Ousted Cambodians Trying To Regroup

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Routed Cambodian leaders were trying Monday to organize a loyal force to make a last stand against Vietnamese troops and pro-Hanoi Cambodian rebels who seized most of the country and set up a provisional government in Phnom Penh, reliable analysts said.

The rebel National United Front for National Salvation claimed total victory and said its forces controlled the entire nation. Radio Hanoi, however, said some areas had not yet fallen to the rebels.

Premier Pol Pot and the other deposed leaders — having abandoned the capital to Vietnamese and rebel forces on Sunday — were trying to set up a line of resistance near Siem Reap in northwestern Cambodia, the analysts reported. The rebels claimed they were in control of the area, about 320 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

The rebel news agency said an eight-member "People's Revolutionary Council" had been set up and front leader Heng Samrin, a defector from the Pol Pot government, was named chairman. It listed the names of seven other members each charged with Cabinet-type duties. Analysts said they viewed the council as the forerunner of a full-scale rebel government.

Rebels Make Promises

The rebels promised to restore democratic rights and reinstate traditional practices, including the Buddhist religion, and to move Cambodia toward "peace, freedom, non-alignment and socialism."

China, a foe of Russia as well as Vietnam and the Cambodian government's only ally, acknowledged Phnom Penh had fallen but claimed "Cambodia is fighting on."

Chea Sim, right, is vice president of the rebel front. The two leaders say they will revoke the dictates of Cambodian Premier Pol Pot's regime which they routed. (AP Laserphoto)

Several Western experts as well as Thai intelligence sources said fighting in some areas of Cambodia was continuing and that the Vietnamese were launching air strikes, mopping up pockets of resistance and moving westward from Phnom Penh. The main area of resistance appeared to be in the northwest around Cambodia's great lake, the Tonle Sap.

"People's War" Planned

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former head of state in Cambodia, told a news conference in Peking Monday that Pol Pot and others in the ousted Phnom Penh regime were alive and prepared to fight a protracted "people's war."

He said China was in radio contact with the group and would provide weapons and financial aid to the deposed Cambodian leaders but that no Chinese troops would be used to fight the Vietnamese or their rebel proteges.

Sihanouk said the struggle against Vietnam would be facilitated if Thailand allowed use of its territory for such an effort. But Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan told reporters his country will not be used for such purposes.

The 56-year-old Sihanouk said he had accepted Pol Pot's request to plead Cambodia's case before the U.N. Security Council in New York because he approved of the premier's anti-Vietnamese stand. But Sihanouk said he doubts the United Nations will take any action against the rebels and that he would ask the Chinese for asylum.

Sihanouk U.S. Bound

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said the United Nations had been informed by the Cambodian ambassador in Peking that Sihanouk would arrive in New York this afternoon.

China, in supporting Cambodia's request for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council, condemned Vietnam's "towering crimes" and said Hanoi was acting as a surrogate for the Soviet Union.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Vietnam's violation of Cambodia's territory raised the danger of a wider war and called for foreign forces to be withdrawn. He said "all countries interested in peace, stability and an independent state system in Southeast Asia should urge restraint on both parties to the conflict."

Thailand closed its 500-mile eastern border to Cambodian refugees but allowed about 800 foreigners from Phnom Penh, most of them claiming to be Chinese diplomats, to cross the frontier. Diplomats and others from North Korea, Burma, Egypt, Yugoslavia and Romania also crossed the border. Several of the foreign diplomats who fled Phnom Penh a few days before its capture said they saw no fighting.

Population's Help Claimed

The rebels claimed the local population helped them during the offensive, which began Christmas Day, and that Phnom Penh was "completely liberated" by noon Sunday. Analysts said Vietnamese troops, backed by many tanks and warplanes, did most if not all of the fighting

WAR EXERCISE SET

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 17,000 troops and 100 planes will take part in a winter war exercise in Alaska starting this week, the Pentagon said Monday. It will include Army, Air Force, Marine and Navy elements, as well as Army and Air Force reserve and National Guard components. The exercise will start Wednesday and last until Feb. 15.

THE HOUSE THAT FAILED—Peter and Kathy Chinnock stand by the wreckage of their 60-ton adobe house which was being moved to a new lot Tuesday, but collapsed just as it arrived. The Chinnocks had saved the house from the wrecker's ball because it was designed by Swiss-born architect Josias Joesler, noted for his work in Tucson. The week-long move was full of delays and the collapse ended the Chinnock's plans to restore the home. (AP Laserphoto)

Violation Of Sign Code Ruled In County Trial

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A JURY in county court-at-law No. 2 found Lubbock restaurateur Mark Corley guilty Monday of violating the city's sign code by operating a portable sign at his business.

The two-woman, four-man jury took less than 15 minutes to find Corley, who operates Mark's Hamburgers at 2406 34th St., guilty of the Class-C misdemeanor.

Judge J.Q. Warnick Jr. will assess punishment Friday which can be a fine of between $1 to $200.

But Corley said the conviction would not deter him from operating the sign. The sign will remain in place "for some time," he said following the guilty verdict.

Corley's attorney said he was unsure whether the case, appealed from Municipal Court, would be appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

That will depend on the fine assessed, attorney Bill Wischkaemper said, because the fine must be at least $100 to appeal.

Prosecutor Hollis Browning called five witnesses in the case, primarily to identify Corley as the person in charge of the land in front of his restaurant where the sign was located.

Leona Maxwell, Lubbock Power and Light office manager, testified that on Nov. 16, 1977, when Corley was cited for operating the portable sign, the electric bill for Mark's Hamburgers was in Corley's name.

Millard Bruce, Health Department coordinator of environmental programs, said all health permits for the restaurant were issued in Corley's name.

Phone Links Corley

Robert Wimmer, Southwestern Bell security supervisor, produced telephone company records showing the restaurant's phone in the name of "Mark Corley doing business as Mark's Hamburgers."

On cross-examination, Wischkaemper asked each witness if their testimony meant Corley had control of the property around the restaurant. Each witness said "no."

The defense attorney also suggested situations exist in which someone other than the owner or occupant of a piece of property might have the electric or telephone service or a health permit in their name.

Lela Gonzalez, a Mark's Hamburgers' employee, testified she had been hired by Corley. When she became ill and took a leave of absence from work, Mrs. Gonzalez said Corley gave her permission to come back to work.

Wischkaemper, however, asked Mrs. Gonzalez if there were not other "bosses" at the restaurant. She acknowledged there was another man who gave her orders in addition to Corley.

City zoning inspector Wayne Robins, who cited Corley for operating the sign, produced a picture he took of the portable sign on Nov. 16, 1977.

The defense did not call a single witness in the case and Corley did not take the stand in his own behalf.

Judge Denies Motion

Wischkaemper did ask Judge Warnick for an instructed not-guilty verdict because the city had not proved its case, but the judge denied the motion.

In his closing arguments, Wischkaemper said the prosecution had produced "no evidence he (Corley) has control over the land," and said the prosecution's "circumstantial case" did not exclude all other possibilities as required in the charge to the jury.

But Browning told the jury in closing that the picture of the portable sign in front of Corley's restaurant proved the sign was in place on the date Corley was cited.

"The only other question is whether this is the Mark Corley who owns Mark's Hamburgers," Browning said.

"It doesn't matter whether anybody else gives orders or not. The occupant" of a piece of property "pays the bills, hires and fires people and can have agreements with people to take off while they're sick, then come back," he said.

Unequal Enforcement Claimed

At a pre-trial hearing in the case, Wischkaemper had charged the city was guilty of unequally enforcing the sign regulations and therefore the charges against his client should be dropped.

Warnick, however, ruled last month the city was not guilty of selective enforcement of the regulations and set the case for trial.

Corley was one of four Lubbock men who pleaded no contest to charges of violating the city's sign ordinance in November, 1977.

The four were fined $1 by Judge Warnick and ordered to pay $38.50 each in court costs.

The city outlawed portable signs in a revision of the city's zoning ordinance in July, 1975.

Union Delays Major Strike At Refineries

DENVER (AP) — Oil workers struck one refinery Monday and honored a strike at a second one, but their union put off any major walkout until learning the Carter Administration's reaction to a possible 8.3 percent raise.

The contract dispute, in which offers from 21 companies were rejected Monday, is the first major union test of President Carter's wage-price guidelines.

Contracts covering 60,000 members of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union expired at midnight Sunday. But an offer from Amoco that the union is considering has delayed any union-wide strike.

Union president A.F. Grospiron said he wanted to learn whether the Amoco offer, which calls for an 8.3 percent raise in the first year, would be acceptable to the administration under the Carter guidelines.

Grospiron said he had been in touch with high-level government officials and

Viet Reds Hail Blitz Success

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Vietnamese communists claim a blitz in Cambodia, their third military victory in the past quarter century. In the following dispatch, AP Bangkok Chief of Bureau Denis D. Gray, a long-time Indochina watcher who served as a war correspondent during the U.S.-Vietnam conflict, tells how it was done.)

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand — The Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia that routed the Cambodian regime of Premier Pol Pot in a lightning two-week campaign appears to have been a massive and masterful piece of military work, involving up to 14 Vietnamese army divisions, large numbers of tanks and widespread air strikes.

The weakness of the Cambodian forces — thinned out after three years of border fighting with Vietnam — and the possible birth of a guerrilla struggle by the toppled regime may turn out to be the only flaws on the military record of the Vietnamese communists, who have now won three wars in the past 25 years.

Flaunting China, their giant neighbor to the north, the Vietnamese troops swept westward into Cambodia from several border staging areas, swiftly knocked out key defense and supply points and captured the capital of Phnom Penh on Sunday. Vietnam officially credited Cambodian rebels for the victory, but analysts believe Vietnamese soldiers did most if not all of the fighting.

Long Fight Possible

Cambodia's isolation from China, its only ally, probably will mean the early death of any guerrilla movement organized by the toppled Cambodian leaders. But one diplomat, referring to American optimism during the Vietnam War, quipped: "It's not inconceivable that one day we'll have Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong claiming to see the light at the end of the tunnel in Cambodia."

The offensive was rife with parallels to the 1970-75 Cambodian war, except that some of the participants had switched roles and sides.

In 1970, the North Vietnamese and their Khmer Rouge allies — the same people the Vietnamese are now fighting — quickly lopped off northeastern Cambodia from the hands of the U.S.-backed Phnom Penh government. They drove to the Mekong River and tried to finish the capital by cutting off its river and overland supply routes.

It took five years of vicious, see-saw fighting to get the job done. The government had some tough troops, as well as initial American and South Vietnamese support, and the Khmer Rouge, who in later stages did most of the fighting, had limited manpower and weaponry.

City Heritage Society Gets Start, Goals

ALMOST 70 persons braved sub-freezing temperatures and icy streets Monday night to help organize the Lubbock Heritage Society.

The non-profit group, organized with the help of the Junior League, hopes to begin a program to preserve the city's historical structures.

City Planning director Jim Bertram, an at-large member of the society's steering committee, traced the society's roots from a 1969 statement of Lubbock Goals for the 1970s, to its current status as a city council committee with power to recommend zoning protection for historical structures.

He emphasized that Lubbock historians must not try to make Lubbock something it is not. "We are not like San Antonio or some city in the northeast. We will have to develop our past like us, not like someone else," he stressed.

Committee member Maxine Blankenship said the group would attempt to add more Lubbock historical sites to the national historical register, making the sites eligible for matching federal funds.

She said the Lubbock Lake Site was the only city project now receiving matching funds now.

Brainstorming sessions to discuss goals and priorities and give members the opportunity to sign up for specific committees also were included in the lengthy meeting.

Nigh Inauguration Held In Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. George Nigh pledged to run "a people's administration" Monday as he was sworn in for his full four-year term in sub-freezing weather at the state Capitol.

Nigh, who already had been serving as governor for five days due to the early resignation of David Boren, was sworn in as Oklahoma's 22nd governor on the south Capitol steps in 20-degree weather by Supreme Court Justice Ralph Hodges.

"This was a people's campaign," Nigh said in his inaugural address, "and this is going to be a people's administration."

Fired Coach Raps 'Trumped' Charges

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

OUSTED teacher-coach Elton Conger said Monday he was fired on "trumped-up charges," and that the real reasons for his dismissal were racist school officials and a conflict with the superintendent's son.

At an eastside forum, Conger said he has yet to decide whether to appeal his firing by the Lubbock Independent School District. He noted the matter may be taken to the state commissioner of education or the courts.

The forum was conducted by the predominantly black United Political Action League, which may launch its own investigation into the Conger case.

Conger started the school year as an industrial arts teacher at Atkins and Evans junior highs and as the Atkins eighth-grade coach.

School administrators relieved Conger of his coaching duties Oct. 20, charging him with profanity and insubordination. When Conger appealed to the school board, the board fired him.

Job Prospects "Difficult"

Conger, who has been without a job since Jan. 1, said the episode has made it difficult for him to find employment elsewhere.

A black who coached at Struggs Junior High until that school was closed for desegregation reasons last summer, Conger said school administrators claimed he was being fired for using profanity, making an obscene gesture and defying orders, particularly a "direct order."

Those are "trumped-up charges," Conger said.

He denied making the obscene gesture. And although he admitted using profanity sometimes, Conger said it was nothing to get fired over. "Everybody coaching is guilty of the same thing," he said.

As for insubordination, Conger said the school district accused him of defying a direct order not to coach the Atkins eighth-grade football team on Oct. 19, the day administrators had a "showdown" with him.

Conger said he coached the team anyway because the athletic director would not put the order in writing and because the so-called "direct order" was passed from the assistant superintendent to the athletic director to the Atkins principal. When he got the message from the principal, Conger said it was unclear.

Suspected Trick

"I thought this (the order) was some kind of trick to keep me from going out on the field with my team. Then they could say, 'Well, he walked off his job,'" Conger said.

The true reasons for his dismissal, Conger contends, stem from animosity with the Atkins coaches. Conger said he was told by a faculty colleague that "the majority of the coaching staff was saying, 'We don't want that nigger over here.'

Lost Ruidoso Skiers Found

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — Rescue teams have found a man and a woman who became lost and separated Sunday when they tried to ski down the undeveloped west side of Sierra Blanca rather than take trails on the east slope.

Wayland Hill of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department said rescuers tracked down the woman about 3 a.m. Monday. The man, identified as Ken Hays of Wicket, Texas, was found about seven hours later.

Hill said the woman, whose name was not released, had several injuries and was unable to walk out. He said members of the Ruidoso Search and Rescue Unit were trying to help her ski to the snow line where another team was waiting to carry her to the Three Rivers Campground north of Tularosa.

The woman had not been dressed for spending the night in the open and was "in pretty bad shape," Hill said.

Hays was reported in good condition.

The mountain was shrouded in heavy fog with visibility listed at zero, hampering the rescue effort.

The woman said Hays realized they were lost and left her about 3 p.m. to go for help, Hill said.

Icy Storms Stagger Much Of Nation

Easterners sloshed through snow, sleet and rain Monday as a storm swept over the region, knocking out power, icing over roads, forcing school closings and bringing along the bitter cold afflicting the Midwest and Plains.

A truck driver was killed Monday when his tractor-trailer rig slid off an icy highway in Oklahoma, bringing to at least 20 the number of people whose deaths since Saturday have been blamed on the weather.

Snow spread from the Great Lakes to New England as a cold front moved toward the Atlantic. Freezing rain combined with snow in many areas, and rain fell on much of the Eastern Seaboard not hit by snow.

Up to 8 inches of snow fell on western Pennsylvania, where more than 20,000 homes and businesses were without electricity. Snow piled up to a foot deep in Vermont, which also had scattered power interruptions. Melting snow and rain caused some flooding in Connecticut and Massachusetts, but forecasters had said the rain would turn to sleet and snow before ending Monday night.

Travelers were warned to stay off the roads in many areas except for emergencies.

In the West, a Pacific storm brought rain to coastal areas and snow to the mountains of California and Nevada as it headed eastward toward the nation's frigid midsection, where below-zero temperatures dipped south into Missouri and Kansas. The sun shone on much of the Midwest and Plains, but snow and ice from earlier storms still blanketed the region.

Seven people in Ohio and one in Massachusetts died from heart attacks while shoveling snow. Traffic accidents on icy highways killed five people in Massachusetts, two in Pennsylvania and two in Oklahoma. Three cold-related deaths were reported in Wisconsin.

Monday began with all of the nation reporting below-freezing temperatures except for Hawaii, the California coast, parts of Texas and the Gulf and Atlantic coasts. But the advancing front sent temperatures plummeting along much of the Atlantic.

New York City reached a high of 58 degrees as rain doused the state's coastal areas, but temperatures fell into the 30s by afternoon and were forecast to be in the upper teens overnight. In Maryland, temperatures dropped from morning highs in the mid-40s to below freezing by noon.

In southeastern Arkansas, more than 1,000 repairmen were working to restore electricity to 49,000 homes that were still without power after a weekend ice storm blacked out 80,000 houses and businesses. Charles Kelly, a spokesman for Arkansas Power and Light Co., said the ice storm was the worst ever in southern Arkansas.

In the Northwest, firefighters watched over a forest fire they brought under control on Sunday after battling the blaze for three days in high winds that made the cold seem like 25 degrees below zero. The fire burned more than 500 acres of forest 15 miles south of Kalama, Wash..

An ice jam on the Snake River caused some flooding of farmland near Blackfoot, Idaho, and parts of southwest Iowa were inundated when an ice jam blocked the Missouri River at Rulo, Neb.

Here is the early afternoon weather in some key cities around the nation:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 35 windy; Boston not available; Buffalo, N.Y., 19 partly cloudy; Caribou, Maine, 23 snow; Charleston, S.C., 61 windy; Cincinnati 10 fair; Cleveland not available; Detroit 17 snow; Indianapolis 2 fair; Knoxville, Tenn., 31 fair; Miami 72 partly cloudy; Nashville, Tenn.; 16 snow; New York 39 rain; Philadelphia 34 cloudy; Pittsburgh 16 snow; Richmond, Va.; 37 cloudy; Washington 38 windy.

Central U.S. — Bismarck, N.D., 16 partly cloudy; Chicago 0 fair; Denver 40 fair; Des Moines, Iowa, 10 fair; Fort Worth, Texas, 32 fair; Kansas City, Mo., 9 fair.

Western U.S. — Los Angeles 62 hazy; Phoenix, Ariz., 58 smoky; Salt Lake City 23 smoky; San Diego not available; San Francisco 52 rain; Seattle 45 fair.

Warming Trend Grants Brief Respite From Cold

Temporary relief from the past week's freezing precipitation and bitterly cold temperatures is in sight today and Wednesday, although another Canadian cold front is expected to hit the region by Thursday.

The two-day break from extreme wintery conditions will allow Texas Tech University, South Plains College and Lubbock Christian College to conduct spring registration as scheduled, according to school officials.

Forecasters expect temperatures that never passed 30 Monday to soar into the low 40s this afternoon and into the middle 40s Wednesday. The mercury should drop into the middle 20s tonight.

Southwesterly winds blowing 10 to 15 mph, however, are expected to carry in a Canadian cold front from Wyoming that will bring a returning chance for moisture Thursday to West Texas.

A slight chance for freezing drizzle and snow should remain in the forecast through Saturday as the storm cools afternoon temperatures to the upper 30s Friday and Saturday, and pulls overnight lows into the upper teens.

Temperatures Monday were slightly warmer than weekend temperatures, although they never passed the freezing mark, according to the National Weather Service.

City streets and area highways began to clear with the aid of sand and salt treatments Monday, and should continue thawing today as the mercury rises to near 40.

Temperatures in Lubbock Monday ranged from 11 degrees at 7 a.m. to an afternoon reading of 30 as winds blew southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph under cloudy skies.

Convicted Murderer Recaptured

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police Monday recaptured an escaped prisoner who pistol-whipped a Dallas county bailiff and fled the courthouse Friday after being given a 70-year sentence for murder.

A spokesman for Dallas police said the arrest was made Monday afternoon without incident at a south Dallas apartment complex.

James Edward Davis, 30, had been at large since last Friday night, when he fled the county courthouse. Police said he pistol-whipped a bailiff with the guard's own 357-magnum revolver.

