

66th Legislature opens today with property tax relief mandate

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 66th Legislature, holding a constitutional mandate for property tax relief and wondering how a Republican governor will deal with Democratic lawmakers, convened at noon today.

Early items of business included election of a House speaker, with Bill Clayton of Springlake expected to win an unprecedented third consecutive term, and appointment of Senate committees.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, presiding officer of the Senate, had one juicy plum to hand out — chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee, which writes that chamber's version of the two-year state budget.

Sen. A.M. Aikin, D-Paris, longtime chairman of the powerful committee, chose not to seek re-election.

Clayton must delay his appointments until the House decides Republican Kae Patrick's contest of the re-election of Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio. Cartwright has several years' seniority, which is considered in making House committee assignments.

The speaker said he hoped the House could make its decision on Patrick's challenge early enough for him to announce appointments before lawmakers recess for the weekend.

Committee assignments are important because most of the Legislature's work of screening and rewriting bills takes place in the committees.

Clayton swears he has made no committee decisions and "only moved my little magnetic board out to the house Sunday evening."

He said he had not decided whether to return the chairmen of the major committees or shuffle the deck.

"If I change one of them, I am going to change them all," he said.

One chairman who asked for a new assignment was Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, who has run the House Public Education Committee since 1973.

That committee will deal with the tough issue of school finance, particularly whether to include intangible wealth such as cash, stocks and bonds when measuring a school district's need for state aid.

Clayton hopes for a House vote on permanent operating rules Wednesday, the same day Gov. Dolph Briscoe makes his farewell speech. Briscoe is expected to recommend that lawmakers cut taxes another $1 billion.

Among Clayton's proposed rule changes is creation of two new committees — one to handle all "sunset" legislation and another to give separate consideration to the "human services" issues that went last session to the House Health and Welfare Committee.

Clayton could have trouble on rules from the Sam Houston Caucus, a loosely organized group of representatives who claimed during last year's "tax relief session" that he was abusing his power.

The caucus' proposals include election of committee chairmen and vice chairmen by committee members themselves.

Clayton said he's not giving up any powers voluntarily, including the appointment of committee chairmen.

One major task facing the session is passage of bills implementing the "Tax Relief Amendment" to the Texas Constitution, which voters approved in November.

Legislators must decide how to tax agricultural land on its productivity instead of its market value. The amendment says they must do it but doesn't say how. Another decision legislators will face is whether to give the elderly and disabled more than the $5,000 school tax exemption all homeowners will receive from the amendment.

RANKIN — Preston Reams wasn't crying in his beer, but he wasn't dancing a jig, either.

Not right away, at least.

"Old J.C. was a wonderful friend of mine," Reams said in the dimly lit tavern called The Mule Train.

"It's too bad he had to go," someone murmured.

"Oh, well," Reams replied in a resigned tone. "We were born to die."

His friend, J.C. Carroll, keeled over with a heart attack about six months ago — June 27 — and instantly became a legend. He was that kind of guy.

J.C., for Jacob Carol, died at age 55 at his humble home within earshot of The Mule Train, a hodgepodge collection of rusting artifacts and relics reminiscent of Indian, pioneer, oil field and 20th century lore, junk, and old spinning records from the late 1940s and early '50s.

J.C. and his wife, Georgia, eeked out a living there by selling beer to the passing ranchers, cowhands, oil field workers, town folks from both Rankin and McCamey, and other respectable folks who, purely and simply, enjoyed J.C.'s company.

He told tales, entirely true, of course, but sometimes embellished with the passing years.

In what turned out to be his later years, J.C. was, foremost, a piddler with a purpose. He was always going to do this 'n' that — and sometimes did.

He tended to be rotund, and Georgia, forever slender and trim. She wept when he died and wore black when he was buried.

In his earlier years, J.C. was, variously, a cowhand, roughneck and driller. But in 1956, he and Georgia built from scratch The Mule Train about three miles west of Rankin and found a haven of sorts.

They still talk of J.C. So does Georgia, even though a fellow who consid-

Workmen return to jobs

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Huddled down into their coats, caps covering their ears, the men stretched gloved hands toward the fire in the trash barrel.

Monday was only the second day in more than a week in which a few city construction workers drifted back to their jobs after being off due to cold temperatures and icy conditions.

Although the sun was shining brightly, it had not been warm enough to melt the ice so more workers could get back on the job.

Construction work is variable. Not only does it depend upon how much work there is to be done on a particular day, it also relies upon the weather.

Cold, wet weather means no work for those doing outside jobs. And while the outside workers were off last week, those who primarily deal only with inside jobs still got something done.

While the flames of the fire jumped upward toward his gloved hands, one worker said families "just have to learn to manage" without money coming in for a week.

"I'm lucky. My children are all grown and it's just me and my wife," he said, grinning.

But even though a number of workers showed up Monday, there wasn't much for them to do.

"I have my wife working," laughed Lorenzo Davila after pulling apart a wooden crate for more fuel for the fire.

"You learn to scrimp," said Charles Miner. "You learn to eat beans and soup. You can always make it if you want to."

John Clenney, secretary and business representative with the Carpenters Union, said the workers only get paid for the number of hours worked. In other words, those that did not work last week received nothing.

But such week-long batches of bad weather don't happen often in Midland. Clenney remembered the last stretch as occurring in 1974 or 1975.

"These workers stay at home. They just had better (have) saved up enough to eat on," he added.

A woman at another local union office remarked there is no type of payment, such as welfare, for which these workers would qualify during that week.

"There is no way for them to get any more money," she said.

Jim Henson, job superintendent with Quana Corporation at one construction site, said even though the sun was out Monday, he still only had a skeleton crew.

"The ironworkers are here to do ground work and some carpenters came in to put up a sign that blew down.

"But it's too icy up there to work," he said, referring to a 15-story building under construction.

Even with no ice, he added, at 20

MCAA to study needs and goals, decides to leave its name alone

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

Beginning the new year with a quorum Monday night, the often-times absence-plagued Midland Community Action Agency Executive Board decided to put the horse before the cart for a change.

