Overhaul Of CETA Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Labor Department today announced an overhaul of its CETA public jobs and training program in an attempt to eliminate shoddy management, fraud and other abuses that have plagued the $10 billion pro-

Key changes in CETA - which stands for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act — include a shakeup of top management in Washington, improved monitoring of local operations to spot fraud, and new rules that specifically ban nepotism, political patronage and other

Other changes set tighter eligibility requirements geared more to poor, longterm unemployed people; reduce wage rates; limit employment in a public job to 18 months, and encourage private industry to participate more with the government in creating new jobs.

"CETA's record over the last two years has not been unblemished," Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said in presenting what he dubbed, "The New CETA."

"Any program as large, diverse and decentralized as CETA will encounter problems," he said. "But I stongly believe that government can - and should learn from its mistakes. Particularly in a time of tight budget dollars, we cannot afford to continue wasteful and ineffective programs."

Most of the changes were ordered by Congress last fall when it approved a three-year extension for CETA. CETA, the largest public jobs program since the Great Depression of the 1930s, has a budget of $10.3 billion this year to create 625,000 jobs and provide other assistance to the unemployed.

The Carter administration has hailed CETA for helping reduce the nation's jobless rate. But the program also has come under attack because of widespread abuses that have included theft. embezzlement, kickbacks, the hiring of ineligible people, distribution of CETA jobs for political and other improper purposes and bad management.

Although no accurate estimates are available, it is believed that millions of federal dollars have been skimmed from local CETA programs because of fraud.

In response to much-publicized cases of abuses last year, the Labor Department strengthened its investigative force and began cracking down on program violators and Congress ordered the department to put in place new safeguards against fraud and mismanagen

A million cheering Iranians lined the route he took from the a port to a cemetery, where another 100,000 persons waited.

U.S. Ouster Vowed By

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatullah Ru-hollah Khomeini came home from exile today to a wildly enthusiastic welcome and declared his anti-shah revolution will not be complete until U.S. influence is expelled from Iran.

"I... beg the Almighty to cut the hands of foreigners" to loosen their grip on ir-an, the bearded Shiite Moslem patriarch prayed before throngs of followers.

Railing against "despotism and coloni-alism" that he said has perverted Iranian culture, Khomeini said Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi "has made the army follow the orders of another country.

The movement to oust the shah's good ernment and establish an Islamic republic will be successful only "when the roots of colonialism are pulled out," he said. He did not mention the United States by name, but there was no doubt what country he was talking about. During the flight from Paris, the ascet-ic religious leader slept on the floor of the upstairs bar on his chartered Air France jumbo jet. The jetliner circled three times and landed at 9 a.m. as a miltion jubilant followers lined the 11-mile route he took from the airport to the capital's largest cemetery. "A selected crow3 of 1,000 was admitted to the airport terminal to greet the 78-year-old religious leader. A crush of showing, shouting nrullahs, or Moslem priests, reporters and others mobbed him at the entrance to the reception lounge.

"We are succeeding, but this is only the first stage," Khomeini told the welcoming crowd in a loud, firm voice.

He accused forces he did not identify of trying to restore the shah to power but declared: "The imperialist shah regime is all in the past and cannot be brought back again. Our success is the result of the unity of all the people in this country. They all follow one wood (Islam) and even the religious minorities are united with Islam."

The crowd surged forward shouting "Allah Akhbar!" (God is great) as the ayatullah finished his statement, pushing him against a stairway, and aides had to shield him until the crowd was pushed

Aides told reporters aboard the jetliner that brought Khomeini home that he probably will announce a provisional gov-ernment to replace Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar in "a couple of days" and his Cabinet in a few days. But Bakhtiar in a broadcast Wednesday night said the government would "resist chaos and doubtful elements" and "will not permit the reins of the country to be held by any one except the central government."

In a section of Behesht Zahra cemetery where "martyrs" of the revolution are buried, Khomeini told throngs of followers, "I am going to establish a government with the backing of this nation."

Avalanche-Journal Staff Lubbock County Hospital District officials today were elated that a Senate committee has recommended state aid to hospitals serving as the primary training ground for Texas' eight medical schools.

Among the beneficiaries would be the district's fledgling Health Sciences Center Hospital, the primary teaching facility of the Texas Tech University School of "This bill means our survival," Jack Strong, chairman of the hospital district's board of managers, said of legislation endorsed by the Senate Human Resources

The human resources panel Wednesday gave a favorable recommendation to a bill sponsored by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, that would allow the state to assume part of the costs at teaching hos-

The measure goes next to the full Senate for its consideration.

Brooks said his bill would authorize the state to compensate teaching hospitals for resident physicians - medical school graduates who are taking advanced training. The amount would be decided by the appropriations bill, but it could be as much as $15,000 per resident, Brooks

"Our residents are running us about $1.5 million a year," Strong said. "If the state would pick up this cost, it would help us out tremendously."

The current $1.5 million annual cost involves about 94 residents. But by 1982, the Tech-affiliated hospital is expected to have about 145 residents - at a cost of about $3.6 million a year, said Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the hospital district and teaching hospital. The hospital district's annual tax revenues amount to only about $3.5 million, and about $400,000 of that is needed for Emergency Medical Services (EMS) operations.

"This is one of the great reasons why we need passage of legislation providing for funding of residents in teaching hosp tals," Bosworth said.

This week, Bosworth and Strong represented the Lubbock hospital district in Austin to promote the teaching hospitals:

"All of the teaching hospitals are in the same boat," Strong said. "The problem is that each of us is limited to using local funds in providing a service that has statewide benefits.

Warren G. Harding, executive director of the Bexar County Hospital District, served as spokesman for the teaching hospitals. He told the Senate committee the medical schools' teaching hospitals merit state aid because the graduates of See LOCAL HOSPITAL Page 18

Government May Block Sunday Gasoline Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government officials, faced with continuing shortages of Iranian crude oil, are considering a ban on Sunday gasoline sales and a variety of other measures reminiscent of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

The United States normally gets about 5 percent of its crude oil from Iran.

Other oil producing countries, most notably Saudi Arabia, have made up for much of the Iranian loss. But there have been reports the Saudis would produce an average of only 9.5 million barrels a day in the first four months of 1979. The normal daily average is nearly 10.5 mil-

Schlesinger said he had seen nothing from Iran that would indicate a return to normality is imminent.

The most optimistic estimates say production in Iran will not resume for at least several weeks. It would take six months for the country's production to return to acceptable levels, experts say.

In a related development, Exxon Corp. announced Wednesday it is reducing supplies of crude oil to customers by 10 percent. And Standard Oil Co. of California asked the Energy Department for permission to limit, to last year's level, the amount of Chevron gasoline it sells to dealers. Both companies attributed their action primarily to the situation in Iran.

Hobby's Plan For Primaries Draws Blast AUSTIN (UPI) - Texas' highest Demnews conference that he will veto any bill ocratic officeholder drew sharp criticism from liberal Democrats and staunch Republicans with a proposal to hold separate spring and summer primaries for presidential candidates and state office seekers and to allow crossover voting. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he will have a bill ready to introduce next week to hold a presidential primary on March 11, 1980 - a move he said will help Texans running for the White House - and delay primary elections for state offices until July and August.

Voters would be able to vote in the presidential primary of one party and then another party's balloting for nominees for state offices. Gov. Bill Clements said at a midday to delay primary elections for state offices until July or August. Liberal Democrats termed the idea

"cockeyed."

"This is obviously a self-serving proposal by people who call themselves Democrats but depend on Republicans to renominate them," Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said. Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, said the proposal is aimed at helping "Tory Democrats survive." Under current law a person who votes in the primary of one party cannot then vote in another party's nominating elec-

Hobby said it would be unfair to impose such a restriction on voters when the presidential primary is four months before the primaries to select nominees for state offices.

"I don't think it's fair to try to bind somebody who votes in a presidential primary in March as to what party's primary he will vote in in July, when he won't even know in March who the party candidates for state offices will be," Hobby

"This obviously will be the most controversial part of the bill," Hobby said, Hobby said holding a presidential preference poll in conjunction with state primary elections in May - as Texas did in 1976 - reduces Texas' influence in both parties and makes candidates for local offices campaign too long before the November general elections.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he favors Hobby's proposal and agrees with the idea of giving Texans running for the

"I think it would give any Texan who is running an advantage," Clayton said.

Hobby said the cost of holding separate presidential and state office primaries might be offset by a unitary system in which one polling place would serve all parties in a precinct.

"The need for moving the state primary closer to the general election is obvious," Hobby said. "The long spread in between there involves a great deal of expense. It only came about as a result of Lyndon Johnson's wish to have it changed in 1959 so he could go to the Democratic convention with the Senate nomination already sewed up."

Physicians Warn Public About Laetrile Toxicity

The lay and medical public should be alerted to the potential toxicity of amygdalin, the need to store it in childproof containers, and the immediate institution of therapy for cyanide poisoning when amygdalin is accidently ingested," the article said.

Local officials said the blast apparently was due to an accumulation of natural gas set off Tuesday by a spark in the repair shop section of the facility of the U.S. Penitentiary at nearby Leavenworth, Kan. Five inmates and one prison employee were killed and two inmates and a second employee were injured. Another man, who was standing outside the building, suffered minor injuries but was not hospitalized.

Rescue crews working in heavy snow and near-zero temperatures recovered the last two bodies early Wednesday. The seven inmates and two prison employees inside a wing of the structure have been accounted for, officials said.

A penitentiary spokesman said the explosion caused a section of the roof and the floor to collapse, crushing the victims in the basement of the H-shaped two-story structure.

The building, used for the repair of vehicles, is three miles west of the main penitentiary and is across the Missouri River in Missouri.

The explosion took off one of the legs of the H." said Dr. Richard Seiter, executive assistant to the warden at the U.S. Penitentiary. "That section of the building is totally demolished, but the rest of the building is still standing."

Cuts Proposed By Adams Would Halt Texas Runs

A proposal that Texas' two north-south passenger trains be eliminated has drawn blasts from Texas officials - although some grudgingly concede the lines offer little economic return.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams suggested Wednesday that 11,800 miles be chopped from Amtrak's national route. He cited the railway's "staggering" costs to taxpayers.

Adams asked Congress to approve the cutback, which would do away with the Lone Star, which runs between Houston and Chicago, and the Inter-American, which runs between Laredo and Chicago The Sunset Limited, a tri-weekly route between New Orleans and Los Angeles through Houston and El Paso, would continue in service U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and U.S. Rep.

Jim Wright said they would go along with the requests to cut the service, because of the unprofitability of the lines. But other Texans greeted the news with anger.

"They're gutting service to the South-west," said Dan Monaghan of Garland, an officer of the Texas Association of Railroad Passengers.

He echoed the sentiments of others, who claim the proposal is representative of Transportation Department bias toward the Boston-to-Washington, D.C.

"It's a northeastern mind set," said Dr. Bill Hamilton, chairman of the Amtrak Committee of the Austin Chamber of

"I think primarily Amtrak mar ment is not interested in spending any money except in the Northeast corridor. We seem to think the Northeast corridor is their sacred cow."

Hamilton said 120 trains run daily through the northeastern section of the country, making up 2 percent of the sys-tem's route miles but causing 27 percent of the system's deficit. Adam's proposal would eliminate 43 percent of the system, but he says 91 percent of the railway's business is in the Northeast corridor. Wright, the House majority leader, said it would be difficult to justify Amtrak's economic losses while trying to cut federal expenditures.

"I'm not going to ask the transporta-tion department to continue service

Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, said the service might be able to save money be trains and providing "Lawmakers can be expected to take a critical look and might reject the recommendations," Mattox said.

"Amtrak never wanted this route, and made attempts to kill the route and since its inception had bad equipment, poor scheduling and extremely poor management," said Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas.

Physicians Warn Public About Laetrile Toxicity

Laetrile are common enough in American homes that steps should be taken to prevent accidental consumption by children, the New England Journal of Medicine said today.

Doctors reported the case of an 11month old Buffalo, N.Y., area girl who accidently swallowed as many as five Laetrile tablets and was poisoned to death by cyanide, which is contained in the compound amygdalin, found in Laetrile, and released into the blood stream when swallowed

Some say Laetrile, a derivative of apricot and peach pits, is a cure for cancer. But the Food and Drug Administration says there is no proof of its benefits. 'The drug belonged to the patient's father, who was using it for the treatment of cancer and considered the pills to be harmless vitamins," the study said. Two of the article's four co-authors -

Drs. Kathleen T. Braico and James R.

Buffalo — suggested the child's life could have been saved if the parents had told physicians the child swallowed Laetrile.

"The lay and medical public should be alerted to the potential toxicity of amygdalin, the need to store it in childproof containers, and the immediate institution of therapy for cyanide poisoning when amygdalin is accidently ingested," the article said.

Physicians Warn Public About Laetrile Toxicity

can homes that steps should be taken to prevent accidental consumption by child-ren, the New England Journal of Medicine said today.

Doctors reported the case of an 11month old Buffalo, N.Y., area girl who accidently swallowed as many as five Laetrile tablets and was poisoned to death by cyanide, which is contained in the compound amygdalin, found in Laetrile, and released into the blood stream when swallowed. Some say Laetrile, a derivative of apricot and peach pits, is a cure for cancer. But the Food and Drug Administration says there is no proof of its benefits.

"The drug belonged to the patient's father, who was using it for the treatment of cancer and considered the pills to be harmless vitamins," the study said. Two of the article's four co-authors -

Local officials said the blast apparently was due to an accumulation of natural gas set off Tuesday by a spark in the repair shop section of the facility of the U.S. Penitentiary at nearby Leavenworth, Kan. Five inmates and one prison employee were killed and two inmates and a second employee were injured. Another man, who was standing outside the building, suffered minor injuries but was not hospitalized.

Rescue crews working in heavy snow and near-zero temperatures recovered the last two bodies early Wednesday. The seven inmates and two prison employees inside a wing of the structure have been accounted for, officials said.

A penitentiary spokesman said the explosion caused a section of the roof and the floor to collapse, crushing the victims in the basement of the H-shaped two-story structure.

The building, used for the repair of vehicles, is three miles west of the main penitentiary and is across the Missouri River in Missouri.

The explosion took off one of the legs of the H," said Dr. Richard Seiter, executive assistant to the warden at the U.S. Penitentiary. "That section of the building is totally demolished, but the rest of the building is still standing."

Seiter said a team appointed by Nor-man Carlson, director of the Bureau of

Cuts Proposed By Adams Would Halt Texas Runs

By The Associated Press A proposal that Texas' two north-south passenger trains be eliminated has drawn angry blasts from Texas officials - although some grudgingly concede the lines offer little economic return.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams suggested Wednesday that 11,800 miles be chopped from Amtrak's national route. He cited the railway's "staggering" costs to taxpayers.

Adams asked Congress to approve the

The Sunset Limited, a tri-weekly route between New Orleans and Los Angeles through Houston and El Paso, would continue in service U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and U.S. Rep.

Jim Wright said they would go along with the requests to cut the service, because of the unprofitability of the lines. But other Texans greeted the news with anger.

"They're gutting service to the South-west," said Dan Monaghan of Garland, an officer of the Texas Association of Railroad Passengers.

He echoed the sentiments of others who claim the proposal is representative of Transportation Department bias toward the Boston-to-Washington, D.C.

"It's a northeastern mind set," said Dr. Bill Hamilton, chairman of the Amtrak Committee of the Austin Chamber of

"I think primarily Amtrak manage-ment is not interested in spending any money except in the Northeast corridor. We seem to think the Northeast corridor is their sacred cow."

Hamilton said 120 trains run daily through the northeastern section of the country, making up 2 percent of the sys-tem's route miles but causing 27 percent of the system's deficit.

Adam's proposal would eliminate 43 percent of the system, but he says 91 percent of the railway's business is in the Northeast corridor.

Municipal Court a "court of record" is evident in the City Council's decision to ask the local legislative delegation to give such a bill priority treatment.

The County Commissioners Court has concurred in the recommendation, making it a rare area of total agreement between the two bodies.

As a court of record, Municipal Court would take a great burden off the county courts-at-law, which now must grant a "trial de novo"-or new trial-to any defendant who loses his case at City Hall and wants to

In theory, this gives the defendant two trials. In practice, lawyers file an appeal from Municipal Court and the case never comes up at the Courthouse-and thus no fine is ever paid.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Fighting Back At 55

BACK IN THE good old days, says My Sweet Wife, a "demonstrator" was a car or vacuum cleaner used in making sales pitches, not a member of a street mob used in pitching rocks.

The Congressional Budget Office says that Jimmy Carter's budget proposals are more likely to result in a $41 billion deficit next year than the $29 billion the President predicted.

Oh, well, what's a 40 percent miscalculation among friends?

The life of an environmentalist isn't easy. Just when he's on the picket line warning that nuclear power plants will be the death of us all, a physicist warns that unless we use more nuclear and solar energy a carbon dioxide buildup will get us.

PUBLIC RESENTMENT over the 55-mph speed limit, the most widely flaunted law since Prohibition, is reaching the boiling point in some

Foolishly imposed as an "energy conservation" measure after the 1972 Arab oil embargo, the crawl-speed on divided Interstate and other highways makes about as much sense as thermal underwear at the equator:

At least 10 or 12 state legislatures are toying with the idea of risking loss of federal highway funds by rescinding the 55-mph limit.

In Texas, bills to raise the speed limit or, in the alternative, at least to prohibit insurance companies from profiteering off tickets given for speeds between 55 and 70 mph have been introduced.

The thinking is that if enough states buck the federal government, Congress will prevent the bureaucracy from taking away highway funds.

That'd be nice but, more likely, Congress would merely misappropriate the gasoline tax dollars into more subway mass transit systems in the big

These systems are costly, wasteful and inefficient, but they're where the votes are-and Congress is philosophically in tune with anything that's costly, wasteful and inefficient, Strange times, these. We legalize sex between two unmarried males-and let a married woman charge her husband with rape.

UPI reports that a London hairdresser failed six times in one night to commit suicide. Such a failure rate is bound to make him despondent.

Those who believe that paid maternity leaves are sex discrimination in reverse, take note: Sweden now grants paid paternity leaves, too.

Atty. Gen Griffin Bell is correctly concerned about foreign "students" who wage violent dem-onstrations while guests in this country.

He needs to be equally concerned about those who wage violent demonstrations while the country is hosting foreign dignitaries like China Vice Premier Teng Hsaio-ping.

Wonder whatever happened to a Congressional investigation into the Army's $1-million-a-year subsidy of a $100 million hotel it built on an Hawaiian beach, ostensibly as a rest-and-recreation spa for Vietnam troops but more recently chiefly as a spa for military retirees?

My Neighbor Twice Removed says about the only thing he and his brother-in-law have in common is a difference of opinion.

Headline: "Women Protest Administration's Defense Spending." Obviously, they'd prefer to be defenseless.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY John Montford's 'stern new policy" toward robbers will work only if juries support him. Montford says his office will ask "upwards of 30 years" for first offenders and the maximum sentence of 99 years or life imprisonment for defendants in aggravated robbery cases who have previous felony convictions. An aggravated robbery is one in which a deadly weapon is used or in which bodily injury is done. There'll be no plea bargaining or negotiating for lesser charges in return for guilty pleas in such cases, the new DA says. As one who until his election was in the business of defending criminal cases, Montford must have reason to believe that light sentences and plea bargaining are counter-productive of any real crackdown on crime. Considering Lubbock's alarming crime rate, those of us who serve on juries would do well to give his "stern new policy" a chance. Guys behind bars for "upwards of 30 years" aren't going to be out robbing folks.

