Miller resigns

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Arjay Miller has resigned effective July 1 as dean of Stanford University's Graduate School of Business after 10 years at the helm.

Miller, 63, is a former president of Ford Motor Co. whose teaching concepts and professor recruitment efforts helped Stanford displace Harvard as the nation's top business school, according to a Chronicle of Higher Education survey.

Rockefeller dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller died at his office in Rockefeller Center on Friday, Hugh Morrow, his spokesman, said.

Rockefeller, 70, was rushed to Lenox Hill Hospital in Manhattan about 11:45 p.m. EST after suffering an apparent heart attack, officials at the hospital said.

Rockefeller was elected four times as governor of New York and tried three times to gain the presidency. He had no previous history of serious illness during his lengthy political career.

Question avoided

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who has declined in the past to declare formally whether he intends to seek reelection, avoided the question again on Friday.

Asked if he would debate the Republican nominee in 1980, Carter told a news conference: "I don't want to get involved in answering questions about the 1980 campaign."

Criticism confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the U.S. Conference of Mayors affirmed the organization's criticism of President Carter's budget Friday following a spirited debate over whether the judgment was too harsh.

The conference executive committee unanimously approved a staff analysis that calls the president's budget "a disappointing point to the cities."

Deadlock discussed

ROVING U.S. Ambassador Alfred Atherton discussed the deadlocked Israeli-Egyptian peace talks for 3½ hours Friday with Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil in Cairo. They told reporters their talks focused on Atherton's six-day visit to Israel but would not elaborate.

Summit to include broad agenda

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Friday he will attempt to negotiate a "broad agenda" of possible agreements with China during next week's summit, including settlement of claims and counterclaims dating back to the communist takeover of the mainland.

At a nationally broadcast news conference, Carter also said he doubts that his meeting with Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping will impair United States relations with the Soviet Union.

The president said he feels the summit, which grew out of the U.S. decision Dec. 15 to extend full diplomatic recognition to China, could open the way toward agreement between the two countries on airline travel pacts and scientific and cultural exchanges.

Carter said he hopes the summit will provide for "stability and peace not only in the western Pacific but in the entire world," and that some agreements may be resolved during Teng's visit.

The Chinese leader is scheduled to arrive Sunday in Washington for what will be a four-city, six-day U.S. tour. During that period, Teng also will visit Atlanta, Houston and Seattle.

"There are some outstanding ancient claims filed on the part of China against our country and vice versa," Carter said. "We hope to lay the groundwork for resolution of that difference."

But Carter said most agreements would probably have to await further negotiations at the technical level and drafting of legal documents.

"We would like to prepare for the future visits to China of some of our key Cabinet officers concerning trade and commerce," the president added.

On domestic matters, Carter defended once more his fiscal 1980 budget, saying that a proposed $600 million reduction in Social Security benefits constitutes only one-half of 1 percent of all payments in the program.

"This is not a politically popular proposal. I understand that," the president conceded.

But he said spending restraints in the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1 would pay dividends later in reduced inflation. Carter said the wave of rising prices is a "disaster" for the poor and the elderly.

The president denied that his spending priorities ignore the needs of many Americans. "I am not robbing the poor," Carter said. And he said he has "no apologies to make" for proposing increases in military spending.

"It is imperative that the Soviet Union know that we are able to defend ourselves," Carter said.

The president was asked whether he had plans to meet in private on Monday with former President Richard M. Nixon, who has accepted an invitation to attend the state dinner for Teng.

Carter said his contact with Nixon would be "purely social."

The president also said he sees no need for a proposed congressional resolution that would declare U.S. support for the survival of the government on Taiwan, and said he "could not approve" any legislation that would contradict the terms under which Washington and Peking are exchanging ambassadors.

As for the impact the U.S. China summit will have on relations between this country and Russia, Carter said, "We will be cautious in not having an unbalanced relationship."

The president also said that U.S.-Soviet negotiations on a new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II) have continued to make "steady progress."

"They have not hardened their position in the last month or two," he said. But Carter would not predict when agreement on a new pact might be reached.

The president confirmed, however, that the United States is negotiating about the possibility of placing seismic listening posts inside Soviet borders to verify performance under a possible future treaty to ban underground nuclear explosions. But, he said, "No final agreement...has yet been reached."

Carter declined to comment on a congressional report which faulted his administration for moving too slowly to head off unrest in Iran, saying that the situation is too delicate to risk making public statements.

After the news conference, Carter flew to the presidential mountaintop retreat at Camp David, Md., for the weekend.

Tom Brokaw foresees de-regulation

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Deregulation is on its way, and economic recession will be here first, Carter still has a chance for reelection, but liberal Democrats are waiting in the wings and several Republicans are jockeying for position.

Those are but a few of the opinions of Tom Brokaw, personable host of NBC's Today Show, shared with some 300 area residents at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin Friday night.

There will be a genuine emphasis on de-regulation by the federal government in all areas, but "the battle is still in its opening rounds," he said.

In a scatter shot lecture on topics that ranged from prime time television to SALT II to the role of the press, Brokaw delivered his wisdoms and easy going style to a usually appreciative audience.

On the shift to the right in American politics and the new demands for less government, Brokaw said "It's not enough to simply cry foul without examining first what demands you're making on government and what sacrifices you're willing to make."

He predicted a necessary slowdown in business within the year despite Carter's austerity budget and said he sees the new relationship with the People's Republic of China as a delicately balanced affair with China, Russia and the U.S. on a three-way seesaw.

Carter, he said, still has time to mend fences with his party before the 1980 election, but both California Gov. Jerry Brown and Massachusetts Sen. Ted Kennedy will be primary threats to his reelection. Conservative Ronald Reagan is regarded as a front runner in the Republican camp, the veteran Washington reporter said. Former Texas Gov. John Connally "is about as popular as a Bronco quarterback in a Mojo huddle," the journalist quipped, referring to high school football rivals in Odessa.

Brokaw said he thinks recession is necessary.

He thinks network news spends too much time on political trivia and gossip and too little time in places like West Texas where the legislation is taking effect.

