

Dead or alive? Court decision will only skim surface of Graiver story

By WILLIAM MURPHY

NEW YORK (AP) — Was financier David Graiver killed in a 1976 airplane crash in Mexico or is he living a life of luxury on the proceeds of a bank fraud that might total $200 million?

The legal answer to the dead-or-alive question will be decided by a judge Monday, but that won't clear up the mystery of the portly Argentine whose vast financial empire spanned three continents.

Graiver's business dealings included large investments by Mexico City's Jewish community in his New York bank, part ownership of a Belgian bank and allegations of unsavory financial dealings with politicians and leftist guerrillas in Argentina.

According to Argentine news reports, the Graiver family got involved with guerrillas after a brother, Isidoro, was kidnapped and part of the ransom agreement negotiated by David was that the family would invest the guerrillas' loot — allegedly up to $12 million of it.

Graiver, meanwhile, reportedly was seen in Florida after the plane crash in which he supposedly died in Mexico.

The financier was 35 when he left New York for Acapulco on Aug. 6, 1976, on a chartered jet. The plane crashed on a mountain about 40 miles from Acapulco the next day following an unscheduled stop in Texas. The two-man crew and a passenger were killed.

The crash came just one month before Graiver's American Bank and Trust Company in New York closed its doors, becoming the fourth largest bank failure in U.S. history. At about that time, the Belgian government ordered the closing of a bank controlled by Graiver's family and Argentina later froze the family's assets there.

Graiver, a director of American Bank and Trust, and four other bank officials have been indicted on state charges of misappropriating funds by extending huge loans to the Graiver family's Brussels bank. In turn, at least $15 million and possibly as much as $200 million was allegedly shifted to dummy corporations set up by Graiver.

"There is a good circumstantial case in favor of Graiver being alive," says Stephen Lowey, an attorney representing 120 Mexican Jews who deposited some $18 million in Graiver's bank. Lowey calls the events surrounding the air crash "amazingly coincidental."

Graiver's body was identified by his brother, Isidoro, but was then cremated, wiping out any chance of further identification.

The Mexican undertaker given the charred remains pulled from the plane said: "Under those conditions, I wouldn't have been able to identify even my own son."

Also, the plane's flight recorder was never recovered, though the area of the plane where it is kept was virtually intact. There also is some question as to whether there was an explosion in the air before the plane plummeted to earth.

The question of Graiver's death turned into a stumbling block for his

Pending strike could affect Basin operations

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

"D-Day" for the estimated 2,500 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCAW) members employed in the Permian Basin is Sunday.

That's when contracts covering an estimated 60,000 such employees nationwide expire.

On the eve of what could be, as some predict, the first stiff test of President Jimmy Carter's wage and price guideline policies, industry spokesmen in Midland remained adamantly against a strike Friday, while union officials claim it's their right, if it becomes necessary.

"I've been in negotiations with oil companies representing our members constantly," claimed James Childs, of Odessa, local representative for the union.

"If there's no break in negotiations we'll be taking some action," he said, implying a strike could affect some local operations.

"The oil companies are standing by President Carter's 7 percent wage limitation. That means we may have to resort to a strike or possibly open a consumer boycott to keep up with inflation," Childs said.

At midnight Sunday, the contracts covering most of the 60,000 affected industry workers nationwide expire, he said.

"Some contracts expire a few days later," he added. "They're all right close by."

"About 2,500 Permian Basin workers would be affected," he said Saturday. "These people work in Midland, Odessa, Abilene, Ozona, Hobbs, N.M., and all over this region."

On the industry side of the dispute, Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association in Midland, said, "The only way they (unionists) are going to stop inflation is to make the federal government stop printing money when it has nothing to back it up."

He said the impact of such an industry walkout in three Permian Basin would be "insignificant" because a majority of the oil industry workers are non-union locally.

"I don't think there would be much of an impact," said Thompson, adding, "They (unionists) are very shortsighted if they do walk out. Why? Because we know that every time they strike, prices for gas and oil go up for the consumer. And the only way those prices can go back down is if they (unionists) get a raise."

He said it's always the consumer who gets hurt in such disputes.

"This is the year we are going to have to face up," said Thompson, adding, "that means industry, unions and the federal government will all be involved."

According to an Associated Press story Friday night, the threatened strike by oil refinery workers probably would have little impact on gasoline supply or prices, industry insiders and the union involved say.

"The last time we had a strike it made no difference in the amount of products we put out," said Donald O'Hara, president of the National Petroleum Refiners Association, an industry group. "Refineries are highly automated and supervisory personnel can take over."

Jerry Archuleta, a spokesman for the 60,000-member Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union said, "Can they operate without their employees? Yes, probably, for a short time. But it's not as easy as they're maintaining."

"Locally, I look for a pretty good year, an exceptional year," said Thompson.

He indicated industry leaders know "eventually we will run out of oil. However, in the 100,000 square miles of the Permian Basin, we know statistically there is a lot more oil and gas down there."

He insisted industry should be "drilling for more oil, rather than have the federal government rely upon the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries or Mexico."

"We should double our drilling rates," Thompson said. "But the federal government bureaucrats and all of them are involved in the holdup."

Ice sliding back into area

It could be another one of those cold, slippery weekends for motorists, warns the weatherman.

Late Friday, the indications from forecasts of the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport were that area residents might be in for the same sort of weather which cancelled classes, slowed down motorists and brought air traffic to a standstill earlier this week as freezing temperatures and snow moved in with the New Year's celebration.

A chance of freezing rain or sleet, expected to cause hazardous driving conditions, was forecast for today.

The weatherman was calling for a slight chance of freezing drizzle and light snow for tonight and Sunday.

Winds were expected to blow to night from the west at 10 to 15 mph. There was a 50 percent chance of rain today and a 20 percent chance of rain given for tonight.

Today's high is expected to reach into the mid 20s. Tonight's low should be in the middle teens and Sunday's high was expected to be in the low 30s.

Friday's high was 33 degrees. The record high for Jan. 5 is 78 degrees set in 1948.

The overnight low was 18 degrees.

Summit participants split on issue of proposed arms sale to China

By BROOKS JACKSON

SAINT FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (AP) — President Carter and three West European leaders on Friday joined in describing the U.S. normalization of relations with China as a positive step that should not endanger relations with the Soviet Union.

But they divided over whether Britain and France should sell arms to the Chinese. The Kremlin has said such sales would endanger detente.

The four leaders, meeting in shirt-sleeves in a seaside hut, signaled the Soviet Union to silence complaints about the West's new relationship with China.

Carter and the leaders of Britain, France and West Germany discussed that new relationship at their summit — especially British plans for up to $2 billion in trade with China, conference sources said. That trade may include jet fighters.

British Prime Minister James Callaghan seemed ready to approve sale of about 80 vertical take-off Harrier "jump-jets" to China and said he will visit China this year if he is re-elected, according to conference sources who asked not to be named.

The British consider the Harriers to be defensive weapons.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt was said by German sources to oppose such a sale because it might provoke the Russians. "It would not be wise to poke a stick through the cage of the bear," he was quoted as saying.

So far Carter has stayed neutral on the question of British or French arms sales to China but has ruled out any such American sales.

The Soviet Union has cautioned the West against selling weaponry to the Chinese. But French spokesman Pierre Hunt, speaking for the four summit participants, said they agreed that development of relations with China "should not in any way be detrimental to the policy of detente, which the U.S.S.R. should not bring into question."

Hunt said the four leaders, meeting alone for more than three hours in an open-air, thatched-roof cabana, agreed that U.S. recognition of China was "a positive factor."

The Kremlin reiterated its warnings Friday. A Tass news service commentary accused the United States of "actively encouraging its Western partners to indulge in this dangerous business" of selling arms to China.

It said the West is "playing with fire" and that Moscow was watching the developing military trade with China and would undertake "every measure it deems necessary."

The conference sources, who asked not to be named, said Callaghan reported "good prospects" for up to $2 billion in British commerce with China, mostly in power-generating equipment, computers, steel mills and transportation equipment.

Callaghan favors selling the jets and believes any negative Soviet reaction to an arms deal with China would be short-lived, the sources said.

The reaction of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France was uncertain.

Odessan held in shooting death of missing truck driver

ODESSA — A 20-year-old Odessa man was being held in Ector County Jail Friday night on $50,000 bail after being charged in the shooting death of a truck driver who disappeared nearly 18 months ago.

Stephen Paul Perrin, who reportedly confessed to killing Johnny Carl White, 41, of Odessa, Friday led investigators to a deep grave where the victim's remains were buried, about 12 miles southwest of Odessa, according to District Attorney John Green.

Green said his office had been investigating the case for about two weeks after being told by friends of White's family that they were dissatisfied with an investigation started by the Ector County Sheriff's Department in January of last year.

White apparently was shot in an altercation at his house in June of 1977 and his unclad body was wrapped in blankets and buried in a pasture near Penwell, Green said in a telephone interview Friday night.

The prosecutor said the case would be presented to the Ector County Grand Jury Monday and added there may be an additional arrest in connection with the incident.

Peace Justice Manuel Valles ordered an autopsy in connection with the case. He said preliminary findings showed White died from a gunshot wound to the back of the head.

Green said a .22-caliber pistol was used in the shooting, but added the weapon has not been recovered.

Perrin led Green, investigator Jerry Davis of the district attorney's office and Richard Scott of the county attorney's office to the grave about 3 a.m. Friday, Green said.

White last was seen by relatives on June 28. Relatives had filed a missing person report with the sheriff's department in January of 1977. His wife, Patricia, also had divorced him that month.

Perrin, who was serving a 10-year probation sentence after being convicted in a burglary of Furr's Pie Kitchen, had been living at the White residence prior to White's disappearance and after the divorce had been finalized.

"We don't usually do investigations like this. Our main function is prosecution. But when people call us, we're not going to turn them down," Green said.

"Friends of the family came to us two weeks ago and said they were dissatisfied with the sheriff department investigation. So we got involved and immediately became suspicious of the suspect."

Relatives of Perrin said an investigator in the sheriff's department declined to follow up on the missing person complaint or on information about White's disappearance.

A probe also had been conducted by an investigator in the state Department of Public Safety.

Investigators had determined that White's trucking license had expired, and a nationwide Social Security number check revealed he had not been paid since his disappearance.

White's relatives, including his mother, said it was hard to understand why White would leave home without taking any personal possessions or clothes.

They had presumed him dead as early as last January.

Industrial modernization still all-absorbing goal, Teng reveals

By JOHN RODERICK

PEKING (AP) — Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping made it clear Friday that China will not be diverted from its all-absorbing industrial modernization program to embark on military adventures. But he didn't rule out regaining Taiwan by "other than peaceful means."

Teng, 74, told American reporters the Chinese intend to explore every opportunity for talks with the Taiwanese that will lead to peaceful reunification of the island with the mainland.

"So far as I am personally concerned, my hope is that this goal can be achieved this year," he said.

Teng, the driving force behind China's reconciliation with America, reiterated that the solution to the Taiwan issue remains a Chinese internal affair, and opening of relations with the United States Jan. 1 was based on American understanding of this position.

Teng said he is inclined to seek a peaceful solution, but would not rule out other means. "We cannot tie our hands on this matter," he said.

The Chinese leader renewed his invitation to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-

Teng's preoccupation with making China an industrially modern country by the start of the 21st century. He emphasized the importance of the recently concluded Chinese-Japanese peace treaty and normalization of relations with the United States.

An analysis

Ariz., one of the most adamant opponents of normalization, to visit China. But Teng said he would not discuss the Taiwan question, or any other, with Goldwater during his visit to Washington, which begins later this month.

The Carter administration is preparing a tour of the United States for Teng, although details of his itinerary will be decided only after consultation with the Chinese.

What came through most strongly from the hour-long meeting with the 27 visiting American journalists was

He said the agreements open up opportunities in trade and exchanges that could be beneficial to all. He went out of his way to say that no triple alliance of the United States, China and Japan — something Moscow fears — will come out of them.

The Chinese apparently have decided they cannot afford the billions of dollars it would take to rescue Cambodia in the face of the current Vietnamese invasion. The Chinese press has chided Vietnam for showing ingratitude to its communist allies of the Vietnam War days, but it has not used the tough fighting talk that would be expected from a nation about to go to the defense of an ally.

