The horse for centuries has been the vehicle for parodies, allegories, allusions and for selling.

Politicians came up with the term, "dark horse," for a virtually unknown candidate galloping in the inside lane.

Pegasus was the winged horse in Greek mythology. A constellation is named after the improbable creature.

Magnolia (later, Mobil) Oil touted its Flying Red Horse on signs, marquees, cans, gasoline pumps and, most notably, atop the historic Mobil Oil Building in downtown Big D.

The hoofed mammal, "Equus caballus" in Latin, is used figuratively or literally (depending on the Bible scholar) as mounts for Revelation's Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, representing Conquest, War, Famine and Death.

There's the horse of another color to note something entirely different.

The steam locomotive of the 1800s and into the 1900s was called the "iron horse" and replaced the oxen and draft horses.

Following the mobile trail was the "horseless carriage" which led to massive paving called highways. The hoof beat on cobblestone trails faded into the past.

You can get on your high horse, horse around, hold your horses, or giddy up and go, as you sip or give a horse laugh.

You can split horse hairs. Or you can point to your reliable source as the horse's mouth.

There's the "runaway horse" of inflation, which McAmey's Weems S. Dykes calls "greed let loose with out any restraints."

And you may wonder why the Wild West's wranglers were called cow boys instead of ponyboys, horseboys or horsemen, since the ranch hand has far more affection for, and trust and reliance in his mount than he has for the cow, steer or doggie. Why not steerman, bullman, doggie man, heifer man, calfman or boyman or oxman?

Riders skilled in equitation admire their horses, whether they be cutting horses, Lipizzaners, racing thoroughbreds, polo ponies, rodeo horses, walking horses, just gentle and sometimes fickle riding horses or a team of Clydesdales, such as Anheuser-Busch uses in advertising beer.

Unflatteringly, some unkindly refer to another as a horse's rear end, or more explicitly.

That's unfortunate, because, aesthetically, the horse is a graceful creature and has one of the best designed hindquarters in the hoofed kingdom. But, if you're driving a team of horses, your perspective may be subject to change.

The knight among the chessmen on the checkerboard bears a horse's head.

The wild mustang represents a freedom and independence that man would seek for himself but, for the grace of Congress and wildlife advocates, would forever deny the wild horse.

The horse is a legend.

Six Stantonites honored

STANTON — "Disadvantages of small towns have been highly distorted, and the advantages have been grossly understated," Ronnie Christian told his audience Monday night at the Martin County Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Christian, 1979 president of the chamber, spoke at the annual event at which six Stantonites were honored.

Six of Christian's fellow hometown folks were cited, variously, for promise in the future, community service, outstanding citizenship, service to the chamber and for work in agriculture — the community's economic mainstay.

An estimated 100 in this town of approximately 3,000 attended the banquet.

The presentation of the awards, and the singing of gospel, pop and sentimental songs by The Koonce Family made up the banquet fare.

THE SINGING was in lieu of a traditional banquet speaker.

Awards were presented to David Louder, as the "outstanding young person involved in agri-business" in Martin County. Louder, a 19-year-old sophomore agri-business major at Texas Tech University, was presented the first Raymond T. Kingsfield Memorial Award by Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders.

The award included a letter of tribute, a plaque and a check for $500. Kingsfield, who died in the early 1970s, farmed in the Tarzan-Wolcott area. His widow, Pat, established the award.

Louder said he hopes "to live up to Mr. Kingsfield's name," and commented, "I think it's easy for young folks to excel (in Martin County), because you all give us support."

Charlie Pinkerton, a man who "doesn't know how to say no" as recipient of the community public service award. Pinkerton, a school teacher, was cited by Bill Young as a person who "gives of himself to the county, this community," and as a "great Christian (and) great friend."

Midland County commissioners Monday voted to cancel the county's contract with a cleaning service after hearing complaints from various department heads about the quality of work done in the courthouse.

"We're paying over a thousand dollars a month for nothing," Auditor Erma White told the Commissioners Court of the contract with Rollins Cleaning Service.

The cleaning service is responsible for cleaning floors and restrooms in the courthouse at a cost of $1,073 a month.

Also Monday, the commissioners voted to appoint a County Child Welfare Board. Child Welfare Department supervisor Beverly Acker told commissioners she thinks Midland County is the largest in the state without such a board.

The purposes of the board, she said, would include serving as an policy advisory committee, helping stimulate public awareness about child abuse and neglect and serving as a contracting agency with the Texas Department of Human Resources.

Such a contract would not cost the county anything, Mrs. Acker said. Rather, she said it could save the county money by, for instance, making it possible for the county to collect Medicaid payments for children in foster homes who don't receive Aid for Dependent Children payments.

Currently, the county bears medical expenses for those children.

The commissioners authorized County Judge William B. Alders to enter into such a contract.

Appointed to the board were James L. Owens, the Rev. John D. Riggs, Mrs. Harry Clark, Mrs. David Harris, Mrs. Nicky Sanchez, Dr. V.M. Coleman, Sister Carmen Duanno, Dr. Danny Watts and Mrs. Harold P. Steck. Mrs. Randall Kirk and the Rev. James Considine were named as alternates.

Iranian strikes used as threat

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — One of Ayatollah Khomeini's chief political aides said the strikes paralyzing the Iranian economy will continue until Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's government resigns and makes way for an Islamic republican regime named by the religious leader.

Bakhtiar "cannot rule the country because strikes will go on and government employees will not go back to work," Mehdi Bazargan told reporters today.

Bazargan, a longtime fighter for human rights who represented Khomeini in negotiations with striking oil workers, said Bakhtiar can rely only on the support of the army.

"But there are indications the army is not interested in fighting the people," he declared.

Gen. Abbas Gharbaghi, the chief of the armed forces, called on the 430,000-mvn army Monday night to defend Bakhtiar's government against Khomeini's attempts to replace it.

With the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem patriarch scheduled to return from exile Friday, the general in an unprecedented broadcast said the military would not heed the religious leaders seeking Bakhtiar's overthrow and would defend the "legal and constitutional" government.

"The unity, security and well-being of the people are in danger," said Gharbaghi. "The servants of the imperial armed forces, with decisive will and patriotism, will overcome their sentiments and will endeavor

Clements submits legislative ideas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements opened the "first chapter" of his legislative program today, asking for enlarged powers for the governor, $1 billion in tax relief, a start on property tax reform and a "Taxpayer's Bill of Rights."

While requesting constitutional amendments increasing the governor's power over the budget and the state bureaucracy, Clements also recommended a two-term limit on governors, lieutenant governors and at torneys general.

The newly inaugurated Republican governor's first "State of the State Address" contained over a dozen specific recommendations and a call to restore public confidence in government.

He called it "the first chapter in an ongoing dialogue" with legislators and said its central theme was that "government should be directly accountable to the citizens."

"Where Texans have lost confidence in government, we must make them confident again. Where Texans have lost touch with government, we must put them in touch again," Clements said.

(Once again — in the face of doubts

by many legislative leaders — Clements said the Legislature "can and should return $1 billion to the taxpayers of Texas over the next two years."

But he did not specify the form such tax relief should take. Possibilities mentioned so far include direct state tax reductions and added state school aid that would enable school districts to reduce property taxes.

Clements said it was not up to him to defend the budget cuts that would be needed if taxes are to be reduced.

"To the contrary, those who are attempting to increase the budget by 22 percent over the budget of just two years ago must define in detail and fully justify such increases," Clements said in a reference to the "bare bones" spending bill recommended by the Legislative Budget Board.

Clements asked for these new powers for the governor, each of which would require a constitutional amendment approved by two thirds of each legislative house and by the voters.

Budget execution, which means the power of the governor to oversee the actual expenditure of money appropriated by the Legislature, blocking spending that seems unnecessary and shifting funds around to meet special needs.

Authority to remove appointed members of state boards and commissions for specific reasons, with Senate approval.

In addition, Clements requested a new law giving him the authority to designate the chairmen of state boards and commissions, some of which now choose their own leaders.

"Give the governor's office these tools, and at the end of these four years, you and I will have provided the most responsible, the most accountable and the best government Texans have ever had," Clements said.

Clements asked the Legislature to implement his campaign promise of reducing state government employment by 25,000 over the next four years by attrition — not filling certain vacancies that occur.

The new governor also recommended limiting each county to a single property tax appraisal office, replacing the dozens that exist in some counties.

Clements proposed abolition of the 10 cents per $100 valuation state property tax, already under attack in a lawsuit.

County cancels cleaning contract

Davis released from jail, but another trial coming

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry said today his office would try again to prosecute millionaire Cullen Davis on murder conspiracy charges.

Davis, pale, thin and smiling after nearly five months in jail, flew here from Houston early today after a mistrial was declared because of a hung jury.

Curry said that "good conscious demands" that Davis be tried again. "It boils down to whether or not a man of his resources and his money should get a free ride in this system. I don't think he should. I think the law ought to apply to everyone, regardless. I don't think it does at this point."

Curry said he would like to go to trial again within six months but doubts it can be done. He would not set a time on when it might be.

He said that although the hung jury might be interpreted as a victory for the prosecution, it was a victory for the defense because Davis is now free.

"The point is that as long as the defense can keep a man out of jail, they're winning. The tactics will now be delay," the district attorney said.

He said it would be impossible to predict a date to retry Davis because his lawyers were so good they could "pick and choose" almost which cases to handle and when.

The seven-man, five-woman jury had three choices: convict Davis of solicitation of capital murder, conspiracy to commit capital murder, or acquittal.

They chose none of them. After nearly 44 hours of deliberation and 14 votes, the jury announced Monday it was "hopelessly deadlocked" 8-4 and told District Judge Wallace Moore there could be no verdict.

Moore reluctantly concurred. The weary, chain-smoking judge, considered by Houston attorneys as the best on the bench, approved a defense motion for a mistrial.

"I'm tickled to death that this phase

Rep. Diggs to relinquish post during his appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., has promised House leaders he will relinquish his chairmanship of a House subcommittee on Africa while his conviction and three-year prison sentence remains on appeal.

But that was before he was overwhelmingly re-elected in November. He was convicted last October of illegally diverting some $60,000 in staff salary kickbacks to pay personal and office expenses.

"THIS IS the greatest honor I've ever received," commented Faris, who said his job is "fairly easy with the type of people we have in Martin County."

Court rules parents can't treat 3-year-old with Laetrile

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A Superior Court judge today ordered the parents of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green to stop giving their child Laetrile.

Judge Guy Volterra also ruled that the boy, who has been the center of a controversy over cancer treatment, must remain in the legal custody of the state, even though he can live with his parents.

Postponement of shah's U.S. visit blamed on support of Khomeini

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran has decided to postpone indefinitely his planned visit to the United States because of President Carter's apparent support for Ayatollah Khomeini, sources close to the monarch said today.

Several other countries are under consideration, the sources said, including Saudi Arabia, Britain and France. Switzerland, where the shah usually spent a winter vacation, has been ruled out because Swiss authorities advised him they could not provide the necessary security.

imminent return was an additional reason why the shah decided not to cross the Atlantic at this time. "He probably prefers to wait nearby to see what happens in Iran after the ayatollah has gone back," one source said.

Lamesa Industrial Foundation chooses five new directors

LAMESA — A total of five new directors recently were elected to the Lamesa Industrial Foundation here. In all, 17 citizens were present during the annual meeting of group held in the Reddy Room of the Texas Electric Service Co.

Rockets narrowly miss children

Rockets fired by Palestinian guerrillas from bases in southern Lebanon fell on towns in northern Israel today, narrowly missing a crowd of schoolchildren rushing to bomb shelters, Israel Radio reported. Israeli gunners returned the fire.

The radio reported no injuries in the Katyusha rocket attacks on the border towns of Kiryat Shmona and Metulla, just five miles apart in the northernmost Galilee, a finger of land that juts into Lebanon.

It quoted Defense Minister Ezer Weizman as telling a meeting of a parliamentary committee that Israel would strike at civilian populations in Lebanon if the rocketing of Israeli towns did not stop.

A school in Kiryat Shmona took a direct hit on a second-floor classroom, the radio said, but the 400 pupils and their teachers had just rushed into underground shelters after the first rocket exploded nearby.

It was the third time in five days northern Israeli settlements had been hit by rockets.

In Beirut, the Lebanese government urged the U.N. Security Council to pressure Israel into stopping its "relentless" attacks against the guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

Lebanese Foreign Minister Fuad Butros summoned the ambassadors of the United States, Russia, France, Britain and China and asked their governments to "intervene at once." Butros said escalating hostilities in the south created a "very grave situation that dictates on the big powers the use of their weight to avert a potential total explosion."

