

Khomeini's Islamic Guard Rallies Against Leftists

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Chanting troops of Iran's new Islamic National Guard paraded through the streets of Tehran Sunday in a show of support for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, whose revolutionary government is being challenged by Iranian leftists.

Earlier, officials at Khomeini headquarters revealed that the 78-year-old Moslem religious leader met Saturday with Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov. It was Khomeini's first audience with an envoy of a major power since his movement toppled the monarchy of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi two weeks ago.

strength" against interference in Iran's internal affairs, a Khomeini aide said.

The Moslem holy man also told the ambassador that Iran's foreign trade will be conducted "only with the interests of Iran in mind."

The message appeared to be directed toward the Soviet Union and the United States, since the provisional government has said it intends to follow a non-aligned policy.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said he knew of no plans for a meeting between Khomeini and American Ambassador William Sullivan.

Khomeini aides also said the ayatollah will move this week to the holy city of Qum, 100 miles to the south. He has been in Tehran since he returned to Iran Feb. 1 after 14 years in exile.

An aide said Khomeini "will be as active as he was in Tehran." But the move will put him well away from the central government in Tehran, and could give provisional Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan a freer hand in running the government.

Khomeini, in a speech broadcast Sunday by Radio Tehran, appealed to other countries to return former Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar, who disappeared after he was ousted Feb. 11. Khomeini said Bakhtiar "committed crimes and massacres" and added, "We request our friends abroad to inform us wherever they may find him so that we can ask the government concerned for his return."

In a French television interview reported here Sunday, Bazargan said he found out about the execution of eight generals of the old regime by reading the newspapers. Khomeini's secret "revolutionary committee" has been arresting and punishing suspected supporters of the shah with little coordination with the provisional government.

About 2,000 troopers from Khomeini's newly organized National Guard marched through Tehran in loose formation Sunday, chanting "Long Live Khomeini!" Some held up his picture, and others marched with red carnations in the barrels of their automatic rifles.

Bystanders cheered the men and joined in their chants.

The National Guard appears designed to serve as a check on the regular military and as a way to absorb the thousands of armed militants remaining from the revolutionary period.

Tehran's Sunday newspapers headlined interviews with leftist Mojahedeen irregulars who played a major role in the street fighting that toppled the shah's government. The leftists said they feared that the National Guard might be used to hunt and destroy those who oppose Khomeini.

The leftists warned that unless a "people's army" that includes them is created, Bazargan's provisional government will be responsible for any "bloodshed" that could ensue.

The Mojahedeen and another leftist group, the Marxist People's Fedayeen, have both called for "people's councils" to administer national affairs, for public trials, and for the radical transformation of Iran into a worker's state.

In other developments Sunday:

— Tehran Radio reported that the yacht belonging to the shah has been nationalized by its crew. The yacht, moored at the southern port of Bandar Abbas, was expected to be taken to the southwestern oil city port of Abadan Monday.

Carter Determined In Peace Efforts

Begin, Khalil May Meet This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, determined to "spare no effort" for peace in the Middle East, called on Sunday for a new Camp David summit conference to try to conclude a treaty between Israel and Egypt.

The talks would be held, possibly beginning later in the week, with Prime Minister Menachem Begin representing Israel but without the participation of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Egypt would be represented by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, who Carter said had been authorized by Sadat to conclude the negotiations. There was no official explanation given for Sadat's absence.

Sadat Absence Surprising

In Israel, several senior Israeli officials said they were surprised Sadat would not represent Egypt at the proposed talks.

One Israeli government source said it was unlikely Begin would attend unless Sadat did so, adding, "Carter knows it is only Sadat and Begin who can make the decisions. If Begin goes without Sadat, it will seem like Israel is being asked to make all the concessions."

Other Israeli officials would not try to predict how Begin might respond officially to Carter's invitation.

Carter made the announcement at the windup of four days of treaty negotiations between Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

Seeing them off on the south lawn of the White House, Carter said he was prepared "to spare no effort in achieving the peace settlement" foreseen in his summit meeting last September with Begin and Sadat.

Israeli Acquiescence Sought?

By inviting Begin to Camp David, the president seemed to leave the impression that he was looking to Israel to agree to terms set by Sadat for linking the treaty to the future of the Israeli-held West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is known to have presented new U.S. proposals to the Palestinian issue during his discussions with Dayan and Khalil.

If all the obstacles to a treaty are removed at a new summit meeting hosted by Carter, Sadat could fly here to join in a successful windup.

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said that "sometimes, midweek or so, we ought to know" whether the new round of negotiations will be held.

Sadat is the unquestioned decision-maker in Egypt. There is no doubt that Khalil would seek his approval before taking any major steps at the talks.

Begin, meanwhile, would be able to speak for the Israeli government. However, his decision would require the ultimate approval of the Cabinet and the Israeli parliament. Dayan was flying to Jerusalem where a special meeting of the Cabinet was scheduled for Tuesday to hear his report.

Carter's statement indicated some headway was made by Vance in the four days of talks with Khalil and Dayan at the Maryland mountain retreat.

But Carter gave no details. He saw the two ministers to their waiting black limousines without taking any questions from reporters.

Carter had said before the talks began that he might convene a summit if the ministerial negotiations indicated the two countries were determined to complete the treaty.

In Cairo, meanwhile, the Middle East news agency reported that Khalil would fly directly home instead of stopping in London, as initially planned.

The agency said the change in instructions followed Khalil's report to Sadat on the talks in a mid-afternoon telephone call.

The mediation effort, directed by Vance, was aimed at clearing roadblocks to completion of the treaty initially blueprinted by Carter, Begin and Sadat in September.

The future of the territories and their 1.1 million Palestinian Arab residents has been the principal unresolved issue.

Carter says he has spent more time on the Arab-Israeli conflict than on any other foreign policy issue.

Massive Chinese Offensive Looms

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Well-informed Chinese sources in Peking predict China's invasion force in Vietnam will launch its biggest offensive within several days. Japan's Kyodo news service reported early today in a dispatch from the Chinese capital.

It quoted the sources as saying China's "punitive action" will reach its critical stage this week, with the twin goals of destroying at least one Vietnamese army division and Vietnam's military bases near the border, including artillery positions.

Kyodo also reported that Peking Radio said Chinese troops had engaged Vietnamese army regulars in hand-to-hand fighting near Dong Dang, a village three miles inside Vietnam. Most reports from China and Vietnam have indicated Vietnamese militias were doing most of the fighting, with the Hanoi government not committing its regular army units.

Chinese Claim Hilltops

The Peking broadcast said that after a day of heavy fighting "a Chinese battalion overran five hilltop positions" near Dong Dang, "destroyed a maze of enemy dugouts and repulsed repeated attacks mounted by the enemy from below," according to Kyodo. It said the broadcast gave no casualty figures and didn't say when the fighting occurred.

Vietnam said Sunday its counter-attacking troops killed almost 4,000 Chinese in weekend battles all along the border, and a total of 16,000 since the invasion began Feb. 17. But China was pouring in reinforcements, Hanoi radio said.

In Moscow, the official Soviet press stepped up its accusations that the United States was encouraging China in its war against Vietnam.

But there was a report President Carter was applying new pressure on the Chinese to end the war. British Prime Minister James Callaghan, after a telephone call from Carter, was reported to have ordered a slowdown of talks for the sale of warplanes to Peking.

The Voice of Vietnam radio, monitored here, said the Vietnamese had destroyed 160 Chinese tanks in fighting Saturday and Sunday.

The battle reports and Chinese casualty tolls could not be independently verified, and some analysts in Bangkok said they appeared exaggerated. China has issued no casualty reports, but the analysts here say Vietnam has suffered greater losses than the Chinese.

The Hanoi broadcast said Vietnamese troops mounted counter-attacks in Tan Lang village of Lai Chau province, northwest of Hanoi; Thanh Thuy village in Ha Tuyen province, north of the capital, and Tong Dang district of Lang Son province to the northeast. A counter-attack also was reported along Highway 4, which more or less parallels the Vietnam-China border in Cao Bang and Lang Son provinces.

The war thus far has been limited to the border areas of northern Vietnam. Intelligence specialists in Washington say the Chinese have penetrated possibly up to 20 miles into Vietnam in places but the average depth is estimated at 12-15 miles.

Washington intelligence sources have said 17 Chinese divisions, about 225,000 men, had been identified along the border and that probably six or seven of these divisions were in Vietnam. This would put Chinese combat strength in

Caution Urged Viewing Eclipse

A-J News Services THIS MORNING'S expected clear skies will dramatize a partial solar eclipse, but South Plains viewers should remember that looking directly at the sky during this time may cause permanent eye damage.

An estimated 120 persons in the United States suffered eye damage by looking at a 1970 eclipse, and residents in the eclipse path are cautioned only to view the sun indirectly.

The moon's shadow as it passes in front of the sun is expected to begin in Lubbock about 9:08 a.m. today and to be at its maximum darkness at about 10:30 a.m., according to Ron Johnston, director of Moody Planetarium at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

The solar phenomena will be seen here as a 60 percent partial eclipse.

Anyone wanting to view it should use an indirect method. One approved procedure is to use two pieces of white cardboard.

To do this, make a pinhole in one piece of cardboard, and, with the sun behind you, focus the eclipse through the pinhole onto the second piece of cardboard. The size of the image can be changed by altering the distance between cardboards.

Viewing Aids Urged

Remember, never look directly at the sun even through the pinhole. Also remember that sunglasses, smoked glass, camera lens or even welder's goggles may not be dark enough for protection, according to astronomers.

While astronomers are readying their instruments and eye protection gear, thousands of camera- and telescope-toting travelers mobbed small towns of the Pacific Northwest over the weekend in hopes of glimpsing the last total eclipse of the sun visible in North America this century.

A total solar eclipse occurs when the moon swings between the sun and Earth, briefly casting its shadow over a narrow path. Automatic street lights may blink on, chickens tend to roost, and cattle low and prepare to lie down, all victims of a cosmic joke: dusk before noon.

Communities that rarely get tourists were making money from people gathering to watch a few seconds of darkness. Sightseers booked up motels and claimed sleeping space on gymnasium floors weeks ago.

The 175-mile-wide moon shadow will take about 1 1/2 hours to fall across North America, beginning at 8:13 a.m. PST near Portland, Oregon; and dissolving over Greenland. North America won't see another until the year 2017.

Eclipse-chasers flocked to Goldendale. See SUN ECLIPSE Page 14

Wage Earners' Pay All Right, Jobs Not

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although hourly and clerical employees seem content with their wages, they are increasingly dissatisfied with other aspects of their jobs, says a team of researchers writing for Harvard Business Review.

Citing "the increasing impersonality of work and large organizations" and the rise in automation, the specialists in worker relations conclude that discontent among many employees is "pervasive and seems to be growing."

The four researchers from Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., used data from 175,000 employees for 159 companies during the last 25 years.

"It is only managers who indicate high satisfaction with their jobs along with high satisfaction with their pay," they said in their article.

Embalming Law Backed As 'Practical'

By RAYNIE HARDESTY

Avalanche-Journal Staff

ALTHOUGH STATE health officials in March will consider repealing a state law requiring a body to be embalmed or refrigerated within 24 hours of death, many local authorities continue to support the post-mortem process.

Some Lubbock health officials question the value of embalming for health reasons, but local pathologists, physicians and morticians agree the technique is essential for the accepted funeral practices of today's society.

The State Board of Health will determine at a March meeting if those values merit the continuation of the current law, passed in 1951.

While persons in immediate contact with dead bodies, such as pathologists and medical researchers, often require that a body be embalmed before they will work with it, Dr. Margorie Orr, director of the city health department, said she believes that an unembalmed body usually is not a health hazard to the public.

Dr. Orr explained that most bacteria are transmitted through bodily discharges, which a dead body would not produce. Spores, which would live longer in the soil, would have no way of spreading unless someone handles the body, she added.

Dr. Orr, however, acknowledges that the preservation achieved through embalming is a demand of today's society.

"I suspect most people today would request it anyway. With all the other things present in the last part of the 20th century,"

British Solon Fears Dark Age

By SHAUNA HILL

Avalanche-Journal Staff

DR. RHODES BOYSON resembles a turn-of-the-century businessman from a Dickens novel. His bushy, mutton-chop sideburns, pocket watch, and three-piece suit give him an aura of gentility, as does his clipped English accent.

But the impression of belonging to a time past vanishes when Boyson, an outspoken, often-controversial leader in the British Parliament, begins opining about world problems.

His beliefs are not always popular. He opposes labor unions in a British economy dominated by the Labor Party. He opposes détente with Communist powers in a world whose nations often subscribe to Communism. He advocates aggression in a Western culture in which aggression is contrary to democratic ideals.

"I'm a hard-line conservative," acknowledged Boyson, who ironically was raised in a family that embraced socialism and whose father was a trade union leader.

"I believe in a strong defense, law and order, maintenance of the Constitution and the queen, and the free enterprise system."

Boyson is in Lubbock to address the Lubbock Christian College Board of Governors at 7:30 p.m. today. He will speak on the "Preservation of a Free Society" and will discuss the effect of socialism on Britain.

In an interview Sunday, he said he believes the Dark Ages could return at any point in history, but that the current turmoil in Asia, the Middle East and Africa could be the catalyst that begins the new age.

"I believe the West could be heading for another Dark Age. Our lack of philosophy and will could lead to another age without progress or thought."

The British Conservative Party member attributes the tension in the Middle East and "Communist oppression" in Eastern Asia to the United States.

"The United States pressured Britain into de-colonizing Eastern Asia and India," Boyson said. "When we left, we left a vacuum which other nations have filled. Iran would not be the way it is if we had kept bases on the 700 islands near India. The shah never could have taken power if there had been British troops near the area."

"The real tragedy was when the U.S. took in 1956 the viewpoint that the Suez Canal should not be operated by Britain and France," he continued. "That caused us to lose much of our influence in the area."

Boyson added, however, that Britain should have fought with the United States in Vietnam. "It was as much our problem as it was yours," he said.

Energy is not one of Boyson's primary concerns. He says he is not an environmentalist and that another energy supply will be invented to replace current sources. "After all," he explained, "who would have believed 70 years ago that the internal combustion engine would be a reality?"

Boyson said his attitude toward future energy supplies does not prevent him from wanting a steady supply of energy and raw materials that is available now.

"Africa is the key to raw material and energy supplies," Boyson said. "Somebody eventually will gain control of the continent and it might as well be the West."

"South Africa and Ian Smith's Rhodesian government are the only things keeping Africa together right now, so we had better back them and gain some control ourselves."

"It's not really a question of human rights in Africa because the people over there are just waiting to see who will

Ballet Star Dances For Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, hailed by President Carter as "perhaps the finest dancer in our lifetime," leaped and twirled his way around a White House stage Sunday in a command performance for the president and nearly 100 guests.

"A talent like his transcends national boundaries. He binds together the human spirit ... throughout the world," the president said of the Russian ballet star who defected to the West.

Baryshnikov performed four dances with ballerinas Patricia McBride and Heather Watts. All three are members of the New York City Ballet, currently performing in Washington.

The afternoon performance was part of a series of programs bringing guest artists to the White House. Sunday's entertainment was videotaped for showing on television in April.

The dancers were given a portable stage, one-third the size of a professional stage, for the show in the White House East Room.

They were forced to redesign some of the choreography to avoid slamming into a sparkling chandelier, which Baryshnikov missed by inches in soaring leaps.

"It was quite a trouble, but we did it," the dancer said, when asked about the chandelier during a reception after the show.

The program included a world premier ballet choreographed to a Chopin waltz by Jerome Robbins, who was in Sunday's audience.

Carter led two standing ovations, first after the world premier, eliciting a wave from Baryshnikov, and then at the end of the 53-minute show.

Then he, Mrs. Carter and their daughter, Amy, climbed onto the stage to shake hands with the dancers and 16 youngsters from the Washington School of Ballet who also performed.

Introducing the program, Carter praised Baryshnikov's style, technique and enthusiasm, and then said "perhaps the overriding characteristic of his dancing is his great courage."

Edward Villella, who preceded Baryshnikov as one of the top stars of ballet in the United States, said Carter dropped in on one of Baryshnikov's rehearsals at the White House and then chatted with the dancers.

Villella, commenting on the program for the television production, said Baryshnikov wanted to perform at the White House "to say thank you to America."

The Russian dancer defected from the Soviet Union about 4½ years ago, but a White House biographical profile of him made no mention of his defection.

The program included George Balanchine's "Harlequinade," which was originally choreographed for Villella in a European style, and the more jazzy "Rubies," choreographed by Balanchine to music by Igor Stravinsky. Each demonstrated the variety of Baryshnikov's talents.

After the Chopin waltz and two other short dances set to a Chopin mazurka and etude, the program closed with a rousing "Tarantella," which left Baryshnikov, dressed in a peasant costume, panting.

WEATHER FORECAST — Wide areas of rain are due Monday from North Carolina through Maine, according to the National Weather Service. Springlike Weather Seen For Area Clear blue skies, warm temperatures and moderate winds today will bring another taste of springtime to Lubbock and the South Plains.

The warming trend is caused by a high pressure system over northern Texas and parts of the central United States and is expected to continue through Tuesday.

The high today will be in the upper 60s with the low tonight in the mid 30s.

Winds will be southwesterly to 15 mph. Relative humidity will peak at 70 percent this morning before falling to 20 percent this afternoon. The sun will shine today for about 10 hours.

The forecast for Tuesday through Thursday includes a chance of showers on Wednesday and cooler temperatures on Thursday.

Highs Tuesday through Thursday are expected to be in the 50s or 60s and lows should be in the 20s or 30s.

The rest of Texas also will enjoy warm temperatures today as weathermen predict fair skies and mild temperatures for the entire state.

The statewide forecast for the rest of the week also calls for cooler temperatures and a slight chance of rain.

Hometown Honors Connallys With Street Birthday Party

FLORESVILLE (AP) — There was one big happy birthday party Sunday in the streets of Floresville as Republican presidential candidate John Connally and his wife greeted their hometown neighbors.

"Happy Birthday John and Nellie," said a banner strung across the street of this sleepy little South Texas town that Connally calls home.

There were maybe 1,000 persons attending, said Sheriff Asa Fuller, "if you count all those sitting in their cars."

Connally recalled that he once made hometown news when he set a local record of eating 13 ears of corn at one sitting. He also recalled that he was king in 1938 of the Peanut Festival, which has become this area's annual event.

Juanita Mosher presented a petition with 200 signatures from the mostly Democratic Wilson County, all pledging to vote for Connally next November.

"We know you will be too busy from now on to be back here with us," Mrs. Mosher said. "But two years from today, we want to see you and Nellie back here to celebrate your birthday after you get elected president."

Connally's brief speech was mostly nostalgic and reminiscent, but he stressed that the people of Wilson County in his childhood were an example of how people "should be."

"We thought honest work was decent. And it is that same self respect that has made America great today," Connally said.

Connally and his wife ended the visit by cutting generous chunks from a large red, white and blue birthday cake that carried the inscription, "Nov. 4, 1980," the next presidential election date.

Earlier, Floresville Mayor Carl R. Eschenburg and Wilson County Judge W.D. Cox officially declared Sunday as John and Nellie Connally Day.

Actually, Nellie had already been through one birthday party, her 60th, in San Antonio Saturday night. The Republican candidate for the presidential nomination has one scheduled for his 62nd birthday in Houston on Tuesday.

But their neighbors around Floresville wanted to give their own party.

The front page of this week's Floresville Chronicle-Journal was devoted to the Connallys. On an inside page, a full page advertisement signed by 90 Wilson County residents wished them "Happy Birthday."

Editor Joe H. Fietz had a special editorial. "He stands head and shoulders above anyone we know seeking the highest office in the land," said the editorial.

"We are proud to know his family, his background and on the envyous can back away from being in the front ranks of the well-wishers who will be here to greet him and his wife on the observance of their birthdays."

The Floresville courthouse square party came as the Connallys finished the first part of their 23-community, seven-day tour of the state to boost his campaign.

Connally started Wednesday in Austin and went on to Waco, Hillsboro, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Lubbock, Abilene, Brownwood, Midland, Odessa, El Paso, San Angelo and San Antonio.

After the Floresville party, the Connallys went on to McAllen, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Tyler, Longview, Beaumont-Port Arthur, and Houston.

Tech Sets Space Shuttle Talk

America's space shuttle program is so new that Tau Beta Pi, engineering professional honor fraternity, has asked the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to explain its development and use in a public lecture at Texas Tech University on March 6.

The Tech student chapter of Tau Beta Pi said the lecture by James C. Shows, deputy manager of the Space Shuttle Systems Engineering Office of NASA, will be free to the public at 7 p.m., March 6, in room 101 of the Mass Communications Building.

Vice president Rick Husband, in charge of the organization's programs, said the regular monthly meeting has been opened to the public because of the general interest in the speaker's topic.

