Bakhtiar Problems Mount Iran Air Force Units Vow No Support For Coup

TEHRAN (UPI) — Nearly 4,000 elite Iranian air force officers and enlisted men went on a hunger strike, demanding withdrawal of all U.S. military advisers and said they would not support any armed forces coup, newspapers reported Sunday.

That development came as Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, secluded on a Nile island at Aswan, Egypt, prepared to leave, reportedly for the United States and possibly for Palm Springs, Calif., and the estate of Walter Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to Britain.

The revolt at two air force bases was the most serious unrest reported in the armed forces since the shah quit the country Tuesday. And it was a further setback for embattled Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, whose main support since the shah left has come from the armed forces.

Despite this new problem, however, diplomatic sources reported Bakhtiar had started to gain support among moderate elements, prompting his major political opponent, Ayatollah Ruhollah

Khomeini, to schedule his return to Iran on Friday — sooner than expected — for a showdown battle for control of the country.

Sunday an estimated 2,000 demonstrators rampaged through the streets of Tehran and tore up pictures of Khomeini, which had replaced pictures of the Shah. There was no violence, but the incident seemed to emphasize an evident increasing polarization among Iranian political groups, which until the shah's departure had been united against him.

In other political developments, the deputy war minister, Col. Mehdi Haj Moniri, resigned. Bakhtiar, in a continuing diplomatic shakeup, fired the country's ambassadors to the Soviet Union and Saudi Arabia and his consuls in New York, San Francisco and Karachi.

A bill also will be introduced in parliament calling for the trial of all people who held ministerial posts under the shah during the past 15 years. Deputies urged Bakhtiar to quickly approve another law dissolving the dreaded secret police, SAVAK, as quickly as possible.

The air force revolt began Friday at the sprawling west Iranian air base at Shahrakhi. Some 2,800 personnel staged a peace march in which 11 women were arrested, newspapers said, and later began a hunger strike.

Those arrested were subsequently released, but the hunger strike continued Sunday.

Unrest then spread to the Persian Gulf base of Bandarabbas, where 1,000 officers and men announced their support for the hunger strikers and issued a seven-point statement calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. military advisers and CIA agents.

There are 2,000 to 3,000 Americans serving as military advisers in Iran. Overall there are 12,000 Americans still in the country, down from a peak of about 42,000 less than four months ago.

The airmen said they would not support any military coup, would kill anyone issuing such coup orders and said they would not obey any orders "against the people of Iran."

The revolt was the most serious incident reported in the armed forces, which had been considered still totally loyal to the throne even though the shah had left. The 100,000-strong air force, with nearly 500 combat aircraft, was one of the strongest and most sophisticated in the world, and the airmen were considered among the most loyal of the armed forces to the shah.

Fresh reports swept Iran that the army could stage a coup d'etat to pre-empt Khomeini's triumphant return Friday from 15 years of exile.

Newspapers said America's "Alice in Wonderland" Iranian policy was "radicalizing" the situation and the Carter administration would be "well advised to remain silent on Iran."

Although some shops and businesses reopened in the last few days for the first time in weeks, at least 3.5 million persons were jobless because of nationwide strikes that helped force the shah to leave the country last week.

Judge In Davis Case Prepared To Declare Mistrial After Poll

HOUSTON (UPI) — A district judge Sunday said he was prepared to declare a mistrial Monday in the murder conspiracy case against Fort Worth millionaire T. Cullen Davis if jurors tell him they can't reach a verdict.

Judge Wallace Moore said a mistrial was likely if jurors remain split 8-4 and if each told him they doubted further deliberations could dissolve the deadlock.

"If they all say no, I'll probably wind it up," Moore said.

Defense lawyers have been requesting a mistrial since Friday, when the 8-4 impasse was disclosed.

Moore said he was prepared to release Davis on $30,000 bond immediately after a mistrial ruling.

"We have the funds available to post any bond, whatever it may be," said defense attorney Mike Gibson.

Jurors received the case Tuesday night and said Sunday they still were "diligently" trying to reach a decision.

"I know that they're trying to reach a decision and I appreciate that," Moore said.

Nevertheless, the judge said, it would be fruitless to continue if the vote remained firm. There was no indication whether the majority favored conviction or acquittal.

Prosecutor Jack Strickland said the "frustrating reality" of a mistrial had set in.

"But I'm convinced the case should be retried and convinced the case can be won."

"I'm not faulting this jury," Strickland said. "I'm disappointed and discouraged but I'm not impugning this jury. Obviously they're taking their responsibilities seriously."

Davis was arrested Aug. 20 after he gave an FBI informant $25,000. The informant testified the money was to be passed to a hit man as a fee for the slaying of Joe H. Eidsen, Davis's divorcee judge since 1974.

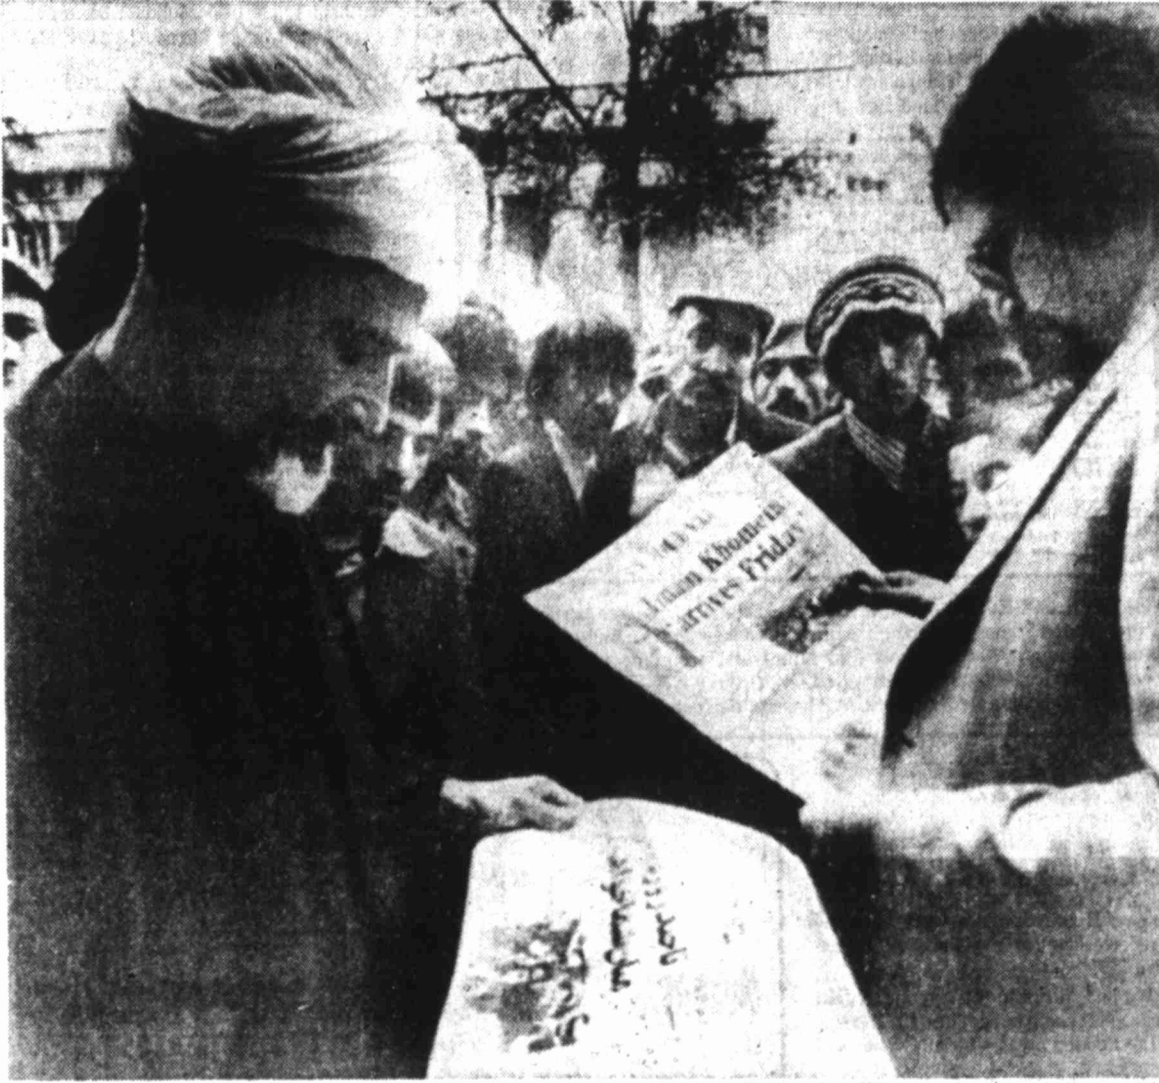

Davis testified he was returning the money to David McCrory, an employee and long-time acquaintance of the millionaire. Davis disputed the meaning of FBI tapes in which he and McCrory discussed having a number of persons slain.

Davis said he was just "playing along" with McCrory who, he said, he thought was an extortionist.

The jury worked four hours Sunday and will resume deliberations at 8 a.m. today.

Life Hard For Iranians In Winter Of Discontent

TEHRAN (UPI) — Power failures. Strikes. Shortages. Freezing temperatures. The shah has left his troubled nation, but life is still tough for Iran's 34 million people.

Some shops in downtown Tehran opened for the first time in weeks Saturday, but it still promises to be a long winter of mounting discontent.

Massive anti-government protest marches have attracted millions of demonstrators across Iran, and they vowed to continue nationwide strikes until a new Islamic republic under the spiritual guidance of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's exiled religious leader, is established.

An Islamic government seemed ultimately likely but only after further weeks of political and economic chaos and possible confrontation with a bewildered army seeking a role in the new order of things.

Meanwhile, in Tehran, the most familiar site remains the queues — double-parked, miles-long lines of vehicles stretch from each open gasoline station.

Many drivers have set up home in their autos. It can take two days to reach a pump. Black-market gasoline prices have soared 1,000 percent to $5.85 a gallon. Taxi prices went along, jumping to a minimum of $10.15.

Side-by-side with the cars stand householders seeking precious heating oil and kerosene for cooking. They link their cans with rope to block anyone from sneaking into the lines.

Temperatures hover around freezing during daylight and plunge at night.

About 50 people have died in clashes between pro-shah and anti-government forces since the monarch left Tuesday. In retaliation for the deaths, oil workers threatened to cut off even domestic supplies of petroleum products.

In a severe winter such as this one, Iran needs at least 1 million barrels of oil a day for domestic consumption. Refineries have been producing half that amount, and in recent days the figure skidded again, to around 430,000 barrels.

A total oil shutdown would be catastrophic. With snow blanketing much of the country and harsh temperatures gripping all the land, such a move could trigger hundreds and thousands of deaths from weather-related causes.

Even so, power strikes hit Tehran each evening, plunging the city into darkness. Only the rich and a few hotels have independent generators.

The international airport is officially closed and the nation's carrier, Iran Air, is also grounded. Its fleet of 747s, 707s and 727s lie unattended on the approach runways.

Surprisingly, perhaps, food shops and bakeries have continued to function even during the darkest days. Prices remained stable. There were only the occasional shortages of lamb and mutton reported by housewives.

Drivers who could afford — and get — gasoline turned Tehran's streets into something resembling a bumper car rink at an amusement park. With city policemen off duty, thousands of motorists delighted in roaring along one-way streets in the wrong direction, passing red lights with total impunity.

Schools have been closed since November. Even many of the very young children have turned into street revolutionaries for want of something to do, perhaps just to stay warm.

Job Training Agency In Trouble

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
BECAUSE it has not met monthly service goals, a federal job training agency that faced the same problem last year may lose its contract with the South Plains Association of Governments.

Juanita Forbes, overseer of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs for the area governmental panel, told The Avalanche-Journal that if the agency, SER, fails to meet its goals again this month, "I will have to recommend to SPAG" that the contract be canceled.

It then will be up to the board of directors either to extend the agency's grace period or give it 30 days notice that its contract is being invalidated because of unfulfilled terms.

If the board chooses the latter course, it will invoke for the first time a new clause it defensively inserted in agency contracts this year because of past unchecked infractions.

SER, which takes its name from the Spanish verb form, "to be," was one of the agencies spotlighted recently as a prime violator. The area panel of governments board learned that with only three months remaining in the fiscal year, SER had spent only half the money allocated for client training and job placement, falling far short of expected goals.

In addition to the cancellation clause, the board initiated monthly goals at the outset of the fiscal year and monthly reviews to replace the ineffective quarterly ones previously used.

SER's goal problems surfaced during the latest review. According to monitoring staff findings, as of Dec. 31, 1978, SER showed "underperformance" in:

— Individuals served for the program year to date (48 of the planned 62, for 77 percent of plan);

— Individuals entering this program year (9 of 24 planned, for 38 percent); and — Total number of participants entering employment (11 of the expected 28, for 39 percent).

Even with the 15 percent variance allowed monthly, the agency misses its goals by a wide margin. In December, only one Comprehensive Employment Training Act participant was placed in SER's on-the-job training program.

Johanna Franklin, SER director, declines to comment on the situation. But Tony Reyes, chairman of SER's board, acknowledged "It's a pathetic report."

The board is "very concerned regarding that report," Reyes said. But, he stressed, there are "justifiable reasons and causes" for the unmet goals.

One major problem, he said, is the type of clients referred to SER by the area governmental panel's intake office, which processes all initial applications to the training program.

"In the intake office's precipitance to get people referred, we believe they have from the outset and even now referred people who lack job readiness," Reyes contended.

Because many clients are not "entirely job ready," he added, "We do have to send them back. Otherwise we lose more than we gain because we get in trouble with employers."

Mrs. Forbes acknowledged to The A-J that referrals are a problem. But, she said, it is a matter of numbers, not quality.

She explained that in a meeting earlier this month with SER staffers, Mrs. Franklin complained the agency was not getting enough referrals from the intake center.

According to Mrs. Forbes, the SER director claimed she needed about 35 referrals to place five clients in jobs.

In order to do that, Mrs. Forbes claimed, the intake office would have to refer about 3,000 people to SER during

Texas House, Senate Far Apart On Biennial Spending Proposals

AUSTIN (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee will not begin hearings on its proposed budget for the next two years before late this week, but already the House and Senate are almost $500 million apart on their spending proposals.

The Senate Finance Committee already has begun its hearings, and is using the $20.8 billion budget prepared by the Legislative Budget Board as the basis for its spending bill.

But Speaker Bill Clayton said the House will trim more than $400 million from that bill before beginning budget hearings, including an across the board 2.5 percent reduction in spending for state agencies and a freeze on the hiring of any new state employees.

Clayton's proposal is sure to find favor with Gov. Bill Clements, who has proposed a 25,000 reduction in the number of state employees and a $1 billion tax reduction.

But Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby has expressed concern that the LBB budget is already a bare bones spending plan, and that further cuts could jeopardize state programs.

Clayton reappointed Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and stacked the panel with fiscal conservatives.

"I think you will find the makeup of the Appropriations Committee to be more conservative in membership than in a number of years," he told reporters.

"This may be more reason to believe that these reductions can be kept in the final appropriations product and that a half billion can be returned to the people of Texas through tax relief."

House committees are required to give five days notice before conducting public hearings on legislation, making it unlikely any major bills could be heard before next week.

"I think you can see that the legislature as far as the House side is concerned is ready for action, and we're going to try to give the people of Texas what they were asking for in the November election."

The speaker interpreted the November election, in which voters elected a Republican governor and overwhelmingly approved a tax relief amendment to the state constitution, to be a mandate for lower taxes and more efficient government operations.

AMBASSADOR TO CHINA — Leonard Woodcock, U.S. ambassador-designate to the People's Republic of China, appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" interview show Sunday in Washington, answering questions about the future of U.S.-China relations. (AP Laserphoto)

Reforms May Aid Trade Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leonard Woodcock, the ambassador-designate to Peking, said Sunday he hoped the liberalization of Chinese life would go far enough to make China eligible for most-favored-nation trade status with the United States.

Woodcock, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," said that in response to American concern, China has relaxed its policies against emigration for family reunification, a key factor in future trade relations.

Woodcock offered no statistics, but he said that if the number of Chinese allowed to leave and join relatives in the United States grows much higher, it will begin to approach the limits set by U.S. quotas. Those quotas limit immigration from most countries in the world to about 20,000 people annually.

The emigration question is a critical one because of the Jackson-Vanik amendment passed by Congress in 1974. It says that no state-controlled economy can have most-favored-nation status unless the president asks for a waiver stipulating that it allows free emigration.

Most-favored-nation status means that a country enjoys the lowest tariff rates when it trades with the United States. The Jackson-Vanik amendment has effectively prohibited the Soviet Union, China and a number of other communist states from realizing its benefits.

In the past year, both Russia and China apparently have relaxed their restrictions on emigration, leading one of the law's sponsors, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, to say it might be possible to grant waivers to both.

Woodcock said, however, the only agreement likely to be reached during next week's visit to the U.S. by Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping is for exchanges in science and technology.

And he warned against premature "euphoria" about the prospects for future U.S.-Chinese relations.

"Trade will increase but it's not going to be a bonanza," he said.

Woodcock, the former president of the United Auto Workers, has been in Peking for 18 months as head of the U.S. liaison office with the rank of ambassador. President Carter has nominated him to be the first full-fledged American ambassador to communist China, beginning March 1.

In a related development, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said he understood the administration would not push immediately for most-favored-nation status for China.

The West Virginia Democrat also said he plans to introduce legislation to establish a Cabinet-level Department of International Trade to consolidate trade policy and end what he termed "the cacophony of voices" that now set U.S. policy.

Byrd was interviewed on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers."

Officers Defended In Shooting

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gov. Scott Matheson says he could find "no indication of unprofessional conduct" by law enforcement officers in the shooting death of polygamist John Singer.

Singer, 48, who defied authorities and kept his children from public schools for months, was killed by a shotgun blast from 10 officers tried to arrest him last Thursday at his farm in Marion, Utah. He will be buried today.

refusing to follow school district guidelines in educating the children at home. Assault charges were added last October after he overpowered three officers who tried to arrest him by posing as reporters.

Authorities said officers had the Singer farm under surveillance for 18 days before the shooting and had planned to catch Singer alone and surround him.

"This plan, in my judgment, was put together as safely as possible. I would not characterize it as a poor plan," Matheson said.

After Singer was shot, state officials said they received hundreds of telephone calls, most of them from persons angry at the officers' actions. The state Capitol was evacuated on two occasions because of bomb threats.

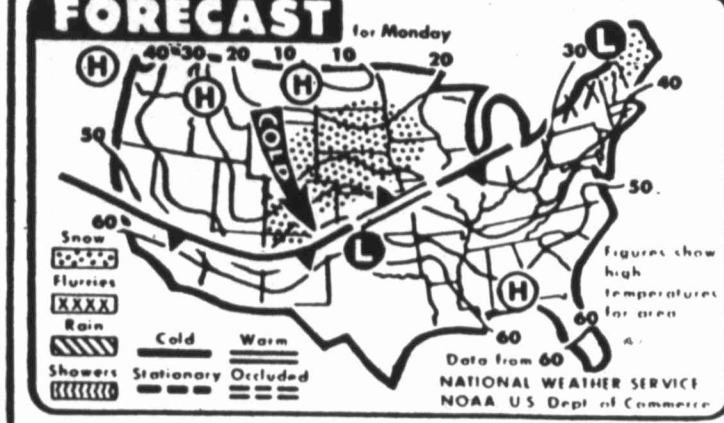

"This is a tragedy and I express my sympathy and sorrow to the family," Matheson told a Saturday news conference. But he said he was satisfied the officers' conduct was professional.

In other developments, an FBI agent, who asked not to be identified, said the agency would investigate Singer's death on the basis of a civil rights complaint. He would not comment on the source of the complaint.

Utah Attorney General Robert Hansen said he had assigned two deputies to study the case should a civil action be filed against the state. "There is always a prospect of such a lawsuit," he said.

Singer had said he did not want his children in public schools for religious reasons and because he did not want them exposed to drugs, homosexuality and teachings of racial equality.

He was cited for contempt of court for Supplies Airlift Aids Flood-Stranded Indians

GALLUP, N.M. (UPI) — National guard helicopters from Arizona and New Mexico Sunday airlifted 60-pound bags of food and supplies to hundreds of families stranded by rain and snow on the sprawling Navajo Reservation.

A weeklong series of rain and snow storms turned the reservation into a quagmire of mud and knee-deep water. Roads throughout the reservation were no more than deep ruts and travel was impossible, even with four-wheel drive vehicles.

"The roads are simply in terrible shape," Maj. Gregory Kinney of the Navajo Tribal Police said. "Ruts are two to three feet deep and not even horses can make it. The only way to get out is to walk out."

