

American, Three Britons Missing After Arrests

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — An American and three Britons working in an Iranian desert gas plant have vanished after a revolutionary radio announcement that "four Americans" had been arrested "while trying to escape," a company spokesman said today.

A spokesman for the Iranian subsidiary of Fluor Corp. of California said the American and three Britons were the only non-Iranians among the 200 workers at the gasification plant near Ahvaz, southeast of Tehran, one of the main oil cities in southwestern Iran.

"They were due to travel to Tehran today for repatriation," said spokesman Kayvan Shambayati. "When we heard the radio announcement we tried to contact the men by radio from Ahvaz, but were told they had already left."

The radio said that "last night four Americans working for a foreign company in Agha Jari were arrested while trying to escape. They were handed over to (Ayatollah Ruhollah) Khomeini's staff by Islamic revolution fighters."

Shambayati said the non-Iranians due for repatriation were American John Cassiba and Britons W. Walsh, P. Detrez and K. Thompson.

The spokesman said that attempts to get clarification from Khomeini aides in Tehran and in the area of the reported arrests had proven fruitless.

British embassy officials, meanwhile, tried to secure the release of two British civilian armored school instructors imprisoned at Tehran's grim Ghasr central jail.

Two other Britons detained who have Iranian wives were allowed to leave Tehran for London this morning on a regular British Airways flight.

The government radio originally announced the Britons were being held for "misappropriating national funds," but diplomats indicated two are being questioned about the tanks on which they were giving instruction.

Last week the U.S. embassy secured the release of Marine Sgt. Kenneth Kraus, who spent a week in a revolutionary jail accused of killing three Iranian attackers of U.S. embassy on Feb. 14.

Kraus, 22, of Lansdale, Pa., was wounded and captured in the attack and was kept handcuffed, blindfolded and on a bread-and-water diet in a basement at Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's headquarters.

He was released Wednesday night, left Iran Thursday and arrived home Friday after a stop in Frankfurt, West Germany.

The British community in Iran has dwindled to about 1,000 and the American community to some 4,000 since the evacuation ordered after the assault on the embassy. There were once 41,000 Americans in Iran.

In Tehran Sunday, Khomeini said ousted Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar has fled the nation, and revolutionary sources announced the formation of commando hunt squads to bring "criminals" back from abroad, including the exiled shah.

Khomeini, the 78-year-old leader of Iran's revolution which ousted Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, gave no details of Bakhtiar's escape, but said simply: "He has fled."

In a talk with a delegation from Lebanon Sunday, the Moslem leader branded Bakhtiar a "criminal" and appealed to foreign governments to hand him back.

He accused Bakhtiar, who eluded a nationwide manhunt, of issuing orders for a massacre. "He himself claimed that nothing was done without his orders," Khomeini said of Bakhtiar.

Bakhtiar's escape may ease a dilemma of Premier Mehdi Bazargan, who in pre-revolutionary days was a close friend of the former premier.

LHS Gets Glamour Courses

To draw more students, Lubbock High School next year will offer Chinese, guitar and 34 other new courses, and send advanced pupils on field trips to such places as Europe, Washington, D.C., and Valley Forge — at a cost of $260,000.

Those are some of the "magnet" features to be included in the Lubbock Exemplary Academic Program, nicknamed LEAP, designed for the city's under-enrolled downtown high school.

The Lubbock Independent School District board of trustees today unanimously approved the lineup of offerings. And some board members said they hope eventually to give Lubbock High an even bigger drawing card — a swimming pool.

Most of the features approved for the centrally located campus are unique to the city. They include exotic courses (from Russian language and disco dancing to film production and second-year physics), as well as special opportunities (students will be allowed to "test out" of grammar courses so they can take more electives).

Enrollment at Lubbock High will be open to students from throughout the city. The district will provide bus service for transfer students, Superintendent Ed Irons said.

Irons said LEAP will offer students a "broad opportunity to experience many different subjects, as well as the chance to go in-depth" in particular areas. The Lubbock High program especially will appeal to youngsters at the very top of their class — a group Irons admits has been neglected at times.

The Lubbock High magnet is intended in part to attract more students. Lubbock High currently enrolls about 1,200 pupils, compared with more than 2,000 at Coronado and Monterey, the city's other Class AAAA high schools.

Irons warned Lubbock High parents not to get their hopes up for an immediate enrollment jump. "I think if we get 75 students (to transfer to LEAP) the first year, we'll be lucky," he said.

Based on experience in other cities — such as Tulsa, Okla., which has a high school similar to LEAP — it may take three years for the Lubbock High program to draw a substantial number of transfers, Irons said.

However, he noted he had been surprised by the strong attraction of Lubbock's existing magnet schools, Iles Elementary and Dunbar-Struggs High, which were instituted last fall for desegregation purposes. It's possible Lubbock

ECLIPSE WATCHERS — A handful of Texas Tech University students gathered outside the physics research laboratory this morning to view a projected image of the partial solar eclipse. Eclipse Impressive In Northwest U.S.

SEATTLE (AP) — A wide swath of the Pacific Northwest was plunged briefly into darkness today, as the last total eclipse of the sun in North America this century moved inland over cloud-covered skies at Agate Beach, Ore.

In Portland, Ore., residents whooped and gasped in amazement as the sky began to darken and temperatures dropped about 7:45 a.m. (9:45 a.m. CST). Complete darkness covered the largest city in the eclipse's path by 8:13 a.m. (10:13 a.m. CST). It began to get light again three minutes later.

Residents had to rely for a good view on television pictures taken from planes flying above the thick cloud cover. ABC-TV carried the event live nationally.

East of the Cascades, broken clouds provided some view of the sun as the moon started its west-to-east march across the sky, arcing as far east as North Dakota before swinging north into Canada.

At Olympia, the Washington state capital, the cloud cover broke 10 minutes before totality.

The lawn on the Capitol Campus was crowded with state workers and kids with makeshift viewers and more sophisticated equipment.

The clouds stayed away during totality, and the sun's corona was visible for about 44 seconds. The campus took on a carnival atmosphere as state offices emptied and those with viewers shared with others.

Lights on the campus, controlled by sensors, flickered on during the period of totality.

Under clear skies at Williston, N.D., Dan Wiehle, 27, a meat cutter from Minneapolis, commented, "This is a helluva deal."

Eclipse watchers and groupies gathered in snowsuits and parkas in 15 degree temperatures under a clear sky at Williston. U.S. 85 extending north was lined with vans, cars, motor homes and people from across the country.

Annette Case her daughter, Pan, and a friend, Charles Clayton, drove 1,121 miles from Columbia, Mo., to Williston to view the eclipse.

"If I don't see it now, I'll be exactly 100 years old when the next one comes around," Mrs. Case said.

In Canada, meanwhile, thousands of persons in southern Manitoba and northwestern Ontario got a good look at the eclipse. The cloud cover that had dimmed hopes for ground-level observation largely dissipated overnight, and the eclipse was visible from most parts of the region.

