

Saudi Arabia Cancels Talks With U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an apparent sign of strain, Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Fahd has canceled talks here in mid-March with President Carter.

The State Department attributed the cancellation to health problems. But the Saudi embassy did not agree.

"He is in perfect health," embassy counselor Essa Abdulla al-Nowaiser told a reporter. "You are welcome to see for yourself."

U.S.-Saudi ties have been strong. The kingdom is the primary supplier of U.S. oil imports. The conservative Saudi rulers also are considered a force for stability in the Middle East — a role that took on greater significance with the toppling of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in Iran.

Announcing the cancellation, Thomas Reston, a department spokesman, said that Fahd, who is the strongman behind King Khalid, was obliged to cancel the March 14-15 visit "because of health reasons which may require hospital tests."

Reston said Washington learned of the cancellation "very recently" and "with great regret."

However, the spokesman also acknowledged that despite close ties between the two countries, "differences may occur from time to time, as they do in any relationship."

At the Saudi embassy, al-Nowaiser said he knew of no plans for any Saudi official, including Prince Saud Faisal, the foreign minister, to come here in the crown prince's place.

"The embassy has no news of any delegation," said the Saudi counselor.

In disclosing the cancellation earlier, White House press secretary Jody Powell had cited health reasons.

But the Saudi Arabian embassy issued a statement saying the cancellation came about "through the mutual agreement of the two governments in order to provide the time needed for a comprehensive study of the issues of mutual concern which are to be discussed by the president and the crown prince."

Confronted with the statement, a White House official, insisting on remaining anonymous, said, "We understand their reluctance to discuss this point, but this is the fact of the matter."

At the daily White House briefing later, Powell said that Fahd's "visit has been postponed and we are given to understand it is for matters of health." Powell said he was not in a position to discuss the specific health problem or to comment "from this podium" on the different explanation for the cancellation offered by the Saudis.

The press secretary said that the question of setting a later date for a visit by Fahd or arranging a Carter meeting with another Saudi official was under discussion.

There had been speculation that the crown prince, scheduled to confer with Carter beginning March 13, might be uncomfortable visiting Washington on the heels of the Middle East peace talks now being conducted at Camp David, Md.

The White House official said the administration was aware of Saudi concerns about the Camp David talks and the possibility of a second Middle East summit conference there. But, he insisted, "that is not the reason for the postponement of the visit. The guy is sick."

The official said the undisclosed illness forced Fahd to keep former President Gerald R. Ford waiting two hours for a meeting and also forced a delay in a meeting Fahd had scheduled with Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

He said administration officials have been working "for several days" on setting up a new meeting schedule.

The White House official said there had been some discussion several weeks ago about a visit by Prince Saud, but that no visit was ever scheduled.

Meanwhile, negotiations over a stalled Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty were in a third day at the presidential mountaintop retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains.

There was no indication whether Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was making any headway in talks with Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

A blanket of secrecy imposed on the talks by the Carter administration barred release to the public of any details of the discussions. A bland statement issued for all three governments said the sessions were informal, friendly and serious.

With the toppling of the shah, the Saudis have shown signs of nervousness in recent weeks. To allay these concerns, the United States temporarily based a squadron of F-15 jet fighters there temporarily and Brown brought reassurances of U.S. support to Riyadh earlier this month.

pararily and Brown brought reassurances of U.S. support to Riyadh earlier this month.

Nevertheless, there are reports of Soviet overtures to Saudi Arabia to establish diplomatic relations, and the Saudis have withheld vital backing to Sadat in his peace bid to Israel.

On Thursday, Carter said he had approached the limit of "legitimate influence, or even pressure perhaps in a proper way" on Saudi Arabia and Jordan to support Sadat. He indicated he did not expect any sudden move by the Saudis to line up behind Egypt.

Realty Board Gets Briefing On Sewage

By RAY WESTBROOK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Board of Realtors was briefed Friday on a new on-site sewage treatment system for homes and commercial establishments built away from city facilities.

Bob England, initiator of England Systems, a mini-sewer system manufactured by Country Living Co., was introduced to Lubbock Realtors and financial representatives at the meeting by Truett Craft, owner of England Systems of Lubbock Inc.

Craft, a Lubbock homebuilder, has installed a number of the self-contained units at various locations in the county.

England, a former pharmacist and graduate of the University of Texas, told the realtors that initial work in setting up a dealership network to market and install the units is like trying to market the first automobile or airplane—it is selling against tradition.

However, England cited efficiencies in the system's drip irrigation component which make the equipment attractive to homeowners and businesses.

The system, which consists of a three-chambered fiberglass tank, a submersible pump and an air compressor, processes raw sewage to a purity level required for irrigation purposes.

The equipment is capable of processing up to 1,000 gallons per day. It contains within the tank module an anaerobic area where bacteria breaks down the sewage in an atmosphere without oxygen, an aerobic area where an atmosphere of oxygen is utilized, and a third area where the effluent is pumped out by submersible pump into the drip irrigation network.

Long-distance connections to central sewage systems are becoming economically prohibitive, according to England. He suggests the installation of the mini-sewers also is a solution to smaller communities where the central system has reached capacity.

He said that any property which can be connected with electricity and water can now be equipped with a sewage system.

Called a Nutt Shell System by its developers, the method has been accepted by the State of Texas, counties and municipalities, England indicated.

Brown & Root officials have acquired the system for use in a salt dome project at Matagorda, he said.

The Sunnyvale School District near Dallas recently equipped their facilities with the system at a cost of approximately $25,000, when connection to a central system would have cost $84,000, according to England. He pointed out that as the school grows, additional units can be added.

England, in proposing the system for high-density dwellings, said large apartment projects have previously been restricted to city locations because of sewer requirements.

England noted that two homes could share a common treatment facility by perhaps utilizing a third-party ownership and maintenance plan.

States Reconsider Drinking Age Laws

BOSTON (AP)—The Vietnam era saw 18 states accept the argument "old enough to fight, old enough to be an adult" — and, in the process, drop the drinking age to 18.

Now, after years of rising teen-age alcoholism, lawmakers in several states have changed their minds.

Massachusetts, where the Senate has acted to raise the age to 19 and the House wants to raise it to 21, will likely become the sixth state to reverse itself after lowering the drinking age in the early 1970s.

Maine and Michigan have already restored former age limits of 20 and 21 respectively. Minnesota, Montana and Iowa compromised at 19.

Throughout the nation, advocates of a lower drinking age say teen-age drinking can't be controlled by law. But many feel differently.

"There are people within the field who feel the restriction will lessen abuse of alcohol," said Paul Garner, a National Institute of Alcohol Abuse spokesman.

"But no agreement has been reached." Today, the debate in Massachusetts illustrates the kind of dialogue going on in other states where, when federal law lowered the voting age to 18, state legislatures followed suit. Massachusetts was one of 18 that lumped the right to drink with the right to vote.

But soon after it took effect on March 1, 1973, the new limit became a favorite target of police, the Registry of Motor Vehicles, and high school principals. They blamed it for aggravating problems related to teen drinking — problems already there, but to a lesser degree.

"We feel it was a disaster," said Mike Donovan, an assistant to Boston's police commissioner. "Not only have auto accidents and fatalities increased, but it has also created a very serious increase in vandalism and crimes associated with street gangs."

Donovan said vandalism grew to "epidemic proportions" by last summer. Special patrols were created to break up gangs of young rowdies hanging out — and drinking — on streetcorners and parks.

"If you talk to people who live across the street from parks, they'll tell you the quality of life definitely went down since the drinking age was lowered," Donovan said.

Many people between the ages of 18 and 21 had been drinking long before the lowered age went into effect — often, for example, when college seniors would buy liquor for underclassmen.

But now, high school officials say, there has been a "trickle down effect" in which the seniors buying for friends have been seniors in high school — and their friends have been as young as 14.

"You could almost pinpoint drinking problems in the younger kids to the time they lowered the drinking age," said Carmen Rinaldi, headmaster at Brookline High School. "Monday mornings became very difficult for students who spent the weekend getting bombed."

One argument used by those who want to raise the age is that there has been a jump in fatal accidents tied to teen-age drinking. Nobody disputes that there has been an increase, but opponents say the jump has not been as dramatic as the other side paints it.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles' figures are the ones most often cited by those who want the age lowered. Last year, 105 drivers under 21 had been drinking when involved in fatal accidents, as compared to 38 in 1971. Meanwhile, the total of under-21 drivers in fatal accidents rose from 232 to 301. The total of all highway deaths dropped.

Those who want to lower the age say the figures show a 150 percent increase in deaths of teen-agers who drank and drove. Opponents cite the increase in all teen fatalities — a less dramatic 30 percent rise.

And one opponent, State Sen. John W. Olver, says the Registry has been "lying" by allowing investigators to use personal judgment to decide whether drinking was involved. He says that method can affect statistics if the Registry sets out to prove a point.

Olver cites, instead, state police lab tests showing alcohol in the blood of about 55 percent of under-21 drivers killed in traffic before 1973 — a statistic that rose to about 70 percent later.

Olver, a former University of Massachusetts chemistry professor, also argues that the problem of teen-age drinking existed before 1973. "A lot of people think we're going to raise the age and wipe our hands and everything is going to be hunky-dory," he says.

"It's not going to be like that."

