

Good Marks Given Police One Car, One Man Plan

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ALTHOUGH some persons have criticized the police department's fleet car plan as an "expensive fringe benefit," the head of the department's 155 patrolmen argues that the one-car, one-man fleet plan not only is saving Lubbock taxpayers money but that it also will reduce the city's crime rate in two to three years.

Last November, Maj. K.O. Stuart began keeping records of how many calls were answered by off-duty police officers.

According to his records, off-duty officers who were not being paid for their time spent 224 hours answering 752 police calls in three months.

Through Feb. 9, Stuart's records show that officers who were not on duty accounted for 36 arrests, assisted on-duty officers or other law enforcement agencies 81 times, aided 137 stranded motorists, answered 28 calls to check alarms and provided 11 escorts of other vehicles.

"The remaining calls were classified as 'calls taken or originated,' which means, Stuart said, the off-duty officers either heard a dispatch such as an armed robbery over their patrol car radio and were closer to the scene than the on-duty unit assigned to that area, or came across a wreck, fire or burglary and took the call before it was phoned into police.

"I feel like a lot of those (originated) calls wouldn't have been answered, or at least not as quickly, if an off-duty officer hadn't been in the area in his radio-equipped patrol car and heard the dispatch," Stuart said.

However, even with the increased availability of officers patrolling the streets, Lubbock's crime rate last year was 5.2 percent higher than in 1977.

Researchers from Cresap, McCormick and Paget, Inc., a Washington, D.C. firm that studied police department efficiency in 1976, had touted the fleet car system as a deterrent to crime, arguing that if each officer had his own patrol car, the added visibility would discourage criminal activity.

Stuart agrees in principle with the research group's premise about such a plan reducing a city's crime rate, but says a decrease should not be expected to occur immediately.

"If a fleet car plan is operating properly, a city's crime rate will go up initially because we will have more crimes reported since more officers will be available," he said.

"But in two or three more years, I expect the crime rate will go down," he continued. "Not necessarily because reported crime will level off, but because we will have learned to take advantage of all the opportunities for efficiency that the fleet car plan provides."

Stuart's records already provide examples of officers taking advantage of the fleet system's crime-reducing potential.

Thumbing through a stuffed manila folder, the major reads from slips of paper officers had turned in to his office.

"Here's a felony theft that apparently never went out over the radio. The officer just happened to be there."

"One report here shows that an officer spotted a house fire, radioed (the police

'Terrible Damage' Reported

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese warplanes bombed factories, power plants and communications facilities in northern Vietnam Sunday, inflicting "terrible damage" and causing many civilian casualties, Radio Hanoi reported.

An air raid alert was ordered in Hanoi, 80 miles from the Chinese border, Japan's Kyodo news agency reported, but Vietnam's radio said the capital was calm and that hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese held a rally to denounce the invasion. Chinese forces crossed the border Saturday along a 450-mile front.

Radio Hanoi said Vietnamese troops had killed hundreds of Chinese and destroyed or damaged 46 tanks in fierce battles in Vietnam's northern provinces. It said the Chinese had occupied 11 towns and villages in all five border provinces — Cao Bang, Lang Son, Hoang Lien Son, Lai Chau and Quang Ninh.

Tass: "Brutal Crimes"

The official Soviet news agency Tass said China sent "many infantry divisions" backed by tanks and artillery into Vietnam and that the Chinese were "barbarously shelling border towns" and committing "brutal crimes" resulting in enormous material damage and human casualties.

The claims could not be independently verified.

The number of Chinese troops in Vietnam was not known. U.S. military analysts said the Chinese had amassed about 120,000 troops along the border, while the Vietnamese have some 50,000 soldiers deployed in an arc north of Hanoi. The Vietnamese apparently set up their first line of defense well back from the Chinese border with a screen of outposts closer to the frontier.

Viet Army In South

Much of Vietnam's 600,000-man army is believed to be in southern Vietnam. About 100,000 Vietnamese troops that took part in the offensive that ousted the Chinese-backed Cambodian government and replaced it with a regime supported by Hanoi reportedly are still in Cambodia.

A large portion of China's estimated 3.3 million-man army reportedly is stationed along its 5,000-mile long border with the Soviet Union.

The Vietnam News Agency said Chinese troops, tanks and planes drove up to six miles into Vietnam, attacking

Khomeini Promises Victory Over Israel

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's new Islamic government announced Sunday it had expelled Israeli officials after eliminating all relations with the Jewish state.

The announcement by Tehran Radio came as a buoyant Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat met with Iranian leaders.

He conferred with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Moslem leader of Iran's anti-shah forces, and said the Iranian revolution has turned the strategic balance in the Middle East "upside down."

Palestinian Support Commitment

Tehran Radio, reporting on a statement from the Foreign Ministry, said support for the Palestinian people is the main principle of the provisional government's foreign policy. Israel once received most of its oil from Iran.

The broadcast said 22 Israeli trade and immigration officials and representatives of El Al Airline along with other Israeli technicians were expelled from Iran Sunday. All Iranian government employees in Israel were ordered to return home, the station said.

Arafat won assurances from Khomeini that Iran will "turn to the issue of victory over Israel" after the nation consolidates its strength, Tehran Radio reported.

The Moslem holy man's secret Islamic court continued rounding up officials of the old regime and Khomeini aides predicted more executions would take place.

Tehran Radio said Khomeini's forces were searching for deposed Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, whose 38-day-old government was swept aside by Khomeini's forces on Feb. 11. The station denied its previous report that he had been arrested and was awaiting trial.

Iran's official Pars news agency said Abbas Hoveyda, a former prime minister, was on trial and that verdicts in his and other cases would be announced in the near future.

"The day of judgment has come," a guard at Khomeini's headquarters said.

Four top generals were executed by a firing squad last week. About 400 figures of the old government are under arrest, sources report.

Iranian press reports said some death sentences have been handed out, but executions have been postponed until after the end of Arafat's visit. No details were given.

Oil Production Resumes

Tehran Radio reported Sunday that officials of the state-run National Iranian Oil Co. announced that striking employees had returned to work in the Ahwaz, Masjed Soleyman, Gach Saran and Abadan oil fields in southwestern Iran. A company spokesman was quoted as saying that once production equipment is ready to start, the oil flow could return to normal within 10 days. At peak levels Iran produced an average of 6 million barrels a day.

Other Iranian and Western oil sources have said it will take at least two to three months for Iran to resume normal production.

Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization reportedly played a major role in training Iranian guerrillas who fought the imperial troops of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who was forced to leave the country last month.

Arafat is the first foreign leader to visit Khomeini and provisional Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan since they took power.

He told reporters after meeting with Bazargan that "the Iranian revolution is an earthquake and it may arrive in Palestine."

Arafat refused to discuss PLO involvement in Iran's revolution, but Palestinian officials in Lebanon have boasted of training Iranian guerrillas.

Khomeini Smiles

Arafat flew here Saturday afternoon and met for an hour with the 78-year-old Moslem patriarch. Iranian reporters who saw the two men said Arafat drew rare smiles from the usually somber ayatollah.

Because of Iran's political and economic disarray, observers here say they believe it is doubtful Iran's support for the PLO cause could quickly be translated into economic and military assistance. Saudi Arabia contributes some $40 million annually to Arafat's guerrillas.

Khomeini's marshals continued their sweep of relics of the shah's government. At least 21 other members of the old regime were reported to be undergoing secret trials.

One unconfirmed report held that the shah's nephew, his twin sister's son, was among the military leaders arrested.

Small Balloon Weathers Trek Across Nation

SUNDOWN (Special) — When Angela Roe and Joyce Plummer two weeks ago launched a small helium balloon as a lark, they expected it to travel only a few miles before bursting.

After all, the Lions Club balloon, little more than a foot in circumference, seemed a fragile thing, made of thin rubber stretched almost to its breaking point by the gas.

However, the two seventh graders discovered just how hardy the airtight bag was when they learned by telephone Saturday that the blue balloon had drifted more than 1,500 miles from their West Texas home before coming to earth.

Bobby Cathey, 16, told Angela he found the deflated balloon stuck on the backyard fence of his home in Gastonia, N.C.

He immediately called the telephone number listed in the small plastic bag attached by string to the balloon.

Angela, who answered the phone, said she was "totally amazed" the balloon had traveled so far in only 15 days.

Cathey told her he and his family unsuccessfully had tried to pinpoint Sundown on a Texas map. Angela gave him directions, using Lubbock as a starting

Land Hopes Brighten For Mennonite Group

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THOUGH no firm financial aid has materialized yet, prospects of a Mennonite colony retaining its ranch southwest of Seminole brightened over the weekend.

Two different groups of benefactors, both refusing to reveal their identities, are attempting to help the beleaguered religious group meet an overdue land payment of nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

Peter Bergen, the colony's leader, said Sunday he has spoken with a group from Lubbock willing to assist the Mennonites out of their financial straits. Bergen Friday confirmed he had spoken with another group "willing to help us make the payments."

A meeting with the first group was held Friday night, said Seminole attorney John Shepherd, who has been assisting the Mennonites since their arrival in West Texas two years ago. But, Shepherd said Sunday he still is awaiting the results of the gathering.

"When someone is trying to help you raise that kind of money, you don't push them," he explained.

Payment Deadline Passes

The German-speaking Mennonites, who emigrated to Seminole from Canada and Mexico two years ago, Thursday defaulted on $225,037.50 land payment purchase of 10 sections of the 70 Ranch outside of Seminole.

Over the weekend, some clan members and others close to the situation speculated that one of the mystery groups might purchase the land and either sell it back to the Mennonites on easier terms or lease it to local farmers interested in working it. Under the latter proposal, the Mennonites would receive the profits from the tenants and apply them to the payment.

Earlier speculation was that one of the groups might buy the ranch and lease it to Mennonite families to farm, but that now is considered improbable because the Immigration and Naturalization Service has told the Mennonites that, to remain in the country, they must get jobs that can be certified by the U.S. Department of Labor — and agricultural jobs, as the group is finding out the hard way, cannot be certified.

To date, the approximately 125 Mennonite families have invested nearly $1 million in housing and farm equipment, and nearly $600,000 more in payments on the ranch they hoped someday would house up to 30,000 persons in a blossoming, independent religious colony.

But, as job and land payment problems arose, many in the colony were forced to leave the ranch and to take jobs in Seminole and other nearby towns. Now, only

World Remains Apprehensive While Watching Asia Conflict

By The Associated Press

INDIA and the Soviet Union, China's two largest neighbors, issued statements Sunday condemning Peking's invasion of Vietnam. Moscow vowed to "honor its obligation" to Vietnam and India said the incursion threatens "international peace and security."

In Washington, the White House called for the Chinese, who launched their invasion Saturday, to withdraw. A White House official said, "Our immediate interests are not threatened, although we are concerned about the continuation and escalation of the conflict."

The Kremlin, which signed a mutual aid pact with Hanoi 15 weeks ago after months of trouble along the Sino-Vietnamese border, told Peking to withdraw its army "before it is too late." It said, "responsibility for the consequences of continuing aggression ... will be borne by the present Chinese leadership."

The Soviet announcement seemed to indicate Moscow would not intervene, at least for the present. "The heroic Vietnamese people, which has become the victim of fresh aggression, is capable of standing up for itself this time again," it said.

India, which fought a brief border war with China in 1962, expressed "profound shock and distress at the outbreak of hostilities." An official statement said Prime Minister Morarji Desai "stressed the urgent need for the withdrawal of Chinese forces from Vietnam."

The Indian government was embarrassed that the Chinese launched the invasion while External Affairs Minister A.B. Vajpayee was in China on a mission to normalize relations that still are cool because of the 1962 Sino-Indian War.

Vajpayee cut short his visit and returned home from the first trip to China by an Indian foreign minister in two decades. Diplomats in New Delhi said the invasion was a serious blow to normalization efforts.

Madhu Limaye, an official of Desai's ruling Janata Party, said he could not find words strong enough to condemn the "brazen invasion by the most populous country of the world of the territories of the world's most brave country."

India's pro-Moscow Communist Party staged a protest demonstration outside the Chinese Embassy in New Delhi.

The communists joined former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party and other opposition groups in a joint statement calling on Desai to take "all necessary steps, diplomatic and political, for bringing an end to this war against Vietnam."

While the Soviet Union's other Warsaw Pact allies put the blame entirely on China, Romania called on both Vietnam and China to withdraw "all foreign troops to within national frontiers." It said the issues that caused the conflict were "most complex."

New York's two U.S. senators, Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan and Republican Jacob K. Javits, said the Chinese incursion could start a third world war that would inevitably involve the United States.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said unless the fighting ends quickly it could "spread with unforeseeable consequences."

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said the Chinese incursion "is not that serious" but "could escalate to a conflict of major proportions."

The 15 members of the U.N. Security Council were expected to hold formal discussions today on the invasion.

Snow Closes Atlanta Airport; Four Great Lakes Frozen Over

By The Associated Press
Snow, freezing rain and ice blasted the Southeast Sunday, forcing Atlanta's airport to close, while the Midwest and Northeast shivered in a prolonged cold spell that has frozen over four of the five Great Lakes for the first time in recent history.

"It's not as bad as Chicago, but down here we don't have the equipment to handle it," said Roger Myers, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, in announcing that up to four inches of snow had temporarily closed down Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport, the world's second busiest.

One runway re-opened late Sunday, but dozens of flights were canceled. Airports in both Carolinas and Lovell-Field Airport in Chattanooga, Tenn., were shut down by the snowstorm.

A performance in Atlanta of the Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra was canceled, as was the Sunday show of the International Travel, Sport and R.V. Exhibition.

"I don't have enough exhibitors," promoter Bill Hardman Sr. said. "I must have 1,000 exhibitors and only about 75 showed up."

Up north, the four westernmost Great Lakes were frozen over for the first time in modern history, according to the Ninth Coast Guard District in Cleveland. Lake Ontario, because of its greater depth and water flow, was only about 40 percent ice-covered, the Coast Guard said.

Residents of the frostbitten Midwest and Northeast endured another cold day in an unusually cold month, but National Weather Service spokesmen said "considerably warmer" weather was expected in the Northeast and Midwest by Tuesday or Wednesday. "Considerably warmer" meant above freezing.

In Washington, a Weather Service spokesman said the long-range forecast for mid-February to mid-March calls generally for below-normal temperatures east of the Mississippi Valley and above-normal readings in the West.

Georgia State Highway Patrol spokesman Mark Lott warned motorists to stay off the roads Sunday unless travel was absolutely necessary.

Similar warnings were issued in South Carolina, where freezing rain and sleet covered roads with a solid sheet of ice. Authorities reported two traffic fatalities when cars hit icy spots and overturned.

Strong gusty winds churned up a heavy snowfall in neighboring North Carolina. By midday, as much as a foot of snow had fallen in the state's northern, mountainous area.

In Tennessee, highway patrol Sgt. Jere

Starnes said Interstate 75 south from Chattanooga and Interstate 24 over Monteagle Mountain were almost impassable as a result of a six-inch snowfall.

Record lows continued to be registered across the northeast quadrant of the country. The temperature in New York City plummeted to zero at 6 a.m. Sunday, the lowest it's been in 83 years. The ice-box village of Old Forge in New York's Adirondack Mountains registered 52 degrees below zero.

In Maine, car battery sales were reported up 200 percent and even ice fishermen at Moosehead Lake in central Maine were reported staying indoors. "When that wind starts whipping across the lake, it'll freeze your bones together," said Les McDonough of Greenville.

Lawrence V. Sweet, a plumber in Lexington, Mass., said he's been getting about 40 calls a day, mainly for frozen pipes and mains. "You hate to see people without water and heat," he said. "I've been working until 1 o'clock in the morning most nights. It's good business, but I hope the weather changes. I need some rest."

Warming Trend To Continue Here

Sunday's gradual warming trend that helped melt most of the leftover snow and ice deposited across the South Plains over the weekend is expected to continue today.

Sunday's sunshine caused Lubbock's mercury to soar from 20 degrees at 11 a.m. to 42 degrees by 4 p.m.

Temperatures from Amarillo to Victoria also rose rapidly under the bright sun, causing the frosty weather that glazed Texas streets to leave almost as quickly as it arrived, according to the National Weather Service.

Clouds on Sunday remained low over East Texas, where temperatures remained in the 30s.

Skies over Lubbock this afternoon are expected to be fair and clearing. Today's high will reach the low 50s, with winds southerly 10 to 15 mph.

The low tonight is expected to dip to the upper teens.

The clearing and warming trend should continue across most of the state, although some clouds are expected to linger over south Texas.

No rain is expected for the Panhandle-South Plains area; however, some patchy rain and drizzle is expected to fall over the Texas coast.

Less Snow, Rain Expected In March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Snow and rainfall will be lighter than normal in most of the country through mid-March, according to the National Weather Service's Long Range Prediction Group.

In its regular forecast, the group calls for heavier than normal precipitation in California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, northern Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, north Florida and the southern sections of Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. The rest of the nation should have lighter than normal precipitation.

Turning to the temperature, below normal readings are anticipated for Florida, Alabama, Georgia, eastern Mississippi, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey.

Temperatures should be above normal in most of Texas, western Oklahoma, southwestern Kansas, Colorado, southwestern Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

The remainder of the nation, primarily New England and the Midwest, should experience temperatures about normal for this time of year.

John Connally Plans Visit To Lubbock

Republican presidential candidate John B. Connally and his wife Nellie will be guests at an informal reception here Thursday, completing the Panhandle portion of their tour of the state.

The 5:30 p.m. reception in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Terrace Suite is open to the public, said Raymond S. Tapp, chairman for the event. Vice chairman is Marion T. Key. A committee of Lubbock citizens are serving as hosts.

"Gov. Connally wanted to start his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination in his home state," Tapp said. "The Connallys will visit more than 20 communities during seven days and meet and greet as many fellow Texans as possible."

The Connallys will be arriving in Lubbock after stops in Wichita Falls and Amarillo the same day.

The tour will cover all parts of Texas and will close with a birthday reception for Connally in Houston Feb. 27.

Tapp emphasized that the Lubbock reception is open to everyone — Republicans, Democrats and Independents.

Tickets for the reception are $10 each and may be purchased at the door or by sending a check to Connally for President Reception, P.O. Box 2429, Lubbock, Tex. 79408 or by calling 745-2507. Checks should be made payable to Connally for President Committee.

Puppy Love Saves Cold, Fire Victims

LAGRANGE, Ga. (AP) — Passersby kept puppies and birds warm in parked cars when a shopping center pet store was damaged by fire, officials said.

Eight of the 16 stores in the Commerce Village shopping center suffered fire or smoke damage, said Jerry Ashmore, assistant fire chief. He said firemen fought the flames for an hour in freezing rain before putting them out.

The blaze apparently started Saturday night in a clothing store and spread to others, he said.

No one was injured, but several birds were overcome by smoke and cold, Ashmore said.

Demonstrators Protest Weapons Expo

CHICAGO (AP) — "Defense Technology '79," an exhibit of modern-day weapons expertise and seminars, opened Sunday to a private audience of international "window shoppers" as hundreds of anti-war protesters demonstrated outside the exhibit center.

About 350 persons, carrying signs such as "No Nukes Is Good Nukes," gathered in the parking lot of the O'Hare Exhibition Center in suburban Rosemont an hour after the exhibit opened.

They stood in a light snow with temperatures in the low teens and sang "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful" and other religious songs, led by a choral group.

In a separate area, 11 persons identifying themselves as members of the National Socialists White Peoples' Party, formerly known as the American Nazi Party, demonstrated in protest of arms sales to Israel.

About two dozen helmeted police officers stood shoulder-to-shoulder with clubs thrust forward to separate the two groups of demonstrators.

The four-day exhibit originally was scheduled for Miami but was moved from the state because of pressure from anti-war groups.

The 100-man Rosemont police force canceled all time off for the duration of the exhibit after at least four anti-war groups said they were organizing massive demonstrations.

Just before Christmas, officials from Rosemont — which owns the exhibition center hosting the show — urged that the gathering be canceled, but the sponsor refused.

Laurie Torkey, a member of the steering committee organizing the demonstrations, said 2,000 to 4,000 persons would demonstrate in the parking lot outside the arms show, and that prayer meetings and study sessions would be held while the show is in progress.

She said, "We think this will be the largest peace demonstration in Chicago since 1968," when thousands of persons demonstrated against the Vietnam War while the Democratic National Convention was in session.

The arms show sponsor, the Washington-based Defense Foreign Affairs Publications, has accused the antiwar groups of "manipulating the media" and distorting what the show is about.

Reporters were barred from the center and it could not immediately be learned what items were on exhibit.

However, Gregory Copley, editor and publisher of the publications, said there will be no "thumbscrews or jet fighters" at the show, despite news reports to the contrary.

"There'll be less weapons of destruction than at an ordinary boat show," said Copley.

About 1,000 persons attended a Saturday night prayer meeting organized by the show's opponents, specifically the Mobilization for Survival, Clergy and Laity Concerned, the American Friends Service Committee and the Chicago Peace Council.

Copley said, "The people who are demonstrating want to air their own views. This is a peg to hand their demonstration on. That's their view and that's fine with me."

"I don't consider myself a merchant of death. I'd rather think that we're promoting dialogue and discussion," he said.

He said aircraft refueling systems, aircraft parts suppliers and other manufacturers of defensive and offensive weapons will have displays at the conference.

but that it was "certainly not a weapons show."

When pressed to identify exhibitors or guest speakers at the conference, Copley refused. Earlier, another spokesman for the publications, Dave Harvey, said 500 persons from "Korea, the Middle East, Europe, Africa and Latin America ... plus a lot of people from embassies in Washington" signed up to attend.

Copley said he expected 50 to 60 exhibitors, but that several canceled as a result of the public protest. He added that he "very much doubts" whether manufacturers will take orders on the exhibition floor while the visitors do "window shopping."

Copley's publications — a daily news briefing, weekly newsletter and monthly magazine — are sent to about 6,000 persons, primarily heads of state, military and foreign policy personnel throughout the world. Seminars will touch on subjects such as developments in Africa, defense of the Indian Ocean, the Middle East and developing countries.

Bid On Bust Of Hitler Too Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bullet-riddled bust of Adolf Hitler was put up for sale Sunday but its owner refused to accept a bid of $9,000, saying he was holding out for at least $10,000.

The bust, sculpted from life by Ludwig Nick, was taken from Hitler's bunker apartment where it had served as a target for Soviet soldiers at the time of his death and the fall of Berlin at the end of the European phase of World War II.

"I liberated it from the bunker," Carl Levin told a reporter. "I got a Russian bayonet in the belly when I tried to enter it. I talked the guard out of the bust."

Levin at the time was a war correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune, now no longer published. He now is a vice president and consultant of Burson-Marsteller, an international public relations firm based in the capital.

For about 20 years, he said, the bust was displayed in a Herald-Tribune office. When the paper folded, he took it with him.

It was one of more than 2,000 works of art, furniture, dishes and other objects offered during a four-day sale by C.G. Sloan & Co., an auction house. Many of the items were from estates and others from private consignors.

An agent for Clement Conger, curator at the White House and the State Department, got one of the finest pictures in the sale, "The Holly Farm" by Child Hassam, for $36,000. A pastel 18 by 22 inches in size, it depicts a house visited by all the foremost American Impressionist painters of the turn of the century.

"Crow Scout on Horseback," a gouache by Charles Marion Russell and formerly owned by his wife, was bought by an unidentified buyer for $42,500. A Thomas Cole depiction of a sailing vessel brought $5,500, and Rembrandt Peale's portrait of James Todd, brother of Dolley Madison's first husband, sold for $8,000.

Final figures had not been added up, but gallery officials estimated the sale, which started Thursday, netted about $1.25 million.

Sloan's had estimated that the Hitler bust, a handsome sculpture if a somewhat idealized depiction of the subject, might bring from $10,000 to $15,000. Levin had stipulated he would not sell for less than $10,000.

He said afterwards he did not know who had submitted the high bid of $9,000 but he understood the bidder may be interested in a private sale.

Travolta Ponders Texas Film

PASADENA (UPI) — Actor and teen idol John Travolta soaked up some local culture at Mickey Gilley's honky tonk Saturday night, where he practiced a few Western dance steps but avoided an offer to ride a mechanical bull.

Travolta is considering accepting the lead role in the movie "Urban Cowboy," which is to begin filming at Gilley's and other south Texas locations in April.

Accompanied by bodyguards, Travolta toured the club Saturday afternoon and signed autographs for employees' children, but he declined when offered a ride on the mechanical bull, a barrel-like contraption which bucks like a rodeo bull.

"Hey, John, when are you gonna ride that thing?" asked a young patron. "Get on up there."

"Naw, not yet," the star of "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease" replied.

"I'll ride it eventually, but not today. I need to take one home with me and practice on it in my backyard."

After dinner in nearby Houston, Travolta, who sported a newly grown beard, returned to Gilley's to sample the Saturday night country-western entertainment.

He took a brief turn on the dance floor to practice some non-disco steps and watched a few customers take on the mechanical bull, then quickly left through a side door.

Probe Not Linked To Flood Retrial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says its decision to seek another trial of Rep. Daniel J. Flood has nothing to do with a separate investigation into possible jury tampering in the first trial.

The trial of Flood, a Pennsylvania Democrat charged with perjury and bribery, ended with a hung jury Feb. 3. Justice Department spokesman Terence Adamson announced Thursday that the government decided to prosecute the case again.

There had been a question as to whether the government would seek a re-trial because Flood, 75, was hospitalized following his first trial. Adamson said the decision to seek a new trial wasn't connected with the jury tampering probe, which was ordered after the first trial.

The investigation began after a juror had told other jurors that he had confidential information which could be interpreted as helping to exonerate Flood. The juror, William Cash, was said by other jurors to be the only one who held out for acquittal on all counts. He later said he was only joking when he said he had information beneficial to Flood.

Flood was accused of taking more than $50,000 in bribes in return for using his influence as chairman of a House subcommittee on labor, health, education and welfare. The 16-term congressman was re-elected last November after being indicted.