The capture ended a three-day manhunt by Dallas police, Dallas County Sheriff's deputies and the FBI. A total of $7,000 in rewards had been offered by local businesses and anonymous donors for Davis' capture.

Davis had just been given a 70-year prison sentence for the beating death of his 10-year-old daughter when he escaped. The girl's body was found last August in a pond at the Dallas waste-water treatment plant, weighted with chains and concrete blocks.

Several deputies had been assigned to protect Judge Thomas Phillips, who Davis had threatened prior to his escape. Officers reported no incidents or further threats against the judge while Davis was at large.

Dallas County Sheriff Carl Thomas said that security measures during prisoner transfers would be beefed up following Davis escape. Davis was not handcuffed when he grabbed deputy Phil Ryan's .357 magnum revolver, beat him and then fled, taking the revolver and Ryan's keys.

Ryan, 56, recieved severe facial wounds in the attack and was listed Monday in fair condition at a Dallas hospital.

Texas Spending Policy Hailed

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Monday he is proud that his administration made the policy of living within the state's income "a part of the Texas tradition."

"It has become a part of state government today that we will live within our income. We've moved in the right direction," Briscoe told a luncheon of Sigma Delta Chi, The Society of Professional Journalists.

"It is essential now that the same policy be adopted on the national level ... If the policy followed in Texas today was adopted nationally it would strengthen our economic policy and strengthen the dollar abroad."

Briscoe has said that after he leaves office Jan. 16, he plans to work for a national constitutional amendment that would require a federal balanced budget.

Briscoe said he was "very optimistic about the future of our great state ... This state can continue to live in its income now and in the future."

He said the press played an important part in his six years as governor.

"The job of keeping the people informed on their elected representatives is one of the most important tasks of our times. Only through the press is it shown how well or poorly that job is carried out," he said.

INTRODUCING THE WORD PROCESSING TYPEWRITER.
IT'S EITHER THE SIMPLEST WORD PROCESSOR OR THE MOST ADVANCED ELECTRONIC TYPEWRITER IN THE WORLD.

Never before has a company put so much word processing in so simple a package.

Olivetti's new TES 401. It brings word processing right to your secretary's desk.

Simple as it is, however, Olivetti's electronic word processing typewriter can effect some big changes in your office. The 401's memory function can take over the repetitive typing that now takes up so much of your secretary's time. And the 401's memory is so sophisticated it can automatically merge variable information like names and addresses with a constant form letter.

The 401 comes equipped with an easy to use window-into-memory for error free electronic text editing, minidiskettes that can store up to 7500 characters each, and a daisy printer that can print out an average business letter in less than 30 seconds.

If you're impressed with the 401 as a word processor you'll be equally impressed with it as a typewriter. Ribbons and type styles can be changed instantly. Dual pitch (pica and elite) and proportional spacing are available at the flick of a switch. Titles can be automatically centered on a page. Right hand margins can be justified. And decimals can be automatically aligned.

But in spite of all its advancements there is one feature of the 401 that is truly backward. Its price of less than 5,000 dollars is literally years behind the times.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. A stock I own was trading at $25 a share. It was split, two-for-one, which dropped it to $12.50. It has since worked its way back up near the $25 level. What are the odds that this stock might be split again? If it performs another time in the same fashion, the reward would be substantial.

A. The members of the board of directors of the company in which you own stock are the only people who can answer your question for sure. The board members decide when and if to split stock. And, in most cases, a split must be approved by a vote of stockholders.

Some companies have histories of rather frequent stock splits. The record book shows that the stock you named in your letter was split once — in December, 1977 — in the last 10 years. So, I have to guess that the odds are against another stock split in the near future — unless that stock runs way up in price. And, as I write this, that stock is trading at $18.75 a share.

Please don't make the mistake of believing that a stock split, by itself, is an absolutely good thing for stockholders. A split does nothing more than cut each share of stock into more shares.

Let's say you owned 100 shares of that stock, before the two-for-one split. The two-for-one split doubled the number of shares outstanding. You became the owner of 200 shares. Every other stockholder became the owner of twice as many shares as before. Your ownership in the company didn't change one bit.

As is often the case, the cash dividend payments to stockholders were increased at the time of the stock split. The boost in the cash dividend payout was meaningful, because it put more money in stockholders' pockets. But that could have been accomplished, without the stock split.

Stock splits are popular, because they draw attention to the stocks involved and drop the split stocks' prices to levels where more people are likely to buy. But, without a cash dividend increase, a stock split is really meaningless.

Q. I notice that members of the board of directors and their families own approximately 32 percent of the common stock of a company in which I own some stock. Is this a good thing or a bad thing?

A. In most cases, it has to be counted as a very good thing. Members of a company's board of directors are elected by stockholders. The board hires and fires top company officers — such as the president and vice presidents — and sets company policy.

Every director, of course, should own some stock in the company. And when directors and /or their families own a bundle of stock, you can usually expect them to "try harder" to see that the company does well. When a company does well, so do its stockholders — both big and small.

There are, however, exceptions to this. Some companies with large concentrations of family stockholdings are run almost like private fiefdoms. This is why the Securities and Exchange Commission has mounted a campaign to have independent directors — unaffiliated with either major stockholders or corporate management — named to boards of directors.

Q. I have $6,000 in debentures issued by a finance company which pays 8 percent interest. The one catch is that they are not covered by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. And my debenture would be useless should the company go bankrupt. I am not a gambler. I can't afford any risks.

This money is security for me and my family. Would an insured savings account be the safest place for it?

A. Yes. I don't like to seem harsh. But you should have thought of that, before you put your money into anything other than an account insured by either the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. or the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. If that $6,000 is all the money you have, it should be in an insured account.

Fortunately for you, the finance company you named is not likely to go bankrupt. But, when that debenture matures, I advise you to take your money and put it in an insured account.

Buried Bodies Case Suspect Indicted

CHICAGO (AP) — John W. Gacy Jr., whose suburban home has yielded the skeletal remains of 27 bodies, was indicted Monday on charges of murdering seven young men. A state attorney said he would seek the death penalty.

Gacy reportedly has confessed to the nation's worst mass murder of the century, telling police he had sex with 32 boys and young men and then killed them.

Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey, who said he might take the case himself, also said there was "more than one reason" why prosecutors would seek the death penalty. He refused to elaborate.

Under Illinois law, a defendant convicted of murdering someone while also committing a felony can be sentenced to death.

The 36-year-old contractor has been in custody since late last month, but until the county grand jury's indictments Monday he was charged only with the murder of Robert Piest, 15, whose disappearance earlier in December led to Gacy's arrest.

Since then, investigators have torn apart Gacy's house and methodically dug through the makeshift cemetery in the earthen crawl space beneath the building. The remains of 25 people were removed from the crawl space and one body was found buried under the garage.

Police believe that in addition to the 27 bodies buried at Gacy's home, five were thrown into the Des Plaines River.

Eight of the remains found in the Gacy home have been identified, in addition to the two bodies recovered from the river.

Piest's body has yet to be found, police say.

A spokesman for Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey said the Piest indictment charged Gacy with two counts of murder, aggravated kidnapping, deviate sexual assault, taking indecent liberities with a child and murder during the commission of a felony. The other six indictments each charge Gacy with two counts of murder, he said.

Chicago Architect To Plan Complex

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Weese, a Chicago architect, was selected Monday from among three finalists to develop a new master plan for Washington's Federal Triangle, the government complex between the White House and the Capitol.

Weese designed the stations for Washington's 3-year-old subway system. His plan envisions surrounding the Old Post Office Building with plazas and arcades for outdoor festivities and ceremonies. The Old Post Office is a few blocks east of the White House on Pennsylvania Avenue.

AN EDITORIAL:

Congress Can Save Free China

ABOUT THE best that can be said for the President's decision to recognize the Communist regime in Peking and to back away from the Mutual Defense Treaty is that it's done and over with.

Now perhaps Congress, when it reconvenes next week, can act just as decisively to undo the harm that was done.

There is little doubt by now that Congress will act; Jimmy Carter's handling of the affair has left too many loose ends.

Not to mention the bitter taste of betrayal among the many Congressional supporters of a Free China who had insisted (by a vote of 94 to nothing in the Senate) in legislation passed in the 95th Congress that the President consult with them before altering our commitments to Taiwan under the Mutual Defense Treaty.

AS REP. CLEMENT J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, has suggested, it is highly unlikely Congress will seriously try to repudiate the President.

A better course would be to find ways to guarantee the economic and military well-being of the 17 million people of the Republic of China.

A first step, of course, was the suit filed in Federal District Court by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and a number of co-plaintiffs from both the House and Senate to prohibit the President from unilaterally abrogating the 1954 Mutual Defense Treaty with the ROC.

Congress undoubtedly will have to take action to assure that the military needs of the ROC are met, now and in the future, regardless of the fate of the Mutual Defense Treaty.

It is unlikely that Taiwan will face any military threat from the Mainland in the foreseeable future; thus, Congress will have to be looking down the road 5 and 10 years.

IT IS PROBABLY unrealistic to advocate the two-China policy which had been put forth earlier. But it is not unrealistic to advocate that the Republic of China at least be granted the same privileges previously accorded to Peking.

And finally, Congress will be looking at the 60 other treaties which currently are in effect between the U.S. and the ROC. These are treaties which deal with trade, scientific and cultural ties, and related areas of mutual interest—the lifeline of the Republic of China on Taiwan.

Obviously, Congress will have to consider amending these treaties to make it clear that they will be respected and that they have the full force and effect of international law.

It is not now the time for crying about the fate of the Free Chinese. It is time for action.

AN EDITORIAL:

Area Economy Alive, Well

WHILE MUCH of the nation looks warily toward the New Year, Lubbock and South Plains residents have some cause to be more confident.

The city and area at least have entered 1979 in good shape, for the most part.

Recent yearend reports on Lubbock's building permits for the past year and bank deposits as of close of business at the end of the year show that overall the area's economy is still on an upbeat note.

WHILE THERE are some clouds on the horizon, such as the late cotton harvest and the rising interest rates, Lubbock's economy and employment is benefiting from the healthy diversification which has taken place in recent years.

While the region at one time depended almost solely on its agricultural base—which is still all-important—now it also can draw solid support from such other industries as electronics, packaging and distribution, health care, education and as a retail center.

All of this means literally thousands of more workers and weekly or monthly paychecks, which in turn create new demands for goods and services.

YEAREND FIGURES on Lubbock's building permits showed a new record of $132,600,657 for the past year. This is slightly above the 1977 figure of $131,951,646.

A major portion of both year's totals, which joined other $100 million years since 1970 incidentally, came from home and apartment construction, with a healthy helping of commercial projects in the latter part of the year.

Indications are that there may be a slight slowdown in the months ahead, but if changes in interest rates take place and other factors ease, the outlook is bright.

ON ANOTHER front, Lubbock's banks also report a new yearend high in deposits for the city.

At the close of business Dec. 31, 1978, deposits totaled $1,104,896,188 compared to a total of $1,104,333,807 for 1977.

And while this increase is not great, the fact that perhaps one half or more of the area's cotton crop has not been ginned or sold shows the strength and broad base of the South Plains' economy.

Looking ahead, Lubbock and the South Plains should be in excellent shape, primarily because of the current healthy conditions on several fronts and the diversification which makes it possible to absorb a setback in any given sector.

In brief, Lubbock and area residents, like their neighbors elsewhere, are being buffeted by the onslaught of inflation and other factors. But, as in the past, they are in good shape overall.

ART BUCHWALD:

Hayes Had Every Right To Slug That CU Kid

WASHINGTON—I believe it's time to do my Woody Hayes' think piece.

For a week now, sports pundits, editorial writers and television commentators have been discussing one of the major issues of our time: that is whether Woody Hayes, coach of the Ohio State football team, should have been fired for slugging a Clemson University player in the Gator Bowl last week.

The incident, which is now considered comparable to Gen. Patton hitting a GI in the face during a tour of a hospital in World War II, has ramifications far greater than football.

First, the undisputed facts. Ohio State was playing Clemson in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. The Ohio team was losing with 15 points to Clemson's 17.

THERE WAS ONE minute and 58 seconds to play. Ohio State had a chance to score. Its quarterback threw a pass, which was intercepted by the Clemson guard, Charley Bauman, who was knocked out of bounds a few feet from coach Hayes on the sidelines.

Woody was so furious at the interception that he hit Bauman in the face. Woody wanted to continue the fight but was separated by his own players. The next morning Hayes was fired.

All right, now let's face the tough question. Did Hayes have the right to slug the Clemson guard?

I say the answer is an unequivocal yes.

Let's put ourselves in Woody Hayes' shoes for just a moment. His team is playing in the Gator Bowl, which is in itself a comedown for the Buckeyes who usually wind up in the Rose, Sugar or Cotton bowls.

THE OPPOSITION, Clemson, a school with one-tenth the student body of Ohio State, is kicking the hip pads out of the Hayes-coached team.

With less than two minutes to go, Hayes' boys have a chance to get in field goal range and win.

Then Clemson guard Bauman spoils everything. The Ohio State quarterback throws a pass. Bauman gets in the way and grabs it, thus ending the Buckeyes, chance of winning the game.

If you were the coach of Ohio State, and one of the opposition players snatched victory from your team, would you just stand on the sidelines and do NOTHING? Of course you wouldn't.

Your first instinct would be to hit the player who stole your ball. This is what Woody Hayes did.

HE DIDN'T DO it for himself. He did it for everyone who loves the American game of football.

He showed the country on nationwide television that law and order on the gridiron still prevail, and when a kid steals a pass, he's going to pay for it.

It's a coach's job to do everything in his power to win. If this means hitting a player on the other team—so be it. Some say Bauman, the Clemson guard, was the victim of the Hayes' attack.

I say he invited the slugging match. Bauman knew the pass wasn't for him. He knew it was thrown to an Ohio State receiver.

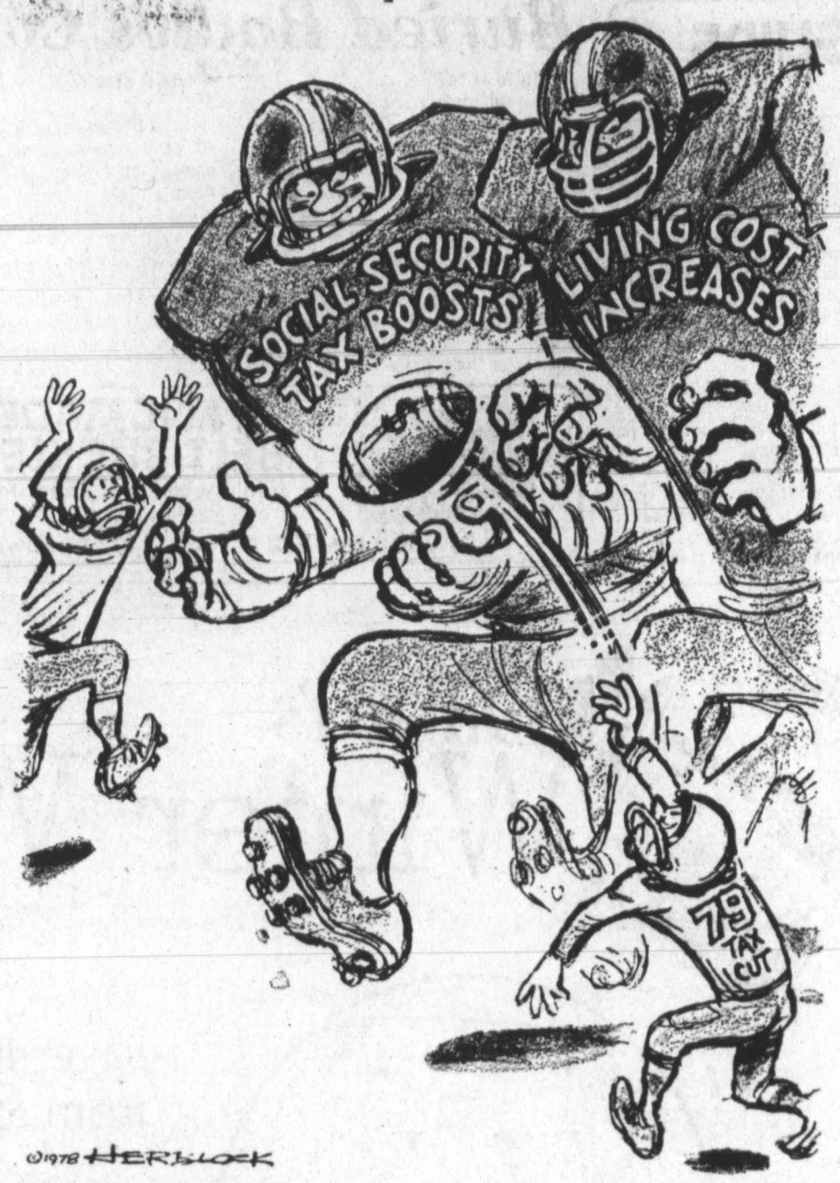
He had no right to get in the way of it, and even less right to catch it and run in the opposite direction.

UNLESS WE ARE willing to see college football go down the drain, all of us are going to have to speak up and reiterate what American coaches have been telling their players for years, winning is everything!

If we don't allow coaches to slug players on the other team, then there is no sense suiting our kids up to play the game.

Hayes' hit in the mouth might have been the best thing to happen to Bauman, who I am certain will think twice before he ever steals a pass again.

Attempted Pass



GEORGE F. WILL:

A Rape In Marriage

WASHINGTON—In the late 19th century a male dean at Oxford, in the delicacy of the day, addressed some women undergraduates:

"Inferior to us God made you, and inferior until the end of time you shall remain. But you are none the worse off for that."

In the late 20th century, the emancipation of women from such attitudes continues. But that does not adequately explain, or allay doubts about, the trial in Salem, Oregon, of a man accused of raping his wife.

Intra-family relationships are not an unexplored frontier of litigation. The family is clearly within the ambit of the state.

In 1874, in New York, a group seeking help for a child abused by foster parents had to invoke a law forbidding cruelty to animals.

But recently the state has intruded into family relationships to assert a public interest in, for example, necessary medical treatment or education for children whose parents would deny that on religious or other grounds.

The family is society's molecular unit. In modern societies, which lack dominating churches, tribes, aristocracies, monarchies or other traditional structures, the family looms especially large.

Furthermore, a liberal society is inherently contractual, and hence litigious; it is given to formalizing and codifying relationships. Family relationships will not be exempt from this.

Increased understanding of early childhood development gives new urgency to the axiom that, "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined."

AS PEOPLE KNOW, or think they know, more about equipping children to turn the key in the lock of the world, the "rights" of children seem (to some people) more elaborate, and the "rights" of incompetent parents seem more tenuous.

So there is pressure for the state to define and enforce the "rights" of all parties in a family. After all, (it is said), incompetent parents do incalculable damage.

(Never mind that, as most parents understand, the record of any child's upbringing would be, in no small measure, a catalog of blunders.)

But when you follow the thread of such thoughts about the state's jurisdiction in intra-family relationships, you sense quicksand all around.

WHEN THE thread leads from the rights of children to the rights of adults in conjugal relations, the law is drawn into making perilous distinction, and the resulting litigation requires testimony that pries into the most sensitive intimacies.

When Henry James examined letters pertaining to Byron's incest, he exclaimed (happily): "Nauseating, perhaps, but how quite, quite inexpressibly significant." It is significant that the Salem case is, to say no more, gamy.

The man and woman were living together, tumultuously, when the particular act of sexual intercourse occurred. The question in dispute concerns the kind of force employed.

The trial generated charges, innuendoes and rumors (about sexual eccentricity, promiscuity, and the sale of movie rights). It was not a tidy seminar on jurisprudence.

OBVIOUSLY THERE can be, as a matter of fact, rape—violent compulsion to sexual intercourse—in marriage. The question is whether there should be, as a matter of law, the crime of rape-in-marriage.

The idea that marriage implies or requires perpetual consent, under all circumstances, to sex is grotesque. And a partner in a marriage must have recourse to the law when the other partner resorts to violence.