Even critics of lowering the drinking age concede that changing the law without taking other steps would do little to solve the problems.

The National Institute of Alcohol Abuse says 95 percent of teen-age boys have experimented with alcohol by the time they reach 18, whatever the law says, and girls will soon be at the same level.

"I don't think the problem will go away even though I think they should raise the age," said Rinaldi, the Brookline High School headmaster.

In any event, this is not the first effort to raise the age here — but this year it stands a greater chance of success.

In 1978, the legislature acted to do so, but then-Gov. Michael Dukakis vetoed it. Then, last fall, candidate Edward J. King came out for a higher drinking age — and went on to defeat Dukakis.

Many Iranian Cities On Brink Of Anarchy

KHORAMSHAHR, Iran (AP) — Mine sweepers rest at anchor, their crews gone. Armed men rule the street and the police chief cannot enter his station. This mud and brick city is teetering on the brink of anarchy.

And the situation here on the Iraqi border, where flowers bloom year round, is repeated in countless other Iranian communities.

It illustrates the problems facing the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in restoring order, following the overthrow of Iran's 2,500-year-old monarchy.

"The main problem we have is the lust for power many people have found," said Ali Farzam, the city's minister of justice.

"The only cure is for the central religious leadership in Tehran to assert itself and force local committees to abide by their rules. Otherwise, we will have anarchy," Farzam added.

He said that unless law and order are restored soon, fighting will break out among Arabic-speaking tribes, which inhabit oil-rich Khuzestan province, threatening the security of the oil fields.

Khoramshahr's religious leader, Ayatollah Mohammad Taher Shobbar Khaghani, says the new regime faces problems but believes they are small compared with those of other countries in the throes of revolution. Ayatollah, which means "Mark of God," is a title of respect for a man learned in Islam. His rank in the Moslem clergy would be like an archbishop.

American Ag Group Sets Paducah Meet

PADUCAH — Members of the American Agriculture Movement will meet at 7:30 tonight at Paducah City Hall.

Discussions will include the future of family farms, farm cooperatives and an update on American Agriculture activities in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Irless Brooks, mother of 20-year-old Irless Gene Brooks who is with the tractorcade in the nation's capital, said, "If American Agriculture efforts fail it is just a matter of a very few years before there will be only trilateralist-supported conglomerates, corporations and foreign countries who will be in control of America's farm land."

INMATE BURGLARS CAUGHT
WOODBRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Two Rahway prison inmates who managed to sneak out almost nightly to go on a burglary spree have been caught, authorities say.

"After every revolution, disorder and lawlessness are natural," said the Iraq-born Khaghani. "I must say, the disorder and upheaval that followed the Iranian revolution is much less than what happened in other countries. We hope we will soon be able to put an end to disorder through democracy and Islamic law."

Nearly two weeks after the revolution, Khaghani and the religious community appear to be having only limited success. A gang of young toughs, known locally as the "kid Mojahedeen" — after Iran's major Moslem guerrilla organization — still holds the central police station and has refused repeated appeals to let the newly appointed chief enter the grounds.

A customs official appointed by the religious committee has reported to work three times, only to be arrested by his employees and hauled off to the local ayatollah, who then released him.

With the collapse of nationwide authority, power is vested in local committees operating under the joint tutelage of ayatollahs and the central Khomeini committee in Tehran.

In the spirit of post-shah democracy, the people elected Khoramshahr's committee, but after various groups objected to the choices, the committee was dissolved and a new one elected.

The new elections brought fresh charges that the members were unqualified. Finally, in desperation, Ayatollah Khaghani appointed his own committee, which has set up offices in what used to be a guest house for U.S. Navy advisers. The advisers are gone and most of the 20,000 members of Iran's navy have deserted the Persian Gulf base.

After purging the old city regime, the new leadership found itself without qualified officials for such routine duties as police, courts and administration. The committee reappointed Farzam, a judge for six years, to his old justice ministry post, although he expects to be purged again some day.

"I might not be a right person regarding ideology," Farzam said. "But the revolutionary leadership realizes I am needed to start the process." Farzam said much power is in the hands of armed bands that have sprung up here following the looting of police stations. These bands, which include escaped criminals, search cars and arrest anyone they please, he said.

"We don't know how many prisons exist," he said. "We really don't know how many people have been arrested."

Ayatollah Khaghani believes he can retrieve the weapons and suppress the secessionist tendencies among the Arab minority.

"Since most people in Khuzestan are devout religious believers, we will try to convince them to hand in their arms and avoid doing anything wrong," the ayatollah said. "I do not deny that some groups will oppose us, but they are a minority and we will try to convince them through logic and the opinion of the majority."

People Continue Smoking In Spite Of Warnings

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Dee Merritt of Mill Valley, Calif., thinks smoking is "an absolutely dumb habit... detrimental to my health."
But the 42-year-old Miss Merritt, owner of a travel agency, also says she likes to smoke. "I think it has to do with a hidden psychological need (and) nothing will make me stop smoking until I can find out what that need is."
There are an estimated 54 million tobacco smokers in the United States. They are told, almost daily, of new links between smoking and cancer, smoking and heart attacks, smoking and ulcers.

Every time cigarette smokers pick up a pack, the reminder is there, ordered by the government: "Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health."
That warning stems from a 1964 surgeon general's report that linked cigarettes to lung cancer in men. Last month, on the 15th anniversary of the first study, the surgeon general issued another report, confirming the dangers, not only from lung cancer, but from other illnesses as well and not only to men, but to women.
Why do so many millions of people ignore the warnings? Why, like Miss Merritt, do they keep on puffing?

"Obviously, it's pleasurable," said William Dunn Jr., head scientist at Philip Morris Inc.'s research center in Richmond, Va.
"The fact that something is dangerous is not enough to keep people from doing it," said Dan Horn, a retired researcher who worked on the first surgeon general's report and gave up smoking as a result.
"For many people, it's a matter of making a choice," said Horn. "Many smokers don't realize the very high probability of injury." They read the reports, but figure it won't happen to them, they'll get away with it. "Well," said Horn, "not very many people get away with it."
He added: "It's surprising how few people express a real liking for their smoking... Most say they do it because it does something for them... kind of an anxiety reducer."
A new study indicates that the death rate from lung cancer will probably decline in coming years because many smokers have switched to cleaner cigarettes. But the doctors who conducted the study — which was reported Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine — said that smoking is still dangerous and should be avoided.
A Mankato, Minn., farmer who asked not to have his name used, said he doesn't believe all the warnings. "People who have smoked for years are still alive," he said.
Lloyd Busch, 34, a Ph.D. candidate at Emory University's Institute of Liberal Arts in Atlanta, knows that smoking is bad for him. "I guess I rationalize that the damage has been done... I think I'm one of those people who smoke and get a positive jolt out of it."
Philip Morris' Dunn said many people are "getting quite a bit of pleasure out of the simple act of smoking." He said smokers look at the risks of illness and often think: "I'm willing to take my chances of being that one (who gets sick)."
Dunn added: "There are two motivations involved in the case of the smoker... The initiation of smoking when one is young — this is peer pressure, the creation of an image of oneself...
"The maintenance of the smoking act is something else again... Many of us feel there is some central nervous system effect... Smoking seems to improve our coping efficiency."
Gary Bertonson, an Ohio State University researcher, says that smokers may be extra-sensitive to stress; the nicotine can help them deal with that stress. "In that sense," he said, "it's therapeutic and that's why I think people smoke."

Bertonson is studying the effects of nicotine on rage behavior in cats and how human smokers at different nicotine levels react to stress-filled situations. "We believe that nicotine has an inhibiting effect on certain types of motivational arousal," Bertonson said. "For smokers, nicotine restores them more to the norm... It's restoring people more to what non-smokers feel."
Dr. Jerome Jaffe of the New York State Psychiatric Institute said there are distinct groups of smokers, each of which has its own reasons for continuing.
"I think that some smokers have... ways of convincing themselves that it (the danger) either doesn't apply to them or that it's not immediate... Then there's a sub-group of smokers who say that this is something that makes them feel better... They'd rather live a few years less and enjoy themselves... They don't feel that good about themselves and they don't feel that good about the future."
"Another group says they simply can't function without cigarettes... Some of them manage to deny everything. They don't see the warnings. They don't want to hear them. They don't want to think about them. They are determined not to change."

Smoking Damage Down, Report Says

BOSTON (AP) — Safer, cleaner cigarettes developed by the tobacco industry mean today's smokers run less risk of lung cancer than those who lit up 15 years ago, a study shows.
The researchers said examination of lung tissue has shown far less cancer-linked damage to smokers' lungs in the 1970s than was evident in people who used cigarettes in the 1950s.
"We feel that, in time, this will presage a decrease in the incidence of lung cancer," Dr. Oscar Auerbach, one of the researchers, said in an interview.
The study, conducted at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in East Orange, N.J., was published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine.
The doctors examined samples of lung tissue taken from 445 men who died from causes other than lung cancer between 1955 and 1960 and between 1970 and 1977.
Cells in the lungs of recent smokers had at least 10 times fewer pre-cancerous abnormalities than those of people who smoked 15 years ago, the researchers said.
However, despite the improvement in the cancer outlook, the doctors warned that smoking is still dangerous. About 100,000 Americans are expected to die this year from lung cancer caused by smoking.
"We don't have a safe cigarette," said Auerbach. "The safest thing, of course, is not to smoke."
The doctors attributed the improvement in lung conditions to the tobacco industry's production of cigarettes with less tar and nicotine. The highest-tar cigarette sold today delivers less tar than the lowest-tar brand available before 1954.
The researchers looked for abnormalities in the cells of the lining of the bronchial passageways which are believed to be an early warning of lung cancer.
They found that among men in the 1950s group who smoked more than two packs a day, 22.5 percent had these changes in their lungs. However, only 2.2 percent of heavy smokers who died in the 1970s had these abnormalities.
The differences were also dramatic among lighter smokers. For instance, 13.2 percent of those who used 20 to 39 cigarettes a day in the 1950s had cellular changes, compared with 0.8 percent in the later group.
The doctors found no abnormalities in the lungs of non-smokers.
The new study did not examine other ills that have been linked to cigarette smoking, such as emphysema, throat cancer, heart attacks and ulcers.

