Pesticide Drum 'Time Bombs' Seen As Threat

By KAY BELL

CANISTERS containing a once-popular grain industry pesticide are now "chemical time bombs" with the potential to devastate a 2,000-foot radius, and two of the canisters recently were found in the Lubbock area, says an Environmental Protection Agency official.

Iran Hikes Price Of Export Oil

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's revolutionary government plans to resume oil exports next Monday, but at much higher prices, according to the head of the country's oil production.
"We may be able to sell the oil at $18 to $20 a barrel," said Hassan Nazih, new director of Iran's state-owned national Iranian Oil Co.
This is well above the current $13.33 pegged price set by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, of which Iran is a member. But the four-month-long cutoff of Iranian oil has caused some OPEC members to raise prices and has driven the spot sales price up to a reported $20 a barrel in some areas.

U.S. Ties Seen
President Carter, speaking at a Washington news conference Tuesday, said the new government in Tehran has indicated a desire for a "close and friendly" relationship with the United States.
While Iran's opening oil sales will be direct to spot buyers, Nazih left open the possibility that a new agreement could be concluded with the British Petroleum-led oil consortium, which previously handled the bulk of Iran sales abroad during the reign of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.
Nazih also said the first tanker will be loaded Monday, the 12th anniversary of the death of Mohammad Mossadegh, the Iranian prime minister who nationalized

Woman Gaining Chicago Upset

CHICAGO (AP) — Jane Byrne, bent on topping the man who fired her, held onto a narrow primary lead Tuesday night over Mayor Michael A. Bilandic and appeared near an upset of the Democratic organization once considered the nation's strongest.
Bilandic came near conceding defeat when he went before his followers late Tuesday.
"If the present trend continues it appears that Mrs. Byrne will be the nominee of the Democratic Party, and Heather (his wife) and I extend our congratulations," he said.
The difference between the candidates is approximately 1 percent of the vote," he said in a brief statement.
With 2,925 out of 3,100 precincts reporting, or 94 percent of the ballots cast, Mrs. Byrne had 385,263 votes, or 50.7 percent, and Bilandic had 373,337 votes, or 49.2 percent.

pany always has paid its own way and that its yearly payments into the city's general operating fund have kept property tax rates down.
The seven committee members present also conceded that a "meaningful" rate of return on LP&L's investment cannot be calculated and that a "ballpark" figure would not be comparable to its competitor, Southwestern Public Service Company.
Committee members, who are charged with recommending to the city council LP&L's future course, will vote next month on a motion formally stating that matching rates of return from the two companies would be like comparing apples and oranges.
In a staff memo to the committee, it was noted that "The rate of return on a company's investment applies to private investor-owned utilities but not to public-owned utilities such as Lubbock Power and Light."
City Finance Director Sterling Miller explained that LP&L operates on a cash-flow basis, not on a ratio of profits to investment.
The memo noted that a city "is in the utility business to take advantage of opportunities to save money. An analogy might be that of a person avoiding costs

Washington Talks Due Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Tuesday that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has decided to come here for "a frank discussion of all the issues" in the stalled peace treaty talks.
Carter told a news conference that after he sees Begin, who is due here Thursday evening, he will consider asking Egyptian President Anwar Sadat or Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil here as well.
The announcement followed Begin's refusal to attend a Camp David summit with Carter and Khalil. The Israeli Cabinet turned down that invitation on a 14-2 vote.
Summit Unclear
Carter's announcement did not make clear when and whether another summit, including Egypt, could be held.
U.S. officials said they had been informed last Saturday that Begin would return to Camp David for talks with Egypt. However, one official acknowledged, "There may have been some misunderstanding on Begin's part (about what Sadat's role would be)."
Carter said he talked by telephone after the Cabinet action with both Begin and Sadat. He stressed the importance of completing a treaty and that he hoped his talks with Begin would lead to an early resumption of negotiations.

Begin Refuses Earlier

Earlier, an Israeli official said Begin refused to attend the talks because Sadat decided not to participate and Egypt had hardened its bargaining position.
Carter expressed regret about the Israeli Cabinet decision. He said he was concerned about the impact on peace prospects.
At the same time, Carter said Egyptian and Israeli delegations meeting at Camp David last week with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance had demonstrated they shared the view that wrapping up a treaty was an urgent necessity.
The original arrangement for the negotiations at Camp David called Khalil to deal with the details, Naftali Lavi, an adviser to Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, told The Associated Press.
Sadat Visit Intended
However, Lavi said, the intention was for Sadat to be at the Maryland mountain retreat prepared to initiate treaty terms if compromises could be struck on the Palestinians and other issues.
But as U.S., Egyptian and Israeli officials discussed the arrangements last week at Camp David, Sadat's participation became increasingly doubtful, Lavi said.
"We were alarmed," the Israeli official said, "because we had our own doubts that Begin would come."
On Friday afternoon, he said, "we were told definitely that Sadat would

Stocks Hit Worst Nosedive Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices skidded Tuesday as analysts said investors reacted to troublesome news on oil prices and the Middle East.
The market had been weakened by a steady pounding of bad news," said Newton Zinder, an analyst at the brokerage house of E.F. Hutton.
The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed down 14.12 points at 807.00, posting its largest loss since a 17.84 point drop last Dec. 18.
Analysts said many investors were disturbed by the announcement that Israel would not send Prime Minister Menachem Begin to a Camp David summit meeting without Egypt's head of state. That seemed to lessen chances for eventual peace in the Middle East, experts said.

China Says Viet Invasion Attacks Fail

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — China reported Tuesday that Vietnamese troops launched several counter-invasions into Chinese territory in the previous few days, but were driven back each time.
Intelligence sources here said China appears to show no intention of withdrawing its troops along Vietnam's northeastern front, where some of the Vietnamese incursions reportedly took place.
In his bluntest comment on the 10-day conflict, President Carter asked China on Tuesday to undertake "a speedy withdrawal" from Vietnam. The request was in a message given to top Chinese leaders by Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, who is visiting Peking.
Carter spoke of the conflict at his news conference in Washington Tuesday afternoon and said he had made known to the Chinese his "firm disapproval" of the invasion of Vietnam. He also said he opposed any suggestion that the United States terminate its new bilateral relations with China, and it was proper that Blumenthal visit Peking at this time.

The Vietnamese claimed they wiped out 2,200 Chinese soldiers in four days, 800 of them Monday in clashes along the northeastern coastal front.
In the northwest, Vietnam reported its troops were locked in combat with the Chinese 15 miles inside Vietnam along the banks of the Red River, the vital water corridor to the capital of Hanoi.
The official Chinese news agency Hsinhua reported Tuesday from Peking that a battalion of Vietnamese troops attacked a commune on the Kwangsi border Sunday, but Chinese soldiers and militia men fought back, wiping out some of the invading troops and driving the rest back across the border.

This was the first time during the border war that Hsinhua has reported a Vietnamese invasion of Chinese territory. The official agency has carried only a few items about the war, mostly accounts of Chinese soldiers described in heroic terms. It has carried no detailed accounts of fighting, and no Chinese casualty figures.
Except for one brief visit permitted by the Vietnamese last week, Western reporters have been barred from covering the war on the various fronts. Most information comes from Chinese and Vietnamese broadcasts.
Hsinhua also reported Tuesday that Chinese troops had seized the border town of Phuc Hoa, about 65 miles north of Lang Son, but did not say when the town fell. The reports said Chinese troops began encircling the town on Feb. 20, three days after the initial Chinese invasion.

Hanoi claims to have killed more than 16,000 Chinese since Peking invaded Feb. 17. Intelligence sources consider the kill count inflated.
China has not given casualty figures, but in Tokyo, Japan's Kyodo News Service reported classified Chinese reports list about 17,000 Vietnamese "wiped out" in the first week of fighting. The news service attributed its information to Chinese sources in Peking.
The Hsinhua report of the Vietnam incursions listed a shelling Friday of the Tunmng people's commune in Ningming province 10 miles inside the border. It said about 60 Vietnamese crossed the border on Saturday but were repulsed by border guards.

The report said the Vietnamese returned the next morning and burned down two villages. Hsinhua said 68 Vietnamese were killed and one was taken prisoner in three days of fighting.
The news agency also said a company of Vietnamese troops invaded Menton in Malipo province, about six miles from the border, and left 30 wounded and dead behind them.
Ningming province is about 29 miles northeast of the border town of Lang Son, where heavy fighting has been reported. Malipo is about 66 miles northeast of Lao Cai, where the border war first began.
The official Voice of Vietnam Radio said the most concentrated fighting of

Court Dismisses Exxon Fatality Suit

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — A judge on Tuesday dismissed criminal charges against Exxon Corp. in connection with a refinery accident that killed three men and injured 12 others.

Judge Richard Swan of the Vallejo-Benicia Municipal Court said in his ruling that claims against Exxon were legally insufficient. The accident occurred Jan. 2, 1978, when poisonous gas flooded a tank the men were cleaning at Exxon's Benicia refinery about 35 miles east of San Francisco.

Exxon attorneys argued that a 1971 amendment to the state labor code prohibited prosecution of employers based solely on the alleged misconduct of supervisory personnel.

Solano County Deputy District Attorney Caulbus McBride said the county will appeal the decision to Superior Court.

"I will file a notice of appeal by the end of this week," McBride said. He said his appeal will allege that "there was no substantiation for the decision."

Senate Panel Okays Committee Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overriding its chairman, the Senate Rules Committee voted Tuesday to grant the Senate Energy Committee a 19 percent budget increase to deal with standby gasoline rationing and other administration proposals.

The committee also voted to trim by $100,000 the $4.8 million budget of the Senate Judiciary Committee, the biggest spender of any congressional panel. The committee had asked for the same amount it was granted last year.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., suggested at one point that the Judiciary budget be trimmed by $500,000, asking, "What on earth will they do with $4.8 million?"

The committee went along, however, with the smaller reduction suggested by its chairman, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

The total authorization approved for the Energy Committee was $1.46 million, an increase of $231,000 over last year's budget.

Pell had suggested an increase of $120,000.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, the ranking Republican on the energy unit, said the full amount was needed to deal with rationing and other proposals that "the administration is dribbling up to the hill in a rather haphazard way."

Hatfield was supported by Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., who is also an Energy Committee member.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., argued against the full increase, saying the energy panel still had not spent more than $100,000 of last year's funds.

Voting for the higher figure were Sens. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., Harrison Williams, D-N.J., Ford, Hatfield, Tower and Richard Schweiker, R-Pa. Voting against it were Pell, Cannon and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

DeConcini, a Judiciary Committee member, said he believed its chairman, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., "reluctantly would accept" the reduction.

BRANDED

Cattle brands in the Old West were a language all their own. When a mark was burned into a cow's hide, it told everyone — rustlers and others — who the cow's owner was. Brands were registered just as trademarks are today. By 1885, Colorado had 50,000 cattle brands on file.

The budget recommendations now go to the full Senate for action.

Pell said the committee approved a total of $28.7 million in budgets, an increase of 1 percent from last year. He said committees had asked for $1 million in increases but the panel approved only $286,400 of that.

Pell added that nine committees were authorized to spend less and eight were voted increases.

On Monday, the House approved budgets for 10 committees.

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., chairman of the subcommittee on accounts, said the authorizations were cut by 10 percent, or $1.5 million, from the amounts requested and trimmed by 5 percent from the amounts authorized last year.

Rep. William E. Dannemeyer, a freshman Republican from California who delayed action on the budgets last week by demanding roll-call votes, argued that congressional staffs had increased from 4,483 persons to 13,276 persons over the past 10 years.

White House Panel Calls For Less Medical Use Of X-Rays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned about what it termed the small but unresolved threat to health posed by radiation in low doses, a White House task force called Tuesday for reducing Americans' exposure to man-made radiation, particularly medical X-rays.

The task force, in an 800-page series of draft reports, said most of the 240 million X-rays given to Americans annually are beneficial, but "many are unnecessary and can be eliminated."

It urged doctors to be cautious in ordering X-rays and encouraged patients to keep their own personal records of X-rays and take X-rays with them when they switch doctors.

The government should work with the medical profession and use its Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement clout as needed, to bring about "a comprehensive radiation reduction program for the health care system," it said.

The report on low-level radiation exposure was issued by the Interagency sites and atomic facilities.

Those reports concerned bomb sites in the Rocky Mountains and nuclear facilities in Hanford, Wash., and Portsmouth, N.H.

The task force left largely unresolved the question of compensating workers and residents exposed to low-level radiation from government sites, noting that "radiation-induced cancers are identical to cancers that occur frequently in the public at large."

It said the predominant scientific view is that low-level radiation causes only one extra cancer death among 10,000 persons, of whom 1,600 would die from cancer anyway. Some recent studies have suggested low-level radiation may cause at least 10 extra cancer deaths per 10,000.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. told a news conference it may be years before scientists produce a definitive answer on the risks posed by radiation in low doses. Half the public's exposure comes from the earth's natural background radiation. Nearly 90 percent of the rest is from medical and dental X-rays and the use of radioactive material for treatment and diagnosis.

The government is seeking public comment on the draft reports, which were prepared by HEW, the departments of Defense, Energy and Labor, the Veterans Administration, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and the Environmental Protection Agency. The heads of those agencies still must review the reports before making final recommendations to Carter.

The task force still has not finished a draft report redefining the government's responsibility for regulating radiation.

Vietnam Confident Despite Gains By Chinese In Border War

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's 10-day invasion of Vietnam has not shaken the confidence of leaders in Hanoi, who apparently believe they can win the war without Soviet intervention, Western analysts said Tuesday.

Although China says its still unspecified goals in the invasion are limited in scope, Peking eventually must figure out a way to withdraw its troops from Vietnam without making it look like a retreat, one diplomatic source said.

"The Vietnamese are very confident," a Western analyst said. "They don't feel chastised. They feel they will punish the Chinese."

The major indication of this is Hanoi's refusal to commit major portions of its regular army to the border fighting, despite the loss of four provincial capitals.

"Although hard information from the front is scarce, it appears the Vietnamese are leaving regular army troops in reserve and leaving the fighting up to border guards and militia," one diplomatic observer said.

"One possible scenario is for China to keep going until it draws in the Vietnamese regulars and then say, 'Let's talk,'" he said. But the Vietnamese have said they won't talk while there still are Chinese soldiers in Vietnam.

"However you look at it, it's going to be hard for China to stage any kind of orderly withdrawal without making it look like they lost."

Another analyst said it appears the Soviet Union has done little to help its Vietnamese allies other than to warn China to withdraw "before it is too late."

The degree of Soviet involvement would appear to be related to how well the Vietnamese hold up against the Chinese, a diplomatic observer said.

"They seem to have great confidence in the Vietnamese," he said.

And Hanoi appears to feel it can deal with the Chinese, at least for now. "It's striking how little movement of Vietnamese forces there has been," he said. "They seem very confident."

But if the war were to go badly for Vietnam, the Soviet Union could be drawn in, bringing the threat of escalation and miscalculation. The Soviets must take seriously its peace and friendship treaty with Vietnam, he said.

One Western diplomat said a Soviet invasion of China would not directly involve American security interests in Asia but it could threaten world peace. "The matter of most concern is in the area of miscalculation," he said.

But if the Soviets or their allies move against Thailand or the Philippines, it would be viewed as a direct threat to American security interests, he said.

The Soviet response probably would depend on how far China goes into Vietnam and what kind of aid the Vietnamese ask for under the treaty.

Diplomatic sources and Western analysts emphasized that little real information was available from the front lines of the fighting, or even on why China decided to invade Vietnam.

Although China's rare communiques on the fighting have said the invasion caused by Vietnamese-inspired incidents on their common border, most analysts feel it was a result of the ouster of the king-backed Pol Pot government in Cambodia by Hanoi's troops and Khmer Rouge rebels.

Carter Defends Blumenthal's Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Tuesday it was "proper and well-advised" for Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal to visit China, despite U.S. disapproval of China's invasion of Vietnam.

Carter told a news conference it would be "counterproductive" for the United States to disrupt relations with China or the Soviet Union as well because either nation acts contrary to American wishes.

Blumenthal will represent Carter at a Thursday ceremony in Peking when the two countries formally establish full diplomatic relations.

Carter also said "it would be completely improper for us ... to inject ourselves in any active way into the combat that is presently taking place among Communist Asian nations or to try to intrude in a completely unwarranted fashion into the internal affairs, political affairs, of other nations."

Man Arrested In $60 Murder

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jerome Watkins, hunted for a week on charges he was hired for $60 by two teen-agers to kill their father, has been jailed on a warrant accusing him of slaying John White Sr., an auto plant worker.

Watkins was arrested Monday when he apparently tried to escape approaching officers by leaping from the second story window of a boarding house.

Police said the Watkins was held in the city jail pending filing of charges.

White was slain Feb. 9. The warrant was issued after White's children — Michelle, 14, and John, Jr., 17 — told police they hired Watkins to kill their father, detectives said.

White was shot to death when he returned home from work. Police said Watkins was waiting with a .38-caliber revolver when White came into the house.

After the shooting, the children paid Watkins and went on a $2,000 spending spree, using White's money and credit cards, police reported.