The skies were saturated with air traffic as observers went aloft to beat the clouds with a view from above.

Other scientists, amateur astronomers and the curious gathered on parking lots, porches, decks and grassy knolls, with their telescopes, homemade pinhole projectors and commercial viewers.

Repeated admonitions not to look at the area is about 150 miles northwest of Hanoi. But Chinese Vice Premier Wang Chen was quoted as telling British reporters that the invasion force would not try to advance down the valley toward Hanoi.

Teng was interviewed by Takeji Watanabe, chief of Japan's Kyodo news service. The Chinese leader compared the war with the 33-day-long China-India war of 1962 and said the fighting might end in about 10 days "or a few days more because Vietnam is stronger than India."

He said his government welcomed proposals in the U.N. Security Council calling for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, and he added, "We would not make that a bargaining condition," apparently meaning China would pull out without a reciprocal Vietnamese withdrawal from Cambodia.

Teng also said that when full U.S.-Chinese diplomatic relations were established Washington wanted China to commit itself against the use of military force.

Area Gets Look At Phenomenon

While many Lubbock and South Plains residents used a variety of homemade gadgets — pinhole projectors, exposed film and the like — to view today's solar eclipse, a small group of Texas Tech University students probably had the best view in town of the event, the last of its kind during this century over North America.

Although it was only a partial solar eclipse — the moon covering about 60 percent of the surface of the sun — it attracted the attention of astronomers, physics majors and photography buffs.

Although the event caused no great stir in Lubbock, many curious spectators briefly took to the outdoors to catch a glimpse. A group of Tech students went indoors for an even better view, through a projected image outside the physics laboratory in the Science Building.

Keith Shank, a junior physics major at Tech, began monitoring the eclipse when the moon's path came between the earth and the sun about 9:06 a.m. today. Using a series of mirrors and an instrument called a cassigrain telescope, Shank was able to project the image onto a translucent plastic screen taped to the door of the research laboratory.

The eclipse lasted for about an hour as shadows shifted around and the clear West Texas skies darkened somewhat from the effects.

As Shank busily snapped pictures of the eclipse through a camera with a zoom lens, others employed less complicated methods to view one of the universe's most awesome sights.

Shank took pictures about every nine minutes to preserve the moon's path across the sun.

"I imagine a lot of people in Lubbock didn't notice a thing," he said. "And that is strange because the sun governs our lives."

He added that last October's partial eclipse was clearer than this one and that he could see the craters on the moon. Upper level atmospheric disturbance caused a wavering effect on the projected image this morning.

Committee's Action Hits Consumers

AUSTIN (AP) — Seven bills that would make it harder for injured consumers to win products liability suits were approved today by the Senate Economic Development Committee.

Floor action probably won't come until after March 9, said Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, sponsor of three of the bills.

Businessmen and lawyers who defend industry in products cases urged approval of the bills, which were opposed by the Consumers Union and the Texas Trial Lawyers Association.

The bills approved by the committee are:

- SB135, by Rep. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, reducing an injured consumer's award in a product defect case if he or she helped cause the accident.
- SB136, by Farabee, establishing misuse of a product as a defense. Texas courts have held that misuse is a defense only if it is proven the product itself were free of defects.
- SB137, by Farabee, prohibiting a consumer from recovering money damages for his or her injuries if the product was altered after purchase.
- SB138, by Farabee, establishing a presumption that a product was safe if manufactured in accordance with state or federal standards.
- SB263, by Meier, cutting off lawsuits against makers of allegedly defective products six years after manufacture or five years after sale.
- SB264, by Meier, requiring plaintiffs to prove manufacturers were negligent, not just that the product was defective.
- SB265, by Meier, raising as a defense the fact that a product complied with "the state of the art" at the time it was manufactured, even though it might be considered unsafe by today's standards.

Rhodesia Raids Guerrilla Camp In Angola

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian warplanes sweeping across 1,200 miles of enemy airspace successfully blasted a major black nationalist guerrilla camp in Angola today in the most far-reaching attack of the war, military officials said.

Rhodesia had never before unleashed its armed might against guerrillas harbored in a country with which it has no common border.

Government sources said they expect Soviet and Cuban advisers were stationed at the attacked base, located in the area of Luso in eastern Angola near the Zambian border along the Benguela railway.

The military command said the base was a spawning training facility for guerrillas of Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe Peoples Revolutionary Army, the group responsible for the Feb. 12 downing of a civilian Rhodesian airliner.

The bombing was not strictly an act of reprisal for the air disaster, which killed all 59 aboard, a military spokesman said.

The spokesman said the attack, the most extensive yet in the 6-year-old war, was part of Rhodesia's strategy to lash out against insurgents to prevent their interference in elections scheduled for April.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance has rejected the elections as part of the majority rule agreement.

Previous anti-guerrilla attacks across Rhodesia's borders were staged against installations in Mozambique to the east, Zambia to the west and Botswana to the southwest.

The attack was believed to have been carried out by long-range, high-altitude Canberra bombers flying from bases in northwestern Rhodesia and carrying 8,000 pounds of bombs.

The Victoria-Falls-Wankie region of northwestern Rhodesia is some 600 miles southeast of Luso, separated by Zambia.

"At 8:10 a.m. this morning, Rhodesian air force aircraft successfully attacked a large ZPRRA terrorist training base in Angola across the Zambian border," said a military communique.

Nkomo's guerrillas have training bases in Zambia and Angola, a former Portuguese colony now governed by the Marxist MPLA movement, which, with extensive Cuban help, is engaged in a war against the UNITA guerrilla organization.

The guerrilla group reportedly has an armored unit being held in reserve in Angola.

Last year Reuben Donga, a ZPRRA guerrilla captured in Rhodesia, told a news conference that he and other insurgents were trained in Angola by Cuban instructors and Soviet advisers.

Today's strike was the fourth Rhodesian cross-border aerial attack launched since terrorists shot down an Air Rhodesia Viscount with a Soviet-made SAM-7 missile two weeks ago.

On Feb. 17 Rhodesian bombers struck two of Nkomo's holding camps near Livingstone in southern Zambia but according to reports from that area, the guerrillas there had already left their bases on their way to Rhodesia.

Two days later, the Rhodesians flew into Mozambique and bombed what the military command called a large storage complex operated by guerrillas under the command of Nkomo's Patriotic Front partner, Robert Mugabe.

Federal Officials Boost Carpools

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Double up America!

That's the message the Department of Transportation is trying to get across in its campaign to persuade drivers to join carpools.

Federal officials have been boosting carpools ever since 1973 when the oil embargo sent supplies down and prices up.

Interest in the idea has fluctuated, however. As memories of the long lines at the gas station faded, so did the enthusiasm for carpools. Commuters got used to paying 60, 70 or even 80 cents a gallon for gasoline; they switched to smaller cars and continued their solitary drives to work.

Then came the revolt in Iran. Another supply problem. Predictions of dollar-a-gallon gasoline. And new support for carpools.

