Mennonites get new hope to attain legal status

SEMINOLE (AP) — Mennonite immigrants threatened with deportation got new hope today when U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen asked immigration commissioner Leonel Castillo to hold off until he can take action in Con-

The 550 immigrants were due to be deported Thursday, but that deadline seemed less imminent when many of the heads of household found jobs as skilled They hope those jobs will bring them legal alien status that has eluded them for almost two years, an attorney for the group said.

Seminole lawyer John Shepard said all but "10 or 12" of the 125 family heads and single adults had located jobs by Tuesday night.

The Mennonites immigrated to West Texas from Canada and Mexico in 1977 hoping to establish a farm-based community on 6,400 acres. But the land was not as productive as they had hoped and a windmill-powered electric generator factory is not producing enough to provide jobs for the Mennonites.

"We are confident they (the remaining 10 or 12) will find something," he said. "The people had to make up their minds they were going to have to get out and away from the farm."

He said most found jobs as welders, carpenters and machinists - all classified as skilled jobs that Shepherd said should qualify them for permanent resident status.

To qualify, wages from the new-found jobs must meet U.S. wage laws and the employment must be something for which American citizens either aren't available to do or won't do. A close-knit farming commu-cards" when they arrived here.

But the relatively large number of Mexican-Americans in the Rio Grande Valley had already "cornered the market" on the green cards. The Mennonites were turned down.

"Working on a farm won't qualify," Shepherd said. "I must have had 35 calls from farmers in the last two days offering to hire them (Mennonites) on their farms."

Shepherd said Immigration and Naturalization officials have emphasized they plan no mass invasion of Seminole

Many Midlanders collect cans for fun and profit just do it for a hobby. But the retired El Paso Natural Gas Co. employee said the $78 he got for the first two loads of cans will help in battling today's rising prices. It helps us keep up with inflation, but it also helps clean up the alley, too," he explained. "We just go out and pick up the cans and save them." he said.

The couple lives directly behind a Midland motel, which they said provides dozens of cans in the alley.

"They have a bar in the motel and they just throw those cans out," said Mrs. Grimes.

The firm has collection sites in both Midland and Big Spring.

"I think our firm has just been farsighted," said Walter Piel, warehouse manager in Midland who heads the recycling operation.

"We've been involved in it ever since Mrs. Lyndon (Lady Bird) Johnson started her 'Keep America Beau tiful' campaign," he said. He said his firm was the first to start recycling aluminum cans. 'Collectors' like Mr. and Mrs. Grimes now earn 17-cents per pound for the cans. 'Right now we're averaging 50,000 pounds-per-month of aluminim from the Midland-Odessa area," he said. The Big Spring plant averages about 25,000 to 30,000 pounds per month, Piel said.

He said since 1970 the firm boasts a total of 80,848,082 pounds were collected from Texas and cash payouts made to citizens in excess of $11,856,-980. And that is just from 14 states where the beer is sold, he said.

Locally, Piel said, more than $11,-000 per month has been paid out to people who deliver aluminum cans to the plant between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Pope ends Mexico visit

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Pope John Paul II ends his Mexico visit today after winning the hearts of the Mexican people and charting a course of non political social activism for the Roman Catholic Church in Latin

He planned an early morning meet ing with university students and a late afternoon talk with factory workers in the northern industrial center of Monterrey From Monterrey he flies to Nassau, the Bahamas, for a two hour stop before returning to Rome Thurs

On Tuesday, he appealed for a war on illiteracy and told workers in a poor district of Guadalajara that the wealthy should forsake "some of what is theirs" to promote social justice and help the poor live better He later had his helicopter land before one of Mexico's most violent prisons and delivered a blessing to its 2,000 inmates, who had petitioned him to come. Then in the evening he reiterated his theme of aid to the poor and "the necessary transformation of society" in a homily during a High Mass at the Basilica of Zapopan near

Guadalajara. John Paul came to Mexico to open the third conference of Latin American bishops, the most important meeting of Latin American Catholics in a decade, and to tell his bishops what he thinks the church should do to help the poor and oppressed in Latin America

Some within the church felt his speeches were too conservative and that he might kill the only hope Latin America's poor have. Others cheered his speeches as true guides for keeping the church on a spiritual path and out of local or national politics.

Bishops at the meeting in Puebla, 80 miles south of Mexico City, were still poring over the texts of his speeches looking for guidance in their deliberations. The Puebla meeting is expected to lay the course for the church in Latin America — where 330 million Catholics live - well into the next

Energy Act funds OK'd, but only reluctantly

Associated Press

AUSTIN - Amid muttering about secession from the Union and interfering Washington bureaucrats, the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday approved legislation giving the Railroad Commission $581,682 to carry out the Federal Energy Act.

Those funds will allow the RRC to provide staff to administer the act through the end of the current fiscal Commissioner Jim Nugent told the panel an estimated $1 million a year, perhaps more, will be required to administer the act during the coming biennium.

Nugent reported the RRC has "borrowed" staff from various commisioner operations to help with processing the applications necessary for designation of gas wells under the federal act.

In the last month, he reported, 49 applications were processed, with 1,-578 pending and 40,000 to 50,000 (when 'stripper' wells are included) expected. That, Nugent noted, indicates the size of the problem facing the RRC, adding that the agency still isn't sure its completing the forms involved to the federal government's satisfac-

Wyoming, Nugent said, completed its applications, only to have them all returned

"It is fast approaching an unmanageable situation," commented Rex White, RRC special counsel. White noted the RRC is meeting with independent producers in an effort to explain the federal designation requirements, in order to allow them to qualify under the appropriate pricing provisions in the federal act.

Committee Chairman Bill Presnal of Bryan and other members of the committee indicated concern over what Rep. Don Rains of San Marcos called "this federal blackmail," but voted to report the emergency appriation bill out by a 16-0 margin.

Presnal also noted the federal act could result in as many as 28 different gas pricing categories.

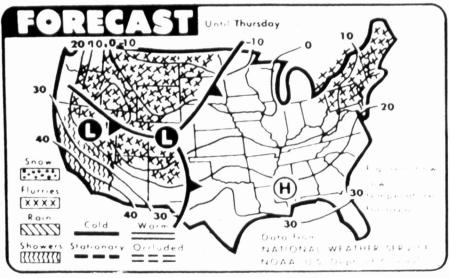

Nugent indicated the state should benefit from increased prices provided for through the bill by a "material increase in revenues" from its severance taxes.

White said the proper designation of two wells on state lands may bring an additional $3.5 million in income, and proper designation also could assist producers.

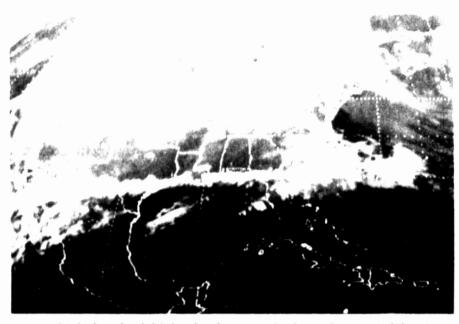

Earlier, one House Appropriations Committee member jokingly suggested joining OPEC. Another railed against "garbage" passed at federal insistence.

Temperature hits 14 degrees today; Warming forecast

This morning was not a great morning for starting automobiles, especially for late-to-work drivers.

Tempertatures plummeted into the teens overnight, bottoming out at 14 degrees at about 7:30 a.m., according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

That was just four degrees short of the record low of 10 degrees for today set back in 1951. Tuesday's high temperature recorded at the airport was 46 degrees. The record high for Jan. 30 is 80 degrees set in 1971.

The weatherman was predicting fair weather through Thursday with a warming trend. The high today is expected to be in the low 40s. Tonight's low should be in the middle 20s and Thursday's high is expected to be near 60 degrees.

Winds today are expected to be light and variable, becoming southwesterly at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

The predicted warming trend for the area, though, will be shortlived, according to the National Weather

Another cold air mass is swooping down from the Northwest and should arrive in the Permian Basin later this week, bringing with it colder temperatures and the chance of precipitation by weekend

The extended forecast for Friday through Saturday calls for increased cloudiness. There should be considerable cloudiness on Saturday, turning colder with a chance of snow in the Panhandle and a chance of showers in the Permian Basin

The high should be in the 40s for most of the area Friday

National Weather Service forecasters said another night of very cold temperatures was expected before a statewide warming trend begins Thursday. All of Texas except for the Valley was to have sub-freezing temperature readings early Thursday before the mercury was scheduled to climb into the 50s and 60s. Skies were clear statewide early today and winds were brisk from the north. Early morning temperatures ranged from near zero in the Panhandle to the 40s in coastal sections of the Valley. Most of the state had readings in the 20s and 30s. Extremes ranged from four above at both Dalhart and Amarillo in the Panhandle to 48 at

What type of person collects cans? Piel said those who bring in cans range from retirees to business people who collect the cans for such purposes as buying birthday gifts for grandchildren.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scout groups, mental health organizations and other groups also collect the cans for cash, he said.

"They come from all walks of life," said Piel. "These guys who work in the oil fields throw their cans into their pickup trucks and bring them in. We get anywhere from three to 3,000 pounds at a time.

Ray Henry, manager of the Midland plant, said, "my boy, David, saves cans because it's fun and he makes some money from it.'

Piel concluded, "Why we've even been told by law enforcement officers that people have complained about having their saved up aluminum cans-But recycling in the Permian Basin

Non-smokers wanted

LONDON (AP) - Job seekers stand a better chances of getting a good office job if they quit smoking, one of Britain's biggest employment agencies advised in a survey published today.

"More and more employers are specifying non-smokers in their specifications for new staff through our branches," said the Alfred Marks Employment Bureau." The reason is non-smokers don't take so much time off sick as smokers do.

The bureau said 79 percent of office workers interviewed who complained of heart ailments were smokers.

Pope John Paul II forms mosaic of conservatism and eloquence

By DENNIS REDMONT

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II's pronouncements during his visit to Latin America form a finely crafted mosaic of cool conservatism in doctrinal matters and sometimes fiery social eloquence on behalf of the rights of peasants and workers.

Politically active priests claim the pontiff's rejection of Christ as a revolutionary and his view of the Roman Catholic Church as a non-political, essentially spiritual institution inhibit Catholics from taking militant stands on political and social issues or taking up arms against oppressive military regimes.

Pope John Paul, according to his aides, is seeking to disassociate his church from regimes of both right and left and create a new, "third" Christian way.

'Let us keep in mind that the Church's action in earthly matters, such as human advancement, development, justice, the rights of the individual, is always intended to be at the service of man," the pope told his Latin American bishops in the major address of his trip.

'She therefore does not need to have recourse to ideological systems in order to love, defend and collaborate in the liberation of man.

The duties of the church, the pope added, are "to preach, to educate individuals and collectivities, to form public opinion and to offer orienta-

After planting a kiss on Mexican soil, the pope quickly asserted his authority over Latin American priests and nuns who are active in the political arena "You are priests and members of Turning his back on the "theology of liberation" and priestly political activism which the last conference of Latin American bishops in 1968 produced, he criticized those who see Jesus as "a political figure, a revolutionary, as the subversive of Nazareth.

He warned the bishops assembled to plan the course of the Latin American church for the next decade that their meeting was "not a symposium of experts, not a parliament of politicians, not a congress of scientists or technologists.

Their mission, he said, was to tend to the spiritual aspirations of man, to fight for more equal distribution or wealth and for human rights. But they must shun violence, the political arena and political systems.

Having established his theological foundation, Pope John Paul in his later speeches developed the other aspect of his mosaic.

He told the Indian peasants the church does not hesitate to champion land expropriation "if done in the proper form" and "the common good requires it. He scolded "powerful classes who sometimes tend unproductive lands that hide the bread that so many families lack." He urged peasants to organize so their strength would be On Tuesday, speaking to a group of

Ice causing problems in Northeast

By The Associated Press

Rain fell on the Eastern Gulf Coast states today while snow sifted down from northern Alabama to the Great Lakes Region and New England. The heavier snowfall is in New England, with 2 to 3 inches of new snow reported in parts of Maine and Vermont and lighter amounts in the Great Lakes region An ice storm that resulted in power outages for more than 12,000 customers south of Buffalo, N.Y., Tuesday posed problems today for hundreds who remained without service. Civil defense workers moved in emergency power generators to assist Cattaraugus County farmers unable to milk their cows, and Red Cross volunteers stood by in case families needed emergency shelter. The weight of storm-deposited ice downed four radio transmitting towers Tuesday. And, without power, the Salamanca Republican Press was unable to publish for the third time in 112 years.

A cold front produced rain over much of California today, with the heaviest accumulations on the southern coast. In the higher elevations of the Sierras the rain turned to snow causing authorities to close sections of Interstate 5 in the Bakersfield area.

Southern California deserts also reported a blanket of snow Clear skies, light winds and sub-zero temperatures were reported in Midland father, son receive probated sentences Tuesday

Almost three hours of last-minute plea bargaining Tuesday resulted in probated sentences on gambling charges against R.J. Morris, owner of RJ's Real Pit Barbecue Restaurant, and his son.

His son, Robert J. Morris Jr., was sentenced to six months probation in lieu of a three-month jail sentence and fined $1,000 after he pleaded nolo contendere to possession of gambling paraphernalia

The younger Morris had been charged originally with gambling promotion, a felony, in connection with two of the incidents. That charge also was dropped in the plea bargain made by District Attorney Vern Martin and defense attorney Bill Smith. Both the elder and younger Morris had been free on $5,000 bail each. Pre-trial hearings on the felony charges had been scheduled for Tuesday morning, with jury selection for the trial against the junior Morris, who officials say also is known as

"Hilltop Shorty," scheduled for Tuesday afternoon. The charges against R.J. Morris Sr. were next on the court docket.

