

Martin County farmer still backing lobby

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

E.D. "Wimp" Holcomb has been a self-employed farmer the past 28 years. The rural Martin County resident said recently, "It's the same story now as last year — not enough price for the products."

He's one of many members of the American Agricultural Movement who, for more than a year now, have told Congress and President Carter that farmers must receive "a fair profit in return for their investment."

The movement invaded the High Plains and the Permian Basin a year ago, but last year's tractorcade to Washington, D.C., did little to aid the farmers, Holcomb said.

As a result, on Saturday, members from the West Texas area will set out from Lubbock, stop overnight in Big Spring, pass through Abilene and then go on to Atlanta, Ga., to Washington to give President Carter and Congress their message anew.

American Agricultural Movement leaders have said they expect to arrive in Washington, D.C., in early February.

Some members agree that the year-long capital lobbying effort did help a little, saying the Carter administration adjusted the farm program upward slightly, while citizens got a crash course in agricultural economics and the financial problems of farmers.

The movement spread to an estimated 25 states, said organizers in Colorado recently. Colorado-based movement leaders said the purpose of this second tractorcade will be to pressure the president to administer the existing farm bill at a higher level.

Holcomb said farmers want commodity loan levels raised to 90 percent of parity, an action Secretary of Agriculture Bob Berglund is authorized to take under the current farm bill.

A lifelong West Texan, Holcomb said: "Prices for farm products have prospered some, but inflation has cut into a lot of that."

He said farm product prices "are just too low to cover the costs of production."

He explained that parity is a figure based on an old U.S. Department of Agriculture formula which states what various agribusiness products should be.

"The latest figures last week said parity should be 92-cents per pound for cotton, and we're receiving 54 and 55-cents per pound now," said Holcomb.

"Why? They say we're getting a surplus of cotton," he declared, referring to Berglund.

"They also say we need about 10 million acres of cotton next year and estimates are there will be 14 to 15 million acres of cotton planted. That's because grain farmers see a better price next year for cotton than for grain," Holcomb said.

He said cotton farmers "made a pretty good crop" in 1977. However, he said, the average profit amounted to 40 cents a pound.

The federal government, he said, sets certain prices for various products "but sometimes the market for these products is just not high enough. And the banks are in a hurry for farmers to pay off their operating loans each fall."

"So farmers go ahead and sell their products, even though the price may be too cheap," he said. "We could hardly make it one year and do

What's plush to some is barren to others.

Or, to put it another way, the green valley often looks more verdant from afar than it does once you've arrived.

But not always.

Take a passing glance at Harmon Hann, an artistic promoter who, like a hawk, can see what others can't.

His vision, if not a matter of survival, is on the successful life.

Hann sees the verdant pastures in Midland. But his problem is getting here.

"I've always wanted to live in Midland, because Midland has activity in it," said Hann, who is trying to steal away from Hobbs, N.M., after engineering a successful promotion scheme in scenic Marfa.

He helped put myth and romance back into the old but renewed Paisano Hotel in that charmingly quaint ranching community of Marfa. The Paisano (countryman, compatriot) had sort of a heyday in the mid-1950s.

That's when the hotel was frequented by Elizabeth Taylor and James Dean and others from the cast of "Giant," which was filmed in large measure in and around Marfa.

Hann generated about all he could out of the Marfa project, and, the Irishman that he is, hit the road for green (or greener) pasture.

"I'm basically an artist," said Hann, "and I've got to have people to sell it, too."

He does pen and ink sketches, etchings, oil murals and the such. His subjects vary, but often he concentrates on the rustic, such as that reflected in Marfa, which is a mere 26 miles southwest of Alpine.

"Believe me," he said with no intent to be a braggadocio, "I've got a awful lot of material down there."

Now, he's got to transform the ma-

Pickets disrupt work at Gulf's Port Arthur plant

DENVER (AP) — The nation's oil workers were told to report to work today, but at least one facility was disrupted by pickets. The threat of a nationwide walkout by 60,000 refinery workers remained "very real," the union president said.

A.F. Grospiron, president of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, delayed calling a strike to give further study to a proposal from Amoco, a company trademark of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Jerry Archuleta, spokesman for the union, said at midmorning that he had heard no reports of any union members going on strike today. He said as far as he knew, all workers were honoring the union's call for them to report to work.

But at Gulf Oil's refinery in Port Arthur, Texas, office workers who belong to the oil workers' union set up pickets shortly after midnight, Gulf spokesman Bill Rinehart said. Archuleta said the picketers belonged to a different union whose contract had also expired.

Rinehart said the company was proceeding with "orderly shutdown procedures and takeover by supervisory personnel" at the plant, which employs 3,000 union workers.

The Gulf plant was apparently the only one affected in the vast petrochemical industry area stretching from Houston 75 miles east to Texas-Louisiana border.

Grospiron said he and the union's 12-member bargaining policy committee would resume discussion of the Amoco offer today.

The increase, if accepted, would appear to exceed President Carter's voluntary wage-fringe benefit guideline, which allows for a 7 percent increase over the life of a contract. But if the union agrees to hold its wage increase to less than 6 percent in the second year of the contract, that could bring the oil workers in line with Carter's guideline.

The voluntary guideline has been the focus of the contract dispute, with the negotiations marking the first major showdown over it.

Traditionally, an agreement with a major oil company is used as a pattern for settling with the rest of the industry. Some 411 contracts were being negotiated locally with 100 companies, and the national union has final approval over those offers.

Despite the order to return to work, picket lines went up after midnight at a Gulf Oil Corp. refinery in Port Arthur, Texas, and others were anticipated.

Most earlier offers to the OCAW called for a 7 percent wage increase in the first year of the new contract, and 6 percent the second year.

Gas price hike on council agenda

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writer

Midland City Council will make an attempt to hold off a gas price increase for another 30 days when it meets at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Council Chambers at City Hall, 300 N. Loraine St.

Pioneer Natural Gas Co. announced in August its proposed 26 percent rate hike. Customer cities joined forces and hired a team to study the proposed increase and what percentage rate hike should be proposed.

Fred Poe, assistant city manager, is on the committee. The City Council is asking for another 30 days, or until Feb. 12, for the committee to finish its study before a rate increase becomes effective, according to City Manager James Brown.

In other business Tuesday, the strip of stores in the block along Wall Avenue and Loraine Street, the same block which will house the city's Exhibit Hall, could be in for relocation. The City Council will consider a resolution authorizing a contract with Edith Wemple, owner, to purchase those lots or have the property condemned.

The city owns the land on that block with the exception of those strips of stores, and has been negotiating with the Wemple family since May 1978 to purchase that land.

When the council announced negotiations were starting last May, the figure of $454,680 was quoted as the amount the council had agreed the city would pay for the property. The property had been appraised for that value. Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said then.

While the city has been negotiating, work has started on the Exhibit Hall. The area with the strip of stores would be used for extra parking or a park, but the architects have not drawn finished plans for that area. They are awaiting the outcome of the City Council's action.

Concerning the Exhibit Hall, the ## Second day of mourning marked by scattered rioting in Tehran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Sporadic rioting broke out in Tehran today as Iran observed a second day of mourning for the hundreds killed in the past year of demonstrations against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Four persons were reported killed Sunday, the first day of the two-day mourning period, in riots in Tehran and six other cities. One man was reported wounded by police gunfire in Tehran today.

Hundreds of demonstrators roamed through downtown Tehran in small groups, shouting "Down with the shah!" Mobile troops with riot gear moved quickly to disperse the groups as soon as they formed.

Thousands of mourners gathered at Tehran's main cemetery, and the military kept out of sight there.

In the holy city of Qom, 98 miles south of the capital, 100,000 persons marched through the streets, but no violence was reported.

Commerce, disrupted by strikes and a nationwide fuel shortage, was at a standstill for the second straight day.

Hundreds of protesters demanding the shah's abdication set fires and smashed windows Sunday in Tehran. Military police scattered the mobs with tear gas and gunfire, and one person was killed.

After 18 months, investigators confirm mother's suspicions

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

Rose Clara White of Odessa "knew" her son had been killed 18 months ago but it took that long for lawmen to find out she was right.

It wasn't like Johnny Carl White to leave home the way he did on a June evening in 1977, she recalled recently.

He left without saying goodbye to his mother. He left behind him his cars, his gun collection, his pictures, his clothing, his 11-year-old daughter and his wife, Patricia.

Friends and relatives had suspected something was wrong right away. White was never one to leave home or not show up for work without calling someone.

He loved his mother, friends indicated, but he didn't call her the two Christmases since he disappeared.

MRS. WHITE THOUGHT it odd that a man would bring "Sonny's" pet Chihuahua, Tiny, to her home shortly after White disappeared.

Then came the divorce in January of 1978. White had been missing for six months when his wife Pat called Mrs. White to tell her she was getting a divorce.

She was later married to Steven Perrin, a 21-year-old roustabout serving a 10 year probated sentence for a burglary he was convicted of four years ago.

Perrin obtained permission from the Ector County probation office to travel to New Mexico where he was married.

Relatives and friends said White took Perrin under his wing when Perrin was 17 because the youngster had no place to go.

The Ector County Sheriff's Department and an investigator from the state Department of Public Safety were aware of all the facts of the case for more than a year. The trucker had disappeared and family members suspected foul play.

BUT ROSE CLARA White was told there were no big breaks in the investigation.

The woman's patience wore out. A friend consulted with the Ector County District Attorney's Office slightly more than two weeks ago.

Friday, Perrin, who reportedly has confessed to the slaying, led District Attorney John Green, his investigator Jerry Davis and Richard Scott of the county attorney's office to a three-foot deep grave where White's bones were found in a pasture 12 miles southwest of Odessa, near Penwell.

The body of White, who was 39 when he disappeared, finally will be laid to rest sometime this week while the district attorney's office prepares to make a case against Perrin. The Ector County Grand Jury was expected to review his case today.

Rose Clara White and other family members say they are bitter.

They believed all along that "Sonny" had been killed. But they had no proof.

"HIS BONES WOULD still be buried out under that bush, and we never would have found him if it weren't for the Ector County District Attorney's Office," said a Beverly Gressett, White's sister.

"We owe our thanks to the District Attorney's Office. We knew Johnny was dead. But at least we now know where he is. The District Attorney's office did in two weeks what the sheriff's department couldn't do in two years."

District Attorney Green has sharply criticized the Ector sheriff's department in this case, and seems convinced that White would probably have wound up as another unsolved West Texas murder had his office not become involved.

"Apparently they (sheriff's department) had evidence and didn't do anything. I think there was a lot of evidence that suggested foul play. The evidence was there, but the investigation was mishandled," Green said in a telephone interview over the weekend.

Ector County Sheriff Deputy James Brown, the man initially in charge of the White investigation, today declined to comment on Green's remarks.

Sheriff Elton Faught had several staff meetings over the incident. He was unavailable for comment today.

"AND ELDERLY MAN who was a friend of Mrs. White came to our office about two weeks ago and told us the same story the sheriff's department had been told. We checked it out, and there wasn't any doubt in our mind that we had something," Green said.

"I think the sheriff department probably would have eventually closed the file out on this. There wasn't any doubt in my mind that they never did anything and never planned to."

Mrs. Gressett, White's sister, and others had been advised by a DPS investigator during the summer that White was alive and well in some other Texas city and didn't plan to come back because he feared for his life.

The investigator declined to tell Mrs. Gressett where White could be located.

"He assured me that my brother was alive and well," Mrs. Gressett said Saturday.

"I never did believe it was true because my brother wouldn't stay away for about 19 months without calling me. We were very close."

MRS. GRESSETT SAW her brother for the last time on May 24, 1977, the day of their father's funeral.

"He had promised me that day that he would get in touch with me and send some pictures of the funeral. I never heard from him again. I knew that something had happened to him," she said.

Checks by law enforcement officials revealed that White's trucking license had expired and a Social Security number check showed that he had not been paid since his disappearance. These facts were brought out a year ago.

A Seminole law enforcement official who assisted the family in the search said he had been advised by other investigators to disregard the White disappearance because the trucker had a habit of leaving home.

However, Mrs. Gressett and Green say everything seemed to indicate the contrary. White was a reliable worker and family man.

The weapon has not yet been recovered, but Mrs. Gressett said she believes the .22 caliber pistol linked to the single blast to the back of White's head may have been one from his gun collection.

Relatives of the White family are relieved that "Sonny's" fate is now known. But they are frustrated as to why it took so long.

"I guess if you're just poor people, then they're not willing to help you. But I will always remember the District Attorney's office. They went out of their way and found my brother," said Mrs. Gressett.

At least 11 die in incidents tied to winter weather across U.S.

By The Associated Press

The winter elements — freezing rain, sleet, snow, ice and bitter cold — were linked to at least 11 deaths in three states and left thousands without electric power as storms ranged over the nation.

Freezing rain and snow were reported Sunday from Oregon to Arkansas, and the Midwest remained bitterly cold. Milwaukee recorded its highest reading since Jan. 1 — 12 degrees.

Air travel was interrupted in the East and portions of the South due to icy runways and ice-laden aircraft. Fog delayed airline traffic at Philadelphia International Airport for about 3 1/2 hours.

Travelers were advised to use extra care — or simply stay off the roads except in emergencies — from Alabama to New England. A flash flood watch was issued for Connecticut.

In the West, the precipitation wasn't frozen, but still caused plenty of problems. Authorities in Laguna Beach, Calif., worried that heavy rain from a Pacific storm might prove too much for an erosion-control project in fashionable Bluebird alley, where property damage has totaled $15 million since October. The project was completed on Sunday.

Seven people — including six with known heart conditions — died in Ohio when they tried to shovel snow. Dayton was blanketed with 11 inches by Sunday night, and Cincinnati reported six.

A teen-ager was killed on an icy slick Pennsylvania highway. And three cold-related deaths were reported in Wisconsin.

A 5-year-old boy in Iron Ridge, Wis., was killed when motor oil his father was warming on a kitchen stove burst into flame, starting a fire that destroyed the family home, said Fire Chief William Oestreich.

Deputy Coroner Peter Westra of Dodge County said the body of Peter Nennig was found in the ruins of a bathroom, where the boy evidently was overcome by smoke.

Two children were hospitalized with burns. The man, his wife and an infant escaped injury. Oestreich said the father, Frank Nennig, was trying to heat the oil to make his auto engine easier to start.

Police in Milton, Wis., said a man and a woman were found dead on Sunday in a parked van. They apparently were overcome by fumes when they left the engine running to stay warm, authorities said.

Although the sun shone in the West, it remained bitter cold as far south as northern Texas.

Rangers at Yellowstone Park reported that the temperature early Sunday dipped to 56 degrees below zero — 10 degrees short of the all-time low of 66 set in 1933.

Heavy thundershowers were reported from the Gulf Coast states to Virginia and the Carolinas.

Two arrested in connection with burglary of hotel room

Two men were arrested Sunday afternoon in connection with a reported burglary of a hotel room in the Midland Hilton.

Jimmy Mohamed told police the men had gone into room 140 at about 3:45 p.m. and damaged a bed in the room, discharged a fire extinguisher and left the room disarranged, with beer cans scattered on the floor.

Damage to the room was estimated at $65.

Police arrested two men in the 3100 block of West Industrial Avenue.

In other police activity Sunday, a Midland doctor reported drugs valued at $80 were stolen in a burglary of his office.

Dr. Richard G. Klempauer of the 2500 block of Bedford Drive told police that shortly after 10 a.m. someone broke into his office at 503 N. Garfield St., apparently by reaching through broken glass in a door and unlocking the door.

Taken were several vials of hormones, antibiotics, sodium, aneytal and adrenalin.

Police said the lid of the medicine box where the drugs were kept was pruned off.

Henry Culp of 2902 Mariana Ave. told police someone had stolen construction supplies valued at $150 from a new home site in the 3200 block of Park Lane sometime Friday or Saturday.

A 12-by-6-foot window valued at $400 was shattered at the Pryor Shoe Store at 120 W. Main at 8 p.m.

Terry Osborne of 3330 W. Dengar Ave. reported at midnight Saturday someone vandalized his 1970 Pontiac, which was parked at the Exxon Station at 4400 W. Illinois Ave.

Osborne said the windshield was shattered, a tire rim had been thrown through the glass on the rear of the car, a headlight and tail light were broken and the console was torn out of the floorboard.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $595.

Relocation of displaced businesses also among topics for City Council

(Continued from Page 1A) council also is scheduled to consider approving a change order on the structure at its Tuesday meeting.

MidTran, a public transportation system planned for Midland, may come closer to reality if the City Council approves specifications for seven buses and authorizes the advertisement for bids on the vehicles.

General Motors Transportation Inc. designed the "demand-responsive" system for the Tall City. The corporation has obtained local, state and federal funding to get it off the ground sometime this spring.