"We have asked him to discuss the development and use of the space shuttle, the history and progress of the program, and some technical aspects regarding components and space design. In spite of the technical aspects of the talk," Husband said, "we think many people will find a great deal of interest in it."

Shows is responsible for the management of shuttle systems engineering activities required for the integrated development of the shuttle vehicle's five flight elements.

This involves development of system performance requirements, evaluation of vehicle design and assessing the compatibility of system configurations and program requirements.

Shows was a naval aviator until 1955. He worked as an aerospace engineer for McDonnell Aircraft Corp. before joining NASA in 1961. He holds numerous achievement awards including the NASA Exceptional Service Medal, presented in 1973. He has worked with the Gemini, Apollo and Skylab.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Canadian Operation Gains Favor

NEW YORK (AP) — A Canadian operation to repair hernias is gaining acceptance among some U.S. doctors who say it is better, faster and cheaper than conventional hernia surgery.

The operation was developed by the late E.E. Shouldice, a Toronto physician who built a busy clinic around the idea.

Today, doctors at the Shouldice Clinic in suburban Toronto perform 125 operations a week at a cost as low as $900 — including four days at the clinic — for the simplest kind of hernia.

And U.S. proponents of the "Shouldice repair" say the operation is becoming available at many U.S. medical centers and may replace other forms of hernia surgery.

The hospital stay is minimal, the complication rate is negligible and the rapidity with which someone can return to work is dramatic," said Dr. Leonard Burton of Long Island Jewish Hospital in New Hyde Park, N.Y. He is among U.S. physicians who have visited the Toronto clinic.

An abdominal hernia occurs when a person tears a muscle in the groin or abdomen and a piece of the intestine protrudes through.

It can result from a structural weakness in the body or from strenuous physical activity. Hernias occur most often among men.

The conventional surgical repair involves pulling the two ends of the torn muscle together and stitching them with many sutures. But in the Shouldice repair, layers of the torn muscle are overlapped and bound with a single nylon or stainless steel filament.

The operation is done under local anesthesia and many patients walk away from the operating table.

Burton said he and his staff at Long Island Jewish adopted the Shouldice repair in 1972 after dissatisfaction over the 8 percent to 9 percent failure rate of other methods.

A spokesman for the Shouldice Clinic, who asked not to be identified, said fewer than 1 percent of the 115,000 patients who had hernia operations at the clinic since its founding more than 20 years ago have required a second operation because the first failed.

The earlier methods required six to seven days in the hospital, two to three weeks of limited activity and general or at least spinal anesthesia, Burton said.

It also meant the complications that might develop from that and the loss of many hours from work.

But in 2,200 hernia operations performed since then, Burton said, his group has cut the failure rate to only 1 percent.

The hospital stay is down to four days and most people are back at work in a week, cutting the cost to the patient, he said.

Dr. Thomas King of Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, said one reason for the Shouldice method's success may be its emphasis on getting the patient back on his feet. He said it fits into a general trend in surgery toward less bed rest.

Burton said his surgeon's fee is about $700 and bed and board run about $170 a day, bringing the average total cost to over $1,000, a figure he said was competitive among U.S. hospitals.

STRIKERS FINED
 NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — The Fall River Educators Association has been ordered to pay $290,000 in fines for ignoring a back-to-work order during last fall's teachers' strike in Fall River. Superior Court Judge August C. Taveira, who had levied the fines against the union, ordered the payment Friday.

AN EDITORIAL:

The Descent Into Disorder

IF A GOOD segment of the world has the eerie feeling that they have been down the present path of worldwide disorder before, those who think so are right.

After a relative "quiet" period of a few years following Vietnam, things started unraveling at a number of points, from South Africa and the Mideast to Southeast Asia again.

The problem, despite warnings from those who had been there, was ignored not only by responsible people in Washington but by the mass media.

AS A RESULT, today, if one looks closely he can hear the same muffled drumbeats which echoed across Europe and other parts of the Asia during the 1930s, preceding it should be noted the outbreak of WWII.

There were those during the protest days of U.S. involvement in Vietnam who argued that if the Americans would only get out then everything would be fine and as The Wall Street Journal so aptly put it, "the killing would stop."

Not only did the killing not stop. It accelerated.

The Communist North Vietnamese proceeded to "finish off" South Vietnam, either slaying or putting thousands into slave labor. Then, those same friendly people who looked to Hanoi for leadership and the U.S. for "reparations," turned on Cambodia.

TODAY, WE have the spectacle of Vietnam invading a nation which itself has been guilty of a genocide almost comparable to that of the Jews in Germany, and then itself being invaded by Red China, which has just been embraced as a friend of sorts by the Carter Administration.

But, the scenario does not end there. For more than four years, the hired guns of Cuba's Fidel Castro have been "stabilizing" things in Africa from Angola to Ethiopia. And, just for good measure, Communist puppets also have taken over in South Yemen and Afghanistan and are now making their bid in Iran.

IF ALL THIS sounds like Europe in 1936, the efforts of the Allies to avert war and the steady buildup of a massive war machine under a ruthless dictatorship, then you get the picture.

This time around, there is a difference. Back in the 1930s, the West was comparatively self-sufficient.

Today, not only does the Free World face a threat to its basic freedom, but its economic foundations depend on nebulous and demanding alliances abroad, and its will to resist is in question.

So much for the problem. The solution, in some respects may be as painful and certainly more controversial.

IT IS FAR past time for the American people to continue to rely on the "good will" of nations which have as their basic premise the conquest of the rest of the world.

It is far past time to blame our problems on the use of U.S. power, as was the case in Vietnam. Actually, there as elsewhere, it was the misuse—or lack of it—that caused the problem.

Either we recognize the descent into disorder around the world and seek to stem it or we become part of it.

AN EDITORIAL:

The 'New' Afghanistanism?

BACK BEFORE Watergate made local reporting not only respectable but glamorous, a popular criticism of the American news media was their alleged predilection for "afghanistanism."

This was defined by the critics, typically academically based, as a tendency of newspapers to focus editorial attention on far-away developments, overlooking matters of greater immediate concern occurring in their own front yard.

Afghanistan, from an American point of view, was about as remote a dateline as one could come up with.

And it still is, geographically.

But as recent events demonstrate all too vividly, it remains a media focus point.

The senseless murder of the American ambassador ostensibly appeared to have no logical extension of the chaos in neighboring Iran. But maybe it does.

The fatal abduction was the work of conservative Moslems of the Shiite sect, opposing the pro-Soviet Afghan government.

The fact the American rather than the Russian ambassador was chosen as sacrificial victim for this local feud says something about the relative prestige of the super powers, even in a Soviet ally.

Not many months ago, few knew the difference between a Shiite and a bedsheet, let alone cared. Many still may wonder why they should care, or in what way it matters to them. But it does.

The chaos in that part of the Moslem world, however complex, has consequences that are as close to this country's immediate interests as the corner gas station.

It is in the process of determining what the price of a gallon for Americans may be in the very near future, and conceivably in the worst of scenarios even the availability of gas at any price.

No wonder datelines from these remote regions are dominating the news pages.

Afghanistan and Iran remain geographically distant. But when it comes to the impact of their turbulent affairs upon us, they have moved in right next door.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

President Winding Up Low Man On Tote Poll

PRESIDENT CARTER'S popularity with voters, reveals Dr. George Gallup in a nationwide, 6,000-person poll, hovering steadily at 50 percent of the President's midpoint in his first term.

But this 50 percent falls abysmally below the 3-year record of five previous chief executives. Clearly, President Carter has an uphill fight even to be nominated again by the Democratic Party.

Those approving the President's stewardship total 50 percent, 36 percent disapprove, and 14 percent are undecided.

After their two-year tenures, both Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy turned in Gallup ratings above 70 percent.

AT MIDTERM, both Presidents Harry S. Truman and Richard M. Nixon scored respective marks with the American public of 57 and 56, substantially higher than President Carter.

President Truman, immediately after the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, received the highest approval any President ever received in the Gallup poll: 87 percent. At 25 percent, he also received the lowest.

President Carter's standing with the voters reached its high of 75 percent in March 1977, then it is at a low of 50 percent, a drop of one third in voter affection across the country.

He has had a long and affectionate relationship with George Gallup, going back to the 1940 days of aspiring candidate Wendell Willkie. Gallup is a philosopher as well as a pollster and his political sagacity and discernment are acute.

ON MARCH 19, 1971, we attended together the funeral of aspiring presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey. Said Gallup to me: "I think he had every right to blame the polls for overconfidence. Dewey would have made a great President."

The Democrats are called the majority party but, actually, the only Democrats to get a majority of the national vote were Franklin D. Roosevelt and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Woodrow Wilson did not, nor did Truman or Kennedy. Theodore Roosevelt's Bull Moose party, splitting the Republican Party, got 27.4 percent of the 1912 national vote, but TR ran so heavily that it elected Wilson.

Based on Gallup's long experience, he tells me that public opinion is "a very volatile thing." He believes people decide their voting choice "months and months earlier than supposed."

HE SAYS that party loyalty is one of those venerated virtues that mean more to the politicians than to the voters. Gallup reports "a distinct anti-party feeling throughout much of America."

Everyone knows, of course, that registered Democrats substantially outnumber registered Republicans. However, each is outnumbered by voters who declare themselves members of neither party, the so-called independents.

Says Gallup: "It is common knowledge that this is the area—among independents—that elections must be won."

He says that "politics is a business of assimilation, not elimination," quoting the late great Postmaster General Will Hays.

BUT GALLUP claims no ability to question why people answer polls the way they do, except for a spaghetti-like assortment of assorted reasons.

Millions, of course, concern themselves with the issues, or what they think are the issues. But when it comes to the man or woman who represents the issues, Gallup finds that feelings, not thoughts, dominate countless replies.

Gallup cited to me case after case in which voters' approval or disapproval of a presidential candidate is the result of emotional reasons, individual reasons of "I like him" or "I don't like him," and other responses to polls unconnected with sober thinking about the issue.

Said Gallup: "A great many responses are not inspired by thoughtful evaluation."

"ONE THING WE'VE GOT GOING FOR US—THE REPUBLICANS CAN BE COUNTED ON NOT TO NOMINATE A REASONABLE ALTERNATIVE"

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Zbig Vs. Marshall

WASHINGTON—Deepening friction between Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, and Marshall Shulman, the State Department's Soviet expert, is shrouding policy toward communist Russia in contradictions that deeply trouble major American allies.

"It's making my skin crawl," one administration policymaker told us in describing what he called the Brzezinski-Shulman "hatred." Hatred is surely too strong a word.

Nevertheless, the two former intellectual adversaries from Columbia University have been on a descending curve of policy conflict and personal relations ever since Carter entered the White House.

ANDREW TULLY:

Effete In The Fire

WASHINGTON—White House staffers below the Georgian mafia level are in philosophical disarray over what they regretfully conclude are recent signs of weakness in President Carter's handling of the country's many problems.

Across town, along Embassy Row, some diplomats are critical of Carter's failure to take a stronger leadership line in foreign affairs.

And on Capitol Hill, both Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd and House Speaker Tip O'Neill are reported by aides to be dissatisfied with Carter's performance as head of the Democratic Party.

At the White House, aides complain that Carter spends too much time worrying about relatively unimportant matters. "He concerns himself too much with things like pollution and cigarette smoking," one staffer said sadly.

"HE SHOULD put that trivia on the back burner and concentrate on the really serious problems like inflation and the deterioration of the situation in the Middle East."

Says another: "Jimmy is too humble. The U.S. is losing its former influence in the world and he doesn't realize he's the man who can stop this slide."

Says a third: "I believe Jimmy Carter basically is a strong man, but the events of the last several months leave the impression that he is weak, indecisive, and trying to do too much."

"For example, he puts too much emphasis on human rights abroad when, in fact, he can do little or nothing about it."

"MEANWHILE, HIS stance creates animosity in target countries we should be doing our best to cultivate as a realistic, pragmatic objective in a realistic, pragmatic world."

Understandably, foreign diplomats are most concerned over Carter's foreign policy inane.

In such matters as the chaos in Iran and the intransigence of Israel and Egypt over fashioning a peace treaty, they want Carter at least to say things that give the impression of strength.

A French Embassy official was sad. "The President is truly a good man," he said. "But it almost seems as if he is intimidated by the brutal times in which he must govern."

"We are all, of course, somewhat intimidated, but a leader cannot appear to admit it."

OVER AT the Organization of American States, an official asked: "What is the President doing letting (UN Ambassador) Andy Young declare that Ayatollah Khomeini will emerge as a saint?"

"None of us know what he'll do. Young's remark was gratuitous and irrelevant. The utterance of an amateur."

Big-shot Congressional Democrats weren't talking for attribution either.

But one of them summed up the feelings of many by applauding the demand of Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker that the U.S. retaliate against Afghanistan for the murder of Ambassador Adolph Dubs.

"I wish Jimmy had said that," he complained. "I hate to admit it, with Baker running hard for President, but he sounded like a leader."

The result has been Carter's dizzying on-again, off-again wavering toward Moscow: hard-line, soft-line, no-line.

Brzezinski, with total access to the Oval Office, pushes his hard line demanding that the Soviet Union be held to account for its worldwide offensive.

Shulman, 11 years Brzezinski's senior, at 62 is the oldest aide brought to Washington by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

He refuses to react to Soviet depredations in Asia, Africa and the Far East, advising Vance that SALT II and bilateral U.S.-Soviet relations are all that matter.

A strong President with convictions of his own about handling the Soviets could quickly resolve the conflict and force feuding ministers to comply or quit.

Carter's inability to do that has astonished foreign leaders from Western Europe, Japan, communist China and elsewhere.

"WHERE SHOULD I go to find out what America's policy is?" a major European foreign policy leader, here on a recent fact-finding mission, privately asked a State Department official. The reply was totally unsatisfactory.

But the U.S. humiliation in Iran, plus undisguised ridicule of America's inability to protect its embassies or its ambassadors, could change Carter.

He could be forced over to the Brzezinski way, at the expense of the Shulman way.

Political developments on Capitol Hill are also relentlessly pushing Carter. Republican leaders, appalled at U.S. reverses, are opening a major campaign to compel Carter to explain his policy toward the Soviets.

THE MORE HE and his top aides explain, the more public the Brzezinski-Shulman split must become. In the current political mood, Brzezinski's relatively hard line would win hands down in Congress.

Carter will find it difficult to continue not to choose between the two conflicting methods of treating a Soviet Union that is clearly on the offensive. The alternative is further decline in U.S. standing abroad.

As Vance's top adviser on dealing with the Russians, Shulman succeeded many illustrious diplomats, including Averell Harriman, Llewellyn Thompson and Charles (Chip) Bohlen.

Each was a veteran of personal confrontations with the Kremlin's leadership. In contrast, Shulman never had held a top policy job; his experience with the Soviet leadership was on an academic level.

BRZEZINSKI AND Shulman, as contradictory in temperament as in attitudes toward Moscow, had a long history of disputation over the U.S. and Russia that friends of both insist was conducted with professional courtesy at Columbia and, before that, at Harvard.

Shulman was the expert on internal Soviet affairs; Brzezinski the expert on the Soviet world role, its regional political goals and the postwar expansion of its military capabilities.

Once arrived here, however, Brzezinski had the far more prestigious position. But his access to the President did not give him a decisive edge over Shulman in the power struggle.

On the contrary, Shulman often has prevailed, thanks to Vance's unflinching support and Carter's unwillingness to overrule his secretary of state.

A CASE IN point was Shulman's veto of a stiff U.S. rebuke to Moscow for inflammatory anti-American Soviet broadcasts into Iran during the revolution.

The Iran "working group," composed of mid-level diplomats, unanimously recommended the rebuke: Vance upheld Shulman's decision not to affront the Kremlin.

Stark new evidence of America's decline and the fears it has unleashed among U.S. allies would seem to require a Brzezinski-Shulman showdown.

Without it, Carter cannot begin to persuade his allies that he really knows how he wants to deal with Moscow.

JAY HARRIS:

The Man Who...

A LOT OF people, including the voters, may not buy the idea, but in some ways the GOP may have too much of a good thing going for it.

Not only is this so in the matter of candidates, but in the onrush of events, both domestic and foreign, which could breed one of the more unusual turnaround in U.S. politics.

President Jimmy Carter is fast running out of time and options and could wind up not only a one-term, but rejected by his own party in the process. All the polls show the man in the White House in Big Trouble on just about any issue you can name.

The GOP, with three or more viable contenders and events around the world begging for a solution—any solution—enjoys the role of a challenger unhampered by restrictions of protocol or politeness.

In brief, "the opposition," both within the Democratic fold as well as the Republican, sees a chance to make political history. The next six to eight months could decide what happens.

NOW, HAVING said that, it is only fair to note that the same ingredients which point to a possible GOP upset also hold the potential for further frustration for the Grand Old Party.

One has to go no further than Lubbock and the South Plains for an object lesson in what we are talking about.

In this area, former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan, former Cong. and UN Amb. George Bush and former Gov. and Sec. of the Treasury John Connally all have strong followings.

In the wings are such newcomers and oldtimers as Rep. Phillip Crane, Rep.-Ill. Sen. Howard Baker, Rep.-Tenn. and a few others. But, it is Reagan, Bush and Connally who at this point have the inside track around here and elsewhere.

Any one of the three should make good Presidents. All have the business and political background. All are veterans of public service and the voting game. All have plenty of support, financial and otherwise.

SO, WHAT'S wrong with that, one might ask?

Nothing, as far as it goes. But, and it is an abutment large enough to block the White House gates, when one of the three emerges as his party's nominee, if such is the case, what will the other two—and their supporters—then do?

It is no idle question. And it is one which needs to be answered, by the candidates and those supporters, now.

If the candidates who lose and their rabid followers are going to go home and fold their tents, as well as pocketbooks—as too many Reagan people did in 1976—then the GOP might as well save themselves some time, money and trouble right now.

For whatever it is worth, even if by some chance Sen. Ted Kennedy or Calif. Gov. Jerry Brown were to unhorse Mr. Carter after a jerry battle, the odds are heavy that the Democrats would still go all-out for their man.

ONLY ONCE IN recent times have Democrats in droves, particularly the moderates and conservatives, abandoned the Demo candidate.

That was in 1972 when President Nixon whopped Sen. George McGovern and his undisciplined, ragtag assemblage of hangers-on, protesters and do-gooders.

For those who argue that, "yes, and look what we got," we know any number of people who, knowing what they know now, vow if given the same choice all over again, they still would have to go with Nixon. Considering what the "middle-of-the-road" Carter Administration is giving away half the world before any of us can get off, a vote against the more far-out McGovern would seem valid.

But we digress. The point is that Democrats, despite their family feuds, normally manage to stick together and in the process stick it to the GOP.

IF FURTHER proof of this is needed, hark back to 1968 when Lyndon Johnson laid it on Sen. Barry Goldwater.

A favorite foil of the pundits in those traumatic Vietnam days, when the Arizona senator was actually advocating trying to win the war, was that he was the type guy who could lead us into the 19th Century.

It may have been funny in a way. But a lot of people, who should have known better, not only believed that in a serious vein but opted for "the winner," and wound up losing anyway.

This time around, the GOP is blessed with more than one man, one philosophy and a target which, at the moment at least, is taking it on the chin. But the GOP habit of blowing the big as well as little ones still haunts.

LET US ASSUME that either Bush or Connally beat back the strong position which Reagan now enjoys.

Let us assume that the Californian loses ground either before or at the convention and is bypassed, narrowly, as he was for President Ford the last go-around.

Will the Reagan people—indeed Reagan himself—then join hands and go all out to help elect either Bush or Connally or Baker or Crane or some darkhorse yet to emerge?

We have been told by some local backers of Bush and Connally that they would have no trouble "joining in a team effort"—to help "turn things around" in what many regard as one of the gravest threats the nation has faced in its history.

We have yet to hear from the Reagan diehards. If they are really sincere in wanting to "turn things around," then they should be willing to do it with the man the people pick. Anything less will not be enough.

It's an historical fact that Cherokee Indian braves once customarily rented wives for the season. For the winter, mostly. For the summer, too, but at discounts then.

Botulism-Caused Death Rate Dropping In 1970s

ATLANTA (AP) — Deaths caused by foodborne botulism, more commonly called food poisoning, have shown a dramatic decrease since 1970, the national Center for Disease Control reports.

In the first half of this century, between 60 and 70 percent of those stricken with the disease died; however, since 1970 about 12 percent of the patients died, the CDC said.

Dr. John Snyder, an epidemiologist at the CDC, said the improvement is attributed mostly to better medical care, especially to the availability of mechanical respiratory equipment.

The CDC said also that infant botulism, the most recently recognized form of botulism, has been reported in 21 states since the first case was noted in 1975. Of the 98 cases of infant botulism reported in that time, only three resulted in death.

Until about 1970, foodborne botulism resulted in death for about one-third of its victims, usually from respiratory failure or some superimposed infection, the CDC said. The death rate was higher than this in the earlier years.

