Icy Winter Conditions To Persist Over Area

By CURTIS BURTON Avalanche-Journal Staff

OLD MAN Winter's icy fingers today will continue to shape a sensational sight for South Plains residents who already are chilled from his work the past few days.

An upper level disturbance over the cold dome of air which has been hovering over West Texas in part is responsible for the prolonged period of cloudiness and precipitation.

The mass of cold air, however, is expected to begin moving eastward today, allowing for partial clearing by this after-noon. But another surge of Canadian air will cause the very cold temperatures to continue into Monday.

The National Weather Service is forecasting a 20 percent chance of freezing drizzle or sleet today. Temperatures will struggle to the upper teens before falling to eight degrees to-night. Winds will gust 15 to 20 mph. Saturday's high of 26 degrees set a new record low maximum temperature for the date. The previous record of 28 degrees was set in 1971.

Although only .02 of an inch of moisture in the form of light snow, sleet and freezing rain was measured Saturday, weather conditions were critical enough to keep Lubbock police and area Texas Depart-ment of Public Safety troopers busy. At least 37 reports of automobile wrecks were made in the city.

Fortunately, however, only five resulted in injuries, and of these only two were sent to hospitals, where they were treated and released.

A DPS spokesman said his office had been flooded with calls about highway conditions, which remain extremely slick and hazardous across the entire northern half of the state.

He said traffic in the South Plains area was relatively light. No serious highway wrecks occurred in the area.

However, late Saturday DPS troopers in Abliene tigating a wreck just west of that city that left one person dead. A DPS spokesman said the heavily iced roads in that region were "a definite con-tributing factor" to the fatal one-car rollover about 6:15 p.m. on I-20.

Lubbock police are encourag-ing parents to not let their children play on the frozen ponds within the city because of the danger of breaking ice.

Marvin Coffee, director of Lubbock International Airport, said his employees are working around the clock to keep runways in good condition. A chemical de-icer is being used to keep runways clear, and new radar equipment was credited with helping prevent cancellation of any flights through Saturday evening, he said. There were no reports of any airports in Texas closed.

Shah To Remain; Exiled Foe Calls Action Illegal

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, promising to lead Iran from political turmoil to social democracy, took power Saturday and said Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would remain on the throne as a constitutional mon-

The shah, his rule shaken by 12 months of bloody unrest, indicated he might leave Iran temporarily and allow formation of a regency council in his place. Newspapers that closed down in protest of military censorship began reappearing Saturday and the curfew in Tehran was eased in accordance with Bakhtiar's pledge to gradually dismantle martial law. The curfew, which has begun at 9 p.m. since martial law was imposed in September, will now start at 11 p.m. each night.

Reaction was mixed to the Bakhtiar government, which replaces a militaryled Cabinet installed two months ago to quell anti-shah rioting

In the holy city of Qom, almost 100,000 people marched through the streets de-manding the shah's abdication and establishment of an Islamic republic. But there were no reports of violence and most Iranian cities were reported quiet

In Paris, the shah's leading opponent, the exiled Ayatullah Khomaini, called Bakhtiar's government "illegal" and urged his followers to fight for its down-

"Continue your struggle," he urged Iranians in a statement. "Do not hesitate for an instant, or the blood spilled until now for Islam and liberty will be lost. The monarchic regime is illegal, the cham-bers (of Parliament) non-representative and the government usurping and ille-

Aides of Khomaini said they telephoned Tehran on the ayatullah's orders Saturday and urged civil servants to physically prevent Bakhtiar's ministers from entering their offices.

Opposition Silent
The opposition National Front political coalition withheld comment.

Front leaders have called for a national day of mourning and a general strike to-day. But a spokesman for Khomaini said in Paris the religious leader had asked that the action be postponed one day, presumably to separate it from a mourn-ing period called by the new government for victims of fighting last weekend in the northeast city of Mashhad.

Officials said 106 persons died in the clashes between anti-shah protesters and government troops in Mashhad. The op-position claimed between 700 and 2,000 people were killed in the violence.

Cabinet Endorsed

Bakhtiar, an elegant, French-trained lawyer, presented his new Cabinet to the a ceremony at Niavaran Palace on the hills above Tehran and received the monarch's endorsement. According to the state news agency Pars, the shah told the new ministers he would remain loyal to the constitution of 1906, which limits the powers of the monarch.

"After tolerating the difficulties for a long time, I feel tired and therefore I need some relaxation," Pars quoted the shah as saying. "If such a relaxation would be outside Iran, it is obvious that, according to the constitution and Iranian tradition, a regency council would be

Shah Can Approve

Under the constitution, the shah is empowered to approve nominations of Cabinet ministers made by Parliament but not to select them himself. The constitution also makes clear that the shah should not be involved in the day-to-day operations of the government, but he has largely ignored the constitution in recent years and has exercised almost total control over the government.

There was no word on when the shah might begin a vacation. Bakhtiar said he hopes "we can settle all the problems

THE NEW administration of Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford will oppose probation for all first-degree felony offenses, Montford said at the end of his first week in office.

GATHERING THEIR FORCES for the forthcoming national tractorcade to Washington, the leaders of the American Agriculture Movement bear a strong resemblance to a staff of field generals preparing for all-out war.

From Montana to Texas to Georgia, embattled farmers are taking their plight to the people, holding gatherings, rallies and skull sessions in as many as three cities a day. National wagonmaster Gerald McCathern of Hereford and American Ag activists Alvin Jenkins and J.C. Lewis have met with farmers in many West Texas towns, including Plainview, Hereford, Dimmitt, Levelland and Dumas, since Wednesday. Today, all the national delegates will meet in Amarillo to finalize travel plans.

The military comparison may seem drastic, but American Ag leaders have taken to it themselves. At a rally in Plainview Thursday night, McCathern said, "We're like the American Revolutionaries 200 years ago. Don't forget they were a small band of

"They were called radicals and militants, but they were just fed up, and they had the courage to stand up and fight for what they thought was right. They persevered and were dedicated - and they won."

Make no mistake, these guys are serious. And they're angry — angry at low farm prices; at President Carter and Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, who they claim have done little to help their cause; at major grain corporations, who they feel are exploiting them; and at the press, which they say doesn't understand their prob-

McCathern, Jenkins and Lewis, speaking at the Plainview rally last week, lashed out at each of these institutions, but each speaker felt confident the farmer's battle for parity prices could be won with an impressive showing by the tractorcade. The drive to Washington will begin in seven cities from South Dakota to Texas, including Amarillo, Jan. 15. The farmers hope to arrive in the capital Feb. 2, exactly a week before a scheduled Congressional recess.

McCathern told of a meeting with U.S. Sen. John Tower in which Tower told him, "You don't know how much of an impression you made last year. You didn't get a

Abolition Of Auto Property Taxation Favored By Lubbock Administrators

Avalanche-Journal Staff

INSTEAD OF EXEMPTING one automobile per household, as authorized by a new state constitutional amendment, the Texas Legislature ought to abolish property taxes on all family cars, city-school tax officials here say.

They believe a limited auto exemption would be so hard to administer that lawmakers might as well do away with ad valorem taxes on non-business cars.

That is the message they have given state Rep. Froy Salinas, who fully agrees. He said he plans to introduce such a bill during the legislative session which begins Tuesday.

'My hope is to wipe out taxes on the family car. It's a tax that is unfairly and inefficiently administered. And administratively it would be too difficult to exempt only a certain number of cars per family," Salinas said.
Until this year, the Texas Constitution required governments to levy taxes on such personal property as automobiles. In practice, however, many taxing jurisdictions - Houston, El Paso and San Antonio among them - ignored the mandate,

"This is why the tax is unfair. Some cities, like Lubbock, pursue property taxes on automobiles; other cities just look

In November, Texas voters overwhelmingly passed the socalled "Tax Relief Amendment." That added to the constitution a passage Salinas sponsored regarding automobiles. During last summer's special legislative session, Salinas had wanted to include in the proposed amendment a ban on ad valorem taxes on family cars. But lawmakers from some other cities - like Dallas, which is successful at collecting car taxes opposed the suggestion, he said.

So Salinas, settling for a compromise, got his colleagues to put in the proposed amendment a passage authorizing the legislature to exempt from property taxes the same kinds of personal property already exempt from forced sale for debts, as

one car and truck per family. John Brooks, assessor-collector for the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District, warned before and after the constitutional amendment passed that such an exemption would be an "administrative nightmare."

The city-school tax office will have enough trouble maintaining an auto tax roll under the new system of staggered vehicle registration, Brooks said.

Exempting one or two vehicles per family compounds the problem greatly, he said. "If a family has more than two cars, which are we supposed to exempt? It might be necessary to have all car owners render their property and tell us which ve-

Company spokesmen were unavailable immediately for comment Saturday.

Grospiron, head of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, said at a news conference that it was clear "from where I sit that the oil companies have been unreasonable and that labor hasn't been getting its fair share."

The oil companies are "hiding behind the voluntary Carter guidelines to deny their hourly employees sufficient wage and fringe benefit improvements," he

While expressing pessimism about progress in the contract talks, Grospiron emphasized negotiations were continuing and could run past the deadline.

"As of now, I do not intend to call for strike action," he said. "We are still bargaining and a decision on possible strike action will be made at the time the contracts expire.

The union is asking for a "substantial" increase in wages and fringe benefits.

Under the two-year contract that expires Sunday, oil workers average $8.82 an Grospiron said Carter's guidelines "would limit the pay raises of the wage earners of the country, but will do nothing to keep prices from rising at their usual rapid rate." Meanwhile, he said, the oil industry "is exempt from the price guidelines, even though high energy costs are one of the causes of inflation.'

He also maintained the oil worker is "not the cause of high gasoline prices. The refinery wage cost of a gallon of gasoline is less than nine-tenths of one

It was unclear what effect a strike would have on oil production. Grospiron said he knew of some refineries that would be shut down in the event of a strike, which he said makes it obvious "there would be some effect."

However, no severe shorages are anticipated for several months because the industry is highly automated and management personnel are prepared to take over operations of the refineries.

Board Delays Presidential Pick Until New UT Regents Chosen

AUSTIN (AP) - University of Texas regents voted Saturday to delay selection of a new president for UT-Austin in what one disgruntled member called a "power

The regents said they would choose a successor for retiring President Lorene Rogers "at the earliest possible date" from a list of three names submitted by a special advisory committee.

Next regular meeting of the regents is

The committee, which included regents, students and faculty members, nominated Peter Flawn, acting director of UT's Marine Science Institute; Wayne Holtzman, president of UT's Hogg Foundation for Mental Health; and Paul Saltman, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of California at San Die-

Regents Chairman Allan Shivers wanted the board to make a selection before his term and those of regents James Austin expire at mid-month. Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will appoint three regents before he leaves office Jan. 16 and has given no indication whether Shivers, Clark or Bauerle will be reappointed.

All three are appointees of former Gov. Preston Smith. Briscoe appointed the other six regents.

"I wouldn't say I am necessarily disappointed. If the board wants more time for study, that's fine," said Shivers, who has publicly criticized Briscoe's education policies but contributed to his Democratic primary campaign against John

Only Bauerle publicly voted against the delay but he said the regents were closely divided in the closed meeting at which they thrashed out their decision.

Asked if it was a 5-4 split, he said; "Something similar to that."

'It was a power play to keep it (the decision on the presidency) for the new board," Bauerle said.

He said a vote on the crucial decision was "taken away from the three retiring regents" by the Briscoe appointees.
Regent Tom Law of Fort Worth, who supported the delay, denied a power play was involved. "I'm sorry he (Bauerle) feels that way. I'm a little surprised that he does," Law

Law said six of the regents had never met Saltman and wanted a chance to do so before making their decision. Saltman "made an enormous impression on the committee.... " Law said.

Dignitaries Bid Wallace Farewell

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - Surrounded by family, dignitaries and entertainers, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace said a farewell and a thank-you to longtime supporters Saturday, telling them, 'I do love you."

Wallace, who leaves office Jan. 15, told hundreds of well-wishers "thanks for letting me be your instrument" to bring about change in the country.

The wheelchair-bound governor said it was "you, the people of Alabama, who allowed me to do what I did." And, he said, "your efforts have paid off."

He thanked his supporters for electing him governor three times, for electing his first wife, Lurleen, governor once and for backing his three campaigns for the pres-

Speaking with vigor, the governor con-cluded, "I do love you. I'll still be around. I don't know what my future will be ... whether there will be any political future. So I'll just say so long for awhile.

God bless you, my friends."

With that, Wallace was lowered off the stage to the floor of Garrett Coliseum where he spent the next hour shaking as many hands as could reach him.

Home Sales Still Booming Despite Rising Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — The average price of a new home is almost $10,000 more than at the start of last year and the combined increase in both price and mortgage rates could mean a difference of al-most $100 in the monthly mortgage pay-

Despite that, nearly 2 million new housing units were built last year, a nearrecord. That has led many economists to revise their ideas about home buying

While housing is expected to slow in the face of double-digit mortgage rates, the combination of the wider awareness of housing as an inflation hedge and the continued availability of funds to finance mortgages for most of the year led to surprising housing strength in 1978.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported this past week that by Decempoint lower at 9.15. Calculations on the University pointed out one key reason $97 a month or about $35,000 over the life of the loan - are only rough guides to a typical experience since rates vary widely from region to region and so do downpayment terms.

But they do point up the rapid increase in housing costs due in part to a demand, not only for more homes, but for bigger and better homes by those in a position to trade up from one house to another. In the process, new homes have increasingly come to include more baths, larger garages, larger lots and other extras like central air conditioning or built-in appli-

In a study last year, E. Scott Maynes, chairman of the Department of Consum-

The difference in monthly payments — "Inflation favors debtors, as does the "Inflation favors debtors, as does the income tax system. The larger the mortgage payment, the more interest can be deducted on federal and state tax forms. Property taxes also can be deducted."

Assuming a continuous rate of inflation at 6 percent and assuming the buyer's income keeps pace with that, Maynes projects that the mortgage dollar will take only half as much of your income in 12 years as it did at the start and only onequarter as much 25 years in the future. But, he notes, that in practice, the system also provides bigger breaks in the

But the current levels of prices and interest rates are already making it difficult for some people to come up with downpayments or convincing others to delay home purchases in hopes of lower interest rates later

Industry organizations have been forecasting a decline of 15 percent to 25 percent in new housing starts this year from nearly 2 million in 1978. They also anticipate mortgage interest rates that may peak at 11.5 percent.

But the trend over the longer run is likely to be continued demand for homes. That is likely to squeeze young home buy-

In recent remarks before the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, Milton Hudson, a senior vice president at Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., noted that more than 40 million Americans will reach the prime home-buying age of 30 in the 1980s as the post-war babies grow older.

"Translating need into effective demand will involve overcoming some formidable hurdles if serious inflation persists, especially for the first-time home

This has significant implications. There may well have to be some orientation toward more economical, more energy-efficient homes - paralleling the trend in (compact) cars," he said.

In other business developments this past week:

- Carter administration officials said they would not be asking Congress to imum wage in 1980 and 1981 despite some pressure to do so as part of the antiinflation fight.

The minimum wage rose from $2.65 to $2.90 an hour Jan. 1, and under law is supposed to rise again to $3.10 next Jan. 1 and to $3.35 on New Year's Day 1981. One Carter official said deferring the two scheduled increases would have a "tiny, almost imperceptible effect on the inflation rate.' - Americans bought a record 15.41 million domestic and foreign cars and trucks in 1978, a 3.7 percent increase from the old record of 14.86 million set in 1977. But industry figures showed that sales of imported cars slowed partly because foreign automakers raised prices to make up for the decline in the value of the dollar against their currencies.

U.S. domestic auto sales rose 2.3 percent while imported car sales fell about 3.3 percent. That translated into a drop in the imports' share of the U.S. market to 17.7 percent from 18.5 percent in 1977.

- The Energy and Justice departments accused nine major oil companies of overcharges totaling more than $1 billion. The department also is seeking refunds plus interest and penalties in a federal court suit. The Energy Department said the alleged overcharges involved failure to comply with natural gas price regula-tions. The latest suit is the largest single action to date and brings to about $2.2 hillion the total of overcharges claimed in various government suits since 1977. Oil companies have denied over-pricing and complained that the government regulations are vague and subject to different interpretations.

Mart Snaps Lengthy Holding Pattern; Prices Soaring In '79

apparently hasn't heard that 1979 isn't ing to be much of a year for the economy, if the boom of the year's first week is any indication.

After spending the last two months of 1978 in a holding pattern, stock prices took off in the first few days of 1979. And analysts attributed the sudden burst of strength to reaction to those

November and December doldrums. "One of the reasons you can say the narket went up is because it did not go lown," said Newton D. Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co.

"The market just refused to go lower, no matter what news we had thrown at It," said Eldon A. Grimm, an analyst at Birr. Wilson & Co. "After it wouldn't go down, the next direction was up.

The bad news - and there was plenty in the price of crude oil voted by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the unrest in Iran, gloomy economic prognostications for 1979, continuing inflation and spiraling interest rates.

But the week's news indicated that some of those problems may be diminishing - the Iranian situation began to stabilize, for instance, and the dollar showed strength. So the market went up. The Dow Jones industrial average finished at 830.73, a 25.72-point rise on the week. The New York Stock Exchange's composite average of more than 1,500 common stocks gained 1.79 to 55.41. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 7,10 to 157.66 The market's rise got a resounding vote of confidence in the form of robust volid trading levels that characterized the last few weeks of 1978. Volume for the week was 109.70 million shares on the NYSE, an average of 27.42 million shares

Zinder said the losses in the last days of December, many of them the result of investors selling to beat an anticipated slump in the early part of 1979, may have been self-defeating.

'We sensed that some of the weakness late last week, particularly in the glamor sector, was in expectation that this year, as the past two, would start off on a sour note," said Zinder, "There was no selling left to be done.

Grimm also noted that many institutional investors have been playing a waiting game of late and may be starting to trickle back into the market. "There's a record amount of institutional money on the sidelines," he said. "And it's getting a little itchy.

Sharp Rally Traced To Summit, Dollar

By J.L. HUTCHESON

SCHNEIDER, BERNET & HICKMAN, INC. The stock market mounted a broad and sharp rally this week on speculation that the summit conference on the French island of Guadeloupe would bring some announcement from Carter on further measures to stablize the dollar.

Trading was active.

Spured by news reports of apparently successful moves toward a government transition in Iran and the success of the dollar in holding its sharp gains Wednesday and Thursday on the foreign exchange markets, the Dow Jones industrial average rose steadily through the week and closed Friday on a most

After the market close Thursday, the Federal Reserve announced that the nation's basic money supply in the week ended Dec. 29 fell $600 million. This news was greeted by investors with enthusiasm since it was considerably better than the increase which had been forecast by many analysts.

This week's strong performance inspired some bullish views of the market's course. Many analysts were predicting a short-term move to between 880 to 900, with something higher than these estimates not being unrealistic. Analysts maintain that the market performance during the first five days of a year has been an 85 percent accurate gauge of its full-year direction since 1950. Most analysts look for a strong rally on heavy volume this month.

Over the longer term, market experts see a battle between the pull of high interest rates and pressure of the large amount of money that has accumulated on the sidelines. Most market observers are encouraged by the way the market has absorbed an enormous amount of negative news during the past Analysts feel that there are two key elements at work in this market which make a negative stance unprofitable. These are, the institutional cash reserves, which appear to be at record-high levels, and the fact that institutional grade equities are presently being valued extremely conservatively by histori-

Volume this week was the highest it has been in more than two months as institutional investors, laden with cash from year-end deposits, came off the sidelines to help fuel the rally. There were large increses in trades involving more than 10,000 shares, which would indicate renewed activity by institu-

Customs Inspector Airs Search Criteria

By KIM COBB

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The harried tourist trying to beat the rush hour traffic across the Mexican border into the United States is often bewildered when his car is singled out to be inspected.

Perhaps he doesn't look "quite right" to the customs inspector, who had a hunch the tourist might be smuggling something. But more often than not, the selection of a car for inspection is simply one of chance.

Lubbock's port director for the U.S. Customs Service, Melvin Schneider, worked for several years as a customs inspector in Eagle Pass. He recently explained some of the criteria used by inspectors in singling out cars to be "Of course there are certain mechanical enforcement aids," Schneider said. A complex computer network connects each customs station with several federal agencies as well as Interpol.

Customs officials may check the background of a suspected smuggler through their own computer terminal or by calling a toll-free number with a hook-up to a central computer.

But instinct plays a big part in customs work, according to Schneider.

Smugglers come from all walks of life," he said.

Border checkpoints are divided into primary lanes, through which all traffic passes, and secondary lanes, where individual cars are pulled over for inspection. An inspector usually has three to five seconds to size up a car as it moves through the primary lane to decide whether an inspection may be needed.

'You talk to people," Schneider said, adding that pieces of conversation may not sound right to an inspector. For example, he said, a man crossing the border with a clean car, one suitcase and a pinata in the back seat who claims to have spent two weeks in Guadalajara will probably get his car checked. The man may have had his car washed just minutes before crossing the border and may travel light, Schneider said. The vast majority of inspections produce negative results, he admitted. "But if you don't look you won't find anything," he added.

Many experienced smugglers are excellent actors, Schneider said. But the inexperienced smuggler will be given away by his thoughts and actions.

"All at once something will ring a bell. Some people may go a lifetime and not get caught," he said. " We don't know about them. "Others will drop the ball sometime."

"We're not looking for narcotics every time we pull someone into the second lane," Schneider explained. Tourists who try to bring fruit, pets and plants into the

Stricter Inspections Of Trucks Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Transportation Department is inviting states to join in a $3 million program to increase highway safety through more stringent weighing and inspection of trucks.

The department said Friday that the program is designed to demonstrate that increased highway safety and reduced frequency of truck highway accidents can result from better enforcement of truck weight and safety regulations.

The department intends to fund demonstration programs in from three states over a 3-year period.

country pose a big problem as well, he

Customs officials are picky about plants and animals because of their disease-carrying potential, he said.

Despite the checks made on cars for reasons of suspicion, customs officials rely heavily on random checks. Border inspectors may decide to check every car of a certain color or every license plate ending with a certain number. The object of the random searches is to get a representative sample.

Inspectors also use a method they have nicknamed ' the blitz" as a means of choosing cars to check. The border supervisor may announce a check of the next 10 cars and the entire group of automobiles will be pulled into the secondary lane for inspection.

"It's a good deterrent," Schneider said of random checks. "You don't know when it's going to happen."

Inspectors have come to know some of the most common methods used by amateur smugglers crossing the border, Schneider said. Typically, the tourist or traveller will try to pass off a new, foreign-made item as an older, U.S.-made

Again, an experienced customs official knows what kind of clothing and jewelry is common to a particular country and can usually spot the pretenders.

But guilty of smuggling or not, people typically react with embarrassment at the opening of their luggage, Schneider

"Well, that customs inspector has seen maybe 1,000 suitcases in one week. And one person's lingerie is just about the same as another's.

Weather Service Predicts Colder, Drier January

By CURTIS BURTON

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Texas and South Plains weather outlook for January calls for below normal temperatures and slightly below normal precipitation following a cold and enerally dry December, according to the National Weather Service.

Forecasters, however, say there are indications that the first 10 to 12 days of the month will bring slightly above normal precipitation.

January is normally one of the driest months of the year with precipitation usually measuring from below .50 of an inch in West Texas to near .75 in East

This year amounts ranging from about .10 inch to .50 inch can be expected, mostly in the form of snow, sleet or freez-

January is the coldest month of the year in most portions of the High Plains. Average minimums range from slightly below 20 degrees in the north to near 30 degrees in the south.

Maximums vary from the upper 40s in the north to the upper 50s in the south. Strong cold frontal passages are common in January, occasionally dropping temperatures into the sub-teens in the north and the teens in the conth. and the teens in the south.

Occasional warm spells result in 60 de gree readings for several days between cold fronts. Forecasters say indications point to a colder than normal January

Light precipitation during the last several days in December has returned the soil moisture profile to a fair-to-good category. Forecasters say that additional periods of intermittent precipitation are needed this winter to insure a good subsoil moisture supply for spring planting.

In December, all 29 reporting stations observed an average monthly temperature which was below normal. The average South Plains departure was 4.2 de-grees below normal with extremes of 1.6 degrees below normal at Snyder and 6.4 degrees cooler than normal at Littlefield. Lubbock was 2.6 degrees below normal.

Average maximum temperatures were older than normal, except at Snyder, where the average maximum was one-half degree warmer than usual. At the other extreme, Hereford's average high

North Carolina Village Honors Old Christmas

RODANTHE, N.C. (AP) — The rest of the nation may have put the holidays behind them, but the 150 residents of this small coastal village ste, drank and made merry Saturday in a raucous celebration of "Old Christmas."

Christmas in January has been a tradition for Rodanthe residents since 1752 when their forefathers defied King George II and refused to go along with the Gregorian calender, the dates of which came 10 days later than under the old

Since then this Outer Banks village has celebrated Christmas each year on the Saturday closest to Jan. 5.

The Outer Bankers do not appear to have mellowed much from their ancestors — the Old Christmas celebration is plain and has a reputation for becoming rowdy and brawling.

The ceremonial part of Old Christmas is the appearance of Old Buck, a legendary steer that is said to have been the lone survivor of a wrecked cattle ship. Old Buck hides out in the Outer Banks woods and is seen only at Old

"That's the story somebody told, but I don't know about that," said John Herbert, 81, who has been the Keeper of Old Buck for more than 35 years.

"I took it (the post) from my wife's grandfather. Don't know why I did, but I did," he said.

The keeper's job is to lead a snorting, cavorting Old Buck through the crowd at the signal from an ancient drum.

Herbert said he bought the horns Old Buck wears in New York about 25 years ago. Old Buck's four legs belong to two local merry-makers.

"When he (Old Buck) makes his exit, the dancing begins," said John Blizzard, manager of the Dare County Tourist Bureau. "And from then on, anything goes. The whole thing gets to be pretty rowdy."

The threat of fisticuffs breaking out was a main topic of conversation at last year's Old Christmas party, but no serious blows were exchanged.
"There used to be more fighting," said one man who identified himself as Old Buck's back legs. "They would fight until the last man would fall."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal law enforcement agencies waste untold sums of money because the right hand rarely knows what the left hand is doing, according to President Carter's government reorganization team.

More than 100 federal agencies spend $5 billion a year on law enforcement responsibilities but no one has authority to coordinate their activities, the team says coordinate their activities, the team says in its final report to department heads.

As a result, the report said, much activity is duplicated and money and staff

Last year, the team proposed several steps designed to improve efficiency, but administration officials are still studying whether and how those recommenda-tions should be implemented. The final report, distributed as the week ended, sketched the problems but offered no ew recommendations.

The lack of coordination may have resulted from "a meteoric growth in the number of federal law enforcement agencies," the team suggested. "Interestingly enough, over one-third of the 113 agen-cies surveyed did not exist at the beginning of 1970."

More and more agencies built up siza-ble budgets for duties ranging from guarding federal property to investigat-ing election campaign violations. But no one is in charge of overall law enforcement policy, the report noted.

FBI Director Foresees Problems With 'Hordes' Of Chinese Spies

By GREGORY GORDON

William Webster says he is worried that the opening of full U.S.-Peking relations will bring "hordes" of Communist Chinese spies into America under student matic cover.

He said he has already begun beefing up FBI counterintelligence forces to handle this anticipated espionage problem, which may focus on attemps to ferret out U.S. technological secrets.

In an interview with UPI, Webster said the recognition of China "unquestionably will present new challenges to the FBI, which has the responsibility for foreign counterintelligence in this country."

He noted U.S. officials expect China will eventually send about 2,000 envoys of various kinds to the United States seeking "parity" with the Soviet contingent - and several hundred exchange students as well.

That influx, he said, will present a problem that "in terms of the national interest, we need to be concerned about."

Referring to the exchange students that have already begun arriving, Webster said, "If they are not coming over as espionage agents, they are coming over as in-telligence gatherers."

It is common knowledge among western intelligence experts that commu nations routinely assign students, trade envoys and the like to supplement the work of professional spies by gathering technological, military or political infor-mation related to their fields.

Webster also suggested the United WASHINGTON (UPI) - FBI Director States could face a parallel espionage threat from the disgruntled Nationalist Chinese, whose diplomatic relations were broken when Peking gained recog-

> "We have the question, of course, of the Republic of China (on Taiwan)," he said, "whether its posture will change whether we have to keep track of them,

He said the Communist Chinese espi nage problem has been discussed within the bureau's top ranks "and there are ongoing discussions about all of the aspects of recognition of the People's Republic of China."

During the hour-long interview, Webster also:

- Referred to disclosures about corruption and abuses within the FBI as "archaeology" involving cases years earlier. "I really feel good about the bureau," he said. "I think we've got our confidence back." Citing a series of successful prosecutions of hijackers, terrorists and organized crime elements, Webster said in the last year "there's just no instance ... where we fell on our face doing the job."

Confirmed a former agent's charge that FBI men have commonly set up phony informant files, but added: "We've cured that." Webster said FBI officials in the past often put agents unthat was, as they say in show biz. It was puzzling, revealing, dramatic, dull and decidely the strangest week of testimony in the murder conspiracy trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

It was a week of great expectations and lesser delivery, although the defense did rest, a milestone in itself.

"The jury is tired, the attorneys are tired and I think the jurors have heard about all they need to hear," said prosecutor Jack Strickland.

"All in all, I think we did very good. We will try to keep the rebuttal testimony short. I don't know exactly how many witnesses we will call, but not many." Speaking for the defense, Phil Burleson

"I feel that the evidence shows Cullen is not guilty of any criminal involvement. I think the jury sees that the state does not have a case.

Precisely what the jury sees is any-body's guess, but it did not see much of what occurred in the courtroom last

The jurors did see a confident Davis repeatedly deny involvement in an alleged scheme to murder his divorce judge, his wife, his brother and a dozen others.

-Two prosecutors taking the witness stand to answer defense accusations that they posed questions to a witness in "bad faith." Moore said they did not.

-An angry judge threatening to jail a used car salesman who refused to identi-fy the "district attorney's investigaetor" who he said advised him not to testify here. The defense witness admitted he was mistaken.

Responded Strickland:

"As far as appearance, he was a good witness, neither arrogant nor cold. But the substance of what he said was weak ognize that."

After testimony by key defense witness Hershel Payne, a lawyer friend of Davis, the defense insisted he had supplied essential corroboration to Davis' story. Prosecutors contended Payne dealt

Davis a critical if not fatal blow. So went the tense week in the bizarre trial, one which defense lawyers say will reach the jury by Thursday. "If you believe that," quipped a reporter, "you believe in the tooth fairy."

Reese's Major William Carney Wins ATC Award

Avalanche-Journal Staff A deep satisfaction with jobs past and a bright anticipation for the mountain slopes of tomorrow's challenges - that is Maj. William L. Carney, the Air Training Command's outstanding Air Force aircraft maintenance senior manager for 1978.