"The country needs news consumers, viewers and readers who can absorb a piece of information with which they don't agree and still be grateful to have it."

On balance, Brokaw said, "we're extremely well served. There's no free press like our free press."

Man surrenders after long seige

By GREG THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A paroled murderer who barricaded himself with four hostages inside a small house in the city's rugged west side barrio for more than 22 hours surrendered to police Friday night after accidentally shooting himself.

"Everyone is fine," said Patrolman Buck Conrad, who took part in the tense negotiations that began late Thursday night after the barricaded man wounded a policeman, unaware the officer had been a boyhood friend.

Police said the gunman, identified as 33-year-old Richard Jimenez, was hospitalized for treatment of the accidental gunshot wound following his surrender. Officers said the wound did not appear serious.

The hostages were unharmed. Jimenez had periodically fired at police from the mustard yellow, frame house throughout the day. Officers said he was armed with a .22 caliber rifle and a .32 caliber pistol.

A second person was wounded about noon Friday. But police said the bystander about two blocks away was only grazed when hit by a deflected bullet.

Police Inspector Frank Hoyack said a helicopter was called in after dark Friday and hovered over the house with its spotlight. One of the hostages called officers on the telephone, saying that Jimenez wanted the helicopter to go away, that it was disturbing him.

The helicopter remained, Hoyack said.

He (Jimenez) called and said the chopper was getting him upset and that he had accidentally shot himself in the leg," Hoyack told reporters after the incident was over.

Hoyack said Jimenez was instructed to come outside and lie down on the porch of the small frame home with his hands in full view. Jimenez followed the instructions.

"SWAT officers advanced an arrested him without a struggle. It was as easy as that," Hoyack said. He added there were never any plans for officers to storm the house as long as there was no "imminent danger" to the people inside.

Hoyack said Jimenez was being charged with attempted capital murder in the earlier shooting of the police officer and that other charges could be lodged.

Officer Richard Lama, 31, was shot about 10 p.m. Thursday when he answered the telephoned complaint of Susie Guerrero that Jimenez was pounding on her door and demanding to be let in.

Police inspector Edward Foresman

said officers talked with Jimenez in both Spanish and English. "He's very cool. He said, 'I know you all are out there with high-powered rifles. They can go right through these thin walls.' He won't give an inch, and we're holding our ground. We've got all the time in the world," Foresman said.

Susie Rosas, mother of Mrs. Guerrero, said "I am hoping and praying nothing happens to her and the kids."

Jimenez fired about a dozen shots at Lama as the officer scurried for cover. One bullet caught Lama in the leg and another deflected off Lama's belt and under his bullet proof vest, job is to be finished. That makes it almost impossible to file theft charges, unless several months have passed and the contractor has left town, he added.

"By signing these open end contracts, they almost tie our hands as long as the contractor is here and available and says he's going to do it," said Lee.

Of course, if the contractor has left town, it's usually too late to prosecute, he said.

And once any work is done, even if incompletely or sloppily, the possibility for criminal prosecution vanishes, he added.

Instead, he said, it becomes a civil breach of contract situation, in that the contractor has failed to live up to

Hiring contractor for improvements sometimes risky

By LINDA HILL
Staff Writer

As the cost of new houses goes up, remodeling the old one becomes a more attractive alternative.

But if the would be home improver wants to hire someone else to do the work, his way can be filled with pitfalls.

If the contractor collects some or all of the agreed upon cost and then doesn't do his job properly, or never shows up at all, the homeowner's options are limited.

Dewey Lee, investigator for the Midland County District Attorney's Office said he frequently hears from citizens who want to know if they can file criminal charges against a contractor who has failed to deliver after receiving payment.

Regrettably, said Lee, the answer often is, no.

"It's a civil matter," is likely to be the discouraging word, with the citizen's only option then to file suit.

Lee said the most frequent complaints involve remodeling work — a kitchen to be re-done, a carport to be enclosed and so forth.

"Probably in 1978, we had 15 or 20 complaints of this nature," Lee said, and the problem is one that continues from year to year.

Capt. George Thompson of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Midland County Sheriff's Department said he occasionally gets inquiries about contractors or complaints from dissatisfied customers.

THE PROBLEM, Thompson said, is seasonal. The most frequent complaints he receives, he said, are about landscape contractors.

Thompson, too, expressed frustration at not being able to assist more often because of an absence of grounds to prosecute.

Capt. Billy Ray of the Midland Police Department said, however, his office seldom gets such complaints.

Lee pointed out several mistakes the complaining homeowner usually has made.

The most common one, he said, is signing an open-ended contract, with no written, and thus binding, date to begin, or estimated time the contractor has failed to live up to his part of the contract, rather than a theft.

HOWEVER, Lee added, sometimes a letter from the District Attorney's Office will stimulate a contractor to at least do something on the job.

Thompson remembered one case in which a Midland man paid a contractor $750 in advance to do a job that involved pouring cement. The contractor brought out a few pieces of lumber — "They weren't even new" — to use for forms, and left them, but never did the job.

However, Thompson said, because he had left the materials, the sheriff's office was unable to file a theft case

Western rangelands, Nebraska suffering in severe winter storm

A widespread winter storm dumped more snow on Western rangelands Friday, and officials said the situation is "extremely critical" in Nebraska where cattle are dying and food is being airlifted to isolated farmers.

Normally, Stewart said, wind blows the snow off parts of the range, allowing cattle to graze. But this year's heavy snows have completely covered the range, ranchers are immobilized and the cattle are starving.

Part of an Auburn, Maine, nursing home roof collapsed Friday under the weight of heavy snow, forcing the evacuation of 61 elderly patients. No one was injured, authorities said.

The Pawtuxet River was still rising Friday afternoon, and a light rain continued. More than 500 residents of Cranston and Warwick, R.I., have been forced to flee their flooded homes.

At a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing Thursday on the procedures being used to fill 152 new federal judgeships, Bell said he was disappointed by the number of women being recommended for the posts.

On the other hand, Bell said, about 11 percent of the nation's lawyers, but only 2 percent of its federal judges, are women.