"As far as the decline in foodborne botulism is concerned, it is because we have a lot better medical treatment of the disease," Snyder said in an interview Sunday. "Respirators are available now and they were not available in the early part of this century."

Foodborne botulism is caused by eating contaminated food, especially that from jars or cans which have not been adequately processed during canning, and the contents eaten without adequate cooking.

Its symptoms include visual difficulties such as blurred or double vision and a sore throat; vomiting and diarrhea, and sometimes constipation, may also be present.

Research shows that most poisonings in the United States have been caused by home-canned vegetables, fruit or fish; meats also are blamed, but not as frequently.

Snyder said the increase in the number of infant botulism cases reported is important because it shows an increased awareness of the disease.

"We're getting closer to a true appreciation of the number of cases that are occurring," he said.

But, like other diseases, it is unlikely that all cases ever are reported, he added.

Only one case of infant botulism was reported in 1975 and in 1976, 15 cases were reported. Forty-three cases were reported in 1977 and last year, 30 cases were reported in 12 states.

Infant botulism was reported last year for the first time from Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Maryland, Missouri and New Mexico.

Regarding risk factors, the CDC said a case-control study of 41 cases of infant botulism in California showed that 29.2 percent of the victims had been given honey before they became ill.

California reported all except 20 percent of the infant botulism cases in 1976.

Last year, 60 percent were reported from other states.

The CDC attributed the large number of cases reported from California to a special surveillance system for infant botulism in that state.

Second Seminar Slated For Financial Managers

The Southwest School of Municipal Finance, inspired by a successful start in 1978, will sponsor a second seminar for financial managers and administrators in state, county and city governments on May 13-17 in the Texas Tech College of Business Administration.

The school, part of the Center for Professional Development at Texas Tech, has been established "as a vehicle for improving finance officers' knowledge of legal, governmental and financial dimensions involved in effectively discharging their responsibilities," Director Michael D. Joehnk, professor of finance at the university said.

Dr. Joehnk cooperates with Texas and New Mexico professional institutions, including the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, Texas Association of School Business Officials and Texas City Management Association. Advisory board and faculty include professional practitioners and professors from Texas, Florida, New York and Indiana.

Last year three-quarters of the more than 50 seminar participants rated the three and one-half day program "excellent." They had been offered 16 hours of core courses and eight elective seminars.

This year the program offers 20 hours of core courses, including "Financial Administration," "Municipal Accounting," "School District Accounting" and "Cash Management." The seminar has been expanded to offer 12 different topics, covering complementary issues such as mathematics, credit analysis, computer applications and others.

Tuition fee per registrant is $386, covering single occupancy dormitory accommodations, course materials, all meals and social and recreational activities. Enrollment is limited to 90 persons.

Registration will be accepted in received order. Full refunds will be made for cancellations before May 1. Programs, enrollment forms and detailed information are available from Center for Professional Development, College of Business Administration, Texas Tech University, P.O. Box 4320, Lubbock, Texas 79409.

Newsman Sees No 'Punishment' In China Move

EDITOR'S NOTE: UPI Bangkok Bureau Manager Alan Dawson returned this weekend from a visit to Vietnam with a U.S. congressional delegation. During the trip he visited the frontlines of the Chinese-Vietnamese border war and talked to Vietnamese officials in Hanoi concerning the Chinese invasion.

By ALAN DAWSON
HANOI, Vietnam (UPI) — If China's invasion of Vietnam is meant, as Peking claims, to "punish" Hanoi for its invasion of Cambodia, it is failing miserably. Although Vietnamese authorities took visiting Western newsmen and U.S. congressmen only to places to back up their own line, it was clear that Vietnam is far from being whipped, down or even depressed.

The visitor got the impression near the front lines that residents have once again genuinely been drawn together by a threat from outside and are determined to resist.

At the tiny village of Bao Thang, for example, there is a 150-yard suspension bridge. As Chinese artillery exploded nearby, civilians and soldiers met on the bridge, chattering encouragement to one another.

"Be careful," or "Get the Chinese out" or "Watch yourself," the civilians exhorted the soldiers. The soldiers acknowledged with grins and waves of their hands.

For the last 15 miles of the drive to the front, our 11-vehicle convoy wound through small villages. Families rushed to their split bamboo rail fences to wave and shout.

"They think you are technicians," said a Vietnamese official, indicating the villagers would be happy with a little foreign help to push the Chinese back.

Certainly up near the front, talking to soldiers both coming and going to the battlelines, there is no sign the Vietnamese feel themselves undergoing punishment.

Invasion, and even a threat to the country, yes. But punishment, no.

China's line that Vietnam should be chastened for its actions in Cambodia has no evident listeners in Vietnam.

If there is dissent within Vietnam to the Cambodian invasion, it is well hidden. Resident newsmen say they have seen no sign either near the front or back in the capital.

The prevailing feeling among Vietnamese officials is that China is simply invading for its own reasons and that the "punishment" line from Peking is just a ploy to cover its expansionist aims.

"China not only wants to occupy all of Indochina, but all of Southeast Asia, all of the world," said Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach.

Vietnamese officials are in no way chastened or apologetic about the invasion of Cambodia, even in the most private conversations. To the Vietnamese, the Khmer Rouge government of fallen Cambodian Premier Pol Pot was bestial and had to go.

Vietnam also is perturbed by U.S. policy of linking the Chinese invasion of Vietnam to Hanoi's invasion of Cambodia.

The important North American desk at the Vietnamese foreign ministry, headed by Tran Quang Ce, has concluded that the United States has supported the Chinese invasion of Vietnam.

"Maybe we're wrong," a desk officer told me. "Maybe this one time we've made a mistake. I hope so. But I don't think so."

The main support for this line of reasoning is the fact the Chinese invasion was launched so shortly after Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping returned from his U.S. tour.

However, Vietnam is convinced that even if China has U.S. support, the Chinese will not launch all-out war.

"China doesn't dare to attack us with a million troops, even though they want to," said a Vietnamese foreign ministry official. "If they do, there will be instant retaliation from the Soviet Union."

"Vietnam will resist," said another official. "We will resist so long as there is one Chinese soldier on our soil, no matter what the consequences."

Cult Bodies Disposition Expected

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge is expected to decide Monday whether to spend some $302,800 in Peoples Temple assets to bring back to California in a convoy of moving vans the 567 cult member bodies still unidentified or unclaimed after they died a mass suicide in Guyana.

The bodies, embalmed and in steel military coffins, have lain in a cold hangar at Dover (Del.) Air Force Base since they were flown out of the Guyana jungle in late November.

The plan developed by the Emergency Relief Committee, an inter-faith panel appointed by Superior Court Judge Ira Brown Jr., has the support of the State Department and the Justice Department, which indicated it would probably, if necessary, waive first priority on its $4.3 million claim against the Temple so the first available assets can be spent to bury the bodies.

But it is expected to get opposition from lawyers for people with claims against the Temple who believe they should be paid off first. Some cemetery owners and funeral directors whose services were not selected also are angry and may protest, according to members of the committee that came up with the plan.

Identified and claimed bodies would be handed over to relatives for burial wherever they want. The others — including 255 unidentified bodies — would be buried in a San Mateo cemetery about 30 miles south of San Francisco.

The 567 bodies still in Dover include 312 whose relatives have said they either cannot afford to ship the bodies back or do not want to.

The committee also recommended that another $218,600 in assets of the dissolved cult be used to reimburse the 346 families who have already flown their relatives home and buried them at their own expense.

Area Bee Winners Announced

Roxann Martinez, a fifth-grader and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Martinez of 2006 26th St., won the recent Dupre Elementary spelling bee. Alternate Amy Durpre, sixth-grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Dupre of 2012 25th St., missed the word "deafen", enabling Roxann to win the contest. The winning word was "dearth".

In the recent spelling bee at Maedgen Elementary, the word missed by alternate Quante Cooper, a sixth-grader and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Cooper of 4203 44th St., was "veil". Edward Smith, sixth-grade son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lee Smith of 3409 E. 18th St., correctly spelled that word and went to spell "version" to win the bee.

"Holdall" was the word that won the Posey Elementary spelling bee for Greg Carey, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carey of 5701 72nd St. The word missed by alternate Pam Simmons, sixth-grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Simmons of 5721 76th St., was "hoax".

James V. Baker, language arts consultant for LISD, was pronouncer for the Wheelock Elementary spelling bee. Judges were Barbara Colwell and Carole Mainwaring. Twenty-seven students were entered in the bee, which lasted for nine rounds. Stephanie Roberts, 11-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Jerry Roberts of 3111 43rd St., won the bee when alternate Jeff Chaffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Chaffin of 3302 41st St., misspelled the word "havoc". Stephanie correctly spelled the word and went on to spell "homonym" for the championship.

Haynes Elementary had a repeat winner in their recent school spelling bee. Doug Stevick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Stevick of 3621 59th St., and a sixth-grader won the contest. Another sixth-grader, Scot Brakeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Brakeley of 3808 52nd St., is alternate. The word misspelled by Scot was "piety", giving Doug the chance to win the bee with the word "pigeon-hole".

Thirteen-year-old David Criado, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Criado of 3322 Harvard, was the school spelling bee winner at Matthews Junior High. Alternate Martin Diaz, eighth-grade son of Mr. and Mrs. Gill Diaz of 2907 Grinnell, lost the winning position when he misspelled "pigment." The winning word was "pigment." Director of the bee were Janice Graham and Judy Braun. Bill Larmer served as pronouncer.

John Hasselmeier, principal of Arnett Elementary, served as director and pronouncer for that school's recent spelling bee. Winner of the contest was Andy Bessire, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bessire of 509 E. Stanford, Tamara

Ice-Trapped Ferries Released By Winds

FRANKFORT, Mich. (AP) — Two ferries trapped in Lake Michigan for more than 40 hours in up to 32 feet of ice were freed Thursday.

Glenn Johnson, a Coast Guard petty officer, said a wind shift blew the ice back out into the lake, helping the City of Milwaukee dock shortly after 10 a.m. Earlier Thursday, Coast Guard ice breakers helped its sister Ann Arbor railroad ferry, Viking, into her berth. The ferries became stuck Tuesday afternoon.

New Orleans Police To Pull Garbage Pickets

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Striking police agreed Sunday to obey a court order and pull pickets away from garbage dumps and Sanitation Department garages, a city spokesman said.

The spokesman, Jay Handelman, said he had been informed by police union officials that the union had agreed to remove the pickets. He said city officials expect to have New Orleans cleaned up by the time Mardi Gras arrives Tuesday.

Officials from the Teamsters union-affiliated Police Association of Louisiana were preparing late Sunday to resume bargaining with city negotiators and were not immediately available for comment.

However, at least one Sanitation Department employee confirmed that police pickets had been removed and that most garbage men had returned to work Sunday.

"We got quite a bit up this morning, and we anticipate all our crews in the morning tomorrow," said the employee, who did not give her name.

She said the French Quarter, the heart of the boisterous Mardi Gras revelry, was substantially cleaned up Sunday morning.

Garbage had piled up since Thursday, when police started picketing the Sanitation Department facilities. Some garbage men crossed picket lines Saturday and Sunday after Sanitation Department Director Patrick Koloski, who had told them to stay home Friday, ordered them back on the job.

The state's Fourth Circuit Court of Appeal ordered police to stop picketing at the garbage dumps and garages Saturday night, but the lines apparently remained up until Sunday afternoon.

The walkout began Feb. 16.

A group of citizens took out an ad in the Sunday Times-Picayune asking residents to take garbage to the dumps themselves.

And circulars passed out in the French Quarter asked people to dump garbage at the Teamsters union hall — a move Handelman said the city did not support.

Some of the 1,100 officers represented by the Police Association threatened to extend their holiday-dampening to yet another festival.

"You can tell them Easter is dead now, too," members of one group of strikers said Saturday, as they hung a dead rabbit outside police headquarters. Most acknowledged that the threat was just a grim joke, but added they were ready to stay out as long as necessary.

"They're trying to starve us out, but they're not gonna make it," said an officer who asked not to be identified. "It's the same for us now as it was the first day. We may even be here six months from now."

About 600 National Guardsmen and 150 state troopers have been in the city aiding the 300 police officers still on duty.

There were also pickets, described as informational, at some fire department facilities, but firemen have continued to work.

Teamsters negotiator Joseph Valenti, of Detroit, said Saturday that neither side has budged during recent bargaining sessions.

Valenti said the talks are serious, but city negotiators are hampered by lack of authority.

On Friday, Mayor Ernest Morial complained that with Valenti, Teamsters representative Mitch Ledet and Police Association local president Vincent Bruno speaking for police, city negotiators don't know whom to ask for what.

Valenti also complained that the city is saying different things to the public and at the bargaining table.

Registration information about the boat in Galveston Bay gave Coast Guard investigators the owner's name, but no address, Odum said. He declined to give the name because there was no way the Coast Guard could get in touch with the next-of-kin.

He said a number of items listed in news releases as being under review, including a more liberal life insurance plan, better hospitalization and a gun allowance, have been turned down.

Police also want a pay plan that takes length of service into account. Most officers now get $997 a month, regardless of how long they've been on the force.

Ships' Collision Blocks Neches River

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — A large ship carrying sulfur was hit by a Liberian flag tanker and sank Sunday morning during turbulence in the Neches River near Port Arthur.

All 19 persons aboard the 612-foot Marine Duval got off safely after it was rammed amidships while maneuvering in the river about 4 a.m., a Coast Guard official said.

But the Neches — a major channel for the Beaumont-Port Arthur area — was blocked.

"She is crossways in the middle of the channel of the river. The vessel has sunk right where she's at," Chief Petty Officer Bill Odum of New Orleans said of the Marine Duval.

"She's not submerged, but she's sitting on the bottom."

Coast Guard officials termed the collision one of many Gulf Coast-area casualties to high wind and seas.

"We've got several barges that have got problems over in the Mississippi Sound because of weather and wind conditions; we've got an overdue sailboat that left somewhere in the New Orleans area heading for Bay St. Louis that we're looking for, and we've got the two-big-ship collision in the Neches River," Odum said.

He said the problems were due to two-to-five-foot seas whipped up by winds of up to 35 miles an hour.

He said two ballast tanks were broken open when the 735-foot Mobile Venture slammed into the Marine Duval, but there was no pollution from either the sulfur or the Mobile Venture's cargo of crude.

A barge and tug were on the way and would try to float the Marine Duval by removing some of the sulfur and replacing it with air, he said.

The Mobile Venture's bow was damaged, he said.

He said the Coast Guard was also searching for a person apparently lost when a boat overturned Saturday afternoon in Galveston Bay.

Registration information about the boat in Galveston Bay gave Coast Guard investigators the owner's name, but no address, Odum said. He declined to give the name because there was no way the Coast Guard could get in touch with the next-of-kin.

Students To Visit Tech Campus

As many as 1,200 high school students are expected at Texas Tech University March 2 to learn about college life, room the campus and end the day with a free swimming and dance party at the Aquatic Center.

While most students will be coming for personal advice on college choices, there will be planned activities for fun as well as events open to the visitors.

Students from throughout Texas and as far away as Connecticut and New Jersey have indicated they will attend the fourth annual University Day at Tech, beginning with registration at 8:45 a.m. and a general assembly from 9:30 to 10 a.m. in the University Center Theater.

Capacity of the theater is 1,000, but admissions officer John Edwards said that response from high school counselors indicates there could be an overflow crowd "if the weather is good for travel."

Lubbock merchants, working through the Lubbock Visitor and Convention Center, are assisting with party food for the swimming and dance event with live music beginning at 8 p.m. For the price of admission students can choose to watch mime Keith Berger performing at the UC Theater or hear Don Sanders playing guitar and singing at the University Center coffeehouse in the "Storm Cellar."

As with the swim and dance party there is no charge for the day-long continuous running videotape, "Henry David Thoreau: The Captain of Huckleberry Party," or campus bus tours.

Throughout the day students can roam and browse in the UC Ballroom where there will be booths representing organizations and student services on campus. In addition, in recognition of Engineers' Week, the Engineering Student Council will have special exhibits in the University Center.

Other plans will help high school students learn more about higher education, whether they intend to enroll in Texas Tech University or another institution.

Dr. Robert H. Ewait, vice president for student affairs, will welcome guests. Honors Program students will participate in the welcome also.

From 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. each of the university's six colleges will provide advisement programs to acquaint the high school students with possible majors in agricultural sciences, arts and sciences, business administration, education, engineering or home economics.

"Students who take advantage of these sessions," Edwards said, "should be able to make better career choices when they enter college. Because this is an important part of the day's programs, advisers will assist students on an individual basis during the day. Some colleges will repeat the formal advisement programs."

Manual Focuses On Fire Safety In Poorer Areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has put out a new manual aimed at improving the handling of fire safety education and awareness programs in low-income and minority communities.

The manual published by the Consumer Product Safety Commission focuses on activities and experiences of a pilot program it sponsored last year in several low-income urban and rural areas.

In a report released over the weekend, the agency noted that it completed a six-month pilot project in sections of Baltimore, Detroit, rural Appalachian sites in Leslie County, Ky. and American Indian communities in New Mexico.

"Low-income persons are far more susceptible to fire and lose a proportionately higher percentage of their worldly goods to fire than other segments of the population," the report said.

Radioactive Waste Awaits Testing, Clean-Up

DENVER (AP)—Colorado health officials say they have nearly completed their inspection of radioactive waste dumps in the state, but they now must prepare for a month-long period of testing amid concern as to how clean-up operations will be financed.

Al Hazle, director of the state Health Department's Division of Radiation and Hazardous Waste, said only about six possible sites of abandoned radioactive waste piles remain to be checked. But he said firm conclusions about the scope and possible solution of the problem are still several weeks away.

"We've basically shut down everything else in our division," Hazle said. "Before we can begin any remedy, we'll have to take a look at the radiation levels detected in (16 sites in the Denver area) and convert them" into terms that indicate their effect on humans.

Highly radioactive dumps near and under the Robinson Brick and Tile Co. in Denver were discovered 10 days ago after an EPA employee in Nevada uncovered old records that referred to radium processing in Denver. The radium industry once boomed in the city but has been defunct for decades.

Since that initial discovery, 16 gamma-ray emitting dumps have been located in the Denver area. Some are emitting radiation in excess of federal limits, but so far officials have said there is no immediate public health hazard.

At some of the Denver sites—which include a downtown business and an area near a pancake house—gamma rays in excess of 2,500 micro-Roentgens per hour have been recorded. Normal background radiation in Denver runs between 15 and 35 micro-Roentgens per hour.

Hazle said the effects of the gamma rays will be gauged in a complicated series of tests, including an aerial survey of the Denver metropolitan area and air samples at specific sites. The testing is expected to take at least 30 days at each site, he said.

The next step will involve efforts to obtain federal funds to aid in the clean up. Hazle said that if the effort fails, the burden of decontamination will fall on those who own the affected property.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., has asked federal energy and environmental protection officials if clean-up funds would be available for the Denver sites.

The dumps in Colorado of uranium and low-grade radium were left by mills that operated in the first three decades of the 20th century. Although exposure to gamma radiation from radium has since been associated with leukemia, it was believed at the time that the element had therapeutic value in medicine.

Officials elsewhere have dealt with similar problems for years.

A major facility at what is now the Cansonsburg Industrial Park in western Pennsylvania is scheduled for cleanup by the U.S. Department of Energy, said Thomas Gerusky, director of the state's Bureau of Radiation Protection.

Environmental Protection Agency officials in Denver said Friday that other dump sites could exist in the Chicago area and in New York state but did not identify those sites.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My father has a $10,000 U.S. Treasury bond, due June 15, 1983. It pays only 3 1/4 percent interest, because it was issued back in 1953. I suggested that he turn the bond in and put the money into something such as six-month savings certificates which are presently yielding three times that rate. He also has two $1,000 bonds issued by major corporations and wonders if he should keep them or cash them in. If he decides to redeem these bonds, how does he go about it?

A. He can't. He can sell those bonds—and get the going market price. But he can't redeem them and get all his money back.

Unlike U.S. Savings Bonds, most other bonds have no provision allowing their owners to turn the bonds back to the issuers—in this case the U.S. Treasury and two corporations—until the bonds reach their maturities. At that time, the bonds will be paid off at par—face—value.

The exception to this general rule takes place when the issuer "calls a bond for redemption" before the maturity date. But that's not likely to happen, when the interest on a bond is lower than current interest rates.

As I put this through the typewriter, "Treasury 3 1/4s of 83"—the bond your father owns—are trading at "81 bid, 82 asked." The quotations are expressed in percentage of par value. So, if your father sold his $10,000 par value bond now, he would get about $8,100. If he holds on to it until it matures, he'll get $10,000.

My advice is for your father to keep that U.S. Treasury bond until its maturity. And, although we don't have the space in this column to spell out all the numbers, the same advice applies on his other two bonds.

The current yield on his Treasury bond—$325 annual interest, divided by the bond's $8,100 market price—is slightly more than 4 percent. But that bond's "yield to maturity" is 8.28 percent.