Inspiring others to do their best on the job, and then better that standard by continuing education, helped bring the ATC honor his way. It also gives him job satisfaction.

Challenging young airmen to better their self image and have a more responsive role intoday's changing world brings him a deeper personal satisfaction. It may give him more impact on the future, passing on to others what he has gained in extensive research of history and political philosophy.

Bettering the job was done this year as commander of the Field Maintenance Squadron at Reese Air Force Base.

Improving the personnel concept of world happenings was done as an instructor on the communism and socialism segments of Phase III, NCO Leadership School, at Reese. Carney helps in another sphere through his off-duty work with the base chapel which includes being a Lay Eucharistic Minister in the Catholic Church.

·Before coming to Reese, Carney patched up warbirds crip-pled in combat and sent them back into Southeast Asia action, then traveled the globe to build nesting places for the Air Force's most gigantic bird, the C-5 Galaxy.

Through all the varied assignments of his 14 years of service has run the thread of human contact making it all worth while.

Carney begins his new year as commander of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron at Reese. The ATC honor came for his leadership of the Field Maintenance Squadron.

The citation lauded his "executive ability, managerial talent and academic background" which "instilled a high degree of morals in his 560 military and civilian member work force to morale in his 560 military and civilian member work force, to dramatically improve the quality of maintenance."

During 1978, the appraisal noted, FMS "launched 50,000 sorties while supporting nearly 79,000 flying training hours."
FMS units maintain all parts of the jet aircraft at Reese except for a very few "protected by patent" or otherwise designated as factory items.

Everything from engines to parachutes get the special atten-tion of FMS troops which work with parts pulled from the air-

With OMS, Carney will be responsible for the working mechanism while it is in the aircraft.

Carney didn't start out to be a military man. Active duty was the requirement for Air Force ROTC assistance in obtaining a degree in pharmacy from Purdue University. His medical train-ing helped keep life on the sane side in Vietnam, giving comedic relief in times of exhaustion or boredom, with his crew adding 'the doc patched it up" to aircraft.

In Greece, where the American contingent was too small for pharaceutical service, Carney he filled prescriptions after duty

For a time, the medical knowledge made him the cruel American among his Greek acquaintances. Forcing his small daughter to move, instead of coddling her when she sustained burns over most of her body, was a thing not understood. His or mand of Greek was insufficient for explaining doctor's ord which must be followed to keep her flesh from growing toget

Only established rapport finally overcame the situation caused by his experience with medical matters and a doctor's Greeks give "total service to the child" — handfeeding 3-year olds and still entirely dressing 7-year-olds. They openly disapproved of American paddlings and the teaching of early self help.

While Greek children simply disappeared from view from Monday to Sunday, emerging for a Sunday family day, the Carney young went where their parents did, wherever history had been made — by Apostle Paul or the "Guns of Navarone" or any of centuries of happenings.

Keeping planes flying wasn't the original Air Force aim for the lowa native who grew up in Indiana. He was supposed to fly, but "an abdominal problem" kept him from domning wings after completing undergraduate pilot training at Vance AFB, Okia.

That touch with the wild blue yonder just might be the spark giving the extra zest for keeping the planes airborne the best, quickest way.

And, it could be his own continuing search for knowledge about history and its causes — whether the Panama Canal or the oil fields of Arabia, discord in this country and oppression under communism or any other — which puts the spark for

Study Links TV, Aggression

HOUSTON (AP) - Heavy doses of television - from police thrillers to game shows - make even preschool youngsters more aggressive in nursery school play, two Yale University researchers said Saturday.

A year-long study of 141 children, ages 3 and 4, indictates "a significant amount of (nursery school aggression) can in some way be attributed to the amount of television a child watches," said Jerome L. Singer of Yale.

He said television may acount for as much as 10 percent to 20 percent of the aggression found in the study, one of the first to deal with children so young. He made the comments at a news conference during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

gression held up, Singer said, even when taking into account differences in IQ scores, social class, ethnic background and other variables.

"Detective-action shows seem to be the most implicated," he said. "The second type of programming strongly implicated, especially among girls, are the frenetic situation comedies and the game shows where there's all that yelling and jumping around."

The study was conducted at Yale's Family Television Research and Consultation Center.

Interviews with parents indicated a major factor in the television-aggression relationship was "laxness of control over the TV set," Singer said. "The kids who merican Association for the Advance-ment of Science.

Were the most aggressive ... came from homes where the parents didn't care about monitoring television viewing."

"We certainly don't advocate getting rid of all the TV sets," said Singer's wife and co-worker, Dorothy G. Singer.

She said teachers and parents can learn to use television in a constructive way by discussing with children the social issues and questions raised by "some of the socalled good material. The question is how can you take the content of television and make it work for you."

She said the Yale research center is experimenting with a program to train teachers to instruct elementary school children to view television critically.

"We need to teach students to understand television in the same way we teach them to read a newspaper. Singer said the study involved monitoring children at play in nursery school while the parents logged the television programs each child watched.

Some Doctors Question Latest Estrogen Study

By KEVIN McKEAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Some physicians are complaining that the latest study linking estrogens with cancer is inconclusive and could cause an unnecessary scare among

They also are angry that Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Donald Kennedy asserted the study "should dispel controversy" over cancer danger of estrogens, which are used in contraceptives and given to many women during and after meno-

The Johns Hopkins study, published Thursday, said women who take estrogen to ease such change-of-life symptoms as hot flashes and pain during sexual intercourse run a six-times greater than normal risk of cancer of the uterine lining.

It was the largest study of its kind to date and the sixth in three years to draw an estrogen cases. Its

The Johns Hopkins investigators, led by Dr. Paul Stolley, emphasized that short-term use of the hormones — like six months to a year — posed a very low risk. It was those who used the drugs for more than five years who faced the greatest risk.

Yet clinicians who treat the estimated one-quarter of women who need medical help during menopause say patients are afraid to use estrogens even for valid complaints. "It's a shame for women who need treatment not to have it. They get so upset about the danger of cancer they won't take it," said Dt. Georgeanna S. Jones, chief of endocrine reproduction at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, Va.

Estrogen doses are higher in birth control pills but the cancer studies have focused on their use during menopause because contraceptives include the other female hormone, progesterone. There is some evidence the two together are less dangerous than

Since 1977, the FDA has required physicians to warn woman about the possible do gers of estrogen before prescribing it. The FDA also orders pharmaciats to give warning insert with each prescription.

In November, the New England Journal of Medicine, which has published most of the estrogen studies including the Johns Hopkins report, published an article by two Yale medical professors questioning the statistical methods of the earlier studies.

One of the two professors, Dr. Alvan Feinstein, said Friday he regarded the causes link as still unproved and added, "It certainly doesn't warrant any kind of follers de-

Landau said the FDA should not have acted until the scientific debate was resolved. The FDA, however, plans no changes in its labeling policy, said Wayne Pines, associate commissioner of public affairs.

Pines traced estrogen use to what he called "a feminine-forever mystique" promoted during the 1960s by patients, physicians and drug companies.

"There are still a large number of women who take them to feel younger, have better sex lives, or have softer skin as they grow older. What we're suying is there's no evidence estrogen helps in those regards and there is evidence it causes cancer," Pines said.

The American Cancer Society has estimated 37,000 women will get cancer of the uterine lining in 1979 and 3,300 will die from it.

"The major rise in cancer came eight or 10 years after the jump in sales, but that is what you would expect since the studies show the risk goes up the longer you take the drug," said Dr. Peter Greenwald, New York state's director of epidemiology.

There has been a leveling in the cancer rate since the first estrogen-cancer studies

Some experts attribute that to a decrease in estrogen prescriptions. They say it could mean estrogen has no lingering cancer-causing potential — that is, if you stop taking it, you end the risk.

Iran's Civilian Government Overlooks Widespread Resentment Against Shah

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The establishment of Iran's new civilian government Saturday does little to deal directly with the main cause of months of unrest: widespread resentment against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, monarch for 38 years.

The new government of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar promises to limit the monarch's power, and there is a strong possibility the shah will leave the country for an extended vacation. But Bakhtiar said Saturday that the shah will remain on his throne, despite demands by strikers and rioters who have paralyzed Iran for weeks that he step down.

Resentment against the shah runs broad and deep in Iran, uniting many social classes. Despite the enormous economic strides Iran has made under his rule, almost every segment of the population has some grievance against the 59-year-old monarch.

"The most important factor is that the shah and his government treated the people badly," asserts Rahmat Mostafavi, a leading Tehran lawyer and writer. "I know many distinguished university professors who were forced like children to parade in support of the shah, and some of these people are turning in anger now to Khomaini (the shah's chief religious opponent)."

"In the shah's 1963 land reform, the peasants were happy to get land distributed to them, of course," Mostafavi said. "But it was handed out to them like a tip, and the peasants were as powerless in it as the landlords were."

and the peasants were as powerless in it as the landlords were."

Middle-class Iranians complain of tangled government bureaucracy, pervasive corruption and a double standard that has let the shah's favorites get rich while

Odessan Faces Murder Charge

ODESSA (UPI) — An Odessa man has been charged with murder in the 1977 shooting of Raymond Carl White of Odessa, who had been missing 17 months, Ector County authorities said Saturday.

Steven Perrin, 21, was charged Friday and jailed in lieu of $50,000 bond, said Sheriff Elton Faught. No trial date had been set.

Perrin led authorities Friday to a small, crude gravesite 12 miles west of Odessa where White's body was unearthed.

The body, stuffed head-first into the shallow grave and wrapped in towels, sheets and plastic, was fairly well-preserved. An autopsy showed White died of a gunshot wound to the back of his head. White's mother reported him missing Aug. 15, 1977, and told authorities she suspected foul play.

Perrin, who had been held without bond for alleged violation of a 10-year felony probation, voluntarily told officials of White's death. White was shot in his home sometime in mid-1977, investigator Jerry Davis said Perrin told them.

Davis said Perrin's statement was made after an investigation and gatherAnalysis

Merchants in Iranian bazaars, now hotbeds of anti-shah sentiment, complain that anti-corruption and price-control squads organized by the shah hit bazaar businesses severely, but wealthy businessmen backed by the monarchy made fortunes with no government interference.

At Iranian universities, young people complain most about a lack of democracy and about the oppression by SAVAK, the shah's secret police.

"We don't have even one person here who supports the shah," claimed a 25-year-old student at the Tehran University medical school who would identify himself only as Assadi. A 32-year-old resident at the school's teaching hospital who gave his name as Mohammad said students were demanding equal justice for all citizens, free elections and an end to what they call U.S. imperialism in Iran.

Like many opponents of the shah, Mohammad was unsure of just what kind of government should replace him.

"But the first thing is to get rid of the shah," he insisted. "We'll work the rest out later. Things can't be worse than they are now."

Much of the religious-based opposition to the shah stems from his modernization policies, designed to make the country an industrial state unencumbered by Moslem traditions. Nine years ago, for instance, he abolished a husband's right to divorce his wife at his own whim, and required that a man's first wife give written permission for him to add a second wife to his household.

ing of evidence. Until Perrin's statement, there were no leads to White's disappearance, he said.

The gravesite was in a pasture about a quarter mile south of Interstate 20 and was about two-feet wide by about three-feet deep, said Davis.

Women also may take part in politics now and are guaranteed equal educational opportunities.

"People aren't really against these new laws, but they just haven't been ready for them as quickly as they have been introduced," Mostafavi said. "When you want to modernize, you must go to the roots of a problem, not just declare things changed."

Mostafavi believes the country is suffering a bad case of "future shock," brought on not only by changes in traditional life but also by the huge infusion of oil money.

He acknowledged that Iran "has lived on corruption for 2,500 years" and that dishonesty wasn't invented under Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

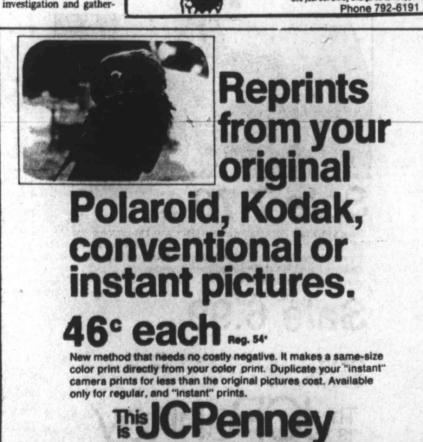

"But now that there is so much money and corrupt people live so lavishly, people are very upset," he said. "It used to be that a rich person might eat a little better and have a second carriage. Now he has five cars, goes to Europe 10 times a year, and his wife, who used to stay indoors because of religious custom, parades around with jewels."

The shah's government stresses that per-capita income in the country has leaped in the past decade from $150 to $2,500 a year, and that Iranians are now living better than ever. But much of the country's wealth hasn't seeped down to the civilian population. Many entrepreneurs have transferred their profits out of the country instead of investing them here. Inflation is exceeding 50 percent.

A powerful coalition against the monarch has now grown up among those farmers unhappy about land reforms, Moslem leaders angry about an end to traditions, merchants upset by big entrepreneurs, students demanding political freedoms and ordinary workers distressed by corruption, bureaucracy and the lavish life of the rich.

Iranian political observers are uncertain whether the Bakhtiar government can appease all these people as long as the shah, even nominally, remains on his throne.

Iran Newspaper Ends Strike Protesting Military-Enforced Press Censorship

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A strike at Tehran's daily Ettelaat newspaper called two months ago to protest military-enforced press censorship ended Saturday, and a banner headline on the front page proclaimed: "People's Revolution About to

As the presses began to roll, printers chanted, "Greetings to Khomaini!" a reference to the Ayatullah Khomaini, self-exiled leader of Iran's dominant Shitte Moslem sect. Printers intoned the traditional Moslem invocation: "Hail Mohammad and his family,"

The press run began after the new civilian government of Shahpour Bakhtiar was approved by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Bakhtiar has pledged to support a free press in Iran.

Khomaini, from his home in Paris, urged the journalists to return to work and thanked them for "refusing to submit to the dictatorial regime's censorship."

"We have been preparing three days for the first edition because we knew censorship was being lifted," said Gholam Hossein Salehyar, Ettelaat's editor-inchief. "But we didn't start actual publication until Khomaini gave the order."

Mossadeq, who nationalized Iran's oil industry, was ousted by the shah in 1953 after the monarch returned from a brief flight abroad.

-Another headline on Ettelaat's front page said: "Shah Will Go Abroad For Rest."

The shah has indicated he would like to take a vacation but has not said he will

Salehyar, the editor, said the press "is not in favor of any government" and that "personally, I give Bakhtiar only a very narrow chance for success."

The strike was called last Nov. 4 after the military government of Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari appointed a press censor and arrested a number of newspaper editors.

As soon as the papers hit the streets, newsstands were innundated by eager customers. Before the strike, Ettelaat published about 200,000 copies a day. Salehyar said Saturday's press run would "go beyond one million if technically possible"

In a sombre analysis little noticed when it came out in July 1976, the Senate subcommittee on foreign assistance said the United States could pay dearly for its free-wheeling military aid program should the shah's government fall victim to the type of rebellion now taking place. The report noted that many thousands of Americans had taken up residence in Iran to assist that nation in mastering its expanding arsenal of ultra modern U.S. weapons. It said this huge community could become a natural target for antiAmerican backlash in the event of a political upheaval, and a source of leverage for a hostile Tehran regime seeking to en-sure continued U.S. military support. # San Antonio's Municipal Auditorium Gutted By Fire; Arson Suspected

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A predawn blaze Saturday gutted the historic, 52-year-old Municipal Auditorium, causing an estimated $7 million damage. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined, but officials said they "are not ruling out arson."

It took nearly eight hours for about 80 fire fighters and more than a dozen pieces of equipment to bring the three-alarm blaze under control in the downtown facility.

Three fire fighters were slightly injured, two of them hospitalized, said assistant fire chief Jim Miller.

The inside of the 132,000-square foot, 6,300-seat facility was destroyed, but the stone walls and roof remained intact despite 'extensive" damage. Officials feared, however, that the building would collapse.

'I'd say the building is totally lost," said assistant fire chief Reyes Lopez. "We're very concerned about the walls and roof. That's why we're keeping very few personnel in the building."

Miller added, "We don't yet know the exact cause, but we're

"We're estimating the damage at $7 million," he said. "That's just from eyeballing the thing and knowing what we do know

The fire apparently began in the basement about 5 a.m., officials said. It might have begun in several locations simultaneously, although that was impossible to determine immediately, said Miller.

Lopez theorized that the blaze could have begun after a transient started a fire in an attempt to fend off near-freezing temperatures Friday night

The distinctive, Moorish-style auditorium was opened in September, 1926. It was built then for $1.5 million, and city officials said it is now insured for $4.7 million, which will not cover the total cost of replacing it. "There sure are a lot of memories burning up in there," one police officer said at the scene.

"This is a terrible loss," said City Councilman Henry Cisne-

Personnel Inadequate To Serve Tax Suit Papers, Sheriff Says

The Lubbock County Sheriff's Department says it doesn't have enough deputies to serve the hundreds of tax suits being filed by the city-school tax office.

"We don't have the personnel to keep up with all those suits. We haven't been able to serve a single one yet," Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard said.

Blanchard said he hopes to meet with the county commissioners later this month to seek authorization for additional employees. Commissioners have turned down such requests in the past.

The city-school tax department is using computers to print and file lawsuits against delinquent accounts on personal

In mid-November 93 such suits, all involving automobiles, were filed in justice-of-the-peace courts here. Last month saw 98 more suits filed. All are on amounts under $200

In filing the suits, the city-school tax department simultaneously sends defendants a notice of the legal action. The notice informs defendants that if they pay immediately, they will save at least $8 - the court costs of having papers served by sheriff's deputies.

The notices have prompted payment from many of the taxpayers sued, said Don Romines, assistant collections supervisor in charge of the computer-driven system.

Of November's 93 suits, 28 already have been settled, Romines said. And of December's 98 defendants, 18 have paid in full and five have worked out payment schedules, he said

More impressive than the statistics, Romines said, is that "the word is getting around" about the tax office's get-tough policy on delinquent auto accounts. Some of the defendants have told relatives and friends, who in turn have settled their Romines said he realizes getting the suits served is a bottleneck. But he said he believes the sheriff and the justices of the peace "are doing the best they can with the manpower they have."

"I talked to the JPs. They say the shortage of deputies is holding up the issuance of citations," Romines said.

Blanchard concedes he is "three weeks to a month behind" in serving papers. Even though all authorized employee positions are filled, the amount of suits is just too much for the present staff to handle," Blanchard said.

"We'll get them (the tax suits) served as soon as we can, but I can't promise when that will be."

At $8 per suit served, issuing the papers in person would be about a break even proposition, Blanchard said - provided he has the employees to serve the papers. The $8 is inadequate only when the deputies must search for the defendant's whereabouts.

Blanchard said it's possible to have the suits served by registered mail, but "people move around so much - some of them have moved two or three times that the letters would come back as unde-

City-school tax officials also prefer personal service by the sheriff's department because a defendant can refuse to sign for or accept a registered letter. Blanchard said he is preparing for the county commissioners a study documenting his need for more deputies.

sons in Lubbock and Idalou, 14 city, county and state officers, several of whom were home asleep, were there within a half-hour, he said.

"This case was my first direct experience with all of the law enforcement agencies here, and frankly, I believe that our individual officers and our patrolmen, the detectives, the sheriff's deputies and the Rangers are very sound officers and very dedicated," Montford said.

"I feel good about it," he said of his first week in office. "I don't think it's time to get the big head or anything like that because we're just getting started.

"This office is a lot of hard work. It's more demanding time-wise, in terms of night calls, than I had anticipated. If every week is like the first week, I'm going to have to sleep a lot on Sunday afternoons to get caught up on my rest.

"I missed two nights of sleep, and think they were so enthusiastic they didn't even notice it." Montford expects to be involved in prosecuting two criminal trials this week it was not clear which ones would be brought to court - while First Assistant Jim Darnell presents cases to the first grand jury sessions of the year.

The addition of an office administrator, Hal Hensley, to the staff "has seemed to give me already, I can tell, more time to stay on top of the actual prosecutions, the moving of cases in court. "For that reason, I think, the organization of the office is appearing to get off on a sound footing," he said.

"I think some of these people that have committed crimes and those that are contemplating it might believe now that my campaign talks were not a bunch of political rhetoric."

Injured Chilean Flamingo Given Leg Splint At Minnesota Zoo

ST. PAUL (UPI) - Although his legs aren't insured by Lloyds of London, they're show stoppers when he's standing in a pool.

So Como Zoo officials decided to splint their Chilean flamingo's leg after he injured it and developed tendinitis. The 1 1/2 pound bird, which normally would alternate legs to stand on, began to favor the injured leg, zoo foreman Jim Kemp said, and stood only on his

It was to the advantage of the young adult bird to receive medical attention so his foot section would not continue to turn backward, Kemp said.

In November, veterinarians from the University of Minnesota affixed a wire system that runs parallel with the bird's leg. The splint, which weighs a few ounces, is held on with gauze and tape and prevents the bird from turning his foot in the wrong direction.

The foot correction is checked once or twice a week and removed periodically. "But he wants to drift back into the old pattern," Kemp said, so the cast will remain on the bird until the correction is complete, possibly not until spring. The flamingo, a pink mass of feathers, is the only Chilean flamingo at the zoo. The mate was lost earlier, but Kemp said the zoo hopes to have another companion for the bird by spring. He said no one was certain at this point whether

Four-Power Parley Called Harmonious

SAINT FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (AP) - President Carter and three European allies, insisting their views are harmonious, ended a two-day summit in the sun Saturday, saying the West's new links with China should not be an obstacle to dealing with the Russians.

"We found no divergence among us," said French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, playing down evident differences of opinion over arms sales to China and support for the shah of Iran.

Giscard joined British Prime Minister James Callaghan and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in calling for conclusion of a strategic arms limitation agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union, and in urging the U.S. Senate to ratify it. Urges U.S. Approval

"I would like to urge the conclusion of the agreement," Callaghan said. "I think it would be a very sad day" if the Senate does not ratify the treaty, he added. Schmidt said he also hopes for quick ratification. Carter gave a glowing account of the meeting, saying: "Because of the almost unprecedented harmony that exists among us, I have never attended a conference that was more beneficial to me nor more substantive in nature.' Callaghan said the four spent much time discussing China, which the United States officially recognized on New Year's Day.

Social Gatherings

The four leaders met for a total of more than 10 hours Friday and Saturday in working sessions, and for many more hours in social gatherings that often included their wives.

The summit ended officially before lunch, and the four, who had spent much of the two days in shirt sleeves, donned jackets and ties for a final luncheon of grilled lobster in a beachside pavillion near the hotel that was the site of the Carter later went scuba diving. On the way to the luncheon they spoke to reporters for almost a half hour, including translations into English and French, but did not answer questions.

Arms Sales Disputed One of the main disagreements known to have surfaced at the summit was over the pace of British and French arms sales to China, which Schmidt warned might provoke the Soviets into making trouble, perhaps in Berlin.

Callaghan, who is reported ready to sell about 80 Harrier vertical takeoff jet fighters to the Chinese, said, "Our relations with the Soviet Union are as important to us as our relations with the Chinese.

Carter said China's emergence from decades of isolation from the West has been "constructive."

"We are determined to enhance this development and to ensure that it never becomes an obstacle to detente," he said.

Schmidt said he was in "full agree-should be expelled from Iran and that he should be imprisoned for life.

Khomaini initiated the oil strike in October in a bid to topple the shah by undermining the economy. Oil exports dropped from 5.5 million barrels to zero. The strike cut overall production to a low of 150,000 barrels a day, some 750,000 barrels short of what was needed to meet domestic needs, but some workers began returning to their jobs Friday to try to produce enough fuel for Iranians.

The Pars agency said two trains carrying a total of 180,000 gallons of heating oil and 250,000 gallons of kerosene were en route to Tehran Saturday from the oil region of Khuzestan. The shipments will ease shortages in the capital, and the resumption of oil production in general is expected to make Bakhtiar's task of governing easier.

His Cabinet is made up mostly of technocrats who had not previously served as government ministers. Among the most rominent members are Gen. Feraidum Jam, former chief of staff and ambassador to Spain, who took over the Defense Ministry, and Ahmed Mirfendereski, a career diplomat and onetime ambassador to the Soviet Union, who became foreign

The new government must undergo a vote of confidence by both houses of Parliament, a process that can take a week to 10 days. Pars said the new Cabinet held its first meeting Saturday and each minister was directed to submit his program to Bakhtiar by Monday.

Moslem holy men began the campaign against the shah one year ago to protest his Western-style modernization of Iran, which they claim undermines the na-tion's Islamic traditions. The shah's political foes joined the movement to press for an end to his authoritarian rule. Many of the opposition leaders in both factions say they will settle for nothing less than the shah's abdication.

Callaghan and Schmidt, especially, said they hope for not only a quick strategic arms limitation treaty, which would be the second SALT pact, but also for a new round of negotiations aimed at concluding a SALT III accord. Those talks would be aimed at making reductions in some mid-range nuclear weapons that threaten Europe but not the United States.

Callaghan said SALT III "would be of great benefit to us,"

Saturday's wrap-up session was devot-ed to discussions of world "hot spots," including the uprising in Iran and the threat it poses to Turkey, Pakistan and other countries bordering on the Soviet Union and in the region.

Callaghan said some of the problems discussed were "deeply disturbing. All four leaders, apparently responding to news reports of differences among them, tried to stress the theme of harmony and warm personal relations in their remarks to reporters.

"There can be differences of emphasis and nuance which are slight, which if we were not talking as friends, would have been substantial," said Callaghan.

farm bill, but you did raise some feelings." But, as McCathern vigorously stressed, Tower warned, "If you don't come back, you'll lose everything you've built. If your return is successful, 1979 could be the year for agriculture. Spurred by Tower's comments, the farmers have vowed to return in force. "We have no choice," remarked McCathern, stating a line which is rapidly becoming the movement's motto: "We have no choice." With an evangelist's fervor, Jenkins pointed to atheist Madelyn Murray O'Hair as an inspiration, however unlikely, to the farmers. American Ag, which perceives itself as strongly religious and patriotic, looked with disdain upon Mrs. O'Hair's actions leading to the removal of prayer and Christmas carols from Texas public schools, but its members were encouraged by her ability to cause such sweeping changes in such an established institution. "If one woman can get prayer and Christmas songs taken out of our schools, which are run with our money," he said, "surely three million farmers can pass one puny

More encouraging tales came from McCathern, who told of a meeting with Atlanta mayor Maynard Jackson last year. Jackson, the first black mayor in Atlanta's history, told McCathern, "The majority always exploits the minority unless the minority is protected by law Jackson posed the question "Do farmers have civil rights?" He answered "yes, but stressed, "like the blacks, you're going to have to fight to get them." McCathern reminded the Plainview crowd that the farmers have three advantages in their "civil rights march" - control of the food, big tractors to crowd city streets with, and the ability to borrow money. "If we can learn to use these," he said, He drew another rallying cry while retelling tales of the violent clashes between farmers and police last year in McAllen, when the farmers were protesting the importation of what they called "rotten, cheap crops" from Mexico. "Someone handed me a picture of a farmer with a sign held high over his head. That sign read, "I wondered why somebody didn't do something about agriculture. Then I realized I was somebody And somebody the farmers are. The Washington journey, on which McCathern hopes to have 50,000 farmers, will be completely self-supporting, with the travelers bringing along enough food, fuel and portable shelter "so we don't have to leave any money in Washington," he said. "They're certainly not leaving any with us. Once there, American Ag leaders hope to meet with the president and "straighten out Bob Bergland."

The farmers are especially upset with Bergland after he recently revealed plans for a national grain reserve, which would continue to keep grain prices below the levels the ag men want. McCathern noted that, in an interview in "U. S. News and World Report," Bergland explained that grain would be stored "until the supply and demand forces come together. Then we'll release the reserve.'

The farmers dislike this reserve proposal as much as the grain sale to the Soviet Union and the beef price freeze of 1973-74, both of which they feel were windfalls for the big corporations and financial fiascos for the small, independent farmers McCathern said Bergland told him if grain prices were allowed to rise, the U. S. would lose its foreign grain markets. "But look at the price of that foreign oil," McCathern said. "And we're buying more of it now than ever before. The speakers fired at President Carter, faulting him for his "inability to stop infla-

We can no longer make a go of farming until the monetary system is realigned. The system, the way it is now, has put agriculture way out of line with the rest of the economy," said Jenkins.

"The nation needs to understand we're in a whole different ball game than before," said McCathern. McCathern vigorously objected to a news story which ran nationwide Wednesday in which the U.S. Agriculture Department stated that prices for raw farm products were at the highest levels in history. "Do you believe that?" he asked the crowd.

"No!" boomed the chorus of farmers Above all else, these prices are the motivation for thousands of farmers leaving their homes and driving tractors across the country to the nation's capital. Looking ahead, McCathern noted, "When we approach Washington, the president could panic.' "And he could do two things. He could call us in and say "You've got a problem.

Let's see if we can't solve it "Or he could call out the Army. And that might be the best thing that could happen to us. It might really convince the people how serious we are if they see a whole bunch of tanks trying to stop some peaceful farmers." To the crowd, and to every farmer in the country, McCathern issued one final statement. "If you're not there with us in Washington, you're really going to miss "Because we're gonna make history."

Grain Marketing Move Launched At Area Meet

DIMMITT (Special) - About 30 farmers from an eight-county High Plains area met here Friday to discuss establishing a collective bargaining unit for the purpose of marketing grain. Carl King of Dimmitt, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association, said the group - tentatively calling itself the High Plains Farm Bargaining Association - would seek to arrange contracts for the sale of food corn to such firms as Frito-Lay, Valley Grain Corp. and Amstar.

Although corn is the crop demanding immediate attention, King said, the group also plans to be active in the marketing of other grains and would attempt to negotiate for any group of growers who might benefit from collective bar-

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The fall of South Vietnam in 1975 was the result of American misunderstandings, corruption in the Vietnamese government and the inaction of Vietnamese leaders who believed to the last moment that the Americans would rescue them, according to a Rand Corp. report released Sunday.

These conclusions are offered by former South Vietnamese leaders who were interviewed in exile by the Rand Corp. "think tank" under commission by the U.S. Department of Defense to sort out reasons for the defeat.

The 131-page report summarizes three years of interviews with 27 former Vietnamese leaders, including South Viet-nam's former Premier, Air Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, who now operates a south-

- Former President Richard M. Nixon pressured the South Vietnamese into signing the 1973 Paris Agreements with threats that he would cut off all support funds if they refused.

- South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu became obsessed with fear that the Americans planned to assassinate him and, "In the end ... Thieu slept every night in a different room in order to evade assassination attempts."