Holmes Alexander:

Inflation Dies Thousand Deaths

Herb Stein is a fiscal fatalist, and if there's a bright side to government finance, this economics professor, U-Va., doesn't let on. From what he has to say and write, they should inscribe above the Treasury Department:
"Abandon hope all ye that enter here."

About the most cheerful comment Straus can summon on inflation is that it is not endowed with immortality. Every inflation comes to an end, always a bad end,

You could have the revolutionary war type of inflation, the one which gave us the saying, "Nor worth a continental (dollar)."

OR YOU COULD have the Civil War type in which Confederate money totally changed its na-ture, and became a sentimental keepsake sometimes still to be found in granny's attic.

Straus calls this sort of inflation's ending an

Dr. Stein goes on to say that other ways by which inflation can come to an end are a radical change of government or a rapid turnaround in central policy—just so it carries popular support, which Carter as yet hasn't quite acquired. PRESIDENT CARTER, however, can't afford to let nature take its course to end the present inflation, and none of the above methods is a desir-

Rather, the President announced on Oct. 24 and Nov. 1 his own policy to curb the economy, and we all know roughly that it's voluntary.

Voluntary restraints never have worked, but there's always got to be a first time, and the President has some ideas there also, according to Prof. Stein. One is the theory that this current inflation is unlike previous ones in that it is not responsive to the reduction of goods on the market or to the climbing of unemployment. Therefore, different problems, different solutions.

To keep Management in line, the President has the well-known "whip in the closet." If an industry or a single company strays from the price-guideline, the President applies the lash. In Prof. Stein's words: "The sanctions for non-

The plan looks as well on paper as all the other unsuccessful stop-inflation schemes have looked. Big Labor, notably George Meany and Fred Fitzsimmons have already opposed it, and business-men yawn as if they had heard it all before.

Herb Stein's pessimistic but informed opinion is that Carter's program has too many obstacles in its path—public apathy, Labor opposition, probable rejection, in whole or part, by Congress and the courts.

He thinks a fair judgment would be that the Carter plan will have no influence on the course of inflation-which, as in the past, will come to an unpleasant end, but an end, anyhow.

THIS HAPPENS most often in four situations: (1) When you buy products or services whose performance is difficult to assess. As an illustration, consider home insulation. "You can't tell if it's installed properly or if the insulation is all it's cracked up to be short of poking holes in your walls or comparing this year's heating bill to last year's." he says year's," he says.

Conversation overheard: "My son had to give up his career because of fallen arches." "Is he an athlete?"

(2) When it is impossible for you to trace your distress to a particular product. For instance, Reich says, "your radial tire blows out. But you don't know if it's because you damaged the tread, didn't take proper care of the tire, or because the tire was badly designed to start with."

In cases such as this-where it is impossible to lar customer and are engaged in such one-shot transactions as door-to-door sales or mail order operations. Federal regulators might help here by requiring a "cooling off" period, a brief time during which you can easily back out of a deal.

(4) And finally: when competition in an industry is so slight that you have no real alternative except to buy what is available, no matter what its shortcomings.

By STEVE LAWRENCE What's going on here? In Congress, Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives are scrambling to put alcohol in your gas tank.

At the same time more than two dozen states are joined in a single organization to push the development of alcohol fuels. And the major oil companies seem so confused — though perhaps only tem-porarily — that some are endorsing alco-hol as motor fuel, while others are fighting it bitterly.

They call the mixture of 10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gasoline, "gasohol" and it's now being sold to motorists in sis. They have not yet thought up a name for the curious mixture of state and national politics that gasohol has created.

All the enthusiasm, endorsements, conferences, gasohol tests, and even some federal financial support, would seem to add up to almost certain success for the development of a motor fuel that can be made from crops, crop wastes and even garbage. But the outcome is still far from clear.

One of President Carter's widely trumpeted energy policy goals is to cut gaso-line consumption 10 percent by 1985. Passenger cars now guzzle more than 100 billion gallors of gasoline a year.
And the auto industry — after a sharp shove from Congress — is spending hundreds of millions of dollars making cars lighter and smaller to try to meet

But in Midwestern and Southern farm states, in the timber country of the Northwest and Northeast and in urban areas plagued with a galloping garbage glut, a lot of people are beginning to see alcohol as a quick and ready way to ease the coming energy crunch.

"I am certain you are aware of the growing enthusiasm in the Congress for gasofiol, with the potential to reduce sharply U.S. dependency on foreign oil while providing farmers with a steady market for their crops," Nebraska Senator Carl Curtis, chairman of the Republi-

"If current stored surplus corn and theat were converted to alcohol and added to gasoline, we could reduce oil imports by about 17 percent in one year.

"If other crop surpluses and farm waste were also distilled, the president's goal of conserving 10 percent of present gasoline consumption could readily be met, Curtis concluded.

Curtis was inviting lawmakers on both sides of Capitol Hill, to a gasohol debate by a panel of oil industry, farm state and government experts, in an effort to shake loose one or more of the 20 or so alcohol fuel bills pending in Congress.

The debate came one day before the first Washington D.C. meeting of the National Gasohol Commission which brought together representatives from more than two dozen states that want to make alcohol fuels a reality.

"I've never seen such broadly based support for an issue, says Senator Jacob Javits' energy adviser, Scott Sklar. The farm and timber guys want to find something to do with their crop surplusses and waste, and we're in it because it looks like a way to do something about New York's garbage problem."

The Department of Energy's alternate fuels chief Eugene Ecklund says the congressional interest is doing more than anything to get this moving. But from the progress so far of those bills, you have to wonder what he means by

There are four measures that seem most "do-able," as they say in Congress. One sponsored by Birch Bayh, D-Ind., would set up a National Alcohol Fuels Commission to pull all the research to-gether and advise the president on a national policy. A second Bayh bill would create incentives for farmers to use idle acreage to grow crops that can be turned into alcohol.

into alcohol.

But the toughest one, written by Frank Church. D-Idaho, and backed so far by Senate Energy Committee chairman, Henry A. Jackson, D-Wash., would require that all U.S. gasoline contain 10 percent alcohol by 1990.

"That's the one that makes you bite the bullet," says Fred Wahl, Church's energy adviser. "We feel there's no need to study this anymore, so our bill says to study this anymore, so our bill says let's make it happen by guaranteeing there will be a market for gasohol.

"That's the way to get the oil companies to market the stuff when they don't want to," Wahl says.

Each of these bills has lost its way for one reason or another in the general muddle that has developed over energy legislation in Congress. They are all pending either in conference committees or waiting for hearings or something of the sort.

Strangely enough, the oil industry seems to be somewhat divided on alcohol fuels. Chevron' Exxon, Mobil and the American Petroleum Institute have all issued scathing reports on alcohol. The oil companies don't want it because you can't patent alcohol and anyone can make it out of almost anything, says Ri-chard Merritt, Nebraska, gasohol lobby-ist and head of the Alcohol-Alternate Fuel Institute in Washington D.C.

"The petroleum industry is not an op ponent of the use of alcohol," an API spokesman replied, "it's just not happy about being forced to sell the stuff."

But some small and medium size oil companies, especially those that own coal mines (methanol — one kind of alcohot - can be made from coal) seem to favor gasohol. Conoco, for example, the second biggest coal producer in the country, helped the state of Nebraska start an extensive alcohol research pro-

At least 73 members of Congress think alcohol makes lots of sense. In 1977, in a joint letter to Energy Secretary Schlesinger and Agriculture Secretary Bergland, they called for a national commitment to develop fuels from the productive capacity of our farmland and forestland.

The government has responded ginger-ly. Last year the Department of Energy search and this year the president's budget included $18.6 million for pure research and another $15 million in loan guarantees to build four pilot distilleries.

Merritt and other pro-alcohol critics of the Carter administration call this a pittance, and charge that the president and

Merritt and other pro-alcohol critics of the Carter administration call this a pittance, and charge that the president and his energy chief are becoming a front for big oil. Merritt points out, for instance, that Volkswagen, the German autogiant, is so enthusiastic about alcohol that it is pouring $10 million of its own money into Brazil's national gasohol program. Brazil is in the middle of a drive to make all its gasoline 20 percent alcohol in four to five years.

Another problem, the administration's critics say, is that Department of Energy research money is being given to the oil companies to evaluate alcohol. I mean if there ever was a case of letting the fox watch the chickens that's it, says an ex-we're spending."

Perhaps to head off more such attacks' the Energy Department began a $500,000 "crash effort to assess the potential of alcohol fuels." as one top agency official called it. There will be some kind of action program by January, the agency's deputy assistant secretary for policy. Leslie Goldman, told the June meeting of the National Gasohol Commission in Washington.

Almost, but no cigar, said commission members from states with strong alco-hol fuels programs.

"They spend all this time and money talking about whether it's feasible and we've got more than 26 stations in Illinois right now selling gasohol," said Al Mavis, director of Illinois' farm energy conservation program.

Group Wants Controls On Sale Of Pain Killer

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Darvon, the nation's top-selling prescription pain kill-er, should be either banned or tightly controlled because of evidence linking it to accidental death, Ralph Nader's health researchers told Congress this week. The drug's manufacturer, Eli Lilly and Co., strongly defended the product, saying it is completely safe when used as directed; that most of the deaths associated with it are suicides, and that in any case, the number of recent Darvon deaths is not increasing. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said his

Small Business Committee, which opened three days of hearings into the drug, wants to investigate the death reports, especially since "expert witnesses indicated at our hearings eight years ago that Darvon is not as effective as aspi-

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of Nader's Health Research Group, said a Lilly study obtained by his organization showed the problem may be a long-lasting spinoff of the drug that can cause a toxic buildup.

The group petitioned the Department of Health, Education and Welfare last fall either to ban the drug propoxyphene, of which Darvon is the largest selling brand, or restrict its manufacturer and prohibit prescriptions for it from being refilled automatically.

In testimony submitted to Nelson's hearing Wolfe said the Lilly study shows the liver converts part of the drug to norpropoxyphene, or NPX, whinh remains in the body for 38 hours, compared to 12 hours for the drug itself.

Because of that, he said, chronic users of the drug accumulate large amounts of NPX in the blood, sufficient when combined with renewed doses to equal levels that in test animals cause heart irregularities and death.

Nelson said the hearings would attempt to discover "why the number of deaths involving the drug reported to the Drug Abuse Warning Network by medical examiners rose from 480 in 1976 to 599 in 1977, an increase of 25 percent.

Lilly, in a statement circulated in advance of the hearing, said, however, that deaths "are not increasing but are declining." Since March 1977, the drug has been under stricter controls that limit a patient to one prescription and no more than five refills in any six-month period. Wolfe, however, said that while there appears to be a decrease in deaths during the latter part of 1978, these data underestimate the actual number of reported deaths since all 1978 reports are not completed and sent to the Drug Enforcement Administration until well into

Wolfe charged that "thousands have died" as a result of the drug's toxicity. Lifly said in 21 years of use, "Darvon has safely and effectively relieved relieved mild-to-moderate pain in millions of patients" and has been "thoroughly studied with the results reported in more than 850 published scientific papers."

"Lilly is confident that another review of the product by the Food and Drug Administration will again confirm that the product is sale and effective when used as directed." it added.

'Triple' Practicing Polygamy

By RICHARD H. GROWALD SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — They are not a couple. They are a triple. He and she and she practice polygamy. The handsome husband and his two attractive wives sit in their living room and talk about it.

The young professional man swings his glass of sangria out of the reach of the prowling arms of one of their five children and laughs.

"Polygamy is better than monotony."

Wife Number One and Wife Number Two smile. They share a laugh about his being a male chauvinist pig.
"Let's call it patriarchal," the husband said. "That's it. Patriarchal." Wife Number One grins. "Patriarchal!

He can't even grow a beard.' Wife Number Two sets down her diet soft drik with her left hand. She keeps a six-month-old son cradled in her right

"And he can't - or won't - change a diaper," said Wife Number Two. "Maybe that's patriarchal

The triple laughs and relax and settle on the sofa and overstuffed chairs by the living room fireplace. They are sort of Mork & Mindy & Mindy.

But this is Salt Lake City, capital of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and polygamy is the skeleton in the Mormon community closet. The thought makes the smiles fade.

The husband a tall man with the muscles of the granite men on monuments in the squares of the prairie and mountain pioneer states, runs five fingers through the blond hair of Wife Number One's sec-

'It's dangerous to be a polygamist in a Mormon world. It's like being a Jew in Nazi Germany," he said.

Through a parlor window, across snow and down a hilt, shines the golden-lit spires of the Mormon Temple. The threesome call it "the big church over there." Across Main Street from the Temple, on the top 25th floor of the Mormons' office building, sits Jerry P. Cahill, the church's director of press relations. For a questioner, he speaks the Mormon view; Any member of the Church who advocates or practices polygamy is subject to excommunication.

A century ago Mormons practiced polygamy, Brigham Young, the Salt Lake City founder, had 27 wives. Federal laws and lederal troops helped undo the practice: the church announced God had told the faithful that polygamy belongs only in the next world.

That settled, Mormons prospered monogamously. Few other cities can boast Salt Lake City's richness, its clean streets, its order, its low crime rate. Perhaps nowhere else does Establishment America so shine, a place where doors are held open for women, a downtown where strangers say hello and probably mean it.

But polygamy did not die. In Utah, on the Arizona border, up in Washington, out in the rural reaches of the church, men amassed wives. Polygamy was not the only cause of the religious war among Mormons refer to the dissidents as the fundamentalists. It is fundamentalists who cherish polygamy. The fundamentalists hold the church has departed from the good "old ways."

For example, the fundamentalists do not believe the president of the Mormon Church is a living prophet, The Mormons and the fundamentalists argue doctrine: polygamy is but the best known, the noisy battleground.

In his carpeted office, Cahill said he has heard "the figure of 30,000 floated around" as to the number of men, women and children in polygamist families in Utah "I think it's considerably less than that." He ruffles through some papers.

"My guess, well, my figures put it at somewhere between 6,000 and 8,000," Cahill said. He lists Utah as having 840,-000 persons, 72 percent of the population. in the Mormon Church.

Behind him, through a window with a grander view than most old masters. snow sprinkles on Ensign Peak, on the State capitol the thrifty Mormon state built with money from a judgment against the estate of Averell Harriman's railroad baron father. Down there, in the foreground haze, is the home of the polygamist triple.

There, in the living room, the husband does some figuring. He looks up and puts the polygamist population of Utah at about 35,000. "Take my father's family,"

His is not a family tree; it is a family

"Dad had eight wives, six of them still living. He has 42 children, 22 boys and 20 girls. Dad has over 200 grandchildren, over 30 great-grandchildren and one or two great-great-grandchildren.

"My mother was the younger of two sisters he married. Her older sister just celebrated her 50th wedding anniversary with dad. My mom - I'm the ninth of her 13 children - has been married to Dad 45 years. Dad's children range from 5 to 55. The husband leans back on the sofa by the fireplace. "Figured up just the other day that Dad, counting all his wives, has been married 225 years.

Foster had asked for the new TVA tests three weeks ago.

TVA last month released a report showing that levels of DDT up to 120 times the FDA-recommended tolerance level were found in fish several miles downstream in the Tennessee River.

"The levels of DDT are so high that you can actually smell it and you can see clumps of it like rocks on the shore." Dr. Ralph Brooks, chief of TVA's Water Quality and Ecology Branch, said

TVA officials said the contamination was caused by an Olin Corp. chemical plant on the Army's Redstone Arsenal property. The plant, closed and dismantled in 1970 for health reasons, had manufactured most of the world's supply of the pesticide since 1947.

The Army is just now beginning efforts to clean up more than 4,200 tons of DDT deposits on the property, TVA officials said. Brooks said removing them could cost as much as $50 million.

The mayor charged that the cleanup would have begun earlier if Triana residents were middle-class whites instead of poor, rural blacks. The TVA said it asked for a ban on fishing in the area but the FDA, the Environmental Protection Agency and Alabama health officials have been reluctant to issue such an order. Instead of a ban, signs are posted along Huntsville Spring Branch, where the DDT was discharged, and Indian Creek, warning that eating the fish might be hazardous to health. If they put a ban on fishing, what are we going to eat?" asked Foster. He said residents are afraid to eat the fish, but their law

I thought he had finally slipped his gossamer grasp on reality because in Vietnam most of the hotels were operated by Chinese who had no patience with the bureaucratic paperwork of filling out laundry forms. You simply pushed the button marked "boy" or "garcon" in some of the tonier Frenchowned establishments, and a room boy in white pajamas appeared at the door to carry off your laundry to a momma-san in a back alley somewhere or perhaps down on the banks of the Mekong. But my confusion was short lived. Through a translator — actually a BBC correspondent who happened to be in the AP office at the time — I learned that the stiff upper lipped chap in London was actually asking for a story on land reforms, not laundry forms, in the Mekong Delta and my American ear was at fault in missing the distinction.

The memory of the incident clings because over the years I have become convinced that there is a story in laundry forms, not necessarily in the Mekong Delta, but on a global scale.

Pru Emory, a Canadian friend who once held the post of press officer at the stuffy but prestigious Savoy Hotel in London, had the bright idea one dull day of modernizing that institution's laundry form. The list had survived down the years in its original Victorian language. Men's underwear came under the heading of "personal linen" and an undershirt was a "singlet." Pajamas failed to make the list, but men could send off a night shirt and night cap to the cleaners. The Board of Directors, no less, were horrified that an upstart Canadian would dare tamper with British tradition and huffily vetoed the reforms of the laundry

The language barrier can be a problem for the traveler these days despite the advent of drip-dry fabrics and the proliferation of international hotel chains like

Hilton, Meridien and Intercontinental throughout the world. In Rome last fall while covering the death and election of two popes, I noticed that the laundry form in the Boston Hotel, which is nicely located just opposite the Borghese Gardens, had two words for girdle on the "signore" or ladies side of the list: pancera and reggicalze. But there was only one Italian word for pullover. Oddly enough pullover in Italian is pullover.

There was also a listing for bidet, which is the same in both English and Italian, but why people would be sending out this porcelain fixture with the laundry remained a mystery that I was too fastidious to inquire about. Also, like the Savoy's rigidity in calling a men's undershirt a singlet, the proprietors of the Boston insisted on calling this garment an "undervest" in English, which translated to "maglie" in Italian.

The late Cardinal Richard Cushing of Boston once related that the first time he stayed at the Grand Hotel in Rome, when he went to receive his red hat from the pope, the chambermaid always laid out his pajamas on one pillow and his lacy clerical surplice on the other at bedtime."

Hotels can be quite autocratic and downright pigheaded when it comes to

During the last Associated Press Managing Editors convention in Portland, Ore., Irv Frank, an AP executive, called the hall porter to have a laundry bag sent up to his room, since apparently the maid had forgotten to place one in the

"Just stuff your laundry in a pillow case and leave it inside the door," he was advised. Irv complied and when the laundry came back that evening he was charged $2.00 for same day service on one pillow case.

Bob Tuckman, a veteran foreign correspondent now living in London, tried to cope with the global vagaries of laundry forms by having the phrase "no starch" translated into 26 languages.

A seasoned traveler who once bullied the National Hotel in Moscow into returning his laundry the same week, then a record, Tuckman is convinced that anyone can journey to any place in the world free of linguistic worry if he masters three key phrases in the language of the country he is about to visit:

No starch, please.