The council also is scheduled to discuss the need for a street sweeper at Midland Regional Airport. Also on

Warmer weather in Basin forecast, but not for long

The Northeast is going to get some of Midland's cold weather for a few days.

But don't put away your scarfs and gloves yet. The weatherman says there may be more cold weather dropping down into the Permian Basin from Canada later this week.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is forecasting decreasing cloudiness today, with fairer weather tonight and Tuesday.

Tonight's low is expected to be in the middle 20s. It should be warmer Tuesday with the high expected to be in the upper 50s. Winds are expected to be light and variable tonight.

A weather forecaster at the airport, though, said the cold weather, which is pushing up into the northeast, could reappear in the area by Thursday when another cold air mass is expected to move in.

Sunday was a day better spent indoors watching professional football playoffs.

The high temperature reached 29 degrees. The record high for Jan. 7 is 75 degrees set in 1965.

The overnight low was 20 degrees. The record low for today is 10 degrees set in 1967.

Road conditions were reported by city police to be much better Sunday and overnight. The traffic division of the police department reported only four minor accidents from midnight Saturday through 7 a.m. today.

There had been 29 traffic accidents reported from midnight Friday through midnight Saturday and 49 accidents since 7 a.m. Friday.

Warmer weather had swept into the area towns early today.

The ice had melted and road conditions had improved in most parts except in Stanton, where ice still was reported to be on the roads this morning.

The mercury dipped far below the freezing level overnight leaving roads icy across much of Northwest Texas early today although travelers' advisories have been canceled.

Predawn temperatures ranged from one degree above zero at Dalhart and Amarillo, to 37 degrees at both Brownsville and McAllen.

Exxon stations out of gas due to ice

Motorists who were almost out of gas and had been holding off on filling up their vehicles until better weather had been getting a surprise when they pulled into certain Exxon stations in Midland over the weekend.

Exxon has been sold out of gas — all three grades, said one station dealer.

The icy road conditions which have been keeping most motorists off the roads also kept the Exxon delivery trucks holed up, delaying delivery of gas supplies to Midland service stations.

A call to Dallas by one dealer apparently is solving the problem. He was promised his delivery would be in by 1:30 p.m. today.

"We're just doing service jobs and oil changes," said one local dealer, who has been out since Friday afternoon.

Rebels claim control of Cambodia

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam's Cambodian rebel proteges claim complete control of Cambodia after reportedly capturing the capital of Phnom Penh and driving Premier Pol Pot's government into the countryside in a two-week Vietnamese invasion.

Vietnam and its Soviet allies also reported the fall of Phnom Penh on Sunday but there was no independent confirmation.

The rebels, led by Heng Samrin, a defector from the Pol Pot government, claimed the local population aided their offensive, but most analysts say Vietnamese troops did most if not all of the fighting.

A communique broadcast by the month-old rebel movement, the United Front for National Salvation, said the "revolutionary armed forces" by noon Sunday "completely liberated" Phnom Penh, and "the dictatorial and militarist regime of the Pol Pot-Sary clique has completely collapsed."

A Chinese government official in Peking said the fall of Phnom Penh had been anticipated by China, the Cambodian government's chief ally, but "Cambodia is fighting on."

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the former Cambodian chief of state who fled from Phnom Penh to Peking Saturday, told a news conference in the Chinese capital that Pol Pot and his government were alive and fighting somewhere in Cambodia. He said the Chinese are in radio contact with them.

More than 600 persons claiming to be Chinese diplomats from Phnom Penh crossed the Cambodian-Thai border. Foreigners from six other nations also crossed the narrow stream dividing Thailand and Cambodia, Thai authorities said. Many of the Chinese were believed to be advisers Peking had sent to aid its Cambodian allies.

A Thai military spokesman said a full alert had been ordered along the 500-mile frontier.

President Carter, on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe after a four-power Western summit, said he had heard Phnom Penh had fallen, but refused to discuss the situation. White House aides said privately that the invasion supported predictions by national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski that the Soviet Union and China would fight a "proxy war" using the armies of their Vietnamese and Cambodian allies.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Jack Cannon said there was no independent confirmation of the rebels' battlefield claims, but added: "We are prepared to believe that Phnom Penh has fallen to Vietnam or Vietnam-backed insurgents."

"Our position has been that Vietnam intervention in Cambodia is totally unjustified and Vietnam should remove its forces," Cannon said. "We're concerned that what is essentially a local conflict could escalate and involve third powers...and that must be avoided at all costs."

Vietnam claimed in an official statement Sunday that China had sent "a large military force" close to the Vietnamese border and indicated the move was linked to the Cambodian situation.

The reported fall of Cambodia would end one of the most radical social experiments this century. Reports from Cambodian refugees said it also was one of the bloodiest.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said the Cambodian government had pursued "a barbarous policy of genocide against the Kampuchean people," and the "liberation" of Phnom Penh would cause "profound satisfaction and joy by millions of people" in the world.

"The birth of an independent and free Kampuchea will be an important factor for peace and stability in Southeast Asia," Tass said. Kampuchea is the official name of Cambodia.

A Chinese statement issued in Peking said Vietnam invaded Cambodia "to serve the Soviet Union in its expansionist plan. China said Russia was trying to create an Indochina federation under Vietnam's control."

Hostilities between Vietnam and Cambodia, former allies in the Indochina War, began shortly after the Communist victories in 1975 and escalated a year ago. The two peoples have a history of centuries of warfare and enmity.

Peking called on the United Nations to intervene in the border war.

Names in the news

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley would have been 44 today, and this year's observance of his birthday is expected to be more subdued than past years.

The wrought iron gates at Graceland, the late rock 'n' roll king's estate, will remain closed and a winter storm was expected to cut down on the number of fans coming here.

Before his death Aug. 16, 1977, Elvis' birthday was an annual event with visiting fans by the thousands, some bringing cakes and presents, and hundreds of cards arriving daily, said Vester Presley, Elvis' 64-year-old uncle, who has guarded the Graceland gates for the past 21 years.

Vernon Presley, Elvis' father, is in frail health but plans a private observance, Dick Grob, security chief of the estate, said.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In a Mass that inaugurated a weekly radio broadcast in his native tongue, Pope John Paul II said he hopes communist leaders of his Polish homeland "serve well for the common good of the entire nation."

Before the Sunday Mass, the pope called religious liberty one of man's most fundamental rights — but one that is not universally respected.

"There is much more that needs to be done for the correct working of this principle..." he said.

The pope also said he wants to return to Poland in May to attend celebrations marking the 900th anniversary of the death of St. Stanislaw, Poland's patron saint, who was killed in the 11th century.

BOSTON (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford criticized the Carter administration for what he called its vacillating support of the Shah of Iran for the monarch's wobbly reign.

"One day they support him, the next day they say he might fall. If the Carter administration had been more forthright and consistent, the shah would not have the multiplying problems he has today," Ford told reporters at a lumbermen's convention Sunday.

Ford praised the shah for his modernization program, which has been at the root of the country's current internal strife. He noted that continued U.S. support of Iran is necessary because of the country's oil reserves and strategic location in the Mideast.

Ford told members of the Northeastern Retail Lumbermen's Association he considers mandatory wage and price controls disastrous. To deal with the nation's economic problems, he suggested reducing the rate of growth in the federal budget and balancing it.

HONOLULU (AP) — Donald Johanos, associate conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony since 1970, has been named music director of the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra.

Johanos, who will assume his new role beginning with the 1979-80 symphony season here, also will serve as artistic director of the Hawaii Opera Theater. He was in Pittsburgh during Sunday's announcement.

Johanos succeeds Robert LaMarchina, who resigned last year after 12 seasons as director.

CHICAGO (AP) — The addition of 13 illegitimate children as legal heirs to the $363,000 estate of the late leader of the Black Muslims, Elijah Muhammad, has delayed settlement of the case in Circuit Court.

According to testimony and documents, Muhammad fathered the children by eight women who worked in his home as secretaries. The children were born between 1960 and 1965, according to testimony.

Herbert Muhammad, son of the Muslim religious leader, originally listed only the eight children of his mother, Clara, and father as legal heirs to the estate.

The 13 others were added to the estate after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in April 1977 that an Illinois law preventing illegitimate children from being legal heirs was unconstitutional, attorneys for the estate said.

Elijah Muhammad died Feb. 25, 1975 at the age of 77 and left no will. His wife, Clara, died in 1972.

Reported fall of Phnom Penh, aspects of conflict examined

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodian rebels, backed by a Vietnamese invasion force, claim they have seized control of Cambodia, capturing the capitol city of Phnom Penh and forcing Premier Pol Pot's 44-month-old radical government to flee into the countryside.

Here in question-and-answer form are key aspects of the conflict:

Q: Who is fighting?

A: Intelligence analysts in Bangkok say about 100,000 Vietnamese troops, supported by modern tanks and warplanes, were matched against a tough but far weaker Cambodian army, thinned by three years of fighting over disputed border areas with Vietnam.

Vietnam, disclaiming any aggression, credits the victories to a rebel group formed last month — the Kampuchean National United Front for National Salvation. Estimates of the insurgents' strength have ranged from a few thousand to 20,000. Indochina experts say their ranks may have swelled from a population eager to throw off the repressive Phnom Penh authorities.

The leaders of the front describe themselves as defectors from the central government and army.

Q: What is the current military situation in Cambodia?

A: While there has been no independent confirmation of the rebels' battlefield claims, a State Department spokesman said Sunday that Washington was "prepared to believe that the capital of Phnom Penh has fallen to Vietnam or Vietnam-backed insurgents." Vietnam radio said the rebels also captured six provisional capitals.

Q: Are any of the world's powers involved?

A: U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski several months ago called the conflict "a war by proxy" between the Soviet Union, which supports Vietnam, and China, Cambodia's sole major backer.

Both powers have been providing their allies with large quantities of military supplies but charges and counter-charges of Chinese and Soviet military advisers involved directly in the fighting appear dubious.

Vietnam's war-hardened army has no apparent need for Soviet combat expertise, while Peking — apart from some strong verbal attacks — has thus far shown no inclination to intervene.

Q: What is the U.S. position?

A: The Carter administration said Vietnam's invasion was unjustified, even though Washington looks upon Cambodia's human-rights record as a poor one. The United States has expressed hope the conflict would be settled without "great-power involvement."

The United States backs Cambodia's request to bring the issue before the U.N. Security Council in New York.

Q: What about the non-communist nations of Southeast Asia?

A: They share Washington's fears. While they are ideologically opposed to the Cambodian regime, they are more worried about Vietnam's muscle and regional ambitions. Vietnam has Laos marching to its tune and a victory in Cambodia would put more than 60 million Indochinese and an area twice the size of Japan under Hanoi's direct influence.

Recent visitors to Cambodia have noted that many of the country's soldiers are teenagers or younger, easily led but dubious candidates for the kind of warfare which requires individual initiative and genuine zeal.

Eight-year-old with brother's kidney home for first weekend

LAKE PLACID, Fla. (AP) — Eight-year-old Darren Wirick, who three weeks ago received a court-sanctioned kidney transplant from his twin brother, spent his first weekend home "just laughing and playing," his mother says.

Healthy for the first time in his life, Darren is "doing great. He's full of energy and feeling fine," Diane Wirick said Sunday.

Because Darren and his twin brother, Darryl, are minors, the Wiricks had to obtain court permission for the transplant.

The case attracted national attention several months ago when a circuit court ruled that neither the surgeons who performed the operation nor the hospital at which it was performed could be held liable if the twins ever contested the surgery.

Darren returned home late Friday from Shands Teaching Hospital in Gainesville after the transplanted kidney began functioning properly. Darryl was discharged from the hospital less than a week after the operation.

Darren was born with an incomplete urinary tract, a disorder that caused urine to back up into his kidneys. This destroyed one of the organs and seriously damaged the other.

The boy underwent more than 20 operations and five months of dialysis before doctors decided the transplant was necessary, and Darryl offered to donate one of his kidneys.

The boys' father, Dick Wirick, described Darren's recovery as "phenomenal."

"This means he is going to be all right. We have been through a heck of a lot with this thing, but he has it whipped now. There will be no more dialysis for Darren. He is home and he is here to stay."

Both powers have been providing their allies with large quantities of military supplies but

Paget's disease group started

TENAFLY, N.J. (AP) — The Paget's Disease Foundation, Inc., a national, non-profit organization dedicated to improving health care for people suffering from the chronic, crippling disease, has been organized, with headquarters here.

The group has three main goals, according to John Bouvier Johnson, president: To inform patients who are unaware of the availability of treatment about progress in the treatment of the disease; to raise doctors' interest level in the study and treatment, and to support education and research for the advancement of therapy for Paget's disease of bone.

King Tut collectibles hot items

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

Young King Tutankhamun, if he hadn't been mummified for 3,000 years, might be mesmerized by the merchandising of his name.

King Tut has become a prestige label for jewelry, T-Shirts, tote bags, stationery, jigsaw puzzles, bikinis, books, sculpture, needlepoint sets, linens and lingerie.

There are posters, porcelain, calendars, collectors' plates, scarves and even a whiskey decanter shaped like the Egyptian monarch's golden death mask. Parties with a King Tut theme are among the latest fads.

Tutmania is peaking in New York City, the sixth United States stop for a traveling exhibition of 55 priceless articles from the boy king's tomb.

The show recently began a four-month stay at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Previously it had been seen in Washington, D. C., Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago and New Orleans. San Francisco and Toronto are the next stops scheduled.

In New York, an innovation — typically New York — was injected: jewelry and fashion items with hieroglyphs translating into, "I Love New York."

These come in a cartouche collection developed by six major fashion and jewelry design houses. Part of the proceeds will go to the nonprofit Citizens for New York City, Inc., for citywide improvement programs.

For a different set, hairdresser Roger Resca has created a "King Tut Cut," featuring long hair and bangs which resemble those identified with a different Egyptian — Cleopatra. However, unisex hair styles may have been "in" even back in 1358 B.C. As a gesture of regal extravagance, Mrs. Resca recommends flicking a bit of gold dust into your hair.

A King Tut napkin, created by print designer Vera for a diplomatic dinner given by the Egyptian government before the New York exhibition opened, is another spinoff. The design embodies a traditional Egyptian symbol, the crook and flail, executed in black and gold on a natural fabric. The napkins are made of ramie, an ancient textile, presumably the kind used to wrap mummies.

Among apparel items are turtle-neck sweaters with the falcon symbol, sleepwear with Egyptian brick and gold motif, and necklaces and earrings with similar reproductions.

Women's gowns have the look, column-shaped and sheer, in fluid fabrics that emphasize the body in the way associated with Cleopatra. The Tut exhibit has created a resurgence of interest in anything Egyptian-related.

There are also the inevitable T-shirts printed with "Love My Mummy" and "Struttin' With Tut" and other slogans (after all, the king himself was a teenager when he died).

And, of course, collectibles abound. Two highlights are a 24-karat gold sculptured bust of the young pharaoh, being promoted by a credit card firm, and a zodiac plate by Wedgwood for $1,000.

However, without spending a lot of money — even for scalpers' tickets to the sold-out exhibit — a person can join the fun by simply giving a King Tut party.

Louise Stacey of Great Neck, N.Y., a professional party planner, offers these tips:

Make it an Egyptian-costume affair. Send out invitations on parchment paper.

Even if the weather is brisk, you can conjure up a Nile-like balminess indoors with some exotic decorating.

Place throughout the room huge straw baskets holding tall, willowy reed plants. On the walls hang stylized murals of pyramid scenes.

Low, simple furniture such as white Parsons tables help to further the mood and go well with oversized pillows scattered on the floor.

An intimate atmosphere can be achieved by hanging brass lanterns with glowing candles.

Love, marriage returns

NEW YORK (AP) — The divorce rate is leveling off, marriage is making a comeback and romance is in vogue, claims Kathy Lowry in an article in Family Weekly magazine.

"This resurgence of romantic love is partially a benign reaction to the more strident excesses of the feminist movement, the New Morality and the '60s' drug-rock-sex culture in general," she says.

Ms. Lowry cites figures from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare showing the number of marriages has climbed from 1.5 million to 2.1 million annually in just two decades.

She also cites a recent college survey of 14 campuses which indicated that 25 percent of the students, mostly in their 20s, had lived with someone of the opposite sex and 96 percent claimed they intend to marry in the near future.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This may seem petty, but it has irritated me for a long time. My only son lives out of state with his wife and four children who are from 8 to 15 years old.

I have sent the children expensive gifts on their birthdays, Christmas, Easter, as well as from my travels. Would you believe that I have NEVER received one personal thank-you note from any of my grandchildren?

Oh, I get a "thank you," but it is always written by their mother, who says something like, "Billy is too busy to write, so I am thanking you for your thoughtful gift, etc. etc."

Every time I get one of these "mother-written" thank-you notes I am resentful and hurt. My grandchildren are capable of writing their own letters, and should do so. My daughter-in-law is a lovely person, always doing for others in her volunteer work, but she is failing in her duty to teach her children the importance of good manners in this regard.

