

Violence Mars Farmers' Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of farmers plowed a field of political and sporadically violent dissent today as they snarled commuter arteries and blocked bridges in a motorized demand for higher government price supports for their crops.

"The Farmers Are Here!" declared banners flapping from tractors and trucks that entered the city at a snail's pace in the chill of dawn, ahead of normal rush-hour traffic. In one case, police used tear gas to subdue a driver who tried to block an intersection and allegedly resisted arrest.

By mid-day, police had arrested eight persons and impounded several vehicles, some of which were abandoned by their drivers in the middle of key intersections. City Police Chief Burtell Jefferson ordered the mobilization of his entire force.

During one attempt to impound a tractor, a group of farmers opened the hood of a police tow truck and disabled the vehicle. Officers charged one protester there with disorderly conduct. Jefferson himself was involved in a shoving match with protesters at another arrest scene.

At the White House, several Cabinet officers turned up late for a scheduled 9 a.m. meeting with President Carter. They blamed the traffic delay.

Many workers found that a commuting drive that ordinarily took 30 minutes required up to four hours today. Others simply stayed home. The Agriculture Department itself reported a 15 percent absentee rate.

At least four separate cavalcades totaling an estimated 1,500 to 2,000 vehicles and sponsored by the American Agriculture Movement edged into the city from staging areas in Virginia and Maryland. The George Washington Memorial Parkway, a principal north-south route for tens of thousands of commuters from both states, was closed temporarily by police to all but the farm traffic.

Meanwhile, a 25-mile-long line of 750 farm vehicles crossed the Potomac River from the south over the city's busiest bridge, emptying into Washington just short of the Agriculture Department and creating a huge traffic jam at the height of rush hour. Police tried to divert commuters to a branch artery that serves Capitol Hill, but the congestion mounted to a complete standstill.

Some of the arrests resulted from tractor collisions with police cars. One of the tractor drivers allegedly ran over a policeman's foot and after brandishing a baseball bat, was clubbed and dragged into a paddy wagon. Other police formed a circle and pushed a number of nearby protesters from the area.

Another episode involved a farmer who tried to block an intersection, then almost ran over several officers as they tried to impound his vehicle, police spokesman Larry Soulsby said. Officers finally fired tear gas into the tractor cab, and the driver was subsequently hospitalized.

At mid-day, police reported that several farmers created new traffic problems by parking tractors in a tunnel beneath the Mall, a park area between the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial. That blockade later was cleared.

One group of farmers threatened to bar entrance to the Agriculture Department. Three tractors, chained together, were driven within three feet of one door to the building, while other vehicles blocked all six lanes of Independence Avenue. A few blocks away, Pennsylvania Avenue was filled with tractors driven seven abreast. One carried a placard reading "We've raised enough corn, but not enough hell."

The farmers also usurped the parking spaces for Agriculture Department officials, including that for Secretary Bob Bergland — though he was not due to return from a trip to Seattle until late in the day. One vehicle outside the department was set ablaze, but the fire was quickly extinguished.

Police offered almost full cooperation to the protesters, giving them priority access to the building, while other vehicles

Iran Moving To Brink Of Open Revolt

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, directly challenging Iran's shaky government, today named veteran opposition politician Mehdi Bazargan as prime minister of a "revolutionary" regime to pave the way for creation of an Islamic republic.

Khomeini called on the people of Iran to obey the new government and again urged Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar to resign.

The religious leader, who made his announcement at a news conference, thereby set the stage for a possible showdown with Bakhtiar, who has threatened to arrest Khomeini if he tries to supplant Bakhtiar's sitting government.

There was a press report earlier today that the Iranian military, which has pledged support to the current administration, was reinforcing its troops outside and inside some government ministries. Bakhtiar has warned his foes he would "answer Molotov cocktail for Molotov cocktail" if they carry out Khomeini's threat to launch a holy war to oust him.

The 70-year-old Bazargan, seated next to Khomeini during the meeting with reporters at a Moslem school, is a longtime human-rights activist, a Moslem nationalist and one-time head of Iran's oil industry. He was a close associate of the late, deposed Prime Minister Mohammad Mossadeq.

Bazargan is believed to have acted as a go-between in behind-the-scenes negotiations between Bakhtiar and the Khomeini camp.

"I am appointing Mehdi Bazargan, who is an honest and religious person, as head of a transitional government to appoint his ministers and introduce them to me," Khomeini told the news conference.

Urging the Bakhtiar government to step aside, Khomeini said Bazargan's Cabinet will plan and conduct a national election for members of a constituent assembly "to ratify the drafted constitution" for an Islamic republic.

Bazargan and the 62-year-old Bakhtiar both served under Mossadeq, who was ousted by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in 1953 after nationalizing the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. Bakhtiar was a deputy labor minister and Bazargan served as the first managing director of the National Iranian Oil Co. The two politicians were allied in the opposition National Front for a quarter-century until Bakhtiar accepted the prime ministry from the shah last month.

Before Khomeini returned from exile in France last week, Bazargan was the religious leader's oil-industry trouble-shooter and was instrumental in getting striking oil workers to begin producing to meet domestic needs.

From exile Khomeini led the year-long anti-shah movement of strikes and mass protest that virtually forced the monarch to leave Iran for an indefinite period Jan. 16. He says the Bakhtiar government, appointed by the shah, is illegal and he vows to abolish the monarchy and establish a religiously oriented republic.

Again Sunday the prime minister refused to step down. But he told the newspaper Eteiaat that Khomeini could create a "shadow cabinet" as British political parties out of power do.

"But if this prime minister-designate starts creating disorders and riots and wants to interfere with the legal order of the country, I will arrest him," Bakhtiar said.

Slain Man, Pet Found Near City

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The body of a 23-year-old Mexican-American man was discovered this morning just east of the Lubbock city limits on a dirt road, and sheriff's deputies were puzzled over the nearby discovery of a dog, which appeared to have been killed along with the man.

Sheriff's Capt. J.B. Douglas said the man had been identified this morning, but was withholding a name until relatives could be notified. Idalou Justice of the Peace Earl Yarbrough ruled the death a homicide and has ordered an autopsy.

Douglas said the man, discovered about 8:45 a.m. on a dirt road about a half mile from the city limits and a half mile south of the Idalou Highway, appeared to have been shot four times in the chest and head with a small-caliber pistol.

The dog, which was found about 20 feet from the man, had been shot once in the throat.

Both the animal and the man appeared to have been dragged off to the side of the road near some weeds. Criminal investigating deputy Alton Hobbs said that after seeing the man "I saw some more drag tracks and thought I'd find another body, but instead, I found that greyhound."

"That's kind of puzzling. It looks like the same deal, but why, I don't know."

Lubbock police received a call from a man shortly before 9 a.m. today, saying there was a dead body near the Children's Home of Lubbock. The sheriff's department was notified when it was learned the discovery was made outside the city.

Douglas said this morning a motive had not been determined for the killing, nor had it been determined why the dog was killed.

The man was thought to have been dead about four or five hours when he was discovered, Douglas said. Deputies found a metal rod with blood stains near the victim's feet, but no gun was found in the area.

The dead man's wallet, containing $1, appeared not to have been touched, according to Douglas. The only other items found on the body were some papers, the captain said.

The man, whose face and chest were covered with blood, was clad in a striped shirt, dark pants and black shoes. The dog was found about 20 feet from the victim's head.

The man's death marks the third homicide this year in Lubbock County.

Teng Ends Visit With Plea

SEATTLE (AP) — Teng Hsiao-ping concluded his visit to the United States today, calling it "smooth and successful" and leaving behind an invitation for U.S. leaders to forsake detente with the Soviet Union and join China in an informal alliance against the Russians.

He left behind, as well, an invitation to the American people.

"We also hope that more American friends in all walks of life will come over and see our country. China opens its door wide to all friends alike," the vice premier said in remarks prepared for an airport departure ceremony.

Teng once again noted that both the United States and China had stated their opposition to "hegemonism," the word the Chinese use to describe Soviet expansionism. "The Chinese people will do their bit toward opposing global and regional hegemonism," he said.

He said that President Carter, who has accepted an invitation to visit China at an unspecified date, "can be sure of a warm welcome and reception."

Suffering from a cold and fatigue, according to aides, Teng cancelled a scheduled breakfast meeting today with Northwest editors and publishers.

The Chinese vice premier drew friendly crowds in Atlanta, Houston and Seattle. But long after the smiling little man in the gray Mao suit has left, the Carter administration is likely to be wrestling with the choices Teng has presented.

Interviews with administration officials who traveled with Teng indicate that there is no consensus in the White House or State Department on how to handle some of the specific policy questions that will arise in the wake of Teng's journey.

He has invited the West and Japan to give China science and technology, allowing Peking to modernize. He is also asking the West to join the world's largest country in a common cause against the Soviets — at a time when many in American politics are questioning the wisdom of detente with the Soviets.

During his visit, Teng also invited former President Richard M. Nixon to visit China. Nixon, who has visited China twice before, accepted, although no date was set.

Full trade relations, which most of the administration's China experts want next, will require quick resolution of the problems of frozen assets and property claims.

Winter Storm Sweeping Across Western Texas

A-J News Services

A winter storm covered much of West Texas and eastern New Mexico today, spreading snow, sleet and freezing rain from Carlsbad to the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The storm prompted travelers advisories and heavy snow warnings for much of the area south of Lubbock, but the worst of the storm was not expected to invade the Hub City, weather forecasters said.

Heavy snowfall was reported at Abilene, where 3 inches had fallen by 10 a.m.

today, and in the Midland-Odessa and San Angelo areas.

At noon, snow was falling from Carlsbad eastward to Calgary, near Crosbyton, and southward to San Angelo. Accumulations of 4 inches or more were expected in the Midland and San Angelo areas.

For the Lubbock area, however, forecasters predicted only enough snow "to cover the ground" if any occurs here. They put the chances of snow for the area at 30 percent today and tonight.

Flurries were reported shortly after noon.

A mixture of freezing rain and snow is expected over North and West Texas during much of the day.

Heavy snow warnings also are in effect for southwestern Texas, where light snow began to fall this morning. Even sunny El Paso may get accumulations of up to 3 inches of snow by tonight, weathermen said.

Dismal weather covered much of the state this morning with rain and fog reported in the eastern half of the state and fog and low clouds reported in the Panhandle. Fog was so thick in the Corpus Christi area that visibilities in parts of the Coastal Bend area were reduced to zero.

The Dallas-Forth Worth area is expected to see its share of bad weather when the light rains that fell last night possibly become primarily freezing rains and sleet by tonight.

This morning snow-and sleet-covered roadways caused hazardous driving conditions in the Permian Basin. The below-freezing temperature reported early this morning at the Midland Regional Airport was expected to combine with the light precipitation to cause icy spots on streets and highways.

On the South Plains, one-quarter to one-half inch of snow was reported in Seminole and an inch of snow was reported in Snyder early this morning.

The weather for the Lubbock vicinity is expected to remain cold this afternoon and tonight, with the high this afternoon near 30 and the low tonight near 20. Winds will be northeasterly 10 to 15 mph this afternoon, becoming light and variable late tonight.

Massachusetts Still Paying Off Blizzard Of '78 Damage Loans

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP) — Though an occasional bungalow still stands ailing along Scituate's oceanfront, the most noticeable leftovers from the Blizzard of '78 are bills to pay for the damage.

Like elsewhere in southern New England, the outward evidence of the worst storm in anyone's memory, which hit a year ago Tuesday, has been patched up and painted over.

And people are clamoring again to buy the newly repaired property as though the storm had never occurred — or as though a similar one could never strike again.

But Massachusetts businessmen and homeowners are still paying off — and will be for many years — a total of $187.1 million in low-interest federal loans that have been used to reconstruct buildings washed out to sea, restore roofs that collapsed under the weight of record snows and replace ruined furnaces and furnishings.

The Small Business Administration says it has made 11,744 disaster loans to repair businesses and homes in Massachusetts.

In all, 339 houses were destroyed in Massachusetts, and 6,500 were damaged, state officials say. They place property damage at around $300 million.

Twenty-nine deaths in Massachusetts were attributed to the two-day storm, which dropped 2 feet of snow and virtually paralyzed Boston for a week.

The worst damage was in the coastal suburbs north and south of the city, where high waves and winds reaching 92 mph battered oceanfront homes and flooded blocks of houses along the streets behind them.

In Scituate, the worst-hit town, 189 houses were destroyed and 911 others damaged. Almost every house has been rebuilt, and many are on sturdier foundations, but they are as close as ever to the pounding surf.

The blizzard also took a heavy toll in Rhode Island, where it was blamed for 22 deaths. But some people in the nation's smallest state are remembering the storm cheerfully.

A downtown restaurant where many were stranded planned to hold a blizzard party today; some stores have begun selling "The Great Providence Blizzard Game," and a Providence radio station is sponsoring a drawing during its "Great Blizzard Week." First prize: a one-week trip to sunny, sultry, snowless St. Maarten in the Caribbean.

Sudden Soviet Imports Turn U.S. Hops Industry Around

WILDER, Idaho (AP) — The Soviet Union, best known in drinking circles for vodka consumption, is suddenly importing enough American hops to make more than a billion gallons of beer a year.

The chairman of the Idaho Hops Commission, Ray Obendorf, said Sunday that the Soviet purchases have turned the hops-farming industry around. He said he doesn't know why hops are suddenly popular in the U.S.S.R., but authorities there have been campaigning recently for a switch from vodka to beer and wine, apparently in an attempt to combat drunkenness.

Posters in Moscow have depicted vodka drinkers lying in gutters while portraying wine and beer drinkers as wise sophisticated.

The official press has called for efforts to improve Russian beer, which is considered inferior even to that of Eastern Europe.

Hops are a basic ingredient of beer, primarily responsible for flavor. They are the flowers of a twining vine in the mulberry family.

A few years ago the Soviets didn't buy any U.S. hops, but between September 1977 and September 1978 they bought 3.7 million pounds and the rate has more than tripled since then, Obendorf said.

The purchases were enough to rank the Soviet Union second, behind Brazil, in imports during the September-to-September year used by the industry. Mexico was third.

This year, "I think Russia will be first," Obendorf said.

It takes one pound of hops to produce about five 31-gallon barrels of typical American beer. The proportion of hops in a barrel declines as brewers make their product lighter.

A few years ago, hops growers — concentrated in Washington, Oregon, California and Idaho — were struggling. Now that Russia is importing, many growers are increasing their acreage, Obendorf said.

Hops growers sell to brokers, primarily in Washington and New York, he said. They, in turn, sell to brewers. Obendorf said half of the hops grown in this country are sold abroad.

American growers compete on the hops market with those in Europe, most of them in West Germany. Last year, West Germany had a poor hops crop, Obendorf said, another reason why hops growers here are beginning to show profits after several years of low prices.

Former Warren Counsel Rejects House Findings

NEW YORK (AP) — A former counsel to the Warren Commission has rejected the House Assassination Committee's findings that President John F. Kennedy was shot by two gunmen involved in a conspiracy.

David W. Belin, the former counsel involved in identifying Kennedy's killer, urged further investigation into the 1963 assassination of the president in Dallas.

"The House committee is plain wrong when a majority says that there was a second gunman firing at the president from the grassy knoll," said Belin, referring to the committee's report issued in December.

He also said that he did not rule out the possibility of a conspiracy to the extent that other persons might have worked with Lee Harvey Oswald, but added that he personally did not believe it occurred.

During an interview Sunday on NBC TV's "Meet the Press," Belin suggested that a tape used to substantiate congressional findings was misinterpreted or might not be authentic. He asserted that the committee failed to put the second gunman theory in context with other evidence.

In 1964, the Warren Commission had issued a report stating that Oswald, a lone assassin, fired three shots from above and behind Kennedy's car from the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository building.

The acoustical evidence to support a second gunman theory was presented by two scientists who tested a tape recording of transmissions from a Dallas police officer's motorcycle radio during the time shots were fired at Kennedy.

The House committee said the evidence indicated four bullets, rather than three, were fired at the president, and that one came from a grassy knoll in Dealey Plaza at about the time a bullet from the rifle of Oswald struck the president's head.

Belin contended that the committee failed to properly match the sounds on the tape with movie film of the president being shot by Oswald.

He said that based on the committee's own figures, the first shot would have to have been fired when Oswald's view of the car was obstructed by a tree.

Belin questioned whether the tape was authentic. If it were, he said, the sound taken to be a fourth shot actually was an echo or reverberation of the third.

Hops growers are plagued by increasing costs of production, particularly for energy, Obendorf said. He said hops growers use "enormous" amounts of diesel oil to dry their crop and "there's a tremendous amount of hand labor," the cost for which went up when the minimum wage was boosted from $2.65 to $2.90 an hour.

So Obendorf and other growers don't care why the Soviets are jumping into the marketplace. They're just glad it's so.

After years of "not getting any return on the dollar, of trying to hold our own, we've got the thing turned around," Obendorf said.

Two Bodies Recovered From Abandoned Well

MCKINNEY (AP) — Authorities said charges would be filed today in connection with the deaths of two persons whose skeletal remains were hauled from an abandoned water well.

Lt. John Thompson of the Collin County sheriff's department said officers recovered a body late Saturday thought to be that of a 75-year-old McKinney man missing since May 3, 1978. And he said early Sunday they recovered another body thought to be a 51-year-old McKinney woman missing since June, 1977.

Officers have tentatively identified the dead man as Jess Leroy Lovelady.

