Arson Case Among 122 Indictments

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CALVIN BROWN of Lubbock was indicted for arson by a Lubbock County grand jury Thursday for the Jan. 26 downtown fire and explosion in which two men were killed.

His was one of 122 indictments returned by a panel in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District Court. There were six no-bills.

Brown, of 3227 62nd St., was indicted in connection with a gasoline explosion and fire at Serv-U Food Market at 704 E. Broadway in which Andrew Zournas, the owner, and Mark Corley, a Lubbock businessman, were killed.

The grand jury also returned 12 sealed indictments in bad check cases and other cases, Jim Bob Darnell, first assistant criminal district attorney, said.

Four Indicted For Murder

Four men were indicted by the grand jury for murder.

Gary Lynn Vester, 20, of 601 Quirt Ave. was indicted for capital murder in the April 1, 1978, shooting death of Robert Rios Rivera in a field near 19th Street and for the aggravated rape of a 27-year-old woman there after the shooting.

Paul Herrera Jr., 19, of 2826 E. 7th St. was indicted in the early Monday shooting death of Israel Duran of Anton, whose body was found near Idalou Road just outside the city limits.

Jesus Enriquez, 31, of 2911 Cornell St. was indicted in the Jan. 30, 1977, shooting death of Tom Silva Schuman at a 3200 East Broadway residence.

Raul Flores, 23, of Smyer was indicted in the Jan 28 stabbing death of Juan Luis Garcia at a nightclub south of Lubbock.

Rape Charges Faced

Billy Ray Lawson, 26, of 516-B E. 37th St. was indicted on six charges of aggravated rape. He is accused of assaulting six Lubbock women beginning last October and continuing through January at residences and convenience stores.

Cruz Tijerina, 42, of 605 Zenith Ave. was indicted for possession of heroin on the basis of a Jan. 5 search of his home by Lubbock police and federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents.

Two Lubbock men, Richard Lee Attaway, 19, and Randall Wayne Price, 20, both of 1317 60th St., were indicted on three charges each of possession of controlled substances. They have been accused of having cocaine, morphine and methamphetamines illegally in their possession Feb. 1.

The grand jury no-billed or refused to indict six persons, including a Slaton man who shot and killed a burglar in his home Jan. 27.

Those no-billed by the grand jury include: Cora L. Jennings of Hale Center, accused of forgery; Kenneth Walton of 2907 E. Colgate, accused of forgery; Michael Meeks, address unavailable, accused of forgery.

Senator Raps GOP Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. James McClure of Idaho attacked party leaders Thursday night, saying they are trying to move the GOP to the left "while everyone else is turning to the right."

In a speech at a three-day conference of conservatives, McClure said the party has "come down with a sudden case of timidity. The Republican national chairman says we must appeal to the left; the Republican leadership goes on record against a balanced budget and in the Senate, Republicans elect their most liberal leadership in history."

McClure was keynote speaker at the Conservative Political Action Conference. At the three-day session which opened with claims of political victories in 1978, conservatives planned to discuss issues and take a look at two Republican presidential candidates.

Carter Slashes Nicaraguan Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, retaliating against Nicaragua's rejection of mediation efforts, announced Thursday a cutback in economic aid to the Central American country and a withdrawal of all Peace Corps volunteers.

The U.S. embassy staff in Managua is being cut in half and no new assistance programs will even be considered until President Anastasio Somoza shows in interest in permitting internationally supervised elections, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

But despite the actions against the Somoza government, the administration steered clear of a complete break with Nicaragua.

Mauricio Solana, the U.S. ambassador, will remain at his post. And two ongoing loan programs will be continued, "since they are aimed at the basic needs of the poor," Carter said.

Mediators from the United States, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic had called on Somoza to permit an internationally supervised plebiscite of his long-term rule.

Opponents of Somoza went along with the plan, partly because it could have ended his rule, but the general rejected it.

"The unwillingness of the Nicaraguan government to accept the group's proposals, the prospects for renewed violence and the human rights situation in Nicaragua unavoidably affected the kind of relationship we can maintain with this government," said the U.S. announcement.

Spokesman Carter acknowledged that the mediation effort had reached a dead end. But he said the United States was willing to try conciliation again if the situation changed.

In the meantime, in behalf of the U.S. government, he urged all sides to avoid further strife. "We would deplore any outbreak of terrorism or violence from any source," he said.

Since last September, civilians led by the Sandinista Liberation Front guerrillas have engaged in clashes with National Guard troops.

HARBOR REOPENED

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — Valdez harbor and the trans-Alaska oil pipeline terminal were reopened to tankers late Thursday after being shut down because of high winds. The Coast Guard said the tanker Exxon San Francisco was loading crude oil from Alaska's North Slope, and that another tanker was heading into port.

Most of us feel that to draw students from Monterey and Coronado, Lubbock High is going to have to offer a program noticeably different and noticeably better," the member said.

Agreed Mrs. Turner: "Lubbock High will succeed if it provides something students cannot get anywhere else in the school system."

Tom Botello, another committee member, said the panel has suggested development of high-school classes that would dovetail into college courses for pre-medical, pre-dental, pre-law and engineering students.

Such a "college-prep curriculum" at Lubbock High would attract from across the city high-school youngsters "who have an eye toward these professions," Botello said.

Committee members interviewed by The Avalanche-Journal said they believe the college-oriented curriculum would be a good drawing card for grades 11 and 12. However, they said a different device is needed to attract 10th-graders, who — because of academic levels and the need to complete basic credits — aren't ready for high-level courses.

"Getting sophomores is the key," Mrs. Turner said. "If we can attract students here for their sophomore year, I think most of them will decide to stay."

Dr. Darrell Vines, a Texas Tech University electrical engineering professor and an advisory committee member, said the panel had about a dozen suggestions to upgrade Lubbock High in general, thus enhancing the curriculum for sophomores.

Those suggestions, according to committee members, include:

—Small classes and a low pupil-teacher ratio.

—Assignment of the school system's master teachers to Lubbock High.

—Extensive use of guest lecturers from Texas Tech and the business community. "There are many resources in the community that have gone untapped," Mrs. Turner said.

—Greater use of field trips.

—Availability of special equipment, such as computer terminals and an electronic music synthesizer.

—Strengthening of basic courses. Vines said Lubbock High might provide "more challenging and stimulating opportunities in English, science, math and the fine arts."

—Initiation of unique courses, and not just in academics. Committee members said they're looking into classes in such fields as gymnastics, modern dance and

Bakhtiar Holds Ground

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hundreds of soldiers marched along with a million other Iranians in Tehran Thursday in a show of support for an anti-shah revolutionary government. But Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar held his ground, vowing he will not surrender power to a "mob."

The leader of the "transitional government" trying to oust Bakhtiar was quoted as saying Washington has "indirectly" expressed a desire to establish good relations with a future revolutionary regime.

In Washington, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell reiterated the administration's support of Bakhtiar, and disassociated President Carter from Ambassador Andrew Young's remark about Khomeini becoming a saint. Powell said Carter feels the United States government "is not in the canonization business."

Generally Peaceful

Marches in Tehran and in other Iranian cities were generally peaceful, but new political violence flared in two provincial towns.

In Gorgan, on the Caspian Sea, nine persons were reported killed and 26 others wounded when troops opened fire on anti-Bakhtiar protesters setting fire to banks, shops and other buildings, the state radio said.

Opposition spokesmen said that in the town of Koi, near the Turkish border, a group of mullahs, Moslem preachers, was attacked and badly beaten by a rival faction while en route to an opposition rally.

State radio said more than one million people took part in the Tehran march in support of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's designation of a rival government headed by Moslem nationalist Mehdi Bazargan.

Khomeini Demands

Khomeini, who returned to Iran last week after leading the anti-shah movement from exile, wants the Bakhtiar government to resign, the monarchy to be abolished and a religiously oriented Islamic republic to be established.

The well-disciplined marchers recited in unison from slogan sheets: "Bazargan, Bakhtiar, you are our prime minister!" and "Bakhtiar, Bakhtiar, you take orders from the U.S.A.!"

Among them were more Iranian servicemen in uniform than had been seen before in such demonstrations here, raising new questions about the loyalty of lower-ranking troops to the Bakhtiar government. Khomeini spokesmen said between 2,000 and 3,000 soldiers took

Woodcock Fight Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 12-1 Thursday for confirmation of Leonard Woodcock as the first U.S. ambassador to China since 1949.

Despite the vote, committee members said Woodcock's nomination will become entangled in a Senate floor battle over the future security of Taiwan.

The sole vote against appointment of the former United Auto Workers union president was cast by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a vocal opponent of President Carter's new China policy.

Helms said he will block consideration of the nomination by the full Senate until the Taiwan security issue has been settled by the Congress. Under Senate tradition, one senator can put an indefinite hold on consideration of an ambassadorial nomination by the 99 other senators. Senate leaders can override any delay, but rarely exercise that authority.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Taiwan has agreed to establish a private counterpart to the American

Water System Study Ordered By Council

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE FIRST step in the development of the Justiceburg reservoir as a third major water source for the city is to determine how much the project will cost, the city council decided Thursday.

Discussion of the water project followed morning action in which the council approved higher gas rates for Pioneer Natural Gas Co. patrons.

The Fort Worth consulting firm of Freese & Nichols Inc., which reported last week the reservoir was feasible, now will be asked to project the total cost of constructing the Justiceburg reservoir in southeast Garza County and another reservoir near Post.

Public Works Director Sam Wahl has cited the project will cost from $85 million to $100 million. The estimate of the project cost in 1971 was $41 million, he said.

Cost Estimate Necessary
Once the consulting firm is hired to formulate a cost estimate, Wahl said, it would take six weeks to two months to arrive at a final projection.

"One of the things that's got to come almost before anything else is a good cost estimate of the project," City Manager Larry Cunningham said.

"There's a lot of unanswered questions on this thing," Mayor Dirk West commented, "but I don't know how far we can go without a firm figure."

The project probably will be funded through a combination of General Obligation bonds paid off with tax dollars and water revenue bonds paid via higher water rates.

"I doubt we would ask voters to vote all of it at one time," Cunningham said, although the money will be needed "pretty close together."

Must Explain To Public
While awaiting a cost estimate for the project, Cunningham suggested a meeting with the city's Water Resources Committee to explain the consultant's findings about the reservoir.

"We're going to have to call on them for help in explaining (the project) to the public," he said.

Also, a meeting should be arranged with officials of area cities, Cunningham said, to determine which cities are interested in participating in the project.

However, West said the participation of other cities is "not the key" to the success of the project.

Cunningham also suggested "activating the citizens advisory committee which studies capital improvements to begin studying this and looking at a bond program."

The city manager said the meetings could be held in the "next two to four weeks."

In approving the higher gas rates for residential and commercial customers, the council also determined to negotiate new gas rates for Pioneer's contract industrial customers in Lubbock.

Although Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan was absent from the meeting, the council approved her request to tie the higher domestic gas rates to a study of whether Lubbock gas customers are paying more than their share of distribution costs in Pioneer's West Texas system.

The study will be performed by the city's rate analyst when one is hired to replace Ernest Looney, who died last month.

City Manager Larry Cunningham estimated it would cost much more than $5-6 million to complete the project.

Bergland, Farmers Amicable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and five leaders of protesting farmers met for 90 minutes Thursday in a session both sides called pleasant and productive.

Tension surrounding the farmers' demonstration seemed to ease. But both sides also nothing has been resolved.

A midday "tractortrade" sanctioned by police was aimed at the offices of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the largest old-line farm organization.

In their speeches, leaders of the American Agriculture movement have derided the bureau, calling it nothing but an insurance company that works against small farmers.

Farm Bureau spokesman Peter Hively said 150 farmers broke off from the parade and "trashed" Farm Bureau offices, tipping over furniture, snuffing cigarettes out in the carpet and throwing flower pots out the windows.

But Lt. Larry Soulsby, a police spokesman, said he saw no pots coming out the windows. He said he stood under the windows during the five minutes farmers were inside.

"I don't think there was any intentional violence or disruption," he said.

Most of the protesting farmers spent the day visiting members of Congress and sightseeing. Some have left town but leaders said others were heading for Washington to take their places. Originally, 3,500 were here.

At the Mall where the farmers' tractors and vehicles have been penned in by police to keep them from roaming the streets, authorities provided a sewage disposal truck so camper owners could empty tanks, full after four days here.

BARNES BACKS CONNALLY
BROWNWOOD (AP) — Former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes says he will support Republican John Connally for president in 1980, "because I think he's the best man for the job." Barnes said he will actively support Connally, but he said his work will be done mostly "behind the scenes."

Special LHS Classes May Entice Students

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

TO ATTRACT more students to Lubbock High next year, school administrators are considering such exotic classes as horseback riding and gymnastics — plus special courses to prepare aspiring doctors, dentists, lawyers and engineers for college.

Those are some suggestions from members of a committee advising the Lubbock Independent School District on how to attract students voluntarily to the city's under-enrolled downtown high school.

Nothing is concrete yet. But school administrators and parents seem enthusiastic about carrying out the school-board order to raise Lubbock High's academic quality — and hopefully its enrollment — by instituting "magnet" features at the campus.

"I have to admit I was skeptical at first about the magnet approach," said Annette Turner, a member of the advisory committee which held an organizational meeting Monday and will convene again tonight.

"But now I'm very encouraged. I think everybody on the committee feels positive — especially the administration. They're sincere about trying to make this thing work."

Evidence of such sincerity is that Ed Irons, the school system's superintendent, and Jay Gordon, assistant superintendent for instruction, "really asked for our input. They don't want the committee to be a rubber-stamp for the administration," Mrs. Turner said.

Indeed, according to some sources, the advisory panel proved to be anything but a rubber-stamp at Monday's meeting. One member said the committee "tore up" an administration-proposed list of magnet features.

That list, the member explained, would have added to the Lubbock High curriculum courses "not much different from the honors programs" already offered at southwest Monterey and westside Coronado, the city's other Class AAAA high schools.

"Most of us feel that to draw students from Monterey and Coronado, Lubbock High is going to have to offer a program noticeably different and noticeably better," the member said.

Agreed Mrs. Turner: "Lubbock High will succeed if it provides something students cannot get anywhere else in the school system."

Tom Botello, another committee member, said the panel has suggested development of high-school classes that would dovetail into college courses for pre-medical, pre-dental, pre-law and engineering students.

Retrial Of Accused Mass Murderer Set For Corpus Christi

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state district judge, reversed by an appeals court that said he erred in the first trial of Houston mass murder defendant Elmer Wayne Henley, agreed Thursday to move Henley's retrial to Corpus Christi.

State District Judge Preston Dial signed an order Thursday afternoon moving the retrial to the 140th District court of State District Judge Noah Kennedy. The new trial is scheduled to begin June 4.

Kennedy had said he thought a crowded docket might force him to turn the case over to a visiting judge from Harris County, but said Thursday evening that he plans to try the case.

"I will try it. Things have been hectic. I finally got my door and had my coordinator come in and we discussed this," he said. "My own docket was crowded and I'll have to get some help for it."

The change of venue order was agreed to by Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance and Henley's defense attorney, Will Gray.

Dial granted the defense's change of venue motion in a brief hearing Thursday morning in a well-guarded Bexar County Courthouse, but refused to comment about where the trial might be moved.

Dial also extended a gag order that prevented Vance and Gray from speculating about the new location. "It's out of Bexar County and not back to Houston. That's all I can say," Vance said after the hearing.

Henley, 22, was convicted here in 1974 of six of 27 homosexual torture slayings in Houston and sentenced to six consecutive 99-year prison terms.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the convictions in December, saying Dial had erred by refusing to hear evidence on a defense motion for a second change of venue.

Asked if he wanted to continue presiding in the trial, Dial said, "Gosh, I hope not. I don't think I'll be able to."

Bexar County sheriff's deputies beefed up security at the courthouse, the scene two weeks ago of a wild stabbing spree in which three men, including a prosecutor, were wounded. A prisoner was fatally shot there last summer during a prisoner transfer.

Henley, confined to an isolation cell during his two days in the Bexar County Jail, will be moved back to the Harris County Jail to await his retrial, Gray said.

His face pale and his once-long hair trimmed short from his stay in prison, Henley wore a leisure-suit jacket and tie for a courtroom appearance that lasted less than 10 minutes.

Dial asked Henley during the proceedings if he agreed to the change of venue. Henley answered quietly, "Yes, sir."

Outside the courtroom, Henley's mother, Mary, said of her son: "God won't let him stay in there (prison) for the rest of his life for something he didn't do. He (Henley) accepts it as that and goes on and does the best he can."

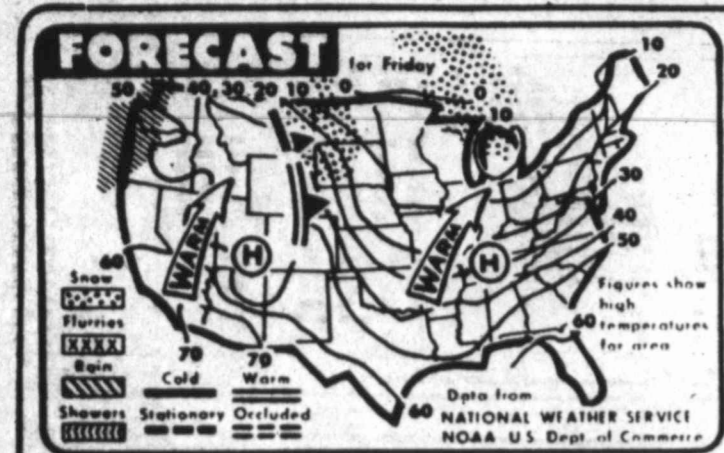

"God is preparing him for something. He has to suffer through things to be strong for whatever God wants him to do," she added.

In August 1973, Henley, then 17, called police in the Houston suburb of Pasadena to tell them he had shot and killed Dean Allen Corli, the leader of the homosexual torture ring. Henley then led officers to the burial sites of 27 slain youths in and around Houston.

Less Wind, Mid-50s Temperatures Predicted

Temperatures in the mid-50s are expected today and although that's only a few degrees above Thursday's readings it will seem much warmer thanks to decreasing winds.

A fast-moving cold front swept through the city Thursday and although temperatures were in the upper 40s, wind gusts up to 30 mph helped chill area residents even further.

Northerly winds will shift to the southwest this afternoon and decrease to 10 to 20 mph.

Temperatures are expected to drop into the lower 30s tonight but the Saturday forecast calls for a pleasant high reading in the upper 50s.

Fair skies and no precipitation means Lubbock residents can expect about 10 hours of sunshine today and Saturday.

The cold front that passed through Lubbock Thursday and dragged cloudy skies out of the area is now centered in East Texas. Strong northerly winds behind the low pressure system will push the cold front into the Gulf. Southerly winds will then bring moderating temperatures to West Texas and Eastern Oklahoma.