The yield to maturity is the current yield, plus an increment that takes into consideration the $1,900 difference between the $8,100 your father would get if he sold now and the $10,000 he will get when the bond matures.

If he sells now, he would have to put his money to work earning at least 8.28 percent between now and June 15, 1983, just to come out even.

Sure, at this point in time, he can do better in six-month savings certificates. But no one can tell him what the rate will be on six-month certificates over the next several years. He knows exactly what the interest rate and June 15, 1983, redemption price will be on his Treasury bond.

Q. I am a widow, with an annuity paying me $788 a month. I have $30,000 in six-month savings certificates and $6,000 in a regular savings account. I own two homes, one of which I live in and the other, which is worth about $45,000, I rent out at $300 a month. I make about $2,000 a year profit on the home I rent out.

Should I sell the rental home and put the money in six-month savings certificates, on which I would make about $4,500 interest? I really don't need the money. But I want to do what is best for me.

A. If you needed more income, the answer would be a resounding "yes." But, for you, a cautious approach is the way to go. If that rental property is well-maintained and is in an area where home values are going up and up—as is often the case—I say hang on.

The annual increase in value could be a good deal more in the extra income you could get by selling and putting your money into savings certificates. And there's no income tax due on that increasing value, until you sell. One vote to keep the rented house.

Also, check with a good accountant to make sure that you are getting all the tax advantages that go with ownership of

In Mideast If Necessary

U.S. Prepared To Use Military Force To Protect Oil Sources

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two administration officials said Sunday the United States is prepared to use military force if it is necessary and appropriate to protect oil sources and vital interests in the Mideast.

"Protection of the oil flow from the Mideast is clearly part of our vital interests," said Defense Secretary Harold Brown. "In protection of these vital interests, we'll take any action that's appropriate, including the use of military force."

The defense secretary added that military force "is not necessarily appropriate in every instance."

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, speaking of U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf, said: "The issue of a U.S. military presence is under consideration. That would involve military personnel. Whether it would involve a deployment of troops, combat arms of the ground forces, is another question."

Brown's comments were in response to questions about Soviet actions in the Mideast. The defense secretary said that while all problems in the region cannot be blamed on the Soviet Union, the Russians are "clearly eager to fish in muddy waters."

He said that many nations in the Mideast recognize a threat from the Soviet Union.

"The United States is prepared to counter such a threat from a major power with whatever means are necessary," Brown said. "The United States is prepared to defend its vital interests with whatever means are appropriate, including military force where necessary, whether that's in the Middle East or elsewhere."

Brown made the comments on the CBS interview program "Face the Nation."

Schlesinger, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," said when pressed for specifics, "These matters are under review and it would be inappropriate for me to get into specifics at this time."

At another point, he said: "Quite plainly if we are considering a military presence, that would involve military personnel as well as equipment."

On another subject, Brown repeated U.S. calls for China to withdraw its invading army from Vietnam and for Vietnam to withdraw its troops from Cambodia.

China invaded Vietnam eight days ago, and Brown conceded that the chances for a widening of the war continue as long as the conflict exists.

He declined to predict whether the Soviets might enter the war on the side of Vietnam, its ally. He added that: "If the Soviets should become engaged in Southeast Asia, that would be a serious matter. ... They know our attitude on this, and we certainly hope there will not be a further widening of the war."

The defense secretary said intelligence sources have not indicated troop build-ups by either Russia or China along their common border, but noted that the Russians have long had about a half million soldiers facing China, while China has about a million soldiers looking back.

He said war between China and Russia is "unlikely but not impossible" and described such a conflict as "very dangerous, very unpredictable, and obviously very, very serious ... and one the United States should not get involved with."

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 314 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio, 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I wrote to you recently to get a list of the requirements for eligibility for Social Security disability benefits, which I have now received. There is one requirement which I really don't understand very well. It reads: You must have at least 20 quarters of covered earnings under Social Security in 40 consecutive calendar quarters ending the quarter in which your disability began. In other words, you must have worked five years out of the 10-year period immediately preceding your disability.

Does this mean that I must work five years in a row within the 10-year period before my disability began? Does this also mean that if I worked 25 years under Social Security and then did not work for six years before I became disabled, then I would not be eligible for Social Security disability at all? — D.M.

No, it does not have to be five consecutive years. But you must have five years (20 quarters) of work under Social Security somewhere within the 10-year period immediately preceding your disability.

If you worked enough under Social Security to become fully insured (to become eligible for retirement benefits by earning the quarters necessary) and then did not work for six years before becoming disabled, you would not be eligible for disability benefits. Many people find this very difficult to understand and are denied benefits for this reason.

HEARTLINE: I applied for Social Security disability benefits in November 1978. My award certificate states that my determined date of disability was October 1978 and that I will receive my first check in April. There will be no benefits paid between October and March. It has already been determined by Social Security that I am disabled, so why is it that I will receive no benefits for these months? — S.H.

For a disabled worker or a disabled widow or widower under the law, disability benefits begin after a waiting period of five full calendar months after the month in which the disability is determined to have begun.

No benefits can be paid for these first five full months. Therefore, the first disability benefit check will be paid for the sixth full month of disability.

For those already on Social Security benefits, and those who will soon start receiving benefits, Heartline has written a guide to Social Security to explain facets of the program which will affect your benefits and eligibility. To order, send $2 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11824, Chicago, Ill., 60611. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: My husband and I are drawing Social Security and we have a daughter who is 20 years old. She got married two years ago and has recently obtained a divorce. She is going back to college full-time. Is she eligible to draw Social Security, since she is back at home and once again a dependent? — K.D.

Yes, but only if she was not previously entitled to benefits on either of her parent's Social Security accounts, even if her benefits ended because she was 18. This provision does not apply if a marriage ends because it was void or annulled.

HEARTLINE: Is it true that any part of the $60 deductible I paid for Medicare in 1978 can also be applied for this year? — L.O.

In some cases this is true. If you meet all or any portion of your Medicare deductible in the last three months of the year (October, November or December), then that part of the previous year's deductible can also be counted toward the following year's $60 annual deductible.

SPIRITED PLUM SAUCE

1½ lbs. fresh plums (about 9), quartered
1 to 1½ cups sugar, depending on tartness of plums used and sweetness desired
1 tbsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. allspice
2 tbsps. port, sherry or brandy (optional)
Stir plums and sugar in saucepan, over low heat, until juices flow. Bring to a boil, stirring; then simmer 3 to 5 minutes or just until plums are tender but still hold their shape. With slotted spoon, remove plums to bowl. Add remaining ingredients to syrup and cook gently over medium heat about 6 minutes or until syrupy. Do not boil. Return plums to syrup. Serve warm.

after his partner's takeout double."

Oswald: "In the old days he could jump to two spades as a game force, but no one likes to force with such a weak suit. Today a two-spade bid would show nine or ten points and be highly invitational, but not forcing and South would pass with its minimum double."

Alan: "South isn't too happy when forced to bid spades or when his partner jumps to game, but things look good when he sees the dummy."

Oswald: "East cashes two hearts and shifts to a club, taken by dummy's king. The nine of spades is led and allowed to ride. Then a second spade lead picks up East's king. The diamond finesse works also and South winds up with an overtrick."

Engagements

PATTERSON—ROWAN

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Patterson announce the engagement of a daughter, Martha Jane, to Robert Caperton Rowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Rowan of Memphis, Tenn.

The bride-elect was graduated from Memphis State University. The prospective bridegroom was graduated from the University of Texas.

The couple will be married March 24 in the Idlewild Presbyterian Church in Memphis.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mother who is paying for her sins. When I was 15, I got pregnant out of wedlock and had a wonderful baby named Anna. Later I married a man (not her father) who molested her when she was 11. I didn't throw him out, but kept hoping he would look for help. He started to drink, and Anna ran away from home. I have learned from friends that Anna is now a prostitute on 86th Street in New York. She is only 14.

Can you advise me on how to help her? I am too ashamed to sign my name. — The Bronx

Dear Friend: I contacted Dr. Judianne Densen-Gerber who is a psychiatrist and a lawyer, and the president of Odyssey Institute in New York. I knew she would have the answer — and she did.

There is now a treatment center for child prostitutes — the first — and it's about time. It is estimated that nearly a million children from six to sixteen years of age are now practicing prostitution. The director of the treatment program is David Schroedel. It is called Midwest Adolescent Resource Center and the phone number is 741-9654 (area code 212). Anyone who wants information on how to help a child prostitute get out of the business (including the prostitute) should call this number.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AJ5 ♥K8 ♦AJ1075 ♣KQ4
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
 A.—With 18 points and a good five-card suit, your hand was too strong for a one no-trump opening. Now, however, you must do something to show your strength. A jump to four clubs seems like the obvious choice, but that does have drawbacks—it exposes the king of hearts to a lead through and bypasses the no-trump game, which could be the safest spot. We prefer a jump to three no trump to protect our tenaces.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♥KQ83 ♦KJ10752 ♣943
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
 Pass 2 NT ?

What action do you take?
 A.—Not vulnerable does not mean invulnerable. The auction has warned you that you can expect little, if anything, from partner and that East holds both missing diamond honors. To bid again simply means that you are offering the opponents two bites at the cherry—they can either bid game or double you, whichever they feel would be more profitable.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ1076 ♥A952 ♦K6 ♣J2
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Dble.
 Pass 2 ♥ 3 ♦ 3 ♥ ?

What action do you take?
 A.—Your side has the balance of power, but it is by no means certain that you can make game. Therefore, we would make an effort to penalize the opponents for what may be a major indiscretion by doubling. If partner has a distributional hand, unsuited for defense, he is free to pull the double.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♣K73 ♥6 ♦KJ9632 ♠AQ8
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
 A.—With a hand good enough to open the bidding, you must make some show of strength. You don't want to jump in no trump with such an unbalanced hand and only one stopper in the unbid suit, and a jump to three diamonds really suggested a better suit. The only reasonable option left is a rebid of three clubs.

Q.5—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K105 ♥AKJ8 ♦AJ92 ♣K5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
 A.—Since partner probably has only three-card support for your suit, you don't want to bid game in hearts, but three no trump might also be the wrong spot. By bidding three spades now, you will give partner the additional information he may need to select the proper contract.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠85 ♥83 ♦A109762 ♣AJ5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♥ 1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
 A.—Partner's no trump overall shows the equivalent of a no trump opening bid, i.e., a balanced hand of 16-18 points. One glance at your line of card suit and side ace and the winning bid is obvious—three no trump. That should be a safer contract than the eleven-trick minor-suit game.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A92 ♥AJ1074 ♦KJ87 ♣8
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
 A.—There is no doubt that you can defeat two diamonds. However, if you double, the penalty is unlikely to be sufficient recompense for missing a vulnerable game—your spade holding weakens the defensive potential of your hand and increases its offensive potential. Therefore, we suggest that you respond two hearts. Reverse the spade and club holdings, and the double would be a standstill.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠8752 ♥9542 ♦KJ6 ♣KJ

The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♠ Dble. ?

What action do you take?
 A.—With increased support and some defensive values, we may be reason why you shouldn't make your normal bid. Raise to two hearts.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
 Help! After putting adhesive-backed paper on all of my kitchen shelves, the edges are curling up. All I can think of to use is nylon net and vinegar, which are no help this time.
 Any suggestions? — Judy Johnson

Had to chuckle at your comment about nylon net and vinegar, but those old standbys would have come to your rescue once again if you had just thought to use them before you put the paper on your shelves.

You see, more than likely the reason the paper is curling is that there was an invisible film of oil on the surface of the shelves.

After you washed the shelves using nylon net and soapy water, a solution of vinegar and water would have completely removed any oily residue, which must be done before the paper will stick. Amazing the number of times those two faithful friends can be used, isn't it?

But to your problem... Try putting a water-soluble household glue around the curling edges. Weight them down with something until dry. This should keep them "in their place" until you're ready to put down new. Love you for writing. — Heloise

It's coming and no one can stop it. I'm talking about the pairing up of people who share common attributes. The division of smokers vs. non-smokers, joggers vs. non-joggers, drinkers against teetotalers, those with exact change and those without.

Now it's a college in Maine which, in the hopes of cutting fuel bills, is asking students whether they're normally cold-blooded or hot-blooded. Once the division is made, all the cold-blooded students will be placed in the heated dormitories and the hot-blooded ones can sit by an open window and perspire.

Forgive my optimism, but I think this is definitely a breakthrough in the War of Differences. The reason why we have had so much trouble with human relationships in this country is we try to force mismatched people into understanding one another.

In the future, I'd like to see an application for a marriage license (circle the response that fits best) that spells it all out.

Special Machine Reads Aloud To Blind—Or Busy—People

WASHINGTON (AP) — The blind young woman punched a key on the control panel, and the machine on the table responded with robot preciseness: "Waiting. Enter a Command."

JoAnn Giudicessi of Boston punched another key to get the machine to read to her, and the machine came back, very precisely: "Searching for the first line."

"It tells you what it's doing," Miss Giudicessi explained.

The scanner found the first line, and out came: "Jack and Jill went up the hill..."

It isn't a tape recorder. It's a reading machine for the blind, a device which directly translates ordinary printed material into spoken English. The childhood poem was typed on a sheet of paper.

The machine has a deep, male voice.

"Yes, I think that's discrimination," Kay Chase, blind since birth, said with a smile.

Sam Lentine, also blind, said all the computers have male voices and added: "I would love to hear a nice, sexy voice."

Whatever the voice, Edwin W. Martin Jr., director of the federal Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, said the machine is "clearly a major breakthrough in educational technology for visually impaired people."

The bureau, a part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has been backing development of the machine. It has entered into a $2 million contract with Kurzweil Computer Products, a Cambridge, Mass., developer and manufacturer of the Kurzweil Reading Machine, for 64 of the devices to be placed in public schools, colleges, libraries and rehabilitation centers for the visually handicapped.

Prototype models, costing $50,000 each, larger and more expensive than the new version, have been in use since 1976 in 40 educational settings. The new, advanced machine is smaller and costs $19,400.

Demonstrating it recently at the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Miss Giudicessi, of Boston, who works for Kurzweil, said she uses it for her studies at Brandeis University.

Lentine, of Albany, N.Y., who is studying for his doctorate at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, said he has been using a prototype in his reading.

Mrs. Chase, who works at the Bureau of Education for the handicapped, said she has been using a prototype to read grant proposals and other government forms.

The machine will open a whole new variety of jobs for the blind, she said.

The machine even will spell a word for you in the text. Miss Giudicessi punched a key, and here came the voice: "Jack, capital J-a-c-k."

Embalming Practice To Be Study Topic

ry, embalming would go with all other cultural attainments," she said.

Dr. John Board, Lubbock regional director for the state health board, also said he believes proper burial practices and techniques lessen the chance for the transmittal of diseases through bodies.

He added, though, that the issue "is a debatable subject that I really have no answer for."

Persons who frequently have close contact with bodies seem more wary than public health officials on the dangers of bacteria, spores and viruses remaining in a body after a person dies.

Dr. John Ray, of Physicians Pathology Service, and another Lubbock pathologist both stated that in cases in which a person had died of certain contagious diseases, they would not perform an autopsy until the body was embalmed.

They pathologists also said organisms in the form of spores could become a public health hazard in urban burial plots.

"In our culture, one of the main objectives is to stop disease and there are many organisms in the spore form that would last a long time if they were to get into the soil," said Dr. Ray.

Another Lubbock pathologist said embalming "cuts down organisms or micro-bacteria tremendously, so that an embalmed body is of no practical threat to anyone."

Dr. Ray seconded Dr. Orr's belief that today's funeral practices require the use of embalming. He said the "accepted funeral process almost depends on embalming from start to end."

Bodies donated to research at Texas Tech Medical School also must be embalmed "for preservation and sanitation," said Claud Lodstein, coordinator of the Anatomy Department.

Lodstein also noted that commercial transporting companies require that bodies be embalmed before they will carry them, for both health and aesthetic reasons.

Monta Wolfe, a mortician at Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home, said most health authorities are uncertain about the need to embalm "because nearly everyone is embalmed."

The rate of deterioration of a body depends on temperature, moisture, and the condition and bacteria present in the body at the time of death. Without embalming, which costs about $100, odor, swelling and puffiness begin to develop when decomposition starts.

Wolfe said the public usually "thinks the body remains in fairly good state for two or three days, but it just doesn't do it."

"Discontinuing embalming would eliminate paying respects to the dead," he added.

The mortician agreed, however, that embalming is not necessary if the body is disposed of within 24 hours of death.

Sun's Eclipse Spectacular Slated Today

Goldendale's 3,200 population was expected to swell by at least 5,000. One restaurant had 1,000 breakfast reservations for eclipse day. "I have a dozen staying at my house," says Mayor Cyrus Forry.

Visitors were invited to spread sleeping bags in churches, schools, the Grange Hall and Masonic Temple.

win," he said. "They don't want independence. They want peace in the village to live and be happy."

Boyson said he knows that his hard-line attitude toward Africa is against American idealism, but that he does not want to see the Communists gain control of a whole continent of raw materials.

Boyson said the United States also should take steps to control Cuba's interests in Africa. Cuba has sent more than 45,000 troops to Africa to aid black independence movements, he claimed.

"The U.S. really should be able to stop the threat nearest their doorstep (Cuba) before some 45,000 troops get control of the whole African continent," he said.

Political aspirations are part of Boyson's future, but he said he does not know what form the aspirations will take. "I could be on the front or I could be in the back throwing tear gas bombs. The times will determine my future," he said.

Boyson is the Spokesman on Education and Science for the British Conservative Party's Front Bench, a position equal to an American congressional committee chairman.

$200,000 Violin Disappears In Taxi

NEW YORK (AP) — Violinist and conductor Alexander Schneider offered a reward Sunday for information that would lead to the return of a $200,000 violin that was left in the back seat of a New York City taxicab Saturday night.

Frank Salomon, manager for Schneider, said the renowned violinist was returning to New York after conducting the Brandenburg Ensemble at Dartmouth College, N.H., on Saturday night.

He said Schneider, carrying the instrument, took an all night train to New York City and arriving early Sunday morning, hailed a cab, which drove him to his downtown Manhattan home.

Commoners Wed During Papal Mass

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Young Vittoria Janni finally got her wish Sunday, when Pope John Paul II pronounced the words that made the 22-year-old daughter of a garbage collector the wife of Mario Maltese.

The Polish pope broke centuries of tradition by marrying the two commoners in the Vatican's ornate Pauline Chapel, a place usually reserved for cardinals, bishops and popes.

Vatican observers said Miss Janni and Maltese were the first commoners to be married by a pope in modern history.

Vittoria is a salesgirl and Maltese installs home alarm systems.

During the hour-long Mass, the two young people knelt before the pope on an altar of red damask as he told them to "build love, fidelity and harmony" before pronouncing them man and wife.

John Paul gave the couple a Bible and two rosaries. He also received them in his private study after the ceremony.

Vittoria asked the pope if she could kiss him in thanks, and the pope obliged. He embraced Maltese.

It was, most Vatican watchers agreed, the stuff dreams are made of.

Vittoria got her wish in the simplest of ways — by asking.

When John Paul was visiting a Nativity scene near the Vatican, the young woman approached the pope "with her request."

House May Refuse Debt Expansion

WASHINGTON — With the federal government about to run out of money, a number of House members — perhaps a majority — are ready to let Uncle Sam's borrowing authority expire in order to register a vote against spending.

When the House takes up the borrowing bill on Wednesday, it will provide the lawmakers their first chance of the year to show their opposition to red-ink spending. And House vote counters are conceding the bill might fail.

Failure would be unlikely to have any long-term effects. The debt-limit bill authorizes no new spending but simply allows the government to borrow the money to pay the debts already run up. Thus, some extension of borrowing authority will have to be approved eventually.

But even a brief expiration of the authority could cost taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars in printing costs and lost interest.

Even so, members of Congress, especially in the House, like to point to their vote against the debt-limit bill as evidence of their concern about excessive government spending.

The Senate will occupy itself this week with President Carter's China policy. Debate is to begin Monday on the nomination of Leonard Woodcock, former president of the United Auto Workers Union, to be ambassador to China.

Conservatives plan to use the nomination as the focal point of their opposition to Carter's recognition of the Communist government in Peking and abandonment of 30-year-old ties with the nationalists on Taiwan.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia plans to call up the Woodcock nomination even though Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a leading opponent of normalization, has demanded that the vote be held up.

Legislation spelling out U.S. concern about the security of Taiwan may reach the Senate floor late in the week. But there is virtually no chance it will be passed by Congress before Thursday, when the United States is to begin a new non-governmental relationship with Taiwan. Helms is a leader in the move to ensure Taiwan's security.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is expected to give quick approval Tuesday to a Taiwan-security resolution similar to the Senate version.

If the House passes the bill extending the debt limit, it would be the first major piece of legislation approved this year. But if the trend built up over the last few years holds, there is a better chance the House will reject the bill.

