Iran Frees Wounded Marine

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian authorities today released a 22-year-old U.S. Marine guard who was taken from a hospital bed after he was wounded in an attack last week on the American Embassy, according to an aide to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Earlier, Deputy Prime Minister Amir Entezam had said Iran planned to try Sgt. Ken Kraus of Lansdale, Pa., on charges of "firing on Iranians" during the attack on the embassy.

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell told reporters, "The Marine has been released. The president is calling his mother now."

Tension eased a bit in the Iranian capital, as a Marxist guerrilla organization today backed off from a direct confrontation with Khomeini, canceling a march through the capital that had been banned by the religious leader.

In the place of the march, scheduled for Thursday, the Marxist People's Fedayeen invited "all our countrymen" to participate in a rally at Tehran's university on Friday, the Moslem sabbath.

In its call for the march, the Fedayeen had urged moderates and leftists alike to participate if they were "concerned that the blood of the martyrs will have been spilled in vain and the achievements of the revolution wasted."

The Fedayeen have been angered by their exclusion from Khomeini's provisional government, although hundreds of their members fought and died to topple of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

But in a statement today, the Fedayeen said they have decided to replace the march with a rally in response to "repeated demands from workers and educators and students" who feared the march "could halt the smoothness of current affairs" in Iran.

Khomeini had responded to the proposed march by banning it and then announcing that the "organizers are not Moslems and they are at war with the philosophical beliefs of Islam. People of all social strata should not cooperate with them."

"It is also said that these people have anti-Islamic tendencies. They intend to come to my house. I will not permit these opportunists to come to my house."

Medhi Bazargan, prime minister of the provisional government, has promised that the Communists and all other parties will be allowed to operate freely under the new constitution.

A major fear among many Iranians is that the growing differences between the Ayatollah's supporters and the leftists will spill over into fighting.

During the revolution, numerous army bases were looted of their arms and leftists have not responded to appeals by Khomeini to hand them back.

Chinese Try To Cut Viets' Supply Lines

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Three divisions of China's best troops were moving into position along the Vietnamese coast today for a lightning attack aimed at cutting off supply lines to Vietnamese units defending the Lang Son border region, intelligence sources in Bangkok said.

In Peking, an official Chinese source said China hopes to pull its invasion force out of Vietnam in a few days, Japan's Kyodo news service reported from the Chinese capital. But he reportedly said that if regular Vietnamese army troops join the fighting, it might be prolonged.

The sources here said the Chinese themselves apparently were readying for an all-out attack against regular Vietnamese troops brought up to the Lang Son area, 75 miles northeast of Hanoi.

These sources said Peking is then expected to withdraw most of its forces from Vietnam, possibly within three or four days.

Vietnam's Radio Hanoi reported heavy fighting Tuesday, fourth day of the border war, in an area between Lang Son, the major town in the northeast frontier area, and the border village of Dong Dang, seven miles to the north. The broadcast said Vietnamese forces "put a company of Chinese troops out of action, destroyed five tanks, and captured all the enemies' weapons."

Radio Hanoi also said a Chinese division Tuesday attacked in an area closer to the coast, around the villages of Than Phung, Po Hen and Cao Ba Lanh, but Vietnamese forces "trounced three battalions and wiped out 700 Chinese aggressors."

The Vietnamese "put out of action" 3,000 Chinese in the fighting Tuesday in Vietnam's northeast corner, the broadcast said.

At the western end of the front Tuesday, the Chinese captured Lao Cai, northwest Vietnam's major communications and railway center on the Red River, the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi.

The invaders were said to be 10-12 miles inside Vietnamese territory at some points. They, too, claimed to have inflicted thousands of casualties.

Vietnamese militia units have had to bear most of the defense burden since the Chinese invaded last Saturday, but it was reported that Vietnamese regular army units were sent to the Lang Son front Tuesday.

This morning, three divisions of elite

Chinese troops backed by heavy tanks were moving into Quang Ninh Province with the objective of swinging in behind the Vietnamese units at Lang Son and Dong Dang and severing their highway lifelines to the south.

The sources said the expected attack around Lang Son will probably be the final blow of the Chinese invasion, which Peking said it launched to "teach a lesson" to the Vietnamese. By next weekend, the Chinese may be pulling out main elements of their army out, while leaving some troops to hold parts of the central provinces of Ha Tuyen and Cao Bang for future negotiations with Vietnam, the sources said.

Teacher Pay Hike Target Of Clements

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said today the Legislature can finance part of his recommended $1 billion in property tax relief by ignoring a Legislative Budget Board recommendation to raise teacher salaries by 5.1 percent annually.

Clements presented his budget to a joint session of the Legislature, some of whose leaders have challenged him to show where $1 billion can be cut from the LBB recommendations.

The Republican chief executive said his budget would increase state expenditures by 17 percent, compared with the 22 percent increase recommended by the budget board.

"This budget is not a letter to Santa Claus. It's not even a carrot for the Easter bunny," Clements said.

He earlier had aroused the ire of some legislators by calling the LBB budget "a letter to Santa Claus."

Clements proposed education expenditures that are $737 million below the budget board's.

About half the reduction, he said, resulted from eliminating 5.1 percent annual pay raises the LBB recommended for teachers — $314 million worth over fiscal 1980-81.

Clements also eliminated appropriations to hold local costs of the Foundation School Program at the 1979 level, or around $200 million.

He noted that the present teacher pay plan automatically provides teachers raises ranging from 3.2 percent to 4.9 percent each year during the early phases of their careers.

Clements also left out an LBB recommendation of $33 million for a new state office building and parking garage.

"I think we can do without another office building and garage," he said.

Clements said he also would not go along with additional contributions to the state employee retirement system based on a projected increase in the number of government workers.

He reminded legislators of his commitment to reduce the number of state jobs by 25,000 over the next four years.

"If we can accomplish half this goal in 1980 and 1981, there will be no need for significant increases in retirement system funding," Clements said.

The governor laid out his proposed methods for using the resulting surplus of about $1 billion to reduce property taxes over the next two fiscal years.

First, he said, submit a constitutional amendment repealing the state property tax of 10 cents per $100 valuation, which would raise $96 million in 1980-81.

Secondly, allocate school districts up to $230 per student each year, based on the wealth of each district, in additional state aid.

"This must be accompanied by proper safeguards to ensure that the maximum amount of this allocation is channeled directly to reducing local property taxes and by proper controls of the taxing powers of the school district so that the relief is not dissipated," he said.

Clements said he would meet with state agency heads March 6 and would "ask them to implement a no-hire policy and the immediate beginning of a reduction in the ranks by attrition."

He said the surplus might exceed $1 billion, which would be available for more tax relief. If the state payroll can be reduced by 12,500 jobs in the coming two years, that would add $200 million, he said.

And if Comptroller Bob Bullock officially raises his revenue estimate by $200 million, as he indicates he will, the total surplus could be $1.4 billion, Clements said.

He repeated the calls for governmental

Perryman Convicted, Sentenced

A 140th District Court jury took only 15 minutes this morning to find Larry Donnell Perryman guilty of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit rape and another 15 minutes to give him the maximum 99-year penalty.

Perryman was on trial in connection with an incident Oct. 16 at the apartment of two sisters near the Texas Tech University campus.

The six-man, six-woman jury finished its work shortly before noon. Judge William R. Shaver formally pronounced sentence immediately after the jury was dismissed.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford, referring to testimony that the two young women suffered multiple stab wounds when they fought rather than submit to being raped, said Perryman, 19, of 1812 E. 2nd St., "was so fatally bent on rape that he was willing to stab to get it done."

Defense attorney Dennis McGill argued that Perryman entered the apartment only with the intent to steal and that he had been improperly charged under the law.

The jury went out at 10:25 a.m. after hearing final arguments and came back with its verdict at 10:40 a.m. It was out from 11:12 a.m. to 11:27 a.m. on the punishment phase.

In Tuesday testimony the younger of the two sisters told of jumping on the back of a man holding a knife at the throat of her sister and being stabbed four times before the assailant fled.

"I knew I had to do something because I knew she wouldn't take that," the 18-year-old Texas Tech University coed testified.

She and her 22-year-old sister, now a student at East Texas State University in Commerce, both identified Perryman as

Social Security's Problems Aired

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The hotly debated Social Security system is not going broke, but neither is it without some basic problems, according to a Texas Tech University economist.

Dr. Robert Rouse said Tuesday at a noon seminar on Social Security problems that the system may encounter temporary periods of severe recessions, but that he doesn't foresee bankruptcy in the future.

"The financial soundness of the Social Security system is not dependent on the size of the trust fund, but on the government's effective power of taxation," said Rouse. "It depends on a sound federal tax system and on a healthy, growing economy."

The economics and business administration professor told a group of about 25 persons that he believes the system has "two or three" problems that carry serious implications for the future of Social Security.

The short-run problem, said Rouse, would be a prolonged recession or depression which would increase the difficulty of funding Social Security through the current method of financial support.

The Social Security system is presently funded by the "pay-as-you-go" method, in which retirement benefits are financed by current participants. Payroll taxes from employers and employees go into the reserve fund, while benefits move out, said Rouse.

In a recession or depression, he said, the resulting high level of unemployment would in turn result in a reduction of payroll taxes going into the reserve fund. Simultaneously, benefit payments would probably increase because the unemployed would be more apt to retire early. Thus, the reserve fund would be quickly reduced.

Rouse said the most likely solution to the recession or depression problem would be the incorporation of general revenue funds into the system.

The long-run problem with the Social Security system deals with the age composition of the population, said Rouse. If the current population trend continues, the percentage of the elderly in the nation will increase by the year 2050 to the point where the percentage of those paying into Social Security will drop sharply. The percentage of the population 65 years of age and over will increase from 10 percent in 1979 to 18 percent in 2050 according to current projections, he said.

He added that while currently there are 3.5 persons in the labor force paying Social Security taxes for every person drawing benefits, in 2050 there will be only two persons paying into the system for every person taking out of the system.

The changes will result in either a "tremendous increase in Social Security taxes or a postponement of the retirement age to 68 or 70," said Rouse.

He said there has been a trend toward

Experts Remain Divided On Treatment Of Colds

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody's grandmother had advice on how to avoid or treat colds. Here are some common conceptions about colds and the evidence for or against them.

—Cold weather causes colds. Studies in the arctic and in the tropics have failed to find a clear connection between mild respiratory viruses and extremes of climate or temperature. Researchers now think colds occur most often during the winter because that's when people are forced indoors where they can infect each other.

—You can catch cold by going out without a hat, failing to wear overshoes, getting soaked, overheated, and so forth.

Lab studies also fail to confirm these common beliefs. But doctors agree the physiological changes associated with stress help bring on infections. So if these are stressful situations, perhaps they do cause colds after all.

—The best way to avoid a cold is to stay away from people who already have them.

Undoubtedly true, but trickier than it seems. People who get colds are infectious to others for about a day before they show any symptoms. And scientists aren't sure how much contact is needed to pass a cold. For example, in one University of Wisconsin study testing whether married couples could give each other colds, the infection was never passed if a couple spent less than 122 hours a week together. Any couple separated from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. five days a week are spending only 118 hours together.

—A hot toddy helps a cold.

One cold remedy is called the "two hat cure." The prescription is: hang your hat on the bedpost, get into bed with a bottle of your favorite spirits and drink until you see two hats. This is guaranteed to cure all symptoms until the following morning. Unfortunately, there is no cure for the "cure."

—Stuff a cold, starve a fever.

This old English proverb is often misread as meaning you should eat when you have a cold and refrain when you have a fever. But language experts think the proverb was corrupted over the years and its original meaning was, "If you stuff yourself during a cold, you will die (starve) with a fever." They think the modern use of the word "starve" is a corruption of the Old English verb "steorfan," meaning "to die." In either case, the proverb seems to fly in the face of good medical advice because eating enough to maintain good nutrition helps the body fight infections.

—The best treatment for a cold is aspirin, fluids and bed rest.

This is still the standard advice and it makes a lot of sense — especially the bed rest. Aspirin cuts pain and fever, if any, and fluids may help thin congestion. But some doctors think a fever is therapeutic since cold viruses like to grow best at relatively cool temperatures. Moreover, some doctors recommend against aspirin because it increases the rate at which virus is shed in the mucus and may make you more contagious to others.

—Vitamin C. Dr. Linus Pauling says a massive dose of ascorbic acid, or Vitamin C, helps stave off colds and cuts their symptoms. Most physicians don't agree. But some researchers have noted a brief

Steiger's Wife Seeks $2.5 Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The estranged wife of Rod Steiger has filed suit seeking a $2.5 million settlement from the actor in a suit similar to one filed against Lee Marvin by his former live-in lover Michelle Triola Marvin.

STEIGER

Marvin Mitchellson, attorney for Miss Marvin's suit to obtain half the assets Marvin accumulated while they lived together, filed the suit Tuesday. Sherry Steiger, 41, seeks to overturn a pre-nuptial agreement with Steiger that prevents her from recovering property accumulated in their nine-year relationship. The Steigers lived together four years prior to their 1973 marriage. A divorce hearing is scheduled for April.

Portrait Shows Different Carter

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter smiled when he saw his smiling portrait. He likes it, he says, because it's not all teeth.

The portrait, painted by artist Robert Templeton of Woodbury, Conn., was unveiled Tuesday at the state Capitol.

Carter, often characterized by his toothy smile, praised the portrait, commissioned to hang in the state Senate where he served from 1963 to 1967. Private donations paid the $4,500 cost of the painting, which shows Carter seated at a desk.

"You don't know how nice it is to see a portrait of you that isn't 80 percent teeth," Carter commented.

Kosygin Turns 75

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin is 75 today, still a step away from the top Kremlin job but apparently not yet ready to retire.

Rumors circulating in the early 1970s that he soon would retire have subsided with Politburo circumvention of a rule that would have forced retirement at 70.

Dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov has called him the "most intelligent and toughest" man in the leadership, and educated Russians see him as the man who manages the seemingly unmanageable economy.

Kosygin was 13 when the Russian Revolution broke out in his home city of Leningrad. He joined the Red Army at 15, trained as an engineer, ran a textile mill and became mayor of Leningrad in his climb to power.

His former mentor, the late Premier Nikita Khrushchev, said in his memoirs that he "simply can't explain" how Kosygin survived the Stalinist purges of the 1940s.

Calaveras County Jumping Again

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — A Mark Twain story about a champion jumping frog put Calaveras County on the map, but now some folks here are a touch jumpy over a matter of who owns the land on the map.

Because a mining company failed to file patents on land, it seems the federal government may own the main drag of this northern California mining community and nearby Altaville.

Atop the land sits City Hall, two churches, dozens of businesses, the city swimming pool and a statue of Mark Twain.

Bertha Walsh, a grandmother who operates an auto supply store on Main Street, says citizens ought to ignore the issue.

"After a 100 years, is Uncle Sam going to pull the land from under me? I've got squatter's rights," she said.

Dick Wilmschurst discovered the dilemma when he commissioned a surveyor to examine a lot he thought he owned and learned he didn't hold title to the property.

"Since then, I've discovered that my used car and new car sales lots are on public land, too," he said.

This week, Angel Camp's 3,000 residents are to discuss proposed legislation that would transfer title to some 50 property owners involved.

Research Shows Schools Becoming Battle Zone

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A breakdown in discipline has turned public schools into a battle zone, and the largest number of casualties are among the teachers, according to a Texas A&M researcher.

Student violence results in almost 61,000 teachers being battered and abused each year, said Dr. David Erlanson in a report on student violence.

The poor discipline in the nation's public schools has left many teachers with the mental equivalent of battle fatigue, Erlanson contends.

"Teachers complain that discipline in public schools has never been worse," Erlanson said. "The sad thing about their claim is that it's true."

A survey by the National Education Agency showed that almost 3 percent — or 61,000 — of the nation's public school teachers are attacked annually by students.

High school and junior high school teachers are the victims of the most serious attacks, but Erlanson said elementary school-level teachers have not been excluded.

The problems are caused by changing values in American society, Erlanson said, that are due partially to the fact that schools today no longer hold values similar to the communities they serve.

"At one time, before World War II, school values were pretty representative of the communities that they served. That is no longer the case."

Erlanson said the discipline problem cannot be solved until the community can reach a consensus of what values it considers important.

Parents tend to give schools the responsibility of teaching values and discipline to their children, he said.

And he added shifting values in today's society do not allow a school system to teach as it did when the vast majority of society supported a single set of values and ideas.

"Parents need to realize schools are no longer an extension of their values," Erlanson said. "They simply can't do everything."

A change of approach on the part of parents and teachers might do much to alleviate the discipline problem in public schools, suggested Erlanson.

"If teachers received the same kind of faith that a coach puts in an official, things might change for the better," he said. "I've never met a coach that felt the officials unduly favored him."

He said though there will always be controversial calls in school discipline, parents must have faith in school administrators.

Teachers Union Leader Favors Discipline Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A leader of the Texas teachers union says a Corpus Christi teacher had to keep a 16-year-old boy in his class even after the boy's father and brothers beat him up.

That, said President June Karp of the Texas Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, is typical of the cooperation administrators give teachers in disciplining students.

In this case, she said, the boy "took umbrage" at the teacher for breaking up a fight. After his father and brothers sent the teacher to the hospital, she said, the boy was back in class bragging "about how to handle interfering teachers."

Miss Karp told the House Public Education Committee that teachers are tired of taking it and favor a bill enabling them to throw incorrigible students out of their classes without asking permission from administrators.

"In many instances, teachers have reported disruption caused by a student time and time again, only to have no action taken by the principal's office. We are being told repeatedly that students have rights, yet we find overwhelming evidence that teachers are exempted from the right to handle disciplinary cases," Miss Karp said.

The bill (HB8) by Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, would allow a teacher to eject an incorrigible pupil from class. The pupil could be kept out unless and until the local school board orders him or her returned to class.

Only pupils who assault a teacher or regularly interfere with a teacher's ability to communicate with the class would have to worry, Smith said.

Smith said the Corpus Christi school principal's response to the assaulted teacher was not unusual.

"There is a chain in education. If you talk too much about discipline problems, the person above you thinks you are incapable of handling the problem," he said.

John Duncan, executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, said he opposes the bill.

Electric Official Says Customers To Suffer

AUSTIN (AP) — Customers of three Texas electric companies would suffer in the long run if the utilities are ordered to refund $20 million to consumers, a company official says.

"Suppose we had to eat it (the refund). It would mean a loss in credit ratings," said Louis Austin, chairman of Texas Utilities Co. — holding company for Texas Electric Service Co., Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light.

"Keeping utilities financially strong is in the best interest in the long run," Austin said Tuesday, adding rate-payers would shoulder burdens of lower credit ratings and resulting higher business costs.

The Texas Public Utility Commission staff has recommended the refunds to correct what it says was an improper transaction between the three companies. If the three-member commission approved the rebates, they would be the first ordered for an electric company by the regulatory agency.

Austin spoke to reporters during a break in the commission's hearing on affiliate transactions involving an East Texas power plant, lignite leases, uranium rights and other items.

The three companies serve four million people in North, Central, East and West Texas, including Dallas, Fort Worth, Arlington, Midland, Odessa, Wichita Falls and Big Spring.

The affiliates — TESCO, DP&L and TP&L — exchanged shares in the Texas Utilities system Martin Lake power plant near Henderson in 1976. The commission staff said TESCO improperly passed on fuel costs from the deal to its customers.

TESCO sold electricity to TP&L generated from its cheapest natural gas. In exchange, TESCO acquired part ownership in the plant.

DP&L also bought an interest in the plant and lignite reserves from TP&L, but not in exchange for electricity. Two of the plant's four units are operating and a third is scheduled to generate commercial power later this year.

TESCO should refund $17 million, TP&L $1.2 million and DP&L $500,000, the commission staff has said.

The 20 attorneys representing the companies and their customers heard commission chairman George Cowden urge everyone to remain cool and calm.

"We all have a job to do. It's going to come out in a way that somebody's not going to be happy with," Cowden said. "I trust we'll all maintain our best composure and demeanor and conduct ourselves on the highest plane."

Austin spoke for all three utilities in saying the energy transactions were made in the customers' best interests.

"All the transactions did not make any profit for Texas Utilities or their stockholders," he said. "Hindsight is great, but all those actions took place in the most volatile time (1976) of our industry."

Witness Claims To Be Lover

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A young actor who says he once lied about his sexual involvement with Michelle Triola Marvin testified he was her lover while she lived with Lee Marvin and eventually had to fend off her sexual advances. A transcript of actor Richard Doughty's testimony, given in secrecy in the chambers of Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall, was made public Tuesday after Marshall ruled it was relevant to the case.

Doughty, 34, said he and Miss Marvin had sexual relations at least 25 times after they met in 1969 on the Micronesian island of Palau where Marvin was preparing for the film "Monte Walsh" after completing "Hell in the Pacific."

Miss Marvin told reporters Tuesday she never had an affair with Doughty and called his allegations of sexual intimacies "ridiculous."

"I never saw him make a pass at any girl, to tell you the truth," she said. When she first heard his testimony, she said, "I was just shocked. ... I got sick to my stomach."

Doughty was the third witness called by Marvin's attorneys in defense against Miss Marvin's $1.8 million lawsuit. Miss Marvin, 46, is seeking half the assets Marvin, 56, accumulated in the six years they lived together.

Marshall said Miss Marvin's suit is a breach of contract action and evidence indicating a contract may have been broken is relevant.

"While evidence of sexual conduct with other persons may not alone establish the non-existence of any contract or, if there is such a contract, establish its breach, it is certainly some proof thereof," Marshall said.

Doughty testified he was a marine biologist for the Peace Corps when he said Miss Marvin invited him to take her on a picnic to a remote island near Palau.

During the picnic, he said, they had sex for the first time. Marvin's attorney, A. David Kagon, asked Doughty how often they had sexual relations after that.

"Just about every day," Doughty said. "Sometimes she would ask me, sometimes it would be my initiation."

Doughty said he and Marvin later became friends and Marvin urged him to take up acting and come to California.

Doughty said Marvin arranged a job for him on "Monte Walsh" and he moved in with Marvin and the former showgirl at their Malibu beach house.

DR. LAMB

Baldness In Women

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a professional woman in my early 60s. My hair on the sides is fairly thick, but it is getting a little thin on top. Please, where do I go for a hair transplant? Would this be done by a plastic surgeon?

DEAR READER — Yes, plastic surgeons who do cosmetic surgery usually do hair transplants. If you have good thick hair on the sides of your head, he simply takes plugs out and transplants them to the areas where the hair is thin.

If your family doctor doesn't recommend one for you, you might call the county medical society and ask for the names of plastic surgeons who do cosmetic surgery in your community. I see that you are from a large city so I am sure there will be a number in your city who do this type of work.

Baldness in women isn't all that rare. Of course, you might consider other cosmetic aids, depending upon how much hair you've really lost. You wouldn't be the first woman who has added extra hair to her natural tresses.

Balding occurs in about 8 percent of women. There does seem to be a familial characteristic in some instances.

It's probably related, in other cases, to the changes in hormone balance that occur after menopause. Unfortunately, the situation can't be remedied by simply giving female hormones either.

To give you more information on what affects your hair, I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-6, Hair Care. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband suffers acutely from cold sores on his lips. They show up at once when he has a cold, the flu or simply when I kiss him on the lips. It is very annoying and painful. His lips swell, ache and it takes a long time for the cold sore to clear up.

We heard that a smallpox vaccination is effective in some people but not always. Our doctor recommended a series of a full dose of five smallpox vaccinations to be given once a week for five consecutive weeks. We are afraid of the possible side effects from such a massive vaccination within such a short period of time.

We've also heard there's a new medicine that can be used to cure the cold sores. Do you know of it? I would like to add that my husband has tried lemon juice, alum, baking sodas, spirit of camphor, alcohol, Dolomite, vitamins and other medications with no success.

DEAR READER — Those cold sores your husband has are caused by a virus that lives inside the cells on the lips and face area. The virus is called herpes simplex. It is completely unrelated to the virus that causes smallpox. Smallpox vaccinations will provide no help whatsoever. It was previously believed the smallpox vaccinations might be effective in helping reduce cold sores but subsequent research studies have proved this hope to be ill-founded.

At the present time, no good treatment is available. The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases does have a promising new anti-viral drug under study, called Ara-A. It has been effective against involvement of the brain with the herpes virus. If your doctor (not you) wants more information, he can write to NIAID, Building 31, Room 7A32, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., 20014.

RUNS NATION'S OLDEST TOBACCO SHOP — Mrs. Dorothea DeMuth sprinkles a handful of DeMuth's Old Blend tobacco back into its container in the nation's oldest tobacco shop she has been operating in Lancaster, Pa., since the death of her husband last December. Her left hand is on a woodcarving that was the shop's original sign in 1770. The carved figure holds a snuffbox indicating that snuff was the first tobacco product sold in the shop. Mrs. DeMuth is 80 years old. (AP Laserphoto)

Historic Business Stays In Family

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Some of DeMuth's customers sniffed, some puffed and others chewed.

The DeMuth Tobacco Shop has been in business since 1770, satisfying the tobacco cravings of nearly seven generations of Americans.

A few left their names in the history books, but the vast majority — the common folk of this agricultural section of southeastern Pennsylvania — left little more than tombstones.

According to legend, DeMuth's sold snuff to two colonial conspirators — the dashing British Maj. John Andre and America's most infamous traitor, Benedict Arnold.

The two joined in a plot to turn over the fort at West Point, N.Y., to the Redcoats. Andre was caught and hanged, and Arnold, who commanded colonial troops at Philadelphia, went to New York, joined the British army and eventually wound up in Britain.

Later, President James Buchanan bought Rappée pipe tobacco at the historic store.

The same family has run the store in the same location for 209 years.

And Dorothea DeMuth intends to keep it that way. When her husband died last December, she received offers from folks all over the country who wanted to buy her business.

But the 80-year-old woman decided to keep it in the family. She has four grandsons.

"I just couldn't see breaking up the historic atmosphere here," she said. "I guess what I wanted to avoid more than anything else was the development of a new stand-type of operation. We've been a straight tobacco store for over 200 years and I'd like to see it stay that way."

Christopher DeMuth started the business in 1770, making snuff and cigars. As the business passed on to eight successive members of the family, the shop added chewing tobaccos and pipe blends to keep pace with changing times.

Today, the store no longer sells cigars or snuff under its own label, but it has kept its three types of chewing tobacco and one pipe blend.

The store's interior was last remodeled in 1917, when workmen used dark mahogany to panel walls and construct display cases. DeMuth's original sign — a hand carved, 3-foot statue of a colonial man holding an empty snuff box — remains intact, perched on a showcase.

Mrs. DeMuth employs three salesmen for day-to-day operations, but she visits the shop briefly every day to see how things are going.

She believes the shop will help her fight off loneliness. Her husband, Christopher, who was named after the founder, ran the business from 1937 until his death.

"I'm an active person who likes to keep busy," she said.

Flu Outbreak Closes School

CADILLAC, Mich. (UPI) — A flu outbreak that has hit 30 percent of the student population forced school officials in Cadillac and surrounding communities to cancel classes for two days this week.

State health officials said there also have been at least 18 suspected or confirmed cases around Michigan of Reyes Syndrome, a rare flu complication that strikes primarily young people. Two of the victims died.

Three experts from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta arrived in Michigan this week to help monitor the flu outbreak and the cases of Reyes Syndrome.

Classes were canceled for Tuesday and Wednesday for more than 4,100 students who attend Cadillac and Buckley schools in Wexford County. Classes also were canceled at a number of rural schools in the region.

The latest suspected case of Reyes Syndrome is David Anderson, 17, of Cadillac, who was hospitalized in Saginaw in critical condition Sunday. His condition had not changed by Tuesday.

Reyes Syndrome, characterized by heavy vomiting, high fever and fatigue, is not contagious, but it has a 40 percent mortality rate and there are no known cures. Two fatal cases of the disease were reported in Hillsdale County in southern Michigan earlier this year.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

The Pink (Slip) Panther

GOV. BILL CLEMENTS was expected to give some clue today whether he still thinks he can lop 25,000 persons off the state payroll—but one of his department heads is way ahead of the game.

Sam Harvey, who Clements appointed to head the bulging Texas Department of Community Affairs, has dismissed 67 of his agency's 260 employees—and those left said they expect more heads to roll.

A 24 percent reduction in force in less than a month (Harvey took over on Jan. 29) may not be a record but it's a whale of an average.

IF THERE'S ANY place where the new Republican governor could chop waste and inefficiency out of state government without getting into any muscle, the TDCA would appear to be a logical starting point.

A relatively new state bureaucracy, it's chief function has been to funnel about $85 million a year in federally allocated grants from the deficit-riddled federal treasury to often inefficiently operated local programs.

Scandal-scarred Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs and the Governor's Office of Migrant Af-airs, for example, are funded through the TDCA.

Federal grants to local nutrition, recreation, drug abuse, alcohol prevention, economic development, job-training and anti-poverty programs all over Texas are handled by the Department of Community Affairs.

According to a 1976 study by the Joint Advisory Commission on Government Operations, nearly every program administered by the department was similar to programs performed by other agencies.

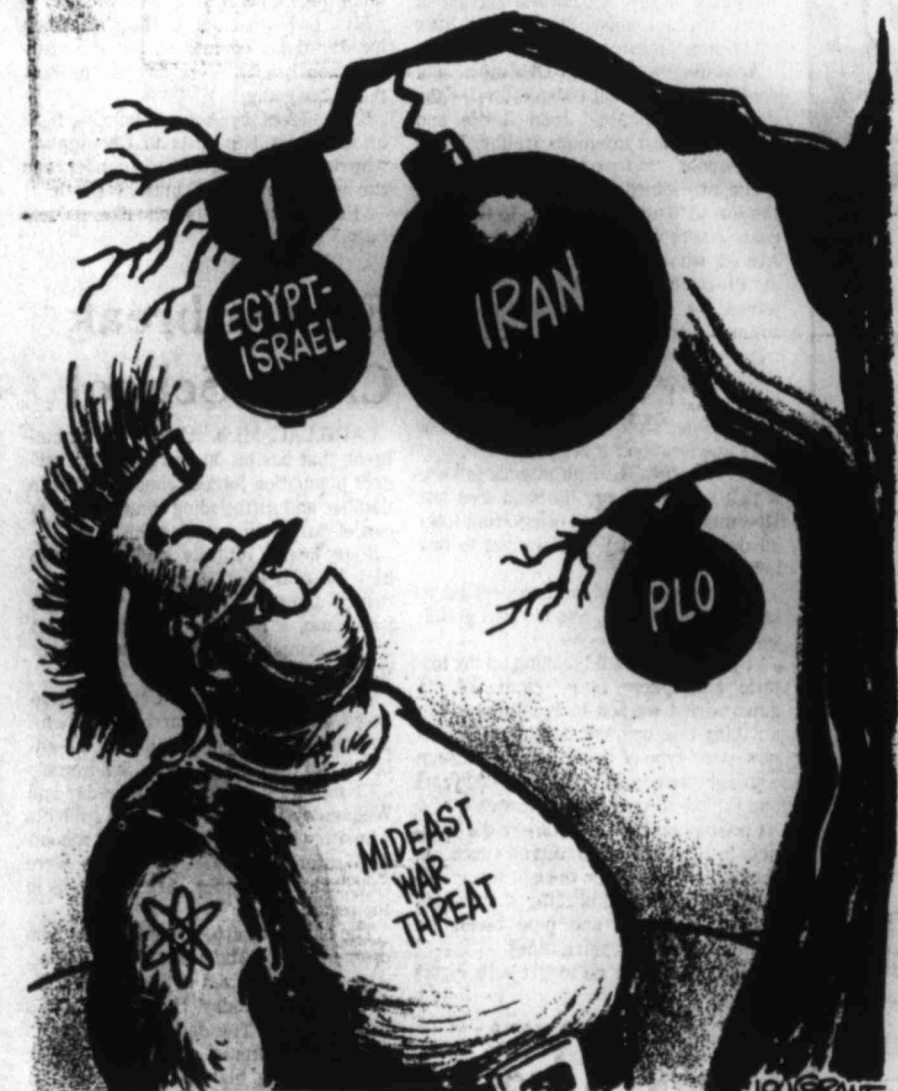

"THE REAL TRAGEDY is we are losing some good people in these cutbacks, but that doesn't alter the fact that the agency was over-stuffed," Harvey said. "It was the fattest department in state government."