Elsewhere in the nation today the forecast remains the same as it has been recently: more precipitation. That moist-ture will fall in the form of rain showers in the Pacific Coast region and snow for the Appalachians, the Lower Great Lakes region and Montana.

Very cold temperatures in the Illinois area Thursday tied the record low temperature for that date in Evansville of 2 below zero established in 1899.

Thursday afternoon temperatures extremes ranged from 15 degrees below zero at Fargo, N.D. to a balmy 72 in Brownsville.

Call Seen For Return To Education Basics

AUSTIN (AP) — State Education Commissioner M.L. Brockette Thursday assured the Senate Finance Committee that the public's signal for a return to basic education is coming in loud and clear.

Brockette also said "tools for teaching" cost the state only $12.41 per student per year, yet Texas children are better supplied with textbooks than children in any other state.

A single college textbook costs that much, he said. Nevertheless, committee member John Traeger shook his head and let out a low whistle when Deputy Commissioner Alton Bowen read the 1980-81 education budget recommended by the Legislative Budget Board.

"Don't read those figures," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, smiling. To educate more than 3 million children over the next two years, the budget board has recommended spending $6.5 billion from all funding sources. This includes $314 million in teacher salary increases and $450 million to make up for losses in local property taxes caused by the Tax Relief Amendment.

"I go along with the majority of legislators who are insisting that we go back to basics," said Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg. "The question is, are we returning to basics?"

"You have every right — we all do — to be concerned with the low performance from a number of kids in the public schools," said Brockette.

He said, however, most school districts tell the education agency "reading, writing and arithmetic are their highest priority."

"I don't think anyone is missing that signal in this day and time," he said. Asked if laws make it difficult to teach basics, Bowen replied, "I don't feel so. The flexibility with the local districts is there, and they can handle what local citizens desire."

Brockette told committee members not to expect immediate improvement on college entrance scores. He stressed that the return to basic education is a long-range commitment, and scores eventually will improve.

Traeger questioned the agency's request for $123.9 million for textbooks, nearly double the amount spent in 1978-79.

Bowen said the extra money is needed to play catch-up and cover the cost increases.

Mary Ann Leveridge of Elbert Bernard, a member of the State Board of Education, said some books used in grades 1-3 are seven years old. "It seems a shame that some students are operating with textbooks that out of date," she said.

Brockette said the $12.41 per student covers textbooks and film and television instruction. "I can sit here with all confidence and tell you that your kids in this state come closer" to having a complete supply of textbooks "than anywhere else across the country," he said.

Conference Called On Railroad Funding

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators rejected the House's stripped-down version of an emergency appropriation for the Texas Railroad Commission on Thursday, setting up the first conference committee of the legislative session.

A rumored move in the House to reconsider the amendment that trimmed the $581,682 appropriation to $245,509 did not materialize, and the bill's sponsor called the cut a healthy one.

The House passed the reduced bill, 127-4, and the Senate quickly rejected the change and called for a conference committee to negotiate differences.

"Overall, it will be helpful that this happened because not only will they (the commission) be more definite in the future, but other agencies will too," said Rep. Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, the House sponsor.

While the amount of money involved is relatively insignificant, the very act of trimming the appropriation drew attention as a defeat for the commission and the House Appropriations Committee.

Speaker Bill Clayton's harshest critics, lately dubbed "The Gang of Four," led the drive to prune the bill.

The bill was presented as funding for the commission's new task of assigning each Texas gas well to one of 28 price categories under the 1978 federal natural gas policy act.

But opponents said most of the money request did not relate to that job at all. Although railroad commissioners reportedly were busy trying to change votes, Hanna said he never had planned an attempt to reverse Wednesday's vote that cut the bill.

"We are going to go to conference with it, and the Railroad Commission will have to explain in more detail and also go to members of the House and explain. I want it explained in more detail," Hanna said. "If they can't explain it, I want it to go as it is."

Clayton said that since Wednesday's 75-66 vote to slash the bill, railroad commissioners "have been more actively informing the members of their needs... I frankly wanted it to go to conference committee and make them justify their needs."

He said his conference committee members would include not only representatives from oil-producing areas, such as Hanna and Rep. Tom Craddock, R-Midland, but also Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, who pushed through the amendment cutting the bill.

Senators passed, 27-0, and sent the House a bill giving reporters legal standing to sue to prevent public officials from holding closed sessions in violation of the Texas Open Meetings Act.

The law currently says "interested persons" can file suits under the statute, but a court of civil appeals decided a newspaper in Abilene was not "an interested person." The court held that an interested person was one that would be affected economically by an action taken in violation of the act.

The original Abilene lawsuit was filed by the Abilene Reporter-News and KRBC-TV.

House members passed and sent to the Senate a bill allowing counties to locate satellite jails and courthouse substations in any town within their boundaries. Present law restricts such construction to cities of 15,000 or more people.

The House voted tentative approval to a bill enabling county governments to pay for autopsies — including shipment of bodies — that are performed on their behalf in other counties.

Sponsors said counties are doing this now but it technically is illegal. The bill would square practice with the law.

Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, introduced the resolution without explanation.

"Do you mind if I vote present and not voting until we contact Mr. Lincoln?" asked Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, as the vote was taken.

Deceased President

Issued Invitation

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators have invited a guest speaker for Monday's session but there is doubt he will appear.

By unanimous vote the Senate approved a resolution inviting former President Abraham Lincoln to address the Senate on the occasion of the 170th anniversary of his birth.

Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, introduced the resolution without explanation.

State Mining Council Okays Proposals

Austin (AP) — The Texas Mining Council approved proposed legislation Thursday that would meet new federal criteria for surface mining regulation.

Max Sherman, president of West Texas State University and chairman of the council, said all six members of the industry-government-public advisory panel approved the draft.

The Office of Surface Mining, Interior Department, held earlier that the Texas Surface Mining and Reclamation Act of 1975 was not acceptable.

The proposed legislation deletes all reference to coal in the current Texas surface mining statute and would create a Texas Coal Mining and Reclamation Act.

Changes under the proposal include:

- Restoration of disturbed land to "the condition it was capable of supporting prior to mining or to higher or better use," rather than being returned to "substantially beneficial" status as provided in present law.

- Greater public participation in permit application proceedings.

- Authority of the Texas Railroad Commission to assess fines for violations without taking the cases to court.

Taiwan Agrees To American Relations Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taiwan has agreed to establish a counterpart to the non-governmental institute the Carter administration wants as a vehicle for relations after March 1, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Thursday.

Vance disclosed the Taiwanese decision under questioning by members of a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

"We've already reached agreement with Taiwan (for the American institute) and for their counterpart institute as well. We have every expectation that both will be able to open by March 1," Vance said.

Taiwan has been publicly insisting that relations continue on a government-to-government basis. The administration has proposed that each government establish a private corporation to handle relations, since it has agreed with Peking that it will no longer have government-to-government relations with Taiwan.

Vance gave no details about the Taiwanese agreement. But it followed by only a day or so a blunt threat from the State Department of a "hiatus" in U.S.-Taiwan relations if the Taiwanese refused to go along with the American proposal.

Deputy Secretary Warren Christopher, in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Monday, warned that "it will not be possible for us to maintain relations unless Taiwan agrees to establish an unofficial instrumentality with which the American Institute in Taiwan may deal."

Asked whether Christopher's warning played a role in the Taiwanese decision, one State Department official, speaking privately, said, "I've always felt that the Taiwanese would go along once they were convinced it was the best they could get."

He said he thought President Carter's threat to veto any congressional effort to change the terms of the normalization had persuaded the Taiwanese that they could expect no substantial help from friends in Congress.

Vance was asking the Senate subcommittee for the $2 million needed to fund the American organization, which will get its operating funds from the U.S. Treasury and serve nearly all of the functions now served by the embassy in Taipei.

He heard much criticism of the concept from the four senators present. One senator called the proposed arrangement "a hoax... a Mickey Mouse operation."

The institute would take over responsibility for maintaining U.S. trade and arms support with Taiwan in order to satisfy mainland China's demand that official relations be severed with the island nation.

But Vance ran into sharp questioning from the four senators who attended a meeting of an Appropriations subcommittee which handles State Department funding. All indicated they may balk at Vance's request for expedited funding of the institute unless it is re-cast as an official agency.

Said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn.: "Let's call a spade a spade. You come here as the government's top official in foreign affairs. You give us details of this plan, you ask for congressional funding. Obviously that makes it governmental, but you tell us it's non-governmental."

"It's obviously a hoax on the American people... a Mickey Mouse operation," Weicker said. "I'm inclined to take you off the hook and vote against any government funds for this thing. Then, like you say, it really would be non-governmental."

Vance insisted, "It's proper, it's legitimate. To have official governmental relations with Taiwan would be inconsistent with what we have said to the People's Republic of China."

Vance also took issue with a charge by Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, that the United States had conceded too much on China.

"You say we met all of China's pre-conditions for relations with them," Vance noted. "But the Chinese said 'Don't sell arms to Taiwan,' and we are going to sell arms."

"They said their had to be an abrogation of our mutual defense treaty with Taiwan, and instead we are giving one year's notice, and legally, they gave in on that. And we've made it clear that the peaceful resolution of the Taiwan question was of utmost importance. They've taken note."

Crash Victim's Death By Exposure Blamed On Police Laxity

MARSHALL, Wis. (AP) — Police who investigated after a truck hit a bridge said they couldn't find the driver, even though they were told someone was moaning nearby. But his friends went to the scene later and found him a few feet away in the snow, dying of exposure.

Thomas C. Julien, 36, died shortly after arriving at a Madison hospital early Monday. Dane County Coroner Clyde Chamberlain said the death was a result of exposure to the 22-below-zero cold, and he has ordered an inquest.

"There are a lot of people around here who are mad as hell," one of Julien's friends, Lee Merrick, said Thursday. He said he felt police were negligent in not trying harder to find Julien.

"They didn't do their job at all," said Merrick, 60, who operates a dog food manufacturing company. "If they had, we feel our friend would be alive. He might have lost his fingers from the cold, or got pneumonia, but he'd be alive."

According to police reports, the crash was reported at 12:50 a.m. Monday. Jim Hellenbrand, 19, whose father has an auto salvage business in Marshall, was called to the scene with a tow truck.

Hellenbrand said that when he arrived, Dane County Traffic Officer Frank Holzman and Marshall Police Officer Daniel Antolec were "measuring off skid marks and stuff like that."

He said the officers told him they thought the driver had already left, and told him to stop the truck. He said that he heard some moaning, and before he left he stopped and informed the two officers — then sitting in a police car.

"I told them I heard noise," said Hellenbrand. "They just sat there. Then I drove away. It didn't seem right to me. It seemed to me that they didn't feel like looking for anybody."

Hellenbrand said he was concerned and went to Merrick's home, about a mile away. Merrick called Julien's home and when he learned he wasn't there, he organized a search party.

"We found him right away," said Hellenbrand. "He was down below the bridge."

"All they would have had to do was look over the bridge rail to see Tom lying down there," said Merrick.

It was about 2:30 a.m., and one of the men took Julien to a Madison hospital in his car. He was pronounced dead at 3:45 a.m.

Lt. George Miller, who heads traffic investigation for the Dane County Sheriff's Department, said he was still preparing reports from the officers for use at next Wednesday's coroner's inquest.

"I am not at a point where I can say anything about it," Miller said. "It's not that we are trying to withhold anything. We're trying to piece it together so that when it goes before the hearing, they will have a true and accurate picture."

Funeral services were held Wednesday for Julien, who was married and had two children. A Vietnam veteran, he worked as a helicopter instructor for the Wisconsin National Guard.

POPE SPEAKS OUT ON ARMS

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II told members of the NATO Defense College on Thursday that "sensitivity to the immense needs of humanity brings with it a spontaneous rejection of the arms race."

He said the arms race "is incompatible with the all out struggle against hunger, sickness, underdevelopment and illiteracy."

He said he thought President Carter's threat to veto any congressional effort to change the terms of the normalization had persuaded the Taiwanese that they could expect no substantial help from friends in Congress.

Vance was asking the Senate subcommittee for the $2 million needed to fund the American organization, which will get its operating funds from the U.S. Treasury and serve nearly all of the functions now served by the embassy in Taipei.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents of some District of Columbia school pupils are bristling over the indecisiveness of city officials. When the capital was socked with its worst storm of the winter Wednesday, virtually every school system in the area closed quickly. In the District, however, officials at first said classes would be held, then changed their minds as thousands of children and teachers were en route to schools. Some 12,000 of the city's 113,850 students remained at school until parents were notified of the closing.

Luke 9:58-62; 10:1-5, The Living Bible

58 But Jesus replied, "Remember, I don't even own a place to lay My head. Foxes have dens to live in and birds have nests, but I, the Man from Heaven, have no earthly home at all."

59 Another time, when He invited a man to come with Him and be His disciple, the man agreed — but wanted to wait until his father's death.

60 Jesus replied, "Let those without eternal life concern themselves with things like that. Your duty is to come and preach the coming of the Kingdom of God to all the world."

61 Another said, "Yes, Lord, I will come, but first let me ask permission of those at home."

62 But Jesus told him, "Anyone who lets himself be distracted from the work I plan for him is not fit for the Kingdom of God."

CHAPTER 10

The Lord now chose 70 other disciples and sent them on ahead in pairs to all the towns and villages He planned to visit later.

2 These were His instructions to them: "Plead with the Lord of the harvest to send out more laborers to help you, for the harvest is so plentiful and the workers so few!

3 Go now, and remember that I am sending you out as lambs among wolves!

4 Don't take any money with you, or a beggar's bag, or even an extra pair of shoes. And don't waste time along the way.

Carter's Job Rating Falls With Party, Public

NEW YORK (AP) — The public's rating of Jimmy Carter's work has sunk almost to the lowest levels of his administration in the wake of the turmoil in Iran and the lack of a peace pact in the Middle East, a new Associated Press-NBC news poll shows.

A significant part of the drop for Carter — which totaled eight points since December — came among Democrats, a important group for him just a year before the start of the 1980 presidential primaries.

Twenty-eight percent of those questioned nationwide Monday and Tuesday said the president is doing a good or excellent job. That's down from the 36 percent found by the December AP-NBC News poll.

Lower ratings of Carter's work came in June 1978, when it was 27 percent and in August, when it was 28 percent. Neither of those ratings is significantly different from the current finding.

Fifty-three percent of the public this month said he is doing "only a fair" job. And 17 percent rated his work poor, up from 12 percent in the last poll. Two percent of the 1,600 people questioned by telephone in each poll said they were not sure.

The major source for the drop in Carter's rating was foreign policy, the area where successes last year gave his standing such a boost.

Right after the Camp David summit, Carter's foreign policy rating soared,

Poll Questions Listed

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are some of the questions asked on the AP-NBC News poll:

—What kind of a job do you think Jimmy Carter is doing as President? ... Do you think he is doing an excellent job, a good job, only a fair job or do you think he is doing a poor job?

—What kind of a job do you think Jimmy Carter is doing handling our foreign affairs? ... Do you think he is doing an excellent job, a good job, only a fair job or do you think he is doing a poor job?

—What kind of a job do you think Jimmy Carter has done in handling the problems in Iran? ... Do you think he has done an excellent job, a good job, only a fair job or do you think he is doing a poor job?

with 56 percent giving him good or excellent ratings in mid-September.

But as the "framework for peace" worked out in the meeting of Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat came apart, the public's estimation of Carter's foreign policy work dropped.

The good or excellent ratings dipped to 45 percent in December. And now, after the developments in Iran and those involving China and Taiwan, only 35 percent give him such marks.

Carter's handling of the developments in Iran — including the downfall of the shah — is a major part of the reason for the drop.

For example, only 19 percent of those interviewed gave Carter excellent or good ratings for his handling of the problems in Iran.

BANISHED BUST FOUND

MADRID (AP) — A granite bust of the founder of Spain's Socialist Party, secretly buried 38 years ago despite Francoist orders to destroy it, has been dug up from Madrid's Retiro Park and will be restored to a place of honor. "We have had every cooperation so far from city hall," said Socialist spokesman Alfonso Guerra after a crane pulled the slightly damaged 3,300-pound stone head of founder Pablo Iglesias from gardens in the park.

And those who said they followed events in Iran closely gave Carter a lower foreign policy rating and lower overall job rating than those who did not pay attention to such developments.

U.S. recognition of the mainland Chinese government and the dropping of recognition of the Taiwan regime has had less net effect on Carter's ratings, probably because American opinion on the moves is sharply divided and the China issue is viewed by the public as less important than developments in Iran.

Carter's drop in overall job rating was most severe among his own party members. Over Carter's term in office, Democrats have generally had a higher opinion of his work than Independents or Republicans. And this is still true.

Now 37 percent of the members of his own party said Carter is doing a good or excellent job. That's compared to 28 percent of the independents who gave him such marks and 16 percent of the GOP who rated him that way.

But while Carter's job rating dropped about five points since December among Republicans and Independents, it plunged eleven points among Democrats.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample variations. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than three percentage points.

Of course, the results could vary from other polls because of differences in the wording of questions, timing of interviews or the method of interviewing.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. We bought Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds during our working years and exchanged them for Series H bonds when we retired. Our H bonds will mature, beginning this year. Will the maturity date be extended? If so, for how long? What interest will be paid? Will it be necessary to exchange our H bonds for the new Series HH bonds?

A. The maturities on our present H bonds will be extended, should we keep them? Or should we cash them; pay the income taxes; invest elsewhere, at higher interest? About $33,000 is involved.

A. The combined answer to your first two questions depends on how old the H bonds you now own happen to be. The U.S. Treasury Department really complicated things with its latest edict on savings bonds. The Treasury apparently is determined to extract tax dollars from long-time holders of U.S. Savings bonds.

As things now stand, every H bond will continue to draw interest for 30 years. After that, interest payments will stop. H bonds are sold with 10-year maturities and "extended maturities" have been granted to all H bonds issued after June, 1959. But H bonds issued before June, 1959, will stop drawing interest exactly 30 years from their issue dates.

Interest — paid by check every six months — will be the same during extended maturities as it has been in the past. It's 5 percent the first year, 5.8 percent the next four years and 6.5 percent the next five years. That produces an average annual rate of 6 percent over the 10-year period.

You can't exchange your H bonds for the new HH bonds, which will go on sale in 1980.

Whether or not you should keep your H bonds or cash them in and put your money to work at higher interest elsewhere depends on your personal situation. If, as is the case with many retired people, you are in a very low tax bracket, it would undoubtedly be wise to cash in some of your savings bonds each year and put your money into higher-yielding investments.

You didn't have to pay income tax on the interest which built up on your E bonds when you exchanged your Es for Hs. You postponed that tax liability until you redeem the Hs received in the exchange.

By redeeming your H bonds now, your tax on the old accrued E bond interest should be low. My bet is that you would do better, elsewhere. The high yield on

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's money supply continued to decline in the latest reporting week, the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday.

M1, the total of cash in circulation and checking accounts, dropped $600 million to $357.4 billion in the week ended Jan. 31, the Fed reported, while M2, consisting of M1 plus certain savings accounts, fell $100 million to $73.9 billion.

