

Carter seeks tax breaks for wage compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — With fresh and welcome support from members of a key committee, the administration is sticking with a controversial plan to use tax cuts to shelter workers from inflation if they comply with wage guidelines.

"We are going to make a real effort to pass this program," Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal vowed Monday before the House Ways and Means Committee, which must go along if the plan is to emerge from Congress.

"It's very high on our list of priorities," he said.

Blumenthal's testimony came while an agency of Congress raised doubts whether the administration will be able to meet either of its announced goals for containing inflation and unemployment in 1979.

During almost five hours of Blumenthal's testimony, none of the 37 members of the Ways and Means Committee flatly rejected the novel "wage insurance" plan, although several were skeptical.

"It's like using a Band-Aid on a broken arm," said Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., reflecting the criticism that has been heard since Carter first mentioned the proposal last October.

But five members of the panel volunteered to support the plan.

"I generally support this legislation," said Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., noting public outrage over inflation. "This is a time for creativity."

Also indicating approval were California Democrats Fortney Stark and James Carman and New York Republicans Charles Rangel and Tom Downey.

President Carter's chief economic adviser, Charles L. Schultze, and Alfred E. Kahn, the administration's chief inflation fighter, arranged to testify on the tax credit today.

Meanwhile, the congressional Joint Economic Committee was to hear Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve today for his assessment of the economy.

The Congressional Budget Office issued a report Monday that was more gloomy about the economy's prospects than the administration's forecast.

The CBO foresees an inflation rate of 7 percent to 9 percent in 1979, compared to the 7.5 percent projected by the administration. Inflation averaged 9 percent in 1978.

The CBO also foresees unemployment ranging between 6.2 percent and 7.2 percent; the administration projects a 6.2 percent rate.

The congressional agency said the economy is likely to go into a mild slump during the last half of the year. This would make it difficult for Carter to meet his goal of holding the federal deficit to about $29 billion.

A downturn in the economy would mean fewer jobs, a drop in tax collections and higher government spending for unemployment compensation, food stamps and welfare.

Blumenthal said the Carter administration has no alternative plan to check wage inflation if Congress rejects the president's proposed "wage insurance" tax credit.

"We'll just have to use the voluntary kind of approach," the treasury secretary said.

Under the plan, qualified workers whose "employee groups" accept pay raises averaging 7 percent or less this year would get a tax cut if inflation this year exceeds 7 percent.

For example, a $15,000 worker who meets the qualifications would get a $75 tax credit if inflation matches the 7.5 percent forecast by Blumenthal. Should inflation go to 10 percent — the maximum covered by the program — the $15,000 earner would get a $450 credit.

The proposal aims to ensure that those workers who follow Carter's voluntary 7 percent wage-increase guideline are not hurt if inflation exceeds expectations.

"Questions inevitably arise about a genuinely new idea ... but it is important at the outset to stress that no other instrument has been suggested that could so effectively encourage voluntary wage restraint," Blumenthal said.

The administration does not pretend the tax credit assures success of the anti-inflation fight, he said, "but it plays an important and unique role in that effort."

Carter, Teng strengthen ties

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Vice Premier Teng Hsiang-ping, putting aside the vexing problem of dealing with the Soviet Union, are shifting their attention to strengthening Sino-American bonds.

The two leaders, meeting in the White House today for the third time in two days, were taking up ways to build U.S.-China trade and expand cultural and scientific exchanges, the White House announced.

Teng later faced a series of meetings on Capitol Hill and questions about China's policy toward Taiwan. The administration hoped his responses would help blunt the criticism it has drawn over the decision to normalize relations with Peking.

Details of Monday's talks at the White House were sparse.

It was clear, however, that the Soviet Union was discussed. And sources indicated the administration was relieved the emphasis of the talks was shifting to bilateral matters.

Teng said he and Carter reached "an understanding" about Soviet matters at a morning meeting, but did not say whether Carter agreed with his hardline views.

The first fruit of the talks was an exchange of invitations. Carter was invited to Peking and Chinese Premier Hua Kuo-feng was invited to Washington. Both accepted, although no dates were set.

On the other hand, the two sides decided not to issue a joint communique, or statement of shared views, after Teng leaves Washington Thursday for Atlanta, Houston and Seattle.

The differences between Teng and Carter over policy toward the Soviets were only thinly veiled in their public statements Monday, as Carter welcomed Teng with an honor guard, a state dinner and an entertainment gala at the Kennedy Center.

In his toast at the state dinner, Teng said, "We view our bilateral relations in the context of the overall international situation."

And he reminded Carter that the United States and China had only recently pledged themselves to fight against any effort to establish "hegemony" in Asia. "Hegemony" is the word the Chinese use to describe Soviet aspirations.

Teng's views were not at all veiled in an interview he gave to Time magazine and published Monday.

He called the Soviet Union "the true hotbed of war." In a broad reference to Europe, Japan, China and the United States, he said, "If we really want to curb the polar bear, the only realistic thing for us is to unite."

The American sources, who asked not to be identified, said Teng was not proposing any formal alliance in his private conversations with Carter. And they made no secret of the fact they would have preferred him to tone down his anti-Soviet rhetoric.

The officials favor focusing the talks on other issues. "We've had one day of talks. I wouldn't say there's anything we ought to pick out and comment on," Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Monday night.

Carter, in his toast to Teng, indicated the administration is sticking to its policy of even-handedness in dealing with Moscow and Peking.

He did not use the word "hegemony." Instead, his speech focused on the American "long-term commitment to a world of diverse and independent nations," the administration's description of its policy.

And he emphasized American willingness to help in Teng's program of modernizing China through trade, credit and scientific and academic exchanges.

The administration has said it will not sell China arms or allow weapons manufactured in Europe with American components to be sold to the Chinese. But the administration says it is up to the NATO allies to decide whether to sell their own weapons to China, as France and Great Britain are considering.

The Soviets have reacted warily to the U.S.-China normalization. State Department officials have said they think that wariness might have contributed to the delay in a SALT II treaty.

U.S. orders dependents out of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The U.S. Embassy today ordered the evacuation from Iran of all dependents of U.S. government employees and again urged all non-essential American citizens to get out of the country following attacks on three Americans.

The order came as supporters of Ayatullah Ruhollah Khomeini took to the streets as the exiled Shiite Muslim opposition leader continued delaying his return.

The embassy ordered all U.S. government dependents "to depart Iran temporarily at the earliest feasible date." It said all dependents of American citizens should depart the country temporarily along with non-essential Americans employed here.

This is the first time the U.S. government has actually ordered anyone out of Iran. Previous announcements have encouraged people without important business to leave.

There are fewer than 10,000 Americans left in Iran, down from a peak of 45,000 when the unrest here started a year ago. Those remaining include about 900 members of a military advisory group, government employees and employees in the petroleum and aircraft industries.

Three U.S. military planes arrived here today to evacuate another 202 Americans, mostly civilians.

The order was issued after a shooting attack on an American Air Force major Sunday night in Tehran and the beating of U.S. Consul David C. McGaffey and an American employee of Bell Helicopter International in the central Iranian city of Isfahan on Monday afternoon.

U.S. Consulate sources in Isfahan said the trouble there began about 4 p.m. Monday with an altercation between the Bell Helicopter employee and an Iranian taxi driver near the city's Khoroush Hotel. The sources said a shot was fired during the dispute and the taxi driver had been hospitalized with a facial wound.

Details on the attack on McGaffey were not immediately available.

Iran's airports were supposed to be open today, but only one commercial plane was reported to have landed. Troops turned outgoing passengers away, and Ayatullah Ruhollah Khomeini continued to delay his return from exile.

Mobs of Khomeini's supporters hit the streets of Tehran again, attacking a police officer, setting fire to a brewery and clashing with security forces at least twice. Peaceful demonstrations were reported in the towns of Sanjan and Rezaieh.

Military authorities announced that the airports would reopen today after being closed for six days to delay Khomeini's return. Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar told reporters Monday the Tehran airport would be open in a few hours.

In Paris, a spokesman for Khomeini said the 78-year-old Shiite Muslim leader would not leave for Iran Tuesday night because Air France,

Pope tells peasants church supports 'proper' property expropriation

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II told 250,000 impoverished peasants in southern Mexico that the Roman Catholic Church defends the right to private property, but it is not opposed to expropriation "if it is done in the proper manner."

Scolding "powerful classes who sometimes tend unproductive lands that hide the bread that so many families lack," the pope on Monday told an emotional throng of Indians at a village in mountainous Oaxaca state:

"It is not just, it is not human, it is not Christian that certain situations that are clearly unjust should continue. There must be action soon and profound ...urgent reforms."

"The measures to be taken should be adequate. The church defends the legitimate right to private property, but it teaches with no less clarity that hovering over private property is a social mortgage; God-given wealth must serve the general good, and if the common good demands it, there can be no fear of expropriation if it is done in the proper manner."

ism on the part of farm workers while action that is better coordinated and has solidarity could serve not a little good," he said. "Think about that, beloved children."

Today, the fourth day of the pope's visit to Mexico to open the third decennial conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Latin America, he flies to Guadaluajara. He returns to Mexico City tonight and leaves for Rome Wednesday.