Surveys by the Department of Transportation show that just under 73 million people went to work by vehicle — public and private — every day last year. Almost three-fourths of the commuters — 52.3 million people — drove to and from the job alone.

"If you assume the vehicles, on the average, are four-passenger, each has three empty seats," said Ed O'Hara, a department spokesman. "That's over 156 million empty seats. Realistically, you couldn't put people together in carpools that would use up all the seats. But assume 50 percent of the seats could be filled with people living and working in the same area. That would be 78 million seats. We don't have 78 million people to put in those seats...."

O'Hara conceded that carpooling can mean inconvenience. "Some people might have to walk several blocks," he said.

He also conceded that filling even 50 percent of the empty seats is an unrealistic goal. Supporters of carpool programs say they think that in normal times — when there is no gasoline shortage — the number of people sharing rides could be boosted by only 5 percent.

What would happen if the times were not normal? No one knows for sure. But, O'Hara notes, "There's a tremendous capacity out there."

Individuals who are willing to put up with a little inconvenience can save hundreds of dollars a year by carpooling.

The Federal Highway Administration calculated last year that the annual cost of commuting to work, alone, in a subcompact car with a daily round-trip of 20 miles was $500. And that doesn't count parking.

If you team up with someone else, alternating the driving chores, you can cut your annual commuting cost to $276, a saving of almost 45 percent. Form a four-person carpool and you save nearly 70 percent.

You also may qualify for a discount on your auto insurance if you join a carpool since you will be driving less. And you may get a break from traffic; some areas have set aside special highway lanes for use only by vehicles carrying more than one person.

There are two ways to carpool and savings depend on which you choose. You can share the driving, with each participant using his or her own car, or you can share the riding, with one person doing all the driving while the passengers split costs.

Successful carpooling takes work. Many companies have organized formal, computerized programs. Others rely on volunteer efforts to match up potential carpools. Either way, it is up to the participants to set up schedules and stick to them. If the driver gets sick or is on vacation, it should be his or her responsibility to find a substitute.

Lay down the rules of riding in advance. Will detours for errands be allowed? What about extra passengers? Will the drive to work be a time for conversation or for reading the paper?

The government has prepared a pamphlet to help you figure out the potential savings from carpooling. The nine-page booklet, "Rideshare and Save — A Cost Comparison," includes a detailed worksheet. It is available, at no charge, from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Ask for publication 512G.

Carter, Nixon On Opposite Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter is the most trusted politician and former President Nixon the least trusted, according to a poll conducted for People magazine.

However, those participating in the poll, conducted by Audits and Surveys Inc., don't think Carter should be re-elected. They favor, instead, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

In movies, the poll found Paul Newman was the favorite actor and Barbra Streisand the favorite actress.

The magazine also reported that ABC's Howard Cosell was voted the most boring man on television, while Farrah Fawcett-Majors was chosen as the most boring woman on TV.

The magazine did not say how many people were polled.

Pope Officiates At Wedding

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The bride and groom were nervous, but they had a right to be. Officiating at their wedding Mass was Pope John Paul II.

Last month, the pontiff promised Vittoria Ianni, a 22-year-old sales clerk in a souvenir shop, that he would officiate at her wedding to Mario Maltese, 24, a burglar-alarm technician.

About 120 friends and relatives attended the nuptial Mass under Michelangelo frescoes in the Vatican's Pauline Chapel. The Sistine Choir sang.

Vatican spokesman Rev. Pietrfranco Pastore said the bride turned to look at her relatives several times during the ceremony, and the groom forgot to kneel.

Vatican sources said after the 61-minute ceremony, the bride unexpectedly asked the pontiff, "Can I kiss you?"

"Why not?" the pope replied. He then bent down and kissed Mrs. Maltese. The pope also bear-hugged and kissed the groom, gave the couple a leather-bound Bible, a picture of the Virgin Mary and an undisclosed amount of money.

President Lauds Baryshnikov

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter calls Mikhail Baryshnikov "perhaps the finest dancer in our lifetime."

Baryshnikov, a Soviet ballet star who defected to the West, leaped and twirled his way around a White House stage Sunday in a command performance for Carter and nearly 100 guests.

Afterward, the president said: "A talent like his transcends national boundaries. He binds together the human spirit... throughout the world."

The small stage proved a slight problem. Some of the choreography had to be redesigned and even then Baryshnikov, noted for his soaring leaps, missed a chandelier in the White House East Room by inches.

Baryshnikov and ballerinas Patricia McBride and Heather Watts performed four dances. All are members of the New York City Ballet, currently performing here.

Regulations Bent For Queen

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Authorities at a remote oil pipeline terminal bent the rules a bit. But it was for the Queen of England.

The regulations were bent Sunday, when Queen Elizabeth and her retinue, including several ladies in waiting, traveled to the Jebel Dhana Oil Tanker Farm and Pipeline Terminal, where 50 British and 200 Arab and Asian men work.

Women normally are forbidden to visit the site, about 150 miles from the nearest town.

The queen chatted briefly with several British engineers, and was then invited to the tent of the local sheik for a traditional cup of sweet Arab black coffee.

Lava Happening

HONOLULU (AP) — It's called the Diamond Head Day-Glo Eruption Happening. The idea is to bring Diamond Head, the extinct volcanic crater that looms above Waikiki, back to life. Sort of.

The plan, part of a projected summer art project, calls for hundreds of electrical cables full of orange lights cascading down one side of the mountain on a night of a full moon sometime in August.

That's not all. Thousands of people clad in fluorescent orange T-shirts and hats will form a pool of "lava" at the base of Diamond Head.

The project is the creation of Arthur Nelander, whose last project was the Hanauma Bay Colored Headcovers Happening.

That spectacle, which received $500 in federal funds, won runner-up honors in the Golden Fleece Award given by Wisconsin Sen. William Proxmire for a project that, in his opinion, wastes taxpayers' money.

The Colored Heads? It was an aerial filming of 400 people walking along the bay wearing party hats color-coded to the wearer's race and sex.

Informer Reports Murder Plot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A government informer reportedly has told investigators that shortly before Jimmy Hoffa disappeared in 1975, he hatched a plot to kill Teamsters rival Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano.

Charles Allen, an informer and a professed hired killer, says the plot fizzled when one of two hired guns told Provenzano of it, the Philadelphia Bulletin reported today, quoting unidentified sources.

Investigators questioning Allen believe the tale could provide a strong motive for killing Hoffa, the newspaper said. The former Teamsters' president was last seen at a suburban Detroit restaurant July 30, 1975, and efforts to find him or his body have been fruitless.

Provenzano, 61, is serving a life sentence for the 1961 murder of Anthony Castellito, a potential Teamsters corruption witness.

At the time of his disappearance, Hoffa reportedly had been wrangling with factions aligned against him while angling to regain Teamsters reins.

He had been president of the union until a jury tampering conviction sent him to jail. Former President Richard Nixon commuted Hoffa's sentence in 1971.