Two helicopters from the New Mexico National Guard and two more from the Arizona National Guard were airlifting bags of food and fuel to families living in remote areas from Tuba City, Ariz., to an area just west of Gallup, N.M.

Each bag of food contained about a week's supply of beans, rice, flour, oatmeal, macaroni, milk and various other supplies.

No deaths had been reported although five persons who required medical care were airlifted by helicopter from various parts of the reservation Saturday.

Frank Garcia, civil defense director for McKinley County, said the New Mexico operation hoped to reach 400 families.

Sunday. Hundreds more were expected to receive supplies from the airlift in Arizona.

"We had to call in the National Guard because we could not get into the interior of the flooded areas with any vehicles," Kinney said.

Two reservoirs located in the Greasewood area southwest of Window Rock collapsed Thursday, sending water rushing into low lying areas.

"So far we've been lucky," Kinney said. "We haven't had any loss of life but it's clear now and that will make it worse because the remaining snow will melt."

Reality Mars Suburban Dream

By JANE SEE WHITE
 LEVITTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — When they left a city apartment to buy a home here in 1971, Kathryn and Thomas Pepe thought they'd invested in a solid foothold to begin clambering upward to middle-class security.

But the Pepees' suburban foothold has proved so slippery that their planned assault on the American dream has become, instead, a nightmarish scramble to hang on.

"The only way a young couple can survive in Levittown today is by having friends or family who help them. We are not fighting now to better ourselves. We're just fighting to survive," Kathryn Pepe says.

There is bitter irony in the Pepees' struggle because, for 31 years, buying a Levittown home has symbolized success to those who aim to better themselves, who yearn for tree-lined suburban security.

It was here that William J. Levitt created a sprawling suburb of 17,447 cookie-cutter houses in four frenzied years after World War II. At his peak, Levitt built 36 assembly-line houses a day.

Levittown was unappealing in its surrounding sameness, but it offered thousands of returning war veterans their single, best shot at owning a home. Levitt's top price was under $10,000; his lowest $6,900.

Today Levittown's sweet promise has soured. Like suburbanites everywhere, homeowners in this ultimate bedroom community find their rising expectations stunted by spiraling prices and crippling taxes.

"There are plenty of places like Levittown. It's a microcosm of the middle-class family under stress," urban expert Bernard Frieden of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology says.

At $20,000 yearly income, he says, "you really feel it — the taxes, the fuel and utility bills, the cost of repairs and services."

A Nassau County official says the stress here translates this way:

"Levittowners look down-and-out, up against it. The houses are well-built and few could be called declining, but they need a coat of paint. There's no capital investment going on. You don't see new cars parked on the streets. They just don't have any disposable income."

Levittown real estate brokers say the solid look-alike Cape Cod and ranch style Levitt houses, offered now for an average of about $36,000, just aren't "moving."

The Pepees put it differently: They say they're "stuck."

"The people across the street have been trying to sell their house for two years," Tom Pepe says. "The guy next door, too. Nobody wants to pay these taxes. We're all stuck here."

Since 1971, school taxes in Levittown have increased a staggering 97 percent, from an average of $859 to $1,699, according to Nassau County Executive Francis Purcell.

In 1971, Pepe, a dark, mustachioed 33-year-old New York City police detective, bought a four-bedroom Levitt ranch from the original owner. The price was $34,000, and he had to scrape to swing the deal.

Pepe's annual property tax bill has climbed steadily since. Today, at $2,287.45, it totals nearly $200 a month. Between 1975 and 1977, his monthly school taxes alone climbed $50. Today, $1,353 of his property taxes go to the public schools.

Meanwhile other costs were climbing: In 1971, the Pepees paid 18 cents a gallon for heating oil; now it costs 57 cents a gallon. In 1971, electricity cost $12.50 a month; now their monthly bill is $50.

"We'd have lost this house a long time ago without the help of my family," Kathryn Pepe said. She's a dusky 32-year-old woman who says she won't take a job until 5-year-old Steven enters Summit Lane Elementary School, where his sister Lisa is in the 5th grade.

The Pepees are not average Levittowners; they have more income. In 1978, Pepe earned $23,100, compared with a per capita Levittown income that county planners estimate at around $18,000.

Still, the Pepees struggle. He wants to move away. She wants to stay.

Each week, they stash $10 in a Christmas Club savings account. But the Christmas money usually goes for other expenses: in 1972, for closing fees on the house; in 1973, for a hospital deposit preparatory to Steven's birth; in 1974, to install new heating; in 1975, to repair the cesspool; in 1976, to pay Lisa's medical bills.

"Look, I'm not ashamed. I make spaghetti. We eat pancakes some nights for dinner. There's never enough money. I'm rich if I have $25 a week to spend for food," Mrs. Pepe says.

Pepe drives to work in a 1965 Dodge that a neighbor had junked; Mrs. Pepe drives a seven-year old Chevrolet. Pepe does many repairs on the 30-year-old house himself.

"I grew up in an apartment in the city," Pepe says. "I figure my kids, I'm going to give them everything I've got."

His wife injects, "But we don't want to spend every dime on elementary and high school so there's none left for college. I have great aspirations for my children, but school taxes alone can ruin your way of life."

Meanwhile, there is virtually no local industry to ease the tax burden. Local stores face both high property taxes and competition from massive new shopping malls. The main drag, Hempstead Turnpike, is checkered with boarded-up, graffiti-smeared buildings, once groceries, restaurants, and furniture stores.

The tax burden is complicated because Levittown is unincorporated. Residents pay taxes to the town of Hempstead, to Nassau County, and to a dizzying jumble of agencies — fire districts, school districts, water districts, parks districts, libraries. Chamber of Commerce President Charles Rindner suggests that "Nobody is minding the store in Levittown and that's what's wrong."

But now Levittown residents are doing their own minding. More than 200 representatives of civic groups met recently with government officials to voice complaints, and a group formed to cut school costs got four candidates elected to the seven-member school board.

Meanwhile, Levittown and other school districts won a court decision declaring unconstitutional the state's property tax system of financing public education. An appeal is expected.

Homeowner Pepe says of the tax suit: "If the board of education had known all these years how to spend a dollar, it wouldn't be needed. The problem is spending."

But the Pepees are optimistic about the new school board. "They call the new board 'the tax board,'" she says. "They say all they care about is taxes. But I believe in those people so much. They're our only hope. We are the average American people and we're fighting for our lives."

Villagers Treat Threat Of Poison As 'Bunkum'

SHIPHAM, England (AP) — What do you do when the government tells you the village where you live is nestled atop poison, a time bomb that may be eating years off your life?

The people of Shipham, in Somerset County's beautiful Mendip Hills, didn't panic.

"It's all bunkum," said one octogenarian villager. "People live to a ripe old age in this village."

The poison scare was sprung on the 1,000 villagers without warning Friday when British Environment Minister Denis Howell told a London news conference that dangerously high levels of the poisonous metal cadmium had been found in local soil.

The toxic element, a by-product of zinc refining, was left in the soil after once-active zinc mines in the area were abandoned about 110 years ago.

The government called a special town meeting for Monday to explain the danger. It asked residents to cooperate by not eating locally grown produce, and by coming in for physical examinations. Smokers were told to quit because tobacco smoke could magnify the danger.

"I have eaten the produce all my life and will continue to do so. I have never heard of any ill effects," objected the chairman of the local council, 66-year-old George Thiery, who runs a 149-acre farm.

He said the vast majority of villagers were reacting in much the same way.

One outraged resident was Charles Day, 80, who lives with his wife Ellen, 77, in a neat cottage where he still tends a one-acre vegetable garden.

"I don't know what the fuss is about," he told a reporter over the weekend. "It's all bunkum. I intend to carry on eating my own produce. People live to a ripe old age in this village. We buried a friend of mine recently and he was 89."

Said Thiery: "The evidence at the moment is in the test tube, but on the evidence of my own eyes, we have nothing to fear."

Nonetheless, the government has launched a $140,000 program to monitor villagers' health and to test soil from every backyard. Housewives were even asked to save the dust from their vacuum cleaners for lab analysis.

Citizens Cynical About Labor, Business Efforts

By LOUIS HARRIS

Americans have the general impression that neither big labor nor big business is being very cooperative with the federal government's voluntary program to keep prices and wage increases under control.

A substantial 49 percent believe that unions are not adhering to the guidelines at all. 32 percent think they are being somewhat cooperative and only 4 percent feel that unions are being highly cooperative.

As for big business, 40 percent feels it is not cooperating at all, 44 percent think it's being only somewhat cooperative, and 5 percent believe big business is highly committed to the voluntary program.

Nonetheless, a recent ABC News-Harris Survey of 1,498 adults nationwide showed that, by 53-32 percent, a majority of Americans still favors the overall Carter anti-inflation program, which includes cuts in the federal budget, restraints in federal hiring, voluntary controls on prices and wages, and a plan to give employees a tax credit for the difference between a 7 percent wage rise and any rise in the cost of living over 7 percent. However, right after the president announced this program, public backing stood at a higher 63-24 percent.

Another key element in Carter's economic policy is his plan to halt the drop of the dollar abroad. This includes a program of raising interest rates on all borrowing in this country and making an agreement with national banks in Japan, West Germany and Switzerland to support the dollar. The public approves of this plan by 43-39 percent. But early in November, just after the plan was announced, a much higher 57-24 percent majority favored it.

One of the potential problems recognized by President Carter when he launched his program was whether Americans would give him enough time to make these new economic measures work. After two months, the public is already showing signs of impatience. Support for Carter's anti-inflation program has dropped 10 points and support for the dollar rescue effort has gone down 14 points. Unless the President and Alfred Kahn Jr., his anti-inflation czar, can stop this erosion of support soon, it will be increasingly difficult to obtain public cooperation with the program.

For the moment, however, people see themselves as being more cooperative than either big labor or big business. Although 23 percent feel that the public is not cooperating at all, 56 percent feel it is giving some degree of cooperation, and 12 percent feel it is being very cooperative.

Looming over the entire anti-inflation program is growing public concern that stopping inflation will entail putting the country back into a recession. While a plurality of 47 percent thinks that the country is already in a recession, a much higher 56-25 percent majority is convinced that America will be in a recession 12 months from now. This is the most pessimistic the public has been about a recession since November 1975.

AN EDITORIAL:

Red Mark On Face Of Africa

FOR REASONS as diverse as the peoples and cultures it has nurtured, the vast territory of sub-Saharan Africa is rapidly rising to the forefront of American policy making.

The journey from minor significance is nearing an end as a parade of events today challenges the U.S. to define and coordinate its diplomatic, economic and military aims in the region.

As public debate over the basic design of our African policy continues, major questions concerning America's security interests in the subcontinent remain unanswered.

Appropos of this premise were remarks published this week by Gen. Bruce Palmer retired Army vice chief of staff. To wit:

THE UNITED STATES, said he, should seek political, economic and military leverage in those areas or states of Southern Africa of strategic importance to the West.

Furthermore, a military presence, "however small," should be maintained where appropriate.

Among Palmer's specific recommendations for U.S. policy thrusts in Africa:

- * In peace-keeping efforts, the U.S. should opt for inter-African forces, but with logistical support where necessary.
* The current military planning and policy vacuum, including administration of the military assistance program, should be filled by assigning responsibility for the area.
* U.S. business investment and trade should be encouraged, aimed not only at making use of Africa's raw materials, but also at a broader economic relationship;

* Black Americans should be encouraged to participate in such activities as military assignments in black Africa, "(because) such a policy makes much sense for the U.S., whose black population is larger than that of any African nation except Nigeria."

"THE UNITED STATES," Palmer writes in the AEI Defense Review, "should have sound cogent political, economic, military and other reasons for lending assistance, but denial of such also requires good reasons.

"For such a denial is considered patronizing and condescending, even racist by some Africans, and in any case will be deeply resented. Our competitors understand this, unfortunately, all too well."

Of the current presence of significant Soviet and Cuban military forces in Sub-Saharan Africa, Palmer concludes:

"It is not clear whether the Soviet Union has a grand design to seek domination of the African continent, or whether the Soviets are simply 'playing it by ear,' pursuing an aggressive, opportunistic policy where a weakness in the local regime is perceived.

"In practical terms, it makes little difference which conclusion is correct, because U.S. inaction, or procrastination, can give the Soviet Union a free ride in Africa—and if the Soviets do not have a grand design, they will invent one."

AN EDITORIAL:

Government By Two-By-Four

GOVERNMENT spending and revenues are rising steadily and so are citizen blood pressures. The coincidence is not accidental.

Taxes are getting higher and higher. Government intrusion in our daily lives is expanding rapidly, and citizen dissatisfaction with the results of government activity simultaneously continues to grow.

Citizen disenchantment with government is well known. But unlike a private business faced with unwilling customers, modern government does not seem to have the capacity to correct itself.

The armies of bureaucrats employed by governments surely have the incentive to maintain the status quo and to sandbag any attempts at reform.

The root cause, of course, lies deeper than these examples of nonsense.

After all, they do not add up to the half trillion dollar mark—which is where the federal budget is headed this year. Rather, it is the programs that consume millions of dollars—and at the federal level, billions of dollars—that are driving up the tax burden.

THE PROBLEM is not, ironically, the programs themselves but rather the perennial clash of the special interests and the public interest, and it permeates every program of government, military and civilian, and every level of government—federal, state and local.

Many economists have prepared analyses showing that many government projects are uneconomical, are simply not worth doing because the costs are greater than the benefits. But reason has not prevailed.

Welfare and other income maintenance benefits are paid to able-bodied people who are extremely fussy about the kind of job they will accept, but not so fastidious about cashing a monthly check from Uncle Sam.

One is reminded of the animal that the master hit with a two-by-four, not out of meanness, but simply as the only way of gaining the beast's attention.

It seems the political equivalent of that two-by-four is needed to call the legislatures' attention to the degenerating financial plight of the taxpayer.

ART BUCHWALD:

Billy Was His Mom's Second Favorite Son

WASHINGTON—"Poor Jimmy," a friend of mine from Georgia said.

"Why do you say 'Poor Jimmy'?" "Here is a fellow who has arrived at the highest office in the land. As Commander-in-Chief he can call up the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps at a moment's notice.

"He can tell the Russians to stop messing around in Iran, and lift up the phone and send a flock of F-15s to Saudi Arabia.

"He can set wage and price guidelines for every man, woman and child in the United States, and by one stroke of the pen sell all the gold in Fort Knox.

"As President of the United States he can do anything he wants to except one thing—he can't control his own brother."

"If THE President can't do that," I said, "he's in a lot of trouble."

"It won't come as any big surprise to people around Plains that Billy is out to do in Jimmy. He's been sore since Jimmy became President."

"But why? I should think Billy would be proud."

"No way. Billy is still mad that his mother let Jimmy run for President instead of him."

"I didn't think Billy wanted the job."

"Billy's always wanted anything Jimmy got. He was mad when Jimmy went to Annapolis. He was angry when Jimmy came back to Plains to save the family's peanut business.

"He can't stand the thought that Jimmy doesn't drink. For years his mother's been saying 'Billy, why can't you be more like your brother Jimmy?'"

"THE FINAL blow came when Lillian called both boys into the house and said, 'I want one of you to be President of the United States, and it isn't going to be you, Billy.'"

"That really ticked Billy off and he said, 'All my life I've been playing second fiddle to Jimmy. You liked him more than you liked me. Even as a kid when we went to school you put more jam on his peanut butter sandwiches than you did mine."

"How come I never get to run for President?" "And Lillian said, 'Because you wouldn't know how to act if you were President. You'd sit in the Oval Office drinking beer all day with your buddies, and then...let's just say you aren't house-trained well enough to live in the White House.'"

"WELL, YOU can imagine how this hurt Billy," my friend continued.

"He made up his mind at that moment that if Jimmy got to be President he'd make his life miserable."

"He's certainly succeeded," I said.

"Billy couldn't prevent his brother from being elected President but he's determined to see that he doesn't get a second term."

"But Billy's made so much money out of being the President's brother you'd think he'd want him to stay."

"He has made money out of it. But now he's become the country's No. 1 bore."

"PEOPLE WON'T even drink Billy's beer, much less pay $2 to see him judge a hog-calling contest in Arkansas.

"So he's got nothing left to do but offend every segment of the electorate to make sure that in 1980 Jimmy doesn't have a chance of being elected mayor of Plains, let alone President of the United States."

"What do you think the President would do about the situation if he could?"

"Folks in Georgia believe Jimmy might decide to be reborn, but this time he's going to ask to be an only child."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Mission Improbable

WASHINGTON—Simmering resentment among top U.S. military officials over President Carter's effort to persuade Iran's powerful armed forces to back the new civilian government almost boiled in early January.

The cause of the near-crisis: Carter's decision to send a U.S. Air Force general with no political or diplomatic experience to Tehran.

Gen. Robert Huyser, a deputy NATO commander, was assigned to talk the Iranian army into supporting what the U.S. military regards as a left-wing government with anti-American sentiments.

Huyser failed in his mission, but that is not the cause of anger among U.S. generals; they criticize the Carter administration for ordering it. Gen. Alexander Haig, the supreme NATO commander and Huyser's boss, was one of the unhappiest of the U.S. military officers.

ANDREW TULLY:

Dunk In Treasure

WASHINGTON—Bug off, Congress. Bug off, Washington bureaucracy. Romance has reared its lovely head in our perplexed land.

Not the romance of hugs and kisses and whispered sweet nothings, but The McCoy of Stevenson's "Treasure Island."

A 36-year-old Pennsylvanian named Burt B. Webber Jr., who spends part of his time supporting his wife and four children by working at such prosaic jobs as selling encyclopedias and operating a welding torch, has found an authentic Spanish galleon full of gold and silver.

Webber discovered the wreck of the Concepcion along a 16-mile coral reef off the Dominican Republic, where the vessel sank in 1641.

AFTER INSPECTING pieces of eight and other precious items brought up by Webber's search team, Dominican experts confirmed the discovery.

The find was made last Nov. 28. So did Webber call a press conference as soon as it was confirmed? He did not. He went home to spend the holidays with family and relatives before traveling to New York to make the announcement.

Webber says he was bitten by the bug when he read "Treasure Island" in high school. He took up scuba diving when he was 16.

Turned 20, he signed on with treasure expedition after treasure expedition without finding so much as a counterfeit peso.

Neighbors in his home town of Annville, Pa., told each other: "Burt's off on another expedition. We've heard this story before."

BUT BURT believed "this story." It was the fantasy of his life. He went into business by persuading an investment broker in Chicago to put up some money.

He got other backers around the country, and formed Sea Quest International.

So by 1977, Webber had a 65-foot salvage ship and a nine-man crew. From Puerto Plata, in the Dominican Republic, he made a systematic survey of the long coral reef. The search lasted five months. Nothing.

He acquired a 113-foot former British minesweeper and a 16-man crew and went back to work. On that great day in November, he went down with something called a cesium magnetometer.

LIGHTS ON THE magnetometer's console change hues, and vibrations in the head set intensify when the gadget finds what treasure hunters call "anomalies."

Webber swam around, "and there it was." The magnetometer started to produce magnetic anomalies as he darted in and out of the coral canyons.

Shortly, the search team brought up pieces of eight minted in 1638, 1639 and 1640, and Chinese porcelains that had been brought from Mexico and put aboard the Concepcion for shipment to Spain.

No one knows how much the find is worth. But I don't think Burt Webber cares all that much. He is in the old romantic tradition of men for whom the fun is in the searching. Meanwhile, folks have stopped laughing.

JAY HARRIS:

The Real Show...

W. J. ESTELLE is a man who calls 'em like he sees 'em.

As a result, when he gets through talking, about the state's prison system, the courts—both state and federal—the academicians, politicians, vested interest groups and the citizens, (you don't have to ask for a translation.

Estelle is head of the Texas Department of Corrections. As such, he has made some pretty tough calls in the seven years he has headed up the system which now houses some 24,300 inmates, runs in the black and has the lowest per capita cost ratio in the nation.

Estelle, who spent 18 years with the California prison system and two in Montana before coming to Texas, spoke at the Downtown Rotary Club last week. It's too bad every citizen can't hear him. He is a "law and order man," with a hefty helping of common sense.

AND THAT is the way he runs the Texas Department of Corrections.

Estelle grabbed his audience's attention with the question, "Who's Running This Show?" The business of law and order, that is.

And he followed that by noting that those most directly involved in the work of public protection and safety are constantly besieged with such questions as: Why the increase in criminal activity? Why are your institutions overcrowded? Why did my child go wrong? Why can't you 'rehabilitate' more people?"

These questions, The Man says, come from such sources as the Academicians, Politicians, Courts, vocal Vested Interest Groups, Clients and "sometimes in the past, Citizens."

What bothers Estelle is that people ask these questions, he says, as if we are running the show. Actually, "we are running the smallest part of it and then sometimes barely allowed to run that."