"We are deleting those positions that are superfluous," he added. "Some of these people were just sitting in the wrong chair at the right time."

The dismissals represent $1.3 million in salaries alone, according to Harvey.

Now, if those dismissals were to presage a corresponding 24 percent cut in the $85 million doled out by the TDCA, we'd begin to see some real savings.

'Hang In There...'

James J. Kilpatrick:

Who Needs Public TV, Anyway?

WASHINGTON—The Carnegie Commission on the Future of Public Broadcasting delivered itself this month a massive report recommending reorganization and expansion of the present system.

The report says public broadcasting is an "absolutely indispensable" institution. To that I say, nonsense.

The recommendations of this "distinguished" commission—that is their own complacent adjective—never address the fundamental questions of public broadcasting in a free society.

Does government have any proper role at all in areas of editorial opinion and cultural propagation? If so, how is that role to be safeguarded against abuse?

THESE INQUIRIES go to the very heart of the matter. Under the existing arrangement for public broadcasting, nobody—virtually nobody—is effectively responsible for anything.

The recommendations of the commission would do nothing to remedy the situation, nothing to provide a point at which one could say: The buck stops here.

This is an infuriating report in many ways. Public broadcasting is financed in large part by public funds—by money taken from the people under the compulsion of taxation.

The commission would greatly increase this public subsidy, from the present level of $119 million a year to about $630 million in 1985. But a fairly close reading of the 300-page report turns up no reference to taxpayers and taxation.

THE MONEY should be provided "by the federal government." It is not tax money, it is "federal money." It is not the taxpayers, it is the Corporation for Public Broadcasting that "finances" the programs.

Well, the people—all the people—are in fact taxed to support this enterprise, and the people have every right to question the authority of Congress in dishing out their money so that America's creative artists may "shape and define" society.

Who are these shapers and definers? What form of "strong editorial purpose" are we talking about?

The authors of this report would create a new Public Telecommunications Trust to replace the existing Corporation for Public Broadcasting. This appears to be a change without a material difference.

THE TRUST would have no more editorial responsibility than the CPB has now. It would disburse money; it would protect the system from "inappropriate interference in the sensitive area of program making," most notably from "the book burners and dogmatists among us."

As a second line of defense against the common herd, the authors would provide a Program Services Endowment. This would be a "highly insulated, semi-autonomous" outfit.

It would underwrite various programs, but it would not really be responsible for their content.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

'Mah Friends...'

IN JUMPING into bed with the Ayatollah Khomeini by quickly recognizing his regime in Iran, the Carter administration finds itself in bed, too, with the Palestine Liberation Organization, Yasser Arafat's world terrorism group.

With our new "friend" Red China also in bed with us, we can begin to understand what Jimmy Carter's "Human Rights Crusade" is all about.

Hardly had Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping gotten home after being entertained by Carter than Red China invaded neighboring Vietnam. And Arafat says that, having helped Khomeini stage a successful revolution in Iran, he's now ready to get Iran's assistance in destroying Israel.

Having made friends with such peace-loving folks, the President next can invite Fidel Castro to the White House to ask him if he wouldn't, pretty please, take our Cuban naval base off our hands.

"THE NATO ALLIANCE does not have enough military resources to provide a credible defense," the House Armed Services subcommittee on NATO reports.

"Our defense appears to be based on hopes and wishes," it adds. "We are deluding ourselves and the people who rely on us if we do not move out of our present dream world and into the world of reality."

Oh, well, we've abandoned our friends in Africa, Asia and the Middle East. Why not those in Europe?

Holmes Alexander:

Carter Trips Over 'Goal' Line

WASHINGTON—"Could that be the President of the United States who keeps letting objects fall carelessly from his pockets?" asked the Returning Traveler who'd been away for a while.

"I just saw a round piece of fluff come floating through the picket fence at the White House where a familiar fellow was strolling, and I thought..."

"You thought right," the Returning Traveler was told. "That figure was Mrs. Bella Abzug, co-chairperson of the Women's Advisory Group. Carter has had her in his pocket since last summer. People regarded her and her group as valuable Democratic party assets."

"So why did he let her get away?" asked the puzzled Traveler.

"That's the whole point. He didn't drop Bella by accident. He threw her away."

CARTER IS developing a pesky temper these days. Maybe it's on account of the trouble he's having with his avaricious brother, Billy.

Carter is turning most erratic on policies, issues and people. He loses things...he throws 'em away. Nobody seems to know which or why.

"The Nationalist Republic of China was a mighty expensive piece of property to let go the way he did," said the Traveler. "I suppose it was bound to happen sometime because it wasn't ours in the first place. Still, history is going to write that Carter lost Nationalist China the way Truman lost continental China."

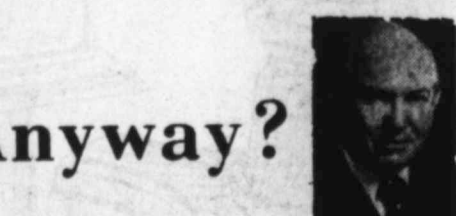

"Strange things are happening, all right," said the Traveler. "It wasn't long ago that Carter had Sadat and Begin at Camp David, and there was going to be everlasting peace in the Middle East."

"BUT TODAY the American Jewish community feels that Jimmy has double-crossed 'em. Now, a political candidate who tosses away Bella Abzug and the woman's vote within six months of the Camp David fiasco has got to have holes in the head."

"Who knows?" was the answer. "He isn't as smart as he used to be. Before he dropped Bella and after he let those fellows walk out of Camp David and pick up the Nobel Peace Prize, the President let the Shah of Iran fall out of a back pocket."

"We don't have many rich friends like the Shah. There he was using his oil to buy our war planes and lift 'em up against the common border with Russia."

"The President was saying only a few weeks ago that the Shah was solid in Iran, and now the Shah and his family have jumped town and gone to Egypt. Jimmy Carter is slipping, can't seem to keep a good thing when he's got it."

"He can't even seem to hit it off with Mexico," the Traveler mused. "We ought to be able to make a deal for their surplus gas and oil, and find a way to legalize their immigrants. There's got to be a solution to these problems. Wait—I've got it."

His listener breathed a sigh of relief.

One day last week, President Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski were in Mexico; Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff was in the Philippines; and Defense Secretary Harold Brown was in Israel.

The only thing we can take solace in had there been a surprise attack on the U.S. is that Vice President Walter Mondale was skiing in Colorado...

Congress will take care of us, though, with all of the deficit spending it's doing on social programs. For example, we can show the invasion forces all sorts of interesting pictures done in our adult finger-painting courses.

Stripped to its essence, the Carter foreign policy might be summed up with "It's better to have loved and lost than never to have lost at all."

You can look for the President to take bold action in trying to get Congressional approval of his plan for "real wage insurance" by giving tax credits to workers whose wages don't go up as fast as inflation.

He might give rebates in Chinese yen and Russian rubles.

Carter has a secret weapon, though, in case of an invasion of the American mainland. He'll guarantee the striking New Orleans police everything they want if they'll just go back to work.

A 23-inch snow hit Washington Monday, when the bureaucrats and Congress were on a three-day holiday. It was business as usual. A snow job.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS President J. Fred Bucy continues to be the nation's leading spokesman for an effective policy against exporting critical American technology.

The first step, Bucy told a Washington symposium several weeks ago, would be to define technology.

"Products are not technology. Neither is science," he said. "...Technology is the application of science to the design and manufacture of products and services."

What he proposes, then, is a policy that would promote markets for American high-technology products while outlawing the transfer of the technology itself.

Sales of "turnkey" factories, sales of manufacturing and technical data, licenses with extensive teaching, consulting agreements and the training of technical personnel are examples of transferring technology, Bucy said.

The objective of such a ban on transfers of technology, the TI president added, "is to delay their rapid acquisition by the Soviets and other controlled countries."

"Wasn't it Jody Powell, Hamilton Jordan and Gerald Rofshoon who let Bella get the advisory job?"

"Well then, why not take her back and fire them. He could always send for his old mentor, Admiral Rickover and start again with the slogan, 'Why not the best?' Jimmy's in a slump. The next thing he'll lost might be his buttons."

Sylvia Porter:

Big-Ticket Tax Cuts Slice Price You Pay

(Second of 11 columns)

IF YOU'RE a homeowner 55 years of age or older, you were handed a fantastic tax break by the 1978 Revenue Act—in the form of a once-in-a-lifetime election to exclude from income up to $100,000 of any profit on sale of your principal residence. And "principal residence" also includes condominium and cooperative apartments.

With prices of condominiums and coops doubling, tripling, and otherwise skyrocketing, countless hundreds of thousands of you who own your homes could. But if you did sell at a profit, you ordinarily would have to pay capital gains tax on your profit unless you bought another residence for at least as much as your selling price.

IN SHORT, if you wanted to move out of your house into an apartment or from a big house to a smaller, less costly residence, you ordinarily would have to pay tax on the profit on your house sale.

But if you already had reached 55 years of age when you sell or exchange your house after July 26, 1978, you can make this new election—entitling you to collect up to $100,000 of profit without any federal capital gains tax on the profit.

(You can exclude only up to $50,000 if you are a married individual who files a separate return.)

Your profit is tax-free even if you don't buy another house. What a tax break! Here are the requirements that you must meet in order to make the election:

(1) YOU MUST BE at least 55 or older when you make the sale of the house, coop or condominium.

(2) The house, coop or condominium must be your principal residence. For instance, if you own a summer cottage which you occupy for only a month or two during the year, that is not your principal residence. You cannot, therefore, exclude from tax the profit you make on sale of that cottage.

(3) If you were 55 or over but not yet 65 when you make the sale, you must have owned and used the property as your principal residence for periods totaling three years or more during the five-year period ending on the date you sell or exchange it.

If you already are 65 or over when you make the sale—and the sale is completed before July 26, 1981—you can qualify for the election if you owned and occupied the property as your principal residence for five out of eight years before the sale, even if you don't meet the three out of five-year test.

TO ILLUSTRATE how important this alternative test can be for an owner who is 65 or older when he sells, Leon Gold, chief tax counsel for the Research Institute of America, cites an owner who after living in his house for many years, moves to an apartment, and allows his son and daughter-in-law to move into and live in the house.

Thought from Diane: "Dolly Parton is really very shy, but she puts up a good front!"

After three years, the owner sells the house at a substantial profit. If the owner is 55 or over but not yet 65 when he sells, he won't qualify for the election because he hasn't used the house as his principal residence for the required three out of five years immediately before the sale; he used it as his principal residence for only two out of the five years.

But if he was 65 or over when the sale was made, he could qualify for the election under the five-out-of-eight-year alternative test. He would have used the house as his principal residence for the five years immediately preceding the three years during which his son and daughter-in-law occupied it before he sold it.

(4) THIS IS STRICTLY a one-shot, once-in-a-lifetime election. Once you or your spouse make an election on a sale or exchange of a principal residence, neither of you can make a similar election for any subsequent sale or exchange of a later principal residence.

For instance, say you bought your principal residence for $25,000 sell it for $50,000, and move into an apartment. Assuming you qualify, you can elect to exclude your $25,000 profit from tax. If you do, that's your one-shot exclusion and you can't make any later election to protect another $75,000 of profit from tax.

To illustrate this, you may give up your apartment after several years and buy another house for $50,000. Then, after occupying it for the required time, you sell this house for $100,000, giving you a $50,000 profit.

YOU CANNOT elect to exclude this $50,000 profit from tax because you previously used up your once-in-a-lifetime election in the $25,000 profit from sale of your previous house.

Warning: Think hard and long before deciding when to use your one-shot, once-in-a-lifetime election! If you buy another house, all or part of your profit may be exempt anyway without the election.

Reminder: If you made a sale of your principal residence after July 26, 1978, and before Jan. 1, 1979, and you meet all the above requirements of age, holding period, etc., you can elect to treat your profit as tax-free on your 1978 federal income tax return.

If you expect to sell your house in the future, keep this new election clearly in mind.

YOU MAY, for example, be a 54-year-old homeowner. You can and you want to sell your suburban house at $100,000 profit, with the intention of moving into a rental apartment in the city. If you do this before you become 55, your entire $100,000 profit will be taxable as capital gain.

If you hold off selling until you reach the age of 55, it's possible that a deterioration in the housing market or a serious change in home-selling conditions in your area may result in a lower profit to you (at least possible, and you must weigh this).

But your entire profit on your sale will be tax-free! When put this starkly, your choice becomes unmistakable. You hold off until you reach 55. Next: Capital Gains.

Goodyear To Close Plant In Scotland

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — The U.S.-owned Goodyear tire plant here announced it is closing because the British workforce refuses to accept management productivity proposals.

West Hansen, chairman and managing director of Goodyear Tyre and Rubber Co. (Great Britain) Ltd., told a news conference the refusal of the workers amounted to "industrial suicide."

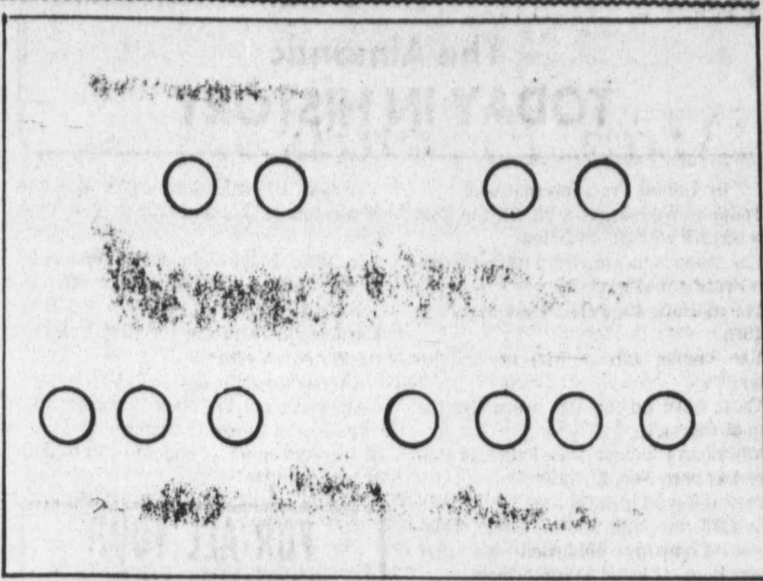

He said it was the first time Goodyear had closed one of its international tire manufacturing plants in 81 years of business. He said the plant, one of three owned by Goodyear in Britain, would be run down over the next 90 days. It has been losing over 100,000 pounds — $20,000 — a day for the past year. The company has 11 other plants elsewhere in Europe.

"We have reluctantly reached the conclusion the Scottish plant can no longer operate as a subsidized plant within our European production system," Hansen said.

The plant has 600 employees. Its 430 rubber workers last week refused to accept management proposals for a new shift system, reduced manning, measures to maintain productivity and introduction of procedures to settle disputes peacefully.

"With output per man-hour at less than half the average production of any of the other company plants in Europe, Goodyear tires produced in Scotland have for the past few years been sold at substantial losses, which have been offset by the more productive European plants," Hansen said.

Handling Money Involves Choices

By SHARI LEWIS

There's an old tune called "Money Burns a Hole in My Pocket" which could be the theme song for most of us. It's really hard to train yourself to be in charge of your money, rather than being one of those people whose money flies or burns a hole in his pocket.

If you want to get a good feeling about sticking your dimes and dollars in your piggy bank (rather than spending 'em) try this:

Pick an event (say, going to the ice show or circus) and a date (say, six weeks away) and an amount you'll save each week (say, 50 cents). Mark them on your calendar.

Then you'll know that by giving up a couple of unimportant things each day (say, a pack of gum or an ice cream) you'll be rewarding yourself with a terrific thing (the ticket to the show).

Handling money involves choices (you can have that comic book or the candy, but not both) and sometimes it takes that big reward to help us become stronger than the immediate desire to have that little thing in front of us.

I think the reason piggy banks are frustrating for kids is it's hard for you to realize that the money tucked inside is still yours — so have at least one piggy bank that rewards you for saving every couple of weeks by giving you a goody that you otherwise never would have had.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Take care of me and I'm everyone; drop me and I'm no one. Who am I?

ANSWER: A mirror.
TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Can you add six vertical (up and down) lines, and change these circles into a sentence? (See illustration.) (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Swiss Bank Increases Loan Rates

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Concerned about inflationary pressures, the Swiss National Bank has decided to push up interest rates and accept some increase in the value of the Swiss franc, sources said.

The first step will be to reduce the bulging money supply, through actions in the foreign exchange market and the domestic money market, thereby pushing up short-term interest rates, the sources said.

The uppermost goal of the Swiss government and the central bank remains price stability, and the authorities feel that even exporters, who have been badly hurt by the franc's sharp appreciation, wouldn't choose a weaker franc at the expense of significant inflation.

Until now, the central bank has insisted that the excessive liquidity didn't pose an inflationary threat because of the sluggish domestic economy. However, signs of a pickup in economic activity in the second half have cropped up in recent weeks, convincing the authorities to revise their 1979 strategy.

Just last month, the central bank announced that it wouldn't set a money supply growth target for 1979, preferring unlimited interventions aimed at currency stabilization. The money supply rose 17 percent last year, well above the 5 percent target, as the government tried to hold down the franc's appreciation.

The central bank's fear about inflationary pressures comes in a country that managed to reduce a nearly 10 percent inflation rate in 1974 to virtually nothing in recent years.

The central bank is predicting a 1.5 percent to 2 percent rise in real gross national product. The chief economic advisor for Credit Suisse, Hans Mast, places the upper limit at 2.5 percent. Last year's growth was about 1 percent.

The combination of an acceleration of incoming orders for some segments of Swiss industry, stabilization of the Swiss franc, stepped-up West German economic activity and the lack of a decline in U.S. demand have injected an element of optimism, he said.

"You have now created some conditions for a pick-up in economic activity, but at the same time you've created conditions for inflationary forces to become virulent, and therefore this balancing act between price stability and employment will be difficult," he remarked.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will have a marvelous knack tomorrow for getting others out of their doldrums with a few witty remarks. Spread your sunshine around wherever it is needed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your chances to gain an important goal will be excellent tomorrow, especially if you have alternatives ready if your first approach doesn't materialize as fast as you'd like.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your ideas or concepts are worthy ones. They will be equal or superior to those of your associates tomorrow. Defend them if you must.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Changes that might occur tomorrow, even though they may be inaugurated by others, are likely to be to your benefit in the long run.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your judgement will be quite keen tomorrow. You'll balance all the facts against what you've learned from your own experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Financial conditions appear very encouraging for you tomorrow. Two separate channels may open that could add to your resources.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Companions and associates will appreciate your managerial techniques tomorrow. They know that when you take the helm you'll chart the right course.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Though you may not be the first one out of the starting gate tomorrow, you'll be a splendid stretch runner. Success will be due to a strong second effort.

cess will be due to a strong second effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you have something serious to discuss with a friend tomorrow, lead up to your subject gradually. Plunging in with both feet won't produce the results you anticipated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Noble goals will be attainable tomorrow because of your strong desire to provide for those you love. Your reward will be the joy you receive in doing for others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) What you learn tomorrow you will be able to retain and put to good use later. Be attentive if you're in the presence of one who is wise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone indebted to you may begin to make an effort toward repayment tomorrow. The installments will be small, but steady.

U.S. Changes Perception Of Islamic Leader

By GEORGE GEDDA
WASHINGTON (AP) — When Ayatollah Khomeini was directing the Iranian protest movement from his Parisian exile last year, he was viewed here as a medieval obscurantist threatening a vital American interest.

Now, with Khomeini's followers in power, the American perception of the 78-year-old Islamic chieftain has taken a 180-degree turn.

Khomeini is now seen as the last, best hope for a continuing cooperative relationship between Iran and the United States.

American officials who once derided Khomeini are now hopeful his forces can cope with the challenge posed by an array of leftist groups disappointed with the limited role given them in Iran's new government.

Just two months ago, when Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was still on the throne, President Carter denounced Khomeini's "uncontrolled statements ... that encourage bloodbaths and violence."

The prevailing view here was that only the shah could ensure that Iran would remain faithful to the West.

Khomeini and his followers were seen as anti-American, anti-Semitic and incapable of running a modern industrialized state.

But based on the brief period the provisional government has been in power, officials believe a working relationship — if not outright friendship — can be established with Iran.

Moreover, recent events in Iran hardly seem calculated to ingratiate Khomeini with left-wing forces in Iran. These elements fought shoulder to shoulder with Islamic militants to oust the shah but

Driver Loses Sea Urchins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — If you fancy a sea urchin for dinner, this may not be a good week to find the ocean delicacy in some Southern California restaurants.

A truck carrying a load of live sea urchins overturned on the Harbor Freeway early Monday, spilling the cargo and causing what the California Department of Transportation called a "goopy mess" that halted traffic for three hours.

Highway patrol officers said the truck, driven by Ryujio Hasegawa, 25, Los Angeles, skidded on wet pavement, crashed through the center divider and overturned.

The truck spilled most of its cargo, destined for Japanese markets and restaurants, onto the southbound lanes. One motorist said the spill left a dark stain on the pavement.

Hasegawa was hospitalized for undetermined injuries.

The truck was owned by the Ocean Queen Co., of Los Angeles, and was carrying the shipment from a San Clemente Island fishery.

SAFER PASTURES

YEOVIL, England (AP) — Fed up after rustlers made off with 50 of his ewes, farmer Geoffrey Jenkins moved his herd to safer pastures behind the town's police station.

whether Khomeini and the inexperienced leadership of the new government can effectively confront the well-organized leftist opposition headed by the so-called People's Fedayeen.

It was the very situation Iran now confronts that American officials have feared all along — well before the shah's ouster.

According to this view, a continuation of the leftist-led strikes and attacks on government installations, combined with the steady disintegration of the Iranian military, could make conditions ripe for a leftist takeover.

This presumably would give the Soviet Union a measure of control over the oil resources in Iran and also raise grave questions about the reliability of oil supplies elsewhere in the Persian Gulf.

Thus far, Soviet actions have not been reassuring to officials here. Soviet broadcasts directed at Iran have accused the United States of trying to provoke a crisis in Iran to justify American military intervention.

Meanwhile, officials say, Moscow has been buying up large sums of Iranian currency in Swiss banks — presumably to be turned over to Iranian leftists to finance their operations.

The result has been the most severe crisis of confidence between Washington and Moscow since the Carter administration took office.

American officials were upset by the recent conquest of Cambodia by Moscow's chief ally in Southeast Asia, Vietnam. And their suspicions about Soviet intentions have become more intense as a result of Moscow's activities in Iran.

The Soviets, of course, have always had their suspicions about the United States. And their distrust reached a new high Dec. 15, the date President Carter announced his new China policy.

As a result, Washington and Moscow are facing a new and dangerous situation in which each believes the other is willing to sacrifice friendly relations for the sake of strategic advantage.

U.S.-China Ties Cause Boom In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong was once known as a quaint, somewhat sleepy outpost of the fading British empire. Cheap prices and all good things of life abounded.

But the stirring of the Communist giant, and particularly the U.S. recognition of Peking Jan. 1, have given birth to a "boom fever" in Hong Kong.

Foreign companies, confident that billions of dollars will be made in trade with China, are sending in new personnel and opening new offices. Rents and the prices of everything from food to fashion are rising steadily. New skyscrapers are emerging where colonial buildings once stood.

"This place is going to be the next Japan," said one American banker in charge of finding lodging for new employees being transferred to Hong Kong.

Rents for a European family average about $1,500 to $2,500 a month and are spiraling out of control. New apartments are going for as much as $3,500 a month.

Traffic jams clog the predominantly winding and narrow roads despite a new freeway along the harbor and the tunnel underneath Victoria Harbor connecting Hong Kong island to the colony's peninsula of Kowloon and the New Territories.

"Hong Kong will be unlivable in another 10 years at this rate," lamented one English resident.

One relatively small post-war apartment building is to be torn down this year and replaced by a 40-story deluxe apartment complex, and the new building already is fully rented. In the commercial sector, the recent completion of 52-story Connaught Center has reshaped the skyline of downtown Hong Kong.

This frenzy of building was for many years limited to Hong Kong and Kowloon. Now land values are doubling and tripling in the outlying areas of the New Territories and on Lantau Island, where water buffaloes still wander through rice fields.

A new underground rail system is being constructed to link Kowloon and Hong Kong, and a tunnel is being blasted through the mountain that separates Hong Kong from the once-serene area called Repulse Bay.

And no end is in sight.

It is an unlikely setting for a great city. Hong Kong island lacks its own water, coal or oil, food or natural resources of any kind. It is located literally half a world from its major markets.

The colony survives through the sheer energy of its people. Rainwater is stored in reservoirs and other water comes from mainland China. China also supplies coal but most of the colony's oil comes from the Middle East. American steaks and frozen vegetables are available in the better restaurants as are French wines and other European goods, although Chinese style food predominates.

Hong Kong was inhabited only by a handful of fishermen when the British seized it around 1840. Unable to remain in Canton, the only Chinese port open to foreign trade, the British needed a foothold that would provide them unrestricted access to the Chinese market.

Ironically, with the opening of China, Hong Kong is once again taking on a similar role for the "foreign devils," as Chinese once called Westerners. Peking does not yet have the facilities to accommodate a large influx of Westerners, so many companies wishing to trade with China base their operations in Hong Kong. A businessman may spend a month or two in China, while his wife and children remain in Hong Kong.

Cup Of Coffee Used In Heists

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — A grocery store bandit has discovered a cup of hot coffee does the job as well as a gun, but his "weapon" led to his arrest.

Police say a 43-year-old Wichita man allegedly robbed three small grocery stores in the span of about three hours Monday, all with the same technique.

The man got the attendant to open the cash register by making a small purchase, then tossed a cup of hot coffee in the attendant's face and grabbed a handful of bills from the register, authorities said. He escaped with about $50 in each robbery.

Police arrested the man, who was not identified, when a woman saw a man matching the suspect's description get out of a car with a cup of coffee in his hand and notified officers.

Although Tokyo and to a lesser extent Singapore also serve as gateways to China, Hong Kong is likely to remain the premier point of entry for a variety of reasons: English and other European tongues are widely spoken, an impressive array of technical skills is available and, although prices are rising it is still cheaper than Tokyo, the world's most expensive city.

Hong Kong has always been known as a place where East meets West, and the age-old process is still very much in evidence. The Chinese gather in parks in the early morning to practice tai chi, a form of exercise and meditation, while nearby jackhammers break the morning silence.

The Chinese believe that they are the world's most advanced people. In fact, the word "China" means "Middle Kingdom," the center, the source, the key to civilization.

But the Hong Kong Chinese have a genuine fascination with the accoutrements of Western civilization. Operations to make their eyes appear to be rounder are accepted, and the "Annie Hall look" with little string ties is popular among younger women.

The premier names of Western fashion, including Cardin and Gucci, are highly prized. In fact, startlingly good imitations of Gucci handbags fill the little shops on side streets.

War Drives Sightseers From Rhodesia

ZIMBABWE RUINS, Rhodesia (AP) — Awesome, mysterious and now eerily deserted of tourists, these rambling granite ruins for decades have puzzled archeologists and symbolized for blacks a sense of nationalism.

During six years of warfare that has crippled Rhodesia's tourist trade, the ruins have thrown up a new mystery — they are the only major tourist spot that has not come under attack by black nationalist guerrillas. Elsewhere in Rhodesia, hotels have been attacked and some have even closed. However, even here few people are prepared to take chances. The war, launched initially to oust white-minority rule, has driven way all but a handful of sightseers from the ruins. In the past four years Rhodesia's earnings from tourism have slumped from about $40 million a year to an estimated $14 million last year. In 1972, just before the war began, Rhodesia recorded 240,000 foreign tourists. Last year, just 80,000 came — many of them former Rhodesians or South Africans visiting relatives.

Wayne Kemp's
Carpets & Counters Inc.

The number of foreign tourists killed — eight — has been relatively small. The biggest single blow was the shooting down by guerrillas last September of a Rhodesia airliner returning from the northwest Kariba tourist resort. Most of the 48 persons killed were Rhodesian whites.

Some of the tiny group of whites and blacks still keeping open two tourist hotels at the ruins, 130 miles southeast of the capital, Salisbury, believe guerrillas will never attack here because of the ruins' nationalistic significance.

Others take a more pragmatic view — the guerrillas don't attack because there is a battle training camp for Rhodesian army recruits within two miles of the ruins.

The ruins will give their name officially to this country within 90 days after it comes under a guerrilla-opposed mainly black government. As a compromise between whites and blacks in the current transition administration, the country will be called Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

Most blacks — whether guerrillas or Rhodesian government officials — have long referred to it simply as Zimbabwe.

There are two archeological theories on the origins of the Zimbabwe ruins — that it was a flourishing 13th-15th century city built in the heart of Africa by Arab gold and slave traders, or that it was a kingdom built by blacks.

Many Rhodesian blacks prefer the second theory, writes the first.

On a more parochial level, controversy goes on here. British-born Bob Baxter, who owns the two hotels snack bar and store next to the ruins — a national monument — believes he is sitting on a potential goldmine.

Baxter says the war will wind down after April's universal suffrage elections, foreign tourists will return and local blacks will flock to "what they see as their cultural heritage."

Nearby, the area's only other commercial operators, Viv and Carol Bristow, are closing their 4,500-acre game park. They are sending lions, cheetahs and elephants to South Africa or a park near Salisbury, and they plan to leave their remote home, overlooking the ruins.

The Bristows first developed the park mainly for film locations but in pre-war days it had 80,000 tourists visiting annually.

The last major film, "The Slave Traders," starring Britt Ekland and Trevor Howard, was made there two years ago.

Since then, the Bristows have lost contracts for three films.

"The stars, the crew, the tourists, nobody will come here anymore," says Bristow, now mainly on part-time army duty.

Says his wife: "I don't blame them. As Rhodesians we are used to it. But you can't expect other people to put up with it. And as long as there is the slightest chance of getting killed people won't come."

Meanwhile, Baxter is going deeper into the red financially. He works on his account books with a pistol propped to his waist and an automatic rifle propped against the desk.

"But I'm sure things are going to come right and by next year this place could be worth a million."

French Leader Upholds Policy

PARIS (AP) — French Premier Raymond Barre said Tuesday that France will post a current account surplus of more than 10 billion francs ($2.4 billion) for 1978.

This would compare with a deficit of 16 billion francs in 1977 and a deficit of 29 billion in 1976.

Barre, who was addressing a business forum, said he will not change the austerity policy he initiated when he took office in 1976.

He was answering recent press reports that the impact of the developments in Iran would force the government to change course.

"I have no intention of tightening or of loosening the policy pursued by the government," he said.

The objectives of his "global and continuous" policies, Barre recalled, include a lasting restoration of the trade balance, a strong currency, the limitation of wage growth and the reduction of inflation and unemployment.

The French premier said his policies had produced significant results without resorting to mandatory incomes policies, deflation or recession.