Officers found the woman's remains several feet deeper than the man's and near the bottom of the well. She has been tentatively identified as Ruth McCarty.

A purse with her identification was found in the bottom of the well, said Collin County Chief Deputy Royce Abbott.

Officers said the well was about four miles east of McKinney.

"Right now, we believe the motive (for the slayings) was robbery," said Thompson.

Officers found the body with help of a map supplied by Billy Battenfield, 25, of McKinney, now serving a 50-year prison term in New Mexico for murder, Thompson said.

Battenfield told officers several weeks ago he had "reliable information" Lovelady's body — and others — could be found in an abandoned water well in Collin County.

Officers flew to New Mexico Thursday to try to pinpoint the location of the well more precisely and returned Saturday.

"He drew us a map. There was supposed to be a house burned down close to the well. We flew back Saturday, got here at 2:30 in the afternoon and went immediately out to the location and found the area," Thompson said.

Officers said the house was destroyed by fire about five days after Lovelady was last reported seen alive. It had been vacant at the time.

Several feet of debris separated the two bodies. The top part of the well was dry, but officers hit water after finding the first body. They used buckets to lift out the water and debris in getting to the woman's remains.

"All we found of her, really, was a skull and bones and clothing. However, we did find a purse that indicated who she was," Thompson added.

Although Battenfield had initially told officers they might find three bodies, officers said only the two were in the well, and no more are expected.

Battenfield, and a 15-year-old youth from Allen, a town south of McKinney in Collin County, traveled last year to Oregon, and then back to Texas. After returning, the youth told police Battenfield had killed a man in New Mexico.

Battenfield pleaded guilty to the murder of Edward Elkington, 53, of Los Gatos, Calif. The youth led officers to the body, found four miles south of Tucuman, N.M.

Bullock's Office Violated Rules

AUSTIN (AP) — Vouchers from Comptroller Bob Bullock's department show large purchases were recorded as several smaller ones, in violation of state purchasing regulations, an Austin newspaper reports.

A story in Sunday's Austin American-Statesman says no state laws have been broken, but Bullock's department has violated the rules of the State Board of Control for direct agency purchases of items costing under $200.

A spokesman for Bullock, Tony Proffitt, said the Board of Control "should have bucked it to the state auditor immediately" if the department had intentionally broke stock purchase rules.

Proffitt said the comptroller's department was now making a voucher check of all the purchases cited in the story in order to make a detailed reply.

State law requires the Board of Control to make most state agencies, but the board has authorized agencies to buy relatively inexpensive items for themselves after obtaining three competitive bids.

The newspaper story said fewer than 29 percent of the comptroller's spot purchases were made after competitive bidding.

It also said more than 300 purchase vouchers show evidence that a large purchase was broken into several vouchers, each less than $200, so the purchase would not have to be made by the Board of Control.

The American-Statesman said the comptroller's office made 1,363 spot purchases in a year, totaling nearly $118,000.

"In several cases someone — apparently a member of Bullock's staff — has altered merchant's invoices to disguise evidence of voucher splitting," the newspaper said.

It said that in more than 50 cases the comptroller's office bought supplies first and sought competitive bids later. Some of the purchases included such items as a $107 set of gold-tipped pens for deputy comptroller Ralph Wayne, a $50 pen set for Bullock, and nine calculators costing over $50 each.

The article quoted C.M. Walton, chief purchaser for the Board of Control, as saying "there was very good evidence of an abuse of the spot purchase regulations."

He said his office would thoroughly audit Bullock's purchases and demand explanations of any violations.

Officers Hope Youth Can Aid Investigation

VIDOR (AP) — Police hope a 16-year-old passenger can help answer a string of inquiries spawned by the slaying of a truck driver with a history of sex crimes.

Officers plan to interrogate the youth about the activities during the past year of James Davis, 48, of Los Angeles, who was stabbed to death last week near here.

Detective Sam Kittrell said Sunday that Vidor police have received "numerous inquiries" about Davis since the man's record of sex crimes was disclosed.

"We plan to question the boy extensively. We hope he will tell what transpired since he's been with Davis. We've got all these inquiries out nationwide as to crimes Davis could have committed," said Kittrell, who said Davis had dodged sex or assault charges in numerous states.

Davis and Rex Patrick Atencio, 31, of Albuquerque, were stabbed to death about midnight Jan. 28. A hitchhiker from a small community in Montgomery County north of Houston — has been charged with two counts of first-degree murder.

Tony D. Adams, 17, of Hulsmit remained in Orange County Jail Sunday on $100,000 bond.

Davis originally was identified as James Hinchey, 50, of Albuquerque, but police learned through a fingerprint check his real identity. Kittrell said records checks across the nation turned up four aliases and a criminal record for Davis in Texas and California.

Police said the men were stabbed by a hitchhiker when they refused to let him out of their westbound truck at Vidor.

Adams was arrested in a motel room in nearby Vinton, La., shortly after the bodies were found. A citizen monitoring police band radio had called police after seeing him, his clothes spattered with blood.

The 16-year-old boy whom police plan to question Monday was lying in the bunk behind the driver's seat when police arrived at the truck. He claimed at first that "Hinchey" was his father.

Later, he admitted Davis was not his father. He said Davis abducted him a year ago in California, forced him into a homosexual relationship and used him to lure sex partners.

"We've been receiving numerous inquiries on Davis, but it's going to take time to put them all together. We don't have anything concrete at this time," Kittrell said.

Prison records show Davis served time in the Texas penitentiary at Huntsville from 1965 to 1968 for assault with intent to commit rape.

Kittrell said Davis pleaded guilty in 1971 to two counts of sexual perversion in Bakersfield, Calif., and received a 90-day sentence and two years of probation.

Judge Orders New Elections

CRYSTAL CITY (AP) — A state district judge has struck down the results of five 1978 Zavala County elections in which La Raza Unida candidates won over Democrats. The judge said he found evidence of irregularities and fraud, and ordered new elections for April 7.

State District Judge Troy Williams also ruled Zavala County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez, a founder of Raza Unida, was in contempt of court for allowing one of the contested winners to participate part in a Jan. 8 commissioner's court meeting in violation of a court order.

The judge found the new commissioner, Alejandro Perez, and his attorney in contempt of court in connection with the meeting.

The three will be sentenced Wednesday.

Zavala County is the only Texas county controlled by Raza Unida, a nine-year-old political party composed predominantly of Mexican-Americans.

After the Nov. 7 election, Perez was declared the winner by one vote of the Precinct 4 commissioners post. A canvass, however, showed that Democrat Mat-

Luke 9:46-57, The Living Bible

46 Now came an argument among them as to which of them would be greatest (in the coming Kingdom)!

47 But Jesus knew their thoughts, so He stood a little child beside Him

48 And said to them, "Anyone who takes care of a little child like this is caring for Me! And whoever cares for Me is caring for God, who sent Me. Your care for others is the measure of your greatness."

49 His disciple John came to Him and said, "Master, we saw someone using Your name to cast out demons! And we told him not to. After all, he isn't in our group."

50 But Jesus said, "You shouldn't have done that! For anyone who is not against you is for you!"

51 As the time drew near for His return to heaven, He moved steadily onward towards Jerusalem with an iron will.

52 One day He sent messengers ahead to reserve rooms for them in a Samaritan village.

53 But they were turned away! The people of the village refused to have anything to do with them because they were headed for Jerusalem!

54 When the word came back of what had happened, James and John said to Jesus, "Master, shall we order fire down from heaven to burn them up?"

55 But Jesus turned and rebuked them.

56 And they went on to another village.

57 As they were walking along, someone said to Jesus, "I will always follow You, no matter where You go."

Latin America Visit Proves Pope's Capabilities

By BARRY JAMES
VATICAN CITY (UPI) — After the years of drift that characterized the last part of Pope Paul VI's pontificate, the Roman Catholic Church again has a firm hand at the helm.

During his seven-day visit to Latin America, Pope John Paul II reached out to millions of people who gave him a welcome that no politician could ever dream of.

The pope used the occasion for the first major policy pronouncements of his three-month pontificate — restating the church's social policy in lively and unequivocal terms and ruling out any cooperation with Marxism in the fight against oppression and poverty.

The pope's greatest success was as a communicator — even though he had been studying seriously for only a month.

He delivered 35 speeches and homilies in six days, some of them major policy pronouncements that will set the church's course for years ahead.

In the opinion of many observers, he fully lived up to the criteria that led to his election Oct. 16.

The cardinal electors looked for a pontiff who could provide firm spiritual leadership, and who could mount a church assault against encroaching materialism and atheism.

This the pope sought to do in the Dominican Republic and Mexico, injecting his own mortar between the bricks left by Pope Paul in his social teaching.

Constantly acknowledging his intellectual debt to Paul, the pontiff reminded his listeners that the church already has a social policy built up over the years, and has no need for alliances with the "left" or any other temporal grouping.

He firmly stated the age-old view that Jesus is a liberator through love rather than the revolutionary and political activist that some modern theologians have made him out to be.

And he repeatedly emphasized devotion to the virgin Mary as a way of learning the church's true message and coming closer to God.

Opening the general assembly of the Latin American Episcopal conference at Puebla, he warned bishops and priests to stay out of politics — a slap at some theologians who call for a Christian-Marxist alliance to improve human conditions.

The pope told priests they are "spiritual guides," not "social, political leaders nor functionaries of a temporal power."

In response to those churchmen who advocate revolution and violence to redress Latin America's social evils, the pope said the idea of Christ "as a political figure, a revolutionary, as the subversive man from Nazareth," was not in accordance with the church's teaching.

The pontiff said Jesus "unequivocally rejects recourse to violence" and sought the "liberation" of all men through "transforming, peacemaking, pardoning a reconciling love."

The pope offered the church's help to governments seeking to achieve balanced population growth, but he ruled out the use of artificial methods of contraception.

Had he gone no further, the pope might

Weatherman In Midst Of Legal Storm

NEW YORK (AP) — Weather forecaster Frank Field says a legal storm is brewing because someone has said he's not a meteorologist.

Field, of WNBC-TV in New York, who was stung by a New York Post article headlined "Dr. Frank: Not a Meteorologist," threatened to sue the Post.

Field, a veteran television personality, has a bachelor's degree in geology from Brooklyn College, a bachelor's degree in optometry from Columbia University, and a doctorate in optometry from Massachusetts College of Optometry.

The Post said a biography distributed by WNBC said his Columbia degree was in meteorology, and that Field had furnished the station with the information.

Its article followed the firing of WCBS radio and New York Times weatherman Bob Harris, who falsely identified himself as the recipient of a doctorate in geophysics.

But Joanna Dymond, public relations director for WNBC, said the mistake was a typographical error committed by her office.

"My degrees are incidental, but I am considered a professional meteorologist," Field insisted. He cited his service as an Air Force meteorologist in Europe from 1944 to 1947 and for the U.S. Weather Bureau from 1947 to 1949.

According to his corrected biography, Field taught meteorology, ran a private forecasting concern, and is a member of the American Meteorological Society.

Field said he would not accept a retraction from the Post. He said he planned to sue "that rag" for "as much as I can get" and give the award to charity.

"In our view, the item was not libelous and not wrong. All the item said was that Field has no degree in meteorology, which is what he says," said John Van Doorn, the Post's managing editor.

have been dismissed as a conservative by those clerics who are trying to give the church a revolutionary face in Latin America.

But the pope balanced his admonitions with eloquent statements of the church's commitment to the poor and oppressed, and its desire to provide positive help for them.

As a result, even committed liberal churchmen such as Cardinals Aloisio Lorscheider of Fortaleza, Brazil, and Oscar Romero of San Salvador reacted positively to the pope's social guidelines, which will be borne in mind as the CELAM conference continues its work through the first half of February.

In a speech to an Indian audience near Oaxaca, the pontiff said he wanted to be "the voice of those who cannot speak, or who are silenced."

He said the Indians, and other people who live off the land, "have the right to be respected, not to be deprived of their land by manipulations that are at times real despoliations" of what little they have.

The pope stated that private property ownership, while legitimate, incurs social obligations and ought to be subject to expropriation if necessary for the common good.

Unless there is "land for every peasant," as well as land reform, there would be no way of stopping people crushing into the already over-crowded cities in search of nonexistent work.

But the pope urged his audience not to "harbor feelings of hate or violence over unjust situations."

Later, in Guadalajara and Monterrey, the pope turned to the problems of industrial labor, where he appealed especially for the rights of unemployed and migrant laborers.

All men, he said, had the right to adequate salaries, social security, and the benefits of culture.

"The dignity of man is above everything," he added, saying he wanted the church to contribute in the construction of a more just "new world order."

At the end of the trip, the Pope said he saw many parallels between Mexico and his native Poland. He apparently referred to the same widespread practice of Catholicism coupled with the same official hostility to the Church.

The general impression among Vatican circles is that both the pope and the Polish government may be planning on a visit this summer.

Texas Twins Elected Mayors Of Iowa Towns

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Whoever would have thought those twin brothers — one blue-eyed, the other brown-eyed — from Weatherford, Texas, would sprout into mayors of neighboring communities in faraway Iowa?

It certainly never crossed the minds of the Pentecost boys, Weston Maury and Wesley Maurice, who showed no particular flare for politics while growing up. The closest thing to a portent of their political fate was a shirt-tail cousin on their mother's side who once was governor of Texas.

Nevertheless, today it's Mayor Maurice Pentecost of Independence and Mayor

Maury Pentecost of Jesup. Both defeated incumbents to be elected in November 1977.

The 44-year-old brothers deny their election to office was the result of an orchestrated endeavor to spread their name and influence through northeast Iowa. The fact is, they both were surprised to learn the other was running for mayor when they read about it in the newspaper.

Maurice ran for mayor of Independence, population 1,900, because he "felt the taxpayers weren't getting a fair shake." His brother in neighboring Jesup, population 5,900, was drafted by a group of people who thought he should run.

Being mayors of neighboring communities has provided the brothers an opportunity to see more of each other than they did before the election.

"Before we were elected mayors, we didn't see each other more than once a month," says Maurice. Now they are thrown together at various governmental meetings throughout the area.

The brothers both work at John Deere Waterloo Tractor Works — Maury the second shift, Maurice the third.

Maury says he relies on his brother to give him advice because Maurice is more familiar with city government. Maurice served on the Independence City Council for four years before becoming mayor.

Philosophically, however, the two appear to be miles apart.

"I'm a redneck," says Maurice. "I'm very conservative. My philosophy is that if you need something and can get along without it, don't replace it."

The Independence mayor says he's often accused of being anti-business, but it's not so.

"The guy with the lunch bucket is paying the bills in this country, but I have nothing against the businessman," he says.

Maurice is up for re-election next year, and Independence voters may do well to be aware of some unorthodox, yet winning tactics he's employed in the past.

Just two and a half years ago with the birth of his first son, Pentecost announced the fact over the local radio station, then proceeded to buy some fubs of Kentucky fried chicken, and handed it out to anybody he saw, telling them who he was.

The less talkative Pentecost, Maury, contends he's "more liberal" than his brother and not nearly so controversial.

Maury said he hasn't had the media attention that his brother in Independence has had.

"My only bad experience as mayor, which drew any attention, was to dismiss the police chief," he said.

Speaking of controversy, the Independence mayor, Maurice, currently is embroiled in a campaign to dissolve his city's airport commission.

Maurice said he is aware he is controversial, but "there's no way you can please everybody. If you can satisfy the majority in this job, you can sleep at night."

After high school graduation, Maury went to college and Maurice served in the Navy.

The brothers came to Iowa 18 years ago when they were 26. A pipeline they were working on brought them to Oskaloosa and before long, both were married and living in the communities of Jesup and Independence.

Between the two, the mayors are fathers of seven children. Maury has two girls and a boy. Maurice has two boys and two girls.

So far, neither has twins.

The two left one set of twins behind in Texas, though — their identical twin sisters Lucille and Louise.

Restoration Of Mural Planned

NEW YORK (UPI) — It took four years for artist James Brooks to paint "Flight," his 235-foot-long, 12-foot-high mural at LaGuardia Airport. In the 1960s, it took just a few days for workers to lug stepladders and brushes into the terminal and paint it over in a drab, schoolhouse green.

Undoing the damage will take about a year.

Laurence Rockefeller and DeWitt Wallace, founder of Reader's Digest, have put up matching funds for the $75,000 restoration of the Brooks mural at the Marine Air Terminal building, officials estimate.

Brooks, now 72, worked on the mural at the terminal, which serves private and corporate aircraft, from 1940 to 1944.

The painting depicts in the popular social realism style of the time the history of man's attempt to fly and includes the Greek myth of Daedalus, DaVinci's sketches for flying machines and the Wright brothers.

When the newly formed, bistate Port Authority of New York and New Jersey took over operation of the airport from New York City, four coats of green paint were slapped over the mural as part of a general "clean-up, fix-up" program.

"No one told me they were going to paint it over," Brooks said in a telephone interview. "I heard about it after it happened. A friend flew in to visit me and he asked why my painting had been covered over. It was the first I heard of it."

"When four years of a man's life work is destroyed, it affects him," Brooks said. "It's kind of a criminal thing in a sense not to let him know."

Brooks, who had been hired under the old Depression-era Works Project Administration to paint the mural, said he was uncertain why it had been obscured.

"Nobody cared. It was simply WPA work and that was considered expendable... just make-work," Brooks said.

A Reader's Digest spokesman said Rockefeller and Wallace were splitting half the cost of the restoration project "50-50," with the Port Authority paying the remainder.