White's body remained in the house for nine days before police, alerted by relatives, investigated and discovered the slaying.

Court records show Watkins was in juvenile court at least five times on assault charges during the past two years.

INDIAN TEST SEEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for 25 Northwest Indian tribes declared Tuesday that the "rights of minorities" will be tested when the Supreme Court hears arguments over Indian fishing rights in the state of Washington. Gary Peterson, fisheries commissioner for the Point No Point Treaty Area, warned that an adverse decision could force the tribes to "go back to the pre-Boldt days."

Iranians Report Quiet On Border With Russia

TABRIZ, Iran (AP)—The nearby border with the Soviet Union has remained unusually quiet throughout the chaos that followed the Islamic revolution earlier this month. Ayatollah Ahmad Ghazi said Tuesday.

Ghazi, top religious and political leader of Iran's Eastern Azerbaijan province, said Iran's army has stood together "along the Soviet-Iranian frontier. They have sworn allegiance to the new order along with national policemen."

He added, "We have not increased security near the border area since the revolution succeeded, because we feel there is no need to since we enjoy good relations with the Russians."

The province borders on the Soviet Union, which is 60 miles north of here. Tabriz was the capital of the Soviet-controlled Peoples Republic of Azerbaijan three decades ago. Long known for its anti-royalist feelings, dating back to the early 1900s, Azerbaijan was a "People's Republic" under Russian occupation from 1946-47. The Russians relinquished their hold on the province under pressure from the United States and Britain.

Ghazi said Tuesday that he was optimistic that the chaos caused by the revolution would end soon, but acknowledged "things are not back to normal yet." The bearded Shiite Moslem said, "It's certainly easier to destroy and very hard to rebuild."

Ghazi as representative of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, leader of the religious revolution that toppled the monarchy two weeks ago, oversees the central committee that rules this city of one million inhabitants. Ayatollah means "mark of God," and is a sign of respect for a man learned in Moslem law.

The central committee, in a temporary system designed to replace law and order officials and civil servants who served under Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, rules on the day-to-day decisions made by 14 committees set up to control the sprawling city.

"Most of the members of the local committees are incompetents and need to be replaced," Ghazi said. "All these committees are also temporary and will be dissolved as soon as a new police chief is appointed for the city and a governor for the province," he said.

Administrative chaos reigned at the former governor's office and at the former headquarters of Savak, the shah's secret police, feared by Tabrizians for their torture of political dissidents.

A large crowd gathered outside the Savak building, now the new headquarters for the revolutionary central committee, to seek personal favors from committee officials. Soldiers who had abandoned their barracks when the monarchy collapsed, waited in line to hand over their weapons.

The crowd suddenly roared and surged to the end of the street toward armed civilians escorting an alleged Savak agent into the central committee building.

"...torturer! Get him! Let him know what it's all about!" screamed one man who punched and kicked the alleged Savak agent. The man, in his 30s, smiled at those shouting at him. Then another man broke through the guards and punched him on the head. The guards did little to discourage the violence.

"Once we get these Savaki (Savak agents) arrested and under detention in their old headquarters, we give them the more than 15 persons died, nine of whom were ex-Savak agents on the run.

The two lone foreign diplomatic missions in Tabriz lay deserted. The U.S. same treatment thousands of our brothers who hated the Shah went through," said a central committee member who declined to give his name.

Ghazi said that when the monarchy "went up in a puff of smoke," many of the Savak agents fled to nearby villages and into hiding. He said many also were killed in shootouts, but he was unable to say how many.

Reports of hundreds dead in clashes between followers of the shah and revolutionaries appeared to be grossly exaggerated. A member of Tabriz's revolutionary central committee said that no consulate was manned by one American diplomat until he was evacuated shortly after the fall of the monarchy.

The white buildings within a high-walled compound were under control of revolutionary forces but nothing appeared to have been damaged. Armed irregulars guarded the main gate to discourage looters.

Further down the same avenue, the Turkish consulate lay gutted following an arsonist attack on the building. "A mistake," one revolutionary said. The Turkish consul was not harmed. The fire gave rise to the false report that the U.S. consulate had been destroyed.

Joan of Arc was born in Domermy, France, in 1412.

U.S. Geological Survey To Mark First 100 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — How much oil is under the Atlantic or how much silver in Montana?

What is the danger of earthquakes in the city where I plan to move?

Will that new industry be able to get enough water from the ground or the rivers?

Is there any danger from that long-quiet volcano?

These and other challenges face the U.S. Geological Survey as it heads into its second hundred years on Saturday.

Today the survey can answer most of these questions with authority. And others too, that hadn't even been thought of in 1879 when President Rutherford B. Hayes signed the law creating the agency.

The survey will celebrate its centennial Friday and Saturday with an open house at its headquarters, marking what Director H. William Menard termed "a time for rededication and recommitment to the goal of those who preceded us — the pursuit of earth science knowledge in the public interest."

Menard is the 10th director of the geological survey, following in a line that included the famous explorer John Wesley Powell, second man to head the survey.

In its first century the survey has grown to a staff of 13,000 scientists, engineers, technicians and others. For fiscal 1979 its appropriation totals $640 million. In 1879 it was $106,000.

It is headquartered in Reston, Va., and operates facilities in Denver, Menlo Park, Calif.; Sioux Falls, S.D.; Flagstaff, Ariz.; Hilo, Hawaii, and Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Much of the survey's growth can be traced to the directorship of Powell, who in 1869 completed the dangerous exploration of the canyons of the Green and Colorado rivers.

Powell, who had lost his right forearm in the Civil War, opened the last unknown part of the continental United States with this trip, an adventure which historians say brought to a climax the era of western expansion.

The work of Powell and his mule-riding companions in Colorado, like that of Ferdinand Vandiveer Hayden in Yellowstone, helped fill in blank spaces on maps, still one of the survey's primary functions.

The geological survey is mapmaker to the nation, producing topographic maps of the entire country. Today it uses aerial photography and satellites in this work.

The millions of maps available at the survey's National Cartographic Information Center show political boundaries, define land use, indicate topographic features, disclose locations of minerals and other natural resources and even delineate the nation's flood-prone areas.

The techniques may have improved, but mapmaking remains just as important as it was when the survey was created to merge the work of the Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories, the Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region, the General Land Office, the Geographical Surveys West of the 100th Meridian and the Geological Exploration of the Fortieth Parallel.

While it was originally charged with classifying the public lands and surveying for natural resources, duties of the survey have also grown to include determining the potential for earth-related disasters.

and almost uncharted canyons of the Green and Colorado Rivers opened up the last unknown part of the continental United States, and brought to a climax the era of western exploration. (AP Laserphoto)

It engages in volcano and earthquake research, determining hazard areas and trying to learn how to predict and control tremors.

Discuss the energy crisis, and the survey is again involved. The agency determines areas of the continental shelf to be leased for oil and gas exploration and manages the Alaskan oil reserves.

The nation's water resources are also catalogued by the survey, which keeps track of ground water supplies and monitors the flow in the nation's rivers and streams.

This information is used both in flood-control programs and in aiding agriculture and business.

Essentially it is information made available to the public that is the business of the geological survey.

And, as such, the survey's work can be a report on rocks brought back from the moon, a report on the availability of ground water on Long Island, a survey of the mineral wealth hidden underground in Wyoming — or just a map carried by hunters and backpackers enjoying their leisure time.

State Education Leader Addresses Conference

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Emerging from a time when they hoarded their best teaching methods, public schools are "entering a new era of sharing ideas," Texas' top educator said in a speech delivered here Tuesday.

The remarks of Dr. M.L. Brockette, state commissioner of education, opened a Lubbock Memorial Civic Center conference that is a big part of such a sharing process. The event, "Promises in Education '79," is a showcase for 34 school programs that have proven effective in Texas and across the nation.

An exchange of innovative ideas "can save money and time," Brockette stated.

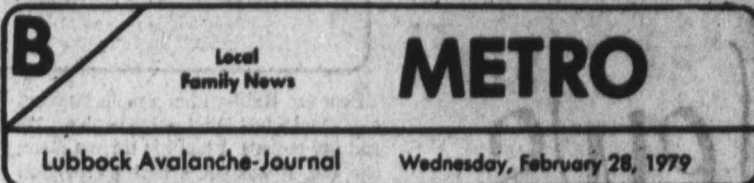

"Fortunately, not every school has to develop every new program. Schools can borrow from one another. Developing new ideas is expensive and slow; adopting or adapting proven programs demands far less in both time and money." Because he was called to Washington, D.C., on emergency business, Brockette was unable to address the conference in person, a spokesman explained. However, his prepared speech was transmitted to the opening general session by Virginia Cutter, director of news dissemination for the Texas Education Agency.

"I believe we are entering a new era of sharing ideas as a means of strengthening education," Brockette's text said.

"In many respects, this kind of sharing is a new concept for us in education. In the past, we've had a protective attitude toward what we created. We didn't want to hand it over to others for fear they might tamper with what we had designed.

"At the same time, we've felt threatened if someone else developed an effective program that we didn't have. We hesitated to adopt it. Someone might think we weren't smart enough to plan our own programs.

Wednesday, February 28, 1979

"We need to divest ourselves of these defenses. The possibilities for school improvement are unlimited if we can learn to search out new programs that meet our needs — and if we can learn to share freely our own ideas with others."

About 400 educators attended the opening session in the Civic Center auditorium. Approximately 200 more school administrators and teachers are expected to participate in the conference, the first of its kind in West Texas.

Dr. Alpheus L. White, director of state educational assistance for the U.S. Office of Education, will discuss "Educational Change: The Adoption Process," at the closing luncheon session today.

Scheduled between the opening and closing sessions is a series of demonstrations featuring 18 Texas public school programs which have been validated by the Texas Education Agency, and another 16 from across the nation which have been judged most effective by the U.S. Office of Education.

The Texas programs were chosen from among 175 in the Texas Diffusion Network, a statewide project aimed at sharing ideas, Brockette's speech noted. They range from an art program from San Marcos and computer assisted instruction from Port Arthur, to a math project from New Deal and a program for gifted youngsters from Paris, the commissioner said.

The out-of-state programs — such as career education from California, a citizenship program from New Jersey and a bilingual program from Washington — are part of the National Diffusion Network, Brockette said.

He said the Lubbock conference is intended to "help people become more aware of the good things that are going on and to help spread those good things around so that more people can benefit from them."

"The positive things occurring in education in Texas run the gamut from programs for senior citizens to programs for children too young for kindergarten.

There are good things happening in districts of all sizes all across the state. There are good programs for all kinds of students — the handicapped, the non-handicapped, the educationally disadvantaged, the gifted," Brockette's speech said.

The conference is co-sponsored by the Texas Education Agency and the state's 29 regional education service centers. It is being hosted by the Region XVII Education Service Center.

The conference is the seventh in a series of similar events held throughout Texas the past 12 years. Other sessions were in San Antonio, McAllen, Dallas, Houston and Austin.

Ed Irons, superintendent of the Lubbock Independent School District, delivered welcoming remarks to the opening session. Irons said it is "truly a privilege for West Texas to host this conference."

'Two-Front Crime War' Charted In County

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Lubbock County crime prevention task force Tuesday held its first meeting and adopted a multifaceted plan, including a countywide effort to mark valuables, a crime reporting system, an educational program and an attack on specific kinds of crime.

District Attorney John Montford, whose office organized the task force, described the crime prevention plan as part of a "two-front war" on crime in Lubbock County, which also includes prosecutorial and law enforcement efforts.

Perhaps the central element of the crime prevention plan as suggested by Montford is an attempt to mark valuables throughout the county.

When prosecuting a case, Montford said, it is "essential to be able to identify stolen property to get convictions." Identification also aids in returning the property to its owner, he observed.

The marking would not be left to "individual volition," Montford said. Rather, he envisions a door-to-door marking effort throughout the county.

He estimated the task force will need 2,000 engraving devices to launch such an effort.

A "very important element" of the crime prevention plan is a crime reporting system, Montford said. Although no decision has been made, the phone line for the Chamber of Commerce's Crime Abatement Program may be used.

An educational program in the schools might "bring convicts back in to speak to teen-agers and young adults on why crime is a dead-end street," Montford said. The general public could be educated through the media, he said.

Montford suggested an attack on specific crime types and causes.

"The drug problem accounts for an extremely high incidence of crime in Lubbock County, directly and indirectly," he said, adding that an "effective counter action on the drug abuse problem" is needed.

There is "extensive loss" through business crime, he said. Many of those problems could be eliminated by educating merchants through a handbook on hot checks and forgeries and a check institute, Montford said.

He also suggested the crime prevention plan specifically address juvenile crime and elderly victims of crime.

The 18-member task force named Lubbock County Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard as its chairman and appointed 11 subcommittees to formulate definite proposals on how the crime prevention plan should be implemented.

The proposals will become part of a grant application to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for grants of $200,000 to $300,000 each.

However, no one has been able to get the project guidelines on the grants from the agency and applications are due March 15.

The City of Lubbock is interested in applying for the same crime prevention grants for a city project.

The task force, which will meet again at 7 a.m. Tuesday at the county courthouse, can help Lubbock "develop a reputation for an intolerance to crime," Montford said.

"This program will work if we don't make it another bureaucratic reporting system," he said.

Opry Matinee Showing Added

Due to popular demand, a matinee edition of the KLLL West Texas Opry has been scheduled for 4 p.m. on March 10 in the Civic Center Theater.

This is the first matinee performance of the opry, necessitated when more than 1,400 tickets for the regular 8 p.m. show on the same date sold out in less than three days.

Matinee tickets will be the same price — $3 each — but seats will not be reserved as they are for the evening show. Tickets for the 8 p.m. show will not be valid for the matinee, sponsors said. However, both shows will be identical.

The matinee tickets will be available at Luskey's Western Wear store beginning at 9 a.m. today. Tickets also will go on sale at 2:30 p.m. March 10 in the Civic Center box office.

Proceeds from the shows will be donated to Tree House Village, a foster home for girls here.

Among the entertainers scheduled are Terri Sue Newman, who will sing her new hit single, "Gypsy Eyes," Don Caldwell, Cecil D. Caldwell, Mike Corbin, The Maines Brothers, Randy and Patty Bell, Roma Haley, David and Pracie House, Tommie Anderson, The Gore Brothers and Cool Water, The Young Disciples, plus Joe and Joy Roper, who will be making their initial performances on the opry.

The opry is sponsored by KLLL and Don Caldwell Studios.

City May Use Cameras To Foil Thieves

Smile, robbers, you may be on camera while doing your thing.

At least there will be that possibility if the city deems it advisable to purchase the portable cameras and a grant for the state is received.

Police Chief J.T. Alley said a demonstrator camera was installed last week at a convenience store and sample pictures taken have been "real clear."

The cameras, which could be triggered by a store attendant during a holdup, cost about $495 each, and the city probably would buy about 30, totaling $15,000, Alley said. The purchase of the equipment, now being used in Phoenix, Ariz., and San Jose, Calif., would have to be funded through a state grant, the chief added.

The cameras would be placed in convenience stores. "They seem to be the target of most robbers," Alley said.

WOMEN WHO KNEW JESUS

Mary Steeped In Fidelity, Faith

By EDITH DEEN

In mythological, Oriental, Jewish and Christian literature, an aura surrounds the mothers of special children. Mary, the mother of Jesus, is foremost among them.

Born in the image of the invisible God, Jesus arrived on the world scene as a mystery, a new power, a new creation, a gift from the holy spirit.

Mary, who gave birth to this divine son in such a wondrous manner, has been encircled from the beginning in a halo of light. Only a maiden with the fidelity and faith of Mary could have borne a child of such promise.

Throughout her pregnancy, Mary had the full support of her husband, Joseph. Although most of the time he seemed but a mere bystander, he had the tenderness and beauty of character to give her the protection she needed.

Mary was reborn when the angel Gabriel announced to her that she would give birth to the son of the most high. During her pregnancy and the birth of her son, she was sure that God had taken the initiative in her life.

She asked no questions but rushed to give God the full credit, for she had felt his presence from the moment of her son's conception until his birth. Not only was she assured that God could exalt the humble, but she knew that his mercy would be upon all who feared him.

It is often easier to believe the unseen possibility of God's power to transform the life in a humble young woman like Mary than it is to understand profound theological discussions.

