

Hundreds Of Americans Flee Iran

Prime Minister Selects Cabinet

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hundreds of Americans and other foreigners fled out of strife-torn Iran Tuesday after Iranian soldiers replaced striking control tower workers and reopened Tehran's international airport following a one-day shutdown.

Aides of Prime Minister-designate Shahpour Bakhtiar said he had completed selections for a new civilian Cabinet to replace the military regime installed two months ago to deal with riots against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. The shah is expected to remain on his throne but Bakhtiar's Cabinet would take over much of the 50-year-old monarch's power.

Shah To Leave Country For "Rest"

In an interview shown on French television in Paris, Bakhtiar said the shah had agreed to leave the country for a "rest" and name a regency council to administer his affairs.

"I didn't demand," Bakhtiar told the French television correspondent in Tehran Tuesday. He said the shah "agreed to take a trip abroad, to take a rest and to name a regency council." He gave no time element.

When asked by reporters Monday if he planned to take a vacation, the shah said, "I would love to if the situation permits."

Commercial jets began taking off again from Mehrabad Airport and foreigners as well as some Iranians who could not get out Monday fled the country. The American and British embassies said only small numbers of their citizens were still waiting to leave Iran despite appeals from both countries for non-essential nationals to leave.

No Regrets On Leaving
Danner Chryharow, a 33-year-old civil engineer from Charlotte, N.C., who flew from Tehran to Istanbul, Turkey, said he had no regrets about leaving Iran.

"We have heard much shooting and lived through so much agony, no gas, no heating, no taxis and a constant feeling of restlessness," he said in Turkey.

Another American who arrived in Istanbul Tuesday, Michael Smith, of New York, said passengers on his plane "clapped hands when we took off" from Tehran.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said about 4,200 Americans were trying to leave Iran out of total of 35,000. A Pentagon spokesman said U.S. Air Force jets flew 295 military dependents out of Iran Tuesday.

Air Service Restored
Jets of Pan American World Airways, British Airways, Lufthansa and other international airlines left Tehran's airport Tuesday.

In addition to the resumption of commercial service, three Canadian air force planes were scheduled to arrive today to evacuate Canadian citizens, said Canadian Ambassador Kenneth Taylor. Some American, British and West German nationals also will be offered places on those flights that have space for 300 passengers, he said.

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell said President Carter has not changed his position on Iran. Carter told reporters last month he didn't know if the shah would survive the unrest, but later amended this at a news conference Dec. 12, saying "I fully expect the shah to maintain power."

Results of an ABC News-Louis Harris poll released in New York said a majority of Americans questioned thought the United States should "do everything short of involving U.S. armed intervention" to keep the shah in power.

ABC said 1,498 Americans were polled from Dec. 21-25 and 72 percent said "yes" when asked if they felt it was "very important to keep Iran, with its oil, strong army and air force from coming under the influence of Russia, even

'Still Wet'

ABILENE (AP) — Saloon patrons in Abilene can still belly up to the bar to quench a parched throat or ease a post New Year's hangover. A state district judge ruled Tuesday that this West Texas city is still wet.

A 13-page hand-written opinion by retired District Judge J.H. "Dick" Starley of Pecos marked an end to the latest challenge to a disputed June 17 local option liquor election.

The presiding judge in an election contest filed by "dry" forces in Abilene said of 29,985 valid votes cast, "11,557 were cast in favor of the proposition and 11,428 were cast against."

Starley overruled challenges filed by Abilene attorney Buck Woods to approximately 250 votes.

PRINCE RETURNS—The mystery of the whereabouts of Iranian crown prince Reza Pahlavi came to light Tuesday when he and a group of his security men deplaned at Lubbock International Airport and Avalanche-Journal photographer Milton Adams shot the above picture. Meanwhile, Capt. Bob Brus, information officer at Reese AFB confirmed that the prince had been skiing in Colorado and then went to Los Angeles, returning here at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday. The prince is facing the camera.

Thaw Forecast For Today

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
SUB-FREEZING temperatures that have kept public employees in the Lubbock area battling the effects of a three-day accumulation of snow over the South Plains since Saturday should top the 32-degree mark today as a slow warming trend enters the area.

Temperatures are expected to soar to near 40 today to ease burdens imposed by the New Year's holiday storm.

The Texas Department of Highways reported that at least $50,000 has been spent in the 17-county Lubbock district on salt, labor and equipment operation costs since the storm struck early Saturday.

Mel Pope, district maintenance engineer, said about 200 workers labored to clear highways in the area during the holiday. And, he added, work was continuing early today as nighttime temperatures renewed highways' icy coats.

The city's highest cost for protection against the storm will be the 681 man-hours required to salt city streets from late Friday through Sunday, according to Don Jennings, street superintendent.

The city already had spent up to $3,150 for salt in street operations over the weekend and that task was continuing late Tuesday.

Despite efforts by street maintenance personnel in the city and region, Lubbock police officers were called to the scene of at least 40 minor wrecks in the city Tuesday, but few injuries were reported.

The Department of Public Safety, however, reported only three auto mishaps across the county Tuesday.

Employees of Lubbock Power & Light answered around 280 calls Tuesday from customers complaining of no water or broken lines, according to Wheeler Mount, superintendent of water operations.

A high percentage of the calls stemmed from loose or removed lids on water meters and many of the remaining calls were caused by service lines too close to the surface that had frozen, said Mount.

Mount said that a crew of 20 has been maintained constantly since the calls began coming in and the operation "will not shut down until everything is taken care of."

Lubbock fire fighters spent much of their time Tuesday pumping water from homes in the Hub City where frozen water lines had burst, a fire department dispatcher said late Tuesday.

Bus drivers and students in Lamesa, Borden County, Klondike and Loop schools will not have to travel treacherous roads in those areas today. School officials called off today's classes in those cities Tuesday afternoon.

A basketball game scheduled between Estacado High School and Lamesa also was canceled Tuesday. It will be played at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Lamesa Mid School Gym, Lamesa school officials said.

Although roads have proved too hazardous for school bus drivers in parts of the region, a spokesman at the Lubbock International Airport has indicated that "runways are in pretty good shape" and airport officials "anticipate no problems" with flight arrivals and departures today.

Southwesterly winds should carry in slightly warmer temperatures to the Lubbock vicinity today, although the National Weather Service expects the mercury to fall into the lower 20s tonight. A high in the upper 40s is anticipated Thursday afternoon.

Public Backs School Prayers

"THE PUBLIC by and large is saying, 'We want to continue having prayer in the schools. We don't want to force anybody to pray, or promote any one religion. But we want some kind of praying allowed.'"

So notes attorney Brad Crawford Jr., who like other members of the Lubbock school board has received much reaction to the proposed ban of school-sponsored prayer.

Board members say their mail and telephone calls have been running overwhelmingly against the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) efforts to stop Tuesday temperatures in Lubbock rose from a record low of 2 below zero at 6 a.m. to 27 by 5 p.m.

Clouds should begin appearing over the South Plains by Thursday and a chance for rain or more snow will reappear Friday and Saturday.

Temperatures are expected to continue reaching near 40 during afternoon hours through Saturday, but colder weather is expected Sunday.

Sexual Abuse Case Action Taken By DA

THE CRIMINAL District Attorney's Office Tuesday filed for and was granted an injunction to stop the operation of a Lubbock day care center where one of the operators two weeks ago was charged with indecency with a child.

The civil petition asked 237th District Court Judge John McFall to order the 38th Street Nursery at 2316 38th St. to cease operations immediately. George W. Maxwell, who has owned and operated the nursery with his wife since 1962, Dec. 20 was charged with two complaints alleging sexual abuse of two seven-year-old girls.

The two separate incidents allege in the felony charges occurred on or about Dec. 9, the district attorney's office said in the petition.

Maxwell is out of jail on a $5,000 bond.

The petition gave a temporary injunction enjoining Maxwell and his wife, Lillie Mae, from operating any child care business in the state of Texas, and a civil penalty for every day the injunction is violated.

Invoking the Texas Minimum Standards for Day Care Centers Act, the petition set a civil penalty of not less than $50 or more than $1,000 for each day of violation as called for by state law.

The petition was filed on behalf of the Child Care Licensing Division of the Texas Department of Human Resources by Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford, on his first day in office, and by Assistant Criminal District Attorney Richard L. Howell.

McFall set a hearing on whether the injunction should be continued for 9:30 a.m. Friday, Jan. 12, in his 237th District Court.

Weather Spurs Fear Of Texas Blackouts

By The Associated Press
FRIGID WEATHER conditions across Texas Tuesday prompted warnings by state officials and power utilities of possible electrical blackouts or brownouts.

Unless the electrical usage across the state is relieved, blackouts or brownouts were possible, said Alan Erwin, a member of the Texas Public Utilities Commission.

The commission urged businesses, industry and household customers to reduce their consumption of electricity.

"Due to the unusual weather conditions and the resulting curtailment of natural gas throughout the state, a critical condition has developed in which natural gas electric generating units are not capable of operation to their maximum extent," the commission said.

The warning was echoed by the major utilities, who said the problem was not a shortage of gas, but a transmission problem caused when cold weather freezes controls.

The state's electrical power companies and at least two publicly-owned utilities asked their customers to voluntarily conserve electricity.

Same Problems
"Basically, it appears the big utilities are having the same problems with natural gas that others are having," Erwin said.

The publicly owned power systems of Austin and San Antonio requested voluntary conservation measures. Austin and the Lower Colorado River Authority, which serves the Hill Country, did so after a 40 percent curtailment of natural gas supplies by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. Austin had two power plants down because of other reasons.

Houston Lighting & Power and Central Power & Light in Corpus Christi found themselves in similar situations.

10,000 Homes Powerless
Dallas Power Light, which has been battling downed power lines since Saturday night due to heavy icing, still had 10,000 homes without electricity Tuesday. At one time 50,000 Dallas homes were without service.

DPL officials warned its 250,000 customers Tuesday to cut back or face a complete system-wide shutoff and mandatory rationing of electrical service.

Texas Electric Service Co., which serves the area around Dallas and Fort Worth, urged its customers to voluntarily reduce electrical usage.

"We are having serious problems meeting customer loads," said TESCO vice president Bob Martin. He hoped a warming trend predicted for later this week would help the situation.

Not From Heavy Use
Erwin said the power shortage apparently did not result from heavy use of gas by households chilled by the heavy ice storm that swept over most of Texas this past weekend.

"When the weather gets this cold, gas becomes hard to transmit and the controls freeze up. It's not a problem of diverting gas to other use. It's more of a transmission problem," Erwin said.

In Pflugerville, north of Austin, Lone Star Gas Co. shut off gas to 348 homes Monday. An official of the gas company said the shutoff was a safety precaution because of low pressure readings in the gas lines. He said the cause of the low readings was unknown.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER
Invited To Peking For Talks

Goldwater Invited To China

PEKING (AP) — Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping on Tuesday invited Sen. Barry Goldwater, the most bitter opponent of America's split with Taiwan, to visit Peking and discuss China's plans to reunify the capitalist island with the communist mainland.

The diminutive Teng also reportedly told minor Communist Party members and former Nationalist Chinese Party members reunification of Taiwan and China's modernization drive ranked first on the national agenda.

Teng, 74, was quoted as telling visiting congressmen:

"We know well that Sen. Goldwater does not very much approve of the establishment of diplomatic relations between our two countries, but nevertheless I would like you to convey to him my greetings and express to him that we welcome him for a visit to China."

In Washington, Goldwater press aide Tony Smith said the conservative Arizona Republican would not comment until he receives an official invitation. Goldwater has filed suit to block President Carter's termination of the U.S.-Taiwan Mutual Defense Treaty effect at the end of the year.

Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, leader of an eight-man delegation from the House Banking Committee that met with Teng for two hours Tuesday, said he would relay the invitation to Goldwater.

"Don't be surprised if he accepts," Ashley said.

During the meeting, Teng sought to calm fears about the future of Taiwan and about possible Chinese Communist expansionism. The congressmen talked with reporters about their meeting, which was recorded by Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla.

Teng told Rep. John J. LaFalce, D-N.Y., that reunification of Taiwan with

SEA TOSS SURVIVOR — A cat named "Kitty," held here by Adrienne Dunnege of the Newark office of the Associated Humane Society of New Jersey, survived an attempt by her owner to drown her in the Atlantic Ocean. The owner faces charges of abandonment and abuse. (AP Laserphoto)

Charges Of Trying To Drown Cat Filed

AVON, N.J. (AP) — A woman who tried to drown her pet kitten in a mercy killing after learning it had severe ringworm faces criminal charges and a custody battle with humane groups that want to keep the animal.

Carmen Negrón's 4-month-old cat, Kitty, survived the attempted drowning by paddling ashore after Mrs. Negrón threw it from a jetty into the Atlantic Ocean last week. A passerby retrieved Kitty, turned it over to the Associated Humane Societies of New Jersey, and gave Mrs. Negrón's auto license number to police.

"I'm not denying I did it," Mrs. Negrón said in an interview. "I just hope the judge understands that it wasn't done in a cruel way."

Mrs. Negrón, a 37-year-old unemployed sewing machine operator, said the Asbury Park veterinarian she consulted about Kitty's painful ringworm advised her to have the animal put to sleep. But she said she could not afford the $25 he charged for the procedure and didn't know that humane organizations would do it free.

"I'm an animal lover," said Mrs. Negrón. "I'm very sorry this whole thing happened."

She said that when she saw Kitty swim out of the water, she went home to get its food, but the animal was gone when she returned.

Aides to Humane Societies executive director Lee Bernstein said he would take Kitty to municipal court here Tuesday night when the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and Mrs. Negrón begin a custody battle.

Bernstein said Kitty was being treated at the Humane Societies but it was too soon to tell whether the cat's fungus condition could be expected to clear up.

Mrs. Negrón faces misdemeanor charges of abandonment and abuse for throwing the cat into the ocean. Her husband, Alberto, 40, faces charges of aiding and abetting the attempted drowning.

Mrs. Negrón said she had "no hard feelings against the parties taking action against me."

"It's a terrible feeling," she said. "It's like being a criminal."

To add to her troubles, Mrs. Negrón said she has contracted ringworm from the cat, which slept in the couple's bed.

City, Rural Issues Loom In School Tax Debate

By LEE JONES
AUSTIN (AP) — As country legislators see it, the cities' school finance plight is their golden opportunity to guarantee rural landowners the kind of property tax cuts they have been pleading for. The reason, they say, is that for the first time they have real "leverage" over their urban colleagues. Failure of the 66th Legislature to change the 1977 school finance law would mean disaster to urban districts. It's that simple. Current law says the Texas Education Agency must count the intangible wealth — bank accounts, stocks, bonds — of each school district in determining its state aid payments for 1979-80. And therein lies the country legislators' strength as they seek the most favorable terms possible for taxing rural land only on its productive value. "My idea of what might be a fair productivity formula might vary somewhat from some of my brothers in the House and in the Senate.... Suppose we can't come up with one we can live with. Then I am going to hang onto intangibles. It's the only leverage we have," says Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Public Education Committee. The School Tax Assessment Practices Board determined that Texans' intangible wealth totals $154 billion, and half of it is in the four most populous counties — Harris, Dallas, Bexar and Tarrant. Since state aid is handed out proportionately to the wealth of a school district, intangibles would badly skew the system against the urban areas. "Intangibles has to be addressed. If you don't, you'll find a lot of the urban districts become budget-balanced. And anyone with a scrap of intelligence knows that is not going to happen," House Speaker Bill Clayton says. Budget-balanced districts are those deemed so rich they can pay their Foundation School Program costs without state aid. The only state dollars they get are per capita payments from the Available School Fund. Clayton sees action on intangibles as bound tightly to action on agricultural value taxation of rural land. The "Tax Relief A" amendment" approved by the voters Nov. 7 says the Legislature must provide for "ag value" taxation of farm and ranch land and may also grant the tax break to timber acreage. "It's a two-way street. You have to link taking out intangibles with a good formula for taxing agricultural land," Clayton said. There are lots of ways to value agricultural land on its productivity, and rural lawmakers want one that will provide the best possible break for their constituents. "Ag values" probably will be part of any new formula that is adopted for parceling out state school aid. One of four alternatives recommended by the Legislative Commission on Public School Finance, also headed by Massey, included personal income within a county as part of a state aid formula. Rural lawmakers often remind their city colleagues that taxes are paid from current income, and a family can be land-rich but dollar-poor. "My theory is that we need an economic index to measure ability to pay... The economic index, whether one-factor or multi-factor, will be very much an issue," said Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, a member of the commission. No legislative consideration of school finance is complete without a raging debate over teacher salaries. The Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA) has proposed about $1 billion worth of pay raises for the 1980-81 biennium, starting with a boost in the minimum pay of new teachers from $8,541 to $9,740. All others would get 7 percent raises in the 1979 school year and 8 percent the following year — not to mention normal longevity increases. But the Legislative Budget Board, which includes leaders from both houses, recommended only 5.1 percent annual raises, the same as state employees. The board's unprecedented action in putting teacher salaries in the general appropriation bill was widely viewed as a loud message that the TSTA could count on 5.1 percent and no more. The LBB bill would provide $1 billion in new state money for public schools, including $314 million for teacher pay raises and $269 million in increased state aid. The rest — $466 million — is simply to reimburse school districts for part of the revenue they will lose to the "Tax Relief Amendment." Only $110 million of anticipated state revenue is left by the LBB bill. With Gov.-elect Bill Clements and legislative leaders committed to no new taxes, teachers and school men will have to compete with state agencies if they expect to get more dollars than the LBB recommended. School officials would like to have more state funds for routine operating expenses and for equalization between rich and poor districts. Raymond Bynum, an associate education commissioner, had this to say recently about achieving the goal of equity in the face of limited state revenue: "I guess I'd have to say we are not going to get there this time."

Suburban Officials Jailed In Dispute Over Sewer Permits

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge jailed the eight top officials of Carpentersville on Tuesday in a dispute over sewer permits, and the village president said, "I feel like Davy Crockett going to the Alamo." U.S. District Judge Ralph McGarr, with "a bit of sadness and a great deal of reluctance," ordered Village President Orville Brettman, Manager George Shaw and the six-member village board to jail. McGarr polled the eight officials individually and they all said they would refuse to obey court orders to issue 11 sewer permits. Brettman told McGarr, "I'll go to jail and I won't vote to issue the permits until I die." McGarr said the officials would remain in jail until they agreed to issue the permits. Brettman said issuing the permits would result in sewage backing up in neighboring homes and cause pollution of the Fox River. The complicated dispute began when a contracting company building 200 homes in Carpentersville, a suburb northwest of Chicago, declared bankruptcy after the village ordered it to improve the sewer system. A bankruptcy court ordered the village to issue sewer permits so the final 11 homes in the development could be sold. The village appealed the ruling all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, which let stand a Circuit Court ruling ordering the sewer permits to be issued. McGarr ordered the village to obey the courts' rulings, but the board met last Wednesday night and voted against complying. There was a similar case in Michigan last week. Seven members of the Van Township board, near Detroit, were jailed Thursday and released Friday for defying a judge's order to approve a sewer linkup for a mobile home park. They are free on their own recognizance after a Michigan appeals court ordered them released from jail. "It's simply wrong to have these buildings occupied and have them dumping sewage into an inadequate sewage system. It's wrong. Strictly a matter of principle," Shaw said Tuesday. Brettman said the dispute involves a constitutional question: Who has the right to make laws for a village — elected officials or judges? "The judge is trying to destroy a form of government," Brettman said. "I do not relish the thought of going to jail, but the consequences are of no real importance as long as we're doing what we feel is correct."

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan time for investigating a new outlet that is modern in nature and something that could give you added income.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study modern ways of making progress in career matters so you will have greater abundance in the days ahead. Be wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be more alert with associates if you want to be successful in gaining their respect. Relax at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time to make your surroundings more functional and comfortable so you can operate better and enjoy the comforts of home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contacting personal friends is the key to today's success, so be sure to do that early in the day. Think logically.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Obtain the data you need from the right sources. A private talk with an adviser could be most helpful now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much care in motion is important today and tonight. Use that inventive ability you have and gain the respect of associates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your monetary status from a different angle and get better results in the future. Avoid one who wants to waste your time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Study advanced ideas that could catapult you into richer avenues of living. Seek the company of persons with real talent.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who has much ability at understanding advanced ideas, but needs also to be taught to be cognizant of all that is best in the past and gain from both. Be sure to give fine spiritual training early in life.

Israel Urged To Offer Viets Asylum

TEL AVIV (AP) — Peace crusader Abie Nathan is campaigning to get Israel to accept 400 of the 2,300 Vietnamese refugees stranded aboard the Tung An freighter in Manila Bay. He said Tuesday he expects Interior Minister Yosef Burg to oppose the plan, but added, "I think we'll get it approved — many members of parliament, and most ministers promised they would vote in favor." Nathan operates the floating "Voice of Peace" pirate radio station which has urged peace in the Middle East and taken up charitable causes. Thousands of Vietnamese have fled their homeland by boat since the Communists came to power in 1975 and are seeking residence abroad.

AN EDITORIAL:

Open Mind On Open Meetings

IF A POLL were taken on School Board member Brad Crawford's suggestion that the trustees hold at least some of their meetings at night, chances are he would win hands down.

Thus far, Crawford, who was elected earlier this year and who had more accessible school board meetings as a part of his platform, has run into a brick blackboard, as it were.

Most of his colleagues, he reports, continue to favor holding the School Board meetings at what is to many persons an "ungodly" hour of 7:15 a.m.

THE QUESTION is one, we think, which deserves more than a quick rejection by the majority of the board.

While it may be convenient for members of the board to meet in the early morning session, common sense says it is not so for many parents who might want to attend and/or say their piece before their elected representatives.

As Carolyn Lanier, president of the local League of Women Voters, notes, "Most fathers are preparing for work, and most mothers are getting their children ready to attend school at that time of day."

In July 1977, acting on a request from the League, the school board voted 5 to 2 to keep its morning meeting time. The vote was criticized by such groups as the National Committee for Citizens in Education, a national lobby for parental rights.

THE ORGANIZATION says that the Lubbock Independent School District board may be the only one to meet so early.

What others do is not the important point here. How it affects the citizens and taxpayers of the School District is.

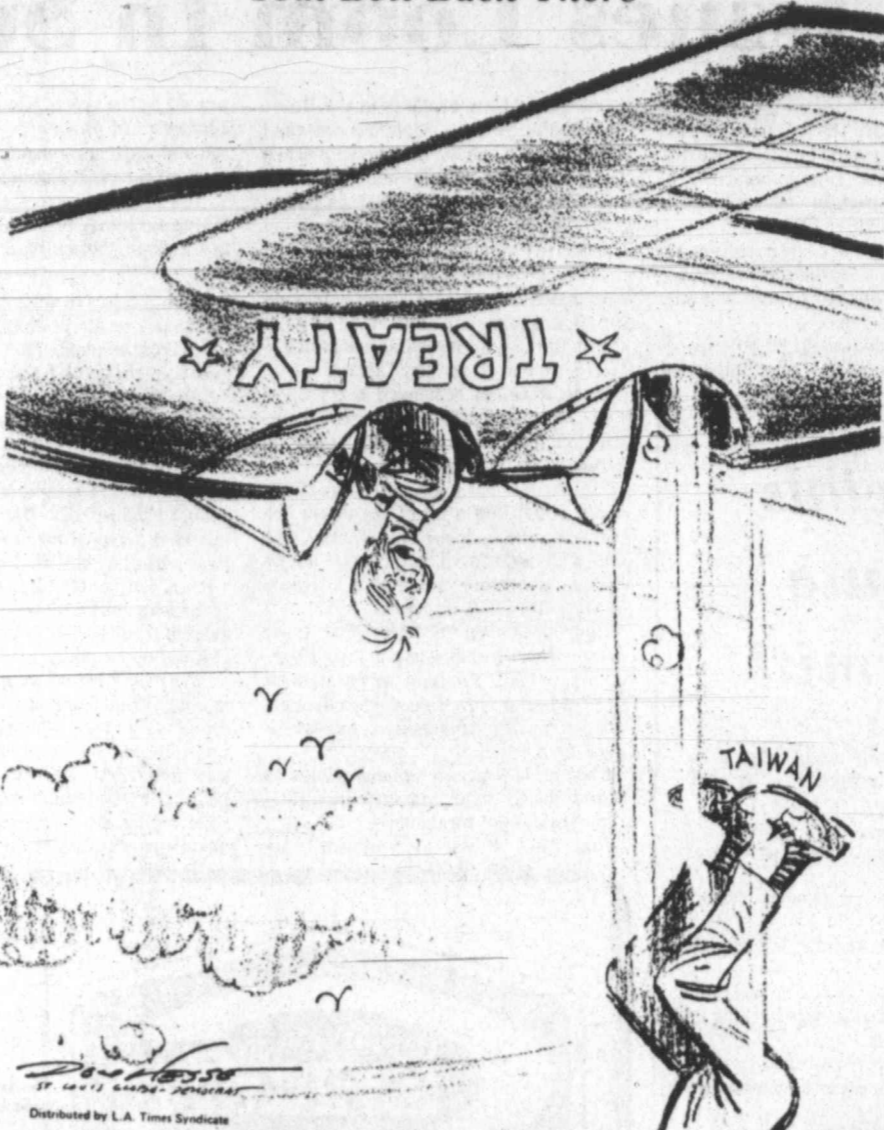

It is obvious that the School Board would get a more broad-based input if it were more readily available to those tied up during the early-morning sessions.