- Thieu relied heavily on Nixon's private assurance during a 1973 San Clemente meeting that "you can count on us." To the end, Thieu believed the Americans would not "abandon" South Viet-

According to one general, "In Saigon, the ambulance units were so short in gasoline that in order to evacute the wounded, they had to tow four ambulances in a row with a 21/2-ton truck."

The military strategy promulgated by the Americans left the South Vietnamese helpless in the face of American withdrawal, the officials said.

Executive Sports Editor
That was no trick cigar that exploded in the face of Abe Lemons and his Longhorns Saturday afternoon.

Before a live audience of 7,781 cheering (half from emotion, half to keep warm) fans and the all-seeing eye of regional-tel-evision cameras, Texas Tech erupted for a 92-74 shocker over the University of Texas. And the debris is falling all over the Southwest Conference.

Only two games deep in the SWC bas-ketball race, the Longhorns, who lost only twice in 16 league games a year ago en route to the SWC co-championship, are 1-1 (7-4 for the season) and face Houston, Arkansas and Rice on the road before returning home.

Tech, since it was opening its loop schedule, stands 1-0 going into next Mon-day's game with TCU in Fort Worth.

Maybe it was the afternoon atmosphere (Tech's first daytime effort): maybe it was the presence of the TV cameras. Maybe it was a bit of revenge from a pair of '68 losses to the Longhorns (including a drubbing in Austin). Or maybe it was the steady improvement of the Raiders who are now 9-2 for the season and off to one of their fastest starts in history.

But whatever the cause, UT coach Lemons is trying to figure it out. But, as Lemons pondered on the matter and chomped on his ever-present cigar Satur-day, Raider coach Gerald Myers pointed to the teamwork of his group. He could start with the work of his bench - and Ben Hill. While Tech was able to hold all the high-scoring Longhorns except muscular Ron Baxter, Hill came off the bench to make his presence felt on both ends of the court. Offensely, he finished the day scoring 12 points — and didn't miss a shot. Defensively, he blocked three shots and helped slow down Baxter, when it looked as if the 6-4, 220-pounder was about to single-handedly take charge of the game and keep the Longhorns in it.

Hill had help, too, from starters as well as from freshman David Little. And the entire Raider performance was, in stretches, awesome.

"We haven't played 40 minutes like this all year," commented Myers afterwards. We've had better halves, but not a full

In fact, the other four starters only got 5 points, to Baxter's 29.

Can't Find Answer, Claims Abe Lemons

Abe Lemons and his Texas Longhorns have had more trouble on the road this season than Buzz Murdough and Linc Case of Route 66 fame ever dreamed of.

Probably twice as much. And Saturday afternoon at the Lubbock Coliseum, Lemons & Co. hit another chughole, this one in the form of Texas

Lemons, usually a man with all the answers to all the questions, found himself in a strange situation after the Raiders had scored a 92-74 Southwest Conference victory - without all the answers to all the questions.

"I don't know what's wrong with this team," said Lemons after the 'Horns had dropped their fourth road game. "I guess I just haven't been around long enough to

Prior to season's start, the Longhorns were the toast of the town. Picked as high as sixth in one wire poll in the early going, the 'Horns have since fallen com-pletely out of the Top 20 picture.

Talking about the upset loss to Tech, Lemons commented: "We came out and didn't want to play. We just stood around and played lazy like we were out of shape. We came out in the second half just like an old horse, just trotting around.

Lemons then ducked his head and nodded in disbelief. He looked like he just wanted to say "ouch", but didn't. That lack of enthusiasm and hustle in the second half certainly hurt the 'Horns as Tech, which held a 41-35 halftime lead, outscored Texas 51-39 during the last 20

Houston Tests Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The mock declaration of war, the bold predictions, all the talk about the homefield advantage and the "Terrible Towels" can be dismissed as ballyhoo.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and the Houston Oilers get down to business today when they meet for the championship of the American Football Conference.

It's the 19th game of this decade between the two teams from the AFC Central Division, who've broken a few bones in a rivalry that's known for mutual respect and some of the game's roughest body contact.

This game will be typically physical, but it will be different from the others in a fiscal sense. Each player on both sides gets $9,000; the victors get a shot at the $18,000 winner's check in the Super Bowl against Dallas or Los Angeles.

'If we lose, we go home," said Steeler safety Don Shell.

'It's the Super Bowl of the Central Division of the AFC," said Houston Coach Bum" Phillips.

Houston, 10-6 in regular season, was runnerup to Pittsburgh in the AFC Central. But the Oilers got a wild-card playoff berth and followed with wins in Miami and New England.

After Houston beat New England 31-14 last weekend, Phillips said he was recalling his ambassador to Pittsburgh and declaring war on the Steelers. Oiler defensive end Elvin Bethea predicted victory. "I'll go out on a limb. I'll guarantee it

The Oilers are also a better team, mainly because of rookie Earl Campbell, who Twenty-four of those points came in a 24-17 loss to Houston here in the eighth week of the regular season. Houston is the only AFC Central team ever to win in Pittsburgh.

Campbell smashed for three touchdowns in that game, and Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini hit 13 of 19 passes.

In the rematch in Houston, Pittsburgh won 13-3 after Campbell was knocked from the game in the first quarter with a cracked rib. Pastorini, who kept playing in that game despite three cracked ribs, threw threw interceptions.

But both Campbell and Pastorini have come on strong in the playoffs. Campbell's rushed for 202 yards. Pastorini, wearing a flak jacket to protect his ribs. has hit 73 percent of his passes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Beset by frustration the past five seasons, the Los Angeles Rams mount another bid today to reach the elusive Super Bowl when they play host to the defending champion and favored Dallas Cowboys. "The frustration could help us," commented the Rams' Ray Malavasi, their rookie head coach.

This game marks the fourth time in five seasons the Rams have reached the NFC championship game. Minnesota beat them twice and Dallas once. Coach Tom Landry of Dallas says the frustration of Los Angeles near-misses in the past concerns him. "If you are denied enough, you become more determined ... You will reach a point where you want to be if you are turned back enough," he said.

Cowboys of the early 60's who kept getting into the title game and failing. 'We've been there ... we know how it feels," he said. Dallas, with the veteran quarterback Roger Staubach and the fleet Tony Dorsett, is rated four-point favorites for this Rhodes scholar Pat Haden goes at quarterback for the Rams with Cullen Bryant at halfback and John Cappelletti at fullback. They pose power, but not as much speed as the Cowboys.

Asked about the problems of trying to throw over 6-foot-9 Ed "Too Tall" Jones and his cohorts, the 5-11 Haden commented, "You throw to lanes, you don't throw over people." Each club posted a 12-4 regular season record as the schedule was boosted to 16 games for the first time. In their head-tohead clash, the Rams won 27-14. "Anytime a team beats you, it is in the back of your mind," Landry said. "But that was just one of 16 games and you're going to lose a few. It wasn't like we played our best shot and got beat. Los Angeles played good, but our confidence level is back."

The Cowboys appear to have reached their peak, winning their last six regular season games and then beating Atlanta 27-20 last week in their opening playoff

The Rams started the season with seven straight victories, faltered, but finished strong and opened the playoffs last week with a 34-10 rout over Minnesota.

Both clubs feature rugged defenses with the Dallas front four of Jones, Jethro Pugh, Randy White and Harvey Martin rated by many as the best in the NFL. See DALLAS Page 3

Oilers Battle In AFC Central 'Super Bowl'

PITTSBURGH (AP) - "Tomorrow's the Super Bowl," Houston Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini said matter-of-factly Saturday. "The two best teams in the National Football League are playing in

Pastorini, running back Earl Campbell and coach Bum Phillips attended a Saturday news conference in snowy Pittsburgh, a condition which Phillips said would not bother the indoor-oriented Oil-

"We've played in bad weather before and we've won in it. If I don't worry about it, my players aren't going to worry about it," Phillips said before Houston's workout at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I'm looking forward to a good ball game and a hard ball game, but at the same time a clean ball game. We haven't played in one against the Steelers that hasn't been clean.

Bradshaw, bothered the past few days by a stomach virus, sat out Saturday's workout as the Steelers prepped for today's showdown. It was only a precautionary measure a spokesman for the team said, adding that Bradshaw will start in the title game.

But they've been brutal, with players on both sides suffering injuries. Campbell, Pastorini and Pittsburgh wide receiver Lynn Swann were battered in the Steelers' 13-3 victory in Houston last Dec.

3. But all are healthy now.

Pastorini said that Campbell has made the Oilers a complete club. "In the past, when we didn't have much of a running game, the defenses knew they could just tee off on the quarterback," he said. 'Now they've got to think twice. If they start trying to come in on me, I just give the ball to Earl and he loosens 'em up. He's made me a better quarterback, He'd make anybody better. As coach here once said, 'Earl Campbell gave Houston the sword to fight with."

Art Rooney, the venerable owner of the Steelers, has the same opinion of Campbell. In an interview Friday, he said: 'Campbell made their club. Pastorini is great, but Pastorini on his own couldn't carry Houston.

Now, with Earl in there, Dan can carry it because you never know what Campbell's gonna do. He can go all the way every time he gets the ball.

But Rooney also pinpointed the Oilers' belief in themselves as a key to the team's rise.

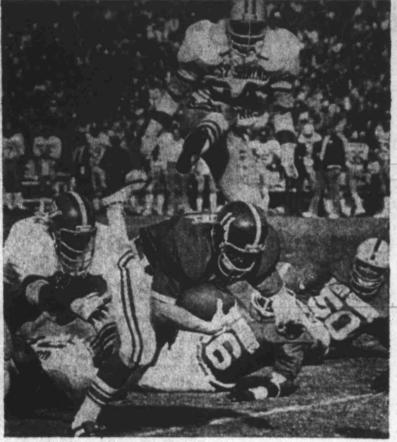

They believe they are winners. They believe in themselves, and that's most important," he said. "A few years ago, they were more like we'd been in the old days. There were a few years that we had good clubs, but the players just waited to get beat. They kept wondering how they were going to lose the next time. Houston used to be like that, but no more."

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Mississippi State quarterback David Marler threw touchdown passes of 14, 34 and 36 yards to lead the United States All-Stars to a 34-14 defeat of Team Canada in the second annual Can-Am Bowl Saturday at Tampa

Two of Marler's scoring passes were to Vanderbilt wide receiver Martin Cox. Cox had an impressive afternoon, catching eight pases for 152 yards and the two touchdowns.

Marler's other touchdown pass was early in the first quarter, when he hit University of Florida wide receiver Tony Stephens on a down-and-out pattern in the right corner of the end zone. Tulsa quarterback Dave Rader came in for Marler in the fourth quarter and threw a nine-yard touchdown pass to Furman tight end Greg Laetsch to cap all the U.S. scoring. Team Canada scored first on a 14-yard pass from Western Ontario quarterback Jamie Bone to fullback Jim Reid of Wilfred Laurier.

The game, played by Canadian rules. had a rouge in the second period when Team Canada punter Bob Cameron kicked a punt from his 35-yard line deep into the end zone, where Michigan State's Jerome Stanton caught the ball and was immediately tackled by Alberta's Leo Blanchard. That gave Team Canada one point.

Wisconsin running back Ira Matthews returned a Cameron punt 58 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

Canada scored the last touchdown when quarterback Bone sneaked over from the 1-yard line. His score was set up when Windsor wide receiver Bruce Walker was interfered with in the end zone on a 63-yard pass attempt one play earlier.

It was about this time, however, that Baxter took charge of the game, and the big junior hit Texas' next 10 points.

It was late in this stretch that, after trying two others on Baxter, Myers gave the assignment to Hill. It worked, as, following that surge, the junior forward didn't score for almost nine minutes.

Malavasi said he thought Dallas had improved since then. "They're rushing the passer a little better." he said. "Ed Jones is playing better in the defensive line and Rayfield Wright gives them some more experience in the offensive line, but the Rams are a better team now, too.

We're doing more things now then we were then, but I'm not telling what. Wait until Sunday and you'll see.

"I don't think either Dallas or Los Angeles will be conservative." he added. "I don't think you can win that way."

Malavasi said, "I think our situation is similar to Qakland in 1977. They had fallen short several times and it just made them more determined to get to the Super Bowl and win it. And that's what they Dallas coach Tom Landry said circumstances had changed for both teams since their meeting in September.

"Los Angeles was hot then," he said. They won seven straight, then they fell off but came back strong. We started soso, but finished strong."

'All clubs have weak spots." said Landry, "If you didn't you'd win every game. They have weak spots and so do we. But I'm not talking about them. I expect a good, tight, tough game. . . a tough defengive football game, until somebody

Dallas Plots Against Rams

Not far behind, if at all, are the Rams' Jack Youngblood, Cody Jones, Larry Brooks and Fred Dryer.

The 254-pound Brooks, however, has been hampered by a knee injury and missed late season games.

If Brooks can play, the Rams will have the same lineup with one exception -Bob Brudzinski has replaced Isiah Robertson at an outside linebacker spot - as the one which started the regular season game against Dallas.

The Cowboys have made two changes on offense and one on defense. Rayfield Wright goes at right tackle where Andy Frederik started against the Rams and Scott Laidlaw goes ahead of Robert Newhouse at fullback since the latter was hurt. Tom Henderson starts at left linebacker instead of Mike Hegman.

Sunday's game brings a match-up of the NFL's No.1 offensive team, Dallas, against the No. 1 defensive team, Los Angeles. When the Rams have the football, It will be the NFC's No. 2 offense against the No. 2 defense.

During the regular season, Staubach was the NFL's top quarterback as he completed 231 of 413 pass attempts for 3,-199 yards and 25 touchdowns with 16 intercepted. He suffered a concussion in hast Sunday's Atlanta game and Danny White had to take over, but Landry reports his starting quarterback is ready to play again.

champions with a history of winning the big ones, are a 31/2-point favorites over the Los Angeles Rams, a team with a history of choking in the big ones, in today's NFC title game The winner will advance to Super Bowl

XIII in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., Jan. 21 and that, in itself, would be an accomplishment for the Rams, who have never made it that far.

As of last Jan. 15, the Cowboys were recognized as the best team in the pro football world following their 27-10 romp over Denver in Super Bowl XII at New Orleans. But they haven't been the NFL's dominant team this season, losing four times in the expanded 16-game schedule. Pittsburgh had a 14-2 mark.

One of the Cowboys' losses was to the Rams at Los Angeles Sept. 17 in the third game of the season. The Rams won that one 27-14, intercepting Roger Staubach four times in the process. The Rams also had a 12-4 regular season record and they've got the home field advantage by virtue of that Sept. 17 victory. "I certainly think we can win again."

first-year Ram head coach Ray Malayasi said. "We always play well against tough teams - and we'll play well against the

"I know my team right now is in the right frame of mind. I know my players want to win badly.

The Rams wound up their regular season with a 31-14 win over Green Bay Dec. 17 and won their first-round playoff game last weekend 34-10 over Minnesota after a 10-10 halftime standoff. It was the first time in five playoff games Los Angeles has defeated the Vikings.

Dallas had its problems at home against wild card Atlanta, having to come from behind to win 27-20 after Roger Staubach was knocked out of the game in the opening half with a concussion.

But Staubach, not backup quarterback Danny White, will start at quarterback for the Cowboys.

"I feel confident Roger will be all right once he starts to work a little bit," said Landry. "There is no question from the doctors and trainers. I don't think he will have any trouble.

Sunday's game at 2 p.m. will match the Rams, No. 1 on defense in the NFL and No. 2 on offense in the NFC, against a team that is No. 1 on offense in the NFC and No. 2 on defense in the NFC. All 71,-141 tickets for the Rams' fourth NFC championship bid in five seasons were sold as of Tuesday, guaranteeing the game will be seen locally on television.

In the first Ram-Cowboy game in September, there were some strained rela-

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - Many of college football's finest seniors, looking ahead to professional careers, gather together on Sunday to sit elbow-to-elbow, thousands of feet above America.

The top-quality college gridders from around the country, 42 in all, were scheduled to take the same airplane out of San-Francisco for a flight to Mobile for next Saturday's 30th annual Senior Bowl

Senior Bowl officials said the 42 were lined up for the same flight because they had been in San Francisco for the East-West Shrine game or were changing planes in San Francisco after participating in the Hula Bowl in Hawaii

Big Schools Share Same Athletic Woe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Texas A&M, Oklahoma, Alabama and Kentucky all share a common sadness this week and there seems to be little they can do

They, and a number of other schools with big-time athletic programs, are about to see their huge athletic dormitories outlawed by a vote of Division I members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Submitted by the policy-making NCAA Council, the proposal to include athletic dormitories under the prohibited "extra benefits" category seems almost certain to pass during the NCAA convention which opens here Monday.

Exactly what will be done with athletic dormitory facilities already in existence is open to debate. But John Toner, athletic director at the University of Connecituet and a member of the NCAA Council, says the purpose of the legis-Isation is clear.

"The intent is to limit what student-athletes can have," Toner said Saturday during a lunch break of the numerous committee meetings that preceede the opening of the convention.

"It is meant to keep the 'Haves' from having special recruiting advantages over the 'Have-nots. Although details of the proposal have not yet been hammered out, an institution with an exclusive dormitory for athletes will apparently have two alternatives — either tear them down or open them to other students. "We aren't saying a school cannot have a dormitory that's better than all the others," said Toner, "In reality, almost every institution has some student housing that's newer, or nicer than others. "But we're saying you can't separate athletes in special places with special privileges that are not provided to the student body in general. A convention delegate who asked not to be identified said the legislation was prompted "almost entirely by the new basketbal dorm at Kentucky Kentucky, with a bountiful basketball heritage, has been enjoying "tremendous" recruiting advantages over other schools in that part of the country since its posh new facility for basketball players opened less than two years ago, he

"You should hear other Southeast Conference schools scream about it," said another convention delegate. "There has always been some talk, some sentiment against athletic dorms, but the Kentucky basketball palace is the straw that broke the camel's back

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - A coed involved in an incident which led to charges of rape against two University of Arkansas football players has been given a disciplinary "warning," the UA anounced today. UA football players Donny Bobo and Micheal Fortest were charged with firstdegree rape following the incident in the UA athletic dormitory last month. Bobo and Forrest are to be tried March 1. The action taken against the coed is identical to that taken against a third football player who was involved in the incident, but who was not charged. That player was identified as Bobby Duck-

Duckworth and the coed apparently were disciplined because a woman is not permitted in the athletic dormitory between 1 a.m. and 7 a.m.

Arkansas Nudges Cougars

HOUSTON (AP) - Arkansas' Sidney Moncrief completed a three-point play with 41 seconds left in the game to climax an amazing comeback Saturday night and lead the Razorbacks to a 62-61 Southwest Conference basketball victory over the University of Houston. Arkansas erased a 21-point first-half deficit in taking the victory, which leaves them unbeaten for the season with a 9-0 record. Houston dropped to 8-5 in the opening SWC game for both teams. The Cougars used an aggressive, full-an airtight 2-3 zo fense that kept the cold-shooting Razorbacks in check in the first half. Arkansas went scoreless for a 4:09

stretch of the first half and fell behind 49-But the Razorbacks caught fire to start the second half, outscoring Houston 23-3 over the first 10 minutes. The Cougars managed to hold onto the lead, however, until Moncrief's three-point play put the Hogs ahead to stay.

Moncrief, the game's leading scorer with 25 points, hit a layup, then added the free throw after he was fouled by Houston's George Walker. Moments later, Moncrief hit two more free throws after Houston's Ken Ciolli fouled him, icing the game with 18 seconds to play.

Victor Ewing led Houston scorers with 16 points. The SMU-TCU contest was postponed indefinitley due to the fould weather in the Dallas area. No decision has been made as yet concerning rescheduling of the game

Groundskeepers Battle Winter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — It's extremely doubtful that any player or coach with the Houston Oilers or the Pittsburgh Steelers worked as hard or as long getting ready for Sunday's AFC championship game as did the grounds crew at Three Rivers Stadium. Since Tuesday, the 20 groundskeepers and Mike Baldy, the stadium's director of operations, have been working around the clock in 18-hour shifts, fighting to prevent snow, gusty winds and temperatures that dropped below zero from wrecking the delicate artificial playing surface at Three Rivers.

Their efforts were fairly successful. Baldy predicted that, barring a blizzard during the final hours before the game, the field would be "98 percent" for the 12 p.m. CST kickoff.

Three years ago, Pittsburgh defeated Oakland in the AFC title game at Three Rivers and Raider management screamed about the condition of the field. They claimed little had been done to keep the surface playable. Actually, the field had been covered but a portion of it froze when gusty winds blew the tarp off. The Steelers want no problems this week.

Although the average football fan considers artificial turf fairly immune from the effects of the elements, at least compared to old grass fields, nothing could be further from the truth. Granted, artificial turf does not become a sea of mud when it rains, but it can become a carpet of swamp.

During cold weather, moisture in the air collects in the nap of the carpet and freezes, turning a playing field into a ice skating rink. The dangers of the ice slicks are not just the treacherous footing but the lack of resilience the rock-hard surface provides talling bodies.

Because the stadium is situated along river banks, Baldy says, moisture is always a problem. But the problem was magnified hundreds of times by the weather of the

It began raining a week ago Saturday, just before the Steelers' AFC semifinal with Denver, and continued to do so through Monday. On Tuesday, temperatures, which had been in the 40s and the 50s, plummeted below zero at the same time strong, gusting winds brought snow into the city.

To combat the elements, the grounds crew brought a three million BTU heating unit and a large propane tank onto the tield and situated it beneath the 18-gauge, herculite tarpaulins that cover the field. After anchoring the tarps with weights and ropes and poles, the crew switched on the heater, blowing the tarps up into a tent of warm air that stood about 15 feet high in the middle of the field and raised the surface temperature to 30 or 35 degrees, Baldy said.

Groundskeepers then began a constant vigil to prevent winds from ripping the tarps off the field. The first night, Baldy said, a gust of wind did open a 15-foot rip in one of the tarps but workers were able to seal it before any damage was done.

The tent was kept on until just a couple hours before Wednesday's practice. Then the grounds crew swept the tarp with huge machines that resemble street sweepers to

Pastorini Realizes Game's Importance

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dan Pastorini makes his point about the importance of today's AFC title game between the Houston Oilers and the Pittsburgh Steelers in an emphatic way.

"As far as I'm concerned." the Houston quarterback said Saturday, "tomorrow is the Super Bowl. It's a game between the two best clubs in the NFL. I don't think there's a talent gap between the AFC and the NFC but it's just my personal opinion that the two best clubs in the league will be playing here tomorrow.

"This will probably be the most physical game we've ever played in and as far as I'm concerned, this is the Super Bow!"

If the game for the AFC title and a berth in Super Bowl XIII in Miami is as physical as Pastorini predicts, there might be a squadron of ambulances needed at Three Rivers Stadium. The last time the two clubs met in Houston last month, 13 players were sent off with injuries as Pittsburgh defeated Houston 13-3.

ries as Pittsburgh defeated Houston 13-3.

One of the 13 was Pastorini, who suffered three broken ribs, but Sunday he'll be wearing his now-celebrated protective flak inchest.

Pastorini modeled the jacket, technically called a "variable pressure protection jacket", before a workout Saturday.

"It only weighs seven ounces so it actually feels like you're only wearing a tshirt." said Pastorini. "I know (Steeler middle linebacker) Jack Lambert says quarterbacks ought to wear dresses but I'll just settle for my flak jacket."

With the jacket as protection, Pastorini has been sensational in helping spark the Oilers, who earned a wild card playoff berth this season, to upset victories over Miami and New England in the playoffs.

Houston Faces Steeler Test

following his best regular season ever with his most potent postseason play.

Phillips figures the Steelers have a better team than the one that took two Super Bowls. He says Bradshaw is the reason.

Their passing attack is a hell of a lot better," said Phillips.

Bradshaw is using all of his receivers whole lot more. He throws to everybody, except the opposition.

Pittsburgh also has Franco Harris, who on his career has rushed for 1.155 yards in postseason play and scored 12 touchdowns, both NFL records.

The game will be an emotional enough game that it won't matter whether it's cold, hot, snowing or raining," said Phillips. "I'm a hell of a lot more worried about Pittsburgh than the weather."

Early in regular season, Phillips predicted his team would not catch Pittsburgh in the division race and that the wild card was Houston's lone route to the Super Bowl.

"I'm not conceding this game," Phillips said. "I think we can win." "We'll find out," said Steeler coach Chuck Noll.

make it light enough to lift. The field then was swept continuously to lift moisture from the nap.

The routine was repeated nightly until Sunday.

The last two days before the game, there were special efforts to dissolve tiny patches of ice that had formed despite the heating efforts. Baldy said the workers sprayed the patches with a special salt and then swept them clean. Similar efforts were made on icy spots that had developed along the sidelines.

Since it would virtually impossible to keep the sidelines totally clear, Baldy said he asked coaches to advise the players to try and slow down once they go out of bounds. "The field's going to be in pretty good shape anyway," Baldy said. "I think people

Goose Hunters Find Targets

Parks & Wildlife Dept.

Texas goose hunters have perhaps their best opportunity of the season as a recent aerial goose count tallied twice as many birds as last year, according to personnel of the Parks & Wildlife Department.

More than 54,300 geese were spotted by plane during the December survey with most of the birds found in the Oldham-Deaf Smith-Randall County area of the Panhandle.

"Nearly 39,000 Canada geese were using the lakes and grain fields in this area, which includes Hereford, Friona and Vega," reported Max Traweek, P&WD waterfowl biologist. "We also found several thousand geese south of the Hereford area toward Dimmitt and Lubbock."

Other concentrations numbering more than 3,000 birds were found north of the Canadian River in the Dumas, Fritch and Spearman areas.

A larger-than-normal number of snow geese were also counted in the Hereford area with more than 1,000 of the white birds intermingled with the dark (or Canada) geese.

The waterfowl season for Texas which includes both ducks and geese will continue through Jan. 21.

Conditions during the recent survey found cold temperatures and plenty of ice. Most of the geese were utilizing the large man-made reservoirs since most of

More water was available for the birds than last year with the geese feeding on winter wheat, waste corn and milo which is readily available in the High Plains.

The total number of dark or Canada geese should increase on the High Plains as this area of northwest Texas is the southern-most wintering ground for the shortgrass geese.

The local populations of geese could shift from lake to lake due to winter conditions and available food.

74 Whooping Cranes Winter Along Coast

AUSTIN (Special) - The upswing of the famous whooping cranes that has cheered bird lovers and conservationists for several years now has continued this winter. The latest official count of whoopers wintering on the Texas coast is 74, including 68 adults and six young.

John Smith, Parks & Wildlife Department biologist at Rockport, said this figure was reached after completion of several aerial surveys. However, there are prospects that more of the great birds may arrive this year.

An additional young bird that originally was counted, however, seems to have disappeared. The fledglings were banded in Canada both this year and last with identifying colored leg bands, in order to learn more of their population dynamics. Altogether, 13 banded birds now are to be seen, six immatures of this year, and seven of last year's young.

Whooping cranes are an ancient species that for hundreds of thousands of years have winged their migration routes across the North American continent. Probably at their peak they never numbered more than 2,000 but their range was from the Arctic to central Mexico and from the Rockies to the Atlantic.

With man's settlement, whooper numbers and habitat shrunk. The most dramatic level was reached in the winter of 1941-42, when only 15 were counted along the Texas coast and six in southwestern Louisiana.

Since then, the majestic cranes have rereived worldwide attention and every effort has been made to encourage their

The Gulf Coast wintering grounds of the whoopers includes the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, Matagorda Island and Isla San Jose across the Intracoastal Waterway. Here the birds stay in individual territories from October to mid-April, when they migrate the 2,600 miles back to their nesting and summering grounds in Northern Canada.

In 1975, widespread efforts were made to monitor the exact migration route, in order to be able to divert the birds from such dangers as diseases and oil spills. In that same year, American and Canadian biologists started a foster-parent project, whereby some whooper eggs were transferred from their Canadian nests to those of greater sandhill cranes on the Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in Idaho.

The sandhill crane experiment has been encouraging so far, Smith said. The young whoopers have been readily accepted by the foster parents and have seemed to adopt the sandhill migration route, wintering in New Mexico.

But, although copying some of their activity patterns, the whoopers do not show interest in pairing with the sandhills and tend to assume dominance over their territory. Biologists are studying these developments with great interest

Latest count of the whoopers associated with the sandhill flock is nine, which includes three that were hatched this

A number of whooping cranes are in captivity. Of these, 22 are at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, Laurel, Md. The International Crane Foundation at Baraboo, Wis., has two, and two live at the San Antonio Zoo. With the 74 counted on the Texas Coast, this brings the total number of whooping cranes known to exist in the world to 109 at the present time.

State Reports Ample Harvests

AUSTIN (Special) — The year 1978 was a good one for the hunter and fitherman

A better-than-expected deer season, higher numbers of some waterflowl and upland game birds, increased catches of non-native fish and numerous new state fish records all were indicators of a successful year for the state's outdoorsmen.

The weather started out badly, but early dry conditions eased with late spring and summer rains. Deer and turkey populations responded to the improved cover and forage and provided a good hunting season, according to the state Parks & Wildlife Department.

Reports from throughout the Edwards Plateau and South Texas hunting areas indicated there were plenty of deer and their body condition was generally good. Antler development was somewhat depressed because of the early spring drought.

Accurate estimates of the statewide deer and turkey harvest will be available in early 1979, but indications are that the season was a good one for both these important big game species.

Waterfowl hunters noticed a shortage of mallards and ground water churing the 1978-79 season, but several species of ducks were more numerous than the previous year and the season was generally a good one. Geese also were numerous in their Southeast Texas winter stronghold.

Ring-necked pheasants also were abundant during 1978, both in the Panhandle-South Plains area of West Texas and in the coastal prairies of Southeast Texas. Also in West Texas, a record number of hunters took to the fields for sandhill cranes, a species which has been largely underutilized in past years.

Texas anglers distinguished themselves by setting two new striped bass records during 1978. The current title striper is from Lake Texoma and weighs 32 pounds, 12 ounces. Also broken was the state record for striped bass/white bass hybrids, with an 11-pound, 61/2-ounce fish caught from Lake Nasworthy near San 1978 were: blue catfish, 66 pounds; freshwater drum (gaspergou), 31 pounds; redear sunfish, 3 pounds, 4 ounces; and walleye, 10 pounds, 14 ounces.

Saltwater fishermen were not standing idly by, either, as new records were established for amberjack, 831/2 pounds; southern stingray, 197 pounds; scamp, 12 pounds, 14 ounces; Irish pompano, 12 ounces: broadbilled swordfish, 1761/2 pounds; and black jack, 17 pounds, 4 ounces.

The swordfish record was broken twice during 1978, and would have been broken three times if the timing had been slightly different.

In the "unrestricted" category, a 134pound dog snapper was taken with a speargun in 1978.

