NEIGHBORLY GREETING — Ambassador Ardeshtir Zahedi of Iran, right, greets a next door neighbor to Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi Wednesday afternoon, shortly after the ambassador arrived to visit with the prince and his brother and sisters. The IRANIAN Ambassador to the United States Ardeshtir Zahedi briefly visited members of the Iranian royal family here Wednesday afternoon.

The ambassador, the shah's former brother-in-law and one of his closest friends and advisers, made his surprise two-hour visit only two days after returning to this country from Tehran.

Later that night, Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi gave his second impromptu news conference, walking out of his home at 11:15 p.m. to talk with about six reporters gathered at the front gate in windy, 40-degree weather.

"I was just worried about you staying out in the cold," he told reporters. "I just wanted to help you" by coming out to talk, the prince said.

The prince said he talked with his father Tuesday, but said he did not know when his parents plan to leave Egypt where they are vacationing.

"Of course, they are keeping us up to date on their activities," the teen-aged heir to the Iranian monarchy said. He added his parents are "tired, but in good health."

Confirms Kin Visiting
The prince confirmed that his younger sisters, Princess Farahnaz, 15, and Princess Layla, 8, along with his brother, Prince Alireza, 12, and his grandmother, Farideh Diba, were staying at his ranch-style weekend home.

The Iranian ambassador arrived to visit the prince and his family about 4:30 p.m., leaving about 7 p.m. to fly to Palm Springs, Calif.

The Avalanche-Journal learned the ambassador apparently interrupted his trip to California in order to visit the royal family who arrived here early Tuesday.

Zahedi is expected to meet with the shah's mother, Tadj el Moulouk, and his sister, Shams Pahlavi, in California.

The A-J also learned Zahedi may look into the possibility of the shah and his wife, Empress Farah, staying at the sprawling Palm Springs estate of Walter Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain. The shah's mother and sister took refuge at the estate earlier this month after anti-shah demonstrators tried to storm the Beverly Hills, Calif., mansion in which the women had been staying.

Locked Out Of Office
Zahedi, who has headed up Iran's diplomatic corps in Washington for the past six years, was locked out of his embassy offices Wednesday following the announcement by the Iranian Foreign Ministry in Tehran that he had resigned his post. The ministry also said eight other Iranian ambassadors had been permanently recalled to Tehran.

However, Zahedi later gained entry to his offices and a Washington spokesman for the ambassador said the report of his resignation from Tehran was "untrue."

Zahedi visited Lubbock Nov. 17 when former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger spoke at the annual Lubbock Chamber of Commerce dinner. The ambassador and the crown prince were guests at the event.

Shah Still In Egypt
The shah and his wife Wednesday were in Egypt for what they termed a temporary vacation, although many believe it is the beginning of exile for the monarch. The couple is expected to visit Morocco before arriving in the United States. Although the shah's known plans once he reaches the United States remain uncertain, a Washington source said the shah still "may fly into Lubbock."

During his 25-minute discussion with reporters, the prince admitted it was hard to comment on his father's reign "because family life is completely different from politics."

But he added some of the turmoil in his

Cold Fronts Due To Spoil Warm Siege

PARTLY CLOUDY skies and unseasonably warm temperatures today will give Lubbock residents another chance to wash cars before the weekend, when winds may be tinged with icy fury as two cold fronts sweep the area with precipitation and freezing temperatures.

While much of the rest of the country braces for fresh onslaughts of snow, dense clouds will blanket the South Plains tonight, bringing with them cooler temperatures and a 40 percent chance of showers.

Today's high should be in the mid 50s, and the low tonight is expected to be in the low 30s. Winds will be southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph today and tonight.

New Rain Threat Due
Clouds are expected to thin Friday, but a high pressure ridge over the South Plains and a low pressure ridge over western New Mexico again will threaten the area with showers.

Lows near 10 in the northern Panhandle and in the 20s in the Lubbock area are expected for the weekend. Highs until Monday should not exceed the 30s in northern Texas or the 50s in the South Plains.

The winter storm that dumped more than a foot and a half of snow on Flagstaff, Ariz., in little more than six hours Tuesday has moved northeastward into Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, New Mexico and parts of north central Texas, causing winter storm watches to be issued for most of the area.

Another cold front pushed into northern Texas Wednesday, extending from just south of Paris to north of Dallas-Fort Worth to east of Amarillo.

Cloudy skies and fog restricted vision in portions of central, south, and east Texas. Light rain and drizzle also were reported across south central and southeastern Texas.

The cold front is expected to drift southward and become stationary across

Carter 'Confident' Of Iran's Stability

President Asks Khomeini's Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter expressed confidence Wednesday that the Iranian people would be able to restore a stable government and economy to their strife-torn nation following the departure of the shah.

Carter also called on exiled Iranian religious leader Ayatollah Khomeini to support the new civilian government headed by Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar. He said the prime minister has won the support of the Iranian military "and many of the religious opponents" following the departure of the Shah of Iran on Tuesday, ending his 37-year rule of the Persian Gulf nation.

At his first news conference in five weeks, Carter said that despite the overthrow of the Cambodian government by Vietnamese-backed Cambodian insurgents, "We do not detect any immediate threat to the border of Thailand from the Vietnamese."

Warns Hanoi, Moscow
But in an apparent warning to Hanoi and Moscow, Vietnam's chief ally in the communist world, he said: "We have warned both the Vietnamese and the Soviets who supply them and support them against any danger that they might exhibit toward Thailand."

Turning to economic matters, the president said the fiscal 1980 budget, to be made public Monday, will more than meet his goal of a deficit of less than $30 billion.

He said that any fair analysis of the new budget, which goes into effect Oct. 1, would show that it adequately meets the needs of defense as well as "meeting the legitimate needs of those who are most depending on government."

Funds For Poor Hiked
Carter said that "the total allocation of funds for the poor will be increased" by $4.5 billion. But he offered no specific figures for individual programs to illustrate how the increased funding would be distributed.

And the president said California Gov. Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown's call for a constitutional convention with the aim of amending the Constitution to prohibit budget deficits was "extremely dangerous."

Carter defended his decision to invite former President Richard M. Nixon to a White House state dinner Jan. 29 for Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping of China as "entirely proper."

Cites Nixon Action
He said Nixon has opened up "an avenue of communications and consultation" with Peking, adding that Teng and other Chinese officials had expressed a desire to see the former president. Nixon, who has accepted the invitation, will be returning to the executive mansion for the first time since he resigned in the heat of the Watergate scandal in August, 1974.

The afternoon meeting with reporters was the president's first formal news conference since Dec. 15, when he announced to the nation his decision to extend diplomatic recognition to China. It was also Carter's first nationally broadcast appearance since the overthrow of the Cambodian government and since the turmoil in Iran forced Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to leave the country.

No Violence Expected
Carter said that although the administration strived during negotiations with Peking to win a public commitment that China's dispute with Taiwan would be resolved peacefully, "this was not possible to achieve." The best the United States could do was obtain a statement from the Chinese saying that they "expect" the matter to be resolved without violence, he said.

Carter also defended his interpretation of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's initial response to the China decision. The Soviet news agency, Tass, had disputed Carter's assessment as too upbeat. But the president said Wednesday that the Brezhnev statement was "constructive and positive, compared to the anticipation I had ..."

On other matters, the president said:

— He had no quarrels with his National Advisory Committee on Women even though he fired the group's co-leader, Bella S. Abzug, last Friday. Carter said, however, that "there has not been good cooperation between the committee and my advisers, or cabinet members or me."

— Despite last week's report by the surgeon general warning anew of the dangers of cigarette smoking, he would continue to back government price supports to tobacco growers. At the same time, he said, "It's a completely legitimate action for the government to point out the dangers of smoking."

— While the United States is "very interested" in oil and natural gas supplies in Mexico, the administration will not encourage Mexico "to develop them more rapidly than they desire."

The president held out the hope that Iran would remain a good ally in the future, as he said it had been in the past. Carter said the administration supports the Bakhtiar government and has, within the limits of its ability, encouraged others to support it.

"We would anticipate our good relations with Iran will continue in the future," Carter said. "I have confidence in the Iranian people to restore a stable government and to restore the economic circumstances for the future."

He said the administration had not communicated directly with Khomeini, the Iranian Islamic leader who resides in a suburb of Paris.

Carter said that the United States still had contracts to supply weapons to Iran and that this policy was being continued.

"It is important ... that a strong and stable military be maintained" in the Persian Gulf country, the president said.

School Prayers Suit Threatened

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LOCAL chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union says school-sponsored voluntary prayer is an unconstitutional as school-sponsored compulsory prayer.

With that contention, the ACLU has threatened to take Lubbock Independent School District officials to court if they so much as designate pre-class time for optional religious exercises.

In a follow-up to its presentation at last month's school board meeting, the union has sent to the district a letter reiterating its request that the board ban all school-sponsored prayer.

The document includes a copy of a 1971 court ruling supporting the group's position. According to the ruling, a ban that provides "an exception for 'volunteer' prayer will not stand constitutional scrutiny," attorney Thomas J. Griffith, local ACLU president, said in the letter.

School Response Awaited
In an interview Wednesday, Griffith said he has not yet received a response from school officials.

School trustees last week met in closed session to discuss with their lawyers prayer and other issues. School board members have refused to comment on the advice their attorneys gave.

Board president Charles Waters, insisting no decision has been made, says school attorneys must do more research on the matter. The board will hold another closed session Monday morning and may reach a decision at its regular public monthly session Jan. 25, he said.

Policy Report Dented
Some sources contend the board already has reached a consensus to establish a policy allowing for voluntary prayer. Trustees, however, deny that.

The school district currently has no specific policy on the subject.

According to a district survey, four of the city's five public senior high schools and three of the nine junior highs inject some campuswide devotionial into the school day. Generally such schools start their day with a Scripture reading, oral prayer, "thought for the day" or silent meditation ending in "amen."

Principals say the activities are organized by students and that participation is voluntary. The schools' public address systems are used for the activities.

The survey said devotionals are rare at the elementary level. But the study did not examine individual elementary schools or any individual classrooms.

School trustees say their mail is running overwhelmingly against the ACLU efforts to stop school-sponsored prayer. But trustees stress they will be guided by their attorneys' interpretation of the law, not necessarily by public opinion.

In his recent letter to the school district, Griffith said the law is clearly on the ACLU's side.

"The Lubbock Civil Liberties Union is defensive of the entire First Amendment; therefore, we will protect the right of persons to worship as promptly as we will defend persons from state-sponsored worship," the letter said.

Proposals Outlined
In accordance with those "twin objectives," Griffith proposed:

"1. Students and teachers should be instructed they may pray as frequently as they wish; they may subscribe to any religious or non-religious belief that pleases; and they may practice any ritual so long as it does not constitute unlawful conduct.

"2. Prayer and religious rituals may not be intruded upon by any other person in a public school setting. Therefore, an assigned time for prayer or other religious exercise is unconstitutional. Of course, forensic worship and audible prayer or religious devotion are forbidden since they necessarily intrude upon other students and teachers and school time.

"The individual may pray (to the Deity, as distinguished from fellow scholars) without any hindrance in or out of school under such a policy. The only prohibition is to forbid 'drawing a crowd' of human auditors. In brief, prayer should be silent and individual.

"Such policies and necessary prohibitions should extend to all school-sponsored meetings."

Griffith emphasized that the ACLU is not "anti-prayer."

"The civil liberties union has never received or reported any objection to prayer; the objections from the laity and ministers have uniformly been to public displays of piety (whether genuine or pretended) commanded by a school program or official," he said.

Griffith added that a "very large number" of citizens — including a "substantial number of ministers" — "wish to eliminate corporate worship in the schoolhouse."

Those persons don't want to come for

Stenholm, Hance Get Ag Seats

By KIM PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. REPS. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Charles Stenholm of Stamford were named to the powerful Agriculture Committee Wednesday as legislators vied for positions during the first round of committee appointments.

By the time the Steering and Policy Committee completes its major appointments today, Texas legislators will hold memberships on almost every major committee.

Hance and Stenholm, the first Texas Tech University graduates to serve in Congress, will join the 27-member committee responsible for formulating all agricultural legislation.

Hightower Makes Shift
Jack Hightower of Vernon will exchange his position on the Agriculture Committee for membership on the Appropriations Committee, replacing George Mahon, retired Lubbock congressman.

Martin Frost, a representative from the Dallas-Fort Worth area, will become the first freshman congressman since the turn of the century to be named to the Rules Committee.

Reps. Phil Graham of College Station and Mickey Leland of Houston, both freshmen, received appointment to the Interstate and Commerce Committee while incumbent Sam Hall of Marshall was named to the Ways and Means Committee.

Although Texas lost several veteran legislators last year, including Hance's predecessor, George Mahon, the freshman congressman said he believes there will be little change in the delegations'.

Solon Urges Talks By Carter, Veep

AUSTIN (AP) — A resolution inviting President Jimmy Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale to address the Texas Legislature was introduced in the Texas House on Wednesday.

The resolution by Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, will be sent later to a committee for recommendations.

"I want to give either Carter or Mondale a chance to talk directly to the people of Texas," Temple said in a statement. "We now have a governor who has stated that his primary goal will be the defeat of President Carter in 1980. In the next two years, the Carter policies are going to be attacked on a regular basis by our new Republican governor. I'd like for the president to have the opportunity to tell his own story in his own way."

Verdict Eludes Davis Jurors

HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors in the murder-for-hire trial of millionaire Cullen Davis ended 10 hours of deliberation Wednesday night without a verdict.

The panel triggered several false alarms with notes to the judge, but finally abandoned deliberations until this morning.

Emerging from their secret chambers three times, the jurors reviewed fragments of testimony and listened again to the tape recordings around which the case revolves.

It was the first time the jury had heard all the tapes played sequentially without interruption. The tapes were of conversations between Davis and the man who claims Davis wanted him to find someone to kill his divorcee and others.

"If they ask four more times to hear the tapes, that's all right with me," said prosecutor Jack Strickland.

"I don't think it can hurt us for them to keep hearing the tapes."

Earlier in the day, Strickland had viewed the jury's request to hear the tapes again as an indication the jury might return a verdict at any moment.

Strickland said he considered it a good sign for the prosecution and he drew that conclusion after watching the jurors. "I'd like them to take a vote right now. It would be a good way to end it."

Defense attorney Phil Burleson said the jurors' desire to hear the tapes again meant nothing to either side, although he added that it could be interpreted as a good defense sign.

When asked about his interpretation, he said, "Mine and the janitors' are about the same. I don't think anyone can tell."

Seven men and five women are conducting the secret discussions that may or may not bring an abrupt end to the marathon legal drama, now in its 12th week.

Deliberations began Tuesday night. Should the jury acquit the Fort Worth industrialist, he would leave the courtroom a free man, but still under the shadow of future prosecution.

If Davis were convicted, Judge Wallace Moore would reopen the proceedings for additional testimony regarding punishment, which ranges from five years to life in prison. In Texas, the jury sets punishment.

The 45-year-old defendant is accused of plotting the contract killing of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, once the presiding jurist in the turbulent Davis divorce case.

The gray-haired, soft-spoken judge was among the spectators on hand for closing arguments and for Wednesday's deliberations. "Let's say it was suggested by the state," Eidson, 60, told newsmen of his Tuesday appearance. "I have cooperated with the state all along."

Eidson disclosed no emotion during the daylong arguments, but later admitted strong feelings about his involvement in the case.

"Unless he's (Davis) broke or dead, I'll remain apprehensive about my safety," he said. "It doesn't matter if he's in prison or not. I've been apprehensive ever since those people were killed out at his house."

Eidson, a state witness here, referred to a bloody 1976 shooting spread at the defendant's showplace $6 million mansion.

New Governor Sworn In Hastily To Halt Tennessee Pardonings

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Lamar Alexander was sworn in as governor of Tennessee Wednesday night, three days before his scheduled inauguration, to prevent former Gov. Ray Blanton from commuting the sentences of any more prisoners, he said.

The surprise early swearing-in came amid reports that a grand jury would investigate the pardons and commutations granted to 52 prisoners by Blanton Monday night.

Shortly before he took the oath of office from Chief Justice Joe Henry of the state Supreme Court, Alexander said, "I have been authorized by the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House to make this statement:

"The U.S. attorney today advised each of us that he has substantial reason to believe that the governor of Tennessee was planning to release one or more persons from prison who are targets of an investigation of payoffs for release from prison."

Alexander said he had been assured the action, apparently without precedent in Tennessee, is legal. The state attorney general's office had given an opinion earlier in the week that it was legal for Alexander to take the office any time after Jan. 15.

Alexander said he was notified at 4 p.m. (CST) that the ceremony had been scheduled. It took place at 5:56 p.m.

Blanton was not notified until about five minutes before Alexander was sworn in to succeed him. He was not present and not available for comment.

The new governor said he has instructed outgoing Correction Commissioner C. Murray Henderson that, "After this point, he's not to release anyone from state prison without a properly executed document with my signature."

"These are not very happy days for the state of Tennessee," Alexander added, "and they are not very happy days for me."

Blanton ordered sentences cut for 24 convicted murderers and 28 other prisoners, and by Wednesday evening 10 murderers and two armed robbers had been released.

Alexander said he would act to keep any others from being released.

Blanton acted exactly a month after three state employees, including two members of his office legal staff, were arrested by the FBI and charged in a federal complaint with extortion and conspiracy to sell pardons, paroles and commutations.

State Attorney General William Leech said earlier that he had been summoned to meet with U.S. Attorney Hal Hardin. A federal prosecutor, who asked not to be identified, said the grand jury may investigate the 49 commutations and three pardons granted by Blanton late Monday night.

Lt. Gov. John Wilder and House Speaker Ned McWherter were among those present for the hurry-up ceremony, attended primarily by reporters in the state Supreme Court hearing room.

Alexander, who moved his family into the Executive Residence earlier in the day in the belief that he was three days early, was accompanied by his pregnant wife, Honey; his son Drew, 8; and his daughters, Leslie, 6, and Kathryn, 4.

Alexander had been scheduled to be inaugurated in ceremonies by a joint session of the Tennessee Senate and House of Representatives on Saturday.

In the wake of the pardons and commutations, citizen outrage over the release of the prisoners had raised official concern for Blanton's safety at the inauguration.

"There is some concern that this week's events have heightened the security problem," said John Parrish, press secretary to Alexander.

Many Tennesseans have reacted angrily to Blanton's Monday night pardons and commutations. Of the three pardoned, one had been convicted of murder.

Rationing Possibility Seen Without Iranian Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tough government action may be needed, including gasoline rationing as a last resort, if Iranian oil production is not restored by this summer, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Wednesday.

Schlesinger told the Senate Energy Committee that much of the loss of Iranian oil is being made up by increased imports from Saudi Arabia.

Thus, he said, there is no immediate fuel crisis facing the United States as a result of the unrest in Iran, which has shut down most of Iran's oil production.

Schlesinger expressed confidence that Iranian production soon will be restored. But, he warned, "If Iranian production does not come on stream by the summer, we could be in trouble by next winter."

Schlesinger said a successful voluntary conservation effort could easily offset the loss of Iranian oil and avoid the need for direct government action.

He said he has written to government and business leaders around the country urging them to adopt comprehensive conservation programs. A Schlesinger aide, Jim Bishop, said 1,500 such letters were being mailed.

Suggested steps include tougher enforcement of the national 55-mph speed limit, lowering thermostats in buildings, encouraging car pooling and, in the case of businesses, switching from oil to coal or natural gas as fuel wherever feasible.

"If we adopt these voluntary measures, we can avoid more dramatic measures later on," Schlesinger testified.

Asked by the committee chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., if the administration was prepared to impose gasoline rationing if necessary, Schlesinger testified: "Yes, sir. That would be a measure taken only as a last resort."

Schlesinger said rationing would be extremely "disruptive" to American lifestyles.

Said Jackson: "The public is going to have to make some hard choices and there are not many options left."

The administration drafted a standby rationing plan last year, but congressional approval is needed before it can be used.

The political upheaval in Iran has brought a complete halt to oil exports from that nation, which had been running about six million barrels a day. Of that, the United States had been getting about 900,000 barrels a day, or about five percent of its total consumption.

Schlesinger said increases in production by Saudi Arabia had helped offset the loss of Iranian oil considerably, so the net effect on the United States was a loss of about 500,000 barrels of oil a day.

This means the United States is having to draw down its reserves to meet demand, Schlesinger said. "We can live with drawdowns," he said. "The situation is serious, it is not yet critical. We are not in any immediate difficulty."

Schlesinger said the voluntary measures he recommended can save 600,000 barrels a day, and "that would reduce the need for any other action on our part."

The energy secretary said he did not think the stoppage in Iranian oil production would last long because of financial pressures on Iran to restore production.

U.S. energy use could be reduced by about 10 percent through such non-rationing steps as allocating oil supplies to areas most in need and diverting supplies from strategic oil reserves, Schlesinger said.

Petro-Products U.S. Demand Slowed in 78

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. demand for petroleum products increased just 1.4 percent in 1978, the American Petroleum Institute reported Wednesday, marking a steep drop from the 6.9 percent and 5 percent increases of 1976 and 1977.

Gasoline demand increased 3 percent, the API said, but the use of middle distillate oils, which include home heating oil, edged up a mere 0.4 percent. Residual oil, used by powerplants, factories, ships and other large installations, decreased by 1 percent.

Meanwhile, production of oil in the "lower 48" states continued its long-term decline, but the decrease was offset by the delivery of oil from Alaska's Arctic North Slope so that total U.S. oil production showed an increase.

The Alaska oil allowed a reduction of imports of oil from foreign producing nations early in 1978, but later in the year imports headed sharply upward again.

Charles J. DiBona, president of the API, an industry trade organization, commented that "the decline in last year's imports, which was largely the result of new production from the North Slope, was only a temporary phenomenon."

The API has collected and published figures on U.S. oil production, imports and demand for many years and is a chief source of such information for the industry and for government agencies, although the Federal Energy Administration and its successor, the Department of Energy, have been gathering similar information since 1974.

The API and the government statistics, collected differently, do not match precisely but generally show similar trends.

Significant figures reported for 1978 by the API included:

—Gasoline demand averaged 7.39 million barrels a day, an increase of 216,000 barrels or 3 percent over the previous year's average.

—Distillate fuel oils increased only 13,000 barrels a day to 3.37 million barrels daily, up 0.4 percent.

—Residual fuel oil dropped by 30,000 barrels a day or about one percent, to 3.03 million barrels a day.

—Including other petroleum products, total U.S. demand increased by 266,000 barrels a day, or about 1.4 percent.

—Of this total demand, some 10.78 million barrels a day came from domestic U.S. production including Alaska oil, an increase of about 3.3 percent over 1977.

—Imports averaged 8.1 million barrels a day, or 43.3 percent of total consumption, showing a 7.1 percent decrease from the previous year on a full-year average basis, but they had increased sharply in the second half of 1978.

—By December, 1978, oil imports averaged 8.9 million barrels a day or 46 percent of the month's total average petroleum demand of 19.34 million barrels a day; the imports for the month were 8.4 percent higher than a year earlier.

These supply and demand figures do not add up to exactly the same totals because of small exports of petroleum from the United States, losses of products in refining or transportation, and changes in stored inventories.

Warning Issued On Auto Towing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association reports that problems can arise if you attempt to tow several types of foreign cars.

AAA reports that the new Datsun 280ZX sports car should not be towed with a conventional tow sling because of possible damage to the auto. These cars should only be towed with a special sling, which lifts the car by its wheels, said James H. Downey of AAA.

Towing with a conventional sling can damage the auto's front body panels or its rear hydraulic lines, said John D. Fobian of the auto club.

Caution should also be used in towing any front-wheel-drive vehicles, Fobian said. He said there have been reports of damage in towing Volkswagen Rabbits, even though the those cars are easy to tow if the manual instructions are followed.

In 1813, British forces took Fort Niagara from the Americans.

Another Shot Into The Dark

FROM ALL INDICATIONS, the House Assassinations Committee made itself look pretty silly in concluding that President John F. Kennedy died in Dallas as a result of a conspiracy.

The Committee, anxious to keep the controversy alive, based its conclusion almost exclusively on an acoustics analyst's decision that he could hear the sounds of four gunshots on a police tape recording.

If there were four shots, then the Warren Commission's finding that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, killed the President and wounded Gov. John Connally with three shots from the School Book Depository would perform be wrong.

HARDLY HAD THE Committee wrapped up its surprise finding on the last day before its multi-million-dollar appropriation ran out, though, than flaws began appearing in its work.

Conspiracy theorists long have faulted the Warren Commission—not without reason—for a less than thorough investigation and documentation of the facts 15 years ago.

But with all the time in the world to conduct a complete and impartial investigation, the House Assassinations Committee appears to have falled miserably.

Most notably, the policeman whose motorcycle the Committee theorized was the source of the at-best questionable recording says there's no way it could be so.

"If I had been on Channel One (the radio frequency from which the recording was made) from Dealy Plaza (where Kennedy

Guess Who's Coming To Dinner

IT WILL BE interesting to see if the eastern liberal news media start their "hate Nixon" campaign all over again with the announcement that the former President will return briefly to the White House.

A spokesman for President Carter says former President Nixon has accepted an invitation to have dinner later this month at the White House with Mr. Carter and China's Teng Hsiao-ping.

"IT SEEMED the appropriate thing to do," a White House official said of the invitation.

The official said Mr. Nixon was invited "because of his role in opening up the process of normalization" between the U.S. and China. Former President Ford reportedly also was invited but will be in the Mideast on a tour at the time.