Common Questions Asked VA Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some commonly asked questions and answers supplied by the Veterans Administration:

—I receive a widow's pension from VA. If I receive a cost of living increase in my Social Security next year, will my VA pension be reduced?

No, public law 95-588 which took effect Jan. 1 prevents any reduction in pension solely due to a Social Security cost of living increase.

—I have just been awarded educational benefits for an on-the-job training program. With the first check I received a computer card. What do I do with this card?

Your employer should certify the number of hours you work each month and sign the card. You must also sign the card and should return it promptly in the envelope provided. Your payment for each succeeding month will not be made until the card is returned and processed by VA.

Primary Hassle Over Primary

IT COMES AS no great surprise that politicians are persuaded by their political persuasion whether, and in what form, to support or oppose a separate Presidential primary in Texas.

What's best for Texas and the nation takes a back seat to what's best for one's own candidacy or the candidacy of one's favorite hopeful.

Thus, the liberal Democrats flatly reject the idea of holding a Presidential primary on any date other than the regular Texas primary in May. Conservative Democrats favor a split date. And Republicans are split, period.

LT. GOV. BILL HOBBY started the debate by disclosing his plans to draft a bill that would move the Presidential primary in Texas up to March and move the regular primary for state and local offices to July.

That would give Texas more impact in choosing a President, he said, and shorten the campaign time for other offices by leaving only a couple of months between the August runoff and the early November general election.

Left unsaid was Hobby's self-interest. As a moderate Democrat looking ahead to 1980, he could see that some of his most loyal conservative supporters in the Texas Senate might suffer if Republicans pulled too many independent conservative voters into their Presidential primary.

Splitting the date, allowing a voter to help choose a Republican Presidential nominee in March and a Democratic state senate nominee in July would work out just dandy. House Speaker Bill Clayton, a conservative, quickly agreed with that idea but—in order to be fiscally conservative—suggested that the Presidential primary be held in April to coincide with school and municipal elections and thus reduce the cost.

LIBERAL DEMOCRAT Billie Carr of Houston exploded in wrath. Be a crime to hold separate primaries, she said. Besides, siphoning off conservative voters into the Republican Presidential primary would give liberal Democrats a better chance in the Democratic primary if it were held the same day.

Democratic National Chairman John C. White, a key strategist for President Carter's re-election hopes, opined that the best thing to do is just not have any Presidential primary nowhere now.

John Connally, a former Democrat seeking the GOP Presidential nomination, likes March. George Bush, who also wants the GOP nod, disagrees. He wants a May primary "that compels voters to decide whether they are Republicans or Democrats."

STATE GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart agrees with Bush. Gov. Bill Clements straddles the fence on a split primary but says he'd veto a late-summer date. The Texas League of Women Voters says a late-summer date is the only time that makes good sense.

And the State Democratic Executive Committee favors a May Presidential primary guaranteeing party "purity."

March, April, May, June, July or August...Whenever the primary is held, the only thing "pure" will be the malarkey.

Shedding Light On Edison

A LOT OF fact and fancy, including fiction, often becomes mixed up with legend and hero worship.

And so it is with Thomas A. Edison, the "inventor" of the light bulb.

Actually, Thomas A. Edison did not "invent" the incandescent lamp as many have thought through the years. What he did was devise and manufacture the first lamp and electrical distribution system that could be operated together economically, for which the world should be forever indebted.

IT SO HAPPENS that the Edison Pageant of Light has just been completed in Fort Myers, Fla., marking the 100th anniversary of the light bulb.

In perfecting the light bulb and the system in which it could be used, Edison came up with a lamp which had a high-resistance, hairlike "filament" instead of the low resistance wires and rods of rival inventors.

In October 1879, after thousands of experiments, he made such a lamp, using carbonized thread. It burned for 40 hours. The next year he made lamps suitable for commercial use with filaments of bamboo. With the help of his mathematician, Francis R. Upton, he also devised dynamo, the feeder-and-main system and later the three-wire system—each of which cut the cost of furnishing electricity.

AS ELECTRIC lighting came into general use in the 1880s, cities and towns became safer and more pleasant. Until then, the gas works found in every large city were a blight on the urban landscape.

The advent of the electric light also greatly reduced the danger of fire in homes or the workplace. It was a new world, for which Edison is due credit, as he is for actually inventing the phonograph, the carbon telephone transmitter. But, the incandescent lamp was his greatest triumph.

It is too bad there isn't an Edison to figure out what to do about high electric bills these days—especially the onerous fuel pass-through!

M. STANTON EVANS:

Two Chances For China Trade: Slim And None

WASHINGTON—In its effort to promote the "normalization" of U.S. policy toward Communist China, the Carter Administration has come down hard on the idea of augmented trade.

In his initial statement on the subject, Carter stressed "the expanded commercial and cultural relations" expected to flow from the change of policy—a theme promoted by administration spokesmen at various meetings around the country.

As a result, a lot of American businessmen are smacking their lips in anticipation of a brand-new market of one billion human beings, with corresponding sales and profits.

Even if the Carter move would lead to such expanded profits, of course, that would be no reason for abandoning the 17 million people on Taiwan to Communist takeover.

BUT THE added irony is that the Carter maneuver, in all probability, won't even lead to bigger profits. There is precious little evidence that Communist China is now, or can ever be, a major market for the United States, and plenty of evidence that leads in just the opposite direction.

The point is made in a recent study from the Hoover Institution, entitled "Two Chinese States" and containing in-depth essays comparing the economies of Red China and the Republic of China on Taiwan.

This survey shows that Communist China's economy has been and continues to be a disaster area, incapable of producing and riddled with bureaucratic inefficiencies.

Because it can't produce, it has little to sell on global markets; and because it has so little to sell, it doesn't have the wherewithal to pay for other people's goods.

THE HOOVER study notes that U.S.-Peking trade, after an initial boom in 1973-74 (inflated by the sale of Boeing aircraft), fell to the $300-$400 million range in 1976-77, and has only lately edged its way back up to the $1 billion mark.

This decline, says the report, "seems to have originated not in obstacles to normalization but in the inability of the PRC to increase its exports because of domestic scarcities and bottlenecks, the difficulties of financing capital imports on a sustained basis...and the failure to achieve self-sufficiency in grain..."

By way of contrast, the Republic of China on Taiwan has a boom economy—one of the most vigorous in Asia, if not in fact the world.

Health and dietary standards are high and rising, per capita incomes have been on a steady upward curve, industry has expanded at a giddy pace, and total foreign trade has mushroomed from $303 million in 1962 to $15.5 billion in 1976.

THE SECRET of this advance has been reliance on private enterprise and attraction of foreign capital with a climate of relative economic freedom.

Because of its expanding productivity, Taiwan had products to sell the world; and because it makes sales, it has the income with which to purchase products from the United States.

The end result is that Free China—not Peking—has constituted a burgeoning market for American products.

From 1960 through 1974, U.S. exports to Taiwan increased at an annual rate of 12.39 percent—second only to Japan in Asia and higher than the average for all other nations.

As of the middle 1970s, Taiwan was the 10th largest purchaser of U.S. products, and is expected to rise to sixth in a few years' time.

THE RESULTING discrepancies between the two Chinas in their economic dealings with the United States may be seen from estimated two-way trade totals in 1978: $1 billion or so for Communist China, more than $7 billion for Taiwan.

As has happened everywhere else in the world, freedom has led to productivity, and collectivist regimentation has led to economic paralysis.

Which means the net result of consigning Taiwan to slavery won't be to create a market, but to destroy one.

'It's The Political Gong Show'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

The 'Eyes' Have It

WASHINGTON—It was first-term Republican senators fresh from taking their oath of office who, over breakfast at the White House last month, dared tell Jimmy Carter that the emperor has no clothes.

President Carter had opened the session by informing the nine new senators (two other freshman Republicans were absent) that U.S. prestige was high and climbing all over the world, threatened only by possible Senate rejection of SALT.

That view is shared almost nowhere outside the White House and the seventh floor of the State Department. What makes it so worrisome is that Carter truly believes the American eagle is as splendidly garbed as ever, both in fact and in the eyes of the world.

Even in the post-imperial phase of the presidency, nobody—including Republican leaders—usually talks back to the chief executive.

But two of the freshman senators—Colorado's Bill Armstrong and Maine's William Cohen—violated protocol by saying what they and most of Washington think: the U.S. is in deepening trouble around the world; it is viewed as a paper tiger by most of its friends and adversaries alike.

Although the President appeared startled by this unaccustomed candor, it would be naive to suppose the encounter changed Carter's world view.

But it surely dented illusions that techniques used to ratify the Panama Canal treaty would work for the new strategic arms control treaty (SALT II).

THE BREAKFAST exchange carried clear warning that the new pact cannot be sold with generalities and that the moderate Republicans cannot be taken for granted.

In his warmup to the new Republicans, Carter was long on rhetoric, short on specifics.

"You would think we had never had it so good," said one senator later. The only menace to this utopia depicted by the President was possible Senate rejection of the SALT II treaty, an agreement he said is urgently desired by our allies and the U.S. military.

In the ensuing question period, Armstrong refuted the President's rose-colored vision.

THE COLORADO senator contended that the U.S. had declined so badly that it would lose a war at sea today and that NATO forces are badly outnumbered by the Warsaw Pact.

That was not a surprising statement by Armstrong, considering his record in the House as a hard-nosed conservative.

Less expected was an equally tough riposte from Cohen, considered a liberal in the House and a pariah in the Republican cloakroom for being a leader of impeachment proceedings against Richard M. Nixon.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale had urged the freshmen Republicans that morning to broaden themselves by world travel. He had done just that, said Cohen, with visits to five Asian countries since the election.

He found they regarded the U.S. as "a crippled giant," paralyzed into inaction and declining militarily.

THE MAINE senator next pointed to Carter's claim in his State of the Union address that one Poseidon submarine "carries enough warheads to destroy every large and medium-sized city in the Soviet Union."

While ballyhooed by administration officials as proof of Carter's tough-mindedness, his bellicose talk was in fact a replay of the old MAD (mutual assured destruction) theory favored by the arms control lobby.

Accordingly, Cohen challenged Carter about what he would do if a Soviet attack destroyed U.S. ground missiles. Would he push the button sending submarine-launched missiles against Moscow and Leningrad, knowing that would doom New York and Chicago?

CARTER RESPONDED that SALT II would reduce the possibility of this horrible dilemma being imposed on an American President by limiting Soviet missileery.

No, Cohen corrected him. It would limit only deployment of missiles—not their production. The President accepted the correction, but he did not retreat from his point.

This was the Billy Cohen automatically listed on the White House headcount as "leaning" pro-SALT after his election.

Surprising such colleagues as Bill Armstrong by asking and getting a seat on the Armed Services Committee, he has started to educate himself on SALT. His vote cannot be won by generalized appeals to save Carter's and the nation's prestige.

Carter's fervent efforts for acceptance on blind faith that the emperor really does have his clothes on will never persuade enough senators to approve SALT. None of the nine Republican freshmen is quite so blind. What worries them is that the President may not open his own eyes.

JAY HARRIS:

A Super Game...

IN THE WAKE of the Mideast muddle and the Mexico mishmash, some things are being said which are important.

Unfortunately, a lot of people may not be hearing or seeing them.

It's too bad, because in the not distant future, the American people are going to face some tough, gut-wrenching decisions. They need all the facts and opinions they can get in order to be able to make the right ones.

All too often, we feel, snap judgments are made on issues, events and personalities based on sketchy data, personal prejudice or no information at all. Sometimes, this is not the fault of the people, but those who, for whatever reason, mislead or fail to inform. The media and high U.S. officials are not without fault in this regard.

WE FIND IT most disturbing that during much of the Iranian revolt, the role of radicals, the Communists themselves, was played down by certain officials and segments of the media.

Now, after backers of the religious fanatic, Moslem leader Ayatollah Khomeini, have taken over and instituted their own bloody brand of "justice," it turns out that one of the major forces in the coalition which toppled the Shah was indeed Leftist.

For those who have read these pages, that should have come as no surprise. For at least one major wire service, apparently it did. It moved a story noting that among Khomeini's backers was "a well-organized leftist element with firm ties to radical Arab movements...whose hard core includes the skilled guerrilla fighters of the 'People's Fedayeen'" which now seeks a greater role in the new Iranian government.

IN THE DEATH of the U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan, the State Department lambasted what it said was Soviet advisers who ignored U.S. pleas to negotiate the incident and who helped direct the attack which resulted in the envoy's death.

Here again, although Afghanistan, like Iran, is a long way off, what has been happening there finally is coming home to roost.

The Wall Street Journal probably said it best in an editorial: "So Mr. Carter lost an embassy. Oh, perhaps you shouldn't fault him. After all, he had another 69 Marines on alert in the Azores, only 4,000 miles away..."

"The Marines were stuck in the Azores because Turkey would not accept them; it has become too dangerous to take risks on behalf of the United States..."

THEN, AFTER observing that no one kidnaps Russian diplomats, The WSJ notes: "None of this should be particularly surprising."

It might be called the vindication of the domino theory. In the world of geopolitics, if you lose in one place you will be tested in another. If you lose successively you will be tested in more and more ways. If you start not even to put up a fight, everyone will start to bully you. Any normal kid in a schoolyard learns this; we keep wondering where members of this administration grew up...

Of course, they like many Americans grew up in the aftermath of Vietnam and learned their lessons from the backlash of that debacle which didn't have to be.

"The great tragedy of the current administration," The WSJ adds, "is that just as the public and Congress started to regain their sense of proportion on these matters, Mr. Carter stuffed the key second and third levels of the State Department, the National Security Council and even the Pentagon with people upon whom the wrong lessons had been indelibly stamped..." It has been most costly.

THAT IS A damning indictment, and to a great extent one widely held by more than one knowledgeable U.S. observer and foreign diplomat.

We have personally been told on two occasions by such persons at the highest levels of their governments that "it is at the second and third echelons" of policy making that this nation's foreign policy, and fate, is being decided.

In that respect, former Gov. John Connally added some pertinent ammunition in a Houston talk Friday. Discussing recent events, the GOP presidential candidate said that the world was "witnessing an aggressive Soviet expansion that extends from a 15-year military buildup that has been unlike anything in the history of the world except Hitler's move in the 1930s."

Connally said too many people do not understand the key role Moscow is playing in strategic areas of the world, especially in the Third World.

THE FORMER Texas governor said the U.S. continually displays naivete in analyzing Soviet activities and cited Iran as a good example.

Anyone should have recognized, he said, that despite Soviet denials, the Russians had a hand in Iran, "and the very day that Bakhtiar resigns and Khomeini comes into power, then the Red hand begins to show."

"That's what going to happen in Rhodesia. It's already happened in Mozambique and it's happened in Zambia and it's happened in Zaire and in Angola and it's going to happen in South-West Africa if we permit it..." And although he didn't say so, the Red threat to Latin America and Mexico is no small one.

Which brings us back full circle. Are the American people aware of what is happening? Are they willing to take the risks—to their fortunes, their property, their lives and those of their children—to challenge the onrushing threat?

A recent Harris poll says that in a dramatic shift in public opinion, a majority of Americans feel the U.S. ought to play a more important role as a world leader. Why not find out what your family, your friends, your Congressmen think? It's almost as important as getting involved in a discussion about the Super Bowl!

Last Of Dead Sea Scrolls Published

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The last and most complete of the Dead Sea Scrolls has finally been published and discloses remarkable new evidence about the origin of Christian teaching on sex, marriage and divorce, a Biblical scholar said Sunday.

Called the "Temple Scroll" because a large part of it deals with reconstruction of the temple in Jerusalem, the newly published document sets forth a code of behavior forbidding divorce and polygamy. It also supports celibacy by banning sex anywhere within the walls of Jerusalem.

The new scroll is the last of the eight well-preserved documents found in a cave near the Dead Sea by a Bedouin youth in 1947. Seven other scrolls were deciphered and studied during the 1950s, but the Temple Scroll was not uncovered until Israel seized Arab territory in the 1967 war.

The scroll was found in a shoe box hidden under the floor of an Arab shop whose owner had been involved in purchase of the earlier documents. During the past 10 years it has been carefully unrolled and deciphered by Yagael Yadin, the Israeli scholar who is now deputy prime minister. It has not yet been translated into English.

It is the longest scroll found, with 19 pages stretching 28 feet.

Prof. Jacob Milgrom of the University of California assisted Yadin in the work of restoration.

"In my opinion it is probably the most important scroll," Milgrom said in an interview with UPI. "To begin with, in this scroll, God speaks in the first person. This puts the scroll in a special category. You are dealing with revelation. His authorized word."

Milgrom said the Temple Scroll "throws new light on the origins of many Christian doctrines."

He cited the declaration in the scroll that anyone "aspiring to live within the shadow of the temple in a permanent state of holiness must be leading a single life." It forbids sexual relations anywhere in the entire city of Jerusalem.

In its extreme commands of purity surrounding the temple and sacrifices, the scroll also banned toilets throughout Jerusalem and even prohibits defecation on the Sabbath — anywhere.

The document also "forbids the king to take more than one wife and says he may not remarry as long as she is alive," Milgrom said. "The implications are obvious. Divorce is prohibited."

"We see for the first time that the views of marriage and divorce which were expressed in certain tendencies within the Gospels of the New Testament can be traced to teachings of this sect, which antedates the time of Jesus by at least a century and a half."

Milgrom noted that divorce and polygamy were not forbidden in the Old Testament.

The scrolls were found near the community of Qumran, occupied from about the middle of the second century B.C. to the time of the Roman invasion in 67 A.D., by a "fringe sect within Judaism" who had gone there to escape the "pollution" which its leaders felt had afflicted

Jerusalem, according to the Berkeley scholar.

He said the Temple Scroll not only laid out plans for rebuilding the Jerusalem Temple when the sect would be restored to power after an expected catastrophic war, but "gives totally new laws as well as interpretations of old laws."

Most Biblical scholars believe that the community at Qumran was part of the Essene faction in Judaism, and a great deal of study of the earlier scrolls has been devoted to linking this faction with the first Christians. Milgrom believes the eighth scroll supports this connection.

He said the Qumran community survived until the Romans destroyed the town along with Jerusalem in 67 A.D., and thus it would have overlapped the time of Jesus.

"The reason why there is this strong bond between Christianity and Qumran is not only because of similar teachings," Milgrom said. "That could be incidental or coincidental or come through a third source. But we also know through the New Testament that Jesus' teacher was John the Baptist, who lived in the shadow of Qumran."

"Moreover, the Gospels tell us that Jesus spent three years in the wilderness. Where else but with like-minded people in Qumran?"

Milgrom said questions about the meaning of the Temple Scroll will occupy biblical scholars for decades. He said that attempts to link Jesus with the community at Qumran present "a paradoxical problem because although the similarities between early Christian teachings and the sect are now more obvious, so are the differences."

For example, he said, the Qumran sect "was, if anything, hyper-legalistic... The temple and sacrifices were central to the sect. But Christianity abolished the temple, rejected the sacrifices and, in fact, abolished the very principle of the validity of the old law."

Milgrom said the Temple Scroll suggests an answer.

"I will mention it only tentatively because it will be the subject of a great deal of discussion," he said.

"Jesus and his followers would have come in contact with the sect at the end of its existence, nearly 200 years after it was founded. The sect was at Qumran in seclusion, waiting for that tomorrow when they would be restored to Jerusalem to put into operation those doctrines which they had in the Temple Scroll, which at Qumran they could not enforce, because they had no temple at Qumran."

"So when Christianity would have met Qumran, most of the laws were being held in abeyance, were not being enforced... The theory which I would submit is that what the sect had suspended temporarily, Christianity suspended permanently."

Casino Rests Testimony

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Resorts International has rested its case after six weeks of testimony aimed at showing it should receive a permanent license as the nation's only legal casino outside Nevada.

The New Jersey Casino Control Commission now will hear six witnesses to be called by the state attorney general's Division of Gaming Enforcement, which filed 17 objections to the license. The hearings are to resume Tuesday.

Company officials say they believe they have at least blunted, if not rebutted, the objections raised by the attorney general.

"I had hoped that these hearings would finally lay to rest all the rumors that have haunted us for years," company president I.G. "Jack" Davis Jr. said Friday after the company ended its testimony. "But, while I know we've done a good job in our presentation here, I realize now that it's not something you can eliminate in just a few days. It will take years."

Resorts International presented 26 witnesses, who offered 7,000 pages of testimony and nearly 450 exhibits in 27 days of hearings.

The company's nine-month temporary permit expires Feb. 26 and most legal experts agree the casino must close at midnight on that Monday if the commission has not voted on the company's application.

New Jersey's casino law leaves it to Resorts to prove its worthiness for a permanent license. However, company attorneys say they believe the firm's presentation has shifted most of the burden to Assistant Attorney General G. Michael Brown to back up the state's objections.

The attorney general has charged that the firm associated with people of "questionable reputations" in its Paradise Island casino in the Bahamas.

Washington Considered Quitting After One Term

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — In his day George Washington was criticized much as his successors have been, and like many of them, he thought about quitting after one term, according to a Pennsylvania historian.

"He never really understood the criticism," said Dr. John B. Frantz, a specialist in early American history at Pennsylvania State University. "He was outraged by the political abuse he took and wanted to retire after his first term."

Washington, of course, overcame his misgivings, was voted another term by the Electoral College and completed his second term.

The 24th anniversary of his birth is Thursday, but both Washington and Abraham Lincoln are honored on Presidents Day, today.

Some of the strongest criticism that Washington encountered came from Pennsylvania, Frantz said Sunday.

Western Pennsylvania farmers shot holes through a plaque bearing the president's image. In Philadelphia, a newspaper editor blamed him for all the nation's ills.

One of the hottest incidents was the "Whiskey Rebellion" of the 1790s in western Pennsylvania where about 25 percent of the young nation's stills were located.

Farmers in the area were hard hit when an excise tax was imposed on whiskey, and in 1794 they revolted, tarring and feathering several tax collectors and burning a house before Washington dispatched 13,000 militiamen to Pittsburgh to quell the uprising.

According to Frantz, when the farmers burned the house of tax collector John Neville in Washington, Pa., the excited mob shot up a plaque of the president's head, shouting, "That's the man who signed the excise tax."

In 1796, when Washington was leaving office, the editor of the Philadelphia "Aurora" wrote that "the man who is the source of all the misfortunes of our country... is no longer possessed of power to multiply evils upon the United States."

The editor was Benjamin F. Bache, a grandson of Benjamin Franklin and a spokesman for the Jeffersonian Republicans, who opposed Washington's Federalists.

The criticism, however, largely evaporated when Washington left office, Frantz said.

"Even before he died, the popular stories about Washington began to spring up," he said. "The myths about the cherry tree and throwing the dollar across the river emerged very early in our history."

Parson Mason Locke Weems — whom Frantz calls "a one-man media marketing survey service" — had a biography ready to go almost as soon as the leader was buried.

The largely inaccurate work is the source of many of the Washington legends, Frantz said.

"Weems even chided his publisher for not getting the books out fast enough."

'Son Of Sam' Kills Appeal

NEW YORK (AP) — "Son of Sam" killer David Berkowitz says he is of sound mind and wants "nothing except to be left alone and to spend the rest of my life in prison."

Berkowitz, 25, pleaded guilty to six killings that terrorized the city in 1977. He has ordered his lawyers to abandon all possible appeals of his murder plea.

On a notarized sheet of Attica Correctional Facility stationery dated Jan. 5, Berkowitz asked attorney Leon Stern "to remove my appeal for a new trial on the grounds of insanity."

He insisted that he had "made up the story about (being possessed by) the demons."

Berkowitz said he expected to die soon "because I have enemies."

Berkowitz also informed Stern that he will not cooperate "in any way" with a biographical book and movie project about him that was approved by a Brooklyn Supreme Court justice last month.

On Jan. 29, the day Justice Carmine Ventiera approved a multi-million dollar book and movie deal on the life of the 44-caliber killer, Berkowitz wrote a letter to the justice saying: "I have no interest in such nonsense."

Berkowitz warned that "maybe after some disturbed person sees the movie, he too will go out and kill some people and then someone will make a movie about him, then another and another."

Frantz noted. "He said, 'There's money in old George's bones.'"

Unique Pick Up Pals Provides Center For Truck Accessories

FOR PICK-UP ACCESSORIES EXCLUSIVELY — Steve Burleson of the newly-established Pick-Up Pals firm at Broadway and Q is shown at that facility with a pickup outfitted with several of the functional accessories stocked and installed by the firm. Check the accompanying report for the several items recommended and kept in stock.

"Small wonder that we've heard so many favorable comments about Pick Up Pals, the new firm at Broadway & Avenue Q in Lubbock!"

Opened about a month ago, this home-owned and home-operated business is said to be Lubbock's only dealer devoted strictly to pickup accessories.

And what accessories!

Such as the so-practical Line-A-Bed, the running boards, front grille guards, sun shields, aero shields, side rails, etc. . . functional protective accessories from the best pals your pickup ever had!

Line-A-Bed is the new liner protector for truck beds, vacuum molded as a tight-fitting insert and made from a high-density, extra high molecular weight polyolefin base material. Made of the same high-impact materials that go into crash helmets and football helmets, it is almost impossible to break or stain.

One solid piece covers and protects a pickup floor, headwell, sides and side rails. Another snaps around and totally protects the inside of the tailgate.

What a way to protect one's pickup investment! And Pick Up Pals, at Broadway & Q stocks units to fit all import and all U.S. pickups. No long delays to wait for a unit; installation, when desired, most usually can be the same day ordered.

"Anyone who uses a pickup should consider a Line-A-Bed, whether the truck is for business, pleasure or combination. It is one of the few options available that returns your investment.

"If you use the truck for business, the revolutionary liner will return its cost in additional trade-in value, plus you still have the Line-A-Bed to put in your next truck," manager Steve Burleson points out.

"And if the truck is used as a recreational vehicle with a topper as cover, it reduces the danger of noxious fumes from fuel tanks and exhaust, as well as keeping out dust and moisture."

