

First-Day Well-Wishers Throng Floor Of House

AUSTIN (AP) — Some came to take family snapshots. Others renewed old political ties. And at least one came by accident.

lature lurch into another session Tuesday. "It's kind of a madhouse," admitted Joe Wagner, head doorkeeper for the House of Representatives. "It's the biggest turnout I've seen in a long time. I don't know what's brought 'em out."

Some 800 relatives, friends, lobbyists and curious citizens crowded the House galleries for opening day ceremonies. Approximately 300 witnesses watched similar happenings in the Senate.

In the House and Senate, legislators sat with wives, husbands, children and parents crowded around their desks. Preschool sons and daughters brought their stuffed animals, older children brought coloring books and everyone brought a camera.

The sophomore settled back to enjoy the show. "It looks like it's going to be good. Better than a matinee," he said.

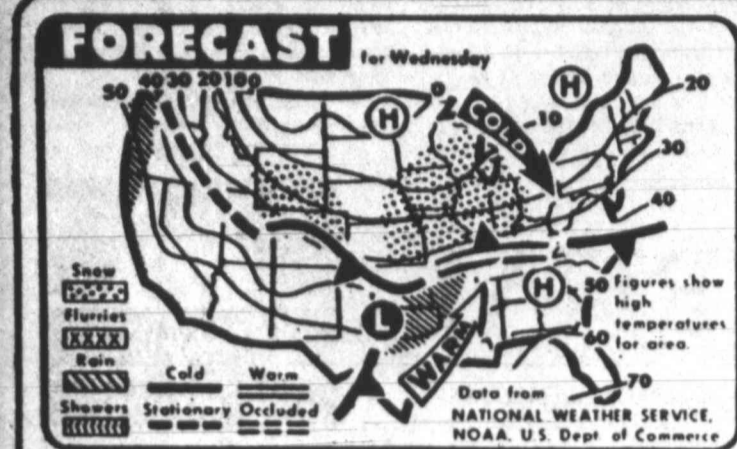

"It's supposed to dial out, but every time I pick it up I just get my office," said Rep. Ron Waters, D-Houston.

Secretary of State Steve Oaks gavelled the House to order and members recognized old cronies and former peers.

Attorney General Mark White, Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown were just some of those watching.

Bob Krueger, defeated U.S. Senate candidate and former congressman, also shook hands with members.

Only one casualty was reported. A young woman fainted on the floor. She revived with no complications.

Substitute For Property Tax Sought For Schools

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee staff Tuesday recommended a broad-based business tax or a personal income tax — or a combination of the two — as the fairest way to replace public school dependence on property taxes.

Hobby Appoints New Finance Panel Chairman

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby elevated Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene to the chairmanship of the powerful Senate Finance Committee on Tuesday and picked 18 other fellow Democrats to chair every Senate committee and subcommittee.

The best the Republicans could do was the appointment of Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas as vice chairman of the economic development committee.

Hobby is the No. 1 Democratic spokesman in the Legislature with the right to display the partisan power of the lieutenant governor's office.

Jones, 56, was vice chairman of economic development in 1977 and was not even a member of the 13-member finance committee.

Hobby said, however, such a move was not unusual and that any one of several senators would make a good finance chairman.

The post opened up with the retirement of the dean of the Senate, A.M. Aikin of Paris, who had been in the Senate since 1938.

Jones has 14 years of legislative experience, serving in the House in 1965-72 and the Senate since 1973.

He is a lawyer and has a master's degree in business from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. His occupation is listed as insurance.

The new dean of the Senate, W.T. "Bill" Moore of Bryan, again will chair the state affairs committee, which would consider any tax bills before the Senate. Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas was reappointed as chairman of the education committee, which will handle any school finance measures.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz of Galveston was switched from chairman of jurisprudence to chairman of natural resources, and Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls got jurisprudence — his first chairmanship.

Reappointed as chairmen were Gene Jones of Houston, administration; Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, economic development; Chet Brooks of Pasadena, human resources; and W.E. Snelson of Midland, intergovernmental relations.

Sen. Feyton McKnight of Tyler was reappointed as chairman of the subcommittees of energy and nominations, which considers gubernatorial appointments.

Other Senate subcommittee chairmen include:

- Rules, John Traeger, Seguin.
- Consumer Affairs, Ron Clower, Dallas.

- Public Health, Gene Jones.
- Jurisprudence, civil matters, Bill Braecklein, Dallas.
- Jurisprudence, criminal matters, Te-ti Santiesteban, El Paso.
- Water, E.L. Short, Taboka.
- Agriculture, William Patman, Gans-do.
- Elections, Jack Ogg, Houston.

Printed sheets with names of the committee appointments were distributed after the Senate rejected, 25-6, a motion by Mauzy to permit senators to choose their own committees, including chairmen.

Senate Pro Tem Re-Elected

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, was elected Tuesday as the assistant presiding officer of the Senate for the second time in five months.

"He is an independent individual ... with opinions he's willing to stick by," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz in seconding Meier's nomination.

"If you want to know where he stands, go ask him," said Schwartz, D-Galveston.

Meier, 38, was nominated by Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, who noted that Meier set the world record for a filibuster in 1977, when he talked non-stop for 43 hours.

Meier was chosen as Senate pro tempore during an August special session, but has not yet served as governor-for-a-day, a traditional honor that goes with the job. His re-election will give him the opportunity to serve as acting chief executive in the absence of the governor and lieutenant governor.

Between sessions, Meier has served as chairman of the Sunset Advisory Commission, which reviews state agencies.

Meier is a lawyer and has been in the Senate since 1973.

He is vice chairman of the jurisprudence committee and has been active in past sessions, making changes to the criminal code.

Old Shroud Lifted From Senate Debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators in response to a plea by Sen. A.R. Schwartz made the historic decision Tuesday to open debate on gubernatorial appointees.

Lubbock NAACP To Install Officers

The Lubbock branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will have a regular monthly meeting at 7 p.m. Saturday in Mae Simmons Community Center at 2100 Oak Ave.

The agenda includes installation of officers, announcement of new committee chairmen, and the NAACP pledge to the United Negro College Fund.

Officers to be installed for a two-year term are the Rev. Roy C. Jones, president; George Scott, Jr., first vice president; the Rev. Ben Roberts, Jr., second vice president; David H. Sowell, third vice president; Joan Y. Ervin, secretary; Dr. Carmyn H. Morrow, treasurer; Mary McGraw, assistant secretary; and Rosie Wilson, assistant treasurer.

A popular tattoo among seamen of the Royal Navy for many years was a crucifixion scene on the back, after one of Lord Nelson's sailors was spared a flogging because of such a tattoo.

to the public and press. The vote to erase one of the Senate's most-protected traditions was 18-13, and even Schwartz, D-Galveston, seemed surprised.

He appealed to three new senators to start off right by voting for open meetings, and won two votes, those of Ed Howard of Texarkana and Bob Vale of San Antonio.

He also sought Republican votes, telling the four-member delegation that Gov.-elect Bill Clements, the first GOP chief executive in 105 years, might have difficulty winning approval of his appointments if debate were secret.

The only Republican senator to vote with Schwartz, however, was Bob Price of Pampa.

Under old Senate rules appointment sessions were considered private unless the Senate voted to open them. Schwartz's amendment would "switch the emphasis" and make the sessions public unless a Senate majority votes to lock the doors.

Schwartz said there is "virtually no secrecy" now in discussing nominations. Committee debates on appointees, for example, are open, and the Senate occasionally votes to open a debate on appointees. Schwartz said, however, "not even a semblance" of secrecy should remain.

Schwartz emphasized, too, that "senatorial courtesy" would be observed in that a request from a single senator to close a session would be sufficient to do so.

Sen. Betty Andujar, protesting the proposed amendment, said, "There is a great deal of difference between comments made 'in family' as opposed to those that will appear frozen in print in tomorrow morning's paper."

Such private sessions, said Mrs. Andujar, R-Fort Worth, "are the only time senators have 10 minutes alone to themselves."

Closed-door sessions, she said, are "like Sunday dinner. You don't give it up — it's a tradition that serves a purpose."

"If secrecy is like Sunday dinner," replied Schwartz, "I'm ready to give up Sunday dinner."

The Senate adopted its rules, including the Schwartz amendment, on voice vote after rejecting several motions by Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas.

Youth Confident Giant SOS Would Bring Rescue

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Douglas Grismore, stuck in a mountain snowstorm for 20 hours, says he knew he would be rescued if he stamped a giant "SOS" in the snow and walked in circles to keep from freezing.

stamped a giant "SOS" in the snow and walked in circles to keep from freezing. "I won't ski alone anymore," he said Tuesday. "I was lucky. But I knew that if I wrote something in the snow, someone would notice it."

Grismore was rescued Monday by a ski resort employee who saw the "SOS" and followed the boy's tracks in the snow.

When it was over, the boy hugged his mother and said, "You were worse off than I was. I knew I was safe."

The eighth-grader was lost while skiing down the back side of a mountain at a Dodge Ridge Ski Resort, about 150 miles east of San Francisco. His parents and 11-year-old sister Samantha were skiing on another trail.

"I just got messed up skiing between two chairlifts," he said. "There was no one left on the slopes and it was getting dark."

Grismore said he panicked briefly when darkness fell Sunday, but regained his composure and spent the night walking and stamping out the "SOS."

He said that he learned trail-blazing techniques last summer at day camp, and that the campers also discussed the importance of writing in the snow, so that rescuers would find tracks more easily.

First, he took off his skis and walked in circles in his heavy ski boots. It snowed most of the night.

"It was tiring," he said. "It was the first time in my life I had been up all night. Whenever I stopped walking, I felt cold. I knew I had to keep walking."

At dawn, when it stopped snowing, he decided to stamp the "SOS" in the snow.

"It was the shortest, and I guess most effective, word I could think of," he said.

L.L. John Steely of the Tuolumne County sheriff's office said 40 people were searching for the boy. Seven inches of new snow fell during the night, and temperatures dipped to 30 degrees, but Grismore was dressed in a ski parka, several sweaters, and nylon ski pants over his jeans. Deputies said the youth had walked about six miles.

"It was scary at first," he recalled.

"But I knew that if I didn't pull myself together I'd freeze to death... I kept thinking about someone coming and finding me. I knew there would be a lot of people out there. I thought of what clues would help them find me... I would like to go skiing again soon, but I don't know who's going to be willing to take me there."

Rape Trial Jury Selection Launched

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Jury selection began Tuesday in the capital murder trial of John McCrory, accused of the rape and strangulation of a Lewisville High School student.

The trial has been postponed three times. Jury selection from a panel of 600 veniremen is expected to take a week.

McCrory, of Argyle, is charged in the June 3 stabbing death of Jeana Melissa Walker, 17. Her partially clad body was found near a farm road in south Denton County.

McCrory's lawyers filed a motion Tuesday challenging the legality of the jury panel. They contend a "sense of hostility" was created in the minds of potential jurors who asked to be excused and were told by courthouse authorities to call the defense lawyers collect at their offices in Denton and Decatur.

State District Judge Stanley Kirk overruled the motion.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite some confusion where uniting several projects are concerned, you find you are able to accomplish much of value today. Let situations work themselves out and go along with conditions as they arise.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't try to force associates to do as you wish, but combine efforts and ideas for best results. Use care in motion of any kind.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Listen to what experts have to say before you reach any decisions in important money matters. Study various sources for ideas on how to best repair property.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have personal wishes which are fine, but don't be forceful in trying to gain them. Enjoy casual social events instead of planning any right now. Be more thoughtful of kin.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Personal anxieties should not throw you for a loop, but be calmly gotten rid of. Try to meet expectations of kin and have more accord. Learn to relax more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Accept invitations from friends, but only after work is done. Don't force some wish but let it work out naturally later. Avoid one who does not understand you at all and could make you angry.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You still do not know what to do about an outside matter, so sleep on it and tomorrow you handle it wisely. Try a new tack where career problems are concerned and get better results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Join forces with others in gaining the new interests that are mutually appealing. Do not try to make any changes that are difficult and annoying. Relax and rest more.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have many responsibilities to handle, so be sure to study them well before trying to discharge them. Early confusion clears up later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you consider every angle of dealings with associates and confer with them intelligently. A worldly affair has you confused, but later it clears itself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Stick to proven methods for handling duties instead of trying anything new. Be more cooperative with co-workers. Do not overdo in the evening in social matters, entertaining.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Gain the assistance of those with whom you often get together socially. Find a better way of pleasing loved ones. Improve health and appearance in some way.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Take more interest in what your family is doing and try to make them happier in some way. Keep busy and you are happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have much ability at understanding problems of the mind and behaviorism, and should have the education slanted along such lines as psychiatry, psychology, government, etc. Your progeny can be a boon to society because of the logical reasoning and brilliance here.

"The stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

RED OFFICIAL SENTENCED
TOKYO (AP) — China's Hsinhua news agency said Tuesday a mass meeting in the southern Kwangtung province sentenced a local Communist Party official to five years in prison for taking bribes and persecuting his critics.

Shipyard Defies Steelworkers Union

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)— The giant Newport News shipyard, denouncing the threat of a strike as "blackmail," vowed Tuesday not to bargain with the Steelworkers union pending resolution of its court challenge to the union's right to represent the yard's 17,000 blue-collar workers.

however, said in Richmond that a decision in the case normally could be expected in May.

A Steelworkers spokesman said the statement by shipyard President Edward J. Campbell did not alter plans for a strike, perhaps later this month, prompted by the shipyard's refusal to bargain. Union officials will meet tonight to discuss the situation.

Howe has refused to name a date for a strike at Newport News Ship, the world's largest private shipyard, but has said all that is required is formal sanction from Steelworkers President Lloyd McBride, which he said could be obtained in "a matter of hours."

authorize a strike call by union officials.

Campbell, who only recently became president of the shipyard, told its employees in a letter Tuesday that the company would abide by, and would not appeal, any decision handed down by the 4th Circuit Court.

Some 6,000 Steelworkers members at the yard voted unanimously Dec. 10 to

But he reiterated that the shipyard will not negotiate with the Steelworkers unless the court upholds the results of last year's election.

And in the meantime, he said, the yard will not take part in "meetings" aimed at resolving the dispute out of court.

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall has requested that representatives of Teneco, the shipyard's parent firm, and the Steelworkers meet under his auspices to seek a settlement.

"The federal court is the only place where we can resolve the current labor dispute," Campbell wrote. "We cannot resolve this issue in meetings, we cannot resolve it through negotiations."

Sale Of Unleaded Gasohol Proposed By Congressman

WASHINGTON (AP)— A Wisconsin congressman asked the government Tuesday to rule whether service stations selling gasohol must offer motorists both leaded and unleaded varieties.

Rep. Alvin Baldus, D-Wis., said current law requires the marketing of both leaded and unleaded gasoline. But there is no regulation applying to gasohol, he said in a letter to Douglas Costle, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Gasohol is a mixture of gasoline and alcohol. A mixture of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol can be used in existing cars without any gas line or engine modifications.

Its advocates claim gasohol is a good way to both conserve scarce petroleum supplies and use surplus farm crops, which can be used to produce alcohol.

"There are many stations which are ready to go with gasohol but are uncertain if they meet your unleaded requirement," Baldus said.

He told the EPA that since most gas stations cluster three pumps together, a rule permitting one to have "regular," another "high test" and the third "unleaded gasohol" might be a workable solution.

OIL PRICE HIKE URGED

AUSTIN (AP) — A spokesman for the industry says domestic oil prices should be raised to world levels by 1981. H.B. Harkins of Alice, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, made the recommendation in connection with a Department of Energy proposal to give limited relief to some marginal oil wells.

Cambodian Rebels Warn Red China

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—The rebels' provisional government of Cambodia told China in a broadcast early today to stay out of Cambodia's affairs and called onetime Cambodian leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk Peking's "microphone."
According to the announcer, the broadcast was from the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, captured by the Vietnamese-backed rebels Sunday. It was monitored in Bangkok.
Vietnam redoubled its air strikes against the remnants of the Pol Pot regime Tuesday, and thousands of Cambodians, forced from their villages three years ago, were returning to their homes, according to various reports.

Thai Border Bombed
Sources in Bangkok said Vietnam was flying almost 100 air strikes daily in a mopping-up operation east and west of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. Thai officials reported two jets, believed to be Soviet-made, bombed a Thai border area.
In Peking, the Cambodian Embassy charged Tuesday that Soviet advisers dispatched hundreds of tanks, artillery units, MiG jet fighters and infantry units into Cambodia to support the offensive by the Vietnamese army and Cambodian rebels. The embassy statement, which did not elaborate on the claim, was distributed by Peking's official Hsinua news agency.

Sihanouk in New York
Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former Cambodian head of state, said en route from Peking to the United Nations in New York that he had been in radio contact with Pol Pot and Jeng Sary. Sihanouk arrived in New York Tuesday evening.
He said at a stopover in Tokyo that Pol Pot's troops still held two towns in northwest Cambodia, and analysts here also said the rebels, who claim to have "liberated" Phnom Penh and established a provisional government, were fighting in the northwest near Siem Reap and Angkor.

U.N. Debate Asked
Sihanouk said he would seek a full debate in the U.N. Security Council and he hoped the council would order Vietnamese troops out of Cambodia and "let the Cambodians solve their problems alone."
At U.N. headquarters, Security Council President Donald O. Mills of Jamaica said the council probably would meet today to decide whether to permit a debate.

Thais Bombed
A Thai official in the border town of Ta Phraya, 220 miles east of Bangkok, told reporters two warplanes, believed to be either MiG-19s or MiG-21s, dropped three bombs in a field between two Thai military installations. There were no injuries.
Vietnam is known to have Soviet-supplied MiGs, but there also have been reports that the ousted regime received MiGs from China.

Support For Cambodia
Teng reiterated China's continued support for the fallen Cambodian government of Pol Pot, but the senators said they got the impression the Chinese are looking at the situation pragmatically with little hope of future success.
Freed from three years of house arrest, former Cambodian Chief of State Norodom Sihanouk left Tuesday for New York to plead the government's case. He indicated Monday in a Peking news conference that he supported Pol Pot's nationalist stand against the Vietnamese invasion, but hated the regime's internal policies.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted him as telling reporters that the Kremlin supports the "just struggle under the leadership" of the insurgents. Brezhnev also was quoted as describing the ousted Cambodian government as a "hateful regime."
Two Soviet allies, Hungary and Bulgaria, cabled the new government Tuesday offering congratulations.
In New Delhi, Indian President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy said he found the takeover of Cambodia potentially disturbing to stability in Southeast Asia but suggested India would continue its modest aid program to Vietnam. He made his remarks at a dinner given by another Soviet ally, visiting East German head of state Erich Honecker.
SPK, the official news agency of the new Cambodian government, said thousands of buffalo carts were taking the villagers, their children and belongings back to their homes in northeastern Kampong Cham Province.

The report from Phnom Penh said rebel military units were helping the residents.
The Pol Pot government emptied Cambodia's cities and villages and forced most Cambodians into communal farms following the Khmer Rouge Communist victory over the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government in 1975.
Observers estimate a million or more persons were executed or died of hunger, exhaustion and disease during the forced evacuation. The fall of the regime did not appear to sadden 7,000 Cambodian refugees who fled to camps in Thailand after 1975.
"Tell the Thai authorities to bring Pol Pot to us at the camp," one refugee told a reporter in Thailand. "We'll make him into fermented fish sauce."
The new government promised to restore democratic rights, reinstate Buddhism, and move toward "peace, freedom, non-alignment and socialism."

'Burger Firm Sues Israel's 'Big Mac'
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—A Tel Aviv hamburger stand named MacDavid's does a brisk business selling "big macs" to Israelis and chuckling tourists who can't help but notice the similarity to that great American institution.
But Ronald McDonald isn't laughing. He's suing.
A preliminary hearing is scheduled for today in Tel Aviv district court in a suit filed by McDonald's Corp. against David Magen, a 31-year-old Israeli who returned from a visit to America two years ago with dreams of doing for Israel what hamburger baron Ray Kroc did in the states.

Infringement Claimed
The U.S. hamburger chain claims infringement of its trademark and is asking the court to restrain MacDavid's from using words and symbols "which are an imitation of trademarks of the plaintiff...these actions by the defendants caused damage to the reputation of the plaintiff."
The complaint also asks $1,100 in damages.
The unfazed Magen said he isn't worried about standing up to the empire that sells a billion burgers a year in 5,100 restaurants around the world.
"They have no reason to sue," he said. "Did they invent the hamburger? It's been around for 100 years."

Registered Five Years
MacDonald's attorney in Israel, Shmuel Cohen-Zedeck, refused to discuss the upcoming case. But he said the hamburger chain registered its trademark here five years ago under regulations allowing Israeli and American firms to protect their names and symbols in both countries.
A McDonald's spokesman in Oak Brook, Ill., said the company does not operate in the Middle East and has no plans to expand there.
Magen, a former building contractor, said he asked McDonald's about the possibility of obtaining a franchise, "but they didn't answer me, and I heard they wanted a lot of money."

Deaf Smith Banquet To Feature Clower
HEREFORD (Special) — Humorist Jerry Clower will be featured at Thursday's Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet.
Festivities begin at 7 p.m. in the Bull Barn, with attendance anticipated at about 800.
The presentation of the "Citizen of the Year" will highlight the night's activities.

