Chinese Capture Key Vietnam Border Town

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Striking behind a heavy artillery barrage, Chinese troops Tuesday captured the big Vietnamese border town of Lao Cai, but Vietnamese defenders routed some Chinese units elsewhere in the mountainous border country, according to reports in Bangkok and Hanoi.

Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Ho Ying. But Boustany told The Associated Press in New York by telephone that Ho did not discuss "military information" with him, but merely reaffirmed that the invasion was a limited operation to "teach a lesson" to Hanoi and that China would not hold on to any Vietnamese territory.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The revolutionary government settled more scores with its enemies Tuesday by executing four generals of the old regime, but faced a fresh challenge from Marxist guerrillas who have called a protest march to demand more say in running Iran.

The Peoples Fedayeen guerrillas, a Marxist group that lost hundreds of fighters in years of struggle against the shah, announced it would organize a protest march Thursday to dramatize its demand for more participation in the revolutionary regime.

Landowners Organize To Fight Pollution

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MORE THAN 100 angry Seminole-area landowners have formed a corporation to fight major oil companies they accuse of contaminating underground water supplies and missing farmland throughout the region.

"Otherwise, we have no recourse," he said. "We could go to court, but without the money to hire experts, we can't even get equal evidence."

According to Hicks, the corporation's major areas of concern are the use of vast amounts of fresh water for oil recovery that might otherwise be used for irrigation; fair competition between oil companies and farmers for use of surface areas; and the prevention of installation of oil production facilities that stop the use of some irrigation methods.

WHEN TOM Biggs left for vacation, he thought he had taken all the necessary security precautions with his house. The only thing he neglected to secure was the sidewalk in front — and guess what was missing when he returned to Lubbock a week later?

Chinese Army Alerted
Sources in Peking said Chinese army units on the Soviet border were put on alert, from Sinkiang in the west to Shenyang in the northeast, the Japanese news service Kyodo reported. It said the sources also reported that Chinese civilians had been evacuated from some sections of the Soviet border.

The Soviet Union was reported Monday to have canceled all military leaves and put its military on alert.

Artillery Barrage
The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi that units of two Chinese divisions fighting at the western end of the border had captured Lao Cai behind a punishing artillery barrage.

The purpose of the new company, called the Southwest Soil and Water Protection Association, Inc. (SSWPA), is "to combat the big corporations that compete with West Texas farmers for use of the land," and "to put the landowners in a better bargaining position," said Willis Gresham, Jr., a Lamesa attorney handling the group's business affairs.

"We are being threatened and our land is being threatened," said Norman Hicks, a Seagraves farmer serving as the new corporation's president. Hicks said the landowners came together after agreeing that a unified effort on their part might have an impact on the oil companies where the complaints of individual landowners would not.

"We're working on three or four major problems," Gresham said. "First off, we object to the tremendous industrial use of fresh water, especially that used in the oil company's secondary recovery systems."

Some of these recovery systems, which pump fresh water down oil wells to force crude oil from the ground into the well, "pump water every hour of every day of the year, to the point of drying up some of the irrigation wells on farms around here," Gresham said.

"We also feel we have an unequal position when bargaining with these giants," he continued. "If we can become a well-funded organization, we could get testimony from expert engineers and geologists and land appraisers, like the big companies have on their payrolls."

Gresham said the group also will strive to gather significant statistical data, including the prices the oil companies are paying to use the area land as well as seismological and geological information.

The SSWPA blossomed from a meeting held in November that Gresham said was "widely attended," into a gathering held Monday in Seminole that drew more than 100 landowners willing to back the fledgling organization.

Midge Erskine of Midland, a well-known, federally licensed bird rehabilitator who has battled water pollution caused by the oil companies for two years, also pledged her support at Monday's meeting.

Erskine was primarily responsible for the restoration of Whalen Lake in Andrews County, and recently testified before the Texas Railroad Commission about pollution at Mound Lake in Terry County and Cedar Lake in Gaines County.

"We are being threatened and our land is being threatened," said Norman Hicks, a Seagraves farmer serving as the new corporation's president. Hicks said the landowners came together after agreeing that a unified effort on their part might have an impact on the oil companies where the complaints of individual landowners would not.

"We're working on three or four major problems," Gresham said. "First off, we object to the tremendous industrial use of fresh water, especially that used in the oil company's secondary recovery systems."

Clements Tells Churches To Stay Out Of Politics

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday the church should stay out of politics and met an unexpectedly sharp rejoinder from a statewide Presbyterian leader.

to serve the wealthy corporate elite class which you represent," Fogleman told the governor.

Clements, an Episcopalian, said Jesus "was not on a political mission. His mission was one of offering mankind everlasting life through faith in God."

Fogleman is general presbyter (chief executive officer) of the statewide Synod of the Red River, Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The Rev. William J. Fogleman of Denton replied that most persons in a sampling of delegates at the assembly feared Clements would govern the state only in the interest of the rich and powerful.

Clements did not exclude the church from a social role in his speech. "Churches should not be fraternal or

Utility Threatened With Refund Of $1.7 Million To Customers

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Electric Service Co. — serving 484,000 customers — would be crippled financially if ordered to refund $1.7 million to consumers, a company official said Tuesday.

Louis Austin, chairman of TESCO's holding company, urged the Texas Public Utility Commission to conclude that the utility's transactions with sister companies were made in the best interests of customers.

"Although our system is more complex, it delivers fuel cheaper. And business methods that save customers money should be encouraged — not hampered," said Austin, chairman of Texas Utilities Co.

The three-member utility commission hearing follows an investigation of energy sales between TESCO and its affiliates — Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light.

The three companies serve customers in North, Central, East and West Texas, including Dallas, Fort Worth, Arlington, Midland, Odessa, Wichita Falls and Big Spring.

"I know this investigation created and does create some emotion on the part of the individuals involved," Commission Chairman George Cowden told more than 20 attorneys representing the companies, their customer cities and consumer groups.

"We all have a job to do. It's going to come out in a way that somebody's not going to be happy with," Cowden said. "I trust we'll all maintain our best posture and demeanor and conduct ourselves on the highest plane."

Commission staff recommended refunds after concluding TESCO improperly passed fuel costs to customers in a deal with TPL. TPL should refund $1.2 million and DPL $500,000, the staff said.

TESCO sold electricity to TPL generated from its cheapest natural gas. In exchange, TESCO acquired part ownership in the Texas Utilities system Martin Lake lignite power plant near Henderson.

DPL also bought an interest in the plant and lignite reserves from TPL, but not in exchange for electricity. Two of the plant's four units are operating and a third is scheduled to generate commercial power later this year.

"Hindsight is great," Austin told the commission. "But all those actions took place in the most volatile time of our industry."

During a break, the company chairman defended the transactions as good business practices.

"There's not any testimony that accuses us of stealing any money. We haven't hidden anything," Austin said. "I really think that when people started out on this thing, they thought we'd been weaseling around and dry-holed some of this money."

The transactions benefited neither the companies nor their stockholders, yet resulted in the system's average price of lignite-generated energy at 44 cents per million BTU, he said.

Federal Regulations Said Boosting Electric Bills

HOUSTON (AP) — A flood of federal regulations is costing electric consumers billions of dollars in higher rates, the general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association said Tuesday.

Robert D. Partridge, keynote speaker at the group's convention, said government regulators "are creating a jungle of nonsensical red tape which is counterproductive and contrary to the public interest."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., later told a news conference federal agencies should be required to submit "all their proposed regulations to Congress and there we could reject or accept them."

"We realize we could not go over all the regulations, but if these agencies had to submit them to us, it would be a step forward and something they (the agencies) would have to think about."

Morgan, one of the main speakers to the 10,000 delegates at the convention, also said the United States is a nation "that reacts only when there is a crisis. In energy there must be an emergency, such as the loss of oil from Iran, before Americans believe a shortage may exist."

The North Carolina Democrat said many people never "believed there was a real oil shortage in 1973 and perhaps they don't believe it now."

He said rationing "didn't even work in World War II and I doubt if it will work now. We are just not a nation conservative minded about energy and that is something we need to work on."

Partridge, who has spent 11 years as head of the co-op association, said the 95th Congress and the Carter Administration have "added up to more hindrance than help for the utility industry. The principal product has been an enormous continuing flood of new regulations with more being written and no end in sight."

He added, "energy independence as a national goal is becoming more important every day, but we aren't making any discernible progress toward it and we won't in my judgment unless electric power generated with our domestic coal and nuclear fuel is allowed to expand on an orderly basis."

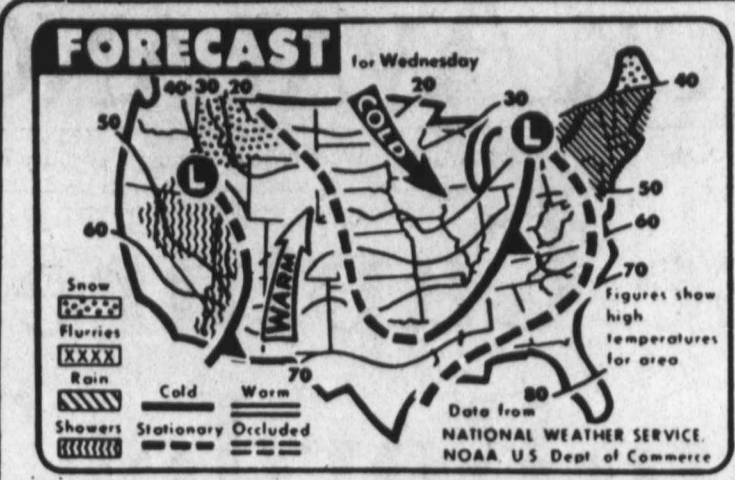

Natural Gas Act Funding Endorsed

AUSTIN (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee unanimously agreed Tuesday to give the Railroad Commission the full $581,682 it had requested for administration of the federal Natural Gas Policy Act.

The House had cut the emergency appropriation back to $245,509 after Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, and others said the commission hadn't proved it needed the full amount.

House members and senators now must decide whether to accept the compromise bill and send it to the governor for signature.

Under Coleman's prodding, the compromise bill lays out in detail how the commission can spend the money and says it can't transfer funds between items.

Southwesterly Winds Expected Today

Strong and gusty southwesterly winds will whip dust across the area today, but the windy weather will be short-lived as a cold front is expected to push into the South Plains by Thursday afternoon.

Winds will gust up to 30 mph today, decreasing to 15 to 20 mph by tonight. Wind warnings will be in effect for area lakes.

Forecasters say there is a 20 percent chance of showers tonight because of warm surface temperatures and the moisture aloft that is preceding the cold front.

Temperatures will climb to the mid-60s today, with the low tonight in the mid-30s.

The extended outlook for West Texas calls for a chance of showers Friday, growing cooler by Saturday and then warming Sunday.

Across the state Tuesday, light rain and fog was reported over the eastern one-third of Texas. Elsewhere, skies were fair to partly cloudy. The 4 p.m. temperature extremes were 46 at Paris and 72 at Abilene.

Across the nation Tuesday, tractors climbed six-foot snowdrifts in Washington, D.C. National Guardsmen patrolled looter-ravaged Baltimore and New Yorkers slogged through deep snow.

The season's latest storm, blamed for at least 16 deaths in six states and the District of Columbia during a three-day push from the Deep South to the East, left a thousand-mile snowscape along the mid-Atlantic seaboard.

Schools, businesses and government offices shut down for a second straight day in much of the East and emergency crews worked doggedly to free major cities from up to two feet of snow.

Farmers who drove tractors to Washington to protest farm policy manded the vehicles to transport medical supplies and personnel, patients and essential workers through road-clogging snowdrifts. Other tractors helped plow the capital's streets.

In Baltimore, more than 300 people were arrested for looting. Store windows were shattered and television sets, liquor and other goods taken from stores in several areas of the city.

New Yorkers trudged to work in foot-deep snows or waited for snow-slowed buses and trains. Long delays were the order of the day for commuters.

Record cold added to the East's miseries. Philadelphia had a record low of 1 degree.

Expert Examines Economic Questions

A. G. Edwards & Sons, Inc. WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

George Washington, his horse, and the whole continental congress would turn over in their graves if they could see us now. Of course, it's been happening since Korea, but lately the terrible deterioration of the U.S. in the world picture seems even more disgusting and frightening. In the real world, we have mangled our position in the Persian Gulf much to the benefit of Russia and to the detriment of our economy, inflation, and our supposed friends in that area. In Iran, we continued to support the wrong man at the wrong time and late. Bottom line — another ally lost and Americans manhandled by mobs attacking our embassy. Can anyone explain how we still had some 7,000 people in Iran this past weekend and only a handful of marines?

