

Workers comp rate reductions worth $60 million

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Workers compensation rate reductions that will save Texas businessmen an estimated $60 million over 12 months were ordered Wednesday by the State Insurance Board.

Rate cuts averaging 5.3 percent statewide will take effect Feb. 1. The cuts are the first since December 1969. Since then, the cost of insuring workers against on-the-job injuries has soared.

Some industries will receive reductions greater than the statewide average — 7.6 percent for contractors and 8.8 percent for oil companies.

Manufacturing firms will average a 1 percent decrease in premiums, and the "all other" category that includes commercial establishments will experience an average reduction of 4.3 percent.

A firm's actual workers compensation premium will vary according to a several factors, including number of employees, wages paid and accident experience.

One exception to the rate cuts will be shipbuilding firms and ship repair yards — the so-called "F Class," which will have a 25 percent increase. Board actuaries said the shipyards' accident experience indicated a 40 percent rise in rates, but the board has had an unofficial policy for years of limiting increases to 25 percent.

Another group that was unhappy with the board order was the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, whose directors will decide within the next two months whether to appeal to the courts.

Even larger reductions are warranted than the board granted, the trial lawyers contend.

The trial lawyers built a voluminous record during almost three days of hearings in an attempt to show that board formulas give insurance companies too much money.

Spokesmen for the lawyers said the record might be used in a court appeal.

"Certainly you make a record so you have options open to you," said

Tony Koriath, a former Texas Industrial Accident Board member who heads the trial lawyers' workers compensation project.

Koriath said the trial lawyers' board of directors has 30 days after the effective date of the rates to decide whether to appeal. Their first step would be to ask the insurance board for a rehearing.

The trial lawyers contend the board formula allocates too much of the premium dollar for company expenses and taxes and, therefore, too little for payment of claims.

For instance, the formula treats all insurance companies as if they paid the full 3.85 percent gross premiums tax.

At a hearing in November, board actuary Charles Porter said premiums could be cut another $22 million this year if the formula allowed only the average gross premiums tax payment of 1.74 percent.

The Texas Association of Business also opposed the existing rate formula and sought a greater increase.

Gerald Dorsey, TAB general counsel, said the organization "quite possibly" would go to court and would file a motion for a rehearing by the board as a prelude to legal action.

Lyndon Olson Jr., sworn in Tuesday as the new board chairman, did not take part in the rate decision, which was based on information received before his appointment.

The blue bar roller pigeon that couldn't find its way home did.

But it was not after the fashion of a homing pigeon, which can find its way home in the dark, so to speak. The roller, a short-haul acrobatic bird, is not so gifted.

The lost pigeon, as you may recall from Wednesday's episode, wound up "huddled down in a knot" at the door of Garrett Palmer's home. It had gotten its navigational bearings fouled up in sleet and low-hanging clouds during a short flight over Midland Saturday morning.

On Monday afternoon, Palmer's mother, Marie Cooper, found the lost feathered creature huddled next to the front screen door.

She brought him in, took care of and fed him.

The next day, racing pigeon fancier Howard Abernathy took over the guardian's task and, using the bird's identifying bands, located his keeper, Loydd Wornell.

Wornell and his wife, Roberta, dropped over to Abernathy's place late Wednesday afternoon and took the bird home.

"Him and her both were happy," remarked Abernathy. "He said that one was one of his best rollers. He was sure glad he got the bird."

Wornell said the pigeon, a Birmingham roller, was one of 40 birds he let loose Saturday morning under what he supposed were high flying clouds. He was mistaken.

"They got up into the clouds and disappeared," he said. The sleet, snow and cold set in.

Thirty-eight returned. "The best (flying) ones are usually the ones you lose," said Wornell, who counted the lost one among the best of the lot.

"Normally, they come back home...if a cat doesn't get them" when they make a rest stop. "They have a homing instinct, although they're not trained (or gifted) naviga-

Warming temperatures Wednesday began melting the blanket of ice that covered Midland for the previous three days, but created another problem in some areas — flooded

Repairs begin on damaged roads

School classes reopened after a two-day delay, airline travel was back to normal at Midland Regional Airport and traveling conditions were less hazardous today as temperatures thawed out the ice which had slowed down the city for much of the week.

With the passing of the severe cold and icy streets, street maintenance crews will be filling newly created potholes with asphalt.

With the ice melting, the water seeping down and the increase in the traffic, we expect potholes," said Mike Butler, operations manager for the city of Midland.

"As soon as the water is off the streets, every available street crew will be out patching potholes," he said.

Butler said the streets department would "enlist the support of the citizens" by telephoning the city to point out potholes and other street damage.

Since Saturday, when the streets started icing up with sleet and snow, maintenance crews have been dumping brine water on the more heavily traveled streets and at intersections to speed the melting of the ice and to give traction to spinning tires.

"Right now, we're just hitting the critical spots," he said of the salt-water treatment.

Butler said the street conditions in the aftermath of a freeze should not be as severe as they were in the winter of 1974, when some streets, such as Midkiff Road, were cracked and damaged in other ways at the base by the seeping and freezing water. When the water froze, it led to severe damage of the street.

"I don't think it's going to be that severe (this winter)," he said. "(But) you can't tell how much water penetrates the base."

Traffic on Interstate Highway 20 and U.S. Highway 80 was flowing on dry pavements this morning, said Cecil Watkins, maintenance and construction supervisor for the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Highway crews this morning were blading off excess ice on other roadways and were surveying the highways and farm-to-market roads for damage, such as potholes, Watkins said. "We've got a few (pothole) coming up on some of the old roadways," he said.

He said ice on the interstate service roads likely would melt with the coming of the warming trend today and would not require blading.

The Texas Department of Public Safety this morning reported virtually ice-free driving on the main highways and a withdrawal of the hazardous driving warnings.

Meanwhile, the weatherman was predicting a 30 percent chance of rain for Friday and forecasting high temperatures in the middle 40s for the next two days. But the mercury is

Carrying sad news difficult

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

Some people weep on his shoulders. Others fall into a state of shock. And there are some who act like what they are hearing isn't true.

The reactions vary when Sgt. Lonnie Richardson of the Midland Police Department has to break the news to a family that someone close to them has died in a car accident, committed suicide or been slain.

But the reaction doesn't make the job any easier, he says.

Carrying the death message is the sad part of law enforcement, which sooner or later falls on the shoulders of most policemen.

The officer may be a friend of the family. But in most cases, he's a stranger. Often, he'll have to knock on the door late at night and awaken someone he never has met before to tell that person a loved one has just died.

"I don't think there's anything more difficult you can do. It's something that nobody on the police force looks forward to," said Richardson, who, after 22 years with the Midland Department, doubts any officer can handle the chore without feeling some emotion.

"I don't know if it's any harder on me now. But I know it's certainly not any easier. I don't think anyone can get calloused in delivering a death notice."

As a supervisor of one of the department's four shifts, Richardson has notified the next of kin of persons who have died more than most of his colleagues.

Though he can freely recall many instances over the years when he was the bad news bearer, he doesn't like to elaborate on them, as most of those moments were unpleasant.

He still remembers the time 20 years ago when he paid a visit to a woman to inform her that her husband had just been killed in a car accident on the way to work in Odessa.

"It was hard to convince her because her husband had just left home."

Lt. David Wilks, a shift supervisor who has been on the police force 10 years, had more difficulty the first time he had to notify next of kin.

"The lady refused to talk to me. It was on New Year's Eve. And she thought it was a joke. The lady just wasn't aware it was a death notice," he recalled.

Wilks' message got through only after the woman had confirmed that there was a police officer.

There are no hard and fast rules for procedures; officers must follow in delivering the death notice, according to Police Chief Wayne Gideon.

Shah reported leaving Iran today

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — After weeks of virtual seclusion in his palace, the embattled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi left Tehran with his family today for two days of rest at a resort 40 miles east of here, a key aide said.

The aide, Ardesbir Zahedi, also reported that the shah had issued a royal decree appointing Shabpour Bakhtiar prime minister. The shah asked Bakhtiar last weekend to form a new civilian government to try to quell Iran's political violence.

Zahedi, Iran's ambassador to Washington, said the royal family is expected to return to Tehran on Saturday, when Bakhtiar will probably present his Cabinet to the monarch and the government will be formally installed, replacing a two-month-old military administration.

There have been persistent reports that the shah, facing the strongest challenge to his rule in 25 years, would leave Iran for a vacation or medical treatment while a Bakhtiar-led administration tries to restore order after more than a year of unrest sparked by anti-shah protests.

At a news conference Wednesday, Bakhtiar said the shah "wants to rest and take a vacation — that is the desire he has expressed himself."

The shah's two-day sojourn in the resort of Jajroud clearly was not the "vacation" Bakhtiar and others had in mind. But Zahedi said it was the first time in months that the 58-year-old shah has left Tehran.

At his news conference Bakhtiar said questions about the future of the monarchy are "extremely delicate," adding he hoped to restore "the legality of the king."

The shah reportedly has promised Bakhtiar to give up much of his royal power and take a vacation, leaving a regency council to exercise royal authority while the new prime minister's civilian government attempts to end the national unrest.

Bakhtiar on Wednesday also threatened to cut off oil to Israel and South Africa and promised to curb the secret police and the army.

"We must not refuse to sell petrol to countries that request it," Bakhtiar said. "But given the conflict that we have on a religious plane with Israel... I think my government wouldn't do that."

Asked to elaborate, Bakhtiar said he thought Israel, which gets 60 percent of its oil from Iran, "should settle its disputes with Arab countries and these countries share our religion."

Iranian unrest clouds summit beginning today

SAINT-FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (AP) — President Carter and the government chiefs of Britain, France and West Germany begin an informal, two-day summit meeting today haunted by the specter of anarchy in Iran.

Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, told reporters in Washington Wednesday that the president in his talks with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and British Prime Minister James Callaghan would reiterate his support for Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Brzezinski said the three European leaders agree with Carter's backing for the threatened shah, one of the biggest customers for their arms and other manufactures and a major source of oil for Western industry. All four leaders are deeply concerned that if power slips from the shah's grip, Iran's new leaders might turn to the Soviet Union, the country's big northern neighbor.

Billed by the French hosts as an "informal and friendly meeting" on "the state of the world at the end of 1978 and beginning of 1979," the summit will also assess new moves in the American-Soviet SALT negotiations to limit nuclear arms, the normalizing of relations between the United States and China, Chinese shopping for Western arms, the deadlocked Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations, the continuing black-white confrontation in southern Africa and the money and trading problems of the Western world.

Brzezinski said Carter would solicit advice from the European leaders about how to deal with "gray area" tactical nuclear weapons.

Vietnamese rebels push farther into Cambodia

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — New gains were reported today in the Vietnamese-rebel Cambodian offensive against the Phnom Penh government as the threatened Communist regime asked for a Security Council meeting and got the U.S. government's support.

Vietnam's insurgent proteges claimed to have occupied towns giving them control of some 18,000 square miles of Cambodia, or a fourth of the country, and the Mekong River.

Analysts in Bangkok believe an estimated 100,000 Vietnamese troops were doing the major fighting and that as many as 20,000 Cambodians led by Communists who broke with the Phnom Penh government were mopping up after them. Hanoi, meanwhile, was silent, and the month-old rebel United Front for National Salvation was doing all the talking in an attempt to portray the Vietnamese invasion as a Cambodian uprising.

The Front announced that its forces had taken Stung Treng and Lomphat, two capitals in Cambodia's northeasternmost provinces. They occupied Kratie, another northeastern provincial seat 100 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, on Saturday, and reported Tuesday they were besieging Kompong Cham, 45 miles northeast of the capital on the Mekong.

The northeast is sparsely populated and except for some hydroelectric potential economically unimportant. But the central part of eastern Cambodia is rich rubber plantation country.

Another Vietnamese force was reported driving into southern Cambodia through the Parrot's Beak salient in an attempt to cut off Phnom Penh from the coast. Radio Phnom Penh charged that a Vietnamese air attack destroyed homes and killed patients in a hospital in the Mekong River town of Neak Luong, 35 miles south-east of the capital.

The Cambodian government claimed its army had killed 14,000 Vietnamese troops since the drive started Christmas Day, destroyed 84 tanks and downed one MiG jet. Deputy Prime Minister Ieng Sary cabled the U.N. Security Council asking for an urgent meeting to condemn "Vietnamese aggression."

The 15-nation council is not expected to meet on the Cambodian petition until next week, after a government delegation from Phnom Penh arrives in New York.

In Washington, the Carter administration expressed opposition to the Vietnamese invasion. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said although the United States "takes exception to the human rights record of the Kampuchean (Cambodian) regime, we do not feel as a matter of principle that unilateral intervention by an outside power is justified."

He added that the administration was in favor of a Security Council session on Cambodia and wants to see the war ended without "great power involvement."

The "human rights" reference was to reports that the Phnom Penh government slaughtered hundreds of thousands of people and forced legions of other politically suspect residents out of the cities to become farmers after the Communists defeated the U.S.-supported Cambodian regime in 1975.

The Vietnamese and Cambodian Communists were allies in their war against the United States and the Cambodian and South Vietnamese governments it supported.

Attorneys argue various points with judge in Cullen Davis trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecuting attorneys were on the stand, a defense witness was threatened with time in the county jail, a defense lawyer and the judge had a sharp exchange, and W.T. Ruffner showed up again.

It was another day in the long-playing trial of Fort Worth industrialist Cullen Davis, charged with soliciting a hired gunman to kill the judge presiding over his bitter divorce case with estranged wife Priscilla.

The jury missed most of the strange actions in this strange case, listening only briefly to testimony during the 8 a.m. to 5:10 p.m. session.

The remainder of the time was spent with attorneys arguing various points before Judge W.A. (Pete) Moore, such as who should testify to what and who should ask what kind of questions.

It began during the cross-examination of Isaac Sustaita, 33, of Fort Worth. Sustaita was a defense witness who testified he saw Priscilla Davis, a school teacher, and an unidentified male together shortly before the arrest of Cullen Davis.

Defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes protested the line of questioning taken by prosecutor Terry Wilson. He said the prosecutors were acting in bad faith.

Judge Moore sent the jury out of the courtroom and Haynes put Wilson and prosecuting attorney Jack Strickland on the witness stand. He asked them if they had done an in-depth job of investigating the past criminal record of Sustaita.

They said Tarrant County district attorney investigators had looked into the matter and reported their findings. Haynes insisted they had not and were accusing Sustaita of being convicted of things he had never done and were attempting to influence the jury.

Had Judge Moore ruled bad faith, it could have led to a mistrial. Letter carriers request removal of ice from walks

Postmaster D.E. Holster is asking Midland residents to make sure ice and snow are removed from sidewalks and steps leading to their mail boxes during cold winter periods.

They described the officially condoned photographic style as "arid" and cited the example of pictures of smiling peasants absorbed in Marxist textbooks.

The photos were intended "to promote and strengthen the friendship between the Chinese and American people and develop cultural and artistic exchange," said one of the photographers, an accountant in a nearby province.

An Associated Press photo editor contacted the photographers by adding a note to the photo show asking to meet them. An interview with two of them took place at the wall just before midnight Wednesday with the assistance of an interpreter.

But the judge said there was no bad faith and the jury returned briefly. Then James Stephens took the stand and was ordered by the judge to reveal the name of a Tarrant County law enforcement officer mentioned by the witness in earlier testimony.

Moore made it clear he would send Stephens to the county jail unless he complied. Stephens complied. Haynes then called Tom Hollenbach, a Fort Worth private investigator, to the stand and began questioning him on work he had done on Oct. 9 to early November.

The prosecution objected and Judge Moore ruled the questions irrelevant. Haynes protested, saying if given the chance he could prove that Cullen Davis' brother, Bill, had bankrolled a continuing conspiracy to frame his client.

Moore said to Haynes, a longtime personal friend, "I think the whole system (of justice) is being abused and I don't like it."

Glaring at Haynes, the judge added, "You are on a fishing expedition. This is a complete waste of time."

Haynes said you can catch "some fish" on a fishing trip. Moore answered, "You are fishing in the wrong pond."

Ruffner is a former boyfriend of Priscilla Davis, a sometime motorcycle race rider, and called earlier in the trial as a defense witness.

Planning Commission delays approval of plat

The Midland Planning and Zoning Commission Wednesday delayed approval of a final plat for the Metro-Industrial Park to be built on West Highway 80 near Midland Regional Airport.

Consideration of the plat, which is outside the city limits but within the "extraterritorial jurisdiction" of the city, will be taken up at a special meeting of the commission Monday.

Approval was delayed until commissioners could hear from the Federal Aviation Administration on development so close to the end of the airport runways.

In other business, the commissioners suggested a compromise for a zoning change requested for the southeast corner of Neely Avenue and Midland Drive. Developer Morris Hamilton Jr. requested a change from single family and local retail districts to multiple family zoning so he could build apartments on the lot.

apartments in the area, the commission recommended the change from local retail to multiple family district for the majority of the section. They suggested the southern corner of the property currently zoned for single-family homes be used for duplexes only. Final approval of the suggestions will have to come from the City Council.

In other action, the commission gave final approval to the plat for the Scotsdale Addition on the southwest corner of Neely Avenue and Midland Drive and granted a temporary special permit to allow a mobile home at Smith Brothers Pipe Service yard at 2701 Garden City Highway.

The commission's planning committee gave its approval to the request by HBF Corp. for zoning changes on property at the intersection of Garfield Street and Whitmore Boulevard to build a neighborhood shopping center comparable to the Plaza Center at Garfield Street and Wadley Avenue.

Sometimes the family minister, a relative or close friend will accompany a police officer to the home of the next of kin, according to the chief.

"You really feel like you're under the gun to minimize the impact," said Wilks. "You can't put it off. It's something that has to be done quickly. But you still have to make it as comfortable as possible."

"The police officer might have to stay around for a while with the person until family or friends arrive. Sometimes 15 minutes, sometimes you may stay an hour and a half. But when you get down to it, there's really nothing you can do to help. It takes time for the people to overcome their grief," Wilks said.

For most officers, the most difficult time to notifying next of kin is telling parents their child has just died, according to Wilks and Richardson, who both are parents themselves.

"It's usually easier to tell children of a parent's death than to tell parents a child has died. I delivered several on children, and, to me personally, it's more difficult," said Richardson. "It's a difficult thing to do. You try to make it as easy as possible. But you're really not an ideal person to comfort them. A 17-year-old dying in a car accident isn't the same thing as an adult dying of natural causes."

For Richardson and other officers who have to deliver the bad news, there's really no simple approach any situation. It's a grim part of the job that nobody likes to do, but has to be done.