Organization Helps Herpes Victims Cope

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five million Americans — mostly white middle class persons — suffer from genital herpes, the so-called "virus of love." Now there is an organization to help victims of this nationwide epidemic.

American Social Health Association of officials Monday announced the formation of HELP — "Herpes Engaged in Living Productively" — an organization designed to serve as a clearinghouse to help victims cope and keep them educated on the latest treatment and research advances.

"Genital herpes is incurable, is quite painful, is recurrent, is associated with cervical cancer, and it can cause severe health problems and even death in newborn," said Samuel R. Knox, ASHA's national program director.

Of the five million Americans infected, ASHA President Dr. William R. Cunick Jr., said 300,000 are experiencing "excruciatingly painful" recurrences at any given time. The symptoms last from two to five weeks.

Herpes, pronounced herpees, is the common term for two viral infections currently existing at epidemic levels in the United States.

Herpes simplex virus type 1 infection is the medical term for recurrent cold sores or fever blisters.

Even when the disease is inactive, the infected person is a "carrier" and can give it to a contact. Babies can become infected as they go through the birth canal, if their mothers have herpes, Cunick said.

Tiempo Radials Handle The Worst That Winter Can Dish Out-And You Won't Have To Change Tires This Spring.

Buy a set of snow tires and that's all you have: a set of snow tires, to be put on in winter, taken off in spring. But buy a set of Goodyear Tiempo radials and you'll have a tire for the heat of summer; a tire for the rains of spring and fall; plus a proven snow tire at no extra cost.

Surprisingly, Tiempos cost no more than regular steel-belted radials. But that's where the similarity ends. Because Tiempo can handle all of the seasons — including winter, including snow.

Tiempo. The tire you can drive with confidence. All winter. All year!

Vesco Runs Into Problems In Bahama Islands

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Robert L. Vesco's race from the law has run into some problems. The fugitive financier's haven in the Bahama Islands has sprung a leak.

Vesco has been in the Bahamas since early last year — first, to get away from Costa Rica before he was thrown out, and second, to try to dodge a load of potential damage suits that some sources estimate could cost him hundreds of millions of dollars. Some investigators still think he would like to come back to the United States, but only if he can make some deals on his legal problems.

In the Bahamas, Vesco has been "cooperating" with the court-appointed liquidators of various parts of his former empire. As we've reported, he is offering to tell the liquidators where they can find money belonging to his former companies, in return for releases from suits later on.

Liquidators have insisted to us that they won't make any deals with Vesco — although they all said they weren't sure of each other — but one of them apparently changed his mind.

The liquidators of Value Capital Ltd., one of the companies Vesco set up to funnel cash, agreed to pay about half a million dollars for a big chunk of VCL's shares held by two Panamanian companies Vesco controls. The liquidators went to the Bahamas courts for approval, but the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission found out and rushed into court, arguing that since Vesco stole the stock in the first place, he shouldn't be paid to get it back.

To everybody's surprise, the court agreed last month. As one attorney close to the case told us, "Up to now there had been no action taken by any Bahamian court that wasn't in Vesco's best interest."

Chief Justice Sir James A. Smith, though, said that the people who control the Panamanian companies "were among those found to be responsible for the frauds" that bilked investors and led to the order to liquidate VCL.

The SEC and other lawyers here were elated by the ruling, not only because it's the first time they've gotten any good news from Nassau, but also because Bahamian law makes it easier to poke into Vesco's maze of corporate blinds than it would have been if he stayed in Costa Rica. As one Vesco-chaser put it, "It makes it easier to get at his assets, if we could find out where they are."

(Vesco was also rapped last month by a federal appeals court in New York, which threw out all the legal dodges he's been using for the past five years. That clears another roadblock from the hunt for his money.)

The union for 2,100 employees of the New York Stock Exchange ran into more than it bargained for in trying to win a new contract. Big member firms have rushed to the exchange's aid, offering manpower to fill in if the union called a strike.

The reason: the firms fear that the union is trying to make a big splash at the exchange as a prelude to a push to unionize workers throughout Wall Street.

That's been tried before and it failed, but the members are anxious to stand firm at the exchange and head off another try.

The union apparently is aware of the problem it faces. Although it cut its initial money demands in half, the NYSE hasn't budged. And, despite an overwhelming vote in favor of a strike, growing member calls for a walkout and a $1 million strike fund, the leaders found reasons to delay.

A week ago, as New York was hit with a snowstorm, word was passed on the exchange floor for a job action on Thursday, with union members showing up late for work. When the time came, though, most workers showed up on time and trading got under way with few hitches.

One floor source said, in fact, that there was more help than usual because the exchange, hearing of the plan, shifted middle-management people who had been trained for floor jobs. A number of members also brought their own help. Sources on both sides agree that the fill-ins could handle current levels of trading activity, both on the exchange floor and in the two unionized back-office subsidiaries. Exchange officials concede that they would be in trouble, however, if there were any surge in trading volume.

Union members, many of them upset because the NYSE did not increase its year-end bonus last year, also have been grossing about the union's handling of the contract negotiation.

Steel Panel Agrees On Key Needs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An international panel of steel industry representatives agrees that both increased production and higher prices are vital to the industry's future.

Worldwide demand is climbing, and higher prices are needed to justify the capital investment necessary to meet that demand, members of the panel at the annual convention of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers said.

All agreed that most developing countries are unlikely to meet steel production goals that were set in a 1974 United Nations conference in Lima, Peru.

That goal was for developing countries to increase their steel production to 30 percent of the world's total by the year 2000. In 1974, the figure for developing countries was 6 percent of the world total. It now is 11 percent.

Prices that will justify the risk of investment are especially vital for steel production in developing countries, the panelists said.

One panelist, Wolfgang H. Philipp, a German industrialist, said that two major reasons that businessmen are reluctant to invest in steel making facilities in developing countries are: "One, the owner of the steel venture in the developing country often is the government, interested predominantly in other objectives (besides) return on equity."

"Two, for the first 10 years, the steel product from the new venture will cost much more than the same product will cost from a steel mill from an industrialized country. For an investor who can consider alternatives, a steel mill in a developing country will rank at the bottom of the list."

The United States appears likely to increase steel consumption and to continue importing substantial amounts of steel, said Albert A. Monnett Jr., vice president of U.S. Steel Corp.

However, he said growth in steel consumption in the U.S. is likely to be less than was forecast before the energy crisis hit.

"The passenger car will be smaller, lighter, more fuel efficient and will use considerably less steel per unit than the typical American car of the past," he said.

By 1985, the average amount of steel purchased to produce a car will have decreased by slightly more than 1,000 pounds.

In 1978, the United States consumed about 112 million tons of steel products. Over the next 22 years, our analysis indicates growth might average about 2 percent to 2½ percent annually. This would result in total demand of 170 million to 180 million tons by the year 2000."

He said that to supply all of their own steel needs, the U.S. and Canada will have to build about 100 million tons of capacity during the next 20 years.

Firm Reports Earnings Hike

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Firestone Tire Rubber Co. reported first quarter earnings of $34.8 million, or 60 cents a share, up from $7.4 million or 13 cents a share reported in the same period a year ago.

Sales were $1.2 billion in the three-month period ending Jan. 31, compared with the prior record of $1.06 billion set in the same quarter a year ago, said Firestone Chairman Richard A. Riley and President Mario A. Di Federico.

The strong first quarter followed a $148.3 million loss reported for the past year by the nation's No. 2 tire maker.

A major factor in that loss was the establishment of a $234 million reserve fund in the final quarter of last year for a voluntary recall of up to 10 million of Firestone's steel-belted radial 500 tires.

Riley and Di Federico cited a no-strike agreement reached with the United Rubber Workers as contract talks loom.

"We can look forward to labor stability at our URW domestic tire plants because of the new bargaining structure established for this year's master contract negotiations in the agreement announced last week between Firestone and the URW," Riley and Di Federico said in a prepared statement.

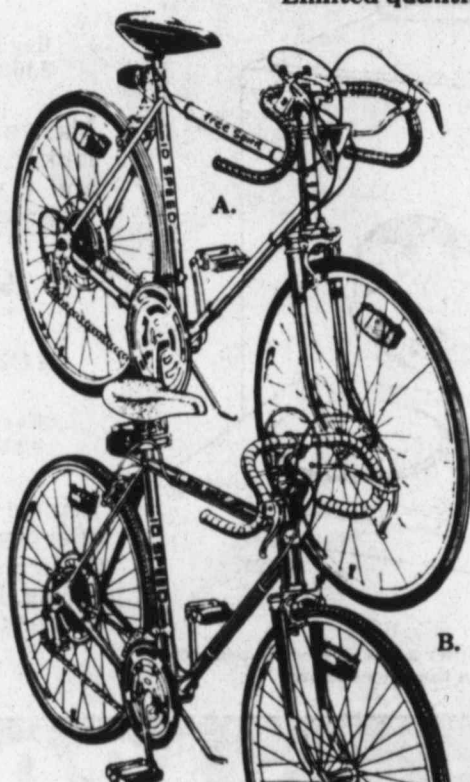

"This represents a positive influence on the outlook for our domestic tire operations during the months ahead," they said.

Few Of World's Kings, Queens Remain In Power

By ROBERT MUSEL

United Press International Writer
All the kings and queens still occupying thrones in the Western world could fit comfortably in one of the outside Rolls-Royce limousines they seem to prefer for royal transportation.

Not so long ago, they would have needed a bus. A few centuries ago, a large train would have been necessary.

But the ranks of the world's mighty kings have shrunk in this turbulent century — the most recent to go into exile was the shah of Iran.

Those remaining at this moment seem to be a reasonably stable minimum given that even solid Great Britain has a minority that would prefer a presidential form of democracy.

Queen Elizabeth of Britain is by unanimous consent the most secure of the existing sovereigns and by virtue of this and her blood ties with other rulers nominally the most equal among equals. A thousand years of royal continuity buttress her position; more so the equable temperament of the British people.

Two other queens rule in Europe — Juliana of the Netherlands and Margrethe of Denmark. There are four kings — Baudouin of Belgium, Carl Gustav of Sweden, Olav of Norway, Juan Carlos of Spain.

The Monarchist League in Britain, which seeks to promote the return of crowned heads, believes the restoration of the monarchy in Spain is a pointer to similar moves in other countries in the future.

The Monarchist League actively campaigns for the restoration of thrones — without much success. Today it will hold its annual dance. Ex-King Simeon and Ex-Queen Margarita of Bulgaria will be guests of honor. Prince Tomislav of Yugoslavia and other representatives of royal houses will be among the guests.

For one night the world will turn back to 1910.

But nobody else thinks the monarchs will resume their reigns. Every other source agrees the pretenders to vacant thrones will spend their lives in the wings waiting for a call to stardom that will never come.

Where are they now?

Among the palm groves five miles from Marrakesh in Morocco, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi contemplates a future that is unlikely to include the bejeweled Peacock Throne of Iran. He appears to have become — though he may not think of it that way — the newest member of what the late Peter of Yugoslavia wryly called The Union of Unemployed Ex-Kings.

Now that a revolution has overthrown him, the shah is going through a phase all too familiar to ex-King Michael of Romania, ex-King Simeon of Bulgaria, ex-King Umberto of Italy, ex-King Constantine of Greece, and the throneless King Leka of Albania.

It is called hope. It is a flame that burns brightly the first year or two or three of exile and then, in most cases, begins to flicker and fade.

There comes an inward acceptance of inevitable exile, even if the public stance is that it is only a matter of time before their former subjects demand they return to the throne. The ex-kings and the pretenders struggle manfully to keep up the form of royalty without the substance. Old courtiers, companions in exile, bow or kneel and use the old formulas.

Yet when the last "Your Majesty" has sounded and they lock up their mostly middle class homes for the night, the cold companion of the bedroom is reality.

With the shah deposed, even if temporarily, there are only a handful of kings and queens left in the West. That Britain's Queen Elizabeth is the most secure recalls the wistful remark of the late ex-King Farouk of Egypt that at the end of the world there would be only five kings left in the world, the kings of hearts, diamonds, spades, clubs — and England.

They are outnumbered by the uncrowned and the hopefuls. And yet only 69 years ago when King Edward VII of Britain was buried, his coffin was followed by one emperor, nine kings, three queens, four dowager queens, five heirs apparent and 40 royal highnesses.

The shah's dilemma must have been read with sympathy by his peers scattered around Europe, especially by Constantine, a frequent visitor to Iran. Constantine lives comfortably in London in a $700,000 house and would like to be of some service to Greece, even in a lesser capacity. He was credited with expounding the Greek position vis-a-vis Turkey to members of the U.S. Senate in Washington, drawing a chilly reminder from the Greek Left that he was now merely Constantine Glucksberg, a private citizen.

Constantine has received or is expected to receive payment for his personal estate in Greece, underlining the fact that ex-kings and official pretenders usually are well-heeled. About the only one known to have suffered actual hardship was King Ferdinand of Bulgaria who died a penniless octogenarian after World War I. Like the others, the shah reputedly has considerable resources outside Iran.

Former King Michael of Romania, once owner of 159 castles and tens of millions of dollars worth of property, lives quietly with his wife and some of his five daughters in a suburb of Geneva. He ran a produce farm in Britain and has been a business representative. He asked his co-workers to call him "Mr. Michael."
"You can't live on being an ex-king."

George, Wash., Celebrates Day

ma, and his children though there were indications of at least some private means.

Madrid is the home of Grand Duke Vladimir, 61, the Romanoff pretender to the throne of Russia and ex-King Simeon. Vladimir professes to believe the Romanoffs will rule again.

"I don't say it will be in my lifetime, but perhaps in the lifetime of my daughter" — Grand Duchess Maria Vladimirovna, 22, who is married to Prince Franz Wilhelm of Prussia. She is a dress designer.

Simeon is a consultant to a number of international firms.

Since Italy voted out the monarchy in 1946, ex-King Umberto II, 74, has lived in exile in Cascais, Portugal. He still receives Italian monarchists and sends messages to Italians every New Year's Eve and on momentous occasions.

Ex-King Leopold of Belgium who abdicated in 1951 has homes in Belgium and France and occupies his time with ethnological studies.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, 71, head of the House of Hohenzollern is the pretender to thrones in two states that do not even exist any more — Prussia and the German Reich. He still calls himself Prince of Prussia. He has a castle and three other homes and says: "I maintain my claim to the German throne. But I make this claim completely dependent on the will of the German people."

Another landowning claimant to a crown is Henri Louis Philippe d'Orleans, the Count of Paris, pretender to the throne of France. Unlike other pretenders he lives in his own country and the tiny Royalist Party of France would like to see him crowned — or crown himself a Napoleon. But this does not seem an immediate possibility and the count writes books, looks after his land and his numerous family and is a respected citizen of the republic he presumably would like to replace.

Occasionally posters in West German towns carry the legend: "The Pan European Union invites you to attend a lecture by Otto von Hapsburg." The 56-year-old lecturer is the oldest son of the last Austro-Hungarian Emperor, Kaiser Karl I, who lost his throne after the defeat of the central powers in World War I. He is the pretender to that once vast empire.

Hapsburg is president of the Pan European Union, which campaigns for European unity. He has been nominated as a candidate for the European parliament. He lives in Bavaria with his wife and seven children, though there is no bar to his returning to Austria. He is a respected economist, but holds the odd idea the Kremlin might be behind the sexual themes of pop music in its all-encompassing propaganda war on the West.

Forty-year-old King Leka of Albania — he was crowned in Spain by his followers after the death of his father, King Zog — left Madrid for Rhodesia when an arsenal was discovered in his home. The 6-foot-9 head of the dynasty claimed the arms were for self-defense. He is married to an Australian and his belief that he will someday supplant the present Communist regime in Albania is bolstered by donations from many Albanians in exile.

Law Gives Congress Remedy For Truancy

By STEVE GERSTEL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some members of Congress — although certainly not all — are notorious truants. They miss Senate and House sessions with sometimes dizzying frequency and can have stalled legislation by their absences. Yet, the most that congressional leaders do is plead with their charges to be on hand.

It is not that unusual for Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd to schedule a key vote at a time that accommodates both senators flying back from, and those flying to, somewhere else.

If the members of Congress were in the service, the military police would be placed on alert and a court martial for being AWOL would await them on their return. Or if they were kids in school, the truant officer would be pounding on the door.

Although it is little-known and completely ignored, Congress has a remedy and again in 1914 — and periodically in the Senate from 1856 to 1867.

Last year, the foundation found that senators could have been docked some $277,000 and House members $1.4 million. The foundation concedes that the amount would have been lower because many of the absences were undoubtedly legitimate.

Many absences are justified. In addition to illness, members of Congress are drawn away by field hearings, inspection trips and other affairs directly tied to legislation.

Many absences are not. They include extended vacations or weekends that start Thursday or end Tuesday or both, out-of-town speeches to pick up a little extra money; and, mainly, home-state campaigning.

It is not unusual for senators, especially, to spend weeks on end in their states campaigning for re-election — flying back for only the most critical votes.

and again in 1914 — and periodically in the Senate from 1856 to 1867.

Washington Window

1856, allows Congress to dock the pay of its members.

The law provides that a day's pay be deducted for each day that a senator or congressman is absent. The only excuses are sickness, either his own or in the family.

The proposal was a rider to a bill hiking the salary of members of Congress and was approved, as the foundation notes, when "absenteeism was pervasive."

The foundation found that the law was enforced twice in the House — in 1894

Solon Offers Stylistic Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Historians of the United States Senate and of the English language may wonder someday about Miss Annie Lee.

Miss Annie Lee taught English to Jesse Helms.

Many years later, when her student was a Republican senator from North Carolina, he recalled his teacher.

It was during debate on proposals to change the Senate rules.

Helms offered what he called "three or four stylistic amendments."

"When I was in high school, oh, she was death on split infinitives and things of that sort," said Helms. "I guess it is in memory of Miss Annie that I offer these stylistic amendments."

One of his stylistic changes would substitute "if for whatsoever reason" for "if for any reason."

That brought Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., to his feet.

"I am at a loss to understand the reason for the word change," said Sarbanes. "I said at the outset it was purely stylistic," said Helms. "... There is a possibility that it is a distinction without any difference."

Asked by Sarbanes if he saw any difference between "any" and "whatsoever," Helms said "whatsoever" is "a little broader."

"I guess we had different English teachers," said Sarbanes, "because, I must say, the phraseology for whatsoever reason" would have sent my English teacher up the wall. What was the name of that English teacher of the senator's?"

"Miss Annie Lee," said Helms. "The senator will restrain himself from saying anything critical about the lady."

"No, no, I do not want to do that," said Sarbanes.

'Maiden' Speech

In this time of the neutering of the English language, of the use of the term "chair" for "chairman," one might want to keep an eye on the United States Senate and one of its great traditions, the "maiden" speech.

There are 20 new senators so this is going to be a big year for such speeches.

One of the freshmen — or fresh or freshpersons, if you prefer — is Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., who recently delivered what he called "my first Senate speech."

When Tsongas finished, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., praised his colleague's "excellent maiden address."

Clear Sentence?

Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus comes across as a sensible guy who says what he thinks in fairly clear sentences.

Then who came up with the written response to a Senate committee's question about the National Petroleum Reserve in Alaska?

Submitted with a cover note from the secretary was this response:

"As you know, the exploration program is a dynamic, evolutionary process. It is possible to make probabilistic undiscovered recoverable resource estimates with any given amount of information as long as the limits of uncertainty governing those estimates are clearly specified and understood. Each finite additional increment of information, however, decreases the degree of uncertainty involved."

Loses Argument

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., thought he had found an argument that would convince Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to vote against changing the filibuster rule to make it more difficult to prolong debate.

Suppose, said Helms, there was majority support for a move "to cut off all funds to the state of New York."

Moynihan was unmoved.

"As a matter of fact," he said "I was under the impression that funds for New York had been cut back or off years ago."

Investigators Find Waste, Abuse In Jobs Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youths enrolled in the federal government's summer jobs program sometimes are paid to spend their day swimming and playing basketball, the General Accounting Office says in a study critical of the multi-million dollar program.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall issued a statement today saying department investigators had "identified the same basic problems" cited by the GAO and "we have made a concerted effort to intensify monitoring and oversight."

The GAO, an investigative and auditing agency of Congress, conducted its study at the request of Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., who argued to have agency officials discuss their findings today at a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing.

Labor Department officials also appeared at the hearing. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the subcommittee, opened the hearing by saying the GAO study indicated a "shocking misuse of funds" in the program.

Between $389 million and $842 million of appropriated public service employment funds may be expended on ineligible participants.

In many cases, agency investigators conclude in a draft report, youths are given little or no real work to do, receive inadequate supervision and sometimes are paid even when absent during their 10 weeks in the Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youths.

Progress not increase funding for the program until administrators demonstrate they can do a better job.

Blaming both the Labor Department and local sponsors for poor administration, the accounting office also said that, in many cases, school dropouts are not recruited for the summer jobs, although regulations require that they be sought out.

The Labor Department administers the program under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, the multi-billion-dollar group of programs that includes public service jobs.

In a statement issued in advance of the congressional hearing, the Labor Department said it is in "complete agreement with the emphasis on improved management that the GAO has in its report. That is why we have taken initiatives under the new CETA program to improve the management and correct problems with programs such as SPEDY."

GAO investigators said they visited 230 worksites run by seven local sponsors, four large and medium-sized cities and three rural regions. The accounting office said that in some cases youths were performing valuable services while working as hospital orderlies, library aides and daycare center attendants, but in other cases the work was little or nothing more than recreation.

Dallas Schools Get Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to hear arguments by Dallas school officials who want to derail a move to racially balance the nation's eighth largest school district.

The justices voted to review the school district's appeal aimed at overturning a federal appeals court ruling that could lead to widespread student busing in Dallas.

Dallas schools have been involved in desegregation efforts since 1955, but the lawsuit sparking today's action was first filed in 1970 by the parents of black and Mexican-American students.

After prolonged legal proceedings, U.S. District Judge William Taylor Jr. in March 1976 ordered enforcement of a racial desegregation plan suggested by the Dallas Alliance Task Force on Education.

Under it, the school district's 140,000 students and 183 schools would be divided into six subdistricts. Five of those subdistricts would have to reflect the same racial makeup, within 5 percent, of the entire school district.

As of 1975, those percentages were 41 percent white, 45 percent black and 14 percent Mexican-American. School officials say the white school population now has dropped to 35 percent.

Taylor's plan, school officials estimated, would make necessary the busing of some 20,000 students at an annual cost of $5.8 million.

Minority parents and the Dallas branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People objected to Taylor's plan because one subdistrict — East Oak Cliff, where 27,500 students would attend 16 schools — would remain virtually all-black.

Last April, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered Taylor to restudy the Dallas case and come up with a new student assignment plan.

The appeals court told Taylor that his desegregation order would have to "justify the maintenance of any one-race schools that may be part of that plan."

If such schools could not be justified, they should be abolished, the appeals court ruled.

Dallas school officials appealed the 5th Circuit ruling, and last August asked Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. to freeze proceedings in Taylor's court until the full Supreme Court acted on the appeal. Powell refused to do so.

Dallas school officials argued that desegregation remedies used for small, rural school districts are not realistic for city schools.

"A national educational crisis exists in such large urban school systems because some federal courts refuse to come to grips with the fact that (Supreme Court rulings on rural school desegregation) must be interpreted in light of the urban condition as it exists," school board lawyers said.

In urging the court to turn down the appeal, NAACP attorneys accused school officials of "attempting an end run to this court around the clear and common-sense remand of the court of appeals."

In other action today, the Supreme Court:

—Rejected the appeal of Ronald Curtis Chambers, a 23-year-old Dallas man convicted of slaying Texas Tech University student Mike McMahan, 22, in Dallas in April 1975.

—Said it will decide whether the federal government may impose new standards for worker exposure to benzene, a cancer-causing chemical. The justices voted to review a lower court's ruling that struck down the standards, which could affect more than 600,000 workers and initially cost industries up to $500 million.

—With Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissenting, left untouched the contempt-of-court conviction of a Wichita, Kan., television reporter who refused to identify a confidential source.

—Left intact a ruling that statements the National Labor Relations Board says are "protected expression" during a union organizing drive may be the basis for a subsequent libel suit.

Winter Storms Pound Wide Areas Of Nation

A-J News Services

Winter storms lashed the East and West Coasts today, while another blizzard brewed in the Rockies, but Texas enjoyed a respite from arctic cold and glazed roads.

A Pacific front dumped heavy rainfall over most of California today, with snow in the Sierras. A building storm in the Rockies brought winter storm watches for Colorado and Wyoming today and tonight.

The East Coast, already reeling from heavy snowfall earlier this week, was jolted again today by freezing rain paralyzed traffic in Washington, D.C., and northern Virginia. Thousands of rush-hour commuters were stranded when city buses were halted and the subway was shut down.

One police dispatcher in the Washington suburbs termed the situation "total chaos."

By comparison, it was almost like spring in parts of the Southwest. Mild temperatures and partly cloudy skies are forecast for the South Plains today and Thursday, with no significant chance of precipitation forecast until Friday, according to the National Weather Service.

A Pacific cold front expected to move through Northwest Texas Thursday will bring widely scattered showers to the Panhandle, the NWS said. As the front filters through the South Plains Friday, temperatures will cool slightly and a chance of showers will develop.

Lubbock temperatures, which were predicted to reach the low 60s this afternoon and about 60 degrees Thursday, will hover in the 50s Friday and into the weekend, said the NWS. The downward shift in the mercury will be short-lived, however: temperatures are again expected to warm into the 60s beginning Sunday.

Brisk winds were forecast to continue in the Lubbock area today, blowing in a southerly direction at 15 to 25 mph this afternoon before calming to 10 to 15 mph tonight. Wind warnings are in effect for areas along the coast.

Across the state, travelers advisories were issued for this morning in much of Southeast Texas due to thick fog that reportedly reduced visibility to a few feet in some areas early today. The fog, which blanketed the Houston, Beaumont and Port Arthur metropolitan areas, was expected to dissipate after daybreak.

Most of the rest of the state awoke this morning to a cover of clouds, a situation that will generally prevail today, according to weathermen. A possibility of showers developing in the mountain regions this afternoon is forecast, with temperatures will range from near 60 degrees in the Panhandle to near 80 degrees along the lower Gulf coast.

A cold front along the Mississippi Valley was spreading rain over the southern states and the Atlantic Seaboard and snow from the Dakotas to Lake Huron.

Minneapolis caught an additional inch of snow, for a total of 5 inches since late Tuesday, and in Wisconsin the Green Bay and Madison areas got 3 inches.

Washington's subway system was shut down for the third day in a row since 19 inches of snow paralyzed the city, but officials had hoped to have 1,500 buses on the streets. However, about 7 a.m. the buses were ordered to halt because of dangerous road conditions and didn't resume running until about 9:15 a.m.

In parts of Minnesota and Iowa, visibility was reduced to near zero. Ice was forming across southern Wisconsin.

Cold temperatures and clear skies were over the western Plains and the eastern Rocky Mountains early today. Freezing temperatures reached into Nebraska, and near zero readings were in Montana and North Dakota.

Milder temperatures, with readings in the 50s, were over the Southwest.

Clements Drops Teachers' Raise belt-tightening that marked his successful campaign for governor against John Hill — whose supporters included the Texas State Teachers Association.

"What those in government want too often is not what the people want or need. ... We need to go directly to the people and ask them what they want, and that is what I have done in formulating these recommendations to you," Clements said.

Clements' budget would spend $13.76 million from major state funds — excluding federal money and certain dedicated state taxes — compared with the budget board's $14.73 million.

He recommended increases over current spending of $177 million for state universities, $138 million for medical schools, $308 million for highways, $36 million for prison operations and $96 million for prison construction and repairs.

The governor also went along with one LBB recommendation — 5.1 percent annual pay increases for state employees.

He proposed an increase from $600 to $900 in tuition equalization grants for Texans attending private colleges.

"This is an austere budget. We have no right to draft any other kind. But it is also a caring budget, a budget that cares about the people who need essential government services and a budget that cares about the taxpayers, a class of people in Texas who have been neglected in the budgetary process all too often," Clements said.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe recommended a budget on Jan. 10 that would total $19.8 billion for the next two years.

Briscoe also called for a return of $1 billion to Texas taxpayers by earmarking one cent of the state sales tax for local school districts that reduce property taxes.

The Briscoe budget would be $1.7 billion above the 1978-79 spending pattern, but within available revenues.

Briscoe also recommended a 5.1 percent salary increase for state employees, plus increases in insurance and hospitalization benefits.

Davis Trial Irks Judge
FORT WORTH (UPI) — District Judge John M. Barron, becoming restless with the plodding examination of T. Cullen Davis' financial and business history, today ordered attorneys for the millionaire's estranged wife to "hit the jugular vein" with more specific questioning in the often-delayed divorce hearing.

"I have been rather patient," Barron said after an hour of questioning that often was a rehash of the first day of testimony.

"I just don't think we need all this detail," he said. "Let's hit the jugular vein. Let's simplify it."

Three Hurt In Wreck Near City

Three persons were injured shortly after 7 a.m. today in a spectacular traffic accident on U.S. 84 about three miles south of the city. Two cars were demolished and one victim was trapped in his auto for about an hour and a half before being rescued by firemen.

Francisco Diaz Herrera, 28, and his passenger, Felix Venavidez, both of Slaton, and Ruth Watley Golleher, 58, of 4712 Vanda Ave. were taken to Methodist Hospital, where a spokesman said their conditions were undetermined by late this morning.

However, an investigating highway trooper said it appeared that at least two of the victims had suffered serious injuries.

Mrs. Golleher was traveling southeast on U.S. 84 when she was struck by another vehicle, lost control of her car and struck Herrera's northwest-bound car head-on, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The woman's vehicle came to rest on top of Herrera's small sports car. Herrera was trapped in his auto more than an hour before he was freed with the help of Reese AFB's "Jaws of Life" metal cutter.

DPS investigators said Mrs. Golleher lost control and crossed over the median when her auto was in collision with a car driven by Andrea Rangel Mesa, 21, of Slaton. Miss Mesa, who was not injured in the mishap, reportedly was crossing the highway when the collision with Mrs. Golleher's car occurred.

Slaton firemen also assisted at the accident, which backed up going-to-work traffic on U.S. 84.

Experts, Housewives Disagree On Best Treatment For Colds

dip in the ascorbic acid level of white blood cells when a virus infection first sets in. This may be why some people swear by the practice of taking massive doses of Vitamin C when they feel a cold coming on.

—Cod liver oil.
This is rich in Vitamin A, which the body needs in any infection. But most people who took it as children are glad cod liver oil doesn't still enjoy the same popularity as a cold remedy.

—A hot bath, hot herbal tea or hot chicken soup.
These make you feel better and may even be medically helpful.

One group of researchers compared the effect of hot liquids on colds and found that chicken soup helped the most. In general, a hot liquid or bath helps you relax, raises your body temperature and dilates small blood vessels. This may discourage cold viruses and help white blood cells reach the site of the infection faster.

—Ignoring a cold and going to work.
This is possible with a cold when you are not very sick. But if you have something serious, bed rest and a visit to the doctor are advisable. It's a no-win proposition — you can't infect co-workers if you're home in bed, but you can be terribly infectious to your family.

Perryman Found Guilty By Jury

the man who broke into their apartment near the Tech campus last Oct. 16.

"What did you observe when you woke up?" Montford asked her.

"A knife right at my neck," she said. "He said, 'Don't move or I'll slit your neck.'"

Both women said Perryman started going from bed to bed threatening to kill them.

The older woman said he told them he needed $300 "to buy a sniper gun because a white cop had killed his brother and he was going to get them" and that he became angry when told they had only $6 between them.

