort Stockton offense go. Despite connecting on only 39 of 102 passes for a meager 38 percent completion rate, McIvor was the district's most productive passer. Those 39 completions netted 737 yards and 10 touchdowns.

McIvor also finished in sixth place on the district rushing charts, picking up 362 yards on 79 carries (a 4.5 average) with three touchdowns to his credit. But it isn't McIvor the Panthers count on for their bread-and-butter rushing attack. That job is reserved for Paul Pogue, a 185-pound senior.

Pogue finished second among the league rushers with 870 yards on 131 carries; that's 6.6 yards on every toehold. "Paul Pogue has just played super," Blocker said. "He's got over 800 yards but he only played in what amounted to about seven games. He missed the game with Andrews, was hurt in the first two minutes against Alpine and didn't play anymore, and only played a half against (Odessa) Ector."

"HE'S JUST one heck of a competitor, both offensively and defensively."

So the task of applying the stop to McIvor, Pogue and Co. falls to the lot of the Estacado defense, a squad almost overshadowed by Fort Stockton's defensive achievements. "Our defense is comparable (to Fort Stockton's)," Kelley declares flatly. "We've played good defense all year. Against Plainview we gave up 40 points but our middle linebacker (Mike Chatham) was out. He is our leading defensive player and when he came back after the Plainview game he really stabilized our defense. We've given up only 43 points in our last nine games."

"We know we'll have to play exceptional defense to win. We'll have to play real tough to contain their offense."

Bruins outskate Sabres during 5-2 ice victory

By The Associated Press

Buffalo Coach Marcel Pronovost had a simple explanation for the Sabres' 5-2 loss to the Boston Bruins Thursday night.

"They worked harder and that made the difference," said Pronovost. "They beat us physically and speed-wise to the puck. That's the name of the game."

The victory moved the Bruins two points ahead of Toronto and six ahead of Buffalo in the National Hockey League's Adams Division.

In the only other NHL games played Thursday night, the Montreal Canadiens beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 8-4 and the Vancouver Canucks defeated the Colorado Rockies 7-2.

Rick Smith and John Wensink gave Boston a 2-0 lead in the first period, Smith firing a 60-footer through a screen of bodies and Wensink circling the net and then tucking the puck past Sabres goalie Don Edwards. Bobby Schmautz made it 3-0 in the second period.

Edwards, who had played in 19 of the Sabres' previous 20 games, stopped 17 Boston shots before being helped from the ice in the third period after injuring his left leg in a pileup in front of the net. He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital for X rays.

Bob Miller and Terry O'Reilly got Boston goals off Edwards' replacement, Randy Ireland, while Gil Perreault and Andre Savard scored third-period goals for Buffalo.

"I was a little worried about having that week off," said Bruins Coach Don Cherry, whose team had been idle since Sunday. "We always start slowing down when we have time off. But we were ready. I think we had lots of jump."

Canadiens 8, Penguins 4
Jacques Lemaire scored twice within 14 seconds midway through the first period as Montreal erupted for six opening-period goals and routed Pittsburgh. Lemaire also had two assists as the Canadiens broke the game open early, taking a 5-0 lead in the first 10 minutes, 8 seconds.

Pierre Mondou opened the scoring with his ninth goal of the season at 3:50 of the opening period. Rod Langway scored his first NHL goal at 6:44 and Mario Tremblay scored 50 seconds later to give Montreal a 3-0 lead.

At that point, with Montreal having scored three goals on five shots, Pittsburgh Coach Johnny Wilson replaced Herron with Greg Millen. The change didn't slow down the Canadiens, however, as Lemaire scored twice within 14 seconds for a 5-0 lead.

Canucks 7, Rockies 2
Rookie Bill Derlago scored twice for Vancouver, which pulled away from a 2-2 tie with five goals in the third period.

Dennis Ververgaert scored at 2:55 of the third period to put Vancouver ahead to stay. Chris Oddleifson, Ron Sedlbauer, Derlago and Thomas Gradin also found the mark as the Canucks fired 16 shots on Colorado goalie Michel Plasse in the final period.