Board members voted to keep the group's name, but decided to ponder over its goals and discover what it's all about.

As members wrestled with the name change game, many were in agreement on one point — that the agency has in the past failed to assess its needs and goals in relating to the people it is supposed to be serving.

"One of our problems as an agency is that we have been helter-skelter in

Oil workers delay walkout

DENVER (AP) — The nation's 60,000 oil refinery workers continued to delay their threatened nationwide strike, as union officials awaited Carter Administration reaction to a possible 73-cent-per-hour raise.

The contract dispute is the first major union showdown over President Carter's voluntary wage-price guidelines, which allow for a 7 percent increase in wages and benefits over the life of a contract.

A.F. Grosprion, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, confirmed Monday that he had been in touch with officials of Carter's anti-inflation program. He said he sought "an interpretation of how the wage guidelines would be applied to contract settlements within the oil industry."

Some of the officials, who Grosprion did not identify, were to meet with Grosprion today in Denver, the union president said.

White House spokesman Mark Henderson said he did not know of any such meeting.

The union leader said Monday the possibility of a nationwide walkout remained "very real." But he said there would be no immediate strike despite the expiration of contracts Sunday night. Most workers were on the job Monday, although oil workers stayed out at Gulf and ARCO refineries in Port Arthur, Texas.

The strike was delayed by an offer from Amoco calling for a 73-cent-per-hour raise in the first year and a wage reopener clause the second year.

With oil workers currently averaging $8.82 an hour, the 73-cent increase amounts to a 8.3 percent increase. If the union agreed to hold its wage increase to less than 6 percent in the second year, the contract apparently would comply with the 7 percent guideline.

Veteran officers to get pay hikes

By LINDA HILL
R-T Staff Writer

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith did a little horse trading with the county commissioners Monday — exchanging a newly authorized position and a car for a raise in pay for experienced officers.

Smith explained to the Commissioners Court that a person in his first law enforcement job must attend basic school — such as the Police Academy in Midland — and work a full year before he receives his "basic certificate."

Even while he is on duty that first year, Smith contended, the new man requires such close supervision that he is only marginally productive.

And it's at the end of the first year that the person has a chance to go to work for other agencies, at higher salaries.

"Someone else can pick up where we left off (in the training process), and we don't even get a thank you note," said the sheriff, who later added he is tired of being "Professor Smith."

During the past two years, he said, 14 men have left the sheriff's department to go to work for other agencies, including five to the Midland Police Department, four to the Andrews Police Department and three to the Department of Public Safety.

Seven of the 14 represented a substantial loss, he said, in that his department had sent them to school and, "We were pleased with their efforts."

Starting pay at the sheriff's department is close to that of the Midland Police Department, but by the end of the first year there is a $179 a month difference.

His solution was to raise "certification pay," particularly for basic and intermediate certificates. The method he proposed was taking money allocated for a 38th deputy and one of four cars scheduled to be purchased this year and designate that for the pay increases.

The total amount of money involved in the reallocation is about $19,200, he said. Smith's original proposal was to raise pay for a basic certificate from $25 to $75; for an intermediate certificate from $50 to $120, and for an advanced certificate from $75 to $125.

Over the past two years, said the sheriff, his department has had an average "at any given time of two vacancies, with two men in school. "If I could stabilize two of those (positions), I'd be much better off" than with a new position, he added.

"Every time Dallas comes up here, it's a poker game," quipped Durward Wright during the discussion of the sheriff's plan.

"I know Durward. He'll want to

UTPB offering Midland course on biofeedback

ODESSA — Biofeedback, a technique which could offer an alternative to drug therapy for high blood pressure and other body malfunctions, will be introduced in Midland through a course offered by The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Dr. Joel Greenspoon, professor of psychology and coordinator of behavioral science at UTPB, will teach the course on Monday nights from Jan. 15 to May 7. He said biofeedback may become a part of standard medical practice as the medical community becomes more familiar with its uses.

Greenspoon said anyone interested in the new medical techniques would profit from the introductory course.

A special registration for Midland courses will be conducted from 6 to 8 p.m. tonight in the Lee High School cafeteria. Enrollment in courses offered by UTPB is open to students who have completed 60 semester hours of coursework at any accredited community college, junior college or university.

A special registration form is available for persons wanting to enroll in the Concorde program, a new no-grade option available to students not pursuing a degree. The program is designed for persons interested in taking courses for enjoyment or for more information in a particular field.

Woman, lost while skiing, rescued

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — A 22-year-old woman who became lost while skiing on the undeveloped west side of Sierra Blanca escaped her ordeal without any serious injury, said authorities.

The woman, identified as Paula Caylor of Tucson, Ariz., was brought out of the area on horseback Monday night by rescue workers. She was taken to Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital where hospital officials said she was treated and released.

Bill Hasenbuhler of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department said the woman told rescue workers she "was just feeling very tired. She said she was not injured in any way."

The woman was found early Monday morning after she and a skiing companion were reported missing

Sunday afternoon. She and a man identified as Ken Hays of Wicket, Texas, who was found later Monday morning in good condition, became lost and separated Sunday while trying to ski down the undeveloped side of the mountain.

The manager of the Sierra Blanca ski area, Roy Parker, said after the two were reported missing a search of the ski area was made but it was not successful.

Ski-patrol members Rick Vincent and Kevin Hays, no relation to Ken Hays, then found tracks going off the back side of the ski area into undeveloped territory, said Parker. Vincent and Hays followed the tracks and found the woman.

Rescue workers stayed with her until daybreak, then began trying to help her ski to the snow line where another rescue team was waiting.

The mountain was shrouded in heavy fog with visibility listed at zero, hampering the rescue effort.

Taxation by whim

Many readers will remember that last fall, before the November elections, there was a great deal of fanfare in the nation's capital when President Carter signed the $18.7 billion tax cut approved by Congress.