Perryman has also been charged with aggravated rape in the reported Sept. 7 rape of a 21-year-old Tech student at her apartment and with burglary with intent to commit rape in a reported Sept. 13 break-in at the apartment of an 18-year-old Tech co-ed.

"He told us we were his seventh people and he was sick and bad and they hadn't caught him yet," the younger sister said. She said that when he got over her sister, put the knife to her throat and unzipped his pants, the older woman said, "I'm a Christian, and I can't do this."

"Don't give me that Christian s---," she said he replied.

The two started struggling when he tried to kiss her, she turned her head and he stuck the point of the knife into her neck, the older woman testified.

It was then that the 18-year-old Tech freshman sprung from her bed and jumped onto his back with her arm around his throat.

Fighting for the knife, the women and their assailant rolled off the bed onto the floor, and the younger one, stabbed four times in the chest and back, got up and then collapsed from loss of blood. The fighting stopped with the older sister holding his wrist with both hands and both of them looking at the girl where she had fallen. The older sister had been cut on the neck, hand and chest herself.

"I was afraid to turn loose because I afraid he would start slashing again," she said. "He looked at my sister and said, 'I didn't intend for this to happen.' Then he jerked his arm away from me and ran out."

Perryman, dressed in blood-stained white clothes, was arrested by police a short distance away after a foot-race covering several blocks in the Avenue S and Sixth Street area, officers testified as the trial opened Tuesday.

The younger woman was hospitalized for four days after the incident.

Mideast Powers Meet In Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian and Israeli negotiators, meeting in the sumptuous seclusion of Camp David, opened a new round of secret talks today to see if a long-elusive peace treaty can be concluded under U.S. auspices.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance boarded a helicopter at the snow-banked Pentagon in early morning and flew to the presidential retreat for breakfast at Maple Lodge with Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

U.S. officials confirmed, meanwhile, that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had requested a broad range of modern American weaponry while offering to play a major pro-Western military role in the Middle East.

These officials said Sadat made the request last Saturday to Defense Secretary Harold Brown during a lengthy private meeting in Egypt.

For two decades the United States had assigned that role to Iran, but the toppling of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi has raised doubts here about that country's stance.

Far from public view, an arrangement directed by President Carter to guard against "leaks," the Egyptian and Israeli negotiators planned to confer at least until the weekend in the seclusion of the snow-capped Maryland mountains.

Meanwhile, Israeli sources who requested anonymity said Dayan would stress a need for U.S. financing of new airfields in the Negev Desert to replace ones in the Sinai that will be turned over to Egypt.

While, Israeli sources who requested anonymity said Dayan would stress a need for U.S. financing of new airfields in the Negev Desert to replace ones in the Sinai that will be turned over to Egypt.

Carter is likely to join them at some point. And he may invite Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to Camp David later if he decides that would help reach a settlement.

Prospects for an accord are uncertain, as is the impact of the revolution in Iran that has turned the oil-rich state, which had relations with both Israel and the Arab countries, into an ardent champion of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The principal stumbling block in the path of an Egyptian-Israeli accord is the Palestinian issue.

Israel has offered civil autonomy to the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs on the west bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza district, but Egypt wants the details included in the treaty package rather than left to subsequent negotiations.

Khalil and Dayan arrived late Tuesday at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington. They issued no statements, a secrecy Carter intends to enforce by having reporters kept away from Camp David and by having all information released to the public channeled through the State Department press office.

On the eve of the talks, the government-controlled radio in Cairo sounded a familiar note by saying "there is no place left for maneuvering and procrastination."

Egypt's strategy is to depict the Israelis as hair-splitters, hoping thereby to exacerbate U.S. impatience.

Meanwhile, Israeli sources who requested anonymity said Dayan would stress a need for U.S. financing of new airfields in the Negev Desert to replace ones in the Sinai that will be turned over to Egypt.

Growth Key To Benefits

early retirement in recent years, and he said that speaking as an economist, "We are going to have to counter the movement toward early retirement. We're not affluent enough to handle that particular situation."

The economist also spoke of the movement to finance Social Security through the use of general revenue or income taxes.

He said the advantages of such a move would mean that the income tax method "would be more progressive in the allocation of the burden" and that Social Security would become one of the government's priorities.

A disadvantage of such a change, said Rouse, is that "we would lose the insurance illusion" of the original concept of Social Security and the system would be "identified with the concept of welfare."

He said that benefits might also be reduced because Social Security would be just another agency clamoring for a limited share of the government dollar.

Senate Panelists Agree On Taiwan Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today they have reached agreement on legislation designed to insure the future security of Taiwan.

There were also indications of likely agreement between the Carter administration and key House and Senate members on resolving the touchy Taiwan question.

As the Foreign Relations panel began work on a comprehensive China bill, Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he and Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, the senior Republican, have agreed on specific wording of an amendment to express U.S. concern over possible threats to Taiwan by China.

The specific wording of the Taiwan legislation could not be learned, but sources said it was similar to that under consideration in the House.

There, Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, is urging a China bill that says threats to Taiwan "would be of grave concern to the United States."

Sources said White House officials have indicated they would reluctantly accept such a Taiwan security proposal.

The Senate Foreign Relations panel arranged to vote on the Taiwan question later today.

At issue is whether Congress should approve an explicit pledge of United States aid for Taiwan if the island is threatened economically or militarily by China.

In negotiating the agreement to recognize China, the United States did not insist that Peking promise never to use force to re-unify Taiwan with the mainland, U.S. officials have acknowledged.

In the House, Zablocki has prepared a draft Taiwan bill which has won agreement from influential members of the Foreign Affairs Committee consulted before the measure was written, sources said.

Zablocki urged the panel to vote for a

Taiwan bill which declares that an attack on Taiwan "would be a threat to the peace and stability of the Western Pacific area and of grave concern to the United States."

A congressional source said that unlike the Senate version, the Zablocki bill would be acceptable to President Carter, who has said he would veto any Taiwan legislation which jeopardizes the new relationship with Peking.

Zablocki's bill includes no implied or explicit pledge that the United States would respond with military force if Taiwan were threatened.

Instead, it says the United States expects the Taiwan issue to be settled peacefully, pledges a continued supply of U.S. defensive weapons and requires the president to notify Congress "of any danger to United States interests arising from any threat to the security of Taiwan."

The Taiwan security amendment is tied to a general China bill the administration wants passed in time to implement the new relationship with the Taipei government beginning March 1, when formal diplomatic relations officially end.

The China bill would establish an American Institute, a private corporation, to handle U.S. economic and cultural business with Taiwan.

If Congress has not completed action on the China bill by March 1, officials have said there will be a break in the $7 billion worth of annual trade between the U.S. and Taiwan.

Board Recommends Insurance Rate Cut

AUSTIN (UPI) — The staff of the State Insurance Board today recommended a $38 million reduction in rates Texas property owners pay for homeowners, fire and extended coverage insurance.

Industry experts recommended a smaller, $29 million, reduction.

Gaylon Daniel, the State Insurance Board's staff actuary for property and casualty insurance, said part of the recommended reduction is due to more accurate statistics the state agency is requiring from insurance companies.

The staff proposal calls for a 4.1 percent average statewide reduction. In the most popular line of insurance, homeowners' policies, an overall reduction of 2.3 percent is recommended.

Homeowners in the sea coast area, however, would receive a 7.5 percent reduction, while homeowners in the northwestern rating territory would benefit from a 5.7 percent cut. Increases of 3.3 percent are recommended for the central rating territory.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association recommended a 3.1 percent average statewide reduction on all types of insurance, but a 1 percent increase statewide in rates for homeowners policies.

The industry proposals call for reductions of 5.8 percent for southeast homeowners and 4.3 percent for northwestern homeowners, but a 4.3 increase for the central rating territory.

Tom Lee of Austin, TIAA general manager, said insurance companies are happy to recommend an overall decrease.

Court Upholds Convictions

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld four convictions from Lubbock, including that of Enrique Rivera, who was sentenced to 60 years in prison for murder.

According to court records, Rivera was convicted of murdering Arthur Luna Jan. 13, 1974, by beating him to death with a tire tool.

Defense attorneys had tried to obtain a new trial for Rivera by alleging the trial court did not allow the jury first to determine the defendant's competency to stand trial, and that evidence seized in the case amounted to an illegal search.

However, the court denied the appeal in a four-page opinion.

Also from Lubbock County, the state's highest criminal court upheld the three-year prison sentence given Michael Grant Waller for burglary of a vehicle.

It likewise upheld the 10-day jail sentence and $150 fine given Domingo Romo for a felony offense of driving while intoxicated.

And the court agreed that the seven-year probation of Ricky Allen Foster should be revoked, ordering him to serve a prison sentence for burglary of a habitation.

Survivor Taught Not To Give Up

UPLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Norman Ollestad Jr., 11, had to crawl out from under the bloody body of his dead father and trudge through waist-deep snow for 12 hours before he found help.

He kept going, slipping on treacherous ice and bumping into trees, because "my dad taught me never to give up."

The youngster was the only one to survive the plane crash at the 7,300-foot level in the San Bernardino Mountains.

His father, former FBI agent Norman Ollestad, 43, and the plane's pilot, Bob Arnold, 37, of Los Angeles, were killed on impact. Another passenger, Sandra Cressman, 30, of Los Angeles, crawled out of the wreckage with the boy, but died before a rescue team could reach her.

Young Norman was released from San Antonio Community Hospital Tuesday and was recuperating today at his home in the Pacific Palisades section of Los Angeles.

Before going home, the blond-haired, blue-eyed boy — his face puffy and bruised and covered with scratches, the fingers of his broken hand wrapped in bandages — told reporters about his ordeal.

"I never gave up," he said. "My dad taught me never to give up."

The single-engine plane crashed Monday on a one-hour flight from Santa Monica Airport to Big Bear Lake in the San Bernardino Mountains.

"We just saw the trees," Norman recalled, "then wham!"

He said he took a rug from the plane's luggage compartment and he and Miss Cressman huddled together under the wing for seven hours before they decided to leave the crash site "because we thought we would freeze to death."

Norman said the woman lost her footing on the icy terrain and fell head-first about 300 feet down a hillside, striking a tree.

He said he thought she was still alive and covered her body with leaves and branches to keep her warm before he continued down the mountain.

He eventually met Glenn Farmer, 16, about two miles east of Mount Baldy Village.

A rescue team found Miss Cressman's frozen body within an hour after the boy was found Monday night.

Ground rescue teams, hampered by heavy snow and ice, used safety ropes Tuesday to climb down the side of the cliffs to reach the plane wreckage and recover the bodies of Ollestad and Arnold.

Ollestad, who was divorced from Norman's mother and lived in Malibu, was a lawyer and former FBI agent who wrote "Inside the FBI," a book critical of the agency.

He had settled a freedom-of-information suit against the FBI last November for $10,000 in legal fees and a promise to purge his personnel file of any improperly kept data.

'Save Energy' Meet Slated

With oil shortages the world over causing fuel prices to skyrocket, trends in family lifestyles are changing from what Texas A&M University calls "energy intensive," to "energy conserving."

This is a trend the Texas Agricultural Extension hopes to encourage by sponsoring a "Save Energy Seminar" Thursday and Friday at the Garden and Arts Center here.

Included in the two-day program will be discussions by energy-saving experts representing Southwestern Public Service and Owens-Corning Fiberglass Companies, local builders and engineers.

They will suggest ways to trim the average family energy budget by insulating, weatherstripping, and adjusting heating and cooling systems. They will also deal with energy-wise features to include in a newly built home, solar energy devices and energy-saving appliances.

The programs, which are free to the public, begin at 9 a.m. Thursday and conclude at 4 p.m. Friday. For more information, contact Jane Cohen at 792-4780.

A reunion is being organized for the Plainview High School class of 1939. Members of the class who are interested in attending should contact Edna Lois Myers Griffith in Lubbock at 744-9890.

Johnny Rangel, 28, of 1316 33rd St. remained in serious condition this morning at Methodist Hospital with a gunshot wound in the stomach he suffered about 2 a.m. Monday while getting out of a car in the 1100-block of 37th Street.

Andrew M. Sowder, the 21-year-old son of Lubbock County Democratic chairman and local attorney Madison Sowder, remained in very critical condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital at South Bend, Ind., suffering from meningococic meningitis. The younger Sowder remained in a coma today at the South Bend hospital where he was taken Sunday. The younger Sowder is a senior at the University of Notre Dame and a graduate of Idalou High School.

Oscar R. Evans, 44, all of Richardson.

The Piper Comanche, owned by Aero Executive, Inc., crashed in a drainage ditch in an open field a mile from the airport, and authorities theorized the pilot was trying to land in the field.

Officials at the airport said the pilot had radioed a request to switch from visual flight rules to instrument conditions because of the fog.

Stevens was director of the Preston Road Church of Christ school of preaching in Dallas, and the others were members of the teaching staff, officials said.

They were returning from an annual Bible lectureship at Abilene Christian University, which had attracted about 10,000 Church of Christ leaders, primarily laymen. White, Dockery and Evans had Bible degrees from ACU, and Stevens was a member of the ACU Advisory Board.

Two watches smashed in the crash set the time of impact at 11:33 p.m.

Police said the crashed plane was found about ankle-deep in water covered with gasoline. The engine was separated from the wreck and the roof of the cabin was sheared off, but there was no fire.

Clay Mosher, who lives in an apartment building about 150 yards from the crash site, told newsmen he heard a spattering airplane flying low over the apartment. Moments later, he said, he heard tree limbs break and heard the crash.

A Dallas police spokesman said the fog and deep mud in the field hampered recovery operations.

Woman Quits Agency Post

AUSTIN (AP) — Karen Dill Bowerman has resigned as executive director of the Texas Commission on the Status of Women at the request of Gov. Bill Clements.

Clements' press secretary, Jon Ford, said the governor told him he had asked for Miss Bowerman's resignation because the commission was "fraught with cross-currents and was not accomplishing its purpose."

According to the Governor's Office on Intergovernmental Relations, Ford said, Clements is "not doing away with the commission but they are studying what its future role ought to be."

Miss Bowerman said she was told Thursday the governor wanted her resignation by March 1, and she submitted it later the same day.

The job paid $24,000-a-year. Also losing her job is Miss Bowerman's assistant, Laverne Crawford, who made $12,000-a-year.

Miss Bowerman, 32, formerly was student development coordinator at Texas A&M University.

Furniture Salesman Avoids Accepted Practices In Business

By LeROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — "The less you know about what you're doing the better."

That may sound like strange advice from a businessman, but it's also reminiscent of the old saw about the chap who "didn't know it couldn't be done, so he went ahead and succeeded at it."

Robert Darvin, who runs a chain of 11 stores selling Scandinavian furniture in New England, appeared to contradict himself when he added a corollary: "Carefully monitor the leaders in your field — then avoid their methods like the plague." You can hardly monitor a business without becoming familiar with it.

Darvin and his wife, Gretchen, knew next to nothing about retailing when they started their business in 1965 at Natick, Mass. He was Boston sales manager for the building materials division of Jim Walter Corp. of Tampa. Gretchen, then his fiancée, was working for Sylvania. He and Gretchen were furnishing his apartment when a friend told them about Wilmer White, an Air Force pilot who was bringing quality furniture of unusual design from Denmark a piece at a time.

When White suddenly was transferred to Alaska by the Air Force Darvin bought his stock for $3,000 — only $200 down — and he and Gretchen went into the business of selling it.

Soon Darvin was faced with a hard choice. Jim Walter offered him a substantial promotion. He chose to quit and devote himself to selling the Danish furniture. Today, the Darvins' firm, Scandinavian Design, has 11 stores and annual sales of $12 million.

Darvin says he achieves sales of $300 to $400 per square foot of floor space annually compared with an average of $70 for the conventional furniture store. His profit averages 5 percent on sales against 2 percent for most furniture stores.

This high sales and profit ratio to area has enabled Darvin to make furniture retailing pay in relatively high rent shopping centers, something generally regarded as impossible.

"We break every rule in the book," Darvin says. "We make it a policy to resolve every complaint to the customer's satisfaction, even if it costs money. We don't regard ourselves as selling pieces of furniture but as helping families solve furnishing problems and so far we have helped some 400,000 families."

The Darvins' stores average only about 16,000 square feet compared with 42,000 for the conventional furniture store.

Darvin apparently is a born salesman. He made $5,000 the year he was 16 selling printing while still in high school. During his college days at Rutgers and Columbia he sold shoes.

The purchase of pilot White's furniture stock might have remained just a sideline venture for the Darvins if it hadn't been for a trip they made to Denmark to visit the factory.

The Danish factory promptly presented them with a bill for the $200 balance White owed. The Darvins didn't have the money to pay but by the time they were ready to come home they had talked the Danish firm, Moller & Rothe, out of a substantial new line of credit. Now they handle 40 percent of the factory's yearly output.

Texas Farmer Helps Snow-Struck City Dig Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fred Lundgren, a farmer from Elgin, took emergency telephone calls and went out on missions of mercy for two straight days to help Washington dig out from the worst snow in 57 years.

Lundgren helped open access to a Capitol Hill building where 50 people had been stranded overnight in the nearly 19 inches of snow, and then helped pull their cars out of snow.

He took women to National Airport to catch a plane. Returning, his pickup truck got stuck near a Greyhound bus filled with children.

He fetched a tractor to pull the bus out and took calls at the farmers' Skyline Inn headquarters in southwest Washington until 4 a.m. He was back on the job at 8 a.m.

"This is the kind of people we really are," he said Tuesday. "We're not pulling any punches. If we were in our home towns, we'd be doing the same thing."

As he arranged on one telephone for a doctor and kidney dialysis patient to get to the hospital, the husband of a woman in labor called on another phone.

Lundgren passed messages between the kidney doctor and the husband, even information on measuring labor pains.

The Texas farmer dispatched help to a mother of a sick 3-month-old baby, who was vomiting and suffered from diarrhea and a fever.

At least three tractor drivers worked straight through for 48 hours, with one hour to sleep, Lundgren said. American Agriculture Movement farmers manned emergency telephones around the clock after the snow ended Monday morning.

They dispatched about 30 tractors and nearly 500 farm trucks.

Farmers made numerous trips to hospitals with kidney patients who needed dialysis treatments and women about to deliver babies.

The first night the farmers delivered medication to 28 hospitals and nursing homes, and the second night took medication to 29 institutions.

They cleared parking lots at hospitals and the Red Cross blood donation center and helped suburban ambulances plow through snow. Suburban Prince George's County requested as many as 30 tractors to help dig out stranded people.

D.C. police did not allow farmers to plow out streets, hundreds of which were inaccessible, for fear of the city's liability if tractors plowed into parked cars.

Police screened requests for aid and insisted they escort farmers on mercy missions because of their unfamiliarity with the city. Missions were limited because "there are not enough police to escort," a D.C. police spokeswoman said.

Farmers objected to the constraints and said they wanted to answer all calls and release hundreds of tractors that have been barricaded on the Mall for more than two weeks.

When the farmers ran low on diesel fuel, the city provided some on Tuesday and farmers gathered $450 to buy an additional 1,000 gallons.

One farmer Samaritan paid for his good deed. He had to abandon his truck when he ran out of fuel after taking a patient to a hospital. When he returned to the truck, he found it jacked up and all his tires stolen.

Council Invites Comments

By SYLVIA TEAGUE, Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council will hear public comment Thursday on a proposed food sanitation ordinance which has been the target of criticism from local restaurateurs, but any action on the ordinance probably will be delayed because of legal questions.

The ordinance, to replace one adopted in 1962, would require more frequent inspections of food establishments in Lubbock and expand the number of businesses monitored by the city's Health Department.

However, members of the Lubbock Restaurant Association have urged changes in the ordinance which would require training for all Lubbock food service owners and managers and all food handlers.

The proposed ordinance mandates training only for workers at businesses which fail health inspections. The training also is offered by the Health Department on a voluntary basis.

The ordinance has been recommended to the council twice by the Health Board, the last time over the objections of restaurant association member Roger Loter, who recently was appointed to the board. Loter vowed to make his objections to the ordinance known at the public hearing, scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Thursday in city council chambers.

Since the council's decision last month to take no action on the ordinance before a public hearing, copies of the ordinance have been circulated among the restaurant association, warehouse owners and grocery associations for comment.

Also on the agenda for the 9:30 a.m. meeting is a discussion of the city's participation in the South Plains Association of Governments following a controversy over the distribution of federal criminal justice funds.

More than 67 percent of the monies allocated for the SPAG region are a direct result of the crime rate and population in Lubbock, but the city normally receives little or no funding.

The funding situation prompted some city council members to call for a re-ex-

Connally To Visit City

Former Gov. John B. Connally opens his Texas campaign for the presidency this week and will stop Thursday in Lubbock, where area supporters will honor him and Mrs. Connally at an informal reception.

The reception is scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Terrace Suite of Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. Reception tickets are $10 each and can be reserved by calling 745-2507 or 799-3038.

Connally, who last month announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president, is appearing in more than 15 Texas cities, beginning in Austin today and concluding in Houston next Tuesday.

The Lubbock host committee for the Connally reception is headed by Raymond S. Tapp, chairman, and Marion T. Key, vice chairman. Assisting on the committee are:

Gene Alderson, Mrs. Pat Anthony, David Barksdale, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brummal, Garon D. Cagle, Mike Crisler, Dr. R.C. Douglas, R.P. "Bob" Fuller, Don G. Furr, Roy K. Furr, Dr. James H. Granberry, Joe Greenlee, Vern F. Highley, Lonnie Hollingsworth, Jerry H. Jones, Mrs. Marion Key, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Langston and John B. Malouf.

Other committee members are: Dr. James G. Morris, Mrs. Lisa Nowlin, Mrs.

Marilyn Patterson, Phil Price, Deaton Rigby, Dr. Milton M. Rowley, B.E. Rushing Jr., Rex Saffle, Dr. John H. Selby, C.L. Siewert, Bob Stafford, Lee Stafford, Jane Anne Stinnett, Mrs. Raymond S. Tapp, Fred Traylor, Idris Traylor and Howard L. Yandell.

Born Feb. 27, 1917, in Floresville, Connally graduated from the University of Texas in 1941 with a bachelor of laws degree. His first assignment in Washington was as secretary to Congressman Lyndon Johnson in 1939. He entered the Navy in 1941 and rose by 1945 to lieutenant commander and received several decorations including the Bronze Star, Legion of Merit and nine battle stars.

Separated from naval service in January 1946, he helped to organize radio station KVET in Austin, where he served as attorney, president and general manager. He became Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's administrative assistant in 1949 and later returned to private law practice in Austin and Fort Worth.

President John F. Kennedy appointed Connally Secretary of the Navy in 1961. He later resigned to run for governor of Texas. He won the governor's race and served three terms from 1963 to 1969.

On Nov. 22, 1963, he was critically wounded while riding with President Kennedy when the president was assassinated in Dallas.

He was commissioner general of the 1968 San Antonio World's Fair and founder of the Academy of Texas in the same year.

Connally served on President Richard M. Nixon's Advisory Council on Executive Reorganization between 1969-70 and was appointed by the president as a member of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board and served until his appointment as Secretary of the Treasury in 1971. He resigned that post in 1972 to return to private life. He later served under both the Nixon and Ford administrations as a member of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

He is a member of the Houston Bar Association, the Texas and the American Bar Associations. He serves on numerous boards of directors of corporations, is a trustee of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and of the Southwestern Legal Foundation.

He and the former Ida Nell (Nellie) Brill of Austin were married Dec. 21, 1940. They have three children, John B. Connally III, Sharon Connally Ammann and Mark M. Connally.

The Connallys are members of St. Luke's United Methodist Church of Houston.

Prepare for the worst at the bridge table. If it doesn't happen, no harm will have been done. However, if you blindly tackle a hand on the assumption the gods of distribution will be merciful, you may not be able to recover from a bad break.

After South's jump, North simply rebid his hearts to stress the quality of his suit. Even though he did not get any encouragement from his partner, North judged that the hands should offer good play for slam.

West led the top of his spade sequence, and declarer was delighted when dummy appeared on the table. He won the king of spades and led a diamond to his queen. West's club discard was a rude shock. No matter how he wriggled, declarer could not collect more than the ten tricks he had in top cards.

It is the seemingly simple contract that often requires the most care. When dummy appeared, declarer should have realized that he could not lose his contract if the diamonds were no worse than 4-1. Therefore, he should have directed his attention toward overcoming a possible 5-0 diamond division.

Once the problem has been recognized, the solution is simple. All declarer has to do is win the opening lead in his hand with the ace of spades and lead a low diamond toward the ten. If West has all five missing diamonds, dummy's ten will prevent West from taking more than one trick, no matter what he does.

As the cards lie, West discards on the first diamond, but that doesn't bother declarer. The ten loses to East's jack, but now the rest of East's diamonds can be neutralized.

Declarer wins any return in dummy and continues with a diamond to his eight. The ace, king and queen of diamonds draw East's remaining cards in the suit, and declarer scores two spades, three hearts, five diamonds and two clubs to make his slam.

A Southern newspaper has, as one of its features, a column devoted to exposing the sanitation or the lack of it in local restaurants.

The list of improprieties consisted of the following:

- Food not covered in refrigerator.
- Improper dishwashing practices.
- Hot dogs soaking in water in refrigerator.

- Tank top broken in women's restroom.
- Restrooms not labeled.
- Cutting board not smooth.
- Thermometers needed in refrigerator.
- Back door open to flies.
- Employees working without proper hair restraint.

- Carbon build-ups on pans.
- Corroded vent fan.
- No soap or towels at sink.
- Outdated buttermilk...possibly unwholesome.

I had to stop reading. The list had just described my kitchen.

Keeping a kitchen clean is like trying to tidy up after a sandstorm. Besides, I employ cheap labor. My own kids. Somehow, you don't get the pride from them that you'd get from, say, a transient Mexican alien.

The other night, I walked into the kitchen with a clipboard and made out my own list of health violations.

Dog drinking water out of Old Fashioned glass.

Wet finger running around rim of mashed potatoes pan.

Hair dryer on countertop.

Half-eaten sandwich and glass on back of commode.

Ice cream in carton at room temperature.

Melted ice cubes on floor creating safety hazard.

Fight among kitchen help using cold, hard peas as ammunition...possible danger to cook.

Loading dishwasher while diner is still eating off plate.

Emptying raw garbage into wastebasket with no plan of removing it from kitchen.

As I was writing down the violations, my mother came in, her eyes scanned the kitchen area slowly. "This place is a dump!" she said.

My face brightened. "Thank you! I thought you were going to be sarcastic."

Energy Audits Aid In Meeting

A home energy audit will be one part of the Thursday program of the Save Energy Seminar to be held at the Garden and Arts Center. In preparation for this 4 p.m. session, seminar coordinator for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Jane W. Cohen, suggests that participants try to find answers to some key questions concerning present energy uses in their own homes.

In order to ascertain what improvements are cost effective for each home, some specific information is necessary.

The first information which is needed is to figure the square footage of heated areas. Do not include porch or garage areas, unless these areas are heated.

Next, measure the length of your walls in all four directions, noting north, east, south and west figures.

Then measure windows, again noting direction. Notice what kind of window each is (that is, single pane, double pane, etc.), and also air space allowed.

Do the same with your doors as with the windows. Note whether a door is solid wood or insulated metal.

Check your insulation. What kind is it? If you know its "R Value," note that for the insulation in your ceiling and then in your walls.

Check the air conditioning ducts to determine what kind of insulation each has.

Bring with you to the seminar your latest utility bills, both gas and electric. During the seminar participants will be working with these cost figures.

Mrs. Cohen said this information, and other facts readily known by most homeowners, will be put together to guide families to make the best use of energy in their own homes.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: How does a decent, naturally passionate, deeply religious widow overcome her desire to be loved by a man?

After having been married 38 years to the only man in my life, widowed a year, not exactly ancient (61), I live with memories constantly revived by television, movies, literature, all ending with sexual fulfillment that stirs up desires difficult to suppress.

Having once had pure gold, I couldn't settle for brass. No man could ever replace the one I lost.

I feel ashamed and unclean, and am miserable beyond words. Is there a solution?

Hungry For Love

Dear Hungry: You have no reason to feel "ashamed" or "unclean" because your natural desire to be loved remains undiminished at 61.

Instead of trying to suppress your desires, look for someone who's in the same boat, someone to whom you can give love. And don't be so quick to evaluate "metal." You need an ALLY — not an ALLOY.

DEAR ABBY: My wife keeps a picture of her mother in our bedroom and I have to look at it more than I care to. In case you suspect that I am not too fond of my wife's mother, you are correct.

My wife has plenty of other places to display her mother's picture, but she insists on keeping it in the bedroom.

At first I hinted, then I moved it, but my wife always puts it back on my dresser. (It's not even nicely framed.)

Should I throw it, my wife, or myself out?

Anonymous

Dear Anon: Quit playing games. Tell your wife that if she doesn't find another permanent spot for her mother's picture, you will!

DEAR ABBY: I'm desperately in need of some suggestions. Having my father around the house lately is creating a bigger problem than my six-month-old daughter.

He recently had prostate surgery and "dribbles" constantly! Then he sits on my velvet-covered chairs with damp trousers.

I spoke to his urologist. He said it wasn't uncommon for a man to dribble that way following that type of surgery, but he didn't tell me what to do about it.

I don't think Dad realizes what a mess he's making of my chairs. I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world. He is a doll.

What can you suggest? I just can't ask my father to wear a diaper!

Desperate In N.Y.

Dear Desperate: Call your father's urologist and tell him what you've told me. Surely he'll have a solution for this problem. In the meantime, protect your chairs with a temporary covering.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28-cents) self-addressed envelope.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

For us weight-wary folks, pancakes are among the foods that have simply ceased to exist, along with Hershey bars and Mallomars. Not that pancakes are so calamitously calorie-laden. It's just that everything else they touch is! Butter, for example, has 100 calories per tablespoon.

By some evil magic a couple of hotcakes can easily make several hundred calories' worth of butter disappear before your very eyes, only to reappear around your waistline before next Tuesday.

Pancake syrup? It's nothing more than sugar — pure calories in a pourable state. You might just as well skip breakfast and pour it directly on your hips, where it's going to go anyway. Honey is little better despite its health food image. The space that's left on the plate is usually occupied by greasy sausage or even greasier bacon, both so fat-laden that there's little point in debating their relative demerits.

(But, for the record, bacon is nearly twice as fattening as breakfast sausage!) No wonder a "simple" order of pancakes and bacon can easily wipe out your calorie allowance for a whole weekend! Unless you're a Slim Gourmet cook.

Today, we're going to give you a Sunday morning alternative: calorie-safe pancakes scented and sweetened with orange juice, topped with natural applesauce instead of syrup. Then, we're going to suggest some slimmer alternatives for the space where the sausage usually goes.

ORANGE-FLAVORED PANCAKES WITH APPLESAUCE

- 1 cup pancake mix, regular or high-protein
- 1/2 tsp. baking soda
- 1 egg (or 1/4 cup no-fat no-cholesterol substitute, defrosted)
- 3/4 cup orange juice, unsweetened
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 tsp. vanilla

2 cups applesauce, canned or homemade, chunky unsweetened
Optional: 1 tsp. orange liqueur, or 2 tbsps. orange juice
Cinnamon or apple pie spice
Stir pancake mix and baking soda together. Make a well in the center and add egg, juice, quarter-cup water and vanilla. Stir until well-blended. (Add more water, as needed.)

Spray a non-stick griddle until slick with cooking spray. Heat over moderate flame. When hot, use a measuring cup to drop batter on skillet by scant quarter-cupfuls. Cook undisturbed until tops of pancakes are bubbled and nearly dry. Use a spatula to turn; briefly brown the other side. Keep warm.