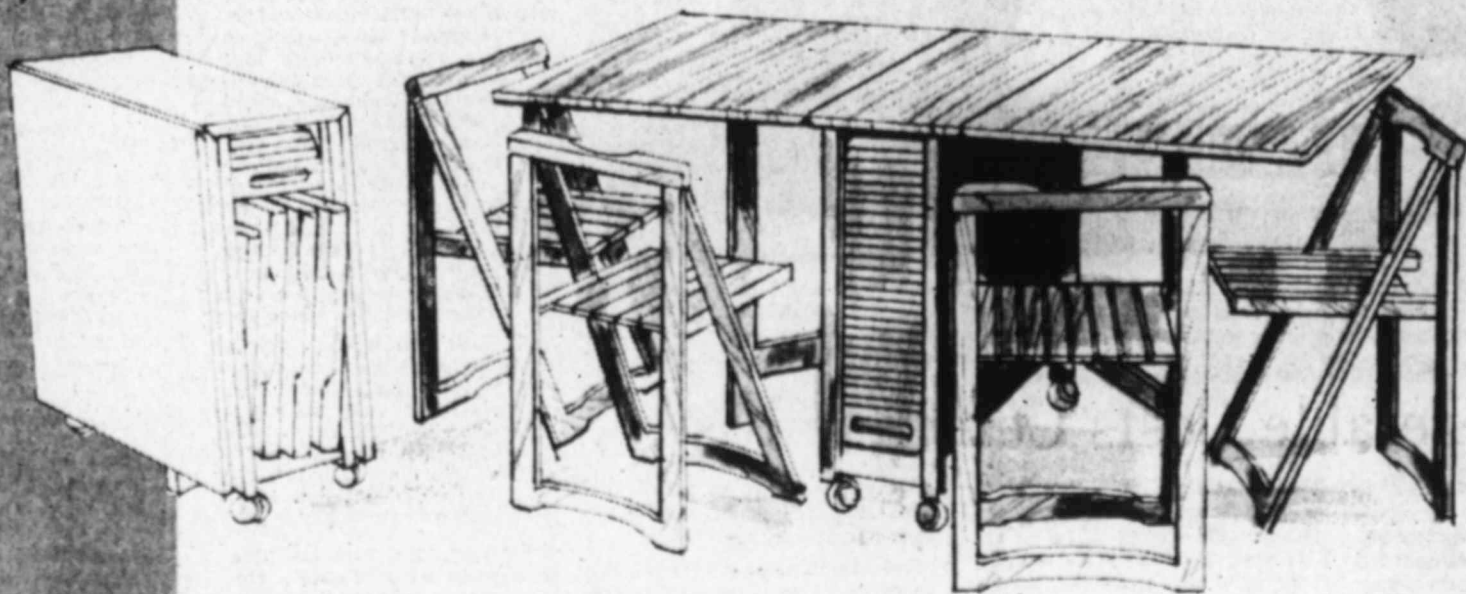

Mary's simple faith lifted her into a great miracle, unexplainable but real nevertheless. Mary showed a quick understanding of the things of God, but she was also aware that her knowledge was infinite at best. She perceived that through Christ many would come to understand better the infinite essence of God and what he meant us to be.

Mary's feminine-maternal wisdom was not a disinterested knowledge but a loving participation, for she nourished in

At Wit's End...

BY ERMA BOMBECK

If you really want to make yourself crazy sometime, sit around and figure out how much your luggage cost — just to get it back.

I got a little overnighter suitcase that cost me $30 when it was new. I figured out that over the years (and this is a conservative figure), I've spent $500 to have it carried, checked, and stored. This doesn't count the time I lugged it into a restroom pay booth and in trying to get it out and had to pay another dime to retrieve it.

I made a short trip East last week and frankly, with all this inflation I don't know how much longer I can afford to travel with luggage.

At the curb of the airport, I tipped the Skycap $1 to check it through for me.

At my destination, another Skycap rescued it from the carousel (I always have the piece of luggage that is caught at the top) and I tipped him another 50 cents.

Another one carried it to the curb and I tipped him 50 cents. At the curb, the man with the whistle summoned a cab for me, lifted the luggage and put it in the cabbie's trunk. I tipped him a quarter.

At the hotel, the captain carried my luggage to the reception desk and I tipped him 50 cents. A bell summoned a bellhop who carried the suitcase to my room. I gave him $2.00. He gave me my key.

To date, I had paid $4.75 for my luggage and hadn't even opened it yet. It was within a few dollars of being more than the contents of the suitcase were worth.

The IRS does not consider luggage a dependent. This is too bad as people who travel a lot probably put more into their luggage than they do their own children. (With the possible exception of children with braces.)

In assessing the situation, it occurred to me that is why I had seen the President carrying his own garment bag onto Air Force I. It was just getting too expensive to keep tipping everyone.

At a hotel recently, I was waiting for my key when a young couple came in, glanced around nervously and registered for a room for one night.

"Where is your luggage?" asked the desk clerk suspiciously.

The girl blushed. The young man stammered.

"I'm not naive. I could tell they were just starting out and couldn't afford to support a suitcase.

Helpful Procedures Aid Breast Cancer Patients

By DR. STEVEN HERMAN
New York Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeon

Of all the women in the U.S., 7.5 percent will develop cancer of the breast. Most surgeons recommend treatment of the disease with surgery that involves, at minimum, the removal of the breast. This often has traumatic ramifications.

There is often a common pattern of reaction to the mastectomy. This has become obvious through discussions with my patients before and after breast reconstruction and with psychiatrists and psychologists.

Following the removal of the breast, there is a period of depression associated with the feeling that the body is no longer complete. The depression is combined with a great anxiety over whether or not the surgery "cured" the cancer.

After a few months, there is less concern with "cure." Dr. Gloria Wolk, a well-known psychologist in Palm Springs, Calif., states that it is at this stage that women often become angry that they had the mastectomy instead of a lesser procedure.

A sense of rejection may come from a husband or lover.

However, due to the psychological ramifications that this operation ordinarily incurs, the greatest trauma lies in the deterioration of self image. Hopefully, a woman will become aware of the possibilities of breast reconstruction.

The idea of reconstructing the breast began in the 1930's when sporadic attempts were made to bring tissue from the other areas of the body or to share tissue from the opposite breast. These operations required multiple hospitalizations and surgical procedures, with generally poor results.

It was not until the 1970's that silicon implants were used for reconstruction. These implants were used since the early 1950's for making small breasts larger, and there has been no evidence that they either caused cancer or activated resting cancer cells. (On the other hand, free silicon fluid injections in the breast were discovered to be dangerous and are illegal.)

The implants which are normally used for breast enlargements were not feasible for use in reconstruction, due to the fact that they took on the appearance of a round ball on the chest. A silicon implant with partitions internally was developed in order to better maintain the sloping shape of the breast.

Most women are candidates for reconstruction. The exceptions are those patients who have had very extensive surgery.

Banquet Honors Lubbock Leader

The Altrusa Club of Lubbock will honor the 1979 Woman of the Year at a dinner meeting Thursday evening in the Lubbock Women's Club.

The main speaker for the award banquet will be Dr. S. M. Kennedy, University Professor at Texas Tech University, a Lubbock civic leader.

Rhonda Jan Sissom, a voice student at Tech, and the recipient of the Altrusa Club music scholarship, will entertain. Dinner music will be provided by Inez Ferrell.

This event will mark the 34th year the Woman of the Year award has been given to an outstanding Lubbock citizen in recognition of service and dedication to local and national causes and the betterment of this community.

The public is invited to the meeting.

CLEANING CENTERS

A well-stocked, centralized cleaning center is the hurried housecleaner's best friend. Everything you need should be on hand: Clean rags for dusting, all-purpose cleaners and detergents, brushes of all sizes, a basket to carry everything in and a vacuum cleaner with a set of tools.

gery or very high doses of radiation.

If a woman is to have radiation or chemotherapy, reconstruction should be delayed until the end of treatment. This is because healing of a new wound might be affected.

As long as there is healthy skin on the chest, most women who have had radical mastectomy (breast and chest wall muscle removed) also can be reconstructed safely. Custom implants have recently been used to fill out the hollow made by the missing pectoral muscle.

The first surgical procedure requires a usual stay of two days in the hospital, when a specially designed implant is placed under the skin. Use of the arm is limited for a week and athletic activities are prohibited for three weeks.

The patient returns in four to six weeks for a nipple reconstruction (no overnight stay is necessary) or nipple reconstruction combined with enlarging or reducing the opposite breast for symmetry (which involves a two day stay).

Limitations following surgery are similar to those following the first procedure.

The ultimate risk of the operation is that it will fail (the skin will break down in a small area over the implant, and this would occur in the first few days after surgery). The implant would have to be removed, healing allowed to take place and another attempt could be made in four to six months.

With proper patient selection, this is very unusual. Infections or bleeding can occur (as in all surgery) but they are rare. One of the more recent developments is immediate breast reconstruction (performed during the same week as the mastectomy). This requires consultation with plastic surgeon prior to mastectomy, at which time he is present with the breast surgeon.

If considered safe (the tumor has not spread and the wound is healing well), the reconstruction is performed five to seven days later.

After the initial consultation, a woman may waiver between elation that a breast shape can be restored and concern about further surgery.

Immediately following surgery, most women experience an emotional "high." Although it is impossible to duplicate the original breast, most women are elated to be a "whole person" again. After some time, most women level off and adjust, becoming involved in life again.

If the psychological health of the patient is of concern, the importance of reconstruction cannot be overlooked. This knowledge may eventually make it easier for women to come in earlier for diagnosis.

Reconstruction is an acceptable procedure, supported by most breast surgeons of the American Cancer Society, and by most other physicians.

These procedures can only be performed by board certified plastic surgeons. Most importantly, however, a patient would be wise to find out specifically how many reconstructions a surgeon has performed.

She should, at the outset, also get all the details of the surgery and should ask to be shown pictures which demonstrate the procedures for reconstruction.

A surgeon's fee varies between $1,500 to $3,000 depending upon the extent of surgery and whether the opposite breast is to be changed. Blue Cross/Blue Shield and numerous other insurance companies cover the hospital costs of reconstruction, and at least part of the surgeon's fee.

A list of plastic surgeons can be obtained from the American Cancer Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, Chicago, Ill.

Conference Speaker Applauds Progress Against Wife Abuse

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Terry Davidson, author of "Conjugal Crime," will be the keynote speaker at the South Plains Conference on Family Violence Friday and Saturday at First Christian Church.

Interviewed by telephone at her home early this week, Miss Davidson said she felt 1974 represented the turning point in progress against the social problem of wife beating.

"That year the first shelter for battered women was established," she said. "The next year, a therapist on the East Coast began working for the first time as counselor to the wife beater, a major breakthrough. Also that year the first little hot line, AWARE, was established, through which women who were the victims of beating could call and get help, from emotional support to advice on their options, for the first time.

"Interestingly enough," Miss Davidson continued, "that hot line operated only a few hours a day. Now it is staffed for almost 24 hours a day with trained social workers."

Miss Davidson, a journalist, began in 1975 to gather statistics on the problem and to approach magazines about doing an article. "At that time," she said, "None of the magazines was interested in the subject. They said it was a 'ghetto' problem which would not interest their middle-class readers, or that it was too depressing."

"One magazine, however, did express a little interest, and on the strength of that I continued my research. I was trying to collect data to prove that it was, indeed, a middle-class problem, and to study case histories to prove to the magazine's readers that they could help.

"At the last minute," she continued, "The magazine decided that the subject was too ugly, would upset their readers — and again, that it wasn't really a middle-class problem."

However, Miss Davidson said, she realized she had enough material on hand for a book, which, when published, drew national attention to the problem of the battered wife, especially in the middle classes.

She is very encouraged, she said, by the progress being made on both the local and national levels in dealing with wife abuse. A federal bill slated to come up in the Senate later this year would provide a small funding for shelters for battered women and their children. "It is encouraging that the federal government is even showing an interest in the problem," she said.

State laws and court decisions are also reflecting a changing public attitude to

Potatoes Help Tight Budgets

You can find convenience foods to meet your every need, but the simple potato continues to play an important role in the family budget.

The potato is still one of the most easily prepared, nutritious and popular vegetables on the market. Current potato supplies are so plentiful that some grower prices are below the cost of production.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), quality from all areas is good.

Don't buy more potatoes than you can use in three to four weeks. There'll be plenty throughout the spring so you can replenish your supply as needed, says USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. Store potatoes in a cool, dark place — never in an air-tight container.

What a versatile vegetable the potato is. It fits readily into any meal of the day: hash browns with eggs for breakfast, french fried potatoes for lunch and potatoes and beef for a successful dinner.

Cooking can be simple also with potatoes. Just wash them and pop them into the oven, skins and all. Serve potatoes as quickly as possible after cooking. They'll taste better and loss of vitamin C is reduced.

ward the social problem of wife abuse. "It used to be that in most states a woman could not get a divorce on the grounds of beating. Mental cruelty was accepted as grounds for divorce, but not physical cruelty."

She cited another New York State case in which the court had ruled that two extreme beatings occurring four years apart were not grounds for divorce, but the ruling was later overturned by a higher court.

On the local level she also finds encouraging signs. In some places, communities are suing the police and the civil or domestic courts for not prosecuting husbands for wife-beating. "In New York State, such cases have been won, and the police there now know that when they are called to a home where a wife is being beaten they may and must arrest the husband."

In Kansas City, she continued, police have become responsive to the problem, especially after it was revealed that when a man beats his wife to death, or kills her by some other means, in five out of six cases she had previously called the police for help, without results.

Miss Davidson said that churches are becoming responsive to the problem as they recognize it as a legitimate social concern. Churches are supporting shelters for battered wives and their children, as well as other programs to deal with the problem. In a few churches there are "safe home" programs where a woman and her children can find shelter for a few days with a family in the congregation.

In St. Paul, Minn., a new program has been established for wife beaters which is much like Alcoholics Anonymous. A man who feels himself in danger of attacking his wife can call a "buddy" on the telephone and receive encouragement and support.

On Long Island, there is a counseling program directed toward the whole family. Encouraging results show that when the men are able to stay with the program, they are able to restrain from abusing their wives, and the longer they stay the better chance they have of achieving permanent control. However, some of the men in the program are so threatened by the increased knowledge of themselves gained there that they do not stay with the program, and return to their former patterns of behavior.

Miss Davidson said that while there is no "typical" wife beater in terms of race, class, or income, there are personality patterns which appear in many of the cases. "The typical wife beater may be a man who holds strong stereotypes of masculine and feminine roles. He may have doubts about his own masculinity, and beats his wife to cover up these fears. He is often rigid and uncompromising. Commonly he has a strong set of moral standards. His justification, when he beats his wife, may be that she has in some way violated his standards.

"Almost always he will argue that he has a right to beat his wife. He will say that she is being punished for some wrongdoing. Or he tends to regard her as his property, and to beat her as his right.

"The woman he marries often shares the same views she feels the woman is dependent, inferior, not as capable. When such a couple comes for counseling and encounters a female professional, they are often both surprised to find that a woman can be competent, wise, supportive.

The typical response of the wife-beater, when a policeman comes to arrest him, is "You can't do this to me — she's my legal wife!"

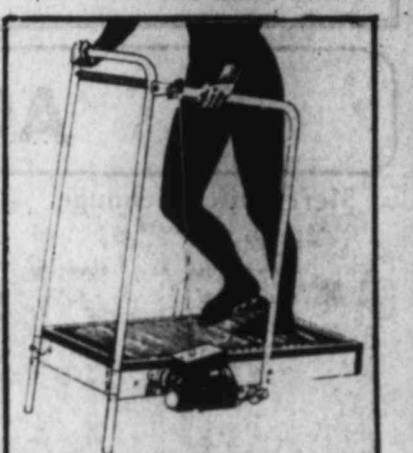

The social ramifications of wife beating are extensive, Miss Davidson feels, and extend far beyond the borders of the immediate family. "The child growing up in a home where he sees his mother beaten by his father, although he may be horrified by the act at first, may become used to it. When no help is forthcoming to the mother, he may come to believe that the father was, indeed right, in beating her (and the wife-beater invariably has, and states, 'good' reasons for his actions). He may abuse and mistreat the mother himself and eventually, when he marries, beat up his own wife. The cycle is repeated again and again."

Thus, Miss Davidson said, it is not realistic to consider the problem as one affecting only the home or the immediate family, which the larger society may safely ignore. As long as there is toleration for the problem, she said, we cannot hope to solve it. "It is not just the act itself, but the toleration of it by the community that works against us. As long as we tolerate this kind of violence, for whatever reason, we will have other kinds of violence."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE Bob Bergland has proposed to allow wheat farmers special grazing and haying privileges on their 1979 crop.

Comments on the proposal must be received by March 8 to be considered. Under the proposal farmers would be allowed to graze cattle or cut hay on wheat acreage equal to a maximum of 40 percent of their total intended planting of wheat.

THE DEFICIENCY PAYMENT RATE for 1978-crop wheat was 52 cents per bushel. The 1979 deficiency payment rate will be computed in December. The proposal does not provide for an advance payment or minimum payment guarantee this year as was provided to 1978 special wheat grazing and hay program participants.

Comments on the proposal should be sent to Acting Director, Production Adjustment Division, Room 3630 South, USDA, ASCS, P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D. C. 20013.

MEANWHILE, BERGLAND SAID TUESDAY he would not reconsider a decision not to have a mandatory acreage diversion or set-aside program for 1979-crop cotton.

JAPAN IS REPORTED TO BE PLANNING to suspend raw cotton imports from El Salvador until Japanese nationals are safe in that Central American country.

Clever Parkers Aid Producers

As often during the daytime than at night. This suggests, he said, hogs desire less warmth at night when heat loss in the building is greatest — a time when heating is the most expensive.

Unfortunately, scientist Stanley Curtis said, confinement settings have given the farmer almost total control over a pig's surroundings and environment.