Running Boards

The running boards should come in for equal attention, with such features as construction of brite tread aluminum with skid-resistant surface, appearance of chrome-like finish but one that will not rust or peel, enabling easy entry and protecting the truck body from rock chips and mud splattering. (Front mud guards are included as are mounting brackets and hardware.)

Auxiliary Lighting

Or maybe the need is a bumper. Pick Up Pals keep a full line of bumpers; and a complete line of auxiliary lighting by Hella from Europe.

Grill guards are stocked and recommended, standing up to abuse and still looking good! Made of extruded aluminum, they have more elasticity than most metals and have tensile yield of 46,000 pounds per square inch.

Pick Up Pals is open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Fridays, and until 1 p.m. Saturdays. Installation is available on any product stocked.

Let manager Steve Burleson and his efficient staff open a whole new area of enjoyment of your pickup, slicking it up, protecting your investment and enabling new convenience . . . all at a cost likely less than imagined.

"Come by; you can't miss us at Broadway and Q, and look our products over; we think you'll like what you discover at Pick Up Pals."

Bowman Announces Stark Bro's Trees Now Stocked In Firm's Garden Center

Bowman Home & Garden Center, 8301 S. University Ave., has been appointed as an authorized dealer for Stark Bro's "fruit trees with a pedigree", a horticultural line of dwarf and semi-dwarf apple, peach, pear, cherry and nectarine trees.

The announcement was made jointly by Cindy Harrist, Garden Center manager at Bowman's, and by Jim Wilson, fruit tree center manager of Stark Bro's Nurseries, with Bowman's selected "after careful consideration and after we decided it can offer the kind of customer service we want people to expect from our dealers."

Stark Bro's Nurseries and Orchards Company is America's oldest and the world's largest, Bowman's emphasizes.

Stark Bro's was founded in 1816 when Judge James Stark carried scions (cuttings) from his home in Kentucky to the banks of the Mississippi and started to sell fruit tree seedlings to neighbors.

Today, Stark Bro's is active in all states and in many foreign markets. The company probably is best known for its Starkrimson Red Delicious Apple and its Starkspur Golden Delicious, considered "the two most popular apples in the world."

Stark personnel guided the World War II Victory Garden program to a success that involved millions of people in gardening.

Too, Stark Bro's was a pioneer in the development of dwarf-size fruit trees that produce full-size apples, peaches, pears, cherries and other fruit.

Cindy Harrist said that the Bowman firm has been interested in offering Stark Bro's dwarf fruit trees for a long time because "they are ideal for today's home owner who wants to raise fruit in his own yard. A small 'home orchard' can be planted in a space about the size of a living room! The trees grow to be about 8 to 10 feet tall at maturity and often bear fruit their second year."

Bowman has operated in Lubbock for decades, and provision of the Stark trees is thoroughly in keeping with its attention to area needs.

Just received is a shipment of Stark trees especially suited for this area and zone.

A new shipment of cherry trees is included, and these are regularly priced at $10.95, but for this week only are being marked at $8.95! Included are Bing, Lambert, Stella and Montmorency. Also check the pecan tree shipment, involving Western Schley, Major and Stewart.

Also peaches, plums, apricots, nectarines and pears . . . all from Stark. And the famous "$25,000 Stark Red Crisp delicious apple, a tree Cindy reports that Texas A & M has researched and recommended for this area.

Stocked at Bowman's are dwarf, semi-dwarf and standard trees.

"Be sure and check for the new sweet-heart apricot with the edible, good tasting, sweet kernel. These are due to arrive soon, so let us reserve one of these for you now."

Let Bowman . . . and Stark Bro's . . . assist in your orchard plans without delay . . . and don't forget this week's cherry tree special!

Children's Learning Center

All New, Lauded For Concept

Dedicated to the development of the whole child, the Children's Learning Center of Lubbock, 3514 22nd Place, is now open.

Opening Jan. 22 in all-new, modern, spacious, specifically designed facilities for best interest of the children, the response already has been tremendous.

And it is small wonder, once one visits the Center and observes the functional design and the personalized, qualified, interested care of its management.

Day care, night care and drop-ins can be accommodated in the three shifts for the convenience of working parents or guardians. (First morning shift from 6:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.; second morning shift from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.; and the afternoon shift from 2:30 until 11:30 p.m.)

The Center is state licensed to handle 100 children per shift, reports Richard Ybarra who with his wife, Elaine, are founders, owners and operators.

Qualified Direction

Only certified workers and instructors are on the staff, with all having a related college degree or soon to receive one.

To fully appreciate the new facilities, individualized activities and nutritious menus provided for the children (ages 2-10) one should visit the facility. The imposing 4,200 sq. ft. building is situated on a spacious tract enabling off-street parking. Visitors are welcome.

A Lubbock resident of some 10 years, Ybarra is principal of the A.C. Jackson Elementary School.

Mrs. Ybarra is director of the Center and she holds a bachelors degree from Eastern New Mexico University at Portales, and a masters degree from Texas Tech; she also can count qualifications including instruction in a day care center for four years while pursuing her studies at Portales.

Mr. and Mrs. Ybarra have three children of their own, and they express deep interest in children and attention to their pleasure and development.

It would seem to be an ideal situation at the fantastic Children's Learning Center of Lubbock!

A Full Program

Each child attending the Center is respected as an individual and given attention and activities particular to their needs and age. The Center is pledged to the development of the whole child through activities to enhance the physical, emotional, social, and mental growth of each individual child.

Charges To 'Live With'

And the charges are most moderate. Example is weekly day rate of $32.50 for one child. Other rates are available upon inquiry (for more than one child, for other shifts).

FUN, CONVENIENCE, ACHIEVEMENT — Children from ages two to 10 are finding the Children's Learning Center a great place to enjoy, while the parents recognize this new Center for its concept, personal attention and convenience. Visits and inquiries are invited, and day care and evening care services are provided.

Participation can be on a hourly, day or weekly basis, with no contracts involved. Each child is provided with a nutrition program to include a hot meal during the time in the center. Morning and afternoon snacks are provided, as is a break-

Business & Industrial Review

MOTHER, DAUGHTER KNOW HEALTH FOODS — Connie Gregory and daughter Dee Justice are owners-operators of the Well Body Shop in southwest Lubbock, and their interest in the customers' health and wellbeing is reflected in the store's extensive stock and innovations.

Well Body Shop Affords Special Benefits Including Juice Bar

"Even if fully familiar with health food stores, have you patronized one with "extra considerations" such as a Juice Bar?"

Then, it is time to become acquainted with the distinctive and fantastically-stocked Well Body Shop, Inc., at B-21 in Security Park, 3602 Slide Road, phone 793-1015.

More about the juice bar: Available are fresh juices including carrot, squeezed oranges, the highly acclaimed "Smoothie" with protein and leucithin and even yogurt (and the Dynamite Smoothie with Well Body Shop's secret recipe!).

Actually offered at the bar are 23 drinks such as fresh lemonade, milkshakes, yogurt drinks, and children's drinks, the latter at a special 50 cent price for the super kid drink.

Lancheon Idea (A lot of folks are finding it fun, convenient and nutritious to come by for a drink at lunch, with maximum of 227 calories.)

But there is much more at the Well Body Shop, too.

Such as a good selection of herbs including teas, capsules, herbal combinations and powders.

A good book selection is maintained.

Even juicers and grain grinders are among the sales items, and the management at Well Body Shop offers further service of grinding fresh flour, rye, rice, corn meal, soy, etc. (This stone grinding saves more of the grain, it is noted.)

Bulk Grains, Too

Bulk foods are stocked in bins, including wheat, bran, corn, rice, etc., as further convenience and opportunity for saving.

Ice Cream With Honey

"And you simply must try our really good ice cream made with honey, with no preservatives!"

Aside from its many products, the Well Body Shop arranges classes, and anyone interested in "wellness" classes, including nutrition, is invited to make inquiry.

"Doesn't this all sound like a tremendously attractive and beneficial store? It is!"

The Well Body Shop is home owned and home operated, with the mother-daughter team of Connie Gregory and Dee Justice as owners-operators, opening the store last June.

Both Dee and her mother have long been health oriented, recognizing the value of the fresh ground grains, organic foods, vitamins and herbs, etc. Mrs. Gregory is a longtime area resident, and Dee, though reared here, is most recently from California. She holds a Masters degree from Texas Tech.

"Come on out: let's get acquainted or renew acquaintance; and let us share our enthusiasm in the type store afforded, including the unique Juice Bar!"

"The reception accorded us since our opening has been most gratifying and appreciated. Our growth is made possible by your patronage and recognition of the type store we are trying to provide. Thanks for every consideration; we appreciate you as a friend and customer."

Automatic Garage Door Opener Month-Long Specials Outlined

February Specials mean very appreciable savings at Overhead Door Co., 50th Street at Frankford Avenue (just off the Brownfield Highway near the Loop), phone 797-4141, Lubbock.

"Now, you and your family can enjoy the convenience of an automatic overhead door opener installation for your garage, with the marked-down prices throughout this month as a special inducement and savings.

The Model 110 opener with one-car control and one-year warranty, is sale priced at a modest $179, installed and tax included!

And Overhead Door's finest unit, the Touch 'n Go system, Model 100, at $204, installed and tax included.

"So take your pick for your particular need and preference, either represents a very real value.

"Likely this season and in those of past years you have envied your neighbor who with an automatic overhead door was spared exposure to snow and sleet... and dust and wind... and rain... and inconvenience.

"There also is no need for you to walk on slick driveways to open or shut the garage door, just as there is no need to drive into a darkened garage at night... if you let Overhead Door enter the picture."

Convenience, safety and protection, this is the whole story of automatic overhead doors from Overhead Door Co. of Lubbock.

Long In Lubbock
Serving with the same fine products and desire to please, traditional with the firm for over 20 years, the Overhead Door Company of Lubbock is geared in every operation to render maximum customer service.

And now, with inclement weather placing emphasis on safety and convenience factors, this Lubbock firm can get right on the job, with the family benefitting for remainder of the current season and for years to come, with upgrading of a present home or when building of a new one.

Learn now of the several features of Overhead Door Co. units... such as the simple operation of the remote transmitter; added security automatic as the door itself since the door is securely locked when down; motor operating on standard household current providing smooth, quiet, dependable and positive operation of the door; instant reversing mechanism insuring complete safety should the closing door encounter an obstacle; and should a power failure occur, a spring-loaded quick-disconnect instantly converts the door to manual operation.

Automatic doors represent a wise gesture by the head of the family. With these units, the wife can open the garage, enter and lock it without leaving her vehicle.

The Overhead Door Company of Lubbock is glad to demonstrate how simple it is to enjoy these benefits.

Overhead doors with automatic openers also are available and recommended for commercial and industrial buildings.

Whether selection is from an opener system, a steel, wood or fiberglass overhead door, Tim Hatch at Overhead Door Co. assures the very best value in installation and sales.

MODERN, EVEN ECONOMICAL — Shown is a Lubbock installation of an overhead automatic door from Overhead Door Co., together with the popular automatic opener that can be a lift in your own situation, and now at special winter prices.

'Lellem Welch Stocks Plumbing Parts You've Been Seeking'

Lellem Welch Assisting With 'Parts By Literal Thousands'

"It still amazes me," says Richard Welch, "the number of people who come into our store at 1401 Avenue J and say 'I never knew you were here. I'm sure glad I found you and now I know where to come for plumbing, heating or cooling parts.'"

That's what Lellem Welch Inc. is all about — helping people find the right plumbing part.

"In this world of rising costs, it's more necessary than ever that we learn to do many things ourselves. Many of us are doing things we have never done before and many do not know how to do what we need to do ourselves."

"So, we at Welch, who started out as a plumbing repair company (and we still do repair), have become storekeepers because we found people looking for some place they could shop and receive good, solid advice about their plumbing problems."

"At Welch we learned to listen to the customer, since he is asking for advice or parts he really knows very little about. Whether the problem be big or small, we try to give as much time and personal attention as possible to each customer to solve their problems."

To do this, it is necessary to have several thousands of the many different plumbing parts necessary for repair. For example, in stock are faucet parts for over 160 different faucets. The sales people at Welch are qualified, licensed plumbers and therefore are aware of the many parts that are interchangeable. Many times a customer is told a certain part is no longer available, and in some cases this is true. But many times they are repairable because they can be interchanged with other manufactured parts.

When it becomes necessary to replace a worn out item with something new, Welch makes it a policy to sell only the merchandise from long established companies and suppliers. "The availability of repair parts is a major item in our decision to handle and sell any merchandise."

"Some of our major items are: State Water Heaters, for both gas and electric, from 6-gallon mobile home sizes to as large as necessary to do the job. Arctic Circle Evaporative Cooling, for window, roof, gable, mobile home. Eljer Plumbing Fixtures along with Payne Heating, and Bradley Faucets. "Naturally we can't forget wrap-on heat tapes and insulation for cold weather, along with April Air Humidifiers and Space Guard Air Cleaners. This is only a part of what we stock."

Lellem Welch Inc. has the knowledge and know-how to help you with anything from repairing a faucet to adding a bathroom yourself. It's still good to know if help is needed, Welch is there to help you finish what you have started.

Chance's Lawn & Leisure Tells New Ski Equipment Available For Rental

"There's lots of fun still ahead during ski season... so why not make the most of it... economically!"

Ski and related equipment rentals are among the several significant services at Chance's Lawn & Leisure, 3604 50th St.

"Not to be minimized is fact that this year all the rental ski equipment at Chance's is new. Included are Atomic skis with Salomon 444 step-in bindings and ski brakes; Koflach boots, Jean Claude Killy ski jackets and bib style overalls.

Also Campbell snow chains, And A & T ski racks.

Added Saving

Some may not realize that aside from low rental prices, Chance's gives two days free (no charge for the equipment on day picked up and again on day returned, actually two days free!) How about this for economy and convenience?

Chance's knows that it can save money and inconvenience for any ski trip, helping one become thoroughly equipped before the jaunt; saving time, too, for actual ski fun once the slopes are reached... no need to stand in line for equipment or to pay premium prices when Chance's assists.

Not only is there scads of rental ski equipment at Chance's Lawn & Leisure, but now listed for sale are limited quantities of new Atomic skis, some Salomon bindings in 444 and 727 models, etc.

Summer-related items are now arriving and being stocked for both rental and sales areas at the big Chance's firm. It is not too early to look and plan ahead, so come on in to Chance's Lawn & Leisure, clearly marked on the north side of 50th Street, with off-street parking.

Chance's provides a modern, complete full-line rental service, with sales, too, and though located especially convenient to south and southwest Lubbock, it is worth the drive from anywhere!

Chance's is home owned and operated, with Sid Chance on the job to assure personal attention every weekday.

Primarily a rental firm, Chance's has a most impressive stock in its sales department, and it is unquestionably service oriented.

"Let's get at least one more ski trip in! Let Chance's outfit you conveniently and at a cost savings. May we have the privilege?"

Stained Glass, Gold Leaf Art, Tole Instruction Scheduled By Tandy Firm

"Did you realize that classes are being formed in Lubbock for stained glass art, with instruction by a really superior master of the craft?"

For these and other exciting craft and art classes and workshops, one should check now with Tandy Leather, American Handicraft/Merribee, the big craft firm at 4010 34th St., at west end of Wolfe Nursery.

Stained glass classes at a most nominal fee ($30 plus supplies) begin there next Monday, Feb. 26. Advance registration and pre-payment is necessary due to the popular demand for these classes at which a limited enrollment can be accommodated.

The course involves six 3-hour sessions, one day a week, from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. on the announced days.

Mike Sutton, who maintains a studio in Ruidoso (N.M.), will instruct, and he reports that participants in the Lubbock class should complete at least three projects (two will be of specified subjects, with others of the participants' choosing). One will learn to cut glass and to correctly use copper foil and lead came in the stained glass projects.

Gold Leaf

Another craft announcement of prime interest.

Mike Newton of Lubbock will conduct workshops in gold leaf art. The cost is only $15 per workshop (plus supplies), and one is invited to inquire at the Tandy firm for full details including dates. (The workshops will be on Saturdays from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.)

Tole Instruction

Penny Phillips, popular tole painting instructor, still is conducting classes at Tandy Leather, American Handicraft/Merribee, and inquiries are invited about new evening classes commencing in March.

Materials for all projects are stocked at the firm.

And another note of special significance:

One is invited to inquire in person to Otis Arnett of the Tandy Leather, American Handicraft/Merribee firm regarding the new Direct Sales Program that can enable one to turn a craft skill into actual dollar and cents profits in a most enjoyable and rewarding program.

It all is at 4010 34th St., just west of Wolfe Nursery! Don't be left out of a preferred class, workshop or sales program; checking at earliest opportunity would be a wise move for those interested.

MULTI-TRUNK SILVER MAPLES AMONG A-1 ARRIVALS

Specials, New Tree Shipments Greet Season At A-1 Nursery

New shipments by the truckloads could well be sufficient incentive to make a bee-line to A-1 Nursery, 7500 82nd St., phone 792-6070.

But add to this that early-season specials are posted, and one learns further why A-1 traditionally is a favorite within the area.

Quality, quantity, selection, and advantageous prices are a fact at A-1 Nursery, serving for more than two decades.

Check these among the values for immediate attention:

Specials Pinpointed
 Pecan trees, just arrived are marked at a whopping 35 per cent off, as are multi-trunk silver maples at 35 per cent off list!

And it is time to get the Ferti-Lome Weed and Feed Special, with the 40-lb. bag only $8.95, covering 1,500 sq. ft.

"Eradicate all undesirable vegetation from your lawn this summer by applying Weed and Feed Special now."

Unusual pinon pines are at one-half price now at A-1!

And Red and Live Oak singles and multi units are at 40 per cent off list.

A new shipment of tropicals and house plants is being offered at half price!

Seed Potatoes
 Red and white seed potatoes are 29 cents per pound.

Red, white and yellow onion plants are just 99 cents per bunch, with sets for 99 cents per pound.

Don't overlook the mixed pansies in 2 1/4-in. pots at only $1.88 per dozen;

And a gorgeous selection of Spring Bulbs including cannas, Polish philoerbs, asparagus and Persian Dog Lilies.

Giant size fruit trees have arrived (6 to 9 ft. tall) and are marked at $12.97 or two for $25.

Soil Conditioner
 Wonder Gro soil conditioner "lasting five times as long as peat moss" is available in 3-cu. ft. bags at $3.99 or three for $9.99.

It is time to feed one's trees, and A-1 Nursery has everything needed.

Open Every Day
 A-1 Nursery is open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and on Sundays from 1:30 until 5.

Prices are cash and carry, pickup at nursery at its 7500 82nd St. location just southwest of the city.

A-1 has a tremendous selection in its every department... well worth the drive to view and select... and save!

Area residents long have benefitted from the landscape design, installation and maintenance services of A-1, plus such benefits as the new shipments and the unheard-of sale here at beginning of the season.

Long On Scene
 For more than 20 years, area folks have been assisted by the services of Winfred Self, owner and operator of A-1

Nursery, since 1973 at its present expanded quarters.

Everything at the modern nursery is coordinated for the very best in service. A complete line is stocked including trees, shrubs, vines, fertilizers, insecticides and numerous other nursery supplies.

The "know how" of Self and his experienced staff possibly is the biggest asset of A-1, however, as hundreds of customers can attest to the superior help there through the years.

"Come on out and see for yourself how A-1 Nursery can meet your individual preferences and needs, at a price you'll appreciate!"

The downtown Southern Sea is now open, from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m., seven days a week, and many are learning that the carry-out department there is of special benefits. One is invited to call ahead, to 744-1231, and the order will be ready upon the customer's arrival.

Those with limited time for either lunch or the evening meal can appreciate this convenience, together with the good food afforded — at 10th & Q.

And for those choosing to eat at Southern Sea, there's seating for 220, with extra-size booths for groups.

Catering is a very popular service afforded, and one should call Danny Waller, catering manager, at 799-2099, for details of this region-wide service.)

Department Heads Introduced, Saluted By Rainbo Management

It seems to be general knowledge... That Rainbo not only is "your kind of bread", but also that Rainbo Baking Co. of Lubbock is "your kind of people, your kind of progressive enterprise".

This acceptance and recognition of Rainbo is not the result of a happenstance. The good product line and the service to match is made possible by a knowledgeable staff devoted to the job at hand, and with the customer fully appreciated and considered first and always!

Harry Hoopes, manager of the Lubbock firm, is well aware of the several factors contributing to a successful and smooth-running organization, and he does not hesitate in expressing his pride in the people comprising the Rainbo staff.

In connection with this pride, Hoopes periodically introduces and salutes staff members on these pages of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Meet Jim Loucks
 Coming in for a salute this week is Jim Loucks, sales manager.

Newest of the department heads here (in Lubbock for just a few months), Loucks nevertheless has made quite a mark for himself, earning the commendations of owners and managers together with appreciation of co-workers.

Though relatively new in Lubbock, Jim has been with the Rainbo operation for some 14 years, starting his career on a bread route in Tucson, Ariz. Advancing through the ranks, he later served at Waco and most recently for two years as sales manager of the El Paso Rainbo operation.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Loucks does not hesitate to relate how he and his family are enjoying Lubbock.

"We have found it the friendliest town we could imagine. Add to this the fact that I am sold on Rainbo products and the firm's personnel here, and you can see why I am thoroughly enjoying my job here on the South Plains. No kidding, Rainbo is the best product in its field and I enjoy my part in its sales and promotion."

The Loucks family includes Jim; his wife, Jan; and two daughters: Kim, 15 a Monterey student, and Renee, 13, attending Atkins. The family attends the Baptist church.

Jim's hobbies are golfing and fishing (all the family likes to fish), but "my main interest is serving with Rainbo", he emphasizes.

With hand-picked personnel such as Loucks heading all its departments, it is small wonder that Rainbo Baking Co. of Lubbock stands tall on the South Plains!

"ON THE WAY TO A BEAUTIFUL FUTURE" — Students at the Cinderella Beauty School are working toward a "rewarding future, the Pivot Point way." Pictured is a group of these students with Winnie Vaughn (right), instructor and owner; and instructors Mrs. Eugenia Bright and Joan Lang.

Cinderella Beauty School Presenting Pivot Point International Benefits

"Have a beautiful future... the Pivot Point way... at Cinderella Beauty School located one block west off Slide Road, two blocks north of South Plains Mall, at 5401 Aberdeen Ave., Plains Plaza Shopping Center."

"Choosing the right profession is all important," points out Winnie Vaughn, owner of the popular school. "You want one that offers financial security, independence, prestige and the fulfillment of making others attractive and happy. Too often, people allow productive years to pass, and they settle for an ordinary income. That's why we point with pride to our graduates and new enrollees who have made the wise decision and have aimed for higher goals as competent professionals in the rewarding field of hair designing."

"Because of our affiliation with Pivot Point International, we can offer you the perfect blend of cosmetology and education, our complete, comprehensive curriculum and the exclusive Pivot Point training. Pivot Point is highly respected in the beauty industry and is recognized as the leader and authority in the educational field of cosmetology. We are one of the many schools in 50 states and 28 countries throughout the world."

At Cinderella Beauty School, one is taught this outstanding program by a staff of most qualified cosmetology instructors.

"The end result will be a supremely complete You!"

"Learn faster and perform better in the shortest possible time" is the invitation of Winnie Vaughn and staff, phone 792-4439.

"Our approved Pivot Point school teaches the Pivot Point International scientific approach to hair design programs."

It is pointed out by Winnie Vaughn that Pivot Point students receive exclusive advantage: you become a member of the International Hair Designers Club, the largest of its type sponsored by world champions and leading educators.

Student Package

"As a club member, you receive the Pivot Point student package, a complete learning library of book courses, with photos, describing each step to perform all facets of hair designing and hair cutting. Your book course includes the Scientific Approach to Hair Design book, Five Popular Hair Cuts book, Fourteen Classic Hair Styles book, and Charisma & Techniques Book. We also teach M'Lord's Hair Styling."

'Plus Aura'

"Plus Aura is the ultimate hair design course, with each month one learning a completely new course in women's and men's services; form designs, perming, precision cutting, coloring, air waving, make-up and more. It is everything the modern hair designer must know. In addition, you'll receive a Hair Designer Club card, club pin and International certificate. You will be taught the complete cosmetology program by teachers, with the incomparable Pivot Point audio and visual aids."

"Only Pivot Point graduates receive a certificate good for two tuition-free, stimulating Advance Hair Designing classes, worth hundreds of dollars," according to Winnie Vaughn. The training can be taken at one's convenience, up to two years after graduation.

"You become eligible to further your talents to become a Pivot Point Master Hair Designer, the beauty world's ultimate goal," Winnie adds. Through progressive degrees of specialized training, it all adds up to the most rewarding and exciting beauty training you've dreamed possible.

"Enroll now: come in and talk to our registrar who will be happy to answer your questions and help you start on a lifetime career of beauty; or, if more convenient, we will be happy to answer your questions over the phone, 792-4439 or 792-4430."

"If you live out of Lubbock and would like a catalog, we will be glad to mail one to you."

"Our classes start any day. We are open five days a week, Tuesday through Saturday, from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m."

"We are proud of our students; we welcome patrons, both men and women. Our services are very reasonable."

"We do hairstyling, both wet sets and quick service; manicures, sculptured nails, nail extensions, styling the brows; and our aestheticians are well trained. I'm sure you will enjoy the facials received in our school. The students are well supervised in color and bleaching, frosting, marbling, etc., that a patron may wish to have done to the hair."

"Of course we are excited over attending the All-Texas Beauty Show of America just completed in Dallas. Many of our students attended."

"It is our policy to stay abreast of the new styles in both hair design and the trend of clothing; so if at all possible, please feel free to come by and see us; we are always glad to see you and we appreciate your patronage."

"If you wish to enroll in our Advanced Training Course for Cosmetologists, the benefits you may expect include increased earnings, client satisfaction boosted, better quality control, a library of up-to-date hair designs, increased prestige, more self confidence, more satisfaction from knowing you are doing what all real pros do, constantly increasing your professional knowledge. Please call 792-4439 for further information."