Also, more time could be spent on important matters—such as the prayer issue—affecting citizens of the district.

It is strange to us that most other public bodies, certainly in this area, can arrange to either meet later in the day or in the evening, but the School Board can't.

We would remind the trustees that their obligation is to the citizens. Some of the School Board meetings should be held at night, we feel, to meet that obligation.

U.S. Versus Israel

WASHINGTON—Intensifying conflict of personality and national interests between President Carter and Prime Minister Menachem Begin probably will not bar agreement on the Israeli-Egyptian treaty but it forbids graver problems between the U.S. and Israel in the near future.

Evidence supporting that conclusion is piling up, the latest being a formal statement issued recently by the Israeli embassy here under now-regisred Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz.

The statement quotes an eminent American judicial authority and former undersecretary of

DONALD F. GRAFF:

Wane Is In Plains

THE FAME in Plains isn't what it used to be. A scant two years after the election to the presidency of one of the Carter boys transformed it into an instant tourist center, interest in the Georgia town is reported to have slackened noticeably.

Curio shops that blossomed in the first flush of national attention have folded and commercial development projects have yet to get off the ground that was purchased.

Plenty of outsiders continue to keep Plains on the beaten track, however. State tourist officials, who keep electronic count on auto traffic in the area, estimate the flow at quarter of a million a year.

And Plains notices its changed status in other ways, such as petty crime. For example, a dozen or so city boundary signs have been stolen in the last two years.

And they used to say that a souvenir hunters' enthusiasm knows no limits.

SOME CARTER boys make it and some don't. Jimmy may have the lease on the White House nailed down for at least another two years, but Billy's celebrity status appears to have gone flat. A brewery is selling 8.8 million empty Billy Beer cans to a recycler for melting down. As a publicity gimmick the personalized beer had plenty of gusto, but as a business it turned out to be a bust.

THE VIENNA Boys Choir has been an Austrian institution for almost 500 years and their caroling in the chapel of the old imperial palace a special Christmas tradition.

A little-known law forbidding children under 15 to work during school holidays was enforced this year for the first time in anyone's memory. And probably for the last, since the issue is being referred to parliament.

In a conflict between tradition and law in music-loving Vienna, there's no contest.

ELECTRIC SHOCK treatments may be helpful to your taste.

Indirectly, at least, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture release. Researchers report that beef carcasses subjected to electric shocks produced more tender meat, also brighter and of a more uniform color.

Brief charges have been found to accelerate onset of muscle stiffening and prevent excessive shortening of muscle fibers that results in tougher meat.

Shock technique may be new to meat processing but not to retailing. Prices have been doing that to consumers for years.

IT'S INTERNAL, not foreign, policy that puts another country in the news. In observance of the 15th anniversary of independence, Kenya's President Daniel Arap Moi released all political prisoners—a grand total of 16, including three members of parliament.

It was a demonstration of the success with which the East African country has carried through the transfer of power following the death of founder Jomo Kenyatta.

His successor has avoided civil strife, preserved a functioning if less than perfect democracy and is moving to clean up the corruption which marred Kenyatta's latter years.

As political repression goes these days, 16 detainees certainly did not make Kenya big league. But the fact that there were so few and now none makes it a bright spot not only in Africa but on the generally dismal world scene.

JAY HARRIS:

A Frosty View...

NOW WE KNOW why the Eskimos rub noses. That's the only thing not covered from Arctic's deadly bite.

The guy who said the New Year would come with a blast gets the Icicle Bowl title for making the understatement of the decade.

And the one who said let's go for it on Fourth and One, with just seconds to go, ought to apply for the next Aggie coaching opening!

It not only was a wild and wooly three days on the weather and sports scene, but in many ways, the whole zany mess was a fitting climax to a year most of us could have skipped. And a questionable introduction to one we may wish we had.

THE SPORTS forecasts came off a bit hazy. As for the weather soers, unfortunately they were more accurate than usual.

While listening to the temperature drop, we got to wondering just how early man in the caves and his makeshift clothing, not to mention food, was able to survive. Considering the state of today's world, it may not have been worth it.

But survive we have, and with increasing technology, as well as frost-proof batteries, we may yet make it to another ice age. And, for whatever it is worth, we will know what the weather is like on the way.

Millions of commuters, stalled in traffic during the paralyzing wintry blow of the past few days, could care less, but the art of weather forecasting never has been better. According to the National Geographic Society, thanks to satellites, experts now call the shots on broad weather patterns with about 90 percent accuracy for a day ahead and 80 percent for two days.

BUT, WHAT'S happening on the weather scene hundreds of miles away if you are in Lubbock, Texas, for instance isn't the issue.

Closer home, it's "will I be able to plant tomorrow, play a game of tennis, get to work on time, send the kids to school or fly to Fort Worth-Dallas?"

In other words, it's nice to know it's snowing in Pocatello, but "where it's at" is here and now. The broad forecast is fine, but how about a detailed analysis of things to come in a specific section of a vast metropolitan area during the next few hours? Ah, that's where the rub and downed power lines are, as it were.

But, button up the overcoat and pull on those mittens, in twenty years or less, things may be different, according to C. Gordon Little, an atmospheric physicist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Boulder, Colo.

BY THE YEAR 2,000, or sooner, the question of "what's it like outside" may be answered by the flick of a knob.

People will simply turn to a special weather channel, radio or television, that will give an accurate forecast of the weather affecting their specific areas, even neighborhoods, within the next few hours, the experts say.

"We're reasonably accurate at forecasting large-scale weather events and slowly moving patterns, but it's much tougher to predict things like tornadoes, freak blizzards and flash floods that can occur in a matter of hours," Little says.

But help is on the way. According to NGS, new types of radar are expected to phase out many of the weather balloons forecasters have used for decades. One new radar can detect winds in clear air, and probe the lowest layer of the atmosphere where many important developments occur. This was impossible with conventional radar.

IF THE MONEY, there's that word again, is available, the first prototype of the Weather Station of Year 2000 could appear in Denver as early as 1985, NOAA people say.

Such a system might consist of four automated data collecting stations forming a vast square around the city. They would be able to pick up detailed weather patterns within a 60-mile radius, transmit it to a site roughly in the center of the square where it would be interpreted by experts, then beamed to the public—all within a matter of minutes.

So, what do you do in the meantime, other than take your chances with modern cave men?

Well, they may be having second thoughts about it, but only a couple of weeks ago, as Winter officially made its debut, the National Weather Service stuck its frosty nose out. It forecast the weather for the next two months. And like Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, gave odds in the process.

AFTER TWO severe winters, the weatherman says the eastern U.S. may be in for a break.

The guy who calls 'em in this department, says the odds are 2 to 1 for a milder-than-normal winter along the East Coast from Massachusetts to Florida, through the Appalachians, the Ohio-Tennessee valleys and Deep South, along the Gulf Coast westward to the Rio Grande.

Shivering peasants in those areas—including the Valley—will be happy to read that this morning.

The climatic touts offer the same odds for a colder-than-usual winter in the northern Great Plains and Rockies, in the Great Basin and from the Pacific Northwest to central California.

And what about us here in the great Southwest? Well, we are in an "indeterminate" area, the smart guys with the fur-lined forecasting machinery say. From Chicago to Los Angeles and 400 to 500 miles each side, no odds, no point spread and no bookie in his right mind would handle any action for that area. Now you know...

AN EDITORIAL:

Productivity Puzzle Solvable

IF THE CURATIVE effects of President Carter's proposed budget cuts were proportional to the political anguish they are causing, the nation's inflation problem probably would evaporate overnight.

Unfortunately, the spending cutbacks are likely to have only a modest dampening effect on the cost-of-living spiral—assuming they are approved by Congress, which is a mighty big "if."

Washington's political fascination with the budget battle shouldn't be allowed to obscure attention to some of the other factors contributing to the inflation problem.

One is the steady and disturbing decline of productivity in the U.S. in recent years, a phenomenon almost as baffling as inflation itself.

DURING THE first two decades after World War II, productivity (commonly defined as output per man-hour) increased in the private sector by an average rate of 3.2 percent per year.

From 1967-77, it grew just 1.6 percent a year, with most of the fall-off occurring in the second half of the decade. In 1978, it hardly grew at all.

According to a simple rule of thumb, a one percent increase in productivity translates into a one percent reduction in inflation.

A return to something like the postwar performance, therefore, obviously would go a long way toward curing our current economic ills.

Unfortunately, most of the factors that contributed to productivity gains in those days—easy money, ample capital, technological breakthroughs, cheap energy, abundant raw materials and a farm-to-city labor migration—are no longer present.

That means new ways must be found to increase worker output.

A RECENT study by the nonprofit Worldwatch Institute in Washington offers—cautiously—one approach that has also been endorsed by government-sponsored productivity studies:

Greater worker participation in the management and ownership of companies.

Author Bruce Stokes notes that while much attention has been paid to the desire of workers to improve their job conditions and enhance the "quality of life" in the workplace, greater participation can also lead to marked gains in productivity.

Common sense suggests that a worker with a piece of the action—a stake in the company through profit-sharing, for example—will try harder, and surveys substantiate the results. Traditional forms of ownership no longer yield significant productivity gains. So why not try something different?

It took more than big budget deficits to touch off chronic inflation, and it will take more than spending cuts alone to halt it.

ART BUCHWALD:

I'm Downright Proud You Said It, Not Me

WASHINGTON—Every year it is our pleasure to print the things people have said to each other that they would rather forget about.

Depending on what country they were said in, the person who made the statement could or could not be under house arrest.

Aren't you glad you weren't the adviser who said to the Shah of Iran last year, "The people wouldn't dare go into the streets. That would be violating a royal edict?"

Or the Swedish judge who said, "Why don't we give Sadat and Begin the Nobel Peace Prize jointly? It would give the Middle East treaty so much more meaning."

HOW ABOUT THE campaign manager who told Sen. Ed Brooke, "Why would your wife want to hurt your political career, even if you are separated?"

And let's not forget the State Department official who said to President Jimmy Carter last spring, "If we sell Saudi Arabia our latest fighter airplanes, they'll see to it that the oil rate will be less than five percent."

What about the chap who told President Somoza, "May you and your family rule Nicaragua until Rome has a Polish Pope?"

I still wonder whatever happened to the engineer at Firestone who said, "I'll stake my professional reputation on the 500 Radial Tire."

Or the vice president in charge of marketing who told his boss, "If Billy Carter can't sell beer, nobody can."

WHATEVER HAPPENED to the NBC executive who said in an interview in Variety last January, "Freddie Silverman not only has bad taste, he's also been very lucky."

How about the Chinese Communist official who said to another official, "How do you like this wall poster with Teng Hsiao-ping wearing a dunce cap?"

As well as the executive who told Lee Iococca, "Henry Ford wants to see you. He's probably going to give you a raise."

Or the financial vice president of a New York bank, who announced at a lunch last March to the board members of the Teamsters Pension

Fund, "I got you out of airline stocks and put all your money in Cleveland Municipal Bonds."

NOT TO MENTION the scientist at NASA who told his chief, "According to my calculations Skylab will be flying around in space for at least 300 more years."

And while we're at it, let's not forget Leon Spinks' friend who said after the first fight with Muhammad Ali, "Now that you're the World Heavyweight Champion you can do anything you want to and the cops won't bother you."

I don't want to overlook Gov. Jerry Brown's fiscal adviser who told him, "Howard Jarvis is a look, and if Proposition 13 gets more than 10 percent of the vote I'll eat every ballot."

DARE WE IGNORE the bartender who told then-manager Billy Martin, "Stick to your guns. George Steinbrenner knows the Yankees can't win the pennant without you."

And then there is the White House staffer who said to Hamilton Jordan, "Why don't you go out on the town more and have fun?"

And finally the wise guy who went into the Oval Office and said, "Mr. President, when you hear this bit of bad news you're going to have hemorrhoids."

The Brighter Side...

Let me tell you a story about two aristocratic, middle-aged spinsters who lived together in downtown Charleston. Each had a female cat with a thoroughbred pedigree as impressive as the spinsters'.

The two ladies were crazy about their pets. And since they didn't want the pets to associate with alley cats, the pets were kept confined to the house.

Then one of the spinsters happened to meet a handsome but tough middle-aged truck driver at a supermarket, and they fell madly in love, were married and left on a wedding trip to New Orleans.

From New Orleans, the newlywed wired her sister: "You do what you want with your cat, but let mine out!"

Iranian Mob Attacks U.S. Home Of Shah's Sister

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Hundreds of angry Iranian demonstrators stormed the palatial home of the shah of Iran's sister Tuesday, overturning a police car, setting several brush fires and smashing windows in the mansion.

At least 35 persons were injured during a 45-minute melee that police broke up with tear gas and high-pressure fire hoses. Thirteen demonstrators were taken to Cedars Sinai Hospital with assorted injuries, but none were reported to be serious, said hospital spokesman Larry Baum. Twenty-two Iranians were taken to UCLA Medical Center with minor injuries, officials said.

Some persons were injured when they were reportedly hit by sheriff's cars during the battle that, for a time, immobilized this exclusive Los Angeles suburb.

Sheriff's spokesman Chet Ballou said five or six students were arrested at the home for investigation of assaults on law officers.

As the demonstrators retreated from the house, hundreds of policemen, sheriff's deputies and highway patrolmen herded them back along the demonstration route, and corralled them into a barricaded area near the Beverly Hills business district. There, authorities began releasing the calmed students in small groups.

Torture Chamber Now Tourist Attraction

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Tehran's newest tourist attraction is a burned-out villa that neighbors claim was a torture chamber used by agents of SAVAK — the shah's notorious secret police — for extracting information and confessions.

Since rioters set fire to the villa last week, swarms of curiosity seekers have poured over the smoldering ruins, which include some unusual items that could have been used for torture.

Most of the "devices" have been burned so badly that it takes some imagination to label them as instruments of torture. But three reporters who toured the house were not prepared to rule out that possibility.

"This was a SAVAK house," proclaimed one young man who claims he was there when rioters set it on fire. "You can see for yourself."

According to the man, who would not give his name, demonstrators found the house by following a small car from which several persons opened fire on a crowd during an anti-shah demonstration.

Several members of the crowd followed the car through Tehran's dense traffic until it drove through the gate of the villa, in a pleasant residential district near the U.S. Embassy.

They stormed the villa, ran off the car's occupants, and set fire to the auto. Then they torched the two small, stucco houses, set off from the street by a 10-foot-high wall.

The property has been associated with SAVAK for many years. It once was the home of Gen. Teimour Bakhtiar, who was the chief of SAVAK until he fell out with the shah and fled to Iraq in 1963.

Later it was owned by a colonel, rumored to have been SAVAK's torture expert.

Neighbors did not know who owned the house when it was burned.

The army has been guarding the ruins ever since the fire but has not been successful in keeping out crowds. The troops move in and run out curiosity seekers when the crowds grow too large.

But three reporters joined a score of Iranians on a brief tour after a group of six soldiers finally gave up and let the crowd in. One sergeant even escorted the group through the buildings.

In the back of one building was a metal device with what appeared to be finger-sized holes. Some people in the crowd said it was for extracting fingernails.

One room included the charred remains of a bed fitted with burned-out electric wires.

Med School Schedules Research Forum

Texas Tech's School of Medicine is holding a Regional Media Research Forum from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Jan. 15 to inform media representatives of new cardiovascular research and of fundamental aspects of heart disease.

The event will feature Roger Markwald, Ph.D., associate professor of anatomy at Texas Tech; Thomas E. Tenner Jr., Ph.D., assistant professor of pharmacology and experimental therapeutics at Texas Tech; and Maurice F. Crass, III, Ph.D., associate professor of physiology at Texas Tech.

Discussion sessions and tours of laboratories also will be included in the forum.

Cambodia Says Soviet Pilots Flew Viet Warplanes

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Cambodia charged Tuesday that Vietnamese forces with the support of warplanes flown by Soviet pilots have penetrated deep into eastern Cambodia.

Political analysts in Bangkok said Hanoi-backed Cambodian rebels have seized control of Kratie, a key Mekong River town.

President Khieu Samphan accused the Soviet Union of backing the Vietnamese aggression and said that since Christmas Day, Vietnamese infantry, armor and warplanes have driven into large areas of Cambodia. His address was broadcast by Radio Phnom Penh.

Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary, in a message to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim made public in New York Tuesday, said Soviet pilots had joined in the attacks aimed at "taking over" Cambodia.

Ieng Sary said the Vietnamese used MiG-19 and MiG-21 pursuit bombers and also "four-motor bombers" in the attacks. "Some of these are now piloted by Soviet pilots," he said. There was no immediate Soviet comment on the charge.

Ieng Sary charged that Vietnam's attacks were a bid to fulfill its regional expansionist aims as well as "the ambition for global expansionism in Southeast Asia of the great expansionist power, the Soviet Union."

The three-year border conflict between the two Southeast Asian nations is seen by some as an extension of the Soviet-Chinese rift. Communist Vietnam is allied with Moscow, while Peking backs the Cambodian government.

Khieu Samphan said the major Vietnamese attacks have come in Ratanakiri and Kratie provinces and along Highway 7 which leads to another key Mekong River town, Kompong Cham. He appealed to countries "far and near," as well as the United Nations to help stop the invasion.

Reliable sources in Bangkok, including military attaches and other diplomats at various embassies and persons dealing with Cambodian refugees, said they believed the rebels claim that they had captured Kratie. They said they had no details of the current situation in that area, 100 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

A senior official of the Thai Foreign Ministry said the rebels would gain credibility with both the Cambodian population and foreign opinion if they make Kratie their capital. It cuts the main routes between the capital and northeast Cambodia.

Pro-Hanoi Cambodian insurgents claimed Kratie fell into their hands Dec. 30. Western and Thai analysts here are convinced regular Vietnamese troops were largely responsible.

The rebel group, called the United Front for National Salvation, Tuesday said officials of the organization have visited "liberated zones" in the northeast to encourage the local population to greater efforts against the central regime.

The Bangkok sources also noted a recent increase in Vietnamese airstrikes into Cambodia, a standard prelude in the past to increased ground attacks. Vietnamese forces launched a major offensive into Cambodia in late 1977, but the Cambodians claimed they drove the invaders away after inflicting heavy losses on them.

Khieu Samphan said Tuesday nearly 10,000 Vietnamese troops had been killed or wounded in Cambodia in the last three months of 1978.

Analysts here have theorized that the basic strategy of the current drive has been for Vietnamese units to tackle and eliminate the toughest Cambodian opposition and then let the insurgents do the rest.

The insurgents claim large segments of the population, eager to get rid of an oppressive government which reportedly has slaughtered thousands of people, have flocked to their side. Since the Communist takeover, refugees have reported widespread hunger and disease.

An official Phnom Penh government statement, which largely followed Khieu Samphan's speech, accused Vietnam of having tried to subvert Cambodia for the past 47 years using tactics both "sweet and savage."

Cambodia and Vietnam were allies during the Vietnam War, but their traditional enmity and territorial rivalry resurfaced after the communist victory in 1975 over the U.S.-backed governments in both countries.

The Cambodian statements stressed the backing of the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies in the Vietnamese invasion but did not actually accuse Moscow of sending advisors or combatants as it had in the past.

There have been several reports by foreign journalists visiting China in recent months indicating that Peking might not go very far in propping up the Phnom Penh regime which has blackened its image by persistent reports of massive human rights violations.

The Vietnam News Agency Tuesday claimed that three "crack" Cambodian regiments had been completely wiped out in week-long fighting in southern Vietnam's Tay Ninh Province where analysts have long said the bulk of Vietnam's force for the border war has been poised.

The agency gave no details. Another dispatch from the official agency, marking 1979 as the United Nations Year of the Child, accused the Cambodians of staging raids into Vietnam and killing children along the border.

INSANITY FOR VICIOUS

NEW YORK (AP)—Counsel for punk rocker Sid Vicious said Tuesday he will base the defense on insanity when his client is tried on charges of murdering his girlfriend. The lawyer, James Merberg, an associate of F. Lee Bailey, made the statement as he entered State Supreme Court in Manhattan for the arraignment of Vicious on an unrelated assault charge.

Burglars Cool In Cold

Lubbock's icy streets and frigid temperatures apparently have done little to hamper burglars determined to get inside several city homes and businesses.

More than $2,700 worth of bar and office equipment was stolen from K-Safe Restaurant and Bar Equipment at 2007 Ave. C between 1 p.m. Monday and 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, according to police.

Susan Louise Bash of Midland told police Tuesday that someone took her $750 diamond ring from the restroom of a Broadway night club.

W.C. Herring of 2806 55th St. said $500 worth of tools were taken from the bed of his pickup truck Monday night while the vehicle was parked in the drive of his home.

Danny Kellum of 2232 Auburn St., No. 17, told officers that burglars pried the padlock from a storage building northeast of his residence and took a $50 10-speed bicycle and two sleeping bags worth a total of $100.

Cecil Mallow, a maintenance worker at a laundry at 2314 34th St., said when he arrived at work about 8 a.m. Tuesday he discovered that $100 was missing.

A burglar at the Sentry Savings and Loan Association at 6502 Slide Road apparently didn't take anything of value when he broke into that firm during the holiday weekend. But that didn't discourage him from leaving behind a season's greeting anyway.

When police arrived at the firm about 4:30 a.m. Tuesday they found bars pried off one of the windows, a fire door heavily damaged and the word "HI" scrawled on a floor mat.

Association vice president Bill Flemmons said nothing of value was missing from the offices, but he estimated $400 damage was done to the building. He said the break-in occurred between 1 p.m. Saturday and early Tuesday.

Police were holding a man on suspicion of theft and burglary after investigation linked him with an automobile reported stolen in Houston and revealed stolen items in his possession.

And they may have uncovered an unsuccessful scam to extract money from unwary motel clerks.

Police were dispatched when a motel clerk called late Monday and reported he had been told in a telephoned message that he was being watched by a gunman and that he was to deposit a suitcase filled with the day's receipts elsewhere on the premises.

Officers learned that the man they detained had been in the lobby and on the telephone, and subsequent investigation showed him to have loitered in another motel lobby — near where the stolen car was found — the previous night.

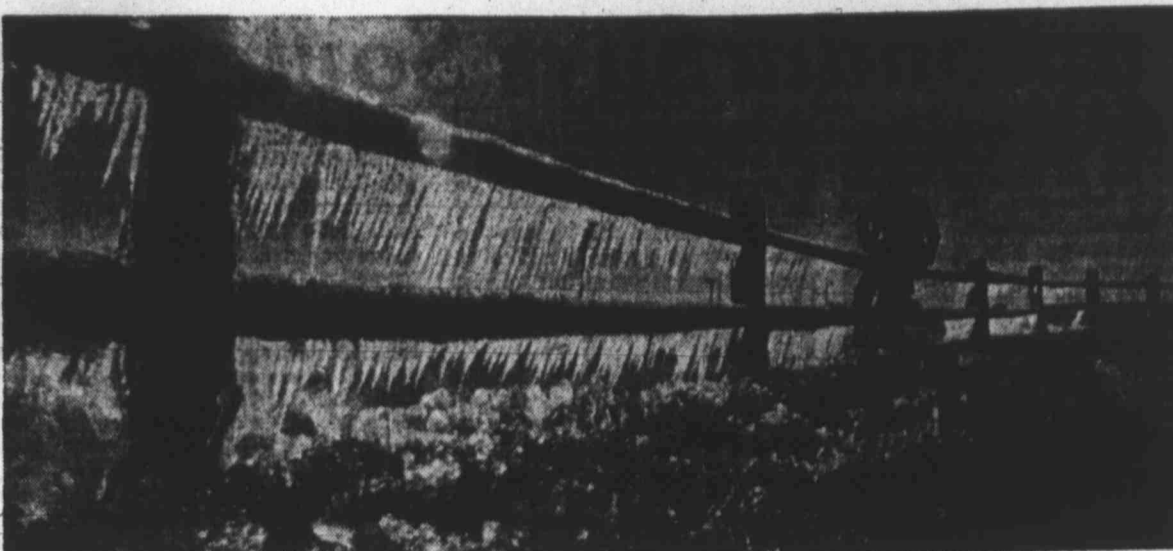

Clothing found in the vehicle — and also on the suspect — matched that taken in a Lubbock burglary, officers said.

