

Quake prediction becoming more successful

By ROBERT LOCKE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Strange things were happening near a Chinese city called Sung Pan. Tiny earthquakes came in swarms and larger jolts sometimes shook the earth. The ground tilted. Water tasted funny, springs went dry and natural gas gurgled up through wells. Peach trees bloomed not once but twice and the bamboo withered. Rats climbed telephone poles, pigs tried to break out of their pens and the birds left. Scientists in Szechwan Province said an earthquake was coming — a big one. Several million people were ordered to evacuate endangered buildings and emergency centers were established. Then, as promised, the earth moved. A major earthquake hit the area on Aug. 16, 1976. Two more warnings were issued, and the village shook twice more. There were few casualties. "They were right on the button," Robert Wallace, chief scientist at the U.S. Geological Survey's National Center for Earthquake Research here, said of the Chinese predictions. Other efforts at quake prediction — including some in the United States — are beginning to show results. A University of Texas team had predicted a quake would shake Mexico City, but not when. Last week it came. The Russians had foretold the quake that hit Central Asia on Nov. 2. But Wallace, who led a delegation of American researchers to China earlier this year, said his Chinese counterparts have the most successful earthquake prediction program in the world.

The largest portion of the American effort is centered in Southern California, where most experts say a devastating quake is inevitable along the deadly San Andreas Fault which produced the great San Francisco earthquake of 1906. Scientists say a quake that large along the fault's southern leg could kill more than 12,000 people in the densely populated Los Angeles area. Americans have predicted a few modest quakes in California, New York and South Carolina. And the University of Texas researchers foresaw not only the location but also the size of last Wednesday's temblor in Mexico City. However Dr. Tosimatu Matumoto said his group's study, published a

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

This is the time of the year of the habitual procrastinators, those who can't decide what to give whom on Christmas.

No one, surely, wants to disappoint the children, who may expect the old stocking to be stuffed full. (If kids still put up stockings along the fireplace mantle, that is. But how many are so lucky as to have a log-burning fireplace?)

And grown-ups, too, look forward for the seasonal thrill of tearing open cheerfully wrapped gifts.

Don't disappoint them, for you yourself may be counted among the disappointed.

Of course, one of the better ways of getting ideal gifts for those special ones is by ordering through the catalogues, especially the specialty ones. The problem, though, is getting around to selecting something ahead of time, then hoping you've got the money and praying that the goods arrive on schedule in this season of the postal lags.

If something fouls up along the way, you can always explain the embarrassing circumstance with "It's in the mail." Everybody will understand.

Gift wrapping? It's the thought that counts, claims the cliché, but how the thought is represented seems important. (Just nose around and see how many gifts are returned or are never used, worn or appreciated.)

Important, too, is the time consumed by the wrapping of gifts.

Put that off, and you'll have some more gremlins trying to gnaw at the Christmas spirit. Suitable wrapping always becomes harder to obtain the nearer Christmas gets.

The free exercise of Westernized Christmas is a boom to commercialism.

Maybe that's all right, since, by and large, the Christian world does not object to the secularism that has merged with the religious holiday.

The choice is yours, fellow put-it-offers, to shop and wrap now or to cram shop wrap like some college sorts do on the eve of the big exams. Good shopping.

Injured cook freed after 11 hours; Six others dead

By ESTES THOMPSON

SHIPMAN, Va. (AP) — Ned Haynes, a cook pinned beneath a stove for 11 hours in a derailed Southern Crescent luxury liner, endured the pain of broken bones and burns as workers struggled to free him from the splintered, tangled wreckage where six persons died.

"He was in tremendous pain, but never cried out. Haynes is very brave," said Capt. Kimball Glass of the Lynchburg Rescue Squad.

The Southern Railway train, bound from Atlanta to Washington, jumped its tracks at Elma, an abandoned Nelson County rail stop in mountainous central Virginia, about 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

Seven cars and three locomotives lay scattered like kindling in and around a shallow ravine beside the track. Only the lead locomotive, which broke away, and the last car remained untouched.

National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Bob Buckhorn said an investigating team was sent to the scene to look for the probable cause of the derailment.

Rescue workers arrived on the scene about 6:10 a.m. Help poured in throughout the day down the one-lane, unused rail bed that served as a road to the isolated wreck scene.

The 37-year-old Haynes became the focus of attention for about 125 rescuers after some 60 other passengers and crew were taken to hospitals in Lynchburg and Charlottesville.

"We fed him morphine with glucose to try to keep the pain down," Glass said. "He understood what we were doing. He asked us to pray for him and we all prayed for him. We talked to him and joked some with him."

As medical technicians and a doctor huddled in the dining car kitchen with Haynes, workers used bulldozers, cables and cutters to strip the stainless steel siding off the car so they could pull out the toppled stove that trapped Haynes.

"We used up 15 razor-type discs cutting the car," Glass said. "As far as damage is concerned and the problems of getting a man out, this is the worst I've seen."

Another cook lay dead in the compartment with Haynes, Glass said, and was removed several hours before Haynes was brought out about 4:30 p.m.

"We had to get the dead man out," he said. "Him seeing this man there with massive head injuries would have had some effect on him."

Haynes, who suffered burns and multiple fractures, and five other survivors were listed in critical condition at the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville. Twelve others were in satisfactory condition.

Cleanup operations continued today. Southern Railway crews and a private contractor worked with cranes and bulldozers to clear the single-track section of the railroad's main line.

The railroad said the train carried 75 passengers and 15 crewmen.

Hospital spokesman Bill Fishback identified the dead as Howard Lewis Jackson, 59, of Alexandria, Va., a flagman; Lewis Price of Atlanta, a cook; Jackson Homer Hume and Edith Carol Hume, both from Madison Heights, Va.; and Edward Franklin Shaw, 14, of Wilmington, Del.

Authorities withheld the identity of the sixth body, wedged under the wheel of a railroad car and the last to be removed from the scene about 10:40 p.m., pending notification of relatives.

Three-proposition bond package considered by Ector County voters

ODESSA — Ector County voters will decide a $21.6 million, three-proposition bond package at the polls on Tuesday. It will be the sixth bond election in Odessa in the past 10 years.

Proposition 1 would provide for extensive renovation of most district schools and construction of 63 classroom additions at a cost of $8.7 million.

Proposition 2 is a $9.29-million proposal to construct two elementary schools and a junior high school.

Proposition 3 calls for construction of a new football stadium using $3.5 million in bond election funds and $1.2 million from the school district's reserve.

A referendum item at the bottom of the ballot asks voters to choose a site for the stadium from two possible locations.

Each item will pass or fail independently. If all three pass, the tax rate will increase a total of 14 cents, according to city officials.

That means the owner of a $30,000 home would see his annual tax bill go up $31.50. Property owners currently pay $1.185 per $100 of property value, assessed at 75 percent of its true market value.

If only Proposition 1 passes, the tax rate increase would be 5.7 cents and would mean higher tax bills of $12.83 for the $30,000 homeowner. Voter approval of only Proposition 2 would cause tax bills to go up $13.50 for that homeowner.

Proposition 3, concerning construction of a new football stadium, would increase the owner's tax bill by $5.17, with a tax rate of 2.3 cents.

A fairly high voter turnout is predicted for this bond election by Charles Walker, superintendent of business. Absentee voting closed Friday and absentee votes totaled 1,241, considered high for such elections, said Walker.

Of the past five bond elections, Ector voters said "no" to three of them. Voters also have rejected the proposal for a new stadium three times — in 1971, 1973 and 1977.

Supporting the bond election has been United for Odessa, a group of business and civic leaders.

On the opposite side of the coin is a group called Concerned Taxpayers of Odessa.

School trustees have said the items on the ballot will meet "critical and real needs."

Al Parker, Concerned Taxpayers treasurer, has charged that the only problem with the school district is mismanagement by school administrators.

Cultists named on warrants, agent reveals

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI said today it has arrest warrants for four U.S. fugitives who are believed to have fled to Guyana and who may have been members of the Peoples Temple commune.

The existence of the warrants was revealed Sunday at a Kennedy Airport news conference by FBI Special Agent Lee Laster while awaiting the arrival of a group of cult survivors. Laster declined to reveal then what the charges were or who was named, but the timing and site of the announcement implied he was talking about commune members.

He also would not say whether the warrants named those aboard a flatbed truck that carried the killers of Rep. Leo J. Ryan and four other Americans near the commune at Jonestown.

Terry Knowles, Laster's assistant at the FBI's Queens office, said today that Laster had been referring to outstanding fugitive warrants for criminal activities predating and not related to Ryan's slaying.

Knowles said it has not been established whether the men sought were members of the Peoples Temple commune, but added: "It could well turn out to be that way."

Ryan was killed at an airstrip while boarding a plane after visiting the commune to investigate allegations of mistreatment and coercion of members.

Knowles said today that the federal warrants were for flight from prosecution. They named: Albert Louis Bradford, charged with rape, site not disclosed; Herman Benjamin Ferguson, conspiracy to commit murder in New York state; Claude Elvin Hubert, charged with murder in Los Angeles; and David Hill, charged with fraud, site not disclosed.

Knowles also could not say whether the FBI would be making any arrests in connection with Ryan's slaying.

It was not known whether the people named in the warrants were thought to be alive, or dead in the murder-suicide ritual that claimed more than 900 lives at Jonestown after the Ryan deaths.

Two American cult members — Larry Layton and Charles Beikman — already face murder charges in the Ryan shootings and Peoples Temple mass deaths and are being held in Guyana.

The FBI is investigating the assassination of Ryan, who went to the cult's jungle compound at Jonestown to investigate allegations of brutality toward cult members.

Some 80 persons survived the mass suicide ordered by cult leader Jim Jones; 24 have returned to the United States.

Sunday's flight from Guyana was delayed when the Pan American pilot refused for security reasons to let 18 Peoples Temple men board the plane.

Several of the men scheduled to board the plane were reputed to be Jones' bodyguards or members of the Jonestown security force.

Thirty-two survivors — 19 men, 12 women and one child — had been scheduled to fly home. Two women and a young man chose to stay behind, leaving 18 men, 10 women and one child.

Capt. Albert Brockob balked at carrying the men after learning that no federal agents would be on board.

Fewer building permits issued; Values higher

Building permits in Midland appear to be declining in quantity and at the same time increasing in terms of dollars being spent.

Permits for the month of November went over the $6 million mark, almost double the amount issued in November a year ago.

Total for the 100 permits issued was $6,663,372 — while only $3,909,938 in permits were issued a year ago.

This brings the year's total in building permits to $83,676,102 compared to the total a year ago of $57,549,209.

While the values have gone up, the total number of permits issued in November was down compared to November of 1977. Only 100 permits were issued in November while 143 had been written last year. And the total number of permits for 1978 is 1,498, down from the 1,675 a year ago.

New housing, single family and multi-family living areas, accounted for the largest amount in building permits. A new apartment complex added the biggest chunk to the overall picture in November — to the tune of $2.5 million.

A permit also was taken out on a new quadplex valued at $90,000.

Permits for 30 new single family residences totaled $1,884,400. Alterations on 36 residences amounted to $186,150.

November apparently was not the month to decide on building a new commercial structure. Only seven permits were issued for commercial buildings for a total of $1,886,400. The permits were for an auto service building, two grocery stores, a warehouse, a rental contractor and retail outlet, a city fire station and an office building.

Ten permits for alterations to commercial buildings amounted to $150,992. Permits for five new signs totaled $5,430.

Temperatures drop in Basin; Warming expected tonight

The weather sent a chill up the spines of Permian Basin residents Sunday and early today as the area experienced one of the severest temperature drops of the year thus far.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded a chilly 23 degrees shortly before 1 a.m. The overnight low was just three degrees warmer than the record low for today, set in 1934.

Moonlight admirers and early birds alike wore gloves and bundled up for winter weather.

This year's low to date is 18 degrees, recorded Feb. 1.

Sunday's high temperature was a chilly 42 degrees. The record high for Dec. 3 is 48 degrees, set in 1954.

Area cities also reported cold weather overnight and early today. Big Lake recorded a low of 19 degrees this morning.

The weatherman is calling for warmer weather tonight and Tuesday. Tonight's low is expected to be near 30 degrees. Tuesday's high is expected to be near 60.

November was an unusually wet month, according to the weatherman. The precipitation for the month recorded at the airport was 2.27 inches, 1.78 inches above normal.

The greatest 24-hour precipitation came on Nov. 4 and 5, when the area received 1.80 inches of rain.

The total rainfall for the year is 17.09 inches.

Smashed and overturned cars litter the parking lot of a Bossier City, La., apartment complex after a tornado ripped through the city early Sunday morning. (AP Laserphoto)

Fierce twister rips Bossier City

BY DAN EVEN

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — Mike Liles heard the roar over the sound of his television. Outside, he saw a tornado "wrap a gas station around a pole."
"The sound of the tornado wasn't so bad as what came after. You could hear people screaming and shouting wherever you went," he said.
The twister carved a two-mile path of destruction in this northern Louisiana town of 60,000 Sunday. It also left two children dead, 200 people injured and 1,500 homeless.
Tornadoes — rare for December — also touched down Sunday in Arkansas, Mississippi and other parts of northern Louisiana, killing two others. They spun out of a band of violent thunderstorms that spread over the Southeast. Damage was estimated at $200 million.
About 250 armed National Guardsmen were activated here after some looting broke out. They remained on patrol today.
Two persons were arrested on suspicion of stealing outdoor speakers from a demolished drive-in theater, police said, but by late Sunday no other arrests for looting had been made.
"It's unbelievable the kind of damage we have out here," said Mayor Marvin Anding. "It's just total devastation."
The tornado also knocked out power in parts of the city, forcing local hospitals, already taxed by a persistent stream of injured, to switch to emergency equipment for electricity and water.
A quarter of the city still was without electric power late Sunday, and authorities said some heavily damaged areas could be out of power for four or five days.
By late Sunday night, authorities here had counted 25 businesses, three motels, one apartment building and three churches in Bossier City destroyed or heavily damaged. Anding said 65 homes were unlivable and scores more also were damaged.

The two youngsters killed by the storm were identified as Lisa Curington, 13, and her 8-year-old sister, Jana. They died when the tornado hurled a car through their bedroom wall at about 2 a.m.
"They were in their room and this car came flying at the house. It came down on their room and crushed them in their bed," said Denny Lindsey, the girls' uncle.
One person died when a house trailer was demolished in nearby Helina, La. Identification was withheld pending notification of next of kin.
And in El Dorado, Ark., about 75 miles from here, Lurlene Helms, 53, was killed when a large tree fell and crushed her mobile home. Six other persons in that area were injured.

Down the street from the Curington house, Kathy and Joe Brown searched the rubble of what had been their home.
They had escaped without injury, except for cuts Brown got while crawling across the glass-strewn floor to get their 18-month-old son out of the crib.
"I feel that we are lucky," Mrs. Brown said. "How else can you feel when you are alive and some others aren't?"

At the Swan Lake Apartments, which had part of its roof torn away, the 200 residents escaped without serious injury.
"There was glass flying everywhere. My husband heard it coming and we ran in and got our children. We went in the hallway and closed the doors around us," said Janet Lowrey, a resident of the building.
A string of fast food restaurants, night spots and gas stations was heavily damaged near Interstate 20.
"If this had hit just two hours earlier, it could have taken a heavy toll of lives," said Ron Aldin, a Red Cross volunteer.