Instead of providing real relief as set forth in the Kemp-Roth bill's across-the-board tax cut of 8 percent in 1979, the Democrat-controlled Congress has been stimulated into new spending by the inflation bonanza.

HEMISPHERE REPORT: Police and armed forces are targets of Marxists

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Socialism can be imposed peacefully only when the Marxists have destroyed or neutralized a country's police and armed forces, the Communists again are telling Latin America. That is to say that the peaceful road to socialism — in Nicaragua, Iran, Turkey, Italy, El Salvador or wherever — is feasible only when the Marxists are running the repressive apparatus.

disciplined Marxist parties saw to it that most of their members voted. So the veteran Socialist, Salvador Allende, won the election, was duly inaugurated and managed to serve until Sept. 11, 1973, when the Chilean armed forces toppled his regime.

Like an Alice-in-Wonderland nightmare, U.S. taxpayers have to run faster and faster just to stay in the same place. And some can't keep up. During the last two years, the average factory worker's pay has increased 23 percent while his federal tax zoomed by 80 percent and his Social Security by 27 percent.

Never mind that government spends 43 cents of every dollar earned in this country and takes almost $10,000 in direct and indirect taxes from the average American family; never mind that federal tax rates begin at 14 percent and go as high as 70 percent, there will be no tax relief this year unless there is a recession because Ways and Means Chairman Ullman says so.

INSIDE REPORT:

Harold Macmillan critical of 'weak' U.S. leadership

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A warning from one of the West's revered elder statesmen that U.S. leadership under Jimmy Carter "is the weakest in my lifetime" reveals Western fears over Carter's inability to resolve basic foreign policy differences within his administration.

Macmillan said the following at an off-the-record dinner given by the Aspen Institute's Robert Anderson (chairman of Atlantic Richfield) in London Dec. 3: "Things are as bad for the West as they could possibly be and they are getting worse. The Europeans have to deal with the weakest American administration in my lifetime."

This issue of cutting back the sale of conventional arms was a major one with Carter two years ago; today, despite Gelb's best efforts during months of negotiations with the Soviets, it has proved to be, as experienced officials had always predicted, a problem without any remote possibility of solution.

That view is not shared by Carter's European allies and it is ridiculed by Carter's Pentagon officials and most of his national security aides. Yet, as chief African policymaker, Moose speaks for the State Department and for the president, a confusion that agonizes Carter's friends in Europe.

CARTER'S COMPETITION: Apparently, President Carter will face some stiff opposition in the 1980 presidential race. According to Federal Elections Commission records, 20 different Americans already have indicated they intend to seek the top job.

The Country Parson

by Frank Clark

"Jealousy is what makes us miserable when something pleasant happens — to somebody else."

But moving a U.S. task force toward the Persian Gulf today is late indeed, probably too late — a costly procrastination caused by disarray at the top. Overruled last spring were Pentagon and national security advisers; but last spring's losers were last week's winners in the bureaucratic struggle for power that has moved Carter's foreign policy in opposite directions at the same time, leaving his chief foreign allies in disbelief and disarray.

At least part of the explanation for Macmillan's views about Carter has been the president's seeming reluctance to knock heads together and instill order and direction within his foreign policy establishment, particularly inside the State Department. That may be changing.

But Carter's assistant secretary of state for African affairs, Richard Moose, does not view the Soviet penetration of Africa in strategic terms. He told reporters at a Godfrey Sperling breakfast recently that "conceivably in the long term" the Soviets might be seeking "strategic advantages" from the African adventures, but that the Soviet effort had cost Moscow more than it had gained.

Carter to push summit resolves

GOSIER, Guadeloupe (AP) — If Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev comes to Washington to sign a new SALT treaty, President Carter will urge him to join in avoiding a Soviet-American confrontation in Southwest Asia.

Informed sources reporting this said the idea would be for the two sides to avoid tangling with each other in an area that easily could be transformed into a powder keg.

They said during the two-day Guadeloupe summit Carter mapped ways with British Prime Minister James Callaghan, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing to check the creeping advance of the Soviet Union toward the Persian Gulf.

But the only initiative spelled out by the sources, who declined to be identified either by name or nationality, was the proposal to avoid a clash that Carter was to broach with Brezhnev in Washington.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy were returning to Washington tonight after three days of vacation following the summit that ended Saturday.

The sources said that general agreement emerged during the summit that the balance of world power could be transformed if Moscow becomes dominant in the huge intercontinental triangle between Turkey, Afghanistan and Ethiopia.

Nearly half the non-communist world's oil comes from this region, and there was a recognition by the heads of government, based on pooled intelligence estimates, that the Soviets in the 1980s will have dire need of access to the same fuel sources.

The sources offered no information to suggest that Carter had been criticized for failing to respond to the opportunism of the Soviets. There was also acknowledgement that Moscow did not create the difficulties gripping the countries in the Ankara-Kabul-Addis Ababa triangle. But none of the four doubted that the Kremlin leadership has been quicker to exploit the situations than Western leaders have been.

Taken together the events of the past year have transformed the geopolitical picture of a region vital to the West not only for its oil but also for its fivefold-increased buying power.

Informed sources said the four leaders reached several shared and somber conclusions. Among them:

- Coups in Afghanistan and South Yemen that set up pro-Soviet regimes last year put Moscow in a position to push and press its interests in Iran.
- Iran, even without Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, likely will remain unstable for some time to come. And surrender of its role as sentinel of the Gulf could create a power vacuum which Moscow or its surrogates may be tempted to fill even at the risk of western resistance.
- The once steady state of Pakistan, beset with political and tribal turmoil internally and now facing border-crossing Afghan assaults, is in danger of disintegrating, and similar upheavals could engulf India.

No seventh son's intuition required

South ruffed the third heart with the queen of spades, but West overruffed and returned a diamond. Now the contract depended on locating the queen of clubs.