House Clinic Tells Solution To Gable, Overhang Maintenance

"Do you as owner of a brick home realize just how very much the House Clinic can do for you?"

"You can eliminate all painting of your overhang cover and on gables with a metal product exclusively designed to cover overhang in beautiful decorator colors, even guaranteed against such problems as flaking, chipping and peeling, for 35 years!"

The invitation is extended to "let the people who know solve your overhang problems, assisting your budget, helping in energy savings and certainly contributing in large manner to overall beauty and comfort of the home."

'People Who Know'

The House Clinic, at 1922 Ave. E, phone 747-4436 in Lubbock, not only has proven products, but it prides in the over 85 years of combined experience on its staff, factors that point to the evident fact that "you can depend upon House Clinic to get the job done, right."

First Quality

All the products at House Clinic are manufactured in the United States and all metal siding, just as all the related items, is first quality only.

As added incentive to let House Clinic enter your savings picture, for a limited time the firm will give, free, one's choice of a gold or a bronze door with each complete job!

House Clinic is exclusive dealer here for Endura Steel and Soffit material by Arrowhead Industries.

New Beauty

Soffit and Fascia systems (call it "overhang," if you wish, but call it trouble unless you give it prompt attention as signs of deterioration start) do more than just fix up what's run down! Their superior construction, advanced design styling and colors actually will make one's home more beautiful than it ever was before.

Also, House Clinic invites and urges that one inquire about the involved long-term prorated guarantee.

Factors to be considered in deciding upon an overhang and gable system from House Clinic include fire resistance, maintenance savings, elimination of costly repainting, termite resistance, a finish that cannot crack, peel, flake or blister; choice of colors and renewal by simple hose washing.

"Stop in and visit at 1922 Ave. E in Lubbock to see the graphic displays and to get complete details on how House Clinic can benefit you, even as owner of a brick home."

"And here's a burglary in progress where the off-duty officer took the call, made the report and arrested a suspect. They off-duty patrolmen are right there so many times," Stuart said. "If we had to wait for this (burglary) call to be answered by an on-duty officer, this five-minute call might have taken 30 minutes and the burglar might have gotten away."

This aspect of the fleet car plan also leaves on-duty officers free to take "higher priority" calls, such as homicides, rapes and assaults, the major added. If on-duty officers had been occupied with the 137 motorists who had car trouble, their response time to emergency calls would have been slower, he explained.

And, Stuart added, the off-duty patrolmen are aiding in the city's recently activated Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), designed to reduce the number of traffic violators.

During the three months Stuart has been keeping records, off-duty officers have reported arresting 12 intoxicated drivers and issuing 195 tickets to traffic violators.

"The officers are out there in their patrol cars, visible and more able to stop traffic violators," Stuart said. "It goes right along with the (STEP) traffic enforcement, yet it's not costing the city a dime."

The fleet car plan also enhances Lubbock's image, Stuart claims.

"Often, out-of-town visitors flag down a police officer and ask for directions," Stuart said. "And, in most cases, off-duty officers who are stopped because they are driving their patrol units will not only give directions but literally lead the visitor to his destination."

"Ordinarily, on-duty patrolmen won't take the time to extend that much attention because they can't afford to."

Stuart argues that these benefits greatly outweigh the criticisms of the fleet car plan.

Although acknowledging the initial cost of almost $500,000 for the additional units in early 1977 made a dent in the city budget, he said now that the fleet car plan is operating, it provides a "cost offset."

"The cars are better taken care of now because they are driven by one man who is charged with the responsibility of taking care of his vehicle," Stuart said.

And, he added, the cars now need less maintenance because they don't take as much "road abuse" as did police cars under the old system, which required the vehicles to be driven 24 hours a day by all three shifts.

But the greatest advantage of the fleet system, Stuart said, is that it now allows the department to utilize its manpower more efficiently.

"Practically all shifts are now one-man units," he explained. "And in case of the need for a massive call-up of officers, we will have vehicles available."

"After the (1970) tornado, we were hamstrung because officers had to come to the station to pick up a limited number of cars and then were doubled up on patrol."

He said a similar situation arose in 1976 when an electrical blackout hit downtown Lubbock during the night.

"All lights and alarms were out and we called up the next shift of officers to protect the blacked-out business district but it really did little good."

"Under the old 42-car plan, we either had to put two officers in each unit or put the extra officer out on foot," Stuart said.

"What was needed was visibility and one man per car could accomplish that as easily as two. The alternative (of more officers on foot) was little better because they didn't have a chance if the looters had a car ready and waiting."

Stuart is convinced the system is working. "That's why I started keeping these records as a tangible way of measuring its possibilities."

"I'm thoroughly sold on the idea."

U.S. Demands Removal Of All Fighting Forces

(Continued From Page One) at least one provincial capital and occupying Vietnamese border posts and villages along the length of the front. Vietnam said earlier the Chinese had penetrated as deep as 30 miles into Vietnam but the discrepancy was not explained Sunday.

Peking said it launched the "counterattack" in "retaliation" for repeated "armed incursions" by Vietnamese forces into China. Peking's official Hsinhua news agency said Chinese forces would return to the frontier "after hitting back at the aggressors as far as is necessary."

Intelligence sources in Bangkok said the Chinese attack was expected to be "short, sharp and brutal" but that they doubted the Chinese would strike deeply into Vietnam.

The United States called for the Chinese to withdraw their forces immediately and said Vietnamese troops should leave Cambodia.

Official Explanation Given

In an official explanation to the United Nations, China maintained it launched the attack "to defend the country's borders." It said the Vietnamese had ignored "China's repeated warnings" and had "continually sent armed forces to encroach on Chinese territory."

Both countries have accused each other for months of crossing the frontier and killing soldiers and border residents.

Capitals Remain Calm

A spokesman for the Swedish Embassy in Hanoi, reached by telephone from Moscow, said people were "in the streets as usual" and that there was no sign of any military buildup.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said "Peking appeared calm" and that top Chinese leaders had gathered for a meeting of the All China Congress.

Vietnamese leaders, including Premier Pham Van Dong, were reported still in Phnom Penh, where they were meeting with the new Cambodian leaders. There was no indication if they would return to Hanoi because of the invasion.

U.N. Meetings Held

The U.N. Security Council president met behind closed doors Sunday with China's U.N. ambassador and spoke with Vietnam's envoy by telephone in a search for ways to end the fighting between their countries.

The council president, Ambassador Abdulla Yacoub Bishara of Kuwait, was expected to schedule formal consultations today with representatives of the United States and the 14 other Council members. Such consultations are the usual prelude to an open Council meeting.

Vietnam has not formally requested an emergency meeting of the Council. Vietnamese U.N. Ambassador Ha Van Lau handed letters to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and Bishara on Saturday urging them to take "appropriate measures" to bring about the withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam.

Security Council Alternatives

U.N. spokesman Rudolf Stajduhar said Bishara was engaged in "a number of consultations" Sunday with Lau and Chinese Ambassador Chen Chu.

Council action could range from censure to the use of an international military force to stop the fighting. China's veto power in the council makes any action unlikely, but a council debate would give the Vietnamese a world forum in which to denounce China.

Carter Mulling Federal Plans For Pay Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A comprehensive new wage plan that would eventually cut the total pay bill for federal workers is being considered by President Carter.

Carter, who campaigned on promises of trimming the "bloated bureaucracy," enters the fray with one victory. Last year he won congressional approval of a scheme to make it easier to fire federal employees.

Documents obtained by UPI reveal an extensive legislative proposal has been prepared to revise the federal pay system, in effect for 30 years, and to give the president power now held by Congress to set compensation.

Predictably, civil service unions are complaining that the still secret "pay reform" plan amounts to "just another attack on federal employees," especially women and minority workers.

A legislative draft from the new Office of Personnel Management has been sent to the White House and is expected to be sent to Congress early next month.

The central feature would lump salary and benefits together as a single measure of compensation for comparison with private industry. This would result in readjustments to the pay of clerks, secretaries and technical employees to match salaries paid by other employers in each of 135 geographic areas of the country.

Employees would be tied to local wage rates, presumably higher in a high-cost city like San Francisco and less in a low-cost city like Austin. Employees affected number more than half the 1.4 million white collar workers. The rest — professionals, scientists, administrators — would continue to be paid on a national scale.

An administration source said no one would receive an immediate pay cut. Those found overpaid would get lower regular increases until their salary reached the appropriate level. Although no cuts would be made in the first five years after the law takes effect, the administration estimates annual savings at $2.5 billion to $6 billion, and the documents indicate the net effect would be lower salaries.

Police Rescue Chained Tots

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A couple was charged Sunday with child mistreatment after police found their two young daughters in chains in their apartment, authorities said.

"It was squalid, a cesspool," said John W. Munier, the St. Louis police officer who made the arrest. "It took something to keep me from crying."

Police said they found the girls, ages 4 and 6, while investigating a family disturbance complaint Sunday morning.

Munier said he found the 4-year-old attached to her bed by a chain padlocked around her ankle. The 6-year-old was chained by the ankle to a couch in another room, he said.

Warrants were issued charging Rayborn Tuttle, 30, and his wife Edith, 28. Mrs. Tuttle said she only chained the girls at night and when she left the apartment, police said.

KINDNESS FREEZES

DALLAS (UPI) — The milk of human kindness froze for a man who slipped on an icy parking lot Saturday. Police said John McCortley, 32, of Dallas fell on a downtown parking lot and badly injured an elbow. In great pain, he called for help until two women approached him. "We'll get that one," McCortley quoted one of the women as saying, and she extended her hand. Police said the women then removed a $500 ring from McCortley's finger, took his checkbook and left him on the ice, still calling for help.

Camp David Talks Resume This Week

By United Press International

Egypt's chief negotiator, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, will not be carrying any new concessions when he leaves Monday for the United States and the second round of peace talks with Israel, foreign ministry officials in Cairo said Sunday.

A government spokesman said there was no direct connection to the government's autonomy plan for the future of the occupied territories. But observers said the action seemed to underscore Israeli determination to remain in the territories after the beginning of the Arab self-rule plan that was agreed on at the first round of talks at Camp David in September.

Egyptian sources said the talks are expected to last between four and seven days and will be followed by a summit session among Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Khalil, who doubles as foreign minister, will lead a seven-man delegation. Two experts on Palestinian affairs are attached to the team, which will stop in London Monday for a meeting with British Prime Minister James Callaghan before continuing on to Washington.

The Cairo sources said Sadat's standing instructions to Khalil are to work for a comprehensive Middle East peace settlement that includes a solution of the Palestinian problem.

Egypt is holding firm on its position that the establishment of Egyptian-Israeli peace should be linked by means of a timetable to the establishment of Palestinian autonomy in the Jordan West Bank and Gaza Strip.

There has been no change, either, in Cairo's demands that a review of security arrangements in the Sinai desert should be made mandatory after five or six years, and that Egypt's defense obligations to Arab states should have precedence over the treaty.

The Israeli delegation also will leave

Monday for the United States. Dayan said in a television interview Friday that even if the upcoming talks with Egypt are a "dazzling success," a summit meeting will still be needed to clinch a treaty between Egypt and Israel.

During its regular Sunday session, the cabinet appointed a committee of ministers to survey and organize the water sources in the occupied West Bank. A government spokesman said one aim would be to make sure the Jewish settlements in the West Bank, outside of the Jordan Valley, will "be sustained, from the aspect of the water supply, as far as possible by means of local drilling."

He said that the Arab settlements would be treated in the same manner as the Jewish ones in the area.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown, wrapping up a trip to Egypt Sunday, visited the remains of the Israeli Barlev line of fortifications, which Egyptian troops seized in the 1973 war. U.S. officials in his party said financial difficulties delaying the sale of 50 F-5 jetfighters to Egypt have been resolved, and delivery should begin next November.

Balanced '80 Budget Would Cost States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — States that are considering calling for a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget were cautioned Sunday to consider the possibility they themselves would be among the big losers.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., head of a House Budget Committee task force studying the move to limit federal spending, wrote the governor of each of the 50 states suggesting how much federal money each might lose if the federal budget were balanced in 1980.

California, whose Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has been a principal advocate of the drive to require a balanced federal budget, would have the biggest potential loss, $3.6 billion, according to Obey's figures.

He said New York could lose $3.3 billion, and Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas each could lose more than $1 billion.

Obey arrived at these figures by taking the $83 billion state and local governments are projected to receive from Washington in 1980 and scaling them back to their 1975 levels.

This, he said, would eliminate the $29 billion federal deficit the president projects for 1980 and result in a slight surplus.

"I am not advocating that this happen," Obey wrote the governors. "But I am suggesting ... when Congress responds to any demands for reducing the federal deficit, that grants to states and localities are among the most likely targets."

The grants include revenue sharing, Medicaid, highway aid, welfare and many other programs. The reason they would be so vulnerable, Obey said, is that other major areas of the budget are very hard to cut.

Forty percent of the federal budget is in Social Security, veterans pensions and other federal payments made directly to individuals.

Obey said large defense cuts are "politically unrealistic," interest on the public debt is automatic and only so much fat can be found in a group of domestic programs including the FBI, the Weather Service, the Coast Guard and the courts.

Actually, most proposals to balance the federal budget do not call for this as early as 1980. The National Governors Association supports federal balance in 1981.

President Carter's budget projections indicate the budget will almost balance itself in 1981 because of the increased revenues inflation brings, unless taxes are cut or large new programs launched.

Legislatures of 26 states have asked for a constitutional convention to amend the Constitution to require the federal government to be balanced. Some of these asked for a convention only if Congress itself fails to balance the budget.

Report Says 'Tax Reform' Not Genuine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-seven states have introduced legislation to limit spending, but none of the proposals involves genuine tax reform, the Coalition of American Public Employees said Sunday.

"There is a tax revolt out there but (the politicians) aren't addressing it," the coalition said. "Tax and spending cuts that cripple needed services are not tax reform."

The group released a study in which it rated each state and the District of Columbia on the basis of its sales tax, personal income tax, business tax, property tax, and general tax administration. The coalition used its own criteria for rating the taxes.

The study said the sales tax is "the most regressive tax because it takes a greater percentage of household income as income declines." States with high sales taxes suffered in the ratings.

The best states in their overall handling of the taxes and administration, in order, are Oregon, Michigan, Wisconsin, California, Minnesota, Idaho, Hawaii, Colorado, Maine and Alaska, the coalition said.

The worst states are Alabama and Mississippi, followed by Wyoming, Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Rhode Island, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois.

The coalition suggested sales taxes could be made "less regressive" if such necessities as food and medicine were exempted and if the sales tax base was broadened to cover not only goods but services.

States conforming most closely with these objectives are New Mexico, Vermont, Hawaii, Idaho and Nebraska. The states with the lowest sales tax ratings are Connecticut, Tennessee, Illinois, Mississippi and Alabama.

The group said personal income taxes have "the potential for being the most progressive source of revenue as well as a substantial source that can enable states to reduce the burden of other taxes."

Nine states — Florida, Connecticut, Nevada, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington and Wyoming — have no personal income tax.

For states that have personal income taxes, the following are rated the best: Wisconsin, Minnesota, California, Delaware and Maine. The worst are Indiana, Louisiana, Alabama, Pennsylvania and Arizona.

The coalition penalized states that provided certain tax breaks when considering taxes on businesses. The states with the best record are Utah, California, Idaho, Montana and Oregon. The worst are Alabama, Kentucky, Washington, Wyoming and Texas.

The states with the best property taxes are Oregon, Georgia, Wisconsin, Michigan and Maryland. The bottom of the list includes Louisiana, Montana, Wyoming, Alabama and Texas.

"Many states could substantially increase revenues without imposing additional taxes or higher rates simply by administering their tax laws more effectively," the coalition said.

The states with the best general tax administration are California, Michigan, South Dakota, Washington and Montana. The worst are Delaware, Iowa, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Rhode Island, the study concluded.

Mennonites

(Continued From Page One) seven families remain on the farm, and most of those said they plan to take jobs in Seminole or nearby Denver City.

The Mennonites faced deportation when they missed a Feb. 1 deadline to get proper alien papers because many heads of households didn't have certifiable jobs. But U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen persuaded the INS to wait until he could introduce special congressional legislation allowing the Mennonites up to two more years to get their permanent visas.

Bentsen's bill has been introduced but is awaiting action pending a report of the results of an INS census of the Mennonite population near Seminole conducted last week.

Hermit Ends Years Seclusion In Cave

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — When 81-year-old Stefan Pietroszys' wife died, he ended 28 years of seclusion in a cave near Sydney and told Salvation Army authorities he would stay in their care until he died.

Pietroszys said after he and his wife immigrated from Lithuania, they moved into the cave because they were afraid of the Soviet secret police. They had been living on berries and charity food parcels.

Balloon

(Continued From Page One) point, and Sundown's 2,000 residents were found to be more than 1,500 miles from the 20,000 persons in Gastonia.

Joyce's and Angela's Feb. 3 balloon launching was their own project, although the idea came from a science experiment discussed at Sundown Junior High School.

The girls said they plan to exchange information with Cathy about the balloon and that they may end up as pen pals.

Joyce is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.W. Plummer, and Angela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Roe, all of Sundown.

WILLIAM DENNIS GARGAN

Cancer Crusader Dies In San Diego

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — William Dennis Gargan, a tough-guy actor for 36 years who achieved equal fame as a cancer crusader after losing his voice to the disease, is dead at 73.

Gargan suffered a heart attack Friday on a flight to San Diego from New York, where he had recently concluded a lecture tour for the American Cancer Society. He was pronounced dead at San Diego's Center City Hospital.

A funeral service is scheduled for Tuesday in Del Mar, near the former actor's home at the Rancho La Costa resort in this coastal town 20 miles north of San Diego.

Gargan was born July 17, 1905, in a working-class neighborhood in Brooklyn, N.Y. Following his older brother Edward, a character actor, he turned to first the stage and in 1932 the movies, playing opposite Joan Crawford in "Rain."

He appeared in dozens of films and was nominated for an Oscar in 1940 for his performance as the vineyard foreman whose photograph was used to attract a mail-order bride for his boss in "They Knew What They Wanted." He also played in the famous 1945 Bing Crosby movie, "The Bells of St. Mary's."

A popular radio actor, Gargan turned to television in his early years and became the first small-screen sleuth in the "Martin Kane, Private Eye" series.

His acting career came to an abrupt end in 1960 when doctors discovered a malignant tumor in his larynx and surgically removed the organ, which contains the vocal cords. At the time, ironically, Gargan was playing a former president dying of cancer in Gore Vidal's play, "The Best Man."

Gargan regained a voice of sorts by learning esophageal speech, in which air is gulped in and then forced out so as to vibrate a sound-producing muscle at the top of the throat.

He went on to teach the same technique to hundreds of laryngectomies and traveled extensively throughout the country as a full-time volunteer to raise funds and publicize the work of the American Cancer Society.

Gargan wrote about his experiences in an autobiography, "Why Me?," published five years ago.

He received Mutual of Omaha's Criss Award in 1967 for outstanding contributions to health or safety. The Screen Actors Guild presented him its annual award for fostering the acting profession's "finest ideals" in 1967.

Gargan is survived by his wife, Mary, sons William Gargan Jr. and Leslie Howard Gargan, and three grandchildren.

Reducing Plan Features Less Demands For Users

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A weight-reducing plan that makes patients write down everything they eat before they eat is more successful than other reducing plans because it avoids complex and unrealistic demands, says a psychology professor.

Most reducing plans ultimately fail because they ask the overweight person to follow so many rules that they seem to demand changes in virtually all of the person's eating habits, said Irwin Lublin of California State University of Los Angeles.

"We never ask them to give up their favorite foods. ... We ask them to do only two things," Lublin said. "We make them write down everything they eat before they eat it ... and we ask them to give up (permanently) one high-calorie food that they eat often and can give up fairly easily."

Lublin described his "minimum intervention" weight-control program and provided supporting evidence this weekend at the Southern California Conference on Behavior Modification.

He said more than 150 people, most of them women, have gone through the program since it began in 1970 and at least 90 percent lost weight, some more than 100 pounds.

That in itself, he said, is not particularly significant since many reducing plans often work for a few months.

Lublin said that last year he and his co-workers surveyed 36 patients who had been out of the program six months to five years. The survey found 32 still weighed less than when they started the plan.

Long-term weight losses ranged from 1 to 147 pounds for an average of 29 pounds, he said.

"If the dieter gives up one high-calorie food such as ice cream, soft drinks or pastries, that alone usually takes off a pound or two a week," Lublin said.

"The longer they go without it, the less they miss it," he said. "That's why it is better to give up one food completely than to eat less of many foods."

A daily log of everything that's eaten is a common dieting maneuver, but with Lublin's plan it must be listed before it's eaten.

Lublin's patients list the item and its calories, then rate their hunger on a scale of one to five. The ledger is presented at once-a-week sessions with a therapist.

Lublin said the "food consumption ledger" forces the dieter to "think twice about each act of eating."

Lublin said the average patient stays with the program roughly six months, although he's worked with some people more than two years before new eating habits are firmly established.

Ape Theory Criticized

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An anthropologist who set off a debate on human origins by naming a new species of early man says criticism of his theory may be a result of vanity about our distant ancestors.

"It seems we have a sense that our ancestors should be very human-like. As soon as we get back to something ape-like we tend to shove it off the line," Dr. Don Johanson said in an interview Saturday at a symposium on early man.

Johanson and his chief critic, Kenyan anthropologist Richard Leakey, met for the first time publicly at the symposium sponsored by the Carnegie Museum of Natural History.

Johanson and Tim White of the University of California-Berkeley announced last month that they had identified the earliest known direct ancestor of man.

Based on recent fossils found by Johanson and noted anthropologist Mary Leakey, they proposed the name Afar ape man for a previously unidentified species that lived 3 million to 4 million years ago.

The Afar creature resembled humans in its body development, they said, but its face and brain were those of an ape.

But the theory was soon attacked by Richard Leakey, son of Mary Leakey and her late anthropologist husband Louis. Richard Leakey is the leader of another major east African fossil expedition.

Leakey said last week in Boston that the fossils studied by Johanson and White actually include members of several species and represent only a near-relative of humanity.

He said he had new fossil finds which would challenge Johanson's interpretation. But Leakey avoided mentioning the new fossils in chairing the symposium on early man.

Johanson said in the absence of new evidence, his theory remains the only reasonable interpretation of the fossils.

He said he has not been able to examine Leakey's new fossils, but doubted from what he knows about them that they will be enough to upset his theory.

Sympathy Message Read In Churches

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II's sympathy message for the victims of an explosion that destroyed a crowded bank last week was read aloud Sunday in Roman Catholic churches across the country.

The casualty toll of the Thursday explosion stands at 45 killed and 110 injured. Of 77 persons seriously injured, two remained in critical condition Sunday, state radio said.

A preliminary report by a special commission said the explosion in the two-story structure on Warsaw's busiest intersection was caused by gas that leaked from an underground pipeline into the bank vaults.

Elevator Mishap Kills NY Youth

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy was crushed to death playing on the roof of an elevator car in a Manhattan housing project.

Housing police said William Mitchell was pinned between the elevator shaft's second and third floors minutes before noon Thursday.

Mitchell had asked a young friend to join him in a ride on top of the car, but the other boy declined. The friend, who was not identified, heard screams above as he rode down in the car, police said. Housing detectives found Mitchell crushed between the car and the shaft.

Vandals Damage Seven Automobiles

Seven dismayed partiers left an 1801 19th St. club late Saturday night to find their automobiles had been vandalized, with total damage set at $1,500.

Police said windshields were broken out of the seven cars. Also, tires were slashed and paint scratched on several of the automobiles. The damage probably was done with a hammer or pipe, according to police reports.

Police said the damaged automobiles were reported by Roy Mitchell of 1916 26th St., Valerie Brookes of 3214 20th St., John House of Rt. 3, Lubbock, Johnny Terrell of 509 5th St., John Fisher of 2314 49th St., Joe Zamora of Rt. 10, Lubbock, and Mathew Lynn of 4906 37th St.

Burglars shattered a glass door at W.D. Wilkins jewelry store at 2210 Ave. G late Saturday and made off with a tray of rings, according to police.

Reports indicate the rings contained costume jewels and collectively were valued at about $100. Damage to the glass door and to a jewelry case from which the ring tray was removed was placed at about $300.

Cindy King said she returned to her 1705 Ave. S residence about 2 a.m. Sunday and found a man leaving the scene with an armful of her possessions.

The man escaped with nearly $1,300 worth of property, including a stereo and some jewelry, according to reports, which indicate entry was through a broken-out window.

Burglars removed nearly $625 worth of carpentry tools from a pickup belonging to Joe Condren of 4310 Chicago early Sunday, reports said.

Condren said his pickup was parked at 5500 44th St. when someone took the tools from a set of tool boxes on the sides of the truck.

Report On Moro's Body Released

ROME (AP) — The kidnapped former premier Aldo Moro was shot 11 times in the chest as he lay inside a small car and died about 15 minutes later, an examination of his body has shown. The body of Moro was found in the car on a Rome street May 9.

Three physicians who carried out the examination at the request of judicial authorities in charge of the Moro investigation published the findings Saturday.

Moro, president of the Christian Democratic Party and five-time premier, was abducted by the Red Brigades urban terrorist gang in a bloody Rome shoot-out March 9 in which five of Moro's bodyguards were slain.

One More Change

It used to be that people never went to funeral directors until they needed their help. But today people frequently turn to us in advance -- for advice on pre-need planning and for information about our service and prices. And we think this is a change for the better.

Carter Explains Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Critics call it a lack of leadership. Aides say it's a thoughtful answer to the "macho" diplomacy of yore. Either way, it's Jimmy Carter's foreign policy.

President Carter goes before the American people this week to explain his low-key diplomacy in dealing with such international upheavals as the Moslem revolution in Iran and the Chinese invasion of Vietnam.

A White House official said Carter will use an appearance Tuesday at Georgia Tech in Atlanta to present a major foreign policy address to the nation.

"It will deal with the situation in Southeast Asia and Iran and the relationship of what's going on there to our overall foreign policy," the official said.