An alert police officer cornered three burglary suspects early Tuesday and then together with fellow officers held them at bay for three hours until a warrant could be obtained to enter the premises.

Officer Tim Smith observed three men running from a Broadway pawn shop at about 5 a.m. and pursued them to a building on Avenue F. When the trio ignored orders to come out, officers pursued legal channels to apprehend them and for their trouble recovered guns and other items believed to have been stolen.

The owner of the pawn shop, who arrived in the meantime, confirmed his business had been burglarized and that about $1,000 worth of guns was missing.

The trio was in county jail Tuesday.

expected to plunge below 20 degrees again Tuesday night. The state has been gripped by bitter cold weather; many areas have reported record lows. (AP Laserphoto)

Funeral Directors Group To Discuss Controversy

AUSTIN (Special) — More than 600 funeral-related professionals will meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at Quality Inn for a day-long special session of the Texas Funeral Directors Association.

The group will discuss conflicting opinions of consumers and the State Sunset Advisory Commission concerning the licensing of funeral directors.

The FDA has proposed a bill to the Texas Legislature as an alternative to the Sunset Advisory Commission's proposal to eliminate the State Board of Morticians and the licensing of funeral directors.

House Fire Leaves City Man Critically Injured

Melton Crisp was in critical condition late Tuesday at Methodist Hospital after he was dragged from his burning home at 4201 18th St. shortly before 6 p.m.

Firemen found the 32-year-old Crisp unconscious in the bathroom of his home, where he apparently passed out after suffering from smoke inhalation.

Five units responded to the blaze, which destroyed the living room of the residence and caused more than $1,000 damage to the structure and contents of the home. Fire officials late Tuesday were still trying to determine the cause.

Several neighbors said they had seen Crisp enter his home only moments before the fire erupted, but by the time fire fighters arrived, flames already had engulfed the front portion of the home.

Two neighborhood men told officials they tried to enter the back of the home after noticing the smoke, but that the heated caused windows to explode and stymied their rescue attempts.

Crisp was not breathing when he was pulled from the house, firemen said, but EMS technicians were able to revive the young man with the aid of heart massage and a respirator.

Crisp's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Crisp who also live at the 16th Street address, were not home when the fire began.

Obituaries

Leo Apple

HALE CENTER (Special) — Services for Leo Milton Apple, 70, of Hale Center will be at 2:30 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Carroll Green, pastor, officiating.

Burial will follow in Hale Center Cemetery under direction of Freeman Funeral Home.

Apple died at 7 a.m. Tuesday at Hi Plains Hospital here after a lengthy illness.

The Decatur native had lived in Southland and Ralls before moving to Hale Center in 1940 from Abernathy. He was a retired farmer.

Apple was a member of the First Baptist Church of Abernathy.

Survivors include two sisters, Kathlene Apple and Mrs. Roy Dodson, both of Hale Center; a niece and a nephew.

Sarah Blocker

STANTON (Special) — Services for Sarah Modene Blocker, 86, of Stanton are at 2:30 p.m. today in the First United Methodist Church at Stanton with the Rev. J.B. Stewart of Midland officiating.

Burial will follow in Mount Olive Cemetery at Big Spring under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home at Stanton.

Mrs. Blocker died at 8:45 a.m. Monday in Martin County Hospital in Stanton following a lengthy illness.

The Missouri native was a 32-year resident of Stanton after moving here from Big Spring. She married J.W. Blocker Oct. 9, 1946, in Stanton. He died June 13, 1966.

Lillian Milam Rites Scheduled

Lillian Milam, of 3004 25th St., who founded and operated Milam's Childrens Home with her husband, W.T., from 1936 until her retirement in 1957 died at 8:20 p.m. Monday in Methodist Hospital of a sudden illness.

Mrs. Milam, 95, is the benefactor of Milam Childrens Training Center for mentally handicapped children. The Lubbock woman donated the land for the center, named for her, after her retirement.

Mrs. Milam and her husband moved to Lubbock from Roswell, N.M. in 1926 where she began caring for needy children and expanded to founding a children's home at 24th Street and Avenue K.

The school, which cared for more than 2,000 children during Mrs. Milam's supervision, was moved to 3800 Ave. H in 1936.

At her retirement in 1957, Buckner Baptist Benevolences of Texas began administering the home. She was honored at a ceremony dedicating the home to her honor for her years of service. A bronze-plated shoe worn by one of the children in her home, also was presented to her at the ceremony.

The school now functions as Buckner Baptist Children's Home.

State Ag Commissioner Cleans House

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday he has fired two employees for malfeasance in the past year and has no room in his agency for "playboys," loafers or sloppy dressers.

He also indirectly criticized his predecessor, John C. White, currently national chairman of the Democratic Party, for sloppy administration.

"Any person in my department who mishandles funds or violates the public trust will be dismissed. Equally important, any person engaged in trying to influence or coerce any employee in carrying out his official duties will be prosecuted with every means at my disposal," Brown said at a news conference.

In reply to questions, he said he had in the past year fired a Houston nursery inspector for pocketing a nursery's $10 license fee and a West Texas weights inspector for putting a $158 pleasure trip on his state credit card.

"He was a playboy. We got rid of playboys in this agency," Brown said.

Brown explained that the weight inspector drove a state truck from Abilene to Dallas and put his hotel and liquor bill on a state credit card.

"He just had a big time," Brown said. He added that the $158 was doctored from the man's paycheck and that the state was now trying to arrest him. "We are going to put him in the penitentiary if we can catch him," Brown said.

Brown said a third employee, an inspector in West Texas, had been fired for writing anonymous letters to legislators, falsely accusing his supervisor of various misdeeds.

The commissioner said he had under-spent his 1978 appropriation by $800,255 and was returning that amount to the General Revenue Fund. He credited a re-organization that knocked out three regional offices plus greater productivity from a slightly smaller staff he inherited from White 21 months ago.

He said he procured the retirement of six executives "who were just wandering around the halls doing nothing."

"It's a different ballgame over there. People have to work now," Brown said. Asked if he was saying White was not a good administrator, Brown replied: "John White and I have been friends for a good number of years, but he and I have a different philosophy of administration. We don't play much golf. We dress with a tie and a white shirt and a suit," he said, adding that employees who choose to come to work in "shower shoes" could not work for him.

White is an avid golfer and a casual dresser.

Brown ended his news conference on a political note, saying he had $20,000 left in his campaign fund. "We sure are going to be a political force in this state for the next four to eight years."

Heartline

(Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: I am a veteran and have a service-connected disability. I have been wondering lately about emergency treatment for myself. If I had to go to a non-VA hospital for emergency treatment, will the VA pay for it? — H.C.

If a veteran is treated for a disability that has been rated service-connected by the VA, and the VA is notified within 72 hours of admission to a non-VA hospital, VA will pay for this treatment.

HEARTLINE: I am now working in the railroad industry and I plan to retire within the next year. I have heard that to qualify for the supplemental annuity, a person must have a current connection with the railroad industry. How does a person establish this current connection? — O.W.

In general terms, an employee has a current connection if he has at least 12 months of railroad employment during the last 2½ working years before retirement. If an employee does not qualify on this basis, an earlier 2½-year period with 12 months of railroad service may be used, but only if the employee did not have a regular non-railroad job following the earlier period, as such non-

Energy-Saving Costs Now Tax Deductible

WASHINGTON (AP) — When you file your income tax return remember you can claim credits for residential energy expenditures made since April 20, 1977.

Whether the expenditures were made in 1977 or 1978, the claims must be on your 1978 tax return. You cannot claim the credits by filing amended 1977 returns.

Under the law, credits are available of up to $300 for certain conservation expenditures, and up to $2,200 for installing renewable energy sources. Qualifying expenses include weatherstripping, insulation, storm doors and windows, caulking and certain heating system modifications.

The form for claiming the credits is being included in the tax packages being sent out by the Internal Revenue Service.

Giant strawberries are strung together by the stems in Colombia, South America, and sold by the yard.

railroad earnings would break the earlier current connection.

However, self-employment (working in an individual's own unincorporated business) or working for certain U.S. government agencies (Department of Transportation, Interstate Commerce Commission, National Mediation Board, Railroad Retirement Board) does not break a current connection.

HEARTLINE: I am going to be retiring in March. I recently started reading the Heartline column and saw a question and answer having to do with the allowable earnings limit. I have talked with several persons who are already drawing Social Security benefits, and after reading your column, I am very confused. My friends say that you are wrong about there being a monthly earnings limit. They say that this was changed in the 1977 amendments and it no longer exists. Can you explain, as I will need to know what to do after I retire. — J.C.

The 1977 amendments did do away with the monthly earnings limit for persons already drawing Social Security. The only exception is during the calendar year in which you retire. If you are retiring this year, you will have to stay within the monthly earnings allowed by Social Security until the end of 1978. After the beginning of 1980, you will then only be concerned with the yearly earnings limit. A person starting to draw Social Security in 1979 will receive a full Social Security benefit for any month in which their income is less than $290 per month if under age 65, and less than $375 per month if over age 65.

For people who are on Social Security or for those who are going to be drawing theirs shortly, Heartline has written a book especially to help all people understand what benefit they might be eligible to receive. This book covers regular retirement, disability, wife's and widow's benefits, allowed earnings, and many more important facts on Social Security. This book also goes into detail on some of the problem areas of Social Security. You may obtain this book by sending $2 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. This book is completely guaranteed and if you are not satisfied, your money will be refunded. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

LEXINGTON, Johnson, an official in Lexington, Ky., says these days many of the horses owned in the area are being bred in Kentucky. The 48-year-old Lexington breeder says the industry is far more profitable than it was a few years ago. "In the last few years, the stock market has been a terrible experience for you, what with only getting the educational channel." The Kentucky breeder says that if you invest in blood stock you can get five times your money. Johnson says that some of the...

Investment In Thoroughbreds Good Hedge Against Inflation

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Joseph E. Johnson, an attorney and onetime public official in Lexington, spends his time these days managing thoroughbred horses owned in many cases by people interested in beating inflation.

The 48-year-old Johnson — who owns an 800-acre farm on a picturesque country road in the heart of Kentucky's Bluegrass region — says such an investment is far more profitable than the stock market.

"In the last 15 years if you invested in the stock market you'd be even," Johnson said between meetings with his clients at his sprawling horse farm. "But if you invested 10 years ago in good blood stock you'd probably make four or five times (your investment)."

The Kentucky Horse Center operated by Johnson is just down the road from some of the world's most famous thoroughbred farms by Johnson says owning a horse need not be a sport — or investment — reserved for the likes of the Whitneys or Tely Savalas. One reason is the increasing trend toward joint ownership of expensive horses — some by scores of investors.

"Horses have stayed ahead of inflation," says Johnson, whose farm will breed, train and race a horse for a flat fee.

Inflation also has sparked greater interest in Kentucky horses among foreign investors. Daryl Thurman, who keeps track of such things with the state Commerce Department, said the eroding value of the dollar apparently prompted the more than 30 percent increase in foreign sales this year at Lexington's Keeneland track.

The horses sold to foreign buyers by Keeneland alone went to 27 nations and brought more than $20 million in foreign money to Kentucky during 1978.

For his part Johnson says he hasn't been approached by interested Arab buyers. "They've got some kind of religion against gambling," Johnson said. Johnson says the attraction of investing in horses has improved because of the growing demand for race-quality horses as racing dates increase.

"Horses are in very heavy demand because they've gone to year-round racing in a lot of states," Johnson says. "There's always a shortage of good anything — doctors or newspapermen."

Johnson says the expansion of year-round racing in many states has lowered the quality level of horses able to break into the industry.

"It's like the major leagues when they expanded those leagues they got players that couldn't have played until they went to 24 teams," Johnson says.

While training centers like Johnson's open horse ownership to those without experience in the field Johnson says the venture still can be an expensive one.

"The most expensive thing in the world is a bad horse," Johnson says with a sigh.

"They don't provide revenue and they require attention about 24 hours a day — you've got to feed them if they make money or not."

The statistics bear Johnson out: Kentucky horse breeders and owners spend more than $34 million annually for feed.

In all Kentucky has more than 45,000 thoroughbred horses and the breeding, racing, shoeing, feeding and other related fields mean more than $1 billion in annual thoroughbred-related business for the state.

Johnson, whose training center includes 600 stalls, a one-mile outdoor track slated for completion in the spring and a five-eighths of a mile covered track promoted as the world's largest, says investing in horses "is kind of like any other investment — there are a lot of ways to invest."

For one, Johnson said breeding stock has increased 60 percent in value in the last three years. "Why, just down the road they have Seattle Slew syndicated for $14.5 million," he said.

Johnson said he recently was approached to buy a 1-40th share of the syndicated breeding rights of 1978 Kentucky Derby winner Affirmed — for $400,000.

"It's unbelievable what they are selling 'em for," says Johnson, who turned down the chance to invest in Affirmed.

The training center has 450 horses boarded by private owners and another dozen owned or being handled by Johnson, whose service also offers an updated computerized rundown on the performance of virtually every race horse in North America.

Johnson, who took over ownership of the Kentucky Horse Center in mid-1978, plans to hold his first horse auction next spring featuring two-year olds — those horses among the group eligible for the 1980 Kentucky Derby.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE CARTER ADMINISTRATION AGAIN has failed to assure cattlemen that it will not continue to tamper with the cattle market.

President Carter has announced that import restraint for 1979 will be negotiated with exporting nations at a level of 1.570 billion pounds (product weight). "We are extremely disappointed with the administration's action," says Richard A. McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association.

"First, they (administration officials) are departing significantly from the Meat Import Act's quota provisions. Secondly, and perhaps most importantly, the President provided no assurance that he would not increase imports further during the year.

"THEREFORE, WE ARE CONCERNED that the President may be planning an additional increase at some point in 1979."

The cattle market now is fundamentally strong, and last week's announcement is not expected to have an immediate impact on the market.

But the action is not constructive in the long term, McDougal says, for it tends to perpetuate the feeling of uncertainty among producers.

"In our meetings with the President's economic advisers, we made a very strong case for a commitment not to again intervene in the market," the NCA president said.

"THE ARBITRARY AND SUDDEN increase in imports in mid-1978 had an adverse psychological effect on the market and on cattlemen's attitudes, and the last thing we need is a repeat of that kind of situation in 1979."

"Without more assurance that there will not be further intervention in the market, cattlemen will be more reluctant to rebuild their herds, and the net long-term result can be smaller beef supplies and higher prices for consumers than otherwise would be the case.

"While last week's announcement might seem to serve the political interests of the administration's so-called inflation fighters, it certainly is not productive from a long-term standpoint."

The restraint total of 1.570 billion pounds represents an increase of 78 million pounds from the 1978 total. This amounts to about one-half pound per capita on a carcass weight basis.

"WHILE THE INCREASE OVER 1978 is not large," McDougal said, "a lower level of imports would have sent a more positive signal to cattlemen and would have provided a better stimulus to cow herd stabilization."

"Also, a definite commitment not to tamper further with the market during 1979 would have been in the best interest of consumers as well as cattlemen in that it would have restored more confidence in the future."

"As it is now, the administration appears to care little about the future of the domestic livestock industry. And blame for some of the prospective longer term decrease in beef supplies must be laid at the steps of the White House."

Cattle Futures Market Gains After Early Loss

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed unchanged to up 80 led by April at the day's high Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 10,278 cars. The market rallied sharply after an early loss of 55 on spreading.

Early selling reflected the five percent increase in the beef import quota. Strength in cash cattle and cold weather brought aggressive short covering in the nearby contracts which spilled over to the back months in later trade.

There were 15 deliveries. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 86 cents a pound, for all weights, f.o.b. river points, which is a one week high. Cash cattle were steady to up $1.50 with the best top $53.50 per hundredweight, which is the highest since June. Omaha's top was $57. Slaughter was 133,000 head. The major markets are expecting 17,700 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 75 higher to 37 lower on 2,585 contracts. September was up the most at the day's high with January off the most after losing 102.

Early selling was mostly profit-taking after Friday's limit level advances. Cold weather and strength in live cattle futures prompted late support which lifted prices to two week highs. The import quota increase was in line with early estimates.

There were 53 deliveries. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $2 with the best top $92 per hundredweight at Greeley. About 4,500 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed unchanged to up 80 led by June on 5,126 contracts. July was up 105 after October slipped 15 early.

Demand was sparked by bitterly cold weather and light runs along with sharply higher cash hogs. Futures rose to 1 1/2 week highs with improvement in most pork products also positive.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 cent at 84 to 87 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up 25 to $2.25 with the best top $52 per hundredweight at Peoria.

Kill was 240,000 head. Receipts at the major markets are expected to total 30,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 195 to 200 higher with all contracts except July at the limit level advance. Sales totaled 3,822 cars. Prices rose to 1 1/2 week highs.

The market was higher from the start in an extension of Friday's buying as traders noted bitterly cold weather and sharply reduced hog arrivals. Strength in cash hogs and bellies along with light storings also prompted buying.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 2 cents at 51 to 54 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

AAM Wants To Attain Major Lobbying Status

SIoux Falls, S.D. (UPI) — The American Agriculture Movement, a group of rural activists trying to save the family farm, wants to establish itself as a major lobbying force in Washington.

A nationwide tractorcade to Washington this month will kick off the 1979 campaign.

A survey by the AAM's Darlene Harrison of Moberg, S.D., asked delegates about the future of the movement, which a year ago began farm strikes, rallies and tractorcades.

"American Agriculture will get parity for their products, or the rest of the economic sectors in this country will fall with us."

"The American Agriculture Movement is here to stay," said Georgia delegate Tommy Kersey. "The movement for the first time has involved dirt farmers in the full business of agriculture."

"Farmers will never again be content to let other people speak for them," Gene Schroder, Colorado's delegate, said. "When the goals of this group begin to be achieved, the movement can become one of the most important organizations of the country. It may be the only group that can bring about economic stability."

Virginia delegate Don Patterson said, "The country as we know it is at stake. We believe we are working for the good of all Americans — not just to save a few thousand farm families from bankruptcy."

The goal for which the AAM was founded is 100 percent parity, which its members call the "farmer's minimum wage." It provides for cost of production and then some.

"If we do not achieve 100 percent parity, the American family farm cannot exist," said Alabama delegate Buddy Rose. "Without the family farm, Rose said, corporations eventually will control agriculture. "Then the consumer will better realize what the farmer has been doing this year with tractorcades and his efforts in Washington," he said.

The AAM January tractorcade to Washington will be from cities in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Colorado and Texas.

Organizers said the protest calls on the government to set loan levels for basic commodities at 90 percent of parity. They also want an improved set-aside program and laws to protect U.S. farmers against foreign imports.

As the tractorcade moves eastward at 100 miles a day, it is meant to cause traffic jams through such cities as Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and Indianapolis.

AMARILLO (AP) — Trade opened moderate throughout the Panhandle area early Tuesday. Slaughter steers firm to 50 higher, heifers 25-30 higher. Feedlots reported fair interest and inquiry. Sales on 400 slaughter steers, 300 slaughter heifers. All live cattle prices based on net weights f.o.b. the feedlot after 4 percent shrink.

Slaughter steers: Good and mostly choice, 70-80 percent choice, 283-1050-150 to 275-58.00 including 700 head at 58.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 1025-1250 to 54.75.

Slaughter heifers: Good and mostly choice 2-3 275-580 to 55.50-56.00. Load mixed good and choice 2-3 900 lbs to 54.75.

AMARILLO (AP) — Panhandle area carlot meat trade (f.o.b. the plant) as of 11:15 a.m. (beef trade-Texas Panhandle, western Oklahoma and New Mexico).

No sales any class fresh beef reported. Packers reported limited interest but available product also limited.

Raw Farm Product Prices Match All-Time High During December

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices that farmers get for raw products rose 3 percent in December and matched the all-time record set more than five years ago, the Agriculture Department said.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that higher prices for cattle, hogs, eggs, calves, corn and soybeans contributed most to the gain in the price index from November.

However, lower prices were reported for wheat, citrus and barley which partially offset the gains for the other commodities.

Farm prices in December were up 22 percent from a year ago, the report said. The commodity price index was 221 percent of a 1967 base used as a standard.

According to department records, that equaled the all-time high reading of 221 percent set in August 1973.

Farm prices, after climbing for nine consecutive months, dropped an additional 1 percent in October but dropped 1.5 percent in November, partly because of a slump in average prices for cattle and hogs.

Economists do not consider farm prices in a single month good indicators of future food price because they often do fluctuate so much. But in the long term higher farm prices do have an impact on grocery prices.

Higher livestock prices, particularly, are a major reason for an expected 30 percent boost in farmers' net incomes to around $26 billion this year, compared to $20.1 billion in 1977, according to the department.

Another factor has been a thriving export market, a record of $27.3 billion worth of farm commodities shipped abroad in the year that ended Sept. 30, and prospects that China, the Soviet Union and many other countries will continue as important customers.

The USDA says that retail food prices are going up an average of about 10 percent this year and that they may average 7.5 percent higher in 1979.

However, department experts say the actual 1979 food price increase could range between 6 percent and 10 percent, depending on the weather and other factors, including inflation.

About 60 cents of each grocery dollar spent by consumers at supermarkets is paid to process, transport and sell food after it leaves the farm. Thus, grocery costs will rise regardless of what happens to farm prices as long as inflation boosts the costs of middlemen.

One reason for food prices going up 10 percent this year against a gain of 6.3 percent in 1977 is that cattle producers, after years of depressed prices have trimmed their herds sharply, meaning that there is less beef now.

Despite relatively high cattle prices and prospects that those will continue to set records next year, producers still have not begun to expand their herds as much as they did in 1977.

Production begins to catch up with demand.

AN ICY START — Many Lubbockites returning to work early Tuesday after the New Year's holiday weren't greeted too warmly by the city's weather, as the sign at the First National Bank at 1500 Broadway attested. While workers had to drive to the office in the 1-degree chill, only two hours earlier while many were getting ready for work, Lubbock thermometers had dipped below zero to minus-2 degrees for the second day of the frosty new year. Thaw To Lift Burden Of Icy Storm for the warming trend expected today. Many schools have been shuttered in that area and thousands of Dallas Power & Light customers have been without electric service for two days.

The cold front that tormented residents across the Great Plains over prompted weather officials in northeastern Ohio to post a winter storm warning for that area as the system began moving into that region.

Officials in Pennsylvania, New York and Vermont posted winter storm watches for parts of those states.

There were aftershocks Tuesday in the wake of an earthquake that rattled five California counties Monday. It occurred as 90 mph winds and flooding stranded hundreds of holiday motorists along Interstate 8 east of San Diego.

The California Highway Patrol said six cars and three trailers were flipped over by high winds along the highway before it was closed Tuesday.

Winds also were blamed for about 30 electrical fires in the south end of California's central valley.

Forecasters are predicting bitterly cold temperatures and snow for New England today. That area saw mild seasonal weather Tuesday.

Cabinet Named By Iran's New Leader

though the shah has violated human rights at home."

In Beverly Hills, Calif., about 200 Iranian students rushed the palatial home of Princess Chams, the shah's sister, and set brush fires within 20 feet of the house, police said.

Queen Mother Pahlavi, 90, reportedly is staying with the princess, but it was not known if she or the princess were inside during the demonstration. Officers ringed the house and used tear gas and fire hoses against the demonstrators.

Bakhtiar's aides said in Tehran that the 62-year-old lawyer would present his Cabinet list to Parliament Thursday. The list is to be presented to the shah for his approval if both houses of Parliament back the nominees.

Bakhtiar was kicked out of the opposition National Front when he agreed to try to end the year-long civil crisis without requiring the shah to abdicate. Religious and political leaders rejected the plan and said the bloodshed will end only when the shah gives up the Peacock Throne.

The opposition to the shah is two-fold. Politicians oppose his authoritarian rule and alleged corrupt governments. Leaders of Iran's 32 million Shiite Moslems claim the shah's Westernization programs have undermined traditional Islamic values. The shah also is a Shiite.

The Senate, scheduled to meet today, was expected to approve Bakhtiar's proposed government. Bakhtiar promised in a nationally broadcast speech Monday night his government would be honest and that corrupt officials of previous regimes would be punished.

Several thousand opponents of the shah marched through central Tehran Tuesday after authorities prohibited a speech by opposition leader Karim Sanjabi. The radio said protesters set fire to banks in Firuzabad and staged marches in Shiraz, Kerman and other cities. No deaths or injuries were reported. An estimated 1,500 persons have been killed since the anti-shah violence began a year ago.

Thousands of people gathered Tuesday for a mass funeral service in the northeastern city of Mashhad, where the opposition claimed between 700 and 2,000 persons were killed by troops during a weekend of bloody riots. The government said 106 persons died in the riots.

Iranian air force jets forced down an Irish-owned airliner Tuesday as it ferried a group of British and Irish air hostesses out of the country, but the plane was permitted later to take off again from Tehran airport.

Witness In Davis Trial Tells About Rendezvous

HOUSTON (AP) — A beefy used car salesman testified Tuesday he saw three key figures in the Cullen Davis murder conspiracy case together shortly before the defendant's arrest last August.