My friend will pay.

What are you doing for dinner tonight, beautiful?

There is also an X-rated version of the latter phrase, which might prove useful in more permissive climes but delicacy prevents mentioning in newspapers destined for the doorsteps of traditional nuclear families.

S. J. Perelman wrote a classic comic essay build around an article in the Times of London, which revealed that Pandit Motila Nehru, the father of the great Indian leader, always sent his laundry off to Paris from New Delhi, the way college kids consign their laundry boxes to Mom.

World leaders apparently worry about their laundry in every land and clime. As supreme Allied commander, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was always solicitous in front line visits as to whether the troops were getting mail from home and regular laundry service from the quartermaster. Recent tell-all books, however, reveal that the general sent his laundry to the Savoy in London. And so did Gen. Charles de Gaulle, When Gen. Dougles MacArthur finelly returned to the Gen. Charles de Gaulle. When Gen. Douglas MacArthur finally returned to the Philippines, his laundry was waiting at the Manila Hotel.

Word has not yet leaked out on how Henry Kissinger handled his laundry dur-ing his busiest days of shuttle diplomacy and opening the door to China, al-though there it shouldn't have been a problem. And it's reassuring to know that when homespun Jimmy Carter steps off Air Force One with his garment bag slung over his shoulder at least he hasn't been taken to the cleaners in some for-

Professor Questions Breast Surgery

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - Radical surgery is no more effective in saving the lives of women with breast cancer than more conservative, less mutilating treatment, an MIT researcher says.

Professor Maurice S. Fox said tests in Denmark and Great Britain show there is no survival benefit provided by radical mastectomy that is not equally provided by simple mastectomy plus radiation therapy.

Radical mastectomy includes removal of the breast, lymph nodes under the arm and chest muscle. Simple mastectomy is limited to removal of the breast.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology biologist wrote in an issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association about his research, conducted while on sabbatical leave at the Harvard School of Public Health.

Fox said there has been a dramatic increase in the reported incidence of breast cancer since 1965. However, despite this increase in early detection, the risk of dying of breast cancer has remained un-changed for the past 40 years.

Fox suggested that there may be large numbers of women who have a condition that looks like cancer to the pathologist but does not have the lethal characteristics of the disease. This means that the constant death rate in the face of an increased incidence of reported disease may reflect more detection of a benign condition that does not actually require

Sweeney Says Smiles Make Job Enjoyable

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Men walk up nd pump his grimy hand. Women plant kisses on his sooty cheek.

Jim Sweeney, a 29-year-old college graduate who joined the city's growing corps of chimney sweeps in September, says these friendly fringes make his job worthwhile.

According to superstition, it's good luck to kiss or shake hands with a chimney sweep. But even those who don't know that Sweeney is a walking good luck charm often greet him with a smile. His work attire - the traditio high hat and tails - turns amused heads

Carter Aiming For Middle

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's hardly a battle cry, but with the New Foundation, President Carter is staking claim to the territory he always has sought as politician and as president — the middle.

into the 1980 presidential campaign. Indeed, his hold-the-line, $532 billion federal budget covers federal spending for all but the final month of the 1980 campaign period.

Conservatives say it's too much money, liberals complain at the cuts, and Carter winds up in the middle. The White House is wagering that's where the voters are.

In national defense, Carter proposes to press for a strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, insisting he won't sign any deal that doesn't guarantee U.S. security. Such assurances notwithstanding, SALT dismays the right.

At the same time, he wants to increase defense spending by 3 percent while whittling down the budget for some social programs dear to the Democrats.

Carter also is positioned between the two Democrats who loom as his most likely challengers, if challengers there be for the party's 1980 nomination.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts. who wants action now on the national health insurance Carter would put off until the 1980s, has complained of domestic spending curbs in the new budget.

"It is a myth that we must choose between compassion and competence," Carter countered in his State of the Union address Tuesday night.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, already exploring a 1980 presidential bid, said Carter painted an overly optimistic picture of the nation's economic

Gasification Project Proposed

NEW YORK (UPI) — The federal Department of Energy said early this year it hopes the United States soon will be at the commercial pilot plant stage in making gas out of coal deep underground.

This "in situ" coal gasification has been practiced in the Soviet Union since the 1920s but the gas turned out by the Russian process is of rather low BTU content and is good only for running power plants built right over the mine.

Texas Utilities Co. is using the Russian low-BTU in situ coal gasification process to produce gas from seven wells sunk into a coal bed to fuel a power station at the surface.

While such plants could be very useful in the United States and might produce electricity more cheaply than can be done from mined coal, oil or natural gas, the big need is to produce gas deep underground and upgrade it by a process called methanization until it is as rich as natural gas and can be fed into majorpipeline systems.

A Casper, Wyo.. company, Extractive Fuels. Inc., has filed proposals with the Department of Energy and the Environmental Protection Agency for grants ranging from $48 million to $75 million to finance a three to seven year pilot plant project. This would be to prove the commercial feasibility of burning the coal underground to produce the gas and enriching it to pipeline grade. The engineering feasibility already has been proved by the Department of Energy in an experimental program at Hanna, Wyo.

Atlantic Richfield Co. has obtained a permit for an underground coal gasification project, also in Wyoming, but has not disclosed its plans.

Robert G. Fowler, president of Extractive Fuels, which is a subsidiary of Dakota Minerals, Inc., a large coal mining firm, told United Press International it is not possible at this stage of the game to get private capital to finance an in situe enriched coal gas project.

enriched coal gas project.

In the first place, Fowler said, the capital needs for coal development in the United States will total $60 million in the next 15 years and only half of that can be raised in the private capital markets, which naturally will favor the coal development projects that will return the quickest profits.

So even though it appears that an in situ enriched coal gasification plant might be built for a third the cost of plants to mine the coal, then gasify it and enrich it, private capital just isn't going to be available until commercial feasibility is proven by a pilot plant.

In the first part of this century, Fowler said, private capital probably would have been available but in those days the promoters of such ventures had no corporate income tax to pay, no costly environmental protection risks and little or no government regulation to contend with.

Fowler said the chief environmental concern about in situ coal gasification is contamination of the underground water in the mining region. Burning the coal might increase the chemical salt loads the water must absrob.

But he expects a pilot plant would prove that gas produced underground from coal and enriched to pipeline grade could be delivered at a unit price of $3.25 against $3.75 for Algerian liquefied natural gas delivered at New York.

future. Brown is betting conservative with his call for a constitutional amendment to limit future federal spending.

ment to limit future federal spending.

Carter says that won't work, and his message to Congress dismissed "simplistic or extreme solutions" to economic ail-

In the rhetoric of his New Foundation message, Carter said it is myth to argue that the nation must choose between such poles as inflation and recession at home, confrontation and capitulation abroad

There are middle grounds that avoid those extremes, he said.

That view, on programs and on politics, puts Carter in a relatively conservative position for a Democratic president. But he never posed as a liberal. In 1976, when Republicans started describing him as a big spending liberal, Carter was quick to remind people that during his campaign for presidential nomination, a good many Democrats said he was too conservative.

There's not much new in his New Foundation. The legislation he seeks all has been proposed to Congress or outlined to the nation before.

What Carter suggests for the Congress ahead is a rebuilding, an overhaul. "We cannot afford to live beyond our means, to create programs we can neither manage nor finance," he said.

The one surprise in all of this is that anyone was surprised by it. Only the slogan is new.

Flood Trial Attorneys Give Final Statements

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government charged today that U.S. Rep. Dan-iel J. Flood created a secret partnership in 1970 and for six years sold his influence for money. But the congressman's lawyer claimed he was a victim of a frameup by lying witnesses.

The object was to commit bribery,' said Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Tuoh-

Axel Kleiboemer, defending Flood, replied in his summation: "There has been (and) is that the sort of evidence that proves guilt beyond a reasonable doubt?"

The prosecutor reminded the jury that when he was hired, the congressman al-legedly told Elko: "This is a business. if you handle this the way I know you can, the rewards will be for both of us."

Tuohey added: "Those were Steve Elko's marching orders, and from that day forward, until he left the employ of Dan Flood, he marched to the tune of a drummer named Dan Flood."

The prosecutor sought to minimize the differences in testimony by some of Flood's accusers, particularly the dates when they allegedly personally handed

"Different people don't always recall the same event exactly the same way," Tuohey said. "If they did, that might raise more suspicions.

The prosecutor said everybody who sought Flood's influence had a problem, and the problems dealt with Health, Education, Welfare, Labor, the Bureau of the Handicapped, all executive agencies of the government over which Dan Flood held the purse strings."

At the time of the alleged conspiracy, Flood was chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee that handled annual expenditures of more than $70 billion for hospitals, schools, manpower programs and other programs.

Flood remained silent Wednesday when pressed by reporters on why he did not testify.

"He can't comment on that," said Walter Fleischer, one of Flood's lawyers.

"That's a very good statement," grinned Flood, "I can't improve on it." In the first 12 days of the trial, the jury

Woman Claims To Be Infant's Real Mother

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) - A young woman claiming to be the mother of a 2-month-old baby abandoned by a hitchhiker on Monday contacted authorities today to identify the youngster and regain custody, a sheriff's spokesman said.

"She brought a birth certificate and photographs," said Polk County sheriff's Lt. Conway Maddox, who said the wornan was with her parents.

"I don't think there's really any doubt" about her being the mother, Maddox

It was not clear, however, whether authorities believed the woman was the same one who reportedly abandoned the baby Monday.

The hitchhiker called herself "Lisa" and told a truck driver with whom she left the baby that she was from Jacksonville, police said. The woman who said today she is the child's mother, however, arrived from Georgia, Maddox said. Matthew was placed in a foster home while the search was continuing for his mother. Hillsborough County officials had said he would be put up for adoption if the mother could not be found. The hitchhiking woman, who appeared to be 19 to 21 years old, was picked up with her baby at a truck stop near Day-tona Beach Monday morning, the trucker told Polk County deputies. At one point, authorities quoted the unidentified driver as saying, she grabbed the microphone of his citizen-band radio and offered the child, whom she called Matthew, to anyone willing to take him.

'Apparently, no one who heard her took her seriously, except the trucker," said sheriff's Capt. John Tileston.

Late Monday, at a gas station in rural Hillsborough County, the woman left the truck, hopped in another and rode away, the driver told police.

For Violence

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) - Sheriff's deputies were on a special alert status today to ward off any more violence on the lettuce fields as another 1,200 members of the United Farm Workers joined a 12day-old strike.

Lt. Richard Wilson of the Imperial County Sheriff's Department said Wednesday that days off for deputies were canceled and officers were required to work 12-hour shifts. Wilson said the staff of the Imperial County Jail was also placed on 12-hour shifts "because of the prospect of booking large numbers of people." A special 50-deputy strike force to "protect and preserve" order along the picket lines was increased to 80 officers, with police departments in Brawley, El Centro and Calexico providing 30 additional officers. More than two dozen growers and stri-kers were injured Monday in a clash between the two sides at one farm. Marc Grossman, spokesman for the UFW in El Centro, said an additional 1,-

About 300 pickers were brought by 18 buses to one field near the city of Imperial, where about 75 UFW strikers carried "If they want to use these phony lettuce pickers to harvest the lettuce crop, they can harvest the whole valley,

Grossman said.

200 workers walked off the job Wednesday after "Volunteer Harvest Day," organized by a committee of growers, relatives and friends, was held earlier in the day.

Funeral Home Wilkinson, 61, of 3005 23rd St., died early Tuesday in Granville C. Morton Cancer and Research Hospital at Dallas after a long illness.

He had served as Lubbock district superintendent of the conference since Immediately before returning to Lubbock in June, 1977, he was senior minis ter at St. Luke United Methodist Church in Midland for three years, and served as resident of the Midland Association of Churches for one term.

Wilkinson had formerly lived in Lub-Deputies Watch book from 1958 to June, 1966, when he served as the first pastor of Oakwood United Methodist Church. During his pastorate of the Lubbock church, the present church building was constructed.

Secretary Of State's Wife Archetype Of Woman Behind Husband

By ANN BLACKMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gay Vance, wife of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, is the diplomat behind the diplomat.
Picture her in China last year. Rolls and rolls of exquisite Chinese silk are on display in a Friendship store. State Department aides are on buying spree. Mrs. Vance admires the silk, but buys none.

"There are so many rolls I couldn't pos-sibly choose one," she tells her Chinese hosts. Afterwards, Grace Elsie Sloane Vance, of the wealthy W. & J. Sloane furnishing store family, says matter-of-factly, "I simply didn't need any silk."

A tall, stately, serene - and thrifty woman with silver-gray hair, Gay Vance appears to be the archetype of the woman behind the man.

She accompanies Vance to the airports to greet visiting dignitaries. She has lunches for their wives. She studies Spanish twice a week with Mrs. Carter. And with her expenses paid for by the government, Mrs. Vance travels with her husband of 31 years on most of his foreign

"It's less tiring for him to have me around," she said in an interview. "I can take care of his housekeeping details, like laundry and packing bags. If he came back to an empty room, he would simply the one person Vance always listens to. "He takes direction very well. From her. But she's the only person," said Elva Morgan, Vance's confidential secretary for the last 11 years. "And he listens to Vance (Yale Law '42) and his wife (Bryn Mawr '38) sometimes differ on political issues.

"I agree that abortion is necessary," she said. "But it's bandied about as an easy thing to do. Cy's position is that it's something a woman should have a right

"But having worked with teen-age mothers, I think abortion has serious affects on both the mother and the father. Most girls who had abortions would not have another. Pro-abortion people sometimes talk about it as another form of contraception. I don't agree with that."

Mrs. Vance, who did graduate work in interior design, chose not to be interviewed in their rented house with its rented furniture in northwest Washington. Instead, she was seated in a small room not far from her husband's office, her soft features highlighted by a Kelly green dress - Vance hates dark colors. Asked how she feels about former President Richard M. Nixon's return to the White House for a dinner with face registered no emotion.

"If he (Nixon) started the thing, and he did, it's proper that he come," she replied. "I don't think you can carry vengeance to the point where you exclude the person who started the policy.

It was in 1972 that Nixon startled the world by becoming the first American president to visit the People's Republic of China. This month, Carter carried the process further by establishing diplomtic ties with China. Chinese officials arrived in Washington this week for official talks and a tour of the country.

Asked about the widely reported feud between her husband and Carter's national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Mrs. Vance said, "People have the right to disagree, but when they do, it's called a rift. The reports are mostly exaggerated. At various times, (Vance and Brzezinski) have differing approaches, but I don't think I'll struggle (with that question) anymore.'

In the last 20 years, Vance has worked for three presidents. He was Army secretary under President John Kennedy. Under President Lyndon Johnson, he was deputy defense secretary; presidential troubleshooter in the Canal Zone riots of 1964, the Dominican Republic civil war

Chinese deputy prime minister Teng in 1965; Cyprus in 1967 and Korea in 1968. Hsiao-ping, Mrs. Vance stiffened. Her In 1968-69, he was U.S. negotiator at the Paris Peace Conference on Vietnam.

While he worked for the New York law firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett and presided as president of the City Bar Associaton, Mrs. Vance was elected president of the New York Urban League. She also was a board member of the local public television station.

While she doesn't complain, Vance's job plainly interferes with Mrs. Vance's civic interests.

"In this job, I can't do anything in public TV or with the league," she said. concerned about conflicts of interest.

Center Helps Entrepreneu To Avoid Serious Mistakes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Entrepreneurs are born, not made, but that doesn't mean they can't be improved, says Joseph Mancuso of Worcester, Mass.

Mancuso has spent the past year launching a new non-profit business called the Center for Entrepreneurial Management Inc. Management, Inc.

It provides entrepreneurs with books, tape cassettes, special reports, newslet-ters and other information that can help them avoid serious mistakes.

After sinking some $50,000 put up by himself and five friends, Mancuso put out a mailing of 10,000 brochures seeking memberships in his center at $71 a year. A much bigger mailing is planned later in the winter.

"We had counted on getting replies with checks from onethird of 1 percent of those we solicited," he said. "We got 6 percent, so naturally, we're thrilled and hopeful.

America needs entrepreneurs in large numbers but Mancuso, who claims expertise concerning the activities and traits of entrepreneurs, has no illusion that his center will breed them. Nor, he says, can the business schools breed

The entrepreneur is a product of his own instincts, not of education," says

Maneuso.

This sounds heretical coming from a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic and Harvard Business School, but Mancuso insists that when highly educated types become entrepreneurs it's probably in spite of their schooling rather than because of the second sec

In fact, he says, many of the greatest entrepreneurs — Thomas A. Edison a d Henry Ford, for example — were not

Situation In Nicaragua Not Getting Any Better

By ALFONSO CHARDY

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) - The latest political joke in Nicaragua: Gen. Anastasio Somoza Debayle won't relinquish his power in '81 as promised; he'll do it when he's 81 - in the year 2006.

The joke illustrates the feeling in divided Nicaragua - frustration for Somoza's foes and regained confidence for the president and his loyalists.

His opposition is beginning to believe their struggle to oust him is hopeless, while Somoza's supporters think "El Hombre" is firmly in power, despite the

Neither premise is far from reality. Nonetheless, as Nicaragua begins a second year of bloody crisis, the economy is deeper into the hole, raising fears that if no solution is found soon, shortages may

The protracted crisis has led political analysts here to draw up three possible scenarios - that Somoza may stay in power as long as he wants with a continuing crisis as a way of life; that Nicaragua may slide into chaos and anarchy; or that Somoza may be replaced by a hard-line military regime.

Close aides of Somoza acknowledge rumors of a coup. Recently, the government dismissed a top national guard officer for speaking out against military con-

Some people still believe, that sooner or later, Washington may be forced to step in directly to resolve the issue of whether Somoza goes or stays.

At the same time, there are others who feel that both Somoza, a long-time U.S. ally, and his foes are aware the United States could also decide to abandon Nicaragua to its own fate.

The turmoil had been simmering for years as the national feeling - fed by poverty, repression and an emergence of political awareness in the middle-and upper-classes - grew that the time has come to dismantle the Somoza family control of this Alabama-sized nation of 2.4 million people.

The feeling needed a catalyst. It came last January when assassins ambushed and killed Somoza's long-time political archfoe, opposition newspaperman Pedro Joaquin Chamorro.

Though the murder was linked to common criminals, the deep popular admira-tion for Chamorro translated into rampaging street mobs that sacked and burned businesses.

The situation deteriorated rapidly, and finally erupted into open rebellion last

Somoza's National Guard crushed the revolt in two weeks of fierce fighting that left at least 1,500 dead, mostly civilians.

To avert a new round of civil war, the United States, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic sent a mediation panel to Managua last Oct. 6 to bring Somoza and his foes to the negotiating table to find a peaceful solution.

The goal was a U.S.-backed plan to stage a plebiscite that would determine Somoza's political future. Should he lose, Somoza would resign and go into exile abroad until 1981. If he won he could complete his term in office.

Somoza and the moderate opposition the Broad Opposition Front coalition of labor and political organizations agreed on the goal. But the talks fell through when Somoza rejected proposals the Organization of American States (OAS) organize, control and supervise the subway line has one thing in common with a lot of mass transit ventures in the United States: it loses money

Other things are different. The trains are unmarked by New York style graffiti. The seats are soft _ in contrast to the hard plastic type used elsewhere — and nobody tries to cut them up in Peking. Law and order is maintained on each platform by three or four unarmed women in blue uniforms. The unguarded ticket-selling stations would make any petty robber in New York drool, but the Peking subway evidently does not expect to be ripped off.