Mr. Nixon's visit will mark the first time he has been back to the Executive Mansion since he resigned under the pressure of Watergate Aug. 9, 1974.

SO MUCH FOR the formalities. It may be that little will be said about the state visit, but don't bet on it.

There still is a hard core among certain members of the eastern media which thinks

Little Kids Don't Care If Bell Tolls For Fee

WASHINGTON—The telephone company has the image of being staid and old-fashioned. But Ma Bell can no longer be accused of sitting back and waiting for someone to deposit 20 cents into the phone box.

They're after business and, by gosh, they're getting it. Here is a good example of how a giant company is creating new markets never dreamed of before.

Out in Seattle, Wash., the Pacific Northwest Bell Co. ran ads in both Seattle papers a few weeks before Christmas telling children they could speak to Santa Claus by dialing the number in the ad.

It was a great idea and one that would warm the heart of any parent. The only trouble was the area code to be dialed was 212, which is New York City.

MANY PARENTS in the Seattle area thought this was dirty pool and that if the Pacific Northwest Bell really cared about Christmas they would have listed a local number where Santa could be reached.

But Jim Morzette, a PNB spokesman, said the telephone company was trying to encourage long-distance calls and that if Santa Claus could be reached in Seattle by Seattle children it would not be worth the phone company's time.

He was quoted as saying, "We're a commercial enterprise and one of our main sources of revenue is long-distance calls. The ad was run to see if people would make calls and to generate enough long-distance revenues to make some profit to boot."

ACCORDING TO reports, 15,000 to 20,000 children made the calls and heard a one-minute recording from Santa.

But there was such a flap about it from Seattle parents that the FTC regional director suggested PNB refund the cost of the calls.

Government By Fear

WASHINGTON—The administration of Richard Nixon's mandatory economic controls sounded this harsh warning to the nation's corporate executives on Dec. 14: Cooperate with President Carter's "voluntary" wage-price curbs out of fear, and you may well destroy yourselves.

The economic Paul Revere was Donald Rumsfeld, politician turned businessman. Speaking to his former government colleagues, Rumsfeld was blunt.

He warned that the Carter program won't work and that major parts of it are illegal, based on "government by fear and intimidation."

Rumsfeld's warning came behind closed doors in the offices of the American Enterprise Institute here at one of Gerald Ford's periodic meetings with his old cabinet.

But Rumsfeld is preaching that same message

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

An Agony Of Effete

PRESIDENT CARTER has a whale by the tail in the Far East—the United States pre-empt in Asian military power. But its political influence fails to muster the same authority.

Apparently President Carter has reduced his look on Asia. But our role continues to be very important. President Carter is making a basic mistake by looking upon Asia lightly. It has a growing sense of its own importance.

In the classical sense of the U.S. balance of power, the indispensable element is the deadly serious reciprocal deterrence against the Soviet Union and Red China.

Both could reduce the U.S. to atomic rubble.

FOUR IMPORTANT events emphasize President Carter's position:

- (1) United States recognition of Red China. (2) Mainland China-Japan Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in Tokyo. (3) A similar treaty between the Soviet Union and Vietnam. (4) The growing external relations of the Association of Southeast Nations (ASEAN).

In relation to the outside world, ASEAN makes every attempt to accommodate the major powers for friendly equidistance. Its response is to steer a prudent course in the international rivalry.

ASEAN maintains friendly relations with all and is fully aware that, traditionally, the region remains a competing ground of major power rivalries.

WEBSTER DEFINES autarky as economic self-sufficiency within a country; non-dependence on the outputs of a foreign nation. But, quite aside from our famous oil imports, our country must import an amazing variety of strategic bottleneck items from Asia.

Along with the Western world's economic powers, paradoxically, the importance of strategic raw materials is bolstered by the conflicts between Red China and the Soviet Union, Vietnam and Red China, Kampuchea and Vietnam, etc.

President Carter must find it no longer possible to divorce economics from politics. In this sense, ASEAN is of added importance to the major participants.

THE 7,000-island Philippines, an ASEAN member, is blessed with foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo. Also, he is the UN Permanent Representative.

Romulo is now 79, possibly the youngest 79 you ever saw. He has the manners of a prince and the mind of a chess player. He is not only a world-famous statesman, but a scholar, author, world traveler; a perceiving man, good natured and with a delightful sense of humor.

Former President Gerald Ford called Romulo "America's best friend in the Philippines." Romulo speaks for all Asia. Nothing could be more tragic than to have President Carter or anyone else downgrade Asia, the facts twisted by White House subservients and himself.

JAY HARRIS:

A Drama Unfolds

THE AMERICAN people, and especially those in Lubbock are privy to watching a key chapter in world history being written.

As pages are added to the book on Iran and the Mideast, every U.S. citizen will be profoundly affected by what happens. Instead of the plot becoming clearer, it thickens.

The stage upon which this drama is being played is a diverse one indeed. It ranges from the fabled land of the ancient Persians—where history may have been born—to Moscow and Washington.

It also involves, perhaps by plan rather than a quirk of fate, this city and area, which is noted for its patriotism, its tolerance, to a point, and a reputation for being fair. It is noteworthy that the son of a royal family can train at Reese AFB and members of the royal family can reside here, and feel safe.

BUT, SUCH IS NOT the case elsewhere. The story of Iran in many ways is yet to be told. Its tragedy may be just beginning.

In Tehran, in a villa outside Paris, in a dozen or more world capitals, men plan and plot and hope for the best, or worst.

The civilian government of Shahpur Bakhtiar, put together with Shah Mohammad Pahlavi's blessing, faces a major test of its own in the days ahead. While seeking a moderate course in restoring a semblance of order in the strife-torn nation, Bakhtiar now finds himself the target of the fanatics, including the man who played one of the key roles in it all, Ayatollah Khomeini, the elderly Iranian Moslem in exile.

It was Khomeini, who was inexplicably allowed to export his daily brand of poison via the media and phone lines from France to the mobs in Iran, who now claims he and he alone must rule.

JUST AS INEXPLICABLY, some of the new Iranian leaders have said that the 78-year-old fanatic will be permitted to return to Tehran. It is an invitation to more bloodshed and disorder.

A wire service reporting on Khomeini's remarks this week referred to the bearded leader as a "conservative." Nothing could be further from the facts.

Here is a man, cloaking himself in his religion, who daily urged "Death to the Shah," and who in his writings has a history of confrontation and hate.

In a recent study of Khomeini, Michael Ledeen, writing in The Wall Street Journal says that instead of being some sort of "Jefferson" for Iran, that on the contrary there is "a convincing body of evidence that Khomeini is in fact a clerical fascist, a violent anti-Semite and an intensely chauvinistic anti-American."

The aging Moslem leader, who blames the Shah for the death of his father and son, sees the Persian ruler as tearing down the basic precepts of the Islam religion.

IF ONE IS to believe the writings of Khomeini, then he will, if permitted, impose an iron-fisted religious rule on Iran that may make the Shah's autocratic regime pale in comparison.

Khomeini has been known to rail against use of women in boys' high schools and men in girls' schools. He opposes women in government offices, and demands ancient justice.

"We want," he is quoted in a 1970 book, "a ruler who would cut off the hand of his own son if he steals and who would flog and stone his near relative if he fornicates." And he is quoted as adding: "If a just mullah is placed in charge of the enforcement of canonical punishment... would he enforce them otherwise than how they were enforced in the days of the Prophet?"

The man upon whose word many followers have hung for so long, also had this to say in writings as late as 1975: "It is America which supports Israel and its wellwishers; it is America which gives Israel the power to turn Muslim Arabs into vagrants; it is America which directly or indirectly imposes its agents on the nation of Iran; it is America which considers Islam and the glorious Koran a source of harm to itself and wishes to remove both from its path."

THE MAN SEES himself as Iran's modern savior, the man to restore the Koran's strict moral code and Islamic government to a nation which has tasted the fruits of the Twentieth Century.

If he is allowed to try, the Iranian people who cheered the departure of the Shah and his family may live to repeat their tears, but not the cheers.

It is ironic to those of us, who have been warning for months of the failure of the U.S. and West to help stem the tide of terror on the one hand and shore up the forces of reason on the other, that now the western media and western leaders suddenly see grave dangers ahead.

There are colorful spreads in the news magazines depicting the Russian Bear with huge paws encircling the oil-rich and vital Mideast. If Iran should go, then would Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, and Africa follow? Who is to stop them?

THIS THEN is the import of what is taking place, here and 8,000 miles away.

It is not only the sad departure from his homeland of the Shah and his family. Aside from personal tragedy, the stakes are enormous.

Any change in the balance of power in the Persian Gulf, a pro-Western anchor since World War II, could play havoc with everything from oil supplies to peace in the area.

It may be that by some miracle or wizardry which thus far has been lacking in Washington and elsewhere, that the course of events can be changed. But, the hour is late.

Back home in Lubbock, a group of people, not too unlike the rest of us, are caught up in an act of history. Hopefully, they and we will remember this moment as an otherwise safe and peaceful one.

Pro, Anti ERA Spokeswomen To Debate Tonight

Two leading spokeswomen on the Equal Rights Amendment— one pro-ERA and one anti-ERA— will debate the amendment today at 8:15 p.m. in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Phyllis Schlafly, who is well-known for her opposition to the amendment, is founder and chairman of STOP ERA. She will debate Karen DeCrow, past president of the National Organization for Women, and a leading speaker in the women's rights movement.

Both women are authors and lecturers but take opposing views on the interpretation of the ERA. While Miss DeCrow views the amendment as opportunity for women and men, Mrs. Schlafly rejects catchwords such as liberation, stereo-hood, Ms. and equal rights, saying that they are frauds that "deprive women of their fulfillment and lead them down lonely paths of lost identity."

Tickets for the debate are $2 for Tech students and $3 for others and may be purchased at the door or through the UC Ticketbooth.

Miss DeCrow, who gave the first Women's State of the Union message in January 1977, is author of "Sexual Justice" and "The Young Women's Guide to Liberation."

Lubbock Teacher Appeals Ouster

Administrators relieved Conger of his Atkins Junior High coaching duties Oct. 20 but allowed him to stay on as an industrial arts teacher at Atkins and Evans Junior High.

Conger appealed to the school board, which relieved him of his teaching duties, too. His dismissal was effective Jan. 1.

In a letter dated Jan. 15, the Texas Education Agency informed Superintendent Ed Irons and school board president Charles Waters of Conger's request to Brockette.

"This will advise that Elton E. Conger has appealed to the state commissioner of education from action taken by the Lubbock Independent School District Board of Trustees," the letter said.

The letter instructed the board to send to Brockette "all documentary and other record information developed locally in this matter."

If Conger or the school district is unhappy with Brockette's decision, the case can be appealed further to the State Board of Education. After that, it can be handled in the courts, Felty said.

Conger was unavailable for comment.

Rio Grande Citrus May Begin Moving Within Three Days

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rio Grande Valley citrus growers expect to be hauling fruit by early Thursday morning, following the end of the 11-day embargo on freeze-damaged fruit at midnight.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said all fruit would be checked carefully before shipments are permitted.

He said growers are still checking damage from the Jan 2-3 freeze but some believe the Texas citrus season will be over by the end of February. It normally extends to mid-May.

Brown called the shipping holiday on Jan. 6 after the two-day cold spell that sent Valley temperatures dipping as low as 21 degrees.

Brown said vegetable growers also have been working to salvage some of their crops. "Though most young cabbage was destroyed and fields abandoned in the Valley, growers have been harvesting mature heads that received only minor damage," he said. "Young lettuce also was destroyed, but a small harvest of mature plants continues. Carrot tops were burned back, delaying harvest by several weeks. Reports indicate that onions have been set back, but the growers are hoping for an adequate crop this spring."

Hitler Haunt To Be Destroyed

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — The Buergerbrauekeller, Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler's favorite Munich beer hall, will be demolished to make room for a new housing and office building, a city spokesman said Wednesday.

The beer hall, an occasional meeting place for rightist minorities in past years, gained notoriety in 1923 when Hitler assembled his brownshirts there before marching on Feldherrnhalle in an abortive Nazi Putsch.

It hit the headlines again on Nov. 9, 1939, when Hitler addressed a Nazi rally there. He left the hall earlier than expected that day, escaping a time bomb blast that aimed at killing him.

The city spokesman said the new building, to be financed by a local brewery, will include a "New Buergerbrauekeller."

Report Claims Americans Ahead Of Inflation

By The Associated Press
The government reported Wednesday that Americans earned a shade more in 1978 than inflation took from them. A string of reports showed that the economy ended 1978 on a strong upbeat, indicating that the moderate recession widely predicted by private economists is not imminent.

However, the economic data underscored the continuing threat of inflation. All told, the reports said the amount of money Americans made exceeded what they lost to inflation, on average; the nation's industries made more products and used more of their capacity to turn out goods than before; and housing had a boom year despite mortgage interest rates that reached levels which were once believed beyond the pocketbooks of American homebuyers.

The Commerce Department said the average American increased his personal income last year by 11.7 percent. The increase outpaced inflation, which rose in 1978 at a rate of slightly more than nine percent.

Another government report said industrial output rose at a robust rate as the year ended, and a report due Thursday is expected to place overall economic growth at a healthy five percent for the last three months of 1978.

Stimulation for the economy came as well from a 1978 homebuilding surge that almost matched the record for any year and that grew stronger even as mortgage interest rates climbed.

Yet another sign of growth came in a Federal Reserve report that the nation's industries operated at 85.9 percent of capacity in December, the highest level since June 1974. This was an increase from 85.7 percent in November and from 83.8 percent a year earlier.

In another development, it was learned that President Carter's budget — which he will send to Congress Monday — will call for a $20 billion increase in spending to help people through income security and public assistance programs, most of the increase mandated by existing law.

The president's budget will also hold out the prospect of reducing Social Security taxes by 1981 if Congress accepts some cost-cutting measures Carter will propose, it was learned.

Carter discussed his budget's impact at a news conference.

"We have not neglected the needs of disadvantaged Americans, poor Americans or those who are unemployed," he said.

Michael Sumichrast, economist for the National Association of Home Builders, reacting to the vigor in home construction, called the surge "absolutely incredible."

For the year, construction started on 1.43 million single-family homes, just below the 1.45 million record, set in 1977. In December, despite interest rates that reached 11 percent, construction of houses and apartments reached an annual rate of 2.12 million units.

"The economy continues to roll right along at a healthy rate," Commerce Department economist William Cor told a reporter.

The figures are higher than generally anticipated, but all the developments were not so reassuring.

—Worried about the loss of 900,000 barrels of oil a day from a now dry Iran, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told senators that severe actions — even gasoline rationing as a last resort — might be necessary by next winter if Iran's production is not restored this summer.

For the moment, he said, increased Saudi Arabian exports are taking up the slack. Schlesinger has sent letters asking 1,500 leaders of business and industry to curtail the use of fuel and to clamp down on highway speeders.

—President Carter's plan to use the tax system to protect the income of about 47 million American workers — half the national labor force — in case inflation rate exceeds 7 percent in 1979 drew no cheers from Congress.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal spelled out the details, but critics said the "wage insurance" plan was inequitable to the rest of the work force and too complicated.

—In a gloomy year-end report, Vernon E. Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League, said blacks have not recovered from the last recession and would be devastated by a new economic slowdown.

"It is our grim duty to inform you that the state of black America today verges on the brink of disaster — 1979 promises to be a year of crisis for America's black people," Jordan said.

—Advance word pointed to the nation's first half-a-trillion dollar year when Carter submits his budget Monday for fiscal 1980, which starts next Oct. 1.

That would be $50 billion more than the government is now spending, and the deficit would be about $20 billion, the smallest since 1973.

Liberals like Sen. Edward Kennedy and women's leader Bella Abzug have contended the poor are being short-changed by Carter's attempts to control spending and inflation.

The president is defending his budget decisions — among the most important a chief executive makes. He said in an interview broadcast Tuesday that his budget will contain the necessary programs to pair and still get a good example for the Federal Reserve.

Significant Natural Gas Find Off New Jersey Coast Bared

NEW YORK (AP)—A test well in the Baltimore Canyon off New Jersey that was only supposed to measure the geological make-up of the area has hit an unexpected dividend, a small amount of natural gas, the government said Wednesday.

H. William Menard, director of the U.S. Geological Survey, which sponsored the drilling of the well, said the find was "significant." He did not elaborate.

Menard also said tests of the well had determined that there was "the possibility of condensate or oil also being present." Condensate is a liquid form of natural gas.

Menard warned, however, that "no conclusions about commercial discoveries in the adjacent proposed sale area should be drawn until the area is leased and direct on-structure exploratory drilling occurs."

The well, known as a continental offshore stratigraphic test, is being drilled at a cost of $12.6 million by a consortium of 11 companies for the government as a means of surveying the area's geology. The operator of the well is Standard Oil of California.

The find is the second off the New Jersey coast. A well drilled by Texaco several miles closer to shore found a small amount of natural gas in August, as well as a tiny amount of condensate. Seven other wells have turned up dry.

Most of those wells were drilled on a structure known as "Stonedome," considered by geologists the best possible site for gas or oil. However, both successful wells have been drilled "offstructure" — away from Stonedome.

"What's significant about this one is that it was offstructure and still had a show," said USGS official Robert Rioux. "It's beginning to look like the structures out near the shelf edge are the most promising."

"When they try to hit oil they don't. When they don't try to hit oil they do," said John Lichtblau, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry group.

Industry sources said the find would put new importance on the next sale of drilling sites in the area. That sale, scheduled next month, consists of many sites very close to the two successful wells.

And Menard said the find "has been deemed significant ... in that it has given an indication of the presence of hydrocarbons in the areas tentatively scheduled for future leasing."

The first indication of the gas came Friday. At that time the well was shut down and further tests conducted. Regulations involving such wells require that drilling be halted after a find. Hank Hill, regional drilling manager for Continental Oil Co., one of the partners involved in the well, said that because of this rule, there's no way of knowing just how thick the level of gas is.

"There might be a jillion more feet of it, for all we know — but there might also be one more foot of it," said Hill.

The well is 94 miles southeast of Atlantic City in 2,886 feet of water, the deepest water an offshore well has ever been drilled in off the U.S. coast. The well itself is 16,000 feet deep, and Menard said the gas was found in the lower part of the well.

Menard said he was making the announcement in accordance with regulations governing this type of exploration, which require that the USGS "shall immediately issue a public notice identifying any hydrocarbon shows that are judged to be significant by the survey's director."

Kreps Slates Visit To Saudia Arabia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Juanita M. Kreps will visit Saudia Arabia Jan. 26 to 28 to promote U.S. trade and to encourage the Saudis to restrain future oil price increases, it was announced Wednesday.

Mrs. Kreps said the purposes of the trip are:

- To promote American efforts to expand trade with Saudi Arabia.
- To emphasize the importance to the world economy of the maintenance of Saudi oil production and the exercise of restraint on future pricing.
- To reaffirm our interest in a Middle East peace settlement.

The secretary will visit with Crown Prince Fahd bin Abdulaziz, Crown Prince Saud al-Faisal and the ministers of commerce, finance and economy, industry and electricity, foreign affairs and planning.

GAS/OIL TESTS

Yakum County: wildcat; Cotton Petroleum Co. No. 1 Field; 1,000 FSL; 1,000 FSL; Section 104, Block D, J.M. Gibson survey; 7 miles N Bronco; re-covered 425 feet of oil; 5,675 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud; gravity 40; total depth 12,917 feet.

Only one other such well has produced anything more than rocks and sand. One off the coast of California produced a small amount of natural gas several years ago.

The tract the well is on probably will be offered up to companies in a future lease sale. Hill said that while the fact that gas has been found on the site obviously increases its value, but the depth of the water and the depth the gas was found at were liabilities.

"It might be the tract that's adjacent to it, where the water's only 1,000 feet, that might be more valuable," Hill said.

City Housewife Reports Repeat Sexual Assault

A city housewife told officers that a man who raped her three weeks ago returned Wednesday morning and assaulted her again.

The 18-year-old victim said that shortly after she returned home from taking her husband to work about 8 a.m., the man, who had been hiding in her bedroom closet, confronted her with a dagger-type knife.

She said that after he raped her, he left the eastside residence through the back door and ran down the alley.

The woman said the suspect, a young black man wearing blue pants and beige leather-like coat, had raped her at her home three weeks ago. She told officers she didn't report the first assault because the man told her if she did, he "would come back to get her."

A gun-wielding man who had a nylon stocking over his head got away with only $3 after threatening two women while they were at a drive-in restaurant for lunch Wednesday afternoon.

Cindy G. Offutt, 24, and John Mendoza, 19, said the bandit approached them about 12:20 p.m. while they were at Bill's Drive Inn, 901 Idalou Road, pointed a blue-steel revolver at them and said, "Give me your purses and money."

Miss Offutt, of Lubbock, told police she handed the gunman $3 from her pocket but Miss Mendoza, of Lorenzo, said that she had no money.

After taking the cash, the women said, the suspect, a tall, black man about 25 years old, ran south from the restaurant.

The man was wearing a brown leather coat and blue pants, the woman said.

In a late Tuesday robbery, a pistol-brandishing bandit made off with about $100 from the Town and Country Food Store at 40th Street and Avenue A.

The 25-year-old attendant, Albert Hernandez, said the armed man entered the store about 11:52 p.m., walked up to the counter, cocked his gun and said, "This is a holdup."

Hernandez said he put the cash in a paper bag and handed it to the short, heavy-set white man, who then backed out of the store while still holding the gun on the clerk.

Hernandez said the man was in his 30s or 40s and was wearing a green turtle-neck sweater, black pants and tennis shoes.

Abbas Azima, 23, district manager of a rental office at 1806 Elkhart, told police he was assaulted about 5 p.m. Tuesday by a man who became angry while attempting to recover property which had been taken in lieu of a past due rental payment.

Azima said the man struck him in the head, chest and face during the altercation. Police said the victim was not seriously injured.

Ron Reese said $1,131 worth of building materials were stolen from a construction site at 8021 Winston Tuesday night.

Roger Smith reported a $200 10-band radio missing from his garage shop behind his 1917 22nd St. residence. He said the radio was stolen between Monday afternoon and Wednesday morning.

Frank Wilson, owner of Metal Products Company, Inc., at 2219 Ave. A, said $50 cash, tools and a radio were taken from his farm Tuesday night. Wilson said the intruders cut a hole in the front door glass, causing $50 damage, and then ransacked the desks in the firm's two offices.

John P. Werner of 2169 17th St. told police his last stereo equipment and two television sets totaling $2,000 when his residence was entered Tuesday morning.

Tapes and CB radios seemed the major attractions of city car burglars Tuesday night.

George Scott Jr. said intruders managed to unlock his 1973 Cadillac between 10 a.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday while it was parked at his 2801 E. 26th St. residence and made off with $400 worth of property. He listed as missing a portable CB radio, 8-track tapes, motor oil, clothing and a "fear buster."

George C. Colvin of 1801 E. 26th St. said he also lost a CB and color detector, in addition to tools, to car burglars who broke into his vehicle between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 10 a.m. Wednesday. Colvin said the vehicle was parked at his home at the time of the burglary.

Gary R. Carter said 20 8-track tapes, worth $150, were stolen from his 1977 Chevrolet El Camino Wednesday morning while it was parked outside his 2202 Main St., No. 127, residence. Carter said the burglar broke out the passenger window of the vehicle, causing $250 damage, to get to the tapes.

City Woman Convicted In Slaying Here

An 18-year-old Lubbock woman was found guilty of murder Wednesday afternoon in the Sept. 4 stabbing death of a woman she testified was the wife of her illegitimate child's father.

An eight-woman, four-man 72nd District Court jury was deliberating the punishment of Bobbie Laverne Toler of 809 David Ave. late Wednesday.

Richard Howell, assistant criminal district attorney, asked the jury to assess life in prison, while defense attorney Pat Simek sought probation.

"Murder is a blight on this county," Howell said in closing arguments after the three-day trial. "It's a threat to every law-abiding citizen."

Simek argued that Miss Toler was provoked and was defending herself when she stabbed Dessie Mae Ward, 24, during an argument in front of the Toler home.

He then asked for probation because the defendant has a 10-month-old son to care for and had never been convicted of a felony or arrested before Mrs. Ward was killed.

Miss Toler earlier testified she stabbed Mrs. Ward once in the chest with a butcher knife during a fight in which the victim was pulling her hair and biting her finger.

"We were tusslin', and I stabbed her," Miss Toler said. "I pulled my finger out of her mouth, and she fell to the ground."

She said she and Collier Ward, the dead woman's husband, had known each other four years.

Howell charged in cross examination that Mrs. Ward "was in the same shape she had been in" and had no reason belatedly to try to kill Miss Toler, as the defendant claimed. Suggesting that Miss Toler wanted more support for her baby, Howell asked whether she was not "the only one with a reason to kill someone."

Miss Toler testified she thought the victim had a weapon in her hand when they started fighting. Howell introduced testimony that she was unarmed.

The prosecutor also argued that the defendant had ample opportunity to retreat after Mrs. Ward and two other persons stopped in a car in front of the house.

Miss Toler testified earlier that she went into the house and got the knife after throwing a Coke bottle at the car and failing to drive the other woman away.

Weather Network Begins Transmitting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Weather Service has begun transmitting weather reports from Buras, La., about 50 miles south of New Orleans.

Normally, this wouldn't be big news, but the Buras station brings the National Weather Radio network to 250 stations around the country. The network is expected to consist of 345 stations when it is completed next December.

The weather radio system operates 24 hours a day broadcasting weather information only. Special radios are needed which receive the high-frequency FM signals, but these are available in most areas for as little as $10 to $15.