THE MAN WHO daily makes decisions affecting some of the most hardened men and women in the nation expounded on his theme.

Some of the courts, he says, are trying to help. "The state courts generally are making an honest effort to reflect the community they serve. Most courts understand alternatives open to them and are using them wisely..."

"Our federal courts present a different picture...Lifetime appointment to any public job, in my opinion, is a contradiction to what we profess to believe about representative government."

Then, making one of his sharpest charges, the TDC chief asserted: "They entertain and sometimes encourage suits from plaintiffs who are not noted for veracity and who are allowed to make any allegation, however outlandish and we must respond to baseless allegations with sworn depositions and testimony. I have no problem with these conditions—I just believe my adversary or accuser should be held to the same rules and be penalized for bringing false accusation when so proven."

ON THE SAME but a broader theme, Estelle says he understands the court's function in interpreting constitutional issues.

But, "I do resent the incursion of the federal courts, not only on states' rights, but their playing loose and easy with matters clearly defined as the responsibility of legislative and executive branches of government."

Warming to his subject, Estelle said of academicians: "A sorry record. Forty years of expensive programs with no improvement."

"The efforts of academicians have been one of fad and fashion, grasping at straws in the wind, panaceas and nostrums—we in the field have been conned—look at us, we are their byproducts. Our worst sin in collusion with the academicians has been to hold out vain and hollow promise to citizens."

THE VESTED interest groups, Estelle charges, have a right to be heard, "but we need to let these groups know that while we will listen, we have a responsibility to the total community we serve and cannot abdicate for convenience and pleasure."

Then, in further answer to "Who's running the show?" he says: "In some cases, it appears prisoners are making the best effort to wrest the balance of power from its rightful place..."

His next target was the politicians. "Strange as it may seem," he says, "I have a high regard for the true politician. Whatever success our Democracy has had, the fact we have survived 202 years is a tribute to the real politician. They have succeeded in spite of their colleagues who were corrupt, stupid and cursed with a knee-jerk response to every crisis or passing situation."

THEN, ESTELLE got down to the nitty-gritty. "The people 'running the show,'" he says, "are the citizens...You and I and all of our neighbors."

This is good, he says, but he warns against seeking too much change too soon, such as massive tax cutting—"there ain't no free lunch." This, he says, is the "great risk" of Democracy.

That risk, he says, is as Constitutional Delegate George Mason put it: "The genius of the people must be consulted."

Estelle sees a new breed of activism. And he says he hopes from it "will be a return of the conscience struck, serious citizen, in and out of government, who will make a commitment to dealing with cause and not effect." Such a commitment must be made to our children and youth, and with the understanding that Prevention is the word. Responsibility is the tool, that Right and Wrong, Obligation and Duty, Decency and Honor are the creeds.

As The Man said, they always have been and we need them now more than ever.

Local Thieves Make Big Hauls

Burglars and thieves escaped with thousands of dollars worth of valuable property from city residents in the weekend's criminal activity.

Thomas Hulett Joyce of 2310 39th St. told officers that someone removed a $1,525 stereo system from his home sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Victor R. Belt and Tony Plumber reported that $2,562 worth of their property was taken from their van sometime late Saturday or early Sunday, while it was parked at 9001 Flint Ave. The stolen goods included clothing, a CB radio and stereo system.

Burglars reportedly carted off $2,665 worth of property, including a color TV, antique clocks, clothing and luggage, from Barbara Taylor's apartment at 5437 Brownfield Highway sometime Saturday morning.

Jamie Lynn Kelley of 2004 16th St. reported losing $480 worth of property to break-in artists sometime between 8:30 p.m. and 11:55 p.m. Saturday. The stolen goods included a stereo system, portable black and white TV and a clock radio.

Police late Sunday were seeking two black men, who allegedly choked James Brent Wynn before making off with his wallet, which contained $18, in a Saturday night strong-arm robbery incident.

Wynn told police the two men approached him about 9:36 p.m. Saturday, while he was walking in an alley in the 700-block of Broadway.

The complainant reported the duo asked him about the cover charge and price of beer at a nearby club. At that point, Wynn said, one of the men grabbed him by the throat and began choking him while the other man grabbed his wallet. The men fled east down the alley, Wynn reported.

While a 66-year-old housewife was in a grocery store parking lot in the 5100-block of Indiana Avenue Saturday night, a young man reportedly grabbed her purse and pushed her to the ground.

Ruth Johnson estimated her loss at $25. She described the suspect as white, 18 to 25, blond and of medium height and build.

Police responded to an assault call at 2908 Duke St. about 1:20 a.m. Sunday, where they found Robert Villarreal, 18, lying on the living room floor. Villarreal had been beaten about the head and stomach. His father told officers that his son had been found lying in the 2900-block of Duke Street. Emergency Medical Services attendants transported Villarreal to St. Mary's Hospital, where he was later treated and released.

Obituaries

Mixed Blessing For Burglars

POINT PLEASANT, N.J. (UPI) — Police said Sunday they cracked a burglary ring by reading obituaries in newspapers — the same method the thieves used to pick their victims.

Homes of several people who died in the Point Pleasant area have been burglarized in recent weeks. Police figured the burglars were watching the obituary columns to find out when homes would be likely to be vacant.

Police also began reading the obituaries and sending stakeout teams to several homes while families were away at funerals.

A stakeout paid off Saturday in the arrest of three burglary suspects who showed up at one of the homes.

Lee Tompkins, 23, of Toms River, Richard Savino, 20, of Dover Township and a 17-year-old juvenile whose name was not released were held on charges of burglary, larceny and related offenses. Tompkins and Savino were sent to the Ocean County jail to await arraignment.

Police said the investigation was continuing and that more arrests were expected.

Number Of Refugees Nears Half-Million Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — American estimates show that since the fall of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos to communist forces in April 1975, the tide of refugees fleeing those countries is approaching the half-million mark.

The latest figures provided by official U.S. sources show that 475,000 persons have emigrated to other countries or are living in temporary camps in Thailand, Malaysia and other parts of Asia.

The 475,000 figure does not include an estimated 160,000 persons — mostly Vietnamese of Chinese ancestry — believed to have gone from Vietnam to China.

State Department sources say some of these people may have returned to Vietnam: a private refugee commission says the Chinese apparently have encouraged some of them to move on to Hong Kong, an area described as already "overloaded."

The known refugees and those who may have gone to China constitute slightly more than 1 percent of the total estimated population of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

The sources say there may be an additional 150,000 Cambodians who fled the harsh regime of Pol Pot and went to Vietnam.

The status of these people is not clear,

U.S. officials said. "They are refugees from their own country, but they are still in Indochina, so it's difficult to know how to categorize them," said one.

However, officials believe it was from this reservoir of manpower that the so-called United National Front for National Salvation was organized to overthrow the Phnom Penh government earlier this month with Vietnamese support.

Some western authorities have estimated that as many as a million Cambodians may have been executed or perished due to government actions since 1975.

Among the Indochinese who have been able to find permanent new homes, the United States has received 180,000 and will have taken in about 207,000 by April 30, officials say. As of last November, 45,000 had emigrated to France, 16,000 to Australia, 9,000 to Canada, 1,500 to Malaysia, 1,300 to West Germany, and a thousand or fewer to seven or eight other countries.

The United States and the other major recipients have agreed to take more large groups of refugees. But Leo Cherne, chairman of the International Rescue Committee and co-leader of a special committee.

The world's smallest army is that of San Marino, with a total regular strength of 11 men.

zens commission on the refugees, said following a recent visit to Southeast Asia that refugees were still coming out of Indochina at about twice the rate that they can be accepted and processed for immigration elsewhere.

Figures provided by Cherne's group showed there are about 130,000 refugees in Thailand — 118,000 Laotians, 15,000 Cambodians and 5,000 Vietnamese. It said there are 50,000 more in Malaysia — including 30,000 crammed into an 85-acre encampment on the coastal island of Pulau Bidong. Another 6,000 refugees are in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Macao, and lesser numbers in the Philippines, Singapore and Indonesia.

While most refugees flee overland rather than by sea, in recent months it has been the Vietnamese "boat people" who have attracted most of the world's attention, partly because half or more of those fleeing Vietnam by boat may have perished at sea, authorities in Thailand and the Philippines say.

The number of boat people fleeing Vietnam was estimated by the United Nations refugee experts at 75,000 as of two months ago. Their numbers have increased threefold in the past year while those escaping by crossing borders have doubled, Cherne's commission says.

Boat People Go Ashore In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) — More than 1,100 Vietnamese refugees came ashore Sunday from battered old freighters in three East-Asian cities, ending weeks of privation and fear with a chance to start a new life in the West.

Clutching their meager possessions, 1,046 Vietnamese from the rusted freighter Huey Fong set foot in this British colony after almost a month at sea.

The new evacuees waved to passers-by as they were helped aboard double-decker buses for a ride to a transit camp. They were the second group to be taken from the ship, which has been anchored off Hong Kong since Dec. 23 while those aboard pleaded for refuge.

The first group, 372, left the ship Sunday. About 2,000 remain aboard.

On Sunday, a pregnant 27-year-old woman was rushed from the ship by police launch and taken to a hospital, officials said. A sick man also was among the evacuated group, they said.

A group of 58 Vietnamese from the freighter Hai Hong, still anchored off Port Klang, Malaysia, left Sunday on commercial flights for resettlement in the United States. A second group of 117 will leave for America Monday, a police spokesman said.

About 600 refugees remain aboard the Hai Hong, which arrived off Port Klang on Nov. 9 with 2,450 refugees aboard. Most of those taken from the ship have been resettled in Canada, West Germany, France and Switzerland.

In the Philippine capital of Manila late Sunday, 53 men, women and children from the freighter Tung An left for homes in France on a regular commercial flight.

A French Embassy official said 26 other refugees from the ship, which sailed into Manila Bay on Dec. 27 with 2,300 boat people aboard, were being processed for resettlement in France.

The Philippine government has refused permission for the refugees to land, but has agreed to provide them with food, water and medicine.

"We would like to accept more and are still waiting for word from Paris," a French Embassy official said.

In recent months decrepit freighters crammed with refugees from Vietnam, most of them ethnic Chinese, have arrived in several Southeast Asian ports, only to be refused entry until governments in the West promise to open their doors wider to the desperate flood of humanity.

The freighter captains usually say they have plucked the refugees from foundering boats, but authorities suspect the ships have been chartered and allowed to take the refugees from communist Vietnam.

The Huey Fong was barred entry to Hong Kong because the government said the ship's next port-of-call was in Taiwan. But on Friday the government decided to rescind its order and grant the refugees a temporary haven.

Canada has offered to take 300 to 400 from the 5,000 refugees already in the Hong Kong camps to make room in the camps for the Huey Fong passengers. Britain has offered to take 1,000 and the Philippines say.

The United States so far has not offered to accept more refugees to make room for the Huey Fong people, said a spokesman at the U.S. Consulate here.

Since the fall of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos to communist forces in April 1975, an estimated 475,000 Indochinese refugees have fled to Thailand, Malaysia and other parts of Asia, U.S. figures show.

The United States has received 180,000 and will have taken in about 207,000 by April 30, officials say. As of last November, 45,000 had emigrated to France, 16,000 to Australia, 9,000 to Canada, 1,500 to Malaysia, 1,300 to West Germany, and a thousand or fewer to seven or eight other countries, State Department sources say.

Figures provided by the International Rescue Committee show there are about 118,000 Laotians, 15,000 Cambodians and 5,000 Vietnamese refugees in Thailand. It said there are 50,000 more in Malaysia and 6,000 others scattered throughout several Southeast Asian nations.

The number of boat people who have fled Vietnam was estimated by U.N. refugee experts at 75,000 as of two months ago, but their numbers have increased threefold in the past year. Half or more of those fleeing Vietnam by boat may have perished at sea, authorities in Thailand and the Philippines say.

Austin, Dallas Voters OK Proposals

By The Associated Press

Texas voters Saturday approved measures for several new projects in Austin, a 15 percent pay raise for policemen and firemen in Dallas — and rejected two tax-cutting proposals in Corpus Christi.

But voters in Baytown, going against the trend set in the other three elections, approved four amendments to limit their local property taxes.

Dallas voters overruled their City Council and approved a 15 percent pay hike for police and firefighters. City leaders had offered a 9 percent pay raise instead, but workers petitioned to put the issue to a vote in the form of a binding referendum and won 57 percent approval.

In Austin, voters approved funding for $141 million worth of new projects contained in 12 propositions, including new parks, a new police station, remodeling the airport, more traffic signals, and expanding the electric system.

But they turned down Proposition 14, which would have kept the capital obligated to buy 16 percent of the South Texas Nuclear Project despite cost overruns of 100 percent. The failure of No. 14 leaves the city's continued participation in the project in doubt.

There was no Proposition 13 in Austin, because city officials did not want to use an unlucky number.

In Corpus Christi, two tax-reducing proposals failed. No. 1 would have cut the city's property tax rate from 80 cents per $100 valuation to 26.5 cents. Proposition 2, a less drastic tax cutting proposal submitted by city leaders as an alternative, would have reduced the rate to only 71 cents per $100 valuation. Both measures were rejected by nearly 60 percent of the voters.

But Baytown voters passed four tax-restraining proposals. The measures limit property taxes to 0.6 percent of the market value, call for moratorium on adding new property taxes to the city's tax rolls until all property in the city is revalued.

Abortion Fund To Award Grants

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A fund established to help poor women obtain legal abortions will award its first grants Monday, more than two years after the fund's namesake died from an illegal abortion in McAllen.

The death of Rosie Jimenez, 27, in October 1977 gained national attention because it was believed to be the first reported after the federal government cut off Medicaid funds for abortions.

Miss Jimenez, who was living on welfare, working part time, attending college and raising a 5-year-old daughter alone, went to a midwife for an illegal abortion when she could not afford the fee charged at a legal clinic, fund chairman Fran Kissling said.

She died of an infection believed caused by the midwife's use of unsterilized equipment.

On Monday the Rosie Jimenez Fund will award $1,000 to various Texas abortion clinics to provide free abortions for indigent women.

Legislators Report Constituents' Feelings On China, SALT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the 96th Congress say that while the American people generally support President Carter's decision to recognize the communist government of China, they oppose severing ties with the Chinese regime on Taiwan.

"People have no objection to recognizing Red China. It's a fact of life," Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., said. "But they're extremely concerned that we have terminated our defense treaty (with Taiwan) without consulting Congress."

"What took place on normalizing relations with China, my people believe, was basically right," Rep. Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., said. "But the manner in which it was done was what they object to."

Morgan and Sebelius were among a sampling of members of the new Congress who were asked whether U.S. relations with China and the Soviet Union were controversial issues in their home districts.

The sample was designed to reflect the political and geographic makeup of the Congress that began its two-year term on Jan. 15.

Of the 10 senators and 67 House members who responded, few said they found a great deal of interest in the negotiations with the Soviet Union on a strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT).

Rep. James H. Quillen, R-Tenn., said his constituents express strong opinions in support of Taiwan but, as for SALT, "It's just not something that's discussed."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said he gets quite a bit of mail on China, "but SALT seems to be a non-issue."

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., said SALT is "a very technical subject and difficult to understand. It does not carry the same emotional impact as the debate on the Panama Canal."

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said

he's never been asked about SALT. As for China, the senator said "a small group is vocal about it, but it's not a big issue."

One of the few who said he finds great interest in SALT was Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala. "SALT and the ability to defend ourselves is very much on the minds of Alabamians today.... They want guarantees that we will not bargain away certain strategic and technological advantages that we now possess," he said.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.,

found similar concern: "There is modified support for SALT, provided that there are sufficient guarantees that the United States is not 'giving away' too much."

McGovern also found support for recognition of Peking, "but they are concerned about the way in which it was handled."

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., said the China move generated "quite an avalanche of mail." He said the letters tended to be more critical of cutting relations with Taiwan than of establishing them with Peking.

Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., said people in his Long Island district rarely comment on SALT or China. He said the overriding concern is the domestic economy.

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., said the small amount of mail he gets on SALT or China tends to oppose administration policies. But he said the letters appear to be generated by national groups trying to drum up votes against SALT and recognition of Peking.

"I've had only one man bring up China," Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., said, "and he said he thought we had played a dirty trick on Taiwan.... Of course, maybe I'm reflecting my own interests in that I am very much in favor of the China move."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am a single male, 34, with income of about $34,000 a year. The only investment I have is an older home which I am remodeling. I have approximately $1,000 in a savings account. I have two endowment life insurance policies totaling $47,000 on which I am paying $100 a month.

I have these policies because I have a problem saving money. When I retire, the return from these policies will supplement my Social Security. Do you think I am doing the right thing?

A. No. That should be obvious to you or anyone who takes even a quick look at your financial situation. With that kind of income and a savings account of only about $1,000, you know you're doing something — maybe everything — wrong.

Your spendthrift habits show up in the kind of life insurance policies you have. Endowment is the most expensive kind of life insurance. You claim it's the only way you can save money. Have you looked at the low rate of interest you're getting on those things?

You would be much better off with term life insurance, which provides protection and is far less expensive. Sure, term insurance has no cash surrender value or retirement benefits. But you should be able to start a program of tucking money away on a steady basis.

You have to give up the role of "playboy of the Western world" and take a look into the future. Build up your savings account first and then start an investment program.

If you absolutely can't hang on to money after you have cashed your paycheck, start a payroll savings plan to buy Series E bonds. Even at 6 percent, E bonds are better than endowment policies.

Q. I have $5,000 to invest and have checked into mutual funds. One, in particular, appeals to me because of its past success. What is your opinion?

A. The fund you named in your letter has a good record of growing in value. Just remember that all mutual fund literature contains a "hedge clause," which goes about as follows: "Past performance is no guarantee of future results."

The Securities & Exchange Commission requires that statement, for a good reason. Last year's biggest winner may be next year's worst loser. No one mutual fund leads the pack, year in and year out.

As long as you are aware of this, I'll go along with your thoughts about that fund. It stands to reason that you should expect to do better with a fund which has a good past record than with one which has shown dismal performance. And there are a fair number of those around.

Q. We are interested in buying one of those six-month $10,000 U.S. Treasury Bills. We know we can get the same interest rates on six-month savings certificates at banks and even more at savings and loan associations and savings banks.

But the interest on bank and S&L certificates is subject to income taxes. We heard the interest on "T bills" is not. Is this true?

A. You heard wrong. The interest on U.S. Treasury Bills is subject to federal income tax. It is not, however, subject to state and local income taxes. Interest on bank and S&L savings certificates is subject to all income taxes.

Q. I lost all my Series E. U.S. Savings Bonds when I moved. What should I do?

A. Write to Bureau of the Public Debt, 200 Third St., Parkersburg, W. Va. 26101. You'll receive a form to fill out. Then, after not too much red tape but a six-month waiting period, duplicate bonds will be issued to you.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Church Parley May Have Far-Reaching Effects

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Pope John Paul II inaugurates a conference of bishops here next Saturday that is expected to have crucial meaning for the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America. Some theologians say its repercussions on Christianity could spread throughout the world.

The 350 or so Latin American bishops will try to reconcile the mission of evangelization with social needs. They are seeking to maintain unity in the face of a growing clamor from churchmen and laity for faster social and political change. This intra-church debate has been particularly strong in Latin America. The experience gathered in the Conference of the Latin American Episcopate, meeting

Jan. 27 to Feb. 12, may especially influence the thinking of Roman Catholic prelates in the Third World regions of Asia and Africa. "What happens in Puebla will be important not only for the Latin American church but for the world church as well," wrote theologian Robert McAfee Brown of New York's Lutheran Union Theological Seminary in a recent article. He argued that if the bishops retreat from the social awareness put forth at a similar conference in Medellin, Colombia, in 1968, it would encourage those who resist change, not only in the Catholic Church but in Protestant churches as well.

He predicts that if the bishops endorse and implement the Medellin decisions, "they will give new energy and hope to groups across the world, as well as Latin America, who look to the church to embrace new alternatives to our tired and oppressive structures." The theme of the Puebla conference is a broad one — "Evangelization in the Present and Future of Latin America." Many bishops say "the good word" cannot be spread effectively in Latin America, a region of serious poverty and many military governments, unless the church takes an active role in helping the poor meet social and economic needs and in liberating the oppressed from authoritarian regimes. How this can best be brought about will be one of the hottest debates during the 17-day meeting in Puebla, a city of almost one million people about 70 miles southeast of Mexico City.

A survey of the bishops taken by the Latin American Episcopal Council — known by its Spanish acronym CELAM — showed that a majority feel the conference will renew the role of the church to fight for Latin America's poor and oppressed. The delegations from Brazil and Mexico, the two most populous Latin American countries, will push for "Theology of Liberation," an idea first expressed at Medellin a decade ago.