The stations are mostly made of marble and look like underground temples. You will be fined if you are caught spitting on Starting next October you may also be fined for discarding a cigarette or stubbing a butt underfoot on the marble. At present you are merely required to pick up your cigarette butt if the attendants catch you.

"Our administrative capabilities are not up to date," said Li Yun-an, an official of the subway's external affairs department who took foreign newsmen for a ride on the 15-mile line.

"The quality of our equipment is poor. There are a lot of breakdowns, and a low level of automation. The number of workers needed to maintain it is exces-

Russia Reportedly Testing New Cruise Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Russians have launched a new type of cruise missile from one of their Backfire bombers in a 750-mile test firing, according to

This suggests that the Russians may be working along a similar research path as the United States in developing a new air-breathing missile that could be fired from bombers or other aircraft at targets inside enemy territory. The United States is working on an air launch cruise missile with a range of about 1,500 miles, and current plans are to deploy the first squadron of B-52 bombers armed with such missiles in December 1982. In his annual report to Congress, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said last week: "As yet, there is no evidence that the Soviets have developed a cruise missile comparable to our air-launched missile, although they may be developing a long-range cruise missile of their own design." He provided no other details, but told questioning congressmen any long-range Soviet cruise missile that might be deployed would, like the U.S. weapons, be subject to limitations under an impending strategic arms limitation agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Pentagon sources said Wednesday that Brown believes any Soviet long-range cruise missile that may be under development is less sophisticated than the American weapon.

The U.S. air-launched cruise missile would be equipped with a unique terrainfollowing guidance system, permitting it to streak to its target at high subsonic speeds only a few hundred feet above the earth's surface.

That low-flying ability, coupled with the swarms of cruise missiles that would be fired from B-52s standing well outside the reach of Soviet air defenses, is counted on to defeat any Soviet defenses that may be devised in the 1980s and

The Backfire bomber is Russia's newest and has been a subject of contention between the United States and the Soviet Union in the SALT negotiations.

The Russians claim the Backfire is intended only for use in its naval aviation force and against peripheral medium-range targets in Western Europe and Asia, not against the United States.

U.S. authorities believe the Backfire has intercontinental capabilities to reach the United States from the Soviet Union if refueled in flight, and want it taken into account in reaching an arms limitation agreement.

The U.S. Navy has expected the Backfire to be armed with cruise missiles of perhaps 250-mile ranges for attacking American carrier task forces and other surface war ships.

Russia got a head start on the United States in developing shorter range cruise missiles for use against ships and ground targets, but the United states is credited with having moved out front with a strategic long-range cruise missile.

Atlanta Welcomes Teng Despite Demonstrations

ATLANTA (AP) - Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, adapting quickly to the ways of American politics, plunged into an airport crowd and pumped hands today upon his arrival in Georgia.

Teng. on the first leg of an inspection tour of American business and scientific facilities, was greeted by a brass band and a small crowd waving Chinese flags when he stepped out of his presidential jet at Dobbins Air Force Base outside Atlanta after his flight from Washington

After thanking Gov. George Busbee for his welcoming remarks, Teng stepped past his security guards and shook hands with members of the crowd as he walked to his limousine.

When he arrived at his hotel in downtown Atlanta, a group of about 50 demonstrators, bearing signs like "Better Dead than Red" and "No $ for Reds," stood across the street. Teng went straight into the hotel, where he was scheduled to meet with 1,400 businessmen for lunch.

En route to Georgia, spokesmen for the Chinese and American governments issued a joint press communique in which the countries "reaffirmed that they are opposed to efforts by any country or group of countries to establish hegemony or domination over others. The communique called the talks between Teng and President Carter "cordial, constructive and fruitful." On arrival at Dobbins, Teng noted that he had been told that "Atlanta is a garden city where flowers are in bloom everywhere." But with temperatures hovering around 20 and a stiff wind, no flowers Teng said in his prepared statement that Atlanta "is a major commercial and communications center in the South. The speed of its economic development and its achievements in urban construction are well known ... I am sure that we will learn a lot from you."

Teng left Washington after three days of high diplomacy to see another side of America. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance rode with the Chinese vice premier from his guest quarters at Blair House to a presidential helicopter waiting on the Mall between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial.

The communique issued by the United States and China noted the two sides' 'differing perspectives" on some international areas. But it repeated the language often used by the Chinese to indicate mistrust of, and opposition to, the Soviet Union. The two countries "reaffirmed that they are opposed to efforts by any country or group of countrees to establish hegemony or domination over

That was the same language as was used in the communique issued when establishment of diplomatic relations was announced on Dec. 15.

Chinese diplomats have made strong efforts in recent years to get other countries to issue statements or sign treaties containing clauses opposing "hegemony," which is the word they always use to describe what they see as Soviet expan-Officials had said earlier there would be no formal communique issued after Teng's Washington visit. The communique issued today was described as a press communique rather than a more formal, official statement. Teng's Atlanta visit marked the start of Seattle he will be seeing captains of industry, space officials and newspaper publishers and will tour plants that turn out Ford autos, oil-drilling equipment and jumbo jetliners before leaving for home Monday morning.

Among Teng's scheduled luncheon guests in Atlanta were Henry Ford IL chairman of the Ford Motor Co., and J. Paul Austin, chairman of the Coca-Cola Co., which has just acquired at least a temporary monopoly on soft-drink sales

In advance of Teng's arrival in Atlanta, Meldrim Thomson Jr., national chairman of The Conservative Caucus, called for a boycott of Coca-Cola products. In a demonstration in front of the company's international headquarters, Thomson, a former governor of New Hampshire, said of Coca-Cola, "For patriotic Americans, this drink should in the future be known as Teng's soda, and avoided as good Christians would shun moral poison.

Coca-Cola spokesman John White refused to comment.

On Wednesday, his last full day in Washington, the 74-year-old Chinese leader reflected on the one-month-old ties with the United States and signed sciin the East Room of the White House.

Teng was asked earlier at an interview with 11 American reporters what China had to offer in exchange.

He said there were many commodities it could export, including oil, coal, rare metals and chemical and light industry products. In this regard, he pitched for the removal of high American import duties that add about 50 percent to the price of Chinese products sold here. Under U.S. law, this would require China to permit free emigration.

In an interview over lunch at Blair House, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, the Chinese leader blasted the Soviet Union as "the main hotbed of war" around the world. He also denounced Vietnam as "the Cubans of the Orient," and confirmed that China has made "necessary troop movements" along its border with Vietnam. Both Vietnam and Cuba are Soviet

Happy Patty Hearst Celebrates Release At Her Mother's Home

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) - A smiling Patricia Hearst walked out of prison into bright sunshine today and was driven directly to her mother's plush suburban San Francisco home, a free woman after a five-year odyssey of kidnap, crime and punishment. She was met at the Hillsborough home by her mother and a large group of other family members and friends, who burst into applause as her car entered the driveway. Her father was not in the group outside the home. The Hearsts have separated.

Asked if she planned to do any writing, she said, "I'm going to have to."

She told reporters she was going on a trip, but would not say where or when. Then she climbed into the back seat of a station wagon between Martinez and Shaw and drove away. In front were two bodyguards and Mrs. Martinez.

Generation Gap Hits Russia

MOSCOW (AP) - A generation gap of sorts has come to the Soviets.

This is apparent from the complaints of journalists, teachers and sociologists who are blaming it not on the youngsters but on parents - who they say are spoiling their teenagers with rock albums or jeans and not teaching them about work and the value of the ruble.

The problem - which seems to echo what's been going on in the United States for years - could intensify as the Soviets become more affluent and parents keep trying to make their childrens' lives easier than their own.

"There are families in which parents renounce everything for themselves, yet try to dress their children in the latest fashions and buy them new radios and tape recorders," said the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

'Don't these parents ever think about the fact that their children are growing up like parasites?" the newspaper asked. "We must show more concern about the younger generation so it won't put material things ahead of life's real valua-

"But daddy has never had a vacation in his life and works very hard to break his back for his children even though they are already adults," the journalist

"There is a widespread delusion that because we suffered very much and worked very hard, let's make it easier for our children. But easier from what? From worry? From work? For adults, this is the normal condition of life - to work and to worry.

Authorities note there are other young people rejecting life on the farm or at the factory in favor of cushy jobs requiring little mental or manual strain. But they say parents, not children, are to blame.

Only the family in today's times can instill in children and teenagers the proper ideas about the material world and teach them to orient themselves to it," a sociologist was quoted as saying.

"But if parents themselves live by small interests, then it will be very difficult

Their presence symbolized the volatile new political situation to which the pope was returning in Italy.

Andreotti, of the church-backed Christian Democrat Party, resigned as head of government Wednesday because the Communists withdrew their support of his minority Cabinet. The rebels's eight-point "internal policy" announced last month said they would set up the re-education camps but the agency report today was the first indication that a camp was already in operament.

The Communists, who control 34.5 percent of parliament to the Christian Democrats 28.8 percent, demanded Cabinet seats as the price of continuing their support, but the ruling party refused.

Though some Christian Democrats have said their party has strengthened over the months and that early parliamentary elections would be to their advantage, other politiciams said such balloting was unlikely for the time being.

"I must recognize that positions have emerged in the (parliamentary) majority that require clarifications of its base," Andreotti told Parliament Wednesday, in reference to the Communist decision to withdraw their support last Friday.

"It would not be correct or useful to ignore or resist this," Andreotti said. "The situation requires that this Cabinet present the resignation of the government to the president of the republic."

Andreotti's government, the 40th to fall since the fall of fascism, collapsed as the nation was suffering through a new wave of terrorism by the Red Brigades and its allied ultra-leftist urban guerrilla gangs.

Hours before Andreotti submitted his Cabinet's resignation, Pertini had attended the funeral of Milan deputy prosecutor Emilio Alessandrini who was killed Monday by the Front Line urban guerrilla group.

Seeking to buttress these expressions of confidence, Lesher's economic research staff, headed by Jack Carlson, an economist with years in high government positions, sent lawmakers some interesting statistics.

In the form of a letter from Shearon Harris, chairman, the chamber informed members of Congress that in the past they have been among the major causes of inflation. Because of congressional actions in 1977 and 1978, the members were in-

The raising of the minimum wage rate, for example, accounts for fully 2 percent of the 3 percent gross impact. The chamber believes that those higher rates have needlessly raised costs - and cost jobs.

While this may or may not be so, many people believe the minimum wage should have been raised. It's their opinion. The Congress made the decision and cut buying power.

Some $40 will have been deducted from the average family's buying power by higher Social Security taxes, $14 by farm supports, $17 by energy policy, and $27

Family News Staff CONFIDENTIAL care for prognent unwed methers. Edna Gladney Home 2302 Hemphill, Fort Worth, Tekas. Toll free number — 1-806-792-1164.

What can an unmarried woman do if she is faced with a pregnancy? There are four alternatives to this problem: marriage, raising the baby alone, abortion or adoption. Whatever the choice, the Edna Gladney Home in Fort Worth is ready to Gladney has been in operation since 1896 and can accommodate 140 girls with another facility being built to house 52 more, according to Ruby Lee Piester, executive director of the home. Mrs. Piester was in Lubbock last week to talk to students about the home.

Mrs. Piester is a woman who comes on as an extremely friendly and happy person, full of life and the desire to help people. She is only the second director that Gladney has had since opening, and she has been in that position for 18 years. Mrs. Piester was in the offices of Family News last week to talk about the home, and what it can do for girls with an untimely pregnancy.

"The program starts with a girl that comes to us frightened, scared and trying to find a solution with our program. The purpose of Gladney is to look at the whole person. There's counseling. group therapy, an educational program for young girls, career development for girls over 18 and a religious life program that is non-sectarian so the girls can have an opportunity to experience other religions yet follow their own beliefs al-Mrs. Piester said.

The philosophy of the home is simple. From the day a girl walks in, we try to look at her as the person that we would like her to be: feeling good about herself, whatever decision she makes, that she has good self-esteem and really feels like a worthwhile person. We are really very happy for the girls and what happens to them. This could be a crisis time and we want her to be happy with whatever choice she makes," she explained. "One of the things that we try to do at. Gladney Home is try to improve the real understanding about adoption. It is something that all the people involved the girl, the adoptive parent and the child - need to understand. We have adoptees who are now grown who come and visit with the girls and try to help them understand and see what these former children are like. These adoptees also serve on an advisory board to help the girls.

"One of the great features of the home is that we have our own hospital and medical service. The girl can have her baby right there and she knows the doctors and the nurses. There's a lot more confidence and confidentiality," according to Mrs. Piester.

We have two different types of programs for the girls. They can live in a dormitory if they are under 18 and in an apartment if over 18. In the apartments, the girls learn to budget money, cooking and meal planning. Once a week, they give us a shopping list to approve and they are allotted money to go out and buy groceries.

For the dormitory girls that have not finished high school, we have their transcripts transferred to the Fort Worth school system and they continue school with our teachers here on campus. For those in college, there are credit courses for the girls to take. Those that work only, we have jobs here on campus for them and we can also train them in other fields if they wish," she noted.

There is a fee of $25 to get into Gladney. "If a girl does not have the money,

"There is also a hotline. We have a national and a Texas toll free line that girls can call when they find out they are pregnant and don't know who or where to turn. This is at no cost to them and they can just find out the alternatives offered. This hotline is staffed by girls who have been in the same situation so they can talk to the scared girl, under-stand her problem, and help her to cope with it," Mrs. Piester said.

Miss Gish, who smelled divine, gently kicked aside a Steuben glass heart on her memento-studded coffee table in order to prop up her feet. "I don't socialize much. And how come Lillian Gish never had a husband to support her?

"I never wanted to get married. As a kid I worked with older people. I always heard them talking about their troubles which always dealt with the words 'husband' or 'wile.' I resolved never to have one of those. Certainly I love men. I adore them. But I'd never marry one."

There is no substitute at ridge table for what Hercule Poirot calls "the little gray cells." East put them to work on this hand and, with his partner's cooperation, came up with a stunning defense to defeat a seeming ly secure no trump game.

South had a difficult problem after East opened the bidding with one club. He couldn't double with such scant support for the majors. and an overcall of one diamond wouldn't nearly do his hand justice. Since jumps to two or three diamonds would have been preemptive, South decided to make a somewhat offbeat overcall of one no trump. That was not ideal with such an odd-shaped hand and two suits virtually unstopped, but at least it showed his strength. West raised clubs preemptively and North made a competitive effort, with two no trump. South decided to go to game on the strength of his running six-card suit.

West led his fourth-best heart, and East took time out to review the situation. Obviously, the defenders were not going to get many tricks in hearts, and the fact that West did not lead a club suggested that he was not

Delicious, Fluffy Biscuits Pride Of Many Experienced Cooks

By JEANNE LIVELY Family News Staff In bygone days, when a family sat down to eat breakfast, probably around a round oak table to conveniently hold all family members at one time, a hearty breakfast was routinely served.

Particularly here in West Texas, a typicul breakfast menu would also be likely to include: eggs, bacon or salt pork, milk or coffee, fresh cream butter, preserves made from last summer's peach or plum crop and perhaps cream gravy. But the repast would not be complete without hot, mountain-high, fluffy and delicious biscuits.

Oftentimes, the leftover breakfast biscuits - if there were any - would be savid for cold lunches later or even warmed over for the dinner meal. If po biscuits remained from any of the meals, of course a new patch of biscuits would have to be prepared by the homemaker. Nowadays, things are different, and where have "Mother's" good hot biscuits

The state of the art of making "real" biscuits is now at an all-time low. As an example, perhaps on some occasion re-cently while traveling you passed a sign advertising, "Hot Biscuits - The Kind Your Mother Used To Make."

"Wow," you said to yourself, "When have I had some good hot biscuits?" With the memories of childhood in mind feven though your mother may have confined her biscuit-making to those produced from a prepared mix), you turned around and went back to sample the enticing bill of fare. Admittedly, this wouldn't happen in all restaurants but in a good many what you would get is a thin, pre-formed, tasteless pseudo-biscuit, which obviously did not rise scarcely an inch in its travels through

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back

What is a biscuit anyway?
"The Dictionary of Gastronomy" says biscuit" is a French term, and that is where the biscuit originated. However, the original biscuit wasn't like today's product, being a sweet, stiffened douglilike affair. The French biscuit was also made in various flavors. When the English came along they produced a different kind of bread - scones - but nothing like the Southern biscuit we hold dear to-

No one seems to know why Southerners immediately took the delicacy to both their hearts and stomachs. Perhaps the reason was that they had so many good things to go with them. In any case, when anyone says "hot biscuits," you quickly envision a motherly-type woman, apron tled around an ample middle, whose hands are plunged into a big bowl of floury dough that will eventually become on doing research for the serious subject of biscuit-making, it was found that there are two basic kinds of biscuits those made with sweet milk and those made with buttermilk. Although each has its champions, it appeared to be a toss-up which was best. Be that as it may, a biscuit is a biscuit and will no doubt be udged on quality alone.

But to come back to the original question of what a biscuit is, various cooks and cookbooks describe the Southern hot biscuit — the superlative kind — as being round-cut, a "quick bread" (dependent on baking powder rather than yeast for raising), and made with various ingredients including flour and shortening, etc. The result, when properly made and baked, is a delectable light-on-the-inside. crusty-on-the-outside morsel.

If biscuits are served in your home, they probably arrive at your table slightly "ersatz," either coming from a can neatly), a ready-to-heat kind coming from a package, or the variety you have to make up from a prepared mix.

All are good, but none approaches the high standards of a biscuit "made from scratch."

Mrs. F.L. Adair of Lubbock learned to cook at an early age while growing up in Weatherford. She said there were of course no prepared mixes then and everthing had to be made from the beginning and that is the way she learned to Cooking changed, however, after marriage and as her family grew to include husband, Fitzhugh, and three children. There were not only more people to feed but also more dishes to wash. Mrs. Adair adds that "even in those days with fewer household conveniences, the family nevertheless was well fed and taken care of. In fact, there seemed to be more time then to do everything.

The Adairs are now retired and their children grown, so meals are simpler, and while biscuits are not an everyday thing, she still makes them often. Before giving her favorite biscuit recipe, Mrs. Adair emphasizes that from long experience she knows just how much milk to add to the flour to make the proper mixture cling. Also, all measurements in the recipe are approximate, and she says the

Scientists Puzzle Over Diet Effects On Heart Disease

WASHINGTON (Special - The marked decline in the coronary death rate over the past decade has scientists puzzling over the causes.

One focus of their study is the change in American eating habits.

"Scientists indicate special interest in trends shown by U.S. Department of Agriculture studies of per capita use of fats and the available amounts of fatty acids and cholesterol," said Ruth Marston, home economist with the department.

Fat in the average diet today is more than 25 percent higher than in the given base period of 1909 to 1913.

