

Intelligence Agencies Told, 'Use More Human Resources'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter wants U.S. intelligence to reduce its preoccupation with electronic data collecting and start putting more stress on "human intelligence," a White House official said Saturday.

Carter has ordered a complete study of intelligence gathering operations to locate weaknesses — such as the ones that led the United States into a complacent and mistaken view of the brewing revolution in Iran.

In the midst of the Iranian uprising, shortly before the shah was forced to flee the country, a disgruntled Carter sent a note to CIA Director Stansfield Turner, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski complaining about the quality of U.S. intelligence reporting from Iran.

Several administration sources, however, say the CIA is not being singled out for Carter's displeasure.

They said Carter believes the problem extends to all areas of the U.S. intelligence community, including the political officers assigned to U.S. embassies around the world.

A senior White House official, who asked not to be identified, said the president has concluded — as he hinted at a news conference late last year — that too much reliance has been placed on the technical data gathered by such electronic machinery as spy satellites and too little has been devoted to human analysis of information and human judgment of developing trends.

"Over the course of the past 10 or 15 years there has been a gradual decline in the emphasis in human intelligence, in the sense of good, crisp, well-thought-out analysis," the official said.

"That came about, to some extent, because of the emphasis which we placed upon electronic intelligence. There is no doubt we have, far and away, the best electronic intelligence of anybody in the world. Nobody's even close."

In the past, when officials were weighing the future of electronic surveillance, "a decision was made that it was an important thing, it was the coming thing and you really ought to put a lot of effort into it," he said.

"An unintended consequence of that was a tendency ... of not really stressing the importance of making sure you had the people — recruiting and looking for people — and training people to do that sort of thing.

"I'm being a little more frank than I should be," he said. "You obviously can't cure a problem like that in a few months. It happens all the time in government that you need to redress things, but something that has happened over the course of a decade or so is not something that you will completely cure in a few months.

"There's no one thing you can do." He said the study ordered by Carter is considered a major step toward correcting the imbalance in intelligence-gathering approaches, however.

John Wayne Leaves Hospital

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Wayne went home from the hospital Saturday almost a month after cancer surgery and was reported "feeling fine."

The 71-year-old actor left UCLA Medical Center at 10:30 a.m. and was driven to his home in Newport Beach on the Southern California coast. No advance notice of his departure was given, apparently to avoid alerting newsmen.

Wayne was operated on Jan. 13 for what was supposed to be routine gall bladder surgery but a low grade malignant tumor was discovered in his stomach.

His entire stomach was removed and a new stomach fashioned from intestinal tissue. The cancer was found to have spread to lymph glands near the stomach and they too were removed.

A doctor on the case said he could not say definitely that all the cancer had been removed from Wayne's body but he appeared to thrive in the weeks after the operation and walked around the hospital. An infection in the surgical scar delayed his departure for several days.

Doctors said that although Wayne's diet would be restricted, his prognosis for recovery was good.

"He is home and is feeling fine. He was walking all over the hospital, building up his strength. He is beginning to eat more things."

A he-man in movies and in real life, Wayne was said to have taken the cancer surgery in stride.

One of his sons, Michael Wayne, commented just after the operation, "He's been down that road before."

This was a reference to lung cancer which Wayne experienced in 1964. His left one lung was removed and Wayne resumed his movie career which now includes more than 200 films.

He underwent open heart surgery last April at Massachusetts General Hospital to replace a damaged valve and recovered from that only to be hit with what was once thought to be gall bladder trouble.

The Jan. 13 operation was expected to last only a couple of hours but Wayne was in surgery for nine hours for the stomach removal.

Hundreds of cards and letters were received at the hospital, wishing Wayne well.

Flowers arrived daily and he gave them to children and elderly patients, a hospital spokesman said.

Wayne won an Academy Award as best actor in 1970 for his lusty portrayal of a one-eyed frontier marshal, Rooster Cogburn, in "True Grit." His most recent full-length movie was "The Shootist," made in 1976. He played the role of an aging gunfighter dying of cancer.

JOHN WAYNE

Wayne apparently fulfilled the hope of his doctors by rebounding from the cancer surgery although they could not say the malignancy would not turn up in some other part of his body.

A recent study at Sloan Kettering Memorial Institute in New York indicated 47 percent of patients with stomach cancer live five years or longer after surgery if there is no lymph node involvement. If the cancer cells has spread to the lymph glands, however, the five-year survival rate drops to 15 percent.

Cinderella Pageant Scheduled

The South Plains Cinderella Girl Pageant, formerly the Tri-County Cinderella Girl Pageant, is scheduled for 7 p.m., March 31, in the Coronado High School Auditorium, according to executive director Maxine Caldwell.

This is a preliminary pageant to the Texas Cinderella Girl Pageant. Contestants will be judged in four age groups: 3 to 6 competing for the title of Cinderella Tot; 7 to 9 for Miniature Miss; ages 10 to 12 for Cinderella Miss and 13 to 17 for Cinderella Teen.

Three judges for each age group will select winners on the basis of close-up appraisal, sportswear and party dress modeling and talent presentations. Cinderella Tots, however, do not compete in the talent category.

Entry locations and deadlines will be announced later.

The South Plains Cinderella Girl Pageant is sponsored by the Miss Lubbock Scholarship Pageant.

For further information call Mrs. Caldwell at 793-5848.

LISD Denies Truth Of Discrimination

A complaint that there is discrimination against black bus drivers in the Lubbock Independent School District has been refuted by the school system's director of transportation.

But at a meeting of the Lubbock chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Saturday night, the group's president, the Rev. Roy Jones, said the matter is not settled and will be pursued further.

Only one black now holds the position of senior bus driver. At a meeting last week between Rev. Jones, Robert Miller, supervisor of transportation, and Ed Irons, school system superintendent,

Only one black now holds the position of senior bus driver. At a meeting last week between Rev. Jones, Robert Miller, supervisor of transportation, and Ed Irons, school system superintendent, Jones asked Miller if any other black drivers are qualified for senior positions.

"At the present time, no," Miller said. But he added, "I have offered promotions to some who turned it down."

Rev. Jones, however, is not satisfied with that answer and plans to meet again with school officials to discuss the matter.

Irons could not be contacted Saturday night, but Miller said he and the superintendent agreed that, "We need to keep in mind our primary concern is the safe transportation of pupils. We're not interested in playing games with race."

In other business at the NAACP meeting, a tentative date of June 22 was set for the annual Freedom Fund Banquet.

Adopted' Horses Heading For Texas

SWEETWATER (UPI) — Eighty wild horses removed from public land in northern Nevada will arrive next week to be "adopted" by applicants of the Bureau of Land Management's Adopt-A-Horse Program.

About 1,000 wild horses and burros have found homes in Texas since the program began four years ago to thin out overpopulated herds on public lands.

The 40 mares and 40 stallions will go to persons who applied previously and are willing to pay the government approximately $100 per animal to cover transportation, feed and veterinary costs.

There are an estimated 54,000 wild horses and burros on public lands in Western States which are being adopted out by the Bureau of Land Management.

The horses are expected to arrive Wednesday at the Steen Cattle Co. corral one mile west of Sweetwater.

More Balmy Weather In Store Locally

Lubbock and the South Plains should enjoy balmy weather again today with temperatures expected to climb near 70 degrees and remain there through Wednesday.

National Weather Service forecasters predict temperatures today will match Saturday's high of 65, with light and variable winds at 10-15 mph.

Nights should continue cool, with lows in the mid 30s.

The general warming trend which spread over Texas Friday has continued statewide, with only a few low clouds shading the weather picture Saturday, along the upper Texas Gulf Coast and between Waco and Austin.

Temperatures ranged from afternoon highs in the mid 60s on the South Plains and Panhandle to low-50 readings at Galveston and along the Gulf Coast.

While the southern half of the nation enjoyed a sunny afternoon Saturday, temperatures in many parts of the North ranged below zero under cloudy skies and scattered snow showers.

Temperatures in the 60s dominated the Southwest, while southern Florida enjoyed readings in the 70s.

Bitter cold continued along parts of the East Coast, with temperatures in the Virginias and the mid-Atlantic states near freezing.

Highs ranged from seven degrees below zero at International Falls, Minn., to 72 degrees in Thermal, Calif.

The forecast for Sunday calls for rain to continue along the Pacific Northwest Coast. Scattered snow showers are expected from the Cascades and the northern Rockies to the upper Great Lakes region.

A sunny day is forecast for the southern half of the nation, most of the Plains and the Atlantic Seaboard.

Temperatures in the 70s are expected in the Southwest, while freezing weather is expected to continue from northern Montana to the Northeastern quarter of the nation.

Florida is expected to have temperatures in the 60s.

Citizens Reject Film Crew Offer

BLACKKEY, Ky. (AP) — Producers of a film about country music singer Loretta Lynn's rise to stardom from a coal mining town have been told they are not welcome in this eastern Kentucky hamlet for filming.

The city council voted to refuse Universal City Studio's request to shoot a three-minute sequence of the film in Blackey after local opposition was aired last week.

Wallis Worsley, production manager for the film, said Friday that four other eastern Kentucky towns are being considered as alternative sites. He gave no other details.

Worsley said he has been deluged with telephone calls from Letcher County residents who denounced the city council's decision of Thursday night.

Objections to the filming apparently centered on what "benefits" Blackey would receive from the project. Some residents had expressed fear the film would perpetuate stereotypes of mountain people.

Blackey was picked for the segment by director Michael Apted because its lack of mobile homes made it resemble a mountain town of 1947 more closely than most other communities.

NEW LANDING SYSTEM TESTED

(AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has chosen Washington National Airport for experimentation with a new type of precision, all-weather landing system. The FAA said Thursday that the new microwave landing system, which has been installed at the airport, provides pilots with more precise guidance signals to the runway than the present instrument landing system because its higher frequency is less susceptible to signal interference.

Emergency Technique Saves Life Of Woman

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff
She dropped her fork, coughed, and bolted from her chair at the dinner table. Desperately, Mrs. Lawrence Smyer tried to clear her throat. She couldn't Gasping for air, she raced toward the back door.

She couldn't breathe. Her eyes watered, tears streamed down her cheeks. Her face flushed and turned scarlet. She lost focus behind the tears. Her face felt hot, scalding, like someone was pressing a steam iron to it.

Her heart pounded wildly. A man with a hammer was smashing his way out of her chest.

She blinked her eyes. Hard. Again. The room blurred. Everything turned black and white, then grey, then faded away completely.

Her knees buckled before she reached the door. She stumbled, slumped over. She couldn't stop coughing.
Between the tears, the intense pain and the desperate feeling of being strangled, she frantically realized that if something didn't happen — and quickly — the piece of food lodged deep in her throat would choke her to death.

Her husband, eyes wide, mouth open at the sight of his wife locked in a deathly struggle, reacted as most people would — he began pounding her on the back in a futile and dangerous attempt to release the food from her throat.

It didn't work.
Fortunately for the couple, of 3813 26th St., another person was present who knew how to handle the situation.

Their granddaughter, 12-year-old Susie Smyer, a frequent visitor and tonight's dinner guest, realized what was happening. Pushing her grandfather aside, she applied the Heimlich Maneuver, freeing the piece of meat that had lodged in her grandmother's throat.

Her efforts saved Mrs. Smyer's life. "I knew I was choking to death," Mrs. Smyer said. "It was the most frightening experience of my life."

The Heimlich Maneuver, a widely advocated lifesaving practice, saved Mrs. Smyer's life — along with some incredibly cool action from Susie, who lives with her parents, the John Smyers, at 4507 43rd St.

Susie said simply, "I just reacted. I was so scared."

She had never attempted the Heimlich Maneuver before she was forced to use it on her grandmother. She learned the technique in her sixth grade class at Stewart Elementary School only a few months ago, and had on occasion noticed restaurant signs illustrating the practice.

Ironically, she had even spoken of it with her grandparents. But applying her training on her grandmother was a different matter — far tougher than passively watching an instructor squeeze a rag-filled plastic dummy at school.

And, on top of Susie's inexperience with the technique, Mrs. Smyer's rescue proved to be more difficult than Susie had been told.

Literature on the Heimlich method indicates that two squeezes on a choking person's abdomen should be sufficient to force food from the throat, but with Mrs. Smyer, two were not enough. Susie said she squeezed her grandmother twice with no results. She tried the technique four or five times.

A choking person can die in four minutes, say the experts. Mrs. Smyer's near-tragic experience, from the moment she began choking to the moment Susie freed the food from her throat, was a little more than three minutes, according to the family.

Many products carry statements that they are "so simple even a child can use them."

So, too, is the Heimlich Maneuver. Susie Smyer proved it.

Each year, thousands of persons choke to death needlessly. Mrs. Smyer was extremely fortunate to have someone near her who knew the Heimlich method and could apply it. The procedure is simple and effective, and with a minimum of practice, nearly everyone can successfully use it.

The Heimlich Maneuver teaches that choking victims can be saved by forcing food back up the throat and out the mouth rather than attempting to force the food down the throat.

Some medical experts say that pounding a choking person on the back is dangerous because it can lodge food or other materials deeper in the throat. With the Heimlich Maneuver, the upward squeezing forces air from the diaphragm back up the esophagus with pressure.

To perform the Heimlich Maneuver, one is instructed to get behind the choking person and pull him upright. Then, make a fist with either hand, placing the top knuckle of the thumb inside the curled up index finger so the bottom knuckle of the thumb sticks out to the inside of the fist.

Next, clasp the hands together, and place the protruding knuckle of the thumb directly under the center of the person's rib cage. Then bear hug the person tightly, jerking slightly upward and pushing in with the thumb.

Repeat the squeeze twice and release slightly, to see if the food has been forced up the throat and out the mouth. If not, squeeze again, until the food is expelled.

After the food has been dislodged, allow the victim plenty of fresh air, and call a physician to check the victim for damage to the throat.

A person who chokes while alone can perform the maneuver on himself by using the top of any bottle with a neck, like a soft drink or ketchup bottle.

Volunteers Set To Give Help On Tax Forms

The Voluntary Income Tax Assistance Program is under way. All it lacks, according to the program's director, is taxpayer participants.

"We have already doubled the volunteer force from last year," said David Flores of the IRS Collection Division. "Our 25 sites are open now for taxpayers to come to."

The program is designed to give prompt help in filling out tax forms, such as the 1040 and 1040A, for especially low-income, minority people in the South Plains area.

Flores stressed, however, that the program is open to any person desiring help in filing their income tax.

The following are sites and times volunteers are available. Most of the locations will be open through April 15.

•South Plains Community Action Center, with sites in Levelland, Post, Tahoka, Brownfield, Littlefield, Muleshoe, Anton, Olton and Morton.

Little Notice Paid Gold Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Some things in this world speak for themselves. So it is understandable that those in the business do not wax poetic about gold even when it reaches record prices as it did this past week.

At Citibank, the largest depository of commercially traded gold in the country, 100-ounce bars and smaller kilo bars sit in neat stacks, row upon row on dull grey metal shelves. Larger 400-ounce bars that weigh about 27 pounds apiece are stacked on rough unpainted wooden cross-boards on the floor.

At peak prices this past week, the value of just one 100-ounce bar, the standard size in most trading, topped $2,500.

But there's hardly any need for velvet wrappings here. Tourists are definitely not invited and most of the owners of the metal never see their glittery fortunes. It is delivered, stored and transferred on request.