Iranian oil workers go to work

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Striking anti-shah oil workers began returning to their jobs Friday to ease the hardships of the fuel-starved Iranian people. The back-to-work move also is likely to boost the fortunes of Iran's new civilian government. Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, meanwhile, returned to Tehran Friday night after a two-day skiing holiday at the resort of Jajroud. In Washington, Carter administration officials said anti-shah demonstrators who take part in violent protests in the United States face deportation. The policy could lead to visa revocations for students who participated in bloody incidents in Beverly Hills, Calif., this week. Petroleum industry sources said kerosene and heating oil would begin reaching Tehran by Saturday morning through a pipeline reopened Friday from the western oil-refining center of Abadan. But some oil workers had not yet decided whether to join the return to work, and industry sources said it will be at least a week before normal fuel distribution in the capital is restored. Tehran was reported generally peaceful for the third straight day Friday as many anti-shah Iranians apparently waited to see how effective the new government headed by Shahpour Bakhtiar will be and what the future role of the shah will be. Bakhtiar, a lawyer and leading opposition figure, was tapped by the shah to form a new government to replace two months of military rule. Bakhtiar will present his Cabinet to the shah Saturday morning. The new government, which must win a vote of confidence in Parliament, is expected to be in full operation next week. The shah reportedly has agreed to surrender much of his power to the new government, and Bakhtiar has said the shah plans to take a vacation, apparently to help cool political passions here and allow the prime minister to solidify his government's position.

School board to try hand at predicting

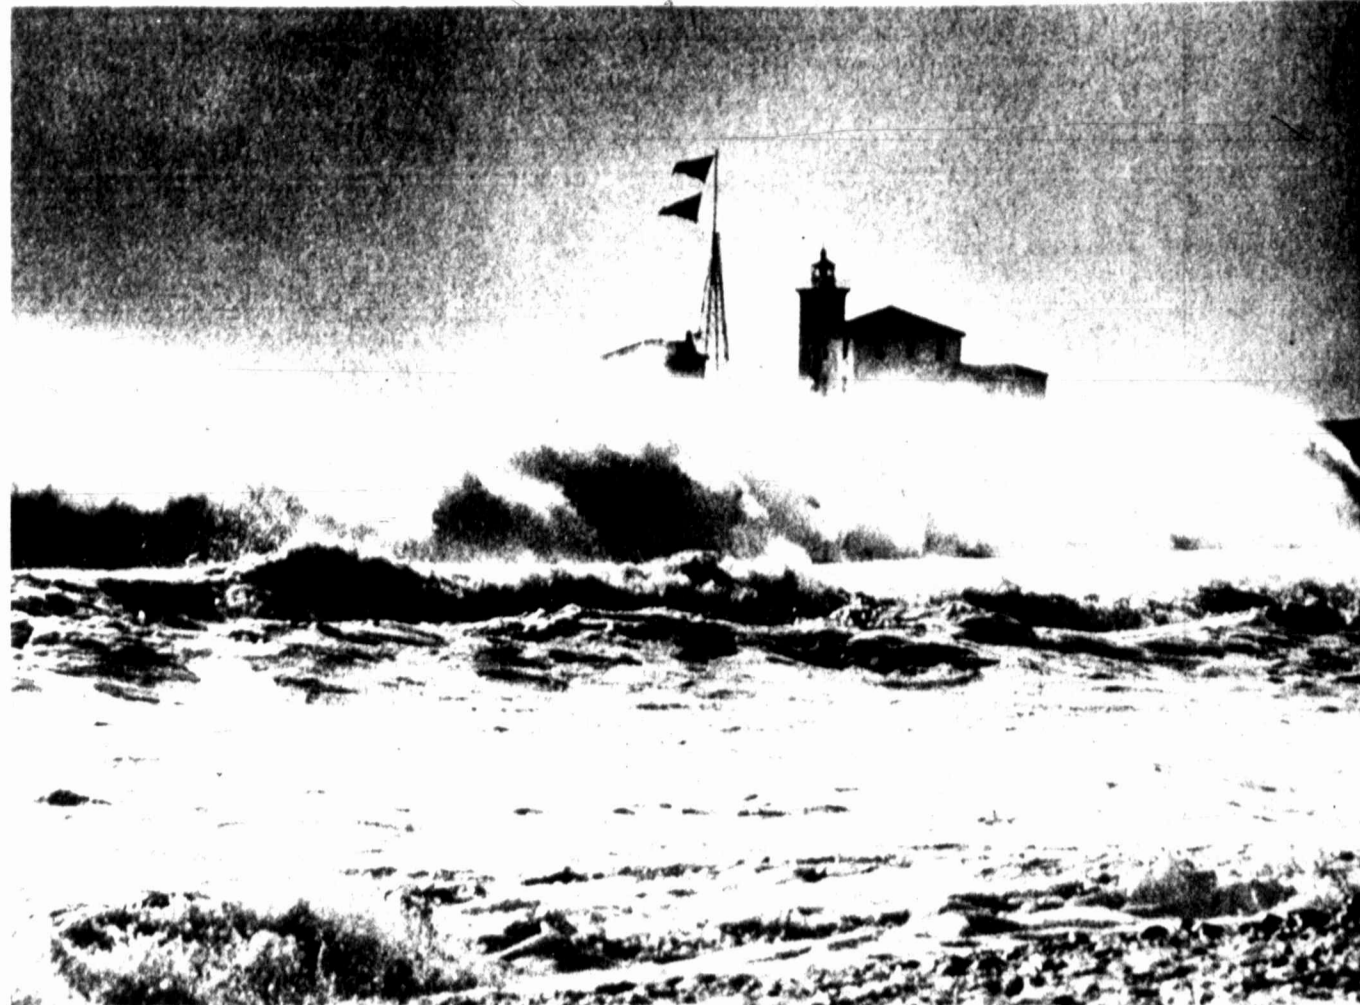

Midland school trustees will try to predict the future at their Tuesday meeting. Trustees are scheduled to review staff projections on future school enrollments at the meeting. The projected enrollment figures are used for long-range planning to determine future building and personnel needs and to keep the proper balance between schools, according to Schools Superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey. Trustees also are expected to revise the board's policy statements on non-discrimination to include handicapped students. The schools have followed a practice of not discriminating against the handicapped for some time, Mailey said, but the policy change is just to get the philosophy in writing. Other items on the agenda for consideration are a review of activities at Carver Center, approval of the independent audit report for the Headstart Program funds and renewal of service fees with the Texas Association of School Boards.

Ruling on death sought

(Continued from Page 1A) wife, Lidia, when she brought a $20 million damage suit in U.S. District Court against the company that leased the plane to Graiver. The judge hearing the case refused to proceed with the suit last May, noting a state indictment was pending against Graiver. Mrs. Graiver's lawyers then asked state Supreme Court Justice Arnold Fraiman, sitting in the criminal case, to declare the banker dead. Fraiman refused after seeing an affidavit from a man who swore he saw Graiver in a Florida airport after the crash. However, he said last week that he was "leaning" toward declaring Graiver dead if the prosecution could not come up with new evidence by Monday. Fraiman will preside at the criminal trial which begins Feb. 5 for at least three former bank officials. Graiver's case may be dismissed if he is ruled dead or severed from the others if he is not. The case of a fifth defendant has already been severed. Judge Fraiman is now hearing the civil cases dealing with Mexican Jews who invested with Graiver. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has disputed the Mexicans' claims, contending they knew the money was not being deposited here but forwarded to Graiver's Brussels bank. The Brussels bank was investing the money in Eurodollars at higher interest rates, and the deposits were not protected by the FDIC, as they would be in a domestic account. The judge has ruled in favor of 57 Mexicans for a total of almost $7 million and has ruled against 15 who invested a total of $1.5 million. The other cases are still pending. Sources close to the civil case say some of the Mexicans had also invested money with Robert Vesco and Bernard Cornfeld, two other financiers charged in connection with investment frauds. Graiver's father, Juan, is a Polish Jew who came to Argentina in 1931 and parlayed door-to-door sales of clothes, pots and pans into a real estate and finance fortune. The family got into banking at David's urging in 1967 by purchasing the majority of shares in an Argentine bank. Graiver's father, wife and brother were convicted by an Argentine military court in 1977 of criminal association with leftist guerrillas, supposedly involving the investment of money raised through kidnapping and bank robbery. The family was also allegedly involved with Isabel Peron, the ousted Argentine president who is held by the current government. One charge against her is that she pilfered state funds and put them in her own account in a bank controlled by the Graiver family.

Government accuses oil firms of overcharging for liquid gases

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government accused nine major oil companies Friday of overcharges totaling more than $1 billion for natural gas liquids, a source of such products as propane, butane and heating oil. The government, in a suit filed jointly by the Energy and Justice departments, asked that the companies be ordered to refund the excess charges plus interest. "Since many of the alleged violations have continued beyond the period covered by the (government) audit and are in some cases continuing today, the total of these alleged pricing violations will certainly exceed $1 billion" the Energy Department said in a statement. The government's action includes a lawsuit filed earlier against Exxon for some $316 million. The new action, filed Friday against eight other oil refiners, alleges additional overcharges of at least $624 million. Defendants in the new case are Texaco, Phillips, Mobil, Amoco, Shell, Cities Service, Atlantic Richfield and Gulf. Paul Bloom, Energy Department special counsel for enforcement, said there was no accusation of criminal conduct or conspiracy on the part of the companies. Several companies replied Friday that their pricing systems complied with "ambiguous pricing regulations" as they were generally understood, but that the department changes the interpretations and then applies the changed rules retroactively. The companies said they had been asking for further interpretation of the rules, and some said they had filed suit against the government asking for a judicial explanation of the pricing regulations. The lawsuits accuse the companies of either charging customers too much for products derived from natural gas liquids - such as propane, butane and heating oil - or "banking" excessive costs on their ledgers to serve as the basis for boosting consumer costs later. Bloom said it was not yet known exactly how much of the alleged overcharges were actually collected from the customers. Carl Corrallo, an aide to Bloom, said half a dozen different kinds of alleged violations of federal regulations were involved, but that no single company in the lawsuit "did everything wrong." The lawsuits request payment into the U.S. Treasury as a form of refund to the general public. However, Bloom said the court could direct other forms of reimbursement.

Abolition of 'tax freeze' favored by 18-member advisory group

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - An advisory committee recommended Friday that the 1979 Legislature encourage voters to abolish a property "tax freeze" for the elderly and postpone possible homestead exemptions for them - as well as the disabled. The 18-member committee submitted its report to the Legislative Council's Property Tax Study Committee, which is headed by a tax-reform advocate, Rep. Wayne Peveeto, D-Orange. The advisory committee also recommended that only farms and ranches owned by families or small corporations be eligible for new property tax breaks and that timberland be excluded from such benefits. "It's a bad mistake to try to maintain a particular kind of (family) ownership," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, a member of the study committee. "I respectfully disagree," responded Peveeto. "I agree with the senator," said Rep. Leroy Wieting, D-Portland.

The tax breaks, including exemptions, were part of a tax-relief amendment adopted in November's general election by an overwhelming margin. The amendment provided a mandatory $5,000 exemption for school tax purposes to every residential homestead. It also authorized the Legislature to exempt up to $10,000 of the value of the homestead of an elderly or disabled person and to freeze the property taxes on a person's home who is 65 or older. By a 6-5 vote, however, the advisory committee recommended the optional exemptions be put off for two years so lawmakers can assess the financial impact on school districts. A 7-4 vote urged the Legislature to submit an amendment to the voters to repeal the "freeze" that was granted only two months ago. Committee member James McGrew of the Texas Research League contended, however, that the additional exemptions could be "estimated fairly accurately" and would total only about $16 million a year in state reimbursements to school districts. Peveeto noted, too, that the Legislature had set aside $450 million to reimburse districts for revenue lost because of the agricultural tax benefits and homestead exemptions. Committee member Jim Nugent of Amarillo indicated the tax freeze might set neighbor against neighbor, because taxes are constantly rising and homeowners' payments would be frozen at different - and higher - levels as they became eligible. The vote against taxing timberland on its productive basis, rather than market value, was 10-3. The tax-relief amendment directed the Legislature to provide for taxation of farm and ranch land on such a basis but left the controversial timber issue up to legislators. Other recommendations by the advisory committee included: - Exempting intangible personal property from local ad valorem taxation, except for intangible assets of certain transportation companies; capital stock of banks; and reserves of savings and loan associations, insurance companies, loan companies and credit unions. The legislative council should study the feasibility and advisability of taxing other intangible property, the committee said. - Exempting from property taxation all personal motor vehicles not used to produce income. - Reimbursement of up to 100 percent to school districts losing revenue from the homestead exemptions and special treatment of agricultural land. - Submitting a proposed constitutional amendment to the voters to provide for a single appraisal of property throughout the state. - Establishing a single board of equalization for each county. "Would a single board work?" asked Peveeto, who has long advocated such a system. "Absolutely," chorused several tax assessor-collectors on the advisory committee.