This view, if it prevails, would put the church firmly on the side of those who advocate deep changes. Some who accept this argument feel the church should oppose all who exercise oppressive roles in Latin America — be they government, military or business sectors. Some who follow the "Theology of Liberation" argue that only through Marxism can the poor and the oppressed be liberated. They say Western capitalism has been a failure in Latin America because it puts the poor into deeper economic and political bondage. But there are followers of this theology who argue that neither capitalism nor Marxism is suited for the special conditions in Latin America and that a new system must be found, not through revolution but through prayer and reflection. They criticize others for ignoring Christ in favor of humanly designed systems of government.

The preparatory document for the conference, drawn up by the more conservative elements in the Latin American church, acknowledges the need for ministry to the poor. But it was severely criticized by liberals in Latin America and the United States.

A group of Peruvian theologians wrote in "Latin America Press" that the preparatory document "reveals a serious ignorance of the real situation of the poor people of the continent, of their sufferings and struggles, and of their creative presence in the church."

That preparatory document was revised, after meetings of laity, priests and bishops, into a working document somewhat more liberal. It is the working document that the bishops will use as the basis for their discussions in Puebla.

The original document, and even more so the working document, is critical of the capitalist system in Latin America, with special emphasis on the activities of so-called trans-national companies. Many of these are Latin American subsidiaries of U.S. firms. They are criticized as being a major factor in keeping the working class in Latin America in economic bondage.

"To be quiet about all this is to be an accomplice of the vested interests that the bourgeois class defends, even though it may disagree on one or another point of the ideology it produces," the Peruvian theologians wrote.

Dom Heider Camera, the 70-year-old archbishop of Recife in northeastern Brazil who is known for his stand on human rights and his allegations of oppression under Brazilian military governments, has repeatedly called for a peaceful, non-violent change in Latin America.

"Our task is to question the established order ... of institutionalized violence and then wait for an explosive reaction," he wrote recently.

"It is also necessary to question elements in church structures that were at one time useful, although neither essential nor perennial, but today lack meaning or have even become hindrances."

He added: "When we are accused of neglecting our spirituality in order to perform political tasks, we ask ourselves if it is not also political to continue to defend a pseudo-social order that conceals terrible injustices. Would not our neutrality be treasonous if we had to close our ears to the clamor of our people?"

Snail Darter Wins Battle Against Dam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Interior Department specialist has recommended against completing a Tennessee dam threatening the snail darter, a two-inch fish made famous by a Supreme Court decision last year. It was revealed Sunday.

Department sources said David Hales, a fish and wildlife expert, has sent Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus a letter endorsing efforts to "provide for the long-term welfare of the endangered species."

The letter calls for removal of the earthen portion of the Tellico Dam on the Little Tennessee River to prevent the extinction of the tiny fish. Dam costs have been placed at $196 million.

Andrus is chairman of the Endangered Species Committee, a panel that will decide whether to allow the Tennessee Valley Authority to close Tellico's floodgates and destroy the sandy streams where the snail darter lives.

The TVA had begun work on the dam when scientists discovered the darter, a member of the snail-eating perch family.

Under the Endangered Species Act, the government is prohibited from wiping out a species. But pressure from project supporters led Congress to amend the act to create the Endangered Species Committee.

The panel, which animal protection groups have called the "extinction committee," decides whether projects should be allowed to wipe out endangered species.

The committee, which holds its first meeting Tuesday, can permit the extinction of a species if there are no "reasonable and prudent alternatives." Such a decision requires the support of five of the panel's seven members.

The government has moved some Little Tennessee River snail darters to a nearby river. Scientists said the relocated fish appear to be thriving, although it may be too early to tell.

Oswald: "Let's run some articles on play for a while. How about some examples of playing for a specific number of tricks in a suit."

Alan: "Here's one. South has eight tricks in aces and kings. West's heart opening looks like a short suit lead so South can only expect two heart tricks. The place for his ninth trick must be in spades and it is up to South to find the safest way to collect three spade tricks."

Oswald: "He wins the first heart in dummy and leads a spade toward his jack. If East holds the queen the third spade trick is there right away, but West wins with the queen over the jack. West leads a second heart. South wins."

Alan: "Now comes the sure thing play. South leads his four of spades and fineses the nine. If east produces the ten, South will just score three spade tricks — but that is the number he needs. This play has guarded against the actual spade holding."

Oswald: "South can try to work out some sort of squeeze for an extra trick, but his contract is now sure."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: My husband died two years ago and I was lonesome. I started to go with a nice man I met at work — I'll call him Harry. Harry lived with his mother and was very close to her. Six months ago his mother died and he took it awfully hard. I felt so sorry for him, I invited him to move into my home until he got over his grief.

Harry has never given me a dollar to help out with groceries or utilities. He gives me a lot of instructions like, "Keep plenty of beer in the fridge" and "Don't forget I like homemade bread." He used to hint at marriage but he never mentions it anymore.

Yesterday he hit me with his lunch bucket because I fixed him cheese sandwiches two days in a row. He says the cheese sticks to his teeth.

I really love Harry, but I don't want to go on living like this. I want marriage, but I'm afraid if I nag him I may scare him off. What should I do? — "Betty" in Berkeley

Dear Betty: Quit packing his lunch and pack his clothes instead. Harry will never marry you if you let him hang around and freeload. Why should he? He has free room and board, a cook, a maid and plenty of beer in the fridge — plus companionship — at no cost. You also might consider what your life would be like married to a hitter. Or do you figure that goes with the territory? Good luck, in any event. You'll need it. (P.S. I hope you have a good dentist.)

Dear Ann Landers: I want to express my thoughts about you and your column. I hate you both. Your advice is very old-fashioned and you don't know what is going on in the world.

What makes you think you know more than the average person about anything? Also you are quite old and probably haven't talked to a kid under 14 years of age in the last half century.

Anyone who writes to you has got to be an idiot. I know you will never print this letter because it shows you up for what you are. But I'm glad I wrote because I feel better now that I have let you know how we feel about you. — America

Dear America: This is the first letter I have ever received from an entire continent and I am thrilled to hear from so many people all at once. You say anyone who writes to me has got to be an idiot. I don't agree. YOU wrote — and I don't think you are an idiot. But thanks for leveling. I appreciate an honest opinion and I believe you meant what you said.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't one parent reading this column who is Sanforized. We all undergo a shrinking process the day our children reach the age of 12. Our brain diminishes, our vision is stunted, and we are virtually useless to society until the kid reaches the age of 20 or so.

As a parent who has just emerged from the Valley of the Ignorant, let me tell you it would have been far easier if someone had taught me how to understand "teenage."

"Awriiiiiiiiiite!": This is a term of jubilation accompanied by one of those rare teenage smiles usually directed at someone on the telephone. Worry a lot when you hear it.

"You know?": These two words are used in place of periods at the end of a sentence. They are not to be taken literally. "You know?" does not require an answer...or for that matter does it deserve one.

"Really!": One "Really!" is worth a thousand kisses. It's as close to civility as you get. It means they agree to something you have said.

"Who cares?": This is a mechanical retort that often comes out of their mouth even before you have said something.

"I hear you": Don't get your hopes built up on this one. It only means you are audible and that your request has been acknowledged. It does not mean anything will come of it.

"You going out tonight?": This phrase holds as much sentiment as Daniel when he was led out to the lion's den and asked, "You want to go out for dinner?" It's a subtle way of asking you if the car is or is not available.

"Who used up all the hot water?": This is another rhetorical question. They know before they asked, but they're trying to make you feel guilty about rinsing your toothbrush in hot water when they, in effect, have just emptied a 30-gallon tank to rinse their hair.

"When do we eat?": Teenagers do not consider this a question, but a salutation. It takes the place of "Hello, how are you?" Was your surgery bad? Did anyone get hurt in the other car? You and Dad are getting a what?

My favorite is "Everybody Else's Mother." A lot of parents interpret this saying as a collective group of liberal mothers who allow their kids to do as they please. Like Mary Poppins, Santa Clause, Tinkerbell and The Incredible Hulk, it's a convenient myth. If you don't believe me, ask for her phone number.

Well, parents, Hang Tough. That's Teenage for Good Luck!

Baking Soda Aids Kitchen Cleanup

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (Special) — They've endured roasted turkeys, fruitcakes and lots of eggnog, not to mention speciality dishes from "Christmas chefs" who found woks, food processors and pasta makers under the tree.

Kitchens after the holidays — thank goodness they have baking soda! It cleans and deodorizes just about every surface without scratching. And because it is a pure food product, baking soda is especially ideal for cleaning surfaces that foods touch.

Try this method for a quick and easy cleanup:

After washing dishes, refill sink with a baking soda solution (4 tbsps. to a quart of warm to hot water.) Use a damp cloth or sponge to wipe countertops, range tops, hoods and fans, cabinets... anywhere grease has settled into a sticky residue. Wood countertops and cutting boards acquire off-odors from meat juices, garlic, scallions and other fresh vegetables. Baking soda neutralizes and absorbs these odors at their source.

To remove more difficult spots, sprinkle baking soda dry from the box and wash clean with a sponge or cloth. Or, gently scrub with a paste of 3 parts baking soda and 1 part water; rinse and dry.

Don't forget to replace the refrigerator box of baking soda. It's had a holiday workout too!

SPRAY SET

If you have some flat beer on hand, use it as a setting lotion. Put some in a mist-spray bottle and spray lightly on your hair.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been contemplating going in for jogging and am hoping to lose the weight I have to. I have heard of people wearing rubber suits while jogging. I suppose to increase weight loss by perspiration. Do you recommend it? — Mr. H.A.

I certainly do not. I was glad to see in a recent national jogging publication that its editors also strongly discourage this. As a matter of fact, it is not wise to wear any garment that restricts evaporation. Increased sweating does not, contrary to popular thinking, cause any permanent weight loss. Natural thirst to replace the liquid lost will quickly put back the temporary loss. Otherwise, athletes who must perform vigorously on a regular basis would be mere shadows of themselves in a few days.

The real objection to air-tight plastic or rubberized clothing is that the sweat cannot evaporate and may cause a rise in internal body temperature, which can cause more sweating. The temperature may soon rise to dangerous levels. More than one death has occurred from such activity.

If you are over 30, have a thorough check-up before beginning a jogging program, another recommendation of the National Jogging Association. You can write to the association at the following address: National Jogging Association, 919 18th Street, NW, Suite 830, Washington, D.C. 20006. They have many sensible tips for those who care to take part in this new national sport. As to your uniform, anything that is comfortable and not restricting is fine. You don't even need a jock strap, for example. Jockey shorts should provide all the support you need.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is there a 100 percent foolproof way to tell whether a person is going to have a stroke? — Mrs. W.O.

Doctors wish there were such a test. Nothing can be 100 percent sure in medicine, especially where the blood vessels and the brain are involved, which they are in stroke. There are some pretty solid indicators of impending stroke, though. The chief one is decreased blood flow through the carotid arteries. Those are the vessels in the neck that supply blood to the brain. Blockages can be reliably detected. One study at the Tucson Medical Center showed that listening to the carotid blood flow through special sound detectors has been 90 percent accurate in telling if there is blockage. Another test involves observing the blood pressure in the eyes.

Other self-evident predictors of stroke are the so-called TIA's, the transient ischemic attacks. Those are fleeting episodes of faintness, vision disturbance, numbness, etc. and can indicate temporary blockages of brain blood supply.

Much can be done to change the course of things when such signs are recognized soon enough and problems treated, which they often can be.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What do you think of chewing one's food 60 or 70 times? I have heard some people even chew till it's liquid, then spit out what isn't liquid before swallowing. How helpful is this? — M.D.

It is always well to chew food sufficiently, but I think 60 or 70 times is going a bit far. There was a fad in the 19th century involving just the method you mention, in which food was believed best when liquified. When the gentleman who led this "chewing" crusade died, chronic constipation was felt to be a contributing factor. It was a silly idea then and it is now. I hope your letter doesn't portend a revival of it.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have a friend who still breast-feeds her two-year-old. I find it quite disgusting and needless. What is your opinion? — Mrs. C.

Usually weaning is done much earlier. So long as the child is getting some solid foods, which he or she should be by this time, it is perfectly harmless. The mother must be very tolerant of the teeth to prolong nursing this long.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My doctor is giving me Trilisate for my arthritis, but a friend tells me he is taking it for an acid stomach. Will you please explain what Trilisate is, and also if Trisogel is the same thing? — Mrs. W.B.

They sound the same but are not. Trilisate is a form of buffered aspirin, which may be used for arthritis. The Trisogel, made by a different company, is an antiacid consisting of magnesium trisilicate and aluminum hydroxide gel. It is used for stomach trouble.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AKQ72 ♥K6 ○82 ♦Q1065

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ○ 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦
Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Since you have considerably more than the minimum for a simple overall at the one-level, game is a possibility. It is simply a matter of deciding on the best way to make your try. A raise to three spades conveys your intentions, but might not elicit the information you need. Partner's club holding is the key, so we feel you should make a trial bid of three clubs—and be content with a part score if partner can do no more than rebid three spades.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South with 60 on score you hold:
♦KJ963 ♥AK872 ○954

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you bid now?
A.—Experience shows that two-suted hands are not ideal for a takeout double. Therefore, we suggest that you start with an overall of one spade, intending to show your hearts at your next turn. In view of your diamond void, it is most unlikely that the bidding will die at one spade, especially at this score.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ842 ♥7 ○AK8752 ♠9

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ○ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—What started out as a possible slam hand has deteriorated because of an apparent misfit. Nevertheless, you should not be content with no trump—your distribution is too extreme. Complete the description of your hand by bidding four spades. Partner might have three-card support, and slam is still possible.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦8752 ♥Q92 ○A10 ♦AQJ10

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♦ ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You have a full opening bid facing partner's opener. To show your strength, jump raise to three clubs. Now both you and partner will be well placed to probe for the proper contract.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J4 ♥AK1094 ○83 ♦AKJ7

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Despite partner's unenthusiastic bidding, you do have a fine suit and some extra values, which suggests a possible game. Your hand merits a forward-going move, and the only sensible action is to issue an invitation by bidding three hearts.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A9 ♥KQJ10762 ○6 ♦AJ5

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you bid now?
A.—We would not fault you greatly if you just bid four hearts, but slam possibilities should not be overlooked. We suggest that you first double and then jump to four hearts at your next turn. This shows a hand stronger in high cards than does an immediate jump to game.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦5 ♥KJ1072 ○AQ109 ♦QJ10

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
5 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner did not cue-bid or use Blackwood, so he cannot be interested in either how many or which aces you hold. Therefore, his jump can only be asking about your trump quality. Since it could hardly be better, bid six hearts confidently.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q108 ♥972 ○K9863 ♦QJ10

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. You do not have enough to respond freely, particularly since your trump support is weak. It would be more of a problem if your heart and spade holdings were reversed. Then the two honors in partner's suit might just make your hand worth a raise.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? New Battle Erupts Near Battambang

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Loyalist Cambodian troops have regrouped and were battling Vietnamese forces Sunday around the city of Battambang, which the Vietnamese had declared "liberated" a week ago, Western and Thai sources reported.

They also said a helicopter apparently manned by loyalists was spotted trying to ferry in supplies to besieged troops in an ancient Buddhist temple atop a 2,000-foot-high cliff in northern Cambodia.

Late last week, soldiers of Premier Pol Pot's fallen government had been reported massing near Battambang, a western provincial capital and Cambodia's second-largest city. The Vietnamese also beefed up their forces in Battambang and brought in artillery pieces for the showdown, the sources said.

The city, 155 miles northwest of the Cambodian capital, Phnom Penh, was captured by the Vietnamese toward the end of their lightning invasion push through Cambodia, which began in late December.

The estimated 100,000-man Vietnamese force, bolstered by anti-Pol Pot Cambodian rebels, has spread itself thin and is experiencing difficulties mopping up areas of stiff resistance that were passed by in the initial invasion, sources said.

They said Vietnamese attackers continued their siege of the nine-century-old cliff-top temple of Preah Vihear, situated on the northern border with Thailand. The Vietnamese have been firing long-range artillery in a bid to dislodge the Cambodian hold-outs, the sources said.

A helicopter was spotted trying to drop in supplies to the defenders, they said, but it was not known whether it was successful. The temple is virtually inaccessible unless it is made from the Thai side, where the slope is more gradual.

The sources said the area near the southwestern port of Kompong Som was still being contested, but that the Vietnamese had regained control of the deep-water port.

The Voice of Democratic Kampuchea (Cambodia), an organ of the fallen government believed broadcasting from southern China, claimed Sunday that the Pol Pot forces recently had knocked out tanks and defeated the Vietnamese invaders in several areas.

The reports mentioned heavy fighting in Takeo, Svay Rieng and Mondoliri provinces in the eastern sector of the country.

Despite overwhelming evidence cited by sources here, Vietnam has denied invading Cambodia at all and credits the rebel group, unknown just weeks ago, for

Palestinians, Israelis In New Duels

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli artillerymen and Palestinian gunners duelled across the Lebanon border Sunday as U.S. envoy Alfred Atherton pressed his Mideast peace mediation efforts in Jerusalem. Israeli officials reported some progress toward reviving the stalled Egyptian-Israeli talks.

No Israeli casualties were reported in the fierce cross-border exchanges, but Lebanese provincial authorities reported one civilian killed and five others wounded.

Lebanese authorities said the towns of Nabatiyeh and Ayshiya, about 10 miles from the Israeli border, came under "fierce rocketing and shelling from Israeli emplacements."

Palestinian rockets fell on the Israeli town of Kiryat Shmona and nearby farm settlements in northern Galilee, Israeli officials reported. Each side blamed the other for starting the shelling.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Israel would "continue to hit the terrorists in order to prevent their attacks on Israel's civilian population."

In Lebanon, guerrillas claimed to have driven off an Israeli gunboat attack on a Palestinian refugee camp 50 miles north of Beirut late Saturday and to have destroyed an Israeli tank attacking a guerrilla position several miles inside Lebanon.

The Israelis denied mounting a naval attack. Israel sent ground troops on a raid against Palestinian camps in southern Lebanon early Friday but has not acknowledged that any of its forces remain in Lebanon.

Meanwhile, the leader of Israel's team of experts on peace-treaty language said Atherton's suggestions for solving treaty-language problems had met with some success. "There are difficulties, but there has been progress," said Elihu Ben-Eliassar.

Israeli officials said Atherton, originally scheduled to leave for Cairo today, may remain in Israel until Tuesday.

Neither Atherton nor Ben-Eliassar would disclose the substance of the talks, which centered on American suggestions for solving disputes over the treaty's review clause and the "priority of obligations" clause.

The Israelis are balking at an Egyptian demand for a firm review date of five years after the treaty signing. The latter issue concerns Israel's contention that the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty should take precedence over Egypt's defense agreements with other Arab nations.

In other developments:

—Former President Gerald R. Ford, on an unofficial tour of the Mideast, met with Begin in Jerusalem and said he was optimistic about peace in the region.

—The Jordanian government announced King Hussein will visit Saudi Arabia Monday to discuss the latest Mideast developments, including the situation in Iran, with King Khalid.

—Egyptian officials said instability in Iran could cause a delay in the signing of peace treaty between Egypt and Israel. A top Egyptian diplomat said Israel's loss of Iranian oil supplies and the need for the United States to reassess its overall strategy in the Persian Gulf could delay signing of the treaty.

Burger Spot Loses $320 In Robbery

An unshaven, middle-aged man took about $320 from the Burger House at 5107 29th Drive shortly after 7:30 p.m. Sunday and fired one shot at attendants who tried to capture him.

Cashier Mike Hovden, 15, told police the man, who pointed a small, black pistol at him, said, "I want your money."

When the Coronado High School sophomore began giving the robber the $1 bills, the man reportedly told him, "I want the rest of it." Hovden said the man stuffed all the bills and checks into his sweater pockets and fled east on foot from the fast food establishment.

Hovden then ran to the back of the eatery and told managers Glen Robertson and Lisa Robertson that he had just been robbed. The trio ran out in pursuit of the man, but when Robertson yelled at him to stop, the man turned and fired a single shot at him.

After the shooting incident, Mrs. Robertson reported that she and her husband got into their car and began chasing the man but lost sight of him in some nearby buildings.

Police late Sunday were looking for a man described as white, 40 to 45, about 5 feet 11 inches tall, with "scraggly" brown hair and wearing a black turtle-neck sweater and light-colored pants.

the successes. But newsmen have spotted Vietnamese tanks and gunboats in action.

The anti-Pol Pot Cambodians who took control in Phnom Penh set up a People's Revolutionary Council that has been recognized by a dozen countries, most of them Soviet allies.

The first ambassador of the new regime, Chea Sothe, presented his credentials Sunday to Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong and National Assembly President Truong Chinh in Hanoi, the Vietnam News Agency said.

Despite talk of beefing up the Thai frontier, there was little evidence of major Thai military moves along the 500-mile border.