Leaders of the National Bar Association, an organization of black lawyers, met Friday to plan strategy for getting a greater share of the new judgeships for blacks, other minority groups and women.

Bell said the percentage of blacks in the federal judiciary is greater than the percentage of blacks among lawyers.

On the 1980 presidential campaign, he remarked: "It is quite clear that if Jerry Brown does well in the early primaries, Ted Kennedy will be irresistibly drawn in as a candidate despite the very real dangers. It is inevitable that he will be a candidate for president at some point in his (Kennedy's) life."

Brokaw was critical of the President's energy policies. "This year there were 13 words about energy in Carter's message. Last year he told us it was the moral equivalent of war. We've not seen many battlefield victories," Brokaw said.

"I would say at this time I've her, and I was of the relation. The white-deep voice, in very little. I thought said."

Supermarket tells customers not to buy overpriced products

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

A New England supermarket chain is fighting wholesalers' price increases by telling customers not to buy items the store thinks are too expensive.

"We felt the brunt of the consumers' anger the last time the inflation got near double digit figures. It's not in our interest to see this kind of inflation," said Tom Stemberg, a vice president of Star Markets, explaining why the chain has posted signs on some items saying, "This product is overpriced."

The tactic is reminiscent of that used by a number of supermarkets in 1977 when coffee prices soared and shoppers were urged to switch to other beverages. Coffee consumption dropped and so did prices.

This time the Star chain, based in Cambridge, Mass., appears to be alone with its signs. "I have heard of no other company taking such prominent steps," said Victor R. Hirsh of the Food Marketing Institute, which represents most of the nation's major chains. He added, however, that the idea "is causing a lot of interest throughout the industry."

Some stores said they did not consider price increases in recent months to be exorbitant; others said they used less-public methods to encourage suppliers to keep prices in line.

Sharp increases in food prices in 1973 and 1974 prompted consumer boycotts and government investigations. Now, with prices rising again — the cost of food brought in grocery stores increased 12.5 percent in 1978,

Black lawyers disagree with Bell

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of black lawyers disagreed Friday with Attorney General Griffin Bell's claim that minorities are "doing pretty well" at increasing their representation among federal judges.

"We are certainly dissatisfied with the numbers on all counts," Junius W. Williams, president of the National Bar Association, said in an interview.

He added that this "does not mean we are dissatisfied with the effort" being made by Bell and President Carter.

At a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing Thursday on the procedures being used to fill 152 new federal judgeships, Bell said he was disappointed by the number of women being recommended for the posts.

Vietnamese launch drive against loyalists

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese troops in Cambodia have launched a major drive to wipe out die-hard Cambodian loyalist forces fighting a guerrilla war against the Vietnamese and Cambodian rebels who ousted the government of Premier Pol Pot, Thai intelligence sources said Friday.

The sources, closely following the fighting because Vietnamese troops have neared the Thai border, said the Vietnamese want to destroy a loyalist stronghold in the rugged mountains of southwestern Cambodia.

These sources said there was evidence of Vietnamese movement from the Gulf of Siam in the south and from the north to trap hold-outs in the rugged Elephant and Cardamom mountains.

There had been previous reports that Pol Pot's shattered army would move segments of its remaining forces into this homeground of past guerrilla movements, and last week Vietnamese naval forces staged a major assault on a group of islands just off the southwestern coast.

The loyalists' radio, believed broadcasting from southern China, claimed Friday that Pol Pot's forces had recaptured the provincial capital of Takeo "for the second time" and that fierce fighting was continuing at another provincial seat, Kampong Chhnang, in central Cambodia.

The claims could not be confirmed in Bangkok, but analysts said that Pol Pot troops had scored successes in the Takeo area, 54 miles south of Phnom Penh, the capital, which fell to the Vietnamese and their Cambodian rebel proteges on Jan. 7.

The loyalist broadcast also claimed that the key route out of Phnom Penh to the northwest — Highway 5 — was under the control of the Pol Pot forces.

Kampong Chhnang, the site of a military airfield and believed to be a major Vietnamese resupply base for an invasion force scattered throughout Cambodia, is 51 miles northwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 5.

Analysts here said the Pol Pot forces could well retake some towns because the Vietnamese appeared to have left most of them lightly garrisoned. But it was thought that the loyalists could not hold them for any length of time.

The Thai sources, piecing together the Vietnamese operation in the southwest, said the Vietnamese would have a difficult time penetrating the Cambodian mountain passes, which are infested with a virulent strain of malaria.

Villagers in some cases have been forced to accompany the troops and food and water supplies in evacuated towns and communes either have been carried away or destroyed to make it difficult for pursuing Vietnamese forces to live off the land, the sources said.

Some Cambodian refugees who have escaped to Thailand have said the Pol Pot remnants are also spreading atrocity stories about the Vietnamese to persuade the rural population to join its side.

The rebel radio said newspapers appeared in the Cambodian capital for the first time since the Khmer Rouge Communists conquered the country nearly four years ago. The new Communist government headed by Heng Samrin monopolized the front pages, the report said.

Iranians riot against tough stand on return of Khomeini

By THOMAS KENT

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Thousands of Iranians enraged by the government's tough new stand against Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini battled with riot troops in the streets of Tehran and other cities Friday. At least 22 persons were reported killed, dozens wounded and hundreds arrested.

The Tehran street warfare was the worst in the capital so far this year. In the northwest city of Tabriz some protesters reportedly wielded battle axes and cleavers. Chanting protesters vowed to keep fighting "whether Khomeini comes or not."

The violence appeared to stem from both the growing anger of pro-Khomeini forces and a new determination on the part of the government and army to crack down on opposition militancy.

The opposition warned the government against continuing to bar Khomeini from returning to Iran after almost 15 years in exile.

The Moslem religious leader, who orchestrated the movement that forced Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi into an indefinite "vacation" abroad, wants to abolish the monarchy and the government the shah left behind and establish an Islamic republic under his own guidance.

But the army foiled his plans for a triumphant homecoming Friday by shutting down Iran's airports. Khomeini now plans to fly in from exile in France on Sunday, when the airports supposedly will reopen.