Instead, both the district attorney and Smith conferred with 238th District Court Vann Culp, and then with each other - Smith stopping often to speak with his clients — throughout the morning.

A final conference with representatives of the County Attorney's Office resulted in the charges being reduced from felony to misdemeanor.

Scandalous, indeed

Readers may recall that the last Congress enacted the first major revision of federal bankruptcy laws in 40 years, which seemed most satisfactory at the time.

But under the pressure of last fall's adjournment deadline, the House and Senate took the extraordinary step of reconciling their separate and conflicting bills without submitting them to a conference committee. And this very well might prove to be a costly mistake.

An apparent consequence of taking such a short-cut with a complicated piece of legislation has surfaced in the federal courts in San Diego, Calif.

Inadvertently, one must assume, Congress opened the way for students fresh out of college to use bankruptcy as a means of discharging debts for government grants and student loans which paid for their education: Good grief!

The Higher Education Act of 1965 and other federally financed student aid programs have included provisions to prevent such obvious abuse

Congress repealed those earlier sections of the law and incorporated them into the new Bankruptcy Act. It now appears, however, that the repeal has gone into effect while the new Act does not take effect until Oct. 1, 1979. Thus is created a nine-month loophole which U.S. Attorney Michael Walsh describes as "scandalous."

When a recent medical graduate still in his internship can plead bankruptcy to discharge $67,000 in grants and loans which put him through school, it is, indeed, scandalous.

Sen. Dennis De Concini of Arizona, a principal sponsor of the Bankruptcy Act, says he will introduce corrective legislation, and it is hoped the 96th Congress will put other business aside to act on it promptly

INSIDE REPORT:

Labor's message to the Grand Old Party cited

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - When the AFL-CIO's top brass hosted a fund-raising dinner last Thursday for a non-liberal member of the Senate Republican leadership, it was giving notice to the political world: any Republican who backs us on the things we really care about will get our help, no matter how conservative he may be otherwise.

The $500-a-plate dinner was held for Sen: Robert Packwood of Oregon Jan. 25 at the Washington home of AFL-CIO staffer Victor Kamber. The dinner chairman was Robert Georgine. head of the building trades unions. Sharing top billing at the dinner with Packwood was Lane Kirkland, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer and possible successor to George Meany as president.

Far from associating with such labor notables in the past, middleroader Packwood never before has enjoyed AFL-CIO endorsement. Newly elected chairman of the Senate Republican conference, Packwood does not have the kind of record that ordinarily wins labor backing. His record on issues selected by the AFL-CIO is only 48 percent favor-

But Packwood sides with labor on what it cares most about. He backed both the labor law revision and the bill to legalize common situs picket- two measures stopped in the last Congress thanks to massive Republican opposition. Kirkland, a close friend of Packwood, is telling Republicans, in effect, that they need not back every liberal social welfare measure to get labor's blessing.

That philosophy is rejected by the United Auto Workers and other more liberal unions who demand broad liberal voting records on all issues, not just narrow union questions. It is also uncongenial to some AFL-CIO operatives who want to support Portland's liberal Democratic Mayor Neil Goldschimdt against Packwood's third-term bid next year. Nevertheless, the Republican is likely to get the AFL-CIO endorsement.

A footnote: Packwood may need all the labor help he gets. The "right to life" lobby has targeted him for defeat because of his pro-abortion stance. Thus, the Oregon race will measure the relative political clout of big labor and the anti-abortionists.

REAGAN: STAYING IN L.A.

Ronald Reagan, front-running Republican presidential prospect for 1980, has decided to keep his campaign as far as possible from the Washington establishment by making Los Angeles his campaign headquar-

Reagan's surprising intention to avoid the capital is a tribute of sorts to Jimmy Carter's anti-Washington campaign for the Democratic nomination in 1976, whose headquarters was kept in Atlanta.

But Los Angeles entails more problems than Atlanta. The three-hour time change between West and East coasts means significant political news made on the West Coast in the evening often never gets published in the East's big morning newspapers and is stale for later edi-

Nevertheless, Reagan believes there is a net gain from running for president as an outsider. His theory: voters are even more disillusioned with Washington politics and politi cians today than they were four years

A LABOR LOSS

The succession of big labor's defeats in the last Congress continued in the new one when the House Democratic caucus spurned the wishes of union lobbyists and elected conservative Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma to the House Budget Committee.

Jones had been picked by Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, as one of his committee's representatives on the budget group. But organized labor, still bitter over Jones' leadership in pushing a conservative-oriented tax bill through the House last year, wanted a more liberal member on the budget group. Thanks to labor muscle, Jones was rejected by the steering committee.

That was thought to be the end of it, particularly with Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill supporting the steering committee decision. But Ullman and Jones went to work; the full caucus reversed the decision and put Jones on the budget unit. That not only insures a more tight-fisted approach on the Budget Committee but helps cement the Ullman-Jones partnership, which meant big trouble on tax questions for Carter last year.

BROWN FOR DECONTROL?

The election Dec. 6 of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California as chairman of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission suggests he may be moving into the oil decontrol camp, probably in opposition to President

Brown has been hinting at support for federal deregulation of the oil industry. More substance was given those hints when Brown was pushed for chairman at the commission's meeting in Phoenix by then-Gov. (now U.S. senator) David Boren of Oklahoma, a staunch advocate of oil decontrol and sharp critic of Carter's energy policy.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sihanouk haunts Nixon, Kissinger

Produced in D.C By JACK ANDERSON of higher federal minimum

WASHINGTON - Norodom Sihanouk, a rotund little man with a squeaky voice, has come out of Cambodia to haunt Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger.

They were the two men. Sihanouk charges, who set in motion the terrible events in Cambodia. He holds them responsible for the human holocaust that wiped out hundreds of thousands of his countrymen and enslaved the survivors. There is evidence, unhappily, that he may be

Seldom in the course of human events has there been a story to equal the Sihanouk saga. It is an epic story not only of one man's indestructibility but of the agony of a nation.

At the happy age of 18, Sihanouk became Cambodia's "god king." He was a playboy prince, with a taste for champagne, mistresses and pop music. He ruled a gentle people in a land of quaint pagodas and tinkling temple bells. Probably nowhere on earth was there a country more peaceful and innocent.

But tragically, Cambodia was to be caught in the big-power struggle over Southeast Asia. First came the Vietcong guerrillas, slipping down Cambodia's jungle paths on sandals hacked from old truck tires. Then the pursuing Americans, with their frightening firepower, began banging on Cambodia's east gate. But the Chinese loomed massively and menacingly at the north gate.

The-man in the middle, Norodom Sihanouk, turned out to be a_wily international manipulator. He wooed the Americans, enchanted the Chinese and carried on a flirtation with the Soviets. He cooperated with the Vietcong at the same time that he maneuvered behind their backs to get them out of his country.

Sihanouk's superb tightrope diplomacy kept his defenseless little country in a state of benign neutrality until 1970. He was deposed by a coup on March 18, 1970, while he was out of the country

Sihanouk believes the Central Intelligence Agency was behind the coup. CIA-trained troops, known as Khmer Serai, are known to have infiltrated the country just prior to the coup. But Cambodian sources told us the CIA soldiers never reached the capital in time to aid the military

There is no denying, however, that the new ruler. Lon Nol. had solid U.S. backing. The leader of the CIAtrained Cambodian cadres, Son Ngac Than, was quickly brought in as an

Not long afterward, one of Lon Nol's first U.S. visitors was Gen. Alexander Haig who was later to cope with the emotional upheavals of Richard Nixon's final days. At the meeting with Haig, according to U.S. aides, Lon Nol unexpectedly broke down and sobbed. He told Haig in an anguished voice that he lacked the understanding to confront his country's problems.

The United States, nevertheless, kept Lon Nol in power and showered him with blessings. Yet the record is clear that Nixon had no interest in Cambodia except to use the country to outmaneuver the vexatious Vietcong.

Nixon rejected a French proposal that, for the sake of stability. Sihanouk be reinstated as Souvanna Phouma had been in Laos in 1964. Instead, Nixon got Lon Nol's acquiescence for a U.S. thrust into The invasion was supposed to iminate the Vietconi along the frontier. Instead, the U.S. forces drove the Vietcong deep into Cambodia where they joined forces with the Cambodian communists. Most of the peasants fled the countryside and thronged into the capital, leaving the interior in the hands of the communists. U.S. intelligence cables in 1971 reflect the deteriorating situation. They quoted high-placed Cambodian sources as saying "the recent military reverses appeared to have caused Lon Nol to take leave of his senses.

With the collapse of U.S. power in Southeast Asia, Lon Nol's downfall was inevitable. He fled, a broken man, half-paralyzed, to a fruit farm in Hawaii

The durable Sihanouk, meanwhile, had allowed himself to be used as a front for the communist rebels. He jovially referred to himself as the 'pink prince." But behind the scenes, he twice tried to contact Henry Kissinger about returning to Cambodia to end the war. But Kissinger refused to see him.

After the communist takeover, Sihanouk returned to Cambodia as the figurehead chief of state. He says that he was kept under house arrest, never knowing when his turn would come on the execution block. Twice a year, he was taken on a drive into the countryside presumably to show the peasantry he was still behind the radical communist government. But he was never sure where the car was taking him or whether he would return: From interviews with refugees and classified intelligence reports, meanwhile, we had chronicled the story of slaughter and oppression in Cambodia. It's a story Sihanouk has now confirmed. He told a press conference eloquently: "I would like to see my people have the right to their pagodas, to travel freely, to love and to be loved, to be able to see their wives and to be with their wives and children and not be separated ... These are basic rights of humanity ... We are not animals, like buffaloes and oxen.

The human tragedy in Cambodia, with its terrible toll, surpasses all other news shocks of this decade in sheer horror. It remains to be seen whether history will hold Bichard Nixon and Henry Kissinger accountable.

Sen. George McGovern's boost for John B. Connally

WASHINGTON + John B. Connally came here last week to announce for President and was delighted when a public knocking by Sen. George McGovern turned into an unintentional boost.

As chairman of "Democrats for Nixon" in 1972, Connally pounded and lacerated McGovern, left him for dead, and gloated when the Democratic nominee suffered a humiliating defeat. McGovern never forgot, and even before Connally unsurprisingly informed the citizenry that he was running for President, the South Dakota Senator vented his festering anger.

"I wouldn't trust Connally within a mile of the White House," he said. 'John Connally combines the worst of both Watergate and Vietnam. He's the perfect symbol of the double-talking, double-crossing politician. He doesn't even know what party he belongs to.

"The fact that Connally never went to jail along with the rest of the Watergate gang is positive proof that Ed Williams is the best criminal lawyer in the country:

McGovern also took note of what Connally did to him in 1972, as though he were licking his wounds after a dog fight. Connally could not ignore such a snarling attack, and naturally snapped back. "I gather he's not going to lead the Democrats for Connally in 1980," he cracked. "I'd say he's still a mad McGovern."

Both camps reported getting an encouraging playback from this feisty exchange. Connally's people are happy that McGovern, whom they regard as a discredited spokesman for the Democrats, honored their candidate with the invective. McGovern was pleased to hear from old friends who gave him a pat on the back for telling Connally off.

If McGovern had amplified his remarks about Connally's trial and notguilty verdict in the milk case he would have had to mention that attorney Edward Bennett Williams was also a top official in the Democratic Party, and that several leading Democrats testified on behalf of Connally, namely: Robert Strauss, now former chairman of the Democratic National Committee: Mrs. Lyndon Baines Johnson; then Congresswoman Barbara Jordan, and Robert S. McNamara and Dean Rusk, cabinet officers in the Johnson Administration.

In a small way, McGovern's attack on Connally is reminiscent of how President Johnson inadvertently boosted Richard Nixon's presidential stock when he unloaded on him in 1966 as a "chronic campaigner" who "never did really recognize and realize what was going on when he had an official position in the government."

Johnson had just returned from an exhausting trip to the Far East; and Xixon was tearing across the land on behalf of Republicans everywhere in hopes of earning I.O.U.s to be cashed in at the 1968 convention.

Shortly before election day, 1966, Nixon criticized Johnson's communique on the Manila conference, charging that LBJ was confusing our allies, leaving South Vietnam vulnerable. and creating a situation where the war could last five more years with U.S. casualties exceeding those of the Korean war, 1

These taunts prompted Johnson to declare that Nixon "doesn't serve his country well," and charged that he was politically motivated. Naturally Nixon saw an opening, and affecting a high-road approach, said Johnson had exhibited "a shocking display of temper" and had "broken the bipartisan line on foreign policy." Nixon was delighted to get widespread editorial support both for his criticism of L.B.J.'s Vietnam policies and for being the target of Johnson's personal derision. One consequence was that many Republicans, skeptical of a Nixon comeback, got to thinking, "Can he do it, one more time?"

Now Connally, in his announcement speech, did charge the Carter Administration with "Rafshoonery" (after Gerald, the President's communications adviser), meaning "image without substance." He also charged that "the Carter Administration is wrong for the time in which we live...has little sense of strategy, and little sense of the use of power on a global Connally is one of a batch of Republicans aspiring for the Presidency. So far, they amount to a colorless lot, although Ronald Reagan is the most recognizable and also far ahead of the rest in the polls.

Connally's shortcomings are harped on plenty. He was once a Democrat. He was involved in Watergate (but found innocent). He is a big Texan who would wield big power. He represents the moneyed interests, and so on.