Perhaps if she were to see this in your column (which I know she reads in the Chicago Tribune), she would get the hint and mend her ways—Granny DEAR GRANNY: Readers seldom see themselves in my column—they see only others.

What about your son? They're his children, too. Why shouldn't he share the responsibility of helping his children cultivate good habits?

Tell your son, and his wife how you feel about their children's proxy thank-yous. And it wouldn't hurt to tell the kids, too.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 33, divorced (no kids), attractive, and I'd like to quit working and marry a man who can take good care of me. (Please, no lectures on "where's your pride?" I was married for nine years to a guy who was allergic to work. I took care of him all that time, and now I'd like to be on the other end of that kind of deal.) I'm dating a 52-year-old man who wants to marry me. He qualifies in every respect. (He has money and doesn't mind spending it.) There are only two things wrong with him. He has a potbelly—which really turns me off. And he smokes cigars. (About 10 a day.)

Would it be a mistake for me to tell him I'll marry him if he gets rid of the potbelly and cigars?—MIDGE DEAR MIDGE: Yes. If he were to agree to lose the potbelly and give up the cigars, you'd have no guarantee that he wouldn't develop another pot and resume cigar smoking. Take him as he is, or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: We have a friend who has many fine qualities. She has a heart as big as she is. For instance, if we are called out of town, or if some emergency comes up, she's the one who takes our children—and gladly. I can't begin to tell you all the nice things this woman has done, expecting nothing in return.

But, Abby, does she lie? If you compliment her on her dress, she'll say she made it. (She doesn't own a machine, and she can't sew a stitch!) Also, she will serve canned, frozen or carried-in food and look you right in the eye and tell you she made it from scratch.

So, Dear Abby, what do you do about a friend who lies?—HER FRIENDS IN TEXAS

DEAR FRIENDS: Nothing. Love her for her good qualities and skip the rest. CONFIDENTIAL TO A. R. IN BEVERLY HILLS: To put it succinctly: Psychoanalysis is confession without absolution.

Jean Zalon: she feels whole again

By DARLA WELLS
Copley News Service

For four painful years, Jean Zalon sought to feel whole again. To regain a sense of self-satisfaction. To be free of the constant reminder of her face-to-face encounter with a killer.

Jean Zalon, like nearly 90,000 women in this country each year, developed breast cancer and underwent a mastectomy — surgical removal of a breast.

The emotional impact was enormous, as it is for most women.

She knew she should be grateful just to be alive. And she was.

But still she felt her loss acutely. She viewed herself as incomplete, out of balance, disfigured.

Moreover, the missing breast served as a constant, silent reminder that she'd had cancer.

Persistently she searched for a solution.

She knew it was possible to surgically enlarge and reshape breasts. Why then, she wondered, couldn't a surgeon create a new breast for her?

She faced a lack of information on the subject, and a lack of support from relatives, friends and doctors. Most couldn't understand why the matter was so important that she'd agree to further surgery.

At that time, in the early 70s, breast reconstruction was relatively new. And because most breast cancer operations then were of the radical variety, restoration was more complicated and less cosmetically satisfactory.

But changes were taking place. Zalon had undergone a modified radical mastectomy. The muscles of her chest wall were still intact and she was a better candidate for reconstruction than women who had undergone more drastic procedures.

In 1974, her dermatologist told her that good reconstructions were available, and referred her to a plastic surgeon who performed them.

Zalon, who has written a book called "I Am Whole Again," recalls that day as a turning point in her life. It brought her, she says, renewed hope and the realization of the dream she'd carried since her original surgery.

The process includes inserting a silicone implant under the skin to create the contour of a breast, creating an artificial nipple-areola, and reshaping the other breast to match the restored one.

Zalon says the benefits of the procedure, for her, have far outweighed the short-term discomforts.

Her concern now is to make women and their doctors more aware of the availability of the procedure as an alternative to permanent disfigurement.

"I had my reconstruction four years after my mastectomy," she says, "and the contrast in what my self-image was after the reconstruction ... was such an enormous 'up' psychologically that I became very public about it."

"I made every attempt to reach women via newspapers, TV and radio. I got such great response from women who called me and came to see me. They said, 'This is phenomenal. How did you learn about it? Please share it with me.'"

"I realized that I couldn't reach all the women, so I wrote the book."

"I know that there are women who will choose not to have it and I make no judgment of them. But I think a woman should be accorded the dignity of knowing she has the option."

"I see reconstruction as an inducement to the woman who has a tiny lump in her breast and pretends it isn't there because the thought of the mutilation (of mastectomy) is too horrifying to her."

"I see it as an inducement because it says, 'Yes, there is an avenue open to you. You don't have to live the rest of your life with a mutilated body.'"

"I have heard from women who have said that if they had not learned about the possibility of reconstruction they might not have consented to surgery."

"And I have spoken to younger women who have said, 'What an enormous relief this is to me because all women are so frightened of breast cancer, and knowing that this alternative exists takes such a load off my shoulders.'"

LOVE SCENE: By Jesse L. Lasky Jr., with Pat Silver; Crowell; 256 Pages; $10.95. The love affair of Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh was more enduring than anything the famous couple gave brief life to on the screen or stage.

They first met in 1937, both madly in love with each other, but married to others. The romance was played out over a period of 30 years — until the death of Vivien Leigh at 56, the end of an era.

Leigh's manic depression hastened the fall of the curtain. Toward the end she described their relationship this way: "We were beautiful, we were ambitious, we lived for each other. It was a selfish seizure — and it has turned to dust."

ANN LANDERS ENCYCLOPEDIA: Doubleday; 1,212 Pages; $17.50. This is a massive tome covering just about every ailment known to man. The material was gathered in part from research done for Landers' newspaper column, but it reads in many sections more like a medical column.

There are parts dealing with care of the feet, with hepatitis, with diabetes, head lice and kidneys. Other parts offer sage advice on drugs, love (the column specialty), interfaith marriages, male menopause, dreams, cigaretttes, childbirth without pain, biofeedback, anxiety and much, much more. If you have a problem, it's bound to be in here somewhere.

THE BOOK OF TAPESTRY: By Pierre Verlet, Michel Florisoone, Adolf Hoffmeister and Francois Tabard; Vendome Press; 229 Pages; $40. Most of the world's great tapestries were produced in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance by craftsmen who created their intricate works by incredible patience and concentration. Brilliant fabrics were spun by weavers and adorned with marvelous stories, some inspired by antiquity, others by religious events or military feats. As works of art they stand with the world's great paintings. The book also includes color plates of some breathtaking tapestries created by modern artists. There has been an increasing interest in the field in the United States.

GUINNESS BOOK OF WORLD RECORDS: By Norris McWhirter; Sterling; 704 Pages; $8.95. This is the 1979 edition of the red and white book that is becoming as familiar as the annual "Almanac."

In it are crammed the records of humans who have pushed themselves to the limits of endurance so that they might achieve a spot of immortality in the record book. There are legitimate records in the book, but there are also many weird and wacky ones. There is, for instance, a color photo of a man in India who grew the world's longest fingernails (76 inches).

And the woman in England who continued taking and failing driving tests until she succeeded on her 40th attempt.

SPIRITS AND LIQUEURS: By Cyril Ray; Macmillan; 139 Pages; $10.95. A classy little book that tells the stories of those exotic, pungent drinks that come in very small glasses and burn the sipper's tongue if he is not careful. Also covered are brandies, champagnes, Scotch, gin and rum. The delicate liqueurs or cordials bear names like Cointreau, Chartreuse, Benedictine, Drambuie and Irish Mist. Some taste like peppermint; others are sweeter than honey. This one is for the gourmet drinker; if your big thing is beer, forget it.

GREAT HOUSES OF BRITAIN: by Nigel Nicolson; Godine; 287 Pages; $30. There are some utterly gorgeous old country homes in England, Scotland and Wales, and the author has selected 39 of them for word and photographic portraits.

From Medieval manor houses and Tudor halls to classical Palladian mansions and elegant Georgian residences, all of the main architectural styles from the Middle Ages to the early 19th century are represented. Maintenance costs have closed many of these huge structures, but their beauty perseveres.

BETTY CROCKER'S COOKBOOK: Golden; 400 Pages; $9.95. Carrying one of the most famous names in cooking, this book deals with basic cooking from hamburger and pork chops to coffee and dessert. The loose-leaf

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER (Tues. Jan 9)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your reasoning processes are an opportunity now for much logical and helpful standpoints by which you can add to your present success and extend your influence into more worldly and public channels.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Have little talks with associates and improve mutual-business dealings. Give compliments where deserved and gain goodwill.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put new ideas to work and you can soon command a far greater abundance. Some property matter that is puzzling to you should be discussed with an expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your personal living more compact and don't leave loose ends dangling. Be with a good friend during spare time and feel happier.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your most important goals and know how to better achieve them. Have conversations with partners for best results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cultivate good friends you want to see a good deal of in the future. Accept invitations that are worthwhile and pleasurable. Be careful in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to please higherups more and you gain a good deal now. Get your career working more efficiently during the day and handle credit matters in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a new interest now that could work very much to your benefit. Planning that trip for the near future is wise now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to handle responsibilities in the future more speedily and profitably. Don't become so busy that you neglect loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact associates early with whom you have had a difference of opinion and come to a better understanding. Do useful work that improves your image.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a more up-to-date system by which to handle your obligations more successfully. Get duties better organized with those of co-workers, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have good creative ideas and should do something about them. Much progress can be made today. Evening is fine for entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you plan them early, you can make the conditions at home much better. Study a new interest and gather all the information you can about it.

notebook layout makes it a very convenient book to handle since individual recipes can be taken easily out and later replaced. There are handy sections on metric measurements, kitchen equipment, microwave cooking, canning and freezing. As a book of the basics and fundamentals, it's hard to beat.

GAO has better idea

President Carter is expected to ask the new Congress to amend the Davis-Bacon Act so it will work better and not contribute to inflation.

The government's General Accounting Office has a much better idea: repeal the act altogether.

Davis-Bacon is the law requiring that contractors who bid on federal jobs pay construction workers no less than the "prevailing" wage for the same work in the surrounding community.

It was passed in the depression year of 1931, when there were no minimum wage laws or other mechanisms to keep a contractor from disrupting a local labor market by importing cheap labor from out of town.

The GAO has released the results of a study showing that the Labor Department has never figured out how to enforce the Davis-Bacon Act, and if it did, no useful purpose would be served.

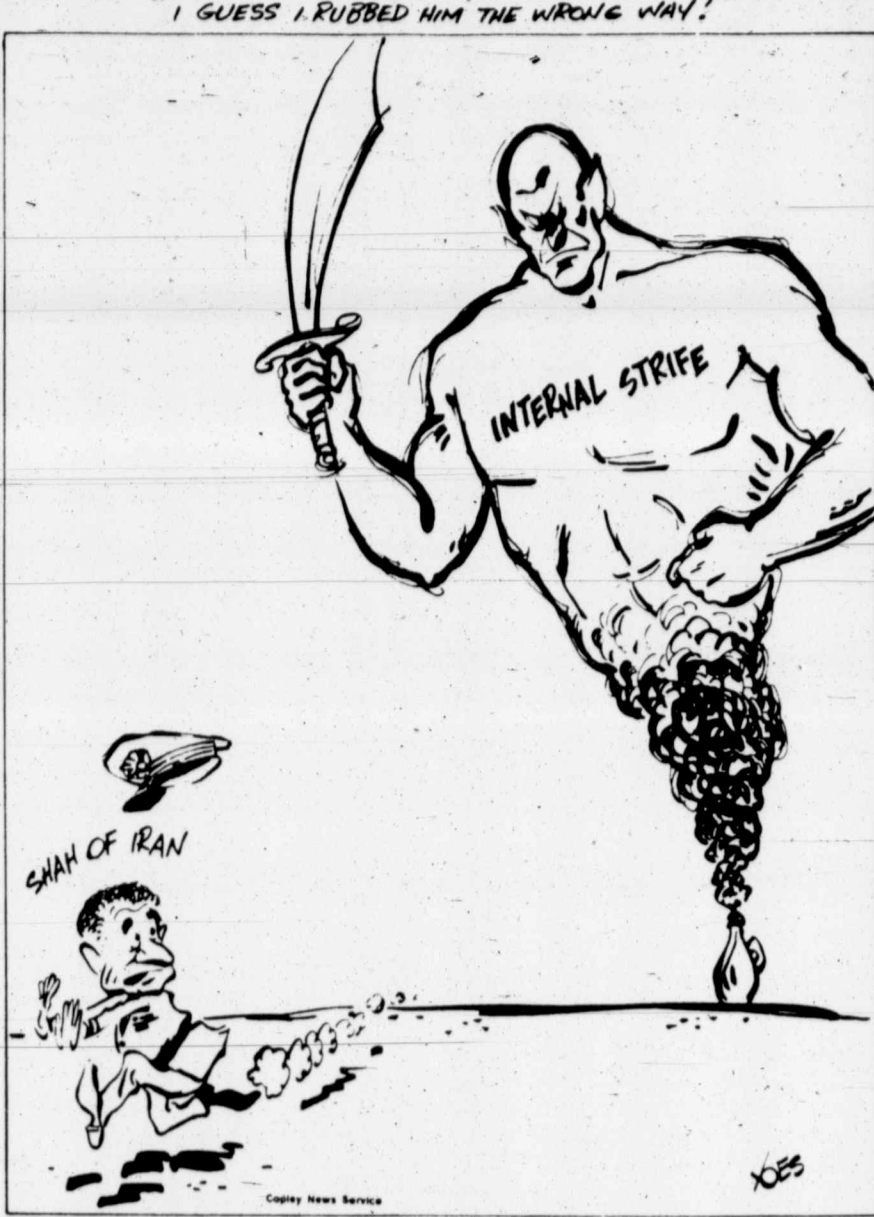

The Labor Department, says GAO, has never developed a system to gather accurate data on prevailing wages. When it makes a mistake on the high side — as it did in 40 percent of the cases studied by the GAO — the result is to inflate the cost of a federal project by insisting that contractors pay more than what is actually the prevailing local wage. When it errs on the low side, the wages paid by the contractor generally are the prevailing ones anyhow.

So what is Davis-Bacon accomplishing? For one thing, the GAO figures that its "highside errors are adding $500 million a year to what the federal government spends on construction.

Further, contractors are spending $200 million a year complying with payroll-reporting requirements under the act, while the government itself spends $15 million in its botched attempts to carry out the intent of the law.

All Davis-Bacon does, then, is give another spin to the inflationary wheel. Mr. Carter would add to the credibility of his anti-inflation program by supporting repeal of the act by the 96th Congress.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pentagon VIPs prefer hotels

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — To the humble enlisted man in his barracks bunk, the transient billets at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington would seem comfortable enough. But to the military brass who pass through Andrews on their way to and from Pentagon meetings, the rooms available at the base are downright Spartan.

These sybaritic brasshats prefer accommodations at more fashionable hotels in downtown Washington 15 miles away. Although the nation's capital isn't exactly the Paris of the Western Hemisphere, its restaurants and night life are undeniably more attractive to itinerate VIPs than the officers' mess and the base movie theater.

So while billets stand empty at Andrews, visiting brasshats luxuriate in commercial hotel rooms downtown at the taxpayers' expense. But this happens to be against military regulations. According to official Air Force rules, all 60 rooms at Andrews must be filled before billeting officers can put anyone in a hotel off the base.

The billeting office used to follow the rule book. But the Air Force's peripatetic pooh-bahs began griping. They didn't like the simple comforts provided at the base. They also didn't like the arduous limousine ride into town, which in rush hour traffic can take the better part of an hour, as any taxpaying commuter could testify.

Most of all, they didn't like the idea of being stuck out in the boonocks when they might, at no cost to themselves, be where the action is.

At first, Andrews officials resisted the complaints. But last June, the VIPs found a friend in Maj. Gen.

Benjamin F. Starr, Jr. While paying lip-service to the regulations, Starr ordered that when advance reservations indicated the Andrews billets were booked up, reservations could be made at intown hotels. Such are the uncertainties of military travel and conference schedules that frequent cancellations leave empty rooms at Andrews while the transient VIPs check into hotels.

The figures tell the story: In 1977, 1,926 hotel rooms were used in all of October, November and December; this year, after General Starr's decision to relax the regulations, more than 2,400 hotel rooms were used in the month of October alone. Starr sees nothing wrong. "In my opinion I'm not breaking the rules," he said. "Taking care of the customer is my first priority."

Footnote: In fairness to Starr, it should be pointed out that he had a fairly persuasive precedent. A year ago, an Inspector General team was put up at the In-State Inn rather than at available billets on the air base. Cost to the taxpayers: $5,000.

CONSUMER TRAP: The Federal Reserve Board has been pushing interest rates to new highs in an announced effort to discourage consumers from buying on credit. This is supposed to slow inflation.

