

Guerrillas Suspected In Rhodesia Crash

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A Rhodesian airliner crashed minutes after takeoff Monday from the northwestern resort of Kariba, killing all 59 persons aboard, Air Rhodesia announced. Airline officials said they feared black nationalist guerrillas had shot down the plane.

Last Sept. 3, guerrillas claimed responsibility for shooting down another Air Rhodesia plane with a Soviet-made SAM-7 ground-to-air heat-seeking missile. That plane also went down shortly after taking off from Kariba, and 48 persons were killed, including 10 shot on the ground by guerrillas. Eight persons survived. Both planes were four-engine turboprop Viscounts.

On Monday, the blue-and-white airliner took off smoothly from Kariba, on the border with Zambia, at 5 p.m. bound for Salisbury, 200 miles to the southeast.

But some six minutes later a distress call was made and it crashed. Air Rhodesia later issued this terse announcement: "Air Rhodesia regrets to announce the loss of a Viscount aircraft operating flight RH827 between Kariba and Salisbury. It has been established that there are no survivors."

The announcement said there were 54 passengers and five crew members aboard. Airline officials said that because of early confusion inaccurate death tolls of 58 and then 54 persons were reported.

Army troops reached the site of the wreckage and found no survivors, airline officials said.

The first indication at Kariba airport that Flight 827 was missing came when passengers, including Associated Press correspondent Maureen Johnson, on an Air Rhodesia Viscount that took off 15 minutes later for Salisbury saw three camouflaged soldiers rushing toward a police spotter plane.

The spotter plane took off, followed by the second Viscount flight, Rhodesia's supreme military commander, Lt. Gen. Pete Walls, and his wife were aboard the second plane, returning from a four-day fishing vacation in Kariba.

Those on the second plane found out about the crash when two stewardesses began sobbing.

Capt. Pat Travers, general manager of Air Rhodesia, said a distress call was received from the stricken Viscount before it crashed. He did not say what the crew said in their final message.

The downed airliner carried men, women and children, mostly people on holiday who had spent the weekend at Kariba, which features a casino and excellent fishing on Kariba Lake.

AP reporter Johnson said her flight, instead of swinging left like Flight 827, circled for almost 20 minutes over the giant lake, on the tense border between Rhodesia and Zambia, where the guerrillas have their rear bases.

Miss Johnson said she had chatted briefly with some of the passengers on Flight 827 before they took off, including a pretty hostess for British Airways on vacation in Rhodesia.

The stewardess said she was having "the finest holiday of my life," Miss Johnson reported.

SPAG Distribution Of Funds To Fight Crime Questioned

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

STATE officials are asking why the City of Lubbock gets the smallest share when federal criminal justice funds are allocated by the South Plains Association of Governments, even though nearly all of the region's crime occurs in Lubbock.

"Lubbock has one of the highest crime rates of any city (in the state) of comparable size," said Willis Whatley, general counsel of the Criminal Justice Division of the Governor's Office.

Yet, he noted, funds for police projects "usually have gone to cities or counties outside of Lubbock."

Little Change Expected

The criminal justice funding priorities for next year will be discussed by the SPAG Board of Directors at a 9:30 a.m. meeting today, but little change in the situation is expected.

Whatley said his office wants to know what SPAG is doing about Lubbock's crime problem and wants justification for why projects for area towns and counties are funded more frequently than are Lubbock projects.

During the past eight years, SPAG has received $4.9 million in federal criminal justice funds to use in the region. Of that amount, only about 9 percent has been allocated to the City of Lubbock.

About 44 percent of the funds went for programs operated by SPAG that benefit the area, and 24 percent has gone for Lubbock County projects.

When the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee recommended funding priorities earlier this month, two projects requested by the City of Lubbock did not rank high enough to be funded.

City Makes Requests

The city requested $40,000 to start a crime prevention program in Lubbock, a proposal not funded last year, and $26,524 to computerize police records.

Of 21 projects, the 18-member committee ranked the Lubbock projects numbers 15 and 17. A project ranked 14th was the last to be funded.

Why aren't Lubbock's projects usually funded?

City officials blame anti-Lubbock sentiment among committee members, two-thirds of whom live outside Lubbock County.

"Lubbock has enough money. They can get whatever they want," one committee member muttered during the priority-setting session.

County, rather than city, domination of the committee also has hurt Lubbock's chances of getting criminal justice funding, city officials say, because county problems are unlike those of a metropolitan area.

At a recent Lubbock City Council meeting, City Manager Larry Cunningham said he is concerned "some SPAG committees and the SPAG board are going beyond their authority in the review of appropriations."

"As we understand, SPAG is to see how projects fit into regional goals," he said.

Questioned About Pay

Committee members "sitting here from some county with no knowledge of Lubbock have gotten into things they have no business considering," he said. "Asking how much you pay police officers — that's not relevant."

Because Lubbock pays its police officers more than some other cities in the region, Cunningham said, the city's criminal justice projects have received lower priority.

"I don't think we're being treated as equitably as we should be," he said. "I don't see the purpose of spending $14,000 in dues to be raked over the coals by people who don't know what they're talking about."

Dorothy Miller, SPAG criminal justice planner, acknowledged the region would not receive the funds it does without the crime rate and population in the City of Lubbock.

But, she said, the committee wasn't See SPAG DISTRIBUTION Page 16

Celebration Borders On Anarchy

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Backers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini struggled to keep his revolutionary victory from dissolving into anarchy Monday as bands of trigger-happy civilians rampaged through Tehran's streets firing weapons into the air.

Khomeini, Iran's Moslem patriarch who organized the revolt that ended the monarchy of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, urged his followers to avoid "arson, destruction and cruelty." He said those indulging in such acts disobey "Allah's orders and are traitors to the Islamic movement."

A highly placed source told The Associated Press the shah-appointed prime minister, Shapur Bakhtiar, was under the protection of his old friend Mehdi Bazargan, named by Khomeini as prime minister of the new Islamic Republic.

Bakhtiar, an anti-royalist appointed by the shah Jan. 4 in a last-ditch effort to end months of strife and bloodshed, reportedly resigned Sunday when military commanders ordered their troops to cease resisting Khomeini's armed insurgents. The shah left Iran Jan. 16 and is in exile with his family in Morocco.

Protection Of Foreigners Ordered

There are thousands of foreigners in Iran, including some 7,000 Americans, and Khomeini ordered they be protected. There were no reports of any Americans being among some 800 persons killed during the past two days of fighting.

Tehran radio, issuing directives from the Operational Staff of the Islamic Revolution, said Khomeini "has repeatedly pointed out that all foreigners residing in Iran are immune from any form of transgression."

But many armed groups, euphoric with victory, appeared out of control, ignoring orders to deliver their weapons to local mosques.

Tehran Radio, quoting hospital spokesmen, said Sunday's fighting in the capital left 417 persons dead and 989 wounded. At least 200 others died in earlier weekend violence. It was reported that 130 persons died in the northeastern city of Shiraz. Ten agents of SAVAK, the shah's secret police, were killed when "citizens" seized the SAVAK office in the Caspian city of Rasht, one broadcast said.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said 25 Americans assigned to the Military Airlift Command were briefly detained by Khomeini supporters.

"They were taken to one of Khomeini's

Fire Rages At Indiana Refinery

WHITING, Ind. (AP) — Explosions shook this small industrial town early today as a mammoth fire engulfed sections of a Standard Oil Co. refinery, spewing flames 100 feet into the air and forcing about 1,500 nearby residents from their homes, police said.

William J. Obermiller, spokesman for the refinery, said the fire was under control and officials had accounted for all employees at the facility at the time of the blast.

He said about 300 persons were at the refinery, 10 of them in the vicinity of the blast, at the time of the explosions and fire. But he said no injuries were reported. About 2,000 workers are employed at the refinery, once the nation's largest.

Blaze Contained

Whiting Fire Lt. Jerald Strabavy said the fire was contained in an area about 2-3 acres square, and he said firefighters had hopes of the blaze burning itself out later today.

Whiting Fire Chief Tom Justak said the fire was first believed to have started in a unit that produces high-octane aviation fuel, spreading to three large storage tanks. Evacuations were ordered, he said, because of fears that flaming fuel might spill over an earthen retaining wall that separates the unit from residential streets.

Obermiller said it was later determined that the blaze apparently ignited in a pipe ditch between two tanks holding about 25,000 barrels of diesel fuel. He said leaking fumes were believed to be the cause.

Whiting is a town of about 7,500 across the Illinois-Indiana border from Chicago.

Firemen Standing By

Fire units from the refinery fought the blaze, but some 100 firefighters from Whiting and surrounding municipalities were stationed outside the refinery in case the fire spread beyond the plant, said Whiting Fire Capt. John Hatzel.

The fire followed a series of blasts that ripped through pipelines and storage tanks about 11:45 p.m. EST Sunday and was reported contained by 4 a.m. EST today, according to Hatzel.

Police said 10 square blocks of homes were evacuated, but none of the homes burned. The residents were moved to Whiting Community Center or went to stay in motels or with relatives.

The Rev. Norris Howard, who lives three blocks from the refinery, said the first explosion rocked his home. He said he looked out the window and saw two more explosions, the last one shooting flames 100 feet into the air.

"Then I told the wife we better get out of here," he said.

An explosion at the refinery in August 1955 killed two persons and injured 35. The blast and flames destroyed 200 homes, 70 storage tanks and three refining units.

U.S. 'Ready To Work' Mideast Peace Effort Gets Top Priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Monday the United States is in very close consultation with the new Iranian regime and hopes for "a very productive and peaceful cooperation" with the strategic country's leaders.

In the first U.S. comment since the fall of the government of Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar, whom he had supported, Carter said that "we stand ready to work with" Bakhtiar's successors in the new revolutionary government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

To offset the net loss of 500,000 barrels of Iranian oil daily because of that country's year of political upheavals, the president urged voluntary conservation measures by Americans, including adherence to the 55-mpg speed limit.

No Crisis Exists

"The situation is not crucial now, it's not a crisis, but it certainly could get worse," Carter said.

Speaking in measured tones from a prepared statement at the start of a nationally broadcast news conference, the president said the U.S. embassy in Tehran reported that followers of the new regime "have been very helpful in insuring the safety of Americans, and we have been consulting with them very closely."

In the Iranian capital, the new government of Khomeini and Prime Minister-designate Mehdi Bazargan reported that resistance had ended, but that it was having trouble controlling its own supporters.

In the Iranian capital, the new government of Khomeini and Prime Minister-designate Mehdi Bazargan reported that resistance had ended, but that it was having trouble controlling its own supporters.

In a second prepared statement, Carter said that although the wholesale price index jumped 1.3 percent in January, "all available evidence indicates that the guidelines which we have established (to control inflation) are beginning to take hold."

The wholesale price increases, he said, supported his prediction last fall that "inflation might get worse in the short run before it got better."

The developments in Iran could damage the administration's anti-inflation efforts by reducing oil supplies and driving up the domestic price of petroleum products. Carter said the cutoff of Iranian oil underscores U.S. vulnerability.

"A prudent public response early and on a broad-scale basis will make sure that any interruption in our economic system will be minimal in the future," he said.

Hints At Arms Sales

The president, possibly seeking to maintain some level of U.S. arms sales to Iran, said he wanted to insure that "Iran is militarily capable of protecting her independence and her territorial integrity."

One White House official, questioned about the status of a U.S. sale of F-14 jets to Iran under the government of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, responded that "they bought them and paid for them and the U.S.'s concern is only that they not fall into Soviet hands."

The official, who asked not to be identified by name, said the closeness of future relations with the new government "de-

Mideast Peace Effort Gets Top Priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Monday he might call another Mideast summit conference if Egypt and Israel show a desire to conclude a peace treaty but are unable to resolve all their differences.

"The reality of having a Mideast peace settlement is one of my fondest hopes and dreams and my greatest commitment," Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference in outlining plans for new Egyptian-Israeli negotiations beginning next Wednesday.

The talks between Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan will be hosted by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance at Camp David in Maryland's snow-capped Catoctin mountains.

Carter said the setting, the same as for his summit last September with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, offers "a maximum state of isolation."

He said he might meet briefly with Khalil and Dayan to try to iron out differences over the Palestinians and other issues that have deadlocked the once-promising peace talks for months.

His hope, Carter said, is that the two ministers can make progress on the outstanding issues and then return to Cairo and Jerusalem for confirmation of their negotiating positions.

Carter said he has spent more time on the Middle East than any other single issue.

Kidnapped Girl Found Slain

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The body of an 11-year-old school girl was found Monday about 10 hours after she was abducted from her post as a crossing guard, police said.

Lina Noble, a secretary in the police juvenile bureau, said the body was identified as that of Linda Vanderveen, daughter of the city personnel director.

The body was found within two miles of the spot where she was dragged, frantically struggling, into a car Monday morning.

The abduction occurred shortly after 8 a.m. within a block of the Mulick Park Elementary School, where the girl was in the sixth grade.

Her books, satchel and clarinet were found on the corner. So was a steak knife, police said. Fingerprint tests on the knife provided no clue to the identity of the abductor, police said.

There was no immediate word whether the abduction was linked to the job held by the girl's father, Andrew Vanderveen.

The girl and her family lived nearby in a middle-class neighborhood of single-family homes.

LINDA VANDERVEEN Kidnapped Crossing Guard

Police said a man fitting the description of the one seen with Linda had also been seen near other schools recently.

They said no ransom demand had been received.

Jack Hill of Grand Rapids, who said he saw the abduction, told reporters the girl frantically waved her arms as she was pulled into a dark-colored car by a man wearing a leather or vinyl coat and a white stocking cap.

"I saw the car sitting there. I thought it was a little strange. The door was open and he was out of the car," Hill said.

Hill said he parked his own car across the path of the other and asked, "What's going on here?"

"The guy said 'Nothin', and jumped back into his car."

Then, Hill said, the abductor backed away and "damned near ran me over," getting away before Hill could turn around.

Hill said he could not get a license number. He said the car was probably a 1976 Pontiac Grand Prix or Chrysler Cordoba.

Shortly after the abduction, witnesses reported that a man and a girl matching Linda's description were seen at a grocery about six blocks away, where they got into a rusty, cream-colored station wagon with imitation wood trim, police said. Both vehicles then sped away. Police thought another driver may have helped the abductor.

Police Maj. Robert Ensing said that police had "had a problem last week with other schools in the area," involving a man in a cream station wagon. "Whether they are connected, we don't know."

There have been two abductions within a 25-mile radius of Grand Rapids since last summer. One involved a young girl; the other a young woman. Both women were found dead. Police have not linked them to the new case, however.

The Vanderveen girl was described as blonde, about 5 feet tall and 100 pounds. She was wearing Navy blue trousers, a white hat and a white coat. Richard Steele, director of safety and security for the schools, said two guards were supposed to be at that corner but the boy scheduled to work with Linda was late. No children saw the incident, school authorities said.

Senate Panel Stalls Bill To Raise Home Loans' Interest Ceiling

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee disappointed realtors, homebuilders and the savings and loan industry Monday by stalling a bill that would raise the interest ceiling on home loans from 10 to 12 percent.

The 5-1 vote to send the bill to a subcommittee was a temporary victory for opponents of the measure, including organized labor, Texas farmers and the Texas Consumer Association.

Sen. Bill Meier's measure failed to get total business support as some real estate developers testified against it.

President Peter von Wupperfeld of The Austin Co. said the bill "will make it much more difficult, if not impossible, for many of our citizens to own their own home."

Meier, D-Eules, described his proposal as "vital to Texas" in that it would enable lending institutions to acquire money to loan to their customers.

"Conventional loans have nearly dried up entirely," said Temple realtor A.C. Tuttle.

Lubbock homebuilder Sam Reyes said he has been averaging 25 homes per year but may cut back to six or seven this year because so few families can get loans.

The construction of a single home, Reyes said, affects the income of 394 individual subcontractors and suppliers.

"I firmly believe that if the usury limit in Texas was raised, and a flow of mortgage money was made available to the public, the number of homes produced and sold would automatically double," he said.

Meier introduced a video tape that asserted loans could fall off in Texas by 60 percent if the interest ceiling is not raised and even a 30 percent drop would cost 150,000 Texas workers their jobs. The usury rate of 10 percent was set in 1905.

President Harry Hubbard of the Texas AFL-CIO said the interest hike would not provide more jobs or provide housing for the lower-middle income bracket.

"Just the opposite will take place," Hubbard said. "Each time the interest rate is increased 1 percent, 3 million potential homebuyers in this country are disenfranchised because of their inability to meet the high increase in monthly house payments."

James Boyle, executive director of the consumers association, said the buyer of a $70,000 home — "a fairly typical price for Houston and Dallas — would have to spend, with 12 percent interest rates, $44,000 more than they presently do for interest alone."

Also, he said, a consumer would need $7,200 more net income a year to qualify for a $70,000 loan.

President Irving McCracken of Longview Savings and Loan Association said inflation "is now causing a $70,000 home to increase in price $466 each and every month or $15.50 each and every day. ... a home, to most people, is their only way to hedge against inflation."