Committee Favors LP&L Retention
One question raised by the subcommittee, Bradford said, was why LP&L was not yet interconnected with another electric company although "taxpayers voted money for it" in a bond election.
What effect the national energy policy will have on LP&L and whether it will "take energy from us," also needs to be addressed by the committee, he said.
Committee members set their next meeting for 7 p.m. on Jan. 22 when Maeker said they should be able to agree on an "adequate and comprehensive list of questions" to be answered by the committee.
When the questions are "truthfully, honestly and appropriately answered, we should be in the position to make recommendations," Maeker said.

Shah, Family Yield Assets

Bakhtiar as saying a Communist band of 200 saboteurs from Afghanistan was rounded up after disturbances in midtown Tehran Monday night.
"I will not allow Afghanistan to export to us red revolution and massacre," he was quoted as saying of his pro-Soviet eastern neighbor.
Government sources said that Bakhtiar failed to get Gen. Fereidun Jam, a popular former army chief of staff, to change his mind and accept the war minister's portfolio in a meeting Tuesday.
The official reason given was that Jam's son was seriously ill in London. Informed sources said Jam had insisted that the service chiefs report directly to him, instead of the shah, who remains commander in chief of the armed forces.

Chilling Roar

Chinese Leader Urges U.S. To Expand Navy

PEKING (AP)—Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was quoted Tuesday as urging the United States to expand its naval strength in the Pacific to offset the growth of Soviet naval and air forces in the area.
He also called for beefed up military preparedness in Japan and possible cooperation among the Southeast Asian nations of Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia and Singapore for defense against what he views as a Soviet threat.
The 74-year-old Teng, China's army chief of staff, met for two hours with four U.S. senators studying the military situation in the Pacific. He told them he is more concerned with Soviet activities in the Pacific than with the million Russian troops on the China-Soviet borders, they said.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the senatorial task force, told a news conference afterward that China does not view Soviet ground forces in the Far East "as large enough to undertake a massive, decisive invasion of China."
Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said that Teng told the senators that to be successful, a Soviet invasion would require between four and five million soldiers. Teng reportedly added that the principal focus of Soviet military power is in Europe and the Middle East.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter declined comment on Teng's reported remarks.
The senators gave this account of other points Teng made at their meeting.
Apparently seeking to allay American fears over the future of Taiwan in the wake of establishment of U.S.-China diplomatic relations, Teng said the Nationalist island could keep its present form of rule and economy, as well as its armed forces, following reunification with the mainland.
Teng said China would use force against Taiwan only if it refused for an indefinite period to enter into negotiations or if the Soviet Union attempted to interfere in the island's affairs, a possibility he considered remote.

Homestead Sign-Up By Mail Planned

Brooks said. The tax office will send those homeowners the new rendition-aid forms, he added.
In the form, the homeowner swears that the property in question "is my residence homestead; that I do not claim a homestead elsewhere; neither does my spouse (if any) claim a homestead elsewhere."
By signing such a statement, the homeowner notes: "I hereby make application for $5,000 exemption from the market value of my residence homestead" as provided for in the new state constitutional amendment.
Besides mailing out the forms, Brooks said he plans to run newspaper ads and have the forms available at the tax office, 1001 Texas Ave.

The completed forms must be returned to the tax office by mail or in person by April 20, Brooks said.
He said the forms will be mailed out in February or early March.
The general homestead exemption applies to "school taxes only," Brooks stressed. The exemption is in addition to exemptions already in effect for the elderly and for disabled veterans.
The back of the rendition-aid form lists 10 categories of homeowners eligible for the exemption:
"Married or unmarried adult, including one living alone; only one homestead per family — husband and wife cannot each claim in one; life tenant, or life estate, or tenant in common with others will qualify; separate property, joint ownership or community property will qualify if supported by necessary facts; divorced parent: person in a rest home 'intending' to return to their home; may qualify even though 'temporarily' rented to others; mobile home, even though in a mobile home park; residence located on 'leased land': condominium apartment."
School districts can offer the general homestead exemption without having to raise taxes because the state is promising to reimburse them for lost revenue.
Although the constitutional amendment took effect Jan. 1, not all parts can be implemented now, Brooks said in a note on the new rendition forms.
"Taxation of 'open-space' land based on its productive capacity; exemption of personal automobiles; and additional exemptions for persons over age 65 or disabled, require additional legislative action before this constitutional amendment can become effective."
To complete the new rendition forms, homeowners will need to know the legal description of their property, Brooks said. The legal description can be found on property tax receipts or other documents concerning the home, he said.

Job Agency Records Questioned

newed, Miss Henderson indicated in her audit modifications that ALC had excused previously unexcused student absences and altered attendance records to reflect changes.
The Shuffield letter was "written to set the record straight," the county judge said. Shaw added he asked Irons to request from Shuffield a written explanation of the situation.
Shuffield told the A-J Tuesday he met with Miss Henderson Oct. 25 to discuss the absences and to determine which ones he would have excused at the time "had I been given information showing the reasons for the absence at the time of the absence."
He said Miss Henderson indicated she wanted the information in order to prepare adjustments in the amount of money overpaid to students.
But, he stressed, he never was asked to alter attendance records and he never did so.
"I don't think that she (Miss Henderson) was, and we certainly weren't, trying to cover up anything," he said.
He acknowledged, though, that he was puzzled by the corrected audit's notations of attendance record corrections.
"I don't know why she used that expression on it. But it was not to mean we altered our documents," Shuffield said.
He added, "I was surprised at the question being raised" several months after the SPAG directors accepted the report.
"I think you're trying to make something out of it that's not there," Shuffield said.

Weather Information
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Aviation Administration and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration have begun testing a low-cost airport weather information system. The system uses a computer voice to brief pilots on wind conditions and provide them with accurate altitude settings.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Toddler Calls White House

WOONSOCKET, R.I. (AP) — Janeen Costello was taken aback when she picked up a telephone her 3-year-old son had left off the hook and the woman on the line said, "This is the White House."
 "The White House?" she replied. "You mean the White House in Washington?"
 Mrs. Costello is accustomed to the escapades of her young son, Walter, who has a thing about phones at age 3. But this time he had gone too far, somehow dialing the 11 digits needed to reach the White House from this northern Rhode Island city.
 Mrs. Costello said she often tucks the toddler in for the night only to find him a few minutes later playing with the telephone in her bedroom.
 "A lot of the time I'll go in there and I'll hear some operator saying, 'No little boy, now hang up the phone.'" Mrs. Costello explained to the White House security man that her son must have accidentally dialed the number. He told her that was almost impossible.
 "I said I know that, but it happened. It was just amazing."

Nixon Up For Grammy

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Among the scores of familiar names that cropped up in the list of nominees for the recording industry's 21st Annual Grammy Awards was former President Richard M. Nixon, who celebrated his 66th birthday Tuesday.
 Nominated Monday in the "Best Spoken Word Recording" category was "The Nixon Interviews With David Frost."
 The five-part series of Nixon-Frost television interviews was broadcast in the spring of 1977. A record of the sessions was produced and released last year by Polydor.
 Nixon's competition for the award, which will be announced Feb. 15, includes the soundtracks for "Citizen Kane," "Roots," and excerpts from "John Steinbeck: The Grapes Of Wrath," read by Henry Fonda.

Weatherwoman Quits

LONDON (AP) — It's not all sunshine standing in front of a TV camera to tell Britons what sort of weather they're going to have.
 So Barbara Edwards, the only weatherwoman who appears on the British Broadcasting Corporation screens, Tuesday announced she has quit the job after nearly five years.
 Ostinately, it's because she only gets 45 seconds per forecast twice each evening.
 "That's a sketchy service and a waste of time," she said. "It should be two minutes at least."
 But Barbara, 40 and married to a banker, confesses to another and more feminine reason. She can't wear the clothes she wants to in front of the cameras.
 "I wasn't allowed to wear light colors like white, cream and yellow because they reflected the studio lights which had been set up to highlight the weather charts and not me," she said.
 "I couldn't wear spots, stripes or checks because they shimmered when I moved. It made my choice very limited and difficult."
 However, Barbara is still reading weather bulletins on radio, where she is given 2½ minutes and can wear any clothes she likes.

Squirrel Monkey Pregnant

LANSDOWNE, Pa. (AP) — Since squirrel monkeys don't reproduce easily in captivity, Bill Hrehla didn't believe it when his wife told him Wilhelmina, their pet, was pregnant.
 "She got bigger, but I still didn't believe it until my wife hollered, 'She's having a baby,'" Hrehla said.
 Wilhelmina and her mate, Walt, are the proud parents of 7-inch long Jimbo, born Sunday morning. But no one is sure whether the new addition to the Hrehla's family of pets is a he or a she.
 That's not unusual in the case of squirrel monkeys, said Dr. Wilbur Amand, the Philadelphia Zoo's acting executive director.

Faubus Shuns Publicity

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus says he quietly moved to Houston last year because he "wanted to see what it was like to be an unknown, an ordinary citizen."
 The 69-year-old Faubus, who said his health also figured in the decision, said Monday night he shunned publicity because he believed it was time to retire from public life.
 Faubus attracted national attention in 1957 when he defied a federal court order to desegregate Little Rock's public schools and President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent in federal troops.
 Last year, Faubus, who served six terms as governor, left the state without a forwarding address and put his country mansion near Huntsville up for sale. His whereabouts were secret for several months.
 In an interview after a surprise appearance at a party for Gov.-elect Bill Clinton, Faubus said, "I just want to live quietly now."
 Faubus, looking fit and alert, declined to elaborate on his health problems, although he did say he had undergone major surgery recently.

Donna Reed Moves To Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Actress Donna Reed, whose television show ran for eight years and who appeared in about 40 films, has moved from Los Angeles to Tulsa, where she is looking for a house or a condominium.
 Miss Reed, who recently finished shooting in an NBC movie, "The Best Place to Be," has settled in with her husband, Grover Asmus.
 "My husband took a position here with the Williams Brothers Co.," she said, explaining the move to Tulsa.
 Asmus, an executive engineer, retired from the military service six years ago as a colonel. He has been here since November.

Victim May Gain Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — An aspiring country and western singer, portrayed as the victim of unscrupulous music promoters in a segment of last Sunday's CBS-TV news show "60 Minutes," says the publicity may make it all worthwhile.
 Tim Nichols, 20, of Springfield, Mo., admits he was duped by a Nashville promoter who allegedly squeezed $4,000 out of him for recording and making 500 copies of his song, "I'd Do It Again."
 Nichols was featured as one of two victims of some promoters who promise to merchandise the songs of aspiring recording artists for a large fee. The program said the promoters seldom deliver on the promises.
 But on Monday, all that cash was beginning to look well-spent.
 "We were talking to one of the radio programmers here and he said if we work this right it could be a gold mine," said Nichols.
 Now another Nashville promoter has expressed interest in Nichols and a local television station has done a story on his predicament.

They Had Wind; He Didn't

DENVER (AP) — Ken Kellet, who tried to duplicate the historic first plane flight at Kitty Hawk, N.C., says there was one major error in plans he used to build a replica of the Wright brothers' craft.
 But Kellet said lack of wind was responsible for his failure in three attempts to take off from Kitty Hawk Dec. 17, and not the plan error. The Wrights had a steady 27 mph headwind for their historic flight in 1903, he said, while his replica was aided by winds of only about 15 mph.

Health Systems Plan Approval Sought

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
 Avalanche-Journal Staff
 The president of South Plains Health Systems has asked for public acceptance and implementation of newly approved agency plans concerning area health needs.
 At a League of Women Voters public forum Tuesday, Ronald Warner emphasized the need for public cooperation in implementing the Health Systems Plan and the Annual Implementation Plan approved by the system's board of directors on Jan. 4.
 The agency, responsible for health planning in a 15-county Lubbock area, develops these plans as a guide for the identification of area health needs and resource development.
 The plans were developed as a part of a full designation application for the plan. The full designation status would give the agency additional authority, including the approval of federal grants in this area.
 South Plains Health Systems has conditional designation and thus functions chiefly in an advisory role.

"In the final analysis, the plans belong to the people of this 15-county area. They are not the agency's plans, but rather community or area plans," Warner said.
 "We do not have nor will we ever have the staff or volunteers available within the SPHS to implement every aspect of the plans or even a substantial majority," he said.
 Warner designated as "high priority" the last pages of the agency's executive summary which identifies the specific objectives contained in the plan.
 The objectives are classified according to major areas of concern, including cardiovascular disease, cancer, communicable diseases, arthritis, alcohol and drug abuse and public education.
 "In June" Warner said, "our priority will be on implementation and resource development. But the federal government wants to see us do cost containment because of rising health care costs. So there's conflict there."
 He said that the area is "way behind" some cities such as Amarillo in emergency medical service, except for Lubbock County.
 He also said that the area needs better public health programs.
 Asked if an outside agency such as South Plains Health Systems encounters much opposition from doctors, Warner said, "We really haven't received much overt opposition from doctors." He added that such opposition may be non-existent because the chairman of the agency board of directors is a physician.

ON BLACKWELL'S LIST — Susan Somers of ABC-TV's "Three's Company," was second from the top on the list of the world's worst dressed women, released Tuesday by waspish California designer, Mr. Blackwell. Dolly Parton Heads Designer's List Of Worst-Dressed Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dolly Parton was the queen of the country music world but she's also the world's worst-dressed female personality, according to self-appointed fashion critic Robert Blackwell.
 "Too many yards of Dolly poured into too few inches of fabric!" was Blackwell's verdict as he named Miss Parton the worst-dressed woman of 1978 on Tuesday.
 Miss Parton dethroned last year's designee for worst dressed, Farrah Fawcett-Majors, who in Blackwell's 19th annual list slipped to fifth place.
 Suzanne Somers of ABC-TV's "Three's Company," was ranked second, followed by No. 3 Christina Onassis Kazov and No. 4 supermodel Cheryl Tieggs.
 Blackwell, a Los Angeles fashion designer, has become at least as famous for his worst-dressed rankings as for his own "Mr. Blackwell" creations. But the lists probably would never have attracted much attention without the usual terse critiques of the personalities involved.
 "No. 2 Miss Somers: 'Looks like she was hit by a flash flood!'"
 "No. 3 Mrs. Kazov: 'Mother Earth is playing Russian roulette with her wardrobe!'"
 "No. 4 Cheryl Tieggs: 'The three T's — Tieggs, Tacky, Togs ... A moulting road-runner!'"
 "No. 5 Miss Fawcett-Majors: 'Strikes a minor chord in fashion.'"
 "No. 6 Queen Noor of Jordan, the former Elizabeth Halaby: 'A centerfold for Popular Mechanics!' Blackwell had an explanatory note on the queen: "I mean for a girl to become Queen of Jordan and run around in Levis, anyone with an ounce of taste has to say this is bad."
 "No. 7 singer-actress Olivia Newton-John: 'The right dress in the wrong century!'"
 "No. 8 acting duo Cindy Williams and Penny Marshall of ABC-TV's "Laverne and Shirley": "Double feature disaster!"
 "No. 9 singer Linda Ronstadt: "Hits a high note in song, but a low note in fashion!"
 "No. 10 singer Bette Midler: "She didn't go to a rummage sale, she wore it!"

$2,000 OFFERED FOR DOG
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dog-lovers from all over the country have helped an Arizona woman raise a $2,000 reward for the return of her ailing 2-year-old basset hound and four other dogs kidnapped after a dog show at the Kennel Club of Beverly Hills. Claudia Lane of Phoenix said the ailing "Champ" may die if he doesn't receive medication for a potentially fatal kidney ailment. Mrs. Lane said four baskets and one whippet she valued at $10,000 were in crates in her motor home when the vehicle was stolen Sunday from the Los Angeles Sports Arena parking lot.

PARENTS JAILED—Nadia and Marvin Johnson were ordered to jail without bail Monday when they refused to turn over custody of their 17-month-old son, Jerome Alexis. Circuit Judge Ira Dubitsky, who ordered the Johnsons jailed, felt it was necessary because of their history of apparent violence toward each other and their refusal to obey his orders. Couple Chooses Jail Over Giving Up Son

MIAMI (AP) — On their way to jail for refusing to give up custody of their 17-month-old son during a bitter divorce dispute, Nadia and Marvin Johnson told authorities only that the boy was with "people who love him."

"I respect the law. I am not a lawbreaker," Mrs. Johnson, 27, said Tuesday from her cell. "And I don't need my dirty laundry thrown in front of everybody ... But this is my first child and nobody can tell me to give him up. The thought of him going to Youth Hall, to be with strangers, away from me ..."

When testimony of violence and beatings were divulged in their divorce proceedings, a judge ordered the Johnsons to turn over the son, Jerome Alexis, to state authorities.

And even though the two say they now have patched up their differences and intend to stay together, Circuit Judge Ira Dubitsky ordered them jailed without bond Monday until they give up the child.

They wouldn't tell state officials where the boy was, other than to say he was with "people who love him."

Mrs. Johnson spent Monday night in a cell at the Dade County Women's Detention Center. Her husband, Marvin, 31, was in the Dade County Jail.

"Last night was the first night I was away from my son," Mrs. Johnson said. "I don't know if it was as heartbreaking for him as it was for me."

Mrs. Johnson filed for divorce in October, alleging in court papers that her husband had beaten her. While considering the case, Dubitsky ordered the couple to live apart and he granted custody of the child to Mrs. Johnson's mother. But the Johnsons continued living together, and they kept their son with them.

On Christmas Day, Dubitsky wrote in his order Monday, he received a call from Mrs. Johnson "indicating she had been beaten by her husband and locked out of her house ... On the following day, both parties appeared before the court. Both parties bore extensive scars and bruises, which each attributed to the other."

Several days later, the judge gave the Johnsons 10 days to turn their child over to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "My basic plan was to keep the child away from them long enough to determine their fitness and suitability for custody," Dubitsky said. He said court testimony included an unproved inference that the child once was beaten.

He said he felt it necessary to jail the Johnsons on Monday because of their history of apparent violence toward each other and their refusal to obey his orders.

Colorado Official Departing Under Cloud

DENVER (AP) — George Brown, one of the few black lieutenant governors since Reconstruction, left office Tuesday, still embroiled in a dispute with the governor that has led to allegations of racism and cost him his last paycheck.

BROWN

Brown, 52, is a onetime police reporter who spent 19 years in the Colorado Legislature before seeking the lieutenant governor's post as a running mate of Gov. Richard Lamm.

He opted not to seek re-election last year after Lamm maintained a studied neutrality before the state Democratic convention. "I could win again," Brown told the convention. "The only issue for me is at what price."

Brown's four-year term expired Tuesday, when Lamm was inaugurated along with his new lieutenant governor, Nancy Dick of Aspen, the first woman to hold that post in Colorado.

Lamm accused Brown of overspending his budget by about $10,000 and ordered the state controller to withhold Brown's $2,083 personal paycheck for December. The governor said he warned Brown in November that he would not be permitted to spend more than half of the money available for his staff and office expenses in the fiscal year beginning last July 1.

"The pot is dry," said Lamm. "We all have to live within our budgets."

Brown said Lamm cannot legally hold back the pay and has threatened to sue to recover it. He claimed Lamm has singled him out for harassment in the overspending issue.

At an angry confrontation between some 50 black leaders and Lamm in his office last week, Urban League President Larry Borom of Denver accused the governor of "demeaning the black people of this state" by his action. Lamm, who is white, denied that his action was racially motivated or a personal slap at Brown.

The paycheck controversy was not the first run-in between the two. In November, Brown pardoned convicted murderer Sylvester Lee Garrison while acting as governor when Lamm was vacationing in Florida. Lamm returned a week later, issued an executive order revoking the pardon and said he would not leave the state again until Brown was out of office.

Brown, repeatedly named one of the nation's "One Hundred Most Influential Black Americans" by Ebony Magazine, made headlines in August 1975, when he told a lieutenant governors' meeting that in 1943, as a cadet in a segregated Army Air Corps unit in Alabama, he had been chained and branded with a K — representing the Ku Klux Klan — by a farmer in whose field he had crashed.

Brown later said the incident had happened to another cadet and that he did not mean to give the impression he had been personally involved.

A month later, Brown was the subject of a Denver grand jury investigation into about $3,600 in private travel expenses he had billed to the state. Brown attributed the billing to a clerical error, repaid the state and no charges were filed.

Brown said recently that serving as lieutenant governor has been "a very frustrating position in a number of ways. There's the illusion that you can do things, but when you try to do them, you discover that it's only an illusion."

Herbicide Accused In Vets' Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal suit that could affect as many as 4.2 million Vietnam veterans is underway in federal court in Manhattan against three makers of an alleged cancer-causing herbicide known as "Agent Orange."

Attorney Victor Yannacone Jr. of Patchogue, N.Y., filed the 104-page class-action complaint Monday on behalf of the late Paul Reutershan of Stamford, Conn.

Reutershan was a helicopter crew chief in Vietnam in 1968. Before he died of cancer of the colon on Dec. 14, Reutershan, 28, tried to prove that his illness was caused by the defoliant that was sprayed in Vietnam.

Named as defendants were Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, Mich.; Hercules Inc. of Wilmington, Del., and Northwest Industries Inc. of Chicago. The firms make herbicides that contain minute amounts of a chemical called dioxin, a suspected carcinogen.

Some 44 million pounds of the herbicide, containing 368 pounds of dioxin, were used in Vietnam from 1962 to 1969, Yannacone said. During the same period, he said, 78 million pounds of the herbicide was used domestically.

