

Texans inaugurating first GOP governor in 150 years in Austin

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements became Texas' first Republican governor in 105 years today with a promise that he would persist in fighting for better and less government.

"I want to conduct government in a business like manner, with elected officials and government leaders responsible to the taxpayers just as a board of directors and company officials are responsible to the stockholders," the 61-year old multimillionaire said in his inaugural address shortly after taking the oath as Texas' 41st governor.

"You will hear voices during my administration expressing doubts about some of my proposals. But, I will persist, we will prevail."

The traditional swearing in ceremonies on the front steps of the old pink granite Capitol attracted a large crowd in the foggy, cool weather.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who took the oath just before Clements, called for "limited government... We need more of the services that state and local government provide and less of the prying and second-guessing and regulation that the federal government imposes."

Clements had compliments for outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe and promised cooperation with Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton.

"This inauguration, where a Republican governor takes office with a Democratic lieutenant governor, stands as living proof of the independent thinking of the people of this state," he said.

He said Briscoe would be remembered as the governor who successfully fought the creation of new taxes.

"And he will be remembered as the governor who took the first steps toward returning the tax-generated surplus in our state treasury back to its rightful owners. This is Governor Briscoe's legacy to Texas, and it's one he can be proud of and one this state will always appreciate."

The new governor, in firm tones, repeated again and again he would "persist" in his legislative plans.

"I will persist," he said.

"With my plans to return to you, the taxpayers, $1 billion of the state's surplus... with my plans to give you long term constitutional safeguards... including the right of initiative and referendum."

"With my plans to reduce the size of our state bureaucracy."

"With my plans to improve the quality of our education system." Clements started his first day as Texas governor with a hearty breakfast of steak and eggs.

Most observers considered it the biggest inaugural bash since another surprise gubernatorial winner, W. Lee "Pappy" O'Daniel, took the oath before 60,000 yelling supporters in the University of Texas football stadium.

Republicans led the day and night long celebration but there were plenty of Democrats involved, including many members of the predominantly Democratic Legislature.

R-T covering inauguration

Today's inauguration of Bill Clements as Texas governor is being covered for readers by staff writer Linda Hill, whose reports will begin Wednesday.

On Thursday, The Reporter-Telegram will follow up with sidelights of the inauguration and a full page of pictures of some of the many Midlanders attending the Austin festivities.

ROUSTIN ABOUT
with Ed Todd

Inflation rapidly is becoming the No. 1 table topic throughout the nation.

Though as common now and as ubiquitous as the weather, inflation may never return to normal.

It may set records, just like this winter's freeze, and stir the masses to unrest and cause others to stare starkly in despair.

And, certainly, it will prove that there's not always glory in record breaking.

How often have you heard this lament on salary, wage, and voracious inflation?

"I'm making two to three times what I was making 10 years ago, and have less to show for it."

Probably, it's true, though exaggerated.

There's something to the axiom turned cliché that "The more you make the more you spend."

That's quite natural, to learn to do otherwise requires a discipline not ingrained in most. Besides, who wants to live "exist" on an austerity program from here to eternity? This is the nation of opportunity and high living right?

Must we be penalized for fits of squandering to relief frustration, or simply to compound it?

The answer, likely, is yes.

And who outside the boss and pay roll clerk hasn't complained, perhaps justly, that raises haven't offset inflation?

And which entrepreneurs haven't computed that profits are too low?

Goods and services kick on up in cost. Wages go up. Interest rates sneak up. Goods and services costs climb. Wages increase. Some interest rates ease up. Imported merchandise inundates the U.S. made goods.

And the whole economic scene becomes more of a maze like quagmire.

Simmental cross grand champion

By ED TODD
R-T Staff Writer

A 1,290 pound Simmental Hereford steer shown by Gave Holland, 18, of Midland was judged grand champion calf Monday in the annual Midland County Livestock Show.

The hefty cream tan and white-spotted steer, named Blondie, was in competition with about 60 calves in the show.

"Sure was (pleased to win)," said Miss Holland, a senior at Midland's Robert E. Lee High School. "I guess smiling always helps. Well, I had hopes."

Miss Holland is a member of the Future Farmers of America chapter.

Cattle judge Fred Wilkinson of Crane picked a 1,195 pound Main Anjou named Black Lightning as the reserve champion steer.

The calf was exhibited by 10-year-old Mark Graham of the Greenwood community east of Midland.

"Oh, I was glad," said Mark, moments after had congratulated Miss Holland on her winning calf, "and (I) hope to do it wherever I go (to livestock shows). I'm surprised I did this well."

Two years ago, Mark's older sister, Andrea Graham, also a 4-H member, showed Honeysuckle, the show's reserve champion steer.

"I'm tickled," said their father, Roy Graham.

"Tonight, 117 animals — lambs, swine and steers — including the grand champion and reserve champion, will be auctioned off in the Midland County Exhibit Building east of Midland off U.S. Highway 80. Tommy Marric of Snyder will be the show's auctioneer.

The auction, which begins at 7 p.m. today, will be preceded at 6:30 p.m. by a presentation of showmanship and other awards.

Last year's prize steer, a 1,095 pound black Limousin Angus calf exhibited by Mark Hyde, 16, brought the youngster $1,583.87 at $1.49 per pound. Buyer was Vicki Mallison.

The reserve champion, shown by Socorro Chavez, was auctioned off for $1,624 at $1.45 per pound. The steer weighed 1,120 pounds.

All told, the sale of 117 livestock shown by 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America boys and girls in the 1978 show grossed $43,698 for the youths.

Citizens protest zoning change

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writer

The signs were printed and ready for waving.

The residents were all in agreement.

But the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday was not prepared for an onslaught of residents who filled the City Council Chambers during the panel's regular meeting.

It was a case of developer versus residents over a planned retail district. In dispute were plans for a 57,398 acres of land east of Midkiff Road and just south of FM 868 (proposed Loop 250 Road).

Magnatex Corp. was appearing before the Planning and Zoning Committee with its request for a zone change and a look at its preliminary plat as the first step in the lengthy procedure to get plans approved by the commission, and later by the Midland City Council.

The corporation wants the zoning changed from single family to LR 1 and LR 2, both retail districts but with different restrictions.

It was explained to the audience at the beginning of the meeting that the committee, consisting of the commission members, had gathered to review the plans and decide what additional work should be done.

"This is not a public hearing," Commission Chairman Robert Truitt Jr. said.

BUT THE AUDIENCE stayed where it was.

And the signs proclaiming cries of "Yes to Families! No to Magnatex!" and "Save Our Children from Commercialism's Claws!" remained on the floor facing the panel.

C. W. Craig, vice president of Magnatex, told the committee the strip of land is located on a major thoroughfare (Midkiff) and next to the proposed Loop Road. While the firm is wanting it for commercial use, Craig said the company realized the section needed a buffer zone to divide it from the rows of single family dwellings to the east and south.

Shah leaves Iran; Iranians celebrate

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi left Iran today for Egypt and the United States, a journey that many believe will end in permanent exile for the embattled monarch. His departure touched off jubilant celebrations throughout Tehran.

"The shah is gone forever!" people chanted as millions poured into the streets, showering each other with candies and rose water, cheering and shouting with joy.

Motocists honked their horns and jumped from their cars and hugged each other.

The 59-year-old Iranian monarch arrived later in Aswan, Egypt, where he was greeted at the airport by President Anwar Sadat, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported. The two then drove to a hotel on an island in the Nile River.

The shah is expected to leave for the United States Wednesday.

In a statement to Iran's official Pars news agency, the shah said he was going "on vacation because I am feeling tired." He left his royal powers with a Regency Council and appealed to the Iranian people to preserve the monarchy during his absence.