Judge grants extra time to amend bond petition

ODESSA — Ector County residents Monday were given 15 days to amend the pleadings in their contest of the $21.6 million Ector County Independent School District bond election held December 1978.

Judge R.L. McKim of the 161st District Court presided Monday over a six-hour hearing during which he finally granted the additional time to allow the contestors to be more specific in two areas of their pleadings.

The school district then will have 15 days to prepare its response to the amended pleadings.

One of the areas dealt with school district employees who allegedly voted absentee but who were in the county on the day of the election. The second area concerned alleged discrepancies between the number of votes reported and the number of voters signed in as having voted.

McKim pointed out that it was not likely the act of voting absentee and then not being absent would invalidate the vote, even though it could put a voter in jeopardy of prosecution for a Class A misdemeanor.

McKim also said a discrepancy between signed in voters and number of ballots cast would have to be significant, and not merely accidental variance due to clerical errors, to constitute grounds for contest.

Contestors served three petitions on the ECISD Board of Trustees and school administration officials earlier this month. The petitions were considered in Monday's combined hearing along with the school district's response and plea of abatement.

The hearing was complicated by the contestors not having retained legal counsel, with each person representing himself in court. Most of the contentions came from several members of the group seated at the counsel's table. Included in that group were Robert Frias, Mrs. Lou Triplett, Billie Jean Stewart, Evelyn Hershey, Marjorie Lindsey, Vergie Martin and Van Canfield.

McKim repeatedly told the contestors that while they had a right to represent themselves in court, only

Pecan trees to be sold through the weekend

Midlanders will get a second chance to beautify West Texas, save money and support the Chamber of Commerce Visual Improvement Committee this weekend.

The pecan tree sale sponsored by the Chamber's VIP Committee and The Reporter-Telegram has been extended to this weekend.

Some 3,000 trees were sold last Saturday and Sunday, Gordon Knox, committee chairman, said.

"We figured that was about three minutes for the hours we were open," he noted.

The hours for the sale have been expanded this weekend. Trees will be for sale on the parking lot at Illinois Avenue and Baird Street, across from The Reporter-Telegram building from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Each 8- to 10-foot tree is $9.75, Knox said.

Buyers may choose from the Stuart or Wichita varieties, the types recommended for Midland's soil.

Although the Lee High School Bandoliers, who will be conducting the sale, can accept checks, no credit cards may be used to purchase the trees, Knox said.

This is the second year for the community enhancement project, Knox noted. Last year the sale extended into Monday and Tuesday after the first weekend, but that was impossible this year, he said, so a second weekend of tree-selling was scheduled.

Each tree is grafted onto 4-year-old root systems, he noted, which give the trees a good chance for survival.

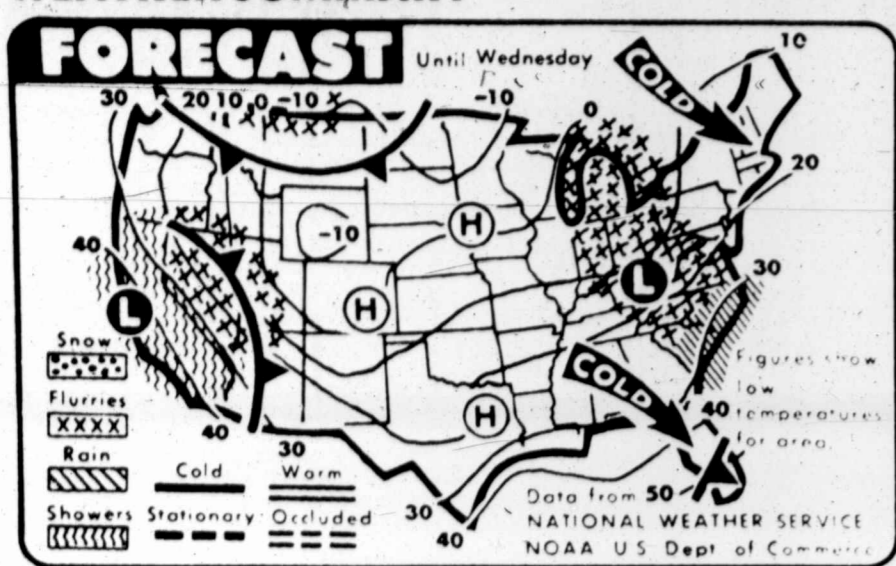

The trees must be planted during cold weather and watered once a week for several years, Knox said.

Bare roots must be kept in a warm place until planted, he warned, and the trees should be planted as soon as possible after purchase.

Patience is the key word in growing the pecan trees.

"People give up too fast," said Knox, noting care should be continued even if the tree does not leaf out the first year. Given proper care, it should show progress the next year, he said.

Governor may welcome Teng to state

By SUSAN STOLER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he is considering giving Chinese Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping a personal welcome to Texas when the foreign official arrives Friday in Houston.

"We're talking about that right now," Clements said Monday. "The State Department is asking if I would go to Houston and welcome him (Teng) that morning."

The governor told reporters he has no sympathy with planned protests of Teng's visit.

"He is our guest in Texas and our hospitality will be as usual," Clements said. "We will turn out in a normal show of Texas hospitality."

Some 1,500 attended a Sunday rally in Houston to support Taiwan and protest United States recognition of China. Rally speakers urged the crowd to demonstrate against Teng Friday and Saturday.

"Whether we agree with him politically, philosophically or whether we like chop suey or not is beside the point," the governor said.

Teng probably is interested in Texas-based petroleum technology, Clements said.

"It's in our interest, and certainly in China's interest, to develop petroleum reserves over there," said Clements, who established SEDCO, an international oil drilling corporation.

Additional oil supplies would create favorable market conditions and lower prices for gasoline and other petroleum products, he explained. Texas could benefit from recently discovered Chinese oil because of the state's concentration of petroleum technology, he added.

The governor talked about Teng's visit after signing documents recognizing the Future Farmers of America, industrial arts and proclaiming March 5-9 Texas Public School Week.

dorsed invasion of Cambodia, China's ally, by Vietnam was meant to show that the Soviets would not be intimidated by the ties between the United States and China.

The administration has decided its best course is to try to improve relations with both countries and that openly "playing the China card" against the Soviets will only provoke them into dangerous reactions.

To the Chinese, however, the Soviet threat is extremely dangerous. The Soviets, with 43 divisions along the Chinese border, have spoken in the past of launching a pre-emptive strike against the Chinese.

The history of enmity and mistrust between the two nations is hundreds of years old. In recent years, China's claim to hundreds of square miles of Soviet territory has widened the schism, as has its rivalry for leadership of the world's Marxist movement.

Connally says it's 'last bid'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Texas governor John B. Connally says the upcoming presidential election will be his last shot at becoming the nation's chief executive.

Connally, a candidate for the Republican nomination also says that another one-time Democrat, Ronald Reagan, is the man to beat.

He told a news conference here Monday that he is bidding for top spot and won't accept anything less.

"I don't want to be vice president," he said. "I'll either be successful this year or this will be my last hurrah."

Both Reagan and Connally switched to the Republican Party after a period as Democrats.

Connally said he won't show up in all of the state presidential primaries.

A campaign for nomination as president can cost $14 million, he said, "and that, frankly, is not enough to engage in 35 primaries. I will have to be selective ultimately as to which ones I will enter."

In his speech to the 42nd annual conference of the Potato Chip-Snack Food Association, Connally criticized Carter for giving in to Red China's demand that the United States end its recognition of Taiwan.

an attorney could represent another person in court.

The contesters repeatedly presented motions to the court, most of them asking for a continuance. These attempts were based on the contesters' need to prepare an answer to the school district's plea of abatement.

Ector school district attorneys asked that the case be dismissed on the basis of insufficient grounds having been stated by the contesters under the law to contest an election.

Judge McKim Monday ruled most of the grounds in the petitions to be insufficient. He told the contesters, "Right or wrong, that's the way I've ruled and that's it. If I'm wrong, the appellate court can correct me."

Teng arrival protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — While one band of people stood in silent protest to Richard Nixon's one-night return to the White House, 500 Maoist demonstrators vented their rage at events in China by pelting police with fishhooks.

For a few minutes Monday night, the scene outside the White House was reminiscent of those that occurred often when Nixon was the chief occupant there.

"But the viciousness was worse than anything we ever had back then," said a spokesman for the National Park Police.

In a five-minute street clash, police and hospital spokesmen said 14 policemen and 42 demonstrators were injured and 69 demonstrators were arrested.

Mounted policeman Julius Gottlieb was hospitalized when his horse, struck by thrown fishhooks, fell to the ground.

The target of the demonstrators' wrath was Teng Hsiao-ping, vice premier of the People's Republic of China who was inside, wearing a black Mao suit.

The demonstrators' complaint was that, in doing business with the West, Teng has betrayed the revolution led by Mao Tse-tung.

As evening fell, the protesters marched through downtown Washington chanting, "Mao Tse-tung did not fail! The revolution will prevail!"

Inside the White House, as a guest, was Richard Nixon, whose meeting with Mao paved the way for reopening contact between China and the United States.

It was the former president's first return to the White House he left in humiliation five years ago.

And his presence drew a band of 20 to 30 protesters, on a corner with a banner: "Nixon — You Belong in Prison, Not the White House."