James P. Mills, assistant vice president for precious metals at Citibank, estimates that "several thousand" customers have gold deposited at the bank. But since those customers may be investment houses representing thousands of other customers, even the gold keepers don't know who owns the bullion.

Mills won't estimate how much gold is deposited with Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, but he concedes that gold trading has become far more popular in the past few years.

"Some of the mystery has worn off," says Mills, noting that increased publicity about gold trading and attention by investment firms has made it easier to trade the metal.

Just how much trading has increased — at least in this country — is illustrated by figures of the Commodity Exchange in New York, which trades more gold contracts than any other exchange.

In 1975, the first year in which it was legal to publicly trade gold in the United States, 394,000 contracts for 100 ounces of gold each were traded. By 1977 that had grown to 962,000 contracts and last year jumped to 3.7 million.

Contracts, which are for future delivery, do not represent actual gold changing hands, since most are traded before actual delivery takes place. But the Commodity Exchange's most recent figures on gold being warehoused for actual delivery showed about 2.56 million ounces in New York depository stocks, or about $620 million worth.

Although U.S. gold exchanges must make their figures public, no one knows how much gold is cached in Switzerland, England or elsewhere because such information is closely guarded.

But while the popularity of gold may be growing, experts warn that it is not for the faint-hearted.

"Gold itself has no intrinsic value. It is the barometer of world anxiety," says James E. Sinclair, who heads a New York gold investment company bearing his name.

And, it was anxiety — about the political situation in Iran and its effect of world oil prices — that analysts generally cite as the reason gold hit new records again this past week. On Wednesday gold hit $250.50 an ounce in London and $251.75 in Zurich topping its previous record of $245.25 on Oct. 30.

By week's end, the price had fallen back to $242.62 in London, about $11 less than its record price only two days before. In Zurich it declined to $247 an ounce or $4.75 less.

"It was a clear case of the market rising too swiftly and becoming over-bought," said one gold dealer.

And Sinclair warns that with continued concern about Iran and world oil supplies, "the volatility of the last few days will be a profile of the market" for the near future.

Although only about one-third of the world's gold production is made into bullion for investment — the balance goes for jewelry or commercial uses — prices still fluctuate greatly. That's because gold traders see it as a refuge in times of uncertainty about either political or economic events that might affect the value of a country's currency.

In other business developments this past week:

•Wholesale prices jumped 1.3 percent in January, the largest monthly increase in four years. The Commerce Department ment report said soaring prices of beef and veal were partly to blame but other food and non-food items contributed. Wholesale price increases generally find their way to the retail market in a short time but some agriculture experts said meat prices already are showing the rise at grocery stores.

•Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said the turmoil in Iran and shutoff of oil production is "prospectively more serious" than the 1973 Arab oil embargo. But he said the situation, while serious, was not yet critical. The government is preparing rationing plans and Schlesinger told a Congressional committee that some mandatory conservation measures might be needed soon.

Meanwhile some oil companies began notifying their customers of price increases saying they were forced to buy more expensive oil from Saudi Arabia.

•President Carter released the names of 207 of the nation's largest 500 companies which had pledged to comply with his voluntary wage-price anti-inflation program. Absent from the list were many oil and food processing companies.

•General Motors, the nation's largest industrial company, reported profits of $1 billion in the last three months of 1978 up from $936 million a year before. For all of 1978, the automaker said its net earnings came to $3.51 billion and sales were $63.22 billion.

Problems In Iran Plague Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The political upheaval taking place in Iran has become a problem that won't go away for the stock market.

Some six weeks after the last shipment of oil left that unsettled country — which ordinarily accounts for about 10 percent of the world's oil supplies — the financial markets still seem to be struggling to adjust to the situation.

When Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned this past week that the shutoff of Iranian oil was "prospectively more serious" than the Arab oil embargo of five years ago, stock and bond prices fell, the dollar came under pressure, and the price of gold hit a record high.

By the end of the week, some brokers were arguing that investors had overreacted to the Iranian situation.

But as the markets closed Friday, stock prices showed a loss for the second straight week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 12.30 to 822.33 after a 25.12-point decline the week before.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index lost .91 to 54.88. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index managed a .83 gain to 160.08.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 25.24 million shares a day, against 26.94 million the week before.

Analysts have noted several important areas of concern for investors in the Iranian situation.

The most basic is its potential effect on oil supplies for the industrialized countries. But beyond that, questions have been raised about Iran's future role as a consumer of Western goods and services, such as military equipment, and about loans made in the country by Western banks.

Naturally, analysts say, such issues have taken their toll on stock prices generally. By late last week, however, it was evident that investors had begun to look at the other side of the coin — buying stocks of companies that might stand to benefit from the Iranian crisis.

The coal stocks, for one, were strong Thursday and Friday. And many issues of companies with energy interests concentrated in North America also moved up.

With all these cross-currents, it seemed likely that much of the drama — dubbed "The Iranian Disconnection" by Barry Sahgal of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. in a recent report — was still to be played out on Wall Street as well as in Tehran.

"It is widely assumed that once the dust settles in Iran, exports of crude oil will be facilitated by whoever is in power," Sahgal said. "Although that would be most desirable, it does not necessarily follow that Western interests (the achievement of high production levels) will be served."

The potential impact of the situation on the dollar is another open question. Wrote J. Paul Horne of Smith Barney, Harris Upham Co.:

"The dollar might initially be negatively affected, but we suspect that a subsequent result, possibly already in process, will be a flow of funds toward the U.S., which is currently seen as a better refuge for Middle Eastern funds than Western Europe or Japan.

"Many European and Middle Eastern fund managers seem to think the Mideast crisis is likely to affect West European countries more than the U.S. Furthermore, these managers seem agreed that economic fundamentals in the U.S. point to growing dollar stability.

"They also seem persuaded that there is more upside potential in U.S. equity and real estate markets than there is in Europe or Japan.

"Therefore, a deteriorating Middle East crisis might have the perverse effect of strengthening the dollar."

THE MARKET METER

Market Performance Shows Improvement

By J.L. HUTCHESON

Schneider, Bernet & Hickman, Inc.

Aided by reassuring public statements from Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, the stock market posted its first gain in more than five sessions Thursday after losing almost 60 points from the previous week's close.

Some traders point to the market's recent decline and maintain that the market is oversold at this point and the sellers have become far less aggressive. They say that for the time being, the bears and bulls are at a standoff.

Schlesinger's statement Wednesday, that the Iranian oil shutdown could have potentially disastrous effects on the American economy, sent the stock market into a tail-spin. Thursday, however, he maintained that the U.S. could avoid a crisis by careful planning. It is this type of fence-sitting that make investors extremely nervous, since they don't know for sure if anything the politicians or bureaucrats say is in any way credible, which it usually isn't.

The wide sweep of this week's decline was illustrated by the number of issues losing versus those gaining. There were more than three times the losers as there was gainers during most of the week.

Analysts cite the renewed anxieties concerning the many implications of the Iranian crisis, such as on inflation, the supply of oil and on other Mideastern countries. Analysts say another reason for the market's recent dramatic change in psychology is a change in the perception of inflation, which now looks as though it will be at a double-digit rate well into the middle of 1979.

Some experts see the possibility that Saudi Arabia might reassess its policy toward the West. The sudden collapse of the Shah of Iran is believed to have made the Saudis sensitive to what is perceived as a growing internal popular discontent with high levels of oil exports, a factor which helped ignite the spark of revolution in Iran.

Trade Strength Falters

In 1977 we exported $890 million worth of auto engines and parts. But we imported $1.7 billion worth. Exports of U.S. finished vehicles were $5.7 billion; imports $10.2 billion. Obviously the American auto industry is no longer king of the road.

In 1975 we exported $2.4 billion of iron and steel mill products; by 1977 this was down to 1.6 billion of even cheaper dollars. Meanwhile in 1977 U.S. iron and steel customers bought $5.3 billion from foreign suppliers.

Americans still reign supreme in such areas as satellite communications, deep-sea mining, the largest electrical generation and delivery systems. But Congress's Joint Economic Committee has come up with 158 product categories in which American supremacy is threatened, ranging from hand tools to agricultural machinery.

What is the reason for this decline in an area almost totally dominated by America? Many explanations are offered, but few explain more than the area of productivity.

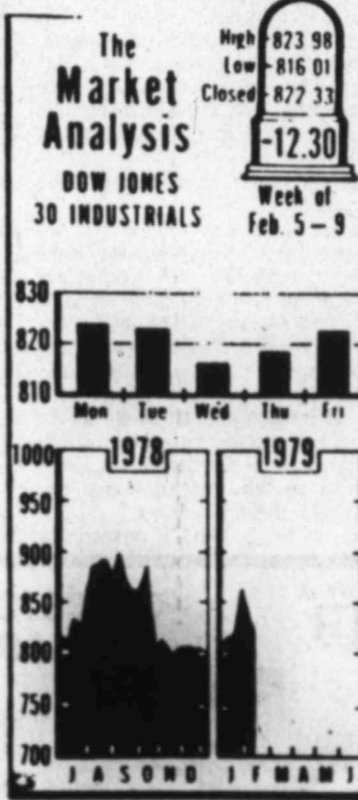

Labor abroad has become cheaper, many experts say, but this is just another way of saying that the American labor force is pricing its way out of a competitive position in the world, forcing up wages without regard to the economic consequences, and that neither management nor labor have been able to raise productivity levels sufficiently to offset it.

Between 1970 and 1977 productivity in West Germany increased 46 percent, in France 42 percent, in Italy 38 percent, in Canada 25 percent. Only Britain, the socialists' dream, lagged the U.S. figure of 21 percent.

What has caused the decline in American productivity as compared to the rest of the Western world?

This poor showing in the productivity race can be justly blamed on our tax burden both on individuals and business. In 1967 our rate of consumer savings was 7.5 percent; 10 years later it had fallen to 4.5 percent. Meanwhile the rate increased in our major competing countries. This savings decline helps dry up one source of new investment. So too does the corporate tax burden. The U.S. in the past 15 years had had the lowest relative capital investment of the 12 leading industrial nations of the free world.

Hence, the decline in American productivity and dominance of world trade.

Spring Fling '79 Tour Slates Visit To Brussels

HUB OF WESTERN EUROPE — The Spring Fling '79 tour of Europe will include Brussels, Belgium. Lubbock and South Plains residents will travel as a group and enjoy first class accommodations. The specially priced tour includes all transportation, baggage transfers, and an English speaking tour guide. (Photo by Belgian National Tourist Office)

All too often, packaged tours of Europe do not include Brussels. Participants in the Spring Fling '79 tour will find the capital of Belgium an intriguing city.

Brussels abounds in history from long periods of foreign rule. In 1830, the city was the heart of the revolution which brought independence from the Dutch. Belgian Kings Leopold I and Leopold II gave the city much of its charm by way of 18th and 19th century architecture.

Lubbockites and other residents of the South Plains that take advantage of the special tour should be prepared to meet Brussels' most famous citizen, the Little Boy or Mannekin Pis. The statue of the youngster in buff is much loved by the Belgians. The bronze fountain was hidden during the 1695 bombardment and was even kidnapped by the French. By the way, over the years the cheeky kid has acquired an extensive wardrobe (put to use on special occasions) including a boy scout uniform and an United States Marine Corps uniform.

The statue-fountain is near the Grand Place, the town hall square, the most important area in Brussels. The square is fronted by the Hotel de Ville or city hall, a 15th century architectural showcase surrounded by excellent examples of 17th century mansions. The square dates from the 12th century; it was then and remains an interesting market place.

Something is always happening at the Grand Place. With the first light of dawn, the area becomes a fruit market. Later in the day the site is transformed into a colorful (be sure to have a full roll of color film for this) flower market. At night the area's buildings are floodlit and the many sidewalk cafes do a bustling business. It's easy to understand why travelers refer to the town hall square as "the most beautiful parking lot in the world." The Town Hall Building itself has an impressive collection of Brussels tapestries.

If you're inclined toward art, then this city will certainly impress you. The Flemish school of art is represented by masterpieces of the Van Eyck brothers, Rubens, Van Dyck and many more. In the Dutch-school there are Rembrandt, Gabriel Metsu and others of equal fame.

The city has many noteworthy churches with majestic spires, museums representing all periods of art and history. Plus there are several beautiful parks, and one of Europe's leading opera houses. The capital is also well known for its ballet companies and productions.

Don't be misled into thinking that Brussels is only an arts and history showplace. The city of 1 1/2 million people is also very up-to-date. Because the country is the hub of Western Europe and Brussels is the seat of the governing body of the Common Market, the city has a modern character. As an example of 20th century awareness is the gleaming model of a molecular cluster, symbol of the Brussels World's Fair.

Night clubs, theatres and festivals can keep a visitor on the go every hour of the day. Shoppers will be delighted with the quality of lace (easy to pack) wrought iron (not so easy to pack) and leathers. Bargaining is not practiced in stores, but it's a custom in the markets.

Because the city has attracted so many people from France Germany and the Netherlands, dining can be a real adventure. Of course, the city also has many languages. South Plains residents should have no problem trying to communicate because of the group's English speaking tour guide. If you do go out on your own, most of the major stores and restaurants have English speaking employees. Some of the better sidewalk cafes have menus in English on request.

After the Brussels visit, the Lubbock and South Plains travelers will travel to Amsterdam, Holland for overnight accommodations. The specially packaged Spring Fling '79 tour, priced at only $2256 per person, also includes accommodations and sightseeing in London and Athens. Topping off the tour will be a four-day cruise of the Greek Islands aboard a luxury liner.

To assure personal attention, participation in this special "once in a lifetime" tour has to be limited. The tour that will depart Lubbock on May 6 has already been reserved by many West Texas residents. Interested persons should contact The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal or a local travel agency as soon as possible.

Spring Fling '79 is a community service of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and area travel agencies.

Grammy Nominations Released

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The high-pitched, disco recordings of "Saturday Night Fever" and "Stayin' Alive," nominated for Grammys as album and record of the year, helped the Bee Gees capture six nominations and top the list of musicians vying for the Grammy Awards Thursday night.

Former President Richard Nixon also has a shot at one of the recording industry's highest awards, for his interviews with David Frost.

John Denver will host and perform at the 21st annual Grammy Awards, to be televised live from the Shrine Auditorium in a two-hour presentation over CBS starting at 8 p.m. CST.

The 4,700-member National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences voted secretly on the 52 performance and craft awards. Only 12 awards will be presented during the live broadcast, which will also feature a special salute to the San Francisco recording scene and announcement of inductees into the academy's Hall of Fame.

Besides Denver, performers will include Chuck Mangione, Eubie Blake, the Imperials, Oscar Peterson with Joe Pass, Lou Belson and John Herd, Taste of Honey, Kenny Rogers and Dottie West, Olivia Newton-John, Boyz n the City, Barbara Mandrell, Johnny Paycheck and Alicia Bridges.

Presenters will include Andy Gibb, Barbra Streisand, Barry Manilow, Lily Tomlin and Steve Martin.

Anne Murray and Mangione each received four nominations, including song of the year for Miss Murray's "You Needed Me" and Mangione's "Feel So Good."

Miss Murray was also nominated in both pop and country vocal performance by a female. The Canadian singer, pregnant with her second child, withdrew as a presenter because of illness.

Other multiple nominees included Earth, Wind and Fire, up for three performance awards and four craft nominations; John Williams, with four nominations for his "Close Encounters" score; and Quincy Jones and Chick Corea, with three each.

Besides the Bee Gees' "Stayin' Alive," Miss Murray and Mangione, nominees for record of the year also went to Gerry Rafferty for "Baker Street" and Billy Joel for "Just the Way You Are."

