"It was a very well-planned operation, not a bunch of kids playing around," said an American source who asked not to be identified. "A group of three were lying in wait on a side street. They had appar-

Grimm was acting managing director of the Oil Service Company of Iran, a consortium of foreign oil companies that runs Iran's petroleum industry for the state oil monopoly. Grimm is survived by a widow and three children.

U.S.-Soviet Summit Agreed In Principle

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - U.S. and Soviet negotiators broke off the strategic arms limitation talks in Geneva Saturday without an expected agreement and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance turned his attention here to the stalled Mideast peace talks.

Both Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said in Geneva after eight hours of talks Saturday they still hoped to complete a new SALT agreement "in the nearest possible future." They gave no details of their disa-

Failure to reach an arms accord was caused by an unexpected snag that developed Saturday morning after the two sides had nearly completed their work Friday night.

Mideast Talks Set
In a brief statement at the airport after arriving in Brussels from Geneva, Vance spoke only of his planned meetings here on the Mideast with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil

In a joint statement in Geneva, Vance and Gromyko said they had "essentially reached agreement on most of the questions on which disagreement had existed We agreed in principle on a meeting of the heads of the two states. The question of timing is to be a subject for careful consideration by both sides." Asked how he would describe the issues left, Gromyko said,"Some are important. Some are not. They must be resolved before there can be a summit."

"Both Sides Determined" Grornyko added, "both sides are fully determined to complete their work with-in the shortest possible time."

The outcome of the talks was less than Vance had hoped for when he flew to Geneva and said he wanted to reach a basis for signing an agreement at a summit meeting between Presidents Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev next

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass reported the two sides reached agreement on "a number of basic outstanding questions" but said some issues were unresolved. The agency said the remaining issues could be ironed out "by using ordinary channels between Moscow and Washington.

Carter Talks To Vance In Plains, Ga., President Carter spoke to Vance by telephone. He and press sec-retary Jody Powell both refused comment on the negotations.

An American official questioned by reporters in Geneva said "there were one or two issues," introduced into the talks. He refused to say when or by whom, but other sources said the U.S. position had not changed. The official also said the Soviet attitude was "less forthcoming," leading to a situation in which loose ends that had seemed like minor details "turned out ot be much more complex and harder to work out than we had thought they would

Friday evening and Saturday, American sources had said that a tentative deal had been struck and that Vance and Gromyko would announce it Saturday at noon. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said at the time, "We are close to the end of the road." But the White House had cautioned

Before the negotiations, American officials said only a few technical issues were left in their quest to conclude six years of negotiations for a new treaty. One often mentioned issue was the American desire for a ban on coding sig-nals from test rockets, a recent Soviet that several difficult issues still had to be whether the Soviets are abiding by restrictions on missile equipment and modernization.

Once signed, the treaty must be ratified by the U.S. Senate and the Soviet Parlia-ment. An affirmative vote in Moscow is virtually guaranteed once Kremlin leaders accept the three-year pact.

Hance Resolutions Outline Ambitious Role, Objectives For Freshman Solon

By PAULA TILKER Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. REP.-ELECT Kent Hance has drafted New Year's resolutions few of his constituents would envy but which may be a basis for keeping tabs on him via voters' long memories.

Topping the public list is the awesome role as successor to George Mahon, something of a legend in Washington after 44 years as the 19th Congressional District's only representative.

Next will be the politically nerve-tightening task of balancing conservative constituents' wishes with the more liberal aims of Jimmy Carter - a fellow Democrat known for expecting party loyalty on pet issues.

Efforts on behalf of farmers, the Taiwanese, oilmen and Americans unhappy with the federal budget, all of whom Hance believes need special attention, will be sandwiched into the list.

Only six weeks after the general election and 22 days before his Jan. 15 swearing-in, Hance has resolved his approach to the first issue, warned Carter's administration of the second and drafted tentative plans on the third.

Of his succession to Mahon, Hance recently told The Ava-

Holiday's Religious Aspects Get In-Depth Exploration

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

Associated Press Writer

A "jolly" holiday, it's called, a "merry" time, but the basic point of Christmas is awesomely radical: "The Word became flesh, and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth.

That's the way Christmas is described by the gospel of John, which doesn't even mention the familiar story of Mary and Joseph going to Bethlehem, the birth in a stable, the shepherds and wise men.

These apparently seemed secondary in some sense, as they aren't mentioned in Mark's gospel either.

"The Word was with God, and the Word was God," John wrote, and that creator of "all things," the "light of men," became a human being. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it.

That underlying significance - of God's "Word" becoming human in the advent of Jesus - implies a universal transition in all history, as Christians see Elementally, a "word" is a means of communication, and also the expression of thought. In the case of Jesus being God's "Word", says the late Bible scholar William Barclay, "it means that Jesus is God's means of communicating with us" and that "Jesus is the expression of the thought of God.

"If we want to see what God is thinking, if we want to see how God's mind works, we have only to look at Jesus...The mind of God became a flesh-and-blood person. That connotation of "mind," "wisdom," or "will" stems from the Greek "logos," a term out of ancient Greek philosophy, used by John in his gospel and in English translated as "Word"

But the incarnation not only is seen as bringing the divine will into human reach, comprehension and caring, but also as manifesting the sacred grandeur of human life itself.

The event is "the great exaltation of man," wrote the Polish cardinal who is now Pope John Paul II in a series of meditations, "Sign of Contradiction," written in 1976 and to be published in English in February.

He says that in the incarnation, the "Infinite accepts limits" and man himself finds his origins.

"The Son of God is born as man through the Holy Spirit, and the children of men become the adopted children of God, thus aquiring the right to call him

'Abba' - 'Father! "The face of the earth changes in its essential dimension, and this interior change is a fundamental fruit of the Nativity, the principal reason for our Christ-

Yet, all the commercialism, glitter and sentimentality of the occasion often mask the central message

We try very hard to tame Christmas." the Rev. Dr. Malcolm Nygren, a Presbyterian pastor of Champaign, Ill., writes in the weekly Church Herald.

But in spite of the brassy commercials, the attempts to trivialize Christmas into a children's holiday, and even the folksy familiarity of our religous observances, God often surprises us at Christmas with holy moments. At these moments, we know that we have brushed against eternity.

That new proximity of the divine, that intimate involvement of ultimate life in human life, is considered the fundamental fact of the celebration.

"Christmas points our imaginations and hearts to the new visibility of God's promises; not far off, but carried and made visible in Jesus of Nazareth," the Rev. Peter Schineller of Chicago's Jesuit School of Theology, writes in the national Catholic weekly, America.

As believers see it, the event broke through the great mystery, and through Jesus, mirrored God's ways within the limitations of human life, enabling fellow human beings to know his purposes for them, and value of them.

This primarily makes clear that "God cares," Barclay writes. "The very fact that God involved himself in the human situation at all shows that he cares. One of the earlier Greek principles was that gods cannot care.

"But the fact of Jesus' coming is the final and unanswerable proof that God cares...Not only that God cares but that God shares. God in Jesus shared the life of man; he entered the human situation

That situation is dark, as Scripture describes it, and he did not automatically make it all brightness and bliss, but rather endured the worst of the darkness, yet

Scholar, Satirical Cartoonist Had Hand In Shaping Santa Claus

Santa wasn't always fat and jolly. Once he was thin and solemn. And his first sky vehicle was a wagon from which, disdaining a sack, he dropped gifts down chimneys from his Sleigh, reindeer and suit came 14 years later. The wagon-wafted St. Nick was the creation of Washington Irving in his 1809 "Knickerbocker's History of New York." Irving pictured the tree-hopping saint as an early Dutch settler and guardian of New York City. But the landmark Santa arrived in 1823 with Clement C. Moore's immortal "A Visit from St. Nicholas," published in the Troy, N.Y., Sentinel. The poem firmly entrenched Claus as a jolly, tubby elf complete with sleigh pulled by Prancer, Dancer, Vixen and company.

A professor, Moore at first refused to acknowledge "Visit." He called it doggerel. But its popularity couldn't be denied and the author included it in an 1844 book called

An engraver who made a woodcut for the book used as a model the Moores' fat, jolly, pipe-smoking Dutch caretaker. The concept was reinforced by Robert W. Weir's 1837 painting and an 1866 cartoon by Thomas Nast showing the familiar Santa trappings of knee boots, sleigh, Christmas tree and fireplace stockings.

Thus, Moore, a scholarly classicist, and Nast, a vitriolic lampoonist of politicians, were the unlikely moulders of Santa Claus' present-day image. The legends and versions all derived from a real person, Saint Nicholas, an extremely kind bishop of about 300 A.D. who often went out at night to help the needy with gifts. In the present century, Santa lore progressed steadily to books such as the Santa Claus Bank Robbery, the Santa Claus Mystery, and the Life and Adventures of Santa Claus.

Even J.R.R. Tolkien deserted his world-famous hobbits once to pen "The Father Christmas Letters." Father Christmas, an Old World version, was a thin, stately churchman who rode about on a white steed dispensing presents to deserving youngsters and switches to the other kind. But the image soon faded in America.

Seventy-four years after "Visit" came another famous item of Santa lore, a Sept. 21, 1897, editorial in the New York Sun. "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," Francis P. Church assured a young letter writer.

Yet lingering doubts remain through the years. As late as 1977 Harold Myra sought to answer the question in a juvenile entitled, "Santa, Are You for Real?"

Missile Crews Work Holiday

ELLSWORTH AIR FORCE BASE, S.D. (UPI) - Air Force Sgt. Willis Hill and 15 colleagues will spend Christmas beneath the frozen prairie of western South Dakota, staffing Missile Launch Control Facilities.

Hill, a site manager, will direct a staff of two flight security controllers, two alert-response teams and a cook at Bravo LCF during a 72-hour shift which includes Christmas. 'It'll be the same as the other 364 days in the year except it's Christmas,'

Hill said. "There'll be provisions for the families of married men to come out and try to make it a normal Christmas.' Because he's single, Hill volunteered to work so married personnel from the base near Rapid City could spend the day at home. 'The wives bake extra goodies for the crews to brighten up the day," Hill said. "One thing for sure, we'll spend as much time watching the football games as possible.

Those staffing the 15 LCFs are responsible for 150 underground nuclear missile sites scattered in western South Dakota across 13,000 square miles. Airman Doug Sternhagen, Bravo's cook, said turkey, ham, dressing, pies and other desserts are on the Dec. 25 menu for the crew. "I wanted to cook Christmas dinner," Sternhagen said. "I enjoy cooking."

But others pointed out the holiday means more than buying presents. Nativity scenes are on display in Chica-

"Dear firemen," the card said. "Thank you for saving our church. It would have been a sad Christmas if we had no St. Luke Church to pray in. God bless you. Third graders.'

Rape Defense Based On Marriage Tested

SALEM, Ore. (AP) - Greta and John Rideout, a young couple with private marital problems, now are the principals in a court case that has brought them national attention both say they never want-

The case, seen as a test of whether a man can be charged with raping his wife, hinges on three words - "not married to" - deleted in 1977 from Oregon's rape law. In most states, marital privilege is considered a defense against rape.

Rideout, 21, has pleaded innocent in what is believed to be the nation's first criminal prosecution of a husband charged with raping his wife while they lived together.

Mrs. Rideout has received support from the Salem Women's Crisis Center, which operates a rape telephone hotline and shelter for battered women.

Nancy Burch, board director, said, however, the center has gotten few offers of help from women's rights groups. She said the center discouraged a Portland group from sending representatives to

'This is a conservative community," Miss Burch said of Oregon's capital city. We would rather not have large public demonstrations."

During the trial last week, Rideout sat quietly in Marion County Circuit Court as the prosecution called 22 witnesses, including his mother, stepbrother, sister and sister-in-law.

Rideout has lived with his mother in nearby Silverton since Oct. 10. His attorney, Charles Burt, says he is working as a

According to trial testimony, Rideout was out of work Oct. 10. the day of the alleged attack on his wife, after leaving a job at a service station. Witnesses testified that Mrs. Rideout, 23, was working at a Fred Meyer supermarket during the same period.

She went to a lawyer to seek a divorce Oct. 11, her divorce attorney testified Friday. She also wanted custody of their 212-year-old daughter.

told The Associated Press that she lost her supermarket job in November and planned to start a clerical job at Oregon's Children's Services Division this month

A friend of Mrs. Rideout's said she later decided not to take that job because of the strain of the trial.

"She just wasn't ready emotionally," the friend said. "She discussed it with her boss and they said they'd put her at the top of the list for the next opening."

Mrs. Rideout said she dropped out of high school in her senior year, but later earned an equivalency diploma. She said she came to Oregon about four years ago after leaving her home in Spring Park,

She met Rideout and they lived together for a while with Rideout's stepbrother, Jack Hinkle. She said she became pregnant, but refused to marry Rideout at the Hinkle testified Friday that he asked the Rideouts to move out of his house after Mrs. Rideout accused him of forcing her to have sex. He testified that the accusation was false and that Mrs. Rideout later admitted to friends that she had

The defense claimed in its opening argument that Mrs. Rideout had "a serious sexual problem" and that the young couple had a stormy marriage.

Three witnesses testified last week that Mrs. Rideout told them she was excited about a $50,000 movie offer for her life story. She is expected to be called to testify sometime after the prosecution resumes its case Tuesday.

Mrs. Rideout, in an interview, said she was looking forward to "peace of mind and to forgetting about this. Well, not to forget, but not to let it carry on with me the rest of my life as something that gets

WASHINGTON (AP) - An official of a broadcast industry group is asserting that there is "a clear trend" away from local newspaper-broadcasting cross-owner-

John Dimling, vice president and director of research for the National Association of Broadcasters, compared the number of newspaper-television combinations in 1970 and 1978.

Perhaps one of the most important things to be said about local cross-ownership is that it has become less interesting," said Dimling, who has been involved in the issue since it first surfaced before the Federal Communications Commission in 1970.

Dimling noted in 1970 newspaper-television joint ownerships representing 14 percent of the TV stations in the country. The number had dropped to 43 by 1978, and six of these are subject to divestiture under FCC rules, he said.

Decline In Sales Expected On Big-Ticket Items

NEW YORK (AP) — Christmas may be the last big buying splurge in a while for many people. The impact of inflation and jitters over the economy appear to be sinking in.

Big-ticket items are particularly vulner-able, according to analysts who say that consumers are starting to have second thoughts about buying expensive goods like a new washing machine, if the old

"Mortgage rates are the subject of cocktail conversation," says Brian Wrub-ble, an analyst at Smith Barney, Harris & Upham Inc. With such widespread recognition of high interest rates and worries about the economy, he feels sales of homes and sales of major appliances will stantially next year.

Fabian Linden, a consumer economist at The Conference Board, also notes that the business research group's survey of consumer confidence and buying plans took a sharp turn downward in November after increasing in the three previous

"The deflation of consumer spirits appears to be heavily influenced by the rate of inflation," says Linden. The Conference Board's survey, released this past week, showed a 10-point drop to 91.5 in its index on general confidence about the economy, employment and income.

Its buying-plans index, measuring plans on major appliances, homes and autos, tumbled 11 points to 105.6. Both indexes are measured against a 1969 base of 100 and reflect responses from 5,000 people.

In a separate survey of of 1,400 people, Citibank reported that high prices and sharply decreased buying power com-bined to push consumer confidence to its lowest point since late 1976. The survey found that nearly two out of three people think the economy will worsen, and one out of four people think it will get "much

The practical implication of such surveys is already showing up in some areas with slower sales of big ticket items and expectations of even slower sales in 1979. Wrubble calculates that shipments of major appliances dropped 9.5 percent in the third quarter from the previous period, after increasing 3.6 percent in the second quarter and jumping more than 17 percent at the start of the year. He excludes sales of microwave oven because they are too new an item to accurately make seasonal adjustments.

Part of the drop reflects consumer caution and a feeling that it is better to play it safe and wait rather then reduce savings or increase debt, which on a national average is already high.

But it also reflects projections that new housing construction may decline by about 15 percent next year from the brisk 2 million housing units this year. The major reason is tighter credit and higher mortgage rates, which have gone as high as 11 percent in some areas.

Some manufacturers of major home appliances, Whirlpool, General Electric and others have already laid off several hundred workers, or announced plans to do so in order to prepare for a slowdown in sales. The Frigidaire division of General Motors plans to lay off several thousand workers for two weeks next month to reduce excess inventory.

Wrubble expects total appliance sales to fall about 5 percent in 1979 from the 33 million this year. He also forecasts that sales will not begin climbing again until

But economists said they expected inflation to worsen again. Prices so far this year have been increasing at close to a 9.5 percent rate.

*Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said inflation next year would exceed 7 percent, higher than the administration's previous estimates of 6 to 6.5 percent. One reason was the expected impact of a 14.5 percent increase in imported crude oil prices, which the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries decided were trading for around $295 by late last week. But the split couldn't take place until after stockholders vote on the director's recommendation in April.

Chemical Bank, the nation's sixth largest, raised its prime rate to 11% percent, the 15th increase since Jan. 1 when the rate stood at 7% percent. Analysts said they expected other banks to do the same, but at week's end other major lenders were sticking to the 111/2 percent

The prime rate represents interest banks charge their best corporate customers but is watched as an indicator of general interest rate trends.

108 Perish In Airliner Crash

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) - The death of 108 persons in an Alitalia jetliner crash off the Sicilian coast early Saturday has sparked a controversy over the safety precautions at Palermo's airport, scene of two major crashes in six years.

Authorities said only 21 of the 129 persons aboard the DC9 survived when it plunged into the Tyrhennian Sea about three miles short of the runway.

Most of the 124 passengers on the special Rome-Palermo-Cataia flight were Sicilians returning home for Christmas from their jobs in northern Italy and abroad, Alitalia said. An airline spokesman in Montreal said there were no U.S. or Canadian citizens on board.

By late Saturday, 28 bodies had been plucked from the icy waters, the bodies of 16 men, 11 women and one 9-monthold child, officials said.

The cause of the crash was not known.

and survivors said nothing seemed to be wrong with the aircraft until it hit the sea at 12:40 a.m. and sank. Two fishing boats nearby rescued all the survivors.

In 1972 an Alitalia DC8, also attempting to land in darkness, crashed near the Punta Raisi Airport, killing all 115 passengers aboard.

Alitalia, local law officials and the national government ordered separate probes as criticism of the airport mount-

The national news agency ANSA reported that the airport lacked equipment for any rescue at sea. Angelo Bonfiglio, a Christian Democrat deputy and former president of the Sicily region, attacked its 'inadequacies," particularly in "rescue" operations.

Computer Company Announces Extraordinary Stock Split

NEW YORK (AP) - International Business Machines had an early Christmas present for investors this past week: A dividend increase and a proposal for a landmark stock split.

IBM's directors increased the dividend by nearly 20 percent from $2.88 to $3.44 a share, effective with the first-quarter payment in 1979.

And they proposed a 4-for-1 split, sub-ject to a shareholder vote next spring, that would put the stock's price below $100 a share for the first time in decades. Assuming it is approved - and brokers said there is no apparent reason not to it would be the first split for IBM since a 5-for-4 distribution in 1973.

IBM stock stood at 271 Tuesday morning when the news was announced. By the 4 p.m. close in New York on Friday, it had climbed to 295.

The rest of the market responded with similar enthusiasm. After a 17.84-point setback Monday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained ground steadily through the rest of the week, finishing with a net advance of 3.12 at 808.47.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose .46 to 53.77, and the American Stock Exchange market value index climbed 1.55 to 150.85.

Big Board volume averaged 27.51 million shares a day, up from 22.03 million the week before.

Analysts noted that news involving IBM often affects the general market because of the company's preeminent position as one of the bluest of the blue chips. For years it has been No. 1 on the list of stocks in the portfolios of investing insti-

The dividend increase, brokers pointed out, came as a tangible signal of confidence in the outlook of IBM directors.

The split, for its part, was aimed at bringing the stock's price into the buying range of a broader range of individual investors.

At its current level, purchase of a 'round lot" of 100 IBM shares requires an outlay of nearly $30,000 - beyond the range of many small investors, particularly since such investors are frequently warned that they should keep their portAssuming the stock were split from its present price level, a 100-share purchase would fall into the less exclusive neighborhood of $7,000-$7,500. A stock split by itself does nothing to change the total value of an investor's holdings, and market history has demonstrated that it is no assurance of a subsequent rise in the price of the issue. But splits have always enjoyed a special place in the mythology of Wall Street in part as a mark of a company's past progress and future ambitions. In a study published earlier this year, Standard & Poor's Corp. analysts observed that stock-split activity tends to function as an indicator of the general state of the market's health. Thus in 1976, a generally strong year, there were 99 splits of 3-for-2 or more (or their equivalents, stock dividends of 50 percent or more). In 1977, when the Dow Jones industrial average fell 17 percent, the number of splits dropped off to 88. Four years ago, in the depths of a bear market, the number hit a low of 35. That contrasted sharply with the record of 147 set in 1969, in the final stages of the booming market of the 1960s. Analysts who earn their living searching for indicators of where the market might be headed have detected a marked pattern in all this.

And they suggest that, along excitement they can create, watchful investors might take any future rash of stock splits as one hint that the market might be at or near a top.

The parrot is the only bird that yawns.

The Market Meter Oil Price Increase Staggers Market

By J. L. HUTCHESON Schneider, Bernet & Hickman, Inc.

The planned increase in oil prices announced last weekend by the world's leading oil producers dealt the stock market a staggering blow early this week in the heaviest trading since early November. Tumbling 17.84 points, the Dow Jones industrial average sustained its biggest setback in almost seven weeks Monday. By the week's end, the market managed to regain some of its loss in slow pre-holiday trading.

Members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to post oil prices a total of 14.5 percent by next Oct. 1, starting with a 5 percent rise Jan. 1. Few analysts had expected an increase of this magnitude. Most experts had looked for OPEC to increase oil prices by only 7 percent to 8 per-

The OPEC price increase put renewed pressure on the dollar. The dollar's recent recovery had been based on support from central banking authorities and expectations that the U.S. might be able to slow inflation and reduce its huge international payments deficit. The oil price boost certainly won't improve the trade figures or the U.S. inflation program.

Realignment of equity holdings dominated this week's activity following the oil pricing announcement since Thursday was the last day stocks could be sold under the regular way, or five-day delivery, to post a profit that will go into 1978 taxable income. Selling to establish losses for 1978 can be done through

The market received more negative news Thursday when Chemcial Bank raised their prime rate to 11% percent from 11% percent. More large banks followed suit Friday by boosting their own prime rates to reflect the increase Traders were encouraged, however, by the market's ability to hold up fairly well in the face of such news. There is strong cautiousness among institutional investors. The institutions have again become reluctant to commit their funds to the market in the absence of any indication that interest rates will peak Most analysts are currently looking for the market to have an intermediate term rally which could move the Dow to the 850 level. Any rally, they point out, will likely be short-lived and the consensus for the stock market next year is cloudy at best. Many analysts feel the stock market is in the process of movng lower over the longer term.

Analysts point to IBM's dividend boost and plans for a stock split as probably being the major factor which helped the stock market hold in the face of OPEC's price increase. IBM declared a cash quarterly of $3.44, an increase of 56 cents from the previous quarter, and recommended a four-for-one stock split. Many experts maintain that this news helped give a positive note to an otherwise negative market. This news could also aid in an intermediate term erwise negative market. This news could also aid in an intermediate term rally, which many traders and investors are hoping for.

Defense Relying Heavily On Davis' Testimony

HOUSTON (AP) — Millionaire defendant Cullen Davis will "fully explain" next week his incriminating conversations with FBI informant David McCrory, a defense source said Saturday.

It will be a story, the source said, that is both "possible and plausible" and "the jury will believe him because it is the truth.

Davis, 45, a Fort Worth industrialist, is accused of masterminding a summertime plot to kill his divorce judge.

He will say he was framed. The state will say he is lying. Unless there is a last-minute switch in strategy, Davis goes on the stand Thursday to rebut McCrory, 40, the state's key witness in the protracted murder conspiracy trial.

'He is annoyed with the pace of the trial," the source said. "He wants the truth to be known and he wanted it to be known a lot quicker than it's coming The trial began Oct. 30.

In remarks prepared for a televised reply to Carter's announcement, Goldwater called it "a confirmation of the doctrine that might and size make right."

Carter went on the air Dec. 15 to reveal that the United States would extend diplomatic recognition to the People's Republic of China. He also said the 1954 U.S. defense treaty with Taiwan would be terminated.

John F. Murphy, Goldwater's administrative assistant, said that CBS, in accordance with its policy of granting free time for opposition spokesmen following presidential appearances, made the air time available to the senator.

On Friday, Goldwater filed suit in U.S. District Court here seeking to stop Carter from terminating the treaty with Taiwan. The suit, which names Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance as defendants, argues that the president may not constitutionally abrogate a treaty without the consent of the Senate.

"We will pursue the case all the way to the Supreme Court, if necessary," Goldwater said in remarks prepared for the television broadcast.

Panel Eyes Medical Pay Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House subcommittee proposed Saturday that Congress take a firmer hand in regulating Blue Shield plans in order to break up the domination that doctors have in setting medical payment schedules.

Cancer Victim, 10, Buys Gifts Before Death

CANCER VICTIM'S FAMILY - On Christmas Day, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Bonenberger and sons Chad, 5, and Troy, 8 (on his father's lap), will open presents from another son who died of cancer last Sunday. Shawn Bonenberger, 10, bought the gifts when a nurse took him shopping less than two weeks before his death. "If he wasn't going to be here, he wanted to make sure there were presents for the family," Shawn's father said. (AP Laserphoto)

Shawn, who died of a rare form of cancer last Sunday, had discussed his decision in a tape-recorded session with the Rev. Richard Olson of the First Baptist Church in Ra-

"Mom and Dad came in, and the doctors came in," Shawn told Olson. "They said it probably wouldn't work, and if it did work, it would stop working sooner or later and I would die. Or I could just go off treatment, you know, and just, you know, stay at home and just die.

"And I decided not to take the treatment, because I had been through all that and it was hard. And it wouldn't guarantee that I would live.

Ronald Bonenberger said his son was agnosed in January.

When I found out I had cancer, I just thought, 'God'll take care of that," Shawn told Olson. "And He did. Not the way I wanted Him to ... He always answers a prayer, but not always the way you want Him to answer it."

Shawn died of Rhabdomyosarcoma, a fast-spreading cancer that attacks the soft muscle tissue. Radiation and chemotherapy treatments helped only temporarily, his mother said. By the time the disease was discovered, it had already invaded his lungs.

About a month ago, doctors suggested a more extreme, physically taxing drug treatment that would offer no hope for a cure but might prolong his life.

'At the most it would give him some more time," Mrs. Bonenberger said Friday night. But the Bonenbergers asked that Shawn make his own decision, and he decided to live a day at a time.

"You just have as much fun as you can, and make use of it," Shawn told Olson. 'It's like each day is a gift. Like if you say, 'I'm going to clean my room tomorrow,' tomorrow you might not be here. You never know. You just live one day at

Joe Cantu told police that he had just pulled into the driveway of his 2108 Ave. L home about 11:30 p.m. Friday and was getting out of his car when he was shot.

Cantu said he heard a man's voice yell, "Hey," and then was struck in the legs by the gunfire. Two friends with Cantu took him to Health Sciences Center Hospital, where he was treated for small-caliber bullet wounds in the left ankle, foot, knee and thigh and right calf.

Lo-Vaca Approved For More Gas Sales

AUSTIN (AP) - Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. obtained railroad commission approval Friday to continue making emergency spot sales of surplus gas in the interstate market.

The company told a commission examiner earlier this month that Lo-Vaca was losing money because its Texas customers were conserving gas or switching to other fuels while the Lo-Vaca system had built up a surplus of 600 million cu-before Bill Clements has even had a chance to move into the Governor's Mansion (much less unpack his bags), who might be a candidate against him (assuming that the not-yet incumbent does run again)?