The Maoists were members of "The Committee for a Fitting Welcome." The committee had spent most of the day listening to denunciations of Teng at a rally at All Soul's Church.

Bob Avakian, 34, one of their leaders, addressed them: "We're going to strike a blow today, a blow that will be heard around the world."

When they left the church, they carried little sheets of paper printed with chants for the occasion.

One went like this: "Teng Hsiao-ping comes begging on his knees; the days are numbered for traitors like these."

Some wore black berets. Some wore construction hardhats. Most were young. The police said under their coats they carried bags containing bottles, rocks, nails and fishhooks.

The police stood waiting, shoulder to shoulder.

Suddenly the marchers surged toward the White House.

The police countercharged.

The battle lasted five minutes. Most of the demonstrators raced away, through Lafayette Park.

Earlier in the day, two protesters — standing 10 feet from the podium — interrupted President Carter's welcoming speech. A woman shouted "Teng Hsiao-ping, you are a murderer." Agents dragged her away. Then a man shouted that Teng was a traitor. He was hauled off too.

The two, Sonia J. Ransom, 26, of Seattle, and Keith Kojimoto, 28, of New York City, had obtained reporters' credentials. They were released on $100 bail each after pleading innocent to disorderly conduct charges. A hearing was set for Feb. 16.

Cover-up of nuclear study charged by civilian on research panel

BOSTON (AP) — Amid charges of a government cover-up, medical detectives hope to determine if hundreds of men died because they worked on the nation's first atomic submarines — and if more are dying because they now do the same work.

Health experts from the Center for Disease Control's National Institute of Occupational Health and Safety were to meet today with civilian scientists assigned by Congress to oversee a study of alleged radiation-induced cancer deaths at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard.

It is the first time the civilians have been consulted since the government study began a year ago, and their lack of involvement has generated suspicion about the adequacy of the investigation.

Dr. Irwin Bross, a bio-statistician from Buffalo, has charged the government was trying to cover up the radiation study.

"Everything the government has done since it started the investigation has been designed to prevent an honest study of the radiation health risks," he told The Associated Press Monday.

Bross termed "judicious" statements made by Center for Disease Control director Dr. William Foege and National Institute officials that it may be impossible to link the Portsmouth deaths to radiation exposure because of the presence of many cancer-causing agents.

White House and congressional pressure prompted the study when Dr. Thomas Najarian, a Boston blood specialist, detected a high level of cancer deaths among workers at the shipyard in Kittery, Maine.

Najarian, working with reporters from The Boston Globe, explored the death certificates of hundreds of shipyard workers and concluded nuclear workers contracted leukemia at a rate four-to-six times higher than non-nuclear workers.

The medical experts agree that if a health hazard exists at Portsmouth it may also affect an estimated 250,000 workers who have passed through seven other nuclear shipyards across the nation.

Philip Bierbaum, National Institute manager for the study, said he hopes today's meeting "will clear the air and give everyone a better understanding of how difficult this investigation is."

Frost provides 'evidence' of overnight moisture in area

Frosted windshields early today offered the only visible evidence of any moisture overnight, according to the weatherman.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport said

today's clear skies should become partly cloudy Wednesday. Temperatures should get colder tonight, but warmer weather is expected on Wednesday.

The low tonight should be in the low 20s. The high Wednesday should be in the middle 50s, the weatherman said.

Monday's high was 50 degrees. The overnight low was 24 degrees. The record high for Monday is 78 degrees set in 1967. The record low for today is two degrees set in 1948.

Sunset today will be at 6:21 p.m. Sunrise Wednesday will be at 7:43 a.m.

Only a slight trace of rain fell on Midland in the last 24 hours. Total rainfall for the year and month to date is .16 inch.

Clear skies and cold temperatures were reported by area weather watchers early today. Most area towns also had frost on windshields, and several reported fog during the night.

Travelers advisories were in effect today for the Panhandle and extreme North Texas because of icy streets and highways. Some fog hampered traffic in South Central Texas.

Police section was at the intake about 9 p.m. with a pistol a dent, said Patrol and late authorities.

which will supply him a charter flight, wanted to check the security arrangements at the Tehran Airport for at least 24 hours after its reopening.

Khomeini, leader of the year-long campaign to oust Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and make Iran an Islamic republic, had planned to return last Friday after 14 years in exile. But Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's government closed the airports, touching off street battles between the patriarch's supporters in Tehran and the army and police in which at least 63 were reported killed and hundreds were wounded.

Bakhtiar, after Khomeini rebuffed his attempt to go to Paris and negotiate personally with him, said the ayatollah could come home as soon as his safety could be ensured. Khomeini replied: "We don't ask any security from Bakhtiar or anyone. God is the best protector of my safety."

Millions of Khomeini's followers are expected to throng Tehran for his return and to greet his arrival with the wildest enthusiasm. Local religious leaders and their aides are certain to make every effort to prevent the mobs turning violent, but there is always the possibility of an attack by militant partisans of the shah or of a spontaneous incident touching off a battle between the crowd and the security forces.

Khomeini is returning to give new impetus to the fight to replace Bakhtiar and his cabinet by a provisional government named by him which would then end the monarchy and set up a republic dedicated to the tenets of Islam.

Although he has not explained how he plans to accomplish this, one of his chief local aides said the nationwide strikes called by Khomeini, which are paralyzing the economy, would continue until the government quit.

Supporters of Khomeini's campaign against corruptive Western influences and relaxation of Islamic strictures went on a rampage in poor district of south Tehran Monday, and at least three persons were reported killed by army gunfire.

Mobs shouting "Death to Bakhtiar" set fire to the city's biggest night club, a brewery, liquor stores, beer trucks and a pork-processing plant. They also invaded brothels and threw furniture out of the windows.

Another mob set fire to an office of the secret police, SAVAK, at nearby Kennedy Square.

One gang pulled Lt. Gen. Taghi Latifi of the police from his car near Tehran University and beat and stabbed him, accusing him of ordering the firing by troops and police Sunday in which 30 persons were reported killed and more than 300 were wounded.

The general was hospitalized but was reported in satisfactory condition.

Ardmore families may return to homes after derailment

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — About 75 families evacuated from their homes following a train derailment here Monday were expected to be allowed to return early today.

National Guardsmen were called out late Monday afternoon to seal off a 2,000-foot circle around the derailment. The area was evacuated after two railroad tank cars carrying vinyl chloride gas derailed and one began leaking slightly.

Col. Estle Hallmark said about 80 guardsmen from the 245th Transportation Battalion manned roadblocks and provided security in the area.

City Manager David Pence said the gas is very flammable, but sub-freezing temperatures were helping prevent an explosion.

He said a Santa Fe Railway Co. derailment crew arrived and stopped the leakage late Monday afternoon. There still would be some danger of an explosion, Pence said, when the crews

NEW YORK (AP) — It's Liv Ullmann's first Broadway musical and Richard Rodgers' 40th, but both the star and composer of "Mama" said they were jittery on the first day of rehearsals for the $1.2 million song-and-dance version of "I Remember Mama."

"I'm enormously nervous," Miss Ullmann said Monday. "But it's a good kind of nervousness. It's like opening day at school."

"Well, naturally I'm nervous. But then, you always are with every show," said the 76-year-old Rodgers, composer of such Broadway hits as "Oklahoma" and "South Pacific."

Miss Ullmann, 39, said she had been studying with a vocal coach but indicated she won't try to emphasize vocal technique. "I'll try to act it out," she said.

"Mama" is due to open at the Broadway Theater on May 3 after a Philadelphia tryout.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Tennessee Williams says he and a friend were mugged by a group of young toughs who said they recognized the Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright.

Williams, author of "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," said he and author Dotson Rader were attacked as they walked down a street late Sunday. Williams said they were accosted by four or five men in their late teens or early 20s.

MIAMI (AP) — Good grief! The folks who give us Charlie Brown, Snoopy and Lucy went to federal court and they came away with a lot more than peanuts.

Three Florida firms accused of infringing on United Features Syndicate rights covering the "Peanuts" comic strip were ordered Monday in federal court to pay default judgments totaling $40,500.

The judgment was part of what the syndicate's lawyers said was copyright-protection battle involving more than 250 cases in courts across the nation.

U.S. District Judge James

He told police one of the youths told him, "I know who you are."

Williams said he replied, "What of it. I'm not afraid, I'm not in the habit of retreat."

The 67-year-old Williams was shoved to the ground, while Rader was punched in the jaw. Neither was injured. The youths then fled.

Williams was here for the opening of a series of plays by the Tennessee Williams Repertory Company, a group formed to honor the part-time Key West resident.

NEW YORK (AP) — Feminist Betty Friedan says women who put down men do it for reasons of "insecurity and self-contempt."

"I'm suspicious of women who put down men with slogans like 'a woman needs a man like a fish needs a bicycle,'" Miss Friedan said in an interview published in the February issue of Family Circle magazine.

"I've noticed that they were really nothing unless they could attract the right successful men, I think they may hate men and feel the need to put them down with such foolish slogans because of their excessive dependence on them."

She added "a woman satisfied with most aspects of her life doesn't usually turn her back on men. Most women need long-term commitment, someone to take care of and to be taken care of by, to share life with."

