Or would awarding custody of the children to their father, strictly because of the homosexual environment, unjustly penalize the woman for her sexual preference? That, testimony indicated during an unusual court hearing this week, is the thorny problem which must now be resolved by local Judge J.Q. Warnick, Jr.

The question of whether practicing homosexuality per se is legitimate grounds for denying a parent custody of his or her children arose during a temporary conserva-torship hearing in Warnick's County Court-at-Law No. 2. The issue will not be resolved until the divorce suit is set for final hearing. But testimony during the hearing afforded a preview of the problem and offered both the husband and wife an opportunity to define their positions in clear-cut terms.

AT THE CONCLUSION of the hearing, Warnick, without commenting on the merits of either position, awarded temporary custody of two of the couple's three children to the father.

Those children, both under 12, had been living with their mother. The household included another woman - who, according to the husband, is involved in a homosexual affair with the wife - and that woman's teen-aged daughter.

The third child of the couple, a 14-year-old boy, had already left his mother's home of his own volition to live with his father.

While awarding custody to the father, Warnick also ordered studies to be made by social workers of both the mother's and father's current homes.

The social workers will report back to the judge before final disposition of the di-

In other criminal activity this week, another 7-Eleven store became the city's latest armed robbery target.

William Bell, sales clerk for the convenience store at 27th Street and Avenue Q. said that about 3 a.m. Sunday, four men approached the store. Three of the men entered the establishment, he said, while the other man stood outside.

The wife said she seldom goes out.

Bell, who was standing near the cash register, said the trio walked toward him and that one of the men asked for a pack of cigarettes.

The clerk said he bent down to get the cigarettes and as he got up he saw one of the men pointing a pistol at him, demanding all the money in the register.

Bell said he took the cash from the register, placed it in a paper sack and handed it to the bandits, who told the clerk to go to an employees' room before they made their escape with an undetermined amount of cash.

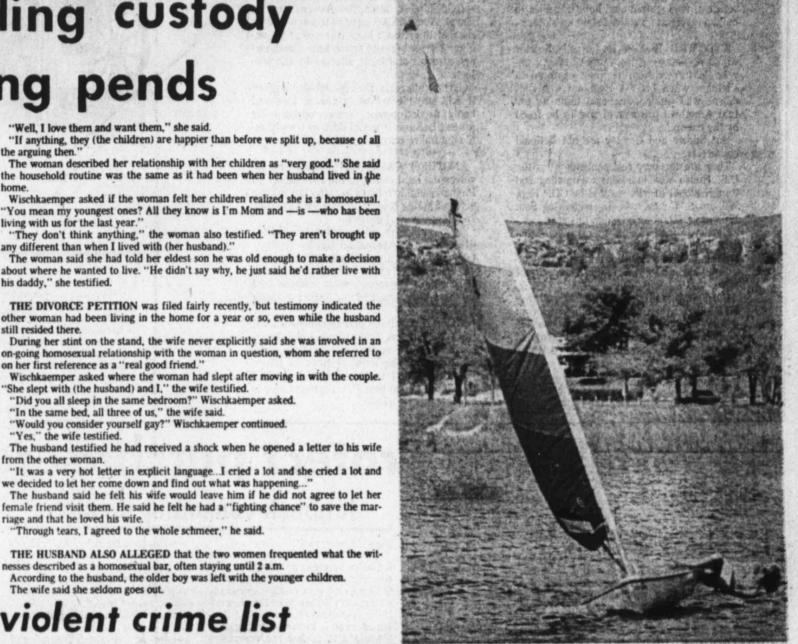

Bell described the robbers as Mexican-Americans, 17-20 years old and all with shoulder-length black hair. One of the men, he said, had a three-inch scar on his left cheek.

Roy Robert George, owner of a station at 2801 Clovis Road, told police that shortly before 2 p.m. two young Mexican-American men entered his office and one asked for a dollar's worth of

George said he opened the cash register to comply with the man's request but before he could close the register, the man asked for a tire patch.

As the 73-year-old attendant bent down to get the patch, he said, one of the men grabbed him from behinD and forced him to the floor while his companion took $65 from the register.

A Lubbock woman was killed early Wednesday morning when the car in which she was riding slammed into a building at 19th Street and Avenue S. The victim was Anita Harmon, 18, of 5815 22nd St., Apt. Fiction meets its match

THE KIND of political drama that would make a Hollywood screenwriter salivate is gradually building towards a Nov. 7 climax a continent away from the celluloid capital of the world.

In the improbable setting of pine forests and potato fields, one of the nation's hottest congressional contests is under way between candidates who could have come straight from central casting.