On Monday, Abu Hassan, alleged mastermind of the 1972 Munich Olympics massacre of 11 Israeli sportsmen, was assassinated in Beirut, Lebanon. The Palestine Liberation Organization blamed Israel for the killing. Israel had no comment on the charge.

High court marks anniversary with decisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, labeled inconsistent in how it views women and the law, marked the sixth anniversary of its landmark decision legalizing abortions with three new statements on women's rights.

The court's action Monday came as 60,000 anti-abortion demonstrators marched through Washington streets and the National Organization for Women called for a summit meeting between abortion-on-demand and anti-abortion leaders.

In separate cases, the justices:

—Ruled by a 7-2 vote that divorced wives of railroad workers have no right to share in their former spouse's railroad pension.

—Said they will not hear arguments that women who undergo abortions have a constitutional right to keep that information confidential.

—Agreed to consider reinstating a Social Security law that denies mother's benefits to women who were not married to deceased wage earners but bore their children.

While none of the issues ignites the emotional flames touched off by the high court's 1973 abortion ruling, each carries impact for women.

"You can't predict what the court will do in this area," Columbia University law professor Ruth Bader Ginsburg says. "It has shied away from doctrinal development and instead has considered each case in its own narrow frame."

The railroad pensions case was decided on narrow legal grounds — that a federal law covering railroad retirement benefits takes precedence over state community property laws.

Death appears 'accidental'

The death Monday of a 25-year-old Odessa man who was crushed under a fork lift at Compressor Systems, Inc. at FM 1788 appears to be "accidental," said Sgt. Robert Defer of the Midland County Sheriff's Office, today.

Defer said he "hadn't written anything down yet, but that's what it looks like."

Peace Justice Robert Pine declared Michael D. Felts dead at the scene. The mishap occurred about 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Sgt. Defer said Felts was assisting another employee at the plant load a fork lift when the machine overturned and fell on top of him.

Felts' chest was crushed and he succumbed to internal injuries, said investigators.

OC welding course to ease shortage

ODESSA — The Permian Basin's shortage of skilled welders could be eased by a new program at Odessa College which starts Feb. 1, said officials.

The new welding program will allow students to enroll any weekday year-around, instead of having to wait to register when traditional semesters begin.

Students also will have the option to enroll for a short period of time and learn only one welding skill, or continue to re-enroll and take the complete program.

Classes will meet on a half-day basis to enable students to work as they take courses.

By having classes on a half-day basis, college officials hope more Odessans who work part-time can sign up for the course.

"The program should be the first step toward helping alleviate the manpower shortage in the welding field," said Duane Nobles, chairman of the Odessa College Welding Department.

A student enrolled in this program signs up and pays for only one course at a time, said officials.

The nine courses to be taught and the number of weeks needed for learning each skill are as follows: 10 weeks for basic arc welding; nine weeks for intermediate arc welding; 10 weeks for advanced arc welding; seven weeks for basic acetylene welding; six weeks for advanced acetylene welding; 10 weeks for welding layout and fabrication; eight weeks for metallic inert gas (MIG) welding; eight weeks for tungsten inert gas (TIG) welding; and two weeks for blueprint reading and drawing.

The cost of each course varies according to the time needed for instruction, said officials. They said, for example, the beginning arc welding course costs about $130, while blueprint reading and drawing will cost about $32.

The entire training program of 1,400 clock-hours, which will take about 1½ years to complete, will cost about $915.

Students enrolled can earn regular college credit, said officials.

"Most people interested in studying for work in the field of welding want to learn the skill and go right to work as quickly as they can," said Nobles said. "This new program will allow them to do just that."

He said both men and women are finding good jobs locally in welding.

To sign up for the training program a person must be at least 18 years of age or have a high school diploma or an equivalent. Persons interested can sign up by getting in touch with Nobles at Odessa College or the OC Counseling Center.

New Mexico residents arrested for car thefts

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Thirteen stolen luxury cars worth about $130,000 were recovered and eight New Mexico residents were arrested as the result of a four-month undercover investigation into an alleged car theft ring, said police.

Seven of the eight persons arrested Monday were taken into custody in Hobbs, while one was arrested in Albuquerque, said officers. All but one of the cars, which was recovered in El Paso, Texas, were impounded in Albuquerque.

Midland man held in jail on $7,000 bond

Billy Devon Kirkpatrick, 26, of the 2000 block of South Lamesa Road was in City Jail today in lieu of $7,000 bond after being charged with aggravated rape Monday by Peace Justice John H. Biggs, said authorities.

Midland Police Department officers said Kirkpatrick was arrested Sunday in connection with the alleged rape of a 28-year-old Midland woman.

The incident reportedly occurred Sunday at a trailer park on South Lamesa Road.

The woman told police a man who had been visiting her and her husband followed her outside the couple's trailer when she went to make a telephone call.

She told officers a man armed with a gun forced her into a trailer house next door, where the rape allegedly occurred.

Salute to Achievers

Junior Achievement Week is being observed nationwide, with members of the Midland J.A. Chapter leading the way in the Tall City observance.

The Junior Achievement Business Center at 2311 Elizabeth St. will be open to visitors from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. today through Thursday. Midland and area residents are urged to visit the center to see the Junior Achievers at work in their various miniature companies, manufacturing and readying products for marketing.

The youths would like nothing better than to have visitors in large numbers attend the open house during the scheduled hours. They are proud of their work and are anxious for others to see the results of their efforts.

Junior Achievement, just in case you are not familiar with it, is the nation's oldest youth economic education program. It teaches high school students the principles of the American free enterprise system by helping them organize and run their own small businesses. More than 200,000 young people are involved in J.A. each year, nationwide.

At the beginning of each season the student members, under the guidance of volunteer advisers, form their miniature companies, sell stock to capitalize, elect officers, choose a product to manufacture or a service to offer, keep books and map out marketing plans, pay salaries, rent (and taxes as appropriate), and produce, promote and sell their company's product or service.

At the end of each school year, the Achievers liquidate their companies, publish annual report and hopefully, pay dividends to stockholders.

It is said that Junior Achievement is where youth learns the business of business.

It is a far-reaching, effective and most worthwhile program for youths.

The program is sponsored by local business firms, groups and individuals and operates under an adult board of directors representing business interests. No tax funds are involved. J.A. is not financially linked to school systems from which it recruits its members.

Funds to pay staff salaries, purchase equipment and educational materials, and maintain J.A. facilities come solely from the support of the local business community. The Midland J.A. unit just now is in the process of completing its annual fund campaign.

J.A.'s big annual Future Unlimited Banquet will be held in April, at which time special awards will be presented to outstanding individuals and companies involved in the program.

It is a most worthwhile and rewarding program for both participants, sponsors and the overall business community.

A snappy salute is directed to Midland Junior Achievers, their advisers, sponsors and all others involved in the program on the occasion of Junior Achievement Week.

Delay troop pull-out

In view of the U.S. Army's recent reassessment of North Korea's military strength, President Carter should reconsider his announced policy of withdrawing all American ground forces from South Korea. Time and events now challenge the wisdom of his plan.

The Army finds that the North Koreans are fielding as many as 41 divisions instead of the 28 previously identified. North Korea tank strength now is put at 2,000, which is double the number estimated in 1974. And the North Korea air force remains a third larger than that of South Korea.

This new appraisal of North Korea's forces, the first intensive re-evaluation in several years, points up how poorly prepared Mr. Carter was to make his 1977 decision to withdraw the last remaining U.S. Army division in phases over a four or five-year period.

Reps. Samuel S. Stratton and Robin L. Beard, both members of the House Armed Services Committee, have urged Mr. Carter to suspend the troop withdrawal schedule long enough to permit Congress to study the new intelligence estimates and determine their potential significance. This seemingly is a sound recommendation.

It yet would leave the President free to resume the withdrawal if Congress decided that the danger of a North Korea invasion would not thereby be heightened.

A CHANGING WORLD: What will the President do next? Good question

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

John Pinkerman

Sen. Barry Goldwater's court challenge notwithstanding, there is nothing anyone can do about President Carter's bow to the Reds of Peking.

What concerns thoughtful Americans and U.S. allies abroad, however, is what the President will do next in a bid to cultivate enemies and punish friends. Three specifics worry those who watch Mr. Carter's immature handling of the presidency:

1. The fragile status of seven other defense treaties the United States has with presumed-to-be friends, treaties like the one with the Republic of China on Taiwan that was swept away with a three-minute grinning Carter TV appearance on Dec. 15.

2. Mr. Carter's compelling desire to do something "big," like the recognition of the Chinese Communists, the urge to reach a SALT II pact with Russia even at the expense of NATO allies and the disavowal of Israel in the interest of appeasing the Arabs.

3. The several new Soviet pacts and excursions into territories around the world that every day increase dangers to the United States.

European allies, since the day Mr. Carter entered the White House, have seen signs of what they believe is U.S. withdrawal from full participation in the defense against Soviet penetration of Western Europe. The Danes and the Norwegians have complained about U.S. apathy in the face of Russian buildups in the Baltic and NATO northern front areas.

With such fears as a background, continental allies note that Mr. Carter can wipe out the 1949 NATO treaty with the same speed that he used in stripping U.S. guarantees from Taiwan. It takes just one year's notice.

Perhaps the people of the Philippines feel that same way. The United States has a one-year "out" available in terminating a 1952 mutual defense treaty that might irritate the President's new friends in Peking.

As noted by Samuel T. Francis, policy analyst of the Heritage Foundation, two other firm U.S. friends — Australia and New Zealand — can be left hanging out to dry by Mr. Carter's one-year notice in terminating the 1952 ANZUS security treaty.

The same termination rights are reserved to Mr. Carter regarding defense treaties with South Korea, Southeast Asia nations, Japan and even U.S. friends in Latin America (the Treaty of Rio de Janeiro).

Thus, the whole matter of U.S. credibility is on the line and, unfortunately, Mr. Carter doesn't seem to be aware of this. Jurgen Schwarz, a West German world affairs expert, notes that the dumping of Taiwan already is causing second thoughts about U.S. reliability in other world capitals, particularly his own in Bonn.

These concerns do not seem to turn the President from his compassion for doing something dramatic, something "big," and such an egotistical urge can be extremely dangerous to the cause of the entire free world, particularly when it involves ignoring traditional friends in favor of long-time enemies.

This is all the more true in the face of what Moscow is up to these days. Its recent military pact with Afghanistan, while it may not seem like much, is the third of its kind within a month. The other two involved Ethiopia and Vietnam. It is clear that the links Russia is forging are part of a long-term geopolitical plan which is maturing much faster and easier than had been expected.

The Afghan base has an enormous role to play in Communist exploitation of the chaos in Iran and panic spillover in adjacent areas. Ethiopia, in conjunction with Russia's early vassals in South Yemen, is ideally placed for future operations against Saudi Arabia and for adventure along the Persian Gulf oil routes. Soviet Angola is being reinforced to accelerate and exploit chaos in Rhodesia and Namibia. Vietnam, now firmly under Russian protection, can be unleashed on a proxy war against China via the latter's protegee, Cambodia.

If the United States and President Carter go on pretending that these developments do not exist, the only result is playing right into Russia's hands with an invitation to Moscow to intensify her intimidation.

Peking got what it wanted from Washington and Mr. Carter's obsession with the idea of a SALT II pact may give Russia the opportunity to do the same. The losers will be America's allies — and Americans, themselves. Unless the President is persuaded to change his strategy, or lack of it, the Taiwan-Peking debacle is just a beginning.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Bells' slates clean in Savannah

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Last November we reported that Attorney General Griffin Bell had personally intervened in a Justice Department civil rights case involving the redistricting of his hometown, Savannah, Ga. The effect was to dilute the representation of the city's blacks. The department had originally objected to the redistricting plan, but after Bell's intervention, the objection was dropped.

We noted in the column that the attorney general's son, Griffin Bell Jr., had been appointed to a well-paying job as attorney for the local school board shortly before the Justice Department withdrew its objection to the redistricting. We implied that this might have been a political payoff for the attorney general's help.

We also noted that the senior Bell had been a member of the exclusive Oglethorpe Club — which bars blacks, Jews and women from membership — and suggested that his intercession in the redistricting case was a favor to his blueblooded cronies who make up Savannah's white establishment.

The attorney general objected strenuously to our interpretation of the situation, so we sent our associate Tom Rosenstiel to Savannah to investigate at the scene what Savannah sources had told us in a series of telephone interviews.