The Federal Reserve said the statement included changes made as the result of late reporting of some figures. Unlike most recent changes, however, these revisions did not significantly increase M1, although M2 was increased by about $4 billion.

"Each time in the past we've had these adjustments ... we've had M1 adjusted up pretty sharply," said David Jones, an analyst at Aubrey G. Lanston Co. Inc. "But this time there was no change in M1 levels."

And Jones said the steady decline of M1 over the past two months probably would keep the Fed from pushing interest rates higher as it did in the fall. By driving up interest rates, the Fed attempts to slow inflation by making credit more expensive and thus curb the amount of money in circulation.

Robust growth of the economy during the spring and early summer drove the money supply up, increasing the Fed's fears of inflation. It also took steps to reduce the money supply as part of a program to strengthen the dollar.

"The factors of an unstable dollar and inflation are still in the Fed's considerations," Jones said. "But as long as those are counterbalanced by declines in the money supply, the Fed should maintain its stable posture."

According to the Fed, M1 averaged $399.2 billion over the past four weeks, a 2.7 percent rate of decline from 13 weeks ago. M2 averaged $874.8 billion in the four weeks, up 1.6 percent from 13 weeks ago.

Other monetary indicators issued by the Fed for the week ended Wednesday included:

—Member bank borrowings from the Federal Reserve System averaged $382 million, down from $983 million. The Fed increased its holdings of government securities by $3.7 billion.

—Federal funds, the interest rate on short-term loans of uncommitted reserve funds among banks, averaged 10.06 percent, down from 10.12 percent the previous week.

six-month savings certificates looks mighty tempting.

Q. Years ago, I worked in Wall Street. So, I know that the interest rates on 13-week and 26-week U.S. Treasury bills is set every Monday, when the Treasury Department auctions off new issues of its "T-bills." Why, then, do financial publications and some newspapers carry "bid" and "asked" quotations of yields on T-bills, with maturities of up to a year?

A. You're quite right about the Treasury's weekly auction. But did you know that one-year (52-week) T-bills are auctioned off once a month? And don't you remember — from your Wall Street days — that T-bills are bought and sold all the time in "the secondary market" by people who didn't necessarily buy them at the Treasury's auctions.

T-bills are marketable securities and can be bought and sold by simply placing orders with brokerage houses and banks. So, as there are for other marketable securities, there are price quotations at which T-bills are bought and sold.

Q. What is the fineness, or karat, of the gold that the U.S. government uses in its transactions?

A. "Karat" is the wrong word. But "fineness" fits, because it defines the percentage of pure gold in the metal bars the United States and other nations use to settle international debts.

Those bars must be at least 99.5 percent pure gold to be used to settle international transactions.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Banks Ordered To Refund Excess Interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans may get refunds from their banks because they were charged too much interest, federal officials said Thursday.

Because of mistakes in arithmetic, millions of dollars may be flowing from banks to individuals who borrowed money in the last five years, they said.

After surveying 4,700 national banks, the Office of Comptroller of the Currency said many of the institutions understated to borrowers the annual interest rate being paid on loans for autos, home improvements, mortgages and other purposes. They will have to pay borrowers the difference.

Germans Experience Inflation Rise

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — The West German cost of living index rose 1.1 percent in January as the costs of food and fuel increased, the federal statistics office said Thursday.

Despite the relatively large monthly increase, the index was only 2.4 percent above its January 1978 figure, the office said. The index, based on 1970 prices equaling 100, rose to 152.7 in January.

The monthly rise of 1.1 percent was up sharply from the 0.4 percent increase recorded in December.

Under the Truth in Lending Law, banks have to translate the interest rates they charge into an annual interest rate, which the borrower can see when signing the loan form.

However, the lending laws are so complicated that many banks made errors because they did not know how to calculate the rates properly, officials said.

An example may be a borrower who took out a one-year $5,000 loan and was told he was paying 7 percent. That would mean the borrower would be paying $350 in interest.

If the bank misstated the interest rate, and the borrower actually was paying 7.2

percent, he actually was paying $360 in interest. In this circumstance, the bank would have to refund the $10 difference.

If the loan was still not paid off, the bank would also have to send out a new letter saying the interest rate is now 7.2 percent.

The comptroller's office, which regulates many national banks, had no figures on how many people would get refunds. However, one official said it could amount to millions of dollars.

Bankers have alleged that there have been so many court decisions on interest rates that it is impossible to calculate the rate legally. The government is considering revising some of the laws.

Banks thought to have possibly committed violations will be sent letters from the comptroller's office. No list of banks was made available.

"The violations were inadvertent," said Carol Austrian, communications officer for Comptroller of the Currency John G. Heimann. "They miscalculated the interest rate," she said.

She said refunds on loans granted since October 1974, must be offered to borrowers in either a lump sum or lower interest installment payments for the outstanding portion.

The comptroller's office, which was still drafting the letter to banks on Thursday, will tell them to go through their books and notify every customer who was overcharged, officials said.

The comptroller's investigation may have broader repercussions. Banking agencies which supervise other banks, credit unions and savings and loans all drew up regulations in December which required refunds to customers who were overcharged.

Drama Fills Encounter With Whales

(Editor's Note: Persons interested in contributing to and being informed on efforts to save whales should contact The Whale Protection Fund, Center for Environmental Education, 1725 K Street, N.W., Washington 20006. Contributions are tax deductible. This year will be crucial to the cause of whale conservation.)

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Outdoor Editor

Our small rubber skiff bobbed as we waited and carefully watched another skiff some 40 yards from us. It had happened before in this remote lagoon on the west coast of Baja California, Mexico — the physical contact between a human and a whale.

For several seasons now, in San Ignacio Lagoon, about 500 miles south of San Diego, gray whales have allowed themselves to be touched! Measuring approximately 40 feet in length and weighing perhaps 40 tons, these leviathans of the deep have come to trust humans.

We waited. For a quarter of an hour an adult female California gray whale with her new calf had surfaced again and again within sight of the skiff we were watching. Each time the whales surfaced, they were closer to the skiff and its human occupants.

It was an amazing experience when it is recalled that gray whales have been described as dangerous by whalers. Even today, although protected from commercial whaling, the mammals become fierce fighters when hunted by and for aboriginal people of Alaska and the Russians in the Bering Strait.

San Ignacio Lagoon has also known gray whale drama. Robert Burton in "The Life and Death of Whales" describes a San Ignacio Lagoon scene of 1848: "When sufficient numbers of gray whales had congregated in the lagoons the boats were launched in their pursuit. This was the most dangerous whaling of all. The shallow lagoons gave neither boats nor whales much room to manoeuvre and the gray whales were aggressive, earning themselves the name of devil-fish. More powerful than right (another type of whale), and faster than sperm whales, harpooned gray whales careened about the lagoons capsizing boats and entangling whale-lines. The casualties to boats and men were high, as the whales would attack without provocation."

Now we were waiting for a descendant of those same grays to approach one of our small skiffs. A few yards from the skiff and its passengers the water parted and a column of mist arched into the air. A dark mass covered with barnacles broke the surface just a few feet from the small craft. The adult whale and its calf eyed the humans. Cameras clicked and one young woman in the skiff reached out to touch the mother whale.

If you're the type of person that searches for adventure, unusual travel, and vacations that will be remembered again and again the rest of your life — then note the name of Adventures International.

Based in Oakland, Calif., the renowned firm specializes in unusual adventures for people of all abilities who are interested in the life and beauty of the earth's wild places.

Adventures International this year will return again to Baja on Feb. 24 and April 22 to explore the islands and waters of the peninsula. The firm will encounter the humpback whale in Hawaii, April 7. Then there's a gorilla safari in Africa with forest walks and river canoe trips this July.

A schedule of trips may be obtained from Brad Goodhart, director, Adventures International, 4421 Albert Street, Oakland 94619, phone 415/531-6564. Detailed itineraries are available after the initial correspondence.

The 7 1/2-day San Ignacio Lagoon adventure began at H&M Landing in San Diego. H&M, San Diego's oldest and most experienced landing, specializes in sportfishing and charters for deep-sea fishing. H&M also has one day trips to see the migrating gray whales close to San Diego.

Our ship was the 85-foot Mascot VI skippered by Captain Gary Lamont with a crew of five. The 16 passengers aboard for the Baja trip ranged in background from teen-ager to senior executive; we represented California, Pennsylvania, New York and Texas.

Meals aboard the ship were excellent, with fresh baked bread and pastry, steak, seafood and crisp salads. Between meals, snacks awaited our return to the ship from island excursions.

Reed Pierce, a guide and a noted naturalist from San Diego, pointed out and explained many of the plants that were foreign to us. Pierce is associated with Ecology Impact Studies.

Both Goodhart and Pierce kept their natural history discussions on layman terms, but were knowledgeable when it came to specific questions. Every evening aboard the ship, as we cruised to the next anchorage, there were slide shows pertaining to activities scheduled for the following day.

The two naturalists made sure our presence didn't frighten the elephant seals or sea lions. We were cautioned not to approach any nesting birds; plants were left undisturbed; inspected rocks were returned to their original position. At every site we explored, we left only footprints.

"We're going to get a good close look at a lot of whales," said Goodhart before we anchored in San Ignacio Lagoon. "But it's very important that we don't harass them in any way. The skiff operators will not follow a whale if it is attempting to move away and keep its distance."

The California gray whales by the hundreds migrate to several Baja lagoons where every winter they breed, give birth and nurse their newborn. The migration route from the Arctic waters to Baja is the longest annual migration of any mammal — approximately 12,000 miles.

During one of our excursions in the lagoon, we noticed two grays breaking the water with repeated frequency 50 yards in front of us. As our skiff slowed and we focused our cameras, there was a shooshing sound behind us. A whale had surfaced and spouted just 30 yards behind us. Then to our right and left, the waters were disrupted by massive backs and flukes. We had ventured into a circle of seven of the leviathans feeding.

It seemed appropriate that our visit should end with a mother whale and her calf approaching one of our skiffs. It seemed as if the mother wanted us to see her baby, and for the calf to see humans that meant no harm. We held our breaths as a young woman reached out — it is the kind of experience that sends shivers of anticipation up your spine.

No, the actual contact did not occur. Less than a couple of feet away from the outstretched human hand, the gentle giant with her baby slowly submerged from sight. But, it's a certainty that physical contact will occur this month — not just once, but several times in the incredible lagoon.

At the close of the National Geographic public television documentary "The Great Whales" a freeze frame showed such a moment in San Ignacio Lagoon. Narrator Alexander Scourby stated: "... if our war against whales does come to an end, the future could hold fascinating possibilities. For in the universal language of behavior, both trust and communication often begin with a simple gesture — the touch."

It is difficult after the Baja journey to exclude anthropomorphism (ascribe human characteristics to things not human) from my interest in wildlife. It was that kind of an encounter. All in all — a whale of a trip.

WHALE ADVENTURE — A California gray whale shows its flukes as it dives near the Mascot VI out of San Diego. Whale flukes arch high with a deep dive. The gray whale can remain below the surface for five to eight minutes. Above, left, Brad Goodhart, director of Adventures International, inspects a seal that has been tagged for scientific study. Members of the Baja California adventure take a good look at their first island stop at top right. The hikers were pleased to learn that poison oak and ivy do not exist on the island off the Mexican coast. In lower right photo is a northern elephant seal, largest pinniped in the world. The nose or trunk, found only on males can be used for vocalized threats. Males can reach a length of 20 feet and weigh as much as two tons. (Staff Photos by Ted J. Simon)

Merit Passes Crucial Test!

—National Smoker Study

Long term taste satisfaction achieved among low tar smoking's toughest critics—high tar smokers.

A detailed, nationwide research effort has confirmed that 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT really does deliver the flavor of higher tar brands.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of MERIT.

And current MERIT smokers made these confirmations:

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

MERIT is the first real taste alternative for high tar smokers.

Amnesia Victim Recovers Memory In Ball Game

NOCONA (AP) — A year ago, Pam Phipps walked out of a store, escaping by seconds the thundering collapse of the building that left two other persons dead.

Unknown to her family, friends, or even to herself, the sounds and feelings of that tragedy were stored in the recesses of her mind.

Last month the teen-ager collided with another player on a basketball court. Suddenly it was as if the building were falling again — and Pam's world vanished in a fog of amnesia.

"It's like...like you've just come from another planet," Pam said. "You're sitting down here, and you don't know anybody."

Though she apparently suffered no serious or permanent damage, Pam spent several days in the hospital and still is rebuilding her memory.

Doctors will not comment on her case because lawsuits still are pending in the building collapse, but Pam's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Phipps, said they were told their daughter's mind acted like a circuit breaker tripping to prevent an overload.

On Jan. 18, 1978, the 18-year-old varsity cheerleader was in Jim's Specialty Shop in this North Texas town of 3,000. Store manager Jean Crain and a customer, Clifton Baxter, were looking at men's sports jackets.

As Pam was leaving the store, she heard a crackling sound.

"I thought it was just the building settling," she said. But the 75-year-old structure collapsed, killing Mrs. Crain and Baxter. Their bodies were found where Pam had last seen them.

"In the back of her mind was still the thunder and the noise from this building falling in," Pam's mother, Gaither Phipps, quoted doctors as saying.

"When the girls collided heads, this rug was pulled out from under her, and she wasn't sure if that was a girl she hit or that building fell on her," Mrs. Phipps said.

Pam said when her doctor talked with her about the experience, "I could hear the ceiling. It was my imagination, but I could hear...crackling. I could just see it falling."

"Since she was not an immediate family member of these two people that were killed," Mrs. Phipps said, "nobody expected her to go into a deep mourning period or show a lot of emotion."

"She still had all the emotions, but she didn't show them outwardly. They were just all concealed in her. We didn't know that, and she probably didn't even know how much it had bothered her."

"This was just harboring in the back of her mind," Mrs. Phipps said, "and then she just got so busy and got all these things going. (The doctor) said it was all very definitely tied in together."

Pam said she was frightened when her memory vanished.

"People are telling you this is your mother and this is your father. Well, anybody could tell you, I mean, they could take me anywhere and say this is your mother and this is your father. I had to just take their word for it," Pam said. "I didn't know"

"It's really scary if you don't know anything."

Pam got re-acquainted with friends last week at a Nocona basketball game and dance. She went back to school this week, but things have been a little difficult since she doesn't know what she was studying before the accident.

Her memory returns in bits and pieces, usually triggered by a name or some conversation, and sometimes unexpectedly.

A film of the game in which she was injured didn't spark any memories, but it helped her to gain confidence to see herself playing, her mother said.

Watching the Harlem Globetrotters in an exhibition basketball game in nearby Wichita Falls, Pam noticed one of the players making free throws by angling from the side rather than centering on the basket.

Pam called it to her mother's attention, saying, "It looks like it would be easier that way." Pam had always shot her free throws from the side.

So, how does she feel now?

"Yeah, I'm going to make it," she replied with youthful self-assurance. "I work at First National Bank and once they showed me some of the stuff I did, I could do it. I mean, there's no problem. I can remember it. It's just that they have to show me."

Pam says she will be suited up Friday night when Nocona takes on Archer City for another basketball game, but she doesn't know yet if doctors will let her play

Automatic Teller Proposal Introduced

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris has introduced legislation that would let banks share their unmanned teller machines at shopping centers and other locations.

The machines would be restricted to providing five services — cash dispensing, depositing, paying loans, making transfers between the customer's accounts within the same bank and balancing information.

"We are also limiting the installation of a machine to banks within the county or city...which would prevent large banks from intruding upon small-town banks," Harris said.

Measures would be taken to insure consumer privacy, he added.

Dean Rusk Recalls Lengthy Career In Politics

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Dean Rusk, reminiscing about his life in politics, recalls the day John F. Kennedy told him the New Frontier would not change what was then a hard-line U.S. policy toward China.

So Rusk went back to the State Department and, as he puts it now, "played the role of the village idiot" whenever he was approached by colleagues about easing the freeze between Washington and Peking.

More than a decade later, a Republican president, Richard M. Nixon, cracked the ice, and on Jan. 1, Jimmy Carter extended diplomatic recognition.

But Rusk, the former secretary of state who marks his 70th birthday Friday, said in an interview that U.S. policy on China could not have been changed by the Democratic Kennedy and Johnson administrations in which he served.

"When I look back over the China question, and the role that has been played by the two major political parties, it seems to me that the Republicans earned the right to find an answer to the China question," Rusk observed.

"My guess is that if President Kennedy had gone off to Peking, he would have been lacerated by the Republicans, including Richard Nixon.

"Sometimes there are things that one party can do that another party can't."

Rusk recalled reviewing the options on China with Kennedy in 1961 when the Democrats took power.

"He had in front of him a nearly unanimous resolution that Congress had passed two or three years earlier, strongly objecting to any change in the Chinese seat at the U.N. and on the matter of recognition," Rusk remembered.

"On the day before the inauguration, President Eisenhower or said to him, 'I will try to support you as much as I can on foreign policy matters, but on one matter I will have to oppose you, strongly and publicly, and that would have to be on a Chinese seat in the U.N.'

"So President Kennedy, who was rather cautious in selecting the items on which he was prepared to do battle, decided he did not want to open up the question at all.

"As I was leaving the office, he said, 'What's more, Mr. Secretary, I don't want to read in The Washington Post or The New York Times that the State Department is thinking about a change in the China policy.'

"So I went back to the department, and when people like Adlai Stevenson and Chester Bowles and others came to talk about China, I just played the role of the village idiot.

"I didn't tell them about my talk with the president because we would be reading that in The Washington Post or The New York Times."

And yet, while Rusk clearly approves of the Nixon and Carter moves on China, he is apprehensive about any suggestion of setting Moscow and Peking against each other.

That, he says, would be "kid-stuff."

"I don't, myself, believe that anyone should suppose we can play a childish game of maneuver between the Chinese and the Russians.

"I've seen references to 'playing the China card' recently.

"Both in Moscow and in Peking they are much too intelligent to let us get away with that kind of game. And I hope we will be intelligent enough not to let either one of them maneuver us against the other."

Rusk is here at the University of Georgia, in his home state, teaching a course in international law and tutoring students.

After eight years of directing foreign policy in Washington, he says he feels "an exhilarating sense of liberation" to be removed from the power and the controversy.

"My view is that when you're out, you're out," he said, chain-smoking cigarettes in his cramped office at the Rusk center. "Younger and better people should take responsibility for these matters."

And yet Rusk is not without opinions about China, the Soviet Union, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and other global topics.

He says that despite some fundamental differences of view with Moscow, "we and they have a massive common interest, that is, the prevention of World War III."

Having gone down the line in support of a hard-line policy in Southeast Asia, he would rather not be vindicated by Vietnam's domination of the area. "No one," he said, "could want the kind of justification that would come from the survivors of World War III looking at each other and saying, 'Gee, those fellows were right.'"