"There's Priscilla Davis the television star, and there's Pat Burleson," the witness said he told two companions at the time.

He identified the third person as FBI informant David McCrory, the state's key witness in the murder for hire trial of the Fort Worth millionaire.

All three testified previously that no such meeting occurred.

James Stephens, 43, said he saw the trio emerge from a Fort Worth hotel two or three days before Davis was arrested Aug. 20 on a restaurant parking lot.

The defense maintains that Davis was framed by his estranged wife Priscilla, McCrory and Burleson, a Fort Worth karate instructor.

Stephens, wearing dark sunglasses in the courtroom, said he and two of his buddies were fixing a flat on his pickup when he first spotted the trio.

He said he did not see McCrory leave but that Mrs. Davis and Burleson talked briefly on the hotel parking lot before they climbed into a white Lincoln and drove away. He said he did not overhear the conversations.

On cross-examination, Stephens said he tried to avoid coming here to testify because "I've had some threats from some dope-heads on the southside."

He said he was first contacted by an unidentified Fort Worth lawyer last week and subsequently told his story by phone to lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

"I told him I didn't want to come testify," Stephens said.

Asked who else he had talked with, Stephens replied:

"I don't remember telling this to nobody. If I did, I was drunk ... I could have said something in a beer joint one night."

"Dope-Heads" Unidentified

He refused to identify the "dope-heads" he said threatened him, explaining that "I got to protect me."

Stephens said he told a "friend" in the sheriff's office a month ago of the purported incident and was warned against volunteering the information.

He said another "friend" in the district attorney's office told him last weekend that "I better not get involved."

He declined to identify either of his "friends," and said he would go to jail before doing so. The trial judge suggested that he might do just that.

It was unclear if Stephens would return to the stand Wednesday, but one of his companions involved in the tire change episode was sworn in before adjournment.

Davis conceded Tuesday he was mistaken last week when he testified he told a lawyer about names on an alleged murder list.

Davis testified Friday at his murder-solicitation trial that he told Fort Worth lawyer Herschel Payne about an Aug. 11 meeting with McCrory in which the killings were discussed.

However, under redirect examination by Haynes, the industrialist said he never gave the names of the purported targets to Payne.

Russia's U.S.-China Gags Mask Concern

MOSCOW (AP) — Russians are laughing at some newly-minted China jokes. But peeping out from under the humor is Soviet concern at what the new Washington-Peking relationship may portend.

One story has President Carter chatting amicably on the hot line with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"Guess what," says Carter. "We've got a new computer that tells the future. We won't sell it to you, of course, but if you want, you can ask it some questions."

The computer answers Brezhnev's questions about the Soviet harvest and for steel production in 1990.

"And who's going to be in the politburo then?" asks Brezhnev.

"Names in Chinese"

After a pause, Carter answers, "I'm sorry Leonid, I can't read it. All the names are written in Chinese."

Another joke begins with the question: "How much is a bottle of vodka going to cost in 1990?"

The answer is not in rubles or kopeks but, "five yuan" — the currency of China.

The jokes express the underlying edginess raised by China's establishment of diplomatic relations with the United States and its foreign policy initiatives in Eastern Europe and the West.

These developments have been widely publicized here, and more and more Westerners tell of taxi drivers, restaurant patrons and housemaids engaging them in small talk and asking "what about China?"

"Unknown Land"

A spectator at a hockey match recently said about Russian feelings toward China:

"China is an unknown land, the way India was last century, a nation of cannibals, of people dying of hunger, as they say. Nobody knows what they will do. It's like Mars, and it's sitting right on our border."

The popular television commentator Yuri Zhukov, who answers viewers' mail on the air, said 600 of his last 900 letters on international affairs asked about China.

Among some Russians, there is even a fear of war with their Asian neighbor.

One young woman who moved to Moscow from a village in the Ukraine says she is receiving letters from her mother urging "buy up soap, stock up on canned goods. The Chinese are going to attack."

An old woman who lives alone in Moscow and keeps informed through gossip and the Soviet radio says she is prepared for war because an attack from the east is predicted in the Bible.

The worries and jokes are fueled by increasingly strident official commentaries about developments in China. One Western diplomat says they are the shrillest in years.

Repeatedly quoting Chinese predictions of World War III, the Soviet press calls Peking aggressive and expansionist and warns Western countries not to sell it arms.

"Peking, encouraged by the West, is working up its militarist appetite," the official Tass news agency recently said. "The arming of it with up-to-date military hardware and technology is quite a real threat."

An ominous new documentary film on China that premiered on prime time TV portrayed the Chinese as mindless and savage, and their government as brutal and aggressive.

A young Soviet lawyer suggests China is one subject on which the Soviet people are united, a subject about which they believe everything written in the official press.

The Soviet border with China is 4,350 miles long and has been the scene of hundreds of incidents, minor and major, for the last decade.

Russians who live close enough to the border to view the mountains of China displayed an attitude of defiance to the Chinese during a recent visit by Western reporters to the far eastern Soviet city of Khabarovsk.

"We never forget it's there," said a doctor, pointing toward the border. "Everyone is prepared."

Stephens said he told a "friend" in the sheriff's office a month ago of the purported incident and was warned against volunteering the information.

He said another "friend" in the district attorney's office told him last weekend that "I better not get involved."

He declined to identify either of his "friends," and said he would go to jail before doing so. The trial judge suggested that he might do just that.

It was unclear if Stephens would return to the stand Wednesday, but one of his companions involved in the tire change episode was sworn in before adjournment.

Davis conceded Tuesday he was mistaken last week when he testified he told a lawyer about names on an alleged murder list.

Davis testified Friday at his murder-solicitation trial that he told Fort Worth lawyer Herschel Payne about an Aug. 11 meeting with McCrory in which the killings were discussed.

However, under redirect examination by Haynes, the industrialist said he never gave the names of the purported targets to Payne.

Energy Output Effort Urged

AUSTIN (AP) — Chairman Mack Wallace of the Texas Railroad Commission has urged President Carter to take a lesson from Iran's internal crisis and lead the United States in an all-out energy production effort in 1979.

Wallace told Carter by letter there are three essential elements in any program to give the nation "a greater degree of international respect and energy sufficiency."

These elements include:

- Accelerated deregulation of oil and natural gas prices, with financial incentives for the industry so it will plough those incentives into energy development.
- Measures to settle energy-environmental conflicts promptly and to encourage development of energy resources controlled by the federal government.
- Measures to assist in the private development of high-cost energy resources, such as synthetics, coal and shale.

Stephens said he told a "friend" in the sheriff's office a month ago of the purported incident and was warned against volunteering the information.

He said another "friend" in the district attorney's office told him last weekend that "I better not get involved."

He declined to identify either of his "friends," and said he would go to jail before doing so. The trial judge suggested that he might do just that.

Olson Takes High Post

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Rep. Lyndon Olson Jr. of Waco was sworn in Tuesday as chairman of the State Insurance Board — a post he might hold for only a few weeks.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who appointed Olson, told a crowd of well-wishers in his reception room that Olson would bring "dedication to duty" and "a high level of integrity" to the post.

Olson, 31, was appointed to fill a position that had been vacant since the Senate rejected Briscoe's appointment of Hugh Yantis on Aug. 3. Olson had to wait until his legislative term expired Monday to take office.

U.S. Planes Fly 295 Americans Back From Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes flew another 295 dependents of U.S. military personnel from troubled Iran Tuesday and the Pentagon said families of contractors and other Americans could leave on military transports.

Defense Department spokesman Thomas Lambert said the departure of American families is on a voluntary basis and is not an evacuation ordered by the U.S. government.

He said no special military flights have been scheduled just to haul passengers from Tehran, but C-5 and C-141 transports have been carrying dependents out after unloading scheduled cargo.

Arranging Flights

Meanwhile, the State Department said it is working to arrange flights for an estimated 4,200 American civilians who have said they want to leave Iran. Spokesman Hodding Carter said the department has been in contact with Pan Am, the commercial American airline serving Iran, and feels there are enough commercial or charter flights available.

Pentagon spokesman Lambert said no orders have been given for a carrier-led task group to go beyond the South China Sea.

fore the dependents began trickling out of Iran in early December, the Pentagon estimated there were between 1,600 and 1,800 such dependents there.

However, he said three military flights have been scheduled into Iran over the next two days.

Any "non-official dependents" who decide to leave Iran aboard military aircraft will do so on a space-available basis and will repay the government for transportation costs, Lambert said.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said no decision has been made on sending the ships into the Persian Gulf.

The Constellation group is accompanied by the oiler Mispillion, Lambert said the Kansas City, a replenishment ship with ammunition, fuel and other supplies, has left Subic Bay to join the group.

There were reports that the Kansas City eventually will relieve an oiler, Pausumpic, attached to a four-ship Navy task force led by a cruiser. That task force has been in the Arabian Sea on what is called a routine deployment since Nov. 15.

A small permanent U.S. Middle East force, made up of a command ship and two destroyers, is in the Persian Gulf, its normal operating area.

Lambert said he is not aware of any withdrawal by the United States of sensitive equipment from Iran. The United States has such equipment in electronic surveillance posts which "look and listen" from Iran into the neighboring Soviet Union.

There also are some highly sophisticated items of electronic equipment and missiles associated with U.S.-supplied F-14 fighter planes bought by the shah of Iran.

Equipment Protected

Lambert said, "We have assurances from the government of Iran that equipment we have sold to Iran is being adequately protected and nothing that we have observed so far indicates otherwise."

The U.S. government apparently is taking pains to avoid any impression that it is pulling Americans out of Iran in haste because of an apparently deteriorating security situation there growing out of rioting against the shah.

Lambert noted that the U.S. Embassy in Tehran suggested Sunday that families of American government contractors and other personnel seek "temporary relocation" because of food and fuel shortages.

Lambert said one C-5 transport left Tehran Tuesday with 85 dependents and flew to Torrejon Air Base in Spain. He indicated arrangements would be made to carry them on to the United States, if they wished to leave Europe.

In addition, Lambert said three C-141 transport planes left Tehran Tuesday with 210 passengers bound for Athens and Torrejon. He estimated that about 200 dependents of U.S. military personnel and Defense Department civilian employees remained in Iran and he said he does not know if they will be leaving. Be-morning devotional into the school day.

At Coronado and Lubbock High, the devotionals include a Scripture reading and an oral prayer ended in amen. Lubbock High also has a "thought for the day."

Estacado High gives a thought for the day and a "short prayer ended in amen." Monterey High has a Scripture reading, silent meditation ended in amen, and a thought for the day.

Only three of the nine junior high schools have any sort of devotional, the survey found. Atkins has a thought for the day, and silent meditation; Evans, a moment of silence ended in amen; and Wilson, a thought for the day and silent meditation ended in amen.

The survey said the "devotional type of program (silent prayer or meditation) is becoming more and more rare" at the elementary level. Opening exercises in elementary schools, if conducted at all, are "usually patriotic or musical."

Most school trustees said that if it is legal, they would like to continue allowing prayer on a voluntary basis.

Reaction Favors Prayers

"I have yet to hear anybody criticize the present policy of voluntary prayer," trustee and restaurateur Jose Ramirez said of his customers.

"I've received 10 to 12 letters, all of them pro-prayer," added trustee Giles M. "Buddy" Forbes. Some letter-writers insist that the U.S. Supreme Court "did not say you could not pray in school, but that you could not force students to pray."

School board member Lynn Stafford has been getting the same kind of legal contradictions from laypersons.

"We always try to obey the law, but in this case, according to what I've read so far, the law is vague on what is permitted and what's not. That's why we need Mr. Cobb to clarify the situation for us," Mrs. Stafford said.

Carols' Status Pondered

If restrictions are put on school prayer, Mrs. Stafford said she hopes it's not necessary to ban such things as Christmas carols. Carols may have religious overtones, but are a "big part of tradition," she said.

The ACLU says school-sponsored prayer violates the principle of separation of church and state, and that government must remain neutral on religion.

Even though students may not be forced to pray, voluntary prayers put social pressures on youngsters who are non-believers or of a different faith than those leading the prayer, the group said.

The school board heard the ACLU request two weeks ago. Waters said the board probably will make a public decision Jan. 25.

Red Chinese Urge Visit By Goldwater

the mainland was an internal matter, but that China had adopted a "realistic attitude" on the issue. Just before establishing diplomatic relations with the United States, China offered to reunify the capitalist island in a way that would preserve the status quo on richer Taiwan.

"We all have two hands and the Chinese have two hands," LaFalce quoted Teng as saying. "We have the hand of peace and the hand of war and we want to use the hand of peace in order to bring about the reunification of our people."

Members of the Nationalist Party, or Koumintang, fled to Taiwan after the Communist takeover of the mainland in 1949. They have rejected Peking's offer of reunification talks and vowed to return to power on the mainland.

Teng reportedly told LaFalce: "If political figures in the United States also want to bring about a peaceful resolution to the Taiwanese situation, we would hope they would not put up any obstacles in our way."

Rep. Doug Barnard, D-Ga., said Teng emphasized his government's desire to get most-favored nation trade status from the United States. Barnard said he felt that issue would be discussed when Teng visits the United States beginning Jan. 29.

Kelly bluntly told Teng that China had too little land and too many people and that industrial advancement in the country could lead to instability in Asia.

Teng replied, "I ask you to cite any example of where China is demanding any territory from others ... where would we want to do that, and from whom would we want to do that?"

Goldwater Silent On Peking Invitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's hard to picture Sen. Barry Goldwater, one of the harshest critics of President Carter's new China policy, sitting down in Peking for a friendly chat with Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping.

Teng told a U.S. congressional delegation Tuesday he would like Goldwater to visit China to discuss reunifying Taiwan with the mainland. A spokesman for the Arizona Republican said Goldwater had received no formal invitation and wouldn't comment until he did.

"I would in all modesty listen to his valuable views and we can engage in a very leisurely discussion but we will not quarrel," Teng said. "A man's thinking is bound to change also."

Goldwater's thinking on the issue of breaking diplomatic relations with the government on Taiwan and recognizing the Communist regime in Peking is clear.

"One of the most cowardly acts ever performed by a president of the United States," Goldwater said of Carter's decision to terminate the mutual defense treaty with Taiwan.

For Goldwater, Taiwan's survival is an emotional issue, one that has held his interest at least since World War II, when he flew combat missions in the China-Burma theater and personally trained many Chinese pilots.

Nearly 1 1/2 years ago, Goldwater was staking out a position as the chief congressional foe of breaking ties with Taiwan. He told Carter it would be an unconstitutional abuse of power for him to sever treaty ties without congressional approval.

By late 1978, Goldwater had prepared a 40-page legal study on the issue and warned he would challenge in court any such unilateral move by the president. Goldwater filed suit when the United States and China established full diplomatic ties Monday.

Goldwater, who turned 70 on New Year's Day as senior statesman among Republican conservatives, is no stranger to battle and is well acquainted with losing.

The senator, a staunch supporter of the military, was one of the chief Senate backers of the B1 bomber and fought unsuccessfully against Carter's decision to halt the program. He opposed ratification of the Panama Canal treaties and lost. It was a frustrated Goldwater who in 1977 said Carter's foreign policy was marked by "weakness, indecision and instability."

Goldwater suffered a devastating political defeat when he was overwhelmed by Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1964 presidential race. Goldwater said he was a victim of his own blunt candor and calls to intensify the war in Vietnam with defoliation and heavy bombing.

After that defeat, he sat out of office for four years before returning to the Senate with none of the seniority he built up in his first 13 years in the chamber.

Goldwater was re-elected to a fourth Senate term in 1974.

To some, he is bigger than life, more of an influence away from Washington than he is here.

30 Crewmen Missing As Fire Sweeps Ship

MIAMI (AP) — Thirty crewmen who jumped from a blazing oil tanker into the sea were missing Tuesday, but four men who remained aboard the flaming vessel until help arrived were rescued, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

Coast Guard officials, quoting reports from the scene, said the four were rescued after swimming through 10-foot seas to the Ilici, another vessel that happened upon the scene at least 24 hours after the fire erupted aboard the Master Michael.

A fifth crewman who tried to make the hazardous swim Tuesday morning drowned in the attempt, Coast Guard spokesman Dan Dewell said.

Details were sketchy because of communications problems, but the Coast Guard said the Master Michael — a 350-foot Cyprus-registered tanker carrying fuel oil — apparently caught fire about 180 miles south of Haiti sometime between Sunday and Monday morning.

"The survivors said 30 crewmen jumped off the bow Monday morning at 6 a.m. and five remained aboard," Dewell said. "They stayed on board until the Ilici arrived Tuesday morning."

He said the burning ship's lifeboats apparently were destroyed in the fire before they could be used and "either they didn't have any life rafts or the ones they had didn't open or function."

Coast Guard officials said no call for help had been received from the Master Michael.

A Coast Guard aircraft from St. Petersburg, Fla., and a cutter from San Juan, P.R., were dispatched to help search for more survivors, officials said.

The Ilici was heading for Caracas with survivors, Dewell said.

Shutdown Not Seen Causing Oil Pinch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and other western oil-consuming nations can survive the Iranian oil shutdown with no shortages or price increases for six months or more, State Department officials said Tuesday.

Increased production by other oil exporting nations and a drawing down of existing oil stockpiles will more than cushion any shortage produced by the strikes against Iran's oil industry, said the officials, who asked not to be identified.

Iran, which normally exports 5 million barrels of oil a day, ceased exports a week ago.

About half of the shortfall has since been made up by Saudi Arabia, which has increased its production by about 1.5 million barrels a day, and other Persian Gulf states, as well as Mexico, the United Kingdom and Venezuela.

The administration official who briefed reporters said existing world stockpiles of oil were between 4 billion and 5 billion barrels.

"We estimate at the moment current stocks plus the increased production should be enough to avoid stringent oil shortages over the coming weeks and even months," the official said.

The United States currently imports 18.5 million barrels a day. Iran normally provides about 900,000 barrels. According to the official, western oil companies have seen to it that the shortfall from Iran was being distributed evenly among importing nations.

One country which appears to have been harder hit than most is Israel, which relied on Iran for most of its needs, the official said. He added that Israel has found it more difficult to acquire oil on the world market but has not yet found it necessary to invoke a 1975 agreement under which the United States promised to help Israel meet its oil needs in an emergency.

The official said "prudent, rational behavior" by oil-consuming nations would do much to avoid shortages and price increases. He added that many of the problems which grew out of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo were caused by hoarding. "I see no reason for severe pressure on (oil) prices," the official said. "With prudent behavior and some calmness, we could get through six months with relatively little difficulty."

Last week, other U.S. officials, who also asked to remain anonymous, said the administration is preparing contingency plans that include conservation measures similar to those imposed during the Arab embargo.

The officials said the planning so far also includes a sharing arrangement among the United States, Western Europe and Japan under a framework devised by the International Energy Agency.

Engineers, Interior Differ On Refinery

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Interior Department said Tuesday it still is firmly against building a proposed $660 million oil refinery in nearby Portsmouth, apparently ruling out any compromise with the Army Corps of Engineers, which has approved the facility.

The effect of the department's stance, Undersecretary of the Interior James A. Joseph told a news conference here, will be to carry the final decision on the refinery to the cabinet level.

Joseph indicated there is virtually no chance that Interior and the Corps of Engineers — whose chief, Lt. Gen. John W. Morris, had recommended approval of the refinery — will be able to reconcile their differences.

"I don't like to make flat statements, but I cannot conceive of any changes that could be made in the plans for the refinery that would change our position," he said.

The refinery proposed by Hampton Roads Energy Co. would be built on the Elizabeth River and would have the capacity to process 175,000 to 250,000 barrels of Middle East oil daily.

Favored by the Department of Energy, it has drawn bitter opposition from environmental groups who claim oil spills would devastate oyster beds in the area.

Joseph said the Interior Department feels Hampton Roads is "one of the worst locations in the United States" for the refinery.

Its principal objection to the refinery, he said, is the increase in barge and tanker traffic it inevitably would cause in Chesapeake Bay.

"Tanker and barge movements in and out of this region would create spills of crude oil and of refinery products," he said.

"Of that we may be certain, for there are no foolproof systems to avoid them."

"Situating as it is near the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay, this area is in position to help or to irreversibly damage an estuary upon which marine life all up and down the Atlantic Coast depends heavily."

"No one knows at what point this pressure (the refinery), added to the many other adverse pressures on this area, would cause a rapid decline of the resources that remain."

"But this proposal would add greatly to the problems already present."

Since the Corps of Engineers and the Department of the Interior could not reach an agreement on the refinery, the issue now will go to the cabinet level.

Poll Shows Eating Tops Leisure Activities

By LOUIS HARRIS

The top leisure-time activity of Americans is eating, with 54 percent reporting that they eat frequently in their moments of relaxation, and another 30 percent saying that they occasionally indulge in eating to occupy their time.

Close behind eating are a cluster of other relatively passive activities in which Americans engage: watching television, mentioned as a frequent pursuit by 41 percent; listening to the radio, cited by 40 percent; reading, mentioned by 39 percent; and listening to music at home, cited by 39 percent.

It is significant that the five activities that take the biggest slice of people's leisure time all require a minimum of exertion. In a way, they are reflections of the relatively affluent and technology-oriented society that America has become in the late 1970s.

The next seven most frequent leisure-time activities, as reported in a recent ABC News-Harris Survey of 1,442 adults nationwide, require somewhat more exertion:

- Thirty-six percent of Americans frequently spend time fixing things around the house. This penchant for putting and doing odd jobs has increased in recent years.

- Twenty-five percent report that they frequently spend time on social activities such as dining out, going dancing, and giving or attending parties. This type of activity rates highest among those pursuits that take people out of the house.

- Twenty-five percent also report that they frequently spend their time having sex.

- Twenty-three percent spend their leisure hours deeply involved in church or club activities. Despite their homebound orientation, a sizable number of Americans still get out and participate in activities in many voluntary organizations.

- Twenty-one percent spend much of their leisure time engaged in outdoor activities such as hiking, fishing, hunting or boating.

- Twenty percent frequently spend a lot of time on hobbies such as photography, woodworking, and other such specialized pursuits. Again, a good deal of this time is spent in the home.

- Nineteen percent frequently participate in sports such as golf, tennis and swimming, obviously some of the more strenuous physical activities.

The next three most frequent activities distinctly take people out of the home:

- Seventeen percent say they frequently spend their leisure hours trying to earn extra money. The one in six families that report such moonlighting activity has grown as inflation has soared in recent years.

- Fifteen percent frequently spend time continuing their education. Colleges and universities have expanded their programs to attract the mainstream of the adult population to special curricula that have been developed as part of continuing education programs.

- Fifteen percent also spend much time "just getting away for a change of scenery." This means, of course, getting out of the house, taking weekend trips or short vacations.

But the next two types of leisure-time activity represent the most sedentary expenditure of time on the entire list:

- Fourteen percent say they frequently take naps during their free time.

- Thirteen percent report "just doing nothing" when they have leisure moments.

Rounding out the top 20 activities on the leisure-time list:

- Thirteen percent say they frequently attend spectator sports such as football or basketball.

- Twelve percent report frequently playing cards or games in their spare time.

- Eleven percent say they spend much of their leisure time doing volunteer work in the community.

Further down on the list of activities that occupy the American public's time are artistic pursuits, going to the movies, playing musical instruments, attending theater or dance performances, disco dancing, participating in political activities, and gambling.

While the range of activities is broad, it is striking that Americans spend most of their leisure time right in the home, and usually on things that require a minimum of effort. But, of course, by definition leisure time is time spent doing what one wants to do, without any compulsion from outside sources.

Moslem Leaders Ignite Mass Ire Against Shah

QOM, Iran (AP) — This holy city tucked in central Iran bears little resemblance these days to a community imbued with love and peace.

It is a city marred by almost daily brutality — part of the widening bloody unrest against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's rule.

Qom's 300,000 residents live under the shadow of the grandiose religious shrine of Hazrat Masoumeh, named after the sister of a deceased spiritual leader of Iran's 32 million Shiite Moslems. The city, about 80 miles south of Tehran, is famous for its theological schools where 10,000 students aspire to be mullahs or Moslem clergymen.

Qom was once a famous oasis on the edge of the creeping dry, brown earth Dasht-e-Kavir Desert, and it was known at one time for its high grade production of silk carpets. Today, because many of the Moslem faithful want to be buried near its holy shrine, Iranians quip that Qom now imports corpses and exports mullahs.

It has also become one of the foremost arenas of anti-shah unrest stemming from the demands of the Shiite Moslem leaders.

The mullahs neither command an army nor hold public office, but their influence and power is undisputed. At their subtle calling, crowds surge through the center of town and the dirt alleys of the bazaar, taunting armed troops in never-ending chants against the shah. The chant of "death to the shah" reverberates from one end of the commercial district to the next.

