

Houston's Goodwill has holiday problem — too much giving

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR

HOUSTON (AP) — One of the lessons of the holiday season is that it's better to give than to receive, but Houston residents have been so giving the local Goodwill Industries can't receive it all.

"We've got a horrendous problem here, one that's almost bigger than we can solve," said William Lufburrow, president of Goodwill. "We're just swamped, but we're glad to be swamped. It's the best season we've ever had."

He said collection boxes are running over, and drivers who used to make 50 pickups a day are lucky if they can make 30 now because of Houston's infamous traffic and the deluge of donations.

Lufburrow said some supermarkets have become irate about the overflowing collection boxes in their parking lots.

"Sometimes we empty boxes four times a day," he said. "When one store complained, we removed the box, but people kept putting stuff where the box had been."

It's even harder getting to all the people who have items at their homes they would like Goodwill to pick up, Lufburrow said.

"When I came here in 1965, if we got 150 telephone calls a week it was something, but now we're getting 1,000 calls a week," he said. "We make about 300 people mad at us a week because we can't get to them."

He said the biggest problem was getting the donated material into the Goodwill warehouses and getting it sorted. Workers sort 10-12 tons of clothing day alone, he added.

But they also have to tackle an assortment of donations ranging from art to automobiles.

"It's amazing what gets thrown away in Houston," he said. "We have a fantastic jewelry collection. It's not uncommon for people to give us fur coats or a house full of furniture. We've gotten three automobiles in the last two months."

"And the stuff is so much higher quality here, I think it really says something about the economy," Lufburrow said.

The Goodwill president said no other city in the country has this problem. For some, he said, just the opposite is true.

"Most of my colleagues around the country are trying to figure out where to get material next week. Even my colleague in Dallas can't believe what's happening here," he said with a laugh. "Nobody is having the kind of problem we have here."

STANTON — From the way she was going about her business, Donna Gossett appeared to enjoy working in the drug store, which she would classify more as a museum than a modernistic pharmacy.

Could be she's right. She's a "soda jerk," which is much more descriptive of what she does than just about any euphemism you could conjure up.

She concocts savory sodas and "shakes" in an atmosphere she would call antiquated. You get the impression she halfway thinks she really does work in a museum.

The chrome dispensaries behind the fountain bar are from an era unknown to this 17-year-old gal.

Glenn Brown, who operates the only drug store in Stanton, calls it old-fashioned.

He's right. His place, so to speak, is right out of Fort Davis, which, too, has one of the few old-timey soda fountains in the land. The speciality there is fountain Cokes.

But Ms. Gossett doesn't seem to be quite impressed with the antiquated set up.

"How I feel about it all is that it is not 'old-fashioned,'" she allowed. "It's out of date."

To those prone to the nostalgia, it's charming — even though the contraption which makes the carbonated water is broken down, and Brown can't seem to find anyone who knows how to fix it.

Old-fashioned soda fountain repairmen are about as rare, or more

Concorde makes Midland landing; Hundreds watch

While hundreds of West Texans witnessed the historic event from nearby, an SST Supersonic Concorde sailed out of a clear sky about 12:25 p.m. today and landed at Midland Regional Airport without incident.

An even larger crowd of onlookers watched as the Concorde roared noisily up the airport's runway and took off for Oklahoma City, Okla., about an hour later.

The controversial aircraft's brief stay, which occasioned unprecedented tight security for a non-Presidential visit, marked a first for the Midland-Odessa area.

Today's trip from Denver, Colo., was a required proving flight for the giant airplane.

The stopover was announced last week by Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation, and Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr.

The plane, owned by Braniff Airlines, was being checked out before beginning flights to and from Europe out of Dallas Fort Worth Airport.

The British Airways plane carried a Braniff crew and had Federal Aviation Administration personnel on board. The Midland airport is one of few in Texas that can accommodate the Concorde, Banks said. Completion of new ramps during renovation and expansion of the airport made the flight possible only within the past few weeks.

Midland originally was not on Braniff's list of stops. But Banks was called about a week ago to see if he wanted to include the city on the plan's tour of selected U.S. airports.

The Concorde has been at the center of controversy on the East Coast concerning noise pollution and other factors.

Yet some bystanders today described the jetliner as quieter than a conventional commercial aircraft which landed moments before the Concorde.

Banks said last week the landing in Midland was a move to show the aircraft can land at non-major airports inside the United States.

The visit also was to promote the planned move by Braniff to begin

Agency's legal status discussed

By JIM STEINBERG
R-T News Staff

The Midland Community Action Agency is not dependent on local governmental bodies for its existence, a federal poverty program funding administrator said Monday night.

"We have been somewhat surprised and displeased to see this agency (the MCAA) used as a political football during the recent political campaign for the county commissioners race," Love Johnson, field representative of Community Services Administration, told members of the MCAA executive board at their regular monthly meeting.

"One of my reasons for being here tonight is to explain the legal status of the agency," he added.

"Community action agency is something of a misleading term to be used in connection with this agency, for it is actually a 'limited purpose agency,' not required to comply with the same regulations and guidelines established for community action agencies," he explained.

The basic difference, Johnson said, is that a limited purpose agency such as the MCAA is not designated at the request of local governments and therefore does not rely on their support for continued existence.

Johnson told MCAA board members that in view of the history of the agency, the CSA at one point viewed continued funding here with "trepidation."

He said it was County Commissioner Charlie Welch who persuaded CSA that the needs of the area justified giving the agency a "second chance."

And of that "second chance," Johnson said, the CSA was "somewhat pleased but we don't believe that enough progress has been made."

Johnson told board members he would like to see the agency make "a greater impact on the community."

He challenged executive board members to look at the present budget and think of ways to accomplish the same goals with greater efficiency.

Johnson also stressed the importance of funding programs that would lead to making people more self-suffi-

Vance, attending Meir funeral, stresses flexibility in negotiations

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Shutting Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance called on Israel to be flexible in negotiations for a peace treaty with Egypt, said he discussed "some new ideas" with President Anwar Sadat and reported "good progress."

Vance made his comments at a news conference in Cairo Monday, flew to Israel today for the funeral of former Prime Minister Golda Meir, then flew back to Cairo for more talks with Sadat. He returns to Israel on Wednesday.

During today's stopover in Israel, Vance said Mrs. Meir was "an outstanding figure, one of the great leaders of the world. In her memory, we rededicate ourselves to her goal and our goal of finding a lasting peace in the Middle East."

Before the services he conferred for an hour with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan over coffee at a Ben Gurion Airport lounge. No details were released, but there seemed little doubt that Vance and Dayan surveyed prospects for wrapping up an agreement by Sunday, the target date set in the Camp David accords. Israeli sources said Defense Minister Ezer Weizman also attended the Vance Dayan meeting.

Vance remained at the airport to greet Prime Minister Menachem Begin on his return from the Nobel Peace Prize ceremonies in Oslo, Norway. Begin and Sadat won the 1978 prize for their Mideast peace efforts. Sadat, who conferred with Vance Sunday and Monday, sent an aide to represent him in Oslo.

At his Cairo news conference Monday, Vance called on Israel to "approach the negotiations in a flexible fashion," and said "good progress" was made on the "possibility of interpretative notes or an exchange of letters on a number of items" still outstanding.

Vance is proposing compromises to try to break the deadlock that recently developed over two main issues.

Egypt has proposed a timetable be set for elections leading to Palestinian autonomy in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip, but the Israelis are resisting, saying the issue is too complex and a failure to meet the timetable would give Egypt an excuse to abrogate the treaty.

Cyanide forced on some cultists

NEW YORK (AP) — At least 70 of the Peoples Temple cult members who died in the mass murder-suicide at Jonestown, Guyana, were given cyanide by injection, the New York Times said today in a story that quoted Guyanese officials.

The Times said the disclosure came from well-placed Guyanese government sources who said the placement of the injections, high on the upper arm, made it unlikely that they were self-administered.

Most of the 70 persons injected were adults and among them was Christine Miller, the one woman identified by survivors as having been openly against the mass suicide plan of cult leader the Rev. Jim Jones, the report said.

The Times also reported the discovery that several small bottles labeled as liquid Valium, a tranquilizer, the contents of which evidently were swallowed by cult members, actually contained cyanide.

It also said that authorities have not positively established that Jones, one of two persons found dead from gunshots, actually took his own life. The other gunshot death was that of Annie Moore, the commune's senior nurse, who was found in Jones' house, near a safe in a file cabinet. Authorities said her position indicated she was shot from behind as she turned, the Times said.

In reconstructing the death ritual, authorities have concluded that it took about five hours to complete the task of administering poisoned punch and lethal injections to the more than 900 cultists who died.

The poison drink brought death in about five minutes. Those who drank the cyanide were led away to the perimeter of the settlement and helped to sit down and die so that bodies did not pile up around the tables where the poison punch was dispensed.

Clements reveals campaign expenses topped $7 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. elect Bill Clements made it official Monday that he spent over $7 million in his quest for the Texas chief executive's job.

His campaign finance report filed with Secretary of State Steve Oaks shows expenditures totaling $807,722 since Clements filed his previous report on Nov. 1.

Added to earlier reports, Clements' spending totaled $7,189,722 since he began running for governor.

Clements reported $675,782 in donations since his Nov. 1 report, including $350,000 in loans guaranteed by the candidate.

Attorney General John Hill, whom Clements defeated, reported expenditures of between $3 million and $4 million — an exact total is difficult to obtain because of transfers between two Hill campaign treasuries.

Clements' report shows an in-kind contribution of $4,578 in printing and distribution costs by Donald R.

Howard, president of Accelerated Christian Education in Lewisville.

Howard has acknowledged paying for 65,000 leaflets distributed at churches the Sunday before election day that say Clements would work for repeal of state laws regulating church-operated child care institutions.

Hill contends the leaflets may have cost him the election and implied to those who read them that he was not a Christian while Clements was.

Also shown was a $1,554 payment to Horticultural Printing Supply of Dallas, whom Clements campaigners say printed another 40,000 of the leaflets for the Clements organization itself.

Major contributors to the Clements campaign include National Republican Governors Campaign Committee, $15,000; Dr. Ralph F. Coleman, $8,000; Bob J. Perry, Houston, $7,500; J.C. Walter Jr., Houston, $7,500; John Connally Citizens Forum, Houston, $1,000; and John R. Blocker, Houston, $5,000.

RRC turns down interim permit

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission Monday denied another request by the Whalen Corp. of Dallas to grant an interim permit to resume brine disposal operations at Whalen Lake in Andrews County.

Commissioners Monday unanimously rejected the company's proposal and recommendations of the commission's oil and gas division staff to reopen the facility which has been shut down since Oct. 23 when commissioners noted "no signs" of pollution cleanup at the lake.

It was the second time Whalen Corp. had asked for an interim permit pending the outcome of a Railroad Commission decision on an Oct. 26 hearing on the future of brine disposal at the playa lake.

However, a spokesman said today that the action was "significant" since it marked the first time the commission had rejected a permit request after the company had taken corrective action.

Final ruling on the disposal permits may come as late as Jan. 15, the deadline for which Whalen Corp. has to file its closing statement to the commission's hearing.

Environmentalists and the U.S. Interior Department claim oil material has accumulated in the lake, creating a threat to migratory waterfowl that land on the lake.

Commission Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioner John Poerner indicated in Monday's commission hearing that they wanted the lake cleaned before the seven-week old disposal ban is lifted.

Oil well operators use the lake to dispose of brine and other oil field wastes which are by-products of drilling operations in the Permian Basin. Without a disposal facility, Whalen Corp. has claimed many operators will have to shut down.

The corporation offered, as part of an interim solution, to install equipment to remove oil from brine before discharging it into the lake. The company also said it would conduct beach clean up operations, limit oil discharge, reduce operation hours and increase inspections.

Railroad Commission field staff in Midland, along with agents of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, have been monitoring activities at Whalen Lake since early November. Poerner said he wanted to see the lake get a "fresh start" before the commission could consider reopening the facility.

Whalen Corp. officials contend that continued shutdown of Whalen Lake could result in the loss of up to 42,000 barrels of oil per month.

Grand jury to decide action taken after school bus crash

ROBY, Texas (AP) — A grand jury will decide whether a 21-year-old Snyder man will be charged in the deadly collision Friday of the truck he was driving and a school bus taking basketball players to a tournament.

Fisher County Attorney Rudy Hamrick said after he and District Attorney Frank Ginzler heard the evidence they decided to present it to grand jurors because it is "quite a serious matter."

The truck driver, William Clarence Dixon, 21, has been convicted of 13 traffic violations since May 1975 — including seven convictions last year, according to Texas Department of Public Safety files.

The accident at the intersection of U.S. 180 and Farm Road 611, 11 miles west of Roby, killed four McCaulley High School students and injured 21 other persons. Several are still fighting for survival in area hospitals.

Department of Public Safety files show that Dixon was charged with being a habitual bad driver, and a hearing was set for Jan. 3, 1978.

However, an Abilene justice of the peace dismissed the complaint when the mailed court summons was returned marked undeliverable, said DPS spokesman Richard Faught.

"This is the normal procedure in most incidences," Faught said. "When the mail is not received by the individual, the judge will dismiss it."

Witnesses to the accident told police the truck ran a stop sign and flashing red light on the farm road and rammed the bus broadside, splitting it in two.

Besides the deaths, six persons were critically injured in the twisted wreckage, including Dixon. Three persons were still listed in critical condition early today at an Abilene hospital.

Kathy Wilkerson, 16, remained in very critical condition, while high school principal Doyle Bell and Darren Jeffrey, 14, were listed in critical condition. Miss Wilkerson's sister and Jeffrey's cousin were killed in the crash.

The school bus was carrying the girls' and boys' basketball teams from McCaulley, Texas, to Hermleigh, another West Texas community about 40 miles away.

McCaulley High School has been closed until Jan. 2 because most of the 33 students in high school were involved in the crash.

Services were held Sunday in nearby Sylvester for Loida Perales, 17. Funerals were held Monday in McCaulley and Sylvester for Bonnie Pippin, Rita May Wilkerson and Michael Britt Jeffrey.

"It's one of the things they don't teach you in college. You just don't know what to do when all of your students are hurt or killed," said a McCaulley school teacher who asked not to be identified.

Bandits take royalty check from woman

BIG SPRING — Howard County sheriff's deputies are on the lookout for two men who allegedly held up an 83-year-old Vincent woman at her rural home Sunday afternoon, ripped out her telephone, got her $2,000 oil royalty check and left her unarmed, Chief Deputy Sheriff Bill Whitton said today.

The woman, Fern Winters, told deputies two men broke into her home, about 25 miles northeast of here, and she caught them ransacking her bedroom.

"She said they didn't even touch her," Whitton said.

"The men demanded money of her. One of us was wielding a pistol, she told deputies.

"She told them," Whitton said, "if they were going to kill her to go ahead and do it, because she had lived long enough anyway."

Whitton said her attitude, strangely, may have saved her from harm.

The men escaped with the royalty check for more than $2,000 and dropped one for $306 on their way out. Whitton said he found that check himself in the investigation later Sunday.

He said the woman's son, Bill Winters, called the sheriff's office from his nearby home after he went to check on his mother that night.

Cold nights to get colder

The weatherman is predicting that cold temperatures of late will get even colder over the next two days.

Tonight's low should hang around the middle 20s and Wednesday's high is expected to be in the upper 40s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Adding to the chill is the wind, which is expected to blow from the north at 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Monday was another cold day, serving to remind residents that winter officially is right around the corner — arriving on Dec. 22. The high temperature Monday was 51 degrees. The record high for Dec. 11 is 79 degrees set in 1939.

Temperatures dropped to a low of 22 degrees overnight, forcing early morning motorists to scrape frost off their windshields and making it a little more difficult to turn over car engines. The record low for today is 12 degrees set in 1966.

Golda Meir buried in hilltop cemetery today

JERUSALEM (AP) — Golda Meir, the iron-willed grandmother who led Israel in peace and war, was buried in a plain pine coffin on a Jerusalem hilltop today among other pioneer leaders of the Jewish state. An army chaplain prayed for peace as the grave was filled.

Pouring rain deepened the gloom Israelis felt as they watched the televised state funeral.

The former prime minister, who died Friday at the age of 80, was interred on Mount Herzl, before a pine tree, in a section of the national cemetery called The Plot of the Nation's Great. The grave was next to that of the prime minister she succeeded in 1969, Levi Eshkol.

President Yitzhak Navon and Prime Minister Menachem Begin headed 1,000 Israeli officials, foreign representatives, relatives and friends invited to the graveside service.

Ten army chaplains chanted prayers as the coffin was carried into the burial ground by six army generals and two police inspectors. An honor guard of 60 cadets stood at attention, soaked by the rain, and the mourners huddled under umbrellas.

Mrs. Meir's son, Menachem, chanted Kaddish, the Jewish prayer for the dead, as the Israeli flag was removed from the coffin and it was lowered into the ground.

"Remember her, oh Lord, with mercy," the army's chief rabbi, Maj. Gen. Gad Navon, prayed.

Members of the family dropped lumps of earth into the grave, and army chaplains filled it with earth from straw baskets. Women soldiers placed wreaths on the mound, and an army chaplain called out:

"Mrs. Golda Meir... in the name of the citizens who respect you... in the name of your grieving family... we ask that you go to your rest in peace. May your destiny and our destiny be that of peace."

A military escort brought the flag-draped coffin to Mount Herzl after a memorial service in the Chagall Hall of the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

The memorial service was to have been held in the plaza in front of the Knesset, where the body lay in state Monday and Monday night. It was moved indoors because of the rain, and the hall could accommodate only about 400 of the invited guests. The Israeli people watched on television. The service was a simple one, in accordance with Mrs. Meir's wish that there be no eulogies and no memorials to her. The Cabinet also decided that there would be no official mourning period since that is normally done only for presidents and prime ministers who die in office.