Haynes says he will prove Davis was conspiracy victim

HOUSTON (AP) — Defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes told the jury in the Cullen Davis murder for hire trial he will show the Fort Worth millionaire was a victim of a conspiracy hatched by "David McCrory, Pat Burleson and others."
Among the "others" is Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, who took the stand today, dressed in black, as the defense's first witness.
Haynes, in his opening statement to the jury, said the defense will present evidence to show that "things are not what they seem" regarding the prosecution's sound and video tape recordings.
The recordings of Aug. 18 and Aug. 20 purportedly connect Davis to a plot to kill a judge.
He is seen and heard in the tapes talking to McCrory, the state's key witness. Burleson, mentioned by Haynes in his opening remarks, is a karate expert and a friend of McCrory who put him in touch with the FBI in this case.
Under questioning by Haynes, Mrs. Davis said she talked to Burleson in person Aug. 17, and Haynes asked if she had a "business relationship" with him. Mrs. Davis said, "I was to have a business relationship" with Burleson. It was not brought out in the exchange with Haynes, but Mrs. Davis said previously she considered hiring Burleson as a bodyguard.

Aug. 17 was the day McCrory went to the FBI.
Haynes asked "Was there any exchange of money between you and Mr. Pat Burleson in August 1978?" Mrs. Davis said there was not.
Haynes said he would show to the jury that there were a number of meetings by Priscilla Davis, Burleson and Rich Sauer, Priscilla's current escort and a frequent visitor to the Davis mansion in Fort Worth, which Priscilla now controls.
The state formally closed its case today and the judge denied a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal, a routine legal move in all criminal cases.
Prosecutors said they anticipate a "weird and nebulous" defense theory designed to explain away an alleged plot by Davis to kill the judge in his divorce case.
"It will be interesting and there will be some surprises, and that is part of the reason we've been so guarded in revealing our defense," said Dallas lawyer Steve Sumner.

Heroics of Ramos, neighbors save Midland youth from gasoline fire

Manuel Ramos, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Ramos of Midland, wasn't thinking of himself today as a hero.
However, his close friend of five years, Gerald Morris, 14, of Midland, probably is.
Morris now is recuperating in Midland Memorial Hospital from second and third degree burns he received Thursday night in an accident involving a gasoline fire, said witnesses.
Ramos said several neighbors came to the aid of Morris after his gasoline on his pants leg caught fire.
However, witnesses said Ramos made the first move to help the youth.
"We were just standing around in front of Dayle Jackson's house in Westview Estates near the airport," recalled Ramos, who works for Mid-Tex of Midland.
"Some gasoline spilled from Gerald's motorcycle and somehow it caught fire. Gerald came over and his pants leg caught fire," Ramos recalled.
Ramos said Morris "took off running and I chased him, caught him and took my coat off to douse the flames which were spreading up toward his head."

"His sister, Kelly, gave me her coat to help and then Dayle Jackson grabbed a five-gallon tank of water, which put out most of the blaze," said Ramos.
"Me, Ricky Martin and Doyle Jackson took Gerald to the hospital," said Ramos.
A former Goddard Junior High School student, Ramos said he was not injured during the incident.

However, he noted, "Gerald's got some burns and he's going to be in the hospital about four weeks."
"I've known Gerald about five years," said Ramos today.
The youth said he "just went ahead and did what I could. It's the first time I've ever seen anything like that happen. It's a trip. Everybody who was out there helped him out."

Earthquake forecasts now more accurate

year ago, suggested no time and thus was not a true prediction.
The American effort, aided by more than $50 million in federal money last fiscal year, is edging closer to routinely accurate predictions.
"There was a period, about five years ago, when many people thought it was going to be a simple, easy thing to run out and record any changeable geophysical (factors) you could dream up and a prediction would drop out," said Jerry Eaton, former chief of the Geological Survey's earthquake center.
"But now it appears that's not going to happen and we're going to have to do it the hard way. We're going to have to really understand the processes and discover which are the critical parameters."
That may be a decade away.
But, most scientists agree, the ability may already exist to foretell the giant that will one day rock Southern California, possibly the most thoroughly monitored area in the world.
Wallace said if a big earthquake started to happen within his center's network of sensors, there's a good chance scientists would see the effects. "And," he said, "if all of our instruments in one area started showing anomalies, we'd be precursors of earthquakes."
The problem is that the suspected precursors also occur without a quake and no single precursor seems to precede every quake.
Part of the Chinese success, Wallace said, stems from the fact that "they can afford a lot of errors. We have no tally of the number of errors they've made, but they admit there have been some."
False alarms, Wallace said, apparently are accepted by the Chinese government and public. The Chinese, who have predicted several major quakes, also failed to predict a great quake that killed more than half a million people at Tangshan in 1976.
Clarence Allen, a geology and geophysics professor at the California Institute of Technology, said Americans will also make mistakes.
"We are going to have some false alarms," he said. "The question is, how many false alarms can we have before we completely lose the public confidence."
Allen said there's another nagging problem: "It would be a tragedy to gain the capacity to predict earthquakes before we know what to do with those predictions."
Some business groups have warned that a prediction, especially one a year or so in advance, could be more devastating than the quake it foretold. They warn of costly effects on construction, investment and tourism, among other problems.
Allen conceded predictions could cause social and economic problems, plus a flurry of lawsuits in the wake of false alarms.
But, he said, the life-saving promise of earthquake prediction should far outweigh the economic consequences.

Herrera elected new president of Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Luis Herrera Campins of the opposition Social Christian Party claimed victory in this country's presidential election today after a campaign that drew a massive and peaceful turnout.
The Social Christians announced their count showed 53-year-old Herrera with a lead of 208,575 votes out of 2 million. In lagging official returns, Herrera had a 9,495 vote lead after tallying of 441,101 of an estimated 5.6 million votes cast — 90 percent of those eligible.
Former President Rafael Caldera, who led the Social Christians to victory in the 1968 election, predicted Herrera would defeat Luis Pinerua Ordaz, 54, of President Carlos Andres Perez's Democratic Action Party by 300,000 votes.
The television station Venevision reported Herrera, a lawyer and senator, leading by 189,913 votes in an unofficial tally of 5,233,209 votes, or more than 90 percent of the estimated total. Eight other candidates lagged far behind, dividing about 15 percent of the vote.
Thousands of Social Christian supporters gathered around Herrera's campaign headquarters and celebrated in the streets. He vowed to work with the Democratic Action party for Venezuela.

There was no statement yet from Pinerua.
Election officials estimated the turnout Sunday at 90 percent of the 6.2 million eligible voters. The government extended the closing hour for the polls from 4 to 7 p.m., but long lines of waiting voters kept them open later in many places. Some districts were reported still voting at midnight.
No violence was reported anywhere in the nation, one of the few democracies on a continent where military dictatorships are prevalent. It was Venezuela's fifth national election in the 20 years since an uprising overthrew dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.
The voters also were electing 183 members of the Chamber of Deputies, 42 senators and members of 20 state legislatures, all like the president for five-year terms.
The leading candidates used television extensively and hired American political media experts, pushing the estimated cost of the 16-month campaigned to $100 million. David Garth styled the Herrera campaign. Joe Napolitan advised Pinerua. John Dear-dorff worked for independent candidate Diego Arria, 40, who was running far back in fourth place.

Perez, who nationalized Venezuela's petroleum industry and spent billions of petrodollars on industrial projects, was barred by law from running for the presidency again for 10 years. He automatically becomes a senator for life when his term ends in March.

The Social Christian and Democratic Action parties are both slightly leftist with similar ideologies. Democratic Action has won three of the previous elections, while the Social Christians won in 1968.
Both Herrera and Pinerua said they would keep Venezuela in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and push for higher oil prices.

Difficulties with the current stadium have sprung up around the fact that Odessa College now owns the property on which it is located. If the proposition fails, school officials have said they may have to schedule as many out-of-town games as possible.

Youth survives accidental hanging

ODESSA — An Odessa boy is alive because of fast action by his mother and a neighbor Saturday, said officials here.
Michael Shannon Williams, who celebrated his ninth birthday Sunday, accidentally hanged himself Saturday while playing outside with his brother Billy Williams, 7, according to authorities.
The child is reported to have been playing with a nylon ski rope fastened to a tree. The rope once had formed part of a swing, authorities were told.
Odessa Police Department officers said the boy had put a loop of the rope around his neck and was trying to climb the tree when he slipped from a chair he was standing on.

His younger brother called for their mother, Kathy Williams, said officials here.
Mrs. Williams and neighbor Linda Hutchison found Michael hanging from the tree with his breathing stopped and his face discolored, according to reports.
Both women then held the child up and cut the rope. The boy was taken to Medical Center Hospital here by emergency medical technicians Clarence Mayo and Marvin Morrow.
After treatment, the Williams boy was released from the hospital.
According to reports, he received only rope burns.

Nine persons die in morning explosion, fire in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Nine persons, including six children, died in an explosion and fire that destroyed a small frame house early today. Arson investigators blamed an accumulation of natural gas and said the house was like a "blow torch."

Investigators said gas service to the five-room house, located in a low income neighborhood in the northeast section of town, had been turned off and someone had apparently tried to bypass the gas meter with a makeshift hose to the main gas line. Candles apparently touched off the inferno.

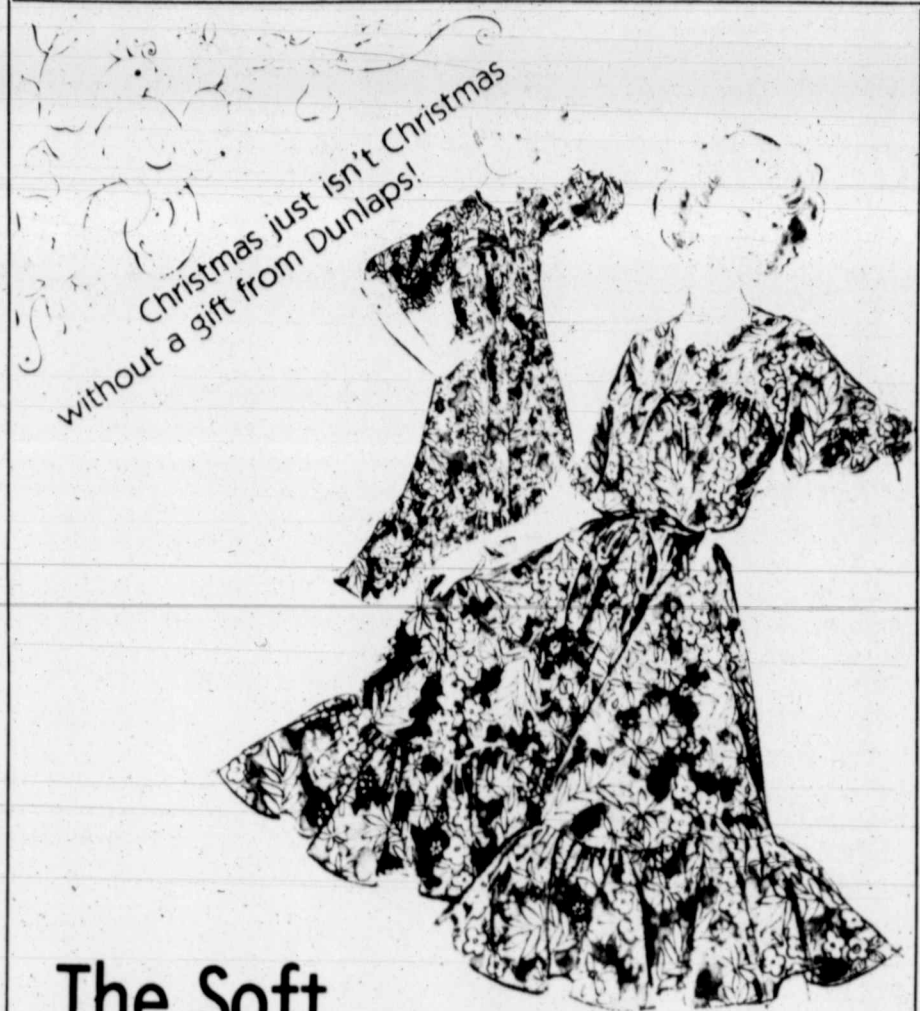

Temperatures were in the mid-30s with rain when the fire broke out. Four persons survived the blaze by jumping out of windows.

He said he managed to help three persons through a broken window.

"I tried to go back in and get some of the children out, but I couldn't get to them through the smoke," he said. "I could hear them screaming but I couldn't see them."

The dead were identified as Carrol Fay Boyd, 28; Gloria Boyd, 29; Carl Erskin Boyd, 22; Charles Aaron Boyd, 9; Daniel Lee Boyd, 7; Willie Cathridge Boyd, 2; Paula DeHous Boyd, 10; Shantey L. Boyd, 4, and Kimberly Lavette Boyd, 5.

A spokesman for Entex confirmed gas had been cut off to the house, but could not say when or why.

White students avoid LA public schools

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three months after the nation's second largest school district began integrating, few downtown classrooms can count more than a scattering of white students. The tutoring programs and private schools that sprouted as alternatives to busing are flourishing.

Many of the thousands of white students who were kept off the buses by parents hoping to cripple or destroy the integration program did, as district officials had predicted, trickle back to classes.

The experts, appointed by the judge overseeing desegregation in Los Angeles, concluded that integration in the 711-square-mile district could only be accomplished with a metropolitan plan that would draw students from neighboring districts up to 40 miles from downtown.

The major reason, they said, was that white enrollment in Los Angeles schools will drop to 14 percent by 1987 — with or without white flight prompted by integration.

When Superior Court Judge Paul Egly gave a temporary go-ahead on the plan for this fall, he made it known he considered the plan inadequate. He told the board he expected it to submit revisions by Dec. 31 — or to explain why the plan should not be changed.

But it's beyond the board's power — and certainly beyond its inclination — to order a metropolitan plan. And it's unknown if Egly would attempt such a major undertaking.

Bonnie Shuben, whose son's tutoring group uses her home, said it's worked well as a cheaper alternative to private school — and busing.

"I'm satisfied," she said. "I'm not overly happy. I would have liked more (teaching) time. But for what you're paying, you're getting good individual attention." Parents pay $20 a week for the three-hour daily sessions.

In the public schools, the integration that is taking place — however small the numbers — apparently is working well.

"There's no hostility," said Mrs. Ollie Davenport, principal of the predominantly black 42nd Street School. "The minority children wave the other children goodbye when they leave."

About 70 youngsters from the mostly white San Fernando Valley were expected to travel across town to 42nd Street school. Only 28 showed up, leaving many classes of 27 students with only three or four white youngsters.

Exxon group visits

It's always great to have officials of Exxon Co. U.S.A. from Houston or elsewhere as guests in the Tall City ... and today certainly is no exception.

Yes sir, President Randall Meyer and a number of other top Exxon executives are visiting in Midland today, and Midlanders are delighted to have them here, as always.

Mr. Meyer and his associates will be the special guests this afternoon at a reception given in their honor by The Midland Wildcat Committee in the Midland Hilton.

The Exxon president also was the speaker today noon at a meeting of the Texas Association of Taxpayers, Inc., here.

Other Exxon officials from Houston accompanying Mr. Meyer to Midland for today's events include F.C. Ackman, executive vice president; R.A. Baze, J.L. Loftis Jr., O.L. Luper, J.C. Morley, C.R. Sitter and W.T.

Slick Jr., all senior vice presidents, and Freeman Smith, public relations manager.

L.H. Byrd and Carl Tucker, production manager and exploration manager, respectively, of Exxon's Mid-Continent Division, headquartered here, also will be among the honorees at the reception.

The Exxon Company long has been recognized as one of Midland's top corporate citizens, just as many of its employees are active participants in various phases of community activities. Many of them hold especially significant posts in civic affairs. Tall City residents are proud of them.

And on this special occasion, Midland and Midlanders direct a great big, sincere, most cordial, typically West Texas WELCOME to the visiting Exxon officials. It is hoped that their stay here will be pleasant and that they will come back to see us at every opportunity.

Boeing takes off

The Boeing Co. has received orders from two airlines for 50 of its new medium-sized 767 airliners—a $1.25 billion deal.

Here's a very definite case where even those with no love for big business have to admit that what's good for Boeing is good for the country.