Cambodian victory claims appear exaggerated

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Cambodian troops of ousted Premier Pol Pot claimed more battlefield victories today. Analysts said the troops had scored some successes but that the claims appeared exaggerated.

The Pol Pot forces said they killed 14,000 Vietnamese soldiers, knocked out 330 tanks and shot down 12 aircraft between Dec. 25, when Hanoi launched the invasion, and Jan. 25.

The Voice of the Democratic Kampuchea also persisted in its claim that Soviet and Cuban advisers were fighting with the Vietnamese and said more than 300 had been killed in the six-week-old war.

The broadcast said the Pol Pot troops were narrowing their encirclement of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, from the south, west and northwest and were being aided by people from the countryside who killed the Vietnamese with knives, axes and other crude weapons.

The broadcast described fighting over the last few days at Kompong Cham and Kompong Thom in eastern Cambodia, Kompong Speu on the highway leading from Phnom Penh to the sea and around the old temples of Angkor in northwestern Cambodia.

The Pol Pot forces said earlier that they had retaken Angkor — the symbol of Cambodia — and claimed that last Thursday the Vietnamese had emerged from the town of Siem Reap to recapture the nearby temples but were ambushed and repulsed.

A reliable analyst in Bangkok said Monday that there was evidence the Pol Pot claim about holding Angkor again might be true. The temples, some dating back to the 9th century, escaped damage during the 1970-75 war when they were held through-out by the Pol Pot guerrillas, and for a time, by their then Vietnamese Communist allies.

Police seeking driver of car that hit boy

An 8-year-old Midland boy was treated and released Monday night at Midland Memorial Hospital after he was struck by a vehicle whose driver initially stopped but did not remain at the site of the accident, said authorities.

Midland police officers today were looking for a suspect in connection with possible charges of failure to stop and render aid.

Tony L. Jones, the son of Donna Jones of the 600 block of Main Street, was said to have suffered only minor injuries, said a hospital spokesman.

Police said the accident was reported at 7:34 p.m. Monday, and was said to have occurred at the intersection of Main and Pennsylvania streets.

Authorities said they were told the boy was walking westbound when a northbound vehicle struck him. Officers said the victim apparently was crossing the street at the intersection.

Boy dies after attack

DALLAS (AP) — An 11-year-old boy, stabbed through the eye with a screwdriver two weeks ago, died in a Dallas hospital Monday just moments before his 8-year-old sister was rushed back to surgery.

Police investigators said they learned Clifford Cecil Gradi died as doctors at Baylor Medical Center began emergency surgery on his sister Aimee Gene Gray.

A spokesman at the Dallas hospital would not comment on the surgery early today, but said the girl was still listed in critical condition.

The children's mother, Kathleen Gradi, 32, is being held under $200,000 bond after being charged last week with attempted murder.

Comic strip judgment not peanuts

MIAMI (AP) — Good grief! The folks who give us Charlie Brown, Snoopy and Lucy went to federal court and they came away with a lot more than peanuts.

Three Florida firms accused of infringing on United Features Syndicate rights covering the "Peanuts" comic strip were ordered Monday in federal court to pay default judgments totaling $40,500.

The judgment was part of what the syndicate's lawyers said was copyright-protection battle involving more than 250 cases in courts across the nation.

U.S. District Judge James

Lawrence King ordered Lesal Group Inc. and Leslie G. Beck of Miami to pay United Features $24,000; Dale Halback of TSS Sports of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to pay $12,500; and Ann Rappaport, operator of a shop in Sunny Isles, north of Miami Beach, to pay $6,000. They were told to pay lawyers' fees as well.

All were accused of violating United's copyrights by selling likenesses of the Peanuts gang without authorization.

To prove their point, United Features lawyers showed up in court with iron-on decals of Lucy, Charlie, and their philosopher-beagle, Snoopy, in his famous Red Baron flying garb.

Historian to speak

J. Evetts Haley of Canyon, rancher, author and noted historian, will be the speaker Wednesday noon at the meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

Haley was reared in Midland and spent his early life working on ranches in the Midland area. He was personally acquainted with many of the early-day cattlemen of West Texas.

His valuable collection of historical books on the range country and its pioneers are housed in the Nita Stewart Haley Library and the J. Evetts Haley History Center, which Haley established here a few years ago.

In his Wednesday noon address, Haley is expected to review historical highlights of the West and to cite some of his early-day Midland experiences.

The program was arranged by Duke Jimerson, Lions program chairman.

Odessa police make case

ODESSA — A Midland man was arrested here shortly after 9 p.m. Monday for alleged aggravated robbery, said a spokesman for the Odessa Police Department today.

The man was arrested after a vehicle was stopped in the 700 block of Dixie Boulevard, according to officers.

Police said the Midlander was being held in connection with the hold-up of a 7-Eleven Store, located at the intersection of University and Jackson streets, about 9 p.m. Monday. A man reportedly brandished a pistol and demanded the money during the incident, said officers.

Patrolman Richard E. Hirst stopped the vehicle and later was assisted by other officers, said authorities.

Pre-trial hearings slated today

Pre-trial hearings were scheduled for this morning in 238th District Court in connection with gambling promotion charges against Robert J. Morris Jr.

Morris, whom officials say also is known as "Hill-top Shorty," was arrested by Midland County sheriff's deputies during an April raid in which his father, R.J. Morris, also was taken into custody.

The elder Morris is charged with keeping a gambling place. His trial is next on the docket.

Jury selection for the younger Morris' trial was scheduled for this afternoon.

Lacks stamina

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 23 years old and recently had my first grand mal seizure. My physician prescribed dilantin and the seizures are now well controlled. However, whereas I used to be able to run up to 15 miles a day, three times a week, now I have trouble completing five miles. Can the medication be to blame for my lack of stamina?—Steve

Dear Steve: There is no evidence that anticonvulsant medication, appropriately prescribed, interferes with athletic performance. This is not just theory, but a conclusion based on observation of many athletes—including professionals—who performed while on such medication.

Some people who learn they have epilepsy become worried and depressed, and this might adversely affect a patient's athletic ability. But all indications are that the medication is completely innocuous in this regard.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A neighbor of mine just had a heart attack, but the doctor told him he lived because he had good collateral circulation. What exactly is collateral circulation?—Mrs. D.R.

Dear Mrs. G.R.: Luckily the coronary artery system has a lifesaving method of growth and repair. When some of the coronary arteries become narrowed by gradual development of atherosclerosis so that they cannot carry enough blood to the heart muscle, nearby arteries get wider and even open up tiny new branches to deliver blood to the area of the muscle that needs it. This is called collateral circulation.

This collateral or substitute circulation often develops while the main coronary arteries are becoming narrowed. This explains why many of us who have narrowed arteries are not troubled with angina pectoris or with heart attacks. Once a heart attack occurs, the development of the collateral circulation may help the heart to mend itself.

When a clot suddenly shuts off the supply of blood to a part of the heart muscle, the central part of the area deprived of blood may die. The affected area must heal to form strong scar tissue. At the same time, a new blood supply to the area develops by means of the collateral circulation just described.

Treatment is aimed at giving the heart time to mend itself. Even though the patient feels well after the first week, he must continue to rest in bed or chair to give the heart time to heal. The time required for the patient to get back on his feet will depend on the extent of the heart injury, the rate of healing and whether or not complications develop. Although medicines are helpful, the patient's cooperation and understanding play a large part in his recovery.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If syphilis doesn't show up in your blood for at least three weeks after sexual exposure, how often should a person get a blood test?—Cindy W.

Dear Cindy W.: Any woman who engages in free and easy sex behavior always runs the risk of infection. She should see a doctor or visit a local health department clinic after sexual exposure. Frequent examinations and blood tests offer protection against the late effects of syphilis.

Sherman minister under investigation

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — An investigation into the ministry of a United Pentecostal minister in Sherman will continue through the week, the state director of the denomination says.

The Rev. E.L. Holley of Lufkin, Texas, who oversees the operations of the state's United Pentecostal churches, went to Sherman last Friday after receiving a formal complaint, signed by two other preachers.

The complaint criticized the Rev. Charles E. Glass, 46, of Sherman's First United Pentecostal Church for "conduct unbecoming a minister."

Holley said he will give Glass a chance to answer allegations that he and his wife have put exaggerated emphasis on demons and evil spirits.

He said he talked over the weekend in Sherman to between 20 and 25 persons, all of whom expressed dismay and disgust over the activities of Glass and his wife, Mary Jo.

The charges could lead to Glass' ministerial credentials being lifted.

More than 150 persons have left the church in the past four years.

Glass' critics, many of them former members who still have relatives in the congregation, say the minister and his wife have steered the Sherman church into a fanaticism that has torn families apart, driven some families out of town and veered into emotional terrorism and physical harassment.

Sherman Police Chief Johnny Burleson said "about four" complaints of harassment were filed in 1977 by former members against present church members. Lately, the activity has resumed, he said.

The allegations against Glass — carried in Sunday's Dallas Times Herald, whose reporters interviewed church members — were:

Glass calls the accusations "bald-faced lies. Hate and love are but a hair apart. If what they are saying is true, they ought to hang me at sun-up. But if God be for us, who can prevail against us?"