But if Connally turns out to be the Republican who can stir the opposition, attack the Carter Administration in a feisty manner, and give the citizenry the idea that he is a clearcut alternative to the present White House occupant, and maybe a solid one as well, then those slow-reacting Republicans might put aside their reservations about the man, and give him better consideration.

Four other inmates and a prison farm foreman died Tuesday in the explosion in a building of the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary.

Warden Irl Day said three bodies remained in the 10-foot pile of rubble early today, beneath giant chunks of reinforced concrete that filled the shallow basement of the farm machinery building.

Man gives directions to body of woman

BONHAM, Texas (AP) - Fannin County officials today awaited the return to Texas of a 22-year-old man who gave the directions that led to the discovery of the body of a missing woman Tuesday in a wooded area two miles from her home.

Murder charges were filed Tuesday against James Harold Lorance, 22, a resident of the northern Fannin County community of Ivanhoe, not far from where the slain woman lived near the Red River and the Texas-Oklahoma border.

"We're waiting for extradition papers. Right now it is not a bondable offense," said Justice of the Peace R.F. Mankin of Bonham. The victim was Juanita Walls, 58, who served on the Fannin County grand jury the last six months of 1978. The grand jury indicted Lorance twice for burglary, twice for theft and once for escape from the Bonham city jail, but officials declined to speculate on whether her service on the jury had a bearing on the crime.

Hubert Humphrey, Nelson Rockefeller sought elusive goal By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey called his the politics of joy. Nelson A. Rockefeller didn't give it a name, but he campaigned with the same verve, for the same elusive

They spanned the same political generation, and they died a year apart. They both wanted to be presidents. They both got to be vice presi-

A rival once scorned Rockefeller's campaign style as that of a back-slapping, baby-kissing, blintz-eating politician. Rockefeller was all of that. Everyone was a fella, as in "Hi ya, fella." When he was in a hurry, which was usually, he'd say it to women. For nearly 20 years, Republican Rockefeller and Democrat Humphrey were fixtures of their party's presidential campaigns, either running or considering it.

But with a difference. Humphrey's problem was that, much as most Democrats liked him, they usually liked someone else better. He was everybody's second choice, except in 1968, when he gained nomination as the candidate of a sharply divided party.

But Rockefeller was, from his political beginning 20 years ago, the symbol of liberalism in a party dominated by conservatives at presidential nominating time.

Never mind his crackdown on welfare abuse; his law-and-order stance, his essentially conservative foreign policy. To the conservatives who often bestow, and always can deny a Republican presidential nomination, he was the liberal, big-government governor of New York.

That was obstacle enough. But Rockefeller ådded some political miscalculations of his own.

The early reckoning of the 1960 Republican presidential campaign ranked him a potential, and formidable challener to then Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He had just won the first of his four elections as governor of New York. He was a fresh face, a winner, and an option for Republicans who didn't care for Nixon.

Some of them set about organizing for Rockefelfer, quietly because the GOP establishment was Nixon's. That put them on a limb, and Rockefeller cut it off by announcing late in 1959 that he wouldn't run. Two campaigns later, then-Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew set up a committee to draft the New York governor for presidential nomina-

Then Agnew watched in embarrassment as Rockefeller announced that he wasn't going to run. After six weeks, Rockefeller changed his mind and entered the race. By that time, Agnew was supporting Nixon.

When it wasn't Nixon, it was Sen. Barry Goldwater, champion of the very conservatives who most resented Rockefeller. Goldwater beat Rockefeller in 1964, after the New York governor's longest, most arduous campaign for the GOP nomination.

Women winning autocratic label in power posts

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - As women rise in the corporate world they are accused of being autocratic - of being subjective, of making arbitrary decisions, of seeking to centralize power in themselves.

The "autocratic" label, meant as a putdown, is accepted as accurate by many women, who justify points in the last two their behavior as being necessary in the pressure cooker of top management. It was forced on them,

Men often disagree, claiming females are basical-Losers held a 5-3 edge on ly autocratic as a consequence of motherly or nestgainers in the over-all count ing instincts. Freed from constraints, the men say, women are merely showing their true nature.

Nonsense, says Professor Eugene Jennings, analyst of corporate mobility. He doesn't accept either Manhattan, the nation's version, primarily because he's so used to hearing it third largest bank, lowered applied to men or women who swiftly move up the its prime rate from 1134 to "The very nature of the corporate pyramid at-But as it announced the reduction in the basic charge for unilateral decision-making," he says. Jennings, who besides teaching graduate students at Michigan State University is a confidential adviser to top corporate chairmen and presidents, wants women to know that the accusation is tradi-

To attempt being less autocratic is to waffle; he says. And to waffle, he continues, is to become less dependable, predictable, powerful. He observes that executives seldom rise by being other than them-

The solution, he proposes, is to become a "mature autocrat" through offsetting. An executive style, he says, need not be radically changed, but the grossness must be removed.

Jennings has found that many men at the top were harassed by this accusation along the way. Applied to women, he says, it means they are upwardly mobile, and that they are becoming formidable challengers.

But women are to some extent still part of the 'out" group. That is, they are bringing change by upsetting the old, male-dominated order. And so there might be a stronger tendency to paste the label

Jennings recalls the experience of a Jewish man who became head of a very large corporation. Although already at the top, he was blackballed as being autocratic. In this instance it meant crude, unrefined. The man persisted, the professor recalls, but offset very effectively. "If he had changed to a permissive style he would have washed right out of the company. They'd have been all over him," he said. Nevertheless, a top executive or anyone in a line position, such as managing a division, can defend against the accusation more readily than one in a staff position, such as chief enginner or plant

In the line position an executive can demonstrate his or her effectivness by meeting specific objectives of profits, sales or budget. In staff work, the objectives often aren't quantifiable.

The staff executive, a level at which more women are finding themselves, must therefore be especially sensitive to the practice of offsetting, says Jennings, who leaves them with the reminder:

"One can be less upsetting by offsetting."

Mystery radios bombarding Iran

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Mayor Jim McConn said Tuesday he may ask the City Council to lower property taxes when he presents his budget proposal in about two weeks.

The reduction — from $1.58 per $100 of assessed valuation to $1.53 based on an assessment ratio of 53 percent - would mean the owner of a $40,000 home would have his tax reduced from $317 to $307 a

"It may be possible," he said, "but I'm not going to present it unless I'm sure."

The city faces a tax reform referendum that would limit property taxes to .5 percent of assessed valua-tion. McConn said passage of the referendum would put the city in an economic bind, resulting in curtailment of services.

No date has been set for the referendum election.

One column of about 2,000 men of the shah's imperial guard and 30 tanks made a wide swing through the northern part of the

As millions of the Shiite Moslem patriarch's followers prepared to give him a delirious welcome home, a new exodus of Americans from Iran began. The U.S. Embassy ordered families of government personnel to leave after attacks on three Americans, and the State Department said 5,000 of the 10,000 Americans still in the country were expected to go.

Bakhtiar's government announced Tuesday it had granted Air France_ue.

permission to fly Khomeini home despite his refusal to moderate his campaign to overthrow the monarchy and oust the government.

Some of his supporters were reported having second thoughts about the advisability of his return. One source with contacts in the Khomeini camp said some of the ayatullah's advisers had overestimated the amount of support he can expect from the army. Other local advisers were reported fearful of military moves against

The 78-year-old religious leader has said that after his return he would proclaim an Islamic republic to replace the monarchy and name a revolutionary council to take over the government. Local supporters say if Bakhtiar does not resign in favor of the council, the nationwide strikes paralyzing the economy will contin-

Khomeini on his return was scheduled to go from the airport to Tehran's biggest cemetery for a speech outlining his plans for the country. Buried there are many of the more than 1,500 persons killed by the army and police during the year-long campaign of demonstrations and strikes he directed which forced the shah to leave Iran on Jan. 16. Radio Tehran said the welcoming committee was mobilizing 50,000 "Islamic police" to maintain order along the 11-mile route from the airport to the cemetery. The army will maintain security at the airport, the broadcast said.

Khomeini is expected to remain in Tehran for several days, then go to the holy city of Qom. He was the avatullah, or archbishop, there until the shah expelled him from Iran in 1964. His family came from the village of Khomein, near Qom.

Bakhtiar, a longtime political foe of the shah who was named prime minister by the ruler before he left the country, closed the airports last week to prevent the ayatullah's scheduled arrival last Friday. He attempted to get the religious leader to delay his return for three weeks and then offered to go to Paris to negotiate with him. But the ayatullah rejected all his overtures, repeating over and over that he was an illegal appointee of an illegal ruler, Tehran's airport reopened Tuesday, and commercial service was to resume today.

and Bakhtiar finally gave in.

The U.S. Embassy ordered families of government personnel to leave "at the earliest feasible date" because of the growing risk of attacks on them. The embassy also urged non-essential U.S. civilians to go.

Military transports took about 200 Americans out Tuesday. About 50 more military dependents and an unknown number of civilians were expected to leave today on chartered military planes.

Pan American World Airways, Swissair and SAS all scheduled flights

The number of Americans in Iran has dropped from about 45,000 last fall to fewer than 10,000. Those remaining include about 900 members of a military advisory group, other government employees and oil and aircraft workers.

The evacuation was ordered after an American major was wounded by a gunman in Tehran Sunday and U.S. Consul David C. McGaffey and a Bell Helicopter employee were beaten by a crowd in Isfahan Monday.

also would be cut. Cohen and former Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball contend that the proposed changes in benefits, although only a small part of the $115 billion Social Security program, would set a dangerous precedent. They also accused Califano of bypassing his Alvisory Council on Social Security, on which Ball sits. But Califano said in an interview that he believes the council, with the possible exceptions of Ball and its labor representatives, "would regard these changes as too small They're looking at really fundamental restructuring of that system.' Califano also noted that Congress cut $1.8 billion in benefits two years ago by refinancing Social Security with higher payroll taxes.

"When Congress faces up to whether they want to reduce the payroll tax in 1981, they've got to face up to the benefits issue," said Califano. The tax rate of 6.13 percent is scheduled to climb to 6.65 percent in 1981. It is

Some 1.1 million, or 30 percent, were found ineligible and 494,000, or 13 percent, had their applications rejected by the computer as incomplete or inconsistent. An internal HEW report said recently 64 percent of those rejected actually may be eligible.

The countless parties are set; some public, more in the mansions overlooking the spectacular beauty of Carmel Bay. Hotel rooms have long-since been booked solid. A cold rain, which seems to be traditional, sweeps Monterey Peninsula. The whales are making their migration and the seals are cavorting on the wave-splashed rocks.

Everything is in order for the Bing Crosby Nation-

Jack Nicklaus. For the first time in his playing history, Nicklaus is skipping the Crosby. It didn't fit in with his reduced schedule. His long-time friend and Crosby partner, Bob Hoag, made a telephone call to Nicklaus' home early in the week to make one last plea. He wasn't there. Off hunting in Georgia, said wife Barbara.

So, for the first time since the early '60s, the Crosby - that annual bash of golf and parties and fun, long known unofficially as Bing's Clambake will be held without Nicklaus.

Rebels lose heartbreaker to Abilene Cooper, 46-45

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

So close and yet so far away. Abilene Cooper nipped the battling Midland Lee Rebels, 46-45, here Tuesday night on a 15-foot shot from the corner by Mike Anderson with two seconds left on the clock in a District 5-4A basketball thriller in the Lee

Anderson's basket gave the Cougars the narrow victory, but Lee had one last chance even after that to win. A long laub pass the length of the court to Ernest Merritt, almost pulled it out for Coach Paul Stueckler's crew, but the 6-foot-1 senior's shot hit the rim and bounced away as the

The victory for Marc Case's Cougars, keeps them in a three-way tie for second place behind Midland High in the second half of the race. Cooper, Odessa Permian and San Angelo, all stand 2-1 while Midland is now 3-0.

Mike McGaha, 6-5 Rebel center, played by far his best all-around game of the season in playing well on both offense and defense. He wound up with 16 points while Merritt added 17 more as Lee almost pulled it out. Anderson's 16 points and Kyle Stuard's 13 paced Cooper to its 15th win against 12 losses while Lee is now 13-15 and with the loss in league play, is all but eliminated from the second half of the race.

Cooper took a 33-31 lead into the final period after posting a halftime advantage of 21-14, but Lee came out and promptly outscored the Key City team, 9-2, in the early going of the third period and it was nip-and-tuck the rest of the way.

Staubach blitzed after Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A band of unruly youths blitzed Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach in the parking lot of the Los Angeles Coliseum after he had led his team to victory in the Pro Bowl

Staubach said he lost "less than $50" when his attackers knocked him, his wife and son down, grabbed his wallet and ran.

They failed in their effort to take his wife's neck-"I chased the guy, but by the time I caught him, he'd handed it off to some other kid," Staubach

No one was hurt, and Staubach said someone found his wallet and returned it to him, with nothing missing but the money, before he and his family returned Tuesday to Dallas.

"I gave the kid who found my wallet on the street a reward. It was more than the amount I lost. It just goes to show there are good people too," he said. He was holding his son, Jeff, and had just leaned into a car to put the child on the seat when he felt his wallet being taken, he said. Meanwhile, similar incidents were occurring all over the parking lot, Staubach said. "There were no police in the parking lot, and there was an unruly crowd of perhaps a couple hundred kids out there. Most of them were good kids, but there were 10 or 12 who were definitely out to create a disturbance," he added.

Notre Dame routs Brown by 80-53 to prove rating

By The Associated Press Digger Phelps says his Notre Dame basketball team should not be ranked No. 1 in the nation, or even in the State of Indiana, but don't tell that to the Brown Bruins. "Obviously with the number of first-place votes they got, they should have been No. 1," Phelps said of undefeated but second-ranked Indiana State, which received 32 firstplace ballots to 15 for Notre Dame.