Voters Will Decide Fate Of Utility

By The Associated Press

Chicago and Kansas City decide whether to keep their incumbent mayors for another term while Cleveland seeks a way to solve its financial woes in elections Tuesday.

The Chicago Democratic mayoral primary pits incumbent Michael A. Bilandic, a protégé of the late Richard J. Daley, against maverick Democrat Jane Byrne. One poll shows Bilandic leading, another has Mrs. Byrne ahead, and a third calls the race a tossup.

Bilandic, 56, was Bridgeport's alderman when Daley died Dec. 20, 1977, and the city council elevated Bilandic to the mayor's office. He easily won a June 1978 special election to fill the remainder of Daley's sixth, four-year term.

But Mrs. Byrne, 43, has run a lengthy, effective campaign that was aided by a record 86 inches of snow this winter. She blamed Bilandic and corruption at City Hall for failing to clear the streets of snow, collect the garbage and keep the mass transit system running during the bad weather.

In Cleveland, Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich says he doubts the validity of polls showing a big shift in voter sentiment in favor of keeping the Municipal Electric Light System.

"The only polls I put any stock in are those I get from (the) people," Kucinich said Sunday as he continued a busy schedule of campaigning. "It's very close right now and I can tell from getting around the city."

Earlier polls showed a wide majority of voters favoring sale of Muni Light, but results of one poll announced last week showed a big shift in the other direction.

In a television debate with Kucinich Saturday night, City Council President George L. Forbes also predicted that voters would vote in Tuesday's election to retain the 45,000-customer municipal power system. Forbes predicted that a 50 percent payroll tax increase, the other issue on Tuesday's ballot, would pass.

In Kansas City, Mo., Charles B. Wheeler is seeking a third four-year term as mayor, a feat never before achieved by a mayor of Kansas City.

He faces five challengers including three councilmen — Richard L. Berkley, Joel Pelofsky and Bruce R. Watkins, all calling for more aggressive leadership.

CIA Reportedly Searched Ranks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A published report says CIA officials once developed a case that the agency's counterintelligence chief James Angleton might be a Soviet agent, but William Colby, the CIA director who pressured Angleton into retirement, says he never had any doubts about his loyalty.

Newsweek magazine reported Sunday that a special CIA unit searching for a "mole," or high-level Soviet agent within the CIA's ranks, at one time developed a case against Angleton, but that top agency officials dismissed it in 1974 as too circumstantial and speculative.

Newsweek's report follows a year of printed and private speculation about the possibility of a Soviet mole inside the CIA. Fueled by the case of a low-level former CIA employee convicted recently of giving the Soviets a secret U.S. spy satellite manual, interest in the agency's decade-long search for a mole has generated newspaper and magazine stories and even been treated in a book.

Colby himself has begun public speeches by denying he is the mole.

The mole search was conducted largely by Angleton, and Newsweek reports that, although nothing was ever proved, a score of CIA officers came under suspicion of being moles during the 1960s and the careers of several suffered as a result.

Although Angleton and three of his top aides were forced into retirement in 1974 while Colby was still CIA director, Colby said in a telephone interview Sunday night. "Any such allegation wasn't a factor in Angleton's departure."

Colby said, "I never had any doubt about his loyalty at all. We had differences professionally but not on that subject." Asked about the case that was developed, Colby replied, "I frankly have forgotten the details of the matter and really can't comment."

In his book, "Honorable Men," Colby said he decided to remove Angleton because "I looked in vain for some tangible results from the counterintelligence field and found little or none." He complained about Angleton's "tortuous theories" about Soviet agents in western intelligence agencies.

The magazine said the case against Angleton was the result of an extensive two-year investigation of his career. That case stressed Angleton's heavy reliance on a defector from Soviet intelligence named Anatoly Goltsov and instances in which CIA files showed no action by Angleton on important leads, Newsweek said.

"I don't believe it," said Angleton in a telephone interview Sunday night. "It's a lot of garbage. There may have been individuals or an individual who did something but to my certain knowledge no organized group did such a study or had such suspicions."

Angleton said that given his 31-year career with the CIA, including 20 years as head of counterintelligence, any such suspicions of him would undoubtedly have led to investigations, including polygraph tests, by the FBI, the CIA's Office of Security and congressional committees. He said no such investigations had been undertaken.

Angleton also said his handling of Goltsov was entirely endorsed by his superiors in the CIA chain of command. He said no leads went unchecked unless they came from some other intelligence agency that asked the CIA not to look into them on its own.

CIA spokesman Herb Hetu said Sunday he was not familiar with such an investigation and that so far as he knew the current CIA director, Stansfield Turner, had never looked into the case. "That was before our time here," Hetu said. President Carter named Turner to head the agency in 1977.

Feds Join Crusade To Save Sea Cows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has joined the state of Florida in proposing to establish protection areas in that state's inland and coastal waters to keep the endangered manatee from moving closer to extinction.

The manatee is a warm-blooded vegetarian mammal also known as the sea cow. The Florida manatee population was reduced by about 10 percent last year, partly because the mammals were unable to evade oncoming boats and water skiers.

Specific sites for federal protection of manatees were proposed later, the Interior Department says.

Carter Objects To Brother's Comments

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says recent remarks by his brother Billy made about Jews are "objectionable and foreign to everything about the way we live our lives," according to a close White House adviser.

The remarks were the strongest Carter has made about his brother's comments, which he reportedly has been under pressure to publicly disavow.

Robert S. Strauss, former chairman of the Democratic Party who is now special U.S. trade representative, Sunday quoted Carter as telling him: "I am terribly concerned with the whole situation of Billy, including his health."

"You know, Bob, I just totally disassociate myself from his comments. They are objectionable and foreign to everything about the way we live our lives."

Strauss said the president knew he would pass on the comments to reporters.

Billy, 41, remained hospitalized Sunday in Americus, Ga., where he is undergoing treatment for bronchitis. His physician, Dr. Paul Broun, said he would probably remain in the hospital for a few more days.

"I'm not sure how fast he'll get over bronchitis," said Broun. "He's tired from a lot of his running around, and he needs a good rest as well."

The younger Carter made his remarks after being criticized for playing host last month to a group of Libyan businessmen.

Questioned about his association with the Libyans, Billy Carter was quoted as saying, "There's a hell of a lot more Arabians than there is Jews."

That response brought a sharp reaction from some American Jewish leaders. In turn, their response drew a stronger comment from Billy.

In an exchange with a Mutual Broadcasting System reporter about the Jewish criticism, Billy Carter was quoted as saying: "They can kiss my ... as far as I'm concerned now."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Getting Bakke To Basics

ALLAN BAKKE, by all accounts, is alive and well and attending medical school at the University of California at Davis.

That, as a matter of record, was all that Bakke ever wanted to do—but, to get there, he had to fight all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In a series of split decisions in the celebrated Bakke case, the court ruled that he had been discriminated against on account of race and ordered him admitted.