Declarer led all of his trumps to see which opponent blinked. In the storybooks South always finds the missing queen, but in real life a player sometimes guesses wrong. Anyway, this declarer lost a hundred points instead of winning the rubber.

NO NEED TO GUESS

South didn't have to guess if he wanted to make sure of the game and rubber. He should ruff the third heart with the ace of spades. He continues with the ace of diamonds and a diamond ruff. And then he leads a trump, not caring which opponent wins.

If the defense returns a club, declarer gets a free finesse. If the defense returns a heart or diamond, declarer ruffs in dummy and discards a club from his hand.

ANSWER: Conservative players pass, but most experts open with one spade. If partner bids an aggressive game or slam you have full value for your opening bid. If partner doubles an opponent, you can rebid your spades at almost any level.

By JULIE OCHSNER, ROBIN BENNETT & CINDY CANFIELD

Well, Rebs: its back to school time. Hope everyone had a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and a fun two-day vacation.

Our great REBEL ROUND-BALLERS started their district season with a victory over those baby Broncos from Odessa High. They then challenged those bashful San Angelo Bobcats to try and beat them, but it was hopeless for them to even try, and our Macho Men de-tailed the Bobcats! Our guys will take on those punky Permian Panthers here Friday but, first, they will stomp the Steers in Big Spring tonight. Everybody come out and watch our Rebel Roundballers Pound a Punky Panther! Action starts at 8 p.m. in the Rebel gym. Congratulations go to Earnest Merritt for making the All-Tournament Team at the San Antonio tournament.

The Rebel girl basketballers also are due congratulations on their great victories! They will travel to Odessa to show those pansy Panthers who's best. Everyone go and see our fantastic females pound and pulverize Permian.

There will be a swimming meet in Abilene this Friday for our fantastic swimmers. Let's go swimmers, splash to another Rebel victory!

B.C. COMPLAINS: Last Friday, seven people decided to go out and eat lunch, AND they were all scheduled to work. One or two is all right but seven is too much to handle; so if you are scheduled to work BE HERE, and if you don't want to work, then all you gotta do is tell us. OK?

B.C. COMPELS: You to be here Friday afternoon to set up for a VICTORY DANCE, 10 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. right after we pound Permian.

Escapee recaptured

DALLAS (AP) — Police have recaptured a convicted murderer who pistol-whipped a bailiff, then escaped from the Dallas County Courthouse immediately following his trial last week.

James Edward Davis, 30, was captured without incident Monday afternoon at a south Dallas apartment complex. He had been sought since last Friday night when he fled the county courthouse. Police said he pistol-whipped the bailiff with the guard's own .357-caliber Magnum revolver.

The capture ended a three-day manhunt by Dallas police, Dallas County Sheriff's deputies and the FBI. A total of $7,000 in rewards had been offered by local businesses and anonymous donors for Davis' capture.

A jury had just recommended a 70-year prison sentence for Davis for the beating death of his 10-year-old daughter when he escaped.

Stacy hearing rescheduled

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The Texas Water Commission has rescheduled the resumption of hearings on Colorado River—Municipal Water District's proposed Stacy Reservoir for Jan. 17.

The hearings were to resume Jan. 16, but that date conflicted with the regularly scheduled meeting of the Texas Water Development Board, which normally uses the hearing room where the TWC has been hearing testimony on CRMWD's request.

The proposed reservoir is being opposed by the Lower Colorado River Authority, City of Austin and other entities.

Application on docket

AUSTIN—The Texas Savings and Loan Department has set the application of First Savings and Loan Association of Midland for a branch office in Stanton for its Feb. 5 docket call.

If the application is protested, it will be set for a hearing, with all parties given an opportunity to present testimony and evidence.

If there is no protest, the request may be referred to Savings and Loan Commissioner Alvis Vandygriff for action.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Good care can mend background

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband and I recently adopted a seven-month-old girl. We were told little about the child's background but have learned that it was not the best. I've become concerned about the kind of care the biological mother received during her pregnancy, and the baby's care during the time she was with her mother. What are the possibilities of the baby having suffered damage during the pregnancy and her first few months of life?

Dear Jean: The fact that a child is born to a mother from a deprived background does not necessarily indicate less-than-adequate prenatal and postnatal care. In general, malnutrition of the mother during her pregnancy and of the child after birth can have serious physical and psychological consequences. Nevertheless, normal development is possible if the child subsequently is raised in a loving, stable home. Since your child is still very young, there is every reason to believe that good nutrition and an enriched environment can counteract any physical or emotional deprivation to which she may have been subjected.

Both nutrition and environment are stressed because the two are intertwined. Malnourished children from deprived homes are at greatest risk of suffering developmental problems. On the other hand, children from relatively good environments who have experienced short periods of malnutrition generally show few, if any, long-term effects.

The prospects for healthy physical and emotional development of a previously deprived child can be improved at any age by providing good nutrition and a wholesome environment—but the earlier this is done, the better the prospects for a satisfactory outcome.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 46 years old and have a fear of getting cancer. My wife tells me that I really shouldn't worry. I can't help it. Please help.—Mr. C.E.

Dear Mr. C.E.: Here are some facts I think will help you. Two out of six cancer patients are now saved each year, but three out of six could be saved. About 212,000 men, women and children with cancer will be saved this year. By finding cancer earlier and treating it sooner, 106,000 more could be saved. Yet, while more women then ever are being cured, cancer is becoming a greater threat for men. More men than women died of cancer last year. Why? You may hold one key to the answer, for you alone can take the steps that will give you the help you may need. Visit your doctor regularly whether or not there are signs of something wrong. Common types of cancer in men are: Cancer of the mouth and pharynx, of the digestive system (stomach, bowels, and rectum), of the skin and lip, and of the sex organs (usually the prostate gland). Modern methods make it easier for a doctor to detect the cancer. And most cancer can be cured if treated before it spreads. But only you can give your doctor the chance to find a cancer early.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

New contract makes Rice millionaire

BOSTON (AP) — American League MVP Jim Rice is baseball's newest instant millionaire, and the Boston Red Sox are bracing for a new wave of salary demands from their other high-priced stars.