Colorado's Wilf Paiement, returning to action after missing 13 games while sitting out a suspension after hitting Detroit's Dennis Polonich in the face with his stick, had one assist in the game.

Downhill races are uncertainty

OTTAWA (AP) — Next month's season-opening World Cup downhill race at Val D'Isere, France, might be cancelled because of unseasonably high temperatures but the slalom event in Italy is ready to go, the Canadian Ski Association said Thursday.

"Not a flake of snow has fallen around Val D'Isere," men's coach John Ritchie told the association in a telephone interview.

Ritchie said it's discouraging for the racers because they have had excellent training on a glacier in nearby Tignes and were looking forward to competition.

Three ford drivers lead field in rally

LONDON (AP) — Three drivers from the Ford works team, led by Hannu Mikola of Finland, led the field Thursday in the Lombard RAC auto rally.

Walter Rohrl of Germany, among the leaders from the start of the rally last Sunday, dropped back to seventh after fuel pipe trouble.

With six special stages remaining, Mikola was first, followed by Bo Waldegaard of Sweden and Russell Brookes of Britain.

Cougars favorites by 11 over Red Raiders in key SWC contest

By The Associated Press

The Houston Cougars are 11-point favorites to earn the host role in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day with a victory over the Texas Tech Red Raiders Saturday and the underdog role certainly isn't anything new with Coach Rex Dockery.

"We've been in that position most of the year," said the freshman Red Raider coach who has taken what was expected to be a second division team in the Southwest Conference football chase and made the Red Raiders uncomfortably competitive.

Tech is 6-3 overall and 4-2 in the SWC. Those numbers should serve a warning to Houston, which is fifth-ranked in the nation in The Associated Press poll.

The Red Raiders boast the leading rusher in the nation, former tight end James Hadnot who has rumbled for 1,189 yards—an average of 132 steps per game.

The Cougars are looking for their second Cotton Bowl trip in three years. Notre Dame will be the guest team.

In other games Saturday, Texas was a 13-point pick over Baylor at Waco, Texas A&M was a prohibitive favorite over Texas Christian at College Station, and Arkansas was a 7-point nod over Southern Methodist in Dallas.

Houston has had two weeks to get ready for the Red Raiders and Coach Bill Yeoman pronounces the team in perhaps the best shape of the season.

Senior quarterback Danny Davis, who led the Cougars to their first Cotton Bowl in 1976, is again the catalyst for Houston after sitting out a year with an injury.

"This game is what we have worked for starting in August," says Davis. "I don't think we'll be overconfident."

Texas, which has lost only to Houston, is waiting in the wings should the Cougars stumble at Lubbock.

Coach Fred Akers and the Longhorns have already accepted a Sun Bowl bid to play Maryland but pointed out: "This race isn't over yet."

Rice, which will have an off week to prepare for Houston in the final game of the season, shocked Baylor 24-10 last Saturday, showing the Owls cannot be disregarded.

Houston can earn at least a tie for the SWC title with a win over Tech. Houston's first year in the SWC playing for the championship was in 1976 after long years as an independent.

Cincy nabs 4-3 victory in WHA

By The Associated Press

"Up and down — solid hockey."

That's the way Cincinnati Coach Floyd Smith summed up his team's 4-3 victory over Birmingham Thursday night.

The win moved Cincinnati two points ahead of second-place New England in the World Hockey Association standings.

In the only other WHA game of the night, the Winnipeg Jets beat the Indianapolis Racers 5-1.

Robbie Ftorek slapped in two first-period goals as Cincinnati handed the Bulls their second loss in two days. Birmingham dropped a 6-5 decision Wednesday night to the Stingers at Cincinnati.

Ftorek came out with the puck from a mad scramble at the cage to score at 6:33 in the first period on assists from Darryl Maggs and Reg Thomas. Then he popped in his ninth goal of the season minutes later.

Louis Sleigher scored for Birmingham at 7:17 of the first and Eddie Gilbert got his third goal of the season on a slap shot from 15 feet out later in the period.

Only 15 seconds into a second-period power play, Mike Gartner fired another Stinger goal on assists from Peter Marsh and Rick Dudley. Peter Marrin and Paul Henderson came back with two goals for Birmingham, but it was not enough.