In addition to state records, fishermen across the state during the year caught an increasing number of departmentstocked exotic fish, including striped bass, walleye and smallmouth bass. Also a number of 10-and 11-pound-plus Florida bass were caught, indicating that the southern strain of largemouth bass is doing well in Texas waters

Also during 1978, the department took steps to improve redfish fishing in Texas bays by accelerating production of young reds. Stocking of redfish in selected bays got underway during the fall and will continue into 1979.

Legislators Prepare For Session

meet Tuesday for their 66th regular session, in the unusual circumstance of having a Republican governor looking over their shoulders.

Democratic Gov. Dolph Briscoe will welcome the 155 Democrats and 26 Republicans to Austin. On Jan. 16 he will be replaced by Republican Bill Clements, the first GOP chief executive since Gov. Edmund J. Davis left office in 1874.

"I think that most of the legislature understands that most of them were elected by the same people that elected me," Clements told The Associated Press in a pre-session interview. "In all of these 100-plus members of the Senate and House I have talked with, I have found no nonsense nor obstructionists views."

Secretary of State Steve Oaks will open the 66th Legislature in the House at noon Tuesday with the first order of business expected to be the re-election of Speaker Bill Clayton as presiding officer.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, re-elected in November, will rap the gavel in the Senate. Soon after the House gets organized it will take on the task of deciding an election challenge against one of its members, the first such procedure in 35 years.

Defeated Republican candidate Kae Patrick wants the House to declare the re-election of Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio, void because of alleged election irregularities.

Tuesday night, Texas Democrats will celebrate their election winnings at a $25a-person reception.

Republicans, along with a lot of Demo-crats and visitors from throughout the state, will celebrate the inauguration of Clements and Hobby on Jan. 16 with a noon swearing-in ceremony, a downtown parade and five inaugural balls.

On Wednesday, Briscoe will deliver his last message to a joint session of the Legislature, including his recommended budget for 1980-81

Briscoe has said his financial recommendations will leave about $1 billion for tax reduction in addition to the $1 billion tax relief voted last Nov. 7.

Clements will address a joint session of the Legislature after his Jan. 16 inauguration but does not plan to present his budget recommendations until about

He also hopes to leave about $1 billion for tax reduction.

Clements classifies tax reduction as the No. 1 issue of the session and improving the quality of education as No. 2, with school financing a part of both. "I feel strongly that the people of Texas have spoken, they have said what they want in approving the tax relief amend ment by 85 percent," Clements said, "And as governor I feel a strong responsibility to see that the constitu amendment is fully implemented ... if the Legislature in its wisdom sees fit to letter and that spirit, I will veto it." Hobby and Clayton agree that tax reduction and school financing will be major issues, along with the perennial legislative fight over state agency spending Hobby notes that most state money goes for education, welfare, transportation and criminal justice.

So, if you're talking about reductions of that magnitude ($1 billion) you're talking about major program reductions and I haven't heard anybody say where those ought to be," Hobby said.

CHOU POEMS PRINTED

TOKYO (AP) - A selection of poems written by Chou En-lai in his youth will appear soon in paperback and hard-cover editions to commemorate the third anniversary of his death, Peking's official news agency said Saturday. Hsinhua said the volume will contain 14 poems written by the late premier.

After the session opening ceremonics and the inaugural festivities, the legislators will settle down to five months of discussion, debate and controversy.

The lawmaking process begins in committee, then advances to floor debate and three votes by the entire House or Senate before it goes across the rotunds for a repeat procedure in the second chamber, However, most of the big issues will be settled by 10-member conference committees before going to the governor for approval or veto. approval or veto.

With such a small turnover, little apparent change in the political climate within the Senate, and many of the same issues returning, it appears there will be little suspense during the session where the Senate's concerned, except as to how Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and the 31 members deal with Gov. Bill Clements.

About the only interest other than that as far as the Senate is concerned is who will be picked by Hobby to head the Finance Committee, to succeed A. M. Aikin Jr., of Paris, who retired fom the Senate.

Sen. Grant Jones, Abilene, appears to have the inside track on that appointment; Sen. Tom Creighton, Mineral Wells, also has been mentioned. But thus far, only Hobby knows for sure.

So, all things considered, the Senate should be abe to get to work quickly and whether the signs stay up or not, there'll be plenty of observing from the third floor gallery

Buildup Of Chinese Military Reported On Vietnam Border

WASHINGTON (AP) - China has sent "sizable" number of troops and tanks to Vietnam's northern border recently as possible warning to Vietnam to halt its new military offensive in Cambodia, adnistration officials said Saturday.

The buildup of Chinese military strength reportedly includes MiG-19 lighter planes and IL-28 bombers, said he officials, who asked not to be named. However, they offered no estimate of the umber of Chinese troops involved in the Officials also said they were uncertain whether the Chinese were simply flexing their muscles in a warning to Hanoi to back off in Cambodia, or whether there is a real danger that China might attack its Vietnamese neighbor, which it supported only a few years ago in the long war against the United States.

There have been recurring reports for months of troop movements and minor fighting along the Chinese-Vietnamese border as relations between the two countries have deteriorated.

China is backing Cambodia while Vietnam has the support of the Soviet Union nam border because of its continuing which began in 1975 and has recently escalated.

Administration officials said they have seen no changes in the number of Vietnamese troops in the north. Vietnam has stationed much of its 600,000-man army in South Vietnam, Vietnam also has shifted some of its air power to the south in response to reports that China was supplying the small Cambodian air force with MiG-19s.

Only last month, Hanoi sent 12 MiG-21s to the southern half of Vietnam, along with MiG-19s which it probably received from China during the Vietnam-U.S. war. Although Russia is giving material backing and strong vocal support to Vietnam, administration officials said they have seen no strengthening of Soviet border, where Russia already has deployed some 43 divisions. China's giant army of some 3.3 million men far outnumbers that of Vietnam, but analysts say China cannot afford to concentrate much of its army on the Viet-troops and air power along the Chinese

in the Cambodian-Vietnamese fighting concern over the Soviet military presence to its north.

China's air force is a large one, but many of its aircraft are old. For example, the IL-28s were originally supplied by Russia before the two communist countries began quarreling in the late 1950s.

Also, Vietnam's air force includes considerable numbers of up-to-date Russiansupplied MiG-21s as well as American F-5E fighters and A-37 light bombers, captured at the end of the Vietnam War.

Another factor to be considered, analysts noted, is that the Vietnamese army and air force both are experienced in combat as a result of the long years of the Southeast Asian war, while the Chinese army and air force have not fought on a major scale since a 1969 border war with Russia along the Ussuri River.

A State Department official, who declined to be identified, said the Chinese military buildup had occurred over the past five to six days and had been "significant and rapid.

Choosing Right Tax Form Essential

Special to The Avalanche-Journal

When it comes time to file income tax returns this year, the taxpayer has a choice in regard to which form he decides to use. The two choices include Form 1040 or Form 1040A. Form 1040A is the easy form, designed for taxpayers whose income results from standard sources such as salaries, wages and tips. It is also for use by taxpayers who do not itemize deductions and who do not claim credits or adjustments to their income

Depending upon individual circumstances, the taxpayer should choose the form which will be easy to complete and which is right for him. This year, Form 1040 will accomodate taxpayers whose income is $40,000 (for a couple filing jointly) or $20,000 for singles and married persons filing seperately.

An exception to these income limits concerns interest and dividend income. If either exceed $400, form 1040 should be used, listing the sources of income, no matter what total income may be.

These and other questions concerning your 1978 tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education program. This public service course, jointly-sponsored by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service will be offered Feb. 6 and

8, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. To register for the Taxpayer Education program, simply fill out the registration form below. Money and registration

Classes will be in Lubbock High School, Atkins Junior High, Evans Junior High, Smylie Wilson Junior High, O.L. Slaton Junior High, Roosevelt High School, Plainview High School, Floydada High School and Littlefield High School.

Avalanche-Journal Staff Because Lubbock is a relatively young city somewhat deficient in historically significant sites and structures, some say Lubbock's older buildings are not worth the scarcity of the city's remaining "links with the past" makes their preservation even more critical.

Ron Beard, chairman of the steering committee organizing a Lubbock Heritage Society, said he is "concerned we may not have any heritage left if we keep tearing it up, since Lubbock is not en-

Heritage Society Called 'Last Resort'

Historic buildings threatened with destruction may have a chance of salvation with the formation of the Lubbock Heritage Society. The non-profit organization will have the ability to receive or buy property

The society will hold an organizational meeting open to the public at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Junior League Headquarters, 1901 50th, Building B.

City planning director Jim Bertram described the society as a "court of last resort. The society will have the authority to acquire a building in need of preservation and sell it back for adaptive reuse when all other attempts have failed to preserve the building," he said.

Architect Ron Beard, who heads the society steering committee, said the organization could renovate a building before selling it, or could put "protective preservation easements" on the property so the character of the building could not be significantly altered. Although a revolving fund of private donations may be established by the society, Beard said most of the organization's funds will come from grants and

"There are people willing to give property right now, but there's been no one to give property to," Beard said.

Short of buying and selling endangered buildings, Beard said the society might attempt to educate the public about the values of historic preservation. 'An owner or architect not interested in restoration might be offered free design service - enough to inspire and show that's what they could do," he

Other societies offer free design service, as well as landscaping and interior design service, Beard said.

The architect also foresees possible seminars on the tax advantages of renovation or on how to restore an old building.

The society probably will be active in recommending buildings and districts to the city's Urban Design Commission for designation as landmarks or landmark districts, he said. Those attending Monday's meeting will be asked to get involved in the society by signing up for various committees, Beard said. The meeting also will ge a "goal-setting session" for the society, Beard said.

Deadline For Pioneer Rate Decision Near

By KIM PALMER

Avalanche-Journal Staff The status of a $19.6 million domestic rate increase requested by Pioneer Natural Gas is still uncertain as representatives of West Texas cities, opposed to the amount of the increase, and Pioneer officials try to hammer out a compromise before Friday's deadline. An 11-man steering committee, representing the 63 cities served by Pioneer's West Texas distribution system, will hear final recommendations this week on what proportion of Pioneer's request a panel of consultants feel is justified. The panel earlier released a report saying Pioneer needed only half of the requested

But any final action taken on the rate hike will be the responsibility of each city's government, steering committee chairman Fred Poe said.

June, citing the company's drop in profits despite increased cost of gas to consumers. The proposed rate is calculated to produce a gross revenue increase of $19.8 million.

Friday marks the end of the 120-day period the Texas Public Utilities Commission (PUC) allows for city governments to make a decision on a rate change. With less than a week remaining and no decision in sight, some observers expect the cities will request a 30-day extension.

If no decision has been reached by Feb. 11. the rate increase requested by Pioneer automatically goes into effect, in accordance with PUC regulations.

Although consultants plan to present their final recommendations to the steering committee this week, Poe urged the cities to take the additional 30 days allowed to review the findings and draw their own conclusions.

No matter what rate structure is ultimately decided on, most cities involved will have to pass ordinances before the rates can go into effect - "a very timeconsuming process," Poe said.

If Pioneer is not satisfied with the cities' recommended rate structure, the company can appeal its case to the Texas Railroad Commission.

During its last meeting for 1978, the steering committee heard consultants recommend that the Amarillo-based gas company could suffice with half of its rate increase request.

The committee told the consultants to continue their study and to consider recommending a revision in the company's 100 percent pass-through gas cost adjustment factor, possibly to 88 to 92 percent.

A recent work session in Amarillo gave the cities' consultants the opportunity to present their findings to Pioneer representatives and clarify some additional in-

In a prepared statement, Pioneer said the average increase for all classes is 26.36 percent higher than present rates. This means the average domestic customer could expect about a $6 a month increase in his monthly bill.

But the late Ervin Looney, who was Lubbock's rate analyst, argued that the prices for home users of the fuel would range from 31 to 62 percent higher.

ed that P only is increasing the basic rate but also is including in it a portion of what now varies from month to month as the fuel cost adjustment.

Pioneer has made no indication whether it plans to continue with its original rate request or compile new figures. Both Pioneer and the cities' consultants will have a chance to present their cases to the cities before any decision is reached.

Lubbock City Manager Larry Cunningham said the City Council would probably hold at least one public hearing on Pioneer's rate hike request before Jan. 25, when the City Council will consider on first reading an ordinance regarding the request. Council members probably will consider the ordinance on second reading at their first meeting in February.

However, Cunningham said the hearings on the residential rate increase and the hearings on the rates charged Lubbock industrial customers will not be combined as previously discussed.

That case, initiated by the city, is unaffected by the 150-day time period. So those hearings probably will begin again after the city hires a rate analyst to begin work on the case.

The industrial rate hearings became stalled recently when Looney, the city's rate analyst, died.

trenched in culture like San Antonio."
"I've seen a lot of things that have just been demolished in the way of progress, like for parking lots," Beard said.

Beard and other Heritage Society organizers want older structures "brought back into the mainstream of culture" by finding new uses for the buildings.

"We don't want a bunch of house and office museums around Lubbock," he

So far preservation efforts in Lubbock have been "headed in the right direction." Beard said, "but more needs to be

The Depot Restaurant, housed in the old Fort Worth and Denver Railway Station at 1801 Ave. G, is considered one of the best examples of historic preservation in Lubbock.

Restaurant owner Ronald Thompson said when he acquired the 53-year-old railway station five years ago, it was being used as a salvage sales business.

Although the building was structurally sound, Thompson said the station's interior was a shambles. However, he said he "mainly liked the architecture of the building" and thought it would be good for a restaurant. "The fact that it was a depot and the outside architecture made me see the possibilities," Thompson said. "A lot of people thought I was crazy, including my

Determined to renovate the building himself, with a minimum of professional help, Thompson spent two years on the transformation.

Although the aura of the 1920s is preserved in the old railway station, Thompson also created a functional restaurant. The station freight office is the dining area, while a bar and a dance floor occupy the express and baggage rooms.

Customers waiting to be seated remain in the ladies waiting room, complete with its original bench.

But the renovation is not without its problems. "It's not that good a location for a restaurant," Thompson said, adding he'd rather the building was located on

The L-shaped floor plan also makes a centrally-located kitchen impossible, he

However, Thompson said the economics of the renovation are good because it cost "much less" to rehabilitate the building than it would to build a comparable one new.

Besides, he said, "I like to see old buildings and Lubbock doesn't have that

The City of Lubbock also is getting into the historic preservation act with the planned renovation of the Manicapelli House on the bank of the Canyon Lakes.

The Lubbock City Council is expected to name an architect this month for conversion of the vacant house into a city

City Parks and Recreation Director John Alford said plans call for a policeman to live in the south end of the house to deter future vandalism.

Since the city acquired the house through condemnation procedures in 1972, vandals have broken most of the glass left in the house and many of the clay roof tiles, he said.

Renovation and landscaping, expected to cost about $105,000, will be funded with federal community development

The reasons to preserve an existing building rather than building a new one are numerous, historic preservationists

Architect Mike Martin, who has worked on several renovation projects, said renovation "touches on all things an architect is supposed to do for society." Armed with a reverence for the original architect's creation, Martin said he attempts to bring buildings "back to life." Restoration provides "more of an awareness that we have a past and says something about who we are now," he

There is a distinction between preservation, which Martin described as 'catching the building in a glass envelope," and restoration, which preserves the architecutral integrity of a building while breathing new life into the space,

Renovation also has become economically more feasible in the past 10 years, according to Beard. "It used to be really tough to obtain loans on older property," he said, but now "lenders are more aware and appraisers share that awareness." Appraisals of older property now are "more comparable with properties in Southwest Lubbock, making it easier to secure a loan," Beard said. "If there's no appraiser and lender behind you, you can pretty well forget about doing anything," he added.

Property owners may amortize the costs of a rehabilitation over a five-year period or depreciate the costs of a substantially rehabilitated structure at an accelerated rate to obtain a tax break. However, the renovated buildings must house commercial or income-producing properties and must be located within a historic district designated by the federal, state or local government. In addition, the state permits cities to exempt designated historic sites from property taxes. The City Council would have to approve such an exemption.

Designation as an historic site or district would be made by the city's newlyformed Urban Design Commission.

Let our reputation go to work for you.

Let us work for you too

You have read in this newspaper and have heard on radio and T.V. that the housing market in Lubbock is

The fact is that the housing market in Lubbook is not depressed and mortgage money is available. You can and should purchase that new home now. Why now? The selection of homes in Lubbock has never been better, interest rates will more than likely continue to go up, and inflation is certain to continue driving house prices up. Waiting for interest rates to come down before buying is not in your best interest. because the escalated values of property will more than offset any savings on interest rates. Ownership of a home is the only way most people have of protecting their savings from inflationary trends. It is also a fact that the purchase of a previously owned or new home in Lubbock is still a bargain. Compared to the rest of the Southwestern United States, Lubbock housing is inexpessive. Those of us who live here do not think of it as being inexpensive, but the truth is we have become spoiled to our good fortune. We must face the fact that the cost of housing in Lubbock will not remain as realistic, as geographic trends predict.

Youth Allowed To Leave Isolated Cell

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI - A 15-yearold boy, who was placed in a "horrible" isolation cell 20 days ago for running away from a state juvenile detention center, was released Saturday by order of a federal judge. U.S. District Court Judge Albert Cof-frin ruled Friday the unidentified youth must be allowed out of the 8-by-10 room at the Weeks School in Vergennes between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. daily. Coffrin said, however, the boy could be locked up for periods of up to three hours if he misbehaved and said he could be kept in solitary confinement during the night. The temporary order was in effect until Wednesday when Coffrin said he would decide whether the youth's constitutional rights were being violated. Officials said the boy was originally sent to the school because he was deemed a "child in need of parental su-pervision." He was never declared a 'delinquent" by a juvenile court, they said. He was placed in isolation last month after trying to escape in his bare feet.

The youth is one of several youths at the center who filed suit claiming the isolation cell amounts to "cruel and unusual punishment" prohibited by the Constitution. "It's horrible. It's an 8-by-10 room, with essentially a board for a bed, a very thin mattress and a toilet that doesn't work," said one state official, who asked not to be identified.

"The door is locked, and in the front it has a six-inch square peephole for light and a small window very high up," he said.

"The boy is kept in his pajamas all the time he's there. And the temperature in the room is hot and stuffy."

The suit challenging the practice of placing youths in solitary confinement was filed one year ago on behalf of a 14year-old girl at the Weeks School.

Two 15-year-old boys, including the one released, later joined the suit. Officials said the other youth was also let out of isolation Saturday, even though he was not technically affected by Coffrin's ruling. The girl was not confined at the time.

The complaints were prepared by the offices of the state Public Defender and Juvenile Public Defender.

According to the suit, the students were confined without a hearing, deprived of due process and subjected to 'cruel and unusual punishment.'

Superintendent John Whitcomb, Social and Rehabilitative Services Commissioner R. Kent Stoneman and Corrections Commissioner Cornelius Hogan were named as defendants.

In affidavits filed with the court, the three officials said the isolation cell is used as a "last resort", as a place to "cool off" after severe misbehavior.

Couple Suing N.Y. State For $12 Million

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) - A California couple, who claims their two children are blind because they lived near the chemically contaminated Love Canal in Niagara Falls, is suing New York state for $12 million.

In-papers filed Friday in the state Court of Claims, Donald and Barbara Lapoint of Santa Clara, Calif., alleged their exposure to toxic chemicals at the Love Canal was responsible for the congenital blindness of their children, David, 19, and Diane, 15. The two were born sightless in Niagara Falls.

The family moved from Niagara Falls to California in 1964, shortly after Diane's birth. The suit, the first in the Court of Claims to arise from the Love Canal controversy, claims that the state "failed to give any notice of the imminent danger" in the area or to take steps to remove the toxic substances. The state has begun a cleanup project to drain the chemicals from the former chemical company landfill. Prior to the start of construction in the fall, the state evacuated 239 families from the canal area and made offers to purchase their homes. Although they did not live in the designated evacuation area, Mrs. Lapoint said she and her husband had worked and visited extensively in the area. Lapoint was an electrician for a private contractor and Mrs. Lapoint worked for two firms within the evacuation area. Mrs. Lapoint said both children were born with underdeveloped retinas, leaving them permanently blind. Doctors have been unable to explain their conditions, she said. "They have no explanation. They have never been able to detrmine why they were born blind," she said. "Two cases of congenital blindness in one family with no history or explanation is a little freaky."

The couple has one other daughter, Suzanne, who was born in Niagara Falls in 1961 with normal eyesight.

AMBUSH VICTIM DIES REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) -Gunmen ambushed two truck drivers on a highway near here, forcing them to lose control of the vehicle, police said Saturday. The truck reportedly ran into a ditch and overturned. One driver, Carmelo Di Giogio, 24, died at hospital here Friday, and the other, Primo Pertonzini, 31 was near death, hospital officials said. The attack followed the ambush murder of suspected Mafia boss Giovanni Dinaro in the town square of Melicucca Thursday night, police said.

Health, Feeding Aids Available To Mothers At Well Baby Clinic

Family News Editor

On a recent Friday, the Well Baby Clinic at 102 Avenue J was working with halfstaff because of the holidays. Just after noon, only a half-dozen young mothers were waiting with their children in the cheerful lobby.

By three o'clock, however, business had picked up and the room seemed to be alive with wriggling youngsters. The receptionist were registering mothers and babies and getting records out of the files, while nurses weighed and measured the babies and talked to the mothers in the examining rooms.

Sue Ballew, director of the Clinic, laughed and said, "This is a quiet day. You should see us at 6:30 on Thursday mornings, when we are getting ready for the doctors' examinations - we are really busy then."

The Well Baby Clinic provides many kinds of basic medical care for its clients. But the most important business of the clinic, according to Mrs. Ballew and her staff, is to improve the well being of babies and mothers through improved health care and sound nutrition education. "Unfortunately," she said, "Lubbock has not had a good reputation with regard to infant and maternal health. However, we are making great strides in this area."

The clinic works to improve the health of children and mothers in two ways: through the medical care program provided by the clinic itself, and through a nutritional advisory program administered through the clinic. The main arm of its program is the daily clinic, which operates much as would a pediatrician if he had time to not only examine babies and recommend vitamins and foods but also to advise the mother on the care and feeding of her child. Babies brought to the clinic are examined here by physicians in private practice, who donate their time," Mrs. Ballew said. "Local doctors are at the clinic on Thursdays - which is why we are so busy on Thursday mornings." Mondays and Wednesdays physicians and medical students from the Texas Tech University School of Medicine come in." "If the baby or mother should need more extensive medical care than we can provide, of course, we refer them to another community agency, private doctor, or

"Routine immunizations take up a great deal of our time, but are, of course of great importance. They include innoculations for diptheria, whooping cough, tetanus, reubella, measles and poliomyelitis."

"We also do routine tuberculin tests on all our babies and mothers," she said. "and, if it seems necessary, on the fathers. We do a phenylketonuria urine test on all the babies." "In addition," she continued, "Our nurses conduct frequent home visits, which gives them a chance to observe home conditions and make practical suggestions to

"We do prefer to have them come to the clinic, however," she said, "where the facilities are so much better." "Every mother coming to the clinic with her baby for the first time sees a film on child care. We also give advice on the terminal method of formula preparation, when and what foods to introduce into the baby's diet, cleanliness, handling the bathe mothers, and to remind them if they are behind on their immunizations.

'We do blood tests for anemia if conditions warrant, and recommend vitamins where necessary; we are able to provide them if the parents are unable to do so." The clinic keeps individual records on each child receiving immunizations, and permanent record cards are given to the parents. A relatively new part of the clinic program, and one about which the staff is very enthusiastic, is the WIC, for Women, Infants and Children program, which was begun at the clinic in 1975.

Funded by USDA, this is a nutritional program for expectant mothers, nursing mothers and infants who meet certain economic and nutritional guidelines which identify them as being of "high risk" nutritionally. "Consider, for instance, a very young mother who is little more than a child her-self," Mrs. Ballew explained. "We do have a high rate of teenage pregnancy in this area. Such a person needs special nutritional care and counseling, for her own sake and that of her baby. She would be identified as 'high risk."" "Our staff developed our own nutrition advisory program, meeting USDA criteria, of course, and so it is tailor-made to meet our needs here in West Texas. "We have classes and films for our mothers as well as individual counselingby our nutrition specialists. When there is a need, we can provide coupons which are used to purchase formula, vitamins, juices and cereals needed by growing children. Our classes cover such topics as consumerism, meal and diet planning, shopping, meal The Well Baby Clinic was established under the auspices of the Junior League of Lubbock in 1939. From a roster of 53 patients and one nurse it has grown until it became "independent" of the League, under United Way support, last year. (The Junior League, however, maintains a keen interest in the clinic, and many of its women continue to work there as volunteers, Mrs. Ballew said.) For clinic staff members, who are registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, nutrition specialists and clerical workers, the work is both demanding and rewarding. Mrs. Ballew commented that some families have been coming to the clinic for three generations, and thus have become old friends. The results of the nutrition advisory program, she said, are especially gratifying to the staff. "In some cases we can see the difference between two children in the same family, one of whom was born before the program began while the later child had the benefits of it." Asked what kind of community support the clinic needs in addition to United Way funds, Mrs. Ballew commented: "We are always needing baby things of all kinds; clothes, of course, from newborn size; and also all the baby-items, tubs and carriers and beds. And of course we always need diapers." The most important thing, however, is community awareness of our program, of the benefits and services we provide, of the need for better health and nutritional care for our babies and young children and mothers. We here at the clinic are lucky in that we can see the results of improved health care in the lives of our people."

WEIGHING IN — Nurse Rice weighs Christopher, who is two months old, on his first visit to the clinic. The baby will be thoroughly checked by the staff nurses, and Mrs. Ramirez will see a film on child care. If she needs additional information on properly caring for the baby, the clinic staff will provide it. Nutritional counseling is also available to expectant and nursing mothers at the Well Baby Clinic, WORD OF ADVICE — Ora Zamarippa, a staff member at the Well Baby Clinic, examines Christopher's records and advises his mother on his care and feeding, vitamins and nourishing foods for the healthy growth of her child. If necessary the clinic can provide vitamins and nutritional baby foods. The results, in terms of the health and well being of babies in the Lubbock area, are encouraging.

pher than in the lecture on child nutrition being given at the Well Baby clinic by staff nutritionist Patti Rosebrugh. Educational programs, including lectures, films and printed materials, are provided for mothers on many aspects of caring for the newborn child and guarding their own health through proper nutrition.

FIRST STEP - When a new baby is brought to the Well Baby Clinic for the first time, records are started which will be kept, recording his progress and development, for as long as he is under clinic supervision. Here Christine Davila takes information from Delia Rivera about her newborn son, Elvis. The mother will be given instruction and advice on the care and feeding of her child from the clinic staff.

In My Corner

By FRANCES LOWE

Knowing how intrigued I am by Mother Teresa of Calcutta, a friend has sent me a copy of Malcolm Muggeridge's book about her, "Something Beautiful for God."

It is in no sense a conventional biography. Muggeridge comments that "the wholly dedicated, like Mother Teresa, do not have biographies."

It is, rather, a tribute by Muggeridge to the little nun who has labored for years among the "poorest of the poor" in the world's worst slum.

It grew out of a film Muggeridge made for the BBC (the title is her response to his request to film her) and is his personal account of that experience and its influence

Born in Yugoslavia, Mother Teresa joined the Loreto nuns working in the Bengal Mission in India, and eventually found herself teaching geography at the St. Mary's High School in Calcutta. In the midst of this settled, cloistered and reasonably comfortable life, she was drawn by a "second vocation" to work among the "poorest of the poor" on the streets of Calcutta. She donned the street clothes she has worn ever since - a white sari trimmed in blue with a cross on the shoulder - and went to live in the Calcutta slums. Here she began a small slum school with five street ur-chins who had been foraging for themselves on the city streets.

Her work, unfunded and against all odds, grew steadily. In 1950 the new congrega-tion of the Missionaries of Charity, was instituted in Calcutta, from which it spread to other cities and eventually to other countries, including Great Britain. The order also grew, from a young Bengali girl who joined her in 1949, to a dedicated group of women, who, inspired by Mother Teresa's example, labor among the most forgotten and poverty-stricken people in the world. A new branch of the order, the Missionary Brothers of Charity, was established in 1963. Her school now has 500 regular students.

One of the most astonishing parts of Mother Teresa's story is the Home for the Dying in Calcutta.

The first woman, Mother Teresa says, "I myself picked up from the street....I took her to the hospital but they could not do anything for her....I went to the municipality and asked them to give me a place where I could bring these people because on the same day I had found other people dying in the streets."

Some 23,000 people picked off the streets of Calcutta, abandoned by their families and with no place else to go, have passed through the home. About half of them die. Survivors are, wherever possible, found means of earning a living or at least placed in circumstances where they can live out their lives in comfort and peace. But the vital thing done for the people, Mother Teresa says, is not the material aid and comfort that are given.

"First of all we want to make them feel that they are wanted; we want them to know that there are people who really love them, who really want them, at least for the few hours that they have to live ...

Upon hearing Mother Teresa's story, we realize that we are still capable of being touched by the example of a person who is truly dedicated, self-sacrificing beyond anything we ourselves could achieve.

We are also struck by the contrast between Mother Teresa and the cult leaders who appear from time to time, attracting followers with vain promises of a better life. Mother Teresa's followers receive no such promises; what they are offered is a life of self-sacrifice under conditions which most of us would find impossible even to

The message is not in anything she says but in her life. She does not have any message of social welfare; she is unimpressed by the world leaders who sometimes come to see her work. People who hear her story, (as those who saw Muggeridge's documentary) send money to support her work, fulfilling her confidence that its needs will be met.

One cannot imagine asking Mother Teresa, "But what is the purpose of it; what good does it do; of what use are they?"

In her view of life, there are no wasted people, no lives which are without value. To judge human life, as we are apt to do, in terms of contributions, of self-sufficiency, of work done or things produced, is a premise she could not comprehend.

When she speaks of the people she rescues from the streets, not in order to make them into better human beings or to enable them to live productive lives, but simply because they are people, she speaks also of the abandoned and rejected people

"The biggest disease today is not leprosy or tuberculosis, but rather the feeling of being unwanted, uncared for and deserted by every one.

"The greatest evil is the lack of love and charity, the terrible indifference toward one's neighbor who lives at the roadside assaulted by exploitation, corruption, pover-

Tent Caterpillars Affect Fruit Trees

COLLEGE STATION (Special) Commercial fruit producers and home-owners with fruit trees can expect high eastern tent caterpillar numbers early this spring. Currently, egg masses can be found on plum, peach and other fruit trees, points out John Jackman, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Inspect trees closely for swelling on twigs while the leaves are off," advises Jackman. "Look for a brown frothy hard mass that surrounds small twigs. Prune out these egg masses now or break them off the twigs and destroy them. Each egg mass can produce several hundred caterpillars this spring. The webbing or tents formed by these appear in the crotches of branches just as trees leaf out in the spring."

