Shah, Family Give Up Property U.S. Pressures Ruler

SHAH ORDERS CHANGES — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, shown here with his wife, the empress of Iran, today decreed that the royal family turn over all its personal property to a foundation "for the use of religious, educational, social and welfare organizations." The shah also freed 266 prisoners in a move to quell the turmoil in Iran. (AP Laserphoto)

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, in another bid to calm the turmoil in his country, decreed today that the Iranian royal family turn over all its personal property to a crown-sponsored foundation. He also ordered the release of 266 prisoners convicted by military tribunals.

The United States, in a policy change, advised the shah that his temporary departure from Iran would improve the prospects for restoring order, officials in Washington said. Sources, who declined to be identified, said it is now apparent that the installation of a civilian government in Tehran was failing to ease tensions.

Iran's state radio said the royal family's property, estimated to be valued at hundreds of millions of dollars, was being transferred to the Pahlavi Foundation "for the use of religious, educational, social and welfare organizations organized by the people and run by them."

Palace sources said the divested property included the shah's vast domestic holdings in company stocks, banks, factories and land.

The moves were announced as the nation awaited word on when the shah intends to go abroad on an extended vacation to take opposition pressure off the new civilian government of Shapour Bakhtiar.

The national Pars news agency said the 266 prisoners had been held at Tehran's central police department prison "for various offenses" and had been paroled by the shah. Pars attributed the announcement to the imperial Iranian armed forces tribunal.

The announcement also said the pardon of other prisoners was being studied. The government previously had said there were about 200 persons in prison convicted of non-capital political offenses, but today's announcement did not specify whether the pardoned group included these political prisoners.

Bakhtiar, meanwhile, was quoted by the daily Ettelaat newspaper as saying that a 200-man sabotage band of Communists illegally crossed the border from Afghanistan and had been rounded up following disturbances in downtown Tehran Monday night.

Bakhtiar charged the group had intended to engage in arson and pillage. Heavy arms and explosives were found in searches of their apartments here, he said.

"I will not allow Afghanistan to export to us red revolution and massacre," he said of his pro-Soviet eastern neighbor. The shah's divestiture was seen as another step aimed at removing the taint of corruption from the royal family, 64 of whose members have gone abroad since political turmoil mounted here last fall.

This follows a previous royal decree issued last September, in which the shah prohibited members of his family from having business dealings with the government or from controlling charitable organizations.

The $1 billion Pahlavi Foundation was created 15 years ago with a personal grant of $133 million of the shah's wealth for use by charitable organizations, orphanages and higher education.

A diplomatic source said the transfer of property "is not meaningless...but in the context of today's reality, no one is going to care," he said. "It probably will not meet the demands of the opposition" trying to force the shah from the throne.

The foundation, he said, had "done a lot of good things, such as financing scholarships for study abroad, but it has a bad reputation as far as corruption in the family is concerned."

While snow-covered Tehran was experiencing one of its quietest days in the last two months, there were reports of at least six deaths in anti-shah violence in the provinces.

The state radio said four persons were killed and nine wounded in an attack on a police station at Sasangard, southwest Iran. Another protester was killed in an arson attack on a court house in Rezayeh, near the Turkish border, in which all legal records were reported burned.

According to the Pars news agency, an army officer was killed by a group of demonstrators at Behbahan in Khuzestan Province.

At Ahajari, in the southern oil fields, a mob reportedly burned the police station, two bank branches, a movie theater and a school. There were no immediate reports of casualties from that incident.

Earlier today, Karim Sanjaby, leader of the opposition National Front, assailed Iran's new civilian government today as a plot by "opportunistic characters" and said he is ready to lead a replacement government if approved by the country's Muslim leaders.

Sanjaby told reporters at a news conference he hopes the Iranian army "will understand the peoples' movement and act in accordance with it." But he denied he was urging the army to disobey the civilian government, formed Friday with the shah retained as constitutional monarch.

Instead, of a Regency Council that would take over the shah's duties when he leaves on his long-anticipated vacation, Sanjaby said he proposed a temporary government, under what he called a "National Council." It would rule the country with the blessing of Ayatollah Khomeini, the shah's exiled chief religious opponent and spiritual leader of the popular uprising.

Legislators Open Session

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Legislature convened at noon today for its 66th biennial session, and minor squabbles concerning organizational items quickly overshadowed the session's long-range problem of deciding how a record $2.8 billion budget surplus will be spent.

Senators, meeting in a closed caucus before the gavels slammed down at noon to call the House and Senate to order, failed to agree on whether the wife of a Texas labor leader should be retained as sergeant-at-arms for the Senate, and postponed a final decision on the appointment until next week.

Maceil Hubbard, wife of Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard, has been acting sergeant and must win Senate approval to keep that job through the 140-day session.

House members prepared for a minor hassle concerning whether the vote on election of a speaker should be by secret ballot or public vote, and concerning rules changes proposed by a group called the Sam Houston Caucus that would dilute the speaker's power.

Spectators began gathering in the House and Senate galleries two hours before the opening of the session, and dozens of vases of flowers decorated the desks of lawmakers for the opening ceremonies.

The session was assured of a place in Texas history before the first gavels fell, however, because of the tasks it faced in handling the largest budget surplus in the state's history and the prospect of dealing with Texas' first Republican governor since Reconstruction.

Governor-elect Bill Clements will not take office for another week, however, and Wednesday outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe will deliver his parting message to the Legislature, including a recommendation for a $1 billion tax reduction.

Biggest long-term decision facing lawmakers during the session will be determining how much of the surplus will be used to fund state spending programs and how much will be channeled into tax relief measures.

But the House and Senate faced a number of housekeeping chores before getting down to serious legislative issues.

Speaker Bill Clayton, virtually assured of election to an unprecedented third consecutive term as the House's presiding officer, faced a mild challenge from a group called the Sam Houston Caucus, which demanded a secret vote on the speaker's race and a series of changes in House rules to dilute the speaker's power.

Clayton opposed the move for a secret ballot and most of the rules change proposals. If an opponent is nominated against Clayton, it apparently will be Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, who campaigned actively at one point but later surrendered the campaign as lost.

"There may be a challenge, but I don't think it will be a serious one, because we know we have at least 120 votes that are going to stay put," Clayton said. He needs only 76 votes in the 150-member House.

The debate concerning House rules probably will be delayed until Wednesday, but Clayton said a special committee will begin immediate hearings to resolve a challenge to the re-election of Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio.

Republican Kae Thomas Patrick filed the challenge under a seldom used constitutional provision, and the House is required to determine if his allegations of vote irregularities have merit.

Clayton designated Rep. Bob Davis, R-Dallas, chairman of the committee to consider Patrick's challenge, and Davis began pre-session talks with attorneys for Patrick and Cartwright on Monday.

Solons Ask War On Child Abuse

AUSTIN (AP) — A special House committee on child pornography has recommended the death penalty for murders committed in cases of aggravated sexual abuse.

An aggravated case is one in which the victim is subjected to beatings or other violence beyond the sexual attack itself.

The committee, headed by Rep. Ralph Wallace III, D-Houston, made 39 recommendations to the Legislature, which convened today. Included were proposals to make it easier to prosecute sexual abuse cases and incest.

"Child pornography should not be the major focus of our concern. It is the brutalization of our children, suffering perverted physical and psychological abuse, that has brought us to this point, and the reading and viewing of materials depicting such acts is but a spinoff of the underlying victimization," the committee said.

"The act of selling these materials is guaranteeing that there will be additional abuse of children."

The committee found one of the most common types of child pornography is that made by individuals of their own children or neighborhood children.

"All types of pornography may be used with a child to convince him that the type of conduct shown is acceptable," the committee said.

It followed that conclusion with a recommendation that the Legislature "enact laws against those who use children in pornography and that the Legislature act quickly in passage of a child pornography statute."

The committee said Houston probably is the key distribution center in Texas for child pornography, and one distributor is located in the Rio Grande Valley area.

"In three commercial distribution cases filed in the Valley area, there is every indication to believe that Texas is exporting pornography to Mexico, both adult and child pornography," the report said.

It said information obtained from vice divisions of police and sheriffs' departments "indicates that child pornography has been available in the past in all major cities, including Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo and smaller cities such as Brownsville, McAllen and Killeen."

"These materials have been sold over the counter. At the present time, no city reports having child porn available over the counter," it added.

But officers in major cities believe they could find a source of supply of child pornography if they were determined to purchase it, the report said.

Again and again the report stressed the Area Prepares For New Blast

A-J News Services

Winter aimed a new blast at the Panhandle and South Plains today, just as the area's frigid shell was beginning to thaw slightly.

With a new surge of cold, moist air headed southward, weather forecasters this morning issued a travelers advisory for the region tonight and posted a winter storm watch for Wednesday.

Chances for more precipitation, in the form of snow and freezing drizzle, appeared excellent. The National Weather Service put the possibility at 50 percent tonight and 60 percent on Wednesday.

Forecasters also warned that snow could become locally heavy in some areas on Wednesday, thus the winter storm watch.

Weathermen also reneged on their earlier promise of a warmup today and Wednesday. Temperatures, earlier expected to reach the 40s today, now are not likely to get out of the 30s this afternoon, forecasters said. And another chill day, with the mercury hovering near 30, is in store Wednesday.

Road and street conditions in the Lubbock area had improved markedly by this morning, but pavement will begin to acquire an icy coating again tonight if the forecast proves correct. Bridges and overpasses will be particularly hazardous, weathermen warned.

Temperatures are forecast to peak in the 30s Thursday, with scattered freezing drizzle or snow throughout the South Plains region, but the cold front will pass quickly, the weather service said.

A slow warming trend is expected to begin Friday and Saturday, with highs in the 40s and cloudy skies through much of the weekend.

Defense Witness' Story Discredited By Widow

HOUSTON (UPI) — The former girlfriend of a key defense witness in the trial of T. Cullen Davis today testified the witness made up his story in the hope of getting into "a good deal" with the Fort Worth millionaire.

Mary Weir of Fort Worth, a widow who has at times lived with defense witness Larry Gene Lucas, also said she was not pressured into testifying against Lucas by the Tarrant County (Fort Worth) district attorney's office.

Lucas, who was arrested Monday night on charges of aggravated perjury, had testified that David McCrory — the man the state contends Davis tried to hire to arrange the murder of his divorcee — last summer was plotting Davis' murder. Lucas testified McCrory offered him $20,000 to kill Davis, lending support to the defense theory that Davis was framed on murder solicitation charges by his enemies.

Mrs. Weir, who said she does not consider herself Lucas' common-law wife as the defense has contended, made the most damaging statement to Davis in response to prosecutor Tolly Wilson's question as to what Lucas told her.

"That he was going to say that he met McCrory and McCrory offered him money to kill Cullen Davis," Mrs. Weir said.

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes earlier today — while the jury was out of the courtroom — contended that news of Lucas' arrest would cause great harm to Davis' chances for a fair trial. He angrily accused the state of orchestrating the arrest to attract publicity. Wilson equally angrily accused Haynes of using the arrest to enhance the possibility of a mistrial.

Haynes asked that the jurors be questioned individually about whether they knew of the arrest, and what affect it would have.

District Judge Wallace Moore said he would instead generally admonish the jurors against making any judgments based on the arrest. Haynes asked for a mistrial, but Moore denied the request.

Before the blowup today, opposing attorneys had said they likely could finish questioning rebuttal witnesses today and complete Moore's charge to the jury and final arguments by the end of the week. It was unknown whether the Lucas situation would change that timetable.

Mrs. Weir said Lucas began talking about the possibility of giving false testimony as soon as news accounts of Davis' arrest appeared in newspapers.

Wilson asked her why.

"He (Lucas) said he knows David McCrory and if David McCrory could get in on a good deal like that, maybe he could too," Mrs. Weir said.

A letter Lucas wrote to an attorney and See WIDOW'S TESTIMONY Page 16

Legislative Aide Joins Elite Unemployment Line

WASHINGTON (AP) — Catherine James wonders if she has a great future behind her.

The 23-year-old from Iowa City, Iowa, took her degree in government from Radcliffe last June and almost immediately landed a $15,000 job with Democratic Sen. Dick Clark, writing briefing papers and news releases.

Moreover, Clark promised her a raise and promotion to legislative assistant — caseworker — after he won the election.

Except he didn't win. And now Catherine James is but one of about 1,300 persons who left the congressional payroll last Tuesday for an elite unemployment line.

For them, the promise of politics has turned to quicksand. Their fortunes, by definition, are as fickle as those of the boss. And those who served liberal Democrats, especially, find themselves mired in the loss column while Republicans count their Capitol gains.

"I've contacted everyone I know who works on the Hill," says Miss James.

"Out of 50 possibilities, I've had about four-and-a-half bites, and only one in the Senate." And, as yet, nothing definite.

Congressional job hunting after an election is never easy, and this year's record turnover of 78 seats in the House and near-record 20 in the Senate have made it even more brutally competitive than usual. Some of the new senators have had thousands of applicants for the 25 or so positions they have to offer.

Typically, a new senator will hire one or two top hands with previous Hill experience, regardless of their party or ideological affiliation. "The very good professionals are always in great demand," said one key Senate administrator with access to the entire payroll record. "I've seen several cases of Republicans hiring Democrats, liberals hiring conservatives and vice versa because they realize they've got to have someone who knows the agencies and the other contacts necessary to run a congressional office."

But that phenomenon extends only so far. The new officeholder usually brings along most of the staff from his or her campaign team. And in any case, it doesn't look good to the folks at home if the payroll is full of names from out of state, regardless of expertise.

One new senator, Democrat David Boren of Oklahoma, has already completed the hiring of a staff of 27 while most others have filled at least three-fourths of their payroll. Boren probably leads the pack in drawing upon experienced Hill workers, having retained the receptionist of his Republican predecessor while drawing two key aides from other outgoing congressmen. In addition, Boren brought back Charles Ward, for years the top staffer for former House Speaker Carl Albert, from a job in private industry to run the office.

But some Senate newcomers offer no relief whatever to the plight of employees of defeated or retiring members. Republican Sen. William L. Armstrong of Colorado, while able to double his staff size since moving up from the House, hasn't taken a single person from another Hill office. The reason, simply, is that he knows most of the congressional ropes already.

Though the new Congress won't convene until Jan. 15, last Tuesday was moving day for all outgoing members and their staffs. Halls and offices were littered with packing crates as those leaving obliged their successors with walls finally made bare and, on the second day of the New Year, another chorus of Auld Lang Syne. More than one empty champagne bottle was left behind.

Clark, the liberal defeated by conservative Republican Roger Jepsen in Iowa, shares the numbness felt by his staff. "We built up a relationship and loyalty ... and it's hard for them and me to turn it all loose," he said.

With Miss James and six others from his office still looking for a new job somewhere on the Hill, Clark noted that "at least four of these Senate offices represent a total switch from liberal to conservative. It's going to be difficult for anyone with an ideological concern."

Staffers for outgoing Republican liberals may have it even tougher. David Blee, the press secretary to defeated Rep. Newton Steers, R-Md., says "the conservatives look at us as not one of them, and the Democrats look at us as dyed-in-the-wool Republicans."

It was another Steers aide, William

Grigg, who placed a newspaper ad late last November, offering the entire staff as a package for $288,000. But there were no takers.

Not surprisingly, the District of Columbia unemployment office has established a special unit to handle unemployment claims from congressional workers, most of whom will qualify next week for benefits of up to $172 weekly. Virtually the entire staff of Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., planned to apply en masse.

Witnesses Disagree On Health Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two experts at a special clean air hearing disagree on whether air pollution in the United States is a health problem.

C.M. Heinen of the Chrysler Corp. told the hearing Monday that "exposure to the air pollution levels over the last 25 years have not produced the adverse health effects that some people feared." His testimony was countered by that of John Scharf of the American Association for Respiratory Therapy, who said that "as a professional respiratory therapist, I can tell you that we all pay for it every day."

McGarry Can Keep FEC Seat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A political ally of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill can keep his seat on the Federal Election Commission despite his failure to win Senate confirmation, a federal judge says.

But a former election commissioner who claims the seat should legally be his vows he won't vacate his office until he decides whether to appeal Monday's decision by U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene.

Greene said John McGarry, a Democrat and O'Neill associate, was legally appointed to the commission by President Carter Oct. 25, ten days after Congress adjourned. Carter had previously tried to get the Senate to confirm McGarry's nomination, but Republicans blocked approval.

After the latest appointment of McGarry, Democratic FEC Commissioner Neil Staebler challenged the move in court, arguing that he could be replaced only by a nominee confirmed by the Senate. Judge Greene noted that Staebler, appointed by former President Gerald Ford, was nominated and confirmed for only an 11-month term.

"Yet he has already served for over 30 months and, should the court hold that the law precludes the president from making a recess appointment, it is not inconceivable that he would continue to serve well into 1979 and perhaps into 1980 or beyond," Greene said.

During that period, the judge said, Staebler would be sitting on the commission "not by virtue of any conscious decision with respect to him, but solely because another individual has not been confirmed."

McGarry said after the ruling, "I am very pleased with the court's decision.

Beyond that, I have no comment."

Staebler, who joined the six-member commission in May 1976, said he won't give up until his attorney decides whether to appeal. He said he'll continue appearing at his FEC office, as he's done since McGarry was sworn in, although declining to draw his $50,000 salary or vote on commission matters.

McGarry, formerly special counsel to the House Administration Committee, failed to win confirmation after first being nominated by Carter Sept. 27, 1977. Republicans stalled the appointment by questioning the thoroughness of disclosure statements McGarry furnished before being approved for the House position.

White House press secretary Jody Powell has said McGarry was not appointed as a political favor to O'Neill.

AT&T Expresses Confidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. says it is confident the courts "will ultimately vindicate" the Bell System from government antitrust charges.

"From an economic standpoint, the government's case is barren for it makes no claim that telecommunications services would be provided at as high a level of quality or at as low a level of cost if the Bell System were fragmented," the company said in a 452-page statement Monday.

ATT general solicitor Harold S. Levy filed the "statement of contentions and proofs" in U.S. District Court in reply to a Justice Department document filed two months ago.

The government has accused the company of trying to monopolize telecommunications service and equipment in the United States and it wants AT&T to divest itself of many of its holdings.

AT&T uses the name Bell System for the corporate structure made up of itself, Western Electric Co., Bell Laboratories and various telephone companies owned by AT&T.

Levy said the four-year-old case would be resolved quickly if the government would agree to "well-documented technological and economic facts" as put forward by the company.

The company said the suit against it demonstrates that the government misunderstands the telecommunications industry.

The statement argued, "In an effort to justify the theory that anticompetitive conduct alleged to have occurred after 1968 is inherent in the structure of an enterprise that has existed since the 19th century, the government has seriously distorted the events upon which its principal charges are based.

"Specifically, the government has largely ignored the technological forces that determined the structure of the Bell System, the regulatory statutes and policies that governed the operations of the system both before and after 1968, the effect of those statutes and policies upon the system, and the nature of the controversies that commenced in 1968 out of which the charges in this case grew."

Dole, GOP Hopefuls Out To Stop Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Entering the third year of his own campaign for president, Bob Dole says the early primaries next year will determine whether Ronald Reagan has sewn up the Republican nomination.

"Obviously, Reagan is the front-runner," Dole told reporters Monday.

But the Kansas senator and other Republican candidates hope to stop the Reagan drive in the early primaries and turn the campaign into a free-for-all.

"Somebody has to rise out of the pack some time" early next year, said Dole, "or it's all over."