Jets 5, Racers 1

Kent Nilsson scored two goals to lead Winnipeg over Indianapolis, although the Jets didn't put the game away until Peter Sullivan and Terry Ruskowski scored on 2-on-1 breakaways in the third period.

Chaps drop tough contest

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz.—The Midland College Chaparrals blew a big half-time lead and went on to drop a 67-59 overtime battle to Glendale Community College in the Valley of the Sun Invitational Basketball Tournament Thursday.

MC led at halftime, 36-22, but let the game get away in the second half when Glendale cashed in on numerous free throws.

Shelby, White and Chucky McGill led MC with 12, 11 and 10 points, respectively while the bg gun for Glendale was John Myers with 16.

Midland came back in the consolation semifinals to gun down host Scottsdale Community College, 88-74 with Luis Alvarado paving the way with 25 points while McGill followed with 11 more. Also with 15 each were Young and Shelby.

The Chaps were set to play in the consolation finals at 4 p.m. today (MST) against an unknown opponent.

Why things go wrong

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Murphy's Law, that all-time axiom on the inevitability of error in human endeavor, was first postulated by a systems engineer at a testing lab at Edward Air Force Base some years ago and is the takeoff point for a book, "Murphy's Law and Other Reasons Why Things Go Wrong" by Arthur Bloch and published in its fifth printing by Price-Stern-Sloan, the chuckle merchants of the paper chase.

The law has been refined down to "Whatever can go wrong, will" and Bloch has followed up with a collection of "laws" from various other Pythagoreans and modern theorem-makers. His basic theme is the acceptance of despair or, as they say on Mad Avenue, "The bottom line is, it won't work."

O'Brien's Law is "Murphy was an optimist." Jerry Brown's Law of Lowered Expectations has many parts, like "Everything tastes more or less like chicken, and sounds more or less like Beethoven," and "If aspirin won't cure it, you're beyond modern medical science." There are others: "To make a bus come, light a cigarette," "To make the phone ring, go to the bathroom." Also, "Nothing is hard for the man who doesn't have to do it himself."

MURRAY'S Variants of the

Murphy-Bloch laws are not quite as universal and are most applicable in the arena:

Nothing is ever so bad it can't be made worse by firing the coach.
A free agent is anything but.
If you can smile when everything about you is going wrong, join the San Francisco 49ers.
Things always get worse, just before they get impossible.
Nothing is ever accomplished by reason — look at Woody Hayes.
You can fool all of the people all of the time — if you own the network.
The "Peter Principle" that everything keeps rising until it reaches its level of incompetence is best illustrated by the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl.
Anger is always a proper substitute for logic.
If everything else fails, throw it away.
The old Army game, "If it moves, salute it, if it doesn't move, paint it!" is changed to "If it moves, salute it. If it doesn't move, it must be the Rams and Atlanta."

Whatever can go to New York will. Whatever can't will go to Philadelphia.

HE WRONG Ram quarterback is the one that's in there.
Any two TV programs you like will go on opposite each other.
Hockey is a game played by six good skaters and the home team.

Hockey is the only game that can be played equally well with the lights out. There's more to hockey than meets the eye — at least I hope so.
I'm consistent, you're stubborn.
Rhetoric is the art of being wrong out loud.
You're taking yourself too seriously in the company when you forget it's not your money.
Money isn't everything; look at the California Angels.

WHEN YOU think everything is hopeless, just remember Yogi Berra.

Cars with the lucky pieces hanging off the rear-view mirror will always seem to star in bad accidents.

The guy with the coat slung over his shoulder without his arms in the sleeves in movies is up to no good.

Just remember Nixon not only admitted he was wrong, he set out to prove it. Never take anything but your mouth. Or your assistant's. Never record your mistakes no matter how proud of them you may be at the time.

The way to make a line move faster is to join the other one.
All things considered, it's better to have Earl Campbell.
The race is not always to the swift, look at Jack Nicklaus.

Penn State seeking first national crown

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — For the first time ever, Joe Paterno sends a Penn State football team out to defend a No. 1 ranking Friday.