He's not playing with it," said Curtis as he nodded to a pig pressing the button. "He knows there will be heat if it's pressed."

And, of what value is this knowledge? First, Curtis said pigs gain weight more efficiently at a certain temperature.

Second, Curtis said farmers many times over compensate when heating confinement barns, not knowing exactly how warm the structure should be.

Furthermore, the experiment has shown hogs wanted heat at least twice as often during the daytime than at night.

in the control groups, hogs kept at a constant temperature ate less and gained less than the other groups.

The hogs regulating their own temperature fell in the middle in consumption, Curtis said, but were the most efficient gainers.

Curtis, a Purdue University graduate, expects to work on the experiments for another several years before issuing a final report.

Texas Farmers', Ranchers' Incomes Expected To Hold Near 1978 Levels

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Net income of Texas farmers and ranchers this year is expected to hold near the improved 1978 level, says Dr. Carl Anderson, marketing economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Anderson also expects income prospects to be brighter for livestock producers than for crop farmers.

Gross agricultural sales in Texas last year are expected to exceed $8 billion, or about $1 billion more than 1977 receipts.

heavy placements of grain in the farmer-owned reserve program and the small cotton crop, says Anderson.

Record grain supplies overshadow prospects for much improvement in earnings of crop farmers.

Prices for wheat, grain sorghum and corn will likely be near CCC (Commodity Credit Corp.) loan levels when harvest time rolls around, Anderson says.

Commodity prices have been boosted largely by increased feeding of livestock, strong domestic and export demand.

Farm exports may total about $30 billion in 1978-79, up from $27.3 billion the previous year.

Unlike the weakening trend of the American economy, economic growth is improving in many foreign countries.

The economist also foresees a continuing escalation of production and marketing costs of U.S. agricultural commodities.

The rising cost of energy has dealt a severe financial blow to all sectors of the agricultural economy, according to Anderson.

The resulting setback in Texas agricultural income is sizeable, as the value of crop production from irrigated farms represents about 60 percent of total crop sales.

Fertilizer Man Sees Price Rise

LAS CRUCES (Special) — "The time is nearing when we will no longer enjoy the relatively low fertilizer prices we have had during the past three years," said Leslie Clayshulte, manager of Agricultural Products and Seed Co., Mesquite.

Clayshulte shared his views on soil fertility problems and solutions during the first Fertilizer Conference, at New Mexico State University.

He also pointed out that during the last 11 years fertilizers and agricultural chemicals have risen from 40 to 80 percent while the cost for land interest, seed and transportation have risen from 150 to 250 percent.

Trucker's Gunplay Leaves Two Dead

WINNFIELD, La. (AP)—A truck driver was arrested on murder charges Tuesday in a series of shootings that left two residents dead and two other persons wounded — shootings police said occurred when a man fired his rifle from a car.

"He shot people on impulse, with no pattern at all," said a spokesman for the Winn Parish Sheriff's Department. "It was in four different parts of town."

Held in the Winn jail without bond was William Glen Ray, 39, of Winnfield. He faces two counts of first degree murder, two counts of attempted murder and one count of aggravated battery, sheriff's deputies said.

Investigators said Ray was arrested about 15 minutes after the shooting began Tuesday at the Village Inn, a restaurant-motel in this small town of fewer than 10,000 people some 30 miles north of Alexandria.

Witnesses said a man approached the back of the motel in a car, stopping his car in the dirt parking lot. He then brandished a .357 Magnum rifle, there were shouts and a single gunshot, witnesses said.

The first victim was identified by police as Willie Jean Davis, 25, of Winnfield, shot in the head. With her was her 6-year-old daughter Kimberly, who fell and injured her head, leading police to think she too had been wounded. Officers said later that the girl had not been shot, and was treated at a local hospital for a minor injury and released.

Killed was Earl Phillips, 48, also of Winnfield, who police said was shot in the chest.

Police said Jerryal Baham, 24, of Winnfield, was wounded in the shoulder, and Samuel Rushing, 46, of Gibbsland, was shot in the hip.

An employee at the restaurant-motel where the shooting began, Theresa Ponder, said Ray frequently came to the restaurant and was well known around town.

"He was real sweet all the time," she said.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — Because I am physically handicapped (partial paralysis of the hands and legs) I have found it almost impossible to gain employment, in spite of an excellent record in college. I once found some temporary work through the Texas Rehabilitation Commission but that ended months ago.

Recently, I took a U.S. Civil Service examination in hopes that I might qualify for a job as a bilingual telephone counselor at a government agency. I am fluent in Spanish and my Master's Degree seemed to definitely qualify me for such work. I was thrilled when I received a letter asking if I were available for the job. I was interviewed in Spanish and offered the job, which I enthusiastically accepted. I was told to report to work in two weeks. A few days later, however, I was called and told that I could not be hired because my college grade point average was 3.49 instead of the required 3.50. Needless to say, I was bitterly disappointed. This job was the first ray of hope I have ever had to use my education and ability in Spanish. Please check into this and see if there is any way that I might still be able to get this job. K.J. — Houston.

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — There is a way! Officials at the Office of Personnel Management (formerly the Civil Service Commission) advise me that they are impressed enough with your abilities to request that you be approved as an exempt appointment, which is available to applicants who are handicapped. You meet the qualifying criteria under this special appointive category and you should be going to work soon as a bilingual counselor. Congratulations and good luck in your new job.

MESSAGE — I have completed nearly 26 years of military service in the United States Army Reserve. I was recently shocked to learn that I will not be eligible for retired pay at age 60 because I had no active duty during a time of war. I was never told that active duty during a war period was required for retirement pay. When my unit was called to active duty in 1940, I was advised to remain on the farm as that was a critical occupation.

I heard that another retired reservist who is in the same situation won a court case and will be getting his retirement check soon. I think that I am entitled to a pension too and would appreciate anything that you can do to help in this matter. R.M. — Bryan

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — It is true that a retired reservist won a court case regarding denial of his pension but the Supreme Court, on April 4, 1977, reversed that lower court decision. According to officials at the Department of the Army the law specifically states that, to qualify for such a pension, an individual who was a member of a reserve unit before August 16, 1945, must have served on extended active duty during World War I, World War II or the Korean Conflict. Unfortunately, in spite of your years of service in the National Guard, you fail to meet the wartime service requirement and are not eligible for retirement pay.

Mary Study In Fidelity

her body a life of the spirit.

There is a mystical grandeur about Mary, who carried the wondrous light of God within her being. She was miraculously lifted to a higher plane, where her maternity and spirituality came together into an indefinable whole.

If there ever was a time when the mothers of children yet to be born needed to absorb Mary's lowly, believing attitude and her explicit faith in God's promises, it is now. She seems to tell us that it takes only a handful of believing mothers and fathers to change the world for the better.

THE BIRTH OF JESUS

Unidentified Gas Sickens Students

CLEVELAND (AP) — About 100 Longwood Elementary School students were overcome by unidentified gas fumes Tuesday, but nearly all were released from hospitals after they were examined and, in some cases, given oxygen, officials said.

The youngsters had been suffering from nausea and headaches.

"They are keeping a few for observation, but none is serious," deputy school superintendent James Tanner said.

Donald Smith, a third-grade teacher at the 500-pupil school, said he smelled something strange when he reported for work, but most students did not become ill until mid-morning.

East Ohio Gas Co. tests at the school showed no natural gas leak, according to utility spokesman Michael Walsh. Nevertheless, company crews continued to work with fire department officials in efforts to identify the source of the fumes.

Debra Golston, whose 11-year-old daughter Tonya Russell is a fifth grader, was at the school while it was being evacuated.

"It was like a panic because they didn't know what to do with the kids," Mrs. Golston said. "The ambulances were all gone so they put some kids on fire trucks."

Tonya described the experience this way: "First I felt drowsy, then I threw up a couple of times. When we went outside, I fell on the ground in the snow and I couldn't get up."

Mrs. Golston and her daughter were interviewed as children were being released from St. Vincent's Charity Hospital — one of at least 10 hospitals to which children were taken.

Another mother meeting her daughter at St. Vincent's was Gayle Jackson, who went to the school when she was notified that her nephew was ill. "I was shocked because at first I thought it was a fire," she said. "Then when they said it was gas I was scared it was going to blow up."

Escapee Thought Killed In Robbery

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Lubbock County Sheriff's deputies Tuesday were notified that a man killed in an armed robbery attempt last week in Memphis, Tenn., may be county jail escapee Danny Burtis Eoff.

But until fingerprint samples of the dead man arrive in Lubbock for comparison with jail records, a sheriff's office spokesman said, Eoff still is considered alive and at large.

The 24-year-old Eoff was discovered missing about 1:30 a.m. Jan. 22. He is believed to have slipped past jail officials Jan. 19, only days before he was to be transferred to the state prison in Huntsville to serve a 15-year armed robbery sentence.

Memphis police said that the man believed to be Eoff entered a burlesque lounge in that city late Feb. 21 and attempted to rob the club's patrons. A security guard, arriving to relieve the on-duty guard, surprised the bandit as he was tying up his victims and killed him with a single shotgun blast. A Memphis police department spokesman said.

The Memphis official said that fingerprint samples sent to Lubbock authorities apparently were lost in the mail and that the man killed in the hold-up attempt has not been positively identified. Members of Eoff's family are expected to arrive in Memphis today to view the body for identification purposes.

Officials said the dead man had registered at a Memphis hotel using an El Paso address and was driving a car with license tags which were traced to an El Paso woman.

Eoff, who was convicted of the April 2, 1978 armed robbery of Smuggler's Inn restaurant at 1919 50th St., apparently slipped past jailers between noon and 1 p.m. Jan. 19 when inmates were sent down from the fourth floor for a recreational period in an adjoining annex.

Jail administrator Gary McGrew said Eoff then apparently got into the basement and hid while prisoners were being led between the cell block and the annex. He then apparently lifted the plumbing access corridor cover and climbed over a fence to escape.

Jailers did not discover the escape until almost three days later, McGrew said, because they were "counting forms, not people" during their routine prisoner checks.

Tech Regents Get Approval

AUSTIN (Special) — The Texas Senate Nominations Committee unanimously approved Gov. Bill Clements' recommendations for Texas Tech University regents this morning.

The committee approved the reappointment of Texas Instruments, Inc., president J. Fred Bucy of Dallas and the appointment of B.J. Pevehouse, a Midland oil executive, and Dr. Nathan Gallowsay, an Odessa physician.

A spokesman for Sen. E.L. Short said very little discussion preceded the unanimous approval of the three men and predicted the full Senate would consider the nominations in about a week.

Pevehouse was named to succeed Andrew J. Kemp Jr. of Fort Worth and Gallowsay was chosen to replace Judson F. Williams of El Paso.

Shallowater Man Given Probation

A 72nd District Court jury has sentenced 19-year-old Steve Lee Menton of Shallowater to 10 years probation on his plea of guilty to burglary of a habitation.

Menton was accused in a Nov. 25 break-in at a Carlisle home. The jury deliberated five hours — from 4:20 p.m. to 9:20 p.m. Tuesday — before returning the punishment.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney David Nelson opposed probation.

Menton was defended by attorney Wanda Wray.

Agency To Protect Whales Off Hawaii

LEAVE THE WHALES ALONE — Boatloads of tourists have been harassing whales spending the winter off Hawaii, so the National Marine Fisheries Service is moving to protect the giant mammals.

Officials say the horde of tourists is restricting the whales from breeding and nursing their young, potentially endangering the whale population.

The new rules prohibit using airplanes to circle or buzz whales, separating a whale from a calf, herding or driving whales or approaching within 300 yards of humpback whales in their breeding grounds.

Four Of Five Americans Favor Hands Off Iran

By LOUIS HARRIS

Americans are still reeling from the unexpected and dramatic shift of power in Iran. Yet they are stoical about the change. By 81-15 percent, a massive majority feels that the United States should "do nothing — Iran has a right to decide its own affairs."

Americans hold this view even though a 65-29 percent majority feels that the deposed shah was friendly to our national interests and a 63-22 percent majority feels that the Ayatollah Khomeini will be unfriendly.

However, when asked where we ought to place the blame for this anti-American change in Iran, Americans indicate that the shah must be held primarily responsible.

—By 52-30 percent, a clear majority of Americans feels that a major cause for the turmoil and upheaval in Iran can be traced directly to "the shah running too repressive a regime." Basically, people believe that the shah was singularly unresponsive to his own people and, in effect, deserved to lose power.

—A 69-19 percent majority rejects the claims of some that a major reason for the revolution in Iran was "the U.S. not helping the shah to keep power when he needed help."

—By an even more substantial 70-17 percent, a big majority rejects the charge that the Iranian overturn can be traced back to "policies of the Carter administration."

—A somewhat lower 58-23 percent majority also rejects the view that blame for the upheaval in Iran is due to "policies of the administrations prior to the Carter administration." As there is more and more criticism of the president and his foreign policy advisers for the way they handled the Iranian situation, the White House may be tempted to say they inherited the shah from the Nixon and Ford administrations. This kind of countercharge is not likely to wash with the public.

—By 56-29 percent, a clear majority also rejects the claim that the shah's demise was aided and abetted by "President Carter in emphasizing the lack of human rights in Iran under the shah." Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has made this charge openly, but it has not caught on with the public.

There is one other charge that might take hold in time:

—It is only by a relatively narrow 44-38 percent that Americans do not accept the claim that real blame for Iran's turnaround can be traced to "U.S. intelligence underestimating the strength and appeal of the extreme Moslem religious movement." With doubts about the CIA increasing in this country in recent years, the intelligence community might become a scapegoat in the Iranian situation. For instance, the relatively well-informed and articulate college-educated segment of the American population rejects attributing the blame for the situation in Iran to intelligence failure, but only by a narrow 46-41 percent. This same group places the blame on the shah by a substantial 87-31 percent.

These early reactions of Americans would seem to indicate that President Carter and his foreign policy advisers might not be the target of public blame for Iran. However when the very same cross section of 1,199 adults interviewed in the ABC News-Harris Survey were asked to rate President Carter on his handling of the situation in Iran, by 68-23 percent, they gave him negative marks. The president's vulnerability on this issue is simply that he was in control of the U.S. government when the trouble occurred in Iran. As unfair as this might seem, it is nonetheless a political reality.

Americans do not seem to be in a highly retributive mood over Iran right now. But with investigations by Congress and post mortems by the media certain to take place, it is probably sound to conclude that the last has not yet been heard about why Iran went from being a staunch ally of the U.S. to, at best, a neutral state. Feelings could well be embittered if there is an energy crunch in this country, due, in part, to lessened oil supplies imported from Iran. The one surer bet is that in the Iranian matter there are likely to be no winners in the United States.

Outdoor Film Sessions Tax Movie Crew

By MIKE SILVERMAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Filming the Forest of Arden scenes from Shakespeare's "As You Like It" in a Scottish woodland proved to be no bed of roses for the cast and crew for the television production. "We never knew when we'd be interrupted by threshing machines cutting away a few fields off, or birds feeding high up in the trees," said Basil Coleman, director of the joint BBC-Time Life production. "Some of the actors had difficulty hearing each other at first after moving outdoors from the confines of the rehearsal studio." "As You Like It," generally regarded as one of Shakespeare's greatest romantic comedies, will be seen on Channel 5, Wednesday 7 p.m., the second in a cycle of all 37 Shakespeare plays.

Coleman said he had scouted the location in and around Glamis Castle during the winter, and hoped he would be able to give an impression of changing seasons, filming the early scenes in pine-wood, "which has a cold look."

"But when we got up there in June, the pine-wood was surrounded by 3-foot-high ferns which contradicted the mood," Coleman recalled in a telephone interview from London.

"In one respect, though, we were extremely lucky," he said. "It only rained one night when we weren't shooting and a half-hour of the last day. Knowing British weather, you can understand how unusual that is."

In "As You Like It," the major characters end up in the idyllic forest because they are banished from their normal stations in life. Rosalind, the heroine, is exiled by her uncle the evil duke, who is jealous of her.

Orlando, the hero, is kicked out of the house by his brother, who wants the family inheritance for himself. The brother chases after Orlando, but has a change of heart, while the duke enters the forest and undergoes a religious conversion. "When the characters go into the wood, they learn consideration, kindness in a place where nature has a soothing, healing effect," Coleman said. "They learn a quite different way of life where they don't need armies to guard their estates and so on. The only killing made necessary is for food."

The characters also find love — in just about every variety, he said, "from the sensual, sexual kind displayed by Touchstone the fool, to the sophisticated and romantic, but realistic, love of Rosalind."

After a typically Shakespearean tangle of disguises and mismatched affections is resolved in the fifth act, the play ends happily with a quadruple marriage ceremony.

Coleman, who also directs opera and has just finished a production of Donizetti's "Don Pasquale," had an experienced Shakespearean actress, Helen Mirren, as his Rosalind. She has appeared in several Royal Shakespeare Company productions and was seen on PBS last fall in a British production of Harold Pinter's "The Collection."