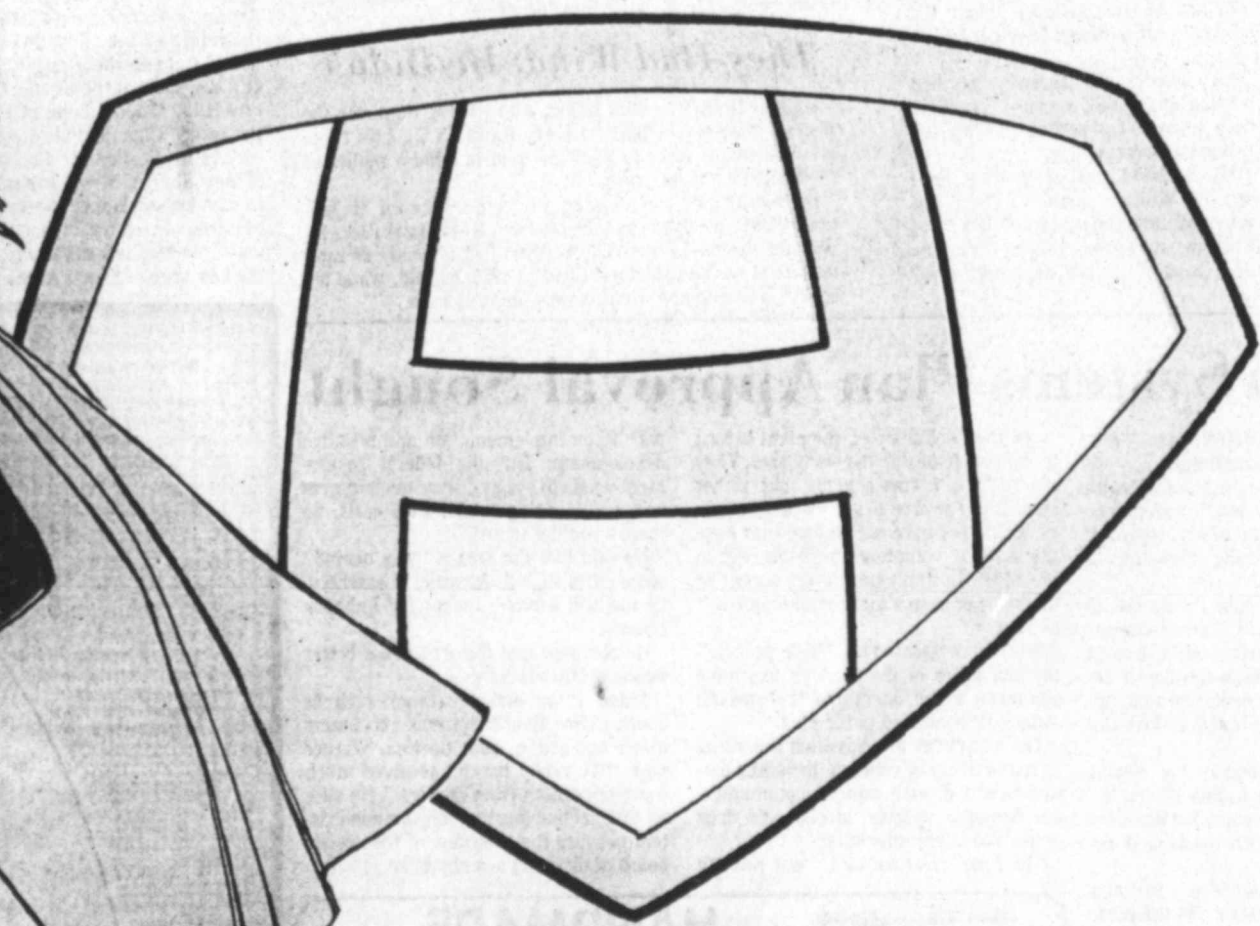

Although the military stopped using the herbicide about 1969, it is still used on pasture and range land and to control brush and weeds on highways.

The lawyer asked for an injunction to restrain further sale and promotion of the chemical and a company-sponsored fund to pay the medical and economic costs of cancer and other diseases suffered by exposed victims and their families.

It also demanded reimbursements to the Veterans Administration, the Social Security Administration and stockholders and users of public utilities for expenses associated with dioxin use.

Public Favors Oil Deregulation, Survey Shows

BY LOUIS HARRIS

Worried by the recent rise in OPEC oil prices and the growing uncertainty about the Iranian oil supply, a 65-23 percent majority of Americans now would favor "deregulation of the price of all oil produced in the United States, if this would encourage development of more oil production here at home."

These latest results from an ABC News-Harris Survey of 1,498 adults nationwide mark a striking rise in sentiment in favor of decontrol. Back in 1977, a 52-23 percent majority favored such a step, and in 1975, an even lower 46-31 percent plurality favored deregulation.

Before the recent OPEC price hike of 14.5 percent, President Carter indicated that he was prepared to deregulate domestic oil prices. However, since the unexpected action by the oil producing countries, the Carter administration has become worried about the impact of decontrol of oil on the rate of inflation here at home. Mr. Carter has the power to deregulate oil without the approval of Congress, but in recent times no president has wanted to take that step without sharing some of the responsibility with Congress. Therefore, it now seems unlikely that the president will decontrol oil unless some kind of windfall profits tax passed by Congress accompanies his move.

Behind the public's willingness to go along with decontrol is their growing conviction that conservation of energy simply will not do the job, and that domestic production of oil must be increased. It is now expected that consumption of oil in this country will rise again, on top of the 10 percent increase that took place in 1978. This will result in an estimated 10 percent increase in the amount of oil the United States must import from abroad, which could make this country more vulnerable to yet another OPEC price increase or could lead to shortages if the cut-in Iran's oil production continues.

When asked to choose between an all-out effort to cut back the use of energy in the United States and an all-out effort to increase the production of energy, the public opts for upping production by a decisive 57-30 percent. This is a marked change from 1977, when a much narrower 41-32 percent plurality felt the same way.

Oil companies argue that without the extra revenues from prices which were pegged to world prices for oil, they would have neither the capital nor the incentive to explore for new sources. Critics of the oil companies and decontrol have argued strenuously that the oil companies are not really interested in more production, but instead seek to maximize their profits.

Resentment of OPEC and its latest action runs deep in this country. By an overwhelming 82-12 percent margin, a majority of the public feels that the recent OPEC price hike was not justified. It is apparent that a growing number of Americans feel caught in a squeeze, facing continual price rises in the cost of energy, but with no way to control future increases as long as we are dependent on foreign sources for close to 80 percent of our total needs.

Yet the more people live with the problem of energy, the more they appear to be resigned to continual increases in the price of gasoline and fuel. They have finally come to the point where they are willing to risk the inflationary impact of raising domestic prices. Thus, for the first time, the oil companies now appear to have public opinion on their side on the issue of deregulation.

However, if decontrol actually takes place and domestic production of oil and natural gas does not increase, then there is likely to be deep resentment in this country against the federal government and even more so against the oil companies.

Americans may be getting more sophisticated about the energy problem, but they are also deeply disturbed by it. Consistently, close to six in 10 people have said they feel that energy prices are one of the major culprits of inflation. This is one issue that touches the lives of almost all Americans.

Temple Survivors Recovering From Withdrawal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Slowly they are starting to put their lives back together again, the Peoples Temple survivors and the relatives of the more than 900 who died in Guyana two months ago.

As the survivors have returned to their homes, they say they are depressed, confused, feel betrayed and don't know what they will do now that the temple — to which many devoted years — is dead.

And they have memories that will not die. Or as survivor Tim Carter put it: "It will be with me for the rest of my life."

The survivors and relatives are experiencing something like the shock and emotional trauma that follows an earthquake or flood, says Chris Hatcher, a University of California psychologist who is Mayor Dianne Feinstein's personal representative in helping temple survivors find their way back to normal lives.

B METRO Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Wednesday, January 10, 1979

But there are two big differences, Hatcher says. First, many survivors devoted years of their lives to the temple and can't push aside the Guyana slaughter as one freak incident. Second, there is a strong undercurrent of fear by some survivors that the horrors may not be over — that some survivors may kill others.

"It only takes three or four weeks for them to find a place to live and get a job, but it will take a long time for them to work out their emotional problems, such as guilt and fear," Hatcher said in an interview.

"I would say it looks fairly good for them to get reconnected to the larger society," said Hatcher, who has met with about 100 temple survivors and relatives and is providing them counseling and help in getting re-established. "But a major part of the real work with them will come three months, six months, or 12 months after Nov. 18" — the day of the mass murder-suicide at the Rev. Jim Jones's jungle commune.

"When people put their lives together, they have time to think. And they think about their guilt: why did I survive and not someone else? Why didn't I see it coming and stop it?"

"With a major disaster, a lot of people have flashbacks. They need to talk about it, but they're very reluctant to do so. They feel fear and anger. Most have a real concern about the public's feelings."

"It is very hard for them because the most typical comment they hear is, 'Why did it happen?' and 'What was it really like?' and they find it impossible to answer those questions."

"Also, most of their connections with other people will be relatively routine, but they have had a very extraordinary experience that they didn't share with those around them now. They need to have someone around them trust, so that when these heavier problems arise they will have someone to turn to," said Hatcher.

He said his most difficult job is building up that trust.

SURVIVORS ADJUSTING — Jerry Parks, center, is flanked by his children, Dale, right, and Tracy, at a New York hotel. Parks, 45, of Ukiah, Calif., fled the Jonestown commune after his wife was slain. "Something like this will stick with you for a long time," he says. (AP Laserphoto)

Help for the survivors — 80 survived Jonestown but the temple says hundreds of others left earlier or never went to Guyana — is also coming from the Human Freedom Center in Berkeley, which was formed by former temple members before the Guyana disaster.

"Our goal is to help people. We're all family," said Teresa Cobb, 26, an organizer who defected from the temple five years ago.

"We have clothing and offer that," said Holli Morton, public relations representative for the center. "Quite a few of the survivors coming back have stayed temporarily with Teresa and her brother Jim," she added. "I think they're going to re-integrate. It takes a lot of time to work up from nothing, but they'll make it."

Typical of the survivors' attitude is that of Jerry Parks, 45, of Ukiah, whose wife was shot to death, along with Rep. Leo Ryan and three others, by temple members in Guyana. Parks was fleeing the Jonestown commune with his wife, son and two daughters after 7 1/2 months of what he calls being held prisoner by armed guards.

"Something like this will stick with you a long time, but it's good to be home," Parks said. "Now all we are trying to do is to pick up the pieces."

He took a six-month leave from his job with a supermarket and now is having trouble finding work.

Steve Katsaris, a psychologist who is director of a private school for handicapped children in Ukiah, went to Guyana with Ryan and failed to persuade his 25-year-old daughter, Maria, to leave Jonestown. She was among the dead.

"I want to return to business as usual," Katsaris said. "I know I'm just like hundreds of other parents and relatives — this whole thing has me quite depressed."

Brothers Tim and Mike Carter survived the slaughter but each lost his wife and only child. They said money is their biggest problem. Both said they had been contacted by magazine writers and book publishers who offered them money for their story.

"I find the idea of making money off this obscene," said Tim, 30.

Before leaving Guyana, Tim had said, "I don't want anything to do with the Peoples Temple ever again. I'll never forget it. It will be with me for the rest of my life."

Michael Prokes, 32, a former Stockton television newsman who fled Jonestown with the Carters, said he will maintain the ideals that led him to join the temple. He might work with young people, he said, but in an unobtrusive way with no organized control and no leader.

Guyana remains in his mind, too, he said. "Time can't ever heal something like that."

Stone-Cutters Make Tombstones To Order

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — If you thought a tombstone was just a hunk of rock, you haven't seen the work of Wendell Adams and Dale Lawyer, whose artistry preserves the trademark of the one laid to rest beneath it.

"We've put on everything from trucks and trains to telephones and a Studebaker. It couldn't be just any Studebaker, it had to be a '63," Adams said.

He designs and produces unique tombstones in a small shop he opened in this central Illinois community in 1975.

Adams, a third-generation stone-cutter, began working with his father at 15. He's now 28.

"I'd say this year has been the biggest year as far as putting on special designs," Adams said. "I couldn't begin to count how many we've done."

He estimated that about 150 of the 1,000 tombstones produced in the shop this year were custom designs.

One of the most recent creations was a highly detailed steam locomotive, belching smoke and roaring down a set of railroad tracks. The tombstone was done for former railroad engineer Bradford Parker.

"I can't draw from memory," said Adams. "I sent my wife to find a picture of the right locomotive."

They also have done a jeep for a four-wheel drive enthusiast, animals for hunters and several tractor-trailer rigs for truckers.

"Everytime it (the truck) gets to another cemetery, somebody will see it and they want it," said Adams.

One of the most difficult projects was for a woman who wanted a tombstone with a boy on a motorcycle.

"It couldn't be just any boy. It had to be her son. He was killed in a motorcycle accident."

Doing the boy's face from a photograph was very difficult, and when it was complete Adams showed it to his customer. "She saw it and she broke into tears. It was just what she wanted."

Adams also was commissioned to make a double tombstone for a woman who worked for the telephone company.

"In her garage, she's got this 1963 Studebaker. Her husband fell in love with it before he died. She wanted the Studebaker on his side and a telephone on her side."

Adams never had any formal art training, but got some help from Lawyer, who had worked for Adams' father and had done some special designs on stones.

Special designs are drawn on a sheet of rubber, then a stencil is cut from it. The stencil is placed over the polished face of the tombstone, and sand or metal pellets are blasted at the stone. They bounce off the rubber while cutting the design into the rock.

Adams said the locomotive took about 16 hours to complete.

He said he did special designs at no additional cost to attract business.

"But, it's beginning to be such a big thing that we're going to have to charge extra. It takes so much time."

He said an average tombstone might cost $800, with the special artwork raising it by another $100.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a secret I want to share with everyone!

The secret deals with my method of caring for my handkerchiefs and my many, many scarves so that they are always fresh and chic-looking and ready to go.

I use various sizes of clear plastic bags. Into each one I insert a lightweight cardboard slightly smaller in size than the bag. When I remove a scarf which I have worn, I fold it carefully and insert it into the see-through plastic bag. The cardboard keeps it smooth and neat and easy to handle. Like colors may be stored in the same bag. Flip the bag over and a fresh pocket with its divider offer more storage.

Scarves stored in this way come out from their storage places looking freshly pressed. But the best thing is the ease with which these neat, semi-rigid forms can be sized for convenience, stacked in the drawer, leafed through for selection, and packed in suitcases when their owners travel.

I have been a Heloise reader for many years and have put into practice many clever ideas which your readers have shared with you and us. I hope that others may find my discovery helpful. — Marion E. Holt

DEAR HELOISE:

Perhaps my idea will be of help to all nursing mothers. I know with a new baby around (especially if this is your first) you simply don't have time to eat.

Many times I will fix myself a sandwich before sitting down to nurse my son. With only one free hand, I find it hard to hold a sandwich together. Now I slip a plastic bag over it and pull down the plastic as I eat the sandwich. No more lettuce or tomatoes falling out!! — K.W.

Pretty smart thinking! Also you don't have to bathe the baby afterwards — lettuce and tomatoes do get drippy! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a little ditty I made up concerning your ever-famous nylon net — hope you like it!

Here is a dish rag named "Heloise": Take her and love her, she works with ease.

'Twon't sour or smell and, boy, it is swell, and when you use her think of me. She may be a bag, but she is my rag; she'll never get tattered and torn.

Scrub all pots and pans, whatever you can. Remember me when you use "Heloise." — Gladys E. Smith

Gladys, I think that is about the squeezeest thing anyone has ever said about me. Thank you. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We all want the humming bird feeder solution to look pretty so that it will attract all our fine-feathered friends.

The next time you open a bottle of maraschino cherries, save the juice and, instead of adding food coloring to the solution, add the cherry juice.

Like sure that it attractive and I even feel like taking a sip. — Jeanette Rowen

DEAR HELOISE:

Does anyone have an old clamp-type hand twist can opener, with long handles, that has served its purpose?

Don't pitch it out, use it as a push and pull — just hook the bow under your oven rack and pull, put the bow against the rack and push. I find it works better than a pot holder. Sometime, after several washings, the pot holder will get thin in places and cause you to burn your hand. — Nanna K.

You would think I could think of all these little goodies, but without all my friends out there I would be lost! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Don't throw away that fabric commode seat cover because it keeps sliding off... After deciding to fix mine, I discovered I had no elastic. So I cut the elastic off a pair of old panty hose. (Snip below the band. Don't cut the elastic in two; leave it in a circle.)

I zigzagged it around the under edge of the cover and now have the neatest fitting one and it cost only a few minutes of my time.

Can't beat that, now can you? — Mildred Smith

Not even with a stick! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

A dash or two of cinnamon added to oatmeal when it begins to boil adds a delightful change in flavor. — Eric Hayles

Sounds like you have a winner there, Eric. I tried it and liked it. — Heloise

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Are there any corrections for children who have knock-knee? What are the causes? I am the mother of four children. The two girls, at about eight years, began to develop knock-knees. The two younger boys are bowlegged. I am knock-kneed, which I don't understand because both my parents were bowlegged. So was my brother. The children are otherwise beautiful and healthy. Please comment. — Mrs. J.G.

The shape of legs has three distinct phases in youngsters. In infancy there is the tendency toward bowing. This is followed by a knock-knee phase, which is the body's way of overcorrecting in order to compensate. By adolescence the legs find a middle ground.

Ordinarily, these apparent deformities in young children correct themselves, but they must be seen to be properly evaluated. Your pediatrician, who sees thousands of young legs, would be the best judge.

Years ago, a nutritional deficiency called rickets (specifically a lack of vitamin D) entered this picture, weakening bones and causing unfortunate developmental deformities. This is not a problem today with our improved diets. I cannot say whether or not your family history of bowing and knock-knee is a hereditary quirk having to do with leg development.

Bowing can be caused by what is called internal tibial torsion. This is abnormal one-sided tension on certain long muscles of the lower legs. Children may develop this from sleeping on their abdomen with their feet turned inward or it may develop in the womb. Another, less common cause is a defect at the end (epiphysis) of a long bone of the leg.

If your doctor suspects something beyond normal is causing the leg shape, he can have it seen by an orthopedic doctor. Sometimes real defects can be corrected surgically or by therapy. If the two girls, who you say now are knock-kneed, were formerly bowlegged, you might suspect the normal development I mentioned earlier.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Our seven-year-old broke out with a rash on his hands, including the palms, also on the ankles. It gradually spread. The doctor said it was Rocky Mountain spotted fever and he treated it with antibiotic medicine. He said it was just called that but wasn't limited to that area. We live in New York and have never visited the Rocky Mountains ever. We are still confused. — Mrs. T.D.

It is caused by tick bites, begins with a high fever followed by the rash. It can extend beyond the ankles or hands to the thighs and other areas. You apparently missed the high fever since you don't mention it. Not unusual. Children are common victims because they tend to be extra-friendly with dogs, the prime carriers of the ticks. Other animals, such as the rabbit, can also carry it.

It was once thought to be limited to Western states but, as your experience proves, it is not. Since development of antibiotics, deaths from this, once so uncommon, have been rare. With prompt attention and treatment there should be no serious lasting effects. If you have pets have them checked.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have an overactive thyroid gland and am taking medicine for that. I wondered about my chances of becoming pregnant. Thank you for helping clear up some confusion I had about thyroid, etc. I have your material. — R.S.

Your chances of becoming pregnant are good in spite of your hyperthyroid condition. In fact, you should watch for the earliest signs of pregnancy while on the anti-thyroid medicine, which can cross the wall of the placenta. If you get pregnant you may have to discontinue it and resume it after the baby is born.

Dear Dr. Ruble: When I was young I spilled some hot pitch on my hand. It had to be removed, with solvent, from two fingers along with the skin. It was painful. To this day I find that those two fingers turn white with the slightest cold weather. I assume this is from that incident. True? — G.J.

Could be. Tiny blood vessels may have been damaged at the time. But you should be checked for other causes of cold sensitivity.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Are there aspirins one can take with suppository like you can with other medicines? — N.V.

Yes, for people who have trouble taking them orally there are suppository aspirin products available.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is at the same time vital to human life. For a copy of the booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly," write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

If Shakespeare had been a bridge player he might well have said: "What fools these West players be." Of course, we have substituted "West players" for "mortals." But not characters who sport about in England on a mid-summer night.

West didn't bid like a fool. He waited patiently until his opponents reached three no-trump and then he doubled happily.

EASY MARINADE

To make marinade easy, the secret is "in the bag." Place meat, fish or fowl in a strong plastic bag, being sure no bones are sticking out to pierce it. Pour the marinade in and tie the bag securely; turn frequently so the marinade soaks in evenly, when you've cooked the food, discard or thoroughly wash the bag. Never return cooked food to any container in which it was stored when raw.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Are there aspirins one can take with suppository like you can with other medicines? — N.V.

Yes, for people who have trouble taking them orally there are suppository aspirin products available.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is at the same time vital to human life. For a copy of the booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly," write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
One thing about Americans. They turn every adversity into an asset. Take the energy crisis. Please. When we were told to cut back on the use of big appliances for small baking and heating jobs, there were no less than 500 small appliances that flooded the market.

