

Bergland Apologizes To Farmers

Snow Snarls Northeast, Parts Of South

By The Associated Press. A MAJOR snowstorm socked the Northeast and parts of the South Wednesday, snarling traffic and causing accidents, closing schools and disrupting air travel.

Northeast almost a year to the day after the Blizzard of '78 paralyzed much of the region. On its way north, the storm dumped up to 12 inches of snow on Tennessee and parts of Virginia, 10 inches in parts of Kentucky and smaller amounts in Maryland and Delaware.

headed out to sea, the National Weather Service said. The weather bureau cancelled a heavy snow warning for most of Massachusetts but said Cape Cod and offshore islands would receive 4 to 8 inches of snow.

power lines, knocking out power to more than 60,000 electrical customers in northern Georgia, including 36,000 in Atlanta. Service was not expected to be restored until today.

Plateau in Tennessee was a sheet of ice covered with 6 inches of snow. Said Lt. James E. Chitwood of the highway patrol: "We have a lot of trucks across the road and we're having trouble everywhere."

Protesters Parade At Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeered and booed by angry farmers, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland softly apologized Wednesday to anyone insulted by his suggestion that some farmers demonstrating for more government aid are "driven by just old-fashioned greed."

Bergland did not withdraw his remark, however, and he reiterated his opposition to increasing crop price supports and insisted that 1978 "in virtually every respect ... was a good year" for rural America.

Parade Around Capitol. Nonetheless, they paraded 130 tractors around the Capitol, with police permission, filling the air with the dense smell of diesel smoke.

A group of schoolchildren stood outside the Supreme Court and waved as the slow "tractocade" rolled by.

More than 300 farmers crowded into the House Agriculture Committee hearing to hear Bergland, Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn., told Bergland that he had been "greatly shocked and disturbed" by the secretary's remarks Tuesday.

"You owe them an apology," Nolan said.

The farmers roared agreement and one jumped to his feet, demanding, "Have him do it right now!"

Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the panel, threatened to have the man ejected.

"Little Greed In All" Bergland did not apologize at the time, but noted he had not ascribed selfish motives to all farmers. "Of course," he said, "there's a little greed in all of us."

Half an hour later, however, when a member of the committee apologized to chief Agriculture Department economist Howard Hjort for remarks to him at a hearing last year, Bergland offered his apology for ill feelings generated by his words.

"I want to take this opportunity to apologize to anyone who has felt insulted by anything I've said. It was not intended," he said.

The protesters did not seem to notice.

Remark Stirrs Fuss

The fuss concerned a remark Bergland made in a television interview Tuesday. He said said some farmers from West Texas to Nebraska were in "real trouble," then added: "There are others who have made bad business judgments, paid too much money for land. I know some people in that category. Others are seeking publicity and others are driven by just old-fashioned greed."

After the hearing, Joseph T. McDavid, the department's press secretary, said Bergland was not backing down.

"He just felt that it was unfortunate that it was taken in such a way to include innocent farmers," McDavid said. "He stands by his statement that some of the demonstrators are motivated by greed."

Freshman Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas, later issued a statement saying Bergland had "repeated that insult" and called for his resignation. "I believe he would better serve the farmers and the nation."

Advisory Committee To Provide Feedback On Minority Issues

By RHONA SCHWARTZ. Avalanche-Journal Staff. HUMAN Relations Commission members voted Wednesday night to establish an advisory committee of representatives from local minority organizations to help HRC tackle more minority-related issues in the future.

Commission members agreed to open the advisory committee to all organizations "interested in furthering the goals of human relations and then screen whatever comes in."

Among the organizations mentioned as potential advisors were the League of United Latin American Citizens, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the National Organization for Women and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Certificate Plan Drafted. The commission also decided to award certificates to businesses which it feels deserve recognition for equal employment practices.

Included in the list of criteria for the awards are "ethnic balance, affirmative action and upward mobility policies, employee recognition policies and minority promotions."

Commission members agreed, however, that selection guidelines need to be established. "We need to know exactly what we're looking for," Homero Rodriguez said.

Coach's Problems Considered. In discussion of whether to take up the case of commission member Elton Conger, who last December was relieved of his coaching and teaching duties with the Lubbock Independent School District and who has since appealed the decision, commission members decided they needed to "ask his permission first and see if he is taking any legal action that this would harm."

Conger has one more hearing before the State Education Board, and commission chairman Theron Cole said, "I don't think there is anything we can do until he sanctions us."

Mineo Jury Still Out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury in the Sal Mineo trial adjourned after its fourth day of deliberations Wednesday without a verdict on charges against Lionel Williams, who is accused of stabbing the actor to death outside his West Hollywood apartment three years ago.

Jurors heard the transcript of testimony by Allywyn Williams, a Marine private unrelated to the defendant, repeated during their deliberations. The Marine had testified that the defendant bragged to him that he had killed Mineo during an aborted holdup.

NATIONAL MAID OF COTTON — Suzanne Snipes, left, National Maid of Cotton, was welcomed to Lubbock Wednesday afternoon by Janie Laws, South Plains Maid of Cotton, right, and members of the Maid of Cotton Committee. Khomeini Backers Win Control In Some Cities

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Backers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini were reported in control of several city governments Wednesday on the eve of demonstrations intended to drive home the religious leader's claim to the reins of this troubled nation.

In Washington, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told the Senate Energy Committee the Iranian crisis could leave American oil inventories "dangerously low" next winter and force controls, but he said he does not anticipate gasoline rationing.

Iran sold about 900,000 barrels of oil a day to the United States before strikes hobbled production last fall.

Oil engineer Mehdi Bazargan, named by Khomeini to form a provisional government, announced he will outline his program and possibly name ministers on Friday.

Khomeini's rival government of the shah-appointed administration of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar got support from striking civil servants in the Justice Ministry and in Bakhtiar's own office and from the staff of the official Pars news agency Wednesday.

Khomeini aide Ibrahim Yazdi said the provisional government will try to operate with civil servants loyal to Khomeini. The provisional government is to arrange a referendum on a constitution that would make Iran an Islamic republic.

Young Confident. In New York, Andrew Young, American ambassador to the United Nations, predicted American-Iranian relations will be "on a pretty good keel" within two years.

He told a meeting of government and political reporters that he doubts Khomeini can develop a fundamentalist Islamic state in Iran because Western ideas already are widespread there.

"I think we're going to have a rough year or so, but ultimately they are going to turn to the United States," Young said. "I don't think the ayatollah is aware of the forces he has control of."

Cities where administrative and some police functions now are run by Khomeini backers included Isfahan, Qom, Shiraz and others especially in southern Iran, reports from those cities said.

TV Station Attacked. In the western city of Sanandaj, an armed group attacked a television station Tuesday night, killing a guard and destroying cars in the parking lot, state radio said.

Wednesday, 8,000 supporters of Bakhtiar's shah-appointed government gathered at a Teheran sports stadium to give him backing.

The rally was attended mainly by middle- and upper-class Iranians, and was punctuated by slogans backing Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who was forced to leave Iran Jan. 16 by the Khomeini-led masses opposed to his rule.

Men and women with tears in their eyes chanted "Long live the shah" and knelt in homage to the monarch. Said one woman: "I love my king and if I had a little blood in my body I would give it for my king."

Bakhtiar has ordered the army to keep a low profile during today's demonstrations and intervene only if there is violence. Thousands of Khomeini marshals have been ordered to control the demonstrators.

Many Iranians and Western diplomats say they fear radicals will use the occasion to spark violence and cause military retaliation.

The loyalty of the military to Bakhtiar is questioned by Khomeini's aides, who claim mass defections among the 430,000-strong military and say uniformed officers will demonstrate for Khomeini today.

Gen. Mohammad Massumi, deputy defense minister for parliamentary affairs, said morale is "absolutely high enough to obey any order that is issued from higher authority."

He said he knew of no defections.

Norse Coin Identified As Genuine

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — A chipped coin found in an Indian ruin on the Maine coast many years ago was positively identified Wednesday as the oldest European artifact ever found in the United States.

"There is no doubt ... this is a genuine Norse penny, struck somewhere in Norway during the period of 1065 to 1080, most probably during the reign of King Olaf III," Norwegian coin expert Kolbjorn Skaare told reporters.

The coin is the first datable Viking artifact found in North America, and its discovery boosts the theory that the Vikings, known navigators and traders, reached the United States long before Christopher Columbus.

"The question is how far south did the Norse get," Maine State Museum archeologist Dr. Bruce Bourque commented.

The coin was found in 1961 by an amateur archeologist digging in Blue Hill Bay, not far from the summer resort of Bar Harbor.

Other Norse artifacts less easy to date than coins have been found at Viking ruins in Labrador and Newfoundland.

Pierced so it could be worn as an ornament, the dime-sized disc of corroded silver and copper has a cross on one side and the faint outline of an animal-like figure and a scepter on the other.

It is now encased in plexiglass at the Maine State Museum. Skaare, who arrived here Monday.

LIDDY FINE STANDS. WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has rejected Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy's request to have his $40,000 fine waived, the Justice Department said Wednesday. Liddy, who spent 52 1/2 months in prison for his part in the Watergate burglary, had asked the Justice Department to waive the fine.

Public Cooperation Sought On Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top administration inflation fighter said Wednesday that without public cooperation, President Carter's "voluntary" wage and price guidelines won't work.

"I'm ready to admit right now that under a voluntary program, if everyone wants to lie and cheat, you can't catch anybody," said Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

But Bosworth added that lack of cooperation would undermine even a mandatory program of wage and price controls, and he cited evidence of broad business and public support for Carter's program.

"An anti-inflation program only works if the people of this country want the program to work," he told the House Government Operations subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary operations.

Bosworth also said the council did not need a large increase in staff to monitor prices and wages because it would be receiving economic reports from other government agencies and data gathered for the consumer price index.

But he added that the council's most effective tool in enforcing the guidelines will be the requirement that companies certify that they are in compliance in order to obtain government contracts of $5 million or more.

Bosworth said companies are unlikely to lie about their compliance because that would leave them open to substantial penalties under the terms of the government contracts.

The president's program, announced last fall, asks companies to hold wage hikes to 7 percent and price increases to 0.5 percent below their average price hikes for the previous two years, or limit them generally to an average of 5.75 percent. Beginning in March, the administration plans to publish the names of firms that violate that standard.

As part of his prepared testimony, Bosworth said 41 companies had requested exceptions from the wage guidelines and five from the price standards.

Most of the firms asking to raise wages above 7 percent cited "acute labor shortages" for specialized employees and "tandem" contract settlements. "Tandem" settlements would apply in industries where historically workers at different companies had received the same wage and where some contracts were signed before announcement of the wage guidelines.

Bosworth said five exceptions have been granted on wages, all under the "tandem" rule. He said the other requests were under review, but added that no company had yet been found in violation of the guidelines.

The guidelines formally take effect Feb. 15.

Alfred Kahn, chairman of the wage-price council, announced Tuesday that more than 200 of the nation's top 500 corporations.

Ag Leaders Dispute Bergland 'Figures'

By JOHNNY HOLMES. Avalanche-Journal Staff.

ACCUSING U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland of not representing American farmers, three prominent area agribusinessmen Wednesday implored Congress to fully implement the 1977 Farm Act.

"We're here to illustrate the dilemma the farmers are facing," said Elbert Harp, executive director of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

Harp, along with Lloyd Cline, president of the High Plains Cotton Growers Association and Carl King, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association gathered in Lubbock to rebut statements made by Bergland this week and to express their concern "over the government's attitude toward farm policy."

"We're beginning to wonder if Bergland is really against American agriculture," King said. "If he is, he's in direct conflict with his oath of office, and if he can't represent the interests of the American farmer any better than that, he should resign."

Bergland is totally inaccurate," concurred Harp. "He needs to recheck his own figures."

Harp agreed that farm prices were higher than 1977, but pointed out that production costs have exceeded these prices, causing the farmers to lose money on every acre of crops.

Cline predicted farm production costs would increase at least nine percent in 1979.

Death Sentence Decried In Wichita Rape Trial

WICHITA FALLS (UPI) — John W. McCrory appeared calm Wednesday when ordered to die by injection for last June's rape and strangulation of a 17-year-old Lewisville High School student.

The jury ordered the death sentence for McCrory following 73 minutes of deliberation in the penalty portion of the trial. Because an automatic appeal is provided in death penalty cases under Texas law, no execution date was set. Lengthy appeals were expected.

McCrory appeared emotionless when the verdict was read, as did his mother and father, who were sitting in the courtroom. They declined to comment on the verdict and the jury foreman also said he preferred not to talk to reporters about the panel's deliberations.

The eight-woman, four-man panel convicted the former Argyle truck driver Tuesday of the June 2, 1978, slaying of Joana Melissa Walker, 17, of Flower Mound.

Miss Walker's parents were also in the courtroom at the time of sentencing but would not comment. The 10-day trial was moved to Wichita Falls' 78th District Court on a change of venue from Denton County.

Denton County District Attorney Jerry Cobb said "It was a just verdict, what he deserved."

McCrory's defense attorney, Bill Wood, said there were at least five points on which the verdict could be overturned by a higher court. He said "I was very disappointed at the verdict (of guilty). I was not surprised at the punishment verdict (of death)."

During punishment phase testimony

Wednesday, the prosecution called a former Grand Prairie woman to the stand. She testified McCrory raped her in January 1978.

The woman, now an Oregon resident, said she joined McCrory one night for a game of pool and expected him to take her to a friend's house afterward.

Instead, she testified, McCrory took her to a Grand Prairie airport, where he pushed her down on the seat of the car and began undressing her.

She said she submitted to sexual intercourse with McCrory because "I thought he was going to kill me."

Two other prosecution witnesses testified Tuesday their lives had been threatened in past incidents involving McCrory. A third witness testified McCrory and another man once robbed him and his girl friend at gunpoint.

None of the offenses — including the alleged rape — was ever prosecuted, however.

McCrory's mother, Willie Dean Smith, testified the convicted man's father drank heavily during her son's early years, making it necessary for her to work two jobs to offset money spent on alcohol.

She said the elder McCrory made many promises to her son but failed to keep them. Despite the two jobs, Mrs. Smith testified, she spent every available minute with her son.

Doris Shipman, McCrory's former employer in Argyle, testified McCrory was an able worker and had once spent his own money on two hitchhikers who were unable to afford a meal on their own.

Bits Of Lincoln's Tomb Found

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Chunks of a marble coffin that housed Abraham Lincoln's body in the 1870s have turned up in a sealed recess of the assassinated president's tomb after having been feared lost for nearly 50 years, state officials said Wednesday.

Department of Conservation officials displayed the broken chips of the sarcophagus — decorated outer coffin — at Lincoln's Tomb here five days before Lincoln's 170th birthday anniversary.

The sarcophagus was smashed during a renovation of the tomb in 1930, after it was taken outside and placed on the Oak Ridge Cemetery lawn, where a truck is said to have backed over it.

One piece carries the final 10 letters of the carved inscription: "With malice toward none, with charity for all" around an oak bough. Another contains the letters NCO from the name LINCOLN.

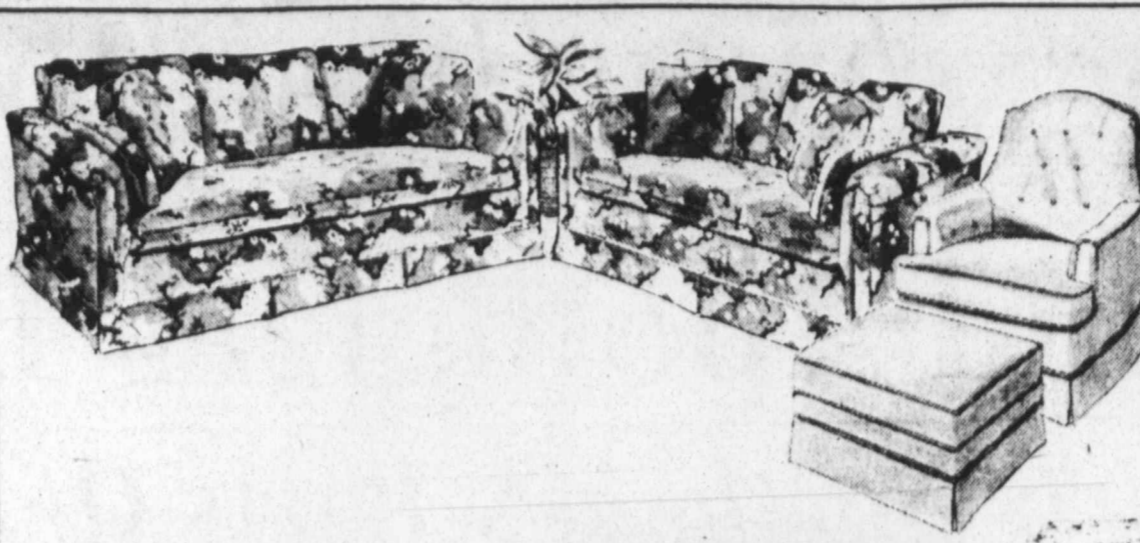

Much of the sarcophagus remains missing, however, and officials say they still believe souvenir hunters may have made off with chunks of it in the 1930s.

Lincoln, who was born in Kentucky Feb. 12, 1809, lived and practiced law in Springfield from the late 1830s to 1860, when he was elected the nation's 16th president. After his assassination on April 15, 1865, his body was returned here by train, and the tomb — housing his remains and those of his wife and three sons — was dedicated in 1874.

The sarcophagus held Lincoln's body until 1876, when an attempt by three people from Chicago to steal the body was foiled, according to state historian James Oliver and tomb superintendent Carol Andrews.

After that, they said, the Secret Service removed Lincoln's coffin from the sarcophagus and had it buried in a steel and concrete cage 10 feet below the tomb, whose obelisk spire towers 117 feet.

The tomb was visited by a record 503,000 persons in the Bicentennial year of 1976.

ROSALYNN CARTER

First Lady Praised For Senate Panel Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter, the first president's wife to testify before Congress in more than 30 years, won effusive praise Wednesday and a promise of help from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for the mentally ill.