The House Republican Policy Committee, which generally turns out nearly 100 percent of GOP lawmakers against the debt limit, told members last week: "Republicans who did not vote for the Democratic-initiated, wasteful spending should not vote for this increase in the national debt to bail out the Democratic big spenders."

But it won't be just "wasteful spending" that is affected if the debt limit is not renewed. There would be no money to make payments on defense weapons contracts, for example, or to meet federal payrolls.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal estimates the current debt limit of $798 billion will be reached by March 9. He asked that the limit be extended to $896 billion through Sept. 30, 1980. Instead, the House Ways and Means Committee recommended an increase to $836 billion only through Sept. 30, 1979.

If that recommendation becomes law, the House and Senate will repeat the entire debt-limit exercise this summer.

And if the $798-billion extension through this summer is rejected this week, the Ways and Means Committee likely will ask for a lower figure for a shorter term.

That would not cut government spending or reduce the national debt. But it would allow House members to claim they voted against increasing the debt.

The House will also be working on major tariff legislation requested by the White House this week.

The bill is scheduled for Thursday and would extend the president's authority to waive countervailing duties on imports.

Extension of the waiver on countervailing duties, which are used to offset subsidies paid by some foreign countries on their exports, has been requested by the administration to help get Geneva trade negotiations moving again.

There is opposition to the bill by industry, labor unions and some farm organizations that contend it would allow unfair competition by foreign producers who might "dump" their goods on the U.S. market at less than cost.

State Employee Limit Proposed

AUSTIN (UPI) — An East Texas legislator contends state agencies should be required to tell the Legislature exactly how many employees they have — and how many they want — so the House and Senate can have more control over hiring.

Rep. Ben Z. Grant, D-Marshall, said appropriations bills 25 years ago listed the number of employees in each agency, giving lawmakers better control over the growth of state government.

That practice was dropped during the 1950s, but Grant is pushing a bill to reinstate it.

"What this would do is require each agency to show its maximum number of employees in the appropriation bill, and the agency could not — without the authorization of the Legislature — go above that number," he said.

Grant said it is difficult for lawmakers to control the growth of government when they can't determine how many employees an agency has, or how many the agency may hire if its funding is increased.

"Right now they can just go out and hire as many as they want. Bureaucratic creativity has done this with money we intended for other purposes. I'm told that money we put in the appropriation bill for merit raises was used by some agencies to hire new employees instead of giving raises to worthy employees."

Grant said some taxpayer organizations are backing his bill, which is scheduled for public hearing at 2:30 p.m. today before the House Appropriations Committee. But he added, "Just about everything I do has opposition."

He tried unsuccessfully last session to convince the Appropriations Committee to include the number of employees of each agency in the state budget, then declined the only way to assure that would happen was to pass a law requiring it.

Grant said his proposal is not connected with Gov. Bill Clements' plan to reduce the number of state employees by 25,000 within the next four years, and said he has not discussed his bill with the governor.

"He seldom comes by my office, but if he drops in I'm going to mention it to him," Grant said.

Clements, in his budget message to the Legislature, said he will ask all state agencies to immediately implement a policy of hiring no new employees, and to reduce the state's work force by not replacing workers who quit or retire.

Soyuz 32 To Check Salyut Lab

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched two more cosmonauts into orbit aboard a Soyuz capsule Sunday, Tass reported. The spaceship, Soyuz 32, is to dock with the space station Salyut 6, which has been circling the globe for 16 months.

Tass identified the two as Air Force Lt. Col. Vladimir Lyakhov, 37, the flight commander, and civilian flight engineer Valery Ryumin, 39, who made his first space trip in October 1977 on the ill-fated Soyuz 25. That craft went into orbit but failed to dock with Salyut 6 and was brought back prematurely.

Since then, the Salyut scientific station has been the orbiting home for several crews, including cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalenko and Alexander Ivanchenko, who set a world space endurance record by staying aloft for 139 days, 14 hours and 49 minutes.

The Soyuz 32 launch marked the first Soviet manned space mission since Kovalenko and Ivanchenko returned to Earth last Nov. 2.

The United States has not launched a manned space flight since Apollo 18 in 1975. The longest U.S. flight was in 1973-74, the 84-day mission of three astronauts aboard Skylab 4.

Previous crews aboard Salyut 6 have included cosmonauts from Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Poland as part of the Soviet bloc's Intercosmos program. Tass did not say when the next Intercosmos flight was scheduled.

But Moscow observers said that judging from past practice the Soviets within a week may launch a Soviet flight commander and a non-Soviet partner, possibly a Bulgarian or a Mongolian.

"The cosmonauts feel well. On-board systems are functioning normally," the Soviet news agency said. Soviet national television broke into its regular programming to report the launch.

"Of course I am very nervous," said one of the cosmonauts, shown in his white-and-blue flight suit before boarding the spacecraft. "But I am sure we will fulfill our task."

The delayed television report showed the slim white Soyuz rocket blasting off with a plume of red-and-orange flame into bright blue skies over Baikonur Space Center in Soviet central Asia.

Tass said Flight Commander Lyakhov was born in the Ukraine in 1941, the son of a miner killed in World War II. He studied at the air force school in Khar'kov and was a pilot until joining the space program in 1967, the agency said. Ryumin began cosmonaut training in 1973.

Blumenthal In Peking

Vietnam at around 75,000 men, higher if Vietnam's claims of more recent Chinese reinforcements are true.

The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star Sunday accused the United States of encouraging China to step up actions in Vietnam "by striving to justify" the invasion of Vietnam as a retaliation for the earlier Vietnamese attack on Cambodia.

The Carter administration says it deplores both invasions. The Soviets say that by linking the two Washington is trying to convince the world that the attack on Cambodia caused the attack on Vietnam.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal's current visit to China is one such encouragement. "In spite of the fact that China is waging an aggressive war, trampling underfoot the standards of international law, to say nothing of human rights."

Blumenthal is in China for trade talks, to formally open the American Embassy and to express President Carter's concern about the war to the Chinese. The Chinese defended the invasion at a banquet in Blumenthal's honor Sunday night, but Blumenthal told them they are risking a wider war and losing support worldwide.

London's Observer newspaper said Sunday that after a call from Carter, Callaghan ordered a slowdown in negotiations for the sale of as many as 70 British Harrier jump-jet fighter-bombers to the Chinese. The newspaper said the government would continue the talks but would make no final decisions pending the outcome of the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict.

Border conflicts between the two have increased over the past year, and while China says it wants no Vietnamese territory it said it will occupy about 38 square miles of disputed territory on the Vietnamese side of the current border.

China said it invaded to "teach Vietnam a lesson" in the border dispute.

Vietnam's National Assembly appealed for unity against China and awarded heroism medals to 13 units for victories in the "first round of fighting."

At United Nations headquarters in New York, Vietnamese and Cambodian delegates exchanged bitter charges Saturday at the Security Council's debate on the invasions of both Cambodia and Vietnam.

MAN DIES IN SUBWAY

NEW YORK (AP) — A man was pushed to his death in front of a train when he ran afoul of another man abusing subway riders on a downtown Manhattan platform shortly after midnight Sunday. The victim was pronounced dead at the scene. Police said the victim's assailant, a six-footer in his late 20s or early 30s, weighing about 180 or 190 pounds and wearing a blue leather jacket and jeans, fled the scene. The Transit Authority said friends identified the victim as Young Sou, 39, of Brooklyn. According to Transit Authority police, about five witnesses saw the killing, in which the assailant first hit the victim and then pushed him.

around the state is an innovation begun by the state organization this year. Junior Historians cultivate a taste for the past by studying historical events of their own communities and regions.

The state director, headquartered at the University of Texas in Austin, believes the regional approach will serve several functions: to increase contacts between chapter members and faculty sponsors; to stimulate enthusiasm for the spring activities such as the state convention and writing contests, and to educate students about a historic community or institution in their area.

On Saturday, a presentation on the American cowboy and a visit to a museum plus a barbeque lunch await the Junior Historians who attend the daylong meeting.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. at the Mabee American Heritage Center on the LCC campus. The opening session is scheduled for 9:30 to 9:45 a.m., with rap sessions slated for 9:45 to 10:15 a.m.

Following a 15-minute break, Bill Lef-twich, a Lubbock artist who for many years has been associated with LCC, will give a 90-minute presentation on the American cowboy.

A barbeque lunch will be provided at LCC by the South Plains American Heritage Program.

Following lunch, the group will tour the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech University.

Attendees at the regional meeting will be from Aspermont, Post, Petersburg, Wolfforth, Slaton, Plainview, Muleshoe, Floydada and Lubbock.

Local hosts will be the Plains American Heritage Program and the South Plains American Heritage Program.

Plans for the Lubbock meeting have been made through Dr. David DeBoe, educational services director for the Texas State Historical Association. Other regional meetings have been held at Austin, Waxahachie, Galveston and Jefferson.

Billy Sol Estes To Face Indictments For Fraud

DALLAS (AP) — Paroled West Texas con man Billy Sol Estes is to be arraigned in federal court Thursday on fraud and conspiracy charges.

The four indictments returned against Estes last week detail elaborate schemes to bilk both investors and the federal government.

In October, Estes conceded some of the counts in last Thursday's indictments by pleading guilty as part of a plea agreement with federal prosecutors. U.S. Dist. Judge Eldon Mahon rejected that agreement last month, however, and Estes withdrew his guilty plea.

Estes, a fast-talking hometown boy with an easy grin, built a financial empire in the early 1960s based on mortgage loans that used nonexistent anhydrous ammonia tanks as collateral.

One of the new indictments spelled out an almost-identical scheme using non-existent oilfield steam-cleaning equipment.

Eventually sentenced to 15 years in federal prison, Estes was paroled in July 1971, a week before his 25th wedding anniversary.

Thursday's indictments allege he began plotting to operate businesses through a colleague in violation of his parole. The terms of his parole prohibited Estes from self-employment or any promotional activities.

The latest installment in the Estes saga began more than two years ago when former Mississippi promoter Don Trull said he and Estes had a falling out while Trull was working in Abilene. Trull said he packed up and moved to East Texas, taking with him documents he claimed would undo a second, hidden Estes empire.

Trull contacted several newsmen and the state attorney general's office. Before long, federal and state investigative agencies, plus several reporters, were delving into Estes' affairs.

JESSE JAMES ARTIFACTS

KEARNEY, Mo. (AP) — Clay County parks officials hope to discover more artifacts when they begin restoration this spring of the 120-year-old log cabin where outlaw Jesse James lived as a child. "We're going to go over every inch of the cabin walls with metal detectors," Milton Perry, curator.

In the meantime, Trull himself got into some legal hot water. He was acquitted last spring in Tyler of holding an employee of Pyron Investments hostage in a gasoline-soaked office.

Trull claimed at the time Estes and the firm's owner, Tyler businessman Billy D. Pyron, owed him $1.5 million.

Trull's attorney successfully defended his client by subpoenaing 80 witnesses and trying to prove Estes swindled Trull.

Witnesses gave conflicting testimony on a power of attorney supposedly signed by Pyron, a $50,000 loan allegedly obtained fraudulently from an Abilene used car dealer and various businesses purportedly operated by Estes through several associates.

Estes and Sue Goolsby, a longtime friend, were charged in last Thursday's indictments with forging Pyron's name on the power of attorney and numerous lease guarantees used to obtain a van, two electric cash registers and insurance on those items.

Another indictment also charged Raymond K. Horton and Estes with plotting to defraud the government of income taxes through dummy corporations set up by Estes and run by Horton.

A fourth indictment said Estes reported $11,000 in income on his 1975 income tax return when his income actually was $45,000.

Senate Panel Studies Disease

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel will hold a hearing Monday on a bill aimed at upgrading U.S. efforts to prevent, diagnose and control diabetes.

Up for consideration will be a measure sponsored by Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research.

The bill would extend for five years the lives of the National Diabetes Advisory Board and the Diabetes Research and Training Centers Program, created by legislation enacted in 1973.

"Diabetes, which afflicts an estimated

10 million Americans, ranks among the country's major killers," Schweiker said in a statement announcing plans for the hearing. "It is the leading cause of adult blindness in the United States and leads to devastating kidney and heart complications."

Brown Continues Convention Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said Sunday he intends to press on with his crusade for a federal constitutional convention, but the chairman of the National Governors Association said it would be "a very reckless way" to deal with the country's fiscal problems.

In other action at the opening of the association's winter meeting, President Carter was scheduled to discuss efforts to promote trade with foreign countries.

Brown also said in a televised interview he thinks Carter is in trouble politically but he hasn't decided whether to oppose the president in next year's election.

Brown was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers." The California governor, who has taken a conservative fiscal tack since his state approved a tax limitation referendum last summer, said he was not discouraged by the state legislature's failure to endorse his call for a constitutional convention.

Brown wants a convention called to write an amendment requiring that the federal budget be balanced. It would be the first such convention since the Constitution was drafted in 1787.

The Ways and Means Committee of the California Assembly supported the constitutional amendment idea in action last week but refused to back Brown's call for a federal convention.

"I don't consider it a defeat," Brown said. "I consider it a temporary setback in a long struggle to bring fiscal responsibility to the country."

Brown said Congress should take note of the Assembly's endorsement of an amendment, and said he thinks it is essential that he continue the fight "in order to encourage Congress to act."

"I'm going to speak to some of the governors, and if appropriate, I will speak in some other states," Brown said.

But Gov. Julian Carroll of Kentucky, chairman of the governors' association, said in a news conference after Brown's remarks he thinks a convention to amend the Constitution would be a mistake, although there is support among the governors for an amendment proposed by Congress.

"Many of the governors are in favor of a constitutional amendment requiring the balancing of the federal budget," Carroll said. "As a matter of fact, the National Governors Association itself has a policy that supports the balancing of the federal budget."

"I do think there is a substantial amount of opposition to the call of a constitutional convention to achieve that end," Carroll said. "So it is my own consensus that while you find a substantial amount of support among governors supporting the theory, supporting even a constitutional amendment, personally I favor a constitutional amendment, properly drawn, accompanied by hearings to determine its practical impact on our ability to run a federal government."

"But I oppose a constitutional convention, because I am convinced that a constitutional convention itself would be a very reckless way in which to try to amend the constitution," Carroll said.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Luke 11: 10-10. The Living Bible

Once when Jesus had been out praying, one of His disciples came to Him as He finished and said, "Lord, teach us a prayer to recite like the one John taught his disciples."

2 And this is the prayer He taught them: "Father, may Your name be honored for its holiness; send Your Kingdom soon!

3 Give us our food day by day,

4 And forgive our sins — for we have forgiven those who sinned against us. And don't allow us to be tempted."

5, 6 Then, teaching them more about prayer, He used this illustration: "Suppose you went to a friend's house at midnight, wanting to borrow three loaves of bread! You would shout to him, 'A friend of mine has just arrived for a visit and I've nothing to give him to eat.'"

7 He would call down from his bedroom, 'Please don't ask me to get up! The door is locked for the night and we are all in bed. I just can't help you this time!'

8 But I'll tell you this — though he won't do it as a friend, if you keep knocking long enough he will get up and give you everything you want — just because of your persistence!

9 And so it is with prayer — keep on asking, and you will keep on getting; keep on looking, and you will keep on finding; knock, and the door will be opened!

10 Everyone who asks, receives; all who seek, find; and the door is opened to everyone who knocks.

"Did you realize that aluminum replacement windows, storm windows and storm doors can be custom made for your own comfort and beauty, made right here in Lubbock at Insulating Windows, Inc.?"

"And have you recognized how insulation-related installations can qualify for income tax credit?"

"Let Jim Haynes and his efficient staff at Insulating Windows, Inc., 1616 Ave. F, give full details about any aspect of their products and services... including the tax credit benefits especially appreciated at this time of year!"

Many have depended upon Haynes at Arcadia Stone, 1922 Ave. E. He now not only still provides the products and services of that business, but also operates the added Insulating Windows facility.

"For cleaner and more comfortable living," Haynes and his experienced crew can perform quite a service.

Imagine, for example, rubber seals on the custom-made windows, with this self-sealing innovation making caulking unnecessary!

These products and services by Haynes are made possible with his purchase in mid-1978 of the window department of House Clinic.

Haynes not only has the background and knowledge for superior window and door manufacture and installation, but he has constructed beautiful homes throughout the area, together with construction of fireplaces and other units with use of Arcadia Stone.

Insulating Windows, Inc., can open a whole new world in one's enjoyment of the home every day of the year... with the finest in storm windows and doors, with insulating windows enhancing the beauty, comfort and hospitality of the home.

Wilkison Radiator Shop, Long In Lubbock, Tells New Location

Did you realize that the oldest radiator service in Lubbock has a new home? It is Wilkison Radiator Shop, now at 19th Street and Avenue C since January 1.

A vital part of the Lubbock Service community since back in 1943, the Wilkison Radiator Shop served thousands of customers for 31 years at its most recent 915 Ave. H location. (It is not in the habit of moving frequently!)

The well-known firm is headed by V.E. "Mac" McCallon and wife, Bobbie (who is bookkeeper), owners since back in '59.

Free Pick Up, Delivery
 Free pick up and delivery still is one of the appreciated services at Wilkison Radiator Shop, phone 765-7749, at 19th & C, remember.

Open from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, the Wilkison firm caters to dealers, garages and drop-in trade alike.

Wide Service
 "Anything in radiators" probably best describes the firm, with service including radiator, heater and gas tank clean and repair, new re-cores, flushing radiators, and radiators for cars, tractors and industrial needs alike.

Mac and Bobbie and staff have an enviable reputation of integrity, service and products, proven time and again throughout their ownership tenure dating back to 1959.

"We appreciate the confidence and trade of our longtime customers, at the same time inviting and equally appreciating the trade of newcomers to the area."

The new location of Wilkison is easy to reach and easy to spot. Watch for the sign and the spacious paved parking area at front of Wilkison Radiator Shop, now at 19th & C in Lubbock.

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe Seen Solution In Apparel Budgeting

Are wardrobe expenditures being sacrificed for other needs of the season? Is your clothing budget less than desired and needed?

"Your answer to either likely will focus attention on a ready and sensible solution... recognition of Hallie's Thrift Shoppe as a great place to trade and save."

Hallie's has a very good selection at this time... including formals and fashionable coats.

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe, 3510 Ave. Q, can appreciably aid the fashion need and the economy need "for you, too" in every season of the year.

It's a reality: One can beat inflation, beat the rising apparel costs, by depending upon Hallie's Thrift Shoppe for the right apparel at lowest prices.

At Hallie's Thrift Shoppe there is lots of new merchandise plus consignment items that are strictly "first class" that can be a smart solution to the wardrobe budget.

With the increased costs at every hand, it is exciting to find a firm that can greatly reduce some of this cash-outlay.

One can dress smartly for every season, and at a cost "that can be lived with," thanks to Hallie's Thrift Shoppe's full selection and unique business concept.

Hallie's, primarily a resale shop for better merchandise, has been at its present 3510 Ave. Q location (with off-street parking) more than four years, with owner-operator Hallie Payne formerly at another Avenue Q location for five years.

The exceptional stock, attractively displayed with plenty of room for selection and fitting, involves top quality new and nearly new formal wear, school and street wear, etc.

There are clothes for the entire family (sold on consignment) and the prices are most appealing.

"If you have items suitable for consignment, call Hallie's at 744-6772 for appointment and arrangements."

Though a wide stock is on hand, Hallie's at the present especially solicits consignments of top quality and fashionable long dresses and men's wear.

New merchandise from area stores also is stocked by Hallie's and new arrivals in this category present special values.

Easy off-street parking at both front and rear is just one of the conveniences at Hallie's Thrift Shoppe.

Associated Builders-Realtors Announce New Home, Location

A lot of people have depended upon Associated Builders-Realtors, for a new home... and now Associated Builders has a new home of its own!

Formerly at 4901 Brownfield Highway, this 2 1/2-year-old Lubbock firm now is at 5102 29th Drive (the cutoff between Brownfield Highway and Slide in southwest Lubbock) with all-new facilities and convenient, spacious off-street parking, easy access and egress.

Staffed To Serve

A really blue-ribbon team is on hand to serve at Associated Builders-Realtors, with each member on the staff since founding of the firm. Doesn't this speak well, in itself?

Whether one deals with Steve Von Phul, broker, Carol Gilmore, sales manager, or any of the staff, qualified assistance is assured.

New, Pre-Owned Homes

Associated Builders-Realtors represents several builders including Stanley Reed Construction, Cherry Dale Homes, Inc., and Contempo Homes, with houses in the range of $33,000 to $135,000. Purchase is available on FHA and VA basis.

As realtors, the firm holds membership in the Lubbock Board of Realtors and in Multiple Listing Service (MLS).

New homes are available in Shallowater, Wolforth, Lake Ransom Canyon and in most subdivisions of Lubbock, Carol Gilmore emphasizes.

Also, the firm has individual listings of pre-owned homes in all areas.