Meanwhile, stir applesauce and orange liqueur or juice, if desired, together in a small saucepan over low heat until bubbling.

To serve, divide pancakes among four plates and spoon on hot applesauce. Sprinkle with spice. Make four brunch servings, at 215 calories each (liqueur dessert servings at 110 calories each (liqueur add 10 calories per brunch serving; 5 calories per dessert serving.)

(Extra pancakes can be stored in the freezer: allow to cool on wax paper, then wrap individually and freeze. Reheat in toaster, toaster-oven, oven or microwave.)

FAST APPLESAUCE — Peel, core and thinly-slice three or four large McIntosh apples into a heavy saucepan. Add a half-cup water or juice; unsweetened apple, white grape or orange. Cover tightly and simmer four to five minutes. Fork-stir until chunky or whip smooth. Four servings about 85 calories each.

Some variations:
PINEAPPLE PANCAKES — Substitute unsweetened pineapple juice for the orange juice. (Or use apple juice, or any other unsweetened fruit juice.)

PINEAPPLE SAUCE — Stir half-teaspoon cornstarch and three or four table-spoons water into undrained unsweetened juice-packed crushed pineapple. Cook and stir in a small saucepan until bubbling. Add a pinch of pumpkin pie spice, if desired.

WHAT TO SERVE WITH PANCAKES:

Use the 30-percent-leaner pork strips in place of bacon, broiled until brittle-crisp and well-rendered of fat, blotted on paper toweling.

Or, thin slices of Canadian bacon, skillet-browned in a sprayed non-stick skillet with no fat added (only 976 calories a pound instead of 3,016 for regular bacon.)

Or homemade sausage patties made by seasoning one pound lean fat-trimmed ground pork with half-teaspoon poultry seasoning (857 calories per pound.)

Or, defrosted turkey sausage (1,300 calories a pound instead of 1,565 calories for regular pork breakfast sausage.)

Or, thin slices of heat-and-eat ham steak (lean only) at only 66 calories an ounce.

Unforbidden sweets are a snap to make. For low-sugar recipes and handy table of equivalents for sugar substitutes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET LOW-SUGAR RECIPES in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

Sluggish Productivity Growth Blamed On Lack Of Capital

By JOHN CUNIFF
 NEW YORK (AP) — Beneath every factory job in America is a foundation of capital, more than $50,000 of it by even conservative estimates, but even that may not be enough. Not nearly enough. That, at least, is the contention of many economists, who equate the country's sluggish productivity growth with both a lack of capital and a reluctance of manufacturers to make sizeable capital commitments.

Germany's savings rate has never fell below 10 percent of disposable income. And Japan's rate in 1974 topped 25 percent.

The reluctance to make commitments, the economists explain, emanates from a fear that the return on investments may be inadequate, because of a poor business climate, lack of incentives, or negative tax policy.

And, of course, the two factors feed on themselves, because without savings to be invested in upgrading factories and techniques, people and companies consequently earn less — and have less to save. It's been happening, and productivity experts say it is one reason why the rate at which U.S. factories become more efficient is one of the lowest of the entire industrialized world, half that of many countries.

And it is falling. From 1965 to 1966, nonfarm output per manhour rose at a yearly rate of 2.6 percent. From 1966 to 1973 it rose less than 1 percent. In 1978 it fell to 0.4 percent. It might disappear.

The shrinkage explains much about the U.S. trade imbalance, the budget deficits, the rise of household debt, inflation, unemployment and many of the economic ills that have become almost daily front page news.

Without productivity increases, it is all but impossible for living standards to rise. And under the U.S. system, without capital to invest in better plants, machinery and methods, productivity cannot improve.

All this gives significance to U.S. Commerce Department figures that show capital formation as a percent of output lags badly behind France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, United Kingdom, Japan and Canada.

From 1968 through the first quarter of 1978, U.S. capital formation, or savings invested in productive facilities, ranged from 16.3 percent to 18.4 percent of gross national product. The others topped 20.

Understanding these facts, there is little mystery to the country's economic problems. The mystery, say those who study the underlying causes of economic distress, is why so little is done about them.

In fact, say critics, the mystery is even deeper: Why so much is done to exacerbate the problems. Why, for example, capital formation through savings is discouraged, why spending and debt are encouraged.

But, you say, that's not so. "Every day I read and listen to ads that encourage people to save and invest. Yes, but savings and investments are taxed; debt is government subsidized by making it tax-deductible.

Capital formation and productivity are entwined in the economic nature of things, underlying problems whose symptoms we deal with repeatedly.

The numbers — for output per manhour, trade imbalance, inflation, debt, joblessness and more — would seem to demonstrate the futility of dealing with symptoms rather than causes.

Analysis

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: My volunteer group is going to hold a fund-raising banquet for charitable purposes. Do we need to charge the sales tax on the tickets to the banquet as well as on the food when we serve it?

A: If your organization is non-profit and the function is not a regularly scheduled one; and, if the function is not being held in an established restaurant or other eating place; and, if it's all volunteer — you most likely will not have to collect any sales tax. To be absolutely certain, however, you may wish to check with the nearest district office of the State Comptroller.

Q: I am in the process of getting a divorce. I owe money on several charge accounts, and I want to know what effect my divorce will have when it becomes final. Can these charge accounts be closed and the balance be requested immediately?

A: Your divorce cannot affect your charge accounts unless there is some evidence to indicate you will not be able to pay your bills. The new Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits a merchant, or, for that matter, any other lender, from closing an account or requiring people to reapply for new accounts just because there is a change in their marital status.

Q: What chance does a father have of getting custody of his child in a divorce suit? Must he prove the mother is unfit? Can the father receive custody because of mental and physical abuse he has received from her?

A: Despite the traditional reluctance of judges and juries to make the father managing conservator — that is, the adult who has custody of the child — the law in Texas has no preference.

The managing conservator must be a suitable, competent adult and the standard by which the choice is made is simply that the decision to choose one parent over another must be in the best interest of the child.

Thus, the mother and the father are on equal footing. Mental or physical abuse is, of course, one of the factors that would be evaluated in deciding who should be chosen as managing conservator.

Q: Does a private investigator or anyone else have the right to ask a bank or other business to make available the records of my payments on accounts? Shouldn't they have to get a court order or something?

A: According to Texas law, a private investigator has no right to see your bank records nor does any other person without a court order. Internal Revenue Service has a process by which they can see bank records without a court order.

Norfolk Residents Glad To See Delivery Man, 'Old Faithful'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The milkman cometh. His name is Gary Stone, and some folks sure were glad to see him.

In the dark of Monday morning, as this port city choked on ice and snow, he rode his route like a knight of old. His unlikely steed was an dark green 1968 Yoder's Dairy truck. Top-heavy and clanking, its doors lay open to the cold winds.

"Refrigeration isn't a problem on a day like this," he said.

On the nose of his venerable truck was painted the name "Old Faithful." And rightly so.

Stone, a 26-year-old Mennonite who began working Yoder routes two years ago, began his Monday at 1 a.m. By 7:30, he had pushed two stalled cars and had been stuck himself four times.

"You'll never see a milkman who won't take time to help someone out," he said. "Maybe it's because we know what it's like to be broken down."

He remembered that "the worst was when I got hung up on a 2-foot snowdrift about 4 a.m. Took me 20 minutes to get out of it."

"But Yoder Dairies has not missed a route since 1929 and I'm not going to be the first," he proclaimed.

So down the street Stone and "Old Faithful" went, plowing through the ice and snow. To left and right, parked as new and pointing at all angles, were trucks and cars axle-deep in ice.

Stone has 264 customers on his Monday route, and on the day of the big freeze, all received their orders of milk or cream or orange juice or eggs.

"This old truck," he said, "goes where cars and pickups and even some four-wheelers can't."

GRAIN FUTURES
CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures scored new season's highs Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade, gaining 15 to 23 cents a bushel. Buying by commission houses pushed soybean oil prices sharply higher.

Analysts said speculative buying in silver, apparently in response to rumors of continued unrest in the Far East, pushed prices higher by as much as 30 cents an ounce in the nearby February contract, which trades without daily price limits.

Speculative demand for soybeans arose in midsession, after a quiet opening when soybeans were mostly lower. Weekend rains over the drought-damaged Brazilian soybean crop helped quell demand, analysts said. While futures were narrowly mixed, wheat corn futures rose slightly. The government reported Friday after the close that South Korea bought 165,000 tons of U.S. corn in addition to large amounts purchased last week.

At the close, soybeans were 15 to 23 cents higher, with March contracts quoted at $7.73 a bushel; wheat was 1/2 cent lower to 1/2 cent higher, March $3.58 1/2; corn was 1/4 to 1/2 cents higher, March $2.37 1/2; and oats were 1/4 cent lower to 1/4 cents higher, March $1.39 1/2.

COTTON FUTURES
NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.30 a bale lower to $2.40 higher Tuesday.

Prices rose mainly in sympathy with strength in other markets, brokers said. The average price for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton declined 36 points to 61.67 cents a pound Friday for the New York Cotton Exchange.

Latin American Enemies Met To End Struggle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two of the bitterest enemies in Latin America — Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua and Carlos Andres Perez of Venezuela — met secretly last summer in a vain effort to settle Nicaragua's civil strife, UPI learned today.

The two presidents, meeting July 30 on the tiny Venezuelan island of La Orchila, agreed on a solution to the crisis but the accord later fell apart in mutual recriminations.

Highly reliable sources said Somoza and Perez agreed during their 6½ hours of negotiations to hold free elections in Nicaragua in 1979. But the election never took place and the two Latin American leaders have been attacking each other as bitterly as ever in recent months.

Somoza arrived at the island in his private plane, accompanied by Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Julio Quintana and his friend Manolo Reboso, deputy mayor of Miami.

Perez, who suggested the meeting, was accompanied by his foreign minister, Simon Alberto Consalvi, and Venezuelan publisher Miguel Angel Capriles.

The only other people on the island — a remote presidential resort — were Perez's personal guard and servants.

Luis Pallais, editor of the Nicaraguan newspaper Novedades, arranged the details of the meeting. Pallais is Somoza's cousin and closest political adviser.

The two leaders agreed to an election in Nicaragua under the auspices of the Organization of American States as well as Perez and former presidents Daniel Oduber of Costa Rica and Alfonso Lopez Michelsen of Colombia.

Somoza and Perez refused to comment when questioned about their secret meeting, but James D. Theberge, former U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, said he was aware of the meeting.

Consalvi refused to confirm the talks outright.

As soon as Somoza arrived in La Orchila, the source said, the two presidents were alone for a three-hour private meeting.

Tension Mounts In Rhodesia

By JOHN EDLIN

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — After six years of war, black nationalist guerrillas are reinforcing their armies inside Rhodesia and launching bold new strikes as their leaders vow to sabotage April elections and topple the first black-led government to emerge.

The biracial transition government is strengthening its forces too — ordering an unprecedented mobilization of regular troops and reserves for the elections.

All leaves have been canceled for the period before and after polling. The reserves can expand the permanent forces of about 12,000 into an army of about 45,000, and the aim is to raise the largest force ever fielded in the embattled breakaway British colony.

This is happening in the face of threats from Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the guerrilla chiefs, to blow up the ballot boxes — and after the 8,000 to 12,000 guerrillas, scattered through an area the size of Montana, have been able to mount several recent strikes that signaled an escalation in the conflict.

The guerrillas forced the closure of a popular tourist hotel in the eastern Inyanga Mountains by ordering the black staff to quit work. They downed an Air Rhodesia Viscount airliner, killing all 59 aboard.

They attacked with rockets a vital power station in the Rhodesian capital, blew up a strategic railroad bridge between here and the eastern garrison town of Umtali, stepped up ambushes of travelers and strikes against white farmers.

On Monday, their mortars fired on Salisbury's international airport.

Still, military chiefs say twice as many insurgents are being slain now as were being killed two years ago — and they are confident they can check efforts to sabotage the elections.

Safeguarding the elections is a vital exercise for the Salisbury government in its efforts to win international recognition and remove the economic strait jacket of United Nations sanctions.

"The situation at present is a tough one and is likely to get even tougher," Army commander Lt. Gen. John Hickman says, adding that the guerrillas "know only too well that once we have completed the majority rule process their credence must wane and wither in the minds of all those who deal in double standards."

The April elections will be the first in Rhodesian history involving all adult blacks, whose people outnumber whites 30 to one — 6.8 million blacks as against 250,000 whites, the former rulers.

Under a constitutional accord reached last March by white Prime Minister Ian D. Smith and three moderate black leaders, the elections will establish the country's first black-led government.

Smith and the black partners with whom he shares power in the transition government hope that this formula will win international approval, lead to a lifting of sanctions, and encourage many guerrillas to lay down their arms and return home.

"Most guerrillas are tired of fighting and will come over to our side once they see blacks at the head of the next government," says an aide to the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of the three black leaders.

Already, some 2,000 one-time guerrillas have accepted a year-old amnesty and turned themselves over to the authorities. Most have volunteered as "auxiliaries" to the regular Rhodesian forces. These units control a fifth of all tribal reserves, are armed with captured guerrilla weapons, and are directed by police liaison officers.

But critics of what is called the "turned terrorists" program claim the auxiliaries are really private armies loyal to Sithole or Bishop Abel Muzorewa, another leader in the transition government.

The critics include the third black leader, Chief Jeremiah Chirau, who has no private army. They also claim the presence of bitterly rival private armies is a recipe for civil war.

"I can see a situation where if the guerrillas are beaten, the Sithole and Muzorewa auxiliaries will start battling each other," says a black adviser to Chirau. "And I can see the possibility of one or other of the auxiliaries — or both — linking up with one or other of the guerrilla groups if they aren't beaten."

Meanwhile, the prospect of early victory over the insurgents appears dim. One third of all the total 15,000 war victims have been killed in the 11 months since the March accord. And in that time, the guerrillas have claimed some of their most significant successes.

They cite constant harassment of communications, the first guerrilla strikes inside the Rhodesian capital, a December attack on a vital oil storage depot, and the flight of a record 2,200 whites a month.

But the guerrillas have had their jolts as well.

Ambulance Drivers Stage Wildcat Strike In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Ambulance drivers in London and Manchester staged a 24-hour wildcat strike today, halting emergency services and forcing soldiers and police to drive ambulances and speed pregnant women to hospitals.

Most of the nation's 17,000 drivers went along with the recommendation of their leaders who met in London Tuesday and agreed to postpone action for a week while talks on a pay increase continue.

But more than half of London's ambulance stations refused to answer even emergency calls and police in Manchester had to take several women in late stages of pregnancy to hospitals.

The drivers are seeking a 946 weekly raise, a hike of 48 percent, in their minimum pay from $94 to $140. The government wants to hold raises under 10 percent and its latest offer to the ambulance drivers is a 9 percent increase of $8.08 a week.

As the striking drivers began their walkout at midnight, the army and police manned special ambulances to back up volunteer services provided by the St.

John's ambulance corps and Red Cross.

The wildcat walkout by the ambulance drivers is the latest action in the worst labor turmoil since the coal strike of 1974, which led to the defeat of the Conservative government of Edward Heath.

Previous walkouts by garbage men and school and hospital officials left garbage piled in the streets, schools shut and hospitals accepting only emergency cases.

Talks aimed at ending the month-long walkouts by Britain's 1.5 million public service workers resumed today. Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey said he expected a settlement "under 10 percent."

The garbage men, toilet cleaners and school janitors and other low-paid workers who do so-called "dirty jobs" want a 40 percent weekly increase from $84 to $120.

But cleaners and kitchen staff at London's two main children's hospital voted to begin a three-day strike starting Monday. Union leaders said the action was to protest the "insulting 9 percent offer."

Parades Halted In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mardi Gras season in New Orleans had a new look today — stripped of its gaudy parades by Carnival captains who said they wanted to keep the festival from being held "hostage" by striking police.

Carnival captains canceled all remaining city parades Tuesday — the first such action since the Korean War — to eliminate them as a factor in negotiations with the Teamsters-affiliated Police Association of Louisiana.

The decision means the city will be without the showpiece of its $50-million festival and merchants will face a painful economic loss, although no specific estimates were available.

"Devastating," said one captain. "It's devastating to the economy."

Negotiations, with a federal mediator professing optimism, were to resume today — along with a civil district court hearing on a back-to-work order which, so far, the union has ignored.

The order, obtained by the city after 1-100 of New Orleans' 1,514 policemen walked out five days ago, contends the strike is illegal.

The captains of 18 Carnival "krewes," or private social clubs, said the cancellations were "a needed thing."

"We are not going to let Mardi Gras be held hostage by the Teamsters," the captains said. "They were holding Mardi Gras hostage. Well, we've taken the ransom."

"But Mardi Gras is not dead," emphasized Blaine Kern, an authority on the ancient and boozey festival coming up on Feb. 27. "This is just something that bumped into it."

One captain said processions could be quickly rescheduled if a settlement is reached.

There were plans to move some parades to suburbs, out of the strike zone. But many captains felt it would not be the same.

Union officials declined comment on the cancellations.

About 300 National Guardsmen and state troopers patrolled the city, but only the police were deemed to have the expertise in crowd control necessary for a normal Mardi Gras.

Union officials regarded that factor as "our four aces" in pressing for quick contract settlement.

"Now the card game is over," said the captain of Endymion, one of the krewes which stage the famed parades as part of their festivities. Krewes captains traditionally are anonymous.

The union has been demanding compulsory binding arbitration of unresolved issues and inclusion of ranking officers in the bargaining unit.

City officials say the demands would give the Teamsters control of the police department.

Before the strike, parades were canceled only seven times — because of war and epidemic. The last time was during the Korean War.

Carter To Nominate Amarillo Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced today he will nominate Mary Lou Robinson to be a U.S. district judge for the northern district of Texas.

Ms. Robinson, 52, of Amarillo, has been chief justice of the Court of Civil Appeals of the 7th Supreme Judicial District since 1977.

Restaurant Run-In Causes Fight

A run-in about 2 a.m. today at a Lubbock restaurant resulted in a fight punctuated with gunfire involving four men in the 300-block of Avenue W.

Two Lubbock men, ages 27 and 30, were arrested in connection with the incident which began at an all-night restaurant on University Avenue near 19th Street.

Jim Meyers, 25, of Plainview and Johnny D. Lee, 23, of 305 Ave. W told police they confronted two other men at the business's cash register and that several harsh words were exchanged.

Meyers and Lee said they left the restaurant and drove to Lee's residence. They said the other pair followed and that one of them rolled down his window, pointed a .38-caliber pistol at Lee and Meyers and fired several shots, but missed.

A burglar who broke into an apartment at 2012 15th St. Tuesday apparently has a weird sense of values. The apartment manager, Rosa L. Smith, said the only thing she could find missing was the toilet.

Charles Buckner Jr. of Liberal, Kan., told Lubbock police his car was set afire while it was parked at 918 Idalou Road about 1:10 a.m. today. He estimated the damage at about $800.

Tony Montemayer of 3712 E. Fourth St. said his vehicle was parked at 103 N. University Ave. between Friday and 5 p.m. Tuesday when someone slashed the interior and broke several accessories in the car. He said his loss was about $1,100.

In a Tuesday night break-in, Chris Moody of 2203 17th St., Apt. C, said he lost $1,300 in property, including guns, stereo and boots, when his place was burglarized between 9:45 p.m. and 11:30 p.m.

Threats Prompt Tight Security

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) — Tight security prompted by a telephone threat surrounded Tuesday's arraignment of three farmworkers accused of killing a striker during a confrontation in a lettuce field.

Leonardo Alfredo Barriga, 52, of Calexico, a foreman; Anthony Andreas San Diego, 28, of Nipomo, a temporary foreman; and Sroylan Perez Mendoza, 38, Mexicali, spent one hour in jail before being released on $50,000 bail posted by their employer, Mario Saikhon, a major grower in the fertile Imperial Valley.

A preliminary hearing was set for April 2.

The armed man allegedly got out of his car and fired several more shots then placed the pistol to Meyers' head. However, Meyers told police he jumped back, grabbed the weapon and began fighting with the suspect. A fight then broke out between Lee and the gunman's companion, reports indicate.

Meyers said he wrestled the gun away from the man and pistol-whipped him before the assailant broke loose and ran away. The gunman's companion also fled, according to police.

Five Littlefield residents remained in Lubbock County Jail Tuesday night after being arrested that morning when the vehicle they were allegedly using as a getaway car from a burglary site got stuck in a muddy bar ditch.

F.W. Farris called the sheriff's office shortly after 9 a.m. Tuesday and said two young men were trying to break into his mother's garage just southeast of Shallowater.

He told deputies the pair had come to the house and asked to use the telephone because their car was stuck. When Farris refused, the duo approached Farris and asked him if he would pull the car from the ditch with a tractor, according to reports.

Farris said that when he told the men he did not have a tractor, they left and he spotted them moments later trying to get inside the garage. He said that when he went to phone authorities, the pair left.

Tinnitus Sufferers Finding Help

By AL ROSSITER JR.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimated seven million Americans suffer from persistent, nerve-wracking sounds in their head — usually ringing in the ears or buzzing, roaring or hissing noises.

The disorder is called tinnitus and, until recently, has largely been ignored by medical researchers because it itself won't kill you.

But Robert Hocks, national chairman of the American Tinnitus Association, said the sounds can be so maddening that some tinnitus sufferers are driven to drugs, alcohol, "and finally, for many, suicide."

For most tinnitus sufferers, there is no cure. But help is available. The ATA, based in Portland, Ore., has just started a national series of meetings to introduce to hearing specialists ear-worn devices that can mask the ringing and other sounds of tinnitus.

Dr. Jack Vernon of the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center said the tinnitus maskers emit a steady sound to drown out the head noises. He said, in most cases, the device's sound is more psychologically acceptable than the tinnitus and can be ignored like most people disregard background noises.

"We routinely shut out background sounds all the time," he said during a recent symposium. "If we can cover up a patient with an external, uninteresting, not too loud sound, then it's very easy for them to shut that out. It's very difficult to shut out tinnitus."

He said about 70 percent of people suffering from tinnitus can benefit from maskers.

To Trudy Drucker, of River Vale, N. J., the masking devices make life worth living. She has severe tinnitus and said she twice tried to kill herself.

"It's just agonizing," she said at a recent ATA workshop. "It's terrible. I wear a masker and it does help. It helps my normal tinnitus. I also have a kind of agonizing howl that I can't mask out yet."

The causes of tinnitus are unknown, but Vernon said head injury and excessive noise appear to have major roles in producing the disorder.

"It's a very perplexing thing," said Dr. Robert Sandlin, associate director of the speech and hearing clinic at Children's Hospital in San Diego, Calif. "You're treating the symptoms rather than understanding the real cause."

Some drugs are known to increase tinnitus symptoms and Vernon said, "I have three patients who say never again will they smoke marijuana because it makes their tinnitus worse."

Vernon said most of the tinnitus sufferers he sees are over the age of 45, but he has treated patients as young as 14.

"It is not uncommon to see patients who have endured tinnitus for 20 years," he said. "It is not uncommon for the World War II veteran to have acquired a minor case of tinnitus around 1943, or so, which over the years has gradually increased in severity."

Because about 5 percent of tinnitus is caused by medical problems such as tumors and infections, Vernon said that before people seek help from masking de-VICES, they should first see their ear, nose and throat physician.

"You want to find out if there is a medical reason that can be corrected," he said. "Then, if that is not the case, you can go to this non-medical type of treatment."

Further information about tinnitus aid is available from the American Tinnitus Association, P. O. Box 5, Portland, Ore. 97207.

The National Geographic Society says the tallest structure in the United States is the television tower at Blanchard, S.D., which rises 2,063 feet above the plains.

Nations Eye Industrial Cooperation

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Swedish Prime Minister Ola Ullsten this week expressed optimism about the possibilities of a new industrial deal between Norway and Sweden.

In a speech to the 27th session of the Nordic Council, Ullsten said he regretted the collapse of a plan that would have led to Norway investing in Volvo, the Swedish automaker.

He said that could have given both countries advantages and have been a "pilot project of Nordic cooperation." The deal was blocked by Volvo shareholders.

Ullsten said that within six months the Norwegian and Swedish industry ministers would present new projects for industrial cooperation, together with a long-term oil deal.

The week-long session of the Nordic Council opened Monday with 78 representatives of the Nordic countries.

The Volvo deal would have involved Norway taking a 40 percent interest in Volvo, moving some jobs to Norway, which in turn would have given Sweden prospecting rights for oil in the North Sea.

Denmark's prime minister, Anker Jorgensen, told the Nordic Council meeting there was a growing tendency among the world's countries to attempt to solve economic problems without regard to international cooperation.

"The Nordic countries must work against this tendency and we must contribute to international cooperation," Jorgensen said. He noted that the Nordic countries often were seen as a stabilizing influence in international relations.

Finland's premier, Kalevi Sorsa, urged greater cooperation among Nordic countries in the export of plant and machinery. He said this would make them more competitive in world markets.

"Nordic cooperation has been very limited so far and we have regarded each other as the worst competitors. We have not realized that the real competition comes from capital-strong North America and from the (European) continent," Sorsa said.

Marine General Says Troops Not Abused

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Brutality is a thing of the past at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, says the commanding general.

"We are beginning to treat our Marines like employees," said Maj. Gen. Richard C. Schulze.

The death of Pvt. Lynn McClure, who had been forced to fight bigger Marines and was badly battered, was followed by the courts-martial of 17 drill sergeants accused of abuses in 1976. Six others were tried in 1977 and three last year.

People also remember the forced, nighttime march at Parris Island, S. C., in 1956 in which six recruits drowned.

In an interview Monday Schulze said: "Then we had the early '70s when we were in turmoil, coming down quickly from the Vietnam war and having no experience with an all-volunteer service. We concentrated on numbers rather than quality."

"We recruited some people we should have known would never make Marines," he said.

"We failed the drill instructors. We didn't train them in how to handle that. In frustration, they would lash out."

The DI was often a man who had won his stripes under Vietnam battle conditions, impatient with lack of discipline among new recruits, Schulze said.

The Marine Corps has since raised its standards and "we're getting a higher quality kid—they're more responsible and more dependable," says the general, adding that the all-voluntary military "has made us look at it more in terms of a job than as a life style."

One-Man Army Foils Robbery

DALLAS (AP) — Three would-be bank robbers ran into a virtual one-man army here when they encountered a 75-year-old bank guard while attempting to rob the Buckner State Bank.

When it was all over, one bank robber had been wounded, another was arrested without incident and the third was nowhere to be found.

City Council To Hear Comments

mination of the city's participation in SPAG, including the liabilities and advantages to membership in the association.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of the recurring "rites of spring" at Tech Terrace Park. Recent warm temperatures lured droves of students back to the park and the calls from angry residents to city hall haven't ceased since.

Last year the city placed barricades around the park and beefed up police patrols to curb vandalism and littering.

Council members are scheduled to discuss a procedure for negotiating new contracts for seven industrial customers of Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Earlier, the council held public hearings on the industrial gas rates, but the proceedings were halted with the death of city rate analyst Ervin Looney.

At their last meeting, council members decided to negotiate for new rates rather than initiate another rate hearing.

Some members of the Cultural Affairs Council will meet with council members at noon to discuss the distribution of a one percent tax on hotel and motel room rentals in Lubbock.

Also council members will:
— Hold a public hearing at 2 p.m. on curb and gutter improvements on Slide Road from Loop 289 to 82nd Street. The curb and gutter costs will be paid by adjacent property owners.

— Consider allocating $25,618 in Community Development contingency funds to cover the final costs of a water supply study.

— Consider increasing the costs to reconnect water and electric meters. A reconnection charge during working hours would be $5 and $15 after working hours.

— Consider an agreement between the city and American State Bank to permit the police department Special Weapons and Tactical (SWAT) Unit to train at the old Sears store in downtown Lubbock.

— Consider a bid for a fire station to be built at 79th Street and Slide Road. The low bid for the construction was $318,706.

Paper Workers Approve Pact

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Workers at seven Crown Zellerbach Corp. mills in Oregon, Washington and California have approved a new contract, quickening the pace toward a settlement of the nation's longest pulp and paper strike.

Of 3,828 workers voting Tuesday night, about 70 percent approved a new pact, while 30 percent rejected it, said Bob Cochrane, president of Local 5 of the Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers.

He said calls to bring the 5,000 Crown Zellerbach workers back to their jobs would begin today.

Union spokesman Bob Webb said in Portland the ratified contract calls for a 27 percent salary increase over three years, with increased pension and health benefits.

In addition, eight strikers who were to have been fired for alleged disturbances during the strike will instead receive 45-day suspensions, Webb said. Six other workers will receive 15-day suspensions.

troit police officer, confronted the youths inside the bank after they announced the robbery, said police spokesman Bob Shaw.

Witnesses said one of the gunmen grabbed Hiter and began shouting "Shoot him, shoot him."

Hiter was struck about the head in a struggle and one robber was shot in the arm by the guard, Shaw said.

Mrs. Glen Winchester, a customer in the bank at the time of the robbery, described Hiter's actions as "absolutely magnificent."

"Even though he was knocked around pretty bad, he got out his gun and got off some shots. He was hit on the head with a gun butt and there was blood running all down his head," Mrs. Winchester said.

The other gunmen two fled by car. The wounded youth took off on foot but was stopped nearby by a used car salesman, who held him at gunpoint until police arrived.

About an hour later a second suspect was arrested and the getaway vehicle was recovered. The youth offered no resistance, Shaw said. The third person has not been apprehended.

Man Finds Sidewalk Missing

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

When Tom Biggs left for vacation, he thought he had taken all the necessary security precautions with his house. The only thing he neglected to secure was the sidewalk in front — and guess what was missing when he returned to Lubbock a week later?

It may become known to neighbors as the "sidewalk caper," but it won't be reported officially to the police because, as Biggs matter-of-factly explained, "How can you report something like that? They would've laughed."

That's just what his insurance agent did when he called him, he added.

Biggs, who lives at 8602 Elkridge, said he noticed the loss several weeks ago, when he returned from Florida. An approximately 10-foot section of sidewalk "was just gone," he said.

"Who would want a sidewalk? It's the damndest thing I ever heard. I've heard of people stealing lots of things but never a sidewalk."

The victim also noted the sidewalk seams had been cut evenly and that the area had been cleaned and raked. "I figure a contractor must have done it," he said, explaining that perhaps a concrete worker had the wrong address for an ordered driveway change and left quietly when he realized his mistake.

But, Biggs added, whether it was a mistaken contractor or a thief, "I'm just glad they took that instead of breaking into the house."

Adoption Meeting Scheduled Friday

A meeting of the Council on Adoptable Children is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday at State Savings & Loan, 66th Street and Indiana Avenue.

The question-and-answer session is open to persons interested in adopting a child or those awaiting completion of adoption proceedings.

Representatives of the Department of Human Resources and of the District Attorney's Office will be present to answer questions regarding adoption and adoption procedures.

Jury Hears Testimony From Secret Witness

EL PASO (UPI) — A secret witness, masked by a black hood and shielded from spectators by FBI agents and federal marshals, has testified before a federal grand jury investigating the killing of one attorney, the assassination attempt on another, interstate racketeering and other violations.

Several of the other witnesses waiting to testify Tuesday were startled when the figure — dressed in a black hood, black gloves, black trousers, black raincoat and white shoes — was ushered into the grand jury room.

The mystery witness emerged nearly an hour later and did not speak as federal agents carefully kept him apart from other witnesses and spectators, then whisked him away.

The grand jury Tuesday opened its second week of an investigation into the killing of El Paso attorney Lee Chagra and the disappearance of a large sum of money from his office. It also is investigating an assassination attempt on a government attorney, interstate racketeering, prostitution, gambling and drug trafficking.