Also starring in the production is Brian Stirling as Orlando, Angharad Rees as Rosalind's cousin Celia, and James Bolam as Touchstone. Richard Pasco, who was Brutus in the series-opener "Julius Caesar" plays the malcontent Jacques, who gets the play's most famous speech, "All the world's a stage."
Other plays in the first season of the six-year project are "Romeo and Juliet," "Measure for Measure," "Richard II" and "Henry VIII."

Public TV Lures More Diverse Audience

NEW YORK (AP) — If the numbers mean anything at all, public TV's elitist image is — or soon will be — a thing of the past.

"There is no doubt about it," says Ron Devillier, director of program administration and acquisition for the Public Broadcasting Service. "We're being watched now by people who didn't used to look at public television."

"Something has happened in the last year in our audience profile. The number of non-white viewers is up 17 percent, blue-collar viewers up 22 percent, people with less than high school education up 23 percent."

"I wish I had a smart answer why," says Devillier. "Maybe it's the diversity of our programming, maybe it's some of the things we've had on, like 'Live from Wolfram' and 'Grand Ole Opry.' But that's not the whole story. Even programs that have been on for a while, like 'Nova,' are picking up viewers from all quarters."

Devillier's figures were based on an audience survey by the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week of Dec. 7-17, which showed non-commercial television reaching 37.3 percent of all non-white households, 36.2 percent of all homes in which the head of household has less than high school education, and 42.9 percent of blue-collar households.

"Figures like these," says Devillier, "tell us public television can absorb a broadening base of programs, and we can do that without losing some sense of our mission — putting high quality on the air."

There are a number of possible explanations for the dramatic change in audience profile, not the least of which is the fact public TV reaches more households than ever before. The recent report of the Carnegie Commission on the Future of Public Broadcasting said the public TV signal now reaches 80 percent of America's homes.

"The number of Americans viewing public television at least once a month has risen by 23 percent since 1973, to 46 million, or 63 percent of television households by March of 1978," Carnegie said.

Although the total still is only a fraction of the audience for commercial television, there is a concentrated effort to interest viewers from all social and economic circumstances in public TV.

"We did a great deal more advertising this fall than ever before," Devillier says. "And, in fact, we probably are putting on public television things that expand our audience. We wouldn't have had 'Grand Ole Opry' a couple years ago."

"We're not so worried about reaching the mass audience, but we are worried about getting things that appeal to all the people."

The Carnegie report underlined that point: "The public system seeks to offer something of interest to a variety of specialized audiences, a service that commercial broadcasting cannot provide."

Public broadcasting begins its "Festival '79" membership drive March 3, and there's no doubt in Devillier's mind that the twice-a-year effort pays off in both size and composition of the audience.

"In 'Festival '78,' we felt a large number of people found us then, and stayed with us to discover the other things we had to offer. A lot of our stations are UHF, a little trouble to tune in, and some people just needed to go there and sample what we had."

"We're going to continue to experiment," says Devillier, "and not get into that format of situation comedy followed by mystery and so on, that sort of thing."

Devillier says tries to make "Festival" programming "unabashedly glamorous" in an effort to attract as large and diverse an audience as possible.

"We'll test a real jumble of things during 'Festival,' from 'Einstein' and 'Einstein's Universe' to a group of M-G-M musicals, like 'Band Wagon,' 'High Society' and 'Singin' in the Rain.' What could be more diverse than that?"

"And we're looking real hard at next season," he says. "We're looking at 'Cosmos' with Carl Sagan for 1980, something in the 'World of Man' mold, and a series called 'Musical Comedy Tonight.' Maybe even an 'American Mystery Theater.'"

Critic Echoes Ancient Cry, 'Down In Front!'

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — Wild Bill, my brother, went grousing the other day about Showblockers. They're the guys who always seem to sit in front of him at Broadway shows and block his view of same.

Showblockers, he said, are too tall, or sit too tall, or have very big heads. If the head is tiny, the shoulders under it are huge and obscure the view. Or the head in front has way too much hair.

I know whereof Wild Bill speaks. Last week, I was at a nifty show here, "Coccollico," when a quiet old man in a blue business suit came in late and sat down in front of me.

He didn't look tall, maybe 5-foot-8. But he was a bony Showblocker. He sat tall, maybe 6-foot-2 from the seat up.

Worse, he was one of those guys who knows your next move without even turning around. You lean left, he leans left. Lean right, bam, same thing happens. You know the kind.

This party was taken care of by the simple expedient of waiting until intermission, then removing all the screws in his theater seat while he was out in the lobby having a smoke.

He returned late during the second act, sat down and disappeared from view with a muffled cry.

But you cannot do this with guys who actually are tall, the ones who stand at 6-foot-2 and sit at 7-foot-9.

You tinker with their seat, not only will they not disappear from view with a muffled cry, they will turn around and make you disappear from view with a muffled cry.

Same goes for guys whose heads aren't big but whose shoulders resemble Mt. Everest in tweed. They usually are dentists who played college football, usually guard for USC.

You tinker with their seat, they tend to commence much gnashing of teeth. With your teeth.

On the bright side, Showblockers with very big heads don't often sit in front of you. They sit in front of your date. The polite thing here is to ask this Showblocker if he'd kindly remove his head.

If you are chicken, which is nothing to be ashamed of, just shrug and tell her, "You aren't missing anything."

Never offer to exchange seats with your date, though. It is bad form. So is a muttered threat to set fire to the huge ball of fuzz atop the noodle of the furry kind of Showblocker.

Here, you just pretend you're in a war movie about Guadalcanal. Creep up, gently part the follicle foliage, peer through it and whisper, "I don't like it, Lieutenant. It's too quiet."

Court Studies Marvin Film Dealings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Hollywood producer testified Tuesday that he was prompted to make the film "Monte Walsh" after Michelle Triola Marvin told him Lee Marvin wanted to star in it. Marvin is defending himself against a suit by Miss Marvin, who lived with the actor for six years and seeks $1.8 million — what she says was half his assets during that time — because she gave up her career to concentrate on his. Producer Bobby Roberts denied Miss Marvin sought a fee for her help or that he offered her a Rolls Royce in payment. He said he once offered to buy her an outfit similar to one she had admired on his wife, but she refused it. Roberts said that later, after she and Marvin had separated, Miss Marvin sued him for compensation and the case was settled for $750. The "Monte Walsh" deal has been used by Miss Marvin's attorney to demonstrate her involvement in his career during the time they lived together. Earlier evidence showed Marvin earned $1 million for his role in the movie and the producers received six-figure fees. Roberts said he has known Miss Marvin for more than 20 years and once appeared with her in Las Vegas when both were dancers. He joined a growing parade of Marvin witnesses who demeaned her talent. "Michelle was not a good dancer," Roberts testified. Marvin's lawyers have already called more witnesses than the 17 summoned by Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchellson. Many of them are the actor's friends in the movie community.

Davis Mansion Set For Judge's Visit

FORT WORTH (AP) — The judge in the divorce trial recessed court at noon Tuesday so he could be given a personal tour of the $6 million Davis mansion, one of the largest pieces of personal property to be decided in the settlement. Retired State District Judge John Barron of Bryan proposed to attorneys for both sides that they take the tour Tuesday "to break the damn monotony" of the often-dry financial testimony that has been given in the week-old trial.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram said the judge wants to tour the palatial 20-room residence to see how it has been maintained since it is the largest physical piece of property at stake in the divorce proceeding.

The home is centered on 181 acres with a view of the Fort Worth skyline. Construction on the mansion, scene of the 1976 shootings that left two dead and two wounded, was begun in 1969 and completed in late 1972.

Mrs. Davis recently called in a firm to conduct a major spring cleaning of the mansion in anticipation of the judge's visit.

Among the major chores was cleaning the carpets in the 19,000-square-foot home which includes an indoor swimming pool, valuable antiques, 19th century art works and six bathrooms.

In Brazil, where voting is obligatory, voting for an animal or fictitious character has long been a way of registering protest to official candidates.

Mart Posts Record Dip

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market posted its steepest loss of the year Tuesday as the cumulative effects of weeks of worrisome news about oil, inflation and international turmoil swept through Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 14.21 points to 807.3, its largest loss since a 17.84 point drop last Dec. 18.

Few issues escaped traders' pessimistic mood. The tally of trades at the 4 p.m. close showed 1,404 issues declined, only 180 gained and 288 were unchanged.

Analysts cited several developments which added to growing pessimism but said no single event was as important as the cumulative effects of what analyst Newton Zinder termed "a steady pounding of bad news" in recent weeks.

Big Board volume came to 31.47 million shares, against 22.62 million the previous session. That was the heaviest trading since turnover of 34.23 million shares on the NYSE Jan. 26.

'Roots' Sequel Proves Ratings Success

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly one-third of the homes in the nation with TV watched at least part of "Roots: The Next Generations," and the miniseries helped ABC to the second-highest weekly rating on record, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC's research department estimated 110 million people saw all or part of "Roots II," as the sequel to the network's record-setting miniseries was called. The estimated audience for "Roots," broadcast Jan. 23-30, 1977, was 130 million.

"Roots II" delivered an average rating of 30.1 for seven episodes. The original registered an average rating of 44.9 for eight chapters, with a high of 51.1 for the conclusion.

Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, an average of 30.1 percent saw all or part of "Roots II."

ABC listed the 11 top-rated programs for the week ending Feb. 25, including No. 1 "Mork and Mindy" and the six episodes of "Roots II" shown during the period, and compiled a rating of 44.9 for 27, second only to the 35.5 recorded during the first "Roots" week.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 27 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC. The previous high for the current season was 29.5, registered twice during weeks in which major sporting events were broadcast.

The original built an audience consistently through the week. But "Roots II" peaked at 32.7 for Part III, then dipped again to 28.6 for the concluding chapter Sunday night.

While "Roots" caught both ABC and the competing networks by surprise, NBC and CBS through all they could muster at "Roots II," and the miniseries was equal to the barrage that included a couple of major movies from CBS and installments from two miniseries on NBC.

CBS' top-rated program was "60 Minutes," No. 12 in the ratings, and NBC's best was the concluding chapter of "Backstairs at the White House," ranked 16th.

Consequently, CBS finished the week nearly nine full ratings points behind ABC, at 18.2, and NBC had a rating of 16.5.

The five lowest-rated programs of the week were from NBC, in order, "Brothers and Sisters," "Weekend," "Women in White," "Sweepstakes" and "Little Women." Aside from "Weekend" and "Women in White," a miniseries, the others premiered at midseason.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated programs, all on ABC:

"Mork and Mindy," with a rating of 34.2 representing 25.8 million homes. "Eight is Enough," 33.7 or 25.1 million. "Laverne and Shirley," 33.2 or 24.7 million. "Roots," Part III, 32.7 or 24.4 million. "Happy Days," Part I, 32.2 or 24 million. "Roots," Part IV, 31.8 or 23.7 million. "Roots," Part V, 31.7 or 23.6 million. "Angie," 30.7 or 22.9 million.

"Roots," Part II, 29.5 or 22 million, and "Roots," Part VI, 28.9 or 21.5 million.

The next 10 shows: "Roots," Part VII. ABC; "60 Minutes," "Alice" and "All in the Family," all CBS; "Love Boat," ABC; Monday Movie: "Backstairs at the White House," NBC; "Celebrity Challenge of the Sexes" and "M-A-S-H," both CBS, and "CHiPs" and Sunday Big Event: "The Sound of Music," both NBC.

Radio City Music Hall Readied For New Role

NEW YORK (AP) — The owners of the financially troubled Radio City Music Hall are creating a new national production company to turn the theater into the heart of an entertainment center.

Alton G. Marshall, president of Radio City Music Hall Corp., a subsidiary of Rockefeller Center Inc., said at a news conference the new company would establish Radio City as a "major, broad-based entertainment center in the city and will have national impact in every phase of the entertainment field."

Whether the theater's Rockettes chorus line, a Radio City tradition for nearly 45 years, would be part of the company's new image was undecided. The 45-year-old music hall in the past has been primarily a movie theater with the Rockettes providing pre-show entertainment.

Robert F. Jani, former Walt Disney World vice president, has been named president and chief executive officer of the company.

Jani said a specific format for the new company has not been determined, but said he was "hopeful" of including the Rockettes.

Contract negotiations with the troupe are expected to begin in the near future.

Jani would not pinpoint specific future undertakings. "We're looking into the entire spectrum of the entertainment field."

According to Marshall, this includes film and television productions, convention and industrial show productions, music publishing and special event programming. "We're starting with a blank sheet," Jani commented.

The new corporation will embark on its new format some time after April 25. Marshall said the "entertainment center" would be open the year around, except for about a month when it will be closed for restorations.

Marshall said that despite corporation losses that totaled $2.4 million in 1978, the family-entertainment concept would be retained in the new center.

"We didn't fail," he said; "2.2 million people came through those doors last year."

He added that the format of movies with a stage show had merely "outlived its usefulness." He added that although the traditional Music Hall style was finished, the new format would help preserve the city landmark.

Prisoner Stand-In Just Doing Favor

CINCINNATI (AP) — Steve Madden wanted his brother-in-law to "have a nice weekend," jail officials said. But it was the way he went about it that got him into trouble.

Officials said Madden reported to the Community Correctional Institution Friday, posing as Seldon Elam, his wife's brother.

Elam was sentenced to 30 days in jail for receiving stolen property and was serving the sentence on weekends. A laboratory technician in the infirmary noticed that Madden didn't look like Elam and notified institution authorities.

Madden was charged with criminal trespassing and obstructing official business and Elam was charged with escape. Both are scheduled to appear in court March 6.

TEX-ANN OF THE MONTH—Jana Robinson, left, of Smyer recently was awarded a statuette as Tex-Ann of the Month at South Plains College. The presentation was made by Mary Shea, Tex-Ann director. Miss Robinson, a 1978 graduate of Smyer High School, was chosen by her teammates for her enthusiasm and contributions to the women's drill, dance and spirit team.

Surprises Contained In Oscar Nominations

Were the film studios passing up a bonanza all those years when they ignored the subject of Vietnam? You might think so, judging from 17 nominations for "The Deer Hunter" and "Coming Home." And, judging from past performance, Francis Coppola may well be in Oscar contention next year with his long-awaited "Apocalypse Now."

Who says the feel-good movie is "in" nowadays? Except for "Heaven Can Wait," the top six films in number of nominations were downbeat dramas.

What happened to "Days of Heaven"? Despite raves from many critics, the gem-like film could only muster mentions for cinematography, costume design, score and sound. Perhaps it was overlooked because its director-writer, producer and leading actors declined to do anything to publicize the film.

Money isn't everything. The biggest moneymaker of 1978, "Grease," won a single nomination for best song. The most expensive film of 1978 (or any year), "Superman," was mentioned only for film editing, sound and score. The Academy's board of governors voted it a special award for visual effects.

Voting procedure for the foreign language film needs an overhaul. Why was the sublime "Autumn Sonata" overlooked for such films as "Hungarians" and "White Bim Black Ear"? Because the countries themselves nominated the films. Although it is spoken in Swedish, "Autumn Sonata" was filmed in Norway for a German company.

Can anyone whistle any of the nominated songs? Song writing for movies is largely limited to tunes sung over the titles by recording stars. Most of the songs are intrusive and-or banal. Perhaps the Oscar for best song is an idea whose time has gone, along with awards for title writing (silent movies) and black-and-white photography.

Still unresolved is what constitutes supporting performance. Jack Albertson, Robert De Niro, and George Burns have won support Oscars in what seemed like starring roles. Now Maggie Smith is nominated for supporting actress in "California Suite." Whom did she support? She and the other seven leads in the episodic film are listed as stars.

Brad Davis must feel like the odd man out. "Midnight Express" racked up six nominations, but none for Davis, who carried the harrowing tale on his youthful shoulders. Oh well, he got the Golden Globe for best acting debut and has many good performances ahead of him.

The Academy retains the awards for animated shorts, although Hollywood hasn't made any for years. There's no category to honor animated features, hence such 1978 achievements as "Water-ship Down," "Lord of the Rings" and "The Rescuers" were overlooked.

Warren Beatty tied Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane" record with four nominations for "Heaven Can Wait." But Beatty had to share his mentions for writing (with Elaine May) and directing (with Buck Henry). Welles collaborated only with Herman Mankiewicz on the script.

Small Crowd Attends Mardi Gras Celebration

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One of the smallest crowds in years celebrated Mardi Gras in the French Quarter on Tuesday, as a 12-day-old police strike that stripped the holiday of its elaborate parades sent thousands of revelers to the suburbs.

While some revelers held a mock jazz funeral for Mardi Gras in front of St. Louis Cathedral, National Guardsmen and state police, many of them seeing the holiday for the first time, patrolled the area in the absence of the striking city officers.

"I hereby declare Mardi Gras 1979 to be officially dead," shouted New Orleans coroner Frank Minyard, standing atop a coffin labeled Bad Spirits. "And I officially open Mardi Gras 1980 now."

It was a brash moment of Carnival in the midst of the annual boozey street party in the French Quarter.

Things got off to a slow start. But by the time the Olympia Brass Band worked its way through the crowd to the cathedral, Mardi Gras was definitely alive and swinging, in spite of the coffin.