McCracken said raising the interest ceiling would prevent "an inevitable economic catastrophe."

An opponent of the bill, real estate developer Joe Crow of Austin, said, "We're on the road to some sort of debacle, but I don't know what it's going to be like."

Crow said since 1966 "interest rates have been a central push behind inflation. ... Those years prior to 1966 allowed people like me to open businesses and sell property. But I shudder to think of the prospects if I were to start over in life at the interest rates allowed under this legislation."

John Scott Jr., a Granger farmer representing American Agriculture, said the organization "firmly opposes any increase in rates at any level."

"Why should elected officials support a bill that would carry us down the road to economic slavery?" Scott said.

The 10,000-member Texas Farmers Union also opposed the measure.

"I know it takes a great deal of courage to support a bill like this," said Tuttle. "If the people are not educated as to its real need, your voting for this bill could cost you the next election. Neither you nor I want this."

After the committee rejected a motion to extend the 2½-hour hearing into the afternoon, the committee sent the bill to a subcommittee, with only Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, voting "no."

Teen-Ager Sets Pageant Entry

KRESS (Special) — Patricia Lourie, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton E. Lourie of Kress, has been selected to be a finalist in the 1979 Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth June 1, 2 and 3.

The Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant is the official state final to the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in Atlanta, Ga. in August.

Peggy Norvelle of Hurst, the 1978 Miss Texas National Teen-ager, will crown the new queen.

Contestants from all over the state will be competing for the title of Miss Texas National Teen-Ager.

The reigning Miss National Teen-Ager is Barrie Burnett of Gallatin, Tenn.

Each contestant accepted will be requested to participate in the Volunteer Community Service Program of the National Teen-Ager Pageant. This program teaches teenagers to share and to participate in school and civic affairs.

A mini-modeling course will be given during the weekend of the pageant.

Winner of the Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant will receive a cash scholarship, a scholarship to Barbizon School, other prizes and an all-expense paid trip to compete in the National Teen-Ager Pageant in Atlanta. Cash scholarships of $10,000 will be awarded at the National Pageant.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement-leadership, poise-personality and beauty. There is no swim suit or talent competition.

Each contestant will recite a 100-word essay on the subject "What's Right About America."

Miss Lourie is being sponsored by Kress National Bank, Kress Lions Club, Kress Band Parents and Mr. and Mrs. Brac Jones.

Ice Gallery Fulfills Childhood Dream

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — Come spring, Ken Hall's huge ice gallery will melt in the strong Rocky Mountain sun and $5,000 and hundreds of hours of work will go down the drain.

But the 28-year-old artist says that doesn't matter. He built the 6,000-square-foot "Gallery of Ice" at the base of a Crested Butte ski lift to fulfill a childhood fantasy.

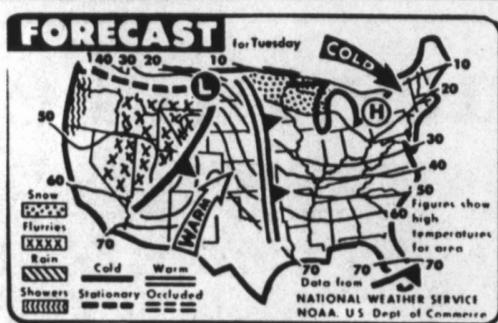

"In elementary school, I was in another world," said Hall, who calls himself Sinco Wocnis when he enters his frozen domain. "I had my fantasy world and my characters."

"I have carried on these childhood characters for 18 years and they appear in my art. They have grown up with me."

With $5,000 from Amax International Corp., a mining firm, Hall built a palace out of 200-pound blocks of ice to house numerous ice statues, including his favorite, old King Jubilee.

He's being doing the same thing for three winters now.

Near-Record High Temperature Due Today

South Plains residents will be treated to another day of balmy, springlike weather, as the mercury today is expected to climb to within a few degrees of an 80-degree record high set in 1962.

A high pressure system stretching across northwestern Texas into Oklahoma should continue the warm weather through Wednesday, before temperatures begin to cool to the 40s on Thursday.

The high today and Wednesday will be in the mid-70s, while the low tonight will be in the lower 40s. Skies will be partly cloudy today and Wednesday with southwesterly winds at 15 to 20 mph.

Relative humidity this afternoon will be 25 percent rising to 70 percent tonight.

Three Men Charged In Burglary Cases

Two young Lubbock men and an Alamo, N.M., man Monday were charged in separate burglary of habitation cases.

John Roosevelt Henderson, 24, of Alamo was accused of breaking into a 3600 27th St. residence last Thursday.

Henry Ricky Lara, 17, of 6602 Avenue O was charged with burgling a home Thursday in the 700-block of 30th Street. Armando Hernandez, 23, of 2320 18th St. was accused in the same break-in.

Charles W. Williams, 27, of 2426 24th St. was charged with possession of a controlled substance, morphine.

Mark A. Gilbertson, 19, address unavailable, was charged with theft in the reported Jan. 28 theft of a car in the 400-block of 34th Street.

Those optimistic enough to sunbathe will have about eight hours of sunshine today, and seven hours Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday's highs should only reach the 40s, as a cold front pushes its way into the area. Lows both nights should be in the 20s. Scattered showers are expected for Thursday and Saturday, with cloudy skies expected on Friday.

Jury Chosen For Retrial Of City Murder Case

A seven-man, five-woman jury was chosen Monday in the retrial of Kenneth Herndon for the Christmas 1977 slaying of W.D. Young III.

Testimony was to begin today in 99th District Court.

The first trial ended with a hung jury last September.

Jim B. Darnell, first assistant criminal district attorney, is prosecuting the case for the second time.

Gerald Anderson is the defense attorney.

Examining prospective jurors Monday afternoon, Darnell told them they would be expected to consider "the full range of punishment," which is five to 99 years or life in prison for the first-degree felony of murder.

Herndon, 36, is one of three men tried or scheduled to be tried in the shooting death of Young in the back room office of a 19th Street bar.

Kenneth Jaycon, 32, was found guilty last April and sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Jim Gordon, 42, former owner of various Lubbock nightclubs, has yet to be tried.

Tax Office Criticized On Exemptions

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Property Owners Association is in a flap with local tax authorities and a state senator over implementation of the Tax Relief Amendment passed by Texas voters in November.

Leaders of the tax-revolt group have insisted that the Lubbock city-school tax office doesn't want to give the school-tax homestead exemption mandated by the new state constitutional amendment.

D.J. Faulkner, association vice chairman, said the tax office is being "awfully quiet" about the new exemption, which is available to all homeowners regardless of age. The exemption will knock $3,000 off a home's taxable value, resulting in a savings of about $40, Faulkner said.

The catch, however, is that each homeowner must apply in writing for the exemption, said Faulkner and association president Bob Green. They said the tax office isn't doing enough to publicize the exemption-application process.

"All these exemptions that are not filed, that's just so many more they (the tax office) don't have to give," Green said.

But tax authorities insist they are trying to get out the word about the new exemption. In fact, application forms for the school-tax and over-65 exemptions will be mailed to all Lubbock homeowners before the end of the month, said John Brooks, city-school tax assessor-collector.

"We want taxpayers to get every exemption to which they are entitled," he said.

The tax department also is publicizing the new exemption by distributing application forms through civic groups. For example, thousands of forms were provided to the LPOA for distribution to its members at last week's meeting, Brooks said.

At the meeting, group members disclosed they also are at odds with state Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka, who represents Lubbock and other District 28 counties.

The rift was detailed in a series of letters read by John Smith, a member of the LPOA board of directors.

At a Jan. 16 news conference, the LPOA accused some legislators — without naming any in particular — of dragging their feet in passing bills to enact the so-called Tax Relief Amendment. Enabling legislation is needed, for instance, to carry out the amendment's intent to exempt family cars from property taxes and abolish the widely ignored constitutional mandate to tax bank accounts and other intangible property.

Short responded with a letter urging "extreme caution" in adopting such enabling legislation.

"There can be many ramifications in that serious problems could surface if immediate enactment were to prevail. The complexity of interwoven tax subjects are unlimited," Short said.

To illustrate, he said legislation written in haste might simply shift the tax burden from the state to the local level. "Shifting the tax burden is no relief at all," Short said.

The LPOA's Faulkner responded with a letter saying Short has caused the group "considerable astonishment." Faulkner accused Short of reneging on campaign promises to carry out the Tax Relief Amendment — and Faulkner asked Short to attend last week's LPOA meeting to explain.

Short then replied he definitely supports the Tax Relief Amendment — and is drafting bills to implement the amendment.

Short stressed his only concern is that the legislature "not act in haste on important legislation of this type and cause more problems than we solve."

He said he could not attend the February LPOA meeting, but would speak to the group later.

In another Tax Relief Amendment-related item at the LPOA session, state Rep. Froy Salinas asked the association's support for his bill to exempt two family cars from property taxes. Current law provides only a one-car exemption.

Salinas said his bill in effect would do away with property taxes on private vehicles.

LPOA members said they would write letters backing Salinas' proposal.

Social Security Reform Assailed

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A reform measure that would require universal coverage under Social Security has prompted strong opposition from some state and federal government employees.

Both the Teacher Retirement System of Texas and the American Postal Workers Union are actively fighting the move to bring federal employees and others not now covered under Social Security.

All full-time federal workers are currently covered under a civil service retirement plan, while state and local governmental units have the option of participating in the Social Security program.

Leonard Prewitt, executive director of the state Teacher Retirement System, explained that state and local governmental entities were left out of the system when it was established, and then later were invited to participate on a voluntary basis.

"It's our contention that it was left optional because the federal government felt it was unconstitutional for them to force a tax on an entity of the state or local government," he said.

"We question whether the Constitution has changed and whether they have the right to force it now," continued Prewitt.

The retirement system is the mandatory retirement program for all Texas teachers, explained Tony Compton, president of Lubbock Educators Association. Each school district then has the option of supplementing the program with Social Security coverage. Lubbock teachers are not covered by Social Security.

"I think the feeling of many is that the Teacher Retirement System is sound, and they're not sure about Social Security," said Compton. "That's our fear — the future of it," he said.

Starlie Pace, president of the Hub Area Local of the American Postal Workers Union said that the universal coverage proposal is just an "attempt to bail out the Social Security system."

He said that the reform measure includes three basic options for federal employees: Social Security and the civil service plan would merge so that workers would pay into both programs; workers would be brought under Social Security only, so that future workers would not receive civil service coverage and money already paid into civil service by present employees would be taken away; or workers would continue receiving their own retirement coverage, but any Social Security benefits they gained while working previously in private industries would be taken away.

"We're against any type of merger at all," said Pace. "We have our own retirement program we've paid into."

Prewitt was also concerned about the financial consequences of mandated coverage.

"It's a matter of simple economics," he said. "The state has set up a plan and members started paying in and are paying about all they can now."

"To add a compulsory Social Security tax would cost the state $230 million just for teachers and school employees. It will cause property taxes to go up in local school districts."

Prewitt also questioned whether "you can legally withdraw from a person what he's put into his career," should benefits accrued under the retirement program be taken away. "You can't take away something that was promised to them while they're working."

Prewitt said that at a recent Albuquerque, N.M., field hearing concerning Social Security changes, the 79 witnesses who testified were all opposed to universal coverage.

A series of hearings is being conducted across the country by a Health Education and Welfare independent study group to consider whether Social Security coverage should be mandated for all.

Carl Thompson, assistant manager of the Lubbock Social Security office said that the reform has been proposed because "some felt it would increase the Social Security trust fund. To me it's a poor reason."

Thompson said that he sees no gains for the trust fund in the long run under the proposed expansion. "Initially, there would be more money in the fund, but later they'll come in for the benefits," he said.

He said that another argument for mandated coverage is that Social Security "was intended to be universal coverage, so why should any one group be excluded?"

Thompson pointed out that federal employees pay more into the civil service retirement plan, but they can draw benefits at an earlier age than those covered under Social Security. Also survivors of federal workers can collect survivor's benefits at any age in contrast with the age factors involved in Social Security.

Area Judges Attend Judicial Conference

A number of area judges will take part in the West Texas Judicial Conference this week in Midland and will hear Judge Charles Barrow of the Texas Supreme Court discuss how to handle increasing case loads more efficiently.

The first annual conference was held last year in Lubbock, and 137th District Judge Robert C. Wright of Lubbock, program chairman, said a number of current issues will be taken up Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Hilton Inn in Midland.

Judge Barrow will discuss "Court Administration in Texas — Present and Future." His talk is scheduled to deal with such topics as case flow, pre-trial investigations and the examination of prospective jurors by attorneys at the opening of trial, Judge Wright said.

Judge Denny Bevers of 72nd District Court in Lubbock will discuss sentencing and probation under a plea-bargaining system. Judge Sam Callan of El Paso, where there is no plea bargaining, will discuss the system there.

Fifty-five judges from West Texas and the Panhandle are expected to attend.

AN EDITORIAL:

Roses Are Red; Budget Is Too

MANY OF the proposed cuts for FY 1980 by the federal government not only will require congressional agreement but change in substantive existing legislation, which a non-partisan political analyst promises will be "a more difficult task."

The predicted $29 billion budget deficit, observes economist Eugene McAllister, is, at best, optimistic; realistically, "tenuous."

"Many of these measures have been offered and rejected during past congresses," writes McAllister in a study released last week for The Heritage Foundation.

Furthermore, the administration's economic forecast, when compared with other prognostications, appears distinctly rosy.

CUTS OF more than $11 billion enable the administration to lower outlays below the current services estimate and produce lesser deficit. The $700 million reduction in agriculture price supports is highly dependent upon the weather, exports, and the market—all factors not easily divined.

Historically, the Presidents' budgets have been overly optimistic concerning farm price supports.

Carter also seeks legislation which would reduce school lunch subsidies by $400 million. Federal payments to school districts encompassing federal facilities, known as impact aid, will be slashed by $200 million. However, Congress has resisted such attempts in the past.

AN EDITORIAL:

Not Who's First, But Why

THE GREAT Presidential Sweepstakes for 1980 is now underway.

For those Texans who thought last Fall's contest, which got underway the previous Fall, was an "early bird" type thing, well now hear this. This State and its citizens may well wind up as one of the "crucial" ones, both for the GOP and the Democrats.

As a result, starting in a few days with the appearance of former Gov. John Connally in a blitz tour of several Texas cities, including Lubbock on Feb. 22, the 1980 campaign is officially off and running.

AS A WAG recently noted, the new Presidential primary season has one thing in common with Christmas. The "season" gets earlier and earlier.

Not only will the likes of Connally, George Bush, Ronald Reagan and Rep. Philip Crane be out beating the bushes for support on the GOP side, but most likely so will California Gov. Jerry Brown and Sen. Ted Kennedy on the other side of the fence.

In one way, the early opening of the campaign is a bit of good news. In another it is bad. By the time the first primary is held, voters ought to know what each of the can-

Two days after the budget was presented, the Washington Post reported that Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, refused to consider administration-backed cuts in social security expenditures estimated to save over one-half billion dollars in 1980.

Ullman's refusal illustrates the tenuousness of the Carter spending cuts.

OVER 30 percent of the total 1980 outlays are tied to a cost of living index. Should the actual inflation rate exceed the expected total expenditures, then the budget deficit will rise substantially.

The Carter budget, says McAllister, introduces, in the 1980 budget, a three-year perspective. Thus it is a plan for not only 1980, but 1981 and 1982 as well. There are two caveats to this encouraging prediction.

First, the '82 projections are based on the same optimistic economic and legislative assumptions as the short term budget.

Second, there are no tax cuts planned. The anticipated growth in revenues is reliant upon increased social security taxes, inflation-inspired rises in personal income, and remunerative cash management policies.

Congress will present its own budget May 15 after due review and revision by the Senate and House. Since actual appropriations will be based on the congressional version, we'll know better after May Day the economic role chosen for us by our government.

M. STANTON EVANS:

We Fail To Understand Khomeini's 'Republic'

WASHINGTON—Never underestimate the power of repetition.

Virtually every commentary on Iran, for instance, suggests that what is happening there is an attempted transition from a "monarchy" to a "republic."

The monarchy is the regime of the Shah, now traveling about the world in semi-exile; the republic, supposedly, is the kind of government that would be installed if the 78-year-old Islamic leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, at last ascends to power.

Such words, of course, are loaded with symbolic meaning for Americans. A "monarchy" is something bad—an unfree government, a virtual synonym for a dictatorship.

A "republic," on the other hand, is something good—a free and freely elected government, in which the rights of citizens are respected. A republic is the kind of government we have ourselves, a monarchy the system we broke away from in our war of independence.

SOME TIMES the usage of "republic" in reference to Khomeini's projected regime is qualified so that it reads "Islamic republic," or "religiously-oriented republic."

Still, the word "republic" is used with hypnotic frequency, clearly conveying the notion of libertarian government.

One story went so far as to say Khomeini wanted "a Western parliamentary model for Iran, with special stress on open government after so many years of the Shah's dictatorial one-man rule."

As near as anyone can figure out, such references to "republican" government under Khomeini are total balderdash.