Mrs. Carter urged implementation of the 117 recommendations of the President's Commission on Mental Health, of which she is honorary chairwoman, on improving the nation's mental health care system.

Sitting at a witness table for 90 minutes, the first lady told Kennedy's Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research that the stigma attached to mental illness must be erased. She spoke authoritatively about changes needed in the present system.

Among her suggestions were greater federal financial support for mental health research, emphasis on prevention of mental illness — particularly among children — including mental health care in any national health insurance program.

Kennedy praised Mrs. Carter for making a "very compassionate and eloquent statement," and said legislation to correct some of the problems she cited would be approved by Congress early this year.

"And you can depend on that," he added, jokingly borrowing an oft-used phrase from President Carter, whom Kennedy called a "great American."

Not since Eleanor Roosevelt testified before several congressional committees in the early 1940s has a first lady testified publicly before a congressional committee.

Kennedy, who has been at odds with the Carter administration over the form a national health insurance plan should take, went out of his way to be solicitous of his star witness.

Kennedy escorted Mrs. Carter to and from the crowded hearing room in the Dirksen Senate Office Building. When she seemed nervous initially, Kennedy stopped the hearing to ask several photographers sitting at her feet to leave.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said he vividly recalled testimony by first lady Eleanor Roosevelt in 1940. "She had a shrill voice ... But you both have the same thought — to help people," he told

Mrs. Carter.

Mrs. Carter acknowledged the health insurance debate between Kennedy and her husband. "I am not here to talk about the pros and cons of various national health insurance plans," she said, drawing laughter. But she said mental health should be included under any plan that is passed.

Kennedy said that although many problems persist, there have been some gains such as an impressive increase in financing for research.

"I have to take issue with you, senator," Mrs. Carter interjected. "From 1967 until now our research funds have been cut in half. We have asked for more funds for research."

In her testimony, Mrs. Carter said society must erase the stigma attached to mental illness.

"Until we break the self-feeding cycle of fear, discrimination and lack of understanding, our efforts to improve the quality of care for all who need it will be in vain," she said.

Media Group Buys Kilgore News Herald

KILGORE (AP) — Charles Devall, publisher of the Kilgore News Herald, has sold the newspaper to the Donrey Media Group, it was announced Wednesday.

"We are delighted to be acquiring such an outstanding newspaper in this historic and rapidly growing area of the country," said Donald W. Reynolds, chairman and president of Donrey, which operates news and advertising organizations in 12 states.

"We look forward to continuing the News Herald tradition of service to the people of Kilgore and East Texas," Reynolds said.

Devall will remain as consultant to the newspaper as well as the group, and will be publisher emeritus.

Kenneth Smart, associate publisher, was promoted to publisher.

Two Tots Killed As Locomotive, School Bus Hit

CHICAGO (AP) — A bus returning kindergarten children to their homes after morning classes collided with a locomotive Wednesday and was dragged 60 feet down the tracks. Authorities said two youngsters were killed and 17 were injured, two of them critically.

Police said the bus had stopped and started through the intersection just after a freight train had passed. It was struck by a locomotive moving in the opposite direction.

Beatrice Taylor, a bookkeeper at the South Shore Iron Works, heard the crash from her office. She said there are no gates at the crossing on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad line.

She said the bus was "on its side in a ditch. One side had been badly smashed. Two children were under the bus. One child had been thrown out and was about 50 feet away. The others were screaming and crying inside the bus."

"Some of our workers pulled them out of the bus through the windows," Mrs. Taylor said. "We took them to our office and tried to treat them the best we could until ambulances arrived. They all were bleeding quite a bit."

Most of the injured children appeared to suffer mainly from lacerations, attendants said. The bus driver, a teacher at the Roseland Christian School on the far South Side, suffered minor injuries. His name was withheld.

All the children were 5 or 6 years old, hospital attendants said.

AN EDITORIAL: Meals-On-Wheels In A Ditch?

A MAJOR change made by Congress in the Older Americans Act could unintentionally pose a hazard to the survival of hundreds of privately operated "Meals-on-Wheels" programs.

The warning was sounded this week by Michael Balzano, ex-government agency director now a scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, or AEI. AEI is a nonpartisan, nonprofit, publicly supported educational and research organization.

Writes Balzano:
 "The congressional intent of the creation of a federal meals-on-wheels program for the elderly was to provide a home delivered meal for senior citizens who, for reasons of ill health or physical incapacity, are unable to prepare meals for themselves or to attend congregate nutrition centers."

MEALS-ON-wheels programs have operated in the United States for well over 25 years. During this period, Balzano says, "hundreds, possibly thousands (of such programs) have sprung up in response to an ever-rising demand for service."

Most of these private neighborhood meals-on-wheels programs have relied almost exclusively on volunteers to organize the program and deliver the meals to the homes of the elderly, and on charitable institutions to subsidize recipients who are unable to pay for their meals.

Lubbock's program, which began in April, 1971, with 29 subscribers, relies on individual contributions and a Title 20 grant to provide ide nourishment for those whose meager income is insufficient to cover the $1.75 price of a hot meal. The expressed need, meanwhile, has multiplied more than sevenfold in the intervening years.

Balzano contends that although the private sector programs were used as a model for the federal program and were seen as the key to any low cost delivery system, "the federal funds may establish yet another costly bureaucracy that would duplicate rather than utilize" private programs.

HIS STUDY centers on the regulations which are presently being written by the Administration on Aging. "Unless these regulations are carefully written so as to foster and protect small voluntary organizations delivering meals, these programs will be bypassed," he argues, "and probably destroyed."

Despite the administration's desire to be an honest broker, its decisions will be constrained by congressional mandates of fiscal accountability, which will determine a large percentage of the regulations.

Probably the most important aspect of the federal program is the precedent it will set for future federal entrance, beg pardon, interference into other programs heretofore privately financed.

The federal government's duplication of the meals-on-wheels program could constitute a threat to every other non-profit organization, large or small, which might one day find federal competition delivering social services they now perform, but at a greatly increased price to us all.

AN EDITORIAL: Loan Arranger Rides Again

IT PASSED without hardly a notice. But Uncle Sam wants permission to borrow another $98 billion.

Just to tide the federal bureaucracy over until some funds come in, you understand.

What was described as "an apologetic" Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal asked the Senate Finance subcommittee this week for authority to boost the federal debt to somewhere in the neighborhood of $896 billion.

That happens to be a pretty ritzy neighborhood. Actually, a bit of math and somewhat dull facts and figures are needed here to explain what the Treasury really is doing, to itself and the taxpayers.

FEDERAL LAW imposes what is known as a "permanent limit" on the national debt. That limit is $400 billion. But, since the debt has exceeded $400 billion since 1972, the limit is not much of a limit.

Then, there is also the business of a "temporary" additional ceiling on the debt. That figure is now $398 billion—meaning the government has the authority to actually borrow up to $798 billion, through the end of next month.

But, according to Blumenthal, that $798 billion will get the government only through March 9 of this year.

So, the "apologetic" secretary is asking that the debt be boosted to a total of $836 billion through Sept. 30 of this year and to $896 billion by Sept. 30, 1980.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., I-Va., who has been arguing for balanced budgets long before President Carter came on the scene, commented to Blumenthal:

"THE PRESIDENT says his budget is 'lean and austere'...I say, nonsense. How can a budget be lean and austere when it calls for a 9 percent increase in already-bloated federal spending? If one feels federal spending was not already bloated, let him read candidate Jimmy Carter's 1976 speeches..."

Blumenthal, on the other hand, reminded the senators that it was Congress which was responsible for much of the money problem. After all, he said, it okayed the outlays.

Of course, both men are right. But, that doesn't solve the problem. And it won't be solved as long as those in high positions and those out across the nation continue to look to Washington to solve all problems, by spending more and more.

If anyone thinks otherwise, the odds are pretty high. Just the nation's future, that's all. Which ends today's sermon on the national debt, spending Congressmen and Presidents and citizens. Or, if the shoe fits...

ART BUCHWALD: Filers Set Fast Pace In Paper Chase Race

WASHINGTON—They've been trying to keep it a secret, but there is a serious paper shortage in Washington.

A strike of Western paper workers, which is expected to be taken up by workers on the East Coast, has caused a paper deficit in Washington.

The reason the government has been keeping it a secret is it fears that if the word gets out, panic will set in and different departments and agencies will start hoarding paper, while others might resort to some very dirty tricks to ensure that its memo flow is not turned off.

One department, which shall remain anonymous, got wind of the shortage and has already held 27 meetings on the crisis.

AT THE LAST meeting it was decided to alert all employees to the situation.

In a memo, which was sent to the agency's 27,500 workers, a deputy director wrote:

"It has been brought to my attention that we can expect a serious paper shortage in the next few months, which could affect productivity and the morale of this agency.

"Therefore, I am asking everyone to conserve every sheet of paper possible, even if it involves such dire emergencies as using both sides of the paper. I am also requesting all employees to submit to me in writing how the agency can conserve paper.

"These suggestions should be made out in triplicate with one copy for me, one for your supervisors and one to keep for yourself in case any action is taken.

"SUPERVISORS ARE requested to submit weekly reports to the Administrative Supply Office as to how many employees are following this directive, and if this memorandum has increased or decreased the use of present supplies.

"If an employee does not send in a suggestion, his or her supervisor must put in writing to the personnel director why he or she failed to do so.

"What we plan to do with the suggestions is have the public affairs division compile a collection of the most interesting ones, which will then be distributed to all personnel.

"IT IS MY hope that this compilation can be published by the General Printing Office and sold to the public.

"A steering committee has been appointed to study the best methods of distribution, as well as costs, and the report should be on my desk by the early part of next month.

"To facilitate matters on the book project, it is suggested that all departmental correspondence concerning conservation be submitted on yellow 8x10 Memorandum Sheets (G-234 forms), while those regarding distribution be written on the blue double carbon pads (K-677).

"If you do not have these colors in stock, you can obtain them from the supply room by filling out Form 2323.

"IT GOES without saying that this agency will be out of business if it is unable to supply the documentation to justify the written decisions it makes.

"Therefore, everyone from the top agency officials to the mail-room personnel must comply with all regulations regarding the conservation of our paper supply.

'He's Got A Real Firm Handshake'

GEORGE F. WILL:
 The Great Escapism

LONDON—The late Aneurin Bevan, still revered by many British socialists who hunger for saints and have few candidates for sainthood, once exclaimed, "What's all this talk about making British industry more efficient? It's far too efficient as it is!"

Bevan probably meant many things, but almost certainly meant this:
 Efficiency means more production per worker. But the economy's growth is poor and jobs are scarce, so workers must have a semi-property right to their jobs; and emphasis on efficiency conflicts with that right.

Socialism, say some socialists, humanely emphasizes security at the expense of economic dynamism.

But the edgy, truculent temper of British unions expresses a pervasive insecurity that is directly related to the lack of confidence in the economy's efficiency—its job creating dynamism.

Marx spent 35 years in Britain studying that nation's capitalism and getting it wrong. Capitalism, he said, is a perpetual revolution, in which all "ancient and venerable" prejudices and opinions are swept away.

Not in Britain. As Daniel Bell writes, Britain was the first nation to begin industrializing, but it never had its heart in it, and never properly completed the job.

Industrialists wanted to "graduate" to gentlemanly, which meant buying a country house, and sending sons into the governing class.

That meant into government, to rule the waves and the 25 percent of the earth's land and population over which the Union Jack flew. Avoidance of industry is a living tradition.

BETWEEN 1968 AND 1975, the percentage of Britain's university graduates entering government employment nearly doubled, and the percentage entering industry fell sharply.

A school headmaster says: "These are trends of which Victorian public schoolmasters would have been proud...Today's teachers are just as hostile to the needs of industry in particular, and capitalism in general, as any Victorian schoolmaster...The snobbery of one age has become the escapism of another."

Anti-capitalism is self-conscious in the Labor Party, which is an uneasy coalition of social democrats, doctrinaire socialists, and extremists whose politics shade into sedition.

No other major Western party has such conflicts between the basic values of important members.

The far left, commonly called Trotskyists, consists of people who, 40 years ago, might have pursued their aims in the Communist Party.

Strategically placed extremists often set the tone of labor disputes. One theme of Tom Stoppard's new play, "Night and Day," is union bloody-mindedness. A journalist who fell afoul of the radicals at his provincial newspaper recalls their attitudinizing:

"ON ANY SUBJECT, like the death of the novel, or the sex life of the editor's secretary, they spoke ordinary English, but as soon as they started trying to get me to join the strike, it was as if their brains had been taken out and replaced by one of those little golf-ball things you get in electric typewriters: 'betrayal,' 'confrontation,' 'management'...My God, you'd need a more supple language than that to describe an argument between two amoebas."

A Conservative politician says, rather too kindly, that Labor's fellow-traveling extremists, with their kind words for the East bloc, are like the 17th century Puritans who favored the Turks against the Catholics but still, at bottom, shared Christian premises with the Catholics.

Actually, as various moderate Laborites will say, the extremists reject Britain's political traditions, regard parliamentarism as a fraud, and dislike the House of Lords much more than the KGB.

BUT, STRANGE to say, the most divisive development within the Labor Party is the social democrats' tentative, sideways shuffle toward the obvious conclusion that there must be statutory restraint on the actions unions can take in industrial disputes.

Labor's split is, in part, generational. Hugh Gaitskell, who died at age 56 in 1963, was the last leader of the parliamentary Labor Party to advocate an explicitly "social democratic" platform, like that of Germany's socialist period.

Tony Crosland, the most gifted modern theorist of social democracy, died at 58 in 1977.

The social democrats are not producing a rising generation of successors of sufficient size and intellectual vigor. The avuncular prime minister, James Callaghan, is shrewd, but he is a "Third Republic" figure.

JAY HARRIS: The Safe Cities?..

THOUGHT FOR Today: Tact is changing the subject without changing your mind.

OVERHEARD: Nothing produces such strange results as trying to get even.

LAW AND ORDER are more than just words in at least two cities in the news of late. Officers in both Corpus Christi, and Key West, Fla., are cracking down on certain elements of the populace which give innocent victims problems.

In Corpus Christi, the police are going into some pubs to round up drunks before they saddle up their 300-horsepower steeds and go meandering onto the streets.

Corpus Christi Chief Bill Banner, citing the city's alarming traffic death toll for 1978, said he sent uniformed officers into bars to make arrests for public intoxication "if they are deemed drunk enough to constitute a danger to themselves or others..." Club owners and at least one city councilman attacked what they termed the "police state" tactics. The councilman said personal freedom is being "whittled out."

MEANTIME, IN Key West, the City Manager ordered the Police Chief to get tough with young punks and others who have been terrorizing certain areas.

The crackdown came after the resort city's most noted resident, playwright Tennessee Williams and a friend were set upon and beaten. Key West, at the southern tip of Florida, has been a haven for winter visitors, rum runners and dope smugglers and even a site for a vacation White House. The likes of Ernest Hemingway have worked and played there.

Now, Key West officers have been making sweeps of the city's main drag, crowded with visitors, drifters and occasionally marijuana smoke, the wire reports say. Arrests are not uncommon. No doubt the civil rights crusaders, the do-gooders and those with nothing better to do will start raising Cain with the law and order folk. It's too bad. All of which stirs the memory. Wasn't it candidate Dirk West who said if he were elected mayor he "would knock some heads together" if that was what it took to clean up Lubbock's crime problem. Fortunately, we got a DA who may do it for him...

SLIDE ROAD Sam Says: A smile is a light in the window of the face which shows the heart is at home.

THE OFFICE Grouch says it's so cold in some places the politicians are keeping their hands in their own pockets.

FAR TOO MANY persons do not realize one can start "living" at almost any age. One of the more famous "fer instances" is one Anna Mary Robertson (Grandma) Moses.

Grandma Moses dabbled in "painting" as a child, using grape and berry juice. But, it was not until she was a 78-year-old widow, suffering from arthritis of the hands, that she took up oils and a hobby which made her famous.

With no training, she went from copying Currier and Ives prints to painting original farm scenes and landscapes "so that people will see how we used to live."

She showed her works at a drug store and a county fair near her upstate New York home, where they came to the attention of an art collector. From the first, critics and just plain folk lauded her feel for color and composition. Her first exhibition was in New York 38 years ago. Sunday, the National Gallery of Art opens a two-month exhibition of 43 of her works. And Life begins when...

QUIP GOING round Washington: Let's keep the Shah and get rid of Billy.

MARSHALL FORMBY and his wife, Sharleen, of Plainview, have been overshadowing around China. The Formbys were over there shortly before Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping came over here. In a letter "written from Peking," and mailed from Plainview, Marshall unburdened himself of some opinions about our new "ally."

"Great changes must come about if these 900 million persons are to continue to feed and clothe this vast population," he observes.

"About 22 percent of the world's people live in a country about the size of the U.S. They are a friendly people, well-clothed and fed. They want to trade with us and other countries and bring about better living conditions for themselves.

"RELIGION IS not a part of their life, sad to say. They hold on to their ancient philosophies, yet they seem to be happy people. The State is their religion."

"Here the State owns and controls everything. Your job is assigned to you. Hua and Teng are completely running the country. Time will tell whether it was wise to recognize Mainland China and kick Taiwan, Nationalist China in the pants."

"Time marches on and the world changes. Our own country must continue to fight to hold on to a free enterprise system. China has a lot of catching up to do. If they find sufficient oil to trade to us and other countries they will rebuild fast. Otherwise, it is going to take a long time. They are short on technological help, but they have started to improve their schools..."

The big question of course, which Marshall didn't have to pose, is: "And what will we Americans get out of this alliance?" In the first go-round the Communist leaders of this Communist nation got their way. Why?

L.M. BOYD: ...Pass It On

Q "CAN'T WE get it straight as to which tire is more dangerous with a blowout?"

A. Race drivers say a rear tire. But the makers of production line cars say a front tire. Depends on speed and power, evidently.

Ex-Power Company Head To Testify In Oil Price 'Daisy Chain'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Angel Perez, the former president of Florida Power Corp. who pleaded guilty to conspiracy in a "daisy chain" of oil price boosts, will testify against five other defendants, federal prosecutor Chris Hoyer said Wednesday.