But it is a grave business when the law empowers one partner to charge the other with a felony punishable by 20 years in prison.

The problems of proof relating to the charge of rape in marriage are obvious, as is the potential for abuse of the charge in divorce proceedings.

It is less obvious that there are fully compensating social benefits from a law distinguishing from others this particular category of assault.

LESS THAN 200 years ago in England, it was a form of treason—"petty treason"—for a wife to kill a husband. Such a deed was considered an assault on society's natural and essential structure of authority.

Since then, the cake of custom has crumbled generally, and, regarding the status of women, the crumbling has been, by and large, for the better.

Inevitably, the state steps in when old customs seem to have become unsatisfactory regulators of relationships. But the Salem case demonstrates how hard it is for the state to bake a cake.

ANDREW TULLY:

Mafia Is A No-No

WASHINGTON—I believe it. Apparently, anything can happen in our poor country. This particular anything is a report that some guy in California wants to sue the FBI for identifying certain criminals as members of the Mafia.

The would-be litigant's argument is that any mention of the Mafia in matters criminal is "libelous to the image of Italian-Americans." He also wants something done about books and movies about bad guys who are unmistakably of Italian origin.

The Californian's exhibition of paranoia recalls the fuss made by the Italian-American Civil Rights League about "The Godfather."

That organization actually persuaded its producers to delete any mention of the Mafia or Cosa Nostra from the script.

AND PREVIOUSLY, ABC capitulated to the league's protests and decreed that the labels Mafia and Cosa Nostra no longer would be mentioned in the TV series, "The FBI."

Such hysteria says in effect that the role of Shylock should be outlawed from "The Merchant of Venice," or doctored to make him a Laplander.

With the professional Irish periodically up in arms, heaven knows what they'd do to Joyce's "Ulysses".

Was Al Capone really a philanthropist cum machine gun? Perhaps film folks should straighten Genghis Khan's eyes, and drop "Hun" from Attila's name.

Certain Catholics and Protestants alike too often behave like animals, and I reject the argument that I should refer to them as anything but Irish.

ALTHOUGH IT is only fair to note that some Ulstermen descend from Englishmen dispatched to the isle by Cromwell to steal all the best land.

Italian-American protesters, meanwhile, overlook a fact of life. It is that the primary victims of the Mafia are Italian-Americans.

Italian names are attached to those who are bumped off regularly for "crimes" against their tribal chieftains, just as ghetto blacks suffer most from black criminals.

However, we seem to operate under a new set of rules. These proclaim that it is all right for performers on stage, screen and TV to heap insult on the American Flag, the President, priests, ministers, and nuns, but dirty pool to say a cross word about organized thieves and murderers.

IN FACT, a valid argument may be mounted that America's new persecuted minority are the White Anglo-Saxon Protestants, who seem serenely disinclined to protest performances that show them in a bad light.

No organization of Episcopalians, Lutherans, or Methodists has ever brought pressure on any producer for casting a WASP in a villain's role. They even seem rather fond of Macbeth and Henry VIII.

I suppose I shouldn't have written that. Everybody seems tottering on the neurotic brink today, and I may have given some nut an idea.

But I'll flee to Moscow if the WASPs get into the act and the performing arts are required to make it clear that every rascal is an immigrant from Mars.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Best Of Enemies

IN DAMASCUS Syrian President Hafez al-Assad has signed an alliance with Iraq President Ahmed Hassan al-Bakr. Only recently they called each other "assassins" or worse.

The treaty results from President Carter's Camp David accords, both Syria and Iraq violently rejecting them, although Minister of Information Ahmed Iskander stated: "Syria wants peace with Israel, not capitulation."

The treaty unites under one command Syria's 227,000 troops (about 30,000 tied down in Lebanon) and Iraq's 190,000. Moreover, Syria and Iraq both receive weapons, tanks, etc., from the Soviet Union on a scale large enough to shatter the nerves of an astronaut.

Iraq, larger than California and all but a Soviet satellite, has signed in Moscow a $1 billion deal for advanced planes, tanks and missiles. And the Soviet has sent Iraq the most modern military equipment in great abundance.

TO PAY Moscow for this, Iraq—the world's eighth largest oil producer—has annual exports exceeding $8 billion. Oil exports are about 90 percent of Iraq's national income.

Since 1963, Syria has been ruled by the Ba'ath (Resurrection) party, an international Arab organization and the only legal party. For 10 years Syria had turbulent regimes representing an ideology that combined Marxism with Islamic traditionalism. Then in 1970, Ba'ath party member Assad, as defense minister, overthrew General Salad Jadid in a bloodless coup.

Damascus, the "capital" is probably the world's most ancient city. When Greek Herodotus of Halicarnassus, Europe's first historian, wrote of Damascus it was 20 centuries old — as old to Herodotus as the Athens' Acropolis is to us today.

DAMASCUS SEEMS to grow from the sediment of history. The houses' walls, tilting in total confusion, are stuffed with chunks of Roman pillars and byzantine masonry.

During the October 1973 war, Israel's troops came within 30 kilometers of Damascus. Assad faces the war's destruction of Syrian property estimated at more than $500 million. About half of Syria's industrial production was destroyed.

To this day Damascus still bears the imprint of the French. But you find the parks, squares, boulevards, etc., neglected. The people are angered against Israel and the United States. You find them blaming this on the United States, Israel's supporter.

GO TO DAMASCUS and you discover that a "shamel," the dreaded desert wind, can envelop the city. It causes a brown, grit-ladened darkness. The city's center, in turn, is the al-Marjah (The Meadow). This is in the area of the Souk al-Hamadiya, or market place, a towering, dark arcade with a curved roof like a London or Paris railway station.

The famous street called Straight (where the Bible says Judas lived) ends at the Roman Gate of the Sun. This is near the Great Umayyad Mosque with its tall Roman columns, birds circling below the painted roof.

Nearly 1,200 years ago the Umayyad dynasty murdered Mohammed's family, extinguishing the line. To all Moslems, this mosque is as sacred as the Jerusalem's al-Aqsa Mosque.

John the Baptist's head lies in a crypt, and this is the site of the minaret where Moslems say Jesus will touch down on Judgment Day.

Also, the Great Umayyad Mosque holds the great Saladin's tomb. He was the savior of Jerusalem, scourge of the Crusaders, who died March 4, 1193. The tomb has a Germanic look, having been built by German Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Saladin's sarcophagus rests on a raised platform below an elaborate lamp. You find that the lamp is engraved with Wilhelm's monogram and that of his Ottoman ally, Sultan Abdul the Damned.

THE INTERCONTINENTAL Hotel outdoes Kubla Khan in its Arabian Nights decor—a marble-floored palace on a hill, fountains in the lobby, etc. But at one time the Russians all but took over the Umayyad Hotel.

Although about 33 percent of Syria's men and nearly all the women have no paid employment, national security exhausts nearly 40 percent of Syria's budget. Syria relies on the Soviet Union.

Presidents Assad and al-Bahr have signed a treaty among natural enemies. But it bodes ill for President Carter, the United States and peace in the Middle East.

Rebuttal Starts In Davis Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A state rebuttal witness cast serious doubts Monday on an ex-convict's story that FBI informant David McCrory offered him $20,000 to kill millionaire Cullen Davis.

The testimony of legal secretary Kimberly Vandiver suggested that Larry Gene Lucas expected to receive "some good money" for telling his story.

Lucas had testified for the defense that McCrory approached him in a Fort Worth bar last June or July and offered him $20,000 to kill Davis. When he refused, Lucas said, McCrory told him "we're going to get him anyway."

Mrs. Vandiver's testimony came at the start of the 10th week of testimony in the murder-for-hire trial of the Fort Worth industrialist, accused of plotting the murder of his divorce judge.

Davis, 45, said he was a victim of a scheme masterminded by his estranged wife, Priscilla, and triggered by McCrory, 40, a friend-turned-informant.

Trial Judge Wallace Moore said Monday it was "most likely" the case would go to the jury Thursday evening. He said he hopes to deliver his charge to the jury Thursday after each side has four hours for final arguments.

The red-haired Mrs. Vandiver identified a letter written by Lucas last Nov. 13, and postmarked from Guthrie, Texas, where he was working at a service station.

The letter was addressed to Mary Weir with whom Lucas was romantically linked and whom the defense contends was Lucas' common-law wife.

Miss Weir is also Mrs. Vandiver's sister-in-law.

Investigators from the district attorney's office recovered the letter during a controversial "search" Dec. 11 at Miss Weir's mobile home in a Fort Worth trailer park.

Prosecutors entered portions of the letter into evidence Monday over defense objections.

The handwritten letter, which began "Hi, Baby," read in part:

"I want you to call Bill Morris, a bail bondsman ... tell Bill that your (sic) my wife. And that I was approached by David McCroy (sic) to wipe Kullen (sic) Davis.

"Tell him I know (sic) David for 14 years. I can prove that he talked to me. Also tell him that I'll have to have enough money to leave the country. Because the FBI will be so hot I won't be able to stay here.

"If he thinks my information might be important, then get in touch with me ... now do this because there ... could be some good money in it."

The letter was signed, "Love, Gene," and carried a postscript which read, "Now do this whether you want to or not."

Mrs. Vandiver testified she had communicated with Lucas during his stint in a Missouri prison in the early 1970s and recognized his handwriting.

She also said she and her husband, a Fort Worth builder, know Mrs. Davis and visited her after August 1976 in the $6 million Davis mansion.

The mansion was the scene of an Aug. 2, 1976 shooting spree in which two persons were killed and two were wounded. Mrs. Davis was one of three witnesses who identified the defendant as the gunman in black.

However, an Amarillo jury subsequently acquitted Davis of a capital murder charge stemming from those shootings.

In 1914, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan issued the order requiring photographs on passports issued in the United States.

London Sleuth Gives Advice To Crooks

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The man hailed by many as the "20th-century Sherlock Holmes" has a tip for plotters of that perfect crime: "Keep it simple."

"Too often the plan for the crime is too complicated, and a little fact trips up the criminal," said Dr. Keith Simpson, senior pathologist for Scotland Yard.

A longtime admirer of Holmes, Simpson flew to Milwaukee from London to attend a 125th birthday party Saturday for the fictional detective at, appropriately, the Sherlock Holmes Pub.

"I'd come any distance for such an event," said Simpson, who has practiced for 50 years, 40 of them as a pathologist. Some of his cases would have drawn a nod of approval from Holmes himself — such as the "Case of the Four Gallstones."

A wealthy widow was killed and robbed and her body dumped into a steel drum of sulphuric acid. The murderer thought he had committed the perfect crime, Simpson said, having disposed of the body.

Simpson examined the area where the body was disposed of, found four human gallstones that did not dissolve in the acid. From that evidence, the murder was reconstructed and the assailant eventually hanged.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JAN. 9, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 11, 23, 34, 46, 57, 69 ..... Safety first, bad day
Highs: 1-10, 24-33, 47-56, 70-75 ..... Sparkling with vitality
Lows: 12-22, 35-45, 58-69 ..... Not a stable day

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 10, 24, 38, 52, 66, 80 ..... Careful can be confused
Highs: 1-9, 25-37, 53-65, 81-85 ..... A joyous time
Lows: 11-23, 38-51, 67-79 ..... No mood for harmony

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 1, 18, 34, 51, 67, 84 ..... Intellectually vulnerable
Highs: 19-33, 52-66, 85-95 ..... Memory reliable
Lows: 2-17, 35-50, 68-83 ..... Abstractions tough

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

HEARINGS CONTINUE — Little 3-year-old Chad Green plays outside Plymouth Superior Court as hearing continue on what type of treatment would be best for the boy's leukemia: chemotherapy or Laetrile. Chemotherapy Endorsed By Laetrile Advocate PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A Mexican doctor who uses Laetrile to treat cancer patients said Monday that removing 3-year-old Chad Green from chemotherapy for his leukemia would endanger the boy's life.

Dr. Ernesto Contreras, who runs a clinic in Tijuana, was brought here by Chad's parents to testify in behalf of their effort to win the right to decide how their son's illness should be treated.

"I stated very clearly that chemotherapy should continue as the basic treatment with metabolic therapy, including the use of Laetrile, to improve the quality of the boy's life ...," Contreras said in describing his testimony at a closed hearing in Plymouth Superior Court.

"We cannot risk the life of the boy by withdrawing the chemotherapy. That is too much risk," said Contreras, who studied pathology at Children's Hospital in Boston 30 years ago.

He was the first expert witness before Judge Guy Volterra, who is reviewing his April 18 decision that Chad undergo chemotherapy at Massachusetts General Hospital and be made a temporary ward of the state while continuing to live with his parents. He has permitted Chad to be treated also with Laetrile and a special diet.

Assistant Attorney General Jonathan Brandt, representing the state Welfare Department, said the state will ask Volterra not only to continue his order but to prohibit the boy's parents, Diana and Gerald Green of Scituate, from giving Laetrile to Chad on the ground that it is harmful.

Dr. Victor Herbert, a blood specialist from the Veterans Hospital, Bronx, N.Y, and a scheduled witness for the state, said he will testify that Chad has low-grade cyanide poisoning as a result of taking Laetrile.

Ex-JP Gets Prison Term

A-J Correspondent

LAMESA — Former Dawson County Justice of the Peace Richard Don Nelson was sentenced Monday to serve not less than two years and not more than 2½ years in the state penitentiary for misapplication of public funds.

Nelson, 33, who pleaded guilty to the charge in November, had been accused of pocketing money from traffic ticket fines in 10 separate incidents during 1977-1978.

Judge George H. Hansard Jr. of the 106th District Court handed down the sentence.

Nelson, who had been justice of the peace here for the past 3½ years, had been suspended from office without pay by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct in July.

The suspension came after a Dawson County grand jury had indicted Nelson on one count of misapplication of public funds.

Here's a monthly reminder to make your next building an energy saver:

The energy crises has made us realize some things about energy: It's no longer cheap. And it isn't going to last forever.

That's why you need to make your next building a true energy saver. And that's where we can help.

We'll show you how we use special insulation methods on your building to keep the heating and cooling inside where it belongs. We offer the lowest "U" factor in the industry (a low "U" factor is a measure of good insulation effectiveness). The combination of Butler Systems and superior insulation can give you the best available protection against the weather and a high energy bill.

And we can handle your entire building project from start to finish. That saves your energy.

If you're thinking about building, give us a call. We'd like to show you how to keep those monthly reminders a little gentler. 1677

Two Explosions Rip French Oil Tanker Killing At Least 50

BANTRY, Ireland (AP) — Two explosions ripped through the French tanker Betelgeuse unloading at a Gulf Oil terminal Monday, cutting the vessel in two and hurling the bodies of the crew into a sea of flaming oil. The death toll was placed at 50, including the crew of 41, two representatives of the tanker's owners and seven local workers engulfed in the ball of fire.

By nightfall, only 15 bodies had been recovered — all badly mutilated and horribly burned, some with limbs blown off. The owners said in Paris just two were identified, a sailor and a woman, the wife of the ship's baker.

Gulf Oil officials could give no immediate cause, but oil experts in London speculated the blast may have been triggered by highly volatile gases in the ship's emptying oil tanks. They said this occasionally causes tanker explosions.

Cork County pollution officer Liam Mullins said if initial reports about the amount of oil spilled were correct, the pollution would be 20 times greater than the biggest previous spill at Bantry in 1974. The Betelgeuse was carrying 31 million gallons.

Terminal manger Don Ashe, an American, said spillage was likely to be minimal.

But the spillage was the largest of 25 since the terminal opened in 1969.

The record Amoco Cadiz spill off France in March 1978 was estimated at 39 million gallons.

The explosion occurred when the 121,430-ton deadweight Betelgeuse, owned by the Compagnie Navale des Petroles, had unloaded two thirds of its cargo of crude oil through undersea pipes into the terminal on Whiddy Island. The Betelgeuese was standing about three miles offshore at the time. While large, the Betelgeuse was well below the 200,000-ton size of the supertankers.

Some of the bodies were blown over 500 yards from the small jetty, reaching out from the island, and Monday afternoon an emergency morgue was set up in a hangar at a small airstrip outside Bantry.

The tanker began sinking in a sea of flames as rescuers tried to reach the crewmen's bodies floating around it.

By mid-morning, only the tanker's burning bows were visible. The rest was lying in 130 feet of water at the end of the still flaming jetty.

One witness said: "It was like looking into the flames of hell as the ship went up."

A fireman at the scene called it the "towering inferno" with bits of oil-covered bodies protruding from the black water.

Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch went to the disaster area for an on-the-spot examination, and pledged a government inquiry. Previous accidents at the Gulf Oil installation brought warnings of a forced closure.

"There is no indication as yet of the cause of the accident. Everyone involved is dead," Lynch told an impromptu news conference at a waterfront bar. He said it would be a long time before the terminal was back in operation.

"Gulf Oil has taken every possible care to avoid oil spills and other disasters. I believe every precaution was taken," he said.

As local authorities declared a fullscale disaster, 14 families livingon Whiddyisland wereevacuated by launches and the town of Bantry cordoned off by police.

Two British-based Royal Navy helicopters worked through the early hours and into the morning trying to locate the floating dead and ferrying bodies from the airstrip to the morgue.

Medical and rescue teams from throughout the republic and air corps helicopters and planes from Dublin joined the massive operation at dawn.

Airspace within 20 miles of the bay was closed to everything except rescue helicopters, as flames leapt 500 feet into the air, leaving a thick pall of smoke visible for miles.

The disaster struck at four minutes to 1 a.m. after the tanker had unloaded about two-thirds of its cargo.

A first explosion cut the tanker in two and minutes later a second blast rocked the area. An ironic twist to the tragedy is that the tanker was diverted to Bantry from Portugal, where its scheduled port of entry had been blocked by a sunken craft.

Gulf, in a statement issued in London, said the tanker was used by the French Total Oil Co., but was carrying a cargo for Petrogal, the Portuguese national oil company. The oil had been loaded in Saudi Arabia. It arrived here over the weekend, when all standard safety procedures were put into operation, officials said.

The Betelgeuse's French owners said it was insured, mostly in Paris, for $13.1 million.

Man Badly Hurt Escaping Fire

A 59-year-old man was in serious condition Monday night at Health Sciences Center Hospital with injuries he suffered when he crashed through a window to escape flames at an East 25th Street residence.

R. C. Scott of 1315 E. 25th St. broke through a bedroom window Monday morning after a floor furnace apparently exploded. He suffered a severely cut hand.

Also in the house when the explosion occurred about 10:15 a.m. were Willie Eloise Browning and her mother, Jewel Johnson. Both fled uninjured from the home, which sustained heavy damage.

Mrs. Browning said the fire caused about $6,000 damage to her home and its contents. She said the explosion appeared to have come from a gas furnace in the hallway of the three-bedroom house.

Scott reportedly was lying on a bed and could not reach the door because of fire and smoke.

"He just ran through the window," Mrs. Johnson said. "He would have been killed if he hadn't."

ACU Says Solons For Taiwan Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Conservative Union said Saturday that a poll it took of House and Senate members last August and October found a majority favored maintaining a defense treaty with Taiwan.

The ACU said 264 of 270 congressmen who responded to the poll last August favored continued diplomatic and defense ties with Taiwan, and 64 of 68 senators who were polled in October also favored continued support for Taiwan.

Last month, President Carter recognized communist China and announced that the defense treaty and diplomatic relations with Taiwan would be terminated. There are 435 members of the House and 100 senators.

Energy Department Operates 'Hotline'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department has established a toll-free hotline to receive consumer complaints about supplies and prices of gasoline and heating oil.

"If consumer complaints indicate there are unjustified price increases or unexplained shortages of home heating oil, DOE will evaluate the industry's performance to determine what regulatory response is necessary," department spokeman David J. Bardin said.

The hotline will be manned from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Eastern time, Monday through Friday, with a recording device in use nights and weekends.

The number to call is 1-800-424-9246.

High Court Eliminates Special State Air Fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to review a Civil Aeronautics Board order designed to eliminate the gap between air fares for intrastate and interstate passengers traveling in California and Texas.

The justices turned down appeals by California and the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners from a decision by the U.S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia upholding the CAB on the issue.