Friday's street battles were in sharp contrast to scenes of fraternization and flower-exchanging between troops and demonstrators in recent weeks. Army commanders had warned Thursday night, amid growing tension over Khomeini's plans to return, that they would tolerate no unauthorized demonstrations.

Khomeini aides in France, however, said their reports from Iran told of troops joining anti-government protests in the cities of Isfahan and Tabriz. If true, it was a further sign of a split in the army and adds to the uncertainties in the country's immediate political future.

The state radio reported that nine persons were killed in the rioting here, which centered on Tehran University.

Control of Shahreza Avenue, a main thoroughfare outside the university, saw-sawed between troops and protesters during a seven-hour battle. Some rioters pelted police manning water cannons with stones. Other demonstrators gripped wooden staves and lengths of pipe but the heavy gunfire kept them away from troops.

Troops also opened fire on anti-government protesters in the western city of Sanandaj, and it was estimated that five persons were killed and 25 were wounded, the official Pars news agency reported.

The state radio said troops broke up opposition demonstrators, many of them armed with battle axes, swords, cleavers and similar weapons, who went on a rampage in the northwest city of Tabriz. It said 600 persons were arrested.

Tabriz residents reported heavy shooting during the day, and unofficial sources said eight persons were killed and "dozens wounded" in the city, which has been a major flashpoint of anti-shah violence. This report could not be independently confirmed.

The state radio earlier had reported four soldiers wounded in Tabriz, three with stab wounds.

The radio said Friday's trouble in Tabriz stemmed from street fighting between anti-government and pro-government elements.

Other clashes occurred in the northwest city of Mianeh, in Ardekan in central Iran and in Zanjan in the northwest, state radio reported.

Martial-law authorities arrested seven leftist journalists Friday under regulations permitting indefinite confinement of persons "endangering state security." The journalists were among the leaders of a two-month newspaper strike called late last year in protest against military censorship.

Government officials quoted Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar as telling his aides that Friday's army crackdown was carried out on his orders and there was no alternative but to try to maintain order.

The state news agency said there were "pro-constitution" marches in support of the Bakhtiar government in Tabriz and Zahedan in eastern Iran on Friday. Tens of thousands marched in support of the government Thursday in Tehran.

Religious authorities said 25,000 to 30,000 people gathered in Mashhad in northeast Iran Friday to hear the local religious leader, the Ayatollah Abdollah Shirazi, warn the Bakhtiar government to delay Khomeini's return no longer.

Shirazi accused Bakhtiar of plotting to keep out Khomeini and said the prime minister will bear personal responsibility for the "consequences and reactions."

Islamic leaders in Iran have called for more demonstrations in Khomeini's support Saturday, anniversary of the death of the prophet Mohammed.

Though the delay in Khomeini's return was announced by state radio, 20,000 to 30,000 of his supporters lined up for 2½ miles near the airport gate in hopes he still might return Friday. Rumors spread that he had arrived quietly in some other Iranian city, but his aides in France denied he would try to return secretly.

Hundreds of thousands of other Khomeini adherents gathered at Tehran's Besh-Zahra cemetery, where many "martyrs" of the anti-government campaign are buried, for what has become a weekly rally to hear speeches by religious leaders.

The shah, who left Iran Jan. 16, remained secluded in Morocco Friday. Sources there said he had not made a decision on his next move, and that it would depend on developments in Iran.

The anti-shah movement consists of orthodox Moslems who opposed his Westernization of Iran as anti-Islamic and of political activists seeking to end his authoritarian rule. Both groups also say Iran has been dominated by the West under the shah.

Memory is a thing of the past with the Olympus OM-2. That's because unlike other automatic SLR cameras that "remember" exposure information just before taking a photo, the OM-2 has a unique metering system that measures light directly at the film plane, during the actual exposure. So, without a "memory," the OM-2 automatically takes accurate exposures every time. Used with our Quick Auto Flash 310, the OM-2 renders perfect flash photographs since the camera actually controls the duration of the flash by cutting the flash unit off when the proper amount of light has reached the film plane. And the complete OM system has over 200 accessories. Remember the name: Olympus OM-2. It's unforgettable.

Marvin continues testimony on letters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie star Lee Marvin was confronted in court on Friday with a love letter declaring his willingness to spend his life with Michelle Triola Marvin. He insisted that all he meant was that he wanted to spend his life in bed with her — not share his property.

"This was a sexual promise?" asked attorney Marvin Mitchelson.

"Yes," said the actor. Marvin was testifying for a second day in a $1 million property settlement suit against him. Miss Marvin is claiming the same property rights as if she had been married to Marvin for six years, instead of having lived with him out of wedlock for that time.

Marvin said adamantly that he never promised to share his assets with her.

Mitchelson, representing Miss Marvin, asked about a letter in which the actor compared himself to a man on trial accepting a jury's sentence to spend life with Miss Marvin. In the letter, he said, "I'd accept life with her."

"Didn't the letter mean you wanted to spend your life with her?" Mitchelson said.

"No, in bed," Marvin said. He pointed to the last line of the letter which said, "I guess we'll have to spend the rest of our lives hiding in bed."

What was he thinking of when he wrote the letter?

"I would say I was happy to be away from her, but at this time I was seeing the nicer, kinder parts about her, and I was reflecting on the nicer, gentler parts of the relationship."

The white-haired Marvin, speaking in a husky, deep voice, insisted that what he wrote her meant very little.

"I thought they were rather silly letters," he said.

Commission to discuss use of Exhibit Building

Midland County commissioners will meet in special session Monday to discuss use of the County Exhibit Building.

Commissioner Charlie Welch said the Commissioners Court wants to meet with two individuals who have booked the building for a dance to discuss what they plan for the event.

Also Monday, the commissioners are to discuss janitorial service for the courthouse. They voted last Monday to cancel, with 30 days notice, the contract with the firm currently charged with cleaning floors and restrooms.

That action came on the heels of complaints from department heads about the service.