Rosenstiel concluded that there was no direct connection between the attorney general's intervention and his son's appointment, or between the senior Bell's friendship with Oglethorpe Club members and his decision to drop the redistricting complaint. Without proof-positive, it was unfair to suggest that Bell had acted from ulterior motives.

However, we did confirm that the black community's political power was in fact effectively diluted by the controversial redistricting. From two out of six city council seats, blacks have been reduced to two out of eight, though they make up 40 percent of Savannah's population.

It is also clear that the attorney general's unusual intervention — some say unprecedented — raised the serious question of a possible conflict of interest. His assistant Mike Egan, also from Savannah, was involved in the backroom manipulations.

All the attorney general's protestations of clean hands will not allay the suspicions of some black leaders that they were the victims of cronyism and that Bell and Egan interceded for the white establishment in Savannah. These suspicions could have been avoided if Bell and Egan had taken pains to disassociate themselves from the Savannah redistricting case.

While the end result of the redistricting is reasonably clear-cut, how it came about is not. On the face of it, Savannah's black political leaders seem simply to have been outfoxed by the hardball players in City Hall.

But while gerrymandering is as old as the Republic, it is condonable only when it involves one political party taking advantage of another. The Civil Rights Act expressly forbids redistricting skulduggery that weakens the political power of minorities.

The redistricting of Savannah was made necessary by the annexation of an affluent, largely white suburban area. Black support was crucial to the annexation vote.

What led the black leaders to support the annexation? The blacks say it appeared inevitable, so their strategy was to get the best deal they could by horse-trading with Savannah Mayor John Rousakis.

Blacks claim they worked out a deal with Rousakis at a private meeting in a Savannah restaurant last February. Initially, the blacks had proposed that all eight aldermen be elected by district, figuring that this way they could increase their membership on the city council from two to three. Rousakis wanted all the aldermen elected at-large, as they had been in the past.

The compromise, according to the black leaders, settled on six district seats and two at-large. They say Rousakis agreed to support a black for one of the at-large seats, then broke his promise and chose whites to run for both at-large seats.

Rousakis denies ever making such a deal. He says the black leaders cooked up this story because they were getting heat from their constituents over their failure to engineer a third council seat.

Treachery is an accepted basic ingredient of American politics at every level. Were it not for the Civil Rights Act structure, Savannah's redistricting recipe could be shrugged off as "just politics."

All redistricting plans must be approved by the Justice Department. Drew Days, assistant attorney general in charge of the Civil Rights Division, ruled that the Savannah scheme illegally diluted black representation and he refused to approve it.

That is when Rousakis and other Savannah leaders began to lobby Days and his superiors at Justice. They even persuaded a black splinter group to lend their support to the effort. The blacks say they agreed because they didn't want to risk the mayor's displeasure for another four years in office.

One member of the black delegation that came to Washington claims he was "paid off" for his support by being appointed Savannah's first black assistant city attorney — a claim that Rousakis and the city attorney deny.

Days' objection to the redistricting ultimately dissolved after Bell and Egan intervened directly. The switch was ostensibly based on new information.

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter's decisions on Iran angers U.S. generals

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — Simmering resentment among top U.S. officials over President Carter's effort to persuade Iran's powerful armed forces to back the new civilian government almost boiled in early January.

The cause of the near-crisis: Carter's decision to send a U.S. Air Force general with no political or diplomatic experience to Tehran. Gen. Robert Huyser, a deputy NATO commander, was assigned to talk the Iranian army into supporting what the U.S. military regards as a left-wing government with anti-American sentiments.

Huyser failed in his mission, but that is not the cause of anger among U.S. generals; they criticize the Carter administration for ordering it. Gen. Alexander Haig, the supreme NATO commander and Huyser's boss, was one of the unhappiest of the U.S. military officers. However, the incident had nothing to do with the timing of his long-planned resignation from the NATO post and retirement from the Army.

Behind his anger, kept under wraps, was dismay among the military over the administration's inability to decide whether and how much to support the beleaguered shah. Then Carter ordered a carrier task force to steam toward the Arabian Sea — only to stop it at Singapore because the State Department did not like that show of force.

Finally came the dispatch of Huyser to Tehran. A deputy commander of U.S. forces in Europe, he is highly regarded as a military technician with broad logistical — but not political — experience. Thus, it was an outrage to the military brass here and in NATO to send Huyser to proselytize Iran's top leadership in the delicate matter of supporting a left-of-center government that could end up tipping the scales toward the Soviet Union.

President Carter's hopes appear doomed, thanks to the refusal of responsible Iranian army commanders to join the new government.

RESCUING DICK CLARK

Confidential negotiations now underway are aimed at a drastic cut-back of Assistant Secretary of State Patricia Derian's powers over human rights and refugee affairs in favor of defeated Democratic Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa.

Of all Democrats defeated in last November's election, Clark — a liberal foreign policy activist specializing in Africa — is the one Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is most eager to help out with a new job.

The problem: with no top jobs open or about to open, how can Clark be fitted in? The answer: by chopping

Ms. Derian's job in half, leaving human rights (now only a shadow of its early self) to her and giving refugees to Clark.

The refugee business is booming, a particularly fertile field for an ambitious new bureaucrat. The tragic plight of the "boat people" from South Vietnam is the most dramatic example. But Clark undoubtedly would wish to broaden his jurisdiction to such other refugee-connected problems as illegal Mexican immigration and Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union.

It's a tasty dish for a defeated politician who doesn't want to go back home. Ms. Derian, who has been highly favored in the White House, has not opposed a separate State Department bureau for refugee affairs. But some Vance aides say she is not entirely happy with the prospect of losing half her domain.

REAGAN'S MANAGER

Conservative supporters of Ronald Reagan have just about given up hopes of displacing John Sears as national manager of Reagan's last-try presidential campaign in 1980.

The reason: even his irritation over Sears' public position on China did not change Reagan's determination to keep the quick-witted Washington lawyer in the same campaign post he held in 1976.

"Reagan is so in love with Sears' chicanery that he's willing to gloss over their ideological differences," one anti-Sears conservative told us. Put in a more charitable way, Reagan values Sears' tactical skill too much to sacrifice him on a doctrinal altar. Many Reaganites, including some powerful Republicans in California, have been trying to separate Sears from the Reagan operation. While criticizing such tactical decisions in the 1976 campaign as the selection of Sen. Richard Schweiker as running-mate, they really object to Sears' liberal deviations.

Reagan has insisted on keeping Sears, but the conservatives sniffed an opportunity when the campaign manager publicly differed from the candidate on China. While Reagan is a vocal foe of normalization, Sears predicted diplomatic relations with communist China would be widely accepted. Reagan and his closest aides were peeved, and some of those aides made that clear to Sears.

Nevertheless, when Allen Ryskind of the conservative weekly, Human Events, interviewed Reagan and tried to elicit public criticism of Sears, he drew a blank. "He (Sears) has a perfect right to say anything as an individual," Reagan told Ryskind. Reagan disagreed with what Sears said but defended his right to say it.

Area schools place in Lee High speech tournament

Several area schools placed in the recent Robert E. Lee Invitational Speech Tournament.

Jan Whittington of Big Spring took first place honors in the prose interpretation event.

The team of David Tobias and Jeff Conner from Andrews High School took top spot in standard debate.

Karen Willis of Andrews placed third in the poetry interpretation event, and Gary Rohre of Austin Freshman School made the finals in the boys' extemporaneous speaking contest. Rohre's performance qualified him for the state meet in Waco.

The tournament, formerly called the Tall City Invitational, has been held annually for more than 20 years.

More than 700 students from as far away as Corpus Christi and Dallas competed in the tournament, traditionally one of the largest in the state.

No Lee students competed in the contest, but they did all the administrative work on the tournament, from recruiting judges to setting up rounds and matchings.

New equipment installed at field

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sophisticated new radar equipment has been installed at Lindbergh Field as part of a Federal Aviation Administration program to improve air safety after the nation's worst air crash.

The "BRITE Alphanumeric Radar System," ready for use today, gives air traffic controllers a radar display of the identity, air speed and altitude of aircraft. Lindbergh's radar previously did not give controllers altitude information.

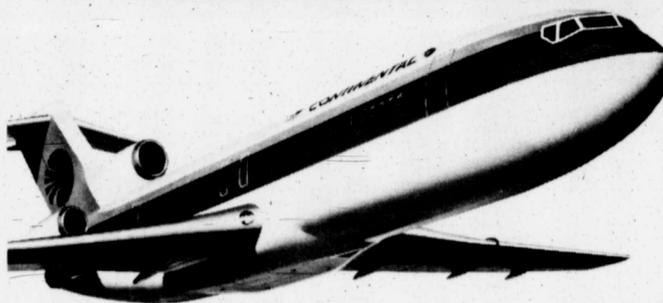

Lindbergh controllers had sought the new equipment for at least two years prior to the Sept. 25 collision over San Diego involving a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner and a small plane. A total of 144 persons died in the crash.

Police investigate execution slayings

HOUSTON (AP) — Police are investigating the execution-style slayings of a man and a woman whose bodies were found in a small foreign car on busy South Main.

Witnesses told police three men in a red car had been chasing the smaller vehicle Monday afternoon.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Mono patients beware

Dear Dr. Solomon: When my daughter had mononucleosis, the doctor mentioned rupture of the spleen as a possible complication. How common is this? How serious is it?—Mrs. L. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: Spontaneous rupture of the spleen in patients with infectious mononucleosis is a well-known but rare phenomenon, which seldom results in death. Of 18 patients reported in the medical literature with true spontaneous rupture of the spleen, all survived. Nevertheless, precautions are in order. Athletes who contract mononucleosis should refrain from their normal activities for six months after recovery; nonathletes, for two to three months.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm allergic to milk and can't tolerate it. I love soup, especially cream-of-mushroom soup. Is there any way I can make this without milk?—T. A.

Dear T. A.: The following cream-of-mushroom soup substitute is well worthwhile.

CREAM-OF-MUSHROOM SOUP SUBSTITUTE
1/4 cup minced onion
2 tablespoons minced celery
1 clove garlic, minced
3 tablespoons milk-free margarine
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, chopped
1/4 cup flour
1 cup chicken or beef broth (or 1 cube dissolved in hot water)
1 1/2 cups non-dairy creamer
1/2 teaspoon basil
3/4 teaspoon salt
Sauté onion, celery and garlic in margarine until soft. Add mushrooms and brown lightly. Sprinkle with flour, stirring constantly and cooking until all flour is blended in. Add broth, seasonings, and creamer gradually. Bring to boil slowly and simmer two minutes stirring constantly. Makes about 2 1/2 cups or the equivalent of two cans of commercial cream-of-mushroom soup.

Note: Recipe doubles easily if you want to make extra for the freezer. Try in plastic sandwich boxes. When solid, pop out of box, wrap in foil and label. Boxes are ready for re-use. To thaw: Place in saucepan with liquid required for recipe. Heat slowly over low flame or in double boiler. I found this recipe in "Living Without Milk" by Jacqueline F. Hostage.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 66 and my brother who is 69 was just told he had cancer. How does cancer start and how can I protect myself?—Mr. B. K.

Dear Mr. B. K.: Most cancers begin in one small spot. Body cells, instead of developing normally, begin to grow out of control. And what was a growth so tiny that it could not be seen with the naked eye starts to spread. This can happen to a person before he notices anything wrong.

In its early stages, cancer can usually be treated easier and much better. Your doctor can usually discover cancer early, but only when you decide that you want a health examination once a year—and if you have one!

Smallest parts of budget touch everyone's lives

WASHINGTON (AP)—One group of college students would no longer get federal grants to pay their tuition. But others would for the first time get subsidized loans to pay education bills.

Fourteen-year-olds would no longer get special summer jobs, but many might be eligible for an expanded program of health care.

Disability pensions for veterans would go up and federal subsidies for school children's lunches would go down.

These and hundreds of other items are included in the half-trillion dollar federal budget proposed by President Carter, a massive document that is often hard to relate to individuals. The budget talks in billions and millions of dollars, while most families struggle with hundreds or thousands.

But the federal budget is made up of minute parts, many of which touch the lives of poor people or rich people or just about everybody.

Some of the parts are easier to see and understand than others.

Taxes are the most obvious part of the federal budget for most Americans.

For a family of four with one worker making $17,500 a year—about the median income—Carter's budget means federal income taxes of $1,609 and Social Security taxes of $1,073. The income taxes will be $136 below 1978 levels and the Social Security levy up $14 from that year.

