Kids risking lives by crossing loop on way to school By Jeff South Update Staff Writer

Some children still are risking their lives by darting across Loop 289 to get to and from school. It is a very dangerous practice, but select office the select of the sel dangerous practice, but safety officials say they are

"The loop obviously is not designed for pedestrians. When students try to cross it on foot or by bike, they put themselves in a most hazardous situation," Bill McDaniel, traffic director for the City of Lubbock, said.

He told Parent-Teacher Association representatives that the problem will persist until the Lubbock Independent School District builds schools in neighborhoods south of Loop 289, thus eliminating the need for youngsters to trav-

"Unfortunately, it doesn't look as if we will have schools south of the loop for quite some time," because construction monies are tied up in the appeal of the district's desegregation case. McDaniel said.

In the meantime, he urges parents to organize carpools so children can be driven to school from areas outside Loop 289. And if students must walk or take bikes, they should be ordered to use the loop's underpasses, preferably at in-tersections controlled by traffic lights, McDaniel said.

McDaniel spoke at a workshop on school-related traffic problems. The meeting was organized by Neriman Guven, safety chairman for the Lubbock City Council of Parents and

"I've never seen anything close to being that dangerous," said David Ray, Smylie Wilson Junior High counselor. "A lot of kids are having to cross the loop — often they're even pulling along their bicycles.

"We strongly encourage parents to get together and drive students to and from school," said pupil personnel director Bill Parker, who is in charge of school safety.

"Loop 280 is too dangerous to be crossed by hot. If children must walk to school from south of the loop, they should cross under the loop at the traffic lights" at the University Avenue or Indiana Avenue intersections.

Ray suggested that pedestrian walkways stretching over Loop 280 might be built to alleviate the hazard. McDaniel said the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation has studied such a proposal. But the cost of a single pedestrian bridge, he said, would exceed $100,000.

A problem, McDaniel added, is that there are "no assurances children would use a walkway if one were built. If they think it's more convenient to run right across the loop, I'm afraid they're going to keep doing it."

Besides running across the freeway, some other students take a similarly hazardous route, McDaniel said. They cross under the loop by walking through a drainage culvert, sometimes pushing their hicycles along.

McDaniel described the culvert as a "long dark tunnel. I was shocked when I went out there and saw kids using it."

24-hour hotline aids city battle on crime

But McGlaun added that instead of waiting for persons to contact the speaker's bureau, bureau personnel will take the initiative and offer their services to these groups.

"We're going to knock on their doors and not wait for them to knock on ours," he said.

CITING THE program's success in other communities across the country, McGlaun warned that Lubbock's effort would only be as effective as the citizens want it to be.

Who should stop crime, the vigilantes or the citizens?" McGlaun

The program received an initial funding of $7,000 from the Chamber of Commerce, but McGlaun said the program's future depends on citizen response.

"The program will just follow whatever road citizens want it to take," McGlaun said. "It will be an ongoing program because there is no end to crime or education."

Black and yellow brochures and bumper stickers displaying the crimealert hotline number are available at the Chamber of Commerce, 14th Street and Avenue K.

David Forrest Dunkle Jr., 21, of 5302 11th St., No. 153, and Irving resident John Morris Lambert, 22, the plane's pilot, were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace

Officials said Lambert radioed into Lubbock Approach Control at 2:21 a.m. that he was making an instrument landing. However, radio contact was lost at 2:35 a.m. and the airport tower alerted emergency crews that there was a possible plane crash.

BUT AUTHORITIES did not find the wreckage until about four hours later in a cotton field about a quarter-mile south of FM 1294 and a mile east of the Amarillo Highway. At the time of the crash, airport officials said, visibility in the fog was % of a mile and visibility on the runway was 2,000 feet.

The plane had left Dallas' Love Field Airport about 12:30 a.m. and was scheduled to land in Lubbock about 2 a.m. with a cargo of cancelled checks from the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas. The Cessna 310 was registered to Astro Wing Inc., a Dallas courier service.

Patents give U.S. the business

YESTERDAY, THE American male did many things that are part of his routine daily living experience. He shaved with an electric or novel safety razor. His breakfast toast was made in an automatic toaster.

He rode to work in an automobile with sophisticated engineering. He talked on the telephone and even may have worn a double-knit suit. That evening he listened to his quadraphonic sound system and later watched the evening news on color TV.

As an American, he enjoys the highest standard of living of all the world's people. Most, if not all, can be attributed to a remarkable and precious thing - freedom.

For years, Americans have been free to innovate - to create - and to market their inventions in a free-market economic sys-

PATENT PROTECTION has created new business enterprises and encouraged the genius of millions by giving inventors an op-portunity to profit from their labors on an exclusive basis for a limited (17 years) time.

The result has been the growth of new industries. Jobs have been provided, new products discovered and better uses for old ones invented.

Despite these benefits, there seems to be a whittling away of patent owner rights. Specifically, the validity of patents and rights dealing with licensing practices have been so eroded and threatened that the patent incentive is endangered.

The steady erosion of patent rights has existed for many years, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., a non-profit group dedicated to preserving the patent ystem as an incentive to innovation and with respect to patent rights is difficult when two agencies of the Federal government have differing viewpoints.

The Commerce Department seeks to promote business growth and to protect private initiatives. The Justice Department specifically the Antitrust Division - seems to subscribe to the simplistic syllogism that "monopolies are bad for the nation, patents are monopolies; therefore, patents are bad for the nation.'

To antitrust lawyers and the courts "monopoly" is a dirty word - and they are right. But they think patents are monopolies - and this is not right.

A monopoly deprives the public of the right to make a choice - it takes from them. A patent takes nothing from the public, it actually gives something to them - a new product.

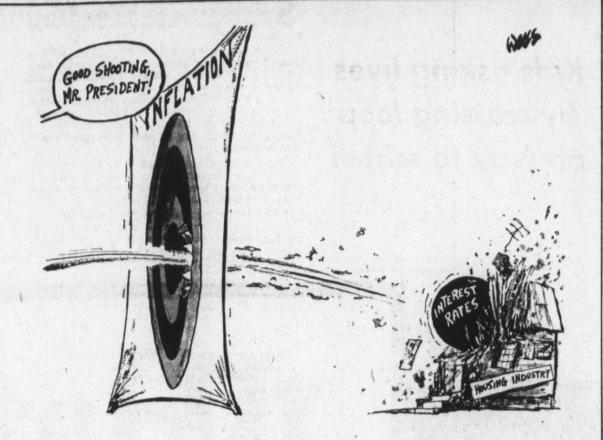

Monopolies - or the thought of monopolies - bother the courts. A 1970 court decision proclaimed: "Monopolies, even those conferred by patents, are not viewed with ATTITUDES TOWARD patents vary in our 11 judicial districts. In holding patent validity, the 8th Circuit held that in 17 cases, none was valid.

The 5th Circuit held that 16 of 31 cases were valid.

As more and more court decisions tend to give less protection to inventors for their discoveries, the threat to basic research and product development grows greater. Eventu-ally the patent system could become so ineffective that the nation's technical and industrial strength could suffer.