Arms Sales Miss Goal, Audit Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's declared policy of reducing U.S. arms sales worldwide has had little success, congressional auditors reported Friday.
The administration managed to achieve last year's $8.6 billion ceiling only by counting part of the sales against future years, General Accounting Office auditors told a House subcommittee.
And since U.S. arms sales have not dropped significantly, the GAO auditors testified, Carter's policy has not achieved its second goal of getting other industrial nations to follow in cutting arms sales.
But the GAO auditors said they could not supply full details because Carter's own advisers refused to cooperate fully with the GAO's investigation of U.S. arms sales.
"We got nothing from the National Security Council, absolutely nothing," J. Kenneth Fasick, director of the GAO's international division, told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. "They refused to discuss it with us."
"There is no doubt that the State Department advised the other departments to provide only limited information to us," Fasick testified.
But Fasick said his auditors got enough information to conclude that U.S. arms sales have not dropped significantly.
The only measure on Carter's arms sales reduction policy is the ceiling, $8.6 billion last year and $8.4 billion this year, that covers only part of total U.S. arms sales.
The ceiling is strictly on weapons sales, not other military-related sales such as construction, and does not cover weapons sales to major U.S. allies.
In fact, Fasick said, "total U.S. arms sales increased to the highest level in history in 1978," an estimated $15 billion.

But Fasick said the Carter administration met even the $8.6 billion ceiling only by counting part of the sales against future years.
For example, he said, only $1.5 billion of the well-publicized $2.5 billion sale of F-15 jetfighters to Saudi Arabia was included in 1978 figures.
A State Department official who did not want to be named said the figures were only realistic because not all of a sale is made in any one year.
The official said the $8.6 billion was a reduction from $9.3 billion the previous year on the sales covered by the ceiling.

Israelis May Get Iran's Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel might get its F-16 jet fighters about 18 months earlier than scheduled because Iran is backing out of an agreement to buy 160 of the advanced U.S. warplanes, Pentagon sources said Friday.
Defense Secretary Harold Brown was reported giving careful consideration to a request by Israeli officials to "go to the head of the line" for F-16 production earmarked for Iran before the shah was ousted.
The sources, declining to be identified, said the Israelis made their proposal during Brown's visit there last week.
Under a program approved by Congress last year, Israel is due to receive 75 F-16s in fiscal 1983 at a cost totaling $1.5 billion, counting spare parts, ground equipment and support.
Since the recent overthrow of the shah, the Iranian government has informed the United States that it intends to cancel the proposed purchase of 160 F-16s, along with other military hardware orders. Israel wants to step in and receive its F-16s from the earlier production run, which sources said had been allotted to the Iranians.
The F-16 is destined to be one of the U.S. Air Force's mainstay fighters in the future, along with the heavier F-15 which Israel has in limited numbers. The F-16 is a single-seat, single-engine, lightweight plane.

As described by the Pentagon, the F-16 is designed to fly a large number of sorties with a rapid "turnaround" on the ground between missions. It is credited with "exceptional air combat maneuvering performance along with good air-to-surface weapons delivery capability."
During Brown's visit, the Israelis reportedly won approval for improved Sidewinder air-to-air missiles for their fighter planes. They also received assurances of getting sophisticated early-warning equipment to strengthen their security against possible surprise attack after they give up advanced positions in the Sinai to the Egyptians, assuming an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty is signed.
The Israelis scaled down by about 20 to 25 percent their previous 10-year plan for a massive arms buildup that had been projected to cost $10 billion to $12 billion.
Meanwhile, defense sources provided more specific details on a multibillion-dollar arms request laid before Brown by the Egyptians when he was in Cairo last week.
In addition to 300 F-16s, the Egyptians were said to have requested 500 tanks, at least 2,000 armored personnel carriers, C-130 transport planes, helicopters and a variety of vehicles and howitzers.

Teen Drinking Set As PTA Discussion

Teenage drinking will be discussed by Wright Carlisle, director of the Lubbock Council on Alcoholism at the Feb. 26 meeting of the Coronado Parent-Teacher Association.
The two-part meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Coronado Auditorium.
During the second part of the program, parents will meet with counselors for each grade level to learn what students' next year's requirements will be. Parents of seniors will be explained the meaning of various college entrance exams and procedures.
Students are welcome, also parents and ninth graders from Wilson, Evans and McKenzie Junior High Schools.

FIND STRENGTH FOR YOUR LIFE — ATTEND CHURCH

Faithful Friend

A true friend is one of life's richest treasures. Sooner or later, we discover who our real friends are . . . and we cherish them.

Many years ago an old shepherd died. His dog was at the train depot when the man's casket was placed aboard the train. For years after the dog lived at the depot. . . he met every train, watching each passenger, always disappointed in not finding his master. Everyone loved the dog and after he died a monument to him was built on a hill above the depot.

We all need to know that we have the kind of friend who really cares about us. The man who walked the dusty roads of Galilee 2,000 years ago wants to be your lifelong friend. Nothing can separate you from His endless love and concern.

Rediscover the warmth of a friendship that never fails. Worship this week.

Russians Tell Chinese To Withdraw

MOSCOW (AP) — Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov warned China on Friday to withdraw its troops, tanks and artillery units from Vietnam but stopped short of threatening Soviet military action.

Ustinov said in a speech marking Soviet Armed Forces Day that the "Soviet people wrathfully condemn the adventurist actions of the Peking leaders ... and unanimously declare their full solidarity with Vietnam, with which the Soviets signed a mutual aid pact last year."

But as in all earlier Soviet statements on the fighting, Ustinov gave no hint of what Moscow might do if the Chinese do not pull their troops out. A Kremlin statement last Sunday warned the Chinese to stop the invasion "before it is too late."

The Chinese launched the invasion last Saturday, sending infantry, artillery and tank columns into Vietnam along a 450-mile front. The Vietnamese described

Near-Crash Blamed On Controllers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lack of coordination among overworked air traffic controllers was responsible for a near-collision at New York's LaGuardia Airport last summer, the National Transportation Board says.

The board said Thursday a jetliner carrying 103 persons and a private jet nearly collided because a ground controller cleared the big jet to taxi on a runway where the smaller jet was taking off. A collision was avoided when the captain of the DC-9 saw the smaller jet approaching and flashed his landing lights.

the invasion as a war of aggression but the Chinese said its troops were fighting to put a stop to repeated incursions by Vietnamese forces into Chinese territory.

Soviet press reports from Vietnam made no mention of the Chinese bombing raids into Vietnam that were reported by intelligence sources in Thailand. The Soviet press described battlefield action and said it got the information from the Vietnamese news agency.

Reports from Vietnam carried by the official Soviet news agency Tass were couched in heroic terms, describing the Vietnamese as "dealing a crushing counter blow ... fighting staunchly ... hurling back the invaders."

Soviet newspapers and television also carried reports of condemnation of the Chinese from around the world, and the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said China was showing "a total disregard for the standards of international law" and engaging in "gangsterism."

The Soviet Union has not gone beyond the wording of that initial statement on Vietnam, in which it said Hanoi "has reliable friends" but did not suggest what these friends were prepared to do in the face of the Chinese attack.

Continuing a new Soviet theme, Pravda dealt out some of the blame to the United States, which it said acquiesced in China's plans for the invasion.

the population about the hostilities," Tass said.

The Soviet press also continued its criticism of British proposals to selling military equipment to China, citing domestic criticism of these plans in a dispatch from London.

On the evening television newscasts, announcers showed the battle regions on bright yellow maps of north Vietnam and repeated the Tass accounts of Vietnamese battlefield reports.

Soviet viewers have been shown no newsreel footage of the fighting, although there have been some films showing burned out buildings in areas reportedly attacked by the Chinese.

Tass said the Chinese have "categorically prohibited the posting of any wall posters and also the listening of foreign radio broadcasts."