Troops have been stationed in Qom since serious outbreaks of anti-shah violence erupted in September. The mullahs in their heavy, flowing, brown wool robes and turbans of white or black have been spotted on the fringes of mobs swirling through the bazaar.

About 40 persons in Qom have lost their lives in clashes against nervous armed troops since September. More than 100 have been wounded by clubs and bullets. The mullahs, in conversations in the narrow alleyways of this city, say their struggle against the shah will continue "at all costs."

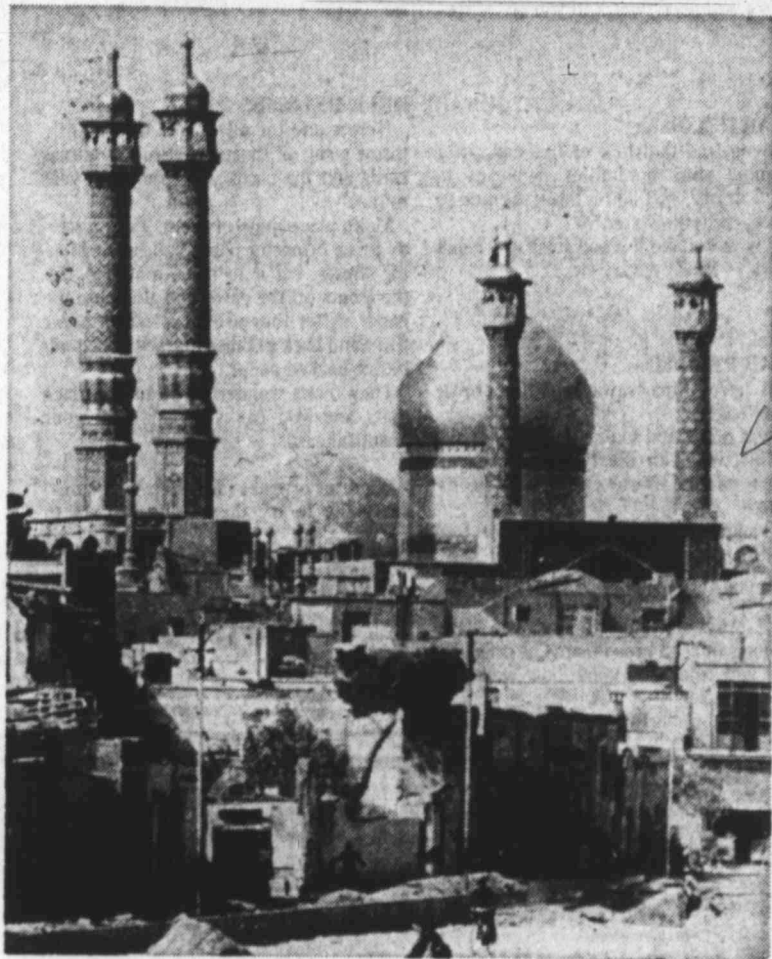

The younger mullahs who inundate Qom, seeking to build reputations as teachers and scholars among the willing masses, tend to be more militant. But moderate voices are also heard — one of them belonging to Ayatollah Shari'etmadari, one of six living marja-taqlids or patriarchs of the Shiite sect.

The white-bearded, 76-year-old expert on Shiite law has never issued calls against the shah, but neither has he voiced his approval.

"The shah has never received our blessing to reign," says Shari'etmadari. "According to the holy Shiite law, new rulers of this nation must first receive our approval. He has never done this."

Sprawled out majestically on a bed of soft pillows with a woolen blanket over his legs in his simple unheated room, Shari'etmadari appeared every bit the patriarch that he is to his people.

And while he spoke in soft cultured tones in his room, lower ranking mullahs lectured to a group of devout Moslems in other parts of the sprawling compound, off one of Qom's many narrow alleyways.

HOLY CITY — Spires and the gold-plated dome of the Shrine of Fatima the Immaculate rise above homes in the Iranian holy city of Qom in central Iran. Nowadays the city, a site of reverence for Shi'ite Moslems, is wracked by the bloody unrest against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's rule. (AP Laserphoto)

In the background, shots echoed through the alleyways and the sound of people hurrying to safety could be heard.

"Its another attempt by the army to silence the people," a mullah was heard to say.

Shari'etmadari maintained his serene and dignified air. An aide entered the room, bent over and whispered in his ear: "Five injured by army bullets and they have already been sent to hospital. More wounded are expected."

Asked why the mullahs in this modern day retain such influence over the masses, Shari'etmadari hesitated, then spoke in scholarly tones: "The people are obliged to listen to the patriarchs of the faith. What the mullahs preach in the mosques is another matter."

Tugging at his black robe over a light grey flannel undergarment, Shari'etmadari interrupted his conversation long enough to offer some words of advice to a follower who entered unannounced. He maintained a serious appearance as he perused a legal document handed to him by a poor man who slipped him some money for his trouble.

In the Moslem clergymen's world, the faithful are obliged to give 20 per cent of their income to support the clergy. The clergy, totally dependent on their followers for support, retain only one-third of their income, giving the rest to the poor or to worthy causes.

Religious teachers say successful mullahs with large followings are usually clever amateur psychologists with the ability to sway the devout.

"Mullahs are experts at feeling the prevailing mood of the people, rich, poor, educated or illiterate. They tell the people what they want to hear. And what the masses are hearing today at most of the sermons in the mosques is anti-shah," a religious teacher said.

In an apparent effort to stop the bloodshed, Shari'etmadari issued an edict commanding the soldiers to stop shooting their countrymen. He claims his message got through "because there was a noticeable drop in demonstrators shot by soldiers over the high religious mourning period last week."

However, the shooting and killing go on in Qom as in other areas of Iran, with no end in sight. One young mullah put it this way: "Only a miracle compromise" with the shah will end the brutality in this city and elsewhere — "or the end of the Pahlavi dynasty."

Slight Drop In Grocery Prices Noted Locally

By KIM COBB

Avalanche-Journal Staff
New Year's grocery prices are reflecting a pleasant — if slight — decrease, according to an Avalanche-Journal market-basket survey in a local supermarket.

Despite a sharp increase in the price of iceberg lettuce, January's total for 16 standard grocery items is down eight cents from December's total.

Groceries that cost $20.74 in December, 1978 cost $20.66 in January, 1979.

The total for the 16 items has increased about two dollars a year for the past two years, adding up to $18.66 in January 1977 and $16.50 in January 1976. But groceries were down between 1977 and 1976, totaling $16.64 in January 1976.

Lettuce prices have increased sharply during the past month because of a recent severe freeze in California, where most lettuce is produced, according to Jim Hall, Furr's Supermarkets assistant produce manager. The only areas currently producing the weather-vulnerable item are California's Imperial Valley and the area around Yuma, Ariz., he said.

Lettuce is selling for 69 cents a pound this month, as opposed to December's price of 49 cents a pound.

THINK SKINNY IN 1979 REDUCE THE EASY PAT WALKER WAY

JEANIS NORMAN LOST ONLY WHERE SHE NEEDED TO

Janis Norman states:

NO — I AM NOT PREGNANT!

Since my picture appeared in the paper the first time, many people have remarked that I must have been pregnant when the before picture was taken, but the truth of the matter is, I was not! Just fat! I was so disgusted with my figure and with myself for getting out of shape, that I was excited to find a way to get rid of my unwanted inches without strenuous exercises. Pat Walker's plan was so easy to do, it made losing my fat stomach fun. When my family began noticing the difference, it made me want to lose that much more. During my visits to the salon, I only lost 6 1/2 pounds but I lost 19 1/2 inches! As a matter of fact, I am so sold on the Pat Walker plan, that I am now an employee at the Temple salon.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our sweet dog Laddie, a beautiful standard poodle, is almost 16 years old. She is nearly blind, very hard of hearing, piddles (and worse) all over the house. Her legs are sure to give out any day.

The vet told us months ago to put Laddie to sleep but we just can't bring ourselves to do it. The question I'm asking is this: Having been a long-time reader of your column I recall something years ago about a minister in Chicago who conducted a church service for a German shepherd. Everyone thought it was beautiful and my husband and I were moved to tears by that letter.

If you will supply us with the name of that clergyman, we would like to invite him and his wife to Texas (all expenses paid) so we can have a church service for Laddie when the time comes.

Thank you for your help, Ann. You are truly one in a million. — Name Withheld On Request Until Negotiations Are Completed

Dear Friends: I remember the incident well because there was quite a brouhaha in the column over the alleged church service for the German shepherd.

The clergyman lived in the suburb of Oak Park. It turned out he did not conduct a church service for the dog. He said a few words at the graveside in the pet cemetery. Moreover, not everyone thought it was "beautiful." The good-hearted reverend came in for considerable criticism from other members of the clergy.

The German shepherd was actually a seeing-eye dog. The pastor said the dog was a substitute for his master's eyes and the services were for his eyes and not for the dog.

I doubt that you will be able to get a Texas clergyman to bury Laddie from a church, so why not settle for a few words from a family member at the graveside? Even if the Oak Park pastor should see this letter and contact me, I would not be able to put him in touch with you because I maintain a strict rule against arranging meetings between readers of this column. Sorry.

Dear Ann: It seems you get a lot of letters from women who think their daughters-in-law are lousy housekeepers. They want to know if THEY should speak to the wife — or is it their son's place. How come you never suggest that they speak to their sons and tell THEM to get off their rumps and help around the house?

I bring home a paycheck almost equal to my husband's. I also mow the lawn, spread a little fertilizer, and am pretty handy at repair jobs.

My husband's mother waited on Sonny Boy hand and foot till he married, so of course he wouldn't dream of washing a dish or running the sweeper. He gets so ugly if I ask him to go to the grocery store I'd rather go myself.

I'm also attending night school to become proficient at secretarial work so I can earn more money. My husband has been fiddling around for six years taking arts and crafts.

This letter is really for my mother-in-law. The message is: "Get off my back and get on HIS." I could use a lift around here. — Nettled In Dallas

Dear Net: OK. I've printed your message. Now it's up to you to either mail it to your mother-in-law or hand it to her. But don't expect anything to change, honey. It won't.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15-year-old girl who has something important to say. When I was 11, I weighed 190 pounds. I could die when I look at the old snapshots of myself. I knew I was fat but I didn't realize I looked like THAT.

The kids called me "Hippo" and "Fatso." I cried a lot. I also hated athletics because I couldn't do anything but waddle when the other kids ran and jumped.

Six months ago I decided to lose weight. So far I have dropped 42 pounds without a doctor or pills. I still have a way to go but I feel a lot better about myself.

I hope the parents of obese children will not try to push them into dieting by telling them how terrible they look. Believe me, they already know. — Getting Skinny And Feeling Great

Dear Skinny and Great: I'm glad you were able to lose 40 pounds on your own, but I would not recommend it for others. All serious dieters should first be examined by a doctor and proceed under his supervision.

I hope you will go to a doctor when you read this letter — and send me a postcard when you reach your goal.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PEELER

A floating-blade peeler is inexpensive and a food saver. With it, you can pare vegetables and some fruits close to the skin.

MY DEAR READERS:

Over the years we have received many suggestions and hints on how to keep those "ever necessary" prescription pills and aspirins close at hand — ranging from carrying them in cigarette cases to hiding one in "hubby's" sandwich. We even had one carrying nitro tablets in an empty ballpoint pen.

Some medications may be perfectly safe being toted in these various ways, but with other medications you're playing Russian roulette.

According to the Food and Drug Administration, to store nitroglycerine (heart medication) in anything other than an amber-colored glass bottle, tightly sealed, would cause it to lose its potency, thus being ineffective when so desperately needed. Nitro reacts to light, as well as to moisture, and even to some plastics and metals. Other medications could have the same effect.

Check with your pharmacist first, before putting any type of pills into a container other than the original one issued by the pharmacy.

Love and good health to you all. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you find that four or five days after cleaning your humidifier it begins to smell musty, just add a tablespoon or so of bleach to the water.

This will make it smell fresh and clean again. — Mrs. Stewart

DEAR HELOISE:

I'll never throw away another brown paper bag!

I was out of foil to line my pan for baking biscuits (I'm the type housekeeper whose pan is always cruddy and needs lining).

I looked at a just-emptied paper bag and thought, why not?

Cutting it up, I thought, "Hey, why not pat the biscuits out on the rest of the bag." Any of your readers who hate cleaning floured breadboards as much as I do will rejoice to know how well this works.

When I took the biscuits from the oven, the paper in the pan hadn't even scorched. The biscuits came out evenly browned, top and bottom.

As I happily tossed the used brown paper into the garbage I resolved that I just had to share this one with you. — Peggy Howard

Yes, Peggy, that is a goodie. My mother always used brown paper bags to line her cake pans, and as you said of your biscuits, the cakes came out of the oven so pretty and brown.

You could pull the paper right off the layers and you would have no crumbs to mess up your icing.

See, you young uns, we did have good ideas even in "the good old days." — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I find that it's much better to sit on the toilet backwards. Then you can read, write, or even sleep on the tank. — Jennifer

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's one for all of you who hate to throw away all those beautiful Christmas cards and the cards you receive all year round.

Make place mats of them. Take a sturdy piece of poster paper and, using pinkish shears, cut it to place mat size. Cut the fronts off the cards and glue onto the paper. After they are all in place, cover front and back of place mat with clear adhesive-backed paper.

They make wonderful, cleanable place mats and you can still enjoy all your beautiful cards. — Lee Edler

What an original idea, Lee. I, for one, am going to try this. I always hate to throw away all those beautiful cards but sometimes my mind is a blank and I just can't think what to do with them.

You know that the simplest thing can be a thing of beauty if you only use your imagination.

Happy pasting! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Would you like to make your own wrapping paper? It's easy. You will need large sheets of white or colored plain paper and real bright-colored finger paint. Lay the paper on the floor and put your finger paint in an aluminum pie plate beside your paper on the floor.

Put your hand flat (palm down and fingers spread) in the paint. After you get the paint on your hand, take your hand out of the pan and lay it, palm down, on the paper (still with your fingers spread apart). Now gently bring your hand up from the paper without moving your fingers around.

You can put these prints all over the paper or just a few here and there. Be sure to let dry thoroughly before you use the paper.

You have your own "original" designer wrapping paper and it is quite a conversation piece. — Tina W. — Age 10

DEAR HELOISE:

Next time you sit down to enjoy a good cup of hot chocolate, try stirring it with a peppermint stick and be prepared for a tasty surprise. — A Country Housewife

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Wars may endure.
Crime may increase.
Disease may go unchecked.
The quality of life may deteriorate.
But by golly, I think we've got the problem of bad breath on the run.
You have to give the bad breath people their just due. They've taken something downright unpleasant and made it downright repugnant. And they've done it the hard way...no telethons...no lobbyists...no celebrity spokesmen...no government endorsements...just plain hard-hitting commercials.

The other night I saw a commercial where a husband arrived home from a 12-hour day. He was beat. He opened the door and about 75 people who had had a chance to shower and change yelled out, "Happy Birthday! Surprise!"
The man grabbed his wife, kissed her and said, "Honey, what a surprise!" She backed off from him like he was a three-day-old dead chicken and said, "What a breath! You'd better do something...and fast."

Now if that doesn't take the hats and horns out of a birthday...nothing will.
The next scene, she had him in the bathroom where he was gargling and trying to make himself socially acceptable.

The final scene was one of joy. His bad breath in remission, he was kissing everyone in the room and had finally been allowed to attend his own party.

Bad breath was discovered just after World War II and has since worked its way up to a major cause of air pollution. You can't hold a job if you have bad breath. Can't lead a normal social life, have a successful marriage. You cannot ski with bad breath, nor can you teach Sunday School. Just about all that is left open to you is making an occasional obscene phone call. (Even then, if you don't floss, you can be traced.)

Fresh Breath advocates have only begun. In the future, there are plans to have separate sections on planes for BB's and CB's. After awhile, no BB will be allowed on elevators, in doctor's or dentist's offices. (ESPECIALLY dentist's offices.) There will be separate sections of dining rooms for those who plan on Scampi with garlic and those with onions on hamburgers.

Look for the new signs to Stamp Out Bad Breath...THANK YOU FOR NOT BREATHING.

Hungarian Komondor Dogs As Natural Predator Help Maintain Balance Of Nature By Protecting Sheep

By DIANNA SINOVIC
Women's News Service

A large, shaggy Hungarian may be the key player in a duel between the sheep rancher and the environmentalist.

The komondor dog, imported from European sheep fields, may provide the protection from coyote attacks on American sheep without disturbing the natural balance between the coyote and its natural prey, the rodent.

At least that's what Philip N. Lehner of Colorado State University hopes to accomplish. Working with a three-year, $33,100 grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Lehner and his assistants are training the komondorok (that's the plural for komondor) on a special ranch north of Fort Collins, Colo. Lehner is an animal behavior specialist and co-director of CSU's Animal Behavior Laboratory.

Nine komondor pups, five coyotes and about 20 sheep are the subjects of the study. The three species will be brought together after the dogs' training to test their ability to protect the sheep.

The dogs could settle the debate over coyote control currently raging in the West. The sheep rancher long has fought the coyote both by lethal and non-lethal means to protect his investment, sheep and cattle.

The environmentalist opposes the mass destruction of coyotes, arguing that such destruction will increase the rodent population. The coyote normally keeps the rodent population within limits; it is only when the rodent population drops that the coyote seeks other prey, such as sheep.

Lehner considers the komondor to be the most promising breed for control of the coyote. Originally bred in Hungary centuries ago, the dog's reputation came to the attention of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service while it studied the coyote problem. A successful pilot study led to the Lehner grant for a follow-up program.

Komondorok are large, powerful dogs, weighing 85 to 120 pounds. The dogs have been bred for aggressiveness, self-reliance and intelligence. They are courageous, faithful and easy to train. The puppies at the Colorado ranch will be conditioned to protect sheep and attack coyotes that threaten the sheep.

"We're not training the dogs to attack on command, but are trying to develop in them a tendency to attack coyotes if they come into the vicinity," Lehner explains.

"Komondorok have been bred for a natural tendency to make social attachments to other domestic animals and humans and then to be very territorial about those individuals to which they've attached themselves."

For conditioning, the pups are given three kinds of experience. A few of the pups are exposed to sheep all the time, separated from them by a wire fence. Some are given contact with the sheep only briefly about twice a week. Others will have no exposure to sheep at all until they are past the "socialization period." That is, while still a puppy, the dog will develop a friendly and protective attitude toward those individuals, animals or humans, in its territory.

"The question, then," says Lehner, "is whether it's necessary that the dogs be exposed to sheep for a long period of time during the socialization stage, whether short exposures are reasonable enough, or whether they will attend the sheep if they haven't been exposed during socialization."

Will the dogs protect any individual sheep, or generalize to the entire flock?

Dear Dr. Ruble: When I'm by drugstore shelves I wonder about the many brands of hemorrhoid preparations. I assume a great many people must be afflicted with this. What about athletes, weightlifters, bowlers, young, old, obese? Who's likely to get them? — A.S.

Mail on the subject confirms my belief that hemorrhoids (piles) is one of the leading afflictions of mankind — or rather of civilization. Regular readers of this column can skip this item.

Hemorrhoids are a distention, an enlargement of veins at the lower end of the digestive tract. They are, in reality, a form of varicose veins. Sooner or later, I'm afraid, almost everyone will have hemorrhoids to some extent. They are caused by increased pressure in the blood vessels (veins), or they may result from constipation straining. That, in turn, may result from eating too much highly refined (low bulk) foods, a hallmark of Western diet. Any of the activities you mention can hasten the progress of hemorrhoids, as well as some you don't. Pregnant women may experience pressures within the abdomen sufficient to cause them. No age group is spared. They may occur in teenagers, but usually are found in the middle-aged.

Most of the ointments you see contain a local anesthetic and vitamin A or other soothing ingredients. These will temporarily allay discomfort but will not cure them. Hemorrhoids are not life-threatening, which is why many people put up with them for so long. They may ulcerate, bleed, become thrombosed (clot) within a vein, or break and cause (rarely) hemorrhaging.

So it's not really wise to try to treat them oneself without knowing exactly what the situation is. Inflammation (proctitis) or fissure (a split in membrane) can cause hemorrhoid-like symptoms. As to hemorrhoids, the ointments seem to delay the inevitable, and many patients find they must eventually have surgery to remove them. It is not a serious procedure, and one I recommend, if only to relieve the great discomfort.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have rheumatoid arthritis. I take aspirin, and am also on gold treatment. My question relates to beer, which I like with meals. Will the beer interfere with the action of the gold? I seem to be doing well, but am concerned about this. — Mrs. A.

The beer should not interfere with the gold therapy, but the beer can, if taken with aspirin, cause heightened stomach irritation. I suggest you separate those two products. For example, have your beer before your meal and the aspirin afterward.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband says this question is too silly to ask a busy man like yourself, but here goes: Is swimming in salt water bad for a person who has high blood pressure and who is supposed to limit salt intake? Can the salt from the water get into the system? — Mrs. T.S.

The only danger is if it is swallowed. As long as the salt stays outside the body, no problem. Whatever minute amount that might theoretically get into the system otherwise would not be a factor unless you are planning a marathon swim. I believe with the late Dr. Thostenson that no honestly asked question is dumb.

The only dumb one is the one left unasked.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is there any reason for me to sweat profusely on one side of my face and for the face to flush? — Mrs. K.F.

A disturbance of a nerve may cause this. As an example, I'm thinking of a condition called Frey's syndrome. That involves the auriculotemporal nerve, which is one serving a portion of the side of the face. You might consult a neurologist.

Dear Dr. Ruble: This is really scary. I choke to the point of not being able to draw my breath. It happens only when drinking liquids. I'm an extremely slow eater and drinker. I live alone and am truly frightened. Can you comment? — Mrs. L.M.S.

This might be achalasia, for which you should be checked promptly. It can be related to a nerve problem. The esophagus behaves somewhat like the other parts of the alimentary canal.

It depends on the movement of special fibers lining the inner wall (peristalsis). When this is inhibited there may be choking.

X-rays will show the state of your esophagus. Treatment can be either surgical or by forcible dilation (stretching) of the gullet. Meanwhile, continue to swallow very slowly and chew food carefully. Nerves (emotions) may contribute to this.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of the booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

While on the subject of luck, here is the hand that Oswald Jacoby considers to be his luckiest. It has been discussed in this column before, but is interesting enough for repetition.

The game was rubber bridge. North was the late Charles Lockett of St. Louis, a fine conservative player. The time the early Thirties.

West, a very good player, wanted to get to play the hand at a heart slam and felt sure that unless he resorted to some deceptive tactics his opponents would sacrifice in spades. So he doubled Jacoby's one-spade opening. Lockett jumped to four spades. West went to just five hearts. Lockett went on to five spades and West tried six hearts. West had set his trap and young Jacoby (remember this was over 40 years ago) fell right into it and doubled.

At this stage all West had to do was to pass and make six hearts doubled with an overtrick. However, West got greedy. He knew Lockett would never take out his partner's double. So West redoubled. Lockett passed, but Jacoby ran to six spades. West continued to seven hearts and now Jacoby was certain that West had been dealt 13 red cards. Jacoby ran to seven spades. He didn't expect to make it, but he did. West opened the king of diamonds. Jacoby ruffed with dummy's eight of trumps, led a low one, finessed his six, ruffed a second diamond high, led a second trump, finessed his nine, ruffed his last diamond, came to his hand with a club, pulled East's trumps and eventually discarded his hearts on long clubs. Pearls Symbolize Virtues of Bride

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special) — As the bride prepares for marriage, the bridegroom, to show his love and respect, gives her a wedding present, usually jewelry that she can wear during the ceremony.

Most often the romantic bridegroom chooses pearls for his beloved, says the Jewelry Industry Council. Historically, they're the bride's special gem. In ancient Rome brides wore pearls from head to foot. As an ancient symbol of purity and virginity, pearls symbolize the many virtues that the bridegroom sees in his bride. With their warm lustre and fashion smartness, pearls add a lovely frosting to every bride's wedding attire.

The bridegroom can encircle his bride with love with a pearl necklace or bracelet. Earrings, a pin, or pendant are also lovely and appropriate gifts. The bridegroom should know that pearls are the most affordable of precious gems.

If, in cautious questioning, the bridegroom determines that his bride would prefer a gift other than pearls, so be it. Variety is fun too. Classic favorites are gifts that can be engraved, like a gold bangle or a dressy watch. The eternally engaging diamond is sure to please in earrings or on a watch. Then, birthstone rings, pendants and earrings present almost limitless possibilities.

A jeweler can provide invaluable advice to the bridegroom working within a budget. Some of the loveliest gems, like amethyst, topaz or opal can be purchased at fairly reasonable prices.

It's best for the bridegroom to take hints from the bride and then discuss possibilities with a jeweler for advice on prices and styles. Remember, a gift doesn't have to be extravagant to be beautiful and treasured by its recipient.