The Nittany Lions achieved that status two weeks ago by defeating North Carolina State while Oklahoma, No. 1 at the time, succumbed to Nebraska. Penn State remained unbeaten, untied and inactive last week and is No. 1 again, headed for the Sugar Bowl and a possible national championship shootout against Alabama on New Year's Day.

That is, if the Nittany Lions don't stumble against 15th-ranked Pitt in their regular-season finale. And don't forget Alabama still must beat Auburn on Dec. 2 to get into the Sugar Bowl.

At any rate, the No. 1 ranking is new to this Nittany Valley college town and they're living it up while it lasts ... and hoping it lasts until Jan. 3 when the final Associated Press ratings are released.

"A lot of people in town, the student body, the alumni, are excited," says Paterno.

BUT PATERNO and his team are taking things in stride.

"I haven't detected any excitement in the squad," says Joe. "All our kids have talked about is Pitt. No ranking is very important until the end of the season."

"And this is a good, old-fashioned, backyard fight, the way football ought to be played."

Wouldn't it be something if Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill, one of Bear Bryant's Alabama boys, could knock off Penn State and make the Crimson Tide No. 1? But it says here that 'Bama will have to take care of Penn State without any help ... Penn State 23-16.

Last week's score was 50 right, 15 wrong and 1 tie for a .789 percentage. Two of the four Upset Specials — Missouri over Nebraska and Mississippi State over LSU — came through while Indiana over Ohio State just missed by three points. For the season the count is 481-186-14 — .721.

Owner spends money

An AP Sports Analysis
By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Spend, spend, spend ... win, win, win.

This paraphrase of a philosophy attributed to Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal in the 1930s — "spend, spend, spend ... elect, elect, elect" — has become the trademark of the gold-plated New York Yankees.

But the image is not entirely fair to the man who controls the loose purse strings of baseball's most successful franchise, George Steinbrenner III.

Another million-dollar arm was added to the Yankees' pitching staff this week — making a total of four — with the signing of free agent Tommy John, late of the Los Angeles Dodgers, for a reported $1.4 million.

"Don't you think there is danger that the Yankees' free-spending policy will upset the balance of power in baseball?" the suave, 35-year-old veteran, was asked at the signing ceremonies at Yankee Stadium.

"Not at all," the articulate pitcher replied. "Baseball attendance this past season was the greatest ever and we had four interesting races throughout the year. I don't think that shows any imbalance."

Meanwhile, Steinbrenner, the ship-building tycoon of Cleveland and Tampa, Fla., who dedicated himself to restoration of the Yankees' dia-

Notre Dame at Southern California: Last year, USC saw green — Notre Dame's surprise wearin' o' the green jerseys. This year the Trojans are seeing red and hope to avenge that 49-19 embarrassment. "I want you to forget about the Rose Bowl for the time being," John Robinson told his troops after beating UCLA last week. "We want the Irish." They've got them ... Southern Cal 28-17.

Michigan at Ohio State: "If we beat Ohio State and then win the Rose Bowl, I've got to think we'll still have a shot at the national championship," says Michigan linebacker Ron Simkins. And here's some inside info from Woody Hayes: "Mistakes, the kicking game, offense and defense — they'll all be big facets." The biggest facet will be ... Michigan 16-13.

Houston at Texas Tech: C is for Cougar, and for Cotton, which is the bowl they'll go to if they beat Tech's surprising Red Raiders. It won't be easy but ... Houston 27-16.

Texas at Baylor: Can a team which lost to Rice turn around and beat Texas? Not likely, even if the Bears were looking ahead last week ... Texas 21-10.

South Carolina at Clemson: Three of Bear Bryant's boys have their teams in the Top Twenty — Maryland's Jerry Claiborne, Pitt's Jackie Sherrill and Charley Pell at ... Clemson 24-17.

Arkansas at Southern Methodist: Arkansas has rebounded to win three in a row after two straight losses. The Mustangs have rebounded to lose four of five after a promising 3-1 start. Upset Special of the Week ... SMU 31-27.

Iowa at Michigan State: The 1978 windup for the probation-saddled Spartans, even though a victory will give them a share of the Big Ten title ... Michigan State 35-14.