While we get kicked around in a real sense in the Middle East, our president is insulted in Mexico. Admittedly, his total lack of reference to Mexican food and water showed how insensitive he is but it is obvious that as a nation we have earned the disrespect of most nations. The world, unfortunately, respects and fears power which will be used; we have been proven impotent time and time again. Okay, we apologize for meandering but we have a reason. With all the above obvious to investors, with inflation and interest rates probably headed up, with a recession out there some place, why isn't the stock market holding a going-out-of-business sale? Some take comfort from the fact the market is acting better than the news but we do not because everyone knows it.

It has been widely recognized this past week that stocks were doing better than the news, which has caused many to feel this means they have to go up — in our opinion, a very dangerous conclusion. What happened last week was that we had an extension of the rally which started the prior Thursday after a sharp 50 point drop and stocks unwound their oversold condition. What will get them down? When stocks do not act well, despite the assumption they "have to" because they outperformed the news, complacency is thus cracked. In our opinion, if the rally isn't dead it's down to three heartbeats a minute. The technical stock will be that the standard bearish forecasts for inflation, interest rates, and the economy are not bearish enough. Traders should stay defensive. Long-term investors can buy selected stocks which already seem to discount the end of the western world. Stocks again will be attractive but the action of the market itself says not yet. We can not tell a lie to you, Mr. Washington! Yes, we believe that your progeny will fumble through yet another series of crises. It's just that our heart and price/earnings multiples hurt sorely because of the trend upon which our nation remains.

A.G. Edwards & Sons

NEW YORK (AP) — Every day, a glance at the headlines seems to being back memories of 1973 and 1974. Fuel supplies were short then, as Arab petroleum producers slapped an embargo on exports to the United States and many other countries, and then quadrupled oil prices. Commodity prices were soaring worldwide. American consumer prices jumped 18 percent over the two years.

Today, Americans are reading again about energy shortages, caused this time by the turmoil in Iran which curtailed that nation's oil production. Prices of gold, silver, copper and lead are shooting upward. Beef prices are high and headed higher.

It seems like we're back in the tumultuous mid-1970s. Or are we? Here are some questions and answers about similarities and differences between today's events and those of five and six years ago:

Philippines Suffers High Rate Of Rabies

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippines has the world's highest rabies mortality rate, with 150 persons and 25,000 dogs dying of the viral infection every year, the official Philippine News Agency reported Tuesday.

The agency quoted a World Health Organization consultant working on a new type of anti-rabies vaccine at a Philippine university as saying rabies could be controlled here through mass vaccination of dogs.

Q. What about energy?
A. Until civil strife virtually choked off Iran's oil production, that nation accounted for about 5 percent of the total U.S. oil consumption of 20 million barrels a day. According to a recent projection by Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary, the United States anticipates Iranian oil production to resume at 50 percent to 75 percent of its previous level of 6 million barrels daily. The resumption, coupled with expected gains in domestic oil production in the United States, might leave America with a 7 percent-12.6 percent oil shortage by 1985. At the height of the OPEC embargo, the United States experienced a 15 percent shortage.

Q. Wasn't the energy price spiral of 1973-1974 just part of an upward trend in most commodities?
A. Inflation was a serious problem even before the five-month embargo. Virtually all the industrialized nations' economies were expanding simultaneously, putting severe pressure on raw material supplies. The oil embargo only "heightened the rush for basic commodities in general," a Citibank report says. Food prices were rising because of already declining grain stockpiles, poor grain harvests and because the supply of anchovies in the sea off Peru, once a vital source of animal feed, suddenly disappeared.

Q. Why is today's spiral different for food?
A. In contrast to the 1973-1974 squeeze, harvests last year were large. While "the bins are filled," Citibank maintains "only a government policy that encouraged U.S. grain producers to hold supplies off the market has prevented a decline in price." The price of grain is one of several factors in the recent beef price rise. In addition, the size of nation's beef cattle herd today is at its lowest point since 1969. But the federal government notes the size of the U.S. poultry flock is at its highest point in six years, and that exerts somewhat of a modifying effect on meat price increases.

Q. What about inventories?
A. A major problem in the last recession was the excessive buildup of business inventories. When the economy slowed, manufacturers and retailers were stuck with unsold goods which in many cases were sold at a loss. This time around, businesses have attempted to keep inventories low. According to Citibank, "inventory accumulation panic isn't likely to recur. The memory of the way an apparent shortage suddenly turned into an obvious and expensive glut is still fresh in the minds of purchasing agents and their managers."

Q. What about prices of vital metals and minerals?

A. Six years ago, fears that those who controlled supplies of many raw materials "might succeed in emulating the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ... led to another burst of industrial commodity price increases," said last year's "Economic Report of the President." Today's price increases on copper and other base metals "don't reflect the earlier supply strains," says Citibank. Instead, they may be linked "to the same kind of psychology that has driven investors to bid up the price of gold, silver and other precious metals. They look like good hedges against a future grown suddenly more uncertain." The Financial Times of London World Business Weekly adds that the current metals boom may be "self-feeding, with speculators using profits to buy more and more until the bubble bursts and prices collapse."

Economist Sees Little Hope To Cut Inflation

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A survey of businesses around the country indicates little hope for cutting inflation for non-food items below an annual rate of 9 or 10 percent through the first half of this year, a Purdue University economist said Tuesday.

Professor William Dunkelberg, a consultant to the National Federation of Independent Businesses, said the survey showed that 45 percent of the 500,000-member organization plan price increases before April 30. About half of that number anticipate average increases of 5 percent or more, he said.

Dunkelberg said a computer model designed to predict the inflation rate for non-food items, based on the survey data, indicated that the rate could exceed 11 percent on an annual basis over the next two months.

While conceding that the organization's last few quarterly forecasts have been high, Dunkelberg said, "Overall, there is little prospect for much improvement during the first half of 1979. Our data casts doubt on the economy's ability to meet the Carter administration's standard for price performance.... There would appear to be little chance for the rate to fall below 9 or 10 percent."

The reasons, he said, are partly soaring producer prices — up at a 15 percent annual rate in January — and a 10 percent increase in the minimum wage last month.

"Even a $30 billion national deficit is too high for an economy that sets new employment records each month and is operating at a high (85 percent) range of capacity," he added. "The money supply grew between 7 and 9 percent in 1978, due in part to the need to finance the government deficit.... The price level tends to grow with the money supply."

Dunkelberg added: "Productivity remains on the skids and shows little sign of recovery while hourly compensation rises. Unit labor costs will thus rise substantially."

"The outlook for bringing the inflation rate down is not good, and the prospect the president's voluntary program will be very successful continues to dim."

Villagers Protest Removal Of 'Saint'

VILLAMAGNA, Italy (AP) — Hundreds of angry residents of this central Italian village blocked a procession that was transferring the body of a local "saint" from the village cemetery to a sanctuary in another town, police reported Tuesday.

They said the villagers shouted, "The saint is ours and must remain here!" The casket, carrying the remains of Brother Nicola D'Onofrio, had to be returned to the cemetery, where he was buried 15 years ago.

Tech Coed Tells Court Of Fight With Sister's Armed Assailant

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An 18-year-old Texas Tech University coed Tuesday told a 140th District Court she jumped on the back of a man holding a knife to the throat of her sister and then was stabbed four times before the man finally fled.

"I knew I had to do something because I knew she wouldn't take that," the young woman testified in the trial of Larry Donell Perryman, of 1812 E. Second St., accused of burglary with intent to commit rape.

She and her 22-year-old sister, now a student at East Texas State University in Commerce, both identified Perryman as the man who broke into their apartment near the Tech campus last Oct. 16.

"What did you observe when you woke up?" Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford asked her.

"A knife right at my neck," she said. "He said, 'Don't move or I'll slit your neck.'"

Both women said Perryman started going from bed to bed threatening to kill them.

The older woman said he told them he needed $300 "to buy a sniper gun because a white cop had killed his brother and he was going to get them" and that he became angry when told they had only $6 between them.

Perryman has also been charged with aggravated rape in the reported Sept. 7 rape of a 21-year-old Tech student at her apartment and with burglary with intent to commit rape in a reported Sept. 13 break-in at the apartment of an 18-year-old Tech coed.

"He told us we were his seventh people and he was slick and bad and they hadn't caught him yet," the younger sister said.

She said that when he got over her sister, put the knife to her throat and unzipped his pants, the older woman said, "I'm a Christian, and I can't do this."

"Don't give me that Christian s---," she said he replied. The two started struggling when he tried to kiss her, she turned her head and he stuck the point of the knife into her neck, the older woman testified.

It was then that the 18-year-old Tech freshman sprung from her bed and jumped onto his back with her arm around his throat.

Fighting for the knife, the women and their assailant rolled off the bed onto the floor, and the younger one, stabbed four times in the chest and back, got up and then collapsed from loss of blood. The fighting stopped with the older sister holding his wrist with both hands and both of them looking at the girl where she had fallen. The older sister had been cut on the neck, hand and chest herself.

"I was afraid to turn loose because I afraid he would start slashing again," she said. "He looked at my sister and said, 'I didn't intend for this to happen.' Then he jerked his arm away from me and ran out."

Perryman, dressed in blood-stained white clothes, was arrested by police a short distance away after a foot-race covering several blocks in the Avenue S and Sixth Street area, officers testified as the trial opened Tuesday.

The younger woman was hospitalized for four days after the incident. Her sister was treated at a Lubbock hospital and released.

Booklet Prepared To Help Women Get Credit Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many women are denied credit because they cannot show that they have handled credit well in the past, according to the Federal Trade Commission.

When creditors ask the local credit bureau for a woman's credit history, past accounts under a husband's name or a maiden name just don't show up.

To help a woman establish a credit history under her own name, the FTC has prepared a booklet, "Women and Credit Histories."

Among its suggestions are: — If you never had credit, start building a good record now. A local bank or department store will often approve the application even if you don't meet the standards of a national creditor.

— If you recently married and changed your name, ask your creditors to change the name on your credit accounts.

— Have information from old joint accounts with your husband transferred to your own file. Then ask creditors to use your present name on charge records and ask that joint accounts be reported in both spouses' names.

The booklet may be obtained free by sending a postcard to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 538G, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: For a month now, my husband and I have had an on-going argument about Medicare. Your explanation could easily clear this up once and for all. I am going to have to go to the hospital here and have some tests done which my doctor ordered. My husband says Medicare will not cover the charges unless I am admitted to the hospital as a bed patient, which I will not be. The tests will probably take two or three days to complete, but I will be coming home each day. He's sure we will be stuck with paying the entire bill. I believe Medicare does cover this type of service, but I am not sure how much it will pay. Could you settle this for us and also tell us how much Medicare will pay on this? — R.U.

When people go to the hospital for diagnosis or treatment and are not admitted as bed patients, the services they receive are called out-patient hospital services and are covered by Medicare. Covered out-patient services, whether for diagnosis or treatment, are paid by medical insurance and are handled by the hospital intermediary, rather than the carrier which ordinarily handles your medical insurance claims. The hospital will file the claim for the services.

After the $60 deductible has been met, Medicare takes care of 80 percent of the reasonable charges for all covered out-patient hospital services you receive. The hospital will apply for the Medicare payment and will charge you for any part of the $60 deductible you have not met plus the remainder of the charges above what Medicare will pay.

If the charge is $60 or less and the hospital cannot determine how much of the $60 deductible you have met, then the hospital may ask you to pay the entire bill. If you pay the bill, any Medicare payments that are due will be paid directly to you. Except in unusual circumstances, the hospital will prepare the Medicare claim for you.

HEARTLINE: My husband and I have lived together for over 30 years and have four lovely children. However, we do have a problem. We were never married, and the state in which we reside does not recognize common-law marriages. We will soon be of an age to draw Social Security benefits, and it's going to look very strange to our family that I am not drawing wife's benefits or Medicare.

We have reared our children in such a way that for them to even consider this would be scandalous and a terribly heartbreaking experience for all concerned. Would it be possible for us to move to a state which does recognize common-law marriages and also make me eligible for these benefits? — M.R.

Depending on the laws of the particular state you move into, you may have to enter into a new agreement to be husband and wife, live together and represent yourselves in public as man and wife before that state recognizes the common-law marriage which is required for Social Security to recognize the marriage.