The Port Authority is ready to sign a contract with a restorer "within two weeks," a Port Authority spokesman said. He did not want to release the name of the restorer until the contract was signed.

The mural — a fresco secco — is in the circular rotunda of the Art Deco style terminal building. Brooks said he painted the mural on Belgian linen affixed to the wall with white lead and varnish.

A campaign to have the painting restored was launched about a year ago by Geoffrey Arend, publisher of Air Cargo News and Air World Interline News, who had photographs of it displayed in the terminal building. "He felt there'd be a lot of hotshots coming through on their own planes who might be interested in contributing to the restoration," Brooks said.

Brooks would not evaluate the work. "I don't like murals," he said, adding, "My work has become more abstract."

Plastic Gas Tanks Promise Safety, Savings

DETROIT (UPI) — The nation's auto-makers are taking a cautious look at pliable plastic fuel tanks as one way of reducing the danger of fires and explosions in rear-end collisions.

Automotive engineers say tests have shown tanks made of sturdy, moldable plastic can hold up better than metal in a number of hazardous situations. Because they weigh less, they also offer a potential fuel-saving bonus.

But U.S. car makers — concerned that plastic gasoline containers may not go over with the public or with federal safety officials — are hesitant to make the switch.

Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co. for years have equipped some trucks, vans and recreational vehicles with plastic fuel tanks. After the 1974 Arab oil embargo, Ford offered a small, plastic auxiliary tank on some full-size and luxury cars.

But few buyers picked up the option. Reeling from bad publicity surrounding the recall of 1.5 million Pintos because of fuel tank fires, Ford later scrapped plans to put a molded, polyethylene tank in its all-new 1979 Mustang.

"We didn't have the guts to take the risk," Chairman Henry Ford II recently told an interviewer. "In every way we thought it was much better." Ford said. "But we didn't have the courage to put it on our product because we didn't know what the liabilities would be and what the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration would say about it."

Present NHTSA standards — which apply to all cars, trucks and buses under 10,000 pounds — say fuel tanks may not spill more than an ounce of gasoline per minute when rolled over after a rear-end impact of 30 mph.

The standards do not specify what material manufacturers must use for fuel tanks.

"You can use papier mache if you want to as long as it meets the performance standard," one company spokesman said.

A recent report on high density polyethylene gas tanks by Phillips Chemical Co. said tests conducted in the 1960's indicated "plastic tanks were not only as safe as metal tanks but possibly even safer."

It said both metal and plastic tanks, when engulfed in flames, failed in about two minutes. But the metal ones often exploded, scattering their flaming contents, while the plastic tanks melted down and fueled the fire.

In impact tests, water-filled metal tanks ruptured when dropped from a height of 10 feet while plastic tanks withstood drops of 30 feet, the report said.

One auto company spokesman noted that, unlike metal tanks, plastic ones will not generate sparks in a collision or if scraped along a road surface in an accident.

The Phillips report also noted polyethylene tanks weigh 30 to 50 percent less than template steel, adding to the fuel-saving potential.

Spokesmen for the plastics industry say they have high hopes for plastic fuel tanks and other plastic automotive components as the auto companies continue downsizing cars to meet the 1985 fuel economy standard of 27.5 mph.

Automotive designers who are looking for new ways to make more efficient use of vehicle weight and space like the moldability of plastic fuel tanks.

"The advantage is that you can form the tank into whatever shape is necessary to fit the contour of the vehicle — something you can't do as readily with metal," a Ford spokesman said.

"In downsizing, that's pretty important."

Number Of Women On Boards Rises

NEW YORK — (AP) The number of women directors of corporate boards has increased 550 percent in the past 10 years, according to Catalyst, an organization that monitors women's career trends.

In 1969 there were 46 women on Fortune's top 1,300 boards; today there are 275. This figure is out of a total of some 17,000 seats available.

Most women directors are in fields of education, government or communications.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be reasonably safe in taking chances on things or with people you know a lot about. Strangers or new conditions should be treated with caution.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although you may have some clever ideas for changes around the house, you might be better off to attempt them another day. You won't have as much know-how as you think tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you say something tomorrow without thinking that hurts someone's feelings, apologize promptly. The longer the delay, the deeper the wound.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be a little more careful with your possessions tomorrow. This includes your money. People will have a tendency to go back on their word, leaving you with a loss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be sharp tomorrow and will know all the answers. Unfortunately, you'll have a tendency to be unreliable and could disappoint someone depending on you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to make assumptions based upon partial evidence tomorrow. Investigate fully before making accusations. You'll save yourself embarrassment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your overall day should go tolerably well. However, someone might try to use your good humor for personal gain by plying you with flattery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't try to cover up any mistakes tomorrow. Fess up to them and you won't destroy all the good work you've already done.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Popularity will be yours tomorrow until you attempt to seem knowledgeable in something you know little about. It will ruin your good image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The parental instinct will be strong in you tomorrow. You could take care of an obligation for one who really isn't worthy of your good deeds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's not like you to be suspicious without cause, but tomorrow you might misinterpret the motives of one who is trying to be cooperative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Excuses can never replace performance. You'll know what needs to be done and for whom, so put out the required effort to the best of your abilities.

'Hungry Crow' Made By Folding Paper

By SHARI LEWIS

Paper folding is like eating peanuts — once you learn how to make this "Hungry Crow" you want to stop.

Start with a square of paper. Fold the two top corners down toward the center to form a kite shape. Now fold the "kite" in half the long way, so you have a long skinny uneven triangle.

Bend the top point down at a slanted angle, straighten it up, bend it backwards, and straighten it up again. You've made a slanting crease.

With your right hand, pinch the center fold right below this slanting crease. Grasp the very top point between thumb and pointer finger of your left hand, with the thumb on top, resting on the center crease. Pull down until that center crease reverses itself and becomes a valley between your two hands. With your left hand, sharpen all these new creases.

Now you've a crow — balance him on his nose and two chest points. Tap his tail and he'll peck at tiny balls of paper.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: (This was sent in by Nora Gibson of Sleepy Hollow, Calif.) Mrs. Fumblefinger was working in the kitchen when a loose ring with a big diamond on it slipped off her finger and fell smack into some coffee. Strange to say, the diamond did not get wet. Why? # State Battling To Keep TVA

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Because of a federal court ruling, the huge Tennessee Valley Authority may have to relocate its headquarters to Muscle Shoals, Ala., a move that could have an enormous economic impact not only for the two states but also for the American taxpayer.

A federal court judge in Alabama ruled recently that TVA must move its principal offices from Knoxville to Muscle Shoals, a town of about 7,000 people on the Tennessee River in the northern part of Alabama. The judge based his ruling on the congressional act that created the nation's largest public utility.

TVA, which provides electricity for some 25 million customers in seven southeastern states, is appealing the Jan. 25 decision by District Judge Frank McFadden of Birmingham, Ala. In the meantime, Tennessee politicians have joined in a bipartisan campaign to hold onto TVA, one of the state's largest employers which also pays millions of dollars annually in rent and in lieu of tax payments.

"I will do everything I can to make sure TVA stays in this state and doesn't get stolen by Alabama," Gov. Lamar Alexander said, epitomizing the attitude of many Tennesseans.

"I think it's a ridiculous idea. I can't imagine anything sillier than moving TVA," he said.

Alexander has asked state Attorney General William Leech to intervene in the case. And with the support of the entire Tennessee congressional delegation, Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., has introduced legislation to keep TVA in Knoxville if the issue is not resolved in the courts.

Former Alabama Attorney General William Baxley believes TVA should have been headquartered in Muscle Shoals from the time it was created by an act of Congress. Baxley said wording in the TVA Act of 1933 leaves no doubt that TVA belongs in his state, not Tennessee.

An unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate a year ago, Baxley sued the government a year before that to have TVA relocated in Muscle Shoals.

"This is one of the cases in which I had a deep personal interest because I felt TVA was wrong all along, that those jobs should have been Alabama jobs," Baxley said.

In the TVA Act of 1933, Congress mandated that TVA's "principal offices" would be located in Muscle Shoals, the agency's first place of business.

But TVA gradually began operating principally from Knoxville after building its first dam near the small town of Norris, about 40 miles north of Knoxville.

Lew Wallace, TVA deputy general counsel, says TVA interpreted the congressional act to mean the agency must have a Muscle Shoals address "for legal purposes only."

"It's like the 'Delaware Corporation' concept," Wallace said. "Many American companies are incorporated there because Delaware's laws are favorable, but most of them conduct the bulk of their business elsewhere."

"We have a Muscle Shoals complex, but Knoxville is where we conduct most of our business because it's a central location and it's more convenient," he said.

"Tennessee has had it (TVA headquarters) for about 50 years, and it wouldn't hurt Alabama to have it for another 50 years," Alabama Gov. Fob James said when asked his opinion of the furor.

McFadden acknowledged that "there is some authority" for TVA's argument. But he acknowledged that three members of a congressional committee assigned to study the TVA Act in 1938 determined that the agency's Knoxville headquarters was "a palpable violation of this mandatory provision of the TVA Act."

TVA has filed notice of its appeal in the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. No date for a hearing has been set.

TVA Chairman David Freeman said after a TVA Board of Directors meeting Jan. 31, "I made it clear at my confirmation hearings that I thought Knoxville the proper TVA headquarters."

Many TVA observers believe the agency can win on appeal because, they say, McFadden's ruling would cost too much and would disrupt the Knoxville area economy.

TVA's recent court battles have ended

Entertainers Most Admired By Teens

NEW YORK (AP) — Entertainers came out on top in a recent poll conducted by Seventeen magazine to determine the men and women most admired by teen-agers. Top billing among women went to Barbra Streisand, Carol Burnett, Olivia Newton-John and Kate Jackson. Leaders among the men were Bob Hope, John Travolta, Robert Redford and Burt Reynolds.

In a survey five years ago of the most admired women, the top four spots went to two sports personalities — Billy Jean King and Olga Korbut — political figure Golda Meir and entertainer Mary Tyler Moore.

Fortunes Come, Go For Packard Dealer

UHRICHSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — There is something incongruous in the slight figure of George Chrest sliding from underneath a car in his repair shop behind the Packard Sales and Service sign.

It's the black suit, blue silk shirt and flowered tie he wears in or under the ears that are his life blood.

Yes, he says, there aren't many Packard dealers left, and yes, he's still got two in his showroom window.

It doesn't matter that the last one was made nearly a quarter-century ago. To Chrest, they are the cars for kings, presidents and potentates. He caresses the top of a 1955 Clipper two-door, white over pink with 45,963 miles on the odometer. He grins broadly while opening the driver's door of a 1947 Clipper Super 8 because it is for sale. It sold new for about $4,300. After 32 years and 73,000 miles, the price is $15,000.

Chrest drives both of them on special occasions. For everyday, he uses a 5-year-old Chrysler.

His Packards are parked in the shade of a rubber plant, rooted in the corner of a showroom windowbox. The plant's oblong leaves dangle from limbs tied to the ceiling over the cars.

How old is this little man who came from Lesvos, an island off Yugoslavia, in 1898 to encourage his older brother back home?

"I had to go back to Greece in 1976 to find out. It was my first trip back," he says, then whispers across the back of his hand. "I'm 83."

"I came to get my brother in 1912 but he wanted to stay. He worked in a stove factory and so did I. In the summer it closed and we came here and started a grocery store. We sold it and I bought a theater. I was 18 years old and had $18,000, my first fortune."

He lost it in an Oldsmobile dealership.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Monday Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1979 with 329 to follow.
The moon is moving from its first quarter toward a full moon.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.
The evening star is Jupiter.
Those born on this date are under the sign on Aquarius.

Merwin Wins Poetry Prize

NEW YORK (AP)—W. S. Merwin has been awarded the 1979 Bollingen Prize in Poetry.
The prize carries a stipend of $5,000. Merwin received the Pulitzer Prize in Poetry in 1972, and in 1974 he was awarded the Fellowship of the Academy of American Poets.
His most recent collection was "The Compass Flower," published in 1977 by Atheneum.

American evangelist Dwight Moody was born Feb. 5, 1838.
On this day in history:
In 1631, British clergyman Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.
In 1904, Russia and Japan broke off diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

In 1937, a bitter controversy began when President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent proposals to Congress to reorganize the federal judiciary, particularly the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1971, American astronauts Alan Shepard and Edward Mitchell of Apollo 14 walked on the moon for four hours.

A thought for the day:
German author Thomas Mann said, "A man's dying is more the survivors' affair than his own."

Aspin Says Military Should Reconsider

WASHINGTON (AP)—The military services should consider lowering, not raising, their intelligence standards for recruits, Rep. Les Aspin says.
Aspin, a Wisconsin Democrat, said Sunday in recent years none of the four services filled its quota for people of lower intelligence.

THE CAPITOL Solon Finds Seats For Reporters

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Congress was the brand new 96th, but the setting brought back memories of the energy battles of the 96th.

There was Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger puffing on his pipe and preparing to testify before the Senate Energy Committee headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

A year ago Schlesinger was plying votes for the president's energy package, and spending more time on Capitol Hill than in his office.

Here he was, back again, with a new Congress in session. The subject was disruptions in the flow of oil from Iran.

Apparently no one realized what a drawing card Schlesinger was. The room was packed. Every seat was taken. Many reporters were squeezed against walls, notebooks and pens ready.

Jackson arrived and was about to start reading his opening statement when he surveyed the crowd and asked, "How many media people can't find seats?"

About 20 hands shot up.

Jackson motioned some reporters to vacant seats at the committee table.

Then he surveyed the room again and began directing others to seats.

"You, sit over here. ... And you young ones over there, move here in front of me and sit on the floor. This is just for accredited news people, you understand. ... You, against the wall, there's still some room up front."

Then, after asking, "Does everyone have a seat?" Jackson sat down and read his statement.

Call Me Bill

"Call me Bill ... Call me Howard ... Call me Max ... Call me Birch."

What do you call members of the Senate if you don't want to call them "Senator?"

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., being new to the United States Senate wondered what to call her colleagues, so she checked with their offices.

"Does the senator have a preferred nickname?" an aide asked.

Unfortunately, the results were as lively as last year's filibuster.

Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., said, "Call me Bill." Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said, "Call me Howard." Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., "Call me Max," and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., "Call me Birch."

And so it went, with few exceptions. "Call me Howell," said Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala. "Call me Gaylord," said Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

The exceptions to the dull rule were Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who likes "Fritz"; Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., who uses "Dee"; Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who is called "Scoop"; and Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., who likes "Maggie."

Dates To Watch For

Some dates to watch for in 1979, if you are interested in Senate trivia:

On March 3, Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., will have served in the Senate 33 years, 11 months and 25 days, moving him past George Aiken, now retired as senator from Vermont, into 10th place on the all-time longevity list.

On April 8, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., will move into 18th place.

On Aug. 29, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., will take over 15th place.

And on Oct. 9, Sen. Warren Magnuson will move into eighth place.

Long now has served in the Senate 30 years. Since he's only 58, he has a good chance of eclipsing the all-time record of 41 years and 10 months set by Carl T. Hayden, D-Ariz. Long entered the Senate at the constitutional minimum age of 30. Two other senators who did the same are Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Joseph Biden Jr., D-Del.

Oldest Senator 300?

On the subject of longevity, Milton Young, at 81, is the oldest senator, unless you believe the Congressional Pictorial Directory.

According to that official publication, which tells the dates senators took office, Sen. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., entered the Senate on Sept. 16, 1871.

More reliable records indicate that Stafford is less than 300 years old and that he entered the Senate in 1971.

Opera Awards Presented

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The National Opera Institute recently presented its 1979 Awards for Service to American Opera at a gathering here.

The awards are "designed to focus public attention on the achievements of those who make outstanding contributions to the excellence of opera in the United States."

The Santa Fe Opera (John O. Crosby, general director) received the Award for Outstanding Service to Young Artists.

The Seattle Opera (Glynn Ross, general director) received the Award for Outstanding Community Service.

The Minnesota Opera Company (Charles C. Fuller, general director) was given the Award for Creation of New American Works.

Alberta Masiello received the Award for Professional Excellence, and a special award was given Lila Acheson Wallace as "a dedicated friend of the art and artists of opera who has nourished beauty and excellence during a lifetime of enlightened and selfless philanthropy."

Reports Show Viets Aided By American Deserters

WASHINGTON (AP) — A previously secret intelligence report indicates some American servicemen, including a black-white team nicknamed "Salt and Pepper," probably stayed in Vietnam and collaborated with communist forces after the U.S. withdrawal.

can prisoners of war after the general 1973 "Operation Homecoming" release, but said, "There does not appear to be any validity to reports that U.S. POWs were alive in South Vietnam between the time of the last released Americans ... and the fall of South Vietnam" in April 1975.

information were blotted out before the recent release of the 15 volumes. "Virtually all reporting on American collaborators and deserters is impossible to assess with unequivocal confidence," the report said.

at any one time," the report said. It noted that "through the years there have been persistent reports of two Americans, one Caucasian and one Negro, working with communist forces in Military Region I (the northernmost provinces of South Vietnam)."

"However, a Popular Forces (militia) platoon leader told a South Vietnamese official that in August 1974 an outpost in an area east of Quang Ngai City manned by members of his unit was attacked by enemy troops under the command control of a Caucasian and a Negro American. Both Americans spoke Vietnamese and English."

The U.S. intelligence investigators, a South Vietnamese bus driver stated that in May 1974 "three Negro Americans and three enemy troops stopped his bus at gunpoint on a main highway in Quang Ngai Province and attempted to obtain drugs."