Each staffmember can count years of residence in Lubbock, and this familiarity with the area, with local conditions and with the needs and preferences of the home-buying public contributes in no small amount to the "satisfaction" picture at Associated Builders-Realtors.

"And please don't forget our new home... 5102 29th Drive, phone 797-4147!"

Cruz's Bicycle & Lawnmower Repair Shop Readies Resources For Spring

"Don't let the weather fool you; it is time to 'think of' and prepare for beautiful lawns this summer!"

And Cruz's Bicycle & Lawnmower Repair Shop, at 4204 1/2 W. 19th St., not only is ready with a big line of power and hand tools for lawn care but also suggests early attention to repair services at which the firm excels.

In fact, it is urged that mowers be brought in just as soon as possible to avoid delays at a later date when it seems everyone wants a mower repaired at once!

Names To Trust

Among the new products stocked are: Toro, Snapper and Lawn Flite power mowers; the Whipper Clipper edger-trimmer; and K & S gasoline edgers. Mower models include both rear and side discharge units.

Accessories are stocked and include such items as the popular scalping blades and springs.

And bags for most mowers; a good selection of garden tools; the Spintirm electric trimmer, even garden hose and more.

Cruz's factory authorized sales and service dealer for the Briggs & Stratton, Tecumseh and Kohler motors.

A number of Teel centrifugal pumps are stocked, in multiple sizes.

Actually, the Cruz firm has just about anything one could imagine to make lawn preparation and care both pleasant and efficient.

Bike Special

Vista and Ross bicycles are stocked. Presently, all three, five and 10-speed bikes are marked at 10 per cent off on cash sales!

Bike wheels, seats, baskets and other parts and accessories are stocked, even all sizes of bike tubes.

Mini-bike parts and repairs also come in for full attention at Cruz Bicycle & Lawnmower Repair Shop, just across from the Fox Theatre on West 19th Street, phone 795-4331.

Repair Specialists

The big shop is open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and there is plenty of at-the-door off-street parking for customer convenience.

All brands of mowers are repaired, re-member.

With more than 30 years experience, owner Cruz Ramirez came to Lubbock in 1964, working as a mechanic for some time at another firm, opening his own business that has grown and prospered at the present West 19th Street location several years ago.

Cruz started out in the business of "serving the public" as a Western Auto employe in Midland more than a quarter century ago, and there he later owned his own shop for eight years. He is factory trained in both the mower and bicycle field, and continually keeps up to date in new methods, new models, products and service techniques as a factory authorized dealer.

Whether for any of the above quality products and services, or others, such as machine sharpening of blades, Cruz has a wide following, a wide selection, and a sincere desire to serve.

Phone 795-4331 or visit the 4204 1/2 W. 19th St. facility for full details about a particular product or service needed to "get the jump" on summer yard beauty!

GREETINGS FROM CRUZ RAMIREZ — Everything at the big Cruz's Bicycle & Lawnmower establishment on West 19th Street is in readiness for new-season convenience and efficiency. Many related yard and bicycle products are stocked in the versatile store headed by Cruz, his wife, Josie, and sons Angel, Dan and Joe in the family operation.

EARL RAY music company
SOUTH PLAINS' LEADING BAND HOUSE
SERVING FOR OVER A QUARTER CENTURY
5302 AVENUE Q
Briercroft Shopping Center

Earl Ray Music Enables Easy Solution In Musical Progress

"If you are the parent or other near relative of a band student, likely you know first hand of the valued services and products of the Earl Ray Music Company, the "South Plains" leading band house, located in Briercroft Center, Lubbock.

For decades, Earl Ray has served as a firm sincerely interested in your welfare, in seeing that the student or other musically-inclined person is set with the best in instruments... whether purchase, rentals or repairs are involved.

"Trading up" is a very popular program presented by Earl Ray, making for ease in securing a quality instrument to best serve in the progress one has made in any musical pursuit.

Service does not end with the rental or sale at this leading band house. Earl Ray maintains the largest band instrument repair department on the South Plains, with fulltime specialists on the job.

Reliance upon the Earl Ray Music Co. can solve (and easily so) the many situations and every problem for the music minded.

Long a standby as "the South Plains leading Band House," the Earl Ray Music Co., at 5302 Ave. Q in the Briercroft Shopping Center, pledges the finest in instrument repair and sales, even leasing and trade-up, it is emphasized.

For more than a quarter century of being known and trusted by band directors, parents and bandmen throughout the area, Earl Ray Music Co. early in 1974 moved to the large modern home it now enjoys — a facility that has met with exceptional response from customers who appreciate the added conveniences and still-fine service at Earl Ray's.

Selling, servicing and trade-rent-lease of fine instrument lines still is the whole business of Earl Ray. Whether selection of Conn, Vito, Selmer, Bundy, LeBlanc, Ludwig, Bach, Olds, Gemeinhardt, etc., quality is assured.

More and more students throughout Lubbock and the entire area are learning the advantages of "trading up" to a better instrument at Earl Ray Music Co. As the students progress in their musical careers, the "trading up" is especially advantageous.

Whether or not you purchased your present band instrument from Earl Ray, they will be glad to give you a price you are sure to appreciate with trade on a better one.

James Mears Mazda Relating 'Experience Is What Counts'

"Well, folks, it is almost that time again! All the new car dealers are gathering at the Civic Center March 9-11 to show their new lines for '79 and to blow their horns... (not meant literally)!"

"This year, it's our turn at James Mears Mazda, 1211 19th St. in Lubbock, to blow our horn!"

"Whether you believe there is a gasoline shortage or not makes no difference in the fact that gasoline prices are going to soar. Or gas will be rationed, or both, and there is not one thing any of us can do about it except go to the smaller, more economical automobiles.

"And this is where James Mears Mazda comes in, always having had the best on the market, and now presenting a complete line.

Characteristics Pinpointed

"First, consider the G.L.C. From the time it was introduced in 1978 it has been rated the most value for the money, and this year even more so! It has a new, more powerful engine for better performance and excellent gas mileage. The G.L.C.'s initial purchase price is among the most reasonable of the smaller cars and least operating cost is reported.

"What I like most of all, besides the fact that it is fun to drive, is the all-around visibility plus the contoured reclining seats that are so comfortable. I like the rear defroster and washer and wiper, too. There isn't enough space to tell everything I like about it, and the only way you can really appreciate it is to drive it, you'll love it!"

"A lot of our customers at James Mears Mazda will be glad to know that this year we get pickups; at least, we're supposed to! A B-2000 comes in standard box and long box and with each in the deluxe model. Great performance and operating efficiency, with low maintenance and fuel cost, is reported.

Sports Choice

"And for you sports car fans, it is the all-new, fantastic RX-7, voted 'car of the year.' A true sports car with all you could ask in styling performance, handling, comfort and amazingly enough, low fuel consumption (depending of course on how you drive it, and everybody knows that some drag races are unavoidable).

"The powerful and quiet rotary engine and the car's superb handling tends to make everybody who drives one a sports car fan.

Great Handling

"Speaking of superb handling, you ain't seen nothin' yet! Just wait until you slip behind the wheel of the brand new and beautiful Mazda 626!"

"Fully equipped, the 2-door or 4-door provides all the comfort and styling to please even the hardest-to-please big car fan. Luxury in a small car that is second to none, with less fuel consumption than anything that competes with it, what are you saying is that there is nothing that can compete with it!"

"Come in at the Civic Center during show dates and look at all our new models on display, or better yet, come by 1211 19th Street and test drive one. Any of our sales people will be glad to help you, and you're really gonna love 'em! (You're gonna love our cars, too!)"

MODERN UNITS FOR TODAY'S DEMANDS

Leaseway-Southwest Services Utilized Throughout Wide Area

Leaseway-Southwest, at 409 E. 50th St., in Lubbock, offers a complete transportation service to busy companies that simply cannot devote the time, space or money required to own and maintain a fleet of vehicles, or in some instances, just one or two units. This progressive leasing firm provides transportation vehicles to serve any size of type business.

Full Service

"Corporations as well as small operators find that full-service transportation package is more efficient from every standpoint."

"Full service" as provided by Leaseway-Southwest Transportation Corp., is exactly what the name implies. The firm provides the maintenance and inspection and even supplies the fuel and pays the taxes on the vehicle!

Personnel there are most adept, serving in a professional but considerate and friendly manner to meet the particular transportation needs of every customer.

Upgrading and additions to its stock is a continuous operation at Leaseway-Southwest.

Leaseway-Southwest's understanding of the short-term, peak and long-term needs of area industry and business is well recognized, contributing to its own growth, too.

Half-a-hundred Lubbock businesses (and even more) depend on Leaseway-Southwest for transportation vehicle needs.

There must be a very good reason.

In Tune With Times

Keeping abreast with the needs of the area is one of the convincing reasons. Leaseway-Southwest continually adds new equipment for rental and for full-time customers of this service-oriented firm.

"Utilization of leased vehicles is the growing trend in transportation management" it is emphasized by Ken Wright, president.

Home Improvement Center Stocks Heavily, Includes Noted Amerock Line

"Have you discovered the beauty and utility of Amerock decorative hardware?"

"And have you realized that Maxey Home Improvement Center includes a huge Amerock display and stock among its many products for the home?"

For fine decorative hardware, whether the item is an entry lock, towel bars, switch plates, and more, the Amerock collection at Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, is most impressive.

At this time of year, Maxey also directs special attention to the convenience and other benefits of storm doors and of automatic garage door openers. These have emerged from any luxury category to a necessity, in comfort and safety.

And smoke alarms, too.

Not only is there a wide variety at the Maxey firm, but prices are kept in line throughout the stock, with specials arranged whenever possible to further assist.

There are very good buys on water heaters, bathtubs, marble top vanities, faucets, light fixtures, paint, etc.

And some may not realize that the Maxey Home Improvement Center stocks a good assortment of hand tools, both in sets and individual pieces, for auto repair.

Storm Door Values

And for those storm doors... some are available with speaker; they are available in gold finish, bronze and white, featuring safety glass, with heavy extruded corners assuring no sag and no warp, with black Colonial key lock and pneumatic closer with all screws, and in standard sizes.

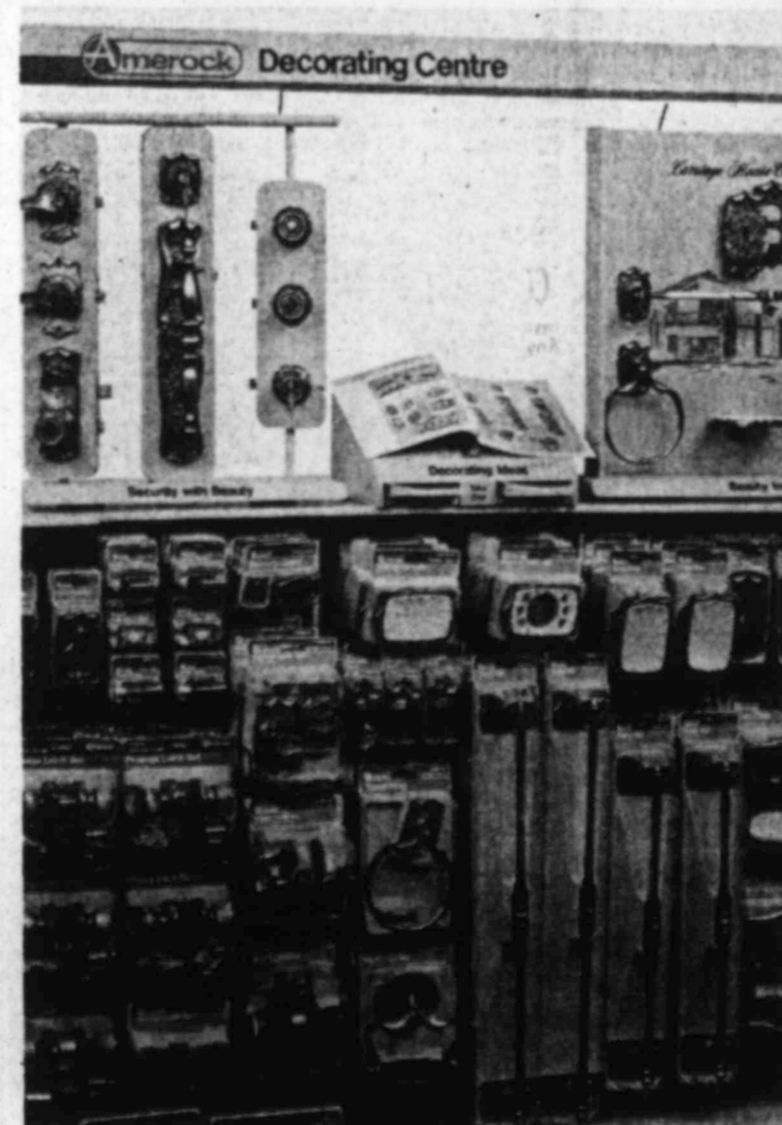

"We take pride in offering the best storm door selection in Lubbock, and for all storm doors sold by us there is only a $1 installation and delivery charge within the Lubbock city limits!"

Genie Recommended

Genie automatic garage door openers are featured by Maxey, and one is invited to come in and learn all the details of why a Genie "should be in your immediate future."

Maxey Home Improvement Center is glad to help one locate the hard-to-find items, getting them or telling where they may be found.

Finally and foremost, remember this: "Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University, wants you to have the very best at a price you can afford."

SUCCEED IN OUR MANAGER TRAINING PROGRAM
If you've ever lived in the Southwest you almost certainly know Furr's Cafeterias. Our quality cafeterias are located throughout Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas and Arkansas. What you may not know is that Furr's currently is the nation's second largest publicly owned cafeteria chain.
Thinking about a career in management? We can offer you excellent opportunities for personal advancement in our aggressive, expanding company. If you have drive and enthusiasm, if you are willing to learn, you'll find success with us in the dynamic food service industry. To qualify for the training program, you should have a high school diploma or G.E.D. equivalent. College or vocational school background will be a plus. Leadership ability is a must, since a self-starter can motivate others. A neat, well-groomed appearance is essential.
Experience in food service is preferable, but not necessary due to our extensive training program. Experience in other professions should prove helpful to you. We seek individuals who require a minimum of supervision to get the job done right the first time.
Our manager trainees receive in depth, on the job training in all phases of cafeteria operations. The management training program leads to appointment as an assistant manager and then cafeteria manager based on the quality of your overall performance. Top performers can quickly move into key management positions. New management positions are not a hollow promise-our growth insures these opportunities. We expanded 38 cafeterias in 1979 to 75 in 1978. By 1982 we plan to have over 100 units!
As you progress into management you may have the chance to be related to some of the fine cities where we have cafeterias. You should be willing to accept these opportunities.
The starting salary for manager trainees will be based on your background and experience. The minimum starting salary is $200 a week. As your career progresses and your responsibilities grow, you can expect a rapid growth in earnings. Assistant managers earn from $11,400 to $18,000 per year. Cafeteria managers earn from $22,000 to $45,000 per year.

Atlantic Oil Fields: Still No Production

NEW YORK (AP) — Several years after the oil presumed to be off the Atlantic Coast was ballyhooed as the answer to East Coast energy needs, you still can't fuel your car or heat your home with it.

Legal and technical problems, and just plain bad luck, are keeping the area from playing a key part in the nation's energy picture.

Now, though, the stage is set for another try.

On Wednesday, the federal government will open bids for oil companies for drilling rights in more areas of the Baltimore Canyon, the best-known of the Atlantic offshore areas. And a U.S. Court of Appeals last week, lifted an injunction against the sale of sites in the Georges Bank area off Cape Cod.

The East Coast offshore oil fields were never intended to help relieve the nation's reliance on oil imports before the next decade. But now even the most optimistic analysts don't expect to see energy from the Atlantic before 1990.

In fact, the amount of natural gas produced from the two successful Atlantic offshore wells in a day would be less than enough to heat 100 average-sized homes for a year.

"I think it's going to be a long, slow process to find the oil and gas out there," one industry source said.

The numbers involved are what caused the initial optimism. The Atlantic Coast area is believed to hold 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas — about eight months worth of U.S. supply — and a lesser amount of crude oil.

Five years ago, with foreign oil prices rising, that looked great, especially to the East Coast, which uses four times as much imported oil as other parts of the nation. But attempts to rush into production brought environmental protests that are still being sorted out. As a result, only two areas have been explored, and only partially at that.

Wells off Georgia and the Carolinas in the region known as the Southeast Georgia Embayment produced nothing, and oil firms have just about given up on that area.

Drilling in the Baltimore Canyon has been just about as unsuccessful. Eleven wells have been completed in the year since exploration began, and nine have come up dry. The other two produced natural gas, but not nearly enough for commercial production.

But while Wednesday's bidding on additional Baltimore Canyon tracts will probably not garner the $1.1 billion in bids the first auction of sites brought, it is seen as a key to the area's future.

"I think the next stepping stone to see what the outlook is to see what the industry does in this next bidding sale," said Henry A. Hill, regional exploration manager for Continental Oil Co., which has drilled two "dry holes" in the Baltimore Canyon.

Exploration experts say a drilling success rate of one in five is good, and that is about what has happened in the Baltimore Canyon. But the hits have not been where most of the gas and oil is supposed to be.

Most of the nine unsuccessful wells drilled in the canyon have been drilled on a gigantic geological structure called "Stonedome." Other wells were drilled on a smaller structure a few miles south. Shaped like upside-down teacups, these structures were believed to be the best hopes for gas and oil in the area.

But that did not prove out. "You drill your best shots first," said a drilling expert for one company that's had its share of Baltimore Canyon failures. "It's disappointing that the biggies have not been productive so far."

Instead, the two discoveries of natural gas have come on the fringes of the Baltimore Canyon area, near the edge of the continental shelf about 100 miles offshore. There, Texaco found a small amount of gas and is now looking to see if there's enough to begin production, and a group of firms drilling under government contract struck gas accidentally — in a well supposed to be only a geological test.

The well hit a tiny amount of gas, and the discovery made a site next to it a hot item in Wednesday's sale.

Once Wednesday's sale is over, government officials will begin planning the next auction of East Coast drilling rights — this time for Georges Bank. Last week's court approval of drilling there — with conditions to safeguard the bank's rich fishing grounds — paves the way for an auction, probably in September, government sources say.

Georges Bank has been a hot issue among environmentalists, the government and the oil companies because of the fishing there.

As a result, the court order requires the companies to, among other things, set up a fund to compensate fishermen for any loss in business due to an oil spill. Massachusetts is seeking even more stringent fisheries protection, and that worries the oil companies.

This tinkering with the rules, though, is nothing new to oil companies. They experienced the same thing two decades ago when they started out in the Gulf of Mexico, which today is the United States' key offshore oil-producing area.

In fact, executives say, that experience is taking some of the mystery out of operations on the East Coast. "I think it's getting to be more normal," said Hill. "It's getting to be similar to the Gulf Coast in its early stages of drilling and development."

But that doesn't make it any easier. "My optimism has faded considerably from what it was before the first lease sale," said Hill. "I think it's going to be a long pull."

Cesar Chavez Says

Texas Farm Strike 'Would Be Suicide'

SAN JUAN (AP) — Cesar Chavez, leader of a United Farm Workers union now engaged in a violence-marred California strike, said Sunday it "would be suicide" for the Texas branch of the union to attempt such a strike.

"This organization is not ready for a strike," Chavez told newsmen during a convention here by the United Farm Workers.

"It would be suicide, and everybody knows that," the longtime Farm Workers leader said.

Chavez was the keynote speaker at the UFW's first Texas convention — an effort aimed at sparking a new organizational drive in a state that has 80,000 farm workers. About 600 persons, including 320 delegates representing various area communities, filled a high school gymnasium for the daylong convention. The farm workers listened to a lineup of union leaders and clergymen, who told them the movement has come a long way but has even further to go.

Chavez said much organizational work is still needed in Texas.

"I think that unless the workers are really educated about a strike, a strike is futile,"

Battle Between Yemens Prompts Arab Mission

ADEN, South Yemen (AP) — Marxist South Yemen claimed Sunday its forces had captured three North Yemen towns in the third day of border fighting between the rival states. It was reported the Arab League had agreed to send a fact-finding mission to the battle zone as a possible prelude to mediation of the conflict.

Pro-Western North Yemen and pro-Soviet South Yemen have accused each other of starting the border war, the latest in a series of clashes over the past 10 years along the rugged mountain frontier.

A South Yemeni commune Sunday claimed Al Beida, an important garrison town five miles inside North Yemen, had fallen. The town is 90 miles northeast of Aden, capital of South Yemen.

The commune said the town was taken with the help of armed North Yemeni rebels and large quantities of arms and ammunition had been seized. It said North Yemeni aircraft bombed Al Beida after its capture.

An earlier communique Sunday reported the capture of Qataba, 50 miles north of Aden, and another town identified as Muras.

South Yemen claimed Saturday its forces crossed the border to pursue North Yemeni troops who launched an attack into South Yemen at three widely scattered points Friday evening.