Trial Publicity Aided Davis, Writer Says

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Fort Worth reporter Glenn Guzzo didn't want the T. Cullen Davis story when it was first assigned to him. On the surface, the whole situation looked like just another cops and robbers story and Guzzo had already paid his dues on the police beat. But a little research and about three hours later, Guzzo was hooked.

Now urban affairs editor for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Guzzo addressed a capacity audience Tuesday as a featured speaker for Texas Tech's Mass Communications Week. Guzzo followed John Bailey, executive director of the International Association of Business Communicators, on the bill of speakers for Journalism Day.

"I submit to you that Davis would not be a free man today if not for the massive pre-trial and trial publicity he received," Guzzo stressed. Witnesses for the defense literally crawled out of the woodwork, he said, claiming they realized their testimony was important after reading about the trial in various newspapers.

He called the Houston murder-for-hire trial the "transplanted climax" to the soap opera chain of events which started with the 1976 Fort Worth murders of Stan Farr and Andrea Wilborn and the near-fatal wounding of Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla.

Guzzo gave a colorful narrative of trial highlights, saying the trial publicity fed on itself, creating the circus-like atmosphere associated with the Davis case. He

GLENN GUZZO
Says Publicity Aided Davis

He said many people in Fort Worth have always supported Davis because "there are lingering doubts in the minds of many that a millionaire can be a murderer."

Davis remains free because he could afford all the benefits the criminal justice system has to offer, Guzzo said. He hired not one lawyer, but a dozen, according to Guzzo, and was able to afford exhaustive investigations and hundreds of pages of court transcripts.

Guzzo described chief defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes relationship with the media as a "love-hate" arrangement. Guzzo claimed Haynes was responsible for most of the roadblocks the media was faced with in trying to cover the trial proceedings. But the media still made a celebrity out of him, he added.

"He basked in the TV lights...and said nothing," Guzzo said of Haynes' treatment of reporters.

The most resourceful reporters used the same spy versus spy tactics of investigation used by the attorneys, Guzzo said. But the rest of "the herd" reported the show-boating events associated with the case, he said.

But despite Guzzo's criticism of members of his own profession, he said there would be very little justice without the press.

"What passes for proof in a courtroom is often not up to the standards used by a reliable newspaper."

Guzzo will not cover the Davis divorce trial, which began today in Fort Worth. The assignment has been passed on to one of his staff of urban affairs reporters.

"I'm not sick of it, but I'm very weary," Guzzo admitted. "It won't bother me if there's no more Cullen Davis."

The rest of the week will feature Film and Photo Day on Wednesday, Advertising Day on Thursday and Telecommunications Day on Friday. The week will be wrapped up with the Thomas Jefferson Award Dinner at 7 p.m. Friday in the University Center Ballroom.

Students In Journalism

Told Jobs Available

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Graduates with good basic journalism training and a willingness to work will be able to find jobs in the tightening journalism job market, but shouldn't expect to do a "Watergate" story every day.

That was the advice given to Texas Tech mass communications students Tuesday by a panel of Tech graduates in various journalism fields.

They included Rusty Jones of KMCC television in Lubbock, Mary Lou Kromer of Rockwell International, Don Richards, press secretary to U.S. Rep. Kent Hance in Washington, and Roy McQueen, publisher of the Snyder Daily News.

Although the four are in different fields, all stressed the importance of basic writing skills and the value of job experience.

Richards and McQueen, who both have backgrounds with weekly and small daily newspapers, said small papers often are overlooked by young graduates who may consider life in a small town dull.

"The stories are there if you'll look for them," Richards said, adding that salaries are good and there is "plenty of room for advancement in small weeklies."

McQueen illustrated the challenge of reporting for small papers by noting, "There's no wire copy. You must fill the front page with local stories. And you'll turn out more copy on a small weekly than on a big city daily."

He agreed with Richards that the pay on small papers is respectable and greater financial rewards await those interested in management.

"There's a chance for a piece of the action in small papers," McQueen said. "I believe the real challenge is in management and in small papers there's very real ownership possibilities."

McQueen, who graduated from Tech in 1966 at age 23, became publisher of the Seminole paper immediately after graduation.

He prophesied that when the young journalists are older and have families of their own, a byline may not seem as important as one's personal life.

"Family life in small towns is far superior to that in a city the size of Lubbock," he said.

Credibility is an important element in broadcast journalism, Jones said, because "the medium deals primarily with fantasy."

Even though broadcast journalists still need basic writing and reporting skills, Jones admitted that an element of stage presence and drama is needed to add a bit of "show business" to television news.

"People are not starved for news," he said. "They turn to the television set to be entertained. It takes show biz to some degree to get people to watch the news."

Mrs. Kromer, the only woman on the panel, warned, "It's not easy being a professional and being a married woman."

She said there are days when she must stay late at work, but she tells her husband that he, too, sometimes must stay late at work.

"It's not always easy, but you can work things out," she said.

The panel discussion was part of Journalism Day during Mass Communications Week at Tech.

Mahon Honored In Littlefield

LITTLEFIELD (Special) — About 450 persons gathered here Tuesday night to honor retired U.S. Rep. George Mahon and outstanding citizens of the community at the annual Littlefield Chamber of Commerce banquet.

District Judge Pat Boone presented Mahon with an antique desk set after the veteran legislator spoke to the crowd. Mahon recently retired after representing the 19th Congressional district for 44 years.

Local residents honored included florist Kip Cutshall, recognized as Man of the Year; Mrs. Bruce Porcher, a teacher in the Littlefield school system for 31 years, honored as Woman of the Year, and the Charles Hines family cited as Farm Family of the Year.

Cutshall, who was cited for his work as 1978 campaign chairman for the local United Way drive, is a former president of the Littlefield Lions Club and a former district governor of the Lions Club.

Mrs. Porcher is a member of the Women's Club, a former president of the hospital auxiliary and is a former Sunday school teacher at the First Presbyterian Church.

The Hines family — Charles, Ruth, Pat and Pam — operate a cotton farm three miles west of Littlefield. The family was recognized for "their good farming practices as well as their participation in community activities."

Marriage Of Davis 'Financial Disaster'

FORT WORTH (AP) — Cullen Davis's lawyer told the judge in his divorce case Tuesday the millionaire and his wife Priscilla "lived over their heads" and described the financial end of the marriage as a "complete disaster."

The lawyer said personal bank debts of Davis were small at the time of the marriage but now amount to $8.5 million. Additionally, Munn said, Davis sold off $12.5 million of his inherited stock. There are assets of $10 million and liabilities of $9.4 million, making Davis' net worth $600,000, Munn noted.

Americans Held In Ship Fight

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Three Americans are being held in the Maldives Islands because of a shooting affray aboard their ship in which an atoll chief was slightly wounded, the U.S. Embassy here said Tuesday.

It repudiated earlier reports from amateur radio operators in contact with the vessel, the Alysse Maru, that said 300 pirates boarded the U.S.-owned ship Saturday, stole valuable electronics equipment and kidnapped the medical officer. "There are no pirates in the Maldives and contrary to some radio accounts the vessel is in no danger," an embassy spokesman said. The U.S. Embassy here also handles affairs for the Maldives, an independent republic of 1,087 small islands hundreds of miles southwest of the southern tip of India.

Kremlin Charges U.S. Encouraged Invasion

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin Tuesday charged the United States may have known of China's plan to attack Vietnam in advance and encouraged it, and said Washington's reaction to the crisis showed hypocrisy.

Andrei Gromyko, who said Moscow's position on the Chinese attack had been clearly defined in a blunt official government warning delivered Sunday. "We firmly state that the present-day leadership of China should stop their aggression against Vietnam before it is too late," Gromyko said.

Carter Cites Need For Soviet Treaty

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter declared Tuesday that the turmoil in Iran and Southeast Asia demonstrates dramatically the need for a new U.S.-Soviet arms treaty, and vowed he will not let peripheral issues stand in the way of agreement on the pact.

In response to questions on the status of treaty talks, press secretary Jody Powell said later that, "We're still not there yet. There are still some details, some important details, to be worked out."

Rejects Conservatives

In a speech billed in advance by presidential aides as a major foreign policy address, Carter repeatedly and strongly rejected demands by conservatives for a foreign policy that would link progress on arms negotiations with the Soviet Union's conduct around the world.

Concerned Over Indochina

The president also said the United States is continuing to express "deep concern" over Vietnam's incursion into Cambodia and China's punitive invasion of Vietnam.

Khomeini said in a radio statement Tuesday night that the planned march was "anti-religious" and the work of Communists.

Concerned Over Indochina

The president reiterated, however, that the United States won't intervene in Iran or in "conflicts between Asian communist nations" in Southeast Asia.

Concerned Over Indochina

The president said agreement has been reached on most of the components of the SALT II treaty, but gave no indication when the pact might be signed.

He said the pact will "specifically forbid interference" with U.S. efforts to verify compliance.

Conflict Delaying Confirmation Of South Texas Director

AUSTIN (AP) — Conflicting testimony about Joe Bishop's ability to serve on the University System of South Texas board of directors kept a Senate subcommittee from making a decision Tuesday.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, absent following a heart attack, sent a letter opposing Bishop's appointment because "he does not possess the qualifications necessary." Truan said his decision was not made for ethnic reasons.

The Senate Nominations Subcommittee agreed to complete the hearing next Tuesday before voting whether to recommend Bishop's confirmation.

Bishop, 38, of Arlington, was one of former Gov. Dolph Briscoe's last nominees. Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, said, "I'm sorry to say this is one of the most controversial nominations I've ever handled." Bishop lives in her district.

"At the present time, my intention is to vote 'present,'" she told committee members as adjournment approached.

The South Texas system has campuses in Kingsville, Corpus Christi and Laredo.

Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, said more than 70 faculty members at Texas A&I University in Kingsville had signed a petition opposing Bishop's appointment.

The nominee was the executive director of the Texas A&I alumni association and the university's vice chancellor for public affairs until 1975.

Schwartz said he had questions for Bishop about his administration of the alumni association.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, whose district includes the Laredo campus, endorsed the nomination. "Joe Bishop was probably as determined and loyal an advocate to those schools as anybody I've run into in Austin," he said.

The alumni association operated with a deficit while Bishop was its director, Frederick Matkin, a Texas A&I political science professor, told the committee.

"Mismanagement is not a reason not to confirm somebody," said Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches.

L.A. McNeil of Corpus Christi, a former member of the association's board of directors, said the deficit was planned and had the board's approval.

"I think probably he (Bishop) has been a victim of a political controversy at the A&I campus," McNeil said. "We checked Mr. Bishop's integrity. We checked everything before we made him a member of the staff."

Nominations made recently by Gov. Bill Clements received recommendations without opposition for Senate approval.

Among them were Bob J. Perry of Harris County to the State Banking Board, D. Truitt Davis of Abilene to the Texas Deepwater Port Authority, Edwin L. Cox Jr. of Dallas to the Parks and Wildlife Commission, William Terry Bray of Austin to the Texas Board of Human Resources, Dorothy Johnson of Amarillo to the State Board of Nursing Examiners and Dr. Robert D. Moreton of Houston to the Texas Board of Health.

Also approved without opposition were John Keith Nelson of Wichita Falls as 78th district judge, Theo Bedard of Dallas as 330th family district court judge, Albert B. Fay of Harris County to the Texas Conservation Foundation, Curt Cargile of Uvalde County to the Produce

Recovery Fund Board, Calvin Stephens of Dallas to the Advisory Council on Small Business Assistance, Carmen Hicks of Bandera County to the Bandera County River Authority, Paul Thayer of Dallas to the Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz

Memorial Naval Museum Commission, Michael Kay Stephens of Austin to the Advisory Board of Athletic Trainers and Hall E. Timanus Sr. of Harris County to the Texas Amusement Machine Commission.

Mental Illness Counseling Bill Killed

AUSTIN (AP) — Calls from genetic specialists resulted Tuesday in the withdrawal of a Senate bill to create a center for counseling prospective parents about hereditary mental illness.

Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, said the medical community was concerned that the proposed establishment of the Texas Human Genetics Center would drain federal money from other genetic research.

However, Schwartz said, he thought the proposal "is as decent and humane as it can possibly be."

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, said he would wait "until the alarm goes down in the medical community."

Creighton asked the Senate to consider the proposal but then withdrew it after Schwartz mentioned the objections.

Creighton said the bill should not affect federal money for other types of genetic research.

He said 10,000 children are born each year in Texas with mental diseases.

The Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation currently operates a genetic screening and counseling service at the Denton State School that serves individuals and families statewide through 13 regional clinics.