Battle Over Taiwan Brews In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will reject any congressional resolution on the security of Taiwan if it conflicts with the new policy toward mainland China, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said today.

consistent with the normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China," Christopher told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

El Pasoan Pledges To Block Clayton

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the House Mexican-American caucus has vowed to block House Speaker Billy Clayton's election to any statewide office in 1982.

Opening a campaign to obtain congressional approval of the new China policy, Christopher was questioned harshly by committee members skeptical of assurances that the normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China would make a peaceful resolution of its historical differences with Taiwan.

Christopher said jeopardizing that agreement "would be a very difficult and delicate undertaking." The State Department official pledged that the United States will continue to have firm economic ties to sell defensive weapons to the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

The farmers are seeking full implementation of legislation passed last year which would allow price guarantees at 90 percent of parity. Full parity would theoretically give farmers the buying power they enjoyed in the early part of the century.

AUSTIN (AP) — Pat Smith of the Texas Farm Bureau said today his organization supports a bill giving farmers a tax break, but they would like an even bigger break.

Christopher said the picture is not now capable of mounting a successful combined air and sea invasion of Taiwan. He said the principal military worries of the Peking government are forces of the Soviet Union arrayed across China's northern border plus the Soviet-backed Vietnamese government to the south.

But he also said in an interview that farmers in some regions are having trouble, that some only recently have come through severe drought, that recent better times have not made much of a dent in huge debts incurred earlier.

Similar measures have been considered for the last four years and have passed the Senate twice. Both proposals — by Sens. Tom Crighton of Mineral Wells and Bob Price of Pampa — suggest a capitalization rate of 10 percent or 2 percent greater than the average variable interest rate specified by the Federal Land Bank of Houston, whichever figure is larger.

Avid Reader Put In Jail

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — A diverse reader who once had 137 library books out at one time has become the first man in El Paso County to serve a jail term for refusing to return overdue books.

Woodley Cassell, 27, of Colorado Springs, entered El Paso County Jail Friday to serve a 90-day term after failing to comply with a court order that he pay for 45 books he did not return.

These are "impossible times" for farmers in such circumstances, he said. It's also tough for farmers, particularly younger families, who bought additional land or new machinery a few years ago when wheat was much higher in price.

Gold For Fuel Keeps South Africa Running

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South African promises of gold for oil are reportedly keeping open vital supplies cut this month by the country's traditional oil supplier, Iran.

South African salesmen-diplomats have been conferring secretly with oil producing nations and multinational marketing giants in a bid to replace 90 percent of the fuel imports previously supplied by Iran.

And, according to government and industry sources, South Africa has averted an immediate fuel crisis by securing guarantees of oil shipments from undisclosed sources — among them virulent critics of the white minority government's race segregationist policies.

Officially, the government refuses to say where its oil is flowing from. But Western diplomats here believe that gold-for-fuel deals were struck with Saudi Arabia and other conservative Middle East states "at a high premium."

South Africa produces more than two thirds of the world's gold.

The replacement oil supplies come at higher than world prices.

Still, a special government commission set up this month to recommend ways of saving fuel and seeking fresh supplies seems likely to fall short of recommending fuel rationing.

Instead, according to industry sources, the commission is expected to urge voluntary conservation through reduced gas station hours, speed limits and industrial switches to other energy sources.

"Rationing would be a blow to morale, already at a low ebb," a South African newspaper editor who would not be identified said. He was referring to United Nations threats to impose economic boycotts on Africa's richest and most industrialized nation.

Such boycotts would inevitably include oil.

ring to producers and marketing multinationals that might sell to the highest bidders.

Meanwhile, South Africa has stepped up its so-far fruitless search for offshore oil, hiring a second rig from the North Sea fields.

Figures for imports, reserves and expenditures for fuel are kept secret, but authoritative estimates of imports range from 350,000 to 400,000 barrels per day, at a total annual cost of $1.5 to $2.2 billion a year. South Africa is also known to have at least 18 months' worth of reserves stored in played-out mines.

But the country produces only about 10 percent of its oil needs — fuel converted from coal at a state-owned plant near Johannesburg.

Now the government plans two more such plants, and experts say that such plants can produce a third of the country's needs by 1984.

South African leaders are not so much worried that they won't be able to maintain supplies from abroad, as they are concerned that the cost will cause a balance of payments surplus, making the economy.

But many South Africans see a point out that any major oil crisis would bring suffering to more people than the 2 million whites who wield political power over the voteless 19 million blacks.

They say critical shortages would disrupt foreign-owned businesses and industries, toss hundreds of thousands of South African blacks and migrant black workers from poor neighboring countries out of jobs, and damage the economies of landlocked Botswana, Lesotho, Swaziland, and Zambia, which rely on South Africa for fuel shipments.

"If we come under pressure," one oil company executive said, "we'd be fools not to pass those pressures onto client states."

British Auto Workers Vote To Close Plant

LONDON (UPI) — Union officials representing 100,000 manual workers in Britain's huge state-run Leyland automobile company voted overwhelmingly today for an all-out strike, meaning a nationwide shutdown for the automaker.

The company, which has one of the worst strike records in a strike-prone nation, is among Britain's biggest exporters and dollar earners.

The walkout call followed a company announcement that because of strikes and other disruptions it does not have the money to make special payments worth up to $20 weekly to most of its manual workers.

The agreement, dating back to August 1977, called for so-called "pay parity" arrangements designed to iron out pay anomalies among hourly paid workers in Leyland's 36 plants by November of this year.

But this depended on continued production and an end to walkouts and disruptions. The company said last week production was disrupted in November and December, so it does not have the money to make the payments for those months.

Meanwhile, public service unions called off a scheduled walkout by 2,000 porters, cooks and cleaners that would have shut down 17 London hospitals indefinitely.

Social Services Secretary David Ennals said the unions cancelled the order to 2,000 hospital workers to walk off the job this morning in an all-out strike that would have forced the 17 hospitals to close their doors.

Ennals said he is ready to meet with all four public service unions to discuss not only pay demands, but alleged breaches of a so-called "code of conduct" drawn up by the unions to ease the problems of strikebound hospitals.

Iowa has large coal and oil reserves and highly developed air, rail and water transportation facilities.

Bhutto Fate Remains In Hands Of Pakistani Supreme Court

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — The Pakistani Supreme Court may rule this week whether former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto must die on the gallows, bringing another turning point in the Moslem nation's turbulent history.

Bhutto, the flamboyant, 51-year-old politician who ruled the country of 75 million for most of the 1970s, has been waiting for months in the Rawalpindi Central Jail while the Supreme Court decides on his appeal against a murder conviction and death sentence.

His supporters have threatened massive demonstrations if the death sentence is confirmed, and the military government has rounded up 400 to 500 workers for his People's Party. A thousand ranking members of the party have been in "preventive detention" since late last year.

Bhutto continues to enjoy much support among the masses. Most peasants and workers did not follow the long, complicated trial in which he was convicted of ordering a political opponent killed. Nor have they waded through a recent series of government white papers portraying the 1971-77 Bhutto regime as one of tyranny, corruption, crooked elections and waste.

Bhutto's disputed re-election. The Lahore High Court convicted the political leader and four others of conspiring in 1974 to murder Ahmed Raza Kasuri, a former aide who Bhutto accused of turning against him in a dispute over the loss of East Pakistan, now Bangladesh. Kasuri escaped an ambush by the federal security force but his father was killed.

The supreme court can uphold the conviction and death sentence, reduce the sentence, order a retrial or acquit any or all of the five.

If the death sentence is confirmed, Bhutto and the other defendants would have eight days to petition for clemency. But Gen. Zia, who now is president of the country, has said publicly he would not change the ruling of the Supreme Court.

Activists Claim Support

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Leftist priests advocating militant church action to alleviate poverty and political repression in Latin America claim a third of the region's bishops at a policy conference here side with them despite Pope John Paul II's opposition to political action.

The rebels fear the third decennial conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Latin America will "take a step backward" and endorse prayer over militancy as the means of aiding the workers and peasants of Latin America.

"You can't fight poverty with words; you have to have action as well, and almost a third of the 150 delegates agree on this issue," said a spokesman for the activists, Xavier Gorostiaga, a Panamanian Jesuit.

The rebel priests are holding their own counter-conference in Puebla and are lobbying the bishops directly in a bid to "alter the conclusions" of their conference, convened to map the future policy of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America.

Pope John Paul, who opened the bishops' conference last week, told the prelates to dissociate the church from political activism in Latin America "because you are not politicians." He said they should foster change by teaching men to apply the gospels to life.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the people are with Bhutto. Even if they shoot us, we will continue to struggle," said Agha Mohammed Akhtar, a Rawalpindi shopkeeper and minor worker in Bhutto's party who says the military government gave him 10 lashes for shouting anti-government, pro-Bhutto slogans last March 18, the day his hero was convicted.

"If he is given death," Akhtar continued, "Pakistan will be converted into another Iran. There will be so much agitation, Pakistan will have a revolution."

Government officials disagree. They claim that if Bhutto's forces still had the strength for large-scale agitation, they would have used it during the months the Supreme Court was rehearing the murder case and writing its decision.

Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, the army chief of staff, ousted Bhutto in July 1977 after nationwide violence because of Friendly governments in Washington, Peking, Europe and the Moslem world reportedly fear that if Bhutto is hanged, it will open another period of extreme instability in Pakistan. There is speculation that Saudi Arabia, the United States and some West European countries are using the leverage they possess because the government needs their help with its serious debt problem.

Many of Zia's officials contend that Bhutto alive, inside or outside of Pakistan, will be more of a threat to the stability of the country than Bhutto dead. They also point out that Islamic law, which Pakistan is adopting in stages, is very emphatic that punishment must apply equally to the high and the low.

Kasuri, the man Bhutto was convicted of trying to get killed, says there will be agitation if the Supreme Court does not uphold the death sentence. The thousands whose demonstrations against Bhutto in 1977 resulted in the army's seizing power "still live in Pakistan," he told a reporter.

Huey Fong Captain Taken Into Custody

HONG KONG (UPI) — The captain of the refugee ship Huey Fong was denied bail and taken into custody today on charges that his human cargo of more than 3,000 Vietnamese refugees violated government shipping laws.

The prosecuting attorney asked the magistrate to hold Hsu Wen-hsien, 52, the captain of the Panamanian-registered ship, without bail until evidence could be found to support "another more serious charge not only against him but against other persons."

The prosecutor did not elaborate, but the governments of Australia and Malaysia have alleged that Hsu was linked to a scheme involving payment of huge quantities of gold by those desiring to get out of Vietnam.

As Hsu was charged with "being master of a vessel having on board passengers in excess of the number allowed," authorities searched his ship for evidence the refugees paid their way out of Vietnam with gold.

The 3,900-ton Huey Fong appeared outside Hong Kong on Dec. 23 with 3,383 refugees, including 1,352 children. The government refused to allow the ship to offload the refugees on grounds the influx of Vietnamese refugees was overtaking Hong Kong's facilities.

For 28 days the ship lay at anchor outside Hong Kong territorial waters. The government finally began allowing the refugees ashore on Jan. 20, housing them in an old Royal Air Force barracks.

Hsu was impassive during the hearing to determine whether his case will be heard by a jury or a magistrate.

He faces up to four years in prison, a $40,000 fine and confiscation of his vessel.

Police reportedly have detained six Chinese who were among the refugees in connection with the investigation.

Legislation limiting the number of passengers aboard freighters was passed by the government to discourage further refugee-laden ships from landing in Hong Kong.

Hsu's attorney, Susan Liang, said she will appeal the court's decision denying the captain bail.

Surrogate Mother

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I was watching the Mike Douglas show and heard a discussion on surrogate mothers. Mike Douglas interviewed a couple and the wife then became the surrogate mother. As I understood it, the sperm cells from the husband were used to cause the other woman to get pregnant. She bore the child, and then the child belonged to the married couple.
 My question is, whose child is this really? I mean, won't the child be half like the mother who gave birth to it rather than half like the mother who raised it?

DEAR READER — Yes, you're right. Genetics isn't very much concerned with social arrangements. A child born because of the union of an egg (ovum) and sperm cell has the genetic characteristics of the woman who produced the ovum and the father who produced the sperm cell. It doesn't matter whether this union induced in a test tube by artificial insemination or by the natural sex act. The end result, genetically, is the same.

After that, it doesn't matter if the child is adopted by entirely different parents or who raises the child; it will have no real influence on the genetic origins of the child.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 22-year-old son has recently been diagnosed as having mononucleosis. Can you tell me something about it? What is it and what causes it? How does it affect the body? Is there a cure? What is the treatment?

We have always considered this young man to be in good physical condition. His favorite forms of exercise are hiking, water and snow skiing, and karate. He neither smokes nor drinks, but he has had his share of common colds. Any help you can give will be very much appreciated.

DEAR READER — Infectious mononucleosis is caused by a virus and commonly affects young, healthy people. You shouldn't take it as an indication that your son isn't basically in good health. The symptoms include a severe sore throat, fever and enlarged lymph nodes. The spleen, which in some ways is a very large lymph gland just underneath the left margin of the ribs, may enlarge and become tender.

Your son should avoid athletics and physical activity, particularly contact sports, until he has recovered completely. Why? Because the spleen is more likely to rupture with a mild injury. Once he is over the acute illness, he doesn't need to worry about that either.

Readers who want The Health Letter number 3-2, Colds and Flu Group, Prevention and Treatment, can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your requests to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Ford Changing Transmission Design To Correct Slipping

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is changing its automatic transmission design to correct a gear slipping condition that federal authorities say may have figured in at least 23 deaths since 1970.

Ford vehicle safety personnel told the Detroit Free Press they still believe driver error, rather than mechanical flaws, is responsible for transmissions slipping from park to reverse without warning.

The No. 2 automaker said that all of its automatic transmissions in the 1980 model year "will make transmission shift lever placements between park and reverse somewhat more difficult," the Free Press reported.

The Ford decision came as the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration was investigating 9 million 1970-through-1978 Ford, Lincoln and Mercury cars and light trucks because of car owners' charges that the automatic transmission changes gear on its own.

The investigation could provoke the auto industry's largest recall. The biggest was a recall of 6.7 million General Motor cars in 1971.

According to the NHTSA, alleged Ford transmission failures have been linked with 777 accidents involving 259 injuries and 23 deaths.

Most of the accidents occurred when the vehicles were left unattended with the engine running and the transmission shift lever apparently in the park position.

The cars then moved backward on their own, sometimes running over their owners, investigators said.

Ford officials confirmed that such transmission accidents have been a concern to the company since 1971.

Suggestions have been offered through the years for changes in the transmission shifting apparatus, but Ford said none were adopted because its engineers concluded none would be much of an improvement over designs in use.

Ford questioned government statistics indicating the problem is more common among Ford owners than in competitors' cars. It said publicity about the campaign has caused more complaints about Ford products to surface.

"We are not really saying there's no cause for concern," said Lee Carr, a Ford engineering associate, who has been working on the problem.

"We are working on these (1980 changes) because we realize that people make that mistake," he said. "And that is not a very good penalty to pay for a mistake like that, to be injured."

John Eckhold, director of Ford's automotive safety office, said, "We are saying that the 1980 changes are in the right direction... but whether or not that is the answer to what has been happening in the field, we don't know."

Atomic Tests Blamed For Low Test Scores

Tech Loan Default Rate Below Norm

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
 Avalanche-Journal Staff
 About one of every 10 Texas Tech students who has financed a college education with money from a controversial national loan program has failed to repay the loan, according to government figures.
 Still, that is barely half the national and state default rate on the National Direct Student Loans.
 Nationwide, the default rate has risen to 17.7 percent, while the Texas default rate is even higher, at 19.72 percent. Tech's rate of 11.2 percent falls below either of those averages, but still it is higher than fiscal experts in Washington think is appropriate.
 Ronny Barnes, Tech financial aid director, acknowledges the past three presidential administrations have recommended that the federal government pull out of the 20-year-old NDSL program. But he doesn't believe the situation warrants such drastic measures.

 Barnes said both the local and national figures are misleading and added, "The default rate is not as bad as people would lead you to think."
 Among the people Barnes refers to are those in the Carter administration who say that because of the continuously increasing default rate Congress should either slash the program's funds or eliminate the program entirely.
 Congress has refused such administrative requests in the past.
 The latest threat to the program came last week when Joseph A. Califano Jr., Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, vowed that the federal government will try to cut off the federal share of college's loan funds if they fail to meet "government performance standards" for reducing their default rates.
 Although such a policy is proposed to take effect in the 1980-81 academic year, Tech's financial aid director is not worried that it will affect the university next year.
 "Those performance standards have not been set yet," Barnes said, adding that bureaucratic red tape will delay such a policy until after the 1980-81 year begins.

amount that borrowers are past due in paying — not their entire loan debt — Tech has 465 loans overdue, totaling $154,000. That figure amounts to 5 percent rate, rather than the HEW figure of 11.2 percent for Tech.
 The loan program is set up on a nine-to-one matching system, with the federal government supplying 90 percent of the loan money and colleges and universities supplying 10 percent. It was designed to be a revolving fund, with the schools using loan payments from graduates or ex-students to finance new loans.
 Since 1976, the Tech program has worked on the revolving plan because loan payments have been high enough to meet the demand for new loans.
 Barnes said the make-up of Tech's student body is why the school fares better on loan payments than some other schools do.

"They're good about meeting financial obligations," he explained. "So we haven't experienced the problems a lot of schools have had with defaults."
 Prior to October, 1976, when Tech began using an outside collection agency, the default rate was higher than it is now. George Sanderson, collections director at Tech, said the agency's fees have been as high as 15 percent at one time.

