Schools Gain Hearings In Busing Cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, indicating it may want to clarify a 1977 ruling, today granted hearings to education officials in Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, who are fighting systemwide school desegregation orders. Its action on the Ohio cases, which are expected to be argued jointly this spring, will be closely watched by civil rights groups and other school systems.

had gone too far in ordering a systemwide desegregation plan for Dayton requiring racial balance in light of limited constitutional violations he found. When the case was returned to lower courts, the presiding judge dismissed the desegregation suit against the city, but the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed his decision last July.

(The Lubbock school desegregation case is similar to that of Columbus, local officials say. Both school systems argue they should not have to remedy segregation caused solely by residential patterns, not school board actions.)

The appeals court said the school board had failed to show its policies were racially neutral prior to the Supreme Court's 1954 Brown vs. Board of Education ruling, and said Dayton officials had "committed affirmative acts that exacerbated the existing racial segregation" in the past 24 years.

(The Lubbock case has been appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by the U.S. Justice Department. The department wants the court to impose a systemwide desegregation plan here.)

That court ordered schools to open for a third year in 1978-79 under an old desegregation plan, originally approved in 1976, requiring busing of 13,000 of the school district's 37,000 students.

Among hundreds of orders issued on its return from a month-long recess, the high court also: —Refused to review a Civil Aeronautics Board order designed to eliminate the gap between air fares for intrastate and interstate passengers traveling in California and Texas.

In the Columbus case, a federal judge also ordered a systemwide remedy, requiring reassignment of 42,000 children, including 37,000 who would have to be bused, and alteration of the grade structures of elementary schools.

—Announced it will consider whether a scientist may sue Sen. William Proxmire for libel because the Wisconsin Democrat gave his "Golden Fleece" award for wasteful spending to federally funded research on animal aggression. Lower courts threw out the suit.

The 6th Circuit affirmed the orders last July 14. Shortly before the opening of public See HIGH COURT Page 14

The city should get at least a brief respite from bitter winter weather before a new cold wave moves in, forecasters said today.

tional Weather Service spokesman today, but "we don't see any vigorous system coming in."

The hard-packed ice that has accumulated on Lubbock streets the past week should soften today, making travel to and from school and work less of a headache for city residents.

The predicted cold air mass will not bring severe temperatures, compared with those of the past 10 days, the spokesman said, and it should pose only a slight threat of snow for the Lubbock area.

With Lubbock temperatures expected to reach the mid-30s today and then climb to near 50 Tuesday and Wednesday, activity may resume a lively pace following the hibernating effect of last weekend's weather conditions.

By Friday, however, expected temperature highs in the South Plains region will be in the 30s and 40s.

Another arctic cold front is anticipated to invade the South Plains area Wednesday night or early Thursday, said a Nationally accompanying the early-week warming trend, skies will be partly cloudy through Tuesday, reports said. The temperature is forecast to drop to the lower 20s tonight, with winds light and variable today and tonight.

Meanwhile, the last effects of the Canadian high pressure system that brought frigid air to the area last weekend were being felt this morning, with a low of 11 degrees at 8 a.m.

give streets and roads an icy glaze. "We're about the only area in Texas reporting icy conditions," Department of Public Safety communications supervisor Dewain Collins said here this morning.

Coldest spots in the South Plains area were Tulia and Dimmitt, which both reported 5 degrees. Silverton, Olton, Muleshoe and Littlefield reported a low of 7 this morning.

Lubbock area roads are generally icy but most have one clear lane of traffic, Collins said. Most other areas, including the Dallas-Fort Worth region, are reporting patchy ice conditions, he added.

All South Plains stations reported some precipitation in the form of snow or freezing rain over the weekend but amounts were negligible. The moisture, however, was enough to

A weather-related traffic fatality was reported Sunday night south of Morton in Cochran County, Collins said, but otherwise accidents in the region have been minor through early this morning.

Ship Death Toll May Reach 49

BANTRY, Ireland (AP) — The French tanker Betelgeuse exploded "like a giant bomb" while unloading oil at a storage terminal in scenic Bantry Bay early today and 49 persons were feared dead.

The charred bodies of three crewmen and seven workers at the terminal on Whiddy Island were recovered. Police said all of the 42 crewmen aboard the tanker apparently were killed.

"If you could see the blaze, you'd know there was no chance at all for anyone on board," said one firefighter. The ship sank in 130 feet of water, leaving only its stern visible.

The police at first reported 40 crew members aboard the ship, but later increased the number.

Mrs. Bridie Mooney, who lives across the bay from the terminal, said: "Windows all over the bay area were broken. It was incredibly bad." A dozen families were evacuated from the island.

Firefighting tugs battled the flaming oil that spewed from the ship, and they prevented the fire from spreading to 18 storage tanks holding 250 million gallons of crude oil. They reported the flames under control six hours after the first explosion.

The ship was unloading at a Gulf Oil facility when a series of giant blasts split it in two, pouring blazing oil into the sea and rocking the area for 20 miles around.

"It was like a giant bomb. The whole ground shook from the explosion, and flames seemed to be everywhere," said an officer at the Bantry police headquarters.

Fire teams and rescue squads were rushed to the area from all over Ireland. All doctors and nurses within 100 miles were alerted. Britain's Royal Air Force sent helicopters from Wales to help with the search for the missing.

Whiddy Island is a supertanker terminal at which the huge ships that are too big to enter West European harbors unload oil from the Middle East for reshipment in smaller tankers to Britain and the Continent.

"All we know is there was an explosion on board the ship followed by a flash fire on the water, presumably from oil that came from the hold in the explosion," said Donald Ash, the general manager of the Gulf terminal.

Ash said the Betelgeuse had pumped out some 21 million gallons of oil, or about two-thirds of its cargo, and was taking on sea water as ballast before discharging the rest when the explosion occurred.

BURNING TANKER — Smoke pours from the broken hull of the French supertanker Betelgeuse after it exploded and sank early today at the Irish port of Bantry Bay. All of the 42 crewmen on the vessel, as well as seven workers at the port, are believed dead in the explosion and fire. The flames were under control six hours after the blast. (AP Laserphoto)

Five In Family Struck By Car

MORTON (Special) — A 34-year-old woman was killed and her 15-year-old daughter critically injured Sunday night when members of a Muleshoe family, attempting to get help after surviving a traffic accident, were struck by another vehicle.

Services for Mrs. Mendoza were pending today with Singleton-Ellis Funeral Home in Muleshoe.

Pronounced dead at the scene of the 7:30 p.m. mishap about 20 miles south of Muleshoe was Catarina Castillo Mendoza. Her daughter, Margarita Castillo, was in critical condition this morning at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital, suffering from head injuries.

Travel conditions were hazardous over the South Plains last weekend following a winter storm which dumped freezing drizzle, sleet and light snow over much of the region. Travel advisories were issued by the National Weather Service, extending from Saturday until this morning.

The dead woman's husband, Amandor Mendoza, 44, was treated and released at Cochran Memorial Hospital in Morton. The couple's two other children, Amandor Jr., 6, and Olga, 15, were listed in fair condition today at Memorial Hospital in Seminole.

Four persons were reported killed Sunday, the first day of the two-day mourning period, in riots in Tehran and six other cities. One man was reported wounded by police gunfire in Tehran today.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said the Mendozas' pickup turned over on ice-covered Highway 214 about 20 miles south of Morton. The family was in the roadway attempting to flag down a car driven by George Vasquez, 23, of Plains, when Vasquez' vehicle went into a skid and hit the victims, the spokesman said.

Hundreds of demonstrators roamed through midtown Tehran in small groups, shouting "Down with the shah!" Mobile troops with riot gear moved quickly to disperse the groups as soon as they formed.

Vasquez was taken to Cochran Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Violence Flares Again In Iranian Cities

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Sporadic rioting broke out in Tehran today as Iran observed a second day of mourning for the hundreds killed in the past year of demonstrations against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Thousands of mourners gathered at Tehran's main cemetery, and the military kept out of sight there.

schedule, and sources said the shah was unlikely to begin his planned vacation until the parliamentary process was complete.

In the holy city of Qom, 98 miles south of the capital, 100,000 persons marched through the streets, but no violence was reported.

Commerce, disrupted by strikes and a nationwide fuel shortage, was at a standstill for the second straight day.

Riots also were reported in Qom, Tabriz, Hamadan, Baneh, Abadan and Khorramshahr. Pars, the official news agency, said a policeman was killed in Hamadan, and two demonstrators were killed in Baneh.

The new prime minister and his cabinet of civilians was installed by the shah Saturday, replacing a two-month-old military government.

The 59-year-old ruler hopes that the return to civilian government, the transfer of some of his royal powers to it and the prospect of his leaving the country temporarily will bring an end to the anti-shah violence in which an estimated 1,500 persons have in the past year. But Ayatollah Khomeini, the exiled Shiite Moslem religious leader who is the shah's chief foe, termed the new government "usurping and illegal" and called on his followers to "continue your struggle" until the shah was overthrown.

Dedicated Priest Changes Outlook Of Lepers

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

MACAO (UPI) — The barking of dogs fills the quiet of Gila Villa De Nos Senora on Macao's island of Coloane when strangers come. It's a picturesque village, surrounded by uncrowded beaches and ideal fishing waters, and has everything: Except children. So the residents of one of Asia's few remaining settlements for lepers — still considered outcasts among most Chinese — lavish their love on pets.

Since children are considered to be the most susceptible to leprosy, none are permitted to visit. The last child victims left in 1974 and the youngest entering since are 18.

Many of the long-time occupants, who contracted leprosy when scarring and crippling could not be medically stopped, used to hide when strangers approached. Today, thanks to a dedicated priest who has made the settlement his home, even those with limbs, shortened arms and flattened faces look forward to meeting visitors, primarily American and European tourists.

Rev. Gaetano Nicosia, at 60, still remembers arriving in 1958, a full day's ship voyage from Macao and no roads to what was then a leprosy colony dating back to 1892.

"Doctors were coming to treat patients as there had been significant medical inroads, but the victims rarely saw anyone else, dashing for the few dwellings when even a friendly stranger approached. It took several months before they no longer were afraid of me," the white-haired missionary recalled.

The priest waited patiently as the lonely days became weeks, realizing "their fear was based on their treatment as outcasts, deserted in their youth by families so horrified by leprosy that offspring were banished and left to find a place to die."

Many did die before drugs were available to arrest the disease. The victims living there when Father Nicosia arrived eventually realized they were doubly fortunate, thanks to Western medicine and the dedication of the priest, who intended to live out his life with them.

The village with its carefully tended gardens, clean white residences for men and women, modern hospital, church and friendly occupants going about their jobs is an ongoing testament to Father Nicosia's success.

Treatment with drugs from the United States has resulted in such improvement that most of the 100 lepers living in the settlement are recovered and non-contagious. They could move out but don't, because scars, shortened fingers and crippled limbs make them fearful of coping in a world which only holds memories of rejection. Contagious cases are kept at the hospital staffed by nurses and doctors.

"Unfortunately leprosy still carries the old stigmas among many Chinese," Father Nicosia said. Although it is quickly diagnosed and can be treated in Hong Kong or mainland Macao hospitals, frightened parents often prefer to send their sons and daughters to the priest.

While those who want to stay because of the obvious physical ravages of the disease are allowed to, unblemished young men and women are encouraged to rejoin society, and even are trained for a job. The wide range of abilities of the villagers has enabled the community, once supported by the Catholic church and government, to become self-sufficient.

Mechanics such as Lucas Chan-kau, 50, take care of the cars which villagers and the priest use to drive back and forth to the mainland, only 20 minutes away via the Coloane-Macao bridge.

Discovering he was a leper at 20, Lucas said that while he "could not cope outside after so many years and scars, the best thing I can do is equip those who will never experience the ostracism I did with a trade they can use."

Farmers raise crops, poultry and pigs, fishermen pick the most popular selections from their abundant catches and the women work on the elaborate gardens, clean and cook. The village has its own power generator and fresh water wells.

Work is not compulsory at the free settlement, but Father Nicosia said those who are able usually want to do something. And they are paid a small amount monthly, enough to buy extras such as candy, newspapers and magazines, unavailable at the village.

It was the priest's decision to give the community, known beforehand only as a leper colony, a name with no connotations. Since Macao is administered by Portugal, the multilingual Italian selected Gila Villa De Nos Senora — "Village of Our Lady"

Increasing numbers of Western tourists come — the village is easily accessible thanks to a road the villagers built. Father Nicosia is always notified beforehand to translate since the residents speak only Chinese.

"Meeting friendly strangers has been the greatest single morale booster," he said.

Space Official Delivers New Solar Plan

HOUSTON (UPI) — In a new approach to converting sunlight to electricity, a space agency engineer suggests placing hundreds of mirrors in orbit to reflect sunlight day and night to a network of ground collectors.

The orbiting mirrors would keep a dozen or more spots several miles wide around the world basking nearly continuously in "high noon desert sunlight."

A vast array of solar cells, which convert sunlight directly into electricity, or other conversion devices would be able to generate enough electricity at one location to equal the output of several nuclear power plants.

The idea was presented Thursday to a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Kenneth W. Billman of the Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif.

Although their main job would be to provide sunlight for power generation, Billman said in an emergency a few of the mirrors could illuminate large areas at night for frost prevention or perhaps snow removal.

Billman and his colleagues call the concept Solares. It is only in the preliminary study stage but Billman said two years of analysis suggest such a system "could supply energy at costs competitive to the fossil and nuclear alternatives."

One of the big potential problems would be environmental effects, particularly unwanted weather modification. But Billman said such a system would not create the pollution associated with mining, transporting and burning fossil fuels.

The idea is a departure from the often-discussed proposal to station large solar collectors in orbit to generate electricity there and then beam the power to Earth. The reflector concept would keep the conversion equipment on the ground.

Its initial cost would be high, Billman said. He estimated a typical small size system would cost about $150 billion for the space equipment and $20 billion for each ground plant that would convert the radiation into 40 billion watts of electricity. As many as 12 ground conversion sites could be used.

Guerrilla War Rages Around Beautiful Region

By ALFONSO CHARDY
SAPOA, Nicaragua (UPI)—An area of spectacular beauty that could well be a resort dreamland has become a dangerous military-operations region where Nicaraguan soldiers and guerrillas are fighting and dying.

The only real rural guerrilla war in Latin America is raging around here following the defeats of other countryside insurgent uprisings in Mexico and Argentina earlier in the decade.

In Colombia bandits and guerrillas rule the mountains, but their fight is more for banditry than ideology.

Already, an estimated 50 Nicaraguan National Guardsmen, Sandinista guerrillas and civilians are reported to have died in the southern front near the Costa Rican border since last September when the Nicaraguan crisis exploded into civil war.

The region in the border province of Rivas is roughly 150 miles south of Managua, the Nicaraguan capital. And the Zona Caliente (hot zone) is a narrow strip of land stretching from the Costa Rican border to huge Lake Nicaragua, the only lake in the world with fresh water sharks.

The Pan American highway cuts across the region of farm houses bordered by acres and acres of sweet-smelling sugar cane, banana and sorghum fields. Lathery waves splash across the wind-swept lake giving it the look of an ocean.

Sheeps graze peacefully in the fields surrounded by swarms of white birds. On the other side of the lake are two towering volcanoes, their peaks hidden by fluffy clouds. The weather is semi-tropical and the vegetation on the small rolling hills is nearly jungle-like.

Tourists used to frequent the region before the troubles began, and rich Nicaraguans and Costa Ricans run the beautiful rented farms that dot the area.

But the Pan American road is now virtually deserted, the farm houses are reported to have been largely abandoned and the civilians in the small villages throughout the zone have fled to escape the fighting.

The area is now militarized and heavily armed troops and Sandinistas in jungle outfits roam about, clashing occasionally in the guerrilla warfare that has developed since bloody September.