Defense attorney Andrew Jefferson of Houston countered by telling the jury he believes whatever Perez says on the witness stand will be "false witness."

In his opening statement, Assistant U.S. Attorney Hoyer said, "You'll hear Angel Perez testify that he received an envelope, took it home and opened it to find $8,000 or $10,000 in cash.... He called Ray Granlund and said he is now retired and would like a check so he can be more open about it and can spend it."

Hoyer said Granlund, 72, Perez, 70, and Richard Raymond, 63, who has since retired as executive vice president of FPC, met at the Columbia Restaurant in Tampa and Granlund gave Perez and Raymond each an envelope.

Raymond's attorney, Ronald K. Cacciatore of Tampa, said "Richard Raymond didn't receive one dime from Ray Granlund or Angel Perez." Jefferson, representing defendant Ronald Pruitt, 36, of Houston, noted the prosecutor's statement that Perez will testify

"I believe that every witness he (Perez) bears will be false witness," Jefferson declared.

Granlund, a Houston oil broker and consultant to both Florida Power and Charter International Oil Corp. of Houston, isn't on trial. He was granted a severance on grounds of poor health and will be tried separately.

Defendants being tried along with Raymond and Pruitt are Houston oilmen Walter Ballard, 59; James B. Clark and John L. Burns, 50.

Hoyer said FPC asked Granlund in April 1973 to help it find oil to meet its needs when oil supplies were getting tight even before the Arab oil embargo later that year.

"The evidence will show that Ray Granlund thought he saw a chance to make some money," Hoyer said.

He said Granlund set up a scheme in which oil was bought and sold on paper a number of times, each time raising the cost.

As an example, the prosecutor said, Charter sold a quantity of oil to Signal Oil and Gas for $515,000; Signal sold it to Matrix Properties, of which Pruitt was executive vice president, for $552,000; Matrix sold it to Larcon Petroleum Inc. Of which Pruitt and Burns were part owners, for $741,000, and Larcon sold it to Florida Power for $952,000.

"Ray Granlund made $200,000 profit on that one sale," Hoyer said. "Granlund paid off Walter Ballard and Angel Perez."

Ballard's attorney, Robert Josefsberg of Miami, told the jury that "the picture of Walter Ballard will be separated from the picture of the others and will be quite different from what the government says.

Attorneys said the trial is expected to consist largely of documentary evidence and should last four weeks or longer.

Ashland Oil Properties Sold

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — Five companies have agreed in principle to acquire Ashland Oil Inc. oil and gas properties in transactions totaling $744.5 million, company spokesmen said Wednesday.

The agreements, to purchase the properties from the company's Ashland Explorations Inc. unit, have been announced in recent days by the five companies, said Dan Lacey, a spokesman at Ashland, and Bill Hartl, Ashland's director of financial communications.

Ashland, the nation's 15th-largest oil firm, has been divesting itself in recent months of its less profitable operations.

Tenneco Inc., based at Houston, has said its Tenneco Oil Co. unit and Mesa Petroleum Co. of Amarillo — acting as equal partners — agreed to acquire Ashland Exploration's Midcontinent Region oil and gas properties for $340 million.

That acquisition would involve both producing and exploration properties — including 350,000 undeveloped acres in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, and net proven reserves estimated last Oct. 1 at 2 million barrels of oil and 740 billion cubic feet of gas.

Tenneco said the agreement was subject to negotiation of a definitive accord and receipt of government approval.

Getty Oil Co., based in Los Angeles, said it agreed in principle to acquire interests in 15 oil and gas properties and support facilities from Ashland Exploration for $267 million.

The properties — offshore of Louisiana and Texas — produce 6,500 barrels of oil and about 25.6 million cubic feet of gas a day.

Included in the support facilities are four natural gas plants in Louisiana and pipelines connected to the various prop-

Oil Strikers Resume Work At Texas Unit

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Workers at Texaco's largest refinery were back on their jobs Wednesday, ending a two-day "surprise strike" caused by pickets flown in from New Jersey where a local dispute is raging.

The New Jersey pickets, part of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers union, left the refinery but did not return to the East Coast. They set up new picket lines at Texaco's asphalt plant in nearby Port Neches briefly and then moved to Houston to picket Texaco's offices there. No work was disrupted. The office workers are non-union.

The pickets at the major refinery came down about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, said company spokesman Larry Bingham. The withdrawal came after all-day discussions between OCAW representatives and their striking New Jersey brothers.

Supervisory personnel had kept the refinery operating since the work stoppage began Monday morning when crews reporting for work unexpectedly encountered pickets from the striking OCAW Local 8-638 from the Eagle Point Texaco refinery in Westville, N.J.

Local workers decided to honor picket lines set up by their union brothers who are involved in a dispute with Texaco at the Eagle Point facility.

Union officials in Port Arthur ordered their 7,000 members back to work Monday, but workers did not heed the order.

Bingham said no head count was taken but "significant numbers" of Port Arthur workers honored the out-of-state pickets.

The 600-member New Jersey local walked out Jan. 17 over local issues of retrogression on past contract conditions — specifically on absenteeism, overtime meals, number of workers manning refinery issues and the contracting of work out of bargaining groups.

Heating Oil Futures Soar Via Cold, Shortages

CHICAGO (AP)—Tightening world oil supplies and a blast of wintry weather over much of the nation fostered a 21 percent increase in the price of heating oil futures during the last month.

A seven-week shutdown of Iranian crude oil exports, which constitute about 5 percent of the free world's output, led government and industry analysts to project heating oil shortages by next winter and helped inflate futures prices on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Although the same news led to a flurry of trading activity during the last two weeks in the Merc's new heating oil futures, the contract is still lightly traded.

Analysts say prices for heating oil futures reflect the so-called free market price for heating oil at New York harbor, the price paid by many heating oil dealers and distributors. Futures prices rose from 43.35 cents a gallon Jan. 2 to 52 1/2 cents at Monday's close.

But although open interest, or the number of contracts outstanding for which a trader must execute a purchase of sale in order to withdraw from the market, was six times Jan. 2 levels, it still stood Tuesday at 325.

That compares to about a quarter of a million silver contracts outstanding on the Commodity Exchange Inc., the Merc's neighbor in New York's World Trade Center, or 8,000-plus open interest in platinum, traded in a lively ring on the Merc.

There's no shortage in the heating oil market of price uncertainty, the meat and potatoes of the futures industry. Trade figures show that heating oil prices have fluctuated frequently in a 15-cent-a-gallon range since 1974.

Futures contracts permit commercial and industrial dealers in certain commodities to hedge against price increases, while speculators willing to absorb the risk of price change attempt to profit by buying and selling from hedgers and from each other.

Thus in theory, a heating oil distributor who had just bought, say, 42,000 gallons of No. 2 heating oil to sell to homeowners could, through a floor broker, sell one 42,000-gallon futures contract for roughly the amount for which he had just bought the oil.

If the price of oil falls before the distributor sells his 42,000 gallons of oil on the retail market, he is protected from loss by his profit on the futures market. If the price of oil goes up, his loss on the futures market is offset by his profit on the cash market.

So why is the Merc's heating oil contract languishing in a near-silent trading ring on the Merc floor?

"It's a matter of visibility. A lot of potential users don't know the contract is here. The success of a contract like this could go a long way toward solving the pricing problems of the industry. It's the freest market possible," said Merc Chairman Michel Marks.

Analysts familiar with the contract agree that it can succeed. Some blame the Merc's marketing efforts for its failure so far.

One analyst who asked not to be named said that brokerage houses burdened by tremendous growth in other areas of futures trading have not promoted the contract. Also, the oil industry is conservative and may not be inclined to hedge.

"It's a high-rolling business. Anybody will dump $50 million in the Baltimore Canyon without knowing what the hell is out there. But it's certainly not an industry that is afraid of risk."

Also, a welter of federal regulations control oil pricing mechanisms, and the possibility of government price regulation this spring also could quell new ventures in futures trading. "I suspect there are subtle, powerful pressures against this market's succeeding," an analyst said.

Exxon Raises Crude Barrel Price Level

NEW YORK (AP)—Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company, told its refining customers Wednesday that it was raising its prices on crude oil from Saudi Arabia by 17 to 20 cents a barrel.

The company said the increase was needed because of a recent increase by the Saudis of some oil prices following the cutoff in Iranian oil production.

The Exxon price rise should have little or no effect on consumer prices of gasoline or heating oil, experts said.

Exxon made the change known in a cable to its affiliates and customers. It said it was raising the price because of the decision earlier this week by Saudi Arabia to boost by 5 percent the price of any crude oil produced above 8.5 million barrels a day. The Saudis reason that any crude oil sold now would otherwise have been sold later this year at higher prices to be effective then.

Saudi Arabian production has been running at about 9.5 million barrels a day lately to make up for the lack of oil from Iran. Iranian oil production has been virtually shut down since November because of political strife in that country.

Analysts said the Exxon move would have minimal effect on consumer prices because Saudi Arabian oil is only part of the oil supply situation. Experts figure that it takes a $1 rise in the price of a barrel of oil worldwide to produce a 2-cent rise in consumer prices.

Last week, Exxon said it was reducing supplies of all types of crude oil to its customers and affiliates by 10 percent because of the Iranian situation. Before the shutdown, Iran was producing about 10 percent of the oil used by the free world.

STEAM RAIL USE PLANNED

LONDON (AP)—State-owned British Rail announced Wednesday it will operate steam-powered locomotives this summer in the scenic counties of Cumbria, Lancashire and Yorkshire. Steam engines were replaced by electric and diesel-powered locomotives 10 years ago. About 20,000 railway buffs welcomed steam engines back in test runs last year.

Woman Dies In Church Bingo Robbery

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The cafeteria at St. Louis Bertrand Parish school was crowded with elderly bingo players when four gunmen stalked into the room, announced a holdup and suddenly opened fire on the terrified group.

Panicked players dived in all directions. When the shooting was over, one woman was dead and one man was wounded. The thugs fled empty-handed, leaving behind a scene of panic. A pair of eyeglasses, shattered by bullets, lay on a table.

"It was just awful," said Lydia Raven, a regular at the church-sponsored weekly game.

"It was utter chaos," said Samuel Reeves, who heads the church bingo committee. "The thing started and ended in a minute and a half. It was stark confusion and terror. I never saw anything like it in my life."

Dorothy M. Taylor, 49, of Oakland, died of a gunshot wound in her back. Henry Hutchinson, 64, was in stable condition at Kaiser Hospital in Oakland with a bullet wound in the leg.

"She was a good person and about her only fun in life was playing bingo with her friends at church," said her son, Clarence Taylor.

Police said the young hoodlums, two wearing stocking masks, entered the school cafeteria shortly before 8 p.m. Tuesday. A group of about 250 persons, many of them black and many elderly, had paid $4 for six bingo cards and a chance to socialize with neighborhood friends.

Reeves said the game normally takes in about $600 to $700 a night, most of which is paid back to the players. A percentage goes to the church fund which helps finance school operations.

"Freeze," one of the suspects shouted, then announced a holdup, police said. When the players didn't obey fast enough, at least 12 shots from a rifle and three pistols sent them diving for cover, police said.

Officers said most of the shots were fired into the ceiling and walls, but at least two of the gunmen shot directly into the crowd.

After the volley of bullets, police said, one of the gunmen demanded money from the cashier. But the money had been taken from the building as soon as it was collected, officers said.

Police Lt. Terry Green said they had good descriptions of the four. Green said some people with minor wounds left without treatment after the shooting. But many remained inside the mustard-painted cafeteria, fearing the gunmen were still in the area.

Green said the bingo game had attracted muggers and robbers previously. "It's like a large family," said Reeves. "It's a warm atmosphere with bingo being their main recreation. Most of the players have been coming here for years."

Price Of Gold Sets Record: Passes $250 Per Ounce

LONDON (AP) — Gold topped $250 an ounce for the first time Wednesday, spurred by the dollar's troubles, gold hoarding in the Mideast, a lag in Soviet gold sales and continued instability in Iran.

One London dealer said the price could go to $265 in the current run and perhaps top $300 within nine months.

However, there is no need to hurry to the dentist or prematurely buy a wedding ring. Dealers, jewelers and dentists say it will take six to nine months for price hikes to affect the consumer.

"Today's hike will not be felt in jewelry shops in the coming days," said Irene Zbinden, head of one of Switzerland's biggest jewelry wholesalers. Geneva dentist Pierre Numaz Droz said he bought a batch of gold some time ago and his prices will not go up for a while.

It is no secret that gold — lasting, portable and valued everywhere — is the refuge of a canny investor. The metal is a traditional inflation hedge, and with the uncertain dollar, international traders are turning to gold to protect their assets.

In Milan, the dollar's weakness was emphasized by a sharp fall from 839.5 Italian lire to 834 lire against Europe's weakest currency.

In London, it cost $2.011 to buy one British pound, one and a half cents more than Tuesday's $1.995. The dollar closed in Tokyo at 197.625 yen, down from 198.95.

Other overseas dollar rates late Wednesday, compared with late rates Tuesday:

Frankfurt — 1.8415 West German marks, down from 1.8625.

Zurich — 1.66025 Swiss francs, down from 1.6877.

Paris — 4.2435 French francs, down from 4.2770.

Amsterdam — 1.9890 Dutch guilders, down from 2.0100.

Mediators Try To Avoid Wall Street Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne L. Horvitz, national director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, on Wednesday sent more help from his agency to negotiators striving to avert a strike on Wall Street.

He dispatched James R. Williams, a national representative of the service, who flew here from Washington.

Williams joined Rosemary LeBoeuf, a FMCS regional mediator already working for a settlement in contract renewal negotiations.

The New York Stock Exchange and its backroom organizations opened for a third day of trading under a truce reached over the weekend that obligated Office and Professional Employees Local 153 to give 24 hours notice before pulling out 2,100 clerical employees.

Union officials have conceded that middle-management personnel, already given special training, could take over the job of reporting and processing securities trades on a dull day.

But they challenged the ability of the "scab school graduates" to cope with a spate of heavy trading.

The talks had been adjourned overnight amid conflicting reports as to whether they were stalled or making progress.

While hours and mandatory overtime continued to hold the spotlight in barspanies that was split into a series of sub-committees dealing with specific issues, wages were involved indirectly because of the interrelation of the various contract elements, Miss LeBoeuf said.

One management source described the union as "still on Cloud Nine" despite a halving of its initial demand for a 40 percent wage increase in the first 12 months and a 30 percent increase in the second year of a two-year pact, retroactive to last November.

The Big Board has offered annual increases of seven percent in its proposed three-year agreement, corresponding closely to federal wage guidelines.

The annual base pay of most of the employees remains around $15,000 pending the union said.

DEHYDRATED ONIONS

Most consumers buy their onions raw. A total of 12.9 pounds were consumed in 1976 — 2.2 pounds in dehydrated form. Most of the dehydrated ones were purchased by other food processors.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. The company for which I worked for 14 years deducted money from my salary and bought company stock for me. Is there any way I can sell this stock, without paying a commission to a broker?

A. Sure. First, you'll have to find someone who wants to buy exactly the number of shares of that particular stock you own. Then, you and the buyer will have to agree on a price. If you can accomplish the first feat, the second should be no problem.

You and the buyer can set a price, based on the market value of that stock on the day you strike your deal. Or, you can set any other price that suits the two of you.

You should give the buyer a bill of sale and the buyer should give you a receipt. Both documents should list the number of shares, the price and the date of the sale. You'll both need that information for your tax records.

After all this is accomplished, you should sign the stock certificates and send them — by registered or certified mail — to the stock's transfer agent, with instructions to issue new certificates registered in the name of the buyer.

The transfer agent will tell you what small transfer tax — if any — is due. You, the seller, pay the transfer tax. The transfer agent will mail the new certificates to the buyer and the whole deal is done.

If all the details and paperwork bother you, you may come to realize that stock brokers do serve a useful function after all. Nobody likes to pay out money. But brokerage commissions are usually a necessary thing in buying or selling stock. When a broker handles a purchase or sale, all of the above items are done for you.

Q. I sold 100 shares of a certain stock the day before it went ex-dividend. So, I expected to receive that dividend. More than two weeks later, I received a telephone call from my account executive at a brokerage firm, informing me that the dividend check which the company mailed me was not mine. He said his brokerage house had taken the amount of that dividend out of money I had sent in to make another investment — in a unit trust.

I have two questions. Did not the dividend rightfully belong to me? Did the broker have the right to take that money out of the check I sent for the other investment, without my permission?

A. No, that dividend did not belong to you. I have a recurring dream. It is that all readers will finally understand the ex-dividend procedure and will stop sending in questions about it. Maybe that's too much to expect.

You sold before the ex-dividend date. You were not entitled to the dividend. If you sold on or after the ex-dividend date, you would have been entitled to that dividend. That dividend rightfully belongs to the person who bought the 100 shares you sold.

Your brokerage house had to send a check for the amount of the dividend to the buyer's broker, so that broker could send the money to the buyer. Granted, this should have been explained to you. Your broker had to get the money from you, somehow. And, since you didn't send a check, your broker deducted that money from the amount you had sent in for the other investment.

You have no kick coming.

Carter Pledges Aid To Chronically Deficit-Ridden New York

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter pledged Wednesday to do whatever he can to close the persistent gap between New York City's revenues and its expenses. Mayor Edward I. Koch said after a conference with the president.

Koch, Gov. Hugh Carey, and New York's two senators, Jacob K. Javits and Daniel P. Moynihan appeared optimistic after their 45-minute White House talk with Carter, although no specific promises were disclosed.

Koch needs $100 million from the federal government to help close his budget gap.

"The president is committed to using his best efforts" both in the administration and on Capitol Hill "to help us close our gap," Koch told reporters at the White House.

During a photo session at the start of the private meeting, Carter said, "this is a time for frank assessment of the (New York fiscal) projections between now and 1982."

In addition to the New Yorkers, the meeting was attended by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carey indicated differences arose over the issue of welfare revision. "We look for welfare reform sooner; the administration says later," the governor said.

Overall, he said, "the president's attitude was entirely satisfactory. He's on our side."

Javits said Carter was "forthcoming and anxious to see that the city gets the $100 million."

