Deep Snow, Flooding Daunt East

By Associated Press

THE RELENTLESS winter of '79 continued to pound America's midsection Monday, spreading knee-deep snow and spilling floodwaters into many areas from Missouri to New England.

On the day the sun blinked, to the thrill of thousands of eclipse-watchers gathered in the Pacific Northwest, residents of southeast Missouri and parts of Arkansas were digging out from under their worst snowstorm in 60 years.

National Guardsmen were mobilized in several states for rescue work, and at least six deaths were blamed on the storm.

Hundreds of schools were closed and power lines were tumbled by ice, snow and freezing rains from Cleveland to western New York State.

Residents of low-lying areas in six West Virginia counties were evacuating their homes as waterways swelled over their banks after six days of rain.

Flood Problems Reported

Rainfall of up to 2 inches over a 24-hour period caused minor flood problems in scattered areas of Pennyslvania, filling basements with water and closing some roads.

Snow fell across a large part of the Appalachians, the lower Great Lakes and western New England, with rain coming down from North Carolina and Virginia through Pennsylvania into southern New England.

High tides and rains caused some flooding along the Middle Atlantic Coast.

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson declared 30 counties in the southern part of the state snow emergency areas and activated National Guard units, mainly to aid an estimated 2,000 motorists stranded on highways.

Motorists Rescued

An additional 250 National Guardsmen, plus Red Cross units, were helping rescue an estimated 4,000 motorists stranded in southeastern Missouri, where 50-mph winds had built snowdrifts up to 10 feet high.

Hundreds of cars were stalled on Interstate 55 which was closed in a 30-mile stretch from Sikeston, Mo., north to Cape Girardeau.

Missouri authorities said thousands of persons had been rescued from their marooned cars and given refuge at temporary shelters set up in armories, churches, courthouses and private homes. Hotels and motels in the area were full and stranded motorists were sleeping in hallways and lobbies.

Up to 1,000 persons were reported stranded in Benton alone, 700 in the Scott County Courthouse.

"It was a big snowstorm that happens only once in many, many years," said meteorologist Walter Parker in St. Louis. "It was particularly rare for southeast Missouri."

Doctor Skis To Patient

In Fredericktown, Mo., a doctor and his nurse — a husband-and-wife team — mounted cross-country skies to reach a pregnant woman snowbound in her rural home and in labor.

"We had tried to got out to her home in four-wheel drive vehicles, but we only got within a mile of the house," said Dr. Phillip Bever, 36, who got there just in time to deliver a 9-pound, 8-ounce baby boy to Donna Grindstaff.

School Leaders To Present New Ideas, Changes

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

TWO MAJOR problems facing the nation's public schools — cost effectiveness and change — will be examined from state and federal viewpoints at the "Promises in Education '79" showcase here this week.

Dr. M.L. Brockette, Texas commissioner of education, will outline the statewide efforts to move outstanding new ideas from school to school at the 8:30 a.m. opening session today in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center auditorium.

Dr. Alpheus L. White, director of state educational assistance for the U.S. Office of Education, will discuss "Educational Change: The Adoption Process," at the closing luncheon session on Wednesday.

A series of demonstrations scheduled during the conference will allow about 600 Texas educators to examine programs that have proven effective in this state and across the nation.

Both the state and nationally validated programs have been through intensive screening, according to Dr. O.R. Douglas, executive director of the Region XVII Education Service Center, which is hosting the conference.

The conference is co-sponsored by the Texas Education Agency and the state's 20 regional education service centers.

The Lubbock "Promises in Education '79" conference is the seventh in a series of similar events held throughout Texas the past 12 years. Other sessions were in San Antonioa, McAllen, Dallas, Houston and Austin.

"This conference is one major statewide effort we use to move good ideas from school to school," Brockette said.

Woodcock Endorsed For Chinese Envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted overwhelmingly Monday to confirm Leonard Woodcock as President Carter's choice to become the first U.S. ambassador to mainland China since 1949.

The 82-9 vote followed a brief, unsuccessful floor protest organized by Senate Republicans against Carter's China policies.

Woodcock is to be installed Thursday in Peking, where he has headed the U.S. liaison mission for the past two years. There had been some speculation Senate conservatives might try to block a vote before then.

But after a few hours Monday it became clear there was insufficient support to use the nomination as a vehicle for sustained opposition to Carter's shift in policy.

A Senate filibuster beyond Thursday would have meant a major embarrassment for the president and his policy of extending diplomatic recognition to China while ending formal ties with Taiwan.

There was no question in floor debate about the qualifications of Woodcock, former president of the United Auto Workers union. And after three hours of debate, Republicans did not object when Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd set a late afternoon vote on the nomination.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, a moderate Republican from Maryland, had unexpectedly emerged as a leader in the gesture to temporarily block Senate approval of the nomination.

Mathias said quick confirmation of Woodcock would be another in a series of "dangerous signals" sent by the Carter administration in the midst of China's invasion of Vietnam.

"We should tell the Chinese that they cannot make war and expect the new relationship (with the United States) to prosper," Mathias said.

Mathias said the Senate should defer a vote on Woodcock "to a more propitious time" as a signal of Senate dissatisfaction with China's actions.

Beyond that, Mathias criticized the president for sending Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal to China in the midst of the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict.

But Byrd disagreed. "I see no justification for holding Mr. Woodcock hostage," he said.

To begin debate on the Woodcock nomination, Byrd moved to place the Senate into "executive session," a legislative status in which presidential nominations are considered.

It is usually a routine move, done without controversy.

For Woodcock, however, Mathias forced a roll call vote, and all 29 votes in opposition to the executive session came from Republicans.

Of the 56 senators voting yes, only three came from Republicans.

Had those voting no won, Woodcock's nomination would not be considered.

Rarely have Democratic or Republican leaders been able to organize such a strict party-line vote.

One congressional source, asking not to be identified, said flatly that the purpose of the delay is to embarrass the president.

Israeli Cabinet To Debate Trip

Begin Invited For U.S. Summit

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Cabinet meets Today to decide whether Prime Minister Menachem Begin will accept a U.S. invitation to a mideast conference without Egyption President Anwar Sadat.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan flew in from Washington Monday night to attend the crucial session.

Some Israeli leaders have voiced doubts that Sadat's representative, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, would have the power to make decisions at a summit and said they feared the meeting could lead to pressuring Israel alone on issues blocking a peace treaty.

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell, pressed on the issue, said Khalil "has been given, and has had, the full authority to negotiate and conclude a peace treaty."

Sadat kept mum on why he decided to send Khalil to Camp David rather than personally attending. He toured a petroleum refinery and cement plant in Alexandria, Egypt, on Monday and avoided reporters.

One of the president's aides said Sadat should not be expected to "do everything" and that it was fitting for Khalil to represent Egypt since both he and Begin are prime ministers.

Sadat Participation Possible

When Carter anounced his plans for a summit, he left Sadat the option of joining the talks if they proved successful.

Khalil was quoted in Tuesday's edition of Egypt's semi-official Al Ahram newspaper as saying he and Dayan reached a draft agreement on how to apply Palestinian self-rule to the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip, and that other progress had been made.

The paper said Khalil made the statements Monday on arriving in London en route to Cairo. Khalil was quoted as saying he would return to Washington, probably Friday, if Begin agrees to the summit.

The State Department in Washington denied the report about the agreement. "No agreement has been reached," said a State Department spokesman, who asked not to be named. "We have been directly in touch with Dr. Khalil in London, who has denied saying any such thing."

Ahram said Khalil had stated Egypt's views regarding the proposed agreement, which took the form of a "comprehensive framework or a package deal." It said Dayan had asked to consult with his government.

The newspaper said without elaboration that Khalil also has submitted a written memorandum to Dayan and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance requesting the adoption of five "urgent steps concerning Jewish settlements, public freedom, measures undertaken by the Israeli occupation authority and the necessity of reducing Israeli military forces in the cities of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip."

For his part, Begin has refused to commit himself on whether he will attend, saying he would await the outcome of the Cabinet session.

Dayan told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport that he was told Sadat refused to attend the summit because he did not see himself as "the appropriate figure to conduct negotiations on this paragraph or that paragraph."

Dayan, who was returning from talks with Khalil, said, "I have the impression that Khalil is qualified and authorized" to negotiate an agreement. The Israeli foreign minister refused to say if he would recommend to the Cabinet that Begin accept Carter's invitation.

Dayan said it was "not essential" that Sadat be there, "except for when it will come to the actual signing of the agreement, if that stage will be reached."

Cabinet Reported Divided

Begin's 17-man Cabinet reportedly is divided on whether to accept the invitation, and the positions adopted by Begin and Dayan are likely to be decisive. But many Israelis see the request for Begin to negotiate with Khalil as an insult.

Begin would not reveal his opinion, but he told reporters he was not disappointed

Man Killed By Train

POLICE LATE Monday were trying to determine the identity of an elderly man run over by a Santa Fe train in the 300-block of E. 19th Street about 3 p.m.

Police reports indicated the 44-car train had been headed south when the engineer spotted the man standing near the tracks and blew a warning whistle. The train continued south, stopped for a few seconds and started backing up, reports show.

"As the train backed, the engineer saw the man's body lying on the track," said J.H. Eblen, a Santa Fe conductor. The train came to a stop approximately 216 feet from the man's body, police said.

Justice of the Peace Charles Smith ruled the death accidental.

Police described the man as white, in his 70s, with gray hair and of medium height and build. He was wearing a red sweater, white shirt with small blue flowers, silver tie with small red squares, blue pants, black socks and brown slip-on loafers.

Police said the man apparently was carrying a beige overcoat and a gray hat.

Iranian Irregulars Free Westerners; Export Oil To Flow

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Islamic revolutionaries arrested an American, a Belgian and two Britons employed by an oil-drilling company, a company spokesman reported, but British officials said later the men were questioned and then released.

The company spokesman said the four were detained Monday on charges of "plundering the wealth of Iran by charging exorbitant prices."

In another development Hassan Nazih, new director of the National Iranian Oil Co., said Iran would resume oil exports next week but did not say exactly when or in what amounts.

But Prime Minister Medhi Bazargan told Robert MacNeil of public television's MacNeil-Lehrer Report that exports would start in about two months to any country except Israel willing to pay the price. He said exports would eventually reach 50 to 60 percent of the pre-revolution level of 5.4 million barrels a day.

There was speculation some Iranian oil sold on the "spot" market, which does not involve long-term contracts, could bring up to $24 a barrel, about $10 a barrel more than the official price of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries

Arrest Details Scant

There were few details on the reported arrests. The American Embassy said it knew nothing of the matter and spokesmen for Iran's new government declined to comment.

A spokesman for the Irvine, Calif.-based Fluor Co., the drilling and construction firm employing the four men, identified the American as John Cassiba, 49, who went to high school in South Carolina but describes himself as a "perennial expatriate."

The spokesman, Jim Mackin, said Cassiba was a construction foreman and said he did not know where Cassiba attended school in South Carolina.

The Britons were identified as as W.W. Walsh and K. Thompson and the Belgian as P. Detrez. No hometowns were available. They were employed in the southern city of Aghajari, Mackin said.

He said the four were arrested in the southern city of Abadan, where they had gone to catch a flight to Tehran so they could leave the country.

British officials reported early Tuesday that the men were taken for questioning to Ahwaz, an oil-industry center 375 miles southwest of Tehran, and freed there Monday night. He said they still were in Ahwaz.

Minister Shuns 'Colonial' Agreements

Nazih notified oil workers in Abadan of the resumption of exports and said the production and export politics "will be based entirely on Iran's national interests and we shall never accept colonially imposed agreements."

The statement signalled the possible end to sales to a Western oil consortium that had supplied, among others, Israel and South Africa. Both countries are on the boycott list of the new revolutionary government.

Negotiations with the Euro-American consortium are underway but oil industry sources said Iran's resumed exports probably would be sold directly to customers by Iran rather than the consortium, which previously had marketed the bulk of Iran's crude.

Oil experts believe Iran's future production will be about half of the previous output, leaving about 2.4 million brrels a day for export.

Chinese Thrust Said Parried By Viets

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese troops defending the Red River valley corridor to Hanoi held their ground Monday against a three-pronged Chinese armored and infantry attack, Hanoi radio said.

It claimed Peking's soldiers were being killed at a rate of 800 a day all along the border front lines.

China's Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping said Monday the 10-day-old conflict might end in about another 10 days, but analysts in Bangkok and elsewhere expect the Chinese invasion force to first mount an all-out assault against Hanoi's troops.

The official Soviet news media charged that China also was massing troops near its border with Laos for an invasion of that Vietnamese-dominated country. The report could not be confirmed.

In a speech in the western Russian city of Minsk, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko reiterated the Kremlin warning to China to pull out of Soviet-allied Vietnam "before it is too late." He said the invasion was "doomed to failure."

Soviet Airlift Continues

A Soviet airlift of military supplies to Hanoi appeared to be continuing Monday. Airport sources in Calcutta, India, said three cargo planes — one Bulgarian and two Soviet — refueled there Sunday and Monday on their way to the Vietnamese capital.

Soviet reconnaissance planes were again spotted flying toward Vietnam, where they are believed to be surveying the China-Vietnam front. And a Soviet destroyer was spotted headed south past Japan, possibly toward waters off Vietnam where several Soviet warships have been cruising.

A Voice of Vietnam radio broadcast monitored here claimed Hanoi's troops had killed more than 2,300 Chinese in three days of fighting beginning Friday at scattered battlefields along the front.

The broadcast said tank-led Chinese infantrymen attacked Vietnamese forces from three directions in the Cam Duong area, south of the provincial capital Lao Cai and about 150 miles northwest of Hanoi.

Cam Duong and Lao Cai, which was reported captured by the Chinese last week, lie in the Red River valley, a strategic water, rail and highway corridor leading to Hanoi. Chinese officials have been quoted as saying, however, they have no plans to try to seize the Vietnamese capital.

The Hanoi broadcast claimed counter-attacking Vietnamese troops killed 1,400 Chinese around Cam Duong, but that fighting was continuing in the area Monday.

At the eastern end of the front, in the coastal province of Quang Ninh, local Vietnamese forces intercepted and killed a large number of Chinese troops west of Mong Cai village and near the Bac Luan bridge over the weekend, the broadcast claimed.

China, whose troops are reported to have penetrated as far as 20 miles inside Vietnam, has issued few reports about the progress of the war. But Japan's Kyodo news service Monday said Peking radio reported that a Chinese battalion had overrun five Vietnamese hilltop position near Dong Dang, north of the town of Lang Son.

Dr. C.L. Kay, executive director of Lubbock Christian College's Center for Business and Economic Education, Monday received a distinguished service award from LCC.