(Hassan Lozi, North Yemen's deputy information minister, told a news conference in Cairo it was South Yemen that attacked first, with the help of "foreign troops." He did not identify these troops but he was apparently referring to advisers from the Soviet Union, East Germany and Cuba serving in South Yemen. There was no independent confirmation of their involvement in the fighting.)

Egypt's Middle East News Agency quoted a North Yemen Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying in the North Yemeni capital, Sana'a, that his government had received a cable from the Arab League in Cairo approving its request that a fact-finding committee be sent to the battle zone.

Lozi said his government was exercising restraint to give the 22-member Arab League time to stop the fighting.

He charged that South Yemen is trying to undermine the sovereignty of North Yemen "and use it as a doorway to infiltrate the Arabian Peninsula."

South Yemen's prime minister, Ali Nasser Mohammed, in a statement broadcast by official Aden Radio, charged that "the reactionary regime in Sana'a attacked our borders with the help of mercenaries and imperialists to prevent the peaceful development of our country."

Another Aden Radio statement accused North Yemen of becoming the tool of "imperialism, foreign monopolies and the United States."

During a visit to Saudi Arabia earlier this month, U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown told Saudi leaders the United States would supply North Yemen with warplanes and other weapons.

North Yemen, an underdeveloped, still largely semi-feudal state, relies heavily on aid from neighboring Saudi Arabia and the United States.

Marxist South Yemen is heavily dependent on aid from the Soviet bloc, particularly the Soviet Union and East Germany, but Saudi Arabia has recently been anxious to improve its relations with South Yemen.

South Yemen's foreign minister, Mohammed Saleh Matei, flew to Saudi Arabia Saturday and met with Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud. The two men discussed the current situation, it was announced here.

The two Yemens have been trying to unite for the past decade, but their efforts have been blocked by the fundamental differences of their respective leaderships.

Their relations became strained last July when the North accused the South of assassinating North Yemen President Ahmed Hussein Al Ghashmi, killed in an explosion when he opened a booby-trapped attaché case in his office.

After Ghashmi's death, a coup d'état in South Yemen overthrew President Salem Hobei Ali and installed Abdul Fatah Ismail. The subsequent upheaval sparked a renewal of border clashes last fall.

Tech Plans Sun Program

Moody Planetarium visitors will make an imaginary journey to the sun in a new show opening Saturday in The Museum of Texas Tech University.

"A Sunshine Carol" will be presented through April 8 at 3 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

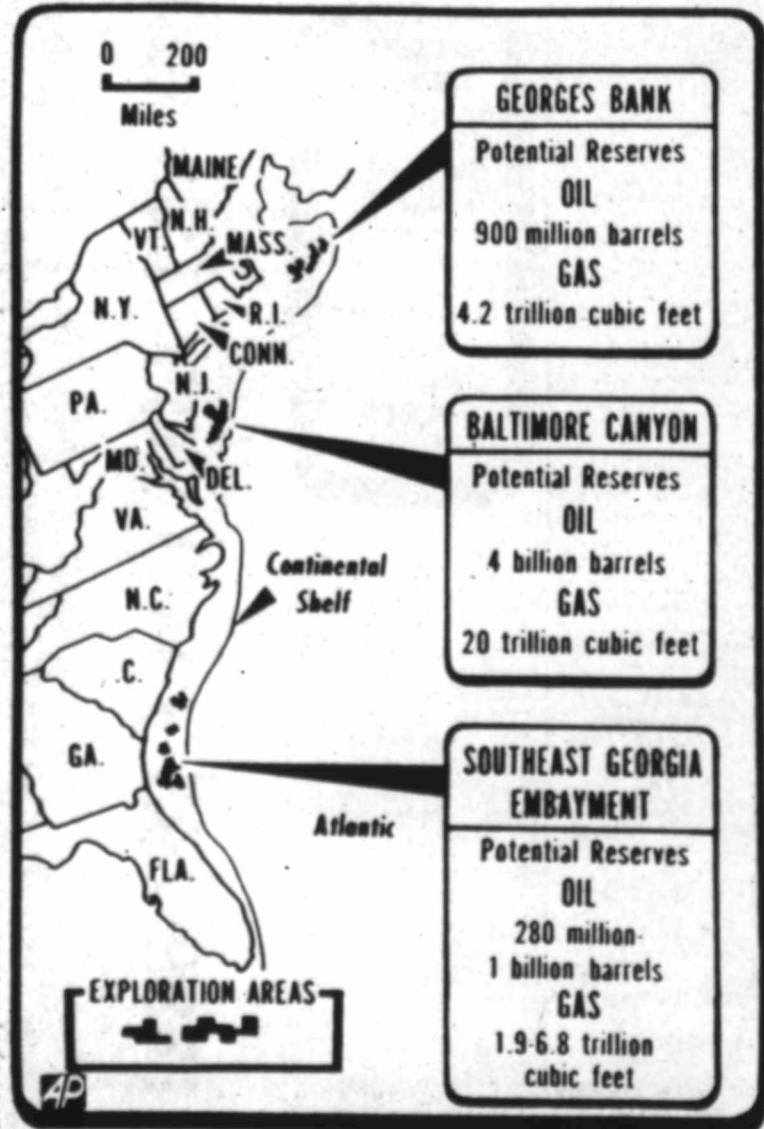

The program describes energy created by the sun, a violent nuclear furnace where temperatures rise to 25 million degrees and pressures reach a trillion pounds per square inch.

"In one second the sun radiates more energy than mankind has used since the beginning of civilization," the narrator explains. "In three days the earth receives as much heat and light as would be produced by burning all the earth's oil and coal reserves and all of the wood of its forests."

"Yet the earth receives only one-two billionth of the sun's radiant energy."

In addition to describing the sun as it is today, the program takes the viewers on a journey from the sun's beginning to the future, five billion years from now when scientists estimate the sun finally will run out of fuel.

It includes astronomers' understanding of the spectacular creation of the planets and the first centuries of earth's formation in flame and fountains of liquid rock.

Federal Grand Jury Probes Lance Case

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — A federal grand jury in Atlanta investigating the financial affairs of Bert Lance will resume deliberations Tuesday, and the former U.S. budget director says he's eager to get it over with.

"... I'm ready for it to come to an end — whatever it is — at the earliest possible moment," said Lance, who was forced from his federal office in September 1977 because of his past financial practices.

Lance, who now manages a financial consulting business from a converted summer cottage near Calhoun, was the former president of the Calhoun First National Bank.

Charles Kirbo, an Atlanta attorney who is a confidant of President Carter, said Sunday he did not know whether Lance had testified before the grand jury but "I don't imagine he has." There is no public record that Lance has testified.

Last month, directors of the National Bank of Georgia, which Lance also headed, refused to take any action against him.

The NBG report was made to the Securities and Exchange Commission in compliance with an SEC complaint filed in April 1978. The complaint alleged that Lance and the Atlanta bank engaged in securities fraud and unsafe banking practices.

Doctors Reverse Stand On Informing Patients

CHICAGO (AP) — A rerun of a 1961 survey indicates that doctors have reversed their attitudes toward telling patients they have cancer.

The 1961 survey, at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago, showed that 90 percent of the 219 responding physicians generally did not inform their patients that they had cancer.

But the repeat study, at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester in 1977, found that 97 percent of the 264 responding physicians prefer to tell their patients of the diagnosis. The Rochester survey used a questionnaire similar to that used in 1961.

The new study was done by Dr. Dennis H. Novack, now of the University of Virginia, and colleagues at Rochester and is reported in the March 2 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Novack said 100 percent of the doctors in the recent survey said they would prefer to be told if they themselves had cancer, as compared to 60 percent in the earlier survey.

And he said 100 percent indicated that they think the patient has the right to know the diagnosis.

Partly accounting for the change in physicians' attitudes is that "therapy for many forms of cancer has notably improved in recent years," Novack wrote.

In 1961, the great majority of physicians seemed to believe that cancer connoted certain death, Novack said.

He added, "Today advances in therapy have brought longer survival, improved quality of life, and in many cases, permanent cure. Physicians believe they can offer their cancer patients more hope."

Big Ten Title Chase Crowded

College Basketball Roundup

At the start of the season, the Michigan State basketball team was just about everyone's choice to win the Big Ten title. Well, the Spartans are up there at this time of year — as everyone suspected they would be — but they have a lot of company. Ohio State, Iowa and Purdue have joined Michigan State in a hot four-horse race as the Big Ten heads into the homestretch of the regular season. The photo finish was set up Saturday as the result of Iowa's 83-68 victory over Ohio State, Michigan State's 76-62 decision over Illinois and Purdue's 67-59 beating of Michigan.

"We're pleased to be back in first place, even if it is a three-way tie," said Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote, whose Spartans' 12-4 league record puts his team in a tie with Ohio State and Iowa. Purdue is close behind, at 11-5.

It appears that Ohio State has the toughest road to the title, playing on the road at Wisconsin and Purdue. "Iowa is in the driver's seat, at home against a Michigan team that's up and down, and Northwestern," noted Heathcote.

Michigan State finishes with games at Minnesota and Wisconsin this week. The Atlantic Coast Conference race finished in a tie between Duke and North Carolina after the Blue Devils defeated the Tar Heels 47-40.

Conference officials planned a drawing to determine the top seed in the ACC tournament which starts Thursday. With two games to go, UCLA maintained a one-game lead over Southern Cal in the Pacific-10 race with a 110-102 triple-overtime victory over Washington State.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Notre Dame virtually sewed up a bid for the NCAA playoffs by beating La Salle 93-70; fifth-ranked Louisiana State, the Southeastern Conference champion, was upset by Mississippi State 65-57; eighth-ranked Syracuse walloped Colgate 113-62; and No. 20 DePaul nipped No. 9 Marquette 61-60.

Also, 13th-ranked Louisville defeated Tulane 95-71; No. 15 Temple turned back Dayton 66-63; No. 16 Detroit stopped Loyola of Chicago 72-69; and No. 17 Georgetown beat Holy Cross 63-54 in double overtime.

Earvin Johnson, Michigan State's pass master, handed out 11 assists, grabbed 11 rebounds and scored 21 points for the winners in a powerful all-around game as the seventh-ranked Spartans defeated Illinois rather handily. Also, Gregory Kessler scored 24 points to become the Spartans' all-time leading scorer. Ronnie Lester's 31 points powered 12th-ranked Iowa over 14th-ranked Ohio State. The Hawkeyes broke open the game with a 12-2 spurt at the start of the second half to assume a 47-33 lead.

"If anyone has seen a better college guard this year, I would have to question his intelligence," said Iowa Coach Lute Olsen. "Lester controlled the tempo of the game all the way."

Jim Spanarkel scored 17 points and sixth-ranked Duke survived a surprise fourth-corner delay game by fourth-ranked North Carolina to beat the Tar Heels.

North Carolina went into its patented stall seconds into the game after falling behind 2-0. But the Tar Heels' strategy stalled and actually went into the dressing room at halftime without scoring a point. The Blue Devils led 7-0 at that juncture.

"I'd hope it would frustrate Duke," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "Thank the Lord we could build the score up like that in the beginning," said Duke Coach Bill Foster.

Brad Holland, Roy Hamilton and Kiki Vanderwehe hit on 10 straight free throws in the last three minutes of the third overtime to boost UCLA over Washington. The final score was the largest margin for either team in the hard-fought contest.

"It was the most exciting game I've ever been involved in as a coach," said UCLA Coach Gary Cunningham. "We matched basket for basket. I'm proud of our character down the stretch."

Bill Laimbeer scored 19 points to propel Notre Dame past La Salle. The Irish trailed by 33-32 at the half before putting on an awesome offensive display in the second half.

"The outcome was pretty much what I expected," said La Salle Coach Paul Westhead. "Notre Dame did some pretty impressive things in the second half. Our players just tired out, but that is indicative of the kind of team Notre Dame is. They just have so much depth that they eventually wear you down."

Wiley Peck scored 21 points, including a dunk shot and two free throws in the final seconds, to lead Mississippi State's victory over LSU. The loss was the first at home for the Tigers this year and came one day after clinching their first SEC title in 25 years.

"We won the Southeastern Conference championship with guts, and drive and unity," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "We lost today because those things weren't prevalent."

Marty Headd and Louis teamed for 34 points and led a scoring burst at the start of the second half that powered Syracuse over Colgate. The victory ran the Orange-men's homecourt winning streak at the Manley Field House to 45 games.

Gary Garland's layup with four seconds left after a missed shot by teammate Clyde Bradshaw lifted DePaul over Marquette. Larry Williams scored 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the last home start of his career to pace Louisville over Tulane.

Neil Robinson and Walt Montford combined for 37 points in leading Temple over Dayton. Earl Cureton scored 20 points to pace Detroit over Loyola-Chicago. Georgetown defeated Holy Cross on Eric Smith's clutch basket in the second overtime.

Elsewhere, Jacksonville defeated regular-season titlist South Alabama 85-77 and South Florida whipped North Carolina-Charlotte 50-47 in the semifinals of the Sun Belt Conference Tournament.

Martin To Return Says Steinbrenner

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Al Rosen, president of the New York Yankees, responding to contract queries made Thursday by Billy Martin, reaffirmed Saturday that owner George Steinbrenner intends to allow Martin to manage the club again in 1980.

Rosen said Steinbrenner was not trying to avoid the former manager.

"George Steinbrenner in no way has been avoiding Billy or Doug Newton (Billy's agent)," Rosen said at a news conference at the Yankees' spring training camp. "There never been any intention on George's part not to keep his end of the bargain. Billy is to be the manager in 1980."

Martin was pressured into resigning as Yankee manager last August after calling Steinbrenner a "convicted liar." Several days later, at the Yankees annual Old Timers Day, it was announced he would return to run the club in 1980.

The fiery skipper arrived at the Yankees training camp Thursday, seeking to iron out a contract agreement with Steinbrenner that would enable him to return in 1980. However, Martin was unable to locate Steinbrenner and he issued the following statement:

"We (Martin and Newton) haven't had a chance to talk to George. I'm sure when I or Doug sit down with George, we'll finalize the whole thing, which I want to get done. We've been trying to get a hold of him, but he's been quite busy with his shipyards or something." Martin, whose contract runs out this year, was concerned by speculation that he would never manage the Yankees again.

"That's one of the reasons I want to talk to George," Martin said Thursday. "I want to firm up the contract so everybody will know I'm coming back and if I'm not, let's find out."

Although Rosen reiterated that Martin would return to manage the Yankees, he added Martin must continue to be on his best behavior.

"Every deal is a two-tiered thing," Rosen said. "They (Steinbrenner and Martin) came to an agreement as I understand it, that Billy would conduct himself in the best interests of the Yankees."

Rosen then spoke of an incident in Reno, Nev., in which Martin allegedly punched a newspaper reporter, Ray Hager, who was trying to interview him.

"Billy told George he was innocent of it," Rosen said. "He'll be cleared of it and George believes him. George had no reason not to believe what Billy tells him."

However, Rosen added:

"Even if Billy is innocent of any charges or if he has to do something about making some kind of restitution to this fellow, that's tantamount in itself to being at fault in the situation."

Boxing Association Rolls Snake Eyes

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Boxing Association and the Nevada State Athletic Commission turned the scheduled Mike Rossman-Victor Galindez light heavyweight title fight into a game of craps and rolled snake eyes for boxing.

The WBA demanded it appoint two outside officials to work with one local judge in scoring the fight. The Nevada commission was adamant in maintaining that the fight officials would be those under its jurisdiction. The fight, with Rossman standing bewildered in the ring, was cancelled.

lightweight into two champions. That way there are more free trips to title fights for WBA and WBC officials.

The two leading promoters in the world are Arum and Don King. Both have promoted many WBA and WBC title fights. But Arum is tied to the WBA through his heavyweight connections — he is planning a WBA tournament to find a successor to Muhammad Ali. King has strong promotional ties to Larry Holmes, the WBC heavyweight champion.

Now it just so happens that Nevada is a member of the WBC, which got to appoint the officials on at least two occasions in Nevada — Ronnie Harris of Akron, Ohio, vs. Gratien Tonna of France in a 12-round middleweight fight Feb. 24, 1978, and Danny Lopez featherweight title defense on the Ali-Leon Spinks universal heavyweight title card Feb. 15, 1978.

Jose Sulaiman of Mexico, the WBC president, said by telephone from his home that there would be no officiating problems with the Holmes-Ossie Ocasio of Puerto Rico title fight and the Ken Norton-Earnie Shavers 12-round heavyweight elimination fight in Las Vegas March 23. Sulaiman said no local fighters were involved and that the Nevada commission would appoint the officials. It would be interesting to see what the WBC's stance would be if Ocasio was from a South or Central American or Caribbean nation rather than a U.S. commonwealth. However, the WBC did accept Nevada officials when Holmes beat Alfredo Evangelista of Spain.

Nationalism — Boxing long has been spiced by a strong ethnic flavor. Ethnic rivalries have drawn big crowds and sometimes caused big disturbances. But boxing is more than black vs. white, Irish vs. Jew, hispanic vs. white, etc. It's now country vs. country.

When lightweight Roberto Duran fights, so does Panama. Nino Benvenuti represented Italy when he was middleweight champion. Galindez carries the banner of Argentina into battle although his place in Argentine hearts cannot rival that of ex-middleweight king Carlos Monzon.

Now, it's also interesting to note that the greatest strength of the WBA and WBC are outside America and the majority of officials are non-American — the WBA president is Mandry Galindez of Venezuela. He is not related to the fighter.

So, it was obviously felt by Victor Galindez' people and the WBA that an American champion should not have three American officials to do the judging, which is a subjective art at best. When Rossman best Galindez for the title in New Orleans, the officials were not locally appointed but were named by the WBA. They were needed. On that same program, Ali regained the WBA heavyweight title from Spinks on the cards of three officials appointed by the Louisiana State Athletic Commission.

What the WBA seems to have forgotten is that Mike Rossman doesn't represent the United States. The people in Turnersville, N.J., and the Philadelphia area might have been upset and possibly incensed by a Rossman loss, but America would not have been in mourning.

The Nevada commission, which gave in to the WBC on the officials issue on at least two occasions, also apparently forgot that it doesn't have the only qualified officials and that its main job is to hold the fight. If they could give in to the WBC, they could have given to the WBA at least for the sake of the fighters. Rossman said he would have accepted WBA officials.

In the future, you can expect television to get the officials situation straightened out long before fight time.

MAD MAN — Fight promoter Bob Arum is an angry man after Victor Galindez refused to fight Saturday night over a dispute about the officials. Arum vowed never to promote one of Galindez' bouts again. For a complete analysis see the AP story. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. Boxers Whip Poland Fighters 7-4

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Amateur heavyweight Phillip Brown, who learned to box while serving time in a New Orleans jail, slammed a right uppercut and a left hook to the head of Grzegorz Skrzec to stop the Polish heavyweight at 1:29 of the second round and give the United States a 7-4 team victory over Poland.

Brown was leading Skrzec on points at the time of the knockout, but he didn't want to leave the decision up to the vagaries of international judging.

Two of his teammates lost in lustily-boomed split decisions when the three judges for their matches were divided 2-1 in Poland's favor.

"I thought I won every round," said Harry Brent, who lost his first match in international competition in the Saturday night matches. Brent is now 5-1 in international amateur bouts.

The judges from Poland gave the decision to 1978 world champion Henry Srednicki 59-58 and 60-58. The lone U.S. judge scored it 60-56 in Brent's favor.

"He didn't even hit me in the head the whole fight," Brent said after the decision. "Or if he did hit me in the head, I don't remember it."

Brent's teammate, Melvin Paul, described the decision succinctly: "Rip-off."

Paul, who had to sweat off six pounds the morning of the fights to make the 125-pound limit, won a unanimous decision over Roman Gotfryd, opening a gory cut high on Gotfryd's forehead.

The Polish team doctor examined the cut and allowed the fight to continue, but Gotfryd was clearly overmatched.

Tony Williams — told only 12 hours ahead of time that he was going to box in the Saturday night matches — didn't complain about the decision that gave the 139-pound bout to Kazimierz Szerbera, although others did.

"I thought Tony won the fight," said Tom Johnson of Indianapolis, one of the U.S. squad's coaches. "I don't feel bad about the decision," Williams said. "That was my first international bout, but it won't be the last."

Analysis

These boxing politicians showed one another they don't back down — at least not all of the time. They also gave the sport, whose best interests they profess to oversee, a black eye. And they plucked the goose that lays their golden egg — American network television. They could soon regret this one.

ABC reportedly had bought television rights for $350,000. The network is upset, rightly so. Promoter Bob Arum said the cancellation of the fight at the Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion cost him $250,000.

Television has been accused many times of hurting the fight game by over-exposing it and by calling the shots as to who fights whom. But television in the last couple of years has also brought a lot of money into the game and a lot of attention to fighters.

Should the networks decide to withdraw or severely reduce their coverage, the WBA and the World Boxing Council and many state commissions are going to find themselves playing king of a greatly reduced hill in both prestige and money. Boxing politicians thrive on attention.