Interstate fares are regulated by the federal government, including fares charged by interstate airlines when they carry passengers between two points in the same state.

California is the only state which regulates these intrastate fares, and the fares it fixes are substantially lower than those interstate passengers pay for traveling over the same route.

Texas licenses intrastate airlines that compete with interstate airlines for traffic within the state and which charge substantially lower fares.

As a result, carriers historically have maintained two fares for transportation between the same points in California and Texas: one for interstate traffic, a lower one for intrastate passengers.

In 1971, consumer advocate Ralph Nader complained to the CAB about the differences in fares after he was a passenger on a United Air Lines flight which began in the nation's capital, stopped in San Francisco and wound up in Los Angeles.

His fare included a $35 charge for the San Francisco to Los Angeles segment, but while en route, he discovered that other passengers were paying about half that amount for the same flight between the two cities.

Nader's complaint sparked a CAB investigation, which concluded that discrimination did exist and could be corrected only by eliminating fare differentials. The board ordered establishment of a single level of fares applicable to both interstate and intrastate passengers, to be computed on the basis of federal formulas.

California, Texas and state regulatory commissioners appealed. But the federal appeals court affirmed the CAB's power to pre-empt state regulation in this area to eliminate unjust discrimination. Texas did not join in appeals carried to the Supreme Court.

The CAB said a new airline deregulation law President Carter signed last October makes the issue largely irrelevant. It said one of the primary purposes of the law was to eliminate problems caused by dual regulation of interstate carriers operating in California.

California disagreed, saying the new statute "does not materially affect" the issues presented in its appeal.

Texas Parish Invites Pope

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The Polish-American Priests Association Monday invited Pope John Paul II to visit Panna Maria, the first Polish Catholic parish established in the United States, during the pontiff's visit to the Western Hemisphere.

"We are inviting him as a courtesy," said Msgr. Erwin A. Juraschek, pastor of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary Church in Cstohowa. "Nothing ventured, nothing gained. He might just accept."

Cestohowa and Panna Maria, the oldest Polish settlement in the United States, both are located in Karnes County, about 50 miles south of San Antonio.

Juraschek said the Polish-American Priests Association hoped the Pope would visit the area after his trip to Mexico City and a Latin American Bishop's Conference in Puebla, Mexico.

Juraschek joined with the Rev. Bernard Goebel, pastor of the Panna Maria Church, and the Rev. John Yanta, secretary-treasurer of the association, in extending the investigation.

Both Juraschek and Goebel traveled to Rome for the investiture of Pope John Paul II.

Trial Opens On Injury To Officer

Three criminal trials, one for aggravated assault on a policeman stemming from an October shoplifting arrest at South Plains Mall, were adjourned Monday after juries were chosen and initial testimony was heard.

William Earl Chase, 20, of 1903 E. 16th St. went on trial in 72nd District Court on a charge of hitting officer Ernie Rendleman with a car Oct. 16 as Rendleman and officer Linda Clinton tried to apprehend two women who had gone to the car.

The car ran over Rendleman's foot, officers testified.

Officer Clinton testified that she had followed the women to the car after seeing them shoplifting in a mall store.

Robert Davila, 24, went on trial in 137th District Court on a charge of the aggravated robbery of a 7-Eleven store at 2806 Salem last April 6.

Former store clerk Tawa Cleveland of Big Spring pointed out Davila as the man who robbed her of about $160 at gunpoint.

A 15-year-old Lubbock went on trial in 237th District Court for a reported Aug. 16 burglary at an East Lubbock residence.

The couple plans to be married Jan. 20 in St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am concerned about a three-year-old boy. His mother never allows him to have salt, sugar or butter in his foods. Everything she cooks is unsalted, unsweetened and unbuttered. She salts everything she eats to taste, or sweetens it, as the case may be. The child has never tasted ice cream or lollipops. Don't you consider this extreme? — N.K.

I have two points to make. I'm sure this mother has the right idea, but she may be putting the cart before the horse unless she has a specific reason for doing this. More on that below.

Yes, there is entirely too much salt and sugar consumption, and taste for those substances develops early in life. But the vast majority of salt and sugar is added at the table via the shaker and bowl. So it is best to use reasonable amounts in food preparation, then get the shakers and the bowls out of sight. That simple measure begun early in family life could have medical impact beyond measure.

I knew a man who in his early adult years developed a love for heavily creamed and sweetened coffee. When he married he learned to his dismay that not only was his bride a straight coffee drinker but she found little reason to have the sugar bowls and creamers filled and waiting. After frustrating months of searching for them the husband relented and adapted to straight coffee. It is difficult to estimate the volume of sugar (empty calories) and cream (fat-laden ones) he was spared just because of his wife's coffee tastes.

Second point:

Don't be quick to condemn your friend. A family history of diabetes or heart disease requires special care in food preparation. In such a case it would be prepared without seasoning, which might be added later according to the needs of the person. Otherwise, it is good to establish proper eating habits generally by limiting such foods as you mention and avoiding early development of tastes for those associated with obesity, arteriosclerosis and hypertension. Good habits, like bad ones, last for life.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: With all of those do-it-yourself blood pressure reading machines around I'm sure many people would be interested in something about just what is considered high blood pressure. Also, which reading is the most important — the upper or lower? Or are they equally important? — J.J.

There is no foolproof formula.

The upper reading is called the systolic. That is the pressure on the artery walls at the instant the heart pumps. The lower reading is the diastolic, the pressure in the relaxation period between beats. Thus, the upper reading is higher naturally than the lower one.

Both are important, but the one measuring that in-between beat pressure is seen as more significant when it gets over normal. A reading of, say, 120-90 would be no cause for any concern in an adult. Anything below 140-90 is good for a middle-aged person. If a person is fat you would expect either reading to be elevated.

Either reading can be temporary. It is a continuing high reading that causes doctors to begin treatment. Excitement, exercise, and various other conditions can cause a temporary rise. I shortened your letter, but your other questions on the subject are answered in more detail than I can go into here in the booklet "How to Control Hypertension" (another word for high blood pressure). If you want a copy to study, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 20-year-old woman who was in an automobile accident 10 months ago. I have been in a body cast since. I will be getting out in another month. Friends have told me that when I do I will be flat-chested. I am horrified at the thought. What can I do to get my bustline back? — C.G.S.

You won't be flat-chested. Your bust may be a bit smaller temporarily if you have lost any weight in the interim, which I doubt. There may have been some relaxation of pectoral (chest) muscles, but these will regain tone with normal activity and in relatively short order. Why is it our best friends like to deliver the worst news? How many people have known others, particularly females, who have been in a body cast for ten months? Not many.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can your uterus grow back once it is removed? And can you become pregnant? — Mrs. R.H.

No to both questions.

With a trim new figure that's lovely and light!
Sure, you've been intending to do something about your weight problem for a long time now, but somehow you just never seem to get around to it.
Please don't put it off any longer. This, after all, is the season for resolutions—an excellent time for you to resolve to call Pat Walker's for the help you need to achieve a slender figure. You'll be as delighted as Leona Swoboda, who is three sizes smaller than when she started the program.
All my life I've tried every diet that came along. I've exercised, I've walked, but nothing seemed to work for me. I always seemed to gain it back.
I read about Pat Walker's in the paper and decided to give it a try. I learned to eat sensibly, because with this program there is no rigid diet.
Within two weeks I began to see results. I now have lost 33 inches and 20 pounds, and have gone from a size 14 to a size 8. I feel better and I look better.
Although I have reached my perfect figure, I will continue to go to Pat Walker's for the relaxing atmosphere and the private individual attention I receive.
I love the way I feel now, and my husband loves the way I look; this, to me, makes it all worthwhile!

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON—MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK—Let's face it. Among all the serial casts there are precious few that are genuinely warm, loving and fun. There are some real stinkers among the soap opera talent lineup who are phoney, backbiting, catty or so sickeningly "kissy-poo" that they give the rest of their castmates a blue reputation. But as a whole, the cast of "The Edge of Night" can't be matched for their sincere comradery and spirited charm and manners. It would be practically a sin to miss this show's annual year-end holiday party. Attending an "Edge" party would improve even Scrooge's spirits.

Last week the show held its Christmas bash at the elegant, wood-paneled, and theatrically-atmospheric Players Club in Manhattan. Terry Davis (April Scott) and Jayne Bentzen (Nicole Drake) made dramatic entrances, wearing matching black velvet hooded capes. Jayne was a knockout in a black crepe de chine gown with a gold flecked scarf while Terry's ruby pumps matched a pair of barrettes in her strawberry blonde tresses.

Terry was enthusiastic about working in a two-character play off-Broadway at the end of January with Sharon Gabet (Raven Jamison), who wore a raven-colored crushed velvet dress that "I picked up in an antique shop in the Village. It's from the '20s and if I bought it at a fancy uptown store I wouldn't have been able to buy Christmas gifts this year." One of the bewitching actress' Xmas gifts will be a jaunt to Indiana to visit the family of her beau, Tom, who's also an actor. The couple hopes to get in some cross-country skiing somewhere in the Midwest before jetting back to Long Island for a New Year's bash with a handful of friends "in front of a roaring fireplace."

Another couple who will holiday by skiing is Forrest Compton (Mike Karr) and his lovely bride Jeanne. Forrest's screen wife, Ann Flood (Nancy), who wore a gold lame skirt that (believe it or not, in this day and age) she made herself, has opted for a more traditional family gathering in the country with her husband and four children. How Ann manages to always look so radiant while pursuing a career and raising four kids is a blessed mystery.

Joel Crothers (Miles Cavanaugh) is spending the holidays away from cold and snow by flying down to Key West where he'll tune up his vocal chords for singing stints at a New Year's Day telethon for Cerebral Palsy and later in the month at Manhattan's Les Mouches discotheque. Joel, who's a favorite with the ladies wherever he appears, was garbed in a silk houndstooth jacket that had admirers "fondling the fabric." Ann Williams (Margo Huntington) was absolutely dazzling in a silver-sequined tunic and rhapsodized that she's "overjoyed at the opportunity to play a scheming character like Margo after all those years as sweetie-pie Eunice on 'Search For Tomorrow.' And there are more nasty things coming up in the story for Margo," Ann clapped with glee.

Heartthrob Tony Craig (Draper Scott) announced that he's flying down to Baltimore to meet his finacee (sorry about that, girls) Jeanne Downey, who's a reporter for WJZ—TV. The couple met on the set of "Edge" during an interview. It must have been some interview because Tony and Jeanne went to Pittsburgh (coincidentally, their mutual hometown) to meet each other's folks and they plan to wed in the spring.

The most kootchie-coo couple among the lot had to be Mary Fickett (Ruth Martin on "All My Children") and Allan Fristoe (an ex-"Edge" director who toils currently for "As the World Turns"). Mary was spotted fondling her beau's curly hair, and don't be surprised if this is the next soap opera couple to walk down the aisle.

After a lavish buffet and toast-making, Josie Emmerich, manager of daytime programming for ABC, presented Joek, Ann, Tony, Sharon and Terry with trophies as the recent winners of a "Family Feud" battle among serial families. It was appropriate, since "Edge" is one of the best "families" in soap opera land.

Tune in tomorrow to see whether they maintain that "family friendliness" in the "Edge" storyline.

SHORT TAKES:

LOOK FOR Pauline Flannigan to join "Ryan's Hope" as Annie Collery, Maeve's Irish sister, this week. But pity the show's producers who once again have decided to recast the pivotal role of Mary Ryan. Kathleen Tolan will soon depart to make way for the fourth actress to play the part in nearly as many years.

MARY STUART (Jo Vincente on "Search For Tomorrow") received a Christmas present when one of her singing-student proteges, Jeree Palmer, opened her nightclub act with "That Love Coming," a rock and bop tune that Mary wrote.

Tune in tomorrow to listen to the tunes Mary has written for Jo on "Search."

CHEERY GARNISH

Golden canned cling peach slices make a cheery garnish for winter desserts such as pumpkin pie, plum pudding and mint sherbet.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: It happens to almost everyone. A person we love — a relative or dear friend, a casual acquaintance or someone at work — commits suicide. We are shocked. Often we feel guilty, wondering if perhaps we might have done something to prevent the tragedy. Maybe if we had reached out — given just a little more time or affection, we might have saved a life.

I am going through a traumatic period because of such an incident. A man I worked with and played tennis with, and considered a close friend, took his life two weeks ago. His sudden and unexplained death made a terrific impact on me. I somehow felt personally responsible for not "saving" him.

Then someone sent me a poem in the mail that brought great comfort. It was written by Edward Arlington Robinson and points out how utterly impossible it is to know what goes on in someone else's life.

When I read that poem it was as if a ten-ton weight had been lifted from my shoulders. May I share it with you as a token of my appreciation for the countless times you have helped me feel better about myself? — J.H.E. Of Chicago

Whenever Richard Corey went downtown,
We people on the pavement looked at him.
He was a gentleman from soul to crown,
Clean favored and imperially slim.
And he was always quietly arrayed,
And he was always human when he talked;
But still he fluttered pulses when he said
"Good morning," and he glittered when he walked.

And he was rich — yes, richer than a king,
And admirably schooled in every grace;
In fine, we thought that he had everything
To make us wish that we were in his place.
So on we worked, and waited for the light,
And went without the meat, and cursed the bread,
And Richard Corey, one calm summer night,
Went home and put a bullet through his head.

Dear J.H.E.: I remember that poem from my high-school days. It made a tremendous impact on me then, and I thank you for bringing it back into my life — and into the lives of others.

(Editor's note: "Richard Corey" was misquoted in the letter to Ann Landers; the quotation above has been corrected.)

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: Gramps lives with us and we love him. He is 86 years old, stone deaf and his eyesight is failing.

Last night my boyfriend and I were practicing some disco steps. Gramps came downstairs in his pajamas. He couldn't hear the music and didn't realize we were dancing. He ordered my boyfriend to get out of the house and stay out. I was embarrassed to death.

Gramps then woke up my folks and told them some wild stories. My parents are square and refuse to listen to reason. Can you help? — Wrongly Accused

Dear Wrongly: Someone once said, "Dancing is the vertical expression of a horizontal idea." So — if your parents remember the Black Bottom, the Charleston, the Big Apple and the Twist, they shouldn't be surprised at what goes on now.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South is looking at three quick losers in the form of one spade and two clubs and a sure diamond loser later.

The queen of spades lead gives him a chance. He can cover with the king and set up dummy's jack for a club discard.

The only trouble with that play is that East will almost surely shift to clubs at trick two and the defense will get their two club tricks right away.

South had a better idea. He felt that if West were allowed to hold that first spade he might not shift to a club.

So South let West hold that first trick. Now it was up to West to make a decision. He really should have shifted to a club. Why would South let him hold the lead if South could be hurt by a diamond led through dummy's king?

Yes, West should surely have shifted to a club, but he did lead the queen of diamonds. South let it ride to his ace, drew trumps, led the king of spades, ruffed East's ace, got back to dummy with the king of diamonds, chucked one losing club and had stolen the game.

We keep getting asked the correct opening bid with this type hand.

The answer is that the correct opening bid is one spade. You can show hearts later. The main thing you want to do is to let partner know that you have at least as many spades as hearts.

SEASONED BISCUITS

1/3 cup shortening
2 cups sifted flour
1 tbsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. poultry seasoning
½ tsp. whole celery seed
½ tsp. salt
2/3 to ¾ cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder, poultry seasoning, celery seed and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture is the consistency of cornmeal. Make well in shortening mixture. Add milk and stir just until moistened. Turn onto lightly floured board. Knead 6 times. Roll or pat to ½ inch thickness. Cut with 2-inch biscuit cutter. Place on cooky sheet. Bake in a 425 degree oven until golden brown, about 12 minutes.

Professional Steam Carpet Cleaning the Bane-Clene® Way
• Safe, gentle cleaning—our warm vapor mixed with a cleaning agent is injected into the carpet at LOW PRESSURE so it doesn't wet the carpet backing. Then soil and cleaning agent are extracted at HIGH VELOCITY, letting the carpet dry faster, stay cleaner, last longer. No soapy, sticky residue left in carpet.
• No heavy equipment to bump or scratch furniture, spill water or clog drains. Our equipment is in the truck, and all the dirty water, cleaning agent and odor go out through the hose into the truck. Portable equipment also available for high-rise apartments or offices.

Quiet Day Drops Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded its first loss of 1979 in a quiet session Monday after last week's rally faded.

Several of the volatile gambling issues bucked the downtrend as hearings began on Resorts International's application for a permanent casino license in Atlantic City, N.J.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had climbed 25.72 points in the first four sessions of the new year last week, dropped back 2.59 to 828.14.

New York Stock Exchange volume slowed to 21.44 million shares from 28.89 million last Friday.

Resorts class A stock led the active list at the American Stock Exchange and climbed 1⅜ to 31¼. A lawyer for the company, now operating in Atlantic City under a temporary license, said it would present "clear and convincing" evidence that it should receive a permanent casino license from New Jersey officials.

Among NYSE-listed gambling issues, Bally Manufacturing climbed 2¼ to 46⅞; Caesars World rose 1⅝ to 28⅛; Del E. Webb ¾ to 15⅝, and Playboy Enterprises ½ to 15½.

As for the general market, analysts said some selling was to be expected after the rally since New Year's.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

USDA Suggests Weeds Have Helpful Potential

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's easy to understand how a big federal agency that built much of its reputation on research has helped farmers develop better crops and livestock for a hungry world.

But when the Agriculture Department starts talking about weeds as a potential valuable resource for medical purposes, livestock feed and even human food, it may seem a bit far-fetched.

At IBM, however, weeds are part of the giant corporation's computer business, and the possibility that some of the grubby plants farmers try to kill may be highly beneficial is a captivating idea.

According to a recent article by IBM, scientists at USDA's medicinal plant resources laboratory in Beltsville, Md., built a computer bank of information about weeds that could show them "to be friend instead of foe for man and plant life."

Information about weeds and their environment already is being used as a basis for recommending crops for some remote areas of the world.

Dr. James Duke, head of the laboratory, said the program was begun several years ago "in cooperation with the State Department in an attempt to find profitable alternative crops for countries that were big narcotics producers," the article reported.

The laboratory has about 100,000 records on environmental factors such as rainfall, soil alkalinity or acidity, and length of growing seasons that affect more than 300,000 plants throughout the world.

"When the climate or some other key environmental factors of a region are entered into the computer, the data bank can match up what has been successfully grown under the same conditions in other parts of the world," the article said.

Duke said that in some foreign regions botanists found that the only existing vegetation was weeds. Fortunately, he said, weeds are an excellent indicator of a region's climate and soil conditions.

"Weeds themselves have certain positive values for man, which we're just beginning to fully realize," Duke said. "For instance, some have been suggested as energy sources when the oil wells run dry. Just as important, when we look at all the weeds that grow in a region, we can make predictions about the crops that will grow best there."

The plant lab has worked with the National Institute of Health to obtain and record information on some 30,000 varities of plants, including weeds, for cancer research.

Thus, according to Duke, if medical scientists discover that a certain kind of weed is essential in a drug treatment of cancer, the data bank can tell quickly where in the world that kind of weed grows best.

Weed research has been carried out for many years by USDA, state experiment stations and private researchers. But much of this work was aimed at easier control of weeds so that crops planted in fields could grow more easily and yield larger harvests.

Some kinds of weeds often are the final survivors of vegetation during drought and have provided meager forage for cattle and sheep long after regular pastures have dried up.

So it is no special news to ranchers and farmers that weeds sometimes are beneficial, at least as minimum food that can mean survival of herds.

But some modern researchers are looking at weeds even more closely and with more specialty than even Duke's computerized data bank provides.

At the University of Minnesota, for example, scientists have used a panel of sheep to taste weeds to determine those most preferable to the animals.

A report last year said that of 12 weeds subjected to the taste testing, 8 came through with high ratings, including 6 that were "apparently enjoyed" by the sheep.

One objective was to see if some common weeds scattered in newly planted alfalfa might be less of a problem than many farmers suppose.

The researchers determined that "some of the weeds found in hay fields are just as good as alfalfa if they are harvested at early stages of maturity."