Gen. Navon prayed and Menachem Meir intoned Kaddish. Six army generals carried the coffin from the hall to a black-draped military command car, and an honor guard of women soldiers walked four abreast carrying the funeral wreaths.

An estimated 200,000 Israelis came from all over the country to stream past the coffin as it lay in state. Throughout the night thousands braved the chill air and intermittent rain that mixed with the tears on many cheeks.

"It's not that she was a leader," said a woman soldier. "She was our leader, she was our mother."

"It's the only place to be tonight," said Reuven Stein of Jerusalem.

Gas addition boosts permits

LAMESA — A $120,000 addition to the Lamesa Cotton Gin Oil Mill helped to push the November building permits here over $190,000 and the year's total past the $2 million mark with a month left in 1978.

The November permits were for more than four times the total in October, even though there were only four permits issued. The figures were released by Lamesa City Inspector L.E. Petty this week.

Two new structure permits and two remodeling permits were issued in Lamesa during November for a total of $190,750, which pushed the total to 87 permits worth $2,054,728.

The new commercial structure permit was issued to the Lamesa Cotton Oil Mill for construction of a warehouse for $120,000. The other new structure permit was issued to Dudley Maltzberger for a residence on Woody Road for $50,000.

Remodeling and addition work to the Senior Citizen Center here took the largest share of the remodeling permits with $20,000 expended.

He warned that inflation would make the agency's present level of performance impossible to achieve unless prudent thought is given to streamlining the staff.

Along those lines, he suggested the board take a hard look at the operation of its three neighborhood centers and recommended some thought be given to a consolidation of services.

Johnson will be in Midland inspecting MCAA operations through Wednesday.

RRC postpones hearing pending appointment

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas Railroad Commission hearing on United Parcel Service's application to serve Texas has been postponed until a replacement for former Commissioner Jon Newton is named.

Newton resigned last week because of natural gas discoveries on land inherited by his wife. Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he would name Newton's replacement later this month.

The full commission was scheduled Monday to hear the company's request for authority to transport packages between Texas cities. UPS now only has authority to carry packages between Texas and other states. Some 23 companies have protested the UPS application.

Tragedy of Jonestown may benefit Guyana

BOSTON (AP) — The horror and tragedy of the Peoples Temple cult in Guyana has placed the troubled South American nation in the public eye — and Guyana may benefit, its minister of state says.

"For better or worse, Guyana has been brought to the attention of the American people," Christopher A. Nascimento said Monday in remarks at the Boston University School of Public Communication.

He said the media have produced "millions of words" and "miles of film" on the Jonestown tragedy, but have ignored Guyana's stagnant economy — a major reason the cult was welcomed by the government.

"The things we export are depressed on the market," he said, "and the things we import are inflationary. We are on the verge of being driven to bankruptcy."

Nascimento said U.S. tariff barriers have priced Guyana and other Third World countries out of world trade.

"To understand why we would welcome a group of Americans like the Peoples Temple, you have to understand that we are at the stage of economic development that Americans were when they were pioneering the West," Nascimento said.

The cult offered Guyana agricultural talent to stimulate the nation's economy, he said.

"They proved to be very productive and if anyone asked me a week before the tragedy if it could happen, I would have laughed at them," Nascimento said.

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury investigating the Guyana slayings of U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan has subpoenaed former cult member Terri Buford, believed to have been a top aide to the Rev. Jim Jones, U.S. Attorney G. William Hunter said Monday.

Hunter declined to say when Ms. Buford, 36, would appear before the secret panel, which next meets in San Francisco on Wednesday.

The grand jury is investigating whether a conspiracy to kill Ryan was hatched in this country.

Ms. Buford, who defectured from the temple in October, asked for immunity from prosecution but was refused, Hunter said.

Her lawyer, Mark Lane, was in Jonestown with attorney Charles Garry on Nov. 18 when Ryan and four others were gunned down. Jones, leader of the Peoples Temple, and more than 900 followers later died in a ritual suicide. Lane has not been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury, Hunter said.

Eleven surviving Temple members who had returned from Guyana were summoned last Friday to appear before the panel. Most of them said they felt they needed legal counsel and were allowed to delay their appearances until Wednesday.

The U.S. Public Defenders Office said 10 attorneys, chosen from a volunteer panel, will advise the witnesses.

Venus probes give rise to new speculation

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Scientists, ready unsettled by information from the Venus probes, expect more revelations from the mass of newly obtained data on Earth's nearest planetary neighbor.

"There is a rich spectrum of material still there waiting to be analyzed," said Harvard University physicist Michael McElroy, one of scores of scientists gathered at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center here.

and an afterbody made of aluminum.

The information, showing 100 times more of the inert gas argon-36 in Venus' atmosphere than Earth's and as much as 1,000 times more than in the atmosphere of Mars, caused scientists to speculate the planets were not created in same way, as had been previously believed.

Letter bombs hurt 2

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Christmas letter-bombs blew up in the face of a prison officer's wife and in the hands of a postman today, seriously injuring them. Police later defused another bomb.

Argon-36 cannot be created after a planet's formation, and if Venus was formed the way Earth and Mars were, it probably would have about the same amount.

That means, the scientists said, that either Venus was formed from different substances than other planets in the solar system or that the

Odessa to expend grant mostly for benefit of youth

ODESSA — Odessa's youth will benefit from a significant portion of next year's federal community development grant, the Odessa City Council decided Monday night.

The 1979-80 entitlement grant of the HUD program for Odessa is $1,456,000.

Councilmen voted to spend $475,000 for construction on the Odessa Girls Club, $125,000 for completion of the Odessa Boys Club and $327,000 for construction of an abused youth shelter in the city.

Paving also got $240,000 from the grant, along with $50,000 for landscaping the Barbara Johnson Human Resources Center, $60,000 for demolition of unsafe buildings and $80,000 for a signalization program.

Administering the program will cost $92,336 of the federal tax money. The remaining $6,664 will be left in a contingency fund.

The council also set projects to be listed in the city's application for discretionary funds to be awarded competitively to cities.

Of the $500,000 grant the city will apply for, $100,000 will go for housing rehabilitation loans only, $200,000 for paving and $200,000 for waterline replacement.

The council rejected a suggestion to ask for $150,000 for housing rehabilitation.

An open letter:

Greetings:

It is with a heavy heart that we have announced the sale of The Midland Reporter-Telegram, which has been owned and published by the Allison family since Aug. 15, 1940, and which has been our life, so to speak, since that time.

My late husband, James N. Allison Sr., was the publisher from 1940 until his death on Jan. 14, 1975. Our son, James N. Allison Jr., took over as publisher at that time, serving until his death on August 31 of this year.

Since I am not physically able to assume active management of the newspaper, we determined that it would be in the best interest of all concerned to sell The Reporter-Telegram to an honorable, reliable, capable newspaper organization, which would continue to publish the very best daily newspaper possible in serving Midland and West Texas.

Thus, I am pleased to relinquish the reins of The Reporter-Telegram to The Hearst Corporation, which was selected from a large number of publishing firms which had displayed interest in acquiring the newspaper.

A careful screening process was conducted over a period of months before it was determined, after due consideration, to sell to the Hearst organization.

We have visited at length on several occasions in recent weeks with Mr. Frank A. Bennack Jr., executive vice president of the Hearst firm, and his associates, and we are confident that they are interested in and capable of giving Midland an excellent newspaper, continuing the high goals and standards of excellence which the Allisons always have tried to provide. In fact, they have said that they intend to make The Reporter-Telegram the best newspaper in its size category anywhere.

We also have been assured by the new owners that they will carry on the tradition of community service and leadership which The Reporter-Telegram always has attempted to furnish.

Midland and Midlanders have been exceptionally good to us through the years and we are grateful for their great support and cooperation in so many ways. Thank you one-and-all for your marvelous cooperation and your endearing friendship.

It is our sincere hope that you will continue to support in like, magnificent fashion the new owners who are pledged to serve you to the very best of their ability. It is our wish that you will continue to work with them, as you have with us, in building an even bigger and better Midland.

We also wish to express our personal appreciation to all of the loyal employees of The Reporter-Telegram, many of whom have been with us for a long period of time. We couldn't have built the fine newspaper which we have without you, and we are grateful to you. We extend all best wishes to each of you always.

We most certainly will miss our direct association with The Reporter-Telegram, but this is made much easier in the knowledge that the future operation of the newspaper is in good, capable hands.

God bless you, one and all.
Sincerely,
Helon Y. Allison,
Chairman of the Board.

They fell so gently

Leaves falling gently, silently to the ground from the limbs of the magnificent trees to which they had clung for many, weeks, long have attracted the interest and attention of poets.

And this is perfectly all right, insofar as we are concerned.

But have YOU ever seen so many leaves lying more or less undisturbed immediately beneath the stately trees from which they so recently departed, this late in the season?

At least this is the situation out our way, and they look so calm and restful that we hesitate to disturb them. (And this is about as good an excuse as any.)

But actually, the leaves have been somewhat later than usual in biting the dust this fall, and, believe-it-or-not, the chill winds of the last several days have not moved them — and neither have we.

But a ground wind yet will come along to move our peaceful leaves onto someone else's yard, in order for another neighbor's leaves to find a permanent place on our property. And that's the way it is with leaves this season.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

He still works to free others

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Three years ago, a blinded and maimed prisoner cried out to us from a Cuban prison. Tony Cuesta smuggled letters to us about the brutal prison conditions, knowing he would be punished for it.

"I am sure that I will never leave this prison alive," he wrote, "and there is nothing anyone can do about it." But miraculously, Cuesta did leave the prison alive, and he walked into our office the other day like a ghost from the past.

The indomitable Cuesta has been fighting against Cuban dictators — first to oust Fulgencio Batista, then to overthrow Fidel Castro — since 1958. Cuesta's private war against Castro almost ended in May 1966, when the commando pulled the pin on a hand grenade to destroy himself and his burning boat rather than surrender to Castro's patrol boats.

His suicide attempt was a grisly failure. The grenade blew off his left hand and blinded him, and he was thrown into one of Castro's infamous political prisons.

Despite primitive medical care, hunger, harassment and brutality at the hands of Castro's prison guards, Cuesta managed to survive. He also managed to keep fighting. He conducted clandestine religious services in the prison, and he smuggled out letters of protest to us.

His personal battle is won, but Cuesta has a new cause to fight for:

the freedom of the prisoners still languishing in Castro's prisons. He told us he won't rest until the remaining 3,500 political prisoners have been released and permitted to come to this country.

The biggest obstacle is not Castro, who has suddenly become more lenient, but the United States. Cuesta is outraged that the Justice Department won't permit the Cuban prisoners to enter en masse, but insists on screening each one to weed out Castro agents and common criminals.

The department until recently had been processing about two dozen cases a month. Then Attorney General Griffin Bell announced that prisoners would be processed at whatever rate Castro chooses to release them. This should increase the rate to about 400 a month.

At the same time, Bell has approved the mass admission of 21,875 refugees from Southeast Asia and another 1,000 from Lebanon. They'll be brought here en masse, while the Cubans are processed one at a time.

CAPITAL GAMES:

Political control of the economy: hazardous

By GRACE-MARIE ARNETT
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — "One of the gravest threats to a rational economic policy arises when an incumbent president seeks re-election," says Edward R. Tuft, a Yale political science professor.

With economic issues at the top of the voters' priority lists and with an incumbent President who can expect challenges from both political parties, actions taken by President Carter in 1979 could prove dangerous for the American economy.

"I will not impose wage and price controls," President Carter has said on numerous occasions this year.

"I will not impose wage and price controls," President Nixon said repeatedly in the months before he slapped on controls in August of 1971.

They don't work, they create distortions in the economy and price pressure builds so that inflation balloons when the controls are relaxed, both presidents argued.

Yet the majority of the voters believe controls are the answer to double digit inflation, with some polls showing public support for them as high as 80 percent.

In 1971, Nixon aides Charles Colson and H.R. Haldeman reported that Nixon was in trouble with the electorate over economic conditions, particularly inflation.

President Carter himself has acknowledged recently that inflation is the single most threatening force in the economy today.

"According to Colson, the decision to impose the wage-price freeze was based largely on polls which showed that it was essential that the president take forceful action to bring inflation under control," Tuft says in his newly released book, "Political Control of the Economy." Tuft covered the 1976 presidential campaign for Newsweek.

If history is any indicator, President Carter can be expected to clamp down on the economy in 1979 in anticipation of a short-term recovery in the 1980 presidential election year, thereby enhancing his chances for a second term.

There already are signs the plan may be in the works:

— To get inflation under control, the Federal Reserve Board is tightening the money supply, and driving interest rates up.

— Social Security taxes are scheduled to increase dramatically in January, taking more money out of the public's pockets and slowing the economy.

— Mr. Carter has said he will hold outlays in the 1979-80 budget to "about" 21 percent of the gross national product, down from the current 21.5 percent. (Every tenth of a percent represents $2.5 billion.)

According to Tuft, Nixon and his advisers planned the same slowing of the economy the year before the election, then fired it up during the election year to boost re-election prospects.

"The politicians' economic strategy is to turn on the spigot surely and swiftly and fill the trough so that it counts with the electorate," Tuft says.

The government can do this almost too easily by pre-election increases in transfer payments such as welfare, Social Security and unemployment insurance and veterans' benefits. In 1972, Nixon increased benefits to an estimated 75 million voting-age Americans.

If timed properly, "there is a short period of good feeling toward incumbents when pre-election economic extravaganzas have not yet been burnt up by their post-election costs," Tuft said.

Tuft's statistical evidence backing his theory is overwhelming. In the main, unemployment has bottomed out every fourth November.

The median rate of growth in real disposable income was 3.3 percent higher in years when the incumbent president sought re-election than in all other years (1.7 percent).

January, 1979, is expected to mark the beginning of the 1980 presidential campaign. But while Republicans and Democratic challengers are trudging around in the snows of New Hampshire trying to win votes, President Carter and his aides may well be waging their own unique campaign to manipulate the economy to the incumbent's advantage for a 1980 "quick fix."

A CHANGING WORLD:

South African sanctions are foolish—and futile

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — As the left-wing U.S. outcries continue for economic sanctions against South Africa and the dismantling of American investments in this nation that is a strategically important friend of the West, a visit here offers clear and formidable evidence that such moves would be both foolish and futile.

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, certain church organizations and the general run of ultraliberals have clamored for punitive economic actions against South Africa in the interests of what they claim is a better deal for this nation's 17 million blacks.

They plainly don't know what they are talking about. The action they demand would be counterproductive insofar as helping the blacks is concerned. And it could cause critical damage to the United States.

First, the blacks. American industries located here, 300 to 400 controlled by U.S. money, are doing more to give blacks greater work opportunity than any other segment of South African society. Ford, General Motors, the mining industry, International Business Machines and several others, are in the forefront regarding better jobs for blacks, better housing and increased educational opportunities.

The government is moving, perhaps too slowly, but definitely in the direction of giving blacks greater vertical mobility (promotion) in the mining industry and other fields. And, it is clear that only the Communist world would benefit from a boycott-induced trade slump in South Africa. "For the black people, it (sanctions and-or disinvestment) would be disastrous," said Anna Scheepers, president of the Garment Workers Union of South Africa. "If the United States has the best interest of blacks at heart, then they will avoid mandatory sanctions against this country." Several other labor leaders echo her words.

Sanctions also would be futile, disinvestment the same, and worse. A banker who asked not to be named had this to say: "We have been attacked continually, so we have had to take steps to be self-sufficient in event of sanctions. Except for oil, we can be self-sufficient and we don't believe we are vulnerable.

"Also, by next year our program of extracting oil from coal will produce 40 percent of our needs and this can be stretched.

"We are not pessimistic but we don't want to be caught unawares. Also, you must remember, there is plenty of evidence that sanctions are not practical to police. We simply do not take the threat too seriously, although we are prepared to deal with it."

South African leaders also are quick to recall statements by qualified Americans on the lack of sense in U.S. sanctions. They note, for instance, that Fred Bergsten, U.S. assistant Treasury secretary, told Congress, "The hard fact is that South Africa has more cards to play in this area (sanctions and disinvestment) than we do. If South Africa chose to retaliate in the field of trade, they could cause considerable pain to many people in the United States."

And, from Minister of Labor and Mines, S.P. Botha, "We would survive sanctions for some time." Then, in dards: "We have been prepared for sanctions for some time!" Then, in response to my question on retribution against America, he said, "If we survive then retribution becomes a question. Up to now our policy has been not to counterattack, but we must consider economic realities."

The "realities" Botha (no relation to Prime Minister Pieter Botha or Foreign Minister Pik Botha) speaks of relate to these facts: South Africa is the world's largest producer of gold, platinum, gem diamonds, chrome, vanadium, manganese, andalusite group minerals, vermiculite and certain asbestos fibers. If sanctions occur, they could withhold these critical minerals, five of which are not available in the United States. Or, if, as is a constant fear here, the Soviets and other Communists win control of southern Africa, the Reds then would control 97 percent of the world's platinum, 97 percent of vanadium, 93 percent of gold and majority holdings in several other strategic minerals.

However, several industrial and government officials doubted that South Africa would go the route of retribution. "Our longtime philosophy," said John Lang, spokesman for the mining industry, "has been that we do not mix world politics with world economics.

Retribution is not part of our makeup. Some countries have tried this and botched it for themselves. I think our policy reflects the truly friendly nature of our people and our desire to get along with America."

Disinvestment, the recall of U.S. industries here, would also fail — for two very specific reasons. "You have a $2 billion investment here," my banker friend said.

"All that would happen would be that the industries would change hands — be sold to the Japanese or other investors and at bargain prices because you would have to get out. Also, you would be required to transfer your funds out of our country at a loss, thus suffering a double loss."

There are other reasons why sanctions and disinvestment would not be in the best interest of America. In short, they would hurt the United States more than South Africa and they would benefit the Soviet Union, other Communists and the neighboring terrorists who are the darlings of U.N. envoy Young and American left-wingers.

HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors were expected today to hear the voice of the mysterious "DMR," an otherwise unidentified extortionist who threatened to kill millionaire Cullen Davis. Prosecutors said they would play two tape-recorded telephone calls from "DMR" to the suburban Fort Worth residence Davis shared with his girlfriend Karen Master. They maintain it is not

The Fort Worth industrialist is on trial here accused of ordering McCrory last August to murder Davis' divorcee and others. Jurors have listened several times to tape-recorded conversations between Davis and McCrory in which the judge's death was discussed.

One of two FBI agents involved in the extortion probe, testified Monday that Davis heard the telephone tapes and "said he did not recognize the voice."

Special Agents Bobby Oakley and James Acree both disputed defense claims that Davis supplied them last December with McCrory's name as a suspect.

"He said he had no idea who it was," Oakley said. The defense contends Davis' estranged wife schemed with McCrory and karate instructor Pat Burleson and framed Davis on the murder-hire charge. His legal team would like the jury to believe that the FBI failure to snare the extortionist contributed to the defendant's distrust of law enforcement agencies.

Such distrust, the lawyers reason, might explain why Davis would take matters into his own hands in an attempt to expose McCrory and others linked to the alleged frameup.

The bottom line of the defense theory would be a partial explanation why Davis was engaging McCrory in the incriminating conversations.

Much of Monday's testimony dealt with plots or threats to kill the dark-haired defendant.

The DMR letter read: "I have a contract to see that you don't live to see Christmas. If you don't want this contract filled, get 10,000 dollars in twenty dollar bills together, run an ad in the Star Telegram in the personal section reading DMR call home and a phone no. Do this right, no cops, and I will see that you live and also tell you who put out the contract on you."

Davis inserted the "DMR Call Home" message and his phone number in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram but never talked with the caller.

Earlier Monday, ex-convict Gene Lucas, 38, testified that McCrory offered him $10,000 to kill Davis last summer and when he refused, McCrory doubled the offer.

"You're crazy," he said, he told McCrory.

"We're going to get him, one way or the other," Lucas quoted McCrory as replying.

"I've never known you to have $20,000, or $20," Lucas remembered saying. "The money's there," he said McCrory insisted.

Prosecutors labeled the testimony a sham.

Trustees to meet

ANDREWS — Andrews school trustees may roll back the mandatory retirement age for district employees to 70 to comply with new federal regulations at their meeting tonight.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the school administration building. They also are expected to approve an agreement to allow students who live close to the New Mexico line to attend school in Jal, N.M. Superintendent Bill Graves said it is more economical to pay tuition for the students to attend school in Jal than to send a bus out to pick them up.

Trustees also are scheduled to hear a report on recent renovations to the high school track and the middle school tennis courts and a progress report on the high school roof repairs.

Abilene's dries want Pecos judge to overturn results of election

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Anti-liquor forces want a judge to order last call at taverns and package stores that opened in this West Texas city following a wet-dry election nearly six months ago.

Testimony continues today in a challenge of an election "wets" won by 122 votes out of more than 3,000 cast. The matter has been in litigation ever since, but the Texas Supreme Court has ruled Abilene is wet until the suits are resolved.

But under court order commissioners were forced to recanvass the results July 20, including No. 19, giving the wets the victory.

Pro-liquor forces objected to any evidence concerning the canvass, saying that matter was resolved in another court last summer.

Dry forces argue that a total of 250 votes cast in the June election should be thrown out, including those in Box 19 and others.

Aid proposal ignores Mideast requests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's proposed foreign aid budget for next year, now in the final stages of preparation, contains no money for new air bases promised to Israel or a $3.3 billion loan requested by Prime Minister Menachem Begin, administration sources say.

The sources said either or both items might eventually become part of the fiscal 1980 budget, either through a supplemental request by President Carter or congressional insertion.

But as of now, they said Monday, the administration is planning to ask Congress for about $1.8 billion in military and economic assistance, the same amount Israel received in the budget for the 1979 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1.

The same goes for Egypt, which received $750 million in aid in the 1979 budget. There is no new money for any of the ambitious development programs the Egyptians have been talking about, the sources said.

One reason for the absence of the new funds for Israel is that the Begin government has not submitted detailed requests, they said.

An American team is still trying to estimate the cost of the two air bases in the Negev which Carter agreed to pay for at Camp David. The bases, which would replace Sinai bases being turned over to Egypt, are expected to cost upwards of $100 million each.

The $3.3 billion, 25-year loan mentioned by Begin is supposed to pay for the evacuation of the Sinai, including the relocation of settlers.

The sources said that even when detailed requests are submitted, both Egypt and Israel are likely to find that the signing of a Mideast peace treaty will not be accompanied by a bonanza of American aid.

"There is no reluctance to aid Israel with development costs that can't be met with other means. But there is also no knee-jerk rush to give them whatever they ask for," one official said.

Like the other sources, he asked not to be identified because of the administration's stricture against comments on the budget before it is presented to Congress next month.

The sources said there are several reasons for the administration's reluctance to put additional money for Israel and Egypt into the budget or to plan for a major new aid program.

Chief among them is Carter's determination to hold the 1980 deficit to $30 billion and at the same time increase defense spending and cope with increases in veterans payments and other required programs. Discretionary items such as foreign aid are being squeezed.

Favorite Christmas carols tonight at Lee High School

Favorite and familiar Christmas carols will be presented by the Chorale of the Midland-Odessa Symphony in tonight's family Christmas concert in Lee High auditorium.

The 8 p.m. event is the third subscription concert of the Midland-Odessa Symphony's current season. Season tickets will be valid for the concert and single admissions will be for sale at the doors before starting time.

The Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Frank Varro, a member of the music faculty of The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, will offer J.S. Bach's deeply reverent and intensely melodic "Magnificat" during the first half of the concert. The presentation will feature four guest soloists, including soprano Erlene Ballard of Houston, contralto Carol Mayo of Waco, tenor Bruce Browne of Portland, Ore., and baritone Charles Nelson of Commerce.

Following intermission, the choral ensemble will present a collection of favorite Christmas carols, including "Silent Night" and "O Come, All Ye Faithful," as well as Christmas songs from Spain, France, Britain, Hungary and elsewhere.

Also programmed is a collection of American Christmas songs of the 20th Century.

Group promotes $10,000 bounty on crooked government officials

Spokesmen of the American Citizens for Honesty in Government, sponsored by the Church of Scientology, visited Midland Monday, declaring a campaign against corruption in government.

The spokesmen are promoting a $10,000 reward being offered by the group for information leading to the arrest and conviction of dishonest government officials.

The officials accused the FBI of several corrupt acts.

Spokesmen for the FBI in El Paso and Washington declined to comment on the charges.

The current campaign against government corruption is an outgrowth of "Operation Snow White," a church-sponsored effort aimed at persuading the U.S. Justice Department to prosecute alleged cases of government corruption, said Debbie Sharp, Austin-based spokesman, during a visit here with Paul Hess, an aide.

"The whole intention of the American Citizens for Honesty in Government is to root out corrupt government officials at every level," she claimed.

The 17 chapters of the Church of Scientology across the nation now are conducting similar campaigns to expose government corruption through American Citizens for Honesty in Government, said Sharp.

Hess said that it's an effort to get government officials to be subject to the same laws as other citizens.

"Both officials and citizens should be subject to the same laws," he said.

Inflation to eat up much of newest freight rate hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financially depressed railroad industry says inflation will eat up much of its newest freight rate increase and it will seek another price hike in the future.

A 7 percent increase approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday "will improve our situation in the coming four-to-five months," said Richard Briggs, chief economist for the nation's rail industry.

"By that time inflation will have eaten up most of it."

Briggs, refusing to forecast more specifically when a new increase might be necessary, said railroads have suffered an 11 percent inflation rate in recent years.

"We can't survive for an extended period without a future rate increase," he said.

The ICC told the railroads they could raise the rail shipping price for thousands of products by 7 percent effective Friday.

Briggs said the impact on most consumer items would be negligible. The electric power industry has said a higher price for coal shipments could increase electric bills, with the amount varying across the country.

A spokesman for President Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability call the 7 percent increase a victory for Carter's anti-inflation program because it falls within the voluntary price guidelines.

But those same guidelines could be violated if the railroads received another increase from the ICC within the next 12 months.

The council has said the rail industry would be allowed a 6.6 percent increase under the guidelines.

The actual yield from the 7 percent allowed by the ICC would be 6.5 percent or less "because not all the railroads fully implement allowed rate increases on all traffic," the council has said.

The difference does not leave much room for an additional increase.

From little acorns, mighty oaks grow, so the saying goes.

Well, Midlander Irene Bishop planted six pecans and ended up with six pecan trees. All in one hole.

After "thinning" to only one tree, Irene came up with another success story. She entered the recent Midland County Pecan Show held in Dellwood Plaza Mall and came out of competition with a blue ribbon, a rosette and a plaque in the native pecan division.

The story began many years ago in Brown County when Irene's grandmother, Mrs. J. L. Richardson, planted a pecan on the family farm. Eight years ago, Irene's mother, Mrs. J. L. Matthews, gave her daughter six pecans from this same tree, which Irene immediately came home and planted.

But it wasn't until four years ago the remaining tree, a native pecan, began to bear fruit, said Irene.

DEAR ABBY

Mom is diaper-rash

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I don't go along with your advice to quietly wash the sheets and say nothing to a 7-year-old child who continues to wet the bed when doctors can find nothing wrong.

I cured my 8-year-old son of constant bed-wetting by making him sleep in a diaper every night. If the diaper was wet, I hung it out on the line where all his friends could see it. That cured him fast.—MISSOURI MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I object to your type of "cure." Humiliating a child creates resentment which can be far more damaging to the parent-child relationship than bed-wetting.

P. S. Another writer wrote that she "cured" her daughter of bed-wetting by forcing her to sleep on the bare bed springs. I think such "cures" for bed-wetting are clearly child abuse.

DEAR ABBY: What can I do about a husband and father of three boys who refuses to use a deodorant? He claims that the odor of perspiration is "masculine" and only sissies and women use underarm deodorants. You can imagine the embarrassment he causes the boys and me.

I have run out of ideas. He sweats like a horse and I can smell him 20 feet away. He reads your column every day and thinks you're smart. Maybe you can help me. Thank you.—STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: I'm stumped, too. A person who refuses to bathe or use a deodorant deserves to be shunned. So if he refuses to clean up his act, let him do a single.

Outlook dim for ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters and opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment agree that it has little or no chance of being ratified soon by enough states to make it a part of the Constitution, a survey by the Associated Press shows.

The National Women's Political Caucus has targeted seven states — Arizona, Florida, Illinois, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina and Oklahoma — for heavy lobbying in an attempt to pass the amendment.

But the outlook is dim. "It's dead," conceded Nevada Gov. Mike O'Callaghan, a Democrat and strong supporter of ERA.

Mary Odum, president of North Carolinians United for ERA, said, "If we took a vote today, we couldn't win."

An eighth state, Georgia, is on a separate priority list maintained by Sarah Weddington, President Carter's special assistant for women's affairs who is also working for ERA passage. The White House list also includes Florida, Nevada and North Carolina.

But in Florida, for example, a ratification effort fell short in a special session last week and prospects for ratification next year are rated about 50-50, with opponents given a slight edge. The legislature does not meet again until April 3.

The other states which have not ratified the ERA are Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Utah and Virginia. But the women's caucus did not make these states special targets because they are not considered prime areas for ratification.

The ERA was first approved by Congress in 1971 and it received a new lease on life this year when the House and Senate approved a resolution extending its ratification deadline from March 22, 1979, to June 30, 1982.

That sparked more intensive lobbying efforts by supporters and opponents of the proposed constitutional amendment which states that "equality of rights under law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of sex."

However, the survey showed little support for the predictions made by some ERA backers that the extension would give a push for the amendment's approval by the necessary 38 states before the original March 22 deadline.

ERA opponents have said they will file court challenges to the ratification extension. So far, 35 states have ratified the ERA. But legislatures in four of those states — Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee — have voted to rescind their approval. Congress must decide on the validity of the rescinding votes.

The supporters of ERA argue that women need their rights spelled out in the U.S. constitution while opponents say that federal statutes already on the books give adequate protection to women against discrimination.

The opposition forces, led by Phyllis Schlafly, argue that ERA ratification would, among other things, subject women to military draft. Mrs. Schlafly, national chairman of Stop ERA, has said that a modified ERA which would not deprive women "of any of the rights, exemptions and benefits they now possess ... would allow for rational differences between men and women."

The show goes on and on and the headlines include: A. ROWLF and MISS PIGGY box-a-duet you'll never forget, 9 1/2" high, $30.00. B. MISS PIGGY Bank to help you save money for singing lessons, 8 3/4" high, $16.50. C. KERMIT sows MISS PIGGY in half and presto, salt and pepper shakers, 4" x 1 1/2"

Awards presented at banquet for Medical Assistant group

Mozelle Webb and Faye Furman, both of Midland, were named Medical Assistants of the Year at the annual Medical Assistants Installation banquet held Dec. 7 at the Western Sizzler Steakhouse. Mrs. Furman has been an active member of the Midland Association since 1972 and was president this year. She works at the Midland City County Health Unit and leads the Medical Assistants group in informational and educational programs throughout the year.

Many of the programs presented this year were by local physicians and surgeons. Purpose of the programs is to cover administrative and medical topics, with each program a learning process for the members. Mrs. Webb has been active in the Midland Medical Assistants organization since 1963. She was employed at the Western Clinic until her retirement in 1977. She is currently employed at the Texas Pathology Laboratory. She has served as officer of Medical Assistants in many capacities and, during the past year, has been recording secretary and a committee member.

New officers were also installed at the banquet. They include Peggy Brannon, president; Dorothy Blaylark, vice president; Maggie Huggins, corresponding secretary; Mozelle Webb, recording secretary; and Sylvia Baumber, treasurer.

Fashions for '79 are daringly bare

By NATALIE BEST
Copley News Service
NEW YORK — The 1979 fashion scene will be as dressed, or undressed, as the nation's women want it to be. That's the message from some 50 designers to 300 fashion writers during the Fashion Press Week showings for spring.

While you may want to step right in to the '79 fashion world of revived sexy glamour, the postage stamp bras — if any at all — backless, knee-showing gowns; be prepared. Unless you're over 5 feet 7 inches, slim — slim — slim, and really don't care about wearing anything but a pair of pantyhose under your new garments, you won't be ready for "trend '79."

The collections are rated by many as looking somewhere between a spring sweetheart and a bawdy lady.

As one fashion writer put it, "They are beautiful dresses, but a boyfriend or husband may hesitate about taking the wearer out. And a girl wouldn't be safe out on her own."

On the brighter side, the fabrics, colors and comfort of the spring clothes excel over previous years.

To quote a few of the famous designers: Adele Simpson: "Slim, sleek and sophisticated are the three words that best describe our new silhouette for spring. Women are leading the culture explosion — cultivating their bodies, participating in sports, moving up in business, developing the arts and becoming leaders of change in American living. Fashion, with shoulder and waist emphasis, and bright colors, is keeping up."

Book Review meeting set for Thursday

The Book Review Group of the Midland branch of the American Association of University Women will meet Thursday at 9:30 a.m. for a Christmas program and party in the home of Mrs. Joe Chastain at 2200 Midland Drive. Mrs. J. Wayne Campbell will serve as co-hostess.

"Clean, colorful, slimmer, shorter, softly constructed and delicate detailing describe our clothes. Crisper materials like fibranne, polished cotton, voile and silk crepe de chine, tiny braided edges, welt seams, organza linings in puff sleeves, slit skirts and flirty skirts are new."

John Anthony: "My spring collection is based on refined, discreet sex clothes. There are wide shoulders, tapered pants, shape clothes into the wrapped skirts and body without a period sarong drapes."

Iranian Army back on streets after anti-Shah demonstration

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The army returned to Iran's main streets after two days of huge nationwide demonstrations against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in which five persons were reported killed in Isfahan and property was damaged in other cities.

The governor of Isfahan reported new fighting for two hours there today between anti-shah protesters and the army but denied a report that hundreds were killed.

"The fighting was brought under control by troops with no deaths or serious injuries," said Gov. Manuchehr Haqdan. He attributed the report of heavy casualties to "certain residents of the city who telephone friends to pass on wild rumors of death and destruction."

The tanks and columns of troops rolled back through Tehran Monday evening, restoring the 9 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew and the ban on public demonstrations after hundreds of thousands of fist-waving Iranians streamed through the streets chanting "Down With The Shah!"

Troops and police were withdrawn to side streets to avoid bloodshed during Ashura, the 48-hour peak of the Shiite Moslem holy month of Moharram in which the faithful usually scourge themselves to mourn the 7th century assassination of their founder, Imam Hossein, grandson of the prophet Mohammed. But this year instead of whips the marchers carried banners and placards attacking the shah and portraits of their exiled religious leader, Ayatollah Khomeini.

The Tehran demonstrations were peaceful, but official sources said at least five persons were killed and many others wounded in the main square of Isfahan when troops opened fire on thousands of rioters after tear gas failed to disperse them.

The sources said the crowd turned violent during a protest march, damaged banks and public buildings, including the headquarters of the secret police, SAVAK, and tore down statues of the shah and his father, Reza Shah, who founded the Pahlavi dynasty in 1925.

Marchers in the cities of Yazd, southeast of Isfahan, and the holy city of Mashhad, in northeastern Iran, also attacked banks and public buildings and tore down statues of the shah. On Sunday the rioters stormed the Hyatt Hotel in Mashhad, wrecked the ground floor and tried but failed to set the hotel's nightclub afire, sources said.

Oil industry sources said the Ashura period exacerbated the 9-day-old oil workers' strike and that production was down to 1.3 million barrels daily, compared to 6 million normally. One source said he expected output would remain at 1.3 million barrel level until the weekend before it picks up. The strike is costing the government $60 million a day in lost exports. A 15-day oil strike last month cost the shah's treasury more than $1 billion.