In the Middle East, he expects "further tensions" with Israel and, perhaps, Egypt, before they conclude a peace treaty. "But," he said, "if that should happen, it will be the first significant step toward peace in 30 years."

As he talked, easily, for more than an hour, Rusk was reticent about only one subject, Iran.

"I have no way of knowing what is going to happen in Iran," he said. "That doesn't embarrass me because I don't think the Iranians do either. I just don't know."

"Now that I'm a private citizen, I can just say that and stop."

Stop-Smoking Class Slated Next Week

The Lubbock chapter of the American Cancer Society will sponsor a month-long "Stop Smoking" program beginning Monday in the cafeteria of the Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The free classes will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays through March 7.

Enrollment is limited to 25 registrants. John Altis, area executive director, said many positions still are available.

The program will be taught by Ellen Rubenstein, the society's area coordinator for helping smokers quit.

The sessions will cover three phases of success in giving up cigarettes.

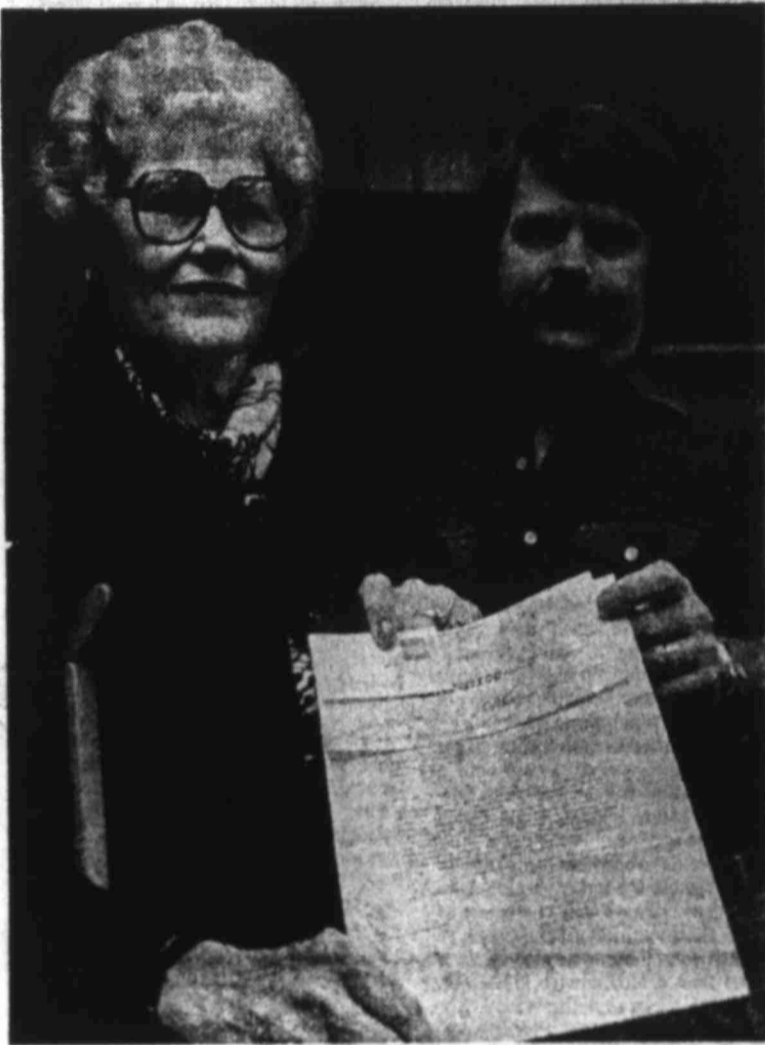

The first phase, which covers the first four sessions, demonstrates that smoking is habit — a learned form of behavior — and can be unlearned. It will give incentives and motives for quitting. Also, a physician who has stopped smoking will explain body changes after quitting and how to handle withdrawal.

Finally, phase one will prepare participants for an experimental quitting period and plan a 48-hour period off cigarettes.

Phase two is geared to participants relating their own experiences while off cigarettes and an exchange of ideas on the best techniques to stay off the cigarette habit. In addition, participants will evaluate their own problems and progress from questions posed in this beginning session.

Phase three determines if the group will want to establish an I.Q. (I Quit) Club.

Quick-Thinking Employee Aids Law

By SHAUNA HILL, Avalanche-Journal Staff

Marie Suttle is not a detective, yet the South Plains Mall employee's quick thinking and attention to detail helped arrest two men who had eluded the law and a major corporation for two years.

For her efforts, Mrs. Suttle was given a $100 reward Wednesday from a grateful American Express Company for helping capture the duo who had been illegally cashing the company's traveler's checks at locations from Washington, D.C. to California. The merchants of the South Plains Mall had been victimized twice in the past.

The $100 check was presented to Mrs. Suttle at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the South Plains Mall Merchants Association by Al Faison, association president.

Mrs. Suttle, who has worked as a sales clerk for Zarf's Luggage and Gift Store for the past three years, spoke modestly of her deed. "I was only doing my job. I really didn't do any more than anyone else would have."

She said the traveler's checks used by the two men were issued in French or Swiss francs and apparently were being passed as American currency. Cashing a 100 franc traveler's check, worth around $22, as a $100 traveler's check would net around $78 for the check casher.

Mrs. Suttle noticed the words "Swiss Franc" printed above and below the check's denomination when the man tried to cash a "$100" traveler's check.

"It was a simple process really. I saw the small print and told the man I had to okay the check with the manager in the back. I took the check with me, went to a telephone, and called the mall security guards," Mrs. Suttle said.

"I first suspected something was wrong when I asked him for identification and he had none. I knew someone had passed bad checks in the past and I thought it strange he decided he wanted his check back and tried to leave."

The mall security guards took both men into custody, although one man reportedly tried to escape.

Damages awarded in fatal plunge

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded $1.5 million to the family of a man allegedly pushed from a fifth-floor window by a Chicago policeman.

Victor Barrales, a room clerk at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, plunged to his death Dec. 28, 1976 after officer Gary Morris attempted to arrest him in the bathroom of his fifth-floor apartment.

Police said Barrales, 28, was attempting to evade officers who had come to question him in a rape investigation. Barrales was later found to be a close friend of the victim and was absolved of any involvement in the case. The jury awarded damages to the man's family Wednesday.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

My son came home from college on semester break this week and asked me for a road map of the state.

I went to our safety deposit box, took out a worn copy, and cautioned, "Be careful with this. It's the only map we have."

He handled it with reverence as he placed it on the table. "Tell me how you got it again?" he asked.

"Well," I said settling down to recite a familiar story that I had told and he had heard many times before, "Once upon a time, businessmen in the country used to court consumers. They wanted their business, and to remind them of this they would give them presents. Not big ones, but little reminders you could use."

"For example, this road map was on a rack in a service station and you could take as many as you liked.

"Dry cleaners used to give out hangers and sewing kits, banks gave out rain bonnets and candy, and there wasn't a year we didn't get hundreds of calendars free from insurance companies, stores and garages. I used to have a whole drawerful of keyrings and address books and fans...the funeral homes always passed out fans."

"Tell me again about the phone books," he chided.

"Well, there was a time when you got a phone book for each of the phones in your house. You didn't have to call or anything. I know you're too young to remember, but you used to go into a restaurant and not have to ask for water or a toothpick."

"You're kidding," he said. "I asked for a toothpick the other night and the cashier asked, 'How many do you need?'"

"What did you tell her?" I asked.

"I told her I had 28 teeth, but I could double up."

"All that is new," I sighed. "Do you know that your father once bought a pair of boots and they came with a penknife in the side?"

"Aw c'mon," he said.

"Yes, it's goodbye loafers with pennies in them, goodbye free catalogs from mail-order houses, and so long cardboard shirts. We're living in a time of inflation."

"Speaking of inflation, Mom, I used your car and you owe me $2 for gas. Cheer up! You can have the free balloon."

ARCS Benefit Aids Students

The Lubbock Chapter of ARCS (Achievement Rewards for College Scientists) Foundation will have an auction of services March 6 in the ballroom of the civic center. The event provides funds for scholarships for engineering and science students at Lubbock Christian College and Texas Tech University.

Serving on the committee for the event this year are Mrs. Malcolm Thomas, Jr., Mrs. Jan Coates Chandler, Mrs. Jimmie Holder, and Mrs. Grover Murray. Mrs. Orlo E. Childs is the president of the Lubbock Chapter.

The annual auction is the major source of funds for the scholarships. Lubbock community leaders, administrators and faculty from the two local institutions of higher education, and people serving at Reese Air Force Base participate in the auction. More than 325 persons have donated services to be auctioned.

The previous five benefits which the chapter held raised over $55,000 which has been awarded locally to 107 ARCS scholars in amounts ranging from $200 to $600 each.

The Lubbock Chapter of ARCS is one of 12 chapters throughout the United States.

Charmers

Take time to enjoy the little things.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: Does it seem as if you are always buying blue jeans for yourself or your family just because they are faded and old-looking?

Here's how to save your blue jeans—and your money!

Before you put your jeans in the wash, turn them inside out. Also, dry and iron them that way. In time, you will notice how your jeans have kept their dark blue color.

I've been doing this for years and I have had friends comment on how my jeans always look so new.

It really works! —D.L.A.

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE: I know I should have recopied where I have made mistakes, but I never do so in letters to friends, and I feel as if I know you personally. —Carole Bartlo

What a lovely compliment! Can't think of a better way to start any day than to receive such friendly letter. I love you bunches! —Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: If a car door lock freezes up, get a candle, light it and hold the car key over the flame a few seconds.

Then put the key into the frozen lock. This works a lot faster and easier than hair dryers or breathing heavily on it. —Dorothy Provine

DEAR HELOISE: I have a beautiful hand-knitted poncho which seemed to hang in the closet more than it should for such a lovely creation.

So I hand-stitched a center piece of fabric into the neck opening of the poncho and now have a pretty lap robe for a chill evening. —Arlene Beaker

DEAR HELOISE: I enjoy having those new decorative candles sitting throughout my home.

But I never seem to be able to keep up with that little wire wand that's provided with some of the tall tube-type candle to hold the match.

So now when I get ready to light a candle, I take my kitchen tongs, strike the match carefully, and place it between the pinches.

No more scorched fingers or hastily blown out matches. —Martha

DEAR HELOISE: My son was making a model train layout on a large board, but found the little houses and buildings were too expensive to buy.

We started saving the small spice cans and boxes and painted them or covered them with brick or woodgrain adhesive-backed paper.

They made very cute miniature cities. —Jane Terry

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a hint for the lady of the house. Use your dishwasher as a facial steam bath.

Just when the dishwasher finishes the wash cycle, and before it starts drying, I turn it off and open the door a few inches. This lets the first blast of really hot steam escape.

Then I quickly throw a beach towel over the opening, trapping the steam. With my hair covered with another towel, I stick my head under the beach towel for five minutes or so. It is such a relaxing time.

Then I wipe my face with a tissue and put on a smile. —Shara Billheimer

DEAR HELOISE: When you have a chair which needs a disguise while you're waiting to get the funds together to re-cover or replace it, look in your sewing cabinet to see what yardage you may have on hand which might be suitable for a "throw."

I found a brown plaid that just filled the bill (I had long since forgotten what I had intended it for), so I just hemmed it on all sides, rounding the corners to make it easier.

Tossed it over "Dad's awful old chair," and it took on a new personality which stretched its life for a few more months. —Practical Pat

DEAR HELOISE: This hint is for anyone who has to take his cat to the vet, as a loose cat in a car can be an awful hazard.

Put the cat in the laundry hamper and carry it that way. The hamper is well ventilated and heavy enough so that the cat cannot get out. —Ethel Lewis

DEAR HELOISE: A good hint, Ethel. And should you not have a clothes hamper, you can use two open-weave plastic clothes baskets.

Turn one upside down on top of the other (put an old pillow or something in the bottom) and wire the two tops together with wire garbage bag ties.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been flat on my back for a month now. My doctor thinks I have a slipped disc between the L-4 and L-5 vertebrae. I have very minor pain. I do not want to go through a myelogram or the surgery. Is there medicine or other treatment, such as massage, traction, heat, special exercises? Is the surgery very dangerous? Please comment. —B.W.

There are some contradictions in your letter. If the pain is "very minor," why have you been laid up for a month? Does that mean you get the pain only when you are up and around? No one relishes the idea of surgery, but any problem that immobilizes a person for this length of time requires some additional treatment.

Vertebrae are the sections comprising the spine, and the L-4 and L-5 (lower spine) sections are chief trouble spots. In fact, they are the site of about 90 percent of all spinal disc problems. Most disc disorders can be treated conservatively—as with rest on a firm mattress, traction, heat, and gradually increased exercise. This is the treatment tried first. But if none of it works and if the pain persists, then surgery must be considered, especially if there is nerve damage. The object is to relieve the pressure on the nerve caused by the disc protrusion.

You express some concern, too, about the myelogram. That is a special kind of X-ray of the spine. The pictures are made after special dye has been injected into the spinal canal. It provides a nice contrast for clear pictures and is done to confirm suspicions and to locate the precise problem area before surgery. It must be done. It rarely causes any problem.

So if other treatment has failed, you would do well to consider the surgery. If you have doubts about the need for it you can seek a second opinion.

Dear Dr. Ruble: A year ago I used a household disinfectant for a douche. I had a bad burning. My doctor gave me cream to apply and said I would be OK. How long does this problem last? —Mrs. G.B.

I assume you've had sufficient scolding by now. Household cleaning solutions are fine for sinks and floors, but have no place inside the body or for any hygiene purposes. The strong alkalis and acid solutions are terribly irritating, especially to the delicate internal skin. A horrible burn, which will result, takes a long time to heal. Scarring and stricture (tightening) of tissue may result, especially if the burn is deep. I suspect you used this accidentally. I certainly hope that was the case. Continue using the creams and be examined again to assure that healing is progressing. Also, look into the problem that prompted you to use the disinfectant in the first place.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 53-year-old female. I have been taking B vitamins for the past 15 years. Could this give one a body odor? —Mrs. S.S.

It is unlikely, but possible. Combinations of B vitamins may cause a distinctive odor in the urine. It is conceivable, therefore, that a very large amount of the vitamins taken over a long period could cause a mild body odor.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have sinus difficulty and seem to have trouble, especially when I fly. But I must fly in my work. What can be done? —Mrs. T.L.

Decongestant drops for the nose or one of the inhalants before boarding might help. It might also be used prior to descent. A variety of these products is available, as well as decongestants in pill form. No guarantees, but they are worth a try.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have read about the Kegel exercise to help women who have stress incontinence. How effective is this and how long before one should expect to have some improvement? I had this problem after my last baby was born. —H.D.

The exercise is quite effective if the cause of the incontinence (leakage) is weakened pelvic muscles. That can sometimes result in leakage of urine with certain stresses, such as coughing, sneezing, lifting, etc. Some women note improvement in a couple of weeks, some in months. You do the exercise by using the muscles involved in shutting off urination. Do this while actually urinating or in between times. The exercises require patience and persistence. The method is always worth a trial before resorting to surgical repair.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of a booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Actor Ups Salary Race

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Faster than a speeding bullet, Steve McQueen has upped the stakes in the Hollywood salary race.

He overtook Marlon Brando's "Superman" salary with a $3 million contract, probably the biggest in movie history, for the film "Tai Pan," a $40 million two-part epic based on James Clavell's best-selling novel about an adventurer in Hong Kong. Industry sources say McQueen's contract calls for $3 million plus a percentage of the profits.

Brando received $2.8 million, plus percentage, for playing Jor-el, the father of Superman on the planet Krypton.

McQueen and Brando are not the only Hollywood stars receiving seven-digit salaries these days. Paul Newman, Robert Redford, Jane Fonda, Dustin Hoffman, Clint Eastwood, Barbra Streisand, Al Pacino, Burt Reynolds and Robert DeNiro all are able to command $1 million per picture.

Actors Go On Strike

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. is postponing its TV production of Shakespeare's "Othello" because an actors' union is refusing to allow American actor James Earl Jones to play the lead.

BBC Television's drama chief, Sean Sutto, announced the decision Wednesday night.

BBC insisted that Shakespeare's Moor be played by a black. British Equity, the actors' union, contended that he should be a Briton, but the BBC insisted that Jones was the best qualified black actor.

"Othello" was to be filmed in May as part of the six-year BBC project to record all 37 of Shakespeare's plays. A quarter of the financing is coming from the United States and the series will be broadcast in the United States also.

Jones was the first American actor to be announced for any of the major roles. A number of leaders of the American stage have criticized the series because the casts are almost entirely British.

Free Toilet Paper Offered

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard dormitory students faced with a $450 tuition increase next year are also due for a bonus — free toilet paper.

"It was just a matter of sitting down and looking at the figures," said assistant dean Anne B. Spence, quoted in Wednesday's Harvard Crimson, the school's daily newspaper.

Spence said freshmen and residents of the Radcliffe Quadrangle routinely receive free tissue. Other students have had to pay for it.

The decisions to hike annual tuition fees to $5,300 and offer free paper were both announced Tuesday night.

Cleveland Debate Planned

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich and Council President George L. Forbes have completed tapings for what is being billed as a television debate, and they did it without speaking to each other.

The debate on the proposed city payroll tax hike and sale of the Municipal Light Plant was arranged Wednesday so that Forbes appeared first and left by the front door of the WEWS-TV studios moments before Kucinich arrived at the back door. Voters will decide on the plant sale later this month.

KUCINICH Forbes said the last time he and the mayor spoke to each other was in August when they had breakfast at Tony's Diner to announce a "peace treaty" — one of several in a stormy relationship.

"I personally like him," Forbes told the television audience. "We've probably kissed and made up more than any two people in the history of the city. Dennis has been but to my home, and I've been out to his home. But I think the division is wider now than ever before."

Russian Ballerina Returns

MOSCOW (AP) — Bolshoi prima ballerina Maya Plisetskaya has completed filming of "Carmen Suite," the Soviet news agency Tass said Thursday.

The 53-year-old star made a triumphant return to the Bolshoi stage Jan. 24 in this ballet after she hurt her back during a tour in Argentina last summer. Tass said the latest movie was Miss Plisetskaya's fifth film. The others are "Ballerina," "Anna Karina," "Spring Waters" and "The Poetry of Dance."

The agency quoted her as saying she operates on the premise that "It is impossible to describe, record or explain dance. Only cinematography is capable of capturing the fine moments of dance for generations to come."

Raps Press Restrictions

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — CBS news anchorman Walter Cronkite says court rulings restricting freedom of the press "could create a hole in the First Amendment big enough to drive the rest of our Constitution through."

Cronkite warned of a "hideous spectre looming larger and closer than any of us is likely to believe," yet "scarcely a voice is raised to protest the distinctly identifiable and dangerous threat to the free press of America."

"In ruling that the press has no more right of access than ordinary citizens, the Supreme Court has decided that the public has no particular right to know what goes on in public institutions beyond that which the government itself approves," Cronkite told the San Diego Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday.