Rice's annual salary of more than $700,000 doesn't make him the highest paid player in baseball, but jumped him from the rank-and-file — at about $125,000 a year — to the stratosphere of baseball salaries.

The general manager conceded that he is concerned with new demands from other Red Sox players, but added, "I'd rather sign Rice than worry about the others."

Rice's deal makes him the highest-paid Red Sox player, ahead of right-handed pitcher Mike Torrez, who signed for about $600,000 as a free agent in 1977, and veteran superstar Carl Yastrzemski who earns less than $300,000 a year.

Sullivan called Rice's contract the longest and richest in Red Sox history, but it apparently is somewhat shy, on an annual basis, of the $3.2 million four-year contract signed by free agent Pete Rose with the Philadelphia Phillies.

MHS, Lee play tonight

The Midland Bulldogs, currently in a three-tie for first place in the District 5-1A basketball race with Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee, entertain the San Angelo Central Bobcats tonight while Lee hits the road for a date with Big Spring.

'Manster' gives, gets his share of wounds

DALLAS (AP) — The "Manster" got a few battle wounds himself in the Dallas Cowboys' National Football Conference title victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White, who teammates claim is half-man and half-monster because of his incredible strength, suffered a broken left thumb in the bruising 28-0 victory Sunday, but Cowboys doctors didn't find out about it until Monday.

White was an intimidating force in the contest, knocking Rams quarterback Pat Haden out of the game with a broken right thumb and inflicting a separated shoulder on running back John Cappelletti. Both were clean tackles.

"Cappelletti was cutting back and didn't see me coming," said White. "It was a freak play." Cappelletti, who caught a screen pass, was buried under White in the crushing first-quarter tackle.

Haden broke his thumb when White tackled him in the third quarter. "A television commentator told me that Haden's hand hit my helmet," said White. "I guess that's what broke it. It was nothing intentional."

Randy White

White wasn't sure when he broke his thumb.

"I noticed Randy coming off the field in the fourth quarter holding his hand," said Cowboys assistant public relations director George Heddleston. "Of course with Randy, he could have hurt it in the first quarter."

He just never says anything about being hurt."

White will wear a heavy cast for the two-week practice period leading up to Super Bowl XIII against the Pittsburgh Steelers in Miami.

For the game, doctors will fit White with a splint for the fractured digit.

White wasn't the only Cowboy who was nursing wounds from the joust with Los Angeles.

Running back Tony Dorsett reported a sprained foot, full-back Scott Laidlaw had a bruised hand, defensive end Harvey Martin had a bruised leg, and guard Herb Scott had a hyperextended elbow.

White said he wanted one thing understood about the injuries to Haden and Cappelletti: "It wasn't a cheap shot in either case."

White played his first full season at defensive tackle last year. Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said, "Randy has just been incredible this year. He has just been excellent every week."

The Cowboys resume practice Wednesday for the Steelers. They leave Sunday for the Super Bowl in Miami.

ABC's Jackson hears plenty about keeping quiet

By The Associated Press

Keith Jackson, ABC-TV's top-notch college football announcer, has been catching loads of flak for not commenting on the Gator Bowl sideline punch that cost volatile Woody Hayes his job as Ohio State's football coach.

This writer watched the Gator Bowl on television in a New Orleans hotel room along with Coaches Fran Curci of Kentucky and Johnny Majors of Tennessee. The first reaction from all parties following the interception by Clemson's Charlie Bauman was, "Woody hit the kid." Then it became, "Did Woody hit the kid?"

No one was sure. The ABC replay came from a different — and poorer — angle and it wasn't until a late news show an hour or so after the game that Woody's clothesline shot to Bauman's neck was clearly replayed.

The problem, which many saw as an ABC coverup, came about because (1) the network's three tape machines were isolated on other shots and (2) the game was blacked out in Jacksonville, meaning ABC had no line for an immediate playback of what the viewing audience saw, the main feed.

"SOMEBODY'S GOT TO take the heat, and I guess I'm elected because I'm visible," Jackson said when The Associated Press asked him to explain what happened.

"The sidelines were jammed up — Ohio State dressed 92 players — and I couldn't see anything. The sight angle from the press box is poor as it is. That factor, plus 81 players and everyone else all up front, made it impossible to see the sideline.

"On this particular play, the ball game was in the balance, Ohio State was moving and a field goal wins it. We had one camera isolated on each of the two wide receivers and the third one isolated on the ball from the end zone.

"When Bauman made the interception and disappeared into the crowd on the sidelines I did what every play-by-play announcer who draws a breath would have done — I looked at the clock because time was the story. The 3 or 4 seconds when I looked away from the field was when it all happened. There were four people in the booth and none of us saw it."

There was no lack of football knowledge, either. Jackson's color commentator was former Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian while producer Bob Goodrich played at Southern Methodist from 1965-67.

"BECAUSE THE decision was made by the director and the producer where to isolate the three tape machines, what you saw at home wasn't recorded in Jacksonville," Jackson said. "My philosophy was this — I didn't see it and we had no visual proof in hand to show what happened."

"I'm not going to speculate, and I never will. I went off the air not really knowing what had happened. Through my earphone, I heard people in the truck saying, 'He hit him.' But my mike was open and I couldn't ask, 'Who hit whom?' They never told me anything else because they weren't sure, either."

"Because of the local blackout, we didn't have a backup line. The picture would have had to come back from New York, and we didn't have a guy on the sidelines."

The after-effects of the punch will not hurt Jackson as much as Woody. Keith will suffer some slings and arrows and other needles for a while, and then it will be forgotten. It is unfortunate that the best play-by-play man in the business should have to suffer for something that even Woody Hayes never did before.

"WE HAVEN'T NEEDED a line feed playback from the sidelines since 1966," Jackson said. "How do you isolate for a fight?"

If Woody ever returns to the coaching wars, ABC will know how.