New Jersey Plans Tribute To Edison

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — Thomas Alva Edison, the "Wizard of Menlo Park" whose more than 1,000 inventions help flood the world with light, music and moving pictures, will be remembered Sunday on his 132nd birthday.

Although historians still debate whether Edison was a hit-or-miss tinkerer or a true scientist, his inventions led to such conveniences as the electric light, the phonograph, motion pictures and the fluoroscope.

Edison's long involvement with New Jersey includes labs here and in West Orange. The state is going all out to participate in the International Centennial of Light that will mark the invention of the incandescent light 100 years ago. More tributes are planned for later this year.

On Sunday, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne and U.S. Rep. Edward J. Patten, D-N.J., are to attend a ceremony at the Edison museum in the township's Menlo Park section.

Plans call for a noon march with the Edison High School band to the 131-foot light tower, sometimes darkened by the energy crisis, on the museum grounds.

A grammar school chorus will sing and a wreath will be laid for Edison, who died in 1931 at age 84 more than 20 miles away in the exclusive walled enclave of Llewellyn Park in West Orange.

Edison's rambling Victorian mansion in West Orange will be open to visitors Sunday, as well as his laboratory on Main Street.

More Blood Required As Services Expand

The bloodmobile units of South Plains Blood Services will make several stops this week in Lubbock and area communities to replenish supply.

The annual usage of blood and its components increased from 18,000 to nearly 20,000 pints in 1978, and the projection for 1979 is over 22,000 units.

Among the reasons for the increase in blood usage is the increase in the number of open-heart surgeries performed at Methodist Hospital and St. Mary's of the Plains Hospital. An average of 12 to 14 are done weekly.

The opening of Health Sciences Center Hospital and the increased population in Lubbock's 120 mile radius results in more emergencies requiring blood.

Former Resident Gets Post Award

POST (Special) — Post's "Outstanding Citizen for 1978 Award" was presented here Saturday night at the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet to a man who was transferred to another city by his employer in November.

Gene Moore, manager of Pioneer Natural Gas here until he was transferred to the Levelland office late this year, received the award.

New officers installed at the meeting were Larry Willard, president of the First National Bank of Post, president; Danny Shaw, manager of Wacker's Department Store in Post, president-elect; and new directors Jim Boles, Jane Terry and James Pollard.

Holdover directors are Jim Cornish, Iva Hudman, Charles Adams, Linda Waldrip, Larry Willard and Danny Shaw.

Tumbleweed Smith, producer of "The Sound of Texas," was guest speaker.

South Plains Blood Service is a non-profit organization whose main purpose is to provide blood and blood components to all local and area hospitals as it is needed. Blood is taken on a voluntary basis only and there is no monetary value for the blood donation given.

Monday the bloodmobile will be located from 5 to 8 p.m. at Broadway Church of Christ in Lubbock and from 5 to 8 p.m. in Littlefield behind the Agriculture Building.

Tuesday a bloodmobile will be in Andrews at the north east by-pass from 2 to 8 p.m.

Wednesday a unit will be located at Clark Equipment on the Amarillo Hwy. from 7 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 4 p.m. One also will be in Olton at the Agriculture Building from noon to 2:30 p.m.

Thursday the bloodmobile will be in Wilson at the high school from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m. and at 5015 Knoxville in Lubbock from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Friday units will be located at Lubbock's Litton's on N.E. Loop 289 from 1 to 5 p.m. and at Pittsburg Glass at 611 23rd St. from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Poll Shows Inventions Wanted

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Why doesn't somebody invent a gadget that would...

Fill in the blank yourself. It's National Inventors Day and time to let your imagination wander.

In advance of Sunday's celebration of American ingenuity, The Associated Press asked a random cross-section of people what inventions they would like to see and why.

The answers ranged from the practical — "an automatic floor-mopper" — to the philosophical — "a machine to eliminate greed."

A few people couldn't think of anything new that was needed. "I wish for a lot of stuff, but it's already been invented," said Karen Dingman, 24, of Des Moines, Iowa.

One of the best suggestions came from Brent Nichols of Omaha, Neb., who's 10 years old and in the fifth grade. "I'd like to have somebody invent a pencil that will write what you tell it to write," he said.

Also from Brent: "A car that can be folded up very small to help make parking easier."

Experience teaches some people what's needed. "I finished shoveling the snow from my driveway one night at midnight," recalled Dr. Henry Mangurten, head of the high risk nursery at Lutheran General Hospital in Chicago. "At 6 a.m., when I headed for the hospital, a plow had come by and the entrance was closed with snow. I would like to see something invented that could be placed in front of the driveway... that would deflect the snow away from the entrance when the plow comes by."

David Gutman of Philadelphia, an inventor himself, proposed a device that could be attached easily to any car and used to remove snow. Gutman also said: "We don't have an inventors' club where we can get together and discuss our inventions."

The automatic floor-mopper is the wish of Kathryn Faulk of Oklahoma City. Why? "Because I hate mopping floors. I hate it. I hate it."

Keith Gibson of Oklahoma City is looking for something to make fishing more fun. "I want an automatic fishing rod that tells me when the fish is hooked — not just when he is on the line, but when he's on the hook and ready to be reeled in. I'd also like for it to differentiate between fish and foreign objects so I wouldn't get all excited when it just snags on something."

Energy seems to be on the minds of many. Gerald Elliott, retired chief editorial writer for the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press, complained: "We're draining energy off like crazy, doing things we used to do by hand. What I'd like to see is some sort of invention that will turn off nonessential uses of power."

Another Grand Rapids man, patent attorney John E. McCary, voted for "some modes of more efficient individual transportation." And Fred Thomas of Omaha suggested: "Cars that don't need gasoline and something to make solar installations cheaper."

Gerald Miller, the budget director of Michigan, wants the machine to eliminate greed. "That is the first thing that came to my mind," he said. "The world would be a better place if everyone would think of the common good rather than their own good."

In a similar vein, Gov. Richard W. Riley of South Carolina said the one thing he'd like to see is "peace on earth."

BATTER UP! — It will take pounds and pounds of pancake batter to feed the thousands expected at Saturday's 27th annual Lions Pancake Festival, but these Lions are prepared for the challenge. Lions Stage Pancake Festival

By enjoying a pancake and sausage meal Saturday thousands of Lubbock residents will be providing children with eyeglasses, meals for the elderly and other benefits to charities funded by the Lubbock Lions Club.

The 27th annual pancake festival will offer a menu of all-you-can-eat pancakes, sausage, coffee, milk and orange juice, all for $1.50. And the serving line will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Proceeds from the annual event go to numerous Lions interests including the Texas Boys Ranch in Lubbock, Gristown, U.S.A. in Whiteface, the Lions Crippled Children Camp in Kerrville, the Meals on Wheels program in Lubbock, youth baseball and football programs and the Lions eyeglasses and eye care program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has provided Cuba its first submarine and two new high-speed torpedo boats in moves strengthening Fidel Castro's small navy, it was learned Saturday.

The Defense Department confirmed reports that a diesel-powered attack submarine, designated by the United States in the "Foxtrot" class, was delivered to Cuba last Wednesday and that two Turya class hydrofoil patrol craft arrived Friday.

The 2,100-ton "Foxtrot" submarine, which could be about 20 years old, represents no serious threat to U.S. interests, according to defense analysts. They do say, however, that it serves to promote the Cuban navy to a stature which more closely approximates that of other Latin American navies.

U.S. analysts are uncertain whether the Russians mean this submarine, designed to fire conventional torpedoes, to be the first of a squadron to be supplied to Cuba over a period of time.

Defense officials said they expect the Russians to provide naval specialists to train Cuban sailors in manning the submarine, which normally is operated by a crew of 70 officers and enlisted men.

While this is the first Soviet submarine provided to Cuba, the Russians previously sold "Foxtrot" class boats to Libya and India.

The United States years ago switched to nuclear propulsion in its new submarines and has only a few diesel-powered craft remaining in its fleet. The Russian submarine force still is a mixture of nuclear and diesel boats, about 60 of them in the "Foxtrot" class.

The two Turya torpedo boats are the first of their class ever exported by the Soviet Union, the Defense Department said. Displacing about 250 tons each, the diesel-powered boats are armed with guns as well as torpedoes. They can make an estimated 40 knots when riding on their still-like foils.

Unlike the "Foxtrot" submarine, the Turya class is relatively new. It was introduced into the Soviet fleet only about six years ago. Russia previously gave Cuba a variety of small naval fighting craft, including about 25 boats armed with the short range Styx missile.

Russia gradually has been increasing Cuban military armament, especially since Cuba committed thousands of its troops in Africa several years ago.

A considerable furor was created late last year with disclosure that the Russians sent as many as 20 of their advanced MiG-23 warplanes to Cuba. The question arose as to whether these MiGs were equipped to carry nuclear weapons, which would be in violation of a U.S. Soviet understanding reached in 1962 after the Cuban missile crisis.

President Carter said in early December the United States was assured by the Soviet Union that it had not violated the 1962 agreement.

The Pentagon said the "Foxtrot" submarine was spotted by a U.S. Navy patrol aircraft while being towed across the Atlantic by a Soviet ocean-going tug. Other observation planes tracked the submarine into the port of Cienfuegos and saw the Turya patrol craft carried on a deck of a Soviet merchant ship to Havana and the port of Mariel.

Second Murder Trial Set For Lone Prison Break Survivor

HOUSTON (AP)—Ignacio Cuevas, the lone convict survivor of the 1974 Texas prison escape shootout that left four persons dead, goes back into a state district courtroom in Houston Monday to be tried for the second time on charges of murdering a hostage.

Judge Miron A. Love will preside as he did in the spring months of 1975 when a jury convicted Cuevas and sentenced him to death.

Defense attorney Will Gray once again will represent Cuevas, who was on death row for almost four years.

The chief prosecutor in that first trial District Attorney Jerry Sandal will be missing.

Since that time, the area served by Sandal has been divided with Walker County having its own district attorney.

The chief prosecutor will be Mark Ward, assisted by Harris County Assistant District Attorney Bert Graham, who also helped during the 1975 trial.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the conviction of Cuevas in a ruling issued Dec. 20, 1978.

The appeals court cited the trial judge's refusal to grant a defense challenge to a prospective juror who had indicated he would vote for the death penalty in any case where the accused was convicted of capital murder.

The jury found Cuevas guilty of causing the death Mrs. Julia Standley, a prison librarian and one of two hostages killed in the blast of gunfire as the prisoners attempted to escape behind a movable shield of lawbooks, chalk boards and tape.

Judge Love had considered permitting the retrial to be televised.

But, he said Friday that televising the proceedings would violate the code of judicial conduct. The judge said he was disappointed that he could not televise the trial because "I am personally in favor of unencumbered First Amendment rights."

Both the prosecution and the defense approved Love's preliminary plans to allow the trial to be televised.

Love predicted it would take perhaps five weeks to select a jury. Graham said he expected the job to take three to four weeks.

Davis Plans To Testify At Damage Suit Trial

FORT WORTH (AP)—A lawyer for Cullen Davis said the millionaire plans for the first time to detail his activities on the night of the August 1976 shooting spree at his $6 million Fort Worth mansion.

Houston lawyer Donn Fullenweider said Davis will answer, under oath, questions from attorneys representing Gus Gavrel Jr., who was paralyzed in the shooting. Gavrel has filed a $13 million damage suit against Davis.

Davis's stepdaughter, 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn, and Stan Farr, the live-in lover of Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, were shot to death at the mansion. Mrs. Davis also was wounded.

The Fort Worth industrialist was acquitted in Amarillo—in the state's longest and costliest murder trial ever—of slaying his stepdaughter. However, Davis still faces charges in connection with the three other shootings.

Fullenweider said Davis has "always wanted to give his version" of what happened that night, but previously has not on the advice of his attorneys.

Davis is expected to answer the questions after completion of his divorce trial, which is scheduled to begin Feb. 20.

Retired District Judge John M. Barron of Bryan, who will preside over the bitter, 4-year-old, high-stakes divorce case, estimated Friday the proceeding could last two to four weeks.

However, Davis has been ordered by State District Judge Charles Murray to answer the questions of Gavrel's lawyers by April 1.

Davis is expected to answer the questions in a private session attended by attorneys for Gavrel and a court reporter to transcribe the testimony. Davis' lawyers, Fullenweider and Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, also will be present.

Scouts Honor South Plains Adult Leaders

The 107 Scoutmasters of the South Plains Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be honored for their outstanding leadership as the council marks the introduction of the ninth edition of the Official Boy Scout Handbook.

Bobby J. Moody, council president, said that each scoutmaster will receive a copy of the new book, which was released in conjunction with scouting's 69th anniversary, at a meeting in their honor, to be held at First Presbyterian Church, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The meeting will be highlighted by a brief review of the contents of this edition of the Boy Scout Handbook. Several changes have occurred since its last printing, and these changes will be discussed and plans made for implementing them.

The scoutmaster then will give leadership to their troops in preparing for the council's "see n' do," to be held April 27-28 at Maxey Park, which will use the new handbook as the basis for troop demonstrations of scouting's outdoor skills.

The new handbook, 576 pages of reference material for scouts, outdoorsmen, camping families, hunters, hikers, and others, was written by William "Green Bar Bill" Hillcourt, well-known scouting author, as a one-year voluntary contribution to the Boy Scouts of America.

The new official Boy Scout Handbook is now available at the South Plains Council Service Center, No. 30 Briercroft Office Park, Lubbock, 79412, and at official scouting distributors.

Billy Carter Cancels Interview

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Billy Carter canceled his scheduled weekend appearance on the news interview program "Face the Nation," but gave no reason, CBS said Saturday.

The program was scheduled for broadcast today.

Joan Barone, associate producer of the program, said she received a call from Carter's attorney, John Parks, who told her Carter would not be on the program. Miss Barone said Parks "told me he could not give a reason why Billy was not coming on."

"This has never happened to 'Face the Nation' before and we are shocked and amazed," she said.

She said Becky Hendricks, deputy to White House media adviser Gerald Rasmussen telephoned her Friday and said "Jerry was disappointed and quite upset and would like to talk to you" about the president's brother appearing on the program.

But she said Rasmussen's office denied it had anything to do with the cancellation of the program.

Sen. Henry J. Jackson, D-Wash., will replace Carter on the program.

Carter has appeared on several programs recently, including ABC's "Good Morning America" with his visiting friend, Ahmed Shahawi of Libya.

fast break with :38 seconds showing to preserve the win.

It really shouldn't have been that exciting. The Chaps had buried Texas Wesleyan by as much as 10 in the last seven minutes of the second half. But a 3 1/2 minute dry spell quickly whittled that lead until finally, on a corner shot by former Texas Tech player Bob Rudolph, the Rams earned a 70-70 tie with 4:02 showing.

Brian Fortner came through, as he did all night, with a baseline bucket and then Bruce Carver hit from the side to open the lead back to four with 2:51 to play. Rudolph hit again, cutting the lead to 74-72, but the last-minute heroics cancelled any comeback attempt Texas Wesleyan night have had in mind.

Five players broke double figures for the Chaps, led by Keith Gardner, playing with a sore shoulder, and Fortner's 16. Fortner also grabbed 14 rebounds. Kevin Wharton chipped in another 13 points and 11 boards and guards Bill McGee and Carver scored 12 and 10 apiece.