Carter worked on a revised draft of his foreign policy address while spending a long holiday weekend at Camp David, Md.

For the two years since he took office, Carter has been plagued by critics who complain of a lack of leadership and urged him to act more forcefully in times of crisis.

At the same time, Carter's standing in opinion polls has plunged, leading aides to complain that the public doesn't understand his low-key approach to foreign affairs.

In the past, U.S. presidents have been quick to react in times of crisis with a "macho" flexing of America's military might, but not always to political advantage.

Former President Gerald Ford received a boost in the polls when he resorted to a show of strength in reaction to the Mayaguez incident with Cambodia.

But former President Richard Nixon touched off massive protests when he ordered an invasion of Cambodia as he was supposed to be winding down the Indochina war.

A senior White House aide says Carter's behind-the-scenes diplomacy is paying off and has kept the United States out of international conflicts as well as the turbulent internal affairs of emerging nations.

The bus was carrying 34 persons from Los Angeles and crashed after being forced off the highway by a car. Twenty-seven persons were injured in the mishap. (AP Laser-photo)

"I think the wisdom of our own approach to Iran is being demonstrated every day, of working quietly and avoiding some sort of irresponsible action just to appear dramatic," the aide said.

He criticized presidential critics for demanding "at a time of turmoil ... that something dramatic be done, even though it's foolish."

"The characteristic of this administration has been a careful thoughtful approach which we believe is the right approach, instead of outraged screams to do something," he said.

The aide said "one of the difficulties" in dramatizing Carter's actions to stem international hostilities is the the secret nature of the president's actions.

"But as time goes on, and more is known, the success of our more prudent policy will be seen," he said.

Russian and Polish troops liberated Warsaw from the Nazis in 1945 after it had been occupied for five years by the Germans in World War II.

Fenced In Rambling Man Says He Will Branch Out

SETH, W. Va. (AP) — Omehaw Kessinger, retired nomad, built a fence in front of the one-bedroom house he and his wife, Flora, moved into five years ago, a sure sign he had become domesticated.

One morning, mowing the lawn, he came upon some little plastic soldiers, eight of them, toys long lost and forgotten by some previous occupant of the house.

Eight cedar posts supported his new fence. Aha. Just for kicks, he nailed one soldier to the top of each post. Sentinels.

"That was the start of it," he said. "From then on, anything I picked up I hung on the fence. Now people, especially children, bring me things for the fence. You can see what has happened."

The fence truly is, in the once-current phrase, a happening.

It is a 110-foot-long, 10-foot-high collage, a marvelous midden, a wide-screen panorama of the detritus of three generations of life on the banks of the Big Coal River:

Coffee pots, dippers, miners' lamps, hubcaps, flashlights, bowling pins, rattlesnake rattles, wristwatches, harness hames, lanterns, paint scrapers, bathtub plugs, wrenches, combs, light bulbs, eyeglasses, hacksaws, dolls, horseshoes, radios, golf trophies, spigots, fishing reels, distributor caps, butter churns ...

"I tried to count the items once," Kessinger said. "Got to 4,200 before I got tired and quit and I wasn't nearly done."

"Now there is no more room on the fence, but I have an idea. I'm going to start hanging things on that elm tree at the end of the fence." Branching out, you might say.

For her part, Flora, not to mention some of the neighbors, suspected her husband might be a bit tetchy, as they say hereabouts, when he started his project. It grew. And grew. And grew.

"I had thought flowers would be nice along the fence," she said.

Passers-by began to stop — tourists, truckers — to find out what manner of man would construct such a thing. They found a remarkable person indeed.

Omehaw Kessinger was born a few miles from here in 1904. Like others of artistic bent, he had an itch to travel, to see things.

"I became a hobo and I loved it. It's a wonderful life," he said wistfully. "Here one day, there the next. In jail, out of jail. Then they began getting strict. In Georgia, you could get 40 days on the rock pile for hobbing. Wasn't worth it."

"So I became a truck driver, still on the go. Never did settle down until my knees went bad, back in about 1960."

Said Flora: "I swear I don't know why I went for that rambling man, but I found out 10 years ago. For the past 10 years I've been ailing pretty bad, arthritis, bad eyes. He sees to everything, takes care of everything. He cares for me."

"He has his faults, but that's all right. The other day I said, 'Omey, do you know what day this is?' He said, 'Groundhog Day, ain't it?' I said, 'Yes, and also our 46th wedding anniversary.'

"If that fence is what makes him happy, it's all right with me."

"That fence has brought us friends. I used to keep a list of all the folks who saw it and stopped to chat. They came from 45 states and Canada. All the little children come by to look at it, too, and to put things on it, and that suits me fine."

"I'll tell you, I like the fence. Some people call it junk, some people call it pretty. I like it."

A debate you could hear in any art gallery. Flora. Stick by that rambling man.

RETIRED NOMAD — Omar Kessinger, a former hobo, has built a fence around his home, which is on the banks of the Big Coal River. The fence is a collage of hubcaps, radios and toy soldiers. (AP Laserphoto)

Two Arrested In Airport Heist

NEW YORK (UPI) — A reputed mobster and a Lufthansa Airlines' employee were in jail Sunday in connection with the $5.8 million robbery at Kennedy Airport last December, but the FBI still was searching for at least five more suspects and the loot taken in the largest cash heist in U.S. history.

None of the $5 million in U.S. currency and estimated $850,000 in gold, jewels and pearls taken in the robbery at Lufthansa Airlines' Kennedy terminal was recovered in the Saturday arrests of Angelo John Sepe, 37, a convicted stickup man, and Peter Gruenawald, 39, a cargo traffic division operator for Lufthansa.

The arrests were the first major break in the case since the robbery Dec. 11. Sepe was charged with taking part in the heist and Gruenawald was held as a material witness.

The arrests came six days after a federal grand jury in Brooklyn heard testimony in the case from seven subpoenaed witnesses.

Sepe is a reputed member of the Paul Vario organized crime family, authorities said. He was released from prison in August 1977 after serving several years for armed robbery.

He was arrested Saturday driving a new 1979 Thunderbird, which investigators said Sepe allegedly bought after going on a spending spree with his share of the loot.

An FBI spokesman said the arrests were made as the result of a joint investigation by the agency, city and Port Authority police departments and U.S. Customs agents.

Sepe was charged with theft from an interstate shipment, a federal extortion charge, possession of goods taken from an interstate and foreign shipment, and conspiracy. The first charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in jail and a $5,000 fine and the second 20 years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

The two suspects were being held at the federal Metropolitan Correctional Center in lower Manhattan and were to be arraigned before a magistrate in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn on Monday.

Meanwhile, the FBI pressed a hunt for at least five other suspects.

One of those is believed to be Thomas DiSimone, who police describe as having organized crime ties and who was reported missing Jan. 14, shortly after his release from prison. His wife reportedly was one of those who appeared before the grand jury.

The planning that apparently went into the heist led authorities to believe it was an inside job and 150 Lufthansa employees were given lie detector tests.

The robbery occurred at 3:05 a.m., when six masked gunmen drove up to a Lufthansa cargo hangar, overpowered one employee, bound eight others and entered the airline's high-value safe cage.

They loaded their van, a stolen 1979 black Ford, with loot and disappeared.

The stolen U.S. currency, all used bills for which authorities have no serial numbers, was being shipped to the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York from the Commerz Bank in Frankfurt, West Germany.

The robbery was the largest cash heist in U.S. history. The second largest was the $4.3 million robbery from Purolator Security in Chicago in 1974.

Carter's Handling Of Crisis Assailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading conservative congressman Sunday denounced President Carter's handling of the crisis in Iran and what he termed the administration's "accommodation to Soviet provocation."

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said Carter has meekly accepted serious diplomatic defeats in Iran and elsewhere for fear of disrupting arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

"During one pro-Soviet coup after another — in South Yemen, Afghanistan, Ethiopia and elsewhere — the administration remains strangely silent."

Congress Getting Down To Business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate committees draft legislation this week establishing future U.S. relations with Taiwan, as the 96th Congress appears to be getting down to business after more than a month of organizing.

Since convening Jan. 15, little of significance has been accomplished other than the naming of new committee members and a series of hearings on the budget and other major topics.

But following the traditional reading today of George Washington's farewell address, some major decisions are scheduled during the week, ranging from the Taiwan issue to basic changes in Senate filibuster rules and perhaps a final decision on the course of action the House will take on members convicted of crimes.

Except for the Senate filibuster debate, almost all action will continue to be in committees rather than on the House or Senate floors.

The only actual legislation scheduled in either chamber is a House bill, scheduled for Thursday, designating "Our Merchant Marine March," a tune by composer Earl Clark, as the official march of the U.S. Merchant Marine.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday begins drafting the administration's legislation setting up direct but unofficial relations with Taiwan, and the House Foreign Affairs Committee does the same on Wednesday.

The main question is whether a hard-line resolution by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., on security guarantees for Taiwan will be attached to the bill rather than the softer resolution by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd is seeking changes in Senate rules dealing with what has become known as the "lost-cloture filibuster" — the practice allowing a handful of senators to kill legislation even after 60 of their colleagues have voted to cut off debate and speed a final vote.

If no action is taken by Thursday, Byrd would be in a position to force even more controversial rules upon the Senate by majority vote — including one proposal to allow a bill to be filibustered only once, not twice, as is possible under current rules.

The House Democratic caucus is scheduled to meet Wednesday and again take up proposed rules covering members who are convicted of major crimes.

The proposal would bar such members from voting on legislation or otherwise taking part in House business until they have either overturned their conviction on appeal or served their sentence.

A companion proposal would automatically require a House vote on disciplining convicted members after all appeals are exhausted.

Tech, Baylor Medical Schools Schedule Alcohol Conference

Many people have misconceptions about alcoholism. Alcoholism is a disease that causes physical, psychological and sociological disorders, according to Rudy Arredondo, Ed. D., Assistant Professor of psychiatry at Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

"The alcoholic experiences physical pain and deterioration, inability to think and remember clearly and a sense of isolation," said Arredondo. The family and friends of an alcoholic also suffer psychological and sociological effects as a result of the disease.

TTUSM and the Baylor College of Medicine will present "Libation and Libido," a conference on alcoholism in El Paso on Feb. 23 and 24. The conference is the third annual meeting sponsored by the two institutions as part of a continuing effort to educate health care professionals and the public about the diverse aspects of alcoholism.

sexuality problems as a result of alcoholism.

The conference is designed to interest physicians, psychologists, counselors, social workers and other health-care professionals as well as the general public, said Arredondo.

B. Terence Wilson, Ph.D., of Rutgers University will speak on sexual dysfunction and alcoholism and Reba Michel Hill, M.D., of Baylor College of Medicine will discuss birth defects related to excessive alcohol consumption during pregnancy.

Other topics and speakers include the teenager and alcohol by Kenneth Russell, Ed.D., University of Arizona Health Sciences Center; the effect of alcohol consumption on regulatory gland functions by Carlos Menendez, M.D., of the Maryland Medical and Chirurgical Faculty.

The conference is accredited by 13 credit hours in Category I of the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association; 13 prescribed hours by the American Academy of Family Physicians; 1.3 CEU's by the Texas Association of Alcoholism Counselors; and 13 CHEARP points with the Texas Nurses Association.

The conference will be held at the TTUSM Regional Academic Health Center in El Paso. For further information contact the TTUSM Office of Continuing Education.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Because of discouraging predictions by so-called experts about the economic outlook, wife and I decided to sell most of our stocks. We kept 350 shares of an electric utility stock but sold all our other stocks and now own U.S. Treasury notes and Federal Farm Credit Bank bonds which pay much higher yields than the stocks we sold.

A. I hope to retire in about two years and we felt that investing for higher returns would be the proper move. Do you agree?

A. Indeed, I do. Anyone who is getting close to retirement should plan to shift from growth type investments which provide low yields and move into higher-income-producing things.

And you picked two good "things" — both of which are now paying high interest. U.S. Treasury notes, of course, are backed by the full faith and credit of the federal government. And Federal Farm Credit Bank bonds, although carrying no government guarantee, have to be counted as virtually risk-free.

I'd say you made the right move at the right time of life — with just the possibility of one mistake. That possibility is that, by selling your stocks, you realized big profits — on which you will have to pay fat capital gains taxes.

If you had held off on selling those stocks until after retirement, when you figure to be in a lower tax bracket, the capital gains tax would be much lower.

I hope you weren't panicked into selling by those dire predictions you mention. We may be headed for a economic downturn. But that doesn't mean the world is coming to an end or stock prices are going to fall through the floor and stay down forever.

Your family finances seem to be in good shape. But I would caution other readers — especially those a long way from retirement — against dumping stocks, just because of what self-styled "experts" have to say.

Q. You left out one important fact when you wrote that six-month savings certificates "are better and more convenient" than 13-week or 26-week U.S. Treasury bills. (T-bills). You pointed out that many savings and loan associations (S&Ls) and savings banks pay interest on six-month certificates higher than the T-bill rate.

A. You didn't mention that the interest on savings certificates is subject to federal, state and local income taxes, while the interest on T-bills is subject only to federal income tax — not state and local income taxes. Doesn't that make T-bills a better deal?

A. That depends on where you live. If your state has a high income tax and if you are also hit with a local income tax, the answer can be yes. But that does not apply to all places where this column appears.

The effective yield on six-month certificates at many S&Ls and savings banks is now almost nine-tenths of 1 percent higher than the yield on 26-week T-bills. There are two reasons for this. 1. Those thrift institutions are allowed to pay interest on six-month certificates one-quarter of 1 percent higher than the 26-week T-bill yield. 2. Many of those "thrifts" compound the yield continuously or daily — bringing the effective yield to the much higher rate.

Now, if state and local taxes wipe out the extra yield on six-month savings certificates, you're better off with T-bills. This rough rule of thumb applies where your state and local income tax bite is 11 percent or higher.

(Please, dear readers, don't deluge me with requests to do calculations for all 50 states and the District of Columbia. Try to figure out your own situation or consult an accountant.)

You can buy T-bills, directly, by sub-

Amtrak Derails, No One Injured

GALLITZIN, Pa. (AP) — Eight cars and a locomotive of an Amtrak train derailed near this Cambria County community, rail officials said.

Brian Duffy, an Amtrak spokesman in Washington, said the Broadway Limited was traveling less than 30 mph when it derailed about 10:15 p.m. Saturday. None of the 133 passengers aboard was injured.

The passengers transferred to a following train, the National Limited, at the scene of the derailment, Duffy said. Some of the passengers were traveling from New York City and some from Washington, and were headed for Chicago after a stop in Pittsburgh, he said.

'Phooey' Generation Won't Topple Government

PARIS (AP) — They love their flag, but as they get older they are less sure their country is the greatest. They say authority is fine but politicians aren't. They are the children of France, born on the eve of the 1968 student uprisings that almost toppled President Charles de Gaulle. Judging by a new poll of children aged 8 to 12, France's teenagers-to-be show little interest in smashing the state. They are what sociologists have dubbed "la 'bof' generation." Bof is the French equivalent of "phooey."

The poll, by France's prestigious Sofres Public Opinion Center, queried 700 children and was published by the Nouvel Ob- servateur newspaper. At age 9, the survey reveals, 63 percent of French children think France is the best country in the world. By age 12, the figure drops to 59 percent, and the percentage of those who think France is just so-so goes up from 19 to 27 percent. Those who think France should merge with the rest of Europe into one nation almost double between ages 8 and 12, from 34 to 60 percent. Readiness to die for France seems to work in reverse. Sixteen percent of the 8-year-olds and 41 percent of the 12-year-olds said they would. Forty-eight percent of 8-year-olds and 70 percent of 12-year-olds agree that "You can't win against the government." The pollsters asked the kids to react with "I like it" or "I don't like it" to a list of terms and names. "Flag" won an approval rating of 77 percent. Police got 62 percent. The title, "president of the republic" won 46 percent, but incumbent Valéry Giscard d'Estaing got a meager 31. Prime Minister Raymond Barre, Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand and Communist chief Georges Marchais were resoundingly "boffed" with 19, 18 and 17 percent respectively. "Demonstration," which was what 1968 was all about, got only 10 percent. "Political party" limped in with 7 percent. Annick Percheron, chief researcher at the Center for Studies of French Contemporary Political Life, said the disdain for political parties was different from the American situation, where 60 percent define themselves as Republicans or Democrats by age 13. She illustrated differences in the way American and French children regard authority by recounting this finding from her own research: A mixed group of French and American children were asked what action they would take if they found their local park dirtied by children from another neighborhood.

Swiss Voters Reject Nuclear Restrictions

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss voters on Sunday rejected a proposal that would have placed severe curbs on the country's nuclear energy program. The referendum, backed by environmental groups, was watched closely by other European countries. Election officials said the vote was 965,244 against the initiative and 919,923 in favor.

The government had urged voters to reject the constitutional amendment, which would have made the licensing of all nuclear installations subject to stringent restrictions to "safeguard the rights and the security of the people." Other West European governments followed the debate closely because of the controversy over nuclear power plants in their countries. Three months ago in neighboring Austria, voters rejected plans for Austria's first nuclear generating facility that would have been at Zwentendorf.

Swiss voters now will go to the polls in May to give their verdict on a measure that states only those nuclear plants that are "absolutely necessary" may be built. That bill also would tighten 20-year-old power regulations, which one parliamentary critic said "make it easier to build a nuclear power plant than to obtain a liquor license."

The defeated energy proposal would have required community votes on construction licenses for nuclear power plants with adjacent cantons — states — having veto rights.

The outcome again followed the tradition that the odds are against popular initiatives launched under the Swiss system of direct democracy. It gives the voter a final say on every issue, ranging from foreign policy to sewage projects. Since World War II, only one initiative has won approval. It passed in 1949 and abolished wartime emergency legislation and restored direct democracy.

Nuclear energy was only one in a package of four proposals put to the vote Sunday. Two of the others also were rejected. They would have reduced the voting age from 20 to 18 and banned liquor and cigarette advertising. The fourth measure, encouraging construction of hiking trails, was approved.

Judge Gives Gag Order In Civil Case

ATLANTA (AP) — A judge has ordered participants in a civil case — including jurors — not to discuss the trial that ended last week, and the county prosecutor says the order "sounds illegal."

Recent publicity over a single holdout who caused a hung jury in the bribery trial of Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., has put undue pressure on jurors to conform to the will of the majority, the judge said.

So-called gag orders usually are issued before or during a trial. The order issued by Judge Tom Moran may be unconstitutional, said Fulton County District Attorney Lewis R. Slaton.

The prosecutor, who was not involved in the case, said Moran's order "sounds like it's illegal as can be."

The civil case was brought by Raul Molina and his wife, Maria. They sued a car dealer, claiming Mrs. Molina was sold a used and damaged car after she was told it was new.

The couple was awarded $48,000 plus attorney's fees last week. Molina is an Atlanta wrestler known as "El Mongol."

Moran told the participants — jurors, attorneys, plaintiff and defendant — not to speak "to any members of the media" about the trial.

Moran said he issued the ruling to "protect the jury system." He explained that the "American jury system is in danger of being destroyed" by breaches of the secrecy of jury deliberations.

FISHING PROPOSAL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department has announced a proposed 1979 regulatory plan for fishery conservation on parts of the Klamath and Trinity rivers in Northern California. The department said the proposed regulations were published Wednesday in the Federal Register. They allow for Indian subsistence and ceremonial fishing, but prohibit commercial fishing.

New Satellite To Determine If Stratosphere Polluted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. satellite rocketed into orbit Sunday to try and determine if man is polluting the stratosphere, a fragile region that helps control the climate and the amount of solar radiation that reaches Earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the 324-pound satellite was launched successfully from its coastal base at Wallops Island, Va., and that it was being tracked by the agency's Goddard Space Flight Center.

The payload was named SAGE, for Stratospheric Aerosol and Gas Experiment.

NASA said the launch occurred during a snowstorm and in 16 degrees temperature, which it called a record for the Scout rocket. "It has never been launched before in temperatures under 33 degrees Fahrenheit and never before in a snowstorm," said John Kley of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

In a statement explaining the satellite's mission, NASA said: "Concerns have developed that man's industrial and technological activities on and above the earth may lead to aerosol and gas buildup in the stratosphere, causing unknown and possibly adverse effects to life on the Earth's surface."

The stratosphere is the region of the atmosphere beginning above cloud tops at about eight miles and extending upward to an altitude of about 30 miles.

Within the stratosphere is a layer called the ozone, which shields the Earth from ultraviolet rays from the sun.

SAGE will help determine if the ozone is being depleted by such things as gases from aerosol spray-can products containing fluorocarbons. The National Academy of Sciences has determined that these gases represent a serious hazard to the layer.

Because of the depletion concern, the federal government last year announced a ban on the manufacture of nearly all aerosol products using fluorocarbons.

"Statistics show that reduction of the ozone layer can increase the incidents of skin cancer; in fact, without the layer, there probably would be no life on the surface," said NASA's Dr. Patrick McCormick, the project's science leader.

Some scientists and environmentalists believe the ozone may be affected adversely by exhausts from supersonic aircraft.

SAGE also will survey the concentration of aerosols in the stratosphere.

Aerosols, as opposed to gases from aerosol spray-cans, are tiny solid particles or liquid droplets suspended in the surrounding air. Most of those in the stratosphere come from volcano emissions and desert dust and sand storms. But there is a possibility some are introduced by industrial processes or automobile emissions.

The aerosol layer acts like a filter by reducing the amount of sunlight that reaches the Earth's surface and the amount of reflected sunlight that eventually escapes into space.

"Small changes in aerosol concentration may cause changes in climate, creating a fraction of a change in heat that could shorten a growing season," McCormick said. "That could be critical to an area like Russia."

He said a volcanic eruption during Sage's lifetime would "provide a unique opportunity for scientists to study the long-term distribution throughout the stratosphere of high-volume aerosols and other gases from a single point source."

New 'Mini-Can' Bill Proposed In Senate

AUSTIN (UPI) — The fight to make the sale of 7- and 8-ounce mini-cans of beer legal in Texas is expected Monday on the Senate floor.

The mini-can provision, opposed by some small beer distributors, is part of a package bill of beer distributing regulations sponsored by Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston.

The cans would be sold only in six- or eight-packs, not as singles. One small distributor said the law would be another victory for the large breweries and distributors at the small distributors' expense.

"The monopolistic tendencies of these large breweries are going to force us out of business," said Marshall McHone of Austin, a Shiner Beer distributor.

McHone said the larger beer producers who can afford to market several brands in several can sizes and who have national advertising are forcing the small distributors off the store shelves.

An amendment tacked on the bill by Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, prohibits the sale of the small cans for a year after the bill's passage — a move to pacify the small distributors.

Another controversy has developed over a section of the bill that allows manufacturers to sell only to licensed distributors. Under current law, manufacturers can sell to retailers.

Gov. Bill Clements' interests will be discussed by the Senate State Affairs Committee meeting Monday, where two of his power bills will be introduced by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston.

Clements, in his address to the joint session of the Legislature in January, asked for power to control the budgets of all state agencies whose heads are appointed.

"We must not continue to permit non-elected members of state agencies to have the power of free and unlimited spending of the taxpayers' dollars," Clements told the legislators.

The governor also has asked for power to remove appointed members of state boards and commissions for stated reasons with the consent of the Senate. Past Texas governors have sought similar powers but some legislators have said Clements may be more successful than his predecessors.

Student Instructors Schedule Tech Tour

Thirty student teachers from Mexico will visit Texas Tech University March 8 while in Lubbock March 5-11.

The visit to the university is part of the "Operation Amistad" program sponsored by the Junior League of Lubbock.

For 17 years, students from the National School for Teachers in Mexico City, in conjunction with Mexico's Association for International Understanding and the Department of Public Education in Mexico City, have chosen to visit Lubbock. "Operation Amistad" was termed "Operation Senorita" until 1978 when the program was opened to young men.

Students will arrive from Laredo at 6 p.m., March 5. They will tour the First National Bank, the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center on March 6.

Mayor Dirk West will award the students honorary citizenships.

The week's events include shopping, a dinner sponsored by Texas Tech Sigma Delta Pi honorary on March 7, a tour of the Ranching Heritage Center and the Texas Tech Museum on March 8 and a farewell dinner at Junior League Headquarters on March 10.

Preston Smith, former Texas governor, will present honorary Texas citizenships to the students at the farewell dinner.

More than 400 Mexican students have participated in "Operation Amistad" throughout the years. In 1971, the Junior League of Lubbock was awarded the Order of the Golden Knights of Popocatepetl by Project Good Neighbor for promoting better understanding and good will at home and abroad.

Rollbacks In State, Local Grants Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit could be eliminated by rolling back grants to states and local governments to 1975 levels, a Wisconsin congressman said Sunday.

Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., who heads a House Budget Committee task force examining proposed constitutional limits of federal spending, said outlays to states, cities and towns have grown $33 billion since 1975. President Carter is projecting a $29 billion federal deficit for fiscal 1980, which begins next Oct. 1.

Obey noted earlier that if Congress used the budgetary methods employed by 19 of the 26 states that have called for a constitutional convention, the federal government would show an $87 billion surplus in 1980.

Obey said most of those states would show a deficit if they combined their expenses as the federal government does, instead of separating capital and operating costs.

Congressional Committee To Grill Solomon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the scandal-plagued General Services Administration is expected to be asked about his plans this week when he appears before Congress for the first time since the White House announced he was leaving.

GSA Administrator Jay Solomon, who helped launch the investigation into widespread corruption at the government's housekeeping and purchasing agency, is scheduled to appear before the House Operations Committee on Tuesday.

Solomon will be accompanied by Irwin Borowski, who quit as GSA general counsel this month after President Carter picked another person to fill the agency's newly created post of inspector general.

Solomon had strongly supported Borowski for the job, and the dispute is believed to have put Solomon into disfavor at the White House.

Last month, the White House announced Solomon would be leaving the GSA sometime this spring. Although administration officials said the announcement was made with Solomon's support and knowledge, the GSA chief told reporters at the time that he had no plans to leave.