Careful pruning now will avoid trouble later and will help save leaves on trees, notes Jackman.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED During the shortened holiday week, here's what's been happening on the

ALL MY CHILDREN: Billy tried to wrap Estelle around his conniving finger by giving her a glut of tacky Christmas gifts. The Martins had a hearty Christmas dinner, but fretted that Ray is headed for Pine Valley and Tad. Erica promised Tom she'll turn over a New Year's leaf. Chuck decided he couldn't keep Donna's confirmed pregnancy from her. Kelly ov-erheard that Eddie is being paid off by Phoebe if he marries Kelly. Tara told Chuck that their dream is kaput because of Donna's pregnancy

ANOTHER WORLD: Vince warned Angie that he won't allow her to make a fool of herself over Willis. Scott Bradley returned to be Mac's legal counselor. Iris asked Mac to hire Larry for Blaine's sake and asked Sylvie to take Blaine on a shopping spree. Joey convinced Charlie to hire Eileen's brother Morgan. Olive considered getting Alice out of the picture by killing her. Mac defended Blaine to Rachel and Ada. AS THE WORLD TURNS: Nancy and Chris served a traditional Christmas dinner while Joyce ate crow because Teddy was reunited with Mary over the holi-days. Tina set Lisa's mind ablaze with suspicions about Grant and Valerie, but Grant gifted Lisa with pearls. Sandy and Ralph dined together, while Joyce had visions of social sugarplums at a country club dance. Dee split for college.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Stephanie gave Bob a royal holiday shock by lying that Chris is negotiating with another firm to sell an invention. Meanwhile, she acquired a copy of Chris's signature to forge the transaction. Mary accused Linda of framing Chris and hinted to Bob about Neil and Linda. Marlena sought Laura's help in dealing with Donna's wedding fantasies. Theresa learned that Steve's antique music boxes are copies and hinted as much to Julie, who was reluctant to believe her brother was in cahoots with art forger Earl.

was the pits. After Lee Ann's christening, Steve cautioned Billy about feeling forced into marriage. Doreen consulted Jennings, a hit man, about kidnapping Carolee. Mona got in the way from keeping Nola's pregnancy news from Colin ing Nola's pregnancy news from Colin. THE EDGE OF NIGHT: Raven delivered her baby prematurely and ran with a sob story to Logan who fell for it, right into her hungry arms. Nancy's Christmas present arrived when Mike's bandages were removed and his eyesight returned. It was revealed that Cody influences Al-bert to commit dirty deeds. Miles has a brainstorm about evidence that might spring April.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Scotty and Laura's engagement blew up with Bobbi's claim that she's pregnant. Coleen and Chris were suspicious about Bobbi's secrecy concerning her past and "cousin" Loraine. Susan remembered that Frank Wallace, the New York lawyer, had written to Heather and Rick resisting Les's suggestion they consult a marriage counselor. Tracy and Monica fought about Tracy's obsession to get hold of the Quartermain trust fund.

GUIDING LIGHT: Roger vowed to make the New Year miserable for Rita. Dean concocted a vacation scheme for Sarah, during which he intends to "do her in." Jackie convinced Alan to bring Phillip to Xmas vespers, where Mike sang his heart out. Ann was left out in the cold when Elizabeth dined with the Bauers over the holidays.

LOVE OF LIFE: Ray gave Arlene a new house for Xmas, but mobster Piedro cast a threatening shadow. Ben and Mia talked of marriage. But Betsy and Elliott are living apart, so the New Year didn't look bright for the quartet. Bambi regained consciousness, thanks to Paul's at-

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Greg was held on suspicion of Marco's murder until Vicki was fingered. Paul Martin arrived to handle her case. Edwina became a reporter for a gossip rag and dug up juicy tidbits about the suspects, with a special gleeful vengeance reserved for Vicki as a jab to Joe for firing her. Pat was troubled by Adam's recurring illness, while Gretel felt increasingly out of Adam's picture. RYAN'S HOPE: Maeve gave Dee a dose of what it's like to be a mother dur-ing the holidays by dumping little John on her. Tom decided to undergo a dangerous operation on his eyes to rid himself of visions of Theresa. Maeve's sister, Annie, called to say she's arriving after the New Year.

SEARCH' FOR TOMORROW: Ste-SEARCH FOR TOMORROW: Stephanie had the holiday blahs when Wendy was caught shoplifting and John moved into the Hartford House. A jailed Buck learned that Sharon had fibbed about Carolyn, but made Carolyn realize that his teen brother Jackie needs counseling. Sunny encouraged Tom to look forward to a New Year without Kylie.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS:
Leslie and Lance sang Xmas carols. Jill

Leslie and Lance sang Xmas carols. Jill told Stu she was pregnant, but he spent the holidays with Liz. Snapper and Chris reunited, while Brock and Casey hit it off. Laurie resolved to get along better with Vanessa, who set it up so that Laurie would realize how "far gone" Les is in her pregnancy.

Herb Sauces Replace Traditional Gravies

NORWALK, Conn. (Special) — "Please pass the gravy" is a request heard regularly at dinner tables. Probably because Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 2 cups sauce. we wouldn't think of serving turkey without gravy and it's hard to imagine roast beef without a savory au jus.

But have you noticed what's been happening to gravies lately? Traditional styles are giving way to creamy herb sauces, spicy "tomatoey" blends and in-teresting fruit combinations, and these in turn are creating new and exciting serving ideas for meats.

Just watch what can happen to turkey, ham or roast when they're teamed up with unusual sauces and served as minisandwiches. A creamed curry sauce gives the turkey slices a distinctive far eastern

A simple baked ham gets an elegant touch with a sauce that combines applesauce, applebutter, maple syrup and raisins, and roast beef goes western with an intriguing barbecue sauce made with beer, chili sauce, olives and onions.

The sandwiches are made by splitting soft family rolls in half and layering thin slices of meat on the bottom halves. Then each is topped with its own special sauce.

These mini-sandwiches have many different uses. They're a marvelous way to use leftover meats; they're perfect for a buffet dinner and they're easy and economical to fix for a soup and sandwich

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — Did you eat so much food over the holidays that you feel like a stuffed turkey?

Then you may be one of the many Americans making the typical holiday resolutions to lose weight. Dairy Council, Inc. dietitians suggest that you select a weight loss goal, that you can easily achieve. Instead of selecting a goal of 45. pounds, set you sights at five pounds at a time. Success makes success. Achieve your small goal and you'll be able to reach the end result of a slim, trim fig-

The energy crisis is something that you brought on yourself. Because of overindulgence, you're going to have to face the reality that you've consumed more calories than your body needs. To lose weight you have three choices: (1) reduce the number of calories that you eat; (2) increase the amount of exercise; or (3) combine both, and lose weight fas-

— walking up a flight of stairs instead of taking the elevator;

- walking the five blocks to the convenience store for small items;

— parking in the middle of the shopping center parking lot instead of driving around, looking for the closest parking

'Rideout Case' Draws Attention To Domestic Violence Problem

By CONNIE CHAPMAN Family News Staff

In Salem, Ore., last month, John Rideout was found not guilty of the charge of raping his wife Greta.

This case was a test of the 1977 revision of the Oregon statute which dropped the words "not married to" from the definition of the crime of rape. The case also focused national attention on the whole spectrum of domestic violence.

Oregon is one of the few states which presently has a law under which such cases can be prosecuted. A similar law went into effect in New Jersey Jan 1.

Under the revised Oregon law, the definition of rape reads as follows: "Rape in the first degree: a person who has sexual intercourse with a female commits the crime of rape in the first degree if (a) the female is subjected to forcible compul-sion by the male; (b) the female is under 12 years of age; or (c) the female is under 16 years of age and is the male's sister, of the whole or half blood, his daughter or his wife's daughter. Rape in the first de-gree is a Class A felony."

The Texas law on rape states: " A person commits an offense if he has sexual intercourse with a female not his wife without the female's consent." It continues by defining what is meant by consent. Likewise, the Texas code defines aggravated rape, carrying over the same phrase and includes the wording "not his pouse" in the definition of sexual abuse.

In a classic Texas case, Frazier v State a "her word against his word" situat his lawfful wife by reason of their matrimonial consent" was upheld and the defendant could not be convicted.

Commenting on the present Texas law, Daniel H. Benson, professor at the Texas Tech University School of Law, said: There is nothing in it which would allow such a case to go to court."

He made the suggestion that "while there is no legislation presently under consideration which would make such a case a possibility in Texas, one remedy would be to make it a specific category of assault with a heavier penalty attached." "Presently, it is easier to take a case to court if a woman has a broken nose or finger or almost any bodily injury other than rape.

Becky Mahan, director of the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center, said, "Something has to be done, there are blatant inequities in the Texas law.

She said under the existing law, a woman is "fair game" for anything her husband does of that nature and has no legal recourse. She also agreed with Benson that the present law reflects the old view of woman as her husband's 'property.'

Benson said that any case involving husband-wife relations is hard to prosecute because the complainant, in most cases the wife, often will not go through with the complaint or testify at a trial against her husband.

Another legal problem which arises even when the legal procedures are followed is that the evidence or proof is hard to obtain and often the testimony is Jo Love Nelson, president of the Womnounced that her group is among those sponsoring a two-day conference on domestic violence to be held March 2-3 at First Christian Church here. The legal aspects will be-among the facets of the whole problem explored then.

She said the conference will focus community attention on the problem and is hopeful that one outcome of that meeting will be more community options for dealing with cases of domestic violence.

In addition to providing care and counseling for victims of sexual crime, the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center tries through public information programs to familiarize the community with the complexity of the problem. "Informed jurors make better decisions," said Mrs. Ma-

She emphasized that the way the community expresses the extent of its concern for such problems is the way juries deal with such cases locally.

Mrs. Mahan also said concerned persons should "not be complacent about the inequities in the state statutes," but should let their legislators know of their Place meat in large bowl. Add other ingredients. Stir lightly with a fork until well mixed and fluffy. Let stand 15 minutes or so, covered; then shape into balls by using a teaspoon and the palm of your hand, both wet, size depending on use. Chill to firm. To cook, melt butter over medium heat, using heavy skillet. Add meat balls, a few at a time, and brown on all sides, shaking the pan to turn the balls and to keep them rounded.

When brown, lift into baking dish. Add sliced mushrooms in desired amount (or not at all), canned or fresh, which have been slightly cooked in butter, and the Big Brothers needs volunteers to serve as Big Brothers to fatherless boys. The volunteers should be at least 20 years of age, of sound moral character and interested in helping young boys between the ages of six and 17. Each volunteer is carefully interviewed and screened in order to determine his effectiveness in working with young boys. Matches are based on compatibility and determined by similar likes, hobbies, etc. For more information, contact Big Brothers/Big Sisters at Girl Scout Leaders are needed in the Lubbock and South Plains area. Assistant leaders and helpers are also needed. For more information call or write the Caprock Girl Scout Council, 2567 74th St., Lubbock, 79423, 745-2855.

The Catholic Welfare Bureau needs volunteers willing to pick up donated items throughout Lubbock. Transportation is required. Call Benny Brito at 765-8375.

If you are 55 or older and unemployed, come to room 1401 in the Metro Tower 1220 Broadway or call 744-0123 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. We can help you.

If you have unneeded office equipment such as desks, chairs, shelving (bricks and boards), you can obtain tax credit for donating or lending these to the Senior Employment Program. Call Ed Marlowe at 744-0123.

The Free Wheeler Volunteer Driving Corps of the American Cancer Society needs your help! Help drive cancer patients to local treatment centers - only one patient per week one day of your choice. Mileage is tax deductible! Persons interested in the program may call the American Cancer Society at 762-0825. SPAGHETTI SAUCE

To check the seasoning in spaghetti sauce, taste some on a piece of plain bread.

If you know any homebound senior citizens, please help the Lubbock Senior Citizens Program identify these people. The program also needs volunteers for the Mayor's Reassurance Telephone Service. This service only takes five minutes of your time and reaches homebound senior citizens. For more information call Kathy Mowery at 744-1433 or 744-1434.

Volunteers are needed at Quaker or University Villa to help convalescent patients with handiwork for men and women. Skills are desirable but not necessary. Anything you can do to help the quality of life is appreciated. Contact Gayle Hansen, activity director, at 792-2831.

Community Hospital of Lubbock needs men and women to help in volunteer services. You can be a great comfort to patients who need someone to read to hem, assist them in moving about the hospital or to just sit and talk with them. Any age adult is eligible to apply and we will train you to be a good volunteer helper. You will find great satisfaction helping others. Community Hospital will also have a gift shop opening soon and volunteers are needed. For more information call Louise Stokes, director of volunteer services, 795-9301.

CURRENT EXPENSES

ered that housewives frequently buy cheap kitchen items that quickly become expensive because of the excessive electricity they use. Now they intend to intro-duce "energy labeling" showing the hourly running cost of all home appliances. A consumer survey has proved that most European housewives wildly overestimate or underestimate the electricity costs.

Consumer Movement Continues Battle Against New Price Hikes

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS

WASHINGTON, D.C. (WNS) — The national consumer movement is gaining renewed vigor as it mobilizes for battle against the new inflationary breakout.

Literally thousands of price hikes have occurred in just the past few months. They include increases on medicines, fuel oil, food products, paper goods, gasoline, soaps, winter coats, women's clothing, television sets and hundreds of other goods and services.

One consumer department reported that in a recent week every beef item went up. The price of pork is also rising. Mortgage rates are averaging 10.5 percent, rents are rising and real problems loom.

The extent and frequency of the recent and continuing increases have seemed almost hysterical. One food wholesaler reported that in the past four to six weeks in has received an average of 350 increases a week, many apparently "without rhyme or reason." A leading pharmacist told me it's been years since he saw so many price hikes all at once on drugs.

This is a serious upsurge and the government's new anti-inflation program does not seem designed to combat it. It almost seems as though industry in general is using the new government plan as invitation and excuse to hike prices.

If fact, a number of retailers have charged that manufacturers have rushed through increases in order to beat a possibility that present voluntary price restraints may become mandatory.

At the annual meeting in Washington early this month of the National Consumer League, the country's oldest consumer organization, members and representatives of other groups discussed the urgency of joining with grass-roots community groups in a counterattack against the sudden new price outbreak.

The continued vigor of the consumer movement as it meets the issue of the new inflation believes the claim that consumerism is languishing as the result of the defeat in Congress earlier this year of the proposal for a federal consumer agen-

Those who think so fail to realize the underlying public demand for reforms to stem the great waste of personal and national resources. All opinion surveys indicate that the public is ahead of many government leaders in understanding the need for consumer protection.

Gallup polls the past two years found that most people considered the cost of living be the nation's biggest problem. Several Harris polls found that most people favored the long-sought consumer agency bill that Congress killed. Other surveys, including that by the Sentry Insurance Co., also found strong public feeling that consumer reforms are need-

Another evidence of the public's consumer awareness is the many local groups that have sprung up around such specific issues as utility rates and tenant problems. Too, while Congress has seemed more resistant, state and local authorities have become increasingly active on behalf of consumers.

The public's consumer concerns are noticeably high right now. Moderate income people are especially frightened by sudden sharp increases in food prices. They worry that a time may come when they may not be able to feed their families adequately on the money they have to spend.

Explosive price runups hit wage-earners particularly hard and can abruptly erase wage gains and erode living standards

From 1972 to October, 1978, gross-average weekly earnings of non-agricultural workers had what seems like a handsome rise from $136 to $211. But real buying power in terms of constant 1967 dollars actually fell $4 in that time — from $109 to $105.

The four most troublesome areas that need watching in your own anti-inflation effort are housing; food cost, care expenses and medical costs.

Housing is the largest expense in most people's budgets. Unfortunately, some of the governments' activities are inadequate. Absent from the Administration's inflation plan was any proposal to reduce present steep mortgage rates.

At mortgage rates of 10 percent, a family with a $49,000 30-year mortgage will repay a total of $130,000. Moreover, the Federal Reserve Board has embarked on a high-interest policy that particularly affects housing costs but also everything else we buy.

Food costs are the other leading problem, especially this year with the price surge of 12 percent. We must try to reduce the present farm-to-market price spread of from 60 to 62 cents of the consumer's food dollar.

Several consumer organizations are making a valiant effort to get the government to take steps to stimulate competition in the food industry.

Couple Marks Anniversary

SLATON (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Tim Bourn of Slaton will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary with a reception from 2:30-4 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church of Slaton.

The former Elizabeth Elliott and Bourn were married Jan. 3, 1953 in Canadian. The couple has two sons. But you'll have to rely mostly on your own planning and comparison-shopping. Your most immediate problem this winter is the high cost of protein foods.

Even eggs are getting close to a dollar a dozen. They are, however, still at a moderate-cost alternative to meat since a dozen large eggs weighs a pound and a half with no waste.

In times of high meat prices, chicken and ground beef are the big competitors for the moderate-income family's food dollar. If ground beef is not more than twice as much as chicken, it's the better buy.

Chuck steak, bone-in, and pork loin also compete. They supply equivalent lean so whichever is cheaper at the time is the better value.

If loin roast costs no more than smoked ham, the loin does provide more lean and is the better value. But the edible yield from smoked shoulder usually costs about 20 to 25 cents less than from hams

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: This may seem petty, but it has irritated me for a long time. My only son lives out of state with his wife and four children who are from 8 to 15 years old.

I have sent the children expensive gifts on their birthdays, Christmas, Easter, as well as from my travels. Would you be-lieve that I have NEVER received a personal thank-you note from any of my grandchildren?

Oh, I get a "thank-you," but it is always written by their mother, who says something like, "Billy is too busy to write, so I am thanking you for your thoughtful gift, etc., etc.,

Every time I get one of these motherwritten thank-you notes I am resentful and hurt. My grandchildren are capable of writing their own letters and should do so. My daughter-in-law is a lovely person, always doing for others in her volunteer work, but she is failing in her duty to teach her children the importance of good manners in this regard.

Perhaps if she were to see this in your column (which I know she reads in the Chicago Tribune), she would get the hint and mend her ways.

Dear Granny: Readers seldom see themselves in my column - they see onvate good habits? Tell your son and his wife how you feel about their children's proxy thank-yous. And it wouldn't hurt to tell the kids, too.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 38, divorced (no kids), attractive, and I'd like to quit working and marry a man who can take care of me. (Please, no lectures on "where's your pride?" I was married for nine years to a guy who was allergic to work. I took care of him all that time, and now I'd like to be on the other end of that kind of deal.)

I'm dating a 52-year-old man who wants to marry me. He qualifies in every respect. (He has money and doesn't mind spending it.) There are only two things wrong with him. He has a potbelly — which really turns me off. And he smokes cigars. (About 10 a day.)

Would it be a mistake for me to tell him I'll marry him if he gets rid of the potbelly and cigars?

Dear Midge: Yes. If he were to agree to Take him as he is, or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: We have a friend who has many fine qualities. She has a heart as big as she is. For instance, if we are called out of town, or if some emergency comes up, she's the one who takes our children — and gladly. I can't begin to tell you all the nice things this woman has done, expecting nothing in return. But, Abby, does she lie!

If you compliment her on her dress, she'll say she made it. (She doesn't own a machine, and she can't sew a stitch!) Also, she will serve canned, frozen or carried-in food and look you right in the eye and tell you she made it from scratch. So, Dear Abby, what do you do about a friend who lies?

Traveler's Checks Tips

NEW YORK (WNS) - Do you have unused traveler's checks left from your summer vacation? If so, you are urged by a blitz campaign not to cash them but to keep them in your wallet as emergency

While the argument given — that they are good indefinitely, and that refunds can readily be obtained if these checks are ever lost or stolen - may make sense, some of us raise an eyebrow over the fact that the company selling us the traveler's checks in this way also has the use of our money long after having charged us for the checks.

But there is no controversy over other non-vacation uses for traveler's checks, which were developed originally for the conveniences and protection of Americans vacationing in Europe.

Here are some other uses to which these handy checks can be put by stay-at-

MOVING. Since a change some years back in Interstate Commerce Commission regulation, traveler's checks can be used to pay moving van charges, thus ending the need to carry large quantities of each during a move. Also, the family's expenses in transit can be paid this way, and the checks can be used in the new community before local credit is established and a neighborhood bank account BUYING A HOME. At a closing, in addition to the certified check for the basic payment, there is always a need to pay expenses that are calculated just before the papers are to be signed. Often the several hundred dollars in cash. Traveler's checks can be used instead, without the danger of carrying large sums of cash.

BUSINESS EXPENSES. Executives, salesmen, newspaper correspondents, engineers, representatives of consulting companies, and many others often need quick funds for a sudden trip. Many company cashiers keep traveler's checks on hand, then issue them in place of cash advances for expenses. This procedure is especially useful to companies that are not close to banks or those that operate at night, when banks generally are shut. This way an employee would not have to rush to the bank when his boss suddenly decides to send him out of town

REMITTANCES TO COLLEGE STU-DENTS. When youngsters leave home for the first time, the traveler's check is a useful way to send expense money. This can be done through the parent's local bank, communicating with an office near the college. Thus the remittance is made in protected money, with a record kept, and with refund service in case of loss.

REMITTANCES ABROAD. With many American youngsters still traveling or studying in foreign countries, this is a convenient way for parents to send expense money in the equivalent of American dollars. And though the dollar may be depressed in relationship with some other currencies, traveler's checks are as useful as U.S. cash or credit cards.

PAYMENT OF WAGES. Certain seasonal workers who get paid a lump sum can be protected by getting traveler's checks instead of cash. Seamen, for example, coming off the ship after a long voyage, are subject to theft at or near the docks. This way their pay is protected.

ADVANCES TO EMPLOYEES. Longdistance truck drivers, for example, can be paid in traveler's checks, thus giving them negotiable funds but with protections against the hazards of the road.

More Women Commit Suicide Each Year

One of the truisms among people who study suicide used to be this: there are three times as many suicide attempts among women as among men, but there are three times as many completed suicides among men as among women.

That truism is now open to question. While the incidence of suicide has gone up in both men and women over the past 20 years, the rate of increase is greater in

According to figures from the National Center for Health Statistics of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the suicide rate in males has increased steadily from 15.8 suicides per 100,000 people in 1852 to 17.7 in 1973, the latest year for which complete data are available. The only period during which there was no increase was the early sixties, when the rate dropped slightly and leveled off for a few years.

With women, the rate fluctuated more, but the trend is clear. In 1952, 4.4 women per 100,000 committed suicide. The rate hit its peak in 1971, with an incidence of 6.8. an increase of more than 50 percent. In 1973, the rate dropped slightly to 6.5, but whether this decrease has any ongoing significance remains to be seen.

While the overall difference in suicide rates between men and women remains substantial, differences among certain age groups reveal some interesting trends. The rate of increase is startling in the teens and twenties, having more than doubled since the early 1950's for both males and females.

But for people in their forties and fif-ties, the suicide rate for women has risen steadily while the rate for men has actually declined. In 1973, suicide in women hit its peak in the 45 to 49 age group. with a rate of 12.9 per 100,000. The rate for men the same age was 26.2, slightly more than twice the women's rate, but down significantly from the peak of 29.3 reached in 1958

In old age, which used to be the peak suicide period for men and very close to it for women, the rate has dropped significantly in both sexes.

Many explanations have been offered for changing suicide rates. One theory about the increased rate in women is that they are using more lethal means in their suicide attempts than they did in years past. This in part reflects greater knowledge of drugs often used in suicide and also a growing willingness to use the more violent means that have historically been preferred by men: shooting, hanging and jumping from heights.

Some experts believe that the suicide increase in women in part results from the fact that a greater number are entering the business world, where competition and the possibilities for obvious failure have been thought to be key suicide factors in men. Such theories, however, are matters of conjecture until more information is available

Perhaps the most disturbing trend. in both males and females, is the rapid increase in suicide among the young. Possible explanations include increased pressure to succeed in school and work, mobility and lack of roots, weakening of the family structure, and a tendency for people to be more independent and correpondingly less secure at a younger age.

In young and old, male and female, and regardless of the cause, suicide can usually be prevented. Suicide prevention centers and other agencies cropping up throughout the country work with potentially suicidal people, saving thousands of lives each year and helping people receive the counseling or treatment they need to return to full and meaningful liv-

But many suicidal people are not in the frame of mind required to get help. They need the encouragement and support of a friend or relative, and in some cases they need someone to take positive action on their behalf. That action consists of making sure that qualified professional help is reached before it is too late.

The American Association of Suicidolo

alert people to the possibility of suicide and prompt them to act. The first of these signs is the suicide threat or other statement indicating a desire to die. This very obvious sign is often overlooked be-cause people mistakenly believe that those who talk about suicide don't really do it. In the majority of cases, suicidal people do talk about it and their comments should be taken very seriously. Another danger signal is prolonged or severe depression. Effective treatment is available, but many people who are depressed remain untreated.

Erratic behavior, personality changes, and a preoccupation with such final arrangements as preparing wills or giving away personal possessions are other ominous signs.

The association urges people to get help when they observe signs of suicide in someone else or when they themselves believe they are suicidal. That help can be reached locally through CONTACT at 765-8383.

Inadequate Appliance Knowledge May Cause Unnecessary Repairs

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS' NEW YORK (WNS) — In an age of many household appliances, repair costs can become a frequent and often startling expense and sometimes it's the consumer's own fault if an appliance goes on the fritz.

True, some repair problems are due to designs sometimes aimed more at handsome appearance and quick assembly on the production line than at durability.

Use of cheaper materials may be another reason, as in the often-inadequate, plastics used in refrigerator parts.

The proliferation of models also has made it necessary for manufacturers and service firms to stockpile literally thousands of parts, and this adds to costs.

But sometimes misunderstanding of care needs by consumers themselves leads to unnecessary repairs. Consumers often fail to refer to the instruction booklets for information on proper care of an appliance. Or they think appliances are more durable than they really are.

Granted, you need a whole library of instruction booklets in a modern home. but that has become the name of the game. Sometimes service charges have been incurred merely because a plug was pulled out improperly when a television set or appliance was moved.

From time to time we try to fill in this costly knowledge gap as we develop information from experiences of consumers and technicians. Here are some examples we've encountered recently:

THE CASE OF THE BROKEN RAB-BIT EARS: One of the most frequent television repair jobs is replacement of rabbit ear antennas that have been snapped

CHEESY CASSEROLE

Like cheese and potatoes? They make a great casserole. Cook three mediumsized potatoes with their skins. Remove the skins and place the potatoes in a mixing bowl. Add one cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese, one cup dairy sour cream, one teaspoon of seasoned salt and a dash of pepper; mix until fluffy. Place in a well buttered, one and one-half quart rectangular baking dish and sprinkle the top with canned French fried onions. Bake in a preheated (350 degree) oven for about 20 minutes or until well heated. It's enough for four to six servings.

off near the base. The problem arises when people fail to pull out the antenna fully before trying to swivel it. There's a socket to permit easy swiveling. If the antenna prong resists moving in different directions, don't try to force it. You have not pulled it out completely at the base.

THE SHORTED RANGE: You need to be careful about using spray-type cleaners on electric ovens. One reader had to have the calrod coil in her oven replaced at a cost of almost $50. The serviceman explained that the coil shorted out because a liquid oven cleaner had been sprayed on the contact.

With a brush-type cleaner, it's easier to avoid coils and contacts. Spray-on cleaners sometimes get into oven light buttons on doors and cause shorts. Don't spray around these areas, servicemen advise. Servicemen also warn to be careful in the use of aluminum foil liners in the bottoms of ovens: there's a possibility of making electrical contact and this could cause a short.

Using roil around the drip plates of the range-top burners pose similar risks. Some servicemen believe that the foil liners reflect too much heat and burn out the calrod units.

Gilbert Gluck, a long-experienced servce technician, says that some consumers burn out two or three units a year this way while others seem to be able to use foil liners with no problem at all.

DISHWASHERS THAT WON'T: These are the appliances most subject to human error, and are responsible for the most service calls of all, technicians report. Problems often are caused by user failures to scrape dishes thoroughly. On some types of dishwashers, food particles can get under the valve and let the water

A hard particle - perhaps a piece of bone - can injure the pump. Gluck advises. Sometimes/a user will drop a glass or cup. Chips from these get into the pump, which then binds or stalls. The chips need to be removed or the motor as well as the pump may be injured. If you try removing them yourself, be sure to unplug - or at least turn off the machine, and use long-nosed pliers.

A high-sudsing detergent also can reduce washing effectiveness, by building up suds and slowing water action. Most of the widely sold special detergents for dishwashers are low-sudsing. Gluck says. but sometimes dishwasher owners will use one that is not, and in come the com-

THE CASE OF THE MISSING LINT: A problem sometimes occurring when a clothes washing machine drains into an adjacent laundry tub rather than its own outlet is that the tub may accumulate lint, and eventually clog up and overflow. This is especially likely to happen with today's big washers. One solution often suggested by servicemen is to tie a nylon stocking over the end of the drain hose to catch the lint before it gets into the tub.

THE WORKING-WIFE LAUNDRY SYNDROME: In these days when many women work outside the home, the natural tendency to catch up on laundry by doing five or six loads in succession on Saturday has caused a new problem. Gluck reports.

Such uninterrupted use causes the mofor to overheat, which causes excessive wear on bearings. Loads that are too heavy also put excessive strain on motors, reduce laundering effectiveness and slow down the spin. Unbalanced loads can cause the washer to "walk" across the floor or cut off if it has an off-balance

PERIL OF THE WET PICKUP: Nature abhors a vacuum that is used dangerously. One of the riskiest practices that can both damage the vacuum and imperil the user is to use the machine for picking up water unless it has been manufactured and advertised for wet pickup. Nor should a vacuum cleaner be used outdoors on a patio carpet even if the carpet looks dry, government experts ad

January Designated Blood Donors Month

By FRANCES LOWE

Family News Staff
President Carter, Governor Dolph Briscoe and Mayor Dirk West have all proclaimed January National Volunteer Blood Donor Month.

The proclamation kicked off a monthlong effort to honor citizens who regularly volunteer to give blood so that others may lice.

may live,
It is made to honor community members who have outstanding donor records, to increase public awareness of the need for blood donors, and to spotlight local efforts of the South Plains Blood Service.

Weather, Inflation Affect Food Prices

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — One of those things that is always going up seems to be the cost of food.

A recent U.S. Government Accounting Office report, "What Causes Food Prices to Rise? What Can Be Done About It?" states that major reasons for high food prices are bad weather, increased food marketing costs and inflation.

Between 1970 and 1977, consumers paid 72 percent more for U.S. farm produced food. Part of this increase is annual inflation, added to a 41 percent increase which resulted from a worldwide grain shortage in 1973-74.

These increases have brought charges of unfair pricing policies against the food industry: increased the concern over high food prices: and led farmers to complain about the low prices received for agriculture products, compared with their production costs.

The largest single cost for farmers is the cost of labor. In 1977, for the first time, food marketing labor costs of $62 billion exceeded the farm value of the commodities by $5 billion.