Dole also said he is confident there is no Republican ready to sweep into Washington as an outsider with fresh ideas, as Jimmy Carter did.

"The key word in 1980 is going to be experience ... understanding issues ... solving problems," said Dole, who was Gerald Ford's vice presidential running mate on the GOP ticket that lost to Carter and Walter F. Mondale in 1976.

Dole acknowledges his presidential ambitions might suffer from the slashing, sarcastic campaign style he exhibited in 1976.

"There could be a little hangover there," he said. "If there is, you have to deal with it."

As a presidential nominee, Dole said, he'd "get someone else to be the gunslinger."

ISRAEL NAMED

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Israel, vice president and managing director of G.P. Putnam's Sons, has been named president to succeed Walter J. Minton. Stanley Newman, vice president of MCA, Inc., in charge of the MCA Publishing Group, said Israel would supervise all hardcover publishing activities of Putnam and its Coward, McCann & Geoghegan and Richard Marek subsidiaries.

Dole didn't sit still long after the votes were counted in 1976. He hit the road and began trying to establish himself as a national figure with a legitimate claim to the 1980 presidential nomination.

Last year he traveled to 43 states, including eight trips to New Hampshire, traditionally the site of the first presidential primary.

With all the travel he still isn't certain he has enough support to make the race. "I couldn't say flatly I could put it together," the senator said. "If you decide to get into it, you have to have some realistic hope you can win. ... I'm not sure being in New Hampshire eight times or anywhere else eight times matters."

Dole is hedging his bets slightly. He's up for re-election to the Senate in 1980 and has already formed a Senate campaign committee. The filing deadline in Kansas is June 20, 1980.

"By that time I ought to know whether I'm still in the race for the presidential nomination."

Dole expects to have plenty of company on the Republican ballot if he runs in the New Hampshire primary. Along with Reagan, he named as likely contestants former Texas Gov. John Connally, former CIA Director George Bush, Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, who has already announced his candidacy.

Another possible entry would be Gov. James Thompson of Illinois.

Braniff Concorde service from Dallas-Fort Worth to London and Paris.

Saving time is what Concorde is all about. This is the first daytime jet service to Paris and London from Mid-America. You'll be there in time for dinner.

Total flight time from Dallas-Fort Worth to Europe will be about seven hours including the stop at Washington.

Concorde has only 100 seats. Each of the two cabins has a digital display that clocks your changing speed. Across the Atlantic it will register Mach 2.0 which is 1,350 mph. That is one mile every three seconds.

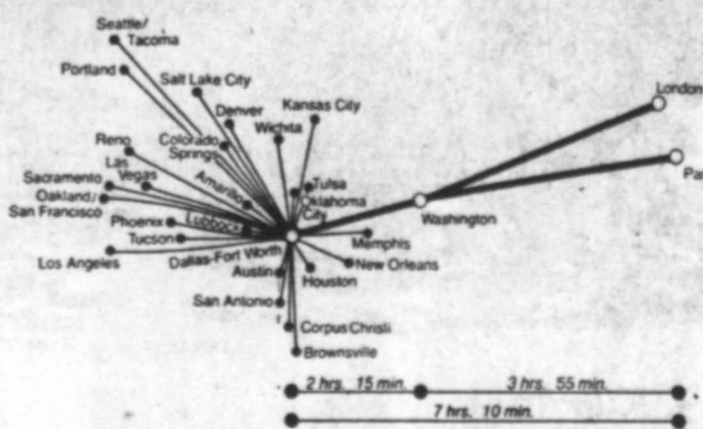

Braniff Concorde Service to Washington

Daily except Monday and Thursday. This is the only Concorde service within the U.S.A. Between Dallas-Fort Worth and Washington, Concorde flies at Mach 0.95 or 650 mph. That is 100 mph or 20% faster than conventional jets.

Braniff 747 Non-Stop Service to London

Daily at 6:45 p.m. The Concorde flights complement the only daily 747 Non-stop service from Dallas-Fort Worth and the Southwest to London, gateway for Britain and Europe. The result is a choice of departure times at Dallas-Fort Worth with Concorde leaving in the morning and the 747 leaving in the evening. Likewise, there is a choice of arrival times in Europe with Concorde arriving at London Heathrow in the evening and the 747 arriving at London Gatwick in the morning. There's the same choice returning, with the 747 departing London Gatwick in the late morning and the Concorde departing London Heathrow and Paris Charles de Gaulle in the evening.

For reservations, call your Travel Agent or Braniff at 763-7081... 24 hours a day.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Purity Maze All In Row

ON THE BASIS of votes on 20 selected issues, the liberal Americans for Democratic Action gloomily concludes that the U.S. Senate behaved like "a rich man's club" in 1978, giving its members an average score of 42 points on a scale of 100—or 4 points more "conservative" than the 1977 average.

The American Conservative Union, on the other hand, checked out the votes on its own list of 30 issues and decided the Senate grew more liberal in 1978.

ACU awarded the members an overall 36.6 percent conservative rating, down from 38.7 percent in 1977.

The difference, of course, lies primarily in the list of key issues each organization used as test votes.

ment by Texas Sen. John Tower to increase defense budget authority by $1.6 billion and actual spending by $1.2 billion over the sums recommended.

This one was defeated 74-21, but only the senators supporting the amendment got credit from the ACU for their conservatism.

THE TWO groups didn't even agree on who the most liberal and conservative senators were in 1978.

ADA gave its best scores (most liberal) to Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, 100 percent; Ed Kennedy, D-Mass., 95 percent; Dick Clark, D-Iowa, 90 percent; and Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., 90 percent.

ADA's worst score—zero—went to Sens. Maryon Allen, D-Ala., and James McClure, R-Idaho.

But ACU thought the most liberal senators (zero ratings on its own scale) were Daniel Inouye and Spark Matsunaga, both Hawaii Democrats, and Wendell Anderson, D-Minn.

ACU gave 100 percent ratings to Sens. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Judging from the way these two major litmus-testing organizations rated the U.S. Senate last year, ideological purity, like beauty, must lie in the eye of the beholder.

Austerity Must Begin At Home

WASHINGTON—Back in November, President Carter flew to St. Louis to tell the National League of Cities about his forthcoming budget.

"It will be an austere budget," he said. "It will be very, very tight."

Week before last, Sen. William Proxmire, Wisconsin's favorite Scrooge, brightened the Yuletide season with a Golden Fleece of the Month Award.

It was one of his better awards, presented for an absolutely maddening waste of the taxpayers' money by the U.S. Office of Education.

If the body of the President's recommendations could be infused with the senator's spirit, we might begin to get somewhere. The prospect seems unlikely.

Proxmire gives his monthly awards for "the biggest, most ironic, or most ridiculous example of wasteful government spending for the period."

The December prize—it might claim the award for all of 1978 as well—went to the Office of Education for frittering away $219,592 to develop a "curriculum package" intended to teach college students—brace yourself!—intended to teach college students how to watch television.

THE SENATOR is not making this up. This particular contract is part of an $823,000 project intended to develop "critical television viewing skills."

Another $800,000 will be spent to train teachers and to distribute the materials developed by the contractors.

The particular $219,592 contract that caught the senator's acidulous eye went to the School of Public Communication at Boston University.

The idea is to help college students understand the differences between soap operas and situation comedies.

The students are to become aware of how issues are presented by TV dramas and by TV news. Their critical skills are to be assessed by regression analysis and canonical correlation.

THIS DESCRIBES the field test: "A series of univariate and multivariate analyses will be performed in order to delineate the characteristics of the sample in terms of pre-test level of critical viewing skills, as well as sociodemographic and other variables, and the effect of the test curriculum." And so on.

Let us cut through the mush. This is waste. This is pure, unadulterated waste. If Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano sat up all night for 30 nights, he could not find persuasive arguments to justify this waste.

He knows, and I know, and every fed-up reader knows what will happen to this project when the money runs out: The assembled materials will be deposited to gather dust on some dark shelf, or they simply will be cast in the trash bin.

Goody, two hundred and nineteen thousand, five hundred and ninety-two dollars.

IF PRESIDENT Carter ever is to get anywhere in his quest for a balanced budget, he will have to develop the Proxmire sensitivity to this kind of thing.

There's No Biz Like Small Biz

WASHINGTON—Small business is turning out to be the workingman's future hope. These firms with sales ranging up to $100,000 a year and not big businesses are the nation's No. 1 job creator in the private sector of the economy.

The smaller firms now "account for what can be considered virtually all the new private sector employment in this country, although they still employ less than two-thirds of all the private sector workers."

This little appreciated employment trend is highlighted in a year-end report titled "Future of Small Business in America," prepared by the House Committee on Small Business.

The committee's startling findings clearly indicate that the future of the country's free enterprise system and the solving of the nation's unemployment rests on helping small businesses in the country prosper and increase in numbers.

THE LARGEST firms in our economy as listed in the "Fortune 1000," according to the committee's report, contributed less than two percent of the growth in new jobs in recent years.

Studies from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the American Electronics Association placed the growth of hiring among small, high-technology firms anywhere between 24 percent and 40 percent, nearly nine times that of the employment growth in other sectors of the economy.

Moreover, a study by Data Resources Inc., concludes that these small firms increased their output almost three times as fast as other economic

John D. Lofton:

SALT II Rites Down Our Allies

WASHINGTON—Jimmy Carter likes playing softball, where he pitches better than he hits. But whether he can do either in the big league game of political hardball remains to be seen.

This will be demonstrated by the final score of the upcoming contest in which Carter will be attempting to have the Senate approve a Strategic Arms Limitation (SALT II) agreement with the Soviets.

The first pitch in this "game" was thrown by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and it was a high, inside brush-back fastball to warn the President not to crowd the plate.

In a talk to NATO parliamentarians in Lisbon, Portugal, which reportedly infuriated the White House, Jackson, an influential member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told his audience:

"THE FACT that the emerging SALT II treaty fails to constrain the Soviet threat to the Minuteman force (our land-based missiles) and permits the Soviet Union a significant force of heavy missiles that the United States is denied (and for which it is not compensated) is a matter of concern for us all—Europeans as well as Americans.

"Quite apart from its impact on the central strategic balance between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, the emerging SALT II treaty will limit severely NATO's options for redressing the adverse conventional and theater nuclear balance that has resulted from a decade-long Soviet military buildup."

IN THE DECADE since the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, despite the effort at developing an East-West relationship of so-called detente, Soviet military expenditures have reached an average of 11 to 13 percent of their gross national product, with a real annual growth of 4 to 5 percent.

In the last 10 years there has been a net increase in manpower dedicated against NATO of 130,000 men—more than the largest number that either side has proposed cutting at the mutual and balanced force reduction (MBFR) talks.

During the past decade, and with gathering momentum in the past three years, the Soviets have greatly augmented their theater nuclear forces bringing the SS-20 missile into their inventory and deploying the intercontinental-range Backfire bomber.

The modernization of the Soviet tactical nuclear forces has continued unabated, uncovered by any negotiated limits, and despite Western efforts to stabilize military balance at the MBFR negotiations.

Commenting on this, Jackson told his NATO audience:

"Given the heavy degree to which NATO strategy has relied on the potential of our tactical nuclear forces to offset Soviet conventional super-sectors, while prices for their products rose at one-sixth the rate of increase of larger firms.

MOST FAR-REACHING of the lawmakers' findings was that "the sum of the effect of small business on employment is almost 66 times the effect of larger businesses in the country."

There is even some good news for U.S. taxpayers in the committee report. It notes that "small business is one sector of our economy capable of resolving the unemployment problem and providing benefits rather than additional tax burdens to the consumer."

In order to support and increase this employment potential of small business, committee members want the government to reduce its regulation of small firms, provide some additional tax incentives, and enforce the antitrust laws against the larger corporations attempting to corner markets.

LATEST FIGURES gathered by the lawmakers reveal that there are approximately 12.4 million business enterprises of all sizes and kinds in the U.S., including 3.3 million farms.

Slightly more than 11 million of these businesses—or nearly 90 percent of the total—had sales of less than $100,000 and are considered as small businesses. Of the total, over half of them (6.4 million) had gross sales of less than $20,000.

How to protect these firms from the larger corporations is one of the major government-business problems of the day, according to the legislators. They note that "every economist who appeared before the committee singled out the current galloping trends toward economic concentration and increased acquisitions and mergers as the problem facing small business in need of congressional attention."

IN URGING LESS government regulation of small businesses, the committee members recommend:

"All government agencies must begin or increase their efforts to insure that their regulations and the applications thereof do not have a disproportionate economic impact on small business.

"All government agencies must make a concerted effort to reduce the record keeping, paperwork burden, placed on small business. Particular attention should be focused on simplification, standardization and nonmultiplication of existing regulations and requirements."

As part of a program to help small business create additional new jobs, the committee wants the federal government to channel "a substantial increase in federal procurement contracts and federal research and development funds" to small firms.

Unless this type of direct and concerted action is taken during the coming year, small business in the country will begin to decline. In turn, this decline could have disastrous consequences for the American economy considering the proven contribution of small business to areas such as job creation and innovation.

these developments—these NATO vulnerabilities—are disturbing indeed.

"Doubly disturbing is the fact that, far from ameliorating this situation, SALT II is likely to make matters worse both by permitting the Soviets to deploy the SS-20 and the Backfire in virtually unlimited numbers.

"The SS-20 can strike any target in European NATO: NATO cruise missiles based at NATO's most forward positions will be unable to reach some Soviet forces in eastern Poland.

"Thus, much of the Warsaw Pact and all of the Soviet Union will become a sanctuary, protected against the most promising military technology available to the United States and its allies."

So get your program, your glossary of SALT terms and get a good seat. At times, because of the occasional esoteric nomenclature, the controversy will be hard to follow. But stick with it.

The outcome of this debate is directly related to the vital national security interests not only of this country, but of our European allies.

Sylvia Porter:

Debt Collection Law Loophole Th-i-is Big

THE FIRST FEDERAL law regulating dirty debt collection practices went proudly on our statute books last year—but it contains a loophole the size of a continent.

It doesn't cover creditors!

The law does provide protection for you against such abuses as midnight phone calls to wear you down to the point where you'll pay a bill whether you owe it or not.

It does require collection agencies to notify you about the debt they are seeking to collect, so you can ask the agency to recheck—if you believe there has been a mistake. And it does prohibit collection agencies from contacting your boss to apply pressure on you to pay a bill.

They argue that it would be fair to allow a collector to call and say that an old Army buddy is looking for Joe and would like to know where he is, or even to say that Joe has won "the Irish sweepstakes and should give his current name and address in order to collect the winning."

This, the business people say, is reasonable in cases where the debtor is using deception to hide from creditors.

As efforts are made to extend the debt collection law to protect you, as consumers, more debate and more furious arguments will develop on how tough the law should be.

You, whoever you are, have a stake in both sides of this coming debate.

BUT THESE and other consumer protections under the new law apply only if a collection agency or other "third party" collector is dunning you.

The law does not apply if the original creditor is involved. So-called in-house collection is totally exempt.

What this amounts to is a statement to creditors: "You cannot hire a third party to use rough tactics, but if you do it yourself, it is all right!"

Under these circumstances, it seems inevitable that the law will be extended to cover creditors as well as collection agencies.

And New York City's Department of Consumer Affairs is in the lead with a proposed regulation adopting most of the standards of the federal law applicable both to creditors and collection agencies.

If someone is trying to collect from you, you want the collection to be fair. That's one side.

But if someone is trying to collect a legitimate debt from a debtor who owes the debt, you also have an interest in that outcome.

OTHERWISE YOU will have to pay for the deadbeat's debts in the form of higher prices. That's the other side.

Whatever the ultimate outcome, the law as it now stands has a loophole so major it cannot be tolerated. By omitting creditors from a debt collection law, the legislators have bypassed the most important link in the entire process.

This controversy underlines the fact that our debt collection system is still being remolded. How it is remolded will depend on you, the public—and as this report surely has dramatized, it is not a simple matter at all.

THIS COULD set a nationwide pattern for extension of the federal debt collection act.

If, though, the law is broadened to cover creditors, much more careful scrutiny of many of its provisions is a virtual certainty. The original law was passed in stringent form because only the collection agencies were concerned about it.

When the extension is proposed, many of its provisions will be re-examined and a pullback is a real possibility.

Say, for instance, that someone goes on a spending spree and buys thousands of dollars of expensive goods using a credit card. As the bills pile up, he decides to leave town and locate in another city using a different name.

Under the federal law, creditors looking for him are supposed to tell anybody they approach exactly who they are, and never to use any ruse, no matter how minor.

THESE PROVISIONS were adopted to stop some horrendous practices which were rampant in the past: calling a debtor and his wife to say their child was in the hospital; claiming a federal agency wanted the information for "mysterious" reasons; the like.

But some in the business community believe the rules laid down are "over-kill."

Overheard: "The best way to remember your wedding anniversary always is to forget it once."

State Leaders Remind Carter Of Headaches

By WALTER R. MEARS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — When dealing with the White House, the nation's governors seldom miss an opportunity to remind President Carter that he used to be one of them. They don't want him forgetting the headaches of the statehouse as he sets about trimming the federal budget.

So they quoted Governor Carter to President Carter in asking for an increased state role in the management of federal aid that now is routed directly to municipal governments, and for an assortment of federal moves to ease the impact of the budget squeeze.

The National Governors' Association already has declared its support for Carter's effort to balance the federal budget by 1981.

But there are a few items the governors would like in return — including more power in the implementation of domestic programs and a streamlined system of federal aid that would give them greater leeway in allocating the dollars that flow from Washington.

They made their budget case in letters to Carter and to James T. McIntyre Jr., director of the Office of Management and Budget.

 "As you know from your own experience as governor, the public looks to state government for leadership and performance in the provision of transportation, health care, education, social services, environmental protection and other services," they told the president.

While they didn't say so, the states, in turn, look to Washington for some of the money to do those things.

"Yet the federal government has increasingly bypassed the states," they complained, and doled out the money to 38,000 local governments, school districts, even private organizations.

Aside from welfare programs, they said, more than half of all federal aid is now routed around the states.

"If the states are to support and effectively assist their federal partner in reducing the federal deficit, we must, as a matter of policy, establish a presumption against bypassing the states in new programs and for strengthening the state role in existing programs," the governors said.

But Carter, former governor or not, is on record on the opposite side of that issue. His 1976 campaign statement on the matter was blunt: "I would favor an approach which would give funds directly to local cities and communities rather than the states." He said municipal governments don't have the tax resources the states do.

Then too, there's a tendency in Congress to cut the states out of the pattern, so as to make the transaction more directly between the people who vote the money and the people who spend it.

The governors also maintain that federal budget cuts should be coupled with consolidation of itemized federal grant programs into broad categories of aid. For example, they suggest that 15 health programs now receiving about $2 billion a year could be lumped together into one grant program.

That way, the governors say, at least part of any cut in spending could come out of reductions in red tape and overhead costs.

They've been arguing that case for years and losing. There are 492 specialized federal aid programs now, 50 more than there were three years ago.

In addition, the governors want Washington to ease the requirements that go with aid to state and local governments. As examples of the kind of instructions they resent as intrusive and too costly, they cite federal mandates and timetables for air quality improvements, water pollution control, and special programs and facilities for the handicapped.

The governors argue that the federal government shouldn't issue such orders without sending along money to pay the cost of filling them.