U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd said the grand jury probably would continue throughout this week and could hear up to 200 witnesses in its look into illegal activities reportedly stretching from Texas to Las Vegas to Seattle.

Some witnesses from Las Vegas were expected to be subpoenaed later this week.

Among persons called to testify Tuesday were Vic Apocada, a local bail bondsman; attorney Joe Rey Jr.; Eddie Abraham, brother of attorney Sid Abraham; Steven Michael Fueston, a management consultant for a local nightclub; a woman identified only as Terri Warner; two other unidentified women; and a U.S. postal inspector.

Fueston appeared two weeks ago before a San Antonio grand jury also looking into the Nov. 21 assassination attempt on Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr.

Kerr, 38, escaped with minor cuts when two men fired an automatic rifle at his automobile near his home.

Both the El Paso and San Antonio grand juries have shown an interest in the Bandidos motorcycle gang, and some federal agents have alleged gang members may have been involved in the attack on Kerr, who prosecuted many of the major narcotics trafficking cases defended by Chagra.

New York City private investigator Dennis M. O'Donnell also was expected to testify this week.

Leaders Fear Clements To Serve Only Rich

AUSTIN (AP) — A statewide Presbyterian leader has told Gov. Bill Clements some church leaders fear his administration will serve only the rich and powerful.

The Rev. William Fogleman of Denton was assigned Tuesday to give the response after Clements addressed the 10th annual assembly of the Texas Conference of Churches.

Fogleman is general presbyter (chief executive officer) of the statewide Synod of the Red River, Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Clements told the assembly he believed the church should stay out of political affairs although it does have a social mission.

"No government can succeed outside of God's grace, yet I have strong feelings that the place of the church is not in politics," Clements said.

Fogleman replied: "We tend to hear phrases like that to mean politics will worship whatever god it will, and the church should mind its benign business in the suburbs and with the children and the few women who haven't joined the labor force."

Clements, an Episcopalian, said Jesus "was not on a political mission. His mission was one of offering mankind everlasting life through faith in God."

Fogleman, sitting at the head table with Clements, told of his sampling of delegates' views about the newly inaugurated Republican governor.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Leonard Nimoy proved his versatility in "Invasion of the Body Snatchers." But he'll never be forgotten as "Mr. Spock," the man with the high pointed ears in "Star Trek," who will soon be a movie. In between filming, I read that he toured in a one-man tribute to the painter Van Gogh, who once cut off his own ear. I have two questions: Does the actor, whose ears made him famous, feel some kinship with Van Gogh? And whatever happened to Nimoy's ears? — A. Kelly, New Orleans.

A: Spock is no spook. He's a brilliant, knowledgeable person who also happens to be an actor's actor, and has proved it in every medium of his craft — in TV and on the stage, in comedy, drama and musical roles. Only recently, he earned a masters degree at Antioch College. He lectures on the subject of science fiction at U.S. and Canadian universities.

Still married to the same woman he made his bride 25 years ago, actress Sandi Zober, Nimoy is a talented writer and photographer. Three of his books have been published, including his autobiography ("I Am NOT Spock!") and two others — one photographic and the other on poetry he's penned.

Now about your "ear" question — when we interviewed Nimoy on TV, we asked him, playfully, what he did with his old ears. He smiled and said: "The makeup man who designed and made them was a genius. He made not one pair of ears but more than a dozen. One pair, properly autographed by him, was mounted and now hangs in my den."

Q: Does genial Tom Lasorda, manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, still feel let down because his team lost that heart-breaking World Series to the Yankees? — A. Marsh (a former Brooklyn diehard transplanted to Los Angeles).

A: Tom compensates by taking inventory of the good things that have happened to him through the years. "My good luck has been so fortunate," Tom says, "it all seems like a dream... keep wondering when my mother will shake me awake and say, 'Better get up son, or you'll be late for school!'"

Q: In which one of his many movies did Charles Boyer utter that phrase impersonators quote him as saying — "Come with me to Casbah?" — Henry Dutton, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A: "Though they insist it was in 'Algiers,' Boyer once told us, 'the fact is I never said that in any of my films. I finally didn't bother to deny it — I thought it was good publicity!'"

Q: Settle a mild family dispute. Which is Jimmy Carter's favorite spectator sport — football, baseball, basketball, golf, tennis or wrestling? — Mrs. R.A., Youngstown, Ohio.

A: None. The president enjoys watching stock car racing. His mother is the wrestling fan in the family.

Q: I remember a spy-FBI movie in the '50s but can't think of its star or title. One hint: there was little or no dialogue and the only sounds you heard were background noises and some music. I wonder what goes on in an actor's mind with the absence of a script? — Mrs. Florence M., Phoenix, Ariz.

A: The picture was "The Thief" (1952). And the star was Ray Milland. Ray explained that during the filming of one of those long, silent scenes the only thing he could think of was devouring a juicy steak after the director said: "That's all for now!"

NOT SPOCK — Leonard Nimoy, on vacation from being Mr. Spock, as he appears in "Invasion of the Body Snatchers."

Man Advocates Young Brides

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Harry Zain has picked out a wife but she's a bit young under West Virginia law.

So the anti-abortion activist told the state legislature Tuesday the law should be changed so girls as young as 12 can be married.

"For a young girl, it's wrong for her to be in school when she wants to be a wife," Zain said in support of a bill introduced in the legislature.

Upon questioning by Delegate T.J. Scott, the 24-year-old Zain admitted he would personally benefit from dropping the lawful marriage age for girls from 16 to 12.

"There's a young girl I want to marry," he said. "She'll soon be 12."

"When the female is mature, it makes the male mature. We're teaching our girls to imitate women, and we should be teaching our women to imitate girls. The children are pure and we can learn purity from them."

"We're lewd. We've lost all our faith and honor."

Six decades ago, he noted, half the states allowed girls to marry at age 12.

The higher age has been advocated by "liberals" and Communist, Zain said. In Italy, since Communists came to power, the marriage age has risen to 14, while in China it now stands at 23 for women and 27 for men, he said.

A co-sponsor of the bill, Delegate George Warner, said his reason for support of the legislation was simple — the state bars young marriages but permits young women to marry if they become pregnant.

French painter Paul Gauguin, who died in 1903, gave up a successful banking career at age 35 to devote himself to art.

Unions To Check Prices

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Vowing that its members will "yell like hell" about sharp price increases, the AFL-CIO is launching a nationwide campaign to catch companies violating President Carter's voluntary price guidelines.

AFL-CIO President George Meany says the 13.5 million-member labor federation will enlist volunteers from 62,000 union locals to monitor prices because no one in the Carter administration is keeping tabs.

The head of the AFL-CIO's community affairs department planned to meet in Washington today with Carter's chief inflation fighter, Alfred Kahn, to discuss details of the plan.

Meany, meeting here with his executive council, told reporters Tuesday that the federation will "get everybody into the act. You'd be surprised. We've got great plans."

He raised the specter of "housewives (who) will be delighted to form some vigilante groups" after monitoring sharply rising prices in supermarkets. He said the price-watching squads will check prices regularly for food, housing, medical care and other consumer goods, and turn the information over to the government.

Asked what else the volunteers would do, Meany said, "I know we would yell like hell if the prices are really out of line."

Meany first proposed the idea to Kahn two weeks ago as a way of proving Carter's wage-price guidelines are not working.

Meany said Carter called him Monday to request the AFL-CIO's help in monitoring prices "which I would say is a recognition on his part that the price side of the anti-inflation program isn't going too well."

On other matters, the 84-year-old Meany:

— Said he has no immediate plans to retire. "I've been thinking about it for a number of years and I'll keep thinking about it for a number of years," he said. — Vowed he would continue to criticize Carter when "he makes some mistakes," rather than tone down his attacks on the president as some AFL-CIO leaders have suggested.

— Said that just because he disagrees with Carter on some issues "doesn't mean that we're approaching a break."

— Rejected a suggestion by an executive council member that a position of chairman of the board be created for Meany so that he would be willing to step aside as president. "They have a chairman of the board," he said. "Here he is."

The AFL-CIO has opposed Carter's guidelines since they were unveiled last fall. The federation, predicting companies would hold down wages but not prices, has called instead for mandatory controls.

Carter's guidelines ask for 7 percent annual wage hike ceilings and price increases below a company's average for the prior two years.

Leo Perils, who will coordinate the price-monitoring campaign, said the AFL-CIO conducted a similar project with 30,000 volunteers in 1971, after President Richard Nixon imposed mandatory controls. Perils said a number of stores rolled back prices at the time following extensive local publicity.

Sex-Change Operation Leads To Damage Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A woman who says a sex-change operation left her virtually neuter, neither man nor woman, is asking $7 million in damages from her physician, whose California medical license was later revoked.

Jury selection was to begin today in a suit by Julie Phillips, who has accused John Brown of medical improprieties in connection with two operations to change her from a man to a woman.

"I don't know where I belong," Miss Phillips told a reporter Tuesday. "I don't belong in the gay life. I don't belong in the straight life... It isn't the money. I want peace of mind."

Attorney Melvin Belli, one of the country's foremost medical malpractice lawyers, says he is asking $5 million in punitive damages and $2 million in general damages against Brown and his "agent," James Spence. Belli claims Spence falsely represented himself as a doctor.

Neither defendant was available for comment.

The suit said Miss Phillips was treated in December 1973 and January 1974 for breast implantations and the alteration of her male genitals "so that she would have fully functioning female genitalia."

The suit accuses Brown of violating medical standards, using Spence as a medical assistant, employing his patients as medical assistants and, among other charges, performing sex-change operations "on demand" and without psychological evaluations.

Miss Phillips claims Brown charged her $5,000 and once used her to assist in a nose-reconstruction operation on another patient.

The suit said Brown conducted the sex-change operation in two stages, "thus submitting the patient to a castration, with a lapse of several weeks between that operation and the second one, in which a vagina was created."

The suit alleged that "the purpose of performing this two-stage procedure was not to benefit the patient but solely to defraud insurance companies that would not pay for sex-change operations."

FBI Grabs Third Robbery Suspect

NEW YORK (AP) — A third suspect was arrested early today in the $5.8 million robbery of the Lufthansa German Airlines cargo terminal at Kennedy Airport — the largest cash robbery in the nation's history.

FBI spokesman Quentin Urtell said Louis Werner, 46, of Queens was arrested Tuesday night as he left a bowling alley in Lawrence, Long Island. Urtell said Werner offered no resistance.

Urtell said Werner had worked for Lufthansa for about 10½ years, most recently as a cargo agent.

Werner was charged with theft of money from an interstate shipment, violation of the Hobbs Act — taking money from a company engaged in interstate commerce — taking money from a foreign company and conspiracy. Also on Tuesday, two other persons linked with the case — Angelo Sepe, 37, of Mattituck, Long Island, and Peter Gruenawald, 39, of Levittown, Long Island — were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate A. Simon Chein.

Chein set bail for Sepe at $1 million, and scheduled a hearing for him on March 2. Gruenawald was ordered held in lieu of $250,000 bail as a material witness.

Sepe was arrested Saturday after authorities reported he bought a $9,000 car with cash.

City police said earlier this week that Thomas DeSimone of Queens, reportedly a suspect in the case, has disappeared and may have been killed.

Outgoing GSA Administrator Says Delays Hurting Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outgoing administrator of the General Services Administration says a lack of continuity — particularly the delay in naming a new inspector general — is hampering the agency's internal probe of wrongdoing.

"Each time we have a changeover, it becomes a drag on the investigation," Jay Solomon told the House Government Operations subcommittee on government activities and transportation.

The probe has been without a chief investigator since Vincent Alto, who had been hired as a special counsel, left the agency last November.

The White House has said it will nominate Kurt Muellenberg, chief of the Justice Department's organized crime section, to head the investigation. The nomination, however, has not gone to the Senate for approval.

The decision to name Muellenberg has been criticized on Capitol Hill, as has the decision to replace Solomon, who wanted his chief counsel, Irwin Borowski, to be named inspector general.

Although Solomon had expressed a desire to be relieved as administrator of the scandal-ridden agency, news that the White House would replace him caught Solomon and his supporters by surprise. Several members of Congress have asked President Carter to keep Solomon on the job.

Some GSA officials believe Solomon's dispute with the White House over naming an inspector general contributed to the decision to replace him.

Solomon told the subcommittee that naming an inspector general is "the most important factor in the investigation's success."

The examination of kickbacks and wrongdoing by employees and outside contractors has produced 65 indictments so far, Solomon said.

He acknowledged mixed feelings about the decision to replace him and indicated his outspokenness about the investigation may have contributed to his upcoming replacement. Medical research has determined that when a person sneezes, between 2,000 and 5,000 atomized droplets are expelled at a speed of more than 100 feet per second, traveling as far as six feet.

Solomon said he may have "overstepped the bounds of previously acceptable practices of the federal bureaucracy." "Bureaucrats often tend to tone down their transgressions, paper over their mistakes, and ignore new initiatives. That is not my way."

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

Stock Mart Continues To Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged upward today, adding to Tuesday's gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 7.54 on Tuesday, rose another 1.82 to 836.37 by noon today.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market seemed to be attracting buyers on the strength of its own recent performance rather than any developments in the news, which was largely negative.

On Tuesday, in the first trading since Chinese forces pushed a few miles across the border of Vietnam, the market held its ground in the morning and then began moving ahead.

Brokers said traders tended to interpret such patterns as a signal that potential selling pressure on the market was minimal, at least for the moment.

UV Industries gained 1 to 3 1/2% in active trading. The company has scheduled a stockholders meeting for March 26 to vote on a previously disclosed liquidation plan.

Pittman was unchanged at 20 in activity marked by a 100,000-share block at that price.

The NYSE's composite index rose .08 to 55.82. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .56 at 163.91.

Volume on the Big Board reached 11.28 million shares by noon, up from 9.17 million at the same point Tuesday.

Andreotti Gets 'No' Answer

ROME (UPI) — A flat "no" from the Socialist party to Premier Designate Giulio Andreotti has pushed Italy to the brink of early national elections.

Political sources said the 60-year-old Andreotti might abandon his month-long efforts to form a government by the end of the week.

Italy has been without a government since Jan. 31 when the powerful Communist party pulled out of the governing coalition, citing dissatisfaction with Andreotti's domestic policies and demanding they be given cabinet posts.

The Italian Communist Party — the largest in the western world — has not held cabinet posts since 1947 and party chief Enrico Berlinguer says his party is ready to block any accord that denies the Communists ministerial status.

Such a veto would probably provoke early elections.

Italian President Sandro Pertini, a Socialist, was said to be giving careful consideration to appointing a politician outside the ranks of the Christian Democrats to try and form Italy's 41st government since the World War II fall of fascism.

The move, hinted at by Craxi's Socialists as a "middle road" to avert early elections, would be unprecedented in post-war Italian history.

Republican Party Chairman Ugo La Malfa and former President Giuseppe Saragat, both elder statesmen, have already been mentioned as possible alternatives to Andreotti.

Andreotti turned to the Socialists for help when Berlinguer rejected a Christian Democratic proposal for a government that increased the number of leftist ministers but still stopped short of giving the Communists cabinet posts.

The Christian Democrats don't want us in the Cabinet and they don't want us in the opposition," Berlinguer said at a party meeting Sunday. "They can't have it both ways."

Rebuffed, Andreotti had hoped the Socialists — Italy's third largest party — would align themselves behind the ruling Christian Democrats. Together the two parties have enough seats for a parliamentary majority.

But Craxi's statement ended what even most Christian Democrats conceded was Andreotti's last chance.

Political observers agreed that only a last-ditch agreement among the stalemated parties could ward off Italy's first national election since 1976 when the Communists trailed the Christian Democrats by only four percentage points.

Woman Named In Kidnapping

A 20-year-old Lubbock woman has been charged with aggravated kidnapping in the reported Feb. 13 abduction of a Lubbock man who said he was forced to make out a $200 check to the woman and her two companions and was then taken west of the city and left in an abandoned house.

Linette Gertrudis Jaime, accused unavailable, is accused of abducting the 68-year-old man after his car was stopped on Avenue G and he was asked for help with car trouble.

The man told police that he was left at the house off West 19th Street after he made out the check. The woman was arrested after First National Bank officials called the police.

Other charges filed by the criminal district attorney's office include two for burglary of a habitation against Peter Arenas Manriquez, 38, of 117 Ave. T and Gilbert Trevino Rivas, 28, address unavailable.

They are accused of breaking into an East 19th Street and FM 1729 home Feb. 13 and stealing a television set, two firearms and a camera.

Charles Andrew Zimlich, 19, of 7803-B Ave. X was charged with tampering with a witness. He is accused of trying to bribe a witness in a pending attempted rape case against another Lubbock man.

Wilemina Moore, 34, address unavailable, was charged with possession of the controlled substance, heroin, and with unlawfully carrying a weapon in connection with her arrest Feb. 13 at 17th Street and Avenue C.

Judges' Ethics Bill Approved By Senate

AUSTIN — Legislation by Sen. E.L. Short of Tarrant County requiring that judges of county courts-at-law comply with state ethics and financial disclosure acts was approved Tuesday by the Senate and sent to the House.

There was no objection to Short's bill, which he said was inspired by County Court-at-Law Judge J.G. Warnick Jr. of Lubbock.

According to Short, Warnick has been voluntarily filing a copy of his personal income with the Secretary of State's office each year, as other judges are required to do, although there is no provision in state law requiring that county court-at-law judges do so.

POLICE HAVE MURDER WEAPONS — Police officer James Aird leaves a New York apartment early Wednesday where seven persons were found murdered. Under his arm is a package containing a small ax and two knives and in his left hand a bag containing drug paraphernalia. (AP Laserphoto)

Bodies Found In NY Apartment

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives today searched the "bloody mess" of a Harlem apartment for clues to who slashed the throats of six men and a woman in what police said appeared to be a drug-related massacre.

A blood-encrusted 13-inch knife was found on a bed next to three of the victims, according to Chief of Detectives James Sullivan.

All but one of the victims, reportedly Dominicans between the ages of 20 and 35, were found with their hands and legs bound with rope, cords and "anything else that was around," said Sgt. Thomas Curley, first officer to reach the apartment Tuesday night.

Police said the killings were first reported by Jose Crispin, the building's landlord who lives in an apartment on the ground floor. Officers said they could not immediately locate Crispin, and they did not know how he discovered the killings.

None of the victims was immediately identified. Police said it appeared they had been dead since mid-afternoon.

Four of the bodies were in the rear bedroom of the first-floor apartment — three of them on the bed and the other on the floor. In another room, three men were on the floor. All were dressed in "normal street clothes," police said.

"It doesn't appear one person could do this," said Sullivan, adding that the apartment was in disarray, but there was no sign of a struggle.

Authorities said they found scales with drug residue in the apartment, leading them to believe the slayings were drug-related.

Police also said there was no sign that the murders were "ritualistic."

Commenting on reports that the deaths might be connected with the Rastafarian cult, one police spokesman said: "We've got nothing that indicates Rastafarians in any way."

That cult originated in Jamaica and worships the spirit of the late Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie. Members use huge amounts of marijuana as a part of religious observances.

City police said about 7,000 members of the 100,000-member group are in the city, and about 2,000 of them have been arrested for murder, extortion, assault and drug trafficking.

Neighbors say the street is a hotbed of narcotics trading, especially in "angel dust" — a hallucinogen also known as PCP — and cocaine.

"They're killing people out here," said one man, who refused to be identified. "There's money involved and I won't say anything else."

On Dec. 20 and on the same street, the bodies of three men, each shot in the back of the head, were found in what police said were drug-related killings.

Volcanic Eruption Leaves Path Of Death, Destruction In Java

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Clouds of poison gas and smoldering lava from a volcanic eruption in central Java hampered rescue teams trying to clear bodies from villages where fumes and lava flows killed at least 175 persons and injured 1,000, medical police spokesmen said today.

Police Lt. Col. Suprato said a total of 17,000 persons from six villages near the erupting Mount Sinila have been evacuated, but the eruption early Tuesday caught many in the Batur district asleep or brought them down as they tried to flee.

A reporter for the newspaper Sinar Harapan reported that the village of Pucukan and another one in the Dieng Mountains suffered worst from the eruption. He reported few gas masks were available and some rescue workers were killed by the fumes.

The gas and lava continued to spew from the old crater as rescue teams composed of soldiers, policemen and civilian volunteers attempted to clear the area. Suprato reported many dead bodies were sprawled on the streets and narrow paths of Pucukan.

It was Sinila's fourth eruption in 51 years and the first since 1959. The police spokesman said the blowoff was preceded by seven earth tremors and an underground explosion.

Local police and health centers set up emergency clinics and kitchens. All roads leading to the Dieng range were closed and vehicles for miles around were commandeered and rushed to the area to try to help with the rescue effort.

A search and rescue team of policemen and soldiers was dispatched to the stricken area from Jakarta, the Indonesian capital, and President Suharto ordered all available government aid to the area.

The Indonesian archipelago has at least 500 volcanoes, 127 of them active, and averages 10 eruptions a year. Mount Erap, in central Java not far from Sinila, is considered the most active, emitting hot lava and ashes almost every year. It is under constant observation.

The deadliest recorded eruption was that of Mount Tambora, on an island west of Bali, in 1815, when 92,000 people were killed.

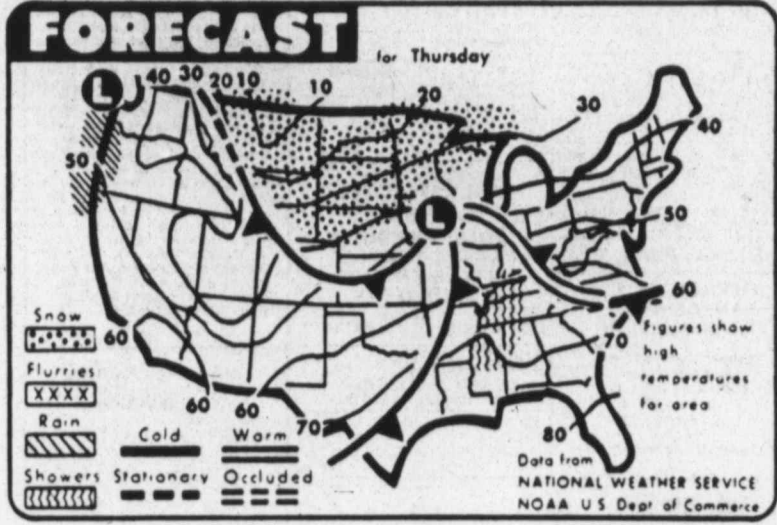

The most famous was that of Krakatoa, said to be nature's greatest modern explosion, on Aug. 27, 1883. Krakatoa and three smaller islands in the Sunda Strait between Java and Sumatra blew up, killing 36,000 persons. The explosions were heard 2,500 miles away, and the estimated 27 million tons of debris hurled into the atmosphere caused a drop in temperatures in the southern hemisphere.

Krakatoa is not extinct. It rumbled for several months last year, and scientists measured explosions equivalent to the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima. But no lives were lost.

Indonesia's most lethal recent eruption was that of Mount Agung, on Bali, in 1963, which killed at least 1,022 persons.

Baltimore Returns To Normal

BALTIMORE (AP) — With hundreds arrested for looting and curfew violations following a crippling snowstorm, Baltimore police said the city was slowly returning to normal today.

"Things have really quieted down to normal," said Officer Joseph Kaczynski. "We're trying to handle the calls we couldn't get to before. There are quite a few of them."

By this morning there had been 1,300 reports of burglary during the past 48 hours.

Between noon Tuesday and early this morning 186 persons were arrested for looting, burglary and breaking and entering, bringing the total to 382 for the past 48 hours. A total of 634 had been arrested for curfew violations.

Gov. Harry R. Hughes on Tuesday declared a state of emergency and reinforced a 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew imposed by Mayor William D. Schaefer for the second consecutive night. Hughes said some Baltimore judges had questioned Schaefer's authority to establish a curfew.

When asked if he thought Monday night's arrests might have been illegal, Hughes said, "I suppose that is a possibility, but I'm not going to pass on the legality of the questioning."

Police were encountering small groups of people standing on the streets Tuesday night, and "we're just arresting them," said Dennis Hill, a police spokesman.

Police Officer Michael Miller of the tactical unit was injured Tuesday night, shortly before the curfew went into effect, when he was hit in the head by a flying beer bottle at a street corner. He received several stitches and was released from the hospital.

Schaefer imposed the curfew Monday after looters broke into clothing, liquor, furniture and grocery stores. Police were virtually immobile in the 20 inches of snow which had fallen Sunday and Monday.

Some store owners, who said Tuesday they planned to spend the night in their establishments to guard against further break-ins, had urged Schaefer to reinstate the curfew.

Curfews also were imposed in Annapolis, Federalburg and Cambridge, primarily to allow for snow removal, but also to prevent looting.

Schaefer said he was "disgusted, disappointed and ashamed" of the looters.

"It's hard for me to figure out 'Why, Baltimore?' the mayor said. "Some say they're hungry but you can't eat a television, you can't eat whiskey."

Children Arrested For Hiring Friend To Kill Strict Father

CLEVELAND (AP) — John White, a strict father who made his two teen-agers observe a 9 p.m. curfew, walked into his living room after work and came face-to-face with his killer, a man who police allege was hired for $60 by White's children.

"He wouldn't let us do anything we wanted, like smoke pot," a police detective, who asked not to be named, quoted the children as saying.

Police said the children — a 17-year-old boy and a 14-year-old girl — described how they hid their father's body in a back room after the slaying on Feb. 9, then cashed his last paycheck and used his credit cards to go on a 10-day spending spree.

They spent $2,000 on televisions, video games and other amusements, as well as food and entertainment, police said.

The teen-agers were arrested Monday when they returned to their home in a blue-collar neighborhood in southwest Cleveland. They were being held in a detention home Tuesday, police said.

No charges have been filed against the children, both juveniles, "because the investigation is still going on," the detective said.

The detective said investigators have no doubt the two were involved in the killings.

"You could call it a confession if you want to," he said. "They told police the whole story of what they did, how it happened, how they used the money and credit cards. They told the whole thing."

Police said each blamed the other for hatching the plot.

Officers have issued an arrest warrant for aggravated murder for Gerome Watkins, 19, of Cleveland, who they said was a friend of the White children. He remained a fugitive Tuesday.

Police said the children paid Watkins $60 to kill their father.

Investigators said the killer apparently was sitting in the living room with a .38-caliber revolver in his lap when White walked through the front door from his job at a Ford Motor Co. plant.

The killer fired once, missing White and breaking a window, police said. Police said he fired again, striking White in the arm as he fled.

The killer followed White into the kitchen, where he was trying to open the kitchen door, and shot White in the head, police said.

Police said the son, nervous about the killing, left the house, but the daughter waited in another room until the fatal shot was fired.

White's body was discovered Sunday when his relatives called police after they were unable to contact him.

Divorced from the children's mother 10 years ago, White, 41, kept three Bibles in his living room, set the evening curfew and opposed his children's desire to quit school, police said.

Neighbors told reporters that White frequently took the children on outings and often walked them to school in the morning, only to have them return home after he went to work.

Army Identifies Soldier Killed In WWII

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The U.S. Army designated him "Unknown X-9446" in September, when a construction crew unearthed his remains in Metz, France.

Now he has been identified as a Kansas who left for World War II in July 1944 and was killed four months later near Metz, about 25 miles south of the Luxembourg border.

His remains are being flown to Kansas City this week, back to a family that knew him as Ira LeRoy Smith.

Now his widow, who never remarried, says she can accept his death as real — or at least try to. Even when she was interviewed Tuesday, Maurine Smith never quite said the word "dead."

"I was afraid he was," she said, referring to the years his body was missing. "I just didn't know."

Mrs. Smith was born in Emporia and, like her husband, raised there. She now lives in Kansas City.

Although his remains have been found, it is not known how he died. The Army has told Mrs. Smith that her husband died in action Nov. 18, 1944, but that no other details were available.

Mrs. Smith, however, said her husband's army buddies told her after the war that they had seen him killed when a jeep he was riding in went over a land mine.

Despite the confusion, she's just relieved that Smith can be buried, she said.

There will be a memorial service at 2 p.m. Friday at the cemetery at Fort Leavenworth.

Smith's son is now 35 and a commodities broker for Carhill Investments in Kansas City.

"I was happy," he said, referring to the news that the uncertainty finally had ended. "I didn't know him, and this makes him seem a little more real."

Lawyer Says Tison Shocked By Killings

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A defense attorney claims Ricky Tison was "shocked and appalled" in witnessing the shotgun slayings of four people, including a 22-month-old child and a teen-age girl.

Tison, 19, previously convicted of assisting in the escape of his father and another convicted killer from the Arizona State Prison, went on trial on murder charges Tuesday in Yuma County Superior Court.

Trial began before a jury of 10 women and four men, including two alternates, after Superior Court Judge Douglas Keddie granted a motion to separate the murder trials of Ricky Tison and his brother Raymond, 20.

The Tison brothers are accused in the slayings of Marine Sgt. John F. Lyons, 24, of Omaha, Neb.; his wife Donna, also 24; their son Christopher; and Lyons' niece, 15-year-old Teresa Tyson of Las Vegas, Nev.

The four were slain last Aug. 1 in a desert area south of Quartzsite, Ariz., in northern Yuma County.

Prosecutors Push Trial Of Dederich

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Prosecutors still want Synanon founder Charles Dederich tried along with two of the sect's "Imperial Marines" on charges of placing a rattlesnake in the mailbox of lawyer Paul Morantz.

Morantz, who had won a $300,000 lawsuit against the alcohol and drug rehabilitation commune, was bitten on the hand last Oct. 10 when he reached into his mailbox. He has since recovered from the bite.

Deputy District Attorney Mike Carroll explained after a brief court session Tuesday that the charges against all three are "very similar."

"Common sense and judicial economy make a single trial the most reasonable course to follow," said co-prosecutor John Watson.

Dederich is charged with conspiracy to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon in one count and solicitation to commit murder in a second count.

Lance Kenton, 21, son of bandleader Stan Kenton, and Joseph Musico, 29, face the same conspiracy charges, plus another count charging the actual assault with a 4½-foot rattlesnake whose warning rattle had been removed.

"We do not oppose consolidation of the cases for the purpose of preliminary hearing," said Douglas Dalton, lawyer for Kenton and Musico. He added that he might seek a separation of the two cases if they go to trial.

Municipal Court Judge Vincent N. Erickson scheduled a preliminary hearing for April 18 and set March 29 for arguments by prosecutors to consolidate the two cases.

Commissioners Approve Plans

Approval to build a 200-room Holiday Inn near the Memorial Civic Center has been granted to a Henderson developer, the board of commissioners of the Urban Renewal Agency announced Tuesday.

Billy Ray Wilder was told in a letter dated Feb. 2 that he has been issued a 20-year license agreement by the Holiday Inn corporation to open a franchise on a five-acre tract of land located at Ninth Street and Avenue Q.

Wilder is to meet with Holiday Inn representatives in two weeks to consummate this agreement, according to board member Robert Stack, deputy director of Urban Renewal.

Commissioners noted the acceptance letter and agreed to return to Wilder $13,068 in forfeiture money (for the land) upon receiving a copy of the franchise agreement.

The board also agreed to decide at a later date the terms by which Wilder must carry out construction plans.

Razorbacks Stun T-Tech Capture SWC Share With Final Basket

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Sidney Moncrief knew it all along, as did Eddie Sutton and Gerald Myers and those other 8,000 or so fans sitting in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Yep, when Moncrief put up a shot with just one second left on the clock and Texas Tech leading 65-64, it was obvious to everyone that the ball was going in the hole.