Further, the report said that 9 of the 12 weeds tested "contained more crude protein than does oat hay, and 10 weeds were more digestible than oat forage."

The weeds were tested also for content of so-called trace minerals found in plants such as potassium, phosphorous, iron and calcium.

"All the weeds tested contained adequate minerals to meet the requirements of ruminants," the report said. Ruminants include cattle and sheep.

Ant Pesticide Confirmed

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said experiments by the Department of Agriculture have confirmed the claim of a chemical company that it has developed a liquid fumigant effective in controlling imported fire ants.

Brown said the chemical, to be marketed under the name TriChem, will be available through commercial outlets by mid-February. He called the product an effective breakthrough in the fight to control fire ants, which infest 93 Texas counties.

"We may not have won the war, but we've won a major skirmish," Brown said. "We believe this is a major breakthrough. The U.S. Department of Agriculture and state departments of agriculture in other infested states have spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to develop and register a safe, effective alternate to canceled pesticides to fight this pest that continues to spread across the United States."

Brown said the TriChem product must be applied directly to fire ant mounds, and is most practical for small areas of infestation. He said the product was 100 percent effective in almost every mound treated in tests.

The pesticide mirex, which has been used to combat fire ants, was banned last June, and the status of ferriamicide, a substitute for mirex, is being decided in court.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

TENTATIVE AGREEMENT HAS BEEN REACHED on the major issues for a new international wheat agreement, according to information released by the Special Trade Representative's office in Washington.

The STR released the information as the White House announced that the United States would enter into international agreements on wheat, coarse grains, meat and dairy products once the general multilateral trade negotiations are concluced.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, the government agency most closely involved in negotiating a new wheat agreement, already has disclosed some details of the draft text, but the STR's description further fleshes-out the framework of the proposed agreement.

THE DRAFT TEXT INCLUDES LOWER and upper world market price levels, within which wheat prices would be expected to remain as a result of cooperative action by members.

These price points would be so high at one end and so low at the other as to insure they are never reached.

Another negotiating session on the agreement is set for Jan. 22-Feb. 9. Several significant issues are expected to be resolved, including the size of the total reserve and individual country shares, the level of price points that would trigger the release of reserve stocks, and special provisions for developing countries.

In its final form, the STR predicted, the wheat agreement might include provisions to limit the use of export subsidies. It might also provide importers assurances of supply availability during years of short supply and encourage assistance to developing countries that have reserve obligations.

IN RESPONSE TO THE U. S. PROPOSAL for limiting export subsidies under the agreement, the European Economic Community is reported to have indicated willingness to include some restraint on such subsidies at the point world prices fall to the lowest price level — the level which would trigger production adjustment actions by the major exporters.

The EEC has argued that the issue of export subsidies should be resolved within the larger framework of the multilateral trade negotiations.

The STR said importers are seeking supply assurances under the agreement for periods of world scarcity.

Exporters, on the other hand, say these assurances should be offset by importer obligations to hold reserve stocks in excess of the normal working stocks specified in the agreement. The United States has proposed that at the top price level the use of restrictions on exports to members be prohibited.

IN ADDITION, DEVELOPING COUNTRIES have proposed the creation of a fund financed by developed nations to provide interest-free loans enabling poorer importers to finance stocking obligations under the agreement.

However, STR said, developed nations have rejected the concept of such a fund, arguing that existing multilateral and bilateral aid institutions should help to finance the acquisition and maintenance of reserves.

The STR said there also is tentative consensus on a coarse grains agreement which would provide for consultation and information exchange without binding the signatories.

Congressional approval of the international wheat agreement would be necessary, but the form of that legislation still is uncertain. USDA officials met last week to discuss whether the administration should submit legislation including joint authorization to hold U. S. reserves for food aid commitment and for stocking obligations under the wheat agreement.

That decision has not yet been made.

Profit-Taking Keeps Cattle Futures Steady

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed unchanged to off 85 points led by February at the day's low Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Only nearby January was steady. Sales totalled 30,530 cars.

Aggressive profit-taking by a cash connected commission house among others followed new season's highs across the board including June at a new historic high at 65.95.

There have been 57 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was up 1 to 1 1 /2 cents at 89 1 /2 cents a pound for all weights, f.o.b. river points, which is the highest since June. Cash cattle were up $1 to $2.50 with the best top $60 per hundredweight, which is the highest since June. Omaha's top was $59.50. Slaughter was 135,000 head. The major terminals are expecting 16,100 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 47 to 85 lower with several contracts at the greatest loss. Volume was 3,393 contracts. The market reacted after an early gain of 112 and fell 95 for a time.

Profit-taking and other selling came after all contracts except August and September were lifted to new season's highs on strong cash cattle and beef.

There have been 310 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $5 with the best top $100 per hundredweight at San Antonio. About 2,300 head are expected today at the major markets.

Hog futures closed 50 lower to 12 higher on 5,796 cars. Distant April was off the most with only December higher.

Prices rose to 2 1 /2 week highs and gained 42 before slipping as much as 82 with August at both extremes. Most demand spilled over from cattle futures and traders also noted light kill Friday and firmer tone to pork products. Late selling was mostly profit-taking.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 cent at 81 to 84 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off $1 to up 50 cents with the best top $51.75 per hundredweight . Kill was 314,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to total 30,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 62 to 160 lower led by July on 7,527 contracts.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain prices rose Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade on higher cash prices and a moderate renewal of optimism about export demand for U.S. grains.

Analysts said exporter buying and higher cash soybean prices fueled bullish sentiments in the soybean pit. Reports of export demand for soybean oil led to some buying.

Speculative buying boosted wheat prices. The government said after the close Friday that 530,000 metric tons of corn and 140,000 metric tons of wheat previously reported as sold to unknown destinations went to the Soviet Union, and 250,000 tons of corn were sold to the People's Republic of China.

The government said total U.S. sales to the Soviet Union for the 1978-79 marketing year to 875,000 metric tons of wheat, 1.81 million metric tons of corn and 700,000 metric tons of soybeans.

TAES Conference Starts Wednesday At A & M

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Approximately 500 agricultural scientists from throughout the state are expected to participate in the annual Texas Agricultural Experiment Station conference Wednesday through Friday at Texas A &M University.

The Experiment Station is the state's agricultural research agency.

Registration will open today in the main lobby of the second floor level in the Rudder Tower.

Highlighting the opening session Wednesday will be a keynote address by U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower of the Thirteenth District and the annual challenge given by Dr. Neville P. Clarke, Experiment Station director. New staff members also will be introduced at the morning session.

Departmental sessions with the various department heads are set for Wednesday afternoon, and professional development sessions are set for Thursday morning. On Thursday afternoon, concurrent commodity and special interest sessions for scientists are set.

A highlight of the Friday session will be an address by Dr. Perry L. Adkisson, vice president for agricultural and renewable resources at Texas A&M University.

Another feature of the final morning's program will be a panel of outside speakers who will address issues in agriculture and how to maintain viable programs in the future. Panel members will include Dr. Bill Flatt, director of the Georgia Agricultural Experiment Stations, whose major area will be animal agriculture; Dr. Sylvan H. Wittwer, director of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Stations, whose area will be urban crops and agriculture; and Dr. J. S. Bethel, dean of the College of Forestry Resources, University of Washington, whose area will be natural resources.

Clarke will present the conference wrap-up just prior to adjournment at noon Friday.

Bergland Scuttles Short Work Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has told agency heads they cannot let employees in the metropolitan Washington area go home early just because the weather is bad.

"It has come to our attention that in some weather situations, agency heads and individual managers and supervisors have released employees early on their own authority, Bergland said in a memorandum.

"Clearly such action is a violation of the procedures established jointly by the White House, Civil Service Commission and the office of the mayor of Washington, D.C.," he said.

NOMINATION PLANNED

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Monday he will nominate K. Mathea Falco to be assistant secretary of state for international narcotics matters. Miss Falco, 33, currently is a senior adviser to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and is director for international narcotics control matters.

Swisher Livestock Show Set Sunday

TULIA (Special) — Weighing and sifting of steers, lambs and barrows will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday to open the 1979 Swisher County Livestock Show at the county show barns northeast of Tulia.

Judging of lambs will begin at 8 a.m. Monday and swine judging will be Monday afternoon. Steer judging is scheduled at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The sale of prize winning livestock will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday following a parade of champions.

Approximately 250 county 4-H and FFA members will exhibit livestock in the show.

The Swisher County Activities Association sponsors the annual show.

Bee Gees Up For Six Grammies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The Bee Gees, whose contribution to "Saturday Night Fever" went unacknowledged at last year's Oscar ceremonies, have been nominated for six categories of Grammy awards, the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences announced Monday.

The Bee Gees weren't nominated for any of the Oscar awards the film industry gives in music categories.

But the record industry group, in announcing the nominees for its 21st annual Grammy Awards, said the "Saturday Night Fever" soundtrack was nominated for top album of the year and the single "Stayin' Alive" from that album was in the record-of-the-year and song-of-the-year categories.

In addition, the Bee Gees were listed in nominations for best pop vocal performance by a group, best arrangement for voices, and best producer of the year.

Pop trumpet artist Chuck Mangione and Canadian songstress Anne Murray were each nominated in four categories. Mangione's "Feels So Good" was nominated for record of the year, his album "Children of Sanchez" was included in the best pop instrumental category and for best album package, and his "Consuelo's Love Theme" was nominated for best instrumental composition.

Miss Murray's "You Needed Me" was nominated for record of the year, song of the year and best female pop vocal performance. Another single, "Walk Right Back," was nominated for best country vocal performance by a female.

Other record-of-the-year nominees included "Baker Street" by Gerry Rafferty and "Just the Way You Are" by Billy Joel. Other album-of-the-year nominees are "Even Now" by Barry Manilow, "Grease" by John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John and others, "Running on Empty" by Jackson Browne, and "Some Girls" by the Rolling Stones.

Joel's "Just the Way You Are," "Three Times A Lady," by Lionel Richie of the Commodores, and "You Don't Bring Me Flowers" by Neil Diamond, Alan Bergman and Marilyn Bergman rounded out the song-of-the-year nominees.

Those nominated for best new artist of the year ending Sept. 30, 1978, were The Cars, Elvis Costello, Chris Rea, A Taste of Honey, and Toto.

Altogether there were 301 nominations in 52 categories. The winners will be announcd Feb. 15 with about a dozen Grammies presented during a live telecast on CBS. Nominations and awards are determined by balloting among 4,700 members of the academy nationwide.

College Regrets Role In Movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials at a Brooklyn college said Monday they "should have known better" than to be tricked into letting a film crew shoot part of a pornographic movie on their campus.

"It took us by surprise and naturally we are terribly embarrassed," said Joseph Azzinaro, a vice preisdent at Pratt Institute. Azzinaro confirmed that 13 minutes of the 90-minute movie "Debbie Does Dallas" starring Bambi Woods were shot at the campus during summer recess.

The movie shows numerous explicit sexual encounters among the characters, including a scene of group sex in a shower and sauna.

Azzinaro said the producers identified themselves as a filming company called "School Days" and "told us they wanted to make an educational film on the library — how it is operated, how the reference library works, etc."

"In retrospect, I guess we should have known better. 'School Days' does sound like a phony name," Azzinaro said.

The one day of shooting was done July 4, he said.

"We are conducting an investigation now to see what happened and who was at fault, if anyone," he said.

The opening of the film two weeks ago made Miss Woods a burlesque attraction, according to Bob Anthony, the owner and operator of the Melody Theater, located a block from where the film is being shown.

The marquee of the movie house showing "Debbie Does Dallas" lists the star as a former Cowgirl cheerleader of the Dallas Cowboys football team. But Suzanne Mitchell, director of the Dallas cheerleaders, denied that Ms. Woods ever was a member of her squad.

"I don't know what the child looks like, but she was never on our squad," she said. "If she is going by another name, I wouldn't know her."

Asked where the 18-year-old Msss Woods comes from, Anthony said, "there are three versions: California, Texas and Manhattan."

The scenes at Pratt, whose architecture is turn-of-the-century, were shot at the library, gymnasium and sauna.

"It is not uncommon for film crews to come here," Azzinaro said. "At the time the Woods film was being filmed, we had a Dr. Pepper commercial filmed on the steps of the library," Azzinaro said.

He said he saw the film last Friday.

"Techinically I'd have to admit that they made a professional movie, but the contents are not my idea of a good time," he said.

Ronald Reagan Leads In 1980 Race For GOP Presidential Nod, Dole Says

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surveying his competition for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, Bob Dole sees Ronald Reagan in the lead but possibly slowing down later in the campaign.

"Obviously, Reagan is the front-runner," said the Kansas senator, now in the third year of his presidential quest. "One theory is that Reagan will start off way ahead and not be able to sustain it."

He assessed his chances and the competition at a breakfast meeting with reporters Monday.

Dole took aim on 1980 when they finished counting the votes in 1976 and the Republican ticket of Gerald Ford and Dole lost to Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale.

Since he formed a political committee on Feb. 10, 1978, Dole has been in 43 states, "most of those numerous times."

There were eight trips to New Hampshire, the site of the first presidential primary.

Endless miles on crowded airplanes. Every day of every weekend in a different town for another speech and a bad meal, to shake a few hands and hope to find some support. And the early morning sessions, the questions between sips of coffee, the eggs-over-easy growing cold while he tries to explain why he's doing it and why he thinks he can win the nomination.

And after it all, "I couldn't say flatly I can put it together," Dole said. "We've found enough interest to take a real hard look."

"If you decide to get into it, you have to have some realistic hope you can win," he said when pressed to assess his chances. "I'm not sure being in New Hampshire eight times or anywhere else eight times matters."

The New Hampshire primary is more than a year away but on the Republican side the field already looks crowded.

Dole ticked off the names of George Bush, John Connally, Rep. Phil Crane of Illinois and Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut as likely entrants along with Reagan and himself.

Bush, Crane and Weicker have registered with the Federal Election Commission as contenders for the Republican presidential nomination, although only Crane has formally announced for president.

Former President Ford has said he won't run in New Hampshire.

Of his own chances in the first primary, Dole says only "I think we have a pretty good nucleus of support up there." He pushes the idea that Reagan must do well in the northern New England state with a reputation for conservatism.

To stop Reagan's drive for the nomination, Dole says some Republican, perhaps Bob Dole, "has to rise from the pack" in the early primaries.

The key may be the ability to put together an effective organization. So Dole and most of the other hopefuls are wooing the small group of political managers and fund-raisers with experience in running a national campaign.

The assessment of these political professionals is crucial.

"You have to look at your weaknesses, you have to be honest with yourself," he said.

Boos Trail Bumped TV Show

NEW YORK (AP) — The roar of the crowd after the CBS broadcast Sunday of the National Football Conference championship game was followed by a chorus of boos from viewers upset that the game bumped the program "Alice."

Bernice Green, speaking for the network, said the program was not shown because the game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Dallas Cowboys lasted until 7:30 p.m. CST, a half hour longer than expected.

Another network source said switchboards were lit up with calls, but he did not know exactly how many.

Many of the viewers reportedly were upset because the show was advertised throughout the evening, along with such other CBS programs as "60 Minutes," "All in the Family" and "Dallas."

The source at CBS, who asked not to be identified, said that the promotions for the Sunday night shows were packaged together, and therefore when an ad for one of the programs ran, all were included — including the promotions for "Alice."

Nixon Nominated For Grammy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon was nominated Monday for a "Grammy" award for best spoken word recording in his television interviews with David Frost.

Nixon, who will be 66 Tuesday, was up against such other nominees as Orson Welles, Henry Fonda, Dame Judith Anderson, Claire Bloom and James Mason for the award, which will be presented on Feb. 15.

The National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences announced nominees in 52 categories.

"The Nixon Interviews with David Frost" was named in the category for spoken word, documentary or drama recordings. The soundtrack album drawn from the 1977 interviews was released by Polydor Records.

Welles was nominated for the original motion picture soundtrack of "Citizen

Nixon was expected to observe his birthday Tuesday with his family at San Clemente. A secretary at his office said she knew of no celebration plans.

Chinese Mark Death Anniversary Of Chou

PEKING (AP) — A couple of hundred Chinese demonstrated for human rights outside government offices Monday while thousands streamed into Tien An Men Square to mourn the death three years ago of Premier Chou En-Lai.

The demonstrators, apparently from the provinces, blocked traffic on the avenue of Chang An as they moved their protest from the square to nearby Cgung Nan Hai, the entrance to government offices.

They carried a banner saying "struggle against hunger, oppression and for human rights" and handed a petition to the armed guard on duty outside the ornate gate. The contents of the petition could not be learned.

The Chou En-lai mourners, estimated at 15,000, marched into the vast square from early morning until nightfall. Many were in groups bearing banners and wreaths which were deposited at the foot of the monument to martyrs, Chou's symbolic resting place.

After Chou died of cancer on Jan. 8, 1976, his body was cremated and the ashes scattered over China. There is a movement to erect a permanent memorial to him.

China's official Hsinhua news agency said Monday's scene "of warmth and calm confidence" contrasted sharply with mourning ceremonies in April 1976, when rioting broke out over the removal of wreaths for Chou.

Chinese television presented a color documentary on the 1976 funeral ceremonies for Chou which, it is said, the party's radicals suppressed because it showed so many scenes of grief.

The radicals then in power, known as the "Gang of Four," blamed Chou's protege, Teng Hsiao-ping, for the disturbances. Teng was branded a "capitalist-roader" and, for the second time, was purged.

But now the 74-year-old Teng is the powerful vice premier, the guiding force behind China's all-out modernization effort and its related trade and technology exchanges with the West, a program Chou had sought.

The "gang," lead by Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow Chiang Ching, was purged in October 1976 on charges of trying to cause chaos and then seize power.

Hsinhua said Po I-po, a vice premier before the 1966-69 cultural revolution, wrote in several Chinese newspapers that Chou protected him from persecution by the "gang" and the late Defense Minister Lin Piao, an alleged plotter against Mao.

In 1966, he said, he was injured in a fall and Chou instructed that he be given six months leave.

"I knew that he was protecting me from the mounting persecution," Po wrote, adding that Chou also tried to protect other senior Communist Party and government officials from persecution.

Hsinhua said Po was one of 61 senior officials persecuted "on the fabricated charge that they ... had turned traitor while serving in Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) prisons during the anti-Japanese war." It said Po and many others recently were rehabilitated.

Peking Loosens Grip On Expression; 'Democracy Wall' Posters Flourish

Analysis

By JOHN RODERICK

PEKING (AP) — Chinese citizens are flocking to Peking's "democracy wall" on busy Chang An Avenue to read the new wave of wall posters, a yeasty mix decrying scandal and commenting on ideology, politics, love, sex and trivia.

After a decade of suppression by Communist Party radicals, the city's intellectuals, students, white collar workers and laborers apparently are free to say what they think.

The resulting 200-yard-long "min chu chiang," a display of written, mimeographed and printed posters and handbills on a bus depot wall, inspires a library-like silence until late at night each day.

Oblivious to the cold and the wind-whipped sands of the North China Plain, readers pore over the calls for freedom, democracy, discipline, unity, political realism — important themes in today's China.

The largely young and middle-aged crowd includes soldiers, sailors and airmen in uniform, students leaning on bicycles, peasants with grizzled faces, a handful of girls wearing colored wool bandanas.

There is no conversation.

Some demand resignation or promotion of politicians, military men and government leaders. Other less solemn themes extol the study of English and the joys of love and sex.

In one popular "ta tze pao," or big character newspaper, a father poignantly pleads for justice for his son, a factory worker, who he says was beaten to death by security police because he went on strike.

The readers huddle close to the wall to look at photographs of the naked boy after the alleged beating. There are welts on his body and there is blood on his face.

Other popular posters question the "infallibility" of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The apparent free flow of ideas on this wall and others like it in Peking and China's other big cities, has been compared to the conversations inspired by the Roman Forum, London's Hyde Park and New York's Washington Square Park.

The public airing of grievances is a Chinese tradition dating back more than 1,000 years to the days when citizens told their rulers of their woes.

The Chinese constitution insures the right to put up posters, and they have come and gone over the years.