In time, the American people will be de-prived of inventions and discoveries made possible by a system which has fostered innovativeness for almost 200 years.

Heating system checks essential

Chilly nights are becoming the rule rather than the exception. Football players' breath is visible on the television screen. And anti-freeze commercials are more frequently heard on the radio.

It is time once again to dust off the furnace and light the pilot. But there are once things that should be done before the match is struck and some signs of nger to watch for after the gas is flowing.

heating unit dealers in Lubbock agreed that the great majority of in the Lubbock area are heated with natural gas, with the remainder

Gas, used properly, is an efficient fuel, but under different circumstances it can be deadly. A gas leak from the heating unit or the ventilation system can lead to an explosion in the home. Fortunately gas has an easily identifiable

CARBON MONOXIDE poisoning is another possibility from gas heating, ac-ording to Robert Stokes, assistant fire marshal of the Lubbock Fire Depart-ment. Carbon monoxide is odorless and invisible, said Stokes, and a faulty ation system will allow it to seep into the home

Symptoms of carbon monoxide contamination include headaches, nausea, ringing noises in the head and windows sweating, said Ronald Brady, manager of Brady Plumbing, Heating, Cooling & Supply. Sometimes it can be detected by the reaction of pets, he added.

uadding against both of these threats requires a safe ventilation system skes said the homeowner can help himself by checking the ventilation pipe on the heating unit through the ceiling and attic and out through the roof, so check for a weather cap on the top of the ventilation pipe to protect ainst debris and wind forcing the gas back into the home.

IF, AFTER performing this task and lighting the pilot, the person smells as or suspects carbon monoxide in his home, the fire department will "be had to come out and inspect anyone's heating unit," Stokes said. The inspectors are provided free, he added.

The component parts of the heating unit itself also should be inspected prior Regular replacement of the air filter — about every three months in the average home — improves the efficiency of the heating unit, according to E.H. Armstrong of Armstrong Mechanical Inc. He advised checking the blower at the same time the filter is examined because the two parts regulate the flow of air in the combustion chamber.

MAINTENANCE of the other parts of the heating unit will usually require a competent serviceman. "The heat exchanger is the most important thing to be cleaned," said Clayton Willingham, owner of Clayton's Heating & Air Conditioning. Rusting from the combustion process, if severe enough, will necessitate disassembling the exchanger and vacuuming the burners, where the rusted material has fallen, he said.

The efficiency of the heating unit is affected by the air mixture in the burners, Armstrong said. He suggested having the burners adjusted annually by a

Stokes said the fire department is not allowed to adjust the burners, but it will advise the homeowner what it thinks is the proper combustive air mix-

The examination of the heating unit finished, the owner should then inspect

"You will find that nearly all fires caused in homes are caused by materials stored in furnace closets or water heating closets," Brady said. Remove all flammable materials stored near the furnace, he urged.

Place no furniture near a wall heater, Stokes said, and no carpet or rug over

IN ARRANGING furniture, also avoid obstructing the return air vents, Brady commented. The air vents are usually located around the floor and baseboard and recycle the air used in the combustion process. Blockage of those vents will hinder the efficiency of the heating unit, he explained.

A final note to veteran homeowners. According to Brady, about 25 years ago copper gas lines were installed in some Lubbock homes. More recently built homes do not have copper lines because the natural are now more than the process.

Bales of cotton

Dr. Leslie C. Drew, left, director of The Museum of Texas Tech University, accepts a check for $2,187.50 from Tony Price, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association. The check amounted to the current market value of about eight bales of cotton and will be used for maintenance and development of the Moss Memorial Goodman Gin, a 100-year-old outdoor exhibit (in background) at the Museum. The money was a consultant's fee paid Price by the Ranching Heritage Association for his assistance with the first National Golden Spur Award, presented Sept. 22 in Lubbock.

Every Friday at 2:15 p.m., Hodges Elementary School gets as quiet as a deserted spaceship. Everybody, from Principal Dennis Hargrove on down, must read silently from a favorite book or magazine.

Just to make sure they do, Hargrove may have the feared Darth Vader lurking in the hallways.

Like many kids, Hodges students are part of the "Star Wars" cult. Some of them have seen the movie several times and wear to school T-shirts inspired by the film.

SO HARGROVE AND HIS faculty decided to make the fad the theme for a weekly "sustained silent reading" program at their school, 5001 Ave. P.

"Star Wars" posters made by students adorn the walls.

And they sport slogans which, if you put together the first letter of each word, spell the name of the popular movie.

Hargrove's own poster motto was: "Save Time And Reach Wonderful Adventures Reading Shares." The principal admits that his students came up with better slogans. Though the theme may sound corny, the enthusiasm it generates is for a most serious cause - improvement of reading skills, especially in reading to yourself. "Very few of us sit down and read a book aloud for pleasure. Almost all the reading we do for fun and enjoyment - and for studying - is silent reading," Hargrove said.

READING SILENTLY FOR AN extended length of time is a skill unto itself, he said. Yet, Hargrove said, schools "seem to have neglected this skill. So much of our classroom work is based on oral responses."

Hodges and many other elementary schools in Lubbock now set aside a specific time each week for sustained silent reading. Hodges' period is held Friday afternoons from

During that time, everyone - from the principal and custodian, to the teachers and students — must read quietly. "Thirty minutes is too long an attention span for small children, so they may read to themselves for only five or 10 minutes. Then the teacher might read to them," Hargrove

BUT YOUNGSTERS IN THE upper grades are asked to read for the entire half-hour.

"Students are allowed to read whatever material they wish - books, magazines or newspapers," Hargrove said. Many bring in books from home; other children check them out of the school library.

Kindergarteners and other kids too young to actually read browse silently through picture-books, Hargrove said.

James Baker, Lubbock Independent School District consultant for intermediate-grade language arts, said such reading programs are significant because they demonstrate 'total involvement of the school."

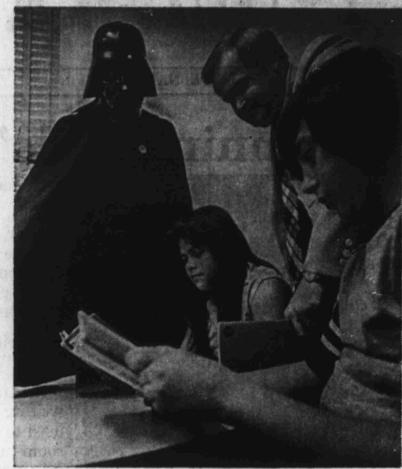

"Children benefit by realizing that sometimes it is important enough to stop everything else and simply read to themselves," Baker said.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE IS that students get to see their peers and adults — even their principal — reading, Baker said. Hopefully, he added, silent reading as a group at school will spill over into a family activity at home.

Baker helped Hodges kick off the reading program this month. In line with the "Star Wars" theme, he dressed as the villainous Darth Vader and roamed the school to enforce the code of silence.

Hargrove has developed other incentives, too. He plans to have children come to school Jan. 12 dressed up as their favorite literary characters.