President Carter has warned the Vietnamese not to threaten Thai territorial integrity. Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan says he will ask Washington to deliver weapons and other military equipment purchased by the Thais sooner than had been agreed upon. It is known that the United States is already working on a stepped-up schedule of arms deliveries.

Thailand's army commander-in-chief, Gen. Prem Tinsulanonda, inspected an area of the border Sunday, saying he would reinforce the elite border patrol units.

One patrolman was killed and three others wounded Sunday when they stepped on a landmine near the key border crossing at Aranyaprathet, 124 miles east of Bangkok.

Seventeen Cambodians crossed into Thailand near that city in the continuing small-scale refugee flights from Cambodia. The men — suspected of being soldiers under Pol Pot — were taken away by the military for questioning.

PATIENCE REWARDED — A vigil by news photographers paid off Sunday afternoon when Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, far right, invited them into the yard of his weekend retreat for a picture-taking session. Here the prince joins his sister, Princess Layla, and brother, Prince Alireza, in playing with a toy rocket. Law enforcement officials said Sunday they have no additional information about a possible demonstration here by Iranian students. A group reported headed for Lubbock from Houston Saturday never arrived. (Staff Photo by Jim Watkins)

President Seeks New GSA Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The investigation of the scandal-ridden General Services Administration would be severely hurt if the White House carries out its reported decision to oust GSA Administrator Jay Solomon, a top investigator said Sunday.

"It would make the whole job of investigating much more difficult," the agency's general counsel, Irwin Borowski, said of reports that the administration wants to remove Solomon. "People might get the impression that the administration is not prepared to clean up corruption."

Borowski said such a view within the agency would make it even more difficult for investigators to obtain cooperation from GSA officials who know about corruption but believe the anti-corruption drive will be shortlived.

Press Secretary Jody Powell confirmed Sunday that the White House has begun "some tentative explorations looking for a successor" for Solomon.

Powell said Solomon is cooperating in the search and that the GSA administrator had told the president last fall that he was interested in leaving his post early in the new year.

"None of this should be considered evidence of a lack of confidence in Mr. Solomon," Powell said.

In its Sunday editions, The Washington Post quoted an unnamed senior White House official as saying Solomon would be replaced, probably in April.

Solomon, who President Carter picked to run the agency in 1977, recently lost a confrontation with the White House over his desire to have Borowski appointed as the agency's acting inspector general before Congress reconvened.

If the appointment had come before Congress returned, Borowski could have begun to use the subpoena powers granted by a new law that created the office of inspector general. GSA investigators say subpoena power is crucial to carrying out their internal probe of agency corruption.

With Congress back in session, however, a nominee to be inspector general would require Senate confirmation before he could exercise subpoena powers.

One source close to the investigation said the dispute over Borowski was "the ally to bring things along to the point that they are now."

Administration officials have criticized Solomon privately for being too open with the news media and for his handling of last year's firing of Robert T. Griffin.

That firing touched off a bitter dispute with Griffin's friend and backer, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. Carter later transferred Griffin to a White House job.

Solomon met with presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan Friday night and told aides later that he felt he had the administration's complete support, said one source who asked not to be named.

The source said the administration had been prepared to ask for Solomon's resignation Friday, but decided to back off because of concern about public reaction.

Reaction By Armed Forces Seen As Key To Khomeini's Success

TEHRAN (AP) — The reaction of Iran's 430,000-man armed forces is the key to Ayatollah Khomeini's dreams of replacing the monarchy with an Islamic republic.

Both the government and opposition have raised the specter of a pro-shah military coup aimed at thwarting Khomeini's plans.

To forestall a coup, Khomeini is making a concerted effort to move the military away from its continuing loyalty to the absent shah, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The extent of contacts between the religious opposition and armed forces is still unclear.

"There are some devout Moslems in the army and it is very hard to believe there are no contacts between moderate ayatullahs and the army. But I don't think it is at a stage where it means anything," said one military observer. Western diplomats interviewed here do not expect the army to try to prevent the 78-year-old Khomeini from returning to Iran as scheduled Friday.

"The army wouldn't dare touch him in any open way," said one diplomatic observer, who like the others asked not to be identified. "I can't see how they can stop him since (Prime Minister Shahpour) Bakhtiar has said he can come back."

The army's dilemma is expected to come to a head if or when the shah-appointed government is forced to step aside.

At best, Bakhtiar's cabinet of technocrats is regarded as transitional, pending restoration of some public order. Because of his affiliation with the monarchy, the 62-year-old, French-educated lawyer thus far has not been able to rally popular support.

Unless Bakhtiar is able to reach an accommodation with the religious opposition, his chances for success are rated by diplomats as practically nil.

Khomeini has shown no public inclination to compromise. With the backing of a major share of Iran's 32 million Shiite Moslems, he is vowing to continue his struggle until the last vestiges of the Pahlavi dynasty are eliminated and an Islamic republic is established.

The question is: will the army, which has pledged to honor the royalist constitution, stand idly by?

In Paris, Ibrahim Yazdi, Khomeini's chief aide, has said a military coup is still a possibility. "If such a coup takes place, there will be civil war definitely," he said.

The army has demonstrated continued loyalty to the crown, although there have been some reports of desertions and clashes within the ranks.

A civil war, which is bound to be extremely bloody, would severely test the cohesion and discipline of the armed forces, 40 percent of which is made up of conscripts.

Some diplomats believe any new government must represent the military and Islamic ideology — perhaps along the lines of Col. Moammar Khadafy's Libya or Gen. Zia ul-Haq's Pakistan.

One diplomatic source predicts Khomeini's return will create "a wave of euphoria" that will be followed by difficult times when he tries to run the beleaguered country. Khomeini has not publicly clarified his vision of an Islamic republic, but he was quoted as saying he favored continued industrialization "with Islamic social justice."

Meanwhile, he has emerged as a charismatic symbol of anti-shah resistance, including the old-guard political opposition, largely represented by the National Front.

Some cracks already have appeared in the Khomeini-National Front alliance over the spiritual leader's failure to consult the opposition group about formation of an Islamic Revolutionary Council.

"I think they will be swept away" by the Islamic republic, a political observer said of the National Front politicians advocating parliamentary democracy.

Job Training Agency Faces New Trouble

the year. "There's no way" that number can be met, she added.

And, in response to the claim that many of the clients are not skilled enough to be placed immediately, she said, "I cannot give them people completely ready for on-the-job training with no problems."

The program would have no purpose if that were the case, she explained.

Mrs. Forbes also said some of the referral problem is that SER seems to take so long to identify unqualified clients.

"They should be able to identify them after one hour of counseling. But instead they're returning them after five to 10 days," Mrs. Forbes said.

"I would expect her (Mrs. Franklin) to do a little assessment on the individual," she added.

Reyes says, and Mrs. Forbes agrees, that another problem meeting expected goals was the delay — until Nov. 10 — in congressional funding for fiscal year 1978-79.

Reyes said the SER board, recognizing from the outset the goal problems the delayed start-up funding would cause, wrote to the South Plains Association of Governments seeking clarification of expectations.

"We were made to understand" the board and SER should not worry about goals at the beginning, he said. Now, because there was no contractual adjustment, "We're looking very bad," he added.

However, another CETA subcontractor facing the same problems because of funding delays actually surpassed its expected goals during the same reporting period.

Lubbock Opportunities Industrialization Center, which is under fire by the South Plains Association of Governments for past contract violations, served 98 clients during the program year to date, which is 102 percent, or two more, than planned.

In the category of individuals entering during the program year, the opportunities center showed 108 percent of the planned 26. And for "total entering employment," the agency had 35, which is 85 percent of the expected 41.

Reyes said the difference between SER and the opportunities center can, in part, be attributed to different sized staffs. The opportunities center has 14 staffers; SER works with only three, he explained.

Mrs. Forbes told the A-J SER may pull within at least 15 percent of its goal by the end of the month with the help of placements at a Lubbock manufacturing facility.

However, if the goals remain unmet and the governmental panel's board votes to cancel the contract, either another subcontractor would take SER's place or the governmental panel itself would fill in, she said. No clients would be dropped, she added.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A fuel tank under repair at a Kuala Lumpur factory exploded Sunday, killing four workers and injuring another, police said. The blast ripped off the top of the tank and hurled the workers 60 feet to the ground, a spokesman said. The men were welding part of the tank.

Weather Aids Escape For East German Spy

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — A suspected East German spy taking advantage of bad driving weather jumped from a patrol car and escaped from his police captors Sunday, authorities reported.

The escapee, identified as Reiner Fueelle, 40, had been arrested during a round-up of suspected members of what West German officials describe as a major spy ring.

East Germany reported, meanwhile, that a Western defector — reportedly a West German navy pilot — had fled to the communist East and sought asylum.

Fueelle was arrested "under the urgent suspicion he delivered material from his sphere of work to the German Democratic Republic Ministry of State Security," a government statement from the Federal Criminal Office said.

Sources who declined to be named said Fueelle worked at a Karlsruhe-based nuclear research laboratory and was born in Zwickau, in what is now East Germany.

The statement said the police officers transporting him had to slow down their car because of icy roads, enabling Fueelle to jump safely from the moving automobile. Further details of the escape were not immediately known.

Police had picked Fueelle up at his home in Leopoldshafen, near Karlsruhe, and he had neither money nor identification documents on him when he escaped, officials said.

Milwaukee Thieves Like Snowblowers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Local residents lucky enough to have had snowblowers to clear their driveways and walks have had to take special precautions to protect the machines, say police.

Milwaukee and the rest of southeastern Wisconsin have been hit by a number of snowstorms this month. There was 30 inches of snowcover in the city last week. The old record set in 1912 was 26 inches.

A police spokesman estimated that more than 50 snowblowers have been stolen from garages, yards and sidewalks since Jan. 1. Based on some arrests that had been made, "it doesn't appear to be a gang involvement, but individuals," he said.

He was one of six men arrested Sunday on a tip-off provided by an East German security officer who defected to West Berlin last week, officials said.

The Federal Prosecutor's Office in Karlsruhe said the defector, whom they described only as a first lieutenant in the East Berlin Ministry for State Security, provided documents that led to the arrests.

He came to West Berlin on Thursday with his wife and child and sought asylum, officials said. He brought with him documents implicating several alleged East German agents who concentrated on scientific and research projects, officials said.

The defector at first was incorrectly described as a lieutenant colonel.

In East Berlin on Sunday, the official news agency ADN reported that a lieutenant commander asked for political asylum in East Germany. The report did not disclose the nationality of the officer or when he defected, but it said he had been assigned to various North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters and had brought with him important documents.

The Mainz-based West German television channel 2 later quoted sources at the Bonn Defense Ministry as theorizing that the reported defector was a West German navy pilot named Mueller missing from his base in northern Germany since last November who had no access to strategic or operational information.

ADN said the "authorities concerned" were investigating his asylum request.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Suspected Slayer Photographed With First Lady

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House photographer snapped a picture of Rosalynn Carter shaking hands with indicted mass murderer John Gacy last spring and she later autographed it for him, the White House said Sunday.

Mary Hoyt, Mrs. Carter's press secretary, commented on the picture after the Chicago Sun-Times published a copy-righted photo of the first lady with Gacy — now under indictment and suspected of killing 32 young men after having sexual relations with them.

The pictures were taken last May 6 in Chicago at a reception following a Polish Constitution Day celebration Mrs. Carter attended.

"I can confirm there was a picture taken with Gacy," Mrs. Hoyt said, adding that Mrs. Carter autographed it and probably sent it back to the group which organized the visit.

She said there may have been a dozen pictures taken that day with people involved in the celebration and Gacy, a Democratic precinct captain, was among them.

The picture is signed, "To John Gacy, best wishes, Rosalynn Carter."

It shows Gacy wearing a big "S" on his lapel, indicating he had been given a White House security clearance.

Mrs. Hoyt said it was just "an amazing coincidence" that Mrs. Carter had shaken Gacy's hand.

"We went into a reception for Mrs. Carter after the program, at which time pictures were taken with the parade officials. Mr. Gacy was a parade director. There were 50 to 75 people there, including Gov. (James) Thompson and Mayor (Michael) Bilandic."

She said she would discuss the incident with the first lady when she returned Sunday night from Camp David.

A Secret Service spokesman would offer no comment except to say he was "looking into the matter."

Mrs. Carter also was photographed with the Rev. Jim Jones of the ill-fated Peoples' Temple group during a campaign visit to San Francisco in September 1976. Jones, who died along with more than 900 of his followers in Jonestown, Guyana, provided some 750 persons for the San Francisco rally, according to earlier news accounts.

The Chicago Tribune, in its Sunday edition, also carried a similar picture of Gacy posing with Mrs. Carter apparently taken at the same function. Spokesmen at both newspapers declined to reveal where they got the prints.

It was not the first time Gacy, 36, posed with a political figure.

An earlier picture showed Gacy at a political gathering clasping the hand of Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic. In explaining that picture, a freelance photographer said Gacy hired him to attend the function and to snap the photo of Gacy with the mayor.

Age, Rage, Drinking Cited In Shootings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thomas Hufnagel, 76, was a fastidious caretaker who took special care to keep the sidewalks in front of his building clean. He apparently hated a neighbor who parked a Volkswagen in the driveway because it left oil stains on the sidewalk.

The hatred for neighbor Joel Blackman, plus the pressures of coping with an invalid wife, his own alcohol problem and old age apparently became too intense Friday night and Hufnagel exploded in a shooting rampage, police and neighbors said.

Blackman and three other neighbors were shot — one fatally — before Hufnagel locked himself in his apartment with his guns. As police tried to talk him into coming out, Hufnagel lay down on his couch, pointed a revolver into his mouth and killed himself.

Police said Hufnagel's wife, Isabel, told them Friday night that her husband had talked about killing Blackman and one day brought home a new .38-caliber revolver and a 12-gauge shotgun.

"We've never had guns around here before," she said. "I don't know what got into him... He had mentioned that he was going to shoot the neighbor, me and then kill himself."

Blackman, 30, shot in the face with the shotgun, was in guarded condition Sunday.

He lost his left eye. His woman roommate and a neighbor to whose apartment they had run were shot in the abdomen. They were reported in stable condition.

Mark Johnson, who rushed to their aid, was shot and killed. It was Johnson's 24th birthday.

Stanley Martin, 92, a neighbor, said Hufnagel had asked him several times for chemicals to clean the stubborn oil stains from the driveway where Blackman parked his car.

Martin, who often received home-baked pies from Hufnagel, said the retired painter was "a wonderful guy" but very touchy. "If somebody crossed him, he didn't like it," Martin said.

Blackman "blocked his garage. He didn't like him," Martin said. Other neighbors said the two had stopped talking to each other.

Robert Henry, whose wife was shot in the rampage, said Hufnagel talked to him about Blackman a few months ago.

"He told me he resented something very much. He said, 'I thought you were a friend of mine. How come you and your wife are friends with (Blackman)?"

Mrs. Hufnagel, who has diabetes, a heart problem and is recovering from a stroke, had been in several convalescent homes.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Luke 9:5-13, The Living Bible

5 If the people of a town won't listen to you when you enter it, turn around and leave, shaking its dust from your feet as you go, to show God's anger."

6 So they began their circuit of the villages, preaching the Good News and healing the sick.

7 When reports reached Herod, the governor, of Jesus' miracles, he was worried and puzzled, for some were saying, "This is John the Baptist come back to life again."

8 And others, "It is Elijah or some other ancient prophet risen from the dead." These rumors were circulating all over the land.

9 "I beheaded John," he said, "so who is this man, about whom I hear such strange stories?" And he tried to see Him.

10 After the apostles returned and reported to Jesus on all they had done, He slipped quietly away with them to the city of Bethsaida.

11 But the crowds found out where He was going, and followed. And He welcomed them, teaching them again about the Kingdom of God, and curing those who were ill.

12 Late in the afternoon all twelve of the disciples came and urged Him to send the people away to the nearby villages and farms to find food and lodging for the night. "For there is nothing to eat here in this deserted spot," they said.

13 But Jesus said, "You feed them!" "Why, we have only five loaves of bread and two fish among the lot of us," they protested; "or are You expecting us to go and buy enough for this whole mob?"

Fully qualified in all the essential areas — dedication to service, experience in the field, expertise in insurance programming, access to the most desired markets, and with a record of good working relationships with each valued customer — this is PIA, "your kind of folks."

Possibly best known as commercial specialists, PIA (located at 7212 Joliet, phone 799-5335, at South Loop 289 and Indiana Avenue) serves equally well in every insurance situation, for large and small transactions alike. Whether the need is mortgage retirement insurance, group health, life, bonds, auto or any of the other insurance categories, PIA wants to prove its worth to you as it has for so many others.

Nothing can replace the personal guidance of an interested and competent insurance representative, and PIA takes pride in the track record and the mutual trust marking each staff member. "Professionals You Know" PIA opened its Lubbock offices in March of last year, with original staff members J. Don Baldrige, Marty Evans and Melba Neelley still at the helm.

Baldrige for 18 years was co-owner and secretary-treasurer of Baldrige Bakery in Lubbock, and has since been in the insurance business for 12 years. A native of Lubbock, he has held numerous civic and church offices, is a founding trustee of Lubbock Christian College and has been chairman of the Lubbock Christian School board for 18 years.

Evans has a rich background of agency commercial account executive capacities in Lubbock, preceded by tenure of several years with the State Board of Insurance, and still other years of association with insurance and related property fields.

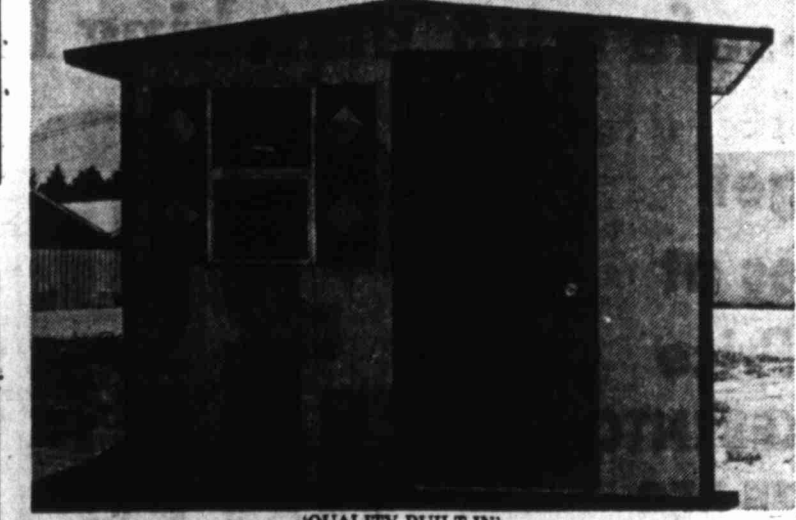

Melba Neelley has agency service of more than 15 years, with specialization in personal lines, most of this in Lubbock.

In the months since opening of the offices here, Panhandle Insurance Agency has become a vital part of a growing Lubbock. Growth of the firm has been exceptional, and the staff is most grateful for the confidence and the trade accorded PIA. Each representative pledges continuation of professional insurance service — with appreciation, friendliness and courtesy.

"Whatever your insurance need, you can turn with confidence to the competent staff members at PIA, innovators whose first consideration is to accommodate your needs."

"Most oldtimers of the area already are our acquaintances and friends, and if you are a newcomer, we invite you to consider the above thumbnail sketch of the Lubbock PIA operation in your choosing of an insurance representative to best serve your particular needs. May we have the pleasure of your visits or calls, at South Loop 289 and Indiana, 7212 Joliet, phone 799-5335?"

Attention is especially directed to the new finishes now utilized in most of the Dura' Bilt buildings. This new and maintenance-free exterior is available in several colors and in all sizes.

Dura' Bilt has more than 30 portable buildings right on the lot for comparison and selection, and custom construction is available as well.

Hold Price Line
 Really significant, too, is the fact that no increase in price has been posted in the last nine months, even though supply costs have steadily risen. Dura' Bilt favors the customer in every way possible.

No Hail Problem
 The portable building — so right for numerous uses such as storage, lake cabins, offices, warehouses, workshops, etc., feature 29-gauge steel roofs. No hail problem here. Masonite siding is utilized, with the rot-free quality stressed, and available in the color of one's choice. Trim-out is in different colors of matching metal trim.

Rubber closures are standard in the eaves to guard against blowing sand. Plywood flooring and floor joists on 16-inch center assure further quality. Cinnamon birch paneling is featured, together with 3 1/2-inch fiberglass insulation. Even wiring and carpeting is provided in finished buildings.

Dura' Bilt Portable Buildings are manufactured within the immediate Lubbock area, cutting one's costs; with delivery available.

REVOLUTIONARY CHECK-A-TRON MICROS NOW AVAILABLE, ADVOCATED

Lubbock Cash Register Gives 'Las Vegas Holiday' In Offer

What a way to introduce its all-new Micros general purpose cash register from Check-a-Tron!