Creighton said the goal is to try to determine whether parents with a mentally retarded child might produce another mentally retarded child.

According to a bill analysis, the service has screened and counseled 3,500 persons during the past nine years and resulted in a savings to the state of $15 million.

The Legislative Budget Board has recommended a two-year appropriation of $4,479,223 for genetic screening in 1980-81.

Creighton's bill would transfer the Denton school's functions, property and personnel to the proposed genetic center.

Under Creighton's bill, the Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation would have the authority to acquire land to relocate the center and to construct buildings.

Schwartz said geneticists he had talked to were concerned that the center would only relate to genetic research that deals with mental illness and "not the incalculable number of other genetic problems."

Texas International Makes Stock Offer

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas International Airlines renewed its bid Tuesday for control of National Airlines by offering a stock exchange it said would be worth at least $50 a share to National shareholders.

Frank Lorenzo, president of the Houston-based line, proposed that TIA and National enter into an agreement providing for a merger that would be included in a bidding procedure "similar to that which you have proposed to Pan American and Eastern Airlines."

Both Pan American World Airways and TIA own about 23 percent of National's stock and Eastern has offered $50 a share in its efforts to acquire National.

In a telegram to National, Lorenzo said TIA is prepared to propose an exchange of each share of National common stock for considerations "which, in the opinion of our financial advisers, would be worth at least $50 subject to valuation by your financial advisers in the bidding process."

"This consideration would include cash, debt securities, equity securities, or a combination of the foregoing," Lorenzo said.

"If you accept our proposal your stockholders will be assured of a merger on the most advantageous terms and you will not have unfairly discriminated against any of the competing bidders." Lorenzo added that the Civil Aeronautics Board should approve a National-TIA merger "since a combination with Texas International would not have the anti-competitive consequence of the other proposed mergers."

"In that event our proposal would insure that your stockholders would receive for their shares the consideration on which you and we have agreed," he said.

Lorenzo asked for a response by Feb. 26.

AFL-CIO To Report Price Guideline Violations

NO MUZZLE FOR MEANY — AFL-CIO President George Meany enjoys his cigar while pondering a question during a press conference in Miami Beach Tuesday. When asked about this strident attacks on President Carter, Meany said he would not muzzle himself. (AP Laserphoto)

BAL HARBOR, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany brushed aside suggestions that he retire and announced Tuesday that he is mobilizing federation members to blow the whistle on companies that exceed President Carter's anti-inflation price guidelines.

Meany also vowed to continue to criticize Carter's policies when organized labor disagrees with them. He denied that his attacks signify a break with the president and said he and Carter had a pleasant conversation on Monday.

"I think he (Carter) makes some mistakes and, frankly, I will continue to comment on those mistakes," Meany said, adding, "The president doesn't seem to be upset about it."

Meany said he had promised to help monitor violations of the price guidelines. Meany said Carter had called the labor leader to ask for the federation's help, and that Carter thought the AFL-CIO's plan to create a national price watchdog network was "very good."

Meany spoke to reporters after the AFL-CIO leadership completed another session of its annual week-long winter meeting here.

He said continued sharp rises in the price of food, housing and other necessities prove that Carter's voluntary program of wage-price guidelines is not working.

Meany said he hoped that price monitoring reports submitted by the AFL-CIO's 13.5 million members will convince the administration that the program should be replaced by mandatory wage-price controls.

The AFL-CIO contends that under a voluntary program, businesses would hold down wage increases but not price increases. As a result, the federation predicts that inflation this year will exceed the 9 percent rate set last year.

Carter wants wage and fringe benefit increases held to 7 percent a year and has asked business to hold price hikes under increases of the past two years.

Earlier Tuesday, an AFL-CIO vice president and longtime Meany backer said Meany should tone down his criticism of Carter.

Sol Chaikin, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, also said Meany might step down as organized labor's chief spokesman if he was given a new job and title, such as chairman of the board.

But Meany dashed that idea emphatically. "They have a chairman of the board," he said, jabbing a thumb at his chest. "Here he is."

On his criticism of Carter, Meany said: "We worked like hell to get him elected. That doesn't mean that we have to agree to everything that he brings up and if we don't agree to everything that he brings up, that doesn't mean that we're approaching a break — that we're going to put him on an enemies list or anything like that."

Asked if he planned to retire at the end of 1979, Meany said, "I'm thinking about it all the time, I've been thinking about it for a number of years and I'll keep thinking about it for a number of years."

Meany, who was instrumental in forging the merger of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations in 1955, has served as the federation's only president. His current two-year term expires this fall.

Carter Gets Negative Rating From Americans Surveyed

By LOUIS HARRIS

President Carter's overall rating with Americans has slumped to 63-36 percent negative, down from the much better 52-47 percent negative mark he received in December. His current rating is the lowest for the president since his deep decline last summer.

The latest ABC News-Harris Survey, taken by telephone among a cross section of 1,199 adults nationwide between Feb. 8 and Feb. 12, shows Carter in trouble with his ratings on domestic issues and on foreign policy matters:

•On his handling of the economy, he comes up with a 75-22 percent negative rating, down from 69-27 percent negative in December. This is the second-worst rating accorded the president on this pivotal domestic issue, his lowest point coming last August when he emerged with 80-16 percent negative marks. On his anti-inflation program, Carter's rating is 76-19 percent negative.

Past experience has shown that when presidential ratings concerning the economy are low, everything else tends to be affected. There is little doubt that his administration's efforts to control surging inflation are central to its entire credibility in the minds of the American people.

•On his firing of Bella Abzug as co-chairwoman of the National Advisory Commission on Women, Americans rate the president 52-29 percent negative. Since the Abzug firing, the Carter administration has been trying to rebuild its relations with the organized women's movement.

•On inspiring confidence in the White House, the president now stands at 64-31 percent negative, considerably worse than the 54-40 percent negative rating in December. This current rating is exactly the same as Carter's rating last July. The personal confidence dimension is particularly critical since, in the past, poor ratings in that area have been a precursor of further slippage ahead. Back in July 1977, Carter was riding high with personal confidence marks that were 65-30 percent positive.

This latest low rating on inspiring confidence points up both the essential volatility and the fragile nature of Jimmy Carter's relations with the American people. It may well be that the presidency has become so complex that whoever occupies the Oval Office would be beset by massive public doubts. But Carter is the president, and he has now clearly inherited a basketful of troubles.

•In this period of growing friction with the Soviet Union, the president's rating on handling relations with Russia has slipped to 58-34 percent negative, down from a narrow 47-43 percent negative in December. His recent success in building relations with China appears to have led a sizable number of Americans to the conclusion that he has not properly maintained a balance of good will with both the major communist powers.

As has happened before when President Carter has experienced a sharp drop in his overall standing, his losses have been every bit as great among Democrats as among any other group. Back in December, he enjoyed a seemingly healthy 57-42 percent positive rating among Democrats. But in this latest ABC News-Harris Survey, he has slipped to 54-45 percent negative. This drop is particularly significant because it means that once again the president is as vulnerable within his own political base as he is against potential Republican opponents in 1980.

These latest findings, of course, do not mean that Jimmy Carter has begun another extended decline that will place his renomination or re-election next year in jeopardy. They do mean, however, that the chances for this president to rebuild confidence in himself on a steady and solid basis are now slim. The likelihood is that he will be in the grip of events from now on, and his ratings will go up and down according to whether these events are favorable or unfavorable.

Willingness To Fight Prejudice 'Surprises' Veteran Pollster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pollster Louis Harris, reporting on his first survey of racial attitudes in 15 years, said Tuesday he found to his "shocking surprise" that Americans are far more ready to take strides against prejudice than is commonly assumed.

But he said the poll showed blacks, women and Hispanics still feel extensively discriminated against, and that today's most explosive civil rights issue is jobs.

And he found grass roots blacks have lost confidence in their own national leaders.

Harris conducted the survey for the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and discussed the results in remarks prepared for a snowed-out news conference.

"Prevailing wisdom in this country over the past decade has had it that the United States is in the throes of a long hiatus, even a backwash in race relations," Harris said.

But he said while minorities still report substantial prejudice, "by the same token — and this is the shocking surprise of this study — the readiness of the American people to make new strides forward in reducing and eliminating prejudice is far greater than is commonly assumed by the establishment today."

"The assumption that we are mired in a long period of intense reaction against decisive steps in the area of reducing prejudice turns out to be patently false," Harris said.

Citing changes since his last such survey in 1963, Harris said the number of whites who would worry about a black family moving next door has declined from 51 percent to 27; the number of whites who would be bothered if their child brought a black child home to dinner has dropped from 42 percent to 20, and the number of whites considering blacks inferior has gone from 31 percent to 15.

"What is more," Harris said, "when whites who have had contact with blacks are asked about this experience, over 90 percent say it has been 'easy and pleasant,'" and between 70 and 90 percent of blacks say the same thing.

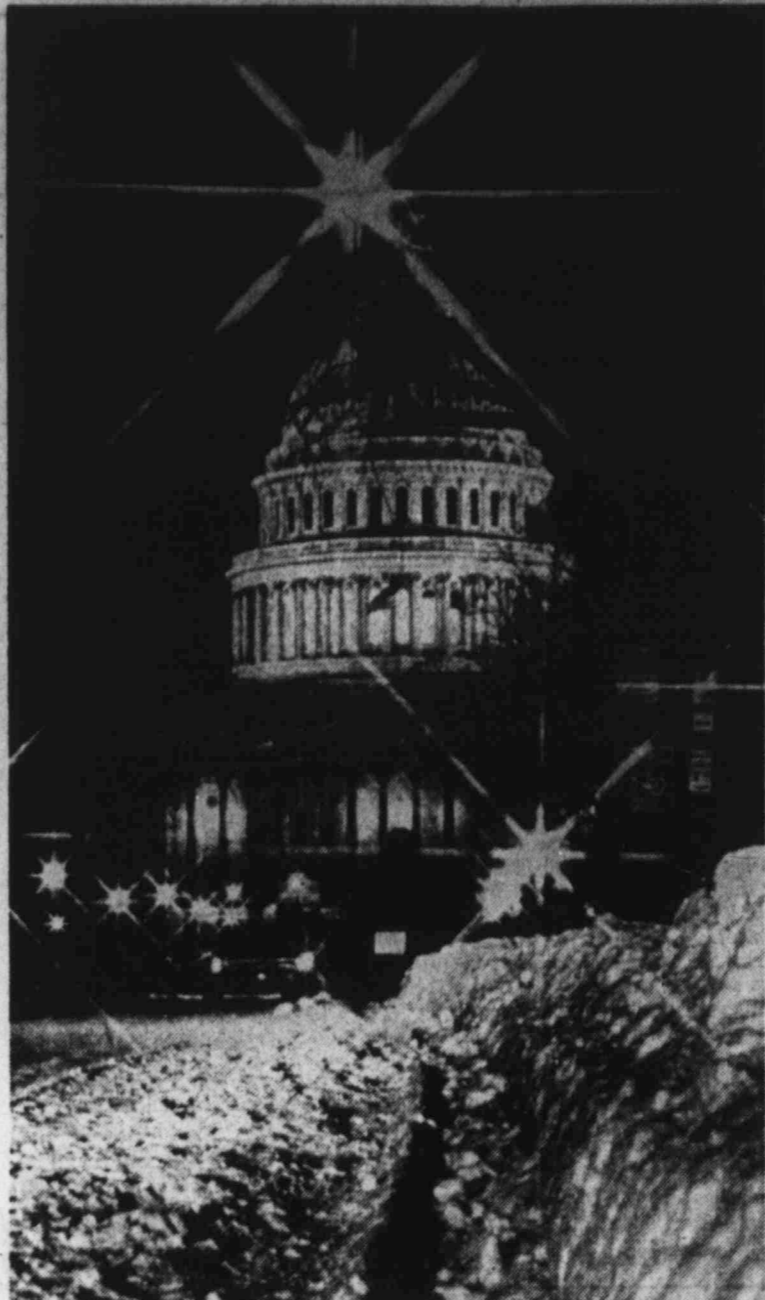

The results contrast sharply with the views of black leaders, he said.

"A sizable majority expressed the view that anti-black feeling is on the rise in this country today, 68 percent feel that most blacks are shut out from real job opportunities, and by 91 to 9 percent they are convinced that as a result of the (Allan) Bakke decision 'there will be a slowing down of hiring of blacks and other minorities.'"

But Harris said, "By any measure, the notion that white attitudes toward blacks have hardened ... turns out to be nothing less than a myth which has permeated throughout an establishment that is sadly out of touch, out of tune, with the people it is supposed to be leading."