The shah said the length of his stay abroad would depend on his "physical condition." But many believe the vacation will turn into permanent exile and the end of the dynasty his soldier father founded 451 years ago.

"I HOPE THE government will be able to make amends for the past and also succeed in laying the foundation for the future," said the shah. "His work needs a long period of cooperation and patriotism in its utmost meaning. Our economy must start rolling again and we must have better planning for the future."

Khomami, an exile in France, said he would return to Iran "at the first proper time" and would name his own "provisional government" to supplant Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar and the new government appointed by the shah.

The lower house of the Majlis, the Iranian Parliament, confirmed Bakhtiar and his cabinet today by a vote of 119-43 with 13 abstentions. The Senate gave it a vote of confidence Monday.

Palace sources said the shah and Empress Farah left Tehran airport "according to schedule" at 12:15 p.m. after giving reporters the slip with a false announcement that they were delaying their departure until

Some members of shah's family reportedly now staying in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Relatives of the Shah of Iran slipped quietly into the home of Iran's crown prince early this morning, but for the prince — undergoing flight training here — it was business as usual.

The sprawling house is in a plush residential district of this city in oil-rich West Texas.

"There's a possibility he may fly today," said Capt. Robert Brus of Reese Air Force Base, where the son of the shah, Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, is training.

Brus said he could not comment on whether any of the prince's family was on the base.

An early morning flight to Reese brought the shah's mother in law and three of his children to Lubbock, while the shah and his empress were in Egypt and expected to go later to the United States.

Family members were taken to the prince's residence on West 21st Street, a wide thoroughfare dotted with expensive homes.

Spotlights atop standards surround the brick home, as does the low brick wall.

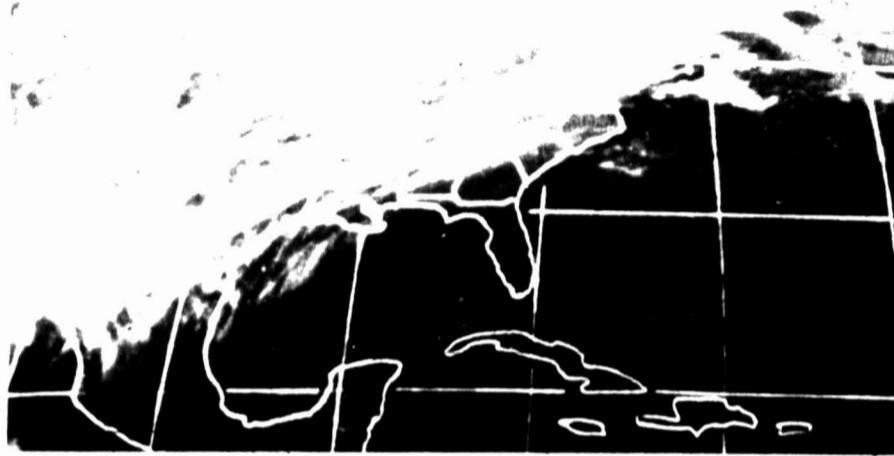

Traffic in and out of the driveway was brisk this morning.

Occupants of cars leaving and arriving at the home declined to talk to newsmen. Two off-duty Lubbock police — a captain and a sergeant — guarded a simple gate to the grounds. They said they replaced the Department guards who took up their posts shortly after the family members arrived.

Exploration for oil could be deterred

A proposed nuclear waste disposal site near Carlsbad, N.M., could deter exploration efforts for oil and gas, according to a spokesman in the Midland office of Gulf Oil Exploration and Production Co.

The Gulf letter says, "These leases are in full force and effect, and Gulf hopes to be able to commence drilling a joint test well on these leases some time in 1979."

Murder trial to start today

ODESSA — Twenty-one year old Alvin Chester Willis of Odessa was to go on trial here today on a charge of murder in 70th District Court in connection with the April 27 shooting death of Wayne Allen Wallace.

Willis was arrested April 27 and charged in connection with the shooting death of Wallace at the Zodiac Club, 100 S. Dixie, Odessa.

According to police accounts, Wallace was shot twice, once in the left eye and once in the shoulder. The shooting occurred at 12:45 a.m.

Large crowd appears at meeting considering changes of zoning

(Continued from Page 1A) means trash, and we don't want that. "There are about 50 kids under the age of 12 in the two Emerson cul-de-sacs and the traffic through there would increase."

Each easement would have a 20-foot walled inset directly behind each garage to allow the owner more room in backing out and to avoid having the fence knocked down, he said.

"We feel Loop 250 and Midkiff will become the heart of commercialism in your city," Eaton said. "Deviating from the usual procedure of only listening to an outline of the plan during committee sessions, Chairman T.J. Melton III told the audience to appoint a spokesman and the committee would listen to him."

THE COMMITTEE moved to have a public hearing on the zone change request and the preliminary plat at its Feb. 19 meeting. But before the matter could be dismissed, Eaton and Hennessy began disagreeing over a city policy — whether the developer should be given a copy of the city staff's report on the proposed plans.

"This is done in many other places," Eaton said. "And I think these people here (the residents) also want to know what you're recommending to the Planning and Zoning Commission. You should at least have it for public review."

HENNESSY STUCK TO the city policy, though, of not releasing that report to the public. "We have never furnished copies of staff reports for any applicants and we feel it's a good policy," he said.

In regular commission session, the panel recommended to City Council. A preliminary plat of A Street Community Center. A zone change request by Clyde Brown for a housing and office development north of FM 868 and west of Midkiff Road.

Shah's vacation may be permanent exile and end of 54-year dynasty

(Continued from Page 1A) Wednesday. THE SHAH HAD been scheduled to hold a news conference at the airport before his departure after a year of political and economic turmoil and public violence. But foreign reporters were told on their arrival at the airport that the departure had been delayed at least until Wednesday and the news conference was postponed.

The reporters were sent back to the city, and shortly after the palace sources reported the ruler and his wife had left the country. Egyptian officials in Cairo said the royal couple would spend Tuesday night at Aswan, in southern Egypt, where the shah was to meet with President Anwar Sadat, and then fly on to the United States. But the Iranian state radio said they would remain in Aswan several days.

The shah's destination in the United States was not known, but most of his immediate family is already there. His oldest son, 17-year-old Crown Prince Reza, is taking pilot training in Lubbock, Tex., his three younger children and his mother-in-law were flown to America Monday, and his mother and a sister are also there.

Headlines in Tehran's morning newspapers told the public that the long-awaited departure of the ruler was imminent. There were a few scattered demonstrations by groups of several hundred people before the royal plane took off. But the celebration did not become general until the word spread that the shah was gone.

DESPITE THE parliamentary votes endorsing Bakhtiar's government, the new prime minister faced an uncertain future because of military leaders determined to keep the shah on the throne, other anti-shah politicians angered by Bakhtiar's acceptance of the monarch's mandate to form a government, and the campaign by Khomayni, the leader of the religious opposition to the shah, to make Iran an Islamic republic dominated by him and the other Shiite Moslem leaders.

During the Senate debate Monday, Bakhtiar claimed he was in constant contact with the religious leaders, including Khomayni, and hoped to meet soon with Khomayni, an exile in France. But the religious leader repeatedly denounced the new government as illegal and illegitimate and said in a weekend television interview he would soon name a new government for Iran which he would supervise and direct.

The shah's departure from Iran is his second forced exit in his 37-year reign and follows a year of violent demonstrations against his authoritarian rule and unremitting demands for his abdication.