The admission Court also ruled out rigid quotas for racial minorities but said that affirmative action programs in higher education are a valid means of helping minority students overcome the effects of past societal discrimination.

BAKKE, A WHITE man, had been refused admission to medical school after a number of openings in each class had been set aside for, and filled by, minority students whose credentials were not so good as his.

After winning his case of reverse discrimination last summer, Bakke entered school in the fall and faced the twin tests of passing his studies and of gaining acceptance by his fellow students, including those who had been admitted under the school's special admissions program for minorities.

A first-year Chinese-American student who has several classes with Bakke noticed "no personal feelings of animosity toward Allan. He seems to be a nice guy, but then not many have gotten to know him."

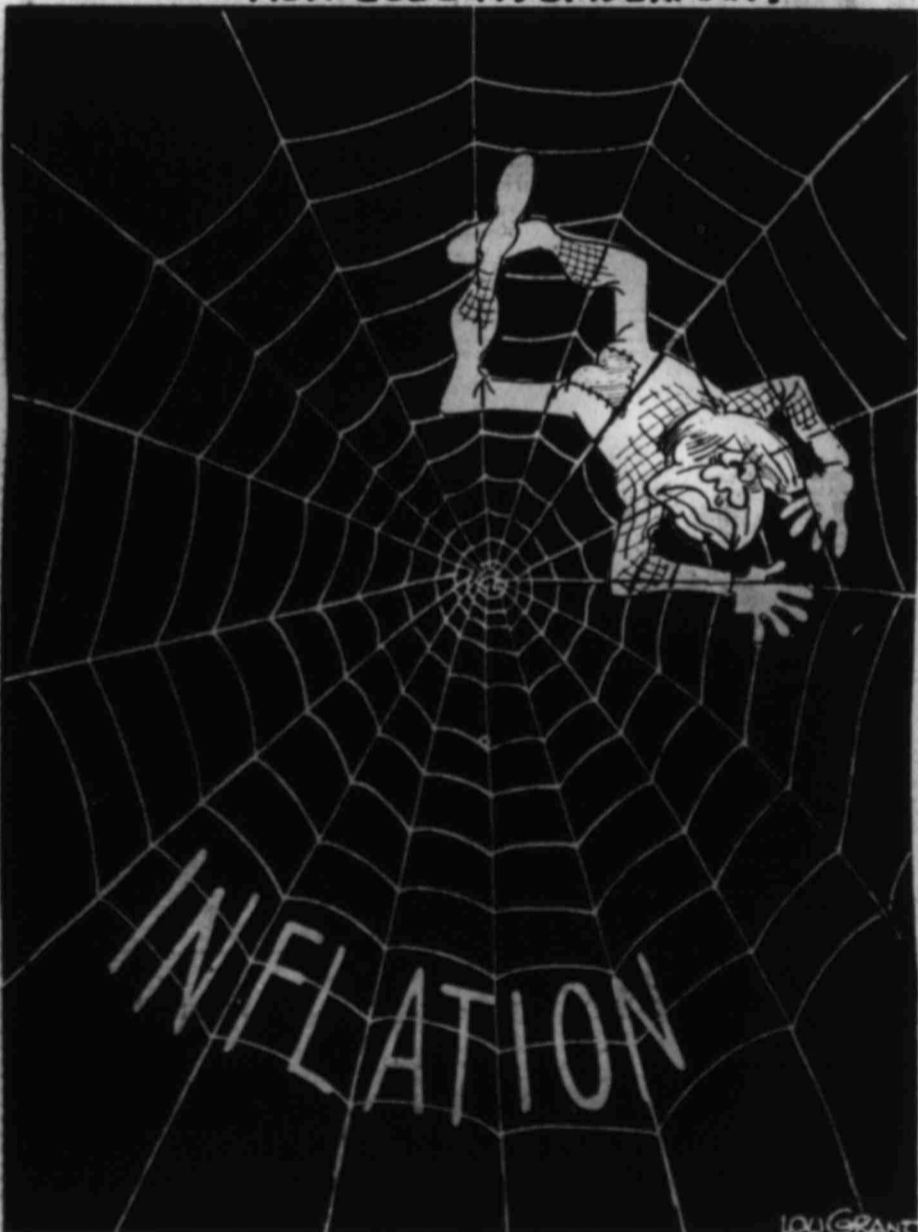

He said other students haven't purposefully avoided Bakke but "he's just kind of kept to himself. I guess he doesn't really know yet who his friends are."

BAKKE HIMSELF has remained publicly silent, as he has ever since the Supreme Court handed down its decision last June. Medical school administrators, meanwhile, report a drop in minority enrollment that worries them.

Unable to use quotas any longer, and operating in the limelight caused by the Bakke decision, UC-Davis does still have an affirmative action program. It gives extra points for among other things, race or ethnic origin of applicants.

Even so, it may be several years before the school fully overcomes effects which could have been avoided merely by treating everyone as individuals rather than as members of a racial group.

James J. Kilpatrick:

How Not To Help Old Folks

WASHINGTON—Somewhere within the mazes of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the little gnomes who write regulations are working up new guidelines for feeding the old folks.

The effect, on down the line, could be the death of one of the most appealing social services in the nation—the voluntary effort known as meals on wheels.

This is a melancholy story, but it is so sadly typical of what goes on in Washington that it begs examination. You will find no villains here; you will find only people wanting to do good.

You also will find a few little flaws of self-interest and perhaps some understandable desires to protect one's turf. It all adds up to the Washington disease.

THE STORY goes back about 25 years, to the time when Meals-on-Wheels in America was established as a non-profit, all-volunteer service to deliver hot meals to shut-ins.

At the time of some 1977 Senate hearings, it was estimated that a thousand groups now are engaged in this humane work.

Most of the groups are quite small, looking after no more than 25 or 30 recipients, but if the numbers are small, the loving care is large.

In the nature of things, it became impossible for professionals in health and welfare to pass up so fine an opportunity to get into the act.

In 1972, Congress provided for a congruence nutritional program for low-income old persons.

IN HUNDREDS of nutrition centers around the country, many thousands of recipients now gather for a hot meal five days a week.

In 1978, not content with the congruence program, Congress amended the Older Americans Act to provide tax funding for local meals on wheels.

In a publication just released by the American Enterprise Institute, Michael P. Balzano explains what has happened. The Washington disease is setting in.

Rules and regulations must now be imposed. These begin with the act itself, plus the 1978 amendments. Thirty-odd pages of preliminary rules already have been promulgated.

In addition, we have a 105-page Manual of Policies and Procedures put out by the Administration on Aging. The files already bulge with additional memoranda and instructions.

A DRAFT of final regulations for meals on wheels had been expected this week, but now it seems to be off until May.

Balzano sketches the probable provisions. The new regulations are likely to favor large programs over small ones. The bureaucracy that now runs the congruence centers would take over the supervision of the mobile operations.