One reason that the elves may be drawing some overtime is that, as has been pointed out often enough, Texas hasn't had (for over a century) the situation where the governor has been of one party, and the Legislature predominantly of

Nor has there been the situation where the governor and lieutenant governor have been from different parties.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton have both been discussed many times as potential cnadidates for governor - and were viewed as potential rivals to John Hill in his quest of the governorship.

Now, the feeling is, it's Hobby who may have the inside track for the right to challenge Clement in 1982.

Several factors admittedly seem to be Hobby's favor: he will be the top elected Democrat in State government, he has managed, during his tenure as lieutenant governor, to steer a middle course which has won him favor with conservatives and liberals; he has a statewide constituency, and a statewide organization.

Clayton, despite his generally evenhanded approach with the House, is viewed as a conservative - maybe even a somewhat conservative conservative who would have less appeal against Clements, with whom he would (or appear to have) more in common than would Hobby

Both Hobby and Clayton are in a position of being able to justify cooperating or not cooperating with Clements - and can say that by working with him, they have put the good of the state above partisan considerations, or that by not cooperating, they were doing the same thing.

That same thing can work for Clements, of course - as Truman demonstrated in his successful attack on the "Do Nothing" Republican-controlled 80th Con-

Clayton has indicated he feels he can work well with Clements; Hobby has seemed less certain of how his relationship with Clements will develop.

Clayton's position as speaker seems secure going into the new legislative session, but how all that will end up - well, it's anyone's guess.

Therefore, speculation is, Clayton might do well to ally himself with Clements in an effort improve Clayton's plans are.

A-J Austin Bureau AUSTIN - If the projected fight between the Texas Trial Lawyers Association and the insurance industry in the coming session of the Legislature isn't a first-class donnybrook, "there's going to be a lot of disappointed people.

At least that's how one TTLA official describes the situation as the lawyers and their expected allies (perhaps including the Texas Association of Business) square off.

Rep. Jim Nugent of Kerrville had been expected to be the standard-bearer for TTLA in its battle - but Nugent will be on the Railroad Commission, and the lawyers are looking for a new sponsor for their legislation. That bill, whoever carries it and however it may be worded, is planned to focus Commissioners which reports that medithe "insurance reform" bill is that the group feels lawyers have been blamed unfairly for increases in insurance, when the real cause lies with the insurance in-

TTLA contends - although insurers will be quick to offer rebuttal - that the products liability "crisis" (with rising premium rates for manufacturers) has en created by the insurers themselves.

So was, TTLA contends, the medical malpractice insurance "crisis" in 1977. As evidence of that, TTLA cites a report by the National Association of Insurance HOLIDAY SYMBOL - An electrician in the cab of a cherry picker puts the final splice in the wires of a giant menorah, or candalabrum, in midtown New York City Friday. A traditional symbol of Judaism, the menorah customarily has seven branches. However, this one has nine branches as is customary with the one used during the festival of Chanukah, which coincides approximately with the Christmas season. Avalanche-Journal Staff Texas Tech got less than it bargained for this year, when 12,000 campus directories were delivered with enough errors to force administrators to distribute the books free, instead of selling them.

The directories, which usually sell for about $1.25, were handed out to students and staff this month with a note advising them to keep last year's directories for reference because of the "poor quality, numerous inaccuracies and occasional deletions" in the current ones.

Those deletions include an entire page of listings with the phone numbers of, among others, the University Police, University Theatre, University News and Publications, University Daily, University Health Center, the West Texas Museum Association, Water Resources Center and Women's Intramurals.

Additionally, in some directories, listings for students ended with Smith, while

The contract for printing the directories was awarded in April to a Lubbock firm who agreed to pay Texas Tech $4,-250 for printing 12,000 volumes. Last year's contract went to a Midland firm. The printing firm was required to leave on deposit with Texas Tech a cashier's check for $2,500 until the directories were delivered and accepted.

Should the (printing firm) fail to perform and deliver the directories as specified," the contract stated, "the university will apply the $2,500 to the cost of publishing a small temporary directory for its own use."

Although samples of the directory were sent to Tech administrators four times for proofreading, and sent back four times with numerous corrections, the final product apparently had enough errors to cause the university to warn users to be wary - but not enough to force the company to take back 12,000 error-rid-

Gunmen Kill U.S. Oilman In Iran

Anti-shah groups warned American residents in Iran last month they may be killed if they stay here, and more than 5,-000 Americans have left the country since rioting escalated in September. The U.S. embassy warned remaining Americans to use extreme caution in public.

The last Americans to be slain here were three employees of Rockwell International Corp., a major contractor to the Iranian government and military. They were killed Aug. 28, 1976, in Tehran by anti-shah fanatics. The opposition has accused the United States of colonizing Iran by sinking vast amounts of capital here and arming the Iranian military.

In Tehran, a government attempt to reopen schools after six weeks of violence got off to a slow start. Nearly 1,000 high school pupils who skipped classes surged through the streets demanding the overthrow of the shah. Some hurled rocks at troops who stood at the ready.

The Iranian Education Ministry said it planned to open only 21 of 63 of Tehran's school's this school year. Pupils told reporters at many schools they were not going to class.

The pupils weaved in and out of stalled traffic, chanting anti-shah and anti-American slogans, but were dispersed after about an hour. Some waved portraits of Ayatullah Khomaini, who, from his self-exile near Paris, has called for the shah's ouster and creation of an Islamic republic to end the shah's pro-Western reforms which he says are contrary to Islamic teachings. The religious opposition has been joined by his political opponents, who seek an end to the shah's authoritarian rule. Youths taunted armed guards at the closed campus of Tehran University, where 100 professors were in the third day of a sit-in demanding the institution's reopening. It has been closed since September. No serious incidents were re-

Strikes by anti-shah workers, at Khomaini's urging, in the Ahwaz area in recent weeks have crippled the Iranian oil industry. Strikes in November and December cost the government nearly $2 billion in lost revenues, by sharply reducing production the normal production rate of about 6 million barrels daily.

He said he was particularly proud of one case, in which the defendant received only a five-year sentence, because of the scant physical evidence there was to work with

Griffin said he could not comment on the Clarence Allen Lackey or Philip Carey Brasfield cases. Lackey, 23 at the time of his trial, was assessed the death penalty in February of this year by a San Ange lo jury as the result of the July 31, 1977, slaying of Toni Dianne Kumpf.

Victims were being killed at the rate of more than one an hour.

"We have had five multiple-fatality wrecks since the holiday period started (at 6 p.m. Friday)," said DPS spokesman Richard Grimmett. During the first 24 hours of the long Christmas holiday weekend, 25 persons were killed in Texas highway accidents.

"We had estimated as many as 44 persons would die before midnight Monday. The holiday is slightly more than a third through and already we have killed more than half of the projected figure," Grimmett said.

Home Yields Five Bodies

Sex Murders Of 32 Boys Feared In Illinois

CHICAGO (UPI) - Investigators using sledge hammers, power saws and pick axes found three more bodies Saturday as they demolished the home of a man suspected of the sex murders of as many as Authorities feared their excavations in the house and dragging operations in nearby rivers and ponds might unravel a sex-murder case surpassing one in Houston in the early 1970s which took the lives of 27 youths.

Cook County Medical Examiner Robert J. Stein said two of the bodies removed Saturday from "shallow graves" under the six-room yellow brick house - and the other body not yet excavated brought to five the total number found.

He would not speculate how many more bodies might be found under the home owned by the suspect, John Wayne

Small Area Probed He said, however, only about one fourth of the area under the house had been investigated

Police in Des Plaines, a northwest suburb near the unincorporated area where the house is located, had reported four bodies Friday, while Stein reported only two. But Stein explained that only two of the bodies were actually removed Friday and the two taken from the house Saturday may have been among the four reported by police.

Stein said digging was being discontinued as darkness neared and will be resumed after Christmas.

"I'm going home to do some Christmas shopping. After all, I do have a wife." Assistant State's Attorney Terry Sullivan said it might take three weeks to complete the investigation.

Bodies Decomposed Stein said all the bodies were badly decomposed and covered with a gray substance which might be lime. Lime helps bodies decompose faster and reduces the odor associated with decomposition.

He said it was impossible to be certain of their age or sex. None was dismembered and some appeared to have been clothed when they were buried, he said. Stein said four skulls are among the remains and investigators plan to match them with the dental records of missing youths in an attempt to identify the vic-

Gacy, 36, a convicted sex offender who liked to dress as a clown at children's parties, told police he thought he might have killed as many as 32 young men, police said.

Gacy, a stocky construction firm owner who apparently lured young male victims with offers of jobs in his firm, talked at length with investigators, giving them numbers of victims and locations, offi-

An investigator said Gacy had said there were at least 32 bodies beneath the crawl space, garage floor and in the nearby Des Plaines River. Police were dragging a 60-mile stretch of the river southwest of Chicago Saturday.

"He has confessed that he had sex with the boys and then strangled them," the investigator said. "They were all young boys, and the sex occured in his home, after he got them there through promises of employment."

"There is reason to believe" there are more bodies buried under Gacy's ranchstyle house, Stein said. Investigators said more bodies might be found in several 'mounds of earth" under the crawl space of the house.

May Tear Up Floor

Police also said they might tear up the garage floor and a driveway Gacy built two years ago. Neighbors said he built the garage over a swimming pool he filled in, doing most of the work on both projects at night.

Police said Gacy told them he dumped bodies in the Des Plaines River near his house and south of Joliet and in the Kankakee River southwest of Chicago near Bolingbrook and the city of Kankakee.

The search was time-consuming be cause it resembles an archeological dig. Stein said. "It's being done just in that fashion - a camel-hair brush type of thing, bit by bit," Stein said.

But the walls of the house shuddered with the impact of axes and hammers, and members of the Cook County Sheriff's Police Mobile Evidence Unit carried out the debris to a garbage truck.

Stein said he would confer with Houston authorities about a homosexual sex, torture and murder ring they investigated. In Houston, 27 young boys were killed from 1971 to 1974 in a spree blamed on a man and two youths. Gacy apparently had no accomplices, police said.

"There seem to be so many similarities that I want to compare notes with them," Stein said.

Gacy was formally charged Friday with the murder of Robert Piest, 15, who vanished the same day his mother reported he planned to ask Gacy for a job with the PDM Construction Co., which Gacy operated from his home.

Gacy was ordered held without bond at the Cook County Jail hospital because of a history of heart trouble.

Gacy was convicted on a sodomy charge in Waterloo, Iowa, in 1968 and served time in prison until his parole in 1971, officials said. He had been named outstanding vice president of the Waterloo Jaycees.

He was twice divorced, the father of two children and stepfather of two others. He liked to dress as a clown for children's parties, acquaintances said.

ment operations, science and technology and House administration.

His likely appointment to the Agriculture Committee also will be paved by his recent election as president of the freshmen's caucus, Hance said, noting his work with that group has brought him into contact with Speaker Tip O'Neill and other prominent House leaders. His other plans on behalf of farmers may not be attained as easily, and Hance knows it. One of his first goals is to "see if we can get the administration to increase loan prices of commodities in the 1977 farm act." "We know it's going to be a real fight on that," he added, explaining Carter has not been particularly sympathetic to the idea in the past. Because the farm bill passed by the last Congress doesn't expire until 1980, bly will not be introduced. He pledged active support of the planned farmers' tractorcade to Washington late next month. He will meet with leaders before then to learn their purposes and expectations, he added.

Disagreements over farm measures probably will not be the only source of friction between Hance and the official 'party line" as drawn by Carter.

Although he hesitates to sound a negative note and is quick to note areas of agreement, Hance does spotlight some subjects on which he believes his West Teras constituents quarrel with Carter. One, he said, is public financing of elections. While such funding has the president's endorsement, "most people out here don't like it " For himself, Hance added, "I do not ections. You could have all kinds of (fraudulent) things happen.' Welfare reform could be another sore point, he said, although he qualified that by noting it "comes back to a definition

If those words mean more money pumped into the existing program, as of welfare reform."

Carter suggests, then he - because of his constituents - could not approve, Hance said National health insurance as proposed by Massachusetts Sen. Robert Kennedy also would get his veto, he said. But, he again qualified, that does not mean he is opposed totally to all forms of national health insurance. For example, he said, he would consider favorably some proposal for cata-strophe insurance funded through private agencies with a government "kick in" for payments above a certain point. Such legislation, he said, would prevent people from being wiped out financially by bills in, say, the $50,000 range.

His district's philosophy on small oil and gas legislation also differs from that of the administration, he said. Most independent oil companies "feel left alone because the president has moved in the direction of tighter controls," he explained. He said he would vote to override Carter's veto should he choose to reinstate price controls on crude oil when the 1974 regulatory act expires in April.

Oil fields capture Hance's interest on another level. He said he plans to introduce "critical" legislation allowing tertiary oil wells (those using chemical means for crude recovery) to be deregu-

Old fields have about 65 percent of their oil still available, he explained, but the existing price structure makes the expensive tertiary recovery methods financially unfeasible. By encouraging additional oil production nationally, he said, increased taxes would be paid, money would be reinvested locally and the cash flow overseas

"It's something we definitely need to push," he added.

International issues that Hance says concern him include the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks II. "I'm very apprehensive about the U.S. approving those," he said. "I'm not so sure it wouldn't be another agreement the United States got the short end of."

Turmoil in Iran and stepped-up Russian activity in Africa and Cuba also rank as major concerns. One international situation Hance said he intends to become active in is the sale of U.S. arms to Taiwan. Admitting he was "disappointed" by Carter's decision to break diplomatic ties with Taiwan in favor of Red China, Hance added he believes it is "essential Congress makes sure Taiwan" can buy all the weapons it needs. Although Hance has not discussed specifics yet with Carter or his administration representatives, he has subtly informed both the president and Vice President Walter Mondale how his constituents think and what they don't sup-

The congressman-elect said he quipped with Carter that it is an "understatement" to say the 19th district's don't always support him. And, he said, he joshed with Mondale that party politics as outlined by the vice president doesn't jibe totally with West Texas thinking.

Hance is emphatic in his assertions he will vote what his constituents want. "In state government I always did what the district was for and what they thought was right," he said. "I think if ever I have a conflict between the two (conscience and constituents), then I think I have got an obligation to go through the district, make as many speeches as possible and if I change the voters' minds, okay. If not, I have to vote with what the constituents want."

He promises to return to this district every two weeks and every three weeks. alternating. That may increase to every other weekend, he said, adding he plans townhall meetings "from time to time" to discuss national issues and to field questions from constituents. Accessibility will be a key to his term, in Lubbock and Midland to encourage those with case problems to deal with them through his local representatives. Not all thorns will come between the philosophies of Hance and Carter. One of the sweetest-smelling roses is their similar views on a balanced national Hance said he plans to cosponsor a bill calling for a constitutional amendment to that effect. Noting that Carter has presented the nation's "smallest deficit since 1974," Hance added he believes a balanced budget is a realistic goal. The president's stand on inflation also merited kudos from Hance, who said voluntary price controls are better than mandatory ones.

Hance said he plans to spend his first couple of weeks in Washington working on committee appointments and meeting people. Then he plans to get to

His goal for January, 1980, he said, is to "have been effective with other members of committees on legislation and with other members of the House."

THREE DIE IN FIRE

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) - Three members of a Maryland family were killed Saturday when a wood stove overheated and set their trailer home on fire, authorities said. Firemen found the body of Michelle Lee Wetzel, 4, on the floor beside the bed where Ronnie Eugene Wetzel, 29, and Kay Darlene Wetzel, 26, died. A second child, Allen Eugene, 7, was visiting his grandparents in Taneytown at the time of the fire.

ELVES AT WORK - Charlie Brewer gives his wife a lesson in faceting the stars he puts into her rings and pendants. Each stone takes eight hours to be worked into a star. Sound is used to guide Brewer to the correct cut. A tiny am-

State Gem In Good Hands With Lapidary Charlie Brewer

Avalanche-Journal Staff Special gifts from the Charlie Brewer workshop this Christmas have a Texas flavor, the Lone Star of Texas worked into the state gem.

In a finished Brewer chunk of topaz, a star twinkles from the depths, catching the eye with every movement of the ring or pendant.

Topaz was adopted as the state gem a few years back when palmwood became the state stone at the urging of a growing number of rock hounds. The Legislature, early this year, issued a proclamation designating the lone star cut as the official decoration for the state gem. Faceting is the latest fascination in a long line of rock work Brewer has undertaken in the decade he has been into the lapidary hobby.

"If our friends and relatives don't like things made from rocks, they can send them back," Brewer noted, adding with a twinkle worthy of the Jolly Old Elf himself that no gifts had come back so far.

And he doesn't expect the star-toting topaz to be any different, except for its total amazement for all who see it seemingly nestled in a clear pond.

Man-made gem stones — "not imitation because they are made with the same materials nature uses" - are among the non-topaz varieties ground to sparkly brilliance in many faces in a variety of patterns.

Solid stones with a dense quality take a different type pattern from clear materials like a laser rubber or man-made diamond or emerald.

The faceting machinery itself was a Christmas gift from Mrs. Brewer a few years back, but he didn't tackle the new wrinkle to his hobby until he saw the star pattern in a magazine.

Now Mrs. Brewer and a lot of friends and relatives are sporting rings and pendants with faceted gems which send a twinkling star image up through the clear

The magazine pattern didn't tell everything, leaving Brewer to figure out a lot of things, like why his early efforts, done apparently by the directions, turned out as flowers instead of stars.

The starting point of the grinding operation turned out to be the bugaboo, not the way he transposed directions from one material to another.

A pattern for diamond, he explained, is different from topaz, just as that one is from ruby. He learned on quartz, since that "is a whole lot cheaper," and soon graduated to the harder gems.

The Brewers took up the rock hobby almost a decade ago, when Brewer was coming up on retirement from the telephone company.

Something to do in his retirement turned into a total avocation when he has time from other retirement activities to get to his workshop.

Like many rock hounds, he started out picking up pretty rocks on vacation. They decorated a cactus-rock garden for his mother. 'After I started cutting rocks, I went over there and took a lot of them back."

Trips with the Lubbock Gem and Mineral Society soon kept his rock larder a bit fuller than an active retirement could deplete it. Some of his extras go into the grab bags he donated for sale to benefit the club's scholarship fund for a Texas Tech student. Like all rock hounds he has a favorite one, crazy lace agate with patterns seemingly never duplicated. Mrs. Brewer isn't too far into the working end of the lapidary shop. She casts her artistic eye on stone slices to pick out the patterns for a particular grinding and polishing job for a bit of jewelry. Her reward is the first of everything made from a new stone as Brewer's hobby progresses from material to material, from simple to more difficult creations in gems and rocks

Her jewelry collection is mushrooming with Brewer's thirst for new gems to respond to the star design.

Any rock show around the area and any rock shop encountered on travels adds to his hobby and her jewelry box. At Christmas and other gift times, they add to the pleasure friends derive from the Brewer hobby.

Fines Vowed For Careless Pet

Lubbock dog owners who have failed to get their pets vaccinated against rabies may face up to a $200 fine when city animal warden Tom Trombley begins his crackdown on unvaccinated animals in

A 1975 city ordinance makes it unlawful to own or harbor any dog more than six months old which has not received a valid rabies vaccination. This applies as well show a valid rabies cerrtificate signed by 10 dogs is susceptible to the highly contaa licensed veterinarian as proof of their pet's vaccination.

Failing to have a dog vaccinated is a misdemeanor offense which carries with it fines from $25 to $200. Persons who repeatedly fail to get their dogs vaccinated and tagged could have their pets confis-cated by city animal control officers.

Trombley feels the crackdown is overdue because only 15.000 dogs, out of some 100,000 in the city, were vaccinated gious disease.

Rabies is fatal to both man and animals and a person bitten by an animal suspected of having rabies must undergo a series of painful shots to combat the disease.

Rabies is so extremeley contagious, said Deanna Graham with the Lubbock Humane Society, "that it can be contracted by the saliva (of a rabid animal) getting into an open wound or by simply breathing the air" near an infected pet.

Trombley hopes hitting dog owners in the pocketbook will prod them into getting their pets vaccinated.

The animal warden said he is beginning his enforcement campaign early with hopes of encouraging a large turnout for the Humane Society's one-day rabies vaccination clinic in the summer. The clinic offers rabies and distemper shots plus the required license tags for $12, as compared to an average $17 charged by most veterinarians. Humane Society representatives were disappointed at the turnout for last year's clinic. "We only vaccinated 500 dogs and in 1976 we vaccinated about 2,000," Mrs. Graham said. Lack of publicity, general public disinterest and election primaries were cited by Mrs. Graham as contributing factors to the poor turnout. She also stressed that the tags provided when a dog is vaccinated can be invaluable in identifying a lost pet. "In fact, if anyone hopes to recover a lost dog, it is almost essential to vaccinate the animal and receive the license tags," she said. Trombley agreed that lost dogs have a higher survival rate if they have city li-

That is how Dr. E.C. Leslie defends the That is how Dr. E.C. Lesile defends the practice of asking candidates for Lubbock Independent School District teaching jobs the question: "Do you believe in the existence of a Supreme Being?"

Attorney Thomas Griffith, president of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), said he believes the question is too personal and that the district has no business asking it.

In a way, the issue is related to one

Griffith's organization brought before the school board last week - religious overtones in public-school classrooms. The group is asking the board to ban schoolsponsored prayer and other campuswide religious activities.

Griffith was not aware of the job-appli-cation query regarding belief in a Su-preme Being until he was approached by The Avalanche-Journal.

"In my mind, there is some qu whether this is proper or not. It's certainly an invasion of privacy. But it may be an invasion of privacy that's permitted under the law," Griffith said.

Indeed, the question appears to be legal. State law forbids public-school officials from asking the religious affiliation of a job-seeker, "except to inquire of the applicant whether or not he or she beeves in the existence of a Supreme

The question once was standard on teacher applications in many cities, said Robert Knight, personnel director for the Lubbock school district. He said he doesn't know how many districts still pose such a query to applicants.

The question concerning a Supreme Being is among dozens of items on the application form filled out by prospective ministration, said responses to such queries assist personnel officials in assessing the moral character of an applicant. School officials are prohibited by law from hiring anyone of poor moral character.

"A person is neither denied nor given a job solely on the basis of that question (belief in a Supreme Being) on the application," Leslie said.

Wendell Huddleston, president of the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association, said he has never received any complaints about the Supreme Being item. Knight said that in the past 15 years, "probably only four or five" applicants objected to the query.

guess I had an okay game."
Claiborne said: "If I had it to do over again, I believe I would take the wind. I believe I would. In warmups, it didn't seem that strong. But at 42-0 I'm not sure it would have made any difference."

Maryland quarterback Tim O'Hare said: "Well, I don't know about the wind. It did make a big difference early, and it put us in a hole to start."

The previous largest winning margin in a Sun Bowl was Nebraska's 45-6 victory over Georgia in 1969.

Missouri Slips By LSU 20-15

State tailback Charles Alexander tried mightily Saturday afternoon, but his second half heroics weren't quite enough to overcome Missouri's 17-point halftime lead as Mizzou hung on for a 20-15 victory in the 20th annual Liberty Bowl football

But instead of going to "Alexander the Great," the game's most valuable player trophy went to Missouri's James Wilder. Alexander, used sparingly in the first half, finished the game with 133 yards on

had 121 yards on 28 carries. It was Wilder's show in the first half when Missouri rolled up 20 points, but Alexander got the glory in the second half as the Bengals made a futile effort to

The Tigers, seven-point favorites, took command of the game on their first possession, marching 75 yards in 14 plays for touchdown and were never seriously reatened afterward

Charles Alexander, produced some second-half heroics that led to two touchdowns, but two other Bayou Bengal threats were cut off by a fumble and a pass interception.

Missouri quarterback Phil Bradley alternated the 6-2, 220-pound sophomore Wilder with his senior running mate, Earl Gant.

Taking the kickoff, LSU virtually ignored the Missouri defense and moved 80 yards in 13 plays to narrow the score by six points.

Bowl. Missouri won the contest 20-15.(AP Laserphoto) Hurting Oilers Battle Miami

BACKING IN FOR SIX-LSU runningback Charles Alexander (4) makes a back dive into the end zone as the Tigers tried to rally against Missouri's Tigers in the Liberty

MIAMI (AP) - Last time the Miami Dolphins and the Houston Oilers played, it was a case of two irresistible forces meeting two very moveable objects. The Dolphins couldn't stop Earl Campbell and the Oilers couldn't stop Bob Griese. But in the end, Campbell was just a little more irresistible in the Oilers'

35-30 victory at the Astrodome. Miami's defenders have no doubts about what they have to do to win today's National Football League wild-card playoff game. Kickoff is at 3 p.m. CST.

(For Details Of Atlanta-Philadelphia Game, See Page 3, Section-B) 'If we've ever played a swarming defense, we have to do it this week, because I don't know many men that time after time can bring Earl down one-on-one. But I don't know many men, Earl included, who, when all 11 guys are around him, can run with much success," said Miami linebacker Steve Towle.

Towle said he played his worst game of the season when Campbell broke several tackles in gaining 199 yards and scoring four touchdowns.

'He has the acceleration and the balance of a much smaller man," Towle said. "There are lots of big, strong guys, and lots of small, fast guys, but few who have everything. Earl has the acceleration and the balance of O.J. Simpson - only he's a lot bigger and stronger."

Griese shredded the Oilers' pass defense, completing 23 of 33 aerials for a career-high 327 yards. He ended the regular season by hitting 12 of 13 passes in a 23-3 victory over New England last Monday night

Both Campbell and Griese will play with banged-up ribs. Campbell suffered a broken rib against the Pittsburgh Steelers Dec. 3 and has been sub-par since. Griese's ribs were severely bruised during the Patriots' game and he has been unable to practice this week.

Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini plans to play despite an injured knee, cracked ribs and a sprained ankle. His backup, rookie Gifford Neilson, played for the first time in last week's 45-24 loss to San Diego.

Griese's backup, Don Strock, led the Dolphins to a 4-2 record while Griese recovered from a knee injury. He has thrown 12 touchdown passes, one more than Griese, and coach Don Shula indicated he would not hesitate to use Strock if Griese is hampered too much.

We have all the confidence in the world in Don Strock," Shula said. Miami's leading rusher, Delvin Williams, has gained only 7 yards in eight carries during the two games. A sore knee has slowed him. Veteran guard Larry Little of Miami is questionable for the game because of a painful knee and ankle. The Oilers' offense figures to be even more dependent on Campbell than usual, with Pastorini hurting and receivers Rich Caster and Mike Renfro sidelined. Rookie free agents Robert Woods and Guido Merkens are their replace-

"By losing Mike and Rich, we've taken a lot of pressure off the other team's defense," Houston coach Burn Phillips said. "They've gone back to double-teaming Kenny Burrough and keying hard on Earl. We don't have the weapons

The Dolphins' defense, playing with increased confidence and two new players (Charlie Babb replaced Rick Volk at safety and Gerald Small replaced Curtis Johnson at cornerback) since the Houston game, finished the season by blanking Washington, holding Oakland to six points and New England to three.

"I think a lot of it has to do with confidence and not making the mistakes that come from inexperience," Shula said. "It's tough enough in this league without making the mental errors we were making."

Stratford Dumps Plano

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Stratford's Craig James, the all-time leading Class AAAA rusher, scored three touchdowns including an 80-yard game-breaker Saturday to lead the Spartans to the state AAAA football championship with a 29-13 victory over defending champion Plan-

James, who carried only six times for 29 yards in the first half, broke loose on Stratford's first offensive play of the third quarter and ran 80 yards to give the unbeaten Spartans a 19-7 lead.