Dr. Harvie Pruitt, LCC president, presented the award during the college's Founders Dinner.

The award is "in recognition of distinguished service to youth, the community, Lubbock Christian College and the American way of life through three decades as an educator and public servant."

Kay has been with LCC since its founding in 1957. He helped secure grants from several foundations for building construction at the college.

In 1973, he founded the Center for Business and Economic Education, which uses seminars and publications to promulgate an understanding of the philosophy of American government.

Kay also is president of the Institute for Business and Economic Education, a nonprofit foundation that promotes business and economic education.

He has received many awards for his work in public affairs and economic education, including a special citation from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower for "outstanding service to the nation in propagation of the American credo," in 1964.

Kay also has received the Lubbock County Junior Bar Association's "Liberty Bell Award," the "Outstanding Alumni Award" by Eastern New Mexico University and nine national awards by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

Two Bills Stalled In Senate

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State senators last week refused to consider several controversial issues, one allowing ex-policemen to carry a pistol and another which would allow property owners to re-plat their property.

But both bills were stalled because they did not receive the 25 votes necessary to consider any legislation in the Senate during these first 60 days of the session.

On the bill which would allow a retired policeman to carry a handgun for five years after his retirement as a safety precaution, Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka voted "yes." The measure failed 22-8.

On a 23-4 vote, the Senate also refused to consider a bill which would have allowed an individual landowner to re-plat his property from residential to commercial status. Currently, state law requires 100 percent agreement among landowners in the plat before such a switch could be made.

On that issue, Short also voted "yes."

Meanwhile, the House handled less controversial legislation, which was approved by overwhelming votes, on such issues as burdensome requirements of the state's egg inspection law, repeal of bonding requirements for school bus drivers.

Last week someone dismantled and made off with part of the McDonald's Golden Arches in the city's Ballard District. On Sunday, someone lifted the fiberglass Big Boy statue in front of the JB's Big Boy Family Restaurant.

Restaurant employees said they saw a man about 17 to 20 years old take the statue off its pedestal and load it on a truck. An assistant manager followed the truck until the driver stopped and put the Big Boy down in the street.

Big Boy is 7 feet tall with red hair, white tee-shirt, white and red bib overalls and a large hamburger in his hand.

Dismissal Of Goldwater Suit Requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department asked a federal judge Monday to dismiss a suit filed by Sen. Barry M. Goldwater and 24 other past and present members of Congress seeking to block President Carter from ending the U.S. defense treaty with Taiwan.

In a 50-page legal brief accompanied by affidavits from State Department officials, the department said ending treaties was a "political question" outside the realm of judicial review.

In addition, the legal document said there is ample precedent for presidents to unilaterally end treaties with foreign nations.

"The treaty function ... is essentially the president's — Congress has the negative power to prevent a treaty from becoming effective, but it is for the president to negotiate, to make, to administer and, defendants submit, to terminate treaties," the department said.

Goldwater and his allies filed the suit Dec. 22 after Carter announced that the United States would recognize China and that the nation's mutual defense pact with Taiwan would end in 1980.

Goldwater contends the president cannot repeal a treaty without congressional consent any more than he can repeal a law.

The suit is pending before U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch.

Justice Department spokesman Terry Adamson said Attorney General Griffin B. Bell had approved the department's legal position before Monday's motion was filed and that Carter had been kept up to date.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said in an affidavit attached to the legal brief that if Gasch issued a court order even temporarily blocking Carter from ending the defense treaty, it "would disrupt the process of normalization of relations with the Peoples Republic of China to the detriment of the national interest of the United States. ...

"It would at a minimum be a serious setback in United States relations with China that could have far-reaching and long-lasting consequences."

Christopher said a court order might prompt China to hold up "the normalization process, including the signing of agreements, the exchange of ambassadors, the establishment of embassies and consulates, the development of trade and all of the manifold relationships involved in the establishment of official ties between the two nations."

Goldwater and his colleagues have at least 10 days to respond to the government before Gasch is likely to schedule a hearing in the dispute.

In an affidavit accompanying the government's position, Arthur W. Rovine, the State Department's assistant legal adviser for treaty affairs, said a president has acted alone in ending a treaty on 12 occasions in the nation's history. Rovine said 13 other times there was some form of congressional action.

Those figures contradict statements in the Goldwater suit. The Arizona Republican argued that, of 48 treaties that have been terminated, only four were ended by presidents, and in all those cases circumstances made it impossible to fulfill obligations of those treaties.

The Justice Department brief said that while the Constitution gives Congress ratification powers, it says nothing about ending treaties.

"By virtue of his broad foreign relations powers under the Constitution, it is manifestly the president who possesses that authority," the department said.

Another Public Service Message to Senior Citizens
...and Their Relatives and Friends

Bankers wants to help you avoid buying insurance you don't need or can't afford

Government Medicare was never meant to cover all the costs of being sick or hurt. So, many Senior Citizens have purchased, or have considered purchasing, private health insurance to help supplement their Medicare benefits.

Unfortunately, a handful of unscrupulous insurance agents have taken advantage of this situation to sell some Senior Citizens far more supplemental health insurance than they actually needed, or could afford!

These cases are by far the exception. The few agents involved represent only a tiny fraction of the 250,000 honest and dedicated insurance agents in our industry.

Still, we here at Bankers Life & Casualty Company are deeply concerned. We feel a responsibility to raise a voice of caution about this problem.

Bankers, like other insurance companies, deplores the actions of anyone who deliberately sells people more insurance than they need or can afford. We are doing everything possible to seek out and eliminate such abuses.

Thus, we urge every Senior Citizen—as well as their relatives and friends—to be on the alert.

WE URGE YOU TO FOLLOW THESE PRECAUTIONS WHEN CONSIDERING THE PURCHASE OF PRIVATE HEALTH INSURANCE TO SUPPLEMENT YOUR MEDICARE COVERAGE:

1. Get good advice BEFORE you act

Medicare is a complex program...and so is health insurance that's designed to help supplement it. If you are not absolutely sure about the benefits you are entitled to under Medicare, or what kinds or amounts of private health insurance you should carry, always seek the help of someone who can give you good advice—a family attorney, an insurance agent you know and trust, your State Insurance Department, or a knowledgeable friend. Your nearby Social Security office can answer questions you may have about your Medicare benefits.

2. Take full advantage of BOTH parts of Medicare

All Senior Citizens should carry both Medicare Hospital Part A—and Medicare Part B, which pays toward medical and surgical bills. These are basic to your security. You should have both before considering any added coverage.

3. Take a close look at your present coverage

If you are on Medicaid, you probably should not consider purchasing any private coverage. If you already carry private health insurance to supplement Medicare, and are not sure that you have good coverage, or think that perhaps you have too much coverage or too many policies...or feel that your insurance premiums may be too high—immediately consult a trusted advisor.

4. Be cautious before you add or drop insurance

If you now carry private health insurance, be extremely cautious if an agent suggests that you drop it in order to buy a different policy...or tells you that you need additional policies on top of those you already have.

5. Don't be "pressured" into buying

Don't do business with any person who tries to "pressure" you into buying Medicare-supplement insurance by claiming that his or her company is somehow connected with the Medicare program...or that you might lose your Medicare benefits if you don't sign up ...or that you must "act now" to get the coverage. No reputable company or agent will ever use such tactics.

AN EDITORIAL:

Education's Seat Is In Arrears

NOT ENTIRELY by coincidence. President Carter is resubmitting to Congress his scheme to give education its own cabinet-level federal department—with more jobs, money and political influence than ever.

Keep in mind that Carter, the first presidential candidate ever endorsed by the National Education Association, is sending this proposal for approval over to Capitol Hill, where more than $5 million was doled by NEA in the '74, '76 and '78 campaigns.

Candidate Carter's rationale for the change invariably focused on efficiency.

When the education lobby pressed for a renewed commitment, Citizen Carter referred to the change in context of reducing federal departments from 1,900 to 200.

THAT APPROACH made sense because educational functions now are widely scattered through the bureaucracy, e.g.:

Agriculture runs school lunch programs; Interior provides schooling for Indians; Defense coordinates instruction of children of troops stationed overseas; and Labor runs programs for migrant laborers' children.

Carter's call for consolidation last time was scuttled because of widespread bureaucratic and political opposition.

As a result, this year's revised proposals involve little more than an upgrading of the HEW's Office of Education.

Most of the approximately 200 additional educational programs administered by more than 40 other departments, agencies and bureaus will remain uncoordinated.

The reorganization plan also was widely touted as a means of reducing HEW's mission and budget, thus making that unwieldy department more manageable and efficient.

BUT THE "E" in HEW accounts for less than 8 percent of the department's $184 billion annual budget. The bottom line, then?

Its principal result will be the creation of a massive new federal department with an annual budget of $13.5 billion—an amount larger than the current yearly budget of five existing departments (State, Justice, Commerce, Interior and Energy).

Also there will be a staff of more than 16,000. That includes 15 new executive level positions created for a secretary, four assistant secretaries and 10 assorted other chieftains. Yearly salaries for executive level posts now range from $47,500 to $66,000.

If the undistinguished performance of the Office of Education in recent years is a reliable indicator, there is one task the new department will not accomplish: that is improving the education of the millions of young people in the country's schools.

AN EDITORIAL:

Don't Forget Your PPI, Dear

PATIENTS ARE a lot smarter than doctors like to think. Few will refuse to take drugs they really need if the relative risks and benefits are described accurately.

But the patient has a right to know what he's being told to swallow—and why.

That is the thoroughly sensible conclusion of the federal Food and Drug Administration, which believes we are entitled to more information than we're presently given about medication prescribed for us.

FDA currently is in the process of expanding the number of drugs and medical devices for which "patient package inserts" will be required.

Such PPI's, as they are known in medical circles, are informational brochures written in simple language and distributed with a drug each time it is dispensed.

PPI'S TYPICALLY include information about the appropriate use of a given drug, correct dosage and duration of use, storage conditions, expected benefits and possible side effects or risks.

Patient package inserts are nothing new, having been required by FDA for up to 10 years for a handful of products ranging from an asthma control aerosol to birth control pills and intrauterine devices.

But as FDA moves to require PPI's for more and more drugs, it is encountering a certain amount of handwringing and foot-dragging from both the medical profession and the pharmaceutical industry.

Critics fret that patients who learn of potentially dangerous or unpleasant side effects from a prescribed drug might be discouraged from taking needed medication. Others suspect patients will start imagining adverse reactions.

Physicians and pharmacists fear some patients will use information in the PPI's to treat themselves with "leftovers."

ADVOCATES OF PPI's contend they will significantly improve patient comprehension of, and compliance with, drug treatment prescribed by doctors.

Patients who are told in writing why it is important to keep taking a drug even after symptoms disappear might well continue their medication more faithfully.

Furthermore, package inserts can help patients distinguish between common, expectable side effects than can be safely ignored and more serious adverse reactions that should be reported promptly.

Finally, PPI's might discourage unscrupulous physicians from indiscriminate prescription of over-used drugs such as antibiotics for common cold, tranquilizers like Valium and medications for certain chronic conditions like hypertension.

In this pill-happy culture where drugs are often consumed as casually as candy, what you don't know can—and may—hurt you.

ART BUCHWALD:

Snow Not Only Thing Knee Deep Up In DC

WASHINGTON—Last Monday, as you probably saw on television, Washington had its biggest snowstorm in 50-odd years. For people who live in Chicago or Dubuque or Helena, Mont., it may not have seemed like much snow.

Would you believe 24 inches? All right, so you're laughing, but two feet of snow in Washington is equal to six feet in Nebraska, particularly if you include the snowdrifts.

It so happens that since we're the capital of the United States we consider ourselves immune from snow and therefore are not prepared for it. We don't have snowmobiles, hardly any four-wheel-drive vehicles, and we always borrow our snow shovels from the guy next door.

The other thing few people have in Washington is a garage, and most of us park our cars on the street. Therefore, when we get clobbered by two feet of snow all the automobiles are stuck and the removal equipment can't get through the streets.

SO YOU'RE probably wondering how your capital coped during the great blizzard of 1979. I am happy to report to all Americans that we came through with flying colors.

The nation's lawmakers, administrators, regulation writers, paper shufflers, lobbyists, generals, lawyers from both the public and private sector, as well as federal coordinators, state coordinators and city coordinators, all dealt with the snow on a unilateral basis without someone else telling them what to do.

Washington proved once and for all that, when put to the test, every man and woman in this town could handle a foot of snow as well as anyone in Minneapolis.

HOW DO I know this? I'll tell you how. At about noon of the big day I received a telephone call from a reporter of The Washington Post who said he was doing a story on how people were coping with the snow in my neighborhood.

I told him I would go out and see and report back to him.

I fought my way to the street and I discovered grown men walking up and down laughing and throwing snowballs at each other while their wives were shoveling the snow off the sidewalks.

This seemed odd to me so I asked one general. "Why is your wife shoveling snow?"

"Because," the general explained, "the new army regulations say I can't get an enlisted man to come out and do it."

When I asked one lady shoveling snow why she was doing it instead of her husband she replied somewhat bitterly, "How else would you celebrate the 'Year of the Woman'?"

I WALKED further on and ran into a friend from the State Department who was building a snowman.

"What's going to happen with China and Vietnam?" I inquired.

"That's a stupid question to ask now," he said angrily. "If I had to think about things like that I'd never get this snowman built."

I walked a few more blocks and saw Mrs. Pettibone with her shovel in her hand. "How's Mr. Pettibone?" I asked.

"He slipped on the ice."

"Did he get hurt?"

"No, but he's in the house right now writing up new regulations for the Office of Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) which will require that forthwith every public sidewalk must have a four-foot railing built alongside for people to grasp in case they slip on the ice."

I GUESS THE most beautiful sight I saw that day was a high official of Amtrak skiing down the street.

"How are the trains running today?" I shouted.

As he whizzed by he yelled happily, "Beats the hell out of me."

I went back and called The Post.

"We're coping," I said excitedly.

"Is there anything you need?"

I thought of a marine's famous line during World War II and replied, "Send us more snow."

Farm Wife Takes Issue With Bergland's Claims

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

This letter is for the benefit of those not involved in agriculture.

Recently, you have been reading statements prepared by the USDA in reference to farmers' income being 25 to 40 percent greater than it was last year. Have you asked a farmer if he is 40 percent better off this year than last? Why?

If Mr. Bergland is referring to $2.40 corn this year as compared to $2.10 corn in 1977, he is correct—the price both years is below the cost of production. If he is referring to 50 to 55 cents cotton as compared to 45 cents cotton in 1977, he is correct—both figures are below the cost of production.