Leading all scorers was former Friona High star Dale Cleveland. The 6-5, 220-pounder hit 12 of 21 field goal attempts and grabbed 10 rebounds in scoring 26 points. "I thought we played real well in spots," said LCC coach Larry Hays. "We really got moving, got the running game going. Then they got smart. They let the air out of the ball and only shot when they had the ball inside."

The Chaps had jumped out to a 10-2 lead at the beginning of the game. Actually, it could have been a lot bigger but for some careless turnovers. Texas Wesleyan seemed committed to poking 25-30 footers all night. The shots weren't falling, especially early, the Rams connected on only one field goal in the first 1 1/2 minutes of the game. But, as they did all night, LCC couldn't deliver the knockout punch. TWC came back with a run of eight straight points to tie the game at 14 with 11:39 to play, the first of several returns from the dead. LCC coach Hays pointed out sub guard Marshall Smith as one of the keys to the Chaps win. "There were three points when Smith came off the bench and got us going," he said.

"I also felt like that basket by McGee when they had cut it to four was big too," Fortner made two real key baskets inside when they had gotten the momentum going their way and Steensma and Russell Boston really helped us out there at times too. The Chaps next game is against Texas Conference foe Wayland Baptist in Plainview Tuesday night at 8 p.m.

Petty Eats Dust In Qualifying

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "Yesterday I went out and ran 190 mph, and I was about 3-4 mph too slow. Today I went out and ran 193 and I was still 3-4 mph too slow," complained troubled Richard Petty on the eve of pole position qualifying for the Feb. 18 Daytona 500 stock car classic.

The reason for the problem was Cale Yarborough. The three-time national champion went out in practice Saturday afternoon and unofficially broke his own Daytona International Speedway track record of 194.015 mph, with an effort of 194.868 mph.

"And we're not running worth a darn," Yarborough claimed.

To add more misery to those like Petty, Yarborough predicted, "It's going to take 195 to sit on the pole."

Two-time Daytona 500 pole winner Donnie Allison, who hit 194.780 mph in the same practice session, said the pole speed this time might even be faster.

"I feel like it'll be around 195-196 mph. There are several cars here that are running that good and have a good chance," Allison said.

Among them are Buddy Baker at 193.844 mph, Darrell Waltrip at 193.503 mph, and A. J. Foyt who was not registered on the day's practice times report. Foyt is perennially strong in Daytona qualifying.

"We're running about six mph faster than we did the last time we were here," said David Pearson, speaking for most of the other drivers. "We're sure not as fast as Baker and them. They're running about 195-196 and we're only running about 191."

Most of the increase in speed is accounted for by the winter repaving of the once-bumpy speedway. Progress in engine development produced the rest.

Waltrip predicted Baker or Allison would win the pole for stock car racing's most prestigious event.

U.S., Cuba Tangle

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — An American boxing team will fight a Cuban squad here today 90 miles from the United States mainland, but the picture that will reach U.S. television viewers will travel 93,000 miles.

Ned Steckel, producing the match for ABC, said if there was any other way to get the picture to the United States, he'd jump at taking it. But there isn't.

Mike Farrell, ABC communications chief, said the picture will be beamed 23,000 miles up to the Molnya, a Russian satellite, and from there 23,000 miles down to Prague, Czechoslovakia.

From there it will travel by land lines to Raisting, Germany, then up to a U.S. satellite and back down to the United States.

This journey will delay the picture being seen in the United States by one-half second.

Farrell and Steckel both were involved in the U.S.-Cuban match here last year. Steckel also was involved in the filming of a 1971 volleyball match between the United States and Cuba, the first American sports team let into Cuba since Fidel Castro took over in 1959. He has also been involved in the filming of the 1973 weightlifting championships here and then in the taping and sending of the 1974 world boxing championships, an event in which "the Russians wanted to cooperate because they were interested."

Miller Inks Extension On Pact

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos Head Coach Red Miller has signed a two-year extension of his contract with National Football League club, General Manager Fred Gehrke announced Saturday.

In two years of regular-season play under Miller, the Broncos have a combined 22-8 record — a 73.3 winning percentage. During Miller's tenure, the Broncos have not lost two straight regular-season games.

Miller said he was "more than overjoyed" about the extension, adding that "at this point in my career stability is also an important factor."

Tech Fems Defeat ORU

In its last home game of the year, Tech's women's basketball team broke Oral Roberts University's nine-game winning streak with a 65-55 victory.

The win makes Tech 10-15 on the year while ORU drops to 19-9.

Rosemary Scott and Lynn Webb led the Tech attack with 14 points each. Liz Havens also reached double figures for the Red Raiders with 11 points.

Sharon Tucker paced the ORU scoring with 15 points. She was followed by teammates Cyndy Brady and Pam Mindemann with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Turnovers proved to be a critical factor in the game. ORU lost possession 26 times compared to only 10 for Tech. Tech's Louise Davis was instrumental in this area with 12 steals.

Tech trailed by as much as 10 points with seven minutes remaining in the first half. The Red Raiders took the lead for good with 10:30 left in the second half at 43-42.

ORU shot 53.8 percent from the field in the first half and hit all five of its free throws. Tech struggled with a 32.2 shooting percentage in the first half. But the Red Raiders came back to convert 18-31 from the field in the second half as ORU slumped to 8-22.

Tech will play West Texas State in Canyon Tuesday night.

Colorado Urged To Fight For Fairbanks

BOSTON (UPI) — A lawyer for the University of Colorado urged the school Saturday to take its fight to secure New England Patriots Coach Chuck Fairbanks to the Supreme Court.

The U.S. Appeals Court Friday upheld an injunction issued last month by U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone prohibiting the university from hiring Fairbanks as its head football coach.

The ruling, university attorney Earle Cooley said Saturday, "means if we want relief from this injunction, I'm going to have to go to the Supreme Court of the United States to get it."

University officials are considering his recommendation of appeal to the high court, Cooley said, and a decision would be made on Monday.

In a searing opinion that blasted Fairbanks for signing his NFL contract with "crossed fingers," the three-judge appeals court panel rejected Fairbanks' argument that walking out on contracts was common practice in professional football.

"A contract is not avoided by crossed fingers behind one's back on signing," Judge Bailey Aldrich wrote in the unanimous opinion.

"Eually we are not taken by Fairbanks' claim that because when he told (Patriots' owner William) Sullivan that he was leaving at the end of the season and Sullivan responded that he was suspended, it was Sullivan who broke the contract," Aldrich said. "The Patriots had the right not to accept the services of an unfaithful servant."

Sullivan said Saturday the appeals panel had upheld what he called "a sound decision initially."

"We felt the original decision was not easily arrived at. Judge Mazzone held a full day of hearings and spent the week-end reviewing the case before issuing the injunction," Sullivan said.

Fairbanks admitted in testimony during those proceedings that he had done recruiting work for Colorado while preparing his AFC team for a playoff game.

He has since told the Patriots he is "through with professional football" and, no matter what the courts decide, he will not return to Schaefer Stadium to coach the Pats. Four years remain on his NFL contract.

The court was unimpressed with Fairbanks' resignation, g' there is no such finding in the record and even though that may now be the conventional wis-

Lopez Worried By Arm Injury

SADDLE BROOK, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Lopez is a little worried these days.

It has nothing to do with the challenge of duplicating her marvelous accomplishments as a rookie on the LPGA tour last summer.

NANCY LOPEZ

Lopez is suffering from a severe pain in her right arm, a constant source of discomfort not only as a golfer but in her everyday life.

"One of the doctors said it was just a strained muscle, I don't believe that anymore," she said Friday at a luncheon honoring her as the defending champion of a $100,000 event to be played May 18-20 at the Upper Montclair Country Club.

"I don't believe it because my left arm hurts now, too," she added. "In the morning it's very stiff and hurts all day long. It hurts when I swing the club."

Lopez's victory in the tournament in New Jersey last year was the second in her incredible five-tournament winning streak.

Despite her concern over her painful arm, Lopez looks forward to competing on the tour again this season.

Nancy said she loves the camaraderie of the women's golf tour, adding that some of her best friends are her competitors. But her competitors never are her friends.

"Donna Young and I are pretty good friends away from the golf course," she said. "But on the course, we're after each other."

"I notice a difference in how people treat me from when I first came on the tour," she said. "Everyone really wants to win so bad."

"After I won those five straight, I think the others tried harder. I would feel the same way. If one person was winning and I was coming in second to her five weeks in a row, I'd want to beat her pretty bad," she added. "But we're all good friends. I don't think there's anybody that doesn't like me on the tour."

The desire to compete is what impresses her husband of one month.

"Nancy is not afraid to put herself in a position to lose," said Tim Melton.

Carroll Invited To Brewer Camp

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran relief pitcher Clay Carroll has been invited to the Milwaukee Brewers' spring training camp as a non-roster player.

Carroll, 37, began his major league career with the Milwaukee Braves.

The court was unimpressed with Fairbanks' resignation, g' there is no such finding in the record and even though that may now be the conventional wisdom, neither the Patriots nor the court are bound to accept it," Aldrich wrote. "At this stage, Fairbanks could be expected to say no less."

The Patriots plan no action against their disgruntled coach in light of the appeals court ruling, Sullivan said Saturday. "There is still the case filed in Colorado that's been turned over to (NFL Commissioner) Pete Rozelle," he said. "Until that is settled we have to tread water."

ND Cager Prepared For Irish

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Kelly Tripucka, raised with the Fighting Irish fight song blaring through his house, prepared early for his role as an aggressive, body-banging forward on Notre Dame's top-ranked basketball squad.

"I've got four older brothers and we often played basketball against each other," the 6-foot-7, 215-pound sophomore said recently. "They didn't treat me like a little brother out there, either."

Tripucka, Notre Dame's leading scorer and rebounder this season who set two school records earlier this month, is one of six sons of Frank Tripucka, a former Irish quarterback.

Two sons, Tracy and Todd, went on to become the No. 1 and No. 2 career scorers for Lafayette. Another brother played college football at Massachusetts and a fourth brother is a member of the Fordham University team. The fifth still is at home in Essex Fells, N.J., earning athletic honors like his brothers.

"Dad filled the house with mementos of Notre Dame and the school song was a part of our regular routine, but he never pressured any of us to come here," Tripucka said. "We all, of course, knew he'd love to have a son play for Notre Dame, but the decision was up to us."

The athletic ability of the family is extensive. In high school, Kelly was an all-star in soccer at Bloomfield High School in New Jersey. He averaged 36 points as a senior and also set school records in the high jump and javelin.

Recently Tripucka scored a career-high 37 points and set school records for free throws made and attempted with a 23-of-26 performance in an 86-71 victory over Dayton.

"He was just dynamite," Irish Coach Digger Phelps said after that performance. "Inside, once he gets going, he's unstoppable. If they foul him, he's going to the line and make 23 of 26. He'll get it done there."

Rare Otterhound Takes Prize

THE PAW THAT REFRESHES — Ollie, an old English Sheepdog rests his paw on one-year-old Nigel Hill during the second day of the Crufts Dog Show in London Saturday. The show features more than 8,000 dogs, and is in its 83rd year. (AP Laserphoto)

LONDON (AP) — A big, affable and, frankly, rather rumped otterhound named Kendal Nimrod has been stealing the show from 8,000 coiffed and cosseted competitors at Crufts, the high society of dog shows.

Nimrod is one of only about 100 of his kind in the world, and by single-pawedly making his ancient breed's debut in the big-time show ring he might just be saving it from extinction.

"Hunting otters has been forbidden because they're an endangered species, but the same goes for otterhounds," said Nimrod's owner, Pam Marston.

"There are only about four people who own otterhounds, but we think that if they can succeed as show dogs they may come back."

Nimrod, a 3-year-old canine haystack, didn't look like a dog who was worried about survival.

He had just come from making monkeys out of a lot of snooty purebreds Friday by winning first place in three events, including best male dog in the "Any Other Varieties, Hunting" category, plus a second place called "Reserve Best of Hound."

His rarity, raffishness and willingness to give a stranger a kiss had attracted a big following.

"He's been terribly pleased to meet everybody," said Miss Marston. "I think he's going to be a very good ambassador for the breed."

What makes a good otterhound, she was asked.

"Great substance," she replied, "and a very strong jaw."

Nimrod stood for only one of 143 breeds at the 83rd annual Crufts, sponsored by the Kennel Club of Britain. The two-day show ended Saturday night.

Every dog here has won at least one significant first prize, and a Crufts victory does wonders for a pooch's value as a breeder. Being named Supreme Champion means doggy divinity. No wonder they pose in the ring with noses in the air.

There were 26 different breeds of hound alone, raising the wool in the echoing show hall amid dozens of stalls promoting puppy food, leashes, fur driers, crunchy treats and even dog's life insurance. More than 1,000 toy dogs entered Saturday's competition, and 1,800 working dogs.

Where else on Earth could you find nearly 100 border terriers, scrappy little beasts that resemble a cross between a beaver and a bobcat?

"She's little, but she's sporty," said Sue Hartnell, fondly surveying her 2-year-old border terrier Luckington Diamond. She had to confess, "their reputation is horrid with cats."

Most heavily represented breed at Crufts this year is Afghan hounds, 200 of them sauntering around in hairdos that looked like blonde wigs pinched from Miss Piggy.

"Afghan owners tend to be enthusiasts, and they like to show off their dogs," said Dr. Jim Huckbody, chairman of the Midland Afghan Hound Club, explaining the big turnout. He was manning a table selling Afghan hound T-shirts and copies of the club's monthly magazine.

"They're good-looking, they're affectionate, and they have a mind of their own," he added. "Most people, if they have any, keep at least four."

Ford's Daughter Marries Agent

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Susan Ford, daughter of former President Gerald Ford, exchanged marriage vows Saturday with Charles Vance, a Secret Service agent she fell in love with when he guarded the Ford family.

In a "traditional family wedding," Miss Ford, 21, was wed to Vance, 37, as about 300 invited guests looked on in St. Margaret's Episcopal Church in nearby Palm Desert.

The couple was to attend a private reception at the Fords' house in this opulent desert resort community, then leave for a honeymoon at an undisclosed location.

Miss Ford wore a full bridal gown with a cathedral train; Vance stood next to his bride in a cutaway with high collar and striped gray tie.

A family spokeswoman, Gloria Hill, said most of the wedding guests were family and friends rather than politicians or celebrities.

Rituals Researched

SEATTLE (UPI) — St. Valentine or Don Juan probably could have learned a thing or two from David Givens.

Givens spent a good part of the last three years scrutinizing the getting-to-know-you rituals of males and females in student dining rooms at the University of Washington.

Givens is not a spy, nor a voyeur. He's not even a romantic. He's an anthropologist and he kept a close watch on coquetry in the interest of science — and a doctor's degree.

What he learned about love among the coffee caps and salt shakers is as old as Adam and Eve. And it is not likely to change despite women's lib or any macho renaissance.

Givens, who chronicled his findings in an article published in the Psychiatric Journal, said flirtation, seduction and courtship fall into patterns regardless of how magical it may seem to the participants. In fact, he said, the processes are so invariable they can be categorized.

A cafeteria conquest usually starts with a girl sitting alone. The male enters and sits at the farthest corner of the same table, and the attention phase commences.

The male turns so the front of his body faces the woman, but not his head. He looks at the table, then off to the side. Before long his gaze begins to sweep across her gaze.

If the glance is returned, both begin tossing their heads and smiling as they adjust the muscle tone of their bodies. Stomach is sucked in, posture improves and the chest is expanded. Both begin stretching and they casually groom themselves, hands touching clothing, face and hair.