Minyard, who blows jazz trumpet as a hobby, marched with the band as it sloped through an exotic sea of painted and costumed celebrators in Jackson Square, playing a mournful dirge.

After his pronouncement, the band, in jazz funeral style, switched to the joyous, "Oh, Didn't He Ramble," and marched away, trailed by a dancing throng of clowns, crusaders, chorus girls and tourists.

Barred intersections set off a 21-block section of the French Quarter for the annual downtown blast.

Observers agreed that, though lively, it was one of the smallest crowds in years, with comfortable walking room on streets which normally would be jammed wall to wall with people.

"I guess a lot of people went to Fat City," said Glenda D'Arcangelo of New Orleans, referring to a suburban area which was the scene of one of the transplanted Carnival parades.

An estimated half-million spectators stood in the sun along the suburban parade routes to snatch at the beads, doubloons and other googaws flung from the floats by masked members of Carnival krewe.

City negotiations with the Teamsters-affiliated Police Association of Louisiana resumed, but with a difference.

Reynard Rochon, chief administrative officer, arrived at the session all smiles, tossing handfuls of Carnival beads to waiting reporters.

The union sent 1,100 of the city's 1,514 policemen out on strike on Feb. 16 to back demands for higher pay and other benefits.

On another labor front, negotiations were set to resume Wednesday on a contract for firefighters, and union leaders said they expected no problem in reaching agreement before Friday's deadline.

In Lafayette, in the Cajun country of Central Louisiana, this was the biggest Mardi Gras ever, with the crowd swelling to an estimated 200,000, at least a third more than last year.

Brewster Faces 'Big' Problem

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Ralph Brewster knows good and well when Thursday night's game with Texas A&M rolls around he will draw a big assignment—both literally and physically. But it is Brewster shaking in his tennis shoes because his matchup during the second-round of the Southwest Conference basketball tournament is against none other all-SWC performer Rudy Woods, a lad that could fit right at home in a forest of Sequoias since he stands 6-11.

Well, Brewster says, gulp. "It will be exciting to play against him again," said Brewster. "But they also have some other people that can do the job underneath. You just can't watch Woods all the time."

Brewster will give away only three inches to the Aggies' freshman standout, but in basketball that's enough.

Entering the contest Thursday, Woods leads the league in the field goal percentage department at 62.3. But the Raiders have been relatively successful in stopping him this year. In Tech's 67-63 win over the Aggies, Woods went only 2-for-7 from the field and wound up with only seven points. HE led the Aggies in scoring, though, in a 68-63 victory over Tech at College Station, thus causing some to think that as Woods goes, so go the Aggies.

"Sure Woods is important to their game," said Brewster. "But they also have some other people that can do the job underneath. You just can't watch Woods all the time."

Brewster is right on the money. Rynn Wright, a 6-6 forward, can also do the job. He scored 22 points in A&M's loss to Tech and had 16 more in the win.

According to Brewster, the Aggies like to do primarily one thing—take the ball inside where they can get it to either Wright or Woods for the easy bucket.

"They really play the power game," continued Brewster. "They really don't have a lot of finesse...just take it too the hoop."

Since it is obvious the Raiders don't stack up to the Aggies on a man-to-man basis because of the height difference, Brewster said the Tech must "beat them down the court when we get the ball."

"We think we're a lot quicker than they are," said Brewster. "Since we aren't that big we'll have to rely on our jumping ability more than they will."

Despite being out-talied by A&M, the Raiders still managed to stay within just two rebounds of the Aggies at College Station, 26-24. And Tech actually out-boarded A&M at home 31-30.

"We feel like we can play with them under the boards," said Brewster. "We've had some success at it in the past. That comes by aggressive play under the boards, something we'll have to have again to be successful."

Brewster enters the game as Tech's second-leading scorer for the season with an 11.7 average. Only Kent Williams' 12.8 is better. In conference play, the El Paso native has a 10.8 average.

Brewster believes the key to the contest Thursday will, of course, be defense. "We're going to try and hold them down as we can," said Brewster. "We're not just saying we need to hold Woods down to win, we've got to hold them all down."

Because of the importance of the game — one loss and your own of the tournament — Brewster feels both teams will play a rather conservative game. Not too much shakin and bakin, in other words.

"Everybody won't be taking too many shots," said Brewster. "They'll be trying to take their best shots they can make."

And hopefully, Brewster concluded, not too many of them will fall through for the Aggies.

Sycamores Now Top Cage Team

By The Associated Press
Indiana State Coach Bill Hodges has known only the thrill of victory this season and Tuesday's Associated Press major college basketball poll was no exception.

The Sycamores, having completed their first undefeated regular season, regained the No. 1 spot in The AP poll, easily outdistancing runnerup Notre Dame.

"I think our guys have worked extremely hard and they're deserving of the No. 1 ranking," Hodges said.

And so did The AP's nationwide panel of 61 sports writers and broadcasters. The final AP will be taken after the games of March 9-11.

Indiana State, 26-0 and ranked second last week, collected 51 of 61 first-place ballots and 1,192 points following a 76-68 win over Drake last Tuesday and a 109-84 triumph over Wichita State on national television last Sunday.

The Irish, ranked third last week, received seven first-place votes and 1,150 points and held a wide margin over UCLA, last week's top-ranked team. The Bruins, upset by Washington 69-68 on Thursday and extended to triple overtime in a 110-102 victory over Washington State Saturday, collected two first-place votes and 1,060 points.

The remainder of last week's Top 10 played a game of musical chairs.

Michigan State, No. 7 last week, jumped to No. 4 with the remaining first-place vote and 988 points, while preseason favorite Duke moved from No. 6 into the No. 5 position with 914 points.

Syracuse, eighth last week, jumped two notches to sixth with 897 points.

Ex-Raider Assistant May Join Giants

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Bill Parcels, head football coach at the Air Force Academy for only one year, said Tuesday he was weighing an offer from the New York Giants to take over as linebacker coach for the National Football League team.

The academy's athletic director, Col. John Clune, said Parcels had not resigned and the academy had not considered the alternatives should Parcels accept the job with the Giants.

Parcels, whose team was 3-8 last year, apparently is under pressure to make up his mind quickly about moving to the Giants. The NFL's unofficial deadline for signing coaches from other staffs is Thursday.

"I can't say anything," Parcels said when he arrived at his office on Tuesday. "I have to call Perkins (Giants coach Ray Perkins)... I don't know what I am going to do."

The Giants called Clune last Friday for permission to talk with Parcels, said Hal Bateman, sports information director at the academy. Over the weekend, Parcels was in New Jersey, where the Giants play their home games, Bateman said.

Parcels, 38, became only the third head football coach in academy history last year when he took over from Ben Martin, who had coached the Cadets for 20 years.

He had been defensive coordinator at Texas Tech for three years before coming to the academy, and had previously coached at Hastings College in Nebraska, Wichita State, West Point and Vanderbilt.

Parcels faces a major rebuilding task if he remains at the academy. Three assistant coaches have resigned since the end of the season, and a fourth may be going.

Craig Handall, the defensive line coach, has moved to the same job at Mississippi State. Defensive coordinator Dennis Fryzel left to take a job at Kansas, but then went to Ohio State. Ray Handley, who was Air Force's offensive backfield coach, has gone to Stanford, and there have been reports all winter that offensive coordinator Ken Hatfield has been offered jobs elsewhere.

Shortly after the season ended, Air Force's football program suffered the loss of a number of its better young players through resignation from the academy.

Cormac Carney, who set a national freshman record for all-purpose running, was among the players who resigned. He since has enrolled at UCLA.

Fidrych Warms Up Wing

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych threw easily and without pain Tuesday for more than five minutes of batting practice, the Detroit Tigers reported.

The American League baseball team held a 2½-hour practice for pitchers and catchers under sunny skies at Marchant Stadium.

Fidrych is not throwing full-speed, but the Tigers said they were pleased that he is not experiencing pain.

Simmons Sets Lofty Goals

Catcher Ted Simmons has set a goal of 30 home runs for the upcoming season, hoping to add some punch to the power-shy St. Louis Cardinals.

Simmons, basically a line-drive-type hitter, expects to surrender points in his average to reach his goal.

A .298 lifetime hitter, Simmons hit a club-record 22 home runs last season when the Cardinals finished in a tie for 9th place with only 79 home runs.

Manager Ken Boyer offered his endorsement to Simmons. "You can't worry about average when you're hitting cleanup," he said, noting Simmons will bat fourth, presumably behind Lou Brock, Gary Templeton and Keith Hernandez.

McCovey Feeling Great

Willie McCovey, the San Francisco Giants' popular, 41-year-old first baseman, says his first hard swings of the bat in spring training may decide his future.

He missed the last month of the 1978 baseball season with an injured shoulder.

"Right now, it feels good, but I haven't extended it yet," McCovey said after his arrival at the Giants' training camp. "I really don't know myself how it'll be because I haven't given it a good test.

"If I'm not able to swing the bat the way I'm capable of, well, I may not be able to play this year.

"I will be the first one to know if it hurts. I'm the one who will be feeling the pain. It hurt a lot last year. I tried to play and it killed me."

O'Malley Placed In Hospital

Walter O'Malley, chairman of the board of the Los Angeles Dodgers, spent a restless Tuesday in the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., where he was flown on Monday after complaining of dizziness.

The 75-year-old O'Malley had been at Dodgertown, the spring home of his club at Vero Beach when he was stricken.

"He is doing very well, there is no bad news," said Peter O'Malley, president of the ball club and son of the chairman who accompanied his father to Rochester. "He will undergo more tests."

Zachry, Mets In Ballpark

Right-hander Pat Zachry, who won 10 games for the New York Mets in 1978 before fracturing his foot in July, said Tuesday that he is close to signing his 1979 contract with the club.

Zachry, who came to the Mets from Cincinnati in the 1977 Tom Seaver trade, rejected a three-year offer that would have given him $100,000 this year followed by $125,000 in 1980 and $150,000 in 1981. He insists he will not sign for more than one year.

"I don't have the track record to sign a three-year contract," said Zachry, co-winner of the National League's Rookie of the Year award in 1976. "The first year is pretty good but if I have the kind of year I'm capable of having in 1979, the next year's salary wouldn't be fair."

Bonds May Report Next Week

Veteran outfielder Bobby Bonds has agreed to report to the Cleveland Indians spring training camp at Tucson, Ariz., but not this week.

Bonds requested that he be allowed to report on March 6, and Indians' President Gabe Paul gave his approval Tuesday.

The 33-year-old outfielder, acquired in a trade with the Texas Rangers last fall, was not officially due in camp until Thursday. No reason was given for the delay.

During the weekend an attempt to sign Bonds to a long-term contract fell through, and Bonds indicated he wants to be traded at the end of the 1979 season.

Phillies Open Spring Camp

Forty players were on hand Tuesday as the Philadelphia Phillies opened spring training at Carpenter Field with aspirations to do more than win the National League's Eastern Division title for the fourth straight year.

Seven players were absent — three with permission, three Latin players who recently finished playing winter baseball and one free agent who was working out with the Texas Rangers.

Pete Rose was excused for a speaking engagement in Las Vegas and will join his new team Wednesday. Manny Trillo, the key player in the eight-man deal with the Chicago Cubs last week, will take up residence at second base on Friday after his arrival from his Venezuelan home.

Jackson Refuses To Play

Ron Jackson, acquired by Minnesota in a three-player trade with California in December, will refuse to play for the Twins unless his contract is renegotiated, his agent said Tuesday.

Jackson and catcher-first baseman Danny Gooden, both clients of Abdul Jalil, were traded by the California Angels to the Twins in exchange for outfielder Dan Ford.

Now Jalil says Jackson will report but refuse to work out until the Twins agree to renegotiate his contract. Jackson is due in camp Wednesday with his first workout scheduled for Thursday.

Hobson Gets Early Start

Boston Red Sox third baseman Butch Hobson, getting an early start on spring training, says he's very pleased with his recovery from elbow surgery last fall.

"This is the first time I've tried hitting a baseball and the elbow felt great," said Hobson after a brief batting and throwing practice Tuesday. But, he added, "I'm not going to throw the ball as hard this year when I don't have to."

Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer said, "We're not going to rush Hobson. We'll let him set his own pace as far as throwing is concerned. But everybody is confident he'll be ready for opening day without any problem."

Chambliss Suffers Injury

Chris Chambliss, the New York Yankees' clutch-hitting first baseman, has sprained ligaments in his right wrist, it was announced Tuesday.

X-rays were taken Tuesday at Imperial Point Hospital. The wrist was placed in a cast for a week as a precautionary measure and to speed Chambliss' recovery.

Singleton Free Of Pain

Ken Singleton reported to the Baltimore Orioles' spring training camp Tuesday, claiming he was completely free of the elbow injury that bothered him much of last season.

"It's a thing of the past, I don't even think about it anymore," said Singleton, who was also hampered by a sore wrist as a result of the elbow problem. "Last year at this time I was going crazy. It was ridiculous."

A's Watch Ace

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Mike Norris, a young pitcher who seemed to have solved an Oakland A's problem four years ago, is being watched closely again in spring training this year.

"He pitched winter ball, and they say he threw pretty well," A's Manager Jim Marshall said Tuesday. He added, "He seems to be throwing better now than I remember from last year, too."

Marshall was manager in 1976 for the A's Class AAA Pacific Coast League team at Vancouver, where Norris spent some time during a baseball season in which he bounced up and down between the majors and Class AA.

Baltimore Club Still Up For Sale

BALTIMORE (AP) — A coal miner could wind up as one of the Baltimore Orioles' primary owners if the latest version of a local deal to buy the American League club goes through.

Ken Pollock, a millionaire strip-mine operator from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has offered to put up half the $12 million that is being asked for the Orioles by Jerold C. Hoffberger, the team's board chairman.

Of the total amount supplied by Pollock, $2 million would be a cash investment with the other $4 million coming in low-interest loans.

Members of the local group of investors trying to buy the team told the Baltimore Sun that Pollock would become one of "four or five general partners" and would own about 30 percent of the team.

They also said Pollock is committed to keeping the Orioles in Baltimore.

"It's got to be in Baltimore," said F. Barton Harvey, one of the local investors. "Pollock recognizes that. He is absolutely not interested in moving the Orioles out of Baltimore."

Described as a "baseball nut" who has tried to buy teams across the country, Pollock approached Hoffberger about buying the Orioles last year, but the discussions ended in the preliminary stage.

Pollock was unavailable for comment on the proposed deal.

Harvey and W. Wallace Lanahan Jr., another investor, said Pollock's involvement came within the last two weeks. The group approached Pollock about joining in their bid to keep the Orioles here, he said.

Lanahan said that Pollock came here to discuss the possibility of providing $2 million in working capital. But on Monday, he told the group he also wanted to provide a $4 million loan, Lanahan added.

"He came down here to talk about putting in $2 million to $2½ million, and he now wants to put in $6 million," Lanahan said.

Lanahan said the lawyers were working out the details of the sale, and that the legal papers were just about completed. He could not estimate, however, when the final sale would take place.

The Baltimore Sun and the Baltimore Evening Sun said Tuesday that the negotiations are expected to take about a month.

Before any sale would be made, the owners of the other teams in the American League would have to approve the deal.

When told of the latest development, Lee MacPhail, the president of the league, said he knew the group had been talking to Pollock.

"I didn't know what the plan was. I guess that's good if they can put something solid together that will fly."

Harvey said he welcomed Pollock's involvement, saying it put the local group into a better position because it added

"another strong investor" and solved the problem of finding $2 million in operating capital.

The local group had originally planned to use $2 million in capital belonging to the team and a $4 million loan from Hoffberger to help swing the deal, with Hoffberger in turn reportedly retaining a hand in the Orioles' operations.

Some of the investors, however, reportedly objected to Hoffberger's continuance and said they would withdraw their money unless he was cut out.

Hoffberger was unavailable for comment on the latest moves in his long-running efforts to sell the Orioles.

blin and Celtics owner John Y. Brown.

"None of the basketball minds were involved."

McAdoo conceded he'll be leaving out of a suitcase for the rest of the season — like one long road trip even when the team is in Boston. He arrived here Tuesday morning after a grueling two-week road trip with the Celtics. During the trip, McAdoo averaged 19.4 points and 7.6 rebounds for Boston, after making a hasty exit from the Knicks. He has yet to play for the Celtics in Boston, and will

McAdoo Still Puzzled By Trade

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Bob McAdoo has been a member of the Boston Celtics for two weeks, and he still can't figure out why.

"Why did they get me?," McAdoo asked Tuesday after his first workout in Boston since the big trade sent three first round draft choices and backup center Tom Barker to the New York Knicks.

"The first thing that came to my mind is that I'm being used to get someone else."

McAdoo speculated on the possibility he will be traded by the Celtics to another National Basketball Association team sometime before next season.

He is still trying to figure out why he was traded in the first place.

"I was shocked by the trade and I'm still puzzled," the high-scoring forward-center said after a strenuous Celtics scrimmage at Hellenic College.

"I always felt teams only traded a player who couldn't fit in, or who had contract problems.