That's an ambitious list of goals. It also is a familiar one. Those requests have been on the agenda at governors' conferences for a long time. Most of the proposals are likely to stay there, because Congress and federal administrators don't want to give up their handle on the uses of federal aid and the development of domestic programs.

School Converts To Wood

FANSHAWE, Okla. (AP) — Fanshawe Elementary School is going back to basics, if Supl. Warner Hall has his way. Hall wants to heat the eight-classroom school house with wood.

The school, with an enrollment of 79 student, has traditionally used butane for warmth — except in a new cafeteria, where two wood stoves were installed last year.

Wood stoves were introduced in two classrooms this fall, and Hall plans to convert the entire elementary in time for next winter.

A tool-and-die maker before he got his master's degree in education and came here as superintendent in 1972, Hall says wood fuel is a sensible alternative that can save money.

The price of butane has risen nearly 60 percent in the last six years, he said, from about 18 cents per gallon to 44 cents per gallon.

"Wood is cheaper out here than anything else because we've got a lot of it," he said.

"I don't have to look any further than through my office window to see enough timber to keep us supplied for the next several years."

Fanshawe Elementary saved hundreds of dollars last year by substituting wood stoves for conventional butane burners in the new cafeteria, he said, and an all-wood heating system could cut fuel bills in half.

Individual stoves cost about $350 each, but Hall hopes to design and build a large, central wood-fueled heating system — the first of its kind in the state in this modern age.

This LeFlore County community in southeastern Oklahoma is only a third of a mile from a natural gas outlet, but efforts to tie into the pipeline have been unsuccessful. Most of the town uses butane for heating.

Hall estimates the school's four stoves will consume about 38 ricks of wood this year, with each stove burning about eight logs a day. Wood sells for about $12.50 a rick in Fanshawe.

A rick is a pile of wood four feet high by eight feet long and as wide as a single log. Another common measurement, a cord, is also eight feet long and four feet high, but it must be four feet deep.

Stock Mart Resumes 1979 Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a moderate gain today, resuming its early-1979 rally after a pause on Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 2.59 on Monday, rose 1.64 to 829.78 by noon today.

Gainers outpaced losers by better than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

One influence working in the market's favor was a steady showing by the dollar in foreign exchange.

Analysts also noted that investors seemed to have been impressed with the behavior of the market on Monday, when prices rebounded from a broad early decline to show only a modest loss by the close.

Meanwhile, takeover news continued to generate excitement on Wall Street. American Express proposed to acquire McGraw-Hill for $34 a share.

McGraw-Hill shares were delayed in opening following the announcement. American Express was down 1/4 at 31 1/4.

Diamond International, trading for the first time this week, jumped 4% to 37 1/4. The company said Monday a French holiday company plans to acquire more than $15 million worth of its stock.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose 20 to 85.44. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .50 to 157.95.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.96 million shares by noon-time, up from 9.62 million at the same point Monday.

Republicans Want Diggs Voted Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader John Rhodes said today he plans to initiate steps that could lead to a direct House vote to expel Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., from the House.

Rhodes told a news conference that a formal complaint against Diggs will be filed with the House ethics committee on behalf of GOP members next week, with the beginning of the 96th Congress.

He said the complaint will ask the panel to make a recommendation to the full House on whether Diggs should be stripped of his seat.

Diggs is appealing a three-year prison sentence on a felony conviction of taking salary kickbacks from employees.

House Democrats are expected to vote later this month on whether Diggs should also be permitted to remain as chairman of a subcommittee on Africa he has refused to give up.

However, Rhodes and other Republican leaders told reporters that the complaint against Diggs would be filed regardless of how that vote turns out.

"I think the American people want Congress to decide whether Mr. Diggs should be a member of this Congress," Rhodes said.

"If they sit on it, that will cause a great impetus for a motion to expel," said Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., chairman of the House GOP Policy Committee.

The Constitution gives each chamber of Congress the power to expel a member on a two-thirds vote of that chamber.

However, this power has only been exercised once before, in 1861, when the House expelled three members — John B. Clark and John W. Reid of Missouri and Henry C. Burnett of Kentucky — for taking up arms against the United States in the Civil War.

Lost Skiers Not Injured

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — A 22-year-old woman who became lost while skiing on the undeveloped west side of Sierra Blanca escaped her ordeal without any serious injury, said authorities.

The woman, identified as Paula Caylor of Tucson, Ariz., was brought out of the area on horseback Monday night by rescue workers. She was taken to Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital where hospital officials said she was treated and released.

Bill Hasenbueher of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department said the woman told rescue workers she "was just feeling very tired. She said she was not injured in any way."

The woman was found early Monday morning after she and a skiing companion were reported missing Sunday afternoon. She and a man identified as Ken Hays of Wicket, who was found later Monday morning in good condition, became lost and separated Sunday while trying to ski down the undeveloped side of the mountain.

SPC Offers Nursing Test

LEVELLAND (Special) — South Plains College will offer a nursing aptitude examination at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Room 113 of the Technical Arts Center at the college here.

"This is the last date for testing if you want to enroll in the spring semester," said Helen Brown, coordinator and assistant professor of nursing at SPC.

The fee for the examination is $2.50 and spring semester classes begin Monday.

The one-year program trains vocational nurses and includes classroom and clinical training, according to Mrs. Brown. Graduates of the program are awarded a certificate of proficiency and are eligible to take the state board exam to become licensed vocational nurses.

St. Mary of the Plains Hospital officials have scheduled a news conference from 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Devitt Room of the hospital to announce the formal opening of a new facility for the treatment of alcoholism.

Mrs. King Lobbies For Holiday

ATLANTA (AP) — Coretta Scott King has renewed her efforts to convince the Georgia Legislature to declare Jan. 15 a state holiday in memory of her late husband, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

MRS. KING

Mrs. King, who was at the Capitol on Monday to attend swearing-in ceremonies for her niece, state Rep. Alveda King Beal, spoke with several legislators about the proposed holiday, which would mark the anniversary of King's birth.

Opponents of the measure have said that creating a new state holiday would be costly because of lost work hours.

But Mrs. King, who was accompanied at the Capitol by the Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. and her daughter, Yolanda, said that does not justify defeat of the proposal.

She said the King Memorial continues to draw thousands of tourists to Atlanta from all over the world. Money spent by those tourists more than offsets the cost of the holiday, she said.

A six-day observance of the 50th anniversary of King's birth begins Thursday.

Bergland Hospitalized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has been hospitalized for tests of a painful back condition suffered over the holidays, an aide says.

BERGLAND

The aide, Tom Sand, said Bergland checked into the Bethesda Naval Hospital on Monday and was to remain "at least overnight" for tests to determine the nature of the pain and its treatment.

Bergland was ordered home for rest by doctors last week after complaining of severe pains in his lower back. Sand said those apparently were the result of overdoing it on a new pair of cross-country skis, a Christmas gift from the secretary's wife.

Few Visit Elvis' Mansion

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Only a few die-hard Elvis Presley fans showed up in the cold at Graceland Mansion for the 44th anniversary of the late singer's birth.

None was permitted to enter the mansion grounds, where Presley is buried.

Presley's father, Vernon Presley, had announced earlier that visitors would not be permitted on the grounds Monday. The gravestone is open to visitors on Friday, Saturday and Sunday during the winter months, and Presley said no exception would be made for his son's birthday.

In the years before Presley died of a heart ailment in 1977, fans crowded around the gate to sing birthday greetings and to leave birthday cakes and cards for their idol. Presley rarely acknowledged the fans' offerings.

In New York, meanwhile, the producer of a planned $10 million movie about Presley says John Travolta, Warren Beatty and Barry Bostwick all have said they'd like to play the rock star.

"We're going to launch a worldwide talent search," Saul Swimmer said. "It could be anybody on the street. It might not be as good for the picture to have Travolta as to have an unknown." He said Presley impersonators are not being considered.

Homosexual Named To Board

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harry B. Britt, a 40-year-old homosexual and former Methodist minister, has been chosen to replace the slain Harvey Milk on San Francisco's Board of Supervisors.

In announcing the appointment Monday, Mayor Dianne Feinstein stressed that Milk's seat on the board was "not a gay seat." But she added that she had appointed a homosexual because of her commitment that "violence not change the course of government."

Britt, an auditor, said he does not consider himself "a leader of gays around the world. There will never be another Harvey Milk. Harvey was a prophet. I'm more of a tactician."

Milk, one of the nation's few avowed homosexual political figures and San Francisco's first homosexual supervisor, was gunned down Nov. 27 in City Hall, along with Mayor George Moscone. Former Supervisor Dan White has been charged with the shootings.

Britt, a native of Port Arthur, will be sworn in Wednesday.

'Slim' Burl Ives Ready For Tour

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new, trim version of actor Burl Ives — all 275 pounds of him — is getting ready for a wide-ranging concert tour of Europe as he approaches the age of 70.

Ives, who once weighed 365 pounds, is taking his bag of songs to England in April, touring the Isles for the first time in 25 years. He plans 50 concerts in seven European countries during the spring, beginning with a sentimental return to the Royal Festival Hall.

Ives turns 70 on Flag Day — June 14 — and says he is surprised and "delighted to reach such an advanced age." He won an Oscar as supporting actor for "The Big Country," but is known best for his role as Big Daddy in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

Ives admitted in an interview that he favors singing over acting.

"I love an audience," said Ives. "When they're out there listening to you, you get an inkling of how you're doing. There is always the challenge of the first number, to get them organized so they're listening to what you're telling them. You also have to get yourself into an attitude in which you can entertain them."

End Of Era

ATLANTA (AP) — State Rep. Jack Irvin of Baldwin says his constituents have received their last Christmas moonshine gifts from him.

Irvin pleaded no contest Saturday in Habersham County State Court to charges of possessing and transporting non-tax-paid liquor. Clerk of Courts Ernest Nations Jr. said Monday, Irvin was fined $250.

Irvin was involved in a three-car traffic accident last month in Baldwin, and officers said they found several half-gallon jugs of liquor in Irvin's automobile.

Irvin said gifts of moonshine from politicians at Christmastime is a northeast Georgia tradition, but he said, "My friends will just have to do without from now on."

Rhode Island Students Form Conglomerate

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — When sales were slipping in a birdfeeder company owned by some Rhode Island teenagers, the grandfather of American conglomerates — Royal Little — came in and offered his advice.

Now, 65 members of three Junior Achievement clubs in the state have formed the first conglomerate in the country to be owned and operated by high school students.

They learned how from 82-year-old Little, founder of Textron Inc., who in 1963 pioneered the idea of diversification in business as a way to protect investments.

The birdfeeder company — called Gandolf — merged with Remulus, a maker of penny-hockey games, and SOMI, a teenage market research company. All three are now divisions of Superco.

The budding capitalists have the chance to fire subordinates, lean on salesmen and make profits of up to 25 percent before the school year is over and the companies are liquidated.

"We think all three companies will be successful," said James W. Walker, executive Junior Achievement advisor and director of financial planning for Bostich division of Textron, the club's sponsor.

"We think the conglomerate is the best way to teach about business," he said.

The idea to form a conglomerate came last fall when the high school students managing Gandolf, named after a character in "The Hobbit," had trouble convincing their "employees" to sell the birdfeeders.

"About a third of the kids really didn't like going out and selling birdfeeders," said John M. Carey, Jr., executive director for Rhode Island.

The stockholders of three companies met with Little and voted Dec. 13 to merge under the name of Superco. A New York lawyer drew up the necessary papers — charging 50 cents an hour — and the deal was closed last month.

Superco has a board of directors which keeps an eye on its divisions and makes suggestions for improvements.

"Superco says their sales increase are not what they should be so the chairman has called a meeting with the presidents of the companies to lean on the salesmen," Carey said.

A good salesman from another division gave a pep talk to the birdfeeder company salesmen, and a few employees were dismissed.

Actor Marvin, Former Lover Meet In Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eight years after they called it quits, Oscar-winning actor Lee Marvin and his former lover, Michelle Triola Marvin, meet in court today for a landmark trial involving love, money and the changing morality of American couples.

Jury selection was to begin today in the suit filed by Miss Marvin, who legally changed her name while she lived with Marvin. She is suing for the same compensation a wife would get in a divorce — half the property accumulated during their six years together — or $1 million.

They were never married and Marvin is contesting the right to use his name.

Marvin and his attorneys were expected to argue that the mere fact that Marvin never married Miss Marvin shows he wanted to avoid the responsibilities and obligations of marriage.

Marvin has filed a countersuit asking $1 million from Miss Marvin for compensation for the companionship and other services he provided her during their relationship.

"I was like a wife to Lee," she has said. "... I took care of Lee like he was a baby chicken."

The case, which has already created legal precedents on appeal, is expected to have a national impact. Many other persons involved in non-marital relationships have filed similar suits alleging they are entitled to everything from pension rights to alimony.

"You could say it affects everyone who has a date," says Marvin Mitchelson, Miss Marvin's attorney, who has been involved in the case during seven years of litigation.

Mitchelson, who begins arguing pre-trial motions today, seeks to prove to a jury that an oral, non-marital agreement is as binding as a marriage license when it comes to splitting up assets acquired together.

"People are living together all over this country," says Mitchelson. "You have to deal with that."

INTRODUCING THE WORD PROCESSING TYPEWRITER.

IT'S EITHER THE SIMPLEST WORD PROCESSOR OR THE MOST ADVANCED ELECTRONIC TYPEWRITER IN THE WORLD.

Never before has a company put so much word processing in so simple a package.

Olivetti's new TES 401. It brings word processing right to your secretary's desk.

Simple as it is, however, Olivetti's electronic word processing typewriter can effect some big changes in your office. The 401's memory function can take over the repetitive typing that now takes up so much of your secretary's time. And the 401's memory is so sophisticated it can automatically merge variable information like names and addresses with a constant form letter.

The 401 comes equipped with an easy to use window-into-memory for error free electronic text editing, minidiskettes that can store up to 7500 characters each, and a daisy printer that can print out an average business letter in less than 30 seconds.

If you're impressed with the 401 as a word processor you'll be equally impressed with it as a typewriter. Ribbons and type styles can be changed instantly. Dual pitch (pica and elite) and proportional spacing are available at the flick of a switch. Titles can be automatically centered on a page. Right hand margins can be justified. And decimals can be automatically aligned.

But in spite of all its advancements there is one feature of the 401 that is truly backward. Its price of less than 5,000 dollars is literally years behind the times.

SPRING PREVIEW — Suit yourself with this country suburban design in brushed denim, boasting a gently bloused jacket and a skirt with a discreet front slit.

Designer Rainwear Meets Weather Needs With Flair

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — You're one step out the door, dressed to the teeth for a veal patty and potato puff luncheon at the Salle de Bain Room.

So, of course, it starts to rain. Why should you be allowed to wear your new suede coat that Lillian, the wraith who makes pointed comments about your rounded belly, would die from envy of? That's hubris. The gods don't like hubris.

Well, tough. You can still sock one to Lillian with the kind of raincoat Judy Sloates designs.

She does 40 different styles twice a year in sizes 4-20 and mostly you wouldn't know they're supposed to keep you dry because they don't look it.

"I play with a lot of different fabrics and I'm trying to give a woman a coat she can wear any time," she says. "I make many with deep armholes so you can wear them over another coat in winter, for instance."

Or go them alone and experience her "lighter is better" philosophy. "I remember when raincoats were so heavy I got tired walking around in them," says the slender ex-model who's been designing for rain coats for 10 years. "I like the coats to make the person feel free. The weather is enough. You don't need restricting clothes as well."

And you don't need loudly self-proclaiming rain garb unless you want it.

So, there's her simple shirtcoat for $130, which doesn't look water-proof at all and which you can wear under a long quilted waterproof vest for $120, which you can wear over most of the other coats as well because they almost all come in doekin, eggshell, wine, pale lavender and pale peach for spring.

And there's the "classic as we get" fly front, raglan sleeve, single-breasted, trenchbacked with air holes under the arms because the fabric is rubberized and has trouble breathing style for $160.

But to make Lillian's eyes bug out, you should consider the World War I ambulance coat in black with wheat piping, drop shoulders, double pleats in the sleeves, epaulettes, pockets that hang loose and provide for top and side entree, for $150. With a dashing overseas cap to match for $16.

On and on they go, up to a black ruffled evening coat so that you can saunter casually from the car to the opera during a hurricane, while Lillian scampers past in disgust and her mackintosh.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Every Monday night my husband goes to a friend's house to watch Monday Night Football with a bunch of guys, so I find something else to do.

Well, last Monday night I went to a movie with a girlfriend and on the way home I spotted my husband's car in front of his friend's house, so I thought I'd run in and say hi.

The door wasn't locked, so I just opened it and walked in. There I found my husband and three other guys sitting around in ladies' underwear, garter belts, wigs, high heels and makeup — the works. I nearly fainted.

They didn't seem upset at all. They just laughed it off.

Abby, my husband is normal in every way. We have three children and our sex life is great, so, I'm sure he isn't a homosexual.

What do you call a man who gets dressed up in women's clothes just for the heck of it?

Honey In Omaha
Dear Honey: A transvestite. And in Omaha, he's a Mid-vestite.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the woman who was sure her husband was on drugs but didn't know what to do about it, you were absolutely right! He must admit that he needs help before anything can be done for him.

But what about the wife? She's going out of her mind worrying about him. A few years ago in a similar situation — only it was my son who was on drugs. I felt so guilty and helpless, I didn't know where to turn. Then I discovered FAMILIES ANONYMOUS.

After attending one meeting I had my first good night's sleep in years! From other members who had experienced the agonies I had been through, I learned how to handle my son. When he saw the change in my attitude, his attitude began to change and so did he. It was just like a miracle!

He is now clean and happily married and, best of all, we are a loving family.

Abby, please tell your readers about this wonderful group.

Grateful
Dear Grateful: I know that you are a legitimate self-help group. There are no dues or fees, no forms to fill out, no formal sign-up, no last names, and visitors are welcome.

Special guests were parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garlock and Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle Moss, and grandmothers of the future bridegroom, Mrs. C.W. Jobe of Hobbs, N.M. and Mrs. E.E. Moss.

The couple plans to be married Jan. 20 in St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

FAMILIES ANONYMOUS meet in nearly every major city of the United States (and Canada) to teach parents how to communicate with rebellious, delinquent or difficult-to-handle children of any age.

For the location of a meeting in your area, write: FAMILIES ANONYMOUS, Inc., P.O. Box No 344, Torrance, Calif. 90501. Please enclose a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for their response as they are a non-profit organization run by volunteers.

DEAR ABBY: My beloved husband, Jim, was electrocuted last summer at work. He had been in the Navy, but because of alcoholism was given an undesirable discharge. Twenty years later, that discharge was changed to "honorable" because of his active participation in Alcoholics Anonymous. (That's how we met.)

My problem? Jim was given a veteran's funeral and I was presented with a three-cornered flag which I keep in my closet in a plastic bag.

I want to fly that flag, Abby, because Jim was proud of his country and so am I. But some friends say I can't fly the flag. Can I?

Barbara R.
Dear Barbara: There is absolutely no reason why you can't fly that flag as long as it is flown in accordance with the regulations.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Less Expensive Generic Drugs Maintain Quality Standards

By SIDNEY MARGOLUS

NEW YORK (WNS) — For more than 20 years aware consumers have tried to buy medicines under their generic or common names for sharply lower costs than equivalent drugs under high-priced patented names.