Bean sharing golf lead with Kikuchi in Phoenix

MIYAZAKI, Japan (AP) — Andy Bean of the United States and Katsuji Kikuchi of Japan matched 5-under-par 67s and tied for the first-round lead Thursday in the $312,000 Dunlop Phoenix Golf Tournament.

Bean, 25, winner of three major U.S. tournaments this year, and Kikuchi shared a 1-stroke advantage over Jerry McGee of the United States, who fashioned a 68 over the par-72 Phoenix Country Club Course.

Bean, third on this season's PGA money-winning list, rolled in seven birdies and had one double bogey while Kikuchi had six birdies and one bogey in the chase for the $52,000 first prize.

Tied at 69 were Bob Byman and Lon Hinkle of the United States, Graham Marsh of Australia and Isao Aoki and Haruo Yasuda of Japan.

Defending champion Severiano Ballesteros of Spain shared ninth with Tom Kite of the United States and Kazunari Takahashi of Japan with 2-under par 70s.

mond dynasty, makes no apologies for his open-pocketbook policy.

"We aren't the only big spenders in the free agent market," insists the Yankees' principal owner. "California and San Diego, to name a couple, have been equally active."

"Besides, who can blame us for choosing to remain competitive? I feel it is my duty to provide the best possible team for our fans. And I intend to do it."

When Steinbrenner formed a syndicate to purchase the New York club from the Columbia Broadcasting System in January, 1973, the Yankees, once the game's most powerful force, hadn't won an American League pennant since 1964 or a world championship since 1962.

"To me, America always has been apple pie, Kate Smith and Yankee pinstripes," Steinbrenner said.

Within three years, the Yankees had won the American League pennant. Within four, they had begun a skein of World Series championships which has already reached two and is pointing toward the strings put together in the 1920s and 1950s.

When the courts ruled out the old slavish reserve clause and opened the door to the free agent market, Steinbrenner was in the front row with the rubber bands off his billfold.

He grabbed Catfish Hunter for $3.5 million. Then he added Reggie Jackson ($2.9 million), following with Don Gullett ($2.09 million) and last year Rich Gossage ($2.7 million).

Into the million-dollar pitching staff of Hunter, Gullett and Gossage were woven ailing Andy Messersmith ($1 million) and Rawly Eastwick ($1.1 million), both later discarded.

Ron Guidry, meanwhile, turned into a surprise $600,000 jewel, and the Yankees added mound insurance by signing Boston's aging Luis Tiant ($600,000).

Fending off complacency, Steinbrenner advised his stockholders that profits would be funneled back into the club. If anybody didn't like it, George was willing to buy their shares. There are only a dozen or so minor stockholders, some with 2 percent holdings.

Steinbrenner's aim: Gain controlling interest, build on success.

The plan has worked. For the second year, the Yankees drew more than 2 million fans both at home and on the road. Their receipts from ticket sales and concessions were put at $13 million with $3 million added from TV. The Yankees probably cleared $3 million.

UCLA ready for opener with Boise

By The Associated Press

UCLA, rated No. 2 among the nation's college basketball teams, warms up for its Pacific-10 Conference battles against lightly-regarded Boise State tonight.

Other season openers tonight include No. 6 ranked Texas at Long Beach State, Washington State against Seattle Pacific, San Diego State at Oregon, Cal Poly-Pomona at California, and new Pac-10 members Arizona and Arizona State meeting in a game at Tempe.

The Bruins, 25-3 last year, are rated second in the nation in The Associated Press preseason poll, largely because of four returning starters led by 6-foot-9 David Greenwood and 6-2 Roy Hamilton.

Boise State was 13-14 last year. Coach Bus Connor said he's willing to take his team into forbidding odds at Pauley Pavilion to face UCLA because "our idea is that we want to play a good basketball team to see what we can do."

Saturday night the Bruins should get more competition when they face DePaul at Pauley, where UCLA has a 201-6 record. DePaul was 27-3 last winter but star center Dave Corzine has graduated.

"This is the third time we've opened against UCLA in six years," DePaul Coach Ray Meyer said. "We try to tie it in because a lot of Chicago people go out for the USC-Notre Dame football game and then they can go to our game with UCLA that night."