Iranian students vow more protests despite threats

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - About 150 Iranian students shouting "down with the shah" marched around a fountain outside the state capitol Friday while in Berkeley an Iranian student group vowed to continue protests despite threats of deportation. In Southern California, the besieged mother and sister of the shah of Iran were staying at the sprawling desert estate of Walter Annenberg, the former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain. Federal, state and local authorities reportedly were guarding the residence near Palms Springs where President Nixon also sought haven in recent years.

Two Iranian students were still in the county jail in Los Angeles following their arrest during a violent protest Tuesday at the Beverly Hills estate of the shah's sister. Seven students were arrested initially. Meanwhile, in Berkeley, members of the National Iranian Students Association said deportation threats by Attorney General Griffin Bell would not stop their demonstrations against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. "This is not the first time we have been faced with this threat," said Ahmad Ehya, an association official. "And not once has the United States been able to deport any member of our organization."

Storms still taking toll

LONDON (AP) — Fifteen crewmen were feared drowned in the storm-tossed English Channel Friday after the Spanish-registered freighter Cantonad sank during the night. Nineteen sailors were reported dead or missing from two other storm-related wrecks.

British navy helicopters gave up the search for the missing Cantonad crewmen with only one member of the Greek crew rescued.

Officials said the crew abandoned the 2,200-ton cargo vessel when it capsized under gale-force winds. It went down 30 miles northwest of Guernsey in the Channel Islands. The 19-year-old survivor was spotted clinging to wreckage in 50-foot waves.

Sub-Lt. Gordon Jones, pilot of one of the rescue helicopters, told reporters he saw bodies in the wreckage. "We couldn't get down too close because of the waves," he said. "The man who survived did so because of his animal will to live."

The 1,113-ton Cypriot natural gas carrier Milli sank Thursday in the storm-swept Atlantic 250 miles off the French coast. A German ship rescued five crewmen but seven others were missing.

Twelve crewmen were missing from the 790-ton Italian freighter Stabia Prima that sank Thursday night south of Salerno, authorities said. One man was rescued.

Severe winter weather continued to sweep across France, from the channel coast through Paris, down the Rhone Valley and into the Alps. Hundreds of motorists were stranded Friday and power production was pushed to the limit.

Police urged Frenchmen to drive only if necessary and to conserve electricity.

At least 20 deaths were blamed by French authorities on the cold, including those of a 71-year-old man who collapsed outside his house and two tramps found frozen to death in western France.

Temperatures in France ranged from 19 degrees in Brittany on the western English Channel to near zero in eastern France.

France's national weather service said public opinion to the contrary, this winter is not abnormally cold. It reported the past 12 winters have been much warmer than usual, and many Frenchmen have forgotten what a cold winter is like.

On England's Channel Coast about 300 residents of Beesands and Torcross were evacuated after wind and waves demolished houses there.

Flights to and from London's Heathrow Airport were expected to be back to normal Saturday after massive cancellations Thursday and some on Friday.

'Holiday' declared

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown declared Friday there will be a "shipping holiday" for all citrus in the lower Rio Grande Valley from midnight Saturday to Jan. 18.

All shipments of Texas citrus except gift packs will be halted.

"I was requested to make this move to protect the reputation of the Texas citrus industry and to assure consumers that they will be getting consistently high quality fruit," Brown said in a statement.

"It was first believed that we would not have to halt shipments (because of the hard freeze) but after a meeting of the citrus industry they requested that we take this step."

Beef prices higher in December

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail beef prices jumped 2.2 percent in December because of rising market prices of live cattle, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Preliminary figures for last month showed that the average retail price of beef was almost $1.92 a pound, measured on a blended all-cut basis, compared to less than $1.88 in November.

The December price also was up more than 23 percent from an average of less than $1.56 a pound a year earlier, the department said in a weekly report.

All meat prices have been edging up, particularly beef, because cattle producers have reduced their herds sharply and it will take at least two or three years to rebuild them.

Department experts say that retail beef prices over-all will go up an additional 10 to 14 percent this year and that pork prices may average 2 percent to 5 percent higher than in 1978.

Hamburger prices are expected to go up even more rapidly this year because ground beef comes mainly from "nonfed" cows and other cattle, and fewer of those will be going to slaughter.

The latest figures showed that retail pork prices in December dipped a fraction of a cent to slightly less than $1.50 a pound on an all-cut basis. But prices were up about 15 percent from less than $1.31 a pound in December 1977.

According to the tentative figures, all of the December boost in retail beef prices resulted from higher cattle prices at the farm.

The figures were for U.S. Choice beef, the most common grade sold in retail stores. It comes from animals fed grain-based rations, not from the nonfed cattle that wind up as hamburger.

Last month, the report said, choice-grade steers brought producers an average of $55.87 per 100 pounds of liveweight, up 4.5 percent from the November average of $53.46 per 100 pounds.

Meanwhile, the report said, middlemen representing wholesalers and retailers, reduced their margins slightly, meaning that the higher "farm value" of beef accounted for the increase in retail prices from November to December.

For pork, the December average price of live hogs was reported at $49.78 per 100 pounds, up about 2.5 percent from $48.55 in November.

But the middleman share declined enough to offset the gain in prices for live hogs, meaning that retail pork prices were reduced slightly in December, according to the Agriculture Department figures.

Retail beef prices soared to a record of more than $1.95 a pound last June before declining through the summer. They have been gradually going up again since October.

Northeast no longer growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Northeast's population has virtually stopped growing, but the South and the West are continuing to make gains, the Census Bureau said Friday.

In its report on the 1978 population, however, the bureau said even the fastest growing states in the 1960s have seen the pace slow considerably.

In the year ending last July, the U.S. population grew almost 2 million, from 216,383,000 to 218,059,000 people, the bureau said. The majority lived in the South and the West.

The bureau said the Northeast had 49,081,000 residents and the North Central region had 58,251,000 residents in 1978. The South had the largest share of the population, 70,626,000 and the West 40,100,000.

The Northeast has had no growth in population since 1970, and from 1977 to 1978 its population declined from 49,305,000 to 49,081,000.

Increased acres were reported for snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, eggplant, escarole-endsive, lettuce, spinach and tomatoes. Fewer acres were planted to green peppers.

Agriculture officials awaiting word on vegetable damage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vegetable production this winter was expected to increase significantly from a year ago, but that forecast was before the sharp freezes in parts of Texas and Florida this week, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Temperatures dropped into the low 20s in the Lower Valley of Texas and into the mid- to upper-20s in the "coldest vegetable-growing areas of Central and Northern Florida" on the morning of Jan. 3, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

"Some damage has occurred to vegetables in the Lower Valley and Winter Garden Areas of Texas, and to some tender vegetables in Central and North Florida," the board said in a footnote to the report.

Thus, it said, the vegetable production estimates were made before the cold weather. No assessment of potential loss was included in the report.

But prior to the cold weather, the report said it looked as if total output of fresh market vegetables in the first quarter of this year might total 35.9 million hundred-weight for 13 major crops, up 8 percent from 33.3 million a year ago.

The production increase was based on a boost in acreages of vegetables indicated for harvest this winter, an estimated 193,000 acres against 179,000 acres a year ago, the report said.

Increased acres were reported for snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, eggplant, escarole-endsive, lettuce, spinach and tomatoes. Fewer acres were planted to green peppers.

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter has been awarded the 1979 Martin Luther King Jr. Nonviolent Peace Prize for his work toward full employment, human rights and peace in the Middle East, King's widow announced Friday.

Coretta Scott King, who is president of the Martin Luther King Center for Social Change in Atlanta, told a news conference that "we are pleased to give this award to President Carter for his significant achievements in continuing my husband's efforts."

The late civil rights leader, who was assassinated in Memphis in 1968, would have been 50 on Jan. 15. A six-day program beginning Jan. 11 has been planned to honor him.

Carter is scheduled to receive the prize on Jan. 14 at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King once served as pastor.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some state lawmakers apparently are in no mood to honor former Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes, who was sacked after he hit a Clemson player who intercepted a Ohio pass in last week's Gator Bowl.

Sen. Thomas Van Meter, R-Ashland, said he attempted to introduce a bill in the Senate this week commending Hayes for his 28 years of service to the university, only to have Senate President Oliver Ocaszek refuse to accept the resolution.

"It's very unusual to have a resolution of commendation turned back," commented Van Meter, who said he may try to introduce his measure again.

Ocaszek was not immediately available for comment.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mignon "Mimi" Faulkner, described by her doctors as the youngest premature baby ever to survive, now weighs 2 pounds, 4 ounces any "is holding stable without any real change," a nursing supervisor said.

Mimi, who weighed nearly 17 ounces when she was born Nov. 7 at Sharp Hospital in San Diego, still needs a respirator to breathe, Judith Lock, a nursery supervisor at Children's Hospital, said Thursday night. She said Mimi is still listed in critical condition.

Neonologist Richard W. Henderson said he and his colleagues checked medical annals and the Guinness Book of World Records and found babies have been born weighing slightly less than Mimi, but apparently none so young.

Doctors give Mimi a 50-50 chance of survival because of complications associated with premature birth.

Mimi's parents, Curtis, an unemployed meat cutter, and his wife, Myrna, have three other children, all daughters from 10 to 15, and all born prematurely.

DENVER (AP) — Ken Kellet, who tried to duplicate the historic first plane flight at Kitty Hawk, N.C., says there was one major error in plans he used to build a replica of the Wright brothers' craft.

But Kellet said lack of wind was responsible for his failure in three attempts to take off from Kitty Hawk Dec. 17, and not the plan error. The Wrights had a steady 27 mph headwind for their historic flight in 1903, he said, while his replica was aided by winds of only about 15 mph.

Kellet said recently that the plans, drawn up by Louis Chrisman in 1948 on orders from Orville Wright, showed the front elevator as a flat plane instead of as an airfoil. Kellet discovered the discrepancy when he examined the original at the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum in Washington on his way home from Kitty Hawk.

Kellet said he plans to modify his replica — now stored at Kitty Hawk — and test it again.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Actress Donna Reed, whose television show ran for eight years and who appeared in about 40 films, has moved from Los Angeles to Tulsa, where she is looking for a house or a condominium.

Miss Reed, who recently finished shooting in an NBC movie, "The Best Place to Be," has settled in with her husband, Grover Asmus.

"My husband took a position here with the Williams Brothers Co.," she said, explaining the move to Tulsa.

Asmus, an executive engineer, retired from the military six years ago as a colonel. He has been here since November.

TARENTUM, Pa. (AP) — Vince Mosley is a firm believer in grass roots government, as his faithful attendance at Tarentum council meetings for the past 60 years attests.

"I was born and raised in this town. I always had an interest in it. I like to see what's going on, and attending meetings is one way to find out," said Mosley, 78, a retired awning contractor.

Sadat hints of early resumption of deadlocked Egypt-Israel talks

By The Associated Press

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat hinted Friday at prospects of a breakthrough leading to an early resumption of the deadlocked Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

Palestinian guerrillas, meanwhile, traded artillery fire with Christian militias in south Lebanon.

Sadat spoke to reporters after Friday prayers in the upper Egypt city of Aswan. Asked if there would be an announcement by the United States and Egypt next week, he said:

"There will be a certain matter on which Egypt, Israel and the United States might agree."

A letter would be sent to U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance by Monday summarizing Egypt's position on outstanding issues, "and there might be something to announce by the middle of next week," Sadat added.

But Sadat discounted rumors that the long-sought peace agreement would be signed by the middle of March.

"There is nothing of that sort in my mind. The next step is that (Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafah) Khalil will send his answer to Mr. Vance," he said.

Peace negotiations between Egypt and Israel broke down last December over Israel's rejection of Egyptian proposals for a timetable for Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank and Gaza Strip, and Egypt's refusal to give priority to normalization of relations with Israel. Later, the two sides agreed in Brussels to reassess the situation and forward suggestions to the United States.

"Let's hope that an agreement can be reached" after the delivery of the Egyptian position papers by Khalil;

Women Jaycees get injunction

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Women members of the Jaycees in Massachusetts won a court injunction Friday that bars the national organization from expelling them.