The diuretic drug Hydrodiuril sells for less than half the price under the more difficult to say but cheaper generic name of Hydrochlorothiazide. Dozens of other widely used brand name medicines can be bought in generic versions at a fraction of the price, including such widely used drugs as Polycillin, Premarin, Peritrate, Dramamine, Darvon, V-Cillin K, Tetrax, Thorazine, Librium, etc.

While most states permit pharmacists some degree of substitution of generic drugs for the brand name products, many consumers who might want to buy this way still have trouble doing so, either because of doctor preference or because the generic equivalent is not available from a particular pharmacist.

In fact, federal drug authorities estimate that nationally only about one out of eight retail prescriptions is filled generically.

With sizable savings possible and especially vital to people who must take medicines on a continuing or "maintenance" basis, why aren't the generic versions more widely used?

One reason is the preference of many doctors for the better known brand name products with which they are more likely to be familiar through the promotional literature and visits of "detail" personnel from the large drug manufacturers and the manufacturers' reputations for quality.

Pharmacists also are often reluctant to handle generic drugs because they may feel the widely known brand name products are more dependable or because of their higher markup.

However, pharmacists can and often do compensate for the lower markup by charging a minimum professional fee. This may reduce some of the savings to consumers but the savings still are substantial.

It is not always easy to distinguish financial consideration from the professional concern of pharmacists for the reliability of the drugs they dispense.

Many of them are primarily concerned that the drugs bought under generic names may not be as reliable as those packaged under brand names by large manufacturers.

But pharmacists should have no fear about buying drugs under generic names sold by the same large manufacturers who package under brand names. There also are a number of long-established jobbers and manufacturers of good reputation who provide tested and guaranteed generic drugs to those retail pharmacists who will stock them.

The quality issue is the second major block. Brand-name manufacturers often argue that even though generic products may be chemically identical they may not be the same in biological availability and thus in therapeutic effectiveness.

Now the federal government is moving on several fronts to try to overcome the reluctance to prescribe and dispense drugs generically as many hospitals and clinics do.

Early next year the government will publish a "Guide to Prescription Drug Prices." It is intended primarily for doctors and pharmacists. Its aim is to help make them aware of the variation in prices of drugs of the same chemical entity and of different chemical entities usable for the same purposes, explains Tom Fulda of the Health Care Financing Administration.

The goal is to encourage more cost-conscious prescribing and dispensing of drugs. Fulda contends the guide will help the medical professions adapt to and use more fully new state laws which, in varying degree, permit substitution.

He says use of the substitution laws has been limited so far because of their brief existence and lack of familiarity with them. The 80-page guide will be available in January.

Interested consumers can get one at that time by writing to Office of Pharmaceutical Reimbursement, Health Care Financing Administration, Room 3076, Switzer Building, Washington, D.C. 20201.

The Federal Trade Commission also is trying to help the public get better use out of the new state substitution laws. These laws differ in effectiveness, said Albert Kramer, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection.

A forthcoming report will offer suggestions on which approaches work best to encourage pharmacists to substitute low-cost generic equivalents, and will provide comparative price information for doctors.

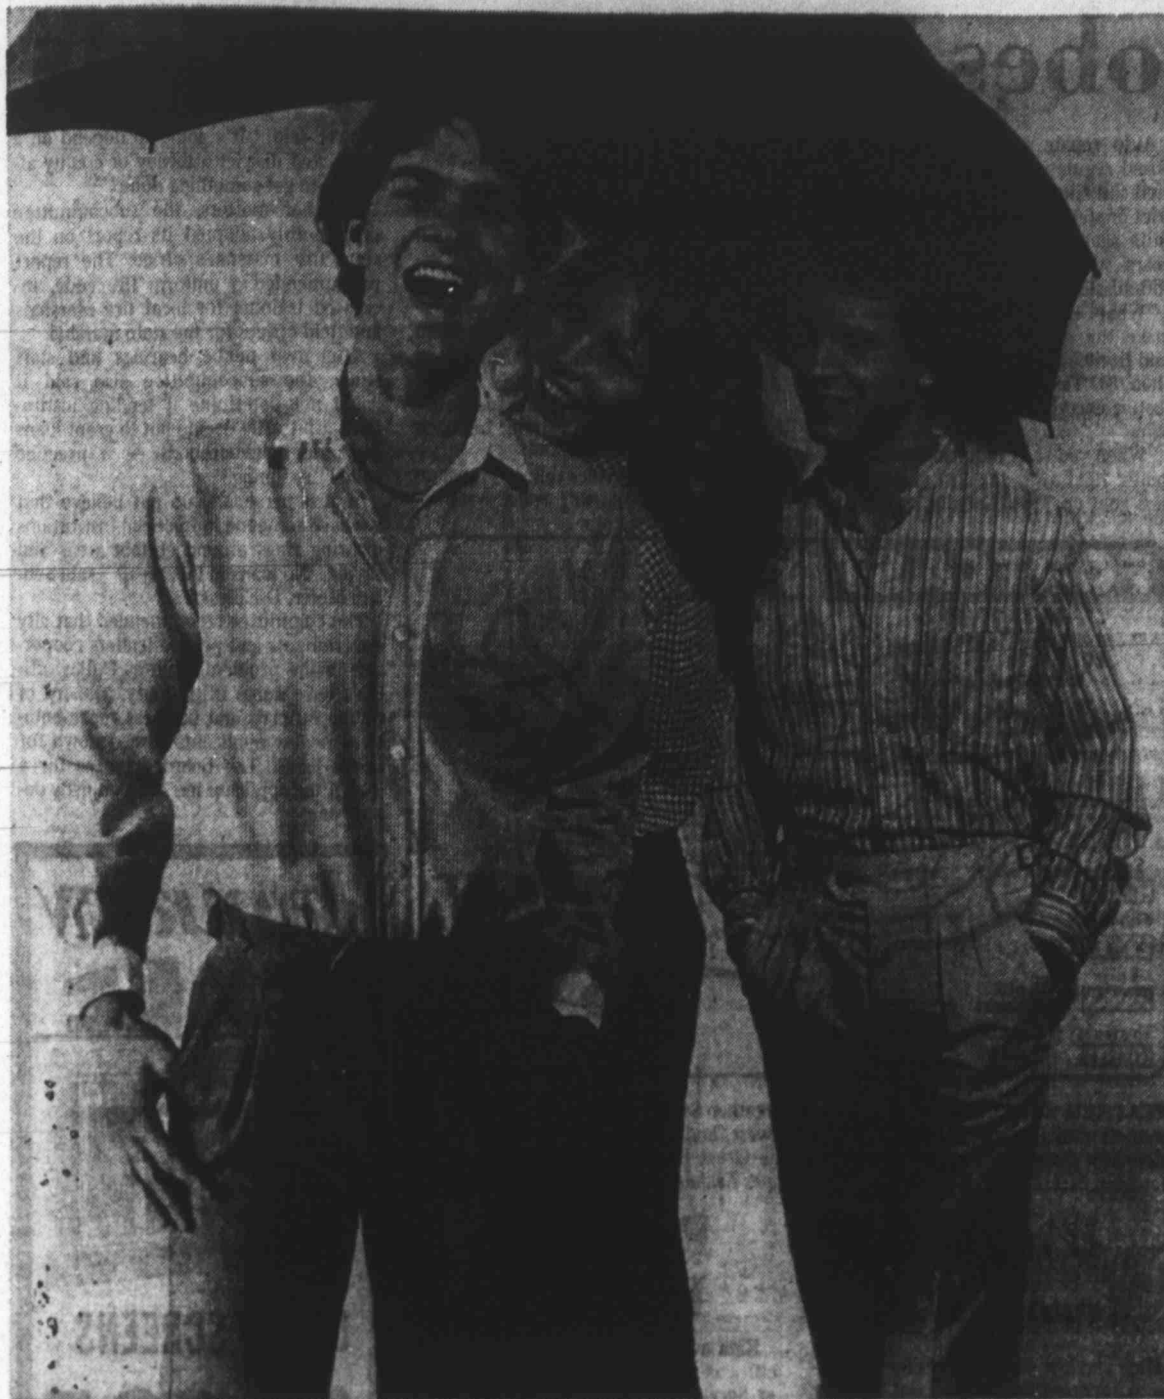

Doctors tend to stick to the brands introduced first and they know less about the newer, less costly brands, Kramer says. On the question of quality, all FDA commissioners have said that the generics are reliable.

Just recently, FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said that government tests provide no evidence of widespread differences in quality between brand name and generic drugs, or between the products of large-versus small firms.

"Only a small percentage of drugs do not comply with standards of quality, purity and potency, and when a drug deviates from the standard, it is just as likely to be a brand name as a generic drug."

BRIGHT SALADS

Seasonal vegetables and fruits team up for bright winter salads. Lettuce and cucumbers work well with orange and pineapple sections. Apples and grapes get along famously with celery and parsley, while oranges and tomatoes make a colorful and tasty ensemble tossed with lettuce, watercress and chopped mint.

FASHION FANCY — A young man's fashion fancy for spring turns to comfortable jeans styling with a clean, dressed up look. The "city jeans" come in a brushed cotton/polyester blend denim, left, or a slubbed all-cotton in light neutrals, with butterfly double front pleats, adjustable side tabs and quarter-top pockets that stay flat for a trim appearance. In the same casual, yet dressed up mood are banded collar shirts tapered to a young man's fit, suitable for any occasion.

 Opening lead: Two of ♣.
 Every card tells a story. Declarer read the opening lead correctly and came up with a brilliant play to bring home his diamond slam.

The bidding was direct and to the point. After East's overall, South decided that he wanted to be in slam, so he just bid what he expected to make.

West led the deuce of spades, and declarer correctly read it as a singleton. If the diamonds divided 2-2, the hand would be a pianola—declarer would draw trumps, then enter dummy by overtaking the trump two to take discards on the hearts. To test this, declarer won the ace of spades and cashed the ace and king of diamonds.

Unfortunately, West turned up with three trumps. Declarer could not afford to concede a spade, for a third spade from East would allow West to ruff higher than dummy. At first glance it seemed that declarer's only chance was to find West with the king of clubs, and so force an entry to dummy in clubs while keeping East off the lead. But the fact that East had made a vulnerable overall made it likely that he held the monarch.

After some thought declarer found a sure-trick line. He continued with his low trump, allowing West to score a trump trick with the eight!

West did not relish the prospect of being on lead. He was down to nothing but hearts and clubs, and no matter which suit he led, he would have to put declarer in dummy. There was obviously no point to a heart return, so

West tried a club in the forlorn hope that East held the ace. Declarer played the jack from dummy. East covered with the king and declarer won the ace. A club to the queen put him in dummy, and the good hearts provided a welcome parking spot for the three remaining spades and one club.

LEAVES COURT — Diana Green, left, and her 3-year-old son Chad, leave the Plymouth Superior Court where hearings are continuing over the child's medical treatment for his leukemia. Chad's parents do not want his leukemia treated by chemotherapy as recommended by Chad's physicians, but would rather have the condition treated with the controversial drug Laetrile. (AP Laserphoto)

Parents Want Son Taken To Mexico

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — The parents of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green want to take their son to Tijuana, Mexico where he can be treated with the controversial cancer drug Laetrile.

Jerry and Diana Green of Scituate, Mass., Monday asked Plymouth Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra to reverse a previous order making the boy a partial ward of the state which was imposed last year when the parents opposed chemotherapy for their son.

For more than a year, blond, blue-eyed Chad has been the center of a controversy over whether parents have the right to pick medical treatments for their children even if those treatments are unorthodox.

The Greens have opposed chemotherapy claiming they could better care for their son with a special metabolic diet. The parents Monday said they now are willing to keep the boy on chemotherapy, but that they want the "care and protection order" lifted by the state so they can take the child to Mexico.

As a ward of the state Chad is allowed to live at home with his parents but they must let a social worker see him on a regular basis to make sure he is receiving the chemotherapy.

Mrs. Green said she and her husband will present at least four witnesses who will testify over the next two weeks on the use of Laetrile as a "good cancer treatment." The first of those witnesses — Harvard-educated Dr. Ernesto Contreiras — who runs a Laetrile clinic in Tijuana, testified Monday in the closed door session.

Contreras later said he would keep the boy on chemotherapy but that he would also add Laetrile in order to improve the boy's quality of life.

"It's a Laetrile case ... which it didn't start out to be," the Green's attorney, George Donovan, said outside the courtroom.

Nine Respond To Request

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Nine persons have responded to a police request for volunteers to pose as massage parlor customers.

"I'd say the response has been super," said Sgt. Donald Eatherton, who has been receiving applications for the St. Louis County police department.

"Later on we'll interview the applicants to screen out, well, the strange ones."

Eatherton said "fresh faces" are needed because area prostitutes know most of the county vice officers.

Men will pose as customers and see whether they are solicited for sex by massage parlor employees. Women will apply for jobs to see whether the parlor owners promote prostitution as part of the work.

Brainerd W. LaTourette Jr., chairman of the county Board of Police Commissioners, said he was not certain how far the civilians would be told to go in collecting evidence.

Panel Probes Repair Complaints

AUSTIN (AP) — Are you tired of finding out your car's $10 carburetor adjustment has ballooned to a $50 engine repair?

If so, a legislative subcommittee is considering ways to help you out, like requiring auto repair shops to register with the state and give customers written estimates.

"We've studied auto repairs a number of times and there are a growing number of complaints," says Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, chairman of the Senate Consumer Affairs subcommittee.

The panel postponed a final vote Monday on its auto repair report when some members left for other meetings. However, Clower said he would reschedule a meeting this week.

Under a proposed committee report, auto repair facilities would register with the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission. Estimates of repairs over $25 would be required in writing.

Consumers would not be liable for work costing more than 10 percent of the approved written estimate, unless they consented to the added costs either in writing or orally.

"If state action is not taken soon to correct the abuses in the area of auto repair, there is the increasing likelihood that federal regulations or legislation will be introduced," the report says.

Auto repair shops violating the proposed regulations would be subject to a civil suit filed by either city, county, district or state prosecutors. Two successful suits against a repair shop within two years would allow the motor vehicle commission to revoke its license.

"What they're talking about won't make the dishonest mechanic honest," said Horace Sandlin of Zeh's Auto Repair Shop, 802 Texas Ave., "but it will end up costing everybody a lot more for auto repairs."

"When you start requiring written estimates, right away the cost of doing business goes up," said Sandlin, and it's passed along to the consumer.

If the regulation is passed, Sandlin foresees estimates will be written "high in the first place to avoid a 'comeback,' and then if the mechanic is dishonest, he'll stick to the estimate even if the work actually cost less to do."

C.B. McNeely of McNeely Auto Service said, "What they're trying to make law is just what reputable businessmen do anyway."

McNeely is president of the Independent Garagemen's Association Lubbock Chapter.

This largely provides relief to consumers through the existing court system."

Clower said "It's going to depend on a motivated district attorney or county attorney to get something done."

In other matters, the subcommittee unanimously adopted its report on the state fire marshal's office. The report recommended a uniform fire code, increased training for local fire marshals and field offices for the state marshal.

After two public hearings and staff study, the subcommittee also said it could not determine if lending institutions arbitrarily decide not to grant loans in some neighborhoods — a practice called "redlining."

"I just personally do not believe that we have someone in financial institutions drawing rings around certain areas and saying, 'No loans in this area,'" said Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules.

The committee recommended that city governments and private lenders cooperate on the problem, such as Dallas officials have done. In that city, a board of public officials and business representatives review applicants turned down for home loans. The board arranges for a loan if the applicant has been unjustly denied one.

Mother Aids Officers' Pot Search

A concerned mother assisted officers about 10 p.m. Monday in taking into custody her 16-year-old son, who was suspected of having marijuana in his bedroom.

A Lubbock County juvenile probation officer and several policemen were given permission by the mother to search the youth's room — while the teen-ager looked on.

Reports show when officers found suspected marijuana, and paraphernalia, the youth opened a window and jumped out. He was found several minutes later hiding behind a bush at a nearby park.

Three Lubbock men were arrested about 4 a.m. today after a policeman said he watched one of the suspects throw from a moving car a baggie containing what is thought to be marijuana.

The officer said he became suspicious of the suspects after seeing that their car had torn dealer's tags on it, and attempted to stop the vehicle in the 800-block of Avenue Q.

Reports show, however, the suspects kept traveling and that one of the men threw the baggie out of the car before it pulled over in the 1600-block of Sixth Street.

The men, in their early 20s, were arrested and transported to the county jail.

Not only did Mrs. Willie Browning Scott have the misfortune of having her house burn Monday morning, but she thinks someone stole a $3,075 three-ring wedding set from what was left of her residence.

Mrs. Scott's 1321 E. 25th St. residence erupted into flames about 10:15 a.m. after a gas furnace apparently exploded.

Mrs. Scott said she was rummaging through the debris left by the fire when it was discovered that the wedding rings were missing from a jewelry box.

Betty Jean Monroe of 1821 E. First St. said she lost, among other things, a wedding ring when her car was entered while it was parked in the 1000-block of Spruce Avenue Monday afternoon.

She reported stolen the rings, cash, and a gun, totaling $1,030.

V.C. O'Guinn of 3214 Itasca St. said he returned home about 1:45 p.m. Monday to find his place burglarized and ransacked.

O'Guinn, who had been gone since Monday morning, said the loot apparently was $625 in property, including two clocks, a television set and cash.

In other reported break-ins, Quentin Macon of 1712 39th St. said a watch, guns and clothing, totaling $1,750, were taken when his house was hit by burglars between 5 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Monday.

Pete Wallace Bibby of 2322 18th St. said a stereo system, TV set and other items, with total value of $1,595, were taken when his home was burglarized sometime before 6:45 p.m. Monday.

A burglary at Ed Robertson's 1601 58th St. residence early Monday resulted in a loss of $600 cash taken from a bedroom.

LEARN FROM OTHERS' MISTAKES-- IT'S A BIG TIME SAVER

Documents Could Expose Beef Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Small Business Committee has filed a brief with the U.S. Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo., stating that it has documents showing "significant, deliberate and repeated violations of this nation's civil and criminal laws by Iowa Beef Processors, Inc."

A copyrighted story in Tuesday's editions of the Des Moines Register said the committee stated that "these violations have resulted in the loss of millions of dollars to the customers and competitors of IBP."

The committee told the court it is planning to make the documents public during congressional hearings in February.

Iowa Beef has asked the Court of Appeals to prevent the committee, headed by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, from disclosing the papers.

The committee obtained the documents in a series of legal actions involving federal courts in Iowa and Texas.

The papers were taken from IBP by a former company vice president, Hughes Bagley.

The committee said in its brief that "the Bagley documents could expose past and present high corporate officials of IBP to felony criminal charges for violations of the anti-trust laws."

A lawyer for Iowa Beef, James T. Malysiak of Chicago, said the company would respond to the committee's charges on possible violations of the law in another brief, which will be filed by the firm with the court this morning.

Malysiak said the company will have no comment on the committee's charges until after the brief is filed with the court.

Iowa Beef, the nation's largest beef packing company, was the subject of an inquiry by the Agriculture Department's Packers and Stockyards Administration.

But Smith has said he is not satisfied with the USDA investigation, and that his Small Business Committee will continue to probe the business practices of large meat packing companies.

Smith says large packers' methods of buying live cattle and selling meat affect smaller packing companies and cattle producers, as well as consumers.

The committee's papers to the Court of Appeals also say, "Additionally, the Bagley documents reveal that after lawyers for IBP analyzed the anti-trust laws of the United States, IBP officials willfully and intentionally continued to violate the federal anti-trust statutes.