HE WAS DRIVEN from the country by an alliance of orthodox Moslem religious leaders opposed to the liberalization and erosion of Moslem traditions that resulted from his program to Westernize and industrialize the country, and liberal and leftist political opponents of the political repression, secret police brutality and official corruption of the royal rule in recent years.

An estimated 1,300 or more persons have been killed in the demonstrations, the oil exports on which the economy is dependent have been halted by a labor boycott that shows no signs of ending, and thousands of the foreign technicians who were supervising the ambitious industrial development program have fled from the country.

The shah fled from the country in 1953 when Mohammed Mossadegh was prime minister and communist mobs were rampaging through the streets. A military coup promoted by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency overthrew Mossadegh and brought the ruler back in five days. But this time the U.S. government has advised the shah to leave the country and urged military leaders not to stage a coup on his behalf.

Israeli cabinet announces plans for three settlements

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel is planning three new paramilitary settlements in occupied Arab territory, and the project seems certain to upset U.S. Mideast mediator Alfred Atherton when he arrives today.

Cabinet Secretary Arieh Naor said work probably would begin within a few days on one of the outposts, and work on all three would be started in a few weeks.

Two of the settlements, destined for the Jordan River Valley, are from a plan approved in secret June 28 that caused an uproar when it was made public in August. Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who was about to leave for the Camp David summit at the time, had to reverse himself and his cabinet shelved the plan Aug. 14.

Atherton was due to arrive this afternoon. He is to go on to Cairo Friday after talks about issues blocking the signature of a peace treaty. Israeli sources say Atherton's visit may clear up some problems, and Begin said Monday he hoped the diplomat's mission would lead to resumption of talks at the foreign ministers' level.

Search continues for Odessa youth

ODESSA — The Ector County Sheriff's Department still is looking for a 17-year-old Odessa youth who disappeared from his home more than a week ago.

Sheriff's investigators say they have no evidence of foul play in the disappearance of Randall Elms. His family, however, insists the youth would not have dropped out of sight without saying anything or taking his clothes or other possessions.

Elms left home between 12:30 and 1 p.m. Jan. 8 to buy some jeans and pick up a book at the county library. The last time he was reported seen was about 8 p.m. Jan. 8 after driving a family friend to an Odessa lounge and hotel. Statewide bulletins and news reports have failed to produce any worthwhile information on the youth's whereabouts.

Five new contracts approved by union

DENVER (AP) — Five new contract offers have been approved by officials of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, bringing to nine the number of offers accepted since the union's previous contracts expired.

Union president A.F. Grospron said the five latest acceptable offers followed the pattern established Thursday by Gulf Oil Corp.

Jerry Archuleta, spokesman for the Denver-based union, said 24,750 of the union's 60,000 refinery workers are now covered by contracts. The OCAW is negotiating 411 contracts with 100 companies.

Archuleta said the offers approved Monday were from Texaco, Sohio (Standard Oil of Ohio), Atlantic Richfield, Energy Cooperative Inc. of East Chicago, Ind., and Cenex of Laurel, Mont.

The union represents about 8,250 Texaco employees, 900 at Sohio, 3,500 at Atlantic Richfield, 650 at Energy Cooperative and 200 at Cenex.

Earlier, the union's leadership approved contract offers from Amoco (Standard Oil of Indiana), Marathon Oil of Ohio, and California-based Lion Oil, in addition to Gulf.

Ratification votes were scheduled at the local level on the approved contracts, but in some cases voting was delayed pending resolution of local issues.

The OCAW's tentative agreement with Gulf calls for a wage increase of 73 cents an hour in the first year of a two-year contract and a 5 percent pay boost the second year. The contract contains a reopener clause the second year.

Gulf officials say the 73-cent increase amounts to about an 8 percent boost for its workers.

The Gulf settlement has the tentative blessing of the Carter administration, which seeks a voluntary 7 percent limit on wage and fringe-benefit increases over the life of a contract.

In Port Arthur, Texas, an after-midnight bargaining session by Texaco averted a strike by 4,500 union members which had been called for 6 a.m. Monday.

The strike was "narrowly averted" when Texaco withdrew one national and two local issues from the bargaining table as demanded by local OCAW officials.

A final agreement still has not been reached, but OCAW officials had threatened to strike over Texaco's persistence in pursuing the issues.

Texaco dropped an attempt to prohibit strikes for non-arbitrable issues, allowed under the 1976-1978 contract; deleted a proposal that would have required the union to drop a suit against Texaco seeking back pension benefits; and decided against trying to exempt new Texaco employees from wage increases voted in the 1979-1980 contract.

"I think we are in the ballpark for negotiating the national program now," OCAW negotiator Larry Stefflen said, referring to the agreement reached last week between the union and Gulf Oil.

Texaco has offered the union a two-year contract similar to Gulf's.

Dance pioneer given Schweitzer award

NEW YORK (AP) — Dance pioneer Katherine Dunham received the second Albert Schweitzer Music Award Monday night during a 2½-hour program of dance works, all colorful and bursting with vitality, all choreographed by Miss Dunham.

Miss Dunham, who is 70, was given a bust of Schweitzer from his daughter, Rhena Schweitzer Miller.

Miss Dunham received the award for service to the performing arts and for humanitarianism. The first Albert Schweitzer Music Award was presented, on the late scientist's 100th birthday in 1975, to violinist Isaac Stern for his efforts on behalf of Carnegie Hall and Israel.

Fifteen Dunham dances, several from 1938 and the most recent from 1975, filled the evening and there wasn't a weak one among them. Some were excerpts from long suites, like a couple of formal early 19th century quadrilles from "The Brazilian Suite." Others were a buck and wing and slave square dances from plantation days.

"Shango" is an exciting, dramatic dance — set to drums — of sacrificing a chicken to the African god Shango in Trinidad. Dancers, all wearing white, would shake their shoulders, keeping still below the waist, or shake just from the waist down, or shake all over.

Striking costumes, from primitive to flapper funny to elegant, were by Miss Dunham's husband, John Pratt.

Twenty-six dancers taking part included Vanoye Aikens and Lucille Ellis, who were Dunham stars of the 1930s, other former Dunham dancers and nine lithe members of Southern Illinois University's Performing Arts Training Center in East St. Louis, which Miss Dunham has run for "street people" since 1967.

One sees the Martha Graham Dance Company in New York and can see how Miss Graham has influenced Alvin Ailey in choreographing fox his enormously popular dance company. Miss Dunham hasn't had a dance company here since 1962 and it is instructive to see how her tradition has inspired Ailey, too, probably even more.

Miss Dunham, who was born in Glen Ellyn, Ill., had her first company, Ballet Negre, in Chicago, in 1931. In the mid-1930s she studied religions in the West Indies and Haiti, returning to get a masters degree in social anthropology from the University of Chicago.

Her dance company has danced in Broadway shows and in movies. She was the first black to choreograph for the Metropolitan Opera.

Harry Belafonte, at Carnegie Hall, said the audience had come "to testify to her greatness."

John Cheever wins top fiction book honors

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Stories of John Cheever" has been named the best book of fiction of 1978 by the National Book Critics Circle.

Cheever's stories won the fiction prize over John Updike's "The Coup"; "Final Payments," by Mary Gordon; "The World According to Garp," by John Irving, and "Wrinkles," by Charles Simmons.

The award for poetry went to "Hello Darkness: The Collected Poems of L. E. Sissman," edited by Peter Davison; and Meyer Schapiro's "Modern Art: 19th and 20th Centuries, Selected Papers" was named as the best work of criticism.

Two works will share the general nonfiction award: "Facts of Life," by Maureen Howard, and "Inventing America: Jefferson's Declaration of Independence," by Garry Wills.