Also, at the end of the school year, Hargrove intends to honor the students who have read the most by giving them certificates, treating them to a movie and possibly awarding them miniature statues of "Star Wars" characters.

Lubbock pair share ideas, experiences

Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Holeman of Lubbock recently returned from Columbia, South America. The Lubbock couple, along with more than 60 other Americans, took part in the 10th "Encuentro International." The encounter for members of Alcoholics Anonymous and Alanon is held each year in Cartagena, Columbia.

The purpose for the encounter is to share ideas and A.A. experiences between members from different countries. Until 1977, only Spanish speaking members attended; now, all meetings are bilingual with on-the-spot translations of all talks and comments. This method allows sharing between members who would otherwise not be able to communicate. The theme for the 10th Encounter was "Serenity — Courage — Wisdom." Open meetings were held and individual workshops and discussion sessions highlighted the three day program. Seven countries took part in the encounter.

Most members, numbering 700, used time before or after the meeting to tour Cartagena. "The Heroic City" was the most important seaport of the Spanish Empire in the New World. Cartagena is the only walled city remaining in the Americas. Efforts are being made to preserve the fortresses, walls, and colonial churches. The city is a popular vacation destination because of its many beaches, sidewalk cafes, horsedrawn cabs, and boat trips to nearby islands in the Caribbean Sea.

Hello Katherine Paterson

Hello Winning Kids' Writer

Katherine Paterson won the country's top award in children's literature for 1978.

She won for her book, "The Bridge to Terabithia" (ter-a-BITH-ee-ah).

"People are always surprised when they meet me," she told The Mini Page.

"I'm just a regular old mother," she added.

Mrs. Paterson has four children. Her husband is a Presbyterian minister in Takoma Park, Maryland.

The award she won was the Newbery Award.

"What does winning this award mean to you?" we asked her.

"A lot more mail and a lot more telephone calls . . . and people say a lot more money," she answered.

Mrs. Paterson won her first

Katherine Paterson at her typewriter. Sometimes she types her stories. Other times she writes in longhand.

The Newbery Award is presented each year by the Children's Services Division of the American Library Association.

prize for writing when she was 7.

Later, when she decided to become a professional writer, she went for seven years before getting anything published.

"I write books in fits and starts," she said.

She tries to do most of her writing in the morning. She used to write on the dining room table. Now, she works in a study.

Mrs. Paterson was born in China and spent her childhood there. Her father was a missionary. She went to school in China and in the U.S. She also lived for four years in Japan. All of her other books have been about Japan.

This is Children's Book Week. This year's theme is "Hello Book!" This week is sponsored by the Children's Book Council. The purpose is to promote good children's books.

Hello winning book

Although the story is fictitious or made up, the idea for the book grew out of the death of one of her son's best friends.

Terabithia is a secret place in the woods. It is a make-believe, magical kingdom shared by two children.

In the book, Jess Aarons, a poor farm boy, wants to be the fastest runner in his school.

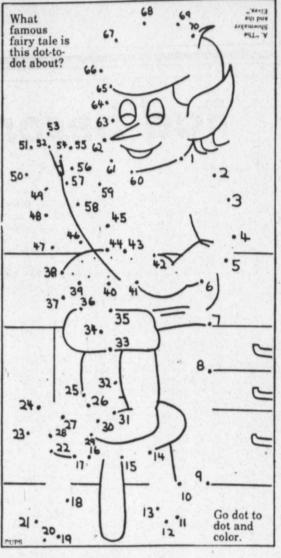

Leslie Burke moves into the rural community. Leslie's family are city folks. They have come to the country so Leslie's mother can write.

Leslie Burke is a runner, too ... a very fast runner. She beats Jess in a race at school.

The two soon become best friends. Theirs is a warm story of friendship and understanding.

Hello Winning Artist Peter Spier

Peter Spier won the top award as an artist for a children's book in 1978.

He won the Caldecott medal for the book "Noah's Ark." He has illustrated over 150 books in the past 20 years. He has written books, too. He told The Mini Page about the steps he goes through to create a book.

"I have a whole list of ideas. I write on the back of envelopes and on sheets of paper. Sometimes I make lists on church bulletins." "I put the ideas in a big supermarket box. When I start a new book, I go to the box to see what is in it," he said.

When he decides on a title or a subject, he goes to the library to find out what has been done.

Once he decides on an idea, he does his research and makes a

If type is to be set, he sends the copy to the printers. Then he "hits the road" to make hundreds of sketches. He never works from photographs.

When he gets back to his studio, work begins. He starts his illustrations. He illustrates two books a year. Mr. Spier is from the Netherlands. He decided to become an artist at the age of 17 and went to art school. Later he went to work for a Dutch weekly newspaper as a reporter. He came to this country in 1953 and moved first to Houston, Texas, and then to New York.

He now lives in Shoreham, New York. He enjoys sailing and ship-model building. His wife is a DRIVERS BEWARE! The intersection of Boston Avenue and 58th Street is now guarded by 4-way stop signs. No longer can you zip down Boston Avenue between 50th Street and 64th Street without a stop. So slow down a little and watch for the new stop sign.

SPEAKING OF signs ... City traffic engineer Bill McDaniel reports that there has been an increase in sign vandalism during the past several months. Some people seem to think it is funny to remove stop signs from the posts, or obliterate them with paint, or switch them with yield

This vandalism is dangerous and expensive to taxpayers. The absence of a stop sign could cause an accident resulting in property damage, injury or even death. Even if no accident occurred as a result of the vandalism, there is still a cost to the taxpayer, McDaniel says. New signs have to be installed and a workman has to be paid overtime to do the work at

Though "Midnight Express" remains the best film playing Lubbock these days (and "Up In Smoke" remains the worst), it mght be wise to catch "The Big Fix" this weekend. Showplace officials have announced that the Richard Dreyfuss vehicle will be moved out Wednesday, in favor of a family Thanksgiving offering called "Across The Great Divide."

Midnight shows will continue tonight and Saturday of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" at the South Plains Cinema — which should hereby be labeled THE ZOO, thanks to the unruly crowds. Despite the pleas of management and the media, the vandalism continued last weekend. Tomatoes were thrown at the screen, and the glass front door to the theater was kicked out. So were another two dozen viewers.

The sexual farce "Not With My Daughter" continues at the Country Squire Dinner Theater. And this is the final weekend you'll be able to catch "The Odd Couple" at Lubbock Theatre Centre.

The Hilton Inn has opened a new club on the first floor, but some of the best music tonight will come from St. Elmo's Fire at Rox.

Once again, if anyone is not yet included in the Take Your Pick listings, that person or organization should call 762-8844 or write Update, Box 491, Lubbock, Texas 79408. We both need and appreciate your support — and your cooperation in meeting our deadlines.

on screen

The sea makes no promises — horror returns in "Jaws 2"
Toothy sequel now heading into final weekend at two Lubbock theaters

Arnett-Benson — "Jaws 2." The problem with sequels is that viewers invariably hold them up to the originals for comparison. But on a comparative basis, sequels rarely work — though there are exceptions like "The Godfather, Part Two" and "French Connection !!." Yet if people would only judge "Jaws 2" on its own merits, rather than holding it against the stylistic success of Steven Spielberg's original, they would no doubt come away very pleased. There is more than enough suspense, and Roy Scheider lends his usual perceptive performance.