"This was a deal that the two owners came up with," he said, alluding to the trade made by Knicks' boss Sonny Wer-make his local debut Wednesday night against the New Orleans Jazz.

McAdoo was candid in assessing his new team, and when asked whether the Celtics are playing below their potential he said, "We're in last place and it's difficult enough for a good team to win on the road, but we're not going to count the days until the season ends."

The Celtics have tried to make McAdoo feel comfortable, but he says, "Everybody already is set in their ways and it's tough to fit in here. I'm here now and I've got to make the best of it."

Buffs Bounced By Sycamores

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Larry Bird scored 29 points and pulled down 15 rebounds Tuesday night as top-ranked, unbeaten Indiana State defeated West Texas State 94-84 in the first round of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball tournament.

The Buffaloes, sparked by the shooting of freshman guard Eddie Harris, who finished with 27 points, led for most of the first half and trailed only 85-54 with under 16 minutes left in the game.

Wood, Gipson Head Elite Squad

By BOB BAJACKSON
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Since, coach J.J. Wood and forward Winston Gipson had never been in the situation, both didn't really know how to react.

The two were honored this week when the 1-AAA All-District team was released. Wood was selected the coach of the year, while Gipson was chosen the most valuable player.

"How does it feel to be named coach of the year?" asked Wood. "Like it does to be the most valuable player?"

"Ok, Winston, how does it feel to be the most MVP?"

"I'm surprised," said Gipson. "I didn't know anything about it until coach Wood told me today (Tuesday)."

So, surprise is the feeling you have about being named the coach of the year? Right coach Wood?

"No, not exactly," smiled Wood. "Actually, I thought I would win the honor because it normally goes to the coach who wins the district."

For the first time in the 11-year history of Estacado High School, the Matadors won a district basketball championship this season. Estacado finished with a 17-13 overall record and a 9-2 district mark.

Gipson was an unanimous choice for the MVP honor mainly because of his shooting eye. The 6-1 senior forward averaged 18 points during the season and 20 points a contest during district play.

"I'm not fast," smiled Gipson. "But my shooting has allowed me to help the team."

Gipson likes to take his shots from the left side of the court. More specifically, the 160-pound forward prefers to put the ball up from the left wing and the corner.

"I aim for the back of the rim," replied Gipson. "I figure the ball has a better chance of being on target. If you aim for the front of the rim, the shot will land short. On the backboard sometimes it'll be too strong. But on the back of the rim, the ball will go through without touching anything, or it will bounce on the rim and give you the chance of falling through."

This was the first time in his seven years as head coach of the school that Wood was voted the All-District coach.

"Since I was the only one nominated, even I voted for myself," laughed Wood. "Yes, though I know we worked hard this year, it sure is nice to have other people in your profession recognize your work."

J.J. WOOD

WINSTON GIPSON

Not that Wood was excited about the Matadors success this season, but those bug marks that have found a place on the Matadors' 1-AAA district trophy resulted from the Estacado coach waving it out the window of the car all the way home from the district meeting in Canyon.

"No question that I didn't win this (the trophy) alone," said Wood. "Spoon (assistant coach Clarence Weatherspoon) and Bob Ramos (trainer) had a lot of insight. They made invaluable contributions to our club."

Gipson describes himself as a streak shooter. Very rarely does Gipson get upset with the way things are going on the court. For that matter, it is very rarely that the 6-1 senior will say anything during a game.

"When I start missing, I get discouraged," said Gipson. "It gets to be a case where I just try too hard. And that just throws my game way off."

However, Gipson's talent isn't restricted to the basketball court. The 160-pound senior sports a straight A average in the classroom.

"I would like to get a basketball scholarship somewhere," said Gipson. "But, I may try going the academic route."

So far, only South Plains College has been interested in Gipson's game talents. But the recruiting season is still young.

As for Wood, the closest he comes to dribbling a basketball these days is flicking his pipe ashes into the trash can.

Of course the Matador mentor is going to help Gipson land a basketball scholarship, but for the most part Wood just plans on grading papers.

Who says being named coach of the year doesn't have its advantages?

If Reggie Can't Play Outfield, He Won't Play Baseball

REGGIE READY — New York Yankee outfielder Reggie Jackson acknowledges fans calling out his name as he trots on the field during a spring-training workout Tuesday afternoon. (AP Laserphoto)

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Reggie Jackson feels very strongly that he should play the outfield and not be relegated to designated hitter's status. But he said he would reluctantly accept being the DH if he is approached in the right way.

"I guess if they come and talk to me, if they say we don't think you can play outfield anymore, that it would be better for the team. I'd have to do it," Jackson said Tuesday on the first day of full-scale workouts for the world champions. "But I have plans for playing the outfield."

Jackson reiterated that he would play DH but his inner feelings were so strongly opposed that his mind tells him to quit instead.

"I'm not gonna get tricked into playing it," said Jackson, who played both DH and outfield when the Yankees stormed to their second straight world title last year.

"I'll rebel against that. When I don't belong out there, I won't play the game. I'm not going to DH at 33 years of age. I'll quit first. I don't want to embarrass myself."

"I'm not trying to lay down any kind of law. I'm not being demanding. If the general consensus is that I can't play outfield, then I won't play baseball."

After uttering those words, Jackson reminded the reporters that his inner feelings were strong but that he wasn't going to really quit.

Jackson checked into camp with a full beard but shaved it off because Yankee owner George Steinbrenner has a policy against beards.

"George isn't perfect. I'm not even perfect," said Jackson. "But I'm a businessman and he pays me a lot of money."

Jackson said he was surprised that Steinbrenner didn't get superstar Rod Carew via a trade as was his intention.

"I thought it would happen cause George said he wanted him," said Jackson. "You never really needed him to win because you have an established, good big league ballplayer (Chris Chambliss) at first and a darn good one. I just would have enjoyed playing with a Hall of Famer."

Chambliss was one of several Yankees who has criticized Jackson for his holding and personality.

"I react like, hey, what did I do now. I wonder what for," said Jackson, holding court in the dugout at Fort Lauderdale Stadium. "If I say something, it creates a reaction. If I don't say anything, it dies. But I must be doing something if they're knocking me. They don't knock Wally Pipp, do they?"

Another Jackson critic is former Yankee Manager Billy Martin, who has a verbal assurance from Steinbrenner that he will manage the Yankees in 1980. Martin and Jackson do not like each other.

"My real gut feeling is, I guess I've blocked it out of mind," Jackson said. "Obviously, I'm in the story. They know they're gonna have to deal with me one way or another."

Jackson admitted that he would not have come to New York to play if he knew the past two years would have caused so many problems.

"I would have taken the easy way out," the former free agent said. "But for my life, my personality, I'm very glad I went to New York. No other city could have done what New York has done."

Wills Attempting 'Comeback' Year

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — It isn't always easier the second time around.

Bump Wills found that out the hard way last season, but he also learned a very valuable lesson of life — never take anything for granted.

After a spectacular rookie season in 1978 in which he batted .287 and was named to several All-Rookie teams, the 26-year-old second baseman of the Texas Rangers' fell victim to the dreaded "sophomore jinx" last year and was one of the major reasons why the Rangers failed to live up to their preseason notches.

For the record, Wills finished with a .250 batting average. But that was misleading. He was batting only .229 as late as Sept. 4, and it took a hot streak — after the Rangers had fallen out of the American League West pennant race — for him to reach the .250 plateau.

It was as if a prize Texas steer suddenly had developed hoof-and-mouth disease.

"I have no one to blame but myself for the kind of year I had last year," said Wills. "I learned a great lesson. You're never too good and you can never get too high in a certain level of your specialty without working harder and harder."

"If you don't maintain that high level of proficiency, you're not going to have a very good year. I know you have to work real hard to get where you're going. My father (former baseball star Maury Wills) told me many years ago that hard work trends success and it's true."

Well, if young Wills knew the answer, why didn't he heed his father's advice?

"It was in my mental approach," he says. "It's all in the mind. Skill is important but if you're not in the right frame of mind, you're not going to do it. I didn't make myself believe. I didn't work hard enough at making myself believe I could do it. I took a lot for granted and I didn't have the kind of year I wanted. So I'll work harder and hopefully have the kind of year I had my first year."

Wills thinks part of the problem for his 1978 mental approach last season could have something to do with the Rangers' terrible performance over the first half of the season. It's easier to get into the proper frame of mind to play when the team is playing well, he reasons.

"Whenever a team isn't going well you have to give 110 per cent concentration. I've always said that confidence and concentration are the two key words to a successful season for a ballplayer. When a team isn't showing that confidence and concentration, it's harder on you as a player."

But what will prevent Wills and the Rangers, as a whole, from falling into the same pattern this season?

"You have to almost psyche yourself up, right from spring training," he says.

"We've made some personnel changes that I think will help us. We've got some guys I think will blend together very well as a team, skill-wise and personality-wise."

Wills also believes the addition of Pat

Corrales as manager will have a positive affect on the club and keep everyone in the proper frame of mind.

"He treats us like men and it's a very personal relationship," says Wills.

AL OLIVER

Corrales as manager will have a positive affect on the club and keep everyone in the proper frame of mind.

"He treats us like men and it's a very personal relationship," says Wills.

Wrestlers Meet

Twenty-three preliminary matches are on tap today as the City Wrestling Tournament begins at Chapman gym. The action is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Wrestlers from Dunbar, Monterey, Coronado, Estacado and Lubbock High will be trying to advance to the nine championship matches on Thursday. The competition will be divided between individual and team championship.

Oliver, Rangers Makeup

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — There are certain things that just naturally go together, i.e. cream cheese and bagels, pastrami on rye and white wine with veal.

Al Oliver and the state of Texas have developed that kind of relationship.

It figures, Texans, it is said, love to brag and Oliver loves to be bragged about. It's too bad for the 32-year-old outfielder that it took so long to make the connection.

Oliver, one of baseball's finest all-around performers, spent the first nine years of his major league career with the Pittsburgh Pirates during which he never quite achieved the national acclaim and public adulation he felt he deserved.

Last year he was traded to the Rangers, and almost instantly became a celebrity. It was as if Farrah Fawcett-Majors had suddenly discovered a cream rinse shampoo.

"It was the biggest emotional highlight of my major league career," says Oliver, whose .324 batting average was second only to American League batting champion Rod Carew's. "I never had fans stand and cheer for me throughout my career, even though I did the same things in Texas as I did for nine years in Pittsburgh."

"I think the thing that really turned on the fans in Texas was my defensive ability which had never been discussed much in your ability and yourself. This is something we lacked last year and, as a result we just didn't pan out as well as we looked."

A solution to the self-confidence hangup might be to make Oliver team captain. That way he could use his own boundless enthusiasm to help spark the team without fear that he is overstepping his role.

"A lot of people in Texas feel that I am the leader and should be appointed team captain, but that's up to (manager) Pat Corrales," says Oliver. "It's something I won't politic for."

"All I can say is the fans in Texas made me feel the way I should have felt 10 years ago, and that is one of the best players in baseball today."

Raiders, Pokes Split Contests

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It was the bottom of the ninth, Texas Tech had two men on base and two outs on the scoreboard. And the Raiders trailed Hardin Simmons 5-4, at the plate was Tech's center fielder—John Keller. The mustachioed senior had already smashed two home runs in the game and that made the setting complete. They couldn't have set it up any better in Holywood. But then something went wrong.

Keller popped up to the third basemen for the final out and Tech had to settle for a split with HSU in their home opener. The Raiders took the first game easily 11-5, before dropping that narrow 5-4 decision.

That gives the Raiders a 5-3 season slate.

"I was a little overanxious I guess," said Keller. "It was an inside fastball and I just got underneath it. But I can't complain."

In fact, nobody was complaining about the performance Keller put on at the plate Tuesday. His two home runs accounted for three of the Tech runs. Keller has now hit four round trippers in Tech's first eight games—and he only managed to get four over the entire season last year.

"I'm trying not to go for it (the home run) as much this year," said Keller. "I know that sounds weird but now I'm just trying to get the base hit. And last year I was trying to crank everything left, now I'm just going to where the pitch is."

The Cowboys rocked Tech's starting hurler Steve Dennis for 5 runs in the second frame and that proved to be enough for the win. With a man on base via the free pass, Cowboy Randy Jones hit a drive to centerfield that bounced over the head of Keller for an inside-the-park homer. The visitors quickly loaded the bases again and then third basemen Bert Maddux drilled a double that brought everybody across the plate.

James Miller came on to pitch for the Raiders in the third and gave up only one hit and no runs as he lasted through the sixth. Mark Johnston also hurled a couple of scoreless innings for the Raiders but HSU had gotten all the runs it needed in the second.

Tech chipped away with two runs in the second (Keller's home run), one in the fourth on a Scott Leimgruber sacrifice fly, and one more in the sixth (on Keller's HR).

over. Because it was freezing!

The weather hadn't been bad when the first game started though. Sure the wind was blowing at a pretty good clip but at least the sun was shining. But the sun disappeared in the late innings and even a little rain fell. But this kind of weather is nothing new to the Raider baseballers. "Ah we play in this stuff all the time," said Leimgruber. "It's a nothing new to us."

And the first game was nearly as wild as the wind was cold. The Raiders put someone across the plate every time they came to bat and highlighted the game with three runs in their first at bat, and three more in their final appearance.

Gary Moyer started for Tech but it was Robert Bryant who picked up the win. And the Austin sophomore looked impressive picking up his second win of the season against no losses.

Bryant threw for five innings, giving up three hits and three runs. Like all of the pitchers involved in yesterday's action, Bryant did have some control problems pitching into the wind. He issued five free passes and threw one wild pitch.

In all there were 19 walks in the double header, two wild pitches and five batters hit by a pitch.

Johnny Vestal, Larry Selby and Brooks Wallace were the big guns for Tech in the Raiders 11-5 win. Vestal went two-for-two at the plate, scored two runs and knocked in another on a sacrifice fly.

Selby was three of four, with two RBI's and he score three times himself. Wallace scored twice and knocked in another. Keller tripped to score three other runs for Tech.

The Raiders now prepare to face Rice on Friday. Tech will meet the Owls at 3 p.m. and then play a double header on Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

Bench Says Pete Rose Set Trend

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench, who declined to follow Pete Rose into the free agent market, thinks that his former teammate has set major league baseball salaries spinning out of sight.

"There's no way Pete would be worth $800,000 a year to the Reds," said Bench. "What he's worth to the Phillies is their affair."

Rose signed with the Phillies after failing to reach agreement with the Reds on a new contract and entering the free agent draft.

"The problem in Cincinnati is that if Rose is worth $800,000 to the Reds there would be too many other players who would have to be put into that category," Bench said.

It isn't only Rose that Bench is talking about.

"What Pete managed to do was create a new set of comparative numbers," said Bench. "You saw what happened in the Dave Parker negotiations once Pete's figures became known."

"The problem with salaries being what they are today, guys who aren't close to being superstars, and in some cases aren't even regulars, are demanding and getting big money. There are journeyman infielders making $150,000. That's ridiculous.

"You can't fault anyone for trying to get what he can, but this isn't going to work in the long run. In the motion picture business, the star may get $5 million, but the majority of the others work for scale. That apparently isn't going to work in baseball."

At the end of the 1977 baseball season, Bench and Rose were in the same contractual situation, but Bench decided against playing out his option.

"I looked at the pluses and minuses and decided I didn't want to go through the year with the crowds at Riverfront Stadium knowing I wasn't signed," he said. "I didn't feel I would have the support of the media or the fans, and I thought it would have been a difficult year."

'Big Mac' Pleased With Reds

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Everybody's a winner in spring training camp, but now Cincinnati Reds Manager John McNamara is even happier with his team's prospects than he expected to be.

"I'm very impressed with the size of our young pitchers," McNamara said at the National League baseball club's training complex. "One of our main goals will be to develop the young pitchers," he said.

"Of course, in this day and age you don't see players out of shape like in the past. They all come to camp ready to work," McNamara said.

The new Reds field boss spent his playing career behind the plate working with pitchers and still likes to concentrate on the aspect of the game.

"I'm a pitcher's manager," he said. "I think pitching is at least 85 percent of the game."

"We will have five starters, and they'll always have four full days off between starts." He said all 18 pitchers in camp are healthy, and the two who aren't here — relievers Pedro Borbon and Manny Sarmiento — played winter ball in South America and should be in good shape when they report.

Tom Seaver had been throwing well, McNamara said, and that's a key for the Reds. Seaver was 16-14 last year, gave up most walks of his career and had one of his highest earned run averages.

Seaver was called from camp after Monday's workout and will miss several days of practice because his wife is ill, team spokesman Jim Ferguson said.

But the really good news to McNamara was catcher Johnny Bench.

"Johnny came to camp and he's so much lighter than he's reported the last few years," McNamara said. "He really hustling."

Bench went more than a month without catching last season and played in just 120 games, the fewest since his rookie season 12 years ago. Bench did play first base in 11 games last year, and hit some ground balls during Monday's session.

Both McNamara and Reds president Dick Wagner noted the need for more work on defense this spring.

After setting a club record for fewest errors and most error-free games in 1977, Reds' errors jumped more than 40 percent last year.