The awards, announced Monday, will be presented at ceremonies on Jan. 25.

The winners were chosen from nominations by the organization's board of directors and its regular members, about 200 professional critics, reviewers and review editors nationwide.

Other nominees in the poetry category were "The Dream of a Common Language: Poems, 1974-1977," by Adrienne Rich; "The Late Hour," by Mark Strand; "New and Selected Things Taking Place," by May Swenson, and "Spectral Emanations: New and Selected Poems," by John Hollander.

Reagan brings standard theme to Farm Bureau

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, still refusing to formally announce his candidacy for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, carried his standard themes of less government and taxation to the nation's farmers Monday.

And the 6,000 farm folk attending the 60th annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation responded with enthusiasm.

"Today we are covered by tens of thousands of regulations," Reagan said during the 3,000,000-member group's opening general session. "If we could eliminate unnecessary regulations, we could cut the rate of inflation by one-half."

Reagan, who has been criss-crossing the nation in recent months on speaking engagements that serve as an opportunity to keep in touch with political supporters, told the generally conservative farmers that they were responsible for the United States having the highest standard of living in the world.

"We eat better for a lower percentage of our earnings than anyone on earth — and you are responsible for that," he said.

But he said they were being threatened by their own federal government.

"Today government costs the average farmer more than food, clothing and power altogether," he said.

His speech was interrupted nearly a dozen times by applause and he was roundly congratulated afterward.

Later, during a press conference, Reagan refused to say when — or even whether — he would formally announce his 1980 candidacy for president.

Williams may fill agriculture post

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a year-long vacancy, the No. 2 job in the Agriculture Department soon may be filled by former Lt. Gov. James H. Williams of Florida.

President Carter said Monday he will nominate Williams to be the department's deputy secretary, subject to Senate confirmation.

The job had been held by John White until Carter moved White to the Democratic National Party headquarters, as the party's chairman.

White's resignation was effective Jan. 28, 1978, and the $57,500-a-year job has been vacant since then. Several names surfaced as possibilities in succeeding months, but potential candidates for the post either were dropped by the administration or asked that they not be considered further.

Williams, 52, was elected to the Florida Senate in 1968, re-elected in 1972, and picked to be then-Gov. Reubin Askew's lieutenant governor when Askew sought re-election in 1974.

Williams lost a bid for the gubernatorial nomination in the Democratic primary in Florida last year.

He is a citrus grower and cattle rancher from Ocala.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, appearing with Williams, told reporters that he considered Williams' political background a "very important" qualification for the job.

Williams will serve as sort of an "executive director" of department operations and will concentrate much of his responsibilities on budget matters, Bergland said.

Neither Bergland nor Williams said they foresee any serious opposition to the nomination.

Bergland, who has recently undergone tests and therapy for back pain that began during the holidays, said that he is now back to work "at full speed" and is feeling much better.

But Bergland still is under doctors' care and will undergo further examinations to determine whether his back problem can be solved without surgery, an aide said.

Williams said he had agreed to place his stock portfolio and similar investments in a blind trust to meet federal requirements and would sell his cattle holdings to conform to conflict-of-interest law.

In addition, Williams said he agreed to take no part in department policymaking that involves citrus fruit. He said his holdings include a 140-acre orange grove and partnership interests in several others.

Williams said that his years of experience in agriculture, agribusiness and political office were factors in deciding to seek the deputy secretary's job.

His two main interests, he said, include a long-term goal of balancing the federal budget and finding solutions to the U.S. trade deficit and its impact on inflation.

"I feel like a guy who is overly qualified to go back home and farm," Williams said.

Midland delegates attend union meet

LUBBOCK — Delegates from Midland attending a Texas Farmers Union meeting here last week were Vernon Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Bryant and Pete Bryant, Midland County president.

Other county members who also took part were Naomi Chandler and Carola Bryant.

Honored during the convention were Mr. and Mrs. Bryant who received an Outstanding Service award during the High Plains Young Couples dinner. The council was organized to work out some of the farmers' problems. It currently is lobbying for the Family Farm Security Act introduced by Texas Congressman Luther Jones of El Paso.

During the convention, delegates and members of the union gave full support to readopt the 100 percent parity farm prices.

Farmers Union members heard from a panel of tax experts on the issues of government spending and taxation and their effects upon farmers.

Also addressing the three-day convention were Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown, Attorney General Mark White and North Dakota Farmers Union President Stanley Moore.

One official told the group, "Our sole interest at present is to change the poor and inadequate federal farm law. When we witness an unconcerned attitude like this from one of Carter's chief brain trusts in charge of farm policy, we're disposed to raise Cain."

The office was referring to a speech by Dr. J.B. Penn, a deputy administrator in the Department of Agriculture who told the convention that 1979 farm income would only be slightly above that of last year's, "or go down slightly."

No more concessions

There are two plausible explanations for the Soviet Union's sudden decision to stall just as it appeared that final agreement on a new strategic arms treaty was at hand late in December.
The most likely perhaps is that Moscow chose the supposedly climactic meeting between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva as the occasion for a veiled demonstration of its displeasure at the establishment of formal diplomatic relations between China and the United States.

ASIA MEMO: The future of the China market holds spotlight

WASHINGTON — The era of "the China market," which was promised for so long but never really materialized, is now upon us.
The new diplomatic ties between the United States and the People's Republic of China will see a corresponding improvement in commercial ties across the board.
The announcement that Coca-Cola will go on sale in Shanghai should not lead anyone to the conclusion that China is going to be a wide-open market for American consumer products.

Lincoln Continentals and private planes.
He also acquired, in quick succession, a large family home in Calhoun, a 400-acre farm a few miles out of town, a 50-room mansion in Atlanta and a family retreat at Sea Island, Ga. Lance hauled still another six-room house from town to the farm. This guest house, tastefully remodeled, is known inside the family as "Eagle's Nest."
With his Dun and Bradstreet rating as a millionaire established, Bert Lance turned his attention to the governorship. He attached himself to the political bandwagon of Jimmy Carter and quickly became one of the good ole boys around Carter. Intimates insist that Lance is still a member-in-good-standing-of Carter's tight little inner circle.

Investment in skills

The President's Commission on Military Compensation proposed last spring that the armed forces no longer offer recruits the lure of retirement after 20 years at pensions equal to 50 percent of their pay. Those signed up in the future would have to serve for 30 years before they would be eligible to draw a pension.
The Defense Department isn't buying the idea. Secretary Harold Brown now proposes that the "20 and out" option be retained, but with a pension of only 37.5 percent of basic salary until the retiree reaches the age of 65, when the 50 percent pension would be paid.
Mr. Brown is of the opinion this would accomplish enough in keeping pension costs from eating up too much of future defense budgets.