James finished the game with 168 yards rushing on 13 carries and scored 19 of the Spartans' 29 points. He also caught a 46vard touchdown pass from quarterback Mark Gabrisch in the first quarter and ran 11 yards for another score in the second quarter.

James completed his schoolboy career with a total of 2,411 rushing yards.

Stratford led 13-7 at halftime on the sharp passing of Gabrisch who completed his first six passes of the game and finished the half with six of eight completions for 135 yards.

Plano, which gained the finals with a pair of narrow victories, scored in the second quarter on a halfback pass when quarterback Steve Ulmer lateraled to Perry Haynes who in turn threw 41 yards to Carl Smith in the end zone. Plano, which advanced to the semi-finals with a victory declared on first downs after tying Tyler and then narrowly beating Odessa Permian on a pair of field goals last week, threatened in the closing minutes when Ronnie Mullins returned an interception from his own goalline to the Plano 48. But the Stratford deiense killed the drive.

The Wildcats never gave up, striking for their final score with 48 seconds to play when Jacob Vanderkroon caught a 13-yard touchdown pass from Ulmer.

Stratford, 15-0, scored on its second possession of the game when James got behind Plano defensive back Carl Smith and ran untouched into the end zone on the 46-yard pass-run play. Moments later Plano's Ricky Gaddis lumbled and Stratford 's David DeBesse recovered at the Stratford 43. Gabrisch then hit passes of 19 yards to Robert King and 25 yards to Ronnie Stukalin prior to James' 11-yard run.

The game was the final state championship playoff of the year. Two other games were played Friday night. Sealy captured the AA title with a 42-20 win over defending champion Wylie, and China Spring defeated Lexington, 42-3, to take the Class A crown.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - George Haffner, who helped give Florida State one of the nation's most explosive offenses in college football, has taken a job at Texas A&M.

Haffner served FSU coach Bobby Bowden as offensive coordinator and will hold a similar position with the Aggies. Haffner, a Chicago native who coached under former Pittsburgh Coach Johnny Majors, said he took the job because of

He said A&M coach Tom Wilson wants to transform his wishbone-oriented offense into a more pass-oriented offense.

Most of his yardage came through head

Wilder rushed for 181 yards and four touchdowns in Missouri's 35-31 upset victory over the then No. 2-rated Nebraska Cornhuskers in the Tigers' last regular season game

He said he felt like a marked man coming into Saturday's game. "But I always go out to do 100 percent ... I just play to my ability."

The game was billed as a match-up between Wilder and LSU's premier running back Charles Alexander.

Alexander, a 215-pound senior from Galveston, Texas, rushed for a game-high 133 yards and one touchdown. For his efforts, he was named top offensive player for LSU, a Southeastern Conference

Wilder, who was second to Alexander in game rushing, picked up a trophy as Missouri's top offensive player and the game's most valuable player award.

Eric Berg. a 212-pound junior from Rolla, Mo., was the Big Eight Tigers' top defensive player and Benjy Thibodeaux was LSU's top defensive player.

Joneses Hard To Keep Up With

EL PASO (AP) — Maryland's Terra-pins discovered Saturday it's hard to keep up with the Joneses — especially the three from Texas.

With the Jones' boys - known by the Longhorn faithful as Ham, Lam and Jam igniting an explosive Texas offense. the 14th-ranked Longhorns buried No. 13 Maryland 42-0 in the 44th Sun Bowl.

Johnny "Lam" Jones, the Olympic Gold Medal sprinter who is the "big play" man for the Longhorns, said the feeling between him and the other two Joneses runs even deeper throughout the whole team.

"I think it's not just the three of us." said the junior flanker. "It is the whole team. We are pulling for each other."

Lam carried the ball once and scored on a seven-yard scamper and hauled in two passes for 45 yards, including one for a 29-yard TD. Halfback Johnny "Ham" Jones, one of only three seniors who started for the Longhorns, rushed for a game high 104 yards and scored on a 32vard romp

ATLANTA (AP) - Philadelphia and Atlanta, a pair of National Football League playoff-starved teams, collide in the National Conference wild card playoff game today as pro football launches its postseason drive to the Super Bowl.

Matching identical 9-7 records, the two teams, unexpected participants in the playoff derby, will square off at 11:30 a.m. CST in Atlanta Stadium before a sellout crowd of 60,673 and a nationa television (CBS) audience.

It's the first time in Atlanta's 13-year history that the Falcons have reached the playoffs, arriving by virtue of four 20-17 regular season miracle victories in the final 10 seconds of play.

The Eagles, featuring the NFL's No. 5 rusher in Wilbert Montgomery, have not been in postseason competition since former Atlanta coach Norm Van Brocklin quarterbacked them past Green Bay 17-13 in the 1960 title game.

Philadelphia also won league titles in 1948 and 1949 and lost to the Chicago Cardinals in their only other playoff appearance in the 1947 championship game. "It's a do-or-die position, and the players realize that if we lose, the season is over," said Leeman Bennett, in his sec-ond year at the Atlanta helm. "As for a game plan, it's the same as it has been throughout the season, we cannot make turnovers and expect to win."

The Eagles, a one-point favorite, beat the Falcons 24-7 in a preseason game here, but Atlanta logged a 7-1 home field record during the regular season. The Falcons have won six straight home games since a 24-16 loss to Cleveland.

"We are an emotionally tense, tough football team," said coach Dick Vermeil of the Eagles. "We play consistent every week. We may not play great, but we play hard every Sunday. I think we'll play good football. I don't know if we can beat Atlanta, but we'll try."

The winner will advance to the National Conference semifinals next week. If Philadelphia wins, the Eagles will play at Los Angeles next Sunday. If Atlanta wins, it will visit defending Super Bowl champion Dallas on Saturday

The Eagles had a more consistent offense during the season as Montgomery

broke Steve Van Buren's one-year club record by rushing for 1,220 yards. Passing figures for the starting quarter-backs, Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski and Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski, were almost identical Jaworski hit on 206 of 398 attempts for 2,487 yards and 16 touchdowns and Bartkowski, who rode the bench until the second half of the third game, completed 187 of 369 for 2,489 yards and 10 scores.

One of the key figures in Atlanta's drive to the playoffs was an Eagles' reject before the season opened, place-kicker Tim Mazzetti. He was rescued from his bartending job in a Philadelphia pub in time to kick 13 field goals in 16 attempts, including five in a 15-7 Monday night televised victory over the Los Angeles Rams. Both teams are young with few players with previous playoff experience. Defensive tackle Jim Bailey of the Falcons, who was on a Super Bowl winner with the Baltimore Colts, said, "If we were against a veteran playoff team, it might make a difference. But they ha-ven't been there, either, and we have the home court advantage. That will help us, Eagles guard Woody Peoples, a 35-year-old veteran, said, "The game itself is more intense during the playoffs.

one or it's all over, intensity says it all."

Jaworski says he believes there is more pressure in the playoffs, but isn't worried about if

Eagles Under Scrutiny In Player-Stashing Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - At least four prospective Philadelphia Eagles players were secreted in motel rooms during the preseason, nesting for the day the National Football League club might place them on the roster, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported Saturday. The newspaper quoted sources as indicating that on-again, off-again Eagles punter Rick Engles, another former Ea-gles punter Mitch Hoopes, wide receiver Randy Williamson and quarterback Mike

Cordova all were hidden by the Eagles. Engles - waived three times by the club - charged earlier last week that he was stashed while Hoopes was given a go at a roster spot during exhibition play. Hoopes eventually was let go and Engles temporarily rehired.

However, kicker Mike Michel finished the season for Philadelphia, and Engles also has charged that Michel was given a tryout with the Eagles while still under contract with the Miami Dolphins in violation of league rules.

Williamson and Cordova were waived by Philadelphia. Coach Dick Vermeil said Friday he is content to let NFL officials, who are investigating the allegations, decide if any rules were broken. "Let the league decide whether it was stashing," Vermeil said. "He (Engles) was waived. Any club in the league could have picked him up. Hell, he was fortunate because we brought him back to make the football team."

"When you stash a guy, you hide him so nobody else can get him.

One disciplinary option the NFL would have, should officials decide a rules violation occurred, would be to take away an Eagles' draft pick in 1979.

Cordova, contacted at his home in Mountlake Terrace, Wash., said, "I don't know about any hiding.

"It was a sticky situ 11th-round draft choice in 1977. "It got a

Winter Doves Available

AUSTIN (Special) - Dove hunting is normally considered an early autumn activity, but Texas hunters may be missing some good shooting if they don't hunt during the late mourning dove season segment beginning Jan. 6, the Parks & Wildlife Department pointed out.

In the North Zone, the late segment stars on Jan. 6 and runs for nine days, ending Jan. 14. In the South Zone, it also starts on Jan. 6. but it continues longer than the north, ending Jan. 21.

The daily bag limit of 10 and possession limit of 20 is the same as the early seg-

P&WD biologists point out that in some parts of the state doves arrived too late to rendevous with hunters who took to the field the first or second week of the sea-

Also, the late segment runs concurrently with the quail season over most of the state, offering opportunity for taking two upland species on the same outing. As with the early season dove hunting, the birds are found near food supplies, and in the winter they flock to areas where weed patches or stubble fields offer abundant forage.

Dove hunters in the South Zone are reminded that they still are required to leave one fully feathered wing attached to each bird until it is delivered to its final destination.

ALWAYS ALERT - The quail season that opened in late October will continue through Jan. 28 in South Plains counties with a 12-bird daily limit. Hunters are reminded that the use of dogs increases the chance of finding coveys or wounded quail. (Photo by TP&WD)

Firearms Firm To Replace Gun Barrels

Smith & Wesson is offering to replace the barrels of all exisiting 12-gauge Model 916T Take-Down Shotguns with a barrel of improved design, the firearms firm an-

Owners of current Model 916T shot guns are urged not to fire this gun with the existing barrel(s). The company has learned that, under certain conditions, the interchangeable barrel of the 12 gauge Model 916T can rupture.

This recall does not concern the Model 916 shotgun with fixed barrel.

A new design of interchangeable barrel has been developed to eliminate this specific problem, the company reported. The improved design barrels for the Model 916T will be identified by the letter "O" stamped on the top of the barrel near the breech end. Individuals who have a Smith & Wesson or "Eastfield" brand 12-gauge Model 916T shotgun should send the barrel (only the barrel) to: Smith & Wesson Barrel Exchange Program, 299 Page Boulevard, Springfield, Mass., 01104.

Anyone with questions should contact Smith & Wesson at the above address or by calling, toll free, (800) 628-9028.

Six State Fish Records Set; Meredith Produces Top Walleye The extreme cold experienced by open-

The right bait at the right time plus good growing conditions for Texas fish have produced six new records this year, according to the Texas State Fish Record Committee of the Parks & Wildlife Department.

The striped bass record has been broken twice since Jan. 6 with the current 32-pound, 12-ounce fish caught from Lake Texoma on Nov. 20. The new hybrid white/striped bass record is 11 pounds, 61/2 ounces and and was caught April 2 at Lake Nasworthy near San Angelo. A 66-pound blue catfish holds the present record after being submitted to the record committee last spring.

A Wichita Falls man caught a 31-pound freshwater drum at Lake Arrowhead on May 4 breaking the old record by nearly 6

A record red-ear sunfish weighing 3 pounds 4 ounces was landed by a Seguin angler at a Guadalupe County farm pond on April 23, and, a Borger angler caught a 10 pound, 14 ounce walleye from Lake Meredith on April 12.

Texas anglers catching large fish should first have them weighed before filleting the fish for supper. Persons seeking record certification should use approved Texas Agriculture scales and have a witness to the weighing.

1978 record fish to be topped by persistant anglers across the state.

More information about the Texas record fish program is available at most license vendors and all P&WD offices

Lake Meredith Recreation Area is now accepting applications for seasonal laborers and lifeguards. Applicants for lifeguard must possess either a Red Cross Senior Lifesaving Certificate or a Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's Card. These positions are seasonal and will last from approximately Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Application packages for these type positions may be obtained at the National Park Service Headquarters building at 419 East Broadway in Fritch, or by calling (806) 857-3151.

All application forms should be submitted in time to reach the office no later than Jan. 15, 1979. The address is Lake Meredith Recreation Area, Box 1438, Fritch, 79036.

Even though Parks & Wildlife Department hunter safely division officials are holding their breaths and crossing their fingers, it seems as though the total number of hunting injuries and fatalities for 1978 will be near the 1977 mark. "We totaled 80 accidents and 17 fatalities in 1977 and as of Dec. 14, we have tailied 65 accidents and 14 fatalities this year," Theron D. Carroll, hunter safety coordinator reported this week.

"If reports keep coming in from the field as they have been lately, 1978 will be comparable with last year," Carroll had Hunting accidents in the Panhandle and South Plains have not occurred or have not been reported so far, and the P &WD in this area are hoping the trend The P&WD is expecting more fish re-cords to fall in 1979 with several of the will continue with no injuries or fatali-

All Texas Parks & Wildlife Department offices will be closed on Tuesday for the holiday period following Christmas.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) - Ron a lot of people crying. McKenzie, president of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, collapsed and died Saturday after climbing about 100 yards to the judges' observation post where he was to have watched the first skier down the new Olympic ski'

"Everybody was in the stands and it was such a happy moment. He was in the new judges' stand waiting for the first jumper to come off," said Laura Viscome, a reporter for the Lake Placid

About 150 local residents were on hand for the christening of the recently constructed 70-meter jump on Intervale Mountain when MacKenzie collapsed on the platform.

'He had climbed up the hill from the bottom so it was quite a few steps up to the top of the knoll," said Viscome.

She said there were several emergency medical technicians on the scene and they immediately began administering the cardio-pulmonary resusciation technique and continued doing so for about 15 minutes. Dr. George G. Hart, the medical director for the 1980 Games, pronounced MacKenzie dead at the scene.

"People just turned around and walked away," said Mrs. Viscome. "There were

Abilene Shows Young Deer

By J.D. PEER Parks & Wildlife Dept.

ABILENE - A recent check by Parks & Wildlife Department personnel at a local Abilene meat locker handling deer has furnished some interesting facts about the Taylor County deer herd

"We checked 100 buck deer harvested in Taylor County since the season opened Nov. 18, and 58 percent of these deer were 11/2 years of age," said Don Davis, P &WD wildlife biologist.

"Another 39 percent were from 21/2-41/2 years of age, and only one buck was 61/2 years old," Davis continued.

When the Taylor County study is compared to other regions of the state, it is apparent that the deer herd consists of mainly young deer with a few trophy animals available for the deer hunter to har-

A comparison of the Taylor County deer herd which has a 12 percent trophy buck population is quite low when South Texas deer herds are comprised of a 30 percent trophy buck population. There can be several reasons for this condition in Taylor County. First, a heavy crop of fawns were produced in 1977 which were 11/2 years old this fall when harvested by hunters. Second, the hunting pressure is heavy in several areas of Taylor County.

Most deer hunters are looking for trophy bucks to harvest first. If none are found, the hunters will harvest younger deer as they did this fall.

Another factor in the study indicated a 30 percent drop in the overall deer population this summer. Record drought conditions were experienced in the area and the dry condition could have affected the antler growth since 38 percent of the 11/2year-old bucks were classed as spikes.

Normally, an average white-tailed buck should have four points during his second year. Only one of the young bucks checked at the meat locker had eight points.

Spike-buck studies indicate genetic background and nutritional intake affect antler growth.

An average white-tailed buck with a below-normal intake of food could develop spike antlers. This same buck should grow normal antlers if ample food is available during the spring and summer which is the critical period.

However, when a white-tailed buck has plenty of food and still only produces spike antlers, it is apparent that genetic background and not available food supplies are the cause of the inferior antler

When these deer studies are completed by the P&WD, recommendations will be made on the length of the deer season and harvest of bucks of Taylor County.

Illinois Clips Cold Aggies

comb scored 17 points as 15th-ranked Illinois captured the University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament with a 71-57 college basketball victory over cold-shooting Texas A&M.

In the consolation game, 11th-ranked Kentucky blew most of a 24-point lead before holding off No. 8 Syracuse 94-87. Chuck Aleksinas led the Wildcats with 20

Texas A&M, ranked 17th, sealed its second loss in 11 games by hitting only 27 percent of its shots in the first half. The Aggies trailed 14-10 with 13:33 to go in the period, but were outscored 17-0 over the next six minutes as Illinois turned what had been expected to be a close game into a rout.

Holcomb scored seven points during the Illinois streak.

The Illini kept the score doubled throughout the last 10 minutes of the half before taking a 45-22 bulge at halftime. A 15-foot jumper by Rob Judson gave Illinois its biggest lead of the game at 49-24 with 16:27 left to play. The Aggies wsere unable to mount any kind of challenge the rest of the way.

Mark Smith and Eddie Johnson each added 14 points for Illinois.

Rudy Woods led Texas A&M with 14 points while Tyrone Ladson added 13 and Vernon Smith 10.

Vanderbilt Dumps Rice

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Charles Davis and Mike Rhodes combined for 41 points to lead Vanderbilt to an easy 88-59 basketball victory over Rice Saturday

The victory gives Vanderbilt a 7-1 record as the Commodores complete their nonconference action. Rice's record fell

The game was decided during an eight minute Vanderbilt outburst in the first half when the Commodores, with Davis' marksmanship leading the way, outscored the Owls 21-8 to take a 43-22 lead. Vanderbilt increased the lead to 48-24 at halftime

In the second half, with substitutes playing most of the way. Vanderbilt never was threatened and led by 37, 80-43, with 5:53 remaining.

Davis finished the game with 19 points, 17 in the first half. But Rhodes took scoring honors with 22, eight in the second half. Bobby Tudor scored 16 to pace Rice and substitute Willis Wilson added nine.

Moncrief Keys Arkansas Win

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) - Sidney Moncrief scored a career high 39 points Saturday, propelling the Arkansas Razorbacks to a 93-79 triumph over the Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles in a nonconference basketball game.

The game was even for the first 12 minutes before the Razorbacks took the lead for good on a six-foot jumper by Mike Young, which brought the score to 21-19.

The Razorbacks pulled away to an 11point halftime bulge behind Moncrief, who scored 20 in the opening half, and reserve center James Crockett, who poured in six points. Arkansas led at intermission

The Razorbacks extended their lead even further early in the second half to 49-33 on a 10-foot shot from Moncrief.

The Golden Eagles refused to fold. pulling back within 10 points late in the game, despite Moncrief's torrid shooting. Southern Mississippi's comeback was fueled by scoring of Greg Lackey, who led the Golden Eagles with 15 points.

Arkansas is now 6-0 while USM 5-2. Moncrief's 39 points eclipsed his previous career high against Oklahoma earlier this season of 30 points. The senior from Little Rock hit 12 of 17 shots from the field, canned 15 of 16 free throws and grabbed 14 rebounds.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - All-America Ted Brown punched through Pittsburgh's uncharacteristically porous de-fense for 126 yards and a touchdown and strong safety Mike Nall picked off a key interception for a touchdown as North Carolina State rolled to a 30-17 college football victory over Pitt Saturday night in the 33rd annual Tangerine Bowl.

Brown, the fourth leading rusher in NCAA history, whose jersey No. 23 was retired after the game, was also voted most valuable player.

North Carolina State's opportunistic defense kept the usually prolific Pitt offense corralled most of the game. The Pack smothered Pitt's comeback in the fourth quarter with three interceptions. Nall picked off one of the errant aerials from Rick Trocano and returned it 66 vards for the score with 5:04 remaining that eliminated any doubts about the final outcome.

The Wolfpack held Pittsburgh without a touchdown until the final period. State seemed to be on target from the first play of the game when the defense,

However, the next time they had the ball the Wolfpack marched quickly to the field goals, made the extra point.

Meanwhile, the harried Panthers were having trouble sustaining any kind of drive. State's defense sacked Trocano four times in the first period alone. The Pack opened the second quarter by parti-ally blocking a Pittsburgh punt, setting

James Edwards led a balanced Indiana attack with 23 points Saturday night as the Pacers snapped a six-game losing string in the National Basketball Association with a 127-103 victory over the New Orleans Jazz.

The loss was the fifth in a row overall and 12th straight on the road for the Jazz. whose 11-23 record now is the worst in

The Pacers, now 11-21, put eight players in double figures. They broke open a close game midway through the second quarter, and went in front to stay at 42-41 on a layup by Kevin Stacom. Later in the period, a nine-point burst gave the Pacers a 63-53 lead at halftime.

Indiana blew out the Jazz in the third quarter, with Rickey Sobers scoring eight of his 18 points and Edwards adding seven more before retiring to the bench for the rest of the game.

The Pacers slowly widened the lead to 14, and three straight baskets by Alex English, Johnny Davis and Steve Green in the final minute put the lead at 20 points, 96-76, going into the fourth quart-

In the final period, Green scored nine of his 13 points and rookie Wayne Radford added eight of his 10 as the Pacers

By FRED ROTHENBERG Associated Press Sports Writer

The NCAA, which has been trying for three years to make Edgar Jones ineligible to play basketball, will finally catch up to him in a Nevada court next August. By that time the elusive Mr. Jones should be playing pro ball.

How's that for a moot point?

Jones, a star at Barringer High School in Newark, N.J., was accepted to the University of Nevada-Reno in 1975 on the basis of a high school transcript that didn't list his several failing grades and didn't compute a grade point

The NCAA, which investigated the Jones case after a number of schools ratted on Nevada-Reno, said the legitimate transcript would show that Jones fell well below the mandatory 2.0 or C average necessary to become a student-athlete at a Div. I school. The NCAA also said a high school must certify a student eligible for admission, and Barringer said Jones wasn't eligible.

"Everyone else applied the rule properly," said David Berst, NCAA enforcement director. "Reno said it wouldn't."

The NCAA Infractions Committee put Nevada-Reno on a year's probation in 1976 and ordered the school to do the same to Jones, which it reluctantly did. However, Jones got an injunction against the probation and has not missed a game, while building the Wolf Pack into a basketball power.

Jones' lawyer, Frank Fahrenkopf, said the NCAA should not be able to deny a student-athlete the right to play without a hearing. "Playing college basketball can be valuable for taking a kid out of the ghetto and giving him a chance in life. His right to a hearing is fundamental." Fahrenkopf said.

Then there's the NCAA pursuit of Jerry Tarkanian, who was found guilty by Long Beach State of various recruiting violations while he was coaching the basketball team there. He then went to Nevada-Las Vegas, where the NCAA found more illegal contacts with recruits, illegal inducements, plus an alleged attempt to get some people to lie to NCAA investiga-

The Infractions Committee recommended that Tarkanian be relieved of his coaching duties for two years, an action taken by the university but halted by a court order. Under the ethical conduct section of the NCAA Manual, the school can take action - but more often doesn't - if coaches and athletes don't "deport themselves with honesty and sportsmanship at all times. Dr. Stephen Horn, president of Long Beach State, said his school was embarrassed by Tarkanian's illegal practices but was helpless when the coach went to Nevada-Las Vegas. Only the players were punished. The guilty ones couldn't play and the innocent ones lost their chance for big-time exposure because the team was weakened and it couldn't go to the NCAA tournament anyway. "Every reader of the sports pages knows that under present conditions, when the rules are broken, students may suffer, teams may be penalized and institutions shamed," said Horn. "At the same time, the professionals - the coaches - simply get another job at another institution.

Horn has tried - but failed - to get NCAA members to make ineligible for tournament play any school that employed a coach who was guilty of NCAA violations during the previous three

"If coaching is to be a profession, then there need to be recognized standards of conduct and individual sanctions for violation of (that) conduct. . ." Horn said. "Without such procedures, intercollegiate athletics becomes nothing more than an operation where some individuals are one step ahead of the sheriff."

Many people call for the college presidents to set the tone for the sports programs making it clear that winning is împortant but not at the expense of legality. 'We're suposed to lead society, not reflect it," said coach Dean Smith of North Carolina. "The presidents should fire the coaches who put the teams on NCAA probation, not the ones who obey the law."

The Jones and Tarkanian cases demonstrate how the NCAA can be frsutrated even when it thinks it has the goods on an apparent violator. But how often does the NCAA get the evidence?

You can never legislate integrity. As long as you have rules someone will break them," said Berst, who, with two assistants directs the activities of eight full-time investigators. "But we've shown the coaches that if they break the rules, we'll be there. We do a pretty good

But Berst concedes it often is nearly imposible to smoke out, for example, an illegal cash payment between an alunmus and a recruit when the two principles deny everything. "We won't penalize people for what we don't know. And it can be very frustrating because often we think there's more and we just can't find Many coaches interviewed by the Associated Press agreed that the NCAA was trying but was faced with an impossible task. "The NCAA does a diligent job," said coach Dave Gavitt of Providence, but it's a big country, and the intensity to win has gotten so great that I personally think cheating is getting out of hand." Coaches also say many of the rules in the NCAA Manual are not clear to adults. so how can a 17-year-old shigh school kid decipher them?

Horn likened the rules to those commonly found on the back of insurance policies written in flood or earthquake-pone areas.

The NCAA distributes to high school assoctions and colleges its Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete, a shorthand pamphlet which provides Do's and Don't's on recuiting. Many schools also distribute it to alumni active in recruiting. Even so, the rules are broken every day with or without the parties involved realizing it. For example, a school is allowed three contacts (head-to-head meetings) with a recuirt or his parents, and it's a contact whether the player chats with the head coach or the local alum. For a chance meeting not to count as a contact, the two can exchange no more than pleasantries. The contacts can't come before the end of the recruit's junior year or after June 15 of his senior year.

And when a recruit goes on any of his six permitted, paid-for school visits, he and his parents can receive room and board money for off-campus facilities only if campus facilities aren't available.

But how many times have you seen a recruit dining on silk tablecloths with wandering minstrels looking over his asked one recruiter, "How comparable is that to the campus cafeter-body in general.

Obviously some violations are more serious than others, and the NCAA said its Infractions Committee attempted to evaluate the intent of the individuals involved. Some of the penalties available against a violating institution include reprimand and censure, probation, ineligibility for NCAA championship events and NCAA-connected television programs, loss of scholarships and even loss of pro-

The NCAA is basically an enforcement and administrative agency, which polices and carries out the regulations of its membership of more than 700 schools. The NCAA said if the schools wanted more honest recruiting, the members would pass stronger rules.

The NCAA has come under fire because of possible due-process violations and alleged harrassment tactics. For example, some say that a coach should have the right to cross-examine his accuser. But the NCAA says that would scare athletes from reporting violations, making the NCAA's enforcement job more diffipound half a mile away from the square.

Four hours before a Marine helicopter brought the first family home Friday, about 250 tractors encircled the town square and swarmed into outlying areas, parking four abreast to block U.S. Highway 280, the major route through town.

Four men were arrested when farmers fought briefly with police who tried to move the tractors after the five-hour tractorcade permit expired at dusk. Farmers drained fuel tanks or discon-nected fuel lines to keep their heavy equipment immobilized.

After briefly stopping a Montgomery-bound freight train, the farmers lifted their blockade shortly after midnight when the four arrested farmers were released without bond. They had been charged with interfering with officers and given a summons to appear in court

"I think we maybe showed people we're not going to be pushed around as we were before," Kersey, a Unidalla grain and livestock farmer, said as the tractors pulled out Saturday afternoon.

Japanese Celebrate Christmas

TOKYO (AP) - Most Japanese are Buddhists, but they do a lot of celebrating at Christmas and they aren't frugal. Some spend more than $400 for a bottle of Scotch to add a little glow to the holiday they call "Kuri-su-masu."

Christmas has become so much of the contemporary scene in Japan that no one seems to notice that fewer than one percent of Japan's population is Christian - about 900,000 persons out of 115

"We Japanese are Christmas Christians," said Yukio Nomura, interviewed while buying a $233 radio-controlled toy car for his 11-year-old son.