Moslem religious leaders are fighting the shah because of his Westernizing program, which they claim is eroding traditional Islamic values. Leftist political leaders have joined forces with them after years of ineffective protests against the shah's 37-year authoritarian rule, secret police repression and official corruption.

"We will continue until the victory is won!" opposition leaders proclaimed to a huge throng massed about Tehran's towering, arch-like Shayad Monument, the symbol of the shah's rule.

They demanded "the fall of the dictatorial monarchy," establishment of an Islamic republic headed by Ayatollah Khomeini and "an end to foreign exploitation...by imperialists of East and West."

Many of the marchers on the 5 1/2-mile route through Tehran carried placards reading, "Criminal Americans Go Home" or "Iran Will Become Another Vietnam." An estimated 6,000 women and children among the 41,000 Americans in Iran have fled the country in the last two months, along with 9,000 other foreigners.

Rhodesian guerrillas burn oil storage depot

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Guerrilla rockets set off a huge fire that roared through Rhodesia's main oil storage depot, consuming precious fuel reserves of Prime Minister Ian Smith's embattled regime, security sources said today.

The blaze was brought under control 12 hours after an explosion about 9:15 p.m. Monday set off blasts in a number of tanks in the depot about four miles from the center of Salisbury.

"Evidence of terrorist involvement in the fire... has been found," said an army communique. "Security forces are engaged in extensive follow-up operations."

1500 arrested in Indian fighting

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — At least 1,500 persons were reported arrested in Lucknow by police breaking up street battles between the Shia and Sunni Moslem sects on the Shiite holy day of Ashura.

At least 50 injured were reported in the fighting Monday, including 16 policemen. The situation today was "tense but under control," said a government spokesman in the city 250 miles east of New Delhi.

Ashura is the climax of the Shiite month of Moharram, which mourns the assassination by the Sunnis of Imam Hossein, the grandson of the prophet Mohammed and the founder of the Shia sect in the 7th century.

Shiites traditionally march on Ashura, scourging themselves. The Times of India reported that the Lucknow Shiites defied a government ban on religious processions, Sunnis tried to block the street processions and fighting ensued.

It was the boldest urban sabotage in the six-year guerrilla war by black nationalists who reject the present biracial government's plans for universal-suffrage elections because the whites will retain a veto over the government.

There were no reports of any casualties. Security sources said it appeared two rockets were fired from outside the security fence around the depot and hit a tank which caught fire immediately.

Fireballs mushroomed hundreds of feet into the air, lighting up an area 10 miles around the depot and drawing every available fire truck, dozens of ambulances and thousands of spectators. About 20 gasoline tankers were driven to safety by civil defense workers and bystanders.

An adjacent fertilizer factory packed with explosive nitrates also was threatened. But the nearest residential area was a mile away.

"We were all going about our normal nighttime duties when we heard what sounded like a rat-tat-tat sound," said Michek Sakarombe, who was working at the depot when the blaze erupted. He said he was not sure if the noise was gunfire.

A U.N. oil embargo has been in effect against Rhodesia since 1966, but white-ruled South Africa ignores it and supplies its landlocked neighbor. Spokesmen for the oil companies refused to discuss the fire, and there was no indication of how much of the country's rationed petroleum reserves were lost or whether military operations against the guerrillas might be affected.

The depot is maintained by the Rhodesian subsidiaries of British Shell, British Petroleum, Mobil and Caltex, but the British and American oil companies claim they have no control over the Rhodesian firms.

Good progress claimed in SALT negotiations

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today "good progress" is being made toward reaching a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union, but issues remain to be resolved before he and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev will meet to conclude a treaty.

"As we approach a time when we are sure the items have been resolved that are still under negotiation, at that time we will have a summit meeting," Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference.

Asked about the continuing unrest in Iran, Carter said, "I fully expect the Shah to maintain power."

He criticized "predictions of doom and disaster" and what he called a "couple listed as 'satisfactory'".

A Meridian, Miss., couple was listed in satisfactory condition today in Midland Memorial Hospital following a two-car accident in the city Monday.

Lawrence Elliot, 69, and Bernice Elliot, 70, were treated for injuries they received in an accident at the intersection of the Rankin Highway and the south service road of U.S. Highway 80 shortly before 5:30 p.m.

The Elliots' vehicle was in collision with a car being driven by Patricia Hoskins Jackson, 25, of Rt. 4, 138 Garden Lane.

Ms. Jackson was treated for trauma and released. Elliot suffered a broken left clavicle, and Mrs. Elliot received treatment for a lacerated forehead and abrasions and bruises.

"uncontrolled statements made from foreign countries" that have exacerbated the situation.

Carter's statement was an obvious reference to Ayatollah Khomeini, the Iranian Moslem leader exiled in Paris.

On the possibility of a summit meeting with Brezhnev, Carter said they would use the opportunity to discuss the whole range of issues involved in U.S.-Soviet relations.

Carter was asked about reports that an agreement is imminent and could be reached at an upcoming meeting between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"We've made good progress on SALT," Carter said. "I can't say that we've reached agreement."

He said a joint statement on the Vance-Gromyko meeting would be made later today in Washington and Moscow.

On other matters, Carter said: "He has not yet decided whether to seek removal of federal price controls on gasoline, adding that Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, are reassessing the prospect of lifting the ceiling in view of the nation's inflation problems."

He does not view the Dec. 17 deadline for agreement between Egypt and Israel on a peace treaty as a "now or never proposition." Carter did say, however, he believes meeting the deadline is important insofar as it would indicate the ability of the two Mideast nations to honor a commitment.

Bandits get 'negotiable loot'

NEW YORK (AP) — Armed bandits who stole up to $5 million cash from Kennedy Airport in what may be the nation's biggest currency theft ever should have no difficulty spending the money, since it consists of old, unmarked bills, authorities said. "It went off like clockwork," said one official. "It was well-planned, well-organized and well-executed."

The bandits — said to number five by police but put at seven by some witnesses — breached security at a Lufthansa Airline cargo hold early Monday and made off in a black van with jewels and sacks of foreign and U.S. currency that had been flown from Frankfurt, Germany, for transfer to the Chase Manhattan Bankland the Federal Reserve here.

Bankers call the cash "old money" — not easily traced and readily negotiable.

Karl Koepcke, a Lufthansa spokesman, put the value of the jewels at $300,000.

"They were so well prepared that they even had enough handcuffs for all the employees," said John Connolly, a spokesman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which runs Kennedy Airport.

If the $5 million figure is confirmed, it would be the largest cash theft in U.S. history — topping the $4.3 million loss at Purolator Security in Chicago in October of 1974. The famous 1950 Brink's robbery in Boston netted $2.4 million — $1.2 million of that in cash — and a 1971 theft at the Hotel Pierre in New York totaled about $5 million in jewels and cash.

The thieves overpowered and handcuffed 10 workers in making their way into the vault of the German airlines without tripping an alarm, authorities said. The precision, early morning heist left many questions unanswered.

How did the thieves pick a bonanza night for the theft; how did they know to bring handcuffs for every guard; how did they reconnoiter the hangar and its security system and — the biggest one of all — where did they go?

And two other questions: Why did a Brink's truck sent to haul away $3 million in cash fail to make its pickup; and why did authorities drop pursuit of a black van near the airport about an hour after the thieves — in a black van — made their getaway?

One Chase Manhattan Bank official said the theft appears to be an "inside job."

The New York Post said today that one of the raiders addressed handcuffed employees by their first names and another carried copies of one-of-a-kind magnetic keys.

The Post also said other raiders knew where alarms were situated and the layout of the building.

Port Authority spokesmen said they could not confirm the report.

Bank officials said they don't know why only $2 million of a $5 million shipment from the Commerzbank of Germany was delivered to Chase Manhattan last week.

A spokesman for Brink's, the firm hired to take the money from the airport to the bank, said he did not know. A truck was sent to the hangar Friday, waited for the shipment, and left without it, he said.

Sources in the Queens District attorney's office said the Lufthansa cargo supervisor assigned to the transfer apparently was busy when the Brink's truck arrived. The New York Times reported today.

A Chase Manhattan spokesman said most large money transfers are made on paper, but currency is transferred physically on occasion.

The theft was reported to police minutes after the bandits left, and a Port Authority policeman spotted a black van near the airport about one hour later.

Authorities said the officer did not give chase because he was told the van didn't match a description of the getaway vehicle.

The bandits — armed with a shotgun, a .45-caliber pistol and three .38-caliber revolvers — arrived at the Lufthansa hangar about 3:15 a.m. Monday, police said.

Swamp owner claims King George III statue

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The state Supreme Court, ruling in a dispute that began 202 years ago, says part of a statue of King George III — defiled by patriots and tossed in a swamp by British loyalists — belongs to the swamp's current owner.

The court rejected a claim by the man who found the 20-pound fragment, which apparently was tossed in the swamp near Wilton, Conn., in a dispute between Revolutionary War patriots and Tories.

The metal fragment, part of a likeness of the British monarch during the Revolution, once stood in a New York City park.

On July 9, 1776, a band of patriots — on learning that the colonies had declared their independence — toppled the statue and hacked it to pieces. They planned to haul it to Litchfield, Conn., where it would be converted to bullets.

Court rules exhibit doesn't need 'balance'

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a modern version of the Scopes monkey trial, a federal judge has decided the Smithsonian Institution doesn't have to thump the Bible alongside its exhibit on evolution.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker ruled Monday against a Washington-area man and two religious groups who complained the museum "presents evolution as the only credible theory of the origin of life."

Dale Crowley Jr., one of the plaintiffs, had asked the judge to stop a planned $463,200 evolution exhibit or to compel the Smithsonian to spend an equal amount for one on the biblical account of the origin of man.

Crowley's suit against the Smithsonian and its officials contended that the evolution theory "is based on the assumption that man and all life on earth is the consequence of a series of accidents of molecular combination in the dateless past."

That was reminiscent of a case brought by the state of Tennessee in 1925 against high school biology teacher John T. Scopes. He was convicted of violating a law forbidding him to teach "any theory which denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible, and to teach instead that man is descended from a lower order of animals." The conviction was later overturned on a technicality that did not test the law itself.

Crowley, in an interview, said he will appeal Parker's ruling.

"I object to the idea that my children go through this museum and are indoctrinated in sheer speculation presented as fact," he said. "They're impressionable and they're teachable. To go into such a powerful medium of education ... and be indoctrinated in evolution is very offensive to me and unfair."

But Judge Parker said, "This is not a situation where the Smithsonian has put an unconstitutional condition on plaintiffs' exercise of their belief.... The plaintiffs can carry their beliefs into the museum with them, though they risk seeing science exhibits contrary to that faith."

Crowley, 50, is executive director of the National Foundation for Fairness in Education, and his father heads the National Bible Knowledge Association. The two groups also were plaintiffs in the suit.

"We're taxpayers and citizens and we're Bible believers and we also are very scientifically inclined and we know evolutionism hasn't been proven scientifically," Crowley said. "That's a fact. There is no legitimate bona fide proof for evolution."

He said there are "several million Christian Bible believers throughout the United States who are offended because taxes are being used to promote hostility toward their religious faith."

Evolution, he said, is a matter of faith. "If we believe we descended from animals, we are going to act like animals," he said. "We believe definitely that one of the reasons for the breakdown in morality in our country is that people... have accepted the philosophy and viewpoint that there is no creator-God, that everything just came about by a series of chance mutations and therefore we are not accountable to any deity or creator."

Judge Parker said the effect of the Smithsonian's exhibits "is not to advance a religious theory or to inhibit plaintiffs in their religious beliefs.... The museum deals with evolution, appropriately, as a subject of natural history."

Declarer took dummy's ten of clubs and couldn't wait to run the diamonds.

SQUEEZES SELF

After one club and seven diamonds South could keep only five cards. He saved the K-Q of each black suit and the unguarded king of hearts. Then he led a spade from dummy to try for his ninth trick.

West took the ace of spades, cashed the ace of hearts and led a heart to East's ten. Now South had to discard again. If South threw a spade, East would cash the ten of spades; and if South threw a club East would lead a club to give West the last two tricks.

South would make the game easily if he took only five of dummy's diamonds, saving K-Q of each major suit and K-Q-J of clubs. He then leads a club and easily wins five diamonds, three clubs and either a heart or a spade.

There are two kinds of Long Distance.

One keeps you in shape. The other keeps you in touch.

Running keeps those muscles in tone. Calling keeps the tone of an out-of-town friend's voice fresh in your mind. A Long Distance call, a thousand miles away for ten minutes, (dialed the One-Plus way, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Friday) costs about the same as a paperback running book with all the answers. Compare that to the smile you get when a friend answers. Isn't there someone you'd like to call right now... just to keep in touch?

Menard hit by gas shortage

MENARD, Texas (AP) — Residents of Menard have appealed for state and federal help for a severe natural gas shortage that has hit the west-central Texas community of 3,000 persons.

Gas service is sporadic. Mayor Macy Haygood said it has been reduced to almost nothing at peak times, such as early morning and after 5 p.m.

The Menard county hospital and nursing home was without gas for about five hours Friday. The gas went out again at 3 a.m. Saturday and didn't come back on until 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

The natural gas well which provides the city's gas is almost depleted, and it will take about $100,000 — money the town doesn't have — to build a pipeline to a second well.

Haygood said he called officials with the Texas Railroad Commission and also the offices of U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, U.S. Sen. John Tower and Congressman-elect Tom Loeffler for help.

"We need emergency money from the federal government — we don't need money next year, we need it now," Haygood said. "This is the first really cold spell. As the weather gets worse, we'll just be in worse shape."

Residents have gone to electric heaters, butane tanks and extra blankets to fight the temperatures that have dropped as low as 13 degrees in the past week.

Blimp-like silver butane tanks stand beside many of the houses in Menard. City councilman Dan Feather said some of the hook-ups were done as temporary measures, and he and Haygood both said they fear faulty hook-ups may cause an explosion.

Switching to butane would be difficult for the hospital, since the facility is located in a fire zone and the boiler is in the basement — rather than above ground level as butane fuel boilers are required to be.

Hospital patients are allowed to use electric heaters and blankets, but state regulations forbid their use in nursing homes because of the hazard of fire.

Connie Elliott, a nurse at the nursing home, said it has been too cold inside for the staff to give patients proper care.

"It's too cold in the rooms to bathe the patients. And besides, there is no hot water half the time."

"These poor old folks can hardly stand it half the time. They're also cold natured, but there's not anything we can do except try to keep them warm."

In 1976, Menard took over operation of the gas company serving the community. Fixing the badly leaking gas lines left Menard $200,000 in debt, and now that the pipes are patched, the gas well is nearly depleted.

Tom Hill, an official in the gas utility section of the Texas Railroad Commission — the state agency which oversees energy resources — said Menard will have to file a written request with the commission before a second pipeline can be approved.

Haygood said if the money to build the pipeline doesn't show up, Menard will have to close the gas company and default on its loan.

In the meantime, the city is trying to cope. But it's not easy when the mercury dips down to 13 degrees as it did Friday night.

But residents said they are tired of being cold, of not having hot water, and of not being able to cook.

A spokesman for the W.R. Lovelless Butane Co. estimated that about 20 new customers converted to butane in the past month.

"People have been waiting to see if the gas comes through, but now they're starting to come in," he said.

Texas gas yield drops

AUSTIN — Texas oil and gas wells produced 550,592,012 Mcf of gas in Sept. 1978, down 8.15 percent from fields run a year earlier.

Marketed gas production totaled 462,465,710 Mcf and reflected a 8.58 percent decrease from the September 1977 volume. Marketed production is the total gas to transmission lines, carbon black and plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exported from Texas in September totaled 219,483,167 Mcf and included 64,942,043 Mcf of imported gas.

President announced

Miller, formerly executive vice president of the company, received a business degree from Southwest Texas State University in 1961. ## Jackson hands Carter unwelcome prediction

By J.P. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., handed the Carter administration a piece of bad news Monday by predicting the Senate would veto the proposal President Carter is expected to send Congress to end controls on gasoline prices.

"There will be gasoline decontrol in time, but the time is not now," Jackson said in an interview following hearings before the Senate energy committee which he chairs. Jackson, who until Monday had not expressed an opinion on deregulating gasoline prices, said lifting price controls on gasoline would result in unwarranted increases in inflation.

"The timing would be bad... this is a substantial part of the consumer price index, and the psychological impact would be adverse," Jackson said.

The Energy Department, in a study released last month, says that it would raise prices at the pump by as much as 4 cents a gallon. DOE and other senior administration officials have been saying privately that they expect the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise oil prices at their price-fixing meeting this week. The hike is expected to raise the gallon price by two cents.

Two other senators, Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and John Durkin, D-N.H., Monday called for vetoing the gasoline decontrol proposal. Metzenbaum also said that "there are rumblings the administration is preparing to withdraw the proposal" in face of congressional opposition.

Under a 1975 law, either house can veto the proposal.

At the Energy Department, Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary indicated that the administration was going to press for decontrolling gasoline prices. "It is too early to make a head count on a veto," O'Leary said, adding, "when our proposal goes up, the Senate and House members can concentrate on it."

Exports of Texas-produced gas

Exports of Texas-produced gas in September totaled 153,541,124 Mcf and reflected a 17.17 percent decrease from the year earlier month. Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America was the month's largest exporter, moving 64,350,279 Mcf of gas of which 32,643,933 Mcf was Texas-produced gas.

Texas gas production in September came from 196,140 oil and gas wells.

In August 1978, Texas wells produced 595,164,715 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in August totaled 503,737,118 Mcf.

RE-ENTRY SLATED

Foy Boyd Management Corp. of Midland announced plans to re-enter the former Sun Oil Co. No. 1 L. R. Schooler, 7,246-foot wildcat failure in Coke County and drillout to 6,600 feet in an attempt to reopen the depleted Edita (Strawn) field.