INSIDE REPORT: Secret concession may effect SALT II verification

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — A major concession to the Soviet Union that permits the results of test flights of Soviet strategic missiles to be partly concealed from the U.S. has raised a potent threat to President Carter's hopes for Senate approval of a new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II).
Still shrouded in official secrecy, the concession was agreed to by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance during his latest SALT talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Geneva three weeks ago. What makes it so serious is its effect on verification — the process by which the U.S. tries to prove or verify that the Russians are not cheating.
Thus, at stake is an extremely grave issue for Carter and his country: whether Moscow can get away with secret missile tests that could violate the treaty and endanger U.S. and Western safety, something neither Vance nor any other responsible official could conceivably wish to happen.

made to Moscow, but the Kremlin came back with an air of injured innocence: there is nothing in SALT II that prohibits encryption, they said.
Now, instead of demanding a complete halt to encrypting, the U.S. agreed at Geneva to ambiguous language allowing encryption except where the information put into secret code has a direct bearing on verification. That theoretically makes the Soviet Union its own policeman. Only the Soviets would know what secret performance data they are concealing, and they could conceal it by claiming it did not deal with specific weapons limitations imposed by the new treaty.
In the closed society of the Soviet Union, nothing is publicly revealed about weapons development. Thus, when the American theory of anti-cheating verification was first developed in 1972, it meant the right of the U.S., through electronic eavesdropping and any other monitoring devices to establish the truth of Soviet claims about its own nuclear missiles.
But today, following the reign of Paul Warnke as director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), verification has been qualified by the word "adequate." All that is now required is to assure that the U.S. will discover Soviet cheating before it has "significantly affected" the U.S.-Soviet strategic balance of power.
Vance's concession on encryption shows how far the word "adequate" allows the Soviets to go in concealing perhaps vital parts of their test programs. Even worse, SALT II does nothing to block two other ways in which the Soviets could thwart verification: by sending its flight-test te-

The Midland Society of University Women have announced that persons interested in accepting the invitations to their annual Soiree to benefit the group's Scholarship Fund can do so when they get to the Friday night event as there will be a guest list at the door. The Soiree is slated from 7:30 to 9:30 and will feature the Thouvenel String Quartet of Midland, the Howard Payne University art faculty and Sara Gilstrap of Midland College faculty, who will display her ceramics and other works, and will demonstrate weaving.

The event will be held in the McCormick Gallery in the Fine Arts Building on the campus of Midland College.

Proceeds from the performances will be used to grant scholarships to Midland students in both high schools. Gilstrap, an art instructor at Midland College, obtained her master of arts degree from Texas Tech University. She also attended Arrowmont School of Crafts in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and the University of Oklahoma. She teaches in the area of ceramics, fiber, jewelry, design and art education.

Women enrollment increasing in school business departments

COLLEGE STATION—Unless there are great changes on the economic scene or in the cost of education, the surging growth of women students in United States schools of business administration will continue to expand dramatically, says Dr. John Pearson, former dean of business administration at Texas A&M University.

Pearsons, who served as dean here for 10 years, reports that for the past eight years there has been a larger percentage of women than men enrolled in business colleges nationwide.

Undergraduate enrollment of females in business schools increased from 62,000 in 1970 to 201,000 in 1976, and women graduate students increased from 4,000 to 15,000 during the same time. At Texas A&M, for instance, in 1971 only 7 percent of the enrollment in business programs was female. In 1977 it was 42 percent.

"Needless to say, we realized the women had arrived at Texas A&M and were here to stay," says Pearson.

AT WIT'S END Housework tips

By ERMA BOMBECK With so many women juggling a home and a career these days my attention was drawn to a book by Shirley Conran called "Superwoman" in which she advised women on how to avoid housework.

Her ideas make a lot of sense, like: Don't keep pets. Don't polish floors. Use quilts or sleeping bags instead of making beds. Don't buy anything that needs ironing.

Don't dry dishes. Roast in foil. Line shelves with self-adhesive paper and pour a capful of liquid detergent in your bathtub before turning on the water so you don't have to scour it.

It's only when she suggested, "Squash toilet rolls so that the center becomes oval. That way the paper doesn't roll off so fast," that she lost me.

WHAT KIND OF ANIMAL DO YOU THINK I AM, SHIRLEY?

Oh, I've done a lot of cutting corners in my time. I was the first woman on my block to have black towels, the first to save on my food bills by taking the light out of the refrigerator, and I hold the record for having sent the same zucchini cookies in a school lunch for a year and a half, but squashing toilet tissue rolls is going too far!

You're talking to a woman who experiences absolute rage everytime she goes into a public restroom and has to do battle with the towel machine. You know what I'm talking about.

There's the "Little Teaser" model... the machine where you punch a button and crank it on the side and about two inches of paper comes out before it locks and you have to repeat the entire process. By the time you get enough paper out to dry off, the water has dripped down your elbow and onto your clothes.

There's the "Firmly Packed" model, where the machine is NEVER without paper. All you have to do is wedge your finger inside, get a piece of it caught on your fingernail and pull it out... a piece at a time.

And let us not forget the "Hanging Salute to Germ Tapestry." This is the linen towel that pulls from a machine. In thirty years of using the public facilities, I have yet to see a new one. I believe they come out of the package and get put into the machine with only four inches of clean towel left—all of it next to the machine's end. The rest looks like it spent the night on the floor of the Rams' locker room.

I implore you, Shirley, to reexamine your priorities. We could cut somewhere else. Make leftovers ahead! Rent children! Move a lot! But when you tamper with functional needs... you're asking for war.

Dr. Sue Greenfeld, assistant professor of management, says, "There has been a whole change of opinion toward business school in the past 10 years by both young men and women. "I believe women see a business degree as an important credential needed to tell organizations, 'Look, I'm serious about working.'"

Proper care advised for pregnant women

AUSTIN—A Texas doctor is taking a new angle to encourage proper care for pregnant women. Health authorities always have stressed the medical importance of prenatal care. But Linda Cecil, M.D., from the Texas Medical Association, has added that investing a little time and money in prenatal care can save money as well as avoid pain.

For instance, she explains, a doctor can do two tests that help avoid hyaline membrane disease, a lung problem that is the major killer of premature infants. Maximum cost for the two tests is about $200. But even one day's care in an intensive care unit for infants can run well over $200. If the baby survives, it may be several weeks before it gets out of intensive care, said Dr. Cecil, an assistant professor at The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston. Education is another important cost-cutting factor, Dr. Cecil advises.

DEAR ABBY Nursing a grudge

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife, Bess, is a registered nurse. She worked until our children came along, but quit to be a full-time mother. The kids are all out of school, and Bess went back to part-time nursing—because she enjoys it. I have a good income and it's not necessary for her to work at all.

My mother recently suffered a serious stroke. She divorced my father when I was 4, and devoted her life to raising me. She made many sacrifices to send me to the best schools, etc. Mother is in the hospital now, but when she is well enough, I want her to make her home with us. No way will I put her in a nursing home.

I told Bess this and she said, "Fine, but you had better plan on getting someone in to take care of her because I am going back to work full time."

I was shocked. My wife, a registered nurse, would rather care for strangers than stay at home and nurse my mother! She knows I never could repay my mother for all she's done for me. What do you make of this?—MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: Your wife obviously does not share your deep feelings of obligation insofar as your mother is concerned. Hire a nurse to take care of your mother—and take good care of yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I was divorced at 57, after 30 years. I lost my husband to his secretary, who was 25.

I soon found out that men my age prefer women half my age. I didn't want to settle for a sick old man.

I joined the weird world of wandering widows, and made the best of it.

I got a job and decided to be good to myself, instead of waiting on a man who'd never appreciate it.

I still weigh 130, have beautiful clothes, do what I want to do, eat when I'm hungry, sleep when I'm tired, and have had some exotic vacations!

I have never been happier! And as for my ex-husband—who needs him?—H. IN BENSenville, Ill.

DEAR H.: That 25-year-old girl he married.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I've seen a letter in your column about a family feud, I've wanted to write to tell you about my own experience, but never got around to it. Today I'm getting it off my chest with the hope that some feuding families will patch up their foolish quarrels.

When I was in my teens, my parents and an aunt and uncle got into an argument about some petty thing that got so blown out of proportion they quit speaking to each other. My cousins and I still associated with

Fire Department urges use of smoke alarms

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Smoke alarms must be okay to use — the Midland Fire Chief has three in his home. Popularity of the alarms is based not so much upon it being a fad, but on the safety they provide for buildings and people, according to Midland City Fire Chief Raymond Lewis. In fact, Lewis said, both new Midland City Fire Department structures — a central fire station and a substation — now being built will be equipped with smoke alarms. "We wouldn't want to be the last ones to find out there was a fire in the department!" he declared. "I highly recommend them because they give you enough advance warning of a fire to do something about it," said Lewis.