Backstage I — "Saturday Night Fever." I did not think this film was all that overwhelming when I first saw it, but neither did I find it to be totally worthless. John Travolta's dance scenes are mesmerizing, and the young actor does possess a goodly amount of screen energy (though his Oscar nomination remains a travesty). And Donna Pescow, playing the rejected girlfriend who finally submits to group sex in the back seat, offers a powerful, brilliant performance in this film which I still maintain is much too rough for young audiences.

Backstone II - "Psychiatrist." X-rated material

Cinema I, Mall — "Midnight Express." This picture ranks right up at the top with "Coming Home" and "Blue Collar" in my mind as the very best picture of the year. Certainly it is more compelling as a TRUE story of the human struggle against incredible odds. The film stars Brad Davis as Billy Hayes, a young American who foolishly tries to smuggle hashish out of Turkey, gets caught and sentenced to a punishment which is too severe to come close to fitting the crime. Though no one will beat out Jon Voight for next spring's Oscar, Davis comes much closer than one might initially expect. And if only for his depiction of pure white rage in Hayes' killing of the stoolie Rifky, director Alan Parker should also win a nomination. Look for more to be awarded in categories of supporting performances, cinematography and, perhaps, music. "Midnight Express" is a film which gets beneath the viewer's skin. It is horrifyingly powerful. And it should not be missed by anyone with a strong heart.

Cinema II, Mall — "National Lampoon's Animal House." This picture has been held over through the end of November, and Cinema manager Robert Hurley hints that it might not get kicked out until the Christmas releases arrive. John Belushi is still drawing sellout crowds on the weekends, not to mention a recent cover of Newsweek. With cries of "Toga!," audiences are laughing wildly at this irreverent rendition of '60s campus routine.

Cinema III, Mall — "Goin' South." Director Jack Nicholson focuses his cameras on actor Jack Nicholson a bit too much in this uneven comedy-western. Pacing is erratic, though the supporting performances are wonderful. And yes, that's John Belushi playing the Mexican deputy, folks. Still, Nicholson's mugging gets tedious and the overall picture promises more than it delivers.

Cinemo IV, Mall — "Heroes." Jeremy Paul Kagan went on to direct "The Big Fix." but he didn't fare as well with this little effort starring Henry Winkler and Sally Field. The mood jumps from the serious to the comic throughout, never really allowing the audience to develop any sort of empathy. Look for a good supporting performance, though, from Harrison Ford as Winkler's unstable buddy from Vietnam.

Cinematheque — Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, there will be no Cinematheque screening on the Texas Tech University campus this week.

Cinema West — "The Courage Of Lassie." If any family film should do big business in Lubbock, this is it. Starring Jimmy Stewart, this new Lassie movie drew large crowds to New York's Radio City Music Hall earlier this year. We'll take a deeper look at the film next week.

Fine Arts Drive-In "Emmanuel In Bangkok" and "Reunion." X-rated material.

Fox I — "The Wild Geese." Though it offers enough action and killing for fans of that particular genre, this tongue-in-cheek adventure story will prove to be disappointing for the rest. Richard Burton, Richard Harris and Hardy Kruger lead an all-star cast as mercenaries hired to rescue an African leader — but the film's philosophzing about black and white problems in Africa just doesn't work. Still, there are quite a few laughs, thanks to the fact nobody seems to take his role seriously.

Fox II — "They Went That-A-Way And That-A-Way." This Tim Conway conception has increased its business with every passing week, no small feat for an independent release. I haven't seen the picture yet, but it's impossible not to respect Conway's comedic prowess.

Fox III — "Who Is Killing The Great Chefs Of Europe?" Here's a new comedy which has earned some truly bright reviews, thanks to performances by Robert Morley, George Segal and Jacqueline Bisset. This is its first screening in Lubbock.

Fox IV — "The Boys From Brazil." OK, so you're not going to belive the plotline of cloning little Hitlers. Still, you'll accept it for a couple hours as this grisly, gory entertainment grabs your attention. Gregory Peck goes against type casting in accepting the role of sadistic Nazi geneticist Josef Mengele. But it is Laurence Olivier, the supreme craftsman, who keeps us involved from beginning to end with a performance which may see him win yet another Oscar nomination. Beware: the final showdown between Peck and Olivier and a pack of slobbering, vicious Dobermans is both frightening and extremely bloody.

Space cop chases spaceship breaking speed limits in 'Message from Space New Japanese film stars Vic Morrow and promises special effects fun

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen — "Convoy" and "Semi-Tough." Both films star Kris Kristofferson, though the bearded sex symbol really can't be held responsible for the overall effect. "Convoy" is a pile of trash, but the blame has to be placed squarely on the shoulders of director Sam Peckinpah. "Semi-Tough" has its fine moments, though it certainly doesn't live up to Dan Jenkins' hilarious literature. But the laughs aren't inspired by Kristofferson — no, instead it's Burt Reynolds whose timing pays off.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Bock Screen — "Message From Space" and "Jason And The Argonauts." The former picture is a brand new release from Japan, starring Vic Morrow and boasting better than average special effects, according to press material. Sources say, however, this is a shot by shot exploitation of "Star Wars." But "Jason And The Argonauts" is worth seeing, if only for Ray Harryhausen's excellent animation.

Home Box Office — This pay television station offers movies not presently on Lubbock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO each weekend evening, and then repeated throughout the month. Tonight will see Richard Burton star in the horror flick "The Medusa Touch," followed by UPCLOSE interviews with Henry and Jane Fonda. Saturday will see two fine movies screened: Claude LeLouche's recent western called "Another Man, Another Chance," starring James Caan and Genevieve Bujold; and "Shampoo," a Warren Beatty success. Then on Sunday, a portion of the music fans may be interested in seeing a program called "At The Fair," featuring concert appearances by Pat and Debby Boone, Lynn Anderson, Seals & Crofts, Eddie Rabbitt and Fred Travalena. It was filmed at the Minnesota State Fair.

Lindsey — "Speedtrap" and "Cannonball." Two action pictures. The former stars Joe Don Baker, while the latter features David Carradine. You can catch both flicks for just $1.

Red Ruider Drive-In — "Traigo La Sangre Caliente" and "El Secuestro." Spanish

Showplace I — "Up In Smoke." Texas was a test market for this doper's delight, and evidently the picture passed the test of audience approval. Too bad, as this is a horribly boring piece of garbage which shouldn't entertain anyone over the age of 12. The dialogue consists of phrases like "Hey, man" and "You know, man" and "Oh, man" and "Wow, man." The credits, however, do not list any character as being named Man.