Marathon Holdup Probe Nets Wide Variety Of Suspects

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Investigation of Thursday morning's holdup of Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. ended about seven hours later with the arrests of five other people in addition to the two men who allegedly robbed the market.

Two Lubbock men, aged 16 and 20, were being held Thursday night in connection with the 7:45 a.m. robbery, which netted the bandits $50 cash and a .44-caliber pistol.

Three men who were taken into custody about two hours after the robbery were in Lubbock County Jail Thursday on suspicion of burglary. One of the burglary suspects also was booked on suspicion of car theft.

And two Lubbock men were arrested about 2:30 p.m. at an apartment in the 400-block of the Idalou Highway by officers who had gone to the residence with a search warrant hoping to find the weapon used in the holdup. The pair was booked into the jail on suspicion of possession of marijuana.

Events leading up to the multiple arrests began Thursday morning when two black men entered the meat market and ordered owner-manager Gary Newburn to open the cash register.

Newburn, 28, said that the taller of the suspects held him at bay with a shotgun while his companion went behind the counter and took the register cash drawer, containing about $50.

Apparently not satisfied with the loot, the gun-wielding suspect reportedly told Newburn, "we want the rest of the money."

Newburn told officers that when he said there was no more cash, the armed man stuck the shotgun in the owner's chest and said, "I'll kill you if we don't get the rest of the money." The other suspect got behind Newburn and frisked him, finding no money in his billfold. The bandit did, however, discover a .44-caliber pistol in Newburn's coat pocket, police said.

The victim said he was ordered to lie face down on the floor, and then instructed to get up and go into a back room and stay "a long time" or he would be killed.

Newburn said he left the room in time to see the suspects driving off in a brown-and-cream General Motors car. The suspects were last seen traveling north on Quirt Avenue and then turning east on either Cornell Street or Colgate Street.

About 9 a.m., officers spotted three men at the Idalou Highway apartment complex who had a 1971 Oldsmobile matching the description of the bandits' getaway car.

A license plate check of the car revealed that the vehicle had been stolen from Fort Worth, and the trio was brought into the police department for questioning.

After obtaining a search warrant, detectives returned to the apartment where the men were staying and discovered a reel-to-reel tape recorder that had been reported stolen Tuesday from 1524 E. First Place.

The trio, a 21-year-old Fort Worth man and two 18-year-old Lubbock men, were arrested on suspicion of burglary and the Fort Worth man also was booked into the jail on a car theft charge.

Meanwhile, Det. Cpl. Teddy Daniels and Det. Jose Nevarez had received information that the two robbery suspects were in northeast Lubbock and still had the shotgun and stolen pistol in their possession.

The detectives spotted two men in a green Cadillac at Parkway Drive and Quirt Avenue about 1:30 p.m. and stopped the vehicle in the 1800-block of East Auburn Street.

When the officers approached the vehicle, Nevarez noticed a handgun in the front seat next to the passenger and both men were asked to get out of the car. Nevarez confiscated the pistol but while the duo was being questioned, they bolted, jumped back into the Cadillac and sped west on Parkway Drive, followed by the officers.

As the chase began, the driver of the vehicle reportedly leaned down as if reaching under the seat and Nevarez fired two shots at the fleeing car, one striking and shattering the vehicle's back windshield.

The Cadillac then turned down the alley in the 1700-block of East Auburn Street, struck a gas meter and ran into the back fence at 1719 E. Auburn St., knocking it down. The pair then jumped from the car and eluded the detectives in a foot chase.

However, about 20 minutes later, Cpl. Larry Jenkins spotted a man in the 1700-block of Dartmouth Street who matched the description of one of the men who fled from Daniels and Nevarez. Jenkins brought the 16-year-old suspect to police headquarters for questioning.

At 2:30 p.m., a 20-year-old Lubbock man came to the police department and surrendered to officers for questioning in the robbery investigation.

At that same time, detectives were executing a search warrant on another apartment in the Idalou Highway complex after receiving word that the robbery shotgun was there.

However, instead of finding the weapon, officers found two men who ran into the bathroom when the warrant was presented.

One of the men, 19, reportedly tried to flush a plastic bag containing suspected marijuana down the toilet while his 22-year-old companion attempted to climb out the window.

Both were apprehended and the bag of suspected material confiscated and turned over to the Department of Public Safety for laboratory analysis.

Housing Authority Hears Plan For Moderately Priced Homes

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Home ownership may become a reality for lower to moderate income families here if the Lubbock Housing Authority agrees to sponsor a financing program that could mean lower interest rates on home mortgages.

Housing Authority commissioners heard a proposal today from members of two Houston investment banking firms which would provide for the sale of revenue bonds. Money from the sale of the bonds would be available through conventional lending institutions at an interest rate lower than the commercial rate.

Loans would be available for the purchase of existing housing, new construction or the rehabilitation of existing structures. The program is designed for those people who are considered good credit risks, but cannot afford payments at the current high interest rates.

Leslie O. Lynch Jr., representing Rauscher, Pierce, Refsnes, Inc. (an investment firm) explained the loan program does not compete with individual institutions because the bonds would be sold at a tax exempt rate.

Lynch and his associate, Chris Baker

(representing Underwood, Neuhaus and Co.), agreed to do a feasibility study for the Lubbock area. The study would include contacting representatives from each Lubbock lending institution as well as consulting with city officials such as the City Council and Planning Office.

"It's not a panacea," Baker stressed, "but we think if the bond plan could have a positive effect on housing in the Lubbock area."

Lynch and Baker said interest rates could conceivably drop to 8 percent for those persons who meet the qualifications for the loan.

Definition of the term "low to moderate income families" would be left largely to the Lubbock Housing Authority. The investment firms would determine what the average cost of housing in Lubbock is and develop a criteria for the loan based on available income.

"We feel the program will work anywhere," Baker said. "The feasibility study is designed to pinpoint need." Local housing authorities in El Paso, Dallas, McAllen and other Texas cities already have been committed to the program, he said.

Lynch and Baker stressed the program is not designed to give major loans to marginal credit risks. The low-interest loans should be made available to the market somewhere between the welfare level and the middle income level, they said.

The Lubbock Housing Authority would not be actively involved in the administration of the loans but would operate as the legal entity through which the interest-free bonds would be issued. But the Housing Authority would determine its own definition of "low to moderate income."

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: Can you tell me why my railroad annuity was slashed when I became eligible for Social Security? I was widowed at age 56, so went to work and paid Social Security. So, of course, it is on my own earnings.

At 62, I started drawing from the railroad pension, but when I was age 65, Social Security called me insisted I sign up. I did and the railroad agency cut me. I am still a widow so can't understand this move.

Further, if a Railroad widow remarries after the first of the year, can she still draw or must she forfeit all unequivocally?—Z.H.

The Railroad Retirement Act requires that a portion of a person's railroad retirement or survivor annuity be reduced by the amount of any Social Security benefit he or she also receives. This reduction follows principles of Social Security law, under which a person may receive, in effect, only the highest of any benefits to which he or she is entitled.

In regard to your question about the effect of remarriage on a railroad widow's annuity, the Railroad Retirement Act does not provide for the payment of survivor annuities to the remarried widows of railroaders. Therefore, your entitlement to a railroad retirement widow's annuity will, by law, terminate if you remarry.

An amendment to the Railroad Retirement Act would be required for annuities to become payable by the Board to remarried widows. Amendments to the act are generally based on joint recommendations made to Congress by railroad management and labor on the basis of negotiated agreements between the two parties. Whether a provision to pay annuities to remarried widows will ever be agreed upon and recommended to Congress by management and labor, or when this would happen, cannot be determined at this time.

HEARTLINE: I have written three letters to my state insurance commission and so far have not been able to find out anything about a particular insurance company, except it is licensed by the state. Big deal. It's licensed! So what? That doesn't tell me anything. I thought an insurance commission was like the Better Business Bureau, but for insurance only.—S.W.

No, that isn't a very good definition of an insurance commission. Heartline has not worked with every insurance commission, but we've worked with many, and none with which we have worked will recommend a specific policy or insurance company, a state insurance commission has a big job licensing, regulating and keeping an eye on the insurance industry in a state. Most insurance commissions refuse to act as a consumer information bureau, however.

Even if an insurance commission has compiled a large number of complaints against a particular company or agent, the insurance commission probably will not tell you, the consumer, about it. The insurance commission might be investigating such a company or agent, but they will usually keep mum about it until they are ready to take action.

Even though we can not give you a list of companies to choose from or recommend a particular company, we can tell you some "do's" and "don'ts" when buying health insurance and in particular, Medicare supplement policies. For a free copy of Heartline's Tips on Buying Healthy Insurance, send 25 cents to Heartline's Tips on Buying Health Insurance, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: I sent a Medicare claim in to my medicare carrier and I do not agree with what Medicare considers reasonable. Is there anything I can do about it or am I just out of luck?—D.B.

ANSWER: Yes, you can request a formal review. If you are still not satisfied with the decision after the review, you may have a hearing before a hearing officer, but only if the amount in dispute is $100.00 or more. You can request a formal review through your Social Security office or through your Medicare carrier.

The investment firm representatives encouraged the Board of Commissioners to seek input from other city commissions and officials, as well as to consider calling a public meeting to determine community opinion on the proposal.

Low-interest loans could be available by early summer if the Commissioners agree to the program, Lynch and Baker said.

In other business, the Commission gave approval to a request from a private building owner to purchase her residence outside the normal guidelines set up by the federal government and enforced by local housing authorities. The commissioners voted to defer judgment on the matter pending the tenant's consultation with her attorney.

The commissioners also approved the Housing Authority budget with the board's fee accountants.

Youth Leadership Conference Slated

The annual Area IV Regional Youth Leadership Conference for Vocational Office Education to be held March 2-3, will begin in Memorial Hall of First United Methodist Church at 9:30 a.m. March 2 with a general session.

Glenn Haynes, Area IV vice president and a VOE student at Coronado High School will conduct the general session.

A 1979 area officer of reporter-historian will be elected and installed after the session at an Awards Brunch in the cafeteria of Coronado High School at 9:30 a.m. March 3.

About 300 students representing 32 schools will compete in contests of accounting, general office clerical, shorthand, typing, records management, job application, prepared verbal and extemporaneous speaking contests, and individual student job manual, at the Lubbock campus of South Plains College.

Students may represent their school by competing in parliamentary procedure, bulletin board display and a chapter activities scrapbook.

Two area finalist plaques and four merit award plaques will be awarded in each event. The two area finalists will advance to the state conference in Houston March 29-31.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This can be a very upsetting time and you will be wise not to try to force any situation. If you have benefits coming to you they come in an unexpected manner in which it is best not to do anything but accept them gratefully. But expect some tiresome problems.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Use tact at home so that no arguments start there. Not a good day to get involved in any new projects. Use your money wisely or you could get into big debt.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Look to a partner for help in advancing your career. Take no risks with your health. Be extra cautious in driving.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid being impulsive, especially where money is concerned. Think twice about money deals offered you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Count your blessings and don't let others impose on you in any way, or feel that they are. Take time to improve health, appearance. Romance is in the picture.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You feel you are being limited, restricted in some way, but get at your routines and all works out fine. Try to help one who is in financial trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Depend on yourself since friends have problems of their own to solve. Know what your true personal aims are and forget whatever holds you back. Improve your financial position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A bigwig may seem demanding, but it is for your own good. Credit affairs should be handled carefully. Take no risks in driving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): There are many projects that interest you, but don't jump into them without any study first. Your hunches are not good now. Rely only on your best judgement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): As much as you dislike carrying through with what you have promised, it is best to meet your obligations for best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): One who is demanding could upset but you quietly state you will not be fooled and send packing. Not a good day for attempting to reconcile with others. Wait for a better day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Clear the slate for more important things. Steer clear of one who has strange ideas and could get you into trouble of some sort.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Recreation could disappoint you, so indulge only in whatever is inexpensive, and little of that too. Be more generous with compliments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do well in trouble-shooting professions, since there is a good understanding about handling problems, both in business and in private life. Teach early to save money.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

- Juice of 1 lemon

DIRECTIONS

Cook rice according to directions on the box. When rice is cooked, melt butter in a large skillet; add hot drained rice. Beat eggs, cheese and lemon juice together; pour this mixture into the hot, drained rice and cook, stirring constantly, over low heat for 3-4 minutes. Serve at once while rice is creamy.

Students Plan To Set Record With Thumbs

DALLAS (UPI) — The bane of many reporters was the introduction of Guinness' Book of Records to the American public.

It seems like not a day goes by that someone, somewhere is setting out to break a record and only too willing to report it.

And if a record does not exist, then he, she or it will be equally happy to create one.

Thus on Friday and Saturday, three students at Dallas Baptist College will twiddle their thumbs for 26 hours.

"We're going to start at 4 o'clock on Friday and go until 6 o'clock Saturday," said Ben Sheeran, who sounded serious. "We're going to twiddle our thumbs — you know, twiddle our thumbs — for 26 hours."

"We're raising money for our pledge class, Sigma Chi Delta."

Sheeran, 19, who says he's from Palacios, (something Palacios probably wouldn't say), and Layton Hein, 21, of Great Bend, Kan. (about to become a favorite fan), and Bryan Fewell, 19, of Las Vegas (where the line is 18 to-1 against) think they can rotate their thumbs into the Guinness Book of Records.

"No, there isn't a Guinness record on thumb twiddling — yet," said Sheeran.

"We've talked with them and they said if we can provide newspaper clippings and film, they'll put us in."

Sheeran, the spokesman for the other two, assured they had been practicing thumb twiddling in preparation for the big vent.

"Certainly we've been practicing," he said. "In some boring classes, but we've never done it professionally."

Sheeran still isn't going to do it professionally.

He, Hein and Fewell have been collecting sponsors at 5 cents per hour they last, the proceeds of which go to the pledge class at their fraternity.

"They are giving us a nickel for every hour we can go," said Sheeran. "And we'll have a fish bowl there for contributions."

The event takes place at the Dallas Baptist College student union.

Since there are no current rules for thumb twiddling, Sheeran and the others have made their own — a technique NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle is familiar with.

"We'll twiddle for one hour and then have a five minute break," Sheeran said. "No, it doesn't matter how fast we twiddle, as long as our thumbs are in constant motion."

Sheeran said he and the others expect sore hands after what could be a modern form of self-sacrifice, but that's the price they bear for fame.

"The thumb muscles get a little tight, but that's expected," he said. "Popping them helps. Writing helps a lot, and believe me we've been doing a good deal of that."

Stop-Smoking Class Starts Next Week

gers to health. Altis cited other reasons why smokers would want to quit. A 1970 study based on national statistics found that $1.5 billion in doctor and hospital bills and in lost wages were related to tobacco use.

Also, Altis said, a four-year study at the Dow Corporation revealed that an average of 9.7 days of work per year were missed by non-smokers, whereas smokers missed an average of 17.4 days annually.

Economically, Altis noted, a person with a two-pack-a-day habit spends $500 per year on cigarettes.

OIL CONFERENCE

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has scheduled a "state of the petroleum industry" conference March 20 at a local hotel. About 50 industry executives and energy experts have been invited to participate, said commission chairman John H. Poerner.

Accused Tongue-Lasher Quits Bench

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — State District Judge Stanley Kirk, who is accused of giving jurors a tongue-lashing and then altering the court record after one juror complained to state officials, stepped down Thursday and went into seclusion.

"After 18 years of public service, I am retiring as judge of the 78th District Court," Kirk, 56, said in a brief written statement released by court bailiff Jack Samples. "This is a decision that all my family and I made last year."

Kirk, who was district attorney before he became a judge 10 years ago, gave Samples the statement Wednesday after the capital murder trial of John W. McCrory, who was sentenced to death in a rape-strangulation case.

Samples said Kirk "wants a few weeks of privacy after this trial and said he was going fishing."

The State Commission on Judicial Conduct accused Kirk of official misconduct and asked the Texas Supreme Court last month to suspend him from office without pay pending proceedings.

"It has been an honor and a privilege to have served the people of Wichita County as district attorney and district judge," Kirk's statement said. "I deeply appreciate the support and confidence that they have shown me."

His statement did not mention an effective date, but a judge's resignation is not official until it is received by the governor.

The commission took action against Kirk after a juror in a June 1978 trial complained that when jurors returned an innocent verdict in the case of a man accused of sexual indecency with a child,

Kirk lost his temper. The juror said the judge threw papers into the air, severely admonished the jury, told the defendant he was free to go out and commit the same crime again and then stormed out of the courtroom.

ROBERT REDFORD

ON THE OUTLAW TRAIL

In Six Parts,
With Stunning Color And
Black-And-White
Photographs

Redford pulled together a safari of eight, including a photographer and a historian who traveled and explored the trails, people and descendants of the West's most fabled outlaws and their hangouts. They retraced the legendary Outlaw Trail from Montana through Utah, Colorado, Arizona, and into New Mexico, recording and photographing their fortress-like hideouts with colorful names such as Hole-in-the-Wall and Robber's Roost. The marshals who pursued the outlaws, the ranchers who befriended them, the women and rivalries are in striking contrast to the protective beauty of the terrain used by the outlaws as they blazed their way from one escapade to another. Actually, this is Robert Redford's personal journey through time and his concern that the colorful history and romance of the past not be forgotten in our headlong thrust toward industrial development. The series offers a unique blend of history, adventure, Robert Redford's thoughtful personal commentary, and exceptional photography. Begins Monday in the morning Avalanche-Journal. Don't miss it!

Caulkins Named Sullivan Winner

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Teen-age swimmer Tracy Caulkins, currently under suspension by the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union for curfew violation, received the AAU's prestigious Sullivan Award Thursday night as the nation's top amateur athlete for 1978.

Caulkins, 16, who broke or tied 27 world and American swimming records last year, became the youngest ever to win the award, named for the founder of the AAU and determined by a vote of about 2,500 members of the news media and national sports officials.

The announcement was made at a banquet at the Indianapolis Athletic Club. Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., currently holds three world and 13 American records.

She was one of 13 American swimmers suspended by the AAU two months ago for violations at a meet last April in Austin, Texas. The suspensions run through March 31.

The AAU never announced the names of those suspended, but Caulkins' mother confirmed that her daughter and the others were suspended because they were found to be out of their rooms after curfew during the meet.

Mrs. Caulkins said some of the girls were attending a birthday party for one of the swimmers.

"Tracy had asked permission from one of the officials to leave the room...and that permission was denied, but she went anyway, knowing full well it was in violation of the (AAU) code," Mrs. Caulkins said at the time.

"We didn't feel it was a harsh punishment. We were prepared and have accepted it. Tracy has taken it very well. It's not going to interfere with her training," she added.

The 5-foot-8, 111-pound Caulkins started the year with three victories at the Women's International meet at Providence, R.I., last January, winning the 200-yard breaststroke and both individual medley events.

WHEN TIME AND space run short... Cheri Rapp, the former all-American center at Wayland Baptist and now women's basketball coach at North Texas, has been selected to coach a fem team in this summer's National Sports Festival, a program set up to help strengthen the nation's international competition.