"White conscience is there to be appealed to. Black determination is there to bring the issues to the dominant white society."

"If one wants to find a reason why public confidence in the leadership of major institutions in this country has dropped to lows unimaginable 10 or 12 years ago, then the lack of understanding of the actual state of black and white attitudes is a classic example."

Police Battle Snow Looters In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Looters struck sporadically in snowbound Baltimore Tuesday as "wall-to-wall" police patrols tried to prevent a recurrence of widespread disorders a day earlier in which more than 1,000 looting incidents were reported.

While his city struggled to dig out from under a record 20-inch snowfall, Mayor William D. Schaefer imposed a 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew for the second straight night.

He said he did so primarily to allow snow equipment to maneuver, but he conceded that the looting that began Monday and continued at a lesser rate Tuesday was a factor.

Meanwhile, banks, race tracks, schools and many businesses remained closed in Baltimore and throughout Maryland. Most major highways in the state were clear after Monday's accumulations of snow, but rail and air travel were still limited.

Schaefer said he was "disgusted, disappointed and ashamed of" the looters who broke into stores, mostly in those areas where the city has concentrated its redevelopment programs.

"I can't tell you my contempt for them," Schaefer said. "I have no sympathy for people who break in and steal other people's property. There's no place in our society for that."

"It's hard for me to figure out: 'Why, Baltimore?' he added. "Some say they're hungry but you can't eat a television, you can't eat whiskey."

Schaefer said police would have better mobility Tuesday night because the plows were concentrating snow-removal efforts in areas where the crimes occurred Monday.

"The looters won't be able to dart in and dart out of dark alleys and get away through the snow," he said.

By midday Tuesday, Baltimore police had arrested 310 persons on breaking-and-entering charges and 271 for alleged-

Crippled East Awaits Hoped-For Thaw

The weatherman kept promising a thaw, but much of the middle Atlantic Coast region Tuesday was still crippled by more snow than a lot of folks had seen in more than a decade.

"It really looks like a disaster movie," said one resident of Atlantic City, N.J., one of areas hardest hit by Monday's surprise snowstorm that spread accumulations up to 2 feet deep and built scattered drifts as high as 15 feet from Virginia to Connecticut.

"It will take two to three days to dig out," said Police Lt. Harry Stotz in Cape May borough, also in southern New Jersey, where all roads were impassable except for four-wheel drive vehicles.

But few cities were having more trouble than Baltimore, where hundreds of looters — taking advantage of a 22-inch snowfall which had police stymied — continued sporadic ransacking of local businesses.

By midday Tuesday, Baltimore police had rounded up 310 suspects in 1,335 reported breakins, plus another 271 for violating a curfew imposed by Mayor William D. Schaefer.

Schaefer, saying he was "disgusted, disappointed and ashamed" of the looters, announced Tuesday he was continuing his curfew to keep civilians off the streets between 7 p.m. and 5 a.m.

"It's hard for me to figure out," Schaefer said. "Some say they're hungry, but you can't eat a television, you can't eat whiskey."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My bosses don't trust me. I'm a mature woman who works, and it's humiliating. I'm in a three-person office, so it's just me and my two bosses.

Whenever they leave, even if it's just for an hour, they lock their offices. I have no keys, although they have a key to each other's office. Why else would they lock their doors except to keep me out? Many times they will take reports I'm working on and leave without returning them.

I'm not nosy. I couldn't care less about their personal lives, but this is a business office and in order for me to do my job efficiently, I can't keep running into locked doors.

What can I do about it? — Snoopy Sniffer I'm Not

Dear S.S.: Tell your bosses exactly how you feel. I'll bet you get the keys as soon as they can be made up. Not only do those doors need to be unlocked — so do your resentment and anger. Many problems could be solved by being candid instead of stewing in silence and building an ulcer.

Dear Ann: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who said she and her lover had gone to a lonely spot and parked. After disrobing they were interrupted by the police.

This sounds like it could be the shenanigans of my husband. Can you tell me where that letter was mailed from?

About a year ago I found a bra in my husband's coat pocket. When I confronted him with it he said the guys at work do such things as a gag. Do they? — Highly Suspicious Dear Sus.: It's possible — but more to the point, any husband who would carry a bra home with him is a moron. I'd take his word for it.

Sorry, I can't tell you where that letter came from. I never identify the source of my mail.

Dear Ann: What's with people who "comfort" the survivor of a tragedy (a divorce or a death) with such gems as "He/she is better off this way." Then they proceed to tell you about a friend or relative who died in agony of the same illness — "an inch at a time." And how do you like the ones who say, "To tell you the truth, dear, we didn't think your son's marriage would last."

Are these people descendants of Job's "friends," or is it that our language lacks meaningful words of comfort? Or are they just clods? — Hartford

Dear Hart: A little of each, dear. Rise above the small barbs. Most people would DO better if they KNEW better.

Dear Ann Landers: I was especially interested in the letter from "Miss Emotional of the Year." At one time I held the title "Miss Nerves of the Year." She lost her title to "Miss Gall Bladder." I lost mine to "Miss Hepatitis." We joke about it outwardly but it's a very serious problem.

Years ago I went through hell trying to get a doctor to believe I was really sick. The message finally came through when I was rushed to the hospital — almost too late.

My doctors were wonderful, but doctors DO make mistakes. Why don't you tell people? — Lucky To Be Alive

Dear Lucky: I don't need to. They've been telling ME. Would you believe 7,000 letters on this subject!!!!

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been under treatment for high blood pressure the past eight months. My pressure was 150/90. My doctor put me on Hydrodiuril and I have taken it faithfully, but it made me dizzy. I started taking garlic and vitamin C and felt much better. When I told the doctor I had stopped taking his medicine, he became angry and told me I should make up my mind that I will have to take medicine the rest of my life. I started again, but then discontinued it and started the garlic and vitamin C again. My doctor told me the vitamin would not help and the garlic would only give me bad breath.

I am very disappointed to hear a doctor talk this way. Please comment on my situation. — E.G.

I don't have to read between the lines of your letter to guess that you and your doctor never hit it off well from the beginning. Your blood pressure of 150/90 is borderline high and probably does require some follow-up. Your doctor prescribed the high blood pressure medicine, a form of hydrochlorothiazide (water pill). You had side effects that can be expected in some patients. It was at this point that communications broke down. You turned to the garlic and vitamin C, probably based on something you read or heard. Whatever that was it was wrong. Continue to take it if you choose. It cannot hurt you but it will do nothing to control your high blood pressure.

You need medicine for control if your pressure remains high. There are some medicines that may not cause the reactions you get. So what do you do? If you cannot communicate with your present physician any better than you have up to now start afresh with a new one. You needn't be hesitant about doing this.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What do you think about dental floss instead of a toothbrush? — Mrs. P.R.

A question for a dentist, but I am told that flossing is a wonderful way to keep tiny bits of debris from doing damage below the gumline. Brushes are still to be used, so it's not an either-or situation. I'm told that softer-bristled brushes are being recommended these days. With them brushing can be done in a downward or upward direction toward the gumlines (with a gentle circular motion). That accomplishes some of the flossing effects. Some dentists employ hygienists who give instructions on how to floss and brush. Oddly enough, most people do it incorrectly.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My daughter, who just turned 15, started having periods when she was almost 13. She has not had one since for three months. About that time she put herself on a low-carbohydrate diet. She abstains from all sweets, and won't touch things like oranges, apples, potatoes or bread. She has lost weight and has a lovely figure, has abundant energy, and gets up in the morning raring to go. I find it hard to believe anything is seriously wrong, but we can't help wonder why she has missed these periods. Hope you can help. — Mrs. L.M.

By now I assume pregnancy has been ruled out, or it should be by the time you read this. In young girls, especially, any stringent diet might produce a severe nutritional problem and that can be a cause of amenorrhea (absence of periods). Hers may fall into that category, I fear. I hope she has not overdone her weight loss, but if she has, a resumption of proper eating should bring a return of menstruation. Mothers of other starvation dieters should take note.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I never use douches, but do use the vaginal sprays. They help some, but it seems they are not enough protection against odor for me. Could you suggest something for me? I am getting desperate. — M.P.

I might suggest you forget the sprays for a while to allow nature to do its thing unaided. Cleansing of the outer genitals is usually sufficient for most women unless they want to smell like a perfume counter. Some may have to be more diligent than others. My second suggestion is to be examined for a possible infection. The sprays and douches can irritate delicate vaginal membranes and even create a problem that can lead to odor.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can cayenne pepper help my high blood pressure? — J.F.

Can't imagine how. Can you?

By ERMA BOMBECK

A Southern newspaper has, as one of its features, a column devoted to exposing the sanitation or the lack of it in local restaurants.

The list of improprieties consisted of the following:

Food not covered in refrigerator.
Improper dishwashing practices.
Hot dogs soaking in water in refrigerator.

Tank top broken in women's restroom.
Restrooms not labeled.
Cutting board not smooth.

Thermometers needed in refrigerator.
Back door open to flies.

Employees working without proper hair restraint.

Carbon build-ups on pans.
Corroded vent fan.

No soap or towels at sink.
Outdated buttermilk...possibly unwholesome.

I had to stop reading. The list had just described my kitchen.

Keeping a kitchen clean is like trying to tidy up after a sandstorm. Besides, I employ cheap labor. My own kids. Somehow, you don't get the pride from them that you'd get from, say, a transient Mexican alien.

The other night, I walked into the kitchen with a clipboard and made out my own list of health violations.

Dog drinking water out of Old Fashioned glass.
Wet finger running around rim of mashed potatoes pan.

Hair dryer on countertop.
Half-eaten sandwich and glass on back of commode.

Ice cream in carton at room temperature.
Melted ice cubes on floor creating safety hazard.

Fight among kitchen help using cold, hard peas as ammunition...possible danger to cook.

Loading dishwasher while diner is still eating off plate.
Emptying raw garbage into wastebasket with no plan of removing it from kitchen.

As I was writing down the violations, my mother came in, her eyes scanned the kitchen area slowly. "This place is a dump," she said.

My face brightened. "Thank you! I thought you were going to be sarcastic."

Seminar Speakers To Discuss Energy Conservation Methods

A home energy audit will be one part of the Thursday program of the Save Energy Seminar to be held at the Garden and Arts Center. In preparation for this 4 p.m. session, seminar coordinator for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Jane W. Cohen, suggests that participants try to find answers to some key questions concerning present energy uses in their own homes.

In order to ascertain what improvements are cost effective for each home, some specific information is necessary.

The first information which is needed is to figure the square footage of heated areas. Do not include porch or garage areas, unless these areas are also heated.

Next, measure the length of your walls in all four directions, noting north, east, south and west figures.

Then measure windows, again noting direction. Notice what kind of window each is (that is, single pane, double pane, etc.), and also air space allowed.

Do the same with your doors as with the windows. Note whether a door is solid wood or insulated metal.

Check your insulation. What kind is it? If you know its "R Value," note that for the insulation in your ceiling and then in your walls.

Check the air conditioning ducts to determine what kind of insulation each has.

Bring with you to the seminar your latest utility bills, both gas and electric. During the seminar participants will be working with these cost figures.

Mrs. Cohen said this information, and other facts readily known by most homeowners, will be put together to guide families to make the best use of energy in their own homes.

Annual Award To Recognize 'Rural Hero'

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Some deserving individual who has performed an act of exceptional bravery during a time of crisis will receive the 1978 Rural Heroism Award sponsored by the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council.

The council sponsors the annual award program to help promote safety in rural areas, notes Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and vice president for farm and ranch with the Texas Safety Association.

Anyone aware of an individual who risked his or her life to save another is asked to submit a nomination. All entries must be submitted by March 5 to the Rural Heroism Award Committee, Texas Farm and Ranch Council, P.O. Box 489, Waco, Tex. 76703.

According to Nelson, the heroic act or deed must have occurred in Texas during 1978 and should be related to farming or ranching operations.

Nominations should include a written account of the incident and names, addresses and phone numbers of all persons involved. Newspaper clippings and pictures should also accompany nominations if available.

of clubs and the Q J of spades. In this event South could make the contract by running the diamond suit and discarding clubs from dummy.

Running diamonds forced West to follow to the first two diamonds, discard two small clubs on the next two diamonds, and then commit hari-kari on the fifth diamond. He would either have to discard his ace of clubs, unguard his queen jack of spades, or jettison a heart.

The first choice was immediate suicide. The second choice would give declarer three spade tricks. The heart discard would allow declarer to get away with just three heart losers instead of four.