The photographers said they wanted to exhibit the photos at the U.S. Liaison Mission, but reconsidered when they eyed the compound's considerable Chinese security contingent.

Thousands flocked to Hsi Dan, lately called Democracy Wall, to read posters criticizing disgraced leaders. The unexpected photos were on display nearby but unknown persons took them down after two days.

The photos deviated sharply from China's Socialist Realism style and included haunting, evocative images of a child with outstretched hand, a triple-exposed photograph of a face and others titled "Forbidden Books."

Who controls Mashhad? Nobody's really sure

By ROBERT H. REID

MASHHAD, Iran (AP) — "The army controls the city but we cannot let you go into town without an escort. It is too big a risk," said Brig. Gen. Ali Yazdjerdi, the Mashhad district commander.

Control of this city of 800,000 seems very much in doubt, however, after last weekend's riots, among the bloodiest in the year-long struggle against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The army remains in its garrison on the edge of the city, steering clear of religious shrines and the home of Moslem leader Ayatollah Shirazi. Across the street from the army hospital and post exchange, gutted last weekend by rioters and still smoking four days later, lies Shah Reza Hospital.

Officers claim it is a "no man's land," controlled by radical doctors. "The people control the town by day and the army controls it by night" after curfew, said 24-year-old Mahoub Kasrie, who lives across from the burned out Iran American Society building.

Nineteen Western reporters who flew Wednesday by government plane from Tehran could not see enough of the city — one of Iran's holiest — to judge the extent of damage and casualties from the weekend riots.

During a five-hour visit, the military was eager to show wounded soldiers, corpses and burned out tanks, but unenthusiastic about tours down Mashhad's birch-lined streets.

The only view of downtown Mashhad — a clean city of squat buildings along broad avenues radiating from the domed shrine of Imam Reza — came from a helicopter as it circled the town.

During a brief tour of streets near the garrison, five truckloads of armed soldiers accompanied the press bus. When reporters climbed out to inspect damage, troops deployed as if securing a perimeter in a hostile country rather than a city block in their homeland.

An Iranian lieutenant asked away most of his countrymen who came to stare. Another officer insisted that reporters remain within the line of troops.

"The compound is the border," another officer joked. The state radio said 106 persons died in the weekend riots, but the opposition estimates between 700 and 2,000. The dead included eight soldiers and five policemen, some dragged from tanks and trucks and beaten to death.

New gene found related to psychotic depression

By ROBERT LOCKE

HOUSTON (AP) — A newly discovered gene dramatically increases the risk of a severe mental illness and seems related to alcoholism and perhaps even multiple sclerosis, a California scientist says.

Dr. David Comings said a person who inherits the gene from one parent is more than twice as likely to develop severe psychotic depression as is a person without the gene.

And if two such genes are inherited — one from each parent — the risk increases eightfold, he said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

Psychotic depression is a debilitating illness characterized by extreme withdrawal and inactivity. Comings said his discovery has implications for improved understanding and treatment of such depression.

He said the gene's relationship is less clear to multiple sclerosis, a disease of the nervous system, and to chronic alcoholism. The gene is more common among victims of the affliction than in the rest of the population, he said, but "we really don't understand what the situation is. ... We're just reporting what we found."

Comings is based at the City of Hope National Medical Center in Duarte, Calif. His findings were being published this week in the British scientific journal Nature.

He said the gene, which he calls Pe 1 Duarte, seems to be present in about one-third of the population. And although its presence increases the likelihood of psychotic depression, the gene is not the sole cause of the disease, Comings said. "There is an increased susceptibility, but environmental factors are involved, he said. "A person can have this gene and be perfectly healthy, or he cannot have the gene and develop the disease."

Scientists have generally been convinced of genetic influence on psychoses such as depression and schizophrenia. But Comings said his findings are "the first biochemical evidence of the mutant protein that's involved in this psychosis."

He said the protein that signals the gene's presence was identified in brain tissue taken from the bodies of accident or disease victims. It has been found nowhere else in the body. This means the gene can currently be detected only in cadavers, Comings said.

The identification of the protein, he said, enables researchers to begin unraveling its role and perhaps, Comings said, "the cause of depression." Knowledge of the cause of depression, he said, could then lead to more effective treatments than the drugs now used. The gene was identified initially in tests on brain samples from 152 individuals which showed 31 percent carried the gene. The brain tissue of 28 persons who had committed suicide or were diagnosed as depressives or alcoholics were then tested, he said, and more than 64 percent carried the gene.

Speer admits to charge

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Andrew Speer, who with his wife was expelled from Mexico last month after spending 16 months in prison before drug smuggling charges were dismissed, admitted Wednesday he is the same man charged in a Texas smuggling case.

Speer, 59, appeared before U.S. Magistrate John Wooley, and waived the formalities of a removal hearing. His waiver doesn't constitute admission of guilt to the charges in Texas.

Wooley said Speer, who had pleaded innocent in Wichita to federal indictments alleging mail fraud and over-evaluating securities, would have his local cases disposed of before any trip to Texas.

The mail fraud indictment was returned by a federal grand jury in Topeka in March, 1977.

Consumers to sponsor legislation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas consumer activists say brand name drugs cost too much and they will sponsor a bill in the upcoming Legislature to give customers the option of buying a brand name or its generic equivalent.

Several previous attempts to pass generic drug legislation have failed under attack from doctors and pharmaceutical companies, who maintain there are subtle but important differences between some brand name drugs and their generic equivalents.

The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now asserted Wednesday that Texans often pay two to three times more for brand name drugs than for their generic substitutes. Texas ACORN stated Wednesday.

The association said its members surveyed drug prices in more than 60 pharmacies in Austin, Dallas, Houston, Denton, Abilene, Fort Worth and Haltom City, near Fort Worth.

The findings included: — One Dallas pharmacy charges $7.06 for 100 capsules of Equanil and only $1.10 for its generic substitute, meprobamate.

— A Houston pharmacy charges $19.38 for Polycillin, while its generic equivalent, ampicillin, is priced at $8.70.

— A Fort Worth drug store charges $14.25 for 100 capsules of Librium but only $4.55 for 100 capsules for its generic substitute, chlordiazepoxide.

"Texans, particularly sick Texans, clearly are not getting a fair shake," said Tony Hernandez of Austin, a member of ACORN's executive board.

Doctors can prescribe generic substitutes, ACORN said, but it is illegal for pharmacists to substitute a generic drug if a brand name drug has been prescribed.

ACORN said the federal government defines generic equivalents as "those multiple source drug products which contain essentially identical amounts of identical active ingredients as in the official Compendia."

ACORN said when pharmacists were asked how many doctors were prescribing generic equivalents, the highest response was 33 percent. Some pharmacists said as few as 1 percent of the doctors prescribe generic equivalents.

"ACORN members believe that Texas needs a law which would make these medicines more readily available to people by allowing the pharmacists to inform their customers and to substitute the less costly generic drugs for the often more expensive brand name drugs," said Willo Hardin of Austin. "We plan a major effort to see such a bill passed during this legislative session."

American artists to study in Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five American artists were named today to study in Japan for six months to nine months under a new cultural exchange program with that country.

The agreement provides that the two nations exchange an equal number of artists. Each fellowship winner receives a monthly stipend of $1,600 as well as travel and dependent services, language training and the services of an interpreter.

The five-year program is financed by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Japan-U.S. Friendship Commission and Japan's Agency for Cultural Affairs.

The names of the Americans chosen were announced by Livingston L. Biddle Jr., chairman of the endowment, a federal agency, and Francis Tenny, executive director of the commission.

Valerie Van Pelt

Senior chosen Outstanding Girl

Valerie Van Pelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Van Pelt of Midland, has been selected Outstanding Girl for January by the American Association of University Women.

The Midland High School senior has earned an academic letter for three years and ranks 16th in her class. She is student body chaplain at the school.

She is active in drama at the school. She was chosen Drama Club sweetheart and is production manager for the MHS musical "Wildcat," to be presented in January. She also is a member of the speech and debate team.

She writes the Youth Center Chatter column and is a member of the 100 Club and the Junior Council at the center. She also is a member of the National Honor Society, Latin Club and National Forensic League.

Miss Van Pelt is a member of the varsity volleyball team and played Miss Softball America for five years. She is a nominee for the 1979 Catoica Court.

She received an American Legion award at both San Jacinto Junior High and at Edison Freshman School.

She also has been selected as Junior Lioness of the week and as a Junior Rotarian.

She plans to attend The University of Texas at Austin after graduation.

Oswald to stay in jail

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Robyn Oswald could remain in a St. Clair County Jail cell for another two weeks before learning whether she'll be tried as a juvenile or an adult in the hijacking of a TWA jetliner near Kansas City last month.

"We obviously feel she is a juvenile," said Robert Shuff, her court-appointed attorney. But the 17-year-old suburban St. Louis girl may not know until Jan. 19 if she will stand trial as an adult, he said.

Authorities identified Miss Oswald as the person who ordered the plane with 87 persons aboard to land at Marion, Ill., on Dec. 21.

Passengers said she claimed to have dynamite strapped to her body and demanded to see Garrett Brock Trappnell, a prisoner at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion.

Trappnell was on trial in nearby Benton for complicity in a helicopter hijacking last May in which Miss Oswald's mother, Barbara, was killed. Authorities said Barbara Oswald was trying to free Trappnell and other convicts.

Ronald Eckiss, an assistant state's attorney for Williamson County, said Wednesday his office had been considering aggravated kidnapping charges against Miss Oswald.

Names in the news

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich's Ohio driver's license has expired and the police department, where 275 officers may be laid off Friday at the mayor's recommendation, knows about it.

"It's true," said Kucinich news secretary Andrew Juniewicz. "Things have been busy around here lately."

Juniewicz said the mayor, who has a police chauffeur, would renew his license at the earliest possible opportunity. He added that Kucinich has done no driving since his license expired Oct. 8, his 32nd birthday.

In a related development, the mayor's youngest brother, Perry, 22, was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of unarmed bank robbery in connection with a Cleveland bank holdup last month.

U.S. Attorney James Williams said Perry Kucinich would be arraigned within the next 10 days. The mayor said his brother had a history of mental problems and needed attention.

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Ethel Kennedy is being sued by the owners of an Aspen catering service who allege she refused to pay $500 for a Christmas dinner for 20 people.

The suit, filed in county court here, said Mrs. Kennedy's housekeeper called Christmas Day asking if a dinner could be prepared that evening.

Because of the holiday, caterer Dean Small said he charged $90 an hour for his work — $360 for four hours. Small said his normal rate is $45 an hour. He said other charges included $50 for cab fare because the firm's van was broken and $90 for the food itself.

"We've done work for the Kissingers and the Rockefellers. We don't believe in overcharging just because of their name," said Tom Gerlak, the firm's president.

Small said he presented the bill to Mrs. Kennedy the day after Christmas — $500 plus $35 tax. "She was really furious," he said. "She said it was worth $25..."

Mrs. Kennedy, who was on a skiing vacation with her children, could not be reached for comment.

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper has attacked former President Richard Nixon, describing him as a "politician entangled in intrigues and lies" and branding his new book a "whitewash."

Za Rubezhom, a million circulation weekly, carried a stinging commentary on the Watergate scandal and a 7,000-word excerpt from Nixon's book, "RN: The Memoirs of Richard Nixon."

Nixon's history of anti-communism and his "hard-line" positions are given new emphasis. He is also shown as having barely avoided prison after resigning as president.

The newspaper's treatment of the Watergate story and Nixon's administration differs greatly with the official line carried in the Great Soviet Encyclopedia, which excludes any reference to his anti-communist history.

Area economy strong for '79

Midland's economy in 1979 appears good, Bob L. Jones told members of the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday noon at their meeting in the Midland Hilton.

Midland and the Permian Basin are sitting in a good position, he said, due to multiple factors, including the continuing search for oil and natural gas, location, business climate and natural resources.

Jones, who was introduced by Duke Jimerson, is senior vice president and controller for The Midland National Bank.

Commenting on Midland's record-breaking year-end bank deposits in excess of $820 million, Jones said the figure represent an 11.23 percent increase over the same date a year previously. He said that loans also show an 11.43 percent increase over a year ago, which signifies that "money is at work in the Permian Basin."

The speaker said that Midland is ranked in the "Top 10" in the nation, and is first in Texas, in per capita income — $7,701. Houston is second and Dallas third in Texas, he said.

Jones expressed the belief that Texas' growth will continue at a rapid pace. It is estimated by some, he said, that Texas' population by the year 2000 will be 16,654,000.

He pointed out also that this remarkable growth in Texas and the Sun Belt generally will bring a number of challenges.

It is interesting to note, he added, that Texas also has become one of the nation's major money markets.

"And Texas still has the edge in energy resources," the speaker commented.

Turning to the national scene, Jones said, "Inflation is the scourge of our present society."

As to economic projections nationwide for 1979, Jones said "it all depends on to whom one is talking."

Some economists foresee a recession coming early in the year while others predict a recession late in the year, over into 1980. Jones predicted a downturn is going to happen, again due to a number of factors, including the attempt to curb inflation. He stated, however, that he does not believe that a two-quarter recession will solve the inflation problem.

The tax revolt, Jones said, is seen by some as a growing realization by the public that government cannot solve all the problems.

"And there is even a change for the better in public attitude toward business, and this is encouraging," he concluded.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: My recent item, "What to do about obscene telephone calls," prompted a rash of responses. Some berated me for suggesting that a police whistle be kept by the phone to blast the caller into the next county. ("What if your mother-in-law calls and you mistakenly think the obscene caller is calling again? That blast could seriously injure her hearing," one reader stated.)

Well, here's the official word from the Pacific Telephone Co.: If you should get an obscene phone call, HANG UP!

That's right, just hang up. That's the fastest, most effective way to discourage annoying calls. The people who make them actually need an audience. And taking that away from them—by hanging up—takes away their entire motivation for making the calls in the first place.

So at the first disturbing remark, simply hang up. Gently—because any reaction at all can serve to encourage them. Don't yell, don't speak, don't even mutter. Don't give the caller the satisfaction of any response whatsoever. Just hang up.

If the caller continues to harass you, call the business office of your phone company. They have people trained to deal with this type of situation. And they will do everything, including working with your police department, to avert further problems.

Obscene phone calls are illegal. A convicted offender can be sentenced to up to six months in prison and a $1,000 fine.

But the best thing to do is just remember that simple rule: It's your telephone—if you don't like what's being said, HANG UP!—ABBY

DEAR ABBY: What advice have you for a 23-year-old girl who, everybody says, is pretty and smart, but who lives in a small town with snobbish people who won't let her forget that she lives on the wrong side of the tracks?—ME IN IOWA DEAD ME: The next time the train comes through—get on it.

DEAR ABBY: I was married at a very young age to a man I never really loved. I have two fine teen-age children. My marriage didn't work out because my husband used to beat me a lot. After I divorced him, I fell deeply in love with a woman. It was easy for me, since I had always felt a strong sexual attraction for women, but I never allowed myself to have an affair with one.

I am now living with this wonderful woman and have never been happier. The relationship is so comfortable and natural for me. My children know what I am and accept it, but my parents are giving me a hard time.

I love my parents and know they love me, but they just don't understand my feelings. They disapprove of my mate and my lesbian lifestyle.

Should I give up my lover to please my parents? I'm 34.—TORN IN TWO

DEAR TORN: If you are mature, you will make your own choice based on what YOU want, not on what your parents want. If your parents love you, they'll accept you as you are.

Sensual shoes are spring fashion

By NATALIE BEST
Copley News Service
NEW YORK — Since 34 members of the Footwear Council say legs are in for spring, feet they have produced the shoe of the future called the "sensual foot."

The shape of the 1979 shoe is closer to the foot, rounder and softer. The closed-up shoe has returned with cutouts, perforations and woven vamps. The fabrications are glove and deluxe with more nubucks and rich aniline finishes than ever before.

"Since the leg comes to the forefront in the spring ready-to-wear, with bandeau waist dresses and slitted skirts for women and narrow leg pants for men, shoes set off the outfits," said designer Palizzio.

"To complement the leg accent shoe fashion lies in beautiful bright colors, exciting fabrications and innovative heel shapes with lots of looking backward toward the '40s and '50s with 'trout mouth' open toes and peek-a-boo cutouts. Thin straps make shoes visible."

The heel height is as high as you like it. Spike heels and the return of the pump will replace the heavy clods, especially with the young and active.

Many of the top footwear designers have produced thin strap sandals in the popular ready-to-wear fabrics, including lames and taffetas, satins, silks and metallics, especially for evening wear.

with the new linens and airy tweed separates and suits by day.

Such designers as Andrew Geller, Bally, Beene, Charles Jourdan, Evins, Halston for Carolini, Jarman, Vitteci Ricci and Julianelli point out two important trends that will come into full bloom this spring. Shoes will be more sophisticated and tailored. At the same time, dressy styles will be more exciting and unusual than even those of the Forties.

Other variations to look for include the laid-back sandals, "fisherman" styling with laces, slimmed-down wedge bottoms, lots of ankle wraps and ties and bleached wood bottoms.

Disco mania and the return of the "little black dinner dress" and his dinner suit almost demand a more polished, elegant styling in footwear.

Conrad Hilton, smalltown boy who became millionaire, dead at 91

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Conrad Hilton, 91, a smalltown New Mexico boy who became a millionaire innkeeper and counted presidents and popes among his friends, is dead of pneumonia.

The hotel magnate died at 10 p.m. Wednesday, three days after entering St. John's Hospital, said Jacques Cosse, spokesman for the Hilton Hotels Division of Hilton Hotels Corp.

"He was working right up until just before Christmas," Cosse said. "He was ill and went into the hospital just before the holidays and then went back into the hospital three days ago."

Hilton was board chairman of Hilton Hotels Corp. and Hilton International, owned by Trans World Airlines

Inc. after a 1967 merger. The domestic and international hotels were valued at well above half a billion dollars.

Until he acquired the Statler Hotels in 1954, Hilton was known in the trade as "the man who bought the Waldorf."

"The word Hilton means hotel. People say, 'Take me to the Hilton,' not the Hilton Hotel," said Cosse. "That's how he will be remembered — for a new word, Hilton."

He is survived by his third wife, Mary Frances, whom he married in 1976 after two divorces; two sons, Barron Hilton, 50, president of Hilton Hotels Corp., and Michael Eric Hilton, a corporation vice president in Houston; and a daughter, Francesca, of Los Angeles.