This writer is among those who has felt the Hayes wrath, although it was a punchless affair over the telephone a few days prior to the Ohio State-Michigan game in 1970.

A verbal arrangement had been made with Woody eight days in advance for a telephone hookup of 10 minutes or so with the New York Football Writers. Woody was charming when the original call was made to set things up, even explaining that he had his own luncheon the same day and might not be in when we called.

"If I'm not there, call back in 20 minutes," he said.

The first question asked concerned a statement of Woody's that "you can't have a great team unless your seniors are playing up to their capabilities." That was kicked around for awhile.

Since it was late in the season, I wanted to get an idea of which Ohio State players deserved All-America consideration.

"Can you tell us which of your players are having outstanding seasons?"

Woody: "I won't answer any questions about any of my players."

"WELL, CAN YOU tell us which of your players are not having outstanding seasons?"

Woody: "If you were a legitimate writer you wouldn't ask me a question like that."

End of conversation.

Finally, this quote from Joe Paterno in a book written some years ago about the Penn State coach entitled "Football My Way":

"There are ways to get hold of a group of today's young men. Sometimes you have to do it through your young assistant coaches. Individuals have different personalities and you have to be alert enough to recognize the difference in people."

"The coaches who do it best are the ones who have strength. An excellent example is Woody Hayes. He is the rare bird among college coaches. Although he is a throwback to the old-time coach and rules his roost with an iron hand, at the same time he has an awareness of what is going on in the world. Woody keeps himself so well-informed, he is up-to-date on everything. He has great strength." Just ask Charlie Bauman.

Meyer, James most mentioned to follow Woody's footsteps

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We want somebody with stability," an Ohio State University athletic official said of the intensive nationwide search to find a successor to fired football Coach Woody Hayes.

So a comment from a returning Buckeye player, who also asked not to be identified, may carry some weight.

The player says University of Washington Coach Don James and SMU's Ron Meyer have been mentioned most among the Big Ten Conference squad. Both are native Ohioans.

James has coached at Washington for the past eight seasons and prior to that led Kent State to its only Mid-American Conference football title in 1972.

Meyer grew up almost in the shadow of Ohio Stadium in suburban Westerville, Ohio.

With an SMU team that finished in the second division of the Southwest Conference this year, Meyer played the Buckeyes to a 35-35 tie in Columbus, Ohio. He has coached the Mustangs for six seasons.

Meanwhile, Lou Holtz of Arkansas issued yet another denial Monday about taking the Ohio State job. And Hugh Hindman, the Buckeyes' athletic director, led a three-man delegation at the NCAA convention in San Francisco.

The American Football Coaches Association also is conducting a meeting at the same time, just two blocks from the NCAA convention site. It's a golden opportunity for Hindman and his associates to talk with candidates to replace the fired Hayes.

Hindman dismissed Hayes, 65, after the Buckeyes' coach of 28 seasons slugged a Clemson player in the closing moments of a 17-15 Gator Bowl loss on Dec. 29.

The returning Ohio State player, a sophomore defensive performer, said Hindman called a squad meeting of returning players before he left for San Francisco.

"He told us we would not be consulted on the selection," the player quoted Hindman as saying to the squad.

Holtz told Athens, Ohio, radio station WATH from his Little Rock, Ark., office. "The job wasn't really offered to me. They wanted a candidate, a guy they would give careful consideration to, a candidate like everyone else."

"I'm not sure I could have turned down the Ohio State job (if it was offered) because I'm a staunch Ohio man," said Holtz, a native of East Liverpool, Ohio.

"I may have been happier at Ohio State, but that opportunity won't come along," said Holtz.

Current Purdue Coach Jim Young, a former player under Hayes, said, "I have not been contacted and I have not applied. I like it at Purdue. I'm sure that job (Ohio State) will be filled in a couple of days."

Would Young take the position if asked? "I'd just as soon not answer that," replied the man who guided Purdue to a 27-16 victory over Ohio State in 1978.

Pulling own weight easy for girl lifter

ATHENS, Tenn. (AP) — After years of grunting and groaning, straining and sweating, Rebecca Joubert has convinced some folks, and the railroad, that she can pull her own weight.

Many do it for the bulging biceps, triceps and quadriceps. Joubert pumps iron for the record book.

A regimen of three workouts a week and an endless diet of meat, eggs, milk and distilled water has netted the 23-year-old brunette five world records and a new job — brakeman for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

Her 135-pound class records are 355 in the dead lift, 270 in the squat, 165 in the bench and the total of 790. At 132 pounds, she broke the dead lift record of 303 with a 318-pound effort at a meet in St. Louis last month.

"I was working out in the spa here three years ago and a lady wanted to know if I wanted to go to a weightlifting session at Tennessee Tech," she said. "I ended up going to a meet three weeks later, and I dead lifted 300. So that got me into a magazine and motivated me to go on."

Her diet allows her one weekly respite. "It's five days of eggs and meat and on the sixth day I splurge for one meal — anything I want — and then it's back to the diet," she said. "And I drink a half a glass of milk a day and distilled water."

Powerlifting — the powder on sweaty palms, the gritting of teeth, the groan under weight and banded knees and the relief as weights crash to ground — was once the male's realm ... once. Female competitors have quadrupled in two years.

Lifters, psyched into a frenzy of pacing and screaming, are often stamped as oddballs and given plenty of leeway.

Miss Joubert says she not only had to overcome the stereotype of the just-freed-from-the-cage weight-lifter but also some people's belief she would turn into something akin to a gorilla.

Hardin satisfied with star pupil

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

In the Dallas Cowboys' first National Football League playoff game against the Atlanta Falcons, quarterback Roger Staubach took a jarring shot from Falcons linebacker Robert Pennywell, and the lights went out.

When Roger was slapped on the cheek a few times, he recovered his senses and looked up blankly at the trainers and teammates hovering over him.

"Where's Wayne Hardin?" he asked.

"Hardin? Hardin? What do you mean Hardin?" his helpers inquired.