More than meals would have been provided; shopping assistance and recreation would be folded in. The meals themselves would have to be prepared according to federal guidelines for men-

Not Much Sag In Cultural Lag

ST. CROIX—Call him Ishmael, which is not his name. Call him Australian, but he is a world citizen.

He is a slight man in immaculate white ducks, no fluent language except English, which has proved sufficient to take him anywhere as maitre de hote, factory supervisor, inhabitant of the integrated slums of East and West, student of racial psychology.

The vestiges of slavery are with us still. The cultural lag in huge nations like Russia, China, and India diminish with infinite slowness.

The world does not change, except by violence, and violence is too individual an action to matter much unless the devastations of nuclear science change us into peoples the earth has never seen.

ISHMAEL KNOWS there has always been the strain of blackness in persons, and that this will automatically cause the negro type and repressed Oriental to say "Yes, sir," to the white boss and then leave the work undone.

Partly it is racial cunning to avoid the task, but more so it is sheer inability of the long-neglected mind to comprehend any mechanical job that requires the application of thought.

There will always be individual exceptions, but the notion of universal equality and opportunity is chimerical, at least very distant.

The slave, the coolie and the peasant will join his own fraternity within the welfare state.

HE WILL take the white man's penny, but here in the West Indies, the Hess Oil Company, the Martin-Marietta aluminum plants and the Rockefeller Enterprises will bring white labor from distant continents to earn the dollar for Chase Manhattan.

The workers of color in Asia, Africa, the Atlantic and Pacific islands cannot do it. Ishmael has watched the pitiful efforts of the underlings to keep an identity, which is all they have, all they intuitively understand.

Ishmael has seen the cultural lag in many forms. He finds little difference between the secret police who governed Russians under Czar and commissar.

The Chinese potentates who come to visit the U.S. are the ancient war lords in modern dress. Nothing will change until the cultural lag is closed, and it is in our interests and the interest of all humanity to work at closing it.

Impatience and arrogance will always be impediments. This selfishness is purposeful to prolong for profit the unacknowledged slavery of more than half the world.

The cultural lag is the governor of speed. We had an idea with the Peace Corps. It needed only the time—the decades, the generations, perhaps centuries, to bring it off.

Ishmael believes there is no essential superiority among human races, but there are these man-imposed inhibitions which prevent the closing of them out of the plant in Westwego, La.

Now, the U.S. appeals court in Chicago has affirmed a National Labor Relations Board ruling that the company must pay the strikers an estimated $20 million in back wages for the three years they've been locked out.

Refusing to work and then getting paid for it doesn't seem quite fair to me.

IT'S INSTRUCTIVE and entertaining to compare tax ratings by the self-serving Coalition of Public Employees and the non-partisan, non-profit Tax Foundation Inc.

Calling for "reform"—as opposed to reduction—of state and local tax systems, CAPE has rated the 50 states and the District of Columbia for "fairness" in the taxes they collect from the citizenry.

Tax Foundation, on the other hand, has made a simple compilation of the per capita state and local taxes collected across the land.

The public employees' lobby gives high marks to states with personal income taxes and other taxes which tend to transfer income from one man to another. It gives low marks to states which rely heavily on sales and property taxes.

BY ITS MEASURE, the 10 best states in terms of tax equity are, in order: Oregon, Michigan, Wisconsin, California, Minnesota, Idaho, Hawaii, Colorado, Maine and Alaska.

The 10 "worst" states, in the public employees' view, are, starting at the bottom and working up: Alabama, Mississippi, Wyoming, Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Rhode Island, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois.

Not surprisingly, since their jobs and salaries depend on big spending, the public employees give the best ratings to the states that collect the most in taxes.

Eight of CAPE's "Best 10" states collect more taxes per capita than the national average, the Tax Foundation study shows. Seven of CAPE's "Worst 10" collect less than the national average.

IN ORDER OF rank, CAPE's "Best 10" states show up as Numbers 21, 13, 14, 3, 9, 34, 7, 18, 30 and 1 in the amount of taxes collected per capita. Its "Worst 10" show up as Numbers 50, 49, 6, 47, 35, 36, 22, 31, 44 and 15 in per capita taxes.

Texas, as you see, ranks 35th in per capita taxes, but don't rest easy. The "tax reformers" have been busy all this decade to reduce and reform the property tax, which will lead inevitably to a state income tax and move us up both in the amount of taxes collected per capita and toward the public employees' group's "Best 10" rankings.

Sylvia Porter:

Necessary Roughness Needn't Penalize You

(Fifth of 11 columns)
 NOT SINCE income averaging as a device for saving on taxes was written into law many years ago have so many millions of you had the chance to take advantage of this method of computing your tax to save money.

The reason: the galloping inflation in the U.S. since the mid-'70s has pushed huge numbers of you into ever-rising income brackets—and without being even aware of it, countless taxpayers may meet this basic rule for saving taxes.

The fundamental rule: you can save on taxes if your '78 taxable income exceeds 30 percent of your total income for the four years '74, '75, '76 and '77 (your base period) by more than $3,000.

If you qualify, you must fill out rather complicated Schedules G and TC and submit the schedules with your Form 1040.

IF YOU ARE a married taxpayer, check your tax returns for '74, '75, '76 and '77. Add up your total income for those four years and divide that total by four.

Then study the following figures prepared by the Research Institute of America to find out whether income averaging will save taxes as against your usual computation.

If the average of your income for the years 1974-77 is $7,200 or $9,200, you can save at least $100 in taxes if your 1978 income is $14,533.

You can also save $100 in taxes if your 1974-77 average income is $11,200 and your '78 income is $18,533; if your 1974-77 average is $13,200 or $15,200 and your '78 income is $22,533; if your 1974-77 average is $17,200 or $19,200 and your '78 income is $25,700; if your 1974-77 average is $21,200 and your '78 income is $29,700.

EQUALLY YOU can save at least $100 if your 1974-77 average income is $23,200 and your '78 income is $34,533; if your 1974-77 average is $28,200 and your '78 income is $38,533; if your 1974-77 average is $33,200 and your '78 income is $46,533; if your 1974-77 average is $39,200 and your '78 income is $52,200; if your 1974-77 average is $43,200 and your '78 income is $58,533; if your 1974-77 average is $49,200 and your '78 income is $67,200; if your 1974-77 average is $53,200 and your '78 income is $72,200; if your 1974-77 average is $63,200 and your '78 income is $82,533; if your 1974-77 average is $93,200 and your '78 income is $128,200; and if your 1974-77 average is $103,200 and your '78 income is $148,200.

But if your 1974-77 average income is $203,200, no savings are possible.

In computing your average income, your income for pre-'78 years must be increased by your zero bracket amount for '78.

Lightly Speaking...

The worst kind of gossip is the one who hints and runs.

Mr. and Mrs. Fike Traveler visited Ireland and Scotland last year and heard some people arguing over which whisky was stronger, scotch or Irish.

One explained why he was so sure Irish was stronger: "My wife and I drank a quart of it one night and got up the next morning and went to six o'clock mass."