Tech turned over 609 defaulted loans totaling $432,000 to the collection agency two years ago. Since then the agency has collected $231,000 of that debt at no cost to Tech. The agency's fees are paid by the borrowers who defaulted.
 Of Tech's total enrollment, 22 percent receives some type of financial aid, including loans, grants and scholarships. Of that figure, 13 percent receive aid under "financially needy" standards. That includes such programs as NDSL and the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, which has strict application requirements.

GRAFFITI McCrory Lives In Fear

GRAFFITI

THERE'S A NEW REDUCING BELT -- YOU TIE IT AROUND YOUR REFRIGERATOR

DALLAS (AP) — David McCrory, the state's key witness in the Cullen Davis murder-for-hire trial, said he is a prisoner in the solitude of his own fear.
 McCrory, 40, exchanged his testimony for federal protection, relocation and a new identity under terms of the Federal Witness Protection program.
 "The price has been too damned high," McCrory told the Dallas Times Herald in a telephone interview.
 Davis is free on $30,000 bond after jurors in his murder solicitation trial in Houston failed to reach a verdict.

 But McCrory said he is confined by his fear and restricted to his new hometown by provisions of the witness protection program.
 "All I try to do is stay alive," said McCrory, who added he inspects his car each time he gets in it, checking under the hood before trips to the grocery store.
 "I'm constantly looking over my shoulder," the former Davis employee said.
 "I know he'll (Davis) try to have me killed sooner or later. Somebody with that kind of money can buy information to find where I am. Sooner or later somebody will make a mistake. I have to stay hid real well."

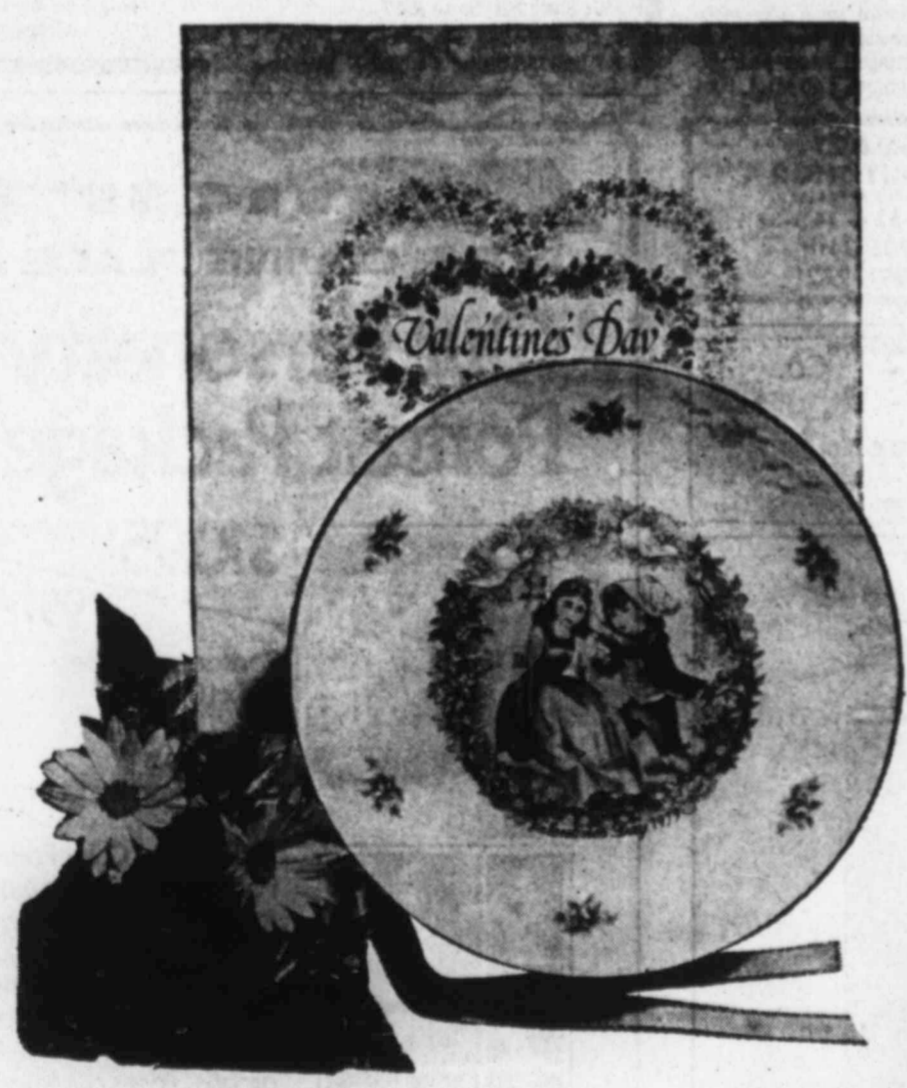

Davis' defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said McCrory's allegations that Davis has spent $100,000 looking for him are "absolutely, unequivocally wrong."
 "We've not spent one dime looking for him," said Haynes.
 "I just feel sorry for the folks of the community in which he is residing."
 McCrory branded the Houston mistrial as absurd. But said "Haynes may be the most brilliant person I have ever met."
 "I can understand the jurors not believing me. I think he (Haynes) could put anyone on the stand in the country and make the jury believe what he wants them to believe. Their (defense) case was nothing but a pack of lies."

The 1979 Valentine's Day Plate by Royal Doulton

Inspired by a Victorian valentine, this sentimental summer flirtation on a garden swing makes a beautiful scene for the fourth plate in the Royal Doulton Valentine's Day series. On dazzling white bone china embossed with hearts and flowers and trimmed with a band of pure gold ... it bears a verse for lovers on the plate back. Eight inches in diameter, handsomely gift boxed. $29.95.

For the most romantic of moments there is candlelight. An appropriate way to say "I love you" is to give a symbolic Valentine candle in a glass. When lit, the Valentine message is projected on the outside. Dim the lights and let the candlelight take over. 5.50 and 7.50.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the woman who was asked in a job interview if she planned to have a baby in the future: It is unlawful for a job interviewer to ask that question. The following are some do's and don'ts for questions during employment interviews. Bear in mind that some questions may not be asked prior to hiring because the law forbids them. Other questions, while not forbidden by law, might later be the basis for legal action. Questions that should not be asked: What is your age? What is your date of birth? Do you have children? If so, how old are they? What is your race? What church do you attend? Are you married, divorced, separated, widowed or single? Have you ever been arrested? What kind of military discharge do you have? What clubs or organizations do you belong to? Do you rent or own your own home? What does your wife (husband) do? Who lives in your household? Have your wages ever been attached or garnished? What was your maiden name (in interviews with female applicants)? Questions that may be asked? How many years experience do you have? (To a housewife) Why do you want to return to work?

What are your career goals?
Who have been your prior employers?
Why did you leave your previous job?
Are you a veteran? Did the military provide you with job related experience?
If you have no phone, where can we reach you?
What languages do you speak fluently?
Can you do extensive traveling?
Who recommended you to us?
What did you like, or dislike, about your previous jobs?
What is your educational background?

What schools did you attend?
What do you think are your strong points? Weaknesses?
Do you have any objection if we check with your former employer for references?
Abby, please print this. I am sure many of your readers will find it helpful.

Dear Joan: Thanks for a letter that is helpful not only to my readers — but also to this writer.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

For dieters, 15 ways to avoid hunger:
1. Eat twice as often, half as much ... six mini meals instead of three squares! If your next real meal is never more than a few hours away, you'll be less tempted to dip into the cookie jar or snitch a candy bar. What's more, there's growing evidence that a body steadily fueled with food is more likely to turn that fuel into action instead of fat. Lab animals which are once-a-day diners fatten up on fewer calories than all-day nibblers.
2. Don't skip breakfast, but do eat lightly: preferably a high-protein or whole-grain cereal with skim milk and fruit. A light calorie investment in the morning pays big energy dividends and can save you calories in the long run. Without breakfast, you'll probably succumb to a pastry break or glutton's lunch later on.
3. Don't chew gum. The chewing action starts you salivating ... and turns on your appetite's "ready" switch.
4. Think you're hungry? Have a drink ... of water. Liquids help fill you up, at least temporarily.
5. Outta sight! Food, that is. Keep it covered. Hidden Away. Behind cabinet doors. In covered containers. Under wraps. Choose foil or wax paper over see-through plastic, lidded ceramic or metal bowls instead of glass.
6. Avoid "food pornography" ... those luscious color photos so real that the cheese seems to be melting off the page. Wait until immediately after dinner to begin leafing through the pages of this month's magazine.
7. Don't talk about it! If somebody wants to tell you about a great new restaurant or recipe, change the subject. Talk about something safe: sex, politics, religion, anything!
8. Shop at the supermarket immediately AFTER breakfast or lunch, not just before dinner when your will is weakest. Merely looking at labels can make you hungry.
9. Start each meal with soup or salad ... something calorie-light that takes a while to eat, and takes the edge off your appetite.
10. Don't eat and run. Take your time. If you eat too quickly, you'll pack away more calories than you really want or need. Give your "hunger gauge" a chance to register "full."
11. Avoid "psychic starvation" ... pay attention to what you're eating. Don't read, watch television, argue, negotiate, gossip or balance your checkbook at the same time you're supposed to be enjoying a meal. If you focus your attention on other matters, the fact that you've eaten might not really register.
12. Make food memorable: with spices and herbs, seasonings that heighten the flavor of lean, low-calorie foods. If your food is forgettable, it's easy to imagine that you're still hungry.
13. Eat filling foods — those high in bulk and fiber. Salads, whole grains, bell peppers, celery, cabbage, berries, apples and oranges, take a while to eat and make fewer calories seem like more. Lean proteins are slowly digested: skim milk, low-fat cottage cheese, plain yogurt, eggs, fat-trimmed lean meat, poultry and fish. (Fat is slowly digested, too, but the calories are more than double ... so avoid fats and fatty foods.)
14. Avoid sugar and anything that contains it in large amounts. Sugar provides a quick jolt of clammy-palmed, nervous energy that seems to allay hunger, but it's quickly followed by a ravenous bout of rebound hunger that requires another "fix." The natural fructose found in fruit is different from refined sugar; it's absorbed more slowly. And the natural fibers and pectins found in fruit contribute to a satisfied feeling.
15. Still hungry? Do something! If you're hungry before it's time to be hungry, you're not hungry: You're bored. Get up, take a walk, make love, call a friend, straighten out your sock drawer, wax the car or inquire about the plane fare to Tahiti.

Business & Industrial Review

Lubbock Greeter Service Seen Aid To Resident, Firms Alike

"Did you realize just how very much the services of Lubbock Greeter Service can work for you, benefitting you as a newcomer, as a business, as a church, other organization, etc.?"
Lubbock would seem most fortunate in having readily available the unique services of the home-owned and home-operated Lubbock Greeter Service, phone 797-2461.
Lubbock Greeter Service helps in a most memorable way in introduction of merchant and newcomer, making it real fun and informative to be such a newcomer.
"No one else provides the extensive family profile information that is a part of the function of the service. This profile can be secured on a subscription basis for weekly receipt. It is a great way to become acquainted, for utilization by individual, business or church, as example."
Newcomers Benefit
Newcomers are invited to get in touch with Lubbock Greeter Service for a valuable gift package and other aids.
"Baby Buggy" Popular, Factual
One of the very popular phases of the service's function is publication of the "Baby Buggy," a factual profile bi-weekly publication that prides in elimination of errors often found in reports of names, locations, etc. Lubbock Greeter Service representatives visit in excess of 100 new baby families each month to secure and coordinate information. The Baby Buggy is available on a subscription basis.

Welcoming newcomers to Lubbock in a most effective, practical and "remembered" way, the Lubbock Greeter Service is not a franchised operation but is "distinctively different" and for the past five years has been owned by Peggy Moody.
Long a Lubbock resident, Peggy Moody, nee Peggy Rutherford, attended Wheelock-Parsons, Evans Junior High, then graduated from Monterey High School and in 1969 graduated from W.T.S.C. in Canyon. She knows Lubbock and area folks, situations and preferences. At the helm of Lubbock Greeter Service, she is performing quite a service as one will discover even upon brief review of the comprehensive programs available.
Peggy points out some of the "economic facts of the business," citing that Lubbock Greeter Service "charges 60 per cent less than some national competitors and sees 75 per cent more people," assuring that the merchant gets more for his money and that the newcomer is properly welcomed and assisted.

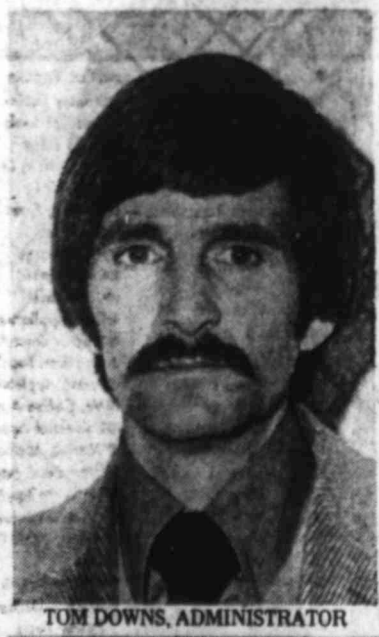

A full staff is devoted to the service concept of the program and is on the job to assure personal contact in every operation. (The Greeter Service guarantees seeing at least 70 newcomer families per month — folks from out-of-town, not just moving across the city.)
Lubbock Greeter Service is proud to have an excellent "track record," charging the merchant only for extent of services, retaining no percentage, affording newcomers advantages of brochures representing over 100 merchants and organizations with these brochures containing coupon discounts, etc., effecting savings of some $250.
Get full details now, Mr. Merchant, if you have not been fully informed or aware of this home-owned Lubbock Greeter Service, a one-of-its-kind operation.
Lubbock Greeter Service is a member of the Better Business Bureau and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. It stands tall in informing, educating and selling the newcomer on one's business or service.
"May we serve effectively for you, too? Call 797-2461 without delay for full information, letting us go to work for you immediately."

University Villa Now Associated With Texas Friendship Villa Organization

Recent improvements, including redecorating, are just some of the features making news at University Villa, 2400 Quaker Ave. in Lubbock.

For example, many have discovered the relatively new name... University Villa... rather than the former "University Convalescent Center."
In-state ownership was announced last year for this prominent extended care facility, with the facility becoming associated with Friendship Villa, Inc. In fact, the same ownership holds true for Quaker Villa, also in Lubbock.
Tom Downs is administrator at University Villa, seeing that the center is modern in every respect, with proper attention to the physical facilities and to the comfort of every resident.
Private and semi-private rooms are provided.
University Villa is a Type III facility, accepting both Medicaid and private pay plans.
Accommodations are provided for 95 residents.
Downs has gathered around him a most able staff.
Ann Green is director of nursing. Gail Hanson is activity director, and she maintains a continuous program of interest to residents.
Organized games and programs every day are appreciated and enjoyed, as are field trips in the Villa's own van.

Sunday church services are held within the center, with a visiting minister. Actually, church services are conducted five days every week.
A house doctor is on call 24 hours a day.
A pharmacy consultant, RN consultant and dietitian consultant also make their services available.
Menu Variety
Three wholesome meals daily are provided, with variety as a "must" in the wide menu.
Some residents have lived at University Villa for seven years and more.
The facility traditionally has been very well accepted as a "better" unit of its type.
In brief, everything seems to have been done to help the residents enjoy living at University Villa.
Remember, too, that Quaker Villa, at 4403 74th St., is under the same ownership, with Sue Flanagan as the able administrator there.
Physical facilities at each, and the qualified, interested personnel make residency at either University Villa or Quaker Villa a very pleasant experience, more than a few "who know" will verify.

Business & Industrial Review

MAKING NEWS IN FOOD SERVICES, CONVENIENCE — Southern Sea, for several years a Lubbock home-owned eating establishment of note, has opened its downtown 10th & Avenue Q facility while also continuing operation at its South Indiana site. Located near the Civic Center, on the east of Avenue Q, the new functionally-attractive building is shown at top, with owners-operators Robert and Priscilla Sims pictured (center) in a booth area. Shown at the order window, from left, is Danny Waller, catering manager; Beverly Ridener, manager trainee; and Paul Higley, store manager

Downtown Southern Sea Opens, Serving Daily In Added Home

The big, customer-oriented, thoughtfully-planned downtown Southern Sea is now serving!
That's right, the eagerly awaited opening of Southern Sea, at 10th & Q, is a reality, and it is full speed ahead for finest food, conveniences by the score, and genuine appreciation of your patronage.
The downtown Southern Sea is open from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m., seven days a week.
So many delightful innovations and services have been "built in" to the big eating establishment's operation that only a personal visit will correctly convey its consideration of "you as a valued customer."
There's seating for 220, as example, with extra-size booths for groups. And a serving concept that minimizes time in line, but with the customer welcomed to spend desired time at the booths. (Even during peak periods, it has been clocked that no one, even in a long line, need wait more than 11 minutes. What a benefit to the business community when lunch hour deadlines prevail.
And there is a distinct and most efficient carry-out department. One is invited to call ahead, to 744-1231, and the order will be ready upon the customer's arrival.
An Old Friend
Actually, Southern Sea already has long proven its capabilities.
Southern Sea was established in mid-1976 at its well-known and fully-appreciated South Loop 289-Indiana Avenue facility, still serving there but now augmented by the downtown unit for maximum convenience to all.
Catering
The same delicious fried chicken and southern style fish is available at each, for "eating in", for "carry out" or for catering. (Call Danny Waller, catering manager, at 799-2099, for details of this area-wide service.)
All this is part of a carefully planned and executed program initiated by owners Robert and Priscilla Sims to best serve the eating public with great food at prices to be appreciated.
"We thank you for letting us develop our plans with the support of your patronage and friendship. Thank you for your interest in our every phase of operation, for your inquiries 'when will you open downtown', etc."
For present and continued experiences in good eating, facilities designed with the customer's convenience foremost, and for service correctly signifying appreciation of every visit, Southern Sea in its added downtown facility stands tall!
Well-Lighted Parking
Note how the big paved parking lot features easy entry and exit, and how well lighted it is. (Also note the good lighting within the beautiful functionally-designed 5,500 sq. ft. building.
And observe how the food is the freshest possible throughout all serving hours, with the fish cooked to order.
Whether the menu selection is fried chicken, seafood including shrimp, clams, oysters, etc., a la carte orders, and all, goodness is the rule and guarantee.
"Let's eat well, conveniently and economically at the welcomed downtown Southern Sea in Lubbock."
Congratulations Robert and Priscilla Sims on a job well done.