Where else could one find a 31-year-old Greek-American named Omympia Snowe, orphaned as a child and widowed in her mid-20s when her husband died in an auto accident, who surmounted both tragedies to build a career as an activist state legislator?

AND WHO BUT a Hollywood director would pit Snowe against Mark Gartley, a 34year-old former Navy jet pilot captured in Vietnam when his F-4 Phantom was shot down, who attained national fame as the first American prisoner of war to be freed by the enemy?

But Snowe and Gartley are not fictional characters.

They are the very real contenders for the U.S. House seat in Maine's sprawling 2nd Congressional district vacated by GOP Rep. William S. Cohen, who is challenging Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Me., this year.

Gartley, a moderate-to-conservative Democrat, is currently believed to be leading the race, largely as a result of the name recognition he has achieved as Maine's secretary of

But Snowe, a progressive Republican, may be closing the gap. She enjoys the support of several national women's organizations and probably has the best chance of victory of any non-incumbent woman seeking a House seat this year.

THE CONGRESSIONAL district, geographically largest east of the Mississippi, is as unusual as the candidates.

Its northernmost county is bigger than Rhode Island and Connecticut combined. And while the district seems light years removed from Washington, it is far from indifferent to the federal government.

Aroostook County is the site of the proposed Dickey-Lincoln dam, a proposed hydroelectric generating facility that would cost an estimated $1 billion to build and would produce almost 1.2 million kilowatts of power annually for distribution throughout New England.

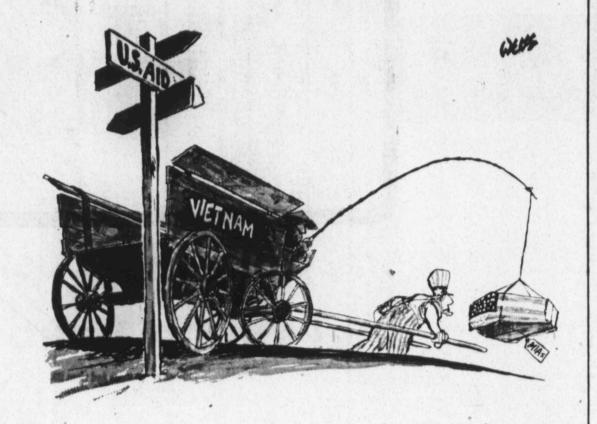

The planned dam would be the world's second largest, after the Aswan Dam in Egypt. About 88,000 acres of forest would be flooded to create a huge reservoir, with another 150,000 acres of prime timberland, rivers, streams and lakes affected by the pro-

Gartley supports Dickey-Lincoln, arguing it will provide relatively cheap, safe and badly needed power. Snowe opposes the project because it would destroy irreplaceable natural resources.

ANOTHER CAMPAIGN controversy involves the legal claims of the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy Indians to some 12.5 million acres of Maine land, most of it located in the 2nd Congressional district.

Both candidates acknowledge the Indians deserve just compensation for the territory taken from them more than 175 years ago, yet both worry about the rights of nearly 350,000 current property owners whose land titles are threatened by the 3,000 remaining

Although physically and spiritually distant from Washington, this rugged, isolated and sparsely settled region (like virtually every other area of the country) finds its future inextricably tied to federal decisions. And the choice of the next U.S. representative is taken lightly by no one.

This act, in part, makes it illegal for the seller of a vehicle to make "false, misleading or deceptive" statements about the condition of what he's trying to sell. This, however, does not require the seller to stand closely behind what he says about the used vehicle once the deal has been closed.

The tutor was no less than the governor of North Carolina, Jim Hunt.

For use by teachers and parents at home and at school.

Use with issue: Read Everything in Sight by Dr. Anne A. Adams

Teachers, parents and students across the country are expanding the use of lifestyle materials (newspapers, etc.) as a basic part of reading instruction.

Such materials bridge the generation gap between parents and their children. These are items each can discuss. They offer a logical and readily understood base of communication between parents and teachers.

For students, they offer information that encourages them — beginning with the first grade — to think and react to the world around them.

Such materials have become the keys to early independence in reading and

The trend of many of today's teachers is to incorporate the best of the past and to provide reading instruction that is meaningful and successful.

Each day in today's classrooms, children can learn to read: the daily newspaper, popular magazines, fiction and nonfiction library books, maps, social studies, science and math textbooks.

They can learn to read anything within reason, and they are learning today to read what they'll need in the future.

Tips to Parents 1. Help your child locate the key words in a newspaper or magazine article. Ask the child to tell you why he/she considers these words important.

2. Help your child pronounce important words as he/she reads. Discuss meanings of these words as they relate to the story.

3. Encourage your child. Don't pressure. The object is to build confidence and desire to read. The important point is for your child to approach printed materials with enthusiasm.