The kind of government he envisions has nothing to do with republican rule as we conceive it or with open, parliamentary government in the West.

WHAT HE IS thinking of, in structural terms, has more in common with so-called "peoples republics" than with anything else.

A loafer is someone who tries to make both weekends meet.

'Hey--Good News--We're Breaking Even'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Teng On The Road

SEATTLE—On the eighth and last night of Teng Hsiao-ping's U.S. visit, one more symbolic piece of evidence was provided about how quickly respectable conservative opposition to the new Washington-Peking link has vanished.

Instead of standing outside in the Seattle rain protesting abandonment of anti-Communist Taiwan, leaders of the business establishment were inside at Canlis' expensive restaurant hosting a dinner for the veteran of the Communist long march of 1934.

The guest list, selected by Boeing Co. chairman T. A. Wilson, included industrial giants of the Pacific Northwest.

That was the tone of Teng's five days on tour after leaving Washington. While his stay in the capital was marked by reassurances of non-combativeness toward Taiwan and warnings about the Russian polar bear, Teng on the road was talking business.

Business leaders in the three prosperous, high-development cities visited—Atlanta, Houston and

ANDREW TULLY:

See How He Runs

WASHINGTON—Not to get personal, but people who swallow Sen. Ted Kennedy's repeated denials that he's running for President suffer from rocks in the head. Kennedy is running just as fast as his brother John ran in the spring of 1960, and in the same fashion.

One bit of business suffices to prove the thesis: Kennedy's continued public and private sniping at President Carter's new budget.

It is not necessary to cast doubt on his sincerity in seeking help for both the underprivileged and the heavily-burdened middle income sector. But in doing so he positions himself as the champion of a big bloc of voters.

Consider Kennedy's routine of popping up all over the American landscape in his campaign for national health insurance. It might be both unfair and caddish to say he is out looking for support in the Presidential sweepstakes.

BUT THE votes are there; even the $30,000-a-year father is in a bind over medical expenses. Kennedy is also indignant over what is called "tax expenditures." The phrase is government jargon for preferential tax treatment, including tax credits and special deductions.

And Kennedy is still harping on the unfairness of tax deductions permitted for "lavish meals and martini lunches for corporate executives, doctors, lawyers," and other relatively well-off citizens.

Ending those deductions, he claims, would save more than enough dough to avoid cutting funds for food stamps, school milk, and school lunch programs by $400 to $500 million.

HOWEVER THE working man in Gary, Ind. feels about those welfare programs, he doesn't want to pay the tab for martini lunches.

All this is not necessary to say that Kennedy will be running for President next year at this time. His present inclination is to avoid the primary route and stay loose for a possible draft should the other Democratic candidates cut one another to pieces.

Meanwhile, his stand on issues affecting the plain citizen gives him a rich opportunity to line up grassroots support.

In fact, Ted indeed is going the route brother John took in 1960. The late President and his helpers were fanning out around the country lining up an organization.

THEY RECRUITED enough support so that John was able to announce his candidacy on New Year's Day 1960.

It is this "image" as a man who cares more than other candidates that keeps Ted Kennedy warm as a Presidential prospect—even after the appalling incident at Chappaquiddick, an incident that cast real doubt on his personal judgment.

It is reflected in a recent Gallup Poll which reported that nationwide 62 percent of those interviewed said Jimmy Carter is a "worse" President than John Kennedy.

Such polls proclaim that the Kennedy name is still popular among the rank-and-file. And, as one of Sen. Ted's lieutenants claims, the public may well be willing to forget Chappaquiddick and judge Ted Kennedy on his politics.

Atlanta—were more than willing to respond.

The only visible opposition came from extremists (Birchers and Klansmen on the right, Maoists on the left), members of the Chinese-American community loyal to Taiwan and a few nervous politicians.

Such nervous politicians were most obvious in Texas. Republican Gov. William Clements greeted Teng at Houston with warmth that matched the winter chill.

Clements was positively bubbling, however, compared to Houston's Mayor Jim McConn, who declined to give him the key to the city on grounds that Houston and Taipei are "sister cities."

But businessmen and other leaders of the Houston establishment—including Lt. Gov. William Hobby—felt McConn had overreacted and were embarrassed by him.

HOBBY, THE STATE's senior Democratic official, introduced Teng to a steak-and-egg breakfast of newspaper editors. At that breakfast, his mother—Oveta Culp Hobby, chairman of the Houston Post—declared "we live in a changing time" that includes U.S.-Chinese "rapprochement."

Carter administration officials had feared that editors from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana would verbally assault Teng over Taiwan and Communism. Not one such query was asked.

Instead, they were concerned mainly with dollars-and-cents issues: U.S.-Chinese agreement on oil exploration, Chinese farm production, farm imports from the U.S., Chinese oil exports.

"You see," a triumphant China expert from the Carter administration proclaimed to reporters, "that's what people really care about."

ALTHOUGH NEWS reports stressed his attack on Soviet "warmongers," Teng's masterful speech to an Atlanta Chamber of Commerce luncheon emphasized how much China could learn from the people "in what you call the Sunbelt."

Such stroking of civic pride and the profit motive surpassed even anti-Soviet haranguing on Teng's road trip.

So, the final-night Seattle dinner was a natural culmination. As a piano played show tunes of the 1930s, Teng rubbed elbows with the likes of George Weyerhaeuser of the Weyerhaeuser Co.

Towering multi-millionaire David Packard, Richard Nixon's deputy secretary of defense, leaned down to exchange pleasantries with the 5-foot-2 Chinese leader sipping a Coca-Cola ("I ordered a Coke because I've got to get used to it," Teng quipped).

NO BLACKS, union chiefs or noted liberal leaders were present at the Seattle dinner, fitting the pattern of the entire trip. When a black editor at the Houston breakfast asked about Chinese ties with U.S. minority businesses, Teng brushed it off with the stock Chinese "welcome" for such contacts.

In Atlanta, he showed no interest in visiting Martin Luther King's grave and did so only after President Carter's intervention.

Business enthusiasm for Teng clearly surpassed that of what Chinese Communists call the working masses. Before his tour of the Ford plant in Marietta, Ga., there had been assembly line talk about "atheistic Communism." When Teng arrived, some workers held back from waving and looked sideways to see what their mates were doing.

Neither in foreign policy nor in attention to U.S. domestic problems did Teng share the agenda of American liberals who long advocated the Washington-Peking link.

FAR FROM ECHOING Nikita Khrushchev's role of selling Communism during his 1959 American tour, Teng uttered no word about U.S. social problems. The rest of the Chinese touring party scrupulously followed that lead.

In response, Americans encountering Teng on the road asked few embarrassing questions about Taiwan, human rights or internal Chinese politics. Barring inexplicable mainland pressure against Taiwan, there seems nothing in the China issue to benefit Carter's foes.

Teng has returned home with business approval of both his anti-Soviet and pro-development lines (contrasting with shaking knees at the State Department over his Russian-baiting).

The tough little survivor of China's bloody political wars, therefore, achieved the principal aims of his historic journey.

Donation In 'Vein'

EVERYBODY KNOWS the bills from oil-producing countries are keeping us broke. But we also pay to import something even more valuable, something we could produce ourselves—for free.

And if the price ever got so high we couldn't afford it, the national death rate would go up faster than the price of lamb chops.

It's called blood, folks. And the reason we have to buy it from foreigners is because only three percent of us respond regularly to public appeals for donors. That's about eight percent of Americans who are healthy enough to contribute.

As a result, more than 30 percent of the blood needed by hospitals and laboratories has to be imported from Europe. Health officials call this "a frightening dependency."

WHAT'S FRIGHTENING about it is that it means we are still at the mercy of the blood-for-bucks collectors who often (not always) operate out of dingy store fronts and take on almost anybody who walks in.

Or, more likely, staggers in. Because the people who can be counted on as "regulars" are usually derelict types—the winos and the bums who trade their blood for the money it takes to keep them in Thunderbird and Ripple.

People who run these places go through the motions. They take blood tests and temperatures, as required by law. But they also take the donor's word that he has never had hepatitis, is not hooked on drugs or (despite his alcoholic breath) strong drink.

If a would-be donor admits he has had hepatitis, he gets turned down—and loses the quick cash for his next drink. So guess how many tell the truth.

THAT'S WHY so many transfusion patients wind up with infectious hepatitis, no mild disease. In the past 10 years, 30,000 people have died from it, and thousands more have livers damaged beyond repair.

There's a catch-22 in here, too. Even the medical profession admits blood transfusions are risky, and yet they use them more and more every year. Technically, it makes sense, because researchers keep finding new ways for somebody else's blood to keep us alive.

In transfusions, there's a difference between what commercial blood bankers call the "red stuff" and the "yellow stuff."

The "red stuff" is whole blood or red-cells concentrate, which has 21-day storage life and is used mostly in surgery. The demand for this is growing by 10 percent a year.

THE "YELLOW stuff" is the plasma, which can be separated from the whole blood, then frozen and stored for two years.

Hospitals can't keep ahead of the demand for this "liquid gold" because, by "fractionating," it can be broken down into dozens of different life-saving components.

Doctors can depend on it to help control bleeding during brain and spinal surgery, keep skin grafts from slipping, treat leukemia and cancer, keep burn victims alive, control hemorrhaging in hemophiliacs, and immunize against rubella, polio, and perhaps even infectious hepatitis itself.

The modern trend is to avoid whole blood transfusions and instead give patients only the components they need. Ten years ago a blood donation helped a single patient; today with fractionation, it can treat as many as five or six.

TROUBLE IS, there's not always enough to go around.

Back in the old days, blood programs operated on a "credit system," where you could give blood and then, at a later date, draw on your donation record if you or one of your family needed a transfusion.

Then, in 1972, the federal government set up a policy of "total coverage," giving each community the responsibility to make blood available to anybody who needs it, with special emphasis on high quality and low cost.

And the more volunteers communities can attract, the less dependent they will be on iffy commercial donors, with their high rate of contaminated blood.

Our only other source is Euroblood, which is tested as rigorously as volunteer donations, but which is also as subject to international market fluctuations as coffee and sugar.

And even non-profit blood centers have to pass along higher prices.

VOLUNTEERS NOT only give, they also get. Every blood donor is given a mini-medical exam for free, including blood pressure, hemoglobin count, temperature, tests for hepatitis and syphilis, medical history, and an ID card listing his blood type.

If you turn up with a rare-blood disease, this is your ticket to the most extensive rare-donor files in the world. And if the tests show you have any other blood disease, they'll send you a letter—but not a bill.

It's the kind of bargain that carries a double whammy: It not only saves other lives, it could save yours.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

IN OLD Rome, it was the men more than the women who gussied up their looks with makeup. And they got pretty cute with it, too. They traced the veins in their arms with blue paint, for one thing.

They also darkened their eyebrows. But the niftiest turn-on in their way of thinking was the little cosmetic trick of putting red rouge on their kneecaps. How about that, Bruce!

A few hours ago—from this writing—an Arabi-an visitor to Fort Worth, Texas, bought a shiny new van equipped with all the options. But he did not perfectly understand all the options, that's now clear.

Wheeling along a main thoroughfare, he pressed the cruise control button, and thinking it was an automatic pilot, slid out of the driver's seat and stepped into the back of the van to tend to other matters.

How that shiny van rolled and rolled after plunging through the guard rail! Poor fellow was hurt, and seriously too.

Q. "Can't you tell a buck's age by the points on its antlers?"

A. No way. Number of points changes from year to year. Maybe 10 one year, then eight the next, or vice versa.

One out of every five people who have braces on their teeth is somebody over age 18.

Magnet School At Junior-High Level Proposed

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Parents are asking the Lubbock Independent School District to establish another "magnet" program, this one for junior-high students.

A broad-based coalition of parents says the district should fill the gap between the innovative program that has been so successful at Iles Elementary and the special college-prep curriculum being planned for Lubbock High.

The group Thursday will ask the school system's board of trustees for the "missing link" — enrichment of a junior high school with high-level courses and an "open education" philosophy.

Many members of the coalition favor locating such a program at under-enrolled Thompson Junior High. As a magnet, the program would accept voluntary transfers from throughout the city.

The group met Monday night to continue preparing its request. The coalition includes parents involved in Iles, Lubbock High, local "open concept" public elementary schools, progressive private schools and Thompson Junior High. Some Texas Tech University educators also have assisted the group.

Members have drafted a list of 20 points supporting a junior-high magnet program. The group, which will make a five-minute presentation to the school board, believes such a program should be designed now, in conjunction with the Lubbock High magnet.

"To make the Lubbock High program successful, an exemplary education program (at the junior-high level) is badly needed next year," a position paper drafted by coalition members says.

"An exemplary program complementary with the programs at Iles and at Lubbock High is needed to accommodate the needs of students coming out of elementary schools throughout the city.

"The enrollment and the waiting list at Iles exceeded everyone's expectations and prove that a large percentage of parents want a choice and an alternative. There is an even greater interest at the junior high level.

"It would seem logical, easier and less expensive and more effective to implement all six secondary grades in one single project so all programs can be coordinated and not have to be redone later."

The Iles Elementary magnet, instituted for desegregation purposes, is a partnership between the school district and Texas Tech. Iles stresses a non-racial, self-paced format and employs numerous educational innovations.

The Lubbock High magnet, still in the planning stage, may offer several exotic courses as ballet, gymnastics and equestrian skills; a more challenging approach to traditional subjects; special curriculum to prepare aspiring doctors, dentists, lawyers and engineers for college; and such things as small classes and guest lecturers. Lubbock has another magnet school at the senior-high level — Dunbar-Struggs. The school system has concentrated its work-study vocational programs and music-art courses there to draw more students and create a better racial mix.

Some parents, especially in the integration-minded Citizens' Alliance for Successful Schools, contend that the Lubbock High proposal is evidence that the school system is turning Dunbar-Struggs into a vocational school. School officials deny that.

Betty Dotts, who has two children at Iles, said a junior-high magnet program is needed to accommodate Iles graduates.

"We have found Iles to be a great help because of the individualized attention offered to each child," Mrs. Dotts said. "Iles has combined the best of the traditional ideas in education with the best of the innovative ideas.

"But where are these children going to go when they finish sixth grade? I'm afraid they may end up in a junior high school that's too highly structured, where children are taught in mass. That is why I think we need an alternative program at the junior-high level."

Linda McGowan, another parent involved in the junior-high request, said the group is asking for a junior high school that is "more flexible, more geared to the individual."

Such a program for grades seven through nine would "fill the gap" between Iles and Lubbock High, she said.

Thomas Botello, a Thompson parent who serves on a citizens' advisory committee for the Lubbock High magnet, said a special junior-high program would give students preparation for the advanced courses available at Lubbock High.

"It's a natural progression. The school system would see a good flow of students from Iles to the junior-high magnet to Lubbock High," Botello said.

According to the coalition's position paper, "if one of Lubbock's under-enrolled junior high schools were utilized, a junior-high exemplary program could help alleviate the overcrowding of some junior highs and at the same time alleviate the under-enrollment."

School trustees will consider the request when they meet Thursday at 7:15 a.m. in the school district administration building, 1628 19th St.

Advertisers Honored With Addy Awards

Winners in the 1978 American Advertising Federation Addy Awards competition were recognized at a banquet Monday sponsored by the Lubbock Advertising Foundation in the University City Club.

Chas. A. Guy, former editor of The Avalanche-Journal, served as master of ceremonies for the program, which is a yearly highlight for Lubbock advertisers.

Winning entries chosen by the organization become eligible to be judged along with top selections from other advertising clubs in District 10 (Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and the northern half of Louisiana). Winners at that level then will compete in a national contest of the American Advertising Federation.

The awards are presented for 15 different categories, including public relations, sales promotion, public service, specialty advertising, print material, outdoor, transit, direct mail, farm publication, business publication, consumer magazine, newspaper, radio, television, and complete campaign.

This year's Best of Show award was presented to Gene Messer Ford, Don Crow Chevrolet and P.P.A. Inc.

In the public relations classification, the winner was Hemphill-Wells, which received an Addy, second place and honorable mention for entries. In the sales promotion category, Addy awards were presented for the following: point of purchase, Wold Air Brush Manufacturing, Robert John Allen; sales kits, dealer aids, Corky's Restaurant, Market Media.

Public service: single entry, print, Citibus, P.P.A. Inc. Specialty advertising: budget under $5,000, Northern Star Seed, P.P.A. Inc.

Print material: catalogs, Bluechip Gifts, Steve Andrews; brochures, Sam Reyese Construction, B.J.'s Advertising Art Ink; house magazines, College of Business Administration, Steve Andrews; letterhead, logo or trademark design, Treadmill, Market Media; annual reports, Lubbock National Bank, Womack, Claypoole, Griffin.

Outdoor: junior posters, Citibus, P.P.A. Inc.; outdoor campaign, Lubbock Cable TV, Market Media.

Direct mail: local single direct mail piece, Lokey's Farm & Ranch World, United Marketing Services; regional-national single direct mail piece, Skibell's.