While farmers are complaining of low prices for their products, consumers are complaining they never see the savings passed on, say Dairy Council, Inc. home economists. Some of the ressons are:

economists. Some of the reasons are:

— increased marketing costs for the middleman (assembling, transporting, processing, wholesaling and retailing);

 retail pricing methods that follow competitor's prices, retaining retail price when wholesale cost decreases and offering cents-off coupons rather than reducing the established price;

- ao price competition when a few stores atttract most of the business.

"Donating blood is an extremely important contribution an individual makes to the community," Janice Hassell, donor development specialist for the local Blood Service, emphasized.

Thirty-eight hospitals in 22 counties in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico are served by the South Plains Blood Service, Miss Hassell said. Blood requirements at present exceed 100 pints per working day, an increase of 30 pints over September 1978. The annual usage for blood and its components has increased from 18,000 in 1977 to nearly 20,000 pints in 1978, Miss Hassell said.

The projection of the South Plains Blood Service for 1979 is over 28,000 units of blood and its components.

"This huge increase," Miss Hassell said, "has come about partly because of the increase in the number of open heart surgeries performed at Methodist and St. Mary's on the Plains Hospitals in Lubbock.

The current average is 12 to 14 open heart surgeries, each of which requires six pints of blood, during the average week.

The predicted increase in needed blood is also based partly on the beginning of kidney transplant surgery in this area, she said. Each of these kinds of surgeries will require a minimum of four pints of blood.

The opening of the new Health Sciences Center hospital and the increased population in our 120 mile radius also contribute to the increased need for blood, she said.

South Plains Blood Service is a non-profit organization, supported by the citizens in the 58 communities it serves. Blood is taken on a voluntary basis only and there is no money given for the donation.

"We are very much in need of more regular blood donors." Miss Hassell said, "And we hope that the proclamation of January as Blood Donor Month will encourage people to give blood.

"However, we also wish to express our thanks to our friends, individuals and organizations, who have been so supportive of our work. We could not begin to get the job done without them. And of course the people who are most grateful are those who have needed the blood. We hope more people will want to participate in this program which is such a great service to our community."

TAKING STOCK — John Richmond, director of Lubbock Blood Services, checks supplies. The increasing need for blood and blood components for a growing population and increased surgical procedures means that many more regular donors are needed in the Lubbock area in the year ahead. CHECKING PRESSURE — Barbara Wright of South Plains Blood Services checks blood pressure for donor Ricky Warnick. This has been proclaimed national blood donor month to

Homemade Mixes Offer Convenience Without Commercial Cost

By MARCIA O. BURG

Women's News Service Put a bit o' magic in your hectic schedules with mixes. But in the interest of economics, assemble them at home instead of scanning market shelves for a food technologist's concept of the housewife's handy helper.

Making mixes at home also permits some control over the finished product. though how individual ingredients are commercially processed may remain a mystery to consumers without doctorates in chemistry.

Labels on European-style or gourmet instant coffees, for example, may list such ingredients as vegetable oil, sugar. corn syrup solids, instant coffee, trisodium citrate, sodium caseinate solids, silicon dioxide and mono-and diglycerides. Also, dipotassium phosphate, artificial flavors, salt, tetrasodium pyrophosphate, lecithin and artificial color.

But a homemade reasonable facsimile might result from combining instant coffee, sugar, non-fat instant dry milk, cocoa and cinnamon or other spices, to arrive at a flavor you fancy. It would be cheaper and less enigmatic!

Muffins, coffeecake, pancakes and waffles are all on call with a quick-fix master mix. This basic mixture, tightly covered, stores well in a cupboard, ready for addition of eggs, milk, oil and flavoring when time's of the essence.

BASIC MIX: In a large container, combine 4 cups all-purpose flour, 3 tablespoons baking powder, 11/2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup sugar, and 31/4 cups bran cereal. Cover tightly and store in a cool dry place. Yields 6 cups mix.

MAGIC-MIX MUFFINS: In a large bowl, beat I egg till foamy. Add 14 cup vegetable oil and 1 cup milk, beating

Bridal Registry Provides Guide For Gift Choice

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special) - When you're choosing a wedding present, it's sometimes hard to find a gift that adequately expresses your love and good wishes, and it is especially difficult to find a gift that you can be sure the bride

The very best way to find out what the bride you're buying for really wants, say experts at the Jewelry Industry Council, is to consult her favorite jeweler's Bridal Gift Registry. At shops where the bride has registered her gift choices, you'll find a record of the patterns she has chosen in sterling, crystal and dinnerware, how many settings of each she already has and how many more she needs. Extras like candlesticks, carving sets and serving pieces will be listed as

Don't be afraid you won't be original. The bride has registered the gifts she wants mest. She will be delighted to receive them, perhaps even happier than she would be with "surprise" presents. She has probably already thought of just how the gifts she has registered will fit into her new home.

If, when you consult the registry, you find that many of the chosen gifts have already been purchased for the bride, let her registry choices de vou in determining her taste for home decor. Pick a gift that will harmonize with her other choices.

Long-time favorites for wedding gifts are sterling and silver-plate holloware, a crystal place setting or candlesticks. Of course, three-piece settings of flatware and dinnerware are always welcome. Oven-to-table serving pieces, either in stoneware coordinated with the bride's china pattern or a silver-plate holder for a pyrex casserole are sure to be useful. The Council advises that other sure hits are gifts keyed to the bride and bridegroom's special interests. Wine coasters, a dripless pourer or a sommeiller's cup are great for wine lovers. while gourmet cooks might love an extra-special bowl or serving piece. Your jeweler will be happy to tell you what's Combine your knowledge of the cou-ple's likes with the bride's registry choices and you'll come up with plenty of ideas for divine wedding gifts.

Silver Delights Busy Brides

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special) — Wedding silver is a treasure that can become a family heirloom, but just because it's special and valuable doesn't mean you can't enjoy it every day. The more you use your silver, the more you'll love it. But to make sure it grows in beauty, use and care for it properly. This, you'll be delighted to know, is wonderfully easy.

The best prescription for beautiful sterling is frequent use. Well-used silver develops a rich "heirloom" patina (actually composed of hundreds of tiny scratches.) Rotate pieces to insure that an even patina forms.

Wash silver in hot sudsy water. Be sure to rinse and dry it thoroughly. Any remaining spots can be easily removed with a bit of silver polish. Don't be afraid to put flatware in the dishwasher.

Your silver needs an all-over cleaning with a special silver polish about every six months. Polish flatware with lengthwise strokes. When polishing holloware, follow the contours of the piece. Be sure not to crowd pieces when polishing or Store unused silver in tarnish-free cloths or a tightly closed silver chest.

SAUTE VEGETABLES

To saute vegetables until golden, heat oil over medium-high heat and stir in vegetables for about five minutes. To saute vegetables until soft, cook at medium-high heat until oil goes from cloudy well. Add 2 cups basic mix, stirring just till everything's moistened. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla or lemon extract; mixing slightly. Let stand about 2 minutes to soften bran cereal in basic mix. Distribute among 12 greased 21/2-inch muffin pan cups. Bake at 400 degrees about 25 minutes, or till golden brown.

COFFEE BREAK CAKE: Combine 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons cinnamon and 1/4 cup each, chopped walnuts, almonds or pecans and flaked coconut (unsweetened) in a small bowl. In a large bowl. beat 1 egg till foamy, then add 14 cup vegetable oil and 114 cups milk, beating well Add 2 cups basic mix, beating well. Let stand a few minutes to soften bran cereal in the basic mix.

Stir in 1 teaspoon almond extract, then spread batter evenly in greased 9x9x2inch baking pan. Sprinkle nut-and-coconut mixture over the batter and bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes, or till toothpick inserted in cake center emerges clean. After cooling 10 minutes, cut in squares and serve warm. Yields eight servings.

GRIDDLE CAKES: In a large bowl, beat I egg till foamy then beat in 1/4 cup vegetable oil and 1% cups milk. Thoroughly mix in 2 cups basic mix and let stand a few minutes. Stir in a sprinkling of nutmeg and cinnamon.

Using 1/4 cup batter for each pancake, cook on greased and preheated griddle, turning once, till golden brown. Keep them warm in a 250-degree oven till all are done. Yields about 14 five-inch pan-

Somewhere among the Big 10 of American dessert favorites ranks the brownie. And for another advance-amalgamation of ingredients to be stored, you can count on Gloria Pitzer. Author of "The Secret Restaurant Recipes Book," she claims she ferrets out the essence of commercial mixes and recipes and duplicates them. Her paper-cover publications and newsletters, in which copycat recipes are assigned near-miss names (Archer Teacher fish batter: Beg Bouy strawberry pie: Diary Qween frozen custard. Gloreo sandwich cookies and such), are available only by mail.

Book one costs $5. Book Two. "Second Helping of Secret Recipes - Including Christmas," costs $3. Write Gloria Pitzer's National Homemakers Newsletter, P.O. Box 276, Downtown Pearl Beach, Mich., 48052.

GLORIA-BE BROWNIE MIX: In a large bowl, combine thoroughly, 5 cups sugar, 3 cups all-purpose flour, 2 cups unsweetened cocoa and 3 teaspoons each baking powder and salt. Cut in 31/2 cups shortening (type not requiring refrigeration) till mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Keeps up to six weeks at room temperature, longer in the freezer. To measure out, lightly spoon mix into measuring cup, leveling with spatula. Yields about 14 cups or enough for 5 recipes.

TO MAKE BROWNIES: Beat 2 eggs with 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add 234 cups brownie mix and stir till smooth. Top with nuts, if desired. Spread in greased 8x8x2-inch baking pan. Bake 25 to 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool and cut in QUICK MASTER MIX - Shorten food preparation time by preparing and keeping on hand your own master mixes from easy recipes; they can be used in a variety of ways to give spice to your meals as well as saving time in the kitchen, and are cheaper and more additive-free than commercial mix preparations.

After your first batch, you'll be able to judge if they're fudgy or chewy enough for your taste. And since one commercial brownie mix takes kindly to a couple of tablespoons of peanut butter added along with eggs and orange extract in lieu of vanilla, one batch can be varied that way. A soft-cover volume exclusively devoted to homemade mixes is "Make-a-Mix Cookery" by Karine Eliason, Nevada Harward and Madeline Westover, $4.95.

H.P. Books. They promise 200 tested recipes made with 58 easy mixes.

The instant home mixes are also perfect for gift giving; just pack in a colorful container and make sure to include a recipe for use

Though our local youth and newcomers may shrug it off as inconsequential and others may label it merely a sign of the times, the recent closing of the Lindsey Theater is certainly mourned by the myriad of area movie buffs. There has, after all, been a Lindsey Theater of some sort on the corner of Main Street and Avenue J since as far back as 1916. Once one of the city's most popular movie houses, it has nevertheless weathered competition from its inception. Then, as the years flew and Lubback grew, it had to fight the additional battles of area, proximity to homes and

Until finally, after its final screenings the night of January 4, the war was lost and the Lindsey closed its doors for good.

Pioneer businesswoman Mrs. J.D. Lindsey built the Lindsey Theater, Lubbock's first movie theater, in 1916. Eight years later she and her husband built the Palace across the street, which later became the Clifton and a prime showplace before it was torn down. Naturally, a small West Texas town did not possess a huge movie palace right at the turn of the century. But the next two decades instigated huge growth and progress. So much so that on April 9, 1940, the downtown Lindsey was closed for what was labeled "remodeling."

That remodeling was actually the construction of an entirely new facility: a true movie palace with balcony, stage and 1,300 seats. The new look was unveiled to the public on November 7, 1940 with the local premiere of "The Mark Of Zorro," starring Tyrone Power and Basil Rathbone. The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal published Hory in the prior Sunday addition, applauding the opening of the new theater. And on opening night, the Lubbock Westerner band was playing outside the theater. Lubbock police had cordoned off traffic for a block in every direction, and radio station KFYO conducted a street broadcast outside the Lindsey box office.

The admission price then was 39 cents for matinees and 44 cents for evening showings. And for that price Lubbock was able to see "Gone With The Wind" that year, and for just a bit more spectaculars like "The Robe" in 1953.

Lubbock writer Les Adams, publisher of "Yesterday's Saturdays" magazine and co-author of the recent film reference book "Shoot-Em-Ups," recalls that the Lindsey also offered stage shows (with magicians and the like), and that it was definitely a movie palace of high standards, showing "only the big budget films, the Paramounts and the Cecil B. DeMille pictures." Adams also recalled the Lindsey's midnight shows on Saturday nights over 30 years ago, with "people standing in line two deep all the way down the alley.

Preston Smith, who operated the Lindsey and several other Lubbock movie theaters before going on to become governor of Texas, told The A-J, "I had a ball during those times. Movies back then were built around family ties and business was much better. You didn't have the obscene things like in the movies today. I was in the film business from 1936 to 1958, and I don't recall ever showing an 'adults only' picture at

But the Lindsey still had to fight competition. Christmas of 1958, for example, saw the Lindsey open "Raw Wind In Eden," a soapy melodrama starring Esther Williams and Jeff Chandler. Meanwhile the Village was drawing crowds to the delightful family attraction "Tom Thumb" and the State had opened Yul Brynner in "The Buccaneer." To give you a better idea of the Lindsey's family policy, that same month saw the downtown theater screen Doris Day's "Tunnel Of Love" and Pat Boone's "Mardi Gras." Pictures which did well, despite the nearby Clifton's success with Vincent Price in "House Of Wax."

The admission price at the Lindsey had risen by then to 75 cents for matinees and 90 cents for evening showings. Children could still get in by paying only 20 cents.

By 1968, the Lindsey's floor plan had been remodeled and the seating capacity was now about 1,000. The admission was $1 for matinees and $1.25 after dark. And there was the added competition of a modern movie palace, seating the same number of people but able to show films in wide screen and with better sound reproduction: a theater out on 50th Street called the Winchester. Christmas at the Lindsey that year saw the local premiere of a fluffy comedy called "The Impossible Years," starring David Niven.

But just look at the competition in town that day: Steve McQueen's "Bullitt" at he Village, John Wayne's "Hellfighters" at the Arnett-Benson, the hit musical "Canada" at the Winchester and the Beatles' animated "Yellow Submarine" at the

I first arrived in Lubbock in 1970 and became a frequent visitor to the Lindsey. Not that the Lindsey was really keeping pace by this time, but instead because this downtown palace. despite showing its age, boasted both atmosphere and an array of "sleepers": small, low-budget films which surprisingly turn out to be very good despite a lack of big stars or advance publicity. Indeed, this is one of the most heartbreaking after effects of the Lindsey's closing: the fact we no longer have a source of un-hyped movies.

The Lindsey offered a lot of what the film medium called blaxploitation, sequels to films like "Blacula" and "Superfly." And yet because of this policy, we were able to see a very nice little effort called "Cornbread, Earl and Me." Rock Hudson's "Hornet's Nest," with that excellent but obscure music score by Ennio Morricone, was screened only at the Lindsey. Westerns? God, the Lindsey gave us black westerns, Italian westerns, kung-fu westerns, you name it. But again, this also meant we were allowed to see Sergio Leone's magnificent final effort titled "Duck, You Sucker" (later horribly re-titled "A Fistful Of Dynamite").

Cop dramas were also in huge supply, but the Lindsey was the only theater to book "The Laughing Policeman," an excellent picture starring Walter Matthau and Bruce Dern.

Mind you, part of the Lindsey's success at booking such films was due to the fact its mothership, Video Theaters Inc., had signed a very nifty contract with United Artists to guarantee product. But the Lindsey was a haven for film buffs. And it also offered refuge to those who worked nights, those who wanted to lose themselves in the darkness for a few hours, those who just didn't have anyplace else to go, as the Lindsey maintained a continuous schedule of daily matinees.

But by the mid-70s the bidding wars were on and United Artists failed to renew the contract with Video. (Why contract films to one chain when everyone will bid sky high prices for those pictures?) New theaters had cropped up in the outlying residential areas and in shopping malls, and the Lindsey was already on its last legs. The balcony had already been roped off due to lack of crowds. Video Theaters direcfor Bob Scott said. "The main reason business suffered was because of the downtown area. It is just not economically feasible to run a theater of that size downtown. I don't know of any city of any size with a major first run theater downtown. Most downtown theaters are skin houses or dollar houses.

"The new theaters all have big parking lots with plenty of parking space. To go to a movie downtown, you may have to walk several blocks. And people aren't going to do that anymore - including me.

But still the Lindsey tried. In 1978 a "dollar policy" was instituted, with the theater showing re-issued double features (often aimed at the so called "east Lubbock market") with the admission price set at $1. Scott said the attendance was above average, but there was not much profit to be made at a buck a head. Since Video must pay not only personnel salaries, utilities and insurance, but also rental (the property on which the Lindsey sits has never been purchased by the theater owners), Scott said, "We just came to the conclusion that we'd lose less money with the theater closed.

Asked if the theater might be turned into an X-rated movie house or one specializing in Spanish language films, Scott answered, "No, our company has a policy against showing X-rated pictures at any time. And with the Arnett-Benson recently turned into a Spanish house and several others in town, I feel we're pretty much saturated with Spanish theaters. So for the time being, we have no future plans for the Lindsey. We'll just clear the marquee, lock the doors and let it sit there. It's just a matter of economics.

Sad thing, this intangible we call progress. The city grows and the downtown area suffers. The trend turns to fourplexes and sixplexes, many with small auditoriums, and the movie palaces die a slow death. I have been scared and thrilled and amused (and yes, bored too) by pictures at the Lindsey. I have walked eight blocks to see pictures there, some good and some bad. I have found the personnel working the box office and concession stand, especially the two older women who worked the matinees during the '70s, to be consistently courteous and personal in their service (something which can no longer be taken for granted).

These are things to remember. What's going to be hardest to forget, however, is the fact that Lubbock's first movie theater, a palace even before World War II, had to go out of business with pictures like "Bamboo Brotherhood" and "Shadow Of The Dragon" on the marquee. Progress be damned. She deserved better.

While on the subject of films, let me remind you that Walt Disney's classic 1940 animated picture "Pinocchio" is currently in town at the Fox Theater. And it's as alive and fresh and wonderful as ever. Most film buffs maintain that "Pinocchio" is the finest animated film ever made, that Disney's veteran animators never topped it and certainly nothing contemporary even comes close. But if thats not enough to draw you to the theater, how about this little tidbit: Disney's animated classics are re-issued only once every seven years.

So take your kids. "Pinocchio" is a childhood experience which shouldn't be missed, and a delightful second childhood for the rest of us.

Each year the Avalanche-Journal picks the Best and Worst Movies of the previous year, and I'll be publishing my choices for these honors in early February. I can already reveal, however, that my favorites will include pictures like "Blue Collar," "Coming Home," "Midnight Express," "Heaven Can Wait," "Days Of Heaven" and probably "Invasion Of The Body Snatchers." But the reason for the delay is to supply you, our readers, with enough time to catch the current movies and mail in your choices of the best and worst films of 1978.

Reaction to this annual A-J poll has increased each year, and we're hopeful we'll get a record number of responses in the next month or so. So send your lists, and any comments you choose to make about your selections, to me in care of The A-J.

It's that exciting time of year when the new fashions in hair and clothes are about to be released for spring and summer. Jessie Lee is about to leave for Las Vegas to attend the National Hairdressers' Convention and learn exactly what the new trend will be. On January 28 she will present the be. On January 29 she will present this new look to her students and to all interested hairdressers in the West Texas area. We will be the first with what is new, and our students will know how to personalize this look for you. Jessie Lee not only releases the Na-tional Styles Committee's collection, but she and her team of experts will also add their own touches to adapt the new styles to realistic and wearable fashions for West Texas.

Would you like to be a model for our Trend Release Show? You would have the fun of having the new look first, and for free. In order to participate, you would need to come by our school by January 16 at the latest. We cannot schedule models by telephone, as it is necessary for one of our instructors to see your hair and analyze its possibilities. You must be willing to have your hair cut and, if necessary, colored or permed - whatever our specialists feel is necessary to achieve the new look.

Jessie Lee insists that our students keep up-to-date with the very latest in hair designs. For 25 years she has been a member of the National Styles Committee. Twice each year she has helped to release and even to create many of the styles of the releases. She has traveled to the fashion centers in England and France to compare American hairstyles with the favorite looks in other countries. To this she ways adds her own de for the beautiful, yet practical, fashions of West Texas' smartest fashionminded hairdressers and customers.

Manzanera Brilliant But 'Unnoticed' Talent

By DOUG PULLEN A-J Rock Correspondent

An artist, in rock terms, is not merely a performer who possesses a great deal of musical ability or prowess (or both). He or she is not simply a person whose talent is above and beyond the quality of an average rocker's. And he doesn't have to be rich and famous and sobbish either.

He can be like Phil Manzanera - an ar-

Manzanera is the brilliant (and largely unnoticed) guitar talent who not only blends in well within a group's context. but is equally adept at cutting it alone, with a band of his own making or as part of somebody else's band. Manzanera's career in rock, though, has been patterned along just those terms.

He is the guitarist for Roxy Music, one of the older and more popular avant guard rock groups. (The group formed in 1972.) He is the author of four solo LPs. three of which were recorded with his own makeshift band called 801. Manzanera has spiced several several albums with his divergent guitar skills: John Cale's "Slow Dazzle" and "Fear," Eno's Here Come The Warm Jets" and "Taking Tiger Mountain," and some of Roxy Music lead singer Brian Ferry's so-

Manzanera has played guitar on no fewer than 15 albums in the past six years. Yet he remains virtually unknown, a guitarist whose lack of exposure may be in-

His style is as recognizable as Robert Fripp's or Steve Hackett's. Manzanera has an uncanny talent for leaving his mark, be it ever so slight, on the music of some of rock's supreme stylists.

Manzanera depends a great deal upon this talent. And the people he works with-are similar in nature. His and 801's new album "K-scope" (Polydor) makes perhaps some of the best use of a divergent blend of instrumental styles.

The most outstanding feature of the album is the ability with which the band, especially Manzanera, adjusts to the varjous styles of music and approach offered. Manzanera works as comfortably with a non-musician texturalist such as Eno as he does with John Wetton, an imagist of sorts.

This ability to agilely "leap" from style to style with no apparent trouble is what separates Manzanera from about 90 per cent of the other rock guitarists.

"K-scope" is perhaps the best show-case to date of Manzanera's capabilities. Not quite as confused as "Diamond Head," not quite as gray as "Listen, Now!", not quite as good as "801 Live," the new album's stress is placed on melody, beat and musicianship.

Manzanera sounds more in control on "K-scope" than he did on its 1977 predecessor, "Listen, Now!" The guitar is featured a trifle more prominently, though Manzanera never allows himself to dominate (unusual, for any solo effort). Instead. Manzanera blends his fluid styling with the likes of Bill MacCormick's liquid bass patterns and Simon Phillips' acute drumming

Other styles are mixed in. Eno contributes a tasty keyboard section to the opening track, "K-scope." The song is one of three contrasting and somewhat surprising instrumentals on the album. "Kscope" is characterized by its upbeat nature and Eno's keyboard dialogue with Manzanera's guitar.

"N-shift" is the second of the instrumentals, taking the third position on side two. Like all the songs on "K-scope," "Nshift" is crafted so that it fits snugly into its place on the album, yet stands up alone (and would make a decent track for FM radio programs).

Again, Manzanera's guitar is at the core of the song, but this time more deliberately so. Manzanera utilizes "studio technology" (his catch-all phrase for technical affectation of music) such as overdubbing (in this case) to propel the song. The two-guitar lead line falls well into place.

The final instrumental is "You Are Here," an airy, nebulous track which works because of the abstractly romantic tone implied in the music, which is austerely instrumented. Manzanera's expressive guitar work, acoustic and electric, is characteristically gentle and un-

But the instrumentals aren't completely indicative of the content of "K-scope." Vocalist Tim Finn replaces Simon Ainley, bringing with him an icy, almost metallic sounding voice which alters competently to fit each song's bounda-

Finn is especially good on "Remote Control," the second song on "K-scope. He enunciates as creatively as Ainley, but more ably makes the transition of moods within the song. Ainley may not have been capable of treating "Remote Control" as spontaneously and satirically as Finn shines on other numbers as well.

"Hot Spot" in particular is a showcase for his stylish phrasing. The song begins with dark tones played by the rhythm section and journeyman saxophonist Mel Collins. The introduction is a warning, of sorts, of the lyrical tyranny which is to

The song slides into a slick disco beat as Finn unfurls his apparently innocent story of a visit to a disco. But the music begins to gradually pulsate, as it does at decent discos, and the madness breaks loose. The unknowing persona is shocked at a disco fanatic's need for the needle, a metaphor which, in one way or another, satirizes "disco fever." (There's a commentary about drugs lying over it as Bassist Bill MacCormick never has sounded so sure of himself as he does on 'K-scope." He has worked with Manzanera for many years (they both played in Quiet Sun in the early '70s). Their styles have developed a resonance which is fast becoming a trademark of Manzaneraconceived recordings.

"K-scope" is just what the name im-plies. It is a Kaleidoscope, both in a musical and stylistic sense. It may not be, in the long run, the ultimate Phil Manzanera album. But at this point, it's a strong contender.

FOOTNOTE: Manzanera and Roxy Music enthusiasts may or may not know of the group's recording project conclud-ing in New York. Roxy Music has not recorded an album together since 1975's

"Siren." The group did release a live alburn in 1976, but its members spent much of that and the next year working on individual projects.

A recent interview with Manzanera revealed that the group has not only reunited (a fact only recently confirmed), but was recording a new album. Manzanera was in New York during the interview, taking time off from what were then the final three weeks of Roxy's recording. A new album will be released in late January (Manzanera said the target date was Jan. 30), and a Roxy Music tour will coin-

By Bob Campbell

Joe Ely got back into town Christmas with the finished tape of his new alburn, and he and the musicians in the powerful band that backs him are walking around with a genuine air of accomplishment.

They spent the first two weeks in December cutting it in Seattle, Wash.

The as-yet untitled collection of music by Ely and his chief co-writer, Butch Hancock, will be out in a few weeks on MCA Records.

Ely's first two albums had great reviews and good sales, but this one is almost certain to make an even bigger splash.

The band went into the studio with 15 songs to boil down to 10 or 11 but started innovating and working on some barely finished material and ended up with about 35 songs.

Most of those on the album were not originally planned for it.

A couple of the strong ones on it are "Fools Fall in Love," a simple song with a flowing rhythm that one keeps hearing after it stops, and "The Crawdad and the Train," a memorable song about a crawdad who takes on a freight train. As Austin progressive country singer Marcia Ball remarked to me a few months ago when she was in Lubbock, the difficult thing about country music for newcomers is its focus on hit singles, and a hit single is no doubt one hope Ely and his friends have for this album. Many people buy albums for the hit sales immeasurably to have a new sticker on the front saying, "Includes the hit single. One good thing about the album, then, is the several songs that might help it released as singles.

song it contains, and it helps album

Another is that Ely sings especially well on it. Ely, of course, is battling the same thing that Marcia Ball, Delbert McClinton and others of their musical genre have been up against: they're not really country and they're not really rock, so which radio stations are going to play

Ronnie Fray, the Canadian singer-guitarist who spent the summer here before going south toward Houston, did the same kind of music and used to say he didn't know what to call it except "boogie music."

There are distinctions among Ely, Ball, McClinton, Rusty Weir, Guy Clark, Ray Wylie Hubbard and others of the new breed, but they group together in facing the hard task of trying to establish something new or at least different. It may not be important whether they're more country or more rock or how much blues or jazz-influence they're under, but when one of them goes back to the archives to do an old tune in a new way, they go back to country.

The Hank Williams "Honky Tonkin" is an Ely standard now, and McClinton has done "Big River," a Johnny Cash song from the 1950s, with a new

Most Lubbock musicians, including those working a different and more straight country street corner, are pulling for the little fellow with the doe eyes and nervous mannerisms.

He has already had much to do with Lubbock getting better known as a music city, and it would help the city and its entire music community for him his compadres, Hancock, Ponti Bone, Gregg Wright, Lloyd Maines, Steve Keeton and Jesse Taylor, to get even more successful than they already are.

SHORT STORIES: Five Decades. By Irwin Shaw. Delacorte. 756 Pages. $14.95. The price of this hefty collection of 63 stories by Irwin Shaw may seem high, but the investment is well worth it.

Shaw is one of the top writers of our time, and the stories he has selected for inclusion in this book can only bring back remembered pleasures to those who have followed his long writing career. As for those not familiar with Shaw's work, this collection should serve as a marvelous introduction to this most talented writer.

Those who know Shaw only as a novelist ought to pay attention to a remark he makes in his brief introduction to this collection: "In a novel or a play you must be a whole man," Shaw writes. "In a collection of stories you can be all the men or fragments of men, worthy and unworthy, who in different seasons abound in you. It is a luxury not to be scorned.'

It is not possible to comment on all of the stories in this volume, but to select a

"The Eighty-Yard Run" is a movingly written piece on the passing of time and the fading of the promise of youth. In this story, young Christian Darling made a long run in a football game and briefly was a hero. Now he looks back at that day and thinks sadly, "That was the high point, 15 years ago on an autumn after-noon, 20 years old and far from death, with the air coming easily into his lungs and a deep feeling inside him that he could do anything ... and everything after that a decline."

"The Girls in Their Summer Dresses" is probably Shaw's best-remembered story. It is a bittersweet tale about love and

- PHIL THOMAS, AP THE WILD ISLAND. By Antonia Fraser. Norton. 192 Pages. $3.95.

Murder mystery fans accustomed to fast-paced plots that rush eagerly forward - piling up the victims as they go - are going to be sorely disappointed with Antonia Fraser's "The Wild Is-

Although it's a relatively short novel, the book seems to take forever to finish, as the story rambles hither and yon before eventually getting back to its main thread and inching its way on to a not terribly exciting conclusion. It's further marred by occasional patches of writing such as: "Morning had come and her night lover had fled as Cupid had fled from Psyche to avoid the dan gerous contact of the dawn ..." Luckily there's not overly much of this sort of thing but there is enough to irritate.

The plot concerns the vacation visit to a Scottish island by British television personality Jemima Shore. No sooner does she get off the train than she finds herself involved in a furness. ed in a funeral.

The dead man - who lost his life under most suspicious circumstances - is the heir to a large amount of property that is coveted by others, among them the dead man's uncle and his family. Others who would like to get their hands on this rich land include a rather silly nationalist group which calls itself the "Red Rose" and is so bumbling as to

Soon after, there is another strange death - made interesting in that a dog is one of the suspects — and Jemima finds herself trying to find a solution to just what is going on even though this means spoiling her planned holiday. It's all sorted out eventually, but it does seem to take a very long time.

ded by his me the way, the serious musician found it perhaps easier, perhaps more rewarding, to make audiences laugh. He became known professionally as Jack Benny, and, before he was through, the history of radio, television, and motion picture comedy in the English-speaking world became liberally laced with his name and deeds.