4. Don't spend large portions of your child's life with a relatively few stories at the expense of exposing the child to the variety of reading materials available.

5. Don't predetermine that some words are too difficult for a child. Unless he or she has a chance, reading vocabulary will be handicapped.

6. Parents should talk with the teacher about what kinds of reading materials are used each day in class. If the class needs newspapers, magazines, library books, etc. help locate these materials and donate them to the class.

and Broad could go down by 24 percent, U.S. Home Corporation by 20 percent and MGIC Investment Corporation by 18 percent. Ryan Homes was forecast to drop by 15 percent, Lennar by 12 percent, and MassMutual Mortgage and Realty Investors by 6 percent. This means that analysts are saying that MassMutual Mortgage and Real Estate Investors has the best chance of a rise in stock prices with a lower downside risk than any of the other companies.

Analysts were primarily concerned about the effects of interest rates on Real Estate companies. MassMutual Mortgage and Realty Investors was the least affected by their fears because analysts felt that they had their problem properties under control. In addition, fears of a rise in interest rates were responsible for strong doubts that Kaufman and Broad, U.S. Home Corporation, MGIC, Lennar and Ryan Homes would have substantial rises in the prices of their stocks.

Remaining stocks

Analysts forecast that nine out of the remaining 10 stocks would fall more than they would rise. The biggest percentage losses were forecast for Champion Home Builders, 31 percent; National Homes, 30 percent; Pulte Homes, 27 percent; Centex Corporation, 26 percent; and Skyline Corporation and Coldwell, Banker, 25 percent Analysts were very concerned over interest rates and their effect upon Real Estate tocks. Only one company, MassMutual Mortgage and Realty Investors, had more than a 10 percent spread between the price that its stock was expected to rise to and the price to which it might drop. This means that analysts are saying there is little opportunity of a rise in Real Estate stock prices and considerable danger of a drop in Real Estate stock prices.

Traffic Update: What do you do in an emergency situation?

(Editor's note: The following article is presented by the Lubbock Citizens Traffic Commission in cooperation with Update to help keep local motorists better informed on traffic-related matters.)

BACK IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS, when Lubbock traffic proceeded at a more leisurely pace, it was easier for drivers to pull over to the side of the street and give right of way to an emergency vehicle.

Times have changed, though. Now, an emergency vehicle may have some trouble snaking its way through traffic-congested streets.

Most drivers are aware that they should yield right of way to emergency vehicles, but sometimes it's hard to know just how to go about it. What would you do in the following situation?

YOU ARE WESTBOUND on 50th Street and you have to stop for a red light at Avenue U. In your rearview mirror, you see an ambulance coming up be you in your lane. All westbound lanes are full, including the left turn lane. What

According to Lt. Sid Smallwood of the Lubbock Police Department, the driver of the ambulance may motion you to move out of his way. If it is safe to do so, you may go ahead, even though you have the red light, and let the emergen-

The same is true of a firetruck, although elect to cross the median and go around traffic stopped for a red light.

A theoretical question which is posed to him frequently, says Smallwood, is:
What happens if four emergency vehicles approach an intersection at the same time? If there is a fire truck, police car, an ambulance and a blood bank vehicle,

Fire department has the priority, says Smallwood, since time is of the essence. The ambulance goes next.

Capt. Murphy: takes job's adjustments in stride

The dark, unyielding uniform with the metallic "S" on its stiff collar looks strangely misplaced on the shoulders of

At the age of 29, Capt. Phillip Murphy is in transition - a state which Salvation Army officers reach every few years as they change posts.

But the moving goes with the uniform, according to Mur-

Murphy and his wife, Donna, recently came to Lubbock to take over the positions vacated by Maj. and Mrs. Avedis Kasarjian who were transferred to San Angelo.

MOVING SO OFTEN can be unsettling for the Salvation Army man and wife team, as well as to their children, Murphy admitted.

"No matter who you follow, it's always an adjustment," he said. "The most difficult thing is getting people to realize there has been a change

"People keep calling me Major," he said, laughing. Murphy was only recently commissioned a Captain.

After following three other majors, Murphy said his age is usually helpful in convincing people of the changes to

"They realize you are going to do things a little differently when you're younger," he said.

HE WAS RAISED WITHIN the boundaries of the Salvation Army. Murphy's family lived across the street from the Salvation Army post in Memphis, Tenn., and his moth-er took him and his brothers to services and youth pro-

Murphy sees his job as a calling, as does his wife. His position as a minister is important to him, though many people see the organization only as a charity group, he said.
"We're a church and charity organization," he said. "In the early days of Christianity, the church did all the charity

Attitudes toward charity are not at their best lately, Murphy admitted. People want organizations to be accountable for everything they spend, he said.