For this family there is a much less obvious feature built into the Carter budget—inflation. Although the federal spending doesn't call for inflation at a certain rate, it does project what the rise in consumer prices will be.

For this family of four, the "inflation tax" of lowered buying power for calendar 1980 would total $1,103.

For a similar four-member family with one worker earning $30,000, inflation's bite jumps to $1,890 in 1980.

At the same time, the 1980 budget would mean federal income taxes of $3,917 for that family, down $315 from 1978. But Social Security levies will jump $517 over 1978 to $1,588.

Inflation also has other effects on individuals and the federal budget.

For example, the number of college students eligible for Basic Opportunity grants that provide up to $1,800 for education costs is projected to drop in fiscal 1980. The reason, the budget says, is that inflation will push more families into higher income brackets and thus make them ineligible.

But those same students will be able for the first time to get federally insured student loans under the new budget. They will then be able to borrow the money for tuition and other costs at a low interest rate. But they will have to pay the money back, in contrast to the grants, which they do not have to pay back.

Fourteen-year-olds would no longer be eligible for federally funded summer jobs if Carter's proposal is adopted. You would have to be 15 or older in the summer of 1980 to get a federally funded slot.

But the Carter budget would also mean that many of those same teen-agers would be eligible for a special medical care program aimed at detecting and correcting health problems before they become too severe.

Pensions for disabled veterans would be raised by 7.8 percent under the Carter spending plan and then raised periodically with cost of living increases.

But school lunches would cost more under the Carter proposal. He wants to cut the government subsidy by a nickel a meal for school breakfasts and lunches for children from homes with incomes of more than $13,845 a year.

Jane Young and Shirley Stephenson are girls basketball coaches at Midland High School and Lee High School, respectively, but there is no rivalry as far as the two sisters are concerned. "We are only interested in girls athletics and getting them some recognition," said Jane. "We are from a competitive family, but there is no sister rivalry. It (coaching) wouldn't be any fun if there was," she added.

"You don't really think of rivalry until you get down to the last game when the district title is decided," she said as an afterthought.

Jane and Shirley are responsible for getting basketball underway for girls at both high schools three years ago and have been the head basketball coach of girls' since that time. However, Jane has been teaching and coaching at MHS 15 years and Shirley has been at LHS for 17 or 18 years, having also coached golf and swimming.

Education of some sort seems to run in the family. Jane's husband, Jack, is golf coach at MHS, her twin brother is head basketball coach at Snyder and another brother is superintendent of schools at Clayton, N.M.

Jane and Shirley also have a cousin, Mary Stephenson, who is an English teacher at Edison Freshman School, who also was a coach a few years ago. She has been at Edison for 13 years.

...THE BERMUDA TRIANGLE. Now showing at a local theater, has Tommy Kendrick of Dallas, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Buford of Midland, in the cast of characters. His wife is the former Jane Buford. Kendrick was graduated with a B.S. degree from Lamar University at Beaumont and he was awarded his masters degree from Trinity University at Dallas.

He also has appeared at Theatre Dallas and in the TV movie entitled "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," and has done "lots of dinner theater work, TV commercials and radio and newspaper advertising."

Kendrick also worked on the pilot picture, "Cotton Candy," aired for TV with the possibility of it becoming a regular series. The picture was produced by Ronnie Howard, currently of "Happy Days" and formerly of the Andy Griffith Show.

...LATE REGISTRATION for more than 350 classes being offered at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin will continue through Jan. 30.

Vickie Gomez, associate director of admissions at UTPB, said the office is extending its hours through the late registration period to accommodate more students.

Office hours through Jan. 30 will be from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday.

Miss Gomez said late registration is usually heavy at UTPB. "Students often late register because transcripts or immunization records are not in the admissions office, but they really shouldn't wait," she said.

"We can enroll them provisionally, they can go ahead and register, and we can request academic records of other colleges from this office. In this way, students will not miss class while records are being mailed," she said.

Enrollment at the upper-level university is open to students who have completed 60 semester hours of course work at any accredited community college, junior college or university.

Classes at UTPB are offered only at the junior, senior or graduate level. Miss Gomez noted special registration forms are available for persons wanting to enroll in the Encore program, a no-grade option available to students not pursuing a degree.

...TEXAS HEALTH CAREERS PROGRAM will present a health careers assembly at Austin Freshman School Thursday beginning at 10 a.m. in the auditorium.

The program by John Haddad, director of the Texas Health Careers Program, is designed to introduce career opportunities in the health care field to students, Midland Memorial Hospital Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich explained.

"With ever-advancing technology and research, the health care field offers great employment opportunities to people with a diversity of education and training," Ulrich said. "This program will spotlight several of the over 200 vocational and professional areas in the health care field."

By 1980, the health care industry will employ more than any other single industry in the United States with the exception of the federal and state governments, according to American Hospital Association predictions.

James H. Ramsoure, member of the MMH Board of Trustees, has arranged for the Midland presentation. He pointed out that Midland Memorial has designated funds to assist students interested in a health career to further their education. Various hospital department heads will be available following the program to meet with the students, he said.

Wild things in backyard encouraged

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Doris McIntosh encourages the wild things that go on in her backyard, and now she's teaching other people to do the same.

In fact, Mrs. McIntosh is holding classes. She teaches area residents how to turn their backyards into animal habitats.

"There are endangered species acts to protect animals such as the bald eagle, but we also need to preserve wildlife here in our own surroundings," she said. "The little rabbits and birds could all be gone unless we protect them."

For the past year, Mrs. McIntosh, who also works for the Hamilton Parks and Recreation Department, has been conducting classes on how to help animals by creating backyard shelters for them.

"The things animals want are food, cover, water and a place to raise their young," she said. "Unless they have them, they will die or move to another area."

"We can help them by planting food they can eat year-round, or providing cover for them."

Helping simply means taking a little time to make the landscape attractive to animals. It can be as little as having a window box full of flowers to attract hummingbirds, or it as elaborate as waiting 20 years or so to develop a full grown habitat.

"We preserve parks, but what most people don't know is that they can do the same thing in their own backyard," she said.

An ideal backyard habitat might include an open space for feeding, large trees for nesting and protection, a variety of nuts, berries and wildflowers and a fringe area of brush or tall grass.

Different trees will attract a variety of birds, while it is important, she said, to achieve a layered effect similar to nature.

Achieving a backyard habitat doesn't mean a homeowner must put the lawnmower in storage.

"We have a very well trimmed lawn," Mrs. McIntosh said of her family's half-acre lot in a residential area. "You can devote only a portion of your lot to a habitat if you want."

The backyard, however, is where Mrs. McIntosh practices what she preaches.

She said she's attracted all kinds of birds and animals.

Pills can now treat gonorrhea

ATLANTA (AP) — Pills that can treat gonorrhea may attract thousands who previously avoided having the disease treated by painful injections, the National Center for Disease Control has announced.

Gonorrhea strikes about one million persons annually in the United States. It causes sterility in between 80,000 and 100,000 women, about half of them younger than 24, Weisner said.

The two oral treatments are not new, but they have now been given equal status with the more common treatment of two penicillin shots, Dr. Paul J. Weisner, director of the CDC's Venereal Disease Control Division, said Monday.

"We are dealing with a very serious public health problem, and we want to remove barriers to being treated early ... and one of the barriers is painful injections," he said.

Previously, medical officials only had sufficient information to have the penicillin injections listed as "the drug of choice," Weisner said, making that the preferred treatment. At a recent conference, however, medical authorities ruled that enough information was available on the oral treatments to allow them the same status as the injections.

Parrot tells police about pet shop theft

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A parrot has been helping Danish police with their inquiries.

"Police said the parrot was taken into custody Sunday morning along with a Finnish citizen who was found sleeping near a pet shop that had been burglarized. The parrot was sitting on his shoulder.

The Finn, unidentified by police, was not much help. He was so drunk that questioning was postponed indefinitely. But the parrot proved an excellent witness.

Asked its name, the bird promptly identified itself as Jacob. Asked where it lived, it immediately said Hertha — the name of the owner of the pet shop.

Jacob then told police he was one of 13 parrots and 30 budgerigars stolen from a Copenhagen pet shop.

Unfortunately, police said, he had no information on what happened to the other birds. The pet shop owner, however, suggested Jacob somehow escaped from the burglars and quite accidentally sought the company of the sleeping Finn, whom police doubted had anything to do with the burglary.

Bad back leaves her aching

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married three years. Last year my husband had an accident and injured his back, and ever since then he has been very stingy with his lovemaking. He uses his bad back as an excuse for not making love to me. (I can't remember the last time, but it's been a long, long time.)

When I cry to tell him about my feelings and my needs, he says, "You should have my back for just one day!" He's seen several doctors, and they all tell him he should learn to live with it.

I keep telling him if he tried to give of himself a little more, he wouldn't suffer so much, but he won't even try.

I love my husband, Abby, but I have feelings, too. What should I do?—FRUSTRATED

DEAR ABBY: Backache or no backache, if there's love in the heart, it somehow manages to break out and spread to other places. In other words, love will always find a way.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married only 10 months, and I am considering leaving him for what I hope you won't think is a silly reason. I just can't take his "teasing" any more. He is always punching, pinching or squeezing the breath out of me.

I've told him I don't like such rough treatment, but he laughs and says they are only "love pats," and keeps right on hurting me. (If you saw some of the bruises I have from his "love pats" you would think we had been in a terrible fight!)

I have begged and pleaded and even cried, but nothing works. Have you any words of advice? It's getting so I hate to see him come home at night!—READY TO PACK UP

DEAR READY: Your husband's "love pats" are conscious—or possibly unconscious—acts of hostility and aggression which have nothing to do with "love."

Insist that he get professional help. If he refuses, pack up and leave. If you hang around for more abuse, you're asking for it.

DEAR ABBY: I was born and raised here in this small town, so I know nearly everyone and they know me. My problem: I get an invitation to every graduation, wedding, baby shower, tea and luncheon in town. Just name the occasion that calls for a gift, and I get my notice.

Abby, I am not cheap, and I don't mind sending gifts to my friends. But how about all these acquaintances?

Right now I am swamped with "invitations." I have a good name in town and don't want to ruin it. But I refuse to be a sucker to people I hardly know! What is your advice?—NO MILLIONAIRE

DEAR NO: Every announcement and invitation is not necessarily a big broad hint for a gift. The best rule to follow is: If you would derive real pleasure out of sending a gift, send one. If you don't feel close enough to send a gift, send a card. If you feel like a "sucker," forget it.

Even better than last year...

AT WIT'S END

Her disco shoes are in hiding

By ERMA BOMBECK
It's amazing to me how influential advertising is in this country.

Take disco, please. You can't pick up an ad these days without seeing a new product born out of disco fever. There are disco dresses, disco hair, disco suits, disco shoes, disco perfume, disco water beds, disco handbags, disco cars, and disco crackers.

I have asked 600 people of varying ages about disco and have yet to find one who actually dances a la disco.

Where are all these people who must be choreographed right down to the frenzied flex of an elbow, lest they inflict serious pain on one another? Where is that vast population who picks up a stranger to dance, goes out on the floor and proceeds to twirl and spin in complete harmony like they had four size C batteries in their backs?

Everyone talks disco, but who does it? Most dances are like that. I have only my mother's word, but the minut was more PR than action. How many men do you know who could count, dip, sway, run in a circle, stand toe-to-toe and be devastatingly clever at the same time?

It was the same with the Virginia Reel. Of course, skipping was considerably easier because chewing gum hadn't been invented yet and you didn't have that distraction.

People never got into the "twist" either. Oh, there were a couple of women at parties who looked like they were a corkscrew trying to get a stubborn cork out of the bottle, but they never got the hang of it.

And the "Hustle" always reminded me of an encounter group with rhythm.

The only dancing that ever made sense to me

Tiny 5-foot-9 Cullen Mayfield, with a five-gallon bucket of ice water running through his veins, uncorked a 20-foot corner bomb with 10 seconds left at Chaparral Center Monday night to give Midland College a stunning come-from-behind upset victory over highly ranked Western Texas College of Snyder, 64-62.

It was the biggest victory in the young four-year history of the Chaparral and it came before the largest crowd ever to see the local junior to lose four of five games on the road before facing the Westerners Monday. The victory jumped MC right back in the conference title picture with a 5-2 Western Junior College Athletic Conference record and a 13-7 mark for the year. Western Texas, who has been almost unbeatable this year and who owned two victories over highly respected Hutchinson, Kan., is now 6-1 in conference play and 18-2 on the season.