Moynihan said Congress would be more likely to look favorably on any New York requests "if they feel the president genuinely supports the city."

Earlier in the day, New York City was warned that persistent budget deficits will hurt its credibility with Congress and potential investors in city notes and bonds.

"I do not see at this point a battle plan that will get to a balanced budget," Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., told a Senate Banking Committee hearing.

Lugar, who helped secure passage last year of a $1.65 billion federal loan-guarantee program for New York, said he feared continued overspending by the city could mean that "the whole dilemma will resurface in terms of national debate."

The result, said he and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., could be decisions by either house of Congress to end the loan guarantees or by investors to avoid New York paper.

Carey and Koch argued that potential city deficits — projected at $2.4 billion over the next three years — could be avoided through more spending cutbacks and increases in federal grant assistance.

"We are not asking for special federal assistance for New York City," Koch told the committee. "We only expect budgetary assistance from existing programs and existing levels of appropriations."

Carey concurred: "We are not asking for more. We are asking that the level of commitments be maintained." Carey, Koch and two other city officials — Council President Carol Bellamy and Comptroller Harrison Goldin — all argued that the city was doing its best to cut spending.

Guilty Plea Wins 40-Year Sentence

A 26-year-old Lubbock man was sentenced to 40 years in prison Wednesday by a 99th District Court jury after he pleaded guilty to burglarizing an electronics equipment store last November.

James Loggins Jr. of 2408 E. 30th St. was accused of a Nov. 16 break-in at Radio Shack at 8203 Indiana Ave., and prosecutor Everett Seymour asked for a lengthy sentence on the basis of that and three prior felony convictions.

Police reported that more than $2,000 in stereo equipment was taken from the store. The defendant was arrested after a police chase toward Tahoka during which officers reported finding various items from the store scattered along the roadside.

The defense attorney was John Collier of Lubbock.

CARTER, FAHD TO MEET WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Fahd will visit Washington March 13-14, the White House announced Wednesday. The Saudi leader has met here twice before with President Carter, who visited Saudi Arabia last year.

C.E. Kerr Found Slain In Norfolk

Charles E. Kerr, a Texas Tech graduate and producing director of Virginia Stage Company in Norfolk, Va., was planning to visit his parents and grandparents Wednesday in his hometown of Lubbock.

The plane tickets were purchased and his family was expecting him. A friend who spoke with him Tuesday night said Kerr sounded fine.

But at 3 a.m. Wednesday, the 33-year-old theater director, who only moved from Lubbock five months ago, was found by police stabbed to death in his Virginia apartment.

Investigating officers said they believed Kerr was killed after an argument in the seventh-floor apartment where the victim's nude body was found.

John W. Marshall, 20, a seaman on the USS Savannah was arrested just outside Kerr's apartment minutes after the discovery. Marshall, who police said was carrying Kerr's wallet, was charged with murder and armed robbery.

William G. Shea, administrative director of the theater group with which Kerr was working, said Kerr "was one of the most brilliant, honest and loyal persons I have ever known."

Kerr was born in Lubbock and attended elementary school in Anton. He was a graduate of Monterey High School and attended Columbia University in New York before graduating from Texas Tech in 1968.

He previously had worked with theater groups in Louisville, Ky., and New York, and had been artist-in-residence at Penn State University, Stephens College, Purdue University, Hollins College and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

He was a member of Equity Actors Guild and the United Methodist Church.

Private services for Kerr will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Sanders Memorial Chapel with the Rev. J. Wade Griffin, officiating.

Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett B. Kerr of Lubbock; and his grandmother, Mrs. R.L. Adamson of Lubbock.

The family suggests memorials to a favorite charity.

NEW JERSEY UNPOPULAR

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Despite efforts by New Jersey to improve its image, more than half of the state's registered voters wish they lived elsewhere, a poll showed this week. Gannett News Service asked voters: "If you could, would you rather live in another part of the United States than in New Jersey?" Fifty-two percent of the respondents answered yes, 42 percent said no and 6 percent said they weren't sure.

Zahedi Reported Out As Iran Ambassador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Iran has sent word it will replace Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi, the shah's favorite, with a man Zahedi tried to boot off his embassy staff, the State Department disclosed Wednesday.

Spokesman Hodding Carter said the Iranian government had notified the department "informally" it will withdraw Zahedi from his post Feb. 17 and elevate political counselor Assad Homayoun to charge d'affaires, acting ambassador.

The move would presumably end — with a symbolic defeat for the shah and his man — a topsy-turvy state of affairs in which first Zahedi, then Homayoun, then Zahedi claimed mastery over Iran's chaotic embassy in a miniature replay of the turmoil in their homeland.

Zahedi, formerly the shah's son-in-law and his closest confidant, is one of Washington's most senior ambassadors and a social lion renowned as one of the capital's most eligible bachelors.

He was said to be in California Wednesday and not available for comment on the reported termination of his ambassadorship.

His power struggle with Homayoun began when the shah left Iran on his extended "vacation."

Zahedi reportedly tendered his resignation, elevating Homayoun to power as the next-ranking man. Iran's foreign ministry asked Zahedi to stay on, however, reportedly at the insistence of monarchist generals who viewed Zahedi's Washington position as a symbolic reflection of the shah's right to rule.

When Zahedi left Washington to spend time with the shah in Morocco last month, his staff split into warring factions.

The Iranian foreign ministry ordered the shah's portraits removed from embassy walls. Homayoun tried to comply. Two pro-shah military attaches stationed guards around the portraits.

Homayoun proclaimed himself in charge, asked the State Department to cancel the accreditation of the military men and claimed Zahedi was about to be withdrawn. The military men reportedly seized effective control of the premises, however.

Diplomats loyal to Homayoun went on strike.

When Zahedi returned last week, he reinstated the men Homayoun had fired and told the State Department Homayoun himself was being recalled to Tehran for reassignment.

Vietnamese Refugees Well, Happy In Israel

TEL AVIV (AP) — Nineteen months ago when Le Dinh Quy led 65 other Vietnamese in a dangerous sea escape from his homeland he wanted to go to the United States. But now he says he's happy to be in Israel.

"Life is very okay here," said the 39-year-old former major in the South Vietnamese army. "It's very difficult to get a visa for America."

He has a new apartment and a good job as a security officer at the United Nations headquarters in Jerusalem. His wife bore their second child here and his older child attends kindergarten.

One of the refugees who came to Israel with Quy, Dr. Tran Quan Hoa, is studying to be a heart surgeon and says he would be willing to fight for the Jewish state.

"You have to defend what you have in hand," the 34-year-old physician said.

But Hoa said some young Vietnamese men had approached him, worried that they might be drafted into the army and be called upon "to die for the Jews."

Israeli law does not require military service of non-Jews, but Hoa said it would be a "natural thing" to serve in Israel's army. "You live here, you give you food here, you receive and you have to give back."

Duong Hon, 28, a former assistant chef at a Saigon Hotel, is one of four Vietnamese working in the Tel Aviv Sheraton's kitchen. "I probably will stay in Israel," he said.

"We know what a hard life is, being Vietnamese. Life here is easier. There's not a serious problem that I can think of."

They are some of the Vietnamese "boat people" who were granted permanent asylum here in June 1977. Most have adapted successfully to the beat of life in Israel while remaining true to their heritage.

As Buddhists and Roman Catholics, the Vietnamese are unique additions to Israel's polyglot collection from over the world. Their treatment has been like that received by Jewish immigrants: a few months in an absorption center to learn rudiments of Hebrew, then assistance from the Immigrant Absorption Ministry and the semigovernmental Jewish Agency to find apartments and jobs.

Hundreds of thousands of Jewish immigrants have undergone this process and still maintain their cultural identity.

Venus Probes Discover 'Chemical Fires'

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The Pioneer probes of Venus found what may be strange "chemical fires" on the planet's hellish surface, project scientists reported Wednesday.

As two of the probes dropped through the thick atmosphere on the night side of Venus, instruments observed an unexpected glow that increased as they neared the surface, Dec. 9.

The space agency said that evidence of various sulfur compounds near the surface "suggests that the mysterious glow could come from 'chemical fires' on the surface or in the very hot and dense lower atmosphere near the surface."

"The 'fires' would be fueled by reactions involving the sulfur compounds," the agency said, in releasing the early scientific findings from the multi-spacecraft mission to Earth's nearest planetary neighbor. Scientists said another possible explanation was that the glow could have been produced from heated or electrically charged surfaces of the probes themselves.

In addition to five spacecraft that probed the Venusian atmosphere, another craft, Pioneer Venus 1, is orbiting the planet.

Pioneer project manager Charles Hall said at a news conference at the Ames Research Center that the satellite was in its 65th swing around Venus and most of its scientific instruments were functioning "the way we want them to."

Other major findings from the atmospheric probes included:

—More evidence supporting the idea that the planet's hot atmosphere and 847 degree Fahrenheit surface heat are caused by a "runaway greenhouse effect" in which the thick carbon dioxide atmosphere traps solar heat like a greenhouse.

—The discovery of far more primordial argon and neon in the Venus atmosphere than expected. These findings challenge most theories of solar system formation and Hall said. "We're still baffled at this time by the meaning of the measurements."

Solar Mania Taking Over As Eclipse Looms

By The Associated Press
The two Chinese astronomers who got drunk 4,116 years ago and forgot to scare off the serpent swallowing the sun would get a kick out of Russ Cox's knockout cocktail, the "Total Eclipse."

They also might enjoy watching the sun go black on a champagne-sipping "Flight to Totality" high above the Columbia River gorge.

If the Chinese astronomers, named Hi and Ho, were still around, they could be at Cox's bar in Richland, Wash., on Feb. 26, when this country's final total eclipse of the century occurs.

Cox, manager of the Hanover House, invented the "Total Eclipse," a mixture of rum, gin, sloe gin and orange juice, for armchair astronomers who want to celebrate the first such eclipse visible in the United States since March 7, 1970.

The names of Hi and Ho appear in the earliest written record of a total eclipse of the sun. It says they lost their heads to the royal executioner in 2137 B.C. for partaking of strong spirits and neglecting to bang drums and shoot arrows at the offending serpent, which the ancient Chinese blamed for an eclipse of the sun.

Americans have more scientific explanations for an eclipse, but some of their rituals seem almost as strange. Indeed, a kind of solar mania grips humankind when the moon blocks our view of the sun, and everybody wants a front-row seat, even if means scores will permanently damage their eyesight, as 121 did in 1970, by looking directly at the sun.

Thousands are jockeying for a good position when the moon's shadow touches land first at 8:12 a.m. at Agate Beach, Ore., just west of Portland, then sweeps a path 180 miles wide up the Columbia River and across much of Oregon, Washington, northern Idaho and North Dakota into Canada. In other areas of the United States, it will be seen as only a partial eclipse of varying degrees.

For those who want a view above the clouds, the Seattle Science Center has chartered an Alaska Airlines 727 to take observers — at $115 to $135 each — on a champagne flight 40,000 feet above the Columbia River gorge.

A tourist agency in Berkeley, Calif., already has sold out its "Moonshadow Expeditions," which will leave San Francisco and

Los Angeles on Feb. 23 for a resort on Hecla Island off Canada. Wendy Weaver, the tour coordinator, said 60 persons have paid $445 to $475.50 for the trip, but she could have sold many more tickets.

"The response has been unbelievable," she said. "We are already making plans for next year's eclipse in Africa."

But the biggest hubbub is in Goldendale, Wash., a farming community of about 3,300, which has the only public observatory in the path of the eclipse. Thousands of visitors are expected, the town's four motels have been booked up for weeks, and the mayor is allowing campers to park on the school grounds.

Not to be outdone, the mayor of Helena, Mont., is inviting everyone in the United States to her city. "The Queen of the Rockies," to witness the event which won't have a rerun until the year 2017.

Mayor Kathleen Ramey said the eclipse will have its longest duration in Helena, lasting off the figure 36 minutes and 6 seconds with a shy smile. Scientists say, however, it actually will last only 2 minutes, 36 seconds.

While Mayor Ramey says she can't promise cloudless skies, she said, "I'm guaranteeing we won't have smog."

The eclipse will be nothing new to a few Goldendale residents, who were there when it happened the last time, on June 8, 1918.

Mrs. Wilma Spalding, now 85, is one of them. She remembers how she smoked some glass to look through and took a chair out on the sidewalk with her son, Howard, who was 2 at the time.

"The chickens went to roost and, when the moon passed over the sun, the chickens came out and the rooster crowed," Mrs. Spalding recalls.

Mrs. Zola Brooks, now 67, recalls that she and most of the other townspeople watched the eclipse from atop a butte.

"A weird feeling came over me when it happened," Mrs. Brooks recalls. "something I'd never experienced before or since."

In Washington's tri-cities of Richland, Kennewick and Pasco, hotel reservations also are going fast. Scientists say that area is one of the few metropolitan regions along the eclipse path in the U.S. with a reasonably good chance of clear weather on eclipse day, a 50 percent chance as compared with 20 percent in Portland.

Mainland Chinese Gain American Favor

By LOUIS HARRIS

In the wake of warming relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China, a 51-32 percent majority of Americans now feels friendly toward mainland China, a complete turnaround from only three years ago when, by 68-23 percent, most people felt unfriendly toward Peking.

In sharp contrast, a substantial 65-24 percent majority feels unfriendly toward the Soviet Union, scarcely changed from three years ago, when a 69-21 percent majority felt the same way.

As far as American sentiment is concerned, the Chinese appear, for the moment, to have dramatically captured the advantage over the Russians. The recent step of accord diplomatic recognition to Peking has triggered a highly favorable response to that regime, and this response undoubtedly has been reinforced by the visit here of Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping.

This pro-Chinese sentiment is also evident from other results of the latest ABC News-Harris Survey of 1,496 adults nationwide. When asked how they would feel about a Russian threat to go to war with China if Peking were to try to take over Vietnam, 57 percent of Americans say they would sympathize more with China than with Russia. No more than 13 percent would sympathize with the Russians, while a larger 20 percent say they would favor neither side.

Pro-Chinese sentiment runs highest in the South and Midwest where, by margins of 6-to-1 and 5-to-1, people say they would sympathize with Peking rather than Moscow in such a dispute. In the West, 48 percent say they would side with the Chinese, 14 percent say they would favor the Russians, and 29 percent would favor neither nation.

As striking as the surge of pro-Chinese feeling in this country might be, the fact is that in the event of a war between Peking and Vietnam, by 37-32 percent, a plurality of Americans say they would sympathize more with Hanoi. Another 18 percent report they would have sympathy with neither the Chinese nor the Vietnamese, and 13 percent are not sure with whom they would side.

In the event of such a Chinese-Vietnamese war, sympathies are quite different in the various regions of this country. The Midwest would be more pro-Vietnam, with a 41-30 percent plurality expressing sympathy with Hanoi. By 38-32 percent, people in the South also would back Vietnam, not China. In the West, a closer 35-31 percent plurality would sympathize with Hanoi. But by a narrow 36-34 percent margin, people in the East say they would sympathize with the Chinese rather than the Vietnamese.

There also are differences by education. Among people who have not gone beyond the eighth grade, a 38-30 percent plurality would favor China over Vietnam in the event of a war between those two countries. Those who have finished high school, however, would side with Vietnam by 39-30 percent. The college-educated segment takes a pro-Vietnam position by a narrow 36-34 percent.

But what is significant here is the fact that Vietnam, with its strongly pro-Russian leaders, arouses more support in this country than China. Hanoi, after all, was the enemy during the traumatic Vietnam War, and if the scar tissue from that conflict were still unhealed, it might have been expected that few Americans would feel sympathy with that regime. Nonetheless, if there were a China-Vietnam war, Americans would favor Hanoi.

Undoubtedly, this pro-Vietnam attitude does not stem as much from friendly feelings toward Hanoi as from an in-built American sympathy for the smaller nation. Clearly, Vietnam, even with Soviet assistance, would be the underdog in a war with China.

Similarly, although China has a greater population than the Soviet Union, it is much weaker militarily. Thus, at least part of the reason for American sympathy for Peking over Moscow is sympathy for the underdog.

But beyond all this, there has been a clear outpouring of friendly feelings in this country for the Chinese in recent weeks, more than has been evident any time in the recent past.

FUNERAL COSTS CUT
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A local mortuary has cut the price of a fancy funeral by about $1,000. The firm rents elegant casket covers to hide plain boxes. "The rent-a-cover fills a need," said manager Oliver Lindquist. When the funeral services are over the rented cover is returned to a storage room while the body, in an inexpensive casket, is cremated or buried, said Lindquist. An oak or simulated bronze casket can run as high as $1,500, but a cheap casket with a reusable cover costs only $250 or so, Lindquist said.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
A sizeable amount of candle wax was dripped over a fairly large area of commercial nylon carpeting in our office, and the building maintenance people seem unable to remove it.

To my knowledge they only shampoo the area periodically, but the wax is not removed.

I would appreciate reading a solution to this problem so I can get the word to the cleaning people. — E.T.S.

As soon as the grease appears on the paper, remove it immediately, replacing it with fresh tissues. Repeat the process until the napkins no longer absorb the grease.

You could use a safe dry cleaning fluid effectively in some cases, but it should be used sparingly to avoid damage to the backing. But it would probably not be necessary if the above process is used. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I've found an easy way to clean the glass in our outdoor gas light.

I use oven cleaner. Leave it on for a while and then wash.

No scratching the glass that way, and it's almost impossible to get them clean any other way. — Mrs. Dorothy Lamott

DEAR HELOISE:
I use brush rollers for my hair, and am always losing the plastic picks.

So I took a plastic kitchen scrubber and stuck the picks into it. Now the picks don't get lost and it fits into my roller box. — Jerry Mae DeWitt Boy, doesn't it just gall you when something like that happens!

What with candles being so popular and all, and with power failures and what have you, it's just inevitable that someone's going to spill some wax sooner or later.

But it's not as disastrous as it may appear, as there's a simple remedy for removing it.

After scraping off as much of the hardened wax as possible, take a box of white facial tissues or paper napkins and place these over the spilled wax three or four layers thick. With your iron set on medium or synthetic, iron over the tissues.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Recently someone wrote and asked why a man would let the nail of his little finger grow much longer than the others. You said, "Some people use the long little fingernail as a scoop for cocaine."