Showplace II — "Grease." John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John star in this business deal set to music. Robert Stigwood produced this effort, and butchered the stage play in the transformation process. Travolta manages to come away with his reputation (his energy is still admirable), but Miss Newton-John should consider this film a lesson — or a warning. Still, it's a financial success, with every bopper in the country seeing it twice and then buying the soundtrack. Fact is, the soundtrack album has made more money than the film!

Showplace III — "Halloween." A horror tale which has won some good reviews. I haven't seen it yet.

Shewplace IV — "The Big Fix." I've seen this film four times thus far, and have found it even more entertaining with each viewing. Certainly the most intelligent contemporary detective film since Arthur Penn's "Night Moves," it has the added draw of Richard Dreyfuss playing private eye Moses Wine. A flawed character, yes, but a beautiful performance — full of laughs and tears and anger and, yes, humanity. An excellent motion picture.

Showplace V — "Comes A Horseman." I still haven't found time to see this picture, though it's not because of lack of interest. The plot sounds familiar: the lady rancher trying to hold on to her land, losing to a corrupt businessman until a quiet stranger rides in to help out. Still, one would expect the stellar cast of Jane Fonda, James Caan and Jason Robards to breathe life into even this apparently hackneyed material.

Showplace VI — "Message From Space." See Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back

Village — Same as the Arnett-Benson

Winchester — "Blazing Saddles." An uproarious, outrageous, irreverent comedy from the Mel Brooks stable. You haven't seen a western like this before, and traditionalists won't want to! Gene Wilder gives a superlative performance, but receives ample help from Cleavon Little, Slim Pickens and Harvey Korman. Not to mention Madeline Kahn, who earned award nominations. But beware: this is the "Animal House" of the Brooks gente.

Coming Soon — Showplace Six manager Steve Richerson says he's going to have to take off "The Big Fix" on Wednesday, so he can come in with "Across The Great Divide." The Fox plans to start the Disney re-issue double bill of "Escape To Witch Mountain" and "Return To Witch Mountain." Indeed, it looks like the family product is being brought in to capitalize on the Thanksgiving holiday season.

Midnight Shows — The Fox Theater will screen Stanley Kubrick's classic "2001: A Space Odyssey" at midnight Friday and Saturday. And the South Plains Cinema will continue to screen "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," though the immature antics of some are spoiling the fun of those who come just to have a good time. Bringing in tomatoes and pickles to throw at a $1,200 screen is a useless fad — and who can blame manager Robert Hurley for cracking down and removing troublemakers from his theater? Despite the film's profit-making ability, I look for the theater to stop showing the film as soon as its contract is up — solely because of the vandals in attendance.

November 21, The Nighthowks — This highly applauded Washington-based blues band has been featured in Playboy, the Washington Star and a slew of other newspapers and music journals. It will be playing one-night-only at Stubb's Barbeque as a Thanksgiving special concert. Call Stubbs for prices.

November 30, Vince Vance & The Valiants — This band can be depended on to provide a look at the '50s, a lot of rock and roll and even a few jokes. They'll be playing at Cold Water Country, and a $4 cover charge will get you inside to hear them.

December 1-6, "Who's Hoppy Now?" — Lab Theater officals expect large crowds for this play, slated to be performed at 8:15 p.m. each night on the Texas Tech University campus. Tickets are priced at $2 for the general public, and $1.50 for Tech students. Reservations are now being accepted.

December 2-3, "The Nutcrocker" — This performance of the popular holiday season ballet "The Nutcrocker" is a joint production of the Lubbock Civic Ballet and the Texas Tech University Symphony Orchestra. It will also serve as the 19th annual Children's Christmas Concert. The ballet will be performed at 8 p.m. Dec. 2 and at 3 p.m. Dec. 3 at the Civic Center theater. Tickets are priced at $4, $6 and $8. Contact the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council office at the Chamber of Commerce building for ticket information.

December 5, "Play It Again, Sam" — More fun from the witty pen of Woody Allen. This comic hit will be staged throughout the Christmas season at the Country Squire Dinner Theater. See the theater's listing under Nightlife for ticket prices.

December 7, Gene Watson — Country singer Gene Watson, who had a hit with "One Sided Conversation," will make an appearance at Cold Water Country. The cover charge has been set at $4.

December 8, Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge — This dynamic husband & wife singing team are both deserving of headline status. Kristofferson has drawn sellout crowds in the past in Lubbock, but now it's Rita who is hot on the charts. They'll be appearing together in an 8 p.m. concert at the Lubbock Civic Center exhibition hall. All seats are reserved. Tickets are now on sale at Hemphill-Wells and the Civic Center box office, priced at $7.50 and $8.50. A sellout is naturally expected.

December 14, Mank Thompson — This legendary country singer will make a return appearance at Cold Water Country. There will be a $4 cover charge.

December 16, Joy Boy Adems — Lubbock's Jay Boy is finally coming home to play for the home folks at The Rox. Adams has two LPs out on the Atlantic label, and recently played Carnegie Hall with Joe Cocker. This should be a musical highlight next month. The cover charge has not yet been determined, but a source told me "we plan to keep the admission price down for the home folks."

Native foods, traditions provide cooking challenge

By Connie Chapmar Update Staff Writer

Using foods which are distinctively American has long been a challenge to Betty Nicholson. Several years ago a foreign student made the comment to her that Americans didn't have any native foods or food traditions. Mrs. Nicholson took that challenge to heart and has made a specialty of recipes that do utilize many of the foods which are native to America or to the New World. Her collection fills a large stack of books, clippings and notebooks.

The collection includes one cookbook which has been in her family since Revolutionary War days and has been added to by several generations. Recently her friend, Mrs. Henry Olis of Levelland, had the book rebound.

ANOTHER INTEREST which has contributed to Mrs. Nicholson's collection is regional foods of our country. Since she and her husband, Dr. Robert D. Nicholson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, have lived in many different parts of the country, she has had ample opportunities to learn of regional differences and specialties. It is interesting to her to see the changes different areas make in

The common items of coffee and tea are examples she laughs about. "In New York you just know you're going to get your coffee with cream and in Texas you just know you're going to get your tea with ice!'

Indians in America had more domestic plants than were under cultivation in Europe at the same time," Mrs. Nicholson said. "Everybody knows of corn, but did you know there were six colors of corn plus popcorn? Blue corn was sacred to the Indians of the southwest as red corn was to the Indians in the northeast. Irish potatoes were thought to have originated in Peru and, of course, there were tomatoes and peanuts."

WHAT DOES BARBECUE mean to you? Mrs. Nicholson said that the term depends on the area of the coutry in which you grew up. In some place places, barbecue means anything cooked over a fire, and in others it refers to things cooked in a particular kind of sauce. Another fascinating category is beans and peas. "I once counted 45 names of beans and peas," she reports. Climates and agricultural practices affect the variety in different regions. English peas, for example, grow in the north where the growing season is shorter and down here field peas are all the thing.

Bread is another category which has come to her attention. When, as a bride, she moved to Tennessee the congregation gifted her with bread pans - not loaf pans as she expected, but pans for cornbread. "In Tennessee 'light bread' was assumed to be most difficult." she explained.