Nevertheless, the twice-beaten Irish, coming off a last-second onepoint road loss to Maryland, did nothing to tarnish their holdover No. 1 rating Tuesday night, smashing Brown 80-53 thanks to 66 percent shooting in the first half that provided a 46-27 lead at the intermission...which quickly ballooned to 56-

RICH BRANNING led the balanced Notre Dame attack with 16 points, Orlando Woolridge added 12 and Tracy Jackson 10.

"I knew Notre Dame was big, strong, quick and aggressive, but I never knew they could hit the outside shot from everywhere," said Brown Coach Joe Mullaney. "There is no-team around that has the depth Notre Dame has.'

"Hey, obviously we're one of the powers," said Phelps. "Now is the time to get it going as a team, to get the momentum going into the tournament, to get the right chemistry going. It has nothing to do with wins or losses.

"We were really hopped up tonight. Some of the frustration from the Maryland loss was shown in our defense. We were hitting the perimeter shots, showing a lot of consistency and penetration:

TWELFTH-RANKED Marquette was the only other member of The Associated Press Top Twenty in action Tuesday night and the Warriors held off Creighton 79-77 as Bernard Toone led a second-half comeback. Toone scored 18 of his 26 points after the intermission as Marquette erased a 42-38 deficit. John C. Johnson had 25 for the losers.

'The thing is not to let Creighton get ahead or you can have a lot of trouble," said Marquette Coach Hank Raymonds, whose club had a lot of trouble. "It's always been that

IN AN Atlantic Coast Conference game, North Carolina State's Hawkeve Whitney set a record for Clemson's LittleJohn Coliseum by scoring 43 points but it wasn't enough as the Tigers toppled the Wolfpack 85-72. Whitney was the only N.C. State player in double figures while Clemson had four with 13 points or more, led by Larry Nance's 19.

"Boy, it was a good win for us," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster. "Whitney is sure a heck of a player. We didn't try to let him score all those points, but we were able to stop the others, and that's good."

So, apparently, is Clemson. "People are going to start to wonder about us now because we have already won more ballgames than people thought we would," said Foster, whose Tigers are 13-5 overall and 3-4 in ACC play after being picked to finish dead last.

Earl Evans scored 24 points and pulled down 12 rebounds to spark Nevada-Las Vegas past Iona 86-79. The Rebels, 16-5, took the lead for good with a minute left in the first half on a 12-foot jump shot by Tony Smith. They led by as much as 12 points early in the second half with Iona star Jeff Ruland sitting down with three personals. Iona, 14-5, closed to 80-79 with 22 seconds left but UNLV scored the Industrialist Max M. Fisher and shopping center developer A. Alfred Taubman announced Tuesday that they have dropped their interest in purchasing the American League

While the loss of the millionaires' contributions could be a setback to local investors who hoped the two would help raise the $12 million asking price, it can be viewed as a boost for William Simon, who also wants the team.

"We have looked over the investment potential of the Baltimore Orioles and have concluded that the acquisition of the ball club would not fit into out investment strategy at this time," said a statement issued by Taubman's office.

"We can appreciate the concern that Baltimore area residents have expressed for retaining the club in Baltimore," the statement added. 'We hope that the Orioles' management will be able to conclude arrangements to keep the team there."

Members of Mayor William D. Schaefer's ad hoc committee were stunned by the announcement, which followed the return from Israel of Fisher and Orioles Board Chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger.

Bedell said the Borah High School field, where the independent Boise Buckskins played last year, is inadequate. He said the future of professional baseball in Boise hinges upon development of a new park.

Auburn in trouble with its recruiting

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) - Auburn University officials are remaining tight-lipped about a report the school received concerning allegations of recruiting violations.

But a Birmingham newspaper says the report from the committee on infractions of the National Collegiate Athletic Association places Auburn's football team on probation for up to two years.

Auburn President Harry Philpott released a terse statement Tuesday saying that the university had received the report but that its contents cannot be disclosed because of NCAA regulations.

Dayton players lose scholarships

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Eight football players recruited by the University of Dayton before it dropped from major college status to Division III have been told to give up their scholarships or quit the team.

"I want to play bad but to pay $3,000 to $4,000 to play football ... I don't know if it's worth it," said guard Gary Cooper. All of the players will be seniors next season. Four of them were starters on last season's team, which finished 9-2-1, including fullback Brian Dorenkott, Cooper, tackle Howie Overman and defensive end Joe Overbeck.

The players are affected by the National Collegiate Athletic Association rule that all schools in Division III must have their financial aid on a 'need" basis by the 1979 season.

No scholarships have been offered to players entering the program since Dayton decided to drop from Division I to Division III in football, but those players who were already in the program retained their scholarships.

The university said it will honor the grants, but players accepting will not be eligible to play under the NCAA regulations

Dayton Coach Rick Carter said the players have several options: staying at the school, keeping the scholarship and not playing; dropping the scholarship and remaining on the team, and accepting whatever assistance might be available from the school, or transferring to another school.

"I don't believe anyone is going to transfer," Carter said. "It's not a decision that's going to be made quickly," said Dorenkott, who rushed for 745 yards and scored 10 touchdowns last season. "It was a shock. I knew we were going Division III, but to find out the scholarship was in jeopardy ... that caught me off guard," said Dorenkott, adding that none of them learned of the problem until December.

"It hurts to leave football," Smith said. "It's addictive. But it's morally wrong to drag athletes into viclations of rules. I couldn't stand it.

the St. Louis Blues trounced the Los Angeles Kings 7-1 and the Detroit Red Wings thumped the Washington Capitals 7-4.

Fidler's second goal of the game, a screened 30-foot shot with 3:52 remaining, ruined a comeback by the Islanders, who trailed 4-2 with seven minutes left but tied the score on goals by Garry Howatt and Mike Bossy 42 seconds apart. Fidler then took a pass from defenseman Sargent and rifled a rising shot over the left shoulder of goalie Glenn Resch for the winning tally.

Fidler, who also had two assists, opened the scoring at 4:22 of the first period and Kris Manery deflected a pass from Fidler past Resch just eight seconds later. A pair of goals by Clark Gillies got the Islanders even the first time.

The loss was the Islanders' second in a row at home after they had won 19 and tied four of their first 23 games at the Nassau Coliseum this season. Rangers 5, Canucks 3

Phil Esposito scored twice and New York goalie John Davidson turned aside 21 of 22 shots in the second period. Davidson kicked out 44 of 47 shots altogether but allowed only one goal until Ron Sedlbauer and Rick Blight tallied for Vancouver in the final 21/2 minutes.

By that time, the Rangers had a 5-1 lead. Esposito and Pat Hickey scored in the first 10 minutes for a 2-0 lead. Vancouver's Rob Flockhart recorded his first NHL goal early in the second period to slice the lead in half but Anders Hedberg made it 3-1 at 15:03.

Esposito then netted his 26th goal of the season at 3:36 of the final period and Ron Duguay closed out New York's scoring at 9:13 as the secondplace Rangers boosted their Patrick Division lead over Atlanta to five

Blues 7, Kings 1

Bernie Federko and Garry Unger each scored two goals and Federko set a team assist_record. Meanwhile, St. Louis goalie Ed Staniowski turned back 27 shots before Marcel Dionne broke Staniowski's bid for his first NHL shutout with just 29 seconds left. However, the victory gave the lowly Blues their first two-game winning streak of the season.

Besides his two goals, Federko assisted on goals by Brian Sutter and Bob Murdoch in the final period, giving him 50 assists for the season to break the record of 49 by Phil Goyette in 1969-70.

"We've got 28 games to play and we're only 10 points behind secondplace Vancouver for the final playoff berth in our division," said Federko. "It's not unreasonable to think that we can come back and make the playoffs.

About his record, Federko said: 'To be honest with you, I'd never heard of Phil Govette until just recently. It's certainly an honor to set any record, but if the player was well-respected, as Goyette apparently is, that makes it much more appealing to me.

Red Wings 7, Capitals 4

Defenseman Thommie Bergman scored two goals and assisted on another as Detroit snapped a four-game winless streak. The victory for the Wings was only their third in their last 21 outings and they remain in the basement of the Norris Division, six points behind the fourth-place Capitals. It was Washington's first set-

Dan Bolduc, Paul Woods, Dale McCourt, Terry Miller and Nick Libett also scored for Detroit. McCourt put Detroit in front to stay 4-3 at 13:57 of the second period and Bergman followed with what proved to be the winning tally at 16:41. Both of Bergman's goals came on power plays.

Beauchamp overcomes handicap

CINCINNATI (AP) - Bobby Beauchamp turned misfortune into his greatest talent.

Had the 16-year-old been born with normal legs, he might never have put on a pair of figure skates. But Beauchamp was born with an abnormali-

"He never would have known about skating if he hadn't been club-footed," said Jean Beauchamp, his moth-

For seven years, he wore braces up to his hips on both legs. He slept in them. He wore them on his first day at class. He was humiliated because people thought he had polio. Every six weeks, his doctor twisted his leg outward a little more. Finally, the braces were removed, but the foot still was turned inward. The doctor said figure skating might help.

"He skated right out. He never fell," Mrs. Beauchamp recalled. "You never would have known he was born like that."

"I skated to make my ankles stronger," said the Los Angeles youth, competing in the U.S. Figure Skating Championships this week. "And I liked, it and kept with it. It wasn't easy, but with practice, the ankles corrected themselves."

Mrs. Beauchamp said her son's yearly skating expenses just about equal her salary as a laboratory technician - $12,000. Beauchamp's father is an engineer.

The Beauchamp family may have to pay more big bills in the future. Bobby's 5-year-old sister already is performing simple jumps on the ice.

"If she wants to continue, I'll have no other choice (but to keep paying the bills)," Mrs. Beauchamp said. Mrs. Beauchamp works at two jobs from, 11 p.m. until 7 a.m., seven days a week. She works those hours so she can get her daughter off to school.

Permian, Abilene Cooper and San Angelo all trail the Bulldogs by one full game wih 2-1 loop records.

Danny Ray Wright, 5-foot-8 senior guard, ripped the cords for 27 points as the Bronchos were winning their fourth game of the season against 18 losses. San Angelo is now 14-12 in the year with the loss. Big gun for the Bobcats was Kenneth Sullivan with 16 points.

Permian's attack was led by 6-5 junior Brad Kerley who flipped in 19 points for the Panthers who face Cooper in Abilene on Friday night. Big Spring was led by Mark Poss who netted 17 points. The Steers are 0-3 in the second half of the race and face Midland Lee in Midland Friday.

Silas nets 30 in Spurs victory By The Associated Press

After two years of pain and frustration, James Silas is back. Silas scored a season-high 30 points including four in overtime, to help the Spurs beat the Chicago Bulls 112-108 Tuesday night. That victory, coupled with Houston's 112-106 loss to the Indiana Pacers, gave San Antonio a 21/2game lead over the Rockets in the National Basketball Association's Central Division. Silas was the best backcourtman in the dying days of the American Basketball Association, but suffered a string of ankle, knee and thigh injuries the past two years. Most of his time was spent gathering splinters on the bench; when he was able to play, > used to take for granted "You have no idea what it was like to sit there and watch my team play without me," Silas recalled. "The feeling of helplessness, of not being able to do anything about it, was indescribable.

he found he couldn't do the things he

But Spurs Coach Doug Moe, knowing what Silas could do when healthy, stuck with him.

"A player of lesser talent would have been gone, no question about that," said Moe. "But he was the best guard in basketball and we were hoping he could come back, even partial-

Silas started this season on the Spurs' bench, but the team got out of the gate slowly. San Antonio didn't start winning until Silas replaced

Mike Gale in the starting backcourt alongside NBA scoring champion George Gervin.

"We complement each other," said Gervin, who also had 30 points against Chicago but fouled out with three minutes left in overtime and the Bulls leading 108-106. "If we are not the best guard tandem in basketball, I don't know who is."

In other NBA games Tuesday night, Portland defeated Denver 82-76, Washington beat Atlanta 109-105, San Diego trimmed Milwaukee 117-113 and Los Angeles topped New Jersey

San Antonio erased a a 100-88 deficit with 6:45 left, Gervin sending the game into overtime on a 30-foot jumper with 50 seconds to go that tied the score at 104.

After Gervin fouled out in overtime, Silas took command. He tied the game with a 20-footer and drew a charging foul from Reggie Theus. After Mike Green hit a driving layup with 1:15 remaining, Silas drew another charging foul from Theus, then sank two free throws with six seconds left to clinch the victory.

"I'm the quarterback of this team," said the 6-foot-3 Silas, who averaged 23.8 points per game in 1976 before his injuries. "Gervin is our big man and when he's in I get the ball to him. When Gervin is out, I have to be a little more offensive minded.'

"There was no doubt in my mind when I fouled out that Silas could take over and do the kind of job that we all expect of him," said Gervin.

Chicago, which has lost eight of nine, got 27 points from Artis Gilmore and 19 points and 23 rebounds from Mark Landsberger.

Pacers 112, Rockets-106

Indiana won its fourth in a row behind 20 points and 16 assists by Ricky Sobers and 20 points by reserve Billy Knight. The Pacers led 49-28 midway through the second period, saw Houston come within four in the fourth quarter but held on.

Blazers 82, Nuggets 76 Rookie Mychal Thompson scored 24 points and Maurice Lucas got five in a row late in the fourth quarter as Portland beat Denver.

Denver center Dan Issel was knocked unconscious briefly when he went down in a tangle of bodies under the Portland basket with 8:35 remaining. He suffered a sprained back and neck.