In addition to the apparent violations of the anti-trust statutes, the Bagley documents also show apparent violations of the conspiracy laws of the United States.

Iowa Beef has charged before the St. Louis court that the committee "seized" the documents in a series of actions the company calls "lawlessness."

The committee last fall subpoenaed Des Moines lawyer Lex Hawkins, ordering him to produce documents Bagley gave him.

Hawkins had obtained the documents in connection with a civil suit involving IBP. They had been "sealed" under a protective order issued by a federal district court.

The committee's effort to obtain the Bagley documents from Hawkins was rejected by a federal judge in Texas, where the civil suit is being litigated.

The Small Business Committee then subpoenaed Bagley, who lives in Sioux City. That subpoena was upheld by U.S. District Judge Edward McManus in Cedar Rapids.

McManus ruled Nov. 22 that the committee had the right to the Bagley documents.

Some 3,000 pages of documents from Bagley are in the committee's offices.

Iowa Beef has offered to give the documents to the Small Business Committee if the committee will agree not to make the papers public.

Gas Curtailments Blamed On Weather

AUSTIN (AP) — Blame the weatherman — at least in part — for natural gas curtailments during Texas' ice storm last week, states a railroad commission report.

The commission's gas utilities division said Monday a cold front that swept the state within 24 hours, mechanical failures and "underestimated temperature forecasting" caused the curtailments.

Only more accurate and timely forecasting and enlarged gas storage facilities can head off other curtailments, the report said.

The preliminary report on the Jan. 1-4 crisis was submitted to the commission by division director Joseph Piotrowski.

Commissioner Mack Wallace asked Piotrowski for a full study in order to avoid future curtailments. He said the study should analyze how consumers' energy costs are affected by curtailments.

The staff found that five of the state's largest transmission systems — Pioneer Natural Gas Co. of Amarillo; Lone Star Gas Co. of Dallas; Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., serving South and Central Texas; Arkla Gas Transmission Co., serving East and Southeast Texas; and United Gas Pipeline Co. — imposed "substantive curtailments" of gas.

The largest and most severe curtailments were by Lo-Vaca and Lone Star, the report said.

"The curtailments primarily affected large usage customers — including electrical utilities and school districts — who either have agreed to an immediate interruptible status in return for low rates, or who have alternative fuel capability," the study said.

Approximately 1,000 residential customers in Jasper, Rusk, Weimer, Pflugerville and NASA-Clear Lake had service curtailed for 10 hours because of mechanical problems, the study said.

The mechanical failures were at gas wells, gas processing plants and regulator substations.

The state's interconnect gas transmission system, which was set up to avoid curtailments, was not implemented, except for Lo-Vaca, the study said, "due to the rapid and widespread coverage of the subfreezing weather front."

The study concluded that a supply problem could be expected when there is a "sharply increased demand on the one hand and subfreezing — and in many cases, below zero — temperatures in producing and transmission areas throughout the state at one time."

It also said another curtailment is possible "whenever the wind chill factor is below 10 degrees Fahrenheit throughout the North, West, East and Central Texas areas at one time."

Piotrowski said nine engineers, four auditors and three statisticians were sent into the field within 24 hours of the first curtailment on Jan. 1.

Commissioners Tab Committee Members

County Commissioners Monday made 24 appointments to the Lubbock County Historical Commission and reappointed several members to various county service groups.

Those appointed to the historical commission for a two-year term include: Bob Nash, Ford Mitchell, Mrs. Carl Gelin, James Baker, Russell Bean, Mrs. W.B. Blankenship, Alton Brazell, Dr. James Kitchen, Tanner Laine, Mrs. R.L. Matthews, Judge Rodrick Shaw, Dr. Ernest Wallace, Mrs. David Vigney, Dr. Alwyn Barr, Joe Murfee III, Claude Denham, Mabry Brock, Dick Laird, Mrs. Madison Sowder, Bill Ball, Jake Scharnberg, Mrs. John Burton, Bill Lettich and Mrs. T.C. Martin.

Reappointed to three-year terms, beginning Jan. 1, by the commissioners were: Dale Jones, Mrs. Shamus Mehaffie and Weldon Boyd to the Lubbock County General Assistance Agency; Claude Harland, Tom Purdom, Sister Regina Foppe and Mrs. Carroll Cobb to the Lubbock County Children's Protective Services Board, and James Baker was appointed to fill the term expiring Dec. 31, 1980, of Bill Parker who resigned; Mrs. Glenn Payne and Mrs. Madison Sowder to the Lubbock City-County Library Board.

Reappointed for two-year terms beginning Jan. 14, were Jack F. Strong, Place 5, and John Flygare, Place 3, on the Lubbock County Hospital District Board of Managers.

Thomas E. Wizorek, director of Lubbock-Crosby County Adult Probation Department, explained to the commissioners his need for extra space on the second floor of the County Office Building. The commissioners approved his space-reorganization plan and authorized the purchasing agent to buy any additional equipment needed and seek telephone company authorization for any extensions in the office reorganization.

Commissioners will continue Tuesday afternoon to interview applicants for an additional building maintenance supervisor for the County Courthouse. Two applicants were interviewed during Monday's meeting.

Bob Cash, a representative of Legi/Slate computer time sharing systems of Dallas, explained to the commissioners during a brief demonstration the advantage of using a telephone-computer service hookup in Austin. Cash told members that the tracking computer system is an ideal method for the city to keep track of the daily events of the legislature.

Judge Shaw pointed out that Cash was at the meeting only as a courtesy.

Cities Request CAB Order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials of three east New Mexico towns Monday asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to order Texas International Airlines to resume service to the three cities.

TIA last month requested and received permission from the CAB to discontinue service to Clovis, Carlsbad and Hobbs, N.M. The petition asks for a reconsideration of the order.

Under the CAB order, TIA was allowed to terminate service to the three cities whenever one of three other carriers, Zia, Crown or Air Midwest, were able to replace TIA in any of the markets.

The three cities told the CAB the new service is poor and does not adequately replace the service previously provided by TIA.

The cities are asking that TIA resume service until the CAB can determine the level of service necessary and certifies a carrier or carriers to provide it.

The appeal of the three New Mexico communities is expected to be the first test of the CAB's handling of its duties under the new deregulation act passed by Congress last year.

Possible Confrontation Gets Carter's Attention

GOSIER, Guadeloupe (AP) — If Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev goes to Washington to sign a new SALT treaty, President Carter will urge him to join in avoiding a Soviet-American confrontation in Southwest Asia.

Informed sources reporting this said the idea would be for the two sides to avoid tangling with each other in an area that easily could be transformed into a powder keg.

They said during the two-day Guadeloupe summit Carter mapped ways with British Prime Minister James Callaghan, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing to check the creeping advance of the Soviet Union toward the Persian Gulf.

But the only initiative spelled out by the sources, who declined to be identified either by name or nationality, was the proposal to avoid a clash that Carter was to broach with Brezhnev in Washington.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy were returning to Washington tonight after three days of vacation following the summit that ended Saturday.

The sources said that general agreement emerged during the summit that the balance of world power could be transformed if Moscow becomes dominant in the huge intercontinental triangle between Turkey, Afghanistan and Ethiopia.

Nearly half the non-communist world's oil comes from this region, and there was a recognition by the heads of government, based on pooled intelligence estimates, that the Soviets in the 1980s will have dire need of access to the same fuel sources.

The sources offered no information to suggest that Carter had been criticized for failing to respond to the opportunism of the Soviets. There was also acknowledgment that Moscow did not create the difficulties gripping the countries in the Ankara-Kabul-Addis Ababa triangle. But none of the four doubted that the Kremlin leadership has been quicker to exploit the situations than Western leaders have been.

Civil Defense Needs Being Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense experts and government officials are debating whether the United States should try to match the growing civil defense efforts of the Soviet Union.

Paul Warnke, the former chief U.S. arms negotiator, argued one side Monday, contending that neither the Soviet Union nor the United States could be saved from the devastation of a nuclear war.

Warnke, one-time head of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said that, given the "crazy logic" of the nuclear age, an effective civil defense system would be more destabilizing and therefore dangerous than one which performed poorly.

But other witnesses told the Senate Banking Committee it is essential to upgrade U.S. civil defense to save tens of millions of lives and preserve the government after a nuclear exchange.

Samuel P. Huntington, director of Harvard University's Center for International Affairs, said it was "simple prudence" to maintain a "lifeboat" evacuation plan.

U.S. intelligence estimates are that 100,000 Soviet citizens are involved in civil defense. Significant efforts are being made to prepare blast and fallout shelters, to "harden" basic industry and to prepare evacuation plans at an estimated cost of $500 million a year.

Because of higher manpower costs, a comparable effort would cost the United States at least $2 billion.

Some $700 million was spent by the government on shelters and evacuation plans in 1961. Private citizens were encouraged to spend an additional $30 billion on private shelters.

But that effort has largely been abandoned or scaled down. The U.S. civil defense budget is now $97 million, although the Carter administration wants Congress to increase that by about $50 million and to begin preparing an emergency evacuation plan.

A revitalized civil defense could result in up to 110 million Americans surviving a large-scale attack, compared to 80 million if nothing additional is done, said the director of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency, Baryd Tirana.

But Warnke and current arms control officials said an attacking enemy could nullify any system of shelters and evacuation by increasing radioactive fallout with ground bursts and by aiming weapons at the evacuated population.

Also testifying was Spurgeon M. Kenney Jr., deputy director of the arms control agency, who released the results of a recent study that concluded any feasible Russian civil defense effort would still render a nuclear war "an unparalleled disaster for the Soviet Union."

The study appeared to be aimed at rebutting critics of a new strategic arms limitation agreement who contend the Soviet Union is aiming at a first-strike capability against the United States and is improving its civil defense system to survive a U.S. counterattack.

The study says that even if the Soviets were successful in evacuating 80 percent of their population from the cities and providing the best available shelters for the rest, the death toll could still hit 40 million and possibly 85 million if the United States made civilians prime targets.

American casualties would be significantly greater because of more powerful Soviet weapons and because of the assumption the Soviet Union would strike first, the study said.

Warnke, the principal U.S. negotiator for much of the current round of SALT talks, contended the only effective protection for either country is the maintenance of a strategic balance that deters war by assuring the destruction of whoever struck first.

If either side devised an effective civil defense shield, he said, the result would be to destroy the strategic balance and spur an arms race that would make war more likely.

President Plans To Submit Austere Budget

GOSIER, Guadeloupe (UPI) — In an apparent tactical break with tradition, President Carter plans to submit next year's austerity federal budget to Congress before delivering the State of the Union message, aides say.

White House aides indicated Carter expected loud protests and "gnashing of teeth" when he sends the 1980 fiscal year "austerity" budget to Capitol Hill on Jan. 22. His state of the union message will be delivered in person two or three days later.

Traditionally, presidents have first delivered the state of the union address and then submitted the budget.

Carter apparently wants to make a public case for tight federal spending before confronting lawmakers in Congress with his domestic proposals, which will stress the battle against inflation.

The president heads back to wintry Washington tonight after spending several days basking in the sunshine at this lush tourist haven in the Caribbean.

Sources said Carter is confident he shored up relations with allied leaders during the three-day Guadeloupe summit, which ended Saturday and won strong backing for his arms limitation negotiations with the Soviets.

They said West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's public support of SALT II "was worth the whole meeting."

There had been some apprehension on Schmidt's part over the SALT talks.

Carter also agreed to give European leaders a greater voice in the SALT III negotiations, which will immediately follow conclusion of a SALT II pact, sources said.

Though Carter counted on a Christmas announcement of an arms accord with the Soviet Union, it did not happen. Diplomatic initiatives, including normalization of relations with China last December, apparently stalled the SALT talks and postponed the summit that Carter hopes to have with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

On his return to Washington, Carter will be a very busy man. He was expected to hold a news conference on Thursday, where he may make his first public comment on the fall of Cambodia's capital Phnom Penh, and the potential dangers of Sino-Soviet friction over the role of Vietnam in the Cambodian strife.

He also will have a round of meetings with congressional leaders. At the end of the month, the president will roll out the red carpet for Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping, the first high ranking mainland Chinese official to visit Washington in 30 years.

As for his vacation in the sun, Carter generally stayed out of the public eye Monday doing some paperwork and resting. He went jogging with his wife Rosalynn early in the morning. He also went swimming and snorkeling with his daughter Amy.

City Council Approves Land Sales

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland City Council has approved the sale of five city land parcels in an effort to avert the firing of some 400 municipal workers.

The land approved for sale Monday includes 50 acres in Warrensville Township, which are to be sold to the city Water Department for $1.4 million for reservoir expansion. A parcel near the city's Lake Erie waterfront is being transferred to the Water Department for $880,000 for a new Division Avenue water plant.

A 2 1/2-mile stretch of railroad right-of-way in Cleveland's industrial Flats area is being sold to the Chessie System for $1.5 million.

The other two parcels are a downtown site valued at $800,000 and the city's Navy Park, located in suburban Brooklyn, valued at $300,000. City Council President George Forbes said the city has no buyers for the last two parcels, although General Motors Corp. has expressed interest in the Navy Park site.

Forbes had opposed sale of the Warrensville Township land but agreed to the sale of 50 of the 77 acres when spokesmen for Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich said there was no other way to avert the layoffs.

William McNea, head of the Cleveland Police Patrolmen's Association, expressed relief that the threatened layoffs — which would have included 275 policemen — had been averted. But, he said, "It might be short-lived. We must get past Feb. 27. If the income tax (increase) doesn't pass, this city will be in deep trouble."

Voters are being asked in the special Feb. 27 election to boost the income tax from 1 to 1.5 percent and settle the controversy over whether the Municipal Light Plant should be sold.

The city has been in default on $14 million in notes owed city banks since Dec. 15. But the banks have made no move to collect on the debt, and one bank, Cleveland Trust Co., has said it will wait to see what happens Feb. 27.

In addition, a state pension fund has started placing liens against city revenues to collect $5.3 million in payments that Cleveland failed to make last year.

Trains Collide In Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A commuter train rammed into the back of another one stopped in a station several miles outside Ankara today, killing 30 persons and injuring about 100, authorities reported.

Officials said the toll was high because two crowded cars were crushed. One of the cars caught fire, and many of the bodies were badly burned.

The train that was hit had been halted by engine trouble, officials reported. They said the oncoming engineer put on his brakes but could not stop in time to prevent the crash.

It was the second fatal train wreck in the Ankara area in five days and the fifth train wreck in Turkey within a month. Two crowded passenger express trains collided head-on near the city early Friday, killing 16 persons and injuring 107.

The frequency of wrecks on the government railway system has touched off considerable criticism and controversy. Critics claim that past governments failed to modernize the equipment and train personnel properly because they were encouraging private transport companies.

China Premier Teng May Visit Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston may be one of four or five U.S. cities Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping may visit after conferring with President Carter in Washington late this month.

Louie Welch, president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, said today the White House had contacted him about the possibility of such a Houston visit.

ments, a cause of several previous tanker disasters. But evidence on the blackened, half-sunken Betelgeuse was scanty.

"Everyone who was directly involved is dead," Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch told reporters. He said the cause of the worst industrial accident in Irish Republic history may never be known.

Lynch said all 43 persons aboard the 121,430-ton ship died in the blasts Monday at Gulf Oil Co.'s Whiddy Island terminal near picturesque Bantry Bay. Also killed were seven Irish dockworkers.

Lynch told a news conference, held in a waterfront bar in Bantry, "I believe that every precaution was taken" to avoid such an accident.

He said a government investigation would begin as soon as possible.

Oil company investigators stressed they had little evidence to work on. The wreckage of the tanker, broken nearly in half by two explosions, was mostly under water.

"We don't know why this happened," a Gulf official said. "We took every precaution, we tried everything, but somehow, some way it just wasn't enough."

"I don't know how this happened. I really don't. There was an explosion in the tanker, there was a fire, and there was a second explosion that ripped the ship apart. I don't know why. But we have at least 50 people dead. That's all I know."

The Betelgeuse had been unloading crude oil at the terminal. It is estimated that 26 million gallons had been pumped into the storage tanks and 15 million were still aboard.

Fire and rescue chiefs decided to allow the fire to burn itself out on board the ship and on the water nearby. They were confident the Whiddy Island storage tanks holding some 300 million gallons of oil were in no danger.

They also believed attempts to disperse the burning oil could endanger shipping and increase pollution problems. But Bill Finigan, chairman of Gulf's Irish operations, said there was little sign of oil pollution in the bay so far.

The tanker was used by Total, the French oil firm, and was carrying a cargo for Petrogal, the Portuguese national oil company. The oil had been loaded in Saudi Arabia and arrived at Bantry over the weekend. The Betelgeuse's French owners said the tanker was insured for $13.1 million.

State To Seek Death Penalty

CHICAGO (AP) — The electric chair will be sought for John Wayne Gacy, indicted on charges of murdering seven young men and boys whose bodies were buried at his suburban Chicago home or thrown into a nearby river, authorities say.

Bernard Carey, Cook County state attorney, said Monday he would ask for Gacy's execution. He said there was "more than one reason" why prosecutors could ask for the death penalty, but he refused to elaborate.

Gacy was indicted Monday by a Cook County grand jury for the seven murders.

Investigators have found the remains of 26 young men and boys beneath Gacy's home in Des Plaines, a northwest Chicago suburb. The remains of another body were found beneath his garage.

Gacy reportedly has confessed to the killings — the nation's largest mass murder in this century — telling police he had sex with 32 boys and young men, then killed them.

Police believe five bodies were thrown into the Des Plaines River. The bodies of two young men have been recovered from the river and linked to Gacy, authorities said.

Eight of the remains found at the Gacy home have been identified, in addition to the two bodies recovered from the river.

Carey said he believes 12 unbiased jurors can be found in Cook County, where Gacy's home is located, and that he will oppose any attempt to move a trial elsewhere.

The 36-year-old contractor has been in custody since late last month and was charged Dec. 22 with murdering 15-year-old Robert Piest, whose disappearance

Gulf Oil Investigators Examine Fatal Tanker Explosion, Fire

BANTRY, Ireland (AP) — Gulf Oil investigators probed today into the explosions and fire that killed 50 persons on the French tanker Betelgeuse.

Early theories centered on fumes in empty and partly empty oil compartments, a cause of several previous tanker disasters. But evidence on the blackened, half-sunken Betelgeuse was scanty.

"Everyone who was directly involved is dead," Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch told reporters. He said the cause of the worst industrial accident in Irish Republic history may never be known.

Countries Grant Asylum To Vietnamese Refugees

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — France, Britain and Hong Kong agreed today to grant asylum to 78 more Vietnamese from the group of 2,300 stranded for 13 days in Manila Bay.

It brought to nearly 200 the number of refugees marked for resettlement. But the fate of 2,100, marooned since Dec. 27 aboard the Hong Kong freighter Tung An, was still uncertain.

Werner Blatter, representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said France agreed to resettle 50 more Vietnamese in addition to the 10 it had accepted earlier and who were scheduled to leave for Paris tonight.

Hong Kong and Britain agreed to accept 21 and seven respectively but said these refugees, before gaining admission, must first prove their claims that they have relatives in Britain and Hong Kong.

Of the 19 countries asked by the Philippines to accept the refugees, Israel has agreed to take the largest number, totaling 10. New Zealand said it would give asylum to six.

The Foreign Ministry said Canada agreed to take between 300 and 350 refugees but specified it wanted those already temporarily living in the Fabela Center Refugee Camp outside Manila.