Forty-two percent of our food calories now come from fat, up from 32 percent in 1909-13, Marston said. The increase stems from more use of vegetable fats. In 1909-13, about 17 percent of the fat was from vegetable sources. In 1978, preliminary data indicate, 43 percent came from such vegetable sources as salad and cooking oils. "The proportion of fat from ahimal sources dropped be-cause of sharply curtailed use of butter, lard and edible beef fat," Martson said,

"Since 1967, the trend toward more fat from vegetable sources has sharpened, as has the trend away from animal fats." Fat from meat, poultry and fish has in-creased gradually in importance, but more rapidly before than after 1967. Fat from dairy products other than butter has been dropping since the 40's but re-mains slightly above 1909-13. The trend away from use of butter, lard and edible beef fat has continued since 1909-13. These changes in sources of fat have altered the proportion of fatty acids in diets over the decades. "Saturated" fatty acids - from animal sources - have increased slightly since 1909-13. But lino

MRS. ADAIR'S FAVORITE RECIPE FOR BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

(for two persons) Use approximately 2/3 to 44 cup of buttermilk, adding enough flour to make a pliable but easy-to-handle consistency. The pre-prepared flour mixture includes a heaping teaspoon of baking powder, a mall amount each of soda and salt, and a level teaspoon of shortening. Stir together, handling as little as possible; roll out on a floured board and cut out. Bake in an oven at from 350 - 400 degrees until biscuits are golden brown.

The Adairs are currently enjoying retirement. On Feb. 5, they will have been married 52 years. Theirs is a close-knit family, and they frequently visit with son Wayne and his family of Plainview; and daughters Jane (Mrs. Abie Reed), and Hulene (Mrs. Houston Mansell), both of Lubbock. The couple are active in the Highland Baptist Church. As neighbors can attest, when Mrs. Adair appears at their door bearing a sample of her culinary art, she is more than welcome!

Mrs. Horace Mitchell, Lubbock, grew up on a farm near Big Spring, and at about 10 or 11 began helping her mother in the kitchen. Mrs. Mitchell learned to cook well because her mother was an excellent cook, and she believes her mother's knowledge and attitude about cooking encouraged her to provide excellent meals for her own family Learning how to make biscuits was one of the first things any novice cook in those days learned how to do. Mrs. Mitchell recalls that biscuits leftover from breakfast would be made into what they called "sehool biscuits" which might have chocolate or cinnamon inside and these were taken for lunches away from home.

As with a good many modern-day families, the Mitchell schedules do not provide time to sit down for leisurely breakfast. Mr. Mitchell, a restaurateur, has to leave early; Mrs. Mitchell has her own special duties in the family business parttime: and their daughter, Kayla, has to get ready for school.

Mrs. Mitchell's biscuit-making has thus become a "special occasion thing and on Sundays." Concerning her recipe for biscuits; Mrs. Mitchell says that the biscuit is a little heavier than some, but her family likes them better this way. She adds, the recipe is a treasured one, given to me by my mother."

National Weather Service forecasters predict a chance of snow mixed with rain by Saturday through the South Plains, as a cooling trend beginning Friday replaces the warmer temperatures expected to-

Lubbock temperatures this afternoon were forecast to rise near 50 degrees and remain in the upper 40s Friday - welcome relief from the frosty conditions gripping West Texas in the first month of 1979.

The month just ended went into the re-cord books as the third coldest January experienced here since weather records started being kept in Lubbock in 1911. The mean temperature of 31.7 degrees was 7.4 degrees below normal. Only the Januaries of 1930, with a 30.6 mean, and 1947, with a 31.2 mean, were colder.

Communities to the north, east and south of Lubbock also reported severe Januaries, led by Amarillo, which endured an average monthly temperature of 24.9 degrees, the Panhandle city's coldest since weather records were begun in 1892

San Angelo reported a record low average January temperature of 36.2 degrees, 10 degrees below the historical monthly average. And Wichita Falls, while not quite setting a record, suffered through a January average temperature of 30.7 degrees, only .6 degrees warmer than the Hub City skies began to cloud over early today and are expected to remain part-ly cloudy through much of the weekend. However, no precipitation is forecast through Friday.

A clearing trend is expected through the South Plains Sunday and Monday following the possibility of precipitation early in the weekend. Winds were forecast to be in a southwesterly direction at 15 to 25 mph and gusting today, calming to 5 to 10 mph Elsewhere in the state, the eastward movement of the Arctic front out of Texas earlier this week should allow temper-atures to warm into the 50s and 60s statewide, NWS reports said.

Increasing cloudiness in West Texas today will spread eastward Friday, while low-hanging Gulf clouds moving north will pose a chance of widespread rain and drizzle in East and Central Texas tonight.

In New Mexico, where snow has reportedly been falling intermittently at Farmington and Gallup since late Wednesday night, travelers advisories have been issued for today in the northwest portion of the state and for tonight in all mountain areas and the elevated terrain in the northern third of the state.

Big Industry Present At Local Career Day

Engineering students are in the number one position for landing a job in their field after graduation, says Gerry Phaneuf, assistant director of Career Planning and Placement at Texas Tech Universit

But students in all majors had an op-portunity Wednesday to learn about the job market at Tech's Career Day. Forty seven companies representing 40 differ-ent industries were in the University Cen-

"Career Day serves a dual purpose, Phaneuf said. "For undergraduates it's a day to explore possible majors and for seniors it's an opportunity to look for a job."

The major most in demand locally and nationally, Phaneuf said, is engineering. "All types of engineers are in demand, but especially petroleum and chemical engineers. And math and computer science majors — we can't get enough graduates for those fields," he said.

While the job market is seeking graduates in those areas, the majority of Tech students still are in the liberal arts fields. They too have job opportunities, Phastudents still are in the liberal arts fields.

They too have job opportunities, Phaneul said, because, "companies took at individuals, not degrees. The company will have to train them anyway."

Proeter & Gamble, one of the companies on campus Wednesday, is one of the biggest employers of Tech liberal arts majors, Phaneuf said.

"They (like other companies) believe liberal arts is a good background for sales representatives," he said.

This is the fifth annual Career Day at Tech but it was the first time it has been held in January. Previously it was held in March, but Phaneuf explained the earlier date gives seniors an earlier start on setting up spring job interviews.

Some companies at Career Day will return to campus later this semester to recruit seniors. IBM will return Feb. 15 for that purpose.

Keep Fat Balance Down

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it always true that consuming more food than is necessary for the upkeep of your body causes overweight? I am a small eater and I have a medium-large frame. I am 5 feet 6 inches tall, large frame. I am 5 feet 6 inches tas, but I don't seem to be able to lose any weight. I don't drink beer and I eat very little bread, polatoes de pea-nut butter. What else can I do?

DEAR READER - You need to learn to evaluate property how many calories are in the foods you eat. I see you avoid starches, sweets and, apparently, alcohol.

The other major source of calories in the diet is fat., There are nine calo-

This diet will give you between 1,-200 and 1,300 calories a day. I don't like to see people go on a diet that is much more restricted than this unless they are under careful medical supervision. A person shouldn't stay on a strict diet more than two to six weeks, depending upon how severe it is. Such diets may cause serious prob-

DEAR DR. LAMB - Just what is meant by "passing sounds"? What is the purpose for it? My doctor has done this three times and I don't know why. He said the opening to my uterus should be opened. I am 60 years old and have had some uterine bleeding. I am taking hormones.

DEAR READER - You can think of a sound as a rod; different sounds are made from different substances. They are used literally to dilate openings such as your doctor has done in your case. They may be used to dilate the opening in the esophagus if it be-comes constricted. They're often used if there is a stricture of the urethra in both men and women.

There is no way I would know what is causing your uterine bleeding, but you have done the right thing in seeing your doctor.

Chemical Used To Fight Emaciated Condition

researcher says a chemical related to a rocket fuel sometimes arrests and reverses emaciation in patients with advanced cancer and gives them longer, higher-quality survival times.

The results are phenomenal sometimes," said Dr. Joseph Gold, director of the Syracuse Cancer Research Institute.

Gold, who pioneered this phase of cancer research about a decade ago, said the chemical, hydrazine sulfate, is being used orally to combat cachexia, the weak, emaciated condition common in patients dying of cancer. It is not being used to fight cancer itself.

"Cachexia begins with the first available cancer tissue, but you don't see it until the late stages because (the patient) still has an appetite early on," Gold explained in an interview. "But the patient loses his appetite eventually and abrupt weight loss intervenes.

"In the patients who respond to hydrazine, they have a sudden turn-on of appetite, sometimes becoming ravenous and voracious," he continued. He said it was not known how long the response lasts.

Gold, who theorized that cachexia is an independent disease of cancer" rather than as an uncontrollable side effect, first began experimenting with hydrazine sulfate in 1968 after the chemical was found to have biological effects.

The researcher explained that in cachexia, cancerous tumors are intensified by glucose and produce lactic acid that travels to the kidney and liver, requiring a tremendous amount of energy to convert it to back to glucose. The glucose returns to the tumor for a repeat of the cycle, called gluconeogenesis.

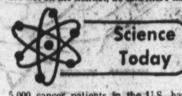

"The body is made to pay for that energy bill," is they way Gold explains it. The proliferation of the cancer robs the body of its normal energy storage.

"That's when cachexia starts, when the body's energy loss exceeds the energy derived from the diet," Gold continued. "Rapid weight loss and emaciation oc-

Gold said tests on laboratory animals have confirmed that hydrazine slows cachexia. He also said that in five years of clinical trials at the Petrov Research Institute of Oncology in Leningrad, the drug has been found to reverse cachexia and restore normal appetites in a significant number of patients.

"Some patients respond as early as 24-48 hours, but some take as long four weeks," Gold said, "The minimum trial is 28 days. Gold said he has about 700 written case

Lack Of Information On Cancer Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Three of every 10 Americans believe almost every-thing causes cancer and therefore there's no point in trying to avoid specific chemicals or foods, according to a pioneering nationwide survey of attitudes about can-

Fifty-five percent of those questioned in the representative sample of 1,500 adults disagreed with the statement correctly, according to the National Can-cer Institute — and 13 percent weren't

But Gene Pokorny, executive vice president of Cambridge Reports, Inc., which conducted the survey, said the fact that 31 percent of Americans believe that it's useless to try to do something about cancer hazards "is a distressing development.

"Obviously, if such an attitude becomes widespread, the credibility of all anti-cancer efforts will be undercut," he said in a report on the survey, prepared for the Shell Oil Co.

"Further studies of public opinion on this topic will have to attempt to measure any growth of this sentiment," the report

Pokorny summarized the survey findings in a recent presentation to officials of the National Cancer Institute and said it is apparent that many Americans are not very well informed about cancer, and most do not have very firm opinions about cancer-related issues

"This is what we would call a very immature or young issue," he said. "The opinions are still being formed."

Because people's opinions were not firm. Pokorny said some answers to various questions were contradictory, depending on the wording of the question.

23 percent would support an outright ban on all cancer-causing substances, while 72 percent endorsed the Delaney Amendment which says no substance could be added to food if it were known to cause cancer in humans or animals.

"This contradiction simply points up the profound ambivalence Americans have about the whole question of choice," the report said. "Most Americans seem to feel that making informed choices is the best way to run things intheory. In practice, however, they have severe doubts about its workability and tend to back off."

The study found that four of every 10 smokers interviewed agreed with the idea that almost everything seems to cause cancer and there's no point in doing anything about it.

Polish People Retain Love For Freedom

By TED SIMON A-J Travel Editor

Poland, for many people, is a country that has been devastated by war. It is a nation of freedom fighters. It is behind the Iron Curtain.

When Lubbock residents Doug Babeock and Gregg Hudspeth, as members of the First United Methodist Church's Wesley Singers, traveled to Poland last summer they found the country too complex and interesting to be placed in such simple categories.

The devastation of World War II is almost only a memory of the past. "The Polish people don't exploit the damages of the war as the Russians do," noted Babcock, a freshman at Texas A&M. After World War II they went in and cleared away, cleaned everything up, and started over again.""Our tour guides did point out the foundations of some buildings where you could still see the bullet holes," said Hudspeth, a freshman at Texas Tech University.

The Polish people remain a freedom loving-society, although citizens of a Communist bloc country. Poland was the first nation to successfully force the resignation of a Communist government. Today in Poland, books, plays and films

Babcock said, "They seem to be more outspoken and religious than in most other Communist countries." The A&M student explained that Poland is approximately 95 percent Roman Catholic in religious affiliation.

Hudspeth added, "Attending church may be another way to rebel against the Communist government. Everywhere we went the churches were filled to capacity, and every place we sang was packed." The choir's itinerary included two separate visits to Warsaw. Like most visitors to Warsaw, the Lubbockites had difficulty in visualizing the beautiful city in ruins in 1945.

More than 75 percent of the city was reduced to rubble by the Nazis. Of the city's 912 historic buildings — only 62 escaped demolition. But the indomitable citizens immediately set about rebuilding their beloved Warsaw.

"To me," Babcock noted, "Warsaw was the most interesting city to visit because it is so modern, while many of the historical sites have been restored."

Using pre-war paintings of Warsaw, portions of the Old City were rebuilt and restored by artists, craftsmen, architects and historians from all over Poland. Examples of Gothic and Renaissance were restored in the forms of reliefs and statues. The people even rebuilt baroque houses With frescoes on the front walls.

From the capital of Poland, the Wesley Singers traveled to Krakow (Cracow) 200 miles to the south. "Krakow used to be the capital of Poland back in the medieval days," said Hudspeth, "It's famous for the university where Copernicus the medieval astronomer studied as a student." The Tech freshman continued, 'The town escaped Nazi destruction, so it still has the look of a pre-war town with its old buildings and streets."

The Czartoryski Museum has priceless works by Leonardo da Vinci and Rem-brandt. Saint Mary's Church has a 15th centur altarpiece carved by Wit Stwosz; from the tallest tower of the church, a on nearby Wawel Hill, the towering Royal Castle has an impressive art collection highlighted by the famous Arras Tapestries.

At Wieliczka, eight miles from Krakow, the choir members toured one of the oldest salt mines in the world. The mines have been worked since the 10th century and many are still worked today.

Deep in the mines the workers have carved statues and chandeliers of salt. Some mines have chapels and altars for religious services and one mine is so large it has its own lighted tennis court. Although little is found in travel brochures pertaining to the infamous Nazi concentration camps in Poland - the fac they existed cannot be forgotten. It may be a reluctant visit, but it is a visit many travelersfeel should be made. Perhaps if the atrocities are always remembered they will never be repeated.

The Lubbock high school and college age people were taken on a tour of the Auschwitz concentration camp. Babcock recalled, "It was almost like a factory facility the Nazis had constructed. They tested their extermination techniques there. You're horrifled by the rooms of there. You're horrified by the rooms of human hair, glasses and shoes."

Hudspeth noted that at a larger concentration camp, they saw rows and rows of chimneys, "The Nazis had destroyed most of the camp, and maybe only a tenth of it was left." But that tenth may have housed 100,000 people. Five and six persons at a time had to share a single board for a bed. The bunks were stacked in places that looked like cattle stalls.

Outside of Krakow, the choir members visited a new church that stands as a prime example of Poland's religious free-dom. Authorized by the archbishop of Krakow and constructed under the leadership of a parish priest that had been a guerrilla fighter during the Nazi occupa-tion, the church has the appearance of a modernistic ark. (The church was the subject of a June 1978 Reader's Digest article - "Christian Ark on a Communist Sea.") The church walls contain some two million stones as personal contribu-tions from the citizens of Poland. Today, the archbishop and cardinal that spoke at the 1977 dedication ceremonies, is Pope John Paul II.

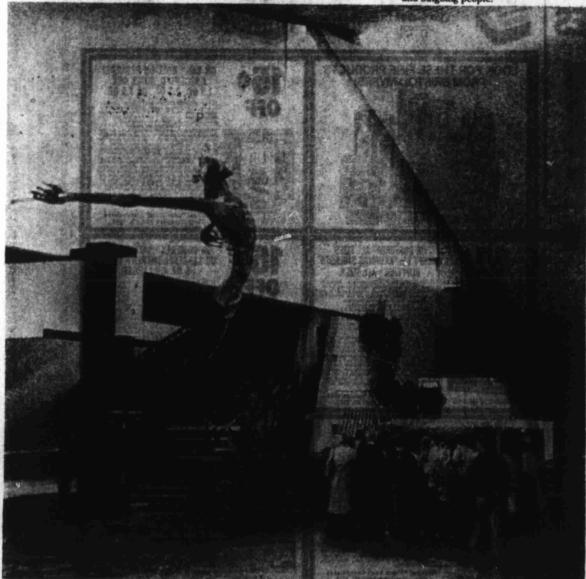

No visit to Poland would be com without a visit to the birthplace of Fred-eric Chopin at Zelazowa Wola near War-saw. Every Sunday from June through September, recitals are given at the

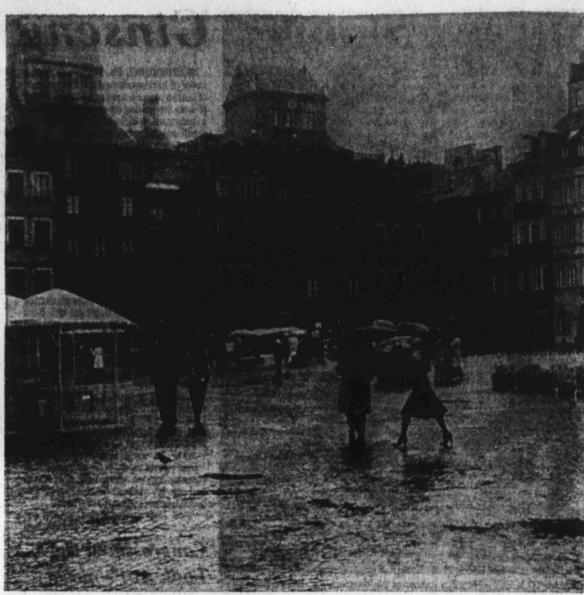

"It's a beautiful little manor house surrounded by shrubbery and trees," re-called Hudspeth. "After the concert we nishings are original, including a portrait of Chopin by his friend, Delacroix.

Survey Shows Sharp Increase In Food

Families hoping for some relief in 1979 from soaring grocery bills found little cause for encouragement during Janu-ary. An Associated Press marketbasket survey showed sharp price increases, par-ticularly for basic items like meat and

The AP found that grocery bills rose last month at a rate more than double that in December. Prices increased in al-most every city checked by the AP and the increases more than offset scattered declines, mostly for coffee, butter and to-

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price at one super market in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the

The government's Consumer Price In-dex showed that the price of food bought in grocery stores rose 12.5 percent during 1978, the worst increase since 1974. The government predicts a minimum increase of 6 percent this year, but experts warn that a number of factors like weather or the general inflation rate could cause a steeper rise.

The most recent issue of the Agriculture Department's "National Food Review" says that even an inflation rate of 6 percent — three full percentage points below the 1978 level — would add 3.4 per-cent to the cost of food. An inflation rate of 8 percent, would, by itself, boost food prices by 4.5 percent.

A relatively modest 5 percent rise in the prices paid to farmers would add 1.3 ercent to lood prices; a 15 percent ump, which the USDA says "is not diffi-ult to imagine," would add 4 percent to

Many people — especially Goodman's parents — looked on the romance with disfavor a year ago when the couple, then living in England, announced wedding plans. British law forbade a marriage between a man and his grandfather's widow, so the couple came to Southern California and married secretly.

His parents, who live in this area, did not attend the wedding but Goodman says they are getting used to the idea now and visit frequently.

"I think they are learning to accept the situation," he said. "Time did a lot of ings and we get along fine now. Mother and Father are friendly.