Things just come crashing down at the same time. Tim Somerville, the coach at TCU, had some of his players complain of his coaching. But, days before that, the Frogs upset Houston for their first SWC win in more than a year. Well, Somerville can't even enjoy that one again; the game wasn't filmed. And in addition, his wife didn't even know about it. The family was in the process of moving to a new residence, and the radio was packed away; she couldn't listen to that night.

Tech and North Texas will be playing a football series in the mid-80's, which means NT has games scheduled over the next decade with several SWC teams. And, says NT athletic director Andy Everett, more schools could be scheduling closer to home in the next few years. Everett is one reason, he opines. "Not everybody will be able to afford trips all across the country, if the prices keep going up," he said recently.

IT WAS JUST a few weeks ago that ex-Aggie Yale Lary was named for the pro football hall of fame. Lary both punted and ran back punts while with the Detroit Lions, but he made his name as a defensive back. Think those guys back there are remembered? He's only the fifth defensive back named to the NFL "Hall." . . . Remember Dave Sims, the Duke sprinter of 20 years ago who hooked up with ACC's Bobby Morrow in some spotlight duels? He's now Dr. David Sims and a famed eye specialist on the East Coast.

Maybe it's not a good idea to mess with the old coach. But Raider cager Kent Williams is on his way to setting a new school record in free-throw accuracy. Currently the junior from Hobbs is hitting 87.7 percent of his free pitches, against the school mark of 86.9 percent set in the 1958 season. The record holder? Current Tech coach Gerald Myers. . . Gymnastics, a growing sport? The world championships will be held at Fort Worth in December, and already, FW folks are worrying about the threat of counterfeit tickets. It takes $150 to buy a season pass for the tournament.

Raiders Elevate Assistant Coach

NEW HEAD COACH — Tom Flores, 41, an assistant to John Madden for seven seasons, was named the new head coach of the Oakland Raiders during a news conference Thursday afternoon. (AP Laserphoto)

OAKLAND (AP) — Tom Flores, an assistant to John Madden for seven seasons, was elevated Thursday to the Oakland Raiders' head coaching job.

The 41-year-old Flores was regarded as the logical successor to Madden all along but had to wait more than a month for the promotion which was announced by Al Davis, managing general partner of the team.

"I'm thrilled that Al Davis has shown confidence and given me this opportunity," said Flores, who was a player on the first Raiders team and becomes their seventh head coach.

"My heart has always been with Oakland," added the new coach who has associated with the team 13 years.

Davis had interviewed several other men for the vacancy left by Madden, before choosing Flores, whom he called "a Raider player, coach and loyal alumna."

Davis introduced Flores at a news conference and said, "I think Tom is destined for greatness as a coach."

Madden, 42, retired on Jan. 4 after compiling one of the best coaching records in National Football League history. His teams were 163-32-7 in regular season games over 10 seasons, won seven division titles and one Super Bowl championship.

In stepping down, Madden cited an ulcer problem and also said he felt burned out as a coach and did not plan to coach again nor to go with any other NFL team in any capacity. Davis said Madden was welcome to stay with Raiders in any position he wanted, but so far Madden has made no decisions about his future.

The New York Giants, now the only NFL team without a head coach, were interested in bringing Madden into their organization, but he reportedly has told them twice that he's not interested.

Flores is a California native who played college football at Pacific and was a quarterback for the Raiders, then an American Football League team, from 1960 to 1966. He also played with Buffalo and Kansas City.

He went into coaching in 1971 at Pacific and joined Madden's staff the next year to coach receivers.

Others interviewed by Davis for the Raiders' job included Bud Carson, a Los Angeles Rams assistant, and Ray Perkins of the San Diego Chargers' staff.

Flores said he was told Wednesday night that he was Davis' choice, winning out over one other unnamed finalist.

Mats Visit Canyon For Showdown

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Estacado Matadors and the Canyon Eagles are perfect examples of why you need a Wall Street broker to figure out the 1-AAA basketball race.

Stock market speaking, the Matadors closed the first half of the loop race up a point. The Eagles, on the other hand, hit a record low—down five points.

In other words, Estacado finished the first five games of the loop race with a 3-2 record. Canyon, meanwhile, failed to record a victory.

But now, both teams are on an upward trend. Analysts credit the halting of inflation on the opponents side of the scoreboard for the turnaround.

Whatever the reason, Estacado will travel to Canyon tonight with possibly the second half loop championship on the line.

Tipoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. The Matadors will enter the game with a 3-0 second half mark. Canyon is 2-1.

In other district games, the Monterey girls will be at Herford, the Plainview girls visit Coronado, the Levelland boys and girls travel to Dunbar, the Herford boys journey to Monterey and the Plainview boys host Coronado.

"I think the main reason for our turnaround is that we're a closer unit now," said Eagle coach B.B. Kendrick. "During the first half of district, we were either in or dominated the first three quarters of play. We ended up losing in the final minute."

Kendrick cited the first game against Estacado as an example. The Matadors won the encounter 57-53.

"We were ahead by three and should have won with a little over a minute to play," recalled Kendrick. "We were playing a lot of young players. We didn't have our best ball handler in the game, and we made the kind of mistakes young teams make."

Through the first three contests, Estacado has scored 229 points to its opponents 211. Canyon has put 162 points on the board to the foes 151. The Matadors are averaging 76.3 points per contest, the Eagles 54.

"I was nervous before the Canyon game because I didn't feel we were mentally ready to play," said Estacado coach

JJ Wood. "We just didn't have the intensity."

Wood doesn't feel his team will have the same problem this time around for the simple fact that this time, the game could be for the championship. Also, the Matadors' record indicates a break from mediocrity. Estacado has won five out of its last six games.

Canyon is expected to start Mike Slueder (5-9, Jr.) and Larry Whitson (5-11, Sr.) at the guard positions. Bill Gruhnkey (6-3, Jr.) and Gary Gell (6-5, Sr.) will be at the forward spots, with Russell Parker (6-7, Sr.) at the post.

Estacado will counter with Mike Chatham (5-10, Sr.) and Willis Flowers (5-See MATS Page 3)

Chaps Entertain DBC Tonight

By RUSS PARSONS

At 6-1, Les Lierman isn't real tall for a basketball player. Neither is he real quick or a great shooter.

You won't find his name anywhere in the list of the top five scorers or rebounders, yet he's been a starter since early in the year and is one of the keys to the success Lubbock Christian College has had this year.

"About the only statistic he's in is how many games he helps us win," said coach Larry Hays of the point guard.

"He's given us a lot of composure we didn't have early. He runs our offense, establishes our tempo, does all the things a point guard is supposed to do."

Lierman and the rest of the Chaparrals will take on Dallas Baptist tonight and Texas Wesleyan Saturday night in a pair of key Texas Athletic Conference contests.

The only senior starter on the 9-13 team, Lierman was destined to spend another year on the bench at the beginning of the season, or so it seemed.

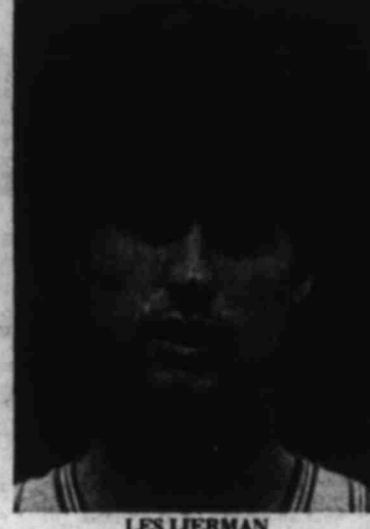

"Coach Hays set me down before the season and told me that Marshall (Smith) would be the starting guard and I'd be No. 4," he says. "He said that injuries in certain situations would tell when I'd play."

"Then when Marshall got hurt and Bruce (Carver) got hurt I got in."

But once the fortuitous breaks occurred, Lierman made the most of them. Early in the year the Chaps were bothered — make that plagued — by turnovers, most by their guards.

Lierman came in and while he didn't erase them all together (LCC is averaging more than 20 a game), they didn't seem to come at such key times.

He is also one of only two starters from See LCC Page 3

Dean Rusk Recalls Lengthy Career In Politics

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Dean Rusk, reminiscing about his life in politics, recalls the day John F. Kennedy told him the New Frontier would not change what was then a hard-line U.S. policy toward China.

So Rusk went back to the State Department and, as he puts it now, "played the role of the village idiot" whenever he was approached by colleagues about easing the freeze between Washington and Peking.

More than a decade later, a Republican president, Richard M. Nixon, cracked the ice, and on Jan. 1, Jimmy Carter extended diplomatic recognition.

But Rusk, the former secretary of state who marks his 70th birthday Friday, said in an interview that U.S. policy on China could not have been changed by the Democratic Kennedy and Johnson administrations in which he served.

"When I look back over the China question, and the role that has been played by the two major political parties, it seems to me that the Republicans earned the right to find an answer to the China question," Rusk observed.

"My guess is that if President Kennedy had gone off to Peking, he would have been lacerated by the Republicans, including Richard Nixon.

"Sometimes there are things that one party can do that another party can't."

Rusk recalled reviewing the options on China with Kennedy in 1961 when the Democrats took power.

"He had in front of him a nearly unanimous resolution that Congress had passed two or three years earlier, strongly objecting to any change in the Chinese seat at the U.N. and on the matter of recognition," Rusk remembered.

"On the day before the inauguration, President Eisenhower er said to him, 'I will try to support you as much as I can on foreign policy matters, but on one matter I will have to oppose you, strongly and publicly, and that would have to be on a Chinese seat in the U.N.'

"So President Kennedy, who was rather cautious in selecting the items on which he was prepared to do battle, decided he did not want to open up the question at all.

"As I was leaving the office, he said, 'What's more, Mr. Secretary, I don't want to read in The Washington Post or The New York Times that the State Department is thinking about a change in the China policy'."

"So I went back to the department, and when people like Adlai Stevenson and Chester Bowles and others came to talk about China, I just played the role of the village idiot.

"I didn't tell them about my talk with the president because we would be reading that in The Washington Post or The New York Times."

And yet, while Rusk clearly approves of the Nixon and Carter moves on China, he is apprehensive about any suggestion of setting Moscow and Peking against each other.

That, he says, would be "kid-stuff."

"I don't, myself, believe that anyone should suppose we can play a childish game of maneuver between the Chinese and the Russians.

"I've seen references to 'playing the China card' recently. 'Both in Moscow and in Peking they are much too intelligent to let us get away with that kind of game. And I hope we will be intelligent enough not to let either one of them maneuver us against the other.'"

Rusk is here at the University of Georgia, in his home state, teaching a course in international law and tutoring students. After eight years of directing foreign policy in Washington, he says he feels "an exhilarating sense of liberation" to be removed from the power and the controversy.

"My view is that when you're out, you're out," he said, chain-smoking cigarettes in his cramped office at the Rusk center. "Younger and better people should take responsibility for these matters."

And yet Rusk is not without opinions about China, the Soviet Union, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and other global topics.

He says that despite some fundamental differences of view with Moscow, "we and they have a massive common interest, that is, the prevention of World War III."

Having gone down the line in support of a hard-line policy in Southeast Asia, he would rather not be vindicated by Vietnam's domination of the area. "No one," he said, "could want the kind of justification that would come from the survivors of World War III looking at each other and saying, 'Gee, those fellows were right.'"

In the Middle East, he expects "further tensions" with Israel and, perhaps, Egypt, before they conclude a peace treaty. "But," he said, "if that should happen, it will be the first significant step toward peace in 30 years."

As he talked, easily, for more than an hour, Rusk was reticent about only one subject, Iran.

"I have no way of knowing what is going to happen in Iran," he said. "That doesn't embarrass me because I don't think the Iranians do either. I just don't know."

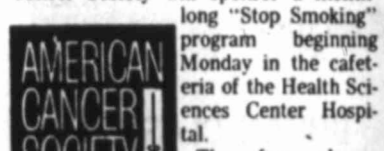

"Now that I'm a private citizen, I can just say that and stop."

Stop-Smoking Class Slated Next Week

The Lubbock chapter of the American Cancer Society will sponsor a month-long "Stop Smoking" program beginning Monday in the cafeteria of the Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The free classes will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays through March 7.

Enrollment is limited to 25 registrants. John Altis, area executive director, said many positions still are available.

The program will be taught by Ellen Rubenstein, the society's area coordinator for helping smokers quit.

The sessions will cover three phases of success in giving up cigarettes.

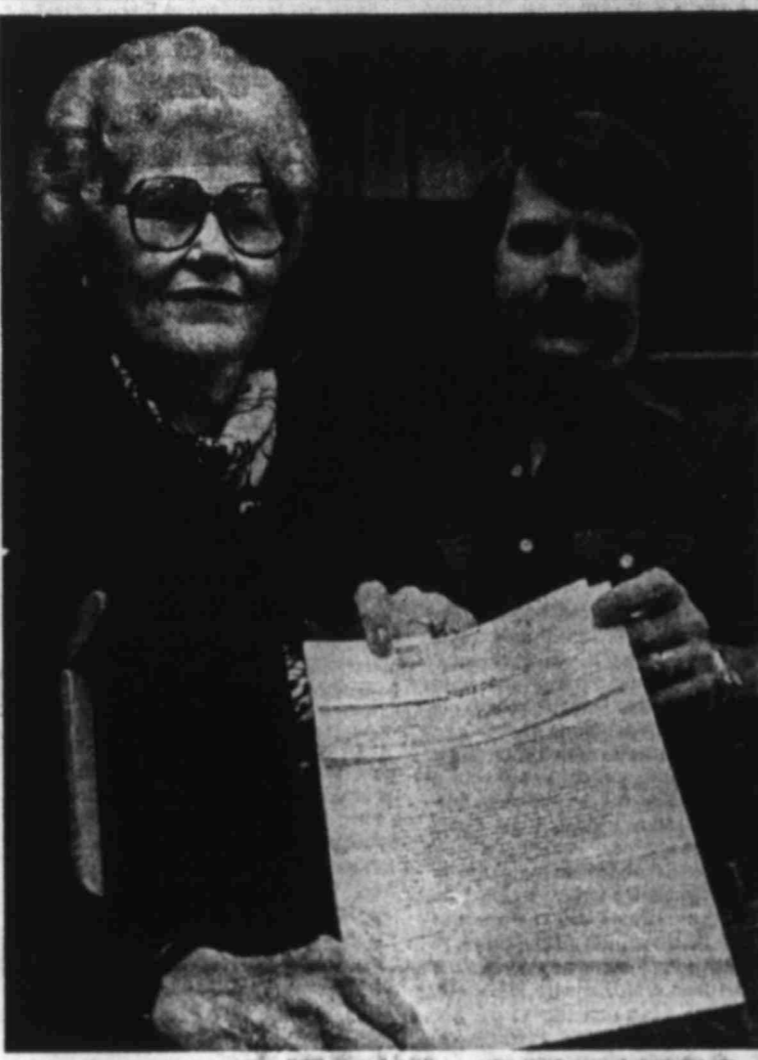

The first phase, which covers the first four sessions, demonstrates that smoking is habit — a learned form of behavior — and can be unlearned. It will give incentives and motives for quitting. Also, a physician who has stopped smoking will explain body changes after quitting and how to handle withdrawal.

Finally, phase one will prepare participants for an experimental quitting period and plan a 48-hour period off cigarettes.

Phase two is geared to participants relating their own experiences while off cigarettes and an exchange of ideas on the best techniques to stay off the cigarette habit. In addition, participants will evaluate their own problems and progress from questions posed in this beginning session.

Phase three determines if the group will want to establish an I.Q. (I Quit) Club.

Quick-Thinking Employee Aids Law

By SHAUNA HILL, Avalanche-Journal Staff
Marie Suttle is not a detective, yet the South Plains Mall employee's quick thinking and attention to detail helped arrest two men who had eluded the law and a major corporation for two years.

For her efforts, Mrs. Suttle was given a $100 reward Wednesday from a grateful American Express Company for helping capture the duo who had been illegally cashing the company's travelers' checks at locations from Washington, D.C. to California. The merchants of the South Plains Mall had been victimized twice in the past.

The $100 check was presented to Mrs. Suttle at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the South Plains Mall Merchants Association by Al Faison, association president.

Mrs. Suttle, who has worked as a sales clerk for Zarfa's Luggage and Gift Store for the past three years, spoke modestly of her deed. "I was only doing my job. I really didn't do any more than anyone else would have."

check's denomination when the man tried to cash a "$100" travelers' check. "It was a simple process really. I saw the small print and told the man I had to okay the check with the manager in the back. I took the check with me, went to a telephone, and called the mall security guards," Mrs. Suttle said.

"I first suspected something was wrong when I asked him for identification and he had none. I knew someone had passed bad checks in the past and I thought it strange he decided he wanted his check back and tried to leave."

The mall security guards took both men into custody, although one man reportedly tried to escape.

Damages Awarded In Fatal Plunge

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded $1.5 million to the family of a man allegedly pushed from a fifth-floor window by a Chicago policeman.

Victor Barrales, a room clerk at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, plunged to his death Dec. 28, 1976 after officer Gary Morris attempted to arrest him in the bathroom of his fifth-floor apartment. Police said Barrales, 28, was attempting to elude officers who had come to question him in a rape investigation. Barrales was later found to be a close friend of the victim and was absolved of any involvement in the case. The jury awarded damages to the man's family Wednesday.

Marathon Holdup Probe Nets Wide Variety Of Suspects

By KAY BELL, Avalanche-Journal Staff Investigation of Thursday morning's holdup of Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. ended about seven hours later with the arrests of five other people in addition to the two men who allegedly robbed the market.

Newburn said he left the room in time to see the suspects driving off in a brown-and-cream General Motors car. The suspects were last seen traveling north on Quirt Avenue and then turning east on either Cornell Street or Colgate Street.

The victim said he was ordered to lie face down on the floor, and then instructed to get up and go into a back room and stay 'a long time' or he would be killed.

sped west on Parkway Drive, followed by the officers. As the chase began, the driver of the vehicle reportedly leaned down as if reaching under the seat and Nevarez fired two shots at the fleeing car, one striking and shattering the vehicle's back windshield.

The Cadillac then turned down the alley in the 1700-block of East Auburn Street, struck a gas meter and ran into the back fence at 1719 E. Auburn St., knocking it down.

After obtaining a search warrant, detectives returned to the apartment where the men were staying and discovered a reel-to-reel tape recorder that had been reported stolen Tuesday from 1524 E. First Place.

The trio, a 21-year-old Fort Worth man and two 18-year-old Lubbock men, were arrested on suspicion of burglary and the Fort Worth man also was booked into the jail on a car theft charge.

Meanwhile, Det. Cpl. Teddy Daniels and Det. Jose Nevarez had received information that the two robbery suspects were in northeast Lubbock and still had the shotgun and stolen pistol in their possession.