The nation's aircraft industry is one which still stands head and shoulders above foreign competition.

Commercial and military aircraft rank second only to farm products in the dollar volume of American exports—a significant factor in keeping our foreign trade deficit from being worse than it is.

Last spring saw an ominous development. Eastern Airlines chose to buy the new European A-300 "Airbus" to meet its need for a jetliner in the mid-range of passenger capacity—a growing need among airlines and one which the Boeing 767 is designed to fill.

This was a signal that the European industry could successfully challenge U.S. manufacturers on their home turf.

In the face of a fierce selling effort by the Airbus consortium, United Airlines ordered 38 of the Boeing's 767 jets last July.

Now American Airlines and Delta have given Boeing the nod. This is great news, of course, for America and Americans.

The Airbus remains a stiff competitor on the world market, but Boeing's success in designing and selling a new generation airliner helps dispel the notion that inflation and deteriorating productivity in American industry are going to price our goods out of the market altogether.

America, long the best, is getting better and better all the while.

CHARLEY REESE: President Anwar Sadat restores Egyptian pride

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

CAIRO — Desire for peace runs deep in Egypt. Conversations with Egyptians, from government officials to taxi drivers, reflect the same things: desire for peace and deep affection for President Anwar Sadat.

If there is a shadow over the prospects for peace, it is one cast by the Palestinian gunman, who is both feared and loathed by the Egyptians.

My conversation with Abdel Fattah, an Egyptian businessman, erupted when I asked him about the Palestinian question. He raised his right hand over his shoulder and then sweeping it down, he fairly shouted, "To hell with the Palestinians. If they want to fight, let them, but I will tell you one thing, when we are out of this, they will not fight. Do you know why they don't want peace? Because they are paid by the Saudis and the Kuwaitis. They don't want their own country because then nobody would pay them."

"When President Sadat went to Jerusalem, we were afraid, not because of the Israelis, but because of the Palestinians. Allah protected him. There is nothing between us and the Israelis. Nothing. We are even cousins. I do not say that, the holy book says it."

He said Moshe Dayan, Israeli foreign minister, was born in Alexandria and that when the first Israeli delegation came to Egypt several of them asked to be allowed to visit their birthplaces, where they were warmly greeted.

Another Egyptian told me Palestinians do not like Egyptian people. I think this is true. The Palestinians I have talked with in Cairo are contemptuous of Egyptians, saying they are lazy and incompetent.

I have not found in any Egyptian I have talked with any residue of anti-Jewishness.

In old Cairo there is the Ben Ezra Synagogue, one of the oldest anywhere. Not once, in 30 years of declared war between Egypt and Israel, has this synagogue been attacked or defaced. There are about 42 Egyptian Jewish families who still worship there.

It is true most Egyptian Jews left under the late President Gamal Nasser, but even Egyptians suffered under him. Egyptians say when Nasser resigned, no one dared even talk to his own family. One careless word and you would disappear.

Nasser is blamed, in fact, for most of Egypt's problems. Egyptians speak of his involvement in the Yemen War as their Vietnam. One man told me Nasser set Egypt back 200 years.

Sadat has earned their affection for three reasons. He has restored civil liberties. Egyptians are not afraid anymore of their own government. He has closed the concentration camps.

Secondly, he has restored Egyptian pride. Significance of the October War in 1973 cannot be underestimated. Defeat in 1967 was more than a defeat. It was a scandal and a deep humiliation. In the October War, the Egyptian army crossed the Suez Canal, stormed the heavily fortified Bar Lev line, and took it.

It does not matter that Israelis, recovering from the initial defeat, crossed the Suez and would probably have destroyed the Egyptian army had not the Soviet Union and United States intervened. What counts is Egyptians fought Israelis and won. The blot on Egyptian honor had been erased.

Thirdly, Sadat has made it plain he wants to solve domestic problems. He is much admired for his peace initiative and for his refusal to allow Egyptian soldiers to be drawn into the Lebanese disaster.

If Sadat signs a peace treaty and the Palestinians carry through with their threats to kill him, it will be the biggest mistake they have ever made. In the first place, I am convinced Sadat's successors would carry through with the peace. In the second place, Egyptian people would be furious and unforgiving.

I would not give a plugged nickel for the life of any Palestinian in Egypt should President Sadat fall to a Palestinian bullet.

Like my new Egyptian friends, I pray Allah will protect him.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Why Billy Carter took the fifth

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Recently it leaked out that President Carter's irrepressible brother, Billy, had pleaded the Fifth Amendment before a federal grand jury in Atlanta. We have now learned that he refused to answer questions about a dubious $1 million loan to the family peanut works from Bert Lance's bank.

Our sources say Jimmy Carter helped to arrange the loan, which was not properly secured. It was supposed to be a construction loan, but the Carter brothers didn't use the money entirely for construction. A reported $300,000 remained available for other purposes. Federal regulators have described such practices as improper but not illegal.

Nevertheless, Billy Carter was questioned about the loan by the Atlanta grand jury, which is investigating Lance's free-wheeling banking operations. Billy Carter only refused to testify about the million-dollar loan; he also refused to tell the grand jury about a personal loan he had obtained from Lance's bank.

Billy Carter explained to us that the grand jury had directed him to bring records for the period of Sept. 1, 1976 to Dec. 31, 1976. The questionable loan was negotiated prior to that time. Therefore, he refused to answer questions about dates and details, he said, without access to the records.

He said he would be willing to testify about the loan if the grand jury subpoenaed the proper records. But so far, the prosecutors have not issued another subpoena for Billy Carter. He told us he would continue to refuse to discuss his personal loan with the grand jury. "It's none of their business," he snorted.

At the time the million-dollar loan was granted, Billy Carter was in charge of the family business. But Jimmy Carter was the majority stockholder and apparently negotiated the loan.

Lance has testified: "I had conversations with (Jimmy) Carter about his ideas about a modern peanut-shelling operation in his hometown of Plains, Georgia... I told him at that time, if and when he wanted to buy a new peanut sheller, I would hope we would be given the privilege of financing it."

Our sources don't anticipate that the grand jury will subpoena the president, however, to explain his role in the negotiations. Yet Lance has admitted that, all told, his National Bank of Georgia loaned the Carter Warehouse a whopping $4.7 million. This made the comparatively obscure Carter plant the largest borrower while Lance was running the bank.

Approximately half of the million-dollar loan reportedly was used to install the peanut-shelling equipment. Another $200,000, more or less, was spent to construct a peanut storage building. The remaining $300,000, according to Billy Carter, was deposited in another account.

The opening of the shelling plant apparently didn't make the Carter brothers popular with their fellow peanut farmers. Our interviews with neighboring farmers uncovered an undercurrent of resentment against the Carter peanut works. The farmers grumbled that the peanut shellers had made fat profits at their expense. This caused some farmers to become disillusioned with their president-neighbor, although their ire seemed directed more at Billy than Jimmy Carter.

Billy took over the management of the family business after Carter became governor of Georgia in 1970. Our sources say the profits declined while he was in charge. They tell of one disastrous crop of peanuts, which Billy Carter held back from the market, anticipating a price rise. Instead the price fell, and the family was forced to sell at a grievous loss.

The crop was subsidized by the government, so the taxpayers were stuck with most of the loss, our sources report. But the Lance loans apparently helped bail out the Carter Warehouse. Thanks to the loans, our sources say, the warehouse almost doubled in value.

Our sources also confide that the mother of the Carter clan, Miss Lillian Carter, became furious with Billy for running around the country and neglecting the business. Billy acknowledged that he had heard she was angry with him, but he told us she had never complained directly to him.

When Jimmy Carter was elected president, he turned his interest in the business over to a trustee, Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo, to handle. The warehouse was leased to Goldkist, an Atlanta company, on a straight-cash deal. The company pays the Carters a fixed amount and absorbs the profits or losses, Billy Carter told us.

Footnote: A White House spokesman disputes the "figures and assumptions" in our account of the million-dollar loan. He said the White House is gathering documents to refute the insinuations.

"COMPARTMENT" SMUGGLING: Border Patrol agents have been warned to keep a sharp eye out for Mexican aliens who are being smuggled across the border under the seats of sedans and vans and in the side panels of pick-up trucks. According to intelligence reports, these so-called "compartment" smugglings are increasing. An estimated 100 aliens a week, for example, have been using this technique to slip across the border near El Centro, Calif.

INSIDE REPORT:

Linkage deadlock threatens Israeli-Egyptian treaty

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Underlying tension between President Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, simmering off and on ever since the start of the Camp David summit, is heating up again under the latest threat to the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

The immediate issue today is the deadlock between Israel and Egypt over President Anwar Sadat's demands for a target date to conclude follow-up negotiations for self-rule on the West Bank and in Gaza. The deadlock has thrown the administration's mediation effort into jeopardy and the way it came about has, fairly or not, further undermined U.S. confidence in Begin.

The target-date formula for Gaza and the West Bank was hammered out the night of Nov. 11 in nearly four hours of tough bargaining between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and the chief Israeli negotiators: Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Aharon Barak, the Israeli legal expert. It has no binding effect and it would not be included in either the preamble of the treaty or the treaty itself but in a side letter.

But when that Dec. 30, 1979, target-date formula was presented to Begin at Kennedy International Airport in New York the next day, the prime minister rebuked his negotiators in front of Vance for having agreed to it.

This was a virtual repeat of an earlier Israeli performance when Begin's cabinet rejected "linkage" between the Egyptian-Israeli treaty and the follow-on West Bank-Gaza issues agreed to by Begin's negotiators as part of the treaty's preamble. American pressure reversed that rejection, but there are no signs of change in Israel's "take it or leave it" rejection of a target date for autonomy in Gaza and the West Bank.

At stake here is the heart of the Camp David compromise that President Carter believed inextricably "linked" Israel's peace treaty with Egypt to follow-on negotiations on the West Bank and Gaza. One American Mideast insider told us that the Israeli "contortions" to undermine the linkage understanding reached at Camp David were similar to Begin's backing out of his agreement with Carter on the question of Jewish settlements on the West Bank. Carter was not amused.

What particularly angers Carter's men is the repeated Israeli charge that the U.S. is doing Egypt's work at Israel's expense — tilting toward Sadat. Even Dayan, perceived here along with Weizman as an extremely able and resilient negotiator, said last week in Israel that "I don't think the Americans always use an equal yardstick toward us and toward Egypt."

Carter and his top aides disagree. Not a word or phrase in the once-disputed preamble to the treaty or in the still-deadlocked side letter on "linkage" makes the Israeli-Egyptian treaty conditional on what happens — or does not happen — on the West Bank or Gaza. U.S. mediators have repeatedly told the Israelis that Egypt has never attempted to impose a legal obstacle to carrying out any of the terms of the Israeli-Egyptian treaty because of what may happen on the West Bank.

Carter's impatience is growing. Moreover, the president and his men believe that if the deadlock over "linkage" persists, they hold most of the political cards to put serious pressure on Begin — pressure that so far has not been applied.

Top Mideast officials here, speaking around the country in public forums in support of Carter's peace efforts, report that Israel's overall political strength in the U.S. seems to be declining. Two questions from the audience have dominated these sessions: When will the U.S. "stand up" to Begin? Why must American taxpayers pay Israel some $3.5 billion — in addition to the regular $1.8 billion of routine, annual U.S. aid — for the Egyptian treaty?

Policeman killed in Iran assaults

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Gunmen hurled bombs and fired automatic weapons at a police station in downtown Tehran today, killing one policeman and wounding another, the government said.

Authorities also said "terrorists" fired on police guards at the Egyptian Embassy residence in north Tehran Sunday night, but no one was reported hit.

The attacks were the first serious assaults on security forces in months and came after three nights of clashes in the Iranian capital between troops and thousands of demonstrators against the rule of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The gunmen attacked the police station from an overpass 20 minutes after the nightly curfew ended at 5 a.m., authorities said. They fled in a car and disappeared into the heart of the city.

There was speculation that the shah's political and religious opponents might be moving from demonstrations to armed rebellion. The army disclosed last week that arms caches had been found in Tehran and other cities.

Officials said the demonstrators Sunday night poured out of the city's mosques 10 minutes after the 9 p.m. curfew, apparently by prearrangement, and rallied in about 18 locations. Many of the clashes between troops and demonstrators took place in darkness after power plant workers pitched much of the city of 5 million into darkness, making good on their threat to pull the plug if the troops fired on demonstrators.

There were no reports yet of casualties Sunday, but the government admitted at least 14 demonstrators have been killed and more than 50 wounded in clashes since Friday night. Opposition sources claim the toll is closer to 70 dead. More than 250 persons have been arrested.

Rioting also was reported in the southern city of Isfahan, and the government said at least three persons were killed. Iranian students in Paris claimed at least two students died in clashes with police in the holy city of Mashhad in northeastern Iran.

All day Sunday in Tehran there were hit-and-run skirmishes between large groups of demonstrators and soldiers who fired into the air and swung rifle butts.

Many in the taunting crowds wore white shrouds, the traditional Moslem burial garb, signifying their willingness to die in the holy war mounted by conservative Shiite Moslem leaders to topple the shah.

The rioting gained momentum over the weekend with the advent of Moharram, an emotional 29-day Moslem period of mourning for the martyred Imam Hussein, grandson of the Prophet Mohammed and founder of the Shiite sect to which the shah and most Iranians belong. Hussein was slain by members of the rival Sunni Moslem sect in 641 A.D.

The opposition has set Moharram, a time when Iranian Moslems are whipped into a religious frenzy, as the climax for their showdown with the shah.

The religious leaders spearheading the anti-government campaign are opposed to the shah's efforts to westernize Iranian society, a program they believe is undermining Moslem traditions. Political opponents of the shah's authoritarian rule also have taken up the black banners of the opposition.

After almost a year of violence that reportedly claimed between 1,000 and 2,000 lives, the shah installed a military government last month under Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari. The military has banned the traditional public religious processions during Moharram and said it would crack down "mercilessly" on street disorders.

Azhari claims Iran's outlawed Communist Party is using religious fervor to provoke violence. In a report from Washington, the Cox newspapers said top policymakers in the Carter administration believe the Soviet Union is tied directly to the rebellion and is funneling cash to the shah's right-wing Islamic opponents.

There was no immediate White House comment on the report, which also predicted that if the rebellion succeeds, a Soviet-oriented leftist government would take power in the strategic, oil producing nation.

In Paris, Ayatullah Khomeini, the exiled spiritual leader of Iran's 32 million Shiites and symbol of the anti-shah movement, repeated his call Sunday for Iranian troops to desert the shah and "ally themselves with the people."

Friends of Gilbert and Pat Bishop have started the Gilbert Bishop Fund at Commercial Bank & Trust to help defray mounting hospital costs incurred since he underwent a series of neurosurgeries in a Dallas hospital. His first surgery was on Oct. 31, 1978, and since then he has undergone two additional operations.

All contributions to the fund will go toward his medical expenses.

DEAR ABBY

Think now, buy later

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas or Hanukkah shopping early. If you're wondering what to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa, who don't get out much, let me tell you what NOT to give them: No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.) Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Grandma doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets. With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mix.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous

Grapes add to festive meal

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Every hostess has a favorite recipe that is especially reserved for the holiday season. Often, the recipe is handed down from one generation to the next with embellishments added from year to year. This winter, start your own tradition with luscious grapes.

The grape tradition is one of easy entertaining. Savvy hostesses rely on clusters of colorful grapes to garnish traditional recipes and create beautiful tables. The familiar turkey looks extra special when surrounded by clusters of red and black grapes.

One recipe sure to start a family tradition is Festive Grape Ambrosia. To prepare this make ahead recipe, simply combine chopped cranberries, pineapple, sugar, and miniature marshmallows then fold in whipped cream, nuts and an assortment of colorful grapes. Accompany each serving with a small cluster of grapes.