Forget about the men who make up boxing's governing bodies. They can go running their law practices or their used car lots or whatever. What about the fighters?

Boxing won't die no matter how chaotically it is run or what role television plays. What about the fighters?

"Boxing is being run by guys who sit behind big desks, smoke cigars and drink whiskey all night," said Rossman, who won the WBA title by stopping Galindez in the 13th round at New Orleans last Sept. 15. "I don't think anybody cares about the athlete any more."

They sure didn't Saturday, or Mike Rossman and Galindez could have plied the trade they worked hard to learn for money and pride. Rossman was to have received $150,000 and Galindez $40,000.

Why were they deprived?

The answer is that great 1-2 of international boxing — politics and nationalism.

Politics — the two main governing bodies of world boxing are the WBA and the WBC and they have managed to split every division but the middleweight and

BRAVES WORKOUT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves announced Saturday that they had come to terms with last year's rookie pitching sensation Larry McWilliams, as the National League team had its first official work-out day for pitchers and catchers. Braves spokesman Bob Hope said 44 players were on hand for the three-hour workout. McWilliams, who joined the Braves midway through last season, posted a 9-3 record and 3.83 earned run average for the year. He gained national attention in Atlanta when he stopped Pete Rose's record-setting 44-game hitting streak.

Raider Baseballers Lose Pair

SAN ANTONIO (Special)—The Texas Tech baseball team found the going a little tough on Sunday as they dropped games to Texas Lutheran College 5-1 and St. Mary's 5-0 and slipped to an early 4-2 record.

And the San Antonio school picked up its runs in a hurry as it sent across four runs in the second inning on only two hits.

In the first ball game of the day, Texas Lutheran scored two unanswered runs in the second inning that proved to be all the Lutheraners needed.

With the bases loaded TLC sent a man across the plate when shortstop Brooks Wallace lost a ground ball. Later in the inning a sacrifice fly sent another runner in and Tech pitcher Steve Ibarguen was already in trouble.

Ibarguen continued to have trouble in the third and Leonard Arnic's towering homer drove in TLC's final three runs.

Tech's only score of the game came in the sixth inning as Bruce Wallace got on with a ground ball single and came across on a Mark Laughlin base hit.

Things didn't get any better for the Raiderers in the second game as St. Mary's shut out the red and black 5-0.

Terry Raley knocked in the first two runs on a bases loaded situation and Dwane Haynes was accredited with the second two scores with a single.

St. Mary's final run came in the fifth as Paul Szymarek got on base via an error by third baseman Kenny Coggell and then scored on a triple provided by Lane Litzner.

The Raiderers first homestand begins Tuesday when they face Hardin Simmons.

Chaps Ready For TWU

DALLAS (Special)—The Lubbock Christian Chaparrals spent Sunday afternoon trying to come up with some offensive changes as they must face Texas Wesleyan at 6 p.m. tonight in the Dallas Baptist College Gymn in the first round of the Texas Athletic Tournament.

At 8 p.m. DBC will face Wayland Baptist and the two winners will square off Tuesday for a chance to advance into the finals Thursday against Midwestern in Wichita Falls.

The Chaps were humiliated in a 35 point defeat by TWU on Saturday night and were trying to work with a more inside-oriented attack. LCC has only picked up 15 assists in the last two games after averaging around 20 per outing most of the season.

The Chaps take a 13-16 record into tonight's contest while TWU is 14-23. The two teams have split their last two games.

Spurs Claim Bragging Rights 127-107

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — George Gervin hit 32 points and Billy Paultz added 24 Sunday as the San Antonio Spurs routed intrastate rival Houston 127-107 to pad their lead to three games over the Rockets in the National Basketball Association Central Division.

The Spurs, who lead the NBA in offense but rank third from the bottom on defense, shut down the Rockets for only 14 points in the second quarter of the regionally televised game and led by 21 at the half, 65-44.

Houston, playing the fourth game of a five-game road trip, managed only 23 percent of its shots from the field in that period and could hit a mere 37 percent for the game.

The Rockets had a three-minute scoreless span early in the game and went 4-14 minutes without scoring in the second quarter, as the Spurs reeled off 12 unanswered points. San Antonio led by as much as 25 points in the third period.

Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer, had 16 points in each half and Paultz had 15 of his total in the second half. Larry Kenon added 22 for San Antonio.

Moses Malone had 33 points to pace Houston and added 25 rebounds, 16 of them coming in the first half.

Calvin Murphy added 21 for Houston, and Rudy Tomjanovich had 20, but both were held to only six points in the first half.

Rick Barry managed only four points for the game.

It was the second of four meetings between the two Texas teams, who are fighting it out for the Central Division title, as preseason forecasters predicted.

Houston won the first game, 126-120, last Nov. 18 in Houston.

The Rockets had closed to 36-32 with 10:57 remaining in the crucial second quarter before going cold. San Antonio put together 12 points in the 4 1/2 minutes to run its margin to 48-32. It was the lowest second quarter total by a San Antonio opponent this season.

The Spurs opened up a 12-point lead, 27-15, at 3:47 in the first period, but led only 33-30 at the end of that quarter.

Only 8 of Malone's 25 rebounds came on the offensive boards, which is considered a specialty of the NBA rebound leader.

Barry, Houston's highly paid pre-season free agent acquisition has been averaging 14 points a game, but hit only 1 of 6 shots the first half and 1 of 2 the final two periods.

CLIPPERS 116, CELTICS 111

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Guards Lloyd Free and Randy Smith combined for 70 points Sunday as the San Diego Clippers scored their fifth straight National Basketball Association victory, a 131-116 triumph over the Boston Celtics.

The win put the playoff-minded Clippers over the .500 mark for the first time this season at 22-31.

San Diego went ahead to stay at 28-26 on a jumper by Smith at the end of the first quarter. The Celtics, losers of four of their last five games, stayed close until midway through the second period when the Clippers ran off 13 straight points during a span of 3:44 to take a 55-41 lead. It was 59-46 at halftime.

Free finished with 38 points and Smith added 32. Rookie Freeman Williams paced the Clippers in the second half with 10 of his 14 points.

The Clippers scored 45 points in the third period to take a 104-79 advantage entering the final 12 minutes, but Don Chaney led a Boston rally with nine of his 11 points which cut San Diego's lead to 106-98 with 7:36 left in the game.

But Smith hit a bank shot and Free added two field goals and a free throw as the Clippers built the lead back to 112-100 and they weren't threatened after that.

Bob McAdoo led the Celtics with 19 points. Player-coach Dave Cowens added 13 and reserve Jeff Judkins scored 12 for Boston. Chaney, Chris Ford and Curtis Rowe tallied 11 points apiece for the losers.

NETS 116, KNICKS 102

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey's backcourt combination of John Williamson and Eddie Jordan combined for 58 points Sunday to lead the Nets to a 116-102 victory over the New York Knicks in National Basketball Association action.

The Nets took control of the game in the latter stages of the third quarter. Trailing 81-80, New Jersey ran off a 22-4 streak into the fourth quarter that put them on top, 102-87.

Williamson, who finished with a game high of 30 points, collected 10 points in that stretch. Jordan notched 30 points in the game.

The Nets then widened their lead to 16 points after Williamson hit two more jump shots. New York closed to within nine points at 110-101 on four points by Jim Clemons and two foul shots by Mike Glenn.

But New Jersey center Harvey Catchings then converted a layup and two foul shots to put the game out of reach.

Toby Knight led New York with 20 points while Earl Monroe added 18.

New York defeated New Jersey 111-107 Saturday night.

BULLETS 99, WARRIORS 89

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Elvin Hayes poured in 31 points Sunday to lead the Washington Bullets to a 99-89 victory over the injury-riddled Golden State Warriors.

Hayes scored six points in a three-minute span in the fourth quarter when the Bullets broke open a close game to protect their six-game lead over second-place Philadelphia.

The Warriors, paced by Sonny Parker's 16 points, led throughout the first three quarters. However, they ran out of gas in the final period and committed several costly turnovers.

Golden State was without the services of its leading scorer and rebounder, Robert Parrish, who pulled a groin muscle, and Wayne Cooper, who injured an ankle. The Warriors lost high-scoring Phil Smith 10 days ago with a torn Achilles tendon.

76ers 119, NUGGETS 111

DENVER (AP) — Julius Erving and Darryl Dawkins keyed a fourth period rally as the Philadelphia 76ers stormed from 15 points behind with 10 minutes to play to shock Denver 119-111 in a National Basketball Association game Sunday afternoon.

Erving scored 12 points and Dawkins nine after the Nuggets had opened a 100-85 lead by scoring the first 10 points of the final period. The Sixers then went on a 14-0 tear and climbed within 102-101 on a basket by Henry Bibby with 5:40 to play. After Denver's David Thompson, the game's high scorer with 31 points, hit three straight points, Philadelphia went ahead on a 9-0 burst. Dawkins put the Sixers on top to stay 106-105 with 3:37 left.

The Nuggets trailed 110-109 when Dawkins put in a rebound and then Erving scored on a dunk to clinch the victory after a steal by rookie Maurice Cheeks.

Cheeks led Philadelphia with 21 points and Caldwell Jones added 20, 16 in the first half when he hit all seven of his shots from the floor. Erving, coming off an ankle injury, had 18 points.

Dan Issel scored 25 and Charlie Scott 17 for Denver.

In his first home game against his former teammates, Denver's George McGinnis scored only 10 points, none in the second half.

WILL STAR AS LADY DETECTIVE — Actress Kate Mulgrew is pictured during the filming of one of the episodes of NBC's TV series "Mrs. Columbo." As the star of the show Miss Mulgrew plays the role of a mother, free-lance detective, part-time writer and wife of a policeman who never comes home. She says, "I'm in many ways a homebody, but I'm not a female Columbo, patterned after the Peter Falk "Columbo" series. (AP Laserphoto)

'Mrs. Columbo' Debuts Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — During the six years of "Columbo," the rumpled detective's wife was sort of like the 6-foot rabbit in "Harvey" — frequently talked about, but never seen.

Peter Falk as Lt. Columbo told us that his wife was a fan of detective stories, read Irish poetry, loved old movies, devoured the newspapers, attended night school and couldn't cook.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. Here comes "Mrs. Columbo," premiering Monday night on NBC in a two-hour movie. "Mrs. Columbo" returns Thursday night, to begin a weekly hour-long series.

Mrs. Columbo turns out to be a mother, free-lance detective, part-time student, writer for a weekly newspaper, and wife of a policeman who is never at home. Strange that Columbo never talked about his daughter, who's now 7.

Whatever image you may have had of Mrs. Columbo, forget it. Kate Mulgrew plays her, and she's a knockout.

"We originally considered everybody — young, old, known, and unknown," said John J. McMahon, NBC's senior vice president for programs and talent. "In the end, we decided a fresh, new face was needed to bring 'Mrs. Columbo' to life."

McMahon and NBC's president, Fred Silverman, spotted Miss Mulgrew in "a smashing performance" on "Dallas" as an aspiring country-western singer. She also played David Janssen's mistress in "The Word."

"To go with the obvious is so boring," said Miss Mulgrew of her characterization of Mrs. Columbo. "And it's so understandable I would be his type. Opposites attract. I am in many ways a homebody, but I am not a female Columbo, thank God. We can't have two eccentrics in the same household."

"The whole thing's still in the embryonic stage," Miss Mulgrew said in an interview while the first show was in production. "She will not be eccentric, but I think many peculiarities will evolve. I rehearse a play four or five weeks, but not until I'm on stage does the character really take shape."

"I'm in front of the cameras now, but I think only in the future will I find her true character. Right now, I'm striving for simplicity and clarity. It's not as easy as it sounds."

Miss Mulgrew is only 23, but is able to play older women. Mrs. Columbo obviously would be a woman in her early 30s. Miss Mulgrew also is a relative newcomer to prime-time television, after several years in the soap opera "Ryan's Hope," and extensive stage work.

She is in "Jennifer: A Woman's Story," starring Elizabeth Montgomery, which airs on NBC March 5, and in April, she goes to Ireland to film "Tristram and Isolde" with Richard Burton.

Kate Mulgrew was born and raised in Dubuque, Iowa, one of eight children. By the time she was 12, she knew she wanted to be an actress, and worked deliberately toward that goal.

"I left at 17 to become an actress," she said, "but I had to allay my father's fears by going to college. I went to New York University, which was a joke. I couldn't have cared less. But I studied with Stella Adler, who was an inspiration."

She dropped out of college in her junior year, waited on tables, and haunted producers' waiting rooms. She was lucky enough to get an agent and made her stage and TV debuts simultaneously. She was 19. "I got a role in 'Ryan's Hope' and taped that all day, then raced up to Stratford, Conn., to the American Shakespeare Theater at night. It was heaven."

Russian Orchestra Packs N.Y. House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite protests about its appearance here, the Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra performed a well-received concert Saturday night before a full house at the Kennedy Center.

A local group, the Jewish Activist Front, circulated a flyer protesting Soviet treatment of Jews. And Mstislav Rostropovich, music director of the National Symphony Orchestra, complained that his sister, Veronica, was not allowed on the current tour of Canada and the United States. She has been a violinist with the orchestra for 20 years.

The concert was sponsored by the Washington Performing Arts Society and was part of a U.S.-USSR cultural exchange.

Alexander Toradze, 26, was the evening's piano soloist. Toradze, who has developed an incredible technique, played Prokofiev's Concerto No. 3 between orchestra numbers. He was a second-prize winner in the 1977 Van Cliburn competition for pianists.

After the concert, J. Paul Austin, chairman of the Coca-Cola Co., and pianist Van Cliburn hosted a reception attended by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell.

The Jewish Activist Front distributed a flyer, expressing the hope that the audience would enjoy the performance. "But please remember that what you are seeing here — freedom of artistic expression and esthetic creativity — is denied one of the largest groups in the Soviet population: the Jews of the USSR," it said.

Rostropovich, generally regarded as the greatest living cellist, has protested his sister was denied permission to travel with the orchestra because of his actions and statements against the Soviet Union. Rostropovich was stripped of his Soviet citizenship last year.

Members of the National Symphony and the Kennedy Center Opera House orchestras signed a letter of protest to Mikhail A. Suslov, secretary of ideology of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party.

The letter said, "As musicians we must speak out in protest over this deplorable action. The holding of artists as hostages for political consideration is outrageous and intolerable. Such a policy is a flagrant misuse of cultural exchange."

Dracula Portrayed As Romanian Patriot

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Dracula is depicted as a cruel but patriotic leader in a new film from this Communist country, whose leaders apparently are concerned with the image abroad of one of its toughest rulers.

The message of the Romanian film is that Dracula, or Vlad Tepes, his real name, actually was defending his country's interests, especially against foreign invaders.

The film, "Vlad Tepes," premiered here recently. Vlad is played by a young actor, Stefan Sileanu, whose portrayal of the tough ruler got good marks from the film critics.

The film's director, Doru Nastase, was less fortunate. The reviewers said he used too many characters, from beggars to the King of Hungary and Sultan Mohamed II, and too many battle scenes.

The film was shot in the Carpathian Mountains.

There have been about 60 movies from the West on the subject, most of them depicting Vlad — or Dracula, as he was named by the British novelist Bram Stoker in 1897 — as a vampire.

The Romanian film, said one reviewer, did not try to hide Vlad Tepes' cruelty, but made it clear the ruler felt that approach most suitable for defending his country's interests, "above all its independence."

Although he used an array of methods of torture, the main one was to impale his enemies on stakes and leave them to die. Local historians say this was the most drastic punishment used during the 15th Century in which Vlad Tepes lived.

"There are too many ways of punishment for a mistake ... beheading ... hanging ... all have the same imperfection," Vlad says in the film. "They don't embody the triumph of the good and they teach a lesson devoid of meaning."

Impaling apparently taught a meaningful lesson, in Vlad's eyes.

Historians say the ruler was responsible for the deaths of tens of thousands, including his own unruly subjects.

To get rid of beggars and the lazy, he summoned them to a banquet in a large house, then bolted the doors and set the house afire. A movie scene shows Vlad on horseback, visibly delighted by the sight of the burning house in the shadows of the falling night.

The filmmakers said their intention was not to terrify the audience, but to portray the ruler truthfully as history depicted him.

The film maintains the ruler's image as a cruel man driven by sick instinct came from Saxon merchants in Transylvania who bore a grudge against him for eliminating their trading privileges on the Danube.

"This portrait was spread to western Europe by German tales to discredit the prince for his harsh anti-Saxon actions. They even distorted his physical appearance," says one Romanian historian.

This image and Stoker's novel have made Vlad a tourist attraction.

A government-sponsored tourist program, "Dracula, Legend and Truth," was begun in 1973, combining Draculean horror with historical fact.

The program, which attracts several thousand tourists from Europe and the United States each year, includes a visit to the ruins of Castle Dracula, the ruler's mountaintop fortress built by rival barons whom Vlad enslaved.

Texas Tale Entertains

HOUSTON (AP) — It was back to the chicken ranch Sunday night — well, almost, anyway — and a big Lone Star howdy for a true tall Texas tale that was home at last after capturing the heart of Broadway.

A Texas company of the "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," which is still running in New York, opened in its own Houston theater to the people who know its story best, and they appeared to love every rollicking minute.

The musical is built around a yarn about a century-old and well-known house of prostitution in the little southeast Texas town of La Grange that captured the attention of the entire state back in 1973.

It was the Chicken Ranch, a tidy farmhouse where — when pickings were slimmer in earlier times — poultry was taken in return for a little southwestern sensuality.

But Marvin Zindler, a crusading television reporter from Houston, refused to go along with the "secret," and raised such a stink that Miss Edna and her girls were forced out. It was rumored most of the pressure came from a few politicians who were personally acquainted with the ranch.

The story went national when Texan Larry King's tale of the ranch's demise appeared in "Playboy." Later he and another Texan, Pete Masterson, wrote the musical, which caught the eye of Universal Pictures' Stevie Phillips, and the rest is history.

The opening Sunday night — a benefit performance for Planned Parenthood that sold out — was a big hit with the hometown crowd, who welcomed with open arms the local boy made good.

The handsy comedy musical came complete with singin', dancin', cussin', a few Aggies and the slipperiest politicians you'd ever want to avoid.

Still another Texan — Tommy Tune — co-directed with Masterson and choreographed the show, and the foot-stompin' came fast and furious. It was humorous, creative and tight. The Aggie number was a special favorite of the audience.

The cast — almost completely Texan either by birth or residence — carried the opening night splendidly, without a hitch.

Bill Hardy stopped the show as the feisty Sheriff Ed Earl Dodd, a good ol' boy who cussed a blue-streak most of the time. He played the character honestly and sympathetically — not as a caricature — and had the audience laughing and cussing with him all the way.

An equally winning job was turned in by Larry Hovis of "Hogan's Heroes" fame in the role of white-wigged and spangle-suited television reporter Melvin P. Thorpe, patterned after Zindler. Soon, even the mention of his name brought boos and hissing from the audience.

Veteran Houston actress Marietta March did a good job in holding the show together in her role as the madam, Miss Mona Stangley.

A surprise that delighted the audience was the portrayal of the governor turned in by Pat Hamilton. His dancing and singing in "The Sidestep" had everyone literally rolling in the aisles.

Tech Professor Receives Award Of Excellence

George N. Sorenson, associate theater arts professor at Texas Tech University, was presented an award of excellence gold medalion at the American College Theater Festival in Fort Worth earlier this month.

The award is sponsored by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and Amoco oil and is given to honor participation in different phases of the American College Theater Festival. Sorenson has served the festival in various capacities since 1973.

Sorenson's medalion is the third awarded to Texas Tech in the past two years. The Theater Arts Department and its chairperson, Richard A. Weaver, received the other two awards last year.

Sorenson received a Bachelor of Arts from Baylor University, Master of Arts from the University of Colorado and doctoral degree from the University of Missouri at Columbia.

Before coming to Texas Tech in 1976, Sorenson taught at Atkins Junior High School, Cooper High School, Hardin-Simmons University and Texas Christian University.

Airline Pays $100,000 Fine

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Braniff Airways paid a $100,000 fine here Friday stemming from federal criminal antitrust charges against Braniff and Texas International Airlines for trying to block service by a Texas commuter airline.

Last month, U.S. District Judge Edwin F. Hunter had ordered Braniff to pay the fine after the firm's attorneys entered a plea of no contest to a two-count indictment charging antitrust violations against intrastate Southwest Airlines.

Texas International paid the same fine in 1978 after it entered a similar plea.

The legal battles began five years ago when the U.S. Justice Department first presented the case to a federal grand jury. No indictments were returned by that panel, but a second grand jury did indict the two airlines.

Those indictments were dismissed by U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears because of misconduct by prosecutors.

The no contest pleas came after a third set of indictments were returned in July, 1977.

The fines ordered by Hunter were the maximum under the law used to charge the airlines. The statute has since been amended to allow for a maximum fine of $1 million on each count.