If all is going smoothly, the recognition phase begins. The two look at each other and then down, in unison. They smile at the same time. They toss their heads and tension builds.

This once was called "love at first sight," Givens said. Then both move into submissive postures. Shoulders come up and forward, heads tilt to the side, feet go into a pigeon-toed stance and they clasp themselves.

According to Givens, this body language was designed by nature to show that a person is harmless, regardless of intentions.

If at this point and neither has cut off the process by going blank or refusing to return glances, the two now enter into the introduction phase. They talk to each other. What they talk about doesn't matter, Givens said, because the nonverbal language continues. Voices become pitched higher than normal and softer.

The two still glance up and down at each other in unison and hand motions are rotations of the palms, not the more aggressive pointing motions. As they talk, tension continues to build. They stretch. They yawn. They laugh loudly. But each time they laugh they look away. Their body motions are in "close harmony, like they are dancing the same rhythm," Givens said.

From there on nature, whatever it has in mind, takes its course.

There's only one problem with this courtship ritual, Givens said. As soon as it works it is discarded and that, he said, often is what's wrong with marriages.

"Romance goes out the window. You can tell established couples because there is none of that interaction going on. It is very boring to watch."

As for himself, Givens said he is so self-conscious about his signals he sometimes is immobilized in dealing with women.

By the way, Givens is 34 and single.

Playboy Still Seeks Ivy League Girls

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Playboy Magazine's advertisement seeking Ivy League Girls to pose in something less than a fig leaf is scheduled to appear next week in the Daily Princetonian, says the chairman of the student-run newspaper.

The controversial advertisement was rejected in December by the Harvard Crimson as demeaning to women.

A HELPING HAND — John Paul Ranger looks trustingly at Big Brother Richard Wojdyla, as he gets a bike-riding lesson on a vehicle which seems a bit too large for him. The companionship, support, advice and friendship provided by such a relationship to a motherless or fatherless child is the goal of the Big Brother/Big Sister Program in Lubbock.

LITTLE SISTER — Len Barbee and Sandra Palmer enjoy a friendly talk. Such friendships are the goal of the Big Brother/Big Sister Program, a nationally-affiliated organization to provide personal support to youngsters who lack a parental figure in their lives. The friendships formed are beneficial to both the youngsters and the volunteers, caseworkers say.

SETTING A DATE — Jim Douglass, director of the Big Brother/Big Sister Program in Lubbock, discusses plans for the week-long observance of the program with Petra Benavides, a caseworker with the program, and Christy Waters, secretary. Mayor Dirk West has proclaimed February 18-24 Big Brother/Big Sister Week in Lubbock.

Big Brother, Big Sister Program Provides Friendship, Support

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Being a friend to a child who needs a friend is the objective of the more than 150 Big Brothers and Big Sisters in the Lubbock area.

The week of Feb. 18-24 has been designated "Big Brother/Big Sister Week" in Lubbock by Mayor Dirk West, and will focus community attention on the special needs of single-parent children and the goals of the Big Brother/Big Sister program.

According to Jim Douglass, executive director of the Lubbock agency, the concept involves matching adult volunteers, on a one-to-one basis, with single-parent children ranging in age from six to sixteen. This matching process is based on mutual interests and compatibility, so that both parties will get the most out of the relationship.

Through a series of application forms, interviews and reference checks, each volunteer is carefully screened concerning his maturity, stability and ability to work well with children. According to Douglass, there is a special need for Big Brother volunteers in Lubbock at the present time.

Nationally, Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America is over 70 years old, with over 360 agencies across the United States. The Lubbock agency was started in 1970 as a part-time project of the Caprock American Business Club. In May of 1974, Big Brothers/Big Sisters became a full-time agency with the hiring of Douglass as executive director. In November of 1975, funding of the agency was taken over by the United Way of Lubbock.

"Since our beginning we have served over 1000 single-parent children," said Douglass. "The best thing about our program is that our volunteer Big Brother or Big Sister gets as much, or more, out of the relationship as the child."

Anyone interested in finding out more about the program, or serving as a big brother or big sister, may call the local agency office at 763-5618.

CHECKING THE DATES — Board members plan observance of "Big Brothers/Big Sisters Week" which has been set for February 18-24 in Lubbock. Left to right they are Ben Handley, president, Gus Jones, vice president, Mackie Bobo, secretary. The week-long observance will focus on the support and friendship possible to fatherless or motherless children.

MATCHMAKERS — Caseworkers for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program, who work to match one-parent children with older men and women to provide companionship, advice and support, are, from left, Jamie Nesbitt, James Morris, and Cindy McCoy. Both children and adults benefit from the volunteer program, for children from six to sixteen.

Valentine Party Introduces New Lubbock Recreational Group

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Family News Staff

Cupid will shoot his arrows at hapless victims while a tattoo artist emblazons guests at a Valentine's party to be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Maxey Community Center, 30th St. and Oxford Ave. Several games of chance will be conducted as participants consume such drinks as "Purple Passion," "Orange Orgy" and "Crimson Cavalier."

This party, hosted by the Lubbock Parks & Recreation Dept., is the first meeting of a new recreational group designed for all physically handicapped adolescents and adults in the Lubbock area. The Muscular Dystrophy Association, the Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Easter Seal Society, in conjunction with the Lubbock Parks & Recreation Dept., have put together an initial group by contacting their clients who may be interested. Several local occupational therapists and MDA volunteers have donated their time to assist with group activities.

The program is open to all physically disabled individuals over age 12 regardless of their affiliation with any of the above groups.

Maxey Community Center director, Maxine Mull, and MDA program coordinator, Sandra Brevell, initiated the program. Both women hope that this pilot program will become a permanent part of Maxey Community Center activities. Intended to be a social club governed by its members, the group meets the second and fourth Monday of each month.

Maxey was chosen as the location for the group meetings because of its easy accessibility for the handicapped. The oldest community center in Lubbock, the wide doorways and halls and large rooms of Maxey present little difficulty for those in wheelchairs. The few aspects of the center which are not accessible are presently being changed in preparation for use by the handicapped.

The first meeting is intended to acquaint everyone and present the services of the center. Immediate future plans for the group are tournaments, arts and crafts, dances, dinners and open recreation. Mrs. Mull suggests all potential members spend the first two weeks becoming familiar with the equipment available at the center.

She also hopes to receive input from members as to their interests and preferred activities. Field trips are planned to such places as the Country Squire dinner theater, movies and to area lakes on very nice days.

The greatest difficulty for many handicapped persons will be transportation. Volunteers are necessary in many cases to aid in helping a handicapped person who has no transportation attend club meetings.

There are many reasons behind the interest in starting a recreational program for the physically handicapped. Mrs. Brevell said there is a strong need in Lubbock for such a program because of the number of physically handicapped people here. She explained that often when a physically disabled person leaves the rehabilitation center at St. Mary's of the Plains Hospital, there is no follow-up program, and all contact with that person is lost.

A number of those people become "mainstreamed" back into society, and refuse to permit their disability to hinder them in pursuing any activity they wish. Others may not remain active socially, or the lack of special devices may hinder them. According to Mrs. Brevell, many handicapped persons who were handicapped before the invention of much of the new equipment, may be "trapped in a very narrow world. We want to help them get out of that."

Family members are encouraged to attend meetings with the disabled person, sharing problems and solutions with other families. Mrs. Mull wants these persons to feel welcome in the center, and to take advantage of the same facilities that other community members do.

Mrs. Brevell says a lot of the MD patients she works with do not go anywhere. Being isolated may make them feel alone. She claims the community needs to be involved with them as much as they need contact with other people, handicapped or otherwise.

Recreational activities planned by the group are simply enjoyable fun. Much of what the group does depends upon the people who become involved. The club can be as much an educational tool as pleasure. The "little tricks" one person has discovered could benefit another and vice versa.

Mrs. Mull explains several things could be going on at the same time at club meetings, such as a football game with popcorn in one room, billiards in another and a party in a separate room. Long range plans, if interest warrants a permanent group, are swimming in the summer and the possibility of setting up a children's group.

Services and volunteers to help with the group are welcomed. Volunteers or those interested in joining the group are asked to call Mrs. Maxine Mull at Maxey Community Center.

'History Buff' Shares Western Art Collection

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

"I love history — particularly American history. This IS our heritage," said Miriam Hogan, whose collection of Western art and Indian artifacts is on display this month at The West Texas Museum.

"When our family moved from Arkansas to Oklahoma, our children had to take the course in Oklahoma history, so I just picked up their book and read it, too," she said. "Also, as I grew up, I went to the picture shows and especially enjoyed all the cowboy pictures," she added.

Mrs. Hogan lives in Ardmore, Okla., where she and her husband, Charles, own and operate the Big Chief Roofing Company. Collecting art started out as a hobby for the couple about five years ago. They decorated offices of their company with the paintings.

Besides the works displayed in their own company and home, the Hogans also have loaned art to the Ardmore Mental Health Clinic. "I had to borrow back some items to send here for this exhibit," she explained. The Goddard Art Center of Ardmore also has one gallery designated for Western art and some of the Hogan collection hangs there.

While the Hogans don't have any specific goals for their collection, they have come to collect Indian art and artifacts as well as the Western art with which they began their enterprise. "The artists themselves collect the artifacts to use in making their works authentic and some are offered for sale at the various shows," she said.

"We decided to collect works of contemporary artists and not the 'old masters' of Western art. We thought they would grow in value and we were fascinated by being able to meet some of the artists. Meeting them adds interest to their works. They are like heroes. We probably have bought more works of some artists just because we knew them as persons as well as through their art."

While applauding the popularity of Western art in recent years, Mrs. Hogan thinks Indian art merits attention, too. "They put so much of themselves — their culture, their religion, and their everyday life — in their art and we surely don't want to lose touch with that part of our heritage and we will if we don't promote Indian art," she said.

The Hogans enjoy going to the various art shows and sales. They have attended shows all across the Southwest and have gone to Chicago for sales, too.

Mrs. Hogan said she and her husband do not always agree on a particular purchase. "Sometimes, later we like what the other has bought and sometimes we just don't," she admits. Her interest is more the Western art and his is the art-facts. Mrs. Hogan will be the speaker for the noon luncheon meeting of the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association Feb. 19 at the Lubbock Women's Club.

Be Beautiful

By Jessie Lee Sharpley
A customer of Jessie Lee's Hair Design Institute is a special person. She understands a different pricing system for services from most salons. She has time and patience for the students to make suggestions of products and services which must be approved by the instructor. If you have not visited Jessie Lee's as a customer of a student, we would like to explain a few of the special differences, and the reason, of course, is for better service for you, which in turn means better training for the student.

Students are studying the products which are best for the hair in each situation; therefore, we highly recommend that you ask the student to make suggestions for your hair. We need to know the efficiency of the student's recommendations, and our instructors consult with the students to determine the validity of their suggestions.

Do not hesitate to discuss price when each product is recommended. Then, with each product itemized and priced separately, you know exactly what you are getting and paying for with each service.

We encourage you to visit the school when you have plenty of time for the service as students must take the time to have all work checked by an instructor. This precaution assures you of getting a good haircut, a becoming finish to your style, and the highest quality perms and color.

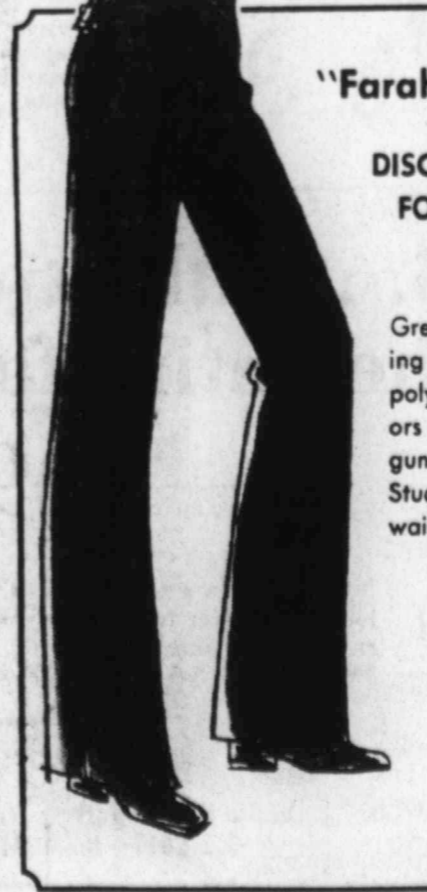

Call us at 792-6311 because you won't find any other school quite as professional in their training level services. We'd love to be of service

Special Tools Aid Handicapped

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Family News Staff

South Plains Mall was the site of a recent exhibit featuring a variety of "labor-saving" devices — special equipment for the physically handicapped.

Sponsored by the Muscular Dystrophy Association, AMCO Medical Service, MediQuip and Occupational Therapists of Lubbock, the exhibit offered for public view equipment designed to aid the handicapped in activities of daily living, including self-care, communication, recreational, homemaking and vocational skills.

According to information provided by the group, the "basic goal of assistive devices and adaptive equipment is to extend the ability of the physically limited person to help himself and to reduce his dependence upon others. These devices allow the physically limited person to use what physical ability he has to gain control over more aspects of his daily life and to interact more effectively with his environment."

Muscular dystrophy is one of the primary concerns of those who presented the exhibit. This disease emphasizes the need for adaptive devices most graphically of all crippling diseases.

MD is a designation that describes a group of progressively degenerating diseases which attack the voluntary muscles. Walking becomes impossible; even sitting upright may be difficult with the loss of the use of stomach and chest muscles. Not only a wheelchair, but perhaps even a strap attached to it may be needed to support the MD patient's body.

It is interesting to note that 44.1 percent of the funds raised in 1978 by the Muscular Dystrophy Association were spent on patient services which included occupational therapy services and the purchase of special equipment for MDA clients. As the graph below shows, 81 percent of all money raised goes directly to the people who need those services provided.

MDA currently supports 10 major university-based neuromuscular disease research/clinical centers and over 400 individual research projects in the U.S. and abroad. While researchers look for cures, the association offers a nationwide program of medical services to help patients and their families meet the problems imposed by chronic, progressive muscle diseases.

Some of the devices shown by the group were "reachers" to pick up things from a wheelchair, special dishes and eating utensils, grab bars for various rooms, braces, wheelchairs, lap trays, tools for crafts and writing implements. Some were "amazing little gadgets" to many casual bystanders. Probably the important thing about such devices is that they enable a physically handicapped person to utilize what physical abilities he possesses in order to function as independently as possible.

Social Groups Plan Marathon

Two Texas Tech University organizations, Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, are sponsoring a Dance-A-Thon for Muscular Dystrophy from 3 p.m. Feb. 16 to 5 p.m. Feb. 17 at Eight-Second Ride.

According to Sandi Brow, chairman for the Dance-A-Thon, "Our goal is to raise $15,000 for muscular dystrophy. There is a possibility of being chosen, out of all the universities in Texas which sponsor similar functions, to go to Las Vegas for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon and represent Tech nationally in that way."