"I enjoy taking care of the financing and presenting our programs to the public;" he said, "not to boast, but to let people know what we are doing."

"WE'RE ACCOUNTABLE FOR every penny," he stressed. "And a lot of people think we can do more with a penny than any other agency. Murphy has what seems to be a practical attitude toward the organization's charity work.

"I don't mind helping anybody who wants to help themselves. William Booth saw it as a responsibility," he said of the Salvation Army's founder.

"We have to encourage them," he said of the people who patronize the Lubbock center. He recognizes that many people don't want to break away after becoming dependent upon the Army.

Salvation Army officers look for a pattern in behavior, he said, when the same people repeatedly come for help for

"I want to do the very best with whatever the Army gives me," Murphy said. "I'll wear as many hats as are necessary to get the job done.

"IT TAKES SO MUCH," he said, quietly. "Both the men and women are called. In order to do a good job, it takes all of our time," he said, referring to his wife.

Murphy sees a great respect for the Army's work in Lubbock. He hopes to expand or replace the present facilities, he said, but wants to continue the character-building programs started by Maj. Kasarjian.

"Of all the places I've been, this has been the easiest adjustment," Murphy said. Two of his three children — little girls ages 4, 3, and 7 months — are old enough now to realize they will have to move every few years and have come to accept it, as he has, he said.

"The Lord makes the way," he said, "but it's hard to vis-ualize what's down the road."

Swiss Chard — a year-round vegetable

Swiss Chard is one of our few truly year-round vegetables. It tolerates all but the coldest, dry wind in winter and does well in summer heat, too. Swiss Chard is one of the few vegetables that demands a neutral or slightly alkaline soil, so liming may be neces-

It also responds to the addition of a generous quantity of organic matter, especially something like rotted manure. Like all leafy vegetables, it has a fairly high demand for nitrogen and appreciates several sidedressings with a nitrogen fertilizer during the growing sea-

Plants should be spaced 6 inches apart in the row, with rows 18 to 30 inches apart.

Swiss Chard should be harvested by cutting or breaking off the outer leaves when they are approxi-mately 12 to 18 inches tall. If this is done regularly, plants can be harvested over a long period of time. Leaves that get too large and develop tough petioles should be used for the leafy portion only. (c) Gulf Publishing Co.

views and opinions

In the battle for higher wages and better working conditions, some union representatives are finding that striking is a powerful tool.

Firemen in Memphis, as well as teachers in New Orleans and across the nation, have put the striking tool to work, hoping their demands will be

While negotiators battle, over 600,000 students in 13 states are staying out of the classrooms until the teachers' strike ends.

Lubbock residents were asked their opinions of the teachers' strike as well as their views on government and service organizations using striking

Susie Jantzen explained she was in favor of the teachers' strike. "Pressures on teachers are greater today, problems with integration are

"I'm not in favor of striking any time, but especially not teachers or any service group," said Mrs. Paul Sanders. She added that she did not think striking is the answer to the problem. Mrs. Ed Haley explained she thought the strikers were doing the right thing, if the people were not getting what they want. "I don't think it's the best way, because they should be able to talk about their problem," she

Cynthia Miller noted that both her parents are teachers and she empathizes with the demands of teachers. "I don't think striking is the best thing to do, but I understand that if they're not happy with the way they are then they should try to change them," she said, She added that she felt it was bad for the system, especially the children who can't go to school.

"I don't approve of strikes and if anyone is unhappy with their work they should just change it," said Mrs. Gary Burkleo. She added that she believes if a person is dissatisfied with work or pay they should get out without storning production or inconveniencing orthogon. stopping production or inconveniencing others.

Carolyn Roberts explained she did not agree with the teachers' strike be-cause it hurts the children. "Teachers should try to go about getting their demands met in ways that don't harm the economy and the rest of the American people," she explained.

Amity Prodromore noted she was upset about the telephone strike because it would effect her directly. "I think it's unfortunate that people can't find a better way to be heard," she said. She added that striking is an effective means of getting a point across.

"I'm against strikes because they put so many people in danger," ex-plained Mrs. Joe Anderson. She noted the teachers' strike puts children in danger and hurts a lot of innocent people.

Mrs. Larry Isona explained that she sympathizes with the strikers because her husband is a farmer. "Striking is the best way to get attention and it's hard to get people to listen to your problems these days," she said.

junior editor's quiz

QUESTION: Why is cotton so widely grown?

ANSWER: Because it is a plant whose fibers are made into cloth and whose seeds are a valuable source of oil. Cotton cloth is durable, versatile and easy to dye, making it an important and popular textile.