There's a deep fat fryer for two shrimp. A grill for one hamburger. A Teflon top for one egg. There's a mini-oven for baking two biscuits at a time. An excuse-the-expression two-holer to bake two doughnuts.

There are crocks to accommodate an entire meal, a skillet for cooking one-dish meals, and Woks if you're feeling Oriental.

There are popcorn poppers, waffle grills and miniature percolators for one cup of coffee. There are hot beverage makers, bean pots, chili pots and electric units to keep your pots hot after you've unplugged them.

There are electric socks, blankets, handwarmers and here's a must...a unit that will heat your golf balls to insure you a more satisfying "hit" in cold weather. Where you plug in the unit is your challenge.

There are electric clocks that will not only awaken you by radio, but will project the time on the ceiling of any darkened room in large digital numerals.

There's an electric gun that looks like a six-shooter that fires out hors d'oeuvres, cookies and canapes. There are electric salad spinners to rid your greens of moisture, an electric knife, and an electric sharpener to sharpen your electric knife.

When you cut down on your energy by bringing in a pizza, there's an electric heating element to heat up your pizza if it has turned cold.

Do you have to spend time away from your appliances? No. There's a new unit for you that plugs into the cigarette lighter of your car, camper, van, or boat. You can make stews in it, bake cookies, toast sandwiches, or heat soups.

And don't forget the electric plant turner to assure your favorite blossoms that they will always be turned toward the light.

Americans have rallied so well to the challenge of having to cut back that I am reluctant to tell them about my new discovery of an appliance that cooks several meals at a time, heats up the kitchen, keeps food warm, cooks it, bakes it, has a see-through glass, cleans itself, heats golf balls and tells time.

I call it...an oven.

Family Planning Meeting Slated

Catholic Family Service, Inc. of Lubbock will have a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the DeVitt Room of the St. Mary of the Plains Hospital.

Mrs. Gracie Raef, director of natural family planning in Lubbock, will introduce materials she recently obtained in an in-depth study of natural family planning at Creighton University in Omaha, Neb.

The nine-day course attended by Mrs. Raef is the beginning of a one-year program developed by Dr. Tom Hilgers, asst. professor of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Creighton.

The program has been developed to certify teachers and standardize teaching methods for natural family planning. The course will cover the physiology of the male and female reproductive systems and the methodology of all natural family planning.

The meeting is open to all interested persons. For more information call Catholic Family Service.

CRISS-CROSS PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

- 1 cup peanut butter
- 1/2 cup margarine
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 1 egg
- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1/4 tsp. soda
- 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt

Cream together peanut butter, margarine and sugars until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and egg and beat well. Sift together flour, soda, baking powder and salt and add, mixing thoroughly. Chill dough. Shape into 1 inch balls and place about 2 inches apart on cookie sheet. Flatten with fork in crisscross pattern. Bake in 350 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was very much amused by the letter from the woman whose mother had taught all her daughters to always wear clean, good-looking underwear (no pins, rips or worn-out bloomers, girls) in case a sudden illness or an accident might land them in a hospital. How dreadful if the gossipy nurses should latch on to such scandalous information as THAT!

It so happens my husband is very finicky about his shorts. He discards them if they have the tiniest rip. In fact, he refuses to wear anything that has been mended. He says when he was young and poor he had his fill of darned socks and patched shirts.

I have no quarrel with this. If he wants to be ultra-fastidious it's OK with me. But — I don't share his notions. In fact, I go to the other extreme. I'm Scotch by birth and have always been thrifty. It so happens my hip size is about the same as his and I don't mind wearing his prematurely discarded shorts. I might add, he has a great sense of humor and thinks it's hilarious.

When I read that letter it occurred to me that if I should ever get hit by a bus and land in the hospital, the nurses would think for sure I was a transvestite! Right? — Straight But Frugal

Dear Ann Landers: I felt both angry and sad when I read that letter about the seven-year-old boy who drowned because a bunch of heartless onlookers made no attempt to help the child. In fact, one witness said the water was so filthy he wouldn't think of jumping in.

First — every child should be taught to swim as soon as he learns to walk — or earlier. Second, it is appalling that in that group of gawkers not one person knew anything about life-saving techniques. If just one person had tossed the youth something "floatable" — an empty plastic garbage can, a log, an inner tube, a styrofoam cooler, the boy's life might have been saved. It doesn't take much to keep a seven-year-old afloat.

Every day on my way to work I walk across a bridge that goes over the Chicago River. I've often thought, "What would I do if one morning I should hear someone in the river screaming for help?"

I'm sure my instincts would overcome any fears I might have and I would jump in.

But when I read that column I suddenly realized I wouldn't know HOW to jump from such a height — so I made it my business to ask a swimming instructor. He said, "Jump with legs straight under you till you hit the water — then tuck them up in front of you." Pass the word, will you? — Sun-Times Reader

Dear Reader: Thanks for the research. I hope you never have to use it. And thank you, too, for making a point of the importance of teaching children to swim at an early age. (Wish I had thought of it.)

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
For a single cup of hot "brewed" coffee, simply line a tea strainer with a coffee filter. Put in one measure (less if you like a weaker brew) of ground coffee and pour boiling water over it into a cup.
Let the strainer rest in the water at the top of the cup for a minute, longer for stronger coffee.

Here's something that has helped me potty train my second baby. My first always sat on the potty chair with no problems but my second is very impatient and cries.
So I used a small container — a one-pound margarine tub with a lid would do — and put about five or six small toys in it, such as baby keys, cars, army men, etc.

Russians Narrowing Consumer Goods Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is catching up with the United States — but very slowly — in providing its citizens with refrigerators, television sets and other consumer goods, says the Central Intelligence Agency.

Part of the reason for the Russians' sluggish growth in consumer production, reported in a recently released, 175-page annual report by the CIA, might be that the Soviet economy grew at a slower rate than that of the United States.

All the CIA's figures were for 1977, the latest available.

U.S. economic growth was 4.9 percent that year, the CIA calculated, while it was 3.3 percent in the Soviet Union.

Among the comparisons contained in the report:

- There were seven telephones for every 10 Americans; in the Soviet Union, less than one.
- In 1960, there was only one refrigerator for every 100 Soviet citizens. By 1977 there were more than 20, compared with 35 for every 100 Americans.
- Less than one new car was being made in 1960 for every 1,000 Soviet citizens. By 1977 it was less than 5 per 1,000 Russians, compared with 42 new cars produced for every 1,000 Americans.
- In 1960, there was a television set for every 50 Russians. Two years ago, the ratio had risen to one television set for every four Russians, but by then every American could boast an average of nearly two-thirds of a set all his own.
- The Soviet Union had a larger population than the United States two years ago — 258 million compared with 216 million — and was growing slightly faster, by 0.9 percent a year to America's 0.8 percent.
- But Soviet farmers produced only 125 pounds of meat annually for the average Soviet citizen, compared with the 257 pounds of meat that U.S. farmers produced for each American.
- The Russians, however, produced more milk, wool, lumber, crude oil, steel, cement and tractors than the United States, and apparently was catching up with U.S. production in natural gas, copper and synthetic rubber.
- Also, the Soviet Union was having greater success than Americans in controlling inflation. The CIA, using 1970 as a base period, said the U.S. price index rose from 100 that year to 156 in 1977. By contrast, the Soviet price index increased to only 111.
- Housing has always been in short supply in the Soviet Union, where builders apparently are falling further behind. In 1977 the Soviets were laying down less than half as much new floor space per citizen as American builders were, a decline from 1960.
- Like the United States, the Soviet Union was importing more than it was shipping abroad, a trend since 1960. By 1977 the CIA found the Soviet Union had $10,869,000,000 in outstanding credits from Western countries.

Jury Selection In Murder Case Begins Under Tight Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jury selection began Tuesday in the trial of three anti-Castro Cuban exiles accused of participating in the murder of former Chilean Ambassador Orlando Letelier, killed when his car was blown apart by a bomb.

Ronni Moffitt, also died in the blast.

Letelier was ambassador to the United States from 1971 through 1973, serving the leftist Chilean government of Salvador Allende, who was killed in a 1973 military coup.

Letelier became a critic of Chile's military junta and was working for a left-wing research group, the Institute for Policy Studies, at the time of his death.

The government has charged two of the three Cuban exiles, Guillermo Novo Sampol and Alvin Ross Diaz, with conspiracy to murder a foreign official, murder of a foreign official, the first degree murders of Letelier and Moffitt and murder by use of explosives. These charges carry maximum life terms.

Guillermo Novo Sampol and his brother, Ignacio Novo Sampol, the third defendant, are charged with lying to a grand jury. Maximum punishment is a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

Ignacio Novo also is charged with failing to tell authorities about the crime after it occurred, which carries a maximum three years in prison and a $500 fine.

All three defendants have pleaded innocent.

The government charges that three former officials of the now-dismantled Chilean intelligence agency — DINA — and two other Cuban exiles also were involved in the assassination plot. Chile's supreme court has not decided whether to extradite the Chileans. The two other Cubans are fugitives.

During arguments on preliminary motions, Parker said he would conduct a hearing on a defense request to keep the government from introducing documents seized by the FBI.

The defense unsuccessfully sought in pre-trial motions to have the trial moved to another city because of substantial press coverage in Washington.

That effort was turned down by U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker, who criticized lawyers for both sides for making comments on the case to the news media.

The trial began with extraordinary security precautions that included use of metal detectors, an X-ray machine, body searches, checks of briefcases and handbags, bomb-sniffing dogs and a sea of federal security officers. Personal protection has been ordered for Parker and prosecutors, whose lives have been threatened.

Letelier was killed on a Washington street Sept. 21, 1976, when a remote control bomb exploded under his car as he drove around a traffic circle lined with embassies. A co-worker riding with him, COTTON COUNCIL INTERNATIONAL, overseas arm of the National Cotton Council, will open an office in Hong Kong early this year to serve as the base of the industry's efforts to increase sales of U. S. cotton to textile markets in the Far East.

In making the announcement, council executive vice president Earl W. Sears said Far Eastern markets now account for about 85 percent of the industry's cotton exports.

U. S. TRADE MISSIONS, CREDIT programs, governmental and industry trade relations and other services will be emphasized, Sears said.

Maquire holds bachelor and master's degrees in textile engineering from Georgia Tech. He has served as general manager of the Supima Association and on the American Yarn Spinners Association staff.

Sears announced another move to strengthen cotton's market development activities.

J. Terry Hazelwood, council promotion manager since 1968, has been advanced to program development director for CCI and program development manager for the council's foreign operations department. He will be based in Washington.

A native of Georgia, Hazelwood joined the council in 1967 from the Associated Press in Mobile. He has served in various capacities on the public relations staff.

As promotion manager, Hazelwood directed the Maid of Cotton program, including her domestic and international tours. He also served as a public relations and promotion consultant to CCI and supervised its cooperative cotton market development programs in Thailand and Hong Kong.

He is a graduate of the University of Georgia's Grady School of Journalism.

Agricultural Fertilizer Made From Sulfur Smoke Promoted

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Ralph Peck wants his new fertilizer discovery to go up in smoke.

In fact, the more people he can find throughout the country to agree with him, the better — for the sake of state utility officials, consumers and clean air advocates everywhere.

Peck's discovery, flue gas desulfurization — smoke fertilizer, for short — is a process still being tested that converts sulfur gases from the smoke of coal-burning generators into farm fertilizer.

Peck, a researcher and professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology, said in an interview that smoke fertilizer might improve the buying power of high-sulfur Illinois coal and reduce levels of high sulfur phosphate emissions of utility companies troubled by Environmental Protection Agency air pollution standards.

Peck said the smoke process produces a high grade nitrogen and phosphate fertilizer.

"This process can be used to promote the use of Illinois coal," Peck said. "Ohio, Iowa and New York also have high sulfur coal and this could make the stuff more profitable again."

"And, because utility companies are the ones that burn the most high-sulfur coal, they would be the logical clients of the idea."

Peck said many utility companies in Illinois and the Midwest — including some in New York — are interested in the concept.

"Any other flue desulfurization process in the name of cleaner air is a cost process. This one actually brings in income. It just makes economic sense."

Peck said the process would work by attaching special "scrubbers" — devices used to purify emissions — to smokestacks that would remove the sulfur dioxide from the stack. The sulfur dioxide would be converted with phosphate rock into fertilizer.

"Nitrogen fertilizers are made with sulfuric acid," Peck said. "This process would take the sulfur dioxide direct and save money in the long run."

Peck said the process cleans smoke better than conventional means. He estimated the new plan would remove 95 percent of the sulfur dioxide in coal burning, much better than state and federal standards.

Peck said he first thought of the idea 30 years ago when he was a consultant for the Illinois Farm Machine Company. He said he had theories then that sulfur dioxide emissions could be used in the same way sulfuric acid is in the making of nitrogen fertilizer. He didn't really start talking about them until he worked as a consultant for various Midwest farm coops.

He took his ideas to IIT and the state's energy department, which gave Peck and colleagues a grant to study the process for Illinois in 1975. Three years later, they released a report on their findings and now are showing them to utility companies, farmers' groups and other state agencies.

Peck said their research shows that fertilizer produced by the process could be sold at the competitive price of $149 a ton, which would help pay for the new cleaning equipment.

He said a utility that produces 100 megawatts of power each year could produce about 125,000 tons of fertilizer for sale. If a plant produces nearly 192 megawatts, it could sell fertilizer worth about $37 million, if promoters' estimates are correct.

Although the immediate costs of building and operating the new system — more expensive than traditional scrubber processes — would cut into that profit figure during the first several years, Peck said, the returns would start coming in after about three years.

He said tests by IIT researchers show the fertilizer works as well as other nitrogen fertilizers now on the market.

"You can make it into any kind of nitrogen-phosphate fertilizer you want," Peck said. "But more than this, my idea is a warning for the future."

"People in this country must realize that we're going to have to be using high-sulfur coal one of these days. Low-sulfur coal supplies just aren't that large and this idea not only recycles to cut waste, but would prove to be economical and efficient in the long run."

Government Estimates 300,000 Farms Disappeared During 1978

WASHINGTON (AP) — Perhaps as many as 300,000 farms disappeared in 1978, but for the time being the government can't give a precise figure.

The disappearance involves a new definition and the method the Agriculture Department uses to estimate the number of farms.

In an annual report, department officials estimated there were about 2.33 million farms in the United States at the beginning of 1979, down 1.7 percent from 2.37 million last Jan. 1.

But those are farms with annual sales totaling at least $1,000. That is a new definition USDA is using and one that is being used as Commerce's Bureau of Census begins its farm census.

For many years, both agencies have defined a farm as a unit of 10 or more acres that had annual sales of $50 or more. Under the old definition a unit of less than 10 acres qualified if it sold at least $250 worth of products a year.

The department discontinued the old definition in estimating the number of farms for this Jan. 1, so there is uncertainty about how many of the farms no longer being counted disappeared under the bookkeeper's quill and how many actually quit being farms because they changed the way they were run.

However, the report included figures for both the old and new definitions of a farm for the past several years.

Last Jan. 1, for example, there were more than 2.67 million farms shown under the old definition. If the new $1,000 definition had been in use at the time, the number would have been 2.37 million.

Thus, those figures would indicate that somewhere around 302,000 farms faded from existence in 1977 because of the new definition.

According to the Census Bureau, it will use the new $1,000 definition in its farm census but will also tabulate all farms regardless of size.

The use of the $1,000 definition has been debated for years in Congress, among federal agencies and by farm groups.

Proponents of the new definition say it is more realistic and eliminates many previously defined "farms" that were nothing more than rural residences.

The report said that under the $1,000 definition, the average size of U.S. farms at the start of 1979 will be 450 acres, up from 444 acres last Jan. 1.

Last Jan. 1, under the old definition, the average size of farms was 401 acres, up from 397 acres on Jan. 1, 1977. It did not show an average size for the start of 1979.

The total amount of land in farms this Jan. 1 was shown at slightly less than 1.05 billion acres under the new definition, a decline of about four million acres from last Jan. 1.

Under the old definition, about 1.07 billion acres were in farms last Jan. 1.

High Court Voids Pennsylvania Abortion Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court struck down a Pennsylvania abortion law Tuesday, saying it unfairly limited the "broad discretion" that doctors need in deciding whether to try to save the life of a fetus.

The law had required every physician to try to preserve the life of a fetus "if there is sufficient reason to believe that the fetus may be viable."

But by a 6-3 vote, the justices ruled that the law was too vague because it exposed doctors to possible criminal charges for not trying to save the life of a fetus that "may be viable."

"The present statute does not afford broad discretion to the physician. Instead, it conditions potential criminal liability on confusing and ambiguous criteria," Justice Harry A. Blackmun wrote for the court.

"It therefore presents serious problems of notice, discriminatory application and chilling effect on the exercise of constitutional rights," he said.

The decision upheld the ruling of a three-judge federal court which had invalidated the law.

Had the justices approved the law, there could have been a nationwide impact on the availability of mid-pregnancy abortions.

It was Blackmun who wrote the court's landmark 1973 decision legalizing abortions. That ruling said governments absolutely could not interfere in a woman's choice to have an abortion during her pregnancy's first trimester.

Later in the pregnancy, states could play a role only under two circumstances:

—To protect the woman's health in the pregnancy's second three months.

—To protect fetal life in the final trimester, once the fetus had become "viable" — able to survive outside the womb.

The 1973 decision carefully refrained from specifying at what point a fetus becomes viable, but suggested that it could be from 24 to 28 weeks into a pregnancy.

The high court said Tuesday that "may be" differs from "is" and therefore the law's wording "differs in indeterminate ways from the definition of viability as set forth" in past abortion decisions.

The law also does not tell doctors what they must do to avoid the risk of possible criminal prosecution, the court said.

Justice Byron R. White, in a dissenting opinion joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist, accused Blackmun of narrowing the court's 1973 definition of viability, but Blackmun denied that.

The high court's decision was praised by the National Abortion Rights Action League, a pro-abortion group.

"The Supreme Court has sent a clear message that will have a far-reaching effect both as a directive to the lower courts and as a signal to anti-abortionists that the determination of viability is a medical decision of a physician and cannot be regulated by legislative fiat," the group said in a statement, adding:

"We hope this marks the end of the appalling nationwide attacks on doctors and women via viability legislation in an effort to destroy the dignity, integrity and privacy of the abortion decision."

The ruling was criticized by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

West Says Traffic Enforcement Program Curbing Mishap Trend

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Mayor Dirk West Tuesday proclaimed his three-month-old traffic enforcement program a success in reversing the upward trend in city traffic accidents.

"It really appears we have turned the corner," he said. "The police department's crackdown on flagrant traffic violators and their selective enforcement of high-accident locations is showing very positive results."

Since eight additional police officers were assigned to selective traffic enforcement on Oct. 1, the following have occurred:

—As of Oct. 1 when the traffic program was implemented, Lubbock was tied with the record number of fatalities occurring in 1977. However, traffic deaths dropped by 13 in the toll for the last three months to end 1978 with 38 fatalities, compared with 51 the previous year, West said.

—As of Oct. 1, the number of accidents with injuries was 19 ahead of the 1977 pace. But during the last three months, injury accidents totaled 410 compared with 462 during the same period in 1977, ending the year with a net decrease of 52.

—During the first nine months of 1978, the number of persons injured in traffic accidents totaled 1,730 compared with 1,747 the previous year. During the last three months the number of injuries was reduced further, ending the year with 60 less than in 1977, West said.

Those are "still very high statistics on fatalities and injuries," West said, "but they've begun to drop and we hope they will drop even further."

During the first nine months of 1978, total traffic accidents were averaging 118 a month higher than in 1977, West said.

But during the last three months, the rate of increase had slowed to 13 a month above October, November and December, 1977 — in spite of the fact there were about 30,000 more vehicles registered in Lubbock in 1978 over the previous year.

"I think this shows what can be accomplished with good enforcement by our police officers and with better driving by those who use our streets," West said. "I hope this trend continues."

The locations patrolled by the special traffic officers were changed last week to cut down on violations and accidents in other areas of the city.

"The police have mapped out new patrol districts for the selective enforcement team," he said. "I'm warning drivers now that they'll be seeing more patrol cars in certain areas. You'd better drive right, or you'll pay the price."

One officer will be assigned full time to Loop 289, where 33 injury accidents and one fatality have occurred during the past three months.

An officer also will be assigned to the central business district, where a pattern of injury accidents has developed.

Because of the continuing problem of accidents involving illegal turns at the intersection of 15th Street and University Avenue, teams of traffic officers will be monitoring that location this month.

During December, Lubbock's Municipal Court handled a total of 3,635 tickets for hazardous moving violations written by the police department. Of that total, 2,215 were for speeding, 339 were for running red lights, 147 were for running stop signs, 176 were for improper turns and 153 were for improper lane changes.