FESTIVE GRAPE AMBROSIA
3 cups fresh whole cranberries, (about 3/4 pound) washed, sorted and finely chopped
1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple, undrained
1 cup sugar
1 pound miniature marshmallows
1 pound grapes (red, green, blue-black)
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
1/2 cup chopped nuts

In large bowl combine 2-1/2 cups of the chopped cranberries, pineapple, sugar and marshmallows; set aside until sugar dissolves, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, halve and seed enough grapes to make 2 cups. Fold into whipped cream with nuts and cranberry mixture. Chill thoroughly. Served as salad or dessert garnished with remaining chopped cranberries and grapes, in clusters. Makes 6 (1-cup) servings.

supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.) Shut-ins would appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so they too can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport. Stamp some envelopes.)

Don't give anyone a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for the color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, YOU might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for any amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting his pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he'll enjoy.

Don't give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted, and will be properly cared for. If you want to delight a friend whose dog or cat is considered a member of the family, include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting their calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than they are. Parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," why not save yourself (and them) much time and effort by giving them a gift certificate in the first place.—ABBY

Synanon to carry on despite arrest of 'Old Man'

By SUSAN AGER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles E. Dederich once described himself as "Mr. Synanon: its designer, chief executive and single greatest asset." Most Synanon members believe him. But ex-members claim he was "always drunk, and obsessed with violence, with creating his own army." Dederich today lies hospitalized with "acute depression" — and charged with conspiracy to commit murder. Authorities arrested Dederich in connection with the rattlesnake bite Los Angeles attorney Paul Morantz received when he reached into his mail box Oct. 10. A reformed alcoholic when he founded Synanon 20 years ago to help others, Dederich was too drunk and sedated to be formally arraigned after his arrest Saturday in Lake Havasu City, Ariz. An Arizona judge held a hearing in the hospital Sunday to inform Dederich of the California charges against him. Formal arraignment was put off until his medical condition permits. Synanon members who have looked to Dederich for direction for two decades say they are shocked, but not discouraged. "Spirits here are good," said one official who asked not to be identified. "This is not a Jim Jones type of thing. Nobody's gonna line up for Kool-Aid. We're going to persist. It would be a pretty sad testament to the work of Charles E. Dederich if the whole organization fell apart." But those who have left Synanon say the parallels between Dederich's Synanon and the Rev. Jim Jones' Peoples Temple are remarkable. Members' devotion to Dederich was as unquestioning as the devotion of Temple members to Jones. They would kill for Dederich, if he asked them to, ex-members say. They have told police that he goaded Synanon members to "get Paul Morantz," to "break his legs," to convinced he could help others, he began the movement in a rundown Santa Monica storefront. Early members say Synanon was a sexual free-for-all. But that didn't last. It became regimented with its commandments of no drugs, no alcohol, no violence. Its sacrament: the Synanon Game, encounter sessions in which members sat in a circle and exposed their fears, fantasies, frustrations and furies, often brutally attacking each other

—It started businesses — ceramics, a gas station and its most profitable enterprise, Ad-Gap, which makes pencils and other items used by companies as advertising. Synanon pays no income taxes. The Internal Revenue Service has designated it a non-profit corporation and, more recently, Synanon has declared itself a church and school. —About eight years ago, it began attracting non-addicts and non-alcoholics, who joined it as an alternative lifestyle. The newcomers gave to Synanon all or most of their property and salaries.

—Synanon grew more regimented, more secretive.

The "National Guard" was formed as a security force, and "The Imperial Marines" were trained in martial arts. Later Synanon bought $62,300 in guns, ex-members say. Synanon says the guns are locked up.

Dederich issued edicts: no sugar, butch haircuts for everyone, mandatory daily exercise, regular public "weigh-ins."

Vasectomies were ordered for all males 18 or over. Everyone who stayed complied, except The Old Man. Last fall, he ordered all married couples to "change partners" to prove that everyone could love anyone. Many members left. Others who balked were forced out.

"This is not a Jim Jones type of thing. Nobody's gonna line up for Kool-Aid. We're going to persist. It would be a pretty sad testament to the work of Charles E. Dederich if the whole organization fell apart."

"teach him a lesson."

"If the authorities do move in on Synanon, I fear a helluva bloodbath. The leadership is mad as hatters," former Synanon president Jack Hurst predicted several weeks ago.

"Synanon is a new American religion, and I am its founder," Dederich liked to say. "We began in a storefront on a $33 unemployment check and have grown in 20 years' time to a corporation with assets of $30 million."

In 1958, Dederich was an ex-Catholic, ex-employee of Gulf Oil Co., ex-beach bum and ex-alcoholic. He had participated in early LSD experiments at UCLA. Enthused by his own recovery, and with words. Its leader, Charles E. Dederich, affectionately referred to as CED or "The Old Man."

Synanon grew, headquartering its legal department in San Francisco and opening ranches in Marin County to the north and Tulare County in the foothills of the Sierra. Its membership topped 1,000 in the late 1960s, but now has dropped to about 900.

It made money in three ways: —Thousands of corporations donated money, including General Motors, Ford, Xerox, Pan Am and Sperry-Rand. Fagel, who solicited contributions, said 30 percent of Synanon's income came from American corporations.

Bedside hearing conducted for hospitalized Dederich

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP) — A justice of the peace has conducted a bedside hearing for hospitalized Synanon founder Charles Dederich, charged with conspiring to have an attorney killed with a rattlesnake.

But Dederich was apparently asleep during Sunday's personal appearance hearing in Mohave County Hospital and Lake Havasu City Justice of the Peace Gene Milam ruled him incompetent to face arraignment, the Los Angeles Times said today.

Previous police reports indicated Dederich had actually been arraigned in the hearing, which was closed to reporters. But Los Angeles police investigator Marv Engquist, named by Milam as impromptu court reporter during the hearing, told the Times of Dederich's condition as Milam attempted to arraign him.

"There were no signs that Dederich was aware of the court proceeding going on around him," Engquist said. "He laid there the entire time with his eyes closed. He apparently was asleep, but there was no way to tell. He could have been listening to the whole thing."

Milam set bail for the Synanon leader at $500,000 and scheduled an extradition hearing for Jan. 2, said Mohave County sheriff's spokeswoman Susan Martin.

Two guards were posted at the hospital, she said. Dederich faces charges of conspiracy to commit murder and solicitation to commit murder stemming from an attempt to kill a Los Angeles lawyer by placing the snake in his mailbox.

A hospital psychiatrist, Dederich's Phoenix attorney, Thomas Thinnies, and Mohave County Attorney David Babbitt also attended the hearing. None could be reached for immediate comment.

Initial efforts to arraign Dederich following his arrest Saturday at his home in Lake Havasu City, Ariz., failed because "he was too drunk to be taken to court," Los Angeles County district attorney's spokesman Al Albergate said. So Dederich was hospitalized in Kingman, on the California border 50 miles north of Lake Havasu.

The incompetency ruling Sunday came after hospital staff psychiatrist Dr. M.B. Ruland, who had examined Dederich several times before, told Milam that Dederich's "head is not exactly screwed on straight," the newspaper reported.

Ruland said Dederich was suffering from severe mental depression and a heart condition and could not be taken to court. He said Dederich would have to remain hospitalized for at least three to five days.

Two Synanon members, including the 20-year-old son of bandleader Stan Kenton, also have been charged with attempted murder for allegedly placing the snake in the mailbox of 33-year-old Paul Morantz. Morantz survived the attack but spent several days in a hospital.

Carter prepared to name 152 new district judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter may be putting his stamp on the federal judiciary for years to come as he prepares to name a record 152 new district and circuit judges.

Under new legislation enacted this year to create the judgeships, Carter issued standards and guidelines for the selection of the 117 district judges on the basis of merit.

Although he did not act unilaterally to set up merit selection commissions, as he has done for all circuit court appointments, he encouraged the use of such commissions as did Attorney General Griffin B. Bell. "The commission system opens up the selection process and makes it possible for anyone to be considered for nomination regardless of his or her lack of political connections," Attorney General Bell told the American Law Institute in May.

But Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., told a meeting of the Federal Bar Association in June that nominating commissions could produce mediocre judges because the nominations might "reflect an accommodation of all factions, a denatured product reflecting everyone's second or third choice."

The nominations for the 117 district judgeships will require confirmation by the Senate and will be screened by the Judiciary Committee before being sent to the floor for action.

There are now 525 active federal judges.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who will take over as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee in January, has said judicial appointees will receive more searching scrutiny than in the past. Under retiring Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee has generally leaned heavily on background investigations by the FBI and the American Bar Association.

Most appointees to the new judgeships are expected to be Democratic, whether recommended by commissions or senators.

Bell has said he would like 80 percent of the new judges confirmed by April 1.

But this would be an average of more than two judges per working day, and since Congress does not reconvene until Jan. 15, Bell has conceded that Kennedy's plans for tougher screening of nominees might make the deadline impossible to meet.

Commissions have already been used to select judge nominees in 14

Wagner has audience with Pope today

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II today received Robert F. Wagner at an audience in which the former mayor of New York formally took office as personal representative of the U.S. president to the Holy See.

The United States and the Vatican do not have formal relations. So President Carter's envoy is the only direct link between the pope and the White House.

Army orders crackdown on 'sexual fraternization'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has ordered a crackdown on sexual fraternization between male and female soldiers of different rank because of "an increasing number of incidents of inappropriate relationships."

The move follows a study that reported a "creeping advance of sex fraternization throughout the Army" and said man-woman relationships — particularly dating between officers or noncommissioned officers and enlisted women — are causing serious discipline and morale problems as the role of women in the Army grows.

The report, issued in May, includes "socialization, courting and marriage" as examples of fraternization.

It has been learned that Army headquarters last month sent out a message instructing all commanders to "counsel those involved or take other action as appropriate" in cases of relationships which can "reasonably be expected to undermine discipline, authority or morale."

The directive said commanders should act "if relationships between service members of different rank cause actual or perceived partiality or unfairness, involve the improper use of rank or position for personal gain" or are otherwise detrimental "to good order and discipline."

There was no indication in the message of what would constitute "appropriate" action. One Army source, who asked not to be identified, said that "it's been dropped in the lap of the commanders."

Army officials said they have no statistics available that would bear out the message's reference to an increasing number of "inappropriate relationships."

There was no public announcement of the new Army order. The other services have issued nothing similar.

The message on "relationships among superiors and subordinates" makes no specific reference to sex, but Army officials confirmed the new order grows out of the many-faceted study that evaluated the impact of women in the Army.

There are now 56,000 women officers and enlisted soldiers in the Army, which totals nearly 769,000. Plans are to increase the number of women in uniform over the next five years.

The military-civilian evaluating group, which included 16 men and 13 women, said its studies, questionnaires and interviews with Army personnel showed that "sex fraternization is seen as a clear distraction and threat to expedition mission accomplishment."

"Perhaps the most potentially dangerous form of sex fraternization proliferating in the Army today is dating between officers or noncommissioned officers and enlisted women," the report said.

"Such conduct, for whatever reasons proffered, including the oft-claimed right of free association, is rarely not, at least in some degree, prejudicial to good order and discipline."

The study cited "mixed gender teams or small units with remote, isolated missions" as being especially vulnerable to sexual fraternization.

Committee fears U.S. Selective Service System 'unacceptable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee that called the Selective Service System "an unacceptable risk to national security" in 1976, now says the system is even worse.

A House Armed Services Committee report released Sunday said the system is not capable of mobilizing enough recruits to meet Pentagon needs in time of a crisis.

"Considering the present shortfalls in our reserve forces, the present Selective Service situation cannot continue," said Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

He said the 96th Congress will investigate Selective Service after it convenes in January.

"In 1976, the committee found that the shortcomings in Selective Service were an unacceptable risk to national security, and if anything, matters are worse today," Price said.

According to the study, the system is supposed to be capable of putting the first recruits in camp within 30 days of a mobilization order and deliver 100,000 inductees within two months.

Using optimistic estimates, the report said, it would take 65 days to deliver the first recruits, and 90 days to deliver 100,000.

Under a pessimistic set of assumptions, the first recruits would not reach training until 95 days after mobilization, and 100,000 recruits would not be delivered until 120 days after the first order went out, the study said.

Officials say Selective Service is now in "deep standby," with only 98 employees in its national and regional headquarters, and no state or local structure. With the military depending only on volunteers, Selective Service does not register or classify potential recruits.

Recently, Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the chiefs have recommended reviving draft registration, and classification of military-age youths to improve mobilization ability.

The study said options for improving Selective Service include:

—Adding $2 million to the service's current $7.1 million appropriation for an improved computer system and revision of the post-mobilization plans.

—Reinstatement of peacetime registration, at an additional cost of $4 million.

—Reinstatement of peacetime classification, boosting the cost over the current policy by $13 million.

The lovely Mrs. O'Bar radiates enthusiasm for the Pat Walker program—and with good reason. Without Pat Walker's, she says, she never could have achieved her present measurements. She relates her experience:

Through the years I have tried almost every diet plan available, only to gain what I lost. Today, after being a patron of the Pat Walker Salon for two years and maintaining my [new] weight, my friends and family know what the program has done for me.

Personally, it is figure perfection! I have lost 32 pounds and 53 inches. I wear size 7-8 clothes; before Pat Walker's program, I wore size 14. Today I'm 36-24-36 and will continue my treatments for firming and toning.

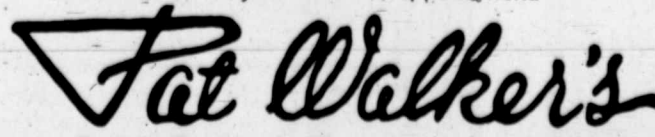

Pat Walker salons offer complete privacy in elegant surroundings. [Other features include] passive exercise, no disrobing and an individualized program for each patron. This is the only way I could have accomplished losing the pounds and inches where I wanted and maintaining my weight. Lovingly hand crafted, natural wood toys found at Merry-Go-Round are shown above. Toys of this quality are a rarity, and they are reasonably priced. MerryGo-Round, 2301 West Michigan.

Gifts abound at Merry-Go-Round

Bring your children, let them browse around. They are made welcome, and they will give you some ideas for making their Christmas a happy one with the things THEY want. The selection at Merry-Go-Round is great, and the prices will allow you to be most generous.

Most of the things in the shop are used but in excellent condition. There are shelves filled with books, games, toys, trains, baby toys, race cars with tracks (very reasonable), all are there to dazzle your youngster.

Merry-Go-Round has a good selection of clothes, sized for the infant on up. They also have baby equipment—cribs, high chairs, car seats. Grandparents might want to stock up on the things the little ones need for visits so the parents won't have to pack and carry the many things needed to make the children safe and comfortable.