Nomura, an employee of a large trading company, said he is not Christian but celebrates the holiday anyway, "because it's an excuse to eat and drink."

The Japanese got their first taste of an American-style celebration of the birth of Christ during the postwar occupation of U.S. troops. Nearly anything American was considered fashionable then and Japanese businessmen saw the profits to be made.

Christmas coincides with the traditional year-end gift giving season in Japan. More than $20 billion is paid in year-end bonuses, and department stores are jammed with people looking for the right gift.

Some typical items on sale this year include: gift-wrapped boxes of fruit (five cans) for $52; one salmon in a wooden box, $78, and "sukochi" - Scotch whisky. A fifth bottle of one brand imported from Scotland cost $415 and another was

Steak has become a prestigious gift because of its high price here. A giftwrapped, two-pound piece of top-quality steak was going for $130. Whipped cream cakes with "Merry Christmas" written across the top in English are a must for every family with children. The cakes, complete with mini-"Santa Oiisan" - that's Santa Claus - cost about $7.70 each. Many households have a small Christmas tree covered with foam snow.

One department store said it expects to sell $1.7 million worth of Christmas presents, mainly toys and family games.

Most major hotels are holding Christmas Eve parties featuring entertainers and actresses. One hotel offers a floor show and dinner for $103 per person. The price includes 20 percent tax and service charges and the management ex-

Although Christmas is another working day for the Japanese, it is celebrated with the giving of presents, lots to eat and plenty to drink.

The Christmas period is also a time when many companies hold their "bonenkai" - year-end parties.

On New Year's Day millions of Japanese wili flock to Buddhist shrines to get rid of all the evil spirits they have accumulated in the past year and to seek a "blessing from the gods" to start the new year afresh.

"Christmas is fun and there's no harm but at New Year's there is a deep spiritual feeling for us," said one Japanese

Tick Fever Brings Island Quarantine

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department has ordered a quarantine on the Northern Mariana Islands to prevent the spread of cattle fever ticks. The department issued a statement noting that the Pacific island group "is known to be infested with Boophilus ticks, carriers of bovine piroplasmosis or tick fever." According to the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, tick fever is marked by high fever and death losses of up to 90 percent in acute cases. The department said the quarantine will limit the movement of cattle and require that animals be dipped in pesticides to kill the ticks that carry the disease before leaving the islands. It said the federal restriction is necessary because the Mariana Islands recently became a commonwealth territory of the United States.

about three weeks ago. Aronson, 32, has a unique perspective on the public speaking styles of the nation's highest-ranking officials; he came to the White House job fresh from a stint as chief speechwriter for Vice President

Walter F. Mondale. And Aronson made sure he'd done the necessary homework.

In an interview at the Executive Office Building, his base of operations, Aronson said he prepared himself by reading Carter's autiobiography and his past speeches, including some he gave as governor of

"As best you can, you try to write for the style of the person for whom you are writing," Aronson said. "It's a continuing process to learn how he views an issue how he expresses his views.

The president is in on the development of a speech from the beginning. Aronson said that he, Gerald Rafshoon and Greg Schneiders discuss possible themes with Carter, also receives the first draft and is likely to make changes.

Rafshoon is the White House communications director and Schneiders is deputy assistant to the president for communica-

Aronson, who is drafting Carter's State of the Union address, came highly recommended as the successor for James Fallows, who left last month to return to magazine writing.

Though many candidates were interviewed. Aronson got the job because he was "steady and consistent" but also could "rise to the occasion," Schneiders

'We can't afford the luxury of having a prima donna, no matter how well they write," Schneiders said of the criteria used for the selection of a person to head the five-member speech-writing staff. Schneiders said that both he and Rafshoon were concerned that many of those interviewed considered themselves artists and may have had trouble doing the more mundane assignments.

"We need both," Schneiders said. "We need hard-working artists."

So far, Aronson has written one major speech for the president, which Carter delivered to the Democratic Party's midterm convention in Memphis, Tenn. two weeks ago.

Aronson, a native of New York, began writing speeches several years ago when he was press secretary to Arnold Miller, president of the United Mine Workers. He became active in Miners for Democracy, a reform movement within the UMW in the early 1970s, after stints in Appalachia as a Vista volunteer and as a reporter for a West Virginia newspaper. After Miller was elected UMW president in 1972. Aronson came to Washington. Atonson, along with several other self-styled union reformers, left the UMW in 1976 after differences developed between them and Miller. Aronson worked with members of Mondale's campaign staff when Mondale addressed a UMW event. After the 1976 election, "We got back in touch and talked about a job," Aronson said.

SDOUGH DEEKE: COMPANY

UP TO $900 IN JOHN DEERE DOLLARS FOR YOUR CHOICE OF JOHN DEERE merchandise

John Deere values your preseason order so much that you'll get an exclusive bonus and more by acting early

You'll earn from $75 to $900 in valuable John Deere money for your early order on certain models of a disk, chisel plow, or hay equipment. You can then exchange the John Deere dollars mailed directly to you for goods or services at our store.

That's not all. By building equipment to your early order, John Deere can supply the exact model and size you need with just the options you want. We can figure your tradein at top value knowing we'll have time to recondition and resell it. And you'll gain added savings on hay equipment from the waiver of finance charge program.

There are dozens of disks, chisel plows, and hay tools in this early order program. But your preseason order must be signed before specific dates to earn the most John Deere dollars. Come in soon and ask us for our best deal on this new equipment.

YEAR END SALE

FACT #1 Everyting in our Inventory on Jan. 1 is taxable We had much rather cut 2 to 3 hundred dollars off the price than pay the same amount in tax dollars.

FACT #2 Afterdan. I the taxes paid on unseld cars must be conside In actuality this creates a consumer price increase.

FACT #3 Wide car buyers knew this They take advantage of it and they tell their friends about it tool

Hill Probe Finds Nursing Home Abuses

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General John Hill has come to the same conclusion reached by a congressional committee, Texas newspapers and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare:

Serious patient abuse, sometimes resulting in death, occurs among Texas

But in a 231-page special task force report, Hill quickly points out that "the vast majority of Texas nursing homes appear to be fine facilities which provide their residents with a favorable environment and good quality of life."

Only an isolated number of homes experience deliberate injury to residents and those abuses are corrected upon discovery, an attorney general's task force

However, other findings from the 17-month investigation point to severe problems even if on a limited basis. Hill called on the State Department of Health to step up punitive action against abusive homes.

David Bragg, chief of the attorney general's consumer protection division, headed the 15-member task force. The group interviewed patients and their families, inspected 113 homes, made night visits to several others and held three public hearings on the problem.

Most homes were cooperative, the staff report said. But three facilities -Lewis Rest Home in Houston, Southern Manor Nursing Home in San Antonio and Theall Nursing Home in Dallas - did not allow task force members inside.

The Texas Nursing Home Association Inc. filed suit against one assistant attorney general involved in a night visit. That action is pending in Travis County lem, the task force reported.

One task force member discovered from state health department files that the Oak Cliff Nursing Center in Dallas employed a nursing director who was neither a registered nurse nor a licensed vocational nurse.

During 20 night visits to 18 nursing homes in the Dallas area, the task force found numerous examples of patients sitting in their own waste, partially clothed and unable to reach assistance call buttons.

Theft from patient rooms and misuse of their personal funds also occurs, the Residents in one nursing home said staff members "checked" for potentially dangerous drugs inside patient rooms at midnight and also after certain holidays. Patients reported personal articles being gone the next day and never dis-

The task force reported drug-related problems exist in a minority of nursing

In the Retama Manor Nursing Home in Robstown, the task force said a medication aide used a wrong syringe to inject insulin. The mistake was discovered by a nurse after four persons were given overdoses.

The four were hospitalized and a phsycian told the task force that the overdose would have been fatal if not discovered.

Hill fixed partial blame for the problem on the State Department of Health's "protective attitude" toward the industry and the agency's "shunning" of its "Overall, the department policies (on nursing home inspection and regulation) all are firm enough," said Dr. Robert Bernstein, chief of the longterm care

"There's a small number of homes that are borderline, but it's very easy to get in trouble with a home," Bernstein added. "There's even a smaller number of homes that get into trouble, but we stay close enough to that." Hill said abuses also could be curbed with legislation allowing the state to fine nursing homes. He also called for a greater role by independent citizen advocates, who inspect homes with health department employees. Citizen inspectors are prevented from releasing their findings without prior screening by the health department. Hill said the nursing home industry proposed that rule and the health department adopted it. Bernstein defended the rule.

"You run into problems when a citizen advocate speaks out before we can tell the home," he said. "They even speak out when it's supposed to be unannounced. They'll call out ahead of time and let the cat out of the bag." Bernstein said he did not know the rule's origin or whether it was adopted on the industry's request. The health agency official said his office supports a stricter "vendor hold" policy against homes. If a home is found out of compliance, its payments are withheld, he said. But if the home corrects the situation, it receives all the mon-

Tracker Meets 'Bigfoot'

HUMBOLDT, Iowa (AP) - Humboldt County Sheriff Marvin Andersen has made a name for himself by tracking down dozens of Bigfoot reports this year.

He never caught up with the elusive hairy beast. But on Friday, Andersen found himself face-to-face with a 6-foot replica, much to the delight of nearly 200 persons gathered at a small truck stop to watch him get his surprise

The gag was set up by Juanita Benton, who operates Benton's Truck Stop with her husband William. More than 100 county residents chipped in to buy the replica for $95 after Mrs. Benton saw it on display in a Fort Dodge store.

"His expression was worth a million laughs," she said. "We just think so much of him, and this was our way of saying 'Merry Christmas' to him.

Couple Married Under Water

PELHAM, Ala. (UPI) - The underwater marriage ceremony of Vickie August and Tommy Florence went just fine until it was time for Florence to kiss his bride.

The new Mrs. Florence removed her mouthpiece to receive the kiss, swallowed some water and choked up. Instead of getting a kiss, the groom watched his bride break for the surface of the 25-foot deep clear-water rock quarry.

The ceremony was performed by a minister who spoke through an underwater communicator on a platform suspended from another platform floating in the middle of the

The platform was only large enough to hold the bride and the bridegroom, and members of the wedding party swam nearby or held onto the platform during the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom wore not only scuba gear but wetsuits to ward off the chill of the mid-40 degree water.

"It's a place where Tommy and I feel close to God," explained Mrs. Florence after a champagne celebration on the shore. The couple then left for a skiing honeymoon.

traveled East Market Street Bridge colapsed into a jumble of twisted girders early Saturday, dropping two cars and an oil truck 40 feet into the Lackawanna

One of the four persons rescued was hospitalized, suffering from head cuts and other injuries.

Police said the 100-foot steel bridge in this northeastern Pennsylvania city was old, but was considered safe.

Scranton policeman Robert Sparaney, the first officer on the scene, said the bridge fell at 4:30 a.m.

"I think I did more screaming than anyone there," said Sparaney. "I think everybody was more or less in shock.

The fire department used ladder trucks and grappling hooks to pull motorists from the river, where they had been caught up in the span's twisted debris, Sparaney said. He said a steelworker, Alan Zapotochny, 35, was making his usual trip home from work and was about half way across the bridge when it went down. "He said the bridge was intact when he was going over it," Zapotochny's wife Doris said in a telephone interview from her husband's bedside at Scranton State Hospital. The other motorists rescued were Bernard O'Malley, 27, who called firefighters to the scene after escaping from his auto, and John Conrad. 43, and his 19-year-old son Edward, who were in the oil truck. Sparaney said O'Malley's car was approaching from the east, and the oil truck was approaching from the west.

Vance, Dayan Meet In Attempt To Revive Stalled Peace Talks

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan conferred Saturday night on U.S. efforts to revive the stalled Israeli-Egyptian peace talks.

"We hope we can find means to resume the peace negotiations," said Vance at the airport as he arrived in Brussels. He appeared tired and serious on his arrival here after his talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva, Switzerland, broke down without feaching a new strategic arms limitation treat-

Vance's arrival was delayed by the snag in Geneva, and Dayan and Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil dined together Saturday night at Khalil's hotel.

The three are to meet for breakfast Sunday morning to discuss the peace talks - the first step in an overall Mideast peace plan outlined in the Camp David peace accords in September.

The talks are stalled on Egypt's insistence that letters be added to the treaty outlining two key issues — a timetable for achieving Palestinian home rule in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank of the Jordan River and stating the treaty does not supercede Egypt's de-fense treaties with other Arab states.

Teng Named Man Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) - Chinese Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-p'ing has been named Man of the Year for 1978 by Time magazine.

Teng. 74, was selected after President Carter's dramatic announcement Dec. 15 that the United States would normalize relations with the Peoples's Republic of China on Jan. 1, the weekly news magazine said. Time said Teng "has made more political comebacks than Richard Nixon," and described him as "tough, abrasive, resilient." Teng also is vice chairman of China's Communist Party and army chief of staff. He is scheduled to visit the United States Jan. 29, the first such visit by a high-level Chinese official since the Communists took power on the mainland "As a party member for more than 50 years and a veteran of Mao's original Long March, he also possesses a moral authority that no other Chinese leader can command, an authority based partly on his refusal to bow to the political winds of the past two decades," Time said in its Jan. 1 issue. Time also cited Teng as a man with "tremendous enterprise" who has pushed to end China's isolation and bring the world's oldest continuous civilization into step with the 21st century. The selection of Teng as Man of the Year represents the first time an Asian has been picked by Time since 1938 when Generalissimo and Madame Chaing

Merry Christmas To Our Readers

At last it is Christmas Eve, and the children, beside themselves with excitement over what the morning will bring, go off to bed determined to stay awake, just this once, to hear Santa's reindeer on the roof.

Many of us, today or tonight, will set aside a moment at home or at church to ponder anew the coming of the Christ child into the world, in so disarming a guise to have made such a change in men's hearts.

And we will read again the ancient story, so familiar and yet so new each time we hear it, of the star and the shepherds and the wise men, and wish again that we could have been there to hear the angels sing.

For nearly all of us, it is time to draw near to those we love; to think of Christmas past and the happiness it held; to remember family and friends who are dear to us though far away, and perhaps to spare a kind thought for those who, for whatever reason, are unable to enjoy the happiness of the

We hope that you will be able to share this special day with family, comfortable friends, a blazing fire, good food and good cheer, and all the ingredients that will make it memorable for you.

In My Corner

By FRANCES LOWE

They had been on the road all day and by nightfall, when they came upon a little town along the highway, they were both exhausted and the old car, which had been overheating for miles, was beginning to steam ominously.

The town was only a row of houses and outbuildings set back from the road.

There was a liquor store, a small cafe (the only building with any sign of life), and a lime green motel.

The motel was no longer in its prime. The neon sign in front had almost burned out, only the "est" remaining of what had once been "Traveler's Rest." The lime paint flaked from the stucco walls. A few puny boxwoods grew around the foundations and several cars, their back seats piled with sample cases, were

The man pulled into the drive and almost at once the car, with an angry hiss, began to spew water. He stood and looked at it for a moment before opening the screen door of the office and going inside.

The young woman also got out of the car and stood by it to stretch. A cold wind was blowing, and she pulled her collar up around her ears.

Inside, the man looked around a dismal little office. It was untidy and cluttered with furniture, a couple of sickly-looking potted cactuses making a feeble attempt to add some cheer. The TV blared to empty seats, but a cigarette still burned in the ashtray.

"Anybody here?" called the young man.

After a moment a plump, balding man in a western shirt came from behind the curtain that separated the room from the rest of the building. He seemed surprised to see the young man. 'We got no room," he announced without preamble.

"Oh?" said the young man, staring at him hopelessly. "Nothing?"
"Nothing." The man glanced, through the window, at the steaming car in the driveway and the young woman beside it.

"You got car trouble" "Yeah. Is there a garage in town?"

"Nah. Closed down six months ago.

"How far is the next town?"

Helplessly, the young man stared at the counter, as though there might be a sign there of what he should do next. The older man stood patiently watching him but offered no help. A long minute passed.

Then a middle-aged, plump woman in a soiled housedress appeared from the

She took in the situation with a glance at the young man, the steaming car, the young woman waiting. Still, she studied the registry as though in hopes of finding a vacancy there. "No place, huh?" she said, more a statement of fact than a question.

The young man nodded wearily.

Again she glanced through the window at the young woman waiting by the car, and a certain softness appeared about her face.

"Listen," she said after a moment. "We got an extra room in the back — we don't rent it; just use it to store stuff. You could stay there tonight." She carefully avoided meeting the eyes of her husband, who stared at her.

The young man also stared at her, an expression of hopelessness in his eyes. "Come on," she said quickly to him. "I'll show you." Chattering rapidly, she herded him out the door and down the row of rooms to the end, where a broken screen door flapped in the wind. The young woman followed them without questions. The woman unlocked the door and snapped on the light. The smell of disuse rected them-immediately. The room was musty and filled with odds and ends greeted them immediately. The room was musty and filled with odds and ends of furniture, cans of paint, ladders and packing boxes.

Still chattering idly, the woman made her away across the room, pushing small objects out of her way with her feet, to where a bed sagged against the far wall, laden with boxes of various kinds. She quickly began moving cartons from it, then pounded the mattress, sending up clouds of dust.

"This won't be so bad," she talked constantly as she worked. "It's warm and dry at least. There's a gas heater here someplace. I think it works — see if you can get it started. I'll find you some blankets and towels."

She was back in a few minutes, her arms laden with sheets and towels. The young man had succeeded in lighting the gas heater, and the flickering light gave the room the appearance, at least, of warmth, and shone on the wan face of the young woman, who sat on a packing case against the wall, her face reof the young woman, who sat on a packing case against the wall, her face reflecting only a great weariness.

When the woman had finished making up the bed, she stood, hands on hips, and looked around the little room. "Well, you can be comfortable for the night, at least," she said. "You can get something to eat at the cafe; they have sandwiches and things. Don't let them cowboys in there scare you."

She thought for a moment. "You'll have to use the restroom in the lobby -

"It's all right," the young man said quickly. "We have some food with us.

He fumbled his wallet out of his pocket with the dejected air of a man who has little money, but tried to make his voice brisk. "How much do I owe you?" She brushed his question aside with a wave of her hand. "Oh, it's not worth nothing," she said. "Just a place out of the storm." She laughed quickly.

At the door she paused a moment, looking back at the couple, who seemed to have forgotten her existence. She opened her mouth as if to speak, then thought better of it, and went out.

The wind was growing sharper, and she was glad to step inside her own doorway into the lobby, where her husband was just turning off the lights and televi-

"You get them settled?"

"Yes," she responded, offering no further information.

Later, as they prepared for bed, he turned to her suddenly.
"What did you want to do that for?"

Defensively: "What?"

"Give that room to them kids."

"Well," she said, a little angrily, "They didn't have noplace else to go. What was they going to do — sleep in the car?" "Umm," he said, turning off the light and settling back against his pillows with a sigh. "It was a dumb thing to do," he commented.

After a moment of silence, he mused aloud, "Probably doesn't even have a job waiting, and a kid on the way.

He heard a muffled sound from her side of the bed. "What?" he asked into the darkness.

But she was asleep.

YULE FRUIT BREAD 3-31/2 cups enriched flour 2 pkgs. dry yeast

½ cup sugar 2 tsps. salt 1 tsp. lemon peel

1 cup milk 4 cup oil

2 eggs, room temperature

2 cups whole wheat flour % cup chopped candied fruit

1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds 1/4 cup raisins Stir together 2 cups enriched flour, yeast, sugar, salt and lemon peel. Heat milk and oil until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Add liquid ingredients to flour nixture; beat 3 minutes on mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in whole wheat flour, candied fruit, almonds and raisins. Let dough rest 10 minutes. Turn onto floured surface and knead, adding more flour as needed to prevent sticking, until smooth and satiny, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease all sides of dough and let rise in warm place until double about 11/2 hours. Punch down and divide dough into thirds. Place each portion in a well greased 1-pound coffee can. Let rise in warm place until dough is over top of can. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 35 to 40 minutes. If top of loaf is brown before baking time is complete, cover with a foil tent. Remove from cans immediately and cool thoroughly on wire rack. Frost with powdered sugar glaze .

Calling All Homemakers

Here are some furniture ideas about pieces that can not only add beauty to your home but can also help you by being extremely practical.

One good example is a narrow flip-top table which may be used (a) against the wall as a console, (b) as a bar by pulling out stools stored underneath, (c) as a dining table by flapping the flip, (d) as a desk when needed, (e) as a buffet.

Another decorative and useful idea is to use a pair of two-doored chests side by side. Both may hold and conceal a variety of items. This still leaves room on the chests appropriate accessories, lamps, books, etc.

End, lamp or commode tables containing three or four drawers are particularly useful for storing all kinds of things when space is limited, aside from serving their

CRANBERRY CHEESE BREAD 2 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained

1/2 cup soft butter or margarine 2 envelopes active dry yeast 2 cups lukewarm water 1/3 cup sugar 7 cups unsifted all-purpose

1 tbsp. salt 2 cups (8 oz.) grated Gruyere or Swiss cheese

In a saucepan, combine 112 cups water, sugar and cranberries. Bring to a boil and simmer for 5 minutes. In a large bowl place butter, pour hot cranberry mixture over it and stir until butter is melted. Cool to lukewarm. Thoroughly dissolve yeast in 1/2 cup of water; stir into cranberry mixture. Add flour, salt and cheese, stir until well blended. Spoon dough into a greased and floured 12-cup bundt pan. Cover and let rise in a warm place until almost to the top of the pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 35 to 40 minutes or until bread is firm to the touch in the center. Cool in pan 10 minutes, remove from pan and cool on a rack bottom side up. Cut into thin slices to serve. Serve spread with butter or cream cheese, if desired.

ANSWER LINE

A senior citizen writes: "I know a lot of people who have had cancer and been treated and lived to a ripe old age. Now I know someone who is refusing to be treated and is going to have some quack cure. Why on earth do intelligent people go to quacks?

ANSWERline: There are many answers to that question but perhaps one of the most insightful comes from Orville Kelly, a cancer patient who founded, 'Make Today Count," an organization of people with life-threatening illness. When he became a public speaker telling about his personal cancer experience and emotions, he was besieged by people pushing "miraculous" cures including magic sleeping boards," asparagus diets, psychic surgery, and laetrile, a substance made from apricot pits. "I think that I would rather have cancer," Kelly said when one woman suggested a tumbler full of castor oil mixed with olive oil, every hour on the hour. But, he has noted, "desperate people do desperate things - when a patient's life is involved emotions overcome skepticism." People advocating "miracle" cures often prey on these emotions. This can lead to

A salesman asks: "Not long ago my wife had to have a breast removed because of cancer and she is worried that she will lose the other breast too. Can you tell me anything to allay her fears?"

ANSWERline: This is a question that can be answered by your wife's regular physician or breast surgeon, and perhaps the chance to speak with them will help both of you. The basic facts are these: the woman who has had cancer in one breast has a higher risk of developing cancer in her other breast. But this does not happen often. To protect her health, your wife should be having regular checkups and she should do breast self-examination on her remaining breast each month. Your local American Cancer Society Unit has special Reach to Recovery information just for women who have had breast surgery. Both you and your wife might find this material extremely helpful in answering many of the ques-tions that you might have.

CHECKING IN - Mitzi Stockinger, 7, a second grader at Beane Elementary School, brings her gift budget to the "Santa Claus Shop," sponsored by the Beane PTA.

HARD CHOICES — Selecting gifts for family and friends is going to be a hard job, Mitzi decides, as she looks over the merchandise displayed for her to choose from.

ON THE OTHER HAND — Maybe Morn would like that better, Mitzi thinks, as she studies the gifts available. It sure is a hard choice for a little girl to make by herself...

A LITTLE HELP — Edward Castilleja, another second grader at Beane, comes along just in time to offer Mitzi much-needed advice on her shopping problems. WHAT DO YOU THINK? — Edward points out some items in the gift shop which he thinks Mitzi may have overlooked. Mitzi listens closely to his opinions.

ALL DONE - There, that wasn't so hard after all, Mitzi decides, flashing a smile of victory as she departs with her treasures. (Staff photos by Gary Davis)

Chefs Share Cooking Secrets In New Books

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special) — The snowy, dreary days of winter are mitigated world wide by the pleasures of the dining table, and this year there's a veritable harvest of new and exciting cookbooks to choose from, marvelous volumes that will open the door to endless hours of culinary pleasure, particularly around holiday time. These are marvelous books, sure to make any cook smile with anticipation of spreads that will grace any dining table, dinners so innovative and savory that it will make one wonder how he or she ever cooked before. The arrival of these books has been eagerly anticipated by all those to whom cooking and creativity are synonymous, all those who believe there is no greater joy in the world than preparing good food ... simple meals for the family to linger over on quiet weekday evenings as well

COQ AU VIN 1 212-3 lb. frying chicken, cut in serving pieces 1/4 cup butter 8 small onions 4 slices bacon, diced 1/4 cup warmed orange liqueur 1 2/3 cups red wine 14 cups chicken stock or water and chicken bouillon cube Salt and pepper to taste Bouquet garni 2 cups button mushrooms 2 tbsp. butter

4 tbsp. flour

Melt better in a flameproof casserole and fry the onions and bacon until golden brown. Remove from casserole. In remaining fat brown the chicken. Pour warmed liqueur over chicken and ignite. After flame burns off, add chicken stock, wine, salt and pepper, garlic and bouquet garni and bring to boil. Reduce heat, add onions, bacon and mushrooms. Cover casserole and simmer for 40 minutes or until the chicken is tender. Remove bouquet garni. Blend butter and flour to a smooth paste and add to casserole in small pieces, stirring occasionally to thicken sauce. Serves 4. Note: Coq au Vin also may be cooked in a 325 degree oven for 40 minutes or until tender. Serve with small new potatoes, a crisp green salad and French bread.

One of the stars of haute cuisine in America, who is known everywhere for her informative and enjoyable television programs, is Julia Child. Her new volume, "Julia Child & Com-pany" (Alfred A. Knopf), released to coordinate with her latest video venture, is perfect for the experienced cook who wishes to branch out into new, more creative areas. The book, liberally illustrated with fullcolor photographs, is organized as a series of menus, three and four course meals that will captivate guests and which are perfect for all sorts of holiday gatherings.

The dishes for which Child gives recipes are as elaborate and elegant as Fish en Croute and Gateau Victoire au Chocolat, Mousseline, or as simply satisfying as a Corned Beef or Pork Boiled Dinner. Every dish is lovingly described, step by step, in minute detail. Child's fund of knowledge is inexhaustive and she shares it eagerly with her readers, who are certain to applaud this new trove of fine recipes as enthusiastically as they applauded her previous collections.

The publication of "Veal Cookery" authored jointly by Craig Claiborne and Pierre Franey (Harper and Row) will delight anyone who loves good food.

Both Claiborne and Francy are well known and respected by devotees of the New York Times' food pages, and this book is sure to both satisfy and reward their devotion.

A celebration of what is perhaps the world's most delicate viand, "Veal Cookery" is an anthology of exquisite recipes, garnered from every corner of the world by the authors, and carefully tested and adjusted by them prior to inclusion. Both Claiborne and Franey have impeccable taste and an unerring sense of which flavors work well together, which particular herbs, spices and condiments best bring out the subtle glories of veal, and these recipes are glowing testimony to their ability and discernment.

Choose from such masterpieces as world-famous Veal a la Oskar, a delectable dish of yeal chops cooked with asparagus and crabmeat, and topped with Sauce Bearnaise; Cotes de Veau Orloff, a version of the elaborate, clasic Saddle of Veal Orloff, made manageable for home kitchens; and a slew of mouth-watering recipes for all cuts of veal, plus veal kidneys, brains and other specialty meats. Marcella Hazan's More Classic Italian Cooking (Knof) is encyclopedic, factfilled and fascinating, a must for anyone who truly wishes to master all the nuances of one of the world's great cuisines.