BACKING UP his philosophy with action, the fire chief has three battery type smoke alarms installed in his family's home. "I'd definitely recommend the battery-operated kind because sometimes if you're unable to use the house current, the electrical type wouldn't work," he said. "The house current is likely to be the first thing to go in a fire." Lewis also suggested Midlanders check to see such products are marked by Underwriter's Laboratories stamp because this means the item has been approved for use by consumers. The U.S. Product Safety Commission said more than 6,000 persons die and more than 300,000 are injured each year by home fires. Many of those injuries and deaths in a home fire are caused by smoke, not flames. Of these, officials said many deaths and injuries occur with fires breaking out at night while the victims are asleep.

THAT'S WHY U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission officials strongly suggest that a reliable way to wake these sleepers before the smoke becomes too dense to breathe would help more people escape uninjured. Misconceptions citizens have about fires include the following: — The smell of smoke would awaken residents. — There's usually plenty of time to get out. — Fires only happen to other people. — Smoke detectors aren't effective. — Two types of smoke detectors are on the market — ionization and photoelectric.

The photoelectric smoke alarm senses smoke by "seeing it" through light reflected by the particles of smoke, according to officials. The ionization principle involves a small, carefully shielded piece of radioactive material which "ionizes" the air in the detector's chamber, said officials. AS A RESULT, a very weak electrical current flows through that chamber and is sensed by the detector's circuit. But when tiny particles of smoke drift into the chamber, the electrical current flow is reduced. And, said officials, when enough particles have entered the chamber, the electrical current drops below the acceptable level, resulting in the detector's alarm or buzzer going off. If the ionization smoke detector is held close to a person eight hours a day for a whole year, that person would receive only a tenth as much radiation as on a roundtrip airline flight across the nation, according to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Still, officials admit more photoelectric smoke detectors are purchased than the ionization types. However, whether Midlanders buy a house current or battery-operated smoke detector, they should be aware of certain aspects when shopping for such safety devices, said officials. Suggested points to look for include: Are the instructions clear and complete? Can you do the installation yourself — safely? What maintenance is required?

THE QUESTION of where to install such devices depends upon the size and layout of the home, said federal officials. Monthly testing of smoke alarms is also strongly recommended. In addition, they said, home fire drills are serious — not "fun procedures." Families should walk through their main escape routes several times. Planning alternate ways of escape from each room also is recommended. If a person must go through a smoke-filled area, he or she should crawl on hands and knees with the head kept low to avoid breathing smoke, said federal authorities. Before opening an inside door, you should touch the knob and the top of the door, officials suggest. If either feels hot, don't open the door. Fire on the other side might flash into the room. If that happens, officials suggest citizens utilize a secondary escape route. FAMILIES SHOULD agree on a place to meet outside the home to make sure everyone is safe, authorities added. Get out safely before calling the fire department from a neighbor's home or from an alarm box, said officials. They don't recommend calling the fire department from a burning home. Finally, officials said citizens should go back into the house or apartment only after firefighters have assured them the fire is completely out and the structure is declared sound.

Unanimous vote by House settles Cartwright's status

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio, no longer is in a state of legislative limbo.

The Texas House voted unanimously Monday to reject an election contest filed by Kae Thomas Patrick, a Republican whom Cartwright defeated by 738 votes in the Nov. 7 General Election. With Cartwright and Rep. Brad Wright, R-Houston, shown as present and not voting, the House voted 136-0 to permanently seat Cartwright. Cartwright, a two-term member, had been temporarily seated since the legislative session opened Jan. 9 and had taken part in all House votes. A select House committee had heard testimony and arguments in Patrick's contest and reported back it could find no evidence that would justify seating Patrick or throwing out the Nov. 7 results and calling for a new election. Patrick's lawyer, Tom Joseph of San Antonio, repeated the argument made to the committee that Patrick was denied Republican votes by an allegedly illegal redistricting in 1973. But the committee said the Legislature acted within its rights in changing district boundaries ordered in 1972 by a federal court. "I wonder if Mr. Patrick would have contested or refused to take his seat if he had won," said Buck Wood of Austin, Cartwright's attorney. Joseph also protested the committee's refusal to receive testimony concerning Cartwright's arrest record. The committee had ruled it was empowered only to consider the election contest and not anything related to Cartwright's qualifications. "There had been some tampering with court records, and that was the point of our contest," Joseph said, raising an issue that had not been heard by the committee.

YMCA announces programs

The Park Center YMCA announces its upcoming Winter and Spring programs which will start Monday and run through May 30th. The basketball program is now under way for boys in grades 1-6. Boys wishing to play are urged to call the YMCA office as soon as possible. Games are scheduled each Saturday, starting this weekend. Girls can also play basketball as long as they're in grades 3-6 and these games are set for Saturdays also. Tae Kwon Do class will be taught by Johnny Hollums at a fee of $11 per YMCA member and $15 per non-member. Class will meet between 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday, starting Jan. 23 for six weeks. Guitar lessons will start at 7 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday and last until 8 p.m., starting Monday for six weeks. Instructor Joe Ostrenga will teach basic techniques and fundamentals of music theory for a fee of $10 for Y members and $15 for non-members. Macrame is offered for those wishing to learn the art of this creative hobby. Classes, which include all materials needed, will meet between 7-8 p.m. each Thursday, beginning Jan. 25 and continuing through March 15. Fee for this class is $12 for Y members and $16 for non-members. Gymnastic lessons from 5-6 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday, starting Jan. 23 and continuing through March 1 will be for beginning boys and girls in grades 1-6. Cost is $8 for Y members and $10 for non-members in this class to again be taught by Jennifer Long. Baton lessons between 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., starting Jan. 27 through March 17 will be taught by Miss Jamie Johnston at a cost of $10 fee for Y members and $12 for non-members. A ladies' exercise class, designed for fitness-minded members, will be taught by Sylvia Sanchez. Class meets from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday, starting Monday. The course involves a wide variety of aerobic dance and floor exercises with special attention given to problem areas. The weightlifting room, featuring a new universal gym, will open between 8:30 and 8 p.m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for its members ages 15 and older. In addition, a new game room, featuring foosball, bumper pool, ping-pong, air hockey, shuffle board, and television, will be open 3 to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. Boys and girls in grades 1-6 can be looking for information in March about the softball program. Park Center membership rates for youths ages 18 and under are $5; adults, $7, and families, $12. Those seeking more information or wishing to register for a program may come by the YMCA, 1509 Orchard Lane, or call Park Center, 682-0533.

Two Basin cities to get more sales tax returns

AUSTIN — Two cities in the Permian Basin will be getting more sales tax returned to them this month while another one will be getting less when compared to the same period a year ago, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock. Odessa will be getting the largest share of the three with $258,075.57 being returned as its January allocation. This is 21 percent more than the $212,130.61 received a year ago. Midland is scheduled to get $175,418, a 10 percent increase over the $159,259.49 allotted a year ago. Big Spring is dropping to $25,051.14. This is a 17 percent drop from the allotment of $30,490.58 given a year ago. Bullock said Monday the January allocation of the local option 1 percent sales tax would exceed $18.1 million. This sales tax is collected by merchants and other sales tax permit holders along with the state sales tax. It is rebated monthly to cities in which it is collected.