Cotton plants grow all over the world. About 12 million tons of cotton are produced each year, and in many nations it is the main crop. In the United States, cotton grows in a region known as the Cotton Belt that stretches across from Virginia to California. In the U.S., cotton accounts for nearly half of the textile

The cotton plant produces fruits called bolls. These bolls contain long and short fibers. The long fibers are used to make yarns for fabric. Cotton and cotton blend fabrics are common and appear often in our daily lives. Clothing, towels, drapes and upholstery and bedclothes are just some of the many uses for

The short fibers are used to make a number of products. Some of these are cellulose, plastics, film, rayons and explosives. Also felt, padding and absorbent cotton are made from the short fibers.

Seeds from the cotton plant are crushed to produce cottonseed oil, useful in shortening, margarine, salad oil, paint, soap and lubricants.

Church's success linked to congregation

Of one God

Parkway Drive Church of Christ minister Truitt Adair, at far left, credits the church's success to its congregation's ability to accept members of lity to accept me Africa, experi ination as a member of the white minority in Lagos, ohnny Evans, a black man whose religious convictions run deep, sat in a church recently, feeling uneasy amid a sea of black faces. He had trouble keeping still.

"You kind of start looking around and you wonder, 'Hey, what's going on?""

Evans was stricken by culture shock, a malady that's beset other Parkway Drive Church of Christ members who have ventured outside their congregation.

He'd experienced "color" again, and he didn't like it. The shock came because Evans' church at 3120 E. Parkway Drive is, perhaps, one of the largest "mixed" congregations in the area, if not the state.

ONCE A FOUNDERING congregation in a neighborhood plagued by white flight, the church is on the upswing now, its leaders say, a fact evidenced by a membership increase of nearly 100 percent (from 200 to 350) in 21/2 years.

Much of the church's success, says Truitt Adair, a 33year-old minister and native Arizonan who came to Parkway via Nigeria, is due to the congregation's acceptance of members of varied backgrounds.

Should the casual observer drop in on a church service, he'd see about as many white as black faces in the congregation. Recently, to the delight of church leaders, he'd begin to notice more and more brown faces, too. Just as a church-produced brochure proclaims, Parkway sual church. The four-color brochure fairly celebrates the distinctiveness of the congregation.

"WHAT A JOY IT WOULD BE if everyone believed in the brotherhood of all people. God is no respecter of persons — Why should we be? Come enjoy Christian fellowship among our people from many different ethnic and vocational backgrounds. Is this not the way our Lord intended?" the provocative brochure asks.

Rick Childers, a young man of considerable experience and sophistication is an enthusiastic member of the congregation. But there was a time when one aspect of the church

"The hardest thing for me to get used to was the singing." he says, chuckling to himself. "They (the church members) sang the songs like they were in the book. We (black people) used to slow them down some and put some soul into it," he says, laughing once more.

"But after a year, I'm used to it now." Childers, an administrative assistant to City Manager Larry Cunningham, and who tried out for the Kansas City Chiefs football team after his playing days at the University of Tulsa, is now in line to become director of the church's LIKE EVANS, CHILDERS decided to stay at the church because of what he believes is an extraordinarily friendly congregation.

"I feel comfortable. Everyone is friendly. They try to stay in contact with you and they're hard working. That's what convinced us to place our membership there," he

He's also impressed with the determination of white members to remain a part of the congregation.

"I think it's commendable. The neighborhood, at one time, was a white area. The members could have packed up and gone somewhere else." That's exactly what happened in a nearby church, Childers says.

Adair says he's familiar with that kind of cycle, too. "The congregation will just build somewhere else and sell the old building. When the church deserts the community." Adair says, it leaves a real chasm. The father of two girls and two boys, Adair came to Lubbock in 1966 from Phoenix to attend the Sunset School of Eventually, he wound up in Kress where he was a minis ter before returning to the Sunset congregation in Lubbock. Still later he became involved in the church's mission program and eventually was sent to Madras, India, where he helped establish a preaching school.

About a year's worth of red-tape later, Adair got the goahead to travel to Lagos, Nigeria, where he helped found a second school.

There, as a white person, he found what it "was like to be on the other side of the fence.

But "by and large," he says, the Nigerians were wonder-

Adair was one of but a handful of white persons living in a black village peopled by residents who were, to some extent, anti-American and suspicious of whites.

But Adair, who says the school he helped build there is now financially independent, stresses that his African stay was a rich experience overall.

His Lubbock office is decorated with artifacts from his 2½ years in Nigeria, and Adair regularly corresponds with

He no longer views black-white interaction as anything

At Parkway, he doesn't calculate the percentage of whites to blacks, or vice versa.

"We've quit counting. We used to do that. We were real meticulous for awhile. But now we just say we've got so many brothers. We're colorblind," he adds.