The injunction was granted in Middlesex Superior Court by Judge Thomas R. Morse Jr. It also prevents the organization from revoking the charters of local Jaycee chapters pending a hearing before the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

The suit, brought by 14 women, alleges discrimination by the national organization, which prohibits membership by females.

Danielle E. deBenedictis, lawyer for the women, said there are about 1,000 women in 80 of the 100 Jaycee chapters in Massachusetts.

She said it could be several years before the issue is resolved.

Sadat said.

Provincial authorities in south Lebanon reported renewed artillery duels between Palestinian guerrillas and Israel-backed rightwing Christian militias.

A statement said at least one civilian was killed and three others were wounded in the exchanges which died down at sunset.

The Palestinian guerrilla command accused Israel of directly taking part in the shelling of a 40-square mile region in the foothills of the Biblical Mount Hermon on Israel's northern border.

Lebanese newsmen said the area was shelled by U.S.-made howitzer guns and that Israeli jets flew reconnaissance missions over the scene of the clash. There was no confirmation of the reports from Israel.

The Christian militiamen under Maj. Saad Haddad have no direct link with the rest of Lebanon. They control a strip along the border which serves as a security buffer for Israel against cross-border guerrilla attacks.

New rules proposed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A group of House members critical of Speaker Bill Clayton proposed Friday that the election of the speaker be by secret ballot.

Clayton is expected to win his third term as speaker on an open ballot without difficulty when the Legislature convenes Tuesday.

The "Sam Houston Caucus" also proposed that committee chairmen and vice chairmen be elected by committee members, rather than being appointed by the speaker.

Other caucus proposals would:

— Eliminate the speaker's right to dismiss people from other members' staffs.

— Require the speaker to submit his office budget to the House for approval.

— Remove the calendar committee's power to block a hearing on a bill.

Vietnamese forces reportedly even deeper into interior of Cambodia

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Vietnamese invasion force of about 100,000 troops appears to have taken a quarter or more of Cambodia, substantially demolished Phnom Penh's defenses from three directions and on Friday was reported driving deeper into the country's heartland.

China was reported likely to airlift six government leaders out of Phnom Penh to China, Japan's Kyodo News Service said in a dispatch from Peking. The report said information about the evacuation could not be confirmed.

Cambodian insurgents, fighting alongside the Vietnamese, claimed to have overrun two more provincial seats and reliable analysts here said a third, Takeo, 37 miles south of Phnom Penh, had also been captured in multi-pronged drives.

The rebels of the recently formed National United Front for National Salvation said they now controlled much of eastern and northeastern Cambodia. The Bangkok analysts says the claim appears to be true, although they note that the Vietnamese are doing the bulk of the fighting.

The war erupted over longstanding boundary disputes abetted by centuries of hatred between the Vietnamese and Cambodian peoples. Some observers have called the struggle a "war by proxy" between China, which backs Phnom Penh, and the Soviets, who support Vietnam.

The Vietnamese Embassy in Paris denied Vietnamese were involved in the invasion and accused Cambodia of aggression. Embassy communiques charged that China repeatedly sent troops into Vietnamese territory in December, while its navy harassed Vietnamese fishermen.

Cambodian Premier Pol Pot, in a speech Friday, said the war with Vietnam was "a life-or-death struggle" growing more serious every passing day and that his "people's war" would soon meet with success.

The Vietnamese maneuvers to the north, south and east of Phnom Penh — achieved in less than two weeks — have led diplomats and intelligence analysts to conclude that the Vietnamese intend to capture the capital by cutting off its vital overland arteries.

The next move in such a scheme would be the blocking of Highway 4, Phnom Penh's 124-mile lifeline to the sea.

U.S. preparing for China's Teng

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is preparing a red carpet tour of the United States for Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping late this month, officials said Friday.

But they cautioned that none of the details of Teng's itinerary have been established. The White House and State Department are still discussing what they would like to suggest Teng do during his U.S. visit.

When that is decided, the issue will be broached with the Chinese. Only after that consultation will the trip be set.

In Washington, the officials said, the White House is planning an array of events, including a state dinner and some kind of entertainment gala, perhaps at the Kennedy Center.

The congressional foreign affairs committees have been notified to get ready to hold some type of function for Teng during his stay.

Teng will tour other parts of the country. An aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said preparations have begun for a visit to Texas.

The aide said Teng might visit a Houston-area factory, which manufactures the type of oil-drilling and exploration equipment China is interested in buying. No time or place has been set.

There is also consideration being given to a suggestion by Iowa Gov. Robert Ray that Teng visit an Iowa farm, much as Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev did during his 1959 trip to the United States.

The officials said they were uncertain, however, whether a midwestern farm would be on Teng's itinerary.

The White House also is planning a number of related events this month as part of the transition process involved in establishing U.S.-Peking relations.

In mid-January, it is planning a conference of American businessmen to explain the ways in which the government will be able to help establish trade relations with China.

Meanwhile, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter found "nothing new" in remarks made by Teng Thursday in a news conference with American reporters in Peking.

Teng said the Chinese cannot restrict themselves by renouncing the possibility of using force to achieve reunification of Taiwan and the mainland.

Teng said the future of Taiwan "is entirely an internal Chinese affair." He added that the Chinese "have taken note" of President Carter's wish that the dispute be settled peacefully.

Inmate wins $518,000 settlement

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — An inmate who sued Virginia officials for medical and psychiatric malpractice and mistreatment while in prison was awarded a $518,000 settlement Friday by a federal court judge.

The prisoner, Henry Tucker, 43, suffered paralysis of both legs and developed massive, maggot-infested bedsores during a six-month stay in the hospital at the Virginia State Penitentiary here in 1977.

"I really have been through a lot," he said from a wheelchair, his withered legs propped on pillows, after U.S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. approved the settlement with the state.

As for the amount of the settlement, Tucker said, "I would say it's suitable."

The settlement, reached in lieu of a jury trial, was believed to be the largest award ever made to a prisoner in the United States, said Steven Ney of the National Prison Project of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Tucker has been in the penitentiary since 1964, serving a 40-year sentence on conviction of breaking and entering with intent to commit rape in Halifax County. He is to be released on parole in a few weeks.

Tucker's legs became paralyzed in 1976 after he was diagnosed as a schizophrenic and given Prolixin, a powerful anti-psychotic drug, while a patient at the penitentiary hospital and at Central State Hospital, a state mental institution in Petersburg.

Carter backs down from future wage schedule postponement

By DAVID ESPO.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided not to ask Congress to postpone scheduled increases in the minimum wage in 1980 and 1981, administration officials said Friday.

The administration had been considering asking for a change in the minimum wage law as part of its fight to curb inflation. But, said one official, deferring the two scheduled minimum wage increases would have a "tiny, almost imperceptible effect on the inflation rate."

The minimum wage rose from $2.65 to $2.90 an hour Jan. 1, and under law is supposed to rise again to $3.10 next Jan. 1 and to $3.35 on New Year's Day 1981.

Officials said Carter also has decided not to ask Congress to change the law to permit businesses to pay young employees less than the minimum wage.

On another point, the president was reported to have decided against proposing changes in the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires workers to be paid at the prevailing wage rate when doing government-financed construction work.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States and other business groups favor changing both the minimum wage law and the Davis-Bacon Act, moves which their allies in Congress are expected to seek this year.

Carter's decisions puts his administration on the side of organized labor in the minimum wage dispute. Relations between the unions and the White House have soured in recent months, with labor leaders criticizing the president's anti-inflation program as unfair to workers.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall met Thursday with AFL-CIO president George Meany to tell him of Carter's decisions, one official said. Carter and Meany have scheduled their first private meeting in months for Jan. 12.

One official said the president was notified earlier this week that his advisers recommended against seeking changes in the two laws, and Carter agreed.

The official, who asked not to be identified by name, said one reason behind the decision is an administration policy that "the poor are not to bear the brunt of fighting inflation."

Under the Carter administration anti-inflation plan, workers earning less than $4 an hour are exempt from the wage guidelines.

In addition, figures show that a large percentage of the estimated 5.3 million persons working for the minimum wage are adults from low-income families.

South, no expert, won the first spade and led the three of clubs to dummy's queen. Waste not, want not. Since East showed out on the next club South go to his hand with a diamond to lead the nine of clubs. But West wisely played low, and South could get only three club tricks.

South struggled on, hoping for an end play in which West would have to lead his last club to dummy, but the defense was alert. Down one.

MUST LEAD NINE
Any expert would lead the nine of clubs from South hand at the second trick. When the ten falls, dummy continues with the king of clubs, and South knows he must drop the eight.

After East's revealing discard, South gets to his hand with a diamond to lead the carefully preserved three of clubs. Dummy wins the finesse with the seven, and declarer gets all five clubs, making the contract with an overtrick.

Baptism request rejected

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — Roy Allen Embry believes his request is simple enough: He wants to be baptized by the minister of his choice.

But officials of the Colorado State Penitentiary, where Embry is serving a life sentence as a convicted murderer, have rejected his request and Embry says he may sue them.

"It is policy to refuse to allow outside ministers to perform baptisms within the penitentiary," said prison spokesman Randy Henderson. "Baptisms are performed by the institution's chaplains."

Embry, 32, was convicted of the 1975 murder of Denver policeman Donald DeBruno at a Denver bus station. Embry was wounded during the incident and is now confined to a wheelchair in the prison infirmary.

Fans dream of Lone Star finale

There is considerable speculation over the possibility of a state championship Super Bowl game between the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers and with it despair over the fates which deem such an all Lone Star attraction would take place on alien soil.

It's a distinct possibility, but it's equally possible that fantasizing Texas fans might wake up Monday to concur that the Super Bowl site is remote, but might just as well be in Algiers for all they care.

Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, for those who are being carried away in Republic patriotism, aren't exactly pushovers and, what's more, both will enjoy home-field edge, which in the wonderful world of the NFL has been known to carry some clout.

Still, it couldn't be possible that at least one of the Texas standard-bearers wouldn't make it...could it?

REMEMBERING THE second Pittsburgh-Houston game, mistaken by some viewers as the annual convention of ambulance chasers, the Rams and Cowboys can derive some comfort from the fact that the winner of Sunday's game in Los Angeles might find itself facing what could be mistaken as the remnants of stragglers from the Bataan Death March in the Super Bowl two weeks later.

The Oilers still hurt from that battle of attrition, quarterback Dan Pastorini forced to protect cracked ribs with a flak jacket, and running back Earl Campbell limping along on a wing and a prayer.

Some infidels snort derisively at Dallas' close call against Atlanta last week in the NFC semifinal, observing caustically, "If they can't beat the Falcons any more convincingly than 27-20, how can they expect to beat the Rams?"

What they seem to forget is that Los Angeles didn't exactly mistake the Falcons for a holiday turkey. After winning the first meeting, 10-0, the Rams lost the return match, 15-7.

The remarkable aspect of the Cowboys' conquest of the Falcons is that they did it after trailing 20-13 at half and after quarterback Roger Staubach was kayoed for the day just before intermission.

Such a blow would have been a catastrophe to any other playoff team, AFC or NFC, but Danny White's performance after taking over for Staubach only emphasizes what people have been claiming all along about the seemingly limitless depth of the Cowboys' bench.

IN FACT, the Cowboys played the entire game without using regular fullback Robert Newhouse, who probably has decided never to get injured again. Replacement Scott Laidlaw has played so superbly that Newhouse can't get his job back, although he's ready to go again.

Coach Tom Landry admitted his dilemma

after the game, explaining, "Even though Robert is ready, I hesitate to replace a player who has been doing such a good job."

Then, there is the case of tight end Jackie Smith, admittedly a mid-season pickup from the ranks of retired unemployed. Plagued most of the year by a pulled hamstring, Smith hadn't caught a pass all year, but against the Falcons, he demonstrated he hadn't lost the touch that was so evident in those years with St. Louis by making three crucial catches, including the tying touchdown in the third period.

IT WAS a play on which Smith, deep in the end zone, came back to take the pass a step inside the goal line. As White described the play, "The defensive man played it just right, getting between us to give the pursuit a chance to catch up. I couldn't run, but Jackie made a great adjustment to get open and it showed how valuable his experience is."

Smith wasn't in the game because of injury, but rather because Landry opted for the two tight end offense. "We used the two tight ends to keep them from blitzing so much," Tom explained. "That made it necessary for Atlanta to plug more gaps in the line. And with two tight ends, the Atlanta defense couldn't be sure which way we were going."