Hazan stresses that the roots of Italian cuisine, unlike the roots of French cuisine, are not-in the palaces but in the kitchens of the ordinary working people and in the small restaurants, or traltorie, which they frequent.

Her book is a living monument to home cooking, la buona cucina as it is called, and to the abundant delights it affords: the joys of fresh produce and fruits, fresh herbs discreetly used and the various textures, smells and tastes that make food a pleasure to be savored by all the senses. The recipes that fill and overflow from the pages of this volume are a tribute to the "infinite variety" of Nature, to the glorious symphony of flavors and colors which Nature bestows so liberally.

Hanzan describes in detail the processes involved in making pasta from scratch, both with and without a machine, and encourages her readers to try it themselves.

The wide variety of recipes she has collected gives the lie to the assumption that the major ingredients in Italian cooking are tomatoes and cheese, and the more the better. Throughout the wholesomeness and vitality of Italian cuisine is glowingly apparent.

Community Provides Activities For Vacationing Schoolchildren

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff
"What can I do now?" will be a common question asked of parents by their home-from-school children in the week

The excitement of Christmas Eve and Christmas Day will give way to the inevitable search for activities to occupy the free time the children will have during this holiday break from school routine.

Here are a few of the opportunities available to Lubbock boys and girls during the week ahead. A check with the city Parks and Recreation Department revealed that all com-munity centers will be open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. except for Sundays and Christ-mas and New Year's Day. The centers will offer tournaments in basketballl, volleyball, and ping-pong.

The ladies' physical fitness and jogging program will continue at Hodges Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 11

The Santa Land display at 9th and Avenue K will remain up until after the holi-

The YMCA will be open, but no classes will be held during the week. The pool will be open for free-swim time and gym facilities also will be available.

The YWCA will be closed until Jan. 8. The Mahon Library will be closed Christmas Day and New Year's Day, but

'Festival Of Lights' Marks Rededication of Temple

By FRANCES LOWE

Family News Editor Hanukah, the Jewish Festival of Lights, falls on the same date as Christmas this year.

Although Hanukah does not compare in importance to Passover, the most impor-tant Jewish religious observance, it has received increasing emphasis in Western society in recent years, due in large part to the pervasive cultural emphasis upon the Christmas season.

Always observed during the month of December although not always on the same date, Hanukah commemorates the victory of the Jewish army, led by Judah Maccabee, over Antiochus, the Syrian emperor, more than 2000 years ago.

The Syrians under Antiochus had overrun the Jewish homeland and turned the great Jewish Temple in Jerusalem into a place of worship to pagan idols. After the Jewish victory, the Temple was cleansed and rededicated as a place of worship, and it is this rededication which is cele brated at Hanukah.

According to ancient tradition, when the Syrians were driven from the Temple, only a small jar of holy oil - just enough for one day — was left behind. But this tiny jar of oil burned for eight days and nights until new oil could be made with which to fill the lamp for the Eternal Light."

The eight candles on the "Menorah" symbolize this story; thus the observance of Hanukah centers around the candlelighting ceremony.

Hanukah, a single candle will be lit. Each evening for eight days, an additional candle will be lit, until the last night, when the full eight will be kindled. The lighting of the candles, which is the done by the father of the house, is accompanied by two blessings; a third blessing is said only on the first night.

BRINGING CHRISTMAS JOY - Ann Sanders, president of volunteer services at Other customs which have become asthe Health Sciences Center Hospital, nestles baby Spurgeon R. Hutto II, into one of sociated with Hanukah are the giving of gifts to the children, the eating of 'latkes," or potato pancakes, and a game called "Put and Take," played with a top-like toy called the Dreidel. The prayer used during the lighting of the candles for Hanukah by the Father of the household is a very ancient one: 'Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, Ruler of the Universe, who has sanctified us by Thy commandmenis and commanded us to kindle the Hanukah

He lights the candles, then says: 'Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, Ruler of the Universe, who did wondrous things for our fathers at this season in

Newest Luxury Home Subdivision Slated On Slide Road

visions, is being handled on a large scale.

Located at 82nd Street and Slide Road, the 510acre tract will include a championship class golf course extending some 7,000 yards to the back tees, and custom-built single-family homes ranging in price up to $275,000.

The developers are Myers Financial Corp. of Dallas, in cooperation with First Federal Savings and Loan and Olney Savings and Loan.

Plans call for the expenditure of $2.5 million on the golf course and the two-story, 23,000-squarefoot country club building, according to Larry Teaver, project manager.

The club will feature 14 tennis courts, four of which will be covered, and a large swimming pool.
Play is scheduled to begin in June on the front nine holes of the golf course, with the latter nine expected to be completed in the fall of 1979. The club is expected to receive its permit from the city in January, with construction beginning in the spring. A firm decision on initiation fee has not yet been made, according to Teaver.

The rapidly developing area currently has 44 homes completed, with an additional 30 already assigned permits or in various stages of construction. While some houses in the development are as low as $70,000 in price, most projects are in the $100,000-plus category. Square footage ranges up to 5,500. Lots vary from 80 to 125 in front-foot sizes.

Phase 1 of the project, consisting of the preparation of 129 lots for construction sites, began in November, 1977. Phase II, which will open another 98 lots, is set for July, 1979.

The entire project is expected to take five years

Teaver said that of the 650 single-family lots which will eventually be developed, 247 will be golf

In addition to the single-family home sites, the project will include commercial zones plus 56 acres

A number of cluster-type homes, or townhouses, have also been scheduled for the area.

Teaver said that while a membership drive for the country club will not begin until January, some 700 persons already have either requested membership or have asked to be placed on the organization's mailing list.

Teaver notices that the club will not be limited to Teaver, noting that the club will not be limited to persons living within the development, said other country clubs in the city require a 30-mile round trip for persons living in Southwest Lubbock.

Residents of the development represent a wide variety of occupations, including Air Force officers, building contractors, retail store managers, physicians, and Texas Instruments personnel:

Tips Offered To New CB Owners

Once again, Santa will be delivering countless thousands of new CB radio transceivers on Christmas morning. And across the nation, requests for "radio checks" and nervous "How am I hitting you, good buddy?" questions will clog the 40 channels.

To the newcomers joining an estimated 30 million regular users of CB, let us welcome you. As a hobby or for a highway security device, CB promises to fill many otherwise boring hours.

But because of the tremendous popularity, there are some CB rules you should know:

The official regulations - set by the Federal Communications Commission can be found inside the box that the new transceiver came in. By law, each CBer is requied to have read and understood the CB regulations. Same with getting a license. The application form for a license must be filled out and sent in. There are still penalties - up to $1,000-a-day - for unlicensed operation.

Besides the official rules, some other, less formal, CB procedures have evolved. newcomers and veteran "ratchetjaws" who may have forgotten them, let's review the three most important CB operating points.

1. CB belongs to everyone. Like the oldfashioned telephone party line, CB's 40 channels are to be shared. No one should monopolize any single channel.

Channel 9 can be used for emergency communications only, or for messages that assist the motorist. Channel 19 is the highway channel. Channel 16 and channels 35 to 40 are sideband channels. Some best barometer of the public mood be-areas also designate channels 30-40 for

2. Listen before breaking. If there is a conversation under way, wait until it is over before breaking. Always identify with your FCC callsign, or, in the event you are still waiting for your permanent ense, use the interim described in the FCC rules that come with the new rig.

3. Ignore the troublemaker. There are some CBers who love to "agitate," to throw carrier, whistle, utter profanities and generally act like fools. The key to dealing with them is simple. Ignore them. Once they realize their actions aren't bringing any response, they'll become bored and stop. There's much more to CB than just those three points, of course. But remembering them will make CB more enjoyable. To really understand CB, and to avoid making mistakes, it's best not to rush into modulating.

Take some time to listen. That way, you'll learn the best procedures, the 'slanguage" and the style.

Q. Can a CB club get its own license? -

A. Yes. Fill out the regular FCC Form 505 and have the club president or chief executive officer sign it. Club members can use the club call, designating themselves as a unit number, but only to transact club business.

CB Static: Readers Air Gripes

Dear Mike: As a general rule, it seems to me that most people on CB talk too fast and slur their words together. They may think it sounds neat, but it's often impossible to understand their message. - W.L., Sioux Falls, S.D.

Dear Static: There's been a lot of talk lately about giving CBers more frequencies. I say bunk to all of this. CBers have shown that they are totally unable to keep order on the 40 channels they have. If they got any more, they'd only create more pollution. - M.R., Westville, Ill.

Dear Mr. Wendland: I think the CB band has improved 100 percent lately. It seems as if the toy aspect of the radios has worn off and the people now realize that CB can be very helpful and useful. I don't hear as much silly slang and people seem more considerate. It's about time. - E.D., Middletown, Pa.

Christmas Offering Donated To Medical Center Here

In the spirit of Christmas giving, members of Grace Presbyterian Church are donating their Christmas offering to the Presbyterian Medical Center in Lubbock, 2305 Cedar Ave.

The church, which has about 50 member families, has gathered more than $600 to give to the center for urgent repairs of the building

The Christmas offering from Grace Presbyterian Church is over and above the normal benevolence giving of the congregation, a spokesman for the church said.

The Christmas offering will be used to help repair a leaking roof and provide general operating expenses of the center. The center has run low on general operating funds this year because of major plumbing repairs to the building and replacing all the windows of the building, which were broken out by van-

The Presbyterian Medical Center, which provides medical attention to indigent adults, was founded in January, 1966. The idea for the center was conceived in 1965 when a number of Lubbock Presbyterians, including some physicians, became aware of the need for medical and counseling assistance in the lower income areas of Lubbock.

It provides medical services to low income youth and adults not eligible for welfare and not able to afford private coverage. It is staffed mostly by volunteers, who donate their time to work at the center.

It was first housed in a small building behind the Messiah Presbyterian Church in northeast Lubbock. In June, 1968, the center was moved to its present location, the former Chatman Hospital-Clinic built by the late Dr. J.A

Dr. Stewart To Lead Annual Hi-Plains Academy Of Christian Disciples Here

Dr. John Stewart, professor of the Old Testament at Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, will lead both the lay and clergy sections of the annual Hi-Plains Academy of the Christian (Disciples of Christ)

The lay section, to be held at Lubbock's First Christian Church, is entitled "The Power Structure of the Church." It will begin at 10 a.m. Jan. 6, preceded by registration, coffee and doughnuts at 9:30 a.m. The one-day event will conclude at 4 p.m. Jan. 6.

The minister's section, entitled "The Old Testament for Christians," begins with an evening meal at 6 p.m. Jan. 7 and concludes with lunch Jan. 10.

The eighth annual session of the ministers's academy is a continuing education opportunity for ministers made possible through funding provided by the Christian Church Foundation, First Christian Church of Lubbock and sponsored by the Hi-Plains Area Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) through its committee on the minister, chaired by David Harker of Stratford.

CHURCH BRIEFS

Oakwood Baptist Church is having a candlelight evening worship service at 5 p.m. today in the church chapel.

Covenant Presbyterian Church is having a special Christmas Eve candlelight service at 7:30 p.m. today with Christmas carols and scripture. The service is featuring a Christmas Eve meditation, a Christmas story for children, and the sharing of the light from the Christ candle in the Advent wreath.

Forrest Heights United Methodist Church is holding a come-and-go communion service from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. today.

University Christian Church is holding a special Christmas Eve candlelight service at 6 p.m. today with Christmas carols, scripture readings and lighting of the candles in the Advent wreath.

St. Christopher's Episcopal Church is having several special worship services today and Monday in observance of Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. A Holy Eucharist service is planned for 8 a.m. today, followed at 4 p.m. by a children's Christmas service, baptism and infant Jesus birthday cake. Holy Eucharist services also are being held at 8 p.m. and 11 p.m. today in the church. A Holy Euchrist service also is scheduled at 10 a.m. Monday.

St. John's United Methodist Church is having a Christmas Eve candlelight service at 11 p.m. today. The service, ending at midnight, includes the lighting of the candles on the Advent wreath, Holy Communion, singing of favorite Christmas carols and special music from the church choir.

Positive Thinking

By Norman Vincent Peale

IT WAS A VERY OLD and small inn near the gates of the city. No one stayed there who could find friends to take him in. Usually business wasn't very good. But two or three times a year something special would go on in town and people would crowd into the city. On these occasions even the inn would be filled.

It was at such a time that the old innkeeper was helping a tired traveler stable his donkey. "Full up, tonight?" asked the traveler.

"Oh, yes," the innkeeper said, "we'll have to put a straw pallet for you on the floor in the entrance hall. There are four or five other men there now." "I wish I'd known you were going to be so crowded. I would have tried to get here earlier," the traveler remarked, "I guess this is as crowded as you've ever

Not at all. Sometimes we've even had people bedded down right here in the stable among the animals. Why, once I even had to put a pregnant woman here. That was a long time ago, but somehow I've never forgotten it..." he said reflec-

"WE WERE SWAMPED with travelers that night, all clamoring for food and lodging. I was overworked, tired and irritable. A man came in and asked for a room. I didn't even look up; I just said, 'No room!"

"But my wife is pregnant,' he told me. "Why didn't you leave her at home?' was my response (which was pretty rough, I guess). Just then my wife came over to tell me that there was a woman on a donkey out in the courtyard who was having birth pangs at that very moment and that we would have to do something for her.

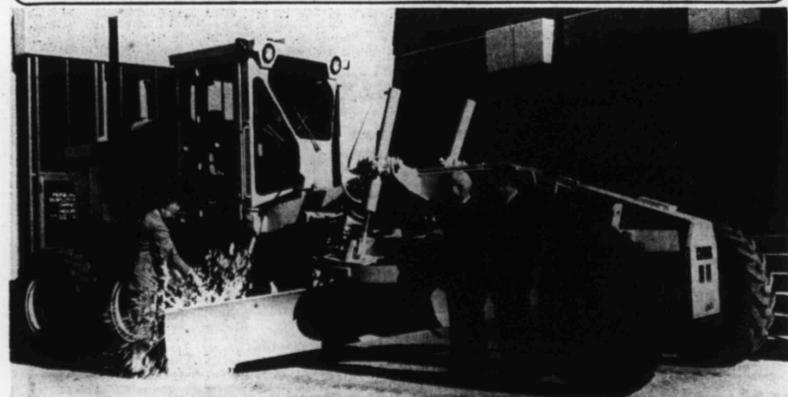

"That's your wife, I suppose,' I said to the man, and he nodded yes. Well, we'd already given up our beds and the only thing I could tell him was that I'd have some fresh straw put in the stable and they could stay there. He thanked me courteously and took his wife into the stable.

"IT WAS A BUSY night, one of the busiest we've ever had and I soon forgot all about the young couple in the stable. When my work finally let up, I thought I would get a breath of air before going to sleep, so I went out into the yard. It was a beautiful night and I stood looking up at the heavens. Suddenly up there in the sky was the biggest star I've ever seen. Then over the stable I was surprised to see some camels. I hadn't had any caravans that night; my trade is usually donkey trade, when they don't come on foot. So I went to take a look and to my amazement the stable was filled with people

"Naturally, I wanted to know what was going on and I went in. It turned out that the woman had had her baby there in the stable, and I just figured that the excitement must have attracted this group of passersby. There were some shepherds in from the fields and I was astonished to see there some rich men, who, I was told, were from afar off in the East. The baby was a very beautiful boy and those rich men were kneeling by the manger giving him gifts. You might have thought none of them had ever seen a baby before, they seemed so excited. But he was a real pretty baby. We all sort of felt glad. I can still remember how good

"What happened then?" the traveler asked.

"Oh," the innkeeper answered, "eventually all those people went away and let the poor woman and child get some rest. The three of them, father, mother and child, left as soon as she could travel - for Egypt, I think. It sure was a pretty baby," he hesitated "...the most unusual child I ever saw. I often wonder what he grew up to be."

NEW GRADER-The Lubbock plant of Clark Equipment Co. is expected to increase its production by 20 percent during 1979 with the manufacture of two models of road graders. Additional production is expected to be approximately $10 million per year above prior output. In the above photo, Jerry Greuel, vice and president and general

Shoes For Jogging Recommended

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Our recent discussion of jogging injuries and how to avoid them resulted in a considerable number of requests for information about jogging shoes.

The most comprehensive information may come from Runner's World Magazine. The October issue contains the editors' shoe evaluations for 1979. They are rated with a star system: five stars, highly recommended; four stars, recommended; three stars, adequate and average; two star, below average; and one star, not worth taking out of the box.

The magazine says the ratings are based on scientific tests measuring flexibility, impact, weight, sole wear and quality control - things a consumer can't really check just by trying on a pair of shoes in a store.

The publication provides a complete description of each shoe in all the rating classes, along with prices and comments. Here are the five-star shoes, in alpha-

Government energy experts are looking for help from consumers in several parts of the country in a project designed to find out how well wall insulation works. Homeowners selected to participate will also receive a gift for their trouble.

The Commerce Department's National Bureau of Standards says homeowners who have had thermal insulation installed in the walls of their houses at least two years are eligible. Three types of insulation will be studied: urea-formaldehyde foams, cellulosic loose fill and mineral fiber loose fill.

The homeowners will be visited by a researcher who will remove small portions from the inside or outside wall and study the insulation to see how well it is doing Persons living in the house will also be asked about their experiences and the walls will be repaired to the owners' satisfaction.

Participants will receive a clock thermostat, a device designed to save energy by controlling the temperature of a house according to a time schedule.

CONGRESS RAISED compensation by 7.3 percent for 2.25 million veterans, 225,00) widows and 92,000 children of vets, retroactive to Oct. 1. It broadened eligibility for allowances to dependents of vets with 30 percent disability. Con-

Another new law raises the maximum guaranty for VA home loans from $17,-500 to $25,000, increases the VA grant to severely disabled vets from $25,000 to $30,000 for buying or adapting homes to their special needs, and improves the VA mobile home program to permit a $17,500 maximum loan. The new law also cuts length of active-duty service required for VA home loans, assisting 168,000 Vietnam-era vets. It requires only 90 days of service, one of which must have been between Aug. 5, 1964, and May 7, 1975, to be eligible for VA home loans.

Finally, Congress has revamped the VA pension system drastically -and if you're one of the 2.2 million persons getting a pension, you'd better WATCH OUT.

The pension increase is generous, raising the needy vet above the federal "poverty guideline." Maxium yearly pension for a single vet will rise on Jan. 1, 1979, from $2,364 to $3,550. A vet with one dependent with no other income who now gets $2,544 a year increases to $4,651; similarly scaled increases are available to housebound vets, surviving spouses and dependent children. In addition, Congress has provided an automatic increase for pensioners each time there's a cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits.

BUT THERE'S A CATCH, and VA Administrator Max Cleland makes no

"The new program basically provides the greatest benefits for those most in need," he says but warns: "All VA pensioners should take a careful look at all facets of the program before making up their minds (aboust switching to it)."

Reason for his warning: The pension rules have been changed, and if you're on a pension you have untill Oct. 1 to make up your mind whether you'll abide by the new rules or stick with the old ones, as Congress is allowing you to do. Under the old law, earned income of a pensioner's wife did NOT count as part of the pensioner's income. Neither did income or assets of a dependent child. About 150,000 vet pensioners have working wives whose earned incomes range as high as $40,000 a year. Vet pensioners with working wives would lose their pensions if they take the wrong option under the new law.

So it's incumbent on pensioners to protect themselves. The best way to do this is to check with one of VA's 58 regional offices (in the phone book under U.S. Government) or with veterans' service officers who work in the courthouses of

Q. Can my widow still collect Social Security if she receives monthly pay-

Q. I'm in the real estate business. Four years ago I had a great year but for the last three, I have lost money. Now it looks like I'll have another good year, but it made me wonder about the fu-ture. What happens if I owe money when I die? Can my creditors step in and take my life insurance money?

A. Generally speaking, no. In most states, by law your creditors can't attach life insurance which is payable to a named beneficiary. But they can look to other assets in your estate for payment of their claims.

Q. All right, what happens when I get sick and can't work. How can life insurance protect me and my family then?

A. One way would be to make sure the life insurance policy you buy has a "waiver of premium" provision. If it does, and you become permanently or totally disabled, the company would pay the premiums for as long as that condi tion exists. You might also look into a special ad dition to your life insurance policy called a "disability income benefit" provision. It would pay a specified amount each month until you reach the age of 65, if you are totally disabled. Of course, the cash value of your permanent life insurance policy can also help out in an emer-

Dividend Hike Announced By Furr Cafeterias

The board of directors of Furr's Cafeterias has announced a 12.5 cents per share quarterly dividend payable Jan. 31, to shareholders of record at the close of business Jan. 15.

The 12.5 cents per share quarterly dividend represents an 11 percent increase over the previously established quarterly dividend of 11.25 cents per share.

'This dividend increase," reports Chief Executive Officer Don Furr, "reflects our confidence and enthusiasm in the future of Furr's Cafeterias." The chairman of the food service company said significant sales gains are emerging "especially in markets where we have had good weather.

"We have acquired nine locations for new cafeterias," Furr said.

It may be that we are looking too hard and too far from where most of us stand, work, sleep, play, worship.

To Mourn Carter's More Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Mr. Carter's decision to abandon Taiwan makes me want to wear a black band of mourning, not only in sympathy for the Taiwanese freedom lovers, but for the contempt that our allies must feel for the United States.

Now that we are to be brothers of Communist China, I wonder how many billions we taxpayers will be out in helping develop China into a 20th Century nation? They then will probably turn on us in the same manner Russia has.

Just to ease the pain of frustration, I wonder how much the OPEC countries have to import in the way of foodstuff? If it is as much as I think it might be, why don't the Western Allies charge them the same price for a bushel of wheat that they charge us for a barrel of oil?

But I suppose then the Russians would make another big profit off grains we sell them. Edwin L. Gunn, 4520 66th St.

Night O Miracle

IN COUNTLESS homes across the nation children and adults alike will gather tonight for a reading of what generally is recognized as the most famous Christmas poem in the English lan-

We refer, of course, to "T'was The Night Before Christmas," or "A Visit From St. Nicholas," as it was orginally known.

The classic, more than any other one thing, is responsible for the image of Santa Claus as the world knows him today.

The exact details vary, but as is the case in many such writings, seemingly inspired by a touch of genius, the poem just happened in a sense. Today, in keeping with a long-standing tradition on these pages, we repeat the story.

DR. CLEMENT Clarke Moore, the author, was born July 15, 1779, on the old Chelsea Estate just outside New York City, overlooking the Hudson and what is now 23rd Street. A graduate of Columbia at the age of 19, Moore devoted himself to the study of Oriental and Classical literature. He was musical and had a flare for architecture, and at an early age wrote verses and books.

He quickly earned a reputation as a lexicographer. In 1813, he married a beautiful girl, only 19 at the time. She died when only 36 years old.

In 1831, Moore was named professor of Biblical Learning at the General Theological Seminary of New York City, and later donated the ground upon which the building now stands.

AS TO HOW the famous poem came about, the details vary only slightly. One account has it that Moore's wife was making baskets for the poor of Trinity Church on Christmas Eve, 1822, when she found she needed more turkeys. She persuaded the professor to leave his warm study and go to the store. The streets were decked out in their most colorful and cheery Christmas dress. The crowds were warm and friendly. The normally aloof 43year-old scholar was touched. On the way home, as sleigh bells tinkled, the vision of Christmas as all children see it formed in his mind. UPON HIS RETURN home, he penned the lines now known around the world, and read them to his seven children as they sat around the crackling fireplace that evening. Ironically, the verses lay dormant until the fall of the following year, when the daughter of a triend visited in the Moore home. She took copy to Troy, N.Y., where she gave it to the local editor, who printed it Dec. 23, 1823. Some say it was not until Dec. 25, 1838, that the poem was printed under Dr. Moore's name, later appearing in 1844 in a volume by him. Dr. Moore died July 10, 1863, at the age of 83. His last years were spent for his children and in aiding others. He has been described as a man of rare comeliness and simplicity of character, kindly disposed and generous to a fault."

But, his contribution to Christmas for children of all ages will live forever. Each Dec. 24, his grave in Trinity Cemetery at 155th St. and Broadway in New York City, is decorated by those who

NEW YORK (UPI) There are proportionately
10 times the number murders in the United States as there are in Japan, 13 times the number of rapes, 208 times the robberies. Why?

David H. Bayley, a University of Denver professor who is a staff consultant to the National Commission on the Prevention of Violence, was one of several experts who sought to answer the question at a recent meeting of Japanese and U.S. police officials

While Americans tend to get their backs up when confronted by authority, the Japanese are more likely, as the adage goes, to "bend like a willow." Or, as Bayley put it, "In Japan, the criminal justice system is efficient because the people obey and respect law and authority." spect law and authority."

Bayley cited key statistics. Last year, the FBI re-ported the violent crime rate in the United States was 466.6 per 100,000 inhabitants, up from 160.9 in 1960. In Japan, it was 65.7, down from 188.8 in 1960, according to Japan's National Police Agency.

"The most remarkable aspect is the close relationship between the Japanese police and the general citizenry," said Patrick V. Murphy, president of the Police Foundation, a nonprofit body with headquarters in Washington.

"The Japanese seem to respect the police, to call on them frequently for assistance, and to aid them in preventing crime and investigating the incidents which do occur."

By contrast, Americans are generally unwilling to cooperate with the police, Murphy said. He cited three studies which, he said, demonstrate there must be better police-citizen cooperation in the U.S. if the police are to accomplish their mission.

— A National Victimization Survey showed three out of four U.S. crimes are not even reported to the — A response time study in Kansas City concluded that, no matter how fast police respond to a crime report, delays in calling them generally make immediate apprehension of a suspect impossible.

— A Rand Corp. study of the investigative process found that when cases are solved, it is most often because a citizen tells the police who did it. Murphy had some ideas on how U.S. police might make use of Japanese police methods.

Japanese police, he said, are deployed to fixed. small geographic areas. They have a small "patch" to be responsible for and a specific group of people

"Though each American officer has ten times more area to cover than a Japanese counterpart," he said, "there is no reason why fixed posts, manned by officers on foot, cannot serve densely

"An early (Police) Foundation experiment in San Diego," Murphy noted, "found that training patrol officers to prepare written reports describing their beats, the people who live there, the problems they face and the steps which they plan to take as police officers to address those problems, gave them a greater awareness of their beats and a greater appreciation of the importance of community interaction."

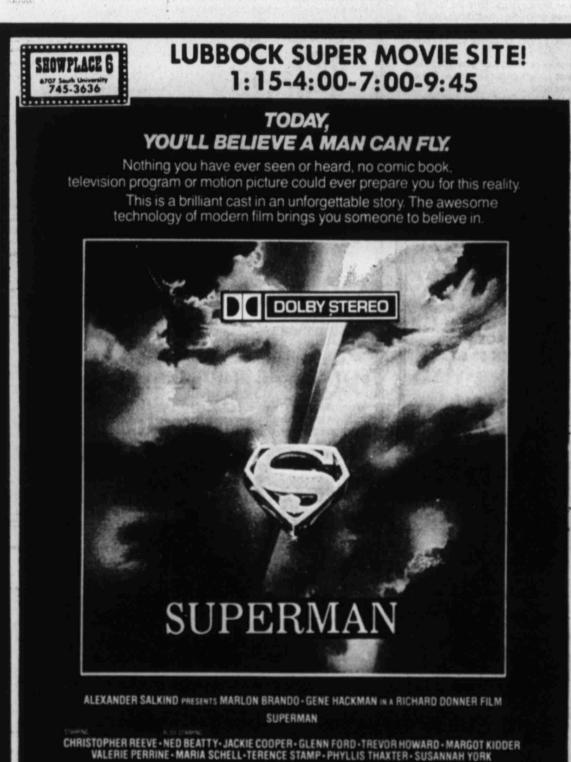

Japanese police use neighborhood groups and citizen organizations as major forces in crime prevention. Half a million homes in Tokyo serve as distribution centers for crime prevention literature.