This book, co-authored by Benny's wife and brother-in-law, documents the entertainer and the man. There are many, many highlights of his performances and career, including a look at the bygone days of vaudeville and a trip to warplagued Europe and Africa to entertain the boys on the front.

The tone of the book and the co of those who knew him are well a up in one friend's analysis of Benny:
"When I speak of him, I have to reach for could say about another human being."

The book is a fine tribute to the man, and

Color Wheel

By LA WANDA MURFEE

The color wheel is to painting what the 'C' scale is to music. It is the starting place. When the teaching of reading, writing and arithemtic was in vogue, so was learning the color wheel.

In making a color wheel, first draw a clock face with its twelve numerals. At 12 o'clock paint a big dot of pure yellow. At four o'clock place a spot of pure blue, probably cobalt blue. Next, at eight o'clock, make a large circle of pure red. These colors that cannot be mixed from any other color are called the primaries.

Next, at two o'clock, mix yellow with blue to make a patch of green, not too yellow nor too blue. At six o'clock, blue and red combined make purple. (This will be very dark.) At ten o'clock mix red and yellow to form a spot of pretty orange. These colors are called secondaries.

It will not be necessary to make a puddle of paint on a palette to make a color wheel, but it can be directly mixed on the painting surface. Begin again at one o'clock, mix the green with more yellow, wallah! yellow green. At three, blend green with more blue for blue-green. Follow around the clock, mixing at five o'clock more blue and a little red, and at seven, more red than blue. Again at nine, mix more red than yellow, and at 11, more yellow than red, and you have completed a color wheel.

With your finger, smear some white paint into one side of each color spot. You will see how the color lightens with the addition of more white. White also makes the hue more opaque.

It looks pretty, but what good is the wheel? It is primary in determination of color. Through blending opposite tones, like opposite numerals on the clock face, a color can be dulled or grayed, or darkened, without the use of black paint. Black tends to muddy colors, destroying a glowing, darker tone.

Suppose you want to tone down a yellow. You would add purple. The addition of black to yellow would turn to green, as it would with burnt umber.

If you want to use a limited color scheme, it is quickly determined by looking at a color wheel. Colors that come next to each other as it proceeds around the circle are called analagous colors; those opposite are called complimentary.

Tack this first wheel to the wall. It will be referred to many times.

The great classical period of India's culture was during the Gupta empire, from about A.D. 300 to 600, when new standards of beauty transformed Buddhist, Hindu and Jain deities into "ideal images." These are images of paradox — combining spirituality and sensuality, serenity and energy.

Almost 100 Gupta sculptures of bronze and stone will be shown at Fort Worth's

Kimbell Art Museum, Jan. 13 through Feb. 25, 1979. This major exhibition, 'The Ideal Image: The Gupta Sculptural Tradition and Its Influence," contains works from 29 collections in Asia, Europe and the United States. It is the first organization anywhere in the world that defines the character of Gupta art and examines the extent of its influence beyond

The Gupta era in India is comparable to Greek civilization in the Periclean Age, China during part of the T'ang Dynasty, or Italy at the height of the Renassiance. It was a moment in India's history when all forms of creative and intellectual expression reached an unprecedental level of greatness and sophistication at the same time. There were developments of equal distinction in painting, literature, mathematics and astronomy. The elements which brought this golden age into being were northern India's political stability, prosperity and extensive contact with other cultures at that time.

Gupta visual arts, as in all other periods of Indian history, dealt mostly with gods and goddesses and their world. They shared with literature a mythological content and the same aesthetics and ideals. The carefully conceived proportions, sense of balance and perfection of the human form essential to the Gupta style became imcorporated into the sculptures of neighboring countries.

Gupta sculpture was a culmination and refinement of all that had gone before, both native Indian and Graeco-Roman. The exhibition includes examples of the major regional styles in Gupta art that developed in India. There are certain differences in drapery and facial details, materials and poses, but the basic sense of proportion and concentration on perfection of the human form remain

A number of works in the exhibition show the ways in which Gupta sculpture influenced the art of neighboring cultures. There are examples from Thailand and Cambodia from the fifth to the ninth century, including the Kimbell's own bronz "Standing Maitreya Buddha," was included when the show opened at New York's Asia House in October. Elements of the Gupta style can also be recognized in sculptures from T'ang Dynasty China, in the early bronzes of Nepal, Tibet and Kashmir, and in stone sculptures from Java and Vietnam.

The exhibition was organized by The Asia Society, New York, with a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts. From Fort Worth, "The Ideal Image" will have its final showing at the Art Institute of Chicago, March 24 through May 6.

A lecture audio-slide program and numerous films on India and its culture will be presented during the run of the show at the Kimbell. Dr. Pratapadity Pal will give a lecture entitled "Art and Experience in Gupta India" at 2 p.m. Jan. 14, in the museaum auditorium. Dr. Pal is the curator of Indian and Islamic art at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art who selected the sculptures for the exhibition and wrote the catalogue for the show.

Two Saturday film series have been announced: "Phantom India," a critically acclaimed documentary by Louis Malle of seven 52-minute segments, 2 p.m., Jan. 13 through Feb. 3 (two each Saturday except the last); and "Apu Trilogy" by the famed Indian director Satyajit Ray, which includes "Pather Panchali" of 1954, "Aparaito" of 1957, and "The World of Apu" of 1959, presented on successive Saturdays at 2 p.m., Feb. 10 through 24.

Two films will be repeated each Sunday at 2 p.m., Jan. 21 through Feb. 25: "Hinduism: The Many Paths of God" and a film about Buddhism (to be announced). All events are free of charge.

The fully-illustrated exhibition catalogue is available from the Kimbell bookstore softbound at $10, plus tax and $1.25 handling if mailed, and hardbound at $16.50, plus tax and $1.50 handling, The exhibition poster costs $4, plus tax and a mailing charge of $2.50.

The museum is open 10 a.m. -5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, 1-5 p.m. Sunday, and closed on Monday. Admission is FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

Ragged Market Forecast For Early 1979

The start of a new year is traditionally the season for reappraisals. It is therefore an especially appropriate time to reassess the immediate past and future for the economy and its sensitive barometer, the stock market.

The economic expansion entered its fourth year in 1978 and now ranks as the longest upturn since World War II. In the first quarter, the coal strike coupled with a siege of sub-normal temperatures in many parts of the country brought real GNP growth to a temporary standstill.

In the second quarter catch-up phase, real GNP growth came through at an extremely strong, though unsustainable, 8.7 percent annual rate; it was a comeback fueled largely by hefty consumer-purchases. Third quarter growth came through at a more moderate 3.4 percent rate and Merrill Lynch's economists figure the pace in the fourth quarter was about the same.

But clearly the big economic news of 1978 was the relentless pace of inflation and more recently, the administration's new found resolve to combat it. As we enter 1979, Consumer Price Inflation is moving ahead at a rate of nearly 9 percent while the GNP deflator, a more broadly-based indicator which factors in business and government prices as well as consumer prices, is expected to have advanced at an overall rate of 7.5 percent for 1978.

Merrill Lynch's economists realized early on in 1978 that the forces of inflation and rising interest rates would eventually combine to slow the pace of economic growth. While at present there are mixed signals from various economic indicators, economists think the economy is likely to experience a moderate recession in the new year, with the point of greatest weakness in the spring. They look for a

Along the way, the economy is likely to turn in some disappointing statistics. Consumer spending, thus far the major impetus behind this business expansion, is already weakening and likely to weaken further. Faced with mounting debts and falling confidence, consumers are just about ready to end their spending spree—one which was largely characterized by a "buy now, it will only cost more later" philosophy. This trend is evident in retail sales, which in recent months have reflected generally flat unit volume (though because of steeply rising prices, the overall trend has edged higher).

Capital spending is expected to show about a 9 percent increase for 1979, atop an estimated 12 percent increase for 1978. But again, once inflation is factored into the picture, the figures are likely to show virtually no real growth in the first half, and

Because of flaccid demand, downward pressure on prices, and higher unit labor costs, corporate pre-tax profits are likely to decline in the first half, then pick up in the second half. And housing starts are expected to show a moderate decline, bottoming out around mid-year at an annualized rate of a point 1.5 million units.

Finally, Merrill Lynch economists think short term interest rates are likely to peak in late winter. They foresee a decline in the prime rate to around 8½-to-9 percent by late 1979 and a more modest decline in long term bond yields, with Triple-A rated Bell system bonds, which currently yield around 9.40 percent, likely to move down to around 8½-to-8¾ percent by the end of the year.

Since autumn, news from the economic front has been the major focus for most investors. While the market was poised technically for a correction in mid-October, it was a shift in perception from "a peak soon" to "a peak later" in interest rates which helped transform a technical correction into the first real selling climax in 16 years. Just how soon interest rates do peak, of course, will be a key factor for the 1979 market as well the first real selling climax in 16 years. Just how soon interest rates do peak, of course, will be a key factor for the 1979 market as well.

Meanwhile, market technicians' early 1979 overview suggests a relatively ragged market in the first half, followed by a generally improving market in the second half. The first couple of quarters may be characterized by more of the quick and dramatic moves investors experienced in 1978, and quite possibly include a first quarter rally and then a way for a better second half. The exact timing, however, will largely depend on investors' expectations, as well as market performance at the turn of the year.

An important part of the Merrill Lynch analysts' early 1979 message concerns value and its long-term implications for the stock market. In these days of overemphasized market timing, the stock market is replete with undervalued stocks. When important measures such as price-earnings multiples and price-to-book value are calculated, common stocks are as cheap today on a relative basis as they were in the late 1940s and late 1974.

Stocks are also relatively cheap in comparison with many alternative investments. Taken together, these impressive fundamentals present a persuasive argument in favor of stocks as a long-term investment. It's an argument investors should keep in mind as they make their plans for a healthy, happy and prosperous 1979.

Tech Structure Hikes Permits

The Lubbock Building Inspection Department has issued permits for $2,681,-202 in future construction activity, according to city records.

Commercial projects, bolstered by a new electrical engineering building at Texas Tech University, accounted for $2,616,402 of that amount. Residential projects totaled $64,800.

C. B. Thompson Construction Co. received the permit for the campus structure. Expected to cost $1,764,202, the building will contain 35,000 square feet of floor space.

Bill Averitt & Co. plans to construct office buildings at 5605 to 5619 Villa Drive at an estimated cost of $800,000. The work involves 35,464 square feet of floor space.

A new Jack & Jill restaurant has been scheduled at 3712 Slide Road by Bolton Builders. The building will contain 1,440 square feet of space, and is expected to cost $30,000.

W. G. McMillan Construction Co. Inc. will remodel offices at 110 N. Amarillo

In the residential classification, the City issued permits for only two single-family homes. Both went to John Ashe Construction Inc.

Messages From Jonestown Cited

By MIKE WENDLAND Jim Jones, the deranged leader of the Peoples Temple who led some 900 of his followers to death in the steamy tropics of Guyana on Nov. 18, took to amateur radio more than a year before to warn the world that his cult was ready to die. In a rambling, two-hour tirade illegally broadcast outside the ham bands, Jones -sometime in the fall of 1977-told his followers in California and whoever else was listening that powerful interests were conspiring to destroy his controver-

The Jones transmissions were tape-recorded sometime in September 1977 by a Florida amateur radio operator, Art Waszak, WA4YLH, who came upon the broadcast while turning his ham transceiver just above the 20-meter ham band

I thought he was just some nut, said Waszak. After making the tape, I just tossed it in a desk drawer and forgot about it. But replaying it now, knowing what happened, it gives you a real chill.

ple carved out of the jungle.
The Peoples Temple relied exclusively on amateur radio for communications back to the states. The cult operated stations in Jonestown and Georgetown, the Guyana capital, as well as in San Francisco, its American headquarters.

Cult members from Guyana also regularly checked into American ham nets, getting amateurs in the states to run phone patches to various friends and relatives. On one occasion, in April of 1978, the cult doctor used ham radio to get advice from a Seattle, Wash., physician on delivering a baby by cesarean section.

While most of the group's radio operations heard in the United States were legal, amateurs in the Caribbean and other countries nearer to Guyana said the cult used the 80-and 40-meter ham bands (which have generally smaller daytime transmission ranges) as a sort of private intercom between Jonestown and Georgetown, 135 miles to the east.

They failed to identify their stations, they talked on illegal frequencies, they did all sorts of things wrong, said a source in the FCC in Washington. The FCC received several dozen complaints about the Temple's radio practices.

that Sharon Amos, a Peoples Temple member in Georgetown, used ham radio the afternoon on Nov. 18 to notify San Francisco that it was all over here. Anyone who overheard any radio transmissions from the group on that day is asked to contact their local FBI office.

I'm convinced that Jones and his group used amateur radio as a sort of propaganda tool, said Marty Rose, WD8DNG, a Detroit-area ham who received a QSL (verification of a radio contact) card the day before the tragedy. When I talked to them on the air (in October 1978), they kept talking about how wonderful their Jonestown was. And they bragged about it on the card, too.

The tragedy has focused new attention on the use and misuse of amateur radio by various groups. Unlike CB, which has a short, generally unreliable communication range, ham radio signals travel the world. And while hams themselves have excellent reputations for following proper airwave procedures, it's clear that amateur equipment is being misused.

If that misuse gets too far out-of-hand, it could trigger a regulatory reaction from the FCC that hurts all radio enthusiasts. Detecting and identifying those pirate or illegal operations should be a main priority of the big radio organizations. Otherwise, the government will be sure to step in.

CB Static: Readers Air Gripes

Dear Mike: Sideband operators are not responsible for the majority of problems on CB frequencies but must put up with the irresponsible use so readily provided by the AMers. SSB operators are much better at cooperating with the rules and regulations set by the FCC. For example, it is never heard on SSB that you need a kilowatt but it is often heard on the AM frequencies. It is my hope that the AMers get what they deserve and SSB operators get SSB-only channels.-D.F., Lubbock.

Dear Radio Static: I don't know a thing about CB radio but we sure did DX (look for distant stations) on the AM band from 1930 to 1960, with a long roof antenna headphones, radio clubs and newsletter bulletins. For a penny postcard, we collected verification (QSL) cards by the hundreds, AM only. I had almost 1,400. I used an old floor console. Those were the good old days of radio.-O.W., Reading.

Dear Mr. Wendland: The idea of a new CB band in the UHF frequencies sounds fine. But I think there should be tougher licensing conditions. I believe there is a large number of CBers between the ratchetjaws and the hams who would benefit from such a service.-R.A., Mar-

to that of urban areas over the years. In 1975, with only a third of the nation's population, rural areas accounted for fully half of its substandard housing. The majority of poor housing in non-metro areas is occupied by low-income, minority, and/or elderly families. Leaky roofs, decaying porches, and dilapidated privies are not uncommon sights in the poverty pockets of rural America.

FINANCING, CONSTRUCTION, and housing services are not easily obtainable in rural communities. Because of low economic incentives, scattered sites, and transportation costs of labor and materials, few builders are enticed to

ciated with 85 percent of the nation's counties, have been ignored for the most part by federal and state legal bodies. Under the revised 1968 Housing Act, only

promised, the government would make up the difference if inflation exceeds 7 percent with a year-end tax refund. The plan, called "real wage insur-

There are two approaches-the carrot and the stick. The President has extended the carrot to employees.

While the Administration has not yet decided on many of the details, the plan would work something like this: Groups of employees would be eligible for refunds if their employers certify compliance with the pay standard. The refund would equal the excess of the Consumer Price Index over the pay standard, based on a formula of 1 percent of the first $20,-000 of income for each percentage point over 7 percent. A worker earning $10,000 who accepted a 7 percent increase would receive a $200 refund if inflation rose to 9 percent (a distinct possibility in 1979). There would be a top limit of $600 on revees in groups a ing to the standard would be eligible.

In my judgment the idea won't fly. -If inflation accelerates further in 1979, due say to an increase in oil prices, the rebates could cost the Treasury as much as $12 billion, increasing rather than reducing the budget deficit. Working like cost-of-living escalators, the re-

Today homesteading has been transplanted to the cities. It's "an idea whose time has come," says Nancy Steetle, who runs the program for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

HUD owns nearly 30,000 foreclosed single-family homes. It gives groups of these homes in a city's declining neighborhood to the city, and the city in turn gives those homes, free, to selected persons if they'll fix up the property and oc-

In short, for an investment of your labor or your money, or both, you can have a home at a knocked-down price. Considering real estate prices these days, this can be a good deal. There are some catches

First, not all cities qualify. Most cities have declining neighborhoods, but for urban homesteading to work there has to be a cluster of foreclosed or abandoned homes in an area, so that the renovation helps revitalize the entire neigh-

ANOTHER CATCH: the neighborhood can't be too big. For example, Detroit tried to qualify nearly the entire city for the HUD program. That's too big a

Then there's the question of selecting prospective home owners. This can be tricky. Some cities prefer renters who don't have enough money to buy a home. Some cities, like Minneapolis, run lotteries. Others, like Atlanta, screen homesteader applicants through a five-citizen review board. However it's done, the city has to be staffed to pick the new owners fairly and then follow up to make sure the property is brought up to local standards.

Usually, after three years of occupancy, title to the homestead is turned over to the buyer who fixed it up.

Thirty-nine cities took part in HUD's demonstration program. A total of 2,842 HUD-owned homes were given to those cities and the improvements have had "a catalytic effect" on the neighborhoods, says Miss Steetle. Other abandoned houses in the neighborhoods acquired value and were renovated and reoccupied. The cities improved streets, lighting, security and schools, sometimes partly with federal funds. Small businesses reappeared and prospered. The cities' tax bases increased

Philadelphia and Dallas, where 349 and 340 homes respectively were turned over by HUD, are outstanding examples of success. But the program wasn't and isn't confined to big cities. For example, Decatur, Ga., Freeport, N.Y., Rockford, Ill., and Compton, Calif., have participated.

MISS STEETLE SAYS the cities have to be alert for "displacement" wealthier folks pushing poor people out of a neighborhood through urban homesteading. The HUD program has had none of that so far, she says.

But urban homesteading can be quite costly. In Baltimore's Inner Harbor the new owners spent up to $60,000 per home. That's unusual. Generally, the renovation bill, per home, runs $6,000 to $30,000. The variables are enormo

If you want to know more about urban homesteading, MISS Steetle's office has just published a pamphlet entitled "Urban Homesteading: A Guide for Local Officials," but don't let the title scare you. Ask for it at any of the 40 HUD offices; they're listed in the phone book under U.S. Government. If you have trouble getting the pamphlet, write Nancy Steetle, Director, Urban Homesteading Program, HUD, Washington, DC, 20410.

Then walk into your local councilman's office, slap the pamphlet on his desk and say, "How about doing this?"

Friona Industries Common Stock Now Traded on the American Stock Exchange under the Ticker Symbol FI

This Texas-based agribusiness firm is one of the largest of its type in the nation and achieved record high earnings for its 1978 fiscal year and for the first quarter of fiscal 1979.

Because economic conditions forced producers to reduce the supply of cattle available for market, industry experts are forecasting a continued high level of beef prices for the next several years. Since the feeding of beef cattle helps alleviate this shortage of supply, Friona has good potential for profitability.

Friona Industries is primarily engaged in commercial cattle feeds, animal health supplies, feedyards and grain operations.

TREC members include those from the glass, steel, aluminum, plastic, paper, brewing, soft drink and related industries, and labor and trade associations.

Chairman Robert Gamm notes the group has no official powers, but is designed to provide information to the pub-

That education effort, Gamm says, can have a "positive effect" on the environment by helping the public react "affirmatively and favorably" in helping to "remove some of the causes for environmental problems.

TREC is working on setting up a speakers' bureau to allow industry members to "tell our story-factually and frequently -to all the public we can reach."

One of the first items on which TREC is attempting to do some "educating" is the problem of litter-having stated opposition to passage of laws requiring deposits on beer and soft drink bottles.

Legislation on non-returnable bottles has come up in past sessions of the Texas Legislature, and there are indications similar measures will be offered this Portraits will be critiqued by Mike Marvins of the Texas association, and commercial photographs will be analyzed by Ed Stewart, also of the association.

The only prerequisite for participating in the noncompetitive print judging is submission of membership dues of $15 to the South Plains Professional Photographers Association. Dues may be mailed to Ron Stubbs, Secretary-Treasurer, 1632 50th St., Lubbock, 79412, or may be paid at the meeting.

Stubbs said any size print is acceptable, with no specific finish required. The photographs which will be analyzed do not have to be presentation prints.

The photography association has sched-uled its first regular meeting of the year Feb. 3-4.

A New Look At Iran Drama

Department against foreign students who resort to violence and violate the law in their protest actions is to be commended.

Reacting to the bloody and senseless neartragedy in Beverly Hills last week, President Carter wisely ordered the Justice Department and others to crack down on those who, while in the U.S. as guests, resort to anarchy in the streets. Foreign students who violate the law henceforth will have their visas revoked and be deported. Atty. Gen. Bell warned.

Bell said he originally regarded the anti-Shah demonstrations as a problem for local

IF ANYTHING, the move at the highest levels in Washington can be faulted only because it should have been done months ago.

For what it is worth, some local authorities-notably in Houston-had the guts to draw the line against intimidation and the danger of violence after groups allegedly representing Iranian students first got out of

We would hope that too lenient judges, members of the legal fraternity, especially those who might be drawing part of their keep from the taxpayers, and others will take note of the latest series of events.

The rights of the majority of citizens in this nation, the rights of a community and residential neighborhoods, and yes, the rights of other guests in this country-including members of the Shah's family-also are to be pretected.

AT THE FOREIGN policy level, there also are some points to be gained by a look at 'what went wrong' as regards the United States assessment of the impending turmoil

It was only a year ago that President Carter spent New Year's with the Shah of Iran and praised him as a stalwart and steadying force in the Mideast.

It is ironic that only a few months later, Washington's support for the beleaguered ruler at times seemed less than enthusiastic.

The point here is that, without condoning everything that a ruler of a friendly foreign government might do, it does the U.S. cause no good to appear to abandon such persons in a moment of crisis.

Other nations, notably Saudi Arabia in this case, can read the handwriting on the diplomatic wall as well as Moscow.

AND, ON THAT note, it is significant that while seeking to plaster Washington with the label of "interference" in Iran, the Soviets and their Communist stooges have been active in stirring up the unrest, particularly among leftist student radicals in Iran and

In brief, Russia stands to gain much -perhaps even its long cherished dream of a path to the warm waters of the Persian Gulf-from the turmoil in Iran.

The stakes here are enormous. Not only the vital oil supply nations of the influence of a pro-West nation are prizes which could be up for grabs.

This is not to defend the mistakes and ex-ON ANOTHER level, there are some other cesses of the Shah's regime which brought

But, it is to take a realistic look at the world of geo-politics as it exists in today's world.

The key to it all, as far as the U.S. is consubscribe to the right of any citizen of this cerned, should be stability and fair play-at home and abroad with U.S. interests the first consideration.

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Our political leaders embarrassed America when they failed to win the Vietnam War that our military leaders. It cost 50,000 or more American lives, and caused millions to be slaughtered in Laos and Cambodia. Nothing much is mentioned of Human Rights there.

Now, our leader Jimmy Carter embarrasses us by giving the Panama Canal to a Communist dictator without the consent of the full Congress or the majority of the American people.

Now, Mr. Carter embarrasses us again as a nation cancelling our treaty with Taiwan, and making a new one with Red China, whose goals have not changed regardless who the leaders are. No doubt they and Russia are the best of friends and their goals are to dominate the world.

Do our leaders have the right to cancel or make new treaties without the consent of Congress or the American people? I say this borders on high treason in my opinion and this is exactly what the Communists like.

power companies have always refused to serve rural areas unless forced to do so, the main reason being the profit motive. A city block might contain more stations than two square miles of farming area.

If the private power companies refuse service to less lucrative rural areas, they have no right to scream like a stuck pig when the cities expand into the area of rural Co-Ops.

If private power and telephone companies want to have their cake and eat it too, let them serve everyone, not just the high-density areas. As for quality of service, rural electrics have a much better track record than larger power utilities, in my opinion.

The practicing behaviorist cannot accept the concept of free will, or its value in determining what is moral behavior. The behaviorists theory is that behavior can be modified by controlling the responses from the environment. The response which follows a particular behavior is called a "reinforcer."

What may be one man's food (reward), may be another's poison (non-rewarding). The application of this technique to Values Clarification or Decision Making necessitates repeated and deliberate invasion of the student's privacy in order to determine what reinforcers work on which students, and can be used without his/her knowledge or consent

He Defends Nativity Scene As An Historical Event Editor, Avalanche-Journal

The portrayal of the birth of Jesus of Nazareth is the depicting of an historical event, a fact in the life of the world. The people who object to nativity scenes should distinguish between facts and the interpretation of facts.

That a child was born to Joseph and Mary during the reign of Augustus Caesar and Herod the Great, that this birth took place in Bethlehem, that the baby was cradled in a manger, that shepherds and kings visited the parents and the child are facts, events that took place.

For example, the kings have been identified by name and physical evidence exists commemorating their visit; physical evidence exists of the taxation and of the taxation of women. Physical evidence exists of the star-both in modern astronomy and in ancient astronomical tables to which the wise men might have had access.

What about the presence of angels? Ample evidence exists that angels were there. Let me cite a legal definition of evidence: "When an ancient document is found in its proper repository, it is presumed to be genuine, until proven otherwise." The Bible is an ancient document; it is to be found in its proper repository, the church; therefore the testimony of the shepherds found within it, is to be presumed genuine until evidence of equal age can be produced to show they

Modern notions that there are no such things as angels are not evidence, but are interpretations of the evidence. The notion that the shepherds lied is likewise an interpretation of the evidence; it is not a fact. Our legal system rests on the assumption that a man who believes in God will not lie, and the shepherds' conduct shows that they believed in God.

Since the birth is a fact, a government has as much right to erect a memorial to it as it does to erect a memorial to George Washington.

I, and millions of others, interpret the birth as the Birth of the Savior of men; and as to that, the much neglected part of the First Amendment reads: "Congress shall make no law ... prohibiting the free exercise of religion." Neither should any lesser government body act, if Congress cannot.

HENRY J. TAYLOR: Teach Us

To Learn

WITH NEW YEAR'S Day passed, teachers re-turn to the vast Niagara of our youth that tumbles into their hands.

Teachers are America's great thought manufacturers and lamplighters. Our youth has a few years between cradle and grave to fill with the rewards of good thinking. We share our muscles with every living thing, but we alone possess the potential of mind development and of education unlimited.

And many teachers have deeply affected history: never can you tell the end of a teacher's influ-

We began training teachers in 1829 when the Rev. Samuel Reed Hallof Concord, Vt., built the first normal school. And today teaching is America's largest profession, followed by nursing and

IN FACT, we have more than 1.5 million teachers in our 130,000 elementary schools, 25,000 high schools and nearly 2,000 accredited colleges and universities.

It is also a growing profession. Our population each month adds to the household nearly a quarter million children-the equivalent every 30 days of a city the size of Syracuse, N.Y.

Surely, if you enter teaching for the money you are in the wrong business. Bad salaries-unfortunately true in some places -block millions from even considering it. But perhaps you may discover many good things, in-degrees in medicine, law, engineering, etc. But college graduates who majored, for example, in home economics, science, agriculture, art, music, the vocations, etc., can obtain at once temporary teacher's certificates. Then, with added study in education (or by summer work) they can obtain in a short time full certification-meaning they are paid immediately in income and experience while on the road to advancement However, only about 20 percent of the beginning teachers remain at the first level. The overwhelming majority specialize—and advance -with countless thousands in the more comfortable $15,000-a-year bracket.

THEY BECOME teachers of teachers, depart-

The uniquely long summer vacations are also an important factor.

This adds much to life's roundness in the work year and distinguishes teaching from nearly all other occupations. It represents its own opportunity for supplementary income or for profitable

The long summer vacations can also mean very importantly-travel abroad.

Wherever you go in the world in summertime you find America's teachers. They are given fine travel advantages and inducements not open to others and they have the time to take advantage of these benefits to themselves and their work.

BUT WITH ALL these advantages, the basic incentive to enter the teaching profession is, of course, service. The purpose of all constructive life is to lift one grain of sand and the teacher does so in an enduring way.

The late Sir Harry Lauder, born in Portobello, Scotland, across the river from Edinburgh -thrilled millions throughout the English-speaking world with his Scottish songs. He was fond of telling a story of an old lamplighter in Portobel-

Each dusk the old man would put his ladder against a light pole and climb up to light the lamp. When he had lighted it he climbed down and carried his ladder to the next lamppost.

"Finally." said Sir Harry, "the old man would be out of sight, but you could always tell where he had been by the lamps he had lighted."

TEACHING IS much like that. It has many problems, as in all walks of life, but it is a magnificent profession and its mission begins again like an illumination.

Teachers light individual lamps that may include changing for the better tens of thousands of lives or our whole nation. Our nation, in turn, should welcome all who take their place on the side of better education and better thinking. America has these two great needs. They are the only keys to a better future for us all.

SEATTLE'S NIGHTLIFE mecca for grownups in their forties and fifties is the King's Roof at the Edgewater Inn where one lovely pianist named Gloria Gene somehow has recruited the best amateur singing talent in town to take their turns at the mike.

Why doesn't every town have an evening entertainment room for older people, where the music is familiar, the conversation gentle, the atmosphere invitational to the meeting of new friends? The clubby spots are too much given over to discos for the young. Resist. Pout.

Dr. Allen To Lead Preaching Mission At St. Luke's Church

The man who heads the world's largest United Methodist congregation is in Lubbock today, Monday and Tuesday to lead a preaching mission at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 44th Street and Memphis Avenue.

Dr. Charles L. Allen, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Houston, is the author of 28 best-selling religious books and writer of weekly reli-

TIME Magazine said of Dr. Allen, "The success story of Charles L. Allen is not the result of rafter-ringing oratory. He speaks simply, seldom raises his voice and uses few gestures. He emphasizes Christian daily living and prayer.

He is inclined to say simply, 'You'll be happier if you live this way.

The first service is being conducted at 7:30 p.m. today and continues Monday and Tuesday at noon and 7:30 p.m. both days.

A snack lunch will be served before and after the midday services Monday and Tuesday. Music for all services is being led by Robert M. Wert. A nursery is open for small children during the services.

Church Observing Birthday

Happy Valley Baptist Church, 307 38th St., is observing its ninth anniversary during a special service at 1 p.m. Jan. 14. All charter members, pastors and friends of the church are invited to attend the special service.

Happy Valley Mission was organized into a church on Jan. 10, 1970, by Rev. Hoytt Rachels. He pastored the church until September, 1975, when he left to attend a school in Jacksonville.

The entire building, located at 3211 58th St., will be used for the open house.