Nature Of Corporate Pyramid Attracts Autocratic Men, Women

By JOHN CUNNIFF NEW YORK (AP) — As women rise in the corporate world they are accused of being autocratic — of being subjective, of making arbitrary decisions, of seeking to centralize power in themselves.

The "autocratic" label, meant as a putdown, is accepted as accurate by many women, who justify their behavior as being necessary in the pressure cooker of top management. It was forced on them, they say. Men often disagree, claiming females are basically autocratic as a consequence of motherly or nesting instincts. Freed from constraints, the men say, women are merely showing their true nature.

Nonsense, says Professor Eugene Jennings, analyst of corporate mobility. He doesn't accept either version, primarily because he's so used to hearing it applied to men or women who swiftly move up

"The very nature of the corporate pyramid attracts men and women who have a strong drive for authority and power," he says. Whatever the explanation for their autocratic ways, they flock to executive

Moreover, says Jennings, there is no-thing wrong with an autocratic style; it is even desirable. "It is questionable if you could reach the top without a flair for unilateral decision-making," he says.

Jennings, who besides teaching graduate students at Michigan State University is a confidential adviser to top corporate chairmen and presidents, wants women to know that the accusation is traditional. The autocratic label, he says, has bedeviled everyone, especially minorities. It is a general putdown, but applied to the latter, it is meant to be especially pejorative — to suggest grossness.

The response is not to adopt a more

Number Of Strikes Decreases In 1978

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lengthy coal and railroad strikes are being cited for the rise in the number of working days lost because of walkouts last year, the government says.

The Labor Department said there were 4,300 work stoppages involving 1.6 million workers in 1978, the lowest number of strikes in 13 years.

of strikes in 13 years.

The decline was due in part to the fact that few major contracts were up for bar-gaining, the government said. Despite that, the number of days lost because of strikes rose to 39 million, the highest in four years.

Test-Taking Skills Study Helps Score

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students who are not familiar with the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the standard college entrance exam for high school students, may bene-fit from instruction in how to take tests. But two new studies show it doesn't help to cram with sample test questions. College Board President Robert J.

Kingston said this week the studies show that special instruction in test-taking skills and in mathematical and verbal reasoning may be helpful. Students en-rolled in one program designed to im-prove their performance on the verbal part of the SAT averaged a 28-point gain.

permissive style, says Jennings, a psychologist as well as management authority, but to offset the autocratic behavior with logic, fairness, consideration, grace,

To attempt being less autocratic is to waffle, he says. And to waffle, he continues, is to become less dependable, predictable, powerful. He observes that ex-ecutives seldom rise by being other than

The solution, he proposes, is to become a "mature autocrat" through offsetting. An executive style, he says, need not be radically changed, but the grossness must be removed.

Jennings has found that many men at the top were harassed by this accusation along the way. Applied to women, he says, it means they are upwardly mobile, and that they are becoming formidable

But women are to some extent still part of the "out" group. That is, they are bringing change by upsetting the old, male-dominated order. And so there might be stronger tendency to paste the label on them.

Jennings recalls the experience of a Jewish man who became head of a very large corporation. Although already at the top, he was blackballed as being autocratic. In this instance it meant crude, unrefined.

The man persisted, the professor recalls, but offset very effectively. "If he had changed to a permissive style he would have washed right out of the company. They'd have been all over him," he

Nevertheless, a top executive or anyone in a line position, such as managing a division, can defend against the accusation more readily than one in a staff position, such as chief engineer or plant super.

In the line position an executive can demonstrate his or her effectivness by meeting specific objectives of profits, sales or budget. In staff work, the objectives often aren't quantifiable.

The staff executive, a level at which

CB Convac

By INK DIPPER

It has been a little more than one year since the 40-channel CB radios replaced the 23-channel units on dealers' shelves. A recent study by the Federal Communications Commission's Field Operations Bureau indicates that slightly more than 20 percent of the sets in use now are of that new generation.

The results also indicate 64 percent are 23-channel mobile; 12 percent are 23-channel base station; 3 percent are 40-channel base stations; and only 1 percent cover other units. The results were obtained from 851 random telephone interviews with licensees selected from the FCC files.

The FCC's rigid design standards for these 40-channel sets will certainly affect the No. 1 CB problem: television interference, which has been a plague in so many communities. As this new generation of units takes over, spurious emmissions of transmitters will be reduced.

As we reported recently, an entirely new personal radio service in the 900-megahertz range will probably be activated by 1982. The new service resulted from another FCC study which revealed that more than 17 percent of the households in the United States are equipped with CB radios. The projection for 1985 is that half the households in the nation will be equipped.

Since this service will be in addition to the present CB authority in the 27-meg range, and the FCC has stated it feels it will reach the same license level after several years, this means that half the households in the nation will have some kind of personal radio transmission capability.

The enormity of such a projection would have been laughed at five years ago, but everything points to this. Some CB-watchers think this might even prove to be a conservative estimate. If you are not now a CBer, in all probability you will become one in the future.

Whether you are now a CBer, or have thought about acquiring a set, you should have a copy of the new FCC booklet "Citizens Band Radio Service Rules." It is as close to "Everything You Always Wanted To Know About ..." as they could make it. And the rules are written in plain English, question and answer style, so they are easily understood.

The booklet will help answer most of the questions that might occur to you, and its cost is only $1.25. Send your request to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 109F, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Judge Orders Jury To Investigate as judge has ordered a grand jury to investigate the efforts of the Cameron County Commissioners Court, which recently began amending the county budget to give commissioners control over all office supplies.

The judge said Wednesday there is "considerable concern" about the conduct of the court, whose budget actions were ruled illegal last week by District Attorney Selden Snedek

District Judge Darrell Hester also directed the panel to probe into a commis-sioner's weekend expedition to Cameron County's new Hall of Justice, in which he took new, modern-style desks and chairs and took them to the county courthouse, where non-judicial county offices are still

In exchange for the new chairs, he left quite-old chairs from the courthouse, sources said.

The PUC asked for 107 percent of its 1979 budget in 1980 but the LBB suggested a cutback to 91 percent.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe's proposed budget recommended a higher figure than the LBB but gave no breakdown by departments, Cowden said. Briscoe's rec-

To Candidacy WASHINGTON (AP) - Two Republican congressional leaders have moved to within a whisker of making formal declarations of candidacy for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee announced Wednesday he has created an exploratory committee to raise and spend funds on behalf of a prospective run for the White House.

Almost simultaneously, Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, the third-ranking Republican in the House, said a similar committee had been organized in his behalf in Illinois.

In both cases, registering the committees with the Federal Election Commission will permit Baker and Anderson to raise money that could be used to qualify for federal matching funds available to presidential candidates.

A candidate who raises at least $5,000 in contributions of $250 or less in each of 20 states qualifies for public funds. Anderson is expected to make a formal announcement in a few months that he will seek the GOP nomination.

After testing political sentiments in a number of states this winter and spring, Baker will decide whether to open a fullfledged campaign by summer. Some announcement is likely by July 4.

Both men face conflicting roles because of their leadership positions in the Congress.

Baker, for one, has acknowledged doubts about leading Senate Republicans during the expected debate on a strategic arms limitation treaty while at the same time mounting a presidential campaign.

Congressional observers say Anderson, as a member of the House GOP leadership, will face similar problems when he speaks out on issues likely to be raised during any presidential campaign.

Nonetheless, both Anderson and Baker have scheduled appearances in early presidential primary states like New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York and Illinois.

Wednesday for a half-hour meeting with the president.

"He assured me that he wants the committee to maintain its independence and advise him on women's issues," said Miss Chambers, who is from Los Alamos,

"He also wanted someone to maintain close contact with him and I was to write memoranda on any subject and pick up the phone and call him," she recalled from the meeting.

Miss Chambers said Carter indicated he wanted the group to work with him. "If some advice is critical I gathered it would not disturb him," she said.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the president "made it clear that he expected the commission to be independent and to provide him with a wide range of advice on issues" and that Carter "recognizes in some cases this might involve differences of opinion or even criticism.

Meanwhile, Sarah R. Weddington, spesues, abruptly canceled a scheduled ap-pearance on Wednesday before the Senate Human Resources Committee.

In a letter to Sen. Harrison A. Williams. D-N.J., she said she had been advised that "it is White House policy for personal aides to the president to decline invitations to testify before congressional com-

WHEN YOU WANT AN ECONOMY CAR WITH QUALITY

Mazda has produced piston engines for 48 years 2. Mazda produces more cars per rear than AMC, Honda, Volvo and British England combined

2. Mazda produced 804,000 cars in 1978. More than Honda has produced since their existance. Mazda has the #1 rated EPA pickup in the U.S.

Mazda RX-7 is one of the 10 best cars in the world (Road and Track)

6. Mazda pioneered the rotary engine, and Detroit engineers predicted it is one of three engines that can meet all 1985 standards, the other two are Sterling Steam & Turbine.

Mazda sales increased 42% in Dec. 1978 outselling Fiesto by 2181 units.

8. Mazda has 14 assembly plants, 4 distributors and over 600 dealers to serve you.

The Manda GLC. is the finest Quality most dependable economy Car I have ever seen James Mears

Farm Prices Jump Sharply In January

WASHINGTON (AP) - As the tractorcades of the American Agriculture group drove toward Washington last month to protest low farm prices, the prices themselves were setting a new record high and recording the biggest jump in 53 months.

The Agriculture Department reported Wednesday, with some of the caravans within 20 miles of the capital, that the prices farmers received for their raw products as a whole rose 5 percent be-tween the end of December and the end

The price report, regularly issued on the last day of each month, came a week after Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland disclosed that net farm income rose 40 percent in 1978 and farmers' net equity increased 11 percent.

Bergland noted that while statistics do ages.

The Crop Reporting Board said price increases of 26 percent for vegetables and 9 percent for meat animals led the way. Soybeans prices also rose, while cotton, eggs and orange prices fell slightly.

Damage to lettuce crops, for example, sent prices up by $10 to $22.60 per 100 pounds and nationwide average prices for all beef cattle went up 57 cents a pound on the hoof to a new record of $59.80 per 100 pounds.

Milk stayed at the record level of $11.80

Even though production costs, taxes, interest and regular consumer items in-creased 3 percent from December, the report showed the theoretical balance between prices and costs to be even for the first time since mid-1976, using an index based on 1967 prices.

Farmers Plan Cotton Meeting

EL PASO (Special) — Cotton farmers, agricultural scientists and extension specialists will converge on El Paso Feb. 20-22 for the 1979 Western Cotton Production Conference. The conference, set for the Rodeway Inn, Gateway West, will be hosted by New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service.

The program will include a number of speakers from El Paso and Las Cruces. as well as from universities and indus-tries in Texas, Arizona and California.

Ways to increase profits, fight pests and solve water problems are a few of the topics planned for the three-day neeting. A technical session on hybrid cotton will close the conference on Feb.

The conference is co-sponsored by the Southwest Five-State Cotton Growers Association and the Cooperative Extension of Arizona, California, Texas and

Japan Slow To Improve Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Improving the sales of U.S. farm products to Japan will require extraordinary efforts and fundamental changes in the Japanese government's attitude, a congressional task

U.S. negotiators last year were finally able to secure agreements allowing more U.S. beef into Japan, where farmers and ranchers fiercely protect their markets from imports.

That indicated progress, the task force said, but stiff barriers are still in place for beef, citrus, tobacco products and leather

The three members of the House Ways and Means Committee said in a report Wednesday that neither members of Congress who favor protectionist trade policies nor the Japanese at whom such sentiments are aimed seem to understand that opportunities now exist for improving the trade balance.

The task force has been monitoring U.S. Japan trade since the spring and went to Japan for talks in November.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R.Minn., said, "I don't believe they have really understood our message. And there is little evidence that either the U.S. or the Japanese government will implement policies to effectively deal with our trade problems."

"Our trade relations are at a tenuously improved but critical point," said Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla." who chaired the task force. the task force.

Mannix's contention that some-

Set against a beautiful Baja Califoria scenes, "Mr. Horn" effectively presents a Butch Cassidy-Sundance Kid analogy in Widmark and Carradine. In tonight's two-hour episode (the two-hour conclusion airs Saturday), Widmark enlists Carradine in the tracking of the great Apache chief, Geronimo, and the two spend much time trading anecdotes and generally carrying on like a couple of Old West characters.

There's attraction in that, and Western fans will like all the shoot-'em-up action. But there are huge gaps in the story line (which takes a quarter-hour to develop) that might make the impatient switch channels.

For example, with Horn and Seiber in the lead, a group of cavalrymen enter Mexico looking for Geronimo. They run into a group of Mexican soldiers who want to know what these bluecoats are doing in their country. Horn, who speaks every language known to man, explains that they're just looking for Geronimo. The Mexicans say, 'That's O.K. with us,' or something like that, and agree to let the Americans pass. Next thing you know, both sides are blasting away at each other.

Another time, Horn tries to save the life of a captain who was killed in one of the early skirmishes. He fails, and a few weeks later, the captain's sister, Karen Black, comes to collect her brother's

It's all very cool, very businesslike when Miss Black meets Carradine on her way to Fort Bowie. She: "Did you know my brother?" He: "Oh, a little.

There are lots of such unexplained developments in this story, which might have something to do with the fact that it was planned as a theatrical movie for in the move from theater to TV, or in the switch from Redford to Carradine. But the movie is pretty filmed and the story of Tom Horn is interesting enough to nearly make up for the lapses. If you can find the story, that is.

Funding Of Campaigns Creates Controversy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - In the last election, private political action commit-tees spent $32 million to support congressional candidates. This was more than six times the amount spent by the national Democratic and Republican parties.

In 1976, Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., spent $2.3 million of his own money in his successful election effort.

A survey by the House Democratic Study Group of 90 House races in 1978 showed that 81 of the 180 candidates spent more than $200,000 on their cam-

These examples have frightened many House and Senate leaders. They have concluded that money is becoming far too important in elections, and they are making serious moves this year to do something about it.

Their solution — campaign spending limits and partial public financing — likewise frightens many others, particularly Republicans, who fear that placing the heavy hand of government on the election process will only make things worse. Presidential elections already are publicly financed through the $1 income tax checkoff system. But opponents say this is a special case and quite simple to accomplish, compared to developing a fair system for 435 House districts with varying geographic and expense problems.

Running for office in New York's silk stocking districts is far different from running for the one House seat in Alaska.

House Republican leader John Rhodes of Arizona is one of the chief opponents of public financing. He calls it "so ludicrous that I'm surprised that anyone would recommend it.

Rhodes and others feel that campaign financing would give incumbents an edge because challengers would not be able to spend as much money as they wish so they can become as well known as the incumbent. Since the House is 2-to-1 Democratic, most challengers would be Repub-

Proponents of public financing - led by Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., and including the entire House Democratic leadership - dispute these claims and say that money is a far worse threat to the political system than any possible problems with public financing.

"We're afraid we will get to the point that elections will go to the highest bidder," said House Democratic whip John Brademas.

The reputed villains in this case are political action committees - called PACs - which are set up by corporations, labor unions, trade associations and others to further their own interests by supporting candidates who support them.

PACs still could contribute to campaigns under public financing, but their powers would be severely diminished. Whatever the arguments for and against public financing, this appears the year that it has its best chance of passage The Democratic leadership is pushing public financing as its No. 1 priority. And even the GOP camp is not solidly against it. Its main sponsors include Reps. John Anderson of Illinois, No. 3 House Republican, and Barber Conable of Illinois, ranking GOP member of the Ways and Means Committee.

The House Administration Committee, which last year rejected a public financing plan, has been packed with new members this year who support public fi-

The Mikva plan would limit campaign spending to $150,000 plus 20 percent for fund raising plus 10 percent for one mailing within the district. The candidate could not spend more than $25,000 of per-

Public funds would be available to match dollar-for-dollar each contribution of $100 or less. Candidates would not be forced into the public financing system. But if they did not, then their opponents would not be forced to adhere to the campaign spending limitations.

For now, the Senate has not been included in the bill. But the Senate would have to pass it and there might be some effort to include Senate campaigns before final passage.

Feminist Wants Women More Involved

WASHINGTON (AP) - The head of the National Advisory Committee for Women said Wednesday that the election and appointment of women to policymaking jobs is the surest way to change social and economic inequities faced by women.

'The most critical need of women now and in the future is that women become active participants in the development of all public policy," Dr. Marjorie Bell Chambers told the Senate Human Resources Committee

"If women cannot get elected, appointed and hired to senior level policy-making positions in the country in proportion to their representation in the total population, there will not be adequate repre-sentation of women in the definition of

FTC Claims Firm Used False Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission today charged Litton Industries, one of the nation's largest conglomerates, with deceptive advertising of its microwave ovens.

The complaint cites advertisements in major newspapers and magazines during 1976 and 1977 saying, "Seventy-six percent of the independent microwave oven service technicians surveyed recommended Litton."

Actually, those responding to the survey were drawn from a list of Litton-authorized service agents, the commission alleged. "The sample surveyed was not representative of the population of independent microwave oven service technicians and the surveys were biased," the FTC In the published advertisements, Litton said the question, "Which microwave oven brand would you recommend to a friend?" was asked. According to the advertisement, 59 percent said Litton over General Electric, 66 percent said Litton over Amana and 81 percent named Litton over Magic Chef.

In response to other questions, a wide majority named Litton as easiest to repair, the best brand and requiring fewest repairs, the advertisement said.

The commission also alleged that the survey was not independently conducted, as claimed in the ads, because Litton employees designed and analyzed the sur-

The commission also alleged that the surveys failed to show that those responding had sufficient experience in repairing microwave ovens other than Litton to be able to make brand compari-The FTC complaint said potential remedies include requiring that all future advertising of Litton microwave ovens and other consumer products be substantiated by reliable evidence. Litton, which is based in Beverly Hills, Calif., has 30 days in which to answer the complaint. The commission's allegations will be ruled on after a public hearing. The proposed complaint also would prohibit Litton from advertising the results of a survey unless those responding

Marvin Scared By Girlfriend's Shotgun Scene

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Lee Marvin said he was afraid to kick Michelle Triola Marvin out of his house for fear she would harm either him or herself or would reveal secrets about his life.

Once in 1967, he testified Wednesday at Miss Marvin's $1 million breach-of-contract suit, after he insisted she leave his Malibu beach house she came into the living room with a shotgun and two shells and said, "How do you load this?"

The 54-year-old Oscar-winning actor said he was frightened because the shot gun was a weapon "which could blow a you?" asked Marvin Mitchelson, Miss Marvin's attorney.

"I wasn't?" he answered. "I moved every gun in the house I had out of there the very next day. If a woman comes out with a shotugn and two shells and says 'How do you load this?' you get a feeling of fright."

When asked if he was "physically afraid" of his 5-foot 1-inch girlfriend, Marving replied, "Not when I was awake. Marvin, on the stand four days, concluded his initial testimony as an "unfriendly witness." He will be called later by his attorney.

Mitchelson was expected to call members of the actor's entourage, starting with attorney Louis Goldman today. Mitchelson, noting that the shotgun in-cident occurred in 1967 but the couple did not break up until May 1970, asked the actor why he stayed with Miss Marvin after such an incident. "She pleaded with me and apologized and I guess I had too much forgiveness,' Marvin said, adding that he was also afraid she would disclose secret information, such as her abortion, which would embarrass his children, or his heavy drinking. He said he also was afraid she would reveal details about his motion picture deals and investment projects.