Airline Schedules Flights To Hobbs

A-J Correspondent
HOBBES, N.M. — Beginning March 1, 19-passenger turbo-prop Swearingen Metro II planes will begin serving Hobbs, according to Gary Adamson, president of Air Midwest, an airline based in Wichita, Kan.

The planes can carry a payload of 12,500 pounds, or 19 passengers and cargo. Planes will be pressurized and they will carry full radar equipment.

Since the first week of January, Crown Airlines of Clovis, N.M., has been serving Hobbs as well as Carlsbad and Clovis with nine-passenger, twin-engine Navajos. Texas International Airlines cut off service to Carlsbad and Clovis the last week of December and a week later stopped service to Hobbs.

The new airline will have non-stop flights from Hobbs to Lubbock and one-stop service to Albuquerque, N.M.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am the mother of a three-month-old baby. Recently I noticed my hair falling out — slightly but enough to bother me. Is this caused from a hormone change because of the pregnancy, or could it mean something else? I don't want to go bald. — Mrs. A.G.

Don't push any panic button. Hair loss after a pregnancy is not unusual. It can occur with a normal pregnancy, and could be related to many events, including, as you suspect, hormonal changes. Some temporary loss occurs sometimes after surgery. Some anesthetics contribute to the problem.

In such situations regrowth occurs without any special treatment, although it can be a painfully slow process for some women. The growth rate is usually about a half an inch a month — so be patient.

Meanwhile, you should avoid massage, vigorous combing and excessive shampooing. Dry your hair gently on a low setting and avoid hair styles that require a lot of manipulation and stretching. If the loss becomes extensive, a wig should tide you over the balding months.

long all this has been going on — months? Years? Most women complete menopause by 50, but some (about 25 percent) continue menstruation well past that age.

Your erratic periods may be due to non-physical factors. Extreme mental stress such as that preceding your divorce may have contributed. Nor do you indicate what you mean by long menstrual periods. More than eight days is considered excessive. The skipped and prolonged periods can be a part of the hormone changes that occur at this time in a woman's life, and it has nothing to do with your heart, so you can stop worrying about that.

How about a Pap test? Many women past childbearing age abandon such things. They shouldn't, especially if they have your symptoms. The booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," discusses changes women can expect at this time in more detail than I can go into here. If you want to study it, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My problem is in my right arm. When I do strenuous work it aches. The aching goes away, then returns. It has begun aching at night. I use one of the rubs, and it helps some for relief. But it still keeps me awake. Can you suggest something? — Mrs. C.

I can't tell at this distance what might be wrong. It would appear from your description to be a local problem, like bursitis. If so, the rubs are not the total answer. You may need to rest the joint causing the trouble. Another possibility is a circulation problem, even angina pectoris which does not always produce left-sided pain. In that case, the pain might occur whether or not you use the arm.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I think I have hypothyroidism, but don't know what to do about it. I am scared to see a doctor because it might be nothing at all. What would I say to the doctor? I always have trouble trying to tell doctors what is wrong. Do I say, "I think I have hypothyroidism"? I really want to get this corrected. — K.S.

You don't have to have a ready-made self-diagnosis in order to see the doctor. All you need to do is tell him what your symptoms are, but you'll have to be a bit more specific than you are in your letter. If you have a vague and continuing feeling of malaise and cannot pinpoint any specific complaint beyond that, then that is all you need to report. The doctor will take over from there. There are more reasons for just feeling rotten than hypothyroidism (low thyroid activity) — anemia, for example.

North's three spade bid was forcing and asked South to cue bid if South had anything better than a minimum opening. This is very modernistic, but quite reasonable when you play that two-level responses are always good hands.

South's four-diamond bid carried this slam idea rather far, but he did have two good suits and a singleton in the unbid one.

North's four-heart bid accepted the idea of a slam and South took off for the stratosphere with that same 12-point hand he had been dealt.

The slam is a good one, but things started out badly when East produced the ace of clubs to cover dummy's king and led a second club.

South ruffed and played king and queen of trumps. His plan had been to ruff a third diamond with dummy's ace of trumps, but when trumps broke 4-1 that plan had to be abandoned.

South led a third trump, cashed dummy's king of diamonds, led a diamond to his queen, cashed his last trump to pull East's 10 and had his slam since that last trump lead squeezed West out of either heart or diamond protection. This lucky heart-diamond squeeze had overcome the bad luck in clubs, spades and diamonds.

Ask the Experts

A Maine reader asks if there is such a bridge term as "Fourchette."

It is an obsolete term for a tenace such as ace-queen or king-jack.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Why can't a person leave this world when he is ready by simply taking a pill and going to sleep forever? I am sure many people would welcome such a blessed release. Why haven't doctors thought of this? When animals suffer it is considered merciful to put them to sleep.

I believe every doctor should be permitted to give his patients the same considerations animals get. Don't you? — A Reader in St. Louis.

Dear Louis: Every year thousands of people do exactly what you have suggested. It is called suicide.

The flaw in your reasoning is this: A great many pills can be obtained by prescription only because people must be protected against killing themselves while in a depressed state or at a time when they are suffering temporary physical pain or emotional distress.

A great many people who are alive and enjoying life today will tell you there have been times when they would have taken a handful of pills if they had them — and it's a good thing they didn't. Death is so permanent.

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sad when some kid wrote and asked you to jot down a few hundred words for him on a certain subject. He was trying to get you to do his homework. He called you "Mom."

You told him that gag had been pulled before and you weren't going to fall for it. Then you said, "And I'm not your mother."

I wish you hadn't said the last part. I wonder if you know how many kids look to you as their mother. Some of them don't have moms and others have moms they can't talk to. Everybody can talk to you and that's what makes you so wonderful!

I know a kid whose mom drinks a lot and he can't discuss anything with her. He makes believe you are his mom and he really pays attention to what you say. Almost all the ideas he has about life he got from your column. So please put yourself in the place of some of those kids. You are the closest thing to a mom they have. They love you. — Ruth T.

Dear Ruth: Thanks for cutting me down to size. I deserved it. I should have been flattered instead of sarcastic. My apologies.

Dear Ann: One of my dad's best friends is his old college roommate who I have known as "Uncle Bill" all my life. This man has always been very good to me and never fails to bring a small gift when he visits with us about four times a year.

My problem is that Uncle Bill is a gynecologist in another state. Dad plans for us to go visit him next month and while there, he wants Uncle Bill to give me a complete female examination. Dad is concerned that I might develop cancer of the cervix which claimed my mother last year.

I can understand the need for me to have an examination even though I'm only 16, but I don't want a man I have known so well to examine me. I've told Dad I'd be very embarrassed not only during the examination but afterwards.

Dad thinks I should be more at ease because the doctor would not be a complete stranger. I'm sure he won't change his mind unless I can show him your answer, which I hope will be in my favor. — Jill Of Chapel Hill

Dear Jill: Tell your dad he has never been a 16-year-old girl and is not qualified to make this judgment. I have — and I'm with you.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK — Since the official NBC confirmation that "Another World" will become the first 90-minute daytime TV serial on March 5, the show has been busy expanding storylines and adding new cast members.

Joe Hindy has been cast in the returning role of Burt McGowan, who returned to Bay City after a year in Japan to discover that his wife, Clarice, has found a new love interest in former ranchhand Larry Ewing. Bruce Gray (ex-Neal Chapman on the defunct "High Hopes") is portraying Dexter Parsons, Gwen Frame's former beau who has joined her in a scheme for Gwen to win back her estranged husband, Willis. Sandy Faison, who currently plays Daddy Warbucks' secretary in the Broadway hit, "Annie," joined "AW" as a model named Romana. And Gwen's New York pal, Faith Lewis, is portrayed by Peggy (c.q.) Price, while baby Amanda Cory is played by Nicole Catalano. You can expect further additions in the next month.

From California's "The Young and the Restless" comes word that Casey and Nikki Reed's long-lost father, Nick, will pop up in the story, played by Quinn Re-deker. Jaime, Derek Thurston's traumatized and institutionalized son, is played by Gordon Haight. The sad news from "Y & R" is that John McCook (Lance Prentiss) has separated from his real-life wife, dancer-actress-singer Juliet Prowse. The off-screen romance of David Hasselhoff (Snapper Foster) and Roberta Leighton (Casey Reed) has progressed to the "wedding bells planning stage."

Another backstage romance, this time in Manhattan, has blossomed between "As the World Turns" castmates Marie Masters (Susan Stewart) and Robert Lipton (Jeff Ward). Marie was linked to another co-worker, John Reilly (ex-Dan Stewart). But that love chain encountered absentee problems since John moved to Hollywood for nighttime TV assignments. It's difficult maintaining a long-distance relationship, although Marie and John visit each other occasionally, while Lipton escorts other beauties to Big Apple nightspots. Still, the sparks that fly between Marie and Bobby prompted one "ATWT" cast member to predict that the couple will soon announce "serious" intentions for each other.

Tune in tomorrow to see whether doctors Susan and Jeff become an "item."

THE MAILBAG:

Have the character of Amanda and Greg Peters left "Days of Our Lives" for good? And is Trish Banning's return temporary or permanent? — B.C., Philadelphia, Pa.

"DOOL" informs that Amanda and Greg will pop up periodically as guest stars on the soap, but they will remain in Chicago, far from the Salem happenings. Actress Patty Weaver was finally convinced by the producers to sign a new two-year contract as Trish after she'd been off the show for over a year. But remember that nothing is permanent in soap operaland.

What's been happening with ex-"One Life to Live" stars Luke Reilly (Richard Abbott) and Jill Voigt (Becky Abbott)? I miss them a lot. — D.T., Nelsonville, Ohio

So do hundreds of other fans. However, Reilly is busy scouting "bigger" career game, while Voigt is trying to find another job after being axed from the serial. The characters of Richard and Becky are due to return top "OLTL" within the next few weeks, but the producers are testing new actors for the roles.

No mention is ever made of Tom Hughes on "As the World Turns" since he was sent to Switzerland on business. Will Tom return? — G.W., St. Paul, Minn.

"ATWT" has a tendency to send characters off screen for extended periods, then ship them back to the story with new actors. There are no current plans to have Tom return to Oakdale, however. Movie actress Shelly Duvall and soap opera actress Victoria Wyndham (Rachel on "Another World") look enough alike to be sisters. Are they? — R.E., Detroit, Mich.

Wyndham does have a sister who was once an actress but is now a housewife, but she isn't Shelly Duvall and Duvall is not related to Wyndham.

Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune In Tomorrow," 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Pat Walker Invites You For A

Ms. Clifton tried it. This is her story . . .

I walked into Pat Walker's Figure Salon in Lubbock, ready to try one more time to lose weight. I had tried everything else, even to having surgical staples put in my ears.

After my courtesy treatment, the counselor explained the Pat Walker figure correction program to me. When she assured me that the program was guaranteed, I felt I had finally found the solution to my figure problems.

When I began my program at Pat Walker's Figure Salon, I weighed 178 lbs. and wore a size 20 dress. Today I weigh 126 lbs. and wear a size 8 dress. My life style has changed completely because today I can do "skinny" things. I can't wait for summer so I can lounge around the pool in my new size 8 bikini!

Ms. Clifton is now owner of a Pat Walker' Salon

Misdemeanor Attorney To Join Montford Staff

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney John Montford scored another victory Monday in his much-publicized quest for thorough and efficient administration of justice.
Citing ever-increasing misdemeanor case loads and his commitment to prosecute all criminal matters, Montford persuaded the Lubbock County Commissioners' Court to amend his office's budget to include an additional attorney at an annual salary of $14,400.
"Last year there were 7,000-plus misdemeanor cases dismissed (in Lubbock County)," Montford said. "What I'm trying to avoid is the situation of having to clear misdemeanor cases."
The district attorney said he mistakenly believed during the budget preparations that an additional administrator and investigator would suffice to handle the misdemeanor load.
"We are trying twice as many cases (as in prior years)," he told the commissioners. "We cannot handle the existing misdemeanor case load without an additional misdemeanor attorney."
The newly-budgeted position, made effective Feb. 1, will expand to 15 the staff of attorneys employed in the district attorney's office, Montford said. He added that he plans to hire a lawyer by Friday to fill a fourth position in the misdemeanor division.

After agreeing to Montford's request, the commissioners listened to a lengthy presentation by Hal Hensley, chief administrator to the district attorney's office, who successfully argued the need for more office equipment to speed the processing of cases.
Hensley requested a word processing data system and a copier.
The copier will cost no more than the present system, he said, and will return an estimated $300 per month in revenue to the county from copying costs to defend attorneys.
Hensley justified the word processing data system by saying it will take secretaries about two weeks to process the forms of the 122 people indicted by the grand jury last week, whereas the desired machine could perform the chore in several hours.

In another budget amendment matter, the commissioners voted to increase to $14,800 the annual salary of the Lubbock County Chief Deputy Tax Assessor-Collector, a raise of approximately $1,600, effective Feb. 1.
The commissioners approved the salary increase after praising the tax assessor's office for its vastly improved reputation for efficiency and responsiveness.
Earlier in the afternoon, the court, led by commissioner Coy Biggs, inspected the central power unit supplying heat and hot water to the County Court House, the Lubbock County Jail and the future jail currently under construction.
The power unit, which the county is in the process of purchasing from private contractors, was criticized by Biggs, who pointed out numerous trouble spots and potential dangers during a 45-minute visit.
But Gary Keyton, president of Keyton Mechanical Co., the installer and present owner of the boiler equipment, said the items Biggs pointed out "are minor things that happen with any of these jobs. There's nothing major involved."

George Scott, the maintenance engineer for the county court house and jail, agreed with Keyton, terming leaking joints the major problem.
Keyton said the cost of the mechanical equipment his company installed was $316,000, and added that "hopefully" the county would finish purchasing it Monday.
Maeker told the commissioners the cost of hooking up an emergency generator to the existing jail will be $676, but added that the auxiliary unit will not be able to service both the present and the new jail, once the construction of the latter is completed.
The commissioners did not contest this statement but said that the existing facility must not be deprived of lighting or elevator service if the power should fail.
Asked about the progress of Lubbock County in responding to the TCJS report, which cited 34 areas of non-compliance with state standards at the county jail, Maeker said, "Most of those items cannot be adequately clarified. They have to do with the physical construction of the jail."

The state officials understand the situation and realize the county is in the process of constructing a new jail to remedy the problems, the county architect said.
Maeker said he expects the new jail to be operating in about one year.
In another matter, the commissioners approved the continuation of a Lubbock County contract with Harmony Cottage, a temporary detention center for juvenile status and minor offenders. Lloyd Watts, juvenile probation officer for Lubbock County, told the court that the contract was identical to that of prior years except that the daily cost per juvenile would increase from $12 to $15.
Lubbock County maintains four reserved spaces at Harmony Cottage, Watts said, with the maximum daily cost amounting to $60.

Franchise Proposal Comments Solicited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government wants would-be investors in franchises to have more information, and now is the time to write if you have some suggestions.
Feb. 20 is the deadline for comments on the Federal Trade Commission's proposed franchise disclosure rule, which is scheduled to take effect July 21.
Comments and suggestions should be sent to John Tifford, Room 221, Federal Trade Commission Building, Sixth and Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Washington, D.C., 20580.
The rule will cover various types of franchises including fast foods, car washes, car and truck rentals, beauty salons, motels, auto dealerships, service stations, vending machine routes and others.
Advance information will have to be provided on a variety of subjects including:
*Business experience, as well as the litigation and bankruptcy history, of the franchisor and its key management personnel.

*Costs, both initial and recurring, which the investor is required to pay.
*Statistical information on the number of franchises and company-owned outlets.
*Termination, cancellation and renewal provisions of the franchise agreement.
*Number of franchises terminated during the past year and the reasons for their termination.
*Restrictions imposed by the company on the manner in which the business may be operated. This includes restrictions on such things as the type of goods that can be sold, suppliers that can be used and the geographic area in which the franchise may operate.
*Franchises must have a reasonable basis, prepared according to accepted accounting principles.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelsohn, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET INDEX

Mart Mixed In Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Domestic and Canadian energy stocks continued their recent rally Monday while the rest of the market turned in a mixed showing.

Trading dropped off to its slowest pace since the first session of 1979 with many banks and other financial institutions closed for Lincoln's birthday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 3 points at the outset, showed a 2.51 gain at 824.84 by the close.

Losers just barely nosed out gainers in the over-all count on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the victory of followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in Iran over the weekend did not come as a real surprise to investors.

"Since the market abhors uncertainty and can quickly adjust to reality, the apparent resolution of the conflict there could be more of a plus than a minus," said Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton Co.

Aside from the energy sector, most major stock groups were mixed for the day.

'Outlaw Trail' Leads To Mining Town

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of six articles reprinted from the book, "The Outlaw Trail," by Robert Redford and Jonathan Blatz, copyright (c) 1976 by Robert Redford. All rights reserved. Published by permission of Grosset and Dunlap Inc. Distributed by United Feature Syndicate Inc.