A third son, Conrad Nicholson Hilton Jr. — known as "Nick" and the first husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor — died of a heart attack in 1969.

Besides a Palm Springs home, Hilton had a 61-room mansion at Bel Air, near Santa Monica, which was his primary residence and where he had 19 servants.

Work was said to be the great love of his life, his devotion to it being partly responsible for the breakup of his first two marriages, to actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and to Mary Barron.

Yet he enjoyed the company of young women, mostly airline stewardesses in their early 20s, treating them with courtly charm and asking only that they be pleasant companions for dinner and dancing.

Ballroom dancing — frequently until 2 or 3 a.m. — was one of his recreations. During the lavish opening of nearly every new Hilton hotel, the house lights would dim and the spotlight would shine on Hilton and some pretty companion as they performed an old and obscure European dance called the Varsoviana. Hilton considered it a ceremonial dance of good luck.

"He used to do a little put-your-little-foot dance at the openings of all his new hotels. It was like his trademark," Cosse said. "He was very healthy — erect and astute — till very near the end."

Hilton — 6-foot-2, 195 pounds, lean, mustachioed and permanently suntanned — was known to employees as a gentle executive.

"He had friends all over the world. As a Catholic, he was a friend of popes and presidents in the '50s and '60s — Eisenhower and from then on," Cosse said.

Boyish, candid and trusting, he had a hard streak of practicality and the ability to turn a shrewd deal. "Connie," as friends called him, credited his success mainly to opportunities he saw lying in front of people who were looking elsewhere.

For example, in 1942, he bought Waldorf-Astoria Corp. bonds with a face value of $500,000 for $22,500 or 4 1/2 cents on the dollar. Later he sold these for $412,000.

In 1949, he acquired operating control of the fashionable Waldorf-Astoria in New York for $3 million. He hired hotel managers who knew the business and did not concern himself with operating details. But he insisted on increased financial returns, the quest for which he called "digging for gold."

Conrad Nicholson Hilton was born in San Antonio, N.M., on Dec. 25, 1887, when New Mexico was still a territory.

The son of a successful merchant, Hilton invested his life savings of $5,000 in 1919 to buy his first hotel, the Mobley, in Cisco, Texas. He acquired a small Texas chain before the Depression wiped him out.

But he came back through a series of bold transactions to acquire a collection of prestigious hotels. First was the Town House in Los Angeles, followed in 1945 by Chicago's 3,000-room Stevens.

Church donation defended

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The World Council of Churches says its controversial grants to black nationalist guerrilla groups in southern Africa are a justified "expression of confidence and solidarity" in the fight against racism.

Support for the grants came in a background report prepared for the council's 100-member central committee, holding its annual meeting on this Caribbean island.

Last summer the council earmarked $285,000 for black liberation movements fighting white-minority domination in southern Africa.

The background paper, issued during the 11-day conference, said the recipients were "not expected to account for the spending of the funds, although it was made clear that the money was to be used only for humanitarian purposes," such as food and health programs.

It said racism was a "collective" sin that required collective repentance.

The grants came from a special fund supporting the council's "Program to Combat Racism," and not from the general WCC budget which is funded by member Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations around the world. The anti-racism program is backed by donations outside the regular budget. Most of them come from churches, groups, individuals and the governments of Sweden, the Netherlands and Norway.

Three denominations — the Salvation Army, the Presbyterian Church of Ireland and the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Schaumburg-Lidpe of West Germany — suspended membership in the council to protest the grants.

But references to the anti-racism program by speakers at the Kingston conference have drawn cheers and applause from most delegates, who represent the council's top policy-making group.

African churches within the WCC are the staunchest supporters of the grants. Commenting on criticism of the anti-racism program, Bishop Okulu of the Anglican Church of Kenya said only Africans can say when violence is justified. "People in other parts of the world cannot stand in judgment."

In a welcoming speech Tuesday at the opening of the Kingston conference, Jamaica's Prime Minister Michael Manley praised WCC support for the liberation movements and said the violence of those movements was caused by the violence of the groups they were seeking to defeat.

Dr. Phillip Potter, the council's general secretary said the anti-racism fund was a tangible way for the churches to commit themselves to change the structures of "racist societies."

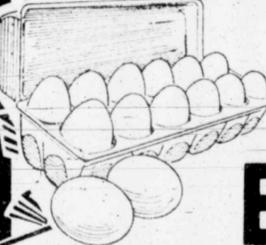

Among the recipients of last year's grants were the Patriotic Front, an alliance of guerrillas battling Rhodesia's bicultural government, $85,000, and the South-West Africa People's Organization, $125,000. Angolan-based SWAPO guerrillas are fighting for black-majority rule in South-West Africa, a territory administered by the white-minority government of South Africa.

'New look' Oklahoma House brought to order

By RON JENKINS
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — You might call it an effort to bring some order to an Oklahoma House of Representatives which admittedly has been all too disorderly over the years.
 Under a directive to be on their best behavior, members of the "new look" House settled quietly into the 1979 legislative session Tuesday.
 Presiding was Daniel D. Draper Jr. of Stillwater, 39-year-old new House speaker known as a master parliamentarian.
 With Draper's blessing, the House Decorum Committee has set new guidelines for House members to follow in the area of personal conduct, including strict adherence to a dress code and a ban on floor drunkenness.

 It's all an effort to tone down the reputation the House has gained as a rather raucous outfit at times, especially when compared with their counterparts in state Senate. The Senate has carefully cultivated its image as the more refined of the two legislative bodies.
 The setting in the House was, indeed, dignified as it convened at 12:04 p.m. Tuesday, nine minutes ahead of the Senate.
 Outside the House chamber stood two sergeants-at-arm in their 20's, their hair close-cropped and wearing neatly tailored suits. Their hiring also was part of the move to improve House decorum.

 Members of the decorum committee, chaired by Rep. Jerry Weichel, D-Colony, had expressed concern that too many sergeants-at-arm were of an advanced age and urged the hiring of some college students.
 All sergeants-at-arm, the committee said, "should be able bodied" persons and must wear green jackets, dark slacks and black snap-on ties. The jackets should carry emblems and nameplates signifying their position, according to the committee guidelines.
 Inside the House Tuesday, members went about the business of formally electing Draper and House President Pro Tempore Mike Murphy of Idabel. They wore white carnations which contrasted nicely with a brand new dark green carpet.

 The atmosphere in the House was not one of contrived propriety, however. The light-hearted bantering on the floor and podium that has characterized the House was much in evidence. After all, it was not a work day as such. That will come later.
 "We're never going to be a bunch of stuffed shirts like some of those guys across the hall," cracked one veteran House member.
 Joe Fitzgibbon, D-Miami, first assistant floor leader for the new regime, explained the new House rules this way:
 "Our members are aware that our decorum has been very loose at times in the past. This is just an effort to stop a lot of the nonsense."

 The dress code requires, among other things, that coats and ties be worn at all times by male legislators and members of the press. Women may wear dresses or pant suits.
 In addition to the ban on drunkenness, the presence of alcoholic beverages is prohibited in members' offices. The recommendations call for removal of a drunken member, who would be taken to his accommodations.
 On the floor, no eating will be allowed in the future and beverages will be permitted in a paper cup only.
 Fitzgibbon says many of the committee's recommendations were already in the House rules but had not been strictly enforced.

 Other reforms include installation of glass doors, inhibiting entry to the House cloakroom, located behind the speaker's rostrum and between the chamber and House lounge.
 The anteroom, which has often been the scene of frantic lobbying and interviewing while members made telephone calls, now bears a sign proclaiming: "House of Representatives, Legislators Only."
 Next year plans call for moving the press table from the House floor to a glass-encased booth in the gallery. The Senate already has moved the Fourth Estate from its floor.

Explosion to delay shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first launching of the space shuttle, America's next generation manned spaceship, might have to be delayed because of an engine explosion during a ground test firing, the space agency reported Wednesday.
 The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said all engine testing has been halted until repairs are made to the test stand, the cause of the explosion is determined and corrections made. Repairs are expected to take at least four weeks.
 "An assessment of the impact on the engine test program and the first flight schedule is being made," NASA said.
 The maiden flight of the shuttle, with astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen at the controls, had been scheduled for Sept. 28 from Cape Canaveral, Fla. But NASA officials have told Congress that any delay in the test program probably would cause a slip in that date.
 The mishap occurred Wednesday at the agency's test center near Bay St. Louis, Miss. A single engine had completed 255 seconds of a planned 527-second firing when a turbopump which feeds oxygen to the combustion chamber exploded.

Court rules on involuntary manslaughter

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A person can be convicted legally of involuntary manslaughter even though he or she did not kill anyone, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled today.
 The court, in precedent-setting case, upheld the manslaughter conviction of Guadalupe Mendez in the July 30, 1974, rifle slaying of Rafael Martinez during a random shooting spree in Houston.
 Mendez, who did not fire the shot that killed Martinez as he slept in his bed, received a five-year prison sentence.
 According to the court's opinion, Mendez was drinking beer with William Robinson and Alfred Fuschak when Robinson suggested they shoot a man who had dated his girl friend.
 Not finding the man at home, they shot up his house, a car outside and the automobile of another acquaintance. Then, the opinion said, Robinson fired his rifle randomly at several houses.
 One shot fired by Robinson hit Martinez, who died before an ambulance and police arrived at his home, the car said.
 Mendez claimed in his confession that he and Fuschak tried to talk Robinson out of the shooting spree and did not shoot at the houses.
 On appeal, Mendez' lawyers asserted there could be no accomplice to involuntary manslaughter since the person doing the killing does not act with a specific intent.
 "It is entirely possible to intentionally solicit or assist an individual in committing a reckless act. We hold that the law of parties does apply to the substantive offense of involuntary manslaughter," the court said.

hepatitis B may become infected because they are exposed to small amounts of the patient's blood on the toothbrush or razor. The risk of hepatitis may be decreased in several ways. Gamma globulin, given soon after known exposure to hepatitis B, can lessen or prevent illness.

A vaccine to protect people from hepatitis B is now being tested, and may eventually bring hepatitis B under control. Proper sterilization of surgical and medical instruments in hospitals and clinics has been used for many years to reduce the incidence of hepatitis B in these institutions.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A bill to freeze natural gas prices in Oklahoma for a year and then limit hikes in the future was introduced by legislative leaders Tuesday.

The bill, designed to soften the impact of the new federal energy act, in terms of anticipated higher natural gas prices in Oklahoma, was introduced by Senate President Pro Tem Gene Howard, D-Tulsa, and newly elected House Speaker Dan Draper, D-Stillwater.

Draper said March 1 is a target date for passage of the bill, since that is the deadline for the Oklahoma Corporation Commission to seek to be recognized as a regulatory body by the Federal Energy Department.

The bill, as introduced, would freeze until Jan. 1, 1980, the price escalator clause in intrastate gas contracts and then prohibit more than a 5.5 percent increase every year thereafter.

But Draper said he and Howard "are not married to those figures." The language is similar to the bill that was to have been introduced at a special session last year. A price freeze was put in to give the Legislature time this session to counteract the federal legislation.

But Gov. David Boren decided against a special session, saying price redetermination clauses in the federal legislation could not be triggered until after the state set up its own regulatory apparatus.

Draper said there may be no need for a price freeze if the Legislature can come up with a way to counteract the federal legislation by March 1. "There is no way we can maintain low gas figures," he said. "This will only spread them out."

There have been predictions the federal act will result in a sudden sharp increase in utility bills in Oklahoma. The bill introduced by Draper and Howard is aimed at preventing that.

Although it is a Senate bill, Draper said the House Public Utility Committee, a new panel, will begin study on the measure and other proposals as soon as possible.

"We're not going to wait until a bill arrives in the House before holding hearings and establishing our position," he said.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband has just come down with hepatitis and has been told that he might have caught it from his dentist. His dentist is not known to have hepatitis. Any information you can tell me about hepatitis would be much appreciated.—M.P.

Dear M.P.: "Hepatitis" means inflammation of the liver. In the United States, most cases of hepatitis result from infections by viruses, although some cases may result from drugs, alcohol or mushroom poisoning.

At least two type of viruses may cause hepatitis—type A and type B. The illnesses caused by either virus can only reliably be distinguished by blood testing.

Hepatitis B was formerly known as "serum hepatitis." In the past, it was most often acquired from blood or serum transfusions. Methods to detect the virus in blood have been developed and have allowed blood banks to eliminate most blood that contains the virus. Presently it is commonly acquired from exposure to the virus on contaminated needles and other instruments used to puncture the skin. Hepatitis B may also be spread through close contact.

Physicians, oral surgeons and health workers contract hepatitis B more commonly than the general population. This is because they are frequently exposed to blood of patients who may carry the virus but have no symptoms. Anyone who has not had hepatitis B may get the disease. Among the general population, only about 5-10 percent get the disease in their lifetimes—among oral surgeons and physicians, up to 15-40 percent will have an infection with hepatitis B sometime in their lives.

Symptoms of hepatitis B may begin any time from six weeks to six months after exposure. The most common symptoms are mild fever, fatigue, weakness, upset stomach with or without vomiting and pain in the abdomen. The most characteristic signs are yellowing of the whites of the eyes and dark urine. The skin may also develop a yellowish or "jaundiced" color.

Not all infected individuals will have these symptoms or signs; many may never feel ill at all. Illness may last from several weeks to several months and recovery may be prolonged. Less than 1 percent of people who get hepatitis B die from it. If you have had hepatitis B, you are then immune to it and cannot get it again. You will still be susceptible to hepatitis A virus, though.

The risk of spread of hepatitis B among contacts and within families is small. People who share toothbrushes and razors with a patient with Funds back to state!

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown is returning $800,255 of last year's appropriations back to the state treasury!

Yes, that's correct — he is sending more than $800,000 back to the state treasury.

This, insofar as we know, is not a common practice in state or federal government, although many persons long have advocated such a practice. All too many government agencies have managed to get rid of surplus funds one way or the other before yearend in order not to invite a reduction in the next year's budget.

But Reagan Brown sets a pattern for others to follow in this regard.

Brown is able to return the funds because of budget cuts he has made since taking office more than 20 months ago.

The $800,255 figure, coupled with unspent funds from the previous year, brings to more than $1 million the amount returned to the treasury since Brown was appointed in March 1977 to succeed John White, who resigned to become chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Brown was elected to a four-year term in the general election last November.

The commissioner said he has reorganized the department, terminating the services of a half-dozen high-level administrators "who did nothing but wander up and down the halls." He added that those who remained were put to work.

The department, Brown said, had 517 employees when he became commissioner. It presently has 505, with more of them in the field where the department makes agricultural inspections and enforces weights and measures laws.

Brown, who addressed the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Pre-Legislative Conference held here early last month, said at that time that he is exceptionally proud of the present personnel in his department, all of whom are interested in their work and "willing to work" to carry out their assignments, whether in Austin or in the field. He also cited his plan to station more employees in the field in order to provide better, faster service to the public.

Brown, on his December visit to Midland, also participated in the check and award presentation to the producer of Midland County's first bale of cotton of the season, just as he had done on the year previous. The ceremony was sponsored by the Agriculture Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

The commissioner said in his Midland talks that services of his department will be improved and expanded in an effort to expand and extend the marketing of Texas-grown agricultural products, worldwide. He outlined the far-reaching program he has in mind, step-by-step, for his listeners.

Commissioner Brown, it would appear, has in mind improving and expanding the services of his department at less expense to the taxpayers.

This is an excellent note on which to start the New Year in state government.

Trend is established

When the legislatures of the various states return to business in the New Year, more than 10 percent of the seats will be held by women for the first time ever.

The record shows that 10 women will be serving as secretaries of state. Connecticut's Ella Grasso won a full term as governor. Six states will have women as lieutenant governors, and a like number will have women as treasurers. Nancy Landon Kassebaum will represent Kansas in the United States Senate. Sixteen women will hold seats in the House of Representatives.

Although the results nationwide of the recent general election were pleasing from the female viewpoint, the future of the Equal Rights Amendment, which would write into the U.S. Constitution a provision prohibiting discrimination against women, was clouded by election results in two states (Florida and Nevada) where it was on the ballot and the voters rejected it.

But the success of individual women candidates in many states shows that sex bias is weakening in politics.

NICK THIMMESCH

Ten most admired plus some who aren't recognized

WASHINGTON — One of the winter solstice rites is Dr. George Gallup's little listings of the ten men and women most admired by the American citizenry. Whatever the state of grace of these good souls, it must be said that the only reason they are on the lists is that theirs are public names, and that this enterprise is more a name-identification exercise than a public vote for sainthood.

How else to explain that every year, the President, whoever he is, is almost always first? And yet we do not know the private virtue of these Chiefs of State. They may be the worst scoundrels in the universe. Still, if the populace wants to list Jimmy Carter as first-of-the-most admired, let it be.

This year, Pope John Paul II came in second, and I'm for that if only because it brings overdue recognition to a Pole of merit. Despite all those bad jokes, Poles can claim Copernicus, Madame Curie and Frederic Chopin.

Now Billy Graham always finishes in the money — he's third this year. Graham's just too holy to be true. But isn't his dominance threatened by all those evangelists braying away on television in their pastel blue or beige polyester suits?

Fourth is Anwar Sadat, the sly old fox. Trailing Sadat is Gerald Rudolph Ford, first as a nice guy but second in 1976. Then there's Ronald Reagan, by golly, an earnest young chap way past Social Security age. He is followed by Sen. Edward Kennedy (ah, the name), Richard M. Nixon (ah, the gumption), and Menachem Begin (ah, the chutzpah...his admirable consistency may prove to be consistently wrong).

Barely making the list — probably for good reasons — is Henry A. Kissinger, the slyest fox of all. He is the Wizard of Oz and Ooze, but who will pull the curtain back? Do you know that this man's income is probably greater than that of Jimmy Carter, Jerry Ford and Dick Nixon combined? Egads!

Betty Ford leads the women, and I only wish her husband had a commanding enough voice to tell her to shut up once in a while. Why Rosalynn Carter slipped to second this year, I don't know, but I can understand why Golda Meir stayed in there at third. Same thinking on fourth most admired, Pat Nixon, who proves that dignity isn't obsolete.

Barbara Walters, who can't be avoided, is fifth, and the similarly unavoidable Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is sixth. Anita Bryant, celebrated for oranges and other fruit, follows. Next are Barbara Jordan and Queen Elizabeth II (tied), who probably should swap jobs. Shirley Chisholm, the only 1968 presidential candidate who had compassion enough to visit the paralyzed George Wallace in the hospital after he was shot (thus bringing tears to his eyes), is ninth. Tenth is Indira Gandhi, to me an omen of what could happen if the National Organization for Women ever prevails in our republic.