At the same time, the Fed has quietly removed a consumer-borrowing safeguard in the Truth-in-Lending Act — a move that could make it cruelly easy for unwary consumers to go deeper in debt.

What the board did was modify the three-day "cooling off" period, during which a consumer can back out of a time-payment contract, insofar as it applies to credit-card plans

CHARLEY REESE: Nation refuses to face facts concerning crime

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — I never get excited about the FBI's annual crime statistics. Like most statistical studies, the annual report on crime serves basically as a justification for a larger budget. Like most justifications for larger budgets, it can easily lead to an exaggerated view of reality.

But more than that, we seemed to have decided that crime is a good thing. That's the only explanation I can think of for our deliberately not doing what common sense tells us would curb the crime rate. On the contrary, we do things to increase it.

Down in Florida, for example, some idiot decided a few years ago that public drunkenness should not be a crime. The Legislature passed a law that cops could only take public drunks to treatment centers and if treatment centers did not exist, leave them be.

However morally or philosophically correct that position might be, it has definitely increased the crime rate. You see, cops have a limited opportunity to prevent crime. Most of what they do is all after the fact. But one of the few tools they used to have was the public drunkenness law.

As any person of the world knows, angry drunks often end up assaulting people and occasionally killing them. Under the old law, a cop was able to pick up Joe Jerk and put him in the drunk tank for four hours and thus, in many cases, avert violence.

Now, thanks to reformers, the cop must leave Joe Jerk unmolested until his booze-befuddled brain prompts him to shoot, punch, kick or cut.

The same thing is true of another old law, which some civil libertarians succeeded in persuading the courts to strike down. That was the misdemeanor charge of public profanity which the courts have ruled violated the first amendment.

As a matter of practical reality, lawmen never went around arresting people for letting a swear word slip from their lips. Like the public drunk law, it was a tool to prevent more serious trouble.

Suppose, for example, two guys are in a screaming match. A cop, thinking they might graduate to violence, could remove one or both on the public profanity charge and often prevent serious injury or even death. Today, thanks to the civil libertarians, he has to wait until there's been a death or a serious injury.

It goes without saying, too, that lenient sentencing, liberal use of public defenders, interminable delays between the end of the trial and the start of the sentence, and country club like jails all contribute to encouraging rather than discouraging crime.

If we were serious about controlling crime, we would not have to scrap the protections we have built into the system. All we would have to do is apply them with common sense and demand more efficiency from the criminal justice system.

Unfortunately the criminal justice system has become a huge bureaucracy and we have an inordinate number of lawyers to say nothing of the thousands of social workers and college professors who make a comfortable living off the poor criminal.

Let's face it, crime is an important part of the economy. With tax dollars, fines, fees and graft, it supports an army of people including judges, lawyers, cops, social workers, jailers, doctors, wardens, architects, journalists, fiction writers, morgue attendants, college professors, and federal civil servants.

Furthermore, crime is an important diversion. After all, as a nation we are obviously bored. We are prosperous beyond our own comprehension; we've lost our sense of nationalism; and we refuse to face the act that we are at war.

In such a situation, crime along with gay rights, women libbers, disco music, politics, preservation of seals and whales, sports and the Dow Jones Average keeps us mildly amused.

Take Charlie Manson, for example. That little creep and his creepy followers became an industry, spawning almost as many books, teleplays and movies as the Civil War. Son of Sam provided more entertainment than the average Jane Fonda movie.

No, don't worry about the crime rate. It's all part of the American circus. As for personal safety, unless you are a member of that social class which customarily settles family disputes with guns and knives, you are in much greater danger from your diet than from the random criminal.

Mark Russell says

President Carter probably decided to recognize China after learning that there are more than 800 million people on the mainland who just love peanuts and Coca-Cola.

The leaders of Taiwan are worried, not about the mainland, but about being bought by the Arabs as the world's largest hand laundry.

It scared me that we will break our mutual defense treaty with them. Do you realize, if China attacked Los Angeles — Taiwan will not come to our aid?

Ronald Reagan said it could have been worse — Carter could have given Taiwan to Panama's Gen. Torrijos.

The saddest person in Washington over this is Sen. Strom Thurmond. He has been seen jogging in a black sweat suit and veil.

What, no speaker!

A chamber of commerce banquet without a speaker? Well, it's unusual, to say the least.

Anyway, the Martin County Chamber of Commerce in neighboring Stanton will give it a try at its annual banquet scheduled Jan. 22 in the Cap Rock Electric Cooperative's auditorium.

Terry Neill, publisher of the Stanton Reporter and president of the chamber of commerce, said, "The board felt like that those who attend the banquet would rather hear 30 minutes of good, musical entertainment than a 45-minute speech. This would shorten what is usually a very lengthy banquet."

In other words, those present at the dinner will get a chamber music break.

It will be interesting to see whether or not the chamber goes back to the traditional practice next year.

The search is on

The Midland Jaycees, for 35 years now, have honored the city's "Outstanding Young Man of the Year," presenting him with the organization's Distinguished Service Award.

This year is no exception, and the Jaycees presently are searching for the young man, between the ages of 21 and 35, who has contributed the most to the community.

The Jaycees have invited nominations from groups and individuals. The field is wide open, and the competition is bound to be keen, based on the outstanding work and efforts of so many fine young men here.

This is your opportunity to nominate the young man of your choice for DSA honors.

INSIDE REPORT:

Human rights in Iran would worsen under Khomeini

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Human rights devotees in the Carter administration, who made the shah of Iran one of their special enemies before President Carter ordered a halt, will be in for a shock if Ayatollah Khomeini, the exiled Moslem fundamentalist and the shah's powerful opponent, should ever gain power in Iran.

Khomeini wrote the following credo in a now-suppressed book called "Islamic Government" 10 years ago — words that should be more odious to human rights devotees than anything the shah has said:

"We want a ruler who would cut off the hand of his own son if he steals, and would flog and stone his near relative if he fornicates."

The quotation is from page 124 of Khomeini's 1968 book, copies of which are hard to find today. That presumably is because the author's religious fundamentalism — it has also been called religious "fascism" — would hurt him in the West, even among the most passionate haters of the shah, if it were fully understood.

Now exiled in France, Khomeini is the most prominent of all the anti-shah Moslem fundamentalists and has been given high visibility in the Western world for weeks through the press and television. Little advertised, however, is the fact that whereas the shah has been "liberating" Iranian women for many years, it is Khomeini's conviction that the Koran must be the basic instrument of

Islamic "law" and that "it is the religious expert (faqih) and no one else who should occupy himself with the affairs of government."

For Iranian women, once consigned to veils, that would be a brutal turning back of the clock. For the Carter administration's overall "human rights" crusade, a similar turning back of the clock would make a mockery of State Department worry over the shah's alleged lack of adherence to U.S. human rights principles.

Moreover, a strong strain of anti-Semitism runs through Khomeini's 1968 book. He charges that Israel has distorted the true teachings of Islam, "making a mockery of the Koran" by "distorting its text" for use in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, Gaza Strip, Sinai and Golan Heights. He calls it his "duty" to "reveal this treachery and shout at the top of our voices until people understand that the Jews and their foreign masters are plotting against Islam and preparing the way for the Jews to rule over the entire planet."

STRAUSS WANTS OUT

Robert S. Strauss wants a sabbatical from full-time political activity so badly that he has turned down a request from President Carter to take a new White House position: cabinet-level trouble-shooter.

Carter had envisioned Strauss becoming a counselor, with cabinet rank but without specific duties. That would enable the president to use Strauss' unmatched political skills on a variety of emergencies.

But Strauss wants out — as soon as possible. That means quitting as trade negotiator once the trade bill passes Congress, most likely next August. That will give him nine years in the Washington political swim — two years as Democratic national treasurer, four as Democratic national chairman, nearly three in the Carter cabinet.

Strauss frankly admits he is exhausted and needs a year's rest, allowing for part-time assistance in the Carter re-election campaign. After that, Strauss has told the president, he will take on any duties offered if there is a second term for Carter.

ENTER EL PAPA

The real explanation for the request by Chile and Argentina for a high-level papal emissary to mediate their bitter territorial dispute was not so much trust in the pope as fear of communist influences in the United Nations and the Organization of American States (OAS).

Indeed, both countries — under the control of authoritarian, right-wing regimes — felt that it could endanger their security to turn over intimate state secrets to the UN or the OAS, both of which naturally include many communist states as members.

That underlined the appeal to Pope Paul II for a mediator to help iron out the two countries' dispute over several small islands in the Beagle Channel area at the tip of South America. The islands have strategic importance and they also dominate rich fishing grounds that could contain underwater oil reserves.

With the pope in charge of the mediation, Chile and Argentina can both avoid exposing their inner strategic thinking about the Straits of Magellan to communist states.

Fine Italian hand judged 1978's best

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Today's hand, judged by an international jury one of the most brilliant of 1977, was played by Marco Morigliano (then 21 years old) at the Venice festival.

The defenders took two diamonds, and East continued with the queen of diamonds to make dummy ruff. The idea was to make sure of two trump tricks.

Suspecting what was going on, Morigliano took the ace of hearts and continued with the queen of hearts to discard the ace of clubs. He then ruffed a heart, returned to dummy with the queen of clubs to ruff another heart and got back with the king of clubs to lead a third club from dummy.

FOUR TRUMPS LEFT

By this time East was reduced to his four trumps. He ruffed dummy's third club, but South overruffed and led trumps for the first time.

East won with the ace but now had to lead a trump from J-9, and declarer finessed with the ten of spades to make his game contract.

With young players of this calibre coming up, Italian bridge is assured of a brilliant future.

NLRB files suit against striking steel haulers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Striking independent steel haulers, with a federal suit pending against them in Pittsburgh, face another federal suit in Philadelphia.

U.S. District Court Judge Louis Rosenberg is considering a decision here on a $3 million suit filed by steel industry leaders who want to end the eight-week shutdown.

Seven steel companies sued the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers and its leaders for $3 million in damages and $300,000 a day in fines, alleging the strike violates a 1970 injunction.

Testimony in the industry suit ended about two weeks ago.

Rosenberg last week denied a request for a delay in his decision on the steel industry suit until a suit filed by the National Labor Relations Board is decided in Philadelphia's federal court.

A hearing on the NLRB suit against the truckers' group is scheduled today in Philadelphia.

The NLRB sued the steel haulers on behalf of the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia Transportation Co., alleging a secondary boycott against the transportation company, said FASH attorney Paul Boas.

"The NLRB suit is nothing," FASH Chairman Bill Hill said Saturday in a telephone interview. "It's a company that we have under contract. And the company is charging we're in violation of our labor agreement because we have a no-strike clause."

Hill said about 20 drivers for Pittsburgh-Philadelphia Transportation are honoring the strike despite the walkout prohibition clause in the contract.

"It's a nationwide strike of steel haulers so these people naturally are in sympathy," Hill said.

Hill called the strike Nov. 11 to gain bargaining rights for an estimated 30,000 steel haulers, plus more money and streamlined highway regulations. An estimated 10,000 steel haulers now work under contracts negotiated by the Teamsters.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Smoking increases infant death rate

Dear Dr. Solomon: I can understand why cigarette smoking is harmful to the person who smokes. I can even understand why smoking is harmful to other people who may breathe in the "second-hand" smoke. What I don't understand is how it can be harmful to an unborn child, who lives in a protected environment.—Mrs. N.S.

Dear Mrs. S.: While there is no clear understanding of why smoking is as detrimental to health as statistics indicate, some specific effects of smoking are known. One is that the carbon monoxide in tobacco smoke reduces the available oxygen at the same time that nicotine increases activity of the heart. Moreover, tobacco smoke contains carcinogens which, as you note, can affect both the smoker and those nearby, and may have long-term consequences.

As for the effect on the unborn child: If the mother smokes, carbon monoxide easily passes through the placenta to the fetus. The not surprising result is that babies born to women who smoke have a lower birth weight and a higher rate of mortality (death). And women who smoke while pregnant—even those who are light smokers—have almost twice the risk of miscarriage when compared with non-smokers. It has also been found that during a child's first year of life, bronchitis and pneumonia occur with much greater frequency where both parents smoke. In these same families, almost twice as many children have their tonsils and adenoids out as do children of non-smokers.

The children of mothers who smoke while pregnant are shorter, on average, than those born of mothers who do not smoke; they also show a lag in reading ability. A study done on 17,000 children in England noted the lag in both seven and 11-year-old children.

It is obvious that the "unprotected environment" of the unborn child needs to be protected from the pollution that comes with smoking. In addition, after a child is born the quality of the air it breathes can be damaged by even one smoker in the home. Smoking releases tiny particles into the air that are then breathed into the lungs.

Since children have smaller lungs and are more rapid breathers than adults, they tend to inhale relatively larger quantities of these pollutants.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I get colds three to four times a year. What can I do to prevent this?—Mrs. C.G.

Dear Mrs. C.G.: Colds are caused by tiny germs called viruses, which are so small they can be seen only under special microscopes. These tiny viruses are spread by the person with a cold through coughing, sneezing or just talking. Most of us get colds two or three times a year. Some people may get them more often. If you have frequent colds you should go to your doctor for a medical examination to see if there is some physical condition that is making it easier for you to catch colds.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Exactly what is sickle cell disease?—Ms. J.S.

Dear Ms. J.S.: It's a hereditary blood disease in which the red blood cells sometimes assume a strange shape—like a sickle.

If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Gacy reportedly bragged of killing people

CHICAGO (AP) — A 19-year-old Chicago man says he told police that contractor John Wayne Gacy Jr. had bragged of killing people, but he said authorities took no action, saying Gacy was "a solid citizen."

Police investigated the suburban contractor several times between 1975 and 1978, it was reported Sunday, but no felony charges were filed by authorities until bodies were found in Gacy's home.

The burly contractor also was placed under 24-hour surveillance for two weeks in 1976 after a 9-year-old Chicago boy was reported missing. Nothing came of the stakeout, police said.

Gacy allegedly was accused twice of kidnapping and rape — by a 19-year-old Chicago man in December 1977, and by a 27-year-old Chicago man in March 1978.

"They (the police) would only say there was insufficient evidence. Both the cops and an assistant state's attorney said that he (Gacy) was a solid citizen," the 19-year-old told the Chicago Tribune. At the youth's request, he was not identified.

"I was practically pleading with them. I even told them that he bragged to me that he had killed people and said he was going to kill me, but my pleas didn't do any good," the youth said.

Assistant State's Attorney Jerry Latherow, who made the decision not to prosecute, said he couldn't explain why no charges were filed because a judge has ordered officials not to discuss the case.

Gacy faces a misdemeanor battery count that was filed in March 1978 by Jeff Rignall, 27, who charged that Gacy abducted him and assaulted him sexually.

Gacy was charged with murder in the death of 15-year-old Robert Piest of Des Plaines on Dec. 22, and has reportedly told police he killed 32 young men and boys.

The bodies of 27 persons have been found buried at Gacy's home, and the contractor reportedly has said he threw five bodies in a river — including Piest's, which has not been found. Two bodies have been recovered from the river.

Ten victims have been identified, including two teen-agers whose disappearance police reportedly discussed with Gacy.

John Butkovich, 18, was last seen Aug. 1, 1975, when he went to Gacy's home to demand money Gacy owed him. His body was found beneath Gacy's garage.

Gregory Godzik, 17, another former employee, disappeared Dec. 12, 1976. Godzik's skeleton was found in a crawl space of Gacy's home.

Commander Harold Thomas of the Chicago Police Youth Division said the officers who questioned Gacy about Godzik apparently didn't know he also had been questioned about Butkovich.

For two weeks in January 1976, officers kept Gacy's home under surveillance in connection with the disappearance of 9-year-old John Ferris of Chicago, Thomas said. However, Gacy was not linked to the child. The boy is still missing.

Thomas said officials did not check Gacy's record. So they didn't know that he had been convicted of sodomizing a 15-year-old boy in Iowa in 1968.

Homosexual to succeed Milk

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 40-year-old homosexual auditor was expected to be appointed by Mayor Diane Feinstein to replace slain city Supervisor Harvey Milk.

Harry G. Britt, a native of Port Arthur, Texas, and a former United Methodist minister, reportedly is the mayor's choice. Britt, also a former letter carrier, works as a hotel accountant.

After six weeks of interviews, the mayor scheduled a news conference today to make the announcement. She had earlier vowed to replace Milk with another homosexual.

Milk, one of the nation's few avowed homosexual political figures, was gunned down Nov. 27 in City Hall, along with Mayor George Moscone. Former Supervisor Dan White has been charged in the shootings.

Estimates are that one-seventh of San Francisco's 660,000 residents are homosexual, and they have become a potent political force here.

In a tape recording made before his death, Milk discussed the possibility that he could be assassinated, and named four persons he said he would like to see succeed him. Britt was among the four.