The Westerners looked like they might blow the Chaps out in the first half, and a buzzer bucket at the half-time by Bill Patterson gave WTC a 41-28 intermission advantage.

The Chaps came out for the second half looking like they were going nowhere and a Michael Smith basket with 16:06 left to play gave the Westerners that 47-32 margin. However, that was the zenith of the attack for the visitors as, Young, Mayfield, Chucky McGill and Robert Tate went to work.

MAYFIELD STARTED hitting from the outside, Young bombed in layup after layup underneath with timely feeds from the Chap perimeter while McGill and Tate each gave some scoring help when all else failed.

Suddenly, the Chaps had narrowed the margin to 57-49 on a Mayfield bucket with 8:15 left. The Westerners had moved into a slow down game with 16 minutes left in the game, and they seemed to lose their rhythm when they faced the swarming MC defense. The Westerners ended up with 24 turnovers in the game, 17 in the second half. That allowed the Chaps to make their impossible dream a reality.

McGILL HIT a jumper and Tate got a basket and two free throws with 3:04 left to knot the score at 62. The stage was set and Mayfield was waiting in the wings for a shot that has to go down in Chap basketball history.

With 1:50 left, the Chaps went into the four-corner offense, but had the ball stolen away and hopes looked dim again. But WTC threw the ball away and Mayfield slipped into the reaches of the far corner and put the victory away with his 20-footer. WTC still had a chance to tie it with 10 seconds left, but Joe Mendoza threw a bad pass and McGill intercepted to ice the win.

"I had a hot hand in the second half, and I just had that feeling that it would go in," Mayfield, who shared point honors with Young at 15, said of his game winner. "I was confident I could make it. Things were rolling for us. We were a little tight at the start of the game, but we came back."

YOUNG, WHO had scored only two points in the first half, said, "I just wasn't doing what I was supposed to do there, but in the second half I was making the baskets I was supposed to be making. That was the difference. But really the win has to go down as a team effort because we started playing team ball in the second half. We were shooting too many outside shots in the first half and weren't working the ball around. When we play team ball, we are good.

"I just know we are going to play this way the rest of the way. We've got it together and we're going to keep it that way. This game turned things around for us and you can say Big Time said it."

TATE WAS the only other Chap in double figures with 13, but McGill had six big points in the second half and ended the night with eight points.

The victory was a big relief for Coach Jerry Stone, who suffered through the Chaps' losing streak. "We lost at least three very tough games recently, one to this club (WTC), this month, and the kids got down a little bit. This is going to help turn things around," Stone said.

"Without trying to be dramatic, I would like to say the kids really reached down deep in the second half to pull this one out. We had been talking about being down and for the last 42 hours I've been telling them that you really find out what you are made of when you are down. They found out tonight.

"The crowd was just super, and I think they played a big role in the win. It was the first time this year that I was aware of the crowd, and it really helped there at the end."

THE VICTORY also kept an important streak alive for the Chaps. Midland College has not lost a game in Chaparral center.

"There just might be something to that," Stone said with a bright smile.

The Chaps now take their new found strength to Clarendon College Thursday and will return to the Chaparral Center Monday for an 8 p.m. contest against South Plains College.

MHS, Lee opening 2nd half of race

The second half of the boys District 5-4A basketball race opens tonight with Midland entertaining Odessa Permian and Midland Lee playing Odessa in the OHS Fieldhouse.

Midland won the first half title with a perfect 7-0 record and takes a 19-8 mark against Permian in the 8 p.m. tip-off in the MHS Gymnasium. Starters for Coach Don Humphrey's Purple Pack will include 6-foot-8 sophomore Herbert Johnson; 6-4 senior Charles Johnson; 6-0 senior Walter Bryson; 6-6 junior Tim Spiraling and 6-2 senior Roy Lee Jefferson.

While Midland and Lee are squaring off with Odessa fives, Abilene Cooper which was 6-1 in the first half with its only loss to Midland, 70-69, takes on San Angelo Central in Abilene and Abilene High is at Big Spring in other 5-4A games.

Lee, 3-4 in the first half, takes on OHS which was 0-7. Starters for Lee will include Bruce Crawford, 6-2 senior; Mike McGaha, 6-5 senior; Tyler Alcorn, 5-11 senior; Arthur Pertile, 6-3 senior and Ernest Merritt, a 6-1 senior.

In the first half, Lee bombed OHS, 81-57 while Midland took a 65-55 win over Mojo.

Big guns for Permian are Brad Kerley, 6-5 junior and Mark Darville, a 6-6 senior while Danny Wright, a 5-9 senior guard, is the top shooter for the 3-17 Bronchos. Permian is 12-11 on the season.

Junior varsity games at all four sites will begin at 6:15 p.m. today. Midland won the first half crown in JV play under Coach Eddie Shirley with a perfect 7-0 reading, just like the varsity, while Greg Wright's Lee JV wound up 6-1 in the first half.

SPORTS

college in action. More than 2,500 fans turned out on "Community Appreciation Night", and the Chaps returned the honor ten-fold with the last ditch victory over the No. 8 ranked junior college team in the nation.

The never-say-die Chaps were down by 15 points, 47-32, with 16:06 left in the game, but Mayfield's timely bombs, the biggest one at the last, and Kenneth "Big Time" Young's deadly inside play pulled the Chaps out of the pit of despair to heights never before seen in Chap basketball history.

THE CHAPS had never beaten the Westerners although they had played them close on many occasions, but this was to be the night for all of those former frustrations to be put behind, and it couldn't have come at a better time.

The Chaps went into the Christmas holidays with a six-game winning streak, but they returned this month

Welch inks pact with Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Right-handed pitcher Bob Welch, the rookie who helped the Los Angeles Dodgers win a pennant after being added to the staff midseason last year, has signed a two-year contract, the club announced Monday.

Welch, 22, joined the Dodgers June 19 and recorded a 7-4 mark with a 2.03 earned run average for the remainder of the season. Welch was also involved in some World Series drama when he fanned the New York Yankees' Reggie Jackson to end the second game of the Series.

Used as a starter and reliever last season, Welch tied for the club lead in shutouts at three. With the loss of southpaw Tommy John to the free agent market, Welch figures to be in the Dodgers' starting rotation this season.

The signing of Welch left only five of the 36 players on the Dodgers roster unsigned. Lance Rautzhan, Dave Stewart, Rick Sutcliffe, Von Joshua and Myron White.

CHICAGO (AP) — Any day now, Ray Burris may wake up, answer his phone, and find out that his life has been disrupted — that the Chicago Cubs finally have sent him to another baseball team.

But after years of hot-stove trade talk involving him, the big right-handed pitcher has learned to cope with the uncertainty.

"I think every player is put on the trading block during and after the season, whether they know it or not," he says. But, it seems, not as much as Burris.

"At first it bothered me," he says. But now, "if I'm traded it's no skin off my back ... I appreciate the Cubs giving me a chance to pitch. All I want to do is play ball."

Burris, 29, has spent his six major league seasons with the Cubs. In 1978 he was their third busiest pitcher, hurling 199 innings and compiling a 7-13 record with a 4.75 earned run average. He is a former Midland Cub hurler.

His baseball history has been a saga of ups and downs — winning streaks that foster hopes that he has, at last, become a dependable pitcher, followed by losing streaks that dash those hopes.

"I'm a sensitive athlete. In the past few years I've let things that go on within the club bother me. My mistake is that I let it bother me when I perform," he said at the Cubs' annual media luncheon.

He said his wife's health problems also shared space in his mind with ideas of how to pitch to the man at the plate. But he feels he has learned to concentrate only on baseball when he's on the mound.

"When you become a Christian, God deals with your problems," he said.

Burris said that with the help of teammate Dave Roberts he became a reborn Christian last August.

Nolan now dealing instead of pitching

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gary Nolan might have gotten a bad deal when his major league baseball career was cut short by arm trouble, but nowadays, it's the former Cincinnati Reds ace whose doing the dealing.

He's learning a new career as a dealer at a local casino.

Those who know him notice that his

World Series rings, earned during his best years at Cincinnati, are missing from his hands as he deals.

"I don't wear one of the rings because people stop and ask about it and get to talking and it slows the game down," Nolan explained. "Some people like to talk when they're gambling. Others just want to play."

Baseball went out of Nolan's life last year. After the Reds traded him to the California Angels, his arm went out on him. Shoulder trouble had forced him to miss most of the 1973 and 1974 seasons. He came back in 1975 and 1976 to win 15 games. During

Texas, Baylor nab big SWC victories

By The Associated Press
A Texas Longhorn stampee over ran Texas A&M Monday night and trampled the 11th-ranked Aggies 89-66 in the big Southwest Conference shootout in Austin Monday night.

The Aggies tried man-to-man coverage, a zone defense, a half court trap and a full court press. But all to no avail as 17th-ranked Texas, paced by Jim Krivac's 28 points, smothered the Aggies to take sole possession of first place in the conference race.

"You gotta give 'em credit for trying things," said Longhorn Coach Abe Lemons. "But I doubt that anything they would have tried tonight could have helped. It was just one of those cases where we played better."

Texas tops the league standings with a 5-1 record, followed by A&M and Baylor, both 4-2. Arkansas and Texas Tech are deadlocked at 3-3. Houston and Rice both have 3-4 conference marks, while Southern Methodist is 2-4 and Texas Christian 0-5.

Baylor moved ahead of 15th-ranked Arkansas in the rankings on the strength of its narrow 70-67 win over the Razorbacks Monday night.

Vinnie Johnson pumped in 22 points to pace the Bears in the game that saw Arkansas' offensive wizard Sidney Moncrief score 21 to raise his career total to 1,743, a new Razorback record.

Ken Williams powered Houston past SMU 82-78 in a tight game Monday night with his career-high 41 point performance.

"He was hitting everything," said SMU Coach Sonny Allen. "It wasn't poor defense on our part, just good offense on his part. He didn't get any cheap shots. He earned every point he made."

Despite Williams' heroics, SMU had a chance to tie with 11 seconds remaining, but Gordon Welch's 18-foot shot rimmed out. Leonard Mitchell swept the rebound for Houston, and Victor Ewing dunked it at the buzzer.

In the only other conference game Monday, Rice edged TCU 59-56 behind the shooting of Elbert Darden who popped the net for 19 points.

"TCU gave a good effort," said Rice Coach Mike Schuler. "Our kids had to gut it out."

NFL franchises worth more than $30 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average National Football League franchise is worth at least $30 million and will make a minimum of $3.5 million after taxes, says FANS, a sports consumer organization.

Peter Gruenstein, executive director of Fight to Advance the Nation's Sports, says in a 34-page report on the NFL's profitability that the generally accepted market value for an NFL franchise is about $20 million, even if one hasn't been sold recently.

And, he said, the next one to be sold will probably go for about $30 million.

"In fact, it will be a steal," says Gruenstein. "The $20 million market value figure was calculated before the new $650 million broadcast contracts took effect."

"Those agreements ... mean an additional $3.2 million per team per year in revenues. Since there are no costs attached to this new money, read revenue as profits."

Gruenstein said a straight-forward analysis of an investment in an NFL club shows elements of "an ideal risk venture in the free enterprise system."

Those elements include, he said, a relative ly small investment, large and growing demand for the product, stable and predictable supply, favorable tax laws, political clout, secure profits with the possibility of a bonanza and various fringe benefits.

"Almost uniquely among medium-sized businesses today, the National Football League teams meet these criteria," he said. "In fact, the sometimes seamy, sometimes sharp, usually smart practices of the NFL and its component members are worth studying, not only by other professional sports, but by non-sports investors generally."

"For the NFL, on the frontier of the entertainment-recreational boom in this country, is pioneering some lessons in management, profitability and unrefined greed," said Gruenstein.

Crenshaw captures win in Phoenix Open Golf

PHOENIX (AP) — A year and a half of pure frustration ended for Ben Crenshaw.

"It's been tough," he said, "watching everybody else in the world win. I got close a lot of times and it hurt, really hurt, to miss in those tournaments. Well, I worked awfully hard on my game. I've really worked at it. And, doggone it, I deserved to win this week."

THE VICTORY, his first since May 1977, came by a single shot in the twice-delayed, then abbreviated, 54-hole Phoenix Open.

And it came in typical Crenshaw fashion — out of the woods.

He'd given himself a 4-shot lead with a spectacular, 10-under-par 61 in Sunday's second round. No one caught him in the third and final round Monday, but Jay Haas, playing in front of Ben, dropped a 12-foot birdie putt on the last hole to cut the margin to 1.