The prospector, to be operated as No. 1 Schooler, is 11 miles west of Robert Lee and 990 feet from north and approximately 1,500 feet from east lines of section 240, block 2, H&TC survey.

The re-entry is 5/8 mile southwest of the depleted Edita (Canyon) discovery and two and one-eighth miles northwest of the depleted Strawn

O'Leary's assessment was echoed by Jack Blum, a representative of the Independent Gasoline Marketers Council, who said, "I think Jackson's assessment is wrong, we haven't gotten to the count of new members."

Jackson's opposition came as a surprise to some oilmen who had expected more problems for the decontrol proposal from the House than from the Senate. So far there has been no organized opposition in the House, but Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., has called for hearings on gasoline next week before his subcommittee on Energy and Power. Dingell, so far, has not expressed public opposition to decontrolling gasoline prices.

In testimony before the Senate Energy Committee Monday, O'Leary said the nation's overall gasoline supplies "appear to be adequate," but added that supplies of gasoline "might be tight by next summer" if demand for gasoline continues to run high. Because of good weather this autumn, gasoline demand is up 2 to 3 percent over last year.

O'Leary said that the shortages of unleaded gasoline facing companies such as Shell Oil Co. "appear to be unique." Shell, the nation's largest gasoline marketer, has been allocating — in effect rationing — gasoline to its dealers for the last two weeks with DOE approval.

At the hearing Shell Vice President J.H. Denike denied that the company was holding back gasoline supplies from its dealers to win congressional approval for the deregulation measure at DOE.

"We are not holding back supplies to increase prices," Denike said, adding that the projected shortages resulted from the effects of Energy Department and Environmental Protection Agency, and energy mileage efficiency regulations.

Basin sectors draw wildcat project sites

West Texas areas of the Permian Basin drew locations for wildcats and field projects, and field wells have been completed.

Rankin Oil Co. of Midland will dig No. 1-B Calla Mae as 6,800-foot wildcat in Coke County, 7.5 miles east of Silver.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 300, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

The operator will attempt to reopen the depleted San Benito field and to test as a northeast offset to the Arledge (Pennsylvanian sand) pool.

Unleaded gasoline may cause market problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shortage of unleaded gasoline may cause "market disruptions" by 1982 unless price controls are lifted, says Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary.

O'Leary told a Senate Energy Committee hearing Monday, "We are going to be in deep trouble by 1982" without decontrol.

Although the Carter administration has made no formal proposal yet for deregulating gas prices, the legislation is expected to be submitted to Congress next year.

However, committee members gave a cool reception to the idea of price decontrol.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the committee's chairman, said unless O'Leary can explain the causes of current tight supplies, decontrol "will encounter serious difficulty in the Congress."

However, O'Leary said the current supply problems of four refiners do not mean there is a general nationwide shortage of gasoline at the moment.

Shell Oil Co. said last month it was rationing supplies of unleaded gasoline to its wholesalers and retailers.

Shell quitting second test

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. is abandoning its second exploratory test well in the Baltimore Canyon area off the New Jersey-Delaware coast after spending $12.8 million to drill the dry hole.

The company said Monday it is plugging the Block 273 wildcat, which was financed by a group of 19 operators, because it showed no hydrocarbon accumulations.

Shell said, however, it will begin drilling later this month the final well of a three-well exploratory program. Five other companies will participate in the $6 million test on Block 272, five miles west of the Block 273 dry hole.

The Block 273 test was drilled in 238 feet of water 87 miles east of Cape Henopen, Del. Drilling began July 15 and reached a total depth of 17,500 feet last Thursday. The well was drilled near the intersection of four lease blocks held by the Shell-Mobil-Tenneco group.

Directors okay sale

OKLAHOMA CITY — Texas International Co. and NL Industries, Inc. jointly announced that their respective Boards of Directors has approved an agreement in principle for the purchase by NL of Texas International's well workover, maintenance and completion business.

The aggregate purchase price totals $101 million, of which $90 million will be paid in cash and $11 million in the form of NL petroleum products and services. The assets being sold, mainly 150 land based workover rigs and 13 marine barge rigs, have a net book value of approximately $54 million.

In announcing the sale, Texas International's President and Chairman of the Board, George Platt, said, "This is an important first step in our previously announced program to simplify our lines of business and to concentrate our resources in other sectors of the energy field." Platt added that the proceeds from the sale would be used to virtually eliminate the company's existing bank debt, thus reducing current annual interest costs by approximately $12 million, and improving the corporation's overall profitability.

Basin sectors draw wildcat project sites

West Texas areas of the Permian Basin drew locations for wildcats and field projects, and field wells have been completed.

Rankin Oil Co. of Midland will dig No. 1-B Calla Mae as 6,800-foot wildcat in Coke County, 7.5 miles east of Silver.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 300, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

The operator will attempt to reopen the depleted San Benito field and to test as a northeast offset to the Arledge (Pennsylvanian sand) pool.

RE-ENTRY SLATED

Foy Boyd Management Corp. of Midland announced plans to re-enter the former Sun Oil Co. No. 1 L. R. Schooler, 7,246-foot wildcat failure in Coke County and drillout to 6,600 feet in an attempt to reopen the depleted Edita (Strawn) field.

The prospector, to be operated as No. 1 Schooler, is 11 miles west of Robert Lee and 990 feet from north and approximately 1,500 feet from east lines of section 240, block 2, H&TC survey.

The re-entry is 5/8 mile southwest of the depleted Edita (Canyon) discovery and two and one-eighth miles northwest of the depleted Strawn

Texaco, Conoco and Arco also have indicated supply problems.

O'Leary said an Energy Department investigation shows the problems of those refiners "appear to be unique and are not in themselves an indication of a general supply shortage."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a critic of the oil industry, questioned Shell's problems. He suggested that despite industry claims, the refiners are not producing as much gasoline as they could.

Metzenbaum said Shell and other producers assured the Energy Department as recently as last August that supplies were adequate to get through the fall and winter. He added that he suspects the tight supply is contrived to encourage decontrol of prices.

O'Leary said refiners are producing all the gasoline they can, but "American motorists are not conserving."

He added that an Energy Department survey of major refiners shows that if demand for motor fuel remains as high as it has been and stocks are not replenished, "supplies might be tight next summer.... There is going to be a very tightly tailored market."

Bend pool reopened in Stonewall County

The Old Glory, East (Bend conglomerate) field has been reopened nine miles northeast of Old Glory in Stonewall County.

The well is Fisher-Webb, Inc., of Abilene No. 1 B. B. Bowles, one location north of the original discovery.

It finished for a daily pumping potential of 120 barrels of 40-gravity oil, plus 10 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,822 to 5,852 feet, which had been fractured with 10,000 gallons.

The well is 660 feet from north and 4,622 feet from west lines of section 2, block BBB&C.

The following tops were called on kelly bushing elevation of 1,577 feet: Judd sand, 4,980 feet; Caddo, 5,600 feet and Mississippian, 5,910 feet.

MARTIN PROJECT
R. B. Holt of Midland announced location for a 1/2-mile northeast step-out to the discovery well of the Mustang Draw (Devonian) field of Martin County.

Slated on a 12,600-foot contract, it is No. 1 Xmas-University, 1,980 feet from north and 890 feet from east lines of section 14, block 7, University Lands survey and 30 miles northwest of Stanton.

MITCHELL TEST
Brazos Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 1 Ellwood has been staked one location south of the closest well in the Beals Creek (Wichita-Albany) field of Mitchell County, 20 miles southeast of Colorado City.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 12, block 18, SPRR survey. Contract depth is 3,750 feet.

RECLASSIFICATION

Rial Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-9 Sealy-Smith has been reclassified as an oil well in the Arinoso (Strawn-Devonian) pool of Winkler County, 18 miles southeast of Kermit.

Originally completed as a gas producer, it finished as an oil well for a daily flow of 65 barrels of 49-gravity oil, with a gas-oil ratio of 12,500-1, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 8,589 to 8,753 feet.

The pay was acidized with 5,000 gallons.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 9, block A, G&MMB&A survey.

Total depth is 9,131 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom.

Chaps rout Hawks, 102-77, to stay unbeaten in league

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

They wasted a lot of electricity at the Chaparral Center Monday night because the Midland College Chaps could have knocked the eyes out of the bucket with the lights out. The Chaps, winning their fourth Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball decision without a blemish, put on a running and shooting display that would make one forget the cold outside for dreams of a Fourth of July fireworks display while gunning their way to a 102-77 victory over helpless Howard College.

The Chaps came out smoking from the very beginning, and after a 62 per cent first half shooting binge that would put a drunk to shame, held a huge 47-29 lead at the half. The opposing Hawks seemed to be awed with the perfection of the Chaps' guns from all ranges, and they countered with a mere 29 per cent shooting effort on a 12 of 21 performance from the field. The Chaps were connecting on 23 of 37 shots.

And when the first half smoke cleared, the game was over. The Hawks' demise had been sealed.

"I don't think Howard played a real good game against us," MC coach Jerry Stone said after the game with a glint in his eye. "But I don't think you can take anything away from us. We are playing very good basketball right now. I think we learned a few things on that trip to Phoenix and then last week we went up to Amarillo and played very well together. I think the kids realized that this is the way to play this game. We are taking good shots and moving the ball very well right now. You sure can't be disappointed in a 60 per cent shooting average in the first half."

The second half was played on almost even terms, but the huge lead never faltered from its appointed rounds. The Hawks kept the contest from getting in worse shape, but they had to hit 53 per cent to do it while the Chaps cooled off to a near normal 51 per cent while emptying the bench for all to enjoy this victory.

Every Chap got into the scoring act as five ripped the cords for double figures. Big 6-foot-7 Luis Alvarado led the way with 16 points, hitting eight of them in the first five minutes when the Chaps were throwing everything into the hoop but empty soft drink cups.

Henry White and Tim Shelby also had hot hands with both contributing 14 points to the cause with deathly mid-range jumpers that were almost always on target. Cullen Mayfield, with eight points in the second half, and Chucky McGill, with eight in the first, combined for 12 points each.

Robert Tate just missed the double digits with nine markers, and Kenneth Young was held to eight points, far below his average. Young, however, did pull off two of his now famous three-point dunk plays for six of his eight points and led the team in rebounds with 10, another area the Chaps won by a 45-40 margin.

Linwood Hines paced the Hawks with 21 points and Allen Bonds hit for 17 in good efforts, but that was not enough to offset what is becoming the most balanced attack in the WJCAC.

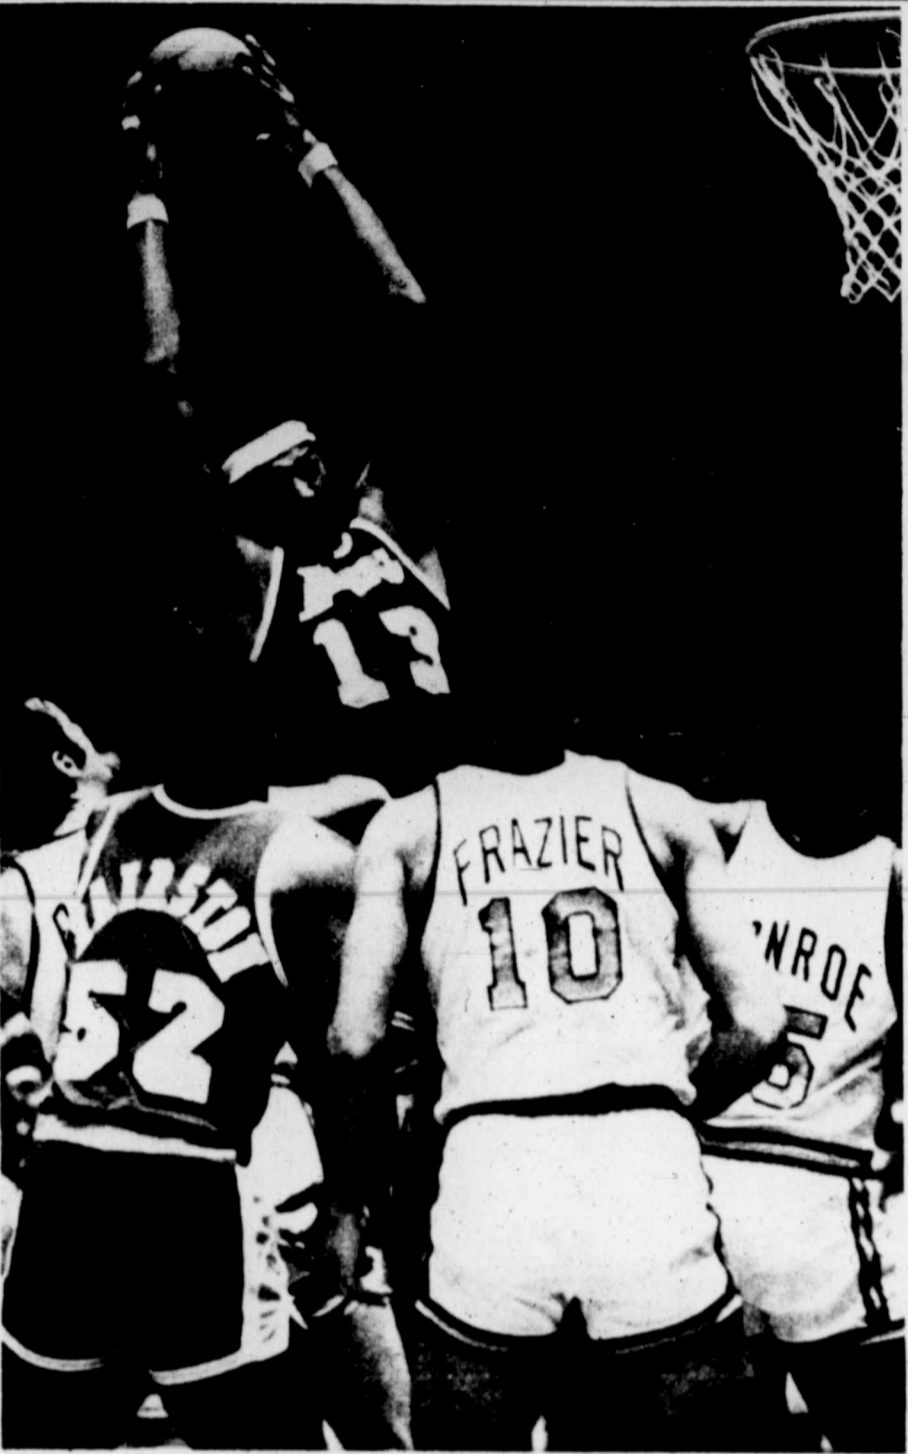

MC is now 11-3 on the season and 4-0 in conference action and owns a six game winning streak. The Hawks fell to 5-8 for the year and 0-4 in conference matchups.

Now that the Chaps are hitting on all cylinders, it seems a shame that they now face a long open period. MC does not play again until Jan. 11 when they travel to Big Spring for the ABC Classic hosted by the Hawks. They do not return home again until Jan. 22 when they face WJCAC favorite Western Texas College in what looks to be a real shootout. Even before that game, however, the Chaps will have to travel to Frank Phillips College and Odessa College in big road games. Both of those teams are expected to be front runners in the conference.

The next three conference games for the Chaps could very well determine just what kind of run for the championship MC can make this season.

Wilt Chamberlain pulls down a rebound during a 1973 playoff contest between the Lakers and the New York Knicks. It has been rumored that Chamberlain, the NBA's all-time leading scorer, will make a comeback with the Chicago Bulls. (AP Laserphoto)

Prospect of Wilt making comeback is mind-boggling

By The Associated Press

Will Wilt Chamberlain make a comeback with the Chicago Bulls? That such a prospect can even be seriously considered is mind-boggling.

Consider the impact such a move might have:

Would the Baltimore Colts, searching for a backup quarterback to Bert Jones, crank up Johnny Unitas' passing arm?

Would the New York Yankees, anxious to unload some of George M. Steinbrenner's dollars on a designated hitter, pull Joe DiMaggio away from his coffee-maker?

Would the Montreal Canadiens, eager to lock up their umpteenth Stanley Cup, refuel the Rocket, Maurice Richard?

And if Chamberlain did make a comeback, would the Boston Celtics bring back Bill Russell? He'd be perfect as a backup player-coach for Dave Cowens.

Actually, it's hard to imagine that the 42-year-old Chamberlain, who once scored 100 points in a game and averaged 50.4 points per game for the 1962 National Basketball Association season, would want to risk tarnishing his reputation with a comeback. But stranger things have happened, and if the money is right and Chamberlain needs a few extra bucks, who knows?

"IF ANYBODY in the world can do it, Wilt's the one," said Chicago Coach Larry Costello. "He's a great athlete and he's apparently in good condition. We've been looking since training camp for a backup center who could give us 10 or 12 minutes a game; maybe Wilt is the man."

Maybe. The 7-foot-2 star, the NBA's all-time leading scorer, should still be able to set picks and make passes, which is all the Bulls got from their old backup center, Tom Boerwinkle, who had to retire last week because of knee problems. He could probably still score from in close and should gather in a few rebounds.

One thing Wilt won't be able to do is run. He was never much of a greyhound, and serving as commissioner of a volleyball league doesn't particularly help your stamina. But the Bulls don't run much anyway, and besides, Wes Unseld can't run, either, but he still was able to lead the Washington Bullets to the NBA title last year.

A WHOLE NEW generation of basketball fans would get a chance to see Wilt finger-rolling his way to the basket, shooting that improbable and uncanny fallaway, missing free throws with remarkable regularity. It's certainly an intriguing prospect.

What it comes down to is a matter of money and ego. Wilt could probably give the Bulls 10-12 minutes of competent pivot work, during which time they could rest Artis Gilmore. But would a man with all that pride really want to come back as a backup center, no matter how good the money?