Landmark Rape Case Reunites Couple

By Murray Olderman
SALEM, Ore. (NEA)—John and Greta Rideout became notorious in the first trial ever in which a wife charged her husband with rape.
Since John, who could have gotten 20 years under Oregon's new rape law, was acquitted Dec. 27 after a six-day trial in the Marion County Circuit Court, they have continued to be a center of attention in this tiny little capital city straddling the Willamette River in central Oregon.
Ten days after verdict, John and Greta, who had gone through an often-stormy, four-year marriage, were drinking beer and playing pool at Vidal's, a local hangout, and announcing to the world they had rediscovered each other, as well as God.
Many of the burghers of Salem, not without some reason, are resentful. Officially, the rape trial cost them, as taxpayers a total of $9,000.
"Actually," says Charles Burt, "it probably cost closer to $50,000 or $60,000 when your figure up the 25 men from the sheriff's office who worked on it, and the jurors' time and the other extra court costs."
Burt, president of the Oregon Trial Lawyers Association, defended Rideout. His fee is $1,000 a day for trial work, plus $20 an hour for out-of-court time, and he figures he put in 150 hours. That figures to a tidy sum of $9,000, and he's not sure how he's going to collect it.
Since the trial, John Rideout has been on and off jobs as a cook.
When he took the Rideout case, Burt had no idea he'd be getting calls at 6 o'clock in the morning from a newsman in London, or that he'd be interviewed by reporters from Los Angeles and New York.
"To me," he insists, "this was just another criminal defense. I expected a two-day case. It went to six. I was amazed it created so much attention."
The reason it did, according to local editor Wes Sullivan, is "because here was an opportunity to look inside and relate to it. They were two immature people whose fantasies were brought to reality."

In retrospect, Burt thinks the Oregon legislature made a mistake in changing the law so that marriage is not a factor in a rape charge. (Besides Oregon, Iowa and Delaware allow prosecution of a husband for the rape of his wife, and New Jersey passed a law that will go into effect in September.)
"Cohabitation should be a defense to forcible rape," he believes. "Sexual acts between married people ought not to be a crime."
"There's an old rule among divorce lawyers — physically battling couples invariably reconcile. She'll get a black eye and complain, 'The dirty rotten beast beat me.' But they get together."
Greta carried a black eye to the police station with her claim last October that John attacked her.
The Salem Women's Crisis Center, to which Greta was referred by a counselor in a local mental health program last summer, took an advocacy position in her suit. Helen Bibelheimer, a volunteer case, befriended her and sheltered her.
"I met her at the police station," recalls Helen. "right after this happened. From the testimony, I felt he was guilty, though I don't see him as a giant threat to society. It's a pity that it took a trial to let themselves know how they feel about each other."
"Greta pursued this," says Norma Joyce, a spokesman for the Crisis Center, "because she's got a basic belief in justice. The decision by the jurors, unfortunately, will make women aware how hard it is to get legal protection."
"Rape in marriage is not that uncommon. Women have considered it a part of abuse."
In Marion County, the statistics show, one out of every 268 women was forcibly raped in 1977.
"Fifty percent of United States women are abused in marriage," claims Joyce, "and 77 percent of rape goes unreported."
But it is Burt's rather macho attitude toward the incident that is the prevailing one in Salem, where the sympathy swung to John, particularly after the revelations of Greta's sexual adventures. She claimed she was also attacked by her step-brother and had lesbian fantasies.
No one involved here, however, sees a rash of prosecution or any deep national implications from the Rideouts. The flightiness of the Rideouts, both in their personal lives and the circumstances of their reconciliation, has evoked more cynicism than a serious consideration of the entire issue of husband-wife rape.
"There was public sentiment," says Burt the lawyer, "to get rid of this nonsense."
And what of the Rideouts? Instead of a legal landmark, they'll probably wind up a trivia question in 10 years. The momentary basking in notoriety has to give way to the reality of settling down.
"As they say in the fairy tale," concluded editor Sullivan in an editorial in The Oregon Statesman, "may they live happily ever after."
Privately, he muses, "And you know how much chance they have of that."

Human Dummy No Stranger To Danger

By TERESA THOMPSON
NORMAN, Okla. (NEA) — As an entertainer, Bill Fuqua never thought he'd be stabbed in the back.
Not literally, at least.
But Fuqua's act as a human mannequin and mechanical man is so convincing that he was once inflicted with a 2½-inch knife wound by a man determined to prove to his wife that Fuqua was merely a dummy.
The man went to jail and Fuqua to the hospital for three weeks with a punctured lung. Yet, the ingenious act was to go on — but only with expensive insurance and security officers in strategic locations.
"I have Lloyd's of London insurance," says Fuqua, an assistant manager for a local department store. "But instead of just one part, I have to insure practically my whole body."
It's no wonder. Fuqua has been not only stabbed, but poked, stuck with pins, spit at. At the 1964 World's Fair in New York, he had acid thrown at him.
"I ripped my coat trying to get it off," he recalls.
Fuqua has since acquired a personal bodyguard, Fred Esquivel.
"Fred's job is, if he sees anything flying towards my Adam's apple, to stop it," says Fuqua.
Esquivel also plays an important part in the mannequin's act. Since a store-display dummy can't move, Fuqua must have some means of transportation to and from his set. So Esquivel supplies the means.
"I never walk on or off," Fuqua explains. "I'm always carried."
Fuqua's notoriety as a "fashioneer" has earned him appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show," "The Tonight Show," "To Tell the Truth" and "ABC's Wide World of Entertainment," to mention a few. He has promoted hundreds of shopping centers, stores and car dealerships and attended countless conventions in the United States and Europe.
Fuqua has also been listed in the "Guinness Book of World Records" for the longest period of voluntary motionlessness almost every year since 1965, when he froze for 4½ hours.
Last July, the 32-year-old broke his own record by sitting immobile on a motorcycle for 6 hours and 31 minutes, with only a five-minute break each hour.
How does he do it, this man who can go without blinking for 40 minutes?
"You have to learn to discipline yourself...it's the old thing about the fly on the nose — ignore it and hope it'll go away. You hear what's going on, but you can't let it affect your emotions," Fuqua says.
Fuqua launched his unusual career quite accidentally. As a joke during the 1964 Christmas season, he posed like a statue in the yard of a friend. Passersby were so convinced he was artificial, a part of the display, that his friend offered him money to continue the charade.
That sum was insignificant compared to what Fuqua would eventually earn for his ability to do nothing. A New York City department store once paid him $1,300 an hour for five hours to entertain from its window.
For a long time, Fuqua made a standing offer of $100 to anyone who could make him break character during a performance. He never had to pay off, but was subjected to the strange antics of several people — some of whom would even disrobe.

"I've seen adults turn to kids," he says. As often as possible, Fuqua turns on the straight face and the glassy-eyed stare, his love for dramatics unending. Last Halloween, for example, he and Esquivel appeared on the job as Count Vesco and Derf (Fred spelled backward) complete with a casket rented from a local funeral home.

Fortune Cookies Adjudged Literature, Not Food

By WILLIAM J. O'NEILL
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Some cookies make better reading than eating.
Fortune cookies can be munched and swallowed, of course, and some people enjoy their bland flavor.
But the unknown genius who first introduced the paper-stuffed treats at a California restaurant around 1920 was more concerned with literary than culinary taste, judging from the fortune cookie recipe given in the February issue of National Geographic World.
The magazine's recipe calls for just the basics — butter, flour, egg whites, and sugar, with a little salt, vanilla extract, and tea for seasoning.
Where the cookie that comes with the

The principal ingredient has always been the slip of paper that is deftly folded into the freshly baked cookie before it cools.
Though fortune cookies evidently were an American invention, they are now served in Chinese restaurants around the globe. World points out that the "Chinese" cookie has even made its appearance in China.
The magazine doesn't say whether in China the cookies ever contained one-liners from Chairman Mao's little red book.
In the United States, however, devotees of Chinese cuisine report an apparent shift in the cookies' texts, with homilies replacing fortunes.
Where the cookie that comes with the check at the end of the meal once offered intriguing promises that "You will live in splendor," or face "Pleasant times in interesting surroundings," some cookies now read like the Farmer's Almanac.

"Make every minute count" sounds more like Poor Richard than the I Ching. "Everything happens for the best" is straight from Bartlett's, while "Silence often masks wisdom" may have been taken from an old Charlie Chan script.
Fortune-cookie addicts often have favorites, culled from countless Chinese dinners on various continents, that they have treasured for years.
"You like to have your own way, and are, on occasion," owes more to Confucius, as do "Tonight is yours, be bold" and "The time to make friends is when you need."
On the other hand, a wordy admonition that "A man is measured by the number of tasks finished, not the number of jobs started," does nothing to lighten an eight-course meal.
While people may prefer evocative messages such as "You will meet a forgotten friend," or "Your prospects are turning brighter," they may have to settle for more aphorisms like "Time heals all wounds" and "Old age makes us more wise and more foolish."

As the head of one baking company that churns out fortune cookies to be boxed and sold in supermarkets and restaurants explained: "You just can't write that many fortunes."
One ton of flowers yields only two pounds of essence used in making fine perfumes.

Hints from Heloise

HELLO THERE:

I have written several articles on plain old courtesy: This seems to be a thing of the past.

When I was on my way to work this morning, it was pouring rain and, of course, there were people standing on the street waiting for the bus.

The water was over the curbs — yep, you guessed it, the cars were driving by at a high rate of speed, not caring that they were drenching the poor people standing there waiting in the rain.

I don't really know if the people mean to be discourteous or if they are just in such a hurry they don't stop to think.

In either event, I'm sure these people are in the minority and not the majority. Hugs and kisses to y'all. — Heloise and drop them in the mail chute on our front door.