John Paul II inaugurates meeting

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived in Mexico City Friday to inaugurate the most important meeting of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America in a decade. More than a million Mexicans ignored three morning earthquakes and gave him a tumultuous welcome.

After stepping off his jetliner, the pontiff went to his knees and kissed the earth, just as he had done Thursday in the Dominican Republic — the first stop of his week-long trip.

He is the first reigning pope to visit this overwhelmingly Catholic countryland his primary mission is to open the Latin American bishops conference, which is expected to make crucial decisions on the church's role in the turbulent social and political life of Latin America.

As a band broke into a lively tune at the airport, a person in the crowd handed the 58-year-old Polish-born pontiff a gray sombrero. He donned the broad-brimmed Mexican hat with smile.

Photographers and well-wishers pushed through security lines and mobbed the pope, keeping him from reaching the microphones for an arrival statement. But he kept his poise, waving to the president of Mexico and 3,000 invited guests in reception stands. Security guards finally opened a path to an open truck-like vehicle that he boarded for the motorcade into the capital.

Before reaching it, he shook hands with priests and others lining the barricades, and he kissed a young boy who ran to him from the crowd.

At least a million people, hanging from trees and walls and shouting "Viva!" lined the 10-mile route of his motorcade under sunny skies to the National Cathedral to celebrate Mass.

The brilliant-colored shawls and dresses of Indians who had come down from their hill villages mixed with yellow-and-white Vatican flags waved by young and old along the route.

A flower portrait of the pope smiled from the wrought-iron gates of the 16th-century cathedral, built on the spot formerly occupied by an Aztec temple.

Thousands had gathered in pre-dawn darkness along the motorcade route and in the cathedral plaza when the first earthquake struck at 4:10 a.m. It was a powerful shock, registering 6.3 on the Richter scale. Tall buildings swayed, windows rattled and momentary panic seized millions of suddenly awakened city residents.

Two weaker after-shocks followed at 6:05 a.m. and 11:15 a.m., just 95 minutes before the pope landed at Benito Juarez International Airport. There were no reports of injuries or serious damage.

On Saturday, John Paul will open the Third Conference of Latin American Bishops, a 17-day meeting in the nearby city of Puebla that is expected to have long-lasting effects on church policy in Latin America.

The last such conference was in 1968 in Colombia.

Before leaving the Dominican capital of Santo Domingo, where he had spent 23 hours after arriving from Rome, the pope visited a slum neighborhood. He called for new efforts by those in power to help the poor of the world "overcome their current situation."

Earlier Friday, he urged a group of priests and nuns at a Mass in Santo Domingo's cathedral not to take up social and political causes in such a way that Christ's message is hidden.

Two days after announcing, Connally skeptical of support from black voters

NEW YORK (AP) — Just two days after he announced his candidacy for the GOP nomination for president, former Texas Gov. John Connally said Friday there is little chance he or other Republicans will capture the nation's black vote.

At a news conference, Connally said he would work "diligently" to earn black votes.

"But I don't deceive myself by believing that I or any other Republican in this country is going to take a majority of the black or even a major portion of that vote," he added.

Republican leaders have said they hope to pick up black votes in 1980 in light of recent criticism of President Carter by black leaders.

Of the Republicans who are mentioned for the nomination, Connally said Ronald Reagan, former California governor, is the frontrunner, "but I wouldn't get into this race if I didn't think it was going to change."

"I'm certainly low on the totem pole of popularity in terms of the national polls, but that's going to change," Connally said.

The news conference in the New York Hilton followed a speech sponsored by the YMCA's Center for International Management Studies.

Connally said his speech before the YMCA group was "in no way related to political matters." He said the speaking appearance had been planned long before he decided to run for the nomination.

During the speech, Connally said "concern for Vietnam and contention over Watergate" led the United States to allow the condition of the dollar to deteriorate.

"We have a people that has not yet caught up with the times, the changing times in which we live," Connally said, adding "We're not an insulated and isolated is-

Alumni aid school

GEORGETOWN — Southwestern University alumni from the Midland-Odessa area helped their school surpass a multi-million dollar challenge last year.

The school's alumni gave $962,509 in unrestricted funds in 1978 to set for the university.

Jerry Prothro of 111 N. C St. and Mrs. L.B. Hotchkiss of 1701 Community Lane co-chaired the local campaign that included a phonathon on Sept. 7. Other local leaders included Dr. John Foster of 1908 W. Wall Ave., Jesse Gilmour of 2601 N. L St. and Johnny Johnson of 1108 Muskin Road.

The college has been challenged to a 10-year program to raise $8.4 million for operational funds. If the challenge is met, the Brown Foundation, Inc., of Houston will contribute almost $11 million for fixed endowments.

land, wrapped in a protective cocoon."

He called for an end to government regulation, which he said was "on the rampage." He also said the United States should do all that is possible to upgrade its foreign trade, and should avoid quotas and protectionism.

At the news conference after the speech, Connally said President Carter's proposed 1980 budget is "a reasonable budget," but "he didn't make or attempt to make the really hard decisions that have to be made."

"I looked at a budget of $531 billion and I didn't think it was very conservative," Connally said. He said Carter should have pledged to balance the budget in the next two years and should have said he will end the nation's trade deficit this year.

Photographers and well-wishers pushed through security lines and mobbed the pope, keeping him from reaching the microphones for an arrival statement. But he kept his poise, waving to the president of Mexico and 3,000 invited guests in reception stands. Security guards finally opened a path to an open truck-like vehicle that he boarded for the motorcade into the capital.

Suit involving Hughes empire may be moved to U.S. court

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A lawsuit filed in state court earlier this week by Summa Corp. alleging that former top Summa officials and aides to the late Howard Hughes were responsible for the loss of up to $50 million of his empire may have to be transferred to federal court, according to the judge scheduled to hear the case.

Lodge to be sold

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — The 90-acre Bestwood Lodge estate near Nottingham, where King Charles received his mistress, Nell Gwynn, is to be sold by the army to Gedling borough council for some $1.4 million.

Clark County District Judge James Brennan said Thursday that since most of the defendants in the suit live outside Nevada there may be a problem in serving subpoenas and "they may have to move it to a federal jurisdiction."