The stations cover or will cover most areas of the country, giving regular forecasts plus warnings of severe weather. The stations have a range of about 40 miles and broadcast on either 162,400, 162,475 or 162,550 megahertz.

Farmers To Jam Traffic Unless Parity Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen can either meet the demands of the American Agriculture Movement or prepare to drive to work behind a slow-moving tractor, members of the Texas delegation were told Wednesday.

Gerald McCathern, a Hereford, Texas, farmer and AAM leader, said about 700 tractors are already rolling toward the nation's capital with hundreds more expected to join the caravans scheduled to arrive in February.

"We don't want them to come but they are going to come if we don't get what we need to stay in business," said McCathern. "We don't intend for this to be a threat. It's a plea ... we don't intend to pillage, loot and burn. We're just exercising our constitutional rights. We're coming to peacefully demonstrate."

And McCathern made it plain to the 13 Texas Democrats attending the meeting that once in Washington, tractors will be the main method of transportation for the lobbying farmers.

"We know that they are going to be in the way and I know that we're going to make people mad," added McCathern. "We don't like to do it but we are going to be driving tractors so that they will be seen."

To keep the tractors off the already crowded Washington streets, Congress must pass a resolution calling for full implementation of the current farm bill. Specifically, parity levels must be raised to the bill's maximum — 90 percent.

If the resolution is passed, the tractors would turn around and return home, said McCathern.

Reps. Ray Roberts, Abraham "Chick" Kazen and Kent Hance urged the farmers to take a "positive, gentlemanly approach" to their lobbying.

"If you have traffic tied up here for a few weeks, you might win," said Hance, a freshman whose West Texas district is strongly agriculture-oriented. "But you're playing with dynamite ... you might win, but on the other hand, you might make many people so mad that you'll never win."

The farmers presented several lists of statistics giving evidence to their claims that America's farmers are being priced out of business.

"Anytime you have a large diverse group, you have some arguments that are very good and some that don't make sense," said freshman Rep. Phil Gramm, a former Texas A&M economics professor. "I would support a resolution calling for renegotiation of our trade agreements with Japan and Europe demanding a lowering of tariffs and quotas against U.S. agriculture products ... our primary thrust has got to be to open up expanded markets to increase demand."

Another freshman, Rep. Martin Frost, from a predominantly urban district, said he was "basically sympathetic to the farmers but 'I want to have enough information to feel I can justify to my constituents whatever option I can take on their behalf.'"

The other Texas Democrats attending the 90-minute session were Reps. Jack Brooks, Jack Hightower, Jake Pickle, Sam Hall, Marvin Leahy, Joe Wyatt, Mickey Letland and Charles Stenholm.

Plane Placard Said Link To D.B. Cooper

KELSO, Wash. (AP) — A heavy plastic placard from a Boeing 727, found by a hunter in a thickly wooded area, could be a link to the unsolved 1971 D.B. Cooper skyjacking, authorities said Wednesday.

Cooper is believed to have parachuted from the Northwest Airlines jet near Woodland, about 10 miles south of here, with $200,000 in $20 bills.

The placard was described as an emergency warning notice of the type posted next to the rear exit of 727s.

"There isn't any way that it could have come off a plane without the (rear) door being opened," said Cowlitz County Sheriff Les Nelson. "We know that two days after Cooper jumped that the placard was missing off the plane."

"This is the first probable, tangible piece of evidence that has surfaced in the D.B. Cooper case," he added. "It's inconceivable, it's one in a million, that any other plane could have lost it in the area in which D.B. Cooper jumped."

The placard was found about "six flying minutes" from where Cooper is believed to have jumped on Nov. 24, 1971, said Nelson. It was found last November by a hunter near a logging road north of Ariel, said Nelson.

The FBI and sheriff's detectives withheld information about the find while trying to verify the origin of the placard, he said.

Ray Mathis, FBI spokesman in Seattle, said agents in the past have twice searched the area in which the placard was found. Both he and Nelson said there were no plans to conduct any additional searches.

The federal statute of limitations for skyjacking is five years. But Cooper, if he is alive, is not a free man. He was indicted by a federal grand jury in absentia in 1976 as a "John Doe."

Murder Try Charged Here

A 40-year-old Lubbock man Wednesday was charged with attempted murder in the Sunday shooting of another Lubbock man.

Ben Ortiz of 522 40th St. was charged and placed under $5,000 bond in the case.

The shooting victim, Egesipo Sanchez of 907 1st St., was listed in serious condition Wednesday at Methodist Hospital with gunshot wounds to his right arm, hip and stomach.

Police reported that Sanchez was shot with a shotgun about 2:50 a.m. Sunday in front of his home.

Other charges filed Wednesday by the criminal district attorney's office included charges of possession of a controlled substance against Juan Manuel Pina, 22, and Olivia Gonzales, 17, both of Slaton.

Pina and Miss Gonzales were arrested and accused of having heroin in their possession after a police raid Jan. 11 at a garage apartment in Slaton.

They were placed under $25,000 bond each.

Robert Glen Prince, 19, of Midland was charged with forgery and accused of trying to pass a $4,000 forged check Jan. 10 at Lubbock National Bank.

His bond was set at $50,000.

Ramiro Julian Munoz Jr., 21, of 1809 E. Auburn St. was charged with criminal mischief. He was accused of knocking a door and two windows at the home of another Lubbock man and placed under $5,000 bond.

ACLU Member Speaks Here On Abortion

Monday is the sixth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision decriminalizing abortion, but a representative of the American Civil Liberties Union warned Wednesday that state legislation is being introduced that would restrict abortion rights.

Patricia D. Beyea, director of Campaign for Choice, said three bills have been introduced in the 1979 Texas legislature that would place more limits on abortion and that more similar bills can be expected.

Mrs. Beyea's five-city Texas speaking tour is aimed at informing Texans of the anti-abortion movement underway and ultimately of rescinding the Hyde Amendment which prevents Medicaid funds from being used for abortions except under three circumstances.

The Hyde Amendment, which went into effect in Texas in September 1977, provides that Medicaid funds may be used for abortions if 1) there is life endangerment to the woman 2) the pregnancy is the result of rape or incest or 3) if carrying the fetus would result in severe health damage to the woman.

"The issue is, 'Should poor people be eliminated from health care?' That's not my idea of social justice," Mrs. Beyea said.

The constitutionality of the Hyde Amendment is now before a federal district court and Mrs. Beyea predicted it would ultimately be decided by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile more restrictions are being placed on abortions, she said. Some city councils have passed ordinances which prohibit abortions in public clinics and hospitals or require doctors to state that the fetus is human from conception.

"That's a theological statement, not a medical one," Mrs. Beyea said, adding that the right to choose an abortion is an issue between a woman and her doctor, not a decision of the government.

In a year of tax revolt fever, Mrs. Beyea said the issue of using Medicaid funds to cover abortions may be harder to sell to legislators. However, she noted that it is financially cheaper to pay for an abortion, estimated to cost between $150 and $250, than for welfare to support pre-natal and childbearing costs plus support of that child to age 18.

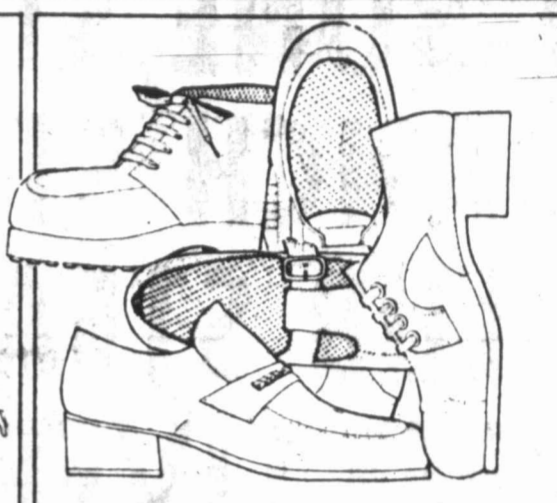

One of the bills introduced in the state legislature this session would prevent any public employee health program from covering the cost of abortions. Another bill introduced would prevent any hospital receiving federal funds from allowing abortions in that medical facility.

Not Incurably Ill, Ex-Solon Jordan Says

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Rep. Barbara Jordan said Wednesday that reports she suffers from an incurable disease are "inaccurate" and said she wished she could be congratulated for her drastic weight loss "rather than viewed with suspicion of grave illness."

"It is true that I walk with a limp and use a cane," Mrs. Jordan said in a statement released through the University of Texas, where she teaches at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

"I do not suffer from any terminal illness."

The Dallas Morning News said in a copyright story Wednesday that Mrs. Jordan is battling a bone disease known as multiple myeloma.

The newspaper quoted sources in Washington and Austin in its report. Mrs. Jordan, the first black woman elected to the Texas Senate since 1882, represented a Houston district in the House, where she served three terms.

She retired effective this month, but said at the time of her announcement that illness was not a factor in her decision.

She stirred the nation with her oratory during House Judiciary Committee hearings in which impeachment of former President Richard Nixon was debated.

Mrs. Jordan repeated the performance during the 1976 Democratic National Convention, where a speech spurred so much enthusiasm among delegates that efforts were made to have her name placed in nomination for vice president. She blocked those efforts.

Clements Gets To Work After Big Night

AUSTIN (AP) — Less than six hours after retiring from his inaugural celebrations, Gov. Bill Clements got to work at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday on his first day as governor.

After morning conferences, Clements strolled out of the Capitol to the Texas Employment Commission cafeteria across the street for a $2.48 lunch of calf's liver, cauliflower, pumpkin pie and coffee.

"Sorry to be causing all this disturbance," the governor told cafeteria manager Frank Beynon, as two dozen reporters and photographers invaded the dining hall with him.

Beynon offered to pick up the governor's tab but Clements declined.

Rain began falling as Clements left with three aides.

"Nuts," he muttered. The governor's Department of Public Safety driver, Jim Williamson, ran two blocks to the Capitol to fetch Clements' car for the one-block ride back.

State Auditor George McNeil and Dallas service contractor Joe Kirven met with Clements before lunch.

SBA OPPOSES POSTAL IDEA
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief counsel for advocacy of the Small Business Administration says he will oppose a proposal by the U.S. Postal Service to create a new subclass of express mail to be called "Metro Service."

McNeil explained state auditing procedures, the governor said. Kirven is being considered for an as yet undetermined administration position, Clements added.

The Republican executive emerged from his office for a photo session shortly before 1 p.m.

"I thought at least some of you would go to bed," he exclaimed to the awaiting media people, who had followed him to five inaugural balls the night before.

"I finally looked at my watch last night and it was five minutes of 3 a.m.," he said.

"I was in my own room and we were visiting with some other people. But when I saw what time it was I almost fainted," the governor said.

Clements said he was pleased that the Senate Wednesday quickly confirmed his appointments of George Strake as secretary of state and Gen. William Scott as adjutant general.

"Both of these men represent the kind of high quality and very capable people I'm planning to bring into state government," he said.

Troops Battle Riot In Iranian Oil City

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Pro-shah troops battled demonstrators in the oil city of Ahwaz Wednesday, the first full day of the shah's forced "vacation" abroad, creating a major threat to the stability of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's fledgling civilian government.

At least 30 people were reported killed or wounded in Ahwaz.

In Washington, President Carter appealed to the Paris-based Iranian religious leader, Ayatollah Khomeini, to give Bakhtiar's new government a chance to end the turmoil that has plagued Iran for more than a year.

Carter acknowledged at a news conference that the shah's departure had come sooner than U.S. officials expected but said he has "confidence in the Iranian people to restore a stable government." He said the United States will not intervene in Iran because "we tried this once, in Vietnam, and as you know it did not work well."

In Tehran, Bakhtiar huddled with top national security advisers to plan moves to halt the turmoil in Iran. Dissension also was reported breaking out among the anti-shah parties on the future shape of the country.

The widespread strikes that have crippled the nation's oil-based economy continued as workers demanded that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who left the country Tuesday for Egypt en route to the United States, formally give up the throne.

Diplomatic sources in Washington said the shah, still "vacationing" Wednesday in the resort city of Aswan, Egypt, would visit Morocco on his way to the United States, where he will stay at the Palm Springs, Calif., estate of former U.S. Ambassador to Britain Walter Annenberg. Official Moroccan sources said the shah would meet with King Hassan II, probably at the Moroccan monarch's winter palace in Marrakech and not in Rabat.

Return Discounted
The shah left Tehran for what what he called a temporary vacation, but it was widely believed he would be unable to return to Iran and the monarchy founded by his father more than 50 years ago. The shah's failure to resume the throne would put an end to 2,500 years of imperial rule here.

The Iranian Foreign Ministry announced in Tehran that Ardeshtir Zahedi, Iran's ambassador to the United States and a former son-in-law of the shah, had resigned his post. It also said eight other Iranian ambassadors had been permanently recalled to Tehran. No explanation was given.

But in Washington, a spokesman for Zahedi said the ambassador had not resigned and that the report from Tehran was "untrue."

Quake Kills 199
Bakhtiar's hard-pressed government also had to deal with the aftermath of a major earthquake that devastated remote areas in eastern Iran. Confirmed reports had 199 persons killed in three towns and some press reports said the final death toll could exceed 1,000.

The prime minister's top justice official, Yahya Sadeqzaviri, resigned. The minister said present laws would not allow him to quickly bring to trial former government ministers accused of corruption and abuse of power.

In Washington, private and public comments from U.S. officials have grown more reserved, indicating a growing consensus that the Bakhtiar government has only a marginal chance of surviving and that the shah's vacation may turn into permanent exile.

Phone Contact Cut
Telephone contact with Ahwaz, 340 miles southwest of Tehran, was cut off. The city of 500,000 is the site of the country's major oil refinery complex on the Persian Gulf.

Sources, however, reported bloody clashes between government troops and demonstrators who had taken to the streets to celebrate the shah's departure. An early unconfirmed press report spoke of several hundred casualties.

Informants said anti-shah militants had bombarded an army garrison in Ahwaz with messages from loudspeakers Tuesday night. Troops angered by the anti-shah comments rushed into the streets Wednesday morning to confront the demonstrators.

Troops Back Shah
An army spokesman said some of the troops ran through the streets demanding that residents hold pro-shah demonstrations. Other sources said air force and army units clashed, but this could not be confirmed.

City residents reported heavy gunfire, and the Jundi-Shahpour Hospital reported before telephones were cut off that 25 casualties had been brought in, some of them dead on arrival. Other reliable sources placed the casualty toll at 30.

Gen. Abbas Gharabaghi, armed forces chief of staff, issued a statement saying without elaboration there was "no question of disobedience" by soldiers in Ahwaz. The statement evidently was meant to counter reports that some soldiers in Ahwaz had deserted and joined anti-government demonstrations.

Demonstrations that appeared to be heavily in favor of the shah's departure were reported for the second straight day in most parts of the country. But soldiers in the capital have been exercising restraint.

U.S. Officials Wary Of Bakhtiar Chances

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a growing consensus among U.S. officials that the fledgling civilian government in Iran has only a marginal chance of surviving and that the Shah of Iran's "vacation" may turn out to be permanent exile.

At a news conference Wednesday, President Carter said the administration is pinning its hopes for survival of the new government on pledges of support from some anti-shah religious and political leaders.

But the most prominent religious leader, Ayatollah Khomeini, said Tuesday from exile in Paris that he plans to form a provisional government in the coming days which he hopes will replace the regime of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar. He called the shah's departure from Iran the "first step" toward the establishment of an Islamic state.

New Storms Slam Areas In Midwest

north central Texas today. The front and an upper air disturbance also will bring precipitation in various forms across the Panhandle and South Plains.

Travelers advisories remain in effect for the mountains of southwest Texas today and freezing precipitation is a possibility.

Melting snow that prompted a flash flood warning for central Arizona and blizzard conditions that are blamed for the deaths of 71 Chicago residents grabbed the weather spotlight for the nation late Wednesday.

Chicago's temperature rose above freezing Wednesday for first time in 1979, and businessmen there said the weekend's blizzard cost them $1 billion in lost revenue.

An additional $200 million was said to be lost because workers were unable to get to their jobs. The Chicago post office was at a standstill because O'Hare International Airport was closed for three days, disrupting mail delivery.

The blizzard hit all of the Midwest, prompting one governor to seek federal aid.

Iowa Governor Robert Ray asked President Carter to issue an emergency proclamation for 22 eastern Iowa counties hard hit by the winter blizzard. Ray said the storm closed hundreds of schools and businesses, blocked 23,000 miles of road, stranded 745 persons, and left "thousands of citizens isolated from public protection services, food, medicine, and fuel."

Further east, New York City residents and commuters also were affected adversely by the snow. Travelers advisories were issued and dozens of accidents reported in the surrounding areas as up to three inches of snow fell.

The city's sanitation department requested that all vehicles in midtown Manhattan that were not on essential business leave the city. Speed on the New Jersey Turnpike was reduced to 35 mph.

Wisconsin state officials Wednesday sent equipment from the National Guard and the Department of Natural Resources to Milwaukee and Kenosha County to help clear snow-clogged roads. Both areas were declared disaster areas by the state.

Firm's Own Gun Used In Robbery

A young black man, utilizing the gun kept under the counter at Kwik-O Food Mart, 1528 Broadway, got away with an undetermined amount of cash from that firm late Wednesday.

Store attendant Raul Lopez told officers the man entered the convenience store shortly after 11 p.m., followed the 17-year-old clerk behind the counter and pulled out the store gun kept there.

Lopez said the suspect then demanded the cash from the register and left the store on foot, still carrying the business' gun.

The suspect was described as about 20 and wearing a beige straw hat, beige jacket and faded jeans.

Despite Khomeini's uncompromising opposition to Bakhtiar, Carter issued a forceful appeal to Khomeini to give the new civilian government a "chance to succeed."

The public U.S. statements of support for Bakhtiar appear to have become more reserved in recent days as opposition to his 11-day-old government continues unabated. This sentiment has been echoed more forcefully in the private comments of administration officials.

Undersecretary of State David Newsom told interviewers Tuesday night that while the administration continues to support the Bakhtiar government, it recognizes that Iran is in the process of "political change."

One aspect of the rapid turn of events in Iran which has struck officials here is that the once-pervasive U.S. influence has virtually disappeared with the shah's departure for a still-undisclosed destination in the United States.

To Visit Morocco
The shah arrived in Egypt Tuesday and diplomatic sources said he will visit Morocco later in the week.

The precipitous decline in U.S. influence in Iran was a theme Newsom stressed repeatedly in his comments on the Public Broadcast Service's "MacNeil-Lehrer Report."

Other officials point out that if the United States was unable to save the shah, it would have even less chance of ensuring the survival of the Bakhtiar government.

Despite the limited U.S. influence, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Wednesday the United States still hopes to play a role in easing tensions.

U.S. Urges Calm
He said that in contacts with various influential groups in Iran, the United States has been "urging calm, urging reconciliation and urging the creation of the basis of an orderly political process."

As for the shah's future, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance as recently as last Thursday was describing the shah's then-impending departure from Iran as a "vacation."

But Newsom, under questioning Tuesday night, passed up the opportunity to characterize it as such. Asked whether the shah plans to settle permanently in the United States, Newsom said, "We do not know as yet what his plans are."

Stay In California
But diplomatic sources in Washington, asking to remain anonymous, said the shah would stay at the Palm Springs, Calif., estate of former U.S. Ambassador to Britain Walter Annenberg. Other sources acknowledge that the shah's presence in the country could cause the administration some embarrassment.

Although one official said some press reports alleging this possibility have been overstated, he conceded that the prospect of massive anti-shah demonstrations by Iranian students would tend to underscore the shah's longtime close ties with the United States.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said it was impossible to judge how this would affect U.S. efforts to maintain a cooperative relationship with Iran's new leadership.

The departure of the shah has led to an intensified analysis here on how U.S. interests elsewhere in the region will be affected.

Khomeini Hits U.S. Bases

PARIS (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who has vowed to install his own regime to replace the shah in Iran, said Wednesday the United States would "absolutely not" be allowed to operate spy bases on the Soviet border.

Khomeini, the 78-year-old exiled leader of Iran's Shiite Moslems, called on the military to join his movement and said the shah should be returned to Iran to face "trial and punishment" for his crimes.

Aides to Khomeini said the bearded, black-turbaned religious leader who was spiritual leader of the year-long violent revolt that drove the shah from the throne would likely announce his own provisional government for Iran within 48 hours.

A top aide to Khomeini, who has frequently criticized the United States for supporting the shah, was asked if America could continue to operate intelligence equipment along the Iran-Soviet border.

"Absolutely not," the aide replied. "We are not going to be an intelligence base for anyone."

Clayton Seeking '81 Speakership

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. John Wilson, regarded by many as the father of Texas' public utility act, and Speaker Bill Clayton both announced Wednesday for speaker of the 1981 House.

Clayton said he has enough written pledges of support to win his fourth term.

Wilson, D-La Grange, said nobody should serve more than two terms, and Clayton started his unprecedented third term Jan. 9.

The speaker said he learned Monday that Wilson was about to announce and quickly set his supporters to rounding up pledges.

"I frankly hate to see John decide to instigate a race for speaker at this point in the session," Clayton told reporters. "I would have preferred that he wait until the end and not get it involved in the session itself."

Miss Lillian Feels Billy Regrets Acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's 80-year-old mother, Miss Lillian, said Wednesday she believes her son Billy is sorry if his recent remarks and actions have given anyone offense.

"I have tried to raise all of my children to love their fellow man," she said in remarks at the Washington Press Club.

"After they get grown and get away from home, I can't help what they do," she said. "I just hope for the best."

"If he offended anyone, I know he's sorry by now," she said of her son, Billy.

Billy Carter raised a storm of criticism last week for allegedly anti-Semitic remarks he made while playing host in Georgia to a delegation from the Arab nation of Libya.

At one point during the trip, in explaining his role as host to the Libyans, Billy Carter said, "There's a hell of a lot more Arabians than there is Jews." That remark brought a hail of criticism from Jewish groups.

Miss Lillian commented on her youngest son's behavior in a question and answer period which followed an illustrated lecture on her trip last summer to the drought-stricken areas of the Sahel region of Africa.

"He certainly forced us to make some decisions. We will be seeking a fourth term. We already have 90 signed pledge cards and expect by the next day or so we will have over 100."

The speaker is elected by the House, and it takes a majority — 76 votes if all members are present — to win.

"I think it's over. That's why we went to work when we heard about it — to get it (the 1981 speaker's race) out of the way," Clayton said.

Clayton said he was truly puzzled by Wilson's timing.

He acknowledged that the stack of gray pledge cards on his desk had been "obtained in the last few days, after we found out about his move."

This would mean Clayton's "team" members were out asking for signatures while Clayton was deciding each representative's committee assignments. Clayton said he would announce the assignments today.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, elected statewide by the voters, announced his committee appointments Jan. 9, opening day of the session.

Wilson, 39, told a news conference he announced when he did because he did not want to be in the position of running for speaker and possibly holding a committee chairmanship bestowed by Clayton.

"Out of respect for the speaker and the fairness he has shown to me... I didn't want to play that game," Wilson said.

He said he had no criticism of Clayton's leadership, but "I think three terms are enough."

Clayton said he did not think longevity in the speaker's office was bad "as long as a person tries to be fair."

Wilson's six-year career as a legislator was highlighted by passage in 1975 of the law establishing the Texas Public Utility Commission to regulate telephone and electric rates.

A moderate, he acknowledged, "I have been able to serve by walking both sides of the street at times."

In legislative business Wednesday, both chambers adopted a resolution inviting Gov. Bill Clements to address a joint session Tuesday.

Senators passed, 30-0, and sent to the House a $467,518 emergency appropriation for three new courts of civil appeals authorized by the voters in November — two in Houston and one in Dallas.

homeland may have been caused by "progress too fast for people to take it."

He said he feared for his father's safety before he left Iran and said, "it's good to know he's in a safer place."

The prince said he had never met Iran's new prime minister Shahpour Bakhtiar and had no "special idea" about him. "We'll have to see what will go on, what the (new) government will do."

overall strength.

"We are in good shape and still have a lot of influence," Hance said.

The Texas Tech alum hopes to gain another committee membership before appointments are completed Friday. He is one of 19 legislators in contention for three available positions on the Interior and Insular Committee, which is responsible for water and energy legislation.

Important Step
Hance said he believes his appointment to the Agriculture Committee to be an important step in achieving effective representation for his constituents in the 19th District.

Agricultural legislation the 96th Congress will review includes a bill limiting the importation of foreign beef. The original bill was vetoed last year by President Carter.

Hance plans to co-sponsor a bill requiring beef imported from foreign countries to be labeled. "So the public will know what they are buying."

The former state senator also is interested in increasing the loan prices for commodities such as corn, milo, wheat and cotton.

"I would like to find a price that would be a break-even point for farmers, but would not price us out of world markets," Hance said.

Aware Of Complaints
As hundreds of tractors roll towards the nation's capital, Hance said he is well aware of the complaints of the American Agriculture Movement.

"Because it is so early, it is hard to say how effective the tractorcade will be this year," Hance said.

The freshman congressman arranged a meeting Wednesday in Washington, D.C., between members of the Texas delegation and five local farm leaders. He said he also plans to meet with farmers when they reach Washington in February.

Hance's first visit to the 19th District as a congressman has been scheduled tentatively for the Jan. 19-21 weekend.

ward, however, "for fear of retaliation against their children" and public criticism, Griffith said.