A challenger demanded just what that proved. "We're both Baptists," the man explained.

TO ILLUSTRATE how income averaging can save taxes for you, let's say you're a single individual who had $9,800 of taxable income in 1974, $14,800 in 1975, $22,800 in 1976, $30,000 in 1977 and $38,000 in 1978.

This is not at all an unusual progression for these past few years of a wage-price spiral, with prices leaping over wages, then wages leaping over prices, etc. 1978 would be $12,190.

But by computing the '78 tax on Schedules G and TC with the use of income averaging, your 1978 tax comes to only $11,510.

You, a single individual taxpayer, therefore, save $680 on your 1978 income tax simply by computing your tax in a different way and using Schedules G and TC to submit the facts which will back up your tax savings.

You need not hunt for more deductions for yourself to reduce your 1978 tax substantially. You need not put yourself through tortuous mathematical computations to save on taxes.

You need not even bother with the complex schedules until you have followed the simple instructions of checking your tax returns for the four base years, adding the income and dividing the total by four.

THEN ALL YOU, a married taxpayer, have to do is look at the above figures to see if you can save at least $100.

(You can save smaller amounts, too, with smaller increases over your average income for the '74-'77 years. For instance, at the $13,200 level, you can save taxes if your '78 income is over $19,200. You save at least $100 when your '78 income hits the $22,533 mark. So it goes, right down the table—from $7,200 to $103,200.)

This is vitally important! Do not overlook income averaging this year. Check at once whether you can qualify.

U.S. May Use Military Force To Protect Oil Flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is prepared to use its military force to protect the flow of oil from the Middle East, say two members of President Carter's Cabinet.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Sunday the United States would "take any action that's appropriate" to protect the Mideast oil flow, which he said "is clearly part of our vital interest."

In a separate interview, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, said the administration is considering the "issue of a U.S. military presence" in the Persian Gulf area.

"That would involve military personnel," he said. "Whether it would involve a deployment of troops ... combat arms of the ground forces, is another question."

Only days ago, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said the administration had shut the door on using American troops abroad "except under the most extreme, compelling circumstances."

Brown, questioned on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," described the Middle East oil flow as "clearly part of our vital interests."

"In protection of these vital interests, we'll take any action that's appropriate, including the use of military force, but military force is not necessarily appropriate in every instance," he said.

Brown, who recently returned from a Middle East trip, said countries in that area are concerned about possible threats from outside the region and from nearby "more radical states."

Of the Soviet Union, he said, "It's well known that the Soviets are not responsible for all the problems in the area, but they clearly are willing to — in fact, eager — to fish in muddy waters by aiding one country against another."

On a Soviet threat, he said: "The U.S. is prepared to counter such a threat from a major power with whatever means are necessary. Again, let me say, the United States is prepared to defend its vital interests with whatever means are appropriate, including military force where necessary."

"Of course, we do not want to send American troops anywhere, except under the most extreme, compelling circumstances. When you talk about deploying American troops and risking American lives, you need the highest, the very highest set of national priorities to justify such a use of American manpower."

Solons, Carter Advisers Differ On Profit Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's top oil-price advisers are talking more and more frequently about the possibility of boosting domestic oil prices — with a new tax to capture whatever "windfall profits" result.

Initial congressional reaction is that Carter could set off another dogfight similar to the 1977 energy package controversy that took more than a year to clear Congress.

Congress considered "tax" a dirty word in the 1977-78 plan and cut any substantial tax out of it.

As for prices, there could be a replay of the old bitter debate about the effects on inflation and the blow suffered by some regions of the country.

A spokesman for Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, said Brown "feels any tax in the present situation is inappropriate ... Why would the president want to get into all that argument again?"

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said, "I am not at all sanguine about getting a windfall profits tax adopted. I have been bloodied before on that subject."

And Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said much of what Carter is contemplating for oil and gasoline prices would be inflationary. "The real central question is, is energy exempt from the anti-inflation fight?"

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., however, said many Republicans could go for a limit on profits if "accompanied with a rather rapid decontrol of oil prices."

That combination could spur production and any rapid "windfall" to the industry could be captured by the government, he said.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said recently higher prices for oil — and for its products such as gasoline — are needed so Americans can be talked into using less.

He acknowledged the difficulty that higher prices bring to the fight against inflation.

That is, he feels some inflationary things can be tolerated if they achieve other goals.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger repeatedly has told congressional hearings the administration is considering a windfall profits tax to prevent higher prices from going directly and totally into oil companies' coffers.

DR. LAMB Perhaps Prostate Trouble

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 59-year-old man and am very active. There must be an obstruction of my urinary tract or my bladder or my kidneys aren't functioning properly. I drink a lot of water, milk, iced tea and a six-pack of beer once or twice a week, but very little coffee.

When I relieve myself I have to keep making trips to the bathroom and have to go immediately. I have a hernia and have put the repair job off and am wondering if there may be pressure from the hernia that is affecting the bladder or kidneys. Is there any medicine that could relieve this condition? I don't recall having this problem when I was younger.

prostate operation. Your description of your difficulties isn't sufficiently detailed for me to have a very good idea if this is the problem or not.

A person with an enlarged prostate usually has trouble starting his stream and may have trouble stopping it. The stream is often small.

If there is a lot of trouble in passing urine, the bladder may be overdistended with retained urine, often causing a person to urinate frequently. The overfilled bladder keeps signaling that it needs to be emptied, but the person never succeeds in emptying it because of the obstruction from the enlarged prostate gland.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland, to give you a better idea of how this can affect you and what can be done about it. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Now regarding your hernia, if you're talking about a hernia in the groin, the pressure from such a hernia, if there is any at all, isn't near the urethra or bladder area.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you tell me the benefits, if any, derived from taking alfalfa tablets? The man at the health food store said I should take them for hay fever and would not need antihistamines. I bought a bottle and the directions say take four tablets with each meal. They smell and taste so bad I can hardly get one down, much less four. Please let me know about these alfalfa tablets' benefits so I can continue to force them down or throw them away.

DEAR READER — The benefits from alfalfa tablets are for the person who sells them. Don't expect them to do anything for your health, much less for you hay fever.

These and a host of other products are the modern equivalent of snake oil sold by a carnival barker at the traveling medical show. There are plenty of people who will listen to the claims because they want to believe some magic substance will cure all their problems. Life isn't that simple.

DEAR READER — Many people develop problems they didn't have earlier. Of course, you'll have to have an examination to find out exactly what is wrong. You could have a urinary tract infection. Another very likely possibility is that you have an enlarged prostate.

The prostate gland surrounds the urethra and can obstruct the outflow from the bladder. That's the main reason many men have to have a hernia, if there is any at all, isn't near the urethra or bladder area.

Goose Finds Friend In West Point Vet

NEW YORK (AP) — A wandering goose given a temporary home in a humane society shelter has found a permanent home in the Army.