In some parts of the country there are "token situations,"

Adair says, relationships which are not "built on love." "We just quit keeping up with (the black-white ratio) about a year ago. We don't feel like it's in keeping with our

One church member, a black man and former militant who "hated white people," has learned to accept them now, Adair says, but it took some work.

Adair was introduced to the man by a hospitalized white church member. The black man was sharing a hospital room, after being injured in an industrial accident.

After months of consultation and visiting in the man's home, Adair was glad to welcome a new church member. He tells a similar story about a white member.

"I had one brother say to me the other day. 'You know, the only black people I ever knew worked as farm hands on my father's farm. Until Parkway, I never got to know personally — any black people. I was always suspicious of them. I know (now) that they are just people."

It's a lesson that's learn Parkway Drive these days.

Chili chefs seek crown at cookoff

Top chili chefs will compete for top honors in a Lubbock Jaycee chili cookoff Saturday three miles north of Slaton and one mile east of State Highway 400. Activities beginning at 10 a.m. also will include pitching, spitting, throwing, eating and drinking contests.

The cooking contest entry fee is $10 per five-person team. Participants will need to bring their own cooking equipment, fuel and firewood.

The chili is to be prepared from scratch at the site, although the meat may be chopped ahead of time

Deadline for cooks will be 3 p.m. Secret judging, complying with the Texas Chili Cooking Association rules, will begin at 6 p.m. Awards will commend taste and showmanship.

The camping area will open at 5 p.m. Friday and will be available through Sunday morning. There will be no charge for camping, although a $2 per person admission will be required.

For pre-registration and rules, interested persons may contact Brent Armstrong at 165-6341 or at 1626 17th St. or Perry Gott at 763-4666 or Lubbock Jaycees, P.O. Box 539.

Our first national rankings of the top 20 college teams are still a week away, but Alabama's decisive win over Nebraska on opening day has put the Crimson Tide in the driver's seat as the Number One team in the country. And this week they meet a team they've never beaten! Missouri holds a two to nothing edge over the Tide, and the Tigers will be playing at home following their big 3-0 upset win over Notre Dame last week. Missouri, 4 and 7 in 1977, would like nothing better than to make the Crimson Tide upset victim number 2. However, Alabama will beat Missouri for the first time . . the

The Penn State-Ohio State clash in Columbus will undoubtedly draw the biggest spotlight of the day. The Buckeyes, 2 and 4 against the Lions, will be opening their 1978 season while Penn State has already beaten Temple and Rutgers. Ohio State's last outing, a 35-6 loss to Alabama in the Sugar Bowl, is a game they'd prefer to forget. And after going down to the last few seconds to beat Temple, the Nit-tany Lions were apparently already thinking Ohio State. Maybe that was the Buckeye trouble in January's Sugar Bowl! So . . in football-mad Columbus . . Ohio State by 13

Another power that will be playing its '78 opener really doesn't want to forget its last outing. The Arkansas Razorbacks administered a real shocker in the Orange Bowl, pounding Oklahoma 31-6. Arkansas was beaten only by Texas, 13-9, en route to a 10 and one season. They host the Commodores of Vanderbilt, 2 and 9 in 1977, in Little Rock. Could be a shellacking . . Arkansas is favored by 28 points.

Kentucky is off probation, and in spite of a couple of big holes left by graduation, the Wildcats will be tough. They open at South Carolina, and the Gamecocks already have a game under thei. belts. Kentucky should win by 17 points. Elsewhere, Colorado is favored over Miami by 16 points. Michigan will whip Illinois by 37 . . Clemson shoud start strong, beating The Citadel by 31 . . and Pittsburgh is 35

Somehow, the recruiting of football talent never ends.

In the final few days before the start of fall workouts, Texas Tech head foot-ball coach Rex Dockery ushered his as-

And, as soon as they had scattered, Dockery took off personally, on a sweep around the state personally, on a sweep around the state checking talent and dropping in for offi-cial visits with some of the young men he knew already that he wanted.

By William D. Kerns Update Entertainment Editor

We've had some disappointments of late. Three concerts have been cancelled in the past two weeks. Waylon Jennings and Tom Petty & The Heartbreakers both cancelled shows due to poor ticket sales. And Wizard Enterprises of Fort Worth recently told Update it was cancelling the Sept. 21 concert by UK and Starcastle because it didn't think it could compete with the big show Sept. 24 by Foreigner in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Sad thing is, that's probably a very correct assumption. But we still have a lot of music to look forward to, thanks to our able club bookers and the upcoming South Plains Fair. Tonight, though, the music fan will have a tough time making a choice. Johnny Duncan, currently nominated with Janie Fricke for best vocal duo by the Country Music Association, is appearing at the Red Raider Nightclub. Joe Ely is back at Cold Water Country, and Celebration is playing very impressive high intensity rock and roll at the Silver Dollar.