Then it was up to Ben. He needed only a par 5 on the water-guarded finishing hole at the Phoenix Country Club to win it. And he almost let it get away.

HE HOOKED his tee shot into the trees, a position with which he has become familiar over the years. His second shot was still behind the tree line, but he did have a shot to the green. Haas was standing behind the putting surface watching.

"He hit about the only shot he had out of the trees," Haas said. "He kept it low. When it rolled on the green, well, I didn't think much of my chances. Ben 2-putted from a long distance, maybe 30-40 feet, to win it with a final round of par 71 and a 199 total, 14 shots under par."

He claimed $33,750 from the total purse of $187,500, which had been trimmed down from $250,000 when two days of rain delayed the start of the tournament and forced officials to cut the event to 54 holes.

Haas closed with a 68 and was second at 200. Tom Kite, Crenshaw's teammate at the University of Texas, fired a blazing, 8-under-par 63 in the sunny weather and moved to third at 202.

Lee girls nab easy 67-28 cage victory

The Midland Lee girls basketball team opened the second half of the District 5-4A race here Monday night with an impressive 67-28 victory over Odessa High in the Lee Gymnasium.

Gale Wilson and Deborah Kittle flipped in 12 points each for the Rebels while teammate Lisa Watkins added 11 more and Dee Dee Poole, who had five steals, chipped in with 10. Mary Upton was the leading scorer for OHS with eight points.

Lee erupted for 23 points in the final period to win going away. Watkins came down with 14 rebounds for the winners while Patty Adams, although only scoring four points, had eight assists, according to Coach Shirley Stephenson.

In the junior varsity contest, Lee took a 44-29 victory with Evelyn Oudems and Jackie Ratliff paving the way with seven and eight points for the winners.

Lee entertains San Angelo in the Lee Gym Thursday night in its next outing.

The group at 203 included Lon Hinkle, Andy Bean, former U.S. Open champ Jerry Pate and Pat McGowan. Pate and Bean had 71s, Hinkle 68 and McGowan a 66 that included a back nine of 29.

John Mahaffey matched par 71 and was tied at 208 with his World Cup teammate, U.S. Open champ Andy North, who had a final-round 72.

Crenshaw also won his way into the Tournament of Champions and the Masters.

"My No. 1 goal for the year was to win a tournament before the Masters. It feels good. I've worked awfully hard at it. You have to keep working, keep trying to improve," said the softly drawing young man who won his first tournament as a full-fledged member of the tour but has spent most of his career trying to live up to the glowing promise of his amateur days.

"I'M REALLY pleased with the way I'm striking the ball now. I've overcome some of the mistakes I was making a few years ago. I'm really looking forward to the year. I think it's going to be my best year ever. But, man, the competition out here — the tour's getting tougher and tougher. The players are getting better and better. The scores are getting lower and lower."

"I knew I was going to win sometime, but it's unbelievable what you have to do to win. Why," and a look of amazement crossed his face, "sometimes you have to shoot 61."

Hard-core fans show

DALLAS (AP) — Only hard-core fans, about two thousand folks with nothing better to do, turned out to see the Dallas Cowboys home from the battle they could've, should've and sort of almost won.

But four points is still four points. And no matter how hard Dallas fans wish it weren't so, the Pittsburgh Steelers won the Super Bowl and the coveted world-championship 35-31.

Monday-afternoon quarterbacks and coaches carried hand-lettered signs that expressed reassurance, disbelief, love, and in the case of several young women ... offers of companionship.

"Pittsburgh's tacky ... We love Jackie" a sign carried by one fellow said in support of Jackie Smith, the tight end who had the misfortune to drop a pass in the end zone, before the collective moans of millions of national television viewers.

"Cowboys, you beat Pittsburgh, but you didn't beat the officials," read another poster from one supporter who will never admit defeat.

Typically, the homecoming was a media circus. Reporters interviewed fans, police officers, airport personnel — even each other.

Cameras and technicians laced the runway with wires and pointed their expensive machinery toward the spot where the team's chartered blue jet would roll to a halt.

Six Cowboy Cheerleaders, almost unrecognizable in heavy layers of clothing, led hopeless chants of "We're Number One."

At 12:10 p.m., precisely on time, the jet landed, the door came open and one by one, the Cowboys emerged.

"Which one is he?" a reporter asked a cheerleader.

"Ge, I don't know. I don't recognize them without their uniforms," she replied.

Some folks in the crowd seemed equally befuddled. Consequently, some of the players' wives and girlfriends were greeted with the loudest hurrahs. Or maybe the fans weren't confused at all.

Roger-the-dodger Staubach appeared weary, but told the mound of microphones stuck in his face he was "happy to be home."

And the crowd of true-blue fans, like the elusive world championship title, had disappeared.

Highlands cagers in car accident

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A New Mexico Highlands University basketball player injured when a van carrying several team members overturned remained in critical condition today, said hospital officials.

A spokesman for San Juan Regional Medical Center in Farmington said 19-year-old Monty Gresham of Albuquerque was admitted Sunday with head injuries.

Also hospitalized were 18-year-old Trini Salas of Albuquerque and 22-year-old Gordon Robinson of Santa Fe, both players, and 19-year-old Joe Duarte of El Paso, Texas, a student driver.

The spokesman said Salas suffered a broken back, and was listed in satisfactory condition, while Robinson and Williams were listed in fair condition.

The van overturned on New Mexico 44 about 32 miles south of Bloomfield as the team returned to Las Vegas, N.M., from Cedar City, Utah.

Nolan dealing cards

both those years, he was the top control pitcher in the National League.

"There's no doubt I could have won 200 games in the big leagues," Nolan said, "but the way I threw, the pressure I put on the arm, it just couldn't take it."

Nolan was traded by the Reds in June 1977. He spent most of the year on the disabled list with California and then was released early the next year. He was signed by the Milwaukee Brewers but released before the 1978 season started.

He finished his career with a 110-70 record and 1,039 strikeouts.

Nolan decided against having a second operation which might have prolonged his career, and instead moved his family from the small town of Oroville, Calif., to Las Vegas.

In many ways it was out of character for Nolan, who wasn't a card player when he was with the Reds.

But he said Las Vegas had crept into his blood. He liked the city and the action.

"The other night I go to this affair, see, and there's Jane Fonda and Henry Fonda and Ann-Margret there and I got to meet them and talk to them and, I mean, where else in the world do you get that?" he said.

Some of the card players find out Gary Nolan is a former ballplayer and they want to play at his table. Sometimes, even former teammates such as Johnny Bench show up and play awhile with Nolan.

Pats win 1st round over Fairbanks

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — In what amounts to a victory for the New England Patriots, Chuck Fairbanks' contract dispute with the National Football League team will be submitted to league arbitration.

Boulder District Court Judge Richard W. Dana granted on Monday a motion by Patriots attorneys for a stay in the current proceedings here pending arbitration by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Dana said the Boulder court would retain jurisdiction in the case and the right to review any such arbitration ruling.

In granting the motion, Dana held in abeyance a request by Fairbanks and the University of Colorado for an injunction that would prohibit the Patriots from interfering with Fairbanks' right to seek employment outside the NFL.

Fairbanks, who has four years left on his contract with the Patriots, intends to become the head coach at Colorado. But the Patriots have obtained a preliminary injunction from a federal judge in Boston preventing the coach from signing a contract with Colorado. A hearing is scheduled Thursday in Boston on the university's appeal of that ruling.

Charles Sullivan, Patriots vice president, said Monday in Boston that the arbitration "could be as early as this week, because Coach Fairbanks and Commissioner Rozelle will both be in Los Angeles in connection with the Pro Bowl."

Bookies not too happy over game

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Super Bowl Sunday didn't turn out all that great for local bookies, who said Monday that a "bad number" and comparatively low betting volume made the day a just little rough for them.

The Pittsburgh Steelers' 35-31 victory over the Dallas Cowboys in Miami on Sunday cost this resort city's legal bookies who offered a four-point spread quite a bit of money, although none of the books would disclose any dollar amounts.

The point spread had varied from three to four points all last week. Bettors who chose Dallas with four points took a "push" — got their money back — while Pittsburgh bettors got their money back plus their winnings, making it a double loss for the books.

"Every time it went to four they hit us," said Leroy Merrill, owner of Leroy's Horse and Sports Place. "It was not a good day for us."

Merrill said his "handle" or betting volume was less than he had expected.

"We didn't do too well either way. The big Dallas money didn't come in and the spread was bad," he said.

Scott Schettler, manager of the sports book at the Royal Casino, said his book lost both ways because it offered half-time bets.

on her serve, making all but two first serves. Navratilova's serving prowess cooled slightly in the second set but she managed to break the surprised Wade in the fourth and eighth games of the final set to gain her second title on the current circuit.

"I couldn't believe how many easy shots I missed," Wade said. "I played at about 50 percent of the way I'd been playing. I didn't exactly extend myself, let alone her."

Midland girls take easy win over Odessa Permian

ODESSA — The Midland High girls continued their torrid basketball pace in the District 5-4A basketball race here Monday night with a 59-30 victory over Odessa Permian.

The Bulldogs now own a 1-0 mark in the second half 5-4A race after sharing the first half crown with Abilene High, both with 6-1 first half records.

Abilene High nearly fell in an upset Monday as they had to go overtime before pulling out a 40-35 win over Big Spring.

Gail McDonald was the only Bulldog in double figures with 10 points, but Karen Cook had nine while Sandra Rock and Margaret Christian both had eight points. LaShell Schrock scored seven points, but her rebounding skill was a big plus.

For the first time this year, the Bulldogs hit 50 per cent of their shots and may be reaching their peak.

In the junior varsity contest, Janis McDonald led Midland High with eight points, but Permian won the game, 31-21. Midland High travels to Big Spring Thursday and returns home Monday against Abilene High in a very important matchup.

Navratilova takes win

HOUSTON (AP) — Martina Navratilova defeated to the United States in September 1975 and has owned the Houston stop of the women's pro tennis tour ever since.

Beginning in 1976, the 22-year-old defending Wimbledon champion hasn't lost a match here. That string continued Monday night with her devastating 6-3, 6-2 victory over England's Virginia Wade in the finals of the $125,000 tournament.

The victory marked Navratilova's fourth consecutive tournament triumph here and her 20th straight match win as she picked up the $24,000 first place check.

Navratilova lost only five of 37 points on her serve in the match, missing only 11 first serves. And she was a master of understatement following the match.

"I never was in any trouble on my serve," Navratilova said. "That allowed me to do more with her serve because I

Milk group said to know about illegal funds

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The attorney for a former official of the Associated Milk Producers Inc. said Monday that AMPI board members "knew all about" illegal campaign contributions by AMPI employees from 1968 to 1971.

Robert V. Light, attorney for David L. Parr of North Little Rock, also said that the board members, in some cases, acted as "conduits" for the illegal payments.

Light said the AMPI board had authorized Parr to make illegal contributions while Parr was counsel to the general manager of AMPI from 1968 to 1971.

AMPI has sued Parr to recover more than $200,000 in illegal contributions that Parr made and to recover part of a $35,000 fine that AMPI paid after the illegal payments were discovered. AMPI says its Board of Directors didn't know about the contributions, most of which went to the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.

Parr pleaded guilty to making the contributions in 1974 and served four months in federal prison for the offense. He contends, however, that the AMPI board authorized the contributions and he has sued AMPI for more than $2 million in damages.

The case has been pending since 1974, and the trial began Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Richard S. Arnold.

W. Dent Gitchel of Little Rock, who represents AMPI, said in his opening statement that the contributions were made by Parr and a "few employees" without the authorization of the board of directors.

AMPI, a huge dairy cooperative headquartered at San Antonio, Texas, is governed by a board of directors composed of dairy farmers.

Gitchel said the illegal contributions were made by a few top employees of AMPI, including Parr and Harold Nelson of San Antonio, the former AMPI general manager. Nelson also has been sued by AMPI, but the case hasn't come to trial.

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Sir Milo Boughton Butler, governor general of the Bahamas, died at a hospital here Monday at the age of 72.

Refugees now bound for homes in United States

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 30 Vietnamese "boat people" and Laotian "land people" — fleeing communist regimes in war-ravaged Southeast Asia — have arrived in California, refugees destined for homes in the United States.

"I am happy, excited," 40-year-old Prateuang Phosai of Laos, who spent nearly two years at a crowded refugee camp in Thailand, said as he arrived with his wife and six children at Los Angeles International Airport Monday.