By ROBERT REDFORD

The way down to Casper was hideously marred by an almost freakish mutation in the beautiful yawning expanse of space and plain. As far as the eye could see were the slow undulating pump drills, untended, ghostlike, 4,000 in all. We were struck by this violation of the landscape — an example of man's rush to develop and then leave for greener things. I thought it harkened back to the gold rush — the early boom towns, the quick pitching of tents, exploration, quick exploitation and rushing on.

As we drove through the tangled abandon of power lines, oiled roads, pumps and shacks, the route moved laterally from Casper and took us west to Shoshone, Riverton, Thermopolis (where the original bar built by the Wild Bunch at Hote-in-the-Wall now stands) and finally to Lander, which is the base camp, more or less, for rigorous trips into the Wind River Range. The Wind River is one of the most exciting ranges in the Western Hemisphere. It is one of only two ranges in America (the High Sierras is the other) where you can find golden trout in cold, high, untroubled lakes.

Just outside of Lander on the climb up to the point that marks the Continental Divide is a small forgotten town called Atlantic City, Wyo., an old mining town seven miles off the main route. A slightly marked dirt road leads into a cup of a valley where, to our amazement, everything seemed to have been preserved as in an old tintype.

There is only one hub of activity in Atlantic City. It is the Mercantile, a combination bar and general store where one can get any supplies needed to survive or thrive. Here one is instantly cast back to the era of suspended store clerks with rumped cowboy hats, high collars, moustaches and haircuts that left naked the ears (and quite a bit of scalp around them), and the wide-eyed stares of people who looked on a camera as some crazy new invention.

We went inside and there at the bar was Terry Minger. He had been waiting for us for hours and was probably thinking all this was a great put-on. Terry is the town manager of Vail, Colo., a stocky, bearded man in his early 30s with an obvious taste for adventure. He had been told to show up in Atlantic City on Oct. 16 and wait in the bar. I acknowledged his sense of sport in following such sketchy directions.

Terry Wehrman, shy and gentle, is a young transplant from the East who tends bar and acts as all-around city councilman for Atlantic City. Barkeep, mailman, cook, father, confessor, keeper of the good will, he is one of the many young men and women who have turned their backs on the shopping-center mentality of modern city planning to strike out on their own. They, like their migrant predecessors the Linkhorns, the Okies, the Mormons and other early settlers, are starting out from scratch.

At first it seemed hard to get any of the locals to talk. In spite of the geniality, there was that distinct skepticism one always finds when traveling through small towns in rural America. It's a gentle straight-arm against intrusion, a protection against more sophisticated strangers who ask too much, want to get too close.

Arensmeier commented on how peaceful it seemed here, how low key. "I feel comfortable," he said.

"You see," Wehrman offered, "the good thing about Atlantic City is it's a ghost town and no one wants it. Lifestyle here is good 'cause it has attracted the good people, young ones who don't want to work for anybody but are willing to work for themselves."

"How do the older folks feel about it?" I asked Wehrman.

"Good. At first, they were a little nervous, skeptical. There aren't many folks here period, you know, and I'm sure they were worried. The older folks have come to like us and feel at one with us."

"Only time we have trouble is when some outsiders come here from the bigger areas. We get fights and broken stuff. It's no good."

There, along with three other locals in Pendleton woolen shirts, suspenders, overalls and hunter caps, was an old-timer named Larry Roupe. He sounded like a frog with laryngitis. I went over and asked him if I could buy him a beer. He turned a jaundiced squint at me, cocked his head and said, "Who the hell are ya?"

I told him I was someone just passing through who loved the area, particularly its history, and wanted to know more.

"Sure you can buy me one."

The release cue seemed to be that I wanted to listen to him. People do love to talk — most of them.

I asked him where he was from and how he had gotten here.

"I came in on the Immigrant Trail, or the Oregon Trail. There are two branches. One goes between Walcott, Wyo., and Saratoga, the other branch cut up from Sweetwater to Soutlon Pass and on over to Bridger, Wyo. Them Mormons was jes' headin' up that pass when they froze here."

"What happened?" I asked.

"Well, it was them pushcart Mormons (Mormons who walked behind wagons and pushed handcarts all the way from Navoo, Ill., during their great pioneer trek). A lot of people wonder how you could freeze to death in September. But if you can live here, you know. Early storm can come and catch ya. And it can come after the prettiest warm day. It was — I can't remember if it was after the Civil War or before.

"The real bad one was Harvey Logan. He was a bad one. There was three Logan brothers from Montana. Harvey used the alias Kid Curry. Killed Ol' Man Pike up there in Montana, then he robbed this train down on the Wilcox. Butch and Sundance weren't in on that one."

I noticed that Larry assumed I knew where and what these names and places were, as if they were all common knowledge. The small world of the cowboy.

"Why were there so many outlaws in his country then?"

"Well, there was gold in the country and it was easy to rob a stagecoach goin' up a grade, then ride on it and hold up the train on the way up the pass... Logan was a mean son-of-a-gun — jes' as soon kill ya as look at ya. They said he beat the engineer over the head with a six-shooter... He was somethin'."

"What do you think about what's happened to Atlantic City?"

"Oh it's nothin' now. Just a ghost town, lad. And, ya know' — he leaned forward here and his voice became conspiratorial as he shot a look at the bar where the "new pioneers" stood talking with our group of "invaders" — "people jump on that a lot around here, ya know. They try and make it into somethin'. Over in Lander, they even advertise it and all. But it's jes'...it's all jes' a bunch of goof."

He leaned forward again, his eyes widening eagerly. "These mountains are gonna be here when lots more generations have come and long gone. I'm an old man. These mountains aren't gonna change — why don't they leave it alone? People in fancy contraptions pushin' in all over, tryin' to hunt somethin' to hang on a wall, and the government boys runnin' around sayin' 'Don't do this and don't do that.' There's enough for everybody if people would jes' hunt what they need to eat and the government would back off some. But so many people goofin', no respect. Everybody's too interested in development. New timber has grown up around a lot of these old spots. You take Ute Pass. Last time I was in there — 'bout 35 years ago — everything had fallen down but the jail. And those bottles. I remember there was three saloons there once — all gone now. Probably ain't nothin' there today but the wind and a bunch of squirrels."

He was really rolling now.

"Now I could tell ya things about this country no one knows if we got down to business. Things like the Big Die-up. That was the Big Blizzard of '06, '07. Froze near everyone here. Knew some of the ol'-timers that survived it, and they said if you walked across the state of Kansas into Colorado you could step on one dead animal after another. Ol' Flynn — this ol'-timer that's been dead for years — he had 18,000 head of cattle. Lost 'em all. Lost two cowboys too. Froze to death sittin' in the saddle up on Sand Creek Pass."

"Alex Swan had the T-Bar outfit then. He was mixed up with Tom Horn in the Swan Land and Cattle Company deal." I asked what he remembered about Tom Horn, one of the most controversial, mysterious and fascinating characters in Western history.

"Well, he was hung before I was born. I was born in 1906 and they hung him in 1903."

"He was hung in Laramie, wasn't he?"

"No, Cheyenne."

"Was he framed?" I asked. A lot of people thought he was framed, that he really hadn't killed Willie Nichols. "Do you think he killed the boy?"

"Damn right. He admitted it, didn't he?"

I reminded him that a lot of people felt his confession had been tricked out of him while he was drunk.

"Naw, he was a braggart when he got to drinkin'. He cut up that kid with that knife and of Hailey sent him down to Brown's Park and that's where he killed ol' Matt Rash."

Matt Rash was a nephew of Davy Crockett. He was also a noted rustler much wanted by the cattlemen. In 1900 Horn ambushed him as he stepped out of his cabin in Brown's Park.

"Then he killed that one-armed Owens out of Laramie, who was a woman, the one the big cowmen tried to run off her homestead. The cowmen didn't want to see these homesteaders in there. That's what started the Johnson County War."

"Do you think ranching is going out?"

"It's been out for a long time. Real ranchin' went out in Tom Horn's time." He let out a long, slow breath and became silent.

"What do you do now, Larry?"

"Oh, nothin'. Mosey around Lander sometimes. Don't much care for it there. People, new people comin' in, look at me funny. Lots of folks around these days. Don't know what's got into people."

I said goodbye to Larry Roupe and thanked him for a rewarding conversation.

"Sure, lad. Any time."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

The ideal Valentine gift for your Grandma who has everything is a "Date Book."

Get a small date book, have all the relatives and friends who would like to give her something write a date in the book (when they want to give her something or take her out) and then each week Grandma will know if someone will take her to eat or shopping or just come over for a visit.

This gives her something to look forward to and helps keep her active all year round. — Delores Asel

I'm sure your grandmother really loves and appreciates your thoughtfulness. You are both fortunate in your love for each other. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I always have a problem separating navy blue and black threads, especially if I have to do any sewing at night. But I have discovered a way to tell them apart.

I gathered all the navy blue thread (spools, bobbins, etc.) along with a needle and thimble and put them in a separate container (mine happens to be a large cleansing cream jar).

Now when I need to sew or mend, especially in the evening, I can reach for the jar and know I have the right thread and not confuse it with black. — Martha Martin

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:

I love your column — and am glad to see you are carrying on in your mother's footsteps. I started reading Heloise 10 years ago when I got married and am a devoted fan along with your thousands of other friends.

I also have most of the Heloise books. If it weren't for Heloise, I would have thrown out uncounted shower curtains because I couldn't get them clean!

Keep up the good work. The domestic engineers of America need you! — Carol B. Smith

DEAR HELOISE:

I thought you'd get a kick out of this. It does sound funny but it is a good hint.

I was reading your column while soaking my sore finger in a thermos bottle of hot salt water. (Use an old discarded thermos with wide mouth.)

It will keep the water hot for as long as you want to sit there.

When you are as clumsy as I am and always hurting yourself, you have to think up ways that are easy and convenient for taking care of your sore spots.

Keep the hints coming, we all love your column. — Marge

DEAR HELOISE:

I like to cook and bake and during my years I have collected a lot of my best recipes from the backs of bottles, packages and cans.

If I got money for the compliments I received on my pumpkin pies, I would be rich. I got the recipe from the back of a can.

When a product gives a recipe you can bet it is good. Most of the goodies (recipes) are on your pantry shelf.

Just read all those labels, ladies, and you are bound to come up with something that is mouth-watering. — Vesta

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Lubbock Slated To Receive Tax From Drinkers

More than $394,000 was spent on mixed drinks in Lubbock County during the last three months of 1978, and the City of Lubbock will benefit to the tune of $58,397, according to figures released by State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Texas counties and cities will receive $4.8 million as their share of the 10 percent gross receipts tax on mixed drinks for the taxes collected in the last quarter of 1978, Bullock said.

The balance of the tax money collected — $11.8 million — will remain in the State General Revenue Fund.

Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks seven years ago.

More than a half-billion dollars was spent in Texas last year to buy mixed drinks, generating $65.3 million for state, county and local governments. This is $11.2 million more than was collected in 1977.

Other area cities benefiting from the mixed drink tax include Andrews, $623; Dimmitt, $811; Hereford, $827; Nazareth, $771; Childress, $446; Odessa, $24,413; Plainview, $3,324; Levelland, $689; Littlefield, $689; Slaton, $138; Midland, $19,191; Snyder, $1,697; and Brownfield, $1,260.

Area counties receiving checks from the comptroller are Cochran, $100; Cottle, $56; Crosby, $80; Dawson, $162; and Floyd, $170.

Statewide, Houston netted the largest tax rebate — $647,315 — for the last quarter of 1978. Somerville's check for $5.65 was the smallest.

Lincoln Look-Alike Making Rounds

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bearded Richard Butt admits he can't recite the Gettysburg Address, but on Abraham Lincoln's birthday he always dons a cape and black stovepipe hat and makes his rounds to the local taverns.

"It's a small hobby of mine, nothing to go overboard with, you know what I mean," said Butt, who first got interested in his look-alike, Honest Abe, in the early 1970s.

Since then he has appeared on a Pittsburgh television station, done a commercial for a rug company and played Lincoln in several stage productions.

At 6-foot-2 and 170 pounds, the lean and gaunt father of six often gets noticed for his resemblance to the 16th president even when he's not wearing his Lincoln garb.

Butt once had his picture taken in the Lincoln outfit and burned the wood frame to make it look authentic.

"It hung in banks for three years," he remarked.

ALIVE BUT ALONE—BELONGING WHERE?

Loneliness is all around us. This week News 28 explores the symptoms, the causes and yes, even the benefits of loneliness. Do you feel more alone than those around you? Does your loneliness cripple you? Is there something you can do about loneliness? Is loneliness a liability...or an asset? We'll answer these questions and more this week on News 28.

Tonight at 6 & 10 P.M.

Executives To Speak On Public Relations

Public relations personnel from Tracy-Locke Advertising, Bloom Advertising and Rockwell International will highlight Public Relations Day, Feb. 19, of Texas Tech University's Mass Communications Week, Feb. 19-23.

Linda Walker Buck, account executive with Tracy-Locke Advertising and Public Relations in Dallas, will begin the day with a 9:35 a.m. address in Mass Communications East 101. Before joining Tracy-Locke a year ago, the award-winning executive was director of communications and volunteer services for Shoal Creek Hospital in Austin.

Bloom Advertising's William L. Hill will speak at 10:35 a.m. in Mass Communications East 101. Hill joined Bloom in 1960 as art director. He is now creative director, and his work has won awards in national and international competitions.

Rockwell International's Sam Petok will address audiences at 1:35 p.m. in the University Center Theater. Petok is vice president of communications for Rockwell, a multi-faceted corporation which designed and built the space shuttle Enterprise.

All three executives will have a panel discussion on public relations at 2:35 p.m. in Mass Communications East 101.

Rockwell's multi-media presentation, which features 15 computerized projectors and quadraphonic sound, will be shown at 1:35 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the University Center Theater. The 20-minute production simulates the effects of space travel, moon-walks and the space shuttle's first journey into outer space. It also traces the history of Rockwell from 1909 to the present.

All sessions are free and open to the public.

DIRTY DOLLS

Q. The column in which you wrote, "Under no circumstances can a money market mutual fund be considered as safe as an insured savings account," was misleading. And, as usual, you were uncomplimentary to members of the brokerage industry. It is a shame that you find it necessary to cast aspersions on brokers.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. insure savings accounts, up to a point. Money market mutual funds invest in obligations which have, for the most part, unlimited federal backing.

A. Your phrase, "for the most part," makes your last sentence true, for some money market mutual funds. But it is not true for all such funds. Money market mutual funds invest in many different types of "money market instruments" — some of which are backed by the U.S. government, but many of which are not.

The column you gripe about explained this and stated that there is "very little real risk" in money market mutual funds. It also made the point that those funds do not provide the absolute safety of an insured savings account. That's a valid point. I'll stick by it.

The question in the previous column came from a reader whose broker had said money market mutual funds are as safe as bank accounts. That cried for a correction in print.

It should be no surprise to readers that your letter came on brokerage house stationery. I do wish some of you thin-skinned brokers would stop complaining every time one of your brethren's faults is brought into public view.

Q. I have some Series E bonds purchased from 1942 to 1950. When will they stop accruing interest?

A. Exactly 40 years from the date each one was issued. That's the latest decision by the U.S. Treasury to cut off interest on older E bonds — and penalize millions of Americans.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Stars' Marriage Works

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner are working at their seventh year of marriage, the second time around, by eliminating separations demanded by movie locations.

Natalie and R.J. were divorced 16 years ago after a brief fling at marriage which saw the young couple taking off in different directions to fulfill film commitments.

Older and wiser now, they've worked out a system of domestic togetherness by refusing to accept movie or television assignments which would keep them apart for more than a week or so.

They've managed to work regularly without sacrificing their careers to their marriage or vice versa.

Natalie took a break the other day on the set of "The Last Married Couple in America," in which she stars with George Segal, to say hello to R.J. who had stopped by the set to take some pictures of his wife.

"Even when we're working here in Hollywood, we make it a point to have lunch together now and then," Natalie said. "It's good for us and our marriage."

"When one of us is off on location for more than a week, the other comes along. We decided that our marriage was more important to us than our careers, individually and collectively."

"It's not that we feel location separations will destroy our marriage so much as the fact that we don't like being apart."

Tech Plans Child Development Seminar

The Gessell Institute of Child Development of New Haven, Conn., will present a seminar on developmental placement and testing techniques at Texas Tech University Friday, Feb. 23.

The day-long seminar is designed for principals, kindergarten and primary teachers, college teachers, school psychologists, in-service training coordinators, preschool directors, reading specialists, early childhood supervisors, special education teachers, curriculum directors, guidance counselors, superintendents and other concerned professionals.

The seminar is sponsored by the College of Education and the Division of Continuing Education at Texas Tech and will be in the Senate Room of the University Center. Teachers and educational leaders from a wide area of West Texas are invited to attend.

The morning program will feature a discussion of the most commonly used reading readiness tests, showing how they compare in measuring critical factors with the Gessell methods of developmental placement, based on scientific aspects of human growth and development.

Seminar speakers will emphasize that every child has a right to learn at his or her own rate, point out the signs of the overplanned child, developmental differences between boys and girls and the unfairness of discriminating against those who are not ready.