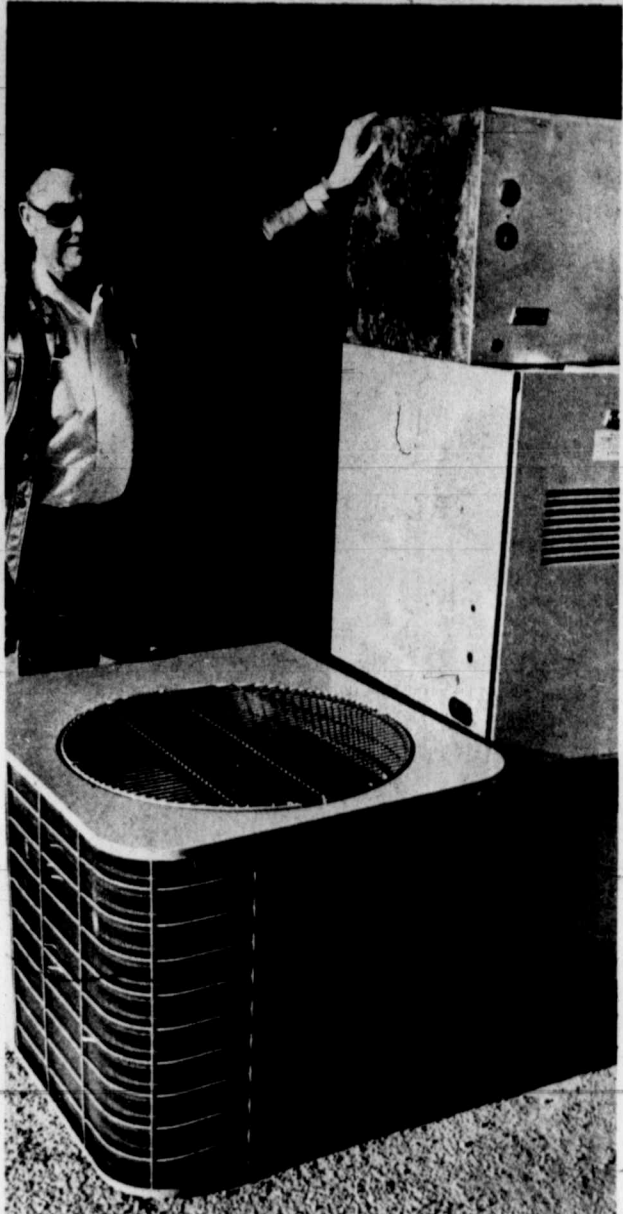

Colorful, imported wall hangings to decorate the child's room are an attractive item. Also, handmade quilts are available by special order.

Merry-Go-Round has a limited number of collector's items such as wooden Fisher-Price toys. These are quite a find.

Some of the new things on hand at Merry-Go-Round are small wooden toys, handmade ceramic whistles, puzzles, games, and posters.

Anything in the store may be put on layaway. They maintain a request file, so that when something you want comes in, they will call you first if your card has the earliest date.

Come in to Merry-Go-Round. Discover for yourself the uniqueness of this shop, and you will be glad it is here in Midland.

Hearing resumes Dec. 12

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The hearing before the Texas Water Commission on the application by the Colorado River Municipal Water District to construct the proposed Stacy Reservoir in West Texas will continue Dec. 12.

TWC chief clerk Mary Ann Hefner says the Lower Colorado River Authority, which is leading opposition to the project, will conclude its case against the reservoir following cross-examination of the LCRA consulting economist Dr. James R. Vinson, Austin.

She indicated that the city of Austin likely will put on three witnesses and that downstream irrigation districts may also wish to present testimony.

Thomas George, attorney for the Lake Travis Improvement Association, has indicated he may wish to put on several additional witnesses, Ms. Hefner said. The commission, however, has cautioned George that they do not want to hear any repetition of the non-expert testimony presented earlier.

Mideast repeating ancient history

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt and Israel, powerful neighbors unable to vanquish each other, decided not to fight, and concluded a peace pact instead. But there were no television cameras and no Nobel Prizes.

The date was 970 B.C. Before Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat came along, the only recorded instance of a formal peace agreement between Israel and Egypt occurred nearly 3,000 years ago, according to Avraham Malamat, professor of biblical history at Hebrew University.

King Solomon clinched the pact in his usual way: by taking a daughter of the pharaoh as one of his 1,000 wives.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin, discussing the ancient agreement at a recent conference of scholars, wryly assured them that "there is no secret provision in the Camp David accords which calls for parallel action by the prime minister."

The Old Testament Book of Kings mentions in five places Solomon's marriage to a daughter of the pharaoh, adding that the fabled Jewish king received the area of Gezer, 20 miles west of Jerusalem on the coastal plain, as a dowry.

But there are no details of Egyptian-Israeli relations during the period, so Malamat applied historical records and modern concepts to sketch an account of the story.

"We have to speculate," he said in an interview. "The biblical historians couldn't understand external factors or evaluate the events in global terms. But the human mind worked the same way and the geopolitical setting was the same as today."

King David, Solomon's father, extended the Israelite empire southward, presenting Egypt with a powerful adversary on its border for the first time. After David died, Egyptian forces moved north and defeated the Canaanites at Gezer, a fortress city on the road to Jerusalem.

According to Egyptian records, the pharaoh at the time was Siamun of the 21st dynasty, which ruled during a relatively weak period of ancient Egyptian history.

"We can speculate pretty certainly that the pharaoh's target was Jerusalem, the capital of Israel," Malamat said. "It's inconceivable that the pharaoh would start a campaign hundreds of miles across Sinai, capture the major fortification on the way to Jerusalem, and then give it as a gift."

The historian reasoned that Siamun sought to exploit the weakness that usually occurred at the beginning of a reign to regain control of an area Egypt had ruled 200 years before.

"But he made a mistake: Solomon was so strong that he could compel the pharaoh to give up his dream of conquering Israel and force him to enter a political arrangement. The pharaoh was forced to give up Gezer in the guise of a dowry," Malamat said.

"No taxation without representation." Well, we got our representation — and boy, are we paying!

Middle income is when you make too much to get food stamps — and too little to get by.

It's no trick to meet expenses. The tough job is to avoid them.

Some folks spend half their time wishing for things they could have if they didn't spend half their time wishing.

You won't have to spend half of your time wishing or waiting when you visit Hines-Wood Upholstery at 5109 Andrews Highway. See us for quality workmanship and the best in materials. Call 694-8891 for a free estimate in your home.

Ruffing in dummy important practice

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Today we begin a week-long series on ruffing losers in the dummy with a simple example that will serve as an introduction to this important subject.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

South ruffed the third club and remembered that somebody had told him to draw trumps before he did anything else. He therefore drew three rounds of trumps and looked around to see what came next.

As it happened, what came next was to give 100 points to the opponents. Since only one trump was left in the dummy South could ruff only one of his low hearts. He lost a heart, a diamond and two clubs.

MUST RUFF TWICE

South wants to ruff two hearts. After drawing just two rounds of trumps South should take the ace of hearts, ruff a heart with dummy's third trump and get to his hand with a diamond to ruff a heart with dummy's fourth trump. Then South gets back with a diamond or by ruffing a club to pray the last missing trump.

This line of play limits declarer's loss to the first two clubs and an eventual diamond.

A simple rule to remember: Don't draw dummy's trumps if you want to ruff with them.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S Q 10 8 5; H 4; D 9 8 3 2; C K 6 4 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Many experts would pass this borderline hand, counting only 5 points for high cards and nothing at all for the singleton in partner's suit. Some experts would bid one spade in the hope of finding a better contract than one heart.

Adding that final flourish to a routine is Lisa Kay Butts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Butts of Midland. She is one of two featured twirlers performing with the West Texas State University Buffalo Marching Band at Canyon. She is a graduate of Midland High School and a junior business major at WTSU.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Contact sports said harmless for women

Dear Dr. Solomon: Girls seem to be going in for just about every violent contact sport these days. Isn't there a danger of injuring the reproductive organs? We have a niece at college who is on the wrestling team, no less.—L.D.

Dear L.D.: I'll pass on the reassuring views of an expert on women in sports, Dr. Christine Haycock of New Jersey medical school. She says that there is little risk of damage to a woman's reproductive organs even in very rough contact sports. The reason is that the bony pelvis provides excellent protection.

Dr. Haycock has looked carefully through the medical literature and says that the only specific reference to sport-related injuries to the reproductive organs she has found was in water-skiing, where forceful vaginal douches can occur in case of a fall.

A pregnant woman should of course take precautions. As the uterus rises up out of the bony pelvis, it becomes more vulnerable. Dr. Haycock advises women to avoid contact sports after the first trimester.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm one of those people who must constantly diet to maintain my weight. One salted peanut and I have to let my belt out a notch. And I'm really very careful. But at a party, I like to have a few drinks. Alcohol relaxes me and makes me feel good, but I'm wondering what it does to a diet.—Mike

Dear Mike: If a salted peanut affects you the way you say, I wonder what a drink does. A gram of alcohol contains about seven calories, and a single martini about 200 calories. Moreover, these are empty calories because the drink has no nutritive value.

Does that mean you should cut out all alcohol? Not necessarily. Unless you have a need to lose weight, an occasional drink can be relaxing. But make sure it's occasional. It bears repeating that moderation is the key word in maintaining one's health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know that women generally live longer than men. It also seems apparent that life expectancy for both men and women is increasing. Will men be catching up with women so that married couples will live to approximately the same age? This would mean a lower ratio of widows to widowers.—Mrs. S.

Dear Mrs. S.: As regards life expectancy, "Them that has, gets." As you indicate, average life expectancy for both men and women is increasing because of generally better living conditions and improved medical care. However, the projected increase is greater for women than for men.

In highly industrialized nations like the United States, the increase for women may range from five to 10 years over the next half century. Whereas in 1900 women lived about two years longer than men, today the gap is nine years. Why there is this difference between men and women is not clear, but the subject is currently being studied.

It appears the predominance of widows among older people will continue for the foreseeable future.

Governors at meeting

PHOENIX, ARIZ. — Governors of four states are among more than 500 persons attending the annual meeting of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission in Phoenix today through Wednesday.

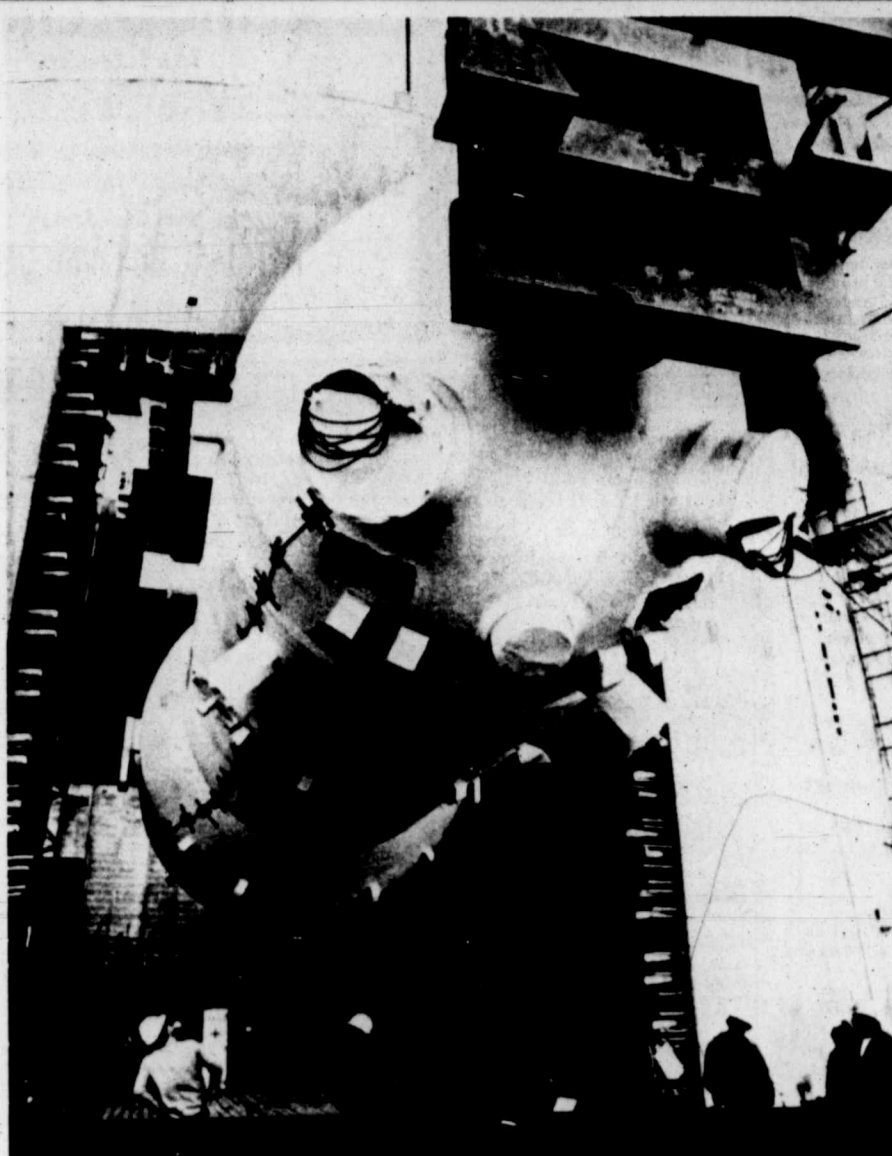

Heading the meeting is Compact Chairman Robert F. Bennett, governor of Kansas. Also attending are Arizona Governor Bruce E. Babbitt, Indiana Governor Otis R. Bowen, and California Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Those attending represent 30 member states of the Compact, which seeks to expand the domestic supplies of oil and gas.

Attention during the meeting is expected to focus on the new Natural Gas Policy Act, which became effective Friday. Both the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission will speak during the three-day meeting. Chairman Charles B. Curtis will speak at a general session on Wednesday. Vice-Chairman Don S. Smith will discuss the Act on Monday morning at a committee meeting. A panel discussion will follow Smith's remarks.

The NGPA imposes responsibility for the processing of gas well applications with state regulatory agencies, but provides no additional funding to the states. The FERC has the responsibility of reviewing the certificates issued by the states.

Under the Act, gas wells drilled in the past 19 months will require a certificate from the state agencies to qualify for gas prices ranging from $1.65 to $2.25 per thousand cubic feet.

Secretary removes ban on oil equipment export

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps says she has lifted the ban on the export to the Soviet Union of American petroleum equipment embargoed because of the dissident trials last summer.

Mrs. Kreps told a meeting of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council that she has authorized the issuance of 22 licenses for export of such equipment to Moscow.

The licenses cover $65 million worth of drilling platforms, pipe pumps and other oil equipment, sources said. About 90 such licenses have been approved previously, and this is the last group for shipments which were held up last July to express U.S. displeasure at the trial and sentencing of dissidents Anatoly Shecharansky and Alexander Ginzburg.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Kreps and U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal met with Deputy Foreign Trade Minister Mikhail Kuzmin at the start of the week-long trade and economic council meeting and accompanying talks to try to increase Soviet-American trade.

About 350 American businessmen are participating in the annual council meeting.

The level of trade between the two superpowers has been considerably lower than what was anticipated during the early days of detente in 1972-73. According to Soviet statistics, U.S.-Soviet trade totaled $2.3 billion in 1977, compared with $4.4 billion in Soviet-West German trade and $3.4 billion in Soviet-Japan dealings.

Diplomatic sources predict little substantial growth between the two countries because the Soviets have a shortage of dollars and are unable to offer the United States products it needs.

One Moscow observer said the talks probably would amount to "an exercise in business hand-holding."

The Soviets were also expected to urge the American businessmen to pressure Congress to repeal laws that tie the granting of nondiscriminatory tariff treatment and trade credits to the issue of Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union.

DOE joins in appeal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Energy Department has joined Texas in appealing Burlington Northern Railroad's increased rates for hauling coal from Wyoming to San Antonio, Attorney General John Hill said Wednesday.

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted the railroad authority to increase rates from $12.42 to $16.12 per ton.

"We're very pleased to have the cooperation of the Department of Energy in a case which is crucial to the future energy picture in Texas," Hill said.

"The exorbitant and highly inflationary rate approved by the ICC is obviously bad for Texas and our attempts to switch to coal for generating electricity," he continued. "DOE's appeal shows that this excessive rate also is a blow to the national coal conversion policy adopted by Congress."

Business lobby launches offensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business lobbyists, emboldened by recent successes in warding off new government regulation, plan to take the offensive in the new Congress in hopes of weakening the existing regulatory process.

Leaders of major business organizations say they generally will not work against rules issued by any one agency, leaving that fight to the specific industries regulated by it.

Instead, they say they will seek "structural reforms" that will apply to all regulatory agencies.

The specifics of the lobbying efforts have not been worked out as the business groups are waiting to see what bills are introduced after the new Congress begins in January and where victories are most likely. But most of the general areas for lobbying already have been determined.