If he is referring to 70 cent feeders as compared to 90 cent, he is also correct. Cattle producers are better off this year than last, but they are showing a profit for the first time in five years. It takes a long time to repay the kinds of losses incurred in agriculture.

If you are wondering why the tractors are in Washington—they must be there. If the agricultural policy of this nation does not change within the next two years, it will drive all family farmers off the farm.

When agriculture is in the hands of a few corporate farms, you can no longer buy your food with only 16 perent of your disposable income. They can fix prices. If farmers lose their buying power, the whole economy suffers. If the foundation of a house crumbles, the rest comes tumbling after.

Agriculture is the foundation of our economy. If this nation does not wake-up at once it will be too late.

Reader Turns To Verse: Conditions Getting Worse

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Across the earth, fire ants are creeping. Over the waters hyacinth is crawling. Through the air, love bugs are flying.

Upon the seas, oil slicks are spreading; and the rivers, we are polluting.

The soil is getting powder dry, and at times, goes flying in the sky.

The deep wells will run dry because there's not that much water falling from the sky.

The water table is getting low and the barges on the Mississippi may have no place to go.

Automation, population is increasing, and employment decreasing.

Our natural resources we are foolishly wasting. For lack of vegetation rotation, the soil is in a state of deterioration.

The pipe lines are aging and deteriorating, and one day they will be leaking and exploding.

Are we not fools, using so much water in family pools? On highways mobile homes are cruising, but care not the excessive gas they are using.

There is more importation than exportation. What will it be for American occupation?

The politician is in dereliction, of promises for election.

Since there is no soil on Mars or Moon, we better change our course, and do it soon.

Muleshoe Man Opts For 'Safer' 55-MPH Controls

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Let's keep the speed limit at 55 m.p.h. I just don't see how people can say it is as safe to drive 70 as 55. If the legal speed was 70, the fast drivers wouldn't stop at 70 anyway.

Anybody knows you can dodge an object going 55 easier than you can at 70. After a car passes 55 it uses more fuel.

I feel much safer on the highway when everybody is driving 55 than when they were driving 70, and I think every safe driver does too. The records show the death rate is considerably lower on the roads, so I think we should keep the 55 and enforce it the best we can.

Post Woman Cites Trouble On Billings From HSCH

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I read the article on the billing problems at the Health Sciences Center and it prompted me to write this letter.

My first baby was born on Feb. 18, 1978, and had respiratory problems and was in the intensive care nursery for 15 days. We were fortunate to have had insurance which helped greatly with the $2,455.34 bill, along with a $712 bill from Health Sciences Center Ambulatory Clinic.

However, I did not receive the first bill until July 1978. Most insurance companies will not accept filings greater than 90 days old, however ours did, thankfully. Then in Sept., 1978, we received a second bill (after the first had been filed with our insurance, it had been paid and our budget arranged to pay the balance) stating other services rendered $382.40.

This required refiling with insurance and rearrangement of our budget again. The final blow was on Feb. 8, 1979 when we received a December statement and Feb. 10, 1979 a January statement for $58 for reading fees on x-rays taken during the hospitalization.

Our payments on the balance after insurance had paid have been prompt, and the total bill, we thought, was paid in full. Now we find another $58.40 is owing.

This aggravating problem seems to be limited to Health Sciences as our total bill was feady the day after dismissal at West Texas Hospital. Our families have been in Methodist and other hospitals in Lubbock and the billing has also been prompt and efficient.

Perhaps, a prompt and severe evaluation of management of Health Sciences is in order.

Mrs. Kellye Cooper, Post

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In checking with The Health Science Center Hospital, we find two problems involved—both of which are being rectified. In this instance, billings were made from both the Hospital and the Med School Complex, the latter primarily for services rendered by doctors attached to that facility. It is true that billings originally were delayed because of attempts to "put a whole show on the road" without the usual warmup period.)

She Says 'Thanks' To Crews Who Kept Streets Safe

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

As one grateful citizen of Lubbock, may I take this opportunity by way of your newspaper to express my appreciation to all the highway and street crews who work sometimes around the clock during the ice and snow storms to keep our roads as safe as possible for travel.

Having never met face to face with the men, or being unable to call one by name, I would like to say a great big thank you.

Lubbockite Sees Threat In Church School Licensing

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Lubbock voters of this state senatorial district have an excellent home example of how big government keeps getting bigger.

Under current Austin debate is a proposal to exempt schools run by religious organizations from state licensing. These schools, already covered by health, fire, building, and criminal codes, insist upon the 500-year-old principle that the church has its own jurisdiction distinct from that of the state.

Our state senator, unfortunately, is one of the leading advocates of trampling down this tradition and injecting the supposedly omni-competent power of the state into church affairs.

Facts and tradition to the contrary notwithstanding, our representative has sided with those who demand that the state have total sovereignty in every area. Continuing this line of reasoning we can expect Austin next to license the mode of religious observance in our churches—in the interest, of course, of the "safety" and "welfare" of all us irresponsible, incompetent citizens who are too dumb to live "correctly."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Taxees In Jam

WITH THE income-tax deadline only a couple of months away, it's time to remind you that the new laws may be streamlined, but you still have to be mighty fast on the deduction to beat those federal revenooers.

Some things never change, and the heart of an IRS man least of all.

They'll tell you that their real goal in life is to simplify your tax burden, that they live for the day when there will be enough allowable deductions to let you have a few bucks left over on April 16.

Don't you believe it.

The government is now so deep in debt it needs every dollar it can squeeze out of any source to keep the deficit only $10 or $15 billion more than Jimmy Carter solemnly swears will be only $29 billion.

TAX BIGGIES in Washington are forever talking about tax reform and about how they realize that some folks get robbed and some folks get loopholes. But they remind us that in an imperfect world there is no such thing as a perfect tax code.

That may or may not be, but the Supreme Court bought it. A couple of months ago the justices refused to hear a constitutional challenge to the "marriage tax," that federal catch-22 where two cannot live more cheaply than one. If they're man and wife—and file a joint return—they pay more than singles. Even singles who live together.

Most of us grumble a lot, but we pay up. A few taxpayers, feeling righteous enough to fight back, have gone as high as the Tax Court—and actually won.

TAKE THE lady with hypoglycemia, a low-blood-sugar condition. Her doctor told her to eat high-quality protein six to eight times a day and to stay off processed foods and carbohydrates.

This shot her annual food bill to $3,100, which was 30 percent higher than that of her friends. So she deducted 30 percent of her grocery bill as a medical expense.

The IRS couldn't swallow that. It insisted her special diet was a "substitute for food normally consumed" and not deductible.

The lady appealed to the Tax Court which ruled that that much protein wasn't your average daily diet and that it did, indeed, qualify as a deductible medical cost.

AND HERE'S one where the IRS had to pay money back—with interest. An accountant, it seems, made a mistake preparing a client's return, a mistake that made an $18,250 difference in what he owed.

The client quickly filed an amended return, but the IRS rejected the correction and forced him to pay the $18,250. A U.S. district court ruled the error was made "in good faith" and so was the corrected return. It ordered the IRS not only to refund the $18,250, but to sweeten it with $6,500 in interest.

When it comes to natural disasters, like damage from hail, ice, snow, etc., the IRS thaws a little. It will accept deductions for casualty loss, but only if you give them proof in the form of pictures, newspaper stories, etc.

You also have to list what the property cost and what it was worth before and after it was damaged. Plus proof that any repairs weren't covered by insurance.

MY FAVORITE tax tale is about the corpse who beat the system. Let's call him Horace.

Seems old Horace didn't hold much with paying taxes and so he gave it up for the last 10 years before his death. When his widow inherited his life insurance, their home, and some money from his state retirement fund, she began to worry that Uncle Sam might try to grab it for back taxes.

But Horace had outfoxed everybody. He hadn't filed a joint return; his life insurance and retirement money passed directly to her, not through his estate; and he hadn't been assessed for delinquent taxes before he died. The IRS couldn't touch him.

Bow your head in respectful memory as you tackle the old 1040 this year, and give Horace his due. Maybe he's the originator of the tax revolt and maybe he's sending us a message from the grave.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. ASK YOUR Love and War man how he accounts for the fact that the first year of marriage is the most dangerous?"

A. That's when couples with the least experience face the most problems, he says.

Q. "Can men who live in the desert learn to smell water?"

A. Either that or things associated with water, yes. In the records are a number of accounts of lost men who followed their noses to wells, springs, creeks, whatever.

A well trained swimmer will cover 25 yards underwater with five or six strokes. But the average swimmer takes 10 to 15 strokes to swim that far underwater.

Weather, Delays In Material, Hamper New Jail Construction

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Poor winter weather has hampered construction of the new Lubbock County jail, and possible future delays in the delivery of detention equipment could further postpone completion of the facility, County Architect Arnold Maeker told the County Commissioners' Court Monday.

Estimating that wintery conditions have stripped "about 30 days off our framework (scdeduled construction)," Maeker said he now hopes the project can be finished in January 1980.

A potential roadblock to this completion date, though, is the delivery of the detention equipment. The architect said electrical and mechanical construction should be finished by March 15 and ideally installation of the detention equipment would begin immediately thereafter. Inactivity until March 20 or later because of slow shipment of the equipment will slow completion of the jail, Maeker said.

Maeker also told the court that an emergency generator had not yet been hooked-up to the existing jail, but should be "within the next 10 days to two weeks."

The commissioners voted at a Feb. 12 meeting to install the emergency generator to the old jail until the new facility is opened. The hook-up, which the court was told would cost $576, was deemed necessary to prevent the possibility of a lighting or elevator failure.

Maeker said Monday that he had hoped the installation would be accomplished during the two weeks between meetings, but county personnel had not found the time.

In a related construction matter, Commissioner Coy Biggs advised the court that an aging water manifold in the basement of the county courthouse may soon need replacement. The manifold could burst and flood the basement of the courthouse following the reversal of water pressure after a fire, he said.

Biggs said he envisions the need during the next few years to remove old boilers and obsolete piping from the courthouse, old jail and county office building in favor of the newly-operating central heating plant. The cost of the scrapping is unknown at this point, Biggs said, but he estimated it could range from about $1500 to nearly $8000.

Earlier Monday the court settled a misunderstanding over private sewage system regulations that may have caused some county residents to pay excessive permit fees.

Lubbock City Health Department officials brought the controversy to light by asking the commissioners for an opinion of the proper charge for county residents provided inspections by the health department under a city-county contract.

Under the existing contract which will expire in December 1979, city health officials are authorized to perform private sewage system inspections and percolation tests prior to granting a permit for construction in both the city and county. Within city limits, the health department is legally entitled to charge a $45 flat rate, health department director Dr. Marjorie Orr said, regardless of the number of percolation tests performed.

The existing contract states that permit charges in the county will be $10 for the inspection and $12.50 for each percolation test.

In responding to Dr. Orr's question about the difference in the rates, County Judge Rod Shaw said he had received a recent complaint from a county resident informing him that the health department charged the $45 fee despite having conducted no percolation test.

The commissioners and the health department officials did not resolve whether county residents erroneously charged the $45 fee would receive refunds, but Dr. Orr said the city Health Department now had a clearer understanding of its responsibilities.

In another matter, the commissioners voted to approve a request that the County Juvenile Probation Department increase its foster care rates to maintain competitiveness with state appropriations.

LLoyd Watts, county juvenile probation officer, told the court that the Texas Department of Human Resources in January increased its allotments for foster family-foster home care to $198 per month.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Undernourished Infant Responds To Treatment

An infant, referred to Monday only as "Baby Boy Number One," was reportedly responding to treatment after being hospitalized Saturday for malnutrition and a possible injury to the cheek.

The baby, thought to be about 2½ months old, was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital about 5 p.m. Saturday by a child welfare worker.

Ann Ruten, case worker with the Texas Department of Human Resources, said the infant's parents left the child with a babysitter at 5 p.m. Friday, saying they would pick him up about 1 a.m. Saturday.

They didn't.

The sitter, who notified authorities about 4 p.m. Saturday, said the infant was left with only a bottle of milk, and that was spoiled. Police at the scene said the infant appeared undernourished and possibly was suffering from a cigarette burn on the right cheek.

A hospital spokesman said today the baby weighed about 6 pounds. A pediatrician said the infant should weigh slightly more than 11 pounds.

City Unemployment Declines

Unemployment in the Lubbock area dipped significantly last month, the Texas Employment Commission, reported today.

The commission estimated unemployment at mid-January to be 3,600, or 3.5 percent of the Lubbock labor force. This represents a decline from 4,140, or 3.9 percent of the total work force, as of mid-December, 1978.

According to the commission, the drop is contrary to the usual pattern for this time of year, and well below the 4.2 percent unemployment rate recorded in January 1978.

This month's employment gain occurred in spite of regular seasonal layoffs in non-agricultural wage and salary employment, TEC officials said. Approximately 1,920 workers in that category were cut back between mid-December and mid-January. The commission attributed almost one-half of the total loss to a decline in retail trade after Christmas.

World Day Of Prayer To Be Observed

"Spiritual Growth" is the theme of World Day of Prayer this year. Church Women United in Lubbock will observe the day Friday at St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, 2807 42nd St., beginning at 9:30 a.m.

All church women in the Lubbock area are invited to attend the celebration, which will begin with registration and fellowship, followed by a film, "As Strong As The Land." A worship service will begin at 10:30.

A children's service will also be held.

The celebration will be preceeded by a prayer breakfast from 7:15-8:30 a.m. at Colonial Kitchen. For reservations to the breakfast, call 799-4110 or 795-7918.

The evening group of Church Women United will celebrate World Day of Prayer Sunday, March 4, with a prayer breakfast from 8 to 9 a.m. at Mt. Vernon United Methodist Church. For reservations to this event, call 744-8618.

Members of Church Women United are encouraged to attend the conference on family violence being held the same day as the celebration. This organization of church women is one of the sponsors of the conference.

World Day of Prayer dates back to 1887, and this year women in 140 countries and 33 islands will unite in prayer. Each year, women in a different nation are asked to write the World Day of Prayer service, based on themes chosen by the International Committee for World Day of Prayer. Church Women United is the officially-recognized sponsor of this celebration in the United States. The service was written by students in the Pan-African Leadership Course for Women at Mindolo Ecumenical Foundation in Kitwe, Zambia.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a young man wrote a sad letter about how he had a vasectomy because his fiancee said she didn't want children and unless he had the surgery she wouldn't marry him.

Two months following the vasectomy, she ran off and married someone else. The man was in deep anguish and turned to you for help. You told him that some vasectomies can be reversed but warned that all men who opt for this procedure should consider it "final."