"Though much attention is being given to citizenbased programs in the United States," Murphy said, "the police often look upon them with suspicion, fearing that they represent vigilante-ism on the one hand or fleeting interest which will evaporate without accomplishing anything on the other."

out accomplishing anything on the other."

Murphy said he isn't sure whether U.S. police can be brought to foster such urban community efforts.

But he suggested it would be worthwhile to find out.

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movies and television spill more money in the course of a production than most businesses, excepting the U.S. government, of course, manage to throw away in a decade.

At least that's the way producer Ed Friendly sees it.

Friendly is a conservationist whose blood boils at the extravagance in big time show business. Most particularly is he upset about $400,000 worth of sets wasted for his $6 million production of the nine-part miniseries "Backstairs at the White House" scheduled to be televised next January by NBC.

Friendly, who produced TV's "Laugh-In" and originated "Little House on the Prairie" among other credits, is a meticulous man who insisted that three floors of the White House be precisely duplicated for his latest project.

The White House curator turned over detailed plans of the family floor, the ground floor and the servants and basement quarters. Pictures of the various rooms were also employed for authenticity

"Backstairs at the White House" - based on the book by Lillian Rogers Parks and Frances Spatz Leighton — involves eight administrations from William Howard Taft to Dwight D. Eisenhower Each President's wife redecorated the rooms, necessitating eight completely different set decorations for the TV

"We used 28,000 square feet on two stages at Goldwyn Studios," Friendly said. "And we spent $400,000 and 4½ months building those sets from the ground up. We used all new lumber

"Six pits were used to accommodate staircases coming up to and leading out of the various floors. We were very proud of the minute detail involved, including solid mahogany doors and fixtures. "We were in production for 15 weeks with 24 stars. When we finished shooting, I tried to sell, give away or otherwise dispose of the sets, maybe the most expensive ever built for TV. But not one cent was recoverable. "It finally was bulldozed down and hauled off for landfill." Friendly, normally a relaxed and easy-going man, gritted his teeth in frustra-

He offered to give the White House flats - the theatrical term for interior walls - to all the major studios and was turned down. He asked the drama departments at USC and UCLA if they would take them. No, thanks.

Friendly suggested that Goldwyn Studios store them for future use and was told there was no space for them.

"I heard that David Susskind was going to produce 'Blind Ambition' from the John Dean book," Friendly said. "Most of that project takes place in the White House, so I asked them if they'd like to use our sets.

"Susskind's art director looked at them and said he wanted to build his own.

of our natural resources. "The major studios have their own mills, carpenters and teamsters to do construction work. Neither the studios nor the unions have the slightest interest in ecology. They just want to keep people working and charge producers 20 to 30 percent overhead to build new sets.

"It's an indictment of our industry. As an ecology minded man I think it is criminal that our industry survives by artificially creating work at the expense

"Granted, Goldwyn doesn't have storage space. But I suggested they take at least 10 flats and store them outside under plastic for future use.

"They told me by the time a new art director found the flats, had four grips pull them out, had the teamsters haul them to a stage, had other grips put them up and repaint them, the labor bills would be just as expensive as buying new lumber and starting from scratch.

"One of the reasons new TV shows and movies cost so much is that nobody in this business saves anything. It's pathetic.

"It didn't used to be that way. In the old days every studio had a back lot with plenty of room for storage. If I'd made 'Backstairs at the White House' 15 years ago, I wouldn't have had to built the flats. I could have picked them up from one of the studios. Instead, we had to knock down another forest.

"Real estate has become so valuable that people can't afford to rent space for storage. It would have cost me about $100,000 to disassemble our sets. But even if I could afford to store them, nobody would come looking for them.

"It's the same old story up and down the line. I bought $12,000 worth of wigs for the miniseries. After production the studios didn't want them. They'd rather buy new ones for their productions.

"There's a lot of corruption involved in this sort of thing. You can't even give sets and wigs away within the industry. There is too much money to be made by the unions and the studios — by charging overhead to producers

"I finally managed to give $40,000 worth of doors to UCLA. At least the university had room for them. "Labor has become more expensive than materials. Major studios with huge payrolls have to justify so much employment by keeping people busy, even if it means a great deal of waste.

"The ridiculous part of it is, the studio recoups its money from producers who have to foot the bill whether they need new construction or not."

By GAIL GREGG WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jack Valenti and his Motion Picture Association seem just a little smug in this day of all-out industry battles against government regula-

The movie executive, a Texas sidekick of the late President Lyndon Johnson, says his organization has met the enemy and won. And even Congress agrees.

"The film industry is unique," a House subcommittee on small business recently found. "Federal regulation is not an obstacle as it is to just about every other ingood job of heading this off."

The system, which applies the "G," "PG," "R" and increasingly "X" ratings to movies, was born 10 years ago after a Supreme Court pornography ruling made imminent the threat of government regu-

Within weeks of the court decision, Valenti said, producers, distributors and theater owners had devised the plan now familiar to all cinemagoers. They would second-guess the government by evaluating film content themselves and advising

"The movie industry is doing what the law would do and probably doing it better," Valenti said.

"If there weren't a rating system then there would be a vaccuum and the government would step in.'

The three branches of the film industry appointed a seven-member board to run the independent and self-financing system. Board members view an average two films a day, tally their ratings and hear appeals.

A producer pays from $700 to $8,000 - according to the size of the film's budget — to have a movie rated. The first three categories — "G," "PG" and "R" — are copyrighted. But the last, "X," is up for grabs and can be applied voluntarily to

The controversy that first greeted the system, mostly from within the industry, has quieted. And Valenti said, local and state governments have stopped their initially frequent attempts to establish cen-

Backgammon

The result, he believes, is a screen that is free for creators and audiences alike.
"The movie business has never been better," said Valenti. Box office profits are running 13.2 percent ahead of last year. Ticket prices have risen only 4 percent. Attendance is up 8.4 percent. "So if you subtract inflation, it's still an enormous gain," he said. Curiously, the "artsy, statement" movies that in part prompted the ratings system have been replaced by "entertain-ment-oriented films," the movie executive said.

"We're making pictures today that have a beginning and middle and end. People stayed away in droves from rele-vant films. They would ask, 'I paid 12 bucks to see a downer? I want to laugh."

And audiences have changed along with movie content. Movie-goers are now better educated, Valenti said studies show, and more belong to single house-

"People of some education level are finding their television entertainment less than satisfactory," Valenti said. "So they're going out to the movies."

Although Valenti said his industry is safe on the content front, it is threatened with state government regulation in the area of distribution.

Ohio has enacted a law giving cinema owners the right to preview films before bidding to screen them. Valenti and the MPA have filed a suit in Federal Court claiming the legislation violates constitutional rights.

"Why should the government get in-volved in a contractual dispute between the retailer and the wholesaler?" he asked. "And what the distributors want us to do is work against a deadline that can't be met.'

Under current practice, distributors be-gin marketing films as many as 18 months in advance - booking the movies into theaters and reserving newspaper and television advertising space.

Although most producers can meet that kind of schedule, Valenti said, it would be impossible for them to complete films in time for prescreening. And for big budget films with large interest pay-ments to meet, the delay could be prohib-

Authors of the Ohio law say cinema owners should not be forced to bid on films sightunseen. Under the blind-bidding practice they buy movies on the basis of story line, producer's name and star lineup —but have no real guarantee Valenti, 57, a Houston native and former advertising executive, has been MPA president since 1966 when a group of "movie moguls" invited him to take the chair. He was special assistant to President Johnson at the time.

"It's about as fascinating a world as one could have other than politics," he your backgammon, don't miss this book.

Cooke argues convincingly that safety here is a mirage. White is poised to make either his 4-point or his 2-point. If Black now plays safely, at his next turn his board will start to crumble unless he rolls either a 6-1, or a 3, depending on which point in his home board White succeeds in making.

The author suggests further that the danger in splitting is exaggerated. His move is to bring a man from the 8-point to the 6-point for the 2, and from White's 1-point to the 4-point for the 3.

Even if White succeeds in pointing on the blot on his 4-point, Black's game is still good, unless White succeeds in freeing both his runners quickly — and to do this he must roll two 2's and two 6's. Unless he is very lucky, chanches are that he will have to break his board while at least one man remains trapped behind

There is an excellent point to this problem: The safest move is not necessarily

Ballet Satirizes Cheerleaders

By GLENNE CURRIE

NEW YORK (UPI) - Eliot Feld's latest ballet is another on the Stars and Stripes theme, this time poking fun at football cheer-leaders and halftime shenanigans.

The work in fact is called "Half Time." It had its world premiere Sept. 20 during the Feld Ballet's Sept. 12-Oct. 1 season at its home base at the Public Theater.

In 1977 Feld created a pas de deux satirizing chauvinism, "Variations on 'Amerto Charles Ives music, in which guest Mikhail Baryshnikov and Christine Sarry were dressed in Willa Kim costurnes based on the Stars and Stripes.

'Half Time" again has Willa Kim costumes based on the Stars and Stripes, this time with music by Morton Gould ("For-

'Half Time" is in nine sections, ranging from an opening march from a blues number, a tango, and a waltz to a slow high-kicking rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic.

The girls are dressed in witty versions of the cheerleader dress, complete with bobby sox, and carry pom-poms of varying size and color. The men are in tights with wristbands and red eye-shades, representing anything from acrobats to jockeys and back to college bandsmen. All the costumes are in red, white and blue, with stars and stripes.

Some of the sections are amusing: a woman's solo with furry boots and pompoms which turns into a strip-tease slink: a para-military trio with Christine Sarry

But much of the choreography is fairly obvious and hackneyed, as when a wornan appears as a comic Statue of Liberty. or a slow parody of a baton-twirler.

As in some of his other recent works, Feld has the dancers glancing archly at the andience while dancing, and he seems more intent on amusing than cre-

The American Dance Machine, which opened on Broadway June 14. still is going strong at the Century Theater. Its popularity is a bit of a mystery, because it depends heavily on guest artists and doesn't make full use of the artists in the company, particularly John Jones.

The Dance Machine was formed in 1975 by choreographer Lee Theodore, to recreate and record for posterity outstanding dance numbers from Broadway musicals which might otherwise be lost forever. Its performing section, known as Alpha One, is presenting works from 1922 Donald Saddler's work in "No No Nanette") to 1974 (Robert Tucker's work in

As interesting as it is to see some of these old stage works, Alpha One is only fairly successful in staging them, the singing being second rate and most of the dancing being an obvious imitation.

The most successful of the revivals are ignes De Mille's "June is Busting Out All Over" from "Oklahoma" and "Come to Me, Bend to Me" from "Carousel," and Carol Haney's "Satin Doll," shown on television in 1962.

The least effective are Ron Field's Telephone Dance" from "Cabaret," which is about as decadent as a bowl of Wheaties, and a couple of rather damp Joe Layton dances from "George M."

The best dancers on view are Jones, who only appears in two numbers but who makes "Satin Doll" come to life, and guest artist Janet Eilber of the Mar-tha Graham company. The other guests months into the run, are just so-so. But nostalgia works as well for choreography as for anything else in the theater, and these recreations - representing choreographers Onna White, Bob Fosse and Peter Gennero among others - are a lot better than losing the works entirely.

The Warsaw Mime Theater is a group of four men and a woman who broke away from Henryk Tomaszewski of the Wroclaw Pantomime Theater three years to pursue their own line of work.

They are in the U.S. for a three tour, which brought them to La Mama Annex Sept. 20-Oct. 1

They are doing a single work, "Mirror," roughly showing the ages of man in five sections, with an epilogue pleading for peace and understanding.

It's a curiously naive work to bring to America, where practically every mod-ern dance company has done the same

Poster Factor In Budding Film Careers

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ever since Farrah Fawcett-Majors appeared in a clinging swim suit with blonde mane tumbling over her shoulders and white teeth gleaming, the country has been in-undated by a plethora of posters depicting shapely young women in provocative

The syndrome combines centerfold eroticism with ancient titillating calendar art and old World War II pin-ups.

Farrah, who received a percentage of the considerable sales profits, won worldwide attention which hyped her career immeasurably.

Marilyn Monroe's nude calendar pioneered the way even before Farrah. Marilyn's pose on a velvet blanket made her an instant international celebrity.

In the last year or so Linda Ronstadt, Adrienne Barbeau, Susan Anton, Suzanne Somers, Cheryl Tiegs, Jaclyn Smith and Lynda Carter, among others, got the message. A lot of somebodies out there, doubtless post-pubescent males, are collecting posters of pretty girls.

The most recent poster girl is Loni Anderson, the shapely costar of CBS-TV's "WKRP in Cincinnati" series.

Loni is a blonde who switched from brunette two years ago. She says, "As a brunette I felt older, sultry and more sophisticated. As a blonde I feel softer, younger and warmer. I feel cute as a blonde, never as a brunette.

"People say I'm more huggable and cuddly now. As a brunette I was offered evil roles. As a blonde I'm given the daughter, married to actor Ross Bickell and vows she wants to establish herself as a serious actress, not a sex symbol.

Why, then, did she pose for two posters - one in a minimal string bikini, the other in a onepiece swimsuit - both of which conceal very little of Loni?

Although one must assume her principal interest is in promoting her career, Loni's reasons are complex and interest-

There's no conflict in posing for posters and being a serious actress," she said. "This is a temporary thing. I expect to be acting when I'm 60 and I don't mind being pretty in the meantime.

"At one time I said I'd never pose for a poster. I was too modest. So modest, in fact, I even had a breast reduction operation. My bosom was too large and painful, especially after I had my baby. I was really uncomforable and, I thought, unat-

"After the operation I thought of all the exercises I've done to keep my figure trim and beautiful. I told myself that someday when I'm a grandmother I'd like my grandchildren to see me as I was way back when.

"When you're 60 it's too late. That's what really prompted me. So I posed last summer just before 'WKRP' began film-

"I posed with a lot of teeth and hair in one and with my hair up and not smiling in the other. Something for everyone.' Loni said she posed unselfconsciously with only the photographer, hairdresser and makeup lady present. She had approval of the final photographs. She added that the monetary advan-

"I think the posters are selling for $3 each," she said. "I get a percentage. But I didn't do them for money. I had opportunities to pose in girlie magazines for money and turned them down.

No one really knows if posters are just a fad. I think the idea has been around for years. The GIs loved their pinups of Betty Grable and Rita Hayworth and posters are really just blow-ups of the same sort of thing.

"My posters aren't immodest. I put myself through college (the University of Minnesota) modeling swim suits, but they weren't as tiny as the bikini."

Loni has been well aware of her figure since adolescence. She had hoped to become a schoolteacher but quit after a few months as an art teacher in a Minnesota high school.

"I found the boys hard to deal with," she said. "I didn't know how to respond to all the cracks they made about my body (pre-operation). 'Now that I'm an actress the situation is altogether different. I think the female body, if it's well proportioned, is truly esthetic. I appreciate other women with lovely figures. "There must be a reason men don't pose for calendars. Maybe there's a macho psychology against men showing off their bodies. Personally, I think women enjoy looking at well-built masculine forms. I'd like to see posters of Robert Redford and Warren Beatty myself.

"I have no idea who buys all these posters. If people like to look at pretty things there's no harm in looking. And the model is untouched personally

"My husband likes the posters. He's a very secure man and has a sense of humor about all the attention paid my figon

January Big Month For Inventors

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) - January is the month to remember such great inventors as Thomas Paine, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas A. Edison and William

Few people think of Paine, the fiery writer, as an inventor, but he had an excellent mechanical mind. According to IPO, Inc., a non-profit group dedicated to preserving the patent system as an incentive to innovation and creativity, Paine invented the first iron bridge. He also patented a machine for planing boards, a crane and an improved carriage wheel.

Benjamin Franklin invented bifocal glasses, the lightning rod and the forerunner of what came to be known as the Franklin Stove.

On January 27, 1880, Thomas A. Edison received a patent for the incandescent electric light.

William Sellers is responsible for the adoption of the standardized screw thread. He first proposed the idea in 1864 and it was adopted four years later by the government. Sellers later became president of the prestigious Franklin Institute and was awarded the French Legion of you are going to have to help me out."

Close friends and neighbors, they lived a few miles from each other on New York's Long Island. Morris says Jones loved to read from his own work, so I became very familiar with 'Whistle.' "

Using notes he had taken as he sat by Jones' hospital bed and listened to the novelist "as he sketched in considerable detail the remaining chapters" as well as tapes Jones had made, Morris finished "Whistle" for his friend, who had died at

"It was a personal and professional obligation," says Morris. "I didn't try to write the book the way he would have. I laid out his intentions very factually and with no tendency to dramatize. No selfrespecting writer would intrude on another writer's sensibility in that regard." Morris, who now tells of his relationship with Jones and his family as well as of Jones' life in "James Jones: A Friend-

Morris, an amiable 43-year-old, is a native of Yazoo City, Miss., currently living at Bridgehampton, N.Y., but "I consider myself to be a Southerner."

He says most of his five books have "a Southern theme. If you are a Southerner and you deal in the written word then you are obsessed with the places you came out of — a sense of place. To me it's no accident that Mississippi has produced some of the great literature of our country. Remember, we had a fellow named William Faulkner?

"I've never really left the South," Morris says with a smile. "I came to New York City in 1963 to work for Harper's magazine. I was there for about 10 years, about four of them as editor-in-chief.

With two books to his credit, Morris left the magazine in 1971 for a full-time writing career.

"I give lectures, I write books, I do occasional magazine pieces in likely and un-likely places," Morris says, "and I'm

Kathleen Nolan Unique As Actors Guild 'Boss'

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Indisputably, the most beautiful labor boss in the country today is Kathleen Nolan, the shapely, blue-eyed, red-haired colleen who ramrods the Screen Actors Guild.

She also happens to be the only female union president in the United States. Kathleen, an actress best known for her role as Kate McCoy in the old "Real McCoys" TV series, bears as much resemblance to George Meany and John L. Lewis as Aprhodite to Quasimodo.

Compared to Jimmy Hoffa she is an archangel. But Kathleen is as toughminded as old Samuel Gompers, founder of the modern American labor move-

Her 39,000 constituents are the likes of Burt Reynolds, Robert Redford, and Paul Newman, not to mention Farrah Fawcett-Majors and the Fonz.

Dressed in a blue jogging outfit, Kathleen was nursing a cold the other day in her Brentwood home, a red barn kind of a house filled with superb antiques. One envisions a woman labor leader in the mold of Bella Abzug or perhaps Mother Bloor. But Kathleen is petite, feminine and the divorced mother of a 15year-old son. She has a radiant smile and a quick mind.

Her appearance, however, belies a spunky dedication to the cause of actors throughout the country. She is a member of 34 different commissions and

President Carter appointed her to the board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. She is chairman of the Coalition for Public Rights In Broadcasting. She is opening new chapters of the guild around the country. She spits in the collective eye of the three major networks despite the fact that in doing so she believes she has lost more than one good acting job.

Kathleen was first elected as president of all the screen and TV actors in 1975. She was reelected two years ago after a tough and dirty campaign waged by her opponents in the guild

My campaign wasn't against my opponents so much as it was against the studios who keep two sets of books and the networks which have a stranglehold on our lives," said Kathleen with an impish smile.

"I ran on the issues, but the sub-text was the fact that I am a woman. Now I think I've proved that sex isn't and shouldn't be a factor in union politics. Her predecessors in the guild presidency include Ronald Reagan, Charlton

Heston, Jimmy Cagney, Dennis Weaver and Robert Montgomery. Unlike many of them, Kathleen has resisted the temptation to coast along as a figurehead, leaving the tough day-to-day business of union-management brawls

"I'm an activist union leader," she said proudly. "I'm in my office almost every day working with two secretaries. Some of my predecessors were superstars but they didn't attack the system. I do. The networks are parasites and tasteless mercenaries who think only of profits, not quality of shows.

"I want to participate in changing the image of labor. We are no longer the darlings of the intellectuals. There is a strong and growing anti-union feeling in the country today. People are comparing big labor to big but "There are other misconceptions abroad. One of them is the idea that all movie and TV actors are rich. Bull! The average income of SAG members is subpoverty level, $4,000 a year. Only 237 actors earned more than $100,000 last year. "One of my fights with the networks is the number of reruns which drastically cut down the amount of work for actors. The air waves don't belong to the networks. They belong to be people. And we should have a voice in how the net-works are conducted and what is put on the air.

'The government itself takes work away from actors. The Defense Department alone spent $300 million on films last year without using guild members. They were in-house productions made with amateur actors, directors and writ-

"I'm trying to pull all the guilds and unions together to fight for the rights of creative people. I want the guilds to work with minorities, civil rights groups, consumer advocates for a people's voice in broadcasting and for people who want access to the airways.

Kathleen has been involved in labor since she was 6 years old, performing in tent shows and on the old Goldenrod riverboat out of St. Louis.

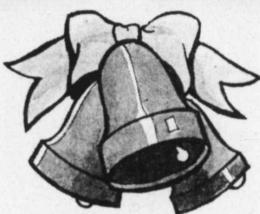

'I worked that riverboat for 50 cents a night and my parents were only paid $2.50," she said. "I talked the captain into paying us all $3 a night. Since then I've done 600 TV guest shots and two series.

"Of course, my union activities interfere with my work as an actress. I know I've lost some jobs because of my stand against the networks. But I'm fighting for the membership

"Other labor leaders accept me in that role. I was the only woman attending a recent White House breakfast with a couple of dozen other union presidents. At first I got some pats on the head. But now they take me seriously.

"We actors are union people like other workers, even though we are called a

Eva Marie Saint Spanned TV 'Golden Era'

tress today who starred in television's socalled golden era of the 1940s and 1950s who still plays leading ladies on the tube. A golden-haired ingenue when she broke into live TV, Eva has a touch of silver in her hair now, but after 30 years, 15 movies and more than 500 TV performances she maintains her zest for the small screen - on her terms.

A genuine product of the pioneer days of television, Eva thought nothing of doing a dozen major shows a year. Nowadays Eva restricts herself to one appearance a year.

She was spoiled in her youth by the plethora of brilliant young writers and direc-tors who produced some of the finest TV dramas ever staged, all live.

Those were the days of "Studio One," "Philco-Goodyear Television Playhouse," "Kraft Television Theater," "The General Electric Theater," "Playhouse 90" and "The Armstrong Circle Theater. There was no coast-to-coast coaxial ca-

ed live and "hot kineied" - kinescoped on film overnight - for later showing in western sections of the country. Eva looks back on those exciting days with fondness and a touch of regret that the challenge of the live TV era can never

night star. "A lot of wonderful actors worked in those shows: Kim Stanley, Eli Wallach, John Newland, Martin Balsam, Jimmy Broderick and Jack Palance.

'The success of the shows was due to such writers as David Shaw, Richard Nash, Rod Serling and Paddy Chayefsky. The directors were young and daring — Delbert Mann, John Frankenheimer, Arthur Penn and my husband, Jeff Hayden, to name just a few.

"We rehearsed three weeks for one live

"I enjoyed the rehearsal periods as much as I did the actual show. We learned to live with the pressures of instant, live performances. And we felt responsible for the smallest details.

"To this day I check the props and costumes and lights before I do a scene. We were self-sufficient and adept at improvisation in case anything went wrong."
It's a different TV world today. There is no rehearsal time. TV films are ground out in two or three weeks. Many of the writers are hacks. The best directors have moved up to feature films.

"The clock is always ticking," Eva said. 'There's no way the final result on film can measure up to those old shows."

Eva believes her most recent two-hour TV film, "A Christmas To Remember," reached back to the quality of the old "It's the story of a depression-era Minnesota farm family at Christmastime," she said. "It's not a sentimental sop like so many Hollywood holiday dramas that idealize Christmas "I agreed to do the show because I've always wanted to work in a Steward Stern play. He's an old friend and wrote 'Sybil.' Jason Robards plays my husband and I'd never worked with him before. The script is beautiful. I just had to do it.

"We spent an exciting three weeks on location in Hinkley (Minnesota) working on a wonderful old farm. The whole experience was so real I feel as if I've already enjoyed my Christmas this year." Eva isn't as visible on TV or in motion

"I'd much rather be on stage doing a. good drama than doing mediocre television shows," Eva said.

"It's great having Jeff as a director. We press a button when we report to work every day and we become director and actress, not husband and wife. The rest of the cast doesn't think of us in a married context.

"Pillow talk is a fringe benefit. When we get back to our hotel at night, we go over the day's work together and find ways to improve the production. It's a nice feeling to wake up in the middle of the night with an idea and be able to wake up the director and talk it over. "I suppose a lot of actresses sleep with their directors, but it's entirely different when the man is your husband.

"Working together on the road is a lot more fun than staying home and confining yourself to a TV series. I have't been tempted to do a series. Years and years ago I played Claudia in the 'One Man's Family' series in New York. The show was live in the days before kinescopes. It was only seen in the east.

"If I find TV films too fast and hectic to do my best work, you can imagine how I feel about doing a weekly series. You just can't get quality that way.

Making a live album is a very tricky experience. Since there is little or no opportunity for improving the sound with technical studio gadgetry, the album may come out flat. Or it may come out as a tribute to the intensity of the artist's live performance. Blues guitarist Stevie Vaughan, however, is going to give the experience a try—with Lubbock fans invited to help out.

Vaughan is booked to play Friday through Dec. 31 at Fat Dawg's, and his manager, David Smith, has indicated that the Friday and many blues-playing gigs out at Stubb's, you may want to head for Fat Dawg's Friday or Saturday nights. Bands have a tendency to let it all out when cutting a tape — and this sort of club concert has been known to turn into an event.

Most of the nightspots in town will be offering some sort of entertainment on New Year's Eve. But two very different quality sounds will be offered at Cold Water Country and the South Park Inn's Hub Club.

Lubbock's own Joe Ely (and how many times have I used that phrase in '78?) will be featured once more out at Cold Water, no doubt playing tunes off his two successful MCA albums. And down the Loop at the Hub Club, Tony Solo will be making another no doubt triumphant appearance. Solo's band, offering sharp Vegas-styled shows, is as professional as it is friendly. The word spread quickly during Solo's two prior engagements at the Hub Club, so one has to expect a large gathering on New Year's Eve.

Both Cold Water and the South Park Ins are putting special New Years Eve cover charges into effect, the admission price also granting the patron champagne and party favors. Call the clubs for further details.

A recent check with Sigma Deita Chi advisor Steve Monk revealed that practically all of the boxes of "Carol Of Lights" Christmas cards mentioned in the Dec. 10 Real To Reel column have been sold. So it appears Texas Tech University's journalism organization may try the same project again next year.

However, I also received a letter from Texas Tech University archivist David Murrah last week, with a Xeroxed copy of an earlier "Carol Of Lights" Christmas card now in the Southwest Collection. The cover of the card is a painting of the Tech Christmas scene by Jean Richard, with the verse inside stating: "May the light of Christmas/Warm your heart this season..."

Murrah feels the cards are at least 10 years old, as evidenced by Tech being referred to as Texas Technological College. And he closes his letter with, "I also noticed recently that these cards are still available at the Garden and Arts Center."

There was no joy in Mudville, er, I mean at the South Plains Cinema last week. Just when South Plains Cinema manager thought he'd earned a reprieve from further screenings of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," his boss tells him to continue showing it at midnight every weekend through the end of the month.