Sapoa, a village only two miles north of the Costa Rican border, is where President Anastasio Somoza's regional National Guard outpost is located. The makeshift forward base is in a row of ramshackle wooden shacks just off the highway.

guarded by an armored personnel carrier and two U.S.-built military jeeps with 50 caliber machine guns mounted on swivel tripods.

Soldiers waiting to go out on patrol lounge around, sprawled on the ground, resting their heads on backpacks or helmets, the U.S. M-16s or Israeli Uzis and Galils resting next to them. Rock music blares out of portable radios and tape decks.

Their commander is a tall, imposing man in his mid-30s, trained at Ft. Benning, Ga., who only wants to be identified as Comandante Bravo. He operates out of a goat-filled, stifling little room, whose soiled walls are covered with maps of southern Nicaragua and northern Costa Rica.

He says there are about 400 of his men deployed along the border, but independent military sources say the number of troops is closer to 2,500, or a third of the National Guard. Guerrilla strength is placed at 320.

Comandante Bravo's troops lead Somoza's fight to prevent a takeover of southern Nicaragua by guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN), now involved in a virtual "holy war" to overthrow the Nicaraguan president.

Some military analysts believe the guerrillas may be trying to seize the province to establish a provisional government in a liberated zone.

Guerrilla communiques abroad refer to the region as the "southern front", opened in October when the Sandinistas reportedly began to infiltrate the region from their suspected summer training camps in neighboring Costa Rica.

A top FSLN leader, Tomas Borge, told reporters in another country recently that the guerrillas in the area are led by Edén Pastora, the famous "Comandante Zero" of last August's siege of the National Palace in Managua.

One of Zero's lieutenants, a Spanish-born Roman Catholic priest turned guerrilla, the Rev. Gaspar Garcia Laviana, 37, was killed in a clash with troops in early December. However, thus far there has been no indication that Zero himself has taken part in any fighting here.

Tension in the region increased sharply by year's end when Somoza sealed the border indefinitely and threatened retaliatory raids into Costa Rica to strike at guerrilla bases. Analysts believe that if the invasion comes it could develop into a major Central American war.

Truck and tourist traffic has disappeared and now only military vehicles move on the highway, the soldiers alert, riding with their guns sticking out of their vehicles.

The dirt paths and fields and hills off the main road belong to the fighters, and few civilians venture into the hills or the farm lands.

Nicaraguan authorities report occasional guerrilla raids on the farms to steal food, cattle and horses, and sometimes to draft farm hands into their army.

A few days ago Nicaragua charged that the guerrillas abducted four peasants from a hacienda and took them across into a Costa Rican base. Also, authorities say the guerrillas mutilate and kill suspected army informants, and human rights organizations in Managua accuse National Guardsmen of torturing and sometimes killing guerrilla sympathizers in the region.

Some political and military analysts believe the Southern Front style of fighting developed out of necessity because of the apparent failure of the guerrillas' much-advertised national offensive against Somoza.

Physicians Fail To Seek Help

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doctors are more prone to alcoholism, drug addiction, depression and suicide than other people and less likely to seek professional help, says a psychiatrist who has studied emotionally disturbed physicians.

"Patients may be taking great risks with sick doctors, especially mentally sick doctors," Dr. Robert E. Jones, said in the January issue of "The Sciences," a publication of the New York Academy of Sciences.

In one study, Jones found only 17 percent of doctors ultimately hospitalized for mental problems had sought care before they became so ill they had to be put in the hospital.

"This means," he reported, "that 83 percent of these ailing doctors were practicing impaired and undetected."

Even if the emotionally-disturbed doctors are put in a hospital, they are less likely to remain in treatment than other patients are, said Jones, a clinical professor of psychiatry at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia.

In Chicago, Frank Chappell, spokesman for the American Medical Association, said up to 10 percent of the nation's 600,000 physicians have a problem with alcoholism, drug addiction, depression or suicide sometime in their career.

The AMA sponsors annual conferences on "the impaired physician" and 25 state medical societies have programs directed at such doctors.

"The object is not to put the doctor out of business but to help him get back to practice," Chappell said.

Monitoring conduct of the physician population in those states, said Chappell, accounted for a six-fold increase in disciplinary actions in the six-year period ending in 1977.

Actions included revocation of licenses in cases where doctors should not see patients, suspension of narcotics permits, censuring. There were 119 such actions in 1977 and 485 in 1977.

Jones said depression accounts for two-thirds of the admissions of doctors to psychiatric wards, a percentage much greater than that encountered in the mental hospital population as a whole.

Rising Hospital Costs Aid Home Care Firms

By LEROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — The high cost of hospital care is giving a boost to private companies that provide home health care.

Such companies currently are doing an annual business of between $150 million and $250 million.

The low estimate is by Thomas Mader of Stanford Research Institute in Palo Alto, Calif. Estimates by people in the business are higher.

At least four companies are active in providing home health care on a national basis and there are thousands of local nurses' registries that provide practical and registered nurses for chronic and acutely ill patients in the home.

Mader said the business done by such companies as Quality Care, Inc., of Valley Stream, N.Y., Upjohn Home Care Services of Kalamazoo, Mich., Staff Builders of New York City and Medical Personnel Pool of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is still only a tiny portion of the money being spent on home health care.

He said sales of the companies are growing by about 10 percent a year. If only nursing and medical care are considered, the market is about $1.5 billion annually. If custodial home care of invalids is added, the market is $2 billion a year and the total need is growing by 25 percent a year because of the high costs and various objections to hospitalization and other institutional alternatives.

Quality Care says the cost contrast is dramatic: under $50 for a 10-hour day on the average for home care with practical nurse against $152 a day, the national average for a hospital room. Of course, under some circumstances where nursing service must be provided around the clock, the cost of home care can go up sharply.

A Blue Cross study not long ago said 25 percent of all hospital patients could recover at home with some level of nursing care.

The trained home health aides recruited by firms such as Quality Care do a combination of practical nursing under the family doctor's orders and light housekeeping for about $5 an hour. Some patients need only a few visits weekly and many private insurance plans will pay for this care.

Blue Cross recently reported that the home health care services it pays for save from 10.2 to 18.5 hospital days per case or from $300 to $900 per case. The Chelsea-Village home health program operated out of St. Vincent's Hospital in New York reported savings of $340,000 a year for just 70 patients.

Rep. Claude Hepper, D-Fla., has been criticizing Medicare rules on home health care as being too stringent. He wants what he calls Medicare's "institutional Bies" reversed to favor more home care.

The present Medicare rules, he said, require the patient to have been hospitalized for three days, say the home care must be "skilled" and that the patient must be considered "homebound." At the visits Medicare will pay for are limited to 100 for a single spell of illness.

The importance of any savings that are achieved by home health care is a derelict by the fact that the nation's total annual health care bill is estimated to have soared from $12 billion in 1967 to $182 billion in 1977.

The American Management Association's Professional Institute is pushing much better management training needed in hospitals and the whole health care industry.

This will be one of the themes of the second annual conference on Health Care in the American Economy sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield at San Antonio Jan. 21-24.

Schlesinger Surrounded By Rumors

By EDWARD K. BELONG
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer groups say Energy Secretary James A. Schlesinger favors the big energy industry. Oil executives say he shows little sympathy for their problems. His own employees grumble about the way he does his job.

There have been rumors Schlesinger was about to be fired or quit. There has been rumors he might be named America's first ambassador to China. None of the rumors has proven accurate. But the serve to underscore the complex, often conflicting currents that swirl around Schlesinger.

As the nation's first secretary of energy, and the only Republican in the Carter Cabinet, Schlesinger enjoys the full support of his boss in the White House. He has earned that support with a long record of accomplishments in the past two years.

It was Schlesinger who: —Helped shape the energy policies proposed by Carter the candidate. —Pushed creation of the Energy Department through Congress for Carter the president. —Worked behind closed doors with few aides to draft, in 90 hectic days, a comprehensive energy plan Carter issued April 20, 1977. —Spent 18 months, often marked by bitter fighting and delicate compromise to win congressional approval of an acceptable version of Carter's energy proposals.

Schlesinger left ruffled feathers on all sides.

Members of Congress said his approach was too arrogant, his positions too slippery. Consumer groups pointed to his support for natural gas price controls and nuclear power as evidence he was biased in favor of the big energy industry. Industry officials opposed his endorsement of conservation and said it was doing too little to encourage production.

Schlesinger himself acknowledges the rapid way the original Carter energy plan was drafted left it spotted with problems including too little emphasis on energy supply.

In a way, he also acknowledges the criticism of his employees that the Energy Department is poorly organized. He says pulling together the department — 20,000 employees, with a $10 billion budget — from a host of other agencies suffered because of the need to devote high-level attention to action in Congress and the lack of a comprehensive national policy until Congress acted.

Schlesinger's looks belie his nature. He wears rumpled suits. Occasional his socks don't match. He constantly sucks a pipe. He will turn 50 on Feb. 11 but his silver hair makes him appear older. He sounds and acts like the college professor he once was.

Professional though he may be, absent minded he is not. He is a durable government veteran, a survivor, who describes himself as a conservative Republican and has been called by others an "all-purpose man."

He was hired by Richard Nixon, fired by Gerald Ford, re-hired by Carter.

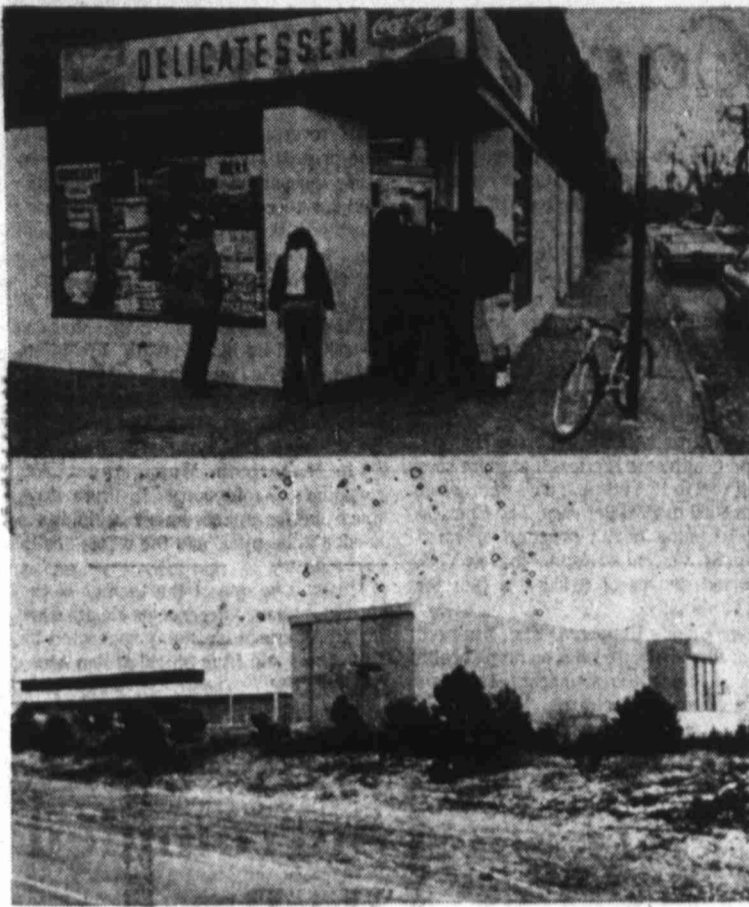

In 1970, Schlesinger, assistant director of the Office of Management and Budget, angered the military with his budget pruning. He was named chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, the secretary of defense.

Schlesinger is regarded as one of the administration's most knowledgeable China watchers. He has made two trips to Peking and other cities to discuss energy cooperation and attended Chairman Mao Tse-tung's funeral because he was in China when Mao died.

New York Holdup Investigators Stumped On Location Of Money

NEW YORK (AP) — "Seek and ye shall find" are hardly the words on the lips of investigators hunting more than $7 million in cash taken last month during two holdups that rank among the biggest in U.S. history.

It was four weeks ago today that a gang of masked men put a shotgun to the head of a night manager at Kennedy Airport and stole more than $5 million in cash and $800,000 in jewels from the Lufthansa Airlines cargo terminal. Police described it as a record take.

And it has been almost three weeks since a second gang handcuffed two Wells Fargo security guards in a Staten Island delicatessen, then surprised their partner and took $2.2 million cash from an armored truck.

There have been hundreds of leads since the robberies, officials say, but no arrests have been made and none of the money has been recovered.

Authorities refuse to say much about either case but indicate it could be a long time before arrests are made.

A source close to the Lufthansa investigation, who asked not to be named, said: "Nothing really has changed the last couple of weeks."

FBI spokesman Quentin Ertel says the bureau is doing "a lot of leg work" on the Lufthansa robbery. As for the Wells Fargo robbery, he said: "The status of that case is pretty much the same as the other one."

Lt. Joseph Carroll, who heads the Wells Fargo investigation, said he and others working full time on the Wells Fargo holdup are "backtracking on every conceivable clue."

But he added: "We have nothing definite in sight."

The German-based Lufthansa airline, however, has not lost hope. Said company spokesman Felix Baxter: "We are absolutely convinced this thing will be solved. The American law enforcement agencies are the best in the world. There is no question about it."

Income Statistics Not Accurate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government income statistics do not accurately reflect the impact of inflation on the average incomes of residents around the nation, according to an economic research group.

The National Center for Economic Alternatives said Sunday that, for example, the Census Bureau points to Alaska, Connecticut and New Jersey as having the highest per capita incomes in the United States in 1977.

However, when prices are taken into account, Alaska ranks 20th, Connecticut 7th and New Jersey 16th, the center said.

The group's figures show the highest average incomes in terms of purchasing power are earned, in order, by residents of Nevada, Delaware and Wyoming.

"Everyone knows how well off you are depends not only on the money you earn but also on the prices you pay," said Gar Alperovitz, co-director of the center. "Government income statistics do not take account of the cost of heating your home in South Dakota or buying food in Maine," he added.

The center noted that real income in the Northeast is severely affected by the high cost of basic necessities.

"It has been fashionable among Washington policy makers to dismiss the decline of the northeastern economies as exaggerated," Alperovitz said. "But when you consider the relative costs of living, it appears that the decline has actually been understated."

A center study said the average income

Drivers Return License Plates

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — About 100 people have turned their automobile license plates back into the Scott County courthouse in the last month because they don't like the three-letter prefix GAY.

State Department of Transportation officials issued 1,000 licenses with that combination this year — mostly in eastern Iowa.

The returnees in Scott County were upset because "gay" is a synonym for homosexual, officials said.

Among the people who returned their plates was one man who said two men in Chicago kicked the sides of his car after seeing his GAY plates.

"He thought that if they were going to cause that kind of reaction he'd better return them," said assistant treasurer Henry Farber.

The uproar has even caused state officials to consider eliminating the prefix when new plates go on sale in six years.

The state's plates traditionally include three letters and three numerals, but most of the potentially offensive combinations were not used.

Scott County treasurer William Cusack said he couldn't understand the decision to use GAY, when the state already had ruled out GAG, GAT and GEE prefixes for his area.

of each adult and child in New York state, for example, was $7,537, or 12th in the country, in 1977. But after prices are accounted for, New York ranks 27th, with an adjusted per capita income of $6,696, the report said.

Massachusetts dropped from 14th to 37th and the other New England states also declined, it said.

The group said it took the government's state figures on per capita income and adjusted them to account for estimated living costs in each state. It measured comparative prices but not price increases.

There are no state-by-state figures published on prices, but the center estimated them by taking average costs in major cities in each state. It also figured out the rural-urban composition of the state and what its spending habits are likely to be.

Government officials said it can be difficult to adjust their figures for living costs because people spend their money on different products in each state.

For instance, the price of heating fuel would be more important in Alaska and Maine than in Florida, they said.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 8:22-29, The Living Bible

22 One day about that time, when He and His disciples were in a boat, He said, "Let's go across to the other side of the lake."