Please tell him now that remarkable progress in the field of reversing vasectomy has been made due to a procedure called microsurgery. Dr. Herman J. Silber of St. Louis is a pioneer in this field.

Only a few years ago the chances for reversal were about 30 percent. With microsurgery a 25-power magnifying device is used, also an almost invisible thread which stitches together the vas deferens which carries the sperm. Chances of successful reconstruction are now at least 90 percent.

One day in the hospital is usually required, during which time ice-packs are applied to ward off swelling. No sports, showers or sex are permitted for several days, depending on the rate of recovery. The sperm count may remain low for a few months but it does build up gradually and the once-vasectomized male may father a child — which is usually great news to his second wife. — Your Friend And M.D. From Nashville

Dear Friend: Thanks for a letter that will be good news not only to some second wives, but some first wives as well.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a charter bus driver. Often I drive a college basketball team to play games at other colleges. A publicity man goes along with us.

Our coach is in fine spirits after a victory, but he's not fit to live with when we lose. The publicity man has an arrangement with the home-town paper. He must phone in the score and the highlights. When we win on the road the coach is delighted to have him do this, but he wants absolutely no phoning when we lose. The publicity man says he's got to phone to keep in the good graces of the sports editor.

Last night we lost. Everybody was on my bus except the publicity man. He was in one of those glass phone booths, calling in the results. The coach yelled, "All aboard, driver. Let's go."

"How about Henry?" I asked. The coach shouted back, "To heck with him. Let's go!"

I decided to wait. It was my bus — at least for the time being. But the coach kept yelling, "I'm in charge!"

He probably will complain to my boss at the bus company and I might get into trouble. What would you advise in a situation like this? — The Man In The Middle

Dear Middleman: You did the right thing. And now you should get something in writing from your boss indicating that you are the top authority in case a similar situation comes up. That coach must be suffering from the Woody Hayes syndrome — poor fellow. And I say this with compassion rather than scorn.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married in an exquisite ivory satin wedding gown. It has the traditional covered buttons at the sleeves and a heart-shaped neckline.

It's such a beautiful dress and we paid so much for it, it's a shame to wear it only once. What do you think about wearing it to formal parties instead of letting it rot in the attic? — Practical Polly

Dear Polly: Sorry, dear — bridal gowns are for weddings. If you wear that dress at parties in order to get your money's worth you'll look like a bride who is trying to get her money's worth.

It needn't "rot in the attic." Have it professionally packed and put it away for your daughter.

Dear Ann: Our son has a good job, a checking account, a savings account, a nice car, a motorcycle, plenty of clothes, spends money on girls and has three expensive habits — cigarettes, booze and pot.

He eats three meals a day, lives in our spare room, gets maid service, including laundry, uses our linens, bathroom tissue, toothpaste, deodorant, and all other toilet articles. He makes long distance calls on our phone.

The boy never pays us a penny. We don't think it's right. Do many parents have this problem? — Ashamed

Dear Ashamed: Only the ones who are foolish enough to put up with such shameless freeloading.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I would like your opinion on "gastric stapling" for losing weight. I am a 28-year-old woman. I weigh 217 pounds and am 5 feet, 2 inches tall. When I joined a weight-reduction class two years ago I weighed 250. I lost 46 pounds at that time, but in the past couple of months I have gained about 12 of them back. I don't seem to be able to control my eating habits. — D.C.

The decision to recommend surgery for weight reduction, whether intestinal bypass or the newer "stomach stapling" procedure, is based on strict necessities. You are overweight, yet I doubt you are a candidate for surgery. The tip-off is that you could lose 46 pounds with the weight-reduction class. That tells me that, properly motivated, you can reduce by restricting calories. That is always the best way. You mention bad eating habits. You were apparently on your way to changing those habits while you were losing 46 pounds. The question, then, is why you lost the motivation to change?

I have referred to the stapling procedure before. In it, a portion of the stomach is literally stapled shut, reducing its size and capacity for food. Sounds simple, but there can be problems. Reflux (upward spilling) of stomach juices into the gullet has been reported, so have perforations. Others have lost rapidly, only to become voracious milk and protein supplement drinkers afterward, regaining lost weight that way.

For some, surgery may be the only answer, but I doubt you are in that small category. The staple gun is seldom the ultimate answer to weak will at the dining table. Behavior modification group therapy may be helpful.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can a hand splint help a stroke victim? Can it make the damaged hand come back? — Mrs. P.W.

It may not improve use of the hand, but it will help prevent contracture — permanent fisting of the hand. The splint need not be tight, just enough to allow the hand to rest in an opened position. I have seen such splints made at home with stiff cardboard and masking tape. For other aspects of post-stroke living see the booklet, "Stroke — Hope and Help." For a copy, send 35 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Have you heard of high altitude edema? Is it serious? — Mrs. O.E.

It is a puffiness (usually of the face and legs) experienced by some mountain climbers who are exposed to elevations of a mile or more. It is a normal temporary reaction of the body to oxygen-thin air. It disappears on return to normal elevations. People who live in such high altitudes don't have it because their systems have adjusted. One doctor who practices in an area where mountain backpacking is popular notes that the phenomenon is more marked if the person has used salt before a trip. Women seem more likely to have the problem.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What is "hip pocket sciatica"? Can you explain what the doctor means when he says this? — M.E.

It's been called many things — "wallet sciatica" and, more recently, "credit card sciatica." It is leg pain from pressure on the sciatic nerve, which lies in the area where fat wallets are kept (in the hip pocket). Some cases of sciatica are "cured" by putting fat wallets into front pockets or jacket pockets during long rides.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it best to take iron supplements with meals? — G.A.

It is better absorbed then and is less irritating to the stomach. Iron absorption takes place later in the small intestine.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it true that intelligent people need less sleep than less intelligent people? — Mrs. H.P.

Not true. At least one study I know of indicates that average adults sleep a third of their lives away, no matter how intelligent they are. People of intelligence may lean toward occupations that require greater mental activity. This might interfere with sleep. Depression can be a factor in shortened sleeping spans. The average college president needs as much minimum sleep as the laborer.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Why are people with back problems such as slipped discs not sent to chiropractors, who seem to help in a short period of time and at less expense? Isn't this preferred over surgery or traction which takes so long and is so expensive? — Mrs. A.D.

An orthopedic surgeon and a chiropractor do different types of treatment. The chiropractor uses therapy essentially to relieve pain and keep a person comfortable with a back problem. Often, the problem is so severe that disc surgery is necessary to prevent weakness, numbness, or partial paralysis. If pain is bearable and examination shows no nerve complications, treatment by a skilled therapist is satisfactory. The dividing line between the need for surgery and the need for physical therapy is often thin. The orthopedic surgeon by virtue of his special training is equipped to say when it must be crossed.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Has homosexuality been cured by psychiatry? — B.C.

Qualified psychotherapy has been successful if the person desires this change. A more common use of psychiatry is to alleviate the guilt feelings some homosexuals experience.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for the booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

It had been a long, hard session of bridge, but expert South finally saw light at the end of the tunnel when he picked up his hand. The light became a brilliant flash when he heard North open the bidding.

South thought about a grand slam but wanted to get the rubber over with, so he contented himself with a mere six.

He won the club with dummy's ace and then made a most unusual play. He ruffed dummy's low club!

Just a waste of time? Hardly! It resulted in his making a slam that would have been lost without that seemingly silly waste of time.

South's next play was the ace of trumps. West showed out. Now South cashed his queen of spades and started diamonds.

East ruffed the second diamond and at this point you can see the value of that little club play.

East was caught in an end play. A trump lead would let South get to dummy for two diamond discards on the ace-king of spades.

A club or spade lead would be equally hopeless and South was on his way home with game, slam and rubber in the bank.

Yesterday, we said we would respond one notrump to partner's spade opening. The second question was, "What do we do if partner rebids two diamonds?"

We bid two spades. This is not a second bid, but merely shows we have at least as many spades as diamonds.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I am so thrilled that I can help someone by writing to you.

I read in your column about a lady who wanted to know how she could whiten her refrigerator.

Our refrigerator was yellowed terribly and I tried everything, until one day my husband was cleaning his car with a mild rubbing compound, so he came in and tried it on our refrigerator and all the yellow came off.

This really worked the best of anything I've tried. I hope this will help others, and perhaps be a new hint for Heloise. — M.G.

Well, apparently several of you dears out there have used this method of cleaning your refrigerators with much success, as we've heard from several of you.

Thanks for filling us in. — Heloise

This hint for cleaning bathtub and fixtures is especially for people like me who suffer from arthritis.

The thought of getting down on my knees to clean the tub was very painful, so I purchased a child's play mop, and after wetting the tub, poured in my cleanser and began "mopping."

I rinsed the tub with a plastic bottle, then all I had to do was wipe the fixtures and edge of the tub. — Mary L.

Next, lay a piece of thin plastic, such as comes on garments from the cleaners, where the applique is to be placed.

I read your column every week and would like to offer one of my ideas.

I like a large, soft dishcloth and they are hard to find in the stores.

Then you have a nice, big, soft cloth. — Lola Jordan

In colder weather, I always dreaded the thought of putting "cold" baby lotion on my baby after bathing her.

Well, one day she knocked the plastic lotion bottle into the tub while bathing, so I let her play with it.

Now I put the lotion into the tub each time I bathe her. — Laura Bodden

DEAR HELOISE:

When baking cookies in large amounts, cut two sheets of aluminum foil the size of your cookie sheet. Place the cookies on each piece of foil.

Place foil and cookies on the cookie sheet and bake as usual.

When they are finished, slide the foil off and slide the other sheet of foil on, again placing in the oven. The cookie sheet is already hot, so you may have to cut down on the baking time by 2 or 3 minutes.

While these are baking, you can remove the baked cookies from the foil and put more cookies on it and have them ready to slip onto the cookie sheet as soon as the other batch is done.

This cuts the baking time in half. — J. Messick

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON—MICHAEL REED

LOS ANGELES–On the plane from New York to Los Angeles sit two reigning queens of daytime television serials, Mary Stuart (Jo Vincente on "Search For Tomorrow") and Eileen Fulton (Lisa Colman on "As the World Turns").

The two actresses are in the first-class section, of course, but coach passengers recognize them and stop for a brief chat and autographs.

"I've watched you on the show for over 20 years," says one admirer of Mary's. "Why can't you tell me whether Travis and Liza are going to get together?"

"You've cried wolf once too often," chastises a fan of Eileen's in regard to her screen character. "Now no one's going to believe you when you holler that that tart Tina is after your husband."

Eileen and Mary tape a segment of the "Everyday" talk-variety show. They both sing a song, chat with host Stephanie Edwards and are than whisked back to the airport for a return flight to Manhattan.

"I'm getting ready for a Soap Opera Festival in Dallas at the end of March," says Eileen while zipping her knee-length leather boots. "I'm getting ready to sleep," says Mary, who explains that the hotel lost her reservation last night and she stayed in half of the Henry Kissinger suite, "the half without a bed or a shower," Mary adds glumly.

One is tempted to quip that serial queens need their soap.

SHORT TAKES: RICHARD BACKUS, who was a standout on the defunct "For Richer, For Poorer" as Jason Saxton, has joined the cast of "Another World" as Ted Bancroft, Brian's son. The character was seen briefly a year ago, but with Backus in the driver's seat, Ted will undoubtedly stick around Bay City for a longer spell this time around.

PLAUDITS to "Ryan's Hope" for the photo-montage sequences of Maeve and Annie's family homestead in Ireland. The pics were shot by director Lela Swift during a weekend jaunt to Blarney sod. Together with the haunting background music of "Going Home," sung by Helen Gallagher (Maeve), the montage sequences were a splendid evocation of a place and a time that is all too rarely considered "soap opera material." The tune "Going Home" was written by Carey Gold with lyrics by "RH" co-creator and writer Claire Labine. What a lovely daytime combination.

THE MAILBAG:

On "General Hospital," Laura is Rick and Lesley's adopted daughter. Who are her real parents?–E.J., Ellendale, Tenn.

Laura is Lesley's natural daughter from an affair Lesley had with a married man in her youth. There was a convoluted "baby switch" at the time of Laura's birth and Lesley was told her child had died. Two years ago Les discovered that Laura was alive and living with the Vining family. After numerous battles, mother and daughter and stepfather have been somewhat tensely reunited.

Please tell the answers to the following questions regarding "As the World Turns." Where is Tom? Where is Natalie? Where is Kevin? Where did Nick go? This is may favorite soap.–A.R., Erie, Pa.

It may be your favorite but you apparently haven't been paying much attention. Tom's in Switzerland. Natalie skipped for parts unknown. And Kevin and Nick are six feet under. If you're wondering what happened to the actors who played those characters, they're in the casting lines at nighttime and movie studios.

(Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune in Tomorrow," 230 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

A CASUAL LOOK — Pierre Cardin has created this double-breasted suit for versatile wear by today's stylish man. Worn as shown, the long-roll lapel jacket with pushed-back sleeves has a completely casual appearance. However, when teamed with a dress shirt and tie, the ensemble is appropriate wear for office or even the most formal warm weather event. The silk-like blend fabric is a pale wheat color.

ANTON IN CLIFFHANGERS — Actress Susan Anton is shown portraying a news photographer during the taping of NBC's Cliffhangers mini-series recently in Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto)

'Cliffhangers' Begins Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Susan Anton says filming "Cliffhangers" can be as perilous as the dangers her character faces each week.

The singer-actress stars in "Stop Susan Williams," one of three parts of the NBC "Cliffhangers" series that premieres Tuesday night. Each segment is like an old movie serial, one that leaves the heroine or hero on the verge of disaster each week.

The stories are purposely farfetched, the cliches hoary, the villains sinister, and the perils seemingly deadly.

Miss Anton, a statuesque blonde whom NBC hopes to develop into a major star, plays a news photographer out to uncover an international conspiracy that engineered the murder of her brother.

In other chapters, Geoffrey Scott plays an Old West marshal who discovers a mysterious underground city in "The Secret Empire," and Michael Nouri is the vampire in "The Curse of Dracula."

By the way, don't worry when they say this is Chapter 3 or Chapter 6. You haven't missed anything — it's designed to look like the stories have already started.

In the opening episode, Miss Anton is perched precariously on a fourth-floor ledge.

"They wanted to build two more stories but I said, 'No way,' even though I was strapped to the building," she says. She does tumble off the ledge, but NBC called in stuntwoman Kitty O'Neil for that.

"Every day is a cliffhanger for me — to see if I can get through what the writers have written," Miss Anton says. "Lions and snakes, and the other day my boat sank too early. It had too much weight on it. Suddenly the boat started sinking and they yelled, 'Save the camera!' I was second on the list.