Confusion increased when Solomon met with the president and issued a statement saying he would see the investigation to a conclusion. However, after calls from the White House, that statement was changed to say Solomon would be leaving within a few months.

In announcing the hearing, Rep. John L. Burton, D-Calif., chairman of a GSA oversight subcommittee, said Solomon would be asked about the GSA's new office of inspector general in light of his expected departure.

Offices of inspector general at GSA and other federal agencies were created by Congress last year to investigate waste and abuse.

In a related development, a Senate governmental affairs subcommittee will hear Monday from Dale Babione, the head of GSA's acquisition office. Babione will testify about legislation to overhaul the government's buying practices.

Also on Monday — Washington's Birthday — the House and Senate will meet to hear the traditional readings of George Washington's Farewell Address. In the Senate, the address will be read by Republican John Warner of Virginia, and in the House by Rep. James Courter, R-N.J.

In other congressional action, the House Ways and Means Committee will get its first formal reading on support for Carter's "real-wage insurance" plan among the panel's majority Democrats. The committee chairman, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., is expected to call a caucus of the panel's 24 Democrats late this week.

With Republicans united in opposing the plan, the administration needs 19 Democratic votes to send a bill to the House floor.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, the House Agriculture Committee will discuss possible legislative remedies to demands by demonstrating farmers for higher price supports.

The House Education and Labor Committee meets Wednesday to establish an inspection program for the detection of asbestos in public school ceilings.

Body Of Ambassador Brought Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — The body of slain Ambassador Adolph Dubs was returned to the United States on Sunday and met by President Carter, who expressed "sadness and outrage" at Dubs' killing in Afghanistan last week.

"We condemn those who would participate in such a despicable act of violence," Carter said. He said he was outraged "at the senseless terrorism of those who pay inadequate value to human life."

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, also at the ceremony, said, "We will fight terrorism with all our resolve and resources."

Dubs, 58, was shot to death last

Wednesday in a gun battle between police and four terrorists who had kidnapped him in Kabul. He was the fifth U.S. ambassador killed in the line of duty in just over a decade.

His body was returned to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington on an Air Force jet dispatched by the president. The flag-draped coffin was greeted by a 19-gun salute, and a military band played "Ruffles and Flourishes."

Vance presented the Secretary's Award, the State Department's highest honor, to Dubs' widow, Mary Ann, in the slain ambassador's name. Mrs. Dubs, who held the president's arm during the ceremony, stepped to the microphone to thank Vance, but could only say "Mr. Secretary, ..." before breaking down in tears.

Dubs will be buried Tuesday in Arlington National Cemetery.

Earlier, Mrs. Dubs had made public a letter she sent to the Afghan president saying that beyond her personal grief over her husband's death, "there is the larger sense in which his death is a tragedy — that he should have died in circumstances so alien to the ideas he sought to project in his work."

After Dubs was killed last week, American officials complained bitterly that Soviet advisers at the scene did nothing to delay the police attack or urge further negotiations despite pleas from American Embassy officers. A strong protest also was filed with the Afghanistan government.

Carter was described as "very angry" over the incident, and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin was summoned to the State Department for a formal protest of what the department called Soviet inaction "impossible to justify."

The Soviet news agency, Tass, reported Saturday that the Soviet Embassy in Washington had rejected the U.S. view, saying the Soviet advisers "had nothing to do with the decision of the Afghan authorities."

The Soviets have developed close ties with Afghanistan since a coup installed President Nur Mohammed Taraki there last April.

Dubs, a specialist in Soviet matters, was charge d'affaires in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow in 1971-72 until the Nixon administration appointed a full-fledged ambassador. He had been with the foreign service since 1949 but did not receive his own ambassadorship until last July.

He was on his way to work Wednesday when he was taken captive by terrorists who apparently wanted to trade him for prisoners held by the Afghan government. It has not been made clear whether Dubs was killed by bullets fired by his abductors or by government forces who stormed the hotel room where he had been taken.

Three Die In Chopper Sea Crash

BOSTON (AP) — A Coast Guard helicopter with five persons aboard crashed into the sea Sunday while trying to hoist an injured man from a Japanese fishing boat, killing at least three persons, the Coast Guard said.

One of the crewmen aboard the helicopter was missing, and a fifth man was rescued by the Japanese fishing vessel, the Coast Guard said.

"The helicopter was about to hoist up the injured Japanese crewman when something happened and the helicopter went down," said Seaman Paul Powers of the Coast Guard information office here.

He said first reports indicated the man rescued by the crew of the Japanese vessel was in good condition. He said they also recovered the bodies of three others.

A search was under way in the area by U.S. and Canadian fixed-wing aircraft for the missing Coast Guard helicopter crewman.

The Coast Guard identified those known dead as the pilot, Lt. Cmdr. James Stiles, 33, hometown unknown, Aviation Electronics Technician 2nd Class John Tait, 22, of Silver Spring, Md., and Canadian Forces Capt. George Burge, 38, of Fredericton, New Brunswick.

Burge, the copilot, was stationed with the Coast Guard in an exchange program with the Canadian government.

Reported missing was Hospital Corpsman 2nd Class Bruce Kaehler, 27, of Fort Collins, Colo.

The rescued Coast Guardman was identified as Aviation Machinist Mate 2nd Class Mark Torr, 20, of Rochester, N.H. Coast Guard spokesman Dale Gardner said Torr and the Japanese seaman were lifted from the fishing vessel by a large helicopter sent from the Elizabeth City, N.C. air station for transport to medical care.

The Coast Guard said the vessel, identified as the Kaisei Maru No. 18, called for aid at about 5:20 a.m., saying that crewman Suzuki Masaji, 47, had suffered a head injury and was in serious condition.

Powers said the crash occurred 180 miles southeast of Cape Cod in heavy weather, with winds gusting to 30 knots, seas up to 25 feet and limited visibility due to snow.

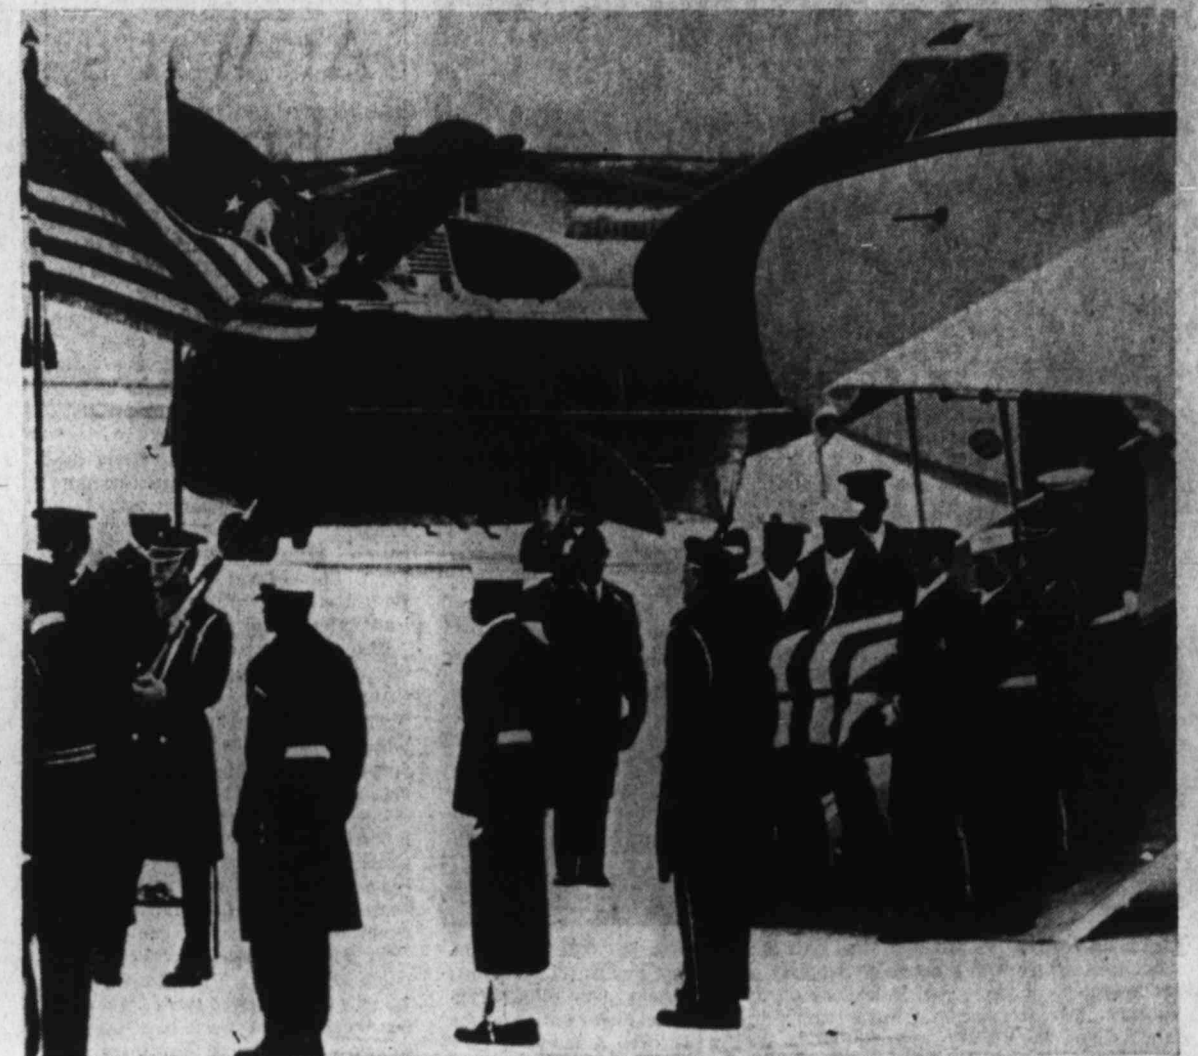

The helicopter that crashed, an HH3F long-range aircraft, was the largest at the consolidated air station at Otis Air Force Base on Cape Cod, Powers said.

More Testimony Set In GSA Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Testimony dealing with continuing government efforts to rid the scandal-scattered General Services Administration of corruption will be offered to a House panel this week.

Jay Solomon, administrator of the GSA, the nation's chief housekeeping and purchasing agency, has been asked to brief the House Government Operations Committee on the status of a new office of inspector general at the agency.

"All of our members are interested and concerned with GSA's present role and activities," Rep. John L. Burton, chairman of the government activities and transportation subcommittee, said in a letter to Solomon. "We think it would be of great value for us to have further opportunity to hear from you personally about some of these matters."

Ex-Agent Reveals Assassination Tip

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — An FBI agent who investigated Lee Harvey Oswald prior to President Kennedy's assassination said the FBI received an anonymous call Nov. 24, 1963 informing them Oswald would be killed that afternoon while being transferred from the city jail to the county jail.

In a copyrighted article appearing in the Sunday editions of the Kansas City Star, James Hosty Jr., who retired from the FBI last month, said the FBI was opposed to moving Oswald. However, Hosty said, the Dallas police department had jurisdiction and would not change its plans. Oswald was shot and killed during the transfer.

"We, of course, didn't know whether the call was legitimate or from some crank," Hosty said. "But when the police insisted on going ahead with the move, we (FBI agents) were ordered to stay completely out of the area. We wanted no part of it, under the circumstances."

The Star said Hosty made his comments in the first interview he has granted on his investigation of Oswald. Hosty has testified about the Kennedy assassination and Oswald before the Warren Commission, a House Judiciary subcommittee and a Senate Intelligence subcommittee.

Former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and the Warren Commission criticized Hosty for his investigation of Oswald. He was suspended for a month without pay and transferred from Dallas to Kansas City. However, the House Select Committee on Assassinations, in a preliminary report released last month, said Hosty's investigation of Oswald was "properly conducted."

Hosty, who now lives in the Kansas City suburb of Westwood, Kan., had refused comment, outside that to the Warren Commission and congressional committees, on a note from Oswald that was left for him at the Dallas FBI office prior to the assassination.

Hosty told the Star the note was left several weeks before the Kennedy assassination and he said it was destroyed hours after Oswald was shot to death.

Hosty was assigned to make a routine investigation in March 1963 because Oswald's wife, Marina, was a native of Russia. He re-opened a previous file on Oswald during the investigation. He interviewed Mrs. Oswald on Nov. 1, 1963. Hosty said between Nov. 5 and 8, Oswald walked into his office and gave a receptionist a note for him.

"When I came in she handed me the note without comment," Hosty said. "It was in an envelope but I don't remember if it was sealed."

The receptionist testified the note said, "I will blow up the FBI and the Dallas Police Department if you don't stop bothering my wife."

Hosty denied the note contained any threat.

"The note didn't contain any threats to me or to the FBI office," he said. "It wasn't particularly unusual to get notes like that during an investigation, and I really didn't attach much significance to it."

Hosty testified he showed the note to the agent-in-charge who put it back into Hosty's box unnoticed until Nov. 22, 1963, when Oswald was arrested. Two days later, several hours after Oswald was shot, that agent called Hosty to his office.

"I went to his office and he handed me the Oswald note and said 'I don't ever want to see this again,'" Hosty said. "I considered that an order to get rid of the note, which I did."

That agent denied recollection of the note during testimony before a House subcommittee.

Student Seeks Folk Medicine

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (UPI) — Old-timers used to take used motor oil and mix it with sulphur to cure "the scratches."

Those troubled by cold sores of the mouth simply chewed on yellow root.

There are other old cures that abounded in an era when clinics and doctors weren't available, and John Eilertsen wants to know about them.

The Point Pleasant resident is working on doctoral papers at Parkersburg Community College, and had issued a plea for help in his research of outdated cures.

Results of his research will be shared April 5-7 with people who attend Heritage Days '79, a campus festival.

"People learn by their mistakes and by their successes and home cures reflect the traditional stored knowledge and wisdom of our past generations," Eilertsen said.

"The study of folk medicine offers us an understanding of, and appreciation for, the life styles and struggles of past generations. It gives us a perspective of the ideas, knowledge and values that were deemed worthy enough to be passed from generation to generation."

BUS FARES DISPUTED
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Police used teargas and clubs Saturday to break up groups of students protesting an increase in bus fares. It was the sixth day of demonstrations since the increases, which raise the cost of a ride from two-and-one-half cents to four cents, were announced. Police said there were several injuries and 10 arrests.

- Among the cure-alls he has learned to date:
- Making a dog inhale smoke from burning shoe leather to cure distemper.
  - Using pine pitch to seal wounds and prevent infection.
  - Applying the inside of a strip of slippery elm bark to a boil to "draw it out."
  - Giving catnip tea to a teething baby.
  - Drinking a tea made from witch hazel to treat measles.
- Eilertsen says there were many other "remedies" he'd like to hear about from West Virginians. He also wants to know how people in the old days doctored their animals.

Hints from Heloise

HI THERE!

We ran across this article from June Cashio in our files the other day and thought it so cute and appropriate for this time of year that we decided to print it again.

It has been several years since it was printed; I'm sure we will have some readers who will remember it and (hopefully) a lot of new readers who have never seen it.

Here 'tis folks. Hope you enjoy it as we did:

"For the dumps, doldrums, blue Mondays, or whatever it is you might call those days when you start feeling down, several friends and I have found our own cure. We call it Recipes for Smiles:

"Whenever something nutty, silly, or just plain funny happens in one of our homes, we write it down on a 3 x 5 inch index card.

"Toward the end of each month (a round bill-receiving time) each member sends in her 'recipes' to me.

"I have copies made of each recipe and send all these out to each member to add to her own collection (usually reaching her around bill-paying time).

"When one of us starts having 'one of those days,' the first place we turn is to our very special recipe box. We read a few recipes and inevitably a brighter day begins to shine.

"It is nice to know we aren't the only crazies in the world, and to read an account of someone else's goofs or just funny stories, really does give us a lift."

How about that, did y'all like it? — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a dilly I've been doing for years and when I tell friends they all seem to agree.

When I make fudge, or any candy that is poured to set, I butter a pizza pan and spread the candy around.

When it's time to cut, I use the pizza cutter. That wheel just rolls so easy and is always sharp.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Because I am basically shallow, I am always drawn to lists of the ten best anything. Somehow, I feel my life will have no meaning unless I know who are the ten best lovers, the ten best dressed people, or who have the ten best noses.

I naturally poured over the story listing the Ten Most Sensuous Pairs of Legs which "best epitomize the beauty of human limbs."

It was interesting because sandwiched between Liza Minnelli, Angi Dickinson, Shirley MacLaine, Jane Fonda, Chris Evert, Bianca Jagger, Nancy Lopez, Cheryl Ladd and Bess Myerson was Rosalynn Carter.

To tell you the truth, I didn't know Rosalynn Carter had legs that went to the hip. There must be thousands of pictures of her legs filling the wastebaskets of every city room in the country, but they rarely see the printed page of a newspaper.

That is not the point. The point is why women? Why don't we honor the Most Sensuous Pairs of Legs in men? Here are my nominations.

For the Most Sensuous Legs on a Television Personality: Walter Cronkite. Walter's legs (if indeed there are two under the desk) for years have titillated women's imaginations. For sheer mystique and lingering fantasy, no one tops Walter.

For the Most Sensuous Legs in the Literary Field: Jim Fixx, whose legs dominated the cover of the No. 1 best seller of 1978, RUNNING. Legs have not had such an impact on the American way of life since the two hind ones of Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a lantern in Chicago in 1871.

The Most Sensuous Legs in the Military: Klinger on M*A*S*H, who proves week after week that when you're in a war zone it doesn't matter if you shave your legs or not, you can still be attractive.

The Most Sensuous Legs in Science Fiction: The bionic ones belonging to Lee Majors. When they come with varicose veins it will open up an entire market for women.

The Most Sensuous Legs in Sports: Joe Namath, who proved to the world that the claims made by pantyhose are true: one size fits all.

The Most Sensuous Legs in Politics: Harold Stassen and Ronald Reagan, whose legs have logged more miles on the campaign trail than any other legs in political history.

And finally the Most Sensuous Legs occupying a White House in Washington: Jimmy Carter, because he is married to Rosalynn Carter and sensuous legs marry sensuous legs and if you don't believe me just check the wastebaskets of the city rooms.

Expert Predicts Fashion Looks For Children

NEW YORK (UPI) — Come spring, some children are going to dress like miniature bellhops of the 1940s, in tiny pillbox hats with chin straps, skinny jackets with wide shoulders and slim pants.

That's the message from Lynne Kelly, writing in the current issue of Earnings Review, a trade magazine for the children's apparel industry. Kelly says bellhop outfits typify the retrospective look that Yves St. Laurent interpreted in his Paris showings of women's wear.

Would you dress your five-year-old in black? Some manufacturers are betting on it. Kelly says black is predominant, but the oriental influence also makes hot, spicy shades such as rust, brown and pumpkin important.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to the teenage girls who need information about preventing pregnancy and cannot go to parents or counselors is wise. A government pamphlet can be helpful, but in most areas more can be done. Cities of any size usually have a health department, a free clinic, Planned Parenthood, or a women's center where information and counseling on contraceptives and their use is available.

Some young women need counseling to give them the confidence to decline sex if it is not safe for them. They need to be able to say to their partner, "You must use a condom." A condom is a simple rubber sheath — reliable, safe, easily available and a good way for a young man to show he is willing to accept some responsibility for his actions.

A woman must carry the burden of pregnancy, with or without the aid of a man. Pregnancy should come only when she wants it. It is not unreasonable for a woman to insist that a man protect her if he wishes the pleasure of her company. — Austin Reader

Dear Austin: As recently as two years ago a letter such as yours could not have appeared in this column — not because it wasn't relevant but because so few papers would have printed it.

Too little has been said and written about the male's responsibility in intimate relationships. Thank you for presenting this dimension to my readers.

Dear Ann Landers: In a small town, a respected citizen got himself in an embarrassing spot. It made page one of our local paper. There's no way a person in this community could have missed it.

My husband and I opted to pretend it didn't happen. We continued the relationship in the normal way. Apparently most people decided to do the same.

Later, we heard that the man and his family were hurt and disappointed because friends didn't call or visit and say, "It's OK — you're still tops with us."

What do YOU think is the kindest thing to do in a case like this? — Any Town, U.S.A.

Dear Any Town: Silence is approval. Your continuing to be friendly, with no mention of the unpleasantness, spoke volumes. Too bad the man and his family didn't view it in that light.

Not all people are equipped to get into discussions which may cause embarrassment, so they remain silent. They should not be criticized nor should they be considered lesser friends. In my opinion you handled it with class.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of the "invitation" we received in the mail today? Just say — "Thumbs up" or "Thumbs down."

"Miss X (Z's daughter) is getting married on (date) at (place). Because the bride and groom have been 'on their own' (Ann, this means living together) for a year or more, they probably won't need much in the way of household items. Therefore we thought a money tree would be the best gift. If you would prefer to give a gift, please feel free to do so." — Plumwood

Dear Plum: Thumbs down. It's the pits.

Oswald: "After reading Peter Stenberg's new book 'Play Bridge in Four Hours' it seems a good idea to devote some articles to really simple hands."

Alan: "Here is a really easy one. It illustrates Peter's basic rule of play which is to lead toward your high cards, not away from them."

Oswald: "South knows from the bidding that at worst his slam contract will depend on a finesse so he bids it. Sure enough it turns out that North's king of clubs is worthless and the king of hearts must be finessed."

Alan: "Clubs are led and continued and South ruffs the second one. South wants to be able to lead twice toward his high hearts. Therefore, he must be careful to ruff that club with one of his honors. Now he cashes his king of trumps, leads his eight spot that he has saved to dummy's nine, leads a heart from dummy and finesses against the king. After that it is a simple matter to lead an honor, overtake with dummy's ace, finesse once more against that king of hearts and bring the slam home."

Oswald: "Elementary for an average player — mighty good for a beginner."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been bothered with a twitch in my right eye, as though the eye was blinking rapidly. But when I look in the mirror nothing seems to be happening. My doctor said it was a nerve problem and to take vitamin B. I am taking vitamin supplements with zinc once a day. I still feel like a rabbit. Also, my eyes get sore after reading or watching TV for a long time. I am 69 and arthritic, but otherwise healthy. I'd like your comments on this twitching business. — R.P.L.

Vitamin C is not a cholesterol-lowering substance. It is useful if there is a vitamin C deficiency. If your cholesterol needs lowering, the first step is to try to find out why it is high. Then you treat that. If a cause cannot be found then weight reduction, fat restriction, and possibly one of the truly cholesterol-lowering medicines might be tried.

At this time of year the question always is asked, "Does vitamin C help prevent or treat the common cold?" In spite of all the publicity and many studies there has been no clearcut evidence that it does either, except as the vitamin contributes to generally good health. I doubt you will find any fewer common colds in the citrus-rich areas of the country than in others.

See next two letters.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I'm giving my husband drops of chloroptic ophthalmic solution in his eyes four times a day. Now he has a terrible twitch in his left eye that is driving him crazy. Can I help in any way to relieve this twitch? He is a diabetic. — Mrs. F.P.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R.C. — The extra bleeding may be a cause of your continuing fatigue. Have this checked out, and at the same time have something done about the hemorrhoids, since that probably is where the bleeding originates.

Dear Doctor: Thanks for the article on epilepsy. Every little bit helps in understanding. — O.S.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can you tell me what causes the muscle of your eye to twitch uncontrollably? — D.M.

It seems every mail delivery brings letters from eye-twitching readers. A great many people develop twitching of one lid or the other sometime in their lives. It is called "myokymia" and usually means little. Even a very minor irritation of the muscle controlling eyelid movement will cause a lid to contract repeatedly. The flutter is often so rapid that it cannot be seen. It is annoying and embarrassing and seemingly impossible to control.

If such twitching persists, however, it might indicate a medical problem. A virus infection may inflame the nerve controlling the muscles. People with overactive thyroid glands may develop a twitch. Often the answer is simpler. Eyestrain, which may be a contributing factor for Mrs. R.P.L., can cause it or it may be a complication of Mrs. F.P.'s husband's diabetes. A localized irritation can cause the trouble and she might try a different eyedrop solution. Vitamin B may help if the nerve is inflamed neuritis.

For the most part, however, eyestrain and simple fatigue are the commonest causes of eyelid twitching, which as I mentioned is harmless and subsides when conditions are corrected.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Two years ago I had a gallstone attack. Tests showed I had large stones. The doctor suggested I try to control it by diet. On the whole, I was successful by eliminating fried food and generally going easy on fats. My problem is that I have had an inordinate amount of gas. Is this related to the stones? What foods create the gas? I eat a lot of vegetables. — S.H.

Don't be too quick to blame the gallstones for your gas. Stones may have nothing to do with that. An extensive study was done recently and the conclusion was that gas and belching are no more common for people with stones than for those without them. This was true even for those who ate gas-forming foods — foods high in cellulose and certain oils. Cellulose is a major constituent of vegetables, and among the chief offenders seem to be cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, onions, garlic, radishes, turnips, cucumbers, melons and beans. Usually, though, gaseousness is more related to how you eat (rapidly) than to what you eat.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can taking vitamin C correct a high cholesterol level? I have heard it can. Have studies proved this? — R.E.C.