Declarer had proved an old adage: a chance, no matter how slim, is better than none.

Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Experts," P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Individual questions will be answered if accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of Jacoby Modern.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

North tabled his dummy and South felt ill. It was clear that five of either minor, or even six of either minor, was a better contract than three notrump. As often happens in rubber bridge, minor-suit contracts are overlooked in favor of the more desired notrump or major-suit games.

North's two clubs was a Stayman inquiry looking for a major suit. When South's two diamonds denied a major suit, North elected to play the game in notrump instead of probing for the best game by bidding three clubs to show his suit.

A good bridge player does not sulk about might-have-beens. He deals with the immediate problem: in this case, making three notrump.

Declarer saw that he had eight top tricks and that the ninth trick could be won if hearts were divided 6-3 and the defender with six hearts did not have the club ace. The opening lead of the heart five was won by East's king, South withholding the ace.

East returned the heart three, his original fourth-best heart, and South's 10 was won by West's jack. West led the two of hearts, and when East played the nine South knew that the distribution at the beginning had been 5-4, the opening leader having five.

Declarer had just one reasonable hope of making the contract, which was that the opening leader had the ace

GAO Criticizes Youth Summer Job Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The summer jobs program for disadvantaged youth is poorly run and, in a few instances, gives urban youngsters a chance to play for pay, Congress has been told.

The General Accounting Office made assessment in a draft report based on an analysis of the government's Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth.

The report said many of the estimated 1 million youths enrolled in the $755 million program last summer received little meaningful work experience.

The GAO looked into the program at the request of Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.

The draft report, released Tuesday, said, "...The program, as presently operated, is generally not giving many youths the type of work experience they need to increase their future employability."

In some cases youngsters received a full day's pay for half a day's work or less, while in others the "work" was nothing more than recreation, congressional investigators reported. They added that problems were more widespread in urban areas than at rural work sites.

The GAO, an investigative and auditing agency of Congress, also cited administrative problems. It said the Labor Department and local program sponsors were to blame for the shortcomings. And it recommended that Congress avoid expanding the program until it can be brought under tighter control.

In many cases, the GAO report said, the program operates as designed, with youths working as hospital orderlies, library assistants and aides at day care centers.

But it also cited these problems:

—At one site, about half the scheduled activity for most of the 60 participants was set aside for recreational sports.

—At a second site, all activities for 67 enrollees assigned to a park were recreational and included baseball, basketball and swimming.

The program is designed to give youngsters experience in the world of work so they are better prepared to hold a private job when they grow older.

The program is a relatively small part of programs provided for under terms of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), a multibillion-dollar government jobs and training effort which was recently reorganized by the Labor Department in response to sharp criticism over fraud, abuse and mismanagement.

In advance of congressional hearings on the summer jobs program, the Labor Department said it had already implemented many of the recommendations made by the GAO.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

This morning I found something so great I had to sit down and write you. Might be old hat to some, but...

I was washing my kitchen windows this morning. There are fifteen window panes, and I mean "panes." Those corners are murder to try to get a cloth into.

Well, I spied an old toothbrush, so I sprayed the corners with a cleaner, took that old toothbrush and I couldn't believe how great it worked.

This encouraged me to go further. So I took my coffee maker out, my can opener and toaster. All have little ridges and tiny crevices, and wow! Clean as a whistle!

I am never going to be without a toothbrush in my kitchen again. You can let your imagination run further: know how hard it is to get hinges on refrigerators clean?

That's another use for the brush. I'm sure there are many more. Sorry about my scribbling, but have to get back to my toothbrush! — Della Kopp

I sure am glad you decided to take the time to write a cheery note telling us of your enthusiastic discovery. Amazing how some little household items designed for one purpose, serve so many more. Keep up the good work and let us hear from you again. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When sewing on hooks and eyes, or snaps, tape them to the garment with transparent tape first.

They are easier to sew on and won't slip, causing frustrating moments and evil thoughts.

When secured, the tape can be pulled off. — Carole Fowler

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

When I cook cornbread, I cook it in the waffle iron instead of the oven. That way, it cooks quickly, looks good, browns easily, is crispier and tastes better. Doubters should try it. Saves fuel, too. — Walter Madsham

Wow! With recommendations like that,

who could refuse? — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When your child brings home a special drawing or poem, be sure to mark the year or the child's age on the back. It's quite easy to forget exactly when that "treasure" was made. — A Reader

DEAR HELOISE:

This hint may have come from your column. If so, just know how much I've used it; if not, it's a good hint. To get the air out of the plastic bag that you have put cookies, sausage, or what-er, in — to go into the freezer — gather the bag at the neck with one hand. Insert a long drinking straw into the bag beyond where you are holding the bag, and suck the air out. Close the bag with a twist-tie. Makes a nice vacuum. — Tilghman Prosser

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Blue Chips Lead Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip issues, responding to a spate of strong earnings reports and dividend increases, led a rally in the stock market Tuesday.

The advance came as a pleasant surprise to analysts who had been fearful that tension between China and Vietnam might put some pressure on the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 7.54 to 834.55 in its best single-day showing since it rose 8.23 on Jan. 25.

Advances outnumbered declines by about an 8-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The single biggest factor in the Dow's advance was Eastman Kodak, which jumped 2 1/2 to 82 1/2 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York.

The company posted fourth-quarter profits of $2.05 a share, up from $1.40 in the like period a year earlier.

About the time of Kodak's report, shortly after 2:30 p.m., the market picked up forward momentum after having slowly built up a gain of about 2 Dow points through the first two-thirds of the session.

Snowbound East 'Like Disaster Movie'

 spokesman, said the looting was still going on Tuesday, but "on a limited scale," and police had beefed up patrols with a "wall-to-wall" force.
 Between 15 and 20 stores also were looted in Atlantic City, along the famous Boardwalk and Atlantic Avenue. Police arrested 10 suspects.
 "A lot of people were walking up and down Atlantic Avenue even at 3 a.m.," said Deputy Police Chief Joseph Pasquale. "We couldn't believe it. They were breaking windows and just reaching in. "If you call that looting, we had looting, but it wasn't a big deal."

 As the digging out continued, there were growing reports of deaths related to the snowstorm, which had already killed 13 as it moved across Dixie over the weekend.
 Two young brothers riding tandem on a bicycle were crushed to death by a snowplow Monday afternoon in Rockingham, N.C.
 Police said the driver of the snowplow had just started backing up when the boys ran into the back of the machine and were crushed. They were identified as William Robert Bowles Jr., 12, and Charles Franklin Bowles, 10.

 No charges were filed against the driver, Dorus Flowers, who was hospitalized for treatment of shock.
 In Wilmington, Del., a 76-year-old man collapsed and died Monday afternoon while shoveling snow near his house. Authorities said Joseph Woerner apparently died of a heart attack.
 And in Georgia, officials said six persons have died in weather-related incidents.

Most of Washington's 350,000 federal civil service employees were given the day off. The transit system put 250 buses back on the street, but they were not venturing into unplowed secondary roads.
 In Delaware, Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV mounted a helicopter to survey damage from that state's worst snowstorm in 13 years and decided to keep National Guard troops and equipment on duty to clear roads and provide fire and ambulance service.
 In Atlantic City, the only street open was the stoned Boardwalk along the beach and that was used only for emergency vehicles. Motorists were barred from the city because of drifts.

Judge Says Buildings Won't Block View

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The construction of four high-rise buildings across the Potomac River from the District of Columbia would not "visually intrude" on the Washington Monument and other memorials in the nation's capital, a federal judge ruled in an opinion released Tuesday.

"The question for determination in this case is — whether or not the United States can limit the height and bulk of buildings in Rosslyn, Va., on the theory of public nuisance," U.S. District Judge Oren R. Lewis wrote in a 13-page opinion he signed Monday — the observance of George Washington's birthday — and released Tuesday.

"The Court is satisfied from the evidence presented and from on-site views of Rosslyn from various places in the monumental core, that these buildings would not detract from the average visitor's view of the memorials, monuments and parks of our Nation's Capital," the judge said.

The case, brought by Justice Department attorneys on behalf of the Interior Department, was believed to be the first attempt by the federal government to sue a local government over its right to approve such projects.

Rosslyn is a rapidly growing suburb of Washington directly across the Potomac River and closer to downtown Washington than many parts of the city itself.

Interior officials did not comment Tuesday on a possible appeal because federal offices in Washington were closed after Monday's near-record snowfall.

In dismissing the suit and rejecting a request for an injunction to block construction, Lewis noted that Rosslyn was originally inside the 10-mile square designated as the federal district but then was ceded back to Virginia.

He also pointed out that the District of Columbia "is a horizontal city with buildings of a relatively low, uniform height that follow the contour of the land."

Until recently, Congress has maintained a 13-story height limit on buildings inside Washington. That was amended last year to a 16-story limit in certain sections, but Washington is still a city without skyscrapers.

Police In Baltimore Reinforced Against Looters

 by breaking the citywide curfew imposed late Monday at the height of the looting, according to Dennis S. Hill, a city police spokesman.

The heaviest looting in scattered sections of Baltimore took place between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Monday, when stores closed because of the snow and police were unable to drive through the streets, then tapered off during the night and was down to a trickle Tuesday.

"It's still occurring on a very limited scale," said Hill.

Hill said police had received a total of 1,335 breaking-and-entering reports from merchants, although many were believed to be duplicates.

 "There has been a continuation on a much lower scale. But there is a continuation," said Hill.

"There are many more officers than usual on the street," he said. "It's going to be hard for anyone to do anything with wall-to-wall police out there." He refused to say how many officers were on duty.

Police were working 12-hour shifts, with about two dozen National Guard members helping transport city officers, Hill said.

Hill said city police had the situation under control, although about 100 state police troopers were due to return Tuesday night to act as standbys as they had Monday night.

Banks in all except the state's four westernmost counties were closed on orders of Gov. Harry R. Hughes, who said he took the action because so few bank employees could get to work.

Nominees For Academy Awards Announced

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Veteran Oscar winners Ingrid Bergman and Sir Laurence Olivier were nominated for Academy Awards on Tuesday, while two films inspired by the Vietnam War, "The Deer Hunter" and "Coming Home," received a total of 17 nominations.

"The Deer Hunter" tied with the fantasy "Heaven Can Wait" for the most nominations with nine each. "Coming Home" win attention and votes from the academy's 3,600 voting members, who will start screening the nominated films this Saturday.

The awards will be presented Monday, April 9, in a ceremony televised nationally by ABC from the Los Angeles Music Center.

Miss Bergman won her seventh nomination for her role as Liv Ullmann's pianist mother in Ingmar Bergman's "Autumn Sonata." Twice a winner as best actress and once as supporting actress, she was nominated for best actress of 1978, along with Ellen Burstyn for "Same Time, Next Year," Jill Clayburgh for "An Unmarried Woman," Jane Fonda for "Coming Home," and Geraldine Page for "Interiors."

Olivier has been nominated 11 times, tying with Katharine Hepburn for the academy record. This year he has not only been nominated as best actor for his Nazi-hunting role in "The Boys from Brazil," the academy has also voted him a special Oscar for his film achievements. He won the Oscar for his performance as Hamlet in 1948, as well as an honorary award for "Henry V" in 1946.

Others nominated Tuesday for best actor: Gary Busy for "The Buddy Holly Story," Robert De Niro for "The Deer Hunter," Warren Beatty for "Heaven Can Wait," and Jon Voight for "Coming Home."

Nominees for best picture: "Coming Home," "The Deer Hunter," "Heaven Can Wait," "Midnight Express" and "An Unmarried Woman." Missing was "Days of Heaven," which several critics picked as best film of 1978; it was mentioned only in four lesser categories.

The supporting actor nominees: Bruce Dern, "Coming Home," Richard Farnsworth, "Comes a Horseman," John Hurt, "Midnight Express," Christopher Walken, "The Deer Hunter," and Jack Warden, "Heaven Can Wait." For all but Warden it was a first nomination.

Maggie Smith, winner as best actress for "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" in 1969, was nominated as best supporting actress in "California Suite." Others: Dyan Cannon, "Heaven Can Wait," Penelope Millford, "Coming Home," Maureen Stapleton, "Interiors," and Meryl Streep, "The Deer Hunter."

Last year's winning director, Woody Allen, is in the running again with his heavily dramatic "Interiors." Also nominated for direction: Hal Ashby, "Coming Home," Michael Cimino, "The Deer Hunter," Warren Beatty and Buck Henry, "Heaven Can Wait," and Alan Parker, "Midnight Express."