23 On the way He lay down for a nap, and while He was sleeping, the wind began to rise. A fierce storm developed that threatened to swamp them, and they were in real danger.

24 They went over and woke Him up, screaming, "Master, Master, we are sinking!" He woke up and told the storm, "Quiet down," and wind and waves subsided, and all was calm!

25 Then He asked them, "Where is your faith?" And they were filled with awe and fear of Him and said to one another, "Who is this man, that even the winds and waves obey Him?"

26 So they arrived at the other side, in the Gerasene country across the lake from Galilee.

27 As He was climbing out of the boat, a man had been demon-possessed for a long time. Homeless and naked, he lived in a cemetery among the tombs.

28 As soon as he saw Jesus, he shrieked and fell down before Him, screaming, "What do You want with me, Jesus, Son of God Most High? Please, I beg You, oh, don't torment me!"

29 For Jesus was already commanding the demon to leave him. This demon had often taken control of the man, so that even when he was shackled with chains, he simply broke them apart and rushed out into the desert, completely controlled by the demon.

Carter Runs Parties During Island Summit

GOSIER, Guadeloupe (AP) — President Carter jogged, went fishing and scuba diving and attended a shipboard party given by British Prime Minister James Callaghan as he vacationed briefly with his wife and daughter on this French Caribbean island.

The Carters were staying on until Tuesday after the president's summit meeting with his three chief European allies — Callaghan, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Returning from a seven-hour boating expedition that featured fishing and scuba diving, Carter declined to comment on the reports that Vietnamese troops were making huge gains into Cambodia in support of a rebel Communist movement.

"I don't really want to get into analyzing the Cambodian situation," the president told reporters.

Asked what he had heard about the situation, Carter instinctively reverted to the nomenclature of the Vietnam War, replying: "Only just that the Viet Cong have taken Phnom Penh."

The president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, also declined to comment on the Cambodian situation. But he recalled privately that several months ago he predicted a proxy war between the Soviet Union and China with Hanoi fighting for Moscow and Phnom Penh standing in for Peking.

The president began his Sunday with a 6:30 a.m. jogging expedition. In the evening he attended a reception given by Callaghan aboard the frigate Scylla.

The two-day summit ended Saturday with the four leaders insisting that their views on the world's problems were harmonious and agreeing that the West's new links with China should not be an obstacle to dealing with the Russians.

"We found no divergence among us," Giscard, playing down differences of opinion over arms sales to China and support for Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran.

"Because of the almost unprecedented harmony that exists among us," Carter told reporters, "I have never attended a conference that was more beneficial to me nor more substantive in nature."

But Schmidt was known to have warned that if the British and French sell China the warplanes and other arms it wants to buy from them, this might provoke the Russians into making trouble, possibly in Berlin.

Schmidt also was reported less optimistic than the others about the state's chances of keeping his throne.

Giscard, Callaghan and Schmidt called for conclusion of a new strategic arms limitation agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union and urged the U.S. Senate to ratify it.

The meeting was billed as a friendly, informal discussion of the state of the world. The leaders said in advance they would take no formal decisions.

Area Farmers To Meet Here Before Joining Tractorcade

Farm tractors, a familiar sight in Lubbock last winter, will return to the city Friday as area American Agriculture Movement farmers meet at the civic center to prepare for a nationwide tractorcade to Washington, D.C.

Tractors from an area stretching from Plainview south to Ropesville will gather here to "get the tractors ready to head out to Big Spring," according to Marvin Meek, one of the district "wagonmasters" for the trek.

Meek said he has no estimate of the number of tractors that will participate, but said he expects "maybe 50."

The tractors are scheduled to leave the civic center Saturday morning for Big Spring, he said.

Plans for the national tractorcade were made Sunday in Amarillo by American Agriculture Movement delegates from 15 states.

The number of tractors that will begin travel along interstate highways toward Washington on Jan. 15 has not been determined, said Gerald McCathern of Hereford, planner of the organizational meeting.

But once the tractors arrive at the Capitol around Feb. 2, he said, he expects as many farmers as last year when an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 clogged Washington streets.

Cooperation from Washington-area police has been assured, said Sam White of Stratford, a member of American Agriculture's lobbying staff in Washington.

The parade permit is expected to be granted on Feb. 1, he said.

The group of about 100 heard an Atlanta University professor explain how farmers should seek support from city dwellers for higher agricultural prices.

George Harris, Princeton University-educated professor of social work, said farmers needed backing from urban areas if they were to achieve their goals.

"Come to the cities to scare us and you lose," Harris said. "We're already scared to death."

He cited fears from nuclear war and the problems of high costs of living in cities as reasons that could turn city dwellers against farmers.

"If you take it to the American people that the issue is only 100 percent of parity — an economic issue — you'll be perceived as being just another group looking for the government to bail you out," he said.

Instead, Harris said, farmers need to explain that the quality of rural life is threatened by the loss of farm profits.

Harris told reporters he first became interested in the American Agriculture Movement last year when a tractorcade came to Atlanta and he saw that the only political leader in Georgia interested in the farmers' cause was Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson.

Harris, who researched rural poverty for four years, said the problems of the rural poor are growing and failure by American Agriculture to boost farm income will boost the numbers of those on welfare.

"The poor wind up in cities," he said. "There's no plan to help people stay in the countryside."

Farmers are hoping their lobbying efforts will influence Congress to raise current loan levels to 90 percent of parity, and then to 100 percent of parity in the next farm bill. Parity is a measure of farm prices compared to industrial prices.

Farmers also are seeking to curb imported beef and label imported meat with its point of origin; draw crop land set-aside provisions that would stabilize supply and demand of farm produce; and limit importation of raw and processed agricultural commodities to a level that will not interfere with 100 percent of parity.

Tractors tentatively are scheduled to leave from seven cities, including Amarillo, on Jan. 15 for the nation's capital. Proposed routes travel along interstate highways.

Stops are planned about every 100 miles.

Alvin Jenkins, a delegate from Campo, Colo., told the group that while the U.S. Department of Agriculture brags that farm income rose by 20 percent last year, it says little about an estimated 44 percent net loss in profits because of increased costs.

Total farm debt now stands at $139 billion, Jenkins said, which includes land mortgages and equipment — supply debts.

According to agriculture department figures, debt of farmers nationwide for equipment and supplies has risen from $46 million in 1977 to an estimated $55.4 million last year.

McCathern compared the timing of the demonstrations to the way the American Revolutionary War was fought. Winter soldiers fought the war and returned to farming in the spring, he said.

Farmers demonstrate in winter, instead of during the spring planting and summer harvesting seasons, because a shutdown then would require a farmer to quit operations for the full year, McCathern said.

Because of government regulations that set crop allotments on the basis of past planting records, he said, farmers hesitate to stop for a full year in order to protect their allotments in the future.

Delegates at Sunday's meeting came from Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Illinois, Ohio, New Mexico, Colorado, Virginia, Montana, and South Dakota.

Tractors are tentatively scheduled to leave from seven cities on Jan. 15 for the nation's capital. Proposed routes of travel are along interstate highways.

Registration Stays On Schedule

Icy weather is not expected to interfere with registration for spring semester classes at Texas Tech University, Lubbock Christian College or South Plains College, school officials said today.

Administrators at Tech and LCC have said they are aware of the problems many students are having in traveling back to Lubbock on the state's icy highways.

"We will work with students as the need develops," Tech registrar D.N. Peterson said. Registration for the spring semester is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, with classes starting Thursday.

Peterson said administrators will decide Tuesday whether extension of the registration period is necessary.

Registration for LCC began today and will end Tuesday, with classes scheduled to start Wednesday. College president Dr. Harvie Pruitt said he didn't expect the icy conditions to hamper registration since their late registration period extends through Jan. 25.

"Unless it gets a lot worse we'll just stay on that schedule and expect some late registration," Pruitt said.

Auto Prices Expected To Go Even Higher

DETROIT (UPI) — The Big Four car-makers since last summer have boosted 1979 prices nearly 6.5 percent, or $450 over last year's models, and some industry observers say prices are likely to go even higher.

The industry now has raised its prices a full percentage point higher than price hikes on 1978 models. But because its initial 1979 price hike was overlooked under President Carter's anti-inflation guideline, automakers are well below the price ceiling.

A spokesman for the Council on Wage and Price Stability administering the president's program said he is satisfied with the auto industry's pricing actions.

"We are concerned primarily with what the companies do over the course of the year, not with individual price increases," spokesman Thomas Joyce said. "If they can decelerate prices under the guideline formula during the year, they are meeting the standards."

Ford Motor Co. last week capped the third round of Big Four price increases since the end of the 1978 model year, adding $124 to the sticker of its average car.

It was the latest example of an "interim pricing" strategy the automakers adopted last spring to keep pace with rising production costs by raising prices more often, but by smaller amounts.

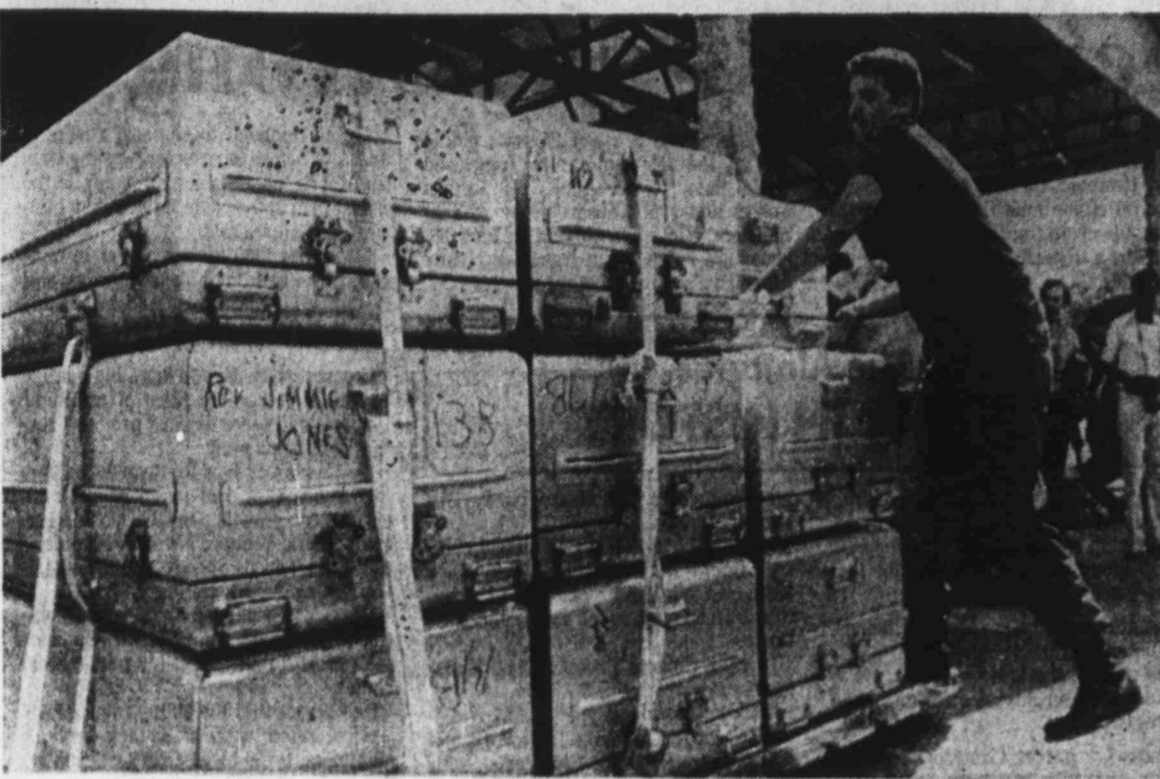

Since the close of the 1978 model year, Ford has raised prices an average $450 or 6.5 percent; General Motors has added $477, also a 6.5 percent increase; Chrysler Corp. has upped its prices $388 or 6 percent and American Motors Corp. has boosted its prices $294 or 5.8 percent.

Company officials declined to discuss their future pricing plans, but said any further adjustments will be in line with the president's anti-inflation program. "We have committed ourselves to abide by those guidelines and we intend to honor that commitment," a GM spokesman said.

However, one industry analyst said he expects the automakers by late summer will have added another $225 to the price of their 1979 models, still without breaking the federal guidelines.

"But I don't think you can call it price deceleration," Wall Street analyst Arvid Jouppe said. The guidelines were "too loosely drawn as far as the auto companies are concerned," he said.

UNCERTAIN FUTURE FOR JONESTOWN DEAD — The bodies of Jonestown, Guyana, victims, including that of the Rev. Jim Jones, left, are stacked for loading aboard U.S. aircraft last November in Georgetown, Guyana, awaiting shipment back to the United States. More than six weeks after the People Temple death ritual, more than 600 bodies remain stacked in a Dover, Del., air force base hangar awaiting plans for their fate. (AP Laserphoto)

Bodies Of Jonestown Victims Remain In Freezing Hangar

DOVER, Del. (AP) — The bodies of 631 Peoples who died in the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide are stacked in government-purchased coffins in an aging, freezing airplane hangar, their final resting places uncertain.

The federal government apparently has no plans to move from Dover Air Force Base the victims of the Nov. 18 incident at the jungle colony in Jonestown, Guyana.

"It looks like no one wants to do anything," said Charles Wyman, a State Department attorney assigned here. "I was told in no uncertain terms that the government has neither the authority nor the funds to release the bodies."

on and magnified out of proportion by Evans," he said.

Delaware has allowed local morticians to transport the bodies out of state but has prevented local burial or cremation by requiring death certificates, which had to be issued in Guyana.

Wyman said the first 599 death certificates arrived in Washington Thursday, but Battle R. Robinson, assistant counsel to du Pont, said other Delaware laws still could prohibit a mass cremation of the bodies here.

For instance, Mrs. Robinson said, Delaware requires a cremation certificate signed by a physician or coroner stating there is no reason not to destroy a particular body.

Follow-Up

Wyman said many relatives have told the State Department they cannot afford to transport and bury or cremate the bodies. Many relatives apparently are waiting for the government or some charitable group to pay the costs, he said.

Next of kin have been notified of the deaths of 635 positively identified cultists, but 333 of those bodies remained unclaimed at the base as of Sunday night. There also were 278 unidentified bodies.

"I don't know what the solution is going to be," Wyman said. "Obviously there's going to be a solution. We can't leave them there in the hangar."

Wyman said Air Force pathologists in Washington are still trying to name the unidentified corpses, but the pace has slowed considerably. Only two bodies have been identified since Dec. 19.

All 913 of the decomposed bodies were fingerprinted before being placed in hermetically sealed coffins, but Wyman said the Air Force has had trouble locating fingerprint records for many victims, particularly children.

The U.S. military flew the bodies here from Jonestown. According to Wyman, the government had to get the bodies out of Guyana to pacify local officials there.

But bringing the bodies here upset some Delaware officials.

Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV asked President Carter last month to have the military fly the bodies to San Francisco, where the Rev. Jim Jones' cult began and where many of the relatives live. Carter has not responded, said du Pont news secretary Frederick Stern.

Both du Pont and Dover Mayor Charles A. Legates Jr. have insisted that no mass burial be made near Dover. They fear the site would become a shrine to the cultists.

Rep. Thomas Evans, R-Del., met with State Department officials two weeks ago to press for quick disposal of the bodies, but Wyman denied Evans' contention that the department promised a decision by Feb. 1. "That date was sort of seized

Man To Face Charges For Hijack Case

EL PASO (AP) — William Bruce Johnson, 29, of St. Paul, Ark., was ordered to appear before a federal magistrate today to face charges of attempted air piracy.

Authorities accused Johnson, unarmed at the time, of trying to hijack a Continental Airlines Boeing 727 Saturday night as it was about to take off for Austin and Houston. The flight had originated in Los Angeles.