In recent weeks, however, leaders of this city's gay community have spearheaded a drive to name Milk's former administrative assistant, Anne Kronenberg, to his seat. Britt was among circulators of petitions supporting Kronenberg, who is a lesbian. She also was named on the tape.

As word of the mayor's expected naming of Britt leaked Sunday, Ms. Kronenberg's supporters rallied in her behalf, marching in rain between two neighborhood parks.

The group, calling itself the Grass Roots Alliance District 5 Committee, has charged in posters and other communications that Mayor Feinstein has been unwilling to meet with community representatives to discuss her decision and was unwilling to name a supervisor who will continue Milk's pro-labor, pro-human rights voting record.

"If we decided today we needed another power plant, these kids would be in college before it could be ready."

"Most people are surprised to learn how long it takes to build an electric generating plant. It takes about eight years to locate and purchase the right site, order equipment, plan and build a lignite-fueled power plant, obtain approvals from all regulatory agencies, and then test the plant's operation carefully. It takes even longer for a nuclear-fueled plant — 10 to 12 years.

Mike Greene TESCO Power Department

Right now, because of the shortage and high cost of natural gas, Texas Electric is building new plants that run on lignite coal and one which will use nuclear fuel.

These plants are very expensive. But we must build them so that when the need is there tomorrow, the electricity will be there too.

Thieves strike millionaire

NEW YORK (AP) — Thieves broke into the Manhattan townhouse of millionaire John S. Samuels III, chairman of the board of the New York City Opera and of the Exchange National Bank in Chicago, and stole silver and jewelry worth $500,000 over the weekend, police said today.

Samuels discovered the burglary shortly before midnight Sunday when he and his family returned from a weekend trip, police said.

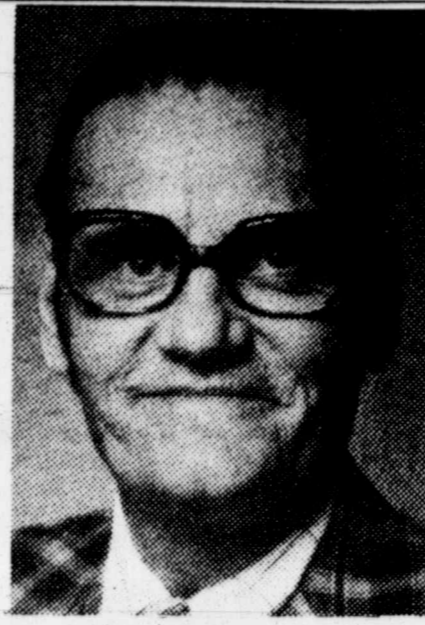

The thieves apparently broke in through a basement door of the luxurious four-story brick residence at 123 E. 79th St. according to police.

"They went through the whole place," said a detective of the Third Robbery Division.

The intruders carefully selected only small valuables and passed up large items, including several paintings, a police spokesman said.

Stolen valuables, the value of which Samuels estimated at about $500,000, included silver trays, place settings, frames, cuff links and other jewelry.

Samuels, 44, was elected head of the City Opera in July 1975. He is also

Harland B. Brancel

District governor scheduled to visit Downtown Lions

Harland B. Brancel of San Angelo, governor of District 2-A1, Lions International, will pay his official visit to the Midland Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

He will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the club's noon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

The governor is expected to review briefly the overall growth and progress of Lionism before launching into his "state of the district" message relating to achievements, activities and goals of his West Texas district.

Brancel, a 21-year employee of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, is a member and past president of San Angelo's Sundown Lions Club, which he joined in January 1971. He was named "Lion of the Year" in 1972-73 and 1973-74. He served as a zone chairman in 1976-77 and as deputy district governor in 1977-78.

Brancel, who has a six-year perfect attendance record, was president of the District Eye Bank last year. He holds the Membership Advancement Key and the International Extension Award.

George Weis, president of the Downtown Lions Club, urged a large attendance at Wednesday's meeting.

Carter will seek funds for new missile system

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter reportedly will ask Congress later this month for nearly $1 billion to push development of a new long-range mobile missile system designed to be safe from a surprise Soviet attack.

Administration sources said the budget requests will be made in anticipation of probable decisions by April on moving into full-scale development of such a missile and on methods of basing it. Some defense officials appear to favor an air-launched concept.

Although final U.S.-Soviet agreement has not been reached on limiting strategic nuclear weapons in the future, defense officials say they are confident they can proceed with development and testing of an advanced mobile missile regardless of the SALT negotiations outcome.

There is general agreement in the Pentagon that some kind of elusive new mobile missile system, either land- or air-launched, will be essential by the mid-1980s. That is when the present force of 1,000 Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles, stationed in fixed underground bases, are expected to become vulnerable to possible destruction if Russia should launch a surprise attack with its increasingly accurate missiles.

Uncertainties and disputes over how to base the new missile have twice caused the administration to delay advancing the project into full-scale development.

Permits top $2 million in Lamesa

LAMESA — Considering a poor crop year and high interest rates, Lamesa officials are pleased with the $2,193,678 in building permits issued in the city during 1978.

Permits for December totaled $138,950.

For the year, 38 new homes were built in the city, with permits totaling $431,250. Commercial permits totaled $422,300, with the Cotton Oil Mill at $125,000 the largest of the group.

Also included in the permit total is $98,727 for eight mobile homes and remodeling permits, $116,156 for residential and $42,000 for commercial.

Wildcat scheduled in Crane region

Samedan Oil Corp. of Midland spotted location for a 3,876-foot wildcat in Crane County, 20 miles southwest of Penwell.

It will be completed from the San Angelo zone as a wildcat. Operator plans to triple complete the project, with the other two ways the McKnight and Tubb in the Sand Hills multipay area.

The project is No. 13-F-A J. B. Tubb, 2,603 feet from south and 1,283 feet from west lines of section 17, block 32, psi survey. It is surrounded by McKnight and Tubb production.

ANDREWS EXPLORER

Rankin Oil Co. No. 1 Fuhrman and others is to be drilled as a multipay wildcat in Andrews County, 16 miles west of Andrews.

Scheduled on a 7,400-foot contract, it will test the lower Clear Fork at 6,800 feet and the Wichita-Albany as a wildcat. The location is 2,000 feet southeast of the Rankin No. 1 Seidel, recently staked wildcat and one location southwest of production in the Furman-Mascho (4,400-foot) field.

Drillsite is 853 feet from north and east lines of section 15, block A-42, psi survey.

FIELD PROJECT

Continental Oil Co. No. 4-12 University is a re-entry project in the Hutex (Dean) area of Andrews County, 20 miles northeast of Andrews.

Originally drilled to 10,200 feet and plugged in 1959 in the Hutex (Devonian) area, it is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 12, block 8, University Lands survey.

FIELD PRODUCERS

David & Inez G. Fasken of Midland announced potential tests on a pair of new wells in the Serio (Grayburg) pool of Andrews County, 18 miles southeast of Andrews.

No. 15-2-Y Fee was completed on the pump for a 24-hour potential of 64 barrels of 30.2-gravity oil and 107 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 105-1.

Completion was through perforations from 4,720 to 4,794 feet after 500 gallons of acid.

Total depth is 4,892 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set at total depth. Plugged back depth is 4,841 feet.

Wellsite is 777 feet from north and 1,181 feet from east lines of section 2, block 41, T-2-N, G&MB&A survey.

David & Inez G. Fasken No. 14-29-K Fee was completed for a daily pumping potential of 166 barrels of 30.3-gravity oil, plus 19 barrels of water, through perforations from 4,790 to 4,804 feet. The pay was acidized with 5,000 gallons.

Total depth is 4,900 feet, 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 4,858 feet.

Wellsite is 467 feet from north and 1,700 feet from east lines of section 29, block 40, T-2-N, T&P survey and 18 miles southeast of Andrews.

MARTIN OILER
RK Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 2 Florence is a new well in the RK (Devonian) pool of Martin County, 3/4 mile north of Tarzan.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 160 barrels of 44.7-gravity oil, no water, through a 6/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,749 to 11,794 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 62-1.

Knox stakes Regan tests in Spraberry

Knox Industries, Inc., of Midland spotted locations for three projects in the Spraberry Trend Area field of Reagan County, 10 miles north of Best.

Each of the projects are contracted to 8,200 feet.

No. 1-A Turner is 11,949 feet from north and 1,420 feet from the most southerly east line of Andrew Roach survey No. 1, abstract 401.

No. 2-A Turner is 11,949 feet from north and 4,260 feet from the most southerly east line of Andrew Roach survey No. 1.

Knox No. 2 Evans was spotted 9,929 feet from north and 6,902 feet from the most easterly east line of Andrew Roach survey No. 1, abstract 401.

SPRABERRY WELL
Southland Royalty Co. of Midland No. 1-H University is a new well in the Spraberry Trend Area field of Reagan County, eight miles northwest of Big Lake.

It completed on the pump for a 24-hour potential of 60 barrels of oil and 130 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,680 to 7,233 feet. The pay was acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

Gravity of the oil is 40 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 2,063-1.

Total depth is 7,410 feet in the Dean and 5.5-inch casing was cemented on bottom. The plugged back depth is 7,345 feet.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 31, block 58, University Lands survey.

Operator drilled to 11,794 feet and set 5.5-inch pipe on bottom.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 3, block 37, T-2-N, T&P survey and one location east of other Devonian production.

UPTON ACTIVITY

Cola Petroleum, Inc., of Midland No. 1-41 Harry is to be drilled 0.5 miles southwest of production in the Calvin (Dean) field of Upton County, 3.5 miles southeast of Midkiff.

Slated for a 9,300-foot bottom, it is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 41, block 37, T-5-S, T&P survey.

CALVIN WELL

Cola Petroleum also announced potential test on two new wells in the Upton County portion of the Calvin (Dean) field.

No. 2-29 Elkin, three miles southeast of Midkiff.

It completed for a daily pumping potential of 106 barrels of 40-gravity oil and 40 barrels of water, through perforations from 8,372 to 9,060 feet, after 4,000 gallons of acid and 135,000 gallons of fracture solution. Gas-oil ratio is 1,792-1.

Total depth is 9,110 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom. Plugged back depth is 9,088 feet.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 29, block 37, T-5-S, T&P survey.

The operator completed No. 1-29 Elkin for a daily pumping potential of 127 barrels of 40-gravity oil, plus 30 barrels of water, through perforations from 8,386 to 9,068 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 1,200-1. The pay section was acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 120,000 gallons.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 29, block 37, T-5-S, T&P survey and 28 miles north of Rankin.

CASS WELL

Frank Cass of Dallas No. 4-21 Proctor, a former Spraberry Trend-Area well in Upton County, has been re-completed in the Calvin (Dean) field.

On 24-hour potential test it finaled for a daily flow of 80 barrels of 47-gravity oil, no water, through an 18/64-inch choke and perforations from 8,895 to 9,096 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 4,666-1.

Operator treated the pay with 4,000 gallons of acid and fractured it with 8,897 gallons.

Location is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 21, block 37, T-5-S, T&P survey and three miles southeast of Midkiff.

SPRABERRY TEST

Parker & Parsley, Inc., of Midland announced location for an 8,900-foot project in the Spraberry Trend Area field of Upton County, 12 miles north of Rankin.

The new test is No. 1 Morgan, 660 feet from south and east lines of section 33, block B, CCSD&RGNG survey. Ground elevation is 2,735 feet.

MOBIL WELLS

Mobil Oil Corp. has completed four re-entry projects from the Spraberry in the Pegasus multipay area of Upton and Midland counties. Three of the wells are in Upton County.

The No. 2305 Pegasus Spraberry Unit, 25 miles southwest of Midland in Upton, completed for a daily pumping potential of 12 barrels of 34.7-gravity oil and 38 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 333-1, through perforations from 7,634 to 8,143 feet.

The pay was acidized with 7,500 gallons and fractured with 100,000 gallons.

Total depth is 10,322 feet in the Pennsylvania, and plugged back depth is 8,180 feet. The 5.5-inch casing is set at 10,199 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 37, block 41, T-4-S, T&P survey.

Mobil No. 4206 Pegasus Spraberry Unit was completed on the pump for 37 barrels of 34.9-gravity oil and 136 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,608 to 8,073 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 432-1.

Total depth is 10,476 feet in the Pennsylvania and 5.5-inch pipe is set at 10,476 feet. The plugged back depth is 8,213 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 48, block 41, T-4-S, T&P survey.

Mobil potential its No. 4101 Pegasus Spraberry Unit for a daily pumping potential of 10 barrels of oil 34.6-gravity oil and 49 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,429-1, through perforations from 7,556 to 8,109 feet.

The pay was acidized with 7,500 gallons and fractured with 100,000 gallons.

Total depth is 13,133 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 13,002 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 43, block 40, T-4-S, T&P survey.

The Midland County well is Mobil No. 128 Spraberry Unit.

It completed for a 24-hour pumping potential of 39 barrels of 34.8-gravity oil and 166 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,607 to 8,097 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 256-1. The pay was acidized with 7,500 gallons and fractured with 100,000 gallons.

Total depth is 10,310 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 290, block 40, T-4-S, T&P survey.

Ed Leede

Ed Leede will speak

The first 1979 meeting of the Desk & Derrick Club of Midland will be held Tuesday at Midland Country Club.

The meeting will begin at 7 p. m. The speaker will be Ed Leede of Midland, managing partner of Leede Exploration. He will speak on "The Challenge of Being Independent." Leede is a director of The Midland National Bank, The Petroleum Club, Hillander School, the YMCA and is president of Leede Oil and Gas, Inc.

The speaker also is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen, the Independent Petroleum Association of America, and the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Schlesinger says demand for oil cut back nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' demand for oil will have to be cut back if Iran's oil production remains shut off for another three months, says Energy Secretary James Schlesinger.

He added Sunday that Iran's political turmoil has "permanently impaired" that country's ability to produce oil and the United States may have to ease domestic environmental restrictions to make up the difference.

However, Schlesinger said environmental concerns are a sensitive issue and his view is not unanimously shared in the Carter administration.

While the secretary repeated earlier assurances that the Iranian crisis will not affect U.S. supplies for two to three months, he said, "If this shut off were to go on for three months, let us say, we would have to begin steps to constrain demand here in the United States."

Schlesinger said the U.S. shortfall can be offset if Americans follow voluntary conservation measures such as observing the 55 mph speed limit, setting thermostats to 65 degrees and limiting unnecessary driving.

But to make up for the lost Iranian supplies, "we're drawing down stocks, worldwide. ... We are borrowing against the future," he said.

When asked about Iran resuming full production, Schlesinger said, "I think we have to recognize now that Iranian production is unlikely ever to return to the pre-crisis level. If we get production back to 5 million, 5.5 million barrels a day, I think that would be fortunate."

Before its current problems, Iran produced about 6 million barrels of oil daily.

"We should begin to plan for increasing production elsewhere," Schlesinger added, pointing out specifically California and the North Slope of Alaska.

Schlesinger also predicted that gasoline prices will rise 6 or 7 cents during the next year. But during the

Offshore oil lease sale 'will have little impact'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next month's additional sale of oil and gas leases off New Jersey will have little impact on the nation's energy needs, says U.S. Rep. William Hughes, D-N.J.

The congressman has asked the Interior Department to postpone the sale until more results are determined from tracts under development.

In a letter to Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus, Hughes said sale of the offshore tracts next month would make oil companies richer.

"We have hardly scratched the surface in terms of exploring acreage that has already been leased in the mid-Atlantic," Hughes said Thursday in the letter to Andrus.

"It just doesn't make sense to offer additional acreage which would more than double the amount of public offshore lands under lease to private companies."

Hughes, a member of the House Select Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf, said exploration work has been completed on eight of the 93 nine-mile tracts sold by the department in 1976 to the oil companies. Drilling continues at two lease sites.

Voracious fuel appetite could cause troubles

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A voracious appetite for fossil fuels could change the world's climate so drastically that an overgrown ocean might one day send waves crashing against the steps of the U.S. Capitol, scientists suggest.

And while some climate researchers described man-made actions that could raise temperatures, melt polar ice caps and inundate coastal cities, others warned that nature itself is pushing the world slowly but inexorably toward a new ice age.

The panel outlined some possible future weather problems at a news conference Sunday during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"We've had 10,000 or 11,000 years of warmth, and judging from the geologic record, we're just about had our ration," said John Mercer of Ohio State University. "In the natural course of events, we would probably sink gradually into the next ice age."

"But," he said, "the advent of man and his proclivity for fossil fuels may alter the picture somewhat."

He said man may force the climate artificially toward the opposite extreme.

The threat is called the "greenhouse effect," a subject of growing debate over the past two decades.

Some scientists warn that the atmosphere is being dangerously overloaded with carbon dioxide, a byproduct of burning oil, coal and natural gas.

Carbon dioxide acts a bit like the glass walls of a greenhouse — it allows the sun's heat to reach the Earth, then keeps much of it from being reflected back into space.