For foreign language film: "Get Out Your Handkerchiefs" (France), "The Glass Cell" (West Germany), "Hungarians" (Hungary), "Viva Italia!" (Italy) and "White Bim Black Ear" (USSR).

Contending for best original song of 1978: "Hopelessly Devoted to You" from "Grease," "Last Dance" from "Thank God It's Friday," "The Last Time I Felt Like This" from "Same Time, Next Year," "Ready to Take a Chance Again" from "Foul Play" and "When You're Loved" from "The Magic of Lassie."

The scientific and technical awards have already been released, as have the special Oscars, which included the award to Olivier. Other winners in that category this year were director King Vidor "for his incomparable achievements as a cinematic creator and innovator," cartoon producer Walter Lantz, the Museum of Modern Art's film library and "Superman" for visual effects.

scored in eight categories, followed by "Midnight Express" with six and "Interiors" with five.

Some 300 reporters and press agents gathered at the glittering new Beverly Hills headquarters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the nominations for the 51st annual awards. Susan Blakely and Academy President Howard W. Koch read the major nominees for benefit of television news cameras.

Publicists promoting films that were nominated sought immediately to purchase advertising space in trade papers to continue their promotional campaigns. An estimated $2.5 million will be spent to

Flaws In Protective Suit Discovered

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — An Air Force report says there are design weaknesses in the protective suit worn by airmen at Titan II missile complexes.

Tests on the suit, called a rocket fuel handler clothing outfit, were conducted after a leak of deadly oxidizer resulted in the deaths of two airmen at a missile complex near Rock, Kan., last August. The report, obtained under a Freedom of Information Act request by the Wichita Eagle, concluded that the suits' manufacturer should develop a test that more nearly demonstrates potential hazards and that personnel need to be better informed about the capabilities of the suit.

Moncrief's Shot Stuns Raiders

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Sidney Moncrief knew it all along, as did Eddie Sutton and Gerald Myers and those other 8,000 or so fans sitting in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Yep, when Moncrief put up a shot with just one second left on the clock and Texas Tech leading 65-64, it was obvious to everyone that the ball was going in the hole.

No questions asked.

The way Arkansas, which hit a remarkable 79 per cent of its shots as a team from the field (the second highest ever by a NCAA team and the best in SWC history) Tuesday night, it couldn't have gone any other way.

"I knew it was going in when it came off by wrist," said a jubilant Moncrief, moments after the Arkansas Razorback had beaten Tech 66-65. "It came off by wrist real nice."

Sutton, the head coach of the Hoggies, agreed: "He (Moncrief) is the man we wanted to get the ball to in that situation.

Even though it looked like he was triple-teamed, I knew when it let loose, it would go in. He had the touch."

Despite playing what Raider coach Myers called "excellent defense on our part," Myers himself looking more dejected than even after the overtime loss to Texas Saturday afternoon pointed out: "It was one of those kind of shots that's just shot so well it has to go in. I saw it bounce real soft and I knew it would go in."

The victory, along with a stunning upset by SMU over league-leading Texas, tied the Horns and the Hogs for first place in the Southwest Conference. It was the third straight year the Hogs have either won or tied for the SWC title.

"That's even nicer than the win," continued Moncrief. "I knew at the start of the year we had the makings of a good team, but there were some people that thought we wouldn't finish that well."

Well, obviously Sidney was right, the critics wrong.

SMU Shocks Longhorns 81-66

DALLAS (AP) — Lowly Southern Methodist shook off an early Texas scoring spree and choked the 11th-ranked Longhorns 81-66 Tuesday night behind Brad Branson's 20 points, knotting the Longhorn's in first place with Arkansas in the final regular season Southwest Conference standings.

Both Texas and Arkansas, which defeated Texas Tech 66-65, earned byes into the post-season SWC tournament to the semi-finals.

Both Texas and Arkansas were 13-3, but Texas will get the better pairing because the Longhorns had the best record against third-place Texas A&M.

Texas, now 20-6 for the year, hit its first seven shots against SMU to build a 14-10 lead, but the Mustangs refused to fold.

With rumors floating about that Coach Sonny Allen's job was in jeopardy, SMU stormed to a 41-31 halftime lead. Branson scored 14 of his points in the first half.

Guard Phil Hale scored 17 points and Billy Allen chipped in 16 for the Mustangs.

Senior post man Reggie Franklin, who are now 10-15 for the year and 5-10 in SWC play, scored 11 points and blocked five shots.

The Mustangs confused Texas with change-up zones, going from a two-three to a one-three-one.

Texas, led by Jim Krivacs who had 17 and Ron Baxter, who scored 15, made a brief run at SMU in the second half. Texas narrowed the count to 57-50 before Franklin got hot, much to the delight of the sell-out crowd of 9,000 in Moody Coliseum.

At Waco, Baylor's senior guard Vinnie Johnson scored a career-high 50 points Tuesday night to carry the Bears to a 109-72 victory over Texas Christian.

The win gave Baylor a tie for fourth place in the SWC standings with Texas Tech, who lost to Arkansas 66-65.

Johnson maintained in a runaway game with and fell one point shy of tying the all-time SWC scoring record, set by Gene Phillips of SMU against Texas in 1971.

Johnson missed a foul shot with 11 seconds left to fall short of the record. He hit 21 field goals and eight free throws for the night.

John Manbury led TCU scoring with 15 points.

Baylor won a coin flip by conference officials between Baylor and Texas Tech to determine the pairings in this weekend's Southwest Conference post season tournament. The Bears will host TCU in Waco Saturday night, and Tech will host Rice in Lubbock.

The win gives Baylor a 9-7 SWC record and 15-11 mark on the year. TCU is 1-14 in the SWC and 6-19 on the year, with one game remaining against SMU Wednesday.

At College Station, Rynn Wright and Rudy Woods combined for 43 points to pace Texas A&M to a 92-60 win over Rice, assuring the Aggies of a third-place finish.

A&M completed the season with a SWC record of 11-5 and an overall record of 22-7, the most victories ever by an A&M basketball team.

A&M, which shot 54.4 percent from the floor and outrebounded Rice 50-27, rolled to a 38-23 halftime lead and never was headed.

Vernon Smith and Joey Robinson, the latter A&M's only 4-year basketball letterman, each scored 10 points. Elbert Darden led Rice with 19 points, and became No. 2 in SWC career scoring.

Willis Wilson scored 10 points for the Bears.

LEVELLAND — For Amarillo Tascosa fans, the only good thing about Tuesday night's bi-district game with the Monterey Plainsmen was that it ended in time to catch the 10 p.m. news.

Monterey then went on to outscore Tascosa 7-3 the remainder of the quarter. In the second period, Monterey had an 11-8 advantage on the scoreboard as Clardy began to give the Plainsmen second shots with tip ins.

McNamara Faces Tough Task

CINCINNATI (AP)—New Reds Manager John McNamara says his biggest job in spring training will be working with young pitchers to develop the pitching staff.
"I know there are some problems that have to be solved. If there were no problems I wouldn't be here," McNamara wrote in a newsletter in his assessment of spring training at Tampa, Fla., next week.
"But I know it is certainly a comforting feeling for me to know that when I walk into training camp that Johnny Bench is going to be my catcher, that George Foster and Ken Griffey are going to be in the outfield, that Joe Morgan, Dave Concepcion and Dan Driessen are going to be in the infield, that I've got a man like Tom Seaver ready to pitch."

Broncos Sign Free Agents

DENVER (AP)—The Denver Broncos signed two free agents Tuesday, bringing to 13 the number of free-agent contracts in effect for the 1979 season, officials of the National Football League team announced.
The latest to sign were tight end Tom Maher, a 6-foot-2½, 235-pounder from California State University at Los Angeles, and defensive tackle Kit Lathrop, a 6-5, 255-pound graduate of Arizona State.
Maher, who finished his college career in 1975, spent the last two seasons with the California Football League. Lathrop is a 1977 graduate who has had tryouts with the Philadelphia Eagles and Detroit Lions.

Perry Rejects New Contract

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Cy Young Award winner Gaylord Perry has rejected a new contract offering exactly what he asked, the San Diego Padres said Tuesday.
Ballard Smith, vice president of the National League baseball club, said "we all agreed to a 1980 contract last week. . . but when we went back to Gaylord with it, there was a new condition we couldn't meet."
"We offered him a substantial raise," said Smith. "It was at the figure he wanted. But then we couldn't meet his new condition."

Bear Released From Hospital

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Doctors said Tuesday Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama received three broken ribs instead of one in a fall in the bathtub of his home Feb. 6.
The veteran football coach was released from a hospital Monday after 10 days of treatment, but he is not being allowed to work a full schedule yet.
Doctors at first thought only one rib was broken but they say X rays taken shortly before his release from the hospital showed two others also broken.

Pair Bound Over To Jury

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two University of Cincinnati football players were bound over to a grand jury Tuesday on charges of receiving stolen goods.
Star freshman tailback Allen Harvin, 19, Willingboro, N.J., and wingback Aaron Hagan, 21, Madison, N.J., were arrested Feb. 6 by campus police. Officers said the two were in possession of a stereo set that had been taken from the dormitory room of another student over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Neal Calls It Quits

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Lloyd Neal, the rugged 6-foot-7 Portland Trail Blazer forward who has been plagued by knee problems in recent seasons, announced his retirement from professional basketball Tuesday.
Neal, 28, has been on the injured reserve list since the fifth game of the current National Basketball Association season.
The Trail Blazers said Neal's retirement was immediate and he will be removed from the Portland roster.

NY Holds First Workout

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The New York Yankees held their first official workout for pitchers and catchers Tuesday with Cy Young Award winner Ron Guidry attracting more of the attention.
Guidry threw for only five minutes on a practice field adjacent to the regular diamond but fans flocked there to watch.
"I was throwing my watermelon pitches," Guidry said. "I take my time in spring training. I don't have to impress people here."

USC Considers Iowa Coach

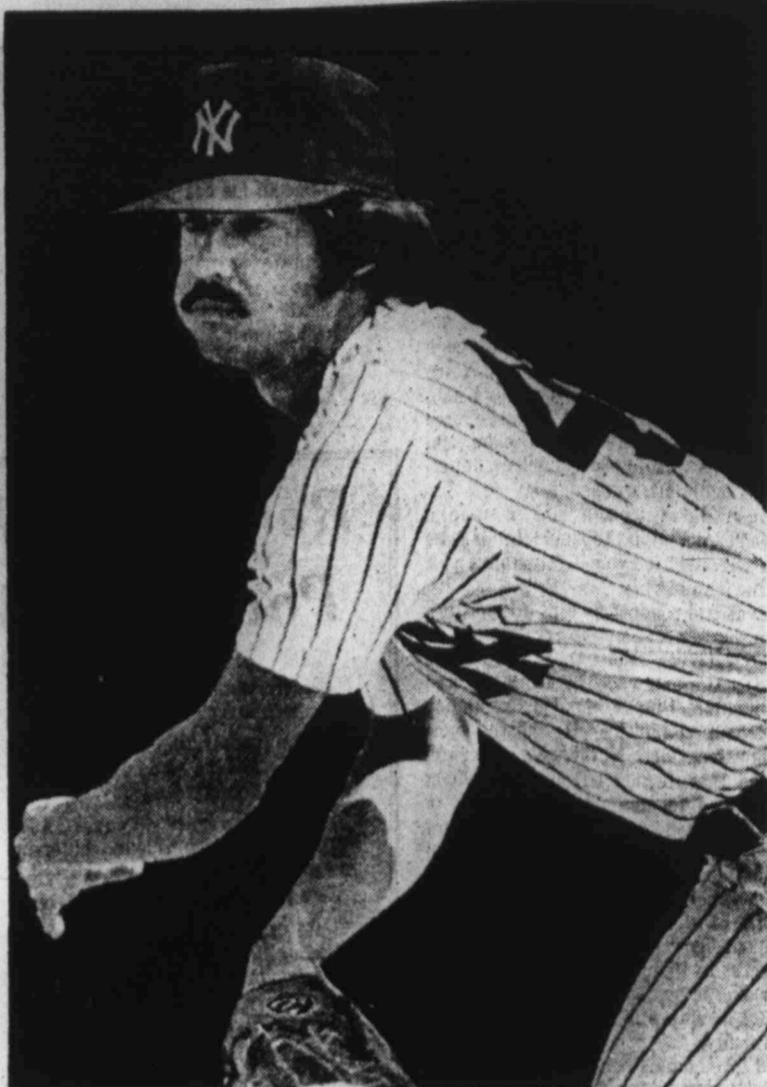

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California athletic director Dick Perry has confirmed that he talked with Iowa basketball coach Lute Olson on Monday about the possibility of replacing Bob Boyd at the end of the season.
Boyd announced last month that he would step down after 13 years as the Trojans' head coach at the end of the current campaign.
"He was on campus," said Perry, referring to Olson. "And we do have permission from Bump Elliott (Iowa athletic director) to talk to him."
"We haven't reached any agreement," continued Perry. "The most important thing to him is winning the Big 10 title. He has a good thing going for him at Iowa."
"He is a possibility. We will continue to look at other possibilities."
Iowa, ranked 12th in the country, has an 11-3 record in the Big 10 and an 18-5 overall mark.