Dallas woman charged with attempted murder

DALLAS (AP) — A 32-year-old Dallas woman has been charged with two counts of attempted murder in the beating and mutilation of her children, police said. Municipal Judge Lee Clemens set bonds of $100,000 Monday on each of the charges against Kathleen Gradi. She did not post bond. Her son and daughter were hospitalized in critical condition from wounds suffered Friday at their northeast Dallas apartment. Police found Clifford Cecil Gradi, 11, in the blood-spattered apartment Friday, a screwdriver jammed through his eye and buried up to its hilt. He underwent two operations at Parkland Memorial Hospital. His sister, Aimee Jean Gray, 8, was taken to Baylor Medical Center, where she underwent surgery for a skull fracture and a punctured lung. Mrs. Gradi told police Friday that the children were getting ready for school when she left for work.

Three American students killed by Austrian avalanche on ski trip

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Some 40 American students were to vote today on whether to continue a European ski tour or return home after an avalanche killed three of their classmates on 6,300-foot Mt. Seegrube. Prof. Joseph Masters of Stetson University, De Land, Fla., said the students were scheduled to leave Innsbruck for Munich, "but a vote will decide whether we continue our tour or return straight home." In addition to West Germany, the students originally planned to go to France and England before returning to the United States Jan. 30. But on Monday an avalanche killed Dennis Long, 23, of Louisville, Ky.; William Scott-Fenlon, 21, of Thomasville, Ga.; and Katherine Resnick, 23, of Stockbridge, Mass. Five other students received minor injuries and were released from a hospital after first-aid treatment. The professor gave this account: "There was a group of about 10-12 intermediate skiers. They had skied before and were on the upper slope of

Mt. Seegrube at the time. "The other group was on the lower slope. They were not affected because the avalanche stopped a few yards in front of them. "They just looked up as they heard the noise and saw this ball of snow rolling down the slope, and they saw people being carried away by the snow. "They rushed up to help them, and (Austrian) rescuers were very quick. They were surprisingly fast ... in their work."

Hilton leaves estate of $100 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hotel magnate Conrad Hilton, who died Jan. 3 at the age of 91, has left an estate of about $100 million, according to documents filed in court. A petition for probate of the will filed in Superior Court on Monday by Hilton's son, Barron, and James E. Bates — co-executors of the will — included bequests of $750,000 to Barron Hilton, $300,000 to son Eric, and $100,000 to daughter Constance Francesca Hilton. Bates said one provision of the will provided Barron Hilton an option to buy his father's shares of Hilton Hotel Corp. common stock at the value appraised in the estate. Barron Hilton reportedly planned to purchase the 6,775,000 shares by using a 10-year promissory note, Bates said.

New snowfall expected; Storm deaths now at 53

Home-bound Chicago office workers beg for rides from what passing motorists there are on Michigan Avenue Monday afternoon. Snow began falling in the early afternoon, adding to the more than 20 inches that fell on Saturday, making commuting nearly impossible. (AP Laserphoto)

CHICAGO (AP) — With new snowfall predicted for today, the Midwest struggled to cope with hip-deep snow that threatened to disrupt fuel and food supplies.

The storm-related death toll climbed to at least 53. A Kansas road crew plowing snow Monday in rural Stafford County uncovered a car in a ditch containing the bodies of two men who apparently had frozen to death.

A 44-year-old Columbus, Ohio, man was found 12 feet from the front door of his home on Monday. Police said he apparently slipped on ice, couldn't get up, and died of exposure.

In the hard-hit Chicago area, where up to 4 inches of snow fell atop the 20.3 inches that arrived over the weekend, authorities counted 17 deaths linked to the city's worst storm since 1967.

There have been 18 reported deaths in Illinois, 15 in Wisconsin, seven in Kansas, four each in Missouri and Iowa, three in Michigan and one in Ohio and one in Nebraska.

Officials in Milwaukee, where 5 inches of snow fell Monday, urged Gov. Lee Dreyfus to seek a federal disaster declaration for the city — now under 30 inches of snow, the most it has seen in 67 years.

Public schools in the city were closed for a second day today, the first time they have been shut for two consecutive days since 1947.

Public works commissioner Herbert Goetsch calculated that snow removal will cost $1 million more than is budgeted. Fire officials worried because fire hydrants are buried under mounds of snow.

The region remained locked in the storm's icy grip. Warrod, Minn., reported the nation's lowest temperature at 2 a.m. EST today, -35 degrees. It was 69 degrees at Homestead, Fla., the U.S. hot spot.

Thousands of travelers spent another night in Chicago hotels because O'Hare International Airport — which closed for only the sixth time in its history on Saturday — was limited to one runway. A second runway was expected to reopen today.

Commuters — there are 2.25 million in Chicago — hitchhiked or faced two-hour delays due to icy elevated tracks and stalled buses.

The National Weather Service warned there would be at least 4 more inches of snow to contend with today in a new snowshower expected to hit the nation's second-largest city.

And Fred Ostby, deputy director of the National Weather Service in Kansas City, Kan., said a storm system in the West may hit Missouri and Kansas later in the week.

Ostby said it would be Wednesday or Thursday before he could predict the storm's path and intensity. He said it could pack more wallop than the wintry blast that hit over the weekend.

Illinois Gov. James Thompson declared a state of emergency in 22 counties Monday, and then left for a family vacation in Florida. The governors of Iowa and Kansas also declared emergencies.

The price of snow removal and emergency work in Illinois was set at $3.4 million by Monday, and rising, Thompson said.

Meanwhile, 2 to 3 inches of rain fell in the Sacramento Valley and the San Francisco area of California Monday, and avalanche warnings were issued in the eastern Sierras.

The rain was accompanied by lightning and more than 17,000 customers lost power when it struck transformers in Oakland.

National Guard troops using helicopters delivered hay to starving cattle in Iowa and similar rescue attempts were planned today in Missouri, where temperatures remained near -15 degrees.

Kansas farmers worried that some cattle already were dead — frozen under drifts of 10 feet or more. And experts warned that the high price of keeping animals alive would push up costs.

Elsewhere, about 300 tractor-trailer rigs — some loaded with perishables like peaches and pears — were stalled at truck stops along Interstate 80 in Iowa. Fuel supplies were low in some areas.

Iowa Gov. Robert Ray issued an emergency proclamation allowing fuel tank carriers to haul an extra 1,000 gallons of fuel oil or propane to overcome delivery delays caused by up to 28 inches of snow cover.

In some areas of the Midwest, delivery trucks did not arrive before home fuel supplies ran out for some rural residents.

In Davenport, Iowa, people on snowmachines delivered fuel oil to families that had run out.

And in New Liberty, Iowa, troops rescued three members of a family who burned corncobs over the weekend to heat their home. The temperature in one bedroom dipped to 10 degrees, they said.

Here is a listing of temperatures and weather conditions in key cities at 2 a.m. EST.

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta, 31, partly cloudy; Detroit, 10, cloudy; Indianapolis, 13, clear; Louisville, 29, cloudy; Miami, 67, clear; Nashville, 33, cloudy; New York, 26, cloudy; Philadelphia, 26, cloudy; Pittsburgh, 18, cloudy; Washington, 32, cloudy.

Western U.S. — Anchorage, 32, clear; Los Angeles, 53, rain; Phoenix, 57, cloudy; Salt Lake City, 38, cloudy; San Diego, 57, rain; San Francisco, 47, partly cloudy; Seattle, 36, fog.

Caribbean — San Juan, 77, partly cloudy.

Dederich attorneys agree to his return to California

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP) — Attorneys for Synanon founder Charles Dederich have agreed to his return to California to face charges in a rattlesnake attack on a Los Angeles lawyer.