He characterized the dispute as a small church spat involving ill will among members of four families in Sherman.

Thomas Vannaman begins MC teaching

'Quiet' 16-year-old held in shootings at school

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Brenda Spencer bragged to high school classmates last week that she was going to "do something big to get on TV."

Today, the 16-year-old is in police custody, held in a 15-minute burst of gunfire that left two persons dead and nine others, including eight children, wounded.

Police said Miss Spencer aimed a semi-automatic .22-caliber rifle she got for Christmas at the Cleveland Elementary School Monday morning, firing 30 rounds of ammunition.

School principal Burton Wragg, 53, was fatally wounded while trying to aid the injured children and custodian Michael Suchar, 56, died attempting to pull Wragg to safety.

Among the wounded was policeman Robert Robb, 28, shot through the neck. He was listed in stable condition.

Three of the children were released after being treated for minor wounds.

Authorities said the children still hospitalized included: Monica Selvig, 9, and Christy Buell, 9, in critical condition; Mary Clark, 8, serious condition; Cam Miller, 9, in fair condition, and Craig Verner, 8, good condition.

After firing the 30 rounds, police said the high school junior barricaded herself inside the family home across from the school for almost seven hours, warning police she was going to "come out shooting."

As members of the SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) force waited out the tense vigil, the girl finally agreed to surrender after hanging up her telephone on negotiators several times.

Earlier, she told the San Diego Tribune in a telephone conversation: "I don't like Mondays. This livens up the day." She added, "I have to go now. I shot a pig (policeman), I think, and I want to shoot more."

Wearing a black Navy watch cap, brown corduroy pants and a blue sweatshirt, the freckle-faced, red-haired girl was whisked to police headquarters for questioning after she surrendered.

She was being held at the San Diego City jail. Police said no charges have been filed in connection with the shootings.

Police said the girl had a history of petty theft and drug abuse.

SWAT Officer Mike Hendrikson said negotiators were told by family members that Miss Spencer "fantasized in the past about being a sniper."

"She knew a lot about our operation from watching 'SWAT' on TV," said Hendrikson, who helped pin the girl to the ground after she dropped her weapons on a driveway.

High school friends described the bespectacled Miss Spencer as an honor student, "really quiet...and unhappy that her mother wasn't around."

Miss Spencer lived with her father, Wally D. Spencer, and was an avid hunter, her classmates said. They described her as a shy tomboy who had few friends.

The girl had attended the elementary school, and was involved in a window breaking incident there a year ago, police said.

She excelled in photography and recently won an award for her work, a school official said.

The girl had about 500 rounds of ammunition along with an air pellet gun, officials said, adding that the .22 caliber rifle was fitted with a telescope.

"She used to tell us how she went rabbit hunting in the mountains with a bb gun," said a friend.

A girl identified by police as Brenda Spencer, 16, is escorted by police officers Monday after surrendering to armed officers following a sniping incident at San Diego's Cleveland Elementary School. (AP Laserphoto)

Peace mission called 'useful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says a special U.S. peace mission to the Mideast was "useful in clarifying the thinking of the parties" but failed to narrow the gap between Israel and Egypt.

Ambassador Alfred Atherton spent 12 days in the Mideast hoping to solve low-level differences between Israel and Egypt. But upon his return, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said it "now appears that all the remaining issues are of such concern to the parties that it may not be possible to deal with them separately."

Carter's comment about the talks being "useful in clarifying the thinking of the parties" was in response to a query about whether Atherton had made any progress in his negotiations.

Epitaph for SLA written long before commutation

By NADINE JOSEPH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The tiny band of terrorists who captured headlines by kidnapping Patricia Hearst had ceased to exist long before the newspaper heiress' sentence was commuted by President Carter.

Six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army are dead and four are in prison. Miss Hearst, whose sentence was commuted Monday, will be released from prison Thursday, in time for her wedding to Bernard Shaw, a San Francisco policeman and former bodyguard.

and Emily Harris are serving prison terms after pleading guilty to abducting Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. Under the terms of their plea bargain, the Harris are expected to be released in 1983.

Harris, 33, is "keeping a low profile and is pretty much doing his time quietly" in maximum security at San Quentin prison, according to prison public information officer Bill Merkle.

Mrs. Harris, 31, is serving her sentence at the California Institute for Women, in Frontera, outside of Los Angeles.

and Russell Little, are serving life sentences for the November 1973 ambush of Oakland schools Supt. Marcus Foster, a popular black whose assassination stripped the fledgling revolutionaries of black support.

Killed in an hour-long shootout with Los Angeles police in May 1974 were Donald DeFreeze, the lone black SLA "soldier" who came out of the ghetto and took the name Cinque; Patricia Soltysik, William Wolfe, Camilla Hall, Angela Atwood and Nancy Ling Perry.

Carter's decree shortens Patty Hearst's sentence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst will be free for her wedding, blessed by a presidential decree cutting short her 7-year prison term.

"I haven't made any plans right now. It came as such a surprise that it will take some time to adjust to it," the elated newspaper heiress said Monday after President Carter commuted her bank robbery conviction.

She is scheduled to leave the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton on Thursday, four days before the fifth anniversary of her kidnapping by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Among those expected to accompany Miss Hearst when she is released is her fiancé, Bernard Shaw, 30, a San Francisco police officer who once was her bodyguard.

The couple had planned a Valentine's Day wedding, but Shaw said Monday they were postponing the wedding until they could be married in a church.

The Rev. Ted Dumke, who led the campaign for her clemency, said Monday the couple were now considering marrying on St. Patrick's Day.

Meanwhile, prison officials said Miss Hearst was transferred Monday to an isolated room, away from the 300 other women at the prison.

Duty officer Darell Hainline said she was moved "to be on the safe side," because of threats against her by other prisoners.

In granting the commutation, Carter agreed with a Justice Department recommendation that she has "been punished substantially," as a kidnap victim and during 22 months in prison. It said she needed no more rehabilitation nor punishment.

"She will be a law-abiding citizen," the department predicted.

"I'm really grateful that he was so courageous," Miss Hearst said of Carter's decision. "It would have been so simple for him to just leave everything the way it was... I thought I'd be spending another Feb. 4 in prison."

Miss Hearst, who will turn 25 in three weeks, said she was "grateful for all the support from so many people I'll never know and never meet," referring to the dozens of politicians, movie stars and newspaper editorial writers who called for her early release.

The commutation does not absolve her from guilt for participating with three SLA members in the April 15, 1974, armed robbery of a San Francisco bank. It simply cuts short her sentence, although she would have been eligible for parole in July.

Miss Hearst and her captors, William and Emily Harris, eluded authorities for more than 19 months before they were arrested on Sept. 18, 1975, in San Francisco.

She said at her bank robbery trial she was forced by threats of death to join the SLA and participate in the robbery. She was 19 when she was kidnapped. Attorney George Martinez, who represents Miss Hearst, said Monday she would leave Pleasanton shortly after 7:30 a.m. PST Thursday. He said she would hold a news conference at the prison before leaving.

Martinez said Miss Hearst would live at least temporarily at her mother's home in Hillsborough. Her mother, Catherine, and her father, San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, legally separated last month.

Rockefeller eulogized by son

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Nelson Rockefeller Jr., eulogized his father as the ashes of the former vice president and four-time governor of New York were buried on his family's 250-acre estate.

Nelson Jr. spoke during the service Monday at Pocantico Hills attended only by family and a few close friends.

"Dad, we know how much you love us, and we want you to know how much we love you and how much we're going to miss you. Your spirit will live with us forever," he said.

"We'll try to live up to the example you've set us as a father, as a husband, as a brother, as a statesman and as a friend."

"But Dad, we're not saying goodbye, but until we meet again."

The small bronze urn containing Rockefeller's ashes was buried near the graves of his father, John D. Rockefeller Jr., and mother, Abby Aldrich Rockefeller. The founder of the family fortune, the original John D. Rockefeller, is buried in Cleveland.

REEVES FIELD TRY

R. C. Slack of Midland No. 7-A K. M. Regan is a new project in the Screwbean (Delaware) area of Reeves County, seven miles west of Orla.

Operator staked location 996 feet from south and 2,362 feet from west lines of section 26, block 58, T-2, T&P survey.

Midland County gains flowing oil discovery

Texaco, Inc., operating from Midland, has completed its No. 1-AB Midland Fee as a flowing discovery, probably in the Atoka zone, 11 miles south of Midland in Midland County.

The discovery was completed through perforations from 11,154 to 11,211 feet for a daily potential of 263 barrels of 45.7-gravity oil, plus nine barrels of water, through an 11/64-inch choke. The gas-oil ratio is 468-1. Operator acidized the pay with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 50,000 gallons.

The hole is bottomed at 13,402 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 12,720 feet. The plugged back depth is 12,278 feet. Ground elevation is 2,677 feet.

Location is 467 feet from south and 210 feet from west lines of section 7, block 38, T-3-S, T&P survey.

The strike is two and three-quarters miles northwest of the depleted Stowell (Fusselman) field and 3.5 miles west of the depleted Azalea, South (Strawn gas) pool.