Roger Revelle of the University of California at San Diego said some experts predict that within 75 years world energy consumption could double the amount of carbon dioxide normally found in the atmosphere. He said that could raise global temperatures an average of more than 5 degrees Fahrenheit.

Mercer said that's enough extra heat to melt perhaps 10 percent of the gigantic ice sheets of Antarctica and add incredible amounts of water to the oceans. The last time the ice melted, about 125,000 years ago, sea levels rose at least 12 to 20 feet, he said.

Mercer said the warming trend might take a century or more or it might occur catastrophically in a few decades or even years. Revelle said the warming could continue for 1,000 years.

Steven Schneider of the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo., said studies of the possible consequences of melting ice caps indicate that as much as $250 billion worth of property could be lost to the ocean in the United States alone.

He said rising seas might cover one-third of Florida and bury large portions of the Texas coast and the southern Atlantic seaboard under water. Up to 15 million people might lose their homes.

"In Washington, D.C., you would be able to launch boats from the bottom of the Capitol steps" if sea levels increased 25 feet, he said.

Schneider said the West Coast, with its deeper coastline, would suffer "only relatively minor losses."

"I'm not predicting that will occur," Schneider stressed. "There are many people who think it will not. But at our present level of knowledge, we can't be sure whether or not it will occur."

But James Hays of Columbia University said that would not alter his forecast of cold centuries to come — the result of cyclic changes in the Earth's orbit about the sun.

"The long-term trend over thousands of years is toward cooling," he said. "It may well be that we will get a (warming) bump in there, but its duration will be limited. Then you'd go back to the long-term trend. You could have both."

Equipment supplied

HOUSTON — National Supply Co., division of Armo, is providing the drilling equipment for five offshore oil rigs now under construction for the People's Republic of China, it was announced by T.C. Rogers, National Supply president.

All five packages call for electric powered rigs capable of drilling to depths of 20,000 feet.

Bargain brings no sale

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sometimes you can't even sell a bargain, not even a no-strings-attached parking space for a dime a day.

"It's just unbelievable," complained Barnes Romine Jr. With business sagging at his huge parking lot, he dropped his daily price to 10 cents, an unusually low charge for downtown drivers who generally shell out $1 and up. But it didn't help a bit.

"I got some signs that are 8 feet long," Romine said. "Why I'm not getting any business I just don't know."

The parking lot lies at the fringe of a neighborhood which is considered undesirable. Surrounding parking lots charge 25 cents a day.

Cities yield fossils

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Fossil hunters in urban areas need not leave the city to pursue their hobby. They can join the growing trend of spotting fossils in building stones.

Syracuse University geologist Osborne Nye says more and more fossil hunters and rock hounds are combing urban areas, enjoying the abundance of fossils to be found in building stones.

"If you are very lucky you might find some dinosaur footprints, but that would be unusual," Nye says. "I think the only place that would be likely would be in the brownstone houses in the New York City area."

"In almost every city and small town are buildings made of slabs of limestone that may contain fossils of clams, coral, sponges, even the lowly snail. Or you might find some plants, such as ferns," Nye says.

Arabs go for it

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Peanut butter is getting popular in the Middle East.

In the second year of a Georgia Farm Bureau exporting program, $120,000-worth of peanut butter has been shipped to the area.

That may not seem much but, as program director Bob Marlowe says, "You have to remember that the man I sold the first 15 cases to didn't even know what the stuff was."

Today it is distributed and sold in five Arab countries through food stores, and it is part of school lunch programs in Syria and Jordan.

Marlowe said Arab governments liked peanut butter because of its high protein and low sugar content. And to help educate Arab consumers about its merits, the Farm Bureau has a Lebanese public relations firm coordinating promotion of the product.

TIRES
 Bob Smith, owner of Town & Country Service, has had 17 years' experience in the service station business. His expert attention is available for the protection of your car at 1119 Andrews Highway. Mr. Floyd Williams, owner of Midland Drive 66, Midland Drive and Illinois, also offers dependable, full-service care for your automobile. Come by either location and once more experience almost-forgotten, old-fashioned service and attention to detail.

Full service at Midland 66

More people are using these days, and many cars are not getting the attention they need. West Texas' dusty conditions and extremes of temperature necessitate oil and filter changes more often than many manuals recommend.

As the family auto represents to the average family an investment second only to the home, it makes good financial sense to protect that investment with care which will ensure the best possible return in useful service and highest possible resale value.

Some know how to take care of their own cars and enjoy doing so, but the many who do not know how or do not care for the messy job will be happy to know the Phillips line of products and full, knowledgeable care is available to them at two locations: Town & Country 66 at 1119 Andrews Highway, and Midland Drive 66 at you did.

LOOKING FOR A PARTNER-OWNER-MANAGER

We want to see you in your own business—start at $10,000 to $20,000 annual income with deserving growth potential. You will be your own boss with responsibilities in the areas of personal and business time, management, hiring, firing, gross sales, net profit, food and labor costs. As you know, opportunities that allow for personal and business growth, financial security, community respect and development require an above average contribution in the areas of time, effort and abilities. If you are tired of working for the other man, and you feel that the time is right for you and your wife to take advantage of this opportunity, contact us immediately. Relocation in your general area is possible but not a necessity. For additional information and the possibility of a personal interview, send your resume—work record and personal references to:

Dallas Cowboys play it again for Rams

By TED GREEN (C) 1979, The Los Angeles Times LOS ANGELES — They reran what seemed like an old movie Sunday at the Coliseum. Call it: Play It Again, Rams.

For the fourth time in the last five years a Los Angeles team that by now would beg, borrow or steal to get into the Super Bowl came into the National Football Conference championship game just one win away from its goal. And for the fourth time the goal eluded the Rams.

This time the Dallas Cowboys beat them, 28-0, in a game dominated thoroughly by two dynamic defenses before the Rams — crippled by the last of too many key injuries in 1978, frustrated by too many offensive mistakes and demoralized by impending failure in yet another playoff game — gave up two meaningless touchdowns in the last three minutes.

A crowd of 67,470 and millions more watching television saw Dallas' Doomsday defense make it exactly that kind of day for the Rams with five interceptions, two fumble recoveries and what then seemed like a critical fourth-and-one stop with the score 7-0 late in the third quarter.

From the Dallas 13, reserve fullback Jim Jodat hit the wrong hole, epitomizing the play of L.A.'s offense all afternoon, and the Cowboys took over on downs.

THEY ALSO took over, period, knocking Rams quarterback Pat Haden out of the game with a badly fractured thumb before scoring three more touchdowns to fly into Super Bowl XIII against Pittsburgh on the wings of what will look like a lopsided victory in the record books.

Two of those Dallas interceptions, by strong safety Charlie Waters, positioned quarterback Roger Staubach &

Co. so deep in Rams territory (at the 10 and 20-yard lines) that the Cowboys' offense cashed them in at a time when it was barely budging the Rams' league-leading defense, which as usual played with a lot of heart. Dallas, to be specific, scored its first two touchdowns after a 0-0 first half while gaining 20 yard total offense. That's right, 20.

But opportunism, of course, often separates winners and losers, and the Cowboys made all 20 yards count. Halfback Tony Dorsett — who gained more than half of his 101 rushing yards on a late, 53-yard gallop — scored the first touchdown on a 5-yard sweep. And fullback Scott Laidlaw atoned for a horrendous mistake in the first half (he fumbled at the goal line) by catching a 4-yard swing pass from Staubach for the second touchdown.

A third Dallas interception, by linebacker Tim Henderson, turned out to be a final indignity for the Rams, as Henderson returned one of backup Vince Ferragamo's passes 68 yards for the fourth and last touchdown with 1:19 left in the game.

This was the same "Hollywood" Henderson who last week said that the Rams didn't have enough class to reach the Super Bowl. Hollywood rather brazenly predicted a Dallas win. The fact that he was dead right must have only added insult to injury, because Henderson, as the players say, was talking stuff to L.A.'s players as the game wound down.

TIGHT END Billy Joe DuPree caught an 11-yard touchdown pass from Staubach less than two minutes before Henderson's long return against a defense that was not only tired from having to carry the load but bitterly disappointed, as well.

Before they go their respective ways for a sixth-month rest, the Rams will doubtless be reminded of several numbers, including 37-7, the score Dallas beat them by in the 1975 NFC title game, and five, the number of times their conference archrival has qualified for Super Sunday since 1970.

But the only one that really matters to the Rams is six, their number of consecutive playoff appearances without reaching the promised land. Judging from the mood in their dressing room — no tears, no excuses, just long faces either blank or quietly resigned — Sunday's loss was not a shock necessarily, yet that didn't soften its aftereffects one bit.

"This is probably the most painful one of all," said guard Tom Mack, the club's oldest statesman and a man who'd been on four other Ram teams that lost the NFC title game. "To people it's a game. To us it's not only a business, it's our lives. It's very, very disappointing."

BEFORE they were disappointed again on a cool, overcast afternoon, the Rams had reason to think this really was their year. They had defeated Dallas, 27-14, here early in the season to go with six other wins over 1978 playoff teams (against just one loss). They had exercised the so-called Minnesota Jinx with a 34-10 win over the Vikings in a playoff game a week ago. And they were confident enough to call themselves the best and hungriest Rams team this decade, partly because they overcame plenty of adversity, including a coaching change (George Allen to Ray Malavasi) two weeks before the league opener. All this and homefield advantage, too.

But it was not to be on a day when the Rams compounded the damaging loss of starting fullback John Cappelletti — who separated his shoulder in the first quarter — by committing seven turnovers. That kind of sloppy play does not win championship games. L.A.'s offense started the season behind the eight-ball after major injuries to their three fastest (and probably best) running backs, Lawrence McCutcheon, Wendell Tyler and rookie Elvis Peacock. That offense struggled more often than not, and it seemed symbolic that the Rams' season, for all intents and purposes, ended with still another blunder — where else? — deep in scoring territory.

Cullen Bryant, the 235-pound halfback who stepped in and did his best with what he had, fumbled at the Dallas 10 in the fourth quarter, and

Oilers fail to establish swimming game

By DAVE KINDRED (c) 1979, The Washington Post

PITTSBURGH — Trouble was, the Oilers never established their swimming game. Pittsburgh beat Houston, 34-5, Sunday to gain entrance to the Super Bowl. They played in a freezing rain that transformed Three Rivers Stadium into One Big Lake. The winning quarterback is the husband of an ice skater, and maybe that explains Sunday's mysteries as well as anything.

Terry Bradshaw of the Steelers is better known in figure-eight circles as Mr. Jo Jo Starbuck. Skating in cleats, Bradshaw threw passes as if warmed by the summer sun. His opposite number, Dan Pastorini, was an abominable snowman. Bradshaw had two touchdown passes and 200 yards; Pastorini threw for only 96 yards and put up five interceptions.

"Just goes to show ya football ain't meant to be played outdoors," said the Oilers' publicity master, Jack Cherry. Houston's comfy Astrodome would have reduced the incidence of pneumonia in the 49,417 raincoated crazies who dared the 26-degree temperature. But had the game gone on in Martinique, say the Oilers had no chance.

The Steelers are the best team in football. They beat Denver, 33-10, a week ago and could have named the number Sunday. Someone wondered if the teams would change uniforms at halftime to get dry, and a wise guy said, "If the Oilers are half smart, they'll put on black-and-gold uniforms." They would have fumbled the pants.

THE OILERS fumbled six times in the first half. The best running back alive, Earl Campbell, fumbled three times in a stretch of four carries. With 83 seconds to play in the first half, Pittsburgh led by only 14-3.

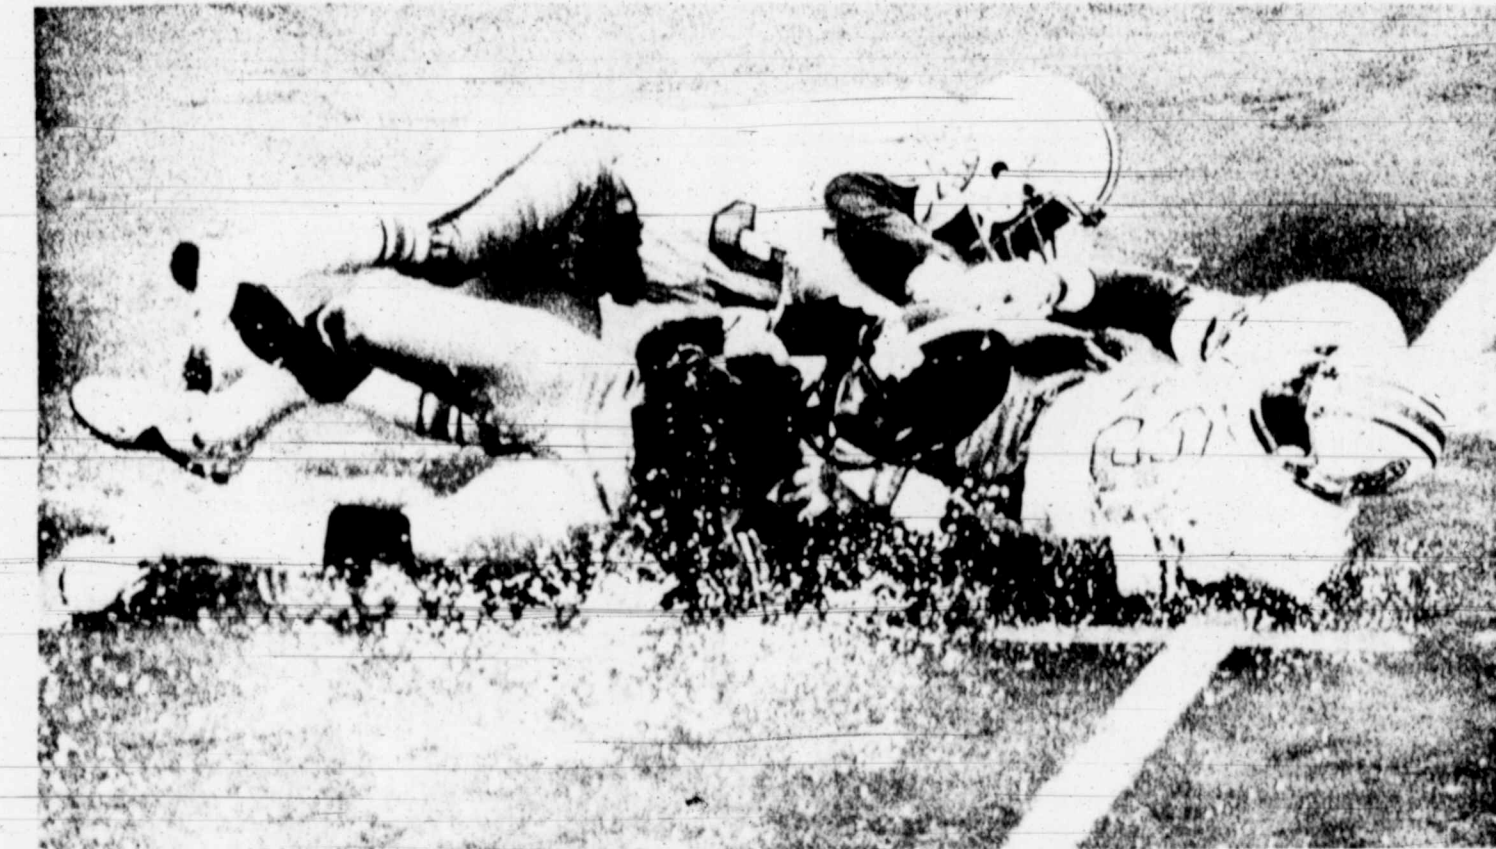

Then began what a football purist might have called a vulgar parody of his beloved sport. Every one else was laughing his socks off. Franco Harris of the Steelers had fumbled for the fourth time, giving Houston hope, but Houston fumbled the ball back.

Bang, Bradshaw hits Lynn Swann for a touchdown. It's 21-3 with 52 seconds to play in the half. And here comes the Oilers' Johnnie Dirden returning the next kickoff. The Steelers are steaming downfield. And before anyone gets within five yards of Dirden, the guy fumbles. The ball suddenly pops up in the air. Pittsburgh recovers.

Bang, Bradshaw hits John Stallworth for a touchdown. It's 28-3 with 33 seconds left.

On Houston's first play, another fumble. Bang, Roy Gerela kicks a field goal and it's 31-3. In 48 seconds, the Steelers scored 17 points while the Oilers ran exactly one play from scrimmage.

BY HALFTIME, there had been 11 fumbles. Someone suggested issuing suitcases to the runners in the second half, the better to carry the slithering

Steelers' Lynn Swann (dark jersey) splashes down after taking one of four passes good for 98 yards in Sunday's rout of Houston. (AP Laserphoto)

Tracy Austin...on the rampage.