The genealogical library, a branch of the world-renowned Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City, Utah, will be open and guides will not only explain how to do basic genealogical research, but why Mormons feel the urgent need to know their "roots." The Lubbock branch library of the Salt Lake City facility gives patrons access to everything the Utah facility has to offer.

Mormons are defenders of the traditional family organization, and as an outgrowth of this belief, many family aids have been developed by the church and will be available to the public at the open house. One family program is Family Home Evening, a time during the week when parents and children get together for a spiritual lesson, games, songs and refreshments.

Food storage is another facet of the Mormon beliefs that will be demonstrated and explained during the open house. "We believe in being prepared

Positive Thinking

By Norman Vincent Peale

AN OLD MAN, having won some sort of contest, was guest on a TV program. He stole the show from the famous quipster by his laugh-producing remarks. "How come you are so happy?" asked the admiring m.c.

"Why it's as plain as the nose on your face," came the reply. "Every morning I have two choices for the day: one, to be happy or the other, to be unhappy. But I'm smart; I always choose to be happy. That's all there is to it."
Well, maybe it isn't quite that simple! But we do need to be reminded that the greatest power we have is the power to choose. It's an actual fact that if you've been moping in unhappiness you can choose to be joyous instead and, by effort, lift yourself into joy. If you tend to be fearful you can overcome that misery by choosing to have courage. Even in darkest grief you have a choice: you can let it crush you or you can gain deep inner peace that transcends even sorrow. The whole trend and quality of anyone's life is determined in the long run by the choices that he makes. This seems obvious enough when it comes to picking a career or deciding to get married. But our lives are also influenced for good or ill by what we do about disadvantages and difficulties - whether we take them lying down or choose to handle them creatively with an eye to overcoming

ONE EVENING YEARS ago, in a shabby little house in New Jersey, a teenage boy was sitting in the kitchen pouring out his woes to his mother while she got supper. Deeply depressed, he was bitterly griping about his lot in life. Coming of a family as poor as theirs, he gloomed, with no connections, how could he ever amount to anything? Other boys had it different. Their parents were educated and had money. Those fellows would have pull. But not he. There was nobody to go to bat for him and help him up the ladder.

His mother, stirring something in a big pot on the stove with a long-handled ladle, turned, pointed the ladle at her complaining son and, ignoring the drippings from the ladle to the floor, really told him what was what. "Harry," she said, "if you make up your mind that you're bound to be a nobody, that's just what you'll be. But if you really want to amount to something, you can. It's your choice." And she added, "There are just two things you need - God and gump-

Gumption is an old-fashioned word. I suppose its rough equivalent in modern speech would be guts. But gumption means more than that. It implies not only inner fortitude, but also initiative and resourcefulness. "God and gumption," repeated Harry's mother. "With those two you can be

Governor Moore told me that once when he concluded a political speech a young man walked up to him and sneered, "So what."

"So what's on your mind, son?" 'You handing out all that guff about free enterprise and opportunity. I've about decided to join the Communists."

"You look like a boy with brains," Moore said to him. "Why ever would you want to be a Communist?"

"You can't get anywhere in this country any more," said the boy. "I want to make something of myself. But my father's only a butcher and he's of foreign birth. The only ones who get anywhere any more are people like you, with

"What do you want to be?" the governor asked.
"I want to be a surgeon and the best."

"WELL," SAID MOORE, "you can be. When I was your age I was poor too. And, contrary to your suppositions, I had no connections at all. But my mother told me that all I needed was God and gumption. And she was right."

A few years later, toward the close of his political career, Harry Moore was speaking at commencement exercises at a big university. A boy wearing the green hood of a medical student stood in front of him and said familiarly, Hello, Gov! Remember me? I'm the butcher's son, on my way - thanks to God and gumption!" He made the right choice to meet difficulties the creative

When faced with trouble or hardship you can either be defeated by it or choose to tackle it. Adversity can make you bitter and get you down or you can use it to develop into a bigger person. It's your choice.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB Line Game Can Help Children 'Pass Time' By SHARI LEWIS

My daughter and I love pencil games because together we can instantly fill those tiny pockets of time that suddenly appear at the airport, in the dentist's waiting room or on the beach.

This Line-A-Round game is a lot better than tic-tac-toe.

Draw a big square with lots of boxes inside it. The first player starts the game by making a line through any of the sides of any one of the little boxes. The other person then begins at either end of the first player's line, and crosses through another side of the same box. However if the first player's line goes through the outside of the big square, the second player can make his line continue on the outside of the square and come into another box. No side of any of the boxes within the entire square may be crossed more than once.

The object of this game is to bring the two ends of the continuous line into one box which will then have all four sides crossed once. At this point, the player who has the next move loses, because he has nowhere to go, since you are not allowed to cross any one of the sides twice. You can play your first game on the big square full of boxes above—the picture with the penciled line running through it is just an example of how a game Friday's Brain Twister: How many vegetables grow as flowers of thr plant?

A. For a very good reason. Her life insurance costs less because women live longer than men, and would be expected to pay premiums for a longer period than men. Or, to state it more precisely, life insurance premiums are based on mortality rates, which are consistently lower for women than men at all ages. Your wife's premium reflects this difference, so her premium is lower than

TALK OF A BEEF SHORTAGE AND SOARING prices in 1979 is "ridiculous nd simply is not justified by the facts on meat production," says the National

The NCA comment was in response to widely quoted statements by meat packers to the effect that decreasing supplies likely would bring very sharp in-creases in average prices of ground beef in particular.

"The current cyclical decrease in beef output means that production in 1979 may be down about 5 percent from 1978," said Richard A. McDougal, NCA

"However, substantial increases in pork and poultry production mean that 1979 meat supplies actually will be larger than those of 1978. And, on a per capita basis, total meat supplies should at least equal those of 1978.

"THEREFORE, IT IS RIDICULOUS TO BE talking about so-called shorages. Per capita beef supplies in 1978 were the third largest in history and, in 1979, will be only six or seven pounds less. "What is happening is that we are now returning to more normal supplies and abnormally low prices in relation to other items we buy. As a matter of fact, the

McDougal said inflation alone will bring some increase in beef prices, but, even so, indications are that the average price of choice beef in 1979 may be no more than 10 percent higher than current levels. Similarly, he said, the ground beef average may be no more than 10 to 15 per-

"OBVIOUSLY, CATTLEMEN HOPE THAT - after four years of financial losses because of escalating costs and burdensome supplies — they will experience some additional increase in cattle prices this year," McDougal said. "Higher average prices will provide the incentive to rebuild herds and bring a supply increase again in future years. Meanwhile, the meat supply situation is such that we see no basis whatsoever for scare-type speculation that hamburger prices may average 40 to 50 cents per pound higher in 1979.

"RIGHT NOW, AND FOR MONTHS TO COME, supplies of fed cattle which provide the choice roasts and steaks which people prefer - are and will

"Furthermore, even though non-fed cattle production is declining cyclically, consumers will not experience hamburger shortages. Fed cattle always have provided, and will provide, a substantial share of our ground beef.

"At any rate, even if hamburger prices should rise further, hamburger — and other cheaper cuts of beef - represent an economical source of protein and other essential nutrients, particularly when measured on a per-serving basis."

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer NEW HOME — How far is 'over yonder'? While this is just an expression, farmers now could be 99 percent accurate when measuring such a distance.

Because farm units are sometimes irregular and measuring techniques are often slow and inaccurate, a specially designed Distance Measurement Instrument-Surveyor was developed to aid agribusinesses

The device is an ordinary nine-digit calculator with the ability to retain a constant. It has the batteries removed and a cord attached which plugs into a sensor mounted on the dash of any vehicle. The DMI-Surveyor receives electronic impulses from the sensor terminal and gives a constant readout of the distance traveled.

According to Jim Bob Smith, who uses the surveyor on his farm and contracting operations, the device can measure anything in feet, yards or acres while mounted on any moving wheel.

"Since the calculator doesn't have batteries, it has to be connected to a vehicle that operates with batteries," Smith noted. The device has no moving parts and does not affect the vehicle it is mounted on, so there is virtually no maintenance required.

the sensor can be placed on the drive shaft, wheel or back axel of the vehicle. "Installation is very simple and takes about 30 minutes. The farmer can install it himself," Smith said. "The set comes with everything needed to install it, including two clamps for the sensor and magnet and instruction sheet for use.'

Once installed, the farmer must establish a constant, or distance traveled per revolution, Smith said. This is determined by driving between two landmarks, such as telephone poles. The number that appears on the calculator is the constant for that vehicle.

If strapped to the tractor axel, the instrument can compute the number of acres farmed while the work is done.

width of the implement times the constant times 43360 (the number of square feet per acre), the farmer can figure the number of acres while traveling," Smith explained. The figure can be computed to any number of decimal places for The magnet that sends the impulses to greater accuracy. Another on-the-farm use is the determination of how many acres there are between parallel terraces. Smith continued. To compute this figure, the farmer would multiply 240 feet (the normal distance bewteen parallel terraces) times the constant times the distance driven between the terraces to the length of the field. Being able to determine the number of acres planted for government programs is another use of the DMI-Survey-

"I measure where the terraces I'm building should go before I put in the Smith said. "That way the ground is flat and it is easier to drive the DMI-Surveyors have been used on three-wheelers, motorcycles and bicycles. And a current new use of the calculator is in aerial spraying.

'More and more sprayers are beginning to use the surveyor," Smith noted. But the common question is how can an airplane use a device that measures distance travelled by wheel?

"The flagman on the ground can simply drive the desired distance on the ground and eliminate the guesswork," sprayed and immediately the sprayer will know how many acres have been done.

"Another advantage is the farm hand doesn't have to understand how the calculator works," Smith pointed out. "The operator can simply start the device and tell the hand to drive until the numbers reach a certain point."

The farm calculator can be used yeararound in farming, ranching or agribusinesses. It can be used to measure the linear footage needed for irrigation pipe on a new field, establish a center pivot sprinkler system and figure the exact amount of fertilizer, seed or insecticide needed per field.

"If the farmer needs to use the surveyor on different vehicles," Smith said, an additional magnet and sensor can be purchased for about $35." The cost of the DMI-Surveyor set is about $189. According to Smith, one use can pay for the device, because it normally costs at least $20-$70 per unit to have land surveyed by professionals or government agencies.

One model of the measuring device comes with an on-off switch which enables the farmer to turn off the measuring function and use it for a regular calculator.

"The uses for the DMI-Surveyor is limited only be the user's imagination,' Smith said.

Naman Facing Travis County Challenger

Special interest will likely come to bear on the annual meeting of Texas-Farmers Union here Thursday through Saturday, when David Samuelson of Coupland challenges incumbent state president Jay Naman of Waco.

While other challengers are also possible for this annual election to determine who leads the farm organization's 9,000 members, Samuelson is the only known contender at this time.

A vice president will also be elected at the TFU convention, a post now held by Joe Rankin of Ralls, but there are not other announced candidates at present.

Samuelson currently serves as Precinct 1 commissioner for Travis County and is a past executive board member of Texas Farmers Union. He has also been a leader in his county with Farmers Union activities and has most recently been involved with the farm protest move-

The TFU convention concludes with a Saturday night banquet to be keynoted by National Farmers Union President Tony Dechant of Denver. An impartial elections committee will give its report on the vote count.

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP) — Encouraging and discouraging trends did a pretty good job of offsetting each other within the domestic petroleum industry in 1978.

Oilmen say the outlook for 1979 is about the same. Domestic oil and gas drilling operations reached a 21-year high in 1978 but, because of record demand, final year-end

estimates were expected to show further declines in proved oil and gas reserves. Production from Alaska's prolific Prudhoe Bay region leveled off at about 1.2 million barrels a day in the first full year of operations but output in the Lower 48 year of decline. By December, there was evidence of the accuracy of earlier forecasts Prudhoe Bay production would cause only temporary rollbacks in crude oil imports.

Early in the month, domestic refineries were once again processing more foreign crude oil than ever before. Runs of foreign crude exceeded 7.2 million barrels a day compared with the earlier record of 7.1 million in late July 1977, when Prudhoe Bay crude was just beginning to reach refineries.

The peak impact of Alaska's production came between January and May, when domestic refiners, for 19 consecutive weeks processed less than 6 million barrels of foreign crude a day. The oil industry moved into 1978 with many uncertainties centering around the House-Senate conference committee deadlock over President Carter's National Energy Plan. The debate was not resolved until Oct. 14. one day after a 207-206 House vote to consider the five separate bills as a single package, a vote that rescued a natural gas pricing compromise from possible defeat. Oilmen had contended Carter's proposals placed too much emphasis on taxes and controls without sufficient incentives to maximize domestic development and

The final package signed by Carter in November provides for higher prices for new natural gas and gradual decontrol but some oilmen fear the pricing mechanism is so complex it will discourage instead of stimulate the search for new gas

Carter's crude-oil-equalization tax, designed to bring domestic crude oil to world price levels and create higher products prices to reduce demand, failed to obtain congressional approval but there was indication he may renew the fight in 1978.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries made certain of that when they agreed Dec. 17 to boost 1978 crude prices by 14.5 percent until they reach $14.54 a barrel by October. The average price for U.S. crude oil is about $9.19 with old oil selling at about $5.31.

Domestic marketers say the impact of the OPEC action on U.S. consumers will to from 2 to 3.5 cents a gallon by

The OPEC action came as domestic refiners were negotiating on union de-mands for contract provisions that traditionally push products prices higher. Current contracts expire in early January.

Offsetting Trends Maintaining

Despite the new pricing complexities, natural gas supplies appeared sufficient to cause no problems barring abnormally low January-February temperatures.

In fact, surplus supplies were being re-ported in some intrastate market areas. One Texas intrastate system in mid-December reported a shut-in gas surplus of 600 million cubic feet a day and asked state regulators to ease the paperwork required for making emergency sales to inerstate markets.

Part of such surplus supplies were being attributed to federal and state regulations aimed at forcing industrial natural gas users to switch to other fuels. There was some concern such a trend could cause higher gas prices for residential customers.

The new natural gas legislation extended federal price controls to intrastate markets. Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas promptly filed a suit challenging the con-stitutionality of some those provisions. The suit contends, in part, that producing states will be deprived of millions of dollars in revenues that would come to them under free market prices that exceed federal ceilings.

The industry's statistical highlights of -Record domestic demand for petroleum products approximated 18.7 million barrels a day, compared with 1977's re-cord 18.3 million.

-Imports of crude oil and products averaged 8 million barrels a day compared with 8.8 million in 1977. Crude imports averaged about 6 million compared with -Domestic crude production, including Prudhoe Bay, averaged 8.7 million barrels daily, compared with 1977's 8.1 million and a record 9.1 million in 1970.

—The industry kept an average of about 2,250 rotary drilling rigs at work, the highest level since 1957. Well completions approximated 48,000, the highest since 51,764 completions in 1959. A record 58,160 wells were completed in 1956.

Significant Issues Await New Congress

TULSA, Okla. (Special) Congress in the next two years will tackle important energy issues that could drastically change the form and economics of the U.S. oil and gas industry.

In addition, many congressional committees will concentrate on their oversight functions, according to the Oil and Gas Journal. In these roles, they will examine major energy bills passed by recent congresses to determine how the laws are being interpreted and adminis-

Following is a list of some of the key energy issues awaiting the 96th Congress. -Pricing issues. The two main pricing issues that could wind up in Congress this year are gasoline and crude oil price decontrol, both of which have lost ground recently because of increasing inflation and price hikes by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The Department of Energy (DOE) is urging President Carter to submit a gasoline price decontrol plan to Congress. He will have to decide on that issue before he tackles the crude oil pricing problem. The President can allow crude price controls to lapse in May. -Land Use. Congress will have to deal with the Alaska D-2 lands bill left over from the last session. When the last Congress failed to act on the issue by its deadline last year, Carter closed 56 million acres in Alaska to development as an interim measure pending action on the

The administration proposal would shut off development of more than 90 million acres of Alaskan land. Much of that land is believed to be rich in minerals, including oil and gas.

Congress also will have to face the RARE II lands designation question. That involves an inventory of land, mostly in the West, conducted to determine which tracts should be designated as wilderness and closed to development.

-Domestic refining. A Senate subcommittee is drafting legislation that would help protect and expand the U.S. refining industry. It likely will use the current system of fees to protect certain classes of refiners and encourage expansion and retrofitting for desulfurization.

-Industry structure. A relatively small group of liberal lawmakers will again push for horizontal and pipeline divesture. Some of them, such as Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., will be in stronger positions than they have been in past ses-

Kennedy will be chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, replacing Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., who wasn't receptive to divestiture proposals.

Horizonatal divestiture proposals likely will be similar to past proposals. They would force oil companies with production above a certain level to get rid of uranium and coal holdings on federal lands if they plan to seek federal oil and gas leases after 1980.

-Transportation. Action on liquefied natural gas safety, siting and storage-another issue left over from the last Congress-is expected early in the session.

Standard Approves Budget For 1979

CHICAGO, III. (Special) -The board of directors of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) has approved a 1979 capital and exploration budget totaling a record $2.9 billion. Chairman John E. Swearingen said the

1979 budget is 30 percent-or about $650

million-larger than the capital and exploration spending estimated for 1978. The record 1979 budget, Swearingen said, reflects higher planned expenditures for exploratory and development drilling in North America and overseas. Exploration and production outlays in the U.S. are expected to exceed $1 billion for the first time in 1979, he said. Standard is also projecting increased capital spending for refining, chemicals, and marketing.

AN EMERGENCY TASK FORCE has been formed by small oil refiners to seek equal access to scarce crude oil supplies.

Frank K. Cahoon of Midland, chairman of the organization, reports that smaller refiners are being "squeezed to the wall" by policies which favor large international companies "If something isn't done soon to equalize our crude costs and assure us our normal crude supplies, small refiners will shut down-leaving this industry to the total domination of a handful of large integrated companies," he said. The problem is partially a result of the curtailment of supplies from Iran, according to Cahoon. Some of the problem, however, arises from the scramble by major companies to stock up on world oil supplies before the OPEC price hike. "These companies have not only dried up our foreign oil sources, but have gobbled up or locked away certain domestic oil production which has traditionally gone to independent refiners," Cahoon said. MOST SMALL REFINERS are currently operating at about half capacity, with the outlook continuing to be bleak, according to the Emergency Task Cahoon said, "Making matters worse, the Energy Department seems bent on reducing the so-called small refiner bias even before it corrects policies which are denying us access to crude at prices equal to those paid by our large company competitors.

"The first order of priorities, in our judgment, is to make the buy-sell program work as it was intended. The only alternative we see is a National Oil Purchasing Agency through which the federal government allocates all imported foreign oil equitably among domestic refiners. The chairman thinks that a failure to have in place a mechanism for fairly distributing oil supplies may have cost American consumers billions of dollars by encouraging the OPEC nations to raise crude prices more than they otherwise When OPEC saw American international oil companies jack up crude prices

some 18 percent well in advance of any OPEC announcement, they well may have been encouraged to go for the 14.5 percent jump," Cahoon said. "Innocent victims in all this includes not only American consumers but domestic small refiners. We need help to survive," he added.

THE TEXAS INDEPENDENT PRODUCERS & Royalty Owners Association has accused the Carter Administration of promoting increased importation of foreign oil by continuing controls on American oil and gas.

Chester R. Upham, president of the 4,000-member organization, expressed the association's viewpoint in a letter to President Carter: "We believe the American people can be brought to understand that our energy situation will never improve if our domestic producers are continually and increasingly penalized every time OPEC announces another price increase.

THE LETTER called for the President to announce substantial oil and gas

Upham said that while TIPRO has consistently opposed oil and gas legislation as being counterproductive, the organization has worked very closely with the administration in attempting to make some of the new regulations as workable

He said, "The current controls on 'old' oil are especially contrary to the national interest. By holding nearly 50 percent of America's domestic oil to only one-third of the world price, the incentive to maximize production of millions of barrels of already-discovered oil is uneconomical."

Upham added, "America will continue to be hostage to foreign oil producers until oil and gas are allowed to seek their true market price in competition with other fuels in the same manner that other goods and services are allowed to

All's Not Well At Texas' Arishiyama West

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) - The only free-foraging troop of monkeys in the United States - studied by anthropologists for better understanding of animal behavior and human evolution - is being disbanded and offered for sale to zoos and research centers throughout the country.

Though researchers are dismayed, they cannot afford to buy the unique 228member troop as a whole, at $1,000 per monkey. The owner no longer can afford to keep the troop intact, and the troop is in disarray because of two changes in leadership and the sale of some monkeys.

But dozens of university students and experts have traveled from as far away as Canada to observe the monkeys in a natural state on a 108-acre ranch nea the Texas-Mexico border, about 30 miles from Laredo.

Some of the students are concerned that the troop will be totally disbanded, jeopardizing their past work and opportunities for further studies

The monkeys were brought to Texas in February, 1972, from Arashiyama, on the western edge of the Japanese city of Kyoto, where researchers from the University of Kyoto began studying the original troop of 47 in 1954 at the Iwatayama Monkey Sanctuary. Since that time, detailed records of monkey families of the troop have been kept by students who earned their graduate degrees by

By 1966 the Japanese troop had grown to 125 monkeys and split along family lines into two distinct group: of about equal size with their own leaders. And by 1968 the two troops had outgrown the forests of the sancturary and were encroaching on neighboring areas. The Japanese began looking for a home for the

the Universities of Texas and Maryland, fenced his former La Moca Ranch 30 miles northwest of Laredo, built climbing towers for the monkeys, and provided a dietary supplment of monkey chow to ensure against malnutrition, hoping to sell the monkeys' offspring for research. He named the complex Arashiyama Primate Research Center.

Since their arrival, the monkeys have been studied by graduate students from the Universities of Texas, Wisconsin, Chicago, New Mexico, Oregon and Georgia, and by other scientists.

The monkeys adjusted quickly from the temperate-to-cold environment of Mount Arashiyama in Japan to the warm Texas border environment. They learned to eat mesquite, acacia, prickly pear cactus, fruits, flowers, grasses and bark, grasshoppers, snails and bird eggs. They have learned to work in concert to fight off coyotes, bobcats and other Texas predators.

But Dryden died not long after the monkeys arrived and his widow, real estate woman Clementina G. Dryden, says she no longer can afford the $18,000 to $20,000 a year needed to maintain the troop.

Electricity to a fence that kept the monkeys on the ranch has been shut off and the selling of 30 monkeys to zoos has disrupted the internal affairs of the troop, which the researchers say was highly structured with each monkey having his or her rank within the troop.

Mrs. Dryden said she would like to keep the troop intact if a buyer could be found, but she will sell them individually if she must.

"I don't have any scientific objective or goal," Mrs. Dryden said, in offering to sell the monkeys for $1,000 apiece to zoos or research centers. "To my husband, it was business and to me it is business. So I would like to recover the money I've invested and that would be about $1,000 each. That's what I've beengetting, but of course, I would be willing to negotiate any price if someone wants the whole troop.

Mrs. Dryden said her husband used the monkeys as a tax shelter, but "I don't

She said trouble began in the troop about 18 months ago when the No. 2 monkey, after several days of fighting, escaped from the compound. It traveled across the brushland to Carrizo Springs, Texas, where a deputy finally subdued, handcuffed and transported it to a San Antonio research center. It now has been exiled to a Minnesota zoo.

Then last May, Mrs. Dryden said, "The No. 1 monkey abdicated and took off with two of his nephews. One of the nephews was hit by a car and the other I ordered shot on sight. I don't carry any liability insurance and it was dangerous for me (to have the monkeys running free in Webb County).'

She said the king monkey decided to flee the compound after she sold off a group of 16 monkeys. "It seems he went in there and looked for them (missing monkeys) and then he could not face the crowd because he had lost some of his men. So he was either ashamed or he was tired of being a leader and abdicat-

ral watering holes in the county. Now the troop has been in disarray, she said, because the younger monkey who took over as the king does not have the control over the troop that the older abdicated monarch did. "The young one is not a very good leader and not very popular with the ladies, either. He doesn't know what being a leader means. The other leader would break up the fights, but the young one doesn't seem to be interested whether there's a fight Sarah Manly Gouzoules, who spent nearly two years observing the monkeys on the Texas range while working on her doctoral research in anthropology at the University of Chicago, said researchers were concerned about the future of the troop. But a shortage of research money in the United States has made it difficult to find a home for all of the troop.

One-Upmanship To French Riviera BY NAT GIBSON

ST. TROVEZ, France (UPI) - One-upmanship in this picturesque fishing village on France's south coast is having a yacht with a helicopter on deck.

Plain old 30-foot speedboats, hanging on davits as dinghles, are a dime a dozen. But a helicopter is special. So is the $1,300 fine one American film maker happily pays each summer to ignore the law against using his yacht as a floating helicopter pad.

Mooring itself is not cheap. The coveted site in front of the red-canopied cafe Sennequier costs about $100 daily in tips plus the $500 weekly rental

By most standards that might seem like a lot to pay. But not by the summer denizens who cluster in the town's main attractions. And the price can be

At the best hotel, a nightly stay with meals can run to $500 for a couple while forking out $10 for a soft drink or highball is considered normal in the fash-

The centerpiece of the village is the tiny inner har-bor lined with a variety of fabulous craft ranging from red-sailed Chinese junks to 150-foot South Seas schooners on one side and outdoor restaurants on schooners on one side and outdoor restaurants on the other. In between is a nightly promenade of well-kept women in outrageous fashions vying for attention with the champagne parties on the yachts. For added spice, the harbor boasts a sidewalk art gallery, fire eaters, strolling musicians, Chinese mime dancers and the occasional swaying starlet dressed in a see-through fringe dress and not much else. The entertainers generally are well paid for their efforts. One young Englishman sitting on the waterfront tuning his guitar kept being interrupted by people trying to give him money.

"It was really funny," he said. "They thought I was playing some kind of weird Indian music. I earned more tuning than I did when I was playing."

The daytime attractions of St. Tropaz — the beaches — are equally eye-opening. Women wearing the tops to their bikinis are more unusual than those without them on Bouillabaise beach, while at more distant Liberty beach even bikini bottoms have become passe.

St. Tropez itself caters to the wealthy. But the surrounding countryside has been virtually taken over by campers whose vans and tents scar the landscape and generate massive traffic jams.

Merchants Plagued By Check Problem

By SGT. SIDNEY LYLE
Odessa Police Department
Why all the fuss about checks? Why is it so difficult tryong to cash one? Is there a reason for all the hassle? The answer is partly found in statistics. Banks return on the average, $20,000 in "bad" checks each day per 10,000 population.

In other words, if your community has a population of ten thousand people, then your local banks will return $20,000 in non-negotiable checks each day of the week. That represents a sizable shrinkage which the merchant must make up either in a change in merchandising or an increase in the cost to the customer.

Certainly not all the twenty thousand dollars per day is uncollectable. In fact, bankers tell me that about 80 percent of the checks are returned because of a bookkeeping error on the part of the person or firm writing the check.

The document was either drawn on the wrong account, or signed by an unauthorized person in the firm, improperly filled out, etc., the other 20 percent represent the real problem. It is comprised of both the intended thief and the "social thief."

two and is the most troublesome because of the repeativeness of the offense. They will write a check knowing there is not sufficient money in the bank to cover it. They rationalize that they can beat the check to the bank or if not, the merchant will understand the slight "oversight." In effect, all returned checks regardless of who makes the error is a financial loss to the holder of the check.

Efficient Coal Use Researched

By WILLIAM HANSON

BUTTE, Mont. (UPI) - There's a household word around Butte that sounds more in tune with a galaxy far, far away: magnetohydrodynamics.

Better known simply as MHD, its real-world elements include American politicians, Russian scientists and the energy

MHD is an exciting, exotic, experimental process slowly gaining practical appli-cation as a means of dramatically adding more clout to the coal that is burned in the production of electricity.

Such a futuristic development has a Montana connection welded by former U.S. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., now ambassador to Japan.

At the federally-funded Montana Energy and MHD Research Institute in Butte, scientists are high on the promise of MHD to double the efficiency of electrical generation from fossil fuels, particu-larly coal, which lie in abundance beneath these northern mountains and Experts believe a successful MHD generator could turn as much as 60 percent of coal's energy into electricity. Traditional steam generators in the best power plants operating today use only about 40 percent of the fuel's energy.

MHD experts point to a further advantage in their pet process: it burns far through a duct lined with electrodes and cleaner than conventional coal-fired electric generating plants.

The simplest explanation for the MHD process is "a coalfired rocket in a box surrounded by a magnet," says Jerry Plunkett, director of the institute.

ic principles of electricity.

MHD principles will be tested within a year or two in a $35 million Component Development and Integration Facility under construction south of Butte.

Plans also call for construction of a large demonstration MHD plant to generate commercial quantities of electricity at a still-undetermined site that has created a scramble for designation among chambers of commerce and city officials

MHD research nationwide this year exists on a total federal appropriation of $80

its stack gases will have only 5 per cent of the sulfur oxide content currently allowed under standards of the Environmental Protection Agency. Scientists also project substantial reductions in the concentrations of nitrogen oxide and particulate emissions from MHD plants compared with existing coalfired plants.

Further, there's no heavy demand for water in an MHD generator; nor is there a problem with thermal pollution despite its operation at incredibly high temperatures of around 5,000 degrees Celsius.

What about the Russians? They've been into MHD on a far larger scale and 15 years ahead of the Americans, say scientists, although an agreement exists whereby the Soviet program obtains parts and expertise from the United States in exchange for full sharing of test results.

Recently, the Russians installed an American-made superconducting mag-net, the largest ever made, at an MHD power plant on the outskirts of Moscow. Russian and American experts have conferred several times in Montana on U.S. developments in the field.

There's no U.S. intention to duplicate the size of the latest MHD facility in the Soviet Union, Plunkett says. That's a 300-megawatt thermal plant that may be larger than necessary.

DENVER TOURNEY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - John Denver will host his second annual pro-am ski tournament at Heaveny Valley, the ski resort straddling nine peaks on the California-Nevada border, for ABC-TV "Wide World of Sports. Among the star skiers teaming with professionals will be Steve Martin, Chevy Chase, Cheryl Tiegs, Donny and Marie Osmond, John David-son and Karen and Richard Carpenter.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International Today is Sunday, Jan. 7, the 7th, day of 1979 with 358 to follow.

The moon is moving from the first quarter toward a full moon.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars. Those born on this date are under the gn of Capricorn. Millard Fillmore. 13th president of the United States, was born Jan. 7, 1800.

On this day in history: In 1789, George Washington was elect-ed as the first president of the United intention to run for a second term. He overwhelmingly defeated Democratic Sen. George McGovern that November.

In 1973, a sniper was shot and killed on the roof of a New Orleans hotel after he had killed seven people and wounded 14.

A thought for the day: French novelist Andre Maurois said, "There are certain persons for whom pure truth is poison."

hank you

for a very successful 1978 in prosperous Lubbock. All of us at State Savings are excited about 1979 and our new modernized, enlarged home office at 1617 Broadway, soon to be open to better serve you.