The ministry said Canadian Ambassador John Irwin stated his country "cannot accept at this time" any of the refugees on board the Tung An because it would disrupt Canadian priorities.

The United States, France, Australia and West Germany agreed to resettle a combined total of 850 refugees housed in Fabela. Britain agreed to resettle 24 from the camp.

A French Embassy spokesman said the 50 refugees France was additionally taking in either have relatives in France, speak French or have worked in a French company.

Doctors Experiment With Drug Thought To Dissolve Gallstones

By HARRIET LEEDS
MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — More than 400,000 Americans have their gall bladders removed each year to cure one of mankind's most painful maladies — gallstones.

For most of them, the operation is a success. About 5 to 10 percent, however, retain stones in the liver or common bile duct, making a second operation or a radiological probe necessary.

Now, doctors at the University of Wisconsin and the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., are testing a new drug to dissolve gallstones retained in the bile duct after surgery.

A gallstone is a small hard mass made primarily of cholesterol crystals. Normally the cholesterol is in solution in the bile. Sometimes it crystallizes to form a stone, which can ease into a bile duct or into the intestine and cause pain.

Dr. Ebehard Mack, a professor of surgery at the University of Wisconsin Hospital and Clinics, said when the gall bladder is removed, sometimes the extra gallstones are hard to see or the surgeon can't get them out.

"They can be high in the liver or squished in the end of the bile duct," Mack said.

Dr. Jonathon Thistle and colleagues at the Mayo Clinic discovered that a substance called mono-octanoin dissolves gallstones in the test tube two and a half times more effectively than anything else.

Mono-octanoin is not useful when taken by mouth because it is metabolized by the body before it reaches gallstones. After surgery, however, it can be used to dissolve retained gallstones by being administered through a tube into a bile duct.

Mack said he has used the drug Capmul 8210 which contains mono-octanoin to dissolve a total of 19 retained cholesterol gallstones in 11 patients whose gall bladders were removed surgically.

He said dissolution of stones in eight patients with single gallstones occurred in four to seven days. Dissolution of gallstones in patients with multiple gallstones took longer.

"This substance has proven very effective in patients who might otherwise have had to undergo re-operation for their stones or have had them extracted by radiological means," Mack said.

Thistle reports treating 12 patients with mono-octanoin and having successful results in 10.

The drug is being tested for gallstone treatment under federal Food and Drug Administration supervision.

Mack said patients who retain gallstones after surgery will have three choices: reoperation, removal of stones by a radiologist using a metal instrument to "fish" the stones out of the common bile duct, or dissolution by means of Capmul 8210.

The Madison surgeon said he tested Capmul 8210 on monkeys to find out whether it was safe before giving it to humans.

Mack said he hoped the drug would be approved by the FDA for general use in the future.

"Re-operation is more risky than the initial operation," Mack said. That is why a doctor and patient would want to avoid more surgery.

Although the cause of gallstones remains a mystery, it is known that overweight women in their childbearing years are more apt to develop them than other people.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Tuesday, Jan. 9, the ninth day of 1979 with 356 to follow.

The moon is moving from its first quarter toward a full moon.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Richard Nixon, 37th president of the United States, was born Jan. 9, 1913.

On this day in history:

In 1793, the first successful balloon flight in the United States was made by Jean Blanchard over Philadelphia.

In 1861, Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1945, American troops invaded the Philippine island of Luzon and went on to liberate Manila.

In 1968, Surveyor 7 made a soft landing on the moon.

A thought for the day:
American humorist Will Rogers said, "Everything is funny as long as it is happening to somebody else."

Jupiter Spacecraft Begins Transmitting

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1 has begun transmitting pictures of Jupiter that a spokesman says makes the huge planet look "like a big Easter egg."

The craft's cameras clicked on Saturday, 37 million miles from the Jovian surface, said Frank Bristow of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where the pictures are being received. He said "the pictures are just fantastic. Jupiter is a beautiful planet." The craft is scheduled to zoom within 174,000 miles of the surface on March 5. A twin craft — Voyager 2 — will rendezvous with Jupiter sometime in July and conduct similar tests.

DR. LAMB Cold Air Causes Attacks

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had asthma since early childhood with only a little improvement over the years. I am 16 and rarely have problems when exercising in warmer months. It seems to be in the winter when I run in the cold air that I have the most problems. Sometimes I'm practically disabled from wheezing.

I know the solution would be to cut back on outdoor workouts during this time, but when practicing basketball much of the running is done outside. Is there any reason the cold air should cause this wheezing or illness more easily than warm weather? Participation in sports is very important to me. I would appreciate any advice you can give me.

DEAR READER — You've identified the culprit. It is the cold air. Very good studies have shown that cold air will cause an asthmatic attack during exercise even though the same amount of exercises in warm weather would not.

This is an important consideration for parents and teachers with all young asthmatics who might want to do physical exertion. The environment is important and a good way to help prevent asthmatic attacks during exercise is to do the exertion in warm, comfortable surroundings. Swimming, which is a good exercise for many asthmatics, should be done in a pool with the temperature between 85 and 90 degrees F.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-6 Asthma. It will give you more information about asthma and exercise for asthmatics. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Whether or not a person who has asthma can exercise depends on what kind of exercise he might choose to do. Just because a person has asthma doesn't mean he can't be active. In the 1972 Olympics, five medal winners were asthmatics.

Exercise can cause asthmatic attacks. This is particularly true of prolonged, strenuous, physical activity. If the vigorous exertion is over five to eight minutes long, it is more likely it will precipitate an attack. There are lots of athletic events, though, that aren't that long, such as what you do during a baseball game. Long distance running would be an example of a poor choice of a sport for a young asthmatic.

Also, there are some medicines that asthmatics can take prior to engaging in sports and physical exertion that can help prevent attacks. One of these is Cromolyn Sodium which is a fairly new medicine. The medicine is usually inhaled before the exertion to prevent bronchial spasms. Finally, I want to be sure you are seeing your physician. Proper management of your asthma at this stage can help you lead a more healthy and active life in the years to come.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am suffering from erysipelas on the right leg round the ankle resulting from a second degree burn experienced nine months ago. I understand the cause of this disease is unknown and there is no treatment other than rest. Is this correct?

DEAR READER — No, it's not. I don't know that you have erysipelas — that's the diagnosis you sent me. Erysipelas is an infection of the skin caused by streptococci bacteria of the same general group that causes strep throat. Usually the infection is of the skin over the face, although it can occur around a surgical incision or an injury. If you are correct and you do have erysipelas, then it can and should be treated with appropriate antibiotics.

Student Earns Cash By Boarding Plants

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The seed of an idea blossomed into an enterprise that kept Mark Weaver rooted to the Butler University campus over the holidays.

While other students headed to warmer climates, the botanical studies major spent his Christmas vacation sitting for their plants — more than 500 of them.

For a modest 25 cents per patron, Weaver waters his charges, treats them for bugs and disease and talks to them.

"It means the speaker is paying more attention to them. And besides, the moisture from one's breath is known to be beneficial," he explains.

The pampered plants reside in a laboratory provided rent-free by the school's botany department, which the young horticulturist often floods with song.

"I have found that some plants respond to music. Don't ask me why, but they do," he said, adding that while he may talk to his boarders, he stops short of serenading them himself.

"I let the radio take care of that," Weaver said. "Who knows, with my voice, I could kill off a couple."

Man Accepts Diet Option

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Michael Burns, who weighs in at 400-plus pounds, has been offered a diet option he can't refuse.

His first choice is to lose weight on his own — immediately. His second is six months in the Oakland County Jail, where a judge has promised him he will become "a mere shadow of the man you are."

Burns' problem began in August 1977 when he pleaded guilty to passing $2,169 in phony checks. He was placed on six months probation, ordered to make restitution and pay $600 in court costs and attorney fees.

Since then, however, he has paid only $10 and was hauled into court last week for an accounting. His excuse — he's too fat to get a job.

Burns, a 26-year-old Southfield resident, told Judge Robert L. Templin he has applied for more than 100 jobs without success. He said he is a qualified television-radio repairman but still can't find any takers.

If that fails, the judge said a six-month diet in the Oakland County jail would be his only other recourse.

BIRD CONTROLS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has proposed new regulations intended to keep pet birds from carrying disease into the United States. The proposal would require birds being imported to have a clean bill of health from the country of their origin. It also would require birds to be held in federal quarantine for at least 30 days as a double-check.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions could suddenly start to shift tomorrow, breaking clear of influences that have kept you bottled up for the past couple of days.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Save yourself a heap of frustration tomorrow. Avoid one who doesn't quite fit into your social circle. There are so many interesting people for you to spend your time on.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Trying to stay with old ways of doing things because they're comfortable isn't the answer for you tomorrow. Seek innovative, fresh ideas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Self-doubts could set in when things first appear to be going against you. Don't get discouraged. Last-minute help arrives in the nick of time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Flashes of inspiration will take over tomorrow, giving you just what you need to accomplish your aims. That which you thought to be unobtainable will be yours after all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You won't have to cope with a malcontent too long tomorrow. Urgent, but exciting, events occur to give you your exit. You'll quickly forget your frustrations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Quit grumbling. Get your work done early. There's a fun person who'll pop into your day later, and you'll want to be free to enjoy the activities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Much to your distaste, you could be called upon tomorrow to organize things for others. Once you get rolling, your pride of accomplishment makes you happy.

VIRGO (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The early part of the day may be a bit on the down side, but later things start hopping. Events could occur to brighten your scene.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could revise your game plan tomorrow and take sudden action in a situation where you were having some doubts. The odds are in your favor, so all should go well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) At first you may not realize it but you'll quickly discover you have all the answers at your fingertips.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Opposition might be just what you need to push you to look for unusual ways to find the real bargains.

Adams' Department Has High Profile

By MICHAEL CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams may not be as prominent a cabinet officer, but his department has a profile as high as any in Washington. Automobile recalls are running at flood-tide. Issues ranging from Firestone tires to Ford Pintos touch every consumer. Airbags or other automatic seat belts are no longer a drawing board theory. Consumer safety advocates are not about to give Adams or his department straight A's, half-way through the administration, but they seem to think things are better than they were during the Nixon-Ford years.

"If anything, recalls are the shining light of his administration," said Clarence Ditlow, head of the Center for Auto Safety. He believes Adams has given Joan Claybrook, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, a free hand in that area and backed her up.

An insurance industry source who asked not to be quoted by name, agrees. "They've done an outstanding job on defects. If you do that you really are purging the system for the future by making it clear to the manufacturers that this really can't be allowed and if they do it they're going to be caught up front," he said.

He added that the as far as NHTSA is concerned "the most striking thing is how much wreckage they had to put back together and pick up from the years of indifference in this field. I think they have done a reasonably good job."

The insurance official also rates Adams' move to require airbags or other passive restraints in cars as the secretary's major decision. The insurance industry has been pushing for airbags for years.

Ralph Nader, however, was critical of Adams' airbag decision, saying he gave the industry too many years to install the devices, and made a mistake in requiring them in larger cars first instead of smaller cars. Under Adams' ruling all cars will carry airbags or other automatic restraints by the 1984 model year.

Navy Urges Carter To Approve Huge New Carrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is making an 11th-hour effort to change President Carter's mind on the kind of aircraft carrier he will recommend to Congress, administration sources report.

With Carter's fiscal 1980 defense budget just about ready for Congress, the Navy effort has reached all the way to the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe, where the president flew last week for meetings with French, British and German leaders.

Backed by Pentagon leaders, the Navy earlier recommended construction of an additional Kennedy-class carrier, which it claims would be more "combat capable" than the CVV because it carries more warplanes and a greater variety of them.

A Kennedy-class carrier would cost about $1.7 billion and its backers contend it is worth what one official called its "slight additional cost" over the CVV. Although virtually all final decisions have been made by the president on his new defense budget, administration sources said a last-ditch memo from Adm. Thomas Hayward, chief of naval operations, was forwarded to Carter on Guadeloupe over the weekend urging a change to the Kennedy-class vessel.

Neither of the choices now under consideration would be as expensive as the nuclear-powered carrier that was the Navy's original preference. Congress voted for the nuclear carrier last year, but Carter objected to its potential $2.4 billion cost and vetoed the legislation.

Rebels Control Cambodia

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Cambodia's new government today claimed total control of the nation. Vietnam became the first nation to recognize the regime and the Soviet Union hailed the victory.

Intelligence sources in Bangkok said fighting was reported continuing, but said Vietnam's tough army and its Cambodian supporters have overrun or isolated ed all significant resistance and assured total control of Cambodia. They said heavy fighting was still underway in eastern parts of Cambodia near Vietnam, but there was no indication former Khmer Rouge leaders were able to make good their threat to set up guerrilla bases to battle the Vietnamese "until final victory."

Vietnam became the first nation to recognize the new Cambodian regime that came to power after a 13-day offensive leading to the fall of Phnom Penh.

Chinese Leader Reveals Concessions To Taiwan

PEKING (AP) — Taiwan will be allowed to maintain its security forces and weapons after reunification with the mainland, Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, chief of staff of China's armed forces, said today.

The offer was made during a two-hour meeting with a Senate task force on Pacific military matters headed by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who called it "very important" and said officials of the U.S. Liaison Office told him it was a considerable advance beyond anything said before. Teng told the senators he already had sent what he described as several reasonable messages to Taiwanese leaders, but did not say if he had had a reply. The Peking government offered earlier to negotiate a reunification agreement with Taiwan that would preserve the island's social and economic way of life.

Solons Seek Tough Laws On Sex Abuse

(Continued From Page One) theme that child pornography cannot be separated from sexual abuse of children. "Many of the films show children obviously unwilling to participate, as they may be held down or pushed into action by other children or adults. ... Much of the materials have clear themes of sadomasochism. ... The dominant theme is that sexual abuse of children is enjoyable and socially sanctioned by the sexually liberated members of society," the report said.

Recommendations of the committee included: — Legislation making it a penitentiary offense for doctors and hospitals to fail to report sexual abuse cases. — Requiring owners of adult bookstores, X-rated movie houses, modeling studios and massage parlors to file affidavits of ownership with the attorney general. — Allowing building owners to void leases when their property is used for obscene purposes. — A requirement that persons selling or distributing obscene materials keep confidential records of the names and addresses of persons from whom they obtain their material. The information could be disclosed only to law enforcement officers. — Passage of a law prohibiting open display of sexually explicit material in commercial establishments generally accessible to minors. — Addition to the Texas Penal Code of a new felony offense of aggravated incest. — Prison terms of two to 20 years for persons convicted of incest a second time. — Establishment of a procedure for making background investigations of previous sex offenses. Employers would be required to use this procedure whenever they hire persons whose jobs will include working with children.

Weather

(Continued From Page One) temperatures tonight are expected to drop to the mid 20s. Winds today were expected to be light and variable this afternoon, switching to northerly at 10 to 15 mph tonight. Lubbock temperatures Monday fluctuated between the morning low of 11 degrees, reflecting the lingering effects of last weekend's severe weather, and a high of 30 degrees. The early morning low today was 23 degrees. Frigid weather has been especially prevalent in Amarillo, where at 3 a.m. today an 86-year-old record for the longest period of time with the temperature remaining below 32 degrees was tied. The Panhandle city's prior record of 261 hours was set from Feb. 6 to Feb. 17, 1895.

Conviction Aids City In Sign Code Cases

By SYLVIA TEAGUE, Avalanche-Journal Staff City officials say Monday's conviction of a Lubbock man for violating Lubbock's ban on portable signs further reinforces their intention to strictly enforce the city's sign code.

City planning director Jim Bertram said he hopes Corley's conviction "simply points out we intend to enforce the law against anybody and everybody. ... I hope they (violators) see the law is going to be enforced and obey it without us going through the expensive task of going through Municipal Court and county court," he said. "It would sure save the public a lot of money."

However, Bertram was pessimistic the handful of portable signs still displayed in front of some Lubbock businesses would vanish as a result of Corley's conviction. "I'm certain the solution to that is to get an injunction against people who intentionally violate the law," he said. "Then we'll see what the judge wants to do with those who intentionally violate the law. If and when an injunction is granted, rather than saying to us he (Corley) is not going to obey the law, he'd be saying it to the judge," Bertram said. "Last month suits were filed seeking permanent injunctions against all those still using portable signs, as well as against the sole supplier of the signs in Lubbock. However, no trial date has been set for any of the six injunction suits. "Apparently the fine is not going to be a deterrent and it's going to take an injunction," Bertram said. "When somebody has made up his mind to disobey the law, they're going to go on disobeying the law unless the incentive is high enough."

Meanwhile, the city will continue to file on Corley and other violators "as often as the law allows," he said. Corley's attorney said he was unsure whether the case, appealed from Municipal Court, would be appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin. That will depend on the fine assessed, attorney Bill Wischkaemper said, because the fine must be at least $100 to appeal. Prosecutor Hollis Browning called five witnesses in the case, primarily to identify Corley as the person in charge of the land in front of his restaurant where the sign was located.

Widow's Testimony Jolts Davis' Hopes

(Continued From Page One) entered into evidence Monday also showed that Lucas expected to make "some good money" by testifying. McCrory, a former employee and friend of Davis, testified that Davis tried to hire him to have the judge and numerous other enemies of Davis killed. McCrory is a federally protected witness who has been relocated, given a new name and a monthly stipend.

After Lucas' testimony Dec. 11, Mrs. Weir said she telephoned her from Houston and told her he had said everything he planned to say except that he changed the fictitious date of the meeting with McCrory from winter to summer of last year. She said Lucas asked her to back up his story, but that she refused and Lucas convinced a friend, Joe Espinosa, to do it. "He asked me to come here and say I was with him when he talked to McCrory," Mrs. Weir said. "He thought I'd be a more credible witness (than Espinosa)."

Wilson had told the court earlier that Mrs. Weir was one of several witnesses who feared Lucas and who would not testify unless he was in jail, but Mrs. Lucas was not allowed to answer a question in front of the jury as to whether she feared Lucas. Mrs. Weir said she warned Lucas "That he was very liable to get in a great deal of trouble" if he testified falsely. She also said she had telephoned defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Hayes' office to tell him his information from Lucas "was very incorrect" and made her "very unhappy."

Strike Delayed By Oil Union

DENVER (AP) — The nation's 60,000 oil refinery workers continued to delay their threatened nationwide strike, as union officials awaited Carter Administration reaction to a possible 73-cent-per-hour raise.

The contract dispute is the first major union showdown over President Carter's voluntary wage-price guidelines, which allow for a 7 percent increase in wages and benefits over the life of a contract. A.F. Grosipron, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, confirmed Monday that he had been in touch with officials of Carter's anti-inflation program. He said he sought "an interpretation of how the wage guidelines would be applied to contract settlements within the oil industry. Some of the officials, who Grosipron did not identify, were to meet with Grosipron today in Denver, the union president said. The union leader said Monday the possibility of a nationwide walkout remained "very real." But he said there would be no immediate strike despite the expiration of contracts Sunday night. Most workers were on the job Monday, although oil workers stayed out at Gulf and ARCO refineries in Port Arthur.