ADD COSTELLO to the list of NBA coaches who are fed up with the league's anti-zone defense rule.

"The defensive three-second rule is the worst rule in the NBA," said Costello, who coached his 700th NBA game Saturday night. "A guard could be in the lane and they'd call it a zone, as if he's really going to block a shot. It's ridiculous."

One purpose of the no-zone rule is supposed to be to keep teams from sagging off on the league's big centers, but Costello says that happens all the time to Chicago's 7-footer, Gilmore.

"SOMETIMES THEY have five guys tugging away at Artis and nothing gets called," said Costello. "You might as well legalize the zone, if you aren't going to call it."

A trio of NBA referees checked into a hotel in Chicago earlier this season and found it was headquarters for a convention. The unusual thing is that it was a convention of blind people.

"An entire hotel full of people, and we were the only sighted ones in the place," one of the refs said. "And you know what they say about us."

In the closing moments of a tight game, New York's Earl Monroe was trying to protect the ball when an opponent reached around him and tied him up. Referee Hubie Evans called a jump ball while Monroe complained that a foul should have been called.

"He didn't squeeze you, Earl, he has long arms," said Evans. "A bear has long arms, too, but he can squeeze you to death," replied Monroe.

THE GREEK'S GRAPEVINE will not be a part of the halftime show on CBS' Sunday telecasts of NBA games, which begin next month.

Many people around the NBA were upset over the segment, by Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder, which purported to provide inside information on happenings around the league. And so the Grapevine has been pruned from this season's shows.

There also won't be any gimmicks like a slam-dunk contest or a HORSE tournament, halftime staples the past two years. Instead, CBS will show a combination of game highlights and pre-taped features on NBA players and coaches.

SWC cagers have successful night

By The Associated Press

Southeast Missouri Coach Carroll Williams had an easy explanation for what happened to his basketball team when it clashed Monday night with the Arkansas Razorbacks.

"We got killed. We were in awe. We are a small school. Our gym seats 2,000 and the fans sit on their hands. It's not like playing with 8,000 fans that scream and yell when the ball is thrown in," Williams said.

Sidney Moncrief's 22 points and 13 rebounds carried Arkansas to a 90-51 victory, the third triumph in as many outings for the Razorbacks, who made it to the national semifinals last year.

"We played them because we wanted to play the best, and we also wanted to play one of the best players in the country — Moncrief," Williams said.

"I'm impressed with Moncrief as a player and as a person. When Sidney got untracked, it became a rout."

In other Southwest Conference basketball games Monday:

— Texas Tech freshman David Little beat the buzzer with a pressure jump shot to give the Red Raiders a 69-67 victory over Northeast Louisiana;

— Brad Branson and Billy Allen paced Southern Methodist to a 68-64 victory over previously unbeaten Vanderbilt;

— Elbert Darden canned 24 points and triggered Rice's 100-75 runaway over Doane College of Nebraska.

Little and Tommy Parks came off the bench to pick up a dragging Red Raider offense. Northeast Louisiana, whose Calvin Natt is expected to be the No. 1 NBA draft pick, hit 27 points to lead all scorers, and the Indians took an early 27-20 lead.

After Little and Parks came in, Tech picked up its tempo and took the lead, although Northeast Louisiana led 36-33 at the half. It was 73-all at the end of regulation.

SMU showed signs of being tired, after playing its fourth game in eight days. Billy Allen, son of SMU coach Sonny Allen, tied a school record with his 14 assists. Branson scored 16 and Allen 14, as the Mustangs led by as much as eight points but never could put the game comfortably out of reach.

Rice finally hit the century mark after flirting with it the past two games, finishing with 99 each time. The Owls raced to a 15-point halftime lead, 45-30.

Teaff up for OSU job

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Four men are now being considered to fill the recently vacated job as the head football coach at Oklahoma State University, a television station here is reporting.

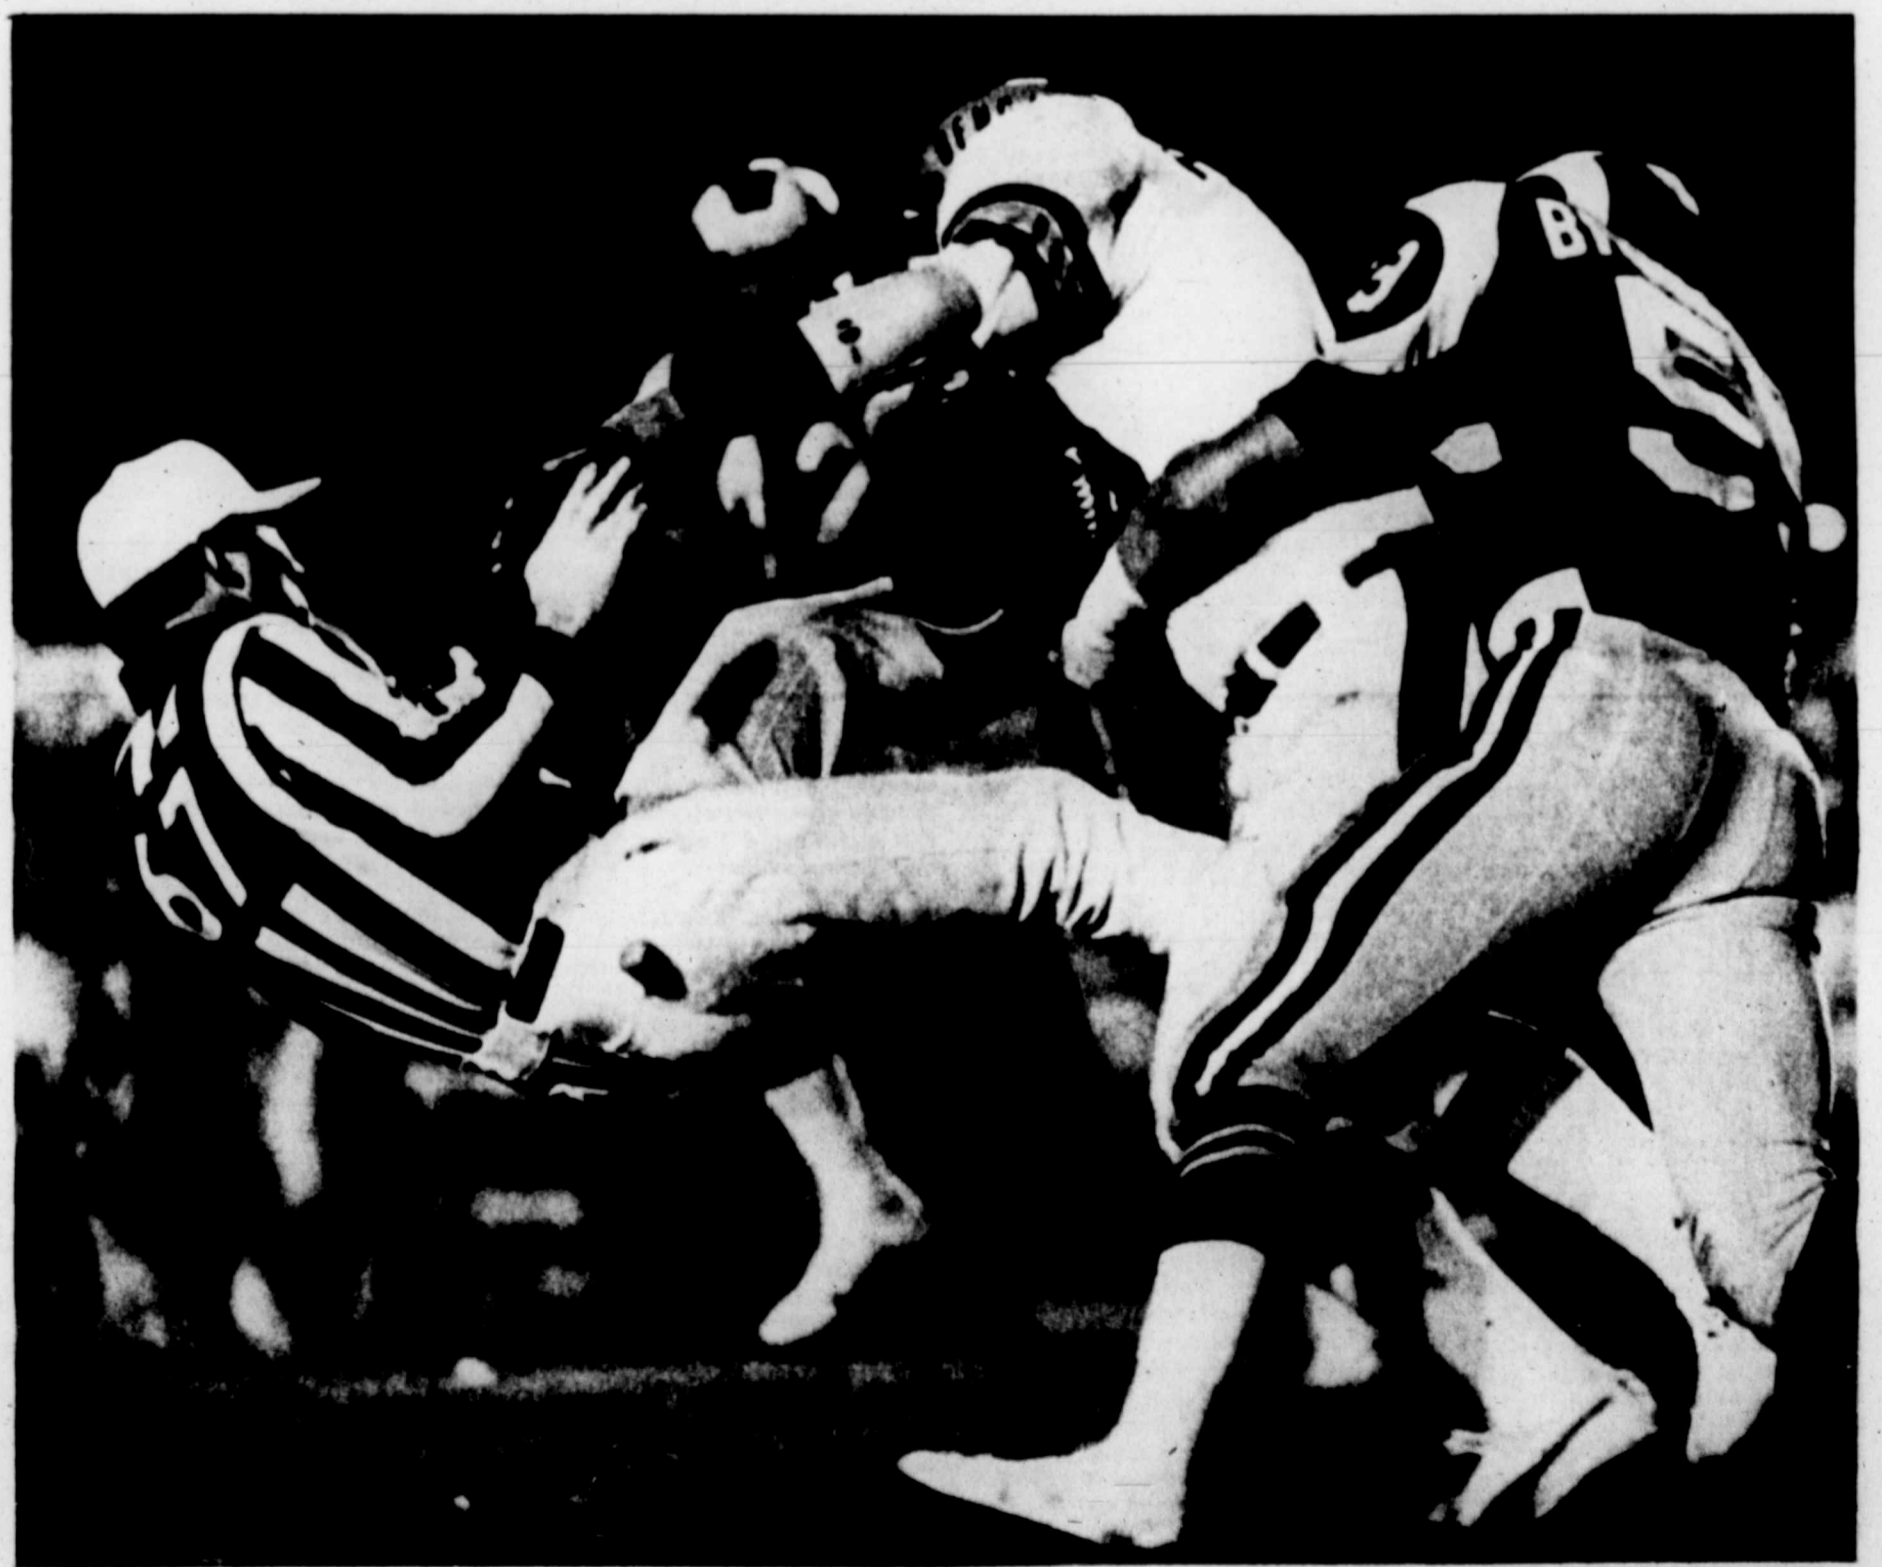

Oklahoma City station KTVY-TV reported Monday that school officials have narrowed the list of possible coaches down to Leon Fuller, Jimmy Johnson, Joe Morrison and Grant Teaff.

Fuller is presently defensive coordinator at Texas University, while Johnson is a former assistant at Oklahoma and Arkansas Universities who is now an assistant at Pittsburgh

University. Also, Morrison is a former professional fullback for the New York Giants who is now head coach at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga and Grant Teaff is the head coach at Baylor University.

Sportscaster Robbie Robertson quotes a well-placed source at the school as saying the final decision as to which of four men will get the coaching job will be made later this month.

The coaching job became open just after the close of the regular season when Jim Stanley was fired. His firing is being appealed.

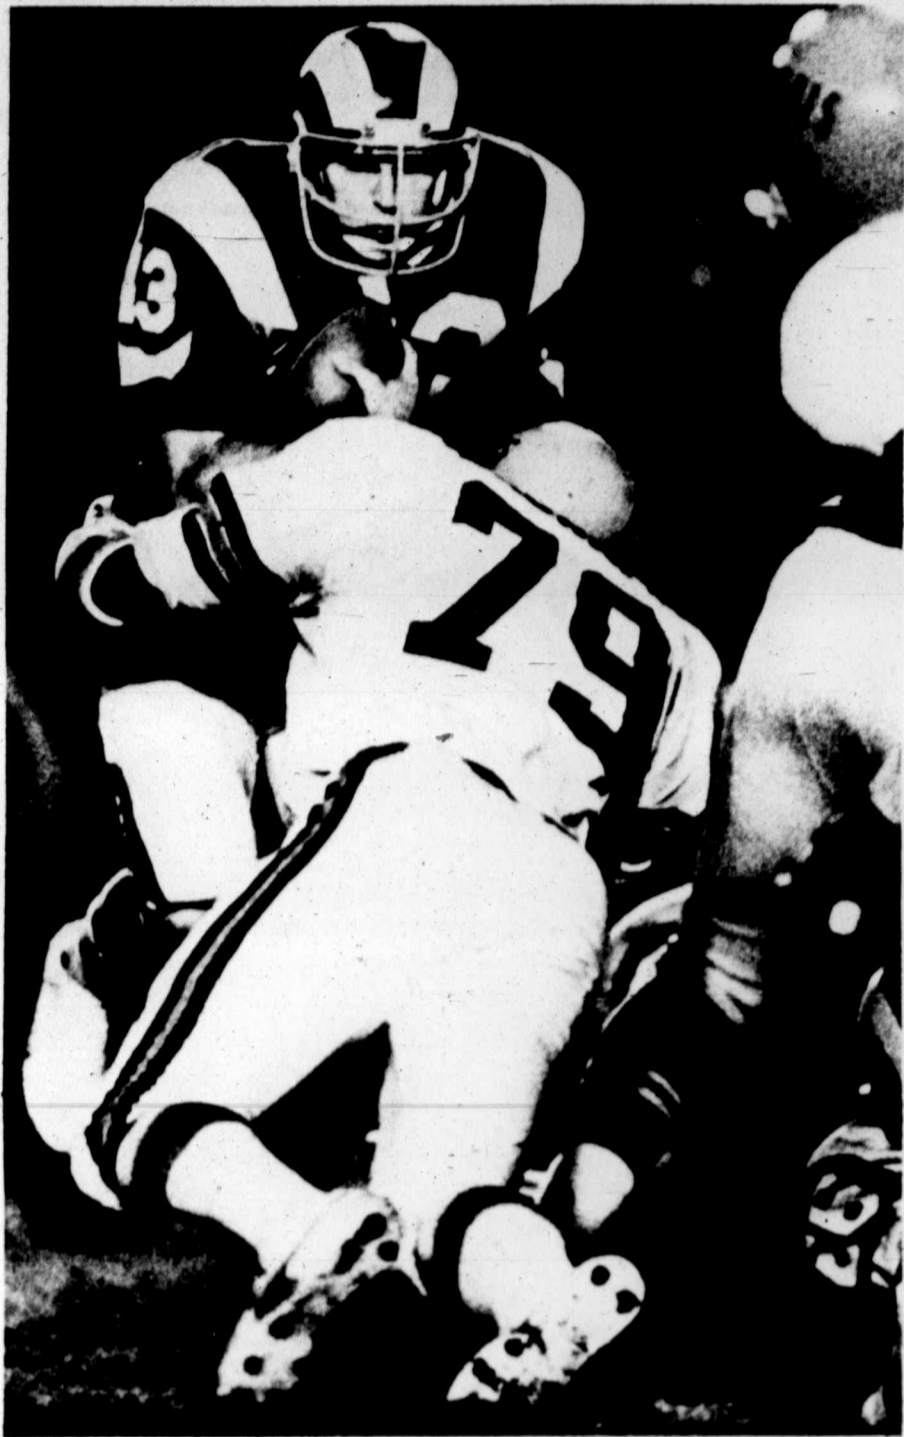

Umpire John Keck isn't really trying to tackle Cincinnati running back Archie Griffin, it just seems that way. The play occurred in the Bengal's 20-19 upset of Los Angeles Monday night. Related story and photo on page 2D (AP Laserphoto)

Cincinnati Bengals defensive end Ross Browner goes one-on-one with Los Angeles fullback Jim Jodat (43) during second quarter action of Cincinnati's 20-19 upset over the Rams Monday night. (AP Laserphoto)

LA finds Super Bowl road bumpy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The road to the Super Bowl gets bumpier for the Los Angeles Rams, who hardly resembled champions in losing 20-19 Monday night to a Cincinnati club already looking forward to the 1979 season.