"The other day I had to fall into a lion's den," Miss Anton continues. "The first lion was too ferocious. The second lion had something wrong with his mane. Then they got a good lion, and it got a better job. It got a commercial and its agent came and took it away.

"I haven't been hurt. They're so careful in planning the situations. But when they used a real cobra, I was petrified."

She recently completed her first movie, "Goldengirl," in which she plays an Olympic hopeful who is built into a super athlete with drugs and an extraordinary promotion campaign. The purpose is to turn her medals into solid cash.

In a sense, Miss Anton is NBC's "Goldengirl." When Fred Silverman was at ABC, he signed her for that network and put her into a summer variety show with country singer Mel Tillis. After Silverman became NBC's president, she was one of the first performers he signed.

As soon as she completes her 10 episodes of "Stop Susan Williams," she will start work on four variety specials for NBC.

"I know Fred Silverman is very much involved in every move I make," she says. "It's nice to have someone like that looking after my career. I'm not just being thrown out there. I'm being protected every step of the way.

"In 'Cliffhangers,' I'm not entirely responsible for the whole series. There are other stars. I'm sandwiched in a comfortable position. The onus is not on me to pull it off.

"Yet, I'm being exposed to millions of viewers to build up a following," she says. "Which hopefully will tie into my variety show."

ABC's "20-20" newsmagazine will include a segment in its Tuesday night edition on Howard Hughes, the late billionaire recluse. The report, by Geraldo Rivera, contains new information "concerning the strange, final years of Howard Hughes," ABC News says.

Rivera calls Hughes "the billionaire businessman who became a billionaire drug addict," and says the recluse was literally a prisoner of the people who ran his Summa Corp. during the last six years of his life.

"20-20" airs at 9 p.m. CST.

Oscar Odds Even On 'Heaven,' 'Hunter'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — With nine Academy Award nominations each, "The Deer Hunter" and "Heaven Can Wait" have been made the favorites by oddsmaker Bob Martin, who says it's an even-money bet that either film will win the Oscar for best picture.

Martin, who works out the sports betting line for the Union Plaza Hotel in the downtown Casino Center, made Robert DeNiro the even-money favorite for best actor winner for his role in "The Deer Hunter," a corrosive view of the effects of the Vietnam war on the United States. Ingrid Bergman was made a 6-5 favorite to capture the best actress Oscar for her role in "Autumn Sonata."

The odds were posted Friday and drew heavy betting over the weekend, sports book director Johnny Quinn said Monday.

Martin set a 1-1 line both for "The Deer Hunter" and "Heaven Can Wait," a whimsical story about a pro football player who returns to Earth after his death. "Coming Home," another film based on Vietnam, was listed in second place with 2-1 odds, while "Midnight Express" was third with 6-1 odds. "An Unmarried Woman" was in last place at 10-1.

Quinn said betting on the awards, to be presented April 9, would close on April 2.

I am a farmers wife and do plenty of hard work keeping my garden and my yard and all my canning besides helping my husband in the fields when he needs me.

But that still doesn't do for you what Pat Walker's does.

I had gotten to the point where I did't care and didn't want to see anyone. I was so nervous and nagged my family all the time. Then my hairdresser told me about Pat Walker's.

My husband encourages me all the way.

So give Pat Walker's a Chance! Don't wait another day and you can start feeling as good as I do. You'll be glad you did it too!

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I own 9,500 shares of stock in a medium-size company. I just received the company's annual report and proxy solicitation for the annual stockholders' meeting. It is obvious that the three top officers are hurting the company by way of exorbitant salaries, deferred remuneration and other benefits.

If this continues, there will never be any dividends paid. Nor will the stock ever rise above its present low level. Isn't there anything I and other stockholders can do to prevent this from continuing?

A. You can start by going to that stockholders' meeting and raising a little cain. At every such meeting, the company's chief executive officer asks for stockholder questions — and then braces for the onslaught.

Very often, there are few or no questions. But, if things are as you say they are at that company, I should think there will be a number of unhappy stockholders present — all primed and ready for action.

I don't claim that hard questions and comments at a stockholders' meeting will cause a company to make drastic changes. But I have seen that kind of action bring about moderate changes. I feel, very strongly, that stockholders should make their feelings known.

I assume you will vote against management's proposals or, at least, not vote in favor of those proposals at the meeting. Stockholders who don't attend can do the same thing, when they fill out their "proxies."

Unfortunately, on the election of members of the board of directors you will probably have to vote for management's nominees, or not vote at all. "Corporate democracy" is an imperfect thing.

If enough stockholders are unhappy, you can band together and start a proxy fight — in an attempt to elect new directors at next year's annual meeting.

That, of course, would be an expensive and time-consuming process. It leaves investors with two basic choices: Either go along with management or sell their stock. But it doesn't prevent making some noises at the annual meeting.

Q. I am a 14-year-old boy, with a great interest in the stock market. My father says I probably do not have enough money to invest. I plan to spend $100 to buy a stock that costs $4.50 a share. Will a stockbroker handle such a small amount? If so, what would the broker's commission be?

A. Sorry, young feller, most brokerage houses just won't take an order that small. A few will. But I can't name individual brokerage firms. You'll just have to spend some time on the telephone, calling brokers.

And all but a handful of brokers levy a minimum commission of $25.

Your other problem is that, at age 14, you are not an adult and, therefore, can't own stock in your own name. The way around that is to have the stock registered in "gift to minors" form — in your father's or mother's name, as custodian for you. That bends the rules but it's no secret that it's done all the time.

Stock Market Action Slow

NEW YORK (AP) — Gambling issues and a sprinkling of merger candidates chalked up gains while the rest of the stock market continued to languish in quiet trading Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 2.16 to 821.12 after taking an 11.27-point drop last Thursday and Friday.

The daily count on the New York Stock Exchange showed about four losers for every three issues that gained ground.

Buying interest surged in the gambling stocks as New Jersey authorities voted to give Resorts International a permanent license for its casino in Atlantic City.

Some traders cashed in profits in the group toward the close, but most of the stocks still finished with healthy gains for the day.

Unarco Industries, which posted higher quarterly earnings, picked up 5/8 to 11¼.

The Amex market value index rose .81 to 163.36.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index closed at 124.90, down .14.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues at Consolidated Tape close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Less Plowing Earns Award For A&M Professor-Researcher

AMARILLO (Special) — Twenty years of research on the High Plains of Texas has introduced area farmers to the value of minimum tillage in conserving precious water and costly energy. That work has brought national honor to a scientist with the Texas Agicultural Experiment Station here.

Dr. Allen F. Wiese, researcher and professor of weed science at the Texas A &M University Agricultural Reasearch and Extension Center here, was named America's 1978 No-Tillage Educator of the Year. The award is presented annually by "No-Till Farmer" magazine.

"The biggest challenge facing Texas agriculture," Wiese says, "is maximizing the use of water." He said this applies both to dryland farmers, who must effectively use 18 inches of annual rainfall common to the area, and to irrigators, who have seen energy costs for pumping water skyrocket in the past three years.

To meet this challege, Wiese and other TAMU and U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers started investigating minimum tillage techniques in 1958. A big problem in adopting minimum tillage techniques was in weed control. It was in this area that Wiese made major contributions.

The breakthrough came in 1968 when the researchers discovered that the key to conserving soil moisture was the amount of stubble left on the soil surface.

Proper weed control made it possible to leave stubble on the ground which helped conserve moisture by allowing better use of rainfall. Irrigated land produced enough stubble to make minimum tillage successful. Previous dryland experiments had not.

The research also showed that a minimum tillage system of wheat-fallow-sorghum raised sorghum yields 1,000 pounds per acre and wheat yields three bushels per acre.

Although area farmers haven't hastened to adopt the system, Wiese feels broader acceptance is imminent. He sees a trend among growers to reduce the number of trips across the fields.

"The philosophy of minimum tillage is starting to influence them and that's the first step" in adopting a new practice, he said.

The No-Till Educator award is the second national recognition for Weise this month. Earlier the Weed Science Society of America awarded him the honor of "Fellow" at the annual meeting of the 1500-member society in San Francisco.

Wiese previously has received the Distinguished Agricultural Chemicals Award from the West Texas Agricultural Chemical Institute.

A native of Minnesota, he grew up on a general farm. He received B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Minnesota in 1949, 1951 and 1953. He joined the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station here in 1953.

In addition to his no-tillage work, areas to study by Wiese have been control of field bindweed, Johnsongrass and other perennial weeds; annual weed control in cotton, sorghum, wheat, soybeans, castor and sugar beets; weed competition; chemical fallow; and herbicide residues in soil and water.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A FEDERAL RULEMAKING HEARING on natural gas curtailment is scheduled at 9 a.m. March 9 in the Holiday Inn at Amarillo.

The all-day hearing will be conducted by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, according to the High Plains Gas Consumer Group, headquartered at Guymon, Okla.

Chet Nash, spokesman for the High Plains group, said the new association was instrumental in obtaining the favorable location by petitioning that field hearings be added to the hearings already underway in Washington.

Allen Harris, legal counsel, made the request on the group's behalf, urging hearings be held in the Ogallala basin area.

"THIS WILL GIVE US BETTER participation from the affected producers of irrigated feed grains and fed beef, which the six-state area (in the Ogallala basin) produces in great quantities," said Harris.

The six states are Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, Colorado, New Mexico and Nebraska.

The High Plains Gas Consumer group consists of cattle feedlot, irrigation and grain drying interests in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. It also includes others in related industries, including implement dealers, fertilizer dealers, crop sprayers, sellers of irrigation pumping engines, feed and seed dealers, herbicide and pesticide dealers, and water well chemical dealers.

The group has sent Harris to Washington for hearings of the Department of Energy (DOE) since Jan. 10. Many industrial customers have attorneys at the hearings urging restrictions on agricultural use, Harris said.

"AT THESE DOE HEARINGS, HIGH PLAINS has been making a careful legal record against any rulemaking which would force incremental pricing or curtailment on irrigation farmers, grain drying, and feedlots," Harris said.

"Incremental pricing means tripling of natural gas utility bills if the price of No. 2 fuel oil is set as the gas price."

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, formerly the Federal Power Commission, has been holding most of the hearings and the Economic Regulatory Administration also has held one hearing. Both the FERC and the ERA are part of the new Department of Energy.

"The High Plains group has been represented by Harris at all the hearings," Nash said, "and we are the only intervenor participating in each hearing building a record for this area.

"THE LEGAL RECORD ON BEHALF OF THESE agricultural customers is very important because whatever the final rules are, favorable or unfavorable, they are going to end up in federal court," Nash said.

Reporting to the High Plains group after the recent Washington hearings, Harris said the new legislation is a double-edged sword.

"It could provide protection for High Plains agriculture through proper rules and regulations," he said, "but the wrong rules could really hurt us, especially on limitation of volumes, curtailment of expansion, and incremental pricing."

HARRIS, WHO SERVED AS ASSISTANT Oklahoma attorney general for agricultural gas customers from 1975 to 1979, will testify at the Amarillo hearing. The hearing, Nash said, will focus on some new proposals and some that already are being debated through the last few hearings.

"The High Plains group feels we must see the gas regulations fight through to the end." Nash said. "If we don't win it, our feedlots and our irrigation economy will end overnight and our cities will go back to what they were 20 years ago."

Nash said the High Plains organization also is monitoring other related threats to agricultural energy supplies. He can be reached by telephone at (405) 338-8511 or by mail at Post Office Drawer 1406, Guymon, Okla. 73942.

Cattle Futures Close Mixed In Trading

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 52 points lower to two points higher on 28,217 cars Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Distant August was down the most with only October ticking higher. The market tumbled 112 in April before rallying 12 in October for a time.

The belief that the market has topped out led to aggressive profit-taking at the start with weakness in pork pits also a factor. Record high cash cattle and beef brought support.

There have been 738 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 98 to 99 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a record high. Cash cattle were steady to up $2 with the best top $68.25 per hundredweight, which is a new record high. Omaha's top was $67.65.

Slaughter was 123,000 head. The major terminals are expecting 15,200 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed 105 higher to 10 lower on 4,494 contracts. May was up the most after March climbed 145. Only January was lower after August fell 87.

New season's highs were set in March through August and October. Aggressive buying followed sharply higher cash cattle and record high beef.

Outset selling spilled over from live cattle futures and also reflected profittaking after new highs Friday.

Cash feeder cattle were up $10 to off $1 with the best top $131 per hundredweight at San Antonio. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 2,000 head.

Hog futures closed 60 to 145 lower led by April after breaking the limit of 150. July and February also fell the limit early. Sales totaled 6,253 lots.

Prices were lower from the start on heavy hog runs and sharply lower prices coupled with limit level lower belly futures and profit-taking after new highs Friday. Traders also noted fears of expanded hog slaughter as weather moderates.

There have been 12 deliveries thus far. Wholesale hams were off 3 cents to up 1 cent at 86 to 90 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off $2.50 to up 25 cents with the best top $55.50 per hundredweight.

Kill was 306,000 head. About 27,500 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed the daily limit level of 200 lower with sellers over across the board. Volume was estimated at 2,316 cars with hundreds of unsold offerings at the limit.

Prices were lower from the start and fell to two-week lows, off 5½ cents from last week's highs. Selling stemmed from storage inputs last week and the possibility of more this week.

In a peaceful gathering Monday, about 20 members of the American Agriculture Movement met here with Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. officials to discuss PCG recommendations presented before the House Agriculture Committee earlier this month in Washington, D. C..

"The purpose of this gathering," said Mel Cherry of Lorenzo, chairman of the AAM group, "is not to criticize, but to fully understand what the resolutions mean and to comment on some of our beliefs."

In summarizing PCG resolutions, Don Johnson, executive vice president, said the main concerns were for a 10 percent mandatory set-aside and a 15 percent paid voluntary diversion, a hike in the target price to 60 cents, and for the administration to make the Commodity Credit Corporation loan program more attractive to cotton producers.

While most AAM members commended the PCG for the proposals, Jim McHam of Whiteface, said the main area of disagreement was the target price policy. He contended that cotton producers have never received deficiency payments because the price is an average and includes places such as California and the Rio Grande Valley where the cotton is harvested earlier and sold when the market is good.

"As long as we are trying to improve the present farm bill which includes target price policy," Johnson argued, "we should want to increase that price.

"If prices stay where they are or get lower," he warned, "there will be target price payments made."

Concerning set-asides, the AAM members said they wanted 20-25 percent mandatory set-asides without government payments.

Both groups agreed the set-aside program is the best answer. Set-asides do not cost the government any money, Johnson noted, whereas totsl deficiency payments could be high.