Dean Roy Fisher of the University of Missouri School of Journalism said $13,350 was awarded in the competition to recognize excellence in reporting and editing.

Newsday was one of two repeat winners, claiming the $1,000 award for best lifestyle section in a paper with more than 150,000 circulation. The Long Island paper also won in 1966, 1974 and 1975.

Mark Miller and Richard Whitmire of the Sun-Bulletin won the $1,000 prize for best single story, while Walt Bogdanich and Walter Johns Jr. of the Cleveland Press were awarded $1,000 for the top series.

Some 370 newspapers submitted 1,045 entries to the competition. The awards will be presented in March in Columbia.

Other individual first-prize winners were Jim Sellers of the Eugene (Ore.) Register-Guard, $1,000, for best consumer affairs reporting, and Ann Griffith of the Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail, $1,000, for best fashion and clothing reporting.

In addition to Newsday, the $1,000 lifestyle section winners were the Fayetteville (N.C.) Times among daily newspapers under 25,000 circulation; the Fort Myers (Fla.) News-Press, dailies 25,000 to 100,000 circulation; Rochester Times-Union, dailies 100,000 to 250,000 population, and the Gresham (Ore.) Outlook, weeklies.

The Gresham newspaper also won the top prize in 1976.

Bouncer's Body Found In Ice

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A bouncer at a tavern which was noted in a federal racketeering charge has been found dead in Lake Spanaway, Pierce County authorities said Tuesday.

Two youngsters Sunday found the victim, David R. Schmeizer, 22, encased in four inches of ice about 100 yards from shore, said Capt. Terry Murphy, chief detective of the Pierce County sheriff's office. Chain saws were used to cut the body from the ice.

Murphy said no evidence of violence had been found, discounting earlier reports that Schmeizer had been shot in the head.

Congressional Panel Criticizes U.S. Life Insurance Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying many consumers don't have sufficient information on how to buy life insurance, a House subcommittee Tuesday urged states to require agents to furnish clear and concise buyers' guides to prospective customers.

"Americans spend well over $20 billion a year on individual life insurance policies," said a report prepared by the House Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif.

The subcommittee said "states have been unduly slow and reticent" in developing regulations intended to increase information about buying life insurance.

"Significant consumer loss occurs because many apparently do not purchase life insurance products on the basis of suitability, quality and cost," the panel said.

The American Council of Life Insurance called the subcommittee's conclusions "sweeping generalizations which are unsupported by the realities" of the marketplace. The council represents 90 percent of U.S. life insurance companies.

In addition to a buyers' guide for consumers, the subcommittee said, states should require that agents provide summaries containing essential data about the particular policy the purchaser is considering.

The panel said the following information should be included:

— How many years the policy would have to be held before the policyholder could surrender it without suffering a financial loss.

— How the policy benefits would compare with an alternate plan consisting of term insurance and a separate savings account.

"Most purchasers don't realize what is at stake, and, as a consequence, buy from whichever agent contacts them first," the report said. "Agents perform a valuable service but consumers shouldn't have to accept agent recommendations on blind faith."

The subcommittee said the buyers' guide should explain the difference between whole life and term policies, and the prices and values of each.

Term is pure protection, much like auto insurance, said the subcommittee. The customer pays an annual premium in return for being protected during the course of the year from a particular risk, in this case premature death.

On the other hand, whole life remains in effect for the entire life of the insured. Its principal feature is that premiums do not increase in amount to reflect the rising mortality risk, but remain level for the duration of the policy.

Walter Bussewitz, a spokesman for the life insurance council, said the industry has long supported state regulation that would provide consumers with all the information needed to make intelligent choices. "That support so far has resulted in 21 states adopting this kind of regulation," he said.

"We agree that some consumer losses take place as a result of poor choice making between competing policies with different costs," Bussewitz added. "... We do not agree, however, with the implication that a consumer loss occurs because a person has bought whole life policy instead of a term, or vice versa."

The National Association of Life Underwriters (NALU) also issued a statement Tuesday disagreeing with the subcommittee.

The NALU, which claims a membership of more than 1,000 state and local life underwriting associations, said the study "dismisses the acumen of insurance buyers."

And it said the subcommittee "minimizes the professional expertise and commitment of the vast majority of career life insurance salespersons" and underestimates the effectiveness of existing state regulation.

First Recovery Step For Girl, Re-Attached Leg Successful

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Doctors who re-attached the severed right leg of an 11-year-old girl credit fast-thinking emergency workers with saving the girl's life and making the delicate operation possible.

But the doctors emphasized Tuesday that the six-hour surgery New Year's Eve was only the first step on the road to recovery for Elizabeth McFadden, injured when she fell into the path of a commuter train near a Long Island shopping center.

"We are cautiously optimistic," said Dr. Gerald Wertlieb, an orthopedic surgeon and one of four doctors who performed the operation at Smithtown General Hospital.

"The leg looks good. It's pink, and so far the wounds look good. But there's a long road ahead of us, especially the nerve regeneration" which will determine whether Elizabeth can ever use the leg, he said.

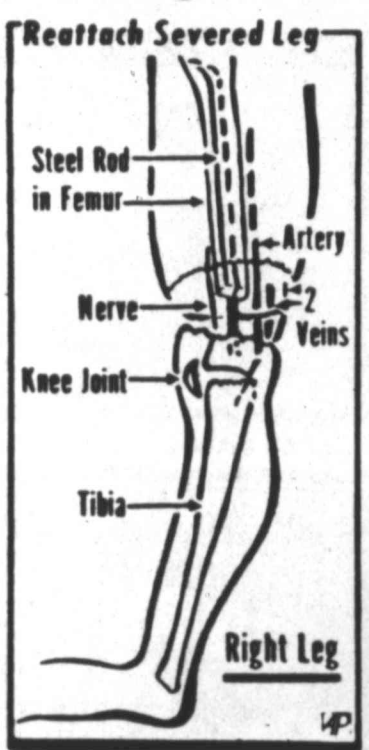

Dr. Sultan Mohiuddin, another member of the four-man surgical team, said the girl would have bled to death if a passerby, Vincent Cascio, had not used his belt as a tourniquet on the leg's stump.

Mohiuddin and the other doctors also credited ambulance attendants with preserving the leg for surgery by wrapping it in plastic and packing it in chemical ice.

Maureen McFadden, the girl's mother, said, "It was the optimism of the doctors that convinced us" to make the difficult decision to authorize surgery.

"We are very, very happy," said Elizabeth's father, John, a 37-year-old Central Islip, N.Y., machinist. "I talked to her after the operation and she was glad because she knew the leg was gone to begin with."

Wertlieb, Mohiuddin, Dr. Bruce Nadler and Dr. Michael Mamakos first reinforced the broken thigh bone by inserting a steel rod into the bone marrow. Then they rejoined one artery and two veins to establish blood flow and reconnected the severed ends of the sciatic nerve, the main nerve for the leg.

But doctors said the leg might have to be removed again if it becomes infected or develops a blood clot. There also is danger of a kidney infection from isolated pieces of dead tissue in the bloodstream.

In six to eight weeks, Wertlieb said, Elizabeth must undergo a second operation to reopen the sciatic nerve and rejoin individual bundles of nerve fiber.

Unless this operation is successful, the leg would never regain motion or feeling and Elizabeth might choose to have it amputated.

Food Prices Dip In City Stores

estimated lettuce prices will stay up for about another month.

Citrus fruit prices will probably increase as well, Hall said, because of the California freeze.

A 10-pound bag of potatoes registered the only other major increase this month, selling at $1.19 as opposed to December's price of $1.09. Potatoes were selling for the same price in January 1978.

A gallon of homogenized milk is up two cents, selling for $2.25 this month instead of December's price of $2.23.

Shoppers will notice a sharp drop in the price of round steak in January. What sold for $2.19 a pound in December is selling for $1.89 a pound in January — a 30 cent decrease. Round steak was selling for $1.39 a pound in January 1978.

Sam Smith, a meat buyer for Furr's Supermarkets, said he could not explain the drop in round steak prices other than to attribute it to a change in the market. He added that he has read the same articles as the average shopper predicting major increases in meat prices but said he has seen no indication yet that the prices will rise.

Five pounds of flour is selling at a reduced price of 89 cents this month instead of December's price of 95 cents. And a pound of all-beef wieners is selling for $1.85 instead of December's $1.88.

The only other decrease is seen in the price of medium eggs, selling at 78 cents this month instead of December's 79 cents. But the same dozen eggs would have sold for 70 cents in January 1978.

All other prices remained stable: A large loaf of bread sells for 69 cents and a can of whole green beans is marked at 46 cents.

A stick of whipped margarine is priced at 73 cents and a pound of hickory smoked bacon is still $1.85.

Five pounds of sugar is still $1.23 and fryer chicken is still 59 cents a pound. A jar of creamy peanut butter is currently marked at 86 cents and a 49-ounce box of laundry detergent is selling for $1.73.

Regular coffee is still priced at $2.98 but shoppers probably still remember the stiff price increases in 1977 and early 1978. A pound of coffee was selling for $3.49 a pound in January 1978.

Selection Method Held Valid

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court agreed Tuesday that there is no law which says members of the City Public Service Board of San Antonio shall be elected.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision upheld U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., who dismissed a suit filed by Clifton Byrd and others.

Their suit contended the method of selecting board members was "self-perpetuation" of bureaucratic control of the city's gas and electric utility system.

Five members sit on the board. Any vacancy is filled by a majority vote of the remaining board members. Terms are five years, with a limit of two terms.

The suit said that system of replacement deprived city residents of the right to vote, denies equal protection under the law and the right to a republican form of government.

However, the 5th circuit agreed the board is only a manager of the city-owned system, since only the City Council has the power to issue bonds for the system, or revise rates and like matters.

If there is a complaint regarding the selection system, it is a matter of state law, not federal, the court said.

"If we could even save the knee motion, she could have an artificial limb from the knee down which is much better than an above-knee false leg," Wertlieb said.

Her prospects for recovery are improved because the tissue of young children regenerates better, he said.

Wertlieb said the most exciting moment of the operation came when the leg began to acquire the healthy pink color that showed the blood was flowing again.

"It was thrilling. I looked at my watch and it was almost New Year's. It was like your team hitting a home run with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth and winning the game," he said.

And Elizabeth's reaction, when told the operation was a success? "She gave me a little smile," Wertlieb said. "She thought it would be a wooden leg."

YEAR END SALE

PUBLIC NOTICE

FACT #1 Everything in our inventory on Jan. 1 is taxable. We had much rather cut 2 to 3 hundred dollars off the price than to pay the same amount in tax dollars.

FACT #2 After Jan. 1 the taxes paid on unsold cars must be considered expense. In actuality this creates a consumer price increase.

FACT #3 Wide car buyers know this. They take advantage of it and they tell their friends about it too!

Draft Of Rhodesian Constitution Released

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—A draft constitution expected to guide Rhodesia after blacks get the vote was published Tuesday as guerrillas, in separate raids, attacked a black opponent of the government and a white suburban home.
The draft provides for minority whites to retain leadership in the courts, military and civil service for five years and for the country to be renamed Zimbabwe-Rhodesia—combining white and black names.

On Monday night, five heavily armed black gunmen dressed in blue denim uniforms attempted to kidnap Salisbury university professor Ariston Chambati, a black lecturer and senior aide to Zambian-based guerrilla chief Joshua Nkomo.
Nkomo and Mozambique-based guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe fought Smith's white-minority regime for six years, rejected last year's transition plan and vowed to disrupt the April elections.
Two white faculty members living on the 450-acre campus in a white suburb five miles from Salisbury were bayoneted by the raiders, but not seriously hurt, Chambati blamed the incident on followers of Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabani Sithole, another member of Smith's government. He said the gunman spoke in the Nda African dialect of Sithole's home area.

Cuba Renews Assault On U.S.-China Link

MIAMI (AP)—As Soviet-built warplanes roared overhead, Cuban Defense Minister Raul Castro Tuesday denounced new U.S.-China ties as an attempt to divide the world revolutionary movement by "intimidation and bribe."
It was Cuba's second sharp attack in two days on the new diplomatic alliance between China and the United States.
On Monday night, President Fidel Castro delivered a speech on the 20th anniversary of his regime in which he accused China of selling out revolutionary ideals "in exchange for Taiwan, technology and Western credit." U.S. diplomat Lyle Lane walked out to protest the "particularly strident" tone of the speech.

Conrail Stops Serving Drinks

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP)—Conrail sounded the last call for bar car drinks on Tuesday evening's commuter train runs from here, claiming the well has run dry on subsidies.
The end of the service that has been run from the old Erie-Lackawanna terminal here to points west and north for at least 14 years isn't easy to swallow, regular riders say.

Burlington Liar's Club Picks Best Whoppers Of Year

BURLINGTON, Wis. (UPI)—Did you hear Wilfred Heberg's story about his latest bluff with inflation?
"My wife and I built a house we could afford," said Heberg of Mayville, Wis. "But we couldn't use it. It was so small my wife didn't have room to change her mind."
A little corn, maybe, but good enough for first prize in the annual Burlington Liar's Club contest last weekend.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am a 35-year-old single woman, with a salary of about $16,000 a year. I have $20,000 in savings certificates due to mature in four years and am investing in a no-load mutual fund. I just bought 10 shares of stock in a food company and signed up for the dividend reinvestment plan.

A. I would like very much to have an investment plan but need advice on what stock to buy. I can't find a broker who is interested in helping me, because I don't have a great deal to invest. Do you think I should do it on my own, through a discount broker?

A. First off, I'd say you have already started on a good investment plan. Your savings certificates give you a fat cash reserve — more than you really need. But that only means you're erring on the conservative side — not the risk side. I won't try to argue you out of that.

Through your mutual fund investment, you have diversification — because the fund invests in many different stocks. The fund you named in your letter is a good one, with growth as its investment objective.

That stock you bought is also well suited for you. And, from reading this column, you know I am all for dividend reinvestment programs.

Discount brokerage firms, which buy and sell stocks at much lower commissions than the better-known "full service" brokerage houses, could be right for you — if you are willing to do your own research and make your own decisions on what stocks to buy and sell.

Many people who use discount brokers do their research by going to the reference rooms of their public libraries and reading the stock manuals and other reference material.

But, if you feel you need individual advice, research, recommendations and the other services most full service brokerage firms provide their clients, you'll just have to keep looking around until you find a broker who is interested in handling your account.

Q. I recently sold 200 shares of a certain stock which is listed on the New York Stock Exchange at $17.50 a share. The brokerage house charged a commission of $88.81. I then called a discount brokerage firm and asked what they would charge for selling that stock. They quoted a commission of $46.50 — a saving of 48 percent. Is there any particular risk in dealing with discount brokers?

A. No, as long as the brokerage firm with which you deal is a member of the Securities Investor Protection Corporation. SIPC was created by Congress to protect people against loss of securities or cash left with brokerage firms.

Q. You wrote that a high school student who has a part-time job will still have to have deductions taken from his paycheck. He will have to have Social Security deductions but not federal income tax deductions. Am I right?

A. Yes, you are. I goofed. Double checking this with the Internal Revenue Service, I learned that many people — not just students — who earn small amounts of earned income can avoid having income tax deductions taken from their paychecks.

To qualify for having no income tax deductions, the person must meet two tests: 1. Had no tax liability the previous year; and 2. Expects to have no tax liability this year.

So a person who paid no taxes last year and who expects to earn so little money this year that he or she will not have to pay any income taxes this year can escape payroll withholding taxes.

Q. If a woman wants to save some money without her husband finding out, what's to prevent her from buying Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds?

A. Nothing, except her conscience. She won't have to report the E bond interest until the bonds are cashed. At least, she would put off making waves in the marital pond until some later date.

MR. DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

A. G. Edwards & Sons, Inc. WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL — May 1979 provide the electric shock therapy needed to cure the epidemic of schizophrenia that consumed investors in 1978. Emotions reached the breaking point due to the extremes seen in almost everything. Market participants had to try to survive the sharpest two week decline ever experienced by the Dow Industrials; were exalted during the industrials biggest one day advance; trading volume reached new record levels; this dollar was hammered for months and gold soared only to reverse abruptly in November due to the administration's intervention; peace in the Middle East is on one day, off the next and now Iran is threatening to upset both the world's supply of oil as well as precipitate a possible confrontation of some sort between the U.S. and Russia.

We have mentioned but a few of the events which sorely tested the mental health of stockholders. The institutions have adopted a "Who Needs Them" approach to stocks in order to protect their sanity. Individual investors have recently increased their selling and their depression after the big moves in many smaller companies and casino issues did a round trip. With the dust finally settling on 1978, we see that overall little happened to stock prices as all the widely watched market averages are about where they were a year ago except for the Dow Utilities which fell under the weight of rising interest rates and unfriendly rate rulings.

The market is ending the year with both the bulls and the bears claiming victory in December. We enter 1979 with a world full of critical problems and uncertainties both economic and political.

At the same time, stocks are very reasonably priced by historic standards. For two months now the market has traded in a tight range bordered by 780 and 830. We believe it will take a bad bond market to get a heavy selloff going and in our opinion the odds still favor that possibility. We see the Fed forced to tighten credit due to inflation and a too strong economy, the prime rate up to at least 13 percent, and long term quality bonds in the 10-11 percent area. To get the volume, breath, and leadership needed to start a new important upleg will require the institutions coming off the sidelines aggressively. No sign of that yet but we will heed the tape and drop to the market if it does. A happy and prosperous new year to all which we believe means having cash reserves for future, not current opportunities.

Daniel Ends 40 Years In Government

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' most experienced public official, Associate Justice Price Daniel Sr., stepped down Tuesday to make way for a new member of the Texas Supreme Court, San Antonio District Judge Franklin Spears.

"I am awed by the experience," said Spears after donning his new robe. "I am humble and appreciative of the reputation left for me by Justice Daniel."

Daniel, 68, recalled that 40 years ago this month he was sworn in as a member of the Texas Legislature, his start as a public servant. Since then he has been Texas House speaker, state attorney general, U.S. senator, governor and, for the last eight years, a member of the state's highest court.

"It has been hard work but the time passed rapidly because it was enjoyable work," Daniel said, his voice breaking as he told the court goodbye.

"And I want to make it clear that I am surrendering this chair but I am not surrendering my interest in government and our judiciary... I am not retiring and there will be no lessening of my interest in our government and our laws."

Daniel said he was joining a Liberty law firm with his two sons "but I will be dividing my time between Liberty and Austin."

Couple Lives In Schoolyard

CINCINNATI (AP) — Eugene and June Dunn are grown-ups, but they still feel at home in a school yard.

In fact that's where their home is, in the front yard of Hoover Elementary School.

The Southwest School District has been having increased theft and vandalism expenses, so the school board invited mobile home owners to set up in schoolyards to keep an eye on the buildings at night.

The DUNNs' mobile home is connected to the school's burglar alarm.

There have been few problems since the couple moved in in November.

There have been a few more visitors, according to Mrs. Dunn. Grade school students were curious about their home and came to investigate.

The couple also reports that when the custodian enters the school in the morning, the burglar alarm regularly goes off in their home.

Wayne Hays Back As Solon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Wayne Hays, the former congressman who resigned two years ago because of a sex scandal, returned to work as a lawmaker Tuesday — but in the Ohio Statehouse rather than Congress.

Hays, a white-haired 67-year-old political veteran, was sworn in as a state representative 38 years after he first came to Columbus as a state senator representing rural southeast Ohio.

"I'm glad to be back to work," said Hays, who is already drafting legislation to introduce.

Hays was accompanied by his wife, Pat, 35, at the first session of the 113th Ohio General Assembly. They live on a 160-acre farm in the coalfields of Belmont County.

In Washington, Hays headed the House Administration Committee, which helps write election rules, and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, which distributes funds to party candidates throughout the nation.

In Columbus, Hays will be one of 15 freshmen legislators in the 99-member lower chamber.

Phone Call Brings Right Time

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Owners of super-accurate watches who want the exact time for setting their timepieces can go directly to the National Bureau of Standards.

The bureau, charged with keeping time with atomic clocks, has an automatic answering device at 303-499-7111. Although the government will give you time for free, you have to pay for the telephone call.

The time is given in "universal coordinated time," which is the time on the 24-hour clock at Greenwich, England. It is five hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time, six hours ahead of Central Standard, seven hours ahead of Mountain Standard and eight hours ahead of Pacific Standard.

If you set your watch last year, it is now one second off. The NBS people added a leap second on New Year's Eve to match a gradual slowing of the earth's rotation.

Duo Reconciles Differences

SEATTLE (AP) — When George and Aino Moorman were divorced a couple of years ago, they cited "irreconcilable differences with Uncle Sam." A change in the Social Security laws patched things up, however, and on New Year's Day the elderly couple got married for a second time.

The Moormans had been living together outside marriage so that Mrs. Moorman, 63, could continue to receive Social Security benefits from the death of her first husband. It also was the second marriage for Moorman, who is in his 80s.

A change in the law effective Jan. 1 allows elderly persons to remarry without losing benefits. And at 12:01 a.m. Monday, they repeated their vows "to show how ridiculous the old law was."

The Rev. Jim Heer, who presided, said the second wedding was "a sad commentary on our society, because the law was immoral. And finally our government is doing the right thing."

Assistance With Tax Forms Offered

A Taxpayer Education course will be conducted from 7 to 10 p.m. Feb. 6 and 8 at various schools in Lubbock to help people in filling out their tax returns.

Taxpayers Education is a public service program jointly sponsored by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Certified public accountants volunteer their time to assist taxpayers in filling out the revised 1040 and 1040A tax forms. Recent changes in tax law will be covered.

In addition to receiving instruction, participants will have an opportunity to ask questions regarding specific circumstances. The two-night course is available to the public at a charge of $1 to cover administrative costs.

Each registrant will also receive the IRS publication, "Your Federal Income Tax," a 200-page booklet which details many tax deductions, forms and filing requirements.

According to the IRS, returns mailed early are processed in four to five weeks. Those mailed in April are not processed for 10 weeks or longer.

To register for the Taxpayer Education program, fill out the adjacent registration form. Money and registration form must be mailed by Jan. 29.

Classes will be at Lubbock High School; Atkins Junior High School; Evans Junior High School; Smylie Wilson Junior High School; O.L. Slaton Junior High School; Roosevelt School; Plainview High School; Floydada High School, and Littlefield High School.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

| Jan. | | | Feb. | | | March | | | April | | | May | | | June | | |

| B | 0 | 0 | 8 | 3 | 31 | 14 | 4 | 27 | 22 | 7 | 25 | 6 | 9 | 22 | 14 | 12 | 20 |

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Peace Talks Resumption Indicated

By The Associated Press
 Egypt indicated its readiness to resume deadlocked peace negotiations with Israel Tuesday while Jewish extremists tried to establish a new settlement in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The Israeli army said it will remove about 50 families that squatted on a hill near an existing settlement six miles northwest of Jerusalem.

A spokesman for the Gush Emunim, the ultranationalist Jewish group, said the move was a protest against the Israeli government's "failure to develop Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan."

Both the United States and Egypt regard the Israeli settlements as illegal and an obstruction to peace.

Egypt's willingness to resume peace talks with Israel was expressed in Cairo by an Egyptian Foreign Ministry official, who barred use of his name.

He said the decision of the Israeli cabinet last Sunday was an "encouraging and a positive step." The cabinet confirmed Israel's willingness to resume negotiations on at least two of the three major issues standing in the way of a peace treaty.

"At least they are not standing by their previous position of refusing to discuss these issues," the Egyptian official said. He added Egypt was preparing an assessment of the situation for relay to Washington as an intermediate step to having the talks resumed.

In Washington, State Department officials said that while Egypt and Israel both are inclined to favor a resumption of negotiations neither has decided on a time or place.

"A meeting depends on the parties agreeing on the utility of a meeting," spokesman Hodding Carter said.

Cairo's authoritative Al Ahram newspaper said Israel now agrees to negotiate an exchange of interpretive letters on the issues of Palestinian autonomy and reviewing security arrangements in Sinai.

But Israel continues to reject Egypt's demand for a timetable for Palestinian elections and a specific date for reviewing Egyptian troop dispositions in the Sinai desert.

There was also no indication Israel had softened its stand on Article 6 of the U.S. draft treaty. Egypt objects to having the treaty normalizing its relations with Israel take precedence over its commitment to aid other Arab states if they are attacked.

Al Ahram said the Egyptian cabinet would meet today to prepare its assessment of the "necessary basis" for resuming the negotiations.

It would be left to Washington to decide whether sufficient progress had been made to justify an invitation to both Israel and Egypt to start talking once more.

The new attempt by the Gush Emunim to establish Jewish settlements followed two similar actions on New Year's Day, when they tried to set up camp on a hill near Tuesday's site and near Nablus, 30 miles north of Jerusalem. Both these attempts were stopped by the Israeli army.

The operations by the Gush Emunim — the bloc of the faithful — were the latest to expand a string of settlements since an Israeli-government freeze on the establishment of new settlements in the West Bank expired on Dec. 17.