Lubbock Theatre Centre's "Man Of La Mancha" begins a seven-performance run tonight. Nothing but reissues and fillers and low-budget efforts starting this week at Lubbock's movie houses, but Home Box Office television is offering the stunning "A Special Day" Saturday night. The film has never been seen in Lubbock.

Once again, if anyone is not yet included in the Take Your Pick listings, that person or organization should feel free to call 762-8844 or write Update, Box 491. Lubbock, Tex 79408. We both need and appreciate your support.

on screen

Sophia Loren: beauty and talent combined She is superb in Saturday's HBO offering of 'A Special Day' Arnett-Benson — "Speedtrap." The film stars Joe Don Baker, thus promising plenty of action. Not having seen it, I'll have to meserve judgment.

Backstage I - "Kentucky Fried Movie." The picture earned a respectable audience and better than average remarks from the nation's critics. The director of this comedy went on to direct "National Lampoon's Animal House," if that's any indication.

Backstone II - "Temptations." X-rated material.

Cinema 1, Moll — "Prime Time." Slipped in as a filler, we know nothing about this picture. Neither did manager Robert Hurley at press time.

Cinema II, Mail — "Hollywood Hillside Strangler." What can I say? More filler. Reportedly gruesome exploitation on the yet unsolved California crime spree, but we haven't seen this one either. Again, even Cinema manager Hurley is in the dark.

ma III, Mall — "National Lampoon's Animal House." John Belushi takes a break from his Not Ready For Prime Time stint on NBC and mugs his way through this wonderfully comic look at '60s campus life. The movie, often tasteless and totally lacking of redeeming social value, is nevertheless a scream. It's as funny as it is sick. So leave the kids at home and enjoy.

Cinema IV, Mall - "Revenge Of The Pink Panther." If you've seen one, you've seen them all -- and now we're seeing them all again. "Revenge" doesn't even concern the Pink Panther; it merely concerns itself with Inspector Clouseau. In other words, director Blake Edwards is guiding Peter Sellers through a series of formula sight gags. Basically, if you liked the previous PP flicks, you'll probably like this one, too. If not,

Cinematheque — Each Wednesday evening, the Cinematheque Film Society presents classic films on the Texas Tech University campus. Tickets may be purchased by the general public, as well as Tech students. This week's offering is the comedy double feature of the 1936 Laurel and Hardy picture "Way Out West," and the 1940 comic combination of W.C. Fields and Mae West in "My Little Chickadee." Show time is 8 p.m., and admission for this double feature is $1.50

Gnemo West - "Skateboard." Capitalking on the current craze, this film has won wide audiences across the nation. Not seen wet.

Fine Arts Drive-In - "Barbara Broadcast" and "Gemini Affair." X-rated material

Fox I - "Grease." The soundtrack album will gross more money than the movie (just like "Saturday Night Fever"), but the young people are still making "Grease" a big winner. The film is a corny look at the 1956s, not at all accurate but occasionally enjoyable. Olivia Newton-John's performance is awful, but John Travolta supplies an admirable energy on screen. And if you'll accept Stockard Channing as a high school senior, well, I guess you'll accept just about anything...

Fox II - "Heaven Can Wait." Still the classiest comedy in town. Warren Beatty plays Fox II — "Heaven Can Walt. Still the classicst cornerly in town, warren bearty plays a Ram quarterback priming for his big game against the Cowboys; but when it appears he'll be killed in a traffic accident, a Heavenly escort (Buck Henry) takes him upstairs before the crash. Oops. It turns out Beatty would have lived and, since his old body was cremated, Heaven has to find him a new body on Earth. That makes for hilarious consequences, all of which are aided by wonderful supporting performances by Dyan Cannon and Charles Grodin (both possible Oscar bids) and Julie Christie. It's a G movie in PG's rlothing, so feel free to take the kids.

Fox III — "Hooper." Nothing but sheer entertainment. Leave your brains at home nd go and enjoy Burt Reynolds and friends showing us the funnier sides of movie stuntmen. There's a new stunt every few minutes, staged by director Hal Needham, reenally successful "Smokey And The Bandit." Co-stars include Brian Keith, Jan-Michael Vincent and Sally Field.