SELECTION, AVAILABILITY MARKS HARDWARE LINES

Home Improvement Center Stocks Heavily, Includes Noted Amerock Line

"Have you discovered the beauty and utility of Amerock decorative hardware?"
"And have you realized that Maxey Home Improvement Center includes a huge Amerock display and stock among its many products for the home?"
For fine decorative hardware, whether the item is an entry lock, towel bars, switch plates, and more, the Amerock collection at Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, is most impressive.
At this time of year, Maxey also directs special attention to the convenience and other benefits of storm doors and of automatic garage door openers. These have emerged from any luxury category to a necessity, in comfort and safety.
And smoke alarms, too.
Not only is there a wide variety at the Maxey firm, but prices are kept in line throughout the stock, with specials arranged whenever possible to further assist.
There are very good buys on water heaters, bathtubs, marble top vanities, faucets, light fixtures, paint, etc.
And some may not realize that the Maxey Home Improvement Center stocks a good assortment of hand tools, both in sets and individual pieces, for auto repair.

Storm Door Values
And for those storm doors... some are available with speaker; they are available in gold finish, bronze and white, featuring safety glass, with heavy extruded corners assuring no sag and no warp, with black Colonial key lock and pneumatic closer with all screws, and in standard sizes.
"We take pride in offering the best storm door selection in Lubbock, and for all storm doors sold by us there is only a $1 installation and delivery charge within the Lubbock city limits!"
Genie Recommended
Genie automatic garage door openers are featured by Maxey, and one is invited to come in and learn all the details of why a Genie "should be in your immediate future."
Smoke Detectors
More about the smoke alarms:
"When you decide to purchase smoke detectors to protect your family, you want all the reliability you can get. That is why Maxey recommends and stocks the Honeywell line.

Honeywell's dual chamber ionization detector can sense fire before visible smoke or flames erupt. A piercing, 85 decible alarm warns you and your family, giving them precious extra seconds to escape.
Unlike detectors that require involved maintenance such as bulb replacement and filter cleaning, the Honeywell unit requires minimum maintenance. Installation is easy, and the units can either be ceiling or wall mounted.
Maxey seems to have it all! Check the large selection of cabinet hardware. And Skil and Black & Decker power tools, plus a tremendous selection of plumbing and electrical supplies, and just about anything in the building line.
Maxey Home Improvement Center is glad to help one locate the hard-to-find items, getting them or telling where they may be found.
Finally and foremost, remember this:
"Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University, wants you to have the very best at a price you can afford."

Christmas Shoppe Opens New All-Seasons Holiday Corner

The Christmas Shoppe is something special!
Many have learned this, especially in pre-Christmas seasons, but now there is further exciting news:
Formal opening of Jan's Holiday Corner (in The Christmas Shoppe) is scheduled this Thursday!
This means that The Christmas Shoppe, in Cactus Alley, now has expanded to specialize in gifts and decor items for each holiday season, and present emphasis is on Valentine Day just a few days distant.
Located on the ground level of The Christmas Shoppe, Jan's Holiday Corner is a delightful innovation, increasing the already-appreciated services of the unique shop.
Apt Suggestions
For Valentine, one can select now at the new Holiday Corner for such delights as:
Collector thimbles;
Stuffed toys for Valentine;
Music boxes;
Love Bags at just $3.50 (with the bag filled with love and in a box that has "love" printed in all the foreign languages);

Real flowers, can you imagine!
And Valentine candy, and so very much more.
Select from so-beautiful butterflies mounted in spheres, shadow boxes and domes, also used in serving trays, and all done by Jan and shipped throughout the world!
Also, select from Anri angels with hearts, from Schmid Bros., red and white ceramic boxes and eggs, etc.
Days, Hours Posted
Announcement has been made that The Christmas Shoppe (including Jan's Holiday Corner) will be open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays until July 9.
Unusual Service
Jan Mantooth, longtime Lubbock resident and the owner of the delightful shoppe, soon will be going to market, and she has made an extraordinary offering:
Jan will aid in securing unusual items, related or not to the stock at The Christmas Shoppe, on a special order basis! So, if this can be of service, let Jan know just as soon as at all possible, and she will go "the second mile" in selecting for you!

The entire staff at The Christmas Shoppe is most adept in rendering the customer services one appreciates. On hand are Jan, Ellen Snyder, Candy Schaudies, Gail Norton and Diane Snyder.
"Wouldn't now be a great time to utilize the advantages of The Christmas Shoppe, showing its appreciation of your past patronage with its new Jan's Holiday Corner and other new conveniences and greatly enlarged facilities and stock? May we serve your Valentine needs as outlined above, and help you throughout the year? Remember, the shop now occupies both upstairs and downstairs quarters at the east entry of Cactus Alley, just south off the Brownfield Highway at 2610 Salem Avenue in Lubbock."
Finest Steaks
Located at 50th Street and Flint Avenue (Monterey Center), Coppercreek Mine is locally owned and operated, and though affording a wide and choice menu, it takes special pride in its steak offering.
Curtis Campbell and Ken Garner are partners and active operators.

Sanity May Visit SWC Chase Soon

By MIKE RABUN

Last week, after watching the bitter struggle between Arkansas and Texas in Austin, Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf was saying goodbye to a member of the Longhorns athletic department staff.

"We'll see you in a couple of weeks," the Texas staff member said to Metcalf, referring to the meeting between the Longhorns and Aggies a week from tonight.

"Yeah, we'll be dead by then," replied Metcalf.

The Aggies might not be dead by the time they meet Texas Feb. 12, but there is certainly a chance they might be wounded.

Texas A&M opens a three-game stretch Tuesday night that will determine whether they will have a chance to capture the regular season Southwest Conference championship.

First they go to Fayetteville Tuesday to meet the Razorbacks, who stopped Texas' rush to the title with that heated 68-58 win in Austin last week.

"That has to be one of the most important conference games left," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said. "We're looking forward to playing them."

"We may have to win out in order to possibly win the championship and we have to get some help because Texas has only lost twice."

Then, on Saturday night, the Aggies have to go to Texas Tech, which has won three in a row and is always tough at home. Finally there will be the Texas-

Earl Scudday Some Notes Slipped Through The Bars

TONY DORSETT AND Thomas Henderson, two of the Dallas Cowboys' representatives in the Superstars competition last weekend, gained a lot of respect in the Bahamas outing — if not a place in the finals. Tony and Thomas surprised a lot of folks with their performances and won some friends with those quick smiles and pleasant personalities.

Superstars may be just another video promotion, but it gives the fans a glimpse of their heroes behind those face masks. The athletes emerge as people, not numbers. That gives the show some value.

Entries such as Tony, Thomas and Denver's Lyle Alzado started with a handicap, since the tennis, golf and bowling events counted as much as the running and weightlifting. There weren't many golf courses and tennis courts in the neighborhoods where those three grew up, and they wouldn't have been able to afford those sports even if the facilities had been available. Henderson and Alzado, particularly, know all about poverty first-hand.

All that aside, both Tony and Thomas did extremely well in their basic events involving running and lifting. All Dorsett did was set a record of 9.57 in the 100-yard dash, wiping out previous times posted by such recognized burners as O.J. Simpson and Greg Pruitt. Tony's acceleration will give nightmares to a lot of NFL defensive backs.

Tony also lifted 275 pounds, which is amazing for a guy who weighs in at 185 pounds. No other halfback in the league can match that.

Henderson took second in the weightlifting with 280 pounds, second in swimming and third in the obstacle course. If Thomas will take some golf and bowling lessons, he might win the Superstars one of these days.

TOP OFFICIALS in the Dallas Cowboys organization are anxiously waiting to see if the New York Giants hire Gil Brandt as their director of operations. They would like to see Gil advance in his career, but they certainly would hate to lose the versatile, hard-working superscout.

Scouting has been just part of Gil's contribution to the Cowboys, though. During his 19 years with the club, he has been a troubleshooter and jack-of-all-trades. He guides the Dallas scouting system, assists Coach Tom Landry on the sidelines during games, serves as a liaison man between coaches and players and oversees security measures when they are needed.

Back in the good old days when the NFL and AFL were battling tooth and claw, American loop officials charged that Brandt also was a master at dirty tricks long before Watergate. There was no better guy at hiding prospects from enemy agents and getting signatures on contracts than Gil.

The Cowboys signed about 85 percent of their draftees against AFL competition and much of that success was due to Brandt's efforts.

He would be tough to replace.

NOW THAT SUPER BOWL XIII is just a memory, fans are looking forward to the draft early in May. The Cowboys don't need a lot of help, but Landry said the other day he hoped to upgrade quality and depth at a few positions.

Some observers think the Pokes need some help at cornerback, where the Steelers took advantage of Benny Barnes and Aaron Kyle in the Big One. Barnes is a good competitor, but has only average speed. Kyle is marginal in size, but played well most of the season.

Jethro Pugh's retirement presents no big problem, since veteran Larry Cole played very capably at that position down the stretch. No. 1 draft choice Larry Bethea probably will get a shot there in training camp this summer, too.

Young Dave Stalls, although a bit small for a defensive tackle, is very quick and was impressive when subbing for Cole and Randy White last season.

DRAFTING IN THE 27th spot, the Cowboys are not likely to get any instant

Texas A&M game in College Station a week from this evening.

But a lot can happen in the space of a week — as was demonstrated once again last week in the SWC.

It was the week of TCU's surprising win over Houston, only the second conference triumph for the Horned Frogs in two years. It was the week of the pushing incident involving Sutton and Texas Coach Abe Lemons. And it was the week that TCU players lambasted coach Tim Somerville in the press and then went out and played 11th-ranked Texas a quality game before losing by 13.

The off-the-court action could continue this week since the SWC is expected to decide whether to televise a portion of its post-season tournament, an event that sold out all three nights in Houston last year.

Texas (ranked 11th) and Texas A&M (No. 14) go into this week's games tied for the league lead at 9-2 with Arkansas at 7-3.

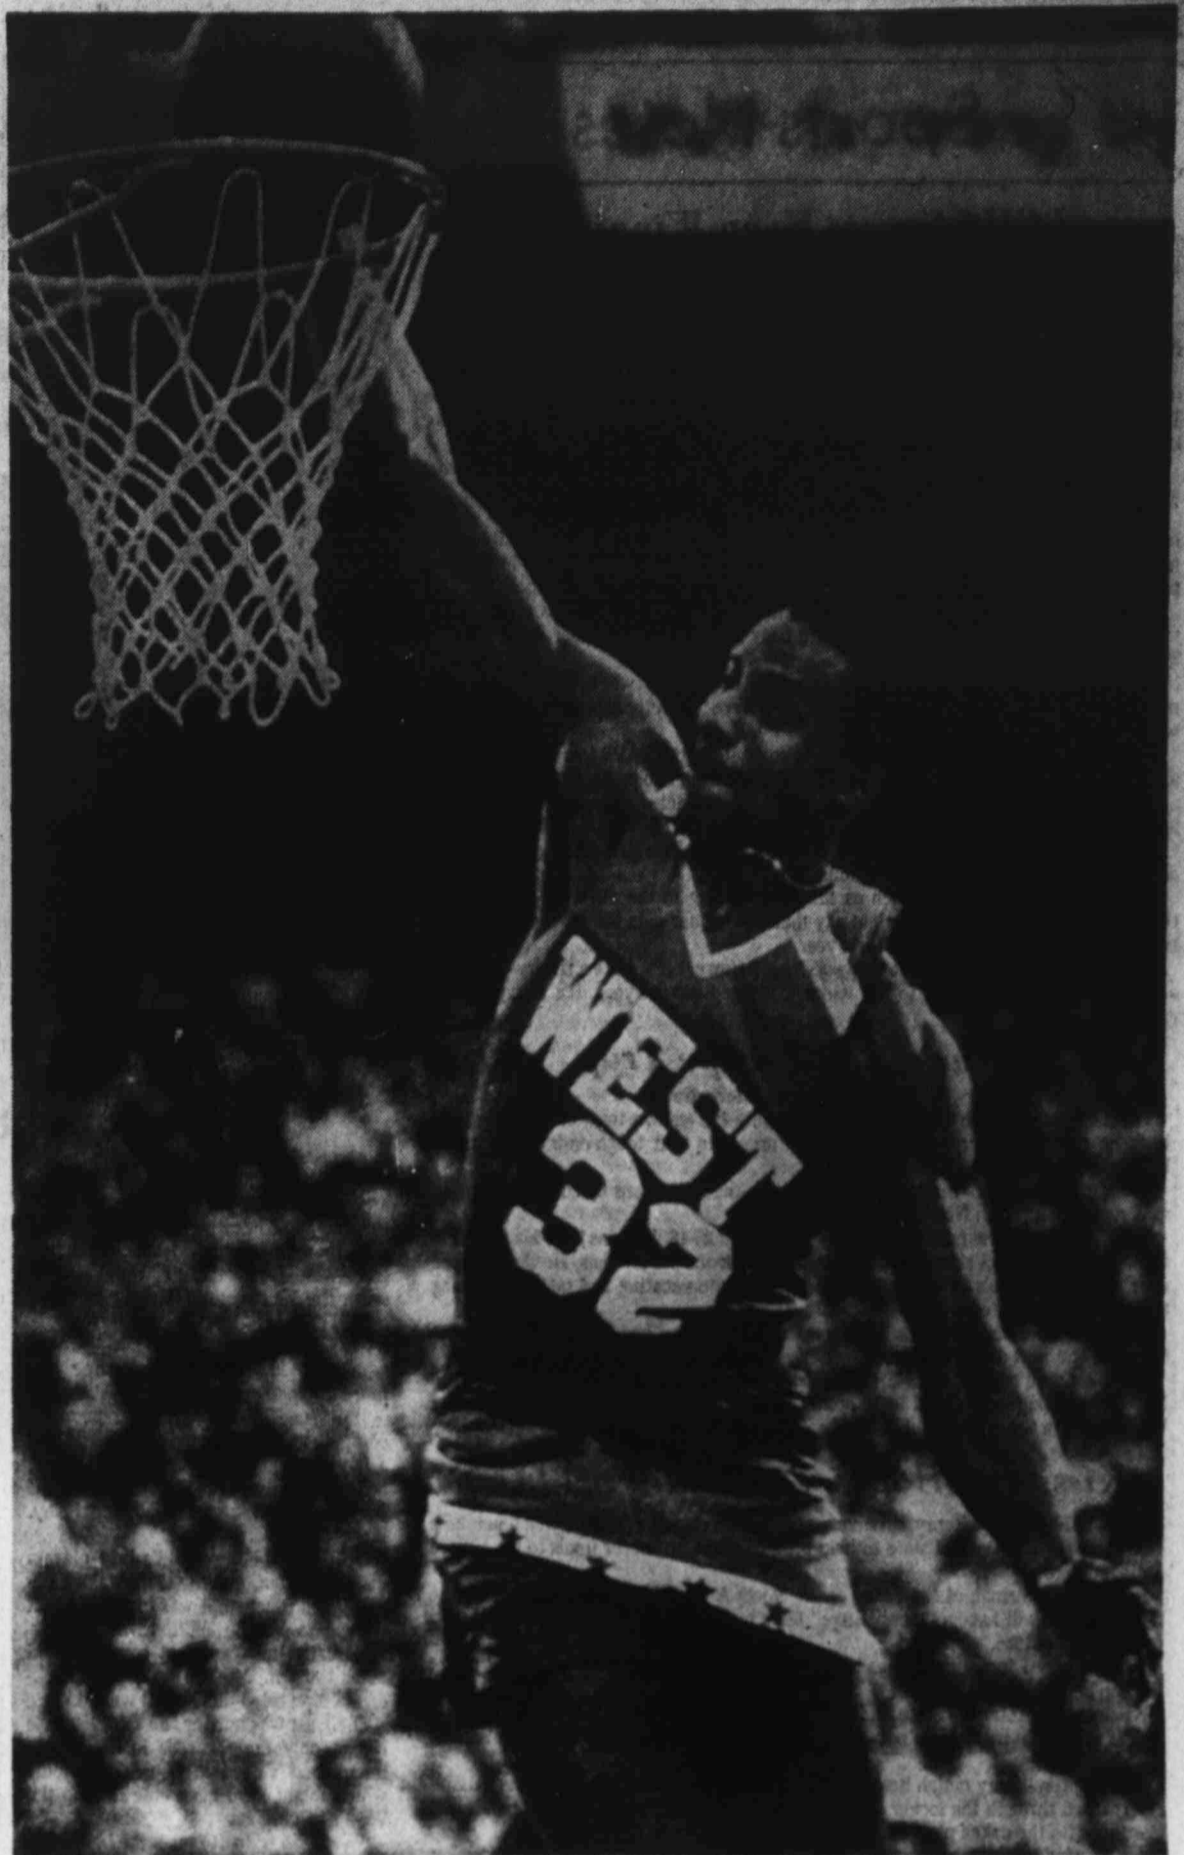

Other than Texas A&M's trip to Arkansas Tuesday night, Baylor (5-5) will visit Houston (3-8), Rice (3-8) will go to Houston (3-8) and SMU (3-6) visits Texas Tech (7-4).