About Roger's concussion, Landry said Staubach told him in the second half, he was ready to go back in if he was needed. "But that's just Roger. He was really out of it at times and probably won't remember a thing about the last half."

Rams long overdue; Bettors like Pokes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Simple logic seems to indicate that the Los Angeles Rams, a 27-14 conqueror of the Cowboys in the regular season and coming off an impressive triumph over Minnesota in the playoffs, should beat Dallas in Sunday's National Football Conference championship game.

Or does logic give the edge to the Cowboys, winners of their past seven games and the NFL's best team a year ago?

The Rams have going for them, among other things, the home field advantage and their familiarity with the Coliseum's natural turf. Both Los Angeles and the Cowboys have 13-1 records, but the Rams' regular-season victory gave them that edge.

The Cowboys, though, have more positive playoff experience than the Rams — including a 2-1 edge in post-season matches with Los Angeles — and the added confidence of being the defending Super Bowl champions.

TOM LANDRY'S troops also have a proven quarterback in Roger Staubach and an outstanding running threat in Tony Dorsett, while Los Angeles has the less-experienced Pat Haden directing the offense and has lost runners Lawrence McCutcheon, Wendell Tyler and Elvis Peacock to injuries.

While Dallas got off to a mediocre start this season before going on the late winning binge, the Rams won their first seven contests but are 6-4 since. Los Angeles was the more impressive winner in the opening round of the playoffs, as the heavily favored Cowboys struggled to a 27-20 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Odds-makers, emerging from the confusing muddle of "logic" in this case, have established Dallas as a four-point favorite.

"I think the game should be rated even," said Rams Coach Ray Malavasi, the longtime assistant who replaced George Allen as head coach after two preseason losses.

Dallas' Landry is worried about the "frustration factor," as Los Angeles has won its division title the past six years but never made it to the Super Bowl.

"IF YOU are denied enough, you become more determined," he remarked. "You will reach a point where you want to be if you are turned back enough. We've been there ... we know how it feels."

Landry indicated he was also a little concerned about the Cowboys' loss to the Rams during the regular season.

"Anytime a team beats you, it is in the back of your mind," he said. "But that was just one of 16 games and you're going to lose a few. It wasn't like we played our best shot and got beat."

"Los Angeles played good, but our confidence level is back."

Both teams, in fact, seem quite self-assured heading into the nationally televised, 4 p.m. contest.

Malavasi may have said the contest should be rated even, but he also predicted that this game will be like the regular-season meeting and the Rams will again "kick the Cowboys' butts."

But Dallas linebacker Tom Henderson countered by saying the Rams don't have enough class to play in the Super Bowl, and "Anytime you give us the big money and the big game, the Cowboys will win."

North Texas State hires Cornhuskers' Moore

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Jerry Moore, an assistant coach at Nebraska, was named the new head coach at North Texas State University Friday, replacing Hayden Fry.

Fry resigned last month to take the head coaching job at Iowa.

Moore, 39, once worked as an assistant under Fry when Fry was the head coach at Southern Methodist.

Moore played football at Baylor, served on the SMU coaching staff for eight years and has been an assistant at Nebraska for the past six years.

The announcement was made by North Texas State Athletic Director Andy Everest.

"I do not believe we could have found any better coach than Jerry Moore," Everest said. "He comes to us from a most successful program at Nebraska and he has the Texas background necessary for our recruiting areas."

MOORE, A graduate of Bonham High School, was a three-year starting end at Baylor during the years 1958-1960. He was named in the nation's top 10 in receiving as a sophomore and again as a senior.

At Nebraska, Moore coordinated the offense as the play caller from the press box. His title was that of receivers coach.

"North Texas State is a great opportunity," Moore said. "I'm looking forward to getting down there and going to work."

Oilers' Phillips fights for change in rules

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips can point to three good reasons why the National Football League's injured reserve rule should be changed — Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, Eddie Foster and Art Stringer.

All three players could be on the active roster when the Oilers play Pittsburgh Sunday for the American Football Conference championship if the league would adopt Phillips' suggestion.

Phillips would have an impartial physician examine all players to determine if they should be placed on injured reserve. Teams then could reactivate a player when he recovered.

Under current NFL rules, a player is finished for the season once he goes on the injured reserve list.

"There are too many good football players operated on in the seventh or eighth game that could come back," Phillips said. "In 16 league games you need some ability to bring some play-

Bradshaw hopes for snow Sunday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An inch or two of snow may alter the strategy — but not the outcome — of Sunday's American Conference championship game against Houston, says Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

"After all the cold weather we've had, I'd almost welcome the snow," Bradshaw said before Friday's workout. "If it snows it means it's up in the 20- to 30-degree range, not down around zero where it's been."

"If it is snowing on Sunday, it may mean there'll be more passing by me and (Oilers quarterback Dan) Pastorini, but I don't think that means either team will have an edge on the other one. Oh, you tend to throw the ball differently. You palm it, try to get more hand on it 'cause it's wet. And you can't throw it as hard, can't wait for the man to get open and whip the pass in there — but it works the same way for both sides."

BRADSHAW had one of his best games in the snow during the 1978 season, completing 11 of 18 passes for 240 yards and three touchdowns in a 35-13 rout of Baltimore.

"Yeah, well, that was only one game. Besides, look who we were playing," Bradshaw said.

"The only thing you can say about the snow," he added with a laugh, "is that if we lose on Sunday I've got a built-in excuse. It's funny how you start looking for one when things go bad."

Randy Grossman, one of the more underrated tight ends in the National Football League, agrees with Brad-shaw's assessment. "Snow, ice — it doesn't really make all that much difference," he said.

"I'd rather play in perfect conditions, of course, but if it's bad for me, it's bad for the guy guarding me. And if I can't beat him when it's nice out, I'm probably not gonna be able to beat him in the snow, either."

DITTO FOR Steelers cornerback Mel Blount. "It all comes down to whether you're better or he's better. Hey, we played the '75 championship (against Oakland) on ice, remember? And it didn't bother us all that much."

But what about the fact that Houston plays half its games indoors? Blount was asked. "That's their problem, not ours," he snorted. "You know, they're building all those domes down south, the Astrodome, the Superdome and all that. It seems they should build 'em up north, here, where we really need 'em."

Only Lynn Swann, Pittsburgh's premier receiver, seemed to feel that the offense has a definite advantage when snow covers the field. "The receiver's got to have an edge because he knows where he's going and the defensive back doesn't. And he can't react as quickly or surely as he can when the footing's good."

The winner of Sunday's game will reach the Super Bowl XIII in Miami Jan. 21, against the National Conference champion, Dallas or Los Angeles. Both the Steelers and the Cowboys are shooting for an unprecedented third Super Bowl victory while the Oilers and Rams never have played in one.

icy roads stop Lee, Midland cagers again

Trying to play a District 5-4A basketball schedule in West Texas is far more difficult than one would possibly think.

For the second time in the same week, Midland cagers have been unable to play regularly scheduled games. The Midland Lee-Abilene Cooper contest in Abilene and the Midland High-Abilene High contest set for the MHS gym Friday night was postponed because of the icy road conditions.

The Lee-San Angelo contest and the Midland High-Big Spring game were hit last Tuesday. Lee finally got in the game with San Angelo Wednesday, but Midland High has yet to play Big Spring. That contest is supposed to be made up tonight at 8 p.m. in Big Spring, but a decision on whether that contest will be played or not will not be made until sometime today.

Odessa High was to travel to San Angelo Friday, but that contest was reset for today also, weather permitting. The only contest played Friday was the Big Spring-Odessa Permian matchup in Odessa.

No date has been set for the makeup dates for the Midland-Abilene matchups.

If anyone asks Atlanta's Rolland Lawrence (22), he tell them the Cowboys' Billy Joe Dupree is one tight end you don't want to mess with too often.

NCAA president glad term is over

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — J. Neils' Thompson is in the final days of his term as president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and he said with a chuckle Friday, "Thank goodness; I've had enough problems."

Delegates from member schools will tackle many of those problems and elect new officers at the annual NCAA convention, which opens here Monday.

The NCAA Council and various NCAA special committees have meetings scheduled over the weekend, and the American Football Coaches Association will meet in conjunction with the convention.

Thompson, from the University of Texas, indicated at a press briefing Friday that Title IX, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's regulations covering financing of college sports for men and women, will get major attention from NCAA members.

"Where's the money going to come from?" said Thompson. The NCAA is to respond next month to HEW.

The Title IX regulations, if enforced as HEW proposes in a recent policy interpretation, would require schools to spend equal amounts on men's and women's athletic programs, on a per capita basis.

In other words, if a school had 300 men participating in intercollegiate sports, including football, and 150 women, and its athletic budget was $4.5 million, the women's programs would be entitled to $1.5 million.

"This could mean tragedy, or the demise of intercollegiate athletics," said Thompson. "I share the feeling of a lot of people that we've neglected women's athletics. But we can't make up for it overnight, and people have to take into consideration how athletics are funded."

Thompson said that Texas has about 125 women participating in intercollegiate sports under a budget of roughly $650,000.

At many major schools, such as Texas, football income covers a lion's share of the athletic budget. Yet football, with at least 100 athletes at most schools, is not exempted from Title IX compliance.

Thompson said, "It could come down to a school having just football and basketball programs for men versus 10 sports for women, and I don't know what would happen then. That would be reverse discrimination."

Permian tops Steers, 63-58

ODESSA—In the only District 5-4A game played Friday, Odessa Permian (11-9 and 2-1) defeated Big Spring (4-14 and 0-2), 63-58, as Tracy Watson scored 17 points and Brad Kerley 16 for the Panthers.

High point honors for the game, however, went to the Steers' Mark Poss, who pumped in 10 field goals and 10 free throws for 30 points. Wilbur Grant had 10 for Big Spring.

Odessa Permian—Herrera 1-0-2, White 0-2-2, Woods 3-3-9, Kerley 6-4-16, Adams 0-3-3, Wayne 0-6-6, Darville 1-0-8, Watson 8-1-17. Totals: 22-19-63. Big Spring—T Rubio 10-2-27, Rubio 3-0-6, Majors 3-0-6, Potts 10-10-30, Grant 4-2-10, Cooper 2-0-4. Totals: 23-12-58.

Saban leaves UM without honor

By EDWIN POPE
The Miami Herald

MIAMI — The last time I talked with Lou Saban, I was convinced anew that he still had much to give and would give it to the University of Miami's football Hurricanes.

He gave it to them, all right. Right between the eyes.

And then ducked, by not even having the common decency to tell them promptly and directly he had accepted the job.

"I'm just having a glass of wine with my good wife here in the Keys," Saban said by telephone exactly a week ago today (Friday). "We're going fishing tomorrow, and then I'm going back to business."

The University of Miami got the business. The U.S. Military Academy got Saban.

Today, at a big feed in Manhattan, Saban will be officially introduced as Army's new head coach.

Good luck, Army. You'll need it.

YOU'RE HIRING the Louis Henry Saban so many of us defended, two years ago when he took the UM job, against charges of being a "quitter" twice with the Buffalo Bills, in between with the University of Maryland and, in his last stop before coming to Miami, after just 19 days as University of Cincinnati athletic director.

God forgive us for our gullibility. What the Racing Form calls Past Performance charts should have been evidence enough of the dishonor replacing that precious intangible of decency in so much of sports today.

You want a deserter, Army? You've got one. Saban IS a quitter.

If he wants to quit on himself, as now appears to be a proven pattern, that can be excused.

But quitting after two years on a school that believed in him enough to hand him a six-year contract at age 55 is something else.

Quitting on the two classes he helped recruit, renegeing on the promise he gave those athletes and their parents that he would coach them through their college careers, may be his largest forfeiture of obligation.

ALSO DO not forget the UM assistant coaches he walked out on and left hanging high and dry.

I only hope the new head coach has more sense of responsibility than that which Saban espoused so eloquently with the Hurricanes.

"What you're talking about," Saban said after Miami beat Auburn, 17-15, there this year, "is character."

What are we talking about now, Lou Saban? And, while we're at it, whatever became of the honor of the Long Gray Line at West Point?

They knew Saban had four years to go on his UM contract. Yet Army did not even observe the most basic amenity of asking Miami's permission to talk with Saban.

If Cadets had been as careless in honoring their personal four-year service contracts beyond graduation as Saban is in this instance, might he be Japanese and German territory now. I don't know if Saban knew last Friday, when I talked with him, that he was going to take the Army job. Certainly, he didn't sound like it.

juniors who can play for us, but 11 or 12 sophomores coming up, so next season's freshmen are going to have to carry as much of the load as this year's freshmen did ... We are going to have to go outside Dade and Broward County to find the big offensive linemen we need ...