Giant killer does it again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teenager Tracy Austin doesn't look like a giant killer on the tennis court — she just plays like one.

The 16-year-old Austin, a 5-foot-3, pig-tailed schoolgirl who turned pro only last October, easily outplayed top-seeded Martina Navratilova 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to win the $125,000 Washington tournament, first of 11 on the women's indoor tennis circuit.

"Tracy kind of hits the ball the same," said Navratilova, winner of the tournaments here in 1975, 1977 and 1978.

"She doesn't change the pace too much. Once in a while, she may hit a slow one. But she puts top spin on everything. And generally she keeps the ball in play."

AUSTIN, WHO earned $24,000 for winning, controlled the match completely, breaking once in the first set and once in the second. Hitting primarily to Navratilova's backhand, she never permitted Navratilova to get into the match.

Austin, the No. 2 seed, said merely, "I just played my game."

"She's like Chris," Navratilova said, comparing Austin to star Chris Evert. "She's not going to have a bad day. She's consistent. It's more up to the other person on how the pace is going to go."

NAVRATILOVA, whose serve and volley game fell apart completely against the baseline play of Austin, earlier said the young Californian reminds her very much of Evert, who has dominated women's tennis in recent years.

"Their styles are so similar that if you didn't look at their faces, you would think you're playing the same person," she said.

Ivana Kloss of South Africa, who lost to Austin in the semifinal round, said, "I thought Chris was going to be around for awhile, but it looks like Tracy is going to be around for a long time."

Austin played her normal game of placements, passes and few errors. Her serve lacked the power of Navratilova, but the latter didn't score an ace and became frustrated with Austin's returns and her own mistakes.

Panel says NCAA rules unfair

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided House subcommittee says the NCAA's rules enforcement program is unfair and should be changed by the intercollegiate sports organization voluntarily without federal legislation.

The House investigations subcommittee, in a report divided along political lines, recommended that an independent "Blue Ribbon" committee be created during the current NCAA convention in San Francisco to study the program "with a view toward essential fairness in the system."

That panel should submit its findings so that they can be considered by the NCAA membership at next year's meeting. The NCAA Council, the organization's 18-member policy-making board, has already informed the House panel it sees no reason to create a study commission to review the enforcement program because the rules are undergoing constant change, a view shared by Republican members of the investigations committee. However, the House Democrats, under the chairmanship of Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said in the majority report that if the NCAA officials prevent the creation of the blue-ribbon committee, "the subcommittee will reluctantly re-examine its present posture with respect to federal intervention in intercollegiate athletics." The House report, consisting of both majority and minority views, was released today by the House oversight and investigations subcommittee, which studied the NCAA rules program for more than a year and a half, both in Washington and San Francisco, where the National Collegiate Athletic Association is holding its 73rd annual convention. The House subcommittee investigated the NCAA at the instigation of Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., after the basketball program at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas was placed on probation during the summer of 1977.

Chairman Moss, who retired after the last session of Congress, said in a cover letter that "an unbiased observer" sees "a sanctioning body with incredible power which may affect the careers and ambitions of coaches and student-athletes, as well as the stature of virtually every institution of higher education in this country. This power is exercised by the NCAA without observance to what we all assume are the minimal standards of fairness." In the report, the subcommittee assesses the fairness of the NCAA rules enforcement program — investigations, hearings, appeals and penalties — and makes recommendations for change, many of which the NCAA has said have already been instituted, are under consideration or simply not feasible nor practical.

The subcommittee said it uses "the term 'fairness' in its popular, non-legalistic sense. In

So grid coach uttered a naughty

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The customers always write: From Springfield, Ohio, a football fan sticks his ear into the controversy over whether television microphones should invade the privacy of the coach's bench during a game and then he stays around to throw some extra gasoline on the fire.

Why get exercised, the outraged reader asks, just because a coach (in this case, UCLA's Terry Donahue in the Fiesta Bowl) emits an offensive word in the heat of battle?

"You hear worse than that and even see worse on everyday TV," he says. "Have you ever watched 'Soap'? It's a normal reaction and could have been worse."

It isn't profanity that irritates the Ohio reader so much as the networks' failure to give the viewer credit for being able to absorb what he sees and hears.

TV IS choked with "talking machines," he insists.

"A football fan watching the game is a real fan," he adds. "He knows the teams participating, knows it takes 10 yards to make a first down and ... when a player carries the ball across the goal line it is a touchdown and when he kicks a field goal it is three points."

"The people who don't know football don't watch it, the people who don't like sports don't watch it. Are the networks trying to make the watching public ... some kind of idiots?"

The critic protests that his ears take a worse beating than his eyes.

"They are not satisfied with one man on the mike. Now they have two, three and four to keep their mouths going," he concludes. "If I'm watching a game I know what it's all about. I don't need all that mouthing."

This grass roots critique is repeated here because it represents perhaps the most general complaint against winter's favorite weekend pastime, TV football — too much constant chatter, too much re-creation of occurrences that are obvious, too much condescending explanation of the simplest formations and plays.

But papa knows best. So the band plays on.

A READER from Omaha, Neb., has another complaint, which may stem from the pain of the Nebraska Cornhuskers' loss to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

"If you tuned in to all the bowl games," the writer says, "you have to believe there were a hundred All-Americans in action. Every player was magnificent, excellent or fantastic."

Most of us can stand the superlatives. But deliver us from the broadcaster who tabs every leading performer "some kind of football player" and every yard he gains "valuable real estate."

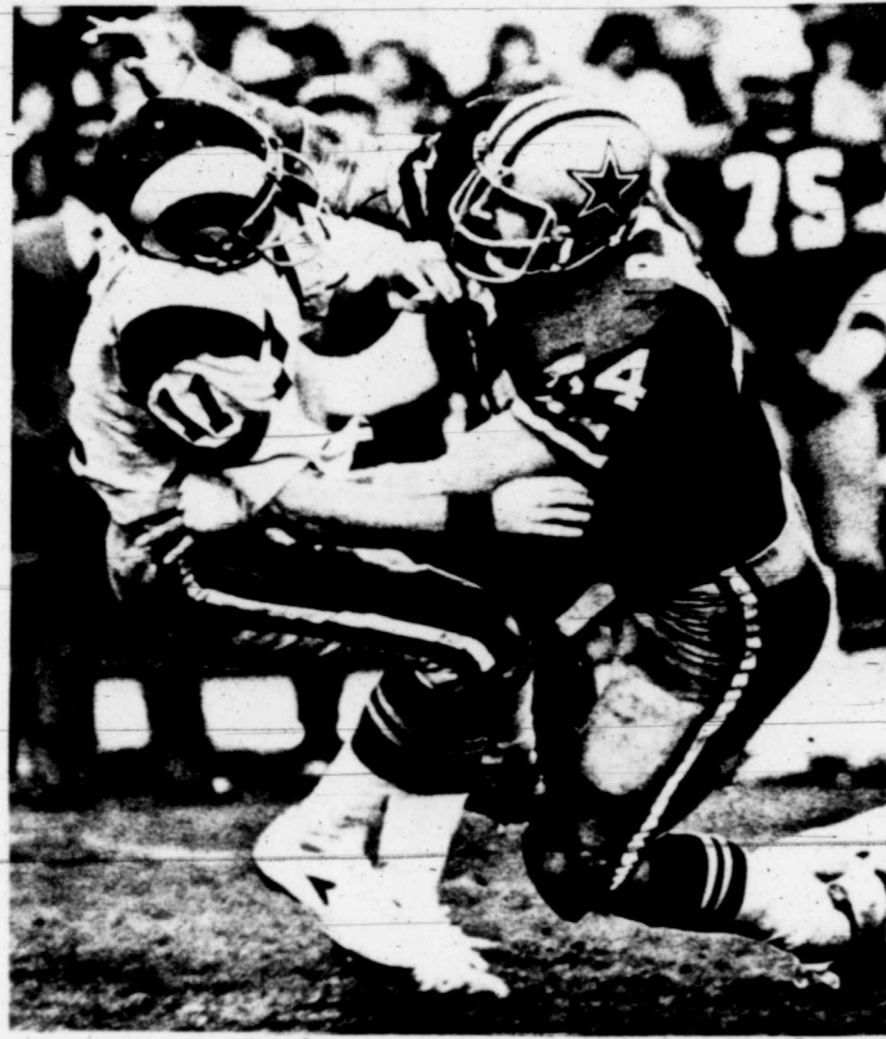

Then, there's the pundit who accents team possession by saying, "The Cowboys lead 14-7 and own the football ... Own the football? Really? Every bit of it?"

A lady in New Orleans protests that Jimmy Connors, the fiery No. 1 tennis player in the world, is victim of a media conspiracy.

"Jimmy is the world's most exciting athlete," she says. "Why don't all you reporters leave him alone? He is an adult. He has a right to act any way he pleases and protect his privacy. Tennis would be a duller and poorer sport if there were not a Jimmy Connors."

From Columbus, Ohio, comes a similar defense of Woody Hayes, the ousted Ohio State coach who slugged a Clemson player in the Gator Bowl.

"Woody Hayes has been a wonderful coach and compiled a great record at Ohio State. He has done many fine things for others for which he has received little credit. Why should his image be destroyed by one impetuous — if regrettable — act?"

Rams' Pat Haden is knocked out of game by Randy White, who also sent running back John Cappelletti to the sidelines with a shoulder separation.

USAC to continue engine change tests

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club will begin tests this week to determine the extent of changes needed in manifold pressure, cubic inch displacement and fuel consumption to conform with stock block engine specifications.

USAC, deserted by most of the big-name race car owners and drivers, on Saturday ratified the use of the stock blocks for its Indy-type cars this season to make championship racing more competitive.

"We intend to have independent tests performed by qualified people," said Reynold C. MacDonald, re-elected Saturday as USAC board chairman. "Each party involved will not be informed of what results are being obtained by other testers."

None of the test personnel will be from Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART), the group that broke with USAC last month to form a separate championship racing organization.

The USAC engine changes, proposed last month, were designed to reduce speeds and costs of racing, but USAC denied it was prompted by the defection of CART.

"There was no mention of CART at all," said USAC spokesman Paul Reinhard. "These things are for our racing. We can't say this is going to bring CART back. This was done to reinforce what had been done when the (track) promoters were here."

Promoters from seven major auto racing tracks met with USAC president Dick King on Dec. 27, at which time tentative approval of the stock block concept and an 11-event schedule for 1979 were announced.

CART, meanwhile, announced on Friday the appointment of three officials and some 20 confirmed entries, including five former Indianapolis 500 winners, for its first two races.

Suspended NCAA advised to mend ways by House group

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Cynthia "Sippy" Woodhead, 14, of Riverside, Calif., is barred from representing the United States in international competition for the next three months, but she's staying in shape.

Although suspended by the AAU with 12 teammates for breaking curfew after a birthday party, Miss Woodhead was permitted to compete this past weekend in a women's international meet at Harvard.

So, she won the 500-yard freestyle event.

East Germany won seven of 14 events, Americans won five, Great Britain one and Romania one.

the main, this is owing to the subcommittee's finding that self-reform by the NCAA is possible and preferable, and its consequential recommendation that for the time being the role of Congress be limited to one of oversight and that Congress not legislate a federal property right or otherwise create an interest in which legalistic "due process" rights would automatically attach.

Among the 11 basic rights listed by the committee were: reasonable notice of what the rules are in advance of having to follow them; based in turn on a sensible and understandable scheme of regulatory precepts so

Yawn, I think this time it was the Dallas safety

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Pardon me (yawn) but I think this is where I came in.... I think I've seen this flick before....

Stop me if you've heard this one, but the Rams got beat back on the doorstep of the Super Bowl again Sunday. Happens every year about this time. Strictly "Dog Bites Man" stuff. It's like saying "The butler did it." The Rams are the guys in the black hats again.

This time it wasn't raining, the temperature was well above zero, the natives were friendly, the grass wasn't too short, the officials were impartial, the game wasn't played too far from Hollywood. And the score was 28-0.

Actually, it wasn't that good a game. That was overkill at its worst. 2-0 would have been sufficient. The Rams wouldn't have scored if they were still playing.

Listen! You can't win a poker hand with a busted flush. You can't buy a house with a bum check. You can't win the Kentucky Derby with a dead horse. You can't win a duel blindfolded.

YOU CAN'T fight Dampsey with a patch over one eye or swim a channel or win a soccer cup on one leg. And you can't go to the Super Bowl with half a team.

The Rams defense was magnificent. But so was the Confederate Army under Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. So was the garrison at the Alamo. But when you've got nothing left to fight with, you're merely postponing the inevitable.

The Ram defense made Custer look like a pessimist. They stayed out there with arrows sticking out of them every which way and still clung to a chance to win the game even though they knew the only way they could do it was with a blocked punt or recovered fumble.

The trouble with the Ram offense was not so much that it was inept as that it was dangerous. The Rams were never in graver danger than when they had the ball. It was like giving a machine gun to a kid in a play pen.

You have heard of the great passing combinations of football history? Dorais-to-Rockne, Herber-to-Hutson, Baugh-to-Millner, Waterfield-to-Fears, Otto Graham-to-Lavelli or Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance.

Forget them. The championship game at the Coliseum Sunday unveiled the Haden-to-Waters combination, one of the prettiest of all time. It was Pat Haden's ability to deliver the ball to Charlie Waters when the pressure was on that made the difference.

In the third quarter when the game was still scoreless because the Ram defense, like a thin line at the bridge, kept throwing the invading hordes of Cowboys back, the Rams had the ball on their own 21, third-and-ten. Pat Haden faded deep, then threw the ball to the 30-yard-line. He completed it to Charlie Waters. It was the first pass he had completed in the half, and while Charlie Waters was eligible, all right, he was also hostile. He returned the interception to the 10.

Rams ain't going anywhere — again. In a way, the defense could feel like a fighter whose corner begins to unload on him, or a duellist who sees his second wink at the other guy as he loads the gun.

Forget the last 14 points. Those are what they call in basketball "garbage points." The last touchdown was another pass play from the Ram quarterback, in this case, Vince Ferragamo, to "Hollywood" Henderson, the Cowboys' Great Profile, the Sheik of Irving. It was the longest interception of playoff history, 68 yards, and "Hollywood" milked it for all it was worth. It was longer and more emotional than the death scene in "Camille." Hollywood was not only bucking for a Super Bowl, he was bucking for an Oscar.

THE RAMS tried to buy into a no-limit game with no chips. They tried to pioneer a new way to go to the Super Bowl — without points. They should have declared bankruptcy at the start — or waived their turn at the football. The Ram defense was a match for the Cowboy offense. But the Ram offense was no match for the Cowboy defense. Giving them the ball was like giving a guy a match whose business is in the red and the creditors are on the phone and he sheriff at the door.

It was the fourth time in five years the Rams got one foot in the door of the Super Bowl and then did a swoon. They remind me of an editor I once knew who had been given a budget and told to start up a new magazine for the company in Europe. He worked and strove and turned out these gorgeous displays and was loyal and trustworthy and sincere and supportive. Just like L.A. with the Rams. Finally they told him his project was going to be scrubbed. Sorry. He wired back: "If you weren't going to kiss me, why did you keep me standing on tiptoe all those years?"

The Ram fans might ask the same question. If they're going to leave us on the church steps every year, why don't they just say so in the first place? Then we can go surfing on game day or stay home and fix the sink. We can just prepare a form story, leaving blank only the name of opponent and score and time of game.

If a guy keeps coming around with candy and flowers and invitations to a dance or a movie or a champagne dinner — and then changes plans just when you plan your trousseau, the least you can do is throw the bum out. Or, in a pinch, I suppose you could say: "Listen, buster, I've seen your act. My suggestion to you is you take it to Anaheim. What do they know about two-timing there?"

THE COWBOYS couldn't even punch that one in past the Ram defenders until a Ram cornerback got detected taking a second hit downfield on a receiver. A no-no. The Cowboys got an automatic first down and four more chances to punch it in from the 8. Not even the German Army could stop that — 8 chances to get in from the 10-yard-line.

The score continued 7-0 for the rest of the third quarter until, with 1:52 to play, Pat again found his favorite receiver, Charlie Waters was open on the 49. The man for whom the pass was intended was not. Haden hit Waters on the numbers again, and Charlie rolled to the 20-yard line.

When the Cowboys converted that into a touchdown, you knew the dance was over. You could put away the balloons, burn the pom-poms, carry out the cello, shutter the pianos and turn down that damn radio. The

Oilers' Barber vows to get Steelers' back

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He later got tight-lipped, but Houston Oilers tight end Mike Barber made some angry threats after being cut down by a knee injury in a playoff loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The target of the threats, made on the field and in the locker room, was the man who hit him, Steelers safety Mike Wagner.

"I'm gonna get him ... he won't play in the Super Bowl," Barber yelled as he limped into the Oilers' locker room.

"What's he gonna do, wait for me in the driveway?" Wagner calmly responded later after saying the hit was done only in self-protection and purely part of the game.