The special traffic enforcement officers alone wrote tickets for 1,623 hazardous moving violations and made 25 arrests for driving while intoxicated. In addition, traffic officers arrested two men caught in the act of theft outside a night club.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JAN. 10, 1979

PHYSICAL
 Criticale: 1, 12, 24, 35, 47, 58, 70 — Safeguard your actions
 Highs: 2-11, 23-34, 45-57, 71-73 — High powered day
 Lows: 13-22, 36-46, 59-69 — Can feel wiped out

EMOTIONAL
 Criticale: 11, 25, 39, 53, 67, 81 — Extra care, be safe
 Highs: 1-10, 26-38, 54-66, 82-85 — Up beat day
 Lows: 12-24, 40-52, 68-80 — Depression prevails

INTELLECTUAL
 Criticale: 2, 19, 35, 52, 68, 85 — Be guarded
 Highs: 1, 20-34, 53-67, 86-85 — Come up with something new Lows: 3-18, 36-51, 69-84 — Difficult to reason

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

New Jersey's Casino Hearing Called Unfair

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey's Division of Gaming Enforcement conducted an unfair investigation into Resorts International, the casino firm's attorney charged Tuesday.

Raymond A. Brown attacked the state probe during the second day of Casino Control Commission hearings into Resorts International's application for a permanent casino license.

Brown said the credibility of the entire investigation of the casino operator was undermined by a state memorandum of an interview with Miami attorney Richard H. Olsen last July, which Brown said was inaccurate and biased against the firm.

Olsen, vice president of Chalk International Airlines, a Resorts International subsidiary, testified Monday and Tuesday on Resorts International's acquisition of Bahamian land in the early 1960s.

Olsen called a memo of his interview with New Jersey authorities "the greatest misstatement of fact I've seen in 20 years of practicing law."

The Miami attorney read aloud the memo of his interview and objected to several statements in it, including one which said Bahamian authorities had sought to block Bahamian development by one American businessman because of the businessman's alleged sexual activities.

Raymond Brown and Assistant Attorney General G. Michael Brown, in their first clash at the hearings, argued over Olsen's characterization of the memo.

Raymond Brown at one point called state investigators liars.

Michael Brown argued the integrity of the state investigators was not a question in the hearings.

The attorneys are not related.

The state Division of Gaming Enforcement has filed 17 objections against Resorts International's application for a permanent license, including charges the firm has had ties to organized crime figures, associated with businessmen of questionable integrity and has mismanaged its casinos here and in the Bahamas.

Resorts International chairman James Crosby was expected to begin testifying late Tuesday.

Olsen said he served as a middleman in the acquisition of two Bahamian properties in the mid-1960s by Resorts International's corporate predecessor, the Mary Carter Paint Co.

Olsen said he went to the Bahama's then-minister of tourism, Sir Stafford Sands, who Olsen said was known to be "the man to see" to get a Bahamian casino license.

Olsen said Sands indicated the eventual developer of Paradise Island would have to build a bridge between the island and Nassau and would have to build 1,500 hotel rooms before a casino license would be granted.

Sands indicated the Grand Bahamas Port Authority, a private developer, might also want an interest in the casino.

AMC-Renault Joint Venture Statement Seen

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. and French automaker Renault have called a news conference for Wednesday, apparently to announce a final agreement on their joint automotive venture.

The companies are expected to disclose firm plans to sell the Renault Le Car in this country and AMC Jeeps in Europe and a timetable for building a Renault sedan at AMC's Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant.

AMC would only say Tuesday that "an announcement of major importance" was planned with Renault, which is owned by the French government.

Negotiations have dragged on for more than nine months since the companies announced their tentative plans last March 31. The protracted talks produced wide speculation in the industry that the deal might fall through.

Both companies repeatedly dismissed such talk, saying that the project had simply turned out to be more complicated than they expected.

Analysts note that since disclosure of the initial agreement, AMC has accomplished several things on the labor, financial and production front that probably reassured Renault.

The smallest U.S. automaker tripled its modest profits from $8.3 million in 1977 to $36.7 million in the fiscal year ended last Sept. 31.

AMC boosted production of its hot-selling Jeeps by converting its Brampton, Ontario, assembly plant from cars to the four-wheel-drive vehicles last summer.

The company ensured a further increase in production of Jeeps by swinging a $27.5 million loan in December from Ohio banks and the state of Ohio to expand its Toledo Jeep plant.

AMC also negotiated a two-year pact with the United Auto Workers instead of the one-year contracts bargained the previous two years, ensuring greater labor stability.

Sales of passenger cars continue to be a money-losing proposition for AMC. The firm's share of the U.S. auto market slipped to 1.8 percent in 1978 as sales declined nearly 8 percent.

But Jeep sales leaped 40.7 percent and are expected to equal car sales in 1979. With its higher Jeep capacity, the vehicles are expected to boost profits again this year for the company as a whole.

The project has won high marks from many industry analysts, who say it would give AMC sorely-needed technical and financial resources while handing Renault a ready-made car dealer network in this country.

The subcompact Le Car is likely to be available through AMC dealers later this year, giving AMC its first front-wheel-drive "world car" to attract showroom traffic.

The companies have said they hope to build the Renault R-18, a family sedan, in Kenosha.

$3.5 Million Bond Set For Suspect

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A former Nigerian Embassy clerk is being held in lieu of $3.5 million bond in connection with what authorities say is a case of worldwide credit card and check fraud that may total $1 million.

Judge Joseph Williams of Guilford County District Court set the bond for Akenwale Bristoe Thomas, 30, on seven counts of false pretenses in connection with writing worthless checks totalling more than $1.400.

Williams said the bond was reasonable "considering the totality of the circumstances."

Greensboro police and Guilford County deputies arrested Thomas last week while he was boarding a flight for Atlanta at the Greensboro airport.

Greensboro Police Detective Jerry H. Cooper said an investigation has been in progress since last June. He said police believe Thomas opened a checking account then and began writing checks under the alias of Joseph Dambatta.

Cooper said he and other officials think the fraud cases they are investigating may have totaled $1 million over the past few years.

Williams said during bond hearings Monday and Tuesday that Thomas is being investigated by American Express

Co. in connection with obtaining $500,000 worth of credit. Cooper said fraudulent transactions under investigation involve credit cards issued by banks, oil companies, car rental agencies and airlines.

"There's no telling how many names he's used," Cooper said.

Cooper said Thomas had a number of different cards on him at the time of his arrest, several of which were under other names.

A spokesman for the U.S. Postal Service said it is investigating Thomas in connection with possible mail fraud in obtaining credit cards. The FBI has also been investigating the case at the request of the Greensboro police, said Andrew Pelczar, head of the bureau's Greensboro office.

Pinkney Moses, Thomas' attorney, said in court that he was "flabbergasted and incensed at the amount of bond required for the nature of the charges. We think this bond is unreasonable."

Williams denied motions that the bond be reduced. Moses said he will file a motion in Guilford County Superior Court to have the bond reduced, but no motion had been filed by midday Tuesday. Thomas is being held in the Guilford County Jail.

A spokesman for the Nigerian Embassy in Washington said Thomas, a Nigerian citizen, worked there for about three years and was fired for misconduct in July 1977. The embassy said it was investigating whether Thomas had used an illegal diplomatic passport.

CHARGED IN CAB THEFT

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — A 22-year-old Mondovi man stole a taxicab parked outside the Yellow Cab Co. office in Eau Claire early Tuesday and led police on an hour-long, 30-mile chase through three counties before being forced into a snowbank. The cab driver also got a citation for leaving his keys in the car.

Amexco Proposes Merger With McGraw-Hill

NEW YORK (AP) — American Express Co., facing increased competition in the credit cards and travelers checks businesses, said Tuesday it wanted to take over publishing giant McGraw-Hill Inc. in an $830 million deal.

McGraw-Hill, publisher of Business Week and more than 60 other magazines and second only to Time Inc. in the magazine publishing field, had no immediate comment on the proposal.

Under the terms of the proposed merger, American Express would pay $34 per share for each of McGraw-Hill's 24.1 million shares. The firm also proposed an alternative plan involving a combination of cash and securities rather than a straight cash arrangement.

The $34-a-share offer is substantially above the market price for McGraw-Hill, whose stock was trading at $26 per share before the merger proposal.

Amexco has long been said by analysts to be looking for a merger partner. The company has reported record operating profits in 31 consecutive years, but inroads by competitors have made attaining that goal more difficult each year.

Visa and Master Charge, its two main competitors in the credit card field, have many more cardholders between them than Amexco's 8.6 million card customers, although Amexco's customers come from higher income levels.

Aggressive advertising campaigns by competitors are eroding the dominance of the travelers check business American Express has had for three-quarters of a century. Visa and Master Charge have announced onslaughts in that field as well.

As a result, Amexco has been rumored over the past couple of years to be seeking liaisons with companies like Walt Disney Productions and Book-of-the-Month Club.

In McGraw-Hill, it has found a partner with communications interests similar to those two firms, but compatible with American Express in several other areas as well.

"It is our belief that a combination of McGraw-Hill and American Express Co. would create an impressive new opportunity for our respective shareholders," said James D. Robinson III, president of American Express.

In addition to its better-known services, American Express is involved with many financial information services, a field McGraw-Hill is no stranger to. Through its Standard & Poor's division and others, it is a key source of information to the financial community.

A merger with McGraw-Hill would also give American Express a new profit-producing. Magazine publishing is becoming a more and more profitable industry as advertisers spread their business away from television.

Although few of McGraw-Hill's magazines are as well known as its flagship, Business Week, many of them are giants in a field few consumers know — trade publications. In industries from medicine to energy, McGraw-Hill publications are widely read. In addition to its magazines, McGraw-Hill is also active in book publishing and owns several television stations.

McGraw-Hill's revenue and income increases over the past few years have been about as steady as Amexco's. In 1977, the last full year for which figures are available, McGraw-Hill had income of $61.9 million on sales of $659 million.

Amexco's 1977 figures were $282.5 million in profit on revenues of $3.9 billion, making it the nation's third-largest diversified financial holding company, according to Fortune magazine.

Credit Card Scheme Scored By Proxmire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire declared Tuesday that Republican and Democratic plans to raise money by asking party members to accept VISA credit cards invade personal privacy and create the appearance of conflict of interest.

However, in testimony before the Senate Banking Committee, GOP Chairman

Bill Brock and a Democratic party official defended the plans as ways to strengthen the parties by encouraging "grass roots" participation in the political process.

Proxmire, D-Wis., the committee's chairman, said the credit card solicitations could net the Republican party as much as $42 million if extended nationwide.

"If the parties go ahead with these plans, I wonder where it will end," he said. "Will the parties go on to endorse other products as well? The Good Housekeeping Seal may run into stiff competition."

Two months ago, the Republican Party and Manufacturers Hanover Trust, the nation's fourth-largest bank, announced plans for jointly promoting VISA credit cards among registered Republicans in New York state.

Under the plan, the Republican National Committee would ask credit-worthy Republicans to accept the cards and the party would receive a $2.50 finder's fee for each card placed, the bank and GOP officials said.

Proxmire said based on a possible 40 percent response rate, that would mean $3.5 million raised from New York's 3.8 million registered Republicans and $42 million if the program is used on a nationwide basis.

Brock said the party would be satisfied if it raised $500,000 from the mailings to New York Republicans.

The Democratic plan calls for the party to receive one-half of 1 percent of gross sales by each cardholder although the party has yet to complete arrangements with a bank, said Cecil M. Cheves, counsel for the Democratic National Committee.

Both parties have delayed implementing the plans pending an advisory opinion from the Federal Election Commission on whether the payments from the banks would be illegal corporate contributions to political parties.

Proxmire said the credit card solicitations also created the appearance of conflict of interest by involving the major political parties in a lucrative financial arrangement with banks that are regulated by the federal government.

"This is a match made in heaven," Proxmire said. "Banks, credit cards and political parties — what a wedding night you might have with that combination."

However, Brock said any suggestion of conflict of interest was "ridiculous," noting that political parties already have business relationships with many private concerns, such as computer companies.

Brock also denied Proxmire's charge that the solicitations were a violation of privacy. He said the list of New York Republicans would come from public lists of registered voters.

"I see no conceivable way that a person could complain about violations of privacy in connection with the way we have gone about this," Brock said.

WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Featured in the stock market last week was the action of dull, previously depressed stocks which attracted enough money to bounce off bases. Most of the recently popular growth stocks and other leading issues met resistance but the Dow Industrials and the advance/decline ratio put on a good show and were positive all four days of last week. The momentum of tape action was better than we had anticipated despite a generally poor news background. Under certain conditions, this would cause us to hop on the bull train but this time it looks more like a trap than a pleasant trip. Last week was made possible by institutions letting a little year end cash flow trickle over into stocks but in the market, other than for day or two scalpers, we must look ahead not back.

The big picture remains a mess. Inflationary pressures are not slowing, the economy is not slowing, and both short and long term interest rates still seem on an uptrend which shows few signs of weakening. Yes, new bulls can start before interest rates peak, but they classically lag the peak. And yes, new bulls can start before a recession even gets underway, but usually we need some idea of what the valley is like before the market will look beyond it. Institutional cash is big and may decide it has heard enough of this bearish talk and buy stocks anyway but will they with 10 percent returns and rising available on 30-day commercial paper? We do not think so.

Now, how about tomorrow's news? Our guess is that the next big economic shock wave will come when President Carter's 7 percent wage guidelines is blown out the water. The Iranian oil impact is another future very serious problem. Energy Secretary Schlesinger is starting to talk gas rationing and the House Energy subcommittee chairman says Iran will have a significant impact and much larger than anticipated. Looking ahead at interest rates, our fear is that they go higher and then level off and not drop back like the optimists project. Well, it's still a market of psychology and with last week's move over $28, the bulls will probably try it again despite Monday's decline. We think the odds favor more strength but not a lot and not for long and not exploitable. We would continue to sell strength and stay defensive as we do not believe either fundamental or technically that a new big move is upon us.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q: We have $20,000 in a savings certificate which will mature soon. We are considering putting that money in six-month savings certificates, which we see promoted as "money market" or "T-bill" certificates.

A. Are these safe for retired people? We would also like to know why the banks and savings and loan associations are pushing the sale of these certificates. What's their take?

A. The dollars each depositor puts into six-month or any other savings certificates are safe, provided that the bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. or the S&L is a member of the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp.

FDIC and FSLIC coverage of up to $40,000 applies to savings certificates just as it does to other deposits.

Banks and S&Ls are, as you put it, "pushing" six-month certificates for three reasons: to make money; to attract new deposits; to keep their present deposits.

When you put your money into such a certificate, you are guaranteed a fixed rate of interest by the bank or S&L. That institution then attempts to loan out the money you have deposited at a higher rate of interest. The difference between the two rates, less expenses, is the bank or S&L's profit.

Federal regulatory authorities allowed banks and S&Ls to begin issuing six-month certificates on June 1, 1978, when interest rates were moving up. Since then, of course, interest rates have gone sky-high. And, because the maximum rates on six-month certificates are determined by the weekly auction of six-month U.S. Treasury bills, the yields on these certificates have also skyrocketed.

Many — not all — banks and S&Ls have become very competitive, by offering high rates on six-month certificates. Some have the edge. They are allowed to pay one-quarter of 1 percent more on six-month certificates.

Now that interest rates are way up again, we could very well see more bad times for the REIT industry. The relatively small number of REITs which have done well since the time they were organized have proved their management know-how and could very well be wise investment choices for the future.

But, if you have any thoughts of investing in a REIT with a record of poor past performance, I say "forget it."

Q: I am 88 and have been receiving Social Security checks since 1963. I now have some money from the sale of property. I would like to invest this money to receive interest. Would that reduce my Social Security checks?

A. No. Investment income has no effect on Social Security. Only "earned income" — wages, tips and such — are calculated to reduce Social Security checks.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Drug Substitution Legislation Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government proposed a model drug law Tuesday that would permit pharmacists to give consumers lower-priced generic drugs even if a physician had prescribed a more expensive brand-name product.

To encourage maximum use of the law proposed for adoption by the states, the Food and Drug Administration published a list of all 5,000 prescription drugs it has found to be safe and effective. It proposed to designate 40 percent of them as the medical equivalents of brand-name products.

About ninety percent of the prescriptions written by physicians are for brand name products, according to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano.

The Federal Trade Commission estimated that maximum use of the model law could save consumers $400 million a year. That would amount to about $1.80 for the average consumer, who spends $32 a year on prescription drugs, and about twice that much for people over 65.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, which represents most of the nation's big-name drug companies, said the proposal would "do little or nothing for consumer savings, while tending to erode physician prerogatives as well as high-quality standards and research efforts in the prescription drug industry."

The association termed publication of the list of equivalent drugs "dangerous."

FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk, at a joint news conference with Califano, said the generic drugs listed by FDA as equivalent are "every bit as safe and therapeutic as brand-name drugs."

He said physicians will continue to prescribe by brand name because "it's easier: it's quicker." But he predicted "an outbreak of competition" among pharmacists who would be encouraged by the model law to substitute cheaper drugs for more expensive ones.

Califano, referring to an often used example of the generic drug meprobamate, said: "We simply don't think that a piece of paper — the label on the outside of the bottle — is worth paying eight times as much for."

Meprobamate is a tranquilizer sold by several companies under a variety of brand names as well as its generic name. It is most commonly prescribed as Miltown or Equinil. Califano said the wholesale price for the generic version is 94 cents per hundred tablets while it is up to $7.50 for the same number sold by brand name.

About 40 states already have laws permitting or requiring pharmacists to substitute cheaper generic for brand-name products prescribed by physicians. But advocates of substitution say the laws generally are inadequate or are ignored by pharmacists who have no incentive to sell cheaper drugs or who have no single guide to equivalent drugs.

Califano said the model proposed by the Carter administration is similar to statutes already in use in Delaware and Wisconsin which he described as effective.

The measure would permit pharmacists to substitute generic drugs for brand name prescriptions but would not require them to select less expensive products. A physician could bar a pharmacist from dispensing a substitute by writing the words "medically necessary" or some similar term on the prescription.

The model legislation also would give the consumer the right to know if the pharmacist wished to substitute and the right to insist that the prescription be dispensed as written.

Some drug substitution laws require pharmacists to pass on any savings from substitution to the consumer, but the legislative model would permit pharmacists to keep all or part of the savings in an effort to give them an incentive to substitute.

Pertschuk said the competition of an unregulated marketplace would ensure that the bulk of the savings would be passed on.

The FDA said its list of equivalent and inequivalent drugs would be open to comment from manufacturers and the public for 90 days in an effort to weed out any errors or omissions.

Panel Seeks State Child Pornography Statute

AUSTIN (AP) — Murder committed in connection with aggravated sexual abuse should be a death penalty offense, a special House committee on child pornography says.

As long as child pornography is bought and sold, there will be additional sexual abuse of children, the committee said.

It also said the Legislature should "act quickly in passage of a child pornography statute."

Texas law now provides the death penalty for murder committed in the course of a rape but not when a victim of aggravated sexual abuse is killed.

A sexual abuse case becomes aggravated when the victim is threatened, beaten or subjected to other violence beyond the sexual attack itself.

Among the 39 proposals made by the committee, chaired by Rep. Ralph Wallace III, D-Houston, were new laws to make it easier to prosecute sexual abuse and incest cases.

The report was issued to the 66th Legislature, which convened Tuesday.

"Child pornography should not be the major focus of our concern. It is the brutalization of our children, suffering perverted physical and psychological abuse, that has brought us to this point, and the reading and viewing of materials depicting such acts is but a spinoff of the underlying victimization," the committee said.

"The act of selling these materials is guaranteeing that there will be additional abuse of children."

One of the most common types of child pornography is that made by individuals of their own children or neighborhood children, Wallace's committee reported.

"All types of pornography may be used with a child to convince him that the type of conduct shown is acceptable," the committee said.

The committee said Houston probably is the key distribution center in Texas for child pornography, and one distributor is located in the Rio Grande Valley area.

"In three commercial distribution cases filed in the Valley area, there is every indication to believe that Texas is exporting pornography to Mexico, both adult and child pornography," the report said.

It said information obtained from vice divisions of police and sheriffs' departments "indicates that child pornography has been available in the past in all major cities, including Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo and smaller cities such as Brownsville, McAllen and Killeen."

"These materials have been sold over the counter. At the present time, no city reports having child porn available over the counter," it added.

But officers in major cities believe they could obtain child pornography if they were determined to purchase it, the report said.

The report stressed reportedly that child pornography is inseparable from the larger problem of sexual abuse of children.

"Many of the films show children obviously unwilling to participate, as they may be held down or pushed into action by other children or adults. ... Much of the materials have clear themes of sadomasochism. ... The dominant theme is that sexual abuse of children is enjoyable and socially sanctioned by the sexually liberated members of society," the report said.

Wallace's committee said it received evidence of several killings involving sexual abuse.

It said that before the Nueces County medical examiner's office was created seven years ago, there were no cases of death, by sexual abuse diagnosed or prosecuted.

But since the office was established, seven or eight convictions have been obtained, the committee report said. It quoted Dr. Joseph Rupp, the medical examiner, as saying there had been at least 15 slayings with sexual overtones.

The committee also said police are just now coming to realize that child pornography might be involved in sexual abuse cases.

"A number of officers confided in the interviews, 'I never thought to ask if someone took pictures or showed the child pictures,'" the report said.

Recommendations of the committee included:

•Legislation making it a penitentiary offense for doctors and hospitals to fail to report sexual abuse cases.

•Requiring owners of adult bookstores, X-rated movie houses, modeling studios and massage parlors to file affidavits of ownership with the attorney general.

•New laws allowing emergency removal of children from their homes by police or Texas Department of Human Resources investigators.

•Legislation providing up to a year in jail for harboring runaways.

•State facilities to provide temporary shelter and care for runaways.