"I do not believe you would fall into the craven error of placing popularity of school-sponsored prayer above duty in this matter; to do so would jeopardize all religions as well as the non-religious," Griffith told school trustees.

"Such a standard would tend to give the majority religion state sanction, state facilities and ultimately, state condemnation of minority religious practices."

Griffith said school-sponsored voluntary prayer is against the U.S. Constitution.

"If the school has a volunteer roster or policy and then provides the enterprising devotee with scheduled time, physical facilities (such as a classroom or loudspeaker) and an audience or assembly by compulsion or by voluntary participation, you are conducting school prayer or religious exercises," he said.

By DUANE HOWELL

U. S. CATTLE PRICES COULD AVERAGE $60 TO $62 per hundredweight in the third quarter this year after averaging $57-$58 in the second quarter and $55-$56 in the first three months.

Ed Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist with Texas A&M University, made those forecasts this week at the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation at Miami Beach.

The forecasts are for 900 to 1,100-pound Amarillo choice fed steers, which in the last quarter of 1978 averaged $54.84 per hundredweight.

EXPECTATIONS FOR FED CATTLE PRICES in the second half are quite uncertain, Uvacek said, but further strength will add to feeder cattle prices, which already held a $9.37 per hundredweight premium over fed cattle in the last quarter of 1978.

The spread so far this year is even wider, reflecting shorter supply of feeders and the strong demand for replacement stock by feedlots. But the premiums could be toned down by losses incurred in February-March due to feedlot breakeven costs of around $60 to $62 per hundredweight, Uvacek said.

Higher feed costs also are expected to limit the spring price rise for feeder types, he said.

Price recovery could be held down in the first half by considerably larger pork and poultry supplies, larger meat imports than last year, increased use of vegetable protein extenders to make up for ground beef shortfall, possible price controls, and consumer pressure to hold down inflation, Uvacek said.

TOTAL BEEF SUPPLIES IN THE FIRST quarter are expected to be down just a little from a year ago, Uvacek said.

But assuming a beef output decline of 1 to 2 percent, a 3 percent rise in pork supply, a 10 percent rise in broiler supplies, and a 25 percent jump in turkeys, total meat supplies could easily be more than a year ago.

Second quarter red meat and poultry output could be 2 to 3 percent up on a year ago, he said.

Pork, broiler and turkey output in the first half may exceed beef production, he added.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE INSURANCE Commissioner James M. Stone plans to accept the job of chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission if the Senate approves his nomination by President Carter.

Stone said in an interview this week that a commodities regulator "must have a sensitivity to the needs of producers, but it is not necessary to have grown up on a farm to have this sensitivity."

His confirmation could face some opposition in the Senate. Several members of the Senate Agriculture Committee last week told Carter they object to Stone's appointment because he lacks experience in agriculture.

STONE SAID AS AN ECONOMIST, he has studied agricultural economics extensively. He also is the author of a book on regulation of the securities industry.

"Although the similarities between securities and futures are substantial, the differences are extremely important," Stone said. "But knowing one should be helpful in learning the other."

"The job of a regulator is to balance interests. One must always take into account the different parties in the regulated business."

Cash Cattle Apply Prod To Livestock

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed up 75 to off 30 points with the spot month leading the plus side Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Prices in other 1979 contracts slipped in the final hour on local liquidation, traders said.

January through October posted new season highs before closing mostly lower. Volume was estimated at 23,736 cars. Strength in the nearby contract stemmed from another gain in carcass beef and instances of sharply higher cash cattle markets.

There have been 214 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 1 cent at 96 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is the highest since June. Cash cattle were up $1.50 to off 50 cents with the best top $63.50 per hundredweight. Omaha's top was $61.75. Slaughter was 137,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to be 10,100 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed off 15 to up 10 points in the middle of narrow trading ranges. Firmness in the nearby contracts was attributed to the rise in the spot month of live cattle futures on strength in wholesale beef, traders said. Sales totalled 2,346 contracts.

Nearly January posted a new season high for the fourth consecutive session while April 1979 equalled its contract high. Local and commission house buying was noted, overshadowing scattered back spreading, analysts said. There have been 470 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $3 with the best top $21 per hundredweight at San Antonio. About 5,100 head are expected today at the major markets.

Hog futures closed up 47 to off 12 with only June at the loss. Nearby February led the advances in active trade on 7,130 lots.

Prices opened briefly lower on scattered local buying, traders said. Gains in the 14-17 pound cash hams encouraged support, overshadowing lower cash hog markets. However, sharply lower cash bellies sparked late profit-taking.

Wholesale hams were up 1 to off 1 cent at 79 to 88 1/4 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $1 with the best top $54 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 323,000 head. The major markets expect 28,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed up 52 to off 107. An estimated 6,875 contracts were traded.

The market recovered from a lower opening on local short covering and commission house buying, traders said. However, advances of as much as 120 in February were trimmed in the final hour on liquidation after cash bellies fell sharply.

Wholesale bacon was off 2 1/2 to 5 1/2 cents at 55 to 60 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

FFA Stockshow Animals Bring $60,000 In Sales

Livestock exhibited in the 1979 Lubbock County 4-H and Future Farmers of America Livestock Show sold for about $60,000 Tuesday night at the South Plains Fairgrounds livestock pavilion. According to the show's president Ken Aldridge, this year's show will probably set a record in sales.

The grand champion steer, exhibited by Cindy Greaves of the Shallowater 4-H club, drew $1,200 from Lubbock National Bank. Texas Instruments bought the reserve champion steer, exhibited by Kevin Points of Roosevelt, for $700.

Kevin Mitchell of Frenship showed the grand champion barrow which brought $775 from American Bank of Commerce in Wolfforth. Slaton exhibitor Vicky Davidson showed the reserve grand champion barrow which took a $450 top price from Supreme Feed Mills of Slaton.

Overall champion lamb was shown by David Stuart of Hub City 4-H club. Furr's cafeterias and Farm Pac bid highest on the champion offering $750. The reserve champion lamb was bought by Texas Instruments with a $400 offer. Jana Winter of the Lubbock County 4-H club exhibited the lamb.

The champion hereford, shown by Scotty Bessent of Roosevelt FFA, brought a $300 bid from Texas Commerce Bank.

In the barrow breeds, the champion Berkshire, exhibited by Terri Dunn of Cooper, brought $225 from Lubbock National Bank while the champion Chester, shown by Frenship's Will Turner, sold to Modern Chevrolet for $175.

Garland Easter, also of Frenship, showed the champion Poland China barrow, which brought $150 from Rip Griffin and David Baker of Slaton had the champion Yorkshire barrow that brought $150 from American Equipment and Trailer, Inc.

The champion fine wool lamb was exhibited by Will Turner of Frenship. Sears offered the high price and bought the animal for $200.

Bankers President To Be Tech Speaker

Charles E. Cheever, president of the 1,300-member Texas Bankers Association (TBA), will be among the speakers at an agriculturally oriented conference on "The Credit Crunch" Friday and Saturday at Texas Tech University.

Cheever will speak on the status of the usury law in Texas, discussing proposed actions with respect to its repeal or amendment. The law limits to 10 percent the interest rate for individual loans, and it has contributed to the credit crunch faced by producers and others in agribusiness.

The conference will begin with registration at 8 a.m., Friday, and all sessions will be in The Museum. Pre-registration is $30, changing to $25 at the time of the conference. To pre-register write the Division of Continuing Education, Box 4116, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409.

Cheever, president of the Broadway National Bank of San Antonio and vice president of the Eisenhower National Bank at Fort Sam Houston, has been active in TBA committee work including membership on the Legislative Committee. He is a member of the Texas Bar Association.

He has urged a unified voice for bankers through the TBA and has forecast "turbulent times ahead in the legislative and regulatory fields."

Cheever and other speakers will examine possible political and legal solutions to agricultural credit problems from the point of view of various agribusiness sectors.

Other speakers include Marvin R. Duncan, agricultural economist with the Federal Reserve Bank, Kansas City; Jack Barton, president, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Lubbock; Lawrence Miller, assistant vice president for farm and ranch mortgages, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Kansas City; Ewan Goulding, immediate past commissioner of agriculture, Colorado; Carl Anderson, economist specializing in cotton marketing, Texas A&M University; and David Cummins and Robert Wood of the Texas

Texas Tech University School of Law.

Strokes' Geographic Link Under Study

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — American and Egyptian scientists plan to study why the occurrence of strokes, high blood pressure and blood vessel disease vary widely with geographic location.

Dr. James F. Toole of Bowman Gray Medical School in Winston-Salem, N.C., said the study will try to see if things such as water supply and the altitude above sea level are risk factors for stroke and blood vessel disease. "In the United States, high altitude areas have less stroke than low altitude areas and that may be true of cardiac problems, too," Toole told the American Heart Association's annual science writers' forum.

Carter Claims Budget Slash Goal Met In 1980 Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Wednesday he has "more than met my goal" in slashing the 1980 budget deficit below $30 billion, while still providing increased spending for defense and an additional $4.5 billion for poor Americans.

It was learned elsewhere that Carter will propose a deficit of $29 billion out of a total budget of $532 billion that he will send to Congress Monday for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1.

The budget will include outlays of $179 billion for welfare and income security programs, an increase of $20 billion from this year, and $122.8 billion for defense, a hike of about $10 billion.

Although the defense outlays represent a net increase of 3 percent over 1979 spending, after discounting for inflation, there are some cutbacks in some of the programs that benefit disadvantaged persons.

But Carter said at his news conference that the poor are being taken care of in his budget.

"We have not neglected the needs of disadvantaged Americans, poor Americans or those who are unemployed," Carter said. He added that total allocation of funds for the poor will be increased by $4.5 billion, although this is apparently the increase before discounting for inflation.

About $11 billion will be allocated for jobs and job training programs, he said, although it is known that there will be a reduction of about 175,000 government-financed jobs.

Carter said it was "a very difficult budget to prepare" because of the conflicting needs to help control inflation, improve defense and meet essential human needs.

"The budget commitment will be to control inflation," Carter said. "It will be very austere, stringent, tough fiscal policy, but fair to the American people and oriented to help those who are most disadvantaged to have a better quality of life."

It was learned that the administration will hold out the possibility in the budget of reducing Social Security taxes by 1981 if certain cost-cutting measures are enacted. Social Security taxes increased sharply for American workers this year and are scheduled to rise even further over the next several years.

Printing of the first of 30,000 copies of the 604-page document at the Government Printing Office started Wednesday. Budget Director James T. McIntyre joked to reporters that it was too late to make any more changes.

The amount of spending for welfare and income security — which includes such programs as unemployment compensation, food stamps and housing aid — would be equal to 34 percent of the total budget spending in 1980.

Most of the assistance spending, including $113.8 billion for Social Security payments, is required by law. By contrast, Carter is known to have opted for cuts in other domestic social programs like job training and health programs, in which existing law does not mandate spending increases.

Social Security outlays are estimated at $102.3 billion this year. However, Carter will propose some changes in the Social Security program to save $600 million in 1980 and $1.7 billion in 1981.

If Congress enacts those changes and proposed hospital cost containment legislation, it would be possible to consider reducing Social Security taxes beginning in 1981, the administration will say.

Carter also will propose savings for some Medicare and Medicaid programs, which are in a separate part of the budget.

There would be major cuts in the government's huge public jobs program, to 467,000 jobs in 1980 from 625,000 this year, a budget saving of $600 million. Jobs for the so-called hard-core unemployment would remain at the 1979 total of 287,000, however.

The 1980 budget deficit of $29 billion would be the smallest red ink spending by the federal government since 1974, when the deficit was $4.7 billion. It will nevertheless be the 19th budget out of the last 20 to be in the red.

After income security programs the next most costly part of the budget is defense, for which Carter will request outlays of $122.8 billion.

Cosmetic Surgery Not Expensive For Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — In Russia, beauty comes cheap.
For a facelift, the cost is $60. For a nose job, $75. Work on the ear is $45 dollars. Elimination of crow's feet $33. Pierced ears $3.

The average worker's salary is $225-$240 per month, and the doctors at Moscow's Institute of Beauty note the fees are "much cheaper than in America." Indeed, a facelift can cost in the thousands of dollars in the United States.

The doctors who fix the noses, lips, chins and breasts of a few lucky Russians each year said in interviews that they were unaware of the publicity over the recent facelift of former First Lady Betty Ford.

But they said they, too, ply their skills on "actors, heroes, heroines, farm workers, teachers, doctors." The names of any government leaders who have visited for facelifts are "absolutely secret," they say.

Incongruous in a nation where attractive clothes and even simple cosmetics are in short supply, where hospitals are crowded and some drugs are hard to find, the institute is housed in a gleaming, glassy high-rise on the western-style Kalinin Avenue, which was built by former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev after a visit to America.

Asked whether the puritanical Soviets ever suggest that the institute engages in a decadent Western pursuit, its director, Dr. Inna Kolgunenko, retorted: "Decadence! I've only heard that word once before and that time it was from an Englishman."

"Cosmetology is not decadent," she said. "Cosmetology appears in nations which have developed a high social and cultural level."

And she went on to make her institute sound like an advertisement for the achievements of communism which, she maintained, has "already decided the problems of food, clothing and housing."

She made it clear that the institute, subsidized by the city, has the full backing of the Kremlin.

One of her surgeons, Vladimir Sovietsky, said the institute and an affiliated hospital perform about 5,000 operations a year, minor and major, including some 600 to 700 facelifts, known in Russian as "teisliftings."

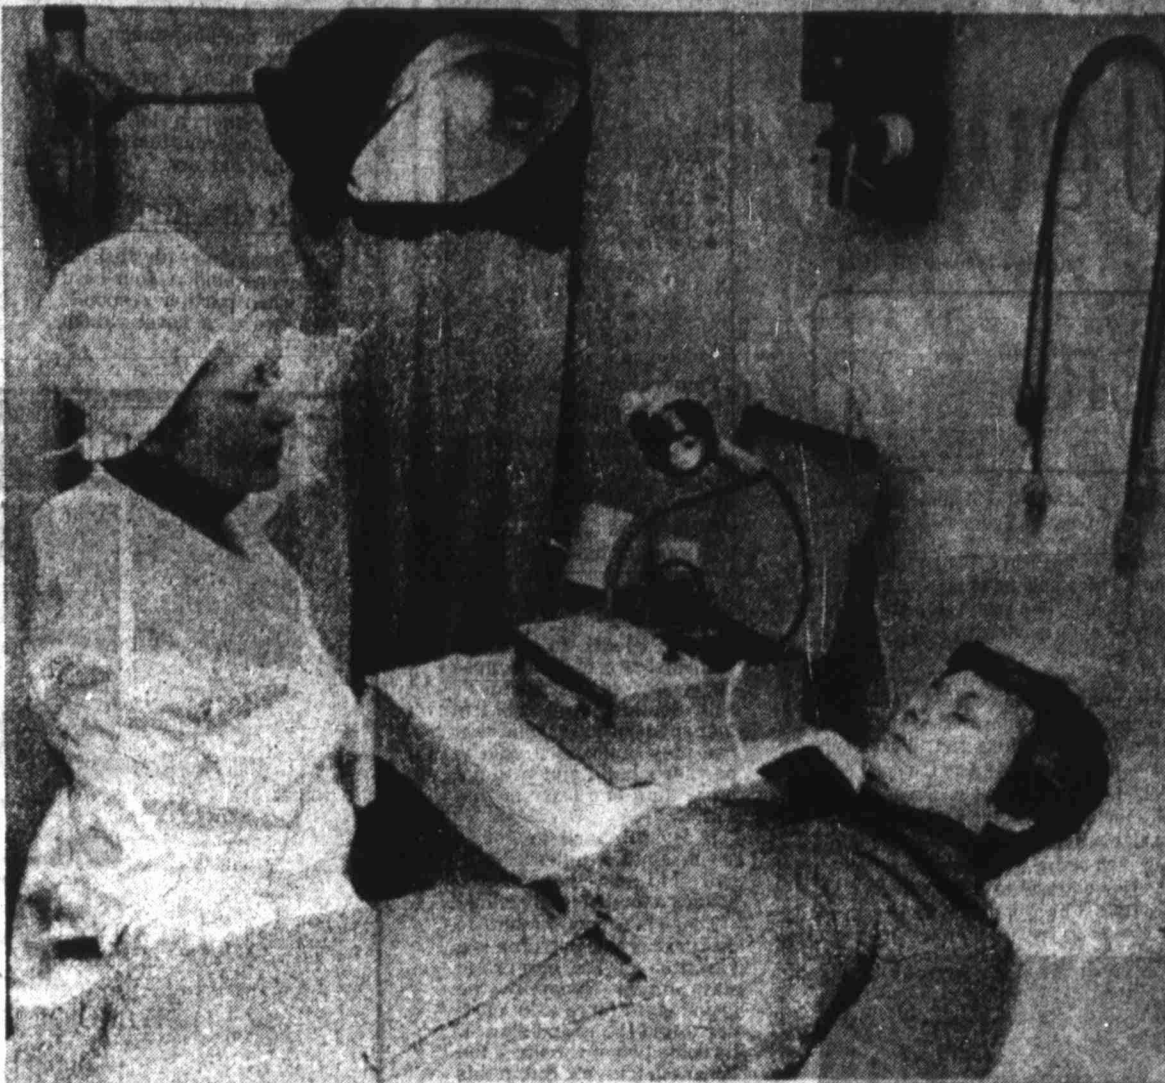

Although Dr. Kolgunenko insisted that the institute is "for the masses" and that the typical client is a lady truckdriver, she did not describe the process by which patients are selected from what she said were 16,000 letters a year asking for help.

Dr. Sovietsky did say, however, that 6 to 8 percent of incoming patients are referred for help to psychiatrists.

The interview, accompanied by French cognac and fancy chocolates, was held in Dr. Kolgunenko's cluttered office, where the shelves were lined with French cosmetics and the walls displayed one small, good portrait of soviet founder Vladimir Lenin.

The waiting rooms, clean, quiet and uncrowded, were decorated with photographs of beautiful women clipped from Western fashion magazines.

On the walls, in place of the usual Communist Party exhortations, were the slogans: "There are no ugly people, just lazy people." "Everybody can and must be

Texas Corrections Chief Blasts Federal Court Interventionism

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A high state official had little good to say to Lubbockites Wednesday about the federal courts' intervening in state affairs. However, there was some praise for elected officials — some of them.

Calling federal courts a "true phenomenon of our democracy," Jim Estelle, head of the Texas Department of Corrections, said, "I do resent the incursion of the federal courts, not only on states' rights, but their playing loose and easy with matters clearly defined as the responsibility of legislative and executive branches of government."

Estelle, speaking at a noon luncheon, commended the state courts for their efforts, despite the federal courts. "Most (state) courts understand the alternatives available to them, and are using them wisely," he said.

"Yes, the (federal) courts are trying to run the show; with the same results they have had in managing their own administrative affairs — sorry." Estelle challenged his audience to try and find out the travel and expense records of federal judges, who, he says, contradict representative government because they are appointed to lifetime terms.

Estelle accused federal judges of sometimes encouraging suits from plaintiffs "who are not noted for veracity (and) who are allowed to make any allegation, however outlandish... and we must respond to baseless allegations with sworn depositions and testimony under oath."

"I have no problem with these conditions. I just believe my adversary or accuser should be held to the same rules and be penalized for bringing false accusations when so proven."

Estelle said he respected the "true politician," crediting them with the 202-year survival of this country's democracy. With the same breath, however, he said, "They have succeeded in spite of their colleagues who were corrupt, stupid and cursed with a knee-jerk response to every crisis or passing situation."

The state official said the success of California's "Proposition 13" represents a new brand of activism. He questioned its impact, saying, "We are some of the many targets by which our friends and neighbors hope to achieve their goal of not only a reduced tax level, but a more efficient and effective use of less of their dollar."

"However, I may personally sympathize with them, there ain't any free lunch."

Drawing his attention to the juvenile justice system, Estelle said the courts should not so readily go easy on a person guilty of a major crime just because he or she is a juvenile.

Age should not be a great factor in determining punishment of a convicted person, Estelle said, adding that the courts now have the resources to determine the nature of each individual and should do so. A victim is just as dead if he is killed by a juvenile as if he was murdered by an adult, he said.

Illegal Search Sets Convict Free

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An appeals court decision has resulted in a convicted armed robber being released from prison after serving less than two years of a seven-year sentence.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Jan. 12 denied a motion by the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's Office to rehear its November ruling that evidence in the case was obtained by illegal search and seizure.

Judge William R. Shaver of 140th District Court, where Willie Lee Faulk, now 20, was found guilty of aggravated robbery in February 1976, this week signed a release of Faulk from the penitentiary.

Judge Shaver said there would be no basis for a retrial without the pistol and money taken from the 7-11 Store at 4901 Memphis Drive on July 19, 1975.

The appeals court voted 2 to 1 in November that Faulk should have a new trial because the evidence was "illegally seized" by police who stopped Faulk after the robbery, the court ruled, without probable cause.

The majority opinion said the robbery victim, an attendant at the store, told police she had been robbed by "a young black male wearing a multi-colored shirt" and that no other description was given.

The court said "this even less than general description" was radioed to patrolman and that an officer stopped a car occupied by Faulk as it was traveling on 50th Street.

The court noted testimony that the officer made a U-turn to follow the car, which increased speed slightly but then reduced speed with no traffic or other offense being committed.

The pistol and money pouch containing $100 were found in the car.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I was in a supermarket looking at the magazine rack. I couldn't believe the trash I saw. I'm only a 13-year-old girl, but I know garbage when I see it.

I'm speaking particularly about the movie magazines and scandal sheet newspapers. Here are the headlines of some "hot stories."

"Farrah Catches Lee With Nude Beauty."

"Burt Reynolds Leaves Girlfriend In Delivery Room — 'I'll always love Dinah,'" says Burt. Dinah says, "We will take your baby for you."

"Cher's 'Kiss' Man Admits: 'I've Slept With 1,000 Women.' What Cher Will Do That No Other Woman Will."

I think you get the picture, Ann.

Who are these publishers anyway? Some of the actors and actresses they write about are very talented and likable people. Why is everyone so ready to smash a career and give them a bad reputation? Money is a good guess, but is there something more to it? — Appalled Cape Codder

Dear Codder: Your first guess is the right one. It's money. Unfortunately there are a lot of people who love garbage and the publishers are making a fortune. I've received hundreds of clippings from readers who are shocked at the stories in these cheap, sensational magazines and newspapers. The readers ask, "Ann, can this stuff be true?"

Often the stories are full of lies. Garbage publications pay their reporters astronomical salaries to put together stories on celebrities. Some sources are just plain crazy and the "journalist" knows it but he doesn't care if the stuff is juicy. Other sources are people who knew the star ever so slightly 25 years ago. It makes them feel important to be interviewed, so they make up salacious (and vicious) yarns. Still other informers are paid "for their time." (Bribed.) They are assured that their names will not be revealed so they feel safe when they lie. Their input is reported as fact, because they make great headlines and this is what attracts the suckers.

Why don't the celebrities sue? Because their attorneys wisely counsel against it. When a well-known person sues, it is the legitimate press and calls attention to the original story which is exactly what the scandal sheet is after — more publicity. If the scandal-mongers lose the suit — so what? It's considered an added "cost" of doing business and they couldn't care less — because business is awfully good.

Dear Ann Landers: Get off the Pollyanna kick and come down to earth, will you, please? I refer to your lambasting the gawkers who stood around and let the seven-year-old kid drown.

Too many good people get knifed trying to prevent a mugging. Too many nice guys get shot because they tried to stop a family quarrel. Too many good neighbors lose their lives trying to rescue kids from a fire caused when they were playing with matches. Too many heroes die trying to prevent some nut from committing suicide.

My motto is, "Everyone should watch out for his own hide. I'm a family man and the wife and kids at home need me. — An Admirer Of Yours

Dear Friend: Sorry, I'm no admirer of yours. This would be some world if everyone thought like you. Too many do already — unfortunately.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs — or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot — in moderation? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (28 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611. North elects to respond with just two clubs because he is void of his partner's suit. South's jump rebid to four spades shows a suit that can play opposite a void in partner's hand and with not more than one loser in that suit.

It is still hard to get to seven spades unless North can find out that South's spades are absolutely solid.

There is a way for him to do this. His five notrump is a variation of the old grand slam force. Normally the grand slam force asks partner to bid the grand slam if he holds two of the three top honors in trumps. But in this case, South already has guaranteed that good a trump suit. What North wants South to do is to bid seven spades with either an eight-suit to the ace-king-queen or seven-suit to ace-king-queen-jack. With seven to the ace-king-queen, he bids six spades.

This is a fine convention for experts or any pair that play together a lot. It is pretty dangerous to use with a strange partner.

Ask the Experts

A Canadian reader asks if we ever rebid a four-card suit when partner responds with two of a lower-valued one.

We do not and will show how to avoid this in tomorrow's article.

Well, honey child, you had a good idea. Do you know that when cards were first printed in the 18th century there were no jokers?

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please comment concerning alcoholism. Presumably some damage has been done to my liver, right? But I've never heard whether or not the liver can repair itself after one quits drinking. Will my liver just not get any worse, but remain in the condition it was at the time of quitting? How can you tell? What tests, etc.? — J.D.

Good news for alcoholics. The liver has a tremendous capacity to return to near normal with proper care. One of the hallmarks of alcoholism-related liver trouble is a fatty liver. Fat accumulates there, but it completely disappears once one quits. That might be evident even within a few weeks of quitting. About 75 percent of people with fatty livers are alcoholics. The other 25 percent comes from malnutrition, diabetes, Cushing's disease (a pituitary gland disorder) or use of certain drugs.