An airline official said Johnson boarded the flight in El Paso and was removed after he demanded to be flown to Washington to see President Carter.

The defendant was ordered to stand before U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth for arraignment.

"No weapon was utilized and no weapon was found on Johnson," said FBI Special Agent O. Leon Dobbs.

Wayne Curto, Continental's operations manager in El Paso said Flight 68 continued east after Johnson was removed.

"He handed a note to one of the attendants saying he wanted to go to Washington to see the president," Curto said. "The pilot turned (the plane) around, went back to the gate, turned the guy over to security personnel and that's all there was to it."

Auto Specialists Going Strong

By LEROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI)—It may come as a surprise that the Midas Muffler shops still sell about 7,000 mufflers a year for Model A Ford cars, not manufactured for 47 years.

This could be dismissed as an item of business trivia except that according to Midas President Richard de Camara it highlights an important trend in the American economy.

"Motorists and other Americans are increasingly dependent on specialized chain outfits like Midas for service on a wide range of consumer goods," said de Camara. "This is most noticeable in the automobile world."

Two important traditional service providers — the service departments of automobile dealers and the full service gasoline stations — are rapidly going the way of the Model A, according to de Camara.

The impact is being felt particularly in the larger cities where there are vastly fewer full-service gasoline stations and garages than there used to be, said de Camara, who was put in charge of Midas early this year by IC Industries, Inc., of Chicago. IC acquired the chain from Nate Sherman, the founder.

"As for the new car dealers' service departments, it's increasingly difficult to get service without making an appointment days in advance — and the job often takes days to finish once one gets one," he said.

Not so many years ago, any garage would get you a muffler for even a Model A Ford on reasonably short notice. Now that often is a tough proposition unless you go to one of the specialized muffler shops.

De Camara says the erosion of the traditional service centers gives firms like Midas, Rayco, Speedy Muffler and the various automotive transmission and brake service chains an excellent growth opportunity.

The small independent mechanical shop also can do well if the proprietor is a good craftsman and a good businessman. However, the average motorist may have an easier time finding the nearest reputable chain transmission repair service than a dependable independent mechanic.

Midas, which is about 22 years old, is one of the pioneers in the franchised chain auto service shops. It installs brakes and shock absorbers as well as mufflers. Ninety-five percent of its 1,100 shops are independent franchises, many of which also provide other services.

Rayco, founded to sell seat covers in the days before the new long-lasting vinyl and fabric upholstery, probably is the oldest firm in the chain service shop business, de Camara said.

Midas has $150 million a year in muffler, brake and shock absorber sales, and de Camara is getting new franchised muffler shops opened at the rate of 100 a year.

Competitively, he still has a big market to nibble at because sales of mufflers, tailpipes and other exhaust products run to $2.4 billion a year.

De Camara is banking heavily on the high profit appeal of independent franchising for growth. One of his biggest competitors, Tenneco's Walker Manufacturing Co. and its Speedy Muffler chain, is company owned.

Midas also is a recreational vehicle and trailer marketer with 500 dealers and sales of $150 million, mainly mini-motor homes.

De Camara said the ability to give fast service, often without making an appointment, is the biggest sales weapon of the service chains.

Toy Originated In South America

By SHARI LEWIS

Amazing history shows that natives — primitives all over the world — seem to have invented the same toys! Here's a great toy that was created by Indians in South America, Eskimos in Alaska and tribesmen in Africa. They used hemp or strips of knotted leather. You can make your version with stuff around the house. Here's how:

Put one empty wooden thread spool at each end of a long piece of heavy string. Knot each end of the string to keep the spools from falling off. Fold the string in half and slip a section of a plastic soda straw onto the folded center. That's it!

Here's how you play: Hold the center (and the straw) in one hand and one of the spools in the other. Swing the loose spool in a circle in any direction, and while that one is circling toss the other spool in the opposite direction.

Be careful to swing this toy at arm's length, away from your face.

bringing the possibility of more precipitation, is expected about Wednesday. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

Legislators Eye Fight

AUSTIN (UPI) — Legislators began converging on the Capitol today for Tuesday's opening of the 1979 Legislative session, the first in 105 years with a Republican in the governor's chair.

Although the session does not open until noon Tuesday, already there are signs of a spirited rules fight in the House and uncertainty among members about the administration of Governor-elect Bill Clements.

A group called the Sam Houston Caucus announced it will push for at least 16 changes in House rules, many of which are opposed by Speaker Bill Clayton.

The caucus, originated last summer when a number of representatives expressed resentment at what they considered strong arm tactics by Clayton, proposes rules changes to allow committees to elect chairmen rather than having the chairmen appointed by the speaker, and a series of other changes that would reduce the power the speaker holds over members and legislation.

The Sam Houston Caucus also wants a secret ballot on Clayton's bid for election to an unprecedented third consecutive term as speaker. Clayton said he will oppose that suggestion.

"I'm for openness," he said. "This is one of the more important votes a member will ever cast, and I think his constituents have a right to know how he voted for speaker."

Clayton said he expects to distribute the proposed rules for the session on Tuesday, and begin debate on them Wednesday.

Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby is expected to make some major changes in Senate committee assignments for the 1979 session. Hobby's key appointment is selection of a successor to Sen. A.M. Aikin Jr., D-Paris, as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, is considered the most likely prospect for that position.

Outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe is tentatively scheduled to deliver his final address to the Legislature on Wednesday, and will present a budget recommending $1 billion in tax relief in addition to the approximately $1 billion in lower taxes mandated by the special session last summer.

Clements, who will be inaugurated Jan. 16 as the state's first Republican governor since 1874, has not set a date for presenting his budget proposals to the Legislature, but is expected to make his first appearance before the one or two days after he takes office.

Unusual Inaugurations Part Of State Culture

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texas' second governor, George T. Woods, absolutely refused to wear socks, not only to his 1847 inauguration but throughout his term.

His successor, Peter Hansbrough Bell, sported shoulder-length hair to his swearing-in ceremony, but probably received little argument about it — since the former Texas Ranger regularly carried a Bowie knife and two pistols.

Texas' newest governor-elect, Bill Clements, will be inaugurated Jan. 16, but he would have to go to extremes to outdo some of the inaugurals in Texas' colorful past.

Jack Maguire, executive director of the University of Texas Institute of Texas Cultures here, has researched Texas governors for several years and turned up these facts:

Sam Houston, opposed to Texas' secession from the Union, protested Texas' entry into the Confederacy by refusing to attend his second-term inaugural in 1861. Lt. Gov. Edward Clark stepped in and Houston returned to his Huntsville home.

In 1903, Gov.-elect S.W.T. Lanham and his family were forced to walk unescorted from the hotel to the ceremonies. It seems that in the excitement of the festivities, the inaugural committee neglected to arrange more fitting transportation.

The first inaugural ceremony at the present Capitol took place in 1889, with well-dressed guests filling the galleries and the House of Representatives chamber — but sitting on the floor. The furniture had not yet been installed.

W. Lee "Pappy" O'Daniel, the state's 33rd governor, took the oath of office before a crowd of 50,000 in the University of Texas Memorial Stadium.

He issued mass invitations through the press for his second inauguration in 1941 and invited everybody attending to stay for a barbecue on the grounds of the Executive Mansion. They consumed about 19,000 pounds of beef, mutton and buffalo.

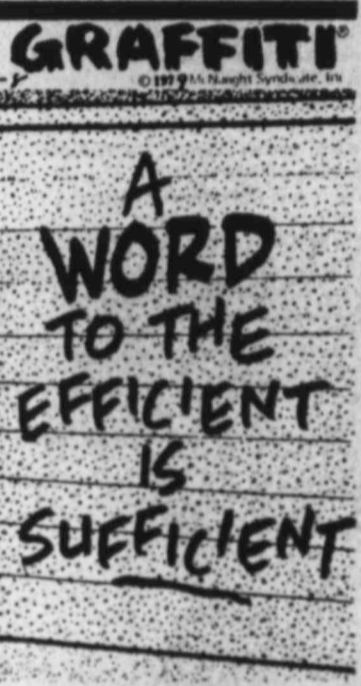

The first native son sworn in to office was James Stephen Hogg, who became governor in 1891. The event was marked by fireworks shot from the Capitol Dome, a torch parade, dances and the only inaugural banquet to be served at the Capitol.

When Miriam "Ma" Ferguson became the country's first woman governor in 1925, reporters couldn't resist a thorough description of Mrs. Ferguson's inaugural attire: "Mrs. Ferguson wore a black silk gown trimmed with wide gray fur and gray beads. Her hat was a brown, close-fitting creation with a turned down brim and black goose quills. She wore a black coat. Black satin slippers completed the costume."

Austin's historic Driskill Hotel hosted the inaugural ball of Gov. Lawrence Sullivan Ross in 1887. High society was in attendance and an eager hotel doorman was not about to allow in an unidentified, rough-edged old Indian fighter.

Not to be stopped, the crusty old frontiersman — who happened to be Ross' father, Prince — bellowed for the doorman to stand back or "I'll call my boy, Sul, out of there and we'll wreck the place."

He was admitted.

Armstrong Drops Church Members

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Four top officials of the Worldwide Church of God have been "disfellowshipped" by church founder Herbert W. Armstrong while preparations are made for a hearing this week on the church's temporary receivership.

The 86-year-old patriarch, who has remained in seclusion in Tucson, Ariz., while his followers in Pasadena traded shouts, shoves, and claims of authority over church operations, issued an excommunication order Saturday.

The disfellowship order, which forbids members of the church to speak to anyone so named, applied to C. Wayne Cole, David Antion, Robert Kuhn and Ben Chapman.

Armstrong's order, announced at the church headquarters here, threatens other church members with excommunication if they have anything to do with the men who were "disfellowshipped."

Cole was named by Armstrong last week to cooperate with the government's investigation into church operations, but he was then removed by Armstrong, after the state receiver put him in charge of the church.

Antion is a brother-in-law of Armstrong's son, Garner Ted, who was banished early last year because he reportedly would not keep quiet about church funds and operations. He has since begun his own Church of God International in Tyler.

Kuhn and Chapman have also held top posts in the 45-year-old organization with a membership of 96,000.

Shortly after the excommunications were announced, the state Department of Justice assigned 20 additional security guards to protect church records.

McGuirk Studies Sudden Warming

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Snow in Florida and budding trees in arctic Alaska could have something in common. They might someday even help predict what years Texans need to invest in snow tires.

James McGuirk, a Texas A&M meteorologist, says there is a relationship between certain kinds of colder-than-usual winter weather and a phenomenon known as stratospheric sudden warming that occurs miles above the earth.

McGuirk wants to look at the last 80 years of weather information in the United States and Canada to see if certain signs can warn of the kinds of severe winters suffered nationwide in late 1976 and January 1977.

No one quite knows the whole picture, says McGuirk, because very cold winter weather is not always tied to anything in the stratosphere, the behavior of which is also not completely understood.

Huge distortions in the jet stream develop, explains McGuirk, and at any one time it may warm Alaska to the point where trees bud, while snow falls in tropical Florida.

"These distortions, which accompany stratospheric sudden warming, apparently have occurred in about half the years since 1952. Perhaps half of those have resulted in severe surface weather and unseasonable conditions," he said.

By examining pressure and temperature data compiled since 1900, McGuirk says he hopes to pin down the relationship of stratospheric sudden warmings and what is happening on the ground.

If patterns emerge, they could serve as warnings for scientists about the likelihood of future stratospheric sudden warmings and the results they might have on the surface thousands of feet below.

In plotting weather summaries on maps, McGuirk has demonstrated that the 1977 reports of snow in Florida, warm weather in Alaska and dry weather in the West all had similar counterparts during January of 1958, 1963 and 1971 — times of stratospheric sudden warming disruptions.

His efforts have received support from Organized Research, a special fund established by the Legislature to foster research of benefit to Texans.

Recipe, Techniques Aid 'Bread-Maker'

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — There's nothing like fresh baked bread right from the oven. Many homemakers haven't attempted to make their own because of the difficult directions given in cookbooks. Darily Council, Inc. home economists would like to present a recipe and several techniques for taking the doubt out of bread making.

EASY DOES IT BREAD
2/3 cup milk
1/3 cup butter
2/3 cup sugar
2 pkgs. dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
3 eggs, slightly beaten
2/3 cup water
6-7 cups sifted flour
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
Scald the milk in a pan. Remove from heat and add butter, sugar and salt. While this mixture is cooling, dissolve the yeast in 1/2 cup of water in a large mixing bowl; add eggs, water and the cooled mixture. Sift flour and nutmeg together and add, one cup at a time, to the liquid. A mixer may be used to combine the first few cups of flour. The flour may then be mixed in by hand until the dough leaves the sides of the bowl and becomes hard to mix. Place flour on a smooth surface in preparation for kneading. Kneading the dough develops the gluten, a type of protein in the flour. Make sure that your hands are well-floured as you work flour into the dough. This step is nothing more than folding the dough over itself and pressing it with the heels of your palms. After each fold and press, rotate the dough. You don't need to be concerned about treating it gently. The dough is kneaded enough when it has a smooth elastic surface.
Next the dough has to rise in a warm place. You have two options:
Grease the bowl in which the dough was mixed, or divide the dough in half and lightly grease two one-gallon freezing bags. Place the dough in the bags, fasten at the ends, remove as much air as possible, to allow plenty of room for the dough to expand.
The best place for the dough to rise is in the oven. Preheat the oven at 200 degrees for one minute. Turn it off and place the bags of dough or the pan in the warm oven. It will take 45-75 minutes for the dough to double in bulk. At this point you have a very large, fluffy mass. The dough should now be squeezed in order to remove excess air which appears in the form of large bubbles. If the dough is too sticky, use a little flour on your hands to pinch the dough into two-inch balls. Place the buns on greased cookie sheets. Preheat the oven again, and allow the bread to rise again. When doubled in size, remove from oven. Bake at 400 degrees for 10-15 minutes until golden brown and crusty. Makes two dozen buns.

PARBOIL
Parboiling potatoes for five minutes cuts baking time to 40 minutes in a 400 degree oven.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQJ72 ♥KQ1083 ♦AQ♦7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand is worth 20 points at a major suit contract, and partner has shown at least 6 points. Therefore, you want to be in game. Since partner should have at least a three-card fit for one of your suits, we suggest you bid four hearts. Three hearts is acceptable, but it wastes time since you have no intention of playing three no trump if partner bids it.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q8652 ♥A106 ♦KJ5 ♦83
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—One spade. With 10 points in high cards, a good three-card fit for partner's suit and a ruffing value, your hand is just too strong for a simple raise to two hearts. You are worth two bids, so you should start by introducing your five-card major suit.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦74 ♥AK1082 ♦K94 ♦J93
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦
1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner must have a better than minimum opening, for he made a free bid when he could have passed the one spade overcall. Therefore, your 11 points should be enough for game.

especially since you also hold a good five-card suit. The only bid that does justice to your hand is a jump to three no trump.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KJ ♦AQJ762 ♦KQJ63
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Although partner has taken two bids, he does not promise much of a hand—the raise to three clubs was not forcing. Nevertheless, we feel your hand should offer excellent play for game even though you are void in partner's suit. The surest way to get there is to bid five clubs now.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦83 ♥96 ♦AKQ7 ♦J8752
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Partner has shown a red two-suiter. He did not double at his first opportunity because he was short in spades, and he did not overcall in hearts perhaps because his suit wasn't strong enough. However, you have a most useful hand on this auction, and should invite game. We feel that a jump to three diamonds is the prudent way to do this.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q87642 ♥A92 ♦A ♦AQ5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—This is by no means clear-cut. North might well have a sub-minimum two-over-one response with a good six- or seven-card diamond suit, so we would not fault you greatly if you elected to pass. However, North is likely to have cards outside the diamond suit since he can have no more than 6 points in his suit. Therefore, we would gamble on three no trump.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQJ7 ♥K83 ♦95 ♦AQ93
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 NT Pass Pass Dble.
Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Partner should have a weak hand and a long club suit—if he had a fair hand, he would have sat for one no trump doubled. Just be thankful that partner took out into clubs, rather than diamonds.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Whatever history may say about this generation, it will be duly recorded they had great teeth.