HOCKLEY WILDCAT

NEW PUMPER

Cola Petroleum, Inc., of Midland No. 1-A Hutchison has been completed in the Spraberry Trend Area (Dean-Wolfcamp) field in Midland County, 18 miles southeast of Midland.

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 47 barrels of 42-gravity oil and 12 barrels of water, through perforations from 8,616 to 9,037 feet.

Gas-oil ratio is 500-1. The operator drilled to 9,100 feet, set 4.5-inch casing at total depth and plugged back to 9,060 feet.

The pay was acidized with 2,500 gallons and fractured with 60,000 gallons.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 36, block 37, T-3-S, T&P survey.

Ozone suit filed by API

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The American Petroleum Institute has filed a lawsuit to overturn the Environmental Protection Agency's newly announced ozone standard.

Charles J. Dixon, API president, said the new standard, even though it represents a slight relaxation of the previous photochemical oxidant standard, is "still far more stringent than medical evidence shows is necessary to protect public health."

He said the best available evidence indicates that ozone below a level of .25 parts per million has no adverse effects on human beings.

"Our refineries," he noted, "are already running at or near capacity, and extra capacity—especially for unleaded gasoline—will be needed to prevent future shortages of gaso-

With the conclusion of a state-imposed drilling moratorium that began in 1969, Aminoil USA, Inc., has recently begun drilling again from platform Emmy, located 1.3 miles offshore from Huntington Beach, Calif. The platform, which was built in 1962, has produced 14 million barrels of crude oil.

Lifting of drilling moratorium lets Aminoil reactivate platform Emmy

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. — If this country is going to produce more oil at home, much of the increase will have to come from older, established fields, an executive for Aminoil USA, Inc., said.

In the wake of the relaxation of offshore drilling restrictions in California, production is now expected to increase at one of those older fields, the one at Huntington Beach which is operated by Aminoil.

Aminoil has produced oil and gas from four California leases lying offshore from Huntington Beach since 1938, slant drilling hundreds of wells from the shore out under the ocean during that time.

When it became evident that there were oil bearing zones that could not be reached from shore, platform Emmy was built in 1962.

Emmy, a 52-slot production platform standing approximately 1.3 miles offshore, is a prominent Huntington Beach landmark. Since February 1963, approximately 14 million barrels of oil have been produced from the platform's wells.

In recent years this production was affected by the California ban on offshore drilling which began in the wake of the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill.

Aminoil is once more drilling from Emmy. As explained by Lead Drilling Engineer Bill Melcher, the new drilling program is designed to tap the previously undrilled Fault Block 28 of the Upper Jones zone. Two of the first three wells, which were drilled to a depth of about 5,000 feet, were completed with no significant problems or delays. It is estimated that Fault Block 28 contains in excess of one million barrels of oil.

When Project Engineer Mike Flanagan was asked what effects the drilling moratorium had on production from Emmy, he indicated that "it was probably less than you might think." He explained there really is no simple answer. "Getting permission to drill was, of course, important," he said, "but the drilling economics were at least as important. Some drilling we couldn't have done simply because it would have cost too much."

Flanagan said that most of the oil available from Emmy is lower tier oil that by government regulation must be sold at the lowest price. Fortunately, the production from Fault Block 28 qualifies for the higher upper tier prices which makes it feasible to pay the high costs of drilling—$200,000 for installation of the rig and $10,000 per day in operating costs. "We might want to drill other wells that would increase production of lower tier oil, but the high drilling costs compared to the low oil prices often won't let us. He explained that the deeper a well is drilled, the more expensive it becomes. Many of Emmy's wells, with directional drilling, reach a measured depth that is often as much as a mile.

When the current drilling on Fault Block 28 is complete, Aminoil is planning additional drilling to tap some of the shallower zones, the TM and AA zones, that can only be reached from Emmy.

The low gravity oil from those shallower zones will have to be produced by steam stimulation, a process that makes recovery of the oil much more expensive. The current drilling program is expected to continue until the end of February.

There is no doubt that more oil can be produced from this country's older fields. It is estimated that as much as 70 percent of the original oil remains in many of them, an Aminoil official said. Recovering that oil is expensive, and companies that want to go after it simply won't be able to unless the economics are favorable, he added.

No radioactive material loss found at accident

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A cargo of nuclear waste containers, dumped when a tractor-trailer overturned on a mountainous stretch of interstate highway, was reloaded Monday and sent on its way for disposal.

Public health officials said none of the radioactive material leaked from the 46 barrels the truck was hauling from a plant near Chicago to a disposal site near Barnwell, S.C.

A massive traffic jam, stretching several miles toward Nashville on Interstate 24, built up when two unrelated traffic accidents blocked the only two detour routes from the interstate at Monteagle to Chattanooga.

Shortly before 2 p.m. EST Dave Downer, communications officer for the Tennessee Highway Patrol in Chattanooga, reported that all three roads had been cleared and traffic was moving.

The truck hauling the nuclear waste overturned about 8:15 p.m. Sunday about three miles east of the town of Monteagle as it descended treacherously steep Monteagle Mountain, site of frequent truck wrecks.

Barrels containing the material bounced across the highway and police officers arriving on the scene immediately closed it to traffic.

Ron Culberson, an official in the state Department of Public Health, said one barrel had a thumb-sized hole in it but there was no leakage from the multi-layered container. He said the hole was patched.

He said the other containers were tested by running rags over them and then checking for radioactivity. "Nothing showed up on our geiger," he said.

With I-24 — the main link between Nashville and Chattanooga — closed to eastbound traffic, the highway patrol began routing traffic down the mountain on Tennessee 150. Monday morning, however, a truck load of oats overturned and blocked that highway.

Troopers routed the traffic in an even wider circle through Grundy County and down Tennessee 108. But in mid-morning two tractor-trailer rigs wrecked, blocking it as well.

"If you're trying to come east, you're sitting," Downer said earlier when all the traffic was blocked. Highway Patrol Sgt. Lloyd Baker in Chattanooga said the driver of the nuclear waste rig reported he was hauling about 40,000 pounds of material, initially identified as cobalt 60 and cesium 137.

The driver, Russell Binns, 23, of Conway, Ga., was released from a Chattanooga hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

The accident was the second in this area involving nuclear waste in the past five months. In September, a truck overturned about five miles west of Chattanooga. There was no leakage in that wreck either.

Hearings scheduled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has scheduled hearings for Feb. 16 on the safety of natural gas pipelines and distribution systems in Cotulla and Teneha.

The commission said the cities would have a chance to explain why their cases should not be turned over to the attorney general for prosecution.

On Nov. 17, 1977, the commission said it found 16 safety violations in the natural gas pipeline of Teneha in Shelby County. The city has not provided evidence of compliance with safety regulations, the commission said Monday.

A March 9, 1978, safety check showed nine violations in the Cotulla natural gas distribution system, but the South Texas city has not replied adequately to the citations, the agency said.

Oil workers back on job

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — One of five Texas coastal area strikes by oil workers ended Monday as about 250 employees at the Amoco Chemicals Corp. plant ratified a two-year contract.

Strikes continued at the Marathon refinery in Texas City, the Phillips Chemical Co. plant in Pasadena, and at the Gulf Oil refinery and the Arco Polymers plant in Port Arthur.

The Amoco contract approved by Local 4-449 of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union followed a national pattern providing for a wage increase of 73-cents an hour

Iranian oil shutoff now being felt

TULSA, OKLA. — With Iranian oil production still at a trickle, consuming nations are beginning to feel the squeeze.

Spot market prices for crude oil have risen sharply, and supplies are tightening, according to the Jan. 29 issue of the Oil & Gas Journal.

Some international companies that produce Iranian crude are reducing supplies to their customers. Analysts say speculative stockpiling may be compounding price and supply problems.

In the U.S., small refiners whose contract supplies have been trimmed are turning increasingly to the spot market to make up the shortfalls. Some can't afford the high prices on that market and have sought relief from the U.S. government.

European refiners are operating as usual, although stocks are decreasing. British Petroleum Ltd. cut crude deliveries to its customers by 30 to 35 percent, the Journal reports.

Cosuming nations outside the U.S. and Europe are scrambling for supplies. Japanese crude buyers have flocked to Iraq, where spot cargoes of crude oil and being offered at premiums of $2 to $3 a barrel.

The Journal says two factors will determine whether the global supply squeeze reaches crisis proportions; —How long it takes Iran to stabilize its political scene and return crude production to near-normal levels.

—Whether Saudi Arabia will continue to produce at more than its self-imposed ceiling to compensate for the shortfall.

—Stabilization in Iran is an elusive goal at this point. The makeshift civilian government of Shapour Bakhtiar has been unable to contain civil unrest and appears to have only flimsy support.

Iranian crude production remains 100,000 barrels a day short of domestic requirements.

Chaps look like imposters, but defeat South Plains

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Although Midland College didn't nail down the 76-71 win until the final 30 seconds, Monday's victory over South Plains College wasn't your standard barn-burner. Not, at least, if you saw the Chaps a week ago when they came to the wire blazing from the hip, shooting everything that moved, for that 64-62 upset of Western Texas College.

In comparison, these guys looked like imposters and even Coach Jerry Stone was trying to figure out whether gap and it wasn't until 6-3 Charles Rogers drove the lane for two that SPC had its first lead, 56-55, with 10:10 left. They led only two more times, 68-67, and 71-70, but the Chaps didn't have a moment's peace until those Mayfield free throws.