THE THREAT wasn't made personally to Wagner. Barber shouted it to Steeler captain Joe Greene, who was outside the Oiler locker room offering handshakes after Houston's 34-5 loss here Sunday in the American Football Conference title game.

Barber was so angry he mistakenly referred to Wagner as "Webster."

"You tell that Webster that he's a cheap shot," said Barber, continuing the sentence with a string of unprintables.

"I'm gonna get him," he told Greene.

Barber was hurt on the first play of the second quarter on a long, incomplete pass over the middle. He and Wagner both raced for the ball. It sailed over Barber's head, then Wagner lowered his shoulder and chopped Barber down at the knee.

BARBER did not return to the game.

"I'll get him back," Barber repeated inside the Oilers locker room. "And when I do, he won't play a game again."

About a half-hour later, Barber was approached again by other reporters.

"I don't want to say anything," he said. "I'm so filled with anger right now that anything I say wouldn't be the real me. I just don't want to say anything."

After he was helped off the field, Barber pointed a finger at Wagner and yelled at him. He also yelled at him several times during the game.

"That's really smart. If that's his mentality, fine," said Wagner. "I can't worry about that."

Wagner said it wasn't a dirty play. "We were both running full speed. It was a collision course, and I was just hitting the dirt," said Wagner. "On a play like that, I'm not going to stand up and just take a shot ... all I could do was buckle and go down."

Former Army coach dies after surgery

MIAMI (AP) — Andy Gustafson, the colorful University of Miami football coach associated with some of the sport's most legendary names, is dead at age 75.

Gustafson died Sunday, a month after he suffered a stroke following kidney stone surgery. He entered Doctors Hospital Dec. 4 for the routine surgery, but suffered a stroke and developed pneumonia.

Gustafson coached the Hurricanes from 1948 through 1963, compiling a record of 93-65-3. He took Miami to four bowl games and coached the only Hurricane team ever to go unbeaten in 1950. That team lost to Clemson in the Orange Bowl.

He coached the famed Army backfield of Doc Blanchard, Glenn Davis and Arnold Tucker while serving as offensive backfield coach for Red Blaik in the 1940s. He played fullback at the University of Pittsburgh under the legendary Glenn "Pop" Warner and then Jock Sutherland in the mid-1920s.

After his playing days ended, Gustafson became head coach at Virginia Tech, where he compiled a four-year record of 22-13-1. He then returned to Pitt as an assistant coach, and in 1934 became an assistant to Blaik at Army in 1941.

Gustafson was a close friend of professional football's Paul Brown, and recruited Brown's son, Robin, as a quarterback for Miami.

Powerful owners block LA's bid for new team

By BILL BOYARSKY
(C) 1979, The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Powerful National Football League owners are opposing Los Angeles' campaign for an NFL team to replace the departing Rams.

But despite the strength of the opposition, local officials are confident of winning. Their goal: to continue the old local custom of stealing a team from another city, just as the baseball Dodgers were plucked from Brooklyn, the football Rams from Cleveland and the basketball Lakers from Minneapolis.

Members of Mayor Bradley's Football Search Committee are making their case on two unresented points.

One is the money to be made in this rich, sports-conscious area.

The second is the social gratification available to the owner of a National Football League franchise in an area where much of the most glittering social life is dominated by people from show business and sports.

"Having a team in L.A. puts them on top of the A (party) list," said Paul Ziffern, an attorney who is on the mayor's committee. "There's a psychological dividend in coming to Los Angeles."

AT PRESENT, attention is on Al Davis, the maverick managing general partner of the Oakland Raiders, a prosperous team playing in a stadium that has 16,000 fewer seats than the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

At a league meeting late last year, Davis told his fellow owners that if he decides to move to Los Angeles, he will do it no matter what his colleagues say.

Davis said that "he would reserve the right to act unilaterally," according to Herman Sarkowsky, managing general partner of the Seattle Seahawks. Davis' statement was also confirmed by William Bidwell of the St. Louis Cardinals.

But there are formidable obstacles in Los Angeles' path, including the opposition of some of the most powerful owners and, to some extent, of the league commissioner, Pete Rozelle.

From the Los Angeles viewpoint, much is at stake. The Rams' 1980 departure from the Coliseum to near-by Anaheim will be a financial blow to the old stadium. And it will be a civic setback to Los Angeles, where Mayor Bradley has been trying to prevent the flight of business from older areas.

There is much at stake on the league side. Rozelle has spent years trying to cultivate a solid image of sportsmanship, and the image could be marred by transient owners chasing dollars from one city to another.

Judging from interviews with Rozelle and some influential league owners, Los Angeles would have no chance of obtaining a transfer franchise, if the decision rested solely with the league.

Rozelle said none of the 28 franchises could justify a move to Los Angeles financially. Noting that all teams are making money, Rozelle said, "They couldn't say they're a failing franchise."

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys and one of the most influential owners, said, "I think we have very solid franchises and very solid cities, and one of the strengths of the NFL is that we have not moved franchises from city to city."

"I know of no franchise at the present time located in a city that I would vote to move out of that city to anywhere."

Another influential owner, Arthur B. Modell, president of the Cleveland Browns, said, "If Los Angeles has any chance — and this is my opinion — I think Los Angeles' chance would be expansion rather than a veteran franchise."

"I don't think it's good for a franchise to move," said Jim Kensil, president and chief operating officer of the New York Jets.

Seattle's Sarkowsky said, "On the surface, I would be opposed (to moving a franchise) because I don't think there is a single team in the league that warrants moving. All teams are getting community support. To deprive a community of a team to give Los Angeles a team doesn't seem right."

tackle on Miller at the 10.

By that time, Haden was already in the dressing room, having his fractured, dislocated right thumb reset. The Rams' quarterback was injured late in the third quarter on Randy White's helmet after the Cowboys' tough tackle flattened him and forced a weak pass, which Waters turned into his second interception.

Haden later had the thumb reset a second time; when he met reporters after the game, his arm was in a sling and the bandage on his thumb was blood-soaked, painful reminders of a 7-for-19 passing day during which he was not treated kindly by Dallas' defense.

"Great year, Pat," someone said as Haden left an empty locker room.

"Not great enough," Haden said, summing up his teammates' sentiments.

THAT MISPLAY immediately followed the most exciting offensive play of an otherwise dull trench fight — a long, sideline run by receiver Willie Miller after he caught a seemingly innocuous pass from Ferragamo. Miller turned it into a 65-yard gain, setting up the Rams a foot inside the 10 and thrilling fans who thought L.A. might somehow rally from 14 points behind with seven minutes to play.

The thrill didn't last. As it turned out, the Rams' real chance to score (beside Frank Corral's missed field goals from 37 and 45 yards in the first half) ended when Dallas safety Randy Hughes made a diving, saving

Schnellenberger wants UM post

Miami Dolphins' offensive coordinator Howard Schnellenberger, former Baltimore Colts head coach, wants the University of Miami head job. Schnellenberger, 44, has met with John Green, University of Miami executive vice president. "After 20 years, you want to continue to move forward. That's why I told Coach Shula that I wanted to apply for the job," he said.

Yoko Gushiken of Japan knocked out Venezuelan challenger Rogoberto Marciano with left to the jaw in the seventh round Sunday night and defended his WBA junior flyweight championship for the seventh time, a Japanese record. The end came just 36 seconds into the seventh round of the scheduled 15-round fight. The bell had saved Marciano from going down late in the sixth under a furious assault of rights and lefts to the head.

Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins was scheduled to arrive in San Francisco tonight as a tourist who may decide to come back and make the city his baseball home. The American League's seven-time batting champion has been given permission by Twins owner Calvin Griffith to talk with officials of the San Francisco Giants, the National League club that seeks to acquire him in a trade. Carew vetoed a proposed trade between his team and the Giants last month partly because he was not sure if he wanted to move to the West Coast city. Whether Carew ends up in a San Francisco uniform, however, will depend a lot more on the kind of money offered by the Giants than on how much Carew likes the city's climate and cable cars.

NBC-TV said it used a separate production unit for defensive replays during Sunday's Pittsburgh-Houston AFC championship game and said it would do the same for the Super Bowl on Jan. 21. A spokesman for NBC said it was the first time any network used a separate production unit solely for defensive replays. The spokesman said 23 such replays were shown, including four different angles of a hit by Pittsburgh's Mike Wagner on Houston's Mike Barber that forced Barber out of the game with a knee injury. The idea, which required 11 cameras and a second production crew working out of a separate truck...

Jimmy Insole of Mission Hills, Calif., set a track record for stock cars Sunday as he qualified on the pole for next Saturday's Stock Car Products 300 NASCAR Grant American race at Riverside International Raceway. Insole's average speed was 117.585 miles per hour in the same modified 1977 Camaro in which he set the previous track record of 116.031 mph last June. The record for this race is 116.007 mph also set by Insole in a Camaro. Tim Williamson of Seaside, Calif., will join Insole in the front row.

Waters has hair, Harris more quotable, or is it...?

By MIKE LITWIN
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — You'd think the Rams would have them straight by now. Charlie Waters is the one with hair. Cliff Harris is the one with enticing quotes. But check page 85 of your official souvenir NFC championship game program. Another Ram foul-up. Waters' name is under Harris' picture, and likewise I'm sure. The layout guy might have been the same person who designed the Rams' offense.

Okay, so the mistake is a natural. Waters and Harris are the Cowboys' safeties. All-pro each. You won't find a better combo this side of a New Orleans jazz band.

But on Sunday, on this biggest of all days, on a day that Charlie Waters will want to remember for all time, give Waters the safety pin.

He pinned the Rams in the 28-0 whitewash that left Los Angeles second best again.

He intercepted two passes, both leading to Cowboy touchdowns. He recovered a fumble. He generally made a nuisance of himself. He even got knocked out for a time. But as this game will be remembered, Waters will be credited with the knockout punch.

"IT'S SWEET," said Waters, a nine-year veteran who is that rare Cowboy who has known the bitter. "Yeah, I guess I'm glad it happened here."

Those who didn't think it could, those who thought the Rams really were going to the Super Bowl this year, just haven't been paying attention.

Just like the program fellow: "That's the second time this year it's happened," Waters reported. "You think they're doing it on purpose?"

Maybe. That first time the Rams beat the Cowboys. But that was the regular season, when it didn't really count. When it counts, count on the Cowboys. And count on those safeties, the final line of Doomsday Defense.

But it wasn't always that way for Waters. Think back to when Waters was an out-of-position cornerback. Think back to as late as 1973 when Harold Jackson beat Waters four times on touchdown passes. Think to that same year when Charley Taylor beat Waters for the winning touchdown that sent the Redskins — and not the Cowboys — to the Super Bowl.

"They never forget," said Waters. "No matter what you do, they never forget."

"No, this isn't my best game," said Waters, who once had three interceptions in a playoff game.

MOST SATISFYING? "Maybe," he admitted. "I don't know. After all the downs, this is one of the ups that you can savor." Waters doesn't like to talk about the down years, complete with negative press and jeering fans. He doesn't always care to be reminded of the seven operations or the year he played with a pin holding his right arm together.

"Charlie would really get down," said Harris. "It was hard on him. But he's a tough guy mentally. He would always pick himself up."

But let Waters have his day, free of the bad times.

"You never forget something like the Jackson thing," said Waters. "You learn from it. You overcome it. That's what I try to do."

And on Sunday... "It's funny," said Waters, "but I hardly even remember the first interception. I got knocked out trying to tackle (Pat) Haden at the end of the first half. I caught a knee to the helmet. I was really woozy."

At halftime, Harris gave Waters a quiz. He passed — barely.

"You don't know what it's like," said Harris. "It's like somebody gives you a sentence to read. You can see it, but you don't know what it says."

Woody, half out of it, Waters put the Rams all the way out of it.

"The first one was a long sideline route," said Waters. "I had help on the play, so I could gamble. I hoped the pass would be right there, and it was. I just slipped in. Pat had beaten me on the same play earlier, so I guess he wasn't expecting me there."

WATERS PICKED the ball off on the Rams' 30 and waltzed down the sideline to the nine. Four plays later, the feeble Cowboy offense scored. It was the third quarter and the game's first touchdown.

"I had to come off and ask Cliff the coverage," said Waters, who as strong safety is the man who calls the defensive plays.

"I was worried (about him)," admitted Harris.

The fans were worrying that time, too. Would anybody ever score? Would there be a mass sleep-in before America's TV screens?

No worry. Waters picked off another pass at the close of the third quarter to give the Cowboys possession on the Rams' 20. Five plays later, you know the rest.

"Thank goodness for Waters," said Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, who spent an afternoon under the spell — and bodies — of the Ram defense. "They should give him the game ball, name him the MVP. The whole defense did the job, but Charlie made the big plays."

Oops, You can't win 'em all, as Dallas fullback Scott Laidlaw discovers. The ball slipped away just as the Cowboys' running back was on his way to a score and Los Angeles recovered to momentarily thwart the Pokes. (AP Laserphoto)

Lee, MHS girl cagers in action

Midland Lee will attempt to hold on to its front-runner position in the District 5-4A girls basketball race while Midland High will be trying to keep up the pace as both squads take the court tonight.

While Midland Lee, 2-0 in district games, and Midland High, 2-1, are jockeying for the district lead with Abilene Cooper, also 2-0, their opponents tonight are battling for the league's cellar.

Lee will host Big Spring at the Lee gym and the Steers have had their share of hard luck this season. Big Spring is dead last in the league standings with an 0-3 mark. Their latest defeat came right here in Midland just two nights ago as Midland High captured a 35-21 decision.

Action is set to get underway with a junior varsity contest at 6:15 p.m. while the varsity game will be set for an 8 p.m. tipoff.

Midland High takes the road tonight for an 8 p.m. clash with San Angelo. Bobcats haven't fared well in district competition, dropping their only two league outings of the season. The junior varsity contest is slated for 6 p.m.

Rams were licked and showed it after 2nd TD

By the second half, the defenses were exercising such dominance that you figured it was over after the Cowboys converted a Charley Waters interception for its second touchdown and a 14-0 lead.

Quarterback Pat Haden had broken his right thumb on Randy White's helmet in his hurried attempt to beat the Manster's big rush. Up field Waters cut in front of Ron Jessie at the 50 and raced back to the 21 to set up the four-yard Roger Staubach to Scott Laidlaw touchdown pass.

There was still 14:02 left, plenty of time, but you knew the Rams were whipped when Vince Ferragamo came on the field to replace Haden in the next series, promptly hit three straight receivers in the hands and had all three dropped. It was the best series of passes a Rams quarterback had thrown all day, but the team that had rubbed it in by spitting on Dallas offensive players in that 27-14 win early in the season, had called it a year.

In the words of Dallas linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, the Rams "lacked the class to go to the Super Bowl."

That's not really fair, but sometimes it's hard to resist temptation when the devil is egging you on. Actually, there are a lot of class guys on the Rams and one of them is John Cappelletti. When the Rams, already short on running backs, lost John early in the game with a shoulder separation, it pretty much left it up to the Rams' defense to give the offense position for the easy score.

Cappelletti may not be the most talented back the Rams have, but he is their best money back, the one who on sheer determination will make the big play when it is needed most.

THE FINAL 28-0 margin is misleading. If the Rams offense floundered after drives of 58 and 40 yards that ended in missed field goal attempts in the first half, the Cowboys' attack didn't even show that much.

In fact, the way Dallas was spluttering offensively, it seemed as though it might be one of those days for Dallas. Charley Waters fumble recovery at the Rams' 30 early in the game after driving to first down on the two. Scott Laidlaw ran off the left side and it was his misfortune to be playing in the Coliseum rather than the Rose Bowl where he might have a touchdown instead of a fumble. The ball rolled into the end zone and although three Cowboys dove for the ball simultaneously, it squirted free and Jack Youngblood recovered for the touchback.

THAT WAS the last offense Dallas managed until Staubach hit Butch Johnson for 14 yards and Billy Joe Dupree for 22 for first down on the Los Angeles 38 with less than two minutes remaining in the half.

Oddly, Coach Tom Landry called two sideline passes to the sun-side of the field, forcing the receivers to search for the ball in the setting sun just above the top of the stands and the drive was over.

That's the way the Dallas defense, as it had a week ago against Atlanta, took command of the game. They put the pressure on Haden that resulted in the Waters interceptions. The first returned 30 yards to the 20, setting the stage for a three-yard TD jaunt by Tony Dorsett and the clincher in the fourth period. So Dallas led 14-0 on drives of 20 and 21 yards.

So now the Cowboys head for Miami and their fifth Super Bowl appearance against the Pittsburgh Steelers, to whom they lost at Miami in 1976 in Super X.

After watching the Steelers wade through Houston in atrocious playing conditions earlier in the day, one has the uneasy feeling that if the Cowboys play a first half like they have the last two weeks, there might not be much point in showing up for the second half.