Enough of this Gallup drill. I have my own list, though some on it have no public fame. I think first of a highly skilled specialist at Johns Hopkins Hospital, a man whose greatest pride is that he comes from generations of doctors who vastly preferred treating patients at reasonable fees, rather than laying up treasures and stock in shopping centers on this earth. He is to be further admired for using his surgical skills sparingly and only when he knows they can be put to healing and not for a quickbig pay-

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Return of 'executive privilege'

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — When a president claims "executive privilege" as the reason for withholding information, the suspicion is that he has something to hide. Richard Nixon is responsible for that widely held public belief.

In his two-year fight to cover up Watergate and the other scandals of his administration, Nixon worked the executive privilege claim to death.

But unfortunately, executive privilege has been resurrected by the current resident of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. Jimmy Carter, who made loud campaign noises about running an "open administration," has now invoked executive privilege to thwart a congressionally ordered investigation by the General Accounting Office.

The subject of the investigation was not a criminal act that could endanger the Carter Administration, as the Watergate break-in was perceived by the Nixon White House. It was simply a White House statement of dubious authenticity, which if inaccurate could do most embarrassing to the president. Yet, "executive privilege" was brought forth to deny the GAO investigators essential information.

During last year's coal strike, the White House issued a hair-curling claim that continuation of the strike could throw 3.5 million workers out of their jobs. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who heads the House energy and power subcommittee, put this statement in the "interesting if true" category, and asked the GAO to examine the documents on which the White House assertion was based.

The GAO watchdogs requested access to working papers of the Department of Energy and the President's Council of Economic Advisers. The White House went to the Justice Department for help. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell obliged with an unsigned memorandum setting out grounds on which the requested information could be withheld. Because the Council of Economic Advisers had prepared the requested data for the president's use in court action to stop the strike, "executive privilege" could be invoked.

Weeks of behind-the-scenes negotiation by the GAO investigators failed to budge the White House. Eventually, the auditors concluded from data available elsewhere that President Carter's statisticians on the coal strike's effect "did not present a fair assessment of the situation to the public."

Dingell angrily declared that the Justice Department's memo recommending this spurious use of executive privilege was "a arrogant and presumptuous statement, reminiscent of those made by the Justice Department during the term of former Attorney General (John) Mitchell."

Dingell was supported by ex-Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., father of the Freedom of Information Act and a consistent foe of executive privilege. Moss said there is no justification for withholding any records from the

ART BUCHWALD

A hamburger is forever, under new price schedule

WASHINGTON — Everyone knew it would happen, but nobody wanted to face up to it. The price of hamburger meat is expected to rise by as much as 20 to 25 cents a pound in 1979. Add this to the 37-cent rise in 1978, and hamburger not only becomes a luxury item but a status symbol as well.

Scene 1: "Mr. Guilford, this is Ramsay of Ramsay Duplicators. I was wondering if you and your wife would care to join Mr. Ramsay, myself and a few friends tonight at Burger Chef?"

"That's very kind of you, but as you know, Mr. Ramsay, the heat is on at the Government Services Administration, and if my wife and I were seen eating with you at Burger Chef, there might be a grand jury investigation."

"This is just a social evening, Guilford. I don't expect you to buy our duplicators just because I bought you a hamburger."

"I know that, Mr. Ramsay, but we're not talking about fried potatoes. Meredith, who was a GS-14 in purchasing, was treated to a meat loaf sandwich by the Scott Tissue people two months ago, and he's been indicted in New Jersey. Can you imagine what would happen to me if I was seen in Burger Chef, chewing away on a fresh hamburger?"

"I see the problem. I have a suggestion. Why don't we send a pound of ground sirloin over to your house with our compliments? Then no one would know about it."

"A pound of hamburger? You might as well send me a Chris-Craft speedboat. I'm sorry, Mr. Ramsay, I'll have to forget this conversation ever took place."

"All right, but if Burger Chef is too dangerous for you, we'd be happy to meet you at a White Tower in Culpeper, Va., where no one will see you."

Scene 2: "Gloria, now that you've announced your engagement, I think we must talk about the wedding. The ceremony will, of course, take place in the National Cathedral, and the reception will be at McDonald's in McLean, Va."

"But, Daddy, it will be so expensive. Can't we hold the reception some place reasonable, such as the Mayflower Hotel?"

"Gloria, your mother and I want the best for you. Your wedding means a lot to us. You are our only daughter, and since you were a little girl we always dreamed that someday we could throw you a party under the Golden Arches of McDonald's. Now let's discuss the menu. I thought we might start with a fish fillet sandwich and then, as the main course, a Big Mac."

"A Big Mac? We could buy a house for what that would cost."

"It's all right, child. We've been saving all our lives for this. Besides, when John Douglas' daughter got married he served everyone a Whopper from Burger King, and I'll be damned if he's going to show me up."

"Oh, Daddy, you're the kindest, most generous father-in-the-whole wide world."

Scene 3: News story, front page:

"A band of masked men held up an Armored Brinks Truck yesterday and got away with an estimated $2 million worth of chopped sirloin, which had a street value of $60 a pound. FBI agent Sean McBride said this was the biggest hamburger heist in history. The robbers stopped the truck as it was making a delivery to Hamburger Heaven on Wisconsin Avenue, disarming not only the guard delivering the meat but also his three escorts who carried shotguns. A Brinks spokesman said it had to be an inside job. "We carry money five days a week and only deliver meat on Friday. Somebody knew this. Fortunately the meat had a lot of fat on it, or the loss to Brinks would have been doubled."

Mark Russell says

Okay, the holidays are over, so let's get back to important matters. Time to put aside the tinsel and eggnog and start thinking about what to buy that special Valentine.

There is no such thing as a peaceful war, but I predict Israel and Egypt will live with what they have — a warlike peace.

In the new year, the Shah of Iran will become a figurehead devoid of daily decision making — sort of a Persian Eric Sevareid.

I predict that California will have no earthquake activity in 1979 and will not fall into the ocean. Jerry Brown will take full credit and by 1980 his campaign slogan will be, "He kept us out of the Pacific."

I predict the Oscar for best actor will go to Superman. As the caped hero accepts the award, the ceremony will be interrupted by a drunken Batman who staggers on stage and says, "I need a job!"

Alaska waiting for 20th birthday present — land

By MARY LENZ

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The state of Alaska is 20 years old, but Gov. Jay Hammond says a 100-million-acre birthday present from Uncle Sam has not arrived yet.

It was noon on Jan. 3, 1959, that President Dwight Eisenhower signed the proclamation making Alaska the nation's 49th state, ending nearly a century of territorial status and years of intense struggle for admission.

Today, state officials are involved in a different struggle, one that has even spawned a minor political party, which advocates secession.

Alaska was promised 104.5 million acres of land as part of statehood. So far it has received only 35 million acres from the federal government.

"We Alaskans find ourselves celebrating statehood when in fact we have yet to receive the state lands promised us on that day 20 years ago," said Hammond Wednesday.

Part of the problem is that some lands the state wants are among the 110 million acres that Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus closed last November for a three-year wilderness study.

Last month, after Congress failed to pass a bill settling the lands dispute, President Carter delighted conservationists by invoking the 1906 Antiquities Act to convert 56 million of the 110 million acres into national monuments. The highly restrictive designation prohibits all forms of economic development — even hunting.

State officials called Carter's action "the largest land freeze in American history" and filed suit against both Carter and Andrus. Last month, the president was burned in effigy in Fairbanks.

Hammond says Alaska must work to revoke the Antiquities Act, but secessionists like the Alaska Independence Party would just as soon leave the red tape and federal lobbying behind.

Party leaders Donald Wright, an Indian, and Joseph Vogler, a crusty gold miner, say the United States holds illegal title to most of Alaska's lands, and that U.S. laws made for a developed nation don't fit the needs of a developing area like Alaska.

Most Alaskans felt differently 20 years ago. Those battling to make what most Americans considered a vast frozen wilderness the 49th state faced substantial odds.

Southern Democrats feared the addition of Alaska's representatives would help pass civil rights legislation. Others argued that the sparsely populated territory would not be able to support itself.

The discovery of huge oil deposits changed that.

The Trans-Alaska Pipeline was completed in the summer of 1977, but the financial windfall has thus far not been up to expectations. The state is estimated to be spending $55 million more this fiscal year than it is receiving from taxes and oil royalties.

Prudhoe Bay's proven gas reserves represent about 10 percent of all known U.S. reserves, and "potential reserves on the rest of (Alaska's) North Slope may exceed those at Prudhoe Bay," said R.R. Meyer, president of the Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Co.

An Anchorage Times birthday editorial noted that for Alaska in general, the record for the past 20 years has been a good one.

The state survived the biggest earthquake to hit North America. The 1964 killer registered 8.5 on the Richter Scale and claimed 131 lives; Damage was fixed at $400 million to $500 million.

The $7.7 billion, 800-mile oil pipeline is the world's biggest private construction project. It helped make Alaska the focal point in the U.S. drive for energy independence, and plans are underway on the $12 billion, 4,790-mile Alaska Gas Pipeline to deliver natural gas from Prudhoe Bay in the 1980s.

Alaska salmon fishermen in 1978 had their best season in almost 30 years, landing almost 77 million fish. Fish prices were high.

Suspect

in Sweden

BALTIMORE (AP) — The FBI says it is investigating reports that a man resembling a missing ex-State Department official has been seen in Sweden, two years after five members of his family were murdered.

James Dolan, acting special agent in charge here, said William Bradford Bishop Jr. was reportedly recognized on a Stockholm street on two occasions last July.

The report "emanates from an old friend of Bishop who knew him well when he served with the State Department in Africa," Dolan said.

Bishop was charged with murdering his mother, wife and their three sons, aged 5, 10 and 14, in their Bethesda, Md. home. The burning bodies of the victims were found in a shallow open grave in Tyrell County, N.C., March 2, 1976, the day after Bishop left his office complaining of a cold.

Police said Bishop was positively identified the same day when he used a credit card to buy $15.50 worth of sporting goods in Jacksonville, N.C., about 100 miles south of the location where a forest ranger discovered the bodies.

Montgomery County police said the victims had been bludgeoned to death.

At first, FBI officials thought Bishop might have fled into the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Tennessee where his station wagon was discovered two weeks after he disappeared. A bloodstained ax handle and a shotgun were in the car.

Later, however, they began considering the possibility he had fled the country because of his extensive contacts overseas from working with the State Department.

Announcement on land due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is preparing to announce a proposal to nearly double the size of the federal wilderness system to 33 million acres.

Bergland planned to propose today an addition of 15 million acres, from New Hampshire to Alaska, to the list of federally protected lands, said a government source who declined to be identified.

The plan would place off limits to any development, including roads, in vast sections within national forests.

Bergland's proposal, which President Carter and Congress must approve, would touch 9 million wilderness acres in Alaska, grasslands in the Great Plains and forest areas in New Hampshire, West Virginia, Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, Florida and Tennessee.

The plan includes a recommendation that 36 million acres of federal lands be opened to timbering and other commercial development such as mining.

The proposal is expected to touch off a debate between environmentalists and mining and timbering interests.

Estrogen causes cancer

BOSTON (AP) — The largest study ever conducted on women who take estrogen during menopause concludes the medicine can cause cancer of the uterus and that the risk increases the longer it is used.

Estrogen should be prescribed "only for important indications when the benefits seem to outweigh the risk," it said.

The study, conducted at Johns Hopkins University and published in today's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine, refutes a Yale University report published two months ago which concluded that the link between estrogen and cancer is based on faulty research.

Estrogen is a natural female hormone that is widely prescribed to ease the discomforts of menopause in middle-aged women.

"The new work should dispel controversy about the association between estrogen use and uterine cancer," Food and Drug Commissioner Donald Kennedy said in Washington. "Women now taking or considering taking these drugs should read carefully the information provided with them and discuss the drugs with their doctors."

The study is the latest argument in a continuing debate over the safety of estrogen supplements during the change of life.

The study examined 1,339 women in menopause and concluded that those who take estrogen pills are six times more likely than non-users to have cancer of the uterine lining.

For those who use the medicine for more than five years, the risk is 15 times greater.

A series of earlier reports, most of them also published in the New England Journal, found that estrogen increased the risk of cancer four to eight times. All of them were based on smaller numbers of women than the latest study.

However, last November, the journal carried another study by Yale doctors that concluded the suspected cancer link could be discounted if erroneous research methods were taken into consideration.

Rating system unveiled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A new point system that will grade probably 20 percent of Texas' nursing homes "superior" and let them flaunt that rating in their advertising takes effect Feb. 1.

The State Health Department announced its final rules for the rating system this week.

A bill passed by the Legislature in a 1977 special session that dealt with nursing home abuses revealed by the Lufkin News authorized the rating system.

"Under the system, a facility could achieve a superior grade without the necessity of large expenditures," the health department said.

Homes that get a superior rating must display their certificate and may mention the rating in their advertising.

A nursing home will keep its superior rating for a year unless it is disciplined later for a violation.

Inspections to determine if a home deserves a superior grade will be unannounced. A home's certificate and advertising must include the date it received its superior rating.

The health department said it expected only about 20 percent of all nursing homes in Texas to receive a superior rating in the first year.

"Future years should see that percentage rise as other homes improve," it said.

Both bonus points and demerit points will be used, and a home must achieve a net score of 95. For instance, a home receiving 115 bonus points and 20 demerits would get a superior rating.

A home would automatically fail to win a superior ranking if it exceeded the maximum allowable demerits in various categories, such as 10 minus points for dietary service. Also, a home could not have more than 43 negative points and still be rated superior.

Bonus points toward a superior rating would include 25 for having a full-time dietitian, 15 points for offering residents menu choices, 15 points for having a registered nurse as director of nursing seven days a week and 20 points or having a working system to investigate and resolve complaints.

Demerit points include 25 for having unqualified persons administer medicines, 15 for failure to maintain trust fund records properly, 15 for menus and meals that do not meet nutritional needs and 15 for dirty patient rooms, toilets, baths and public areas.

Passing stranger miraculously saves boy in freezing water

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Dorothy Dorris marveled at the quick, kind action of the passing stranger who saved her son's life.

"By all practicality he should be a dead person," she said Wednesday of her 14-year-old son, Kevin Williams. "But instead he's a live person. It's a miracle."

Kevin was in good condition today at Le Bonheur Children's Hospital here recovering from a car accident in which he was submerged in icy water and unconscious for 15 minutes.

"In the words of the doctor, he drowned," said Mrs. Dorris. "But thanks to the emergency procedures of some man along the road he's alive."

The "good Samaritan" was 29-year-old George Silva, a Tufts University medical student from Boston.

Silva, described by Arkansas state trooper Ronnie Huey as soaking wet and "shivering so bad he could hardly talk," left after reviving the youth.

"All Silva asked is that they drop him a note," said Huey.

"I don't have any idea where he came from or where he was going. I don't even know what he was doing in this area. But it was a good thing he was."

Silva's wife, Sandra, when contacted by The Associated Press at her home early today, said she hadn't heard about her husband's good deed but wasn't surprised.

Treasure search just business

NEW YORK (AP) — A Pennsylvania man who found a sunken treasure valued at up to $50 million says the search wasn't all that romantic — just a business venture.

Burt Webber Jr., whose team located the Spanish galleon Concepcion last November after a two-year search, is headed for Santo Domingo today for another six months of treasure hunting.

The Concepcion, a Spanish galleon that sank in 1641 during a storm off the coast of what is now the Dominican Republic, has already yielded gold and silver coins and other artifacts.

Historians have estimated the cargo of the Concepcion would now be worth between $10 million and $50 million.

Violence hits eastern truckers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — More strike-oriented violence has erupted on Pennsylvania highways as one tractor-trailer rig was burned and several more were hit by shotgun pellets, bricks and ball bearings, police said.

Pittsburgh police said a Portland, N.Y., driver carrying aluminum was pulled from his rig by about 15 unidentified men, who set it on fire.

Authorities say they believe Wednesday's attacks, which injured three drivers, were the work of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, whose members have been on strike for two months.

FASH Chairman Bill Hill disavowed the incidents, but one injured driver leveled accusations at the striking group.

"As far as I'm concerned, Billy Hill and his bunch are nothing better than hoodlums," said Larry Miller, one of two drivers injured when missiles crashed through their windshields in nearby Shaler Township.

Grumman admits concealing foreign payoffs exceeding $7.6 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Grumman Aircraft Co. has admitted it concealed foreign payoffs that may have exceeded $7.6 million to promote sale of the firm's luxurious Gulf Stream II executive jets.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch fined the company the maximum $120,000 — $10,000 for each of 12 counts — after the company pleaded guilty Wednesday to filing false reports with the government.

The Justice Department made a plea settlement with Grumman and agreed not to prosecute any individuals in connection with the foreign bribery, which took place between 1974 and early 1977.

Grumman was renamed Gulf Stream American Corp. by American Jet Industries Inc., which bought the firm last September.

Government lawyers said they decided against pressing charges against any Grumman executives "due in part to the division of duties and responsibilities within the corporate structure, and in part to the necessity during the investigation of giving immunity to certain middle management employees."

The department said three executives were aware of some or all of the payoffs. They are Charles Vogeley, senior vice-president for commercial jet marketing; Joseph Aekner, a senior marketing official, and Richard Hodge, head of Latin American sales.

The Justice Department now has prosecuted four American companies on charges stemming from foreign bribery. In each case the payoffs took place before enactment of a tough new law in December, 1977, which makes corporate bribes to foreign officials punishable by up to five years in prison.

Grumman was accused of concealing the payoffs in reports filed with the U.S. Export-Import Bank, which provided loans to five foreign governments and a private Venezuelan corporation that purchased the jets.

The twin-engine planes, which seat 10 to 12 and cost about $6 million apiece, were sold to the countries of Sabah; Togo, the United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia and Morocco, and a private corporation in Venezuela called CEDICA. The Justice Department is uncertain as to the full amount of the bribes and what foreign officials, if any, ended up with the money. The payoffs initially went to middlemen who acted as "sales agents" for the aircraft company.

In one case the Justice Department cited, the company intended to pay $450,000 to sell a jet to Morocco in 1977.

The money was placed in two bank accounts in the country of Liechtenstein, the government said. The Justice Department said one account was controlled by former Lebanese Prime Minister Saib Salaam and the other was controlled by Abdul Karim Dendashy, a former Syrian minister and a sales consultant to Grumman. The government was unable to say how much money each man received.