Dederich, 65, was scheduled to be taken to Los Angeles by air ambulance today. Bond will be set at $100,000 under the agreement.

A brief hearing was held in Mohave Superior Court Monday to announce the agreement. The accord was signed by Dederich's wife and daughter, who were given limited guardianship in a court order last week.

Dederich, who set up Synanon as a drug and alcohol abuse foundation, has been in the detention ward at Mohave General Hospital in Kingman.

He is charged with conspiracy and solicitation to commit murder in a rattlesnake attack on lawyer Paul Morantz. The attorney, who had successfully opposed Synanon in court, survived the attack.

The Synanon founder was arrested Dec. 2 at his Lake Havasu City home 60 miles from Kingman. After his arrest, he was hospitalized in Kingman and then in Phoenix, where a stroke was diagnosed. He later was freed on bond but was returned to custody Dec. 26 when Gov. Bruce Babbitt signed an extradition warrant.

Despite assurances from Carter, mayors still fearful of cutbacks

By DON MCLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rift between urban leaders and the White House over budget language persists despite President Carter's personal assurance that his new budget will provide more money for the poor.

"We find this extremely interesting," said John Gunther, director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, after Carter's promise of more money.

"But we continue to be fearful that the actual number of dollars available for fiscal 1980 will not come up to the current services level," Gunther said.

In an interview broadcast Monday by NBC News, Carter said, "We will have a substantial increase...in the total budget expenditures for the poor people of our country."

The president added, "I think when the budget is analyzed, these intense fears that did exist among city officials and special interest groups around the country will be substantially alleviated."

Carter did not say where the increased spending would come or how much he was adding to current budget levels in the social services area critical to recession-ridden cities with high unemployment and burgeoning welfare costs.

"You could have a very substantial increase in actual dollars but because of inflation those dollars would not buy the present level of services," Gunther said.

"The measure we've been working on, will there be enough dollars to keep up current services," Gunther said. "And in light of what the president is saying tonight, we will certainly be looking forward to the details in his budget."

During a speech in Atlanta Sunday, Carter said he "will fight for new support, increased support to educate disadvantaged children in our nation, for Head Start, for the handicapped and all those to whom America's promise has not come."

However, he did not disclose details.

Gunther said when a delegation of leading mayors last met with Carter they were shown materials from the Office of Management and Budget which indicated a loss of $15 billion to $20 billion in domestic program funds.

Since then, Gunther said, there have been indications that some money sought by the cities will be restored to the budget, but the mayors still anticipate a loss of $8 billion to $10 billion from current budget levels.

"If we're wrong, we'll be very happy," Gunther said.

Last week a similar exchange occurred when the White House announced that the administration will ask Congress once again to restore anti-recession relief for the cities.

Thomas Cochran, deputy to Gunther, said then that the money might never reach needy cities if its delivery is triggered only by national unemployment figures, as the administration has indicated.

Carter sought $500 million in what has been termed counter-cyclical funds last year to extend an expiring program, but Congress failed to complete action on the measure before adjourning in December. As a result several large cities which had counted on the federal money were hard hit, including New York City, which was short $40 million.

In his television interview Monday Carter also gave no clues as to how he planned to give more money to programs for the poor and still keep his pledge to beef up defense spending.

Decision supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter says she supports her husband's decision to fire Bella Abzug as co-leader of the National Advisory Committee for Women.

Mrs. Carter also said Monday that she hopes the women who resigned from the committee in sympathy with Ms. Abzug will return.

"I hope those who resigned in protest will come back," Mrs. Carter said. "It was a very good committee."

Sarah R. Weddington, special assistant to President Carter for women, said no replacement for Ms. Abzug would be announced immediately.

"Right now people just need to have some time to think about it," said Ms. Weddington, who declined to say whether she supported the president's decision.

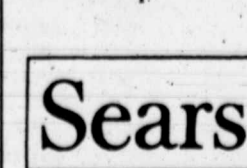

But she said she has been calling committee members and asking them to reconsider their decision to resign.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Monday he did not know whether any members of the 30-member committee returned.

Meanwhile, Richard Rossie, the only man remaining on the committee, said he also felt the firing of Ms. Abzug was just.

Congressional attention now on 'housekeeping'

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Congress, having convened with traditional ceremony and celebration, now is turning its attention to filling committee vacancies and other housekeeping chores.

Special committees in the House and Senate were meeting today to fill out committee rosters for the 96th Congress — a tedious chore that will take most of the week.

Both chambers convened for their first session of the year Monday with opening-day ceremonies including the formal swearing-in of members who were elected last November and the election of leaders for the next two years.

From the outset, though, it was clear that the No. 1 domestic issue facing the new Congress will be fighting inflation.

Members on the Republican and Democratic sides of the aisle applauded when House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. declared, "Together we must find a way to control inflation without throwing people out of work."

And bills designed to curb government spending began accumulating on both sides of the Capitol — clearly reflecting what the members perceive as a national mood for less government.

One hundred House members endorsed a bill by Rep. L.A. Bafalis, R-Fla., to keep Congress from spend-

Girl can keep her badges

WANTAUGH, N.Y. (AP) — Andrea Weitman can keep 11 merit badges she earned as a Cub Scout, but as far as the Boy Scouts of America is concerned, she never existed, a national scouting official says. "I don't think anybody is going to take them away from her," Thomas Dew, of Scouting USA in New Brunswick, N.J., said after he learned the 13-year-old girl was a Cub Scout in this Long Island community for two years. "That girl, any girl, no girl can be a Cub Scout," said Harvey Smith, a director of the Nassau County Boy Scout Council.

Despite the women's liberation movement and legal barriers on sex discrimination, courts have upheld the organization's refusal to admit girls, Dew said. Girls must become Brownies and Girl Scouts or nothing at all, he said. "The national policy is that cub scouting programs are designed to meet the needs of boys only," Dew added. Miss Weitman, daughter of cub master Paul Weitman, spent two years in the Wantagh Cub pack, earned 11 out of 15 possible merit badges, and retired with honor at the mandatory age of 11. Her case might never have come to light, except that Andrea encouraged a friend to sign up and wrote a letter to scouting officials on the girl's behalf.

Study indicates smoking's harmful pregnancy effects

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - New evidence indicates the negative effects of smoking continue even if women quit before pregnancy, says a major new study.

Data released Tuesday for the U.S. Collaborative Perinatal Project, which examined more than 50,000 pregnancies at 12 hospital centers, confirmed previous studies showing smoking during pregnancy increases disorders that kill the unborn and the newborn.

But Dr. Richard L. Naeye of Pennsylvania State University told the American Heart Association's annual science writers' forum he was particularly disturbed by the first data to indicate past smoking had an effect on later pregnancy.

He said placenta praevia and the presence of abnormally large areas of dead tissue on the placenta were more common for smoking mothers and were related to past smoking, measured as cigarettes per year over a period of time.

Placenta praevia is a condition in which the placenta is attached abnormally low in the womb, leading to dangerous complications during labor and birth.

Naeye said no one knows how long the effects of smoking continue after a woman quits, but he advised women contemplating pregnancy to give up smoking as early as possible before conception.

Previous studies linked sudden infant death syndrome - also called crib death - to smoking during pregnancy. But Naeye said this study is the first to show smoking as an independent risk factor of the condition, a problem of unknown origin which kills one of every 400 children born in the United States.

While smoking is not the greatest risk factor in crib death - premature birth and respiratory and prenatal infection are others - it alone increases the risk of crib death by 52 percent, Naeye said.

Among the adverse effects that the study confirmed increase because of smoking during pregnancy are spontaneous abortions, stillbirths, and premature births.