I know several men who used an extra long (and sharp) little fingernail as a knife to cut open their cigarette packs. — Dothan, Ala.

Dear Ann: I know why Brazilian men grow a single very long fingernail on one hand. It's to let people know they are upper class and don't have to work with their hands. — Acapulco, Mexico

Dear Ann: Don't you know that men who repair watches and clocks often let one fingernail grow much longer than the others so they can pick up springs and tiny parts of the watch works? — Louisville, La.

Dear Ann: My husband's father let the nails on both little fingers grow long so he could clean the other fingernails with the long ones. I used to watch him do it and it was utterly fascinating. — Providence, R.I.

Dear Ann: How come a woman with your sophistication didn't know that the reason some people let their little fingernails grow longer than the rest is because they are very handy for removing wax from the ears? — London, Ontario

Dear London and All Others Who Wrote: Thanks for educating me. I had no idea that the little fingernail could serve so many purposes.

P.S. I hope those folks out there who are cleaning their ears with long fingernails will quit it. Sharp objects should never be used to remove ear wax. Hairpins, pencils and yes, long fingernails can puncture the ear drum and cause permanent damage.

If large amounts of ear wax collect, go to an ear doctor. For daily ear hygiene use a soft handkerchief (twisted) and don't go in any deeper than an inch.

Dear Ann: My husband and I have been arguing over something since we married nine years ago.

Ed is from a family of eight boys and one girl. His mother was widowed and wants to live with us and bring her 35-year-old son who is emotionally unstable. He can't work, although he is in excellent physical condition.

Ed travels in his job. If his mother and brother move in, I'll be their maid and chauffeur. Also, we would be their sole support. Ed's mother and brother have an apartment but my husband thinks it is his duty to take them in. I've told him it would break up our marriage. (My mother-in-law is very strong-minded and has to run everything.)

We have two young children and are trying to get on our feet financially. Ed says I am selfish.

I insist that each of the nine children should contribute toward an apartment for their mother and brother so the burden will not fall on one. I love my husband and do not want to divorce him, but I cannot go along with his notion that we accept all the responsibility.

Please settle this. He says he will abide by your opinion. — Desperate In Texas

Dear D. in T.: My "decision" appears in your letter. "Each child should contribute toward an apartment for mother and brother so the burden will not fall on one person."

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: My daughter, who is 27, has been bothered for several months with chalazions and styes on her eyelids, possibly a staph infection. She has to have the lumps removed surgically and is getting discouraged. She is also allergic and gets shots for that. Do you know of any treatments for this? — A.B.

The skin around the eyes is rich in tiny ducts and glands. Lumps on the eyelids may have any of several causes, and they have to be seen to be evaluated. A chalazion is an enlargement of one of the oil glands of the lid, which has become blocked. The oil accumulates and hardens causing the small hard lump — the chalazion. The skin can be moved over the lump easily. They usually disappear on their own in time, but if they do not within several weeks or two months then surgery may have to be done to remove them.

The location of lumps is also important. For example, a lump in the lower lid at the inside corner may be a blocked tear duct. This can be relieved by dilating (expanding) the duct to allow better drainage. A repeated infection or irritation of the lid may cause it, as can an allergy.

Styes, on the other hand, are an infection from the staph germ. They require special antibiotic ointments. An eye specialist (ophthalmologist) would be the specialist to see for proper identification of the lumps. Your daughter might be dealing with multiple problems requiring different treatment. The tear duct problem, incidentally, is called dacryocystitis.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have gout, which settled in my big toe. I was discussing this with a friend recently. He said the reason it settles there is that the toe is farthest away from the heart and so the material just gravitates. Is this the case? We have a small friendly bet going because I disagree. — N.V.

Wrong. Gout is a chemical problem. That is, it begins with a blood chemistry disorder — too much uric acid. When enough of this is circulating in the body some of it will collect and crystallization will form deposits. They are called topi (TOE-tie), which despite the way it sounds has nothing to do with the toes.

The big toe or any extremity, such as fingers or even ear lobes, are likely places for this to occur, but the topi can pop up about anywhere on the body. Why the feet seem more prone is not known, but it has nothing to do with your friend's gravity theory. A more likely explanation is that the feet are more prone to injury. A minor bump or tight-fitting shoes can bring on a gout attack, and painful feet are quickly noticed. There's a fuller discussion of gout in the booklet, "Gout, the Modern Way to Stop It." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please, for my peace of mind, answer this question. A person told a friend of mine that canker sores were related to V.D. My friend gets these when she has a cold. — M.M.F.

A canker sore has nothing at all to do with V.D. The tiny blisters appear on the mouth or inner cheek, usually heal on their own, but may recur as do cold sores or fever blisters. They are not related to any cold virus, nor to any V.D. germ.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 64, a male. I just had a cardiac catheterization done. My arteries were not obstructed, but the doctor mentioned signs of hardening. A cholesterol-lowering diet was suggested. My blood pressure is 120/75. What action should I take? — G.W.

You must have had some serious symptoms to warrant the catheterization — which is a special test to determine the state of the insides of arteries serving the heart. If there was no blockage, then just keeping your weight down, exercising as much as you can without pain, and quitting cigarettes if you smoke should be helpful. The diet might help also. If you do have pain (angina) you may need medicine to control it.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I've always heard one should take aspirin with milk or with meals. Now I'm told that it works in the blood and taking it with meals won't help. Please explain. — A.P.

It works in the bloodstream, but before it gets there it can irritate your stomach. Thus the advice is correct.

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

for a copy of the booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

CHEESY SPANISH RICE

4 slices uncooked bacon, chopped
1 cup sliced onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
3 cups cooked rice
2 cups cups (8 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
Paprika
6 slices cooked bacon

Cook bacon, onion and green pepper in saucepan until vegetables are tender and bacon is crisp; drain fat. Stir in tomatoes, tomato sauce, salt and pepper; simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Stir in rice and 1 1/2 cups of the cheese. Cook until cheese is melted. Pour mixture into buttered 9-inch square baking dish. Sprinkle remaining cheese over top. Dust lightly with paprika. Broil 4 inches from source of heat until cheese is melted and bubbly. Garnish with cooked bacon. Serve immediately; 6 servings, about 1 cup each.

HONOR BAND MEMBERS BOUND FOR DALLAS — The South Plains College Band will send the largest contingent in its history to perform this month with the All-State Honor Band in Dallas. Honor band members from SPC include (from left) Laura Mitchell on French horn; Carolyn McIntire on percussion; Francis Fetsch and Shirley Garner on clarinet; Joe Mendez on trombone; and Darrel Raines Jr. on clarinet. With the exception of Garner, who hails from Seminole, all are from Levelland.

REGIONAL

ROUNDUP

Source Of Big Spring Slick Unknown

BIG SPRING—Local officials have been unable to find the source of a mysterious oil slick that covers part of Beals Creek, located east of Big Spring. "It looks as though 200 or 300 gallons of some type of oil ended up in the creek," said Bill Brown, assistant city attorney in charge of water and sewer functions.

According to Brown, a local citizen discovered the oil and reported it to a representative of the State Water Resources Board. The representative, in turn, reported the slick to Brown Monday afternoon.

Brown explained that the city will be able to pump small portions of the oil out of the creek but most of it has disseminated over large areas and collected on brush next to the creek.

Brown was asked if the city will have oily drinking water. "Once that oil has traveled 70 miles to the plant and collected on brush along the way, the amount that finds its way into the drinking water will be minuscule and cause no harm," said Brown.

Reporter Shot In Head; Condition Called Critical

LITTLE ROCK (UPI) — Reporter Judy Danielak of United Press International, shot in the head while driving home from her office, was listed in critical condition and in a coma Wednesday at a local hospital.

Police said they had nothing but "dead ends" in the case and no motive for the Tuesday night shooting.

Friends and family members said the 21-year-old legislative reporter, a student at the University of Arkansas' Little Rock campus, had received "hate mail" and threats for several months because of editorials she authored while editor of the college's student newspaper. But there has been no evidence connecting the shooting with these incidents.

"I guess I've arrived," Mrs. Danielak told her parents last semester. "I'm beginning to get hate mail."

Friends said later while Mrs. Danielak was working alone at the college newspaper office, a student burst into the Forum newsroom, threatened her and said editorials about a black campus group should be stopped.

"I think the way he said it was, there could be some trouble if this kind of thing happens again," said Steve Brewer, a columnist on the Forum at the time. Brewer said other reporters and had received similar hate mail and the threats were considered by some to be nothing but idle threats.

Police reports of the Tuesday night shooting were sketchy, but officers said Mrs. Danielak was shot once in the head while driving on Interstate 40 toward Little Rock Air Force Base, where she and her husband live.

The reporter's car veered off the road and crashed into a utility pole, police said. She was found by a Pulaski County deputy who stopped for what he thought was an auto accident.

Authorities and ambulance attendants did not realize Mrs. Danielak had been shot until x-rays taken at the hospital showed a large caliber bullet lodged in her brain, police said.

"Right now we just don't know what has taken place," said police spokesman Wayne Eddy. "On a freakish thing like this, we just don't know."

Eddy said investigators weren't even clear whether the bullet was fired from outside the car or from the inside. She was presumably alone on her way home.

Speed Change Means Funds Cut, U.S. Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any state raising the speed limit higher than 55 miles per hour will lose its federal highway funds, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said Wednesday.

Adams said he has informed the governors of several states that "We will cut off highway funds to states that raise the speed limit past 55."

Testifying before a House appropriations subcommittee, Adams said: "I will fully carry that out. That's without exception."

Legislators and governors in at least 14 states are discussing how to get around the 55 mph speed limit imposed on them by the federal government.

The Transportation Department identified those states as Wyoming, Washington, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Utah, North Dakota, Colorado, Montana, California, Nevada, Arizona, Oregon and Idaho.

"I hope we can avoid a confrontation," Adams said, adding that he doesn't like the idea of cutting off federal highway money and is trying to work with the governors.

Communications Week Slated At Texas Tech

Five days of seminars, demonstrations and lectures by mass media executive and professional personnel are planned for Texas Tech University's Mass Communications Week, Feb. 18-24.

The week will be highlighted by presentation of the Thomas Jefferson Award to Richard E. Wiley, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and induction of editor and publisher Wayne C. Sellers of Palestine, into the Texas Tech Mass Communications Hall of Fame.

The Thomas Jefferson Award is presented annually to a public official who has made outstanding contributions toward defending and preserving the freedom of the news media. The award will be presented at the Thomas Jefferson Award Dinner, Feb. 23.

The "Hall of Fame" designation recognizes Texas Tech alumni or others who have distinguished themselves in mass communications and have specifically aided the educational programs in mass communications at Tech.

Sellers will be inducted during a luncheon Feb. 22.

Feb. 19 will be devoted to public relations; Feb. 20 to journalism; Feb. 21 to photography and film; Feb. 22 to advertising; and Feb. 23 to telecommunications.

The week's activities will officially begin on Public Relations Day, Feb. 19. Speakers scheduled include William L. Hill, creative director for Bloom Advertising Agency in Dallas; Linda Walker Buck, account executive with Tracy-Locke Advertising and Public Relations in Dallas; and Sam Petok, vice president of communications for Rockwell International. Rockwell also will air its multimedia production depicting the origins of the company.

Journalism Day speakers will include John N. Bailey, executive director of the International Association of Business Communicators, San Francisco, and Glen Guzzo, Fort Worth Star-Telegram reporter who covered the Cullen Davis trials.

A Journalism Day panel discussion featuring Tech ex-students also is planned. Participants will include Rusty Jones of KMCC-TV, Lubbock; Mary Lou Kromer of Rockwell International; Don Richards, press secretary to U.S. Rep. Kent Hance in Washington; and Roy McQueen, publisher of the Snyder Daily News.

Photo/Film day will feature speaker Bob Dodson, NBC Dallas correspondent, and nine films, including "Binary Bit Patterns," "Braverman's Condensed," "Cream of Beatles," "Frogs," "Camera Magic: The Art of Special Effects," "Stuntman," a film by Tech Mass communications students, and Clio Award-winning commercials.

The "World of Advertising Seminar," Feb. 22 will feature Tom Ross, vice president and account supervisor for Leo Burnett Advertising Agency; Chuck Shemy, vice president of marketing for Keebler, Inc., Chicago; Kathy Keeton, editor and assistant publisher of Penthouse and Viva International, Ltd., that publishes "Penthouse" and "Omni" magazines; and James P. Healy Jr., vice president of the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, Inc., Chicago.

Telecommunications Day Speakers Feb. 23 are Al Bond, president-elect of ITVA National and manager of Media Center Products at Texas Instruments in Dallas; Charles Jones of Radio Development, Cosmos Broadcasting; Ed Giles, media specialist at Emory University Medical School in Atlanta; and David Dow of Video Synthesis.

The week will conclude Feb. 23 with the presentation of the Thomas Jefferson Award to Wiley at the award dinner.

Railroad Commission Funding Slashed

AUSTIN (AP) — A small group of House dissidents, newly dubbed "The Gang of Four," fought the railroad commission and the House Appropriations Committee on Wednesday and won.
The House voted 75-66 to slash a Senate-passed emergency appropriation for the Texas Railroad Commission from $581,682 to $245,509.

House members tentatively approved the pared-down bill (SB140) on voice vote, setting up a final House vote on Monday. Senators then would decide whether to accept the cut or send the bill to a conference committee.
With "The Gang of Four" threatening a floor fight, sponsors postponed until March 9 another emergency bill, appropriating $115,794 to the Texas Animal Health Commission.

The railroad commission appropriation was sold as necessary to cover the cost of analyzing each gas well for federal pricing decisions under the 1978 natural gas policy act.

But Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, said the commission had requested only $245,509 for that purpose and failed to justify the rest.
Rep. John Whitmire, D-Houston, working with Coleman, challenged a $67,300 item labeled merely, "decision making."

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, replied that the commissioners "need knowledgeable engineers, and they are high-priced people," to size up the gas pricing applications.
"You are asking us to vote for a blind item, without giving us enough information to vote for it," Whitmire said.

Coleman reminded the representatives that many had called for government emergency.
"Political rhetoric sounds real good back home. Let's see if you've got the nerve to do it today," he said.

Coleman also had help from Reps. John Bryant, D-Dallas, and Luther Jones, D-El Paso. Together with Whitmire, they have been the most vocal critics of Speaker Bill Clayton and his administration.
Before lawmakers dispersed for the day after adjournment, the label, "The Gang of Four," was making the rounds.

Clayton said he saw no challenge to his leadership in the vote on the emergency appropriation.
"I didn't care whether it went through intact. If they (the railroad commission) can't prove their case, they don't deserve it. I don't like to dish out any extra dollars if they don't need it," he said.

The four lawmakers had distributed memoranda criticizing the animal health commission appropriation for a brucellosis program as a boondoggle for former

Unconstitutional Deficit Financing Charged Against Texas Colleges

AUSTIN (AP) — Colleges are dodging the Texas Constitution's prohibition against deficit financing through the use of tuition bonds, a senator told his colleagues Wednesday.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, proposed repealing the 1941 Skiles Act, which authorizes colleges to pledge $5 from each student's tuition each semester to support campus construction bonds.

He told the Senate Education Committee that Texas' educational sector is second only to New York in deficit spending.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, presented a bill to cancel the 1971 authorization for the University of Texas System, Texas A&M University, Texas Tech University, University of Houston and Pan American University to issue $242.5 million in tuition revenue bonds.

In another attempt to hold down college costs, Mauzy proposed outlawing the use of state funds to build senior college centers on junior college campuses. These upper-level centers now lease space.

"Year after year, the Coordinating Board is faced with efforts by these centers to become separately recognized by the Legislature, to be separately funded, to become separately accredited and to build their own campuses," said Kenneth Ashworth, commissioner of higher education.

Ashworth said the seven upper-level centers — at Brownsville, Uvalde, Victoria, Laredo, Texarkana, Orange and Port Arthur — showed a net enrollment increase of only 186 students this year yet have recently asked the Legislature for $9 million in construction funds.

Ashworth's figures show that 13 major schools have been added to the state system in 10 years as higher education costs have risen from $670 million to $2.9 billion and are expected to soar as high as $5.8 billion in 1984-85.

"It is time we slowed down," he said. Robert Norwood of the Texas Research League said tuition bonds are "an excessively expensive way to support bonded indebtedness" with interest running up to 30 percent a year more than on general obligation bonds.

The tuition income lost in retiring the bonds, he said, must be made up by appropriations from general tax revenue and this costs Texas approximately $9 million every two years.

New Adoption Effort Approved

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gordon and Barbara Ray, the Madison husband and wife who were told they were too fat to adopt a child, will be assigned a new set of social workers and begin the adoption study process next week.

Donald Percy, secretary of the Department of Health and Social Services, Tuesday ordered that the Rays be assigned a new adoption worker from a different area to assure that publicity on their case will not influence their chances for adopting.

The next step in the process, called adoption home study, will begin for the Rays by next week, Percy decreed.

His action came after a distraught Mrs. Ray called State Sen. Peter Bear to relate that a state adoption agency supervisor had told her she personally believed the Rays had been "manipulated" by the political system.

The supervisor, Linda Waddington, said she was just trying to assure Mrs. Ray that their evaluation would proceed as though nothing had happened.

The couple originally applied for adoption two years ago. The Rays were told they were obese under state adoption guidelines. Mrs. Ray is 5-foot-9 and weighs 210 pounds; her husband is 6-foot-2 and weighs 220 pounds.

Social workers said he had to lose 20 pounds and she had to lose 40 pounds, the Rays said.

As soon as the couple's plight came to public attention last week, Percy reversed Mrs. Waddington's decision and suspended the weight criteria in adoption proceedings.

State officials said there is still no guarantee the Rays will eventually receive a child, since only one of 25 couples who initially apply actually adopt a child.

Falling Mercury, Wind Forecast

While cooler temperatures and gusty winds will dominate today's weather, a warming trend is expected to bring spring-like temperatures to the South Plains by the weekend.