The strike was delayed by an offer from Amoco calling for a 73-cent-per-hour raise in the first year and a wage reopener clause the second year. With oil workers currently averaging $8.82 an hour, the 73-cent increase amounts to a 8.3 percent increase. If the union agreed to hold its wage increase to less than 6 percent in the second year, the contract apparently would comply with the 7 percent guideline. Amoco, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana, contended Monday that its workers average $9.34 per hour and certain employees are exempt from the increase. The proposal, Amoco said, would therefore comply with the 7 percent guideline. Grosipron said earlier Monday that the union's oil policy bargaining committee had rejected contract offers from 21 companies, including Gulf, Mobil, Texaco, Conoco and Exxon. He said all of those offers proposed two-year agreements with percentage increases each year. Most offered 7 percent in both years, or 8 percent the first year and 6 percent the second. Union spokesman Jerry Archuleta said the cents-per-hour increase offered by Amoco was more acceptable than the percentage increases because it prevents an increasing gap between higher-paid workers and lower-paid employees.

Supreme Court Strikes Pennsylvania Statute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, over three vigorous dissents, today struck down a Pennsylvania requirement that doctors performing abortions try to bring about a live birth if they think the fetus might survive.

Justice Harry Blackmun, writing for the six-member majority, said the statute is too vague and puts an undue burden on doctors. And, because it carries criminal penalties for violations regardless of fault, he said, it sets "a trap for those who act in good faith" and may have a "chilling effect on the exercise of constitutional rights."

The dissenting opinion by Justice Byron White, joined by Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justice William Rehnquist, complained that the decision "with-draws from the states a substantial measure of the power to protect fetal life" reserved for them in previous high court decisions.

In another opinion today, the court ruled unanimously that a Mississippi teacher's free speech rights were violated when she was dismissed for complaining privately to the principal about the school district's racial policies.

And, over Rehnquist's lone dissent, the tribunal ruled in a Missouri case that it is unconstitutional to automatically exempt women from jury duty at their request.

The abortion case involved a provision in Pennsylvania's 1974 abortion law involving viability, or the stage at which a fetus can live outside the mother.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that states may regulate abortions after viability. But Blackmun's opinion said the Pennsylvania statute's requirement for the doctor to determine whether a fetus "may be viable" was unduly vague and something on which "it is not unlikely that experts will disagree."

Blackmun said the statute's provision for civil and criminal liability "could have a profound chilling effect on the willingness of physicians to perform abortions near the point of viability."

In the Mississippi case, the high court reversed a lower court ruling that the school district acted properly in dismissing Bessie Givhan, a black, on the basis of her complaints to the principal.

Rehnquist, writing the opinion in this case, said there is nothing in the law or the Constitution to indicate freedom of speech "is lost to the public employee who arranges to communicate privately with his employer rather than to spread his views before the public."

In the Missouri case, the court struck down the state's provision allowing automatic exemption of women from jury duty through use of a summons that reads: "Women, if you do not wish to serve, return this summons to the judge."

In other actions, the court:

- Granted a request by the federal government, Arizona, California, Nevada, the city and county of San Diego, Los Angeles, and four water districts to enter a supplemental decree in a quarter-century-old dispute over distribution of Colorado River water to certain users.
- Ruled 5-4 that findings of security law violations in a government suit can be used against Parklane Hosiery Co. officials who are being sued by stockholders for issuing false and misleading proxy statements during a 1974 merger.

housing in the area as contributing to the need for relocation.

The application was one of more than a dozen grants and funds approved by SPAG directors today.

Among the funds was a $468,821 grant to the Lubbock Regional Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center.

Other funding approved included:

- Continuation funds of $292,740 for the Head Start program to serve the communities of Anton, Brownfield, Leveland, Lorenz, McAdoo, Morton, Spur, Three-Way and Whitharal.
- Environmental Protection Agency funds of $50,625 for a feasibility study of resource recovery. The project includes an update of the 1976 Energy Recovery Feasibility Study performed by a consulting firm.
- Federal funds of $8,700 for guidelines to the Land and Water Conservation Fund Program for the City of Wilson.

SPAG also approved Lubbock's application to amend a portion of the 1978-79 Community Development Block Grant Program, calling for a reallocation of resources of $142,919.24 for other eligible activities.

Also approved was $75,156 from Community Service Administration for Central Plains Community Action Program for low-income families; $6,583 for Criminal Justice Division for the City of Plainview for a full-time microfilm employee and $15,747 for a juvenile delinquency prevention officer.

Finally, a grant was approved for $7,000 from Criminal Justice Division for Hale County for the 64th Judicial District Administration Project.

Drug Substitute Law Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration today proposed a model state law that would permit pharmacists to substitute cheaper, generic drugs for the brand-name products usually prescribed by doctors.

A government study estimated that consumers could save up to $400 million a year, or about 5 percent of the average American's $32 drug bill.

It also published, for the first time, a complete list of the 5,000 prescription drugs approved by the Food and Drug Administration as safe and effective. And it proposed to designate 40 percent of them as "medically equivalent" generic drugs that could safely be substituted for more expensive brand-name products.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said that under the model law, "when a doctor writes a prescription for a high-priced brand-name drug, a licensed pharmacist will be able to select, instead, a lower-cost generic product that the Food and Drug Administration has determined is medically equivalent."

About 40 states already have laws permitting or requiring pharmacists to substitute cheaper generic drugs for brand-name products prescribed by a physician.

But advocates of substitution say the laws generally are inadequate, or pharmacists ignore them because they have no incentive to sell cheaper drugs in place of more expensive ones.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, which represents most of the nation's major drug makers, has opposed listing "equivalent" drugs, contending that possible differences could be important.

The administration proposal, drafted by the Federal Trade Commission and the FDA, would give pharmacists the option to substitute but would not require them to do so. The prescribing physician could prevent substitution by writing "medically necessary" or some similar term on the prescription.

The measure also would require that the consumer be informed if a substitution is planned and be given the right to insist that the prescription be dispensed as written, even if the physician did not specify that the brand name was medically necessary.

FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk, appearing at a news conference with Califano, said physicians will continue to prescribe by brand name because "it's easier, it's quicker."

SPAG Chiefs Favor Wheatley Funding

By BOB WILLIAMS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

South Plains Association of Government's board of directors this morning gave favorable comment to the City of Lubbock's application for a $497,000 federal grant for redevelopment of the Phyllis Wheatley addition.

Present plans for the project call for relocation of 85 to 90 families from what city officials term a "blighted area" to standard housing areas of their choice.

The first phase of the project, which officials estimate will require 12 months to complete, includes the relocation of 16 families, two churches and one convenience store.

The city, in its grant application, cited the isolation of the Wheatley addition in East Lubbock, its location between the city cemetery, railroad tracks and grain elevators and dilapidated condition of Burial is under direction of Freeman Funeral Home in Hale Center.

Reese died at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Hi Plains Hospital at Hale Center after a brief illness.

The Athens native had lived in Abernathy for the past two years. He had worked in highway construction and had owned curio shops in Dalhart and Abernathy.

Survivors include his wife, Doris; a son, Weldon of Stratford; two daughters, Mrs. Delois Moeller of Crum and Doris Harris of Nashville, Tenn.; and five grandchildren.

Alanzo Earley
TULIA (Special) — Services for Alanzo William Earley, 66, formerly of Tulia and Kress, are pending with Wallace Funeral Home of Tulia.

Earley died at 2 p.m. Friday in Veterans Hospital in Martinez, Calif., following a lengthy illness.

The Georgetown native was an Army veteran of World War II and a retired farmer. He married Archie M. Callender Aug. 24, 1938, in Duncan, Okla.

He lived in Grand Field, Okla., until June 1978 when he moved to Hamilton Air Force Base because of ill health and

Ousted Teacher Undecided On Action

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Ousted teacher-coach Elton Conger said Monday he was fired on "trumped-up charges," and that the real reasons for his dismissal were racist school officials and a conflict with the superintendent's son.

At an eastside forum, Conger said he has yet to decide whether to appeal his firing by the Lubbock Independent School District. He noted the matter may be taken to the state commissioner of education or the courts.

The forum was conducted by the predominantly black United Political Action League, which may launch its own investigation into the Conger case.

Conger started the school year as an industrial arts teacher at Atkins and Evans junior highs and as the Atkins eighth-grade coach.

Society Plans To Preserve City Heritage

Almost 70 persons braved sub-freezing temperatures and icy streets Monday night to help organize the Lubbock Heritage Society.

The non-profit group, organized with the help of the Junior League, hopes to begin a program to preserve the city's historical structures.

City Planning director Jim Bertram, an at-large member of the society's steering committee, traced the society's roots from a 1969 statement of Lubbock Goals for the 1970s, to its current status as a city council committee with power to recommend zoning protection for historical structures.

He emphasized that Lubbock historians must not try to make Lubbock something it is not. "We are not like San Antonio or some city in the northeast. We will have to develop our past like us, not like someone else," he stressed.

Committee member Maxine Blankenship said the group would attempt to add more Lubbock historical sites to the national historical register, making the sites eligible for matching federal funds.

She said the Lubbock Lake Site was the only city project now receiving matching funds now.

Brainstorming sessions to discuss goals and priorities and give members the opportunity to sign up for specific committees also were included in the lengthy meeting.

School administrators relieved Conger of his coaching duties Oct. 20, charging him with profanity and insubordination. When Conger appealed to the school board, the board fired him.

Conger, who has been without a job since Jan. 1, said the episode has made it difficult for him to find employment elsewhere.

A black who coached at Struggs Junior High until that school was closed for desegregation reasons last summer, Conger said school administrators claimed he was being fired for using profanity, making an obscene gesture and defying orders, particularly a "direct order."

Those are "trumped-up charges," Conger said.

He denied making the obscene gesture. And although he admitted using profanity sometimes, Conger said it was nothing to get fired over. "Everybody coaching is guilty of the same thing," he said.

As for insubordination, Conger said the school district accused him of defying a direct order not to coach the Atkins eighth-grade football team on Oct. 19; the day administrators had a "showdown" with him.

Conger said he coached the team anyway because the athletic director would not put the order in writing and because the so-called "direct order" was passed from the assistant superintendent to the

Outgoing Governor Names Appointees

AUSTIN (UPI) — Outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe has appointed three members to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct and announced appointment of 14 others to the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Briscoe, who leaves office Jan. 16, appointed R.J. Nunley of Sabinal, 6th Court of Civil Appeals Chief Justice William J. Cornelius of Texarkana and 6th Administrative Judicial District Presiding Judge Regis E. Doughty Jr. of Uvalde to the judicial council.

Those appointed to the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped were Alice May Berthelsen of Houston, A.J. Blase of San Antonio, Harry Burgman of Georgetown, Dr. Ollie S. Cauthen of San Angelo, Larry Dane Evans of San Antonio, Robert H. Grider of Odessa, Jesus H. Guevara of Brownsville, Pete Harris of Georgetown, Robert E. Price of Dallas, Shirley K. Price of Hitchcock, Wells R. Rader of Houston, Virginia Roberts of Austin, Irene Weaver of Houston and Dr. William G. Wolfe of Austin.

athletic director to the Atkins principal. When he got the message from the principal, Conger said it was unclear.

"I thought this (the order) was some kind of trick to keep me from going out on the field with my team. Then they could say, 'Well, he walked off his job,'" Conger said.

The true reasons for his dismissal, Conger contends, stem from animosity with the Atkins coaches. Conger said he was

Welfare Queen Pleads Guilty

CHICAGO (UPI) — "Welfare queen" Arlene Otis has been sentenced to four years in prison for stealing $150,000 in welfare funds.

Miss Otis pleaded guilty on her 30th birthday Monday to seven counts of theft and perjury, then cried as Cook County Circuit Judge James M. Bailey sentenced her.

Miss Otis used at least six names to acquire $150,000 of welfare between July 3, 1972, and Feb. 21, 1978.

Miss Otis originally was charged with 63 counts of welfare fraud but several counts were overlapping, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said. Prosecutors called her the state's "welfare queen" because of the many counts placed against her and the amount of money involved.

Miss Otis, a graduate student at the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle, was arrested last May in the Cook County Criminal Court Building.

First Federal Tabs Official

Richard D. Ham has been named assistant vice president of the loan services division of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Lubbock.

He previously served as branch manager of First Savings & Loan Association of Uvalde, as treasurer of Odessa Savings & Loan, and was at one time employed by Gage Van Horn & Associates of Odessa.

Born in Shawnee, Okla., Ham graduated from Odessa High School in 1968. He attended Odessa Junior College and holds a B.B.A. degree from Texas Tech University.

His wife, Janice, is a loan officer at Reese Air Force Base Federal Credit Union. He and his wife and their 11-year-old son, Todd, live at 5610 69th St.

told by a faculty colleague that "the majority of the coaching staff was saying, 'We don't want that nigger over here.' That's why I know it was discrimination."

The animosity was a combination of racial prejudice and conflict over coaching styles, Conger claimed.

He said that in 1974, his Struggs basketball team ran up the score against a Mackenzie Junior High team, and that he refused to apologize to school administrators or Mackenzie for such a shellacking.

Conger said the charges against him were "always my word against somebody else's." Most of the time, that somebody else was David Irons, the superintendent's son who served as assistant eighth-grade coach, Conger said.

Ex-Justice Receives Sentence

A-J Correspondent
LAMESA — Former Dawson County Justice of the Peace Richard Don Nelson was sentenced Monday to serve not less than two years and not more than 2½ years in the state penitentiary for misapplication of public funds.

Nelson, 33, who pleaded guilty to the charge in November, had been accused of pocketing money from traffic ticket fines in 10 separate incidents during 1977-1978.

"Who is going to believe me versus the superintendent's son?" Conger asked.

He said there is a "double standard" in handling Lubbock school personnel matters. Young Irons, for instance, "instructed 35 kids to kick another kid" who had dropped a pass during football practice, but was never subject to disciplinary action, Conger said.

Conger said David Irons may have been out to get him because young Irons "would have gotten the eighth-grade coaching job if they had not closed Struggs."

Conger said he tried to cooperate with school officials before he was fired. "There wasn't any way left for me to improve. Anything he (the head coach) told me to do, I did it."

Judge George H. Hansard Jr. of the 106th District Court handed down the sentence.

Nelson, who had been justice of the peace here for the past 3½ years, had been suspended from office without pay by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct in July.

The suspension came after a Dawson County grand jury had indicted Nelson on one count of misapplication of public funds.

Bradshaw Named MVP; Campbell Close Second

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, who quarterbacked the Pittsburgh Steelers to the National Football League's best record during the regular season and into the Super Bowl, was named The Associated Press' Most Valuable Player today.

Bradshaw, who led the American Conference in passing and the league in touchdowns with a career-high 28, edged rookie running back Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers 36 votes to 35 in nationwide balloting by 84 sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL city. Jim Zorn, the left-handed quarterback of the Seattle Seahawks, was a distant third in the balloting with six votes, followed by Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach with four. No other player received more than one vote.

"Terry's play and statistics speak for themselves. Both were outstanding," said Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "He is deserving of any award. The players voted him MVP for two successive seasons and now this honor proves what a great player he is."

And Dick Hoak, Pittsburgh's backfield coach, added: "Terry has always been an underrated football player. He's big, he's strong, he throws as well as anyone, he can run with anyone and he has matured to become an outstanding quarterback."

Bradshaw, an AP College Division All-American as a senior at Louisiana Tech and the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice in 1970, completed 207 of 368 passes for 2,915 yards, a league-high 7.92 yards per pass as the Steelers compiled a regular-season 14-2 record en route to the AFC's Central Division title.

Most notable, perhaps, was the absence of injuries which had plagued Bradshaw in past seasons, and the presence of a consistency which had been missing much of that time.

Despite being blessed with a corps of receivers including Lynn Swann, John Stallworth and Randy Grossman, Bradshaw was relatively sparing in his passing.

Tech Stomps TCU

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

FORT WORTH — For a while, Gerald Myers was concerned about his Raiders having a letdown after that emotional upset win over Texas last Saturday. And, there were those dunk shots his troops kept missing.

Every time the Raiders would miss one of those high-percentage shots, Myers would squirm on the bench. But, as they would miss, they would follow with a play to overcome it.

And the Raiders here Monday night had more scores than misses in rolling to a 99-75 triumph over TCU.

The win shoved Tech's Southwest Conference record to 2-0 and its season mark to 10-2. The loss was TCU's second in conference.

And, according to TCU coach Tim Somerville, "Tech has to be one of the favorites to win the conference championship now."

"Why are they better than last year? Better players. They have some young guys, but they're not a young, inexperienced group. Their guys have some experience, even though some of them are young."

"I was worried about the game, after that win over Texas. There had to be a letdown. And our fouls kept them going in the first half. Finally, our zone defense there in the second half was better than our man-to-man defense, and it created some rebounds and chances to get us running."

The Raiders ran, but they also scored their second highest total of the season. The subs furnished three-fourths of the double-digit scoring punch, as Ben Hill and David Little scored 17 each, and Joe Baxter, from nearby Richardson Pearce getting 16 more.

The only starter in double figures was Ralph Brewster with 16 points.

It was a hot-shooting effort for the Raiders, who hit 57 percent in the first half, and 52 percent for the game.

"Hill and (starter) Ralph McPherson both played well, so did Brewster," said Tech coach Myers. "But, TCU played well. We had a hard time covering them early."

Tech jumped away to a 31-17 lead, but free shots allowed the Frogs to climb back in it, cutting the gap to 31-22.

With the score standing 36-31 and meager crowd jumping to the aid of the Frogs, the two teams went on a shooting exhibition; each side hitting for a consecutive streak of seven shots.

But, finally, TCU missed, and Tech connected twice in a row for a 46-37 half-time lead.

Then, starting the second half, it was a repeat of the Texas game when the Raiders came out hot.

In the first 8 minutes of the last half, Tech outscored the hosts 24-10, and it was all over.

It was Little who figured in that surge, as the freshman from Abilene hit 13 of the points.

After TCU got the last half's first bucket, Brewster scored, then got the rebound off the next TCU shot. Little scored off of it for Tech, and then Kent Williams fed Brewster wheeling toward the goal for a layup and a 52-39 lead with 17:42 left.

Tech was in the zone defense and getting the rebounds it needed to run. After a pair of free shots by freshman forward Mark Nickens, Little connected, answered by a bucket by another freshman, Terry Tibbs. But McPherson followed with a tipin, and Little scored on a follow whop.

Before TCU could get a shot away, Tech stole the ball, and guard Geoff Huston fed Little for a layup. He was fouled, hit the free shot, and Tech was up 61-43 with 14:19 to play.

Little hit two more shots for Tech. Brewster made a layup on a four-on-one break, and Tommy Parks, who played high school ball here at nearby Poly, connected on a 3-pointer following a steal for the 70-47 advantage with 11:39 remaining.

"Those dunks?" commented Myers.

Title IX Slammed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "An illegal power grab by the federal government...calculated ambiguity...a quantum leap in federal control over higher education...stupid..."

University presidents, lawyers, professors and athletic directors gathered Monday at the NCAA convention to discuss Title IX and what affect it will have on college athletics.

And any sports fan who's having trouble figuring out what all the complicated legal mumbo-jumbo means would have found himself in good company. The university presidents, athletic directors, professors and lawyers weren't sure themselves.

But they were unanimous on one key point — Title IX, federal legislation prohibiting discrimination against women in college athletics, will be a disaster if football and basketball, the sports that make most programs self-reliant, are not exempt from strict per capita expenditure enforcement.

Many delegates also questioned the legality of the legislation, as well as its wisdom.

"Title IX is for real," said Bud Davis, president of the University of New Mexico who spent several weeks in Washington studying the guidelines with officials of the department of Health, Education and Welfare who wrote them. "It will involve massive sums of money at a time of fiscal exigencies in higher education, and the financial base of a major collegiate activity may be in jeopardy."