The afternoon session will feature films and a series of transparencies to demonstrate the institute's testing procedure.

The afternoon session will be devoted to administration of tests to children between the ages of 4 years, 9 months and 5 years, 5 months and a question-and-answer period with discussion and comment from participants.

Participants are expected to learn about the theory and background of developmental placement — how it fits in with the advanced thinking in educational circles while being based on tried, tested and proven research over a period of nearly 60 years.

The seminar will be led by a certified institute lecturer who also will demonstrate Gessell techniques. The $75 registration cost includes a portfolio including a seminar manual, an illustrated guide explaining developmental placement and offering practical advice on aspects of implementing a school readiness program, and a cassette of the lecture portion of the seminar.

Additional information and registration is available from the Office of Continuing Education, Room 104, Administration Building, Texas Tech University.

Natalie enjoyed several years of semi-retirement after completing "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" in 1969 but has since returned to a heavy schedule.

In addition to "The Last Married Couple in America," she recently completed the six-hour TV miniseries version of "From Here To Eternity" for NBC, and two other movies, "Meteor" and "The Cracker Factory." She will soon leave for the USSR to star with Peter Ustinov in NBC-TV's "Treasures of the Hermitage."

R.J. and Natalie's daughters, Natasha (by her marriage to Richard Gregson) and Courtney, will journey to Russia with her.

R.J. has been as busy as Natalie. After completing his "Switch" series earlier this year, he starred in "Airport '79 Concorde" and is preparing yet another weekly TV series.

Before this flurry of activity the Wagners found time to costar with Sir Laurence Olivier in a TV version of Tennessee Williams' "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof."

"In the last five years both of us have turned down pictures that would put us on separate locations at the same time," Natalie said.

"If both of us are offered movies covering the same period of time and shooting out of town, we consider which project means the most to the person involved."

"If one of us wants to do the picture really badly at that particular moment, then the other is flexible enough to pass up his or her own deal. Not every film is all that important in our lives."

"When R.J. went to Paris and Washington, D.C., for 'Airport' I went along with him. When I was in Cleveland for two days for 'The Cracker Factory,' R.J. stayed here."

"But when I went to Hawaii for four days for 'From Here To Eternity,' he came along with me."

"We set very few hard and fast rules about our schedules. If something really important comes along, we're flexible enough to change our plans to accommodate what we think are the right priorities. It's a good idea for any marriage."

"We're as adamant about about having the girls with us as we are about being with one another. We refuse to let more than 10 days go by without seeing the kids."

"The motion picture business can pull couples apart. I've seen it happen again and again. What's the point of being married if you're going to spend four or five months apart every year?"

"One reason I turned down a good many pictures in the last few years was that R.J. was working in 'Switch' right here in Hollywood. He couldn't get away to join me on locations, so I only did things that allowed me to work in town."

Ideally, Natalie and R.J. would like to costar in movies together, taking their daughters with them on location as they did with "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof."

Natalie said they read every script that comes into the house with an eye peeled for roles that would suit them both.

On their return from the Soviet Union this spring Natalie may find herself tethered to Hollywood once more. Prospects are good that R.J. will be starring with Stephanie Powers in "Hart to Hart," a new hourlong TV series.

"That means I'll be having some time at home with my daughters," Natalie said, smiling. "It's something to look forward to. I've gone from one project to the next with hardly a day off in between for almost two years."

"I've been working in movies since I was five years old. Believe me, I enjoy my time off, especially when I have R.J. and the girls with me."

Veteran Cowhand Turns Artist

Paul Wylie, 43, cowboy artist, is the authentic cowhand that his stooped 6'3" lean frame and rugged, weathered looks and mannerisms suggest.

Wylie may be found squatting on one heel when chairs are available, he is seldom seen without a hat or caught without a cigarette in hand, and he admits the only shoes he owns are moccasins.

He has served as his own model for a number of his western oil paintings. He is a Lubbock County native.

Wylie began drawing a working cowboy's wages when he was about 12-years-old on the late George Benson's ranch, which his father managed and on which his family had lived for several years.

He continued to work alongside his father until age 21, when he moved on to work on various West Texas and New Mexico ranches. He also worked as a cattle feedlot hand and as manager-foreman of several cattle operations during the next 18 years.

One of Wylie's most cherished possessions is the special order handmade M.L. Leddy saddle that belonged to his father. It occupies a place of honor in Wylie's studio.

He developed an interest in art during childhood, when sketching was one means of passing the lonely hours on a ranch. Art remained only a hobby to be revived on fleeting occasions for the next two decades.

In the fall of 1970, Wylie began experimenting with oils. When he had completed about 12 paintings, a local restaurant hung them, a few sold, and the interested local newspaper editor wrote an article about him.

It was in part, "Cochran County may be spawning a cowboy artist who in years to come will make his mark among the painters of the west." Encouraged, the budding artist enrolled in a non-credit beginner oil painting class taught by Don Stroud at South Plains College in Levelland. After completing the course he entered his first competitive art show, receiving an honorable mention.

South Plains College gave Wylie his first one-man show in September, 1971, just one year from the time he began painting on a steady basis. He continued to study oil painting at the college.

He is a self-taught sculptor who was slow to develop an interest in what proved to be his best medium and major source of income in the years ahead. It was Stroud who encouraged Wylie to try his hand at sculpture, giving him a slab of wax and saying, "Take this home and see what you can do with it."

Wylie created two wax sculptures, which he displayed at the South Plains College show in 1971, but it wasn't until early in 1974 that he decided to cast the first of the waxes, which was "Nature's Protection."

It depicts a cow in a process of protecting her newborn calf from a hungry coyote, and it was to be cast in an edition of 20. The first number to be cast was shown to Dr. Ted Forsythe of Lubbock, who bought it before anyone else had seen it.

As Wylie created more sculptures, he began entering bronze castings in art shows. Two of the best were "Delicate Decision" and "Spooked." It was at a 1975 arts and crafts festival in Plainview that Wylie met Tom Warren, a local artist and a Texas Cowboy Artist Association member. Warren, impressed with Wylie's bronzes, submitted his name as a nominee for membership in the exclusive association. Wylie was one of five selected to become a TCA member. It was quite a step to be chosen as an equal by the ten top professional western artists in Texas.

In 1978 four of his bronzes were purchased as a set by Levelland State Bank Crosby County Pioneer Memorial Museum has one of the edition of twenty "Spooked" on permanent display. His oils hang in South Plains Museum, South Plains College Library, and Levelland Vegetable Oil, Inc. (a 4' x 8' commissioned mural), Levelland, Texas; in Texas Tech University Museum and St. Mary of the Plains Hospital, Lubbock; and in Llano Estacado Museum, Plainview. Paul's paintings and bronzes can be found in numerous private collections scattered throughout Texas and New Mexico.

He has been teaching oil painting on a regular basis since the summer of 1972, when he was approached by a group of interested neighbors as a prospective teacher. He credits teaching as having been one of his greatest learning experiences.

Early in 1975 Wylie set about to put into motion an idea he had had for a fund raising project for Girlstown, U.S.A. He had a soft spot for Girlstown since his high school days. In 1949 he had helped lay the foundation for the first building to be erected at Girlstown, and several of the new residents were to become his classmates at nearby Whiteface High School.

His idea was to create a sculpture, specifically designed to depict Girlstown, which Girlstown could cast and sell.

The sculpture, "Something To Hold On To," depicts a very young, pony-tailed girl, wearing levis and boots, standing on a large rock, grasping the saddle horn on an old horse that is patiently waiting. It's to be cast as an edition of seventy-five, and Wylie will retain the first casting for his personal collection as this is the policy observed with all of his sculpture.

Wylie lives at Route 5, Lubbock, with his wife, Jan, and their five-year-old son, Jake.

WATCH COWPEA WITCHWEED WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is taking a look at cowpea witchweed to see if it threatens U.S. tobacco and peanut crops. The parasitic plant common in Africa and India recently was discovered for the first time in the Western Hemisphere growing wild in Florida. Cowpea witchweed attacks tobacco, peanuts and other legumes by "extending a sucker from its roots to roots of the host plant, robbing the host plant of water and food," said department officials.

Lubbock Traffic Injuries Plummet

Since the advent of the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) in October, injuries in traffic accidents have dropped 14 percent and traffic fatalities have plummeted 61 percent, Lubbock Mayor Dirk West says.

"This decrease occurred in spite of the fact that we have 30,000 more vehicles registered in Lubbock County than we did one year ago," he said. Comparing STEP's performance during the past four months to the same period a year ago, West said traffic fatalities had dropped from 23 to 9.

Accidents with injuries decreased from 666 to 563, he said. Not only have the number of injuries dropped, but there has been a "dramatic decrease in the severity of the injuries," West said.

"Our traffic system continues to be vastly overloaded, and until our city constructs a freeway system, this will not improve," he said. "Indeed, the amount of traffic on our streets will likely become worse

"So, the solution is to drive safely and slowly," West said. "It is much more important to obey the traffic laws than our overloaded, outdated traffic system than it is on modern freeways where traffic flows unimpeded by signals and stop signs."

Peace Corps Screening Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Peace Corps fails to adequately screen volunteers, with some candidates being interviewed by telephone and others not at all, according to a new study by the General Accounting Office.

The GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, also said the overseas volunteer service fails to give adequate information to volunteers about the conditions under which they are expected to live.

High Turnover Rate

And the Peace Corps' personnel turnover rate was three times as high as that of other federal agencies, the study noted, in part because the corps limits the time its staff members can serve.

The study was conducted of the Peace Corps office in Washington and its operations in Colombia, Honduras, Malaysia, Afghanistan and Kenya. Responses were sought from volunteers in those countries from July to September 1977. The study of the headquarters operation was made between June 1977 and October 1978.

The Peace Corps, set up in 1961, has sent about 73,000 volunteers to 88 countries. As of last fall, the corps had about 7,000 volunteers and a budget of about $84 million. The Peace Corps is a part of ACTION, the federal volunteer agency.

In its response in the report, the Peace Corps said it was trying to improve the effectiveness of its programs and projects, and the GAO said the corps "has made, or plans to make, substantial improvements to deal with the problems raised."

Recruitment "Slipshod"

One unidentified volunteer said in the report: "Recruitment is entirely slipshod at almost every instance. ... Certainly no other organization but that of the government could afford to operate in such a manner."

The first time accepted applicants are able to discuss in detail the work they will be doing or the quality of life they will have to endure is a two-day medical and administrative orientation immediately before being sent overseas," the report found.

"Unless there are serious problems, it is usually too late for applicants to change their decision because at that point they have already prepared to leave the country."

Records found that in spring 1977, 5 to 20 percent of the applicants had no interviews with recruiters. In two recruitment centers, the report said, more than half the interviews were conducted over the telephone.

In 1975, the GAO said, 38 percent of the volunteers did not complete their two-year stint, and more than half of those left in the first six months of service.

The GAO said the Peace Corps' high staff turnover has been a problem since its founding.

Tractors Roll To Memorial In Snowstorm

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 200 tractors paraded under police escort to the Lincoln Memorial in a blinding snowstorm Monday as farmers continued their protest for higher farm prices.

The tractors formed a tractorcade that, with the storm, slowed traffic on major streets to a crawl all afternoon and into the evening. The demonstration was scheduled to last five hours, but was cut short because of the weather.

At the monument, about 300 farmers and their families stood on the steps in the bitter cold while Walter E. Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's non-voting representative in the House, thanked them "for opening our eyes" to the plight of the farmer.

Tribute To Lincoln

An unidentified protester opened the rally by taking note of the birthday of Lincoln, "a true advocate of human rights. That's what the farmers are talking about. ... That's why we're here, but (President Carter) doesn't care."

Five days of hearings on the farmers' complaints begin Tuesday before the House Agriculture Committee, with nine members of Congress scheduled to give their views.

American Agriculture movement representatives testify Wednesday and Thursday.

Earlier Monday, an Agriculture Department spokesman said federal security officials had decided to close the department's doors to protesting farmers at night.

Back To Normal Security

The spokesman, Barry Jenkins, said the decision means the department will "go back to normal security" that prevailed before the American Agriculture protesters arrived here Feb. 5.

The farmers had been allowed to roam freely in the department after working hours. Scores of them spent the nights in various offices, sleeping on couches and the floors.

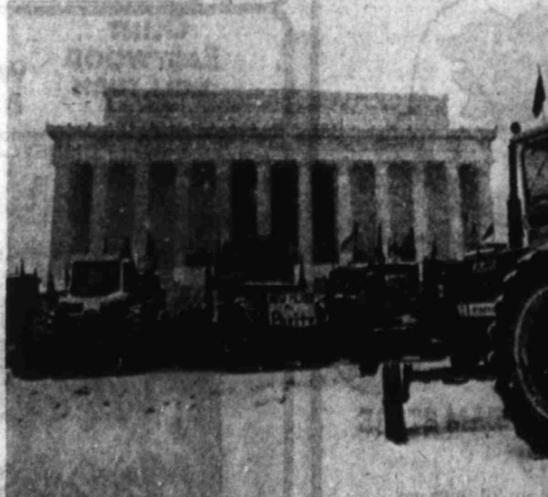

A number of the farmers and their families held a worship service on Sunday in the USDA administration building's inner first-floor patio, Jenkins said. Security officers reported "some incidents" after which the farmers were evicted and denied use of inside facilities Sunday night, Jenkins said.

The incidents did not involve violence, he said. A decision to return to normal after-hours security was made Monday afternoon, he said.

Some of the farmers were believed to have used government telephones to make long-distance calls, Jenkins said. But those will not be determined fully until after bills are received, he said.

The department's administration building contains the offices of senior officials, including Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, and others. It faces the Mall, where the tractors and other vehicles have been confined by police for the past week except for occasional "tractorcades" approved in advance.

Normally, persons entering and leaving the building — including employees — are required to sign a register after 6 p.m. each working day and on the weekends. That requirement was suspended so farmers could have easier access to toilets and other facilities.

SPAG Distribution Of Funds Pondered

There is some question, however, whether committee members were made aware of the Criminal Justice Division inquiry before they set their funding priorities.

Miss Miller said the committee was "aware" of the inquiry. But committee member Carolyn Lanier said she did not know until after the group set its priorities that the state office wanted an explanation of why Lubbock projects were not being funded.

As for any anti-Lubbock sentiment, Miss Miller said she's "sorry" if city officials feel that is the case.

She contends, though, that the problem in getting Lubbock projects funded lies with the project applications submitted by the city.

"Not Well Developed"

"The projects submitted have been an embarrassment — even to the people on the committee from Lubbock," she said.

Although the projects were "good in theory," she said, they were "not sound — not well developed."

"I can't regret either of these didn't get funded."

The amounts requested for the city programs also were a stumbling block, Miss Miller said.

"There was only $107,000 available for law enforcement projects, and $52,000 was pretty well set aside for the regional training program," she explained.

Also, there were "several ongoing projects which could not have been funded" if funds were allocated for the Lubbock projects, she said.

Since the advisory committee recommended its funding priorities, Miss Miller has attempted to work with the city to secure funding for a Lubbock project.

Following a meeting with Mayor Dirk West, she said the city could submit a third project application, then rank the three projects according to the priorities established by the committee.

Miss Miller said the Criminal Justice Division plans to distribute budgeted and unbudgeted funds simultaneously this year, so a project ranked 15th by the city "probably will be funded, provided it's not too out of reach."

"I trust you will accept this gesture as evidence of our concern about crime in Lubbock and of our interest in seeing that Lubbock maximizes every opportunity to receive criminal justice funds," she said in a letter informing the city of her offer.

The suggestion that the city rank its own projects and be permitted to submit another project application may never

The Soviet Union was one of the first to announce recognition of the rebel regime, and a dozen other countries, many ruled by Moslem leaders, also announced recognition of the new government.

A contingent of 69 U.S. Marines left the United States and six Air Force helicopters left bases in Europe in case they are needed to help guard the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and evacuate Americans. It was initially reported they would head for a base in Turkey, but the Turkish Foreign Ministry announced the Marines would not be welcome.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington the Marines and helicopters were in "forward positions," and there were no present plans to move them into Iran. Washington sources said most of the men and aircraft were at a U.S. airbase in the Azores.

Looters At Work

Some of the shooting in Tehran came from the "army" of Khomeini's provisional government, which was trying to drive off looters. But armed bands with no apparent official status also roamed the streets.

One group entered the Hilton Hotel and ordered some 400 guests, many of them Americans, to bring their luggage to the lobby to be searched. The guests were later allowed to return to their rooms.

The provisional "army" drove off looters from a military base, a military supply depot and the Ministry of Agriculture.

Prisoners Flee

Newspapers said 3,500 felons escaped from the country's largest prison, 65 miles west of Tehran, after insurgents opened the gates Sunday. Some foreigners jailed there on various charges reportedly were among inmates freed.

Two army generals were killed during Sunday's violence, and a third was found shot dead at his home Monday. Among them was Gen. Abdul-Ah Badrei, former commander of the Shah's Imperial Guard. An army spokesman said he was shot nine times as he tried to talk to guerrillas who had surrounded the Imperial Guard barracks.