If you have other liver damage (cirrhosis), scarring may remain, but even so conditions will improve with abstinence. (Only about 8 percent of chronic drinkers progress to the point of cirrhosis.)

Various liver function and blood tests will tell the present state of your liver. Future ones will give the good news you can expect after you quit drinking. All things considered, getting out of an alcoholic bind will be rewarding physically and otherwise.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 64, a woman. I have no circulation problems that I know of, and my doctor tells me I am in A-1 shape for my age. I complain to him about the terrible cramping I get in my legs about a half hour after I lie down at night. I never have leg trouble during the daytime, so I find it difficult to understand why it should happen when I'm relaxed at night in bed. Can you enlighten me? — O.Y.D.

For all that we hear of high blood pressure with age, some older folks actually may find a lowering of pressure, and it may be a factor in many of the nighttime leg cramps so many readers write about.

Besides this normal lowering there may be a further dip at night when bodily activity declines. This all means that the total circulation to the leg muscles (especially such muscles) may fall below basic needs. The muscles are getting less circulation, less nutrition, and less oxygen, all carried by the blood.

A number of drugs can be prescribed. Often, a simple aspirin or two at bedtime might help. For other possibilities see the booklet, "Leg Cramps and Foot Pain." Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My sister discovered a lump on her neck and went to a doctor to have it checked. He told her he could tell by feeling it that it was not malignant, and for her not to worry. She's taking his advice, but I'm skeptical. Is it possible to tell by feeling a lump whether it is malignant or not? — S.B.

Doctors who have examined thousands of lumps over the years can tell with some accuracy. But your information is scanty. Could be a great many things—a thyroid nodule, a cyst, or a lymph node. A cyst would be soft and moveable, as opposed to another type of tumor that might be more or less stationary and part of surrounding tissue. However, no matter how skilled the doctor, none can tell for sure, so analysis of suspicious lumps is usually best. One would want to determine just what kinds of cells are involved. It certainly should be checked periodically.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was bothered with tightness in my throat which caused tension in the jaw joints. I also had occasional headaches. X-rays and examination about a year ago showed nothing wrong. Later on I had a hysterectomy. Then I seemed to be without the throat problems until about six months ago. My doctor suggested nerves as my problem. Now, more recently, I have felt superb, without menstrual problems or the throat discomfort. My question is, could it have been nerves all along? — Mrs. A.B.

If there was no disorder of the jaw found at the examination and if dental studies showed no tooth problems, it very well might have been due to tension. A condition called "bruxism" results from tension of the facial muscles. You probably were sufficiently relaxed after your surgery for this to have disappeared. You might be able to trace your former problems to episodes of emotional tension caused by physical problems prior to your surgery.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My mother is 55. She's been going to a doctor for years to donate blood. After this she claims she feels much better physically. We have heard that wealthy people go to doctors in Europe to have their blood cleaned. Just what results are they getting? Is this the same as what my mother has been doing? — Mrs. R.B.

Your mother wouldn't be going to a doctor to donate blood. For that, she would be going to a blood bank—a worthy activity. I might add. In certain disorders such as iron overload, blood must be drawn periodically to reduce circulating iron. This may be what you are referring to.

I have heard of some strange therapies from abroad, so I suspect you might find places where they would clean your blood. The only method I know of is dialysis in which machines act as filters. The chief medical use of dialysis is for those who have lost both kidneys or whose present kidneys have ceased functioning properly. In that case, the blood does, indeed, need cleaning. The machines can do that efficiently and indefinitely until a suitable donor is found to provide a substitute kidney to do the job. Otherwise, blood does not need cleaning. Normal kidneys do that remarkably well.

CONFIDENTIAL TO H.A. — Less than 15 percent of hiatal hernias (in the gullet where it passes through the diaphragm) require surgery, according to studies. If you cannot accept your doctor's evaluation, get a second opinion. Physicians in general are happy for you to have another opinion. As to your other question, yes, switching to less constricting girdles can have a noticeable effect on hiatal hernia, as can weight reduction when needed. Surgery is indicated only after all other efforts fail.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of the booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Schlafly Claims Equal Rights Harmful To Family Structure

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Phyllis Schlafly, who will debate the Equal Rights Amendment with Karen DeCrow tonight at the Municipal Auditorium, would describe herself not so much as an opponent of equal rights for women as a defender of the family.

Contacted by telephone at her home over the weekend, Mrs. Schlafly said she sees ERA as essentially anti-family.

"ERA will hurt women," she said. "It will take from them their protection from the draft, from combat duty; the right of a wife to be supported by her husband."

In addition, she said, ERA would make it illegal for all-girl or all-boy schools to continue to operate with any federal support, and, she pointed out, "some people want that kind of education."

Another objection to it, she said, is that it will take more power from the states to give to the federal government.

ERA, she said, "is in effect a constitutional mandate for absolute sameness of treatment in anything touched by government monies."

"Besides that," she added, "it transfers a great deal of power from the state to the federal government, and this I strongly oppose."

Asked whether she finds herself in opposition to all the goals of the women's movement, Mrs. Schlafly said, "I see their main goals as ERA, abortion, federal child care and homosexual privilege."

"I see these all as morally wrong and anti-family, just as the Houston Conference in November 1975 ended up presenting all morally wrong, anti-family proposals."

"ERA doesn't help in any area," Mrs. Schlafly said.

We asked Mrs. Schlafly whether the women's movement had any goals, such as equal pay for equal work, which she considered to be of value.

"Of course," she said, "I support equal pay for equal work, but what they are asking for is reverse discrimination. What they are saying in effect is that discrimination against women is the same as discrimination on the basis of race, and it is not the same...Women have not been treated like blacks."

Mrs. Schlafly, who is Roman Catholic, frequently finds herself allied with conservative religious elements in her crusade against ERA. Asked whether she finds this a comfortable position, she responded: "I think the very fundamental churches are often very family oriented, and these women realize that ERA will take away the legal rights of wives and throw them into the work force."

"I think," she added, "that ERA is opposed by religious-minded people of all faiths."

Mrs. Schlafly said she feels the family in Western society is "under severe attack."

"I see this especially among the young women on the college campuses I visit," she said. "Many of them don't plan to marry at all; others plan to marry but not to have children; still others, to have children but not to take care of them."

She said that while she feels most legislative interference tends to undermine the family rather than support it, she would not oppose public action which would strengthen the family unit. But she could not think, she said, of any such legislation under discussion.

What is needed, she said, is "to put an end to reverse discrimination, which encourages the second wage earner and puts the primary wage earner out of work," thus forcing still more women to go out to work rather than staying at home with their families.

Above all, she said, she would like to see the government "get out of our way and stop trying to take over jobs that do not belong to it, like baby-rearing."

She is most strongly opposed to tax funded child care programs, she said, explaining, "Institutional care is the worse

ERA Supporter Says Business Main Obstacle To Ratification

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Karen DeCrow, who will debate the Equal Rights Amendment with Phyllis Schlafly here tonight, feels that a thinking woman will easily see the need for legal action to deal with the "hundreds of federal and state laws which discriminate on the basis of sex — usually against women."

A practicing attorney who lectures frequently in this country and abroad, Miss DeCrow has authored "Sexist Justice," and "The Young Woman's Guide to Liberation."

Interviewed by telephone at her home in Syracuse, N.Y., Monday, she said she felt that any thinking woman who really understands the benefits ERA has to offer will support it.

She pointed out as an example the differences in pay between men and women, citing statistics showing the median income of white males at "something over $12,000, of minority males at over $8,000, of all women, at around $6,000."

"Women are earning half of what white men earn," she said. "We need to take steps — a lot of steps — to rectify this kind of thing. The most fundamental and basic step we can take is legal equality."

Miss DeCrow said that proponents of ERA are not asking for reverse discrimination as is sometimes charged. "What we are asking is that a baby born in the hospital this morning will have equal access to the society — politically, economically, socially — whether it is male or female."

Contrary to the charge that ERA is anti-family, Miss DeCrow said she feels it is pro-family. "I think it will strengthen the American family to have children growing up in a home where the mother and father are equal," she said. "I think this would be a fine, American strengthening of the family."

"I think it is cynical to say that if women are given full equality their husbands are going to leave them," Miss DeCrow said. "ERA has not been passed in 38 states because some women are threatened by it," she continued, "but because there are corporate interests in America which stand to lose a lot of money if they have to treat men and women equally."

Although a legislator voting against ERA may say that he is doing it because of the voters back home, because "housewives are coming to him on bended knee," Miss DeCrow said, "that has little to do with what I believe is the case. I believe he got the word that they cannot pass this thing because the chamber of commerce doesn't want them to."

Miss DeCrow said she does not see any diminishing of the women's movement. The problem has more to do with the historic reluctance of some states to pass social legislation, she said, than with any reaction to the movement at the present time.

"The states which have not ratified, for the most part, have always had trouble with social change legislation. Most of them never ratified women's suffrage. They never passed, or had trouble passing, civil rights legislation; they never passed the 18-year-old vote."

She said she feels the women's movement is continuing to grow. "I don't know what is happening in Lubbock," she said, "but the reaction to the Bella Abzug dismissal has created quite a hue and cry in this part of the country. Even the women's groups that we think of as traditional, such as the League of Women Voters and the Democratic Women, are speaking out," because they think the President is not supporting women's rights fully, she said.

"We have seen greater changes in the past ten years than in any time in American history," she said, "or even in any period I can think of in world history."

Miss DeCrow cited the state ERA law in Pennsylvania as an example of the protection which is needed for women. "In time of divorce," she said, adding, "They ask why we are promoting divorce — we are not promoting divorce, we are only recognizing the fact that one out of four marriages in this country is ending in divorce — in time of divorce, if you live in a state without community property laws, the husband owns everything. But with an ERA law like that in Pennsylvania, the unpaid work done by the housewife can be taken into account, which is a great advantage to her."

Asked whether she felt the movement was essentially a movement of upper class or professional women, she said that she thought it is more a mainstream kind of thing. "The middle-class woman," she said, "really stands to gain the most from equal rights."

Old, Prejudicial City Actions Cited At Trial

Testimony in the city's single-member district suit being tried in federal court assumed a new perspective Wednesday as attorneys for the city began presenting their case.

City Secretary Evelyn Gaffga, the first of two city employees testifying, said she was asked to scour city records for any ordinances dealing with racial discrimination such as separate city facilities according to race.

Mrs. Gaffga said she found no such ordinances, but found three areas discussed by past city councils which related to discrimination.

One instance was a 1923 council meeting during which three citizens asked the city to allow blacks to live only in a certain part of the city.

The council ordered the city attorney to write an ordinance which would restrict where blacks could live, Mrs. Gaffga said the minutes show, but there is no indication the council ever acted on the ordinance.

The ordinance was introduced into evidence by plaintiffs' attorneys on Monday.

A revision of the city code in 1955 includes no mention of the 1923 ordinance, so it was enacted, Mrs. Gaffga said, it was repealed in 1955.

On cross-examination by plaintiffs' attorney Dan Benson, Mrs. Gaffga admitted the record-keeping procedures in the city secretary's office were "very informal (in 1923) compared to the way we do it now."

In the deposition taken from former City Secretary Treva Phillips, she says there are "numerous" ordinances which were unsigned and undated, but enforced.

Mrs. Gaffga found other mentions of discrimination in discussions concerning bus service franchises in Lubbock, she said.

Franchises granted in 1925 and 1926 included the language "it is not necessary for the franchisee to carry persons of African descent" and specified those persons were not to ride in the same buses used by whites.

A 1929 franchise agreement said persons of "African descent" could use the same bus, but had to ride in a separate compartment in the rear of the bus, Mrs. Gaffga said.

However, a 20-year franchise granted in 1940 and a 10-year contract granted Lubbock Transit Company in 1950 contained no mention of segregated buses, she said.

The third mention of discrimination uncovered by Mrs. Gaffga in city files was a 1944 petition filed by five citizens, apparently black, who requested a separate waiting room in the public health office.

Mrs. Gaffga testified that in recent years the city council has created the Human Relations Commission (1972) and enacted an ordinance known as the public accommodations ordinance (1972), both of which deal with discrimination.

Jim Weston, director of community facilities for the city, testified concerning the geographic locations of city facilities.

Of 2,536 acres of developed park land in Lubbock, Weston said 78 percent, or 1,978 acres, is in "minority influenced areas," where the proportion of minorities exceeds the citywide average.

According to the 1970 census, such areas constitute 38.9 percent of the population.

In "minority areas," where the population of blacks and Mexican-Americans exceeds 38 percent, 76.26 percent, or 1,934 acres, of the total park land in the city is located.

Predominantly black areas in the city contain 10.05 percent of the total city population but 29.34 percent of the park land, Weston said.

Mexican-American neighborhoods encompass 17.61 percent of the city's population, but are the site of 46 percent of the park land, he said.

Weston similarly detailed the locations of other city facilities such as senior citizens centers, community centers and tennis courts, with figures indicating the majority of city facilities are in minority influenced or minority areas of the city.

Weston also testified some areas in south and west Lubbock are without any city facilities such as parks.

Using an overlay map showing the location of the residences of the mayors and city council members between 1970 and 1978, Weston said there appeared to be no relationship between the location of city facilities and the homes of the city officials.

On cross-examination, plaintiffs' attorney Mark Hall noted the minority influenced and minority areas "cover a little less than half the geographic area" in the city.

Hall questioned Weston concerning the decision process about the location of a park and extracted from Weston the admission the city council has little to do with where city facilities such as parks are located.

Asked if the upkeep of different parks is equal, Weston said "yes," but said facilities are not equal at different parks.

Hall questioned Weston about possible discrepancies in the maintenance of different parts of the city cemetery, Weston said the grass is not as green in all areas because of an "inadequate irrigation system" the city is replacing.

Hall also noted much of the park acreage in predominantly black and Mexican-American areas is in the Canyon Lakes, which Weston said was funded primarily with federal Community Development and Revenue Sharing monies.

Hall's cross-examination will continue at 9 a.m. today when the trial resumes. Observers now are predicting the city may finish presenting its side of the case by Tuesday or Wednesday.

Earlier Wednesday, a Texas A&M professor testified it is "unlikely" a minority candidate ever will be elected to the city council under the city's present at-large system.

Charles A. Johnson, an assistant professor in political science, said his study of the voting behavior of minorities in Lubbock led him to conclude the city would need to be drawn into single member districts to insure adequate minority representation on the council.

Johnson is the "expert" witness for the plaintiffs in a suit seeking to establish single member voting districts for Lubbock city council elections.

Although Johnson admitted a minority council member "theoretically" could be elected, he said "as a practical matter under the at-large system it is unlikely."

It is possible a minority candidate could be elected in an election in which the turnout is "very low" and in which a minority candidate is supported by non-minority voters, he said.

However, Johnson said his studies showed that is unlikely to occur.

Although minority candidates receive an average of 63 percent of the vote in predominantly minority precincts, he said those same candidates receive an average of only 11 percent of the vote in non-minority precincts.

Johnson constructed "hypothetical districts" and determined that Maria Mercado, an unsuccessful city council candidate last year, would have won a seat on the council without a runoff "in 13 of 17 district races."

Johnson's report concludes "minority voter preferences are consistently overwhelmed by non-minority preferences" in city council elections and the at-large system "tends to dilute the voting strength of minorities."

Johnson also concluded the at-large system lowers voter registration and turnout among minority voters and that at-large elections "contribute to the defeat of minority candidates and indirectly lower and limit minority participation in local government."

"Minority participation in local elections has been significantly lower than non-minority participation due to the virtual impossibility of a minority candidate being elected in the present at large system," the report says.

Johnson also testified concerning the responsiveness of Lubbock's city government and concluded that responsiveness would be improved with council members elected from single member districts.

Johnson said it appeared Lubbock city officials were responsive to minority needs "only after confrontation," such as demonstrations and that there is no pattern of "continuing responsiveness."

"Perhaps the city ought to be continually responsive, rather than after a lawsuit or a demonstration," Johnson said.

Single-member districts "tend to enforce the sense of accountability and responsibility" of council members, he said. Not only would minorities benefit from single-member districts, he said, "all areas of the city would each have a single representative to call upon with problems."

Johnson also testified there is no evidence that a single-member district or a ward system creates corruption in municipal government, and noted "members of the U.S. House of Representatives technically are elected from such districts."

Texas Supreme Court Upholds Sign Ordinance

A-J News Services

The Texas Supreme Court has upheld Lubbock's 1975 ordinance restricting billboards to commercial and manufacturing areas within the city.

Although the Outdoor Advertising Association of America had argued in a "friend of the court" brief that upholding the ordinance could destroy the billboard industry in Texas, the high court Wednesday said it could find "no reversible error" in a decision of the Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals.

Representatives for Lubbock Poster Co., which had sought to have the ordinance declared unconstitutional, declined to comment on the decision.

The company's attorney also could not be reached for comment about a possible appeal.

Besides restricting billboards to areas zoned commercial and manufacturing, the ordinance imposes size, spacing, height, location and setback requirements.

"This should settle it finally," said assistant city attorney Ken Jones today. "There is one possibility — if they (Lubbock Poster Co.) feel there is constitutional grounds, it could be carried to the U.S. Supreme Court."

The ordinance, which gives businesses until Jan. 1, 1982, to reduce the size of advertising billboards to meet square-footage and location restrictions, was originally upheld in April, 1977, by a Lubbock district court in a case brought by Lubbock Poster Co.

Following the district court decision, the case was appealed to the Seventh Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo, which, in turn, upheld the ordinance in July 1978. The case was then appealed to the Texas Supreme Court.

"This should give us the strength to carry out the ordinance," commented City Manager Larry Cunningham.

Asked whether the city would now approach the enforcement of the ordinance in a more confident manner, Cunningham said, "We have been acting as though it had been in effect since the Amarillo Court of Appeals upheld the appeal."

The Lubbock Poster Co., which owns a large number of billboards in Lubbock, had attacked the ordinance as a violation of several constitutional rights, including the right of free expression.

Spokesmen for the company could not be contacted this morning, but in its appeal to the Texas Supreme Court, the firm said, "The practical effect of the ordinance almost entirely destroys the business of Lubbock Poster."

The civil appeals opinion, upheld by the Supreme Court, said the ordinance was a reasonable exercise of the city's police power.

It noted that while the company valued the billboards at $716,000, all would be fully depreciated by 1982. It also observed that the firm relocates 20 percent of its billboards annually as part of the normal course of business and that the ordinance permitted billboards in no less than 595 locations.

Rejecting Lubbock Poster's contention that the ordinance abridged First Amendment rights, the court said, "Although commercial speech is accorded First Amendment safeguards, the manner in which commercial advertising is disseminated is subject to regulation."

It added that Lubbock had attempted to regulate only the time, place and manner of outdoor advertising, not its content.

The Outdoor Advertising Association of America filed a long "friend of the court" brief.

Charges Unclear Against Driver

ROBY (UPI) — A grand jury Wednesday issued several sealed indictments which made it unclear whether charges had been filed against a truck driver involved in a Dec. 8 truck-school bus wreck that resulted in five deaths.

Russell Carroll, assistant district attorney for the 32nd Judicial District, said he would have no comment on the sealed indictments until arrests were made.

Three indictments were unsealed, but the truck driver's name was not among them, a Fisher County district clerk said.

A bus carrying girl and boy basketball players to a tournament in Hermleigh was demolished Dec. 8 in a broadside crash with an oilfield supply truck. The crash occurred in sub-freezing weather on U.S. 180, midway between Roby and Snyder in West Texas.

A number of lawsuits since have been filed against the 21-year-old truck driver and his employer, Cardinal Surveys Co. of Odessa. Twenty persons were injured in the crash.

Records obtained after the collision indicated the truck driver had been convicted of 13 traffic violations, dating to 1975, before the crash.

An Austin spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said later his office also could find nothing to indicate the

UFO Student Charges Cover-Up On Saucers

PHOENIX (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency and Air Force conspired to cover up surveillance of military bases by unidentified flying objects, a man who has studied UFOs contends.

William H. Spaulding, director of Ground Saucer Watch, says he can back the charge with 1,000 pages of documents obtained last month from the CIA through a Freedom of Information Act suit. Further documents, confiscated film and residue from UFO landings have been requested in a pending portion of the federal suit, he said.

"We have information that categorically prove the government is lying and that significant findings have been suppressed," said Spaulding, an engineer for AirResearch, a Phoenix manufacturer of aerospace components. "We have five ex-intelligence officers who will testify to this coverup."

Latest documents indicate that UFOs flew over U.S. nuclear installations of the Strategic Air Command on Nov. 7, 8 and 9, 1975, Spaulding said. Radar tracked the objects, and one was described in a military wire message as "a 100-foot-diameter sphere and appeared to have craters around the outside," he said.

One base reported it was "buzzed by a bright object the size of a car at an altitude of 1,000 to 2,000 feet."

Each object eluded military jets but the Air Force wrote off the incidents as unauthorized overflights by unknown helicopters, Spaulding said, questioning whether helicopters could outrun supersonic fighters.

Spaulding said one document concerns an incident where two Soviet MIG fighters were scrambled to investigate an unidentified object hovering over Cuba.

"When the jets came to within five miles of the UFO, it fired at the lead jet, disintegrating it before the eyes of the wing man who returned to base terrified for his life," Spaulding said. "It's these types of incidents that the public should know about, and that's the basis of our suit against the CIA."

Pair Accused In Child Abuse Case Wins Appeal

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the murder convictions of two parents in a child abuse case Wednesday but upheld lengthy sentences assessed in the deaths of three other children.

Harold and Nancy Ronk of Dallas should not have been charged with murder in the burning death of their 2½-year-old son, the appeals court said in throwing out their life sentences.

It was the second time they won an appeal in the case. The couple was charged with burning their son Heath "in an unknown manner" in August 1974 and then failing to take him to a doctor.

The appeals court earlier threw out a conviction and 20-year sentence because the indictment charging the couple with injury to a child was defective.

A Dallas County grand jury then indicted the couple for murder. The appeals court said the Ronks should not have been tried on a more serious offense the second time.

"A person convicted of an offense is entitled to pursue his statutory right to appeal without apprehension that ... the state will retaliate by substituting a more serious charge for the original one," the judges said.

The case was returned to Dallas for a possible third trial.

The court affirmed the convictions of Clara and Donald Dean Holquist, Alford Reese Norton and Alfred Harold Tanksley.

The Holquists were convicted of beating a 10-year-old adopted daughter, who died of internal injuries. They were sentenced to 99-year prison terms.

The husband and wife gave conflicting stories at their separate Beaumont trials but were represented by the same lawyer.

Appeals Court Affirms Four Convictions

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has acted on a number of cases from Lubbock County, affirming convictions in four of them.

Jesse Carl Jackson's conviction and five-year sentence for possession of a short-barrel firearm was upheld, over Jackson's contentions that prosecutors did not show he actually possessed the sawed-off shotgun or that the weapon is a "short-barrel firearm."

However, the court said the object Jackson threw from a car during a high-speed police chase through Lubbock was, indeed, a sawed-off shotgun, and that it was in Jones' possession before the chase when he was observed wearing a stocking mask and peering into a local 7-11 store.

The court also affirmed the revocation of the eight-year probation sentence of Robert W. Moore, convicted of burglary of a building.

Moore's attorney has said Moore's appeal was "wholly frivolous and without merit."

The court also affirmed the conviction of James Richard Hensley for driving while intoxicated. Hensley attempted to overturn his three-day jail term and $75 fine, but the court ruled nothing was presented for review in the case.

Rogelio Deluna Jr.'s appeal on his conviction of aggravated robbery and 60-year sentence was abated.

His case was remanded to Lubbock County to give Deluna time to file another brief in the case.

Herchel McKnight's assault conviction was affirmed. He was assessed a 30-day jail sentence and a $500 fine.

McKnight was arrested for intoxication after he began breaking glassware at the home of Gloria Brown, court records show. Then McKnight struck one officer with his fist, records state.

McKnight testified he was not intoxicated, and that he had broken the glassware accidentally. He also contended he was the victim of an unprovoked attack by the two deputies.

The appeals court, however, denied his only point of error, saying the trial court did not err in overruling a motion for continuance. Court records revealed no such motion.

The court ruled it cannot reverse and remand the case of Leroy Brown for a reassessment of punishment in his 1960 conviction and 99-year sentence for assault with intent to rape.

Billie Sol Estes Says Prosecutors Reneged On Deal

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Paroled swindler Billie Sol Estes wants out of his plea bargain with the federal government, saying the Justice Department did not live up to its part of the deal.

Estes pleaded guilty in October to conspiring to conceal assets from the Internal Revenue Service and plotting to defraud investors. In return, federal lawyers agreed not to prosecute members of his family and he ask the U.S. Parole Commission not to retroactively revoke his parole.

In papers filed with U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon Tuesday, Estes' attorney contends the Justice Department did not meet all requirements of the bargain, therefore Estes has the right to withdraw his plea.

Mahon said Wednesday he had not had time yet to study the documents.

Estes was paroled in 1971 on a 15-year fraud conviction stemming from a scheme built around non-existent fertilizer tanks.

The notorious swindler was scheduled to be sentenced by Mahon in accordance with the plea bargain on Friday.

yer. The court said Mrs. Holquist "was fully aware" of the possible conflict of interest in using the same lawyer.

A McKinney jury sentenced Norton to 99 years after his 3-year-old stepson died of a fractured skull in 1976. Norton argued there was not enough evidence to convict him on a murder charge.

The court disagreed, noting that the same day Christopher died, his year-old stepbrother Tony entered a Dallas hospital with a broken hip.