"EXCUSE ME," the quarterback apologized. "I thought I was still at Navy."

That's the way the story was told afterward, Roger attesting to it good-humoredly, with a few justifiable liberties in the gridiron colloquy.

Out in San Francisco where he is attending the NCAA convention, Hardin, Staubach's old coach at Navy and now head man at Temple, couldn't restrain a belly laugh when he heard announcers Pat Summerall and Tom Brookshier refer to the incident in Sunday's broadcast of the Dallas-Los Angeles conference championship.

"That Roger, he always has had a glass jaw," Hardin recalled. "He was always getting knocked out while at Navy. Every time I turned around, it seemed, I was standing over him and trying to revive him."

Hardin, who was Army's nemesis in his coaching tenure at the Naval Academy from 1959 through 1964, is deriving personal satisfaction from the resounding pro success his former pupil.

ON JAN. 21 in Miami, the scrambling field general will be attempting to lead the Cowboys to an unprecedented third championship against the tough Pittsburgh Steelers in Super Bowl XIII.

"I am proud of Roger, naturally, he is a fine quarterback and a greater person," Hardin said, "but I don't root for teams, I root for the kids. Two other of my former players are in the Super Bowl — tight end Randy Grossman with the Steelers and guard Jim Cooper with the Cowboys, both out of Temple. I am neutral."

Hardin, who beat Army five straight before losing his final game at Annapolis in 1964, said as an undergraduate Staubach was strictly a take-charge guy, intelligent and blessed with extraordinary instincts.

"I always said that while most of us have five senses, Roger has a sixth sense," he said. "It is a sense that makes everything come out right. He has a faculty for feeling in advance when guys are bearing down on him from behind. Otherwise, he'd be a basket case by now."

The former Navy coach acknowledged that Staubach's scrambling proclivities put gray in his hair and activated his ulcers.

"Sometimes he would scramble 30 and 40 yards behind the line of scrimmage," he recalled. "Once in a game against Michigan we had the ball on the Michigan 10. I looked up and there was Roger backing up past midfield. I closed my eyes. When I opened them, I saw him upended, legs flying and releasing the ball in mid-air, side-arm."

"He completed the pass to Pat Donnelly and the play gained five yards."

AFTERWARD, NEWSMEN ASKED Roger and me how we could be sure that kind of gamble would turn out all right. Roger answered, "No problem. That was my Hail Mary play."

Hardin said, except for his fragile jaw, Staubach had a remarkable sense of self-preservation.

"He's a 36-year-old man in a 21-year-old body," the Temple coach added. "The only time I remember his being seriously hurt was in the opening game of his senior year against Penn State. He got trapped. Two big Penn State guys fell on him and crushed his legs. He played off-and-on that year. It kept him from winning a second Heisman Trophy."

Hardin remembers Staubach as a born leader, with supreme confidence.

"When he was a freshman, we took pictures of the plebe squad," the coach said. "Afterward, Roger came up to me and said, 'Okay, coach, here's your lineup for next year.' He wasn't far wrong."

Knoetze has visa revoked before fight

CHICAGO (AP) — According to a published report, the U.S. State Department has revoked the visitor's entry visa of heavyweight boxer Kallie Knoetze, blocking his scheduled fight in Miami Beach Saturday.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported in Tuesday's editions that the visa revocation would make Knoetze an illegal alien, unable to stay or work in the United States. Knoetze is scheduled to fight Bill Sharkey at the Miami Beach Convention Center.

"His status would not permit his fighting," the newspaper quoted

Mary Ann Yoden of the State Department's bureau of consular affairs as saying.

She said the visa was "issued in error. He is ineligible for a visitor's visa on the grounds of a specific conviction for obstruction of justice, which is a felony in this country regardless of what it is considered in a foreign jurisdiction."

Knoetze was found guilty of "conspiring to defeat the ends of justice" after he tried to coerce two witnesses not to testify against a fellow policeman. He resigned as a policeman after the conviction.

While he was a policeman, Knoetze, who is white, shot a 15-year-old black in both legs. Knoetze, 24, claimed the youth was throwing rocks at him and his police car.

The American Coordinating Committee for Equality in Sports and Society and the Chicago-based Operation PUSH, headed by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, had opposed the fight because of Knoetze's activities while he was a policeman in South Africa.

Evert gets easy win

OAKLAND (AP) — Chris Evert easily overcame unseeded challenger Barbara Jordan 6-3, 6-1 Monday night in first-round play of a $125,000 women's professional tennis tournament at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

Evert, who was seeded second as match play began, will face a yet-to-be-determined opponent on Wednesday.

Jordan, a Stanford University senior who qualified for pro status just last week, staked the match on a series of accurate drop shots. But Evert recovered most of them handily.

In early matches, Marita Redondo and Kathy May, seeded seventh and eighth respectively, swept to victory as expected. Redondo defeated Peanut Louie 6-2, 6-3 and May won Czechoslovakia's Renata Tomanova 7-5, 6-2 to move on to second round action.

In other matches, Betty Stove of the Netherlands downed Michele Tyler 6-3, 6-2; Lele Forood defeated Viviana Gonzales 7-5, 6-2; Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa downed Australian Lesley Hunt 6-1, 7-5; Caroline Stoll swept past Laura DuPont 6-2, 6-3 and Marise Kruger surpassed Maria Fernandez 6-4, 6-2.

Czechoslovakian Martina Navratilova is the top seed among 32 women competing for a $24,000 first prize. Rosie Casals and Stove are also seeded entries.

The tournament is sponsored by Avon.

The CBS television network was scheduled to televise the bout, which was promoted by Madison Square Garden.

Gil Clancy, the Garden matchmaker, said he was surprised, although the Garden had not been officially notified of the visa revocation.

"When we booked him, we felt he had a visa and a license," Clancy told Newsday. "We felt that was what was necessary."