•Court procedures allowing sexually abused juveniles to testify in closed judicial chambers in the presence of only the judge, prosecutor and defense attorneys. The testimony could be videotaped and presented to the jury in closed session.

"The trauma in testifying may be greater than the trauma of the abuse, according to case workers and juvenile officers. ... We need to make changes in our criminal justice system to ensure more sensitive and appropriate handling of intra-family sexual abuse," the report said.

•Establishment of a procedure for making background investigations of previous sex offenses. Employers would be required to use this procedure whenever they hire persons whose jobs will include working with children.

•Special training of police officers and school counselors in dealing with sexual abuse cases, including interrogation and investigation.

Portable Sign Conviction Seen As Boon

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

City officials say Monday's conviction of a Lubbock man for violating Lubbock's ban on portable signs further reinforces their intention to strictly enforce the city's sign code.

However, they say Class C misdemeanor convictions, like that handed down Monday against Lubbock restaurateur Mark Corley, are not the final answer to ridding the city of portable signs.

Corley was convicted by a County Court-at-Law No. 2 jury, which found him guilty of violating the city's sign code by operating a portable sign at his business.

The two-woman, four-man jury took less than 15 minutes to return the verdict against Corley, operator of Mark's Hamburgers at 2406 34th St.

Judge J.Q. Warnick Jr. on Friday will assess punishment, which can range between $1 and $200.

But Corley said Monday following his conviction the portable sign will remain in place "for some time."

City planning director Jim Bertram said he hopes Corley's conviction "simply points out we intend to enforce the law against anybody and everybody."

"I hope they (violators) see the law is going to be enforced and obey it without us going through the expensive task of going through Municipal Court and county court," he said. "It would sure save the public a lot of money."

However, Bertram was pessimistic the handful of portable signs still displayed in front of some Lubbock businesses would vanish as a result of Corley's conviction.

"I'm certain the solution to that is to get an injunction against people who intentionally violate the law," he said.

"Then we'll see what the judge wants to do with those who intentionally violate the law. If and when an injunction is granted, rather than saying to us he (Corley) is not going to obey the law, he'd be saying it to the judge," Bertram said.

Last month suits were filed seeking permanent injunctions against all those still using portable signs, as well as against the sole supplier of the signs in Lubbock. However, no trial date has been set for any of the six injunction suits.

"Apparently the fine is not going to be a deterrent and it's going to take an injunction," Bertram said.

"When somebody has made up his mind to disobey the law, they're going to go on disobeying the law unless the incentive is high enough."

Meanwhile, the city will continue to file on Corley and other violators "as often as the law allows," he said.

Corley's attorney said he was unsure whether the case, appealed from Municipal Court, would be appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

That will depend on the fine assessed, attorney Bill Wischkaemper said, because the fine must be at least $100 to appeal.

Small-Scale Farming Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans are turning back to the land, at least small plots of it.

The Agriculture Department reports that country living is growing more and more attractive to people tired of the city. But many of these people keep their city jobs, commuting and residing on a small farm where they raise some extra food.

The pitfalls and satisfactions of such life are described in the department's 1979 yearbook, "Living on a Few Acres."

Copies of the 472-page volume are available for $2 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. Ask for stock number 001-000-03809-5.

Guilty Verdicts Returned In Felony Cases

Juries returned two guilty verdicts Tuesday in the first two felony cases tried by the newly organized criminal district attorney's office.

William Earl Chase, 30, of 1903 E. 16th St. was found guilty of aggravated assault on a police officer and assessed a five-year probation sentence by a 72nd District Court jury.

Richard Howell and Travis Ware, assistant criminal district attorneys, vigorously opposed probation.

Robert Davila, 24, was found guilty in 137th District Court of aggravated robbery, and a jury assessed him an eight-year prison term following four hours of deliberation.

Prosecutor Mark McBride had asked a 50-year sentence for Davila.

Chase was charged with hitting a policeman Oct. 16 with a car as officers tried to apprehend two women shoplifting suspects who had fled South Plains Mall to the car.

Davila was accused of robbing a 7-11 store at 2801 Salem last April 6.

Defense witnesses put on the stand by attorneys Grady Terrell and Bob Craig said Davila was in Austin April 5 and April 7.

Dellinda Ebeling and Wanda Wray defended Chase.

In other court action Tuesday, Harold Wayne Ashlock, 19, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary on a probation revocation.

Ashlock was sentenced to six years probation in August on a burglary of a habitation charge and was charged with the same offense in November.

Rockwell Town Residents Fearful

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Norman Rockwell's paintings helped make Stockbridge something special. Some residents are worried now that a television special being filmed about the late artist will turn their pastoral town into a "tourist mecca."

"This is more than likely going to clog the street with tourists just when the town is trying to discourage tourism," said John Beacco Jr., chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

A film crew arrived last weekend and a company official said Tuesday they are preparing a two-hour Christmas television special — an original drama called "A Christmas Story" inspired by Rockwell paintings.

"It's just a kind of tribute to Rockwell, his people, his town, and his time," said Gaby Monet, producer and partner in Concepts Unlimited Inc., a New York firm that won a 1973 Academy Award for producing a film titled "Norman Rockwell's World — An American Dream."

Rockwell, a Stockbridge resident for 25 years, died in November at the age of 84. Many famous Rockwell originals and printings remain in the Old Corner Museum on Main Street, about a half a mile from his studio and home.

Beacco, who has publicly asked town residents to downplay Stockbridge as "a tourist mecca," says the community of 2,222 is so crowded — especially during summer months — people "can't move around."

"We are very conscious of not in any way disturbing the town or its people," said Mrs. Monet. She added most future shots for the film are "interior scenes ... on the outskirts of Stockbridge."

Not everyone in town echoes Beacco's concern. One person who appears in the film is Mary Flynn, a member of the Board of Selectmen.

"This (the film) is a great thing for Stockbridge," she told a board meeting this week. "We are proud of this community. We have nothing to hide."

Robert Deubel, another partner in the production company, said crews plan to return before spring, when they hope for a "blizzard" to get pictures of cars in snowdrifts.

Early last Sunday, Main Street was closed to traffic and Christmas decorations were being hung to help the crew film scenes which included some 15 Stockbridge residents — many of them former subjects of Rockwell paintings.

Lubbock Woman Charged With Aggravated Assault

A 45-year-old Lubbock woman Tuesday was charged with aggravated assault on a police officer.

Jean Evans of 1000 N. Ave. Q, No. 11, was accused of threatening two policemen with a pistol Dec. 30 when they answered a disturbance call at the motel where she was living.

Bond was set at $10,000.

David West, 25, of Pasadena was charged with burglary of a habitation in connection with a reported Dec. 30 break-in at a 2300 50th St. apartment complex.

Rita Benitez Vega, 19, of Roswell, N.M., was charged with forgery in attempting to pass a forged check Dec. 4 at a Lubbock service station.

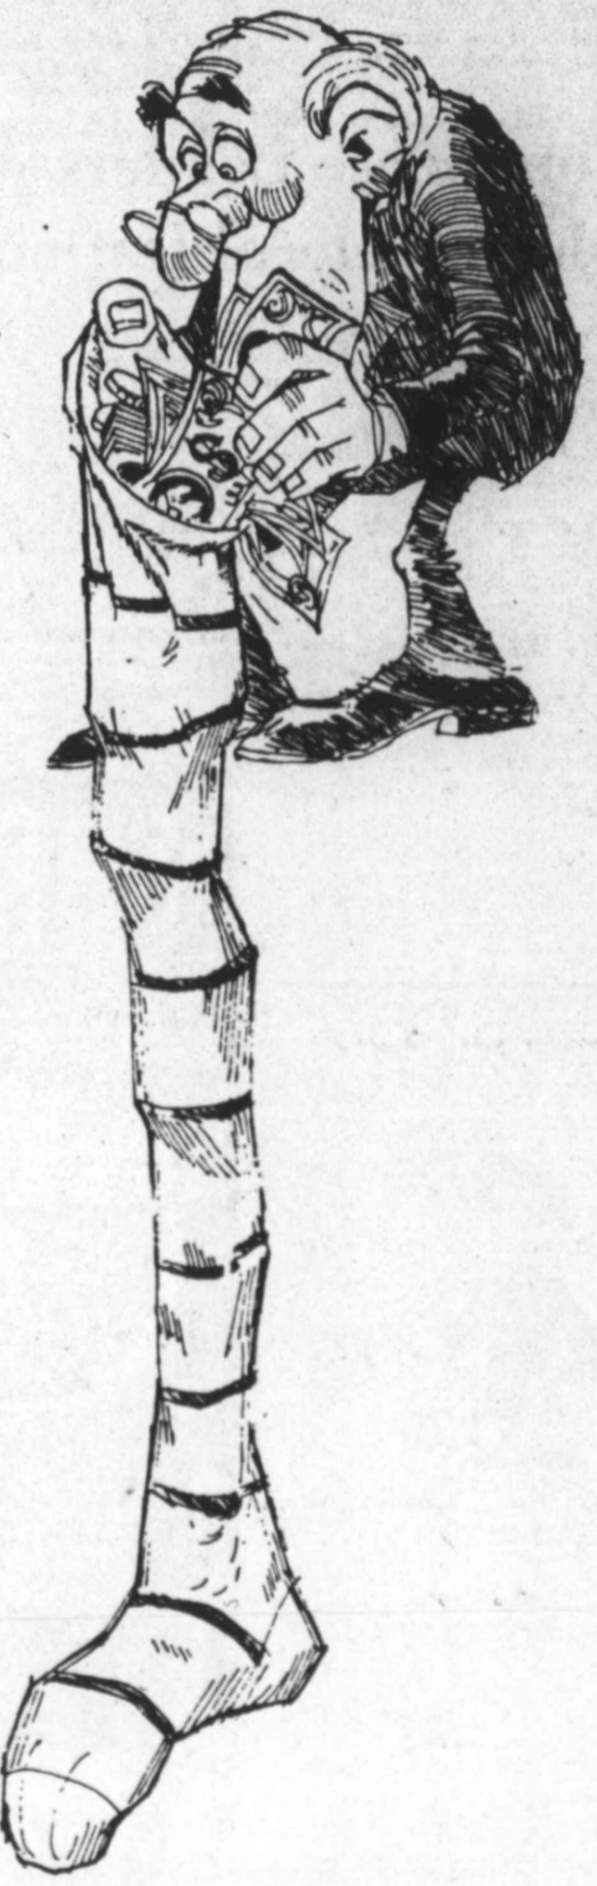

Steve Wilton Carter, 20, of 1711 Ninth St. was accused of attempting to pass a forged check at a Lubbock motel and liquor store and was charged with forgery.

Arturo Trevino, 17, of Rt. 1, Box 476, was charged with burglary of a vehicle.

When Woodrow Wilson sailed for the Versailles Peace Conference in 1918, he became the first United States president to leave the country while in office.

Woman Boasts Handicapped Transit Program

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A federal plan to help the handicapped and elderly ride city buses could hurt the nation's mass transit systems, says Betty Myhre, who claims she's got a better way to travel.

Mrs. Myhre, director of transportation for the Coordinated Inter-Agency Motor Pool for the Elderly and Handicapped for Spokane County, says she's running the best busing program for the handicapped in the country.

She says she fears it will be weakened by proposed Department of Transportation regulations that would require converting mass transit bus fleets to accommodate the handicapped and elderly. Congress is expected to act on the proposal early this year.

Converting just one Spokane Transit System bus could cost as much as $150,000, says Mrs. Myhre. Next year, on a $300,000 budget, she expects her fleet of 30 mini-vans, including six new ones, to carry 150,000 passengers at no cost to them.

"My cost for 1978 will work out to $2 per passenger trip. In Evanston, Ill., it costs $35 a trip. And in Atlanta, Ga., it costs $12," she says of other transportation programs for the handicapped.

Of the estimated 2,000 busing programs for the handicapped and elderly in the United States, Spokane's is the only one that makes use of a wide variety of funding and supporting sources. It receives money from 26 different funding sources and works with 53 different agencies.

"In Lincoln, Neb., they did a study on this type of program and said it couldn't be done. It's a headache, but it can be done," Mrs. Myhre says of the required bookkeeping procedures. The two-way radio-equipped vans provide door-to-door service seven days a week.

Mrs. Myhre's program, with headquarters at the YMCA, provides transportation for many of Spokane's 52,000 residents over the age of 60, its 45,000 handicapped, and its 9,000 mentally retarded.

One of the agencies subcontracting with Mrs. Myhre is the Spokane Transit System — for $100,000 a year. If the federal plan becomes reality, the system would likely cancel its contract in order to meet the financial demands of converting its fleet, she says.

Money spent, however, might not come close to money lost if the federal proposal is implemented, Mrs. Myhre says. "Mass transit runs on a tight time schedule. But time limits can't be placed on the old, the frail, the semi-ambulatory or those confined to wheelchairs."

The federal plan might be extremely successful in densely populated areas where the handicapped, elderly and others are living in close proximity and have similar destinations, she says.

But it won't work in other areas, like Spokane, because many of the handicapped and elderly can't get from their homes to a bus stop.

"We take people to work, home, the opera, the beauty shop, dinner, church, the doctor and to school," Mrs. Myhre says.

The buses also are available for last-minute, unplanned trips.

"If someone's artificial leg has to be fitted, their food stamps run out, their hearing aid is ready, or they fell down and the doctor wants to see them today, not two days from now, we get them there," she says.

The bus system does not act as an ambulance service, but all drivers are trained in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, defensive driving and first aid in case of any on-bus emergency.

The 40 drivers work for the minimum wage — and while, in some cases, it may supplement a retirement pension, it does more. "It provides purpose," Mrs. Myhre says.

Some of our best drivers are retired pilots, bus drivers and heavy equipment operators," Mrs. Myhre says.

Before the system was implemented in 1975, there were a number of vocational and recreational programs being offered for the elderly and handicapped in Spokane. Mrs. Myhre, working for the city, was coordinating many of the programs. "But there was no sense setting up programs if nobody could get anywhere."

Chamber Of Commerce Leaders Ask $4 Billion Slash In Federal Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Tuesday that Congress should reduce the federal deficit for the next fiscal year by $4 billion more than President Carter is expected to recommend, and urged "lower taxes and 'reform of tax laws' to stimulate business investment."

The organization's top leadership also issued a new call to Congress to defer increases in the minimum wage scheduled to take effect in 1980 and 1981.

Shearon Harris, chairman of the chamber's board of directors, outlined a series of steps the business organization wants Congress to take to control inflation.

He said Congress should balance the federal budget over the next three fiscal years, and called for cutting the deficit for the next fiscal year, which begins Sept. 1, "below $25 billion."

The deficit for this fiscal year is about $39 billion, and President Carter is expected to submit a budget to Congress for next year with a deficit below $29 billion.

With regard to the minimum wage, the Carter administration has decided against asking Congress to defer increases scheduled to take effect over the next two years or to set up a "youth differential" which would permit payment of less than the minimum wage to young workers.

But Harris said enactment of both changes would both restrain inflation and create an estimated 880,000 new jobs over two years.

The minimum wage rose to $2.90 on Jan. 1, and is scheduled to increase to $3.10 on Jan. 1, 1980, and to $3.35 a year later.

Harris, chairman of the board of the Carolina Power and Light Co., called for Congress to reduce income taxes across the board and said depreciation schedules businesses now use should be liberalized.

But he provided few other details of the type of "tax reform" the Chamber of Commerce wants.

Other goals on the organization's legislative agenda include:

—Limiting the growth in federal spending for the next fiscal year to $527 billion, or a rise of 7 percent over the present year.

—Repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires payment of an area's prevailing wage rate on government-financed construction projects.

—Changes in the federal pay system, including requiring government employees to participate in the Social Security system.

—Provide unspecified tax and financial incentives to encourage export expansion.

—Require an "economic impact statement" on all proposed legislation in Congress.

—Provide for a "sunset provision" that would submit all federal programs and regulations to periodic review.

Pokes Assume Underdogs' Role

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday that Pittsburgh deserved to be the favorite in Super Bowl XIII. Landry said it was "justified" that the oddsmakers rate the defending Super Bowl champions as three-point underdogs. "Pittsburgh has earned that right because it has played consistently well in the two playoff games," said Landry, who has called the American Conference champion Steelers "the best team in the National Football League" since early in the year. Landry said the Cowboys didn't rate the favorites' role because the offense played poorly in the 28-0 victory over Los Angeles in Sunday's National Conference championship game. "Our offense will have to score at least 21 points to win in the Super Bowl," said Landry. "Pittsburgh has demonstrated it can move the ball. (Quarterback Terry) Bradshaw has never played better." In fact, Landry said it was kind of nice to be the underdog since every team has been gunning for the Cowboys since the first of the year. "The more success you have the more people like to see you fall," said Landry. "People tend to associate with the underdog."

Landry said the Cowboy defense was back at a Super Bowl level. "We played as well in the second half Sunday as we did in the Super Bowl last year," said Landry. "I hope we can do it one more time. That's what it will take (in Super Bowl XIII)." Landry said it will be a physical Super Bowl. "When you play Pittsburgh it's physical," said Landry, "either one way or two ways—that's the Pittsburgh style. You have to meet 'em on their terms." Asked if the prospect of a third Super Bowl title was motivating him, Landry said "I really don't have any thoughts on that. I don't really think it will motivate the team...they just want to wear that championship ring. They saw (earlier in the year) how easy they could have lost it all." Landry was referring to Dallas' 6-4 record before it won eight in a row. "I knew a shocker had to hit us and luckily it happened early," said Landry. "I'm grateful to Minnesota." The Vikings soundly trounced the Cowboys in October on a Thursday night. "We knew we had to start playing after that," said Landry. The Cowboys will work out Wednesday through Saturday and take Sunday off before flying to Ft. Lauderdale Monday, leaving at 2:10 p.m. CST.

Grid MVP Award Throws Bradshaw

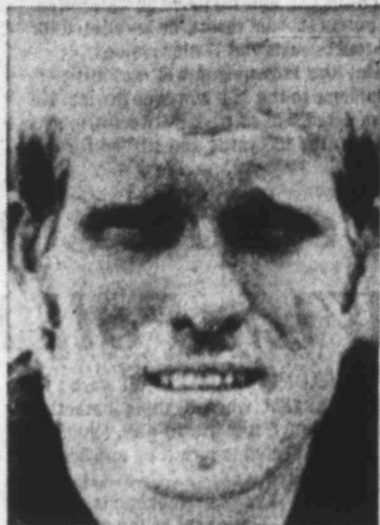

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, saluted Tuesday by the Associated Press as the National Football League's Most Valuable Player, called a quick time out.

"Hold it up just one minute now!" said the Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback, anything but indecisive in taking his team to the NFL's best regular-season record, two playoff wins, and into another Super Bowl.

"I'm just so unaccustomed to accepting awards. This is totally out of character for me," added Bradshaw, who edged Houston Oilers rookie running back Earl Campbell in the voting.

"I'm in a profession where there are so many highly regarded people who deserve this, and here I am being named the Most Valuable Player in the American Football Conference."

Hold it, Terry. That's the Most Valuable Player award. See BRADSHAW Page 4D

AT TIMES, TEXAS Tech has had trouble in Fort Worth. There is the football thing, where in 1967 the Frogs cut the Raiders out of the Cotton Bowl. Then, in '76, TCU threw a scare into Tech and the Raiders couldn't breathe easy until the final play.

Gerald Myers remembers Cowtown; it was there he coached his first Tech team as a head man, guiding the Raiders just a couple of days after the mid-season resignation of Bob Bass in 1971. It wasn't a winning start. Fact is, the Frogs won the championship that season. The next year, Tech went into Fort Worth for the next-to-last game of the year and in a five-way tie for the league lead. It had the lead and the ball with about a minute left — only to lose by a point.

that major win over Texas here last Saturday. Gerald Myers was rightly concerned about the game Monday. WHEN TECH MISSED a wide-open slam dunk in the game's first three minutes, Myers could have guessed what was ahead. He could have relaxed middle of the first half with a 14-point cushion, but the Frogs kept stepping to the free-throw line and dropping in those 1-pointers and suddenly, it was a game again. Only in the last half were the Raiders able to pull away and relax. Two games do not a season make, but the Raiders' 2-0 start is better than anyone else in the league right now. Of course, Rice or Arkansas and A&M get chances to pull into that situation too.

Thus, that tradition, plus coming off

Eddins, Galbraith Top Class A List

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
A coach whose team went undefeated despite returning only two starters and a quarterback who scored five touchdowns in the district championship game top the 1978 Avalanche-Journal All-South Plains team in Class A for 1978.

Jim Eddins not only lost 19 starters off his 1977 state playoff team, but 11 were all-district players in 1977. Still, his Seagraves bunch went 10-0 in the regular season this year, allowing only 31 points.

Going into the last game of the season, both Vega and Bovina were undefeated in District 3-A. The situation begged for someone to take charge. Randall Galbraith did, scoring five touchdowns and leading the Longhorns into the state playoffs.

"Nobody expected us to win except the kids," said Seagraves boss Eddins, now 72-12-1 over seven years. "We didn't have much experience back."

That's an understatement. But still, the Eagles allowed only 10 points in their first six games and only 16 in the first eight.

"We knew from the start that we were going to have to play real good defense," Eddins said. "That's what we did."

"It takes a while to develop an offense. It's harder to play, especially for the linemen."