A high pressure system which brought sunny skies and 50-degree temperatures to the area Wednesday was responsible for the southwesterly winds that gusted up to 20 mph.

Northerly winds, with gusts of 15 to 25 mph, are expected to keep today's temperatures in the 40s with tonight's lows in the 30s. Wind warnings have been issued for area lakes.

Although calm southwesterly winds of 10 to 15 mph are expected for Friday, temperatures will stay in the 40s.

A warming trend is expected to pull Saturday's temperatures into the 60s with lows predicted in the 30s. Spring-like temperatures in the 60s and 70s will ease area residents Monday and Tuesday.

No precipitation is expected through Friday.

Appeals Court Clears Way For Transplant

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state appeals court cleared the way Wednesday for a mentally retarded Seguin girl to donate the kidney a doctor says her hospitalized younger brother "urgently" needs to survive.

Meanwhile, the attorney appointed to represent the legal interests of Anne Little, 15, said Wednesday afternoon he is abandoning further appeal that could delay a transplant for Steve Little, 14.

Wester, saying he was protecting Anne's legal interests, had challenged a Guadalupe County probate court ruling allowing the transplant because Texas has no legal process by which organs can be removed from incompetent persons and donated to others.

"I won't be making any further appeal," said Wester. "I have just signed a joint motion to allow the transplant to take place. I believe my client's legal rights have been fully protected. The appeals court ruling forecloses any need for an appeal."

Wester could have further delayed the transplant by appealing the 4th Court of Civil Appeals' Wednesday ruling to the Texas Supreme Court.

Attorneys for both sides said the appeal is believed to be the first of its kind in Texas.

"We're very relieved to hear it," said Thomas Little, father of the two teenagers. "It's really good news to us that the court did uphold our right to do it."

"We're extremely relieved and grateful," said Anne and Steve's mother, Margaret Little, from the San Antonio hospital. "Steve's very happy about it. He had almost given up hope I guess. He's sitting here right now making funny faces at me."

A probate court order Nov. 17 allowed Mrs. Little, Anne's legal guardian out of court, to consent to the operation. Wester was appointed to represent Anne's interests in legal matters.

Anne, who suffers from Down's syndrome or mongolism, is the only one of Steve's six younger brothers and sisters who has an acceptable kidney for Steve. His parents were also not ideal donors, said Dr. David Player, one of Steve's doctors.

Doctors, saying Steve has a 95 percent chance for a normal life with one of Anne's kidneys, have refused to perform the transplant from Anne without court approval.

With his only kidney "deteriorating badly," Steve was hospitalized here Tuesday morning with extremely high blood pressure stemming from his kidney disease, said Player.

"He could have died two days ago," said Player. The remaining kidney, he added, is "doing more harm than good" and probably will be removed Friday.

With the latest turn of events, a transplant must now proceed "within two or three weeks," said the doctor. During that time, Steve will continue to survive without kidneys through artificial dialysis. The two-three weeks will give his body time to prepare for the transplant.

Frustrated by the legal jockeying, Player said doctors had planned to start Thursday testing Mrs. Little as a possible donor. Mrs. Little said doctors told her a transplant from her has only a "moderate" chance of success.

Although Steve could live "several years" on artificial dialysis three times per week, the treatment could kill him by regularly causing potentially-fatal complications, such as high blood pressure, Player said.

Steve has also not grown physically in three years, Player said, and will not grow normally until he receives a new kidney.

"In essence, he's been living without kidneys now for about two or three years," said Player.

The appeals court, in an opinion written by Chief Justice Carlos Cadena, said Anne's legal interests had been fully protected in the probate court hearing. The judge also called on the Texas Legislature to eliminate the legal vacuum surrounding organ donations by legally incompetent persons.

"We conclude that the trial court did not exceed its authority by authorizing the participation of Anne in the kidney transplant as a donor, since there is strong evidence to the effect that she will receive substantial psychological benefits from such participation," Cadena wrote in the opinion.

Anne "wants to act as a kidney donor" for her brother, even though she does not fully comprehend what that involves, said Mrs. Little.

A psychiatrist who examined her reported, "She is quite devoted to Steve and wants him to be healthy."

Asked about his feelings when Wester filed the appeal and delayed the transplant, Little said, "I have kind of mixed feelings. As the parent of a kid who needs a transplant, it's very frustrating, with all the delays. As the parent of a retarded child, I have to agree with Mr. Wester that the rights of the retarded child need to be protected."

"I don't know why he (Wester) appealed it. He's a friend, but I haven't discussed his motivations with him," said W.C. Kirkendall, attorney for the Littles.

"Because there is no law in this area, I presume he wants to see that everyone's legal rights in this case are protected."

"I think it's clear now that everybody's legal rights have been protected," added Kirkendall.

Steve's kidney problems began at birth, when one kidney never fully developed and had to be removed when he was 5. Kidney disease has caused the remaining kidney to virtually cease to function.

Absence Of Examining Trials Garners Dismissals For Three Accused Youths

AUSTIN (AP) — Three youths Wednesday won dismissal of indictments returned against them as juveniles because district judges in each case did not hold examining trials.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals relied on a previous decision — Menefee v. State — which held a district court must conduct an examining trial before a juvenile's case is presented to the grand jury.

The examining trial to review evidence "furnishes another opportunity to have the criminal proceedings against the juvenile terminated" after the case has been transferred from juvenile court, the appeals court said.

The court ruled in favor of Harold Leo LeBlanc, accused of capital murder in Beaumont; Oliver James White, indicted on three aggravated rape charges in Houston; and Wilbur Jones, accused of aggravated robbery in Beaumont.

Juveniles can be tried in state district court only if they are certified as adults and if certain crimes are alleged.

LeBlanc was 15 when Kenneth Witt was shot to death in a robbery. The Jefferson County juvenile court said LeBlanc could be tried as an adult and transferred the case to state district court.

However, after an examining trial, the judge let LeBlanc go because the state failed to present enough evidence to try the youth.

On April 1, 1976, LeBlanc was indicted by the Jefferson County grand jury in Witt's death. That indictment is void, the appeals court said.

By discharging LeBlanc the first time, the court blocked further criminal action against him and remanded the case to juvenile court, the appeals judges wrote.

To hold otherwise would render the examining trial a meaningless sham because the state could simply refuse to put on any evidence and then take the juvenile before the grand jury," the appeals court said.

White pleaded guilty to three aggravated rape charges and was sentenced to a total of 150 years in prison. He was 16 when the alleged offenses occurred in Houston between Oct. 24 and Dec. 6, 1976.

The state district court did not conduct an examining trial before White was indicted, the appeals court noted.

Without holding the pretrial proceeding, the district court left out a necessary step and therefore did not have jurisdiction in the case, the appeals court wrote.

Jones was sentenced to 99 years in prison after a Beaumont jury convicted him in an April 17, 1976, aggravated robbery. He was 15 when the alleged offense took place.

No examining trial was conducted after the youth's case was transferred to district court.

"While the trial court found no examining trial was requested, there was no waiver of such examining trial," the court said. "Therefore the indictment is void."

In other cases, the appeals court:

— Upheld Earnest Edward Welch's murder conviction and life sentence in the shooting death of Russell Brown on Dec. 8, 1976. A Houston jury convicted Welch and assessed the maximum sentence because of two previous convictions on sodomy and assault-to-murder charges.

— Reversed Charles Saldanna Aldaco's aggravated robbery conviction because a Houston district judge improperly instructed the jury. Aldaco was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Feb. 14, 1975, robbery of Luz Marie Silva.

— Threw out the aggravated robbery conviction of Eartheil B. Hill because a Houston judge told the jury it could return a guilty verdict based on law not involved in the indictment. The defendant was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Dec. 27, 1975, robbery of Audell Martin.

Both the Aldaco and Hill cases were returned to Houston for new trials.

U.S. Rice Exports To Iran Curtailed

HOUSTON (AP) — For several years, Iran has been the No. 1 cash market for U.S. rice exports but industry officials reported Wednesday political unrest there has curtailed shipments sharply.

"The slowdown is very substantial," said Daniel E. Wiggins, a vice president of Comet Rice Mills Inc.

Ralph S. Newman, general manager of American Rice Inc., a marketing cooperative owned by 1,700 farmers in Texas and Louisiana, said normal purchasing patterns were suspended when the Iranian situation became unsettled about 60 days ago.

"We no longer even know if some of those government agencies which bought rice are even in existence," Newman said.

Rice sales to Iran had been about $135 million in the 12 months prior to the turmoil.

Newman said the Iranian situation is of concern to farmers because the last growing season produced a huge crop estimated at 138 million hundredweight. Only 32 percent, he said, will be consumed here, meaning 68 percent will have to be exported.

He said about 125,000 metric tons had been shipped to Iran before Jan. 21 and another 112,000 tons, that "may or may not be delivered" were on order.

"Even assuming it is all shipped, we will still be looking for a home for about 844,000 tons of long-grain rice before the next crop," Newman said.

Comet sells both directly overseas and to other companies which export.

"The problem is letters of credit that cover payment are coming very slowly, if at all," Wiggins said.

This is affecting the movement of rice both to the docks and off the docks.

Rice that has moved to U.S. ports in anticipation of letters of credit continues, in many cases, to sit on the docks, Wiggins said.

Iranian shipments normally move through ports ranging from Freeport to Pensacola, Fla.

Newman said inventories being built at ports because of the Iranian problem are substantial but not unprecedented.

He said a typical pattern is to sell 60 to 90 days in advance of shipping. This means, he added, orders on the books before the turmoil began have, for the most part, been filled.

Oilfield Expropriation Matter Set For Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Sons of the late H.L. Hunt won a chance Wednesday to persuade the Texas Supreme Court they should have a trial of their suit against Coastal States Gas Producing Co. over Libyan oil.

The court set a March 7 hearing, which will be limited to arguments on whether federal law allows American courts to decide disputes arising from acts of foreign powers.

A Houston judge threw the case out of court because, he ruled, it arose from the Libyan government's expropriation of an oil concession.

Nelson Bunker Hunt, Herbert Hunt and Lamar Hunt sued Coastal States in 1973

High Court Refuses Appeal In Ruling On Bank Case Here

A-J Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court today refused to hear an appeal to a lower court ruling in favor of Security National Bank of Lubbock.

In February 1977, Security National made a $100,000 loan secured by a $100,000 certificate of deposit at the Dallas International Bank.

Less than three months later, Security National became convinced the borrower would not pay back the loan in full and moved to redeem the certificate of deposit.

The case arose when it was discovered that the borrower had assigned the interest from the six-year certificate to a party, Washington Loan and Finance Corp.

The finance company sued the Lubbock bank, seeking to prevent them from cashing in a certificate of deposit, but the court of Civil Appeals ruled in favor of the Lubbock bank.

after the firm bought oil from Libya's Sarir Field, refined it and then sold the products.

The Hunts and British Petroleum Co. developed the Sarir Field, which the Libyan government nationalized in 1973. Almost simultaneously with Libya's expropriation of the Hunt interests, Coastal States bought Sarir crude oil from the Libyan national oil monopoly.

Case records showed the Hunts abandoned their claims against the Libyan government in exchange for $19 million in 1975. They had maintained the expropriation violated international law.

In their suit against Coastal States, the Hunts claim the company acquired Sarir oil with full knowledge that the Hunts had a legal right to it.

Coastal States countersued, saying the Hunts interfered with the company's business relations. Among the alleged acts of interference were threats of lawsuits against Coastal States customers and a worldwide campaign of newspaper advertisements urging oil companies not to buy crude from the Sarir Field.

Upholding the Houston judge's order throwing both cases out of court, the Houston Court of Civil Appeals said the Act of State Doctrine prohibits American courts from inquiring into the actions of foreign powers.

The supreme court said it wanted to hear arguments on the Hunts' contention that the "Second Hickenlooper Amendment" allows such an inquiry to be made in the Hunt-Coastal States case.

The amendment makes an exception to the Act of State Doctrine in cases involving disputes over title to property that arise from confiscations which violate international law.

The high court also granted Coastal State's request for review inasmuch as it, too, had a stake in whether the case goes to trial.

Radio, TV Group Ends Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Performers ended a 50-day strike against "Madison Avenue" and returned to work Wednesday with tentative new commercials contracts recommended by their leadership.

The approval by directors of the district boards of two AFL-CIO unions, meeting jointly in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, was completed Tuesday night.

Not waiting for expected membership ratifications, which were needed to make the contracts binding, the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild announced that their 70,000 members were authorized to return to work.

The announcement signaled an end to picketing of advertising offices in 30 cities across the country and a resumption of the filming and recording of TV and radio commercials with unionized performers in hundreds of studios.

"The strike has ended," said a joint announcement released here by the unions. "The strikers have returned to work," the Association of National Advertisers said for its 350 major corporate advertisers.

ers and the 157 big firms that make up the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

The unions said three contracts, each for three years, when ratified, would be effective as of Feb. 7. Thus the terms will not be retroactive to either Nov. 15, when previous pacts expired, or to Dec. 19, when the strike began.

The complex agreements call for a compromise on a key issue over which the strike was called: a demand by the advertisers for an end to paying for each alternate scene filmed for TV commercials in a single studio session, unless the alternate material is actually used.

Under terms of the television settlement, the unions said, there was some accommodation by union negotiators allowing the company to make minor alterations of commercials in certain circumstances.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythms: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR FEB. 8, 1979

PHYSICAL
Critic: 7, 18, 30, 41, 53, 64 — Your timing is off!
High: 8-17, 31-40, 54-63 — Could dance all night
Low: 1-6, 19-29, 42-52, 65-75 — Husband your enemy

EMOTIONAL
Critic: 12, 26, 40, 54, 68, 82 — Can't take teasing
High: 1-11, 27-36, 55-67, 83-95 — A confident smile
Low: 13-25, 41-53, 69-81 — Ratty day mentally

INTELLECTUAL
Critic: 15, 31, 48, 64, 81 — Delay problem solving
High: 16-30, 49-63, 82-95 — Keen understanding today
Low: 1-14, 32-47, 65-80 — Don't complicate things

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

P	E	I	P	E	I
A	0	0	8	3	31
B	0	0	8	3	31

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

ABC-TV's Mindy Praises Mork Co-Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever wonder how much one man — say a guy like Robin Williams, star of ABC's hit comedy, "Mork and Mindy" — can mean to the success of a TV series.

Ask Pam Dawber, Williams' co-star. "He's the ball of energy that drives the show," says Miss Dawber, who plays Mindy to Williams' Mork. "Robin is the most positive force I've ever worked with."

"Right now, we've got a formula that works. Anything that Robin does is funny."

Yes, but... "And I'm the one who calms things down," the actress says. "I think we're an essential team."

The instantaneous success of "Mork and Mindy" introduced this fall and broadcast Thursday nights at 8, caught most TV-watchers by surprise. ABC, to be sure, saw a hit in the improbable concept, and, says Miss Dawber, "I wasn't that surprised by it, to tell the truth."

PAM DAWBER Plays Mindy

"We had nowhere to go but up, though I must admit, to explain the concept, it sounds really stupid."

Indeed, Mork, from the planet Ork, is in Boulder, Colo., on a mission — to explore the earth as a possible new home for his people. Mindy is his human friend, there to protect him, to guide him through all kinds of hilarious situations.

"A lot of people in television, they're so used to writing down to the audience. With 'Mork and Mindy,' it's different," Miss Dawber says. "Here you've got Robin, a real crazy, and besides that, people are given something different to think about."

"Garry Marshall, the producer, lets us be ourselves, and we don't always stick with the script. And it works."

"Mork and Mindy" is the most successful of the current season's new shows, consistently near the top in the ratings. But Miss Dawber says the cast and the show's producers must work to keep it that way.

"Robin's got so many facets to his character, everything he does is funny. But the character has to be developed, and we need more from the supporting characters."

"You can't build a show on jokes alone."

Pam Dawber came by her part quite unexpectedly. She was under contract to ABC, though she had no real desire for a role in a series. "They kept sending scripts, but they were all so bad, I just couldn't identify with any of the parts."

To make a long story short, she read in a trade paper in June that she would play Mindy in "Mork and Mindy." "I was flattered, and I was perturbed," says the actress from Detroit. "I was upset because it sounded stupid, really stupid."

She met with Marshall, she says, "and he insisted he would allow us to improvise. He said this show could revolutionize the situation comedy format. So with that in mind, I decided I would do it."

Pam Dawber had little previous experience — modeling, some commercial work, a part in Robert Altman's film, "The Wedding," a role in a pilot for a series called "Sister Terr." She caught on quickly.

"We do it before a live audience, and for me, the first scene is always the shaky one. I usually have to open the show, and I'm a little nervous."

"Once you screw up a line, then the audience is on your side. 'OK, I've blown it, we're all friends, let's get on with it.'"

"There is one thing: In my next contract, I want a thousand dollars for each time I say, 'Mork, what are you doing?'"

TRUFFLE CROOK FINED BERGERAC, France (AP) — A merchant in southwest France has been sentenced to three months in prison and fined $24,000 for advertising everyday white truffles as the esteemed, top-of-the-line "black diamonds." Roger Lardy, 49, sold $88,000 worth of fraudulently labeled truffles before local authorities uncovered the deception, according to testimony Tuesday before the Bergerac tribunal.

Guest Conductors List Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mstislav Rostropovich has announced the 1979-80 season of the National Symphony Orchestra with a list of prominent guest conductors, including Kirill Kondrashin, a friend who defected from the Soviet Union in December.

Composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein, who made his first appearance with the Washington-based orchestra in 1951, has been given the title of distinguished visiting conductor, and will be with the orchestra for four weeks in the spring of 1980.

Asked if this will be a continuing relationship, Rostropovich replied: "Forever, I think."

Rostropovich, a renowned Soviet-born cellist who is completing his second season as the National Symphony's music director, said the orchestra will travel to Mexico in the spring and to Japan and Korea next year.

Rostropovich and his family have lived in the West since 1974, and he and his wife have been deprived of Soviet citizenship. He protested recently that Soviet authorities have declined to give his sister, a violinist with the Moscow Philharmonic, permission to accompany that orchestra on tour.