Clippers 117, Bucks 113

San Diego snapped an 89-89 tie with 15 straight points to take control midway through the fourth quarter-as Milwaukee lost for the 17th time in 21 road games. Randy Smith led the Clippers with 26 points while rookie Freeman Williams got 12 of his 19 points in the final period. Marques Johnson topped the Bucks with 39 points and 12 rebounds. Bullets 109, Hawks 105

Elvin Hayes sank three foul shots and Tom Henderson four in the final 79 seconds as Washington raised its Atlantic Division lead to 4½ games over Philadelphia. Hayes led the Bullets with 23 points. Lakers 127, Nets 108

Lou Hudson hit seven of eight shots in the first half to help Los Angeles to a 63-47 lead and the Nets never threatened. Hudson finished with 22 points and five other Lakers scored in double

Frazier hearing set for Friday

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) - A hearing is set for Friday in Detroit on Walt Frazier's grievance against the Cleveland Cavaliers over his $8,748 bill for moving expenses when he was traded to Cleveland by the New York Knicks

The Cavaliers say that is way out of line under the National Basketball Association agreement with the Players Association. That agreement puts New York and Cleveland in the same geographical zone and sets "reasonable and ordinary moving expenses" within the zone at $1,600.

Frazier's grievance will be aired by representatives of the association and the league at Friday's hearing.

Frazier hasn't played since he reinjured his foot in a game at San Diego Nov. 4. Coach and General Manager Bill Fitch has indicated that Frazier may never play for Cleveland again.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) Muhammad Ali said Tuesday night the ante is up to $2 million for a television extravaganza during which he'll announce his retirement from boxing once and for all. And the world heavyweight champ indicated it's just a matter of time before he does it.

"My retirement party will be held on network television," Ali told about 5,000 students packing a gymnasium at the State University of New York at Albany.

Would-be parents throwing their weight around

By TIMOTHY HARPER

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Barbara and Gordon Ray want to adopt a child, but they can't. The state claims they're too fat to become parents, the

"We started this thing and we're not the type of people to give up on it," said Barbara, who stands

5-foot-9 and weighs 210 pounds. Gordon, a 6-foot-2, 215-pound shipping clerk at the University of Wisconsin, said they began state adoption proceedings two years ago when doctors said it was unlikely they would ever have children.

When the state Department of Health and Social Services said they would have to wait five or six years for an infant, the Rays said they would rather have a child 5 to 10 years old right away.

Then the couple, both 28, ran into the department's informal guidelines barring adoptions for health

'They wrote and told us we were obese and could not adopt until we had a substantial weight loss," Gordon said. "Basically, the problem is with my wife, but they told me I should lose, too."

Social workers told Barbara she had to get down to 190 pounds and she did within three months. But then

"I don't know how a state agency can deny adoption eligibility on the basis of the prospective parents' weight, especially in the absence of definitions or proof that a health problem exists." Gordon said he and his wife have been certified in good health by their doctors, and are active in many sports. He said he and his wife, married seven years, own a home and are saving to build a house in the country some day.

Proposal would require specifics on restoration

WASHINGTON (AP) - Miners would be required to explain in advance how they would protect and restore land that is strip-mined under new regulations proposed by the federal Office of Surface Mining.

The regulations also would permit completion of strip mining now underway on prime farmland, but would require application of the new regulations to any additional mining.

Walter N. Heine, director of the mining office, said Tuesday the cost of the proposed regulatory program would vary among the states, depending on the strictness of their local rules. But he said some proposals would simplify current standards, thus reducing the costs of compli-

The proposed rules were designed to recognize the necessity of mining coal along with the need to protect land values, he said.

The rules were drawn up to implement the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. They will serve primarily as guides for the preparation and approval of state ans, which must be submitted to the federal government by Aug. 3.

A final decision on the details of the regulations is not expected for four to Other proposed regulations would: -Allow miners to evaluate the impact of mining on fish and wildlife from existing studies and expert advice, without necessarily requiring original research.

-Allow the removal of sedimentation basins, if it can be shown that water quality will not drop below applicable standards.

-Remove federal design standards for depositing fill materials in valley floors which slope less than 10 degrees, requiring, instead, a more flexible rule of good design by a professional engineer.

-Allow existing structures to be exempt from new design standards, provided they meet the federal performance guidelines.

Still unresolved is whether financial bonds should be required to ensure future restoration of land, or to compensate for land damaged by mining beneath it or drainage from mines.

While noting that public involvement is incorporated into the regulations, Heine was vague about what kind of citizen involvement is provided under the federal law. He said the 1977 law provided for federal inspections of mine areas at the request of. and in the presence of, a private citizen. But he said it was not clear whether citizens would have that right when the states conduct the inspection programs under federally approved plans.

Luncheon with Teng draws differing senatorial reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Capitol Hill luncheon with Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping of the People's Republic of China prompted differing reactions from Senators John Tower, R-Texas, and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

"The concept of major world powers working together in harmony is sound and the specific objective of the United State opening full diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China is necessarily prudent," Tower said Tuesday.

"However, the Carter Administration must demonstrate far more diplomatic cunning and political acumen than it has to date, lest its continuing ineptitude in the conduct of foreign relations place this country in an inferior position," said Tower, ranking minority member of the Armed

Hitchhiker held by police

Eldon Hinchey said he heard his father, James Hinchey, 50, and Rex Atencio, 32, both of Albuquerque order a hitchhiker out of their truck Tuesday morning. The boy said he was covered with blankets and didn't hear the stabbings.

A 17-year-old Texan was charged Tuesday afternoon with their murder. Tony Dawayne Adams of Hufsmith, Montgomery County, was arrested in a motel at Vinton, La., about 30 miles away, after someone reported seeing a man wearing bloody clothing.

Adams was arraigned Tuesday afternoon and was in Orange County Jail at Orange today on bonds totaling ties down a million Russian soldiers on their border," he said. "Recognition of China helps with the balance of power in the world. We can't ingnore a billion people. It's my under-standing that we will be able to sell arms to Taiwan, plus trade and economic ties will be presereved." But Tower disagreed.

"While we may find much to agree with in Mr. Teng's perception of the Soviet policy as a threat to world order, any kind of alignment with the PRC must be considered in the context of our global interests and re-

Tower's remarks took a warning tone as he discussed increased trade with the PRC.

We must remember that the PRC is a long way from the economic capability or consumer and industrial readiness to absorb any great influx of American products and services. Our principal objective should be the achievement of a favorable balance of trade which this opportunity presents over the long haul, not the gaining of short-term profits.

Bentsen and Tower both cited previous engagements in declining to accompany Teng on his two-day trip to Texas later this week. Teng plans to go to Houston Friday.

White voters approve black rule

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) -Sixty percent of Rhodesia's white voters approved the new constitution promising the black majority eventual control of the country.
About 66,300 of the 94,700 registered voters cast ballots in the referendum Tuesday, and results from 37 of the 50 districts showed 85 percent voted 'yes." Results from the other districts were expected today.

"I believe we have strengthened our position. There was nothing halfhearted about this vote," said Prime Minister Ian Smith, who argued that the constitution guaranteeing the whites at least partial control for the next five years was the only alternative to a takeover by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, whose black guerrillas have been battling the Rhodesian armed forces from bases in Mozambique and Zambia for more than six years.

Burial in park, tribal recognition concern son

ByPAUL HODGE The Wasington Post

WASHINGTON - "You can feel the Great Spirit here, by these fields and the river," said Billy Tayac, who became chief of the Piscataway Indians after his 83-year-old father, Chief Turkey Tayac, died last

"This is where my father wanted to be buried, in Piscataway park...this is our ancient burial ground which he helped excavate (with archeologists) in the 1930s. Feel the peace that's here, just 15 miles from Washington,' Tayac, 42, said recently, standing on the sandy bank of the Potomac River across from Mount Vernon.

The National Park Service, which until this year opposed Turkey Tayac's wish to be buried in the three-year-old federal park, now sup ports the Tayac burial bill that Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., says she will introduce when Congress reconvenes Jan. 15. A similar bill, introduced last spring while Tayac was alive, failed, but a spokesman for Spellman said the new bill is excpected to be approved quickly.

Tayac, who died Dec. 8 after contracting pneumonia after swimming in the Potomac, is buried temporarily in an above-ground vault at a cemetery near the park.

WHILE SOME LOCAL historians question whether Turkey Tayac is entitled to the title of chief, they generally agree he was a direct descendant of Piscataway Indians who have been considered extinct as a tribe for 200 years - and apparently was the last to speak the Piscataway tongue. Language recordings that he made for the Smithsonian Institution before World War II were given to the Library of Congress and apparently can no longer be located, according to a local Indian historian.

Tayac was a knowledgeable herbalist and was considered an important Indian figure in the Washington area for several decades. The Piscataway word tayac means chief.

If the bill is approved, Tayac will be only the fourth person and the first Indian in recent years to be buried in a federal park, according to Park Service officials.

A Park Service ranger shot and killed in the line of duty several years ago is buried in a small graveyard in Grand Canyon National Park. Rep. Goodloe Byron, D-Md., who died Oct. 11 after a heart attack, is buried in a Civil War cemetery at the Antietam National Battlefield in Maryland under a special arrangement with the Veterans Administration and the secretary of Interior. The widow of a World War I veteran was buried at Anteitam last year under a similar arrangement.

ASIDE FROM THE Piscataways. only one other group of Indians - the Papago Indians of the Southwest are known to have a burying ground inside a federal park. That site, which Papago descendants are permitted to use but haven't, according to the Park Service, is in the Organ Pipe Cactus Park in Arizona. The Piscataway burial ground, where the skeletons of more than 1,000 Indians and more than 200,000 pieces of pottery were found during excavations in the 1930s, is beside the mouth of Accokeek Creek and the Indian village that Capt. John Smith called Moyaone when he stopped there in 1608 on his exploratory trip up the Potomac.

Until white settlers arrived, the area had been occupied off and on by Indians for at least 5,000 years, according to a study of artifacts collected by Alice Ferguson and volunteers like Turkey Tayac. Ferguson and her husband, Henry, a geologist, bought the riverfront land and a nearby farm in 1920 and stumbled upon Indian pottery and artifacts while exploring the land, according to G.B. Wareham, executive director of the Alice Ferguson Foundation.

Established in 1954, the foundation donated the Moyaone site to the Park Service and operates a nature center beside it, primarily for fifth grade students in Prince George's and Prince Charles county schools.

THE MOYAONE SITE is where Lord Calvert came in 1634 to ask the "Emperor" of the Piscataways for permission to settle in Maryland. The Piscataways, like most other Indians in the area were later driven from the state. Billy Tayac says his father's grandparents and members of the Conoy band of the Piscataways returned to the state during the last century and "kept a low profile," although one was accused of helping John Wilkes Booth flee across the Potomac after Lincoln's assassina-

"It's now quite fashionable to be an Indian," Billy Tayac said, "and we're hearing from all kinds of people who claim to be Piscataways. Who is and who is not an Indian, a Piscataway, we're trying to define.

Such claims are hard to prove or disprove since few written records are available and no definitive geneological research has been done, according to American University Prof. Charles McNett, a student of area "pre-history," defined as the era before the arrival of white men.

The federal Bureau of Indian Affairs officially recognizes 496 Indian tribes in the country, including 218 in Alaska. The ""recognition" entitles tribes to many legal benefits, but is accorded only to established Indian tribes with lands and strict definitions of tribal membership.

However, some tribes define a member as anyone who is one-fourth Indian and others, anyone who is one-sixteenth or even less, according to the BIA. Billy Tayac says he is more than half Indian, since his father was a full-blood and his mother, Mary Lee, was of Italian and Shawnee descent. Billy's wife, Shirley, is part Cherokee. He says there are about 50 to 60 Piscataways today, most of them his relatives, and together they have applied for federal recognition from the BIA.

ALTHOUGH BILLY TAYAC was called "Indian" while growing up here, he legally changed his name from Proctor to Tayac only four or five years ago. Proctor was the name given his family in the last century by county officials who Billy Tayac says refused to recognize an Indian name. Turkey Tayac never legally changed his name from Proctor, Billy said, "because if he did he would have lost his veteran's benefits" from World War I service.

Standing by his tribe's ancient burial ground last week, Bill Tayac said although is father was Catholic (in 1640 the Piscataways became the first Indian tribe converted to Catholicism) there was no problem about his being buried on the banks of the Poto-

"We see no conflict between Christianity and Indian spiritualism. We believe we're no better than the fish in the water or the squirrel in the tree, and we must respect them if we are to survive," said Billy Tayac. "That's why my dad wanted to return to mother earth, to nourish her."

Life in city's gay district goes on

By PAUL KRUEGER Copley News Service

SAN FRANCISCO - On the surface, at least, life on Castro Street has returned to normal.

Gone are the black armbands worn by thousands who mourned the Nov. 27 shooting death of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk. Gone. too, are the strands of black crepe paper that spanned street corners and fluttered from the awnings of bakeries, pharmacies and coin laundries in this primarily gay neighborhood just west of the downtown financial district.

The crowded street has regained its usual electricity. A beefy policeman strolls down 18th Street waving his morning hellos to store owners and chatting with passersby. Gay businessmen in threepiece suits talk with bare-chested bikers.

There are no plaques, pictures or signs commemorating the lives of Moscone, an unabashed supporter of gay rights, or Milk, one of the country's first openly gay elected officials.

Inside the Elephant Walk bar there is hardly a mention of either man.

Conversation centers around the usual Friday afternoon subjects: weekend plans and parties; the usual good-natured bantering between patrons and bartender. It's as if the shootings happened years ago, not last month.

The grief has dissipated," explains a young "We had our catharsis in mourning, in marching 30,000 strong.