It is Lubbock Cash Register's announcement that with every purchase of a Check-a-Tron, Micros a Las Vegas holiday will be given! Actually, it is a free gift certificate for three big days in the fabulous resort. Ask for details now for this limited-time offer.

Even without the gift certificate bonus, the Check-a-Tron Micros commands excitement, with its versatility, tremendous flexibility and ease of programming and operation. What a boon to the businessman — from fast food operation to hotel /motel needs.

For Many Situations

Programmable, for department store or other retail store applications, too, or as a charge poster, this sensational machine is a microprocessor-based cash register, with up to 96 pre-set or open departments and with significant other features that makes it the system for today, with tomorrow in mind.

Micros is a stand-alone system with functions that compare favorably to POS systems at 10 times the price, Lubbock Cash Register, 3033 34th St., phone 792-2885, points out.

Simplicity Evident

Micros requires no special wiring, no precious backroom space with costly climate control, no remodeling, no business shutdown for installation.

Each Micros is self-contained. "No system gives you more control and security. No system is simpler for your cashier to operate and understand. No system accommodates your customer faster!"

All departments are fully programmable through the keyboard, reprogramming is quick and simple.

The Micros model with due bill capabilities registers stamps and due bills received, computes the eligible tax total, deducts credit and issues a stamp credit receipt.

With the price look-up option, you instantly retrieve or track activity or prices on sale items or fast movers. Micros could conceivably track your entire inventory!"

Micros has 16,000-bit minicomputer capabilities. It can capture data on magnetic tape cassettes for later batch processing. It can interlink with any number of other Micros units and consolidate data from the entire system!

"The key to a successful business is an efficient business system... so see Micros today; to see is to believe!"

Call or come by for a free demonstration from Lubbock Cash Register, 3033 34th St., phone (806) 792-2885, in Lubbock."

Self Furniture Red Tag Sale Continuing Through January

"We've been telling you about it, and a lot of folks have profited! But have you, yourself, taken advantage of the annual Red Tag Sale at Self's Furniture in Slaton?"

This sale, with its tremendous buys and huge selection, continues throughout this month, but time is growing shorter, so don't delay in securing the related savings.

"See Self's and Save!"

Special prices are clearly defined on the red tags throughout the store.

For 36 years, residents of the region have benefitted from this gigantic and meaningful sale, a tradition at Self's, on West Garza Street in Slaton.

Not only are the sale prices most inviting, but the items all are recognized for quality, backed by well-known and respected brand names.

Every department of the large store is involved.

Among these specials are:
La-z-Boy Rocker-recliners starting at a modest $166 (with about 50 in stock).

And Kroehler sofa sleepers, values to $599, for just $399!

Then there is the official NFL lounge chair and ottoman with the Dallas Cowboys insignia, both units for $299.

See the exceptional buy in traditional dining room suites by Hilriten, including credenza hutch on a large buffet, large trestle table with two leaves, two padded arm chairs and four side chairs, regularly priced $3,495 but on sale now at $2,795.

One of the newer arrivals included in the Red Tag Sale is the Broyhill colonial bedroom suite in honey pine, including a governor's poster bed, triple dresser with door, large hutch mirror, door chest and two night stands, regular $1,995 but during January at $1,750.

TV Specials

All electronic tuning models of Admiral color television sets are on sale, at up to a whopping $300 off!

Some 40 rolls of carpet are in stock in that department, and kitchen carpet starts at just $7.88 installed. Or select Brinkcrest Carousel sculptured earth tone nylon carpeting, regular $11.95 per square yard but on sale now at $9.25 installed with pad.

Self's has its own skilled installation crews to insure complete satisfaction.

One of the very largest selections of home furnishings in all West Texas is maintained at Self's, just a few minutes drive from most area points, and the January Red Tag Sale makes a trip there especially inviting.

Free Delivery

Free delivery is a Self's feature. Purchase terms are available.

And don't forget the quality lines that are the rule throughout the stock, such as Broyhill, Kroehler, Serta, Ennis, Bernhardt, Riverside, Garrison, Designers, Bigelow, World, Brinkcrest, and more!

Martin & Lewis Restaurants Proving Worth In Food, Convenience, Savings

"You can be sure of two things — good food and your money's worth — at a Martin & Lewis restaurant. Plus other benefits, such as location convenience, long hours and service by professionals."

Day or night, the Fair Restaurant at Avenue A and 8th Street is open to offer all its services.

And the Rowday Inn Restaurant, just off University Avenue on 4th Street, is open from 6 a.m. until 10 p.m. daily.

These are the locally-owned and locally-managed Martin & Lewis restaurants where every effort is made to serve in a manner inviting repeat visits, time and again!

J.T. Martin and Steve Lewis, longtime Lubbock businessmen, own the convenient and service-oriented facilities.

Martin is on hand, together with a staff of talented personnel, at the Fair Restaurant, and Mrs. Steve (Clydene) Lewis personally manages the Rowday Inn Restaurant.

Select at either restaurant from a complete menu, excellently prepared and priced to please.

Specials At Each
 There are breakfast specials at the Fair, together with new luncheon specials posted every day. Then on Wednesdays, the Fair Restaurant features special low prices on "all the chicken you can eat," with fish on Fridays at the same low price. (These specials effective from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. on the indicated days.)

At the Rowday Restaurant, specials are equally significant, with daily luncheon specials appealing to the business-man, family eating out or the traveling person alike. The specials change daily, assuring a menu sure to be enjoyed no matter if once-a-week or daily eating at the Rowday Inn Restaurant is involved.

Every Thursday is "stew day," with the famous Rowday Inn Restaurant stew served with jalapeno cornbread! (Every day one can enjoy cornbread at this popular restaurant just off University Avenue on 4th Street.)

Whatever the food selection at a Martin & Lewis Restaurant, everything seems to say "thanks for being our guest."

"May we have the pleasure of serving you, too, at an early date. Let's make 1979 a Martin & Lewis year!"

'Lellem Welch Stocks Plumbing Parts You've Been Seeking'

Lellem Welch Assisting With 'Parts By Literal Thousands'

"It still amazes me," says Richard Welch, "the number of people who come into our store at 1401 Avenue J and say 'I never knew you were here. I'm sure glad I found you and now I know where to come for plumbing, heating or cooling parts.'"

That's what Lellem Welch Inc. is all about — helping people find the right plumbing part.

"In this world of rising costs, it's more necessary than ever that we learn to do many things ourselves. Many of us are doing things we have never done before and many do not know how to do what we need to do ourselves."

"So, we at Welch, who started out as a plumbing repair company (and we still do repair), have become storekeepers because we found people looking for some place they could shop and receive good, solid advice about their plumbing problems."

"At Welch we learned to listen to the customer, since he is asking for advice or parts he really knows very little about. Whether the problem be big or small, we try to give as much time and personal attention as possible to each customer to solve their problems."

To do this, it is necessary to have several thousands of the many different plumbing parts necessary for repair. For example, in stock are faucet parts for over 160 different faucets. The sales people at Welch are qualified, licensed plumbers and therefore are aware of the many parts that are interchangeable. Many times a customer is told a certain part is no longer available, and in some cases this is true. But many times they are repairable because they can be interchanged with other manufactured parts.

When it becomes necessary to replace a worn out item with something new, Welch makes it a policy to sell only the merchandise from long established companies and suppliers. "The availability of repair parts is a major item in our decision to handle and sell any merchandise."

"Some of our major items are: State Water Heaters, for both gas and electric, from 6-gallon mobile home sizes to as large as necessary to do the job. Arctic Circle Evaporative Cooling, for window, roof, gable, mobile home. Eljer Plumbing Fixtures along with Payne Heating, and Bradley Faucets."

"Naturally we can't forget wrap-on heat tapes and insulation for cold weather, along with April Air Humidifiers and Space Guard Air Cleaners. This is only a part of what we stock."

Lellem Welch Inc. has the knowledge and know-how to help you with anything from repairing a faucet to adding a bathroom yourself. It's still good to know if help is needed, Welch is there to help you finish what you have started.

Gill Construction Explains Threefold Advantage Of Early Improvements

"What can Gill Construction do for you?"

Lots of things, especially if early attention is given the following:

Gill Construction Co., the Lubbock firm that can make your home like new, wants to save for you as a valued customer.

Consequently, it passes on this information: Notice has been received that material costs for its products are going up effective Jan. 26. So, any job contracted before that date will be at the present prices, avoiding the increase.

Added incentive for early action is threefold:

- (1) No price increase before Jan. 26.
- (2) An actual discount of up to 30 per cent off as a New Year Special for a limited time; and
- (3) Free gold storm door given with each job at this time!

Some may not realize that Gill is in its new home, convenient quarters at 4901 Brownfield Highway in southwest Lubbock. Even the phone number is new: 797-6559.

Like Gill and his capable staff can show you how you never need paint your home again (and with the rising costs on every hand, doesn't this appeal?)

Gill, with 13 years in related business in Lubbock and the South Plains, is glad to give full details, explaining without obligation the advantages of USS (United States Steel) soffit and fascia systems and USS siding with a 30-year prorated limited warranty.

Think of this . . . in your own situation: "When your home's overhangs start to deteriorate, the entire residence begins to get that 'run down' look. Right?"

Soffit and fascia (the roof overhang on a home) has the important function of providing home ventilation necessary so excess moisture from inside can escape and to help maintain the proper balance of temperature.

A wood overhang usually is the first area of a home to deteriorate and look bad. It requires frequent, expensive maintenance. It is dangerous and awkward to work on. If a wood overhang doesn't receive frequent attention, it quickly begins to look unattractive and it detracts from the otherwise well-cared-for look of a home.

Like Gill and his capable crew can install USS soffit and fascia and siding, all or either, anywhere in the area, fast and immediately.

Consider the USS materials and their advantages, including:

- (1) Available in a number of attractive colors.
- (2) never needs painting.
- (3) goes up easily over old wood, asbestos, stucco or masonry walls.
- (4) superior insulation against heat, cold and outside noises.
- (5) does not support combustion.
- (6) will not

peel, blister, flake or warp; and (7) fast installation with professional results . . . from Gill Construction Co.

No down payment is required; financing is available. The program is acceptable to FHA Title I. Gill reports.

"So, homeowners, take notice; it is true, with no gimmicks, that you never need paint your home again, thanks to Gill Construction Co., now at 4901 Brownfield Hwy., phone 797-6559, and thanks to the quality USS products."

FOR FUNCTIONAL BEAUTY — United States Steel siding, soffit and fascia systems are the specialty of Gill Construction Co., now at its new 4901 Brownfield Highway location in Lubbock.

AMONG MULTIPLE HALE UNITS — Within the 500 Series of Jackknives, Hale presents eight models. Like the other Hale units, they are rugged trailers built tough and equipped to handle the job. Such features as cross gates, escape door and four-wheel electric brakes are standard equipment. Options are available, enabling you to "pull one you'll like".

Stock Trailers From Hale Firm Fulfilling Demands For Region

"Have you discovered for yourself how the best trailers are built by Hale, nationwide manufacturers dating from back in 1946?"
Hale Manufacturing Co., Inc., at its Idalou Highway location just northeast of Lubbock, continually maintains a large selection of both new and used stock trailers.
Not only is a very good choice now available at the Lubbock site, but new models will shortly be arriving.
Providing trailers for area needs, with stock trailers, jackknife units and all, Hale in Lubbock is proud to introduce and stock units to meet the specific need. See the two-horse trailer featuring walk-through door at the front, new A-frame type tongue, the spaciousness of 6 ft. 6 in. head room, and all deluxe features standard.
In Lubbock since 1956, Hale maintains a distribution center, retail sales, assembly plant and service-parts headquarters at its facilities on the Idalou Highway just northeast of Lubbock (Rt. 7, Box 429, phone 806-765-8956.)
Stan Howle, Lubbock native and with Hale for eight years, is manager, understanding trailers and area needs and preferences.

Hale trailers include units built for horses and other livestock, utility trailers, jackknife units, flatbeds and dump beds. A full representative stock is maintained here, and units are available at the firm or from its West Texas and New Mexico dealers.
Service Department
A full service department is maintained, with service on all trailers, whether they were purchased from the firm or elsewhere.
Quality-Built
Brake and light sales and installation are available, as is repainting.
Check the following that are among the features standard on every Hale trailer, adding up to Hale value:
A quality vinyl acrylic finish is applied to every Hale trailer. Before the finishing coat is applied, each trailer is smoothed and thoroughly cleaned. Then a primer coat is applied followed by the vinyl acrylic finish. Color selection is from nine beautiful standard colors. Two-tone or special paint colors are available on request.
Lamps are sealed for protection from moisture, and wiring is enclosed in conduit.
The tongue of 3-inch heavy-wall pipe construction and features positive Locking Bulldog coupler and easy-to-operate Bulldog Jack.

The heavy duty all-welded primary frame features heavy 3-inch by 3-inch angle iron with secondary cross members of 2-inch by 2-inch angle iron.
Tongue and grooved flooring spans the width of the trailer for utmost in strength and safety.
Heavy seven-leaf springs are designed to give the carrying capacity demanded of a stock trailer.
Equalizer Bars Standard
The axle and hub are especially designed for long life. The four-inch drop center axle creates a lower center of gravity as well as lowering the floor of the trailer, making loading and unloading easier.
Cast steel equalizer bars are used for durability and strength.
For a quality trailer, with proven features, built and equipped for its intended purpose, "you need to take a closer look at these great units right here on the South Plains, at Hale Manufacturing Co., Inc., Idalou Hwy. just east of Lubbock."
"May we have the pleasure of your visit, inquiry and inspection?"

'Rent A Fence' Included In Multiple Services Available From Efco Firm

Fences built for every need — residential, business, commercial and all — this is the business of Efco Fence Company, No. 33 Redbud Square, 13th Street and Slide Road, phone 792-8246, in Lubbock.
Even Rentals
Furthermore, now one can rent a fence from Efco!
Security fencing is necessary, often for a limited time, for so many situations... such as on-site building construction and storage, other commercial situations, etc., that call for protection against vandalism, pilferage and what-not.
Efco will rent a fence for these needs, installing and maintaining as long as the need exists. What a benefit to both residential and commercial contractors, as example.
It all is in line with Efco's recognition and solution of the fencing preferences and needs of Lubbock and area.
Locally-owned Efco Fence Company has been in operation on the South Plains for several years.
A phone call to 792-8246 will bring quick response to any questions about fencing.
Multiple Types
Spruce, cedar, redwood or chain link fencing is no problem for Efco. This company can build it all to the customer's satisfaction. It is pleased to offer free estimates on new construction, replacement fencing, repairs, removal and maintenance services.
E.R. Forrester, senior partner and commercial sales executive for Efco Fence explains:
"All construction materials have risen in price dramatically the past few months. Fencing material is no different. Through efficient management and volume production, we have been able to hold our costs down on some lines of fencing. We like to pass these savings on to our customers."
A Fence For The Need
"There seems to be a trend to more chain link installation, especially in the rural areas. A fence can serve three purposes... to keep something in, or out, or for privacy. If privacy is a primary concern, then wood is the logical selection, and we can build a fence to our customer's specification," says Forrester.

Several Crews
"At the present time we have several crews building fence and we try to hold our backlog time to one week from the time of receiving an order for a fence. Most times we are successful, and it is less time than even that. Unforeseen contingencies can cause delays, too. These we strive to avoid as often as possible."
Why Delay?
"Wouldn't you think that now is the time to consider building that fence you've been needing? Or repair the one you've been renting for years?"

"Then why not inquire now and discover the advantages of having Efco Fence Company as your contractor, you'll be glad you did."
"Exceptional facilities and the experienced personnel who are customer oriented make "relying upon this firm a pleasure for a change."
Efco will see that your fence is constructed in the best possible way to meet your requirements.
For free estimates call the fence folks at 792-8246

Solon Planning Anti-Eagle Bill

BY MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A freshman congressman has come to Washington from the rugged, brush country of West Texas with his sights trained on golden eagles.

Freshman Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, doesn't want to wipe out the already endangered species; he just aims at the golden eagles that "are doing thousands of dollars of damage to livestock in my district."

Loeffler, a 32-year-old lawyer-rancher from Hunt, says he'll press the federal government to issue permits allowing ranchers to "defend their property" by killing eagles when necessary.

Better yet, the federal government should leave the problem in the hands of local officials, he added.

"I'm not saying we should allow every golden eagle in the world to be destroyed. I'm certainly not for killing off an endangered species," Loeffler said. "But a man has a right to defend his property and livelihood. Some men from my district were treated as folk heroes" after being convicted of killing approximately 70 golden eagles from a helicopter.

A federal judge in San Antonio handed down minimal sentences to the four Real County men convicted of illegally killing golden eagles.

The three men — a county commissioner, a ranch foreman and a former federal predator trapper — received fines of $1,000, $3,000 and $2,000. One of the three also received a one-year probated sentence.

Fiery Pinto Wreck Claims Three Lives

AUSTIN (AP) — The gasoline tank of a 1972 Ford Pinto burst into flames after the car was struck in the rear over the weekend, killing three passengers, police said.

The Pinto is one of 1.5 million Pinto and Mercury Bobcat sedans from the 1971 through 1976 model years recalled by Ford last June for modification of their fuel tanks. The Pintos and Bobcats are nearly identical.

The Ford Motor Co., which produces both models, was indicted by a grand jury in Elkhart, Ind., after a crash Aug. 10, 1978, in which three young women died. The grand jury charged Ford with reckless homicide for the company's alleged failure to change the fuel tank after July 1, 1978 — the first day after the June recall period. That case is still in the pre-trial stage.

Several suits have been filed against Ford Motor Co. in connection with rear-end fires in Pintos and Bobcats. The most notable resulted last year in a California jury award against Ford of $128 million, reduced by the judge to more than $600,000 and now on appeal by Ford.

Ford is arguing that it cannot be held responsible for violating a 1977 federal law with a vehicle manufactured before then, and that, at most, it has a duty to "warn or to offer to repair."

Crash tests by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration have shown that the fuel systems consistently leaked large amounts of gasoline when struck from behind at moderate to high speeds.

Police said the Pinto involved in the Saturday morning accident was going about 25 mph when it was struck from behind by a car in south Austin.

Police said the Pinto's gas tank burst into flames, and four of the five occupants were enveloped in flames. Three of them died, another suffered serious burns, and the fifth victim escaped with scrapes and bruises.

The dead were identified as Josephina G. Maldonado, 53, of Del Valle; and Miguel Morales, 18, and Juan Urbina, 30, both of Austin. Officials said Miss Maldonado died from burns and a broken neck and the other two burned to death.

The occupants of the other car, Jose Gonzales, 25, and Miguel Rosales, 34, both of Austin, suffered minor cuts.

Super Steelers Celebrate 35-31

MIAMI (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, who so often has seen other National Football League quarterbacks destroyed in the Super Bowl, used the championship game as a personal showcase Sunday, firing four touchdown passes and leading the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 35-31 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Bradshaw passed for a career-high 318 yards and was a unanimous choice as the game's most valuable player. He constructed the victory much the way he had moved the Steelers to pro football's best record this season — by throwing the ball.

"I went in deciding to do what I had done best all year," said the Steelers quarterback. As the American Football Conference's leading passer, he threw for an NFL high 28 touchdowns this season. "I was going to play this game my way. I wasn't going to let the Super Bowl dictate to me the way it had to so many others."

The result was the most exciting game in the 13-year history of the Super Bowl series, as Bradshaw staged a brilliant passing duel with Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach. Both men finished with identical passing figures — 17 completions in 30 attempts with one interception apiece. But Bradshaw will wear the championship ring because of a stubborn determination to play the game his way.

"We used a lot of play-action passes," Bradshaw said. "I was going to play the game my way, win or lose. We turned this team around by going to the air and nobody was going to make me change that."

Certainly not the Cowboys, who simply couldn't control Bradshaw's air game. Lynn Swann caught seven passes for 124 yards and one touchdown. John Stallworth caught three for 115 yards and two touchdowns. And Pittsburgh ran up the highest point total for a Super Bowl champion.

Bradshaw steered the Steelers to two touchdowns inside of 19 seconds in the fourth quarter to break open the game after a fatal fumble on a kickoff by Dallas defensive tackle Randy White.

"I thought that was the key play of the game," said Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll. "That kind of put it out of reach for them."

If Noll and the Steelers thought Dallas was finished at that point, Bradshaw certainly didn't. And Staubach almost pulled off a comeback, throwing for two touchdowns in the final 2½ minutes before running out of time.

"With 6:38 to play, the guys thought we had it won and started celebrating," said Bradshaw. "That made me mad. I knew how dangerous Roger could be. I could see us getting 35 points and losing the Super Bowl. That would have been terrible."