Norton's sister-in-law said she was told Christopher had fallen out of bed although he slept on a mattress on the floor. She also said Norton told her he intended "to kill them all."

Tanksley's 3-year-old daughter died in 1976 at Parkland Hospital in Dallas after a severe beating. A Dallas jury sentenced him to life imprisonment.

The victim and her 3-year-old sister Felicia lived with their mother but were visiting Tanksley for several weeks when the younger girl died. Rebecca Glasgow was living with Tanksley and testified that he "disciplined" the girls by keeping them awake from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. by hitting them with a stereo cord.

On Oct. 27, the younger girl was placed in a tub of cold water after she soiled her pants, Mrs. Glasgow said. Tanksley beat the girl's back with a coat hanger and hit her on the legs until she fell down, the woman said.

The girl, Latcha, started breathing "funny," the woman said, and "was so limp I was scared that if I tried to pick her up, one of her bones might break or something."

Tanksley took the girl to the hospital, where she died the next morning. In other cases, the court:

—Reversed Robert Dean McClure's murder conviction in his wife's death. An Ector County jury sentenced him to 99 years in prison. The court said testimony about his wife's infidelity should have been presented to the jury. The case was returned to Odessa for possible new trial.

—Affirmed Shirley Mae Thomas's murder conviction in the 1975 shooting death of a Georgia man in Dallas for the Arkansas-Georgia Cotton Bowl game. She was sentenced to 50 years on the murder charge and another 30 years on attempted murder.

According to court records, Miss Thomas persuaded four men to go to a motel room and disrobe. She took off her clothes and then pulled a .22-caliber pistol and started shooting.

Randy Marlowe died and two other men were injured.

Tax Credit For Child Care Due Explanation During Tax Class

In past years there has been an increase in the number of working mothers and single-parent families. Consequently, the cost of child care has had a significant bearing on the family budget.

A tax credit is now available to parents who pay someone to watch their children while they work. The child care tax credit enables parents to cut their taxes by $400 for one child and $800 for two or more.

Computing the credit is not difficult. Figure 20 percent of the first $2,000 spent during the year on child care for one child. For two or more, figure 20 percent of the first $4,000 spent.

The "child Care Credit," officially titled the Credit for Child and Dependent Care expenses, has two major uses. Although most claimants are parents of small children, the credit is also available to working persons of who must pay for care of a disabled spouse or other dependent.

To qualify for the credit, you must have maintained a household with one child under 15 years of age or a disabled dependent, have paid the expense to enable you to be gainfully employed, file a joint return if married and have made the child care payment to persons other than dependents or relatives. Payments made to relatives can qualify if the relative is not a dependent and the services qualify as employment subject to social security tax.

Taxpayers making child care payments and working part-time or attending school full time are also entitled to the child care credit. However, one of the parents must be working at the time.

These and other questions concerning 1978 your tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education program. This public service course, jointly sponsored by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service, will be offered Feb. 5 and 6 from 7 to 10 p.m.

To register for the Taxpayer Education program, simply fill out the registration form below. Money and registration forms must be mailed by Jan. 20.

Classes will be held at Lubbock High School, Abilene, Evans, Smylie Wilson and O.L. Slaton Junior High, Roomer School, Plainview School, Floydada High School and Littlefield High School.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I will retire in a year or two and we will have ample income. About 29 years ago I started investing in a growth mutual fund, always leaving the dividends and capital gains distributions in to buy additional shares. My broker has been of great assistance in arranging a good portfolio of retirement investments but we differ regarding this fund.

A. I feel the money in the mutual fund should be invested in either municipal or corporate bonds for additional income. He maintains I should keep the fund. What is your viewpoint?

A. The same as your broker's. Although the standard advice for most people nearing retirement is to switch into bonds and other fixed-income investments, you are in a bit of a different situation.

You make the point that you will have ample income. Unless you will be in an income tax bracket of 32 percent or higher, you shouldn't be interested in the tax-free but relatively low interest from municipal bonds. Nor will you need the higher income available from corporate bonds.

The 5,000 shares of that mutual fund—worth $6.7 a share as I write this—will give you $33,750 invested where it hopefully will grow in value to offset inflation. The fund you named in your letter has done that over the period you have invested in it.

Also, if you cash in your fund shares now, your profit on that investment would be subject to a capital gains tax bite—leaving you less money to invest elsewhere.

I hope you realize that if your broker went along with your thinking, he would get commissions on the purchase of the bonds. This column gets all kinds of complaints about brokers. So, it's nice to use a letter showing a broker has his customer's best interest at heart.

Q. You mention "no-load" mutual funds for individuals. But what about small businesses with pension plans? My husband has a business with about 15 employees. We estimate that the business will put about $10,000 a year into an employee benefit plan. About $5,000 a month would pay for insurance premiums and the other $5,000 would go into an "income" mutual fund.

A mutual fund we have been considering would file Internal Revenue Service and other forms and would provide monthly statements to all participants. Do you think the commissions of this "load" fund are too expensive for the services provided? Do no-load funds provide similar services?

A. Many no-load funds have plans similar to the one you sketched out. But you will not get the personal service of having a fund representative calling on you to answer questions, handle details and such.

The only difference between no-load funds—which sell shares directly to investors—and those funds which charge a commission is that the load funds sell through brokers and salespeople. For businesses and individuals who need and/or want face-to-face contact with a fund representative, the no-load funds are obviously not the answer.

Q. I have 35 warrants which will expire Feb. 1, 1979. Each warrant gives me the right to obtain one share of the same company's common stock by turning in the warrant and $46. That stock is currently trading around $11.50 a share. What is the advantage of buying at $46?

A. None. That's why those warrants are currently trading at "1-64"—about one and a half cents a share. Unless the market price of that stock zooms above $46 a share on or before the Feb. 1, 1979, expiration date of the warrants, those warrants will become worthless.

The only reason those warrants have even a nominal market value is the dim hope that the stock might go up.

Westinghouse To Build Super Generator

NEW YORK (AP) — Using technology that combines a basic law of physics with modern technology, Westinghouse Electric Corp. Thursday said it would build the first commercial version of a new type of electrical generator, which will be cheaper, smaller and more efficient than conventional generators.

Called a superconducting generator, the device works on the principle that very cold metal—in this case 452 degrees below zero—has almost no resistance to electricity.

Westinghouse estimates the device will cost about 20 percent less to build than generators available now and could be in 50 percent of the nation's new generating plants—both nuclear and fossil-fueled—by the turn of the century.

"This could have a real impact on the inflation of electricity costs," said Eugene J. Cattabiani, Westinghouse executive vice president for power generation. "Annual fuel savings for a single large

China Announces Invention Policy

TOKYO (AP) — China announced a new policy toward inventors Wednesday and said it is necessary to give them monetary rewards so that society as a whole benefits from their work.

Under the former leaders, material incentives were frowned on and ideological purity was put above all else. Enthusiasm for socialism was supposed to be enough to bring forth all-out efforts from all Chinese without any special rewards.

The official Hsinhua news agency said rewards would be given for new, advanced, and practical inventions that would range from $625 to $6,250 with particularly important inventions receiving special prizes.

An editorial from the official newspaper People's Daily was broadcast by Hsinhua which said the scarcity of inventions and discoveries in China was one reason why per capita national income in China lagged behind even most Third World countries.

plant of one million kilowatts would be equal to the energy in more than 100,000 barrels of oil." That's about $1.4 million a year.

"Over the life of a coal-burning power plant, the dollar value of the fuel savings should about equal the cost of the generator; for a nuclear plant, the savings would be about 75 percent of the generator cost because of the lower cost of nuclear fuel," he said. Westinghouse is building the generator in cooperation with the Electric Power Research Institute, an industry research group. The $19 million device will be shipped to an as-yet-undetermined utility in 1983. About the same size as a small panel truck, it will generate 270,000 kilowatts of electricity—enough to power a metropolitan area the size of Miami or Milwaukee.

In a conventional generator, conductors in a spinning rotor create a revolving magnetic field that produces a flow of electricity from conductors in a surrounding cylinder.

The superconducting generator encases the rotor somewhat like a vacuum bottle and cools it to 452 degrees below zero using liquid helium.

At that temperature, there is no resistance to the flow of electric current and therefore little energy is wasted.

"The economic savings comes not only from the fuel savings," said James H. Parker, a member of the research team that developed the superconducting generator, "but also comes from the fact that because the efficiency is higher, we get more output from a given plant and the cost of building a plant per kilowatt is less."

This technology was little more than a dream until the 1960s, when alloys were developed that would withstand high electricity and high magnetic fields at extremely low temperatures.

Test versions have been built and operated, but the one planned is the biggest so far, according to Parker, who said other companies and nations are working on similar technology on a smaller scale. Only Russia is believed to be ready to build a commercial-sized superconducting generator, he added.

Parker said, however, that the Westinghouse device "will probably be the first utility-size machine of this type in the world."

Air Midwest Welcomed By Air Board

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche Journal Staff
Air Midwest formally was welcomed into Lubbock by the Airport Board Wednesday night.

The regional airline, based in Wichita, Kan., will begin service to Lubbock Feb. 15, linking the Hub City with Albuquerque, Denver and Kansas City. The airline also will serve Hobbs, Roswell and Carlsbad, N.M., Lamar, Colo., Garden City, Dodge City, Wichita, Hutchinson, Great Bend, Hays, Goodland and Independence, Kan.

In other business, Board Chairman George Miller approved a motion to apply to the Federal Aviation Administration for a financial grant to finance development of a new master plan for Lubbock International Airport.

The grant would provide funds that would help the city pay for a study of potential airport expansion.

Among the items under consideration for the new plan are a new parallel north-south runway, further terminal expansion, and a relief airport. The study is part of the first phase of a 20-year review of possible expansion of the Lubbock airport.

The board heard progress reports pertaining to ongoing construction at the airport. A new taxiway, already in limited operation, is expected to be completed by the end of February. A fence still must be built and some lights installed, the board was told.

A new two-story parking building is expected to be completed by Thanksgiving and, according to board members, it could be finished as soon as September. The new facility will alleviate overflowing parking lots and provide some covered parking.

A new baggage delivery system will be decided upon sometime this year. The board will advertise for bids before deciding on the new system, which is expected to cost approximately $100,000.

Board members also approved:
—The renewal of an agricultural lease with Texas A&M University for land bordering the airport to the north. The rent-free lease calls for A&M to maintain about 20 acres of undeveloped land for five years, with a five-year option.

Refugees Invited To Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Appealing to Iowans to "open their hearts," Gov. Robert Ray on Wednesday invited 1,500 Indochinese refugees to settle in the state.

"With so many dying or languishing in refugee camps, I believe we Americans have a moral obligation to provide assistance. We cannot sit by while innocent people suffer and die," Ray said.

Ray said he had been thinking for some time about what the state might do to help the Vietnamese who are fleeing that country.

He said he was motivated to take action Tuesday evening after watching a CBS television documentary on the Boat People who have been fleeing Vietnam aboard a variety of small ships and boats.

Ray said he hopes to have sponsors, jobs and housing arranged before the refugees begin coming to Iowa.

He said Iowa should receive federal money to help in the effort, but said the state should have no real problems in settling the approximately 200 families who will be moving here.

Ray aide Kenneth Quinn, a state department foreign service officer on loan to the governor's staff, said about 3,000 Indochinese refugees already have been resettled in Iowa under earlier assistance programs.

Gov. Ray Tuesday evening after watching a CBS television documentary on the Boat People who have been fleeing Vietnam aboard a variety of small ships and boats.

Ray said he hopes to have sponsors, jobs and housing arranged before the refugees begin coming to Iowa.

Cozy Spot Legalized

BALTIMORE (AP) — A couple who legally gained a few private minutes below decks of the tugboat Constellation was given the chance to spend four Saturdays aboard the historical ship legally.

Henry C. Catalas, 22, of Towson, and Maria H. Marquardt, a college student from Severna Park, were apparently so involved in each other, they failed to notice that they tripped a silent alarm when they jumped a fence and found a cozy spot on the vessel.

The two were surprised by police dogs and a uniformed officer.

Both appeared in Central District Court Tuesday, where Judge Joseph A. Catalas was told the couple had been "visiting" downtown Baltimore's Dec. 23 when they decided to spend some time afloat.

Catalas found them guilty of trespassing, but the Constellation's director said no damage was done to the vessel.

Therefore, Catalas told Catalas and Miss Marquardt they would grant probation before judgment, providing they each spend four Saturdays before July 1 as "volunteers" on the historic frigate, now used as a tourist attraction.

Wedding Ring Cuts Taxes
CAYUGA HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) — Because of changing social mores, the village of Cayuga Heights may have to change its sewer tax.

The village charges a lower rate for a family than it does for unrelated people living together. That policy came into dispute when a landlord told the village board he had no right to ask his tenants if they were legally married.

"If I have a couple living in an apartment, I don't think it's my place to ask them if they're married, or not," said Rocco Lucente, the landlord protesting the village's system for sewer charges.

Deserter Made Knight

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (AP) — The Narragansett Town Council doesn't hold a grudge against Royal Little, even though he moved to the Bahamas last year to avoid what he called high taxes in Rhode Island.

The Town Council on Monday made Little, who founded Texton Inc. in Providence, a member of the "Knights of the Rockingham Arch," a society established last year to honor public-minded citizens.

There is no such thing as the Rockingham Arch, but councilmen say "it sounds like something someone should be a knight of."

Little ever returns to Narragansett for a visit, the council will address him as Sir Royal.

Carter Betting On Dallas
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter isn't saying who he favors in the Super Bowl game next Sunday, but his mother let it slip: Dallas over Pittsburgh.

Reporters asked Carter after his nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday which team he favored.

All Carter would say is he had a bet with his mother, Miss Lillian, who was present for the news conference.

So, which way was his mother betting? One enterprising reporter belittled his question to Miss Lillian over perhaps half the length of a football field as she walked to the White House from the Executive Office Building, where the news conference was held.

"I'll give you Pittsburgh and six points," said the reporter.

"I'm already betting on Pittsburgh," said the president's mother.

Buyer To Assume Control Of KFYO

Seaton Publishing Company Inc., headquartered at Manhattan, Kan., will assume ownership and operation of KFYO radio station, the oldest in the Lubbock market, Feb. 1.

The Federal Communications Commission approved the sale of the station, now licensed to KFYO Inc., a subsidiary of Plains Radio Broadcasting Company of Amarillo, on Monday.

Edward L. Seaton, executive vice president of Seaton Publishing Company, which is associated with the ownership of seven daily newspapers and five broadcast properties, said the phenomenal growth of Lubbock and the area and its prospects for the future attracted his organization to the purchase.

Gorilla Set For Super Bowl

ATLANTA (AP) — Willie B., the 450-pound gorilla whose television set was stolen, now has two sets on which to watch the Super Bowl.

A Florida couple, who heard news accounts of the theft, sent the lowland gorilla a replacement Tuesday with a note reading, "Enjoy the Super Bowl."

Then, police Thursday recovered the stolen set, which had been given to Willie B. as a Christmas present.

Two maintenance employees of the Atlanta Zoo were arrested and charged with larceny, said Sgt. C.O. Morris. He identified them as Fletcher McFarlin, 27 and Lonnie Daugherty, 29, both of Atlanta.

Willie B., the zoo's best known resident, was without a TV for several days after the set was taken Saturday-morning from its mount outside his cage.

Cambodia Army Regroups, Continues Fight

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported Wednesday between Vietnamese forces and units of the resurging Cambodian army that looked as though it had been crushed in the Vietnamese blitz that drove the Phnom Penh government into the countryside.

Thai and Western analysts in Bangkok reported sharp battles and heavy air strikes in and around Kompong Som, Cambodia's only deep-water port, and at Kampong, another port and provincial capital on the Gulf of Thailand.

Fighting also raged near the naval base at Ream and along sections of Highway 4, which connects Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, with Kompong Som, 136 miles to the southwest, which was captured on Monday by troops loyal to the Phnom Penh government of Premier Pol Pot, the sources said.

The Vietnamese invaders installed a pro-Hanoi provisional government of Cambodian Communists in Phnom Penh on Jan. 7, replacing Pol Pot and the other Khmer Rouge leaders who had ruled Cambodia since the Communist victory in 1975.

Rebels of the pro-Vietnamese Cambodian National United Front for National Salvation have claimed repeatedly that the entire country was in their hands. But the government has pledged to carry on a guerrilla war. There were unconfirmed reports that its leaders have set up headquarters in the mountains of southwest Cambodia or on some of the offshore islands.

Sam San, Pol Pot's ambassador to Laos, said in Bangkok Wednesday that 4,000 Russian advisers are operating with the Vietnamese invasion force in Cambodia and that he has photographs and other evidence to back the claim. He told reporters here before flying to Peking that Pol Pot's government would wage a long guerrilla war against the invaders.

Teng Sary, deputy premier in the Pol Pot government, plans to leave Peking soon to help lead guerrilla war against the Vietnamese and the new Cambodian rulers, the Philippine News Agency reported Wednesday in a dispatch from Peking. Teng Sary was plucked from Cambodia by a Thai helicopter last week and saved from capture by the Vietnamese.

The Philippine agency said forces loyal to Pol Pot could draw arms and ammunition from "stockpiles built up in secluded areas in anticipation of the anti-Pol Pot offensive."

According to the Western sources, Vietnamese and Cambodian naval units were battling northwest of Kompong Som around the offshore islands to which troops of the routed Cambodian army reportedly fled.

The government radio, believed broadcasting from southern China, claimed Pol Pot and President Khieu Samphan were personally directing the Cambodian counter-attacks against the Vietnamese. It also reported new fighting around Phnom Penh.

"Although the Vietnamese were able to enter Phnom Penh they are now encircled and facing a people's war directed by our revolutionary troops in every corner of Cambodia," the broadcast said.

China, the Pol Pot government's only important ally during its years in power, has promised to aid the fleeing Cambodians.

Phnom Penh's new rebel leaders announced that all representatives abroad of the former government have "completely lost their representative character and must cease their activities."

But it said diplomats should stay at their posts until further orders and that "those with meritorious service will be commended and used appropriately" while "violators will be punished under the law of the People's Republic of Kampuchea."

SPK, the news agency of the rebel government, said restoration of Phnom Penh is under way after nearly four years of neglect by the government and that its soldiers and "city residents are now engaged in the work of cleaning up the debris."

Lombardi Finalist Selected Tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — Oklahoma's Greg Roberts doesn't like to watch football games and UCLA's Jerry Robinson wishes he could have played basketball but Thursday night they'll be among four finalists for the Lombardi Award as the nation's outstanding college lineman.

Roberts, an offensive guard, and Robinson, a linebacker, both were first team Associated Press All-American selections. Roberts earlier won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top interior lineman.

Penn State defensive tackle Bruce Clark, the Outland runnerup, and Matt Millen, also are finalists for the Lombardi, named in honor of the former Green Bay and Washington coach who died of cancer.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements will be the principal speaker at a $100-per-plate dinner Thursday night and will announce the winner. Proceeds from the dinner go to the American Cancer Society for research.

Roberts, a native of Nacogdoches, Texas, is the sixth Oklahoma player to make the Lombardi finals but he wasn't too impressed with football as a youngster and still doesn't like to watch games on television.

"To me it was just a violent game," said Roberts, termed one of Oklahoma's quickest linemen. "I didn't start liking it until I got into high school.

"I watch game film but I really think just watching games is boring. I like to play football but it's not all that interesting to watch."

Robinson, a native Californian, opted for a basketball career as a youngster.

"I hated football at first," Robinson said. "I was a basketball player. If I had it to do all over again and could grow another inch and a half, I'd probably be a basketball player.

"It's more exciting than football. You're out there close to the crowd, wearing sweat bands on your wrists. Linebackers don't wear sweat bands."

Previous winners of the Lombardi Award are Jim Stillwagon, Ohio State in 1971, followed by Walt Patuzski, Notre Dame; Rich Glover, Nebraska; John Hicks, Ohio State; Randy White, Maryland; Leroy Sellmon, Oklahoma; Wilson Whitley, Houston and Ross Browner, Notre Dame.

Roberts and Robinson arrived Wednesday for the Thursday night dinner. Clark and Millen are scheduled to arrive Thursday.

Frosh, Transfers Fill Out UT Track

AUSTIN (AP) — Six midterm enrollees and six high school state champions are expected to offset the apparent loss of Olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones to the Texas Longhorn track team.

One of the most highly touted recruits is Oskar Jakobsson, an electrician in Iceland.

Jakobsson, 21, has thrown the college shot 81 feet, the discus 208 feet and the javelin 254 feet.

"We had him in for a visit at the (Texas) A&M football game and he liked the school," said track coach Cleburne Price.

"He had a couple of other schools contact him, but he said he got a map down and picked Texas because it was the farthest south."

Price had a scare, however, when he received a clipping from an Icelandic newspaper saying Jakobsson was going to "Texas AM," which was all Price could make out since he does not read Icelandic.

"Texas AM" turned out to mean "Texas, America."

Coming in with Jakobsson is Michael Paul, a 200-400 meter man from Essex, N.J., County College and four runners from Ranger Junior College who failed to qualify for admission in the fall — Owen Hamilton, Dennis Henry, Ben Omadiale and Ian Seale. Hamilton was the national junior college champion in the 800.

Paul is from Trinidad. Hamilton, Henry and Seale are from Jamaica and Omadiale is from Nigeria. Henry, Seale and Omadiale are 200-400 meter men.

The 1978 high school champions are James Wheatfall, Fort Worth Eastern Hills, Class AAAA 110 and 300-meter hurdles; Rickey Faggett, also of Eastern Hills, 400 meters; Larry Johnson of Dallas Skyline, AAAA 800 meters; and Wayne Johnson of Richardson, AAAA 100 and 200-meter dashes.

Chaps Open Conference Play

By RUSS PARSONS
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Lubbock Christian College has won four of its last five games and already folks are talking about it notching its best record in several years. It's just about a sure bet it'll happen — but probably not this weekend.

Of course, it would only take seven wins to tie the 1974-75 season (the Chaps won only five each on 1975-76 and 1977-78). With five already, that mark will surely fall, but if LCC's going to do it this weekend, it'll be doing it the hard way.

The Chaps open the 1979 Texas Conference season tonight at 7:30 with Midwestern State, a small, quick team that likes to trap.

Just about every team that has applied the pressure to LCC has found itself creating plenty of turnovers.

"They do things that are hard on us," said coach Larry Hays. "They run that 1-2-1 halfcourt trap defense and they run it real well.

"It seems like everybody likes to run that defense on us. We've had some problems with it. That's their normal defense, they've been using it for years. But they also like to pressure man-to-man in some situations, and they'll do it all over the floor."

Teams that press Lubbock Christian have been rewarded this season: the Chaps are averaging more than 20 turnovers a game.

"Our defense is not great, but it's adequate," Hays said. "Our rebounding is adequate. Our shooting is adequate. Turnovers are our big problem.

"We really haven't been blown out yet, but the thing that's keeping us from winning some of those close games has been our turnovers."

Post man Kevin Wharton blocked a school-record eight shots in Tuesday night's 81-58 win over Tarleton State. He came in for some special praise from Hays.

"Kevin's been the most consistent part of our game," he said. "He's been the glue in our defense."

"He could be doing a lot of things offensively for us, but he uses so much energy on defense that it's hard. When he's out of the ballgame, we're in trouble."

Wharton hasn't been doing badly on offense — he's averaging 12.4 points a game — but he's been an absolute demon on the defensive boards, taking down an even 100. That's 19 more than the second-place man.

Both Wharton and forward Keith Gardner are averaging in double figures in both scoring and rebounding. Gardner's the team leader in both with 19.6 points and 12.2 boards.

Midwestern isn't a tall team; its postman is 6-5. He's Paul Brantley, a junior averaging 14.4 points and 8.2 boards. The star on the front line is 6-5 forward Tony Forch. He's hitting 28.5 points and 7.8 rebounds for the 12-9 Indians.

"They rely on quickness on offense," Hays said. "They probably have the best fastbreak we've seen all year. I hope they don't run us off the floor."

"Early in the year we worked a lot on the break. Then we tried it against Paul Quinn (in the first game of the season). We moved the ball well on them; we got a lot of easy baskets. But we turned the ball over 30 times."

The result was a 100-94 loss.

"We just can't go with a philosophy of run all the time. That hurts our left side some, but there's not much we can do. We can only run in about two situations."

After tonight's game, the Chaps will go on the road to visit Texas College, a team they beat 68-66 at home earlier this year. It was their first win of the year.

Rain Slows Start Of Phoenix Open

PHOENIX (AP) — Heavy overnight rains washed out the pro-am competition Wednesday and raised doubts the $250,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament could begin on schedule Thursday morning.

"If we get more rain...well, I don't know," shrugged Jack Tuthill, Tournament Director for the PGA Tour, after surveying the water-logged, 6,726 yard, par-71 Phoenix Country Club course.

"The course just can't take any more rain. We can't play it as it is," Tuthill said. "We'll just have to wait to see how it drains."

The Phoenix area has had light rains for two days. The forecast was for more showers Wednesday and Wednesday night.

The course was inundated. Water was standing as much as six inches deep in some low-lying areas. Sand traps were filled with pools and puddles.

The pro-am event, a major fund-raiser for the tournament's charities, was cancelled Wednesday morning and the course was closed to play. The touring pros gathered in the locker room for a while, then drifted off to their hotels, waiting for the weather to clear and a decision on the fate of the tournament to be made.

Tournament officials have several options in the event of further rains. They can delay the start of the tournament by a day or two.