'But they're irreplaceable," he adds. "Harvey (Milk) was our voice and Moscone - he embraced us, he was sympathetic.

Mayor Diane Feinstein has appointed Harry Britt, a gay former minister, to fill the vacant supervisorial post. Britt will now assume the responsibility of speaking for his city's sizable homosexual minority (about 20 percent of the voters in his Castro Street-Upper Market district are gay; estimates gauge the citywide gay populace at 25 percent). Though Britt has downplayed the comparison.

"I don't see much difference in tactics or goals," says gay newspaper publisher Chuck Morris. "Harvey was a street politician and Harry is, too. Harry, in fact, may be more radical.'

Britt's friends do note that he is not as outgoing as Milk was. "Harry isn't as ebullient as Harvey." says one. "He is not an aggressive campaigner and he's much more stand-offish with people.

Jim Foster's thoughts are still consumed with the loss of Milk and Moscone. The balding. moustachioed, longtime gay activwas a founding member of the Society for Individual Rights (SIR), one of California's first gay rights organizations, and is known affectionately among friends as "the grandfather of gay politics. Foster likens his feeling of loss to the way many Americans felt after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. "The Kennedy killing seemed to pass me by. But now I have a real sense of identity with the sorrow of the Kennedy family - the plans that won't be realized, the dreams that were smothered. I feel terribly cheated.

Foster was no friend to Milk. He never supported any of Milk's numerous election bids, a and he ran the campaign of Milk's challenger in 1977. Milk, in turn, on a tape made public following his death. numbered Foster among his political "enemies."

Still, Foster has made a calculated decision to help perpetuate what he candidly calls "the legend of Harvey Milk." Foster and others, who knew firsthand "the vain, petty, temperamental and egocentric" side of Milk, will let his popular image as a selfless fighter for gay rights flourish.

We need a figurehead, a symbol," Foster explains. "Harvey's death may well have accomplished that, and in that sense he could prove a greater service dead than alive.' Attorney Rick Stokes, who ran third to Milk in the

calling himself "a tactician, not a prophet," several supervisor liberated gays who for so long were of his acquaintances say his politics are very similar forced to limit their involvement in politics to working for a heterosexual

The impact of Milk's death was compounded by its proximity to the November defeat of Proposition 6, which would have allowed school districts to fire any employee who practiced or advocated homosexuality.

The defeat of Proposition 6 also had the valuable side effect of uniting the often divergent segments of the gay community.

Before Proposition 6, every time three people met, they became a faction that was fighting another faction," explains Jo Daly, a gay activist and member of the San Francisco Human Rights Commission. "But with Briggs (Sen. John Briggs, sponsor of the measure), people who hadn't been talking to one another for months, or even years, were hugging on street corners. I'd never seen it so

The defeat of Proposition 6, the emergence of homosexuality as a nationally debated issue, the election of Milk and Moscone were all part of what Stokes calls the "inexorable tide forward

"We want absolute equal treatment under the w," explains the 43-year-old Stokes. "That includes such issues as child custody cases and inheritance tax laws.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Sen. Herman Talmadge, hospitalized for treatment of exhaustion and alcohol abuse, could be out of the hospital in less than the four or five weeks originally planned by doctors, a

"His attitude is excellent and he's doing just great," Lisa Gill, a Talmadge press aide, said Tuesday.

The 65-year-old Georgia Democrat entered Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland on Jan. 22 and transferred to the Long Beach Naval Regional Medical Center last Wednesday on the advice of his physician.

The Senate Ethics Committee begins hearings next month into Talmadge's handling of Senate expense funds and campaign contributions. A comittee spokeswoman said the hearings might be delayed because of the senator's illness.

NEW YORK (AP) — The clouds have lifted for weatherman Bob Harris he's been hired as a forecaster for radio station WNEW.

Harris, known locally as "Dr. Bob," was off the air for almost two weeks because it was discovered he had lied when he said he had a doctorate in geophysics

When he was exposed by an anonymous tipster, Harris was fired by WCBS and The New York Times. 'We think he's the best in New York regardless of whether he got a

There will be one slight alteration. Said Karmazin: "We certainly will not be calling him Dr. Bob.'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - Former Gov. George C. Wallace's career as a newspaper columnist may be one of the shortest on record -

Edward H. Sims, editor and publisher of Editor's Copy Syndicate of Orangeburg, S.C. said Tuesday his firm would be distributing a weekly commentary, written by Wallace, to more than 300 newspapers. A sample column was printed this week, Sims said.

But, according to Wallace's agent, Robert Bray of Nashville, "The governor decided yesterday he didn't want to do the column right now so we're going to place it on the back burner for a while.'

But on Tuesday Stevenson said "I have no intention of leading, or creating, or being part of a third party."

But Stevenson also said that if a third party is the only way he can find to get his views across - then that's the forum he will use. "I'm not ruling out anything," he said.

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) - Actress Linda Blair's troubles with authorities in Connecticut may be coming to an end.

A drug charge against the 19-year-old Miss Blair will be dropped if she can prove authorities in Calgary, Alberta, have dismissed a marijuana charge against her, a judge says

Miss Blair's lawyer, Martin Garbus, told Superior Court Judge Scott Melville on Tuesday that the Calgary City Court had dismissed the marijuana charge. Melville continued the hearing until Feb. 13 to give Garbus time to document his statement.

The star of "The Exorcist" was arrested in Calgary in August. At that time, she was on a program here which provided charges of possession of amphetamines would be dropped if she stayed out of trouble.

When Miss Blair was arrested in December 1977 on a Florida fugitive warrant, Connecticut police said they found amphetamines in her purse. Extradition proceedings are pending against her on Florida charges of conspiracy to buy or sell cocaine.

Conflicts of interests denied in school property valuation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The head of the state board that estimates school district property values says last year's study was made under deadline pressure and methods will improve in future studies.

But Ken Graeber, acting director of the School Tax Assessment Practices Board, denied Tuesday that any conflicts of interests resulted from having to rush.

A spokesman for the Ford-Carnegie Property Tax Project said the STAPB used five appraisal firms that evaluate a large percentage of Texas' oil, gas and industrial properties for school boards and other taxing juris-

The tax project is a part of the Intercultural Development Research Foundation.

"Each firm was assigned to properties it had already appraised for tax purposes, which clearly constitutes an exercise in self-auditing," said Craig Foster at a press conference. He said school district protests of STAPB appraisals were heard by review panels whose members had helped determine the values.

Graeber said the appraisal firms were hired because the report had to be finished by Sept. 1, although STAPB was formed just over a year "In the area of, say, the evaluation of oil and gas there is only a limited amount of expertise that is available. It was our feeling that we had to go to the type of people who had the type of expertise," he said.

He said he found the review panels to be unbiased and believed the school superintendents who had appealed the STAPB appraisals felt the same

"We selected them (review panel members) because of their fairness," Graeber said, adding it was essential to use people who were familiar with the board's procedures.

STAPB measurement of school districts' wealth is used by the Legislature and the Texas Education Agency in determining levels of state aid.

The tax project proposes that any school finance bill passed this session require changes in STAPB appraisal and appeal practices.

Liberal congressman elected new chairman of health subcommittee

WASHINGTON (AP) - A liberal California congressman is joining the ranks of health leaders on Capitol Hill who will be deciding what to do about rising medical costs.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., was elected Tuesday as the new chairman of Commerce's health subcommittee, defeating the more con-servative Rep. Richardson Preyer,

The counterpart Senate chair is held by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy,

D-Mass., whose views are not too distant from Waxman's.

However, in an interview after winning the Commerce subcommittee chairmanship, Waxman expressed little hope that national health insurance — one of Kennedy's main goals — would be passed in the next few

"I hesitate to say that national health insurance will pass in this Congress," said Waxman. "It will be a difficult job. However, we can get started on this job."

Tax credit plan draws criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is open to suggestions on ways to fight inflation - perhaps even if it means installing a giant scoreboard on the White House lawn to publicize those companies that hold down prices.

"That's a damned good idea," Alfred E. Kahn, President Carter's chief inflation fighter, told Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., who threw out the suggestion as his House Ways and Means Committee took testimony on the president's proposed wage-insurance tax credit.

Kahn, after hearing some sharp criticism of the plan, told the committee Tuesday that while he considers it an important tool in the anti-inflation fight, "I love life too much to threaten suicide if you don't pass it."

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was. called before the committee today to explain how the tax credit might influence this year's major union-management negotiations.

In other economic developments:

-The Commerce Department reported the nation's trade deficit hit a record $28.45 billion in 1978, which is not good news for the anti-inflation fight. Japan accounted for nearly 41 percent of that red ink, shipping $11.6 billion more in goods to the United States than it bought from America.

-James T. McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said he will recommend a veto of spending bills that violate Carter's budget guidelines.

-G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said next year's scheduled increase in the minimum wage would be inflationary and urged Congress to postpone it. If that effort fails, he added, employers should be allowed to pay teen-agers less than the minimum.

Ullman's tongue-in-cheek suggestion of a White House scoreboard with big stars for cooperative firms reflected what he termed a general resignation among his colleagues to approve the tax credit because "it's all we've got.'

Ullman has never endorsed the idea and in fact has been skeptical of it. Another skeptic, Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., said Tuesday that "a reluctant majority" of the committee favors the credit.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., a committee member, called on coleagues to pass the plan as "the ballast needed to get the inflationary percent. If Congress rejects the wage-insurance tax credit, Kahn said, the Carter administration still will press hard for cooperation with its voluntary wage and price guidelines. But without it, he added, conquering inflation will be much more difficult.

Bill would aid victims of crime

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A Senate subcommittee is considering proposals that would repay innocent victims of crime for any personal injuries

The subcommittee's recommendations will determine whether the plan ever reaches the Senate floor for "My bill is essentially the same that, passed the Senate last session but died in a House committee," Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, told the Senate Jurisprudence Committee Tuesday. "It would allow up to a maximum of $50,000 for claims administered by the Industrial Accident Commission ... It would not cover pain and suffering. It would not cover property losses.'

Clower said the bill in its present form would be financed by a $5 surcharge on moving traffic tickets.

"However, I just got a fiscal esti-mate (from the Legislative Budget Board) today and they think it would raise $16 million the first year. Our estimate is that the maximum costs to Texas would be about $4 million." Clower said. "I'm hoping we can work on it in subcommittee. I am not trying to raise general revenue through this

Owning business ideal solution for women's road to success

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) - Owning a business can be the ideal solution for a woman who wants to start "at the top" or who wants to combine a career and a family, says a woman who has her own personnel consulting and employment service.

"I started my business to make money and to provide myself with a more lucrative alternative than the long climb up the corporate ladder, said Kathleen Bowers, 35, head of K.E. Bowers and Associates in Washington, D.C.

"Certainly, the entrepreneurial route is a high-risk and a lonely venture. But that is where the dollars are," she said. "And the desire to become an entrepreneur necessitates an ego that only wants to start one way, and that is at the top. So be your

She said owning a business could also be the ideal answer to combining a family and a career by offering flexibility, permitting the owner to control the size of her operation.

"Women need every bit of diversification available to them," Ms. Bowers said, speaking at a "Making It in Business" seminar here, spon-sored by the Clairol Co. Scholarship Program and the Business and Professional Women's Foundation.

She said that when she started her own business in 1970 she knew of only one other woman who owned a business. But times have changed.

Ms. Bowers is first vice president of the National Association of Women Business Owners. There are more than 375 members in the Washington, D.C., area where it got its start in 1974, and there are chapters in Houston, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles and other U.S. cities.

The non-profit, tax-exempt organization has a free national referral service and a data bank of more than 30,000 women business owners. In order to identify these women for private and government contractors who wish to do business with them, the organization provides newsletters, research libraries, an internship program, marketing and technical assistance. "When I started my own business I didn't know of one female accountant who operated on her own or female lawyer or research organization or a manufacturing firm or any other type Women today are involved in every type of entrepreneurial endeavor. from manufacturing and marketing to construction and importing, she added. And she expressed the hope that even more women "will become partners in the world of commerce and will achieve parity of business opportunity.

She said a recent survey by the National Assessment for Education Progress had found that only 3 percent of the 17-year-old girls in the United States picked "housewife" as their first career choice.

"This does not mean that they reject marriage or motherhood, rather that they accept and expect more complex economic productivity for ers did," she said.

Ms. Bowers lists these guidelines for a woman starting her own business to consider:

-Adequate capitalization. Go into business with sufficient money to pay your own way until the business supports itself. Be able to pay cash for your inventory until you have esta lished a line of credit with suppliers.

Ms. Bowers says it is also an excellent idea to contact the Small Business Administration. The National Women's Business Ownership campaign started by the SBA in September 1977 set goals to substantially increase loans to women.

"Remember that women" tivity has been crucial to every social unit in history," Ms. Bowers said. "In pre-industrial times, that productivity was commonly expressed through childbearing and food production and preparation. But as we move into the scientific age, women's economic productivity could be the key factor in shaping a world that will increasingly count on the participation of its total membership.

'The forward movement of women is the most interesting game in town. And it's a game every one of us can and must learn to play because, quite frankly, I don't know how they're going to make it without us," she

Recovered alcoholics help fellow attorneys

Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Recovered alcoholic attorneys are manning a 24-hour telephone hotline to help drinking lawyers become sober members of the New Jersey bar.

The hotline is publicized each week through a three-line classified ad in the New Jersey Law Journal that promises free, confidential help to alcoholic judges and attorneys.

"It's a very informal and confidential type of thing," said Dave Evans of the state Division on Alcoholism.