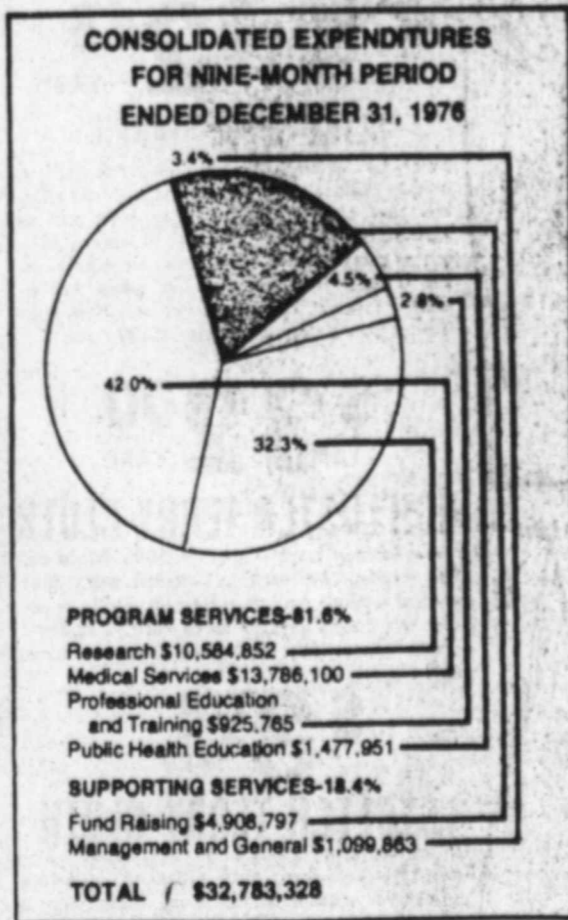

The Dance-A-Thon will kick off with an all-university mixer from 3-6 p.m. Friday. There will be door prizes, raffles and dance contests for those not entered in the Dance-A-Thon.

Registration forms for those interested in "dancing for those who can't" may be obtained at the Muscular Dystrophy Association office, 2345 50th St., or at the Student Life office in room 163 of the Texas Tech Administration Building.

Area businessmen are encouraged to help meet the $15,000 goal. All proceeds will go to muscular dystrophy, where it will be used to support research, camps for MD clients, special equipment and medical costs.

Also available at the Dance-A-Thon will be certificates — "take stock in Jerry's kids" — in $25, $50 and $150 denominations.

Real To Reel

By William D. Kerns

One of the most impressive aspects of the film medium is its universality, its ability to attract a melting pot of viewers. Not even the theater, much less dance and the visual arts (painting), can make that claim so boldly. We grow up escaping into the movies at an early age. And though the motion picture business makes the brunt of its money off of young viewers, scanning the lobby at any theater is proof enough that not everybody gives up the movie habit when he reaches the age of 25 or 30.

Blue collar workers, white collar workers, freaks and rednecks, teenagers and married couples, the educated and the not-so-educated. Even the crown prince of Iran. They're all munching popcorn at the movies. And yet — and this is the best part, — that all important individuality is never compromised. An Academy Award winner to one person is garbage to yet another. Two people may like the same movie, but for vastly different reasons.

To illustrate the point, I'd like to share portions of letters from three Avalanche-Journal readers. The correspondence arrived during the A-J's cry for involvement in the annual reader's poll of Best and Worst movies of the past year. But the picks of these movie-goers — Sandy Martin, a Texas Instruments employee in Lubbock; Steve Gilbert, a student in Hobbs, N.M.; and Martin Meredith, an A-J reader now living in Dallas — offer a good cross section.

SANDY MARTIN'S NINE BEST

1. "Blue Collar." The driving, pulsing music of this film was a perfect foil for the sensitive and moving performances of Pryor and Keitel.
2. "The Boys In Company C." Well done Vietnam movie that pointed out the emotional as well as physical scarring of the war.
3. "Midnight Express." Powerful drama of human rights. Brad Davis may be the next rung on the ladder of great short actors (Pacino, Hoffman, Dreyfuss, Allen, etc.).
4. "Coming Home." Jane Fonda was good enough in her role to make me forget I can't stand Jane Fonda. Her talents surpassed her personality in this movie. Voight wasn't bad either.
5. "Heaven Can Wait." Warren Beatty as a pro quarterback??? This movie was hilarious enough to make me believe anything.
6. "Animal House." Since viewing this film, the urge to stand up in the TI cafeteria and shout "Food fight!" has been overwhelming.
7. "Magic." Hopkins' performance was the star of the movie and Fats was the means to an end. If Hopkins doesn't get a nomination, I'll turn my popcorn tub in for good.
8. "Corvette Summer." Light, but entertaining. Mark and Annie were a delight to watch. Kinda makes you respect the next dirty-fingernailed, greasy-haired guy who pumps gas into your car — even gas jockeys have souls and scruples.
9. "Invasion Of The Body Snatchers." I still can't look a jalapeno in the eye after this movie. The special effects were great and the plot suspenseful.

SANDY MARTIN'S TEN WORST

1. "The Betsy." Tommy Lee Jones should move to the South and become a farmer — along with all the rest of the two first name men. There are no words to describe this garbage masquerading as a movie.
2. "Avalanche." Too bad it didn't bury Rock and Mia.
3. "Born Again." Hatchet-man Colson should have taken the axe to this film.
4. "Oliver's Story." I sat through this movie against my better judgment and still couldn't find a plot or story or even a hint of a reason for taking an awful book and making it into an awful movie.
5. "Harper Valley P.T.A." Barbara Eden should have stayed in her "Jeannie" bottle.
6. "Casey's Shadow." What can I say? ... All in all, a great wad of pigeon poop.
7. "Grease." Everything went downhill after Frankie Avalon came down the white stairs singing "Beauty School Dropout." C'mon, Stockard Channing as a high schooler?
8. "Eyes Of Laura Mars." Tommy Lee Jones came back to torture us again. This time he's a detective with definite problems. He should have taken a hint from his first movie last year and opted for better writing.
9. "Who'll Stop The Rain." Who'll stop this movie? Too long, too boring and a waste of Michael Moriarty's fine talents. Nolte's chest got the best camera shots.
10. "Force Ten From Navarone." This movie was no accident. Somebody had to work hard at making this crock enjoyable. I believe one critic termed it "the best bad movie in town." He said it all.

STEVE GILBERT'S SIX BEST

1. "Coming Home." The first of the Vietnam genre provided wonderful performances and a memorable opinion of The War. Strong and emotional...it never had to take you to Southeast Asia to speak out on its consequences. Dern and Fonda were like two bombs that kept ticking in my mind days after seeing the movie.
2. "Heaven Can Wait." It remained entertaining throughout and made the characters of a fantasy worth caring about. Paranoid Dyan Cannon shines as the highlight whenever one attends a second viewing of the film.
3. "National Lampoon's Animal House." Provided me with endless raunchy fun. John Belushi stole the show with jello, dead horses and an unheralded GPA.
4. "Eyes Of Laura Mars." This viewed the chic and glamorous-violent world of fashion. Faye Dunaway's tight performance added to the terror of the film. A special point of the film was the song "Prisoner" by Barbra Streisand. It is a haunting gut-wrencher that only Barbra does so well.
5. "The Buddy Holly Story." Gary Busey created a magnificent Holly that kept me, too young to appreciate Holly's music, interested and entertained. I also understand it sprinkled a little gold dust on Lubbock, as well.
6. "House Calls." An unpretentious film made for simple pleasure. Enjoyable and comical thanks to Walter Matthau and an added "touch of class" from Glenda Jackson.

MARTIN MEREDITH'S TEN BEST

1. "Midnight Express." Much of this movie's strength can be found in its ability to depict the Turkish culture in terms every bit as alien and remote as any ever imagined. Much has been written about the harsh depiction of the brutal Turkish society. I say, "If the shoe fits, wear it," and the same goes for Chile, Iran and isolated sections of Cleveland and Chicago.
2. "The Big Fix." Moses Wine is easily recognizable to those of us who so intimately suffered through Vietnam, Kent State and Chicago '68. Dreyfuss' performance is in many ways more exciting and moving than the film itself. ... Right on! Power to the people! Give peace a chance! Off the pigs! Hell no, we won't go!
3. "Heaven Can Wait." This movie was a genuine pleasure to watch. I never knew death could look so nice.
4. "Coming Home." A remarkable movie with powerful performances by all three major stars. . . An especially memorable scene is that in which Bruce Dern regrets the part his troops played in a massacre while the Rolling Stones' "Sympathy For The Devil" lingers in the background. Classy.
5. "An Unmarried Woman." It treats a sensitive subject matter with compassion and realism and, besides, I like to watch Jill Clayburgh act in her underwear.
6. "The Buddy Holly Story." The most enjoyable piece of fluff in 1978, thanks to Gary Busey. "It's So Easy" to "Rave On" about this film. I wish I could watch movies like this "Everyday."
7. "Invasion Of The Body Snatchers." An exciting and spooky film. Brooke Adams is a very, very exciting screen presence and, besides, I really get off on her eyeballs jumping around in her eye sockets.
8. "Days Of Heaven." A true example of art that emerges as more of a vision than a movie. The storyline is at best average, but the cinematography and delicate blending of Ennio Morricone's soundtrack create what may be the best film of the year. . . The true star of this film is the incredible camerawork and visions of West Texas. Sensi- See Real To Reel on page 4-E

Kline Conducts Art Seminar Tuesday

Marc Chagall will be the subject of an art seminar at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Texas Tech University Museum. Sponsored by the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association, the seminar is open to the public at a nominal fee.

Chagall, born in 1887 in Russia, was a part of a renaissance, international in scope and universal in significance, which has been called the "school of Paris." Its early 20th century hub was Montparnasse in the French capital although artists were drawn to it from Spain, Italy, eastern European countries and even the Orient.

Chagall's work was a part also of what one critic describes as a "singular contribution made by those acutely sensitive Jewish painters of unrest, for whom the instability of life seems to have been a perpetual source of grief." Chagall outlived all of them, and most were not recognized for their contributions during their brief lifetimes.

"Paris Through the Window" and "The Soldier Drinks" are typical of his ability to combine the real with the dream worlds.

Exhibition Of Ringgold Art Going On Display

Sponsored by the Student Organization for Black Unity in conjunction with Black Awareness Month, an exhibition of art by Faith Ringgold will be on display in the Texas Tech University Center courtyard from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Faith Ringgold's work is about people and is based upon her experiences in this country. Her career as an artist began at City College where she studied with Robert Gwathmey and Kuniyoshi. After turning to the expression called "super realism," she tried to capture the conceptual vision of the black image inherent in the sculptures and masks of African art.

Since 1967, her painting system has been "Black Light." This is the use of pure and deepened colors to create contrast of intensity, rather than contrasts based on lightness and darkness. This concept uses black as a human entity rather than as an abstraction of color, vision or design.

She said, "I use Black Light in relation to the way I see through myself. I work from the blacks and browns and greys that cover my skin and hair, and shades of blues, greens and reds that create my forms and textures. My vision of myself necessarily extends to colors of everything else in the world."

Student Slates Voice Recital

Helen Dewey Reikofski will be featured in graduate soprano voice recital at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Texas Tech University Recital Hall. There is no admission charge.

A student of John Gillas, she is working on her master of music degree in applied voice. She has appeared locally in such roles as the countess in "The Marriage of Figaro" and Musetta in "La Boheme," the latter staged in 1978 by the Texas Tech Music Theater and Civic Lubbock.

Mrs. Reikofski is the current recipient of the Hewitt Vocal Award at Tech.

Tuesday's recital will be accompanied by Patty Shurbet. The program will include Schumann's "Five Poems By Mary Stuart," Debussy's "Fetes Galantes I," Brahms' "Intermezzo" and van Appledorn's "Communique."

OSCAR ODDS
HOLLYWOOD—(UPI)—Las Vegas gambling czars have laid down the betting odds for this year's Academy Award prospects, making "The Deer Hunter" the 6-5 favorite to win the Oscar for best picture. Other favorites were "Heaven Can Wait" at 7-5; "The Boys From Brazil" and "Interiors" at 8-5; "Midnight Express" at 2-1; and "The Children of Sanchez" and "California Suite" at 12-5. The gamblers pegged Gregory Peck and Robert DeNiro as 6-5 favorites for best actor and Ingrid Bergman at 6-5 for best actress for her performance in "Autumn Sonata."

ART TALK

Windmills

By LA WANDA MURFEE

A famous west coast artist came to our town for a weekend workshop and public demonstration. The working group in attendance included a large representation of regional professional artists as well as advanced amateur painters. In the beginning session the watercolorist washed in a painting of infinite New Mexico space with a windmill and pond as the focal point.

Out of the audience rose muted sighs of utter amazement. The subject, they felt, was overexposed in our region. Each artist had hoped for an inspiration from California subject matter. I am sure the demonstrating artist, one of outstanding talent, did not understand the restlessness.

After the finished watercolor was placed in a mat for final display, the workshop organizer asked why such trite subject was chosen for demonstration.

"It is such refreshing subject material," replied the visiting artist. "I paint eucalyptus trees, hills and mountains, quaint architecture and seaside until my sense of expression screams for relief. All that is trite subject matter to me. I was calling down the highway when suddenly I glimpsed a brilliant light. I turned around and went back to look again at the reflections in the pond beside a windmill. I could hardly wait to paint what I saw!"

In the painting the artist had used his fluid application of paint and clarity of color for which he was famous. He painted the windmill and tank in a most unusual and free manner, giving the 'trite' subject a refreshing new light.

Out of his file he pulled some slides, one, his first rendering of a California bridge. Dissatisfied, he produced another rendition of the same place, simplifying the shapes and contrasts. While it was easily recognizable, it was more individually interpreted. A third slide showed yet another interpretation of the same bridge along the mid coastline. The essence of the bridge remained, but still a different feeling from the others. Simplification and exaggeration had produced an almost ethereal connection of the high points of land. The last slide exemplified the professional artist — his developed talent and feeling.

And now what was he going to do with his windmill and pond as he had time to think about it? Maybe he would remove the non-essential shapes and details, change the color scheme — perhaps alter the shape and size of the format. He could enlarge or exaggerate some part of the idea. He could cut a painting of the subject into many pieces, select several, then use the designs on each small segment as the basis for other paintings. From one instantaneous inspiration could arise endless ideas for other paintings, windmill subject or not.

C&W AT THE HUB CLUB — Country and western singer Cathy O'Shea will be entertaining nightly through Saturday at the South Park Inn's Hub Club. There is no cover charge.

Auditions Slated Feb. 18 For 'Pancho' Production

Open auditions for the Texas Tech University Theater's production of "Pancho!" will be held from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Feb. 18 at the theater.

"Pancho!" is a play with music with an original script by Dr. Clifford Ashby, dealing with the notorious and colorful Mexican bandit Pancho Villa. Auditions will be held for actors, singers, dancers and musicians. The characters range from Pancho Villa and his band to General Patton, Pershing, Zapata and Wilson, as well as myriads of Mexican villagers and camp followers.

According to Ashby, who also will direct, there are 50 to 60 roles to be filled.

Some actors may be double cast. According to publicity, "everyone who tries out will be used somewhere."

Musical director Charles Addington needs two guitarists, two violinists, two trumpet players, an accordionist, a utility percussionist and a bassist.

'Breathless' Album Labeled Uninspiring As Bardens Leaves Group

By DOUG PULLEN
A-J Rock Correspondent

"Breathless" (Arista) is the last Camel album to feature Peter Bardens. The imaginative keyboardist left the group soon after the album was recorded. (Bardens is now the keyboardist for Van Morrison, a singer with whom Bardens once worked as a member of Them.)
His departure couldn't be more timely. Morrison's successful return to the music mainstream can mean bigger and better things for the talented keyboardist.
Bardens may have moved on to greener pastures, but Camel seems to be sinking to new lows. "Breathless" is one of the most uninspired Camel albums to date, a fact made even more surprising by the strength of the group's last album "Rain Dances."
"Breathless" lacks any hint of internal coherency. Camel's shift to a more pop-oriented sound may seem a bit peculiar, especially since Camel's best and most involved work comes during the group's deepest and most poetically involved moments.
Camel's shift to a more commercial sound is not necessarily bad, but it's one are sung rapidly enough to render them silly.