Texas Coach Abe Lemons' team won the National Invitational Tournament last year and finished 26-5. The Longhorns open against a Long Beach team with a new coach, former Kansas State and Northwestern Coach Tex Winter.

"We're not that good," Lemons said. "How can you be sixth with nobody mentioned on the All-American teams?"

Texas was ambushed in an early season loss at Southern Cal last year. Lemons was asked how he goes about scouting teams like Long Beach State, and he replied: "What difference would it make? It wouldn't change the way we're gonna play them."

Lemons then was asked why most coaches have their opponents scouted. "Because their daddies did," Lemons said.

San Francisco, 17th rated, opens at Cal-Santa Barbara Saturday night. Independent Nevada-Las Vegas, rated 20th, is home against Stetson and San Diego State opens at Oregon State in another Saturday night game.

Nevada-Reno, expected to challenge San Francisco in the West Coast Athletic Conference, plays its opener at Houston Monday. Seattle opens at Washington Tuesday.

Southern Cal, ranked 13th in the preseason poll, waits until Thursday to begin its season at home against Houston.

Gabriel captures CFL MVP honors

TORONTO (AP) — Tony Gabriel, all-star tight end with the Ottawa Rough Riders, was named the Canadian Football League's outstanding player Thursday night and claimed his fourth award as the league's outstanding Canadian.

Gabriel, a 29-year-old Burlington, Ontario, native, was selected outstanding player over Edmonton Eskimos quarterback Tom Wilkinson, the 1974 winner. Gabriel led Eastern Conference pass receivers with 67 catches for 1,070 yards, the fourth year in a row he had total gains of more than 1,000 yards.

The 35-year-old Wilkinson, a Grey Bull, Wyo., native, led the Eskimos to first place in the WFC with a 10-4-2 record and led conference passers with a .606 completion percentage.

Gabriel joins former Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson in having won the outstanding Canadian player award four times.

Winners in other outstanding-player categories in voting by sports writers and broadcasters in the nine CFL cities:

Rookie—Joe Poplawski, the 21-year-old flanker for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers who led the league with 75 passes caught for 998 yards.

Offensive lineman—Jim Coode, Ottawa Rough Riders tackle.

Defensive player—Edmonton tackle Dave Fennell, who carries the nickname Dr. Death as leader of the fierce Eskimos front four.

The outstanding player received a savings bond for $3,000 while the runner-up got a $1,000 bond.

Japan wins gold medal

TOKYO (AP) — Japan and East Germany won gold medals Thursday in the first two individual events opening the four-day International Judo Championship.

Yasuhiro Yamashita, the 1978 national champion, beat fellow Japanese Haruki Uemura, the 1976 Olympic champion, 59 seconds into a scheduled seven-minute bout in the heavyweight division. Dietmar Lorenz of East Germany won the light heavyweight title by beating Kazuhiro Ninomiya of Japan in 3:19.

Class AAAA playoffs open

BOB DILLON

Well folks, the regular high school football season came to a close over the weekend with Midland Lee downing cross-town rival Midland, 21-8, to bring the 1978 campaign to a close.

Odessa Permian now moves into the first round of the playoffs against the Lewisville Farmers in Abilene Saturday afternoon. The Panthers finished fifth in the AP Poll and are rated third in this week's Harris Poll.

Looking back at last week's games, this corner hit 39 right and missed eight for a percentage of .830.

Abilene didn't win, like I thought it might, but the finales wound up pretty much like they should.

On the season, the record stands 397 right and 81 wrong for a percentage of 81.3 which isn't too bad I say so myself.

So now, it's time to look at this week's 16 playoff games in Class AAAA circles as 32 teams start in search of the coveted state championship on December 23. My gosh, that's just two days before Christmas! The UIL moved the calendar back one week, making the final weekend later this year.

ODESSA PERMIAN takes on a team that runs out of the Wishbone and also one that has lots of speed. The Farmers' only loss was to the Arlington Colts, 31-14 as they won the District 6-4A title, going unbeaten. They take a 9-1 record into Saturday's afternoon contest in P.E. Shottwell Stadium. Going with Vic Vines and Gregg Lambert's passing and running and that always-tough Mojo defense. Say Permian to win by 21-7...