Tehran Radio announced Sunday night that Iran's airports and borders would be closed "indefinitely." It reported a number of arrests Monday, naming three former cabinet ministers, four generals of the national police, air force, army and SAVAK and several legislators.

Four generals forced to resign held a news conference in Khomeini's headquarters, saying they had ordered an end to resistance because both Bakhtiar and Khomeini had vowed to end the monarchy. "Why shed blood over shared objectives?" the former air force commander, Gen. Amir Hossein Rabaei said.

He also denied reports that some of air force pilots had flown U.S.-made F-14 jets with Phoenix missiles out of the country, possibly to pro-American Saudi Arabia. "Nothing at all has been removed, the air force is still well organized," he said.

Iran's Oil Production May Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — The apparent victory in Iran of the revolutionary forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini could mean an end to the world oil supply squeeze that resulted from a shutdown of Iranian oil production, experts said Monday.

But analysts are uncertain about when production will resume and say that it could take months for Iran to return to production levels near those before the political crisis began. In addition, the Khomeini government has yet to indicate what level of oil exports it would favor.

"Now that there might appear to be some government, we might now expect some return to a high level of production," said Larry Goldstein, an analyst at the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry group. "But when is a question."

"I think that if the Khomeini government can consolidate control, I would expect oil production to resume fairly quickly," said Daniel Rustow, a professor at City University of New York who specializes in Middle East political affairs. "Within a month after the political situation stabilizes, whenever that is, we'll have oil again."

However, Rustow added, "If the situation continues the way it is, with no one in direct control, the resumption will be postponed and postponed."

Khomeini's forces toppled the month-old regime of Prime Minister Shahpur Bakhtiar Sunday. The nation is now in the control of a Khomeini-designated provisional government with Mehdi Bazargan as prime minister, but some observers say the situation may again change.

State Agency Overhaul Set

AUSTIN (AP) — Twelve employees of the Texas Department of Community Affairs learned Monday they will lose their jobs in an agency overhaul.

Les Ready of the department's public information office said the firings were in the agency's administrative division.

"Not all the employees may have learned about it yet, and I don't have a list as to who they are," he said.

Gov. Bill Clements' appointee to head the agency, Omar Harvey, announced Jan. 30 a review of all employees. Some 250 workers learned then that their jobs might be in jeopardy.

The community affairs office funnels $81.5 million of federal funds to programs to combat drug abuse, provide manpower training and assist small rural communities.

Replacement Date Set For Bonds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department reports it has been receiving many inquiries about the changes in government savings bonds that take effect next year.

The current E and H series bonds will be eliminated and replaced with EE and HH bonds on Jan. 2, 1980.

When this happens, bonds issued between 1941 and 1952 will not be extended again, but bonds bought since 1952 will be extended for another 10 years.

Bond owners will be able to exchange their old bonds for the new ones, after these go on sale.

Approval Sought For Use of Azodrin On Corn

By JIM STEIERT
A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Representatives of the Hereford agricultural aviation firm are heading an effort to obtain clearance from the Environmental Protection Agency for the use of the chemical Azodrin in the control of spider mites on corn in the area.

Leland Shelton of Whiteface Aviation Corp. and Ray Frye of American Dusters Co., Inc. set the wheels in motion on a project they hope will develop into a massive letter writing campaign to David A. Ivie, director of the Agriculture and Environmental Science Division of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Shelton and Frye are urging corn producers in the area to write letters requesting clearance of the chemical for use on corn.

Mite control has become a critical issue here over the past three years, particularly in the immediate Hereford area, where banks grass mites have shown resistance to all currently available miticides.

The presence of mite populations that have gone virtually uncontrolled has cut drastic inroads into corn production over the past two years.

Ivie, contacted last week, reported that the only way producers can hope to get action underway on the Azodrin clearance is to indicate the existence of an emergency situation in their letters.

"Growers must get started as soon as possible on this matter, because the TDA is a regulatory agency for the EPA at this time, and we must get a good deal of information together in order to get an approval from the EPA. It takes about six months to get a clearance, and that would put us into late July at best, when farmers would already need to be putting the chemical on their crops. Immediate action by concerned farmers is mandatory," Ivie said.

"There is a good possibility of getting Azodrin approved, and I don't feel there will be any problems in establishing the existence of an emergency situation. The only place we might run into troubles would be in the pests developing a tolerance to the new pesticide," he continued.

According to Ivie, letters mailed to him or the commissioner of agriculture need to contain information on chemicals used in attempts at mite control in the past, the problems producers had and if any of these chemicals gave results, yield reductions from mites on a bushel basis and a dollar-and-cent basis, and some estimate as to the acreage of corn grown in the area.

Shelton and Frye are urging producers to get letters to Ivie by Thursday.

"The only chance the product has of being labeled is for everyone concerned to let their views be known," Frye emphasized.

Frye pointed out that chemicals including Cyon, Meta-Systox R, Di-Syston and Comite have been used without effect in the area, while mites have continued to cause extensive damage to the corn crop.

In his own letter to Ivie, Frye wrote: "The farmers in this area are going to be forced to discontinue growing grain corn unless we can receive label clearance for use of Azodrin. The loss in yields from banks grass mites during the past two years has been staggering. A loss in yield between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds per acre has been very common, and this is a loss of approximately $100 per acre. In some extreme cases the loss has doubled this amount."

In his report to Ivie, Shelton included copies of pest reports from area entomologist Carl D. Patrick, which cited massive buildups in mite populations during July, August and September of 1978.

Patrick wrote that "checking behind some miticide applications in Deaf Smith and Roberts counties indicated very little control." In another report, Patrick wrote, "One of the fields had been sprayed twice, which resulted in not even a slowdown of the mite."

Shelton urged clearance of Azodrin in a letter of his own, citing research which has shown it to be an effective miticide.

"I am asking your department to help get a clearance on corn, possibly on a special local need basis, until such time as complete labeling could be effected. I believe that under paragraph 22 of the new Federal Pesticide Act of 1978, the state registration of Azodrin could be very probable."

The local aviation firm representatives reported they took on the project because of a growing demand among their customers for something to be done about the mite problem.

"We are to the point now that if we use anything other than Azodrin, we will just be wasting money. The TDA would rather help us than slap a fine on us for illegal use of Azodrin, and so we feel it is worth the effort of seeking a clearance," the pair said.

Shelton issued a warning to local corn growers concerning Azodrin, however.

"Should we get the label, we don't want to immediately apply Azodrin at the first indication of mites," Shelton commented. "Every time we've obtained a promising miticide, the pests have developed resistance at a rapid pace.

October, December Futures Lead Decliners

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 85 points lower to 20 points higher on 23,681 cars Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. October was the most affected. Placements were estimated at 93 to 103 percent, marketings were 98 to 110 percent and on feed 101 to 104 percent.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $4 with the best top $130 per hundredweight at Greeley. About 1,800 head are expected at the major terminals today.

Hog futures closed 5 to 87 lower led by February which lost 112 for a time. Volume was 5,316 lots. Prices were lower except for a brief gain of 10 in December and distant April.

Pressure was associated with heavy hog runs and lower prices along with late selling in live cattle futures. Scale-

"We need to conserve Azodrin as a control measure, rather than a miticide preventive. If we don't have a big buildup in the mite population, we don't want to use it. Azodrin is no miracle product. It's just another tool in a program of culture, and we don't want to overuse it and allow mites to become immune to it.

"If we have normal summer weather, differing from the extremely hot and dry summers we've had the past couple of years, we might not have the explosion in the mite population that has created our recent problems," Shelton commented.

down buying followed firmer tone to pork.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 cent at 86 to 87 cents a pound, f.o.b. river for all weight. Cash hogs were off 50 cents to $1.50 with the best top $58.50 per hundredweight. Kill was 288,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 28,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 75 to 120 lower led by August on 4,815 cars. February fell the 200 daily limit level and August gained 30 early.

Increased hog arrivals and lower prices brought selling as did reduced bacon slicings. Traders noted a lack of reduction in storage despite the light kill Friday. Selling came in the face of sharp advance in cash at noon.

There have been 87 deliveries this far. Wholesale bacon was up 2 to 2 1/2 cents at 62 to 66 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U.S. Department of Agriculture
Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market on Monday was moderate. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotation declined 25 points.

Mixed lots brought growers around 800 to 925 points over 1978 low rates.

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.8, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: lower on Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks, unable to win with Bob McAdoo and hopeful of speeding up their rebuilding process, traded the three-time National Basketball Association scoring champion to the Boston Celtics Monday for three first-round choices in the 1979 draft.

"We are not a static organization," said Sonny Werblin, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., which owns the Knicks. "We have been seeking to make a deal for some time, but nobody has offered us any players of any substance. The rest of the league doesn't want to trade into New York."

"Bob happened to be a tradeable commodity we could move to improve ourselves," added Werblin. "We have now put ourselves in a position to rebuild the

Roadblock Downstate

ALL SUMMER, FALL and winter, the talk out of Texas A&M was the talent stored in the 6-11 frame of freshman Rudy Woods. He could run like a deer, jump like a kangaroo, and was smooth as silk — to coin some new cliches.

Last month, Woods showed that talent to Tech basketballers, as he moved in front of them for passes and moved behind them for lob passes almost a third of the Aggies' points (21 of 68) in a win over the Raiders.

Saturday night, in Lubbock Coliseum, the Raiders sliced 15 points off that scoring output by stationing Ralph Brewster in front of him to deny the incoming pass and getting help from the back side, usually by Ben Hill or Ralph McPherson. Woods had as many fouls (two) as points in the first half, and scored only two field goals all night. One of these came on a tip-in where a Tech performer should have gotten credit for an assist.

But, with that win over the Aggies, the Raiders climbed back into the race, and now, they have their eyes on one of those three first-round byes in the Southwest Conference's post-season tourney.

And when the Raiders came out of College Station Jan 20, saddled with a three-game losing streak, such a situation appeared quite remote.

THIS SITUATION RAIDER basketball boss Gerald Myers mentioned Monday, as he recapped the Aggie game and spoke of the gauntlet which his troops face this week.

"We're pointing to Houston now," said Myers of Thursday night's road game. "What we're trying to do now is move up

Horns Rip Aggies, 65-57

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas' slow methodical offense, led by John Moore's 23 points, cooled off Texas A&M's second half surge and paced the 12th-ranked Longhorns to a key 65-57 Southwest Conference victory Monday night.

The 11th-ranked Aggies, who dropped three games behind the league leading Longhorns, erased a 15-point halftime deficit and pulled to within five points with 1:03 to play.

But Moore, who hit a season high, sank two free throws with 42 seconds to play and Phillip Stroud hit two more with six seconds to go to ice the game.

Texas now is 11-2 in league play and the Aggies are 9-5. The Aggies have now lost three straight games.

The sharp-shooting Longhorns jumped to a 10-0 lead to start the game and were ahead 21-6 midway through the first half. The Aggies then started a mini-rally led by Vernon Smith, but Texas still led 35-20, shooting 68 percent from the field.

The Aggies, playing much more aggressively on defense in the second half, pulled to a 46-38 deficit midway in the second half, but Moore spurred Texas ahead with three straight baskets.

The Aggies then started their final run at the Longhorns, pulling to a 60-55 deficit with 1:03 to play. David Britton hit 18 points to lead the Aggies and Smith added 14.

Texas now is 18-5 for the season and the Aggies dropped to 20-7.

The Longhorn starting five played the entire game without substitution, but Ron Baxter said the Horns were up to it.

"We could play the whole game because we slowed it down in the second half to take a breath," Baxter said.

Both Baxter and UT coach Abe Lemons praised A&M's second half comeback.

"In the Drum they seemed kind of timid, but here they were ready to play," Baxter said. "They are a young team and we are veterans so we are just more used to the tension."

Lemons put it more bluntly. "They've got the best mad dog pressing defense in the nation," he said. "We should have pulled out on them tonight."

It was the third straight key loss for the Aggies who previously were beaten by Arkansas and Texas Tech. But A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said, "This game cleared the air. I feel like we will come back and play two good ball games (TCU and Rice) and be ready for the tournament. I know that the Aggies are disappointed but we probably are right on schedule."

Houston Romps

DALLAS (AP) — Junior guard Kenneth Williams, who makes a habit of saving his best games for Southern Methodist, scored 38 points and the underdog Houston Cougars outran the Mustangs 101-94.

Williams, who scored 41 points against SMU the last time the two teams met, scored 20 points in the first half as run-and-gun Houston built up a 57-43 half-time lead.

The Cougars, now 5-10 in SWC play and 13-13 overall, moved into sixth place in the SWC standings and took an edge for a vital home spot in the league playoffs Feb. 24.

Williams was joined by forward George Walker in the double figures as Walker scored 20 points before he fouled out. Victor Ewing added 12.

SMU, now 4-9 and 9-14, was led by 6-10 forward Brad Branson, who had a career high 31 points. Reggie Franklin added 20 points to the Mustang cause.

Houston guard Ken Ciolli held Mustang freshman guard sensation Billy Allen to only five points. Allen was two of 14 from the field against the close-guarding Ciolli.

Houston built up a 20-point lead early in the second half, but the Mustangs closed to within seven at 99-82 with 1:13 to play.

A Ciolli free throw clinched matters at that point and Houston ran out the clock.

Porkers Win

WACO (AP) — Ulysses Reed scored 10 points in the second half to lead a torrid Arkansas shooting spree that carried to a 71-62 Southwest Conference basketball victory over the Baylor Bears.

EHS Hosts Borger In Crucial Contest

By BOB RAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Just because the Estacado baseball team was busy getting its pictures taken Monday doesn't necessarily mean that the Matadors' basketball season is over.

However, cage mentor JJ Wood admits that the time has come to stop visiting with the press and start worrying about the Borger Bulldogs, or the season may very well come to an end this week.

The Matadors will host the Bulldogs at 7:30 p.m. A victory would give Estacado the second half I-AAA crown and a right to meet the Dunbar Panthers for the championship. But if Borger wins, then the Bulldogs and Matadors would tie for the second half title. Borger and Estacado would then meet in a playoff for the second half district crown.

In other district games, the Dunbar boys and girls will be at Dumas, the Hereford girls will visit Lubbock High. The town rival Coronado, and the Lubbock High boys will travel to Hereford.

The Monterey boys will take on cross-

"Yes, I'm a little nervous," said Wood. "But I think we'll be a little more relaxed playing at home this time."

In the first meeting at Borger, the Bulldogs knocked the Matadors out of any hope at the first half title with an 81-76 victory. Both Estacado and Borger finished the first half of action with identical 3-2 records.

But this time, Estacado will bring a 4-0 loop mark into the contest. Borger stands 3-1. Overall, the Matadors stand at 15-12, while the Bulldogs sport an 18-10 mark.

When Estacado visited Borger, the Matadors fell behind 33-12 midway through the second quarter. But Estacado was able to narrow the deficit to 39-33 at the first half intermission.

"In the first game, Chester Williams scored 23 points, and there big postman Smith (Brett) had 27 points," said Wood.

LCC Begins Big Week, Face Wayland Tonight

PLAINVIEW (Special) This could be a very big week for the Lubbock Christian College basketball team.

First of all, the Chaparrals are ranked No. 5 in the weekly Dunkel Ratings, a position which, if held, assures them of a berth in the NAIA District 8 post-season tournament.

Secondly, The Chaps are in second place in the Texas Conference, a position which, if held, would give them the host's role in the Texas Conference tournament the last week in February.

And last, but by no means least, LCC has a chance this week to go past the .500 mark, something it hasn't done at this point in the season since the very first year of its competitive existence.

The Chaparrals open this historic quest tonight here against Wayland Baptist College. The game will start at 8.

Wayland, also a member of the Texas Conference, has a 1-3 record. In fact, everybody has a 1-3 record except for LCC and Midwestern, already conceded the champ's spot. LCC is 2-2 and Midwestern 6-0.

Friday night LCC will host Panhandle State, a team it whipped down at their place earlier this season. A win tonight and a win Friday would make the Chaps 13-13 on the year after a 0-6 start.

The 11 wins the Chaps have notched so far this year equal their total for the last two seasons put together. It is also the third best win total in LCC history.

In 1971, LCC finished 16-14, its best record ever and the only time it has finished over .500. In 1974 and 1976 LCC won 11 games each but in 1977 the mark fell to 7-21 and last year's record was a dismal 4-22.

This week's Dunkel Ratings reflects the changes.

A week ago the Chaps were seventh, with conference foes Midwestern, Dallas Baptist and Texas Wesleyan ranked ahead of them. This week only Midwestern (rated second in the district) remains.

The Chaps' power rating now is 37.1. Tonight's opponent, Wayland Baptist, is spotted ninth with a 35.2.

Overall, the Pioneers are 13-15 with wins over Texas Christian University of the Southwest Conference and Hardin Simmons. In conference, WBC has lost twice to Midwestern, once to Texas Wesleyan at home and has beaten Dallas Baptist.

Starters for WBC are 6-1 Bruce Kimball at point guard, 6-3 Gene Strickland at one wing; 6-5 Rick Cooper at the other; 6-6 Donnie Seales and 6-8 Brian Briden at the twin posts.