"Echoes" is typical Camel, characterized by Latimer's flowing and elusive lead guitar work and Bardens's complementary synthesizer applications.
The only other decent song on the album is "Summer Lightning," a Sinclair-Latimer collaboration. The song's strength lies in the smooth interlacing of guitars and keyboards which is underlined by a slick disco beat.
Camel's insistence upon changing its sound is not a vice by any means. But sometimes the group is just plain sluggish, as if it's not entirely sure of what it wants. All too often the melodies are frivolous, the lyrics almost perversely banal (i.e. "Rainbow's End") and the vocals inconsistent and weak.
All this is quite out of character for the group. Camel has produced several fine albums, "Rain Dances" and "Snow Goose" among them. But the group is highly volatile at times, due in part to the constant shifting of personnel. The group tends to lose its bearings.
"Breathless" is not indicative of Camel's talent. Unfortunately, Bardens's departure may be the beginning of the end for this multi-talented English group.

parture may be the beginning of the end for this multi-talented English group.
LINER NOTES. Andrew Latimer: guitars, lead and backing vocals, synthesizer. Peter Bardens: keyboards. Andy Ward: drums, percussion. Richard Sinclair: bass, vocals. Mel Collins: flutes, saxes. Produced by Camel and Mick Glossop.
FOOTNOTE: Hard rock bands are a dime a dozen. But there's a hard rock band making waves locally which may develop into one of the genre's creative forces.
That group is Axze, a four-man group of Lubbock musicians which has just released its first single on Impulse Records, a local label.
"Rock Away The City" is the A-side, an original characterized by driving lead and rhythm guitar lines from 18-year-old Darren Welch. The guitarist is easily one of the most dextrous local guitar players I've heard. With a little more work and exposure, Welch should be able to expand his creativity so that he doesn't repeat the work of his influences — most notably Richie Blackmore and Led Zep-

The single's flip side is "Through The Night," the better of the two. The song is like its companion piece, simple and a bit redundant of other groups' styles. But such is to be expected of a local band whose oldest member is 18 and youngest is 16.
Axze has been scouted by a couple major labels, according to its manager Richard Rushing. And it's no wonder. The group certainly possesses the skill with which to execute its highly powerful hard rock. All it lacks is the experience and imagination to devise its own material.
That comes with time and practice

Beckett's 'Waiting For Godot'
To Be Presented Feb. 23-28
Samuel Beckett's bitter comedy "Waiting For Godot" will be staged at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 23-28 at the Lab Theater on the Texas Tech University campus. The play deals with man's spirit of resilience in the face of futility, and will be directed by Steve Peters.
The cast includes Matthew Posey as the tramp Vladimir. Posey has twice been nominated for the Irene Ryan Acting Scholarship competition for outstanding performances in American College Theater Festival productions. Mark Dean will appear as the other tramp, Estragon. Ron Quade will be seen as the menial Lucky. Bill Durham has been cast as the boy, and Jo K. Fannin will appear as the apparition Pozzo.

Jack Lambert of the British Broadcasting Company wrote, "Godot is a wonderfully funny, deeply sad and exquisitely piece of theatrical contrivance." The London Times called the play "one of the most noble and moving plays of our generation."
For ticket prices and reservations, call the campus University Theater box office.

Country Notes

By Bob Campbell

"I've been on an endless road for about 12 years, so it feels good to stay in one spot."
Bobby Albright is talking about his years as a professional musician and recent opening as leader of the house band at the Westwind Country nightclub.
Los Angeles-born and Las Vegas-raised, Albright continued his knack for ending up in towns starting with "L" when he came to Lubbock last summer from playing all winter in Anchorage, Alaska.
He wanted to find a steady club job and work on original material, and he came here "so I could be with the musicians I knew could do this kind of stuff."
Playing Cold Water Country and other clubs until getting on fulltime at Westwind a month ago, he found them in his recently organized Dry Country Band.
Albright and guitarist Mike Carraway, bassist Gary Hurt, drummer Bill Winner and pedal steel player Brett James play Tuesdays through Saturdays.
Singer Debbie Bartow joins them on Fridays and Saturdays.
"Before, it was more work than fun," he said. "Getting down here with these guys has made it enjoyable. I enjoy going to work every night."
Through years of playing the Gold Nugget in Vegas, the Riverside Hotel in Reno and a slew of less prestigious places around the country, Albright has developed a philosophy that each musician should have creative freedom with his part of the music and contribute creatively to the band.
"Everybody has their own skill and their own talent, and they use it to the fullest extent," he said of his group.
Albright first came to Texas in 1970 to play bass for Larry Trider, whom he credits with awakening him to the possibilities for arranging songs and to achieving his full potential as a musician.
He later worked out of Nashville, "living in my car and writing songs," with the Compton Brothers road band.
He has recorded two singles, one in Nashville at the Jack Clement Studio and another at Caldwell Studios in Lubbock, and is planning another session for sometime later this year.
He had been doing "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain," the song that popular music composer Fred Rose wrote one day back in the 1940s when somebody dared him to write a country song back in the 1940s, and he recorded it in Lubbock about six months before Willie Nelson put it on the "Red-Headed Stranger" album.
"He covered us plumb up on that one," Albright said.
Albright delivered furniture at Anderson, Nev., and worked as a laborer for a metals company in Henderson, Nev., before becoming a full-time musician.
His mother and father and he formed a family band called the Nevada Ramblers and played in small clubs and VFW halls around Las Vegas when he was a youngster.
"I made $16 in tips one night, and I figured I was on the road to fame and fortune," he said.
"I guess it's rough as far as getting ahead in it," he said of the music business. "It's not rough if you enjoy what you're doing. I can't think of anything else I'd rather be doing."

Poe, Murderer On Center Stage

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Edgar Allen Poe and the German mass murderer Peter Kuerten take center stage in the first play by 31-year-old Wolf Christian Schroeder, produced by the Hamburg Schauspielhaus.
Schroeder entitled his drama "Dream-Murderer, or Edgar Allen Poe meets Peter Kuerten," attempting to show that although the American novelist apparently had little in common with the Duesseeldorf murderer, their identities actually do almost merge, with Kuerten carrying out murders that Poe only envisioned.
SOVIET DANCERS
NEW YORK (UPI) — A company of 90 dancers and musicians from the Soviet Union will appear in "A Festival of Russian Dance," which will be seen in 64 cities during a U.S. tour Jan. 17-April 7. The company features ensembles from seven Soviet republics. The tour will open in Philadelphia and includes Washington, New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, Seattle, Denver, Milwaukee and Pittsburgh.

Backgammon

by Omar Sharif

Black rolls 2-1. How should he play?
ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM
Black is way ahead in the race. White his home board is not as well constructed as is White's, he does have the two White runners partially trapped — White needs specifically two 3-6's to free them.

However, Black does have a problem. He has a blot in the White outer board, and the number he has just rolled does not allow him to bypass the White man in Black's outer board. No matter how he plays the 2-1, Black must leave a direct shot. Therefore, the problem is to play the 2-1 so as to give Black the best chance of surviving White's next roll, for White's home board presents formidable re-entry problems.
Considering the problem in isolation, the best place to reduce the number of direct shots is to be as close to the opponent's man as possible. In those terms only, it would be correct to play the man from the White 10-point to the Black 12-point. That would give White only 12 combinations that hit — all 2's and 1-1.
Despite that, I would play the move differently. I would take the man from the White 10-point to the White 12-point for the 2, and play the 1 by advancing the man on Black's 9-point to the 8-point.
That does give White a better chance of hitting the Black blot. Now, White can hit with all 3's, 2-1 or 1-1, for a total of 14 combinations instead of 12. Why then do I favor the move?
Quite simply because of the principle of duplication. White needs 3's to free his runners. If he rolls a 3 at his next turn and decides to hit, he has not yet turned the game to his advantage. He will still be faced with the problem of rolling two 3's and then two 6's to free his runner. If he does not succeed in doing that within a few rolls, his home board, and with it his game, will start to collapse.

Cyclist, 87, Sets Sights On 100

BUDGET APPROVED
NEW YORK (UPI) — The three million-member Lutheran Church in America has approved a budget of $29.4 million for 1979 but reports that a seven percent increase in giving it was expecting for 1978 now appears more likely to be only five percent.

LOSTANT, Ill. (AP) — He wears a leather jacket with "Illinois" on the back, high boots with his pants tucked into them, and a wind-shield helmet. Tooling around on his Honda Hawk motorcycle, 87-year-old Maynard Williamson is having the time of his life.

"I hope when I'm 100, I'll still be driving a motorcycle," he said. "I don't go over 50 mph or take any crazy chances. I feel safer with it than when I drive my car. A motorcycle makes you more alert. It's fun because you are part of the action all the time."

Williamson is a familiar sight in this north central Illinois community, cutting the breeze on rural roads on trips to county fairs, his favorite pastime. "Sometimes I meet a bunch of young motorcycle riders on the road and they usually shout: 'Come on and join us, pops.' If I do, I tell 'em to take it easy, don't take any chances. And if they seem to be the reckless kind, I just drop out," said Williamson. "I'd rather solo, anyway. I pack lunch in my saddle bags and head out. My biggest trip is 285 miles to Bloomington (Ind.) to visit a daughter. I usually make a stop at night on that one." "My wife died 15 years ago. She used to ride with me some."

DUTY CALLS — Cloris Leachman runs from her beauty salon appointment to keep a date fighting a mob in this scene from Walt Disney Productions' "The North Avenue Irregulars," slated to open Feb. 16 at Showplace Six in Lubbock. The film was directed by Bruce Bilson.

Leachman: She's Unlike Any Other Star

BURBANK, Calif. (Special) — She answers the phone, "Leachman here," then waits not quite a moment. "Blah, blah, blah," she says, cutting amenities short. "What do you want?"

Cloris Leachman is in make up at Walt Disney Studio where she is starring in "The North Avenue Irregulars," a comedy against crime which is booked to open in Lubbock Feb. 16 at Showplace Six. Leachman stars with Barbara Harris, Susan Clark, Karen Valentine, Patsy Kelly, Virginia Capers and Edward Herrmann in the film about a minister and some women who take on the mob.

What the caller wants doesn't really matter. "Leachman," whose reputation for being late to the set is excelled only by her candor, will not say yes to the request if she cannot keep the appointment. There are just some things Cloris won't do.

She will, however, remember on a Friday on the set that she is leaving for Europe the next morning and needs a passport for her daughter, in which case she'll call the U.S. Passport Office between scenes.

She will bring bags of potatoes and onions and celery, ask lightly for a hot plate, a knife, a large pot, some water and a few condiments and peel and peel for hours before her "snack" for the crew of a hundred-plus begins to simmer. (She will also simmer it for two days, then show up in an old robe and slippers on a night off to serve it.)

But talent there is, incontrovertibly. An Oscar as best supporting actress in 1972 for "The Last Picture Show," and four Emmys are evidence of the talent.

A NEW COMPUTER CHAMP
An improved version of Belle, pride of Bell Telephone Laboratories, in a startling upset won the Ninth Annual North American Open Computer Chess Championship in Washington, D.C. last December. Belle, which finished tied for fourth place in last year's world computer championship in Toronto, beat the current world champion CHESS 4.7 and three other opponents for a perfect score of four points.

CHESS 4.7, programmed by a Northwestern University Team and programmed to examining 300,000 to 500,000 positions before it makes a move, took second with three points.

"Belle has special-purpose hardware built to play nothing but chess," said David Levy of England, tournament director. "This idea speeds up the thought process considerably."
Levy was asked how long before such machines can be competitive against top human players. Levy's answer: "Maybe ten years, maybe considerably less."

Bell Labs had been at work on their machine in New Jersey since the Toronto title event. In the past, it was judged to be about 1475 strength, the equivalent of "C" class in the USCF ratings.

The Northwestern team is revising their program, which when finished will be called CHESS 5.1.

Levy, who beat CHESS 4.7 in Toronto in a close and celebrated match last August, was asked if that computer, reprogrammed, could successfully defend its world title. "It's difficult to say. If it didn't win here, maybe it isn't going to win the world championship."

Shopping Tips On Furniture Buying Given

NEW YORK (UPI) — Quality checkpoints for upholstered furniture are under the surface, says Mary Lou Rooney, a consumer education specialist for a manufacturer of fabric spray protector. Here are her tips on what to look for when you shop:

- Sturdy frame and joints of such materials as kiln-dried hardwoods or molded polymers and steel. Joints should be either mortise-and-tenon or double dowel. Corner blocks should be used to reinforce legs.
- Bands of jute or steel webbing securely tacked to the frame.
- Eight to 12 tempered steel coil springs per seat.

—Hang-tag and label information on the manufacturer's cleanliness codes and suggested spot cleaning methods.

—Filling materials that are resistant to mildew, moths and other insects.

—Law requires manufacturers to identify filling materials on tags securely attached to the furniture. The choice includes down, extremely soft and very expensive; latex or polyurethane foam rubber are firm and wear well; kapok and sisal generally indicate poorer quality. Some current styles use polyester fiberfill for a downy effect in back cushions.

—A protective layer of fabric should separate the upholstery fabric from the filling. A cardboard layer instead is a sign of poor quality.

—Zippers on cushions generally mean a good fill. Open a zipper and check that cushioning materials are covered by a layer of ticking.
—You should feel no bumps, bulges or wood when you run your hand over the surface of the padding.
—Look for cushions the same size and shape, especially on the seat. Reversible and interchangeable cushions distribute wear best.

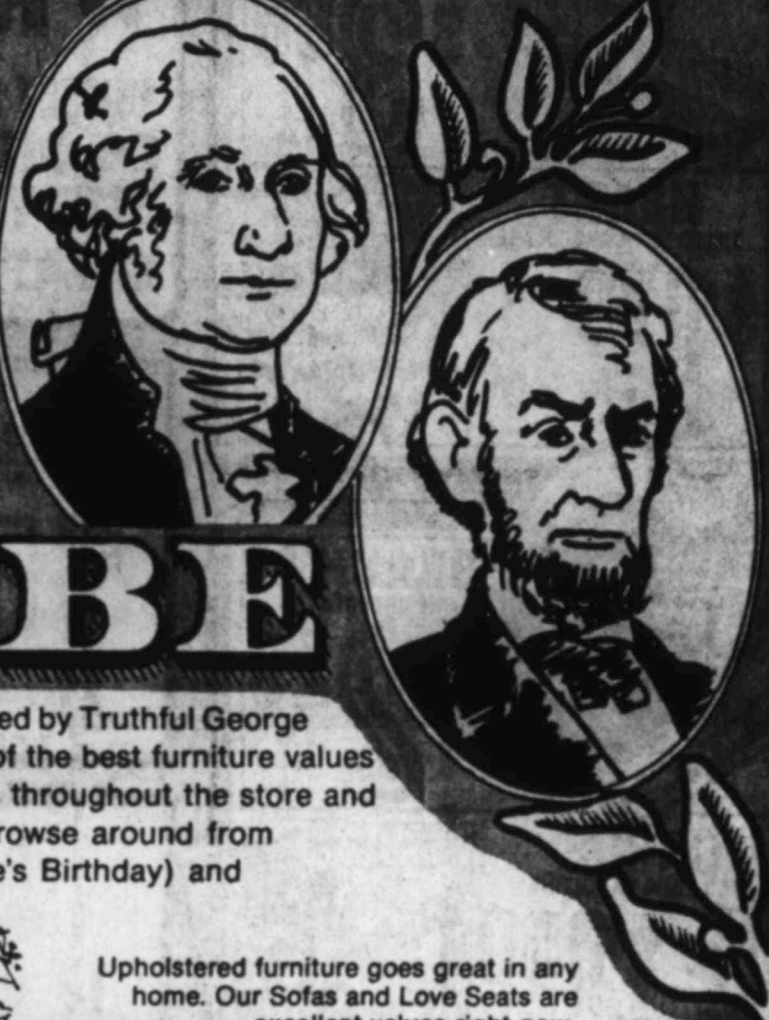

—Test for comfort by sitting on the furniture. It should provide good back support, be neither too high, too low nor too deep to rise from gracefully. Arms and seat should not be steeply angled.