I've tried every way I know, within myself, to explain his splitting. The closest thing I can find to a connection is the UM's failure to draw fans — only 83,912 for four home games — against Florida State (25,003), Utah State (25,702), San Diego State (17,468) and Syracuse (15,739). Once, at a more or less private meeting this season, he exploded: "We've got to get some people out there!"

But the Florida State game was televised in South Florida, and Saban should know that Utah State and San Diego State and Syracuse aren't exactly big draws.

He knew, in fact, everything there was to know when he took the job.

That's why the University of Miami opened its purse-strings as it had for no other coach, including Fran Curci, who also pulled up stakes in 1972 after only two years on a self-perpetuating five-year contract. The UM guaranteed Saban in excess of $50,000 a year when, frankly, he was not in considerable demand elsewhere.

I know everybody wants to advise the Army. My two cents' worth is this: Don't count on building any long-range programs around Lou Saban. He's a quitter.

What's the old saying, the game must go on. It did at the Cotton Bowl this week as even the officials bundled up while....

Twins' owner breaks off Carew parlay

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Owner Calvin Griffith of the Minnesota Twins has suspended contract negotiations with Rod Carew, saying that the slugger first baseman probably would be better off with the San Francisco Giants and admitting that the Twins can't afford him.

"We're just not going to be able to pay Rod what he's entitled to," Griffith said Friday at a press conference to formally announce the signing of relief pitcher Mike Marshall.

"I think Rod can make the best deal for himself with the Giants," Griffith added.

Carew vetoed a trade to San Francisco last month which would have brought Mike Ivie, Jim Dwyer and pitcher Phil Natsu to the Twins.

The Twins then would have given Natsu to the New York Mets to complete the Jerry Koosman deal.

"It's a hard thing for me," said Griffith, referring to his decision to part with Carew after 12 seasons in Minnesota.

"He came to our farm system as a kid, developed with us and has thrilled thousands of fans here."

Hardy fans, despite icicles, visible on the seats, came bundled up to withstand the biting cold of 20 mph winds out of the north and a minus nine chill factor....

New Year blows up in Bearcat coach's face

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ed Badger started the new year off with a bang, but he never expected it to explode in his face.

First, he went into 1979, still trying to realize the effects of a two-year probation leveled against the basketball program by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

All the charges were from before Badger arrived on the scene here this year.

Then Thursday, the new Bearcat coach was forced to make shifts in his lineup because of the suspensions of Lionel Harvey and Keith Hemans.

Both players were involved in an incident in St. Louis involving an alleged break-in at a hotel gift shop.

All the merchandise was later recovered and Jenike said restitution would be made.

No one else has admitted being a part of the incident at the gift shop at the St. Louis hotel.

"I had a team meeting and I confronted the players," Badger said. "I said 'This is the time for anybody else to step forward.' No one else stepped forward. No one was accused by the two kids. And I'm not going to be the judge."

Badger was asked why the players were even out of their room at 3:30 a.m. when the security guard saw someone in the gift shop.

"I don't have a specific curfew on the night of a game," Badger said. "I understand how it takes time to unwind afterward. I think it's not sensible to tell them to be in bed at 12 o'clock when we don't get out of the arena until almost 11. I don't think you can spend 24 hours a day with the kids."

And they were rewarded with the most exciting bowl day finish of them all as Notre Dame rallied to nip Houston, 35-34. (Staff photos)

Leaping Lou vows to stay at Army

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Saban, a notorious job hopper but a noted recruiter, insisted Friday that he planned to remain at West Point as Army's football coach of the U.S. Military Academy and hoped to resurrect Army's faltering program "so possibly we can go to a bowl game."

"There is where I intend to stay," the emotional 57-year-old Saban said at a press conference formally introducing him as the 28th football coach in Army's football history, a job left vacant when Homer Smith was fired last month.

But then, in perhaps typical Saban fashion, he left himself an opening. "Times change," he said. "A man must do what he thinks is right ..."

"At this moment, I am sure I am the coach at the U.S. Military Academy, and I am proud of it," he added, again trying to emphasize that Army would be the last stop on a coaching odyssey that has seen him coach collegiately at Case Institute, Northwestern, and the University of Miami (Fla.), and professionally with the Buffalo Bills (twice), Boston Patriots and Denver Broncos. He also was athletic director at Miami and the University of Cincinnati (for 18 days) — all within the past 29 years.

ASKED ABOUT his continual hopping, Saban said, "If you look at the record, it's probably true. My record shows that I have done it."

"But I hope to stay at the Academy until they put me to pasture. It's a big pasture," he said, then laughed when he realized that he had made a bit of a play on words with the name of Lt.

Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, superintendent of the Academy.

"I'm sure this is going to be my final stop," he said. "I'm sure I'm going to enjoy this. It's different than anything I've ever done. At the Academy, football is not uppermost in the minds of the students and the administrators; education is, and so is producing men to serve the country."

"Yes, it bothers me to be called a 'quitter,'" he replied in answer to another question. "But they can say what they want. I'm sure it will blow over."

"As much as I hated to leave the University of Miami, I think it was the wisest thing to do now. I don't have many years left. There are many reasons why I decided to make the change. One, I was very impressed with the Academy the first time I visited it last week. The other reasons are personal."

Saban, whose contract at Army reportedly is for more than four years at an estimated $50,000 per year, admitted that he was aware of Army's recent downfall in football. The Cadets have had only one winning season in the past six years and only three since 1968. In addition, they lost four of five games to arch-rival Navy under Smith.

But it was the same situation when he began at Miami in 1977. The first year, the Hurricanes, playing a tough schedule were 3-8. Last year, they improved to 6-5, their first winning season since 1974.

"Some people like rebuilding automobiles," Saban said. "I like rebuilding football programs."

Wadkins goes 3-under to lead at Monterey

MONTEREY, Cal. — Bobby Wadkins shot a 3-under-par 68 at the Laguna Seca course Friday and jumped into a 3-stroke lead after 54 holes of the $100,000 Monterey golf tournament.

But the show-stealing round of the day was a 5-under-par 66 by Amy Alcott, one of four women's tour pros competing against the men in the unique, non-tour event for men and women on three courses.

She played the Rancho Canada-East course and broke the women's course record by 7 strokes, but was 14 strokes off the lead.

"This was the lowest round I've ever had," the Californian said, but added, "I didn't prove anything, because I wasn't trying to prove anything."

She hit 17 greens in regulation and recorded six birdies.

Wadkins, winner of the European Open in his last tournament of 1978, will be shooting for another title in Sunday's final round, scheduled for the Laguna Seca course. First-place is worth $20,000.

Wadkins' 54-hole total was a 9-under-par 205 over the three Monterey Peninsula courses. Spyglass Hill, where several second-round leaders stumbled Friday, is par 72.

Three strokes back of Wadkins at 208 was rookie pro Mike Brannan from nearby Salinas. The two-time California Amateur champion who earned his PGA tournament card last fall fired a 68 at Rancho Canada Friday.

The current state amateur champ, Bob Clappett of Carmel Valley, and two-time PGA champion Dave Stockton were in a group tied at 209.

Both Clappett, 18, and Stockton shot 70 at Laguna Seca in the third round.

Walsh denies 49ers offer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stanford Coach Bill Walsh said Friday he had not been offered the head coaching job of the San Francisco 49ers and did not intend to leave the college ranks, despite published reports he would do so.

"I have not been offered any employment by any National Football League club," Walsh said by phone from his Palo Alto, Calif., home. "And obviously I have not accepted any employment and I am not seeking any employment. It's that simple." The same reports also had 49er General Manager Joe Thomas being fired along with Coach Fred O'Connor. Reached in Hawaii, Thomas said owner Eddie DeBartolo Jr. had told him recently that his job was not in jeopardy and to ignore conjecture to the contrary.

"Because of my close relationship with Eddie, I feel sure that he would have contacted me first ... if he planned to make a change," Thomas said in Hawaii, where he is scouting the Hula Bowl. "So I must assume I am still the general manager of the 49ers since I consider Ed DeBartolo to be a man of his word."

However, Thomas did say if he got the ax, he would not be out of a job long. "Someone else will hire Joe Thomas," he told ABC's Dave Diles. "I don't have to defend myself; my record does that. I've built winners wherever I've been. "They've (49ers) have been in the league for 30 years and haven't had a champion. In that time, I'd have gotten one if I'd had to steal it. Trouble, is they've become used to mediocrity."

Walsh's and Thomas' comments followed a flurry of reports that O'Connor would be replaced by Walsh and Thomas by either Don Klosterman, general manager of the Los Angeles Rams, or Dan Mansperger, Seattle Seahawk director of personnel. Sources with the 49ers have said that a news conference will be held next week to announce unspecified changes in the organization. When asked if he would be at that news conference, Walsh replied: "I'm not going to predict where I will or won't be. I'm not going to rule out anything."

Madden retirement was decided 3 weeks ago

OAKLAND (AP) — "I'll guarantee you one thing. The last game I ever coach will be with the Oakland Raiders," John Madden said three weeks ago.

That statement, made in the locker room after the Raiders beat the Minnesota Vikings on the final weekend of the National Football League season, came when Madden was asked about reports he'd be lured to the New York Giants as coach and general manager.

The man who coached the Raiders 10 seasons, taking them to seven division titles and one Super Bowl championship, already had made up his mind to retire from coaching. He told Al Davis, the team's managing general partner, of the decision the day after Christmas.

"They were the 10 happiest years of my life, and I want to be remembered for 10 great years," Madden said Thursday when he formally announced his retirement and said he had no intention of working for any other NFL team.

THE RAIDERS and Giants have the only head coaching vacancies in the NFL now, but there may be another next week.

Edward DeBartolo Jr., owner of the San Francisco 49ers, plans to hold a news conference Monday or Tuesday in San Francisco. The main question is whether Joe Thomas, general manager of the team which finished 2-14 this season, will remain in his job, but Fred O'Connor, who finished the season as interim head coach, is on shaky ground, too.

A published report Friday said Thomas would be ousted and that Stanford Coach Bill Walsh would move to the 49ers.

Had Madden not made it so emphatic that, with ulcers gnawing at his stomach, he was through with coaching, his name would surely have been thrown into speculation on the 49ers' situation.

Tom Flores, an assistant on Madden's staff since 1972, is being mentioned as the most logical choice to take over as head coach, and he said Thursday, "I'd be lying if I said I was not interested. I'm very interested, and I think I can handle it."

John Madden... coaching career over.

BUT IN 1969, when Davis named a successor to John Rauch, who had resigned, there was a surprise choice in Madden, who had been a Raiders' assistant for two years.

"Al Davis took a chance on me when I was 32 years' old," Madden recalled. "I was not only an unknown, I was a young unknown."