MANY FOODS HAVE stories that go with them and that adds to the fun of using them. Hoecake is one such food. 'It actually started out as a corn cake that was baked in the field on a clean hoe," Mrs. Nicholson explained. Sourdough is another example of food with a story. Some of the original sourdough was carried around by miners in Alaska who tucked it under their shirts for safekeeping. "Each batch had its own distinctive flavor," she joked.

The old family cookbook is one of her treasures. One recipe in it is Grandmother's Wedding Cake, a 30-pound cake. Mrs. Nicholson said the family made one cake and ate from it for many weeks. Rum or brandy soaked the cake and, in addition to flavoring it served as a preservative. While mixing up a recipe of Cherry Grunt (like a cobbler) amidst a table already laden with a fragrant potato and carrot steamed pudding and a tricorner pueblo bread, she commented, "One of the nice things about old recipes is that quantity really doesn't matter, except maybe in cakes. You just use what you have and more or less really doesn't make any difference.'

OHIO PUDDING

A steamed pudding, popular in the northeast. Mix and sift 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspooons baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup grated raw carrot, 1 cup grated raw potato, 1 cup currants, and 1

Mix (the potato will provide enough liquid). Grease one 1 lb. coffee can or 2 soup cans and fill with the batter. Or wrap the pudding in cheesecloth and place in a pudding mold. Place the cans on a rack or folded cloth in a deep saucepan or kettle. Fill kettle with about 2 inches of water. Cover cans with waxed paper, tied on with string. Steam the pudding - simmer gently - for two hours for small molds and one hour for the coffee can. Pudding will be heavy in texture, moist and filling.

Serve with a hard sauce made of 1/3 cup butter, 2/3 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons of chopped dates, dash of lemon extract.

PECAN PIE, COW CAMP STYLE

This recipe comes from the late Ben White, Apache Indian, oilman, cowboy, gunsmith, machinist and self-styled Beat two eggs. Mix them into 1/2 cup evaporated milk and I teaspoon black walnut flavoring. Add these to a mixture of 3/4 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup light corn syrup.

Stir in 1 cup pecans and fill a 9 inch pie shell! Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes or until firm

BLUEBERRY GRUNT

Betty said she encountered this recipe in several states and nobody has been able to tell her why it is so named. Mix up biscuit dough with about 2 cups of flour, or use 2 cups biscuit mix. Roll or pat it 1/2 inch thick and dot it with

Cover the center with blueberries (or cherries, or black-

Every family has its own set of holiday traditions and those associated with Thanksgiving are no exception. Special foods and happy family times are elements in many ho-

Update asked a group of older citizens now living in one of Lubbock's nursing homes to reflect on Thanksgivings they have known in years gone by and to comment on changes they have seen in the way the holiday is observed.

When Henry Lenoir thinks about Thanksgiving he recalls: "We had all the goodies you could think of .. honey from the bees down in the pasture, lots of good country butter, pumpkin pie and pecan cake, all kinds of pickles, homemade chow-chow, popcorn in the fireplace. We had wild turkey and that's some different from other turkey." When his family got together, "two uncles and my mother played

The approach of Thanksgiving reminds Essie Thornton of a big sandstorm which blew up one Thanksgiving Day. She remembers that the table full of festive foods had to be covered quickly with a large cloth and that the children ran out to catch the tumbleweed and set fire to it. Reflecting on the spirit of the season she said,"People are not as thankful today as they were."

Emma Hamilton, who described herself as one of the first residents of the nursing home, said she is thankful for the care she receives there. Asked if she thinks the spirit of Thanksgiving has changed, she answered,"It hasn't changed in my heart; if a person is going to be happy, he has to do part of it for himself."

Almeda Christianson

Amo Lee Jones' memories of past Thanskgiving Days include recollections of the fun the Lubbock young people had going to the annual football game with the high school in Amarillo. A special train took the fans to Amarillo when the game was played there, she recalls. "It was a treat to cook three or four days to get ready for the big feast," she Octa Borden said she remembers staying home and carrying on the same traditions from year to year. "Now one goes one way and one goes another, and they don't stop to be thankful. I think we enjoyed it more in the past."

Pearl Benton said, "We have Thanksgiving every day." Mrs. Benton has six children and she said she is thankful that she has lived to see them all grown and in their own

Lenore Scott, who identified herself as "an only child and an only grandchild," said her small family had a big dinner anyway. After dinner the family went to visit other families and friends on the holiday. Her husband was a hotel man and for many years the couple celebrated Thanksgiving in the hotel, eating whatever was being served. Almeda Christianson remembers gatherings with lots of relatives. She has lived in several places throughout the country and said she has observed: "People don't get in groups much any more. People live right alongside each other and still don't know their neighbor.' Ocie Mobley said her family never had a big celebration, just a gathering of kinfolk. She said the nursing home was a good place to be and she was glad she was there. Lois Davis had the snappiest line of all. "I'm thankful I'm not the turkey," she laughed.

La Senorita to be named on Saturday

Mexico City singer Salvador Huerta will provide the entertainment Saturday when a young woman will be chosen as La Senorita to represent Lubbock's Mexican-American community during the

The singer, who is gaining popularity in the Southwest and Latin America, will guest at the "La Senorita Contest," spon-sored by COMA, the Mexican-American chamber of commerce.

Dispelling rumors of Soviet presence in the Hub City is only one of the many chores handled by Bill Johnson, assistant director of aviation for the City of Lubbock.

However, Johnson normally spends his time assisting Aviation Director Marvin Coffee by overseeing financial matters which involve the City Aviation Depart-

Johnson aids in the operation of one of the few city departments which functions on a profit and loss basis. "Our department, which is included in the city budget, does not operate out of the general fund," Johnson said while sitting in his office which overlooks the passenger area and runways of Lubbock International Airport. "Fortunately, we've been able to pay our way thus far.'

To ensure the airport operations remain in the black, the City Aviation Deacres north of the city on which the new air passenger terminal (opened April, 1976) and other structures are located.

Johnson said the department as a landlord collects rents or a percentage of profits from a variety of aviation-related and non-aviation-related businessess located in the airport complex.

Tenants include:

· Four major airlines (Braniff, Continental, Texas International and South-Ticket counter space, office space, luggage handling areas and passenger boarding space and facilities are rented. The airlines also pay a landing fee for each of their own aircraft;

• The federal government. The Federal Aviation Agency rents terminal office space, while maintaining its own facilities, such as the control tower. The National Weather Service also rents office space in the terminal;

· Three rent-a-car firms (Avis, National and Dollar). Car storage and counter space is rented;

 Concessionaire (Gladieux Food Service). Space for the airport restaurant, bar and news stand/gift shop is either leased from or a percentage of earnings paid to the department; · Fixed Based Operators (Avtech,

Wes Tex, Horton Aero Service, Aero

Communications and Ridpath Aviation).