It didn't happen, though. Bradshaw had built enough of a bulge to stand off the Cowboys' rally. The bottom line of this football game involved two passes — one thrown by Bradshaw and the other by Staubach. Both fell incomplete, but the outcome of the game rested on them.

Trailing 21-14 in the third period, Dallas drove to the Steelers' 10-yard line. On third down with 3 yards to go, Staubach called timeout and huddled with coach Tom Landry. They chose the right play — a pass to veteran tight end Jackie Smith, who was wide open in the end zone. The problem was that Smith didn't catch the ball, and instead of a tying touchdown, Dallas had to settle for a 27-yard field goal.

"The play was wide open and I tried to take a little bit off it and just lob it in there," said Staubach. "It came in low, and when he tried to cradle it, it hit his pads. If I had thrown it in there, he would have had an easy catch. He feels as bad about it as I do, but I could have thrown a lot better pass."

Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll's reaction to the dropped pass was immediate. "I said Hooray!"

Bradshaw's missed pass in the fourth quarter was aimed for Swann and resulted in a 33-yard pass interference call against Dallas cornerback Benny Barnes.

"I was tripped twice," said Swann. "After I got up the first time, I was tripped again."

Barnes, however, didn't agree.

"I never did see Swann," he said. "The ball was between us and catchable. Swann ran right up my back. When I saw the flag, I knew it was on him."

But it wasn't.

Field judge Fred Swearingen, who threw the flag, explained it this way: "It was a judgment call on a pass play. The two players bumped before the ball was even close to them. Perhaps before the ball was thrown. They were both looking back and the defender went to the ground. The Pittsburgh receiver, in trying to get to the ball, was tripped by the defender's feet. He interfered with the receiver trying to get to the ball."

The 33-yard penalty doomed the Cowboys, positioning the ball for a 22-yard touchdown sprint by Franco Harris, which gave Pittsburgh a 28-17 lead.

When Randy White tumbled the ensuing kickoff, Bradshaw struck again, hitting Swann on an 18-yard TD pass that started the Steelers celebrating.

It was almost premature.

"You have a tendency to become jubilant," explained Noll.

Bradshaw had to bring the Steelers from behind in this see-saw game. After he hit Stallworth with a first-quarter TD pass of 28 yards, Dallas bounced back and took the lead 14-7. Staubach combined with Tony Hill on a 39-yard pass play for the first score with only six seconds left in the first period — the first time all season Pittsburgh had surrendered a touchdown in the opening quarter.

Then, early in the second period, Bradshaw had the ball stripped from him by linebacker Mike Hegman, who had sandwiched the Pittsburgh quarterback with Tom Henderson on a broken play. Hegman went 37 yards for the score, and suddenly, the Cowboys were in front. What's more, Bradshaw had suffered a bruised left shoulder on the play.

"I was in intense pain," said Bradshaw. "But I just told them I was going back in on the play."

And Pittsburgh's next series of downs, Bradshaw fought off a Cowboys' blitz with a

Smith Regrets Only Super Bowl Chance

MIAMI (AP) — Jackie Smith waited 16 years to get into a Super Bowl, and for a few brief painful moments in the Dallas Cowboys dressing room Sunday night, he wished the fates hadn't put him in Super Bowl XIII.

Smith, the former St. Louis Cardinals tight end who came out of retirement to play for the Cowboys, dropped a certain touchdown pass in the third quarter of the 35-31 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I feel badly," said Smith, wiping sweat away from his face. "If I had caught the pass, we would have tied them 21-21 and would have had all the momentum."

"It hit me in the hip. The pass was just fine. I was just wide open and I missed it. I think I slipped. I couldn't get the right position and was trying to come back for the ball."

"What great guys on this team, and I let them down. It was a play Coach (Tom) Landry conceived for this game. And it was quite a play. It might have been a matter of being over-cautious. Maybe I would have caught it with my hands. But I was trying to use my chest."

Landry said: "It was a very key play. Jackie was so wide open that Roger tried to throw it soft. It came in low. When Jackie tried to stop, his feet seemed to come out from under him."

"I'll be okay in a couple of days but this hurts so," Smith said. "And it happens to me in the 13th Super Bowl."

The Cowboys were livid over a fourth quarter pass interference call made by field judge Fred Swearingen.

Swearingen said Barnes interfered with Steeler receiver Lynn Swann. The call setup a 22-yard touchdown run by Franco Harris that gave the Steelers a 27-17 lead.

"I had the right of way," said Barnes. "The referee said I flung my foot back to trip him. I never did see Swann. The ball was between us and it was catchable."

Running back Preston Pearson said, "That cost us the game. The officials are —"

"How can it be interference with another guy is behind you?"

Tex Schramm, Cowboy president, said, "I saw the replay on television. It looked like he (Swann) ran into our man. It was incidental contact. Another referee was looking right at it and didn't call it."

Landry said, "That was perhaps the key play of the game. It looked like Swann jumped into Barnes."

The Cowboys, although they lost their Super Bowl crown, heaped praise on Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who threw four touchdown passes.

"Bradshaw was on another planet and so were his receivers," said strong safety Charlie Waters. "It was like they had extra-sensory perception or something."

Free safety Cliff Harris said, "We knew Bradshaw was the key and we didn't stop him the way we had to. They are a really good team, but Bradshaw made them great today."

"This one hurts more than our first Super Bowl loss (Super Bowl V)," said Schramm. "We lost a position in history. We wanted to be the first to win three Super Bowls."

"They won but they aren't that good of a team," said Waters, "except, of course, for today."

For once — over a period of two or three minutes — professional football's prince of palaver was speechless.

Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, who captured most of the pre-Super Bowl XIII headlines with his outspoken ways, broke down and cried.

The Dallas Cowboy linebacker suffered the final indignity Sunday when a burly Steeler fan yelled at him: "Hollywood. What happened to your mouth?"

Henderson just grimaced and walked to his locker in the tomb silent Cowboy dressing room.

He sat for several minutes with his head buried in his hands after the loss.

"I am not ashamed of the way I played," said Henderson, wiping away big tears. "I never felt defeat until the scoreboard clock said 0:00."

10-yard pitch to Stallworth, who caught the ball at the 35-yard line. He broke a tackle by Cowboys' cornerback Aaron Kyle, got a block from Swann and sprinted down the middle of the field, completing the 75-yard TD play. That tied a Super Bowl record set in 1971 by Johnny Unitas and John Mackey of Baltimore.

"I just ran a post over the center," said Stallworth. "I turned and caught the ball. I kinda knew there was somebody to my right and I cut away from him. Then, when I saw there was nobody in front of me... there was not a feeling in the world like that."

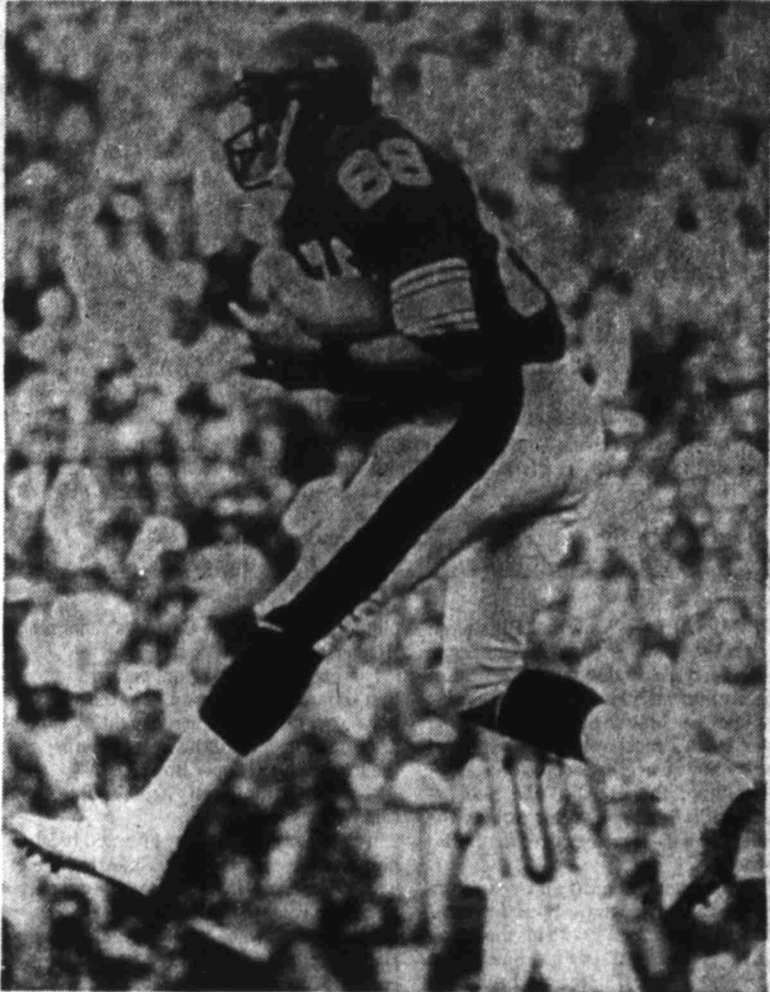

That tied the score at 14-14, and Roy Gerela tried to put the Steelers in front with a 51-yard field attempt. The ball hit the crossbar — perhaps three inches away from three points for Pittsburgh. But soon, the Steelers had seven, this time on Bradshaw's third TD pass of the game — a 7-yarder to Rocky Bleier.

"We had two wide receivers on the other side," said Bleier. "D.D. Lewis (Dallas linebacker) chucked me once and I stumbled. I never made a tougher catch in my life."

That TD sent the Steelers into the dressing room with the lead, and Pittsburgh never surrendered it. After the game was over, Swann tried to put it in perspective.

"This is the greatest game we ever played," the flanker said. "Terry had great play selection and great confidence. He said, 'Let's just go out there and have some fun.' It always is fun — when you win."

Just A Pinch Between...

MIAMI (AP) — While his Pittsburgh Steelers' teammates popped champagne corks, Terry Bradshaw pushed a wad of tobacco into his jaw and chewed up his own juicy celebration Sunday night as the Super Bowl's most valuable player and country-boy quarterback come-of-age.

"Himmm, this is nice," he said between smiles and spits after leading the Steelers to a 35-31 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

"I felt nervous as a cat all week," confessed Bradshaw, who capped his most productive season ever with his most productive game ever — four touchdowns and 318 yards in the air. Both were Super Bowl records.

"I came out to the stadium early today, maybe 2 1/2 hours before the game, and I felt fine as I got in this football environment. I was ready to play."

One low point for Bradshaw came when he had the ball taken from him by linebacker Mike Hegman and returned 37 yards for a touchdown that gave Dallas a 14-7 lead in the second quarter.

"He just took it away from me," said Bradshaw. "But we didn't panic. We just went to work to get some points."

Bradshaw's second touchdown toss of the game to John Stallworth and another to Rocky Bleier put Pittsburgh back on top 21-14 by halftime and the Cowboys cut it to 21-17 after three quarters. Early in the fourth quarter, Bradshaw made a touchdown call that showed why nobody calls him a dummy any more.

It was a third-and-nine play at the Cowboys' 22.

"I was looking for the blitz, so I called the quick off-tackle trap to Franco. You blitz on that, and Franco will bust it."

Franco Harris busted it for 22 yards and a touchdown. Bradshaw popped another touchdown pass to Lynn Swann, making it 35-17, and the last two Dallas touchdowns just made it close.

"That trap play hadn't worked all day," said Harris. "We decided to try it one more time. You have that faith, you have that feeling it's going to happen for you."

Swann, who always keeps the faith, had a glub of champagne in his hands after grabbing seven passes for 124 yards.

"A big bottle of champagne for a big Super Bowl team," said Swann, a Super Bowl MVP when Pittsburgh beat the Cowboys here three years ago.

Swann offered the first gulp to Stallworth, who had three first-half catches for 115 yards before missing nearly the whole second half with leg cramps.

"It was very frustrating to have to sit there the whole second half," said Stallworth. "But with the great year everybody on the team has been having, I knew we'd get it done."

Meanwhile, backup linebacker Dennis "Dirt" Winston was savoring a memorable pop he put on the Cowboys' Thomas Henderson.

PORTALES, N.M. (Special) — The Texas Tech women's basketball team will travel to Eastern New Mexico University tonight to play in their last competition before competing in the Texas Classic in Austin.

The play came on a punt return in the first quarter. Henderson, on the Cowboys' coverage team, was caught by surprise and knocked off his feet by perhaps the hardest hit of Super Bowl XIII.

"I got after him pretty good," Winston said with a smile.

"I didn't say a thing, but I wanted to let him know it was gonna be like that the whole game, no matter what the score, no matter what the outcome."

Henderson, who boldly predicted a Dallas victory and belittled some Steelers, also got a message later from Joe Greene.

A kickoff went out of bounds and the Cowboys had to kick it over. Greene left the sideline and ambled onto the field to talk to Henderson.

"I just asked him, 'Why is a superstar like you on the kickoff team?'" said Greene, smiling. "I just wanted to have something to say to him. We all love Thomas. I do."

Greene and L.C. Greenwood, rookies 10 years ago on a chronic loser that blossomed into the first team to win three Super Bowls, declared themselves part of "the greatest team in football."

"This was the greatest Super Bowl ever played and it took a great team to win it," said Greene, who was the first-round draft pick of the Pittsburgh Steelers' team that finished 1-13 in 1969.

"Wow, this is a hell of a time to think back 10 years," Greenwood said.

Crenshaw Retains Lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw converted a tiny change in his putting into a spectacular, 10-under-par 61 that gave him firm control Sunday in the second round of the twice-postponed and now abbreviated Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Crenshaw's string of nine birdies in an 11-hole stretch helped him compile the lowest score in two years of tour activity and enabled him to take a 4-stroke lead with only 18 holes to go in the tournament.

"I knew I was on the verge of playing some good golf," Crenshaw said. "I've been hitting the ball well. I really felt good about it. It was just a matter of time until I could get my putter going."

Crenshaw finished his string of birdies with a 10-foot putt on the 18th green, nine holes after he had made a slight change in his putting.

"That's as low as I can shoot," he said. "What would you have to do to shoot 59? Good God."

His reference was to the all-time tour record of 59 set by Al Geiberger two years ago in the Memphis Classic.

Crenshaw's heroics gave him a 36-hole total of 128, a dizzying 14 shots under par on the flat, 7,726-yard course that was inundated by rains late last week. The storm washed out play both Thursday and Friday and forced tournament officials to trim the event from a 72-hole to a 54-hole format. It's now scheduled to end with the third round today.

The rains left the course spotted by pools and puddles of casual water. Players were allowed to lift, clean and place balls in the fairways. A similar situation was in effect when Geiberger shot his record round at Memphis.

Andy Bean, Jerry Pate and first-round leader Jay Haas shared second place at 132. Bean and Pate had 66s and Haas had to eagle the final hole with an 18-foot putt for a 67. Howard Twitty was next at 134 after a 66.

John Mahaffey, a winner last week, was at 137 after a 69 and U.S. Open titleholder Andy North was 70-136.

"It's hard to believe," Haas said of Crenshaw's effort. "I'm making pars and birdies, and every time I look up I'm another stroke behind."

Crenshaw, who won his first start as a full-fledged member of the tour, had a disappointing season last year, failing to take a title.

Ben, now 27, started from the 10th tee Sunday and gave no immediate hint that a spectacular round was in the offing. He made routine pars on the first three holes, missing a 5-foot birdie putt on his third hole.

Golden Tornadoes Lead 3-AAA Race

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
The Lamesa boys basketball team is so slow...

However, lack of team speed hasn't hindered the fact that Lamesa is off to a fast start in the 3-AAA basketball race. After three encounters, the Golden Tornadoes are yet to lose a loop contest. Overall, Lamesa sports a 15-5 record.

Among Lamesa's victims is preseason district favorite Snyder. The Golden Tornadoes edged the Tigers 51-50.

"We never score many points," said Lamesa coach O.W. Follis. "And we never blow anybody out. 'Because we're so slow, we don't run a lot. We just try and work for the good percentage shot.'"

Speed, by the way, is not Lamesa's only disadvantage. The Golden Tornadoes are not exactly the tallest basketball team in the South Plains.

"We only have on tall player," said Follis. "He's 6-3. The rest of our team is pretty balanced."

The 6-3 cager is postman Reuben Steinbronn. Steinbronn is averaging 17 points and 12 rebounds a contest. Making up Lamesa's balance includes Eddie Arrendondo (6-0, Jr.) and Mondon Morales Armando-ra-Pepe Lucio (6-0, Jr.) and Richard (6-2 Soph.) at (6-0, Jr.) and Mondon Morales rmannd0-Mposah Pepe Lucio (6-0, Jr.) and Richard (6-2 Soph.) at the guards, with Pepe Lucio (6-0, Jr.) and Richard Jones (6-1 1/2 Sr.) at the forward positions.

And Lamesa has gotten off to its fast start without two players that figured in Follis' plans before the season began. The Golden Tornadoes lost guards Kenny Lindsey and Jeff Frowman Jeff Frowe prior to the start of district action.

"Kenney's father was transferred," said Follis. "Jeff cracked a bone in his ankle during the Estacado game and will be lost for the season."

How has the loss of both starting guards hampered the play of the Golden Tornadoes?

"Well, it hurts us because teams do like to press against us and Morales and Arrendondo just aren't as good of ball handlers," said Follis. "But we're still able to break the trap. The key has been good movement and positioning by the entire team."

Though on paper Lamesa's faults outweigh its strengths, the fact remains that the Golden Tornadoes are still undefeated in loop play.

"I think it's just the kids desire to play basketball," said Follis. "They love to play basketball here."

Is good coaching a reason for Lamesa's cage success?

"No, not at all," quickly responded Follis. "It's just the kids like to play. It's not the coaching."

One factor that can't be overlooked is Lamesa's basketball tradition. In the past 19 years, the Golden Tornadoes have captured three AAA state basketball championships. Lamesa posted titles in 1960, 1967 and 1975.

"I think that has a lot to do with it," said Follis in reference to tradition. "Tradition gets the kids believing in themselves. It gives them the confidence that they know they can win."

While Lamesa works for the good percentage shot on offense, the Golden Tornadoes play a variety of defenses. Some of their favorite defensive sets include man-to-man, 1-3-1 and 1-2-2 zones.

"Again, because we're small and short, we like to keep the opponent off balance," commented the Lamesa coach.

Sixteen times and including three district games, the Golden Tornadoes have been able to confuse their opponent.

76er Rally Trips Celts

BOSTON (AP) — Reserves Henry Bibby and Caldwell Jones sparked a decisive fourth period surge with three baskets each Sunday as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Boston Celtics 91-87 for a split in their National Basketball Association weekend series.

Bibby and Jones, who had only 14 points between them, got hot as the 76ers outscored Boston 13-6 to building an 11-point lead, 82-71, with just over seven minutes to play.

The Celtics, who had taken a 108-102 victory in Philadelphia Saturday night, closed to within 88-85, but Bobby Jones pulled the 76ers out of danger, cashing three free throws before Boston's Chris Ford went in for an uncontested layup just prior to the final buzzer.

The 76ers were led by Julius Erving with 22 points, Bobby Jones with 21 and Doug Collins with 14. The Celtics were topped by Cedric Maxwell with 20, Ford 18 and Dave Cowens 15.

Led by Curtis Rowe with six points and five rebounds, Boston jumped to a 29-22 lead before a matinee crowd of 11,783. Heavy rain leaked from the Garden roof and the court under one basket had to be mopped often.

Joe Bryant sparked a streak of nine points in a row in the second period as Philadelphia went on to a 49-44 halftime lead. Bobby Jones hit for eight points in the third period as the 76ers took a 69-65 advantage into the final quarter.

Few Women Behind Scenes In Movie Industry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After the release of films such as "Julia" and "The Turning Point," 1977 was touted as the beginning of a renaissance for women in film.

But while women have returned prominently to the movie screen, there are still questions about how much they figure in Hollywood's behind-the-scenes decisions.

A report by a federal advisory committee on the film industry concludes that women and minorities are poorly represented in the business and creative areas at the seven major film studios.

And, the report says, top managers at studios have not been held accountable for effective affirmative action, and training opportunities in the industry are minimal.

The report, "Equal Employment Opportunity in the Motion Picture Industry," was prepared by the California Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

The 48-page study contends that employment opportunities for minorities and women at the major film production companies were negligible from 1969 to 1977.

But there are a few women emerging behind the camera. Among them are Claire Townsend and Alex Rose.

At 27, Miss Townsend is one of about 10 women climbing the upper rungs of Hollywood's corporate ladder.

She began as a producer's script reader at 20th Century-Fox, then moved into a story editor's slot at the studio and up to assistant vice president for creative affairs. She recently left Fox for United Artists, where she is a vice president in charge of production.

Miss Townsend describes her progress at Fox as "totally haphazard," adding, "I seized the opportunities. I was not particularly headed for anything, but I made good use of whatever was available."