No questions asked.
The way Arkansas, which hit a remarkable 79 per cent of its shots as a team from the field (the second highest ever by a NCAA team and the best in SWC history) Tuesday night, it couldn't have gone any other way.

"I knew it was going in when it came off my wrist," said a jubilant Moncrief, moments after the Arkansas Razorback had beaten Tech 66-65. "It came off my wrist real nice."

Sutton, the head coach of the Hoggies, agreed: "He (Moncrief) is the man we wanted to get the ball to in that situation. Even though it looked like he was triple-teamed, I knew when it let loose it would go in. He had the touch."

Despite playing what Raider coach Myers called "excellent defense on our part," Myers himself looking more dejected than even after the overtime loss to Texas Saturday afternoon pointed out: "It was one of those kind of shots that's just shot so well it has to go in. I saw it bounce real soft and I knew it would go in."

The victory, along with a stunning upset by SMU over league-leading Texas, tied the Hogs and the Hogs or first place in the Southwest Conference. It was the third straight year the Hogs have either won or tied for the SWC title.

"That's even nicer than the win," continued Moncrief. "I knew at the start of the year we had the makings of a good team, but there were some people that thought we wouldn't finish that well."

Well, obviously Sidney right, the critics wrong.

When Raider Jeff Taylor stuffed home a dunk shot with 48 seconds left in the game to give Tech a 65-64 lead, the Hogs got the ball and it was obvious they were going for the last shot.

And it didn't take a Napoleon to figure out U.A.'s battle plan: Get the ball to Sidney.

"They had me shut off pretty well," said Moncrief about defenders Ben Hill and HOGS Page 4

Longhorns Fall To Mustangs

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer
Southern Methodist, with its coach under fire and playing only for pride, took a season's worth of frustrations out on the Texas Longhorns Tuesday night.

And moments after SMU had stunned Texas in Dallas, 81-66, Arkansas' Sidney Moncrief with two seconds to go made one of his typically clutch baskets which, combined with a remarkable 79 percent shooting night, brought the Razorbacks a thrilling 66-65 decision over Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Those happenings combined to make 10th-ranked Texas and 12th-ranked Arkansas co-champions of the Southwest Conference for the second straight year, tying for the crown with 13-3 league marks.

The last big night of the regular season turned out to be one of the more entertaining evenings of the league season.

In addition to the doings in Dallas and Lubbock, Baylor's Vinnie Johnson scored 50 points — one short of the league record — to help the Bears rout TCU, 109-72. That pushed the Baylor into a fourth-place tie with Texas Tech and Baylor won the ensuing coin flip to determine placings for the opening round of the SWC tournament Saturday.

Texas A&M, meanwhile, closed out its regular season campaign with a morale boosting win over Rice, 92-60.

All of the exciting happenings, however, did not give Texas coach Abe Lemons a See LONGHORNS Page 4

Coleman Slips Through Tech Recruiting Net

Texas Tech this morning picked up signed national letters-of-intent from ten Texas schoolboys, but one which Raider coaches failed to land caused the big surprise.

Royce Coleman, the runningback who led Plainview to the state playoffs, signed this morning with Oklahoma, in a move which was not expected. Coleman had signed a Southwest Conference letter with Tech last week and supposedly, OU was not in the picture. But, over the weekend, he visited the Norman campus, came home, went to visit his brother in Clovis, "to get away from things and make up my mind," then this morning picked Soonerland.

SWC athletes signed conference letters last week, but they were not binding, nationwide. That brought on the second scattering of college coaches today to get the second verification of intercollegiate commitment.

Tech, shortly before noon, had signed ten players to the national documents. Coleman, a 200-pound runningback on the Avalanche-Journal's all-South Plains team gave his reasons for the sudden changeabout.

"Well, you know, I liked the weights — whatever you call it — facilities, and the dorms (at OU). The people around up there were real nice.

"It (the decision to journey to Clovis) was mine," Coleman told the A-J this morning. "I was trying to get away from all these people, trying to think it over for myself. It's hard, all those people bothering you.

"No, they didn't offer me anything. Besides, I have a couple of sisters up there. I think it's the best for me. They're Big-8 and they've always been in the top (list); I like to be in the top at all times.

"I called him (his brother) when I got back from OU Sunday," said Royce. "I was getting fed up with it. I tried to get away from it; I wanted to make up my own mind. I'm the one going to be sweating and working hard. Nobody else is going to have to do that for me.

Tech's list of commitments included several other runningbacks, including Fred Briefbarth, a 6-4, 210-pounder from South Garland, and Eddie Tillman, a 190-pounder from Lewisville.

Sports Notes

Dickerson Ends Long Campaign

By The Associated Press
Eric Dickerson of Sealy, the top running back in the state, signed a national letter of intent today with Southern Methodist University, which had the best football recruiting campaign in the Southwest Conference.

Dickerson's signing squelched rumors that Oklahoma still had a shot at the 6-foot-3 running back, who gained over 6,000 yards in his high school career.

Dickerson refused to meet the press at his signing with SMU Coach Ron Meyer. However, Sealy Coach Ralph Harris said: "A lot of kids have been recruited hard in this state but nobody has ever been recruited as heavy as Eric. The President has somebody to write his speeches and the governor, too. Maybe that's what Eric should have done."

Harris said Dickerson believed he was misquoted in newspaper articles concerning his much-publicized purchase of a new sports car. Harris said Dickerson felt he could not be misquoted if his words were recorded by radio and television equipment.

"He had no social life — that was all gone," Harris said. "There was no way he could do anything. They knew all his numbers, his friend's addresses."

Harris compared Dickerson's case with that of former Dallas Cowboy star Duane Thomas.

"Maybe Duane Thomas decided it was better if he didn't say anything," Harris said. "That may have hurt him (Thomas) I don't know."

Dickerson, who has 9.4 speed, rushed for 1,900 yards last year as Sealy won the Class 2A state championship. He gained 311 yards and scored four touchdowns in the title game against Wylie.

Also signing with the Mustangs were Charles Wagoper of Dallas Carter and Ed O'Brien of Pasadena Dobie, two more excellent running backs.

All-State running back Craig James of Houston Stratford awaited Meyer's caravan to sign with the Mustangs later in the morning.

NCAA Waiting For Two To Land

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Two hotshot football prospects who mysteriously disappeared in a private plane four days ago must surely land today to sign a national letter of intent, figures the NCAA.

And the minute they show up they'll become the first case investigated in an aggressive new crackdown on recruiting violations.

"They haven't been seen around town or around their schools since they took off in the private aircraft," NCAA enforcement director David Birst said Tuesday, on the eve of national letter of intent signing day.

He declined to identify the prospects or say where they're from but added, "Their families say they don't know where they are and their friends say they don't know where they are."

Significantly, the families don't appear worried about the missing young men and haven't bothered to go looking for them.

Their mysterious disappearance is one of many "provocative things" NCAA investigators have picked up since they spread out across the country three weeks ago with a list of the top 100 prospects. It was the first time investigators had hit the recruiting trail alongside coaches and prospects for a first-hand look at the rules they are pledged to enforce.

"I think we've developed some information that will lead to cases and appear before the Committee on Infractions," Birst said. "From our point of view, it looks like the program is going to be a big success." For example, the NCAA has a description of the plane the two missing recruits took off in.

"We intend to find out who owns the plane, where the kids went and who paid their expenses to get there," Birst said. "There could be a connection between the plane and the school they sign with." To "hide" a prospect from rival coaches just before national signing day is very much against NCAA rules.

The new program, first revealed in an Associated Press story Feb. 1, has evidently acted as a strong deterrent against cheating, Birst said.

"We found out a lot of coaches were carrying the AP article around with them and showing it to the prospects," he said.

But not every lead and tip is leading to pay dirt. In one instance, investigators learned two high school students had witnessed a coach stuff a roll of cash into a blue-chipper's pocket and say, "Merry Christmas."

"We had two guys who happened to be in that area and so we talked to the students who supposedly saw the whole thing that very day," Birst said. "They each gave stories that were very consistent with each other and that clearly showed it was impossible for the allegation to be true."

The coach stuffed the kid's pocket with cash as he walked off the field after an all-star game, the two students swore.

Slow Down At Its Utmost

SHELDON, Iowa (AP) — There were only three shots taken and no points scored in regulation time as Melvin outscored Sibley, two baskets to one, to take a 4-2 victory in a high school girls district playoff final Tuesday night.

Deb Mow scored both baskets for Melvin, now 23-0 and ranked No. 18 in the state by the Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union. Debbie Platte hit a tying bucket in the first overtime for Sibley, which ended the season with a 17-4 record.

Mow, averaging 43.7 points a game, got the winning layup with 1:11 to go in the fourth extra session, and two last-second shots by Sibley missed.

Melvin took the ball out to start the game, and Coach Roger Talsler had his players stall for the entire first half, missing two shots just before halftime.

Sibley Coach Henry Eckhoff used the same delay tactics for most of the second half before turning the ball over with four minutes left. Melvin then returned the "deep freeze" and again missed a shot at the final buzzer, leaving the score 0-0.

"I figured that was our best chance to win," said Talsler. "If teams play a zone or hang back against us, we usually play a stall. Our tallest girl is only about 5-10."

Westphal Gives Suns Big Win

By The Associated Press

It was the kind of situation Paul Westphal craves — five minutes to go and the ballgame up for grabs.

"On this team we don't pick out one guy and say we're going to go to him down the stretch," said Westphal, the all-star guard of the Phoenix Suns. "We have many guys who can score and we run plays for everybody. But I do like to see the ball at that time. I respond well to pressure."

Westphal responded by scoring 10 of his game-high 36 points in the final 4:50 Tuesday night, leading the Suns to a 117-107 decision over the New York Knicks, who suffered their seventh consecutive National Basketball Association defeat — their longest losing streak since the 1965-66 season.

The loss dropped New York into last place in the Atlantic Division, one percentage point behind the Boston Celtics.

Phoenix, meanwhile, climbed within one-half game of first place Seattle in the Pacific Division race. The San Antonio Spurs beat the Seattle SuperSonics 118-102, while the Los Angeles Lakers dropped one game off the pace by losing to the Golden State Warriors 102-91.

In other NBA games, the Chicago Bulls edged the Portland Trail Blazers 99-97 and the Atlanta Hawks beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 119-109. Houston at Washington was postponed because of snow.

It may have been a costly victory for Phoenix, however, as forward Walter Davis suffered a dislocation of the little finger on his left hand during the third period.

Five stitches were needed to close the wound, but X rays revealed no broken bones. Davis is expected to be sidelined 10 days to two weeks.

The Suns led 58-48 at halftime and by 16 early in the third period before a Knicks' surge saw them pull in front 86-85 early in the final period. They were still in front 101-98 with five minutes to play before Westphal took control.

His fancy scoop shot was followed by a three-point play by Truck Robinson, putting Phoenix ahead to stay, 103-101. Westphal then contributed three baskets and a pair of free throws as the Suns outscored New York 19-6 in the final five minutes.

"Westy had been in a three-week slump and his confidence was shaken," said MacLeod. "But that ended about 10 days ago, and you can see he's back to normal."

"Truck had just joined us," explained Westphal. "I was trying so hard to make sure he fit in that I was ignoring my own game. Now I think we've all gotten over that."

Robinson added 23 points for the Suns, who outscored New York 27-9 from the foul line. Westphal had a game-high 12 assists.

Earl Monroe and Toby Knight topped the Knicks with 22 points apiece.

Spurs 118, Sonics 102
George Gervin scored 38 points as San Antonio dealt Seattle its fifth consecutive road loss. Larry Kenon added 23 points and 15 rebounds for the Spurs, who led by as many as 24 points.

USAC Blames Allison

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Donnie Allison waited too long to protect his lead, and when he finally made his move, it violated "a gentleman's agreement" to give the trailing driver an escape route, says Cale Yarborough of the last-lap crash in Sunday's Daytona 500.

Yarborough was interviewed by telephone from his Sardis, S.C., home after officials of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing placed Donnie Allison on six months' probation because of the incident. Yarborough was not disciplined for the crash, but he and Donnie and Bobby Allison were each fined $6,000 for fighting afterward.

NASCAR exonerated Bobby Allison of any involvement in the accident, even though Yarborough's key contention had been "they double-teamed me."

The Allison's had only a terse statement.

"We are shocked by the amount of the fines and equally shocked at the unfairness of the whole thing. We have requested a fullscale hearing and legal counsel is considering further action. No further statement will be issued until the hearing."

That statement aside, Yarborough read the NASCAR action as complete vindication.

at that point. Both cars collided several times before ricocheting off the retaining wall outside Turn 3 and into the infield.

Coleman Slips Through Tech Recruiting Net

Texas Tech this morning picked up signed national letters-of-intent from ten Texas schoolboys, but one which Raider coaches failed to land caused the big surprise.

Royce Coleman, the runningback who led Plainview to the state playoffs, signed this morning with Oklahoma, in a move which was not expected.

Coleman had signed a Southwest Conference letter with Tech last week and supposedly, OU was not in the picture. But, over the weekend, he visited the Norman campus, came home, went to visit his brother in Clovis, "to get away from things and make up my mind," then this morning picked Soonerland.

SWC athletes signed conference letters last week, but they were not binding, nationwide. That brought on the second scattering of college coaches today to get the second verification of intercollegiate commitment.

Tech, shortly before noon, had signed ten players to the national documents.

Coleman, a 200-pound runningback on the Avalanche-Journal's all-South Plains team gave his reasons for the sudden changeabout.

"Well, you know, I liked the weights — whatever you call it — facilities, and the dorms (at OU). The people around up there were real nice.

"It (the decision to journey to Clovis) was mine," Coleman told the A-J this morning. "I was trying to get away from all these people, trying to think it over for myself. It's hard, all those people bothering you.

"No, they didn't offer me anything. Besides, I have a couple of sisters up there. I think it's the best for me. They're Big-8 and they've always been in the top (list); I like to be in the top at all times.

"I called him (his brother) when I got back from OU Sunday," said Royce. "I was getting fed up with it. I tried to get away from it all; I wanted to make up my own mind. I'm the one going to be sweating and working hard. Nobody else is going to have to do that for me."

Tech's list of commitments included several other runningbacks, including Fred Briefbarth, a 6-4, 210-pounder from South Garland, and Eddie Tillman, a 190-pounder from Lewisville.

TECH SIGNERS
 Fred Briefbarth, RB, 6-4, 205, South Garland; Van Hughes, TE, 6-4, 225, Axtell; Jim Hart, QB, 5-11, 185, Irving; David Smith, LB, Mesquite, 6-2, 215; Brian Williamson, RB-WR, 6-2, 180, Arlington; David Joekel, OL, 6-3, 230, Arlington; Dale Brown, RB-WR, 5-9, 160, Lewisville; Eddie Tillman, RB, 6-2, 190, Lewisville; Jessie Garcia, kicker, 175, Lewisville; Shane Crosby, 6-3, 225, OL-LB, Upperville.

Sports Notes

Dickerson Ends Long Campaign

Eric Dickerson of Sealy, the top running back in the state, signed a national letter of intent today with Southern Methodist University, which had the best football recruiting campaign in the Southwest Conference.

Dickerson's signing squelched rumors that Oklahoma still had a shot at the 6-foot-3 running back, who gained over 6,000 yards in his high school career.

Dickerson refused to meet the press at his signing with SMU Coach Ron Meyer. However, Sealy Coach Ralph Harris said: "A lot of kids have been recruited hard in this state but nobody has ever been recruited as heavy as Eric. The President has somebody to write his speeches and the governor, too. Maybe that's what Eric should have done."

Harris said Dickerson believed he was misquoted in newspaper articles concerning his much-publicized purchase of a new sports car. Harris said Dickerson felt he could not be misquoted if his words were recorded by radio and television equipment.

"He had no social life — that was all gone," Harris said. "There was no way he could do anything. They knew all his numbers, his friend's addresses."

Harris compared Dickerson's case with that of former Dallas Cowboy star Duane Thomas.

"Maybe Duane Thomas decided it was better if he didn't say anything," Harris said. "That may have hurt him (Thomas) I don't know."

Dickerson, who has 9.4 speed, rushed for 1,900 yards last year as Sealy won the Class 2A state championship. He gained 311 yards and scored four touchdowns in the title game against Wylie.

Also signing with the Mustangs were Charles Wagoner of Dallas Carter and Ed'Brien of Pasadena Dobie, two more excellent running backs.

All-State running back Craig James of Houston Stratford awaited Meyer's caravan to sign with the Mustangs later in the morning.

NCAA Waiting For Two To Land

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Two hotshot football prospects who mysteriously disappeared in a private plane four days ago must surely land today to sign a national letter of intent, figures the NCAA.

And the minute they show up they'll become the first case investigated in an aggressive new crackdown on recruiting violations.

"They haven't been seen around town or around their schools since they took off in the private aircraft," NCAA enforcement director David Berst said Tuesday, on the eve of national letter of intent signing day.

He declined to identify the prospects or say where they're from but added, "Their families say they don't know where they are and their friends say they don't know where they are."

Significantly, the families don't appear worried about the missing young men and haven't bothered to go looking for them.

Their mysterious disappearance is one of many "provocative things" NCAA investigators have picked up since they spread out across the country three weeks ago with a list of the top 100 prospects. It was the first time investigators had hit the recruiting trail alongside coaches and prospects for a first-hand look at the rules they are pledged to enforce.

"I think we've developed some information that will lead to cases and appearances before the Committee on Infractions," Berst said. "From our point of view, it looks like the program is going to be a big success." For example, the NCAA has a description of the plane the two missing recruits took off in.

"We intend to find out who owns the plane, where the kids went and who paid their expenses to get there," Berst said. "There could be a connection between the plane and the school they sign with." To "hide" a prospect from rival coaches just before national signing day is very much against NCAA rules.

The new program, first revealed in an Associated Press story Feb. 1, has evidently acted as a strong deterrent against cheating, Berst said.

"We found out a lot of coaches were carrying the AP article around with them and showing it to the prospects," he said.

But not every lead and tip is leading to pay dirt. In one instance, investigators learned two high school students had witnessed a coach stuff a roll of cash into a blue-chipper's pocket and say, "Merry Christmas."

"We had two guys who happened to be in that area and so we talked to the students who supposedly saw the whole thing that very day," Berst said. "They each gave stories that were very consistent with each other and that clearly showed it was impossible for the allegation to be true."

The coach stuffed the kid's pocket with cash as he walked off the field after an all-star game, the two students swore.

Slow Down At Its Utmost

SHELDON, Iowa (AP) — There were only three shots taken and no points scored in regulation time as Melvin outscored Sibley, two baskets to one, to take a 4-2 victory in a high school girls district playoff final Tuesday night.

Deb Mow scored both baskets for Melvin, now 23-0 and ranked No. 18 in the state by the Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union. Debbie Platte hit a tying bucket in the first overtime for Sibley, which ended the season with a 1-1 record.

Mow, averaging 43.7 points a game, got the winning layup with 1:11 to go in the fourth extra session, and two last-second shots by Sibley missed.

Melvin took the ball out to start the game, and Coach Roger Talsar had his players stall for the entire first half, missing two shots just before halftime.

Sibley Coach Henry Eckhoff used the same delay tactics for most of the second half before turning the ball over with four minutes left. Melvin then returned the "deep freeze" and again missed a shot at the final buzzer, leaving the score 0-0.

"I figured that was our best chance to win," said Talsar. "If teams play a zone or hang back against us, we usually play a stall. Our tallest girl is only about 5-10."

Westphal Gives Suns Big Win

By The Associated Press

It was the kind of situation Paul Westphal craves — five minutes to go and the ballgame up for grabs.

"On this team we don't pick out one guy and say we're going to go to him down the stretch," said Westphal, the all-star guard of the Phoenix Suns. "We have many guys who can score and we run plays for everybody. But I do like to see the ball at that time. I respond well to pressure."

Westphal responded by scoring 10 of his game-high 36 points in the final 4:50 Tuesday night, leading the Suns to a 117-107 decision over the New York Knicks, who suffered their seventh consecutive National Basketball Association defeat — their longest losing streak since the 1965-66 season.

The loss dropped New York to last place in the Atlantic Division, one percentage point behind the Boston Celtics.

Phoenix, meanwhile, climbed within one-half game of first place Seattle in the Pacific Division race. The San Antonio Spurs beat the Seattle SuperSonics 118-102, while the Los Angeles Lakers dropped one game off the pace by losing to the Golden State Warriors 102-91.

In other NBA games, the Chicago Bulls edged the Portland Trail Blazers 99-97 and the Atlanta Hawks beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 119-109. Houston at Washington was postponed because of snow.

It may have been a costly victory for Phoenix, however, as forward Walter Davis suffered a dislocation of the little finger on his left hand during the third period.

Five stitches were needed to close the wound, but X rays revealed no broken bones. Davis is expected to be sidelined 10 days to two weeks.

The Suns led 59-48 at halftime and by 16 early in the third period before a Knicks surge saw them pull in front 86-85 early in the final period. They were still in front 101-98 with five minutes to play before Westphal took control.

His fancy scoop shot was followed by a three-point play by Truck Robinson, putting Phoenix ahead to stay, 103-101. Westphal then contributed three baskets and a pair of free throws as the Suns outscored New York 19-6 in the final five minutes.

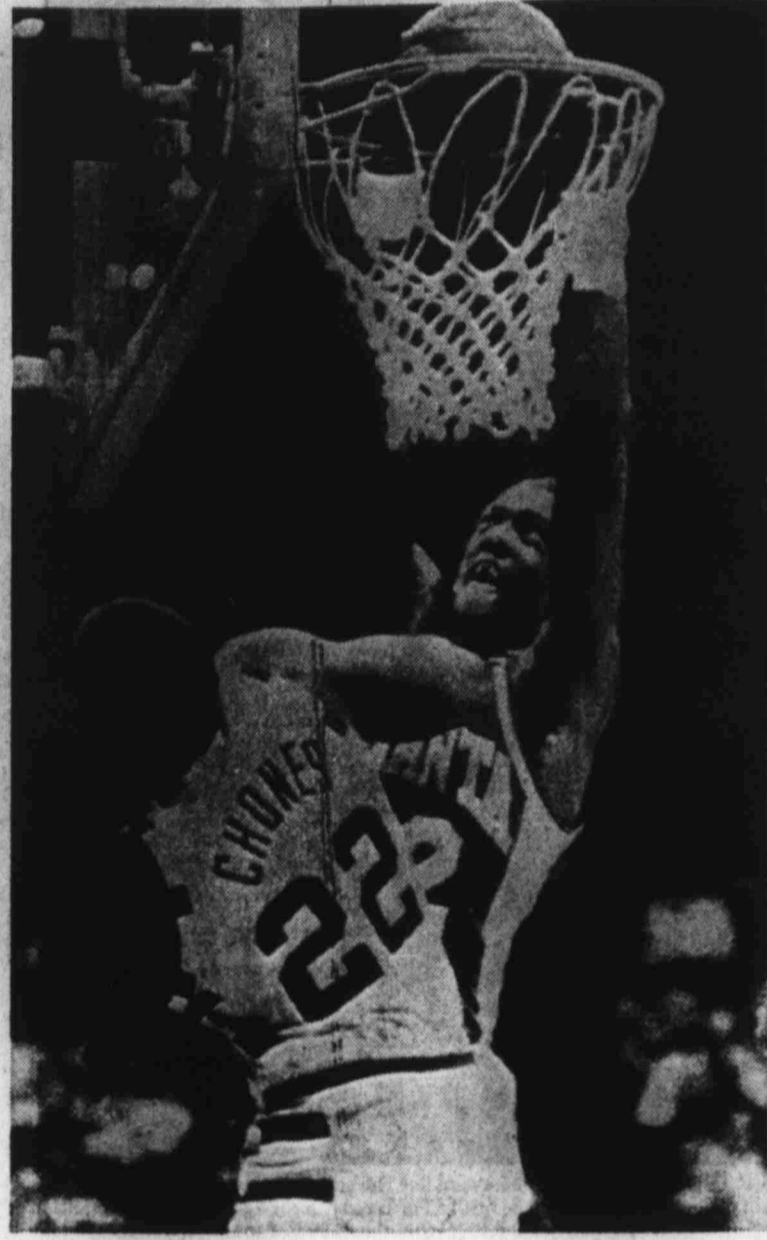

"Westy had been in a three-week slump and his confidence was shaken," said MacLeod. "But that ended about 10 days ago, and you can see he's back to normal."

"Truck had just joined us," explained Westphal. "I was trying so hard to make sure he fit in that I was ignoring my own game. Now I think we've all gotten over that."

Robinson added 23 points for the Suns, who outscored New York 27-9 from the foul line. Westphal had a game-high 12 assists.

Earl Monroe and Toby Knight topped the Knicks with 22 points apiece.

Suns 118, Sonics 102
 George Gervin scored 38 points as San Antonio dealt Seattle its fifth consecutive road loss. Larry Kenon added 23 points and 15 rebounds for the Spurs, who led by as many as 24 points.

USAC Blames Allison

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Donnie Allison waited too long to protect his lead, and when he finally made his move, it violated "a gentleman's agreement" to give the trailing driver an escape route, says Cale Yarborough of the last-lap crash in Sunday's Daytona 500.

Yarborough was interviewed by telephone from his Sardis, S.C., home after officials of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing placed Donnie Allison on six months' probation because of the incident. Yarborough was not disciplined for the crash, but he and Donnie and Bobby Allison were each fined $6,000 for fighting afterward.

NASCAR exonerated Bobby Allison of any involvement in the accident, even though Yarborough's key contention had been "they double-teamed me."

The Allison's had only a terse statement.

"We are shocked by the amount of the fines and equally shocked at the unfairness of the whole thing. We have requested a fullscale hearing and legal counsel is considering further action. No further statement will be issued until the hearing."

That statement aside, Yarborough read the NASCAR action as complete vindication for him.

He explained, "It's always been kind of a gentleman's agreement that you can use all the race track you want when you are out front, but don't never leave a man without an escape route. He's gotta go somewhere. When a man's up alongside of you, don't put him out of the race track."

"That's what happened to me. If I had been behind him, he could have gone anywhere he wanted to. I would have come in second, and I wouldn't have had any grip at all. But when I get beside a man, it's a different situation."

When Yarborough veered back up on the track after being blocked into the grass, he said he wasn't trying to hit anybody with his car; he was just out of control at that point.

Both cars collided several times before ricocheting off the retaining wall outside Turn 3 and into the infield.

"We never had control, we couldn't shoot, we stood around, we threw the ball away and we didn't jump," said Johnson. "When everybody has a night like that, it's the coach's fault. We weren't ready to play. It was horrible."

A victory over SMU would have given Texas the undisputed league crown, but Brad Branson and Phil Hale opened a 10-point lead at intermission and the Longhorns could get no closer than seven in the second half.

"The team just played a great game," said SMU coach Sonny Allen, whose job has reportedly been in jeopardy because of the Mustangs' lackluster year. "Texas is a great team and they may have been down a little, but we hit our shots and that was the difference."

The game in Waco almost produced an SWC scoring record. Johnson, the conference's leading point producer, left the game with 1:48 to play needing three points to tie the league mark of 51.

Once the Baylor coaching staff discovered Johnson was so close to the record, he was sent back into the game with 1:26 left. He made a basket and then had a one-and-one free throw opportunity with 10 seconds left. Two free shots would have given him the record, but he missed the first one.

The SWC tournament opens Saturday with Baylor (15-11) hosting TCU (1-14) and Texas Tech (17-9) at home against Rice (7-19), a team that upset the Red Raiders earlier in the year.

and Geoff Huston. "I knew I couldn't drive all the way to the basket, so I just tried to get as close as possible before I shot."

"I didn't want to take one from as far away as I did, but I just couldn't get any closer."

Moncrief ended the night by hitting 10-13 shots from the field and 5-6 free throws for 25 points. While, as a team, the Hogs canned 27-34. In the first half alone, the Hogs were 15-17.

It was the second time this season Sutton's team has hit more than 80 percent of its shots in a half. Against Baylor, the Hogs hit 83.3.

Sutton, saying that he might just go ahead and send SMU coach Sonny Allen a thank you letter after the season's end, said he knew the Ponies had upset UT with about 10 minutes left to go.

"I called a timeout about then (the 10-minute mark) and called the team over," said Sutton. "I told them what had happened and said it would really be ashamed if we got upset. . . it's something we'd regret."

Until Tech had its second-half surge, Sutton said he had pondered whether to tell his team or not.

After the news, Sutton said the players really responded.

Arkansas went into the lockerroom at the first intermission with a 33-27 lead, thanks, obviously to the 15-17 shooting performance. By reeling off 6 unanswered points on a pair of free throws and a bucket by U.S. Reed and a 4-footer by Steve Schall, Arkansas had its largest lead of the game, 10 points.

But Kent Williams connected on layup and Ralph Brewster stuffed the ball with 14 seconds left to cut UA's lead to 6.

Tech took its first lead since early in the first half when freshman David Little hit back-to-back jumpers to put the Raiders on top 39-37.

Arkansas showed signs up pulling away when it got up by 7 on Tech at the 9:19 mark after Moncrief and Reed scored 6 unanswered points. But after that surge, Tech outscored UA 13-9. During that spurt, Hill, who ended the night with 21 points, hit 10 points.

"I thought Ben (Hill) played about as well as he could," said Myers. "It's hard to play against one of the best players in college basketball."

Myers, saying the loss was "a big one for many different reasons", was quick to take the blame for the setback. Tech's third in a row. "I've got to blame myself," the coach said. "We didn't seem to know how to end it. We forced some shots and gave up the big one to Moncrief."

The loss drops Tech to 9-7 in the conference race and into a tie with Baylor for fourth place. In a coin flip after the game the Raiders lost and will now face seventh-place finisher Rice Saturday night in Lubbock Coliseum.

Arkansas, ranked tenth in the Associated Press poll, finished the conference race with a 13-3 mark.

Baseball Around Corner

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Get ready for Baseball '79. The possibilities for the coming season are awesome. Here we are in February with the first ball yet to be thrown in anger and already we have had some verbal show-downs.

Consider the developments of the last few weeks:

—Carl Yastrzemski, age 39, has told the Boston Red Sox that he's sorry, but a $265,000 annual salary, to which he agreed just one year ago, won't be enough to lure him back for another summer. He'll just stay home and do some fishin' until the Red Sox can come up with a fatter contract to replace the one he's already signed.

—Yaz's beat hit deaf ears in Fenway Park's executive suite, but did strike a resonant chord with Red Sox pitcher Dennis Eckersley, who chimed in with a hearty "Me too."

—Rusty Staub, almost 35, has planted a chef's hat on his head at a jaunty angle and told the Detroit Tigers that unless they guarantee his future beyond the 1980 expiration of his contract, he'll become a full-time restaurateur this summer instead of a full-time designated hitter.

—Garry Templeton, considerably younger than either Yaz or Staub, informed the St. Louis Cardinals that he was prepared to find other employment unless they could turn more of Gussie Busch's beer profits over to him to play shortstop. The fact that his batting average dipped from .322 to .280 last year and that he had led the majors with 40 errors was, of course, immaterial.

—Joel Youngblood, who has never been a regular anywhere and batted exactly 266 times last season, rejected the New York Mets' salary offer of $75,000. A $25,000 raise, he said, was insufficient. He is demanding $100,000 and will go after it in arbitration this week.

—The two league presidents, in a gesture of friendship brought on no doubt by Valentine's Day, sent letters to all their umpires informing them that unless their contracts were signed and returned immediately, they too could seek other jobs. The umpires have turned their contract negotiations over to attorney Richie Phillips, who inflicted a memorable one-day strike on the majors last summer.