Although some of the defendants live in Las Vegas, most live in either Utah or California. The suit alleges that Hughes was manipulated by some former Summa executives and the aides who surrounded him in the final years of his life and that they converted at least part of his fortune to their own use.

Clark County District Attorney Bob Miller said he would watch the progress of the civil action and "if we determine there has, in fact, been criminal activity we will bring appropriate charges."

The reclusive Hughes, who lived in Las Vegas in the mid-1960s, died in April 1976 on an emergency flight to a Houston hospital from his last hideaway in Acapulco.

Yankees hard at work preparing for 3rd flag

By FRANK BROWN

stalled years ago. At the side of the room stood Randolph, assuming his stance with a weighted bat, waiting for a fastball from some imagined hurler. Down the hall, at the indoor batting cage, catching prospect Dominic Scalz smacked some line drives off the ever-cooperative pitching machine.

Across the famous room with the curious purple carpeting, second baseman Willie Randolph prepared for another day at Yankee Stadium, as did coaches Yogi Berra and Elston Howard and shortstop Bucky Dent.

A bearded Reggie Jackson strode in late one afternoon and said, "I want to hit." Though most of the Stadium personnel had gone home, someone was found to feed the machine...and Reggie Jackson hit.

Another normal day at the ballpark — normal but for the fact that a perfect white blanket of snow had covered the abandoned playing field this January morning and spring training was more than a month away.

"Give me 12 of those," said Monahan, speaking as Chambliss positioned himself on one of the exercise machines. Chambliss gave Monahan 12 and moved on to the next test. So it would be with the rest of the players who came to work that morning — with an eight-month season just around the corner.

This was pre-spring training, a voluntary exercise program available to any of the Yankees who reside year-round in the metropolitan area.

"Most clubs are beginning to get the idea of how good this is," said Blair, just days away from his 35th birthday. "The guys are getting better muscle tone, and that will cut down on injuries."

"ALSO, IT makes the player feel good that the owner and the front office think that much of us to give us this place to get in shape. It makes it a little more personal — makes us think the front office isn't as bad as a lot of people say it is."

"If you're the best in the business," said Randolph, "you don't stay the best by sitting back." And most of the Yankees, currently the best in the business, aren't sitting back at all — unless it's to work on their legs with one of those impossible-to-explain exercise machines.

THAT'S WHY, on this January day, nearly a dozen Yankees would strain at the complicated exercise machines, grunting in a spacious storeroom down the hall from the main cage at the "Bronx Zoo."

"I'm getting too old for this stuff," said Howard, puffing slightly after the sequence of exercises at the seven Nautilus machines the Yankees had in-

Chief believes Stabler innocent

GULF SHORES, Ala. (AP) — Police Chief James Maples, saying an active investigation was still under way, awaited lab tests Friday to see if cocaine was actually involved in the apparent frame-up of a California sports writer who came here to interview Ken Stabler.

Stabler, the former Alabama star who makes his off-season home in this Gulf of Mexico resort area, denied any part in the frame-up. "I want to emphasize strongly I had absolutely nothing to do with it. I had no idea what was going on," he said.

Maples issued a news release saying the investigation would be completed "regardless of any status of any participants involved." The police chief has said previously he has no reason to believe Stabler, the quarterback of the Oakland Raiders, was involved in the frame-up of Sacramento Bee sports writer Bob Padecky on Monday.

Maples said he was terrified as he was taken to the Gulf Shores Jail. But Maples said he soon decided the West Coast writer had been the innocent victim of a frame-up. Charges were dropped and Maples drove Padecky to an airport.

MAPLES SAID the state attorney general's office was being kept up to date on the investigation. He said the Gulf Shores area had received "unfair publicity" from the widely reported incident and that his office is "actively investigating."

Chuck stymied by new ruling. BOSTON (AP) — A federal appeals court Friday refused to remove a legal roadblock to the signing of New England Patriots football Coach Chuck Fairbanks by the University of Colorado.

Judges Levin Campbell and Bailey Aldrich denied a Colorado motion to lift a preliminary injunction ordered Jan. 15 that prohibits Fairbanks from jumping his Patriots' pact to take the college coaching job.

The injunction was issued by U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone against the University of Colorado regents and officials and football booster Jack Vickers.

Boston attorney Earle Cooley argued Friday that the regents, as an elected body, are protected from the Patriots' suit which led to the injunction. Campbell and Aldrich however, kept the injunction in force and called for a full hearing by the First Circuit Court of Appeals on Feb. 6.

FAIRBANKS, with four years left on his Patriots' contract, is in Los Angeles preparing the American Football Conference squad of all-stars for the National Football League's Pro Bowl on Monday.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle may overrule the legal hassle when he serves as an arbitrator in the case next week. A state court judge in Colorado, repounding to a suit by Fairbanks and the university, passed the dispute on to Rozelle.

U.S., Russians clash

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Despite a lack of time for training, the U.S. boxing team that meets a Soviet contingent here Saturday contains "the cream of the crop" of this country's amateur fighters, says the chairman of the AAU's national boxing committee.

Many auto, moving expenses deductible

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh of eight articles, furnished by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, designed to help taxpayers fill out their own income tax returns this year.

Taxpayers can deduct non-reimbursed expenses incurred while using their automobiles for business, moving, charitable and medical purposes.

Taxpayers who maintain records of actual costs can claim operating expenses and fixed expenses, such as depreciation and insurance, for the business use of their automobile. Entitled to an optional mileage allowance method, taxpayers can deduct 17 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 10 cents per mile for each additional mile when their vehicles are used for business.

However, taxpayers using their automobiles for moving, medical or charitable purposes may deduct only seven cents per mile. Parking and toll fees may be claimed in addition to the mileage rate.

Some moving expenses connected with job-related relocations may be deductible on this year's income tax returns also.

Those expenses which can be deducted include the cost of travel to the new location, moving household goods and personal effects, pre-move house-hunting trips, temporary living costs at the new location, and certain expenses related to the disposition of an old residence and the acquisition of a new home.