I can just see historians digging through the ruins and observing, "Good grief, Professor Harkins, there isn't one overbite...one chipped tooth...a single overlap. What do you suppose that means?"

What they may never know is that behind every successful smile stood a self-sacrificing mother who devoted her life to her child's teeth.

Braces became the status symbol of the '60s and even today outrank cruise control and colored sheets as luxury items. I dedicated myself to love and serve my son's mouth back in the late '60s when a dentist suggested to me that we see an orthodontist.

"Do you like the way your son's mouth looks?" asked the orthodontist.

I shrugged. "It's a little drafty sometimes from being open so much but other than that..."

"Look at it!" he chided. "Do you actually think he can approach adulthood with those teeth?"

"What's the matter with them?"

"Nothing, if he's going to go through life biting necks..."

Sitting in his office week after week reading the Bleeding Gums Journal while his son was being fitted into braces, I heard stories from the other women in the Tooth Cult.

"This is only the beginning," said one. "You'll make so many trips to this office your car will come here automatically..."

"You'll have to remind your son to brush morning, noon, and night..."

"You'll buy 50 toothbrushes in a month which he will lose..."

"Wait until he gets into retainers. He'll procrastinate, complain, and lose them every time you turn around..."

"You'll find his retainer in lockers, public restrooms, clothes hamper, library books, school buses, bleacher seats, sleeping bags, stuck in taffy..."

One woman said her daughter left her retainer on the plate and it melted with a pastrami sandwich in a microwave oven...

"The worst is when you've gone through eight or nine years of straightening his teeth and he enters into a mixed marriage with a girl with an overbite..."

"Sometimes," said a woman who never seemed to do anything but write checks and shake her head. "You'll laugh at all this..."

"When?" I asked.

"She looked at me with tears in her eyes. "Don't pin me down..."

STEPPIN' OUT — Disco fever! Catch it in a sizzly black satin ankle strap that's wickedly bare and enormously flattering, with a high spike heel.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have tried for six years to have a child. We've seen many fertility experts, and my husband's urologist now recommends artificial insemination.

We intend to go through with it and have decided to tell absolutely no one, with one exception—my husband's brother, Gene, who was told for a very special reason.

Instead of using sperm obtained at the regular sperm bank, we came up with the idea of using sperm donated by Gene. That way our child will inherit the physical features of my husband's family.

Gene has agreed to cooperate only if his wife approves. Abby, we don't want Gene to tell his wife because we're afraid if she knows that her husband is the biological father of my child it might cause problems later on.

We say it's Gene's sperm and he can do anything he wants with it. Are we wrong? Or is Gene?

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Dear All: It may be Gene's sperm, but if he wants his wife to know what he's doing with it, it's his right. And unless Gene's wife gives her unconditional approval I advise you to use an unknown donor.

DEAR ABBY: When you advised that family whose kids were being called atheists on how to defend themselves against the accusation, you seemed to be implying that there was something wrong with being an atheist. Well, I'm an atheist—with no apologies. I happen not to believe that God exists.

But contrary to what many religious people think, I have no desire to impose my disbelief on others or to hinder them from worshipping whatever god or gods they choose. Nor do I think that not believing in God frees me from responsibility to my fellow human beings. I consider myself as moral a person as most believers—and more moral than some I can think of! I'm certainly not a saint, but you don't find many of those in or out of church.

To me, denouncing people as atheists is as offensive and un-American as calling them papists or hebes. What people believe about God—or don't believe—is their own business. My advice to that family would be to tell their neighbors: "Judge us by what we do—not by what you think we believe." Or, in the words of a man whom some think was God and others, including you and me, consider merely a wise and good human being. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

The Slim Gourmet

Dining alone? Don't feel sorry for yourself. Think of the advantages. The dinner hour begins exactly when you want it to, not a minute sooner or later. And you've got the full attention of the world's most interesting, important person: yourself. What's more, you can afford to treat that person royally, with a choice of entree that might seem extravagant if you had to multiply by two, four or more.

Your guest for this evening can afford anything but excess calories, so tonight's menu features either "Creme of Crab" or "Filet Mignon Smothered in Mushrooms." Both dishes are very quick and easy to prepare—less than 10 minutes—since you don't want to keep such an important person waiting! Actually, you can make either of these dishes in less time than it takes to stop off in the local fast-food eatery. And, despite their expensive image, they probably cost less in cash as well as calories. If you dine alone frequently, why not have the ingredients on hand in your freezer?

These recipes can be doubled to serve two. Or, try the basic recipes with less expensive alternatives: tuna or hamburger.

CREME OF CRAB FOR ONE

3/4 or 4 oz. king crab, frozen or canned, undrained

3/4 cup skim milk

1 tsp. quick-blending flour

2 tbsps. dry sherry (or 2 tbsps. lemon juice)

1/4 tsp. dry mustard (or 1 1/2 tbsps. prepared mustard)

salt (or butter-flavored salt) and pinch of red cayenne pepper.

optional: pinch of MSG, pinch of nutmeg

1 slice toast, preferably high-fiber or protein bread

Defrost crab, if frozen. Stir milk, flour and wine (or lemon juice) and seasonings together in a non-stick sauce pan over moderate heat. Simmer, stirring, 3 to 4 minutes until sauce is very thick. Stir in crab and reheat to a simmer. Meanwhile, toast bread and slice into triangles. Spoon Creme of Crab over toast points. (Serve with salad or sliced tomatoes, if desired.) One serving, about 255 calories.

CREME OF TUNA FOR ONE — Substitute a 3 1/2-ounce can of water-packed solid white meat tuna, undrained, for the crab. Break into flakes before adding to the sauce. Add a dash of Worcestershire sauce, if desired. About 285 calories per serving.

FILET MIGNON SMOTHERED IN MUSHROOMS

small beef tenderloin steak, about 4 to 5 ounces, fresh or frozen

1 tsp. soy sauce

1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

2 tbsps. wine, dry white or red small clove garlic, minced (or 1/4 tsp. instant garlic)

salt, or onion salt, and coarse-ground pepper, to taste

1 cup mushrooms, thickly sliced or small whole (or 4-oz. can, drained)

1 slice high-fiber bread, toasted, quartered

It's not necessary to defrost steak first, if frozen. Put steak in a non-stick 8-inch cake or pie pan. Combine soy sauce, Worcestershire sauce, wine, garlic, salt and pepper. Spoon over steak. Broil 2 to 3 minutes, basting occasionally with pan liquid. Turn. Add mushrooms to the pan and baste with pan liquid. Broil to desired doneness, basting steak and mushrooms with juices (best if served rare). Meanwhile, toast bread and cut into quarters. Arrange steak on toast points and cover with mushrooms and pan juices. Makes one serving, about 280 calories.

HAMBURGER SMOTHERED IN MUSHROOMS — Substitute a quarter-pound lean ground round, shaped into an oval burger, for the steak. 270 calories per serving.

Pat Walker can make your new year bright.

With a trim new figure that's lovely and light!

Sure, you've been intending to do something about your weight problem for a long time now, but somehow you just never seem to get around to it.

Please don't put it off any longer. This, after all, is the season for resolutions—an excellent time for you to resolve to call Pat Walker's for the help you need to achieve a slender figure. You'll be as delighted as Leona Swoboda, who is three sizes smaller than when she started the program.

All my life I've tried every diet that came along. I've exercised, I've walked, but nothing seemed to work for me. I always seemed to gain it back.

I read about Pat Walker's in the paper and decided to give it a try. I learned to eat sensibly, because with this program there is no rigid diet.

Within two weeks I began to see results. I now have lost 33 inches and 20 pounds, and have gone from a size 14 to a size 8. I feel better and I look better.

Although I have reached my perfect figure, I will continue to go to Pat Walker's for the relaxing atmosphere and the private individual attention I receive.

I love the way I feel now, and my husband loves the way I look; this, to me, makes it all worthwhile!

Johnie Johnson Exxon Gains Friends With Service, Experience, Location

Thanks to our very good customers, the past year has been an eventful one for Johnie Johnson's Exxon at 34th Street and Knoxville Ave.

"In this beginning of 1979 our deep appreciation goes to each of you who have contributed to our growth; we pledge the best service we know, together with finest of products in the new year. Again, thanks."

It was during this year the Johnie Johnson's Exxon marked its first anniversary. It seems that a lot of Lubbock folks are glad to rely upon Johnie in his own business!

Johnie has over two decades experience including a 17-year tenure as front end specialist and more recently as service manager of a downtown Lubbock firm, and just over a year ago he acquired ownership of the big facility on 34th Street.

Qualified personnel staffs the firm headed by Johnson. Andy Lester is on hand as mechanic, with Albert Martin serving in the station. These are men with lots of friends and are men upon whom one can rely for the best of service.

"If you haven't become acquainted with this modern, convenient firm and its staff at 34th and Knoxville, then why not start the new year right with a visit? Perhaps a winterizing check of the family car is needed; bring it on in!

Features of Johnie Johnson Exxon, phone 795-5942, include:
Expert wheel alignment, with brake and front end work a specialty, and with quality Bear spin balancing and wheel alignment equipment utilized;
Shocks, mufflers, tail pipes;
Tires and batteries, together with other accessories;

Even tune-ups! (A mechanic is on duty six days a week.)

A state inspection station, Johnie Johnson Exxon is open long hours, seven days a week.

Huge access and parking aprons make "pulling in to Johnie's" most convenient, and not only is this convenience to be appreciated, but the entire facility is attractive, clean and thoroughly geared to efficiency in customer service.

Whether it is for gasoline, front end work or a tune up, whatever the service or product needed from Johnie's, one can be assured that this veteran in the field sincerely appreciates the trade and confidence.

"Johnie has been around a long time and likely already has served you. He welcomes old friends and new ones alike to come in, visit, and learn the habit of depending upon him . . . at the 34th Street and Knoxville corner."

TICK TOCK — FOR SELECTION, QUALITY, PRICES TO PLEASE

Storewide Price Cuts Posted In Tick Tock Clock Shop Sale

"When you consider all the facts (including the present January Clearance Sale), the Tick Tock Clock Shop in Monterey Center is the only choice!"

What a selection is offered... and what a list of really significant savings and services are afforded the area at Tick Tock Clock Shop.

This annual January Clearance Sale is underway, continuing through Jan. 13; just a few days left. So hurry!

All clocks, with exception of the Gazo line, are discounted in price for the sale. This means that wall and mantle models are marked $25 to $60 off!

And grandfather clocks are priced at $60 to $700 off! That's right, up to $700 discount at sale time.

New Lines Included

Tick Tock recently has added Seiko quartz clocks to its impressive list of prestigious lines, and these new Seikos are included in the sale.

There are hundreds of clocks on sale and from which to select at Tick Tock, from an economy $5.98 clock to the very finest collector items such as the $4,250 Morton & Gain limited edition clocks made in Spain (with the one at Tick Tock as one of the five still on the market throughout the world).

Be sure and see the quality Matthew Norman line also added. With jeweled movements, these gold plated clocks from Switzerland are among the most beautiful small units one likely has seen.

And see the novelty clocks, too, such as the Tyme Cascades ball bearing clock that is truly different, and unbelievable.

Also there is the weight-driven, cable-wind Vienna regulator, authentic copies of the Postal Regulator; the French Marbier reproduction prayer clock that not only strikes on the hour but also a few minutes afterward to signal "end of prayer period," hence its name.

There are antique clocks stocked, too, including an 1890 German wall clock. Full Westminster chimes are stocked.

Only Finest Workmanship

No clocks are stocked at Tick Tock with simulated wood cabinets or with plastic cabinets. Only finest materials is the rule.

"Dedicated to the belief that everyone should own a fine clock, Tick Tock is operated as a qualified clock specialty store where you get more than the time of day!"

Free delivery and set-up of grandfather clocks is a service.

Added Service

"And did you realize that invisible identification is placed on all repaired pieces and purchases at no extra charge? This can be quite a protection for you as owner of a fine timepiece."

A three-year limited warranty is another factor for depending upon Tick Tock.

Locally owned and operated by Al and Shirlene Juno, the Tick Tock Clock Shop is a family operation and is the only factory authorized service center in Lubbock for Howard Miller, Ridgeway, Pearl and Colonial clocks.

"We service what we sell, with in-store service provided" is further advantage at this better clock shop where particular people congregate.

"We invite you to take advantage of our sale... we want to be your clock specialists" is the sincere invitation from all at Tick Tock Clock Shop in Monterey Center.

Lines To Trust

Prestigious lines are the rule, including new ones that are added from time to time.

"Even if you have relied upon White's in months or years past, the current January Clearance Sale makes a trip there at this time especially advantageous... in fashion and budget-wise shopping."

Workshops, Classes, Products Galore Marking Village Craft

A most outstanding workshop and class schedule, involving former and new instructors, ushers in the new year at Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall.

Really exceptional opportunities are afforded in the instruction program beginning immediately.

To be assured of a place in one of the classes or workshops, immediate inquiry and reservation is necessary. Don't delay! Have fun this year! And achieve!

Workshops

Among the significant workshops are those to be conducted by Ann Harris and by Danny Gamble, both outstanding in their fields.

Anne Harris, of Houston, will conduct oil painting workshops Jan. 22 through Jan. 28, with choice of two classes, one from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., daily and the other from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Three complete paintings will be involved: (1) floral including roses, (2) landscape with emphasis on clouds, and (3) horse.

Ann has studied under such authorities as Dick Turner, Fernie Parker and Robert Schulsler.

Danny Gamble, always accorded a tremendous welcome here, and whose classes and workshops are much in demand, will conduct two classes in a watercolor workshop Jan. 29 through Feb. 2. Morning and night class choice will be afforded in this workshop, too, at Village Craft Corner.

Regular classes are beginning in the very near future (inquire for exact dates, with some beginning immediately) include:

On Mondays, Barbara Bilberry will conduct oil painting classes on a morning and evening schedule. Barbara is one of the more popular and well-qualified artists in the area.

Jane Hodgkins, another who hardly needs introduction, will have a Monday schedule, too, offering tole painting classes from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

Then on Tuesdays, Barbara Bilberry will conduct other classes, and Mac Carow will have an impressive schedule, too.

Mac will teach portraits in pastels or oils from 10:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., and beginning oils from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. Mac's paintings have won enviable awards in area and national competition.

Barbara Bilberry's Tuesday classes will include a morning tole painting session, early afternoon mini-painting, and evening tole painting.

Wednesday calendars will be marked by instruction from James Ivey Edwards and Mac Carow.

Edwards, familiar throughout the region, will have a 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. class on oils or acrylics, with another at 6 p.m.

Mac Carow will have a 6 p.m. class on portraits (pastels or oils).

Paul Wylie and Jon Birdsong will be on hand in a Thursday schedule!

Wylie, whose western art is readily recognized and appreciated, will have a 10 a.m. landscape class and a 2 p.m. western art class (both in oils) and an evening (6 p.m. until 9 p.m.) sculpture instruction period.

Jon Birdsong, expert in watercolor techniques, will conduct basic watercolor classes at 10 a.m. and at 6 p.m.

Mac Carow will have a beginning oils class on Fridays beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Then on Saturday, Jan. 13, Georgia Bartlett will conduct an oil painting session (10 a.m. until 5 p.m.) with a windmill subject. Georgia teaches classes two Saturdays each month at Village Craft Corner. A master of floral landscapes, poppies, etc., she is one of the really qualified instructors in her field.