In interviews, leaders of business groups said these will include:

—Giving Congress veto power over regulations issued by agencies, which now promulgate rules on their own authority. This change would allow regulated businesses to lobby Congress to overturn rules they have not been able to forestall in the regulation-writing process.

—Putting each agency on notice that it will be abolished at a predetermined time unless it can justify its continued existence. These "sunset laws" are designed to increase the accountability of regulators to elected officials.

—Requiring agencies to do cost-benefit analyses of regulations they propose. Regulators have cautioned against this, arguing that it is far easier to compute the cost to an industry to comply with a regulation than it is to put a dollar figure on such benefits as saved lives.

These measures are designed to assure that regulators take into account what its public reception would be.

"Bureaucrats won't act the same way if they know someone in Congress is looking over their shoulders and that they have to justify their actions when Congress is considering whether to continue the agency," said Jeffrey Joseph of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the nation's largest business group.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, Congress greatly expanded regulations covering health, safety and the environment. The results include the National Traffic Safety Administration, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission. In addition, major new powers were given to long-established agencies, including the Federal Trade Commission.

Some say a turning point came on Capitol Hill last Feb. 7, when the House rejected a proposed federal consumer protection agency by a decisive 38-vote margin.

Three times earlier, the House had passed bills establishing a consumer agency. Although the Senate had done so twice, Congress never agreed on a single bill.

Ralph Nader and other consumer lobbyists had made it their No. 1 legislative priority.

The argument that prevailed in the House was that the agency would result in unneeded regulation. Since then, similar arguments have been used with increasing success.

Leaders in the coalition of business groups that defeated the consumer agency bill were the U.S. Chamber of Commerce; the National Association of Manufacturers; and the Business Roundtable.

The House, spurred by criticism of regulations issued by the Federal Trade Commission, voted three times last year for a congressional veto over the agency's actions. However, the more liberal Senate never agreed to the veto.

Next year the Senate is expected to be more conservative because some of its most liberal members were unseated by conservatives. The Consumer Federation of America endorsed three incumbents, all of whom lost.

Taking advantage of these actions, the business lobbies now are planning their offensives.

The board of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce recently endorsed the congressional veto concept and the National Association of Manufacturers' board is scheduled to take it up in January.

Mary Jo Jacobi of the NAM said her group already supports the sunset concept. "There would be a congressional review of every spending program every 10 years. If Congress doesn't think the work should be continued, the program would end," she said.

Pioneer 1 today begins ambitious study of Venus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pioneer 1, flagship of an unmanned American space fleet poised to undertake this nation's most ambitious study of Venus, goes into orbit today around Earth's nearest neighbor.

The $225 million mission, designed to study Venus' atmosphere and climate, represents the United States' first attempt to orbit the planet and to probe its inhospitable surface, according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The crucial sequence of instructions needed for the Pioneer to slip into orbit was relayed to the ship's on-board computer Sunday by scientists at NASA's Ames Research Center near San Francisco.

The instructions ordered the 1,250-pound spaceship to fire its retro-rockets and enter an orbital pattern while hidden behind the planet and out of radio contact with its earthbound commanders.

The operation was designed to slow the ship, which had been hurtling away from earth at more than 32,000 mph, by about 2,500 mph, a NASA spokesman said.

The Pioneer 1 orbit should range from as near as 90 miles above the Venusian surface, where temperatures approach 900 degrees and pressures are 100 times greater than on earth, to a maximum altitude of 41,000 miles, NASA said. The ship is to circle the planet for at least one Venusian year, about 225 earth days.

Instruments aboard the spacecraft, which is shaped like a giant coffee can, will probe the atmosphere and map perhaps a third the surface in a search for mountains and craters.

The mission enters its second phase Saturday, when five more U.S. ships are to reach the planet, which is almost the same size as Earth.

The five are self-contained segments of a single spacecraft that split apart two weeks ago. Four of the probes are to crash to the surface Saturday and the fifth will burn up in the atmosphere.

The six American ships carry a total of 30 experiments to probe, monitor and measure the composition and behavior of the planet's atmosphere.

Scientists hope the project will provide new insight into the forces that drive weather and climate on Earth. They also want to determine whether Earth might one day evolve into as dry and lifeless an inferno as Venus seems to be.

Two Soviet spacecraft are also racing toward a rendezvous with Venus. They're due at the planet Dec. 21 and Dec. 25 and both are expected to drop landers to the surface.

The Russians, with 10 unmanned missions to their credit, are the veterans of Venus exploration. Their Venera 1 made mankind's first approach to Venus with a fly-by in May 1961. Venera 3 dropped the first of eight Soviet landers onto the planet in 1966.

American spacecraft have flown by Venus three times since 1962, but none has orbited or dropped to the hostile surface.

Rockwell painting located

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — An unemployed wallpaper hanger has been charged with larceny in connection with the disappearance of a Norman Rockwell painting from a Boy Scout retreat, police said.

Thomas Vetere Jr., 28, of Morristown, was charged after a tip by an unidentified informant led police to him and then to the painting, which was found unadorned Friday in an Asbury Park home. Police would not identify the home's occupant.

Vetere was being held today in the Morris County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Movies create many white-coated heroes

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — From the time I saw Greer Garson discover radium and Robert Montgomery let himself get bitten by those mosquitoes to rid the Panama Canal of malaria and Edward G. Robinson invent a magic bullet to cure a disease that our eighth grade nun didn't let us know existed, I have always been interested in the sacrifices made by the scientific community in our behalf.

Even now I try to keep up with what the men and women in the white coats are up to, so when the movie comes out or the Nobel prizes are announced I can make a meaningful contribution to the conversation at my end of the bar car.

How many other commuters on CONRAIL's 6:50 out of Danbury realize that Dr. Karl Koopman, the eminent mammalogist, attended the International Bat Conference in Albuquerque, N.M., this past summer, and then went on to Carlsbad Caverns, where for all we know he may have hung around upside down with his fellow batsmen to get the right vibes on their speciality?

If my co-commuters read "Grapevine," the bulletin of the American Museum of Natural History, as I always do when I can get my hands on it, they'd know there's more to bats these days than eight performances (including the two matinees) of "Dracula" a week at the Martin Beck Theater.

They would also know that Dr. Sydney Anderson, who is into herpetology, whatever that is, spent a week in August on St. Catherine's Island, Ga., where Jimmy Carter likes to get away from it all. Only the professor wasn't trying to get away from anything. He was trying to get close to the raccoons and the sea turtles, preparing — as the bulletin says — "next year's work on the interaction between nesting sea turtles and foraging raccoons." Rape is believed to be the interaction involved here, according to sources close to the swamp, although like Myron Farber I will go to the grave or at least to Riker's Island without betraying my informants in this sensitive area.

For several months now actuaries and secretaries have been pecking out of the upper floor tinted windows of the United Fidelity and Guarantee skyscraper in downtown Baltimore at a large bird dining on starlings and pigeons without realizing they were observing the permutations, or something, of "Scarlet," a now famous peregrine falcon. She is a survivor of a species threatened with extinction.

Scarlet is one of 150 peregrine falcons bred in captivity by Cornell University ornithologists and released last year on an island off the coast of Maryland to see if they could be saved from extinction. Dying off because of the high concentrations of pesticides in their prey, the birds were praised at "Peregrine Palace," north of the Cornell campus at Ithaca, N.Y., with the idea of restocking them in the woodlands of the northeast.

Scarlet, however, took the urban route, first hanging out at the Baltimore Zoo, then settling for a permanent perch on a granite ledge of the 35-story insurance building. Because of the building's tinted glass, she is unaware of the daily audience that gathers at the windows during lunch hour for her 200-mile an hour diving attacks on her prey.

"The only amenity Scarlet lacks in the city environment is a mate," reports Cornell ornithologist Tom Cade, who plans to remedy that by releasing a passion of young bachelor falcons on another island some 15 miles away. Scarlet's eyesight is so good, he adds, it should be Kismet at first swoop.

Love's labors apparently are lost, or at least thwarted, on another sector of the scientific front, where the white coated fraternity has been eavesdropping on the mating game among green tree frogs.

The September-October issue of the Harvard alumni magazine relates the sad tale in lines too lacrymose to be paraphrased:

"In the ponds near Savannah, Ga., a female green tree frog attracted to one male's mating call may find herself in another's embrace. Females are often surprised by sexually active males that do not observe the expected courting ritual. Instead of uttering their species' specific call to attract a mate, these silent 'satellite' males lurk in the vicinity of a more vocal competitor. And when a female hops by to answer a call, the quiet frog interposes.

"Not mute or subordinate, the satellite males seem to be employing a mating strategy that conserves energy. This is the conclusion of Richard Daniel (Savannah Science Museum), Stephen Perrill (Butler University) and H. Carl Gerhardt (University of Missouri) who conducted 30 field experiments from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. between June 19 and July 12 last year."

It kind of bends you out of shape emotionally to realize that three scientists would spend nearly every night for a month down in a Georgia cypress swamp to bring the world that kind of knowledge.

Those jilted troubadour frogs also reminded me of Madam Curie and Elsie Milendorf. In the eighth grade I took Elsie, a haughty local beauty, to see Greer Garson's Madame Curie, at 25 cents a ticket, and she didn't observe the mating ritual either, Elsie, I mean. Inside, at the candy counter, she met Roger Degan, the frog-faced local soda jerk, and split.

I was going to tell you, too, about the scientists at the Washington University medical school in St. Louis who are anesthetizing brown bats, gluing small nails to their heads with dental cement. They drill through the skulls to insert a recording electrode for monitoring the bats' use of echo detection in tracking far-ranging targets. But the frog hanky-panky got me down. I guess that's why I never became a scientific researcher: too soft and sentimental to face reality down in the swamps with the philandering frogs and foraging raccoons.

Kristi to celebrate birthday

SEATTLE (AP) — Kristi Rognlin, born with her liver, spleen, bowel and stomach outside her body, celebrates her first birthday Thursday, thanks to the tubes and wires of a hospital intensive care unit which help keep her alive.

"Kristi was the most severe case we've ever seen," said Dr. Peter Mansfield, chief of surgery at Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical Center. "Her liver, spleen, bowel, stomach and even some of the blood vessels commonly found in the back of the abdomen were found outside her body."

The condition occurs once in every 6,000 to 10,000 natural births, Mansfield said.

Kristi is the daughter of Randy and Michel Rognlin, who live in Aberdeen, Wash. The baby was born in Grays Harbor Community Hospital and transferred immediately to Children's.

"I kept thinking, 'What did I do wrong, what could I have done to cause this?'" said Mrs. Rognlin. "Then I realized it was nothing I did, it was just one of those things that happen. But you're not prepared."

Kristi's breathing is aided by a respirator and she receives part of her food through a tube in her abdomen. Discs taped to her back provide readouts to a monitor which shows her heartbeat, blood pressure and breathing rate.

"Kristi pulls on her monitors and looks at us and smiles. She knows what she's doing," said nurse Joyce Duker. "Then she'll pull out her feeding tube and whirl it around, spraying the whole area. She's smart."

The baby's care has cost more than $100,000, hospital spokeswoman Denise Wolff said. The family insurance ended at $50,000 and the state Crippled Children's Services has been paying part of the remainder, she said. The hospital also has some money saved from donations, for such cases.

Although the baby's organs are still outside her body, Kristi is gradually being weaned from the respirator, said Ms. Duker, but the process could take "a matter of months, not weeks."

Mistakes don't mar gala Kennedy Center performance

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles Percy missed his cue, singer Mary Martin blew an introduction and dancer Suzanne Farrell was bopped on the head by a descending curtain.

But President and Mrs. Carter didn't seem to mind, nor did any of the celebrity-studded audience at a sort of highbrow Academy Awards gala Sunday night at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The center was honoring five of America's most venerated performing artists in the first of what are planned as yearly events for the nation's finest performing artists.

Contralto Marian Anderson, dancer Fred Astaire, choreographer George Balanchine, composer Richard Rodgers and pianist Arthur Rubinstein sat in box seats next to the Carters as a stream of cultural notables sang their praises.

The five were all wearing their awards medals, hung from seven-colored garlands of ribbons. Television cameras recorded the event for a CBS broadcast Tuesday night.

The evening began with a glittery reception at the White House and ended with a midnight disco-dinner dance at the newly opened East Wing of the National Gallery of Art, which the president and his wife skipped.

At the reception Carter said Anderson's talent "was so great that racial prejudice could not stand in her way."

He said Astaire comes to mind "whenever anyone uses words like 'style' and 'class.'"

The president said of Balanchine, "There's no argument throughout the world that he is the greatest choreographer of the 20th Century."

And Rodgers, he said, is "the most popular composer that our country has ever known."

Rubinstein is simply "the world's most beloved concert pianist," Carter stated.

Guests at the Kennedy Center's Opera House paid $150 apiece for orchestra seats, $1,250 for box seats. Proceeds went to benefit the center.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., brother of the slain president for whom the center was named, said it has made Washington "not only the political center of this nation, but the cultural center as well."

Percy, an Illinois Republican, had to be coaxed out of the audience to make the introduction for which he was scheduled. Miss Martin introduced singer Florence Henderson when she was supposed to introduce a film clip of Miss Anderson.

And the curtain dropped on the head of Ms. Farrell, of Balanchine's New York City Ballet, as she was taking her bows.

Gregory Peck praised federal subsidies for the arts and said the United States had been lagging "centuries behind almost all European countries" in such subsidies.

All the honorees were at least in their 70s with Miss Anderson, 76; the Polish-born Balanchine, 74; Rodgers, 76; Astaire, 79; and the Russian-born Rubinstein, 91.

"Last year, using lignite coal saved Texas Electric's customers $48 million. It's a step in the right direction."

"Prior to 1972, Texas Electric made all your electricity by burning natural gas and oil. By last year, lignite coal had replaced gas as boiler fuel for about a third of this. In dollars and cents, here's what that meant to you, our customers:
The cost of lignite burned in 1977 was about $20.5 million. Had that same amount of electricity been generated using natural gas at then-current market prices, it would have cost $107.7 million. That's $87.2 million more than the lignite cost!
Even after deducting the annual cost of the new lignite plants, Texas Electric saved its customers $48.4 million last year because of the switch to lignite.
And that's just the beginning. As gas prices continue to rise, Texas Electric plans to become less and less dependent on this increasingly scarce fuel. By 1983, lignite coal and nuclear-fueled plants are scheduled to provide more than half of our customers' electricity.
It gets harder all the time to provide dependable, economical electricity. But this has always been Texas Electric's goal. And it always will be."

Cowboys unearth old play to gain title

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry turned the playbook pages back 17 years Sunday to find the recipe for yet another Dallas Cowboy divisional football championship.

What Landry unearthed was an old play which in 1961 involved quarterback Eddie LeBaron, fullback Amos Marsh and receiver Bill Howton. The quarterback handed off to the fullback, who lateraled back to the quarterback.

The Cowboys used that combination for its first National Football League victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Against the New England Patriots Sunday, quarterback Roger Staubach took a lateral from Scott Laidlaw and mailed a strike to Tony Hill to complete a 40-yard touchdown play.

The ambush tied the score 10-10 late in the third quarter and Staubach threw a 36-yard game-winning touchdown pass to tight end Billy Joe Dupree early in the fourth quarter and the 17-10 victory over gritty New England.

"We had to pull some of the old plays out," Landry said. "We had to, the way New England was playing. It's a pretty old play. ... We go back to the early 1960s with that flea-flicker."

Landry said, "We had a similar flea-flicker this year against St. Louis, but Tony Dorsett handled the ball. You have to keep it (the flea-flicker) under wraps until just the right moment."

Landry had to be told that he had earned his ninth divisional title, his 12th playoff berth in the past 13 years and his third consecutive National Conference Eastern Division crown.