OTHER GAMES: El Paso Bel Air to post a narrow 16-14 victory over El Paso Address in that bi-district playoff game in the Sun Bowl; Plainview will roll over Amarillo High in the Bulldogs' game in Amarillo. Plainview is 9-1 with its only loss to Midland Lee, 16-14 and takes a 9-1 mark into the game. Amarillo has lost to Odessa. Permian and Plainview once already early in the season; Arlington Lamar wants another shot at Permian in the second round after losing to the Panthers, 34-7 last year in the regional playoff game. The Vikings will get their chance by taking a 28-13 win over Arlington Heights in bi-district; Garland returns to the playoffs for the first time in several years and the Owls are reported to have speed to burn. Garland will dispose of L.D. Bell, 32-16; W.T. White of Dallas takes on Dallas Carter in on that ought to be close. Going with White to post a 20-13 win over Carter's Cowboys; Plano is back in defense of its state championship last year and will get off to a good start with a narrow 13-10 win over Tyler. This one can go either way; Temple, the favorite to win the state crown this year, will win in a breeze over Conroe. Well maybe not a breeze, but will win, 20-8; Houston Stratford is loaded and will be too much for Houston Madison. Stratford to take a big 42-12 win; Houston Yates will take a wild 26-23 win over Houston Kashmere; Aldine will win by 10 points — 20-10 over Vidor; LaPorte too touch for Galveston Ball, but it will still be a good game. LaPorte 26, Ball 16; Stephens F. Austin of Austin, a team that Abilene High beat, 27-7, will take a narrow 14-13 win over Lamar Consolidated; San Juan Pharr-Alamo over Corpus Christi Ray, 23-20; San Antonio Jay to waltz past San Antonio Judson, 27-7; San Antonio Churchill to take a 32-8 win over San Antonio Burbank and in the Class AAA playoff game in the Tall City here tonight, Fort Stockton will zip Lubbock Estacado, 20-0.

Rockies fire Kelly after taking them to league title

DENVER (AP) — Pat Kelly, veteran minor-league coach who took over the young Colorado Rockies last season and led them to their first National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs, was fired Thursday night after Colorado lost to the Vancouver Canucks 7-2.

It was the Rockies second straight defeat. Kelly left the club with a 3-14-3 season record.

Kelly, 43, and in his 15th season as a coach, was unavailable for comment. His successor was not named when the firing was announced about midnight but the appointment was expected later today.

"Pat is an honest, hard-working person and has been through some trying circumstances which include a demanding early road schedule and an unprecedented rash of serious player injuries," Rockies General Manager Ray Miron said.

"However, it is obvious because of our record that we had to make a change," Miron added.

Kelly's future role with the club remained uncertain, a club spokesman said.

Kelly signed with the Rockies at the beginning of last season. He had coached the Birmingham Bulls of the World Hockey Association the previous season, his first in the majors.

The Rockies finished second in the Smythe Division last season with a 19-40-2 record. They were eliminated in two games by Philadelphia in an opening round best-of-three series.

Bassett to buy Argonaut team

TORONTO (AP) — John Bassett's bid to purchase majority interest of the Toronto Argonaut Football Club will not be approved by the Canadian Football League when executives meet today to discuss the matter.

Bill Hodgson, majority owner of the club, made a deal with Bassett Sr. to sell 60 per cent of the team after the Argos were eliminated from the Eastern Conference playoffs on Nov. 5. But the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, among others, are not prepared to talk about the sale just yet.

McEnroe, Fleming take wins in Italy tennis

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Americans John McEnroe and Peter Fleming, Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia and Italian Adriano Panatta gained the semifinals Thursday in Italy's $50,000 international indoor tournament.

All but top-seeded McEnroe had to go to three sets. Fleming took 52 minutes to beat Balazs Taroczy of Hungary 6-3, 1-6, 6-2. Franulovic eliminated South African Bernie Mitton 7-5, 1-6, 6-2, and Panatta won over Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

But McEnroe, the rising star of American tennis and recent winner in Stockholm and London, easily downed Kari Meiler of West Germany 6-3, 6-4.