A Columbia Records itinerary indicates that heavy (read that: LOUD) rocker Ted Nugent will be back in Lubbock at the Coliseum on January 31. That's means two pretty big names will be appearing in a short time period, as Boston has been booked to play the same hall Feb. 8. And there are still rumors Eric Clapton is considering an appearance in that same 10-day span. When it rains, it pours...

Martin Rosen, who currently has on screen a most entertaining animated version of Richard Adams' "Watership Down," will continue his screen relationship with that author. His next project will be an animated transition of Adams' current best seller "The Plague Dogs.

. . . . . . . As mentioned in an earlier A-J critique, the movie "Superman" has to be the most lisappointing film of the season. With the cost of the film ranging anywhere from ites of $38 million to $70 million, one has to wonder where all the money went. It certainly doesn't show in the special effects.

No doubt the filmmakers (Warner Bros.) knew in advance the big profit would lie with spinoffs: games, toys, books, T-shirts, bedspreads, you name it. One industry representative went so far as to say, "I think 'Superman' will create even more profit than 'Star Wars' because the spinoff campaign was planned much earlier and put into effect even before the movie was released

No less than four "Superman" books will be placed on the market: "The Great Superman Book" by Michael L. Fleisher, "Superman, The Last Son Of Krypton" by Elliott S. Maggin, "The Official Superman Quiz Book" by Bruce Nash, and "The Making Of Superman" by David Michael Petrou.

A two-record soundtrack album has also been released by Warner Bros. Records, the John Williams score given life once again by the London Symphony Orchestra. While pleasant to listen to, it is obvious Williams did not stray far from his winning "Star Wars" arrangements while scoring the new film.

I also found it amusing that the film press material lists Maria Schell in the credits, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its and she will be a like the made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its and she will be a like the made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its and she will be a like the made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its and she will be a like the made her appearance as a "rival Krypton its and she will be a like wil its, since I must have blinked while she made her appearance as a "rival Krypton scientist." Maybe she's in the sequel. One of Superman's major enemies is also supposed to be the character played by Terence Stamp. As Stamp only has about five minutes and a couple lines before being condemned with two other Krypton traitors in the opening moments of the current film, one must also suspect he'll be re-appearing in the sequel.

But first, the current picture must make enough money to warrant release of that sequel in the summer of 1960 — despite the fact most of the sequel has already been filmed.

One final bit of hype: producers are saying screennewcomer Christopher Reeve has already been signed to play Superman in numerous sequels. However, in recent interviews, Reeve has denied that fact. In fact, he has yet to sign for any sequel. All he was contracted for was one movie: "Superman." Then, shortly into filming, it was decided to separate the screenplay into two films, ala "The Three Musketeers" and "The Four Musketeers."

Reeve does have percentage points in the profits of both films, however.

Showplace Six manager Steve Richersen has already indicated that "Superman" is his biggest Christmas picture — and the costliest. Showplace will have to keep it for quite some time to make it pay off. No doubt Richersen hopes the fans' curiosity stays on its current high level, as most screenings have been shown to sellout

A final note: Today is Christmas Eve. The holidays always offer quite a bit of entertainment in the form of everything from movies and music to church productions for us to enjoy. Keep in mind that a great many people must give up their Christmas Day family gatherings in order to perform, sell tickets, run movies or pop popcorn. Too often we forget.

Cast Selected For 'Brigadoon'

Cast selections are final and rehearsals well under way for the production of 'Brigadoon" to be presented February 2nd and 3rd at 8:15 p.m. in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center theater. Sponsoring the well-known Broadway show, with music by Frederick Loewe, book and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner, is the Music Department of First United Methodist Church.

The cast of 42 is composed of singers, actors and dancers from throughout the Lubbock area. In the lead role of "Tommy Albright" will be Michael D. Morgan, baritone voice major at Texas Tech, whose roles include "Sky Masterson" in "Guys and Dolls," "Matt" in "Fantasticks", "Major Patience", and "Bill Calhoun" in "Kiss Me Kate," "Woody Mahoney" in "Finian's Rainbow," and Shavnard in "La Boheme." Michael is a member of the National Association of Teachers Singing, and his songs for "Brigadoon" will include 'Almost Like Being In Love'

Brent Adams, playing another lead role in Brigadoon as "Jeff Douglas" confesses to singing "forever". His musical roles have been in "Oklahoma" 'Check Your Worries", "Carousel" and "Music Man". Acting roles include 'Oklahoma" as Andrew Carnes, "The Dubbuk", "Suppressed Desires", 'Shining Princess of Slender Bamboo'', "Man Who Came to Dinner", and chorus dancing in "Butterfly Bamboo". Brent has won All-Region honors for Dalrymple" in "Brigadoon". John has placed first in competition at the National Association of Music Teachers, has sung in 4 operas (2 leads) and many musicals. He danced in "Music Man" and continues modern dance training at Texas Tech with Diana Moore. Perhaps his best known song in "Brigadoon" will be "Come To Me, Bend To Me".

Lynette E. Villa, who teaches music at Wolfforth, is playing the role of 'Fiona" in "Brigadoon". Her credits include the "Street Scene" musical lead

In the role of "Meg", is Leslie Elaine Thurman, voice student at Texas Tech, and former "Miss Lubbock". Leslie is the recipient of a music scholarship at Texas Tech, and has sung in "Iolanthe", "Rigoletto", "Marriage of Figaro", "South Pacific", "Kiss Me Kate", and "I Do, I Do". She is experienced in tap, ballet and jazz.

The two major dance roles will be done by Carol Craig ("Carousel", and Lubbock Civic Ballet's "Nutcracker") and John Packard, who teaches at Parkway Community Center has appeared in the Hayloft's "Charlies' Aunt" and was the choreographer for "Man of La Mancha".

Directing the production will be Jack Eddleman of New York City, with producer Gordon McMillan. Tickets may be purchased at the business office of First United Methodist church from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. weekdays, and at Hemphill Wells Box Office in the South Plains Mall.

Anderson Maintains Jethro Tull 'Spirit'

By DOUG PULLEN

A-J Rock Correspondent Jethro Tull has always been a bit offthe-wall. Its music harks back to the days of minstrels and a powerful English aristocracy. Even the group's name is puzzling. (Founding member Ian Anderson took the name from a 19th century agriculturist.)

The six-member group is by no means predictable, though it has fallen into a pattern with the records it releases. One record will be strong, sometimes brilliant. The next record will fall prey to blandness or mundanity.

The group's new album "Bursting Out" (Chrysalis) conforms with this pattern it's a good album. Not great, but adequate. "Bursting Out" succeeds one of Tull's worst albums, "Heavy Horses," which was released in the spring.

"Bursting Out" is a two-record live set, the group's first legitimate concert album in the more than nine years Tull has been recording. Granted, Tull might have been better off releasing a live album a few years ago, when it was in its heydey.

Much of the group's recent material appears on the record, a fact foretelling of the album's relative enjoyability. "Bursting Out" is a pleasant listening experience, provided one doesn't listen to it

But the album has several attributes. First and foremost is Ian Anderson: the group's founder, singer, songwriter, flutist, spokesman, humorist and last remaining original member. Jethro Tull is his baby and Anderson has made it his mission to maintain the group's spirit. Anderson has never released a solo aloum. He doesn't need to.

His domination of the group is so pronounced at times that it overwhelms the band's efforts in a most egotistical fashion. "Heavy Horses" is a prime example

But Anderson refrains on "Bursting Out" from much of his occasional selfcenteredness. True, he dominates the album. But the band members get their share of the limelight as well. Anderson's production of the album is richer than that of previous Tull albums. The instrumentation, especially Martin Barre's gui-tar, rings out loud and clear.

The musicianship is resplendant with the apparent joyfullness in which it is performed. Barre's guitar work is some of his best in years. ("Bursting Out" is the first Tull album in a couple years to feature Barre's work so prominently.) The keyboard team of John Evan and

Anderson is no pushover either. His voice sounds as strong as ever. His vocals are clear and consistent. He handles new material like "One Brown Mouse" and 'Too Old To Rock And Roll: Too Young To Die" as effectively as he does the old er, more polished songs like "Thick As A Brick" and "Aqualung."

And then there's Anderson's flute playing. Long a trademark of Jethro Tull, no Tull album would be complete without at least one song featuring the flute. Anderson plays flute on several songs on "Bursting Out." But his most memorable passage comes midway through side two. All attention is focused on Anderson as he plays an improvised flute solo. He seems timid at first. But soon Anderson's wrapping his magical wisps around the listener's head. He smoothly segues into a version of "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" (appropriate timing, I suppose), an inclusion whose timeliness is immeasurable. But the surprise soon ends and Anderson slips into "Bouree.

The whole affair is over in less than six minutes. But it is indicative of the spirit Jethro Tull radiates. The group sounds firmly on top of what it's doing - news which should reassure some Jethro Tull

Jethro Tull has staved affoat all these years by staying unpredictable. While the group continues to fight that ominous nature, one can't help but get the impression that Anderson and his group have a few good years left in them yet.

Score: 8. LINER NOTES. Ian Anderson: lead vocals, flute, acoustic guitar. Martin Barre: electric guitar, mandolin, marimba. John Evan: keyboards, accordian. David Palmer: keyboards. John Glascock: bass, electric guitar, vocals. Barrimore Barlow: drums, glockenspiel. Produced by Ian Anderson.

Jay Boy Adams' performances in Lub-bock have become less frequent since he began recording for Atlantic Records more than one year ago. Making the transition from regional "star" to that of national attention is difficult and often laboriously long. Adams is just beginning his trek, so it's only natural that his appearances in Lubbock are infrequent. (Of course with Bill Ham, of ZZ Top, as his manager, Adams is bound to be busy most of the time.) Adams returned to Lubbock Dec. 16 for a performance with another Lubbock act, Peyote, at Rox. The show was by no means flawless, but both Adams and Peyote performed with enough talent and good intent to make the show plea-

Adams' evening seemed jinxed from the start. His equipment got lost somewhere between Austin (where he last played) and Lubbock. By 9 p.m., Adams road manager was discussing the possibility of Adams having to use Peyote's equipment. That would have been interesting, to say the least.

But by the time Peyote concluded its set, Adams' equipment had been stacked near the bar.

Peyote's set was much like its history - a series of highs and lows. The group opened the evening's entertainment rather awkwardly. But once the rough edges were smoothed (particularly among the guitarists), the show took on an air of in-

Pevote suffers vocally. Nobody in the band can sing. And Peyote sounds best when performing instrumentals. The lead lines are clean and economic, while the bass fortifies the sound.

The group could better itself by featuring the electric piano (if even to a small degree) and by convincing its technically able, but unimaginative drummer to experiment with his patterns.

Adams, though, needn't worry about such things. His band is polished to the point that it can frolick about on stage. No one in Adams' band is a virtuoso. But the players perform with an empathy for one another's presence. What first appears to be an unlikely collection of average instrumentalists soon transforms into a cohesive, even versatile unit.

Particularly outstanding among Adams' backing is guitarist Woodrow Key, who provided many of the highlights when Adams' gentle voice fell flat. Key carried the first portion of the opening set which, like Peyote's, began on unsure Crowd response was constantly at a high pitch, but the first set, excluding the last string of songs, was disappointing.

Adams had been vocally inconsistent from the start. A few bright spots peeked through, particularly on "Saddle Tramp" from Adams' latest LP called "Fork In The Road." Another satisfying job was turned in on "I Can Get By," also from the new album

But the group and the singer did not coalesce until the end of the set. The vocals remained flat, but the group (including Adams on electric guitar) relied upon the quickening tempo to sustain the electric voice seemed to find the right key more consistently (I wonder if his throat had been bothering him.) The confidence that Woodrow Key displayed in the first half began to infect the other members in epidemic fashion.

Keyboardist Paul Culver showed signs of life in the first set, but the sound mix practically negated his work. But Culver was riding high during the second set, especially on "Back In '62."

The real thrust of the evening became apparent when the band moved into Superkicker." The pace had intensified to the point that the crowd's attention was almost completely absorbed by the show. The jumping and dancing started earlier by bassist Danny Raines had encouraged Adams and Key to follow suit. The trio began to kick its feet in time with the music while Adams and Key exchanged leads. Just as the piece began to accelerate, the power on stage went out. Adams unstrapped his guitar and shouted, "We'll be back as soon as they (the sound men) figure it out."

returned to their places and picked up right where they left off - and that's the kind of thing one expects from Emerson, Lake & Palmer, not "unknowns" like Jay Boy Adams. The spectacle, though not completely uncommon, was great and seemed to epitomize the spirit of the evening. Ability wasn't the main factor. Desire was. And Jay Boy Adams had it.

In October 1970 director-screenwriter Peter Bogdanovich brought his crew to author Larrs McMurtry's hometown to film "The Last Picture Show" a blackand-white epic about the fictional town of "Thalia" and a teenager's loss of innocence.

"Thalia" became "Anarene" (a spot in the road south of Archer City) in the movie version.

The Hollywood-Archer City union eventually amounted to an estimated $100,000 windfall for the town of about 1,-700. Though most of the townfolk appreciated the economic boost, some ultimately felt shame after viewing the finished

When streets were blocked to accommodate filming, merchants were paid. Hamburger patties, destined for the gullets of the film crew, checkered the grill at the cafe across from a domino parlor immortalized in McMurtry's book.

Cast and crew bought "Archer City" sweatshirts down at the dry goods store to send home to their relatives, the businessman said. But for what it was worth, the town watched intently at first, grew bored, then indifferent to the film crew,

After seeing actors walk through scenes scores of times "just to get two minutes worth out of two hours of filming," the businessman said, many residents became inured to the spectacle. Others be-

But there were others like T.D. Byrne. who lives about a half-mile from the McMurtry house, who enjoyed their bit roles in the movie and the notoriety it brought to Archer City.

Byrne made $10 a day as a non-speaking extra, got to play dominoes, drive a car, dance and wear an old doublebreasted suit he brought from his closet because it fit the "period."

"I never did get any talking parts, but I wish I did," the silver-haired, flat-topped grandfather said.

What about all that nudity? "It didn't shake me up. They were just kind of hittin' 'em with the camera and all. They didn't really keep the camera on them very long." As for the story line, Byrne said, "Those kind of things go on all the time.

Byrne said his wife, who once taught Larry McMurtry in Sunday school, was shocked to find that McMurtry "would grow up to write those kind of books."

Handicapped Offered New Aid

NEW YORK (UPI) - Children who suffer with learning difficulties and hyperactivity no longer must live with their problems - they can be helped in as short a time as six months to one year, according to the medical director of a national non-profit organization specializing in the diagnosis and treatment of such handicapped youngsters.

Basing his figures on a recent survey of over 200 cases treated at the New York Institute for Child Development, Dr. Alan C. Levin reports that nearly 90 per-cent of the children on its programs gained from two to four years in reading comprehension in less than a year.

Dr. Levin explains the reason for so much improvement in so short a time:

"The traditional forms of therapy - tutoring and remedial programs - do not take into account what's going on inside the child. Unless he is ready and functioning properly on the 'inside,' the skills necessary for learning cannot take root.

"For example, if a child's eyes are not working properly, then he's probably wasting time and energy that should be spent on understanding what he's read-ing; or if he's fidgety because of a food allergy, all the tutoring in the world can't

Colello, a 39-year-old grocer from Middletown, N.Y., was born with a condition that affected the tendons and ligaments of his right hand. This crippling disorder robbed him of the use of the hand. His search for help led him to Presbyterian Hospital's Dr. Robert E. Carroll, who di-

IF LIFE IS A BOWL OF CHERRIES - WHAT AM I DOING IN THE PITS? By Erma Bombeck. McGraw-Hill. 203

Pages. $7.95 Okay, Erma Bombeck fans, your leader, the station wagon mistress of the car pool set, has been holding court again. No holds barred. Everything in the house and supermarkets — is fair game. And, as usual, the jury decision is the same - guilty of making readers laugh. And laugh. And laugh.

Even if you're not a member of the Bombeck brigade, every parent can steal some great lines from this book. For example, a nice little jab at the child who leaves the sandwich makings on the kitchen counter: "Do you see any legs on this lunch meat? Then how do you expect it to walk back over to the refrigerator?"

There are dozens and dozens of other Bombeck originals that can be used to dramatic effect by hapless parents and

But there's a serious side to this book, too. And it is that serious portion that makes this a recommended item for pleasurable reading. At the end of the tradi-tional Bombeck absurdities that she is known for, the human side of the writer is presented as she writes about a period in her relationship with her mother.

It's a section of tender writing about a topic familiar to many adults — that peri-od when the child becomes the parent of the parent. When the mantle of responsibility and care has been passed and the child-turned-adult must give in return what it was given so freely as a child.

It's poignant and a generous and moving glimpse into the inner self of one of America's favorite humorists.

'Elektra' Featured On Met Program

"Elektra," one of the most dramatic operas in the repertory which marked the first collaboration between Strauss the composer and von Hofmannsthal the poet, will be broadcast over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network Saturday, starting at 1 p.m. It will be heard locally over Radio Station KTXT-FM, the Texas Tech radio station.

Singing principal roles will be soprano Danica Mastilovic as Elektra; soprano Eva Marton as Chrysothemis; mezzo-soprano Mignon Dunn as Klytaemnestra; tenor Ragnar Ulfung in the role of Ae-gisth; and baritone Norman Bailey as Orest. Erich Leinsdorff will conduct. During the pre-curtain period, the radio audience will enjoy the traditional holiday treat of these broadcasts, a program of songs by the Metropolitan Opera Madrigal Singers. They are Shirley Love, Alma Jean Smith, Richard Best, Gene Roucher, Nico Castel, and Robert

Met Auditions Set In March

Young singers in this area will have the opportunity to compete in the Metropolitan Opera National Council Southwest Regional Auditions on March 1, 2, and 3rd, in McAllister Auditorium at San Antonio College.

The auditions, sponsored by the Junior League of San Antonio and El Paso, in cooperation with San Antonio College, require that all interested singers apply before January 21, 1979. Not so. It is more accurately portrayed as a man's attempt at an intimate view of a woman. And it might be better described as a man's fantasy about a wom-

The woman is Ethel Avaliotis. The daughter of a wealthy doctor, she has had a sleep-around life, but finally marries and becomes dominated by the father of her husband.

Despite an overemphasis on sex, there are elements of this novel that are interesting. One of the major ones is the strong characterization given the fatherin-law, Costa Avaliotis. He's a "Zorba the Greek" type, steeped in Greek tradition that includes near sacred respect for the family.

He is blustery, simple, firm, and has but one desire when Ethel marries his son, that he be given a grandson. He constantly talks about things being done

Kazan's skill makes this aging man come alive throughout the novel. His desire can be tasted his motivations understood. This is not the case, however, for the other characters.

Because of this difference in the strength of the characters, there is an uncomfortable conflict passed on to the reader. Parts of the novel are believable, others unbelievable, and the inconsistency inflicts a permanent scar on the whole

DEAF LIKE ME. By Thomas S. Spradley & James P. Spradley. Random House. 280 Pages. $8.95.

The rubella epidemic of 1963-1964 added almost 20,000 deaf children to the approximately 2 million Americans who cannot understand speech even with a powerful hearing aid. Lynn Spradley was one of those babies born profoundly deaf after her mother contracted the disease during pregnancy.

"Deaf Like Me" tells how her parents. Louise and Thomas Spradley, attacked the frustrating problem of trying to communicate with their daughter. They were caught up in the conflict among educators, who are divided on how such children should be taught - the oralists believing that the deaf should use only lip reading in order to live "normally" in the hearing world and the manualists advocating the use of sign language.

Obedient to the advice of the "experts," Lynn's parents never used gestures or allowed her to express herself with signs. They and the child's teachers painstakingly attempted to teach her to lip-read and to speak words she had never heard. The problems brought on by her inability to comprehend the world outside her silent sphere and to communicate her thoughts and questions are movingly related

How her parents make the drastic decision to use the sign approach, despite warnings as to the consequences from doctors, psychologists, audiologists and teachers, makes for a dramatic and iniring end — or new beginning — to the

The book by Lynn's father and his brother, James, provides information on sign-language resources. For the reader who has had no close contact with the deaf, it offers insight into their problems. - JOY STILLEY, AP

FIFTH AVENUE: A Very Social History. By Kate Simon. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 372 Pages. $12.95.

Nostalgia fanciers ought to have a grand time reading Kate Simon's "Fifth Avenue," a most entertaining tour through the history of one of the world's best-known streets.

Starting back in the 1800s when "Fifth Avenue from Washington Square to Madison Square was the place for money to live and show." Miss Simon weaves a leisurely narrative - loaded with anecdotes - that eventually brings the reader up to the present.

While the focus of the book is on the growth and development of Fifth Avenue through the years, Miss Simon wanders far enough - and most interestingly from her subject to retell the history of much of Manhattan as weil.

Thus, the reader is able to find detailed reports on such interesting events as the Civil War draft riots of 1863 - which involved Fifth Avenue in only a peripheral

There are also plenty of interesting but not very important facts for those who enjoy that sort of thing: Washington Square Park was once a gallows field and then a potter's field; New Yorkers once had a choice of 50 newspapers; John 'Bet-a-Million" Gates was willing to gamble on "the comparative speed of two bits of paper being blown across the street," and Diamond Jim Brady gave Lillian Russell a gold-plated bicycle that cost $10,000.

Most interesting, perhaps, are the stories of the wealthy families - Astor, Vanderbilt, Gould, Guggenheim, Carnegie - who built magnificent homes on Fifth Avenue.

A lively as well as informative book, "Fifth Avenue" ought to appeal to all who enjoy popular history - PHIL THOMAS, AP ists are more and more discovering what interesting plots can be created by asking themselves "what if" and then going on from there.

Charles Templeton is the latest to enter this field of speculative fiction. In "Act of God," he has a distinguished archeologist named Harris Gordon digging about in the area where the Dead Sea scrolls were found. During his search, Gordon comes across a hole which he wriggles into and finds himself in a tomb. There are a number of remains in the tomb but one particularly takes Gordon's interest.

It is the bones of a man - but a man who had been crucified. What if?

Gordon smuggles the remains out of Israel. En route to the United States, he stops over in London and meets an old. dear friend, Archbishop Michael Maloney, who, when he finds Gordon is nearly broke and has no place to go, invites him to finish his research at his New York residence. However, when the churchman finds out just what research Gordon is doing and what he hopes to prove he determines he must be stopped.

Templeton has written a good speculative novel up to this point but then he starts throwing roadblocks into the path of his onrushing plot by bringing in matters unimportant to plot development and slowing down his narrative to the reader's chagrin. It's all worked out eventually but it does take longer than necessary to get there.

ONE BY ONE. By Linda Lee. (Simon and Schuster, $10) Nobody in his right mind would nibble bonbons while reading a novel like "One

This is a first novel by a fine storyteller who tells a first class disaster-style story.

Her chosen catastrophe is botulism. Botulism is food poisoning - the kind that in real life killed a man and paralyzed his wife a few years ago and brought about the ruin of the Bon Vivant canned soup company in whose product the botulism was found.

Miss Lee is not content with dabbling in even a super negligence case. Instead she introduces Harold, a bartender who pours drinks by night and plans murder by day. He's an amateur mad'scientist, and his assistant is a minimally retarded youth, Denny, who is obsessed with body building.

Harold and Denny produce homegrown botulin toxin, and an ingenious method of introducing it into the city's food suppy. Denny hopes to blackmail the city, while Harold is working for pure

On the side of law, order and reason are a woman newspaper reporter and her editor, along with scatty Aunt Emily who works for the city Health Department. The author's insight into newspapers is better than some, but the way her heroine leaps from bottom to top rung on the reporter's success ladder sounds like day dreaming

What makes Miss Lee's novel enthralling is the credibility of her bad guys, not the good guys, however, and her ability to make the reader believe it all could The result is a suspense novel that has

SPLENDID LIVES. By Penelope Gilliatt. Coward, McCann & Geoghegan. 147 Pages. $7.95.

They're not your classic, front-page heroic types, these characters leading their 'Splendid Lives' in Penelope Gilliatt's collection of nine short stories with that title. However - one thing at least they have in common is the courage to be themselves in the face of the daunting ironies and trials of life.

But in other respects they illustrate the aphorism coined by one of their number: 'Everyone's eccentric when you get to know them, thank goodness." These are indeed wonderfully idiosyncratic individuals, affectionately observed. And it's a tribute to the writer's skill that the reader can get to know them so well in such brief encounters.

The stories derive their color and mood very strongly from their dialogue. They are vignettes which have the evocative pungency of overheard snatches of strangers' conversations, those sharply vivid passages from other people's lives that are detached for a moment from the general dull roar and muddle. These conversations, refined to potent immediacy and directness, have an eloquence to listen to with the heart as well as to read with the mind. The opening and closing points of the stories seem to be arbitrary at times. But what's between has its own plausible shape and an insistent ring of truth. The neatness and compactness of the episodes comes from what in terms of cinema would be called well-judged cutting.

The "Splendid Lives" are set in varied backgrounds, on both sides of the Atlantic, and their protagonists are equally varied. They are characterized by their vulnerability as, consciously or unconsciously, with jaunty valor, they hold fast to what they love, even if all they have left is love of life.

In the title story, there's a touching bond formed between a 92-year-old Anglican bishop and a pretty, American girl protester.

"Iron Larks," another piquantly titled story, introduces a group of people whimsically weak on affinity. "Phone-In" creates a sound picture of a pathetically ludicrous radio show whose facade is neatly picked off. And so on - the collection has hardly a let-down. The best of it is that it pokes fun in the kindest way, so that reading it leaves one feeling better about the human race.

TERRIFIED, HE LAY helpless beside the illegal bear carcass while the law - a man with a reputation for being tough - stalked nearer.

That Ted Wheelis, himself, was a lawman working undercover made no difference. The veteran oldtimer there in the dark didn't know that - and things happened suddenly in the brush country.

To stop outlaw hunting Wheelis had become an outlaw, killing deer out of season for profit. Identification would abort his mission, could leave him dead in a South Texas brush thicket.

With his kill gutted and ready for the pickup soon to come, he was trapped as a game warden, known for the speed with which he could bring a handgun from a back holster, walked along the dark road, primed for the poacher whose gun

"I was as scared of him as I was a rattlesnake. I'd rather fought a wild bear. He carried a gun in the back of his belt and would start talking to you and have that gun out before you knew it."

face of stiff opposition from its citizens. Talk of the old days comes easier for the retired Wheelis while he works with his racing Quarter Horses and looks forward to an active retirement. There are memories of driving 90 MPH without lights on dark country roads, of hearing the deadly three clicks of a .45 being thumbed just behind his head, of "hanging" a man purely as a threat and having it go serious, of having jeeps shot out from under him, of doing whatever he had to do to stop wholesale shot out from under him, of doing whatever he had to do to stop who slaughter of Texas wildlife.

The building of Lake Buchanan covered rough breakland where families had simply squatted and lived off that land.

"They were born and raised in the country, had fished and hunted and sold fish and game off creek breaks for years. They had just sort of lived in there on the Colorado River. Then the lake spread out. "WE TOOK THOUSANDS of feet of nylon net and piled them in front of nes-ters' cabins and set them on fire. Nylon net cost a lot, but they could sell all they could catch."

Almost immediately the largest ranch around parlayed with the department for Wheelis' services for a year to break up a rustling operation.

"It was the worst county for hog and cattle stealing."

Then the undercover assignment came turning up a theft ring with headquarters in Wheelis regular assignment, Llano. Afterwards he learned the commission lore from the oldtimer who had stalked him that dark night.

Operating near the Rio Grande, Wheelis learned the problem of wearing a green uniform similar to the Border Patrol after jeeps hauling his horse into rough country were shot from under him.