The distance between a taxpayer's new job and old residence must be at least 35 miles farther than the former home was from the former job.

Persons who suffered property losses resulting from disaster are eligible for immediate tax credit. Qualifications include losses due to floods, hurricanes, droughts or other sudden or unexpected acts of nature which are declared disasters by the President of the United States.

Taxpayers eligible for federal disaster assistance may deduct losses on either the 1978 or 1977 tax return. Non-business losses may be claimed only when partial or complete destruction of property resulted from an identifiable sudden, unexpected or unusual natural event.

Generally, there are no limits on business property losses. However, each non-business loss must be in excess of $100 to be deducted. Deductions are also restricted to amounts which were not reimbursed in any way. Individuals claiming 1977 losses must complete Form 1040X.

These and other questions concerning your 1978 tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education program. This public service course, jointly sponsored by the Permian Basin chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service, will be offered Feb. 6 and 8, from 7 to 10 p.m.

CPAs volunteer their time to assist taxpayers during the two-night informal program which provides both instruction and question-and-answer sessions. The course is available to the public at a charge of $1 to cover administrative costs.

To register for the Taxpayer Education program, simply send $1 by Feb. 1, 1979, to Taxpayer Education, P.O. Box 870, Midland, TX 79702, listing name, address, zip code and city (Midland or Odessa) in which you want to register for the course.

10:15 p.m. to 1 a.m. as fire units from Hollis, Altus Air Force Base, Altus, and Wellington, Texas, fought the fire.

Investigators from the state fire marshal's office were on the scene this morning investigating the blaze.

Stacks of tires were still smoldering at dawn today, but the fire was out. Fire officials said about 80 percent of the business was destroyed.

Harmon County Undersheriff Kirk Wade said a huge inventory of tractor parts, tires and tools was lost in the blaze.

BRIDGE Never get yourself painted into dummy

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
It's not only in the comic books that a man paints the floor of a room in such a way that he must wait in a corner for the paint to dry before he can get out. It still happens in bridge hands.

South took the ace of spades and the ace of hearts and led the deuce of trumps to the jack. East took the queen of hearts and the king of spades and shifted to clubs.

West took the ace of clubs and continued with a club to dummy's jack. And now South found that he had painted himself into the dummy.

GETS RUFF
When declarer led dummy's nine of hearts East played low, and dummy had to win. With only clubs and diamonds left in the dummy it didn't matter what declarer did: East would surely take the setting trick by ruffing a club or a diamond.

South should make the contract by playing dummy's nine of hearts on his own ace. Declarer would eventually get to dummy with a club to lead a trump. However, he would lead the three of trumps and win a finesse in his own hand with the eight. He would then draw the last trump with the king to assure the contract.

PLO claims woman helped kill Salameh

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas said Friday a 31-year-old woman with a British passport was the third member of a team that assassinated the head of the Palestinians' secret service, his four bodyguards and four pedestrians.

Guerrilla spokesmen said they believed the three suspects left Lebanon through the Christian sector of Beirut after killing Ali Hassan Salameh, 38, reputed mastermind of the 1972 kidnap and killing of 11 Israelis at the Munich, West Germany, Olympics.

The Palestine Liberation Organization blamed Israel for the assassination, and the Israelis declined comment.

The woman was identified as Erika Mary Chambers, whose passport was said to have been issued in London in 1975. Guerrilla investigators said she is suspected of transmitting the electronic remote control signal that detonated a booby-trapped car killing Salameh, the bodyguards, three Lebanese and a British woman.

She rented four months ago overlooking Salameh's flat. The signal detonated a parked Volkswagen rigged with about 110 pounds of explosives as Salameh, code named Abu Hassan, drove past in his station wagon.

The apartment building janitor says he saw Miss Chambers leaving her place with a suitcase a while after the fatal blast. She was quoted as having said the explosion unnerved her and she wanted to rest in a hotel in another area.

Sources said she paid a year's rent for the apartment, about $5,000, in advance.

Arson suspected as cause of costly Oklahoma blaze

HOLLIS, Okla. (AP) — A fire that investigators say may have been set by burglars caused an estimated $2 million to $3 million damage at the Allison Equipment Co. here late Thursday night.

Before the 10 p.m. blaze spread to the business office of the John Deere tractor and Firestone tire dealership, firemen were able to check and discover that all of the company's money was missing, Hollis police spokesman Mark Hawkins said.

U.S. 62 was blocked from about

Investigators from the state fire marshal's office were on the scene this morning investigating the blaze.

Mars probe finds many surprises

By ROBERT LOCKE

Mars, the most intense probe of another planet shows Mars to be a surprisingly diverse world of gigantic volcanoes, great channels and canyons, meteor craters, swirling red dust and polar ice fields.

For nearly 2 1/2 years now, the planet has been probed and sampled and photographed and analyzed as the billion-dollar Viking mission — which began as two orbiting spacecraft and two landers — continued operations beyond even the most optimistic projections.

"Mars has come into much better focus, but the number of mysteries has also increased," said Bruce Murray, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Murray was one of about 500 scientists at last week's Second International Colloquium on Mars whose scientific interest has long been shared by the public in its fascination with the planet.

JPL CHIEF SCIENTIST Arden L. Albee noted, however, "At this time, there is no planned next mission to Mars."

Several scientists said that the cost of even modest visits to other planets is skyrocketing while Congress and the administration seem increasingly hesitant to finance such massive projects.

Future missions, Murray said, "will not happen simply because scientists sit down and come up with a mission that sounds good to them and then expect society to implement it."

"Good science must be coupled with other themes" of public importance, he said. National pride was a major impetus for the Apollo program, he said, while the public's imagination was caught by Viking's search for life and technological wizardry.

"I don't think the U.S. planetary exploration program has closed down," Murray said. "But there is a definite shift away from the moon and an apparent shift away from Mars."

First American combat pilot still flies — on airlines

By GREG THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The little old man with sparse white hair is scarcely noticeable when he checks in at the airline ticket counter. It's the only flying he does now — a far cry from France in 1918, when he was the first American Army Air Corps pilot in aerial combat.