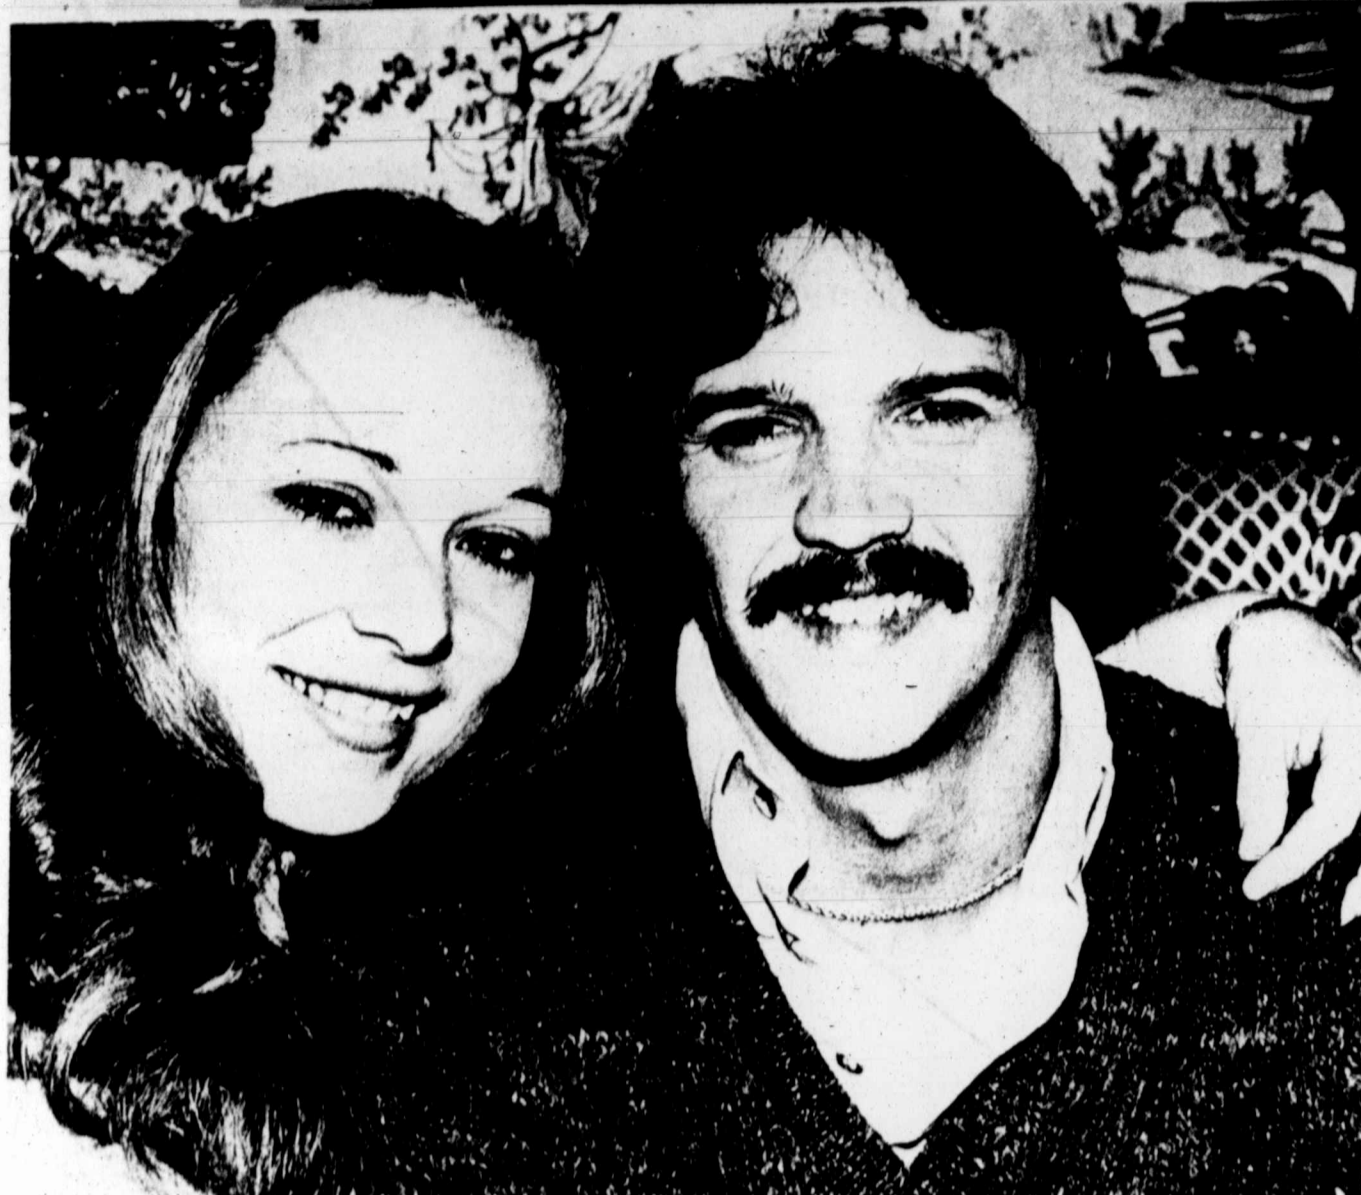

And now, after leaving as one of the most successful coaches in NFL history, he says there's no way he'll go into competition against Davis and the Raiders.

"I'll always be an Oakland Raider," he said Thursday, and Davis promised him a position with the team if Madden wants to stay in football.

It was college football's last gasp of the season — millions of holiday-idled buffs glued to their TV sets, the screen clogged with marching bands, skimpily attired majorettes, creaked legions banging helmets against fragile flesh.

High hysteria and bitter disappointments. Heroes and goats — enough to go around. Here's a bleary-eyed lookback at the weekend's college bowl madmen:

HERO: Joe Paterno, the professorial coach of Penn State who saw his national title hopes dashed by a stubborn Alabama 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl. No alibis, he said, "We were outplayed and outcoached."

GOAT: Woody Hayes of Ohio State, who never learned the art of losing gracefully. To him, football always has been a war. Players are pawns on the field, to be pushed and manipulated toward a single goal — "winning isn't everything, it's the only thing." Like his idol, General Patton, who slapped an invalid soldier in a hospital bed, old Woody ended his career in disrepute by slugging a Clemson player guilty of intercepting a pass that sealed a 17-15 victory in the Gator Bowl.

DOUBLE-HORNED GOAT: Broadcasters Keith Jackson and Ara Parseghian of ABC, who "didn't see a thing" although the Hayes incident was visible to the world on their screen and monitors. Confused fans had to wait until the next day to find out what really happened.

HEROES: Alabama's defensive back Don McNeal, who thwarted a sure Penn State score by smashing Scott Fitzkee out of bounds on the 1 yard line in a one-in-a-million defensive play, and linebacker Barry Krauss, who stopped the Lions' two subsequent smashes at the goal from the 1. This was a game won in the trenches — and Bear Bryant's head.

GOAT: Paterno's board of strategy that failed to notice an extra man on the field when a shanked Alabama punt went out of bounds on the Tide 20 late in the game — the mental error nullifying a Penn State chance to tie or win the game.

HERO: Billy Sims, Oklahoma, a driving, squirming dervish, who measured up to his Heisman Trophy credentials by hammering out 134 yards and two touchdowns in the Sooner's 31-24 triumph over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl. "The best runner I've seen in college all year," said O.J. Simpson.

GOAT: Coach Bill Yeoman of Houston, who ordered his team to go for a first down on fourth-and-one instead of punting with the ball on Houston's 29 and 35 seconds to play. The strategy backfired, allowing Notre Dame to rally for a last-second touchdown and an unbelievable 35-34 comeback victory in the Cotton Bowl.

HERO: Joe Unis, Notre Dame placekicker, who, after a bad snap ruined a conversion early in the game, kicked the extra point — not once, but twice — that gave the Irish their last tick triumph. "I didn't have time to think about being nervous," acknowledged Unis.

GOAT: Head linesman Gilbert Marchman, who failed to call a fumble when Southern California's Charles White coughed up the ball before crossing the goal line for the touchdown that finally decided the Trojans' 17-10 victory over Michigan in the Rose Bowl. TV reruns showed White clearly lost the ball short of the goal and umpire Don Mason signalled fumble, but the TD call stuck. This tainted touchdown won for the Trojans but may have cost them the No. 1 ranking in the postbowl polls.

HERO: Terry Dils, Stanford, the season's No. 1 passer with 2,943 yards, turned three Georgia fumbles and a short punt into 25 points in a six-minute, 13-second span for a comeback 25-22 triumph in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

GOAT: The NCAA, which lacks the wisdom to see that college football cries for a postseason playoff system to determine a national champion.

HEROES: Those armchair quarterbacks who refused to budge or blink during the holiday bowl marathon and now are "getting the red out" for the National Football League playoffs and Super Bowl coming up. A rare breed who dies hard.

Weese okay after surgery

DENVER (AP) — Reserve quarterback Norris Weese has undergone successful surgery on his right knee at a Denver hospital, Denver Broncos officials said.

The Friday surgery was designed to tighten ligaments in the knee. Weese suffered a dislocated right kneecap earlier this year that sidelined him for several games.

Montana likes Hula weather

HONOLULU (AP) — Notre Dame quarterback Joe Montana, remembering his team's comeback in 8-below-zero weather on New Year's Day, has thawed out in preparation for Saturday's 33rd annual Hula Bowl football classic.

"I don't think there is any way you can prepare yourself for that kind of weather," said Montana, whose team beat Houston in Dallas on the Cotton Bowl's frozen turf.

Montana is one of three East quarterbacks in the East-West clash at Aloha Stadium. He will team with All-American quarterbacks Chuck Fusina of Penn State and Rick Leach of Michigan as the East tries to snap a two-game losing streak.

Montana completed more than 50 percent of his passes during his career with the Irish, while Fusina holds the 1978 Maxwell Award as the country's outstanding college football player. Leach is the leading touchdown producer in NCAA history — with 28 this season alone.

THE WEST won the classic last year, 42-22. This year, the West hopes to offset the East quarterback trio with a talented backfield of runners as UCLA's Theotis Brown, Iowa State's Dexter Green, Arkansas' Ben Cowins and Nebraska's Rick Berns.

It's a quartet that has accounted for over 8.5 miles in all-purpose yards during their collegiate careers. Brown is the second leading all-time UCLA rusher and is the only Bruin to rush for 200 or more yards. Green ranks fourth on the all-time list of Rushers, while Cowins rushed for over 1,000 yards this season — only the second Southwest Conference player to rush over that mark in each of his three seasons. Berns has scored 30 career touchdowns for the Cornhuskers.

Yippie Aron Kay of New York City, right, wearing striped shirt, reaches out of crowd to hit Sen. Daniel Moynihan in the face with a pie during his 1976 campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate. Kay, who believes a man's pie should suit his personality, is alive and throwing and claims some 14 political pie hits. (AP Laserphoto)

Hippie-Yippie Pieman still tossing missiles

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAC

NEW YORK (AP) - Back in the news with a late-night assault on the owner of a chic Manhattan disco, the Hippie-Yippie Pieman is alive and throwing.

Aron Kay, the best known among what's left of the pot-smoking, anti-establishment Yippie Party, claims 14 pie hits on prominent political figures in the last 5 1/2 years.

This week, he made his latest crusty maneuver on a non-politico, Studio 54 owner Steve Rubell. Kay's aim was off, though, managing just to dirty the disco king's custom-made ski jacket.

According to Kay, Rubell's crowd of "ritzy decadents" could easily "fork over $1,000 so we could have more smoke-ins and we could get more literature out."

But there'll be no donation from Rubell, who termed the Wednesday morning episode "funny" and declined to press charges.

Kay hasn't always been that lucky. He's frequently arrested, although the charges are almost always dropped. The lone smudge was the $150 fine Kay paid on a harassment conviction for an October 1977 attack on former CIA head William Colby.

Among Kay's other successes are Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, Watergate figures E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, and former New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame.

Kay believes a man's pie should suit his personality. For Beame, who at the time of the August 1977 attack was waging a reelection campaign, it was apple crumb. "I figured he deserved it because he was the crummiest politician in the Big Apple at the time."

Harvard professor-turned drug guru Timothy Leary, whom Kay accused of turning in associates to legal authorities, recently received a cheese cake for being "a rat."

In 1976, when Moynihan was campaigning for the Senate and Kay thought he wanted to do too little for blacks, he beamed Moynihan with a mocha cream "to give him a change in complexion."

Rubell wasn't Kay's first non-political hit. About two years ago "these girls at a Catholic high school paid me

Frogmen recover body of pilot

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - Navy frogmen recovered the body of a student pilot from the bottom of Corpus Christi Bay Friday, more than a week after the crash of a jet trainer.

The body of Ensign Robert J. Crossan, 22, of Landenberg, Penn., was found about 40 yards from the wreckage, said Navy spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Mary Cooperman.

"He apparently ejected from the aircraft at low level," she said.

The body of the instructor, Lt. Cmdr. John A. Kasting, 34, of Kingsville, Texas, was recovered soon after the crash of the T-44 aircraft. A U.S. Coast Guard rescue helicopter was forced to make an emergency landing in the water because a parachute shroud became tangled in its rear rotor.

Big discovery

Nostalgia, nostalgia. Everything that we seem better than anything that is, to most of us. We go for Tiffany lamps and Currier and Ives prints, and now it's "in" to have a beard.

But we don't go all the way.

Why? Why doesn't the present measure up? Could it be we who are at fault, at least partly, for the buildup of pressures and the breakdown of moral values today?

If we're going on a nostalgia trip, let's take it all the way. Let's make the big discovery that people made back in the old days which is just as valid now as it was then . . .

the Church.

Ties with China draw mixed church reaction

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The establishment of U. S. diplomatic relations with Communist China has stirred mixed reactions in the churches, but the leadership of mainline Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations long has favored it.

Their representatives hailed the step by President Carter as greatly enhancing "the prospect of peace in the world." Some Christian leaders said it also increased the eventual possibilities for resumption of church work in China.