"We didn't have as much experience, size or speed this year as last year. Look at the backs. Last year our entire starting backfield had played the year before and we had some good size."

With that kind of winning record, surely some outside offers are going to come along for Eddins, trying to lure him away from Class A high school football.

"I really doubt if I'll leave," he said. "I'm not saying I won't, but I'm not planning on it. I've coached for quite a while now (he was an assistant at Seagraves for 10 years before taking over the top job) and I'm just not looking for it now."

Vega coach Jimmy Duncan had nothing but praise for Galbraith. "Oh gosh, he was our leader and he was the one that made our offense go. If we moved the ball, he was in on it somewhere, just because of his ability."

Galbraith rolled up 1,459 yards total offense this season, leading the 'Horns to an 8-3 record (they are 20-4-1 over three years under his guidance).

Of those yards, 966 came on passes (he hit 64 of 122) and 493 came on the ground. A potent scoring threat, he accounted for 19 touchdowns and 17 conversions.

But the crowning jewel was his performance in the 36-0 win over Bovina. He completed 7-of-13 passes (two for touchdowns) for 138 yards and rushed for another 108 (including three touchdowns), a total of 246 yards total offense and 34 points.

Teaming with Galbraith in the South Plains backfield are Crosbyton's Kelly Ferree, O'Donnell's Tony Acosta and Hale Center's Robert Smith.

Ferree gained 1,279 yards during the year and also scored 15 touchdowns. Not bad for a 5-10, 170-pounder.

The other two backfield members are juniors. Acosta, a 5-11, 205-pounder, was a workhorse, carrying the ball 207 times for 1,121 yards and scoring nine times. He also kicked nine extra points.

Acosta also shone on defense and was picked to the first team as a linebacker. He was in on 173 tackles, 66 of them unassisted. He was picked at the same spot last year as a sophomore.

If runningbacks were judged by average gain, Smith would be all-world. Probably the best college prospect in the bunch the stands 6-0 and weighs 210 pounds. Smith averaged 9 yards a carry. That's not bad over 122 carries.

He totaled 1,012 yards on the year and scored 12 touchdowns. He went over 100 yards in four games, including an 180-yard performance against Kress (on only 10 carries) and a 101-yard output in only one half of another game.

Only three players were picked to start both ways. Aside from Acosta, they were Stanton lineman Miles Tollison (a 6-0, 205 center-defensive lineman) and New Deal's 6-2, 240-pound junior Jim McIntire.

Temple Coach Happy With Poll Ranking

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It wasn't too long ago that when Temple basketball coach Don Casey heard the telephone ring he expected to pick it up and hear he had been fired.

Not today. Casey's telephone is ringing off the hook. The voices at the other end are full of congratulations.

You see, the guy whose job hung by a thread three years ago, has his Temple team among the nation's Top 20. The unbeaten Owls (11-0) of Philadelphia are ranked 18th in the poll released Monday.

Casey recalled those hectic days after the 1976 season when his team posted a 9-18 record and his career dangled in the balance.

"I picked it (the telephone) up slowly, put it to my ear slowly. Sometimes I disguised my voice and said I wasn't home," Casey related in an interview Tuesday.

But Temple almost reluctantly, despite intense alumni pressure, stayed with the one-time high school coach and later assistant to Harry Litwack at Temple before Litwack retired after the 1972-73 season.

The university has no regrets. Casey was 17-11 the next season. And last season, the Owls were 24-5. Casey was voted NCAA District II Coach of the Year and East Coast Conference Coach of the Year.

How does he feel now that Temple has cracked the Top 20 for the first time since it was expanded from the Top 10 in 1969?

"It's an adventure," said Casey, whose team meets Penn (7-2) Wednesday night in one of those usually hairy city confrontations. "When I was a high school coach I thought that (the poll ranking) was reserved for my (coaching) idols. I held them in awe. This fulfills something I've always thought about."

Let's sound too enthusiastic, Casey added. "But it's not an end all. It's nice happening at this time."

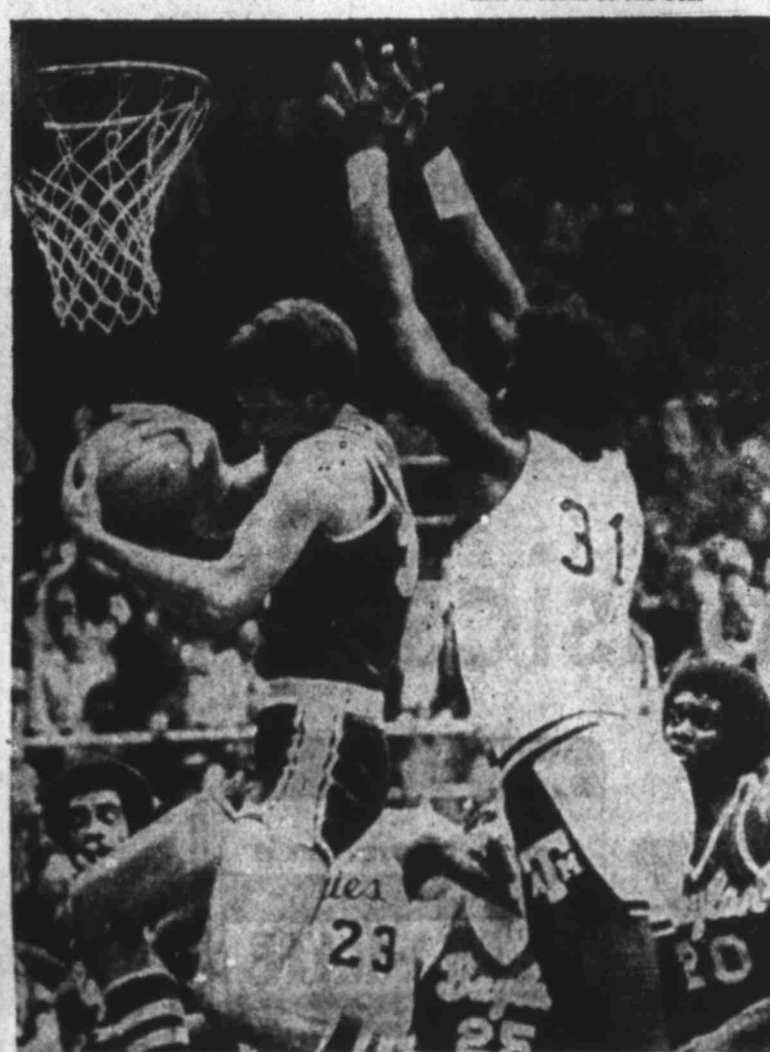

Is Casey surprised at the performance of his team? Could he have expected to beat such teams as Wake Forest, Manhattan, Nevada Las Vegas, Baylor and St. John's, all on the road?

"I've never had to answer that question," Casey began. "Quite frankly, I don't know how to make an evaluation of this team. I may paint myself in a corner, but I'd have to say they've met tough tests and handled them."

"They play well together. There are no jealousies. I don't have to worry about players trying to impress pro scouts, guys playing for themselves. They do it together, realizing that then each gets a piece of the pie."

The team aspect is indicated by the statistics. Seniors Bruce Harold and Ricky Reed lead the scoring with little more than 14 points per game each. Sophomore Neal Robinson has 11.9, and sophomore Keith Parham, 11.4. Reed, the point guard, has 64 assists, Harold 44. The three top rebounders are averaging just over five a game.

Temple wins with perhaps one of the toughest zone defenses in the nation, allowing just 65.1 points per game. The Owls shoot at a 52.3 percent clip, the opposition 43.6.

BAYLOR REBOUND—Former Lamesa all-stater Jim Vastauskas (32) snares a rebound against Texas A&M following an errant shot by Aggie Vernon Smith. The Aggies won Monday night's game 77-64 and will face Houston tonight. Rice will match 1-0 records with Arkansas in the other other Southwest Conference game on top for tonight. (AP Laserphoto)

VISA REVOKED—South African heavyweight Kallie Knoetze gestures as he talks to newsmen concerning the revoking of his visa to be in the United State. Knoetze will continue training for his bout with Bill Sharkey, hoping he will be allowed to stay. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. Revokes Fighter's Visa

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — South African heavyweight boxer Kallie Knoetze, unshaken by revocation of his visa, said Tuesday he will continue training until he gets official word that he won't be allowed to fight Bill Sharkey as scheduled on Saturday.

"If the fight's off, then I'll simply go home," a relaxed and smiling Knoetze said after hearing that his visa had been revoked because of a conviction in his homeland. "I'm already under contract for another fight. I can fight anybody in my country."

American civil-rights organizations have been protesting Knoetze's presence, citing his background as a South African policeman.

John Condon of Madison Square Garden, who with Miami's Chris Dundee promoted the fight, said, "The fight is off. There's nothing we can do about it."

Dundee disagreed, saying he'd promote the fight himself if necessary, if Knoetze is allowed to fight.

A spokeswoman for the State Department's Bureau of Consular Affairs, which revoked the visa, said the law allows re-consideration if the alien asks for it. However, she said it's not spelled out who would handle an appeal when the alien has already entered the United States.

Knoetze heard about the decision from reporters, but hours later still had nothing official. While lawyers in New York considered it, he went for a morning drive and continued preparations for the televised fight.

"Of course, training for a fight is mental, and there has been a lot of distraction," he said. "It will do something to you for a while, get you down."

"But I am in fantastic shape. I hope the fight still comes off. I'd like to show the people what I can do. I think it will come off."

U.S. civil rights groups were angered over Knoetze's shooting of a black youth while he was a Johannesburg policeman. Knoetze said the youth had been throwing rocks at his car.

When the visa was revoked, officials in Washington cited Knoetze's South African conviction of obstructing justice by trying to talk two witnesses into not testifying against a fellow policeman.

"He is ineligible for a visitor's visa on grounds of a specific conviction for obstruction of justice, which is a felony in this country, regardless of what it is considered in a foreign jurisdiction," said one Consular Affairs spokeswoman, Mary Ann Yoden.

Knoetze wasn't surprised that Washington responded to the civil rights protests. "We thought there might be problems like this, but not so serious like it is now."

At CBS television, which had planned to televise the fight, spokesman Beano Cook said the network wouldn't challenge the revocation. "We're not in politics," he said.

Cook said no plans for a replacement program had been made. Whether CBS would televise a match of Sharkey with some other fighter would depend who the substitute was, he said.

Nicklaus Tops Field At Bob Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The lure of record purses — $13 million spread over a 10-month schedule — is reflected in the crowded field for the Bob Hope Desert Classic, the kickoff event for the 1979 PGA Tour.

For the first time in many years — possibly the first time ever — there were no qualifying spots available for non-exempt players. The 128-man field was filled entirely by men holding exemptions from qualifying. And this, of course, resulted in what is almost certainly the strongest lineup in the 20-year history of the Hope.

Heading the list is Jack Nicklaus, making one of his rare appearances in the marathon event that begins a five-day run today on four desert golf courses. The unique format calls for each pro to play one round on all four courses, each day with a different three-man team of amateurs, before Sunday's final round at Indian Wells.

Leading the celebrity amateurs, many of whom are show-business friends of the host, is the team composed of Hope, former President Gerald Ford and actor Clint Eastwood. They'll play one round each with defending champion Bill Rogers, Dr. Gilt Morgan, Lee Elder and Hubert Green.

It will be the first of a minimum nine pro-am appearances in four events by Ford, who is listed with a 15 handicap.

Nicklaus, who won the British and Australian opens last season in an abbreviated schedule, plans to trim his four appearances even more this season and may make this his only stop on the West Coast portion of the tour.

"I haven't played in the Hope in quite a while and I thought it was time I did," Nicklaus said. He indicated he would use the event as the first step in his preparations for the Masters, his first big target of the season.

"I'll probably play in only about 12 tournaments this year and concentrate on the majors. I'll play in others only as I need to prepare for the majors," he said.

In addition to Nicklaus, however, the field includes such standouts as PGA champion John Mahaffey and U.S. Open title-holder Andy North, who comprised the United States' winning World Cup team, plus Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Pate, Dave Stockton, Lanny Wadkins and Johnny Miller, who used this event as a key to his domination of the game a few years ago.

Bradshaw Gains Respect

ble Player in the National Football League — both conferences, from Miami to Minnesota, from San Francisco to New England.

"You're kidding? Let me wake up here for a second now. I need to make an even fancier speech, don't I?"

Bradshaw did his fanciest talking this regular season with 23 touchdown losses, tops in the NFL and 10 more than his previous personal high.

He got 36 MVP votes and Campbell 33 in balloting by sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL city. Seattle Seahawk quarterback Jim Zorn got six, followed by quarterback Roger Staubach of the Super Bowl-bound Dallas Cowboys with four.

"Terry's play and statistics speak for themselves," said Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "He is deserving of any award. The players on our team voted him their MVP for two successive seasons — and now this award proves what a great player he is."

The award comes to Bradshaw at age 30, in his ninth NFL season, and it officially marks a shift for Bradshaw from public attention to public acclaim.

The attention came easy.

He threw it a mile at Louisiana Tech, was the first player picked in the 1970 draft, started as a rookie with Pittsburgh, married a beauty queen, later married ice skater Jo Jo Starbuck, cut country music records, bought a 400-acre cattle ranch, crowned in a movie with his pal Burt Reynolds, and spoke often and openly about his love for the Bible and Christianity.

The acclaim came hard.

His rookie year he read blitzes like Sanskrit, in his third season he heard some boos from Pittsburgh fans, he had his intelligence questioned in print, and during his fifth year he temporarily lost his job to Joe Gilliam.

Pro Ski Tour Gets Season Underway

Professional ski racing opens its 1979 season in New Mexico on Jan. 23-24-25, when the Southwest Pro Ski Tour kicks off an eight race schedule with a dual ski meet at the Sierra Blanca Ski Area near Ruidoso, N.M.

Over 50 racers from the western United States and Europe are expected for the Yukon Jack-Sierra Blanca Pro Cups, a two race event staged as the highlight of the annual Ruidoso Winter Carnival.

The races are sponsored by Hublein Inc.. The SPST will visit five area ski resorts in New Mexico for seven races plus a new race is being added this year at the Purgatory Ski Area near Durango, Colo. for a total of eight races.

Bradshaw won back his job that season and Pittsburgh won the Super Bowl, beating Minnesota. The next year, he made All-Pro for the first time and led the Steelers over Dallas in Super Bowl X.

The past two seasons, he solidified himself as a leader.

"Nothing has come easy for me. But I've been blessed with talent, and I like to work," said Bradshaw. "I'm just learning how much fun this game can be."

So Bradshaw heads for the Super Bowl with his play book and the Good Book. He and his wife, JoJo, read the same Bible passages daily, even when they are apart.

What about his own standing ovations, his MVP awards?

"I'm flattered, but I'll never let them change me," he said. "I'm still Terry Bradshaw. I've had one shining year in nine long years in the NFL, and when the season is over it becomes history."

"It's been fun, but I think I'm a bigger person with goals a lot higher than MVP's and Super Bowls. I want to respect other people, help other people, and maintain my Christian commitment."

On Jan. 21 in Miami, Bradshaw faces Dallas in Super Bowl XIII.

FCA Meeting Held Thursday Morning

The regular monthly meeting of the adult chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) will be held Thursday at 7 a.m. at Furr's Cafeteria in Town & Country Shopping Center.

Duke Tolbert, youth director for the First Baptist Church, will be the speaker. The public is invited.

South Africa Upset Over U.S. Ruling

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South African sportsmen and politicians reacted angrily Tuesday to the U.S. government decision to revoke boxer Kallie Knoetze's visa five days before his scheduled Miami Beach fight with Bill Sharkey.

"I feel the gall rising higher and higher in my throat, the more I think about it," said Wilf Garforth, head of the Transvaal Provincial Boxing Board. "It is nothing but a political move against a South African sportsman."

The state department said it revoked the visa after re-evaluating Knoetze's conviction of obstructing justice and concluding that it was the equivalent of a felony in the United States and therefore grounds for denial of a visa. Knoetze is a former policeman.

"It's a disgrace, said boxing matchmaker Maurice Toveel. "It has nothing to do with sport. It's just a political act. If this action in any way arises from Knoetze having shot and crippled a young black, then all I can say is that the American state department must have known all about that before they issued a visa to Kallie."

Seattle's Patera Gets Coach Of Year Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Patera, who came within a whisker of guiding the Seattle Seahawks into the playoffs in only their third year in the National Football League, was named 1978 Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

The 13-year defensive assistant coach, whose explosive Seahawks finished the year at 9-7 and in a three-way tie with Oakland and San Diego for second place in the American Conference West, received 25 of 84 ballots by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, three from each league city.

Walt Michaels, who turned the New York Jets' fortunes around in his second year as their head coach, was a close second with 21 votes, followed by Dick Vermeil of the Philadelphia Eagles with 13 and Bum Phillips of the Houston Oilers with nine.

Others receiving votes were Tom Landry of Dallas, Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh, Leeman Bennett of Atlanta, Don Shula of Miami, Don Coryell of San Diego, Bart Starr of Green Bay and Chuck Fairbanks of New England.

When the Seahawks were born before the 1976 season, general manager John Thompson and the team's co-owners, Herman Sarkowsky and the late Lloyd Nordstrom, went looking for a winner — and they found one in Patera.

"We wanted a coach who had been associated with a winner, one who knew how to win and what it takes to win," Thompson said.

In his pro playing days during 1955-61, Patera never played on a real winner (Baltimore Colts, Chicago Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys). But the former University of Oregon star qualified because as an assistant coach with Minnesota the Vikings amassed a 76-22 record during his 1969-75 tenure. Before that he was an assistant with the Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants.

"In Jack's case, in addition to being a winner, he was a very patient man, and that was important to us," Thompson said. "We expected many lean years before we got to the contending level."

And Patera recalled: "Learning to win was an important factor for us when we started three years ago."

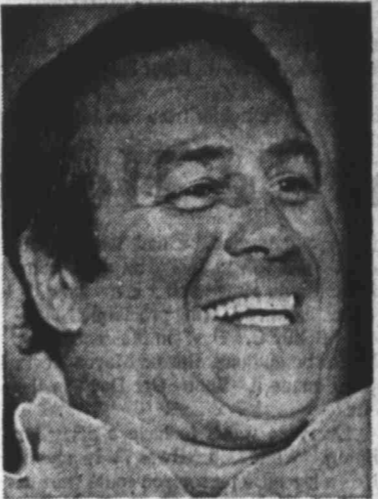

The Seahawks won just two of 12 games in their first year, then improved to 5-9 in 1977, the best record ever for a second-year NFL expansion club.

But few fans were prepared for Seattle's rapid emergence as a legitimate NFL power. Certainly the Oakland Raiders weren't. The Seahawks beat them during the season. Nor were the Minnesota Vikings prepared for their 29-28 upset loss. Nor the Cleveland Browns, battered 47-24.

Three of the Seahawks' losses were by less than a touchdown, including an overtime defeat by the Denver Broncos. Perhaps more important, though, was the fact that five of their victories were by four points or less.

Few fans expected Michaels' Jets to do much better than the 3-11 records they had posted the previous three seasons. But they beat Miami twice and Denver once en route to an 8-8 season in which they were playoff contenders until the next-to-last weekend.

Fran Blasts Stadium Critics

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Veteran Minnesota Vikings' quarterback Francis Tarkenton Tuesday criticized opponents of a downtown Minneapolis domed stadium, calling their thinking "hardly visionary."

Tarkenton, who hasn't made a decision yet on whether to return for his 19th season as chief playmaker for the Vikings, said he's in favor of the downtown domed stadium.

He also said his opinion is as unbiased as humanly possible, since he has lived in Atlanta during the off-season throughout his career and has no stake in professional sports in the Twin Cities area.

Tarkenton made his comments in an article he wrote for the opinion page of the Minneapolis Star, which appeared in Tuesday's editions.

Tarkenton said he finds "absurd the lack of harmony between various locales on this issue."

"The St. Paul and Bloomington forces seem to be of the opinion that they would rather not have pro sports in this area than have a new stadium in Minneapolis," said Tarkenton. "This is hardly visionary thinking."

The anti-stadium forces should start paying attention to the important role that pro sports play in this area, said Tarkenton.

"I must say that I get rather irritated at people who really are against the downtown Minneapolis domed stadium because the power structure, establishment or whatever you want to call it are proponents of that downtown dome..." said Tarkenton.

"I say thank God for that power structure. They are the leaders of this town. They are people who have built businesses, risked capital, provided jobs and paid taxes to build a great Twin Cities."

From the player's standpoint added Tarkenton, there's little question a domed stadium is preferable. He said it would also enhance the comfort of the fans.

"I don't buy the argument that a domed stadium dampers athletes," he added. "The simple facts are that the Minnesota Vikings have long been at a disadvantage when the weather turned cold and snowy because of the absence of adequate indoor practice facilities and the lack of good field conditions and tolerable weather for our skilled players to perform on."

Connors Turns Nose At New Net Rules

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors, the world's top-ranked tennis player, turned thumbs down on the new Grand Prix rules Tuesday and vowed to pass up the 93-tournament schedule for 1979, including Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and other traditional events.

"A few others feel the same way I do — pretty important players, I would say," the game's volatile firebrand told an informal press conference at Madison Square Garden, setting off the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters.

Without specifying, Connors intimated he was talking about Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, Guillermo Vilas, Davis Cup star John McEnroe and a handful of others who dominate the men's game.