I place a box on the small shelf in the cart and put rubber bands, paper clips, pens, pencils, scissors, dust cloths, etc., anything that I might need. "It ain't easy" but it sure makes me feel self-sufficient, and that's what counts. — Mildred Dodek

DEAR HELOISE:

You know how tools often get rusty? Well, not anymore. All you have to do is put moth balls or moth crystals in your tool chest or tool drawer.

It helps dry up the wetness or humidity and your tools don't get rusty. — Annie Spott

Sure sounds worth a try to save those tools. Be sure and keep the moth balls away from children — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Do you have a hard time keeping up with stray buttons? It seems that after every washday I find a couple of buttons in the washing machine. But I took care of that!

Now I have a safety pin on the top of my washing machine. When I find a stray button, I simply slip it on the pin and close it.

When I do my ironing (I should say when I am forced to do my ironing), I pin the safety pin on my ironing board along with two or three needles threaded with different colors of thread and when I come across the garment with the missing button I can sew it on right then and there.

Also cuts down on nagging husbands about missing buttons and makes for a better day. — Jackie Lawrence

DEAR HELOISE:

I enjoy your column and look forward to it every day.

We all have rubber bands and twistems all over our kitchen cabinet drawers.

Well, I solved this by getting a plastic pill container about four inches long and two inches round. I put my twistems inside and the rubber bands around the outside.

Sure saves a lot of time when you are in a hurry and need them. — Mrs. Esther Szaba

DEAR HELOISE:

Why have dusty-looking black or navy cotton dresses when it is simple to put bluing in your rinse water for these garments and keep them a true black or navy.

This is fine for cotton T-shirts or dark slips also.

Hope this hint will perk up tired blacks and blues for others. — Mrs. Goldsmith

DEAR HELOISE:

I can't walk by myself and I find a walker inconvenient, so I bought a small grocery cart and had large initials made to personalize it.

I can now make my beds, take the soiled laundry to the washer and do the washing. I can take my dishes to and from the table. I can even take my letters

Community Hospital Initiates Program

Community Hospital of Lubbock, 5301 University Avenue, will have the organizational meeting for its new volunteer program on Monday at 10:30 a.m. at the hospital. Volunteer services director, Louise Stokes, said the hospital needs volunteers to work in patient care and in the gift shop.

Volunteers, men and women between the ages of 17 and 80, will be trained in the area of the hospital in which they choose to work.

All persons interested in becoming volunteers at Community Hospital are invited to the Monday meeting. For further information, call Mrs. Stokes at 795-9301.

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y., 10017. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Family Violence Seminar Topic

Advance registration is now being accepted for the South Plains Conference on Family Violence which will be held next Friday and Saturday in the First Christian Church. Cost for the conference and materials is $5. Registrations can be mailed to Family Violence Conference, P.O. Box 802, Lubbock, Tx. 79408. Billed as "a conference for people - lay and professional - living in the South Plains," the meeting is sponsored by the Ad Hoc Committee on Domestic Violence. The Rev. Clark Ross, pastor of First United Church of Christ, is coordinator for the seminar.

The conference will open with coffee at 8:30 a.m. Friday. Terry Davidson of New York, author of "Conjugal Crime," will be the keynote speaker. A panel discussion on the local aspects of the problem will also be presented.

The Friday afternoon session will be spent in small workshop groups which will discuss ways individuals can relate to the problem and the ways community institutions can work more effectively in such situations.

The Saturday morning session which begins at 9:30 a.m. will involve all participants in "brainstorming" and community action planning. The conference will conclude at noon.

Anyone wanting additional information about the seminar should call Rev. Ross at 747-4936.

WHAT'S UP?

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

What's up in wealth?

The rich really are different from the rest of us. Here's proof from the hall of fame of wealthy eccentrics compiled by Bert Greene and Phillip Stephen Schulz for their new book, "Pity the Poor Rich" (Contemporary Books):

Most penurious: Hetty Green, the turn-of-the-century "witch of Wall Street," who wore the same dress for so long that it turned from black to green.

Second most penurious: Howard Hughes.

Most home-loving: German industrialist Alfred Krupp, who built his mansion in the middle of his steel works. Grit and soot settled over the home so quickly that fresh linen and clothing had to be purchased weekly.

Most bone-picking: John D. Rockefeller, who, believing he had been overcharged for a chicken dinner, meticulously counted the bones on each plate to determine how many birds had actually been consumed.

Most bankable: W.C. Fields, who feared "the greed of bankers" so much that he divided his funds among accounts in 700 banks worldwide.

Most puzzled: Queen Elizabeth II, who fills her purses with unfinished crossword puzzles because she is not allowed to carry cash.

Most untainted: Aluminum king Henry J. Kaiser, whose distaste for handling "dirty bills" kept his secretary running to the bank for fresh ones.

Most pettish: Irene du Pont, who spent much time in his Cuban garden teaching the iguanas to come when called.

Most unfamiliar: Sandra, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller III, who changed her last name to Ferry because she could not stand the burden of being a Rockefeller.

Queen is puzzled.

What's up in finger food?

Except at picnics, picking up chicken drumsticks with the fingers is still frowned upon. But the number of foods that may be eaten with the fingers does seem to be expanding, according to this partial list from Letitia Baldridge's "The Army Vanderbilt Complete Book of Etiquette" (Doubleday):

- Artichokes
- Asparagus (unless covered with sauce)
- Bacon (if crisp)
- Celery
- Frog's legs
- Corn-on-the-cob
- Whole pickles
- Radishes
- Pizza
- French fries
- Potato chips

What's up in eyes and ears?

Be alert for early warnings that your child may have trouble seeing or hearing:

The National Easter Seal Society suggests that parents ask themselves the following questions about their children's vision:

- Is my child often unable to locate and pick up small objects that have been dropped?
- Does my child frequently rub his or her eyes or complain of eye pain?
- Does my child have red, watering or encrusted eyelids?
- Does my child hold his or her head in a strained or awkward position (tilted to the side, for example) when trying to look at a person or object?
- Does my child sometimes or always cross one or both eyes?

The Easter Seal Society also asks parents to consider these questions concerning their children's hearing:

- Does my child fail to turn to face the source of strange sounds or voices by the age of 6 months?
- Does my child have earaches or ringing ears?
- Does my child talk in an unusually loud voice?
- Does my child not respond when I call from another room?
- Does my child always turn the same ear toward a sound he or she wishes to hear?

If your answer to any of these questions is yes, the Easter Seal Society suggests that you quickly consult your doctor, public health nurse or another health professional. The society reminds that the earlier such problems are caught, the greater the chance that your child can be helped.

What's up in onions?

Ever wonder why the United States leads the world in consumption of mouthwash, toothpaste and breath mints? The reason could be the nearly 13 pounds of onions consumed per capita by Americans each year.

Here are more facts about onions:

The onion is a member of the lily family.

Raw onions contain such minerals as calcium, phosphorus and iron as well as vitamins A and C, thiamin, riboflavin and niacin.

One cup of chopped onion contains about 65 calories.

The onion is one of the oldest known vegetables. It has been cultivated since prehistoric times.

Onions are grown the world over, though most frequently in temperate climates. They grow in all 50 states, although commercial production is concentrated in California, New York, Texas, Michigan, Colorado, Oregon and Idaho.

Annual per capita consumption of onions has remained within the 11- to 13-pound range for several decades.

Most people buy their onions in raw form. Most of the 2.2 pounds of dehydrated onions consumed per capita in 1976 were added at the factory to processed foods.

Purchases of frozen onions — mainly french-fried onion rings — average out to slightly less than half a pound per person per year.

When marketing, select hard, firm onions with dry skin and small necks. Avoid those with fresh sprouts.

Onions kept best in cool, dry, well-ventilated places.

What's up on television?

There is nothing but trash on television? No, says The Christophers, a Roman Catholic organization that annually recognizes television specials affirming "the highest values of the human spirit."

This year's winners are:

- "Les Miserables" (CBS)
- "The Defection of Simas Kudirka" (CBS)
- "Lovely: A Circle of Children, Part 2" (CBS)
- "One in a Million: The Ron LeFlore Story" (CBS)
- "Any Place but Here" (CBS)
- "Bing Crosby: His Life and Legend" (ABC)
- "The Class that Went to War" (ABC)
- "Mojo and Dad Can't Hear Me" (ABC)
- "Long Journey Back" (ABC)
- "Little Women" (NBC)
- "Rodto Red and the Runaway" (NBC)
- "A Woman Called Moses" (NBC)
- "Darfien" (PBS)

The Christophers gave special awards to Milton Berle for his "comic genius," to the late Archbishop Fulton Sheen for his "Life is Worth Living" show and to CBS's "Lou Grant" for its "consistent quality in the dramatization of social and moral issues."

HAIR HERE — Jerry Saslow, a 33-year-old fireman from Miami, has a problem with the hair on his chest. Or rather, the Miami Fire Department has a problem with Saslow's hairy chest. The Fire Department wants Saslow to submit to a cardiogram as part of a physical test that would involve the partial shaving of his chest. Saslow, who is a bachelor, claims that this would be disfiguring and disrupt his social and romantic life as well as his modelling career. (AP Laser-photo)

What's up in noses?

Barbra Streisand may have refused to alter her distinctive nose for Hollywood. But "Funny Girl" Fanny Brice, who Streisand portrayed in her first film, did. And so have many other stars of past and present.