RAFB To Hold Abuse Seminar

"Would You Believe Child Abuse?," a Friday seminar sponsored by Reese Air Force Base's Nursing Services, will be attended by more than 100 Lubbock area nurses.

According to Lt. Col. Kathleen Wagner, chief nurse at Reese Hospital, the workshop is designed to update the nursing care and skills of personnel who may have to deal with abused children. The program will focus on recognizing child abuse, treating the child, and working with him and his family in a follow-up

"We want to provide these nurses a better understanding of what abuse really is," said Wagner.

The seminar will be taught by Dr. Edgar Ledbetter, Texas Tech University School of Medicine; Dr. Daniel Benson, Texas Tech School of Law; and Jonette Walker, Lubbock County Children's Protective Services, among others.

Soviet-Supported Buildup Worries Tiny Oman

By RICHARD H. GROWALD MUSCAT, Oman (UPI) — Former President Gerald R. Ford lowered his noculars and gazed through a jet plane window 1,500 feet down on what may be the western world's next crisis point after Below him lay the blue waters and grayish brown volcanic islands of the Strait of Whormuz, the 12-mile-wide mouth of the Persian Gulf through which ankers carry nearly half the oil used by the non-communist world. A tanker pass es through about every three minutes.

'I think this is perhaps the most strategic waterway in the world," Ford said. And we and it are threatened," said a defense official of Oman, seated acrossfrom and looking directly at Ford.

Iran sits on the far side of the strait and Iran is a question mark to western strategists now, after the going of the strongly pro-western shah. More vital is the near side of the strait - a deeper side, the channel for the supertankers.

This is the channel commanded by Oman, a pro-western Arab kingdom deeply worried about Soviet-supported forces building up on its border.

Moscow-backed South Yemeni forces sent guerrillas and shellfire into Oman from 1966 to 1975. Oman survived, thanks partly to military help from the shah.

But that is gone now. And the Yemenis, organized by 200 to 300 Russian and 60 East German military advisers, are girding for another go.

"The only power that can help us now — that can sell us the arms for the defense we need - is the United States. Will the United States help?" the Oman defense official said.

The Carter Administration is making up its mind. This is the land of Sinbad the Sailor. From the dawn of written history this was the trading spot where the twain of east and west met. It is no Eden.

Only the spidery sand crabs and mos-quitos ventured out into the midday sun. And nights are little better; in the summer it can stay 120 degrees from midnight to midnight, months on end. An American missionary couple named Bosch — he a doctor, she a nurse — slept with their children under wet towels until electricity and air conditioning came 18 years ago.

The progress came with oil. Saudi Ara-bia, Oman's giant northern neighbor, and Iran, across the strait, got the gushers. Even tiny Abu Dhabi, Sharjah and the other sultanruled city states of the adjacent United Arab Emirates enjoy a $10 billion annual oil income

But Oman got less. It is the poorest, or least rick, of the oil lands of the Arab world. It cannot afford the missilery the Shah once loaned to block the attackers

Oman until 1970 was almost a forbidden land, ruled by a recluse sultan who as a youth in India had been told by a sooth-sayer he would lose his throne to a member of his own family.

So the sultan, who at first had schooled his crown prince at Sandhurst, Britain's West Point, imprisoned the young man.

Park Service Wants To Shoot Burros

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burros roaming freely in the Grand Canyon National Park may be in for some trouble from

In 1970, before Britain pulled back its military might east of the Suez Canal, the British realized Oman and the vital strait migtt fall to the growing communist-backed regime in South Yemen. In the best tradition of what was once the duty and privilege of empire, Britain engineered a coup. Twelve soldiers invaded the sultan's winter palace and told him he must go.

The old man unsheathed the silver and gold dagger Oman's elite wear on their stomachs. The steel is to be waved only when blood is required. The old sultan had tried to keep out the world. But he had a pistol, too, and there were shots, but he was subdued and lived out his months in silence amid the tea and sympathetic elegance of a London Park Row hotel.

Emerging from jail, the crown prince became the sultan. He organized his land, called in the Iranian arms, destroyed the guerrillas - although a handful remain in the dry mountains of the desert, in almost lifeless alps that are something of a first edition of Hell; they are still there, coming out last year to kill five British bathers to show there is life in the old threat yet - cleared the roads of mines and shelled the South Yemeni border attackers into silence.

Now there are schools and hospitals and even a Holiday Inn and an American ambassador. And no recluse, the sultan spent the two weeks before Ford's January visit out in the dsert keeping up a monarch-to-people friendship the shah of Iran had failed to do.

"But the Yemenis, they muster and they will come," the defense official said. "And we are outnumbered, outgunned." In the jet above the strait the Oman defense official spread a map on Ford's lap. He gestured to three specks. Ford looked through the window and saw the specks in life - an ancient lighthouse island with two rocky satellites in the blue waters. Supertankers slid by.

"Several soldiers with a Russian antitank missile could, from one of those ismand a fortune to let any tanker through. Or they could just blockade and twist off the western world's oil faucet," he said.

"And if the Soviet-backed forces of South, Yameni overcome us and they then control this strait, what do you think they might do?" he said.

Ford said nothing at the time. He reread the map and for an hour, as the jet moved about the strait, looked down and puffed a pipe and thought.

Later, before departing Oman toward the end of his two-week tour of the Middle East, Ford was asked by UPI about the strait and Oman and its status. "Until you see it firsthand - especially lands, stop all the tankers. They could de- from the air at low level - you cannot adequately appreciate the strategic sig-nificance of the narrow waterway where 40 percent of the world's oil passes from the source to the consumer," he said. "The Strait of Hormuz, with Iran on one side and Oman on the other, can be blockaded easily by military forces on either shore. Fortunately, the Omanis are good friends of the United States. "With Iran's uncertain future, the United States should strengthen our relations with OMAN. The availability of crude oil for the industrialized nations of the free world may well depend on an independent, friendly Oman," the former President said.

HOT LINE FEEDBACK(from Pete Smith, Twin Falls, Idaho)-On the question of what high school had the best team in history, I would vote for the Waco High team of 1927, which scored 100 points a game and never let an opponent get past their 20-yard line all season. That team played in a countrywide challenge game and was declared national champion. But Corsicana (Texas) High School once sent four players to a national college champion, SMU in 1935, that played in the Rose Bowl: Bobby Wilson, Robert Finley, Maco Stewart and Billy Stamps. Myers, Raider Cagers Battle Youth, Schedule

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

There is one statistic that has gone unnoticed during this year's frenzied Southwest rence basketball season

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers has only drawn one technical foul since SWC play began. Heck, he used to be able to do better than that during a good half.

Myers reflects on this statistic for a moment, then smiles. It really isn't much of a smile but the corners of his mouth kind of twitch a little. You don't smile a lot when your team is 5-4 and the road ahead doesn't get any easier.

"You know, we've beaten ourselves more this season than we've been beaten by anyone else," he says. "I guess I've been to busy keeping up with the mistakes our young players have been making than to worry about the officials."

The mistakes Myer's is talking about are little things, insignificant things that rarely show up in a box score—but they have hurt Tech this year.

"I've tried to be more patient this year," says Myers. "I've tried to be more tolerant. Our young kids have had to come along pretty fast. So I'm just trying to ride through it with them."

The coach makes a lot of references to his "young kids." He's talking about freshmen Jeff Taylor and David Little; and sophomores Ralph Brewster, Ben Hill and Currently Brewster is averaging nearly 11 points and nine rebounds per game and has started in every contest this year for the Raiders. Hill has started only three games for the squad but looks to see a lot more action down the road. He's averaging more than nine points an outing, as is freshman Little. Taylor has around six points a game but has started to come into his own lately.

"The thing about freshmen," says Myers, "is that they've got to pay their dues.

They're finding out that they are playing against some better ballplayers. So they have to adjust, maybe do things a little differently."

And Tech has certainly had to pay some dues this season. After opening conference play with a runaway win over league-leading Texas, the Raiders fell to lowly Rice and then lost close games to SMU, Texas A&M and Arkansas. In between were a pair of wins over TCU, and close victories over Baylor and Houston.

"That Rice game just broke our back," Myers later said. "After that we became more concerned with trying not to lose, instead of just going out and playing our

In other words, the team was trying too hard not to lose and couldn't concentrate on There are other explanations for Tech's slump. Ralph Brewster provided one of

"Let me put it on a scale for you," says Brewster. "We started out like firecrackers. We beat Michigan (in the Sun Bowl Tournament) and then we beat Texas. We just rested on that. We thought we was BAD." In Brewster's reference "bad" is supposed to mean good. But in Tech's case "bad"

"We were big-headed," says Brewster. "I don't mean self-confident, I mean cocky." Would you say the Rice game broke your back? "No I wouldn't say that," Brewster

"We've beaten ourselves more this season than we've been beaten by anyone else"--Gerald Myers

But he stops short and shakes his head. "Yeah, it broke us." But Tech isn't completely broken. Their fate is in their own hands now. What they'll need is a few big wins on the road and a few more big wins at home.

After tonight's game with Rice, the Raiders face Baylor in Waco on Saturday. Later on they must visit Texas and Houston-both tough at home.

But Myers is not about to comment on where he expects the Raiders to pick up their "Boy, that's the kiss of death," he says shaking his head. "If I said I was expecting to win at Baylor than we'd be sure to lose. Heck, nobody's easy on the road. Rice is going to be tough-they're going to be trying to prove that their win over us was no fluke. "That was just one of those games where we could not make the ball drop," he says. "We just couldn't make a shot. But we should have been more patient. We shot the ball 70 times that game, Rice put it up about 45 times. We just didn't have the intensity that game. And that's been one of our problems this year- a lack of intensity. The Techsans have had their share of problems besides intensity. But Myers is proud of his club.

"I'l tell you something not many people realize," he says. "We've lost some ball-games but we've never been blown out. And we've had good leadership, Geoff (Huston) and Kent (Williams) have really provided that for us, and our morale has stayed Tech hasn't lost by more than six points all year, a figure which backs up Myers claim, and if Tuesday's practice is any indication—the morale on the squad is still test." Now this was the kind of competition the team enjoyed. It was generally conceded that Joe Baxter and McPherson had absolutely no chance of winning while Brewster and Hill announced they had no competition. Tommy Parks seemed more interested in the legs of some onlooking pom-pom girls, Huston complained that his legs were too skinny, Williams posed with his sweats.

around his ankles and Little just posed and posed and posed.

Assistant coach George Davidson, who will probably wind up the eventual winner in the contest, displayed a little style. He bent one leg at the knee, flexed his calf muscles and primly rested his toes on a basketball. All this had the team in stitches.

But it was a subdued Myers that talked after the practice. "We hit such a high peak with that Texas game," he reflected, "and after that I guess we hit a valley. We started to slip on our fundamental things. You know we got a lot of attention from the press after we beat Texas. And since we are a young team I don't think we really knew how to handle it. Our immaturity had a lot to do with the way we started slipping.

"So we're going back to the basics—the fundamentals. We really got away from those kinds of things when the conference started. The games were coming at us so fast that we just barely got a chance between each game to go over the other teams.

Basketball fans will continue to see the crowd-pleasing running game that the Raiders went to this year but there will be a catch.

"Basically we are a defensive team," he says. "You can't run without having a good defensive game. Our defense sets up the fast break and that was one thing that we were getting away from."

Hampering the Raiders defense was a seemingly, always changing starting lineup. But Myers announced that for the forseeable future he'll be going with the same lineup he started against TCU on Monday.

That lineup consists of Huston, Brewster, Williams, Taylor and Hill. But McPherson, Baxter, Parks and Little should continue to see a lot of action. Myers would like Tech to finish the season in at least fourth place in the conference to have a chance at the league title. If a team can make it to the tournament, it doesn't matter what they did before. 'Right now, I'd say us, Baylor and Arkansas are all scrambling for third and fourth,

If you wind up third you get a bye into the tournament finals and to me fourth is a good position to be in also, said Myers." The fourth place team plays the ninth place squad - most likely TCU, at home. Tech will face Arkansas, A&M and SMU in the friendly confines of it's home court. If they can win all those games and pick up a couple of wins in the less friendly spots, the Raiders will be in the thick of things. But consistency has not been the team's trademark.

"This team can really be good in a year or two," said Myers. "On a given night we're, a good team right now. It's just that you can't ever tell when that night's going to be. And on any given night, Gerald Myers just might start picking up technicals again.

Cavs Upset 17th-Ranked Terps

By The Associated Press

You can't blame the Maryland Terrapins for getting a little cocky after knocking off No. 1-rated Notre Dame last weekend...and you can't blame the Virginia Cavaliers for bringing them back to

"It doesn't look like we can stand prosperity." Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell sighed after his 17th-ranked Terrapins, apparently still reveling in their upset of otre Dame, came down to earth with a thud Wednesday night, dropping a 69-63 Atlantic Coast Conference decision to

It was obvious from the start that Maryland wasn't the same outfit that toppled Notre Dame. The Terps fell behind by nine points at halftime but eventually woke up and used an eight-point run to take a 62-50 lead with eight minutes re-

That, however, was their last ga They managed just one measly point the rest of the way while Virginia wrapped it up with a six-point streak of its own free throws by Jeff Jones, a basket by Jeff Lamp, who led all scorers with 25 points, and another by Mike Owens,

In another ACC contest, third-ranked Duke rolled over Wake Forest 75-60. Elsewhere in The Associated Press Top Twenty. No. 6 Louisville downed Florida State 84-71 in a Metro Conference game. Oral Roberts nipped ninth-ranked Georgetown 75-74 and No. 16 Texas A&M swamped Southern Methodist 92-56 in Southwest Conference action.

Maryland's final point came on a Buck Williams free throw, making it 65-63. The Terps then had a chance to tie the score but Larry Gibson, whose three-point play with one second left beat Notre Dame, missed a shot and Albert King muffed a stuff rebound attempt. Owens canned two free throws with 24 seconds left to nail down the triumph

"We played like a bunch of prima donnas in the first half," said Driesell. "It looked like Virginia wanted it worse than we did.

Virginia needed all of Lamp's 25 points since the Cavaliers' No. 2 scorer, Lee Raker, missed his third game in a row.

"I keep reading we're a two-man team and it's certainly true statistically," said Owens. "But you need five guys to set picks and play defense. We feel we have a good enough team to compensate, but I guess we have to prove it to ourselves."

They did prove it to Maryland.
"I thought they outhustled us," said

Forest, although the Blue Devils blew a 14-point lead in the first half. A 20-6 burst at the start of the second half turned a tight game into a laugher.

"Gminski's play down the stretch has been tremendous," said Coach Bill Foster. "Right now, we seem to be in a pretty good groove. We are getting the ball inside better now and that has helped out side better now and that has helped out by getting better movement around the

Louisville trailed Florida State by four nts at the half but the Cardinals connected on 21 of 28 shots after the inter-their 10th consecutive triumph. Darrell Griffith led the way with 21 points while Bobby Turner, who was held scoreless when the two teams met two weeks ago, added 14 this time.

Georgetown's seven-game winning streak came to an end when Calvin Garrett made a free throw with seven seconds left. Georgetown's John Duren had tied things up with a pair of free throws 10 seconds earlier. Garrett paced the winners with 23 points while Craig Shelton had 26 for Georgetown. David Britton, a starter earlier in the season, came off the bench to score 18 points and lead Texas A&M over SMU.

Britton helped the Aggies to a 14-point halftime lead even though 6-foot-11 Rudy Woods had to sit down with three personal fouls.

In other key games:

-In the Big Eight, Al Beal led the way with 21 points as Oklahoma defeated Kansas State 70-62, the Sooners' first victory in Manhattan, Kan., in 31 years. And four free throws by 7-1 Paul Mokeski in the final 24 seconds helped Kansas hold off Colorado 56-51 although the Jayhawks didn't score a basket in the final 61/2

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Peter Falk could have used that old raincoat from his "Columbo" television role along with some better shots as he played a final practice round before the 38th Bing Crosby Pro-Am.

"I ain't gonna' win any trophies," Falk said from under the rainhat he bought before going out on the Pebble Beach course Wednesday.

But Falk, a 16-handicapper playing in the Crosby for the first time, is not in the tournament to win trophies. The show-business celebrities in the event help produce big crowds, high television ratings and also large amounts of comic relief - sometimes more than the pros, playing for $330,000 in prize money, appreciate.

Falk, who recently finished a movie called "The Inlaws," is among the amateurs bringing rusty games to golf's bestknown pro-am event.

It is scheduled to open today if weather permits.
Falk, played his final practice round alone, so he could hit as many extra shots as possible. One of them, a chip which flew over the fifth green, hit a woman spectator.

You all right?" Falk yelled. When assured that she was OK, the actor said, "You may be all right, but I'm not all right."

James Garner parted the crowd ahead of him as he walked to the first tee by commenting loudly, "Excuse me, I think I'm going to be sick."

Foyt Quits CART, Rejoins U

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Car owners and drivers "can strengthen the sport of auto racing by staying within the U.S. Auto Club." says A.J. Foyt, who resigned on Wednesday as a director of the breakaway Championship Auto Racing Teams.

Fort contended the original goals of CART have been substantially realized through USAC rules changes and efforts to give the dissident car owners more of a say in running the sport.

The original goals of CART were to improve the benefits for the car owners and to form a more workable relationship with the USAC board of directors on things like rules and specifications." Foyt said in a letter to USAC and to CART president Pat Patrick.

"I think that now these goals have changed considerably. I don't think CART should be sanctioning races and promoting its own races," the four-time

Indianapolis 500 winner said.

CART is composed of most of the bigname car owners and drivers, including former Indy 500 winners Al and Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock, and most other top drivers. World champion Mario Andretti is committed to run a few CART races, yet he, Dick Simon and Roger McCluskey were the only drivers to have applied for 1979 USAC licenses as of last week

Fovt's return to the USAC ranks could give it a big boost in the often-bitter battle with CART, but Patrick said later on Wednesday that CART will go ahead with its previous plans.

I have contacted each CART director and member and we are proceeding with our commitment to conduct our own series of championship races for Indy-type cars in 1979." Patrick said.

"I regret that A.J. Foyt has not stayed with our organization as he previously agreed to do. However, our entire CART membership is looking forward to the first event scheduled for March 11 at Phoenix International Raceway, which will be nationally televised (NBC)."

Patrick also announced that Trenton International Speedway is committed to promote two CART races on June 10 and Aug. 12. giving CART eight firm races plus two tentative events. One event earlier listed as tentative, Mosport, was scratched, he said, but another was added for Watkins Glen, N.Y., for Aug. 19.

Patrick also said Johncock was to test drive his newly acquired Penske racer at the North Carolina Motor Speedway at Rockingham on today - the first time a' champ car has ever run at Rockingham.

USAC, hoping for a reconciliation with the dissidents, has offered to give in to almost all of the CART demands and recently adopted rules changes to make the sport more competitive and said it would seek larger purses from race tracks.

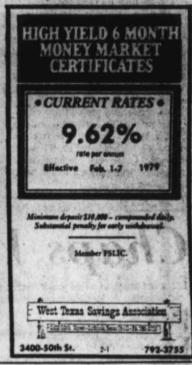

"The USAC board has been responsive to the requirements of the car owners and other participants and is going to put more control into the hands of the participants and people who are involved on a day-to-day basis," Foyt said in his letter.