For training in basic skills necessary to enter the world of work in technical trades, one could do well to learn all details and register now in new classes of the Industrial Technologies Division at Lubbock Christian College.

But don't delay... classes begin immediately.

As example of the practical approach in instruction there, the Automotive Technology courses include introduction to auto engines, chassis and tune up; carburetion, installation of kits and major tune-ups; overhaul, diagnosis, removal, overhaul and installation of V-8 and six-cylinder engines; transmissions, automatic and manual; inspection, servicing, removal and installation; automotive electrical and air conditioning systems, repair and maintenance; brakes-discs and drum, master, cylinder, and chassis maintenance; and welding introduction to oxy-acetylene welding, cutting and brazing, and introduction to arc welding.

Similar complete instruction is noted in the other areas of training (Drafting, Electronics, Machine Trades and Welding Technology).

"The opportunities afforded through these several fields could be of significant benefit to you, or someone of your acquaintance, we are sure."

Registration is now underway, and full details can be obtained from Reginald Duncan, director of Industrial Technologies, Lubbock Christian College, 5601 W. 19th St., Lubbock, phone 792-3221.

Schedules are available in day and night classes in all areas except drafting that is offered only at night.

Many people, in a wide age range, take the classes to aid in their job change or to develop new skills with which to enter the job market. Industry needs skilled craftsmen, and the programs at LCC train and provide such individuals.

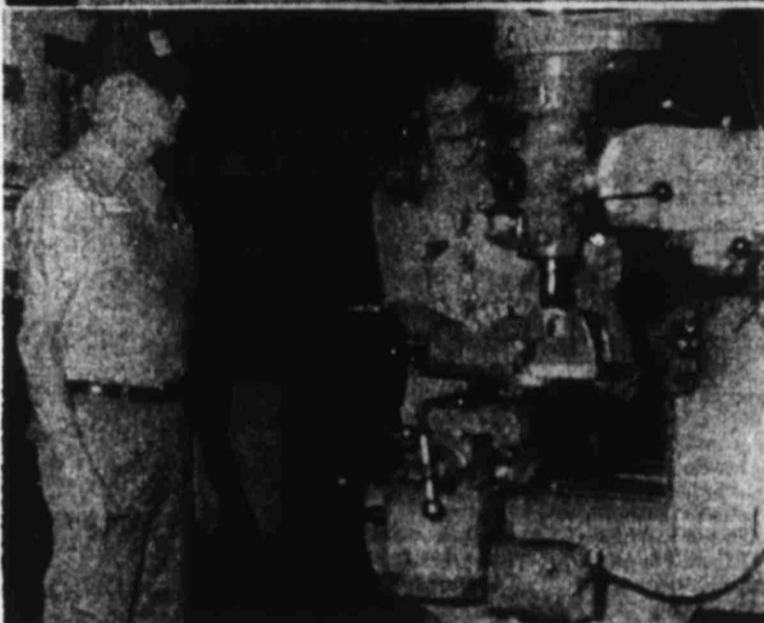

Operating in its 13th year, the Industrial Technologies Division has built a tradition of good training and has many satisfied graduates (check with us for documented testimonials).

Non-Academic
 Courses are non-academic in nature, with one taking only the courses that pertain to a chosen field of study. Students enrolled in the Industrial Technologies program receive CEU's credit (continuing education units). All courses are NC (non-college credit) and do not lead to a degree; however, students completing a program will receive a certificate of completion and will have on file a permanent record of course work they have taken at LCC.

Financial aid also is available to qualifying persons, in the form of grants, student loans and scholarships. All courses are approved for veterans training.

Full explanation of costs is given upon inquiry.

In general, all the courses are open to high school graduates or those over 18 years of age. Admission is an individual matter and LCC reserves the right to admit any student upon the basis of personal qualifications.

Each course is set on a "clock hour" basis, with 796 clock hours involved in automotive technology, as example, and in machine trades and in welding; with even more hours in electronics technology, and 528 hours for drafting.

Located in adjoining buildings on the west side of the campus, the division has all the up-to-date facilities a good program needs. The student learns under qualified instructors and with the use of modern equipment.

Not all classes start and end at the same time, and in some courses a student may enter the program at any time. To learn how any part of the program can work for you, a visit is invited, with full details gladly given and with inspection of facilities invited.

A very comprehensive and practical program is afforded in this unique division at Lubbock Christian College. Participation could well open new fields of achievement for you or a friend or family member. We at the LCC Industrial Technologies Division invite your inquiry, wishing for you the best in the new year.

Dallas Makes Fifth Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Breunig, the 225-pound middle linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys, readily admits his defensive cohorts played great against the Los Angeles Rams, but he says they'll have to be better in the Super Bowl.

The defending National Football League champions qualified for Super Bowl XIII on Sunday by whipping the Rams 28-0 with four touchdowns in the second half, the first two coming after interceptions by safety Charlie Waters.

The Cowboys will face American Football Conference champion Pittsburgh, a 34-5 winner over Houston Sunday, at Miami on Jan. 21.

"The defense did it," said quarterback

Roger Staubach, who threw two touchdown passes. "Their defense did an excellent job and so did ours."

"It was a good, alert, tough and aggressive game by our defense," said Breunig, an all-America from Arizona State. "I think it was our best defensive effort of the season."

"They didn't do anything we hadn't expected. Los Angeles has been that way. Pittsburgh is kind of that way and Pittsburgh is awesome. We'll have to put up at least the same defense performance and more to play with the Steelers."

Dallas put a tremendous pass rush on Rams' quarterback Pat Haden, who left the game late in the third quarter with a broken right thumb.

He was hurt when hit by defensive tackle Randy White, who had put fullback John Cappelletti out of the game in the first quarter with a shoulder injury.

"Our pass rush was just individual effort by our defensive line," Breunig said. "It was timing. We did gamble some with safety blitzes and sometimes they worked and sometimes they didn't."

The halftime score was 0-0, a tribute to the defenses.

Then, early in the third period, Charlie Waters picked off a Haden pass at the Rams' 30 and returned to the 9. Aided by a penalty, the Cowboys scored in five plays. Tony Dorsett circling right end from four yards out for the score.

Later in the period, on the play in which Haden was injured, Waters intercepted at the Los Angeles 49 and returned 29 yards to the 20. A Staubach-to-Preston Pearson pass gained 17 and the touchdown came on a 4-yard pass from Staubach to fullback Scott Laidlaw.

Then the Rams seemed to come alive with a 65-yard pass play from Vince Ferragamo to Willie Miller carrying to the Dallas 10. On the next play, however, Cullen Bryant fumbled and Harvey Martin recovered for the Cowboys.

Dorsett promptly broke loose for 53 yards and six plays later Staubach found Billy Joe DuPree with an 11-yard touchdown pass.

The Cowboys' final touchdown came on a 68-yard return of an intercepted pass by Thomas Henderson.

All told, the Rams had seven turnovers, five on pass interceptions and two on fumbles and the Cowboys scored following four of them.

Coach Tom Landry, aiming for a second straight Super Bowl title, commented, "I was a little anxious after the first half. I thought turnovers would make the difference and that someone would take charge in the third quarter. It was a great defensive battle."

"Defense sparked the game. Charlie Waters reflected our defense. He was that good. We had the good rush and intensity. I thought the receivers were open."

Steelers Freeze Out Houston

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The field got wet, and it got wetter. The ball got slick, and it got slicker.

"We got behind — and we got behind." Coach Bum Phillips said Sunday after his Houston Oilers lost 34-5 to the Pittsburgh Steelers in an American Football Conference title game marked by continuous cold rain and torrential turnovers.

There were 12 fumbles, six by each side. That's more than any two teams have ever had in an AFC or an NFC championship game, before or after the merger.

Yet the Steelers are bound for a Jan. 21 Super Bowl rematch with the Dallas Cowboys because the water, the Oilers and an intestinal virus failed to stop Terry Bradshaw, who fittingly spent the days before the game on a liquid diet.

"Once I went out to warm up I got so pumped up you never would have known I was sick," said Bradshaw, who fired two touchdown passes in a 17-point outburst in the last 52 seconds of the first half that gave the Steelers a 31-3 intermission lead.

"The field was a mess, and the ball was totally saturated. I guess I just got real lucky," said Bradshaw, who hit 11 of 19 passes for 200 yards to raise his career postseason passing total to 2,432 yards, an NFL record. The old mark of 2,398 was held by Ken Stabler of Oakland.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, who again wore a flak jacket to protect his cracked ribs, might have worn a life jacket. He threw five interceptions and was sacked four times.

"Pittsburgh beat us, not the weather," Pastorini said.

Houston, a wild-card playoff entry after finishing runnerup to Pittsburgh in the AFC Central, ran rookie sledgeman Earl Campbell off the right side to open the game.

Linebacker Jack Ham slammed Campbell for a 3-yard loss, and right three Steelers tackle Joe Greene smiled inside.

"That's been a big play for Houston all season. When Jack stopped it like that, I thought, 'Well, this is the way the game is gonna be,'" said Greene.

On the first Steelers series, Bradshaw's 34-yard toss to Lynn Swann set up a 7-yard Franco Harris touchdown run for another record. Harris now has 13 touchdowns in NFL playoff games, extending his own record.

Campbell later lost a fumble that set up

Doomsday For Rams

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT the Los Angeles Rams that brings out the best in Dallas strong safety Charlie Waters. The nine-year veteran from Clemson is an outstanding athlete at all times, but when Charlie faces those guys with the horns on their hats he could whip Superman.

Two years ago, these same teams met at Texas Stadium in the first round of the NFL playoffs. The Cowboy offense was sputtering, since it didn't have Tony Dorsett's outside speed then, so the burden was on the Doomsday Defense. With Waters playing like a demon, the Pokes almost pulled out a victory.

Charlie intercepted a pass and blocked two Ram punts that cold late-December evening, and his second block gave the Cowboys a last chance as the final minutes ticked off the clock. Dallas took over on the Ram 16, but Roger Staubach's apparent touchdown pass to Butch Johnson was nullified when Butch couldn't get both feet down inside the white line. A fourth down pass to tight end Billy Joe DuPree was inches short of a big first at the 6.

Waters had so intimidated the Rams, however, that they chose to give up a safety rather than to risk another punt from deep in their own territory. The Los Angeles lads went home with a 14-12 victory and a lot of respect for that Cowboy wearing No. 41.

It was no great surprise, then, when Charlie went into his act at the Coliseum Sunday afternoon. The sight of those funny-looking orange and blue helmets was all he needed to start intercepting passes, making key tackles and leading cheers from the sidelines.

Twice at critical times, Waters made the big steals. That probably was the difference in the game.

CHARLIE SHARED THE glory with his defensive teammates, despite his heroics. This may have been the greatest performance ever for a Dallas defense, everything considered. Larry Cole, who has participated in all of the Cowboy epics during the last decade, thinks this probably was the topper.

Coach Tom Landry might voice mild disagreement, since he always has considered the Cowboys' 24-3 rout of the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl VI as the best ever for Doomsday. But he was in no mood to argue after the shutout over the big, talented Rams.

The Los Angeles club has collected a lot of first-round draft choices in recent years, thanks to those quarterback swaps to Philadelphia and Green Bay. No team in the NFL has more raw physical ability than the Rams.

IT'S TOO BAD there was so much attention, both before and during the game

Can Tech Follow Through?

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

FORT WORTH—Once the television set warmed up Saturday, TCU coach Tim Somerville had only one team he really wanted to watch.

He had seen Texas, knew what they could do. So, he watched Texas Tech in that 92-74 Southwest Conference run-away.

Tonight, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in TCU's Daniel-Meyer Coliseum, Somerville will get a closer look at Tech. And he has complimented the way the Raiders played.

"Tech will take the floor with a 9-2 season record, but more importantly, a 1-0 mark in the league. It swamped the Longhorns in Lubbock in a regionally televised game Saturday afternoon to raise some eyebrows around the league, Somerville was not stretched.

"Everybody about them (the Raiders) impressed me," said the TCU coach. "Tech really has a fine basketball team. They've played well the last couple of weeks.

"The big thing about them is their quickness, one through ten men. 'They're really so much better than last year,'" he added.

Somerville, although only in his second year as head coach, knows about playing on a foreign court. His Frogs sustained a 92-63 loss to Texas in Austin last Thursday night in the SWC's first game.

Now, it's almost a new start, as he plans a completely different lineup from last Thursday.

"We played well the second half; that was it. We were down 29 points at the half, and that was the final score (margin). (Mark) Nickens played well for us," commented Somerville. "he and (freshman) Scott Blackwell. Both came off the bench."

The way the bench players performed, the Frog coach indicated he would open with a completely new lineup of the 6-1 Blackwell, 6-4 Nickens, 6-9 Ty Thompson, 6-6 Jon Mansbury and 6-3 Jeff Vincent.

All except Vincent, a transfer from Chipola (Fla.) Junior College, are freshmen. TCU was to have played SMU in Dallas Saturday night, but the icy weather in the northern part of the state dictated a delay until Feb. 8. Thus, the Frogs got a rest, and Somerville says they need it.

"It should help us. It gives us some time off, and we needed some rest after losing to Texas.

"We looked much better at times (last Friday), but we're so much improved over last year, like night and day. The thing that kills us is that we don't have any experience.

"Every game is a new experience for these guys."

With a freshman-dominated club, the Frogs have managed four wins in ten games this season.

Tech tonight will be starting a three-game week, as it hosts Baylor on Thursday and Rice on Saturday, following the shocking opener over Texas.

Tech, since opening the season, has had a set lineup, as coach Gerald Myers has gone with 6-9 Ralph McPherson, 6-8 Ralph Brewster, 6-2 Geoff Huston, 6-5 Kent Williams and 6-4 Jeff Taylor.

But, the 12-point, five-rebound, three-blocks performance of 6-6 sophomore Ben Hill could alter the picture.

Hill was all-tournament at El Paso in the last nonconference action and then came off the bench to dominate the offensive domination of Texas Ron Baxter in the second half of last Saturday's game.

Hollywood Shines In LA Sun

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "History repeated itself. Los Angeles can't win the big one," said Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson in his usual less-than-humble fashion.

The Dallas linebacker claimed heading into Sunday's National Football Conference Championship game that the Rams didn't have "enough class" to play in the Super Bowl, and that the Cowboys always win the big games. He and his teammates gave credence to that boast Sunday with a 28-0 victory over the long-suffering Rams.

Not only did Henderson make his statement stand, he rubbed it in with a 68-yard interception return for the Cowboys' final touchdown as Dallas' defense logged the NFC title game's first shutout since 1968.

Henderson, who also deflected three Los Angeles passes, was asked if he felt he'd been a marked man in the game because of his statements about the Rams. "I felt like a tomat in a cornfield with a German Shepherd growling at me," he said. "But the German Shepherd was the one in trouble."

Next stop for Dallas is Miami for the Jan. 21 Super Bowl date with AFC Champion Pittsburgh. The loquacious Henderson was somewhat conservative with his predictions about the Super Bowl.

"Pittsburgh has got a good team," he said. "But we're better."

Although Henderson's fourth-quarter touchdown seemed a fitting capsule of the way the game went — the Cowboys' capitalizing on the frustrated Rams' errors — safety Charlie Waters and linebacker Randy White made the biggest plays for Dallas.

Waters intercepted a pair of passes that set up the Cowboys' first two scores, and driving tackles by White knocked both quarterback Pat Haden and fullback John Cappelletti out of the game with injuries.

Waters, who also recovered a fumble, wasn't particularly excited about the way he played.

"That wasn't my finest game," he said. "I had several missed assignments. I had a better game against the Rams in 1976, but that one won't be remembered because we lost."

White, a 250-pound defensive tackle, said he wasn't aware at the time that he'd sidelined two key Rams.

"I didn't know until after the game that Cappelletti was hurt," said White, who added that he wasn't aware Haden was injured until his Dallas teammates began talking about how to work against (Vince) Ferragamo.