Other guest conductors who will appear here for one or two weeks each are Rafael Frubbeck de Burgos; Robert Shaw of the Atlanta Symphony, Erich Leinsdorf, Christian Bades and Kondrashin.

Kondrashin, 64, former chief conductor of the Moscow Philharmonic and former artistic director of Moscow's Bolshoi Theater, defected in Amsterdam in early December after completing a two-week engagement as guest conductor of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw Orchestra. In applying for a residency permit in the Netherlands, he said the Soviet government had restricted his artistic freedom.

London Party Features Shooting, Fire, Snakes

LONDON (AP) — All in all, that was quite a party they threw early Wednesday to celebrate the stage opening of "Tommy," a rock opera first recorded by the British group The Who and later made into a film.

The disc jockey got himself shot. Then a container of inflammable liquid used by three girl fire eaters exploded. And finally, six pythons belonging to scantily-clad snake charmer Dahli escaped, thereby somewhat inhibiting guests trying to put out the fire.

The party was at the Sundown Club in London's West End. Appearing in the cabaret was a trick sharp-shooter called Cowboy Bill Coady, who was shooting down balloons behind him while looking through a mirror.

"Suddenly he seemed to miss everything except disc jockey Gerry Collins, who was inside his wooden stand," said club spokesman Chris Moore. "I think he was using a .22 air rifle."

Collins, 30, slumped to the floor moaning "I've been shot" into the loudspeakers. He was taken to the hospital, where he was said to be not seriously hurt.

Disaster struck again when the fire eaters' inflammable liquid was set alight. A stagehand grabbed it and made for the exit but was tripped up. "It was like a fireball set off in the corridor," said Moore.

Then, as guests and firemen tried to douse the flames, the snakes tried to escape from their basket.

A rescue attempt was mounted by the snake charmer, but as club general manager Ian Baxter remarked "there weren't many people who would go near them."

The pythons were laid out in a dressing-room. "One of them seemed in a bad way. It was about 14-feet long and had lost a layer of skin," said Baxter. "The snake lady was cradling its head and nursing it. She told me it was pining."

Smoke from the fire began to seep into the dance room, but the party went on. "They all thought the smoke was part of our special effects," said Baxter. "They hadn't got a clue what was going on."

The party ended happily, with most of the guests still unaware of the shooting, the fire and the snakes. And the firemen finished by dancing with the guests.

Swedish Actress Takes Role In Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bibi Andersson, distinguished member of the Ingmar Bergman stock company, could write a book about her adventures in American movies.

The latest chapter is "Airport 1979 Concord." Married in late December to Swedish political leader Per Ahlmark, Miss Andersson flew here from Stockholm to work a day and a night in the Universal's fourth movie about near-disaster in the air. The idea for the casting came from producer Jennings Lang, as she relates.

"He wanted to do a scene based on something that happened to him in Paris — before his marriage. I trust. A friend arranged for a lovely French woman to take him to the museums and galleries, to a fine restaurant. She spent the night with him, then showed him Versailles in the morning."

"Jennings called his friend to report what a wonderful time he had had.

BIBI ANDERSSON

"Good," said the friend "that cost you a thousand dollars."

"Jennings had a scene written in which the same kind of incident happens to Alain Delon. Jennings said, 'We need an actress who doesn't look like a whore, and so he chose me. I don't know whether I'm flattered or insulted.'"

Since emerging as an international star in such Bergman classics as "Wild Strawberries" and "The Seventh Seal," Bibi Andersson has made periodic visits to America for movies. Her first adventure was the 1966 "Duel at Diablo," a western in which she was taught to make her horse fall by rubbing his neck.

Her most vivid memory of that film came at the beginning when co-stars Sydney Poitier and James Garner greeted each other effusively as they emerged from their motel rooms. Much shoulder-pounding and hearty talk. As Garner walked away, he muttered to an aide that he needed a half-inch of wood added to his boots.

"Obviously they were feeling each other out, and Poitier turned out to be taller," observed Bibi.

The Swedish actress was here a couple of years ago to appear with Steve McQueen in Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People." The movie remains unreleased. McQueen was also producing the film, and he seemed distracted during the rehearsals with director George Schaefer. "But Steve is a movie actor, and as soon as the camera turned he was on," she said.

Last year she appeared with another superstar, Paul Newman, in "Quintet," filmed in the dead of winter in Canada. "But I wore layers and layers of clothing," Bibi added. "I was more comfortable in Montreal than I was on the back lot of Universal the other night."

Lee Marvin's Attorney Takes Witness Stand

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Marvin's chief attorney testified Wednesday that he and another lawyer ordered Michelle Triola Marvin out of the actor's Malibu beach house eight years ago and threatened to call the sheriff.

Miss Marvin departed, said A. David Kagon, only after an emotional confrontation in which she shouted at the actor: "You killed my babies," referring to abortions she had.

Kagon, testifying as a hostile witness called by Miss Marvin's attorney in a property settlement trial, said he threatened to have her bodily removed by the sheriff from the house she had shared with her actor-lover.

"I did go to the phone and say if there was no other alternative, I would call the sheriff," Kagon testified.

He said he had arrived at the house with another lawyer at Marvin's request and found Miss Marvin "sitting in a chair with her back to the beach." He said she appeared agitated and refused to leave.

Kagon said he considered several alternatives — "to commence an action for ejectment or for someone to physically remove her."

But he said he felt either course "would subject you to exactly the kind of publicity we did not want to have."

That's when he threatened to call the sheriff, he said, and the only alternative left to Miss Marvin "was that she could have stayed and waited for the sheriff."

He said she chose to leave. That was in May, 1970, six years after the actor and the former showgirl had started living together.

Kagon conceded there was an emotional scene before Miss Marvin left and said: "There were some very explicit sexual remarks that were made."

Kagon was followed on the stand by Marvin's business manager, Edward Silver, who testified about the couple's joint finances when they were lovers.

Silver testified that the actor used a record company to shield his payments to his former lover and received tax deductions for them.

He said that after the actor broke up with Miss Marvin, he sent her monthly checks for $1,050, written on the account of Santana Records, a company set up by Marvin to produce her records. She made only one record, however, and it never sold very well.

Silver said that when the actor promised her a monthly allowance after the breakup in 1970, the checks were listed as "advance royalty payments" against future records which might be made for the company and the accountant said they were deducted from the company's income taxes.

The accountant also acknowledged that Miss Marvin signed $9,600 worth of checks made out to her over to the actor.

Miss Marvin is seeking half of the income earned by the actor during the period they lived together.

El Paso Up In Arms Over Plan To Subdivide Scenic Mountains

EL PASO (AP) — Residents and tourists alike turn their heads toward the Franklin Mountains at sunset, when the peaks glow orange and exert their dominance over the city of which they are a part.

But only one person can stare with the pride of ownership — developer Dick Knapp.

Knapp owns six square miles of the range that is the lower edge of the Rockies, including the highest peak at 7,200 feet.

His intent to build homes and hotels, apartments and shops has touched off howls of protest from civic leaders and environmentalists who view such development as desecration.

Knapp's land is surrounded by public property — city, state and federal. But it's still Knapp's land.

"There will probably be a big fight, but we'll win either way," Knapp said in a recent interview. "We'll either build on it, or the city will buy it."

Mayor Ray Salazar said the city doesn't have the money to buy it (a more than $7 million price tag has been estimated).

But Knapp was prophetic in his next statement: "I don't think the city needs it. I might trade my higher land for some city-owned lower land."

Two days later, Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong announced that he would visit the Franklins Feb. 16 to look into the possibility of the state buying or trading the land for a wilderness park.

Knapp caught people's attention when he cut roads through the untouched wilderness, constructed an earthen dam in hopes of creating a lake and brought bulldozers onto the land inhabited only by snakes, snails, roadrunners and Fort Bliss soldiers who put up signs warning that trespassers are wandering around in an artillery range.

Knapp's actions brought about a series of legal maneuvers that all resulted in his gaining zone board permission to go ahead. That zone board decision came after a scandal in which one man was charged with offering Knapp a favorable decision in exchange for $10,000. Knapp notified authorities and carried out the offer so that authorities could gather evidence for an arrest.

Because of those events, Knapp has halted his activities lest his permits be viewed as "tainted."

Veteran Named As Lubbock's Fire Marshal

Robert Stokes, a 25-year veteran of the Lubbock Fire Department, will officially become the city's fire marshal Saturday. Stokes succeeds A.C. Black, who retired Dec. 31.

Fire Chief Tom Foster said Stokes had been assistant fire marshal since July, 1970, and has served as acting fire marshal since Black's retirement.

After entering the fire department on Jan. 15, 1954, Stokes worked his way through the ranks, Foster said.

Stokes is certified as an inspector and arson investigator and has trained at Texas A&M, Foster said. Stokes also attended Lubbock's police academy.

As fire marshal, Stokes will supervise a staff of three inspectors, an assistant fire marshal, who has not been named, and one secretary.

His office is charged with investigating causes of fires, particularly those which might be arson, and making fire prevention inspections of local businesses and schools for fire safety.

Foster also said a number of civil service appointments will become effective on Saturday.

District Fire Chief Wayne Mahaffey will become deputy chief of administration, Foster said. Bill Estep and Harold Flourmoy will be named district chiefs and John Anthony, Bill Biggs and Jerry Denton will be promoted to captain, he said.

Harold Eckles, Alton Perry and Larry Lilley will be named lieutenants and John Hye, Lawson Jacobs and Leroy Poer will become fire equipment operators, Foster said.

The personnel changes are a result of numerous retirements, he said.

Lubbock Students Participate In Music Convention

Fifteen students from Lubbock Public Schools are participating in the Texas All-State Band, Choir, and Orchestra groups at the annual Texas Music Educators Association Convention/Clinic in Fort Worth through Saturday.

Attending the clinic from Coronado High School are Chitra Jayaseelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Jayaseelan at 3818 30th St.; Ann Brashear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brashear at 4501 13th St.; Ruth Brittin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Brittin at 5220 15th St.; Tracy Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Boyd at 5208 15th St.; Chuck Taylor, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor at 5402 30th St.; Tommy Halpain, son of Don Halpain at 5424 32nd St.; Pat Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jordan at 4204 42nd St.; and Roger Hudgins son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Hudgins at 5007 58th St.

GUM EXERCISE

Because of their crisp firm flesh, apples provide excellent exercise for the teeth and gums, and also act as a "natural" tooth brush for cleaning the teeth. Serve Red and Golden Delicious apples for a lunch-time dessert or evening snack for an appealing aid to dental health.

John Colburn is a board member of the Wilderness Park Coalition, a group that seeks purchase of Knapp's land to preserve it as a wilderness area.

"The damage is already done," Colburn said as he showed photos of cuts made by heavy equipment on Knapp's property. "Now you've got hang gliders and everything else up there. It's like an interstate (highway)."

Colburn said Knapp was a member of a long-ago group that proposed the mountains be preserved, but Knapp said he was a dissenting member and that most of his colleagues were "activists." Knapp gives the word "activist" the same inflection as "terrorist" — he doesn't like them.

"This whole area has had virtually no impact by man," Colburn said. "Are we going to sell everything out? Is the ultimate thing the dollar? Why can't we preserve some of our more unusual areas so future populations can see what the world was like before we screwed it up?"

Knapp, who said he trespassed by mistake in bringing equipment to his land and caught heat for it, can match Colburn's fervor.

"I'm a conservationist. I believe in saving the valley and the mountain. If any land planner were to start from scratch, he wouldn't build in the valley (along the Rio Grande), he'd build in the mountains. I'm not an activist. I think opposition is being misrepresented by a group of activists. The biggest part of inflation is the senseless legislation these activists create."

Some development is evident in the foothills of the mountains, with homes and apartments built along the lower slope contours.

The furor is over development of the higher elevations, where the mountain must be cut to afford a building site.

Knapp said his proposals would include lower elevations and would be unnoticed by 99 percent of the population.

In private conversation, several public figures have admitted being caught in a dilemma. They appreciate their mountains, but they acknowledge Knapp's ownership of his mountain land.

They hesitate to criticize what a man does with his own property.

It is privately thought that Knapp's objective is to trade for other property, where development wouldn't stir such a fuss.

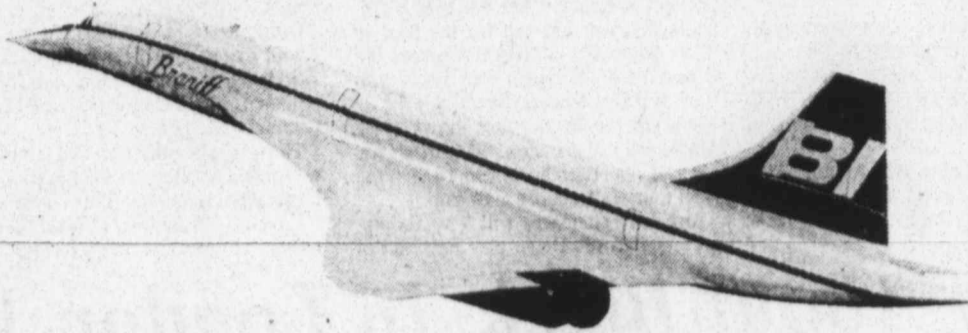

Ecologists point out that Knapp's activities will disturb rare species of plant and animal life.

Knapp said he feels such species would adapt rather than disappear.

Announcement of the land commissioner's trip was big news in El Paso. It offered promise of compromise that could satisfy everyone involved, including Dick Knapp, whose position as King of the Mountain is not disputed.

ROBERT REDFORD ON THE OUTLAW TRAIL

In Six Parts,
With Stunning

Photographs

Redford pulled together a safari of eight, including a photographer and a historian who traveled and explored the trails, people and descendants of the West's most fabled outlaws and their hangouts.

They retraced the legendary Outlaw Trail from Montana through Utah, Color-do, Arizona, and into New Mexico, recording and photographing their fortress-like hideouts with colorful names such as Hole-in-the-Wall and Robber's Roost.

The marshals who pursued the outlaws, the ranchers who befriended them, the women and rivalries are in striking contrast to the protective beauty of the terrain used by the outlaws as they blazed their way from one escapade to another.

Actually, this is Robert Redford's personal journey through time and his concern that the colorful history and romance of the past not be forgotten in our headlong thrust toward industrial development.

The series offers a unique blend of history, adventure. Robert Redford's thoughtful and personal commentary, and exceptional photography.

Messersmith Goes Home To LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Andy Messersmith shocked the world of organized baseball when he successfully challenged its reserve clause and now he comes back to the team he left — the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Right-handed pitcher Messersmith, 32, played out his option with the Dodgers and became a free agent on March 16, 1976, a move that has made millionaires out of several players since then.

But Messersmith, despite his trailblazing, never regained the success he had with the Dodgers in 1973, 1974 and 1975.

Signed by Atlanta after a successful court challenge of the reserve clause that would bind a player to one club, Messersmith was only 11-11 with the Braves in 1976 and 5-4 in 1977 when he suffered an elbow injury.

Traded to the New York Yankees, he was 0-3 last season after a shoulder separation put him out of action and the American League club released him.

"It's nice to be employed again," said the former University of California star who started his professional career with the California Angels.

"I believed in what I did as for playing out the option," he commented. "I helped with players' rights. I just wished I had signed again with the Dodgers at that time."

Several executives of the Dodgers watched Messersmith in a workout and Al Campanis, vice president-general manager, said, "We all were impressed. He has added a new pitch — a fast screwball."

Messersmith said he has been working out and although not 100 percent yet he expects to be able to help the Dodgers again.

He won 20 games for them in 1974, a pennant-winning year, and 19 in 1975 before becoming a free agent.

"It's great to be back," the pitcher said after signing his two-year contract with terms not divulged. "The Dodgers have the finest organization in baseball."

It's a good guess that Andy will be making less money in 1979 than he did with the Dodgers in 1975.

He played five seasons with the Angels, including a 20-game winning 1971 season, before coming to the Dodgers on Nov. 28 along with third baseman Ken McMullen in exchange for Frank Robinson, Billy Grabarkewitz, Bobby Valentine, Bill Singer and Mike Strahler.

Messersmith has a lifetime record of 128-95 and an ERA of 2.80 for his 11 years in the major leagues.

Campanis commented, "Some parks seem to benefit certain pitchers and we believe Dodger Stadium benefits Andy."

...Barnes Just Goes

BOSTON (AP) — Troubled Boston Celtics forward Marvin Barnes was waived by the National Basketball Association team Wednesday, making him available to other clubs for the price of $1,000.

Barnes had been suspended last week for skipping practice and has appeared in only six of the team's last 11 games.

If Barnes is not claimed by another team in 48 hours, he is free to make a His departure left the Celtics with only one of the three former Buffalo Braves stars acquired by Boston when he swapped franchises with former Celtics owner Irv Levin.

"Barnes has failed to live up to his contractual obligations," said Celtics President Red Auerbach in announcing what may be the end of the former Providence College star's NBA career.

"He hasn't contributed competitively to the ball club. Barnes has not maintained himself in first class condition to play and has materially breached his contract."

The 6-foot-9, 26-year-old Barnes was unavailable for comment.

Celtics Player-Coach Dave Cowens had said he didn't want Barnes back.

ACU Gridder, Baseball Chief Die

CINCINNATI (AP) — Warren Giles, whose half-century in baseball included terms as president of the National League and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, died Wednesday. He was 82.

His son, William, executive vice president of the Philadelphia Phillies, said earlier this week that his father was suffering from cancer.

Giles served as president of the National League for 18 years until his retirement in 1969. He was vice president and general manager of the Reds during 1936-1951.

Funeral services are scheduled Friday in Cincinnati.

"Integrity was one of the key words in his life," said his son. "He put in an awful lot of rules and regulations based on keeping integrity at the highest level."

"He was a great admirer of Judge (Kenesaw Mountain) Landis and Branch Rickey. The three of them fought as hard as anyone to keep the integrity of the game at the highest point they could."

KELLY KENT

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Running back Kelly Kent, 21, who led Abilene Christian to the 1977 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics football title, died Wednesday apparently of a heart attack, school officials announced.

He was stricken at 3 a.m. and died before arriving at Hendrick Medical Center, according to Coach Ted Sitton.