City Law Forbids Mailmen To Cut Across Lawns

PITTSBURG, Calif. (UPI) — Mailmen have been cutting across the grass of America's front lawns since the days of the penny postcard — but they don't do it any more in Pittsburg, Calif.

A few weeks ago the city council passed an ordinance barring letter carriers from crossing lawns "without the prior, express consent of the owner, lessee or other person in charge."

Pittsburg's mailmen are hewing to the law, but the United States Post Office has taken the matter to federal court. The issue, said Regional Postmaster Austin Simon, is "whether the Congress makes our laws and tells us what to do, or whether Pittsburg does."

One resident differs. Paul Marcimas, who has a fine Bermuda grass lawn, says he feels his lawn is part of his home, and "The Constitution said a man's home is his castle."

Many residents could hardly care less. "What the hell's the difference," said H.P. Costanza. "I've got to step on the lawn when I mow it."

Lurking somewhere behind the law of Pittsburg is a dispute between the postal carrier's unions and the U.S. Postal Service management.

Frank Quesada, president of the Pittsburg Local of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said the carriers were recently ordered by management to cut across lawns if necessary to hasten the mail.

Quesada happens to be a member of the Pittsburg City Council.

Trojans Nab Top Ranking

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southern California is No. 1.

Heralded by their own coach, John Robinson, as "one of the greatest teams in USC history," the Trojans edged Alabama by only five points Tuesday in balloting by the UPI board of coaches to capture the national football championship in the closest race staged for the title in 12 years.

By beating Michigan 17-10 in the New Year's Day Rose Bowl, USC collected 496 points from the 35 coaches, despite a controversial touchdown by running back Charles White, who television showed fumbling the ball just before he went in for the score.

Robinson was proclaiming the national title for USC after the Trojans beat Michigan on the basis of a victory over Alabama earlier this season.

Alabama topped previously top-ranked Penn State 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl game that was billed as the battle for the championship because the Nittany lions went into the game ranked No. 1 and Alabama was rated No. 2. The Crimson Tide registered the same number of first place votes as USC — 15 — but failed to achieve as much second place support while drawing 491 points.

In 1966, Notre Dame edged Michigan State by five points, 329-324 — to win the UPI championship. The Fighting Irish captured that title on the basis of 20 first place votes to 10 for the Spartans.

Oklahoma, a 31-24 Orange Bowl winner over Big Eight Conference rival Nebraska, received the other five first place votes and 467 points for third place. Penn State not only had a 19-game winning streak halted by Alabama, but slipped to fourth place with 424 points.

Four weeks ago when the regular season ended the teams ranked 1 through 4 were Penn State, Alabama, USC and Oklahoma. The names remained the same, only the positions changed when the bowl action was completed.

"We're very pleased, obviously," said Robinson when he learned that the UPI board of coaches had picked USC as the national champion for the fifth time. The Trojans previously won in 1962, 1967, 1972 and 1974.

"I'm sure it was a difficult decision...there are 2-3 or 4 teams in the na-

Bo Lashes Out At Officials

THEY'RE UNDECIDED — While one official signals a turnover, the other throws up his arms to show a touchdown as been scored during a controversial play at the Rose Bowl Monday afternoon in Pasadena, Calif. The mixup happened moments after USC running back Charles White dove into the end zone for the Trojan's second touchdown against Michigan. White lost possession of the ball, but officials ruled the TD was good. Wolverines Gene Bell (42) stares in disbelief at the official signalling touchdown. (AP Laserphotot)

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Bo Schembechler has reversed his field, blasting officials for the controversial call that beat his Michigan football team in the Rose Bowl.

"It was a bad call. He missed the play completely," Schembechler said of the call by line judge Gilbert Marchman that gave Southern Cal the deciding touchdown in the 17-10 game Monday.

Marchman ruled that tailback Charles White "broke the plane of the goal-line" before losing a fumble at the one to Michigan's Jerry Meter.

Immediately after the game, Schembechler called the decision "a shame" but said he wouldn't talk about officiating.

Tuesday, though, after having viewed TV replays, he didn't hold back. "There were a lot of close plays in the game," he said. "That wasn't one of them. He (White) lost the ball at the three or two. It was not a close call. He (Marchman) just blew it."

Although nothing can be done about that play now, Schembechler said he believes in the future better officials must be found.

"I've already talked to the (Big Ten) commissioner (Wayne Duke) this morning. I think we can improve our situation. What it all boils down to is the supervisor of officials has to get good, young blood in there and devise a way of upgrading officials."

Schembechler was quoted in a Los Angeles newspaper of approaching Duke after the game and raged: "We got screwed. I told you about those three incompetents."

He was speaking of the three Big Ten officials who joined three from the Pacific-10 in handling the game.

"I said something to him, but I don't think that's very accurate," Schembechler said. Then he grinned and added, "It might be close, though."

Referee Paul Kamanski deferred to Marchman's decision on the touchdown even though umpire Don Mason had signalled a Michigan fumble recovery.

"One of the basic fundamentals in football is you must see leather," Schembechler said. "He made a call without seeing the ball. In almost every memorandum we have seen come down, it has said, 'see leather, see leather, see leather.' He didn't see leather."

Because of the call, Schembechler said he might be in favor of regular use of instant replays on close calls.

"But after some replays, you still may have to make a judgment," he said.

Schembechler said, "You've got to give some protection to the officials. But I don't give a damn about them when it comes to my kids." "When are the officials accountable?"

Then he added facetiously, "Maybe they can all quit officiating and we could play without them. Maybe we'd have a better game."

Dockery Hires Aide

Texas Tech reached into the Southeastern Conference Tuesday in adding a new assistant football coach.

Red Raider head coach Rex Dockery announced that Rocky Felker, 25, an assistant at Mississippi State University, will be joining the Tech staff.

Felker will replace Watson Brown as quarterback-receivers coach. Brown resigned following the Raiders' final game last fall to become head coach at Austin Peay State University in Tennessee.

"We are pleased to get a high-caliber person like Rocky," Dockery said in making the announcement. "He is a welcome addition to our coaching staff."

Felker was a standout quarterback for Mississippi State for two seasons, rating all-SEC, as well as being chosen SEC Back of the Year by the Atlanta Touchdown Club and the SEC outstanding senior footballer by a Birmingham newspaper.

He was the SEC's outstanding player in 1974, in a poll of conference coaches.

During his senior season at Mississippi State, Felker directed the Bulldogs to a 9-3 season, including a 26-24 Sun Bowl victory over North Carolina. That was only the second time in the school's history to win as many as nine games in a season.

Felker, a native of Brownsville, Tenn., shared the MSU starting quarterback role as a sophomore in 1972, then held the starting spot for the next two seasons.

Following his collegiate days, he stayed on as an aide at his alma mater. He was quarterback coach at MSU at the time he accepted Dockery's call to Tech.

"This is an excellent opportunity to coach at a first-class school and in a first-class conference," Felker said. "Texas Tech has an excellent national reputation."

After finishing at MSU, where he had more than 1,000 yards total offense each season, Felker was a tenth-round draft choice of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Felker is expected to join the Tech staff immediately.

It will be the third straight SEC quarterback to direct that area of attack for the Raiders. Steve Sloan handled that phase while head coach at Tech, and Brown was a quarterback at Vanderbilt. The addition of Felker fills Tech's staff.

No Laughing Matter

OUT AT EL Paso, as a gag, Sun Bowl Tournament officials rigged up this machine to resemble a lie detector, and when any one of four participating coaches would answer a question, the machine would blare out its objection.

Naturally, Raider coach Gerald Myers was asked about his famous winter cold, the cough which — mysteriously — stays with him all through the basketball season. Well, although he denied it, the machine objected to the truthfulness of the answer. It was good for a few laughs but had little effect on the tournament.

What did have an affect, however, was the Tech team, and only a last shot pulled unbeaten Clemson to the championship.

Tech first held off nationally ranked Michigan's charge, then fell 58-57 to Clemson.

But, Tuesday, back from the western reaches of the state of Texas, Myers surveyed the tournament, and the season, which is Tech's best nonconference start since the 1962 season. (The '75-76 team went 7-2 in nonconference en route to a 25-6 season but nine was all the games it could play).

He had some answers in some areas; in others, he is still a bit puzzled.

THE PLAY-FOR-fun game are over; the Raiders open the SWC season here Saturday afternoon against the preseason pick, Texas. And that 8-2 record the Raiders have achieved against nonleague competition is not far off the center circle.

It's a level Myers likes but... "Eight and two..." Myers said Tuesday, shaking his head. "I don't know what I would have thought we'd be now. It's hard to figure how many you're going to win."

"We've won some close ones (the last five games have been decided by 3 points or less). I told our guys that we've won four in a row."

The Raiders have been able to win the close ones, at least a majority of them. Outside of the first two runaways, every game has been decided by 8 points or less, and two went into overtime.

And, conceivably, Tech could be anywhere from 10-0 to 3-7 right now.

"I FEEL WE'VE improved all along," Myers commented. "Our young guys have been gaining experience. (Ben) Hill played super against Michigan (coming off the bench). (Senior starter Geoff) Huston had a great game against Michigan, his best of the year."

"Kent Williams played well (MVP of the tourney). We just missed some shots against Clemson; they just wouldn't go in for us."

"But, we played our best basketball down there (at El Paso). Against good teams."

The lapses of scoring and inability to maintain leads have to be concerns for Myers, however, as he heads into the conference wars.

"Clemson was real patient right after the half (when Tech held a 40-28 lead), and we had a rash of turnovers," said Myers. "I can't put my finger on it. I hope it was just one of those things. I don't think that we went to conservative."

In Tech's last three games, it had solid leads in the first half only to see the game go down to the buzzer.

"Maybe this will help our guys realize that 10-12 points at the half doesn't mean we can relax, that we can't feel comfortable with that lead."

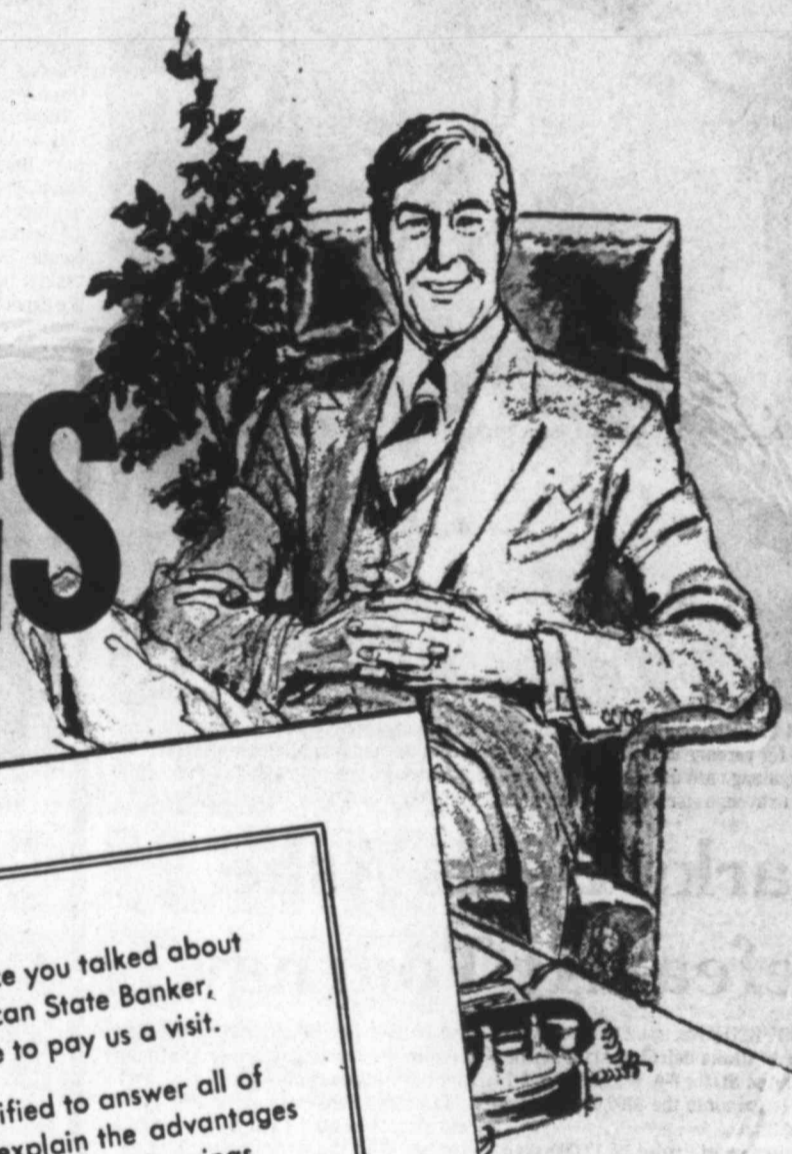

MYERS ALSO PONDERED the possibility of steady substituting as one of the problems. With a running outlook this year, Myers has been trying to keep fresh troops on the Tartan all the time.

And this active sub pattern has been a key factor throughout the year. Hill came off the bench to hit the winner against Oklahoma State; freshman David Little got the winner in overtime over Northeast Louisiana, and Joe Baxter and Tommy Parks have contributed from reserve roles.

"I don't know," said Myers. "Maybe the substitution pattern could have stopped us at times (when Tech was ahead). But, then again, sometimes, we've put people in and they've picked us up. It's a tricky thing."

With an 8-2 record, however, the hunches, the substitution patterns, the moves... something is working.

Switzer Turns Grid Politician

MIAMI (AP) — Coach Barry Switzer of No. 4 Oklahoma said friends urged him to politic and lobby for college football's national championship following the Sooners' 31-24 Orange Bowl victory over No. 6 Nebraska Monday night.

"I don't know how much weight that puts on the ballot," Switzer said Tuesday during a news conference.

"I think Coach (Bear) Bryant gets a lot of votes," he said. "I think Alabama gets a lot of votes. I think Oklahoma gets votes. But I don't think Barry Switzer will get a lot of votes."

With the season ending with no unbeaten team among major colleges, it appeared certain that the final Associated Press poll would create controversy for the second straight year.

No. 1 Penn State had a chance to settle the issue in the Sugar Bowl, but Bryant's No. 2 Alabama team trimmed the Nittany Lions 14-7. Third-ranked Southern California, only team to beat Alabama, stopped No. 5 Michigan 17-10 in the Rose Bowl.

The action left five teams with only one defeat — Southern Cal at 12-1 and Alabama, Oklahoma, Penn State and Clemson all 11-1.

Notre Dame jumped from No. 5 to the national crown a year ago when the Irish beat top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

"It would be exciting to take the top four teams into a playoff," Switzer said. "But it never will be. Alabama and Oklahoma have more opportunities to win the mythical national championship than playing the world in the playoffs." He was referring to the reputations of the two perennial powers.

The New Year's Night victory over Nebraska avenged Oklahoma's only setback, a 17-14 decision in a Big Eight Conference showdown on Nov. 11 when the Cornhuskers took advantage of six Oklahoma fumbles.

The Sooners lost only one fumble Monday night. It came with just over eight minutes remaining and the Sooners owning a 31-17 advantage. Nebraska failed to cash it in and thus fell a touchdown shy when the Huskers scored on the final play of the game.

"We're the only team that beat every team we played," Switzer said.

He attributed the rematch victory to fewer offensive mistakes than his team had made in a long time and to the fact that Nebraska passed 38 times.

"I like to think that when a team passes 38 times, we usually win," he said. "I think Nebraska and Oklahoma are the two best offensive teams in the country, but I would rather Nebraska throw the football than rush it."

Asked if he had any plans to go elsewhere, Switzer said, "I'm happy at Oklahoma. I think Oklahoma is truly one of the great football coaching positions in the country. I don't know where you go from here. But, you always leave those doors (new opportunity) open."

GOOD GAINER — University of Houston running back Emmett King (6) makes good yardage in the second quarter against Notre Dame Monday afternoon in the Cotton Bowl. Trailing King is Notre Dame's tackle Mike Calhoun (77) and Jeff Weston (74). Notre Dame won the game 35-34. (AP Laserphoto)

Cougs Chilled By Notre Dame

DALLAS (AP) — It was though the football gods had decided to reward anyone who had the courage to brave the worst ice storm in three decades and survive a minus eight-degree wind chill factor while sitting on frozen seats.

The 43rd annual Cotton Bowl Classic was a classic. And the greatest spectator game in its history was witnessed by maybe 10,000 diehard fans at the final gun, clustered like Eskimos in the old 72,000-seat stadium. This was one game when it took spartan soul to just be a spectator.

When Joe Unis kicked the second extra point — it took two because Notre Dame was penalized the first time — to hand the Fighting Irish a 35-34 victory over dazed Houston, it climaxed the most incredible comeback in Cotton Bowl annals.

And the Cotton Bowl, beset by bad weather and a head-on collision with the Sugar Bowl, needed a miracle finish.

Most of the media attention was on the Alabama-Penn State game. The ice played havoc with the Cotton Bowl parade. For the game itself, there were some 40,000 no-shows, a record for a major bowl. Ice was scraped off the field and dusted with salt.

The halftime show went on despite the biting 30-mile-an-hour wind and 20-degree temperatures. The Kilgore Rangerettes high-kicked their way through a routine that left their lovely legs blue.

Then came the bizarre start. Notre Dame won the toss and took the wind. Houston elected to kick. But, said the officials, you'll have to kick into the wind. Houston said OK, we want Notre Dame to handle the frigid football first.

Then the referees gave the ball to Houston to kick WITH the wind. Notre Dame Capt. Bob Gogic got that matter straightened out.

Houston jumped to a 34-12 lead and Cotton Bowl officials could hear television sets clicking off not to mention the band of nomads drifting away from the stadium to their cars.

Notre Dame blocked a punt for a touchdown and quarterback Joe Montana ran for another.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman decided to go for it on fourth and one from the Cougar 29 — and failed — in the final 30 seconds.

Twenty-three points in just over seven minutes — climaxed by Montana's eight-yard touchdown pass to Kris Haines with 0:00 showing on the clock — gave the Irish and the Cotton Bowl an official football miracle.

"The greatest comeback in Notre Dame history," said Athletic Director Moose Krause.

OSU Begins 'National Search'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State President Harold Enarson named a committee Tuesday to conduct what he calls "a national search" for a new football coach at the Big Ten Conference power.

Enarson, in a prepared statement, said he is asking William Nester, Ohio State vice president for student affairs, and athletic director Hugh Hindman to recommend a successor to Woody Hayes "at the earliest feasible time."

Enarson and Nester will head the search committee that includes the school's four athletic councilmen and three assistant athletic directors.

Hindman fired Hayes, the game's second winningest active coach, after the fiery Buckeyes' mentor slugged a Clemson player in a 17-15 Gator Bowl loss Friday night.

Hindman said he already received a couple of applications Tuesday and "that's the first mail since it happened. We expect a lot more tomorrow.

"I won't name any of the applicants, only the man who is selected. There will be no press conferences until the new coach is named. Gentlemen, you're wasting your time on speculation," Hindman said during a meeting with the media Tuesday.

Hindman was asked about Lou Holtz, current University of Arkansas coach, considered a prime candidate to become Ohio State's 20th head coach.

"I'm not going into that," he said. Hindman said he preferred a man with head college coaching experience, but it wasn't an absolute necessity. The athletic director said he would consider applicants from the high school and professional levels as well.

The committee will conduct a pre-screening of applicants and then bring the finalists in for personal interviews, Hindman said.

"I'm not putting it into days or weeks on a timetable for picking the new coach," said the Buckeyes' athletic director.

Nester said Hayes, 65, will still carry the title of professor of physical education.

Marks Deals Ashe Defeat At Tourney

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — John Marks of Australia defeated Arthur Ashe of the United States 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 1-4, 9-7 Tuesday to gain into the $300,000 Australian Open final.

The center court crowd of 12,000 gave the players a standing ovation after their 3-hour, 40-minute struggle.

Marks, 26, will meet top-seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in the final. Vilas disposed of American Hank Pfister 6-2, 6-0, 6-3 in the other semifinal. Pfister was hampered by a groin muscle pull.

In Wednesday's women's singles final, American Betsy Nagelson faces Australian Chris O'Neill. Nagelson beat Austrian Chris Matison 7-5, 6-4 in Monday's semifinals while O'Neill routed Australian Dianne Evers 6-0, 6-2.

Marks staved off two match points to advance to the final.

For the third time in the tournament, Ashe appeared headed for a five-set win when he erased out a two-set deficit by racing through the third and fourth sets with the loss of only three games.

Ashe took five sets to beat Australia's Kim Warwick in the third round and had to come from behind to down Austrian Peter Feigl in a five-set quarter-final.

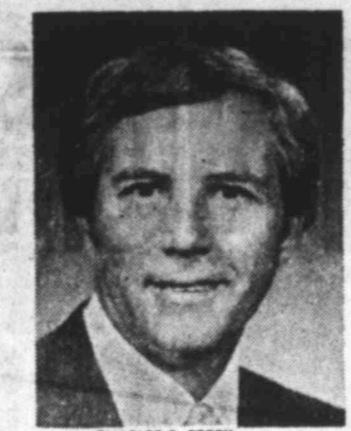

But this time he squandered two match points at 5-4 with service and served for the match three times in the deciding set. Marks blew a 3-0 lead in the final set.

And he had five break points on Ashe's serve in the fourth game only to see the American work out of trouble.

Marks still looked in command as he held serve to lead 4-1 but Ashe wouldn't give up. With the crowd urging him on, Ashe reeled off four straight games to move to a 5-4 lead and serving for the match. He got to 40-15 but the Australian produced three brilliant passing shots to tie it at 5-5.

Ashe broke Marks' service in the 11th and 13th games, but each time the Australian broke back to stay in the match.

Marks finally held serve in the 15th game — the first time he had done so for 10 games — to take an 8-7 lead.

Ram Coach Says Game 'Toss-Up'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Coach Ray Malavasi of the Los Angeles Rams said Tuesday his club should be rated at least even with the defending Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

Current odds list the Cowboys as three-point favorites for Sunday's National Football Conference championship game at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"I think the game is a toss-up," Malavasi said at his weekly media breakfast, and don't forget they were favored by 14 points over Atlanta.

The Cowboys only beat Atlanta 27-20 in the divisional playoffs while the Rams trounced Minnesota 34-10.

"The only thing I worry about is that our team is in the right frame of mind to play. I think we'll be ready because everyone knows this game is so important."

"I also don't think being an underdog is a motivation. I think the game itself is the motivation."

Sunday's winner goes to the Super Bowl on Jan. 21 in Miami against the AFC champion.

Before Los Angeles beat Dallas 27-14 in the third game of the regular season, Malavasi had predicted, "We're going to kick ass," and this time he said, "We're ready to do the same thing."

However, he admitted that the Cowboys have improved during the season, particularly on the defensive line.

"Otherwise the Cowboys are not that much different," he said. "It's the same team basically that we played before. All are good football players. They use multiple shifts, give you a little motion and shovel pass some."

Malavasi indicated he wasn't worried about the Dallas shotgun formation that the Cowboys use on obvious passing situations.

"The shotgun does not present any different problem than any other formation," he commented.

Malavasi said he fully expects Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach to be ready for the game. Staubach suffered a concussion against Atlanta on Saturday but the Cowboys reported that on Sunday he reported to the training room and said he didn't even have a headache.

So both teams appear in good physical shape for this showdown. The Rams defensive tackle Larry Brooks played some against Minnesota and his injured knee held up. Reserve linebacker Isiah Robertson suffered a pulled hamstring and is still questionable.

Malavasi was asked who he favored in the Pittsburgh-Houston game and answered, "I like Houston with Earl Campbell and his tough running game. Dan Pastorini is throwing very well now."

Of his own team, Malavasi said the fact it never had gone to the Super Bowl despite five straight divisional titles caused frustrations "and in this playoff that might help."

Gervin Heads Star Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — George Gervin of San Antonio, the league's leading scorer last season, remains the top vote-getter in the fan balloting for the National Basketball Association Eastern Conference All-Star team, it was announced Tuesday.

Pete Maravich of New Orleans moved past Gervin's teammate Mike Gale in the voting and holds a commanding 30,000-vote lead over Gale with one week remaining in the balloting.

The front-line starters as of now are Julius Erving of Philadelphia and Larry Kenon of San Antonio at the forwards with Houston's Moses Malone at center.

Rick Barry and Rudy Tomjanovich, Malone's teammates at Houston, are third and fourth, respectively, in the forward voting.

Staubach Ready For Title Game

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday he feels injured quarterback Roger Staubach will be able to start Sunday's National Football Conference title game against the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm confident Roger will be OK once we start work — if we can find a place to work," said Landry.

Staubach was knocked unconscious in the second quarter of Saturday's 27-20 NFC playoff victory over the Atlanta Falcons with reserve quarterback Danny White in a starring role.

"The doctors said Roger will be OK and I don't think he will have any trouble," said Landry.