TCU will have the night off and that is perhaps the best thing that could happen to the Horned Frogs at this stage of the season.

The TCU players' main criticism against Somerville was what they said was a double standard of discipline — one for blacks and one for whites. The Horned Frogs coach, who took over the team four games before the start of the 1977-78 season, plays mostly young players and some of those players said they would not return next year.

"I've made mistakes," Somerville said after his team's hustling effort against Texas Saturday night. "I'm willing to forgive the people who wrote the stories and the people who were quoted."

"But this is the best my team has played in a year. My discipline and rules must be paying off. I think this adversity is pulling the team and the coaching staff together. I think it can only work to our advantage."

Thompson Leads West

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The National Basketball Association's All-Star game may have helped dispel the myth that the Western Conference is dominated by big but plodding players.

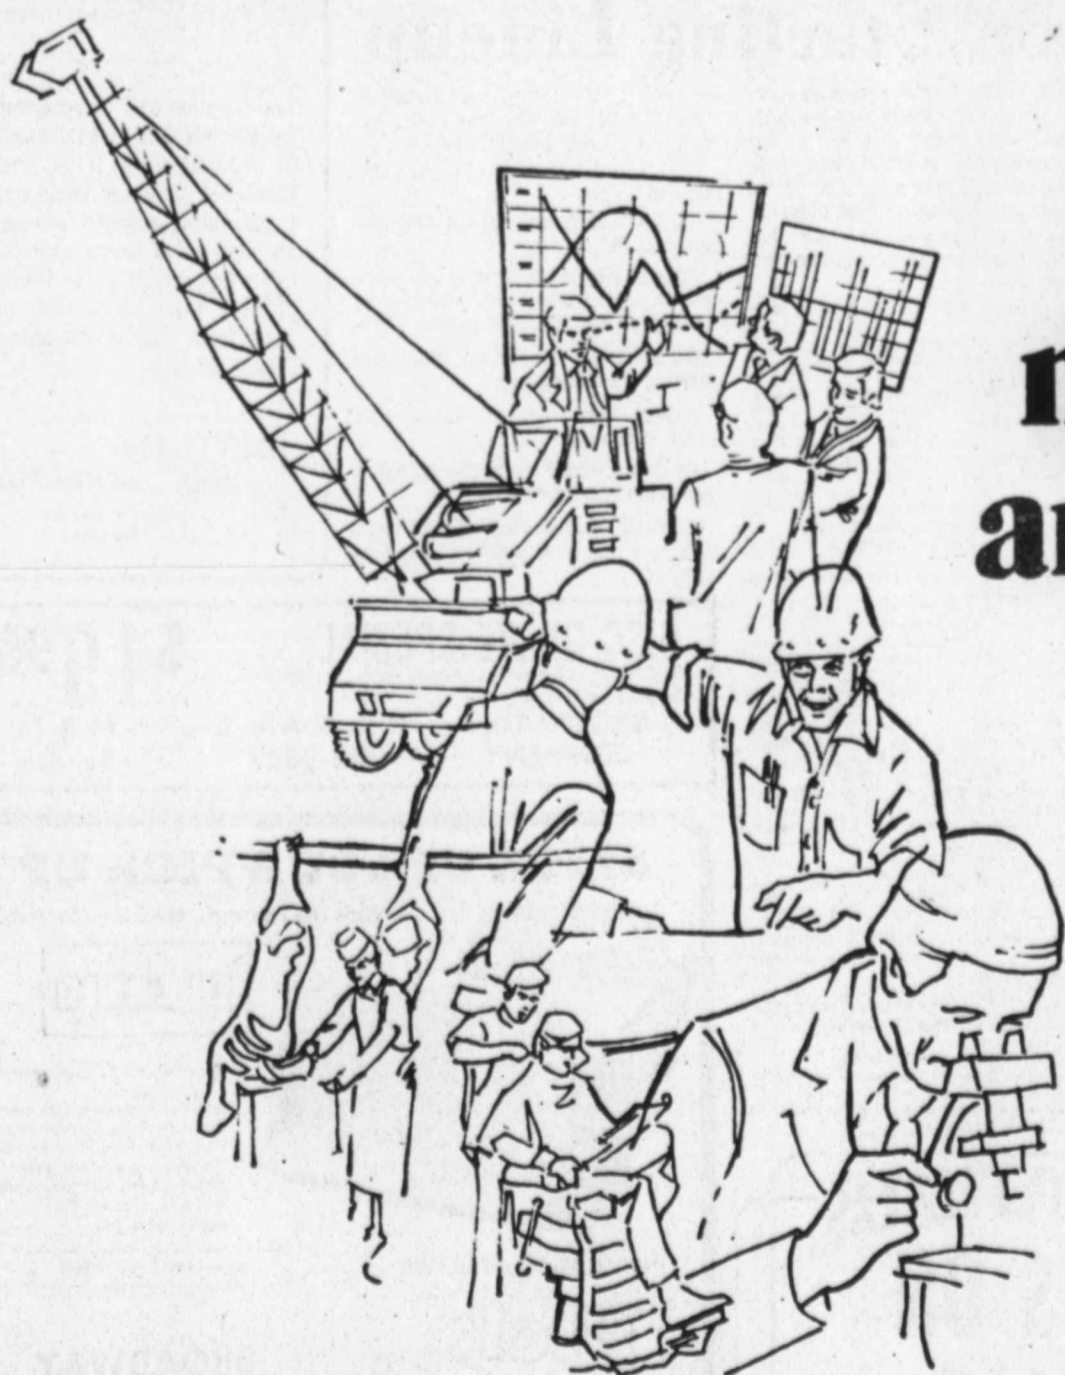

After 6-foot-3 David Thompson of the Denver Nuggets scored 25 points, led the West to a 134-129 triumph and earned the game's Most Valuable Player honors Sunday, West Coach Len Wilkens of the Seattle SuperSonics said: "People have said that the West teams have been big and slow. I thought we were big but not slow."

"This game goes to show that the balance of power is not strictly in the East, as people have thought," Wilkens said.

It was Thompson, Denver's third-year forward, who supplied the power Sunday. Thompson, who missed the only All-Star game in 1978, missed the only All-Star game in 1978.

Crippled Car Wins Enduro

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Danny Ongais doesn't seem to understand why his victory with Hurley Haywood and Ted Field in the 24 Hours of Daytona was any surprise.

The husky Ongais, an Indianapolis veteran, has a reputation for speed but hardly for durability. He's often put cars on the pole at Daytona International Speedway and elsewhere but rarely was around at the finish of a lengthy event until Sunday's victory in a brand new turbocharged Porsche 935.

"The insinuation that I'm a flat-out racer came from somewhere I don't know anything about," Ongais protested.

Their car performed smoothly, setting a modern speed record of 109.249 mph and a distance record of 2,626 miles, until 11 minutes before the finish. A puff of smoke spurted out as Ongais wheeled around the twisting infield of the 3.84-mile course. He limped to within 500 feet of the finish line and parked until time ran out. Then he crept across the line under the checkered flag.

No one was about to overtake the leader. The second-place Ferrari Daytona, which was privately entered and driven by Tony Adamowicz of Culver City, Calif. and John Morton of El Segundo, Calif., finished 192 miles behind even with the leaders' late trouble.

The first question to Ongais was, "What went wrong?"

"Nothing," he responded blandly.

Haywood, a veteran endurance driver from Jacksonville, Fla., who won this race for the fourth time and has won at LeMans, supplied the answer: "Danny came on the radio and said the turbo had packed in. The crew chief made a quick decision and told Danny to pull up and wait until the checkered flag falls and come over the line."

Field, 26, car owner and an heir to the Marshall Field fortune, said, "We stuck to our plan and we got a little lucky."

Although Porsche won, as it has six of the past eight years, only three of the turbo Porsche starters finished. They took third and fourth as well as first.

The team of Bruce Canepa of Santa Cruz, Calif.; Indy rookie of the year Rick Mears of Bakersfield, Calif.; and Monte Shelton of Portland, Ore., finished third. The Whittington brothers, Bill and Don of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Jurgen Barth of West Germany took fourth.

Next came a pair of surprising low-powered Mazda RX7 sports cars making their endurance racing debut. Japanese drivers Yoshimi Kayama, Yojiro Terada and Takashi Yorino took fifth. The American driving team of Walt Bohren of Flemington, N.J.; Jim Downing of Atlanta and Roger Mandeville of Spartanburg, S.C., was sixth.

The Italian Ferrari factory team, separate from the runner-up entry, was here for the first time since 1972. It withdrew its two cars six hours into the race while running seventh and eighth.

Team manager Jean Marc Smadja said two crashes as the result of blown tires raised doubts that its Michelin tires had been sufficiently tested for the 31-degree banking used as part of the course.

"I don't want to risk the lives of my drivers," Smadja said.

HEAVY TRAFFIC — Interscope Racing's Porsche Turbo leads the pack through the final curve of the Daytona 24-Hour Pepsi Challenge auto race. Drivers for the winner were Danny Ongais, Ted Field and Hurley Haywood. The team built a big enough lead they were able to win despite blowing a turbocharger on the last lap. (AP Laserphoto)

Affirmed Wins Race With Another Rider

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Affirmed has recovered from his slump and trainer Laz Barrera no longer has his job in jeopardy, but jockey Steve Cauthen is still sidelined.

Barrera named Laffit Pincay to ride the 1978 Triple Crown winning Affirmed in the $232,500 Strub Stakes for the 4-year-olds at Santa Anita Sunday, and the pair breezed to a 10-length victory.

Cauthen, the teen-age idol who was athlete of the year in 1977 and rode Affirmed to victory in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes last year, was benched by Barrera last Monday. The move was made, the trainer said, because, "He had lost so many races that the pressure would have been too great."

Cauthen finally scored a victory on Thursday to end his losing streak at 110 races and rode Quiet Crossing to a $49 payoff in the fourth race on Sunday.

Barrera said that Pincay will continue to be the Affirmed's regular rider as long as the colt stays in California.

Pincay sent Affirmed into a quick lead out of the gate, gave up the front-running chores to Quilligan Quail going past the grandstand for the first time, and then sat back in third place with Quilligan Quail and Johnny's Image in front.

Pincay sent Affirmed into the lead rounding the far turn and the veteran jockey said, "I could tell he was full of run, so I was only concerned with keeping him clear and out of trouble. At the five-eighths pole, he breezed to the lead and I just waited until the stretch to ask him to run."

"I him him right-handed, but he didn't seem to notice, so I switched to my left hand. He has a tendency to loaf when he gets in front so I hit him three or four times more just to keep his mind on business. I didn't want to take any chances."

Pincay and his colt finished the 1 1/4 miles in 2:01 over a track rated good but not fast. Radar Ahead, expected to be the chief foe of Affirmed, finished fifth. Johnny's Image, a 13-1 shot, finished second and Quip, who went off at 70-1, wound up third.

Affirmed, despite losing his last five races, was the 4-5 favorite in the field of nine and paid $3.80, $3.20 and $3.40 — actually returning more to show than to place. Johnny's Image paid $7.40 and $4.80 and Quip returned $9.80.

Affirmed carried top weight of 126 pounds with Radar Ahead at 120 and both Johnny's Image and Quip at 115 on a track that Barrera said was more to the liking of his colt than it was two weeks ago when Radar Ahead scored a victory in the San Fernando Stakes over Affirmed.

Sandy Hawley was aboard Johnny's Image and made it a race but this was one he couldn't win. But the Canadian scored on four other mounts before the crowd of $0,220 on Sunday.

"Bobby Frankel (the trainer) told me this horse has plenty of speed, so use it the best I could," said Hawley. "We had perfect position, but Affirmed was breathing down our throats all the way. When Laffit moved, I moved, too because I knew he was on the horse to beat. After Affirmed drew away in the stretch, my horse still hung on well."

Carew Trade Finally Over

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Angels are elated, the Yankees haughty, the Twins dazed, and Rod Carew silent following the trade which sent the 33-year-old first baseman from Minnesota to California Saturday.

"I think this is one of the best deals that has been made in the American League for many years," said Angels' owner Gene Autry.

"I'm thrilled to death," added California manager Jim Fregosi.

In return for Carew, a seven-time American League batting champion who grew disenchanted with the tight-fisted ways of Twins' owner Calvin Griffith, Minnesota received outfielder Ken Landreaux, pitchers Paul Hartzell and Brad Havens, and catcher-third baseman Dave Engle.

It was a steal, according to Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog, who said the Angels "didn't give up anything."

The Twins, stunned from the announcement by New York President George Steinbrenner that the Yankees were ceasing negotiations for Carew, admitted that they were more or less forced into the trade, although Griffith termed it "acceptable."

"It was a question of getting something for him or allowing him to play out his option and get nothing," said Twins manager Gene Mauch.

"When George Steinbrenner called and said there was no way he could continue to be interested in trading for Carew, it left our hands tied," conceded Minnesota vice-president Howard Fox.

The Twins and Yankees almost had a deal worked out, but last week Carew was quoted as saying he felt "pushed around" and that he wouldn't let the Yankees buy him.

Steinbrenner angrily issued a statement which said it was clear to him that Carew did not "understand the privilege of playing for the New York Yankees" and that all bets were off.

This left the Twins little choice but to accept the Angels' offer, which did not include Carney Lansford or Chris Knapp, the two players the Twins wanted most.

"It wasn't exactly the trade we were looking for, but it was acceptable and that's the important thing," said Griffith.

After a few early statements Saturday afternoon, Carew went into seclusion. His wife, Marilyn fielded all calls Saturday night and told everyone he was "out." Sunday there was no answer at Carew's home in suburban Golden Valley.

Carew told one Minneapolis columnist that he could have gone to the Yankees, but that he "didn't want to get involved with all of the fighting and controversy that goes on in the Yankee clubhouse."

He said he was looking forward to going to the Angels, a team he considers a pennant contender, and expressed regret at having to leave Minnesota.

"I love the Minnesota fans and like living here, but it was no longer any fun playing for Mr. Griffith," Carew said. "I'm convinced he will never have a winning team here. You have to pay the good ballplayers and he doesn't want to pay them."

"I had to fight for every buck I got from the Twins. The Angels agreed to terms in 15 minutes," he continued. "I feel that California has the players to win the pennant. I've always liked the Anaheim ballpark and have hit well there."

Carew and the Angels had worked out a contract at an estimated $4 million last month, but Griffith balked at California's offer. A new contract will have to be worked out, but Carew's attorney said it was just "a formality."

Many Twins players, who thought they were getting Chris Chambliss, Juan Beniquez, Brian Doyle and possibly a pitcher from the Yankees, were unhappy.

"I'm a little disappointed," said third baseman Mike Cuddeback. "I've been going around telling everybody the trade might make us a contender again."

"I'm really shocked," said shortstop Roy Smalley, who didn't seem to care who the trade involved. "Not to have a guy like Rod in the lineup will have a big effect on anybody."

"I'm not saying these two guys can't help us (Landreaux and Hartzell), but I thought the other deal would have helped close the hole left by Rodney," said first baseman Craig Kuskis.

Added Herzog, whose defending champion Royals must contend with California in the A.L. West: "Minnesota would have been better off taking the deal the Yankees wanted to give them."

Tech Tankers Take Ags

The Texas Tech men's swim team turned in an inspired effort Sunday afternoon at the Tech pool and defeated heavily favored Texas A&M 67-46.

The Raiders finished first in eight of the 13 events, including the 400 meter freestyle relay, to pile up the points. Mike Butler won both the 100 and 200 freestyle events and diver Richard O'Neil won both diving events for the Raiders.

According to one Tech swimming fan, "Tech was just performing way over their heads—A&M was supposed to win it but somebody forgot to tell our swimmers about that."

Ponies Win Close'un, Hold 4-AAAA Lead

Basketball coaches claim that in order to win a cage championship, a team has to be able to win the close games. Well, this past week, the Coronado Mustangs were able to live up to the challenge.

This week, the Mustangs edged the Hereford Whitefaces 67-61 in double overtime to run their record to 2-0 in the 4-AAAA second half race.

"Actually, there was only one point in the game that we were really in trouble," said Coronado coach Barry Arnwine. "That was in the fourth quarter when Sam Law (senior guard) fouled out and we didn't have anybody to handle the ball."

Hereford was able to hit five free throws in the final quarter to send the contest into overtime.

However, in the second overtime, Coronado guard Scott Williams proved to be the ice man as he sank six of the Mustangs 10 points to seal the victory. Williams accumulated four points at the free throw line.

The victory raised Coronado's second half district mark to 2-0. Overall, the Mustangs are 16-9.

"When we played Hereford the first time we only won by two points," said Arnwine. "I really don't know why everybody is so concerned about the point spread. We're playing reasonably well. It's winning or losing that counts."