Some Peking residents say they are unafraid of official reaction to the posters because this is an era of free speech. But others point out that when the era ends, poster devotees may become victims.

Woes Encountered By New Iran Regime

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Bloody demonstrations demanding abdication of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi raged across Iran Monday and the new civilian government ran into problems with military and political leaders.

Newspapers said 50-60 persons were killed in clashes with troops in 10 cities and protests were reported in most Iranian cities.

Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar delayed until Thursday plans to present his Cabinet to Parliament. A key general was reported to have backed out of the Cabinet and government employees were said to have tried to block Bakhtiar ministers from their offices.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said U.S. Air Force Gen. Robert Huyser, who is visiting Iran, has been recommending the military support Bakhtiar. There was concern in the U.S. capital about the ability of the new government to end the crisis.

Sources in Tehran said the shah would await the vote of confidence from the lower house and the Senate, which meets on the matter Saturday, before possibly departing on a trip abroad.

Monday was the second straight "national day of mourning" called by religious leader Ayatullah Khomaini from his Paris exile to commemoratethe deaths of more than 1,500 persons in anti-shah protests this year.

The government belatedly endorsed the call. Most commerce was at a standstill and oil production lagged behind domestic needs.

The newspaper death reports, which were not confirmed, quoted hospital and local officials and witnesses in Tehran, Yazd, Tabriz, Shiraz, Shah Rey, Sari, Khorramabad, Babon, Shahsavar and Kangavar.

Small groups of protestors roamed through downtown Tehran setting fires, and officials said three people were killed when troops fired on a mob setting fire to a government-owned department store.

An estimated 15,000-20,000 people demonstrated at Tehran's main cemetery while troops were posted a mile away. Protestors shook their fists at a military helicopter and chanted "down with the shah."

The demonstrators added "Bakhtiar strike"" and other slogans against the 62-year-old lawyer to their collection of chants.

Over 100,000 people — about a third of them women — marched peacefully through the streets of the northeastern city of Mashhad, scene of some of the bloodiest clashes in recent weeks, a witness said.

In Tabriz, northwest of Tehran, mobs set over 100 fires, burning most of the city's cinemas, as well as banks and shops.

Ayatullah Shariatmadari, the senior Shiite Moslem leader residing in Iran, led a mass march through the streets of Qom, about 100 miles south of Tehran, but there were no reports of trouble.

Sources have said the shah will appoint a regency council to exercise power in his absence. Bakhtiar, an expected member of the council, was the No. 2 man in the opposition National Front until he was repudiated for accepting the prime minister's post.

Council Offer Rejected

A spokesman for National Front leader Karim Sanjaby said he had turned down an offer to chair the council.

The state radio said Bakhtiar would present his cabinet to the Majlis, or lower house, for a vote of confidence Thursday.

Sources said Gen. Fereidum Jam, the man Bakhtiar chose to supervise Iran's 430,000-man military establishment, rejected the appointment and met with Bakhtiar Thursday. He reportedly disagreed with plans to restructure the military, backbone of the shah's power.

Cooperation of the military is considered crucial to the new government. Bakhtiar said in a television interview that Iran would become another Chile if the military seized power.

Sources said civil servants at four ministries tried to keep Bakhtiar's newly appointed ministers out of their offices, as Khomaini had asked. The ministers slipped in by emergency exits.

Khomaini, Iran's most influential religious leader, says the shah's cooperation with the West has eroded traditional Moslem values in the country. Political opponents of the shah oppose his authoritarian rule.

Untrue Reports Claimed

The newspaper Kayhan printed what it said was a letter from Chief of Staff Gen. Abass Gharabaghi to Bakhtiar protesting "untrue and unrealistic" news stories since Bakhtiar lifted censorship this weekend.

The radio reported Gen. Gholam-Ali Oveisi, former military governor of Tehran, resigned and went abroad, probably to the United States, and that Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari, who resigned as military prime minister, left for the United States for heart surgery.

Oil production was not reported to have increased beyond the 260,000 barrel level achieved Sunday. The country needs 900,000 barrels daily for its own needs, and it used to export 5.5 million barrels daily.

SEARCH FOR CLUES—Scientists from the United States and Mexico examine some of the 46 sperm whales that beached themselves last week and died near the town of Mulege, Baja California. The phenomenon is not unique, as each year whales and porpoises are found dead and dying on beaches around the world. But the number involved, 56 including both male and female, is a circumstance the scientists call "confusing." (AP Laserphoto)

Nuclear Defense Tagged 'Mindless' In Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former arms negotiator Paul Warnke said Monday there is no civil defense system that can protect either the United States or the Soviet Union from the devastation of nuclear war.

He said increased Soviet civil defense spending is largely "busy work" and that any attempt by the United States to match or surpass Soviet efforts would be "mindless."

Warnke also said the development of effective defenses by either side could upset the strategic balance "by making impossible the kind of retaliatory nuclear strike that would inflict unacceptable damage."

"It is only because of the crazy logic of nuclear weapons that limitations on defense can be regarded as consistent with national security interests," Warnke said in testimony to the Senate Banking Committee.

One Effective Method

The only effective means of protecting civilian populations against nuclear war is by making such war unthinkable, Warnke said, adding that, "The real danger that civil defense poses to strategic stability comes from the indulgence in the illusion that effective civil defense is possible."

Warnke said a modest increase in civil defense efforts might be justified as a means of saving more lives and increasing the chances government would survive to alleviate chaos.

But he said these reasons "should not be distorted into a rationalization for a major expansion of civil defense as a necessary component in the overall strategic balance."

No Catastrophe Safeguard

Meanwhile, a government study released Monday indicated that while a civil defense program might save millions of lives in the short term, it would not prevent catastrophe.

The study by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, which Warnke once headed, said Soviet civil defense efforts might reduce their immediate deaths from a nuclear attack from 94 million to 23 million.

But surviving Soviets would find their key industries destroyed, their cities leveled, little or no food and water and an atmosphere that provided no protection from the burning rays of the sun.

The United States would suffer similarly catastrophic losses, whether or not it had a major civil defense program, the study said.

Warnke told the banking committee that a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviets would make nuclear war less likely.

But he added that he believes the United States will need to increase military spending by $5 billion to $6 billion a year if a SALT II treaty is not obtained.

Although Warnke's position was endorsed by the arms control agency, other witnesses said the United States has a moral and legal obligation to sharply increase its civil defense commitment.

Several witnesses cited U.S. intelligence estimates that the Soviet Union is spending about $500 million a year on its civil defense program. The current U.S. civil defense expenditure is $97 million a year, and the shelter system begun in the early 1960s now is largely obsolete.

Samuel P. Huntington, director for the Center for International Affairs at Harvard University, said a "lifeboat" evacuation plan is needed "in simple prudence" and should also include include provisions to ensure the protection of national leadership and basic industry.

Union Delays Major Strike At Refineries

expected a visit from some of them on Tuesday. In the meantime, he said, there would be no strike.

Even though workers were told by the union to report to work Monday, a Gulf Oil refinery in Port Arthur, Texas, with about 3,000 union workers, was disrupted by oil workers pickets. Oil workers also were honoring a picket line set up by other unions at an ARCO plant in Port Arthur. The ARCO plant has 469 union workers.

Grospiron said that the strike in Port Arthur was unauthorized but was neither illegal nor a wildcat strike since the contract had expired.

The Amoco proposal is a two-year offer reportedly calling for a 73 cents-per-hour increase in the first year and a wage reopener clause the second year. Amoco is a company trademark of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

With oil workers currently averaging $8.82 an hour, the 73-cent hike amounts to about an 8.3 percent increase. Carter's voluntary wage-fringe benefit guidelines allow for a 7 percent increase over the life of a contract.

However, if the union agreed to hold its wage increase in the second year to less than 6 percent, it would bring the contract into compliance with the guidelines.

The union traditionally has negotiated a "model" contract with one of the major oil companies, then sought similar terms with other companies. More than 400 contracts with 100 different companies are to be negotiated.

Grospiron said the possibility of a nationwide walkout remained "very real," and said the bargaining policy committee on Monday rejected all oil company offers that proposed a two-year agreement and percentage increases in each year of the agreement.

He identified the rejected offers as coming from Exxon, Union, Texaco, Sohio, Mobil, Gulf, Conoco, Chevron, Ashland, Charter, Quaker State, Jefferson Chemical, Tosaco, Cenex, Total Leonard, Delta, Getty, BP, and ARCO.

Fired Coach Mulls Action By Schools

That's why I know it was discrimination."

The animosity was a combination of racial prejudice and conflict over coaching styles, Conger claimed.

He said that in 1974, his Struggs basketball team ran up the score against a Mackenzie Junior High team, and that he refused to apologize to school administrators or Mackenzie for such a shellacking.

Conger said the charges against him were "always my word against somebody else's." Most of the time, that somebody else was David Irons, the superintendent's son who served as assistant eighth-grade coach, Conger said.

"Who is going to believe me versus the superintendent's son?" Conger asked.

He said there is a "double standard" in handling Lubbock school personnel matters. Young Irons, for instance, "instructed 35 kids to kick another kid" who had dropped a pass during football practice, but was never subject to disciplinary action, Conger said.

Conger said David Irons may have been out to get him because young Irons "would have gotten the eighth-grade coaching job if they had not closed Struggs."

Conger said he tried to cooperate with school officials before he was fired. "There wasn't any way left for me to improve. Anything he (the head coach) told me to do, I did it."

Viet Reds Hail Blitz Success

Highway 19: The names of the opening battlefields of the last war were heard again at the start of the Vietnamese campaign, except this time the arrows on the military maps shot out from these border areas toward the heartland.

The Vietnamese and Cambodian rebels cut the Mekong River as well as most of Phnom Penh's highways in short order — probably leaving only a northwestern route of escape, which the central government's leaders may have taken.

Vietnam Denies Invasion

Vietnam has denied staging the invasion, but in the Indochina war in which the United States was involved, Hanoi denied until after its victory that its troops had been in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia for 10 years.

The invasion, according to Indochina experts here, bore the personal stamp of Gen. Van Tien Dung, Hanoi's armed forces chief of staff and architect of the final victorious offensive against South Vietnam in 1975. The experts say aging Defense Minister Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, hero of the war against the French colonialists in the 1950s, may have acted in more of a consultative role.

Analysts who followed the campaign, which Cambodia said began Dec. 25, noted the Vietnamese had displayed their ability to learn from past mistakes. Vietnam, with the world's sixth largest military force, launched a major but abortive invasion of Cambodia a year ago. Apparently overconfident, the Vietnamese overextended their supply lines and suffered costly attacks to their flanks.

But a year of large-scale recruiting, intensive training and the injection of northerners into the shakier southern Vietnamese units revealed again the kind of military muscle that non-communist Southeast Asians openly fear.

From available intelligence and judging from the actual battle reports of both sides, coordination between the invading ground troops and their air and artillery support was smooth and tank columns made good use of the major highways.

The initial objective appears to have been drawing as many Cambodian units as possible into the fighting. The logistics of moving and resupplying 100,000 troops branched out along a 750-mile front appears to have been solved.

While the Cambodian rebels took a back seat to regular Vietnamese units, the insurgent claims that their victory was helped along by popular uprisings and defections from government ranks cannot be dismissed. Claims of "spontaneous uprisings" in revolutionary warfare often equate to well-planned maneuvers by regular forces.

Add Expenditures Due To Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advertising expenditures are expected to reach $47.2 billion in 1979, 10 percent over estimated 1978 expenditures, the Commerce Department says.

The increase will reflect increases in addvertising rates, postage and costs of paper rather than increased use of media, the department said.

Cambodians Say 'People's War' Shaping

and that as many as 14 Vietnamese divisions were involved.

The communist forces who captured Phnom Penh in April 17, 1975, after a five-year war with the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government, forced most the capital's 2 million residents into rural farming communes in a bid to build a self-sufficient agricultural economy. One million or more Cambodians were reported executed in the drive.

Hostilities between Vietnam and Cambodia, allies in the Indochina War, began shortly after the Communist victories in 1975 and escalated a year ago.

Woman Killed, Girl Critically Hurt In Wreck

Margarita Castillo, 15, of Muleshoe remained in critical condition in Lubbock's Methodist Hospital Monday with head injuries she received Sunday night in a traffic accident south of Morton.

Her mother, Catarina Castillo Mendoza, 34, was killed in the mishap when she and other members of her family were struck by a vehicle while attempting to get help after their pickup overturned.

The dead woman's husband, Amandor Mendoza, 44, was treated at Cochran Memorial Hospital in Morton and released.

The couple's other two children, Amandor Jr., 6, and Olga, 15, were in stable condition Monday at West Plains Hospital in Muleshoe.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said the Mendozas' pickup overturned on ice-covered Texas 214 about 20 miles south of Morton at 7:30 p.m.

The family was in the roadway attempting to flag down a car driven by George Vasquez, 23, of Plains. Vasquez's vehicle skidded and hit the victims, the spokesman said.

Vasquez was treated at Cochran Memorial Hospital and released.

Services for Mrs. Mendoza are pending with Singleton-Ellis Funeral Home in Muleshoe.

Police Seeking Three Men For Alleged Rape

Police on Monday continued to search for three Mexican-American men who allegedly raped a Lubbock woman repeatedly at knifepoint early Monday.

The 25-year-old woman told police one of the three suspects grabbed her while she was attempting to enter a cab in front of a discotheque about 1:30 a.m.

The knife-wielding man allegedly told the woman if she did not do what she was told he would kill her. Reports show the victim was placed in a 1962-63 blue Chevrolet station wagon containing the other two suspects and driven north of the city to a dirt road where each man raped the woman twice.

The woman said after the sexual assaults, she was driven to a convenience store at Clovis Road and Avenue U and let out.

The armed man, who reportedly never spoke any English, was described as having shoulder-length, wavy hair. Another of the suspects was said to have a neatly cut afro.

The victim told police her attackers had pestered her earlier in the night at the club.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your reasoning processes are an opportunity now for much logical and helpful standpoints by which you can add to your present success and extend your influence into more worldly and public channels.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Have little talks with associates and improve mutual business dealings. Give compliments where deserved and gain goodwill.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Put new ideas to work and you can soon command a far greater abundance. Some property matter that is puzzling to you should be discussed with an expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your personal living more compact and don't leave loose ends dangling. Be with a good friend during spare time and feel happier.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your most important goals and know how to better achieve them. Have conversations with partners for best results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cultivate good friends you want to see a good deal of in the future. Accept invitations that are worthwhile and pleasurable. Be careful in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to please higher-ups more and you gain a good deal now. Get your career working more efficiently during the day and handle credit matters in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a new interest now that could work very much to your benefit. Planning that trip for the near future is wise now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to handle responsibilities in the future more speedily and profitably. Don't become so busy that you neglect loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact associates early with whom you have had a difference of opinion and come to a better understanding. Do outside work that improves your images.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a more up-to-date system by which to handle your obligations more successfully. Get duties better organized with those of co-workers, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have good creative ideas and should do something about them. Much progress can be made today. Evening is fine for entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you plan them early, you can make the conditions at home much better. Study a new interest and gather all the information you can about it.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to study conditions and projects and know how to improve them considerably. Provide as fine an education as you can, since the inventiveness here is remarkable and much success is possible during the lifetime.

New County Agent Named

By BOB WILLIAMS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

County commissioners Monday unanimously approved the appointment of Janice Choate as Lubbock's new county home economics agent. Mrs. Choate will fill the position vacated by Mildred Patterson, who Monday officially announced her retirement effective Jan. 31.

Mrs. Patterson has held the position for 16 years and has worked for the extension service office for a total of 25 years.

Mrs. Choate's appointment will become effective Feb. 1. She joined the Lubbock County extension staff as a home economics agent last October. According to Catherine B. Crawford, district extension agent for home economics, she is "well prepared academically for the position and by far the most qualified for the job."

Mrs. Choate, 31, has worked as county extension agent in Garza and Mitchell counties, co-directing adult and 4-H programs.

She graduated from Kermit High School, and is a 1970 graduate of Texas Tech University, where she received her bachelor and master's degrees in home economics.

Her husband, Michael, is a Lubbock accountant. They have one daughter.

Mrs. Patterson said she plans to travel and devote time to church and volunteer work in the Lubbock area. She said helping people develop their leadership abilities in meeting community needs has been the most rewarding part of her 25 years of extension service work.

She said that an important change in the extension family living educational program has been the shift of the participants' interest in personal skills to group skills.

Born in Grand Saline, Mrs. Patterson graduated from Tahoka High School and received a bachelor degree in home economics from North Texas State University in 1946.

She began her extension career in 1953 as county home demonstration agent in Terry County. Three years later she transferred to Hale County where she worked until moving to Lubbock County in 1962.

Mrs. Patterson is a member of the American Home Economics Association, the Texas Home Economics Association and the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists. She also is a member of Highland Baptist Church, where she teaches an adult church school class.

Mrs. Crawford said, "She'll continue to make an important contribution to her church and her community."

In other action, county commissioners made 24 appointments to the Lubbock County Historical Commission, and reappointed several members to various city service groups.

Those appointed to the historical commission for a two-year term include: Bob Nash, Ford Mitchell, Mrs. Carl Gelin, James Baker, Russell Bean, Mrs. W.B. Blankenship, Alton Brazell, Dr. James Kitchen, Tanner Laine, Mrs. R.L. Matthews, Judge Rodrick Shaw, Dr. Ernest Wallace, Mrs. David Vigness, Dr. Alwyn Barr, Joe Murfee III, Claude Denham, Mabry Brock, Dick Laird, Mrs. Madison Sowder, Bill Ball, Jake Scharnberg, Mrs. John Burton, Bill Leftwich and Mrs. T.C. Martin.

Reappointed to three-year terms, beginning Jan. 1, by the commissioners were: Dale Jones, Mrs. Shamus Mehaffie and Weldon Boyd to the Lubbock County General Assistance Agency; Claude Harland, Tom Purdom, Sister Regina Foppe and Mrs. Carroll Cobb to the Lubbock County Childrens' Protective Services Board, and James Baker was appointed to fill the term expiring Dec. 31, 1980, of Bill Parker who resigned; Mrs. Glenn Payne and Mrs. Madison Sowder to the Lubbock City-County Library Board.

Reappointed for two-year terms beginning Jan. 14, were Jack F. Strong, Place 5, and John Flygare, Place 3, on the Lubbock County Hospital District Board of Managers.

Thomas E. Wizoreck, director of Lubbock-Crosby County Adult Probation Department, explained to the commissioners his need for extra space on the second floor of the County Office Building. The commissioners approved his space-reorganization plan and authorized the purchasing agent to buy any additional equipment needed and seek telephone company authorization for any extensions in the office reorganization.

Commissioners will continue Tuesday afternoon to interview applicants for an additional building maintenance supervisor for the County Courthouse. Two applicants were interviewed during Monday's meeting.

Bob Cash, a representative of Legi/Slate computer time sharing systems of Dallas, explained to the commissioners during a brief demonstration the advantage of using a telephone-computer service hookup in Austin. Cash told members that the tracking computer system is an ideal method for the city to keep track of the daily events of the legislature. Judge Shaw pointed out that Cash was at the meeting only as a courtesy.

Bus Crash Victims Hospitalized

ARTESIA, N.M. (AP) — Eight Texans remained hospitalized Monday after their charter bus overturned on an icy road en route to Houston after a weekend ski outing in Ruidoso.

State police said the bus, owned by Luxury Coaches Inc. of Houston went out of control and came to rest on its side Sunday night on U.S. 285 about 17 miles south of Artesia.

The driver was identified as William E. Denkins of Houston.

A spokesman for Artesia General Hospital said 24 of the 27 passengers were admitted to the hospital with 16 of them treated and released.

The rest were held for observation.

Officials identified those still hospitalized as Albert W. Smith, Sally Irwin, Eddy Irwin, Michael Looney, Paul Denkins, Farye Smith and William Cogliano, all of Houston, and Patty Bick, of Pearland. Ages were unavailable.

Tech Rolls Over TCU 99-75

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

FORT WORTH — For a while, Gerald Myers was concerned about his Raiders having a letdown after that emtional upset win over Texas last Saturday. And, there were those dunk shots his troops kept missing.