Evans, himself a recovered alcoholic and attorney, said the program was not connected with the New Jersey Bar Association and any contact was kept confidential. "We don't keep records," he said.

The incidence of alcoholism isn't any higher among attorneys than it is in other professions, but lawyers are often hesitant to seek help, he

AMG: An unusual enterprise

By EDGAR MILLER

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) -From an office on the outskirts of town, Spiros Zodhiates runs a multinational enterprise which reaches into 73 countries on five continents.

But while most multinational companies do business with the affluent, Zodhiates looks for the poor, the outcast and the unwanted

For, unlike the heads of most multinationals, Zodhiates expects no monetary return from his far-flung enterprises. On the contrary, it's all outgo - about $4 million a year.

Zodhiates runs AMG International AMG stands for Advancing the Ministries of the Gospel, an evangelical, non-denominational organization. It was changed in 1974 from American Mission to Greece since the organization had long since outgrown its Greek operation.

AMG, started in 1942 by George Georgakis, a Greek in New York, to help the people of Greece and "bring the gospel to Greeks in New York,' today runs orphanages, hospitals, day-care centers and schools. Zodhiates left Greece to join AMG as general secretary in 1946 and became president in 1965. The group moved its headquarters to Chattanooga this year from New Jersey

As a missionary organization, AMG International is a bit unusual. Most churches send their own missionaries to spread the gospel in foreign lands. Zodhiates' group prefers to train residents of the countries to do the work.

"We believe there should be no Americans or foreigners where natives can do the job." Zodhiate said in an interview.

He says that using Americans, AMG's worldwide charity and evangelization work would cost $40 million a year. But it only takes about $50 a month to support an AMG missionary in most places, Zodhiates said. AMG exists mainly on voluntary contributions from private citizens. "We do not seek the sponsorship of any church," Zodhiates, a Baptist, says.

The missionary activities include scripture distribution in local languages, newspaper evangelism, radio evangelism, gospel films, Bible conferences and student training.

Jenny's 'family tree' growing with hopes for roles in movies

By MICHAEL C. O'ROUKE The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD - Jenny, a taffy and white shepherd-Husky owned by Jerry Gerbracht, has eight puppies who are following the family tradition - right up a tree.

Gerbracht, 38, an animal trainer whose dogs work out in parks, wasted no time in teaching the pups some of the tricks made popular by their mother whose tree climbing feats gained her acclaim in Ripley's "Believe It or Not" (Jenny has climbed as high as 50 feet).

Well-known in the San Francisco area, Jenny and Gerbracht have appeared on radio and TV from coast to MUSIC coast. There was magazine and newspaper coverage and Jenny and master were even involved in a dispute

The case evolved when Jenny was spotted high in a tree by a park patrolman. The patrolman warned Gerbracht he'd be cited if Jenny did any more climbing in his park. Feeling Jenny was being deprived of one of her pleasures, Gerbracht took the matter to the authorities.

The results: On June 23, 1975, Jenny was granted the world's first (and only) "Tree Climbing Permit" to a dog by the San Francisco Park Department

Still, the pair remained in arrears financially. Jenny's abilities netted them $50, Gerbracht said. Thinking everything had been accomplished in the Bay Area, Gerbracht packed up his few belongings and Jenny, and set out for Hollywood in search of a role for her in television or the movies

Although times have continued to be lean financially, Gerbracht is quick to point out Jenny's latest accomplishments in Southern Califor-

Foremost among these was, of course, the arrival of Jenny's offspring on Sept. 15. "I was just like an expectant father," Gerbracht

Jimmy, a 6-month-old male German shepherd, Siberian husky rescued from a Los Angeles animal shelter by Gerbracht, is the father of the litter - 5 males and 3 females and he, too, has been a major addition to the Gerbracht clan.

"I taught Jimmy to do most of the tricks that Jenny does in the trees and on playground equipment," Gerbracht said. "He learned fast and is still learning.

"Jimmy and Jenny fell in love at first sight so I bought him from the pound so they could always be togeth-

Kremlin increases code use

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - The Soviet Union greatly increased the secret data sent from its intercontinental ballistic missiles during recent test firings, causing new U.S. concern over the potential for Russian cheating under the proposed Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

"In the latest tests of the SS-18 - the Soviets' largest ICBM - they increased the level of encryption (secret coding) of their telemetry data by a very large factor to four or five times what it was before." a Pentagon official told Copley News Service.

He said this action amounted to the Soviets 'telling us to 'go jump in the lake' with our concerns" over their keeping secret missile test data which is needed by the United States to verify compliance with treaty provisions.

"If we allow them to encrypt (transmit in secret code) any portion of that (ICBM) telemetry we are opening the door wide to wholesale Soviet cheating." the official said. He scoffed at the reported promise by the Soviets that they would not encode any ballistic missile data that might interfere with verification of the treaty. "You can't know with any confidence the number of warheads in a missile if you're not reading all the telemetry," he said They could put 30 warheads into an SS-18 and encode the data from 20 of them and we would think it was only carrying The official also PORTABLE T.V.

When East played the queen of spades at the first trick South refused the trick. South won the next spade

If East then won the first diamond he could set up the spades but could never get back for the spade tricks.

READING THE LEAD Since West would have opened a low spade from 10-x-x he was almost surely leading from 10-x. South surely held two spade tricks with A-J-x.

If East were declarer, he would lead the ten of spades and duck the first trick. East should make the same play on defense, playing the nine of spades at the first trick.

South takes the jack of spades and leads diamonds. West hops right up and has another spade to lead. East sets up his suit and gets in with the ace of diamonds to defeat the contract with the rest of the spades.

Just how pure is pure research in the U.S.A. today?

By CLIFF SMITH Copley News Service

It is a popular notion that science is a noble haven for wholly altruistic individuals seeking careers of dedication free of the cutthroat competition, and devious human relations deemed necessary to succeed in other fields.

Thus, many will be shocked by an article in a slick new popular science magazine, Omni, proposing that the careers of two recent Nobel Prize winners - Dr. Roger Guillemin of the Salk Institute, La Jolla, Calif., and Dr. Andrew Schally of the Veterans Administration Hospital in New Orleans - "have been models of ... fear, jealousy and character assassination," as well as scientific excellence. "If their 21-year struggle against their competitors and each other is a general reflection of scientific life, then send your kid to art school," suggests writer William K. Stuckey in the magazine's January issue. 'Science is for piranhas.'

The article thrusts into the public spotlight the existence of a long, bitter struggle between Guillemin and Schally for supremacy in the research efforts, which consumed discovery and characterization of brain hormones.

Guillemin and Schally were cowinners of the 1977 Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine for this

The history of their intense competition was explored last spring in a three-part article by reporter Nicholas Wade in Science, a journal widely read by scientists but not laymen.

Throughout both articles is the implication that the rivals may have been motivated in their independent millions of tax dollars, by the prospect of a Nobel award and other self-aggrandizements rather than by magnanimous goals.

Wade reported that Guillemin denied that the prize was even a concern and that the scientist claimed to be even "puzzled" by the award because there was "nothing conceptually revolutionary"- about his and Schally's work.

Indeed, on the morning Guillemin was informed of the award in the fall of 1977, he met affably with news media and expressed "surprise" bordering on astonishment at being named for the prize.

Schally admitted to Wade that the prize had become "a dream" for him, but said he was "not obsessed" by it as a goal.

Stuckey, assessing the rivalry between the researchers, suggests that the Polish-born Schally had emerged as a "petty Pole." bluntly frank about his dislike for Frenchborn Guillemin and his eagerness to compete aggressively with him across laboratory benches.

Stuckey also suggests that Guillemin has prevailed through the conflict as "the Prince of Modesty" and a Talleyrand. (Prince Charles Maurice de Talleyrand, a superb French diplomat of the late 18th and early 19th centuries noted for his charm, adroit political survival, treacherousness and venality.)

Guillemin, informed through an intermediary of the Omni article and provided with an advance copy to read, relayed back that be had "no comment," declining an interview

RENO, Nevada - Some 30 years have passed since the late entrepreneur Bill Harrah purchased a pair of 1911 automobiles - a Model T Ford and a Maxwell Runabout - and began a most amazing, albeit expensive, hobby. A hobby that has been enjoyed by so many for so long.

Harrah's search and, later, that of several of his restorers and craftsmen would uncover a great number of the 5,000 car models which had been built since man began to build horseless carriages.

Beautifully finished and appointed through the dexterity of deeply interested designers and constructors. the huge collection was first introduced to the public in 1962 and now the huge complex which has housed it is not big enough.

Eventually, it will have a new permanent home within a structure to be known as Harrah's World. Included in the new complex will be restaurants, a casino, gift shops, amusement facilities for children, a hotel and a theater-restaurant.

Harrah's World will be built next to Interstate 80 on a plateau overlooking the Truckee River and the city of Reno

Nowhere else can one see more clearly man's technological advancement, year-by-year, with the wonderful automobile. The collection contains 1,300 automobiles with more than 1,100 of them on display. Those on view are either in fine original needed to complete the collection as Harrah's wants it, reports Jim Edwards, Harrah's services supervisor. However, some of these may no longer exist since many of the marques were one-of-a-kind experimental vehicles or promotional models that never got on the road.

The 10-acre complex, three miles from downtown Reno. actually has 13 structures. Within this "Little Detroit" are administrative offices, visitors' lobby, a saloon, restoration facilities, large parts storeroom, research library and the three large buildings with cars, parked side-byside, as if they were awaiting an owner to take them back on the high-

An owner of a prominent English automotive museum once admonished us when we described Harrah's collection as a museum. We were informed that an automotive museum specializes in featured models and that Harrah's was a conglomeration of many models. He did admit, however, that he would like one of Harrah's 20 Duesenbergs to round out his place.

'A museum is static ... happens," replied Eards. "We conduct auctions, ship our cars to special showings for concours and tours.

Granlund has reported health problems since his indictment in September along with two former Florida Power executives and four other oilmen.

One defendant, former Florida Power President Angel Perez, is expected to plead guilty to a single conspiracy charge at a hearing Fri-

Perez, Granlund and the other five are accused of scheming to defraud Florida Power by arranging to have oil bought and sold several times before it reached the utility with the price increasing each time.

Prosecutors contended the deals may have cost Florida Power customers as much as $8.5 million in overcharges.

Besides Perez and Granlund the others indicted were: Richard Raymond, 63, retired vice president of the St. Petersburg-based utility, and Walter Ballard, 56, a Houston oil man now living in Fort Myers, Fla.

Three other Houston oilmen also were charged: James B. Clark, president of Larcon Petroleum Corp.; Ronald Pruitt, 36, a Houston-based attorney and part owner of Larcon Petroleum Inc.; and John L. Burns, 50, a former executive with the Charter International Oil Corp.

All but Perez were named in 12 counts of conspiracy, mail fraud and fraud by wire. The charges carry a maximum penalty of 60 years in jail.

Motorists face big price boost if controls lifted

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The price of gasoline will increase 9 cents a gallon by the end of 1980 under price controls and will climb 12.8 cents if controls are removed, the Department of Energy said Tuesday.

The department's forecast was the most pessimistic view yet offered by Washington about the cost of gasoline in the immediate future.

The report was largely prepared before it became evident that oil exports from Iran would be shut down indefinitely because of that nation's political turmoil. World oil supplies are very tight now, and the squeeze could drive up gasoline prices beyond the levels predicted by the depart-

The department said prices will rise because crude oil is more expensive and because federal regulations call for a drastic reduction in the lead content of gasoline. It costs more to make gasoline without lead, which is used to reduce engine knock.

Higher costs can be passed to consumers under the current system of

The Department of Energy said the average price of all grades of gasoline will climb 9 cents a gallon. It said gasoline with lead will rise 8.6 cents a gallon, while the unleaded version used in late-model cars will cost an additional 9.5 cents a gallon.

Adjustment bill in mill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, introduced a bill today she said would stop gas companies and electric utilities from automatically charging Texas consumers for fuel adjustment charges.

"Utilities faced with legitimate increased fuel prices would be required to renegotiate their rate contracts to recover higher costs," she said in a statement. "All such increases would have to be approved by the Public Utilities Commission and other rate- CROCKETT approving bodies."

She said the automatic fuel adjustment charges "have simply handed utilities a blank check.'

Under the Denton bill, any utility failing to comply with the provisions of the proposed legislation would be required to rebate all collected fuel adjustment charges to its customers.

Extender potentials

Amoco Production Co. No. 44-A Sealy-Smith Foundation, a re-entry project 1/2 mile east of the discovery well of the Darmer, Northeast (Pennsylvanian) field of Winkler County, has been completed.

From the Pennsylvanian, it potential for a daily flow of 15 barrels of 50-gravity oil and no water, through a 14/64-inch choke and perforations from 8,210 to 8,384 feet, from 8,504 to 8,576 feet and from 8,684 to 8,844

The upper set was acidized with 3,000 gallons, the middle set with 4,000 and the lower set with 6,750 gallons. The middle zone was fractured with 38,000 gallons, and the lower set with 30,000 gallons.

The gas-oil ratio is 16,533-1. Total depth is 12,273 feet and 5.5inch casing is set at 8,876 feet. The plugged back depth is 8,490 feet.

MGF involved in acquisition

DENVER, COLO. - Beaver Mesa Exploration Co., a Denver-based oil and gas company, and MGF Oil Corp., a Midland-based oil and gas company, announced they have signed a letter of intent expressing their agreement in principle to a transaction pursuant to which MGF will acquire all of the stock of Beaver

The parties intend to enter a definitive agreement on or about Feb. 23. Under the letter intent, MGF will acquire approximately 40 percent of Beaver Mesa's stock for cash from certain principals of Beaver Mesa, including Robert G. Boekel, president and chairman of the board, and other directors. The remaining shareholders of Beaver Mesa will receive one share of MGF common stock for approximately each 5.6 shares of Beaver Mesa stock.