These are some of the young hopefuls who submitted to changes of nose, according to a Viva magazine excerpt from the new book "Flesh and Fantasy" (St. Martin's Press):

Dean Martin
The Gabor sisters
Carolyn Jones
Peter O'Toole
Suzanne Pleshette

Rita Moreno
George Hamilton
Joel Grey
Sissy Spacek
Nanette Fabray
Joan Hackett
Jill St. John
Raquel Welch
Talia Shire
Mario Thomas
Annette Funicello
Barbara Eden

In addition to Brice, the stars whose noses went under the knife in mid-career include Lee Grant, Dinah Shore, Al Jolson, Alan King, Mitzl Gaynor and Milton Berle.

BIRTHDAY ALMANAC

Compiled by the editors of The World Almanac

Feb. 25 — Enrico Caruso (1873-1921), the most admired Italian operatic tenor of the early 20th century. He sang more than 600 times at the Metropolitan Opera from 1903 to 1920.

Feb. 26 — Johnny Cash (1932-), the singer and composer who is one of the most successful and popular stars of country and western music. His recordings include "Folsom Prison Blues," "Ring of Fire" and "I Walk the Line."

Feb. 27 — John Steinbeck (1902-1968), the great American novelist. He won a Pulitzer Prize in 1940 for "The Grapes of Wrath," about the experiences of an Okie family that attempts to find a new life in California after the Dust Bowl. He was awarded a Nobel Prize in 1962.

Feb. 28 — Linus Pauling (1901-), the chemist who won a Nobel Prize in 1954 for his discoveries about the atomic structure of proteins. In 1962, he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his advocacy of international disarmament, becoming the first person to win two unshared Nobel Prizes.

March 1 — Glenn Miller (1904-1944), the bandleader and arranger. His orchestra, featuring the Miller saxophone sound, much-copied and instantly recognizable, was one of the most popular during the big band era. His hits include "In the Mood," "Moonlight Serenade" and "Sunrise Serenade."

March 2 — Sam Houston (1793-1863), the frontiersman, soldier and political leader. He was a U.S. congressman and governor of Tennessee before commanding the Texas revolutionary army. When Texas won its independence from Mexico, he became the republic's first governor. He served for 14 years in the U.S. Senate after Texas joined the Union.

March 3 — Jean Harlow (1911-1937), the actress who was one of the top Hollywood box-office attractions in the early '30s as a wisecracking "platinum blonde." Her films include "Hell's Angels," "Dinner at Eight" and "Red Dust."

Study Shows Students Prefer Mixed Drinks

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Contrary to popular belief, college students like mixed drinks better than beer, and imbibe at a rate slightly greater than that of their parents, a new Florida State University study shows.

The survey of 589 undergraduates and their drinking habits also indicates college men are more likely to drink than women, and that students prefer to indulge at bars with their friends, instead of at home.

The research also indicates a high percentage of students combine drinking and driving, and few — like their older counterparts — are willing to admit alcohol abuse, even if they exhibit the symptoms.

The research was conducted by Dave Persky, a doctoral candidate, who helps run a campus alcohol awareness program.

"People who show behavior of a drinking problem may be the last to admit it," Persky said, explaining why only 10.7 percent of the drinkers acknowledged they might have problems.

In contrast, 40 percent said they drank primarily to get "high" or drunk, and 12.9 percent admitted they drank to escape problems.

While legends abound about fraternity beer bashes and the copious amounts of brew consumed, Persky's findings show 53 percent of the students favor bars as a place to drink and like cocktails better than beer from the tap.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET AMEX

Board Drops Second Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Shares of Polaroid Corp. suffered the most dramatic decline Friday as the stock market recorded its second straight loss.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 5.29 to 823.28 on the heels of a 5.98-point drop Thursday, finishing the holiday-shortened week with a net decline of 3.73.

The daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange showed about two losers for every stock that gained ground.

Polaroid tumbled 5 1/2 to 43 3/4 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York on turnover of more than 1.2 million shares.

Late Thursday the company posted a fourth-quarter earnings gain of 14 percent to a record $1.32 a share, but the figures came in below most advance estimates.

And the surprise touched off institutional selling of the stock. One block of 245,000 shares changed hands at 42 1/2.

Heading the list of percentage losers was another familiar name in the photography business, Fotomat, which fell 1 1/4 to 11 1/4.

The company said its fiscal-year earnings would fall short of previous expectations.

The general market, meanwhile, was faced with wariness over intensified fighting between China and Vietnam and a new bit of adverse inflation news.

Intelligence sources reported that the Chinese had launched air strikes on Soviet supplies near the port of Haiphong, marking China's deepest penetration into Vietnam in the fighting which began about a week ago.

The government's weekly report on consumer prices, issued Friday afternoon, showed a 0.9 percent rise last month.

The figure, which was closely in line with advance estimates, translates to an annual rate of 10.8 percent.

Volume on the Big Board slowed to 27.75 million shares from 26.29 million Thursday.

Nixon Helped Thaw U.S.-Sino Relations

By BARBARA McDOWELL

When President Nixon alighted from Air Force One in Peking on Feb. 21, 1972, one of his first moves was to extend his hand to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

It was a gesture rich in symbolism. Relations between Washington and Peking might have evolved much differently had Secretary of State John Foster Dulles not spurned Chou's proffered hand at a 1954 Geneva meeting.

"It was probably the most expensive display of rudeness of any diplomat anywhere, ever," wrote journalist Theodore White, a World War II acquaintance of the Chinese Communist leader. "Chou became a dedicated enemy of American diplomacy for many years. Yet, it was Chou and ex-cold warrior Nixon who were most responsible for the gradual thaw in relations between their countries.

The men's new attitudes reflected the changing times. The communism that seemed so frighteningly monolithic in the 1950s had been fragmented by the deterioration of the Sino-Soviet alliance. Peking now felt it had as much to fear from Moscow as it did from Washington.

Within weeks of his 1969 inauguration, Nixon set events in motion by successfully seeking a renewal of the informal ambassadorial-level discussions between the United States and China that had taken place intermittently since 1955 in Geneva and Warsaw.

Then — through public utterances and private messages relayed by heads of state friendly with both governments — the American president made increasingly clear his desire for better relations with the "People's Republic" (not "Red China," "Communist China" or "Peiping," the terms used by previous administrations).

He launched a series of measures easing trade and tourism between the two countries. The United States dropped its long-standing opposition to Peking's admission to the United Nations, though it still opposed the ouster of Taipei from the world body.

The first big breakthrough for the new policy came in April 1971, when the U.S. Table Tennis Team was invited to tour the Chinese mainland. "We have opened a new page in relations of the Chinese and the American peoples," Chou told his U.S. visitors.

Three months later, National Security Adviser Henry Kissinger slipped away during an Asian fact-finding trip to meet with Chou in China. Out of their two days of meetings came the Nixon visit.

At the end of Nixon's week-long "journey for peace," the two nations issued the Shanghai Communiqué, which

LAWSUIT OVER WILL

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A Hanover Township man, who says he spent the best years of his life caring, cleaning and cooking for the woman he lived with for 24 years, says he is entitled to more than the $2,000 she left him in her estate. In a suit filed in Superior Court here, Vincent Brango is seeking to overturn a will in which Gertrude Lang, who died Nov. 27, left him her dog, her furniture and $2,000 from the sale of the house they shared for 19 years. The rest of Miss Lang's estate was left to her two sisters, a brother, and a nephew.

pledged continued efforts toward normalization of relations. In the document, the United States acknowledged that "there is but one China and that Taiwan is a part of China" and pledged to reduce its military support to the Nationalists "as the tension in the area diminishes."

Nixon had hoped to recognize Peking late in the second term. But things had not progressed beyond the opening of "liaison offices" before Watergate intervened.

Other events prevented Nixon's successors from speedily carrying out his intentions. President Ford had to reassert U.S. support for Taiwan following the Communist takeover of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia in 1975. And President Carter had higher diplomatic priorities in Panama and the Middle East.

But the new Chinese leaders who succeeded Chou and Mao Tse-tung continued to press for full normalization of relations. Now they were motivated not only by apprehension of the Soviets; at the urging of Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, China had reversed Mao's go-it-alone economic policy to seek increased trade and developmental assistance from the West.

Finally — yet with the appearance of dramatic suddenness — President Carter and Chinese Prime Minister Hua Kuo-feng announced that formal relations between their countries would be established on Jan. 1. Noted their joint statement: "Normalization of Sino-American relations is not only in the interest of the Chinese and American people but also contributes to the cause of peace in Asia and in the world."

Eastern Recruits Locals

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Not too many moons ago, when Belly 32 was called in the huddle, Mike Chatham's stomach would get tense, and his feet would become numb.

Once upon a time Chatham took a handoff against Coronado, then cut toward the right sidelines.

Chatham remembers every detail of the run, because it was his longest from scrimmage. The Estacado runningback dashed 30 yards down the right sideline, while Coronado halfback Randy Lusk watched Chatham run by the Mustang bench.

Now, the two Lubbock gridders will no longer be on opposite sides of the field. Both signed national letters of intent this week to play college football at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

"Yeah, I remember the run," smiled Chatham. "But you can't find it in any city record books. It never counted. One of my teammates had clipped on the play and they brought it back."