NASCAR Fines Drivers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Grand National stock car champion Cale Yarborough and Bobby and Donnie Allison were each fined $6,000 Tuesday for a fist fight that followed a car smashing incident between Yarborough and Donnie near the finish of Sunday's Daytona 500.
The three drivers can get back $5,000 of their fines, at a rate of $1,000 a race each of the next five times they enter a Grand National event, if their conduct is good, NASCAR officials said.
Donnie Allison also was put on six months probation for the car-knocking that occurred as he and Yarborough duelled side by side on the final lap for the $73,900 first prize.
When the two leaders crashed and spun out, Richard Petty rolled past them to a surprise victory.
Bill Gazaway, competition director for the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, governing body of Grand National racing, said there is no rule that the race leader can run anywhere he pleases on the track.
After an extensive investigation, including viewing television tapes, officials said they decided to deal separately with the incident on the racing surface and the aftermath fight, which occurred on the infield grass.

Malone Expected To Ask $1 Million For Services

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Moses Malone, who bypassed college basketball after high school five years ago, could become pro sports first salaried $1 million-a-year player.

Malone, center for the Houston Rockets, is on the verge of being the next dominant force in the National Basketball Association. And his contract expires after next season.

To have a talent like Malone available as a free agent is an opportunity league owners should greet with open checkbooks. A bidding battle is expected that will make baseball's just-concluded war over Pete Rose seem tame by comparison.

With the possible exception of Philadelphia's Darryl Dawkins, there are no other young centers of Malone's imposing abilities in sight, either playing in the league now or in college.

Malone told several Washington Bullets during their last trip to Houston that he would relish playing in Washington, the nearest franchise to his home in Petersburg, Va.

And, according to the Washington Post, he would enjoy playing on a fast-break team as opposed to the more deliberate style of the Rockets.

Followers of Malone are hardly surprised about his progression to greatness, remembering that as a senior in high school he was considered a legend with numerous basketball skills.

But with no college background and the publicity that goes with it, only now are his growing accomplishments being appreciated by a growing audience.

And the best is yet to come. "I've always been a player," he told the Post in a recent interview. "People just talk about my rebounding, but I don't buy that, no way. I'm a player, I'm a scorer. Why don't they talk about my scoring too?"

"I can do it all, rebound, score the points. I can do whatever I have to. But all anyone sees is my rebounding."

At 24, according to Houston coach Tom Nissalke, Malone has reached "60 percent of his potential. He is getting better every season. I don't know how good he can be."

Even a partially mature Malone can be something to behold. During one 11-game stretch a month ago he averaged 19.8 rebounds and 26 points while shooting 59 percent. That's the kind of heavenly statistics that lead to millionaire contracts.

Malone is a coach's dream — a big man at 6-foot-10 and 235 pounds who works as diligently every minute on the court as some pesky 5-11 guard.

"When you play against Moses," said Washington Bullets Mitch Kupchak, "you have to be looking at him every second. He probably is the hardest guy for me to play. He'll go after everything, which means you never relax. You have to keep boxing him out, making sure he doesn't sneak along the baseline."

No one else in the NBA has been so lethal around the offensive boards because no big man has driven himself so hard. And in time, Malone seems destined to become the league's best rebounder at either end.

Only this year, when his offensive abilities have finally emerged from the shadow of his rebounding prowess, has he been looked upon as the next great big man. "Now, I could always score," said Malone, about his average which has jumped from 19 to 23 points a game. "But you can't put it in unless you get it. If they want to go to me (in the low post) I'll score them some points. You just got to know what I can do and where I need the ball to put it in."

John Lucas, a former Malone teammate in Houston but now with Golden State, is the unofficial president of the Malone fan club. And Lucas says Malone's future is just a matter of spelling. "Moses is just a T away from being 'GREAT.' And when he gets that final letter, everybody just better watch out," said Lucas.

Females Bounced By Court

PARIS, Tenn. (AP) — Members of the Henry County High School girls' basketball team lost another round Tuesday in a sex discrimination complaint over practice time on the school's basketball court.

A three-man committee of the county Board of Education ruled against the girls on two points of their complaint and ordered a compromise on a third.

The compromise will allow both the girls' and boys' teams to use half of the basketball court after classes are over each day.

But the committee ruled that Principal Darrell Rowlett was being reasonable when he assigned the court to the boys' team during the final class period of the school day. And the committee agreed with Rowlett's rule that members of the girls' team must sign out at the school office when leaving class early for a game.

Members of the girls' team filed the complaint in mid-December with William Atchison, a school system official who deals with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare on discrimination affairs.

The girls complained that the boys' team was given exclusive use of the gym during the sixth and final class period of the day. They argued that allowing the girls to practice during the last period would be more convenient and increase participation in girls' athletics.

The girls are now allowed to practice during the third period.

The girls also wanted to be allowed to leave school without having to check out at the office, and they wanted additional practice time immediately after classes end each day.

Atchison recommended that the boys' team be allowed to retain the sixth period practice period this year.

Gregg Signs With Argos

TORONTO (AP) — Forest Gregg has signed a multiyear contract to become the new head coach of the Toronto Argonauts, the Canadian Football League club announced today at a news conference.

Gregg, the former head coach of Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, signed a three-year pact at a reported $100,000 a season — one of the highest salaries ever paid a head coach in the CFL.

Gregg, 45, was an All-Pro offensive tackle with the Vince Lombardi coached the Green Bay Packers in the late 1950s and '60s.

"Forest Gregg was selected for the job as he best suited our particular situation," said Lou Hayman, the man in charge of restructuring the CFL club, in introducing Gregg.

The Argonauts were 4-12 last season under two different coaches — Leo Cahill and Bud Riley. Carling O'Keefe Breweries of Canada Ltd., bought the franchise earlier this year from Bill Hodgson.

Estacado Girls Overtake DHS

Estacado girls came on strong in the final period to overtake hostess Dunbar and win a 43-30, season-ending game Tuesday.

The win left EHS girls with a 4-5 District I-AAA record, and Dunbar wound up district at 2-8. For the year, Dunbar was 8-20. Estacado has one less district game since it had one canceled by bad weather last weekend.

Estacado girls led 11-6 after the first period, 18-16 at the half and 30-26 going into the final eight minutes.

Then turnovers took their toll, as EHS finally took the lead with two minutes left.

Cynthia Harris led the winners with 18 points, and Cynthia Hardaway had 12 to pace Dunbar.

Settlement Approaches In Low Profile Paper Industry Strike

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The longest strike in the history of the U.S. pulp and paper industry appears headed toward a settlement — the sooner the better, as far as West Coast newspaper executives and paper products wholesalers are concerned.

The strike caused the nation's paper production to dip by 4 percent in the final half of 1978, with most of the impact on the West Coast.

"It had a regional impact," said Norma Pace, senior vice president and chief economist of the American Paper Institute in New York. "A West Coast newspaper might not have been able to get its newsprint from its regular supplier, but nationally there was little impact."

In the past 30 days, many newspapers and other consumers of large amounts of paper have begun feeling the pinch of the seven-month-old strike, which at its peak idled 20,000 workers in Oregon, Washington, California and Alaska.

Settlements have been approved by union employees of two major producers, Boise Cascade Corp. and ITT Rayonier

Inc. The three-year contracts, limiting wage increases to 10 percent the first year, 9 percent the second and 8 percent the third, are expected to spread soon to negotiations involving six other paper companies.

Despite the strike, stores have had little trouble keeping their shelves stocked with paper products, and most shoppers outside the communities where the strikes have been going on probably never knew there was a dispute.

But newspapers that normally have several months of newsprint on hand are down to just a few weeks' supply, and several have had to cut down on consumption and take other conservation measures to make sure their supplies are sufficient.

"We got down to about a six-day supply," said Bill Rich, assistant general manager of the Riverside, Calif., Press-Enterprise. "We're up to about a week now."

He said the firm is trying to buy some high-priced newsprint from Norway.

"We're down to less than a month's supply," said Glenn Cushman, publisher of the Democrat-Herald Publishing Co. of Albany, Ore., which operates 10 community newspapers and two small national stamp collectors' magazines.

"This is the tightest we've been with newsprint in four years," said Cushman, whose company is buying 65 percent of its newsprint from Canadian firms. "We have attempted to tighten our paper and eliminate the waste."

The strike began last July 7 at the Boise Cascade newsprint plant in Steilacoom, Wash., and eventually spread to some 40 mills.

But despite the magnitude of the walk-out, the strike involved only a fraction of the U.S. paper products industry, according to commissioner Pat Leyden of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

And most of the struck plants resumed production quickly, staffed by non-union and management personnel.

Royal Bed Not For Sale, Couple Says

LONDON (AP)—Queen Victoria may have slept in it. Ron and Wendy Martin's son was born in it. And they are not selling — not even for $40,000.

They bought the four-poster canopied bed at an auction 20 years ago for $240 and have just been told it was originally in the Royal Palace of Westminster — better known as the Houses of Parliament.

It was used by the Speaker of the House of Commons until it mysteriously disappeared in 1905, and the royal coat of arms and cypher VR at its foot may mean that it was used by Queen Victoria at one time.

The Martins keep the bed in a museum of antiques they operate next to their woollen mill in the little Welsh village of Maesllyn. The huge bed of walnut inlaid with gilt is the museum's centerpiece.

Mrs. Martin said Tuesday, "We're not going to make any hasty decisions about selling it. We've had it for 20 years and it's a great attraction in the museum here. It's not a question of money."

The Martins first realized the bed's history when they read an article about its disappearance earlier this year. They contacted the Victoria and Albert Museum, which authenticated it.

"How a bed that size could have vanished from a royal palace is a mystery, and its reappearance has sparked attacks by members of the British Parliament on the incompetence of officials charged with keeping an eye on treasures kept in government offices."

The bed is only the latest in a series of antiques once lodged in royal palaces and government offices.

Clive Wainwright, deputy keeper of the Victoria and Albert Museum, said there were probably more than 2,000 pieces of 19th century furniture in both houses of Parliament. He added, "There is a curator in charge of all paintings, but no one to look after the furniture, and there should be."

The speaker's bed, in which the Martins' son, Benedict, was born 16 years ago, was originally designed by Pugin, architect of the rebuilt houses of Parliament after they were destroyed by fire in 1835.

'How To' Robber Gets Caught

NEW YORK (AP) — A hearing has been set for March 6 for a man accused of carrying a gun and how-to-do-it notes on pulling a holdup.

The man, Vernon Dixon, 19, was released in his own recognizance after an appearance in Manhattan Criminal Court.

A charge of illegal possession of a knife was dismissed against Richard Reid, 18, who was picked up with Dixon last Friday night on Fifth Avenue at 53rd Street.

Police Officer Roy Zinkiewicz of the Street Crimes Unit said he seized the two when he saw the outline of a gun, a .38-caliber revolver, in Dixon's pocket.

Police said Dixon was carrying notes on staging a robbery and a shopping list, by brand name, of what goods were desired by buyers and what they were willing to pay.

According to police, one note said, "We must hit a store or shop that has no hidden cameras. We must do it abruptly. First go into the place, wire up the employees or proprietor, take the money and then the merchandise, then call a cab."

In the margin next to the "call a cab" note, were the words: "That's stupid. Try to get a van or a car."

FREEWAY SLIME

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Traffic on the Harbor Freeway was disrupted for more than three hours when a dump truck carrying 16,500 pounds of sea urchins overturned, dumping a "goopy mess" on southbound lanes, authorities said. The yellow, 2-to-3-inch live sea creatures, a Japanese cooking delicacy, created "a big slime" when the truck overturned Monday, said Wes Curtis, state Transportation Department operations officer. Crews used sand to soak up the "slippery mess," Curtis said. Aside from damage to sea urchins, no injuries were reported.