Under the contracts between the PGA Tour and the tournament sponsors, the event can run as late as next Tuesday. If weather conditions make it impossible to complete 72 holes by that time, the tournament would be terminated and a partial payment made.

If only one round is completed, 25-percent of the purse will be distributed. Two rounds call for a 50 percent payoff, three rounds for 75 percent.

It might be possible to play two rounds in a single day after the 36-hole cut is made. If the delay is such that it would be impossible to complete 72 holes by Tuesday, the entire tournament could be canceled.

"I don't know what we're going to do," Tuthill said. "We'll just have to wait and see what the weather does."

Texas Defeats Wayland Baptist

AUSTIN (Special)—Jackie Swain scored 31 points to lead fifth ranked Texas as past number six Wayland Baptist 60-52 in a women's college basketball game here Wednesday night.

Jill Rankin paced the Wayland scoring attack with 20 points. However, once Miss Swain found the range, Wayland Baptist could only wonder how to stop its next opponent.

Miss Swain and the University of Texas took control of the contest midway through the first quarter. Wayland's last lead was 17-16. The University of Texas expanded its lead to 34-25 at the halftime intermission.

The Longhorns picked up where they left off in the final two quarters and built a 14-point lead before Wayland Baptist could cool the momentum.

Wayland Baptist, however, could only narrow the deficit to six-points before the final buzzer sounded.

Iowa State Hires Coach...

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State University dipped into the ranks of the most successful team in its conference Wednesday and named Oklahoma assistant Donnie Duncan as head football coach.

Duncan's appointment came only five days after former coach Earle Bruce left the Big Eight Conference school to succeed Woody Hayes at Ohio State.

The 38-year-old Duncan has been on the staff of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer for six years and was assistant head coach this past season. During his time at Oklahoma, the Sooners compiled a 62-6-2 record, and annually boasted one of the top offensive teams in the country.

Duncan has devoted his time at Oklahoma to the offense, coaching receivers and running backs his first five years and handling the offensive line last season.

"It's been a long day and an eventful day. I feel very, very proud," said Duncan. "I have always wanted to be a head coach and had some priorities I wanted in such a job. When I visited Iowa State, I found those things."

Duncan inherits a team that has posted 8-3 records the past three seasons. He was given a four-year contract at $42,000 annually. Bruce was paid $37,000 for his final year at Iowa State, where he had been head coach for six seasons, compiling a 36-32 record.

Athletic Director Lou McCullough said 80 persons applied for the coaching job, including about 20 head coaches. He said he felt the school got the best coach possible.

"When we made the selection, Dr. Paul Sharp, the former Drake University president and former Oklahoma president, called our president (W. Robert) Parks and told him we had a man of integrity, high morals and principle. He said Donnie Duncan will represent Iowa State well," McCullough said.

Duncan arrived at the news conference 90 minutes late because foggy weather delayed his departure from the Oklahoma City area by private plane.

Duncan said he wants to find a group of assistant coaches quickly so he can begin recruiting for Iowa State as soon as possible.

"We will establish areas where Iowa State had success recruiting in the past and continue working those areas," Duncan said. "I have numerous contacts in Texas and Oklahoma, but you have to be realistic. We might go to that area for a specific player, but to say we would go into Texas and Oklahoma on a wide-scale effort would not be so."

"Our first priority is Iowa. I'm not familiar enough with the recruiting prospects of Iowa State yet, but I hope to be soon."

...While Bulldogs Seek To Fire Theirs

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Coach Bob Tyler said Wednesday he will not resign as head football coach at Mississippi State University and will challenge the decision to remove him as the school's athletic director.

"I have not resigned and I do not intend to," Tyler said following meetings with attorneys and others Wednesday.

President James McComas said Tuesday night that he had relieved Tyler of his duties as athletic director because the combined job was too much for any one person.

The search for a new athletic director is under way, he said.

Tyler was told the action during a meeting with McComas on Monday and informed sources had said Tyler was prepared to resign if the decision was allowed to stand.

Sources said Tyler had told members of his staff at a Tuesday meeting that they should begin looking for other jobs.

Aggies Thwart Hogs 74-69 In Overtime

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A & M's Tyrone Ladson, who earlier missed a chance to ice the game, sank two free throws in an overtime and Rynn Wright made a basket in the final minute to lead the Aggies to a 74-69 Southwest Conference victory over 11th-ranked Arkansas Wednesday night.

The Aggies, ranked 15th nationally, missed a chance to put the game away with seven seconds left in regulation when Ladson missed a free throw that would have given AM a three-point lead.

The Razorbacks, thwarted by A&M's air-tight defense throughout the game, whipped the ball downcourt to Tony Brown, who sank a 25-foot jumper at the final gun to knot the score at 62-61.

The Aggies took a 68-66 lead in the overtime when Ladson again came to the line with 59 seconds to play and made two free throws.

Then, with 21 seconds to go, Wright tipped in a bucket to wrap up the game and increase A&M's SWC record to 3-1. The Aggie trail only Texas, 4-1, in league play.

Arkansas, which dropped to a 2-2 record, was effectively sealed from the inside by A&M's zone defense in the first half, and the Aggies took a 30-22 lead into the dressing room.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton was signaled for a technical foul with 5:52 left in the first half and the score tied at 18-18.

A&M's Joey Robinson made both free shots as the Aggies outscored the Hogs 10-0 over the next 3:27 en route to their half-time lead.

Cavaliers Lose To Philadelphia 107-94

From Wire Reports

Fourth-string guard Ralph Simpson contributed 30 points as the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 107-94.

The 6-foot-5 Simpson was given extensive playing time in place of regular guard Doug Collins, who was in Benton, Ill., attending the funeral of his father, who died Tuesday.

Julius Erving added 19 points for the 76ers, but Simpson's 20 points, an NBA career high for the eight-year pro from Michigan State, was the highlight of Philadelphia's comparatively easy victory.

ATLANTA 111, PORTLAND 110

Center Wayne "Tree" Rollins hit a lay-up with seven seconds remaining to give the Atlanta Hawks a 111-110 over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Two free throws by Ron Brewer gave Portland a 110-109 lead with 10 seconds to play. After a time-out, the Hawks worked the ball underneath to Rollins for the winning score.

SEATTLE 112, INDIANA 102

Seattle guards Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson combined for 47 points and keyed a 17-4 second quarter burst that carried the SuperSonics to a 112-102 victory over the Indiana Pacers.

The game was close through most of the first two periods, and the Pacers led 50-47 with four minutes to go before the intermission. Jack Sikma brought the Sonics within one, and a jumper by Williams put Seattle ahead to stay, 51-50. Williams added one more basket and Johnson got six points as Seattle stretched its lead to 10, 64-54, at halftime.

NEW JERSEY 106, DETROIT 99

John Williamson and Bernard King combined for 53 points to lead the New Jersey Nets to a 106-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

With Detroit leading 85-83 midway through the fourth quarter, King and Williamson sparked New Jersey on an 11-2 spurt that put the Nets ahead for good at 62-62.

A&M quickly jumped in front by four in the overtime and with 21 seconds left and the Aggies in front, 70-68, David Britton went to the line for a one-and-one foul situation.

Britton missed the first shot, but Wright was there to tip it in and give A & M a four-point advantage.

94-87. King accounted for seven points in that stretch and Williamson added four. Williamson finished the game with 28 points and King had 25.

BULLETS 112, JAZZ 102

Elvin Hayes and Kevin Grevey combined for 35 of their 55 points in the second half and led the Washington Bullets to a 112-102 victory over the New Orleans Jazz, in a game between teams with the best and the worst records in the NBA.

The Bullets, who have won five of their last six games, lead the Atlantic Division with a 29-13 record and are 18-4 at home this season. The Jazz, last in the Central Division, have lost 19 of their last 23 and are 2-22 on the road.

KINGS 120, CELTICS 99

Forward Scott Wedman scored 14 of his 32 points in the fourth period and the Kansas City Kings rolled to their seventh victory in the last eight starts with a 120-99 decision over the Boston Celtics.

Wedman and Bill Robinson put the brakes on a Boston comeback in helping the Kings hand the hapless Celtics their seventh loss in the last eight games.

SAN ANTONIO 119, DENVER 101

George Gervin and Larry Kenon combined for 99 points to the delight of the largest crowd in San Antonio history as the Spurs blew past the Denver Nuggets 119-101.

A crowd of 15,219 witnessed the game that saw the Spurs shut down Denver's two big guns, David Thompson and George McGinnis.

McGinnis who played just eight minutes in the first half and fouled out late in the game, finished with 19 points while All-Star Thompson scored just 14.

Henderson Continues Taunting Of Steelers

THE MOUTH PRIMPS—Cowboy linebacker Thomas Henderson fixes his hair for photographers before a practice session. Henderson has said the Cowboys will defeat the Pittsburgh Steelers in Super Bowl XIII because the Steelers "lack depth." (AP Laserphoto)

MIAMI (AP) — "The Mouth" rolls on, and Super Bowl XIII threatened Wednesday to evolve into a non-stop "Tom Henderson Special."

All other facets of pro football's championship spectacular faded into virtual insignificance as the Dallas Cowboys' bearded linebacker continued to taunt the rival Pittsburgh Steelers in the final week's countdown toward Sunday's game.

"I don't know whether this room is big enough to accommodate a Tom Henderson press conference," Dallas coach Tom Landry said prior to Wednesday's choreographed question-and-answer session.

Tantalizing Tom is the whole show. They have dubbed him the NFL's "Most Voluble Player." He has caused concern among his coach, teammates and supporters. He has elicited both chagrin and amusement from the tough-hided Steelers.

Will Henderson's diatribes backfire against the defending champions?

"Possibly," acknowledged the impeccable, straight-laced Landry. "If it does, then I might have to have a word with him."

"I haven't spoken to him about it yet. I believe people should have freedom to express themselves. However, it is not my style. I think Tom psyches himself up. It makes him play better. Muhammad Ali set the pattern. Now he has many imitators."

Chuck Noll, low key coach of the Steelers, shrugged his shoulders when asked his reaction to Henderson's boasts that the Cowboys will sprinkle the Orange Bowl with inert Steeler bodies.

"Empty barrels make the most noise," Noll said.

Henderson had badgered the Rams before the NFC title game, calling them chokers and without class. He said the Steelers had class but "no depth" and predicted a runaway Dallas victory.

Henderson's counterpart on the Steeler team, 220-pound linebacker Jack Lambert, scoffed at the boasts and said: "You could bring a chimpanzee here and he would get the same attention."

Henderson smiled. "Lambert looks like one," he said.

Of Noll's reaction, the 6-foot-2, 220-pound linebacker said, "He's seen the movies. He knows this ain't jive."

Terry Bradshaw, Pittsburgh's see quarterback, said he didn't read the papers and thus could not be intimidated by Henderson's threats.

Henderson, a fourth year veteran out of Austin, Tex., denied that he was stealing a page from the book of the great Ali. He admits his mouthings — less bombastic than the fighter's — are aimed at getting attention.

"What initiated this extroverted personality?" somebody asked.

"Poverty," Henderson replied.

Landry Won't Silence Henderson's Brashness

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Thomas Henderson's brash statements may make him cringe, but Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry does not intend to silence his outspoken linebacker.

"I mind it but I haven't said anything to him," Landry said at a news conference Wednesday at the Cowboys' hotel headquarters. "It's not really my style, but we're in different times and players should have freedom of expression to a certain point. When it starts to bother the team, then I'll stop it."

Henderson has held court daily, saying the underdog Cowboys would shut out the Pittsburgh Steelers in Sunday's Super Bowl for the NFL championship. Prior to the NFC title game, Henderson enraged the Los Angeles Rams by stating they lacked enough class to reach the Super Bowl.

"The main thing is he's psyching himself and he backs it up," Landry said. "If he doesn't back it up, then we'll see what happens.

"It's out of character for me as a professional player and coach to sound off that way. Back in the 60's I don't think he would have been like that, but what you do is a matter of the times. Muhammad Ali set the example for people who want to imitate him."

Landry opened the news conference by looking across the large hotel ballroom and quipping, "I'm not sure this place is big enough to handle Thomas Henderson's interview."

Landry still was undecided about two positions in the starting lineup. He said fullback Robert Newhouse, who is recovering from a broken bone in his leg, may start over Scott Laidlaw, who replaced Newhouse in the first two playoff games. Landry said he would closely watch Newhouse the next few days in practice before making a decision.

Veteran defensive tackle Larry Cole will start in place of Jethro Pugh, who is bothered by ligament damage in his knee, Landry added.

Landry made a plea for more stringent officiating than three years ago in the Super Bowl when the Steelers edged the Cowboys 21-17.

"We didn't expect them to be as intimidating as they were," he explained. "The only thing we objected to was there wasn't a penalty called against them the entire game and our receivers were having trouble getting open. When you don't get any calls against that kind of attack, you've got problems."

Landry said he was unable to predict whether Sunday's game in Miami's Orange Bowl would be high scoring or dominated by two outstanding defenses.

"I can't predict how it will go because there's so much pressure and one team can get something going and start rolling. The reason one team dominates another is they get a jump and the other team loses its concentration. If both teams can concentrate it could be around 21-17 like the last time."

On stopping the Pittsburgh offense which scored a combined 67 points in its first two playoff games, Landry said, "The main thing is (quarterback) Terry Bradshaw is hot and we've got to cool him off."

Johnson Happy With New Role

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A year ago, Butch Johnson was on top of the professional football world.

His robotic catch of a 46-yard touchdown pass from Roger Staubach was the highlight of Super Bowl XII, won by the Dallas Cowboys 27-10 over Denver.

Now Johnson is a second-string wide receiver, returning punts and kickoffs. "I'm the same person who caught that ball a year ago," said the puzzled Johnson, who caught only 14 passes in 18 games this year.

Johnson was sharing time with Golden Richards until Richards was traded to the Chicago Bears. But Tony Hill came on strong and beat out Johnson before the regular season began.

"Nobody has asked me why," said Johnson. "Well, I don't know why. I never complain. I don't feel I have to take everything to the press. If I cried and complained, it would make me look like a baby. This is the first time I've really said anything about it."

Johnson, a baby-faced former star at California-Riverside, said "I'm not bitter. My catch won't be forgotten."

Johnson made the catch by stretching his body full length and somehow controlling the ball until after crossing the "plane" over the goal.

"By one or two plays you get known in the National Football League," said Johnson. "I guess you can say I've gone from the summit to the basement in one year."

Johnson said he would appreciate some straight answers from the Cowboys' organization after Sunday's Super Bowl game against Pittsburgh.

"I would like a specific reason," said Johnson. "I'm a pro and I have ambitions. I wouldn't say I would like to leave but I'm not going to sit out another year and not play. A receiver has to play when he is a young. You lose a lot when you don't play."

Johnson has had his troubles returning punts this year and was on the borderline of losing that job until having a good day in the National Football Conference title game against Los Angeles.

"It's amazing to me how I can be the worst in the world one game and then have a 'great' game against Los Angeles. I fumbled against Atlanta but it was because I was trying to be aggressive by making good things happen. Look up the records — I've been the most consistent returner in the National Football League."

Johnson said, "I can't think of a more insecure job than playing in the NFL. They just remember you from one week to the next."

On picture day for Super Bowl XIII, Johnson was acting out a fantasy by throwing phantom pitches from the mound at Yankee Stadium here.

Another Cowboys' player yelled at him: "You talked, Johnson." Johnson walked off the mound shrugging his shoulders.

Newhouse May Replace Laidlaw, Says Landry

MIAMI (AP) — Injuries old and new concerned the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys as they continued preparations Wednesday for Super Bowl XIII.

Steelers wide receiver Lynn Swann was nursing a bruised left foot suffered during a passing drill in his team's first workout when he was stepped on by cornerback Ron Johnson.

Steelers' backup wide receiver Theo Bell split the webbing between his middle fingers on his left hand during Pittsburgh's Wednesday workout. The cut required four stitches and Bell is expected to return to practice Thursday.

Meanwhile, Dallas coach Tom Landry said Larry Cole would start at defensive tackle for the Cowboys, replacing Jethro Pugh, who has been troubled for most of the season by torn cartilage in his knee. Randy White, the Cowboys' other tackle will play with a light cast on his left hand to protect a broken thumb suffered in the NFC championship game against Los Angeles.

In another move, Landry said running back Robert Newhouse, who broke a leg in mid-season, could return to the starting lineup for the Super Bowl, replacing Scott Laidlaw.

The most serious injury seemed to be Swann's but he laughed it off.

"It's a bruised toe, really," said the Steeler wide receiver. "Doesn't that sound silly for a professional athlete, a bruised toe?"

Swann could laugh about it after X-rays were negative. But when the collision occurred, he admitted he was worried.

"I was extremely nervous when it happened," Swann said. "I was running downfield, going all out for a pass, making a strong effort. Johnson's foot came right down on mine. It felt like it was broken."

X-rays at Parkway Hospital were negative, and Swann had the foot bandaged.

"I guess I felt it more because of the warm weather and the fact that we were on grass," he said. "But it's just a bruise."

Swann, of course, played hurt in Super Bowl X when Pittsburgh defeated Dallas 21-17. He had suffered a concussion in the AFC championship game that season, and his effectiveness was suspect because of that injury. But he shrugged it off and was named the game's most valuable player.

"That injury didn't prevent me from practicing and playing and neither will this one," he said. "You know with a brain concussion, you can never be sure about it. You can't look at it and see if it's healed."

The Cowboys know White won't be healed. He broke the thumb in the fourth quarter against the Rams after making the tackles that dislocated John Cappelletti's right shoulder and forced Pat Haden out of the game with a broken thumb of his own.

"It won't bother me at all," said White, who will wear a light cast on Sunday. "Once I get in the game, I won't think about it. I'm getting tired of listening to this stuff about how Pittsburgh likes to pound you. I'm going to do some pounding myself."

Pugh, the 34-year-old tackle, has been hurting since midseason and Cole has started every game since Thanksgiving, although the Cowboy depth chart continues to list him as second string.

"That kind of injury just doesn't get better without surgery," Landry said.

For Pugh, a survivor of the memorable Ice Bowl championship game against Green Bay a decade ago, — which Green Bay won on final play for NFL title — this will be his 25th playoff game, the most for any player in NFL history. It could be the final game of his career, too, although he insists he has not decided about next year.

As for the injury, Pugh said, "I can play with it. How well, I don't know. But in a game like this, well, you play."

Laidlaw has been playing since midseason when Newhouse, who usually starts alongside Tony Dorsett at running back for Dallas, fractured the fibula bone in his right leg. Now Newhouse seems ready to return to action.

"Newhouse was having his best season for us," said Landry. "Scott has been excellent but he understands that when Robert is ready, he'll play. I'll have to watch him the next couple of days in practice before I decide."

Newhouse is considered one of the best blocking backs in pro football and is a major factor in much of Dorsett's running success.

Landry and Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll both said that the differences between their teams are minimal.

"These are two evenly matched teams, with strong varied attacks and capable defenses," said Noll. "The game could be decided by one big play."

Landry agreed.

"When you get this far, one or two plays will win or lose the game for you," the Cowboy coach said.

Noll said he wonders about how Dallas will attack. "They have breakaway runners and they also throw well. Whatever they choose to do will be a problem," he said.

Landry was thinking about the same kind of things.

"(Quarterback Terry) Bradshaw, Swann and (wide receiver John) Stallworth worry you with their passing game," he said. "That bothers me but if it bothers you too much, (running back) Franco (Harris) will eat your lunch."

'Aging' Greene Ponders Game

MIAMI (AP) — Over-65 isn't just the temperature here in a city where one club features "Young at Heart Disco" for the wrinkled and retired.

Yet Joe Greene, a whipper-snapper at age 32, is answering questions about the most relentless rush of all — age — as he awaits Super Bowl XIII.

"Don't send me roses. Send me a case of whiskey," kids the man who's played a decade of defensive tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Greene doesn't claim to be the same man he was in 1960 when the Steelers were 1-13 and he was Defensive Rookie of the Year.

"I don't have the ability to rush the passer I had... I'm not as strong as I once was," he said.

Yet he's adjusted.

"I am a bit more conservative, more aware of what is happening on the field," he said. "I am in the center, where I can communicate with everybody. I try to keep us on the same page. I am the glue that holds things together."

Instead of pushing the pass rush, Greene thinks more now about stopping the run and helping end L.C. Greenwood get the quarterback.

"I would be doing a disservice to my teammates if I tried to play a role that I couldn't perform," he said.

This season, Greene had four sacks and led all Pittsburgh linemen with 70 tackles and five fumble recoveries.

In 1974, he had five sacks in one game against Houston and he dominated Super Bowl IX against Minnesota.

But in 1975, he developed a pinched nerve in his neck that weakened his left arm. That season, he sat out the second half of Pittsburgh's Super Bowl X win over Dallas, and the arm also hampered him in 1976.

In 1977, the arm came around; Greene trimmed his weight from 275 to 260 pounds; he lifted more weights; he spent more time with game films.

"I've always taken Joe Greene for granted, but now I have to work on improving him," he said.

"This season, I think I played reasonably well... I never thought I was a good as people wrote before or as bad as people wrote later."

Recently, Greene watched films of Pittsburgh's Super Bowl X win over Dallas, the game he mostly saw from the sideline.

"I still felt part of everything, but not completely," he recalled.

He figures to be completely involved Sunday.

"You play 10 years in this league and it takes a toll," he said.

Legal Or Illegal? -- 'Pokes Blast Tactics

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Legal or illegal — that's the big question concerning the Pittsburgh Steelers' defensive tactics.

Steelers coach Chuck Noll feels his club abides by the rules. Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, Pittsburgh's opponent in Sunday's Super Bowl XIII, feels otherwise as do several of his players.

The controversy concerns tactics used by Steeler defensive backs when the clubs met in Super Bowl X three years ago. Cowboy receivers accused the Pittsburgh secondary of late hits and unnecessary rough play, and several Dallas players have been openly calling this week for closer officiating Sunday.

"In 1975, we didn't expect the game to be as intimidating as it was," said Landry. "We didn't mind the hitting. The only thing we resented was that there wasn't a penalty called. Our receivers couldn't get downfield. We don't care if it's tough. We can play tough, too. Just as long as they (referees) call the game."

Cowboy safety Cliff Harris also was outspoken.

"They didn't see a lot of things last time," said Harris. "I hope they don't choke again. We play in the boundaries of the rules. Let's just say they play real close. I just hope the ref watches closely."

"Their defense played close to the rules in Super Bowl X. A lot of things that weren't even judgment calls, the ref didn't call. We play rough, but we play within the rules. All I want the officials to do is call a good game. Their defense did a job on our receivers last time and nothing was called."

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach said the tactics used by the Pittsburgh secondary disrupted the Cowboy offense in their last NFL championship meeting.

"We threw for a lot of yardage against them," said Staubach. "But most of that came on play-action passes. Where it hurt us a great deal was in the third-down area. They knew we had to pass on third and long and they were really knocking our receivers around. It made it difficult for them to run their routes and it made it difficult for me to get the ball to them. They were betting us pretty good."

"There are new rules now and they adjusted to those new rules. They played their old defense, running step by step with the receivers with the safeties backing them up, very well. Now they're doing new things. They can't keep hitting our receivers and the new rules hurt all the teams who rely on that.

"It should allow us a little more freedom Sunday."

Noll defended his club's play vigorously.

"I don't know exactly what statements were made," he said. "But as far as our football team is concerned, we play by the rules and play as hard as we can. If some guy thinks otherwise, maybe he should retire. We don't do anything illegal."

On another subject, Noll called a foot injury sustained Tuesday by all-pro wide receiver Lynn Swann a minor injury. He said he foresees no problem with Swann's performance Sunday.

"We wanted to throw the ball yesterday," said Noll. "We wanted to work out in the warm weather. Lynn Swann hurt his foot but X-rays were negative. It's just a bruise and he'll be working today. I don't think it will hurt him to miss yesterday's workout."

"It's just a bad bruise," said Swann, who caught four passes for a Super Bowl-record 161 yards in the Steelers' 21-17 victory over Dallas three years ago. "I kept ice on it and stayed off it last night. It feels fine."

Super Bowl Notes

MIAMI (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' 28-0 victory over Los Angeles in the Jan. 7 National Conference championship game drew a 36.7 television rating, making it the highest rated National Football League game other than a Super Bowl, according to A. C. Nielsen figures released Wednesday.

The NFL said a record 27,340,000 homes watched the game, a 57 percent audience share. The previous rating record, according to the league, was 35.6 for Denver's victory over Oakland in the American Conference title game a year ago.

Orioles Reject Simon's Offer

BALTIMORE (AP)— Baltimore Orioles Board Chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger has rejected an initial contract offer from former U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon to buy the American league franchise.

"There is a piece of paper. It came in the mail. Yes, it is from Mr. Simon, but there is plenty to be discussed," Hoffberger said. "It is no contract worthy of being signed. It's his version of a contract, not our version of a contract."

"It's absolutely not a setback. It's a long step forward. The fact that we've received a written contract from Simon indicates a step forward," he said.

Hoffberger declined to discuss whether Simon failed to offer the asking price of $12 million.

City officials, meanwhile, said Wednesday that they are confident that a deal is taking shape to keep the Orioles in Baltimore.

Industrialist Max Fisher and developer Alfred Taubman, who apparently want the team for tax reasons, have offered $6 million to a local group for the purchase of the team, the Baltimore Sun reported.

The Baltimore News-American quoted sources Wednesday as saying that Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer approached the two businessmen. Schaefer said he discussed the possible involvement of Taubman and Fisher with Hoffberger.