"In our testimony, we tried to point out the need for the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the House Agriculture Committee to seriously consider program recommendations for other commodities," Lloyd Cline of Lamesa, PCG president, said. "If there is producer dissatisfaction among other groups, that will encourage more to switch to cotton which will directly hurt cotton producers."

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures declined sharply today on the Chicago Board of Trade in a wave of speculative selling linked to a drop in silver prices.

Several factors encouraged the 11 1/4 to 27 1/2-cent plunge, analysts said. Silver futures, which locked today at prices 20 cents an ounce below Friday's levels, are viewed by some speculators as an index of inflation and an indicator of future export demand for U.S. produce.

Analysts said the market, after a long uptrend, was due for a technical correction, and commission houses sold heavily as prices began to decline.

Violence, Vandalism In Schools Easing

NEW YORK (AP) — The decade-long epidemic of vandalism and violence that has infected many school systems appears to be easing in some of the nation's biggest cities.

However, federal studies have shown that attacks against teachers and students and malicious damage to school property have spread and worsened in suburban and rural schools.

No one contends that school crime in big cities is no longer a serious social problem in urban America.

Crime Leveling Off

But in some large school systems, an Associated Press survey found that the number of reported crimes has been leveling off or declining in the past several years.

—In Boston, where massive violence marked a 1974 school desegregation order, school officials report a steady decrease in school crime since then.

—In Detroit, Chief of Security Frank Blount reports a "significant drop in incidents of school violence," and credits the improvement to a better attitude among students and improved security measures.

—In Chicago, Board of Education figures show a steady decline in the number of assaults against teachers over the past four years. In the 1978 school year there were 1,042 such assaults, compared with 1,628 in 1975. In the first three months of the current year, there have been 240 assaults reported.

Teacher Assaults Down

—In Miami, a school spokeswoman, Georgia Slack, reports that "Vandalism is up but assaults are down." Assaults against teachers in the first six months of the current year totaled 165, compared with 180 the comparable period last year. Similarly, there were 455 assaults against students so far this year, down from 462 a year ago.

—In Kansas City, administrators had no figures on personal attacks against students or teachers, but said vandalism has decreased each year since 1968. A decade ago, vandalism cost the school system $470,000, while last year the figure was $176,000.

Not all big cities have that kind of good news to report. In particular, New York and Los Angeles rreport that gang activity has worsened the siege atmosphere in school corridors.

In Los Angeles, assaults totaled 894 in the 1978 school year, up 6.68 percent from 838 a year earlier. And a court order ending segregation in the city's schools this past fall has contributed to a further increase in violence, according to Richard Green, chief of security of the Los Angeles Unified School District.

And in New York City, reported crimes rose by 16.3 percent in the first five months of the current school year compared with the same period last year. Robbery and weapons possession was up 60 percent.

Some contend that statistics on school violence are self-serving and unreliable.

Assault Figures Doubted

Harriet O'Donnell, president of the Chicago region PTA, for instance, agrees that violence in that city's schools is down, but doubts the accuracy of the city's assault figures.

"Students and faculty are discouraged from reporting violence. School administrators are concerned with their statistical image," she says.

Nonetheless, recent reports from these large city school systems are consistent with a federal study of school violence a year ago which concluded that school crime has been leveling off since the mid-1970s, and is now showing "some improvement in urban areas." But suburban school crime, especially vandalism, continues to rise.

The federal study, "Violent Schools — Safe Schools" by the National Institute of Education, found that cities have had more time and experience than the suburbs to marshal their defenses against school violence and vandalism.

"Security devices are most heavily concentrated in urban schools, even though the risks of property crimes can be as great in suburban schools as in the cities. In terms of relative risk, suburban schools seem less well protected than urban schools," the report stated.

In at least one city, students tired of school violence are trying to tackle the fear and apathy that often keeps them from reporting violence. In one Cincinnati high school, students have a program called Operation RATS — "Report All Things Swiftly."

In Chicago, the number of vandalized windows has declined sharply over the past three years because shatter-proof glass was installed. And since last November, the school system experimented with turning off all lights at night in 76 schools to deter break-ins. As a result there were only five break-ins. The city has now ordered lights out at all 650 Chicago schools at night, which should cut down on burglaries and save an estimated $1.1 million in electricity.

Stricter and more meaningful discipline has helped in some cities.

One reason Kansas City schools have cut vandalism is a policy of always prosecuting vandalism cases, according to the city's school safety specialist.

Math Plan Pioneered By New Deal Schools

Among the giants who have been pioneers in educational innovations, little New Deal Independent School District also is being featured at a nationwide conference that opens in Lubbock today.

While educators from Baltimore explain a new approach to basic skills and teachers from Minneapolis show off Vocational Reading Power, a New Deal team will demonstrate a special mathematics program for grades two through five.

The program, which New Deal Elementary School implemented in cooperation with the Region XVII Education Service Center, is called a Systems Approach to Individualized Instruction.

About 20 Texas school programs and 15 from other parts of the nation are being featured at the "Promises in Education '79" conference today and Wednesday in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Originates In Oregon

The project at New Deal, just north of Lubbock, is based on a program that originated in the Josephine County School District in Grants Pass, Ore.

The program consists of a heirarchy of computational skills, broken down into small packets called learning modules. A student completes a module and then takes a post-test. If the youngster scores 90 percent or better, indicating mastery of that skill, the pupil moves on to the next module.

A daily record of skills mastered is kept on each student. A recall test is given every month to determine whether the student has retained the skills and to provide a review of skills.

New Deal has used the program for two years. Education Service Center evaluators say the project "has shown to be extremely flexible and equally effective between individualized teaching and departmentalized teaching strategies."

The conference features programs from across Texas that have been commended by the Texas Education Agency and are part of the Texas Diffusion Network, which tries to get schools to share innovative ideas.

Also, several programs from the National Diffusion Network, which have been commended by the U.S. Office of Education, are being demonstrated.

The Texas programs, ranging from arts and other academic subjects to health and guidance, are from San Marcos, Midland, Houston, Port Arthur, Bay City, Huntsville, Alief, Austin, Longview, Waco, Dallas, Holladay, Spring, LaVega, Paris and New Deal.

The national programs are from New Jersey, Kansas, Illinois, North Dakota, Washington, Pennsyvania, California, Alabama, Florida, Connecticut, Maryland, Utah and Minnesota. — JEFF SOUTH

Eclipse Viewers Awed By Event

By Associated Press

Skywatchers by the thousands shared the awe of watching the sun suddenly go black on Monday in one of nature's spectacles that won't be repeated in North America until the 21st Century.

Animals milled nervously and confused roosters crowed twice as day turned into night in a swath 175 miles wide across the northwestern United States and into Canada.

Street lights controlled by sensors flicked on in Spokane and Olympia, Wash., and elsewhere as the moon swept between Earth and the bright orange disk of the sun in the last total eclipse to be visible on this continent until the year 2017.

A house cat in Williston, N.D. grew fitful, then got "all hunched up and wouldn't go anywhere until the sun came out," his mistress said.

Eclipse watchers and solar groupies at Williston gathered in snowsuits and parkas in 15-degree temperatures, which fell 6 degrees more when the sun blinked.

"Hooray for the moon!" was the champagne toast among 24 eclipse-chasers high above the Columbia River gorge aboard a Boeing 727 jetliner chartered by the Pacific Science Center in Seattle.

Moon Shadow Lands

The moon's shadow made landfall shortly after 8 a.m. (local time) at Agate Beach, Ore., in its eastward march across the sky, arcing as far east as North Dakota before swinging north into Canada.

At Olympia, the Washington state capitol, the clouds broke 10 minutes before totality.

The curious broke out homemade pinhole projectors and makeshift viewers as scientists set up more sophisticated telescopes or conducted experiments in chartered aircraft above the clouds.

But a mattress of clouds several thousand feet thick covered most of the Pacific coast and many had to settle for a televised version.

Sky conditions at Williston may not have been perfect but were "pretty darned close," said Steve Suess, 36, a solar physicist with the U.S. Department of Commerce from Boulder, Colo.

Red Prominence Seen

"The thing that was so impressive was on the lower left of the sun, a really red prominence," Suess said. "You can't see that on the sun very often during a solar eclipse."

Less impressed was Kathy Waidman, 20, a waitress in a Williston steak house.

"I never thought people would travel that far just to see the sun go out," she said.

At Goldendale, Wash., near the Columbia River, more than 1,000 persons had gathered, some from as far away as New England and California.

A cloud bank moved in at the crucial moment of totality, but a muffled cry of awe and joy rippled over the hillside at the small public observatory as the last tiny sliver of sun fell behind the passing moon.

Clouds Part For Darkness

From Butte, Mont., and eastward, pessimistic last-minute weather forecasts proved wrong. The clouds parted over Butte about four minutes before the eclipse began and remained parted throughout.

In Helena, a moderately thick morning overcast broke into scattered clouds that only occasionally interfered. Only thin, scattered clouds were reported in the eastern part of Montana.

The lawn on the Capitol Campus in Olympia was crowded with state workers and kids with makeshift viewers.

Israelis Slate Cabinet Debate On Invitation

by Sadat's refusal to attend.

"The issue is between the two countries, and not individuals," Begin said, adding, "Sadat is the man who takes most of the decisions."

The treaty talks are snagged over how the document should be linked to subsequent negotiations on the Palestinian question and on Israel's claim that the treaty invalidates Egypt's earlier defense pacts with the Arab states.

Since the Moslem revolution in Iran, which severed Israel from its major source of oil, Israel has given top priority to the issues of future oil supplies and U.S. financial help in redeploying Israeli forces evacuating Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

In a separate development, the Jordanian government announced in Amman it has decided to call for a special meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss Israel's establishment of settlements in occupied Arab lands.

Jordan's minister for foreign affairs, Hassan Ibrahim, summoned Arab and foreign ambassadors to his office to explain the decision, "and the grave consequences of Israeli's aggressive and expansionist policy in occupied territories," a statement said.

Fatality

A pair of brown cotton gloves was tucked in a pocket of the overcoat.

The overcoat had a Bernard's Menswear of Denver, Colo., tag in it.

Police are asking anyone with information about the man's identity to call the desk sergeant at 762-6411.

Aid Ambulance attendants transported the body to Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral Home.

Conference

"Programs selected for this kind of demonstration typify the many programs which are developed by teachers and administrators in one school district but can be adapted to so many other classrooms, once people learn about them.

"We hope conferences of this type will help speed that exchange of working ideas."

Sharing ideas at such conferences saves time and money, Brockette added.

"It is an encouraging development because it enables school officials to take a first hand look at a workable idea, find out precisely how it was developed, and then adapt it to their home district needs."

Sino Thrust Frustated, Viets Say

more than 16,000 Chinese thus far. Intelligence sources here consider the figure inflated. The Vietnamese have not reported their own casualties, and the Chinese have published no casualty figures.

Bangkok analysts believe the Chinese are planning — or may have already begun — a major push in the frontier area, possibly around the town of Lang Son, 80 miles north of Hanoi.

Japan's Kyodo news service quoted Chinese sources as saying Peking wants to "punish" Vietnam by destroying at least one Vietnamese army division and military bases and artillery emplacements near the border.

But various sources agree that the Vietnamese have not brought up their regular units in any number to the frontier and may be holding them back to protect Hanoi and other strategic areas.

One Bangkok source said the Chinese moved one division Monday into Quang Ninh province, east of Lang Son, and the Vietnamese reinforced their border command with two battalions in the Lang Son area.

Teng 'Welcomes' U.N. Proposals

Teng, in an interview Monday, said he "wholeheartedly welcomed" U.N. Security Council proposals calling for a withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, Kyodo reported.

Teng added, "We would not make that a bargaining condition," apparently meaning China might withdraw its forces from Vietnam even if Vietnam does not pull out of Cambodia, Kyodo reported.

Comparing the Vietnam operation with China's 33-day border war with India in 1962, Teng said he hoped the current war would end in about 10 days, "or a few days more because Vietnam is stronger than India."

As in 1962, when the Chinese ended the fighting but held on to 14,000 square miles of disputed border lands, Peking officials have said they will retain disputed territory now held by Vietnam, reportedly only about 38 square miles.

A Chinese official who asked not to be identified indicated to American reporters in Peking Monday that China's leaders are not concerned about the growing U.S. criticism of the invasion.

"We don't force our views on anyone else," he said. Referring to the United States, he added, "I think we have more things in common than not in common." The reporters were accompanying U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal on his current visit to Peking.

In Indochina's other war, in Cambodia, guerrillas loyal to the toppled government of Pol Pot claimed to have killed at least 264 Vietnamese soldiers in fighting last week.

Special Telescope Gives Tech Group Good Eclipse View

By JEFFREY McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

While many Lubbock and South Plains residents used a variety of homemade gadgests — pinhole projectors, exposed film and the like — to view Monday's solar eclipse, a small group of Texas Tech students probably had the best view in town of the event, the last of its kind during this century over North America.

Although it was only a partial solar eclipse — the moon covering about 60 per cent of the surface of the sun — it attracted the attention of astronomers, physics majors and photography buffs.

Although the event caused no great stir in Lubbock, many curious spectators briefly took to the outdoors to catch a glimpse. A group of Tech students went indoors for an even better view, through a projected image outside the physics laboratory in the Science Building.

Keith Shank, a junior physics major at Tech, began monitoring the eclipse when the moon's path came between the earth and the sun about 9:08 a.m. Using a series of mirrors and an instrument called a cassigrain telescope, Shank was able to project the image onto a translucent plastic screen taped to the door of the research laboratory.

The eclipse lasted for about an hour as shadows shifted around and the clear West Texas skies darkened somewhat from the effects.

As Shank busily snapped pictures of the eclipse through a camera with a zoom lens, others employed less complicated methods to view one of the universe's most awesome sights.

Shank took pictures about every nine minutes to preserve the moon's path across the sun.

"I imagine a lot of people in Lubbock didn't notice a thing," he said. "And that is strange because the sun governs our lives."

He added that last October's partial eclipse was clearer than this one and that he could see the craters on the moon. Upper level atmospheric disturbance caused a wavering effect on the projected image this morning.

New Motive Bared In Hoffa Mystery

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A government informer says former Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa plotted to kill union rival Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano shortly before Hoffa's disappearance in 1975, according to a published report Monday.

Informer Charles Allen, a professed hired killer, says Provenzano found about the plot beforehand and the plan fizzled, the Philadelphia Bulletin said, quoting unidentified sources.

Investigators questioning Allen believe the alleged incident could have provided a strong motive for the presumed murder of Hoffa, the newspaper said. Government sources said Allen never learned the identities of the men hired to kill. Provenzano, the Bulletin reported.