Fox IV - "Foul Play." Goldie Hawn is the divorcee cast accidentally into a murder plot: Chevy Chase is the cop assigned to help her out. There aren't many laughs, note of the original variety anyway, but there are indeed a great many cliches stolen from Hitchcock films. The one who suffers most, though, is Dudley Moore, cast in the embarrassing role of an orchestra conductor who doubles as a sex pervert.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen — "Capricorn One" and "Telethon." For simple minded escapism, it's hard to beat the former picture which deals with a faked space shot. Sam Waterston steals the show, but the cast also includes James Brolin, O.J. Simpson and Brenda Vaccarro. "Telethon" is a disappointing spy picture starring Charles Brouson and Lee Remick, with direction by the usually able Don Siegel.

Golden Herseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen — "CB Hustlers" and "Six Pack Annie." What can I say? You'll know just by reading the titles whether you want to catch these flicks or no

Home Box Office - This pay television st bock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO each weekend evening, and then repeated throughout the week. Tonight will see a Foreign Legion drama titled "March Or Die," starring Gene Hackman and Terence Hill, screened: Saturday will be a VERY good night to stay at home in front of the TV, since HBO will offer an excellent Disney release, "The Apple Dumpling Gang," at 7 p.m. and then follow this with the masterful "A Special Day" at 9 p.m. The former picture stars Tim Conway and Don Knotts, while "A Special Day," which has never before been screened in Lubbock, boasts magnificent performances by Sophia Loren and Marcello Mustroianni. It is not to be missed. Sunday will see HBO premiere the vague, but interesting "The Domino Principle," directed by Lindsey — "American Grafitti" and "The Car." Strange double bill, with the former picture being George Lucas' loving ode to the '80s and the latter a horrible movie about a possessed automobile. Starring James Brolin, "The Car" has to be one of the decade's most senseless wastes of celluloid.

Red Roider Drive-In — "Alice, Sweet Alice" and "Fright." Two shockers we know nothing about. Management indicates that violence should be at a premium.

Showplece I — "Up In Smoke." Attracting stapendous crowds, "Up In Smoke" is a juvenile look at the counter culture by way of ten-year-old gags and stupid plot directions. High schoolers and those younger, the ones who see pot solely as a "brick" road to "munchie-land," may find it amusing. It was definitely not made to appeal to the older crowd since, when asked if the movie would succeed, Cheech & Chong said, "Sure. After all, millions of people smoke dope." Nevertheless, if this movie was grass, not even the kids would spend their money on it.

Showplace II — "Enter The Dragon." The first Bruce Lee film financed by an American film company, the production values on this Warner Bros. release are excellent. The plot is still of the comic book variety, but Lee was a master at turning comic books into enthralling action pictures. If you've never seen a Bruce Lee picture, this is the one to see first. It remains his best work.

Showpless III — "The Cheap Detective." A return engagement for the most recent Neil Simon film. It's much better than his abysmal "Murder By Death," but not quite up to the standards set by "The Goodbye Girl." Starring Peter Falk in the title role, the new film is a take-off on all those Sam Spade-Philip Marlowe-Humphrey Bogart detective movies, with plenty of punny (sorry) references to films like "To Have And Have Not," "The Big Sleep" and "Casablanca."

Showplece IV — "Piranha." Filmed in San Marcos, gore is not spared in this picture which sees killer fish frequenting a popular lake. Lots of kids get chewed up in this adventure flick. Ah yes, where's the gallant Flipper now that we need him?

- "Avalanche." The last I looked it was still too hot (anything over 70 degrees is too hot for this Yankee writer) to even think about snow — so guess what producer Roger Corman is giving us as a summer release! The film has a notable star in Rock Hudson. And Corman, known as a pulp filmmaker who gives newcomerc a shot at stardom, spent more money on this film than on any previous effort. Filmed in Colorado, this picture had its world premiere in Denver about one month back.

Coming Soon — The South Plains Cinema plans October openings for Robert Altman's "A Wedding," Woody Allen's "Interiors" and a new film called "Midnight Express." And "Goin' South," starring Jack Nicholson and John Belushi, will also open at this mail theater complex next month.

his mall theater complex next month.

The Fox still has "Big Wednesday" and "The Driver" on hold, with October bookings slated for "Death On The Nile" starring Peter Ustinov and "Boys From Brazil" starring Gregory Peck and Laurence Olivier. The end of September will see the Winchester open the Charles Colson story "Born Again" and the Cinema West open Farrah Fawcett-Majors' debut starring vehicle "Somebody Is Killing Her Husband." (Hopefully she'll fare better than her bit part in "Logan's Run.")

October openings at Showplace include "The Big Fix" starring Richard Dreyfuss and "Comes A Horseman," featuring Jane Fonda, Jason Robards and James Caan.
Upcoming offerings on HBO this month include William Friedkin's superb "Sorcerer," "A Piece Of The Action," "I Never Promised You A Rose Garden" and the never-seen-in-Lubbock "September 39, 1955" starring Richard Thomas.