Every time the Raiders would miss one of those high-percentage shots, Myers would squirm on the bench. But, as they would miss, they would follow with a play to overcome it.

And the Raiders here Monday night had more scores than misses in rolling to a 99-75 triumph over TCU.

The win shoved Tech's Southwest Conference record to 2-0 and its season mark to 10-2. The loss was TCU's second in conference.

And, according to TCU coach Tim Somerville, "Tech has to be one of the favorites to win the conference championship now.

"Why are they better than last year? Better players. They have some young guys, but the're not a young, inexperienced group. Their guys have some experience, even though some of them are young."

"I was worried about the game, after that win over Texas. There had to be a letdown. And our fouls kept them going in the first half. Finally, our zone defense there in the second half was better than our man-to-man defense, and it created some rebounds and chances to get us running."

The Raiders ran, but they also scored their second highest total of the season. The subs furnished three-fourths of the double-digit scoring punch, as Ben Hill and David Little scored 17 each, and Joe Baxter, from nearby Richardson Pearce getting 16 more.

The only starter in double figures was Ralph Brewster with 16 points.

It was a hot-shooting effort for the Raiders, who hit 57 percent in the first half, and 52 percent for the game.

"Hill and (starter) Ralph McPherson both played well, so did Brewster," said Tech coach Myers. "But, TCU played well. We had a hard time covering them early."

Tech jumped away to a 31-17 lead, but free shots allowed the Frogs to climb back in it, cutting the gap to 31-22.

With the score standing 36-31 and meager crowd jumping to the aid of the Frogs, the two teams went on a shooting exhibition, each side hitting for a consecutive streak of seven shots.

But, finally, TCU missed, and Tech connected twice in a row for a 46-37 halftime lead.

Then, starting the second half, it was a repeat of the Texas game when the Raiders came out hot.

In the first 8 minutes of the last half, Tech outscored the hosts 24-10, and it was all over.

It was Little who figured in that surge, as the freshman from Abilene hit 13 of the points.

After TCU got the last half's first bucket, Brewster scored, then got the rebound off the next TCU shot. Little scored off of it for Tech, and then Kent Williams fed Brewster wheeling toward the goal for a layup and a 52-39 lead with 17:42 left.

Tech was in the zone defense and getting the rebounds it needed to run. After a pair of free shots by freshman forward Mark Nickens. Little connected, answered by a bucket by another freshman, Terry Tibbs. But McPherson followed with a tipin, and Little scored on a follow whot.

Before TCU could get a shot away, Tech stole the ball, and guard Geoff Huston fed Little for a layup. He was fouled, hit the free shot, and Tech was up 61-43 with 14:19 to play.

Little hit two more shots for Tech. Brewster made a layup on a four-on-one break, and Tommy Parks, who played high school ball here at nearby Poly, connected on a 3-pointer following a steal for the 70-47 advantage with 11:39 remaining.

"Those dunks?" commented Myers. "Freshman, (Little and Jeff Taylor), freshmen mistakes."

Forward Jon Manbury hit 24 points to pace the Frogs, and Nickens followed with 18. Tech came up with 12 steals, two each by McPherson, Williams, Huston, and Little. Huston also had four assists, the team 21.

The slam dunk missed by Little was the only shot all night where he didn't connect as he went eight of nine from the field, one of one from the line.

Turning Back The Clock

FORT WORTH — It wasn't too long ago that Abe Martin was hanging around the TCU athletic department. Just about 50 years back. Now, that's not so far back; why then, they only had one war with a number and the only Roosevelt of note was Teddy.

But about 1927, a kid from Jacksboro, named Abe Martin, showed up at the TCU campus, wanted to play football and all those other games in which colleges competed. There haven't been too many days since then that Martin's name hasn't been associated with the school or the capitalized words, Horned Frogs.

Martin, these days, is officially listed as retired, but, the doors are open to him; he comes to the campus to visit old friends, to the gym for exercise.

It's been cold—man, frigid is better—around Fort Worth, but for Martin, it's not so bad. "This place," says Martin, sweeping his arm in a circle, as he gazes around TCU's Daniel Meyer Coliseum, "you walk all around (the concourse), and it's about a mile and a half. I like to come over here (he lives nearby) and get some exercise, here and out there (pointing to the adjacent stadium where he so many times paced the sidelines, and on the winning side of the field).

"Shoot, these days, it's not so different. I got to watching (TV) the other day and Bill Yeoman is not the first guy who ever got in that situation."

And the clock turned backwards...drifting over the years...to when the turf was grass, when there wasn't anything else to coat a football field...to when the helmets were just coming out of the leather age...to when a second assistant coach was a luxury, when quarterbacks played safety on defense and the linebacker was usually the center or fullback.

"You know I had turned over from the Houston game to watch Alabama," Martin said Monday, stopping his stroll to watch a few basketbils go toward goal, "and I turned back just as Houston punted.

"Then, they called that (5-yard) penalty. I knew when they stepped it off (and left Houston short of a first down by a yard, deep in its own territory) that they were going for it.

"You could see it the way that little Danny Davis was talking to the coach on the sidelines. And I know how Bill felt."

• • •

TIME TURNED BACK. "We were down at A&M, back in '62, and we were ahead by a couple of touchdowns. But, we got in the same position, and they scored and we couldn't stop them. We were down about the 20 and came up fourth and about 2. I told Allie White (Martin's assistant), 'If we go for it and make it, we win.' But Allie says, 'Yeah, and if we don't make it we get beat.

Then Martin laughed.

"Bill Yeoman called time (in the Cotton Bowl a week ago), but it was just Allie and me talking on the sidelines; we hadn't called time. We could send in a punter (limited substitutions, then), but when our quarterback Sonny Gibbs didn't see anyone come in, he knew what we wanted to do. So we gave him the signal, sneak it.

"I walked down there, to the 20, and stood right on the line. A&M knew what we were going to do so they pinched in tight. We ran it and it looked like we didn't gain an inch.

"But Allie says, "He made it about that much (a couple of inches between his thumb and forefinger). Sure enough, we made it about that far. We went on and won 20-14.

"So I know exactly how Yeoman feels."

• • •

BUT, YOU KNOW all this about football, it's not all so new. Oh, maybe the names or terminalogy has changed, but outside of that...."Well, we didn't have the triple option, but that's kinda like the old belly series, where you faked to the fullback and either gave it to him or kept it.

"I remember one time we played Rice, and we were trying to do something a little different.

"Dutch (Meyer, the legendary TCU coach before Martin) and I put in this little outside trap play. Everybody trapped with the pulling guard, but we tried to trap from the outside.

"Well, after the game, Jess was talking and he said, 'Abe, this kid came out and told me that I had taught him to turn inside, but when he did that, they were hitting from the back side. He wanted to know what to do. "I didn't know what to tell him, so I just said, 'Son you're just going to have to look both ways.'

"Back then, we didn't have any triple option, but we keyed on the end when we rolled out.

"I ran into Jess one time at a coaching clinic, and he got to talking about that situation. He said this defensive end came to him during a game and asked, 'Coach, what am I supposed to do? When I go for the quarterback, he laterals, when I leave him alone and go for the halfback, he cuts back.'

"Jess said he didn't know what to tell him, so he just said, 'I just wished him well.'

"See, we didn't know all there was to it even then."

Coach of the Year — Ed Cook, Slaton. Player of the Year — Ricky Hobbs, Idalou

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Nobody would have blamed Slaton coach Ed Cook if he had turned around and walked (make that run) away after the first day of summer practice this August.

After all, he had only one starter back from the previous year's squad and the District 5-AA race looked to be even tougher than before with Tahoka returning a crew of stars and Class AAA Seminole dropping down a classification.

But he stuck it out and it's a good thing. His Tigers made the regional championship game in spite of its lack of experience.

A comeback like that can be attributed almost entirely to one thing —coaching. And because of that Cook is the 1978 Avalanche-Journal South Plains coach of the year.

It's not incidental that that one returning starter was Ricky Davis, the South Plains player of the year.

"Golly, starting out with 21 new players, well, you can imagine what I thought," Cook said. "I didn't really think our youngsters would come around like they did. It's a credit to them that they did."

Slaton opened the year by winning two of its three pre-district games. But the disbelievers nodded knowingly when the Tigers dropped their first district game 19-6 to unheralded Frenship.

They shouldn't have. Frenship went on to also beat Tahoka and gain a share of a four-way tie for the district crown. A tie that sent Slaton to the playoffs by virtue of a card draw.

"I thought really our biggest ball game was with Frenship," Cook said. "When we lost that one the kids' attitude really changed.

"When we realized we could be out of it things perked up," he said. After that Slaton won five straight until losing 7-3 to Tahoka in the last game of the regular season.

Davis played both quarterback and safety for the Tigers and also handled the punting chores but was picked to the team as a defensive back.

He was an honorable mention at quarterback where he scored 15 touchdowns, rushed for 1,050 yards and passed for another 365 yards. That rushing total, by the way, averages out to 7.34 yards each of the 143 times he ran.

Defensively, he made 59 unassisted tackles from his safety spot and intercepted five passes.

Tabbed in the offensive backfield were Muleshoe's Mike Northcutt at quarterback and Jeep Shanks and runningback. They were two of the six Mules selected to the first team on either offense or defense.

They were joined by Tahoka runningback Jerry Hatchett and Idalou's powerful Ricky Hobbs. Auspiciously absent was Hatchett's teammate Clifford Bailey, South Plains player of the year last year as a junior.

Bailey gained only 937 yards this season, playing only seven games. But that was enough to raise his career total of 4,485 over three years, an average of 160 yards a game.

Hatchett more than ably picked up the slack for his injured mate, gaining 1,400 yards on 180 carries and scoring seven times. He was also picked a first-team defensive back (one of four two-way honorees) for picking off 10 passes and making 80 tackles, 25 of them unassisted.

Hobbs, a stocky fullback who led Idalou to the District 4-AA championship, gained 1,001 yards on 212 carries, scoring nine times.

Northcutt, one of only four underclassmen picked to the team, was a versatile quarterback for Muleshoe, gaining 1,253 yards total offense. He picked up the majority (779) on the ground but also threw for 474 yards and seven touchdowns. He ran for nine.

Put him in the same backfield as Shanks and you've got some offensive firepower. Shanks gained 1,123 yards on the ground and scored 11 times.

At end for Muleshoe was Dickey Sudduth. In addition to being a fine blocker, he caught 10 of Northcutt's 34 completed passes for 152 yards and scored five of the Mules' seven aerial touchdowns.

Besides Hatchett, the three two-way starters are all on the line. Denver City placed Kenneth Harvey, Slaton had Billy Jack Haire and Littlefield Richard Soria.

Frisco Cleans House

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Thomas, credited with building National Football League powerhouses in Minnesota, Miami and Baltimore, was fired Monday as General Manager of the San Francisco 49ers after their worst season ever.

Also fired by owner Eddie J. DeBartolo Jr. was head coach Fred O'Conner and his entire coaching staff.

DeBartolo said in a release that Thomas and O'Connor were dismissed because "I have not been satisfied with our total operation."

The 49ers posted a 2-14 record during the past National Football League season. It was the league's worst performance.

"This...franchise has not progressed properly and I feel we must make changes to become more competitive," DeBartolo said.

Thomas and O'Connor, who Thomas promoted from offensive coordinator in mideason, were not immediately available for comvent.

DeBartolo said an announcement on a new general manager and coach would be made soon. The new coach will be the fourth for the 49ers in three years under Thomas and the fifth in four years.

The long-rumored firings came after a dismal season that included some loud booing by 49er fans.

"Certainly, I am distressed that we have been losing games — everyone associated with the organization shares that feeling and I am sure that our fans do, too," DeBartolo said.

"What concerns me every bit as much as our record is the fact that our image and stature in the community has suffered," he added.

Rice Signs New Pact With Boston

BOSTON (AP) — American League MosT Valuable Player Jim Rice agreed to a multimillion-dollar, seven-year contract with the Boston Red Sox Monday, binding him to the team through the 1985 season, and making him one of the richest players in baseball.

"I guess every player wants to be the richest," said the 25-year-old outfielder at a Fenway Park news conference.

He declined, however, as did his agent, Tony Pennacchia, and Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan, to divulge the financial terms.

The slugger had been under contract to the Red Sox through 1980 at about $125,000 a year. Rice declined to compare his new contract to the $3.2 million pact signed by free agent Pete Rose with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"You can't worry about Rose," Rice said, adding, "I didn't want to be a free agent. Free agency hurts a lot of guys. The first time you do something wrong, the fans are on you."

The Anderson, S.C., native was called the most productive in the major leagues over the past three seasons by Pennacchia. He led the major leagues with 46 home runs and 139 RBI last year. In four full seasons, plus the tailend of a fifth, Rice has belted 133 home runs and driven in 453 runs.

Sullivan said the new contract has a no-trade provision for a portion of its duration, but Rice confirmed there are no incentive clauses or bonuses based on his future performance.

The Red Sox general manager also said he accepts the likelihood that other Red Sox players will immediately ask to have their contracts renegotiated.

"Yes, we're worried. We've anticipaed it," Sullivan said. "But I'd rather sign Rice than worry about the others."

Pennacchia said Rice will be only 32 when the new contract expires, and Sullivan added, "this gives Jim an opportunity to go through this all over again."

The general manager said contracts of "2, 10 and 12 years" were discussed.

Rice said he would make no immediate investments — "I save" — because "a lot of ballplayers play for many seasons and come out broke. I don't need a yacht or another fancy car."

Campbell All-Pro Pick

NEW YORK (AP) — Running back Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers and defensive end Al Baker of the Detroit Lions, a pair of sensational rookies in the National Football League, were named Monday to the Associated Press 1978 All-Pro team.

The Pittsburgh Steelers had the greatest representation with four players — center Mike Webster, quarterback Terry Bradshaw, wide receiver Lynn Swann and outside linebacker Jack Ham.

Bradshaw finished the season as the American Conference's leading passer and topped the league in touchdown passes with 28 while Swann was third in AFC receiving with 61 catches.

Delvin Williams of Miami, whose 1,258 yards was second in the AFC to Campbell's league-leading 1,450, was named the other starting running back.

Baker is the only member of the Lions on the select squad and one of only seven members from the National Conference to win places on the 25-man roster in voting by sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL city.

Three Denver Broncos were voted to the team, — middle linebacker Randy Gradishar, cornerback Louis Wright and kick-returner Rick Upchurch, the league-leading punt-returner with a 13.7-yard average.

The other starting wide receiver on The AP All-Pro team is Wesley Walker of the New York Jets, tops among the league's pass-catchers with 1,169 yards and a 24.4-yard average.

The tight end is Oakland's Dave Casper, second among AFC receivers with 62 catches. Steve Largent of Seattle, No.1 receiver in the conference with 71, and San Diego rookie John Jefferson are the second-team wide receivers.

Two New England Patriots — tackle Leon Gray and guard John Hannah — were named to the starting offensive line, along with tackle Dan Dierdorf of St. Louis (the lone NFC starter on offense) and guard Bob Kuechenberg of Miami.

The rest of the starting defense is, at end, Jack Youngblood of Lo Angeles Rams; at the tackles, Dallas' Randy White and Louie Kelcher of San Diego; at the other outside linebacking spot, Robert Brazile of Houston; at the other cornerback position, Willie Buchanon of Green Bay; at strong safety, Ken Houston of Washington, and at free safety, Cliff Harris of Dallas. The two other specialists selected were place-kicker Pat Leahy of the Jets and punter Ray Guy of Oakland.

Local Cagers In Action

Local high schools, derailed last week by uncooperative weather, will brave the forces tonight and try to resume basketball action.

In AAAA competition, Monterey will host Palo Duro, while the Monterey girls travel to Amarillo to face PDHS. The Coronado boys will also be heading to Amarillo as they are slated to meet Tascosa. And Lubbock High also goes on the road to face Caprock.

Lubbock's AAA schools will also be on the road; Dunbar's boys team in Brownfield and the Estacado boys at Dimmitt.

Both Lubbock Christian teams will face McAdoo in McAdoo.

Spartans Retain Top Cage Ranking

By The Associated Press

Michigan State, which survived a scare from Big Ten Conference rival Minnesota last weekend, retained the top position in The Associated Press' college basketball poll Monday.

The Spartans, 9-1, who trailed Minnesota by 13 points early in the second half before going on a 27-8 spurt en route to a 69-62 victory, collected 38 of 59 first-place votes and 1,140 points in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame, North Carolina and Illinois remained in the next three positions, respectively.

The Irish, 6-1, an easy winner over Villanova last weekend, held the No.2 position, receiving eight first-place votes and 1,048 points. The Tar Heels, 10-1, who posted triumphs over Clemson and Virginia last week, were third with one top vote and 1,010 points, while Illinois, 14-0, was fourth, being tabbed first on five ballots and receiving 994 points.

Surprising Louisiana State, 10-0, moved from seventh place to fifth with six first-place votes and 968 points following victories over Georgia and Kentucky.

Duke, the preseason poll favorite and No.5 last week, slipped to No.7 behind UCLA despite victories over Davidson, Long Beach St. and Tulane with 823 points. UCLA did not receive a first-place vote, but garnered 837 points.

North Carolina State, which received the remaining first-place vote, remained eighth with 801 points. A pair of newcomers to the Top 10, Indiana State, 11-0 and 608 points, and Arkansas, 9-0 and 606 points, rounded out first flight of the Top 20.

Texas AM fell from No.10 to 11th after an idle week and was followed by Louisville, Marquette, Georgetown, D.C, Kansas, Michigan, Kentucky, Temple, Long Beach State and Syracuse.

Temple, one of the five remaining major undefeated teams in the country, made its first appearence in the Top 20 this season, while Syracuse returned after a one-week absence.

Mississippi State and Maryland were knocked out of the Top 20,

Profits From Art Thefts High

CHICAGO (AP) — One apparently was the work of a slick, well-schooled professional, and the other, of an impulsive amateur. But in each case, the result was the same — the loss of works of art valued in the millions of dollars.

Specialists in the international world of art theft can only speculate about who stole the paintings recently from museums in San Francisco and Chicago, or who eventually will receive them.

But experts agree the probable market for the art is a loosely organized international criminal network specializing in such expensive loot.

"What we find in most cases is that the piece will be held and then placed on a different market in a different country," said New York detective Robert Volpe, regarded by the FBI and the international police agency Interpol, as a leader in the fight against art theft.

Last year, Volpe, the New York Police Department's one-man art theft and recovery squad, recovered more than 400 works of art, valued in excess of $2 million.

The objects ranged from a series of oil paintings valued at $20 each by New Yorker Morris Katz, the self-described "King of Schlock Art," to the recovery of four Byzantine ivory plaques, stolen from the Pesaro Museum in Italy and valued at $1.5 million.

Art theft statistics are rare. The magazine U.S. News & World Report said in a March edition that more than 42,000 art objects, with an estimated value of $33 million, are stolen every year worldwide.

This would make art theft second only to narcotics trafficking as an international criminal activity. And experts feel that the ever-spiraling price of art makes it ever more inviting to criminals.

Just Sunday night, two armed men forced their way into a Paris apartment and made off with a Rembrandt self-portrait and eight other paintings. The Rembrandt was described as "priceless."

Art theives generally do their work more quietly. On Christmas day in San Francisco, for example, someone slipped through a skylight of the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum and stole Rembrandt's "Portrait of a Rabbi," valued at $1 million, and three other Dutch Renaissance paintings.

Authorities speculate the job was done by a professional who apparently knew which of several skylights was not connected to a burglar alarm system.

On Dec. 27, three 19th century paintings by French master Paul Cezanne, valued at $3 million, were discovered missing from a storage room at the Art Institute of Chicago. That was 10 days after institute officials discovered an 18th century Japanese scroll, valued at $5,000, was stolen from its frame in a first-floor gallery.

Experts say one sign that a comparative amateur may have taken the Cezanne paintings was that a piece of brown paper, glued to the back of one painting, was left behind in the thief's apparent haste.

Though the stolen paintings were famous, Volpe discounts the idea that some works are so well known they can't be stolen and then sold.