Mayfield wound up with 23 points, hitting nine of 18 from the field, but as a team, MC was far off its usual form, making only 29 of 75 for 39 per cent. Ralph Tate, 14, and Chucky McGill and Tim Shelby, 12 each, joined Mayfield in double figures, but Midland usually has six or seven at that level. The usually flamboyant Kenneth Young couldn't buy a bucket inside, winding up with four points.

Rogers and Rickey Phillips scored 17 each for South Plains. McGill and Tate led MC in rebounds with 10 and seven, respectively, while Shelby had five assists followed by McGill and Tate with four each.

South Plains—Mike Duffy 3-0-4-4, John Phinizy 1-6-3-8, Rickey Phillips 7-3-3-17, Charles Rogers 7-3-4-17, Walter Snyder 4-3-9, Wallace Hutchinson 0-2-2-2, Rusty Lamar 0-0-1-0, Ron Butler 2-3-2-7, Randy Wilson 2-1-3-5. Totals—26-19-26-71.

Midland College—Cullen Mayfield 9-5-2-23, Chucky McGill 5-2-4-12, Luis Alvarado 3-3-4-8, Kenneth Young 1-2-1-4, Tim Shelby 6-0-4-12, Robert Tate 5-4-2-14, Carl Lee Runnels 0-2-2-2, James Hicks, Kerry Bennett 0-0-0-0. Totals—29-19-26-76.

Football's merciful end goes to Nationals, 13-7

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It wasn't exactly son of Super Bowl XIII that brought the National Football League's longest season ever to a merciful end. Maybe a great, great grandchild would be more appropriate.

And although some rabid fans might disagree, many of the players seemed happy to call it a year.

"I'm feeling great... this capped off a very nice week with a lot of nice guys," said Minnesota's Ahmad Rashad after helping the National Conference to a 13-7 victory over the American Conference in the annual Pro Bowl extravaganza at the Coliseum Monday night. "One of the highlights of my career was just being here. The most valuable player award was just gravy."

Rashad caught five passes for 89 yards and was one of at least a handful of players who were MVP possibilities in the nationally televised game played before 38,333 fans. More than a third of those who purchased tickets — 13,310 — either stayed home or went elsewhere.

It was a requirement of Los Angeles Rams' season ticket-holders to purchase a ticket to the Pro Bowl.

The NFL kicked off its 1978 exhibition season last July 29. Following were four preseason games, 16 regular-season games, three weeks of playoffs and the Super Bowl.

The victory was the fourth for the NFC in the past five years and the fifth in nine games overall since the all-star contest changed formats to pit the two conferences against each other.

There were only 20 points — on three touchdowns and two extra points — scored in a game where the teams combined for 616 yards in total offense. It was a far cry from the Pittsburgh Steelers' wild 35-31 triumph over the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl eight days earlier.

"This was not the Super Bowl, it doesn't ease that loss, but it's nice to win an all-star game," said running back Tony Dorsett, who has helped the Cowboys to two Super Bowl berths in as many NFL seasons. "It's been a long year, but a good year. I've enjoyed it."

"But I can't wait to catch that big bird in the morning and fly the friendly skies back to Dallas," added Dorsett, who gained 27 yards on seven carries Monday night. "I'm going to relax for a long, long time."

Roger Staubach, a teammate of Dorsett's, ruffled a 19-yard touchdown pass to yet another Cowboy, wide receiver Tony Hill, with 3:43 remaining in the third quarter to give the NFC its victory.

The only score of the second half followed a 16-yard punt by Oakland's Ray Guy and capped a 45-yard, five-play drive.

The winners took a 6-0 lead after 7:06 of the second quarter on a 2-yard run by Philadelphia's Wilbert Montgomery. The touchdown came on a fourth-and-1 play.

New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning engineered the 70-yard, 11-play march. Los Angeles' Frank Corral was wide on the conversion attempt.

The AFC retaliated with its only score of the night, moving 62 yards on nine plays after the ensuing kickoff. The touchdown came on an 8-yard pass from Miami's Bob Griese to Seattle's Steve Largent. Garo Yepremian of the Dolphins added the extra point.

Largent, the first member of the Seahawks to play in a Pro Bowl, finished with five catches, all in the second quarter, for 75 yards. Both he and Rashad tied the Pro Bowl record for number of receptions.

Staubach outplayed Terry Bradshaw, his counterpart in Super Bowl XIII, with nine completions in 15 attempts for 125 yards. Bradshaw hit on seven of 17 for 54 yards.

Second-stringers Griese and Manning made their presence felt. Griese completed 10 of 20 for 122 yards and Manning, the first member of the Saints to play in a Pro Bowl under the current format, was eight of 17 for 78 yards.

The AFC's Earl Campbell, who led the NFL in rushing as a rookie for Houston with 1,450 yards, topped all ground-gainers with 66 yards on 12 carries. New England's Sam Cunningham had 49 yards on eight attempts for the losers.

Montgomery led the NFC in rushing with 53 yards on nine tries.

"I never got up for it," said Bradshaw, the NFL's most valuable player. "I wanted to be alert, but I really didn't want to play another game."

"I don't think anybody wanted to play, but it's an honor to be in it," he added. "I'm glad nobody got hurt, that's the important thing. I'm tired, I'm emotionally drained, mentally fatigued."

"It's been a great year, but I'm glad it's over."

Rashad felt that players on both teams wanted to win the game, which meant $5,000 to the 40 NFC participants and $2,500 to members of the AFC team.

"Egos get involved, your pride kind of takes over," said the Vikings' wide receiver. "The best kind of comes out. There's no losers involved. Everybody's a winner. Once the game starts, you want to play your best football and win."

The NFC victory enabled Tom Mack to end a fine career on a winning note. It was the 11th Pro Bowl appearance for the Rams' offensive guard.

"I knew this was coming at least the past month," said Mack. "I set my mind to it before the playoffs."

Mack received a standing ovation with about a minute left to play. "It was very flattering," he said. "It's a little overpowering. This whole week has been amazing. You don't think that many people know who you are."

Mack, who played in 184 consecutive games in a 13-year career with the Rams, announced his retirement last week.

SPORTS

his Chaps were flat, cold or suffering from approaching spring fever after it was over.

STILL, THE win propelled the Chaps into a tie for first place with Western Texas College, which had the rug pulled out from under it, 80-69, by New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell. Both teams are now 7-2 at the halfway mark of the Western Junior College Conference race.

In other results, Frank Phillips whipped Howard College, 64-51, Odesa edged Amarillo, 79-76, in overtime and NMMI beat Clarendon, 88-81.

"It was a crazy game. I couldn't figure out what was wrong, but I do know I was scared to death we were going to lose."

Stone continued, "Maybe we had a sense of false security playing at home or maybe it was because we hadn't worked out here since the Western Texas game because of the concert. But this (South Plains) is a good team and I know one thing, that Cullen Mayfield is worth a million dollars."

The 5-9 sophomore from Dallas South Oak Cliff was the one guy the Chaps could hang their hats on throughout the night and especially down the stretch when he scored eight of MC's 10 points when they were most needed.

WITH THE Texans leading 71-70 with 1:51 left, Mayfield scored on a fast break and then with 34 seconds remaining, converted a pair of free throws for a 74-71 lead. Six-seven Luis Alvarado, coming up with some vital rebounds and feeding Mayfield on one of his baskets, added the coup de grace off a backcourt steal in the final 10 seconds and a game in which MC lead comfortably almost all the way and almost let get away was finally in the win column.

It may not have been neat, but it raised the Chaps' Western Junior College Conference record to 7-2 (15-7 for the season) and puts MC tied with Western Texas College as the first half comes to an end.

That's especially important, since Midland goes on the road for three of its next four, traveling to Hobbs, N.M., Thursday for New Mexico Junior College, a team which Stone feels is finally putting it together, and then next Monday it's back to the Land of Enchantment for NMMI at Roswell, one of the other teams challenging the Chaps for second place.

MEANWHILE, South Plains College Coach Dennis Patton probably muttered all the way back to Leveland that "any time you outbreath the opposition by 19 (51-32), you ought to win and win big."

Maybe, but not when you commit 35 turnovers to only 13 for the opponent as the Texans did Monday.

For three quarters of the game, it looked like the Chaps had South Plains on a yo-yo string, leading by as much as 26-16 and 41-30 in the first half and by as little as 26-25. In the second half, Midland opened a 50-40

Bulldogs, Rebels set stage again

The Midland High and Midland Lee girls are heading for another District 5-4A basketball showdown.

Both teams took important league victories Monday night with the Bulldogs posting an exciting 36-34 victory over Abilene and the Rebels breaking open a close game with a 21-point outburst in the final period to take a 63-47 victory over Cooper in Abilene.

Susan Rock's 12 points paced Midland's victory in a defensive battle in the MHS Gymnasium and it was big victory since the Bulldogs and Eagles shared the first half title with 6-1 records. The win gives Midland a 3-0 loop mark and a season record of 22-10 going into Thursday's game with San Angelo in San Angelo.