"His wife tried to save him with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but he never did come around. Doctors think he died before he ever got to the hospital," Sitton said.

Kent, 6-1 and 190 pounds, was a junior with a long list of football and academic awards.

He was the rushing leader during the 1977 season, gaining 1,184 yards in 13 games and was named ACU's most valuable player. He ran for 694 yards and scored six touchdowns in the last four games of that season, in which ACU won the Lone Star Conference title and the NAIA crown.

Kent, who also played basketball and ran track, was also named to the

When Estacado and Coronado met on the football field back in the fall, the Matadors came away with a close 14-7 victory. And through the luck of the draw the two teams met again Wednesday night.

But this time the setting wasn't the gridiron.

Instead, it was in the boxing ring as both schools had numerous fighters competing in the High School Division of the Lubbock Regional Golden Gloves tournament at the Memorial Civic Center.

The second night of action gets underway this evening at 7 p.m. and tickets are available at the door for $2, $3 and $4.

The Ponies and the Matadors met in the ring seven times last night and it wasn't even close. EHS took six of the fights while Johnny Andrews won the night's lone victory over the Matadors for Coronado.

But the night's most exciting bout came in the 139-weight class of the novice high school action when Monterey's Victor Stevenson and Coronado's Rex Andrews went toe-to-toe.

The two were apparently friends, but when they met in the ring it was sure hard to tell. The fight was nothing more than three rounds of non-stop swinging. Both fighters began bleeding profusely

Bean Heads Field At Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Andy Bean said his playoff loss in last week's Bing Crosby was a learning experience.

"Usually, when something like that happens to me, I'm mad as hell. This time I wasn't," said Bean, who bogeyed his way out of the three-man playoff that eventually was won by Lon Hinkle.

"I feel I learned some things, learned from my mistakes. Now, I'm anxious to take advantage of the lessons and go on and win a golf tournament," the hulking Bean added after a practice round for the $300,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament that gets underway Thursday. "I've been playing good enough to win, but it hasn't happened. It could happen any time. Maybe soon."

The 25-year-old Bean, certainly one of the game's best young players, has had strong, contending performances in two of the four previous tournaments this year and ranked high among the list of those most likely to succeed on the 7,234-yard Waialae Country Club course, a beautiful tropic layout that offers panoramic views of Diamondhead and the pounding Pacific surf.

Bean, despite his 6-foot-4, 210-pound frame, is considered one of the golf's better putters. And the greens at Waialae traditionally are among the best the tour sees all year.

The opportunity to play in warm weather — in sharp contrast to the wind, rain, cold, snow and hail that have plagued the tour most of the season — helped lure one of the strongest fields this event has ever seen.

Heading the list is Tom Watson, Player of the Year and leading money-winner from the last two seasons. Watson, however, had his difficulties last week and failed to win the Crosby for the first time in three years.

Hinkle, along with the other 1979 winners — John Mahaffey, Fuzzy Zoeller and Ben Crenshaw — also are in the 144-man lineup chasing a $54,000 first prize.

Hubert Green and the man he beat in the playoff for the Hawaiian title last year, Bill Kratzert, have returned. Other American standouts include Gil Morgan, Hale Irwin, Bruce Lietzke, Tom Kite, Jerry Pate, Lanny Wadkins and the always-dangerous Lee Trevino.

Area Cage Squads Ranked

Four South Plains boys basketball teams are included in ratings released by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The area teams include Snyder ranked fourth (24-5) in class AAA, Dimmitt holding the sixth position (20-5) in class AA, with Vega fourth (19-4) and Paducah fifth (21-1) in class A. Houston Madison (33-0) is ranked number one in AAAA. Dunbar (30-3) is second, with Houston Wheatley (26-7) and Beamont Charlton Pollard (29-1) and Conroe (25-5) holding down the third through fifth spots. Ahead of Snyder in AAA are Mineral top ranked Minteral Wells (25-3), Silsbee (29-2) and Huntsville (20-5). The five teams Dimmitt is trying to catch in AA include number one ranked Bowie (24-0), Coleman is second (24-0), Rice Consolidated is third (21-5), with Whitehouse (23-5) and Perryton (21-4) fourth and fifth respectively. Ranked higher than Vega and Paducah in class A are number one Sabine (22-1), Archer City (26-3), Sanger and Sanger (24-3).

Tech Swimmers In Action

FORT WORTH (Special) — The Texas Tech men's swimming team will put their four meet winning streak on the line Friday when they face TCU and Southwest Missouri State here. The action will get underway at 2 p.m. The tankers defeated Texas A&M 67-46 in their last competition and coach Jim McNally terms the victory a major upset. "This win was a real upset for us," said McNally. "After losing the first relay, we needed some unexpected win we got them, and it was a real team victory." Following the TCU meet, the swimmers will travel to Dallas to take on the awesome SMU Mustangs on Saturday at 2 p.m. The Mustangs recently defeated Indiana and USC, have again shown they are the team to beat in the Southwest Conference.

Raider Linksters Debut

MONTERREY, Mex. (Special) — The Texas Tech golf team will make its 1979 debut here today-Saturday in the 54-hole Monterrey Intercollegiate Golf Tournament. A number of new faces will be in the Raider lineup including coach Richard Whitelburg. "This will be a good test for us," said Whitelburg. "There are about 30 teams entered and there is top-flight competition in Oklahoma State, Houston, Texas and Brigham Young." Make the trip for the Raiders will be Kevin Foster, junior; Randy Waterhouse, junior; Mark Jarrett, sophomore; Jean St. Germain, senior; and Larry Seligman, freshman. Rounding out the 10-man squad will be Mel Callender, two-year letterman, junior; Chris Brown, junior; Mark Graff, junior; Greg Jones, one-year letterman, sophomore; and Dennis Winters, sophomore. Other tournaments Texas Tech will compete in this spring will be the Border Olympics in Laredo (March 2-3), the All-American Intercollegiate in Houston (April 4-6) and the Southwest Conference Tournament in Tyler (April 18-20).

Bird Now 10th In Scoring

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — All-American Larry Bird's 33 points against Drake moved him into 10th place among all-time NCAA major college scorers with 2,513 career points. The 6-foot-9 senior at Indiana State passed Elgin Baylor and Bill Bradley with his effort against the Bulldogs Tuesday night. He trails Frank Selvy by 25 points, Calvin Murphy by 35, Austin Carr by 47 and Dickie Hemric by 74. Bird would have to average 40 points a game through the Sycamores' remaining five regular-season games and three rounds of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament to pass Otis Birdsong's career total of 2,832 points for fifth place on the scoring list. Should the second-ranked Sycamores win the conference tourney and advance to the finals of the NCAA tournament, Bird could pass Elvin Hayes and Oscar Robertson for third place by averaging 35.4 points over the final 13 games of his three-year career. Only Pete Maravich's 3,667 career points and Freeman Williams' 3,249 are out of Bird's reach.

SWC Tourney Set For TV

DALLAS (UPI) — The Southwest Conference announced Wednesday the championship game of its postseason basketball tournament, to be played on the evening of March 3 in Houston, would be televised. The nine SWC faculty representatives agreed Wednesday to accept a bid made by Metro Communications of Washington D.C., the producer of five prime time Southwest Conference telecasts this year. SWC officials said the game would be blacked out within a 75-mile radius of Houston and that tipoff of the contest would be at 8:10 p.m. CST. At the same time, conference officials said the Texas-Texas Tech game scheduled for Feb. 17 in Austin would be televised. Tipoff of that game will be moved to 1:40 p.m. CST to accommodate the telecast. In addition, one of the three first round tournament games set for Feb. 24 will be televised.

CTK Teams Eye State

By CHUCK McDONALD Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff. Going to the state tournament is nothing new for the Christ The King girls basketball team, this is the third straight year they've gone to the TCIL meet in San Antonio, but this time it is particularly special for the girls.

"We couldn't have that much fun last year because the boys couldn't go with us," explained CTK senior Theresa O'Loughlin.

Walton May Return To Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Walton spoke with Portland Coach Jack Ramsay here this week and the Trail Blazer coach says he would not be surprised if the National Basketball Association star returned to his old team.

Ramsay said Walton talked of returning to the Blazers.

"I talked to him by phone," Ramsay said. "He said he was anxious to play but he didn't know when. He hoped to be able to play in about a month."

That would make him available for the NBA playoffs. Walton is in his final year of a five-year contract with the Blazers, and unless there is a trade, he will play for Portland or he won't play this season.

Walton met with Ramsay in person Monday night at the Hayward Banquet of Champions, where the Trail Blazer center was named Oregon's professional athlete-of-the-year by the Oregon Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association.

Walton had nothing to say about his previous demand to be traded to another team because he didn't like the Blazers' medical policies, specifically the team's use of pain-killing drugs to keep players in the lineup.

Instead, he was full of praise for his Trail Blazer teammates.

Ramsay said his opinion of the Walton situation hasn't changed since the beginning of the season, when he said he wouldn't be surprised if the controversy was resolved once Walton became healthy.

"He just gets down when he's injured," Ramsay said.

Walton suffered a broken foot a year ago in a game against Philadelphia. He tried to return for the playoffs, but hobbled off the floor in Seattle and was in a cast for most of the next 12 months.

board the CTK bus and head for San Antonio—and the state tourney, both with high expectations.

And although the girls didn't have that much fun last year they did win the state championship, the year before that they finished third. For the Trojan boys, this will be the first state meet in two years.

The Trojan boys are 14-4 and went 6-0 in district. The Trojans defeated Lubbock Christian High in a tense overtime contest and won the Christian Athletic Trophy Tuesday night.

"After last night's game against LCHS I think we've got a good chance in the state meet," said boys coach John Opperman. "St Pius (Houston) plays the same kind of game that LCHS does and St Pius is the defending state champion."

But before the boys can get a shot at St. Pius they must defeat Tyler Gorman on Friday. And the Trojans are familiar with Gorman. The Tyler squad defeated CTK 14-9 for the district championship in football.

"We want revenge," was the opinion expressed by the entire team. "I think we can win it all," added one of the Trojans.

It wasn't that the Trojans were over-confident it was just that the CTK gym was an awfully happy place to be on Wednesday afternoon. The boys team was still feeling the effects of Tuesday's big win and the girls, who also won against LCHS, were excited about the prospects of another state championship.

The core of the Trojan girls team is six seniors. Annette Walsh, Teresa Opperman, Shannon Washburn, Carrie Mosser, Linda Giovannetti and Theresa O'Loughlin. Amazingly all of these girls have been playing basketball together since the fifth grade.

But on the court the girls seem more intent on having a good time than winning. There is a lot of joking and giggling going on during the game.

"If we get all serious, we can't win," explained Miss Washburn. The other girls agreed. But for a team coming off the state championship, the CTK girls didn't look like champs at the beginning of the season.

After a sluggish 7-9 start though the girls have reeled off eight straight wins and are now 15-9. And they are confident about the upcoming tourney.

"It's actually harder to get to state than it is to win in state," said Miss O'Loughlin. And the Trojan girls should know what they're talking about. They defeated Incarnate Word of Corpus Christi by only a single point in the bi-district game that went into overtime.

Miss Washburn hit four of five free throws in that OT to seal the win. But the CTK girls were more interested in talking about the boys team than themselves.

"We're so proud of them," said Miss Giovannetti. "They've done so good this year and they have the same team that they had last year."

And last year the CTK boys didn't do all that well. They finished 14-12 but couldn't win their district.

"We want it more this year," said senior Randy Kitten. "And we're better this year, now we want to go out and beat teams bad."

The CTK boys are also primarily a senior squad with a lot of experience. Jimmy Durham, Ed Connors, Sean Flynn and Kitten are the backbone of the team along with junior Matt Washburn—Shannon's younger brother.

In fact, the CTK girls regard the entire boys teams like brothers. It's all part of attending school with an enrollment of just over 100 students.

COMPLETE STOCKS MARKET YSE ANALYX

Mart Takes New Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — A new warning of economic danger in Iran's political upheaval Wednesday dealt the stock market its seventh loss in eight sessions.

Broad weakness showed up in aerospace stocks as well as hotel, airline and other travel-related issues.

Most gold mining shares rose, meanwhile, as the London bullion price climbed past the $250-an-ounce level for the first time.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 6.84 to 816.01, stretching its loss since the start of last week to 43.74 points.

The slump has wiped out all but 11 points of the average's gain in the first four weeks of the year.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 4-1 margin in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told the Senate Energy Committee Wednesday morning that the effects of the Iranian situation could be "prospectively more serious" than those of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

Russian Naval Presence Seen As Low-Key Support For Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small Soviet naval force is cruising in the Gulf of Tonkin off Vietnam in what U.S. intelligence analysts regard as a minor Russian demonstration of support for Hanoi against China.

Sources said Wednesday the Soviet force includes a frigate and four or five non-fighting support vessels. This "show-the-flag" operation has been underway for about two weeks, the sources said.

Some U.S. intelligence analysts have speculated the Russian ships might make a port call in Danang, on the coast of what used to be South Vietnam, as a highly visible gesture of support for Vietnam. So far, sources said, this has not happened.

The presence of the small Soviet naval group in the Gulf of Tonkin is unlikely to be considered as a military threat by the Chinese, analysts said, but is regarded as one more move in a recent series of actions and reactions pivoting around Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia. China has backed Cambodia against Vietnam.

According to intelligence sources, there are signs that the Chinese have been supplying the Cambodian forces, now fighting a guerrilla war against the Vietnamese after Hanoi's army overran most of the country.

However, these sources said they doubt that the Russian or the Vietnamese navies would attempt to interfere with any Chinese ships carrying supplies for the Cambodians.

Other sources indicated that some of the Soviet non-combatant ships in the Gulf of Tonkin are intelligence-gathering vessels possibly monitoring Chinese military activity in South China and Hainan Island.

Also, it was reported that a Soviet cruiser from the Russian Pacific fleet had been observed moving through the South China Sea, possibly enroute to the Indian Ocean. The Russians periodically rotate warships between Vladivostok on the Siberian coast and the Indian Ocean.

Reports reaching here tell of some Chinese vessels standing off the Cambodian coast and unloading supplies into sampans, which then transfer the material to shore, presumably to be picked up by the Cambodian forces.

American analysts believe the Cambodians still have enough ammunition to carry on a guerrilla-type war against their Vietnamese occupiers and do not require a large volume of military aid.

The Cambodian army holdouts reportedly have been blowing up bridges to interrupt the flow of Vietnamese supplies — tactics reminiscent of those used by the Communists against the Americans and Cambodian and Vietnamese anti-Communist troops during the long Southeast Asian war.

Vietnamese assault troops are reported spread thin because so many are committed in Cambodia.

Nonetheless, the Vietnamese have added somewhat to their forces along the Chinese border, where China is known to have concentrated about 100,000 troops plus several hundred additional tanks and warplane squadrons since late last year.

American analysts expect border clashes to continue between Vietnamese and Chinese troops, but they say no big punitive Chinese strike into Vietnam is yet in sight.

Of continuing concern to the Chinese is the heavy concentration of some 43 Russian divisions along China's northern border. However, U.S. observers say there has been no unusual Soviet military activity in that region.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BABY TEETH

We want to destroy a myth. This myth deals with the misconception that baby teeth are not important because the child will eventually lose them. Baby teeth are very important and parents should be made aware of this fact.

Baby teeth, or primary teeth, serve a vital function in the growth and development of the child. Chewing or biting food is only one of the important jobs that baby teeth provide. They also serve a role in speech and communication. Proper development of speech from babbling to proper pronunciation must depend on a full complement of healthy baby teeth.

Normal swallowing can become abnormal without the use of baby teeth-however, even abnormal swallowing can occur with all baby teeth in place. This condition needs to be corrected as soon as possible to avoid future problems.

A full complement of baby teeth (10 on the top-10 on the bottom) is also important to insure proper chewing of food-especially at a time when almost 90% of the child's growth takes place. The baby teeth also aid in the function of proper nutrition. Without baby teeth, many nutritional foods may not be properly digested.

Baby teeth serve a vital role in the development of the adult face. Proper alignment of adult teeth and facial structures are directly related to normal healthy baby teeth. When a baby tooth is lost prematurely, the adult tooth can become affected and may not grow into its normal position. The baby tooth, therefore, serves an important function in the alignment and maintenance of adult teeth.

Another important role that baby teeth play involves the psychological growth of the child. Premature loss of baby teeth can cause ridicule and torment from the child's peer group or friends. This can have a long lasting effect on the child. Adults would not want to appear in public without their teeth, so why should we expect our children to feel any different around their friends?

If a baby tooth is badly decayed it can serve as a source of infection and can affect the overall health of the child. An infected or decayed baby tooth can lead to problems in the adult tooth. For this reason, the baby tooth should be cared for to insure a healthy adult tooth.

While keeping baby teeth in the mouth is very important, keeping them too long can also cause problems. If a baby tooth stays for too long it can affect the position of the adult tooth. Sometimes, baby teeth need to be removed in order to allow the adult tooth room to grow.

Many orthodontic problems are the result of baby teeth being removed too early or too late.

By the age of 3, most children already have all of their baby teeth. By the age of 3, over 50% of these same children already have some form of tooth decay. It is important to begin regular dental check-ups for your child at the age of 3.

Parents should be made aware of the fact that certain drugs will cause the teeth to discolor or be malformed. The antibiotic Tetracycline can cause a yellowing of the teeth. A graying color exists in the teeth where the child took Tetracycline. Please be advised that the health of the child is far more important than the color of his teeth. Therefore, should your physician or pediatrician prescribe a certain drug, they are doing this for the purpose of overall health. If you must choose between a healthy child and pretty teeth, please choose a healthy child.

Many baby teeth are so badly decayed that they do require extraction or removal. If it is important to save the tooth then many times a more extensive procedure must be used. The need for a pulpotomy or baby tooth root canal may be advocated. This eliminates decay and pain while keeping the tooth intact.

Some baby teeth can not be filled with a silver restoration and may need a stainless steel crown. It serves virtually the same purpose that a gold crown would for an adult.

We the members of the S.P.D.D.S. are very concerned with the dental health of young children. It is very important that they be given a chance to have strong healthy teeth.