—And to top it all off, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn decided that it was perfectly all right for George Steinbrenner to turn over $500,000 of New York Yankee cash to Charlie Finley for a couple of Oakland minor leaguers. That was only two weeks after Kahn decided that it wouldn't be right for Gene Autry to pay him and California Angel money to Minnesota's seven-time batting champion Rod Carew.

The question here is whether the cash and more of winter has turned all of the gray matter in baseball to mush.

Yastrzemski and Eckersley, both who signed agreements for 1979, need a lesson in the sanctity of contracts and Youngblood could use one in baseball economics. How much would the Met bench hand ask for if he had produced the way Yaz and Eckersley have?

Kuhn's action was a study in conflicting decisions by the commissioner. How, he was asked, could he discourage the use of cash in a deal for a superstar like Carew, and then permit half a million dollars change hands for two minor leaguers?

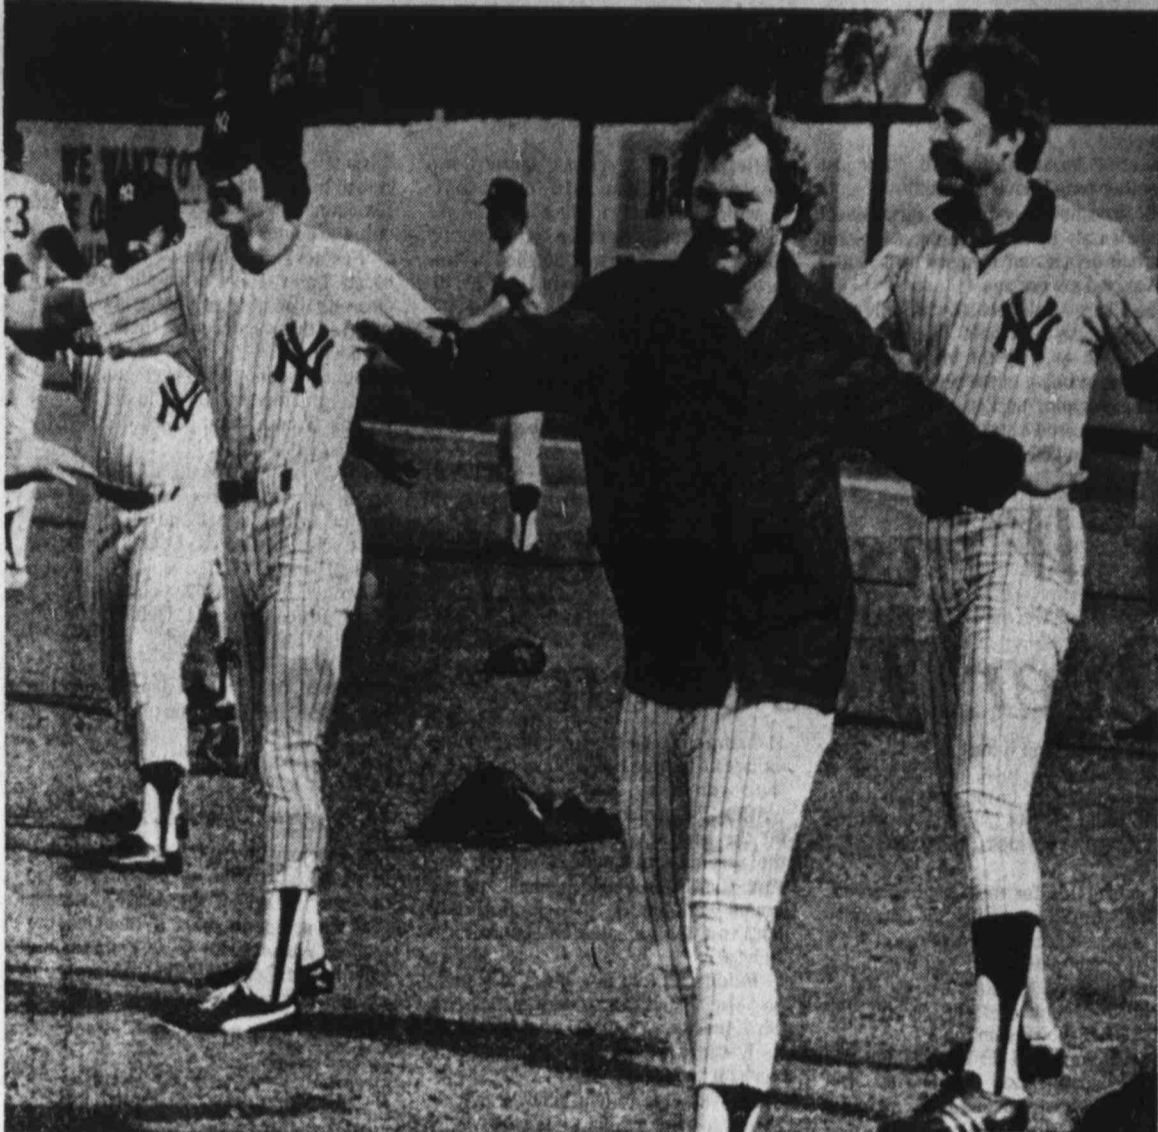

"The Carew case was special," explained the commissioner. "I felt a deal for Carew involving substantial cash would not be good. It was a matter of judgment."

Nonetheless, the outcome was that minor leaguers Bruce Robinson and Greg Cochran earned $500,000 for Finley while an established star like Carew added nothing to Minnesota owner Calvin Griffith's bank account when he was peddled.

The umpire matter could become troublesome. The men in blue are in no mood for trifling after their abortive strike last season and the letter from the league offices certainly didn't soothe their psyches.

There is a solution, offered annually by a press room wag at baseball's winter meetings. Every year, he posts a small announcement on the bulletin board. This is how it reads:

"The California State League announced today that because of financial considerations, it will operate next season without umpires."

LSU Ends Long Drought

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — When Louisiana State University last won a Southeastern Conference basketball championship, it was 1954. Chevrolets listed at $1,895, ground beef went for 39 cents a pound and Bob Pettit was at center.

LSU has clinched a tie for this year's regular season SEC championship, with games Thursday and Saturday to settle outright ownership. Then, it's on to Birmingham and the SEC tournament, which was last played when Pettit was a sophomore.

Pettit — who went on to an all-pro career in the National Basketball Association — is now chairman of the board at a bank in suburban Metairie.

LSU missed the championship by 20 seconds when Pettit was a sophomore, then went to the Final Four his junior season and lost out in the NCAA regionals his senior year.

LSU was up 43-42 with Joe Dean trying to dribble away the final seconds of the game against Kentucky in the SEC tournament in 1952.

"We were spread out so Joe could kill the clock," Pettit recalled. "In those days, if you were fouled, you could take the ball out of bounds instead of shooting the free throw, so we were in great shape."

Pettit was at forward in that game, with Byron "Two Story" Johnson at center. With about 20 seconds left, Dean passed in to Johnson, expecting him to pass back.

"I guess Byron just went blank," Pettit said. "When he got the ball, he wheeled and took a hook shot from beyond the free throw line. We couldn't believe it."

Cliff Hagan got the rebound and whipped the ball to Lou Tsioropoulos, who went the length of the court for a game-winning layup.

"Poor Byron, that hook shot haunted him for the rest of his life," Pettit recalled. Johnson died several years later in a car wreck.

LSU had clear sailing to the 1953 crown after Kentucky was placed on probation in a point-shaving scandal. At one point, LSU lost at Tulsa by 23 points then won a return match with Tulsa by four points in Baton Rouge.

"To illustrate my value to the team," Pettit said. "It should be noted that I played in the first game. I missed the second game with the flu."

After whipping Lebanon Valley and Holy Cross to get to the Final Four, LSU was bombed 80-67 by Indiana and 88-69 by Washington.

Indiana put LSU away early, with Bob Leonard — now coaching the Indiana Pacers — pouring shots through from outside.

"In the consolation game, we played Washington and I held Bob Houbregs, the hookshot artist, to 43 points," Pettit added.

In Pettit's senior season, LSU finished in a tie with Kentucky for the SEC championship, then lost a playoff to the Wildcats 63-56. Both teams sailed through the conference 14-0, but they didn't meet. When they did, Kentucky won 63-56 to decide who would represent the SEC in the NCAA tournament.

"Frank Ramsey killed us," Pettit said. But the NCAA ruled that Ramsey, Tsioropoulos and Cliff Hagan were ineligible for post-season play, and Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp pulled out of the tournament. But he always called that group the "Uncrowned Champs" and said they were his best ever.

So LSU, co-champions of the SEC, went to the regionals and got upset 78-70 by Penn State at Iowa City — obviously

Whitharral Wins

RALLS (Special) — The Whitharral boys squad knocked off a tough Southland team 46-45 in a District 1-B bi-district clash after Perry Hill connected baskets worth 14 total points and a last minute buzzer shot provided by Kelly Doshier.

Avery led Southland's onslaught, but the effort wasn't enough to override the Panthers' attack.

unable to come back from the emotional high of the playoff game against Kentucky.

The next year, Pettit was making $11,000 as the NBA's rookie of the year, and he went on to become all-pro and earn as much as $50,000 a season — small change by today's standards but just one more indication of changing times.

Ector Outlasts Matadors 66-58

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
LAMESA — The Estacado Matadors stayed right with the Odessa Ector Eagles for three quarters here last night when the two schools met in their AAA bidistrict playoff clash.

But in the final quarter, Ector turned on the speed and left the Matadors wondering what had hit them. The Eagles took a 66-58 decision and will advance to the regionals.

"They had a real good spurt there at the end," said Estacado coach J.J. Wood. "and their quickness really showed up."

"Besides that, we never really got an inside game working."

But what Wood didn't say was that the Odessa squad never really got its inside game working either. But the Eagles were able to find a cure for the problem in the form of hot-shooting George Cooper.

The 6-1 forward connected on 13 field goals, many from the 15-25 foot range, to pace the Eagle attack.

"He's done that all year for us," said a jubilant Ector coach Keith Thompson. "In the last few minutes, I had to pull him off. He kept saying, 'Let me shoot, Coach, let me shoot.'"

And Wood can testify to Cooper's shooting ability. "Boy, he's a good ball player," said Wood. "And they deserved to win. They got out there and just outplayed us."

But the Eagles started slowly — and so did Estacado. The Lubbock team missed their first seven or eight shots and were quickly behind 4-0. Then the Matadors found the range and went ahead 12-8 at the end of the first quarter.

But Cooper began his show in the second period and put Ector on top 28-26 at the half.

At that point, Cooper had scored 16 of Ector's 28 points.

Still, Estacado refused to quit in the third period and when Craig Harris connected on a twisting, reverse layup, the Matadors closed the gap to 48-46 at the end of the third period.

But in the final period, the combination of Estacado's foul trouble and Ector's quickness caught up with the Matadors. Cooper, who had been relatively silent in the third period, scored 6 quick points and the Eagles were in control.

Free Throws Sink WBC

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Talk about deja vu. . . Lubbock Christian College had a pair of free throws with only six seconds left and a slim lead.

The last time that scene had popped up, the Chaps had lost 75-74. Not this go round. Brian Fortner dropped in both shots and the Chaps walked away 85-84 victors over Wayland Baptist.

Fortner, a 65 percent free throw shooter, said he wasn't nervous. "I've always been able to make free throws under pressure," he said afterward. "It's just any other time I have trouble."

The free throws capped a furious second-half rally by LCC, erasing a 14-point first half deficit and avenging a 78-70 loss to Wayland a week ago.

The Chaps trailed 44-30 with only 2:45 to play in the first half. They trimmed that pad to 46-39 by the break and then came out smoking in the second half.

After swapping buckets to open the period, LCC scored 8 straight points — 6 by Fortner — to take a 49-48 lead with 16:25 to play

After fighting a see-saw battle down the stretch, the Chaps led by only 2, at 78-76, with 2:28 to play in the game.

Fortner knocked in an offensive rebound, Keith Wharton notched a free throw and with 1:37 showing LCC led 81-76.

But WBC wouldn't stay down. Cooper High ex Donnie Seale scored on an offensive board, cutting the lead back to 3. LCC guard Bill McGee made a pair of free throws to pad the lead back to 83-78 with :39 to play.

But Pioneers Rick Cooper and Benny

Burnett combated for back-to-back baskets to make it 83-82 with only 17 seconds remaining. That's where Fortner stepped onto the center stage.

"Fortner was fantastic," said LCC coach Larry Hays after the dust had cleared. "I'm not just talking about those two free throws, of course that's what did it, though."

The 6-3 sophomore, averaging only 9 points a game, hit 10 of 13 field goals, scoring 27 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

He was only one of three Chaps boarding in double figures as Wharton and Keith Gardner had 13 and 10 boards, respectively. All totaled, LCC outrebounded the Pioneers 47-37.

Gardner also scored 20 points, Wharton 11 and Bruce Carver 11. Gene Strickland was high for WBC with 22, followed by Cooper's 18.

The win makes the Chaps 3-3 on the year in Texas Conference play. A split of the road games against Dallas Baptist and Texas Wesleyan this weekend would ensure at least a coin toss for the hosts role in the conference tourney Monday and Tuesday.

The victory ups LCC to 13-14 overall, a hair's breadth from a .500 season, the first for the school since 1970, the first year of competition. It also ended the regular season with a six-game home winning streak, the longest in the school's history.

Monterey Wins Playoff Opener Over Tascosa

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
LEVELLAND — For Amarillo Tascosa fans, the only good thing about Tuesday night's bi-district game with the Monterey Plainsmen was that it ended in time to catch the 10 p.m. news.

Monterey coach Joe Michalka's secret was keeping the Plainsmen loose. Loose enough to record a 42-38 victory.

"Last year, we were real tight," said Michalka. "This year, I told some jokes in the dressing room before the game to get their minds off the contest."

The Plainsmen need to stay relaxed as they blew a 25-14 lead in the fourth quarter. Tascosa rallied and narrowed the deficit to 35-34 with 1:57 to play when Rebel guard Steve Herkmann hit a set shot from the top of the key.

"I would have liked to have played the game with a full team," said Tascosa coach Dave Camfield. "Steve has been suffering from a leg injury and just doesn't have the mobility he had."

Monterey won the game in the final two minutes from the free-throw line. Guard Craig Ehlo hit six free shots to stifle the Rebels comeback effort. Ehlo wound up the game's leading scorer with 17 points.

"Our game plan was to get out in front early," said Michalka. "But then we got

The Plainsmen took advantage of 11 Tascosa turnovers in the first two quarters to build a 22-14 halftime advantage. Trav Clardy provided the spark with 6 points.

Monterey led for most of the contest. The only time Tascosa had the advantage was when guard Sam Washington hit a shot from the left corner and was fouled by Plainsmen forward Chuck Perry.

Washington connected the charity shot and the Rebels were on top 3-2.

Plainsmen guard Frank Malone put Monterey in the lead for good the next time down court. Malone faked an outlet pass and then drove the lane. He banked the ball off the glass for the bucket.

In the second period, Monterey had an

Want To Bet Martin'll Be Back?

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

Same time, next year, if not sooner, Billy Martin will call on shipping magnate George Steinbrenner to find out whether or not he's really coming out of drydock, and if he's half as smart as I think he is, he can figure out the answer for himself right now.

Yes, he will be back to manage the Yankees if Steinbrenner honestly feels he needs him, and no, he won't be back if Steinbrenner evaluates the entire situation and then decides he doesn't need him. It's as simple as that, and what's more, I'm sure Martin knows it.

Publicly, he keeps saying he expects to be back managing the Yankees next year when Bob Lemon, the club's present manager, is ticketed to move up into the front office as general manager. Lemon isn't adverse to that in the least. The way I see it, though, Martin could easily be back managing this season, a year ahead of schedule. Managing some other club, though, not the Yankees.

Personally, I enjoy seeing Billy Martin manage. His whole life is as much wrapped up in baseball as Woody Hayes' was in football and to tear the very heart out of him by taking away the most meaningful thing in his existence solely because he sometimes lets it carry him away, comes under the heading of unnecessarily harsh and inappropriate punishment. Certainly Martin has faults. Who hasn't? But he adds pepper and spice to the game the same way Leo Durocher and Charlie Dressen did and there's no question he belongs in baseball, not out of it.

Originally, Martin's parting with the Yanks was anything but an amicable leave taking and had many of the unpleasant overtones characterized by his previous firings in Minnesota, Detroit and Texas. In spite of all that, he shouldn't have much trouble getting another major league managerial job regardless of whether the Yankees take him back or not.

Of all the owners he worked for, Martin never got along better with any of them than he did with Bob Short. That was six years ago when Short owned the Texas Rangers and Martin was his manager.

After Short sold the Rangers to Brad Corbett in 1974, Martin hit it off well with the new Texas owner. Only for awhile, though. Eventually, the two had differences and Corbett finally fired Martin in July of 1975 when they got into a hassle over a backup catcher. Short, who was in Minneapolis at the time, remembers the day it happened.

"The Yankees happened to be in town," he says, meaning Minneapolis. "When Gabe Paul, who was with them, heard Martin had been fired — don't forget, this was the third time — he said 'This finishes him as a manager. He's all through.'"

"I said to him 'I'll bet you five hundred dollars he'll be managing another club inside two weeks.' Gabe really jumped at that, saying it was a bet. An hour or so later, I ran into him again and told him I probably could name the team that was going to hire Martin. Gabe asked me who I thought it would be and when I said the Yankees, he told me he'd give me a hundred to one that would never happen. We made that bet, too — his five thousand dollars to my fifty dollars."

That same evening, Short recalls, he received a phone call at his home from George Steinbrenner. The Yankee owner was interested in hearing his impressions of Martin.

"I told him I knew all about what happened in Texas but there were worse things than an owner working for a manager," Short says, with a grin. "Like what? Steinbrenner wanted to know. 'Like having empty seats in your ballpark.' I told him. He asked me what I thought of Martin as a manager and I told him what I honestly felt, that when it came right down to a matter of running a ball game, Billy was the best there was, and I also told him I thought Martin would make an ideal manager for the Yankees. Steinbrenner said, 'You know something? I was giving some thought to the same thing myself.'"

Twelve days later, Billy Martin was named the new Yankee manager, replacing Bill Virdon.

"I'm still waiting for Gabe to pay off on our bet," Bob Short laughs. "He hasn't gotten around to it yet."

Iowa Boss Looking At USC

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa Coach Lute Olson, whose team is in the thick of the Big Ten Conference basketball race, says he has made no commitment about taking the head coaching job at Southern California.

Olson was interviewed by USC officials for the job in Los Angeles Monday and speculation arose that he had been offered the position. However, he said in a statement issued through Iowa's sports information office that he was not offered the job when he was in Los Angeles.

Before coming to Iowa, Olson coached on the high school, junior college and major college level in California. The USC job will become vacant when Bob Boyd resigns at the end of the season.

In his statement, Olson said: "I was in Los Angeles Monday and visited with University of Southern California officials. They made me no offer at that time, and I made no commitment to them."

"It is my understanding that their search for a coach will continue. The most important thing to me at this time is the Iowa basketball team."

"The players and coaching staff at Iowa are trying hard to win a Big Ten championship, and I do not want to detract from that in any way. I am therefore ending all discussions regarding the USC coaching position until our season at Iowa is concluded."

Olson was not available for comment Tuesday night on reports that he told his players he has been offered the USC job.

Sports Information Director George Wine, who read Olson's statement, said he did not know what Olson told his players, but added:

"It would be my guess that he didn't tell his players that because he told me that he hadn't been offered the job today."

Wine also said Olson indicated "he wants to announce something (Wednesday) about all this going on."

Earlier Tuesday, Southern California Athletic Director Dick Perry confirmed that he talked with Olson on Monday about the possibility of replacing Boyd at the end of the season.

"He was on campus," said Perry, referring to Olson. "And we do have permission from Bump Elliott (Iowa Athletic Director) to talk to him."

"We haven't reached any agreement," continued Perry. "The most important thing to him is winning the Big Ten title. He has a good thing going for him at Iowa."

"He is a possibility. We will continue to look at other possibilities."

Iowa, rated 12th nationally, is tied with Ohio State for first in the Big Ten at 11-3 and has an 18-5 overall record. Olson still has a year remaining on his contract as the Hawkeyes' coach.

In his four previous seasons at Iowa, Olson has compiled records of 10-16, 19-10, 18-9 and 12-15.

Olson coached at Long Beach City College for four seasons and at Long Beach State for a year before taking the Iowa job. He also coached at Marina High School in Huntington Beach, Calif.

Seminole Wins Squeaker 54-49

SNYDER (Special) — Seminole took a 54-49 decision from Ballinger in a closely fought Class AA bidistrict contest here Tuesday.

The Indians took the lead of the nip-and-tuck contest for keeps when Danny Wrenn canned a pair of free throws to give Seminole a 50-49 lead with about a minute left in the game.

Ballinger held a 1-point halftime edge, but fell victim to a fourth-quarter Indian surge, in which the victors outscored it 16-8.

Wrenn had 19 points for the winners, who won the game at the foul line. Each team dropped in 19 field goals, but Seminole had five more points at the charity stripe — and those five points eventually became the winning margin.

Prolonged Use Of Seat Belts Can Cause Pain

CHICAGO (UPI) — Seat belts may save lives, but prolonged use may cause a pain in the gut, a writer to the Journal of the American Medical Association says.

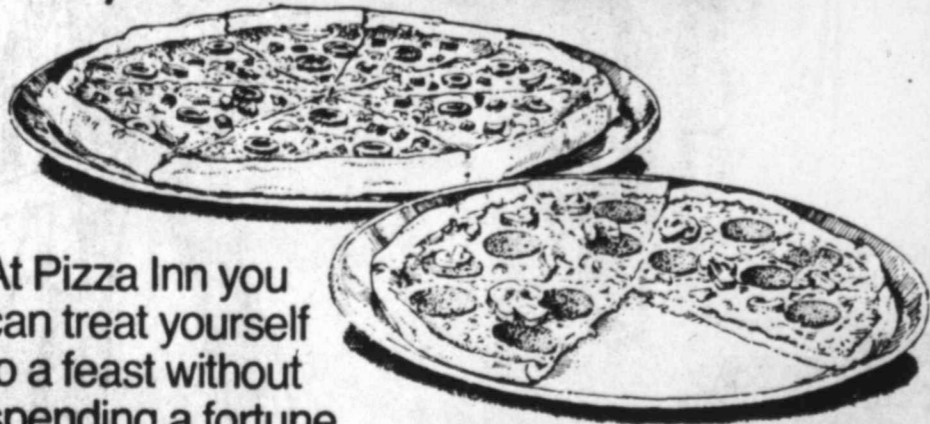

Dr. David M. Klurfeld of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology of Philadelphia wrote in this week's edition he experienced a sharp pain in the lower right abdominal area. He said a self-examination for a hernia or appendicitis ruled out those possibilities.

Klurfeld said he finally discovered the cause of his pain was a plastic slide on the seat belt of new car he had recently purchased. He said the problem was most acute in cold weather.

Repositioning the seat belt cured the complaint, he said.

Show Marks 200th Program

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "All in the Family" celebrated its 200th show with a "family reunion" of fans from all over the country and a gala party.

More than 750 people, including 200 contest winners from 48 states, gathered Monday night at the Mark Taper Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center for a showing of highlights of the eight years of the hit comedy and a taping of reactions from the audience.

The 90-minute show will be aired on CBS Sunday, March 4.

"I'm in orbit," said Dolye Canja of Knoxville, Tenn. "I've been on cloud nine since the phone rang and we were told we were winners."

Mrs. Canja and her husband, Clement, were among the 200 persons selected in a random drawing for an all-expense paid trip to Los Angeles climaxing with the taping and party. More than 300,000 people entered the contest.

"We've gotten a lot of laughs out of Archie, the scrapes he's been in and the way he mangles the English language," said Canja. "And we love the dingbat. She's the real brains of the family."

Joanne Radcliffe of Statesboro, Ga., said, "I think Archie represents a section of America that makes us all relax and enjoy ourselves. I think we all know someone like Archie. My father feels he knows Archie as a friend and asked me to tell him hello."

The contest winners flew to Los Angeles Saturday and were treated to a holiday weekend of sightseeing and dinners. The "family reunion," which included numerous other fans and supporters of the show, concluded Monday night with a party at the Music Center attended by Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton, who played Archie and Edith Bunker. It was also a reunion for Christine Callahan of Whitinsville, Mass., and her son,

Pvt. Thomas Callahan, who is taking military police training at Fort McClellan, Ala.

Mrs. Callahan, who had long corresponded with creator-producer Norman Lear, was flown in for the occasion and arrangements were made for her son to get a leave from the Army.

TV Called Auditory Medium

RADNOR, Pa. (UPI) — Even though television is known as the visual medium, its enjoyment may depend more on our ears than on our eyes, according to a veteran television producer.

"What we hear on television is often more important than what we see," said Dr. Tony Schwartz, writing in the current edition of TV Guide Magazine.

Schwartz said television is "primarily an auditory medium, auditory in structure and auditory in the way it restructures us."

He suggests experiments to prove his point. Viewers should place a piece of cardboard over the television screen to block out the picture, then turn the sound on for a half-hour of news and another half-hour of a dramatic show, he said.

Then, he said, viewers should reverse the project, turning the sound all the way down and watching just the picture for similar half-hour programs.

Schwartz said he believed many of those conducting the experiment would not say television was a visual medium

"without a good many second thoughts." At the very least, he said they would "probably say that television was both visual and auditory."

Schwartz called listening "an inner trip" that has made people more receptive to Eastern ways such as yoga, meditation, Hare Krishna and Zen Buddhism.

He said radio paved the way for the changes that television has brought and helped to break down the linear structure of the communications world.

"We became sensitized to the structural patterns of sound," he said. "It made of us receivers rather than perceivers."

Sharon Gless Finds Change To Male Role Demanding

By VERNON SCOTT
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sharon Gless, who stars in the new "Turnabout" series, broke down in a crying jag recently when her female subconscious rebelled at having to think and behave like a man 24 hours a day.
 Sharon is a thoroughly feminine actress who portrays Sam Alston in the show about a husband and wife who switch bodies. Penny Alston, woman, lives inside Sam's body. Sam inhabits Penny's body.
 The sex switch is the unusual comedy basis for in the NBC sitcom, but it's not a laughing matter for Sharon and John Schuck, who plays her husband. Both performers have difficulty making the adjustment.
 Sharon especially finds the transformation from female to male psyche extraordinarily demanding.
 "One Sunday morning after six weeks in the role of Sam I woke up and started crying for no apparent reason," Sharon said. "I'd never done anything like that before in my life."
 "It became a crying jag that went on for 45 minutes or more. It was like something emerging from deep inside me. It was the inner woman getting violent and wanting to surface."
 "I'd been mentally and emotionally clicking in my male counterpart six days a week the moment I got out of bed. I was adjusting to being a man which is the only way I can play this role and be believable."
 "All day long on the set I stayed rigidly in character. It would have been impossible to switch off Sam and become Sharon between takes and then switch Sam on again."
 To avoid schizophrenia, Sharon remained in character when she got home. She studied her scripts as Sam and rehearsed as Sam.
 Subconsciously she walked, sat — legs apart or crossed — like Sam and found herself puffing on the ever-present cigars Sam favors.

 "I was unaware of it," Sharon said, "but there was no place for the female in me to emerge."
 "That Sunday morning the dam broke. My inner being was yelling, 'Enough. Enough.' I needed some attention to myself as a woman. I had to acknowledge my own sexuality."
 "In the middle of my tears I found myself enjoying letting the female have her cry. I felt really feminine. Afterwards I was fascinated by the psychological implications."
 "I told John (Schuck) about it and he understood. It's easier for John because he's married and talks to his wife about the hangups involved in having to play a woman. He allows himself to get back into his real life male role. I repress the frustrations."
 Sharon is a tall, slender California blonde with a sunny disposition and a sense of humor. No newcomer to the tube, she was a costar in the "Switch" series and a regular in "Marcus Welby, M.D."
 Sharon is far from neurotic, but the upside-down sexual complications of her role have had adverse affects. She said she sleeps only three or four hours a night and her appetite isn't what it used to be.
 "When I smoked the cigar for the first show it burned my mouth and puckered my lips," she said, laughing. "Now I love the cigar because it helps me click deeper into the male role."
 "Our producer smokes cigars and I've copied the way he holds and gestures with it. It's become a security blanket for me."
 "I've developed less obvious male characteristics. I've taken on a man's posture and feel, well, heavier. I don't stand up as straight as I did, on stage or off. And I sit altogether differently."

Alien Beings Might Enjoy Early TV

By PETER J. BOYER
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — I read a story in the paper the other day about a man who believes beings on other planets are monitoring our radio and television broadcasts. The guy's argument made sense.
 He says scientists believe the closest planets likely to harbor intelligent life are about 25 light years away from Earth. Thus, it would take 25 years for our broadcast waves to reach one or more of these planets.
 Now, if our early radio broadcasts did indeed reach some alien ears, we'd just now be getting the reviews. Twenty-five years there, 25 years back. Talk about the dubious powers of a critic.
 Consider what our friends in space might have said in 1973 when, after 25 years or so of radio broadcasts, they started getting different signals. "Hmm, I see Earth has finally discovered television," Alien Smith might have said to Alien Jones. "Let's see what's on down there."
 Uncle Miltie, Philco Playhouse, John Cameron Swayze. Good enough fare to keep our friends interested in TV. Right now, space viewers are in the middle of a new TV season (which was the 1954 season on Earth).
 They probably have their favorite shows. Maybe even TV Guide.
 "I like this 'Tonight Show,'" Jones might say to Smith. "That Steve Allen is really a card."
 "He's okay," Smith replies, "but I much prefer 'People Are Funny.' Art Linkletter gets earthlings to do the queerest things. Then he gives them something called money and they enter a highly excitable state."
 "Yes, he's good, and people are indeed funny," agrees Jones. "But there's a new show this season that I don't quite follow. It's called 'The Army-McCarthy Hearings.' A big oaf plays a mean-spirited senator who bullies people and keeps shouting, 'Communist! Communist!' And he's not even a very good actor."
 "Well, there's no accounting for the tastes of primitives," replies Smith. "I suppose you've noticed they have two shows this season that are centered around the lives of domesticated creatures called dogs. 'Lassie' and 'Rin Tin Tin.'"
 "Yes, it does seem strange, but little Jane and Dick are crazy about those programs. They also like the new show about that magical kingdom on Earth, 'Disneyland.' Say, Smith, do you suppose that earthlings make some television programs especially for their infants?"
 "Sometimes, I think all their shows are made for their infants."
 An unkind cut, Mr. Alien Smith, especially considering that the programs you're receiving now are products of our television "Golden Years." Wait till 25 years from now, when you start receiving what we're getting now.

Arkansas Bill Gives Choice

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Condemned criminals would have a limited choice on how they die under a bill approved by the Arkansas Senate.
 Senators this week unanimously passed a bill by State Sen. Harold King to allow a person sentenced to die under the capital murder statute to choose between execution by lethal injection and the current means of death — the electric chair.
 King said injection was a more humane way of administering the penalty because electrocution does severe damage to the body, especially when repeated charges of electricity have to be applied.
 "This (injection) would allow them simply to go to sleep and not wake up," King said.

NJ Residents Favor Casino Gambling

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Nearly two-thirds of New Jersey residents favor casino gambling, but the same number also believe operators of the only casino to open in Atlantic City may be linked to organized crime, a statewide poll says.
 The Eagleton Poll found supporters of legalized casino gambling in Atlantic City outnumbered opponents by 64 percent to 30 percent with 6 percent undecided. By 63 percent to 15 percent, most people also said they thought the charges of a connection between organized crime and Resorts International Hotel Casino in Atlantic City were true.