But that was three seasons ago. Since that time, Chatham has played quarterback and last season middle linebacker. Now, ENMU has recruited him as a fullback.

Eastern's plans for Chatham makes Lusk cringe. After all, until Jack Quarles took over the Coronado controls this season, Lusk was listed as a running back.

But Lusk fits into the Greyhound football picture as a linebacker.

Quarles switched Lusk from the offensive backfield to linebacker this season, because "He's the best linebacker we had in camp," said the coach. "Randy was the quickest player we had in camp."

Last season, Lusk averaged 15 tackles a contest, had one pass interception and five fumble recoveries.

"I would have to say my sideline-to-sideline pursuit is my strength at the position," said Lusk. "My weakness, I'd say is picking up the back out of the backfield."

Lusk was named to the 4-AAA all-district team, was selected to the all-city squad and was chosen all-South Plains. Chatham's post-season honors included 1-AAA all-district, player of the year on the all-city team, all-South Plains and second team Class AAA all-state.

"I've got good enough speed to break away," said the 5-10 1/2 Matador senior. "I've got good speed for 40 yards. No. 55 yards. Heck, I look at Robert Newhouse. If he can make it at runningback, I know I can."

There's more of an emphasis on running," frowned Chatham. "I'm also going to have to work on improving my strength. After all, runningbacks get hit a lot more."

Both players received 10 college scholarships. However, Lusk and Chatham wanted to stay near home.

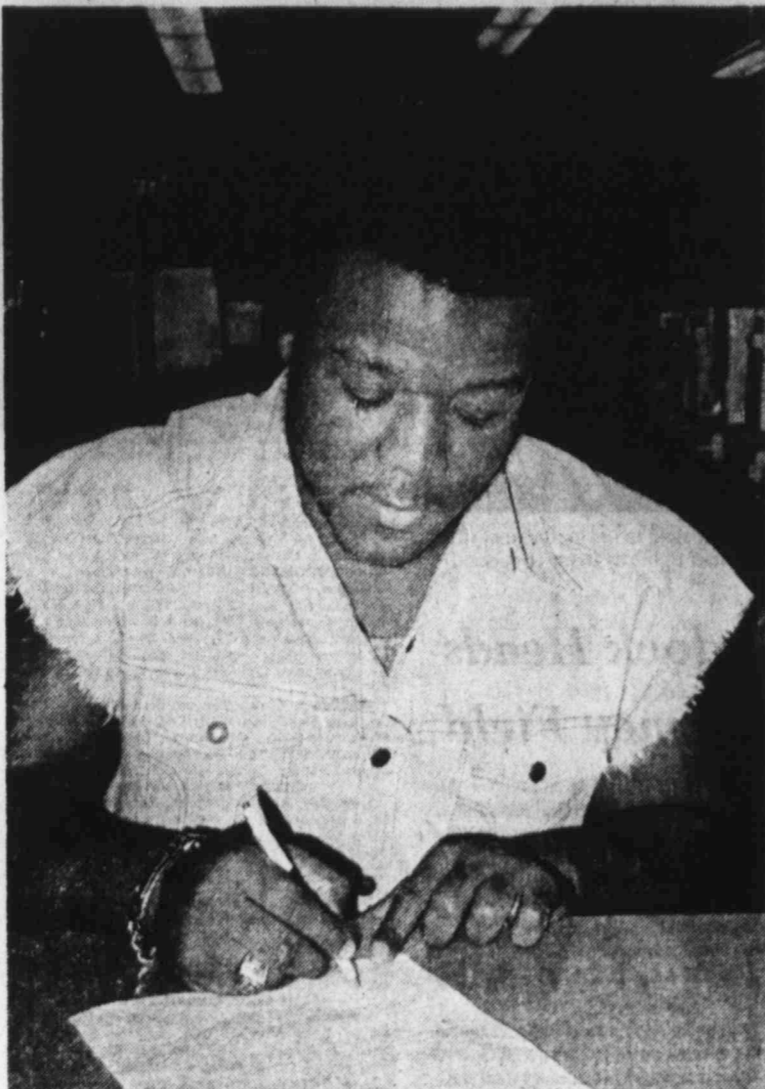

"The players I met really were friendly and acted like they really wanted me to come," said Chatham.

"The players were friendly. I liked their weight facilities and stadium," added Lusk. "Greyhound Stadium made me feel sort of home. The players say it's the finest grass field they have ever played on. The stadium itself reminded of a well lit Lowrey Field."

"According to the two gridders, lack of size was the key factor in not being actively recruited by bigger schools.

"I really feel that had a lot to do with it," said Lusk. "But I'm not going to worry about it. I'm just going to try and stay healthy and gain some recognition."

"I want to show them (the bigger universities) that a little man can do the job as well as a man with height and weight," said the Estacado senior.

GOING WEST TO EASTERN — Estacado's Mike Chatham reads the fine print of his letter-of-intent to attend Eastern New Mexico University and play football. He is the third Matador to land a football scholarship this year. (Staff Photo)

Rain Stops Raider Baseballers

SEGUIN (Special) — Rain forced postponement of Friday's scheduled baseball doubleheader between Texas Tech and Texas Lutheran College, and it brought about a pair of mixed twinbills the next two days.

Today, the Raiders will take on St. Mary's University in a game here beginning at 1 p.m., then play host Texas Lutheran at 3 p.m. Sunday, the teams will move to San Antonio, where Tech will play TLC at 1 p.m. and St. Mary's at 3 p.m.

The doubleheader change Friday was the second time this young season that Tech has had weather problems. Last week, it had to settle for one doubleheader with Hardin-Simmons after scheduling two, and it was two days late.

Tech will take a 2-0 record into today's games. TLC is 1-0.

Big 8 Charges Stanley With Hamstring Tactics

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Big Eight, in documents filed Friday in federal court, accused former Oklahoma State football coach Jim Stanley of trying to cripple the Conference's enforcement program.

"It is obvious that under the guise of due process, plaintiff is attempting to hamstring the Conference to such a degree that it could not effectively conduct an investigation of its activities involving alleged violations of conference rules," the Big Eight said.

The Big Eight's reply further stated that, "since Mr. Stanley is no longer employed by a member institution of the Big Eight Conference, the Conference has no authority to impose any sanction upon him."

"Plaintiff's apparently insatiable appetite for alleged 'due process' protection leads to speculation that his real interest in this case is to avoid any hearing which might investigate his conduct and those whose conduct he was responsible for while serving as head football coach at Oklahoma State University."

The Big Eight further said that the requirements Stanley is seeking to impose "to protect himself from the 'dreaded sanctions' available to the Big Eight Conference would be far more burdensome than those imposed upon the federal and state investigatory agencies."

The league's action Friday represents the latest round in a lengthening legal battle with the dismissed coach. The next step is up to U.S. District Court Judge Russell G. Clark, who granted Stanley a partial preliminary injunction in December, barring the Big Eight from considering his possible involvement in an alleged slush fund unless Stanley's constitutional rights to due process were safeguarded.

Stanley, who was fired at the end of this past season, won the preliminary injunction after a day-long hearing before Clark in November. In his order, Clark suggested several changes the Big Eight might make in its hearing procedures to ensure Stanley's constitutional rights.

In its subsequent "report" to the court, the Big Eight maintained its procedures do comport with due process requirements but agreed that if so ordered it could follow many of the procedures the judge outlined.

Two weeks later attorneys for Stanley filed a "response" to the league's "report," in which it accused the Big Eight of being "disdainful" of the court's authority and taking a "cavalier" attitude toward the proceedings. The response also listed a set of investigatory and hearing procedures it said the court should force the Big Eight to follow and urged the court to disregard the Big Eight's report.

Award Travels, But Winners Stay Put

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Three state inmates have been honored with the Oklahoma Correction's Department's Murphy's Cup for executing the most thoroughly botched escape tries so far in 1979.

Although the cup was created only this week, the announcement Thursday by Deputy Corrections Director John Grider recognized retroactive winners back to 1975. The basis for determining recipients is Murphy's Law: "If anything can go wrong, it will."

Grider, who made the announcement at the monthly Corrections Board meeting, said the 1979 award goes to Tyrone Davis and James Clayborn, at the Granite Reformatory, and an unidentified Ouachita Correctional Center inmate.

Grider said the three won't receive anything other than additional time to serve for winning the dubious honor. They have been charged with attempted escape.

"It's just humorous, nothing serious," Grider said of the award.

When it was pointed out to a corrections spokeswoman that 10 months remain in 1979 and someone else might make a more futile escape try, she replied: "It's a traveling cup, and 1979 competition isn't closed yet."

Escapes once were not a joking matter for state penal officials, but the annual total is down from 164 in 1975 to 38 in 1978.

This week, the two Granite inmates, one serving a 10-year robbery sentence and the other doing a five-year stint for car theft, made pillow dummies and stuffed them under bedsheets inside a Granite dormitory before their escape attempt.

Reformatory Warden Jerry Sunderland said the pair apparently tried to go over the prison's white walls Tuesday with a rope made of laundry bags.

But after shinnying down the rope,

"they were still inside the compound. I'm just guessing, but it was kinda foggy, and if the fog had settled in, they were going to try to beat the wall, with the visibility down."

A search team apprehended the pair about 30 minutes later near the reformatory kitchen, inside the wall, Sunderland said.