In another case mentioned in court documents, about $543,000 was paid to Giovanni Marlia and Mustafa Allani, sales agents for Grumman in Togo. The government said the two men contacted Grumman after the company learned that Togo was interested in buying a Gulf Stream jet.

GSA employees plead guilty on kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three former General Services Administration employees have pleaded guilty to taking kickbacks from private contractors, raising to 26 the number of guilty pleas from current investigations of GSA corruption.

charges arising from federal investigations into allegations of widespread bribes and other payoffs in connection with contracts awarded by the agency, which runs the government's buildings and furnishes its offices.

U.S. District Court. —James N. Henslee, 32, of Arlington, Va., a former GSA production scheduling assistant, admitted taking $50,000 to $75,000 in kickbacks in exchange for inflating or falsifying GSA contracts from 1974 to 1977.

California police are prepared for further anti-Shah rallies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Amid reports that the mother of the Shah of Iran is being shuttled to and from hotels for security, sheriff's deputies say they are prepared for any further violent demonstrations at the Beverly Hills home of her daughter.

The white-haired, 90-year-old mother of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, Tadj Ul Moluk, was moved from the Marriott Hotel near Los Angeles International Airport late Wednesday night, according to KNX radio.

Under tight security, KNX said, she was seen being taken in a wheelchair to a waiting limousine, which left for an undisclosed location. Included in her entourage were a host of State Department officials and Los Angeles police officers, and several family pets — including exotic birds and a black poodle, said the radio report.

Police and hotel representatives refused to comment on reports that the shah's mother, who reportedly came to the United States for routine medical treatment, had spent most of the day at the hotel where an entire floor of 33 rooms had been set aside for her party.

Meanwhile, sheriff's deputies said they were ready to help control possible protests at the home of the shah's sister, Princess Chams, if they are needed. "There will be deputies standing by," said sheriff's spokesman Jim Platis following Wednesday's peaceful protest by about 70 members of the Confederation of Iranian Students at the princess' mansion.

It was the second consecutive day demonstrators gathered to protest the shah's military regime. But the marchers were not the same who staged Tuesday's fiery confrontation.

Tuesday's demonstrators identified themselves as members of the Iranian Students Association, which is having a convention at a nearby San Fernando Valley suburb until Saturday.

Tear gas was used to end a violent 45-minute melee Tuesday when hundreds of angry demonstrators clashed with police. The uproar was marked by a series of brush fires set by some of the protesters, two overturned cars, seven arrests and 41 persons injured.

In reaction to the violence, Los Angeles City Council voted unanimously Wednesday to ask the federal government to revoke U.S. visas for Iranians found guilty of taking part in violent demonstrations.

The sentiment was echoed in Washington where U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, in a letter to Attorney General Griffin Bell urged immediate deportation of Iranian students found guilty of breaking the law.

Medical team searches for Soviet plane

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — A U.S. medical team from Operation Deepfreeze flew across the Antarctic last night to investigate the reported crash of a Soviet transport plane.

The duty officer at the Deepfreeze base in Christchurch said accounts so far of the crash were sketchy and he was unable to confirm a report that at least two persons were injured.

"We know a plane has crashed near the Soviet base of Molodezhnaya but we have no details at this stage of the aircraft or the nationality of those on board," the duty officer said.

Rural lawmakers to use intangibles as tax lever

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — As country legislators see it, the cities' school finance plight is their golden opportunity to guarantee rural landowners the kind of property tax cuts they have been pleading for.

The reason, they say, is that for the first time they have real "leverage" over their urban colleagues. Failure of the 66th Legislature to change the 1977 school finance law would mean disaster to urban districts. It's that simple.

Current law says the Texas Education Agency must count the intangible wealth — bank accounts, stocks, bonds — of each school district in determining its state aid payments for 1979-80.

And therein lies the country legislators' strength as they seek the most favorable terms possible for taxing rural land only on its productive value.

"My idea of what might be a fair productivity formula might vary somewhat from some of my brothers in the House and in the Senate. ... Suppose we can't come up with one we can live with. Then I am going to hang onto intangibles. It's the only leverage we have," says Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Public Education Committee.

The School Tax Assessment Practices Board determined that Texans' intangible wealth totals $154 billion, and half of it is in the four most populous counties — Harris, Dallas, Bexar and Tarrant.

from the Available School Fund.

Clayton sees action on intangibles as bound tightly to action on agricultural value taxation of rural land.

"The 'Tax Relief Amendment' approved by the voters Nov. 7 says the Legislature must provide for 'ag value' taxation of farm and ranch land and may also grant the tax break to timber acreage.

"It's a two-way street. You have to link taking out intangibles with a good formula for taxing agricultural land," Clayton said.

There are lots of ways to value agricultural land on its productivity, and rural lawmakers want one that will provide the best possible break for their constituents.

"Ag values" probably will be part of any new formula that is adopted for parceling out state school aid.

One of four alternatives recommended by the Legislative Commission on Public School Finance, also headed by Massey, included personal income within a county as part of a state aid formula.

Rural lawmakers often remind their city colleagues that taxes are paid from current income, and a family can be land-rich but dollar-poor.

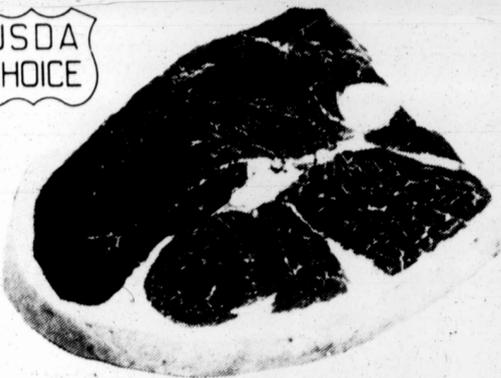

"My theory is that we need an economic index to measure ability to pay. ... The economic index, whether one-factor or multi-factor, will be very much an issue," said Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, a member of the commission.

No legislative consideration of school finance is complete without a raging debate over teacher salaries.

The Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA) has proposed about $1 billion worth of pay raises for the 1980-81 biennium, starting with a boost in the minimum pay of new teachers from $8,541 to $9,740. All others would get 7 percent raises in the 1979 school year and 8 percent the following year — not to mention normal longevity increases.

Pilot denies DC-8 was out of fuel

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A lawyer for the United Air Lines captain whose jet crashed in Portland last week has disputed investigators' reports that the DC-8 ran out of fuel, saying the pilot chose a spot to crash land after the engines flamed out.

The statement by attorney Albert Malanca was the first word of pilot Malburn McBroom's thoughts and actions in the final minutes before his jet crashed, killing 10 of 184 persons aboard.

Malanca spoke at a news conference after listening to a National Transportation Safety Board interview with his client Wednesday. Investigators interviewed McBroom for 75 minutes, indicating he did an "amazing job" in landing the jet, Malanca said.

Investigators say evidence shows the plane ran out of fuel, but Malanca said McBroom thought there was enough fuel to reach Portland International Airport.

"The captain was — and I believe all of the crew in the cockpit were — of the opinion there was sufficient fuel to make the airport," Malanca said.

He said that after the engines flamed out, pilot McBroom made a quick attempt to determine how best to set the plane down — rejecting a landing in the Columbia River or on a nearby freeway.

The plane crashed into a grove of large evergreen trees and wrecked two unoccupied houses in a residential area of Portland three miles from the airport. There were no injuries or deaths on the ground.

A tape recording of a radio conversation showed the 52-year-old pilot said just after 6:03 p.m. that he had 3,000 pounds of fuel. The plane crashed at 6:14 p.m. Pilots and federal investigators estimate 3,000 pounds of fuel would last from 10 to 15 minutes in a DC-8.

"He chose an unlighted area where he could see trees and felt there were no people," Malanca said. "Rather than try for one final burst of power to try to get the plane to the airport, McBroom chose to 'feather' the plane down as gently as possible toward his chosen crash site."

Doug Dreifus, NTSB chief investigator, said the interview with McBroom plugs the last major gap in the investigation. He said details of the interview would not be released by the board. McBroom, who lives in Loveland, Colo., and has been a United pilot for 27 years, was hospitalized with a broken ankle, broken vertebrae, a broken rib and bruises near his heart.

Malanca said that when McBroom circled the airport for more than 30 minutes before the crash, he was not trying to rid the plane of fuel to minimize the chance of fire. The attorney said the pilot was reasonably certain the landing gear had lowered, but felt the right landing gear was damaged.

In Washington, NTSB spokesman Robert Buckhorn said the board would decide soon if a public hearing would be held concerning the crash. He said that if such a hearing were to be held, it would take place in Portland.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A San Antonio hotel cook, who told police he had no enemies last week after surviving a bombing of his car, has been found stabbed and shot to death.

Joe Gonzalez Banda, 55, escaped with only slight leg cuts last Friday when his auto exploded in his driveway as he started the engine. Police said dynamite had been wired to the ignition.

Researcher says fear not enough to steer children away from smoking

HOUSTON (AP) — Children cannot be scared away from cigarettes, but teaching them to resist both seductive advertising and pressure from friends may reduce teen-age smoking, says a Houston researcher.

"Fear is not enough," said Richard Evans of the University of Houston. "We have to look at other approaches to try to deal with this self-destructive behavior, which leads to these horrendous health problems and health costs."

He said Wednesday a continuing three-year study of several thousand Houston school children indicates that by the seventh grade, when children often begin experimenting with cigarettes, virtually all of them believe smoking may damage their health.

But he said that belief has even less impact on 12-year-olds than it does on their elders, who often continue to smoke even after suffering heart attacks.

"A certain percentage of the children start smoking and as they grow older they are added to the pool of addicted smokers," he said.

Of students in the study, he said, "We have reduced by almost 50 percent the incidence of smoking. We teach the child to say no."

Evans outlined the project here at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He said at a news conference only 10 percent of seventh graders in the experiment at Baylor University Medical School had experimented with cigarettes after one year. That compares with nearly 20 percent of a group who did not take the course.

Evans said it's a waste of time to tell a 12-year-old that smoking may cause lung cancer or a heart attack when he's 40, as peer pressure, advertising and the example of smoking parents easily overcomes such distant concerns.

He said Houston researchers asked children who did not smoke how they resisted the temptations and used their experiences to make educational films that seem to have an impact.

He said behavioral psychology must seek a more persuasive message to convince Americans to quit smoking, eat better and pay attention to their health.

He said: "The question is: can we deal with this dilemma where on the one hand we fight to survive and on the other we seem surprisingly self-destructive?"

Four injured in building fire

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (AP) — About 1,000 apartment dwellers were forced from their homes by a seven-alarm fire here that began as a series of explosions in the building's bottled gas system.

Three residents and one firefighter were treated for minor injuries, after the fire Wednesday, police said.

The residents were expected to return to their apartments today after heat and water were restored.

The fire began Wednesday night when the Greentree Apartment's bottled gas system apparently malfunctioned.

Yeoman has no regrets on fourth down gamble

Although much was made of the fourth down and inches gamble for first down with 28 seconds to play in the Cotton Bowl, no one in the Houston itinerary except running back Randy Love, was second guessing the call, least of all Coach Bill Yeoman.

Love's only complaint was that he wasn't given the ball with only inches to go on the Cougar 29 and with Notre Dame, finishing like a blizzard out of the north, behind only 34-28.

What happened is in the history books as the greatest finish and maybe the greatest game in Cotton Bowl annals, especially when one considers the conditions through which the combatants agonized.

Notre Dame held and struck for the winning touchdown on the Joe Montana to Kris Haines rollout pass as time expired. Yeoman's contention is that the extra 15 yards Houston might have gained in field position wouldn't have been that much of a deterrent the way the Irish had been moving the ball in the fading stages of the final quarter.

"We wanted to keep the ball. And I didn't feel it was that much of a gamble. When you rush for 263 yards, it isn't expecting too much to make a few inches."

AND, THEN too, Yeoman's punting game had left something to be desired in the fourth quarter. Two had been blocked and if Notre Dame had put the rush on, two more would have been blocked as a result of snafus that were alternately high and rolled along the icy rug.

However, in this case the Cougars had successfully kicked the ball to the UH 49 before a penalty against the Irish gave the Cougars the option of refusal or gamble.

Much more critical to Yeoman's way of thinking came much earlier in the quarter with Houston still leading 34-12 and bucking the 20 mph wind for the first time since the first quarter.

Delrick Brown was in the game at quarterback in place of starter Danny Davis. "They had the Eagle blitz on," said Yeoman, "and we were trying to get Brown to the outside. Instead of running, he pulled up an threw incomplete. If he had run he wouldn't have gained over eight or nine yards, but it would have been enough to force Notre Dame to alter its defense so we could run inside." Yeoman feels it might have enabled Houston to maintain possession of the ball for a while longer.

"We felt it was critical to get every second run off the clock that we could going into a wind like that. At no time did I feel we had the game won."

Brown entered the game when an old knee injury began to bother Davis,

TED BATTLES

although Danny was to return later. "He hurt it a couple of years ago and it bothers him. Today it was cold and he got whacked on it a few times and it began to hurt. When it does, he loses a little of his quickness, as he did toward the end of the game."

Yeoman admitted the loss was a "real disappointment, but there was no better bowl game anywhere. And the weather was a good argument for indoor football."

NOTRE DAME Coach Dan Devine said his teams played in colder weather when he was at Green Bay, "but I've never played in a game where the players on both sides were less prepared for it."

It was so cold that the team doctor wouldn't permit Montana to leave the locker room after halftime until he got warm. "He had been bothered by the flu all week and he couldn't stop shivering," Devine revealed. "And his body temperature was 96."

As it turned out, Montana arrived on the field like the hero in one of those 1930s Jack Oakie movies, just in time to rescue the game and win the girl, but even in those fairy tales, none of the heroes faced a 34-12 mountain to climb with less than eight minutes to play.

Although Joe was intercepted four times and fumbled the ball away twice, he wound up with 13 completions and 163 yards while engineering those last two touchdown drives to win the MVP offensive player that had gone to Davis 15 minutes earlier. Most writers had eschewed the unwritten rule to hold their ballots until the game was over and turned them in early. After the hectic finish they all wanted their ballots back for obvious reasons.

Devine believes that Montana has great potential as a pro quarterback. "His arm gets stronger every year. And he reads defenses as well as half the quarterbacks in the NFL already. He also gives us the added dimension of running the ball, particularly back up the middle. That really makes it tough on the defense because they can't tee off on the quarterback. They've got to stay in lanes to rush."

Nancy Lopez
...top women's athlete

AP names Lopez top female athlete

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, winner of The Associated Press' Female Athlete of the Year award, earned a record $189,813 as a rookie on the pro golf tour.

But the charismatic 21-year-old says she's just breaking even.

"I'm repaying my father by making him proud of me. He worked on my game a great deal when I was an amateur," she said by telephone from Medford Lakes, N.J., Wednesday.

"I can't repay him with money, but by making him proud, I have repaid him."

Lopez, who learned to golf with her father while growing up in New Mexico, received 336 votes out of 412 cast by sports writers and broadcasters around the country. She was the first golfer to win the award since Kathy Whitworth in 1966.

CHRIS EVERT, the award winner in 1974, 1975 and 1977, was a distant second with 25 votes, followed by tennis stars Tracy Austin, 14, and Martina Navratilova, 11, and swimmer Tracy Caulkins, 10.

"It's a great honor. It's important to be recognized at the end of the year, not just during the year," said Lopez, who proved herself the best golfer on the links by winning nine tournaments, including five in a row over one sizzling summer stretch.

"Those five weeks of the winning streak were the longest of the year, but I can remember every shot I made."

Those winning shots lifted the sport of women's golf to new heights of respectability and marketability.

In her phenomenal debut year, Lopez won more money than any other golfing rookie — man or woman. Besides winning the LPGA Player of the Year Award, she also received the Vare Trophy for the lowest scoring average of the season. Her 71.76 mark was the best in LPGA history.

Lee sacks Bobcats to share 1st place

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

Robert E. Lee's Rebels are in first place with Abilene Cooper.

Coach Paul Stueckler's crew pulled out a 53-46 basketball victory Wednesday night over the San Angelo Central Bobcats in a District 5-4A makeup game that was originally set for Tuesday night in the Tall City.

Lee and Cooper both sport 2-0 loop records with Ernest Merritt, Bruce Crawford and Tyler Alcorn paving the way over the Bobcats with 20, 13 and 12 points, respectively. And guess where Lee plays Friday night. You guessed it — in Abilene against the Cougars.

While Lee and Central were battling, all of the other coaches in the league were in the stands scouting San Angelo and Lee since the Midland-Big Spring game was not made up Wednesday night and won't be unless the game is needed to determine the first half champion.

Lee started slowly, falling behind, 10-7 at the end of the opening period, thanks to some fine shooting by Greg Evans and Darrell Pearson while Lee was as cold as the weather outside.

Crawford began to find the range in the second quarter, however and the Rebs took a 23-20 lead in the dressing room at halftime and never trailed after that.

Crawford scored eight points and Merritt eight as the Rebels outscored Central, 16-10 in the second period.

A BIG 18-point third period gave the Tall City team a 41-34 edge going into the final eight minutes of action and both teams scored 12 points each in the final period in the fast-moving game which took just over an hour to play.

An amazing part of the game was the fact that the Bobcats only went to the free throw line one time and that was in the fourth period when Rene DeLeon, who scored 10 points, missed on a one-and-one attempt. Lee, meanwhile, cashed in on seven of nine charity tosses and had only two free throw attempts in the second half with Merritt hitting both of those. Merritt now has 48 points in the first two league games while Alcorn has tallied 26 and Crawford 23, giving the 11-9 Rebs good balance thus far.

Besides DeLeon's 10 points, other Bobcats in the double figures were Pearson and Chuck Smith with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Crawford fouled out of the game right before the buzzer, giving DeLeon the Bobcats' only attempt at the free throw line the entire evening.

Abilene Friday night against the Cooper JV.