Prateuang said he fled with his family across the border to Thailand to escape Laos' Communist regime, and that life in the refugee camp was difficult.

But he added, "No matter how bad it was, life in the camp still was better than in Laos. Our house was small, but we still had a lot of freedom."

Prateuang and other Laotians who cross the river Mae Nam Mun to Thailand call themselves "land people," as opposed to Vietnam's "boat people," who flee across the China Sea. The Laotian refugees cross the river, more than a half-mile wide at some points, by swimming or in small banana-shaped boats.

The 20 boat people who flew into Los Angeles Monday were the second group of survivors from the freighter Hai Hong to arrive in the United States. More than 2,500 Vietnamese refugees were crowded aboard the aged freighter as it went from country to country looking for a nation that would let them land.

The plight of the boat people brought outpourings of sympathy from around the world and offers of sponsorship.

The Vietnamese refugees, sponsored by the New York-based U.S. Catholic Conference, were to settle in Los Angeles, Santa Ana and San Diego. The Laotians, sponsored by a coalition of the Catholic Conference, the International Rescue Committee and other agencies, were destined for Kansas, Georgia and Santa Ana.

Thong Sy Chen of the International Rescue Committee claimed international attention focused on the boat people has delayed efforts by Laotian expatriates to find sponsors to help them leave overcrowded refugee camps in Thailand.

"Laotian refugees have had to suffer a lot," he said. "Everyone has concentrated on helping the Vietnamese boat people, even though there are now 100,000 Laotians crowded into Thai camps."

Tom Brokaw to be at UTPB

ODESSA — Tom Brokaw, a television journalist who covered three of the most dramatic years in recent presidential history, will be guest speaker at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin Friday.

Scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in the UTPB gymnasium, the Brokaw lecture will center around the topic "America and the Press in the 1970s." The event is co-sponsored by UTPB and an area television station.

Brokaw, host of NBC-TV's "Today" show since 1976, served for three years as NBC News' White House correspondent. During that time, he covered the resignation of Richard Nixon and the succession of Gerald Ford to the presidency.

Later, he covered Ford's visit to Japan and the People's Republic of China.

A native of Yankton, S.D., Brokaw began his broadcasting career there at the age of 15 as an announcer for KYNT. He worked at various South Dakota stations while studying at the University of Iowa and the University of South Dakota.

After receiving a BA degree in political science from the University of South Dakota in 1962, he joined the NBC affiliate in Omaha, Neb.

He later worked for the NBC affiliate stations in Atlanta, Ga., and Los Angeles, Calif., and was the NBC News correspondent in Los Angeles before his assignment to the White House in June 1973.

Tickets to the Brokaw lecture, priced at $5 each, are available at the UTPB bookstore and at the door. UTPB students are admitted free with current ID.

Bullock wants jury report erased

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock's attorney says Bullock wants to erase a critical Travis County grand jury report but so far there has been no court action filed.

"At the present time, there are no immediate plans to file a mandamus to force the expungement of the grand jury report," Austin attorney Roy Q. Minton said Monday.

"We have researched the law and determined the grand jury has no authority to make such a report and that the report is untrue," Minton said.

The outgoing grand jury last month said, in a written report issued without indictments, that Bullock showed fiscal irresponsibility as comptroller and tried to thwart the grand jury's investigation of Bullock's office.

The report said the district attorney's office would continue to investigate charges of alleged improper use of state funds and staff by Bullock and his chief deputy, Ralph Wayne.

Wedding plans kept secret

Indio, Calif. (AP) — Susan Ford and her Secret Service agent-fiance have quietly taken out a marriage license, but they're not saying when the wedding will be.

The marriage license was granted by the Riverside County clerk's office. "There was no fuss," clerk supervisor Margaret Ritzel said Monday. "We kept it as quiet as possible."

Last October, former President Gerald Ford and his wife Betty announced the engagement of their only daughter to 37-year-old Charles Frederick Vance.

LEE YOUTH CENTER CHATTER

Top Lee High players named at banquet

By JULIE OCHSNER, ROBIN BENNETT & CINDY CANFIELD

Well, Rebs, hope everyone has recovered from the Superbowl. Last Monday night the Football Banquet was held in the Lee cafeteria. Some special awards were given to the outstanding players of the 1978 season. These included: Outstanding offensive lineman — Dwight Washington; Outstanding defensive lineman — Brian Briscoe; Outstanding offensive back — Jeff McCowan; Outstanding defensive back — John White; Outstanding receiver — Stewart Laufer; Outstanding linebacker — Micheal McCrea; Outstanding Specialty team member — Bill McPheerson. The Lena Douglas Award was presented to Randy Martin for academic excellence. Congratulations to all these great players.

Congratulations go to Jim Reiter for being chosen the Junior Lion of the week. Congrats, Jim!

The Lee High Speech Department sponsored the Tall City Speech Tournament last weekend. Thirty-eight teams competed in this two-day event.

A dance for the participants of the tournament was held in the Youth Center from 9 p.m. to midnight. The Senior girls in Junior Council held the dance for their trip during spring break.

Well, the tension is building, the stage is set, the Superbowl of girls football is almost here. It's the Dixie Dolls (seniors) vs. the Rebel Expressettes (juniors). The game will be played Sunday afternoon at the Lee practice field. It's gonna be a great game so everybody come out and see it.

Rebelettes be sure to come to squad meetings on Wednesday mornings at 7:45. Any Rebelettes who are juniors and who want to run for officer next year have to have one-half of their total points from sports other than football.

Our terrific tennis team competed in a dual meet last weekend against those egged Eagles from Abilene. They defeated them by a score of 10-8. Way to go, netters. Let's ace 'em. 'till next week, jrc

B. C. Comments: Thanks to Laura McCarty, Wendy Purvis, Terry Cuilepper & Marcia Johnson (next years SUPER SOPHS) for taking care of the snack bar during the dance. THANKS to Marlice Crow, Jana Prigmore, Linda Hugly, Doug Fox, Greg Collins and Jeff Snell who came in at 10 a.m. Saturday to clean-up and repair the Y.C. better than ever. Thanks!

State senator suggests alternative waste plan

AUSTIN—State Sen. Roy Balke of Nacogdoches has recommended to federal energy officials that they postpone development of a permanent underground nuclear waste disposal facility in favor of several temporary, aboveground sites.

According to aide Charles Wright, the proposal is one of several options being forwarded to President Jimmy Carter by the Interagency Review Group on Nuclear Waste Management (IRG).

Wright, who recently returned from a Nuclear Regulatory Commission meeting in Atlanta, says the IRG wants to encourage state participation in nuclear waste disposal planning, but cannot give states veto power over site selection, despite previous promises to that effect by Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger.

A June 1978 opinion by the Comptroller General ruled that Schlesinger exceeded his authority by promising New Mexico officials they could have veto power over development of a demonstration underground waste storage site near Carlsbad.

Despite additional legal questions about whether states can act on their own to block construction of federally sponsored nuclear waste storage sites, Wright says Balke still plans to introduce a bill giving the Texas Legislature veto power over such construction.

Sixteen other states currently have similar legislation, although the legality of the laws has never been tested in court, and 18 more states are considering veto bills.

Three salt domes in Blake's senatorial district are being surveyed as possible permanent underground storage facilities and Wright says constituents are alarmed.

"They're against it about 100 to 1," says Wright.

"They're afraid their environment is going to be destroyed and there are enough doubts about storage that we ought to pay attention to their views."

Blake's bill, like another already introduced and several more expected within the next few weeks, will allow the Legislature to vote against allowing construction of a nuclear dump in Texas.

The bill will not cover transportation of wastes across the state, a concern raised by former Attorney General John Hill when public hearings over the Carlsbad, N.M. site revealed that large amounts of nuclear waste would be shipped through Texas to reach that facility, some of it possibly going through Ft. Worth, Midland and other Texas cities.

General legislation to clarify the legal issues by granting states veto power has been defeated in the past, but Sen. George McGovern plans to try again.

Supporters of his "State Right to Decide" amendment say state veto power can stop federal blunders such as a 1971 incident in Lyons, Kansas where, after detailed study and over the objection of state officials, the Atomic Energy Commission approved an abandoned salt mine as a demonstration storage site despite nearby uncapped wells.

According to Wright, the proposed temporary storage plan would be advantageous because it would give high-level wastes time to cool; several sites could be built, making transportation less of a problem; and, unlike underground storage, wastes could be retrieved in the event better disposal technology is developed.

Currently, nuclear wastes are stored in pools of water at reactor sites.

Three federal agencies are now cooperating to develop plans for permanent disposal facilities.

The Department of Energy is investigating different underground geologic sites and handling design and research chores for an underground site planned for 1986. Further definition of states' roles in this program are expected to be necessary.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the group which sponsored the meeting Wright attended, is developing regulations and licensing guidelines for future waste facilities. The Environmental Protection Agency is considering general environmental standards.

Don't rush in where experts fear

If you're a cardpusher, he told me, you'll win the first trick in dummy and take the spade finesse. The queen of spades loses to the king, and the spades fail to break 3-3; so you're down one.

There's no hurry about the spade finesse. Win the first heart with the queen and lead the ace of spades.

If nothing dramatic happens, lead a low spade. Perhaps the king will show up on this trick.

DELAYED FINESSE

Even if you have no luck on the first or second spade trick you can win the heart return in dummy and lead a third spade. If East has the king you will win a trick with the queen of spades. This is a delayed finesse, but a finesse just the same.

If East doesn't have the king of spades you will land on your feet if each opponent has three spades.

The important thing is not to rush in with a finesse when you can afford to try for a singleton or doubleton king.

New legislative liaison man thinks job 'a piece of cake'

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—"After dealing with irate taxpayers," says Bill Clements' legislative liaison man Jim Kaster, "dealing with the Legislature is a piece of cake."

Admittedly the former El Paso representative hasn't had to have too many dealings with the Legislature yet this year, but Kaster—who left his job as El Paso County tax assessor-collector to join Clements' staff—says he's ready to go to work.

Sitting in his first floor office in the Capitol—with ceilings that seem to reach into the stratosphere—Kaster comments that if his new job felt any better, "it would be sinful."

During his legislative tenure, Kaster was often the odd-man-out in the El Paso legislative delegation, reflecting a more conservative philosophy than some other members.

Now, it seems, the conservative Democrat is feeling very much at home working for Texas' first Republican governor since Reconstruction days.

Kaster is quick to praise Clements—citing his sense of humor, incisive mind and business acumen.

"I think his management abilities are really going to stand the state in good stead," Kaster says.

And Kaster also praises the staff that Clements continues to assemble—although he laughs off the suggestion that he's one of the key elements in it.

But Kaster will be one of the persons in helping carry through programs which Clements wants support.

Clements wants to work closely with the Legislature, Kaster says, but "any new governor is going to have to establish rapport with the Legislature, and with a Republican, they'll be watching him all that closer."

That's one reason Clements is planning to set aside a certain time each day to meet with legislators, Kaster says—to have a chance to explain his program or position.

And in such one-on-one situations, Kaster thinks Clements will work most effectively.

Short course to probe assassination questions

ODESSA — Many questions remain unanswered about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas more than 15 years ago.

Facts concerning the Kennedy death and murders of other presidents will be outlined for Permian Basin residents in a special non-credit short course at Odessa College called "Presidential Assassinations." It will meet Wednesdays beginning March 14 from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 301 of the Learning Resources Center. Fee is $16 for any interested citizen.

Persons can sign up at the first class or by contacting the associate dean of adult and continuing education at OC.

Instructor Dr. Craig Kautz, associate professor of government, noted there will be no homework or exams. He said the course is designed to delve into the facts about presidents who have been assassinated and those on whom assassination attempts have been made.

The professor said he will not give his personal view about possible conspiracies relating to assassinations. Rather, he plans to present the facts and let students decide for themselves.

Emphasis will be on comparison of the Lincoln and Kennedy shootings because, he said, these two presidential deaths arouse the most interest and have been shrouded in mysterious circumstances.

Kautz said there are still many unanswered questions surrounding both presidents' deaths. He plans to weave in the latest evidence from the House Special Committee on Assassinations about Kennedy's death.

"We'll cover most of the theories about Kennedy's death, from the Cuba connection to the mafia involvement," he said.

Even though the Kennedy death will be the highlight of the course, assassinations of other presidents also will be covered.

Kautz reviews the circumstances surrounding the deaths of the four U.S. presidents who have been assassinated. Lincoln was killed in 1835, followed by Garfield in 1881, McKinley in 1901 and Kennedy in 1963. All were shot.