In the semifinals Friday, McEnroe plays Fleming, his friend and frequent doubles partner. Franulovic and Panatta square off in the other match.

Fleming's play seemed tentative at first, and in the second set, he was completely out of form. But he quickly gained strength and, using his strong arm, he overpowered the Hungarian in the decisive third.

Mitton, who upset seeded Sandy Mayer of the United States Wednesday, was visibly tired after he lost the first set 7-5. He took advantage of Franulovic's erratic playing in the second set, but his resistance crumbled in the crucial third.

Panatta, who hurt his right ankle Wednesday, rallied from 1-4 down in the third set before mastering his Czech opponent.

Southern Cal Coach John Robinson has had no trouble getting his third-ranked Trojans psyched up for Saturday's game against eighth-rated Notre Dame.

"We were embarrassed in South Bend last year and we still have vivid memories of that," said Robinson, referring to the 49-19 pasting the Irish inflicted on the Trojans a year ago.

"The tradition of this game is also second to none. Then there's the fact it's on national television.

"There are enough reasons for us to try like heck to play our best game of the year."

The Trojans are 9-1 and will represent the Pacific-10 in the Rose Bowl. They still harbor hopes for a national championship, pointing to a 24-14 decision over second-ranked Alabama earlier this season.

Top-rated Penn State put its unbeaten streak on the line today against 15th-ranked Pittsburgh, 8-2. Penn State is headed for the Sugar Bowl, Pitt for the Tangerine Bowl.

Alabama, off this weekend, closes out its regular season against Southeastern Conference rival Auburn on Dec. 2. A victory will send the Crimson Tide into the Sugar Bowl against Penn State.

Notre Dame has won eight in a row since dropping its first two games and is headed for the Cotton Bowl. The Irish rely on the passing of Joe Montana and the running of Vagas Ferguson and Jerome Heavens. Ferguson has already gained a school-record 1,160 yards in 200 carries this season.

Solomon dazzles players, fans during Grand Prix tennis meet

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Harold Solomon rarely dazzles his opponents, but his clever, conservative style has made him one of the winningest players on the Grand Prix tennis circuit this year.

The American player scored another unspectacular victory Thursday, beating Brazil's Joao Soares 6-4, 6-2 to reach the quarter-finals of the $175,000 Argentine Open Grand Prix tournament at the Buenos Aires Lawn Tennis Club.

Solomon, who is seeded second, can gain a berth in the eight-man Grand Prix Masters championships in New York next January by winning this tournament and collecting its 175 Grand Prix points.

He faced Chris Lewis of New Zealand in a quarter-final battle today.

He waged a 75-minute match of long rallies to defeat the Brazilian, scoring winners on the rare occasions he ventured toward the net. He did this twice in the seventh game to score the only service break of the first set, and went on to whip his more stylish opponent in the last three games of the match.

"I'm not a defensive player as they all say I am," Solomon said afterward. "I just do what I feel is best at the right moment. I know I play well and I'm satisfied with what I've achieved in tennis, which is of a higher standard today than it ever was."

The American's chief rival here, top-seeded Corrado Barazzutti of Italy, reached the quarter-finals with a 6-4, 6-4 win over Argentina's Hugo Varela. He was to play Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil today.

Third-seeded Jose Higuera downed Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-4, and fourth-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina beat Werner Zirnagl of West Germany 6-1, 6-1. Clerc was to play Ricardo Ycaza of Ecuador in the quarter-finals, while Higuera was to meet Victor Pecci of Paraguay.

Michigan, ranked sixth, can gain the Big 10 berth in the Rose Bowl by winning its traditional match-up against 16th-ranked Ohio State. Michigan, 9-1, is a one-touchdown favorite even though the game is being played in Columbus, Ohio.

In other major games Saturday, No. 5 Houston attempts to lock up the Southwest Conference berth in the Cotton Bowl by beating Texas Tech, No. 9 Texas plays at Baylor, South Carolina is at 10th-ranked and Gator Bowl-bound Clemson, No. 11 Arkansas is at Northern Methodist, Iowa plays at No. 14 Michigan State and Indiana is at No. 18 Purdue.