• Industrial park businesses. The department rents land to businesses which want to locate near the terminal, such as United Parcel Service;

· Farmers. They cultivate some airport land and pay the department a percentage of their earnings. Johnson said the department's responsibilities to its tenants are: · Building and maintaining the airport runways; · Maintaining the terminal building (the public areas);

· Handling the airport's lighting sys-· Keeping a crash, fire and rescue op-

· Building, maintaining and operating the parking areas;

· Offering a security force for the terminal building and airport complex. In addition to its landlord responsibilities. Johnson said the department is involved in inter-agency cooperation. He noted that overall the FAA is a pretty good federal agency to work with," although the department is required by statute to work with the aviation watchdog. The FAA has aided the department with the approval of various grants for some expensive projects, such as land acquisition for runways, airfield construction, lighting, taxiways and road-

Also, the FAA has provided money for the maintenance of the crash, fire and rescue facility and equipment manned by the City Fire Department. Firefighters regard airport duty as an elite station — requiring additional training and the best manpower. "A real good working relationship," Johnson said, has helped the Aviation and Fire Departments cooperate on a regional air crash and firefighting school held in ed for next year. The Airport Board assists the department as an advisory panel. Chosen by the Lubbock City Council, the sevenmember board meets once a month to discuss airport-related business.

By considering contract proposals, building improvements and airline re-"the board takes some of the agenda burden off of the council and at the same time takes some of the heat off the staff," Johnson said.

While present operations are adequate, Johnson mentioned problems confronting the department. "At the rate our passenger load is increasing now, I think expansion of some of our facilities will be necessary within the next five years," he said.

Parking spaces are an immediate concern. "We've begun construction on a available parking capacity from 700 spaces to 1,600 spaces!" Johnson said. Another concern is efficient use of the airport complex.

Certain areas of the terminal building are being under-utilitized, particulary in the passenger boarding area and the luggage handling facility.

The slow development of the industrial park also is hurting the department in its pocketbook, Johnson said. But, with the recent budget furor and a lack of funds, the park's development has received a low priority ranking with city council members. "Our (the aviation department's) hands are tied," since the council is reluctant to allocate said. "We just can't seem to break enough funds away from the council. But, it is a project which deserves more study," he said.

Gordon Jewelry was predicted to rise by 27 percent but drop by 12 percent. G.C.

Murphy Company and Edison Brothers Stores, Incorporated were expected to rise by 24 percent each but drop by 13 percent and 12 percent respectively. King's Department Stores were forecast to rise by 21 percent but drop by 17 percent for a net gain of only 4 percent. Longs Drug Stores were also expected to rise by 21 percent but drop by 12 percent for a net rise of 9 percent. Remaining stocks surveyed

The remaining stocks on our list were expected to drop by about as much as they would rise. The highest net gain was 7 percent for R.H. Macy & Company and the highest net loss was for Carson Pirie Scott & Company, 6 percent.

The largest net gain forecast was for Thrifty Corporation, 30 percent, and the lowest downside risk was forecast for Pay Less Drug Stores Northwest, a 4 percent loss. However, analysts were very cautious about the prices for all retailing stocks, saying that most would severely suffer if interest rates continued at their present levels. Results of the Survey nrollment decline in the Lubbock Independent School District this year cannot be blamed solely on "white flight" from the public-school system, according to a study by district officials.

Instead, their analysis turned up what may be an even more significant phenomenon: fewer families than expected moved to Lubbock last summer - and the influx was insufficient to offset the number of pupils lost to usual mi-

"Residential areas that had been growing rapidly in stu-dent population suddenly slowed down. This has very definitely been a factor" in Lubbock's estimated 800-pupil drop in public-school enrollment, said Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration.

A study recently completed by Leslie and his colleagues did uncover some evidence of white flight. Perhaps due to feelings over court-ordered integration and busing, a number of families moved to surrounding school systems or put their children in local private schools, the survey showed.

BUT AT MOST, students moving out of the city's public schools accounted for only about half of the enrollment decrease, the report indicates.

The study attributes the rest of the drop to a slowdown in the number of families with school-age children moving into Lubbock.

Leslie said he doesn't know what may have caused such a slowdown. One housing expert suggested that the summer's tight home-loan market may have been a contributing facLast year, the Lubbock Independent School District had a peak membership of 31,758 full-day students. Leslie had estimated there would be a loss of 309 children due to natural attrition. So he predicted, and the district budgeted for, an enrollment high of 31,449 pupils for the 1978-79 school

Ordinarily Leslie's projections are remarkably accurate. The previous year he was off by only a dozen students.

But the school district's enrollment this term peaked a few weeks ago at just 30,581 students — 868 below the projection. Leslie and school principals set out to deter-

They came up with three factors that appear to explain most of the difference between projected and actual enroll-

WHEN A STUDENT transfers, a transcript of his academic records must be sent from his old school to his new one. Based on the number of transcripts sent by the Lubbock district, Leslie determined that 201 of the district's students left to enroll in private schools.

In the same way, 111 pupils were found to have moved to surrounding school systems.

Though it is hard to assess the reasons for leaving, implementation of a court-ordered integration plan - which involves busing about 3,000 students a day, some voluntarily - may have had something to do with the flight.

'It would be foolish for us to think we could desegregate without affecting enrollment to some degree," Leslie said.

A third factor in the lower-than-predicted enrollment is that "we didn't have as many new students move into the district as we had expected," he said

LESLIE EXPLAINED that some areas of the city have been losing population while others have been gaining. The biggest growth has been south of Loop 289, he noted.

But this past year, the number of elementary students living south of the loop increased by only 59 — from 1,703 to 1,762. This increase "was much less than expected," Leslie

Leslie's original projections, for instance, were predicated on an anticipated 100-student jump in the southside Williams Elementary zone. Instead, the Williams area witnessed a decrease of 48 children, he said.

The neighboring Murfee Elementary zone was expected to stay even on enrollment, Leslie said. But Murfee experienced an 87-pupil drop, he added.
"Overall we figured that the district received 332 fewer new students this year than last year," Leslie said.

Together, the three factors — private schools, surrounding schools and drop in new students — account for a decrease of 644 pupils, Leslie said.

THE DOCUMENTED loss to private schools and neighboring public-school systems amounts to less than one percent of the Lubbock district's total student population which is a "very small" amount of flight, Leslie said.

If desegregation was the reason for their leaving, those students in the next few years may come back to the Lubbock public schools "as they see how well our integration plan is working," he said.

The school district's study did not examine whether desegregation may have been partly responsible for the decrease in the district's number of new students.

According to private-school administrators, about 100 children who moved to Lubbock last summer enrolled in private school instead of public school.

The championship of the Atlantic Coast Conference will be on the line Saturday in College Park, Maryland, where the two biggies in the league, Clemson and Maryland, meet for the title. Both teams are undefeated in conference play, but each has been beaten once "on the outside." The Terps were shut down completely by powerful Penn State two weeks ago, 27-3, and the Tigers were up-ended by Georgia early in the season, 12-0.

Last year, they met in the opening game of the season, Maryland winning, 21-14. This year we're giving the edge to Clemson by just three points.