But there was some individual dissent and the nation's Roman Catholic bishops never have taken an official position on the matter, although informed assessments were that most of them favored recognition.

Most major Protestant and Orthodox bodies, acting jointly through the National Council of Churches, have been on record for 12 years for steps toward normalizing relations between the two countries.

"ON THE WHOLE the reaction among church leaders to Carter's action has been very positive," said the Rev. Franklin Woo, a Chinese American, a long-time missionary in Hong Kong and now head of the National Council's China desk.

"But there's a lot of work remaining to be done in grass-roots education to get people to look at the situation historically. We've been in a cold-war legacy for almost 30 years, and we have to break out of it."

"There also is continuing concern for the people of Taiwan, that they have a right to a say in their future and that they not become political victims between Peking and Washington."

An uproar of criticism hit the Council when its governing board of denominational representatives in 1966 first called for improved relations with China and study of the possibility of full diplomatic ties.

Carter's decision to take that step was seen as culmination of a process initiated on a national organized basis by the churches.

RELIGION

THEY'VE BEEN WORKING over the years "toward better understanding of the people of China," the Council's general secretary Claire Randall and president William P. Thompson said in a letter to Carter applauding his action.

They said normalization of full diplomatic relations "is a necessary next step in a long and arduous journey toward empathetic understanding" between peoples of the two countries, and added:

"We believe the prospect of peace in the world, and of Asia in particular are greatly enhanced by your decision."

They said U. S. church leaders recently have been exploring with some mainland Chinese Christians and other Asian Christians "what might be the future contribution of Christian people to China."

In a recent conference on that subject sponsored by the Lutheran Church in America, mission experts said Christian missionaries will have to earn the right to proclaim the gospel in China.

DECLARING THE CHURCH had lost its credibility in China, the Rev. Dr. James A. Scherer of Chicago's Lutheran School of Theology said there can be no church "approach to China without regaining that credibility."

However, the Rev. George H. Hays, the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board's secretary for East Asia, predicts that developing pressures soon will make it necessary for China officially to recognize the presence of Christians in that country.

While Catholic bishops have not taken a formal stand on diplomatic relations with China, the National Catholic News Service reports that most Catholic officials interviewed support Carter's move.

The Rev. Ronald Saucii, head of media relations for the Maryknoll Fathers who served in Hong Kong for five years, said restoration of diplomatic ties has "great potentials for missionaries to return to China," especially in light of the large number of students China is sending abroad to study in the west.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the Rev. Raymond de Jaeger, spokesman for the Taiwan Archdiocese, assailed Carter's action as breaking a mutual defense treaty with Taiwan and challenged his authority to do it without Senate confirmation.

A fundamentalist radio preacher, the Rev. Carl McIntire of Collinswood, N. J., said Carter had acted to deliver Taiwan to Red China, to "betray a faithful ally and surrender to the demands of an implacable Communist enemy."

However, support for the new diplomatic ties came not only through joint action of denominations in the National Council, but from several of them individually, including the United Church of Christ.

Its president, the Rev. Dr. Avery D. Post, and the Rev. David M. Stowe, head of its Board for World Ministries, welcomed Carter's action as "long overdue," noting the church had urged it in 1971.

Christian churches, they said, must stand ready to share in "the process of communication which now appears to be opening up."

Christian Living School to kick off Sunday night

The 28th annual School of Christian Living, sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches, begins Sunday night, continuing through Thursday.

This year's school will be held in Trinity Presbyterian Church, West Louisiana street near Andrews Highway. Dr. William K. Hedrick, minister of Trinity Church, will serve as dean of the 1979 school.

Well-known educators and theologians make up the faculty for the school. They include Dr. Ruth Tiffany Barnhouse, Dr. Andrew Edington, Dr. John C. Narcisco Jr., and Dr. W.J.A. Power. The latter three have been participants in previous Christian Living schools. Barnhouse is teaching here for the first time.

Barnhouse currently serves as attending Staff Psychologist at McLean Hospital and as clinical assistant in psychiatry at Harvard University, as well as adjunct professor of pastoral theology at the Episcopal Seminary in Alexandria, Va. She will teach a course titled "Biblical Views of Human Sexuality."

Edington, a former president of Schreiner College at Kerrville, also is a former moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Texas and is in wide demand as a lecturer and speaker. The course which he will teach at the School of Christian Living is titled "A New Testament Perspective."

Narcisco is professor of psychology and director of the Counseling and Personal Development Resources Center at Trinity University, San Antonio. He has worked extensively with church, educational and business institutions, conducting seminars in human relationships. The course which he is to lead here next week is titled "The Me in 'Us'."

The fourth teacher for the upcoming school, Dr. W.J.A. Power, currently is professor of Old Testament at Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University in Dallas. He was ordained a priest in the Episcopal Diocese of Dallas in 1973. He had been named Outstanding Professor by SMU in 1971. His study course at next week's school is to be "The Book of Genesis."

The School of Christian Living will get under way with a worship service and preview of courses at 7 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of Trinity Presbyterian Church. The first class session for each of the four courses will take place between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Another preview of courses will be held in the sanctuary beginning at 9 a.m. Monday, with first morning class sessions scheduled from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Evening class sessions will continue between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Morning class sessions will continue between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Persons may elect to take one study course in the evening sessions, and another course during the morning class sessions. Registration fee is $7 per person, or $10 for a family. Students may enroll for $3 each.

Persons enrolling for only one course will pay $3, or $5 per family. Persons enrolling for a course or courses may register Sunday night during the opening ceremonies, or during the preview on Monday morning.

In addition to the dean of the school, Dr. Hedrick, other officials of the 1979 School of Christian Living include Maggie Artley, registrar; the Rev. Jerry Wyatt, publicity chairman; Russell Withrow, finance chairman; Sally Secor, book store director; Joan Cramer and Esta Geron, hostesses; and LaVeta O'Donnell, director of the nursery.

St. Nicholas to host two visiting speakers

St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave., will be host to two visiting speakers next week. Both are members of the faculty of the annual School of Christian Living which begins Sunday night in Midland's Trinity Presbyterian Church.

At St. Nicholas' 9:30 a.m. Sunday service, the featured speaker will be Dr. John C. Narcisco Jr., who will speak on "General Perspectives: The Church."

Dr. Narcisco, who has taught at a previous School of Christian Living here, and more recently lectured in the city under sponsorship of the Junior League of Midland Inc., is from San Antonio. He is professor of psychology and director of counseling at Trinity University in that city. The public is invited to hear his message Sunday morning.

Tuesday noon, St. Nicholas' parish will be host to Dr. W.J.A. Power of Dallas at a luncheon and special program.

Dr. Power is professor of Old Testament in Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University. He is an ordained priest in the Episcopal Church.

For his Tuesday appearance at St. Nicholas' Church, he will speak on "The Church and the Bible." His talk will be preceded by a luncheon in the parish hall, for which reservations are necessary. Cost of the meal will be $1 per person and reservations should be made through the parish office, 694-8856.

Revival services to begin Sunday at Christian Church of Midland

Revival services will begin Sunday at the Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely Ave., continuing there through Jan. 12.

Dr. Wayne Shaw of Lincoln, Ill., will be in the pulpit for the evangelistic emphasis. Hugh Harris of Iraan will be and Bible teacher for more than 25 years. He holds a Ph.D. from Indiana University. He taught at Lincoln Christian College in Illinois for 12 years.

Shaw, the guest speaker, has been a preacher

Christian Church sets birthday

Memorial Christian Church at 1001 Andrews highway is making plans for a birthday celebration. The congregation will mark the church's 25th anniversary at Sunday worship services.

First meetings of the Memorial Christian congregation were held in January, 1954, with 18 families participating. Meetings were initially held in West Elementary School until the church's permanent edifice was erected at the corner of Andrews Highway and West Cuthbert street.

The congregation now includes approximately 500 members and has previously celebrated the retirement of its capital indebtedness. The anniversary service this Sunday will emphasize thanksgiving for the past, the need for responsibility in the present and anticipation of the future.

A major accomplishment of the Memorial congregation has been the growth of the church's outreach ministry. In 1977, the latest year for which a complete report is available, Memorial Christian Church ranked 17th among Christian (Disciples of Christ) churches in the U.S. and Canada in size of contributions to outreach causes.

Dr. John Long, the current minister to the Memorial congregation, is the fourth pastor of the church. The Rev. Harold Glen Brown served from 1954 to 1957; the Rev. Clyde Foltz was minister from 1957 to 1962, and the Rev. Robert Gartman served from 1962 to 1973. Dr. Long came to the church in 1973 from Pecan Springs Christian Church at Austin. The Rev. J. Allen Lowe currently serves the congregation as minister of program and nurture.

Winter Bible Conference to begin

Dr. Hudson Amerding will be the teacher for the annual Winter Bible Conference next week at First Baptist Church.

The conference will begin at the Sunday morning and evening worship services at the church. Dr. Amerding also will speak at 12 noon and 7 p.m. Monday and at 9:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday. A final conference session is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The various conference events will be open to all interested persons in the city and surrounding area.

An alumnus of Wheaton College, Dr. Amerding returned to that school in 1961 as professor of history.

He served as provost from early 1963 until his inauguration in January, 1965. Previously he was dean and acting president of Gordon College in Wenham, Mass. Wheaton College is a coeducational liberal arts college near Chicago.

Amerding graduated cum laude from Wheaton in 1941 with a degree in history. He earned his M.A. in international affairs from Clark University and received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. He is a former president of the National Association of Evangelicals and is president of the World Evangelical Fellowship. He also is a member of the board of trustees of Columbia Bible College.

Grace Lutheran Church to install new congregational church officers

Grace Lutheran Church, 3009 W. Golf Course Road, will install new congregational church officers during the Sunday morning worship hour.

The installation ceremony will be conducted by the Rev. Donald V. Hafemann, pastor. His sermon topic for the service will be "Wise Men Still Seek the Christ Child," with text from Matt. 2, 1-11. Special music will be presented by the adult choir of the church, under direction of Sarah Macina. Villa

Slivinskis will be the organist.

Terry Clay will be installed as congregational president, and Arlen Edgar will be installed as vice president. Lee Grosshans is secretary and James Geltemeyer is treasurer.

Members of the board of elders to be installed are John Horsley, Kay Lewis, Walter Teinert, Don Hanson, W.B. Johnston, Dick Ragan, Allen

Cecil, Floyd Jarnagin and Jerry Johnston.

Also to be installed are members of the board of stewardship, board of trustees, board of education and board of missions, along with leaders of the Grace Altar Guild, the LWML Grace Guild and the LWML Parish Workers.

The Sunday morning installation service will be open to the public.

Swift turnover in popes tops list of religion news events of 1978

By The Associated Press

Several religion-reporting groups have come up with their lists of the top religion stories of 1978, and without exception, they chose the swift turnover in Roman Catholic popes as the No. 1 news event.

It got that rating from the Religion Newswriters Association, made up of journalists who cover religion for the secular press, from the Catholic News Service, which serves Catholic publications, and from Religion News Service, which serves both secular and religious journals.

Ranked second was the collective cult suicide in Guyana.

Despite the Jonestown murder-suicide's horrifying and sensational aspect, the religion writers saw greater long-range significance in the election following two successive papal deaths — of Pope John Paul II, the first Polish pope in history and the first non-Italian in 455 years.

The second-place listings of the Guyana mass suicides and murders noted that the affair drew increased pressure for government restraints on the modern proliferation of cults.

Other top-rated religion stories that were cited include:

—Three heads of state, U.S. President Jimmy Carter, a Baptist; Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, a Jew, and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, a Moslem, credit religion as a factor in their preliminary Camp David accord on the Middle East.

—The World Council of Churches' controversial $85,000 grant to the Patriotic Front of Zimbabwe drew fire from several member denominations, some of which suspended membership.

Speer family to present concert

The Speer family, frequently referred to as "America's First Family of Gospel Music," will come to Midland for a Monday concert.

The musical event will be in the Assembly of Christ Fellowship at 409 W. Pine Ave., beginning at 7:30 p.m. There will be no charge for admission, it was announced.

A Speer family concert is described as inspirational entertainment at its best. Each encounter with this supremely musical family leaves the listener with a lasting witness. To meet the spiritual needs of an audience through music is the concept which has guided Dad Speer's career from its beginning in the 1920s. Now, third generation Speers continue to share their music with all age groups. The ensemble's repertoire includes old favorites as well as contemporary songs and arrangements that have introduced younger audiences to the highly-praised "Speer Sound."