It was April 12, 1918, and Arthur J. Coyle, then a sassy 20-year-old first lieutenant, was piloting a two-seat French Spad observation plane over German lines near Apremont.

German anti-aircraft fire separated Coyle and his observer, Jay Bird, from their two escort fighters, exposing their unwieldy Spad to agile German pursuit fighters.

"I went inside the Boche lines alone to do my work and before I finished, three Boche Chasse planes surprised me and nearly brought me down before I knew it," Coyle wrote that evening in his tattered pocket diary.

"Two dived at me out of the broken clouds and one came out of the sun. They were within 75 yards before I saw them and tracer bullets were passing me in all directions. Old Jay Bird opened up on the two on our tail with his twin machine guns and I opened up on the one that came out of the sun and could see my tracer bullets going through the plane.

"He went into a spinning nose dive, apparently out of control. I saw him fall about 3,000 feet and then I had to turn on the two machines that were on my tail. We fought about three minutes and then one Boche plane started home. Bird and I put a good burst through his wings. The other plane left with him. We returned and finished our work and then went home. Going to Toul to celebrate this evening," the passage concluded.

Although American pilots had been fighting in the French and British armies long before the United States entered World War I, Coyle is credited with being the first American Army Air Corps pilot to engage in aerial combat.

He and Bird never applied for official credit for shooting down the "Boche" Fokker that day, but they did receive a citation from American Gen. John J. Pershing.

Coyle, commander of the 1st Aero Squadron, won several other medals and was credited with shooting down three German planes. He was shot down four times, however, and was slightly wounded once.

Coyle is now a spry 81 and works regularly at a San Antonio-based independent oil firm. It's been nearly six decades since he last flew a plane — a Curtiss Jenny biplane he crashed into a West Texas tree in 1921 while performing a barnstorming stunt.

"I'm 81 years old now and I couldn't even fly a kite today," said Coyle. "I think the last plane I flew is still up in a big oak tree in West Texas."

"The only flying I'm interested in today is getting from here to there — as a passenger," he added.

But in 1916, Coyle was the only member of the New Hampshire militia who would volunteer when a group of New York businessmen offered to train a pilot from each state.

"Only 14 states sent volunteers. No one else from New Hampshire would apply," said Coyle, then an 18-year-old infantryman.

The fledgling United States air force in 1917 consisted of only a few American-built planes not suitable for combat and a mere handful of pilots, trained only to fly pursuit planes.

When they reached France, however, the Americans learned they needed observation pilots, not fighter pilots. They were then retrained to fly French observation planes.

April 12, 1918 was actually not Coyle's first World War I battle. Although he had never fired a machine gun, Coyle volunteered three months earlier to fly as an observer on a French army bomber.

"I'd never been even close to a machine gun, but I didn't tell them that. I wanted to gain some combat experience," he recalled. "I didn't know how to change the ammunition drums, so I had to make those two drums last. As they returned from their bombing run, Coyle and his pilot, an American in the French army, were attacked by three German fighters. After a brief fight, they managed to reach some clouds and evade the Germans.

Their bullet-riddled bomber ran out of gas and was forced down outside a French village near the Swiss border.

"We went to the cafe in the village and the people hailed us as young heroes as we were the first Americans they had seen," Coyle wrote in his diary. "We had a great time. I am coming back here again. We started back (the next day) and when we landed, the Frenchmen nearly fell over with surprise as the formation had seen us going down in the fight and reported us missing in action."

"They gave us a lecture and told us to keep our formation next time. They didn't have to tell us that," he wrote. "They will have to use Jimmy to pry me loose again from a formation."

Small town has life of its own

By CHARLOTTE PORTER

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Living in a small town means the barber leaves his shop open when he goes to lunch. And he unlocks the cash register so people can make change for the pop machine while he's gone.

"I've been here since 1952, and the only time I got burned was a kid a while back," says the barber. "And he paid me back."

South Dakota is the 4th largest state in the union. Its capital town, Pierre — pronounced "peer" — has about 9,000 residents. And some consider it the best-kept secret since the Sun Belt.

"I helped some people from New York with a home once," says Tom Farus of Pierre National Bank. "They couldn't believe what they discovered here."

"They were writing to their friends and relatives," Farus says, "and I was telling them, 'Don't do that!'"

What the New Yorkers found was a town in which volunteer firemen hear the fire siren and tune to the local radio station to find out where the fire is.

The same siren sounds at 10 p.m., a gentle reminder that it's bedtime. A recent newspaper article entitled "Please Save This Kitty" not only located the cat's owner, but 15 other people called to say they were willing to take the half-grown stray in.

The governor's home telephone number is listed in the city directory and his wife answers the phone, "Ann speaking." There is no fence around the mansion and a neighborhood basketball game is often in progress on the driveway.

Asked to describe Pierre's last major crime, businessmen and community leaders have to stop and think a while.

"There was a murder, let's see, in 1962," they'll tell you. "Well, no, there was a murder-suicide about two years ago in the motel. Then those out-of-staters who tried to cash the phony traveler's checks, they got caught."

Police Chief Harold Eberhardt, who heads the 12-member force, says burglary is the most serious crime. Most often, he says, the burglar and the victim know each other.

One prominent businessman leaves his keys in the car at night and never locks his apartment unless he's leaving town.

"I'm a very frustrated key-keeper," he says. "I can't keep track of keys. I may be asking for trouble, but I just feel people are trustworthy."

"It's just how we've grown up," says Mayor Clint Gregory. "I wouldn't want to live where I had double locks and dogs and all that. Well, we've got a dog, but it's just a little poole."

Glass may be answer

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — A recent Department of Energy study indicates that incorporating radioactive wastes into glass may offer a promising line of defense against accidental spread of radioactive material from waste sites.

Energy planners are considering a special type of glass as one option for long-term storage of wastes from nuclear reactors. They say there is little possibility of radioactive material being spread to the environment once it has been mixed and solidified as glass.

The study was conducted by Battelle researchers at the energy department's Pacific Northwest Laboratory at Richland.