"We sure did not play like a championship team," commented defensive end Jack Youngblood. "We are tired, beat up and everybody is hurting. We just made too many mistakes."

At one point, thanks to a penalty, the Rams had six plays inside the Bengals' 4-yard line and had to settle for a field goal.

That, said Bengals Coach Homer Rice, was one of two factors that brought the upset in the nationally televised contest.

The other was a pass play from Ken Anderson to Isaac Curtis on third down with 17 yards to go. Curtis caught the throw for a 19-yard gain and four plays later Chris Bahr kicked the winning 42-yard field goal.

"We really have worked on this second half of the season and we have become a good team, as good as any team going into the playoffs," commented Rice, who termed himself "a happy man."

The Rams failed to clinch the home field advantage for both rounds of the National Football League playoffs. They are sure to host the first but the second remains in doubt.

"What we did against Cincinnati makes it difficult," said Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi. "But it gives added incentive for us against Green Bay on Sunday."

If the Rams beat Green Bay and survive the first round of the playoffs, they would host the National Football Conference championship game, with the winner going to the Super Bowl.

"Now we have to win against Green Bay," said quarterback Pat Haden. "We just could not get untracked."

Los Angeles takes an 11-4 record against the Packers while the Bengals won their third game of the season and second in defense.

Anderson said, "Our defense has been outstanding all season long. The offense hasn't been scoring for them. Although we're not playing for anything at this stage of the season, we have to show we have a good team to set us up for next year."

It didn't look as if the Bengals would show anything as the Rams jumped off to a 13-0 first-quarter lead on field goals of 37 and 23 yards by Frank Corral and a 14-yard end-around for a touchdown by Terry Nelson.

Then Cincinnati perked up. Anderson and Curtis hooked up on a 46-yard touchdown pass play and Pete Johnson boomed over from two yards out to cap a 55-yard drive that took 10 plays.

With the Bengals leading 14-13, it was Corral again who put the Rams ahead with a 29-yard field goal. After the Rams were stopped at the Cincinnati 1 in the third period, the kicker collected his fourth three-pointer, this time a 17-yarder.

Then it was Bahr's turn and he hit one of 24 and the finale of 42 to bring the victory.

Evansville notches first cage win

By The Associated Press
The Evansville Purple Aces took another step on the comeback trail, and when it was over, Coach Dick Walters was choked with emotion.

"I've had clubs in the junior college state finals and we won it in 1974, but when I looked at that clock with no time on it, I felt a greater sense of accomplishment," said the man entrusted with rebuilding Evansville's basketball program, which was wiped out in a plane crash nearly a year ago.

The new Evansville team defeated Murray State 59-58 Monday night for its first victory since the crash that took 29 lives, including 14 squad members and coach Bob Watson. The victory came just two days short of a year since the disaster.

"I didn't score a point or get a rebound—all the credit goes to those kids," said Walters, who rebuilt the squad with freshmen and transfer students. "They showed more character tonight than any club I ever had."

Murray State led 58-56 before Evansville's Darnell McGhee, a 6-foot-5 transfer from Wabash Valley Junior College, stole the ball and drove in for a layup with 1:12 remaining. He was fouled on the play and made the free throw for the winning margin.

What went through McGhee's mind as he stepped to the line?

"It was either overtime or we could win," he said. "I figured it was time to win."

Evansville had lost its first five starts of the year. Junior center Barry Weston scored 13 points and freshman guard Eric Harris added 12 against Murray State, which fell to 0-6.

None of the Top Twenty teams were in action Monday night.

Purdue raised its record to 6-2 with a 73-63 victory over Arizona State as guard Jerry Sichting scored a season-high 25 points, 22 of them in the second half. Purdue led 56-50 before breaking the game open with seven straight points, the last two on a technical foul against Arizona State Coach Ned Wulk.

"Now it's exam time for the players," said Purdue Coach Lee Rose, "but they passed their first one against ASU tonight."

Elsewhere, Brad Branson scored 16 points and freshman Billy Allen, the coach's son, added 14 points and 14 assists as Southern Methodist handed previously unbeaten Vanderbilt a 68-64 defeat; Curtis Berry scored 2 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead Missouri to a 67-53 victory over Cal State-Sacramento, and freshman David Little beat the buzzer with a short jumper to give Texas Tech a 69-67 overtime victory over Northeast Louisiana.

Also, Sidney Moncreif's 22 points and 13 rebounds carried Arkansas to a 90-51 romp over Southeast Missouri; Mark Young's 19 points and 21 rebounds led Fairfield past Montclair State 74-59; Richard Smith's 23 points helped Weber State beat Utah 86-61; Keith McDonald's 22 points led Utah State over Colorado 91-70, and freshman Craig Hodges' 14 points helped Long Beach State raise its record to 5-0 with a 94-91 decision over Oklahoma State.

No real upsets in topsy turvy NFL

By GEORGE ALLEN
The Los Angeles Times

Early this season I dissected the anatomy of an upset. But, now, with only one regular season game left on each team's schedule, it is clear an upset is a misnomer in the National Football League this year.

There are no surprises. Although some teams have excellent records, there are no truly dominant teams, and there are no weak sisters. Any of the teams still mathematically eligible for the playoffs could take the Super Bowl.

Why has it been such a topsy turvy season? There are several reasons:

Training camp and preseason — With only a four-game preseason, there was less time to evaluate rookies and free agents. Veterans had less time to get into shape. Coaches were forced to get ready for games in much less time. Veterans had to play much more, much earlier, than normal.

THE SET LINEUPS for offense and defense had to be ready after just two preseason games. I always wanted my starting lineup intact for the last two preseason games. There was little time to arrange for needed trades.

The 16-game season. Instead of using late pre-season games for experimentation with tactics and new players, most coaches treated the schedule as a 14-game season with two extra games tacked onto the end. They hoped to clinch divisions, then try out the new wrinkles in the final two regular season games. Thus we saw few offbeat, surprise tactics executed successfully.

Most teams carried a third quarterback, which meant one less backup player at some other key position.

The 45-man squad. NFL teams used to carry a "taxi squad" of up to seven men. They worked out with the team but could not suit up for games. With the elimination of the taxi squad, a coach is limited to his basic 45-man roster. This means that a marginal player with bumps and bruises who really shouldn't be playing is kept on the roster. He cannot be sent down to a taxi squad, and a taxi squad player activated to take his place.

THERE IS A tendency for players to play, and coaches to depend on them, when they aren't in top shape.

Coaching changes. As of this weekend there had been 14 head coaching changes since last year — fully half of all NFL teams. Different styles and philosophies make for unpredictability — and mistakes.

Rebuilding. There are more young squads in the NFL today. Many players are starting who haven't really earned an opportunity to play in the National Football League. Few will be around in a year or two. Many had already been waived out of the league before the season ended.

Rule changes. For the past four years rules changes have relied on officials' judgment for execution. Use of the hands by offensive linemen, limited jamming of receivers by linebackers and the frivolous "incidental contact" rule have put a great burden on officials and players and slowed the game.

KEY INJURIES. Baltimore's Bert Jones, Miami's Bob Griese and Cincinnati's Ken Anderson are star quarterbacks of playoff caliber teams who were injured early in the season. These and other injuries contributed to odd losses and strangely one-sided games.

Expansion. With 28 teams of 45 men, the talent pool is diluted. This contributes to mistakes, and poorly played games.

Shorter draft. With only 12 rounds in the draft, where once there were 21, players who would normally be drafted can be signed as free agents by weaker teams. This is an effort to achieve more balance in the league.

Improved expansion teams. Seattle beat Oakland twice. Tampa beat Minnesota. There are no more pat-sies. Those strong teams who look ahead or looked back to the so-called "big" games frequently lost to one of the teams with a poorer record.

SCHEDULING. Last year's playoff teams had to play a tougher schedule, usually including extra games with other teams that won divisions last year.

Teams with poor records last year usually did not have to play first place teams other than those in their own division.

Some say this helps the game, that it creates balance, and allows the weaker teams to improve their records.

I disagree. Why should a team be penalized for excellence? If a team through hard work, dedication, organization and commitment has compiled a winning season, why should it be penalized with a tougher schedule? Weak teams should be forced to help themselves. Let's not dilute the strong teams.

The result this year has been the vague mishmash of division winners with 9-7 records — at .563 just a few percentage points better than clearly mediocre teams with mediocre records.

And without careful thought, this scheduling sometimes backfired — Philadelphia, for example, played the same schedule as Dallas.

THE BEARS shut out the Packers after being routed by San Diego when the Packers needed a win to move into first in their division last weekend; Cincinnati routed Houston just after Houston had beaten Pittsburgh; The Saints beat the Rams; the Eagles beat Miami; Detroit knocked off Denver then routed Minnesota on a day when the Vikings needed a win to make the playoffs.

Davis Cup victim of sport's money binge

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer

The United States won back the Davis Cup over the weekend, reasserting after six years its international tennis supremacy. Hip, hip, hooray! Look at all those people dancing in the streets — horns blowing, flags waving, bells ringing, crowds pressing to hoist the conquering heroes onto their shoulders.

Well, not exactly. A better description of the reaction, despite the Herculean performance of 19-year-old John McEnroe, was a mammoth yawn.

The Davis Cup, like the old gray mare, "ain't what she used to be."

The revered silver bowl, which has been shuttled across oceans, guarded like the Queen's jewels and inscribed with the names of the game's greatest, is turning to tarnish. It is the regrettable victim sport's modern day money binge.

During the week it competed with Pete Rose's free agent pyrotechnics and the baseball meetings in Florida. Then on Saturday and Sunday it went head-to-head with the National Football League, with its packed stadia and saturation of the major TV networks.

If you fiddled with the dials, you could pick up the tennis boys on the non-commercial educational network.

The Davis Cup, because of its 78 years of colorful history and its significance as the world championship among tennis nations, should be one of the outstanding sports events of the year — as once it was.

The sterling silver bowl, 13 inches high, 18 inches wide and 217 ounces dry weight, has been covered with the names of the immortals — Bill Tilden, Little Bill Johnston, Fred Perry, halfback Lawrence McCutcheon, who is out for the year, and regular fullback John Cappelletti, who will be back on Sunday.

"We had a lot of hurt people going into the game and during the game," Malavasi said. "We were forced to change people throughout the game which makes it difficult."

Quarterback Haden was knocked out in the third period but returned to action. McCutcheon's replacement, Cullen Bryant, suffered from a cold and had trouble hearing after taking a blow to the head, so he didn't return to action.

On the Cincinnati side, injuries seemed to center on the wide receiving corps, so Anderson compensated by going to tight end Don Bass. The latter caught five passes for 82 yards.

"We had to emphasize our tight end and he beat his man continually on his double rotation play," said Anderson. On that play, two receivers go down and out, two go down and in and the tight end goes down the middle.

Angelo's Aldridge named All-America

By The Associated Press

Angelo State running back Jerry Aldridge heads the slate of Texas football standouts named to The Associated Press College Division All-America team for 1978.

Billy John of Texas A&I, a bruising 6-4, 245-pound senior offensive tackle, is the only other Texas college player named to the first team, known as the "Little All-America" and comprised of athletes from NCAA Division I-AA, II and III and the NAIA.

One Texan made the second team, another the third team and 23 more were honorable mention.

Aldridge's running paced Angelo State — ranked No. 1 in the nation's NAIA teams — to a 13-0 record going into its NAIA national championship game this weekend. He is one of only two sophomores picked for the select squad.

The Angelo State star rushed for more than 100 yards in every game and led the Lone Star Conference in scoring with 14 touchdowns.

He rambled for 1,483 yards on 278 carries for a 5.3 yard per carry average. His 134.8 yards per game is the third best performance by any back in the history of the LSC.

Abilene Christian tight end Kirby Jones was the only Texan named to the second team, and Sam Houston State wide receiver Clay Lowry is the state's only representative on the third team.

Including players listed in the honorable mention category, Angelo State had eight players named to the select team. Texas A&I, Southwest Texas and Abilene Christian each placed four.

Other Texas schools with players named to one of the four teams include Stephen F. Austin two, Tarleton State two, Sam Houston State two and Texas Southern one.

Five players at Arkansas colleges were listed among the honorable mentions. Three of those are from Central Arkansas, one is from Henderson State and the other is from Ouachita Baptist.

Duke retains top spot in college cage poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Duke retained the top spot in The Associated Press Top Twenty college basketball poll, receiving 56 of a possible 60 first-place votes.

The Blue Devils overcame the slow-down tactics of LaSalle to win their only game of the week 66-42 and improve their record to 5-0.

Duke finished with 1,196 points from the nationwide committee of sport writers and broadcasters. The balloting was based on games through Dec. 10.

Notre Dame, with 1,084 points and three first-place votes, moved into second place following its 81-78 upset of UCLA. The Fighting Irish continued their mastery of UCLA, handing them their seventh home loss in 10 years, three by Notre Dame.

Michigan State, 92-89 winners over Fullerton State, gained a spot on the leaders, moving from fourth to third place. The Spartans now are 2-0 and will face North Carolina this week. Louisville made the biggest jump of the teams in last week's poll, finishing with 930 points in moving from seventh to fourth place. The Cardinals made their impression with an 86-84 victory over Michigan and a 101-54 blasting of Idaho.

UCLA, despite the loss to Notre Dame, received the other first-place vote and 906 points overall to take fifth place.

Kentucky, an upset winner over Kansas, moved into fifth place with 853 points. Last year's national champion, Kentucky, moved up from 10th place last week.

Completing the Top Ten were North Carolina State, 816 points, Kansas, 722, Michigan, 683, and Syracuse 643. Louisiana State leads the second ten, followed by Southern California, North Carolina, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas, Georgetown, Texas, Illinois, San Francisco and Indiana State.

Illinois and Indiana State, both 6-0, are in the Top Twenty for the first time this season, replacing Rutgers and Maryland.

Rangers post another win

GREENWOOD — The Class B Greenwood Rangers continue to be the hottest cage unit in West Texas after a 53-42 victory over Borden County here Monday night.

Borden County was paced by Craig Peterson with 13 while Travis Rein-hart and Blaine Dyess had 11 and 10 respectively.

The Greenwood girls also posted a win over Borden County, 40-38, behind the 12 points of Lisa Mobley and 11 by Charlotte Pitcock. Nancy Ortiz had eight while Griffin had 14 in the losing cause.

Borden County's girls JV took a 37-35 victory.

The Rangers put their winning streak on the line again tonight when they travel to Forsan.

Fry names staff

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The University of Iowa's new football coach lost no time Monday in appointing five assistants to his staff.

Hayden Fry, who took over the top job Saturday, persuaded five of his assistants at North Texas State to follow him to Iowa. A sixth may come later if he loses in his bid to get Fry's old post.