And if Purdue can beat Michigan, that would just about settle the championship of the Big Ten. It would also be a fantastic achievement for the Riveters since they've already whipped Ohio State. Just how long has it been since any member of the "Little Eight" beat both giants in one season! However, if Michigan defeats both Purdue and Ohio State the following Saturday, the Wolverines and Michigan State would share the title. And that's the way it may happen. The Wolves are favored over the Boilermakers by 20

Eastern Oregon

It's been awhile since we've been able to chortle just a little over our forecasting average, but two weeks ago was a "happening" of sorts. We picked 163 right out of 202 games for a happy .807 average. So - season's totals are 1,362 correct and 463 incorrect .. average, .746.

Georgia Tech and Notre Dame have had identical seasons. The Yellow Jackets lost their first two game to Duke and California, then won seven in a row. The Irish have done the same. They were 0 and 2 after losing to Missouri and Michigan, but they've reeled off seven straight victories since then. The two "7-2's" meet in Atlanta Saturday with Notre Dame expected to record its eighth consecutive win. The spread is nine points. All the roses and the crown go to the winner of the Pac-10 title game between U.C.L.A. and Southern California. Each has been upset .. the Trojans by Arizona State, the Bruins by Oregon State. The Harmon tea leaves pick Southern Cal by

Eagles face Garland in playoff action

By Bob Bajackson Update Sports Staff

How many of you know what TAPS means?

If you said it's a bugle call in the army, or a piece of metal to make your shoes louder, turn to another page - this is the sports section.

One person who doesn't have any trouble coming up with the correct answer is Lubbock Christian High School football Coach George Harper. That's because his football team qualified last week for a TAPS playoff spot.

Eighteen are comprised of schools with enrollments of AA Texas high schools. The remainder have enrollments equivalent to AAAA high schools. Lubbock Christian is a member of the former.

SATURDAY, THE Eagles (west zone champs) will face Garland Christian Academy (east zone champs) in first round playoff action. Kickoff is slated for

In tonight's action, Estacado battles Canyon for the 1-AAA district crown, Coroando will host Plainview, and Monterey will visit Hereford.

We knew that our football team was going to be good at the start of the season." said Harper. "We're extremely proud of the way we've played and hope to do a good job representing Lubbock in the playoffs."

LUBBOCK CHRISTIAN qualified for the so-called second season by defeatregular season record at 8-2.

We had to win it to get into the playoffs," said Harper. "It was a must." However, besides the pressure of the contest, what also worried Harper as his team took the field against NMMI is how his team would perform without starting quarterback Kent Allison in the lineup. The Eagle signal caller sprained his ankle during basketball tryouts.

Kent was on crutches on Thursday before the game," said Harper. "We really didn't think he could play." But with the Eagles trailing, Allison casted his crutches aside. All the LCHS quarterback was able to do is run for two scores and throw for a third. HARPER EXPECTS Garland Christian to run a veer offense. Though, Lubbock Christian has played against veer opponents, Harper expects Garland to provide the Eagles' greatest challenge. 'They have a left-handed quarterback," said Harper. "That means that everything will be running the opposite direction that were used to. Thus, we've been working on changing our defensive routine of thinking. Defensively, the Lubbock Christian coach feels that Garland Christian will be blitzing linebackers quite often.

"We're not going to take any chances," said Harper. "We're going to be ready when the linebackers come," he said.

THOUGH HARPER wouldn't commit himself on the status for Allison for the game, the Lubbock Christian mentor hopes his signal caller will be ready. "It's just wait and see," said Harper. "You may say that Kent is a doubtful probable

New Breed. But, it had nothing to do with the latest model of automobile. It was a folder designed to tell about SMU's quarterback, Mike Ford

And this week, Texas Tech coaches and defensive Raiders are reading and looking at films and studying every bit of literature available to try to figure out how to keep this Ford Mustang from operating on all cylinders.

Ford and his Mustang mates come into Lubbock and Tech's Jones Stadium Saturday afternoon for a Southwest Conference game which has winning implications for both teams. Gametime is 2 p.m., and a crowd of more than 48,000 is expected to be on

For the Raiders, Saturday will be a chance to insure a winning season. Under coach Rex Dockery this season, the Raiders were picked as low as last in the Southwest Conference - one prophet said they would win but one game and that not in conference.

But, the Raiders rallied behind their new coach and have won four straight to build a 5-3 season record. After SMU, the Raiders have games against SWC leader Houston and Arkansas. A win Saturday would mean Tech could finish at east 6-5 for the year

For the Mustangs, the record now is 4-4-1. It has but two games remaining, so it too, will be out to shoot for a winning year. The Mustangs have improved in coach Ron Meyer's previous two seasons, but they have yet to pass the .500 mark.

"For SMU to be really established in the conference, we need to beat Tech," commented cornerback David Hill. "We need to get out of the group of cellar teams. A win over Tech would help us to do it. That's why the game is so impor-

"We liked the win over Rice (58-0 last weekend) because it ended a long dry spell," said Ford. "We all felt good after that game and we want to do it again. They (Tech) came in here (Dallas) and kicked us pretty well as I recall. It was really embarrassing, because I had a bad game and it was homecoming.

We need to go out and get after those guys now.

Ford has gone out and gotten after several guys this year. The 6-3, 225-pounder with the rifle arm is No. 1 in the nation in total offense, averaging 277.4 yards per game. And he is second nationally in passing with a per-game average of 20.8 completions. Ford was named Associated Press national offensive player of the week after completing 17 of 26 passes for two touchdowns in SMU's 45-14 win over TCU to open the season

And it was his passing which guided the Ponies to a 35-35 standoff with Ohio State earlier this year. That effort also earned him AP national player of the week laurens. That day, he hit 36 of 57 passes for 341 yards. That afternoon, he threw for a touchdown, scored three others and completed a pass for a 2point conversion.

QUESTION: What was the ice age? ANSWER: An ice age is a period of the earth's history in which it is extensively covered with ice. There have been several ice ages, millions of years in length, separated by intervals of thaw which lasted many millions of years longer. Geologists do not know whether the end of the most recent ice age was simply the beginning of a current thawing period or if it was the end of the entire ice age as a whole. The fact that ice ages had occurred was not known until little over a hundred years ago. A Swiss-American naturalist named Louis Agassiz discovered that glaciers did move. He theorized that the movement of glaciers meant that they might have once been more widespread. Agassiz searched through glacierless areas for rock formations with certain surface grooves that would indicate that glaciers had once passed them. He found such proof on the British Iles in 1840.

The best known ice afe is the most recent one, known as the Quaternary, which began about 2 million years ago. During this period, ice sheets covered about three times the area they do today. It is estimated that ice formations reached as far south as present-day New York and London.

About persimmons

The oriental persimmon is a small, easy-to-grow, warm-climate tree which is well adapted to all areas of the South.

The persimmon will grow in a very wide range of soils - once established, the trees perform well in both sandy and clay soils. One of the persimmon's outstanding characteristics is its freedom from major insect and disease problems.

Mature trees can reach a height of 40 feet, while some varieties remain less than 10 feet.