"Somebody said that gave us the Eastern Division championship, and if they're right, we're happy about it," Landry said.

They were right, Tom. With a 10-4 record, the Cowboys have the tiebreaker edge over both Washington and Philadelphia, who both lost Sunday and are two games back with two games to play.

New England's lead in the AFC East slipped to one game over Miami, as the Patriots' record also went to 10-4.

Patriots Coach Chuck Fairbanks said, "I just want to give credit to Dallas."

Fairbanks never mentioned the flea-flicker, but zeroed in on a Steve Grogan touchdown run that was called back because tight end Russ Francis was ruled in motion.

"That hurt," Fairbanks said. "What also hurt the Patriots were two blocked field goals by Ed Jones and Randy Hughes and a 39-yard miss off the toe of Dave Posey."

Posey did manage a 30-yard field goal — which just barely cleared the crossbar. Coupled with Sam Cunningham's 52-yard touchdown run, the Patriots held a 10-3 halftime lead.

"We were fortunate they scored only 10 points," Landry said.

Dallas' only first-half points came on a chip shot field goal by Rafael Septien. New England totally throttled the Cowboy offense until Landry dusted off his exotic play.

"I was pretty confident the play was going to work," Hill said. "My main concern was Scott getting the ball back to Roger. Tim Fox (Patriot safety) ran so quick to the line of scrimmage that he didn't have a chance to get back. Fox is more aggressive than Cliff Harris."

"I set the block on cornerback Raymond Clayborn and acted like I missed him. That wasn't hard for me to do. I've done that frequently this year."

A chagrined Clayborn said, "We just got fooled. We thought it was a run, and we were coming to force the run." The Patriots ran at will early against the Cowboys, and Cunningham finished the game with 93 yards on 14 carries.

But the Patriots couldn't get any of their scoring opportunities to pay off, keeping Dallas in the game.

Francis was particularly irked about what he thought was a petty call that resulted in Grogan's nine-yard touchdown run being wiped out.

"I'd have to look at the films, but I don't think I was in motion. What the official called was that I moved my hand after it was set. I don't think so. What he saw was my hand coming off the line as I fired off. I don't think I did it early," Francis said.

The Patriots were irate also over a fumble late in the game which was ruled in Dallas' possession.

Mike Haynes fumbled after a long punt return with about two minutes to play, and it took officials long moments to get to the bottom of the pile. New England's Dick Conn said, "You bet I was on it. Benny Barnes was on top of me. I had the ball under me. The official was saying 'Let's go. Let's get it.' They give the ball to Dallas. When is a play dead?"

Cowboys' defense gives offense time

IRVING—For a half, the word "awesome," used to describe the Dallas Cowboys offense the last three weeks, looked as though it had been rendered obsolete by the New England defense and the only reason the Cowboys hadn't been run out of Texas Stadium before intermission was its own defense.

True, the Cowboys were caught chasing when Sam "Bam" Cunningham ran more like a Ham or Lam in antelope 55 yards for a touchdown, but they forced four field goal attempts by David Posey from 46, 30, 42 and 25 yards. That in itself could have been disastrous. Instead of trailing 19-3 at intermission, it could easily have been 19-3, but Ed "Too Tall" Jones blocked one attempt, Randy Hughes blocked another and the two blocky men have paid off when Patriots' kicker David Posey, hurrying a bit, missed the 25-yard try with five seconds left in the half.

WE WERE fortunate to survive the first half," Coach Tom Landry admitted. "We ran well the first half, but couldn't make the third down play. When they use a three-man rush with an eight-man secondary, you've got to take what they give you. And we did, the quick flat passes to Tony Dorsett and Preston Pearson and in the second half we were more determined. We opened up our game more."

Landry opened things up by reaching deep into the Cowboys almost forgotten bag of tricks to dust off some old plays. The Cowboys didn't go back as the Statue of Liberty, but when the Cowboys tied it at 10 with 1:56 left in the third period, it came off a 40-yard Roger Staubach to Tony Hill pass off a flea flicker play that "dates back to the early 1960s," Landry said. "But we did use another version of it this year, one that Dorsett caught."

Chances are if fullback Scott Laidlaw had any more stickum on his hands, it would never have come off. Scott took the ball from Roger and almost couldn't get rid of it in flipping it back.

THE GAME-WINNING touchdown with 2:01 gone of the final period was another bomb, 36 yards from Staubach to Billy Joe Dupree, who beat the defenders down the middle. It was

California Angels sign Jim Barr

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Things change in a hurry around baseball. Just ask free agent pitcher Jim Barr and the California Angels.

On Friday, the Angels announced they were out of the picture in negotiations with Barr. But they announced Sunday they had signed the veteran right-hander to a multi-year contract.

How did the turnaround occur? "They (Barr and his agent) changed their minds," said Mike Port, director of player development for the Angels. "They came back our way."

Port's last conversation with Barr and the pitcher's agent was on Friday. "They knew what we were willing to do and indicated that it wasn't enough." So the Angels came to the winter baseball meetings convinced Barr would sign with another team. That meant California would shop elsewhere for bullpen help.

Then, within 48 hours, Barr changed his mind and agreed to the Angels' terms. Manager Jim Fregosi was happy over the addition of the pitcher who was 8-11 with a 3.53 earned run average for the San Francisco Giants last season. Barr joins relief ace Dave LaRoche in the Angels' bullpen.

"LaRoche can't pitch every day," said Fregosi. "Now, with Barr, we've added another quality pitcher to our bullpen. He increases my flexibility."

Barr, 30, spent 7½ years with the Giants, compiling an 81-90 record and 3.39 ERA. He set a major league record by retiring 41 consecutive batters from Aug. 23-29, 1972. He is the seventh free agent to sign with California since the introduction of the re-entry draft in 1976. Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich, Don Baylor, Lyman Bostock, Rick Miller and Tom Griffin were the others.

TED BATTLES BATTLE SCENE

almost a pass Staubach didn't throw, at least not to Dupree, his primary receiver.

As Roger explained it, "New England may blitzed us all day on third down and I thought they had it on again. If Tim Fox (the safety) had kept coming, I would have thrown to Tony Hill down and in. When Fox pulled off, I knew I had time to wait for Dupree to clear."

"They were in man-to-man coverage," Dupree detailed how he got open. "When I turned in, my man froze for an instant, long enough for me to go by him and Roger just laid it up and in there."

STAUBACH WAS asked if his 1-for-6 statistics at the start of the game bothered him and replied, "I'm not aware of statistics. I was bothered that I didn't hit Tony Hill for the touchdown early in the game. He was simply tripped up by the defensive man."

Still, the Cowboys managed a 26-yard Rafael Septien field goal with less than three minutes left in the first period, a lead that stood up all of 19 seconds. Don Westbrook returned the kickoff 33 yards to the Patriots 48 and then on the first play, Cunningham broke over the middle for 52 yards and a touchdown.

As linebacker D.D. Lewis saw it, "Bennie Barnes and Aaron Kyle both hit him good licks, which caused me to ease up, but they knocked each other off the tackle and Cunningham was gone."

While Dallas felt it lost one sure TD in the first half, New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks was lamenting the TD run by Steve Grogan that was called back in the first half. Fairbanks felt this was one of the factors in the Patriots loss along with "the pressure of Dallas' field goal rush, a couple of costly interceptions and a fumble. That fine punt (by Danny White) put us in a hole late in the game and that fumble by at the end of a good return by Don Haynes" snuffed out the Pats' last hope.

ALTHOUGH DALLAS' defense kept the Cowboys from having to pay their way back into the stadium for the second half, it surrendered yardage in the first half. "These were two teams that had not met in a long time and we started slowly," Harvey Martin analyzed it. "In the first half we were figuring out what they were doing and how to stop them."

One of the problems was that New England was running a two tightend offense at the Cowboys.

Linebacker Thomas Henderson contended that Dallas' primary concern going into the game was to "stay in front of Grogan. He can run and has speed and to beat them we would have to contain him."

TEAM RECORDS and Staubach passing records tumbled during the game, but one record fell that the Cowboys didn't want to see ended. "Drew's streak ended," Landry said. "I didn't know it at the time. I am disappointed Drew's streak ended, but I didn't know it at the time. When I found out about it toward the end, it would have meant taking too big a chance."

Staubach set three new Cowboys' records when he completed 15 of 27 passes for 243 yards to wind up with 218 completions in 394 attempts and 3,000 yards for the season after the day's work. But none of his completions went to Pearson, who had a 58-game streak going into the game.

"Drew was not the best receiver for us against the defense New England was using. Our best receivers were the tight end and Tony (Dorsett) and Preston Pearson. I wanted to get a screen to him late in the game, but Drew didn't want to risk it. However, I don't think it would have been that much of a risk."

Naturally, Drew was upset, "I didn't get my number called in the last three quarters. I had two passes to me in the first quarter. But we won our division and that means an extra five grand. This game also showed we can beat a contending team."

Houston misses Earl Campbell

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers found out what it was like to play a game without Earl Campbell when the National Football League's leading rusher left Sunday's 13-3 loss to Pittsburgh bruised ribs late in the first quarter.

Campbell did not return and the Oilers were held to 164 yards in total offense.

Campbell gained 41 yards on seven carries in the first quarter and the Oilers were held to one yard the rest of the first half.

Oiler Coach "Bum" Phillips said he did not want to take a chance on further injury and kept Campbell out but said the star runner should be okay next week.

An almost funeral atmosphere overcame the largest crowd (54,261) ever to see an Oiler home game when Campbell went down with 1:04 to play in the first quarter after being hit by Steeler safety Donnie Shell.

In addition to Campbell, several other key Oiler players were injured in the game including quarterback Dan Pastorini and middle guard Curly Culp. Pastorini suffered possible rib injuries late in the third quarter and Culp had a pinched shoulder nerve.

Culp and Pastorini returned to the game. Pittsburgh also felt the brunt of the heavy hitting game when wide receiver Lynn Swann, who leads the league with 11 touchdown catches, left the game in the first quarter with bruised ribs. Swann also returned in the second half following x-rays.

Midland College Chaps to test NMMI tonight

Midland College returns to Western Junior College Conference action at 8 p.m. today against New Mexico Military Institute in Chaparral Center, seeking to boost its league record to 2-0.

The Chaps opened the conference season last week with 91-79 victory over New Mexico Junior College and raised their record to 8-3 with triumphs over Angelo State JV and Laredo JC in the Chaparral Classic.

The Chaps travel to Amarillo College for a game Thursday and then host Howard College next Tuesday in their final WJCC action before the Christmas holidays break.

The Chaps are then idle until Jan. 11-13 when they play in Big Spring's ABC classic before resuming WJCC competition after the new year.

Steelers cool off Houston Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Pittsburgh's defense decked Earl Campbell and alertly grabbed six Houston turnovers and Franco Harris embellished his position among all-time pro rushers Sunday as the Steelers cooled off the Oilers 13-3 and wrapped up the

SPORTS

American Conference Central Division title of the National Football League.

Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher, crumpled to the Astroturf after a 10-yard gain in the first quarter. He left the game before a hushed record crowd of 54,261 and did not return.

The former Heisman Trophy winner suffered bruised ribs, but Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said Campbell should be ready next week.

"We didn't have enough bandages," Phillips said, referring to Houston's string of injuries that also included quarterback Dan Pastorini, receivers Mike Barber and Mike Renfro, middle guard Curly Culp and cornerback Willie Alexander.

"I said it would be that kind of game," Phillips added. "In my 31 years of coaching, I've never seen a game that was hammer-and-tong like that one. It was also the best one I've ever seen played defensively."

The Steelers intercepted three Pastorini passes and recovered three Oiler fumbles. Two of Houston's miscues led to field goals of 41 and 23 yards by Roy Gerela.

That gave Pittsburgh a 6-3 lead in the third quarter, and Terry Bradshaw hit John Stallworth with a 5-yard touchdown pass to ice the game with 3:42 to play.

Bradshaw agreed with Phillips' assessment.

"I've never played a game so hard and so intense in my life," Bradshaw said. "Both teams wanted to win so bad and played so hard that the defenses were as tight as a drum. We played awesome on defense, and the Houston Oiler defense was incredible."

Bradshaw said losing Campbell didn't hurt the Oiler offense, but Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said, "I'm sure it (losing Campbell) had some effect on their football team. It really came down to a defensive game and the ability to make the right play at the right time."

Baseball to eye new playoff idea

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The American League is expected to support a three-division plan and triple-tiered playoff system to be presented at baseball's winter meetings later this week. But some National League clubs are opposed to the revolutionary proposal advanced by a 10-man reorganization committee.

A source close to baseball told The Associated Press that the committee, appointed by baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, believes the move is the answer to the game's financial dilemma. Ever increasing player salaries, the multimillion-dollar free agent market and inflated operating costs have forced the game to look for greater revenues.

The committee believes the three-divisional setup will create closer competition and thus more season-long interest by the fans similar to football, basketball and hockey. The new playoff system also would develop richer television packages from the major networks. The program would include the three division champions and a wild card entry — the team with the fourth best record.

The committee is scheduled to make its report Thursday, and the few National League objections would evaporate if the findings strongly indicate the plan is in the best interest of the game.

If the plan should be adopted, according to the source, here is what the divisional breakdown would look like:

AMERICAN LEAGUE
EAST—New York, Boston, Baltimore and Toronto. CENTRAL—Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago or Milwaukee, and Kansas City. WEST—California, Seattle, Minnesota, Milwaukee or Chicago and Texas.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
EAST—Philadelphia, New York, Montreal and Pittsburgh. CENTRAL—Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and Atlanta. WEST—Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, and Houston.

Each team would play the teams in its division 22 times and each of the teams in the other divisions 12 times — still 162 games. The playoffs would be best-of-five-game series, with two division winners meeting in one series and a wild card team playing the third champion. The winners would meet for the league pennant and a spot in the World Series.

The opponents of the plan claim that with fewer teams in the divisions, there is a greater chance for an early runaway, leaving the others hopelessly out of contention and destroying rather than increasing fan interest.

The opposition also is concerned that inferior teams might wind up playing in the World Series. For example, if the two wild card teams reached the Series, the fourth-best teams in each league would be playing each other.

At least three National League teams oppose the plan. The source said some NL people believe the AL may act singularly. He added, however, that there is much pressure on the doubtful NL people to reconsider.

The source said that the NL opponents would not object to retaining a single playoff format in their own league while the American League went to the triple playoff, but would want their own playoff to be best-of-seven, rather than five games, so it would end the same time as the AL playoffs.

The opponents do acknowledge the potential TV revenue involved in additional playoffs.

"We see each National Football League team getting $5 million, and we get $1 million," the source said. "We are striving to improve the (TV) package. The extra playoffs would get us closer to football. We'd like to get up to four or five million dollars each."

"Costs are going up and there is a limit to how much we can raise our ticket prices."

The source also said that recent reports that the Monday night TV game would be dropped was not true. He admitted the network affiliates were against the game because it hurt one of their biggest revenue makers, the 11 p.m. news.

But the source said that if the networks wanted the plum — the World Series — they would have to accept Monday and Saturday games. And he said he expects the Columbia Broadcasting System to join (the other) major networks in bidding for the packages.

Rose closes in on future choice

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball's next instant millionaire, Pete Rose, object of a four-way bidding war, was to deliver bad news today to three of the teams.

The 37-year-old long-time Cincinnati Reds captain is on the verge of announcing his decision.

It could come before his scheduled appearance to accept an award at the baseball winter meetings in Orlando, Fla., Tuesday night. He planned to make his decision Sunday and announce it by Tuesday.

Rose, a free agent after 16 years with the Reds, has narrowed his list to the Kansas City Royals, the Pittsburgh Pirates, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Atlanta Braves.

Neither he nor his attorney, Reuben Katz, could be reached late Sunday.