The first attempted assassination of a president was in 1835, when two dueling pistols misfired while pointed at Andrew Jackson in the rotunda of the Capitol, Kautz noted.

Other presidents who have had attempts on their lives include Theodore Roosevelt when he was a candidate in 1912, F.D. Roosevelt in 1933 after his inauguration, Harry Truman in 1950 and Gerald Ford twice in 1975.

Students will attempt to draw a profile of a potential assassin based on facts about persons who have killed or attempted to kill presidents.

Clayton again picks Craddick

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Midland State Rep. Tom Craddick has been reappointed chairman of the House Committee on Natural Resources by House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clayton also reappointed Craddick to the Committee on Energy.

The Committee on Natural Resources reviews all legislation dealing with development of the state's resources.

Craddick said development of a water import plan for Texas would be the most important issue considered by the committee.

An interim study conducted by Craddick's committee said one possibility under consideration is importation of water from Arkansas, which has an estimated 43 million acre-feet of excess water.

The report also mentions a six state High Plains Regional Study Council which has been federally funded to consider import alternatives for the Ogallala Aquifer.

Phosphorus fire allowed to burn

TIE SIDING, Wyo. (AP) — A phosphorus fire in a sparsely populated area of southern Wyoming after the derailment of a 116-car freight train will have to burn itself out, a railroad spokesman says.

Barry Coombs, spokesman for Union Pacific in Omaha, Neb., said fighting the fire would be too dangerous.

Three tank cars containing eye-irritating phosphorus fueled the fire, which ignited at least three other cars, he said.

Union Pacific stopped all trains on the main line across southern Wyoming indefinitely. Usually about 60 trains run the line daily, including two passenger trains.

Five families in the area were evacuated from their homes after the 4:30 a.m. derailment.

Cambodian troops keep up attack

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Troops of the toppled Cambodian regime kept up attacks on a Vietnamese garrison in the country's second largest city, Battambang, and staged some raids in the vicinity of the capital of Phnom Penh, Thai and Western sources said today.

The sources said Battambang, a northwestern provincial capital, was in the hands of the Vietnamese and the size of the Cambodian forces near the city was not known. The fighting near Phnom Penh appeared to be on a limited scale, possibly involving quick raids by small units.

There were sketchy reports that some of the attacks came from the direction of Takeo to the south of Phnom Penh, where fighting also had been reported. There were also indications of Cambodian attacks against sections of Highway 5 which leads out of Phnom Penh to the northwest.

The radio of the toppled regime, the Voice of Democratic Kampuchea, another name for Cambodia, is carrying delayed battle reports which often roughly match the information available to analysts in Bangkok.

The latest such report said on Jan. 14 Cambodian forces attacked areas of Highway 5, knocking out five tanks and killing 100 Vietnamese troops. An earlier report said there had been clashes at Takhmau, a southern suburb of Phnom Penh.

The Vietnamese invaded Cambodia on Dec. 25, and the pro-Hanoi Communist Cambodian front they sponsored set up a government in Phnom Penh Jan. 7. But troops still loyal to the former regime of Premier Pol Pot dug in and have been waging guerrilla war against the Vietnamese.

Little is known so far about the extent and organization of the Cambodian resistance and there is no definite word on the fate of its leaders except Deputy Premier Ieng Sary who is now in China.

There is speculation that the forces may have grouped themselves into more-or-less independent regional commands since the Vietnamese control the towns and major transportation networks and communication among the remaining Cambodian units must be difficult.

Some of the fighting has swirled near Cambodia's border with Thailand, and State Department officials in Washington said Monday that the United States will boost military aid to Thailand by $6 million because Vietnam has deployed tanks and troops along the frontier.

Both the Cambodian resistance and the new regime in Phnom Penh used reports by international media to back up their propaganda stands today.

The Voice of Democratic Kampuchea, believed broadcasting from China, Pol Pot's main backer, said many foreign news agencies were carrying reports that a large Vietnamese invasion force and not a Cambodian uprising was responsible for the fall of Phnom Penh. Vietnam has denied attacking Cambodia and says the fighting is being done by Cambodians.

The Phnom Penh radio station, the Voice of the Kampuchean People, quoted Newsweek and The Reader's Digest as reporting on atrocities committed by the Pol Pot regime which ruled Cambodia since April 17, 1975.

The new Phnom Penh official media has not mentioned the continued fighting in Cambodia and already

Tank didn't cause fire, reports say

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Incomplete reports show that the fuel tank design in a 1972 Pinto did not cause a fire in a rear-end collision that killed three persons, Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle says.

However, Earle said Monday that reports by the U.S. Transportation Department and Austin police would be presented to a grand jury. He did not say what information appeared to exonerate the design.

Ford Motor Co. recalled 1.5 million 1971-1976 Pintos and Mercury Bobcats last June for modifications after the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said they leaked gasoline when struck from behind at moderate speeds.

Three persons died and one was seriously injured here early Saturday when the Pinto was hit by a 1970 Buick and burst into flames. The Pinto had not been modified.

The Buick's driver, Jose Hernandez, 25, of Austin, was charged with involuntary manslaughter and held in Travis County jail on $25,000 bond, according to Officer J.M. Mount.

Hernandez and a passenger in his car suffered minor cuts and bruises.

The broadcast and reports of the news agency SPK said life is returning to normal in many areas and even ran a travel article today called "The Beauties and Attractions Along National Route Number One," a much fought-over road leading from Phnom Penh to Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Vietnam's army newspaper, Quan Doi Nhan Dan, attacked the Chinese for trying to sabotage the revolution in Cambodia, but said the situation in Cambodia was "irreversible."

"A psychological campaign is being whipped up by Peking to distort the Kampuchean situation," the paper said. "Chinese media describes the Kampuchean people's uprising to topple the Pol Pot-ling Sary gang's genocidal regime as a factor of 'instability' in this part of the world. It fabricated reports about continued activity in Kampuchea against the new revolutionary administration."

Group to seek mediation order

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A citizens group will ask a circuit judge to order striking teachers and school officials to bargain under the guidance of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, a spokesman said.

The suggestion by John Wright, executive director of the Citizens Education Task Force, drew favorable reaction from school officials.

"I think that's an excellent suggestion. The problem with it is that we've been in mediation for three months," said school Superintendent Robert Wentz Monday.

Blanton's move to free prisoners 'unsuccessful'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former Gov. Ray Blanton tried unsuccessfully after leaving office to free 16 prisoners whose sentences he had commuted, says an attorney hired to straighten out the state's pardon-commutation table.

Fred Thompson, a Nashville lawyer hired by Gov. Lamar Alexander, Monday quoted Blanton's correction commissioner, C. Murray Henderson, as saying the former governor called him Friday, contended he was still governor and "demanded...that these people be released."

Alexander assumed office three days ahead of schedule Wednesday after Blanton granted clemency to 52 prisoners.

Neither Blanton nor Henderson could be reached for comment.

A hearing was scheduled for today in Nashville Criminal Court on a plea by one of the inmates, trying to overturn an order by Alexander to keep him behind bars. A similar hearing on a plea by another inmate was scheduled for Wednesday in Memphis.

A federal grand jury in Memphis is investigating an alleged parole-selling scheme involving top Blanton aides.

Alexander Monday ordered audits of Blanton's office and the state general services and transportation departments.

In his first Capitol press conference since taking office, the governor said the audits would allow his administration "to start with a clean slate."

He said he had no evidence there was anything wrong in the governor's office, "but I think it's just good policy."

About the general services department, he said, "Everyone knows that department has been in a crisis for months and needs to be cleaned up worse than any department in state government."

General Services Commissioner Sammie Lynn Puett Monday fired the top eight employees in that department, saying they did not possess the credentials for their jobs. Alexander's press secretary said the governor was unaware of the firings until after they occurred.

The department, among other things, is responsible for state purchases and sales of state surplus property, and was involved in a surplus car scandal during Blanton's administration.

The transportation department formerly was headed by Eddie Shaw, who was indicted, tried and acquitted in the surplus car sales scandal.

Conference director named titular bishop

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Rev. John McCarthy, executive director of the Texas Catholic Conference, has been named auxiliary, or assistant, to Bishop John Morkovsky of Galveston, the Vatican announced today.

The 48-year-old McCarthy, a native of Houston, has also been given the title of titular bishop of Pedena by Pope John Paul II.

Don't overlook possible deductions on tax forms

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of an eight-part series, furnished by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, designed to help individuals fill out their own federal income tax returns this year.

Persons itemizing deductions when filing income tax returns often overlook significant expenses. Taxes, charitable contributions and miscellaneous payments substantially increase deductions.

State and local taxes paid during the year can be deductible at the end of the year. These include taxes withheld or paid as estimated tax during the year. Be careful to list on real property, personal property, general sales and gasoline.

Purchases of a car, truck or boat are considered major purchases. Taxes paid in buying these items can be deducted in addition to the amount in the Optional Sales Tax Table. Materials purchased to build a new home may be treated in the same manner.

Charitable contributions are donations to any qualified organization using the funds solely for charitable-public purposes. These may be charitable, religious, educational, scientific, literary or fraternal groups.

Deductions can be realized for donations other than money, i.e. property, food or clothing. Value of the donation is figured on the fair amount you would expect to receive from sale of the good. Pledges are not deductible until payment is made.

Don't overlook miscellaneous deductions. Fees paid in having someone prepare your 1977 tax returns are deductible. Other deductions would include: dues to professional-occupational organizations or unions; subscriptions to professional or trade journals; and expenses realized in changing jobs within the same trade or business. Even rent on a safety deposit box may be deducted if it houses income-producing items, i.e. stocks and bonds.

There is some important news for senior citizens filing their federal income tax this year...Several tax breaks are available to those who qualify.

Elderly Americans can reduce their taxes through "Tax Credit for the Elderly."

While many senior citizens do not consider themselves "elderly," the fact remains that they are eligible for the credit offered to persons aged 65 and over. Single persons over 65 can reduce their taxes by as much as $375 while married couples can qualify for a $562.50 credit.

Because it is a credit and not a deduction, this amount is subtracted directly from taxes owed. Qualifications include U.S. citizenship and prior taxable income. In fact, if you are under 65, retired and receiving taxable income, you are also eligible for the credit.

In cases where eligibility is uncertain due to age requirements, the IRS explains that, for federal income tax purposes, a taxpayer is 65 on the day before his/her 65th birthday. A taxpayer whose 65th birthday falls on Jan. 1, 1979, can file as is he or she were 65 during 1978.

And did you know that the premiums you pay for Part B of Medicare are deductible if you itemize? One-half of the premiums up to $150 are deductible outright.

These and other questions concerning your 1978 tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education program. This public service course, jointly-sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service will be offered Feb. 6 and 8, 7-10 p.m.

CPAs volunteer their time to assist taxpayers during a two-night informal program, which provides instruction and question-and-answer sessions. The course is available to the public at a charge of $1 to cover administrative costs.

To register for the Taxpayer Education program, send $1 by Feb. 1 to Taxpayer Education, P.O. Box 870, Midland, Texas, 79702, your name, address, and zip code and city (Midland or Odessa) in which you want to register for the course.

Classes will be held in the Fine Arts Building auditorium at Midland College and Room 201 of Dedrich Hall, Odessa College.

Trial of rape charge possible with last week's court decision

The Texas Supreme Court last week cleared the way for trial of a rape charge against Glenn Bryce Billingsley, indicted in the June 14, 1977, rape of a north Midland woman.

Billingsley, who was 16 at the time of the alleged rape, was certified to stand trial as an adult, but he and his family filed suit to void the transfer of jurisdiction from juvenile to district court.

County Attorney Leslie Acker said Monday he received notification Friday that the Supreme Court had denied a motion by Billingsley's attorneys for a rehearing of their petition.

In late December, Acker said, the Supreme Court upheld a Texas

9 7/8% INTEREST IS CHEAP!

Maybe not to those who remember 5% mortgages, but in a few weeks, when the state legislature acts, interest rates on houses will approach 11%, and possibly 12%, and our 9 7/8% financing will be a thing of the past.

IS 11% ALL THAT BAD?

No! Even at 11%, mortgage money would be cheap compared with other rates: loans on new cars carry rates above 12%; credit card plans are at 18% and other consumer loans are 14%.

OUR SUPPLY OF 9 7/8% MORTGAGE MONEY IS ALMOST DRAINED!

We can still finance at a $75,000 mortgage on our new homes. PLUS finance the resale of your old home.