"Good defense goes with good pitching," McNamara said. "We'll go through fundamentals. We'd like to cut down the number of errors."

McNamara maintains the image of a soft-spoken leader rather than the drill sergeant type.

"I can get mad," he said. "But there hasn't been any reason to because everybody's been working so hard." McNamara said.

"He fit two important criteria — managerial experience and age," Wagner said. "At his age (46) he's still young enough to communicate with the young players. And he has the experience to command the respect of the older players."

Fem Linksters Place Ninth

BRYAN (Special)—Southern Methodist passed the University of Tulsa in the final round to win the Texas A&M Intercollegiate Golf Tournament Tuesday afternoon.

Texas Tech placed ninth in a field of 14 teams with a score 1,016 in the 54-hole tournament.

Pacing the Tech action included Mary DeLong with a three-day total of 249. Liz Remy finished at 256. Kerri Kranz had 257. Linda Hunt concluded at 266, with Jane Gray carding a 268 score.

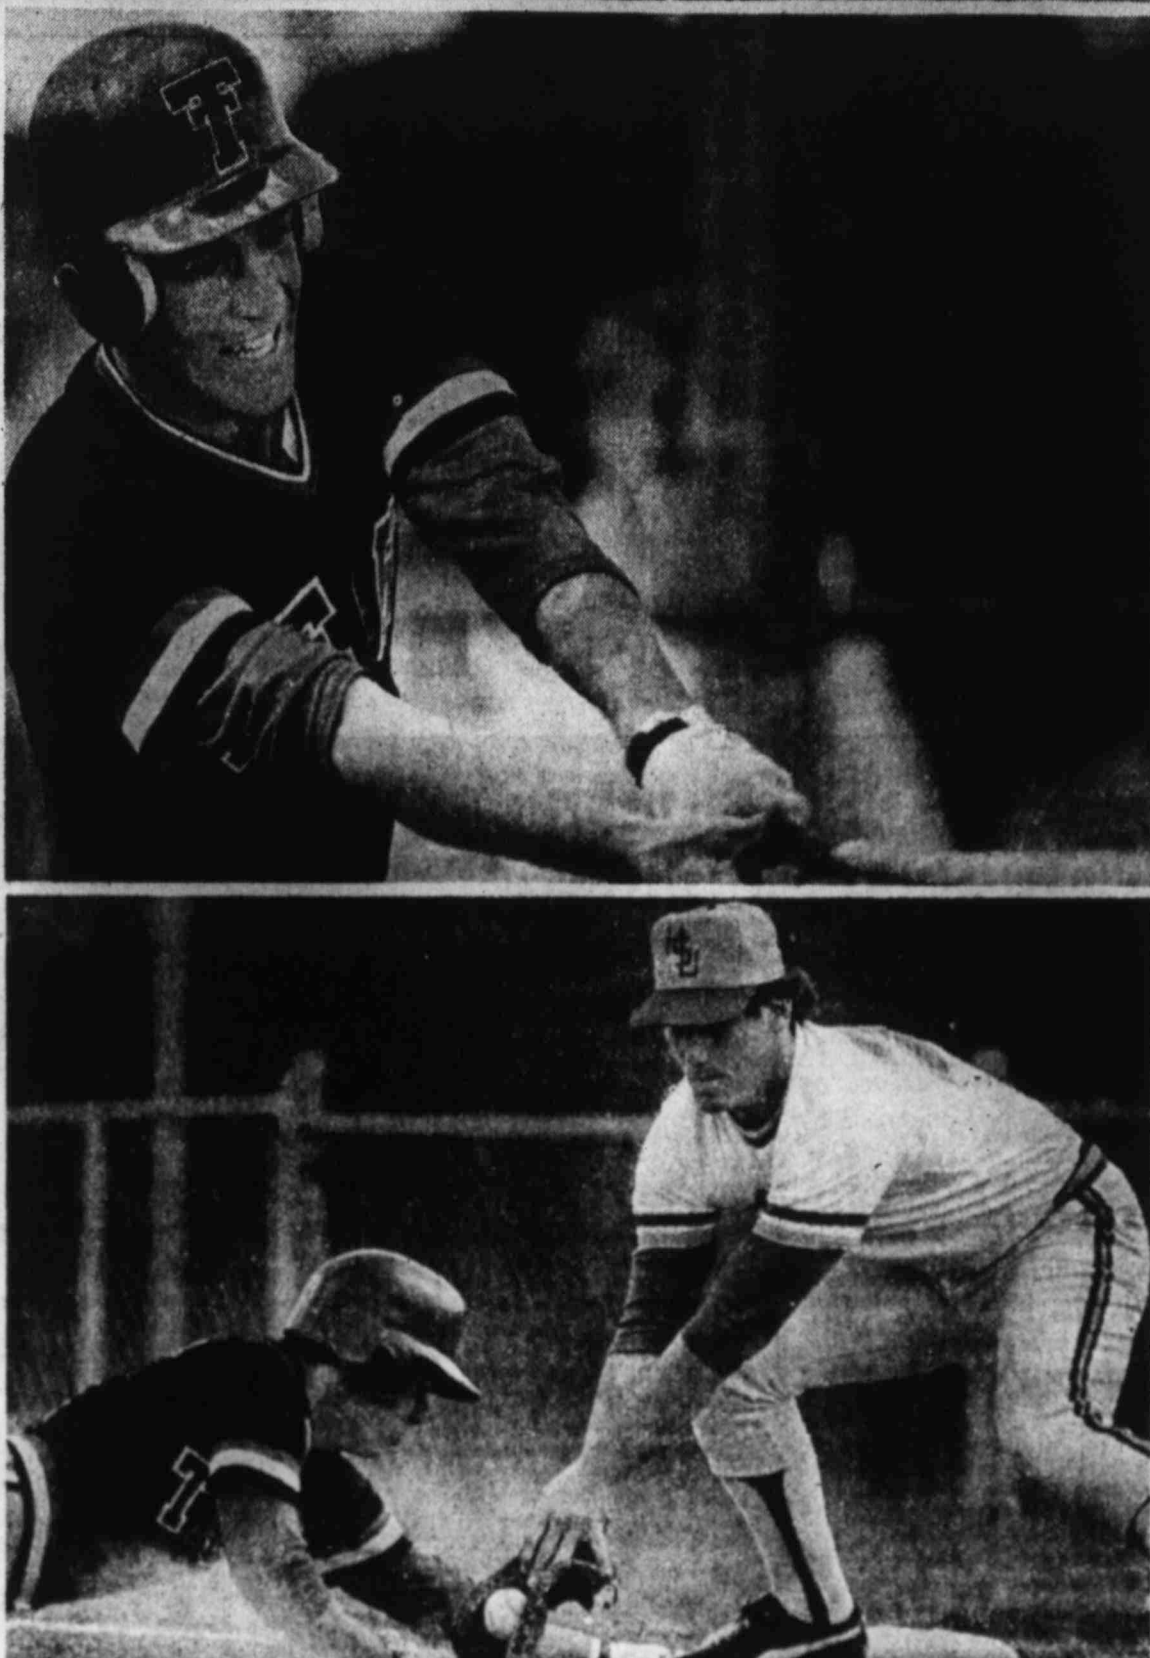

Tech will return to action April 7 in the Lamar University Women's Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

Cagers Set To Compete

TULSA (Special)—The Texas Tech women's basketball team received an at-large berth bid to compete in the Southwest ALAW basketball tournament, March 7-10 at Oral Roberts University.

Tech received the bid because of a sixth place finish in the Texas AIAW Tournament over the weekend.

Other Texas schools already seeded include Stephen F. Austin, University of Texas, Wayland Baptist, University of Houston and North Texas State.

Limit Set For Rossman

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—World Boxing Association President Fernando Mandry Galindez said Tuesday that light heavyweight champion Mike Rossman may defend his title even after a six-month time limit lapses March 15 as long as he's willing to defend it.

Mandry Galindez said it appears that Rossman will fight former titleholder and leading contender, Victor Galindez of Argentina, sometime in April depending on available dates and sites.

While an April date would place Rossman beyond the mandatory six months limit he has under WBA rules to defend, Mandry said the rules are flexible.

The time limit became important after the Hossman-Galindez fight scheduled for last Saturday at Las Vegas, Nev., was canceled because of a dispute over judges.

Mandry said, "I received a call yesterday from Top Rank promoters in New York. They suggested April 14 as a date but this, naturally, depends on whether they can get a suitable site such as the 'Madison Square' Garden, the Hilton in Las Vegas or the Superdome in New Orleans. You have to be flexible on dates."

KILLS FOR SPORT
A killer whale, also called orca from its Latin name, is similar to man in that it is one of the few animals that seemingly kills for sport.

Top Rank indicated it might communicate a date to me tomorrow," he said.

The WBA president said the final requirement is that a champion be "disposed to defend his title against the leading available contender."

In all WBA categories from junior flyweight to light heavyweight, a champion must take on the leading available contender prior to a six months time span following his winning or successfully defending his title. In the heavyweight category, the champion has one year to defend his title.

Rossman won his title Sept. 15 and theoretically would have to fight before March 15.

But Mandry said that the boxer's willingness to confront the challenger is the most important ingredient of decisions by the world championship committee of the WBA, which enforces the rules.

"Even if a boxer is willing, we understand that he must be able to get a promoter. The promoter must be able to get a non-conflicting date. There must be a reasonable monetary offer. And, of course, the leading contender must be available. These arrangements sometimes take a long time to make," Mandry said.

Mandry said, in Rossman's case, there is no firm date. He could fight a month after the time limit or perhaps two months as long as he is willing and promoters cannot get the light package together before that time.

"I believe the Rossman-Galindez fight can take place," he said.

Mandry said he's planning to await a full report from the WBA's legal adviser and recommendations from the WBA executive committee before making an executive decision regarding policy on future fights in Nevada. The Nevada Athletic Commission had insisted on three local judges for last Saturday's scheduled fight, prompting the bout to be called off.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Clayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: Social Security seems to be providing more and more coverage for retirees, disabled workers and low income persons and survivors. It is amazing to me that there are as few errors made in regard to all the beneficiaries as there are. I realize that there must be several different organizations within the Social Security Administration to handle all this work. Could you tell me how many there are, what they are called and their main areas of concern? I think this would be interesting? — J.C.

The different bureaus governing Social Security programs are as follows:

1. Bureau of District Offices — which supervises the various district and branch offices throughout the 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.
2. Bureau of Retirement and Survivor's Insurance — which services six program centers. These are located in Birmingham, Ala., Chicago, Kansas City, Mo., New York City, Philadelphia, and San Francisco. Also under this bureau is the Division of International Operations located in Baltimore, which services claims of beneficiaries living abroad.
3. Bureau of Disability Insurance — which is located in Baltimore, and works with agencies of the state under contract in determining disability cases.
4. Bureau of Health Insurance — which is located in Baltimore and works with the private and public organizations contracted to administer the health insurance program (Medicare).
5. Bureau of Data Processing — located in Baltimore. This bureau has the responsibility of keeping earnings records and benefit computations.
6. Bureau of Hearings and Appeals — which has general supervision over the holding of hearings, interpretation and review of Social Security determinations which a claimant has appealed.
7. Bureau of Supplemental Security Income — which administers the S.S.I. program.

HEARTLINE: My husband retired on Social Security a few years ago. Since that time, I have been drawing mother's benefits because I have two dependent children in my care. I will reach age 62 this year. I could continue drawing mother's benefits until my younger son is 18. But at age 62, I will also become eligible for wife's benefits. Should I switch over to wife's benefits at age 62? — L.K.

Yes, a woman drawing mother's benefits under Social Security can, at age 62, switch to her own benefits or to wife's benefits. However, it normally would not be advantageous to do so, since mother's benefits are not reduced for age but wife's benefits are reduced for entitlement before age 65. If the wife's benefit is higher, and if you need this

Obesity Rated Family Trend By Research

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bolstered by studies indicating fat is a family problem, a Pittsburgh psychologist is treating obese children by trimming their parents' waistlines at the same time.

"The studies indicate that most obese children either have one or two obese parents," said Dr. Leonard Epstein of the Western Psychiatric Institute. "In fact, there's evidence that overweight families even tend to have overweight dogs."

Epstein has begun a two-year study of child obesity, involving 160 children and at least one parent of each. Subjects of the study will be treated with diet, exercise and behavior modification techniques that include encouraging parent and child to praise one another for weight loss and tips for children on constructive handling of taunts.

"The idea is that obesity comes from bad behavior — eating too much and exercising too little — so we change the behavior," Epstein said in a recent interview. "We try to make the change a permanent one."

"So far the results are encouraging. A pilot group of 30 children with parents lost an average of 1½ pounds a week during eight weeks of treatment."

The study also revealed that the weekly weight fluctuation of each child mirrored those of his parents, reinforcing Epstein's belief that fat is a family problem.

"Most kids who are heavy grow into heavy adults," Epstein said. "Some studies indicate the pattern may start as early as six months of age. And despite what many parents say, most kids don't grow out of it."

Obese children, he added, display the same high blood pressure and cholesterol levels as their parents. "This is preventable obesity. Very few people have anything other than what is called regulatory obesity."

Television Scheme Used In Robbery

CALDWELL, Idaho (AP) — The plot of a "CHiPs" television program aired two weeks ago was re-enacted Monday when a man robbed the Bank of Idaho branch bank at Caldwell, authorities say.

Chief of Police Charles W. Astleford said an undisclosed amount of money was taken. He said a man in a small dirty blue car drove to the bank's drive-up window, passed the teller a note saying he had a box with a bomb in it and directing her to put money in a sack. She did.

added benefit, do sign up for wife's benefits three months before your 62nd birthday. Otherwise, it would be to your advantage to continue drawing the mother's benefits so that when you take the wife's benefits later, the age reduction would be less.

HEARTLINE: My father is receiving pension from the Veteran's Administration. He has been recovering for over a year from a stroke, and because of his age and overall physical condition, is not progressing well. He recently was placed in a nursing home. Is he entitled to any additional benefits? — L.P.

Yes. A statement from the director or custodian of records at a nursing home verifying that a veteran is in need of nursing home care usually will justify aid and attendance benefits in addition to the veteran's regular monthly benefit. For information specifically on your father's case, contact your nearest VA regional office.

Lawyers Tell How To Avoid Lawyers

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Ralph Warner and his longtime companion, Tomi Ihara, are lawyers who publish books for people who want to avoid lawyers.

With a friend, Ed Sherman, they created Nolo Press in 1971 and put out their first book, a stapled pamphlet on how to handle a divorce.

The books moved at a snail's pace until a Sacramento lawyer saw the pamphlet, was outraged, and promptly called a news conference to denounce the book as dangerous.

"Sales skyrocketed," chuckles Warner. The book has gone through nearly 30 printings, updated with changes in the law, and has sold more than 200,000 copies in California alone.

Nolo Press, with more than a dozen books now to its credit, has just published what could be its biggest seller, a 193-page book called "The Living Together Kit," with sample contracts for unmarried couples to sign to assure their rights if they decide to split.

In light of a 1976 California Supreme Court decision which allowed property settlement suits involving unmarried couples — spawning the Lee Marvin trial in Los Angeles — Warner and Miss Ihara say demand for the book is brisk.

"I know some of it is paranoia on the part of people who don't want to get ripped off in a relationship," Warner says. "But most of the people we know are just nice, ordinary people who want to do right by each other."

The book is written in plain language, avoiding what Warner calls "legal mumbo-jumbo," and is spiced with witty observations.

Nolo Press has published books with such titles as "Everybody's Guide to Small Claims Court," "How to Form Your Own California Corporation," "How to Change Your Name," and "How to Adopt Your Stepchild" — all designed to guide the uninitiated through legal procedures without the assistance of a lawyer, saving hundreds of dollars on attorney fees.

Their "living together" book includes chapters on insurance, credit, making a will, acknowledging paternity, and a concluding chapter on determining when you need a lawyer.

Miss Ihara, for example, says most divorcees consist of filling out certain papers which, frequently, a secretary handles for her lawyer-employer. "Of course, if it is a massive, complicated estate to be divided, a lawyer is sometimes necessary," she says.

Warner and Miss Ihara say the hostility they encountered from establishment attorneys in the early years of Nolo Press has lessened considerably. They contend that Watergate tarnished the image of establishment lawyers.

Warner's three-paragraph biography says, "Ralph has a license to practice law. He doesn't use it."

Miss Ihara's two-paragraph biography describes her as "an anthropologist turned lawyer who is totally at a loss for a response when anyone asks, 'Why did you go to law school?'"

The two have lived together for several years, writing books and giving lectures and workshops on how to get things done without having to consult a lawyer.

They also work for reform of laws dealing with sex, noting that a lot of sexual taboos have been dropped from the books in recent years. "A good thing, too," says Warner, "as we were fast becoming a nation of criminals."

Smoke Detectors Made Mandatory

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Smoke detectors will be required in all city dwellings after January 1980 when an ordinance approved by the city's Board of Aldermen becomes effective.

However, the board in its action Monday exempted single-family, owner-occupied homes until they are sold or leased. The ordinance will require smoke detectors on all levels with habitable rooms.