Foyt, who will drive Parnelli Jonesbuilt cars this year, already has been entered in three early USAC races, including a stock car race at the Texas World

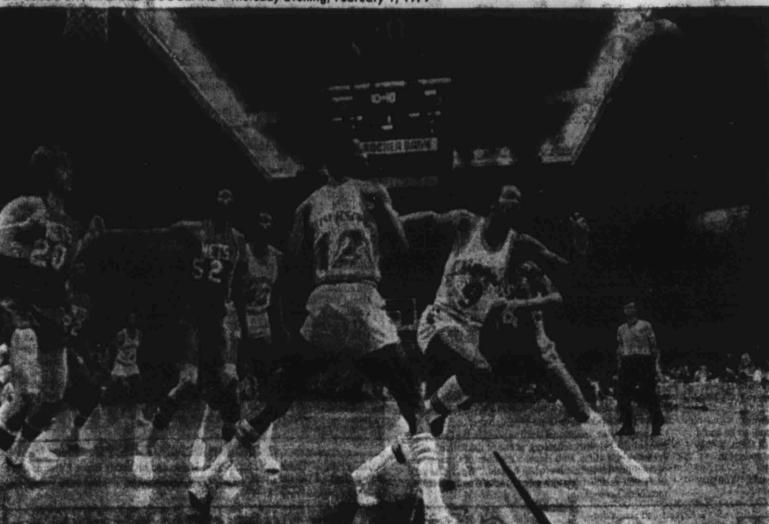

Speedway on March 11 and the Twin-200 championship and stock car races at Ontario, Calif., on March 25.

The split took place last week in the Santa Anita parking lot.

Both parties went to great pains trying to convince everyone it wasn't a complete breakup, not a final one, anyway. They might get together again sometime, the two of them said. No matter how you looked at it, though, The Kid and his agent were saying goodbye to each other, not hello.

"Good luck, pal," Lenny Goodman said to Steve Cauthen, the 18-year-old jockey for whom he has had an honestly warm fatherty feeling from the first time they met two years ago. "I wish you the best."

"I wish you the best, too," the Kid told Goodman, who had been his agent since the fall of 1976 and had provided him with horses that earned more than $11 million.

Cauthen was Jockey of the Year in 1977 and didn't do badly at all the first half of last year, either. Since then, though, he has ridden an almost incredible total of 109 straight losers. Everything he has done the past few months has worked out wretchedly. It has been so long now nince the last time he was in the winner's circle, they're thinking of posting a reward for his return.

The final straw for Cauthen, the one that may have come closest to breaking his spirit altogether, came Monday when Lazaro Barrers, the trainer of Affirmed, whom Cauthen rode to the Triple Crown last year, removed him from the horse for Sanday's running of the $200,000 added Charles H. Strab Stakes all Santa Ariita.

"Barrera is a fine trainer and a decent man, but by doing that, he has hurt him (Cauthen) as much as anyone can," says Goodman.

The trainer claimed he had no choice, saying the decision is take Cauther off the horse was one of the hardest he ever had to make in his life. Along with that, Low Wolfson, owner of Affirmed, and not Barrera, was said to have hed

The Lady Techsters are on their way to their winningest season, with 18 victories in their first 20 games. And they are early favorites for the state women's basket-ball tournament scheduled at Monroe

"It's just unbelievable what we've ac-complished in such a short time," said head coach Sonja Hogg, "but it's been the result of a lot of hard work and dedication by so many individuals."

It was Hogg, who now also serves as women's athletic director at Tech, who was called upon to become head basket-ball coach when the program got started

"I had never even played basketball, much less coached it," said Hogg, who was serving in the health and physical education department at the time. "But I felt like the program had a lot of promise and that there would be plenty of girls

Brandt Still In Running

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) -Tim Mara insists that if the New York Giants decide on Gil Brandt as director of operations, the Dallas Cowboys' refusal to let him go until after the May 1-2 college draft poses no problem.

"He runs the draft for the Cowboys, our own people would handle it for us," said Mara, who owns 50 percent of the club as does his better-know uncle, Wellington. "Knowing how involved Gil has been in the draft, it makes sense that they would want him to stay."

Brandt, reportedly, is the only man who knows how to operate the Cowboys who would like to try out for the team." It didn't take long before "Hogg's Heroes" enjoyed success. The school's first women's basketball team compiled a 13-9 record, then Tech went 19-10 the following season.

And during the 1976-77 season, the Lady Techsters really "arrived." Strengthened by the addition of 8-foot-5 freshman Elinor Griffin of Lake Providence, La., Tech won the 1977 state championship with a 22-9 record. Last year, the Lady Techsters finished as state runner-up with a 20-8 record. But, Hogg may have her most talented team this year.

Griffin, who was a member of the United State National Select Team that toured Europe last summer, is touted as an All-America candidate. Now a junior center, the two-time All-Louisiana selection has averaged more than 17 points and 10 rebounds per game.

Griffin scored 23 points in an 85-81 victory over UCLA to stop the defending national champions' 36-game win streak at Pauley Pavilion earlier this year.

She also had 23 points against Wayland Baptist, a team that made the national championship tournament last year, as Tech came from 10 points down with less than 10 minutes remaining to take a 75-64

"She is certainly one of the best big players in the nation," said Stephen F. Austin head coach Sue Gunter, who will serve as head coach for the United States women's team in the 1980 Olympic

"She was a raw talent during her early years, but she's worked hard to become a great player. She's been dynamite this

For the past five weeks, the Lady Techsters have advanced in the national poll, which is voted on by a panel of 40 coaches. In that stretch they defeated then second-ranked Stephen F. Austin 76-68 and former top-ranked Tennessee 64-

LPGA Postponed By Snow

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — The scheduled beginning of the $100,000 Trigle Crown match play golf tournament today was uncertain because of Wednesday's rare snowatorm, freezing temperatures and heavy rain.

An LPGA spokesman said a decision would be put off until shortly before play was slated to begin at the Mission Hills Country Club, Wednesday's pro-am was canceled because of the inclessent weather.

The spokesman said the 16-player, founday event could not be shortened.

because of the inclement weather.

The spakesman said the 16-player, four-day event could not be shortened because of the match-play formut. He added that scheduling two rounds in one day might not be practical because of the early tee times and a frost problem on the course.

Defending champion Johnne Carner and Nancy Lopez, the 1978 Ladies Professional Golf Association player of the year, head the field.

Carner was scheduled to face Debbie Massey in the opening round of the Triple Crown, the only match-play event on the LPGA calendar. Lopez was to meet Silvia Restated and the course of the player of the play Bertolaccini.

The top qualifier for the select group of 16 in the Triple Crown, Lopez earned 280 points by winning two of the three qualifying events in 1978, the European Open and the Far East Open. The Winners Circle is the other qualifying event.

Scores in match play are determined by the number of holes won per round, and the field is cut by half after each round as the loser in each twosome is eliminated.

Other first-round pairings were Mary Dwyer-Amy Alcott; Sandra Post-Kathy Postlewait; Jerilyn Brits-Mary Mills; Pat Bradley-Jan Stephenson; Donna Young-Penny Pulz, and Sally Little-Dorothy Germain.

Brits was the second-high qualifier with 178 points in the three events, while Massey was third at 176 and Young fourth at 173. Carner was well down on the list with Midnight Wednesday was the signing deadline and the National Football League was to release the names of all free agents today. The list figured to be approximately half the size of last year's, which contained 126 names.

Besides Rashad, defensive end Jones and placekicker Gerela, an Associated Press survey turned up such names as Buffalo guard Reggie McKenzie, St. Louis center Turn Banks. San Francisco running back Wilbur Jackson, running back Mike Thomas and safety Ken Houston of Washington, Green Bay defensive back Willie Buchanon and Chicago quartertuck Mike Phipps.

But chances are good that many of these players will be back with their teams next season.

Under terms of a bargaining pact between the NFL Management Council and the NFL Players Association, if a free agent signs with a new team, his old club has the fight to match any offer.

Under the compensation agreement, if a free agent signs for between $50,000-$65,-000, his new team must give his previous club a third-round draft choice. The cost is a second-round draft choice for a contract between $65,000-$75,000. From $75,000-$125,000, the cost is a first-round choice. From $125,000-$200,000, a No. 1 and a No. 2 pick must be surrendered. And for anything over $200,000, the ce is a pair of first-round picks.

In addition, running back Larry Csonits of the New York Giants and 39-year-old lensive end Ron McDole of the Washington Redskins became free agents able to p with any team minus compensation when their 1978 teams declined to pick up

Golden Gloves Boxer Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxer Frankie Rodriguez, who died Wednesday morning turns after fighting in a Golden Gloves tournament here, was suffering from an enamed heart and sickle cell disease, according to an autopsy report.

"He didn't die from a blow in the ring. It was not a traumatic death," said Dr. rong Myun Rho, a deputy chief medical examiner who performed the autopsy wednesday. "The physical exertion contributed to it, though. He should have been actuded (from the tournament), in my opinion."

The examiner found the heart of the 25-year-old Rodriguez was "twice its normal."

Rodriguez of Middletown, N.Y., tired badly in the second round of his three-round invyweight bout with Francis Ricottilli at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum one. He stopped fighting, dropped his arms and doubled over before referee Dick Guire gave Rodriguez a standing eight count.

Rodriguez did not continue the bout, which was stopped at 1:16 of the round. Complaining of fitting, the 6-foot-1, 216-pound fighter left the ring under his own over but lay down in a corridor and had to be coaxed to his feet.

The greatest fun in backgammon comes from making the moves that frustrate your opponent's chances while improving your own.

At the start of the game. White tries to prevent the escape of Black's back men, the two Black men that begin play on the White 1-point. White does that by "making points" that will impede Black's attempts to do the same to White.)

The blocking game is achieved by developing a row of uninterrupted made points. Six such points in a row form a barrier over which your opponent cannot jump.

The technical term for such a barrier is a prime. Five made points in a row is called a five-point block.

Panel Urges Attack HOME OR On Digestive Ills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal advisory panel urged the government to vigorous, well-coordinated attack on digestive diseases, saying the problems that plague the digestive tract have an enormous impact on society. The 26-member National Commission

But he says such energy production from the wind depends on the availability

Organization Drive Launched By UMW

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - The United Mine Workers union is launching a drive to "bring all the coal miners in the country under our jurisdiction," says UMW President Arnold Miller.

In order to hire 300 to 400 more organizers, Miller said he would try to raise member dues in September. "We have had a bit of a financial problem," said Miller, here for a meeting of the union's executive board. "There have been two very substantial wage increases in the last five years with no adjustment in income for the union. Inflation has eroded away 30 percent of our income.'

"In 1880, wood was the most-used fuel in the U.S.A. We used it to make steel.

"I don't think manufacturers are going to put out very many of these large wind turbines until they have tested them for several years to make sure they stand up well," Hewson said. "If everything looks good, then they will start commercial production. That is three to four years

Bonneville Power Administration is sponsoring and cooperating in some phases of OSU wind power research. Hewson said BPA hopes to get two or more large aerogenerators for testing in Hewson started the studies of wind energy resources in Oregon and the Pacific Northwest in 1971. Since then, he said, wind energy research and engineering have developed rapidly.

A recent example of engineering prog-ress is the Boeing Company's MOD-2 wind turbine model. The 2.5 million-watt w nd turbine will have 300-foot diameter blades mounted on a supporting tower 200 feet high. Another example is the still larger 3-megawatt unit designed and being built by Wind Power Products Co., also of Seattle.

Studies by Robert W. Baker and John E. Wade, atmospheric scientists working with Hewson at OSU, have identified severàl wind sites suitable for aerogenerators. Site selection is based on wind measurements, supplemented by studies of wind-deformed trees and vegetation which are funded by the U.S. Department of Energy.

'The most significant fact is that we've proven there are substantial numbers of wind generating sites in the Pacific Northwest," Hewson said.

Two prime sites are located in the eastern end of the Columbia River Gorge, and some still farther to the east.

Hewson said Seven Mile Ridge in Oregon and Washington's Goodnoe Hills are both good sites. Wind measurement towers have been installed at both sites.

'My feeling is that the Oregon site is a little better because there is more area that will accommodate a large farm of aerogenerators," Hewson said.

precipitous decline," Hart said.

"I'm sure there are many companies around the country who see what we see coming - a renaissance of wood."

A clear sign is the increasing popularity "I think most people who buy these stoves have some romantic ideas about cutting their own cord of wood," he said.

They'll do it once." Thenceforth, Hart expects, the stove-owners will be looking for a reliable supplier of quality firewood. He believes that describes the Firewood Co.

"I think most of our customers think they're dealing with a couple of guys who have dropped out, sitting around and selling them wood, them and about 20 other people," Hart said. "And that's what we are. We've institutionalized it." Actually, the firm counts close to 2,500 residential customers and Hart is far from qualifying as a dropout. He graduated from Emory University with a degree in medieval English, tried law school for a year and then earned a master's degree at Harvard Business School. He was successful in real estate; he said, until he went out on his own "just in time to get clobbered."

The firewood business was started almost as an accident when a downtown development deal busted and left Hart the proud owner of a warehouse no one

Now to the homes of his customers Hart's crews deliver logs graded by moisture content and come with flyers offering instructions for fire-building, ruminations on fire's appeal, and the like.

Hart is planning a store in Washington, D.C., next year as the beginning of a franchise operation.

"The demand as I see it is explosive," Hart said.

"As soon as everybody faces up to what energy costs, we'll all be better off. Then wood is going to be damn economical alternative as a supplement," he said. ";We'll be in the right place."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government says voluntary affirmative action programs designed to end apparent discrimination are valid and it urges the Supreme Court to uphold a program that guaranteed half the positions in a factory retraining program to blacks.

The government's position was out-lined in a legal brief submitted Tuesday concerning a program at the Kaiser Alu-minum Chemical plant in Gramercy, La. The program was challenged by Brian F. Literacy Program In Brazil Stirs Controversy

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Jose Zilmar de Souza and Alice Cardoso published their first books of poems in December. Nothing especially noteworthy about that — except that until recently Jose and Alice, both about 50 years old.

They learned to read and write at MOBRAL, a controversial literacy program, whose aim is to bring some read-ing, writing and arithmetic to the illiterate in the cities, villages and jungles all over Brazil.

Jose's "Get to Know the Fantastic Amazon," and Alice's "The Black Pearl" are simple accounts of country life and grow-ing up in Brazil. They probably won't be llers. Only 9,000 copies were printed. But their publication is a source of pride for the authors and an accomplishment by MOBRAL, the Portuguese-language aeronym for Brazilian Literacy Movement, which has been the object of both praise and criticism since it began eight years ago. According to government figures, near-ly 12 million Brazilians have learned to read and write since MOBRAL began in 1970. In that time, the official illiteracy rate among Brazil's 115 million people has fallen from 34 percent to 14 percent — not all of it due to MOBRAL.

But critics, who include politicians, ed-ucators, and even ex-MOBRAL instruc-

OSHA Delays Rule Implementation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal job safety agency is delaying action to put into effect a new regulation designed to reduce the amount of toxic lead furnes workers are exposed to.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration said Tuesday it will postpone implementation of the new rule to b. 24 so an appeals court can consider fastry arguments against it. The reguom 200 micrograms to 50 mi-flead dust per cubic meter of ad over an eight-hour work my as 835,000 workers could be the rule, which industry foes with to meet and unnecessaritors, claim the program has an exceed-ingly high dropout rate of about 60 per-cent, it lacks qualified teachers and has shown poor results in rural areas.

MOBRAL's president, Arlindo Lopes Correa, does not deny the charges. But he says they are "sacrifices" MOBRAL must make to attain its goal of reaching the greatest number of people at the lowest possible cost.

The program is offered in more than 100,000 "movable outposts" in all of Brazil's 22 states and in three federal territories. Classes meet wherever students can get together. It may be in a Rio de Janeisroom, an unfinished office building in Sao Paulo, or under a tree in an Amazon village.

The course is free, and anyone over 14 can join. Students attend classes two hours a day - or night, for those who work in the daytime - five days a week for five months. MOBRAL provides reading, writing and arithmetic books at no charge, and at the end of the course stu- cruzeiro equivalent of about $2.50 for dents are now attending MOBRAL coursdents take a final exam, which also is the subject of debate.

MOBRAL officials say students are required to read a simple text, write a short passage and do basic arithmetic problems to pass the course. But some ex-MOBRAL teachers claim that students really only have to read one phrase and explain-it and write their names. The size of the program and the constant chan-geover of students and teachers make a real evaluation almost impossible, independent experts say.

Almost anyone can be a MOBRAL teacher if he or she completes a 30-day training program and is judged capable by a local citizens group that oversees operations in each town.

The new teachers receive a teaching

The teachers are paid the Brazilian each student who passes the course. For an "ideal" class of 30 students, with an average dropout rate of 60 percent, this could come to only about $30 for five months work.

Correa calls the salary "ludicrous," but he maintains that it is in line with MOB-RAL's policy of keeping costs to an absolute minimum. One spokesman said that for those to join "teaching is a mission, not a job." Critics claim that MOBRAL has sacrificed quality teaching to save

Perhaps the most frequently heard complaint involves the program's lackluster performance in rural areas, where illiteracy is high and MOBRAL has admittedly not made much headway.

Government figures show that in Brazil's rural areas, only people in the 10-24 age bracket reach even 50 percent literacy. The same age group in cities averages around 94 percent. And fewer rural stues than in past years.

MOBRAL officials agree that results in farm zones have not been good. But they claim that, as the number of illiterates in Brazil falls, more of the remaining illiterates tend to be hard core. Many can't attend classes for reasons of health, age or work. At harvest time, for example, attendance drops almost to zero. And some Brazilians just don't want to learn to read and write, officials say.

One area that critics and supporters tend to agree on is the program's economical and uncomplicated organization. This was one of the features singled out for praise in two United Nations studies in the mid-1970s of Third World adult litaracy programs.

MOBRAL has just four levels of administration - a central office in Rio de Janeiro, a board of regional supervisors, individual state coordinators, and the local commissions. The top three administration levels are paid. The local commis sions are all-volunteer.

MOBRAL's $60 million budget last year corresponded to just 2 percent of what the federal government spent on elementary and high school education. Some of MOBRAL's money also must go to other adult education projects.

Why don't public schools attack the illiteracy problem? "A lot of it has to do with economics, MOBRAL President Correa said. "Public schools require students to wear shoes and uniforms and to buy their books and school supplies. Some families just don't have the money for this. MOBRAL doesn't make demands on students."

"You know," Correa went on, "since 1970 we've had more than 31 million people enroll at MOBRAL. That proves something: even if the program is not 100 percent successful, it shows our teaching approach can attract students better than the public schools can."

The state is pioneering a system to certify teachers on the basis of performance and teaching effectiveness — rather than on hours of education courses, number of years in the school system or other similar measures that skirt the issue of teacher competence.

Teacher competence is a big issue in the schoolhouse these days.

The capability of some teachers is said to be less than satisfactory across the nation — a complaint heard in almost every school system.

As proof of the teachers' failure to produce educated students, critics cite reports about:

ports about:

- High school grads who cannot fill out an application for a job.

- Dipping college entrance exam scores.

- Deficiencies in basic reading and writing skills among college freshmen, severe enough to demand remedial courses.

The Georgia solution, in a nutshell:

"The professional (renewable) certificate will be based on demonstrated performance and not merely on experience and/or a master's degree."

Unrest over alleged incompetents, which some have estimated as high as 10 percent, among the nation's 2 million teachers has led the Council for Basic Education to point to the 1300 teacher training institutions.