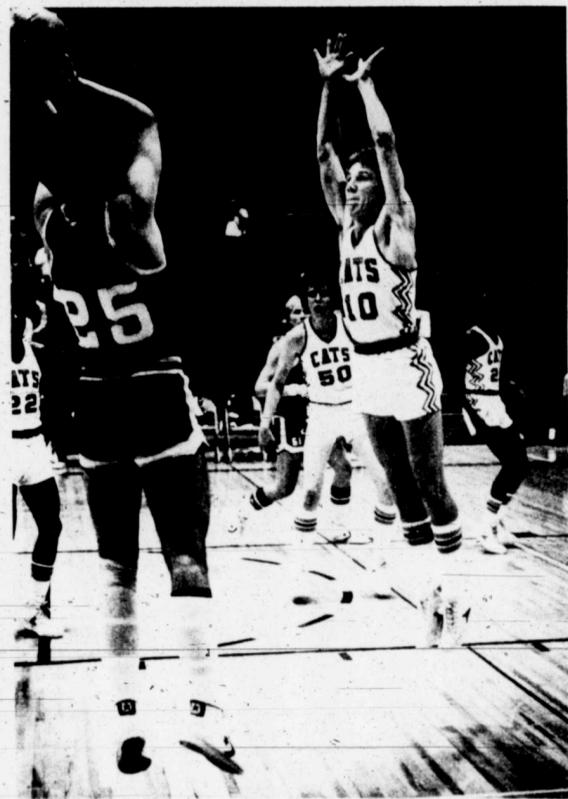

LEE ALSO won the junior varsity contest, posting a 62-59 win despite a 36-point performance by Charles Bishop for the Bobcats. Big guns for Coach Greg Wright's outfit were Danny Rabb, Brent Sanders and Norris Lane with 22, 12 and 12 points. The Lee JV is now 12-4 on the year and its next action will also be in

Girls face tough foes

The District 5-4A girls' basketball race resumes tonight with Midland Lee and Midland High facing tough opponents as the battle for the loop's top rung continues.

Midland Lee, the defending champion and winner of the only district crown in the brief history of the girls competition, will host Abilene Cooper at 8 p.m. at the Lee gym. A junior varsity game will be played at 6 p.m. Lee shares the league lead with Midland High and Abilene High with a 1-0 mark thus far while Cooper stands at 1-1 after a Tuesday loss to Odessa High.

The Bulldogs of Midland High travel to Abilene to face Abilene High's Eagles. This outing will be of major importance in the race since both teams own perfect 1-0 loop marks. One of the teams will fall out of first place. Midland High owns a victory over Odessa Permian while Abilene defeated Big Spring last Friday.

The kind of race for bettors

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bettors couldn't lose Wednesday night in the featured seventh race at Portland Meadows.

Two horses were scratched from the six-horse field and a few minutes before post time, a third horse was removed, leaving only three horses in the field.

A mad dash for the "show" windows followed, and 6,700 persons placed $2 show bets.

All three places — win, place and show — paid $2.20.

To Hayes, football was WW II, not just a game

Los Angeles Times Syndicate
To Wayne Woodrow Hayes, football was never just a game any more than World War II was a game. He never really forgave the world for making him a football coach instead of a field marshal. Woody always hankered to capture Paris, or destroy Carthage or cross the Alps on elephant. When he couldn't, he settled for beating Michigan. He despised the forward pass as a sign of weakness. He had no use for money, social position or grace. He drove a truck and from work, lived in the most ordinary of Midwest Gothic houses. His idols were German admirals, two-gun generals, cavalry men. He thought the Marine Corps should run the country.

He was a loner. He never went to movies that didn't have bombing runs in them. He felt any problem in the world could be solved by a right to the mouth. He bullied his players, officials, professors and the press with equal skill and enthusiasm. He outlasted athletic directors who despised him. The governor of the state was afraid of him.

He was incapable of putting football in perspective. It was an obsession with him. He could be a charming man to have breakfast with and discuss the Peloponnesian War or the campaigns of Caesar. But, on Saturday afternoon, he was Attila the Hun.

FOOTBALL COACHES live by a code that would make the Prussian officers corps look permissive. "Winning is the only thing" is their Golden Rule, their First Commandment. Everything else comes second — the university, the student body, the faculty, the outside world. When your whole life revolves around one Saturday afternoon in November and what some 20-year-old kid does with a football then, something's gotta give. Woody even finked on Michigan State when they beat him to a player he coveted.

The first time I ever laid eyes on Woody Hayes was in the locker room after his defeat of 'SC in the rain in the Rose Bowl in 1955. He promptly assailed the committee for permitting the bands to march on the field, criticized the officials for ineptness, and allowed as how the USC team he just beat would be hard put to finish sixth in his conference, the Big 10. Since I was on magazine assignment at the time, I was able to go to both dressing rooms, so I hotfooted over to 'SC Coach Jess Hill to give him the good news. The headlines the next morning were suitably explosive, and Woody Hayes thus expanded his war with Michigan and Iowa and Illinois to include California. He always came out here to California after that like Custer passing through smoke signals.

The next time I saw Woody was in the Los Angeles Coliseum in 1959. USC had just beaten him, 17-0, and a big 'SC tackle, Dan Ficca, whom Woody had tried to recruit, was taunting him from the corridor. Woody turned around and decked a couple of nearby newsmen, Al Bine and Dick Schafer. Woody was consistent. Graceless in victory and graceless in defeat.

WOODY COULDN'T deal with the fact that he had lost the hang of beating Michigan and had been relegated recently to some crummy second-rate bowl year after year. A lot of people think they watched the disintegration of a man when he slugged a Clemson player on national TV in something called the Gator Bowl the other night. But Woody has slugged enemy players before. Lots of times. He was called on the carpet for belting an Iowa player who recovered an Ohio State fumble once and once he decked one of his own assistant coaches when something went wrong out on the field. But these incidents were witnessed by 80,000 people, not 40 million.

Disgraceful as his action was, it was scarcely more reprehensible than the actions of the ABC announcers in ignoring it. The most significant football happening of the year was blithely overlooked in the booth. If that's photo-journalism — well, I'm glad they're not covering the White House.

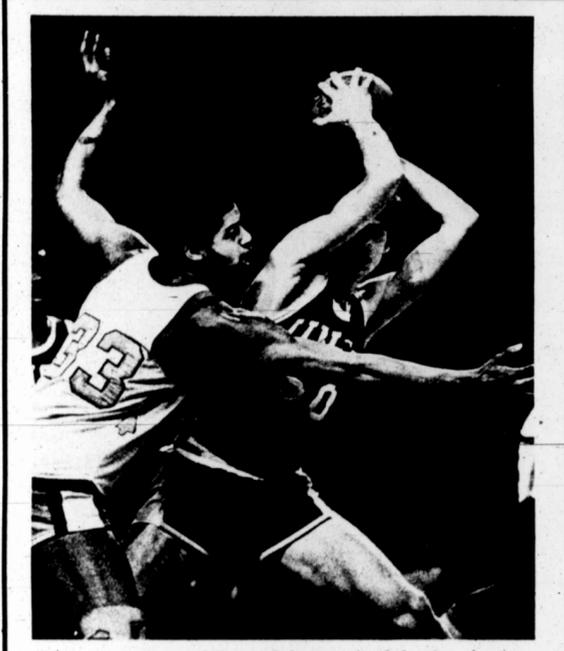

So Woody has been stripped of his command, and his epaulets torn off. He is officially a disgrace to the uniform. Still, Woody would consider himself in good company. His idols, Gens. MacArthur and Patton were similarly removed by higher authority. One wonders if Woody will get to state his case before both houses of Congress, or whether George Scott gets the role in the movie. Woody probably considers it just another indication of how soft the country's become generally, just what you'd expect with a Democrat in the White House.

'Bama, Tar Heels notch victories

By The Associated Press
Coach C.M. Newton of Alabama said his "young kids played super" in defeating previously unbeaten Mississippi State 87-65 Wednesday night.
Freshman Eddie Phillips scored 21 points and pulled down 10 rebounds as Alabama shocked the Bulldogs in the Southeastern Conference basketball opener for both teams. "We had no letdowns," Newton said, adding, "We beat an outstanding basketball team."
Freshman Phillip Lockett had 9 rebounds for the Crimson Tide. Forward Ken Johnson, a sophomore, hooked in 18 points. And freshman guard Eddie Adams had 17 points.
Mississippi State, ranked No. 18, was paced by senior Wiley Peck with 23 points and senior Ray White hitting 18. But as a team the Bulldogs were only able to hit 44 percent from the field, compared to Alabama's 62 percent.
Alabama improved its record to 7-2, and Mississippi State went home at 8-1.
Junior Mike O'Koren scored 22 points Wednesday night to lead third-ranked North Carolina to an easy 90-68 win over previously undefeated Clemson in the Atlantic Coast Conference opener for both teams.
Center Reggie Hannah's outside shooting led Florida to a 76-65 upset of ninth-ranked Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference basketball opener.
The 6-foot-8 Hannah hit most of his 21 points from 10 to 15 feet as the Gators, 6-3, caught Kentucky, 5-3, between last Saturday's upset of Notre Dame and this Saturday's key SEC match with unbeaten Louisiana State at Lexington.
Ric Carlson added 20 points for the Gators, while Malcolm Cesare and Maurice McDaniel scored 16 each.
Chuck Aleksinas led Kentucky with 14 points, 12 in the first half. The teams tied 13 times and the lead change hands five times.
Al Green and DeWayne Scales combined for 47 points Wednesday night to lead seventh-ranked Louisiana State to a 97-75 rout of Georgia in the Southeastern Conference basketball opener for both teams.
Green, a transfer guard playing his first year for LSU, finished the night with 24 points, and sophomore Scales had 23.
LSU, now 9-0, was on top 14-2 after less than four minutes of play in the game and held a 20-point lead for most of the contest.
Houston's high scoring Cougars fell behind 8-2 at the start but then caught fire behind 28 points by Kenny Williams to defeat Texas Lutheran 111-79 Wednesday night in a non-conference basketball game.

The Cougars, who begin Southwest Conference play Saturday night against unbeaten Arkansas, jumped to a 54-38 lead after the slow start and never were threatened again.
It was Williams' best shooting effort of the season. He hit 13 of 19 from the field and went two for two at the free throw line.
Mike O'Koren's 22 points led North Carolina past Clemson, which lost for the first time after nine straight victories.
"I thought O'Koren played his usual sensational game," said Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith. "He does so many things that don't show up in the box score."
Larry Bird scored 27 points and grabbed 19 rebounds as Indiana State opened its Missouri Valley Conference season with a victory over Tulsa. Bernard Toone's 22 points powered Marquette over Brown. Albert King and Larry Gibson contributed 20 points apiece to lead Maryland over George Washington. The Terps established themselves with an 11-point run near the end of the first half.
"A spurt like that is the mark of a good team," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell. "John Billney had a lot to do with it, with a tip-in and a steal. That's the best he's played since he's been here."
Elsewhere, Bruce Harrold scored 16 points to lead unbeaten Temple to its 10th victory with a 62-57 decision over Pitt; Providence edged Villanova 52-51 on David Frye's two free throws with 50 seconds left; Syracuse pounded Cornell 78-52 behind Roosevelt Bouie's 20 points; Dale Solomon's 22 points led unbeaten Virginia Tech (9-0) over New Orleans 62-60; Jim Paxson's 25 paced Dayton over Butler 73-61 and Illinois State trimmed Bradley 74-61 as Derrick Mayes and Ron Jones teamed for 44 points.
Also, Lee Raker scored 22 points to power Virginia past Wake Forest 88-75; Vanderbilt nipped Auburn 57-55 as Tommy Springer scored seven points in the last five minutes; Jimmy Martin scored five free throws in the final 47 seconds to clinch Jacksonville's 71-68 triumph over Florida State; Mike Edelman's 23 points led Penn State over Richmond 69-65; Wyoming tripped Air Force 66-53 behind Charles Bradley's 18 second-half points and Mike Drews scored 23 to pace Ball State past Northern Illinois 101-89.

Colts won't trade Jones

BALTIMORE (AP) — Quarterback Bert Jones of the Baltimore Colts will not be traded to the Oakland Raiders for quarterback Ken Stabler or anyone else, the club's Assistant General Manager Ernie Accorsi said today.
"The Colts won't trade Bert Jones," Accorsi told Dave Humphrey of WCBM-radio in Baltimore. "Bert Jones will not be acquired by the Oakland Raiders. There's nothing to the story."

The Raiders scheduled a news conference today at 4 p.m. EST, which the National Football League team said would be "very important," but no details were given.

Ali through with ring

LOS ANGELES — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, the only fighter to win the title three times, told a radio interviewer that he was through boxing.

Ali, who will celebrate his 37th birthday Jan. 17, reclaimed the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight crown in New Orleans last Sept. 15 with a 15-round decision over Leon Spinks. Ali had lost an earlier bout — and the title — to Spinks in Las Vegas.

Ira Fiestel of KABC radio asked Ali if he was going to fight again, and he responded that he was not, adding that it was important for him and for black people that he retire as the champ.

Ali, who has a 56-3-0 record, has announced his retirement on a number of previous occasions, but always reconsidered and fought again.

Roche holds 28-pin lead

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Don Roche, a 56-year-old veteran seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association tour victory, held a 28-pin lead over Tommy Hudson after two rounds of the $100,000 Classic.

Roche, from Downey, Calif., was in sixth place at 1,355 after the first round, but moved in front with a 1,382 score for the evening's six-game set and a 2,737-pin total.

Pete Couture of Windsor Locks, Conn., was third with a 2,696-pin total followed by Bill Spignor, Hamden, Conn., 45 pins off the lead, and Steve Martin, Kingsport, Tenn., 56 behind Roche's pace.

Mack warns Rams weary of knocking on door

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Veteran guard Tom Mack says his Los Angeles Rams are tired of knocking at the Super Bowl door and now they want in.

The 35-year-old Mack, who played on Michigan's last Rose Bowl winning team in 1965, has now played in 185 consecutive games for the Rams and wants a Super Bowl title to cap his career.

To get there, Los Angeles must beat Dallas on Sunday in the Coliseum, but three times in the last four seasons, the Rams have been thwarted at this point.

"I personally believe this is the best team that I've been on," said Mack, in his 13th season with Los Angeles. "Other teams have had as good talent, but this team plays best when it has to. The bigger the challenge, the bigger the response."

HE ADMITS that the wild card Dallas team of 1975 "humiliated" the Rams with a 37-7 victory but vowed that would not happen this time.

However, he said Dallas is much better than the Minnesota team the Rams whipped 34-10 last Sunday.

Mack said, "We've been so close so many times that we may be running out of chances. I think we're working with more intensity probably for that reason. I've played in 11 playoff games and that might be close to a record for someone who has never been in the Super Bowl."

Mack has never missed a game as a Ram and asserted, "It's either mental toughness or monumental stupidity because I played hurt a lot of times. In this game we have a fierce desire to try to break through."

The veteran says the Super Bowl is final goal he seeks in the game of football.

A mechanical engineer working for the Bechtel Corporation in the off-season, he has a job when he decides to quit football, a decision he has not yet made.

MACK WILL be working against 25-year-old Dallas defensive tackle Randy White, whom he rates as one of the three best in the league — the others being the Rams' Larry Brooks and Derland Moore of New Orleans.

In many past games, it was Mack against the Cowboys' Bob Lilly, who now is retired.

"Randy has some styles similar to Lilly," the offensive lineman said, "but Randy uses his strength more than Bob did. Bob was the most instinctive player I've ever played against."

As for the Rams, Mack says that new Coach Ray Malavasi has brought in an offense "appreciably different" from that of Chuck Knox, who coached the Rams the past five seasons, during which they won divisional titles each time.

"We have more weapons and we mix things more," Mack said. "The aim is to keep the opponent off-balance. With more plays, we don't execute as well, but Ray is willing to take more chances."

Mack said the defenses of the two NFC title-seeking teams are similar,

"coordinated and disciplined, structured so everybody does his job." "If you let somebody in and he sacks the quarterback, he is the hero and you are the bum."

Hollywood contends Rams lack Super class

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboy linebacker Thomas Henderson says the Los Angeles Rams don't "have enough class to play in the Super Bowl."

Henderson told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram: "Anytime you give us the big money and the big game, the Cowboys will win."

Los Angeles and the Cowboys collide Sunday for the National Football Conference championship. Los Angeles beat Dallas 27-14 in a regular season game in September.

"The first game doesn't count," said Henderson. "If they (the Rams) don't choke I will choke them."

Henderson said "That coach (Ray Malavasi) said he was going to kick our butts before the last game...I had a bad foot...and I couldn't kick anybody. But now I've got two feet on the ground and I'm gonna kick their butts."

The Cowboy linebacker—who calls himself "Hollywood" for obvious reasons—told sportswriter Jim Dent: "Make sure the Los Angeles players hear about this."

Henderson loves controversy.

Before the Thanksgiving Day game against Washington, he called the Redskins "a bunch of turkeys."

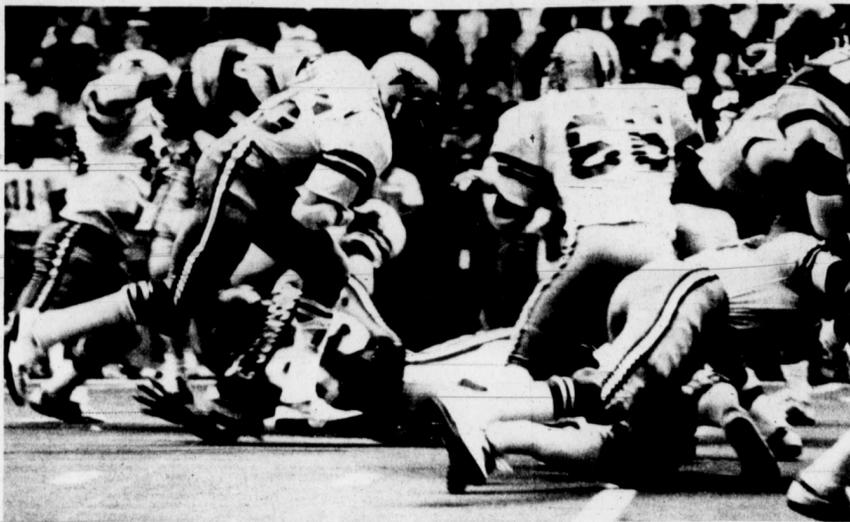

He was shouting from the sidelines in the final minutes of the rout, yelling "Washington, you've found your Pearl Harbor. Tora! Tora! Tora!"

Insurance company holds merger key

EDMONTON (AP) — The success of the World Hockey Association's third attempt at a merger with the National Hockey League could well depend on the involvement of an insurance company.

The Aetna Insurance Corp., a partner in the group that owns the New England Whalers' franchise, has agreed to guarantee any judgment against WHA clubs, league president Howard Baldwin said in an interview Wednesday night.

Baldwin said an earlier report that the insurance company had agreed to underwrite any financial involvement of the New England franchise was not accurate.