Norm Van Lier, formerly of the Chicago Bulls, takes advantage of an extra moment to talk with former teammate Artis Gilmore, left. (AP Laserphoto)

Van Lier blasts Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The harsh words poured from Norm Van Lier's mouth like blood spurting from a wound.

"I definitely hate the organization with a passion," he said of the Chicago Bulls. "I've given them all my life. You can't count in money the sweat I've given them."

After seven years as a sparkplug of the Bulls, Van Lier was placed on waivers at the end of the National Basketball Association's exhibition season. He soon caught on with the Milwaukee Bucks.

Van Lier was a favorite of Bulls' fans, who admired his aggressive style. That adoration was still there last Friday night when he returned to Chicago Stadium for the first time in an enemy uniform.

When he was introduced, the fans greeted him with a 45-second standing ovation. Bulls General Manager Rod Thorn, in the fifth row, neither stood nor applauded.

Before the game, Van Lier shook off an initial reluctance and then spoke freely about the unhappy conclusion to his Bulls' career.

He said that two days after Chicago's final preseason game Oct. 7 with the Bucks, Thorn told him he would be let go because the team was going with younger players.

"You know they didn't let me go for a youth movement," said Van Lier, 31. "All the youth he said he's going with he let go."

"I told him that his role was going to be very much diminished if he stayed here," said Thorn. "It would have been about what he's playing with Milwaukee, about 12 minutes a game."

"We had decided that we were going to go with (Chubby) Cox, and we knew we had a chance to get Andre Wakefield at that time and we felt we were going to try to make a point guard out of (Reggie) Theus."

Cox, an eighth-round pick out of San Francisco, and Wakefield, who played at Loyola of Chicago last season, are not with the Bulls. Theus, the top draft choice from Nevada-Las Vegas, is a starter.

"I don't mind if they let you go. But the way they did it was degrading" by not giving the real reason, Van Lier said. "Just because I told the truth about what's going on in this organization."

Ranger GM

won't quit

DALLAS (AP) — Danny O'Brien won't say why he quit as the general manager of the American League Texas Rangers, but admits his role with the team diminished in recent years.

O'Brien, who announced his resignation Monday after serving as general manager of the baseball team for five years, ruled out taking a better job as one possible reason for his leaving.

"There's nothing on the immediate horizon in sports. I hope my phone will start ringing," he said.

O'Brien made the announcement after a morning conference with majority owner Brad Corbett and executive vice president Eddie Robinson.

"I have had several (business) opportunities in the area but my game is baseball," said O'Brien.

He refused to criticize the Ranger management although he had at times been critical of the wild wheeling and dealing by Corbett.

O'Brien's role on the team diminished when Robinson was hired by Corbett two years ago.

"It's true by duties diminished," said O'Brien. "My sphere of influence was not as great. But that was not a major factor."

Pressed specifically why he was leaving, O'Brien said "I really don't want to get into anything else."

However, O'Brien said in his opening remarks: "I guess I should congratulate the Dallas Cowboys. I hope to be in an organization like that someday."

Tech-Exes set meeting

Tech Ex-Students Association Director Bill Dean will also be on hand for the meeting.

Patterson will review the 1978 football season and present the 1979 recruiting outlook.

Dean will bring information on the some of the Ex-Students Association's current programs.

American steel industry backs 'Buy American'

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)— Badly hurt by subsidized steel imports, the American steel industry is planning to give strong support to "Buy American" legislation in the 96th Congress.

Plans are already solidified, the justification being that allegedly illegal imports not only deny sales to American corporations but result in lost jobs and tax revenues.

While the issue of imports has an importance all its own, it is bound to be caught up in the anti-inflation battle, with supporters of lower-cost imports arguing that restricted markets promote higher prices.

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP)— The stock market posted a moderate gain today, resuming its early-1979 rally after a pause on Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, off 2.59 on Monday, rose 1.64 to 829.78 by noon today.

Analysts also noted that investors seemed to have been impressed with the behavior of the market on Monday, when prices rebounded from a broad early decline to show only a modest loss by the close.

Meanwhile, takeover news continued to generate excitement on Wall Street. American Express proposed to acquire McGraw-Hill for $34 a share.

McGraw-Hill shares were delayed in opening following the announcement. American Express was down 1/8 at 31 1/2.

The trust of recent Buy American sentiment has been to expand existing legislation, which compels the federal government to give preference to American companies in spending federal tax revenues.

The main effect of such legislation would be to order individual states to apply the law to their own purchases if federal government grants or other means of assistance are involved.

While other industries, including electronics, textiles and shoes, have supported such legislation in the past, the massive steel industry has been lobbying relentlessly and to some extent effectively.

Imports last year made up close to 20 percent of all steel used in the United States, and the domestic industry maintains that much of it was sold below production costs because of foreign government subsidies.

"The important part of that is that a lot of steel was illegally dumped here by countries which wanted to maintain high employment in their steel mills," Bethlehem Steel comments in a quarterly review for employees.

The company didn't mince words. "Those steel imports stole American steelworker jobs. They stole American steel companies' chance to make that steel and to make a profit doing it."

For every $1,000 of imports, Bethlehem suggested, $552 might have been lost in federal, state and local taxes. It offered two examples of what it claims were shortsighted decisions.

Last February, it said, the Tennessee Highway Department opened bids on a highway bridge to be funded primarily by federal funds. The bridge required 4,000 tons of steel.

The lowest bid was $6 million, with the steel to be rolled and shaped in Japan. The second lowest bid was $6.1 million, but the steel would have been rolled in this country and fabricated in Tennessee.

"Tennessee thought it 'saved' $130,000—about 2 percent of the total bid. But Tennesseans lost over 200,000 man-hours of work and the wages that go with them, at least $100,000 in taxes, and significant dollars in purchasing power," Bethlehem said.

In the other instance, the company said the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority awarded a contract for 3,647 tons of rails at $1,194,663.31. The supplier said the rails would be imported.

Bethlehem said it was the second low bidder, at $1,229,098.34, a difference of $34,435.03, or about 3 percent of the winning bid.