"It may be difficult to move right away," he said, "but there are fences well-enough placed to sit on these things for years. In most instances, the art will eventually surface on the legitimate market.

"Once it does," said Volpe, "we get a shot at recovering it. Sometimes, though, word of its surfacing doesn't reach us in time. Then it comes down to a question of ethics in the art community. How much are these people willing to turn their heads and deal in gray areas."

Volpe, a collector himself, is one of a handful of law enforcement officials who specialize in art theft. Only in the last 10 to 15 years have authorities groomed such experts, hoping to offset the increasing specialization of criminals.

A pilot program called Art Central, coordinated by Volpe, may help. Right now, works of art lost, stolen and recovered in New York are indexed by computer. So far, Art Central has but 50 reports, covering art worth more than $3.25 million.

According to FBI special agent Thomas McShane, art thieves come in categories ranging from the professional, through the ardent admirer, and right on down to the former car thief looking for better booty.

McShane, assigned to the bureau's New York office, was groomed as an art expert by Donald Mason, who retired in 1977 after 12 years as the FBI's expert to become a consultant to museums and collectors.

In November 1977, McShane and a Spanish police official worked undercover to regain a Spanish altarpiece valued at $3 million that turned up in New York City. They met a legitimate Dutch art dealer who offered to sell the piece, stolen from a church in Abella de Conca in 1972, back to the Spanish government for $1.5 million.

The dealer was arrested and then released. He said he was unaware the piece was stolen and was only working as a middleman for a Panamanian art concern.

"I don't believe he really did know where the painting came from, but it indicates the breadth of the criminal operation," McShane said.

Filing Of Itemized Returns Mulled

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A discussion of itemized deductions is the subject of two articles in a tax information series provided by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

Each year millions of taxpayers ask themselves, "Should I file an itemized tax return?" The answer is "Yes, if your deductions exceed the standard deduction already allowed."

For single taxpayers, that means deductible expenses must exceed $2,200, or $3,200 for married persons.

When considering to itemize, examine five major areas: interest, taxes, medical and dental expenses, charitable contributions and miscellaneous deductions.

Interest on loans frequently contributes the greatest amount to itemized deduction expenses. Be sure you account for all interest fees whether you borrowed to simply have cash on hand or pay for a home mortgage, car and/or education. And, don't overlook the "finance charge" incurred when purchasing items by credit card, installment plan or budget charge cards.

Deductible medical/dental payments include non-reimbursed fees which exceed three percent of your adjusted gross income. Such fees include those paid to physicians or dentists; payment for hospital services, laboratory fees or x-rays; and costs for eyeglasses, hearing aids and parts, dentures and crutches.

These and other questions concerning your 1978 tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education program. This public service course, jointly-sponsored by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service will be offered Feb. 6 and 8, from 7 to 10 p.m.

CPAs volunteer their time to assist taxpayers during a two-night informal program, which provides both instruction and question-and-answer sessions. The course is available to the public at a charge of $1 to cover administrative costs.

To register for the Taxpayer Education program, simply fill out the registration form below. Money and registration form must be mailed by Jan. 29, 1979.

Classes will be held at Lubbock High School; Atkins Junior High; Evans Junior High; Smylie wilson Junior High; O.L. Slaton Junior High; Roosevelt School; Plainview High School; Floydada High School; and Littlefield High School.

Demo National Chairman Expects Carter To Run

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman John White said Monday he expects President Carter soon will set up a 1980 re-election committee, but will not announce his candidacy until late this year at the earliest.

White said he does not expect Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to run for president in 1980, and predicted Carter will not face a serious challenge from anyone else in the party either.

But when asked if he thought Kennedy would run for president some day and get elected, White said, "Yes, I think so. I hope so."

In an interview with UPI, White said the Carter re-election campaign would be run by an independent committee, but predicted top Carter aide Hamilton ordan will run the campaign — even if he does not leave the White House staff.

"I think Ham will be the guru," White said.

White said he expects Vice President Walter Mondale to stay on the Carter ticket for a second term.

He said he is confident Carter will seek re-election.

"We've talked in terms of how long it takes to get a program to work, completion of a program, and I don't find the president talking in terms of everything ending in January of 1981," White said.

"One of the things that ... will be done fairly quickly will be the establishment of a 1980 committee," White said. "It will be done soon. But I wouldn't venture an exact date.

"The first thing you've got to do is figure out how you're going to pay for it (the campaign). So the first order of business will be developing a financial apparatus."

Carter's formal announcement will be "somewhat later," White said. "I doubt that he's decided when to make the announcement.

"I think it would be inappropriate for the president to announce for re-election soon because everything he'd do then would be in the context of 'Well, he's just running for re-election,'" White said. "I would expect it to be later in the year at least."

Despite Carter's slump in public opinion polls, the troubled economy and a stalemate in the Middle East peace effort, White is confident about 1980.

"The thing about President Carter is that most of all, he's returned a sense of decency to government service because of his personal decency," White said.

Bite Placed On Gorilla's TV

ATLANTA (UPI) — Pity the burglars if Willie B., a 450-pound gorilla, ever catches the thieves who stole his color television set.

Someone burglarized the home of Grant Park zoo's television-watching gorilla during the weekend, slipping into the primate house and making off with the TV set that hung just outside the cage.

"It broke my heart when I heard about it. It was a ratty, ratty deal," said Pat Dann, a spokesman for the Atlanta Zoological Society. "Whoever got that television needs to be put inside that cage with him."

She said the thieves "knew what they were doing," carefully cutting a heavy steel cable that held the set to a metal frame outside a plastic shield that wards off human germs from the 20-year-old gorilla's cage. The theft was discovered Saturday morning.

When Willie B. was returned to the cage from his overnight holding area Sunday, "he ran right over to that corner," Miss Dunn said. But then "he just walked away."

The $355 color tetevision was hung in front of the gorilla's cage last Wednesday, and Willie B. had shown a fascination for it. The set was still there when custodians came to get tools for cleaning the snake house at 7:10 a.m. Saturday, but was missing when they returned the equipment.

The unidentified donor of the television offered a $200 reward for capture of the burglars.

Texas ICC Offices Slated For Closing In New Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission sent to Congress Monday a proposed plan to close 18 field offices in 12 states, including San Antonio, Amarillo and Dallas in Texas.

The commission is seeking comment on the plan, which would reduce the number of ICC field offices from 75 to 57.

ICC Chairman Daniel O'Neal said the consolidation would improve the overall effectiveness of the commission and make its consumer complaint-handling system more responsive.

It would include fully staffed complaint and information centers and extended toll-free telephone service to assist consumers, shippers and carriers with transportation problems.

O'Neal said 80 percent of all complaints now are being handled by phone or letter and can be resolved at any location.

PRESTIGE VS. PRACTICALITY. This isn't a new home with a prestige address, but it's lots of comfortable living for the money. Three bedrooms, two baths, sunken den with firepalce. $34,950.

THE SIGN JUST WENT UP! And we're looking for a VA or FHA buyer for this large pretty three bedroom, two bath home in SW Lubbock. Den with fireplace, humidifier, and lots of extras! Under $60,000.

$1,000,000.00!!! That's what you'll feel like when you move into this beauty! Over 2,000 sq. ft., recently redecorated, custom-built, so it's a little "different" from the rest of the houses on the block. Don't miss it! $52,700.

EVEN SMELLS LIKE NEW! Come see our new three bedroom homes for under $40,000! Energy efficient, GE appliances, and much, much more. Call us — we'd love to show you!

THE REAL STORY

You have read in this newspaper and have heard on radio and T.V. that the housing market in Lubbock is depressed and that mortgage money is virtually unobtainable. Mortage loan companies always take a conservative stand when the National economy varies from the norm and the news media, hearing only the negatives, build on this and present it out of proportion.

The fact is that the housing market in Lubbock is not depressed and mortgage money is available. You can and should purchase that new home now. Why now? The selection of homes in Lubbock has never been better, interest rates will more than likely continue to go up, and inflation is certain to continue driving house prices up. Waiting for interest rates to come down before buying is not in your best interest, because the escalated values of property will more than offset any savings on interest rates.

Ownership of a home is the only way most people have of protecting their savings from inflationary trends. It is also a fact that the purchase of a previously owned or new home in Lubbock is still a bargain. Compared to the rest of the Southwestern United States, Lubbock housing is inexpesnive. Those of us who live here do not think of it as being inexpensive, but the truth is we have become spoiled to our good fortune. We must face the fact that the cost of housing in Lubbock will not remain as realistic, as geographic trends predict.

The Real Story is: you cannot go wrong with the purchase of a home in Lubbock. If these facts are of interest to you, call Lubbock's most progressive Real Estate firm and allow us to visit with you about your future home buying plans, desires or needs. Landmark wants to help.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS
City of Lubbock, P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, Texas 79457, (806) 762-6411

TO ALL INTERESTED PARTIES
On January 18, 1979, the City will request the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-383) for the following projects:
1. Intensified Code Enforcement — $81,860.00
2. Ahead of Paving Utilities Installation — $46,791.00
3. Water Main Improvements at MacKenzie State Park — $7,356.00
4. Improvements at the Lubbock Lake Site — $5,200.00
5. Traffic Signal at 34th and Chicago — $25,000.00
6. Softball Complex — North Lubbock — $218,525.00

The City has made an environmental review record for the projects which documents the environmental review of the projects. This record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request. The City will undertake the projects described above with Block Grants funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City is certifying to HUD that the City and Mayor Dirk West, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decisionmaking, and action, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the City may use the Block Grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of the City approved by HUD; or (b) that the City's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at 2001 Bryan Tower, Fourth Floor, Dallas, Texas 75201. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after February 2, 1979, will be considered by HUD.
Dirk West, Mayor
P.O. Box 2000
Lubbock, Texas 79457

NOTICE
AFFORDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING
The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is planning the construction of FM. Highway 1730 in the City of Lubbock from Loop 289, south.
The proposed facility will be an 86 foot curb and gutter section consisting of six 12 foot lanes with a 14 foot continuous left turn lane. Proposed usual right of way width will be 120 feet.
Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and design and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office in Lubbock, Texas.
Information about the tentative schedule for construction can be obtained at the Resident Engineer's Office. Relocation is not involved on this project.
Any interested citizen may request that a public hearing be held covering the social, economic and environmental effects of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the Resident Engineer's Office, on or before January 19, 1979. The address of the Resident Engineer's Office is P.O. Box 771, 601 Slaton Road, Lubbock, Texas 79408.
In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be publicized about the date and location of the hearing.

HAPPY DAYS AGAIN — The Dallas Cowboys had more than their share of good times Sunday afternoon in the Los Angeles Coliseum. Larry Bethea, far left, raises his hands in jubilation as the Cowboys leave the field after beating the Rams 28-0 to advance to the Super Bowl against the Pittsburgh Steelers. Meanwhile, Randy White, center, hits quarterback Pat Haden in the third quarter of Sunday's game. Haden had to leave the game with a compound fracture of his thumb. Scott Laidlaw, far right, who fumbled the ball on the LA goal line early in the first period, makes up for the mistake by scoring a second-half touchdown. Trying to stop Laidlaw is Dave Elmendorf (42). (AP Laserphotos)

Aggies Romp Past Baylor

A-J Wire Services

Tyrone Ladson and Vernon Smith combined for 35 points to lead 11th-ranked Texas A&M to a 77-64 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Baylor in College Station Monday night.

In other SWC action, Rice nipped Southern Methodist 78-76 and Texas Tech stayed unbeaten by handling Texas Christian 99-75.

The Aggies had a balanced scoring attack with five players scoring in double figures. Smith had 18 points and Ladson 17 to lead the Aggie scoring effort.

Baylor played without last year's SWC scoring leader Vinnie Johnson, who was attending his mother's funeral in New York City.

Baylor was paced by Wendell Mays and Terry Teagle who scored 18 and 16 points respectively.

Texas A&M led by five to seven points most of the way. With 6:13 left in the game, Baylor cut the margin to 58-57. But Rynn Wright scored eight points in the final five minutes and 6-foot-11 freshman Rudy Woods controlled the boards to ice the victory for Texas A&M.

Wayland Stumbles

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Tony Forch and Paul Brantley ripped the nets for 26 points apeice to lead Midwestern University to a 93-82 over Wayland Baptist College Monday night in the Texas Athletic Conference opener for both teams.

The loss drops the Pioneers to 9-11 for the season and 0-1 in conference while Midwestern's slate is 11-8 and 1-0.

Gene Strickland and John Erving paced the Pioneer effort with 14 points each. Wayland trailed at the half 45-34.

Snyder Takes Cage Victory

Brad Richardson and Greg Hinto combined for 32 points to lead Snyder to a 95-67 rout over Abilene Christian high school Monday night.

John Claybrook led all scorers with 19 points but his ACHS team couldn't match the Snyder depth. The win raised Snyder's season mark to 19-4.

Western Hills Wins

Jeff Shadden hit 21 points to lead Western Hills Baptist to a 75-33 win over Lazbuddie Christian Academy. The win upped WHBA's loop mark to 4-0. Leading LCA was Jimmy Standridge with 18 points.

Andrews Romps

Lance McCain blasted the nets for 31 points to lead the scoring for the Andrews boys 88-53 massacre over Eunice Monday night. High point man for Eunice was cager Benson with a tally of 12 points. The win gave the Mustangs a 20-2 ledger for the year.

Pokes Eye Fifth Super Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A punishing, opportunistic defense spearheaded by safetyman Charlie Waters has taken Dallas to a record fifth Super Bowl and set up the first world championship game rematch with the Cowboys facing Pittsburgh for the National Football League title in Miami Jan. 21.

Defending champion Dallas qualified by crushing Los Angeles 28-0 for the National Football Conference championship Sunday as the computerized flex defense bent, folded, spindled and multilated the Rams into seven turnovers.

All four Cowboys' touchdowns were the results of Rams' errors forced by the flex. Twice Waters intercepted passes to position the ball for scores. When the Rams threatened, Harvey Martin forced a fumble and recovered it, setting in motion an 89-yard Dallas drive for the third Cowboy score. Then linebacker Tom Henderson punctuated the defensive show by picking off a paas — one of five Cowboys' interceptions in the game — and returning it 68 yards for the final touchdown.

So, although Roger Staubach threw two touchdown passes and Tony Dorsett rushed for 101 yards, this was a victory constructed by the Dallas defenders and the Cowboys knew it.

"This was not really a 28-0 game," said Staubach. 'We were just able to make the most of our opportunites and convert the turnovers. If we could not have done it, we might still be on the field now."

The 235 total yards produced by the Cowboys offense hardly was overwhelming.

This was a scoreless game at halftime with the Los Angeles defense yielding yards every bit as grudingly as Dallas.

Waters turned the game with his two interceptions against Rams quarterback Pat Hayden. Both times, he stepped in front of tight end Terry Nelson for the pickoff and on both plays he nearly scored TDs himself.

"They were gambles," said Waters, who was critical of his own play, saying he had missed several assignments in the course of the game. But Cowboys Coach Tom Landry wasn't complaining.

"Charlie guessed right," the coach said, allowing himself a smile. "I thought the receivers were open on each play. Charlie made the great play on both and then it just started stampeding."

Now the stampede is heading south to Miami for the rematch against the Steelers. In Super Bowl X, Pittburgh defeated Dallas 21-17 for its second straight Super Bowl victory. The Steelers have not been back since, but Dallas returned last year to drub Denver 27-10 for its second world championship.

"Pittsburgh had been the best team in the NFL this season," said Landry. Now the Cowboy computer is fuguring out how to make Dallas better on Jan. 21.

White Suffers Injury

DALLAS (AP) — All-Pro Dallas Cowboys defensive tackle Randy White suffered a fractured left thumb in Sunday's 28-0 National Football Conference title victory over the Los Angeles Rams and will play in Super Bowl XIII against Pittsburgh with splint on his hand.

Ironically, it was a tackle by White in the third period that fractured the right thumb of Ram quarterback Pat Haden.

White will wear a heavy cast in the next two weeks of practice before the Super Bowl Jan. 21.

Other Cowboys injured included running back Tony Dorsett, a sprained foot; fullback Scott Laidlaw, a bruised hand; defensive end Harvey Martin, a leg bruise, and guard Herb Scott, a hyperextended elbow.

The Cowboys resume workouts Wednesday before flying to Miami Sunday.

Steelers 'Jubilant' After Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers began the countdown Monday — XIII days 'til Super Bowl XIII.

"Jubilant," Coach Chuck Noll said in a word when asked how he felt Monday morning.

"We're happy to be there. We're right on schedule," added Noll, whose team was made a three-point favorite by Nevada oddsmakers to beat the Dallas Cowboys in their Jan. 21 clash in Miami.

Dallas or Pittsburgh will become the first team ever to win three Super Bowls. That, plus the fact Pittsburgh beat Dallas in Super Bowl X, makes for a lively matchup.

"This is the biggest thrill of my football life," said Steeler center Mike Webster, who was a part time player on the last Pittsburgh team that beat the Cowboys for the title.

Joe Greene kiddingly took a less emotional stance.

"We got some rookies on this team who really want one of those Super Bowl rings," said Greene. "Me, I'm overdrawn on a few bank accounts. I want the money."

The Steelers earned a chance at the $18,000 winners' paycheck in the Super Bowl with a 34-5 victory over the Houston Oilers Sunday in an American Football Conference title game played in a cold rain.

That rain turned to snow Sunday night, and there were several inches on the ground here Monday. But the Steelers had time off to rest and reflect.

"In professional sport, there are just a few times when you're happy and this is one of them," said quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who passed for two touchdowns against Houston.

"It's a time to be cherished, to be remembered, to be enjoyed," added Bradshaw, who'll rejoin the rest of the Steelers at practice Wednesday.

"To get to the Super Bowl is a thrill in itself," said defensive end L.C. Greenwood. "This is a business, but it's a real thrill."

Dwight White, Pittsburgh's other defensive end, agreed that getting there was fun, but he stressed that winning there is even more fun.

"You don't play four exhibition games, 16 regular season games, and two playoffs games, you don't do all that to come this far and lose," said White.

After Sunday's victory, White predicted the Steeler would win a third Super Bowl ring. He pledged to take it to Dallas and flaunt it in front of his pal, Cowboy defensive end Harvey Martin.

"The money is important. I'm not that financially secure to say it isn't," said White.

"But that third ring would just mean a whole lot. That would be the epitome."

The Steelers escaped the Houston game with no serious injuries. They'll practice here this week, then fly to Miami next Monday.

"My first two years in the league I was kind of spoiled. We went to the Super Bowl both years and we won," said middle linebacker Jack Lambert.

"I felt cheated when we didn't go the third year, but it's sure nice to go back."

O'Brien Resigns Post

DALLAS (AP) — Danny O'Brien, who said someday he hoped to work for an organization like the Dallas Cowboys, resigned Monday as general manager of the American League Texas Rangers.

O'Brien, who had been general manager of the Rangers for five years, announced his resignation at the weekly meeting of the Dallas-Fort Worth news media after a morning conference with majority owner Brad Corbett and executive vice-president Eddie Robinson.

"I have had several (business) opportunities in the area but my game is baseball," said O'Brien.

O'Brien refused to criticize the Ranger management although he had at times been critical of the wild wheeling and dealing by Corbett.

"Mr. Corbett tried to dissuade me," said O'Brien.

MOB Sign Ups End Tonight

Parents interested in registering their sons in the Monterey Optimist Basketball League should act tonight since this is the last opportunity to sign up.

Final registration will be held between 7 and 9 p.m. at Wilson Junior High.

The league is open to boys in grades three through eight. Registration fee is $15 and boys signing up for the first time must bring a birth certificate.

Dunbar Fems Falter 48-45

HEREFORD (Special) — Darlene Sanders bucketed 18 points to lead the Hereford girls to a narrow 48-45 win over Dunbar here Monay night in high school basketball play.

The win was the second of the season for Herefor over Dunbar. In their first meeting, the Whitefaces score a two-point victory.

Lisa Caviel was the scoring leader for the Panthers, hitting five tosses from the floor and two free throws for 11 total points.

Dunbar will return to action Thursday night when it travels to Lubbock Christian High.