The Cowboys couldn't practice Monday because of Dallas' worst ice storm in 30 years. Landry himself was a victim of the deadly storm. His home lost electricity Sunday and still was without it Tuesday.

Landry said the Cowboys would work out at Texas Stadium until the ice melts off the Dallas practice field.

The Cowboys' coach missed the Los Angeles victory over Minnesota on television Sunday because of the ice storm which knocked out power to some 75,000 homes in the Dallas area.

Landry watched films of the victory over the Falcons and said the hit Falcons linebacker Robert Pennywell delivered to Staubach "was not a deliberate blow. It was a clean tackle. His helmet might have caught Roger in the chest but I don't believe it was intentional."

Landry had lashed out at Pennywell after the game, saying he was told Pennywell hit Staubach with an elbow and that National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle should investigate.

"Somebody told me it was an elbow and my reaction was based on that," said Landry.

Pennywell was penalized for roughing the quarterback on the play. He said officials told him he drew a flag for driving Staubach into the artificial turf at Texas Stadium.

Landry said the ice — which was rapidly melting Tuesday — should not hurt the Cowboys' practice plans for the Rams.

"I'm not worried," said Landry. "The key days are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday."

The Cowboys will leave Dallas at 7 p.m. Friday to fly to Los Angeles.

Landry indicated the Rams should have a psychological edge since they have never made it to the Super Bowl before coupled with the fact Los Angeles whipped Dallas 27-14 in September.

"Anytime a team beats you, it is in the back of your mind," said Landry. "Also, you have to be concerned about their frustration. If you are denied something, you become more determined."

Landry also announced that Scott Laidlaw would start at fullback ahead of rapidly recovering Robert Newhouse.

Pioneer Classic To Start

PLAINVIEW (Special)—If the Wayland Pioneer Classic doesn't bring any memories of great basketball action from the past—it's not your fault.

Because Plainview will be the site of the first ever Pioneer Classic this weekend when Wayland Baptist College hosts Sul Ross State University, St. Edwards University of Austin and the College of Santa Fe (N.M.).

Action begins at 6:30 p.m. Friday and lasts through Saturday night when the championship contest gets underway at 8:30 p.m.

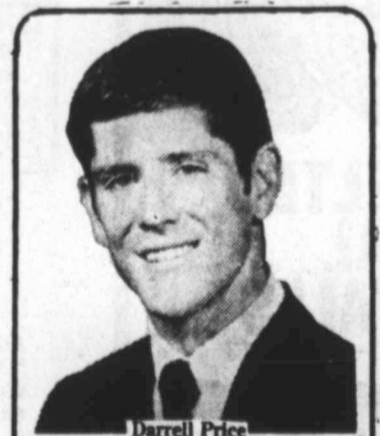

"We think we have found an evenly matched field as possible," said Wayland Athletic Director Bob Clindaniel, who is also in his 11th season as head coach of the Pioneers. "Two of these teams have already played each other, and most have some common opponents, it looks like we can expect for outstanding ballgames."

Tournament passes for all four games are $6 for adults and $3 for students and are $6.50 and $3.50 at the door. The price includes a barbeque dinner to be served from 5:00-6:30 p.m. Friday night at Hutcherson Gym on the Wayland campus, site of the meet.

Sul Ross will face the College of Santa Fe in the opener on Friday night. The Lobos of Alpine boast a 5-3 record while the Fighting Knights of Santa Fe are 5-7 and boast a 71-64 win over TCU of the Southwest Conference.

Of course, Wayland defeated TCU 70-68 earlier in the year and is currently 7-8 and will tangle with the St. Edwards Hilltoppers in Friday's second match.

The Pioneers return four starters from last year's team that went 15-17 and made the post-season playoffs.

Catlett Mum About Probation

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — West Virginia University Coach Gale Catlett again refused Tuesday to comment on a two-year retroactive probation given the University of Cincinnati by the NCAA for basketball recruiting violations that occurred when he was the school's coach.

"It's impossible for me to comment at this time ... until I've read the NCAA's statement," said Catlett. He said he still has not seen a list of recruiting violations that were uncovered by the NCAA as part of its investigation.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association released the list last week when it announced the probation, which was made retroactive to the start of the current season. Catlett said he would not discuss specific details of the NCAA's action until he read the statement.

The six-page statement details the violations and includes numerous mentions of illegal activities by "representatives of the athletic interests of the university." Also mentioned in the violations are activities by "the head coach" and assistant coaches.

Catlett was Cincinnati's coach during the period in which the alleged recruiting violations took place.

Among the activities cited by the NCAA were cash payments apparently arranged by alumni interests to athletes; the purchasing of clothing, food, and other goods for athletes and illegal airfare for athletes and their parents.

Ron Steiner, the West Virginia University sports information director, said that when Catlett is ready to make a statement "it won't be very long. I expect he will say very little. I think it's something he'd like to put in the past and forget about. It's something he doesn't want to keep stirred up."

Catlett had promised last week, when the NCAA censure was made public, to release a statement Tuesday.

Catlett resigned after six seasons as Cincinnati's coach last spring in order to become coach at West Virginia, where he played from 1958-66.

Lions Must Wait 'Til Next Year

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — From his native Brooklyn, New York, where the Dodgers always used to be a bridesmaid, to his long and brilliant coaching career in State College, Pa., it always seems to be a case of "Wait 'til next year," for Joe Paterno.

It happened again Monday. Never before had a Penn State team been so close to college football's national championship. All the top-rated Nittany Lions had to do was win. But, like Texas a year ago, the team with the only perfect record in the country stumbled and bumbled its way out of the right job. "We're No. 1."

On the other hand, second-ranked Alabama, a 14-7 winner over Penn State in Monday's Sugar Bowl showdown, was hoping that "Next year had arrived." Ever since last season's runner-up finish behind Notre Dame, the 1978 national championship had become a sort of Holy Grail for Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide.

The Associated Press will announce the national champion at 6:30 a.m. EST Wednesday. Penn State, Alabama, third-ranked Southern California, No. 4 Oklahoma and No. 7 Clemson all have one loss this season.

Penn State, owner of an NCAA record 40 consecutive non-losing seasons, has nothing to be ashamed of even though its 19-game winning streak, longest in the nation, came to an end.

But this one really hurt because the AP poll will mark Penn State's 10th top-finish ranking in Paterno's 13 seasons as head coach — one second place finish, one third, three fifths, one seventh, one eighth, two tenths, plus whatever Wednesday holds in store, but no No. 1 despite unbeaten teams in 1968, 1969 and 1973.

"My biggest disappointment is for our seniors," Paterno said. "They worked hard and it is unfortunate they lost it without playing their best game. I told our seniors not to go into hibernation because they had an 11-1 record. They accomplished a lot."

But they accomplished very little on offense against Alabama. The Nittany Lions were held to a pair of first downs and just 21 yards in total offense in the first half and were lucky to be trailing only 7-0. Alabama, which rolled up 214 yards in the first two periods scored eight seconds before the intermission on a 30-yard pass from Jeff Rutledge to Bruce Bolton.

Penn State's sole offense thrust was a 48-yard touchdown drive in the third period following Pete Harris' interception. A 17-yard pass from Chuck Fusina to Scott Fitzkee tied the score, but Alabama got the lead back four minutes later when Major Ogilvie ran eight yards for a touchdown after Lou Ikner returned a punt 62-yards to the Penn State 11.

However, Fusina was sacked five times and threw four interceptions, uncharacteristic for a team that committed just 20 turnovers in 11 regular-season games. Only Michigan and Dartmouth had fewer turnovers and Penn State's turnover margin — the Nittany Lions recovered 14 enemy fumbles and intercepted 28 passes — led the nation.

"Alabama played a good game and outcoached us," Paterno said. "We were not ready for them offensively in the first half. They used some blitzes we had not seen before."

Penn State also failed to score on two cracks from inside the 1-yard line after recovering an Alabama fumble at the 19 with 7:57 remaining. First Matt Suhey and then Mike Guman were stopped trying to blast up the middle.

"Alabama just beat us at the line of scrimmage," Paterno said. "We should have been able to bang it in from there."

"We stopped ourselves," said tackle Keith Dorney. "That's the first time in my recollection that we've done that. Nothing seemed to go right."

Alabama will feel the same way if it doesn't win the national championship.

"I believe we should be No. 1, but I'm not saying anything 'til I read it in black and white," said defensive tackle Marty Lyons.

"I believe we're the best team in the country," said Bryant.

And in State College, Pa., it was again a case of "Wait 'til next year."

Paterno Lauds Alabama

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "Alabama played a good game and outcoached us."

So said Joe Paterno Monday following Penn State's 14-7 loss to Alabama and Bear Bryant in the Sugar Bowl.

It was obvious that Alabama outplayed Penn State and there is a strong feeling that the cagey 65-year-old Bear may indeed have outcoached Paterno.

"They made more mistakes than any Penn State team I've seen in a long time," said one head coach who asked to remain anonymous. "It looked like Alabama was better prepared in all phases."

With the Alabama secondary, questionable at best, hit by injuries, the Crimson Tide unveiled a bunch of blitzes that throttled Penn State's attack. All-America quarterback Chuck Fusina was sacked five times and had four passes intercepted.

"Blitzing the secondary gave them all kinds of problems," the coach said. "They added a fullback trap play but it didn't really look like they prepared for anything different. On the other hand, Alabama was really prepared for them."

Bryant showed Penn State all sorts of looks. Alabama often shifted from the wishbone to the I, alternated its defensive alignment and lined up several times with two split ends, two split tackles and two split halfbacks. It didn't all work, but it served to confuse the Nittany Lions.

"We were not ready for them offensively the first half," Paterno conceded. "They used some blitzes we had not seen before."

Penn State traditionally has been one of the nation's better pass protection teams but the big difference in the Sugar Bowl was that Fusina rarely had time to set up and throw.

Sandies Edge Mustangs

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 During the halftime intermission, the biggest problem on the minds of Coronado fans was finding out when will the ice and snow from the first winter storm melt?
 After all, the Coronado Mustangs had controlled the tempo of the first half and though the score was close (42-38), there was no doubt that Coronado had outplayed its opponent.
 However, the Mustangs shot as cold as the weather in the opening moments of the final quarter and the Amarillo High Sandies took advantage to edge the Mustangs 60-59 in a non-district basketball game at the Coronado gym Tuesday night.
 "They beat us (Coronado) up out our place earlier in the year and we were glad to return the favor down here," said Amarillo Coach Sterling Gibson. "But in a game like this one you never know until the ball drops."
 Indeed, Gibson was right.
 The Mustangs, who fell behind 50-45 midway through the final quarter, narrowed the deficit to 60-56 with 41 seconds to play.
 Coronado's strategy was to work the ball inside to postman Steve Ahlenius. Ahlenius, the game's leading scorer with 18 points, took a feed pass just to the right of the lane with 27 ticks left and banked the ball off the glass. The 6-5 Mustang postman drew a foul from Amarillo High postman Kevin Wagner as Ahlenius shot fell through the hoop. Ahlenius then sank the free throw and the Mustangs were within a point.
 So, all Amarillo had to do was run out the final 27 seconds to preserve the win.
 But four seconds later on the inbound pass, guard Scott Williams was whistled for a traveling violation and the Mustangs had the basketball again. Coronado quickly called a timeout to talk things over.
 The Mustangs tried to work the ball back inside to Ahlenius but Amarillo's Kevin Peninger stepped in front and knocked the ball out of bounds with 13 seconds on the clock, and Coronado called its final timeout.
 "We have better plays," said Coronado coach Barry Arwine. "We didn't execute well and we didn't get the players in the right places on the throw in."
 Thus, Ahlenius was forced to take a shot from near the free throw line and the ball looped the basket and fell out. Amarillo's Peninger got his mits on the rebound to preserve the victory.
 The win raises the Sandies' record to 12-7. The loss drops Coronado to 10-8 on the year.
 "I think we played very well," said Mustang mentor Arwine. "You've got to give credit to Amarillo. They played very well. Amarillo was able to hit outside shots better than when we played them up there."

 The Sandies grabbed the momentum of the game when Arwine went to his bench at the beginning of the 1st period. Was that a reason for the turnaround?
 "I'm not crying," said Arwine. "But our second leading scorer and top rebounder (Dennis Boyles) is on the bench with an injury. We have to develop bench strength."
 Guard Darrell Anderson and forward Jeff Helton paced the Amarillo High scoring attack with 14 points each.

Spartans No. 1 In Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michigan State has replaced Duke as the No. 1 college basketball team in the country in the new UPI Board of Coaches weekly ratings.
 The Spartans, who won the Far West Classic with a 74-57 victory over Indiana, received 23 first-place votes and an overall total of 487 points in taking the No. 1 rating by a comfortable margin over Notre Dame, Duke, which lost two games in the Holiday Festival tournament, fell to seventh.

 Following Michigan State and Notre Dame in the Top 10 are Illinois, North Carolina, UCLA, Louisiana State, Duke, Kentucky, Indiana State and North Carolina State.
 Notre Dame was upset by Kentucky Saturday night, lifting the Wildcats from No. 16 to No. 8. Illinois, 12-0 and last becoming the "dream team" of this year's college basketball season, moved from fifth to third by winning the Glacier Classic in Anchorage, Alaska.
 North Carolina, 8-1, jumped from sixth to fourth with the title in the Rochester Classic; UCLA, 7-2, fell from third to fifth after losing to Stanford earlier in the week; LSU, 8-0, remained undefeated by romping over Colgate and jumped from eighth to sixth; Indiana State, 9-0, wrapped Morris Harvey and clinched from 12th to sixth; North Carolina State, 8-2, fell one place despite whipping Penn St.

 Long Beach State leads the "Second 10," followed by Michigan, Mississippi State, Texas A&M, Arkansas, Louisville, Kansas, Georgetown, Marquette and Maryland.
 Long Beach State, 8-0, defeated Loyola of Chicago to move from 14th to 11th; Michigan, 6-2, was upset by Texas Tech and fell from seventh to 12th.

Trojans Win UPI Crown

 Clemson as each drew 285 points, Nebraska was voted into the No. 6 position on 223 points, Texas was made No. 9 with 200 points and Arkansas was a shade back in 10th place with 199 points.
 Houston was picked No. 11 by the coaches as the Cougars headed the second 10 with 145 points, followed by UCLA (106), Purdue (97), Missouri (92), Georgia (61), Stanford (59), Navy (23), Texas A&M (21) and a 19th placed tie at 16 points between North Carolina State and Arizona State.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United Press International Board of Coaches top 20 third weekly college basketball ratings, with first-place votes and records through Sunday in parentheses:

BULLETS 109, BULLS 84
 Kevin Grevey led the Washington Bullets' balanced attack with 18 points in a 109-84 rout of the Chicago Bulls.
 The Bullets raced to a 21-7 lead midway through the first quarter and coasted to their 15th victory in 19 home games this season.
 The victory boosted the Bullets back into first place in the Atlantic Division, a game in front of Philadelphia.
BUCKS 116, CAVS 113
 Brian Winters put Milwaukee ahead to stay on a jumper with 1:04 remaining and the Bucks went on to a 116-113 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.
 The Milwaukee victory, only its fourth in 21 road games this season, marred a 35-point performance by Cleveland's Campy Russell, who had 16 points in the fourth quarter.
 Russell scored with 1:54 left to give the Cavaliers a 109-108 lead, but Kevin Restani's basket put the Bucks ahead 14 seconds later. The red-hot Russell scored again for a 111-110 Cleveland edge with 1:21 remaining, but Winters, who had 21 points, hit with 1:04 to go.
Kings 99, Kings 97
 Tom Boswell hit a layup at the final buzzer to give the Denver Nuggets a 99-97 win over the Kansas City Kings.
 Denver center Dan Issel tipped the ball to Boswell on a jump-ball with two seconds remaining after Otis Birdsong had tied the score for Kansas City with 20 seconds left. The Kings' Sam Lacey batted the ball away from Charley Scott, creating the jump-ball situation.

PAMPA (Special) — Monterey pulled away in the final four minutes to nudge host Pampa 57-53 and open the new year for schoolboy basketball.
 The victory lifted Monterey's record to 15-3 for the year and came on the heels of its triumph in the ABC Caprock tournament at Lubbock. Pampa fell to 7-11 for the season.
 It was a cold night outside — and in the gym also — as MHS opened by hitting only 29 percent of its shots in the first period. But, Pampa hit only 27 percent and held a 10-8 lead after the first eight minutes.
 But, the Plainsmen surged into a 26-24 lead at the half and were in command only 42-40 going into the final period.
 The biggest lead for either team was 2 points until the final four minutes. Finally, with 3:58, MHS built a 5-point gap, and that was good enough to hold off the Harvesters.
 For the game, the Harvesters hit 24 of 66 shots, and Monterey connected on 27 of 45, almost 50 percent.
 Trav Clardy led the Plainsmen in scoring with 21 points, and Chuck Perry added 16. Doug Scags hit 15 points and Steve Duke 12 for the Harvesters.

Palo Duro Rolls

AMARILLO (Special) — The Lubbock High Westerners grabbed the lead twice — once in the second period and once in early in the final quarter — but couldn't gain the edge in the closing moments of the contest as Palo Duro nipped them 60-57 in a nondistrict game Tuesday night.
 Raul Romero hit a season high 21 points and Jeff Hanley had 20 for the Westerners in a losing effort.
 After falling behind 20-12 after one quarter, Lubbock High narrowed the gap to 32-30 at the half.

Campbell Hired

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — University of New Mexico assistant football coach Dean Campbell has accepted a similar job with Texas A&M University, officials announced Tuesday.
 Campbell, 29, coached the defensive secondary at New Mexico this past season and he will handle the secondary under new Texas A&M Coach Tom Wilson. Wilson was named to replace Emory Belard midway through last season.
 Campbell played his collegiate ball at Texas, where he was a member of two national championship teams.

A very sincere thank you for a very successful 1978 in prosperous Lubbock. All of us at State Savings are excited about 1979 and our new modernized, enlarged home office at 1617 Broadway, soon to be open to better serve you. Best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year from all the officers and directors of State Savings of Lubbock.

Shell Squares Off With Campbell In Key Game

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Don Shell and Earl Campbell are two Christians who'll crusade on opposing teams Sunday as Houston challenges Pittsburgh for the American Football Conference championship.

"I got to know Earl as a Christian brother and I'm thankful for the chance to play against him again," said Shell, the thick-necked safety for the Pittsburgh Steelers, who split two regular-season games with the thundering Campbell and the Houston Oilers.

That's the same Don Shell who jolted Campbell's ribs with a tackle in the first quarter of a Dec. 3 game in Houston, won 13-3 by Pittsburgh with Campbell aching on the sideline.

Yet that was professional, and Shell remembers a personal exchange he had with pro football's most potent rookie before the game.

"I introduced myself to him and we talked for about 10 minutes," said Shell, impressed by Campbell's talents early in the season when he ran for three touchdowns to help the Oilers beat the Steelers 24-17 in Pittsburgh.

As Shell recalls that 10-minute talk in Houston, it started like this: "I hear you're a Christian athlete," said Shell, a five-year pro who made the Steelers as a free-agent from South Carolina State.

"That's why I've been allowed to have the success I'm having," responded Campbell, who came to the Oilers with a Heisman Trophy he won at Texas and mighty humility instilled by his mother.

Late in the first quarter in Houston, Campbell swept right.

Steelers safety Mike Wagner stuck out an arm that straightened Campbell up and left his ribs open for the shoulder tackle by Shell, a muscular fellow who earned the nickname "Torpedo" with his potent tackling.

"It was just an ordinary hit, but he was up in the air, very vulnerable," said Shell.

After the hit, Shell went to the sideline and prayed that Campbell was not seriously hurt. "I hoped he could come back in and play," said Shell. "I'm a Christian young man, and he's a Christian young man — and you don't like to see anybody hurt."

It wasn't to be, but Campbell has come back strong in the playoffs to lead the wild-card Oilers into the title game against the Steelers, who beat out Houston for the AFC Central Division title.

"I told Earl after the game in Houston that I was looking forward to playing against him again this season," said Shell. "I'm also looking forward to playing with him in the Pro Bowl."

Only one will go to the Super Bowl.

"We're both getting what we want — a chance to play against the best," said Shell.

"I like to play against the best because when you beat the best, you're the best."

Casals Wins At Net Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifth-seeded Rosie Casals of the United States struggled with her serve Tuesday but hung on to defeat American Sharon Walsh 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 in a first-round match of the $125,000 Washington stop on the women's professional tennis circuit.

The 30-year-old Casals, ranked 10th in the world in the computer standings, had her service broken twice in the first set, the second coming in the eighth game when she double-faulted three times.

Suit Filed Against Colorado

BOSTON (AP) — The New England Patriots filed a federal court suit Tuesday against the University of Colorado, the school which allegedly has sought to lure Coach Chuck Fairbanks away from a lucrative contract with the National Football League team and return to college coaching.

Besides the school, William H. Sullivan Jr., owner of the Patriots, also charged the university's regents and president, Roland C. Rautenstrauss; Athletic Director Edward Crowder, and two private businessmen, with seeking to encourage Fairbanks to break his New England contract, which has four years plus an option season left.

Fairbanks accepted the Colorado job last month, then took himself out of the running so he could coach the Patriots in the NFL playoffs. New England was beaten by Houston last Sunday, 31-14, ending the Patriots' 1978 season.

Sullivan sought a temporary and permanent injunction against Colorado. The Patriots also are seeking damages resulting from the school's plans to hire Fairbanks.

Also named in the suit are two Colorado businessmen — Jack Vickers of Vickers Energy Corp., and Robert F. Six of Continental Airlines — who allegedly have played a role in the university's courtship of Fairbanks.

A hearing before U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone is scheduled for Wednesday.

There was no immediate comment from the University of Colorado.

"Under no circumstances will the university comment until such time as official communication is received and has been received by appropriate administrators and university legal counsel," said Ted Volsky, university vice president for administration.

He said university officials, including Crowder, were attending a Big Eight Conference meeting in Miami.

Area Teams Honored

Up until now, high school boys basketball teams have been clashing with each other in non-district play and high district rankings this early in the season are easy to come by. But now the party's over as "the meat and potatoes" or the district competition of the basketball season gets underway in the next few weeks.

The arrival of district high school cage play also brings about the first TABC (Texas Association of Basketball Coaches) state roundup.

The top ten teams in Class AAAA include: Houston Madison, Houston Milby, Austin Lanier, Fort Worth Dunbar, Nacogdoches, Deer Park, Plano, Richardson Lake Highlands, Houston Jones, and Beaumont-Charlton-Pollard.

The only area Class AAAA school mentioned is Midland High. The Bulldogs are rated 19th.

In the Class AAA picks, the top tens teams were: Silsbee, Huntsville, Mineral Wells, South San Antonio West, Bay City, Snyder, Waxahachie, Sulphur Springs, Fort Worth North Side, and McKinney. The Andrews Mustangs were ranked 11th and Odessa Ector 13th.

In other TABC balloting, the Class AA top ten consisted of: Silsbee, Rice Consolidated, Dimmitt, Brownsboro, Whitehouse, Mathis, Perryton, Willis, Cameron Yoe, and Coleman. Seminole notched 11th place while the Tulia Hornets grabbed the 13th spot in the rankings. The Abernathy Antelopes are 14th.

The Class A picks include: Paducah, Sanger, Archer City, Itasca, Bullard, Coppell, La Poynor, Sabine, Comfort, and Whitewright.

Class B rankings were: Krum, Snook-Tie, Anderson, Greenwood, Trenton, Waelder, Sands, Tilden McMullen, Weatherford Brock, and Graford. The Nazareth Swifts hold the 19th position.

Running Club Schedules Race

The West Texas Running Club will sponsor the third annual Palo Duro Marathon and four-mile run at 11 a.m. Saturday, January 13 in Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

The marathon course will consist of an initial out and back portion of six miles and four laps around a five mile loop, and will be entirely on asphalt roads which follow undulating terrain.

The course which is certified, has been measured with a calibrated wheel in exact accordance with procedures established by the American Athletic Union standards committee.

The four-mile run is slated to be run around the same loop that the marathoners will use, but will not complete a full loop.

There will be a $4 entry fee for all runners except highschool and 15 and under if received on or before January 12. The entry fee will be $5 on race day. The high school and 15 and under division entry fee is $2.

All entry fees should be made payable to the West Texas Running Club and for any other information concerning the All entry fees should be made payable to the West Texas Running Club and mailed to Bob Dunbar, 6526 Fulton, Amarillo

Games Cancelled

Icy road conditions knocked both the boys and girls basketball teams at Estacado out of action Tuesday night.

The girls team had been slated to face Lamesa in the Estacado gym and the boys squad had a date with the Lamesa boys in Lamesa. But neither the Lamesa girls nor the Estacado boys were able to make the trip due to inclement travel conditions.

The boys game has been postponed until Thursday night and the girls contest has been cancelled altogether.