Haden suffered a compound fracture of the thumb on his right hand late in the third quarter with the Rams behind 7-0, and seldom-used reserve Ferragamo had to finish up. Cappelletti went out in the first quarter with a shoulder separation.

Haden and Cappelletti, both in pain and downcast following the loss, seemed apt illustrations of the Rams' enduring playoff disappointments. Six consecutive years Los Angeles has won its division, but it has never survived the playoffs.

"We had the opportunities but they just blew them," said Haden, his bloodied, bandaged hand in a sling. "The turnovers just killed us."

"Frustrating? Sure, it's frustrating. Dallas played well, but we just couldn't seem to get it together."

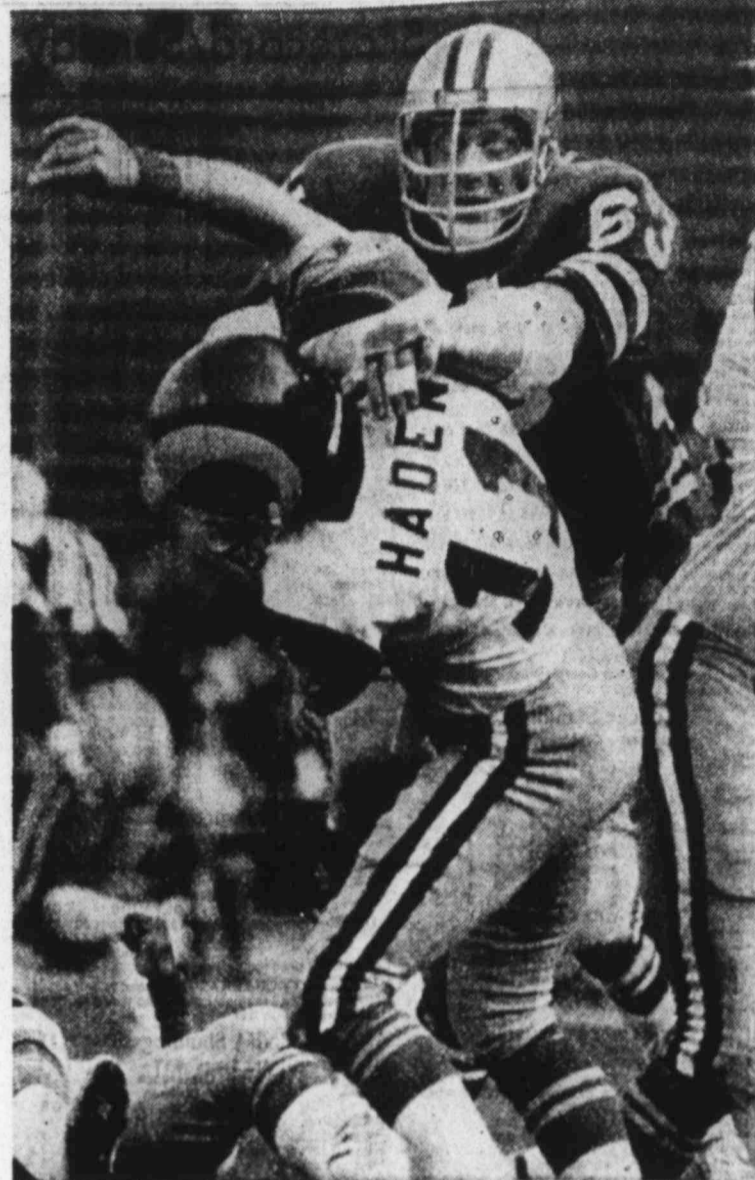

"This game was particularly disappointing for me because I got hurt right after I had fumbled," said Cappelletti, the Heisman Trophy-winner out of Penn State. "You work the whole season and then you see everything evaporate."

"It was just another dog day afternoon," said Los Angeles offensive guard Dennis Harrah. "You get tired of all that work going down the drain. I think we're all just sick of it."

Los Angeles wide receiver Willie Miller managed to retain a measure of optimism despite the loss.

"This is a team with a lot of unity," he said. "We've come through a lot together, and we've grown together a lot. We'll be here next year."

"I told the team after the game that I appreciated the effort our guys put forth this year," said first-year Rams Coach Ray Malavasi. "We had a lot of adversity, what with all the injuries, but our players always gave us a top effort."

Steelers Look For Dallas

PITTSBURGH (AP) — They had tried to batter each other senseless on the frozen field, then they had shaken each other's hands and wished each other luck as they ambled back and fourth between their dressing rooms.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, typically subdued following their 34-5 rout of Houston in Sunday's American Conference championship game, were looking two weeks ahead to Super Bowl XIII. The Oilers had their sights set a bit further — to next season.

"I think the next time we'll be more prepared mentally," said wide receiver Ken Burroughs, who failed to catch even one of Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini's passes. "We just have to forget about this. We can congratulate each other on a great season and get ready for '79."

Pastorini, whose sensational passing had gotten the Oilers this far in two previous playoff games, had a nightmare afternoon. He completed just 12 of 28 passes for 96 yards, while sacked four times, and had five passes intercepted, the last figure matching a National Football League playoff record achieved — if that's the word — twice by George Blanda.

"It was a good year but because of today you can't call it a great year. It's a long time coming, when you come so far and get so close," added Pastorini. Then, on the verge of tears, he put his head in his hands and slumped.

Defensive end Elvin Bethea, who, like Pastorini, suffered through Houston's two successive 1-13 seasons in the early 1970s, added with obvious pride: "I don't think a lot of these guys realize what we've done. We've gone from the bottom of the pit to playing in a championship game."

In Pittsburgh's locker room, defensive end Dwight White was licking his chops at the thought of winning a third Super Bowl ring. "It's gonna be a monster," he leered. "I'm gonna get that third ring and I'm gonna take it down to Dallas, show it to my buddy Harvey Martin (of the Cowboys), and let him eat his heart out."

Nobody suggested to the 6-foot-4, 255-pound White that the Cowboys just might become the Super Bowl's first three-time winner and that it might be Martin flashing a monster ring around. The Cowboys, defending NFL champs, met Pittsburgh in Super Bowl X and were 21-17 losers. But White shrugged aside thought of a Dallas triumph this time.

Defensive tackle Joe Greene was a bit more hesitant. "We haven't gone the distance yet," he said. "We're in the race but we've got one more to go." And linebacker Jack Ham, the defensive star with two fumble recoveries, an interception and a quarterback sack, added: "The jury's still out."

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw was clearly the offensive star. Despite being numbed by the freezing rain and weakened by a three-day bout with the flu, he completed 11 of 19 passes for 200 yards and a pair of touchdowns in a scant 19 seconds apart just before halftime.

And while Pastorini was losing 26 yards on four sacks, Bradshaw was gaining 29 on seven rushes.

Before the game, Houston Coach Bum Phillips had said the Oilers were declaring war on Pittsburgh. To that, Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said with just the hint of a smile: "Our football team wanted an unconditional surrender — and we got it."

House Group Says NCAA Should Look Into Reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The NCAA should adopt a policy of self-reform to correct problems in its investigative and enforcement procedures, according to a report released today and following a year-long inquiry by the House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigation.

The subcommittee report was released to coincide with a news conference by Rep. James Santini, D-Nev., scheduled this morning in San Francisco, where the NCAA is holding its annual convention.

The subcommittee, after conducting hearings in April and September, said in its report that "self-reform by the NCAA is possible and preferable, and its consequential recommendation that for the time being the role of Congress be limited to one of oversight and that Congress not legislate a federal property right or otherwise create an interest to which legislative 'due process' right would automatically attach.

The specific areas where changes are recommended are:

—Reasonable notice of rules in advance of having to follow them;

—Rules easy to understand, not so vague as to trap the unwary;

—Opportunity for the membership to change rules according to the wishes of the majority;

—Reasonable notice of what one is accused of and who is doing the accusing;

—Reasonable notice of what is expected in the response of the accused.

—Opportunity to face one's accusers;

—Establishment of standards of evidence.

—Application of those standards in a hearing accessible to all interested parties;

—Rendering of penalties that match the gravity of the infraction;

—Opportunity to appeal to a higher authority on the basis of some useful record and a predictable standard of error; and —A reasonable time limit on the entire process.

The report carries the views of the Democratic majority on the subcommittee, which took the role of the adversary during hearings at which NCAA officials testified.

The minority view, prepared by Republican members of the subcommittee, takes a stand much of the time agreeing with present NCAA methods of investigation and enforcement.

The minority view states, "... We believe that the NCAA does not have a fairness problem. What the NCAA has is some appearance of a fairness problem."

The subcommittee's recommendations are essentially the same as those presented to the NCAA several months ago, midway through the investigation.

The NCAA rejected several of the recommendations but placed others on the agenda of various committees.

One proposal before the NCAA convention would completely revamp both the investigative and enforcement procedures.

Barber Threatens Wagner

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He later got tight-lipped, but Houston Oilers tight end Mike Barber made some angry threats after being cut down by a knee injury in a playoff loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The target of the threats, made on the field and in the locker room, was the man who hit him, Steelers safety Mike Wagner.

"I'm gonna get him ... He won't play in the Super Bowl," Barber yelled as he limped into the Oilers' locker room.

"What's he gonna do, wait for me in the driveway?" Wagner calmly responded later after saying the hit was done only in self-protection and purely part of the game.

The threat wasn't made personally to Wagner. Barber shouted it to Steeler captain Joe Greene, who was outside the Oilers' locker room offering handshakes after Houston's 34-5 loss here Sunday in the American Football Conference title game.

Barber was so angry he mistakenly referred to Wagner as "Webster."

"You tell that Webster that he's a cheap shot ...," said Barber, continuing the sentence with a string of unprintables.

"I'm gonna get him," he told Greene.

Barber was hurt on the first play of the second quarter on a long, incomplete pass over the middle. He and Wagner both raced for the ball. It sailed over Barber's head, then Wagner lowered his shoulder and chopped Barber down at the knee.

Barber did not return to the game.

"I'll pay him back," Barber repeated inside the Oilers' locker room. "And when I do, he won't play a game again."

About a half hour later, Barber was approached again by other reporters.

"I don't want to say anything," he said. "I'm so filled with anger right now that anything I say wouldn't be the real me. I just don't want to say anything."

After he was helped off the field, Barber pointed a finger at Wagner and yelled at him. He also yelled at him several times during the game.

"That's really smart. If that's his mentality, fine," said Wagner. "I can't worry about that."

Wagner said it wasn't a dirty play.

"We were both running full speed. It was a collision course, and I was just hitting the dirt," said Wagner. "On a play like that, I'm not going to stand up and just take a shot ... all I could do was buckle and go down ..."

Walsh Denies

49er Rumors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Walsh of Stanford continued Saturday to deny published reports that he has accepted an offer to coach the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League.

Several newspapers reported Friday that Walsh would move to the 49ers and that General Manager Joe Thomas and Coach Fred O'Connor would lose their jobs.

Saturday's San Francisco Chronicle said Walsh already had accepted the 49ers' coaching job, but Walsh said, "It simply isn't true."

Walsh, who has been consistently candid in his dealings with the press, admitted earlier that he had talked with Edward DeBartolo Jr., owner of the 49ers, but that "there never has been an offer."

DeBartolo, who lives in Youngstown, Ohio, was scheduled to be in San Francisco Sunday and reportedly would meet with Walsh.

The owner of the team that finished 2-14 in 1978 will hold a news conference Tuesday or Wednesday and announce some changes, but said Friday night, "I don't know what they're going to be."

Snyder Looks Like District Pick

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Since weather forecasts had garnered the main interest of South Plains residents the past couple of weeks, here's something that ought to grab your attention: The 3-AAA basketball forecast looks like there's an 80 percent chance that Snyder will snowball the district race today, turning to reign by season's end.

The Tigers currently sport an 18-4 record and are ranked third in the latest Fort Worth Star-Telegram AAA basketball poll.

And though the cold weather conditions over the South Plains haven't changed the fact that Snyder has been a hot basketball team, the hazardous conditions have hampered the Tigers from improving on their record.

"We've been forced to cancel our last two games," said Tiger coach Jack Stephenson. "But I don't think the lack of playing time will hurt us too much, because we've had excellent practices."

According to Stephenson there are three reasons for Snyder's success.

"Depth, lack of injuries and no illnesses," said the Tiger coach. "I have 10 kids that I'm not afraid to put in a game in any situation. Last year, we were hit with some key injuries and sickness. Our record was 20-16, but despite the luck we've had this year, I feel we have a better club."

In regard to leadership, Stephenson points to 6-3 seniors Greg Hinton and three-year letterman senior Sid Everton.

"We don't keep scoring average," said Stephenson. "But Greg is hitting over 50 percent from the field and I would say our leading shooter."

But after digging through past records, Stephenson said that Hinton has put 142 field goals through the hoop and 86 free throws.

"What's that, 370 points and an 18-point average?" asked Stephenson. "Close — 17.3."

 And in regard to Everton, Stephenson commented, "Sid is one of those players that helps us keep control."
 What Stephenson means when referring to "control" is set up and run the Tiger offense when the fast break isn't available.

"We like to work the ball inside like anybody else," said Stephenson. "But I don't want to draw the impression that we'll take the ball only inside on offense. In fact, I recall one game when Everton didn't miss a shot from outside and he wound up with 26-28 points."

On defense, the Tigers like to use the press.

"We have a variety of presses we can go to," said the Tiger mentor. "But right now we've had so much success with the full-court press that we're going to stay with it until somebody makes us change."

Which leads us right back to depth?

"No question. That depth allows us to constantly apply pressure," said Stephenson. "We're two and three deep in every position. But in all honesty, we haven't gotten into foul trouble in any game yet."

France's Clint Eastwood To Star In U.S. Movie

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It is an anomaly that Alain Delon, one of the great international movie stars in the world today, is virtually unknown in the United States and something of a stranger to Hollywood.
Delon is France's answer to Clint Eastwood. He is an unforgivably handsome man of 43 with a prize fighter's physique and a penchant for off-screen adventures. Like Eastwood, he stars in profitable adventure films, invariably beds the leading lady and more often than not dies nobly in the final reel.

Also like Eastwood, he produces his own films and is outrageously wealthy. Delon differs from Eastwood in that he is cocky and gregarious.
He will be in Hollywood for two months starting with Robert Wagner in "Airport '79 Concorde," his first American film in 12 years. His previous Hollywood movies — "Once a Thief" and "Texas Across the River" — flopped. A veteran of 50 movies, he would like his share of the American box office, which he says accounts for 45 percent of the world total. But he is content with the 55 percent in Europe, Asia, Africa and South America.

Delon said, "I never wanted to return to Hollywood because my business is in France."
"When I say business, I mean only one-quarter of my activities involve films. I have a helicopter business, build furniture, promote prize fights and race horses."

"My Equeleo won the world championship of harness racing at Roosevelt Raceway in New York two years ago. I promoted European boxing matches for Carlos Manzon who was world middleweight champion."

"France is my country just as America is Eastwood's. I have never met Eastwood, but I'm sure he would not want to move to France simply for business reasons."
"I star in two or three pictures a year in France. They make tremendous profits around the world. I am a god in Asia. My pictures are the most popular in Russia. I am a superstar in Europe."

"I would like to be a star in America. In order to do so I would have to work and live in Hollywood. I can't do that."
"My accent is a small barrier. But the real reason my pictures don't play here is the business of exclusion and competition. My films only play art houses. It's the economics of the film industry to protect domestic movies. For that reason very few foreign films get big general releases in America."
"That's all right. I'm not complaining. It's normal. There is more than enough for me to do in France."
"My ADEL Productions makes at least one film a year. I do everything from A to Z. I find a story, hire writers, choose a director, collect a cast and then put it all together. I even handle the finances, distribution and publicity."