For purposes of the transaction, Beaver Mesa stock is valued at $2.27 per share and MGF stock is valued at $12.75 per share. Based on the $2.27 per share value, the total value of the transaction will be approximately $14,600. The parties hope to consummate all of the transactions by Thus, according to the department, a typical American family will spend an additional $24 a year for gasoline.

The department's estimates were included in an environmental impact statement dealing with the removal of controls from motor gasoline. Carter administration officials believe controls should be lifted to stimulate new investment in gasoline producing fa-

However, the administration will not send a decontrol proposal to Congress while the Iranian situation is uncertain.

Removal of controls would be politically unpalatable to a Congress already concerned about inflation and apprehensive about further increases in the price of foreign oil. If controls were lifted, the average price of gasoline would climb by 12.8 cents a gallon, the department predicted. An average America family would then pay an additional $27 a vear for gasoline. The impact on individual states was not calculated by the department. Unleaded gasoline, already in tight supply, could become even more expensive if a "significant shortage" develops, the department warned. It said unleaded gasoline now costs about four cents a gallon more than ordinary fuel. The gap could rise to six cents under continued regulation, and more than 10 cents if stations begin running out of unleaded fuel. the deparment said.

Officials said they fear that when the price gap grows large enough, motorists whose cars require unlead ed gasolie will instead fill their car tanks with leaded fuel. If they do, the newer cars' catalytic converters will be ruined, and air pollution will in-

The Environmental Protection Agency has said it expects such consumers to switch to leaded fuel when the price of gasoline exceeds 70 cents or 80 cents a gallon as compared to 69 cents or 79 cents. They refer to the 70-80 cent price as a "psychological barrier.

EPA officials have expressed concern that some consumers are already tampering with fuel tanks, widening the entry holes for the nozzles of leaded fuel pumps.

Producers face task

HOUSTON (AP) - The chairman of the nationwide Natural Gas Supply Committee said Tuesday producers may be facing the most complex legislative and regulatory environment ever placed on an industry.

E. L. Williamson, New Orleans, made the observation as about 100 gas executives began a two-day meeting to study the Natural Gas Policy Act of Williamson, president of the Louisiana Land & Exploration Co., said 1978 was the busiest and the most difficult in the history of the committee. "Congress wrestled with the almost impossible task of reconciling the radically different approaches to gas pricing adopted in 1977 by the House and Senate," he said.

"At the same time, honest and sharp differences of opinion arose among gas producers as to the wisdom of acquiescing in or opposing the passage of a marginal bill.' He said the industry now "must deal with the awesome task of fulfilling our responsibility as gas producers within the confines of perhaps the most complex legislative and regulatory environment any industry has been called upon to face.

Book kicks off storm over ethics in White House

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld can't understand what the flap over the book is all Betty Ford called it a "betrayal." Ron Nessen, former White House press secretary, called it "tasteless and trashy.

First lady Rosalynn Carter called it "unacceptable" for White House staffers to write about the private lives of first families. Mrs. Weidenfeld did just that. And she finds herself the center of a storm over ethics.

As press secretary to former first lady Betty Ford, Mrs. Weidenfeld kept a diary about her experiences in the White House. Her subsequent, recently published book, "The First Lady's Lady," offers a glimpse of power struggles within the White

It also reveals details of the Ford family's private life. And these tidbits months.

"This accusation that I've written a kiss-and-tell book bewilders me," she said as she curled up on the chocolate-colored corduroy sofa in her Georgetown living room. "Anecdotes taken in context show how life works. Taken out of context, it's gossip be-cause they show no insight. "I didn't understand it. I still don't understand it. Why has there been such commotion?"

The commotion - in columns, editorials, television news shows and cocktail party conversations - focuses on whether she betrayed confidences of the Ford family when she wrote that:

-Daughter Susan was dating a married man while she was living in the White House and that her mother

-Mrs. Weidenfeld learned that the Ford's son Jack planned to smoke marijuana and advised him to "get stoned" before he went to a rock have kept tongues wagging for concert rather than during the concert itself where he might be seen.

-Son Steve sneaked a date out of the Queen's Bedroom one morning as an ABC crew waited in the hall to begin a televised tour of the White House.

Q. Did you betray any confidences?

A. "No, not at all. It's a very complimentary book because it's a warm and loving look at the family.'

As Mrs. Weidenfeld tells it, she has written a book about what happens to ordinary folks when they get in posi-tions of power. "It helps you under-stand all administrations," she said. 'And administrations aren't that different. There's a White House mentality. It's about how people grow and change...how they have to grow up on stage which is a very tough thing to

Asked why she chose to describe a tipsy Steve Ford taking a girl he met that night "on a weaving tour of the White House" before he and the young woman spent the rest of the night together in the Queen's Bedroom, Mrs. Weidenfeld said, "Now that's a telling story.

"We had lost the election. People in the White House were throwing caution to the wind. It was his home. Most people don't have a camera crew outside their bedroom door. What man at 21 wouldn't do the same thing?'

Mrs. Weidenfeld says the public has conflicting feelings about children who grow up in the White House. "They want them to be regular kids, but they don't want them to be. I portrayed them as real.'

By all reports, Mrs. Ford hasn't exactly warmed to the portrayal.

'She called after the stories came out," Mrs. Weidenfeld said. "She hadn't read the book yet, but she wasn't very happy. I guess you could say our relationship is somewhat Publicly, Mrs. Ford has said the book "hurt the children terribly. They had a lot of confidence in Sheila. They thought of her as a friend.... They really felt they had confided in her, and it was a betrayal on her part."

Mrs. Weidenfeld, a former TV producer, bristles at suggestions that she takes credit in the book for "producing" Mrs. Ford's candid personality.

"Mrs. Ford was candid and frank before she came to the White House,' Mrs. Weidenfeld said. "I just provided the atmosphere to bring out her real personality. You want the way they really are to come across to the

"The White House puts people in an unnatural situation. Who else is followed by several hundred reporters wherever they go? I was trying to make her more relaxed. It wasn't like some Madison Avenue people selling cereal. The bitter feuds and turf battles Mrs. Weidenfeld described between those who work in the White House West Wing which houses the president's staff, and those in the East Wing who work for the first lady, exist in all administrations, she said:

And it's hard to get the job done without that support. It's hard to be supportive of what's going on in the West Wing if you don't know.'

Mrs. Weidenfeld says she has no regrets about her book.

"I'm not sorry," she said. "It doesn't hurt them at all. The book isn't unfair. The stories about it are. I think it's the most flattering picture that will ever be done of the Ford family because that's the way they

Dear Dr. Solomon: Just what exactly are molds thaz appear on breads end other foods? Are they harmful? - Francis D.

Dear Francis: Molds are produced by minute organisms called fungi which are all over the placein the air, in water, on the ground. They thrive in warm and fairly humid surroundings. Molds are usually harmless-for instance, those you eat if you happen to like Roquefort cheese. However, I'm not suggesting that you eat any old mold you come across. Moldy spots that don't have astronomical certification can be simply cut off, leaving a good safety margin-just to be sure.

Incidentally, the Roquefort mold is an interesting one. It is called Penicillium Roqueforti and is grown in bread for several weeks, after which the bread is ground up and sprinkled over the cheese. Then comes a period of further aging and moldy growth.

Dear Dr. Solomon: The Netional Research Council's committee on nutritional misinformation has taken the position that selenium supplements are unnecessary since the average daily intake is roughly 150 micrograms. While it is perfectly true that an average diet contains this amount, millions of people in the United States eat diets far below average end, in the opinions of such experts as Milton Scott, Ph.D., of Cornell University, and Gerhard Schrauzer, Ph.D., of the University of California at San Diego, scores of millions of people are probably receiving suboptimum amounts of this essential trace element

Like the trace element iodine, selenium is nonuniformly distributed in the soil, which tends to conribute to uneven consumption. There are a number of other factors that tend to contribute to selenium deficiencies:

1-Increased amount of sulfates in the soil. Over the last few decades, billions of tons of sulfur dioxide have spewed into the atmosphere as a result of the combustion of fossil fuels. This sulfur ultimately finds its way in to the soil as sulfates and these sulfates inhibit the uptake of selenium by plants.

Sulfur-containing fertilizers have the same effect. 2—Refining processes result in significant losses of selenium. For example, the amount in white flour is roughly half that of the whole wheat berry. 3-Selenium is a volatile nutrient and considerable amounts are lost in cooking food: The major point I want to make, however, is that we cannot assume that simply because an everage diet contains adequate anounts of a nutrient that deficiencies do not exist. If this were true, there would be no deficiencies of vitamin A, vitamin C or calcium. Yet anyone who has reviewed either the Ten-State nutritional studies or the 1965 USDA nutritional study will realize that deficiencies of these nutrients are very widespread

The protective attributes of selenium are supported by literally dozens of epidemiological clinical studies. However, there has never been a verified case of anyone dying of selenosis, (overdose of selenium) even in places like South-Dakota where natural levels of selenium are extremly high.-Herb Boynton, La Jolla, Calif.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Are there any children who should not receive the measles vaccine?-Mrs. A.T. Dear Mrs. A.T.: Yes. Children with severe chronic disorders such as leukemia, generalized cancer, tuberculosis convulsive disorders, or marked allergy to eggs should receive measles vaccine only upon advice of a physician familiar with their health problems. Children with high fever should have vaccination postponed until temperature is normal and there is no other evidence of illness. Women who are known to be pregnant or who might be pregnant should not receive the vaccine.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Heavy rains and snow fell on Southern California today, touching off mudslides, knocking out power and leaving hundreds of motorists stranded.

And weathermen were predicting 2 more feet of snow would fall in the mountains and another inch of rain would hit the cities before it all ends.

The California Highway Patrol said about 400 motorists on Interstate 5 called the Grapevine - were forced to abandon their cars and trucks and take refuge in a Red Cross shelter at Castaic Union High School, about 60 miles northwest of Bos Angeles. Another 100 were at the Cajon School, about 35 miles south of Bakersfield.

Heavy snow snapped power lines at the school and the highway patrol had to bring in blankets, food and water. The Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu was blocked by mudslides, despite sandbagging. Two small slides also occurred on Mandeville Canyon Road, but no damage was reported, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department said.

The Antelope Valley, the northern edge of Los Angeles County, was again blanketed with up to five inches of snow, the area's second major snow storm of the year.

The heaviest rain report came from Long Beach, where one inch fell during a 20-minute cloudburst, pushing the storm total there to 3.92 inches. In San Diego, a brief, furious downpour following a constant day of drizzle triggered some flooding, said police officer David Hadley. Rain and high winds in the San Fernando Valley temporarily knocked out power for about 3,000

Technology part of China pact

By EVANS WITT

WASHINGTON (AP) - China's vice premier says his country needs help from the United States to replace a lost generation of knowledge and President Carter says he is prepared

In an agreement being signed today with Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, Carter promises that the United States will share at least part of the vast quantity of American technology and scientific knowledge with China.

"We lost a whole generation as regards education, including science and technology," Teng said in an interview with Time Magazine published earlier this week. "Normalization of relations will enable us to obtain much scientific and technological know-how.

The agreement on science and technology is potentially the most significant of the three being signed in afternoon ceremonies as Carter and Teng meet to close out the Washington leg of the Chinese leader's visit to the United States. Fang I, minister in charge of the State Scientific and Technological Commission, came with Teng to Washington and has been meeting with Carter science adviser Frank Press to work on the details of technological cooperation.

Two other agreements being signed today deal with cultural exchanges and the establishment of consular offices, administration sources say.

Together, the three agreements are small, formal steps aimed at broadening and firming the new relationship between China and the United States. These are general agreements, sources said, with the details left to be worked out through less formal avenues

Other agreements also may be finalized before the end of the Teng visit, but there was little indication that formal pacts would be reached in the critical area of trade and business relationships.

Carter and Teng did discuss those topics during two hours of talks Tues-

Further disussions on trade will take place during visits to China later this year by Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps.

Teng has committed his government to a rapid modernization of China, partially through acquiring the advanced technology and equipment of the industrialized non-communist world and partially through training Chinese in these advanced areas. Such training and related research were severely restricted during some of upheavals in the past decade in China.

A draft of the science-technology agreement obtained by The Associated Press calls for cooperation in 'agriculture, energy, space, health, environmental, earth sciences, engineering" and other unspecified areas between the two countries.

To a large degree, the formal agreement and two letters between Fang and Press merely gives a structure and permanence to exchange agreements worked out between the United States and China last fall, even before Carter announced in December that formal diplomatic relations would be established.

The formal science-technology agreement is quite general, pledging both countries to cooperation and setting up a Joint Commission on Scientific and Technological Cooperation to oversee the work.

But administration sources say the actual cooperation will concentrate on three areas: space, student exchanges and agricultural research.

—Space: The United States agrees to continue an informal pact reached last fall to help the Chinese set up a domestic satellite communications system. Rather than simply buy satellites made to U.S. specifications, Chinese officials have now indicated they will ask an American manufacturer to make a satellite to their specifications, sources said. -Exchanges: The formal agreement pledges continuation of a program set up last year which has already brought the first Chinese students here and under which 700 Chinese students are expected here this year and about 60 American students are expected to go to China.

A similar student exchange program will be undertaken in the arts and humanities under the cultural agreement, said Joseph Duffey, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

-Agriculture: Information on animal care, biological control of insect pests and plant genetics are prime areas for the cooperation in the agricultural area. A U.S. group led by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dale Hathaway is expected to go to China in March to work out further