Friendly Couple Offers Man Ride — Robs Him

Police late Monday were looking for a man and woman who robbed a 44-year-old Hillsboro man Sunday after he accepted a ride with them.

Toni Valdez said he was leaving a pool hall on 13th Street when the couple asked if he wanted a lift. Reports indicate the couple drove the man to the 400 block of Oak Avenue, where the woman pulled a blue-steel pistol and ordered him out of the vehicle.

Valdez said the pair ordered him to put his hands on top of the car, then took his billfold containing $25. The bandits reportedly took Valdez' boot off looking for more cash, but the victim broke away, ran to a private residence and called police.

Burglars continued to strike local residents and businesses, making off with thousands of dollars in property.

Charlie Brewer complained that burglars broke into a business at 2124 Main St. early Monday and took $3,000 worth of office equipment, including five electric typewriters and five calculators.

Sam McWhorter, supervisor for Resthaven Memorial Park at 5740 19th St., said thieves took $3,000 worth of tools from his workshop sometime between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Joel Beard of 2020 16th St., rear, suffered more than $1,000 in losses when burglars struck his residence between 8:30 p.m. and 2:20 a.m. Monday.

He said he came home to discover his door window broken out and property, including a stereo, guns and television set, missing.

Approximately $700 in tools and cash was taken from Harold Wayne Massey's garage at 3650 Ave. H sometime between noon Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday.

An undetermined amount of cash and checks is missing from a church at 3714 44th St., the Rev. Elton Wyatt, pastor, reported. Wyatt said the cash and checks were taken from an offering plate on a desk and from a bank bag in a filing cabinet sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

Michael Rance Rhodes, owner of Papa Vincenzo Pizza and Italian Sandwiches at 2314 50th St., said his business lost $700 in cash when someone stole a money bag from a back office about 11 p.m. Sunday.

Richard Ybarra, principal of Jackson Elementary School at 201 Vernon Ave., said thieves removed $500 worth of playground equipment from the school sometime between 4 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday. The stolen property included basketballs, volleyballs, soccer balls and croquet sets.

J.C. Grammer of 4108 63rd St. said someone pulled off the grill from his 1972 Chevrolet sometime between 10:15 p.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday. He estimated the loss at $300.

A 31-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was assaulted at her home about 9:20 p.m. Sunday by a man she formerly lived with.

She said she was confronted by the 29-year-old suspect at her sister's home in the 1100-block of Avenue V. She said she was grabbed, knocked to the ground and kicked several times after she bit the suspect on the finger.

The assailant was last seen running in an alley on Avenue V.

District Hoping New Lubbock High Courses Will Draw Students

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

To draw more students, Lubbock High School next year will offer Chinese, guitar and 34 other new courses, and send advanced pupils on field trips to such places as Europe, Washington, D.C., and Valley Forge — at a cost of $260,000.

Those are some of the "magnet" features to be included in the Lubbock Exemplary Academic Program, nicknamed LEAP, designed for the city's under-enrolled downtown high school.

The Lubbock Independent School District board of trustees Monday unanimously approved the lineup of offerings. And some board members said they hope eventually to give Lubbock High an even bigger drawing card — a swimming pool.

Most of the features approved for the centrally located campus are unique to the city. They include exotic courses (from Russian language and disco dancing to film production and second-year physics), as well as special opportunities (students will be allowed to "test out" of grammar courses so they can take more electives).

Enrollment at Lubbock High will be open to students from throughout the city. The district will provide bus service for transfer students, Superintendent Ed Irons said.

Irons said LEAP will offer students a "broad opportunity to experience many different subjects, as well as the chance "to go in-depth" in particular areas. The Lubbock High program especially will appeal to youngsters at the very top of their class — a group Irons admits has been neglected at times.

The Lubbock High magnet is intended in part to attract more students. Lubbock High currently enrolls about 1,200 pupils, compared with more than 2,000 at Coronado and Monterey, the city's other Class AAAA high schools.

Irons warned Lubbock High parents not to get their hopes up for an immediate enrollment jump. "I think if we get 75 students (to transfer to LEAP) the first year, we'll be lucky," he said.

Based on experience in other cities — such as Tulsa, Okla., which has a high school similar to LEAP — it may take three years for the Lubbock High program to draw a substantial number of transfers, Irons said.

However, he noted he had been surprised by the strong attraction of Lubbock's existing magnet schools, Iles Elementary and Dunbar-Struggs High, which were instituted last fall for desegregation purposes. It's possible Lubbock High also may achieve immediate success, Irons said:

With school board approval now secured, Irons said his staff will finish designing a brochure on LEAP. The brochure will be distributed to all Lubbock students who will be in high school next year and to their parents, he said.

Counselors and teachers also will do some recruiting for the Lubbock High program, Irons said.

Students will have to be screened to get into some LEAP courses, he added. Applicants will be considered according to "several criteria," such as grades, academic potential, attitude, achievement test scores and recommendations from their teachers, counselor and principal, Irons said.

In designing LEAP, the school district tried not to harm other schools' academics, Irons said.

In particular, the district was "very careful not to infringe on courses offered at Dunbar," where the school system's work-study and certain music-art classes are concentrated.

"We do not want in any way to detract from the Dunbar program," Irons said. That's why, for example, Irons scratched photography from the proposed LEAP menu — because photography is part of commercial art at Dunbar-Struggs.

Also, Irons said he did not want to curtail courses at other schools just to offer them as magnets at Lubbock High. As it turns out, only three classes — animal physiology, geology and marine science — will have to be discontinued elsewhere. Those courses are being offered this year on a pilot basis anyway, Irons said.

The Lubbock High program was designed this month by "central office administrators, directors, consultants and the advisory committee (of parents) appointed by the superintendent," Irons told the school board in a memo.

The program will have four components, he said.

First, there would be courses for regular students. These "would remain essentially the same as for students throughout the school district, except that in English language arts, the 10th, 11th and 12th grades would be restructured to allow students to test out of two quarters of grammar and thereby be free to enroll in other elective language arts courses," Irons said.

Secondly, LEAP will offer courses for academically talented students. "Honors classes would be provided in all academic areas such as math, language arts, social studies and science," Irons said.

Many of the honors courses would be new to the district. Also as part of this component, "a more formalized procedure for testing for advanced college placement and for college credit would be provided," Irons said.

The third component would be arrangements for students planning careers in engineering, law or medicine. The district will arrange the new and old courses into sequences that will prepare students for college work in these areas.

Huston Foresees Bright Future

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Geoff Huston is the enternal optimist.

Huston wouldn't have one foot in the grave even if he were on his death bed —he'd have one foot out. And if someone sliced off his ears in a knife fight—he'd probably say something about not having to buy earmuffs anymore.

Yeah, Geoff Huston is what Norman Vincent Peall wishes we all were.

That's why Huston isn't approaching Thursday night's second-round of the Southwest Conference's matchup with Texas A&M as if it could be his last as a collegian, which it might. The way he tells it, the 7 p.m. contest in Houston's Summitt is only the first of many to come for he and his teammates.

"I don't look at any of them like it might be my last (game for Texas Tech)," said Huston, rather confidently.

"I go into every game with a positive attitude, knowing that we will win. If I didn't do that, then I'd have already lost half the battle before it started."

Yes, he's a man with the power of positive thinking.

Even if the Raiders should get bopped somewhere down the line at the three-day tournament, Huston isn't really so sure it will be the team's final game this year. There's always that pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, you see.

"There's still the NIT," Huston said. "But we know to go anywhere (either as an at-large team to the the NCAA playoffs or the NIT in New York), we've got to win the tournament or place second. Although the conference is stronger than it has ever been, the NIT probably won't take the third-place finisher. But then you never know."

When Huston takes the floor against the Aggies, he will be the only member of the Raider team (besides the coaching staff), that played on the 1976 squad that defeated A&M to win the SWC tournament. That was a team led by all-SWC performer and Tech's all-time leading scorer Rick Bulloch.

Asked where the rest of the fellas were that he was recruited with as freshman, Huston grinned and said: "I guess they've all graduated...that or died."

That win over the Aggies back in '76 was the only one that particular year Tech posted against A&M. Since then, however, Huston has placed on three Raider teams that have managed to post six wins against the Aggies, against only one defeat. And that defeat came this season.

Huston pointed to "tradition" and, yes, a little luck as the two main ingredients to Tech's dominance of A&M during his career.

"We just enjoy playing games against them," said Huston. "I wouldn't say they've ever choked, it's just everyone gets ready to play them. They've had some good teams. But I just think we've been a little better at times."

This year, Tech lost to A&M down in Aggieland by five points, but came back a month later to avenge the defeat, 67-63. Tech enters the game with an 18-9 season mark, while the Aggies, a team which finished third in the conference race behind co-leaders Texas and Arakansas, are 22-7.

Despite the success Tech has had over the years against the Aggies, Huston isn't licking his chops at another shot at A&M.

If the decision on which team, either A&M or Houston, the Raiders would meet in the second-round of the playoffs was left up to the Brooklyn, N.Y. native, Huston said he'd pick the Cougars.

"I know personally," said ," I'd rather play Houston. They beat us bad down there (103-89), so we owe them one."

Because Houston is in the upper bracket and Tech the lower, the only way the Raiders and Cougars could meet is in the finals. And to do that, UH must get past Baylor in the first round and then defeat Texas Friday night. Meanwhile, the winner of the Tech-A&M game would have to defeat the Razorbacks in the semi-finals.

"Either way," continued Huston, "We've got to play the best teams and win if we're going to go anywhere. So, I guess, it really doesn't matter who we play first."

To defeat A&M, Huston said the Raiders must "hustle and concentrate throughout the game. We've also got to play very good defense and try and hold their big man (6-11 freshman Rudy Woods) down."

SAME OLD SPARKY— Sparky Lyle, formerly of the New York Yankees and now the latest hope of the Texas Rangers, reported to camp early at Pompano Beach, FLA. Sparky quickly showed that even if his body isn't in top shape at least his sense of humor is still intact. See related story below. (AP Laserphoto)

Baseballers Host HSU

The Texas Tech baseball team will open it's 1979 home season with a double header against Hardin Simmons University today at the Red Raider diamond on the Tech campus. The first game begins at 1:30 p.m.

After six games on the road, the Raiders will be glad for a chance to play before a Tech crowd. And after the team snatched a pair of victories from this same HSU team last week, the Raiders will be waiting for the Cowboys with open arms.

Pitchers Gary Moyer and James Miller picked up the wins over Hardin Simmons in Abilene last week when Tech came away with a 5-1 and 7-5 victories. Moyer should start one of today's games and Robert Bryant (1-0) the other, although it's doubtful that the Tech coaches plan to have either pitcher go the distance.

The Raiders had won their first four games this season but dropped a pair in San Antonio on Sunday and will take a 4+2 slate into today's action.

Leftfielder Larry Selby leads the team in extra base hits with three, all doubles, and is currently swinging the bat at a 375 clip. Kenny Cogdell and Rusty Laughlin, both third basemen, are hitting at an even 364 pace but it's first baseman Craig Noonan who leads the team with a whopping 574 average. However Noonan has only been at bat 7 times.

Other early season statistics show John Keller, centerfielder, as the leading RBI man with five and second baseman Johnny Vestal leading in the home run department with two.

Pitcher James Miller has been big in the bull pen with a win and a save to his credit in two appearances. Moyer has started two games for the Raiders and won them both even though his ERA is an inflated 6.7.

Sparky Reports Early

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Reliever Sparky Lyle has made his earliest appearance at a spring training camp in 12 major league seasons.

The new Texas Ranger, obtained in an off-season trade with the World Champion New York Yankees, said he heard at a writers' banquet that he was supposed to report in late February.

"Now, I hear I really wasn't due until March 1," said Lyle. "There's no doubt I prefer March 1, but I'm here so I'll just stay here."

Lyle, 34, immediately pitched a round of batting practice.

"Sparky came up and said he was going to have to hurt sooner or later, so he'd just go ahead and get his first batting practice over on the first day," said Ranger Manager Pat Corrales. "He went the normal 10 minutes, then came over and asked me if we had a place for him to throw up."

Lyle weighed a beefy 218 pounds.

"This is light for me," said Lyle. "With the Yankees I was usually around 227-228. But I don't do a thing in the winter, not one thing. I'd never pick up a baseball so I gain weight."

Lyle added "When I go to work down here I lose that weight pretty quickly because I tend to sweat a lot. I'm usually down to 205 by the time the season starts. Then I lose even more. Once, I went from 231 to 188."

He said he was a slow starter in the spring when it comes to retiring batters.

"I think I ought to explain to everybody my feelings on these spring games," said Lyle. "Once they start, you'll see me at my worst. You'll swear I'll never get another batter out. I figured it up once and my earned run average for spring training was over 12 points."

He lifetime ERA is 2.55.

Sonny Gets Money

DALLAS (AP) —Athletic Director Russ Potts gave Southern Methodist basketball Coach Sonny Allen a larger recruiting budget, permission to hire an assistant coach and an ultimatum Monday—win.

"I said that I have been concerned about the SMU basketball situation," Potts said of a weekend meeting with Allen. "I do not envision SMU competing for sixth place in the Southwest Conference every year and I don't believe that this will be the case."

Potts said he has confidence Allen could turn the SMU program around.

"He has proven his ability by winning a national championship at Old Dominion," said Potts.

Potts said the fact that professional basketball will likely come to Dallas in 1980 or 1981 makes it "critical that SMU be at a competitive level at that time."

"Coach Allen has been given an expanded budget to accomplish" the goals of becoming competitive," said Potts. "His recruiting budget has been increased, he will be able to add another coach to his staff, and there will be a greater emphasis on basketball next year with an increase in advertising and promotion."

Allen will be on the second year of a five-year contract next season. Asked what he would consider a "competitive" season next year, Potts said an 8-0 start would solve a lot of problems.

Potts said later he was "joking" about an 8-0 start.

"The kind of a situation I envision would be like the Texas Tech at Texas game a few weeks ago on televison," said Potts. "I want us to still be in the race with a month to go next year."

Potts said SMU would like to play several games a year in the under-construction Reunion Arena.

"I'd like to play Texas AM in there and draw 15,000 or 16,000 people for a $150,000 payday," said Potts. "I believe in my heart we can do that."

SMU averaged 6,000 fans per game and Potts said it was "critical" that the basketball program make money.

Allen has had losing seasons in three of his four years at SMU. The Mustangs were knocked out of the postseason tournament Saturday in Houston.

Potts said SMU's big recruiting splash in football should help the basketball recruiting.

"If may have a positive effect," said Potts.

Allen wasn't present at the press conference. He was on a recruiting trip.