Also seeing action are John Irving at wing, 6-3 Bennie Burnett at one point, 6-4 Larry Cumby at another wing and 6-9 Bill Schneider at post.

Coach Larry Hince has settled on a lineup for LCC. Since midway through the season that has been 6-2 Bruce Carver and 6-1 Les Lierman at guards, 6-3 Brian Fortner and 6-4 Keith Gardner at forwards and 6-6 Kevin Wharton at post.

Gardner co-rently leads the team in both scoring and rebounding with 19.5 points and 11.4 boards per game. Carver is second in scoring with 13.9 per and Wharton is third in scoring and second in rebounding with 13.4 and 10.6 respectively. Substitute guard Bill McCee is the fourth Chap scoring in double figures with a 10.4 average.

So far this year LCC has rebounded its foes an average of 48.6 to 37.4, among the best in the nation.

Sixers Hurting

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers' top two scorers were in hospitals today as Doug Collins underwent surgery and Julius Erving prepared for an examination.

Collins was operated on this morning at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania for a painful bone spur on his left ankle. The condition has kept him out of play since mid-January.

Collins' ankle was put in a cast after the operation and doctors were to re-evaluate his condition in two weeks.

Area Schools Start Post-Season Hopes

Area basketball teams have been going at it hard and fast in district competition ever since the players returned from their Christmas break. And now some of the teams are receiving their just reward with a possibility of post season play while the others are just glad it's finally over.

In district 3-AA Dimmitt was the dominating force as the Bobcats swept both the girls and the boys district titles. Now the Dimmitt boys will face Tulla on Feb. 20 at Plainview's Hutchinson Center at 7:30 p.m. in the bi-district match. Tulla won the 4-AA crown.

The Dimmitt girls will face either Abertamy or Lockney. Both of those teams are tied for the loop crown with only one game remaining. If the race ends in a tie, Abertamy and Lockney will have a one game playoff.

The Seminole boys team went undefeated with a 13-0 district record to claim the 5-AA crown and will face Ballinger in Snyder on Feb. 20 at 8 p.m. in the Scurry County coliseum to decide the bi-district champ. The Slaton girls won the fem title in the district and still have one loop contest left to play.

Hale Center won both the boys' and girls' titles in district 4-A with a cumulative record of 27-1 (the boys picked up the lone loss). But before either Owl team can advance they must compete in the district tourney that begins on Thursday in Roosevelt.

The Owl boys face Lorenzo (8-6 in district) in their first game and the Hale Center girls tangle with Shallowate (7-7).

But things are a little more complicated in district 5-A. Stanton took the first half district crown but Seagraves won the second round and the two will meet in one-game playoff to determine the winner.

And the 5-A girls race is even more confusing. Whiteface won the first half but Seagraves has a chance to either win or tie them for the second round. If the lady Eagles can win the second round, a playoff will be necessary.

In district 7-A Crowell has already wrapped up the girls title with a 12-0 slate but the Crowell boys are finding the going a little bit tougher. The Paducah boys won the first half with a 6-0 mark and are currently 4-0 in the second half — one game was cancelled due to weather.

The two teams will square off Friday night and Crowell can force Paducah into a playoff with a victory. But a Paducah win would put an end to all Crowell hopes. The 7-A winners will meet the district 8-A champs in the bi-district match.

Motley County made life mighty simple in district 12-B. The Matador school won both the girls and boys titles.

Nazareth did the same thing in district 5-B as the boys and girls made a clean sweep.

But things are a little haywire in the 9-B picture. It starts out simple enough though—Sands won the boys title with a 9-0 district record and will play Westbrook in the bi-district match on Feb. 20.

In the girls race Borden County, Sands and Dawson still have a shot at the crown although Dawson is definitely in the drivers seat. The lady Bulldogs won the first half and face Sands in the season finale on Friday night. If Sands can beat Dawson, then the two will meet again in a playoff to decide the district winner.

But if Dawson defeats Sands then Borden County is back in the running—if of course B.C. can win its final game on Friday. So if Dawson wins and Borden County wins then those two will play a playoff game to decide the district champ.

Now see how clear everything is.

Barney Cut

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — To nobody's surprise, including him, veteran defensive back Lem Barney was officially placed on waivers Monday by the National Football League Detroit Lions.

The move had been a foregone conclusion since shortly before last season when Barney spent was placed on the injured reserve list with a groin ailment.

Barney, three-times an All-Pro, played in seven Pro Bowl games.

But at age 33, he fell victim to the rebuilding plans of first-year coach Monte Clark last season.

"It was an extremely tough decision for me to make last summer," Clark said Monday. "and now it's with regret that we take final action on Lem. He's been a superb player for the Lions a long time."

"However, with our commitment to the future it was a move we felt was necessary."

Barney spent 11 years with Detroit after being chosen on the second round of the college draft from Jackson State. He was the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Year in 1967.

He owns Lions records for punt returns (143), punt return yardage (1,312) and interception return yardage (1,051). His 56 career interceptions is six short of the Dick LeBeau's team record.

Russian Win Hurts NHL Pride

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet National team's triumph in the first-ever Challenge Cup series left the National Hockey League in a ponderous position.

The 17 governors agreed to shut down the league for a full week — thereby losing seven playing dates and compressing more than 50 games per team into the first 4½ months of the season. They underwrote the expense of the three-game series, picking up the tab for the 36-man Soviet delegation which flew here first class, stayed at a posh downtown hotel, and ate three hearty meals a day.

They took a risk that the attractiveness of the match, the NHL all-stars against a Soviet team bolstered by high-caliber players from other club teams, would help toward the acquisition of a network television contract in the United States. Included in this risk was an agreement the Wings of the Soviet club team could make a four-city tour against NHL teams at NHL expense; that a Soviet referee, Victor Dombrowski, could work a game in the Challenge Cup; and that the NHL would send a team of "Future Stars" to the Irvestia Cup tournament in Moscow.

This was all well and good in the planning stages. But along came the Soviet Nationals, who ate the free food, stayed in the free hotel rooms, saw the sights of New York ... then beat the pants off one of the strongest NHL all-star teams in recent history.

The NHL scored three first-period goals and won 4-2 in the opener Thursday night, though the Soviets came on in the later stages. They blew a 4-2 lead in the second game as the visitors rallied with three goals in a 4:29 span for a 5-4 triumph.

And Sunday night, the NHL was blown right out of Madison Square Garden with a 6-0 Soviet shutout. Thus the NHL was blanked the final 94 minutes, 54 seconds of the series while giving up nine goals to the visiting marksmen in the red uniforms.

"If we had won Saturday — we were in the lead 4-2 and we weren't playing that well — everyone would have said we were the greatest and that wouldn't have been true," said defenseman Serge Savard of the Montreal Canadiens. Had the NHL held its 4-2 lead, they'd have won the series and the 6-0 drubbing Sunday wouldn't have mattered.

"We tried our best and it didn't work out," said Montreal right wing Guy Lafleur. "But you can't lose prestige in only three games; that's the way I feel and that's the way the rest of the guys feel."

Though it may be months before the intangibles can be weighed and the series put into perspective, Canadian headline writers were blunt in the home of hockey Monday morning.

"Ouch!" said one Toronto tabloid. "A perfect game — for the Men in Red," said another. "A Soviet Lesson to the Stars of the NHL," wailed the front page of a French daily in Montreal.

Early reaction from Moscow was restricted to a two-sentence item provided by the Soviet News Agency, TASS: "On defeating 6-0 the 'All-Stars' team of the National Hockey League in the last game of a three-game series, the USSR Ice Hockey team won the special Challenge Cup that was instituted for this series," the item said. "The games were played in New York's Madison Square Garden."

The Soviet public would learn more some 12½ hours after the game's end, as a videotape of the contest was to be telecast at 7 p.m., local time. In Russia, there is no problem with national television — presenting yet another contrast between hockey here and there.

But the major differences in this series were on the ice. Except for the first 1½ periods of the opening game, the Soviets' precision passing and unusually aggressive forechecking turned the NHL's cannon offense into a popgun.

"They played great," said Bill Torrey of the New York Islanders, who was general manager of the NHL stars. "We had them 4-2 Saturday and they came back. That was the turning point in the series."

Price To Fight In State Meet

Dusty Price, a 17 year old junior at Levelland high school, has had this particular problem in the Lubbock Regionals Golden Gloves tourney the past two years—it's called finding an opponent.

Price, who has been fighting since 1969 has picked up 139 wins in 163 bouts but has yet to win a match in the Open Division of the Lubbock Regionals. Nonetheless Price will be making the journey to Fort Worth for the second straight year to compete in the state tourney.

And in this year's regional affair Price had both of his preliminary bouts cancelled and won the 139 pound class by default. But the situation is nothing new for Price—the exact same thing happened last year.

"It's just possible that his scheduled opponents have taken a peek at his past record and decided it would be wiser not to fight him at all."

Dusty, the son of Mr and Mrs Billy Price of Levelland, was the New Mexico state junior champ in 1977, was a silver medalist at the AAU junior olympics in 1976 and has won the Lubbock Regionals every time he's entered.

EVANS TRIUMPHS

Evans ninth graders outlasted Mackenzie boys 43-39 Monday night in a zone playoff. Now, Evans will play O.L. Slaton Saturday at Lubbock High gym for the city ninth-grade championship.

MHS Meets Coronado

Estacado switched to a man-to-man and fullcourt trap to get back in the game.

Willis Flowers was replaced by Tim Hereford in the man-to-man coverage on Borger guard Williams to cool the Bulldog outside shooting attack, and the move has affected Wood's strategy against Borger this time.

"We're going to open in a man-to-man with either Chatham (Mike) or Davis (Preston) on Williams," said the Estacado coach. "Borger used a 1-3-1 zone against us much of the time and that's what we're going to work on in practice today (Monday)."

The Matadors' man-to-man defense also seemed to stifle Borger postman Smith's success. Estacado held the 6-4 one-year letterman to only eight points of his 27 total in the second half.

Besides Williams and Smith, the Bulldogs are expected to start Charlie Love (5-6, Sr.) at guard, with Tracy Taylor (6-1, Sr.) and John Smith (6-1, Sr.) at the forward spots.

Estacado will counter with Mike Chatham (5-10, Sr.) and either Willis Flowers (5-10, Sr.) or Preston Davis (5-10, Jr.) at the guards, Fred Dunn (6-2, Sr.) and Winston Gipson (6-1, Sr.) will be the forwards with Dewey Turner (6-5, Sr.) at the post.

How much of a factor will the home court be?

"Point wise, I couldn't say," said Wood. "The advantage with the home court is that we'll (Estacado) be more mentally ready to play."

And Wood guarantees that tonight's rematch will not follow the same pattern as the first Estacado-Borger contest.

"There is no way we're going to get 20-points behind this time," said a firm Wood. "Now, watch them come out and hit the first 10 baskets. If they do, I'll call time and get sick."

The Matador baseball team was getting its pictures taken Monday huh....

Don Henry

Under this year's altered format, the league's top three teams earn first-round byes, and the second three host the final trio in homestage games. Then the remaining six head for Houston, the third-placer joining the three first-round survivors battling for spots in the semis opposite the two top clubs.

But, Myers isn't worrying about the involved tourney bracket as much as the Cougars Thursday and UT in Austin Saturday.

What he wants to see is a continuation of the improvement which he has noted since the opening tipoff back in November.

"WELL, I THINK the league has had some surprises," remarked Myers. And he went on to indicate that the way his Raiders had performed — being picked as low as seventh in one poll — could be listed as a surprise.

"Through the season, we'd improved," said Myers, getting back to his team's performance. "And, because of our young players, I think we will continue to improve right on up to the tournament."

"Our man-for-man offense has improved. And, we have some guys coming off the bench who are playing as well as some of the starters. This is a good situation."

Myers lauded one of his starters, 6-8 sophomore Ralph Brewster, for his work on Woods. "Ralph got some tough rebounds, and his defense was the best he's ever played. You don't see many 6-8 guys as quick as Ralph."

Then, Myers turned to the work of a trio of his reserves, McPherson, David Little, and Tommy Parks.

"Little (13 points, off five-of-seven shooting) had a very good game. Jeff Taylor (another freshman who is starting) was not doing poorly. But, Little came in and scored for us. Both of them have matured a lot. Little's defense has improved; he's not gambling on steals as much."

MCPHERSON DREW MYERS' praise for his rebounding (six caroms); "all of them were tough and in traffic. I thought he really helped."

"And Parks comes in in special situations. He got the ball down against their press when it was bothering us. He's one of the quickest guys I've ever seen with the ball."

The road trip ahead looms as the decisive series now. "Houston has had its problems at home," said Myers. "But, I'm sure they will be wanting to get something going just before the tournament."

He didn't have to mention Texas, which has fallen but twice, once to Tech in Lubbock.

But, if Myers wants a challenge, it's to maintain that improvement trend.

Bellard Pledges New Program

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Emory Bellard took over Monday as head football coach at Mississippi State and pledged to pour "my heart and my soul" into turning the Bulldogs into national power.

former Texas A&M coach-athletic director, told a news conference Bellard received a four-year contract calling for $45,000 annually, plus another $20,000 from television.

Hogs Hot From Field

TCU stayed close and trailed only 39-36 at intermission. The Horned Frogs finally tied the contest at 58 to 56 to play, and finally took the lead 62-61 at the 7:20 mark on a basket by Ed Wineinger, who led TCU with 18.

Rice Triumphs

HOUSTON (AP) — Anthony DeCello calmly netted two free throws with 11 seconds left to ice an 84-80 victory for Rice over Texas Christian in the battle for the SWC cellar.

The lead changed hands until Glen Rieke's three-point play put the Owls ahead for good at 72-70 with 2:56 remaining.

Elbert Darden, the Owls' all-time leading pointmaker, scored 31 points to lead Rice, now 4-10 in SWC play and 17-17 for the season. TCU fell to 1-12 and 6-17 for the season.

TCU's Jim Hund scored a 20-foot jumper with 11 seconds left to bring the Horned Frogs to within two points, 82-80. TCU then fouled DeCello on the in-bounds pass, but the junior guard made both halves of a 1-and-1 shot to insure the victory.

Rice led throughout the first half, but Arkansas 71, Baylor 62. Arkansas — Zahn 6-0-0, Hastings 4-1-13. Schall 6-2-4, Totals 79-12-17.

Joe Daniels came off the bench to score 15 for Rice. Terry Tibbs had 14 and Hund 13 to aid with the TCU scoring attack.

but didn't say anything about it publicly until later. "Anthony went to A&M and SMU and Tech," said SA Judson coach Jerry Sanders Monday night.

Gabriel Rivera, a 6-2, 260-pound tight end, and running back Anthony Hutchinson are expected to join Tech's signees.

Powell Takes First In Local Shoot

Frank Powell of Midland was the overall winner at Sunday's shoot sponsored by the South Plains Gun Club.

Raider Fems Whip WT

CANYON (Special) — Leading all the way, the Texas Tech women clipped West Texas State 64-52 Monday night.

Powell scored 278 in overall, with James Long of Denver City scoring 273 for runner-up honors overall.

City Softball Meetings Slated To Start

his dual role as athletic director. Bellard, 48, inventor of the wishbone offense, resigned as athletic director and head coach of Texas A&M in mid-season last year after building a 48-27 record.

He said that in a brief meeting Monday afternoon with the Bulldog squad "there was a lot of expression in the faces of the young men I was talking to. . . and I think they're ready to make a total commitment, too."

"It's not just a woman who has the prerogative to change her mind. Bellard joked to two reporters.

"I may be able to find a coach next August," he said.

"You are looking at a man who's got his motor plumb on right now," he said.

He said he probably would bring in seven coaches to go with the four Tyler assistants who are being held over.

Bellard told reporters and Bulldog supporters who jammed his news conference, "I pledge to you that you've got my heart and my soul in the efforts we are going to be making to make Mississippi State football competitive with anyone. We've got the basic ingredients it takes."

Melvin Robertson, who molded tough defensive teams for Bellard at Texas A&M, as defensive coordinator.

Central Oklahoma Bombs Greyhounds

EDMOND, Okla. (Special) — Central State scored the game's first 15 points, and Eastern New Mexico University never recovered, falling 106-62 in a non-conference game.

"You have to take chances," said Celtics co-owner John Y. Brown. "Hopefully we'll get to the playoffs."

The trade was agreed upon Saturday night by Brown and Harry Mangurian, co-owners of the Celtics, and Werblin. It was not supposed to be announced until Tuesday, but word leaked out Sunday night so the Knicks called a news conference and confirmed the deal Monday.

McAdoo, a 6-foot-10 forward with a 27.8 scoring average over seven NBA seasons, learned of the deal from a local newsman.

Wesley Clark was the big bomber, as he crammed home 43 points for the Broncos. Dana Altman accounted for 16 points for the Greyhounds.

"It's a shock for me," he said. "It doesn't make any sense at all. Why would the Knicks do it?"

ENMU will play at Phoenix, Ariz., next Saturday against Grand Canyon.