By a series of coincidences, she began as a reader for producer Martin Ransohoff. Armed with an English degree from Princeton, Miss Townsend had arrived in Hollywood with a vision to "save literature — maybe to start a salon, a haven from the Hollywood butchers and Philistines."

Instead, for six months she read about three screenplays a day, moving up and down the Fox hallways because there was no space for her in Ransohoff's office.

When Ransohoff joined with Frank Yablans, she read for both, she says, meanwhile gaining experience and developing a sense of what makes a good film.

"Along the way, I got some chutzpah. There was a third guy in the office who was soliciting material (for possible films). He was let go and not replaced. I moved into his office, put my name on the door and started actively soliciting," she says. She had expanded her job — but not her paycheck.

When she got the nerve to ask for a raise, there were a few smirks and a reminder that dozens of people would take her job at "a tenth of the price," she says. So she went down the Fox hallways seeking a new job.

"I had been forced to cruise the halls looking for a place to work, because I had no office. I had been anchorless. So I just went back to every one of those offices and asked about jobs. Within two weeks, I had a job as a story editor. I had talked with people so they knew me," she said.

But Miss Townsend notes that although a good share of women in the film industry got to the level of story editor, few go beyond.

"It's just the old problem, that in a sense, women have to be perfect at their jobs just to keep up with men," she says. "Women don't have that margin of error to make mistakes — not if they want to get ahead."

So it's no surprise that only a handful of women are working as Hollywood producers.

Alex (short for Alexandra) Rose and Tamara Asseyev make up Rose and Asseyev Productions. The two have been together about four years. This year, the team's production efforts resulted in "I Wanna Hold Your Hand," "Big Wednesday" and the upcoming film "Norma Rae."

Miss Rose agrees that while the film industry was basically closed to women in the past, the number of women in film is growing. And she says there are even more women working in television.

She began in film distribution with producer Roger Corman after leaving a job as an assistant sales manager for Medford Films.

"I got a feeling of what types of things work nationwide," she says of the experience. "But I began to realize the career of being a distributor was a very one-line thing — very limiting."

So she began to consider production. While working on the distribution of "Sweet Kill," she met Miss Asseyev, who was seeking a partner at the time. Since Miss Rose was looking for an associate with production experience, their pairing was a natural.

She enjoys being a producer, which, she explains, demands a familiarity with all aspects of filmmaking and production. "You're in on the early stages of development of a project. You can steer it along and have some basis of control in terms of the material," she says. "And, I like working for myself."

She has not encountered problems selling projects in a male-dominated field.

"People are always interested in a good project. If it's something they're interested in and they want to buy, they buy it." Her advice to other women: "Keep your goal in mind and just do it."

German Rightists Object To 'Holocaust'

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — A West German TV network said Sunday it is going ahead with plans to show "Holocaust," the American series about the Nazi extermination of Jews, despite neo-Nazi threats of violence to block the transmission.

"We bought 'Holocaust' to show people both at home and abroad that we are not afraid to deal with such a shocking theme," telecast director Heinz Werner Huebner said.

A network spokesman said police would guard the stations and transmitting masts to prevent a repetition of last Thursday's bomb attack during the showing of a documentary prelude to "Holocaust."

The first of the four-part "Holocaust" series, dubbed in German, will be telecast throughout the nation Monday night. However, it is being shown on West Germany's third channel, regularly used for regional-interest programs, which attracts a much smaller audience than the two national channels.

The Cologne-based television station WDR paid $543,000 for the nine-hour series, which drew wide audiences in the United States and other countries when it was shown last year.

Neo-Nazis, who have become more militant and active recently, condemned the series on two grounds. Either they approved of the murder of Jews and opposed a program that produced sympathy for the Nazis' victims or they denied there had been an extermination campaign.

Many old Nazis dismiss as propaganda the statement that millions of Jews and others were murdered in Nazi concentration camps.

"Every decent German is summoned to prevent the transmission," a leaflet circulated by an extreme right-wing group calling itself the Independent Circle of Friends demanded.

TV stations said they were taking telephoned threats seriously. Anonymous callers demanded the series be canceled, and some said "there will be more bombings."

A bomb attack Thursday on a 1,000-foot transmission tower near Koblenz blacked out 1 million television screens and radio sets in the southwestern part of the country.

Another bomb, apparently intended for a nearby television installation, went off at a post office telephone tower.

Both bombs went off during a 90-minute German documentary on the mass murder of Jews, a prelude to the "Holocaust" series.

Police had no clue to the identity of the bombers but said it was obvious they were neo-Nazis.

Not all anti-Nazi Germans were in favor of the series. Some said they saw no need to reopen old wounds. Others simply thought the American series was "cheap commercialism" or "gas chambers, Hollywood style."

But Hans Koschnick, the Social Democratic mayor of Bremen, said, "This series will shake awake those people who do not want to look at the past and accept the truth."

H.G. Wells ran as a Labor candidate for Parliament in 1921 and 1922, but was defeated.

Porn Trade Paper Puts Out First Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is your peep show popping out? Is the Mafia muscling in on your topless go-go bar? Or is the vice squad busting your massage parlor? Don't get uptight.

A Washington publisher has the answer — a monthly newsletter aimed at "improving profits and maintaining business stability" in X-rated enterprises across America.

The first edition of Tab Report, billed as the "monthly news journal of the adult business world," is hot off the press with 16 pages of news, photos and gossip about the smut-and-sex business.

Editor-publisher Dennis Sobin illustrates his lead editorial on child pornography with what he says is a "prurient pose" of himself in the buff at age 7.

The editorial criticizes authorities for paying "grossly exaggerated and misdirected" attention to child pornography.

The premiere issue includes stories about porn and profit under headlines ranging from "San Diego Police Sued For Public Lewdness" to "Adult Supermarket Open In North Carolina."

The lead article is about a "boom" in sales of X-rated video cassettes: "Thanks to the electronic miracle of home video cassette machines — now at $500 to $1,000 — hard-core porn has moved to the living room."

Sobin, in a front-page letter to readers, says Tab Report "is here to help you" in starting up a sex bookstore, massage parlor, peep show, adult movie theater, burlesque house, escort service, go-go bar or swingers club.

"We are not novices to the adult business world," he says. "We know all about the myths and the realities of this competitive field. We know that your goal is a smooth-running, profitable operation."

The newsletter will help sex entrepreneurs with the problems "of being treated differently by government agencies and suppliers from other businesses, of taxation without representation and of the constant threat of harassment."

"We know that the fear of infiltration by organized crime is a rare but real occurrence, but that intimidation by organized crime-fighters such as the FBI and other organizations is more common and no less disruptive," he says.

Wayne's Condition Still Improving

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor John Wayne shows continued improvement in his recuperation from cancer surgery Jan. 12, the UCLA Medical Center reported Sunday.

The hospital issued a terse, 10-word statement on his condition: "Mr. Wayne continues to improve. His vital signs are stable."

A UCLA spokesman said there would be no further news conferences about his recovery until just before he is released unless there is an adverse development.

Wayne, 71, is expected to leave the hospital in about another week or 10 days.

Hearst Corporation Names Publisher For Texas Papers

MIDLAND (AP) — William C. Thomas has been named president and publisher of the Midland Reporter-Telegram and the Plainview Daily Herald.

The appointment was announced by Frank A. Bennack Jr., president of the Hearst Corp., and Robert J. Danzig, vice-president and general manager of newspapers.

Sale of both papers to the Hearst Corp. was finalized Monday.

Thomas was director of advertising and marketing at the San Antonio Light. He joined the Light as assistant retail advertising manager in 1968, and was promoted to retail advertising in 1969. He became advertising manager in 1975.

He also had been vice-president and advertising director of the Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Herald-Courier and the Virginia Tennessean.

$5.5 Million Expansion Planned For Florida's Cypress Gardens

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — One of the newest expansion projects in central Florida's booming tourist industry is designed primarily to delight the eye of the beholder.

Acres and acres of year-round blooming flowers have been the stock in trade for Florida Cypress Gardens since its creation during the Depression days of the 1930s. And flowers are getting major emphasis in its $5.5 million improvement and expansion program now under way.

One of the country's top botanical attractions, the park is boosting its flowering area to 48 acres, representing in some cases a 500 percent increase in flora, officials say.

Schools' Spending Expected To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a decline in total enrollments, expenditures for public and private schools at all levels are expected to rise 7 percent during the current school year, the Commerce Department has reported.

The department said expenditures are expected to reach almost $150 billion during the 1978-79 school year. And while colleges and universities comprise only about one-fifth of enrollment, the department said, they will account for one-third of the expenditures.

Robert C. Kundtz, vice president of horticulture, says the 1 million blooms rotated each year will jump to 5 million when the expansion project is completed next November.

"We've been stockpiling exotic plants for nearly three years in anticipation of the expansion," says the 43-year-old Kundtz, who designed the floral portion of the Florida exhibit at the 1984 New York World's Fair and was a consultant for flora plantings at the opening of Disney World in 1971.

The plants come from more than 70 countries on every continent, Kundtz says, and include rare flowering trees, shrubs and vines.

"In fact, he says, "We have more than 8,000 plant species and cultivars on the property, the result of years of searching all over the world."

Commerce Department Appointment Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has announced the appointment of Bernard H. Jackson as its regional secretarial representative in the New York area.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said Jackson will serve as her principal liaison with the business community, state and local governments and the public in New Jersey, New York, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

And he says that if a single year's growth could be displayed at once, it would blanket 100 acres or fill several football stadiums clear to the press box.

Among additions planned at the 42-year-old attraction, founded by Dick Pope in a 16-acre swampland halfway between Tampa and Orlando, are attractions ranging from live animal exhibits to a huge aviary, an overhead walk-through aquarium, four large theaters and a restaurant.

The 78-year-old Pope, now chairman of the board, says enlargement of entertainment facilities does not mean Cypress Gardens is drifting away from its botanical origins.

Instead, he says, "We can be assured of four-season color with blooms 365 days of the year."

Ex-Teacher's Potions Attract Bald Men Who Want New Hair

DARRAGH, Pa. (AP) — Marcella Ferens' secluded farmhouse has become a mecca for bald men who hope her concoction of herbs, vitamins and minerals will bring back the locks of their youth.

More than 20 shiny-pated men daily follow the bumpy roads that wind through cow pastures to her laboratory in this southwestern Pennsylvania community.

That says he's grown hair, I can guarantee you there's a dozen that have no results."

Ogun said his department inspected Mrs. Ferens' operation three years ago and plans another visit.

"It's true. You wouldn't believe it," car dealer Richard Lipecky said. "I look in the mirror and see it happen every day. My head was bald from the front to the back and now I've got hair all over."

Although Mrs. Ferens claims to have formulated a secret potion that can stimulate hair growth, the state Health Department disagrees.

"Good grief," said Jack Ogun, director of the department's Division of Drug Devices and Cosmetics.

Since her work was reported in a local newspaper, Mrs. Ferens has quit a teaching job to take care of an estimated 2,000 persons waiting for the $20 treatment.

One ecstatic patient recently rushed into the newsroom of the nearby Greensburg Tribune-Review to show off what he said was newborn growth.

"Natural baldness is just something that doesn't come back. We have no evidence that anyone has produced a formula to grow hair," he said. "For every one

"Obviously, I'm a believer. I'm seeing something happen up there," he said.

Minnelli Betrothal Report 'Inaccurate'

NEW YORK (AP) — A spokeswoman for entertainer Liza Minnelli said Sunday reports that the singer was about to announce her engagement to her stage manager were "totally inaccurate."

"This guy sure was excited," editor Frank Myers said. "He had little sprouts coming out of his head. They were light-colored and no more than a quarter of an inch long."

The Daily News reported in its Sunday editions that Miss Minnelli, who is now separated from her second husband, MGM producer Jack Haley Jr., would announce her engagement to stage manager Mark Gero at a party Monday night at Studio 54.

Mrs. Ferens, 59, said during a recent interview that she has been working on the treatment for about 40 years, ever since her balding physician uncle tried to restore her hair with homemade potions.

But Lois Smith, a spokeswoman for Miss Minnelli, said the entertainer had no plans to announce any engagement on Monday or at any other time in the near future.

She would not disclose her success rate but said she can grow hair on almost anyone.

BANANA DRAWBACK

A Filipino experimenter found that humans who ate bananas appealed to mosquitoes. The insects apparently crave two chemicals found in the fruit as well as in blood, and are equipped with sensitive detectors that enable them to sniff out faint banana odors in sweat.

The first step of the treatment is to run a rake-shaped glass instrument filled with purple gas across the head to sterilize the scalp. Then the subject holds a wire hooked to an electrolysis machine. The operator massages the balding area with the secret formula while holding a second wire to complete a low current.

"We sterilize the scalp and then force the formula in by electrolysis," Mrs. Ferens said. She claims to have a doctorate in chemistry.

One subject, a Roman Catholic priest who asked not to be identified, said he had tried expensive transplants but only Mrs. Ferens' treatment worked.

Aggies, Texas Vie For SWC Cage Leadership

By The Associated Press
The Texas Aggies and the Texas Longhorns — the two oldest rivals in the Southwest Conference — meet tonight in the Super Drum in Austin for sole possession of first place in another of a continuing series of wild league races.

Texas, which has yet to lose a game in the 15,000-seat-plus building, warmed up for the Aggies with an 87-68 nationally televised mauling of Southern California Saturday afternoon.

"I couldn't believe we played that well," Texas coach Abe Lemons said after the game. "I was real happy to play so well on a national TV game. It's real good for our program."

"We didn't play good enough defense," said USC coach Bob Boyd. "We didn't have enough awareness of where their perimeter shooters were. Their guys were always open."

The 15th-ranked Aggies outlasted upstart Texas Tech 68-63 to set the stage for the long-anticipated meeting.

Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf said his team came out more aggressive after halftime.

"We had to get out early and not let them sit on the ball, because they were perfect in the first half. They were only getting one shot, but they were making it," he said.

"I'm pleased with our effort and poise, but we were really playing a fine team," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "It's tough when you lose, but I don't feel that bad about our effort and poise."

Both the Longhorns and the Aggies are 4-1 and hotly pursued by Arkansas and Baylor, which are 3-2.

Texas Tech is another rung back at 3-3 and Southern Methodist is 2-2. Still with a possible chance at the championship are Houston and Rice, both at 2-4.

TCU is the only team yet to win a league game at 0-4.

Baylor stunned SMU 93-67 in a regionally televised game Saturday while Houston whipped Rice 101-75.

"We got whipped every way you can get whipped," said SMU coach Sonny Allen. "You have to give Baylor full credit."

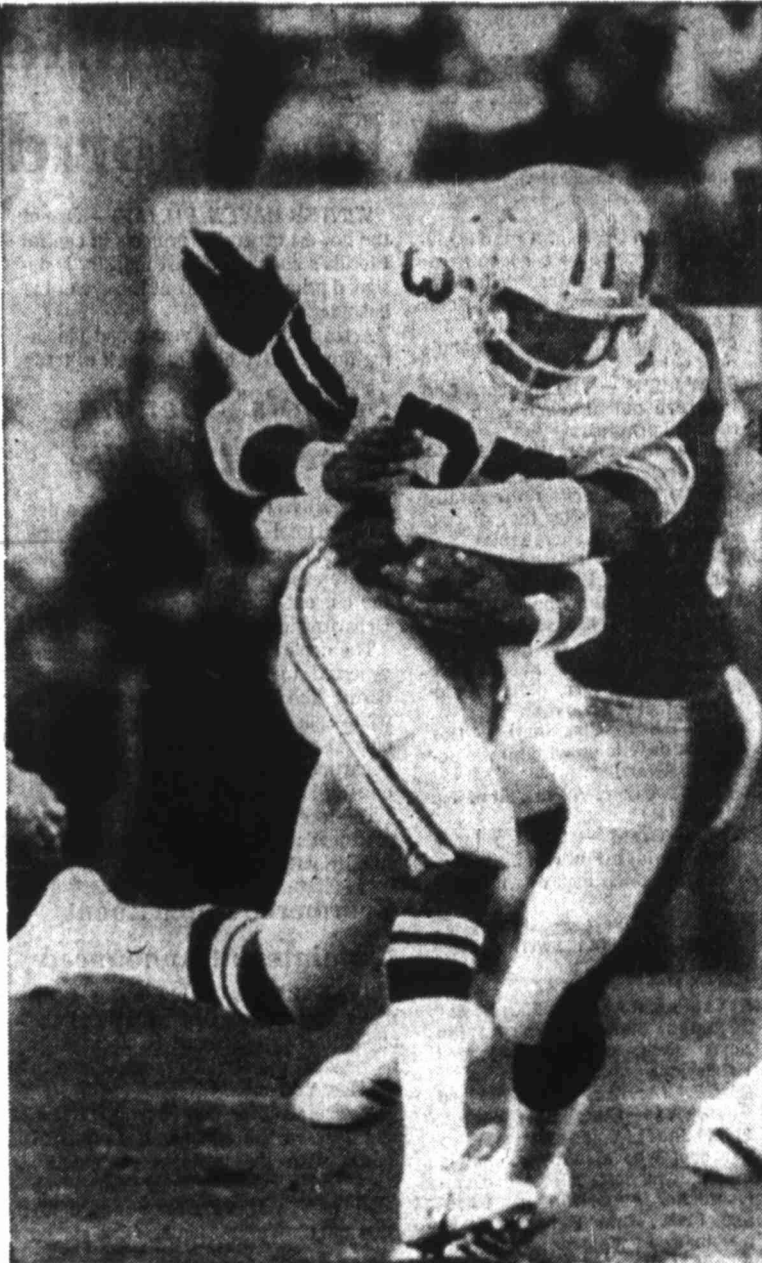

"I don't know how long it has been since Baylor has had three players score 20 points or more," Baylor coach Jim

Devils Keep NCS Winless In ACC

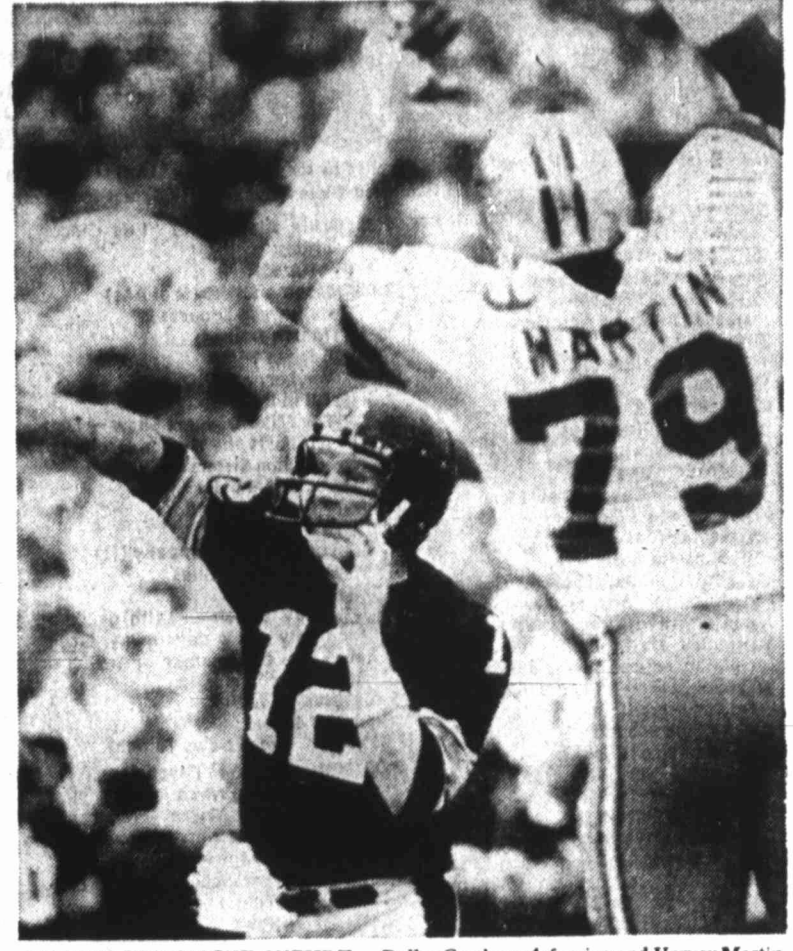

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Center Mike Gminski scored 31 points, including 17 of 20 from the free throw line, and Gene Banks added 14 to lead eighth-ranked Duke to a 75-69 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over No. 14 North Carolina State Sunday afternoon in a regionally televised game.

Duke improved to 12-3 overall and 3-1 in the ACC, while NC State, losing its second straight home game, dropped to 11-6 and 0-5 to remain in the conference cellar.

The game was the first rematch between the two teams after Duke prevailed 65-63 over the Wolfpack in last December's Big Four Tournament. The contest shaped up as another nip-and-tuck battle.