Corrections officials said the pair must share the citation with an unidentified Ouachita Correctional Center inmate in Hodgson.

He allegedly took a car from the prison grounds and ran out of gas about two miles from the prison.

The car rolled to a stop in front of the home of the center's security chief. Retroactive Murphy's Cup winners include:

—A woman inmate who walked away from a community treatment center in 1975 and was hitchhiking when she was picked up by Corrections Director Ned Benton and his deputy director.

—A man who in 1977 committed a crime in Poteau and then hid out on the Ouachita prison grounds thinking it was still a job training center. He was apprehended by guards.

School District Fires Dope-Sniffing Dog

DALLAS (AP) — A dope-sniffing pooch hired by Dallas schools to weed out potential potheads seems to have lost his touch.

Rebel, and his $100-a-day nose trained to sniff out marijuana, has been canned by the Dallas Independent School District for not being able to find any dope on nine visits to three schools.

Officials, after they began to doubt his ability, said they put a tin of the weed under his nose on his last visit and the German shepher didn't even notice it.

School officials said a recent illness apparently had affected Rebel's effectiveness. The school board said it plans to continue the program, but with a new dog.

Senate Approves Judge Pay Hike

AJ Austin Bureau
AUSTIN—Legislation authorizing increased expense payments for judges in Ector County's 79th, 161st and 244th judicial districts has been approved by the Senate Intergovernmental Relations Committee and sent to the senate for approval.

Senate Bill 420, sponsored by E.L. Short of Tahoka, would increase maximum expense compensation from $3,500 to $10,000 per judge.

Show Raps Agencies Radiation Coverup

NEW YORK (AP) — "Paul Jacobs and the Nuclear Gang" is the story of a dedicated investigative reporter and a subject, the hazards of low-level radiation, which he covered for 20 years.

The new series, called "Non Fiction Television," premieres on some Public Broadcasting Service stations (Channel 5) at 7 p.m. CST Sunday.

Jack Willis, producer of the hour-long program, says making the documentary was a "death trip" for Jacobs, who died in January 1978 of a lung cancer possibly contracted during his investigation.

Willis and the program's co-writer and co-director, Saul Landau, accompanied the dying Jacobs on a return visit to southern Utah, an area affected by radiation fallout from nuclear testing in adjoining Nevada.

Couple Plans Burial Alive To Earn Money

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — They'll bury "Country Bill" White and Linda Barker in a common grave Saturday afternoon, 6 feet under the Texas soil he always loved. The event will be cause for great celebration among the boys at the bar.

White has been "buried" 53 times before, the last time in New Bedford, Mass., when he stayed underground more than 134 days to get his name into the London edition of the Guinness Book of World Records.

Couple Hijacks 'Copter To Rob Bank

MONTREAL (AP) — A man and a woman hijacked a helicopter Friday, forced the pilot at gunpoint to land at a shopping center, robbed a bank and then flew to a subway station and escaped, police reported.

The man and woman rented a helicopter for a flight to Quebec City but once airborne they drew guns and ordered the pilot to land at a suburban shopping center in St. Laurent.

After swooping down to a parking spot near a branch office of the Royal Bank of Canada, one stood guard over the pilot while the other ran into the bank, robbed it and returned with bags of money.

In the 20-year interval since Jacobs' first visit, all the people he originally interviewed had died. In 1977, Willis, Landau and Jacobs found a new set of cancer victims, people who had been exposed to radiation fallout in the 1950s.

Three other persons interviewed on the program subsequently died of leukemia, thought to have been caused by radiation. One of them, Sgt. Paul Cooper, was part of an army unit stationed near a test blast.

After Jacobs' death, Willis and Landau kept working on the story of how hundreds of thousands of Americans,

Ku Klux Klan Regalia Display Scheduled For Town's Library

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klan exhibit of robes, crosses and other regalia set for display Monday at the Forsyth County public library is "just like our version of 'Roots,'" a Klan leader says.

Members of Winston-Salem's black community are divided in their reactions to the one-day exhibit, which will be on view in the auditorium of the main library in downtown Winston-Salem.

The exhibit's organizer, Vernon Logan, head of the local Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said the display is designed to show white history and culture. He likened it to a white version of "Roots," the popular book by Alex Haley which has been the basis for two successful television miniseries, the latest running this week.

It was approved by William H. Roberts III, the library director, without the knowledge of the library's board. "If we err, we should err on the side of freedom," Roberts said of the decision.

But Irene Hairston, chairman of the county library board, said she "deplores the use of the library for this."

Mrs. Hairston, who is black, said the county attorney's office told her county policy prevents barring exhibits unless the material is obscene or illegal.

Mrs. Hairston said Logan maintains that the exhibit will not be offensive. "From where I sit, it's already offensive," she said. However, she added that she plans to visit the exhibit.

Patrick Hairston, president of the Winston-Salem chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, unsuccessfully urged the county commissioners Thursday to prohibit the display. Hairston is not related to Mrs. Hairston.

"They (the Klan) are still degrading people, Jews and black people," he said.

Hairston said he has been in touch with the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, which opposes the exhibit, and the two groups may plan some action, including picketing.

Larry Little, former head of the Black Panther Party in North Carolina and now a Winston-Salem alderman, said he doesn't think black people feel threatened by the Klan any more and that local blacks should be involved in actions that "are a little more constructive" than picketing the Klan exhibit.

"In the past, I would have been the first one to go out and attack this," said Little. "I really don't see us going about reacting (now) to the displays of Klans."

The county commission's only black member, Mazie Woodruff, urged people to attend the exhibit so that they could learn about the Klan.

Mayor Wayne A. Corpening, who has no jurisdiction in the matter, said, "there are a lot of things I might not agree with, like communism. But someone has to have it in the library in order to know what it is."

Winston-Salem is a medium-size industrial city in the western Piedmont area of the state. R.J. Reynolds Industries, the conglomerate that owns R.J.

Reynolds Tobacco Co. and DeL Monte Corp., has its headquarters here. The city is also the home of Wake Forest and Winston-Salem State universities.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have new and different ideas that you want to put in motion but you find that a number of delays are in the way. Use this additional time to advantage by making a point to round out your knowledge of current methods, ideas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Clarify personal aims before you go out for a good time with congenials. Try to gain the information you need via right sources.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle obligations of a pressing nature before you put other talents to work later. Be sure your credit is good and don't take any risks in such direction.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Meet any promises made and then study into new projects, interests without worry. Use good judgment only since your hunches are way off base.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle important duties before you plan recreation with loved one. Find more up-to-date ways of handling routines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If an associate does not like the way you are handling your end of things, try to compromise and all is fine. Don't take others for granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study early how to be more efficient at your regular work, even though it may seem difficult to do so. Think along more modern lines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan carefully the amusements you want to participate in and they work out fine later. Show more thought for mate, loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show greater affection for kin and get good results. Avoid anything that could cause tension. Find day for shopping.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care and do not have any accidents by being careless. Show generosity to friends who have been good to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do not be roped into some kind of scheme or other. Plan to be more economical in the future instead. Relax with persons you trust.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are frustrated about something and should face your problem squarely and settle it. Not a good day to entertain.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Instead of running away from some promise, keep it in good faith and all is fine. Don't have a confrontation with a friend that could cause hard feelings.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have every ability to comprehend modern ideas and products and upon reaching maturity can reach the masses and make a big success of life. Teach early to deal harmoniously with others.

NBC To Continue Parent Workshops

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC has provided a grant "well into six figures" to expand its 3-year-old Parent Participation TV Workshop program, under which parents and children meet to discuss specially selected NBC programs. Workshops have been conducted so far in 25 major cities, and the additional money is to make the project national in scope, NBC said.

The next series of workshops will be after broadcast Sunday of "Sooner or Later," a program recommended by the National Education Association on a girl's emergence into womanhood. A workshop can be organized by any group, and NBC provides a "Parent Participation TV Workshop Handbook" free to requesting organizations.

'Roots II' Trails Original

NEW YORK (AP) — "Roots II" picked up viewers in three big cities Thursday night, but the national rating continued a full 13 points below the average for the original eight-part broadcast two years ago, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

Overnight ratings for Part V of "Roots: The Next Generations," increased slightly in New York City, Chicago and Los Angeles over figures for the preceding episode Wednesday night.

Ratings in the three big cities have generally increased from night to night, following a pattern set by the record-smashing "Roots" miniseries of January 1977.

The national rating for the sequel, available a day later than the overnights, has increased steadily from 27.8 for Part I to 31.8 for Part IV, Nielsen says that means all of the homes in the country with TV, 31.8 percent saw at least part of the fourth installment.

The average rating for the original miniseries was 44.9, and 51.1 for the record-breaking conclusion.

Thursday night ratings were 34.4 in New York, 32.8 in Chicago and 33.2 in Los Angeles. In Chicago, the figure was equal to the rating there Wednesday night, and in Los Angeles, it was slightly below the figure for Tuesday.

"Roots II," as the sequel is known, continued Friday night, and concludes Sunday evening after a break Saturday.

STARS AND STRIPES

The present U.S. flag originated in a resolution of the Marine Committee of the Second Continental Congress adopted June 14, 1777, at Philadelphia. It called for a flag of 13 alternating red and white stripes with a union of 13 stars on a blue field.