Dallas Cowboys' Preston Pearson may not walk on water, but he runs with both feet in air and could be a time bomb in Sunday's game against Los Angeles Rams. (Staff photo)

Pokes Preston Pearson may be ticking bomb

DALLAS (AP) — Preston Pearson is being used—or not being used.

He is not unhappy because Tony Dorsett, the 1,000-yard gainer, is the starting tailback.

"Being the starter is no longer a big thing to me," says Pearson. "I would just like the opportunity to play more than on third down situations. I feel I can make a contribution as a spot player—running with the ball as well as a receiver."

PEARSON HAS carried the ball only 25 times for 104 yards and a 4.2 average. His longest run was 18 yards.

The most times he has rushed for the Cowboys was in 1975 when he gained 509 yards on 133 attempts for only a 3.8 yard average. In the only game he started this year, he carried 10 times for 61 yards. That was against Philadelphia while Dorsett was being disciplined for missing practice.

But Pearson is most deadly on third down when he glides out of the backfield to go one-on-one with a linebacker. His career high was 46 pass receptions last year. Most of Pearson's catches come with Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach operating out of the Shotgun offense.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry always has praise for Pearson.

"I consider him a starter," said Landry.

There will be no argument from Los Angeles.

Bellard won't go to Army as coach

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Emory Bellard said his college football career is in limbo. But one thing that he knows for sure is that he will not be coaching the "long gray line" at West Point.

The former Texas A&M head coach, who resigned under alumni pressure at mid-season, said Wednesday he has withdrawn his name from consideration as the head football coach at the United States Military Academy.

"West Point is a very fine institution and a prestigious coaching job," said Bellard, who would add only that for him it was not the right situation.

"I'm not talking with anyone about a coaching job," Bellard told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

"I'm in kind of a state of limbo," said Bellard. "I really don't know what I'm going to do this year. I have no definite plans. Hopefully I will in the near future."

Shula, Wilkinson were among Buff candidates

MIAMI (AP) — Professional coaches Don Shula and Bud Wilkinson were among the candidates approached for the University of Colorado football coaching job before the school touched off a controversy by selecting New England Patriots Coach Chuck Fairbanks.

Shula, Miami Dolphins coach, said Wednesday he was contacted earlier by Athletic Director Eddie Crowder, but told Crowder he wasn't interested.

"He called me, asked me if I thought I'd be interested. I told him I wasn't. That's as far as I want to get into it," Shula said.

Crowder said, "I consider Don a good friend. I called him about six weeks ago and asked him if he would be interested in coaching college football."

"He told me right now he was committed to coaching professional football," he said. Crowder said he called Shula again two weeks later, but Shula repeated that he wasn't interested.

Crowder said Wilkinson, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals, told him he was too involved in the Cardinal program, which he took over last year.

Crowder said the legendary Oklahoma coach also said he had an emotional attachment to the Cardinals, who won six of their last eight games after an 0-8 start.

Bum breath of fresh air in sophisticated NFL

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips, decked out in his Columbia blue cowboy boots and western hat, patrols the Oiler sideline like McCloud pursuing his man on the streets of New York.

Clearly, the man is an interloper, out of place in this age of the computerized game plan, two-inch thick playbooks and impersonal win-at-all-costs philosophy.

Phillips, his lantern jaw chewing at his favorite tobacco, would look more at home driving his pickup down to the feed store or give him a horse and he could make a cigarette commercial.

But a head coach in the sophisticated National Football League?

You'd never hear Tom Landry stand before a post-game gaggle of newsmen in his best pin-strip suit and announce "Our players had a lot of chances to let their milk drop today."

BUT THAT'S what good ole' boy Phillips did after one game, followed of course by puzzled looks and an explanation.

"You know what that is," Phillips said. "It's a country expression. You know, give up. That's what a cow does when you go to milk her. She just don't want to give up to start with."

Yet for all of his down home, country bumpkin appearance, this galoot has somehow managed to knit the once laughable Oilers into a band of warriors that is within one game of playing in their first Super Bowl.

A victory over Pittsburgh Sunday would advance the Oilers to Miami Jan. 21, possibly against Landry's Cowboys in an all-Texas NFL finale.

Phillips came to the Oilers in 1974 as defensive coordinator under Sid Gillman and the following year became head coach. A highly respected defensive coach, Phillips quickly established that he could command the whole field.

One of Phillips' biggest assets as a head coach has been his ability to bring the team together as a unit. When things got tense, a Phillips one-liner has often saved the day.

When humor wouldn't work, a straight-forward man-to-man talk got the job done.

As a defensive coach, Phillips switched the once porous Oiler defense to a three-man front and then did a selling job with the reluctant Oiler defensive unit.

Earlier this year, Phillips added offensive coordinator to his titles when the incumbent, Ken Shipp, resigned following a dispute with quarterback Dan Pastorini over game plans.

With Pastorini having his best season and rookie Earl Campbell adding a new dimension to the ground game, the Oilers compiled a 10-6 record and made the playoffs for the first time since 1969.

The folksy Phillips has replaced former University of Texas Coach Darrell Royal as the state's leading country philosopher.

Asked about Campbell's habit of slowly dragging himself to his feet after a run, Phillips quipped "He may get up slow but he goes down even slower."

PRIOR TO playing the Browns in frigid Cleveland this year, Phillips was asked if he would take the team to Ohio early to get used to the cold weather. "No," Phillips said "You can't practice being miserable."

Phillips' country boy routine is no act. He was born in Orange, Texas, about 90 miles east of here, and to say he never left his roots would be an understatement.

He was headed for a lifetime in the oil fields rather than coaching the Oilers when he quit his job rather than contribute to a charity he didn't support.

While driving home, he passed the campus of Lamar University, then Lamar College, and stopped to watch football practice. The coach, impressed with Phillips' raw-boned physique, invited him to try out.

Phillips hasn't been away from football since.

A DEVOTED fan of country music singer Willie Nelson and just about any mournful three-chord country song, Phillips is so well liked by his teammates that he inspired center Carl Mauck to rewrite a verse from the Wabash Cannonball.

Mauck will sing his entire composition in an off-key gravel voice to anyone who doesn't even ask.

His tribute to Phillips ends: "Here's to Head Coach Phillips, May his name forever stand. And always be remembered. By the fans throughout the land. When the Super Bowl race is over, And the Cowboys finally fall. We'll carry him back to Houston On the Oiler Cannonball."

A move is underway to rename Ohio State's football stadium after Woody Hayes, its fired coach. A Columbus radio station, WBNS, asked its listeners Wednesday for their reaction to renaming 56-year-old Ohio Stadium after Hayes, the school's coach for 28 seasons. "The station's switchboard just went nuts. And it was almost all positive for Hayes," said an Ohio State athletic official. "They were so swamped with calls they had to ask for letters instead. They're going to deliver those to Ohio State later."

A federal district court judge issued a temporary restraining order Wednesday preventing New England Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks from signing a contract to take over as coach at Colorado University. The judge also scheduled a hearing for Jan. 12 on the Patriots' request for an injunction that would bar Colorado from allegedly inducing Fairbanks to break his NFL contract, which has four years left.

Cardiac telemetry equipment added to Midland ambulances

By SUSAN TOTH
R-T Staff Writer

The era of "pick 'em up and run" emergency ambulance care has ended in Midland.

New cardiac telemetry equipment was installed last week in Midland Fire Department ambulances. That, combined with advanced training for the men who use it, has made emergency care here comparable to that in any metropolitan area, according to Midland Memorial Hospital administrator Wayne Ulrich.

The new equipment allows paramedics to send a physician in the hospital emergency room an EKG to show heart activity. The physician can then give instructions for the patient's care, including administering drugs, oxygen, and other necessary care before the patient is moved.

"Not many lives are saved through speed," Ulrich noted. "Lives are saved through immediacy of treatment."

With a three-minute average response time for the city-owned ambulances, treatment now can be started very quickly, according to Glenn Harris, training chief for the Midland fire department.

Each of the 15 state-certified paramedics in the department has had 450 hours of training in addition to the 120 hours of instruction already taken for an emergency medical technician status.

The paramedic course was coordinated by Dr. Brian Mohr, a Midland cardiologist. Instructors for the three-hour, twice-a-week classes were nurses Carol Savas and Jo Ann Fee.

Before the new equipment was installed, the most a doctor could order before the patient was moved was oxygen, according to emergency room nurse Joyce Stevenson.

The paramedics can now start intravenous solutions, administer drugs, clear airways and generally stabilize the patient before the transfer to the hospital.

"It increases the odds for the patient," Ulrich explained. In a case of heart arrest, for instance, the veins collapse once the circulation has stopped. If the "IV" is started at home before that happens, chances for survival are increased, he said.

The system was put to the test, in fact, early. The day after it was installed paramedics used the telemetry and their new training to save the life of a Midland man.

"They started intravenous medication because the heart went into a rhythm that, in the doctor's opinion, probably would not have kept him alive until he got to the hospital," Mrs. Stevenson said.

The paramedics carry a variety of drugs and equipment in large orange boxes that open to resemble huge fishing tackle boxes.

Any items used are replaced immediately from hospital emergency room supplies so a full stock is always assured, Ulrich noted. In case especially fast action is needed, an extra box is kept stocked in the emergency room.

Modifying the four city ambulances to accept the equipment only meant building cabinets for the machinery. The hospital, however, had to make room for two monitors and transceivers, equipment that took much more room than the small two-way radio console used before.

In service training for emergency room personnel is still going on. "It's fairly complicated," Mrs. Stevenson said. "But we are really pleased with the program."

Paramedics Manuel Olivias, standing, and Jim Watts test the new cardiac telemetry equipment on Fire Department Capt. Rudy Dudley. The equipment allows emergency room doctors to monitor a patient's heart and direct treatment before the patient is moved, increasing chances for survival. (Staff Photo by Susan Toth)

Texas porno crackdown illegal, says Circuit Court

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A ruling that San Antonio district attorney Ted Butler deliberately acted illegally in trying to stop a sex movie was upheld by the full 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today.

All 14 judges, after a rehearing of legal arguments, said the 5th's normal three-judge panel was correct in ruling Butler acted in bad faith with harassment and prosecution that he knew could not succeed.

The case was one of two before the 5th circuit dealing with attempts by Texas authorities to crack down on magazines or movies which they regarded as obscene.

In a ruling last Dec. 18, the 5th circuit said officials could not extend the state nuisance law to cover "obscenity." Today's decision dealt with a suit filed by Richard C. Dexter, operator of the Fiesta Theater in San Antonio, after police raided the place on June 24, 1974.

A magistrate held a hearing in the theater within an hour and ordered the seizure of the film "Deep Throat," plus the film projector and Dexter himself.

Dexter was charged with commercial obscenity, a misdemeanor, and the felony offense of possessing a "criminal instrument" — i.e., the projector.

Additional raids, hearings and seizures took place on June 28, July 2 and July 7 — the only variation being that on the final raid the person arrested was not Dexter but Wayne Walker, a theater employee.

The 5th circuit agreed with a special three-judge U.S. District Court panel, headed by Judge John V. Singleton Jr., that a film projector obviously was not a criminal instrument.

As to the misdemeanor charge of commercial obscenity, Judge Singleton had ruled that the hearings in the theater were not sufficient. On that, the 5th circuit did not rule directly, since the discovery of bad faith prosecution made it unnecessary to go further.

However, said the 5th, "We believe that the hearings conducted at the Fiesta Theater substantially approximated adversary hearings, although we do not reach the precise factual question of their sufficiency."

Today's decision was one brief paragraph. It said the en banc court adopted the panel opinion, and supplemented it by adding that the case is remanded to the district court with directions to set the amount of the legal fee the county must pay to Dexter's lawyer.

Arson for profit growing in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Arson for profit is the fastest growing crime in Texas, an insurance industry spokesman said Wednesday.

"Positive anti-arson legislation is needed in Texas during this legislative session otherwise it will be necessary to wait two years until lawmakers convene again," said Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service.

"It has been estimated that more than 50 percent of all fires in Texas of undetermined origin are the direct result of arson costing state residents millions of dollars each year."

Johns said that in Dallas the property loss from arson has almost tripled since 1972, an increase of 279 percent in five years. In Houston more than $3.5 million in property has been destroyed by fires which were deliberately set, he said.

Johns estimated that arson is growing in Texas at a rate of 25 to 50 percent a year.

'Centennial' at top of 1978 special shows

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pull the wagons into a circle and gather by the campfire while I tell you that "Centennial" was the best of the special shows of 1978. Still is, since it will continue into February.

The reason for circling the wagons is to ward off hostile attacks from those who may disagree.

NBC's "Centennial" is the longest and most expensive miniseries ever tackled by a network, and I think executive producer John Wilder and his crew have done a remarkable job. Some of TV's old war horses suddenly found roles worthy of their often untapped talent. It was probably the first time Robert Conrad was ever really challenged to act, and his Pasquinel was a memorable character.

Some episodes were better than others, and one or two limped along like Levi Zandt's wagon. My favorite was the one in which Levi and his bride, Elly, traveled west. Elly, played by Stephanie Zimbalist, was the most vibrant and appealing character of all, and her death at the end came like a blow.

NBC's "Holocaust," that magnificent, tragic soap opera played against the German atrocities of World War II, was another great achievement. It was an emotionally wrenching series, where individual stories made the suffering intimate and more painful. It showed that the Jews didn't all march peacefully into the gas chambers, and that the Nazi monsters often as not were petty bureaucrats.

Other best movies and miniseries, in no particular order, were: "A Woman Called Moses," NBC — A vivid study of the little-known life of Harriet Tubman and her personal fight against slavery. Cicely Tyson proved once again she is one of the best actresses around.

"Mary White," ABC — A touching story fashioned from William Allen White's editorial about the untimely death of his young daughter. Kathleen Beller brought her convincingly to life.

"Roll of Thunder, Hear My Cry," ABC — This three-part story of the struggle of a black family to hold onto its farm during the Depression in Mississippi, started out as a children's show. Fortunately, ABC gave us all a chance to enjoy it.

"Ziegfeld: The Man and his Women," NBC — A film biography of the master showman done in the rich, old-fashioned way of the movies of the 1930s. "Rainbow," about the early life of Judy Garland, and "Bud and Lou," about Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, were also excellent Hollywood biographies.

"Verna, the USO Girl," PBS — Sissy Spacek tugged at our hearts as a lovely klutz of a song-and-dance girl with two left feet and a permanently off-key voice.

"When Every Day Was the Fourth of July," NBC — A splendid little gem that captured the mood of growing up in the 1930s like a moonbeam in a bottle.

"Thaddeus Rose and Eddie," CBS — A wonderful character study of two good ole boys who finally decide to act like grownups and experience growing pains.

The trash can award goes to "The Users," a tale of Hollywood's low life told in high style.

'Diff'rent Strokes' makes light of 'culture shock'

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Conrad Bain says his two young co-stars on "Diff'rent Strokes" bring out the grandfather in him.

"I'm really indulging myself with the kids," he said. "I feel like a grandfather. None of my three children has kids. I don't have to take them home. I guess that's the way with grandfathers — you can have fun with them."

The half-hour comedy series, which airs Friday night, also stars Gary Coleman and Todd Bridges as Bain's two young charges. Bain plays a millionaire who takes in the sons of his black maid after her death.

The comedy centers on the cultural shock of two young boys from Harlem suddenly thrust into a white world.

This show, which premiered last Nov. 3, was touted as the first to be selected by NBC president Fred Silverman. Bain said, "We ushered in the Silverman philosophy. What a terrible burden."

For midseason the newly appointed Silverman, who helped put ABC in first place in the ratings, tossed out all of NBC's fall entries and replaced them with shows — mostly comedy — of his own selection.

The biggest comedy chores in "Diff'rent Strokes" fall on the tiny shoulders of Gary Coleman. He's sort of a pint-sized Milton Berle, with a joke for every occasion. But I'm afraid it doesn't do anything for me. I guess I've had an overdose of precociousness.

Bain admits there is a thin line that separates Gary from being cute and being a smart aleck.

"He does comedy well so it's tempting to give him lines," he said. "The more you do that the more you risk slipping over. But I think he has the ability to play other ways. He has to be used right."

Bain said he finds his new series "a delightful and wonderful change" after his six years as Bea Arthur's pompous neighbor on "Maude."

"The thing that attracted me to 'Maude' was to take a character intrinsically unsympathetic and find the characteristics that made him what he was," he said. "That kind of character has enormous defenses and rigidity. It was fun to show both sides, to be true to his rigid exterior and still let the audience get a peak at the person inside."

"Phillip Drummond is a very different kind of challenge. He doesn't demonstrate what he is. He's potentially warm and, without being sentimental, he is emotional. I think sentimentality tends to be a cop out and shallower than finding ways to deal with the real person."

Bain, who was born in Canada, gained his acting experience on the New York stage. He said, "I am constantly getting cast as a sophisticated character who is reasonably well to do, but I was just a dirt farmer from Canada." He appeared in several movies in New York, but did not come west until "Maude."

He said he is not yet satisfied with the show. "I'm not satisfied with the writing yet, and I don't think the writers are either," he said. "I don't think you can be satisfied with anything so new."

Pope journeys to papal palace

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II went to the papal palace in Castel Gandolfo today for "rest, prayers and meditation," the Vatican announced.

The announcement said the pontiff would spend Thursday night at his summer residence in the Alban Hills south of Rome. His plans for Friday were not announced, but on Saturday he is scheduled to consecrate Monsignor Franciszek Macharski, his successor as archbishop of Krakow, Poland, in a ceremony at St. Peter's Basilica.

'Barefoot in the Park' opening at Mansion

"Barefoot in the Park," starring Dorothy Lamour will premiere at the Mansion Dinner Theatre Tuesday.

The Neil Simon play will continue through Feb. 14 at the theater.

Enid Holmes is producer for the show. The buffet will be served from 6 to 8 p.m. each night, with the show beginning at 8 p.m.

Radio has 'intimacy' TV doesn't

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the television era Carole Hemingway finds radio an intimate and powerful medium.

"There is a real intimacy about radio that you don't get on television," says Carole, who has a nightly call-in talk show on KABC radio in Los Angeles. "I think it's our most intimate medium."

"People call in because they want to get involved. Talk radio has changed drastically since Vietnam and Watergate. You won't get the loonies any more. You get people who want to share their opinions or air their gripes and problems."

She found out just how powerful radio can be when just a few days before Christmas she succeeded in getting the Mexican government to release a $100,000 airplane they had confiscated in July 1975.

The plane's owner, Robert Smith, 36, of Paramount, Calif. had spent 20 months in a Mexican jail after seven marijuana seeds were found under a floor mat of the twin-engine Cessna 310-H. Carole said he was then "absolved" of all charges, and, remarkably, the plane was also absolved. But the government refused to release the plane.