HESTON STARS

PLATFORM CONSTRUCTION—Aminoil USA completed a major step in the installation of a drilling and production platform in the Gulf of Mexico recently with the setting of the platform's deck section. The availability of a 1,600-ton capacity derrick barge was one positive factor in allowing the installation of the deck section in a season of generally unfavorable weather. The next major step in the project is the hook-up of production treating facilities and the installation of a drilling rig. Aminoil is operator for the venture which includes five other companies.

Ignored Cable Holds Position In Iran's Petroleum History

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON — A cable message that was ignored holds a prominent spot in the history of the development of Iran's vast petroleum resources.

The message advised, because of lack of further funds, the cessation of operations on a syndicate's first test well after it had reached a depth of 1,100 feet.

Drilling continued, however, and oil was discovered two weeks later, on May 26, 1908, at Masjid-i-Sulaiman at a depth of 1,180 feet. A second well was completed seven days later, a third five months later.

The first discovery of oil in commercial quantities in the Middle East led to the April, 1909, formation of Anglo-Persian Oil Co. Legislation by the British parliament in May, 1914, authorized the British government to acquire just over 50 percent of the company's stock.

In June, 1935, Anglo-Persian became Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. to conform with the ancient name which had officially replaced Persia as the country's name.

Iran's petroleum industry was nationalized on May 1, 1951, and Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, on a wave of nationalist fervor, evicted the British.

Economic chaos quickly followed. The world's largest refinery was shutdown. Crude oil production that had been averaging 700,000 barrels a day, then the largest in the Middle East, dropped to less than 20,000. Diplomatic relations with Great Britain were severed on Oct. 23, 1952.

A coup swept Mossadegh out of power in August 1953.

It was not until Oct. 29, 1954, however, that an agreement was finalized for Anglo-Iranian and seven other international companies to form a consortium and set up the Iranian Oil Operating Companies to restore the nationalized industry among the world's largest oil producers.

Production was back to 187,000 barrels a day by the end of the year, exceeded 700,000 in 1957, and broke the million-barrels-a-day mark in 1960.

Part of the agreement called for Iran to make payments to Anglo-Iranian over a 10-year period as settlement of nationalization claims and counter-claims. The other members of the consortium agreed to make payments to Anglo-Iranian over a period of years to compensate the British firm for its development expenditures prior to nationalization.

In December 1954, Anglo-Iranian changed its name to The British Petroleum Co. Ltd.

The consortium increased to 17 members in April, 1955, with the addition of nine smaller U.S. firms.

The 1954 consortium agreement was terminated in 1973 and a new company, Oil Service Co. of Iran, was formed to give technical assistance to the National Iranian Oil Co., which took over all concession rights and operations. A new 20-year agreement guaranteed proportionate oil supplies to the participating companies.

The cable message that was ignored is recorded in the fifth edition of BP's "Our Industry Petroleum," a 600-page history of worldwide oil operations.

William Knox D'Arcy, a Britisher who had made a fortune in Australian gold, had obtained in 1901 a 60-year concession to explore for oil throughout Persia except for five provinces near Russia.

By 1904, only small quantities of non-commercial oil had been discovered and a syndicate was formed to bolster D'Arcy's financial resources.

It was the syndicate that sent the cable. As a result of the Masjid-i-Sulaiman discovery, Anglo-Persian Oil Co. was formed to operate the original D'Arcy concession.

In 1933, the original concession was reduced from 500,000 to 100,000 square miles but the term was extended to 1993.

D'Arcy had been preceded to Persia by Baron Julius de Reuter, a naturalized British citizen and the founder of the Reuters News Agency.

In 1872, Reuter received Persia's first concession for oil and minerals explorations. Three wells were drilled, with one reaching a depth of 800 feet, but no oil was found and the concession was declared invalid in 1901.

API Schedules Hobbs Meeting

HOBBS, N.M. (Special) -The Southeastern New Mexico Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute has scheduled a meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Hobbs Country Club.

Joseph J. Taber, director of the New Mexico Petroleum Recovery Research Center, will conduct the program.

The research center, which began operation in 1976, is supported by the state. It deals primarily with enhanced oil recovery research. Activities range from basic laboratory investigations to field tests of enhanced recovery methods.

Prior to joining the research center at Socorro, N.M., Taber held professorships in the chemistry and petroleum engineering departments at the University of Pittsburgh. He received his B.S. degree in chemistry from Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio, and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

Taber's studies led to the concept of a critical displacement ratio which is a measure of the ease of displacing residual oil by surface active agents dissolved in water.

All persons involved in the oil industry and related businesses have been invited to attend the meeting. API memberships are not required.

Tickets to the meeting are $4, and will be available at the door, or may be purchased from the following people in Hobbs: George Ricks, ARCO Oil and Gas Co.; Red Arson, Ajax Repair & Supply; Leo Slayton, Halliburton Services; Paul Thompson, Conoco; and Bob Vaught, Gulf.

THE ROUSTABOUT

By RAY WESTBROOK

THE AMERICAN PETROLEUM Institute reports that the U.S. government now controls 760 million acres of land—a third of the total land area of the United States.

API's concern is that two-thirds of those public lands are effectively off limits to mineral resource industries.

Charles J. DiBona, new president of API, said that more than 100 million acres of public lands may become wilderness areas—lands which must remain in their natural state.

In an address to the American Association of Petroleum Landmen, DiBona said, "The loss of resources is the price we will pay to maintain the absolute standards of the wilderness ideal. Our nation cannot afford this loss, especially when total preservation is not needed to produce most of the appealing benefits of wilderness."

The API spokesman reminded the landmen that if oil and gas are found on an onshore tract, it can take from two to 10 years after the discovery to start production, depending on location.

"This process cannot be significantly speeded up, even to meet emergency needs. If the petroleum resources on public lands are to be responsibly developed, the work must begin now."

DiBONA THINKS the first step in the process should be to permit meaningful exploration of the lands under consideration. "In this case, meaningful exploration means exploratory drilling."

He said, "Next, if significant reserves are discovered, there must be some systematic means—through legislation or regulation—of gaining access to production. Unless production can reasonably be expected to follow successful exploration, there will be no incentive to determine the extent of energy resources on public lands."

DiBona cautions against indiscriminate use of public lands, however.

"If energy resource developers argue for careful use of restricted lands, they must substantiate their claims that they will use the land carefully."

"The technology needed to provide this kind of care has been developed and is in use. It must continue to be used—habitually and ungrudgingly. This is not an easy responsibility to assume. External costs are never borne lightly, but in this case they may be the price of gaining access to public lands."

THE BUREAU of Economic Geology at the University of Texas has compiled statistics indicating that for the past 50 years, Texas has led the nation in energy production and has contributed about 25 percent of all energy ever produced in the United States.

While Texas has functioned as the nation's domestic "energy basket," it is principally because of oil and natural gas, according to Dr. William L. Fisher, author of the bureau report.

Dr. Fisher predicts production changes will be required if energy continues its vital role in the state's economy.

"Without question, the future mix of energy production will differ from the past," he said.

Texas must now look also to sources of fuel such as lignite, uranium and geothermal waters, because the state's reserves of oil and natural gas are declining, Fisher said.

THE REPORT shows that oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids, which have constituted 99 percent of the state's past production, now make up only 50 percent of the remaining measured reserves and only 30 percent of the estimated energy resource base.

Fisher points out, by contrast, that lignite represents 40 percent of both the measured reserve and resource base, although it has contributed only 0.4 percent of the historical production.

"Uranium production to date has been only 0.8 percent of cumulative production, but uranium represents 10 percent of the measured reserve and will be substantially more if breeder technology is utilized," he said.

While geothermal resources of hot water and methane gas are yet to contribute to production, their estimated volume constitutes nearly 20 percent of the resource base.

THE MOVE to other fuel sources has been gradually getting underway for some time. Since 1972, the production of oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids has declined, while production of both uranium and lignite in Texas has quadrupled.

Oil and gas production in the state can stabilize at levels close to current production only if there are substantial efforts in gas well drilling and a major success in enhanced recovery of oil, according to Fisher.

"Natural gas production will possibly increase under appropriate price incentives that would encourage more deep drilling."

Fisher adds, however, that several recent studies indicate deep gas drilling and rapid development of tertiary oil are significantly constrained under present law and federal energy policies.

Companies See Gradual Growth In Onshore Basin Exploration

TULSA, Okla. (Special) -There won't be a big drilling surge in onshore, deep basins of the U.S. Lower 48 when high-cost gas production is deregulated under the terms of the Natural Gas Policy Act (NGPA) of 1978, according to a report by the Oil and Gas Journal.

Most major companies and large independents already active in those basins predict steady, gradual drilling growth.

The pace of action will be as much a product of narrowing prospects as of price incentives.

Although concern about a gas surplus in Texas and Oklahoma is minimal, some operators fear that long-term market demand may be restrained for production below 15,000 feet. In essence, the fear is that operators won't be able to sell this high-cost, deep gas once they have found it.

In addition, NGPA is believed to be too clouded by unresolved issues to spawn a burst of deep drilling.

"The deep gas prospects are long-range drilling programs," one industry official said.

"My hunch is that people will line up their prospects in 1979 and watch the behavior of the market to see how much shallower gas is available at the new-gas ceiling price."

"It's entirely possible we might see a showdown this year due to the many question marks and unresolved issues concerning the gas act."

Independents, who drill 90 percent of U.S. wildcats, generally agree with that view. Few of them have a stake in the deep gas trends. They aren't likely to increase deep drilling until regulations on incremental pricing are clearer.

All agree, though, that "higher prices to match the higher risks" are needed now in the search for deep gas.

High-cost gas is to be deregulated in November, according to the schedule set out in the NGPA.

It says the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has one year from the date of the law's enactment to adopt the first incremental pricing rules and trigger high-cost gas deregulation.

High-cost gas, according to the act, includes natural gas from any onshore well spudded on or after Feb. 19, 1977, if production is from a depth of more than 15,000 feet.

A-J Oil News Companies Announce Purchase Agreement

HOUSTON (Special) -Tenneco Oil Co., Mesa Petroleum Co. and Ashland Oil Inc. have announced that they have reached an agreement in principle for the joint acquisition by Tenneco and Mesa of the mid-continent region oil and gas properties of Ashland for $340 million.

The properties, which include 350,000 undeveloped acres, are located in the states of Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. Net proved reserves attributable to these properties were estimated in October, 1978, to be approximately 2 million barrels of oil and 740 billion cubic feet of natural gas, according to a report prepared for Ashland by a firm of independent petroleum consultants.

The sale is subject to the negotiation of a definitive agreement mutually satisfactory to Tenneco, Mesa and Ashland and receipt of all requisite governmental rulings and approvals.

Ashland is selling the properties to Tenneco and Mesa pursuant to its previously announced plan to dispose of its exploration and production properties.

Mesa Petroleum Co. is headquartered in Amarillo, and is involved in the exploration and development of oil and natural gas properties in the United States, Western Canada and the North Sea.

Tenneco Oil Co. is a major subsidiary of Tenneco Inc., a multi-industry company with major business operations including oil, natural gas pipelines, construction and farm equipment, chemicals and shipbuilding.

Killer Convicts Fighting Crime

RAHWAY, N.J. (UPI) — Seventeen sneering juvenile delinquents walk with studied jauntiness into the maximum security state prison here. Minutes later, they huddle together on a bench as they are bombarded with obscenities and threatened with violence by men who have killed.

But these killers, convicts at the prison, have but one goal: to keep these street-tough children from a life of crime.

In an hour-long television documentary to be shown nationally the week of March 5, the prisoners depict what has become one of the most successful crime prevention programs in the country.

The film, "Scared Straight!" will be presented as a public service without commercial interruptions by The Signal Companies on over 100 independent stations.

Dr. Ray To Lead Revival Service

SEAGRAVES (Special)—Dr. David Ray of Abilene, former pastor of First Baptist Church in Lubbock, will lead evangelistic services in Seagraves' First Baptist Church Feb. 18-23.

Services will be held at 7 p.m. daily, according to Rev. Danny Lucas, pastor.

In the past four years Dr. Ray has preached in more than 200 churches in the Southwest. He is now with the David Ray Evangelistic Association.

Director of music for the revival will be Lonnie Parsons of San Antonio. Parsons, who was a guest soloist at the Texas Evangelistic Conference in Fort Worth recently, directed a community choir here two years ago during the Community Crusade for Christ.

Stewardship Workshop Set In City

Lubbock will be the site Feb. 23 of one of three workshops on Stewardship Renewal in the Diocese of Amarillo of the Roman Catholic Church.

The annual stewardship approach replaces the Diocesan Development Fund campaign conducted last year to fund administrative, ministerial and educational programs of the diocese.

The purpose of the February workshops is to enable parishes and missions to meet their obligations through increased giving by the people, according to George Wilhelm, diocesan controller.

The workshops will be conducted by Msgr. Charles Grahmann of San Antonio, former president and now a director of the National Stewardship Council. In the Archdiocese of San Antonio he is secretary to Archbishop Francis J. Furey, Archdiocesan Director of Catholic Relief Services/Campaign for Human Development/Building Board/Project Equality of South Texas and pastor of St. Gregory the Great Parish. As president of the National Stewardship Council (NCSC) from 1971 to 1974, he opened the fulltime NCSC Office in Washington, D.C. in 1974.

The stewardship workshops will be held the afternoon of Feb. 22 in Amarillo, the morning of Feb. 23 in Plainview and the afternoon of Feb. 23 in Lubbock.

Involvement Aids Fight On Crime

By SGT. SIDNEY LYLE
Odessa Police Department
A minister recently pointed out to those attending a leadership breakfast that there are four kinds of maturity. The first is physical. Most of us will likely reach that age at which we are physically mature. We develop, grow up, and grow old in a steady gentleness through various stages of physical development.

The second of these deals with our intellectual achievement based upon the inherent capacities which we as individuals possess. This mental development, unlike physical maturity does not reach its potential merely by the passage of time. It must be sought after, pampered, expounded, and exercised. While everyone has certain abilities and goals which must be based upon intellectual achievement — a proper balance must be reached between intellectualism for the sake of intellectualism, and practical mental aptitudes.

The third level of maturity is emotional maturity. It is essentially these three which will concern ourself with at this time. The fourth is every whit as important as the previous three and emphasizes the crucial need for spiritual development. However, the subject of spiritual development requires more space than this column allows.

All things considered if we would only reach for a moderate degree of success by using the first three of these all important four types of maturity, great strides could be made in bringing together a nation torn asunder by apathy and indifference.