"If there is an announcement, it will come out of Florida," said John Galbreath, Pipates board chairman. Galbreath's son Dan, who is president of the Pirates, and team general manager Harding (Pete) Peterson left for Florida late Sunday after not hearing from Rose, Galbreath said.

The two Galbreaths met with Rose Saturday at the family's Darby Dan Farm in Lexington, Ky. "If we had him, we could win the pennant," said the senior Galbreath.

They had expected to hear from Rose or his agent Sunday morning, but were never contacted. The Pirates were uncertain as to whether that meant he had decided to sign elsewhere.

Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves, told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, "I don't like my chances. I don't have the horses to compare to the Galbreaths."

Rose said none of the National League teams he is dealing with are offering him less than a three-year contract. "The third year would be the year I could break Stan Musial's record (the National League mark of 3,630 career hits). They don't want me to be without a contract and only 50 hits or something from Musial's record."

The Pirates are believed to have gone beyond the usual enticements by offering Rose one or more broodmares, plus stud services of one of their top stallions.

The Galbreaths own some of the top thoroughbred horses in the nation, including two syndicated studs, Roberto and Little Current, who are reportedly worth $4 million each, along with Graustark, who was syndicated at $2 million.

"Obviously Mr. Galbreath and his son put a lot of time into putting together this offer. I'm sure it will take me a lot of time to decide if it is a good one. I don't really know much about horses," said Rose, a frequent race track visitor.

SWC ends frantic year

Houston at the top and Texas Christian at the bottom and 10,000 surprises in between—that was the 1978 Southwest Conference football race.

In fact, Houston wasn't supposed to be on the summit and TCU wasn't supposed to be in the basement.

But the Cougars relied on the same formula that got their 1976 team to the Cotton Bowl, hard-running backs, a slick senior quarterback and a David Hodge-led defense.

The Cougars were stopped only twice this year, by Memphis State and Texas Tech. In both instances, numerous Houston bobbles and misplays provided the opposition the whip for the Cougars' flogging.

Houston will play Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day and there is concern that the turnover-prone SWC champions are in trouble. The Cougars fumbled six times and lost five in a 49-25 victory over Rice

Missouri Tigers capture Classic

By The Associated Press

It was the Show-Me Classic — and the Missouri Tigers certainly showed Coach Norm Stewart how to squander most of a nine-point lead.

"We slowed down and let the other team catch up," said Stewart. "For about nine minutes we played catch-up offense."

Then Larry Drew began showing Stewart some of his Most Valuable Player form.

"He did a great job, didn't he?" said Stewart after watching Drew lead a 68-65 victory over Southern Illinois in the Show-Me finals Saturday night. "He really deserved the MVP award."

Drew scored 16 points, handed out eight assists and held the Salukis' high-scoring Milton Huggins to only nine points, 15 under his average. Drew's performance helped the Tigers pull out the game after Southern Illinois had cut their nine-point lead to one with 2:11 remaining.

The Show-Me Classic in Columbia, Mo., was one of several tournaments around the country over the weekend.

Duke, the nation's top-ranked team, defeated No. 14 North Carolina 78-68 in the finals of the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro, N.C. Ninth-ranked Syracuse won its own Carrier Classic by beating Iona 89-76. Lafayette upset No. 16 Rutgers 77-70 in the Jersey Classic finals in Piscataway, N.J.

Clemson won the IPTAY Tournament at Clemson, S.C., by beating Kent State 72-52. Wisconsin won the Wisconsin Invitational at Madison with a 66-63 decision over St. Louis. Arizona State beat New Mexico 104-100 in the finals of the Fiesta Classic in Tempe, Ariz. And Georgia State defeated James Madison 66-64 to win the James Madison Invitational at Harrisonburg, Va.

Elsewhere, No. 2 UCLA defeated Santa Clara 87-73; No. 3 Notre Dame routed Valparaiso 87-57; No. 4 Kansas blitzed Murray State 81-66; No. 5 Louisville stopped Tennessee 82-61; No. 8 Michigan turned back Alabama 99-84; No. 10 Kentucky crushed La Salle 109-77; No. 12 Southern Cal beat Utah 70-56; No. 13 Texas routed Brigham Young 96-57; No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas crushed No. 15 San Francisco 117-82; No. 17 Marquette defeated Northern Michigan 80-50; No. 19 Maryland downed Air Force 81-68 and No. 20 Indiana beat Morehead State 80-37.

After the Salukis had cut into most of Missouri's once-substantial lead, Drew had his hand in a key basket for the Tigers, setting up a layup for Brad Droy. That shot provided the Big Eight team with a 66-63 lead and it eventual winning points.

Several of Missouri's younger players also aided the Tiger effort, including Kirk Shawver, giving Stewart something else to be pleased about. "Freshmen are gaining valuable playing time with us," said Stewart. "They kept us in the game Friday night (against Eastern Kentucky) and got some important buckets in the final game. We've been able to use a lot of players and they're giving our starters a real break."

Mike Gminski scored 24 points, including eight free throws in the last three minutes, to help top-ranked Duke beat North Carolina. The Blue Devils overcame a poor start to catch their Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues.

"I was pleased we didn't get rattled and throw the game away," said Duke Coach Bill Foster, whose Blue Devils were down to the Tar Heels 6-0 before they could get a shot off and later trailed 19-10.

Gminski said it was the most physical game that the Blue Devils have played thus far this season.

"But I like that kind of game," he insisted. The splendid Duke center added that the nine-point deficit in the first half "was not enough to worry about. It's going to be a long season."

Sixth-ranked North Carolina State, a loser in the tourney's first round Friday night, bounced back to win the consolation game with a 77-70 decision over Wake Forest. Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney's 20 points and Clyde Austin's 19 led the Wolfpack.

Dale Shackelford scored 30 points and Roosevelt Bouie contributed 18 to lead Syracuse over Iona in a battle of Eastern powers. Iona Coach Jim Valvano chalked up the loss to a lack of experience.

"Syracuse has more experience than us," said Valvano. "They don't make too many mistakes. I think we played very, very well in the first 10 or 12 minutes, but then we started to hurt ourselves with silly fouls and turnovers and bad offensive plays."

Bob Falconiero's 25 points triggered Lafayette's upset of Rutgers. Larry Nance scored 17 points to pace Clemson over Kent State. Wes Matthews and Dan Hastings each converted two free throws in the final 30 seconds to lead Wisconsin over St. Louis. Arizona State trimmed New Mexico as Blake Taylor and Alton Lister scored 18 points apiece. Danny Fencher's 16 points powered Georgia State over James Madison.

Roy Hamilton scored 24 points and David Greenwood had 22 to lead UCLA over Santa Clara. Tracy Jackson's 16 points led Notre Dame over Valparaiso. The Irish had some small problems with Valparaiso's pressing zone defense before running away from the visitors.

Baseball owners look for best deal

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — "Let's make a deal."

That's usually how the conversation begins when baseball general managers meet in a lobby, a restaurant, a hallway — almost anywhere during baseball's winter meetings.

The meetings opened today and the trade action, if it follows past form, should keep things jumping. A year ago, 22 deals involving 53 players were completed at this convention.

"OK, you want to make a deal, we'll make a deal. I want your canoe."

"No problem. Just let me have your battleship."

That, according to New York Yankee Manager Bob Lemon, is how negotiations proceed. "Everybody wants something for nothing," said Lemon. "The trick is to get the something and give the nothing."

That is not always easy.

Take the Toronto Blue Jays, an expansion team still in the building stages. If you want to deal with the Jays, just look up Pat Gillick, the club's general manager. He's available, but that doesn't mean his best prospects are.

Gillick warmed up for the meetings by making a four-player swap with Houston last week and it was typical of the kind of trades he prefers to make. The top part of the deal sent catcher Alan Ashby from Toronto to Houston for pitcher Mark Lemongello. But, in addition to Lemongello, Gillick came away with a couple of young minor league prospects, outfielder Joe Cannon and shortstop Pedro Hernandez.

Most of Gillick's talent is in its developmental stages, like Cannon and Hernandez. And those are the commodities the Toronto GM wants to hang on to. So, when a familiar veteran name is offered for a couple of Blue Jay unknowns, expect Toronto to reject the offer.

"Suppose we get a guy who's 31 for two young prospects," Gillick explained. "He may do a good job for us for two years. Meanwhile, the two we give up can help the other club for eight or 10 years."

So teams looking for prospects will have to shop elsewhere. Sometimes the trades involve exchanging one team's prospects for the other's. That was the kind of swap the New York Yankees and Texas made last month. It was a 10-player exchange but the only familiar names were relief ace Sparky Lyle, who moved from the Yankees to the Rangers and outfielder Juan Beniquez, who went in the other direction. The other eight players were mostly "futures" who don't figure in the immediate plans of either team.

Many clubs came to the meetings with trading priorities set.

Pittsburgh would like a reliever to share the bullpen load that Kent Tekulve carried last season. The Yankees wouldn't mind adding a left-hander to replace Lyle as Rich Gossage's bullpen partner. The Chicago Cubs are hunting for a catcher. Minnesota and California have been talking with Twins outfielder Dan Ford the main subject. Baltimore is shopping for outfield help too and wouldn't mind a deal for Ford or Chet Lemon of the Chicago White Sox.

But players like Ford and Lemon are battleships and it will take more than canoes as bait to pry them loose.

Clemson's Pell considers Florida coaching job

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Clemson Coach Charley Pell says he'll talk to University of Florida officials about becoming Doug Dickey's replacement while one newspaper reports that he will indeed become the Gators' new head football coach.

"Pell will be named the new coach at Florida in a day or so, barring any last-minute and presently unforeseen changes," wrote David Lamm, executive sports editor of the Florida Times-Union at Jacksonville.

But Pell told the Greenville, S.C., News that his meeting with Florida officials doesn't mean he would take the post if offered.

"I'm not interested in leaving Clemson," he said. "That's a point I want to reiterate. But I don't think any person could rule out curiosity."

But the positives at Clemson are strong with me."

Meanwhile, the Orlando Sentinel Star reported today that Florida President Robert Q. Marston and search committee member Warren Cason had called both Pell and Southern Methodist's Ron Meyer about replacing Dickey.

Meyer confirmed he had been contacted, but told the newspaper, "I don't think it would be appropriate for me to say anything else. At this moment, I'm the head football coach at SMU and I'm excited about the direction our program is headed."

The Clemson coach said he has three recruiting appointments and a speaking engagement Monday and he said he would not postpone them. The speaking engagement is in Jacksonville Beach, Fla.

San Diego tests Chicago tonight

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two of the most inconsistent teams in the National Football League, the Chicago Bears and San Diego Chargers, will try to salvage something out of what has been a disappointing season at San Diego Stadium tonight.

The Chargers are slight favorites in the interconference game, to be nationally televised by ABC starting at 8 p.m. CST. A sellout crowd of more than 50,000 will attend the contest, one that many thought could be matching two playoff teams when the season started.

But that won't be the case.

The Bears earned a wild card berth in the National Conference playoffs with a 9-5 record last year and appeared to be a strong challenger for the NFC's Central Division championship this season after starting with three straight victories.

But suddenly they collapsed, losing eight straight games before bouncing back to win their last two outings, giving them a 5-8 record and a shot at a .500 season.

The Chargers, meanwhile, have played about as well as anyone at times this year and about as poorly as anyone at other times. They have won on the road — at Oakland under the Raiders and at Minnesota over the Vikings — and scored a one-sided victory at home over Denver. But San Diego also was clobbered by Detroit and Kansas City.

PRINCEVILLE, Hawaii (AP) — Andy North explained it very simply. "We did what we came to do and we're proud of it."

Hinkle Bradley win title

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Lon Hinkle and Pat Bradley birdied the first hole in a sudden death playoff Sunday for a single stroke victory worth $30,000 apiece in the Mixed Teams Golf Championships.

272 to share a $16,000 fourth-place purse.

Pate-Stacy won the 1977 tournament with a 1-stroke edge over Lopez-Strange.

Miller Barber and Sandra Palmer placed fifth 15-under par and took home $7,000 each. They were 68 for 273. And Jim Colbert-Silvia Bertolacini dropped from third place to sixth with a 274 score in the four-day event.

The mixed event, in its third year, attracted the top 10 LPGA players and six of the top 10 from the PGA.

Some of the top money earners on both the men's and women's tours failed to survive the cut when the teams were pared from 52 to 35 midway through the 72-hole tournament. Among them were teammates Lee Trevino, sixth on the PGA, and Donna Young, fifth on the LPGA. Also dropped were No. 2-ranked Gil Morgan, who has pocketed $267,459 so far this year and his partner Marlene Hage, and JoAnne Carner, fourth-ranked on the LPGA, and Lou Graham.

The format was the same as last year. Both golfers teed off, then switched balls. After their second swing, they alternated shots to the hole.

King leads Americans to Federation Cup title

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — The one they call The Old Girl, American tennis veteran Billie Jean King, provided the steady influence on the U.S. team that clinched the Federation Cup from Australia.

That fond appellation comes from her teammates — Chris Evert, with whom King won the decisive doubles match on Sunday, fellow veteran Rosie Casals and teen-age prodigy Tracy Austin.

The Americans became the first national team to win the Federation Cup in three successive years, beating Australia 2-1 as Evert and King outlasted Kerry Reid and Wendy Turnbull 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 in a 104-minute struggle Sunday.

Earlier, Reid had beaten Austin 6-3, 6-3 and Evert had downed Turnbull 3-6, 6-1, 4-1, setting up the crucial doubles match.

It was King, the 35-year-old team captain, who wrapped it up for the Americans, hammering a service that Reid couldn't handle for match point.

King and Evert tossed their rackets high in the air and fell into each other's arms as Casals rushed onto the court.

"We were concerned with our loss in the Wightman Cup (in Britain last month) and we knew we had to pull together and give it all we had," King said. "And that's exactly what we did."

The Australians, cheered by a large, loud home crowd, appeared on the verge of victory when they broke Evert's serve in the seventh game of the opening set, winning 6-4. But the American pair fought back strongly and twice broke Reid's service to wrap up the second set 6-1 in 23 minutes.

LaGarde may miss season

SEATTLE (AP) — Center Tom LaGarde may be lost to the Seattle SuperSonics for the rest of the regular National Basketball Association season after undergoing surgery on his right knee, doctors said.

"There was a lot of pride involved," said North, the U.S. Open champion. "Just because we represent the United States, we're the only team that has to win or people say we blew it."

The victory Sunday marked the United States' 14th in the 26 years the tournament has been held, but the Americans' first in three years.

"We made a lot of friends, and that's what this tournament is all about," Mahaffey said. "And Andy and I got to be closer, too. We'd never really known each other that well before. And we got to play with some guys we've never seen before. It was fun."

Mahaffey, the U.S. PGA champ, fired a final round 71 that gave him a 281 total, 7 strokes under par on the 6,940 yards of tropical beauty that make up the Makai course on Kauai, the westernmost of the Hawaiian Islands chain.

North, with a 70, was second at 283.

The Americans' 564 total was 10 shots in front of Australia, which came on to take second when Canada slipped badly in the late going.

North had a chance to catch Mahaffey in the individual scoring until he hit one in the water on the final hole.

Hinkle, ranked 16th in the PGA, and Bradley, No. 2 in the LPGA, shot two bogeys and were 2-over par on the 10th hole before they came back with five birdies to win on the 7,015-yard course.

"We won the coin toss and that was a good omen," said Hinkle. "I hit one about eight feet and it dropped in — thank you so much."

Defending champs Jerry Pate and Hollis Stacy sunk five birdies but it was only enough to lift them from fifth place for a third-place 17-under-par finish. They came in with a final rounds of 67 for a 271 finish and $12,000 apiece.

Nancy Lopez, the country's top woman golfer and her partner Curtis Strange, made a surge in the final round and picked up 5 strokes, too, but it was too late for them. They finished 6 strokes back with a 65 for a total of 283.