The detectives spotted two men in a green Cadillac at Parkway Drive and Quirt Avenue about 1:30 p.m. and stopped the vehicle in the 1800-block of East Auburn Street.

When the officers approached the vehicle, Nevarez noticed a handgun in the front seat next to the passenger and both men were asked to get out of the car. Nevarez confiscated the pistol but while the duo was being questioned, they bolted, jumped back into the Cadillac and

Mart Makes Turnaround

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded its first gain in a week Thursday in a mild upswing led by coal and independent oil and gas issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had lost 24.86 points over the past four sessions, eked out a 2.86 gain to 818.87.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 5-3 margin in the over-all tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

After several days of selling prompted by the political upheaval in Iran, analysts said some investors turned to buying stocks of companies which might benefit from a squeeze on oil supplies from the Middle East.

Thus, in the coal group, Pittston was up 1/4 at 19 1/4 as the 4 p.m. close in New York, and Eastern Gas & Fuel gained 1/4 to 17 1/4.

Among North American oil and gas companies, Superior Oil climbed 6 to 31 1/2; Apache Corp. was up 1/4 at 21 1/4; Reserve Oil Gas rose 1/4 to 12 1/4, and McMoran Exploration added 1/4 to 14 1/4.

At the American Stock Exchange, Houston Oil & Minerals led the active list and gained 3/4 to 1 1/4, and Husky Oil picked up 1/4 to 38 1/4 in active trading.

ON TARGET — Celestino Medali (16) of Italy and John Moby (14) of Minneapolis, Minn., fire their rifles Thursday in Lake Placid, N.Y. during the Biathlon 20-kilometer competition. The event is part of the Pre-Olympic Games currently underway. (AP Laserphoto)

American Skier Holds Lead In Pre-Olympic Competition

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Walter Malmquist of Post Mills, Vt., took the lead halfway through the Olympic pre-Games Nordic combined competition Thursday, and Peter Leiner of West Germany won the special 70-meter ski jump.

The 22-year-old Malmquist had jumps of 85.5, 88 and 88 meters on Lake Placid's 70-meter hill. He finished with 226.0 total points — based on distance and style — going into Friday's 15-kilometer cross-country ski race, which completes the Nordic combined event.

The Nordic combined and special jumping both took place in gusting wind and swirling snow that obscured vision at times. Two of the three jumps were counted toward total points, and Malmquist's last jump — his longest — was voided because of poor style.

"On the end run, I kept getting these gusts of wind," Malmquist said. "I got a tail wind and rode it out pretty well, but missed my takeoff. If I had hit the takeoff right, I would have gone farther."

Second to Malmquist was East Germany's Ulrich Wehling with a best jump of 88 meters and 210.9 total points. Kazimier Drogalski of Poland was third with 208.8 points and the event's longest jump, 91.5 meters.

The favorite, world champion Kourad Winkler of East Germany, was seventh with 183.1 points. Rauno Miettinen of Finland, second in the world championships to Winkler, was sixth with 186.7 points. Either was expected to have a good chance to overtake Malmquist, who is not as strong in cross-country as in jumping.

"The winning time tomorrow should be around 46 (minutes)," Malmquist said. "If I can get about 50, I'll stay in the top 10."

Leiner, a 23-year-old stained-glass window maker from Oberstdorf, scored a mild upset in winning the 70-meter jump. It was his best performance of the season after taking the bronze medal in the 70-meter event last March at Holmenkollen in Norway.

Leiner had jumps of 89 and 81.5 meters for 247.7 points. Pentti Kokkonen of Finland was second with 239.7 points and a best jump of 87.5 meters. Third went to East Germany's Jochen Dannenberg, who had two jumps of 84 meters and 238.7 points.

Malmquist, for the first time in his career, also entered the special jump but tired badly and finished 19th. His best jump was 78 meters. Chris McNeil of Polaris, Mont., was the top American in the special jump, 12th with a best jump of 82.5 meters and 222.3 points.

In the other pre-Olympic event Thursday, Anatoli Alyabev, a 27-year-old Soviet army officer, won the 20-kilometer Biathlon with a corrected time of 1 hour, 16 minutes.

Munson Can Live Without Libbers

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — New York Yankees catcher Thurman Munson complained, "I don't like women's libbers," when two women fans showed up for what he had requested to be a men-only charity dinner.

Munson and Yankees' right fielder Lou Piniella attended the $200-a-plate charity roasting Wednesday night.

Munson, who grew up in Canton, refused to sign an autograph or pose for a picture with Mary Konchar of North Akron.

"I'm not signing anything for any woman who isn't supposed to be here," he said.

He told Cathy Smith of Tallmadge that he does not like feminists, but grudgingly posed for a picture with her.

Mrs. Konchar, 28, a Piniella fan, brought a jersey with his number, 14, and a Yankees' hat for him to autograph. Piniella even put on the cap and had his picture taken with Mrs. Konchar.

But Munson refused to pose. When he was introduced to Mrs. Smith, 28, he backed away, saying, "I don't like women's libbers."

Marshall Smith, coordinator for the benefit dinner for the Stark County Board of Mental Retardation, Canton Boys Club and Catholic Youth Council, said women were not invited to the event.

"We expected some foul language and when ladies inquired about coming, we told them we love them and we didn't want them to hear it."

Salvatore DiPietro Jr., owner of the restaurant, said it was decided to sell a ticket to Mrs. Konchar to "prevent problems" after a reporter started asking questions. Mrs. Smith said her husband had invited her to use one of his two tickets.

"I'm a Yankees fan and I'm absolutely a woman's libber," said Mrs. Smith. "And the threat of bad language didn't scare me anyway."

Mrs. Konchar said she "kind of tuned out the dirty stuff."

Mara Looks For Coach

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants owner Wellington Mara announced Thursday that he has rearranged his priorities and would hire a coach before a director of operations despite strong objections from his nephew and co-owner Tim Mara.

The Maras, who each control 50 percent of the National Football League team's stock, have been unable to reach agreement on a new director of operations since Andy Robustelli resigned Dec. 18. Coach John McVay was fired the same day.

"The only area of serious disagreement between us is in the matter of a director of operations," Wellington Mara said during a news conference in which he spoke, followed by Tim Mara. "If there is only one area that we can't agree on, it's only common sense to put that to the side and go to the area where you can agree."

"We've never had serious all-out discussions of coaches, but there is no reason to think there will be serious disagreements," he continued. "What we have to do is find the best coach available and put him in full control of the operation until we can find a director of operations."

"It's like an exam. If you can't answer the second question, you go to the third."

Mara revealed that NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle had intervened last week and asked both men to submit to him a list of four suitable candidates.

"The agreement was the first name that appeared on both lists, we would both accept as the Giants director of operations," Mara said. "He informed me that the second man on my list of four had also been on Tim's list."

That was Monday. On Tuesday, that man, whose identity Mara refused to reveal, turned the Giants down. Wellington Mara said he felt the infighting in the Giants front office turned the man off.

Meanwhile, Tim Mara is totally against the idea of hiring a coach first. He said he feels his uncle would step into the role of director of operations.

"Well's decision was unexpected," he said. "I plan to confer with the commissioner on this. I think the coach is only one part of the football operation, we need a director of operations to put it all together. If we hire the coach first, we'll be back where we've been for the last 15 years."

"I want to have a winner. Well wants to do it his way. Well's way has had us in the cellar for 15 years," he added. "If he conducts business as usual, that's what I'm afraid of."

Tim Mara said he objected to only one of the half dozen interviewed for the job. When the lists were submitted Rozelle, Wellington Mara's list contained names of people who had not been interviewed. One name appeared on both lists.

"I think the people he wants have only been linked to failure," Tim Mara said.

OSU Athletics Fight 'Villians'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Just like its average fan, Ohio State University struggles with its athletic pocketbook.

The main villains for the Big Ten Conference giant are Title IX, federal regulations requiring equal status for women's sports, and inflation.

The Buckeyes doled out $8.1 million this year for athletic expenditures, supporting 30 intercollegiate sports, 18 of them for the men.

That figure will soar even higher next year — forcing Ohio State officials to search for additional revenue.

"The pressures on our budget are enormous," admitted Hugh Hindman, the Buckeyes' athletic director.

And the Buckeyes, with sure home football sellouts of more than 87,000, basketball crowds of 13,000 or more and packed ice hockey contests, are in better fiscal shape than most of the nation's intercollegiate programs.

Each Ohio State home football game nets $400,000. The Buckeyes usually play seven home contests a year, which means almost $3 million in revenue alone.

Still, spiraling costs are leaping ahead of such fat incomes for the school of more than 50,000 students.

Hindman estimates the average grant-in-aid was $3,500 this year and that will increase in the 1979-80 seasons.

To help pay the scholarship bill, Hindman and his associates launched a private fund drive for the first time in 1978. They raised $550,000 in the first six months and stopped at that figure because of an agreement with the university brass.

The Ohio State athletic department also must come up with enough extra money to fund 14 additional women's scholarships for the next school year. That will bring the women's grants to 95 to 187 for the men.

The self-sustaining Ohio State athletic department has four main revenue sources: income sports, physical facilities such as the golf courses and ice rink, solicitations and football bowls.

No state taxpayer money of any kind is spent on the Buckeyes.

There are some controversial directions to generate more funds — ones that Hindman wishes to sidestep.

The university could increase its ticket prices of $9 for football, $4.50 for basketball and $2 for ice hockey.

It could drop any discounts on football tickets for state employees. And it might increase the ceiling for its athletic fund drive in the future.

The Wisconsin legislature solved the discount ticket problem. It passed a law requiring everyone to pay the full price on tickets.

Students now buy Ohio State football tickets for $4. Faculty has a $5.50 ticket price.

If both groups are required to pay the full price of $9, it would generate an additional $1.3 million in annual income, based on a seven-game home schedule.

A single game ticket at full price for everyone would mean $2,500 more ticket money from the faculty and $135,000 from students. Multiplied over a full season, that would mean $360,000 from faculty and $945,000 from students.

Hindman, however, is not thinking along those lines. In fact, he doesn't even want to discuss such a controversial proposal.

"They'd burn St. John Arena down," Hindman said of the fully priced ticket idea.

"What is the saturation point? We don't want to compete with the (Cleveland) Browns," he said.

Baseball Still Money Maker

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite contentions that lucrative player contracts will eventually ruin baseball financially, it's probably still profitable to own a major league team, says a labor relations specialist who has studied the structure of player-management agreements.

James B. Dworkin, a professor of management at Purdue University, said that while some observers are crying that free agents and multi-million dollar contracts will some day drive owners out of business, his research indicates just the opposite.

"Taking into account the situation with arbitration and free agents, profits would appear to go down," said Dworkin. "Now it's hard to get good data in this area, but history tends to support the contention that management is in pretty good shape moneywise."

Dworkin said that while contracts are generally more lucrative for players today than they were 10 years ago, management also has fattened its bank account.

"There used to be a big piece of pie and management did with it pretty much what they pleased," Dworkin said. "But things have changed. The players are getting a share and it's cutting into the profits, but probably not to the extent of really hurting."

"The television package is among the factors that have helped management since the 1960s," Dworkin added. "But again, teams are not required to disclose their financial condition, so it's all speculation. But if I had to speculate, I'd say they are not doing so poorly. It's probably still profitable to own a team."

Dworkin and James R. Zellus, another professor of management at Purdue's Krannert Graduate School of Management, spent more than two years researching the effects final-offer arbitration had on the bargaining process in baseball in 1974 and 1975.

Conventional arbitration, which was used in most cases requiring mediation before the 1974 season, allowed a third party to work out what usually was a compromise agreement, Dworkin said.

During 1974 and 1975, a total of 1,000 players were eligible for arbitration.

Of that number, 92 players invoked their right with only 43 settling for awards decided on by the neutral party. The remaining 49 settled prior to an arbitration hearing, Dworkin said.

It is not certain how many players received "favorable" rulings — or settlements which matched their demands — through arbitration.

Dworkin admits that his research, soon to be published, is not conclusive, partly because the effects of final-offer arbitration have not been tested over the long haul. Another reason is because management most often does not report the final terms of agreements, thereby making it virtually impossible to determine just how much a player was able to improve his contract.

"There's no doubt, though, that the union (Major League Players Association) headed by Marvin Miller has made great strides for the players," Dworkin said.

New York Rookie Barely 'Misses Record'

BOONTON, N.J. (AP) — Paul Mirabella, the man the New York Yankees refused to part with when they were negotiating for Rod Carew, figures he would have had a shot at an all-time record if he were included in the trade.

Mirabella ended the 1978 season with the Texas Rangers. He was shipped to the Yankees as part of the Sparky Lyle trade. If the Carew deal materialized with Mirabella a part of it, that would have been three teams in three months.

But the count, most likely, would have gone up to four because the Twins owed the New York Mets a player as part of the Jerry Koosman trade. Mirabella might have been that player.

"That would have to be a new record," Mirabella said in a recent telephone interview with The Associated Press. "Four teams in one year for a rookie. I'm happy it didn't come off. I like exactly where I am."

And that figure to be the No. 1 left-hand arm in the Yankees bullpen.

With Lyle now conducting business in Texas and Paul Lindblad calling Seattle home this year, Mirabella is being penciled in to take over in the bullpen with Rich Gossage, although the 24-year-old considers himself a starting pitcher.

"I think I could probably help the team more as a starter," he said. "But this year, I will have to do it as a relief pitcher. But I think they will get the most effectiveness out of me when I do start again."

Although his name was being tossed around, Yankee officials insisted Mirabella would not be included in any trade, high praise for a man whose major league career statistics read three wins, two losses and two saves.

"I talked with (Yankee manager) Bob Lemon the other night and they say they have big plans for me," Mirabella said. "As of right now, I am probably the No. 1 left-hander in the bullpen. There is nobody else, unless they buy somebody."

Hughes Ponders Plan To Aid O's

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Harry Hughes said Thursday that even if Maryland can legally subsidize operating losses of the Baltimore Orioles, he has serious doubts that this would be a proper use of state funds.

The governor stressed at his weekly news conference that he hasn't made up his mind what position he will take and that he isn't ruling out anything at this point.

He said, however, that he has "great doubts" whether this is the kind of thing the state should be using state tax dollars for.

Hughes noted that Maryland lost a lot of money about 100 years ago when the state invested in railroad stock.

That was when the constitution was amended to put strict limitations on the use of state funds in private business enterprises.

The governor said again Wednesday that even though he is not a constitutional lawyer, he believes the proposal to use state funds to aid the purchase of the Orioles by a group of Baltimore investors "poses a serious constitutional question."

Baltimore Mayor William D. Schaefer had outlined a plan for the city and state to put up $250,000 each a year for five years to cover any operating cost deficits of the club.

A's Next Leader? Only Finley Knows

OAKLAND (AP) — Charlie Finley says he has "someone picked out" to manager the Oakland A's this season — but won't say who it is until spring training opens on Feb. 23.

"I'm waiting to see if someone buys the team," Finley said. "If the team is sold and they keep it in Oakland, then they can name their own manager. The same goes if someone buys it and moves it to New Orleans or Denver."

"Whoever owns the team should name their own manager. If it isn't sold by the first day of spring training, then I'll name the new manager."

Finley's old manager, Jack McKeon, was fired two months ago, for the second time in three seasons. McKeon was the third man to serve two terms as manager and the 13th different skipper since Finley bought the club in 1960.

Actress, 69, Makes Comeback In 'North Street Irregulars'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Patsy Kelly has just turned 69, but she hasn't slowed down her lifelong pursuit of comedy. It cost her three fractured ribs and a pinched nerve in her latest movie.

She has her best role in years with Disney's "The North Street Irregulars," in which she plays one of a corps of housewives pursuing a gang of gamblers. In one scene, she can be seen racing down a city street on the back of a motorcycle driven by Edward G. Robinson (no doubles). She also cautions through traffic in a car driven by Douglas Fowley, who plays her husband.

"After one chase I went on location in San Pedro," she says. "I got a big pain in my chest and I said, 'Somebody get me a doctor.' The X-rays showed three fractured ribs."

All this is old stuff for Miss Kelly, who broke into movies with Hal Roach two-reel comedies in the early 1930s.

"I played in one 'Laurel and Hardy' comedy," she recalls. "and I was supposed to be hit over the head with a bottle. Naturally they had breakaway bottles, but I happened to get a real one. I almost fainted; in fact I did. Stan told me it happened to him once, too; it was just one of those mistakes."

"When I first arrived at Roach, I thought they had me mixed up with Toto the clown. In my first comedy, I was supposed to come onstage, drop a raffle ticket and fall in the bass drum. When I had to hang by my teeth from an airplane and have an elephant put his foot on my stomach, I drew the line. 'Get a stunt girl,' I said."

Patsy Kelly doesn't mind admitting her age. She has been a show business luminary so long that people think she must be ancient. The Brooklyn girl started dancing at an early age, then joined the act of the great comedian, Frank Fay. She appeared on Broadway with Will Rogers in "Three Cheers" and with Al Jolson in "Wonder Bar," then Roach brought her to Hollywood to costar with Thelma Todd in comedy shorts.

"Thelma had been making them with Zasu Pitts," says Miss Kelly. "Zasu wanted to leave the series to do dramatic parts, and she was very good at it, too. It was hard for me to adjust at first, because I'm a night person. When they told me I had to be at the studio at 5:30, I said, 'I don't get to bed until 4!'"

"It was great fun. Stan (Laurel) and Babe (Hardy) would come on the set and give us lines and suggestions. It was a thrill to sit in a projection room with Stan and hear him comment: 'That little fellow wouldn't do that.' He was aware of the character he was playing, and he insisted on retakes if the scene wasn't right."

"I laughed from the time I arrived at the studio until I left at night. I was ashamed to take a paycheck."

Female comedy teams were a rarity in

PATSY KELLY films, but the glamorous blonde Todd and the raucous Irish Kelly enjoyed success for three years until Todd's mysterious death in 1935. Ronch then teamed Kelly with Peri Gilpin and Lyda Roberti but the new pairings didn't work. Miss Kelly went on to play incompetent secretaries and innocent maids in comedies and musicals at major studios.

"I even did a western with John Wayne," she remarks. "I had a cowboy horse that followed me to the commissary every day. After I finished the picture, the trainer asked if I would come and visit the horse. He missed me."

She dropped out of films in 1943, appearing in plays, on radio with Tallulah Bankhead, in night clubs with Harry Wood. She returned to movies in 1960 with "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" and has been back on Broadway with "No, No, Nanette" and "Irene."

"At 69 she bears evidence of her lifelong losing battle with overweight. Except for a smoker's hack ('I quit for a month or two at a time'), she seems in good fettle. She has never married."

"I was in love a long time ago, but he was killed in the war," she says. "Besides, I'm the world's worst cook. I've always said, 'I can't do this to a man.'"

Mineo Murder Trial Jury Deliberates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court jury began its fifth day of deliberations Thursday in the trial of 22-year-old Lionel Williams, accused of slaying actor Sal Mineo during a 1976 robbery attempt.