The vitamin C merry-go-round never stops, and the music's usually the same.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ105 ♥83 ♦96 ♣QJ873
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♥ 2 ♦ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Although you have a respectable hand, there is nothing you can do with any degree of safety. A response of either two spades or three clubs would create a virtual game force, and you certainly do not have the values for that. You must simply pass and hope that partner can reopen the bidding.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AKQJ82 ♥95 ♦A1093 ♣6
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
 3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Despite very real slam prospects, you can do nothing more for the moment than complete the description of your hand by rebidding four spades. This will show your strong 8-4 distribution, for with a weaker holding, you would not have gone out of your way to introduce your four-card suit before rebidding your six bagger.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQJ752 ♥7 ♦A865 ♣92
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
 3 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—It is very tempting to bid three no trump now that you know that partner has hearts stopped, but you must resist the temptation. Partner obviously has a good hand, for he could have bid three no trump himself if he had no higher ambitions. You must convince him that your diamond support is real and not simply a preference, so jump to five diamonds.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠10962 ♥J873 ♦K6 ♣A83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♠ Dble. ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—In the good old days, you had no convenient bid-your-hand-was-too-strong-for-a-raise-to-two-spades-and-not-sufficiently-distributional-for-three-spades, so you had to pass and await developments. In the modern style, however, a response of two spades over the double shows about the same values as a raise had there been no intervention, and that is the bid we recommend.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠6 ♥KQ98643 ♦KQ73 ♣5
 Partner opens the bidding with two no trump. What do you bid now?
 A.—Obviously, slam depends only on how many aces partner holds. However, a bid of four no trump by you would not be Blackwood—it would be a quantitative raise in no trump. Thus, you must employ the Gerber Convention. Jump to four clubs. This requests partner to show aces in steps (four diamonds = 0 or 4 aces, four hearts = 1 ace etc.), exactly as over Blackwood.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠10 ♥J832 ♦K922 ♣AJ96
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
 3 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Partner's jump shift has struck gold, for you could hardly have a better hand in support of hearts considering your unenthusiastic one no trump response. To show your vastly improved values, we recommend that you cue-bid the ace of clubs before supporting hearts.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KJ5 ♥KQ82 ♦AQ94 ♣72
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Pass. Although you have a better than minimum opening bid, partner can have no more than 10 points, so any game venture would be a highly speculative proposition. In addition, there is little point in introducing your diamond suit with such a balanced hand.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠J9762 ♥83 ♦KQ865 ♣7
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♥ Dble. Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—By first doubling and then bidding one no trump, your partner has shown a hand that was too strong for an overall of one no trump. He must have 19-20 points, which combined with your distributional assets means that you almost certainly have a game. To announce your game intentions, while strongly emphasizing your distribution, jump to three diamonds—partner won't expect more from you in view of your initial response of one spade.

HONEYMOON NIGHTMARE
 ROME (WNS) — Barbara Clinton-Jones expected the honeymoon of her dreams when she flew here with her bridegroom Geoffrey. "It turned into immediate nightmare," she recalls. First, the British car they had hired could not be located. "It took all day and a lot of money to find it," said the bride. Then came the flat tire. "While we were changing tires, a fellow on a motorcycle stole my handbag full of money, jewelry and passports," she said. Four hours later the honeymooners left the police station, ordered supper on the balcony of a romantic restaurant, and the balcony collapsed. "Later somebody at the airport stole $1,200 worth of gifts we had bought," said Geoffrey.

FOYER FEATURE — The traditional block front chest creates an aura of elegance without overpowering the narrow foyer. The oval mirror adds balance and appears to extend the space by reflecting the adjoining living room.

Root Beer Began As Drug

SAN FRANCISCO (Special) — Although it's not noticeable in the famous painting by Emanuel Leubze of the event, it's possible that George Washington drank a root beer while crossing the Delaware.

It is recorded that Washington regularly prescribed a ration of birch beer, root beer's forerunner, to the colonial troops under his command.

As America's oldest soft drink, root beer's roots — like most soft drinks — come from behind the apothecary counter, according to Cecil Lowry, vice president, science/technology, for a soft drink company.

"Root beer, which was also known as birch beer or sarsaparilla, was concocted from herbs and roots used in the preparation of medication," Lowry notes. "Root beer was considered a tonic and elixir and thought to have medicinal value," he continued.

Root beer moved from the drug counter to the soda fountain, thanks to the efforts of a pharmacist, Charles Hires.

A Pennsylvania druggist, Hires developed root beer from countless experiments with roots, barks, plants and herbs.

In 1876, Hires exhibited his package of dried roots and herbs used in the making of the new well-known Hires root beer at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia.

Hires was also a trailblazer in the area of soft drink advertising, offering his packaged mix through newspaper and magazine ads. In 1893, he began the first bottling of root beer for retail distribution.

Today's root beer, with over 30 ingredients, is more complex than its predecessors, according to Gerald Voigt, director of flavor development and research of a soft drink company.

"In Hires' time, most root beers were based on sassafras, an extract from a gum-type tree," Voigt noted.

"While modern root beers still contain sassafras, their primary ingredient is methyl salicylate, or oil of wintergreen, which comes from the leaves and bark of the black birch tree."

"Root beer is one of the most natural soft drink products we have," Voigt continued. "Other important ingredients include anise extract, clove oil, ginger, cinnamon, vanilla extract, cherry and birch bark extract, juniper berry extract, hops, licorice powder and caramel coloring."

Voigt noted that because root beer contains so many natural ingredients, close attention must be paid to the quality of ingredients received from oil and flavor houses.

"The quality in natural products can vary significantly," he said. "This is due to environmental and climate conditions of the area where the product is grown. Consequently, we must be sure that the ingredients maintain a constant quality."

While root beer carries many of the characteristics of its predecessors used to fortify Revolutionary troops, the modern root beer has evolved significantly over the years.

A major change came in the late 1960's, when draft style root beer was introduced.

"We began using a foaming agent in our root beer to give it a head when it was poured," Lowry noted. "This foaming agent is extract of yucca, which comes from the Joshua tree grown in the Mojave Desert."

"This feature became so popular that all major root beer manufacturers now use it in their root beers," he continued.

Voigt added that today's consumers are indicating a preference for a smoother root beer. "As a result," he said, "root beer manufacturers are increasing the vanilla content and changing the mix of ingredients to give their root beer a smoother taste."

Since it was standard fare for the colonial troops, it is perhaps fitting that root beer has remained a soft drink consumed almost solely within America's boundaries.

"Root beer is strictly an American drink," Lowry notes. "Soft drink manufacturers have attempted to market it overseas, but have met with little success."

"There doesn't seem to be any logical explanation. I guess root beer is just meant for American palates."

No Clues In Mystery Surrounding Super Agent

He was the Lon Chaney of intrigue, an agent who changed disguises — indeed, his whole character — to crack a case. Sante Alessandro Bario, skilled drug agent, old world charmer, gourmet cook, gardener. A trusted colleague to fellow agents. A delight to friends and family. A man of many faces.

But now, as Bario lies in a coma with massive brain damage at Santa Rosa Hospital in San Antonio, Texas, a final face is etched. It seems to pose a question. Is this man a victim? Or a corrupt official?

For after all the awards and danger, the 42-year-old former agent of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration was indicted last October, while assigned to Mexico, on a charge of accepting a $9,000 bribe from an informant in a cocaine case.

Then, on Dec. 16, after eating a peanut butter sandwich while in a San Antonio jail, Bario began to choke and went into extreme convulsions with his back arched and head thrown back.

A hospital urine test found spots technicians said were strychnine. Later tests by a medical examiner did not find the poison.

The circumstances raised questions: Was Bario poisoned? Could it have something to do with his cocaine investigations? His indictment? Past cases involving organized crime? There are no ready answers.

Judging from the awards he received, he had a remarkable career," said Gerald Goldstein, Bario's attorney. "By the time I saw him, he was unwrought. He was scared.

"He was obviously afraid of being in jail because of the number of people he had put in jail. Frankly, I think he was afraid of his own agency. He also had expressed some concern about Mexican authorities because he felt he had put his neck out on a limb investigating corruption among high Mexican authorities."

After collapsing in jail, Bario stopped breathing so long that he suffered massive brain damage, says Dr. Donald H. Perez, his physician.

The cause of this respiratory arrest "remains to be investigated," Perez said. "The police who brought him in said he had been poisoned. Some lab reports show spots in the urine that could be strychnine."

But medical examiner Ruben Santos says what the technicians saw were traces of a drug his psychiatrist prescribed that reacted with medication given to revive Bario. "We are 100 percent sure that the man was only showing a reaction of Elavil with prescribed emergency medication and was not poisoned," Santos said.

Perez said a Houston lab will now re-test Bario's specimens.

It is unlikely Bario will ever face a trial or tell what he knows. His prognosis is poor, or as Dr. Perez puts it: "He's vegetating."

"Surely, someone with his background would have enemies in several places," says Joanne Bario, the agent's wife.

"I know there are a lot of people who would like to see him out of the way so he couldn't testify," adds Patricia Bario, his ex-wife, an associate White House press secretary. "Considering the work he was in, I don't think it was unnatural."

Bario had a flair for playing a role, and easily infiltrated organized crime and drug rackets. A native of Italy, he masqueraded as a cabaret owner to help recover 100 kilograms of heroin in a 1972 French case, and at one point had to leap from a ship in Marseilles. He had worked undercover for the IRS and the Knapp Commission, which investigated official corruption in New York City, and had been a decorated officer in the Carabinieri, Italy's national police.

He joined the DEA 14 years ago and received several commendations, including a presidential achievement award from Richard Nixon. He was promoted in 1977 to the Mexico City office.

"He was to do administrative work only. But Claude Picault entered the picture. He only spoke French so my husband was given his case," said the current Mrs. Bario. "The DEA knew this informant had to be handled carefully. He was a ... con man who dealt both sides."

"My husband was doing three or four jobs at once. It would be understandable if he made a misjudgment," Mrs. Bario said.

"He had lost a lot of weight and had aged tremendously ... He was extremely upset and pretty much destroyed when he was arrested.

"He made a statement to one of the DEA agents that he didn't understand how, knowing his background, they could turn on him when they knew the informant was corrupt."

The indictment says Bario allowed Picault to keep and sell one-third of 15 kilograms of cocaine which Bario was to seize in Mexico City and that later in Chicago, Bario was given $4,000 from the sale. It says Picault — wired for sound by the DEA — agreed to meet in San Antonio to pay Bario more. They met and Bario was arrested.

The allegations against Bario are not false. Our internal security office would not make recommendations if not carefully studied," said Peter Bensinger, administrator of the DEA. "It doesn't mean that we don't care or aren't interested in his well being. We are. But your duty has to come first in upholding the law."

Attorney Goldstein does not think his client was framed, but he notes it was not uncommon to allow informants to transfer drugs between countries — as Bario allegedly allowed Picault to do.

Says the first Mrs. Bario: "He had had many opportunities to take money and certainly more than that. He would have been eligible to retire in eight years and there's no way in the world he would have jeopardized that."

Bario, a lover of Verdi operas, also had a taste for expensive clothes. But, says his first wife, most of his salary was sent to Italy to his parents and seven brothers and sisters.

He spent a great deal of time with his children. Pat Bario said: "He'd tease the babies and come into the room doing a little jig. When Sante walked into a room, everyone's eyes lit up."

His 2½-year-old son from his second marriage asks about his father, says Joanne Bario. "I told him his father's body was broken and the doctor couldn't fix it and he couldn't come home."

She hopes to tell her son his father was "completely honorable," and she has hired her own attorney to make an investigation.

"I have to see this thing through," she said. "I have a moral obligation to find out what happened to him."

Striking Police, City To Resume Talks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A weary federal mediator got negotiations back on the track Sunday in a police strike that has threatened to ruin the city's Carnival and Mardi Gras festivals.

"Both the police union and the city have agreed to resume negotiations at 3 o'clock Monday," said mediator Ansel Garrett, who spent Sunday shuttling between city and police union representatives.

The break came after the president of the police union dared Mayor Ernest Morial to fire strikers, saying such action would immediately send garbage collectors and firemen into a sympathy walk-out.

The strike has already forced the mayor to cancel several Mardi Gras carnival parades, and the city was glum and chilly Sunday — usually a day for celebration during the festival.

"The next move is up to the mayor," said union president Vincent Bruno. "He makes that mistake, we go to war."

Bruno, standing atop a parked police car and using a bullhorn, spoke to 600 people who attended a police rally behind police headquarters.

His remarks came only hours after Mayor Ernest Morial stepped out of historic St. Louis Cathedral in the French Quarter and announced a 24-hour amnesty period for strikers who return to work.

The mayor did not say what might happen to those who fail to return. In earlier statements, he said mass firings were being considered.

"The first policeman he fires, sanitation goes out, then firemen," Bruno told the crowd. "I dare him to fire the first police officer."

Both the Police Association of Louisiana and the sanitation workers are affiliated with the Teamsters union. The sanitation workers had voted to join an earlier, wildcat police strike before it was settled.

Clarence Perez, president of the local International Firefighters Association, also addressed the police rally. He previously urged off-duty members to join police pickets but not to strike.

No representative of the garbage collectors spoke. Their union reached a contract with the city last week, but it has not been signed.

The police union is demanding that ranking officers be covered by the union contract and that any issues unresolved after April 1 be submitted to binding arbitration. The mayor has refused both demands.

The pep rally was planned before the mayor made his offer, which expires at noon today.

Neither Morial nor Bruno mentioned a Civil District Court judge's back-to-work order, which the policemen have ignored.

The union claims 1,200 of the 1,514 commissioned officers as members. A substitute force of some 600 National Guardsmen and 200 state police took over when the strike started Friday night.

Carnival is the party period before Mardi Gras, a hard-drinking celebration which has become a $50 million-a-year industry in this tourist-conscious city. It comes up Feb. 27.

"Mardi Gras is our four aces," a police picket said.

City Councilman Brod Bagert sounded the same note. "The union has taken Mardi Gras hostage," he said.

Speaking at the Cathedral Mass, Roman Catholic Archbishop Philip Hannan said the strike should not be settled by "manipulation of TV, radio and the press."

"Nor should it be settled on the basis of preserving Mardi Gras," he said.

Bruno, president of the police union, had called for a resumption of negotiations Saturday. He said he would talk with anyone who was authorized to negotiate for the city.

The comment reflected one of the key issues in the strike. The mayor cannot discuss pay raises, which come under jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission.

Police Union Expected To Join AFL-CIO

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO is expected to formally recognize the country's first national police union this week in a decision that could pit the labor federation against the powerful Teamsters union.

A special committee of the AFL-CIO executive council has recommended that the full council charter the 50,000-member International Union of Police Associations to bring it into the labor federation's fold, William H. McClelland, a committee member, announced Sunday.

AFL-CIO sources said the 34-member council's acceptance is virtually automatic and that federation president George Meany would announce the recognition on Tuesday.

Meany and other council members are here for their annual winter meeting which begins Monday.

"If there was ever a need of organizing, it's the police of this nation," said McClelland, president of the International Association of Firefighters and head of the AFL-CIO's Public Employee Department.

There are an estimated 460,000 uniformed officers in the United States and more than half are not organized, McClelland said he believes the IUPA can double its membership in a year.

He acknowledged, however, that the 13.5 million-member AFL-CIO may find itself in a recruiting struggle with the 2 million-member Teamsters.

The Teamsters union, expelled from the AFL-CIO in 1957, has recruited police in recent years and represents about 25,000 police nationwide, according to AFL-CIO estimates.

Robert Gordon, secretary-treasurer of the IUPA, said that once the group is chartered, it will try to arrange a meeting with Teamster president Frank E. Fitzsimmons. "to see if we can come up with a mutual agreement that would prevent a bitter organizing war between the two groups." Dividing up the country geographically might be one approach, Gordon said.

One key objective of the union is to give the nation's police a single voice on federal legislation and to organize more effective drives to repeal laws that prohibit collective bargaining by police in 13 states.

More than a dozen unions and associations now represent police. Under the charter, the IUPA could not organize those belonging to other AFL-CIO unions.

In establishing a national organization, the IUPA lost more than two-thirds of its members. Locals representing 130,000 police in New York, Detroit and St. Louis bolted in December because they opposed affiliation with the AFL-CIO, Gordon said.

Luke 10:25-33, The Living Bible

25 One day an expert on Moses' laws came to test Jesus' orthodoxy by asking Him this question: "Teacher, what does a man need to do to live forever in heaven?"

26 Jesus replied, "What does Moses' law say about it?"

27 "It says," he replied, "that you must love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind. And you must love your neighbor just as much as you love yourself."

28 "Right!" Jesus told him. "Do this and you shall live!"

29 The man wanted to justify (his lack of love for some kinds of people), so he asked, "Which neighbors?"

30 Jesus replied with an illustration: "A Jew going on a trip from Jerusalem to Jericho was attacked by bandits. They stripped him of his clothes and money and beat him up and left him lying half dead beside the road.

31 By chance a Jewish priest came along; and though he saw the man lying there, he crossed to the other side of the road and went by.

32 A Jewish Temple-assistant did the same thing; he, too, left him lying there.

33 But a despised Samaritan came along; and when he saw him, he felt deep pity for him.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS
By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR FEB. 19, 1979

PHYSICAL
Critical: 6, 18, 29, 41, 52, 64, 75 — Look for security
High: 1-5, 19-28, 42-51, 65-74 — Vigor and vigor day
Low: 7-17, 30-40, 53-63 — May feel spent

EMOTIONAL
Critical: 9, 23, 37, 51, 65, 79 — Easily blue - depressing
High: 10-22, 38-50, 66-78 — Emotional peak time
Low: 1-8, 24-36, 52-64, 80-85 — You're crestfallen

INTELLECTUAL
Critical: 9, 26, 42, 59, 75, 92 — Mentality unstable
High: 1-8, 27-41, 60-74, 93-95 — An alert day for you
Low: 10-25, 43-58, 76-91 — Indecision abounds

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

9	A11	26	0	A6	10	22	A2	23	12	A20	7	1

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

	Jan.			Feb.			March			April			May			June

B	0	0	0	8	3	31	14	4	27	22	7	25	6	9	22	14	12	20

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Old Tech President's House Due For Sale
A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Easily convinced that the president of Texas Tech University doesn't need two houses, the Senate Intergovernmental Affairs Committee gave speedy approval Thursday to a bill by Tahoka Sen. E.L. Short.

Short's bill, SB 213, allows Texas Tech to sell the old president's house, now replaced by a newer official residence, to the City of Lubbock.

'Robo Duck' Walks On Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — New, from your government: a machine that walks on water.
The Navy calls it a servipepe. Its inventor calls it a mechaduck and confides that the boys in the lab have a more irreverent name: the Jesus Machine.
The most recent edition of Government Inventions for Licensing offers it soberly as a "Rigid Jointed Limbed Vehicle for Walking on Water with Flanged Feet." Four bucks for a copy of the plans; much more for the right to build it.
The four-legged machine no longer exists except as parts in the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory of the University of California, where it was developed for $265,000.
If the government decides to develop the machine further, its inventor, Andrew H. Weisberg, is ready to proceed on a second generation vehicle, Robo Duck, which would have six legs — the better to walk on water, my dear.
For the prototype, he says, "we used two different sorts of feet attached to the end of mechanical legs. Our first attempt at water walking feet was crude at best."
The feet look like watermelons with fins.
The vehicle is capable of "moving on land and water — on everything from very hard to very squishy," says Weisberg.
"The thing is at least as complicated as a helicopter," he says. "The Navy is most interested in it for reconnaissance and sensor bearing. The entire idea is to remove humans from the scene of remote or dangerous applications."
In its tests, the computer-driven machine walked and trotted on water and on land.
"It was totally maneuverable and could turn on a dime," Weisberg said. "But because we had only one vehicle, we were unwilling to try anything very risky. We expect that running, or eventually bounding, are possibilities."
He said the invention saunters, almost casually, not exactly smoothly, but with a touch of grace. "It's a rather entertaining sight," Weisberg said. "It looks like a young pony or a drunken giraffe."
The prototype is packed away now, like an erector set. While it lived, it walked on four limbs, each a meter high, and stood about 4 1/2 feet tall and weighed 84

Pulse Power Seminar Slated At Tech

The Second International Pulsed Power Conference June 12-14 in Lubbock is expected to draw more than 400 participants. The first, also at Lubbock, attracted 300 participants two years ago.
The South Plains Section of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) is a joint sponsor with various offices and laboratories of the Department of Defense and the Department of Energy.
Arranging the conference is the Department of Electrical Engineering at Texas Tech University, one of the nation's leading universities in the field of pulsed power technology and engineering.
Dr. Magne Kristiansen, Horn Professor of Electrical Engineering at Texas Tech, is conference chairman.
Heading the Technical Program Committee is a Texas Tech adjunct professor, Arthur H. Guenther, chief scientist of the Air Force Weapons Laboratory, Kirtland Air Force Base, New Mexico.
With Guenther on the committee are: Jon Farber, Defense Nuclear Agency; William Gagnon, Lawrence Livermore Laboratories; Richard Gullickson, Air Force Office of Scientific Research; Thomas Martin, Sandia Laboratory; Sol Schneider, U.S. Army Research and Development Command; Peter J. Turchi, Naval Research Laboratory; T. R. Burkes, Texas Tech University department of electrical engineering; Richard A. Fitch, Maxwell Laboratories; A. S. Gilmour, State University of New York, Buffalo; Ed Kemp, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory; M. F. Rose, Naval Surface Weapons Center, Dahlgren Laboratory; Ian Smith, Inc.; and R. L. Verga, Air Force Aero Propulsion Laboratory.

In addition to IEEE, sponsors are the Air Force Aero Propulsion Laboratory, Air Force Office of Scientific Research, Electronics Technology and Devices Laboratory of the U.S. Army, the Naval Surface Weapons Center, Office of Naval Research, and the Department of Energy offices of Laser Fusion and Fusion Energy.
Attending the sessions will be four visiting faculty members of the Texas Tech department of electrical engineering, coming from Poland, Australia and West Germany. They were invited to teach and perform research at Texas Tech, according to department chairman Russell H. Seacat Jr., primarily because their expertise is not available at any U.S. university other than Texas Tech.

Positions were widely advertised, he said, but the expertise was available only at Texas Tech or abroad.
Visiting faculty include Dr. Karlheinz Schonbach, Technical University in Darmstadt, West Germany; Dr. Boyd D. Blackwell, University of Sydney, Australia; Dr. Bogdan Miedzinski, Technical University of Wroclaw, Poland; and Dr. W.W. Byszewski, Polish Academy of Science, Warsaw.
All have expertise in the field of pulsed power and special knowledge in the field of switching for pulsed power, in the range of kilovolts and kiloamperes which must be switched on and off in nanoseconds — one billionth of a second.

The problems of such switching have been summarized in a widely circulated research report prepared at Texas Tech by electrical engineering faculty: T.R. Burkes has principal investigator with co-authors Marion O. Hagler, Kristiansen, John R. Craig, William M. Portnoy and Erich E. Kunhardt.
"New developments in high-technology areas, such as lasers and fusion," the introduction to this report explains, "often require electrical switching capabilities beyond what are currently available. New requirements may result in new switch studies and development programs devoted to the specific needs of a particular application and, consequently, to a narrow range of switching parameters."
The Texas Tech study includes "the evaluation of the more popular switches and describes some of the most promising concepts." The major types of switches described are spark gaps, vacuum tubes, gaseous tubes and solid state and mechanical devices.
The conference sessions will be held at the South Park Inn. The pre-registration fee, which may be sent to the Texas Tech department of electrical engineering, is $50.

Divers Halt Search For Teens

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Treacherous tidal currents and river traffic Sunday forced divers to halt efforts to locate a car that plunged off an open drawbridge into the Piscataqua River during a police chase, authorities said.
Two teen-agers are believed to have been in the car Saturday when it flew through the bridge opening and landed in 90 feet of water in the river that separates New Hampshire from Maine.
The bridge had been opened for a tugboat when the car, reported stolen in Hampton and being pursued by police, plunged into the river.
Investigators said the driver may have been unfamiliar with the area or thought traffic had been halted by a police roadblock. Police said warning lights and wooden barricades at the bridge were ignored.
"It would have been impossible for any vehicle to jump the 200-foot gap created when the drawbridge is raised," said a state trooper.
"Even Evel Knievel at his best couldn't get across there," said John Meserve, a Motor Vehicles Division investigator.
The identities of the people in the car were unknown.
A private diving team was called in Sunday after the Navy turned down the assignment.

Petty Captures Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard Petty, relegated to a distant third place until Donnie Allison and Cale Yarborough crashed each other out of the race on the final lap, roared around to take an unprecedented sixth victory in the prestigious Daytona 500.

The 41-year-old Petty beat Darrell Waltrip by less than a car length. Petty, who was in a dogfight with Waltrip and A.J. Foyt the final 100 miles, broke a 45-race winless skein, the longest of his career, with the improbable victory.

Allison had a narrow lead over Yarborough heading down the backstretch on the last of 200 laps when Yarborough tried to make a move on the inside for the lead.

Allison moved over to block him, and Yarborough veered into the infield grass. Yarborough got his car back on the track and bumped Allison, sending both spinning into the retaining wall.

Their cars smoked to a stop in the infield, and both drivers clambered out and started a fist fight. Allison's brother, Bobby, stopped his car to try and break up the nationally televised fracas.

A television replay of the wreck showed Yarborough coming back on the track after being blocked off by Allison and ramming his car into the side of Allison's racer.

Allison still clung to control until Yarborough moved his car back alongside and turned right, taking both machines into the wall at over 190 mph.

Petty, Waltrip and Foyt were oblivious to the mishap until they roared past the two crumpled cars. Waltrip then turned on a charge that just fell short. Foyt came in third, another two car lengths behind.

Petty collected a record $73,500 from the $600,000 purse. He averaged 143.977 mph, well below the record.

Allison, who never has won a Grand National stock car race here, was credited with fourth, while Yarborough, a two-time Daytona 500 champion, got fifth.

Early in the race, Donnie and Bobby Allison and Yarborough were running 1-2-3 when they all spun off the track in a chain reaction accident.

Donnie Allison lost one lap to the new leaders, his brother two, and Yarborough three. Donnie and Yarborough had clawed their way back into the lead lap during the four-race race by using repeated caution periods to their advantage.

The race started ominously under low hanging gray clouds, after a morning of heavy rain that turned the grassy areas around the edges of the track into a swamp. The first 40 miles were run under the control of the pace car at speeds under 100 mph to dry the damp track.

Once the green flag finally fell, it was immediately obvious that pacesetter Buddy Baker, who won two races and the pole position in the week preceding, had a problem. He dropped steadily out of the top 20, and finally retired from competition — having the race for the 11th time in the last 12 years without winning.

Meanwhile, a dandy battle for the lead was developing between defending champion Bobby Allison, his younger brother Donnie and Yarborough.

In almost a carbon copy of the Petty-David Pearson-Waltrip crash early in last year's race, the Allison brothers got together on the 31st lap and spun out, taking Yarborough off the course with them.