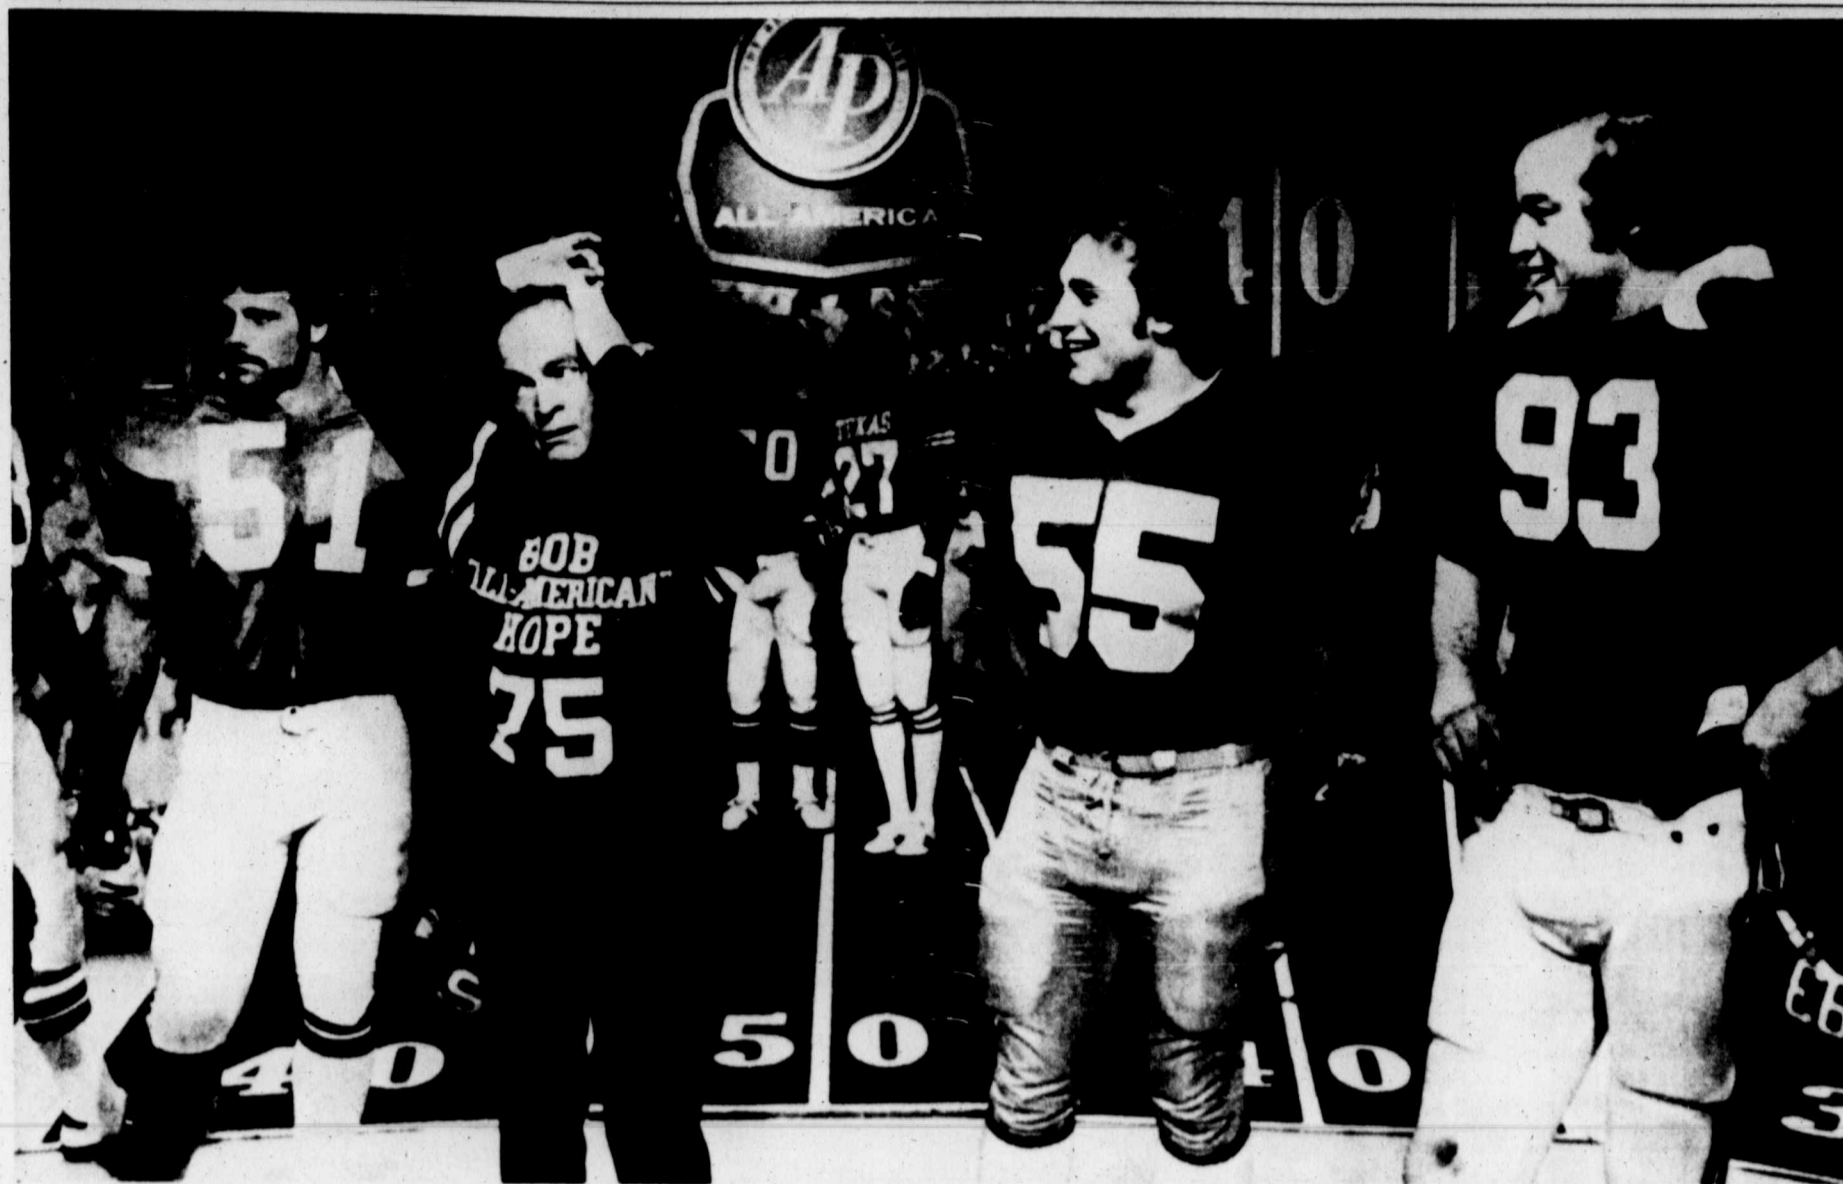

The five are Howard Cissell, who will be in charge of Iowa's line backers and defensive ends; Clovis Hale, offensive line; Carl Jackson, running backs; Bob Lee, defensive line, and Bill Snyder, quarterbacks and receivers.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Indiana cagers dismissed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Three Indiana University basketball players have been dismissed from the team and five others are on probation in an apparent dispute with Coach Bobby Knight, according to a report published in the Courier-Journal.

The Louisville newspaper said it learned of the squad shakeup from Kit Klingelhof, assistant sports information director at IU.

The three players dismissed were guard Tommy Baker of Jeffersonville, Ind., swingman Don Cox of Indianapolis and forward Jim Roberson of Rochester, N.Y.

Placed on probation were leading scorer Ray Tolbert, a sophomore center; No. 2 scorer Mike Woodson, a junior forward; sophomores Eric Kirchner and Phil Isenberger and freshman Landon Turner — all reserves, the newspaper said.

The probation was indefinite, but the five will still be able to play in Saturday's game against Kentucky in Bloomington.

Randy White says best yet ahead for Dallas Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Randy White says the best is still to come.

"We can still play a lot better," the star Dallas Cowboy defensive tackle said Monday after Sunday's 31-13 National Football League whipping of the Philadelphia Eagles.

It was Dallas' fifth consecutive victory after a 6-4 start and gave the Cowboys the home field advantage in their first game of the NFL playoffs.

"We are attacking teams now," said White. "We are getting the other teams into positions where they have to take chances. We're getting them in second-and-15 and third-and-20 situations."

"Now, that's where a defensive lineman can take off and disregard the run."

White said it was difficult to compare the current Cowboy team with the squad that won the NFL title last year because of a different schedule and other factors.

But he said "from an attitude point we are pretty close to last year's team. We have a lot of confidence."

White, playing only his second year at tackle, said he felt he was playing better than he did last season.

"I'm better but I can't be satisfied," said White. "I'll make quarterback traps then I think of some running plays I should have stopped."

"The lack of experience hurt me early this year."

White has been particularly devastating during the Cowboys' playoff stretch run.

"Harvey (Martin) came back from his injury and they started double teaming him so that left me free a lot," said White. "He creates a lot of problems for the defense. His knee is almost 100 percent well again."

White and Martin were voted the co-winners of the Most Valuable Player award in the Super Bowl last January at New Orleans.

Martin said recently "Randy is playing just great this year. He should be the Defensive Player of the Year."

Asked about Martin's statement, White grinned "Oh, Harvey is always boosting me for something."

White was asked how long he thought it would take him to learn Coach Tom Landry's complicated "flex" defense.

"I'm getting it down pretty good but there are only two people who fully understand it — (defensive coordinator) Ernie Stautner and Tom Landry," said White.

Tache wins ski title

SUN VALLEY, Idaho — Mark Tache of Aspen, Colo., and Catherine Bruce of Corning, N.Y., won the men's and women's slaloms in the Western Holiday Ski Tournament.

Tache covered the course in 1 minute, 20.21 seconds and was followed by Cory Murdoch of Tahoe, Calif., in 1:21.34.

Bruce, a member of the U.S. B Team, was first in the women's event with a time of 1:22.11, and was followed by Mary Steaton of Hancock, Mich., in 1:23.78.

Bradshaw is Steeler MVP

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It's been a season of career highs for Terry Bradshaw: most passing yards, most touchdowns, and most astute, confident play calling.

Add to that the Pittsburgh Steelers' Most Valuable Player award, voted to Bradshaw by his teammates for the second straight year.

"The greatest honor any player can receive is when the guys he's with day after day look at him and say, 'You're our Most Valuable Player,'" Bradshaw said after the announcement Monday.

The award was begun in 1970. Bradshaw, the first two-time winner, is making his ninth pro season his best, hitting 56 percent of his passes for 2,784 yards and 26 touchdowns.

"You could give this award to anybody you want on this team, and they'd deserve it. They're all MVPs," Bradshaw said from his locker room stool.

A reporter asked if he hoped to win the American Football Conference MVP.

"We won't even talk about that. You're getting way over my head," Bradshaw said as he slipped into a pair of cowboy boots.

"I never give those kinds of awards much thought. Those are for the Griese and the Stablers. That's their award. I've never been in that class."

Bradshaw, who led Pittsburgh over Baltimore Saturday, watched on television Sunday as Bob Griese and the Miami Dolphins beat the Oakland Raiders and Stabler, who was intercepted five times to boost his season total to 30.

"Poor Kenny. He didn't deserve that," said Bradshaw, who needs one more touchdown pass to equal Stabler's 1976 total of 27, most in either conference since the football merger in 1970.

"He's the same Stabler he's always been," Bradshaw added.

"But he had drops. One interception that was returned for a touchdown hit the receiver right in the chest. The one in the end zone the guy had momentarily and didn't pull it down."

The season ends for Stabler and the Raiders next weekend. The Steelers and Bradshaw play Saturday at Denver, then wait for the playoffs.

Stockton wins

WEST ORANGE, N.J. — Dick Stockton won the singles and shared in the doubles title, earning $25,000 for his efforts in the $75,000 Horizon tennis tournament at the South Mountain Arena.

Stockton, of Dallas, scored a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Tom Gorman in the singles final. Then he teamed with Erik van Dillen for a 7-5, 6-3 triumph over Arthur Ashe and Charlie Pasarell.

Bum Phillips used to criticism

HOUSTON (AP) — It's nothing new for Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips to hear criticism of his use of Oiler rookie Earl Campbell, the National Football League's leading rusher.

Phillips has heard it all—he didn't use Campbell enough, he's used him too much and why doesn't Campbell catch passes?

So Phillips was not surprised Monday when told he had been criticized by a commentator for leaving Campbell in for the final seconds of Houston's 17-12 playoff clinching victory over New Orleans.

"We had to keep the football as long as we could and run out as much time as we could and we have a guy there that's going to be a rookie of the year and maybe the outstanding player in the NFL and want me to take him out?" Phillips asked. "Well, they can go to hell."

So much for broadcasting.

Phillips is just as adamant concerning using his front line players Sunday when the Oilers close out the regular season against the San Diego Chargers in the Astrodome.

Although the Oilers already are assured a trip to the playoffs for the first time since 1969, Houston needs a victory Sunday to clinch the home field advantage for the first round match with the Miami Dolphins.

"We need to win this one bad," Phillips said. "The fans of Houston deserve to have a playoff game at home. So we are going at this game just like it was a playoff game. We are obligated to do that out of respect for our fans, our team and everybody else."

"Miami is a tough team to play anywhere especially in Miami. I said when we beat Miami in the Astrodome before that we couldn't have won the game in Miami without our crowd."

Houston, 10-5, might have used the game to rest up the injured troops if it weren't for needing to clinch the home site advantage.

The Oilers starting backfield of quarterback Dan Pastorini, Campbell and fullback Tim Wilson played the game with at least one broken rib each.

Wide receiver Guido Merkins, substituting for injured Rich Caster, was ejected from the game forcing the Oilers to use rookie speedster Robert Woods, who signed with the Oilers nine days earlier.

Woods, a world class sprinter from Grambling, responded by racing 80 yards with a flat pass from Pastorini for a touchdown that gave the Oilers a 17-7 lead.

"Our new acquaintance (Woods) came through like we thought he would," Phillips said. "He did everything we asked him to do and did it well. And when he had a chance to do what he does best, he did that too."

White, who was elevated to captain after Cowens was named player-coach earlier this season, was not available for comment. He left with the team Monday for tonight's National Basketball Association game in Houston.

Cowens said the whole incident was just a "matter of communication. We talked things out and we're okay now. Hey, we won four of our last five games. Things can't be all that bad."

"I'm not perfect," he added. "No coach is. Guys have what they feel are legitimate objections and speak up. They feel they have reached a certain level and want to know why they are not playing more. But sometimes the guy is satisfied, and the coach is not."

'Radar' to leave 'M.A.S.H.' after current season ends

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Korean war of CBS' "M.A.S.H." began in 1970. McClean Stevenson and Wayne Rogers transferred out several seasons ago. Now, Gary Burghoff says he won't be back next year.

The pint-sized actor, who first played the omniscient Cpl. Radar in the 1969 movie version of "M.A.S.H.," says he isn't unhappy with the series. It's just that he feels it's time for a change.

"I don't feel I can do the character justice anymore, and I've always wanted to do things to the best of my ability," he said.

"But after seven years in the same character, I feel it's almost to the point where I'm taking the character for granted. I'm almost bored myself and I don't want to bore the audience. "It wouldn't be fair to the audience or myself to do less than I can."

Another reason: he wants to spend more time with his wife, Janet, and their daughter, Gena, at their Malibu Canyon home. The house almost was destroyed in a major brush fire last October.

Burghoff, born in Bristol, Conn., educated in drama at New York's Music and Dramatic Theater Academy, first hit it big in his trade in 1967, in a famed Off-Broadway musicale.

He had the lead role in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" in New York and here for three years, then got lucky again in the movie and later TV version of "M.A.S.H."

The loot from the latter has helped him pursue an unlikely sideline for America's most famous Army corporal: collecting art.

"I've always been interested in it, but 'M.A.S.H.' has enabled me to buy some really important pieces," he said. By his count, his collection includes 15 major works signed by such folks as Salvador Dali and Toulouse-Lautrec.

Burghoff says he collects art for two reasons: one, as a hedge against inflation, and two, for enjoyment.

About the future: Burghoff says he'll film his last "M.A.S.H." next month.

Kentucky, Ohio preparing for decade's worst floods

By The Associated Press

The rising waters of the Ohio River threatened parts of Kentucky and Ohio today, as residents braced for what was expected to be the worst flooding in more than a decade. Parts of Kentucky remained paralyzed by weekend floods, and authorities estimated damage exceeding $100 million.

The rain-swollen Kentucky River was receding from its weekend crest, leaving muddied homes, businesses and industries in Frankfort, Ky., where flooding was the worst in more than 40 years. Gov. Julian Carroll Monday asked for federal disaster relief.

Many Frankfort residents returned to their homes, but schools, state offices and the county courthouse remained closed. Many homes in the state capital were without water, and about 1,400 were without utilities.

The Kentucky River crested in Frankfort at 48.5 feet, a foot higher than in a record flood of 1937. There were no deaths or injuries reported, and police said there were no reports of looting.

More flooding was threatened as the Ohio River, which forms the boundary between Ohio and Kentucky, continued toward a crest in Cincinnati today expected to be 6.5 feet over flood stage.

The river was reported rising more than one inch an hour, and was expected to crest at 32 feet Thursday at Louisville, Ky. — nine feet above flood stage and six inches over the level of 1967 flooding.

Dozens of families were evacuated Monday from homes in New Richmond, Newtown, Moscow and Cincinnati, Ohio, and in Dayton, Ky.

Standby shelters were prepared in several Ohio communities, and in Augusta, Ky., and Aurora, Ind.

"We don't see any threat to people in these areas, but should the river keep rising, we're prepared to offer shelter immediately," said Barbara Pinzka, a Red Cross representative.

In Louisville, Ky., city workers continued the difficult task of erecting flood gates to protect the city.

Officials estimated that more than 15,000 Kentuckians had been forced from their homes since the flooding began early Saturday.

Gov. Carroll asked President Carter to declare 17-counties a federal disaster area to make additional federal aid available. He said more counties might be added with anticipated Ohio River flood damage.

Other officials estimated damage in Kentucky between $20 million and $50 million, but Carroll said the damage figure was higher.

"I personally project the total damages will be in excess of $100 million," Carroll said. "There is no doubt in my mind."

The governor said at least 15,368 people had been evacuated in the state, an estimated 2,400 homes seriously damaged and an unknown number destroyed.

Supreme Court will consider another case of alleged 'reverse discrimination'

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anticipation, speculation and legal posturing that preceded the Supreme Court's dramatic "Bakke" ruling last June stand in the wings once more.

Exit Allan Bakke. Enter Brian Weber.

Weber will play a central role as the nation's highest court considers whether employers with no proven history of racial bias illegally discriminate against whites when giving preferences to minority workers.

That consideration, granted by the court Monday, could affect hundreds of voluntary affirmative action programs touching millions of American workers.

Weber, who is white, works for Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co. at its Gramercy, La., plant.

In 1974, he sued Kaiser after being denied participation in an on-the-job training program established to increase the number of blacks holding higher-paying craft jobs at the plant.

The program accepted black and white employees on a one-for-one basis, and therefore some blacks accepted had less seniority than Weber.

Weber charged in his suit that he was a victim of "reverse discrimination," and two lower federal courts ruled that Kaiser's program was illegal.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that Kaiser could establish such a program only if a government agency or a court found proof of past racial discrimination by Kaiser or if the firm admitted past bias against blacks.

But if Kaiser admits to a history of discriminating against blacks to shield itself from lawsuits by white workers, it necessarily would have to open itself to blacks who contend they were victims of the past bias.

In announcing new guidelines Monday, the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission said employers who have a "reasonable basis" for concluding that some affirmative action is needed, do not have to wait for a government agency or a court to order such steps.

"It seems clear that if these guidelines were in place and in effect, they might have pre-empted (Weber's) case," EEOC Chairwoman Eleanor Holmes Norton said in an interview.

"Kaiser didn't have the alternative we provided today," she said.

Ms. Norton said she expects the new guidelines, which take effect Jan. 11, to encourage employers to pursue voluntary affirmative action steps. But the guidelines themselves likely will be the subject of a future legal challenge.