The patrol was the one law branch with which Wheelis could not operate. No rancher would cooperate if a warden turned in his illegal help from across the

History Of Wildlife Department Traced

A CENTURY AND A few months ago, Texas lawmakers decreed that ladders for fish should be constructed over mull dams, then established a Fish Commission to enforce the law. It was the first damper put on Texas wildlife, following by 18 years the first game law, a two-year closed season on bobwhite quail on Galveston Island.

Wildlife was bountiful, here for the taking, when Stephen F. Austin founded his colony on the banks of the Brazos River in 1821. The decade following Texas' entrance into the union, a trading post near Waco testified to that continuing bounty by shipping 75,000 deer hides plus many bear and bison pelts. This was before the day of the buffalo hunter in Texas.

But the buffalo was to disappear by 1885, the last grizzly bear killed in 1895. The days of free game for the taking were disappearing with population growth and a ready market for the game. The Fish Commission became the Fish and Oyster Commission, then the

Japan Running Into Problems With Large China Trade Deal

TOKYO (AP) Japan is running into problems with a $10 billion trade deal with China because Japanese oil companies are balking at the price and amount of oil China will trade for Japanese machinery and knowhow. Industry experts say the fallout from the problems with the government's plan to drastically increase imports of Chinese oil will be much higher prices for consumers on all petroleum products.

The eight-year agreement signed last February calls for Japan to send China about $10 billion worth of technology plants, materials and machinery. In return. China will sell Japan crude oil and some coal. The sale of the oil is crucial to China's industrialization effort. Peking needs the money to pay for the technology. The Japanese are eager to make the deal work because of the billions of dollars they hope to make in the Chinese market.

Under the agreement, China's oil exports to Japan will go from 44.44 million barrels this year to 95.25 million in 1982. After 1982, amounts were not set, but Japan guaranteed it would take an increasing amount every year. Recently, top Japan certainly needs oil-it imports 98 percent of the oil it uses. The problem is that it doesn't need Chinese oil, which is markedly different from the Middle East oil that makes up the bulk of Japanese imports. However, he said the oil companies had agreed in talks with former Minister of International Trade and Industry Toshio Komoto, who pushed through the Japan-China pact, to take only about 76.2 million barrels in 1982. Komoto arbitrairly increased that to 95.25 million in his talks with the Chinese. Ishida said 23.5 million barrels of that total for 1982 are still unallocated, and the oil companies don't know what to do with it.

Increasing the quota drastically for 1983-85, as Komoto and the Chinese want, is impossible, he said.

The Chinese oil does have one advantage, according to Teruo Noguchi, president of Koa Oil Co. It's low in sulfur, meaning it can be used as fuel by power companies and others without fear of tomuch pollution from sulfur dioxide, a major pollutant in Japan.

But he pointed out, most power companies and large industrial users already have anti-pollution equipment to handle that problem, and they would have to spend huge amounts for new equipment to handle the nitrogen pollution problem.

We cannot force customers to use it,"

Noguchi also pointed out that China gave no guarantee that the oil it sells to Japan will come from the Taching field. The new field at Shengli, on the edge of Pohai Bay in Northeast China, produces oil that's even heavier than the Taching oil, and is higher in sulfur. Japan could end up getting that, he said.

"Chinese oil is very similar to Indonesian oil," Noguchi said. "Japanese power companies are now burning about 123.8 million barrels of crude oil per year, mostly Indonesia, with some Middle East and Chinese oil.' "About half the Chinese crude we now import is burned as fuel. Most of the rest is distilled, to get out the light products, with the leftover burned. The rest is cracked. Noguchi said that increasing the amount of Chinese oil burned as fuel would simply mean cutting back on the Indonesian crude burned. That doesn't advance the government's stated aim of reducing dependence on Middle East oil. and anyway the market isn't large enough to absorb all the Chinese oil Japan is supposed to import. Distilling is uneconomical, he said, because the Chinese oil contains only about 25 percent light-oil products, compared to 40 or 45 percent for Arabian oil. Cracking would add $2 to $3 a barrel to the already high price of Chinese oil. And the yield of light products is less. Besides, there aren't enough cracking facilities here to handle the amounts of oil Komoto is talking about.

"I am Japanese," he said. "For the good of Japan, I would like to import more Chinese oil. But this is a political matter. (Financially) we can't do it unless these problems are solved."

Noguchi has been named chairman of a committee to find ways to solve the problem. So far, he indicated, he sees few ways out.

The Chinese could lower the price of their oil drastically-an unlikely event. Japan could sell China its own refining industry-an attractive prospect for the Japanese, but expensive and time-consuming. Or the government could bail out the oil companies by financing the construction of new cracking facilities here-also attractive to the oil companies, but not to the government.

The last alternative would be the best, Noguchi said, because oil experts here are predicting that all the world's oil will become heavier and more difficult to refine in the future, as the best reserves are

However, he warns, there isn't much time to spare. To handle 190.5 million barrels of Chinese oil a year by 1983 or 1984, the new refineries would have to be approved and started by 1980 or 1981. And so far, there's been no discussion of

Colorado Line Scheduled To Transport Gas

CHICAGO, Ill. (Special) -Peoples Gas Co. has announced plans to build 61 miles of pipeline in the High Plains area of northeastern Colorado to tap new gas supplies being developed there.

Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, interstate transmission subsidiary of Peoples Gas, has asked the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to approve construction of the new segment-to be known as the High Plains Pipeline-at an estimated cost of $9.5 million.

The proposed line will reach newly developed gas supplies in the Niobrara Chalk formation in Yuma and Washington Counties, Colo., and permit exploration to proceed in a number of neighboring counties in the Denver Basin area.

The company already has contracted to buy long-term gas supplies from 146,000 acres in this area and reserves from another 345,000 acres have been dedicated to one of Natural's subsidiaries. The pipeline firm currently is seeking additional gas commitments in the region through purchase contracts or equity participation with independent producers developing these and other nearby fields.

The High Plains Pipeline system will have capacity to handle up to 29 million cubic feet of natural gas per day. It will consist of a 3,600-horsepower compressor station planned for construction in northeastern Washington County with 10-inchdiameter steel pipe extending 43 miles into Adams County and another 18 mile into Yuma County. The Yuma County leg also includes five miles of 6-inch and 8 inch diameter pipe to gather supplies from wells under contract.

The new pipeline will be linked to an existing line in Adams County operated by Colorado Interstate Gas Co. Under a transportation agreement, gas supplies gathered by Natural Gas Pipeline through the new system will flow to Colorado Interstate, which, in turn, will redeliver the gas to Natural at other points where the two companies have interconnecting facilities.

In addition to the federal application, Natural Gas Pipeline also will apply within the next few weeks for necessary state and local permits, including one from the air pollution control division of the Colorado State Board of Health. Construction will start after receipt of all needed governmental approvals, the company said. Meanwhile, pipeline officials plan to contact local landowners to obtain easements allowing the line to cross private land.

Natural Gas Pipeline, along with a number of its major customers, has been engaged in an exploration and development program in Western states since early 1977. The pipeline firm serves a total of 49 utilities in nine states.

Independent Angered By New OPEC Boost

says he awoke mad. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Nations had just announced plans to increase crude oil prices to $14.54 a barrel by October.

"It is really crazy," said Halbouty, a Houston independent operator and an internationally known geologist. "How can the American public increase the foreign payments deficit to pay these people nearly $15 a barrel and still pay domestic operators $5.31 for the majority of the 8 million barrels a day produced in this country. The former president of the 15,000-member American Association of Petroleum Geologists said the difference in prices is the reason why U.S. oilmen are not going out hunting for new reserves.

"Based on my studies, I can definitely say we will be able to find in the future as much oil as we have found in the past in the United States and more gas in the future than we have in the past," Halbouty

"But we are not going out to find it unless we have the incentives to do so and the greatest disincintive is the $5.31 for Halbouty said 80 percent of the drilling rigs now at work are drilling in areas nearby or offsetting proven production.

"All they are doing is producing at fast-er rates," he said. "But the reserves have already been estimated. We are not increasing our reserves position one bit." Halbouty said sufficient capital is not available to do real wildcatting on the scale that is needed. 'We are not going out in the boondocks" and doing a lot of wildcatting "like we should," he said.

'This all stems from two congressional bills. The first took away the percentage depletion allowance and took $3.5 billion from the industry. The 1976 compromise bill that extended crude oil price controls and removed other tax benefits took away another $3.5 billion. The $7 billion taken away from industry affected our operations procedures. It affected our exploration thinking. That $7 billion damn near killed us.

That is why, he said, the only oil find of any consequence the United States has had in the last 10 years is the Overthrust Belt in Wyoming and Idaho.

"This was an area which took guts to go in and drill," he said.

But the reason the area is being drilled is because the acreage was purchased prior to those two congressional actions. I doubt very seriously the companies would have drilled that wildcat area with today's prices and conditions. But they already had the acreage and either had to do something with it or let it go. So they decided to drill.

Halbouty said tremendous quantities of

The discovery, Pennzoil-Depco Inc. No. 1-15 Burlington Northern, was drilled to a total depth of 13,225 feet. From selective perforations at 9,272 feet to 9,350 feet, the well produced 450 barrels of oil and 73 barrels of water per day through a 14/64-inch choke with 1,000 pounds of flowing tubing pressure. dustry of the Royal Thai Government in Bangkok has announced that Texas Pacific Thailand Inc., operator for an international consortium, has tested two additional gas and condensate discoveries in the Gulf of Thailand.

The first well in the recently completed two-well program, No. 15-B-7X, in a testing program from four separate tertiary sandstone zones flowed at the accumulated rates of approximately 34.6 million cubic feet of natural gas per day, with 850 barrels of oil-like condensate per day and a small amount of water. All of the zones were sulfur-free but produced some carbon dioxide. The presence of other gasbearing sandstone zones were indicated by tests.

The No. 15-B-7X is located in a separate fault block, 1 3/4 miles northeast of another discovery in Block 15, the No. 15-B-5X, drilled in May, 1977, and 63/4 miles north of a discovery drilled in Block 16 (16-D-1), completed in November, 1977. The first six discoveries are located in separate fault blocks in an area sometimes referred to as the "B structure field" or the "gas complex."

supplement gas and condensate reserves for the gas complex which is located ap-proximately 130 miles northeast of Songkhla. Water depths in that sector of the Gulf of Thailand are in the range of 250 The new discoveries in Block 15 were

Active Areas Being Tested By Standard

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (Special) -Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) currently is participating in four of the most active exploration and production areas in North America, the company's president reports.

The areas are "the Overthrust Belt in Wyoming and Utah, the deep Tuscaloosa gas play on the Upper Gulf Coast, and the West Pembina D-2 reef trend and the Deep Basin gas play, both in Alberta, Canada," Richard M. Morrow told a recent meeting of the Pittsburgh Society of Financial Analysts.

The Overthrust Belt, Morrow continued, is considered by some "to have more potential for oil and gas reserves than any area discovered in the U.S. since Prudhoe Bay field was found in 1967."

Standard is the principal leaseholder in the active portion of the Thrust Belt trend and has been involved in a number of important discoveries, he reported. These include the No. 2 Whitney Canyon well, which was completed in the summer "as a significant gas discovery" with five different gas-productive formations. According to Morrow, the company's activities in the Upper Gulf Coast gas play are focused in the Port Hudson field near Baton Rouge, where two recent wells confirmed a significant 1977 discovery, and in East Texas, where massive hydraulic fracturing has resulted in an tion from 20 new wells.

Standard believes the Port Hudson field "is the best of the fields found so far in the Tuscaloosa play." Additional wells are now drilling on Standard's acreage on the structure in Port Hudson and throughout the trend.

Morrow told the analysts that Standard's expanded domestic drilling program "is based on the conviction that the resource base in America is very substantial, and that there are extensive reserves of oil and gas yet to be found, both onshore and offshore, right here at Partly as a result of Standard's extensive domestic exploration at a high level compared to other major domestic producers," Morrow stated.

North American exploration and production expenditures for the first nine months of 1978 amounted to $914 million. he pointed out, an increase of 38 percent compared to the similar period of 1977.

Turning to Canada, Standard is conducting "the largest exploration program in its history," Morrow said. Activity is centered in Alberta, where Standard is one of the largest leaseholders in the West Pembina or D-2 reef trend, and the Deep Basin gas play adjacent to Standard's Grande Prairie block. In the D-2 trend, "Standard is involved in about one-third of the industry's successful wells to date," with numerous anomalies yet to be tested, he said.

Standard holds 300,000 net acres in the Deep Basin gas play, which has been estimated by some to contain more than 200 trillion cubic feet of gas, Morrow commented. The company "had an interest in 22 wildcats drilled in the past year, with 20 of these expected to be completed as gas wells."

Soil Analysis Provides Early Planning System

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer With most crops out of the field, now is the time to consider a soil test to pla for next year's crop, according to Art Carnrick, managing director of A & L Plains Agricultural Laboratories, one of several companies or institutions that

"Now is a good time to take a soil sample to avoid the spring rush," Carnrick suggested. "Also, the farmer could go ahead and purchase fertilizer after finding exactly what his land needs. And some things, such as sulphur to correct a salt problem, work better if applied ear-

Carnrick, who has a degree in chemis-try from Texas Tech University, said a yearly test is probably sufficient for this area, but the soil should be sampled and tested at least every three years.

Some soil testing laboratories have agronomists that take the sample from the farmer's land. Other labs use fertilizer dealers for the task. Farmers can purchase the soil probe for about $6, if they wish, or can use a shovel to take the sample themselves, Carnrick noted.

The probe is a T-shaped metal pipe marked at six, 12 and 18 inches on the side. It can be used for several years. Hydraulic probes used in some parts of the country provide convenience and the ability to sample frozen soil, but are very expensive, Carnrick said. Hydraulic probes cost about $600.

A farmer who wishes to test his soil for nutrients should select a trouble spot or an area of interest, perhaps where the yield has been too low. "Such an area," Carnrick said, "should provide the normal or typical soil."

or high areas or areas where the farmer spilled his fertilizer last year, for exam-

"In a random fashion, the sampler should take about 10-15 probes, or enough to fill the soil bag that is provided," Carnrick said.

The soil is put into a bucket and mixed thoroughly. The soil should then be returned to the labeled bag and sent with an information sheet to the laboratory that is being used.

The information sheet from most labs contains a list of about 15 tests that can be selected. Background information, such as the crop that was grown the previous year and the crop that is plant the variety, the yield and yield goal, the fertilizer applied and information about the location where the sample was obtained is also important information to include for recommendations.

The basic test for nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium analysis costs about $4.40 with no recommendations and $5.40 with recommendations. It takes about three days to receive results for the lab, Carnrick noted.

Recommendations include any new ideas that may have developed and suggestions on how much fertilizer to apply and when," the chemist said. "We emphasize not just what crops have been planted in the past, but what is planned

The results of the analysis show exact parts per million, and tell if the rating is high, medium or low.

Once the soil is received at the lab, it is dried either by air or by oven, depend-ing on the type of soil. Clay types take longer to dry so they are normally put into the oven. It takes about three hours to dry a sample in the oven or overnigh by air. About 300 samples can be han dled this way each day.

After dried, the dirt is put through a grinder and set in a tray of ten sa grinder and set in a tray of ten samples. The numbered samples are retained for 30 days after analyzing in case the farmer decides to run more tests.

Next, the sample is taken to the sample preparation room and put into testing trays. Extracting solutions are used in determining the nutrient amounts in the sail.

"For example, three types of phosphorous tests allow us to determine the phosphorous that is readily available, the phosphorous that will be there all season and the way the phosphorous chains will break," Carnrick pointed out. With the extracting solutions added, the soil samples are shaken for 10 min-utes to 2 hours and filtered. From there, a series of machines are used to determine the soil's nutrient content. "A spectrophotometer, which measures color intensity is used for non-met-al substances," Carnrick explained. The colors are related to the amount of nutrient available. The darker the color the more nutrient there is." Likewise, an atomic absorption machine measures the amounts of metals

The lab also measures the pH to determine the balance of acid and base in the

With the soil test results the farmer can apply the right amounts of fertilizer and hopefully increase next year's crop quality and yield, Carnrick said.

Proper Grazing Yields More Winter Forage

COLLEGE STATION - A system of grazing management is important for the most out of winter pastures, especially since dry conditions have limited forage growth this fall.

"Some type of grazing management will help stretch winter pastures to feed more animals or give more grazing days or a given number of animals," points out Don Dorsett, forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Serv-

"While grazing management may seem like a lot of planning and work, it may only mean opening one gate, moving the animals and closing the gate. The type of system used can indicate the extent of management required," notes Texas A&M University System spe-

A simple rotation grazing system with two or more pastures is the easiest system to start from a management standpoint. This means grazing all animals on one pasture while the other pasture or pastures are being deferred and are growing more useable forage. When the one pasture is fairly well used, the herd is moved to a second pasture for grazing. With total rest, the first pasture should make some regrowth for later grazing.

Dorsett cites a study done several years ago in Oklahoma with four pastures in rotation grazing that showed a weight gain advantage for rotation grazing over continuous grazing with winter pastures. Over four years, steers on the rotation grazing averaged 52 pounds per acre more gain than steers on a continuously grazed pasture. "More high quality forage seems to be the result of rotation grazing of winter pastures," contends

For those willing to be more intensive in management, a type of limited grazing may be a good choice, says Dorsett. Dry cows can be limit-grazed for two to four hours every other day, or Monday, Wednesday and Friday on winter pastures. In effect, the winter pasture would be the protein supplement for these animals. Some other forage like hay or standing dry grass would be necessary to give the animals their fill while they are off the winter pasture.

For cows with calves, steers or growing heifers, high quality winter pasture should be available every day, but this could be on a limited basis, explains the specialist. Again, hay or dry forage would need to be available while the animals are not on winter pasture. Such producing animals can be maintained by allowing them access to winter pasture for two hours daily. Weight gains will

Although the report does not analyze marketing and price trends for the future, economists say what happens to food prices - particularly for red meat will depend greatly on two things:

whether cattle producers soon step up production and whether hog farmers also boost output more than they have. The detailed report provides 132 pages of statistics and text describing how and where hogs are raised, and how things have changed since about 1950. Single free copies of the study, Agricultural Economic Report No. 415, can be obtained from: ESCS, Room 0054-S,

Hog production accounts for about one-third of U.S. red meat output and generates about one-sixth of the cash receipts from livestock sold by farmers,

'Hogs were a common U.S. farm enterprise 25 years ago," it said. "Census data taken in 1950 show that 63 percent of the 2.9 million farms in the top 15 hog-producing states had hogs on hand at inventory time. Nearly half of all farms in these states sold some hogs."

But by the 1974 census, those same 15 states had only 1.4 million farms, less than half of their 1950 count.

"Farms with hog sales had dropped to slightly less than a fourth of the total, compared with half in 1950," the report said. "Over a million farms quit selling hogs in these states during this period (1950-74) because farms were combined into larger units or the hog enterprise was dropped."

As recently as 1964, 23 percent of all hog sales nationally came from farms that sold fewer than 100 head a year, 46 percent from farms selling fewer than 200 head, and slightly more than 7 percent from farms selling 1,000 or more

"By 1974, the proportion of sales had shifted at an accelerating rate toward the larger enterprises," the report said. "Hogs coming from operations selling fewer than 200 head had dropped by nearly half, accounting for only 24 percent of the total."

Declines also were reported for intermediate-size hog farms, while those selling 1,000 or more annually "advanced greatly" and by 1974 accounted for nearly 25 percent of hogs sold nationally.

"While census data give no information on the distribution of sales above 1.-000 head per farm, other research indicates that a substantial portion of these sales are coming from enterprises turning out 5,000 or more hogs in a year," the report said. "Large hog enterprises occupied a southwest than in the northcentral region," it said. "Many producers in the southern area are relatively new entrants to commercial hog production and started with hog enterprises of substantial size.

But the study found that "diversified farming, established production patterns and existing facilities still exert strong influence on the size of enterprise"in the big pork states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa

Those accounted for 65.8 percent of total U.S. hog production in 1975, with the northern plains producing 12.8 percent; the southeast 14.8; the southwest 2.4; and other regions 4.2 percent, the report

Other findings in the study included: -80 percent or more of the farms producing hogs were partly or fully owned by the operator. Few hogs were pro-duced on rented land. Even when they were, the landlord seldom had a financial interest in the hog enterprise.

-The average producer of feeder pigs farmed 230 acres, while those who "fed out" feeder pigs for the slaughter market farmed an average of 332 acres. Producers who had "farrow-to-finish" operations farmed 425 acres. -Farmers and their families accounted for 93 percent of the hours of labor used in feeder pig production, 82 per-cent in farrow-to-finish operations, and 89 percent in feeder pig finishing. -Homegrown grains accounted for 80 percent of the direct grain use in the northcentral region, half to three-fourths in the southeast, and about 10 percent in the southwest.

-Although declining in importance, the slaughter of hogs for home use still "rather common" in the United States. Typically, a farm family slaughtered 2 or 3 hogs in 1975.

Vandals Most Usual Crime In Country

LAS CRUCES (Special) - For people living in "low crime" rural areas, vandalism is the most common crime they face. Yet, few residents seems to take even simple precautions, such as locking cars and barns, say Leo Yates, Extension family life specialist at New Mexico State University.

A recent survey showed that gasoline is the favorite target for theifs in rural areas. Follow-up studies revealed that 67 percent of the affected gas tanks were not locked. Neither were 61 percent of the automobiles, 92 percent of the farm equipment, 93 percent of the barns or 81 percent of the garden tools hit by van-

The reason theifs find so many unlocked treasures is simple. Surveys show that rural residents generally feel secure and safe in their neighborhoods. They are not worried about protecting personal property so they just don't take simple precautions to stifle burglaries, pounds; number of farms and ranches, 197,000; and farm and rach land, 139.8 million acres.

everyone felt that way? How would we ever get anything done? Eventually, she said, she decided the organization and its goals are important essentially is a coordinating group for state women's organizations and has an overall membership in excess of 15,000. Each organization retains its own identity, she said, and the national group is non-partisan.

Farmers make up less than 4 percent of the population and we feel that by joining our voices together we can magnify our clout," Mrs. Grabowski said. American AgriWomen's statement of purpose, she said, calls for "promotion of agriculture for the benefit of the American people and the world." We work in the areas of legislation, regulation, consumer relations, promotion and education ... We're successfully combining careers and promotion and marketing. And we're doing it for the benefit of our children." The national organization is only four years old, she said, but already it and its

No matter how crummy an artist you think you are, you need only make a white beard and a mustache, red hat and a round nose to have a roly-poly St. Nick that'll do the trick!

For example, blow up and knot a red balloon. Inflate another ballon just a little, and as soon as it becomes round knot it. Tie a long black string to the knot on the big balloon. Trace the outline of a paper plate on red paper, cut it out, slit the circle to the center and, by overlapping the edges of the slit, you'll have made Santa's hat. Tape closed and glue the hat onto the big balloon

Make sure the string is loose inside the hat. Cut off the point of the hat, turn the balloon upside down, and shake it until the string appears near the opening. Pull the loose end of the string through the hole.

For Santa's nose, glue the tiny balloon onto the larger one, with the knot dangling down. (It'll be covered by Santa's mustache.) Cut three half-moon shapes out of black paper. Glue two above the nose for eyes, the third below the Glue a ball of cotton at the point of his hat and a band of cotton as a hatband at the base of his hat. A wide cotton band on the sides and around the back to his head will give him a fringe of hair. Two strips of cotton glued over the knot of the nose balloon will make a funny droopy mustache.

Add a cotton beard by outlining a beard shape with glue and filling it in with more glue. After you've completed your sticky drawing, place cotton over the

> CHESS, FROM RICHES TO RAGS TO RICHES

Gone are the days when chess masters wandered across Europe, chess boards slung across their shoulders, shouting their challenges. For a few pesos, they would take on the locals and then travel

The best of these did much better than that, especially in Spain and Portugal. Royal courts welcomed these talented wanderers and they could win both fame and fortune.

In more modern times, the lot of the chess playing professional has often been much sadder. One of the great masters, Kurt Schlechter of Vienna, actually starved to death in 1917; Kurt von Bardeleben of Germany, absolutely poverty-stricken, committed suicide in 1924. So did Frederick Dewhurst Yates, also impoverished, a dour Yorkshireman of tremendous ability who was several times Champion of Great Britain.

Chess history has hundreds of cases of excellent players who never made ends meet. Even the great Bobby Fischer led a penurious existence in his early years. But it is largely thanks to Bobby that a lot of the chess professional is growing better. He thought it scandalous that players in the world's most cerebral game should be paid less than ditch diggers. In his 1972 world title match with Boris Spassky, he demanded an unheard-of purse of $100,000, and he got it.

At two extremes, contrasts this with the purse for the just-concluded world title ($700,000, with the winner getting $450,000) and the 1927 world title in Buenos Aires, where winner Alexander Alekhine got a paltry $6,500 to loser Jose Capablanca's $3,500.

good players can actually make a living at chess. Denmark's Bent Larsen, who lives in the Canary Islands to avoid the Danish tax bite, makes over $50,000 a year through exhibitions and books - though it's supplemented by a sideline: He translated detective novels. Russians Grandmasters are supported in style by their government, and the prize money for ma-jor tournaments both here and abroad is definitely on the rise. For example, the World Open earlier this year in Philadel-phia had a prize fund of $40,000. Not too long ago, it was a token $100.

So the outlook for the aspiring young professional of today is far brighter than it was for his chess-playing father or grandfather. He's not going to become a millionaire, to be sure, but he now has legitimate hopes that he can make a living for himself while doing exactly what he wants to do.

A word of advice: As a first step, join the U.S. Chess Federation (186 W Route 9W, New Windsor, N.Y., 12550. Adult membership: $15; junior (under 18), $8. Second step: Join a chess club and start playing in rated tournaments. This will get you a rating - and a place on the bottom of the chess ladder.

The solution to the problem above is: 1.R-QN6, PxR; 2.N-Q6 mate; or 1...P-B7; 2.Q-R1 mate; or 1...QxQ; 2.R-K6 mate; or 1...P-N3; 2.N-B6 mate; etc.

Joy and laughter that's what we prescribe for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year! A WARM THANKS

the COIN Box

By NORMAN DAVIS

THE "STANDARD CATALOG of World Coins," by Chester L. Krause and Clifford Mishler, is in its 5th edition. It's probably the most widely used referece dealing with foreign coins.

This 1,760-page volume has a $23.50 price. That's a lot to pay for one book, but there's a good deal of information here - on nearly 70,000 coins.

An introductory section provides helpful information on coin identification, dating systems, and foreign coins in general.

I didn't count them, but the publisher, Krause Publications, Inc., claims there are "over 33,000 actual size photographs." Some of these are too light to show details well, but most are excellent.

Each country's coins are listed in ascending order of face value. Italy's, for instance, begin with the 1861 centesimo and end with the 1975 silver 5,000 lire. Coins of each value are listed by date and Mintage totals are listed when available. So are average retail prices for coins in several grades.

Coverage starts in the late eighteenth century in most cases, and continues to today (or whenever a country stopped issuing coins). There's little background on the coins, and I could wish for more varieties and errors, but just listing so many normal coins require a lot of space. Some varieties are listed, though, both in the main section and in an appendix.

Someone who wants an introduction to the hobby, or who's just starting to collect, will find this 84-page paperback worth its $1.50 price.

Coin World's staff takes you through the steps of exploring the hobby, from starting your collection to coins you'll find in circulation (and some earlier ones) to organizing a coin club.

There are lists of some rare dates, general price information and just enough numismatic lore to whet the reader's appetite. There also are reviews of gold coins, notes on the U.S. Mints, and introductions to the collecting of fractional currency, other paper money and foreign Experience collectors will find little or nothing here, but might consider this booklet as a gift item. It could be a first step into collecting, especially for young people who want to hobby that's challenging, stimulating, and solid fun.