Davis and Philip B. Brown, an NCAA attorney, addressed more than 1,000 worried convention delegates on Title IX compliance requirements.

Cowboy White Has Broken Thumb

DALLAS (AP) — The "Manster" got a few battle wounds himself in the Dallas Cowboys' National Football Conference title victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White, who teammates claim is half-man and half-monster because of his incredible strength, suffered a broken left thumb in the bruising 28-0 victory Sunday, but Cowboys doctors didn't find out about it until Monday.

White was an intimidating force in the contest, knocking Rams quarterback Pat Haden out of the game with a broken right thumb and inflicting a separated shoulder on running back John Cappelletti. Both were clean tackles.

Running back Tony Dorsett reported a sprained foot, fullback Scott Laidlaw had a bruised hand, defensive end Harvey Martin had a bruised leg, and guard Herb Scott had a hyperextended elbow.

Stanford Coach To 49ers?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stanford head football coach Bill Walsh says he's "trying to make some decisions," but his school has called a news conference for today that reportedly will pave the way for his hiring by the beleaguered San Francisco 49ers.

Walsh, 46, is expected to be named to replace fired 49ers coach Fred O'Connor. O'Connor lost his job Monday, along with general manager Joe Thomas, after 49ers owner Eddie J. DeBartolo Jr. announced he was unhappy with "our total operation."

Contacted at his home after DeBartolo's long-expected announcement, Walsh wouldn't comment on reports he'd been tapped to return to pro football as new head coach of the 49ers.

"I'm in a position where I'm trying to make some decisions...It's a rather sensitive time," Walsh said.

But minutes later, Stanford Athletic Director Andy Geiger called a news conference, reportedly to announce that Walsh has been released from his contract with the university.

O'Brien Mum On Reasons For Quitting

DALLAS (AP) — Danny O'Brien won't say why he quit as the general manager of the American League Texas Rangers, but admits his role with the team diminished in recent years.

O'Brien, who announced his resignation Monday after serving as general manager of the baseball team for five years, ruled out taking a better job as one possible reason for his leaving.

"There's nothing on the immediate horizon in sports. I hope my phone will start ringing," he said.

Aggies Take Advantage Of Baylor

By The Associated Press

Eleventh-ranked Texas A&M waltzed to an easy win over Baylor in the Aggies' Southwest Conference basketball opener in College Station, but they may not be looking forward to their next meeting with the Baptists.

In Monday night's game Texas A&M took advantage of a hometown crowd and the absence of Baylor's star guard Vinnie Johnson, who was in New York attending the funeral for his mother.

But their next meeting will be in Waco, and by that time Johnson should be warmed up — and maybe bent on revenge for what the Aggies did to his team when he was not around to help.

"We just don't have any penetration without Vinnie," admitted Coach Jim Haller, whose Bears are 1-1 in SWC play and 7-5 overall. "I don't know what difference he would have made in the game, but most teams won't spread their defenses when Johnson is in there."

In other Southwest Conference games Monday night Texas Tech beat Texas Christian, 99-75; Rice held off Southern Methodist, 78-76; and Texas easily beat Houston, 75-57.

Texas Tech's win staked the Red Raiders to an early 2-0 lead in the SWC race with wins over defending NIT champion Texas and Texas Christian.

Cowboy Win Prompts Shooting

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Police said Jay Valentine apparently couldn't stand the idea of losing his bet on the Los Angeles Rams-Dallas Cowboys football game.

Valentine, 27, reportedly bet a neighbor, Earl Ray, $600 Sunday, picking the Rams to beat the Cowboys in the NFC championship game.

When it became clear the Rams would lose the game and Valentine would lose his money, police said, he went to Ray's apartment and shot him in the face as he looked through a peep hole in his door.

Valentine then returned to his apartment, officers said, and shot himself.

Ray, 33, who suffered a critical wound in his neck, managed to drive himself to California Hospital and died after the shooting. He was listed in stable condition Monday.

Valentine, meanwhile, was pronounced dead at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital.

Rice Takes Baseball Money Crown

BOSTON (AP) — American League MVP Jim Rice is baseball's newest instant millionaire, and the Boston Red Sox are bracing for a new wave of salary demands from their other high-priced stars.

Rice, the 25-year-old outfielder whose slugging dominated baseball last season, agreed to a new seven-year contract Monday calling for more than $5 million.

Rice's annual salary of more than $700,000 doesn't make him the highest paid player in baseball, but bumped him from the rank-and-file — at about $125,000 a year — to the stratosphere of baseball salaries.

"I guess every player wants to be the richest in pro baseball," said Rice at a news conference at Fenway Park. "I don't worry about what other players make. I just want to be an every day ball player."

Rice led the major leagues in home runs with 46 and RBI with 139 while batting .315 last season. He was under contract for 1979 and his option season of 1980. Sullivan, thus, effectively renegotiated Rice's pact and extended it through the 1985 season.

Another USC Hurler Up For Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The University of Southern California, the major league's least expensive farm team, offered another top prospect to the pros today at baseball's 14th annual winter draft of free agent amateur talent.

Bill Bordley, a fireballing left-hander, is the latest in a long line of Trojan pitchers to be coveted by the major leagues, proving that former Southern Cal quarterbacks like Pat Haden aren't the only Trojan throwers to have pro ability.

The big league pitchers who would claim "Fight on for USC" as their favorite college song would form a respectable pitching staff — Tom Seaver, Jim Barr, Steve Busby, Bill Lee, Pete Reffers and Tom House.

A supporting cast of ex-Southern Cal non-pitchers would feature outfielders Steve Kemp, Fred Lynn, Dave Kingman and infielders Ron Fairly, Rich Dauer, Roy Smalley and Gary Sutherland.

"Bill's an outstanding major league prospect," said Rod Dedeaux, longtime successful baseball coach at Southern Cal. "At the end of his sophomore year, he was at least even or ahead of any pitcher I've had, including Tom Seaver."

"I've never had anyone who had better natural stuff."

NTSU Coach Moore's Goals Modest

DALLAS (AP) — You will get no rash predictions from Jerry Moore.

He says he will let the politicians lobby for North Texas State University and just try to do his bit on the football field where he is the major independent's new head football coach.

"My biggest goal is to not hit a player the first year," laughs Moore, the former offensive coordinator at Nebraska.

Asked if he shared former NTSU Coach Hayden Fry's goal of getting the Mean Green into the Southwest Conference, Moore says "Whether North Texas gets in is something I have no control over. We have to play well and draw well. My job is to see that we play as well as we can."

Slaton Duo On AA
AA All-South Plains

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Nobody would have blamed Slaton coach Ed Cook if he had turned around and walked (make that run) away after the first day of summer practice this August.

After all, he had only one starter back from the previous year's squad and the District 5-AA race looked to be even tougher than before with Tahoka returning a crew of stars and Class AAA Seminole dropping down a classification.

But he stuck it out and it's a good thing. His Tigers made the regional championship game in spite of its lack of experience.

A comeback like that can be attributed almost entirely to one thing — coaching. And because of that Cook is the 1978 Avalanche-Journal South Plains coach of the year.

It's not incidental that that one returning starter was Ricky Davis, the South Plains player of the year.

"Golly, starting out with 21 new players, well, you can imagine what I thought," Cook said. "I didn't really think our youngsters would come along like they did. It's a credit to them that they did."

Slaton opened the year by winning two of its three pre-district games. But the disbelievers nodded knowingly when the Tigers dropped their first district game, 19-6 to unheralded Frenship.

They shouldn't have. Frenship went on to also beat Tahoka and gain a share of a four-way tie for the district crown. A tie that sent Slaton to the playoffs by virtue of a card draw.

"I thought really our biggest ball game was with Frenship," Cook said. "When we lost that one the kids' attitude really changed."

"When we realized we could be out of it things perked up," he said. After that Slaton won five straight until losing 7-3 to Tahoka in the last game of the regular season.

Davis played both quarterback and safety for the Tigers and also handled the punting chores but was picked to the team as a defensive back.

He was an honorable mention at quarterback where he scored 15 touchdowns, rushed for 1,050 yards and passed for another 365 yards. That rushing total, by the way, averages out to 7.34 yards each of the 143 times he ran.

Defensively, he made 60 unassisted tackles from his safety spot and intercepted five passes.

Tabbed in the offensive backfield were Muleshoe's Mike Northcutt at quarterback and Jeep Shanks and runningback. They were two of the six Muleshoe selected to the first team on either offense or defense.

They were joined by Tahoka running-back Jerry Hatchett and Idalou's powerful Ricky Hobbs. Astonishingly absent was Hatchett's teammate Clifford Bailey, South Plains player of the year last year as a junior.

Bailey gained only 937 yards this season, playing only seven games. But that was enough to raise his career total of 4,485 over three years, an average of 160 yards a game.

Hatchett more than ably picked up the slack for his injured mate, gaining 1,400 yards on 180 carries and scoring seven times. He was also picked a first-team defensive back (one of four two-way honors for picking off 10 passes and making 80 tackles, 25 of them unassisted).

Hobbs, a stocky fullback who led Idalou to the District 4-AA championship, gained 1,001 yards on 212 carries, scoring nine times.

Northcutt, one of only four underclassmen picked to the team, was a versatile quarterback for Muleshoe, gaining 1,253 yards total offense. He picked up the majority (779) on the ground but also threw for 474 yards and seven touchdowns. He ran for nine.

Put him in the same backfield as Shanks and you've got some offensive firepower. Shanks gained 1,123 yards in the ground and scored 11 times.

At end for Muleshoe was Dickey Sudduth. In addition to being a fine blocker, he caught 10 of Northcutt's 34 completed passes for 152 yards and scored five of the Mules' seven aerial touchdowns.

Besides Hatchett, the three two-way starters are all on the line. Denver City placed Kenneth Harvey, Slaton had Billy Jack Haire and Littlefield Richard Soria.

Ex-Navy Coach Hardin Pleased With Pupils

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

In the Dallas Cowboys' first National Football League playoff game against the Atlanta Falcons, quarterback Roger Staubach took a jarring shot from Falcons linebacker Robert Pennywell, and the lights went out.

When Roger was slapped on the cheek a few times, he recovered his senses and looked up blankly at the trainers and teammates hovering over him.

"Where's Wayne Hardin?" he asked.

"Hardin? Hardin? What do you mean Hardin?" his helpers inquired.

"Excuse me," the quarterback apologized. "I thought I was still at Navy."

That's the way the story was told afterward, Roger attesting to it good-humoredly, with a few justifiable liberties in the gridiron colloquy.

Out in San Francisco where he is attending the NCAA convention, Hardin, Staubach's old coach at Navy and now head man at Temple, couldn't restrain a belly laugh when he heard announcers Pat Summerall and Tom Brookshier refer to the incident in Sunday's broadcast of the Dallas-Los Angeles conference championship.

"That Roger, he always has had a glass jaw," Hardin recalled. "He was always getting knocked out while at Navy. Every time I turned around, it seemed, I was standing over him and trying to revive him."

Hardin, who was Army's nemesis in his coaching tenure at the Naval Academy from 1959 through 1964, is deriving personal satisfaction from the resounding pro success his former pupil.

On Jan. 21 in Miami, the scrambling field general will be attempting to lead the Cowboys to an unprecedented third championship against the tough Pittsburgh Steelers in Super Bowl XIII.

Wayne Hardin and Roger Staubach in Navy days

"I am proud of Roger, naturally, he is a fine quarterback and a greater person," Hardin said, "but I don't root for teams, I root for the kids. Two other of my former players are in the Super Bowl — tight end Randy Grossman with the Steelers and guard Jim Cooper with the Cowboys, both out of Temple. I am neutral."

Hardin, who beat Army five straight before losing his final game at Annapolis in 1964, said as an undergraduate Staubach was strictly a take-charge guy, intelligent and blessed with extraordinary instincts.

"I always said that while most of us have five senses, Roger has a sixth sense," he said. "It is a sense that makes everything come out right. He has a faculty for feeling in advance when guys are bearing down on him from behind. Otherwise, he'd be a basket case by now."

The former Navy coach acknowledged that Staubach's scrambling proclivities put gray in his hair and activated his ulcers.

"Sometimes he would scramble 30 and 40 yards behind the line of scrimmage," he recalled. "Once in a game against Michigan we had the ball on the Michigan 10. I looked up and there was Roger backing up past midfield. I closed my eyes. When I opened them, I saw him upended, legs flying and releasing the ball in mid-air, steam.

"He completed the pass to Pat Donnelly and the play gained five yards."

"Afterward, newsmen asked Roger and me how we could be sure that kind of gamble would turn out all right. Roger answered, 'No problem. That was my Hail Mary play.'"

Hardin said, except for his fragile jaw, Staubach had a remarkable sense of self-preservation.

"He's a 36-year-old man in a 21-year-old body," the Temple coach added. "The only time I remember his being seriously hurt was in the opening game of his senior year against Penn State. He got trapped. Two big Penn State guys fell on him and crushed his legs.

He played off-and-on that year. It kept him from winning a second Heisman Trophy."

Hardin remembers Staubach as a born leader, with supreme confidence.

"When he was a freshman, we took pictures of the pipe squad," the coach said. "Afterward, Roger came up to me and said, 'Okay, coach, here's your lineup for next year.' He was 1147 wrong."

Unheralded Vanderbilt Upsets No. 5 LSU

By The Associated Press

Mike Rhodes couldn't believe it and Wayne Dobbs couldn't describe it.

Those are the kind of reactions you get after upsetting Louisiana State's fifth-ranked basketball team.

The surprising Vanderbilt Commodores, unlikely contenders to the crown in the Southeastern Conference, moved into first place with an 88-87 victory over the tough Tigers Monday night, prompting this remark from Rhodes, Vandy's high scorer with 24 points:

"I can't believe we really won it, and I also can't believe how good it feels."

Two of Rhodes' points came at a most opportune time — a pair of free throws with 42 seconds left that provided the underdogs with their winning edge.

"Everybody on our team gave an all-out effort and we had a well-conceived game plan," noted Rhodes. "Sometimes when you take crazy shots like I did sometimes tonight, everything works out. But I still can't believe it."

Dobbs, the Vanderbilt coach, meanwhile called the victory "the biggest moment in my life."

"Words could never describe my feeling tonight," he said. "We deserved to beat them. We paid the price. We deserve to be on top of the SEC tonight."

That was made possible by Tennessee's 72-62 loss to Mississippi State Monday night. The Commodores, now 3-0 in the conference and 10-1 overall, were picked no better than eighth in the 10-team league in the preseason poll of coaches. LSU, by the way, lost its first game of the season after 10 victories.

Another Top Twenty team was upset Monday night when No. 19 Long Beach

State lost to Loyola of Chicago 95-86.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2 Notre Dame rolled past Davidson 95-63. No. 6 UCLA beat Oregon 74-71. No. 11 Texas AM stopped Baylor 77-64. No. 12 Louisville crushed Marshall 112-64. No. 17 Kentucky defeated Mississippi 90-64 and No. 20 Syracuse whipped American University 103-73.

Vanderbilt and LSU were no more than six points apart the entire game until Rhodes helped his team secure the victory in the late stages. LSU's DeWayne Scales led all scorers with 30 points while Al Green had 29 for the Tigers.

Larry Knight scored 31 points as Loyola of Chicago handed Long Beach State its third straight loss. The 49ers were beaten by Duke and North Carolina State in Raleigh, N.C., over the weekend.

Bruce Flowers scored 15 points and Stan Wilcox added 14 to power Notre Dame past Davidson, the Fighting Irish's seventh victory in eight games this year.

"I was very impressed," said Davidson Coach Eddie Biedenbach. "They play like men and go about their business,

USDA Withholds Test Results

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has ruled against making public the results of a bacon-testing program aimed at finding out how much of a suspected cancer-causing substance may be reaching consumers.

Last month the department tentatively denied requests by The Associated Press and others for the test information, pending a final decision by agency legal experts.

The final decision to withhold the test information was based in part on a section of the Freedom of Information Act that allows certain exemptions of investigatory records, officials said.

Refusal by the department to disclose the information — referred to as "presumptive" data because subsequent testing might not yield the same results as the initial findings — was in line with a request by a meat industry group to keep it secret.

Nationwide testing began Dec. 4 to examine the levels of nitrosamines produced by bacon when it is fried. Nitrosamines can form from sodium nitrite, a chemical commonly used in processing bacon.

A recent USDA report said nitrosamines produced by high-heat frying of bacon "are considered to be carcinogenic since laboratory animals administered these same compounds develop cancer" and that "it is assumed that these same compounds could cause cancer at some body sites in humans."

The department's Food Quality and Safety Service, which handles the testing program, said "release of the data could be misleading and result in erroneous conclusions" about bacon and the formation of nitrosamines.

Sarah A. Templin, the agency's deputy coordinator for freedom of information, said in a letter to the AP: "We do not believe that release of the records at this time would be in the best interests of the public."

Also, she said, the information requested qualifies for "exemption from mandatory disclosure" under the Freedom of Information Act's section that "protects this type of investigatory record" from premature release, which could "interfere with the law enforcement efforts in prospect."

Agriculture Department Book Weighs Rural Life Pros, Cons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember, city dwellers, the hogs have to be fed and the cows milked in the dark cold of a January morning just as they do on a flower-scented summer's dawn.

If you can accept that — or scale down your dream a bit — then rural living may be just the thing.

It's all described, the good and the bad, in an Agriculture Department yearbook published today.

The 472-page hardback volume, "Living on a Few Acres," romanticizes rural living a bit but also throws some hard punches at the dreams of would-be small farmers who want to escape the congestion and pollution of cities.

The foreword notes it is mainly for people who do not have to depend on farming for a living and who already "have a job in town or live on a pension or some other source of income."

This year's price is $7 a volume, up from $6.50 for the previous edition, which was about home gardening. Copies can be ordered from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

However, free copies can be obtained from members of Congress, who get a total of 233,450 copies at taxpayer expense for distribution to constituents.

Early in the new yearbook, the pros and cons of leaving the city for the coun-

The American Meat Institute, which represents meat processors and others in the trade, had asked the department to deny public access to the test results.

Testing began last month to enforce stricter federal rules aimed at reducing the amount of sodium nitrite and sodium nitrate in the processing of bacon.

Institute leaders objected to the new regulations on grounds they did not have the opportunity to comment on parts of the rules that allow substituted bacon to be held off the market. It also contends that proper procedures were not followed in putting the regulations into effect.

comparing with that you've picked yourself at the peak of perfection and have on the dinner table 20 minutes later," the book said.

Some families may plan to raise poultry and livestock to supplement their food supply.

"Remember, too, that eating pork chops from the pet hog that grew up in the backyard can make an awkward situation for some at the dinner table," the yearbook said.

—Air pollution may be less or different in the country, but it is not eliminated. Instead of industrial smoke and car fumes, there can be animal waste odors, crop and weed pollens, and a problem with dust storms in some areas.

—There is room for more outdoor recreation, such as a larger lawn which "is going to take more time and care" than a small city plot, "thus leaving less time for recreation."

—Marital problems may develop. "In fact, one young wife said that part of the rationale her husband had used to move was that he would no longer have to spend every weekend hunting and fishing. It never occurred to her that now he would want to hunt and fish every evening."

—Food raised yourself may be better and less expensive but not always, and fruits and vegetables seldom look like those shown on seed packets.

"On the other hand, you'll never purchase sweet corn in the city market that rotates as steadily to weaver and soybean advocates.