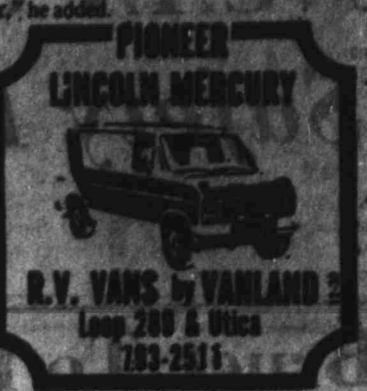

"Hoffberger said their involvement interested him," Schaefer said, adding that Hoffberger was interested in working with two Detroit businessmen because "he knows them and knows they are responsible."

"They are people who do not just talk about something," Schaefer added. "Taubman and Fisher would become principal owners, the Sun quoted sources as saying. Two or three other Baltimore investors, including Hoffberger, would contribute $2 million as limited partners while the remaining $4 million would come from about 30 members of a local group, the newspaper added.

Asked about the possibility of his remaining a limited partner, Hoffberger said, "I've been asked to stay in. I'm considering it, but I haven't the slightest idea to what extent I'm not sure I will, but I might."

Hoffberger also denied reports that the sale might be nearing completion. "There's no way this can be over in ten days," he said. "If I signed the contract, sure, but I've got to go to directors and shareholders and you can't do this in ten days."

"Besides, I still say I haven't got a buyer," he added.

Cager Gipson Named A-J Player Of Week

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Winston Gipson is the son of the principal at Estacado High School.

During the football season, coach Louis Kelley insisted that the principal's clout didn't weigh on his assessment of the Matadors' split end.

"Winston is the smartest player on our football team," said Kelley a number of times during the season.

Though, Gipson led the Estacado Matadors in pass receptions this season, it was learned this week why Gipson is a smart player. That's because he went on to play basketball.

The Matador forward scored 45 points and pulled down 13 rebounds in two games this week to earn the Avalanche-Journal's high school basketball player of the week.

Gipson scored 20 points against Leveland and 25 points against Dunbar as the Matadors ended the week with a district record of 1-1. Estacado defeated Leveland 77-73 and fell to Dunbar 81-75.

Other players cited include Coronado's Sam Law, Lubbock Christian's Shawn Williams, Monterey's Trav Clardy and Lubbock High's Jeff Manley.

Law has guided Coronado to a 2-0 loop mainly by setting up baskets. Against Lubbock High, the Mustang guard had six assists. Law also has proved that he can put the ball through the hoop as he scored 15 points against Plainview.

Williams, who not only has earned a player of the week honor and was named the most valuable player in the Caprock Tournament, continues to demonstrate consistent play. Against Abilene Christian, the Eagle postman hit 12 of 22 shots from the field, was 3 of five from the line, had 12 rebounds, four steals and two assists. Lubbock Christian won easily 70-59.

Clardy almost proved inhuman against Plainview. The Plainsman forward was seven of seven from the field, one for two from the free throw line and had five rebounds.

Manley has not been playing up to Lubbock High's 2-18 record. This week the Westerner guard pumped in 32 points, had 12 rebounds and four steals. Lubbock High played Plainview and Coronado last week.

Then there was the salute Christ the King coach John Opperman gave. As the Trojans routed Amarillo Alamo by 29 points, the to leave anyone out, Opperman cited the entire team's play.

In girls action, Brendell Baker was cited for her aggressive play against Abilene Christian. Miss Baker was seven of 12 from the field, three for five from the charity line, had five recoveries, two rebounds and seven assists. Lubbock Christian defeated Abilene Christian 47-35.

NCAA Changes Safety Rules

GRAPEVINE (AP) — The NCAA Rules Committee announced Wednesday a number of minor rule changes for college football, mostly regarding player safety.

There were no major rule changes made by the 14-member committee, which has been meeting for a week in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, though it considered and unanimously defeated a proposal to institute a system for a playoff to determine a winner in major college post-season games ending in a tie.

The most significant changes came in the extension of rules prohibiting blocking below the waist, and fouls committed by the receiving team in a kicking situation.

The new ruling prohibits backs coming out of the backfield from blocking below the waist more than three yards downfield. Present rules cover linemen but not backs in that area.

The committee also ruled that fouls committed by receiving team after a punt or field goal has crossed the line of scrimmage does not result in the kicking team receiving another down. The ruling will mean penalties such as clipping or holding by the receiving team will result in a penalty from the point of foul, rather than returning the ball to the kicking team and replaying the down.

Rules Committee Secretary Dave Nelson said the committee had been asked by the NCAA Council to consider a proposal on a tie-breaker, but the proposal could find no support among committee members.

"It would be very difficult to arrive at an equitable method of breaking a tie game," Nelson said. "The sudden-death rule in professional football isn't a fair way. We couldn't come up with a method that equalizes wind, weather, field conditions and so forth."

He added many committee members felt there was no need for a tie-breaking mechanism unless a system of playoffs is instituted in Division IA (major colleges). Such a system exists for Division II, which has a system for playoffs and a national champion.

Rule changes affecting the game included the increasing of penalties for some cases of unnecessary roughness to an automatic first down. Personal fouls occurring as a result of a head slap, kicking another player, and spearing or ramming with the helmet were included.

The committee announced the elimination of offsetting penalties when a dead ball foul is involved. All dead ball fouls will be assessed in the order in which they were committed, according to the new ruling.

Bruce To Ink Four Cyclone Assistants

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Associated Press learned Wednesday that new Ohio State football Coach Earle Bruce is keeping three Buckeye assistant coaches and bringing four of his own aides from Iowa State.

Ohio State will announce Thursday that Bruce will hire George Chaump, Glen Mason and Bill Myles from the Buckeyes' staff and Wayne Stanley, Steve Szabo, Pete Carroll and Bob Tucker from his old Iowa State staff.

A source in the Ohio State athletic department, who asked not to be identified, told the AP Bill Mallory will join Bruce and serve as the Buckeyes' defensive coordinator. "In case Mallory can't work out his contract problems at Colorado, Bruce is keeping a couple of Ohio high school coaches on standby," said the source.

If Mallory returns to Ohio State, Bruce will have his full staff of eight assistant coaches to catch up on recruiting. Bruce replaced the fired Woody Hayes as the Buckeyes' 20th mentor last Friday.

Stanley, Szabo, Carroll and Tucker met with Ohio State officials Wednesday to work out their contracts and other financial details. Chaump, Mason and Myles already have been recruiting for their new boss since last weekend.

The new responsibilities of the Ohio State assistants were not learned, although they likely are to remain in their specialties.

Stanley, 24, a former All-Big Eight Conference quarterback for Iowa State, coached the Cyclones' running backs in his first year last fall. He is expected to replace Mickey Jackson at Ohio State.

Szabo, a 35-year-old Vietnam veteran, has coached the defensive tackles and middle guards for the last two years at Iowa State. He helped the Cyclones become the No. 1 defensive team in the Big Eight in 1977.

Szabo will take over for Dave Adolph, who left Ohio State to take a defensive coaching job with the Cleveland Browns.

Pete Carroll, 27, another first-year assistant at Iowa State, will replace Gary Tranquill as the assistant for Ohio State's defensive secondary.

Under Carroll, the University of Pacific's defense ranked first nationally in pass interceptions in 1978. And, as a graduate assistant at the University of Arkansas, Carroll helped develop the Razorbacks into the nation's No. 5 rated pass defense.

Hog Players May Enroll For Classes

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas said Wednesday that two UA football players who are to go on trial March 1 on first-degree rape charges are eligible to enroll for the spring semester.

And, a UA spokesman said that both Micheal Forrest and Donny Bobo had taken advantage of the ruling and had enrolled. A spokesman for the UA athletic department said both athletes had moved out of the athletic dormitory.

Bobo and Forrest were charged last month as a result of a complaint by a 21-year-old coed who alleged she was raped between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. in the athletic dormitory on Dec. 12.

Both pleaded innocent to the charges when arraigned Dec. 18.

The university issued a two-sentence statement Wednesday:

"On Tuesday, the All University Judiciary Board rendered a decision which now permits two former student athletes to enroll at the University of Arkansas for the spring semester. Any further comment from the University of Arkansas is prohibited by federal law."

Classes for the spring semester began Jan. 8, but enrollment is permitted for two weeks.

Forrest, a running back, completed his athletic eligibility last year. Bobo, a wide receiver, has decided to pass up his final season of eligibility, according to a spokesman for the UA athletic department.

Bobo and Forrest were suspended from school pending investigation of the coed's complaint.

Bobo and Forrest also were among three players suspended from the UA football team that played in the 1978 Orange Bowl.

Texans Portrayed Unflatteringly By Television?

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Texans, more often than not, are depicted unflatteringly on television and in movies as a matter of course.

Hollywood commonly projects southerners negatively but confines the denizens of the Lone Star State in one of two stereotypes — the loud-mouthed, bigoted good ol' boy or the sinister, misanthropic oil millionaire.

For whatever reason, Texans seldom raise objections to the clichés. So far as is known there is no anti-defamation organization for Texans.

Perhaps the least sympathetic Texan visible today is J.R. Ewing Jr., the free-wheeling resident oil millionaire in the primetime soap opera "Dallas."

Ewing, as played by Larry Hagman, is a brutal cut-throat businessman, world-class philanderer and all around heel. He's the kind of guy who epitomizes Hollywood's treatment of Texans to non-Texans.

If members of any other religious, racial or territorial minority were as regularly misrepresented as Texans, the hue and cry would be heard in the halls of Congress. But there's seldom a peep from Texans.

Actor Hagman, a native Texan from Weatherford, theorizes Texas is the last bastion of individualism and that his Lone Star colleagues have thick hides and forgiving dispositions.

At first glance, Hagman does nothing to dispel the Hollywood style Texan. He is of ample height (6-foot-1), big (200 pounds-plus), barrel-chested, ruddyfaced and possessed of a booming baritone.

He has the look of a man who can handle his dukes, hold his own in a poker game, down his share of bourbon and branch water and romance the ladies — perhaps all at once. Another Texas stereotype.

Another Hagman trait — which may or may not be a genuine Texan characteristic — one never is sure when he is on the level or pulling one's leg.

"I admire old J.R. Ewing," Hagman said. "He's the most unmitigated SOB on TV. Nobody calls him Junior except his pappy."

He cheats on his wife at every opportunity. In our first 27 weeks he's had six different mistresses. He keeps ladies in New York, Houston, Austin and a couple in Dallas. He had Tina Louise for four weeks.

"J.R. has 200 million bucks. Nobody gets the best of him in a business deal and survives. The guy's a bouncer but he's protecting his empire as any good businessman would."

"J.R. isn't an evil man because he thinks he's doing the right thing. He's no more ruthless than the CBS executive who keeps moving our series around from one night of the week to another."

Hagman, the son of actress Mary Martin and Ben Hagman, a Texas lawyer, says his fellow Texans are ambivalent about him and the character he portrays.

On the one hand, he is congratulated for an honest portrayal; on the other he is vilified for perpetuating the Hollywood cliché. Hagman narrated this year's Cotton Bowl parade and experienced considerable hostility.

"Some of them think I'm giving a false impression of Texas oil interests," he said, grinning. "Others are convinced I'm cleaning up the image, that if I played J.R. truthfully he'd be a lot worse than he is."

"Those big rich guys have their own economic slaves. They can do as they please, hire their own private police departments, buy and sell anyone they want. It's done all the time."

"Some Texans say I don't know what I'm talking about. But I know about the oil interests. I worked for an oil tool factory and I've seen what those big shots do to one another. If we told the real story, they'd blow CBS."

"As a Texan I've always found myself a little outside the realm of reality. I think Texans are special people. A little crazy maybe, but I believe we are different from other Americans in some ways."

"Texans are about the only Americans left with a sense of chivalry. Honor is still very important. I see nothing wrong with that.

"I'm not saying I'm objective. My roots are in Texas and I'm making a lot of money off the Texan image."

"I say Texans suffer from a collective and individual superiority complex and perhaps they're right. As far as portraying J.R. Ewing unflatteringly, it's all in the eye of the beholder."

She Wants Only To Act, Declares Sylvia Kristel

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — International sex symbol Sylvia Kristel tells of meeting Fred Astaire during a luncheon at the Cannes Film Festival.

"He told me that he never really wanted to do all that dancing, that he really wanted to be a dramatic actor. But the studios insisted that he dance. It's the same way with me. I don't really want to be the star in erotic movies. But that is the only way that most producers see me."

"It is very hard work. First of all, it is physically tiring, because they picked tropical countries for the 'Emanuelles' and then dressed me in winter silks. Also, the Dutch are not very — what shall I say? — affectionate. I am Dutch, and so it is an unnatural act to portray all that lust on the screen."

"But then, perhaps that is the reason for the success of the 'Emanuelles': because I wander through them with a sense of wonder, like 'Alice in Siamland'."

"Emanuelle," for which Kristel received $18,000, reached an international audience estimated by its producer at 250 million. That may not be an exaggeration, since the film proved an enormous hit in Europe, Japan, and to a lesser extent in the United States. "Emanuelle II" performed 60 percent as well, according to the producer, and now "III" is coming.

Miss Kristel fled to Hollywood to escape the reputation she fears makes her look "dumb and without talent; in fact, I should get the Oscar for portraying the opposite of what I really am."

She has settled here with companion Ian McEwan, the British actor, and hopes to find roles that will alter her image. The first is in Universal's PG-rated "Airport '79 Concorde."

"What does she do in the film?"

"I open and close doors and serve coffee. Also I have a romance with Alain Delon. I am a stewardess, and he is the pilot of the Concorde."

"It is a challenge in several ways. If you keep your clothes on in a film, you have to act. And if you don't have a great deal to do in a film, you have to make it look like something. Like all 'Airport' movies, this one has a big cast, and some of us has much of an opportunity to make an impression. You've got three minutes to do your big scene."

Daughter and granddaughter of Dutch composers, Sylvia Kristel first worked as secretary to a metallurgist. "You've a bad secretary, why don't you become an actress?" he suggested, and he referred her to a friend in film. After a couple of minor movies, she created the role of Emanuelle, the innocent French girl who encounters the fleshly pleasures in Thailand.

"I became an international lust object," said the actress.

She is astonished by the divergent reactions to Emanuelle: "The Japanese consider her a liberated woman because she assumes the dominant position while making love with her husband. In America, the women's libbers consider her more or less a victim since she is virtually gang-raped by three Thai boxers and is taught the ways of sin by an older man."

"It is too easy for me in Europe," she said. "All I have to do is pick one of the scripts that French and Italian producers send me. Hollywood is the crown of my work. If I can succeed here, then I can quit."

John Wayne Said Still Vulnerable To Recurrence Of Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—John Wayne's 9½-hour cancer operation last week for the removal of his stomach failed to take all the cancer from his body and there is "a probability that it will spread," a hospital spokesman said Wednesday.

Cancerous cells have been discovered in the lymph nodes in the 71-year-old actor's stomach area, said the spokesman, Bernard Strom, administrator of the UCLA Medical Center.

Strom said there is a possibility that cancer has spread to the lymph nodes throughout the body.

He refused to elaborate on Wayne's prospects for recovery or future treatment. He said no decision has been made on whether more surgery is needed.

Asked if he could offer reassurances about Wayne's future, Strom said, "I wish I could. Cancer is the type of disease that just doesn't give that option."

The new cancer was found by a pathological report on body tissues tested after last week's surgery, Strom told a news conference. That surgery was Wayne's second cancer operation. In 1964, part of his cancerous left lung was removed.

Lymph nodes, part of a system that spreads through all parts of the body, filter and process the colorless liquid that carries nourishment from the blood to the body tissues. The fluid is cleaned of debris and microorganisms by the nodes, then returned to the blood vessels. The SONS DISCUSS WAYNE'S CONDITION — John Wayne's sons Patrick (left) and Michael answer questions about their father's spirits Wednesday in Los Angeles following an announcement that more cancer had been found in the 71-year-old actor. lymph system also produces many of the white blood cells.

Despite the setback, Wayne's general recovery from last week's surgery continues to be good, Strom said.

Wayne was told about the new cancer Tuesday night and he took the news in stride, according to his son, Michael. "He's been down this road before," Michael said. "We're hopeful."

"Doctors had prepared us for this eventuality," said Patrick. "It didn't come as a total shock."

Strom's announcement followed several days of hopeful pronouncements by doctors, who said the actor had been making a remarkable recovery.

It was the second major surgery in nine months for Wayne. Last April, doctors in Boston performed open heart surgery to replace a defective heart valve.

Michael Wayne, the eldest of Wayne's sons, said the family had been told the 71-year-old actor can leave the hospital in a week to 10 days, and "hopefully resume a normal life."

Marvin's Girl Reveals Abortions

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Michelle Triola Marvin said Wednesday she had three abortions during the six years she lived with actor Lee Marvin because "he wasn't interested in having any more children."

Miss Marvin, blinking as she testified in barely audible voice, said Marvin was "very sweet" when she told him of her first pregnancy in 1965.

"He said maybe I could find a doctor to give me a shot," she said during her second day of testimony. She added that she did get the shot and it worked.

When she became pregnant again in 1967, she said "he wanted me to have an abortion."

At that point, Miss Marvin's voice was so soft that Marvin, sitting across the room, announced, "I can't hear a thing. Miss Marvin was ordered to speak louder by the judge presiding over the landmark property settlement case."

She was asked about the results of her third and last abortion. "I have scars," she said, crying. "I can't bear children."

Miss Marvin is suing the Oscar-winning actor for $1 million plus a share of his income during their liaison, contending she gave up her show business career to concentrate on his.

The trial, being heard by Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall, is the first to test a 1976 California Supreme Court ruling that unmarried partners could sue for property settlement. The ruling came in an appeal by Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson.

The trial is expected to set a precedent for payment of alimony in cases of unmarried cohabitants.

Earlier, Miss Marvin had told how Marvin once became drunk and dangled a woman out the window of a Las Vegas hotel room.

Miss Marvin told the story to illustrate how she tried to cure the actor of his drinking problems and prevented him from hurting anyone.

She remembered the scene in Las Vegas: "I was asleep in the bedroom and I heard someone screaming. I put on my robe and I went out into the living room and Mr. Marvin had a girl and was holding her outside the window by her leg."

"I nearly fainted," she said. "I went over to the window, pulled him away and got the girl back into the room."

Her attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, asked: "Had Mr. Marvin been drinking?"

Take Care Of Pets In Cold Months

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you wouldn't want to sleep outdoors in this cold weather, don't expect your pet to do so either, the Humane Society of the United States says.

Indoor dogs should never be left outside for long periods in the cold, the society says.

And no dog should be left indoors at night and out all day, or vice versa. Switching from heated to unheated quarters can bring on upper respiratory problems.

Whatever kind of shelter your animal has, it should be kept free of drafts and must be waterproof, the society says. And it advises spraying to prevent fleas and ticks from moving in for the winter.

Shredded newspaper on the floor of a doghouse acts as a good insulator and provides more warmth than an old rug. And the entrance should be shielded from the wind and rain and should face the southeast.

The humane society notes that outdoor dogs require more food during the winter. They use up a lot of body energy in keeping warm and the extra food provides extra energy. A good rule, the society says, is one pound of food for every 25 pounds of dog.

And in cold weather, check the pet's water supply morning and evening to be sure it hasn't frozen.

If your pet lives indoors remember, the warm, dry air often dries out the skin and coat. This can be eased by adding a small amount of vegetable oil to the pet's diet, the society says.

If your pet is trimmed regularly, leave the coat longer in the winter for warmth. Small pets can be helped with a sweater, especially around the chest and neck area.

And, the society says, give special attention to your pet's feet, especially if rock salt or other chemicals are used to melt ice.

"Yes," Miss Marvin said. She claimed it was only one many times during the shooting of various films that she rescued Marvin from potentially dangerous situations caused by his drinking problem.

'Butterflies' Marked By Strong Performances

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Too often, dinner theaters in this area have opted for fluffy comedies played strictly for laughs by one dimensional characters. Plottines were digested as easily as the buffet dinners and just as quickly forgotten. And this may be one reason the Country Squire Dinner Theater's current production of "Butterflies Are Free" is so satisfying. Sure, it's got loads of laughs. But playwright Leonard Gershe also provides a twist in the third act, a figurative scraping of the epidermis which reveals to the audience the characters' feelings and motives and fears.

It's a nice touch in a play already showing a bit of comic wear and tear. And thanks to two consistently wonderful performances, it pays off handsomely at the Country Squire in the form of laughter, tears (the snuffles become quite audible) and, ultimately, applause.

Along with such themes as sacrifice and commitment, the introspective comedy also deals with both the problems and needs of the blind as it introduces us to Don Baker, a young blind man trying to make it on his own in an east side New York City apartment. The scope actor Paul Preece grants the role is little short of amazing. Indeed, his feel for the part is so powerful we lose all impressions of "an actor playing a blind man" and instead come to the conclusion Preece has overcome just a sight affliction to conquer the stage.

Of course, that's not the case, but a weird and satisfying feeling results all the same.

We become certain Preece cannot merely saunter about his apartment; instead, he has memorized the location of everything from the bed to the bookshelf to the kitchen sink, and must be counting steps while navigating. Watch how he uses his fingers when pouring wine. Notice how he forbids his eyes to sparkle with the same emotion expressed through his smile. Preece shows a marvelous realization of physical character, but he also succeeds on a deeper level.

Don Baker, after all, is still emotionally immature, no matter how much we love him and no matter when he lost his virginity. And Preece manages to express this — by his near-boasting after sex, by his inability to deal with rejection — without ever losing the support of his audience.

Freda Williams, last seen in the Lab Theater's impressive "Who's Happy Now," has the other lead role: the part of Jill Tanner, a naive free spirit who left UCLA because she couldn't find a place to park and came to the Big Apple to (what else?) pursue an acting career. As Goldie Hawn (who played Jill in the screen version of "Butterflies Are Free") could tell you, playing the goody woman is not as easy as it looks. And I understand there was a bit of doubt on some parts as to whether this particular role was well suited to the talents of Miss Williams.

Well, let's put that nonsense to rest right here. Freda Williams makes the part work for her. She is captivating throughout, a bundle of energy and laughter and only barely hidden feelings, and keeps us interested even through the flawed moments of the second act. Jill Tanner is a brash, somewhat sex-starved woman who was once married for six days ("it seemed like weeks") and now actively ducks the responsibilities of a commitment. And Miss Williams makes

Resignation Linked To Alleged Attack

TYLER (AP) — An East Texas sheriff will resign in connection with an alleged attack on a Tyler man who claimed he was kidnapped and beaten, two broadcast stations reported Wednesday.

Radio station KEBE and TV station KLTU quoted sources as saying that Cherokee County Sheriff Danny Stallings was the driver of the car in which the man allegedly was abducted Jan. 9.

FEELING THE LAY OF THE LAND — Paul Preece plays blind character Don Baker in the Country Squire Dinner Theater production of "Butterflies Are Free." The play, a mixture of comedy and poignancy, also features Freda Williams, Karen Hastings and Richard Privitt. Direction is by Barbara Tyler. Call the Country Squire for additional information. the nut likeable.

Quite frankly, the part itself isn't all that interesting. It's dated with phrases like "groovy" and has all the indications of a conservative's '60s putdown, and no amount of rewriting dialogue to show the woman likes contemporary bands such as Kiss (I said she was naive) can hide that fact. But Miss Williams molds the role to her own energy, skipping lightly over the dated phraseology and concentrating on the real laughs as she makes the part work for her. She makes the smallest of props, an apple for instance, work to her advantage.

And she also has a keen awareness of exposure to the audience: even when the action takes place elsewhere in the room, one can look at Miss Williams and see her acting and reacting. Watch her expressions as she turns her head back and forth to witness an argument between two other performers. The woman just doesn't rest.

The conflict of the play walks in the door with Don's mother, played by Karen Hastings. You see, while Don wants desperately a chance to make it on his own, his mother is scared he can't cope and wants to smother him at home with the protection of isolation. Both are blind to the other's real needs, until the wacky Jill opens their eyes. But the introspect-

The stations reported that federal prosecutors had asked Stallings to resign and face reduced charges.

Stallings told KEBE that rumors of his resignation were just that — rumors.

A former Cherokee County deputy, Thomas Glass Jr., was charged with violating the man's civil rights, and was also accused of kidnapping and assault with a deadly weapon.

laughs and Miss Hastings was forced to start over again. Hers is a poor portrayal, in the early moments anyway, full of jerky motion and emotion, and kept in the ballgame only through the inherent humor of the dialogue.

But in Act Three, we experience more than one kind of transition. Karen Hastings just as quickly begins to show an awareness of the feeling her character possesses, and she very ably shows both Don and the rest of us her own sacrifices, her own attempts to build confidence in her son. She also makes it clear through expression alone her recognition of her own weaknesses, and these proud moments affected the audience last week to such an extent that Miss Hastings actually won the loudest applause at the play's curtain call.

The set design and Barbara Tyler's direction, both of which show an awareness of theater in the round's sight lines, also deserve kudos. But there remains little doubt it is the performances — especially, I think, the consistent energetic efforts of both Paul Preece and Freda Williams — which may inspire patrons at the Country Squire to remember "Butterflies Are Free" a bit longer than past efforts. It's that rare opportunity to see a play in which the laughs would come no matter who spoke the funny lines, but the feeling in the introspective third act depends on the talent of the cast.

Suffice it to say, the talent shines in this production.

"Butterflies Are Free" will continue nightly, Tuesdays through Saturdays, through Feb. 18. Call the Country Squire Dinner Theater box office for reservations, daily menus and prices.