Chaps Lose

DALLAS(Special)——The Lubbock Christian College Chaparrals lost a tough overtime decision to Texas Wesleyan College here Monday night 64-62 but the Chaps did manage to salvage a little pride. Because LCC had lost to this same team only a few days earlier by a whopping 35 points.

And the Chaps also discovered that they picked up a victory when an earlier loss to Paul Quinn was awarded to LCC since Paul Quinn had been using an ineligible player. So LCC went 1-1 on Monday

Slaton Girls Defend State AA Crown

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Many sports competitors have their own proven formulas for winning in whatever facet of sports they are involved with. For some it might be the rigorous training of eating raw eggs for breakfast as a daily routine, or maybe it's packing a pocketfull of rabbit feet before entering a contest.

However, for Cathy Wilson——girl's basketball coach at Slaton High School, winning just comes natural. And that's no brag, just fact!

The former Wayland Baptist Flying Queen cager is presently in her fourth year of coaching and each of those have been successful state basketball play-off years.

In her first two years of coaching she took the Nazareth Swifts to the state playoffs and came back with the championship titles each time. Both were unprecidented feats in the small community before her coaching debut.

And if that wasn't enough, she gave Slaton the lift they were looking for last year and brought home another state championship trophy, and this year could prove to be no exception to the rule.

The Tigers have already gotten their first taste of state playoff action this season after they won the Class AA district race and boosted their season mark to 31-2. As a result they will now advance into the bi-district competition against the Merkel Badgers (6-AA district champion and 29-1 for the year) at the Scurry County Coliseum in Snyder at 7:30 tonight.

Providing Slaton can defeat Merkel in the bidistrict clash they will then meet one of the winners of the Dimmitt-Lockney or Spearman-Henrietta games in the Class AA state playoffs.

The Tigers defeated Spearman in the opening round of the state playoffs last year and then edged out the Dimmitt Bobcats in the finals of the tourney.

"We are very team oriented this year and have never been a one player squad," said Wilson. "Everyone takes pride in the offensive play as well as the defensive, they make both as equally effective, and that's what makes this team so good."

The starters for the Slaton team include; 5-6 jr. Cynthia Robinson with an 11.6 average (tops on the team), 5-7 sr. Debbie Bednarz (11.2), 5-4 jr. Esoleta Whaley (9.8), 5-5 sr. Linda Louis (8.7) and 5-5 sr. Chris Kennedy with a 6.6 shooting average.

Wilson uses only two main coaching philosophies with her players and both appear to be getting the job done, judging from her playoff record.

"The first important thing I try to drive into my players is the fundamentals of basketball," she said. "You can't really be a well rounded team and be a successful one unless you've acquired these skills and use them all the time. And it's those basics that will become even more important now that we are in the playoffs.

"The last thing I stress to my girls is to take pride in themselves and to set some goals and achieve them," she added. "And it's not something that always has to be taught because most of my players already have those competitive ideals."

Coach Wilson holds no negative attitudes about how the Tigers will fare in the state playoffs which, will begin for Slaton tonight.

"I think we can win the state championship for the second year in a row because we've got some super dedicated young athletes that want to win as badly as I do," she said. "If we don't win I think I'll kill myself," she added jokingly.

No one could possibly take her seriously on that last comment even if they didn't know she was kidding, because who would possibly want to put an end to the a coaching record like Coach Wilson's.

Blalock Captures Orange Blossom

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Jane Blalock, playing the wind-blown Pasadena Golf Club course as if she owned it, shot a 70 Monday for a tournament-record 205 total that gave her a six-stroke victory in the $75,000 LPGA Orange Blossom Classic.

Blalock's 11-under-par total helped her become only the second player to win the tournament two straight years in its 26-year history. Kathy Whitworth won the event in 1968, '69 and '70.

Her score bested Amy Alcott's 9-under-par total in 1975 on the par 72, 6,109-yard Pasadena Golf Club course. Blalock picked up the first prize of $11,250.

Blalock, beginning the day-late final round with a three-stroke lead, birdied three of the first five holes and had the event wrapped up after second-place Silvia Bertolaccini double-bogied the 10th hole. Bertolaccini finished in a tie for fifth.

"I really got out of the gate today. That helped a lot," Blalock said. "My hands started getting numb and cold. The wind was cold and damp."

Sandra Post shot a 70 Monday to finish second at 211, earning $7,500. JoAnne Carner shot a final-round 68 for a total of 213 that tied her with Pat Bradley for third and the $5,400 third prize.

The final round was rescheduled for Monday after heavy rains and winds prevented play Sunday.

Bertolaccini, who began the day in second place after a record-tying performance in Saturday's second round, shot a 76 to finish tied for fifth at 214 with Laura Baugh, Judy Rankin and Alice Miller.

Bertolaccini tied a Ladies Professional Golf Association record Saturday with a 29 on the front nine. On the 10th hole Monday, she tried to hit her second shot out of the edge of a water trap, couldn't, and had to take a drop.

Post moved into second place, after an eagle on the ninth hole.

Blalock, who won a two-stroke victory here last year with a four-under score, said, "Every golf course has a personality, and I can relate to this golf course.

"It has a great variety of holes. I think I used every club in my bag during the tournament. We get along well," she said.

"Jane is a good wind player and has too much experience, so realistically I was playing for second place today," Post said.

"I was six behind going into today, and still six behind even after the eagle," she said. "Second place isn't too painful."

Blalock said she will probably skip this week's $100,000 Bent Tree Ladies' Classic in nearby Sarasota. Nancy Lopez, who sat out this tournament because of tendinitis, plans to play at Sarasota.

TWC Ends LCC Season

to finish the season with a 14-16 mark, it's best record since 1970-71.

The lead changed hands seven times in the first half before TWU stretched it's lead to 37-31 at the half. But the Chaps had cut that down to five with 10:46 to play in the game and then LCC reeled off three unanswered buckets. A Keith Gardner tip in with 8:13 remaining finally put LCC ahead 54-53.

Bruce Carver was called for a technical foul moments later apd Mike Rae, who scored 27 points for TWC, hit the free throw to tie things up. And that was how the score wound up at the end of regulation–tied at 58. The Chaps did get a chance to win it outright when Lierman went to the line to shoot a 1-1 with nine seconds left, but he couldn't connect.

With the score knotted at 62 and 1:15 remaining in OT, the Chaps committed a turnover. From there Wesleyan worked the clock down to 11 ticks before calling a timeout. Rae connected on a jump shot from just inside the free throw line with four seconds left to give TWU the win.

Keith Gardner led the Chaps with 20 points.

Reggie Still Complaining

OAKLAND (AP) — Before heading for the New York Yankees' spring training camp, Reggie Jackson declared, "Yankee management is not pro-Reggie Jackson."

The outfielder, interviewed at his Oakland home by columnist Ron Bergman of the Oakland Tribune, indicated he'd like to have a man-to-man talk with Yankee owner George Steinbrenner.

"I don't know a lot about what George Steinbrenner does. I thought I knew him, but I don't know him," Jackson said. "Yankee management is not pro-Reggie Jackson. I can't even talk to Steinbrenner. The only time I can get Steinbrenner to talk to me is when he reads something in the paper.

"I've got to get some publicity to get him to talk to me. Steinbrenner hasn't talked to me all winter."

Jackson was suspended by Manager Billy Martin for five days last summer for trying to bunt when he had orders to swing. Soon after he returned to the team, the Yankees fired Martin and named Bob Lemon manager.

The Yankees caught the Boston Red Sox and won the American League East title in a playoff. They repeated as AL champs by beating Kansas City in the championship series, with Jackson driving in six runs, and beat Los Angeles in the World Series with the help of Jackson's eight RBI.

Jackson's most significant contribution in the Series, however, came in the fourth game when he stuck a hip into the path of a throw to prevent a doubleplay.

"I should have gotten the Most Valuable Player for that play," Jackson said. "I don't get credit for any quick-thinking acts in general."

Summers Heads 3-AA All-District

Mark Summers, Dimmitt's 6-5 senior center, headed the list of all-district choices in district 3-AA. Summers was named the district MVP and two of his Bobcat teammates, Dennis Veals and Randy Roberts were also honored.

"He'll (Summers) will play college ball somewhere," said Dimmitt coach Kenneth Cleveland. "For a big man he can handle the ball well and he's an excellent perimiter shooter."

Dimmitt captured the 3-AA crown and advanced all the wy to the regional final before losing to Seminole in 46-45. And the Bobcats did this with a team composed of 10 newcomers on a roster of 13 players. The Cats finished second in state last year but lost three all-state players and most of their starters from that team.

"I'm awful proud of this year's bunch though," said Cleveland. "They worked awful hard with what they had."

Celtic's Auerbach Has High Hopes On The 'Bird'

BOSTON (AP) — Red Auerbach, the architect of 13 National Basketball Association titles with the Boston Celtics, dug into his memory bank Monday in praising Indiana State All-American Larry Bird.

"He's a big Cousy," Auerbach said in an interview, comparing the 6-foot-9 Bird with former Celtics great Bob Cousy, a guard noted for his quick hands and peripheral vision along with his scoring.

"I never thought I'd ever compare anyone with Cousy, but Larry Bird has those great hands and great vision," Auerbach said.

Like most national television viewers, Auerbach, the former Celtics' coach now at the helm as president and general manager, was somewhat in awe watching Bird Sunday afternoon.

Bird, picked by Auerbach as the Celtics' No. 1 draft choice last June although only a junior, scored 49 points and grabbed 19 rebounds as Indiana State completed a perfect regular season with a 109-84 victory over Wichita State.

"When he gets anywhere near the ball, it belongs to him," Auerbach said. "Every one in the country knows he can shoot. Other things impress me more.

"He has a great concept of the game, a great feel of what's going on between the four lines. He's got patience, he's strong and he's unselfish. And those hands and vision.

"Cousy was more spectacular, but that kid can do it all. He can shoot from anywhere on the court. But if he doesn't have the shot, he won't take it. He'll pass to someone open. And how he can pass. He spots the man and gives it to him. He's always anticipating on the floor."

Auerbach complimented former Marquette Coach Al McGuire for his television commentary on Bird against Wichita State.

"Al McGuire knows his basketball and I agreed with him all the way with what he said," Auerbach said. "He told everything as it was without being gushy. It would be very easy to become gushy with the spectacular game Bird had, but Al didn't. He was looking at things other than scoring, the same as I was."

So just where do the Celtics stand with Bird?

"He does everything and we'd love to have him," Auerbach said. "He could step into the starting lineup with any team in our league, but we want him. We've tried to be very low key with him while he finishes his college career.

"I've seen him play and talked to him just once. However, I'm going out to see him in the playoffs. Then, after the season, he'll get an agent and we'll sit down and talk."

Rhodesian Air Strike Into Angola Reported

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian warplanes early Monday flew over Zambia and made their first attack against a major guerrilla training camp in the west African nation of Angola.

The 850-mile mission by vintage planes raised fears that Cubans, East Germans and Soviets supporting the Angolan government and the Rhodesian black nationalist guerrillas might retaliate.

There was no immediate reaction from the Luanda government of Agostinho Neto, nor comment from the Zambia-based guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo, whose camp near the northeastern town of Luso 180 miles inside Angola was hit.

There were no damage or casualty reports from either side.

A two-sentence communique issued by the Rhodesian combined military operations headquarters said:

"At 0810 — 1:10 a. m. EST — this morning, Rhodesian air force aircraft successfully attacked a very large Zipra (Nkomo's army) terrorist training camp in Angola across the Zambian border. All our aircraft have returned safely."

The camp is where the guerrilla recruits of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African Peoples Union take six-month war courses taught by Cuban and Soviet instructors, according to sources in Lusaka.

The camp may hold as many as 3,000 trainees, according to sources in Lusaka and in Salisbury. The raid was the fourth against ZAPU camps reported by the Rhodesian military command in two weeks.

The attacks followed the downing by guerrillas two weeks ago of an Air Rhodesia Viscount airliner carrying 59 crew and passengers, all of whom were killed.

Nkomo said his men shot down the aircraft, as they had a similar plane last September. In the earlier crash, 38 people died, and survivors said that 10 of the 18 who lived through the crash were killed on the ground by black gunmen. Nkomo denied his men shot the survivors.

The earlier Rhodesian air strikes were against ZAPU camps in the Livingstone area of southwestern Zambia and around the capital, Lusaka.

Angola has, by Western estimates, some 19,000 Cuban military men, 4,000 Cuban advisers, at least 1,000 East German military experts and technical advisers and several hundred Soviets aiding Neto's Marxist government.

During the escalating war, Rhodesia has launched cross-border raids into neighboring territories harboring guerrillas of either Nkomo's ZAPU or Robert Mugabe's Mozambique-based Zimbabwe African National Union.

Nkomo and Mugabe, co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, have rejected an agreement reached by Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black moderates that is to lead the country to black rule after elections scheduled April 20, and vow to escalate the war.

The guerrillas were not included in the agreement.

The West also has rejected the agreement and has repeatedly tried to get the guerrillas and the Smith government to the negotiating table to talk out a settlement.

Transcript Readings Not Permitted In Trial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Priscilla Davis succeeded Monday in stopping Cullen Davis' brother and top financial officer from reading transcripts of his daily testimony in their stormy divorce trial.

District Judge John Barron earlier had "invoked the rule," which bars witnesses or anticipated future witnesses from being in the courtroom to hear other testimony.

Lawyers Jerry Loftin and Ronald Aultman argued in Priscilla's behalf that allowing witnesses to read transcripts of the proceedings violates that order.

After two hours of discussion in Barron's chambers, lawyers for Davis agreed with them that transcripts will be unavailable to witnesses from now on.

Cullen's older brother, Kenneth Davis, and Walter Strittmatter — chief financial officer of the 84-company KenDavis Industries international business empire controlled by Cullen and Kenneth — had been permitted to look over Cullen's testimony in four days on the witness stand.

Loftin and Aultman contend the two should be barred from testifying on "any matters relating to" the conglomerate controlled by Davis and his brother.

They said it would be impossible for Mrs. Davis to get a fair hearing in the divorce trial if Kenneth Davis and Strittmatter are allowed to tesify after seeing the daily transcripts.

Barron, in whose 324th District Court the divorce trial is being heard, had issued a temporary order Friday that permitted anticipated future witnesses to review the transcripts, but said then that he planned to research the law further before issuing a final opinion.

The Soviet news agency said the quake registered 3 on the 12-point Medvedev scale in Tashkent, capital of Soviet Uzbekistan, and no damage or casualties were reported. The news agency said the quake's strength was 5 at its epicenter 20 miles southwest of the city.