Besides Rock's 12 points, Karen Cook was next with eight points for Coach Jane Young's Purple Pack while the big gun for Abilene was Karen Washington with 16 markers.

Midland also won the junior varsity contest, 45-25, with Janice McDonald and Sandra Black netting 14 points each.

Lee took a 42-36 lead going into the final period in Abilene over Cooper's Cougars and then erupted for 21 points, to win going away. Coach Shirley Stephenson's outfit now stands 23-7 on the season.

Dee Dee Poole poured in 21 points to pace the Rebels while Deborah Kittle and Deborah Ledbetter added 14 each with Gale Wilson right behind with eight points.

Julie Gibbs and Teresa Seldon netted 12 points each for the Cougars.

Lee's girls won the junior varsity game, 37-32, in overtime with Jackie Ratliff's nine points paving the way. Lee's JV is 3-0 in district play with the victory.

Big Spring is Lee's next opponent in Big Spring on Thursday night. San Angelo upset Odesa High in another District 5-4A contest and Odesa Permian was an easy winner against winless Big Spring.

Longhorns rip Cougars

By The Associated Press

It was the same song, another verse as the Texas Longhorns rolled to an easy 79-53 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Houston Monday night.

It was the same because Texas coach Abe Lemons criticized the officiating and chided sports writers, telling them people would say Houston had a "bad game."

In other SWC action, Texas Tech romped to a 91-71 victory over Texas Christian, Texas A&M beat Baylor, 71-58, and Southern Methodist whipped Rice, 80-67.

Anyone who thought the addition of a third official this season for Southwest Conference games would make Lemons happier with the officiating was wrong. Sometimes the criticism is for calling games too close and sometimes it's for calling them too loose. It was too loose Monday night, according to Lemons.

Complaining of the way the officiating was handled, Lemons said "Somebody could have gotten hurt in there the things they were letting go on. It's amazing how three people can get into the position that they can't see what is going on."

Almost all season long Lemons has chided sports writers for saying that teams Texas beat had a "bad game" instead of saying that Texas had a good game.

"They'll say Houston had a bad game against us. It seems like everybody has been having bad games against us this year. We never really beat anybody when they have a good game, or so everybody says," the colorful Texas coach said.

"I guess some night when the other team wins, then they'll say they had a good game," Lemons said.

Ron Baxter had 23 points for the Longhorns and Jim Krivacs added 22 as the Longhorns jump out to a 39-28 halftime margin.

Krivacs became Texas' all-time leading career scorer early in the game when he tossed in a jump shot to pass Raymond Downs, who had 1,513 points.

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers praised the Red Raiders for their intensity in the romp over Texas Christian.

"We played good defense the first half. And we have to play good defense to do anything else well," Myers said.

Six Red Raiders finished in double figures. Freshman David Little had 14 to lead the Raiders. Jim Hund had 17 points for TCU.

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said he believes holding Baylor's Vinnie Johnson to only 12 points in the 71-58 victory over Baylor was the Aggies best defensive effort of the season.

Football Hall honors four

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ron Mix has no trouble remembering the many hours of "hard work and boring preparation" during an 11-year National Football League career. But now, he believes he has received the ultimate reward.

"All that running, lifting weights, it was very, very boring," said Mix, who spent most of his career with the San Diego Chargers. "It was an awful lot of hard work. This really makes it all worth it."

Mix is one of the four most recent ex-NFL greats to be voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame by the 29-member board of selectors, raising to 102 the number so honored.

"I'm extremely thrilled to be selected," said Mix, who became only the second former American Football League performer to be honored. "It was such a shock when I found out."

"It's particularly thrilling in that Lance Alworth, my teammate for so many years, was the first AFL player inducted," said Mix. "And now, I'm the second."

Results of the 1979 Hall of Fame selections were announced Monday. Joining Mix at formal enshrinement ceremonies in Canton, Ohio next July 28 will be Johnny Unitas, Dick Butkus and Yale Lary. All but Unitas appeared at a news conference Monday.

Mix began his career with the Los Angeles Chargers in 1960. The franchise moved to San Diego the next year and Mix played there through 1969.

Blackout rule may cost Vikes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Owners of National Football League teams have rejected a proposal to ease the sellout or blackout local television rule — although failure to relax the policy could threaten the Minnesota Vikings' hopes to play in a new domed stadium.

"I would like to get permission to move if they don't build it," Vikings' President Max Winter said of the stadium-television issue. Winter said owners of other NFL teams were "sympathetic" at Monday's meeting, prior to the annual Pro Bowl game.

The Minnesota Legislature has passed a law saying the Vikings would have to televise home games if 90 percent of seats in a proposed stadium were sold 72 hours before kickoff time. The existing NFL rule calls for a total sellout three days prior to a contest before it can be telecast locally.

"The proposal was voted down, that's all I can say," said an NFL spokesman. "There was nothing else of major consequence that went on at today's meeting."

The possibility of a replacement franchise for Los Angeles after the Rams move to Anaheim in 1980 was not discussed, the spokesman said.

Sears takes Uncle Sam to court

By JOHN CUNNING, AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—In recent years Uncle Sam has been portrayed as the wise but scolding parent who, having discovered right, dutifully admonished his charges for wrong, and sought to point out truth.

It was a fulltime job, because evil lurked throughout the marketplace. Uncle Sam felt duty-bound to lay down rules and regulations for commerce, and he did so by the thousands, if not by the millions.

He was particularly concerned about the nature of the work force, insisting on equality for minorities, veterans and women. He never let up; his aides spent millions of hours studying the job statistics.

And they enforced their views: The Attorney General, the housing, education, health, labor, commerce secretaries, the Census Bureau, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and others, laid down the law.

And now comes Sears, Roebuck and Co., saying in effect that Uncle Sam's very own efforts created the workplace he now declares is unequal, and that Uncle Sam is fighting none other than himself.

The stunning accusation is contained in a class action suit against Uncle Sam by Sears, in which it claims the government created the white male-dominated workforce through its various regulations.

It named the G.I. Bill of Rights, veterans preference laws, selective service, and restrictions on the number of women and blacks in the armed services and in vocational and educational programs.

And then, says Sears, it blames us and other employers who attempted to live up to the law and, with growing frustration, to the sometimes conflicting opinions made by all those aides in all those offices.

Among other things, the suit seeks to have Uncle Sam himself live up to his laws, and to tell Sears and other retailers how to resolve sometimes conflicting obligations to veterans, women, the elderly and to minorities.

Because of conflicts, Sears feels it was unfairly charged with violating the law. It maintains it has led other companies, and even anticipated Uncle Sam, in employing veterans, women and minorities.

But, it continues, Uncle Sam scattered obstacles in its path. An employer of 400,000 workers, it suggests that statistical inequities were bound to appear. Despite its efforts, how could it be otherwise, when:

"During World War II, the armed forces imposed a 10 percent ceiling for black men which was actually kept at a lower level.

"Women represented an average of less than 2 percent of the armed forces personnel between 1944 and 1956.

"Veterans of World War II were approximately 92 percent white and 97 percent male."

In spite of a government legacy of discrimination, Sears says its own employment files show that employment of blacks, minorities and women rose sharply between 1965 and 1973, and even more sharply since then.

Its suit suggests that because of the conflicting requirements, and because of the conditions it inherited from Uncle Sam, it is too easy for government to level charges of illegal discrimination.

The government, it said, failed to enforce civil rights laws intended to provide industry with a well-qualified workforce, and that it then "blamed private employers for the government's failures."

It seeks court orders to "prohibit the use against employers of any statistical disparities from the civilian labor force traceable to compliance with veterans acts and the Age Discrimination Act."

And it seeks also, among other things, an order to "prohibit the use of a statistical approach to show compliance until the government has taken steps to reshape the national workforce."

Sears is angry, insofar as a corporation can become angry, and to the extent that the cold legalese of a complaint can convey it. Uncle Sam did it, Sears says, and now he pontifically blames us.

Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal says he was flooded by calls after 'Holocaust'

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal said Monday he was flooded by telephone calls from West Germany since the American television series "Holocaust" was shown there.

Wiesenthal said one young German told him "I can no longer remain silent."

The young German added he had known of a Nazi war criminal who assumed a new name 10 years ago, but had not exposed him because "I had wrong ideas about solidarity" with fellow Germans, Wiesenthal said.

Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish Documentation Center here, said he was deeply impressed by the reaction, especially of young Germans, to the five-part "Holocaust" series, a fictional drama about Nazi persecution of the Jews in World War II.

He said one youth cried out "I regard this reaction as the saving of honor on the part of the German youth," Wiesenthal said.

Wiesenthal said he would relay the information to the central office on Nazi war crimes in Ludwigsburg, West Germany.

Houston election could alter rating

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston's AAA bond rating, among the highest in the nation, could be affected by an upcoming citywide tax referendum, an official of Standard & Poor's says.

Richard Larkin, S&P vice president, said any change in the rating would depend on the magnitude of the referendum. A tax reform referendum to limit Houston's property taxes to .5 percent of assessed valuation could be held in April.

A lower rating the S&P would mean the city would pay a higher interest rate for capital improvement bonds.

Larkin said some California cities affected by Proposition 13 avoided lower bond ratings by trimming low priority items from their budgets and getting other funds from the state surplus.