The jurors were considering largely circumstantial evidence which prosecutors say connects Williams, a former pizza delivery man, with the knife attack on Mineo. Williams also is accused of 10 strong-arm robberies committed about the same time.

Williams was brought here from Michigan last year to face the Mineo murder charge. He had been serving an eight-month sentence at the Calhoun County, Mich., jail for passing a bad check.

The case against Williams was based in part on testimony from a guard at the jail and another man who said they had heard Williams boast of the killing.

But the defense called witnesses who were near the scene of the stabbing outside Mineo's West Hollywood apartment the night of Feb. 12, 1976. They said the assailant was a white man of average height. Williams is short and black.

Mineo, 37, was a teen movie idol during the 1950s. He received Academy Award nominations for his performances in "Rebel Without a Cause" and "Exodus."

After Theater Career, Chris Walken Moves To Movies With 'Deer Hunter'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At age 35, Christopher Walken is making it as a film actor. Evidence: New York critics award as best supporting actor of 1978, almost certain nomination for an Oscar.

Does he wish such recognition had come sooner?

"No, I wanted to happen what's happening now," replies the handsome New Yorker. "I've done a lot of theater in the past five years, appearing from the Globe Theater in San Diego to the Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Ont. From a practical standpoint, that has been important to my wellbeing."

"I can make a living no matter what happens to my movie career. I have established places where I can work; they know me in the various cities, and can return to them from time to time."

"If I had hit it earlier in films, I wouldn't have had that security. You can fall down very easily in films. And when you fall, it can be disastrous. It is dangerous to fall in films."

Walken's film career has been building slowly: "The Anderson Tapes," "Next Stop, Greenwich Village," "The Sentinel," "Annie Hall" (as Diane Keaton's brother). He has taken a quantum leap with "The Deer Hunter," in which he plays a mill town youth who disappears into the dope world of Vietnam.

REFINERY TO MAKE REFUNDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government and an Oklahoma City firm have signed an agreement in which the company, Kerr-McGee Corp., agreed to refund some $52.6 million on sales of gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products. The Energy Department, in announcing the consent agreement Thursday, noted that the company did not admit violating federal pricing rules. Nevertheless, the department said, Kerr-McGee had agreed earlier to refund $6.6 million and now has agreed to refund an additional $46 million.

Since star Robert DeNiro is a recluse, the chore of publicizing the "Deer Hunter" (not an easy film to sell, Universal has discovered) has fallen to Walken. On his first luxury trip to Hollywood, he is delighted.

No wonder. During most of his career, Walken has been flying in coach and stopping in motels, first as a dancer (he toured in "West Side Story"), then as a dramatic actor. "I've played Hamlet, Macbeth, Romeo," he said. "Once I played Macbeth 80 times in a row for Joe Papp in New York."

Even without the hotel suites and complimentary champagne, he would feel a duty to help "The Deer Hunter."

"I have been lucky with 'The Deer Hunter,' lucky that they gave me the part. They could have chosen from any number of famous actors, yet they gave me the part. That takes nerve, and I am grateful to them (Michael Cimino and three other producers)."

"It is a bold and uncompromising picture, and I am proud to be associated with it."

The boldness and lack of compromise have made the "Deer Hunter" a controversial film. Their seems to be no middle ground among critics. New York critics went gaga over it, giving awards as best picture, for Cimino's direction and Walken's support. Other reviewers, including this one, found the film self-indulgent and excessive (it lasts more than three hours).

It was not an easy film to make, Walken found. Production ranged from small towns in Ohio and Pennsylvania to the peaks of Washington State (for the hunting sequences) to the jungles of Thailand, where the actors spent much time in murky rivers.

"But I didn't pay too much attention to the physical discomforts," Walken remarked. "The whole project was so stimulating that I was able to ignore them."

As a result of "The Deer Hunter," Walken has a variety of roles being offered to him. "This is the first time that I have ever had a job in advance," he said. "In April I'll be going to Montana for 'Johnson County War,' also for Cimino."

His wife Georgianne was also a dancer, and so both were injured to the insecurities of the theater. "We both knew that this is a rough business," said Walken. "When I got turned down for roles, I figured I didn't have what they wanted at the time. Now maybe I do."

Sophisticated Script Powers Sean Connery Film

"The Great Train Robbery." Stars Sean Connery, Donald Sutherland, Lesley-Anne Down, Malcolm Terris and Wayne Sleep. Written and directed by Michael Crichton; based on his novel. Music by Jerry Goldsmith. Photographed by Geoffrey Unsworth. Rated PG. At the South Plains Cinema.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

"The Great Train Robbery" is great fun and great entertainment. Based on Michael Crichton's educating and entertaining '975 novel, which was in turn inspired by the true account of the first robbery of a moving train in England, the film possesses a twinkling, devil-may-care spirit which is positively infectious. With Crichton responsible for adapting his literary work for the screen, the film retains a witty flavor and the result is a rousing adventure interspersed with visual sociological tidbits.

Looking for something new and different after his involvement with medical dramas like "The Andromeda Strain," "Westworld," "The Terminal Man" and "Coma," Crichton, who actually holds a medical degree, became intrigued with the idea of making a period film for a contemporary audience. Production notes quote him as saying, "A period story — and a period film — poses a problem. You must, of course, pay great attention to detail and authenticity. This can induce nostalgia for pretty clothes, quaint means of locomotion and handsome old houses.

"But the Victorian age was not all surface elegance; it was also a time when cholera and syphilis epidemics raged, when there was child labor and child prostitution."

And indeed, Crichton hints at all this throughout "The Great Train Robbery." He gives us a momentary glimpse of the "penny hangs," where men would pay a penny for the privilege of sleeping against hanging ropes. He ties the society's fear of being buried alive into his plot expertly, and also makes use of the sport of "ratting," the riding trail as a courting path and the public hanging as a major social event. Thankfully, however, the writer-director also never loses sight of the most important cinematic conflicts and confrontations.

With a leisurely pace, he peaks our interest in the robbery, which cannot occur until the four keys which open the train's safe are pilfered from *5/8 three separate locations. (Remember, dynamite and combination locks had not yet been invented.)

Sean Connery, a talent flashing just the right amount of debonair boldness, plays the upper-class rogue who masterminds the crime. Donald Sutherland, now experiencing a hot streak after "Animal House" and "Invasion Of The Body Snatchers," is excellent as the pickpocket-locksmith who plays an integral part in the crime. And Lesley-Anne Down, a gorgeous and talented actress perhaps better noted for her British films, is quite capable in a role which demands a myriad of disguises.

HISTORIC TRAIN ROBBERY — Battling the howling winds, train robber Edward Pierce (Sean Connery) fights his way across the roof of a speeding train in a scene from Michael Crichton's "The Great Train Robbery," which starts today at the South Plains Cinema. Crichton's film is based on his own novel, which was inspired by the first robbery from a moving train in 1855. The movie is rated PG.

It should be noted, however, that the success of this film is a team effort and Miss Down in no way lives up to her Time Magazine pre-release review, in which Frank Rich wrote, "The great train robbery may well have been the crime of its century, but it looks like petty theft compared with Down's ability to steal a scene."

Admittedly a picture in which the criminals are treated as clever heroes,

A-J FILM REVIEW

Crichton's "The Great Train Robbery" has no problem in inspiring us to root for the thieves who must depend on disguises and chicanery to succeed. Four keys must be stolen before anyone can go after the train's gold, and each burglary must be set up and planned out to the last second.

The robbery of the train itself is the best part of the movie, as was to be expected. With Connery battling the winds and the surprisingly rapid approach of a series of tunnels (each of which we're sure will knock him from the train and to his death), excitement mounts with each step our hero takes across the top of the speeding vehicle. The fact Connery is performing his own stunts becomes well apparent and makes the sequence all the more appealing.

Crichton at one point also has camera man Geoffrey Unsworth pan back to a helicopter shot of the entire train barreling its way through the Irish countryside, and this small inclusion brilliantly juxtaposes the tranquility of the surrounding area to the smoky and dangerous din with which Connery must contend.

Humor is a prime ingredient in the film, with Sutherland providing the biggest laughs through his final "disguise." The reams of pages in the book dealing with the sexual hypocrisy of the Victorian 1850s is reduced to a hilarious garden conversation in the film between Connery and Pamela Salem (Mrs. Trent). But there is more. The escape from Newgate Prison makes great use of both mattes and extras. The hanging itself serves a dual purpose, as Miss Down is able to better understand the consequences of getting caught. And then there is all that wonderfully authentic dialogue, an example of which is Connery warning a cohort not to inform by saying, "If you turn nose on me, I'll see you in lavender."

Well put. Michael Crichton told The A-J in a recent interview that he tries to make the sort of movies he enjoyed watching as a small boy. And despite a hanging scene and a strangulation, I wouldn't hesitate at all in calling "The Great Train Robbery" suitable family viewing. It's light, stylish and well constructed. Oh, in my mind, the ending is a bit rushed and perhaps too jolly. But the audience at an advance screening positively applauded at the time, so it appears more than suitable.

All in all, Crichton has managed to come up with a dandy adventure story. That he had to recreate an era to pull it off is no small feat in itself.

A REMINDER: "Ice Castles," starring Robby Benson and Lynn-Holly Johnson will be sneaked tonight at the Cinema West with the current attraction "California Suite."

Former First Lady Had Ambitions In Journalism

NEW YORK (UPI) — Book editor Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis says before she married Jack Kennedy she thought a career in journalism was "ideal," but now she thinks publishing has more "depth."

Writing in the March issue of Ms. magazine, which features the former first lady as its cover girl, Mrs. Onassis also raises a defense for working mothers in a section entitled "Why Women Work."

"What has been sad for many women of my generation is they weren't supposed to work if they had families," she said.

"There they were with the highest education, and what were they to do when the children were grown — watch the raindrops coming down the windowpane? Leave their fine minds unexercised? Of course women should work if they want to. You have to be doing something you enjoy."

Mrs. Onassis, now an editor at Doubleday, worked as "Inquiring Camera Girl" for the Washington Times-Herald before she met Jack Kennedy.

"Before I was married, I worked on a newspaper," she said. "Being a journalist seemed the ideal way of both having a job and experiencing the world, especially for anyone with a sense of adventure."

"I wouldn't choose it as a profession now — journalism has variety, but doesn't allow you to enter different worlds in depth, as book publishing does — though I understand why so many young people are attracted to it. Being a reporter seems a ticket out to the world."

SEARCH AREA — Map pinpoints area where Mick Jagger and other members of the Rolling Stones rock music group assisted in the successful search for the group's road manager, Allan Dunn, 33, and a companion, Romona Herman, 26, who had been missing since Tuesday in a small rubber dinghy last seen off a Nassau beach.

Lubbock Artist's Painting On Tour

A charcoal drawing by James D. Howze, professor of art at Texas Tech University, has been selected for inclusion in a two-year traveling exhibition sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, Washington, D.C.

The work, "Plane of Darkness," is described by the artist as involving a phantasmagoric airplane, an antique automobile and several figures, set in an illusory space and defined by an ambiguous arrangement of planes.

The drawing and 50 others have been chosen from the American Drawing II competition by the Portsmouth, Va., Community Arts Center.

The exhibition will open April 7 at Commons Gallery, University Park, Pa. Other locations are in Colorado, Illinois and Minnesota.

Braniff Announces Extended Service

Braniff International will begin direct service between Midland-Odessa and Dallas-Fort Worth, Chicago, Washington, Cleveland, Memphis and New York-Newark on March 15.

Braniff will have two nonstop round-trips daily between Midland-Odessa and Dallas-Fort Worth, where connections to the other cities can be made.

The new service will sport an $18 one-way coach fare until April 1, when coach fare will rise to $28 one-way, according to Braniff officials.

Braniff's full range of Braniff fares will be available for flight segments beyond Dallas-Fort Worth.

Flights will leave Midland-Odessa at 6:55 a.m. and 1:40 p.m., arriving in Dallas at 7:45 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. respectively. Flights from Dallas will depart at noon and 8:15 p.m., arriving in Midland-Odessa at 12:55 p.m. and 10:10 p.m., respectively.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Table with columns for Physical, Emotional, and Intellectual biorhythms for Feb. 9, 1979. Each section includes a scale from 0 to 100 and a key for high, low, and prime times.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Year chart table with columns for birth years (1900-09 to 1970-79) and rows for Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) numbers.

Month chart table with columns for birth months (Jan to Dec) and rows for Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) numbers.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Unheralded Gang Movie Scores Surprising Hit

"The Warriors." Stars Michael Beck, James Remar and Deborah Van Valkenburgh. Screenplay by David Shaber and Walter Hill; based on the novel by Sol Yurick. Photographed by Andrew Laszlo. Edited by David Holden. Music by Barry DeVorzon. Directed by Walter Hill. Rated R. At the Fox Fourplex.

Just as 1978 marked the emergence of the Vietnam-related film, 1979 is already being touted as the year of the gang movie. More than a half dozen major motion pictures dealing with street gangs — including "Boulevard Nights," "Gang" and "Defiance" — are being readied for release. And the first to hit the screen is Walter Hill's "The Warriors." Based on a 1965 novel by Sol Yurick, "The Warriors" does not concentrate on the sociological aspects of gang life. The tribal bondings are never fully explored; the psyche and desires and jealousies of the gang member are only hinted at.

Baseball bats as weapons in gang movie called THE WARRIORS movie, a sort of street survival test, and the result is the most exciting and violent film yet released this year.

As the film opens, we find nine delegates from every gang in New York City meeting at a conclave in the Bronx. Not only are the Warriors there from Coney Island, but rival gangs like the Blackjacks, the Electric Eliminators, the Turnbull A.C.s, the Firestarters, the Rogues, the Saracens and the Zodiacs have also sent representatives. The meeting has been called so that Cyrus, president of New York's largest gang and regarded as "the one and only," can propose the following plan: If every gang in the city banded together, the composite gang would be 60,000 strong. And since there are only 20,000 cops in the city, says Cyrus, "We could take over this city, one borough at a time."

It's a frightening thought, especially with the scene's thousands of extras roaring their approval. But for no good reason, a member of the Rogues takes a pistol and blows Cyrus away. A Warrior witnesses the shooting and, to transfer the blame in the midst of confusion, the Rogues point the accusing finger at The Warriors. Thus the gang from Coney Island now finds itself at least 60 miles from its home turf and unarmed, with both the police and every gang in the city out to stop them at all costs. And so the chase begins.

From the beginning, Hill makes sure his audience is rooting for the Warriors. They are the underdogs, more clean cut (or at least more "normal" in appearance than many rivals) and, most of all, they are innocent — at least of this specific crime. When their leader is bludgeoned to death at the conclave, Swan (Michael Beck) accepts war lord responsibilities. And watching him work is like watching Patton or Rommel.

Gang members are termed "soldiers" and for good reason. The best of their leaders are not only good fighters, but excellent tacticians, with goals and objectives and an awareness of their enemy. All of the major roles in this film have been wisely cast with unknowns and that, too, adds further to the believability.

Hill also makes sure we understand the jungle philosophy of street warfare. We know only the strong can survive, and we are kept on the edge of our seats as we watch the survivor running on and on and on for their lives, the pace of the pursuit oftentimes heightened still further by Barry DeVorzon's synthesized score. But the real excitement comes when the running stops. There are two battle sequences which, despite the distinct lack of blood, still come off as mesmerizingly violent and beautifully choreographed. The first finds the Warriors outnumbered by the Baseball Furies, the latter wielding baseball bats with frightening expertise, and the second major fight takes place in a subway men's room.

There's something about the thought of having one's head crushed by a baseball bat that is both sickening and hypnotizing. And as a result, we cannot bring ourselves to look away from the screen, we wince as a bat is broken across a rival's ribs and find ourselves inadvertently dodging the swinging weapons being powered by blind fury. Hill, who also gave us bare-knuckle fighting a couple years back with "Hard Times," knows how to excite an audience without once making his rumbles seem gratuitous.

Characters are hurt in this film, by bats and chains and karate kicks and strong, calloused fists. And yet even when a young man is inadvertently tossed before a speeding subway train, Hill's camera never concentrates on the gore. The R rating is deserved but, ironically, the violence is tastefully filmed.

Hill and co-screenwriter David Shaber succeed at exposing the loyalty of gang members, the pride each man-boy feels for his "colors" (uniform). The Warriors — who are not all likeable, believe me — stick up for one another. Internal arguments are dealt with calmly. The implied message is you're nothing if you're alone on the streets. The smallest inclusions stand out: Swan's refusal to honor the Orphans' request to relinquish their trademarks, and Swan not allowing his woman to primp in front of two prom-going couples. We are what we are, he implies.

Where the film has a weakness is in Swan's sudden disenchantment with the home turf (slightly reminiscent of Travolta in "Saturday Night Fever"), and the trite symbolism which surrounds the woman traveling with him. These scenes do not fit in with the scheme of the rest of the film. Nevertheless, on the whole, "The Warriors" must be labeled a surprise hit. The acting is universally good, the music adds tension and the photography (most of the film was by necessity shot at night) captures the flavor of the streets.

And even after "The Warriors" is over, one still can't put out of his mind the frightening possibilities of a united New York gang 60,000 strong. That story may still be told in a later film.

Marvin Case Now Centers On Finances

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The personal manager who groomed Michelle Triola Marvin for stardom testified Thursday the singer dropped her career after Lee Marvin told her: "I'll always take care of you, baby."

Mimi Marleaux, who handled Miss Marvin's career in 1965 and 1966, said she believed the singer had talent, and "something very good could happen for her in show business."

Testifying in Superior Court at a trial involving property rights of unmarried couples, Miss Marleaux said Miss Marvin's chance for a big break was lost when Marvin demanded she join him in London — where he was filming "The Dirty Dozen."

She said the demand came when Miss Marvin had traveled to Hawaii for a 1966 singing engagement coupled with the release of her new record "Promise Me Your Love."

Miss Marleaux said she watched Miss Marvin talk to the actor during an agitated phone conversation between England and Hawaii, and it ended with Miss Marvin agreeing to join him.

After the phone call, the witness said, Miss Marvin hung up the phone and declared: "What can you do? I love the guy."

After Miss Marvin left for England, disc jockeys in Hawaii decided against playing the record if they couldn't meet the singer, Miss Marleaux testified.

Miss Marleaux said that sometime later, she was invited for dinner to the Malibu home Marvin shared with the singer.

She said that while the two women were talking, Marvin interrupted and said: "I don't know what you're worrying about a singing career for. You've got me and I'll always take care of you, baby."

Miss Marvin, 46, is suing Marvin, 54, for $1 million, or half the income he earned while they lived together.

In Wednesday's testimony, the focus was on Marvin's complex financial affairs as Miss Marvin's attorney tried to back up her claim that the actor became a millionaire during their love affair.

But Marvin Mitchellson, Miss Marvin's lawyer, lost a battle to place in evidence the actor's income tax returns for the six years of their affair.