The current Masters Tournament is not immediately affected since it is the climax of the 1978 campaign. The rich event will go on as scheduled in the Garden's Felt Forum, starting Wednesday, with Connors, seeded No. 1, favored to retain his title against seven rivals.

The event is a round robin, split into two divisions of four men, the survivors qualifying for the $100,000 first prize Sunday afternoon. Connors opens against Harold Solomon and plays McEnroe, the 19-year-old sensation of America's Davis Cup victory over Britain, in his second match Thursday evening. That portends to be the tournament highlight.

Connors originally declined to play in the Masters. He, Borg and Vilas all asked advance bonus money, which was refused. Connors finally yielded, saying, "I thought it would be good for tennis — I didn't want to discourage Colgate as a sponsor."

Colgate is the prime bankroller of the $11-million tour. Borg, the young Swede who has won three consecutive Wimbledon, and Vilas, the moody Argentinian who won 50 consecutive matches in 1977, preferred to stay out as did Vitas Gerulaitis, another of the world's Top Four.

It was this virtual boycott of the Grand Prix's blue ribbon finale that provoked tennis' ruling Pro Council to announce new standards for 1979 which would compel all players to sign up for the Grand Prix in advance and agree to play in a minimum of six tournaments designated by the Council.

"My schedule is made by me and for myself," Connors insisted. "I don't intend to let anyone tell me when and where I have to play. When I commit myself to a tournament I do so with the intention of playing seven days. If I play three in a row, I am bushed by the time the next week comes up. I may be selfish, but I have my pride to think of."

Connors indicated that Borg, Vilas and McEnroe shared his sentiments. In fact, McEnroe's father, an attorney, called a meeting of representatives of those objecting to the new rules Tuesday evening to decide on a course of action. They intimated that, if necessary, they might take their case into the courts.

The Pro Tennis Council, a 10-man body headed by Bob Briner, also was holding frantic sessions in an effort to break the stalemate.

While the body had the support of a majority of the touring pros, it appeared obvious that no tournament schedule could be a success without Bjorn Borg, Vilas and McEnroe, the biggest names in the game.

A compromise was being sought. Connors, however, was so adamant that it seemed certain the Council would be forced to surrender and offer up a less restrictive plan.

The first tournament affected would be the Grand Prix in Birmingham, Ala., next week. Connors is committed there. Then the following week comes the important U.S. Pro Indoor Championships in Philadelphia which regularly draws the top-ranked competitors.

"They have to make a decision quick — this week," Connors said.

The Council is made up of three representatives each from the Association of Tennis Professionals, tournament directors and the International Tennis Federation. Briner, executive director of the ATP, heads the policy-making body.

First Draft Pick Knows Name Of Baseball Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Neal Heaton, a left-handed fastball pitcher, may have been the first pick of Tuesday's free agent amateur baseball draft, but he certainly doesn't lack in one of the nuances of professional sport.

"It's gonna be the money," the 18-year-old Heaton said matter-of-factly, explaining whether he'll choose the minor leagues over college, after the New York Mets made the local high school star the No. 1 selection of the regular phase of the winter draft.

Heaton, being graduated later this month from Sachem High School in Holtsville, N.Y., said he had received scholarship offers from Arizona State, Miami, Texas, Oklahoma State and New Mexico.

"It feels really good to be drafted by a New York team," he said. "I've been a fan of the Mets for a long time."

As Heaton already seems to understand, the name of the game is money. Teams generally do not fawn over a draft choice — until after he's signed — utilizing the theory that excessive praise often drives up a player's asking price.

It is true that January drafts are notoriously slim because the greater number of quality players are graduated from high school and college in June — a fact noted by Mets General Manager Joe McDonald.

"Most of the players available now wouldn't be first-round picks in June," McDonald said. "Our reports say that he (Heaton) has a good arm and good overall ability. We're not looking to fill any particular position. We're looking to get the best player we can."

First-round choices in the regular phase — players never drafted before — have fared well in the majors, however. Of the 13 other leadoff picks, only five players, including the last two first choices, have yet to make the major leagues.

From 1973 to 1978, the No. 1 picks, in order, were Alan Bannister, Roy Smalley, Gene Richards and Steve Kemp. Other notable opening picks were Chris Chambliss (1970) and George Hendrick (1968). But let's not forget the first two No. 1 choices, Alec DiStaso (1967) and Don Lohse (1966).

Heaton, 6 foot 1 and 195 pounds, would seem to need quite a bit of minor league seasoning since his only pitch is the fastball with which he built a 20-3 record and averaged 12 strikeouts a game in high school.

"I know I can develop a good slider and a good curve," he said.

Heaton was one of 15 pitchers — 12 of them righties — taken in the first round of the regular phase. There were 11 Californians among the 26 first-round draftees.

After 247 players were picked over 19 rounds of the regular phase, Philadelphia began the secondary phase by selecting Mark Davis, a left-handed pitcher who struck out 191 batters in 961-3 innings in his senior year at Granada High School in Livermore, Calif.

Shortly after drafting Davis, the Phillies announced they had signed him. "Davis has a good fastball and a good knowledge of pitching," said Phillies scout Eddie Brockman.

Toronto selected second and chose Nattie George, an outfielder from San Jose, Calif, before Cincinnati gambled on Bill Bordley, considered by most scouts to be the best player available. However, Bordley, a left-handed hurler who was 26-2 in two seasons at the University of Southern California, has told scouts he definitely wants to stay on the West Coast.

One baseball source said that California President Buzze Bavasi had been telling teams that Bordley wanted to sign with the Angels, who picked one spot behind Cincinnati. If Bavasi's talk was a ploy, the Reds didn't take the bait.

Bordley, 21, dropped out of Southern Cal so he would be eligible for the January draft. Now attending El Camino (Calif.) Junior College, Bordley said that if the team and money weren't right, he would go back to school. That means he would be available for the June draft, and the Reds would have wasted a first-round draft choice.

"He told me that he hadn't ruled out another ballclub but he really preferred going to a West Coast team," said Dan Cowgill, El Camino's baseball coach.

"The thinking was that he was the best player available when we drafted," said Jim Ferguson, a spokesman for the Reds. "Signability is always a question when you draft."

There were 60 players taken in the secondary phase for a total of 307, a record for January selections. Besides Bordley, the most identifiable name chosen was Jeff Stottlemire, younger brother of ex-Yankees ace Mel Stottlemire. Jeff, from Yakima (Wash.) Junior College, was drafted by San Francisco in the first round of the secondary phase.

Orr Returns To Hockey Glory

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Orr returned to the scene of his glory Tuesday, declaring he'll never be a National Hockey League head coach but vowing to find a place in the game.

The retired former Boston Bruins superstar defenseman, now working in the Chicago Black Hawks organization, was greeted by adoring fans and joyous politicians.

Ceremonies at the Massachusetts Statehouse and Boston City Hall were followed by an emotion-packed evening at Boston Garden where the Bruins retired his playing No. 4 prior to an exhibition game against the Soviet Wings.

"I don't know what I'll be doing in the future," said the 29-year-old Orr, whose career was cut short by knee injuries. "I'll be making an announcement shortly. I couldn't handle coaching but I want to stay involved in hockey."

Politicians lined up to pay homage to Orr, who received a gavel at the State-house and, saying he had tears in his eyes, conceded, "I feel a bit more comfortable with some lumber in my hand."

Gov. Edward J. King proclaimed Tuesday "Bobby Orr Day" in Massachusetts. Not to be outdone, Boston Mayor Kevin White made it "Bobby Orr Day" in the city.

"Everyone wants to have a party for Bobby," White said. "Bwas 74x1n a hero. He's a legend, a person you could stare at without embarrassment."

Orr slipped quietly out of Boston 2½ years ago when Bruins management, citing the young star's balky knees, refused to sign him to a new contract. Orr joined the Black Hawks as a free agent but played infrequently. He retired Nov. 8.

Accompanied by his wife Peggy, Orr listened to Massachusetts House Speaker Thomas McGee say: "Bobby Orr has come as close to perfection as a modern human being has ever come... He is quite simply the greatest hockey player in the world."

A native of Parry Sound, Ontario, Orr led Boston to Stanley Cup victories in 1970 and 1972, reviving an organization that had fallen on hard times. Eight seasons Orr as voted the Norris Trophy as the league's best defenseman He was NHL MVP three times.

Starting as an 18-year-old rookie, Orr piled up 270 regular season goals and 645 assists. His single season marks for a defenseman include 46 goals, 102 assists and 139 points.

Walsh Gets 49ers, Replaces O'Connor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Walsh was named head coach of the San Francisco 49ers on Tuesday, becoming the fifth man to hold the job since owner Eddie DeBartolo Jr. bought the team 22 months ago.

Walsh's appointment was announced less than five hours after assistant Rod Dowhower succeeded him as head football coach at Stanford University.

"In his two outstanding years at Stanford, plus a highly successful tour of duty in the National Football League as an assistant for 10 years, Bill Walsh has proven that he is ready to be a head coach in the NFL," DeBartolo said, in naming Walsh both head coach and director of football operations.

"A lot of teams would like to be making the announcement that we are making right now — I'm pleased that we have been able to land a man with his stature and credentials," he added.

Fred O'Connor, who coached the final seven games of the 1978 season, was fired, along with General Manager Joe Thomas on Monday by DeBartolo.

"I am pleased to have this opportunity afforded me by Ed DeBartolo and I am particularly happy to stay in the Bay area," Walsh said. "I know that there is some raw, young talent on the 49ers team and I look forward to the challenge of building a winner."

The moves followed the worst season in 49er history, 2-14, during which Coach Pete McCulley was fired and assistant O'Connor succeeded him after the ninth game. McCulley had succeeded Ken Meyer, who was fired after coaching the 49ers to a 5-9 record in 1977.

Monte Clark coached the team to an 8-6 record in 1976, but he was fired early in 1977, shortly after DeBartolo bought the 49ers and named Thomas as general manager.

Walsh, 47, coached at Stanford for two years, compiling a 17-7 record. Prior to that, he was an assistant for three NFL teams — Oakland, Cincinnati and San Diego.

Dowhower, 35, was Walsh's chief assistant at Stanford, coaching the quarterbacks and receivers, who were among the best in the country.

CTK Hits Road

While other area schools were busy running up and down the basketball court the Christ The King team's were faced with another situation. The Trojans were idle, as they have been since both squads walloped Muenster Sacred Heart on Jan. 5.

But tonight the Trojans get back into action when they travel to Plainview to face Amarillo Alamo Catholic School on neutral grounds.

Both CTK teams will take a 1-0 district slate into the games.

ROD DOWHOWER
New Stanford Coach

Dowhower said he was as close to Walsh as anyone and that there would be very little change in the way the Cardinals play football.

"I think the change and the way it's come about has been done with class," Dowhower said at a news conference. "I don't think we'll skip a beat. I'm offensive-minded and have always believed in the forward pass."

"I think the time is right for Rod Dowhower."

CBS Wins Ratings Race Second Straight Week

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, with or without a huge audience for the pro football playoff game between Los Angeles and Dallas, won the network's ratings competition for the second week in a row and the third time in a month.

CBS estimated more than 80 million people saw the National Football Conference championship game Sunday afternoon, less than half of which was broadcast in prime time — after 7 p.m. EST.

With audience figures on the game incomplete, the A.C. Nielsen Co. listed CBS' "60 Minutes," on the air immediately after the football broadcast, as the most-watched show for the week ending Jan. 7.

CBS, in fact, had five shows in Nielsen's Top 10, including a movie, "The Incredible Journey of Dr. Meg Laurel," and three consistent hits — "All in the Family," "M-A-S-H" and "Dallas." Once more, it was a case in which CBS offered new shows while runnerup ABC was spotting reruns. ABC still split the first 10 with CBS, with "Mork and Mandy" second to "60 Minutes."

It was another disastrous week for NBC, with "CHiPs," the network's top-rated show, 17th, followed by the New Year's night "Orange Bowl" broadcast, No. 18.

The rating for "60 Minutes" was 32.2. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 32.2 percent saw at least part of the newsmagazine.

CBS' rating for the week — not counting the football game — was 22.7, followed by ABC at 20.9 and NBC at 17.3. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 22.7 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS.

ABC won the ratings race 11 of the season's first 13 weeks, before CBS' latest surge. NBC, on the other hand, has been last or tied for last 10 weeks in a row.

Network figures show ABC still leading for the season to date. NBC's "Weekend" newsmagazine showed slightly more vitality in its new Sunday night time slot, climbing to 54th of 59 programs checked.

NBC had three programs in the bottom five — No. 55 "Project U.F.O.," No. 57 "David Cassidy-Man Undercover," and No. 58, "NBC News Special: The American Family." ABC's "Hardy Boys" was 56th, and "CBS Reports: Perspective — Conversation between Eric Sevareid and Walter Cronkite," was 59th.

"60 Minutes," with a rating of 32.2 representing 24 million homes, CBS; "Mork and Mandy," 32.1 or 23.9 million, "Three's Company," 30.7 or 22.9 million, "Laverne and Shirley," 30 or 22.4 million, and "Happy Days," 28.8 or 21.5 million, all ABC; Tuesday Movie "The Incredible Journey of Dr. Meg Laurel," 28.7 or 21.4 million, "All in the Family," 27.6 or 20.6 million, "M-A-S-H," 27.5 or 20.5 million, all CBS, "What's Happening," 27.4 or 20.4 million, ABC, and "Dallas," 25.7 or 19.1 million, CBS.

The next 10 shows: "Taxi," ABC; "One Day at a Time," CBS; "Fantasy Island," ABC; "Barnaby Rudge," CBS; "Love Boat" and "Barney Miller," both ABC; "CHiPs" and "Orange Bowl," both NBC; "Lou Grant," CBS, and "Eight is Enough," ABC.

Abusive Parents' Viewpoints Due Airing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "I had had it and didn't want to hurt her because she was a child... So it was either kill myself that day when I brought the gun up to my head or reach out to someone. I reached out."

Pat, a Maryland woman in her early 30s, is one of a growing number of otherwise loving parents who have abused their children, sometimes fatally.

She, along with six other parents, describes her history of child abuse in an hour-long special to be aired on many Public Broadcasting Service stations at 8 p.m. Thursday (Lubbock Channel 5).

"Raised In Anger," produced by

WQED in Pittsburgh, with Emmy award-winner Edward Asner as host, introduces 1979 as the International Year of the Child, a designation made by the United Nations.

Unlike most previous examinations of child abuse, this one focuses on the anguish and helplessness of the abusive parent, rather than the child's suffering, and attempts to help those parents identify their child-raising problems.

"It is not a question of how parents feel toward their children alone that brings on abuse. It's how they handle such feelings," says James Seguin, the show's producer.

Bernie, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to 10 years in jail after the death of his child, says, "I felt totally helpless when I was abusing David. I was very much angry at my helplessness so, in retaliation, I abused him more... I felt justified because I felt a sense of power doing it. I didn't feel helpless anymore."

One million parents used knives or guns to threaten or injure their child in 1979, the program states. An estimated 2,000-5,000 children die each year as a direct result of child abuse.

The program, which relates the personal experiences, ranging from mild to severe, of the six parents, as well as describing their recovery, is interspersed with commentary from pediatricians, child psychologists and representatives of helping organizations, such as Parents Anonymous.

"Raised In Anger" includes footage from a session at a meeting of Parents Anonymous, a national child abuse organization, as well as a segment filmed at Pittsburgh's Parental Stress Center, a treatment facility for abused or threatened infants.

The final portion of the program offers abusive or potentially abusive parents information on how to obtain help.

The broadcast is coordinated with the opening by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare of 10 regional centers for child abuse and neglect throughout the country, says Lynn Rubenson, promotion manager of national projects for WQED.

The station also intends to launch a national "outreach" campaign to get in touch with abusive parents through the efforts of local PBS stations and national organizations that deal with child abuse.

"THROAT IN SPOTLIGHT AGAIN

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The X-rated movie "Deep Throat" had a special screening before the Florida Supreme Court. The seven justices watched it to help them decide whether the state attorney's office in Pensacola seized the film illegally. A University of West Florida communications professor was using the film in his lectures on obscenity and constitutional law in May 1977. He was asked to turn it over to then-State Attorney Curtis Golden after a Pensacola judge ruled it obscene.

College Humor, Hit In 1930s, Making Comeback

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Not since the 1930s, when Jack Oakie and Toby Wing were the rage of Hollywood's campus comedies, has college humor enjoyed so much success.

Thanks to "Animal House," which has earned some $50 million, coeds and lettermen, fraternities and sororities are making a show biz comeback.

Forty years ago the hero was usually a football star. The heroine was a naive sorority girl. Each had a best friend — Oakie and Wing.

Oakie inevitably wore a raccoon coat and beanie. Toby wore short skirts, bobbed hair and dimpled grin. They dashed about in roadsters. Oakie commonly ended up in the rumble seat with a ukelele.

Compared to "Animal House," the old college humor movies were innocent exercises, spiked occasionally by a glimpse of well-turned ankle and a iordemic bit with a hip flask.

"Animal House" laughs, while equally sophomoric, rated an "R" with sufficient nudity and vulgarity in fraternity house scenes to have given the old Hayes censorship office a terminal case of the vapors.

The college humor movement has been considerably spurred by the success of "Saturday Night Live," a scatological TV hodgepodge starring the Not Ready for Prime Time Players, John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd, Jane Curtin and Gilda Radner.

No small contributor to the campus humor movement is comedian Steve Martin, the "wild and crazy guy" who has parlayed rabbit ears, balloon headresses and bathroom jokes into astonishing popularity among today's youth.

This year each network will feature at least one college humor situation comedy. "Brothers and Sisters" is scheduled for NBC. ABC is adapting "Animal House" from the movie. CBS hits the air Jan. 22 with "Co-ed Fever."

"Co-ed Fever's" producer is Martin.

TRAIN WRECK KILLS TWO
OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — Two freight trains collided head-on early Tuesday on the Oporto-Regua line near this northern city, killing an engineer and a trainman and injuring two persons.

Ransohoff whose movie credits include "The Americanization of Emily," "The Sandpiper," "Topkapi" and "Save The Tiger."

His bucolic TV series made CBS the top network 15 years ago with "Mr. Ed," "The Beverly Hillbillies" and "Petticoat Junction."

Ransohoff's return to TV was inspired by son Steven's undergraduate experiences at Vassar a few years ago. Ransohoff's decision to produce a college humor series preceded "Animal House."

"Co-ed Fever" isn't a ripoff of "Animal House," Ransohoff said. "I stole the idea from Steven's adventures. It's the story of an all-girl school making the transition to coeducation."

"We have a firm 13-week commitment from CBS. The show is based in a 'living house,' with 22 girls, on the campus of an eastern campus."

"The college is a prototype of the gothic women's ivy-covered college. We researched Smith, Sarah Lawrence, Vassar and Mt. Holyoke. We've taken the idea of 'living houses' from Smith. They are big clapboard homes, not dorms, which are owned by the school for housing students."

"I'm on the board of trustees of the Wooster School in Danbury, Conn. We lived through converting an all-boys school into a coed school five years ago. So I have some personal background in the premise of the show."

Ransohoff promises plenty of physical comedy in the new half-hour show. He also said the stories won't be socially relevant. Neither will "Co-ed Fever" be as bawdy or lecherous as "The Animal House."

"I don't know how 'Animal House' can be transferred to TV," he said. "It's success was based almost solely on its vulgarities."

"Our show will be played broadly. It's funny, but it's also in good taste."

"One of the important things was the casting. I saw people in their 30s parading around as college kids in 'Animal House.' It put me off. So I hired kids from 17 to 19 for our show. There are a couple in their early 20s, but that's the right age for college, too.

"The principals are four young actresses and three young actors who are new to prime time television."

"The stories involve the conversion hysteria of integrating 250 male students on the 2,400-girl campus and the impact it has on the females, their families and the 200-year-old college."

"Nobody can design shows for kids except Disney. So we're not aiming totally for youthful viewers. Youngsters are very bright adults, if you ask me. We're attempting to treat them as such. They like youth-oriented ideas but not when they're treated like kid stuff."

"Five years ago CBS asked me to develop some new comedy ideas. I kicked some formats around before I came up with a campus humor concept in 1976. I spent 1977 developing it before "Animal House" came out.

"The success of 'Animal House' didn't hurt 'Co-ed Fever' being picked up by the networks. And now 'Animal House' has lately come into its own. We'll see how long the cycle lasts."

COMMON STOCKS AND BONDS BY EXCHANGE

Market Posts Advance

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market, recovering from a modest setback in the previous session, posted a broad advance Tuesday that lifted the Dow Jones industrial average to a 2 1/2-month high.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips, up of 2.59 on Monday, climbed 3.29 to 831.43, its highest close since it finished at 838.66 Oct. 23.

Advances outnumbered declines by better than a 2-1 spread on the New York Stock Exchange.

Takeover developments on several fronts provided some of the standout gainers among individual issues.

Diamond International, for example, jumped 5 1/2 to 38 3/4 as the 4 p.m. close in New York. The company said Monday that a French concern plans to acquire more than $15 million worth of its stock.

Western Publishing, a producer of children's books and games and such adult merchandise as cookbooks, climbed 2 3/4 to 24 1/4, while Mattel dropped 3/4 to 8 1/4.

New York (AP) - Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of 4:00 p.m. Eastern time were consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.