Coronado has an open date Tuesday night. The Mustangs will return to action Friday against Plainview.

Picking Up Some Leftovers

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Sweeping up the weekend leftovers: Kudos to Rod Carew, one of the last of baseball's rugged individualists. In harpington his chances to play with the rich and successful New York Yankees — and that's what he did — baseball's best hitter landed where he wished, with the California Angels.

Baseball people were stunned by the swift-breaking weekend developments. How come George Steinbrenner let this choice morsel get away? After all isn't it true — as they boast in the Yankee front office — that "what George wants, George gets?"

Not in Carew's case. If there was one thing that killed the deal for the Yankees it was this display of arrogance, which Steinbrenner later attributed to a kidding comment by his team president, Al Rosen.

It offended Carew, along with the feeling that the baseball nabobs were playing Monopoly with his life and career. He said so in no uncertain terms. As a result, Steinbrenner quickly pulled back, saying he didn't want anyone who wasn't proud to wear the Yankee pinstripes.

"I play baseball for a living," Carew said. "I don't buy this stuff that you have to be in New York to get proper attention."

There is something admirable about Carew's stand. In effect, he jilted the richest and prettiest girl in town for the nice but unsensational girl next door. He is a quiet, introspective man. New York may be good for an extrovert like Reggie Jackson. Rod Carew doesn't need it. He doesn't need the fawning and the folderol. What he sells are base hits. In his line, no one has a better product.

Steve Cauthen, thoroughbred racing's boy wonder, has gone from "Who's Who" to "Who's her?" in less than a year, falling into an abysmal slump this winter on the Pacific Coast. He rode 109 straight losers before finally scoring at Santa Anita Thursday. It was his fifth victory in 154 mounts since Jan. 1.

Horsemen were completely baffled. No one could recall a sharper reversal of fortunes. Two years ago Steve, a fuzzi-faced apprentice of 17, was the talk of the sport with more than 480 winners and a record $6 million in purses. Last year he rode Affirmed to racing's Triple Crown.

What happened? "Bad horses," insists Lenny Goodman, Cauthen's Eastern agent. "You can't win if you don't get the mounts. Steve ought to come home. Racing is very clish. Horsemen on the West coast have their own riders. They resent outsiders. So they're giving Steve the long shots, just as it happens to Lafitte Pinney when he comes East."

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Chalks Up Broad Loss

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market took another broad loss today in selling abraded partly to energy worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 8.14 to 826.49 by noontime.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was depressed by concern about the energy outlook resulting from the political upheaval in Iran.

A Wall Street Journal article this morning said strategies being pursued by Saudi Arabia also point toward a further tightening of world oil supplies.

The dollar declined in foreign exchange today, and the London gold price shot up more than $8 an ounce.

Iran's cancellation over the weekend of several billion dollars' worth of contracts to buy U.S. military equipment and services came as no great surprise, analysts said, but it still seemed to unsettle traders.

Among leading aerospace issues, Boeing was down 5/8 at 76 and McDonnell Douglas lost 1 to 32 1/2.

In the gold mining group, Dome Mines was up 1/4 at 80 3/4 and other issues rose fractionally.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .60 to 55.19. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gave up .70 to 158.55.

Volume on the Big Board came to 12.01 million shares at noontime, against 11.24 million at the same point Friday.

Singers In Off Broadway Play Know How To Work Song

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — In many stage musicals, the singers don't sing. They bellow even the love songs. And the tunes are so melodically simple and predictable you often enter the theater humming them. Not so with "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg," a color-splashed, jazz-tinged song story that opened off-Broadway recently at Joseph Papp's Public Theater Cabaret amid hopes it'll go to Broadway.

A preview look indicates the singers know how to work a song. Their fine-tuned dynamics and phrasing would draw approval from a Frank Sinatra, a Peggy Lee. And the music they sing isn't simple. It's the same lovely, but difficult, harmonically complex score Michel Legrand did for the first "Umbrellas," a 1964 French film about young love, sadness and all that.

All the dialogue in the film was sung. It's done again in this stage version for which Legrand orchestrated the music and Sheldon Harnick provided the English translation. The plot remains the same.

A young garage mechanic (Dean Pitchford) falls in love with a teen-age girl (Stefanie Christian), whose mother runs an umbrella shop. Boy and girl make love. Pregnancy ensues. Boy is drafted in the French army, goes to fight in Algeria. An older, wealthy man (Laurence Guittard) falls in love with girl. With her mother's blessings, he marries her, vowing to bring up her child as their own.

Her first lover, wounded in Algeria, comes home, learns what happened, grieves, marries his aunt's comely maid (Maureen Silliman) and they beget a child. Then on to the bittersweet finale.

It's all done with a wonderful show of color, the red, blue, yellow and orange umbrellas the main eye event, held aloft by a large cast moving quickly or slowly around sheets of glazed plexiglass.

To the rear, a huge backdrop of the city shifts colors, from soft blue to gloomy gray to violent red, depending on the mood at hand.

Directed by Andrei Serban, the show is visually first-rate, and the first act, ending with the lad's departure to the wars, has an excellent rhythm and pace. Now, to the bad news.

Despite a funny wedding sequence with a very pregnant bride, the second act tends to drag. It seems filled with bits of plot padding that fritters away the Gallic charm established in chapter one.

Worse, the doings get overly sentimental, even mawkish.

Methods with second-act pruning, a bit more wryness and less blatant heart-tugging, this colorful "Umbrellas," with its rich and often swinging score, could unfurl as the next Broadway hit.

It certainly has no problem with its singers. They not only emote convincingly, but also enunciate clearly — rare in this day and age — and handle hard-interval musical passages without obvious effort.

A standout: The young leading lady, Miss Christopherson. She's a beautiful woman with a fresh, innocent face, a lovely voice and a sensitive feel for a song. And she's a fine actress, too.

Dog Recovers From Injuries

BATH, Ohio (AP) — Miracle, a brown Afghan hound who was left to die on an expressway with two broken legs, a fractured skull and other injuries, is alive and well today, thanks to Jerry Hoskins who happened by.

"He had his head up in the air, like he was begging somebody to stop," recalled Hoskins, 27.

Hoskins took him home, called a veterinarian and, at his suggestion, took the dog to the Ohio State University School of Veterinary Medicine.

"A week later they called and said he was okay," said Hoskins, who works for a fencing company. Doctors had put a metal plate in Miracle's left front leg.

The treatment cost $847, but "It was worth it," Hoskins said.

Miracle now lives with Hoskins, his wife, Donna, a poodle and three cats.

World's Pop Music Leaders Warned Of 'Great Record Robbery'

CANNES, France (UPI) — Since the music industry is almost depression proof — people sing when they're happy and sing when they're sad, more than 5,000 of its better-heeled practitioners gathered for their annual market in this luxury town only to have Gerry Oord take some of the joy out of the occasion.

Oord arrived like an old-time evangelist preaching damnation to warn the pop music leaders of 51 countries that they were the victims of what he called "the Great Record Robbery" and, while they might be making millions now, there was a chance they wouldn't even be around in five years time.

The idea that a global $5 billion industry could ever disappear met with some skepticism but Oord, special consultant on piracy to the International Federation of Producers of Phonograms and Videograms (IFPI), insisted no business, no matter how prosperous, could survive the bloodletting being inflicted by record pirates and counterfeiters. He estimated the present worldwide income of illegal operators — who make carbon copies of hit albums, both popular and classical — at about $1 billion a year and rising. These racketeers, organized crime among them, can sharply undercut legal prices since they pay no royalties nor do they have promotional costs nor do they take chances.

They copy and sell only albums which are already established successes and purchasers, lured by bargain prices, rarely question the source. Sometimes they take the songs of a hit artist like Bob Dylan and mix them into new combinations.

remain happy and prosperous," he told his audiences. Oord said that record and cassette piracy stole half the income of the legitimate copyright owners in some countries and the IFPI fund would pay for investigators to locate the illegal copying factories and for lawyers to assist in prosecuting them. He said in Hong Kong tougher enforcement had cut piracy down from 80 percent to 5 percent — proving that it could be done.

Another optimistic development, he said, was the seizure of $150 million worth of counterfeit recordings in the United States under strengthened laws.

Oddy, the most urgent danger is to classical records. It can cost $500,000 to record an opera, but recording companies are willing to make the investment as a long-term proposition. If pirates swamp the market with cut-rate copies, they can inflict serious financial damage on the smaller companies in the field with bankruptcy a possibility.

This will deprive the honest public (and the pirates) of new classical recordings, Menuhin said, adding that the quality is

"It's later than you think if you want to

"Bob Dylan has recorded about a dozen albums," Oord said, "but there are over 100 counterfeit albums of his work around the world."

Oord persuaded violin virtuoso Yehudi Menuhin, pop star Elton John and British hitmaker Cliff Richard to take part in a film dramatizing the piracy problem. ("I'm looking around for a fruit and vegetable store for five years from now," Richard said.) Oord gave a series of showings of the film to underline why the industry must immediately establish a fund to fight the "cancer".

Caviar Lovers Buy More Lumpfish Eggs

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — Caviar lovers have been buying more lumpfish eggs than any other kind of roe, according to an industry leader.

With the price of sturgeon caviar climbing sharply because of overfishing, sales of lumpfish, salmon and whitefish roe have moved into the lead, says Arnold Hansen-Sturm, head of Romanoff Caviar Co., with lumpfish outselling all.

Certain peaceful grazing animals have their eyes set on the side of the head to give 180-degree vision for protection against predators.

Explanation Given For New Savings Program

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Are you one of the millions of Americans who own U.S. Savings Bonds? If so, you should be prepared to review your investment with an eye to some changes.
The Treasury Department has announced a major overhaul of the familiar program — the first significant restructuring since 1941. Series E and H bonds will be discontinued and replaced by Series EE and HH. The $25 bond will disappear.
The changes, designed to cut costs for the government, will be made gradually.

Here, to help you get ready, are some questions and answers about the way the Savings Bond program will work:

Q. What kind of bonds are sold today?
A. Series E and Series H. Series E bonds are sold at a discount and can be redeemed for the face value any time after reaching maturity. They are available in denominations ranging from $25 to $10,000. The cheapest bond costs $18.75. Series H bonds have a maturity of five years, with a guaranteed 10-year extension during which interest continues to accumulate. Additional extensions issued in the past mean that all outstanding Series E bonds are still earning interest.

Series E bonds are still earning interest. Interest on Series E bonds is calculated to produce a yield of 6 percent if the bonds are held to maturity.

Series H bonds, in denominations from $500 to $10,000, are sold at face value. Interest is paid semi-annually on a graduated scale designed to produce a 6 percent yield if the bonds are held to their 10-year maturity. They can be redeemed for face value at any time six months after the issue date. Like Series E bonds, all outstanding Series H bonds are still earning interest due to extensions.

Series E and Series H bonds will be sold through Dec. 31, 1979.

Q. What happens next?

A. On Jan. 2, 1980, the government will start selling Series EE and Series HH bonds. Series EE bonds will be sold in denominations from $50 to $10,000 and will cost half their face value. You will have to pay $25 for the cheapest bond. Series EE bonds will mature and be worth their face value in 11 years and nine months. The interest rate will remain the same as that paid on Series E bonds.

Series HH bonds will be sold in denominations from $500 to $10,000. Interest will be paid at a level 6 percent.

The change in the method of paying interest leads to a change in redemptions. Series H bonds can be redeemed, at their full face value, any time after six months from the issue date. Since the interest is graduated, however, you earn less than the full 6 percent rate if you redeem the bond early.

Series HH bonds will start paying 6 percent immediately. In order to prevent people from using the bonds as a short-term investment, which the Treasury Department says "would be unfair to similar forms of savings offered by financial institutions," there will be a penalty for early redemption; you will get less than full face value if you cash the bond before maturity.

This penalty applies only to Series HH bonds bought for cash. Bonds bought through an exchange of savings notes, E bonds or, in the future, EE bonds, will be redeemable at their face value six months after issue date. That's because, in most cases, the securities used to make the purchase already will be earning 6 percent.

Q. Will old bonds become worthless?

A. No. The maturity on the earliest outstanding E bonds — bought between 1941 and April 1952 — has been extended, in 10-year increments, to 40 years; they keep earning interest until they fall due between 1981 and April 1992. There will be no further extensions for these bonds. They will stop earning interest after they fall due, but they can be cashed in for their face value.

All outstanding E bonds bought after April 1952 receive a new 10-year extension during which they will continue to earn interest. After that, no further extensions are expected for bonds purchased between April 1952 and November 1965; no decision has been made on extensions for E bonds bought after November 1965.

The early Series H bonds — bought from June 1952 through May 1959 — will reach maturity between 1982 and 1989 and there will be no further extensions. Series H bonds bought after June 1959 will receive another 10-year extension, for a total life of 30 years. No further extensions are expected.

Group Eyes Budget Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — An organization trying to force Congress into convening a national convention to draft a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget says it has high hopes for victory this year.

A count kept by the National Taxpayers' Union indicates 26 states have demanded such a convention be called, although 16 give Congress the alternative of approving a balanced-budget constitutional amendment itself.

Man's Lawsuit Claims False Imprisonment

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A man who was paroled from prison to work on a farm says he spent 10 extra years as a laborer because the people who ran the farm didn't tell him when his parole was over.

He is suing the family for $600,000, claiming false imprisonment.
John Currier Jr., 46, filed suit last week in Circuit Court against the estate of the late Hubert L. Worrell and three other members of the Worrell family. He says the Worrells failed to tell him he had satisfied conditions of his parole in 1968 and was free to leave.

Hubert L. Worrell Jr., son of the farm's original owner, said Sunday that the family learned only last fall that Currier's parole had expired. He said Currier was told immediately that he could leave the farm in Goodlettsville outside Nashville.
Currier declined to talk about the suit when contacted Sunday.

Currier, from Kingston in East Tennessee, was imprisoned on a life sentence for murder in 1949 at the age of 16, the suit said. It said he was granted a parole in January 1963, and instructed to work for Worrell "and there remain, unless otherwise directed by the Board, until the remainder of your good time prison sentence, which expires Life..."

Worrell said since his father died, he has sent annual reports to the Correction Department on Currier's progress. He said on one occasion, Sam Lipford, head of the state's probation and parole division, wrote back saying "he was glad John was doing so well."

"If John wasn't supposed to be on parole anymore, shouldn't they have told us?" he asked.

Lipford said he would have to check Currier's records to find whether the letter notifying Currier that his parole supervision requirement was being lifted was ever delivered.
He said the department no longer releases paroled prisoners to private citizens.

In his suit, Currier says he worked as a farm laborer to the satisfaction of the defendants, but was given substandard living conditions and no pay until 1970, when his weekly wages started at $5 and were gradually increased to $20.

Currier learned his parole was over last October when a friend asked the state whether Currier could be considered for release from parole supervision.

has since said that goal must be delayed because of economic conditions. He indicated in his budget message to Congress last month that eliminating the deficit might be possible by 1982.

The National Taxpayers' Union proposal would require that the budget be balanced each year, except in the event of a national emergency such as war.

Four legislatures have voted for the proposal this year: Arkansas, North Carolina, South Dakota and Utah. It has also been approved by the State Senate in California and Iowa and by the House in Idaho and Indiana.

"We feel we have a good shot at it by the end of this year's legislative sessions," said David Keating, who heads the Taxpayers' Union lobbying effort. The proposal was first approved by North Dakota in 1975.

Republican officeholders, however, failed over the weekend to endorse a constitutional requirement for a balanced budget. The party leaders, many of them members of Congress and state officials, heard Rep. Barber B. Conable of New York call the proposal "constitutional Russian roulette."

The party's national chairman, Bill Brock, said he did not think the GOP "should support the states' call" for a convention.

Meanwhile, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a leading Senate conservative, said he is frightened by the proposed convention, although he favors a balanced-budget amendment.

The idea of a constitutional convention going off on its own strikes me with a great deal of fear," he said on a television interview program.

Constitutional amendments may be proposed either by a vote of two-thirds of both houses of Congress or by a convention demanded by two-thirds of the states. To become law in either case, a proposed amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Even if Congress is presented with resolutions from 34 states, any convention likely would be preceded by a round of arguments.

The resolutions vary from state to state. Some are highly specific, such as the one passed by the Delaware legislature that spells out exactly the constitutional amendment it wants. Others are more general.

David C. Huckabee, a Congressional Research Service analyst who has studied the state actions, says Congress "might find reason to discount a number of the applications."

The 26 states listed by the Taxpayers' Union as demanding a convention are: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Wyoming.

Marvin Property Trial Takes One-Day Recess

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With perhaps three more weeks of testimony — and some surprise witnesses — still to come, Judge Arthur Marshall is taking a break from the Lee Marvin property settlement trial today to clear away some other work.

Marvin Mitchelson, attorney for Michelle Triola Marvin, said last week that he may wind up his case for the plaintiff this week. Miss Marvin is suing the actor for $1 million, claiming that as her share of their assets during the six years they lived together.

Mitchelson's first witness Tuesday is scheduled to be Meyer Mishkin, Marvin's longtime agent. Mishkin, who was called as a hostile witness, began testifying Friday and admitted Marvin had a drinking problem but said it never affected his work.

Mishkin is to be followed to the stand by two of Marvin's public relations men — Jim Mahoney and Paul Wasserman. Mitchelson has declined to reveal the names of his further witnesses, saying they may be a surprise.

The defense presentation will follow, and that could take two weeks.

The trial goes into recess each Monday as the Superior Court judge handles probate cases.