All three got a soaking mud bath as they bounced through the infield soup. Damage to their cars was slight, but they each lost at least one lap to the leaders while repairs were made.

Waltrip, one of the pre-race favorites, then grabbed the lead, but he only had it two laps before his car started making unpleasant noises. He fell behind and was a frequent visitor to pit road. He was out of the hunt until late in the race.

Young drivers Neil Bonnett and Dale Earnhardt then waged battle with the wily Foyt for the front spot. But there was nothing decisive about their lead — behind them an incredible 30-car draft developed, all of them packed into a couple hundred yards of track running over 190 mph.

Another multi-car crash took out former winner Pearson and four other cars on the 55th lap when rookie Gary Balough spun out in front of a pack of cars. There were no injuries.

Bonnett's race came to a screeching halt just before the 200-mile mark when he got a little sideways and was dropped in the rear end by Terry Labonte.

Tanner Defends Title

RANCHO MIRAGE (AP) — Lethander Roscoe Tanner successfully defended his title in the $250,000 Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club Sunday, beating Brian Gottfried 6-4, 6-2 without the punctuation of his usual big serve, which has been clocked at 140 mph.

The 27-year-old Tanner, who said living in the Palm Springs desert for a couple of months each year helps his game, scored only two service aces, while Gottfried had four in the finals for the $35,000 first prize.

"I missed a lot of first serves," Tanner said. "But Brian didn't return my second serves very well today except in a couple of games, and that was the key."

On Saturday, Tanner scored eight service aces against Eliot Teltscher, bringing his total for the previous two matches to 19.

Tanner, whose primary residence is at Kiawah Island, S.C., has a home in Palm Springs and works out frequently at the country club here.

"Having a house out here might have helped my game," Tanner said. "I hope they don't ever quit having tournaments in the desert."

"Considering the field, I consider this my best tournament win of all," added Tanner. The original field had such stars as Jimmy Connors, Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe, all of whom were eliminated before the semifinals.

Tanner, a star at Stanford before turning pro, beat Connors in the quarter-finals.

In the finals against the 27-year-old Gottfried from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Tanner broke service in the third game of the first set and went on to win 6-4.

A fluke on the first point of the second set appeared to upset Gottfried, who was fifth seeded for this tournament, compared to the No. 8 spot accorded Tanner.

After a Gottfried serve, Tanner slammed a ball that hit the top of the net, bounced high and landed inbounds so far behind Gottfried that he couldn't return it successfully.

Tanner went on to break Gottfried's service in that game and again in the third to build a 3-0 lead.

Consistent Monterey Earns Playoff Berth

By BOBJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Monterey Plainsmen have qualified for the AAAA basketball playoffs about as many times as the Israelis and the Egyptians have renewed their peace negotiations.

For the second consecutive year and eight out of the past 12 seasons, the Plainsmen are back in the playoff picture.

And since, Monterey captured the title a week and a half ago, coach Joe Michalka has had a little time to look back on the season.

"I would have to say the low point was when we lost to Canyon," recalled Michalka. "Our kids realized right there that we couldn't take anything for granted."

When the Plainsmen enter Tuesday night's bi-district game against Amarillo Tascosa, Monterey will bring a 16-game winning streak into the contest.

"Our last loss was to Midland High 54-49," said the Plainsman coach. "Besides winning the district title, the high point of the season has been the consistency our kids have played. Also, we've been able to get our fast break working towards the latter part of the season."

Why is Monterey constantly successful in reaching the playoffs?

"Well, I think it's because we're mostly a senior club every year," said Michalka. "Like this season, we've been starting four seniors and one junior."

The Plainsmen starters include Craig Ehlo (6-4, Sr) and Frank Malone (5-9, Sr.) at the guard spots, Kevin Kirkman (6-4, Sr.) and Trav Clardy (6-4, Jr.) are at the forwards, with Chuck Perry (6-6, Sr.) at the post.

Asked if this year's team compares to Monterey squads in the past, Michalka said, "every year, the teams are different."

Horns Could Be Hogs

By The Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns, who shared the Southwest Conference regular season basketball title with the University of Arkansas last year, can make hogs of themselves by taking the whole cake Tuesday night in Dallas.

Texas can clinch full possession of the No. 1 spot with a victory over sinking Southern Methodist in Moody Coliseum.

"I'm tired of sharing it (the SWC championship) with the Hogs," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons after the Longhorns nipped Texas Tech 63-56 in overtime Saturday.

In other games, Baylor clinched at least a fifth position in the standings by beating Rice 70-69 and Arkansas sewed up second place with a 78-58 victory over the University of Houston.

Texas is 13-2 and Arkansas is 12-3. No matter what happens Tuesday night these teams have clinched a bye Tuesday to the SWC postseason tournament in Houston March 1-3.

Arkansas still has a tough game left on its schedule in Lubbock Tuesday night against the Red Raiders, who gave Texas a stout battle Saturday in the regionally televised game.

Texas AM, which hosts Rice Tuesday night, needs a victory for clear possession of third place and bye to the postseason tournament quarterfinals.

AM is 10-5 and Texas Tech is 9-6. Should the teams tie for third place, a coin flip would be needed to determine who got the bye.

As it stands now, the first round of the tournament Feb. 24 looks like this:

Texas Tech would host Texas Christian (1-13), Baylor (8-7) would host Rice (4-11) and Houston (6-10) would host SMU (4-10). Of course there is still some games on the schedule including a makeup game Wednesday night between SMU

Tech Coach Gerald Myers said Tech was in a must win position. "But we have to win Tuesday night to get that fourth spot because I would much rather not have to flip with Baylor for it," he said.

Texas destroyed SMU in an earlier meeting Austin but the Mustangs play tough on their home court.

Lemons, who had a personal confrontation earlier in the year with Hog Coach Eddie Sutton when Sutton lectured one of the Longhorn players, said "There's no way we can do worse than a tie but we want to win it outright. You know how a Hog is — if your not another Hog, he is going to get more than you are."

LSU In Spotlight Again

College Basketball Roundup

By The Associated Press

Bob Pettit was the center of attention when the Louisiana State basketball team last won a Southeastern Conference basketball championship. That shows you how long it's been.

Twenty-five seasons after the glory years of LSU's great center, it's High Time again at Baton Rouge.

The terrific Tigers clinched a tie for the SEC title Saturday night with a 67-62 victory over Mississippi and immediately set their sights on an outright championship. And nothing could be sweeter than taking it out on Alabama, according to LSU Coach Dale Brown.

"We sure owe them something," said Brown, referring to an embarrassing 90-76 loss to the Crimson Tide earlier in the season.

With two games to go, the sixth-ranked Tigers hold a two-game lead in the SEC race over 19th-ranked Vanderbilt, 63-60 losers to Georgia Saturday night. After the Alabama game this Thursday, LSU closes out the regular season against Mississippi State.

DeWayne Scates, one of the team leaders this season, scored 24 points and substitute Jody Hultberg added 15 to lead the LSU offense. Willie Sims also added some spark for the Tigers, coming off the bench to hand out eight assists.

"Jordy and Willie helped change the tempo for us," said Brown. "They were the spark, and of course DeWayne was his usual — terrific."

Texas was another team that clinched a share of a league championship Saturday night when the 12th-ranked Longhorns defeated Texas Tech 63-56 in overtime in the Southwest Conference.

Ninth-ranked Louisville, which already has nailed down the Metro Conference championship, lost its first league game of the season, dropping a 60-53 decision to Memphis State.

Elsewhere, second-ranked UCLA blasted Arizona 110-86; No. 3 Notre Dame crushed West Virginia 70-54; No. 4 North Carolina stopped Virginia 66-57; No. 7 Syracuse turned back St. John's 79-72; No. 8 Michigan State defeated Michigan 80-57; and No. 10 Marquette trimmed Loyola of Chicago 75-63.

Also, No. 11 Arkansas beat Houston 78-58; No. 13 Purdue routed Minnesota 80-56; No. 14 Iowa tripped Illinois 67-53; No. 16 Georgetown beat Boston College 84-81; No. 17 Ohio State walloped North-western 88-73; No. 18 Detroit downed Colgate 86-66; and No. 20 Alabama whipped Auburn 80-73.

After a sluggish start, LSU came alive midway through the second half to take a commanding 55-44 lead, then the Tigers went into a delay game to mold off the Rebels. The victory was the Tigers' 13th straight at home and improved their conference record to 13-3 and their overall mark to 21-3.

"We just didn't pick them up quick enough (in the second half)," said Mississippi Coach Bob Wetlich, "and when you have a hot hand like Jody Hultberg did, it can hurt you."

Walter Daniels scored 26 points and Eric Marbury added 17 as Georgia upset Vanderbilt. The Bulldogs fought back from a nine-point deficit in the first half and finally went ahead for good on Marbury's three-point play with 5:04 left that broke a 52-52 tie.

"Walter Daniels had probably his best total game this season," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham. "What people don't realize is the job he did on their outstanding guard, Mike Rhodes. Walter played great defense. (He held Rhodes to seven points.)"

Rodney Lee collected 15 points and seven rebounds to pace Memphis State over Louisville. The victory came less than two weeks after the Tigers lost to Louisville on the Cardinals' floor — a loss that was followed by Memphis State Coach Wayne Yates' resignation effective the end of the season.

"The players played very hard," said Yates. "They wanted to win very badly. A Memphis State-Louisville game is a special thing. It always has been and always will be."

David Greenwood scored a season-high 31 points to lead UCLA over Arizona. The victory avenged the Bruins' earlier loss to the Wildcats on their home court.

"This was one of our best games of the

Playoff Picture Taking Shape

By TONY BATT
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The playoff picture for the area's district champions is beginning to take shape.

In District 3AA, Dimmitt, with a season record of 23-5 and a district mark of 10-0, will play 4AA champions Tulia (23-3 and 8-0) at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Plainview's Hutcherson Center.

Dimmitt's girls' team (27-3 and 10-0) will play the 4AA champion in bidistrict. Lockney (17-9 and 7-1) will play Abernathy (19-9 and 7-1) for the 4AA crown at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Olton.

Seminole, the 5AA champion with a district mark of 13-0, will play Ballinger at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Scurry County County Coliseum in Snyder.

Stanton (26-2 and 14-0), the girls' 5AA winner, will play Merkel Tuesday in Snyder.

Vega (22-6 and 9-1), the 3A champion, will play Hale Center (14-0), the 4A winner at a time and site yet to be determined.

Vega and Hale Center also won their respective districts in girls' competition. They will play at a time and site yet to be determined.

Stanton (26-2 and 14-0) will play Iraan at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Monahans. Stanton won the 5A crown.

Whiteface (25-3 and 13-1), the 5A girls' winner, will play Iraan at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 27 at Andrews.

Nazareth, winners of 5B with a 5-1 mark, will play Cotton Center (13-4) at a time and site yet to be determined. More than likely, these teams will play Tuesday.

Nazareth's girls, also winners of 5B with a 6-0 record, will play the 6B winner, Lazbuddie (14-12 and 7-1) will play Sudan (7-1) in Muleshoe Monday for the 6B crown.

Sands (29-4 and 10-0) will play Westbrook at 8 p.m. at Howard College Coliseum in Big Spring. Sands is the 5B champ.

Sands' girls (30-5 and 8-2) will have a playoff with Dawson (15-14 and 8-2) at 7 p.m. Thursday at Lamesa Middle School for the 5B championship.

Motley County won the district title in both the boys' and girls' division. The boys will play the winner of the 11B playoff between Estelline and Chillicothe. In 7A, the Crowell girls will play a bidistrict match against Hawley in Knox City on Feb. 27.

Crowell's boys won the 7A crown Saturday night with a victory over Paducah and will play Hamlin in Jayton at 8 p.m. Tuesday for the bidistrict title.

Flyers Goalie Injures Eye

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers goaltender Bernie Parent will be out of National Hockey League action for at least three weeks with an eye injury received in Saturday's game against the New York Rangers.

Parent, 33, suffered a hemorrhage of the right eye, according to Dr. Edward Viner, the team physician.

"The treatment is absolute bed rest, patching of his eye and the medication to reduce the build-up of pressure in the eye," Viner said.

"He will have to be in the hospital for at least a week and he will be out of action at least three weeks. He should ultimately be all right barring any further complications," Viner said.

"This a terrible feeling," Parent said from his bed at Pennsylvania Hospital.

"I've had injuries before, injuries are part of the game, but this is different."

"An eye injury isn't like a bruised arm. An eye injury... you never know how it will turn out. The way the doctor was talking downstairs, the eye is badly damaged."

Parent was struck in the eye during a collision between Flyers Jim Watson and Ranger forward Don Maloney at 13:49 of the first period.

"It was my stick," Watson said. "I was taking Maloney out of the play and somehow the blade of my stick got inside his mask. It's hard to believe, it was such a freak thing."

Parent had stopped three shots without allowing a goal. He skated to the bench and was rushed to Wills Eye Hospital, replaced in goal by Wayne Stephenson.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Gene Banks scored 23 points and Mike Gminski added 22 as Duke, ranked fifth nationally, rolled over ninth-ranked Louisville, 88-72, in a nationally televised college basketball game Sunday.

Louisville, which suffered its second loss in as many days, was stymied from the beginning of the game by Duke's zone defense and the Cardinals were down at halftime by 19 points.

The Blue Devils, who improved their record to 19-5 with the victory, opened up a 27-point lead at one point in the second half, and were never ahead by less than 14 in the game's closing minutes.

Louisville forward Larry Williams was high man for the Cardinals with 16 points. The loss put Louisville's season record at 22-6.

A winter storm dumped nearly a foot of snow on Charlotte Sunday, and Louisville opened the game playing as cold as the sub-freezing temperatures outside the Charlotte Coliseum. After a 2-2 tie in the first minute, Duke scored 10 unanswered points for a 12-2 lead which five minutes gone and Louisville was unable to get any closer than an 11-point deficit in the first half.

The Cardinals, coming off a 60-53 loss to Memphis State on Saturday.

'New Drama Project' Seeking Novelists To Write For TV

NEW YORK (AP) — It sounds a bit like the TV critic's wildest dream: The country's foremost novelists write original drama for television.

"We're part of the way there with Cheever," says Robert Kotlowitz, programming director at New York's public TV station, WNET, "and my hope is that we can get three or four others for the first season."

"Once we have four or five scripts in hand, we can begin production. I would like us on the air for the 1980-81 season."

Programs in what Kotlowitz hopes will become an annual series would be offered to stations in the Public Broadcasting Service network.

Indeed, John Cheever, winner of the 1978 National Book Award, already has written an original teleplay for WNET's "New Drama Project," and the station has approached four other distinguished writers, including Nobel Prize-winner Isaac Bashevis Singer.

Kotlowitz says Ken Cavender, in charge of WNET's Script Development Unit, also has asked Toni Morrison, Reynolds Price and John Irving to consider participation in the first phase of the project.

"The only problem we've heard about," says Kotlowitz, "would be the writer's obligation to books in progress at the moment."

The specially-commissioned Cheever drama, tentatively called "The Shady Hill Kidnapping," was read for reporters recently by a cast that included Tammy Grimes, Barbara Barrie, Bill Hurt and Charles Kimbrough.

"We expect the most serious work from these people," says Kotlowitz of the writers, "and I think in 'The Shady Hill Kidnapping' we have an example of Cheever's most serious work."

"They are all writers with reputations they feel protective about, as they should, and they feel they should always be seen at their best."

"Part of our job," he says, "is to make them feel comfortable with television technique, with the way a television program is produced, give them a sense of the limitations of the screen, and of its possibilities.

"We have the advantage of being able to say to the writer, 'The subject matter is yours to choose. We will help you shape it, so it can be produced and broadcast.'"

Cavender's Script Development Unit will work with each of the writers, much as an editor functions for a book publisher, Kotlowitz says. "I thought Cheever was wonderfully patient through it all," he says. "I picked up only the most positive signals from him."

A $75,000 grant from the William and Mary Greve Foundation will pay for the initial stages of the project, but additional funding obviously will be required. Writers will be paid guild rates.

"In talking with the writers, money is about fifth on their list of questions. It has not been a problem to date," Kotlowitz says.

The dearth of original drama on television has long been a major complaint of the medium's critics. The "New Drama Project," says John Jay Iselin, WNET's president, will "give powerful voice in response to those who believe public television can speak only with a British accent."

"There is no tradition in this country, as there is in England, of novelists writing directly for television," Iselin says. "Many of our fine writers have never considered writing for the medium, probably because American commercial TV has never provided the opportunities."

"Now, public television intends to provide such a stage."

Graduate Meteorology Student Straight Shooter On Forecasts

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A fearful winter has produced a fearless forecaster in Larry Cosgrove.

Cosgrove, a 24-year-old University of Kansas graduate student in meteorology who will get his master's degree in May, considers himself a layman's weatherman.

"If there's going to be three feet of snow, I'll say it," he says. "I won't hold back. I hate uncertainty in forecasting. Any amateur can do that."

"I don't give people any of that happy talk that TV weathermen give people," Cosgrove says. "They think the public is dumb, so they tell them jokes."

His forecasts are more specific than those issued by the National Weather Service, whose "percentage probabilities" he does not agree with. "But, I'm not attacking other forecasters," Cosgrove hastens to add. "I'm not competing with anybody. It's not my nature to seek recognition."

He uses weather service data and maps, received electronically at the university, and refines his forecasts for a specific area, usually requested by one of a dozen or so clients who get his predictions free of charge. He'll make them for anyone who asks, as part of his graduate studies.

"The experience is invaluable," Cosgrove says. "It gives me the confidence I need to succeed at my lifelong ambition. I've studied this stuff long enough to know a snowstorm when I see one developing. So, I just say it."

That's what he did for radio station WMET-FM in Chicago a week before Chicago's New Year's Day blizzard.

He told news director Mark Allen, "Chicago's O'Hare airport will be closed, roofs on homes will fall in, and you will not be able to take your vacation."

All three predictions proved accurate.

The station did not air the forecast. "We were still evaluating his performance," says Allen. When Cosgrove called back a few days later to forecast another blizzard, Allen reserved hotel space downtown for his staff. They had to use it.

"It amazes me how accurate he is," Allen says. "Here he is in Kansas, but he's calling the shots for Chicago."

Cosgrove has attracted the attention of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City. "He has the exuberance of youth," says Allen Pearson, the center's director. "I wish him well. Forecasting is a humbling business."

Sometimes you hit, sometimes you don't.

Cosgrove agrees. "Nobody is perfect. I try to look out for long-range forecasts. If my forecast fizzes, fine, but I don't panic."

He was born and raised in Philadelphia, graduated from Temple University and entered the University of Kansas meteorological master's program in August 1976.

"I've been interested in weather since I was 2 or 3 years old," he says.

Cosgrove says he is leaning at this point to a "rough spring." It will be late this year, he predicts.

"There are still a lot of shots of cold air coming our way, and it will be late February before I can predict what kind of spring to expect."

What is he looking for when he graduates?

"Private forecasts, on TV, or a situation like that; something I've wanted to do all my life," he says without hesitation.

Centerfold Plans Spark Protests

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — About 20 demonstrators weren't amused by the University of Connecticut yearbook's contest to see who would grace the centerfold of the publication.

As the protesters shouted outside on Thursday night, about 1,000 students inside the ROTC hanger picked senior Christopher Ziu of Fairfield, sporting a tight pair of briefs, and sophomore Debbie Werth of Orange, posing in a wet T-shirt, as contest winners.

"This is nothing but good, clean fun," said Stan Hawthorne, the editor-in-chief of the yearbook, The Nutmeg. He said the contest publicity spurred sales for ads and orders for yearbooks.

The demonstrators, many from the campus Women's Center, objected to what they said was exploitation of men and women.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A taste for frog legs and snake soup among city dwellers is causing problems in Indonesia's rice fields, a government official said. ## Judge Orders End To Height Rules

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the Philadelphia Police Department to eliminate its 5-foot-3 minimum height requirement for female officers and submit new criteria for firing and promotion.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles Weiner's ruling Tuesday addressed the 4½-year-long sex discrimination case of police officer Penelope Brace. He said the city did not prove that height was related to performance, but that it did keep a disproportionate number of women from applying as police officers. Between April 1972 and August 1974, Weiner said more than 200 policemen were promoted, but only one woman, Miss Brace was promoted to detective last year.

Most Americans Favor New SALT Agreement

By Louis Harris
A 74-16 percent majority of Americans favors the United States and the Soviet Union coming to a new SALT arms agreement. This sizable majority of support for SALT has not changed significantly since May 1977.

The main reason why Americans support SALT is not hard to find: —An overwhelming 85-11 percent majority feels that "at a time when it is possible for the U.S. and Russia to blow each other up with nuclear weapons, it is vital for the two countries to reach an agreement to limit nuclear arms." Clearly, the public's fears of the consequences of a United States-Soviet confrontation are a major element in the support for a SALT II accord. Americans will go a long way to avoid escalation.

But does this mean that Americans are willing to accept a SALT agreement that our own military authorities feel does not protect the security of the United States?

The findings show that a critical element in convincing people to support SALT is the position taken by Pentagon officials:
—By 65-22 percent, people believe that "if our military and Defense Department leaders say the SALT agreement with the Russians is a good deal for us, then the U.S. Senate should ratify such an agreement." Because SALT deals with military matters that are beyond the knowledge and comprehension of the vast majority of people, the public will listen carefully to the appraisals of any agreement by our own military and civilian Defense Department leaders. In the end, they will want to hear from those whom they feel are the experts on the subject as to whether the risks of SALT are worth taking.

The fundamental worry people have about a SALT treaty is that it might result in this country's being militarily inferior to the Soviet Union:
—By 57-36 percent, a majority goes along with the statement that "it is better for us to forget nuclear arms treaties with the Russians and build up our military strength to be sure we are superior to them." Implicit in this view is the idea that if it came down to an "either-or" proposition of risking a weakened military position or signing SALT, then people would opt against the arms agreement.

Notably, by a narrow margin, the public is unwilling to scrap SALT on the basis of worries that the Soviets would not live up to their end of the bargain:
—By 47-44 percent, a plurality rejects the claim that "because the chances are that we will keep our end of the bargain and the Russians will not, we should not sign any agreement with them limiting nuclear weapons."

The sum of these findings from the most recent ABC News-Harris Survey of 1,498 adults nationwide is that the public opts for SALT. But the findings also suggest that President Carter cannot count on a sure thing in the SALT debate. To the contrary, there is ample evidence that if opponents of SALT are convincing in their argument that the United States will end up in an inferior position militarily as a result of our signing the treaty, or if they can show that there are loopholes in SALT that could allow gross Soviet violations of the agreement, then SALT could have real trouble mustering the two-thirds vote necessary for its ratification.

There is one important finding in this survey, however: the support for SALT that exists among the best educated and best informed segments of the public. While a 74-11 percent majority of those whose education never went beyond the eighth grade feels it is "better for us to forget SALT and build up our military strength" to a point of superiority, those with a college education reject such a tack by 51-44 percent. Even more significant, a sizable 62-32 percent majority of the best educated people do not buy the argument that we should not sign SALT "because the chances are the Russians will not keep their end of the bargain." By 52-25 percent, the least well educated people do buy this opposition argument.

If previous debates on major foreign policy issues are any guide, it is entirely likely that the better-educated and informed group will have an influence beyond its numerical representation concerning what the U.S. Senate finally does. In the end, this fact, along with the overall 74-16 percent majority who favor

SALT after considering the pro and con arguments, is likely to carry the day on the issue. But in terms of public opinion, the debate over SALT is bound to be heated and the communications efforts of the President and his supporters can affect the outcome decisively.

More Men, Less Women Attend LCC

Women outnumber men at the "average" college or university in the South but such is not the case at Lubbock Christian College where spring registration figures reveal there are 556 to 533 women.

And among full-time students, the number is even greater: 472-425.

In all but the freshmen class, men outnumber the women.

There are 195 full-time freshman women and another 33 attending part-time. First-year men total 209, with 180 of those being full-time.

The other breakdowns include: Sophomore Men: full-time 100, part-time 13; Sophomore Women: full-time 19, or the men leading 113-107.

Junior Men: full-time 93, part-time 15; Junior Women: full-time 70, part-time 39, or the men leading 126-109.

The 556 men on the LCC campus are enrolled for 7,397 credit hours and the 533 women are enrolled for 6,805 credit hours. The breakdown has the 472 full-time men students taking 6,955 hours, of 14.7 hours each, the exact figure the 425 full-time women average for their 6,248 combined hours.

The 84 part-time men are taking 442 hours, or 5.3 hours each, and the 108 part-time women are taking 556 hours, or 5.1 hours each.

In addition to the 1,089 full-and part-time students, 18 others are auditing classes, 26 are taking classes for non-credit, 95 (all men) are involved in vocational-technical courses and 268 (108 men, 160 women) are enrolled in continuing education classes, for a total of 1,496 students on campus.

Of the 897 full-time students, 178 are taking 12 hours and 166 others 15 hours. Only 99 students are taking 18 or more hours, including one enrolled for 27 hours.

Last fall, 1,459 students were on campus, including 246 in continuing education, 61 in vocational-technical, 5 non-credit, 8 audit and 1,122 full- and part-time students.

Legislation Introduced To Buy Big Bend Ranch

A-J Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — Another attempt to authorize the state to buy some 212,000 acres of Big Bend ranchland has been introduced in the Texas House.

House Bill 1114, sponsored by Lynn Nabers of Brownwood, would allow the Texas Conservation Foundation to spend up to $7 million to acquire the Anderson Ranch in Brewster and Presidio counties.

Attempts to authorize state purchase of the property failed in 1975 and 1977.

The land is owned by Diamond A. Cattle Co. of Roswell, N.M., and the D.S. Stoney Estate of Columbus, Ohio.

The legislation would place the property under control of the State Land Commissioner, and permit leasing for livestock grazing or mineral exploration, and contracting with institutions of higher learning for research, contracting with the Parks and Wildlife Department for recreational game management, and cooperating with the Antiquities Committee for protection and development of historical and archeological landmarks.