"I refuse to accept the director who thinks himself a genius and tries to put his stamp on my films. It is my stamp that counts."
Delon accepted his role of an Air France pilot in "Airport '79 Concorde" as much out of patriotism as anything else, aside, of course, for the small fortune Universal Pictures is paying him.

"This is a very important picture," he said. "The Concorde is a big star all by itself, and it is half French. I want to be the first pilot in the first picture about the Concorde."
"This airplane is a landmark in 20th century Europe, the plane of the future, and I wanted to be a part of it. I accepted the role because it is important to me and to France."

"Because of my production experience I was able to help Universal in its negotiations with the difficult French authorities — the people who built the plane, the airport shots and Air France."

Delon was interrupted by a pair of Iranian women who stopped by his dining room table to request an autograph. A few moments later a blonde, who said she was from Holland, worshipfully asked for his signature.

"It's like this all over the world," Delon grinned. "Except in the United States. If a bus filled with Japanese tourists stopped here I would be trampled to death."
"I don't mean to sound egotistical. The simple truth is that I am an enormous star all over the world. I like that because it enables me to live well."

Delon is unmarried although he has lived with the same woman for 10 years. He shares Clint's passion for privacy, living in isolated splendor in Paris and at a 150-acre forested country estate 60 miles south of the French capital to which he helicopters for three days every week.

But he is a practical Frenchman as well. He thinks it would be a fine idea to costar with Eastwood as a means to establishing himself in the United States.
"That would be very nice," Delon concluded. "And it would be good for Eastwood's career in some other countries."

Genes Aid Disease Resistance

HOUSTON (AP) — Each human being carries a unique genetic inheritance and that special collection of genes largely determines which diseases a person is most likely to face, a genetic researcher says.
"Each individual on this planet is unique genetically...and one's particular uniqueness will determine his susceptibility and resistance to the kinds of things that make you sick," said Dr. Arno G. Motulsky of the University of Washington Medical School.

"Further research in this area can lead to more effective preventive medicine by being able to focus on those who are most susceptible to very distinct types of disease," Motulsky said here recently.
Mounting evidence indicates many of the 50,000 or so human genes act as shields that protect against certain of the environmental hazards — from foods and pollutants to viruses and infections — that surround humanity, Motulsky said.

Other genes seem to throw open the biological door to admit a great many maladies from heart disease to malaria, he told a news conference during a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

But good luck in the genetic sweepstakes doesn't mean you can throw caution to the winds. Genes are only part of the equation — they establish the odds that a particular condition will cause a particular result. There are few guarantees.

It is "this interaction of heredity and environment (that accounts) for the production of disease," Motulsky said.

He said both factors seem to play a role in most diseases but "sometimes it's genetics that is the key factor and sometimes it's the environment. It's different for each condition."
The task facing geneticists is to determine the degree of genetic participation in each different disease...then we may be able to manipulate the environment or choose (the most effective) medical treatment" for those individuals with the greatest risk.
The full range of genetically deter-

Academy Selects Oscar Semifinalists

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Forty movies were named last week as semifinalists for Academy Awards in eight technical and musical categories with "Grease," a disco-flavored remake of the stage musical celebrating the rock 'n' roll 1950s, leading with six.

The semifinal picks do not include the major awards, the Oscars for best picture, acting, directing and writing. Nominations in those categories, which will be announced Feb. 20, are still open to all 290 feature films shown for at least one week in the Los Angeles area in calendar 1978.

The Oscars will be awarded in a nationally televised ceremony April 9. Members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences select nominees within their fields, and the whole membership is eligible to vote for the winners.

Five branches provide for members to first name semifinalists in the eight categories covered by their specialties — art direction and costume design, cinematography, film editing, sound and music, which covers the Oscars for best song, original score and score adaptation.

The selections are, in effect, nominations for nominations.

"Grease" was named in the categories of art direction, cinematography, costume design, film editing, sound and best song for "Hopelessly Devoted to You."

Six other movies were named four times — "Days of Heaven," "The Boys from Brazil," "The Deer Hunter," "Heaven Can Wait," "Superman" and "The Wiz."

"Superman" was named for film editing, song, original score and best sound. "The Wiz" was picked for art direction, cinematography, costume design and score adaptation.

"The Boys from Brazil" was named in the categories of art direction, film editing, original score and sound. "Days of Heaven" was picked for cinematography, costume design, original score and sound.

"The Deer Hunter" was chosen for cinematography, film editing, score adaptation and sound. "Heaven Can Wait" won mention for art direction, cinemagraphy, film editing and original score. The other semifinalists for best song, and the movies in which they were heard, were:

"Bright Eyes" from "Waterhip Down," "Can You Read My Mind" from "Superman," "Last Dance" from "Thank God It's Friday," "The Last Time I Felt Like This" from "Some Time Next Year" and "The Love I Have For You" from "Remember My Name."

Also "Move 'Em Out" from "Revenge of the Pink Panther," "The One and Only" from the movie of the same name, "Ready to Take a Chance Again" from "Foul Play," and "When You're Loved" from "The Magic of Lassie."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Co-workers will find ways to keep their skirts clean and place the blame of things going wrong on you tomorrow, if you assume a dictatorial position.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others may find you difficult to understand tomorrow because of your reluctance to go along with them as usual. Don't be surprised if they don't like it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) All issues on the domestic scene should be handled as diplomatically as possible tomorrow. If adjustments are needed, try to go along with the majority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Exercise tolerance if co-workers feel their interests should take priority over yours. You can often get ahead quicker by keeping out of everyone's way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful you don't delegate responsibilities to those who cannot be relied upon. Their laxity will rob you of something you badly want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tomorrow will be the wrong day to be shy and retiring. A competitor is eagerly awaiting the chance to take over something that's rightfully yours the minute you relax.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a strong possibility you'll have to contend with one who will be asserting himself in righteous indignation tomorrow. It will be best to keep quiet and say nothing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't expect others to give more of themselves than you're prepared to give. You'll have to set the example if you want them to follow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It might surprise you how far you can make things stretch if you'll just try to make the most of what you have tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although it's not like you, you might not have the courage of your convictions tomorrow. Thoughts you normally feel strongly about won't be voiced.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov 22) Don't do anything tomorrow against your better judgment or principles to even an old score. It will only further complicate the issue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be materialistic with friends tomorrow, and avoid those who are. Unpleasantness you'd long regret could result.

You may not choose the easiest of courses to follow this coming year, but you'll enjoy every minute of the challenge you set for yourself. What's more, the self-discipline you learn will help you achieve bigger and better things.

UPI, AP Permitted To Work In China

PEKING (UPI) — United Press International and The Associated Press have been granted approval to open news bureaus in China, a Chinese Foreign Office official said.

The two agencies will be the first American news media to operate in the Chinese capital on a permanent basis since the Communist takeover in 1949.

Details on establishing the bureaus still have to be completed and would take "some time," the official said.

UPI staff correspondent Robert Crabbe and Asian news picture Editor Rikio Imajo are now in Peking covering developments in China since the normalization of relations with the United States on Jan. 1.

Group Challenges Teamsters

DETROIT (AP) — At a Teamsters union banquet, a man walks up to attorney Ann Curry Thompson, douses her with motor oil, hits her on the head with an empty bottle and strolls away. Her clients include a group of insurgents called Teamsters for a Democratic Union.

When Jean Clark runs for union office in Detroit, the incumbent asks her to pull out. She refuses. The next day, her employer tells her there is no more overtime for her. Then, a Teamster business agent tells her she must resign as union steward. Again she refuses.

She is running on the TDU slate.

Teamster officials deny the union had anything to do with those incidents of recent weeks. But TDU organizer Ken Paff claims they reflect the growing concern of entrenched Teamster officials about their small group, which is pledged to turn the hierarchy out.

"Our job is to get the silent majority," says Paff. "We want to give the union back to the members."

The dissidents say their power is growing. They claim only 3,500 active members among the more than 2 million Teamsters.

But last year, dissidents in Flint, Mich., including several TDU candidates, ousted incumbents out of office at 4,000-member Local 332. In all of Michigan, where there are 100,000 Teamsters, the TDU claims only 600 members — 500 of them in Detroit, its biggest chapter.

Last year, in Oklahoma City, four of seven TDU candidates won; in Green Bay, Wis., all four TDU candidates won; and in Vancouver, British Columbia, three of five insurgents won and then promptly joined the TDU.

Last month, in Pittsburgh, a TDU candidate was elected to the executive board of the 6,500-member Local 249 of the Teamsters. But a TDU candidate for the presidency of that local lost.

Teamsters for a Democratic Union had its origins in a meeting in 1975 of about 40 Teamsters and independent truckers. Distrustful of the union hierarchy in coming negotiations, they formed Teamsters for a Decent Contract. In March 1976, Detroit members stayed on strike briefly after Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons told them to return to work. Then, in September 1976, after the next Teamsters convention in Las Vegas, the dissidents staged their own convention at Kent, Ohio, and formed the TDU in September 1976.

Paff, 32, is TDU's only full-time organizer today. He says goals for the next six months are to double membership, win posts in local union elections, and influence the course of contract talks.

Paff teams with Pete Camarata, a 285-pound loading dock worker who gained TDU its first publicity in 1976 by being the only one of 2,750 delegates to oppose Fitzsimmons' re-election at Las Vegas. On the last day of that convention, he was beaten in front of the Aladdin Hotel and Casino as Fitzsimmons climbed into a car a few feet away.

Now, Camarata says he plans to run against Fitzsimmons in 1981.

"If there was an open election, Frank Fitzsimmons wouldn't stand a chance," claims Paff, pointing as trucks go by on a busy street outside TDU's second-floor office over a drugstore. "I think you could stand out there all day, ask the drivers and couldn't find one who would vote for Fitzsimmons — and this is his town."

TDU leaders insist they want to reform the union, and Paff says the TDU wants "to rewrite the international constitution" — to prohibit holding multiple union jobs, to ban patronage, to prohibit membership for anyone convicted of a felony, and to elect the general president by vote of the entire membership, not just convention delegates.

"Last time we were one vote. By 1981, we want to be a force, not the biggest force, just a force," says Paff. And he adds that by the 1986 convention, the TDU may be able to throw the old guard out.

Camarata is a co-chairman of TDU's steering committee, and a steward in Local 299 here — the home unit not only of Fitzsimmons but of missing ex-Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa.

With 500 members, it is TDU's largest chapter, and Hoffa's rank-and-file popularity is a point not lost on the TDU. Its members frequently tout their cause with favorable references to him.

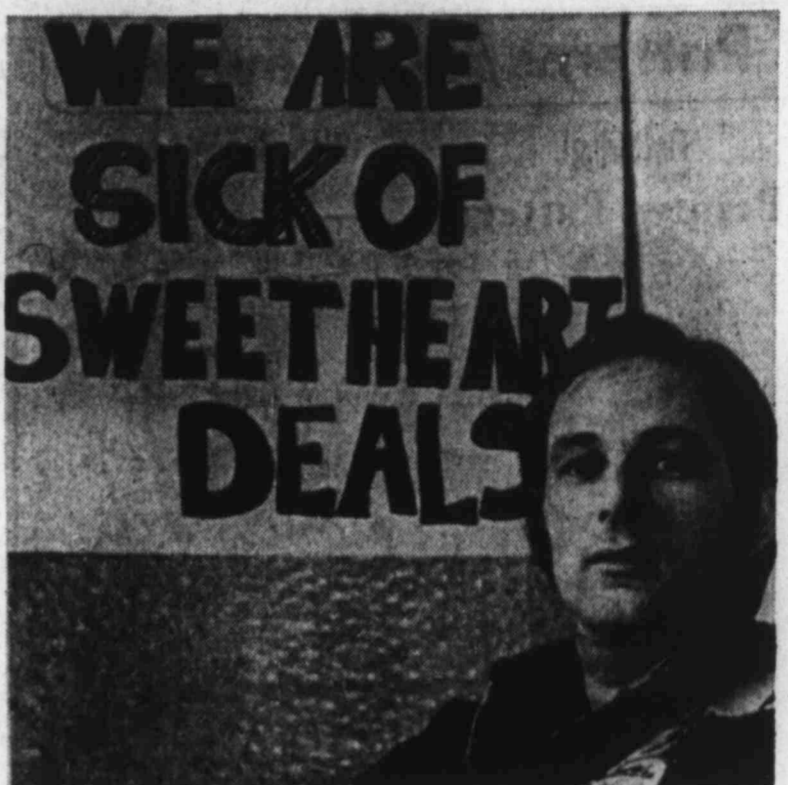

Hoffa, when he went to prison in 1967, entrusted union leadership to Fitzsimmons and later resigned as president, letting Fitzsimmons be elected on his own. But when Hoffa went free, he accused Fitzsimmons of having conspired with the Nixon White House to write a restriction into his parole barring him from union activity until 1980 — an allegation Fitzsimmons denied. After Hoffa vanished in 1975, federal investigators said they believed he was slain by organized crime figures who wanted the Teamsters power structure undisturbed.

Now Camarata fights in Fitzsimmons' home base. He lost a bid for the local vice presidency in 1977. Last year, 63 percent of those voting — just short of the needed two-thirds — favored a TDU-inspired card for elected, rather than appointed, business agents. Camarata says another such drive will be mounted this year.

One result, TDU members say, is that Fitzsimmons has become uncertain of how he would be received in his home local. "There's a lot of old Hoffa supporters here," says Camarata. "And Fitz doesn't like being seen with me. He's a finicky old guy."

Fitzsimmons' other swipes at dissidents include this statement on Oct. 5, 1978: "These liars and cheap shot artists ... call the best pension plans in America a sellout ... They call the most democratic institution that God ever put on this earth a tyranny ... They call me a tool of organized crime ... I call them a pack of lying jackals ... It is obvious that their sole mission is to try to tear the Teamsters union apart."

IN NEW QUARTERS — Ken Paff, 32, the only full-time organizer of the Teamsters for a Democratic Union, in shown in his new Detroit office. The 2½-year-old union group has moved its national headquarters from Cleveland to Detroit. The TDU is a group of insurgents pledged to turn out the hierarchy of the high union. (AP Laser-photo)

Mayor Ready To Announce Replacement

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 40-year-old homosexual auditor was expected to be appointed by Mayor Dianne Feinstein to replace slain city Supervisor Harvey Milk.

Harry G. Britt, a native of Port Arthur and a former United Methodist minister, reportedly is the mayor's choice. Britt, also a former letter carrier, works as a hotel accountant.

After six weeks of interviews, the mayor scheduled a news conference today to make the announcement. She had earlier vowed to replace Milk with another homosexual.

Milk, one of the nation's few avowed homosexual political figures, was gunned down Nov. 27 in City Hall, along with Mayor George Moscone. Former Supervisor Dan White has been charged in the shootings.

Estimates are that one-seventh of San Francisco's 660,000 residents are homosexual, and they have become a potent political force here.

"In a tape recording made before his death, Milk discussed the possibility that he could be assassinated, and named four persons he said he would like to see succeed him. Britt was among the four.

In recent weeks, however, leaders of this city's gay community have spearheaded a drive to name Milk's former administrative assistant, Anne Kronenberg, to his seat. Britt was among circulators of petitions supporting Kronenberg, who is a lesbian. She also was named on the tape.

As word of the mayor's expected naming of Britt leaked Sunday, Miss Kronenberg's supporters rallied in her behalf, marching in rain between two neighborhood parks.

The group, calling itself the Grass Roots Alliance District 5 Committee, has charged in posters and other communications that Mayor Feinstein has been unwilling to meet with community representatives to discuss her decision and was unwilling to name a supervisor who will continue Milk's pro-labor, pro-human rights voting record.

Britt said he had been considering enrolling in law school until Milk's death upset his plans. He said his political views would likely mirror Milk's, although he described himself as a less savvy politician.

"Harvey was a prophet," said Britt. "I'm more of a tactician."