Smith returned to the California, where he continued his efforts to get his plane back and served on the committee that eventually worked out the prisoner exchange with Mexico.

"They simply wanted his airplane," contended Carole. "The general who confiscated it walked away saying, 'I'm going to look good in this airplane.'"

Carole became involved when Smith telephoned her from Acapulco several months ago to tell her of his futile efforts to recover the plane. She said, "He had all the necessary papers, but they wouldn't even let him on the air base. The American diplomatic officials said they couldn't help."

"After hearing him call in every night for 10 nights I couldn't stand it. I called the boss and said I had to do something. I speak Spanish, I have a degree in international relations, and this man had every right to his airplane. It's such a departure for talk radio to get this involved — but I actually went to Mexico to see what I could do."

She spent nearly three days in Mexico, cajoling and arm-twisting Mexican and American officials. A judge told her it would take him two weeks to sign a paper. She talked him into signing it on the spot.

The final obstacle was an $11,000 charge for maintenance and storage.

New novel on submarines

COLD IS THE SEA. By Edward L. Beach. Holt, Rinehart & Winston. 348 Pages. $9.95.

How interesting an experience it is to read a book on a topic by an author who wrote a similar book on the same topic long ago. But now the topic — in this case, submarines — has been modified.

Now comes "Cold Is The Sea," a novel set in the undersea world of atomic submarines and their sometimes sinister peaceful operations.

All of this, the plot and the writing, make up an interesting reader — experience worth trying.

Dudley Lehew
For The AP

She said there was no maintenance after the plane was flown 250 hours by the Mexicans and it was left to go to ruin in the open by the sea. More pressure got the fee dropped.

Smith finally got to his plane, repaired it, and flew it out. He landed in Long Beach on Friday, Dec. 23.

Carole is now onto another crusade.

She wants to free Patty Hearst. She had Patty's sister, Virginia, on the show last week.

"I feel it's an incredible injustice that Patty should be in jail," Carole said. "I'm getting all points of view, calling people in Washington about this. I think she was convicted only because she is a Hearst and is rich."

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers dance along in "Gay Divorcee," the April 16 presentation. The film features "Night and Day" and the Oscar-winning "The Continental."

"It Happened One Night," the first film to win Academy Awards in all four top categories, best film, director, actor and actress, will be shown April 30. It stars Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert and was directed by Frank Capra.

"Wages of Fear" ends the series May 8.

Memberships are $12 for MCT members and $15 for non-members. Full-time students of UTPB and Midland College may attend the series under a special arrangement with the schools. Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the theater business office at 682-2544.

Charlie Brown, right, one of the heroes of the comic strip "Peanuts" is shown with another of the strip's characters. The strip, which has become an American institution, marks its 30th anniversary this week. (AP Laserphoto)

'Peanuts' has anniversary

By BARRY RENFREW

NEW YORK (AP) — When in 1969 the United States sent a manned spacecraft to within 10 miles of the moon, the Apollo 10 mother ship was named after a comic-strip character named Charlie Brown and its lunar module after Charlie's dog Snoopy.

Nobody raised objections. Charlie Brown and Snoopy, the winsome heroes of Peanuts, were an American institution.

And this week they celebrate the beginning of their comic strip's 30th year with a CBS special anniversary show to be aired Friday.

There has never been quite so extraordinary a group as the cast of Peanuts — Charlie Brown, the eternal loser; Linus, who spouts theology while cuddling his security blanket; Lucy, Linus' crabby sister whom one reviewer enthusiastically described as a "bitch goddess;" and Snoopy, the most sophisticated of hounds, who recently replaced the Van Gogh in his palatial dog house with an Andrew Wyeth.

But perhaps the most interesting and least known of the Peanuts characters is its creator Charles Schulz, whose views on life are often bleak and who bases Peanuts on the premise that failure is funnier than success.

Schulz's earliest memories are of the great comic strips of his childhood, and of his ambition to become a cartoonist.

His only formal training was a correspondence course through a local drawing school, supplemented by years of practice and experimentation.

The result is Peanuts, which in its every detail reflects some facet of Schulz's own personality and life. Like Charlie Brown's, his father was a barber and Schulz once owned a rather eccentric dog.

And when you talk to Schulz it doesn't take long to realize that he is Charlie Brown, older and grayer of course, but still the bemused, worried kid on the block.

Like his little hero, Schulz is a rather shy, thoughtful man who has obviously spent much of his life thinking, thinking about life and its problems.

"I know what it is to have to spend days, evenings and weekends by myself," he says, "and I also know how uncomfortable anxiety can be. I worry about almost all there is in life to worry about, and because I worry, Charlie Brown has to worry."

The Peanuts are far more than a collection of precocious kids and fantastic animals. They are ourselves, grappling with the daily complexities of life in a world that is never quite reliable and where triumph, as the Peanuts would say, is as elusive as catching snowflakes on your tongue.

Over the past 30 years — in which the strip has grown from a circulation of eight American newspapers to one of 1,750 worldwide, with a daily following of 90 million readers — the Peanuts have struggled with the changing realities and values of American life, changing as we have, but like most of us never quite sure of what it is all about.

"Charlie Brown suffers, because he is a caricature of the ordinary person," Schulz explains. "Most of us are much more acquainted with losing than we are with winning. Winning is great but it isn't funny. While one person is a happy winner, there may be a hundred losers using funny stories to console themselves."

At the heart of Schulz's art is his ability to gently catch our charms and follies so aptly that we can only laugh at ourselves.

Peanuts is above all an American creation — and one reason it is now published in 24 foreign countries and has been the subject of an exhibition at the Louvre is that it is read as an expression of the American character.

The cast's self-conscious preoccupation and doubt, their values and attitudes are those of the modern American. But much of their appeal rests on a deeply sentimental attachment to the idyllic childhood of the small American town and the values of a seemingly happier past.

For 30 years Schulz has lived daily with the strip, which he admits rarely leaves his mind. Some of his ideas are flashes of inspiration, others are years in the making. "It's rather a mystery to me where some of the little phrases come from," he admits, "and why it is possible to think of 10 ideas in one day and not be able to think of a single one the next."

Schulz has enjoyed the long years he has spent with Peanuts but wonders sometimes if he shouldn't try something new.

"I never feel like I've made it. I still have to draw something funny tomorrow. It's the same burden you had when you were in school, and it's Sunday night and you have an English theme due in the morning," he says.

Tales of lettuce monster described as superhumbug

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports that lettuce prices could soar to $2 a head this winter because of a super-monster bug munching its way through western lettuce fields are so much humbug, an Agriculture Department analyst said Wednesday.

William Paterson, an economist in the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, said that reports of damage done to lettuce fields by "a generation of tobacco budworms immune to insecticides" are partially accurate but have been "greatly exaggerated."

Cold weather and rain that hit southern California and western Arizona in late November and December damaged the iceberg lettuce crop, causing harvest delays and sharply reduced shipments, he said.

the seven of clubs. If South now takes dummy's three top diamonds he will have to win the fourth diamond in his own hand and will then be unable to get back to dummy.

South must get rid of a diamond, but dummy has no winner to furnish a discard. South solves the problem by discarding on a loser instead of a winner.

GIVES UP SPADES

Declarer can afford to lead one diamond to the queen just in case the jack happens to fall. When there is no such luck, South must lead a spade from dummy.

West wins and shrewdly switches to clubs. South wins, leads a diamond to the king and returns a fourth round of spades. And this is where South discards a diamond.

The defenders can get only their four spade tricks. The diamonds are unblocked, and South gets the five diamond tricks he needs for the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your right, bids one spade with both sides vulnerable. You are next, with: S 7 6 3 2, H 8 2, D A K Q 3 2, C 10 5. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. If you bid two diamonds you might win only four tricks. 1100 points is too much to pay for telling partner what to lead. It's always risky to overcall when you have length in the bidder's suit. The next player figures to be short and will be itching to double.

Pizza parlor row leaves one dead, officer wounded

HOUSTON (AP) — One man is dead and a sheriff's deputy is hospitalized with stab wounds after a scuffle over a $12 unpaid pizza parlor bill.

The dead man was identified as Kevin Ferguson, 19.

Deputy David Lawrenz, 22, was reported in stable condition with stab wounds to the upper back.

Investigators said the scuffle developed Tuesday night after a group including two men, two women, and two children walked out of a pizza parlor without paying their bill. They said the two men jumped on the off-duty Lawrenz when he followed them to order them to pay the bill.

Police said Lawrenz was stabbed after being pushed onto the hood of his car but he fired several shots as the two men ran.

Vacancy filled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced the appointment Wednesday of Bexar County Judge Albert Bustamante to the Commission on Jail Standards. The term expires Jan. 31, 1983.

Bustamante is replacing Judge Fidencio Garza Jr. of Falfurrias, who resigned.

Plant manager says women opted for sterilization

By BOB ROBINSON

WILLOW ISLAND, W. Va. (AP) — The manager of the American Cyanamid plant here says he can't explain why five female employees had themselves sterilized rather than accept new jobs at the plant.

But a union vice president says the women faced a potential pay cut or possible loss of their jobs.

"Any company that says it is your job or your life, or as in this case, your job or your offspring...that is a Draconian choice," said Anthony Mazzocchi, vice president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union.

The women were told they could no longer work in the pigment department at the plant because they would be exposed to trace quantities of lead dust that might injure any unborn children.

Five of the eight women in the department, ranging in age from 26 to 43, then had themselves surgically sterilized.

"That is something of a mystery to us why they would choose such drastic measures to avoid a transfer," said Jack White, manager of the Cyanamid plant.

White said the women were told they would receive their present salaries for 90 days. During that time, he said, they would be able to take jobs in other areas of the plant.

"We fully believe, based on rates of attrition...that they would be back up to their previous rates of pay," White said.

But Mazzocchi says the plant should clean up the working environment instead of moving people around or threatening them.

The lead levels, White said, are well below federal standards for men and women. But the plant manager said doctors were worried about women of "child-bearing potential" being exposed to the lead.

He said the company instituted the policy excluding such women from certain areas of the plant in September.

White said company doctors and other officials discouraged the sterilizations. "I think, in fact, we talked some women out of it," he said. "I know we did."

Asked why the women wanted to stay in their pigment department jobs, White said it was "just a reluctance to transfer from jobs they had been in for some period of time."

The dispute between the union and the company is now in arbitration.

The women were identified by the union as Iris Braden, 38, Donna Martin, 26, Betty Moler, 27, Lola Rymer, 43, and Barbara Cantwell, 31. They could not be reached for comment.

Sometimes the monotonous pressure that comes with studying for final exams gets to be too much. When the quiet becomes unbearable, some students relax by taking a warm bath. These 20 students at Fraklin and Marshall College decided to do just that. It's probably not a record, but the students proudly proclaim they are No. 1 nevertheless. (AP Laserphoto)

Two reported dead as cold hits East

By The Associated Press

It was icy cold from Florida to the Great Lakes today, and at least two persons were reported killed while battling freezing temperatures that sent citrus growers into the fields with heaters, sapped power supplies and set cold records.

An exposure death was reported in Wisconsin. The cold temperatures worried farmers in Texas and parts of the Southeast, but were called a boon to Georgia peaches.

The National Weather Service said the cold "improves the prospects of a good peach crop this spring," by sending peach trees into a rest period.

Florida citrus growers set up heaters in their fields, but the cold was not seen as a substantial threat. "It will brighten up the fruit and start trees into dormancy," said Bob Gibson of the Florida Citrus Mutual.

The National Weather Service reported early today that an unexpected wind shift added moisture to the air over the Florida citrus belt, further reducing the threat of cold damage.

In Texas, where less than 10 percent of the $40 million citrus crop is protected by artificial heating devices, growers began gathering oranges and grapefruit for juice. Cabbage and broccoli crops were reported damaged.

Power outages attributed to the cold were reported in widely scattered areas Wednesday, including Birmingham, Ala.; Miami, Key West and Jacksonville in Florida; and Detroit.

Schools were closed in upstate New York Wednesday after the area was blanketed by 16 inches of snow. More than 26,000 youngsters got the day off in Syracuse, N.Y.

In Columbus, Ga., temperatures fell to a record low of 15 degrees, and James Williams, 60, was fatally burned after he lifted a heater from a ditch, spilling flaming diesel fuel onto his clothes.

Leola Matthews, 85, of Ozark, Ark., died after inhaling fumes from an oil heater. And in West Bend, Wis., the body of Cory Bieniek, 17, was found in a vehicle parked on a city street. Officials said Bieniek apparently fell asleep and died of exposure.

Garbage collection crews in Milwaukee, unable to work because of subzero temperatures, were expected to be sent out Saturday for the first full-scale weekend trash collection since 1971.

Some Milwaukee homes have not had garbage picked up in 15 days because of the holidays, heavy snow and cold.

Across the nation's midsection early today, temperatures were beginning to moderate. But sub-zero readings prevailed across the northern Plains, Minnesota, and from Wisconsin through Illinois.

Brisk winds in eastern Montana and the Dakotas yielded wind-chill temperatures as low as 40- to 50 below zero.

The western Gulf Coast was warmer, with readings in the 30s and 40s. The eastern Gulf Coast reported temperatures in the 20s and 30s.

Most of the nation reported dry weather. Light snow or snow-showers were scattered over the Great Lakes region and the northern half of the Rockies into the Nebraska Panhandle and eastern Montana.

There were a few rain showers in California. Travel advisories for snow were posted for the eastern shores of Lakes Michigan, Erie and Ontario.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 20 below zero in International Falls, Minn., to 59 in Brownsville, Texas.

Here are some early-morning temperatures and weather conditions from key cities across the nation:

Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 19, clear; Boston 18, clear; Cincinnati 14, clear; Cleveland 11, snow; Detroit 8, windy; Indianapolis 16, snow; Louisville 20, clear; Miami 45, clear; Nashville 17, clear; New York 15, clear; Philadelphia 12, clear; Pittsburgh 11, snow; Washington, D.C. 18, clear.

Central U.S.: Chicago 40-50 below zero; Des Moines 3, clear; Fort Worth 29, partly cloudy; Kansas City 4, clear; Memphis 25, clear; Minneapolis 15, clear; St. Louis 14, clear.

Western U.S.: Anchorage 13, clear; Los Angeles 54, cloudy; Phoenix 43, clear; Salt Lake City 21, cloudy; San Diego 51, clear; San Francisco 45, foggy; Seattle 35, cloudy; Spokane 8, cloudy.

Florida citrus growers using grove heaters

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Central Florida citrus growers stunned by the sudden temperature plunge have grove heaters and wind machines in place and crews on alert to battle the current cold snap.

A National Weather Service forecast that proved to be inaccurate left growers surprised when they awoke to mid-20s temperatures Wednesday morning. The weather service had predicted warmer weather, but said a high pressure center expected to be over north Alabama drifted 200 miles further south.

However, although some icy fruit and nipped tender growth was reported, Florida Citrus Mutual said damage was minimal.

Overnight lows were expected to dip into the mid to upper 20s and low 30s in the citrus belt.

John Kennedy, an official of Golden Gem Growers, Umattilla, said Wednesday a little ice was found in some Hamlin oranges when they were cut, "but I don't think it's anything to be concerned about."

"We were caught with our pants down," said Bob Coward, whose family owns a grove south of Lakeland. "But I guess forecasters catch it, too, for making us sit up and not light our heaters. It was the other way around this time."

Ambassador College in Texas put under court jurisdiction

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Worldwide Church of God and two of its properties — Ambassador College at Big Sandy, Texas, — have been temporarily put under court jurisdiction after the California attorney general's office accused the church's founder and his chief aide of siphoning off "several million dollars a year."

In a suit filed Tuesday, the attorney general's office accused 86-year-old Herbert W. Armstrong and Stanley Rader, 48, the church's general counsel and treasurer, of liquidating much of the church's property at prices well below market value.

"Dozens and possibly as many as 50 pieces of real estate held by the church have been sold in the last few months," said Deputy Attorney General Lawrence Tapper. Among those were the college's campus at Big Sandy, which was reportedly sold for $10 million, although it was valued at $30 million.

The Big Sandy campus was sold to a Virginia businessman who in turned has offered to lease it to Texas Evangelist Lester Roloff. Roloff has been trying to raise $10.6 million to lease the campus for his Roloff Enterprises, which operates homes for wayward children.

Roloff said today he had been given a 30-day extension to raise the money. The first deadline was today and Roloff was reportedly about $8 million short of the necessary funds.

Attorney general's agents Wednesday seized records and bank account information of the 75,000-member church and two of its properties, Ambassador College and Ambassador International Cultural Foundation Inc.

"We are going to find out what is happening to tens of millions of dollars in funds of the church," said Tapper. "We understand there has been a rapid liquidation of funds in recent months."

A complaint seeking a full accounting of funds of the church, college and cultural foundation was filed by the attorney general and six longtime members and contributors to the Pasadena-based church.

The complaint claimed that Armstrong and Rader siphoned off church property and assets "for their own use and benefit, on a massive scale, amounting to several million dollars per year."

"We've distributed thousands," Hansen said. "We just put them all in a box and the men grab them in the morning on the way out. It's part of their equipment now, like handcuffs and guns. The officers are besieged by kids when they drive by an elementary school."

Snow falls even on French Riviera

By The Associated Press

The French Riviera awoke to a rare sight today as inches of snow covered the usually sunny streets. And in the north of the country, there were warnings of more snow to come as efforts to reopen roads — already blocked for days by frozen drifts — were hampered by icy winds.

In Poland, helicopters flew supplies to Puck, a city of 25,000 on the Baltic which has been cut off from the rest of the country since the New Year storms started four days ago.

Elsewhere in Europe, however, the weather picture was a happier one. Sub-zero temperatures still kept people shivering, but roads reopened and little fresh snow fell.

An exception was Italy, where snowfalls blanketed the northern and central areas of the country and caused some traffic disruption.

Cage cards stop crime

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Seattle-area police are giving crime-fighting advice to kids through basketball trading cards.

And youngsters in this 72,000-population community are swapping them with a frenzy, says Police Capt. Dan Hansen.

On one side of the cards are pictures of the Seattle SuperSonics, the city's pro basketball team. The other side contains a bit of basketball wisdom and a crime-fighting tip.

"We've distributed thousands," Hansen said. "We just put them all in a box and the men grab them in the morning on the way out. It's part of their equipment now, like handcuffs and guns. The officers are besieged by kids when they drive by an elementary school."