The goose, called Sam, was adopted Saturday by Maj. Leo Staley, his wife Lindy, and daughters Felica, 12, and Leticia, 9. The major is senior veterinarian at West Point and already has three other geese and a home with a pond and land for roaming.

Sam was wandering homeless on Staten Island when the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals took him under its wing.

Government Buys 64 Reading Machines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has signed a $2 million contract with the developer of a reading machine for the blind and plans to put 64 of the devices in public schools, colleges, libraries and rehabilitation centers.

The machines, at $19,400 each, are smaller and more advanced than $50,000 versions developed earlier by the company, Kurzweil Computer Products, and now in use in 40 educational settings, say officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The machine scans printed copy and reads out the text.

Talmadge 'Rededicates' Himself To Georgians

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge, announcing that he will soon be released from an alcoholic rehabilitation program, said today he feels strengthened "spiritually, mentally, physically," and "I am ready to report for duty in the United States Senate."

The Georgia Democrat, whose finances have been under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee and a federal grand jury, said, "I rededicate myself to serving the people of Georgia in the United States Senate for as long as they wish me to do so."

Talmadge made the remarks about returning to the Senate in a statement released prior to a news conference at which he discussed his alcoholism. "I probably took my personal problems to the bottle rather than to my maker," Talmadge said.

"I recognized that first when I went into Bethesda hospital," he said. "Anyone that drinks compulsively is an alcoholic."

Talmadge's doctor, Capt. Joseph Purch, said of Talmadge, "All of his mental and physiological functions have returned to normal. His prognosis is excellent as long as he abstains from alcohol and other mind-altering drugs."

"I say again, lest there be any doubt, I will be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate next year," Talmadge said in his statement.

Talmadge said his decision to enter the program at the Naval Regional Medical Center here was "one of the most important decisions I have ever had to make in my entire public and private life."

Talmadge was transferred to the Long Beach facility on Jan. 25 three days after he was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland for what his aides called treatment for "exhaustion, fatigue and alcohol abuse, which associates said was the result of prolonged stress and pressures."

No specific date has been set for his release, according to press aide Gordon Roberts said.

The most recent pressures on Talmadge began during a lengthy and bitter divorce action with Betty, his wife of 35 years. The couple was granted a divorce in October 1977 but Talmadge's finances came under intense scrutiny during a property dispute.

The Ethics Committee voted in June 1978 to conduct an investigation into Talmadge's personal finances after published reports quoted Talmadge as saying he accepted small amounts of money from Georgia residents to cover out-of-pocket expenses and accepted $7,500 from a series of birthday celebrations in his honor.

In August 1978, Talmadge's former administrative assistant, Daniel Minchew, claimed that $13,000 in Senate reimbursements and $26,000 in campaign contributions were deposited in 1973 and 1974 in an account at the Riggs National Bank in Washington and then were distributed at Talmadge's direction to members of the senator's family.

Talmadge has said those funds were "procured without my knowledge or consent" and has said the account was "simply a case of embezzlement by a former administrative assistant."

On Dec. 18, 1978, the Ethics Committee voted 4-1 to hold formal hearings in the Senate on Talmadge's finances. No date has been set for the hearings.

Talmadge's finances also are under investigation by a federal grand jury in Washington.

China Asks U.S. Help On Taiwan

PEKING (AP) — China's finance minister asked Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal for help today in removing Taiwan from four international financial organizations as Blumenthal opened talks on settling $197 million in U.S. claims for property seized by Chinese Communists.

According to a U.S. official who attended the first day of talks, Chinese Finance Minister Chang Ching-fu said he "deplored" the fact that the institutions still recognize Taiwan, which he referred to as a "province of the motherland."

"The government of the People's Republic of China is the only representative of the people of China," Chang was quoted as saying.

The World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, the International Finance Corporation and the Asian Development Bank were the four institutions Chang mentioned, said the U.S. official, Assistant Treasury Secretary Joseph Laitin.

Laitin quoted Chang as asking the United States "for help in bringing about a prompt settlement of this question."

The issue is a vital one for China, since the country could be entitled to as much as $700 million a year in development loans from the World Bank alone, much of it interest-free.

Officials in the United States and from the financial institutions have said nothing has to be done about the problem until China actually tries to take the Chinese seat in the organizations, which it has not yet tried to do.

Laitin said Chang and Blumenthal also discussed how China intends to pay for its ambitious development plans, and Chang said China was willing to switch from oil to coal for domestic energy to make more oil available for export and pay for imports.

Laitin also quoted Blumenthal as saying during the talks that he would "like to see a building with a big sign on it, saying 'Bank of China,' on Wall Street."

Laitin said the settlement of the claims was discussed, and talks will continue in smaller working groups.

Americans hope to get the Chinese to agree to pay 40 cents on the dollar. China has a counter claim for about $80 million in assets in the United States which the U.S. government froze.

Blumenthal, who lived in Shanghai as a teen-ager during World War II, greeted Vice Premier Yu Qiu-li and other officials in Chinese as they met in a conference room of the Great Hall of the People.

There was no indication of any strain resulting from Blumenthal's criticism of the Chinese invasion of Vietnam during his toast at a banquet in his honor Sunday night. He said then that if the conflict continues, it could slow the development of Chinese-American relations because "our bilateral relations, particularly our commercial and scientific relations, will only flourish in a world of peace and stability."

Blumenthal is expected to express the U.S. government's concern over the China-Vietnam war again Tuesday afternoon when he meets with Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping.

The secretary is seeking settlement of nearly 400 claims by American businesses and individuals. The largest is one for $3.8 million by the Boise Cascade Corp. for the Shanghai Power Co., a subsidiary.

Until the American claims are settled, the U.S. Congress will be reluctant to give favorable tariff treatment to Chinese goods or to approve loans by the Export-Import Bank to help finance Chinese purchases from the United States.

Blumenthal said he would also begin discussion of a bilateral trade agreement under which both countries would agree on both the amount and kind of goods they would trade. He told the Chinese the United States also wants agreements on shipping and air traffic between the two countries.

Blumenthal arrived Saturday for a nine-day visit.

Pennsylvanian Turns Corn Stalks Into Fuel

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Getting fed up with big utility bills? Ingenious Pennsylvanians have come up with three options, and the essentials — wind, sun and corn stalks — are free, or close to it. Corn stalks? Well, William E. Bradley's Bucks County farmhouse was smack-dab in the middle of acres of the stuff, so why not?

Bradley, concerned about the rising cost of energy, had a brainstorm last September as he gazed out the window of his house in rural Pineville. What he saw was corn. But what he thought was cellulose — and energy. Oil, Bradley says, delivers 21,000 British Thermal Units per pound. Cellulose delivers 7,000 BTUs per pound.

And while oil may be three times more efficient, corn stalks and other burnable items are more plentiful. "I turned my attention to corn," said Bradley, an engineer drawn to his specialty because he was fascinated by the "spectacular aspects of science" as a boy.

He gathered statistics on his cornfields and found that there were 14 cornstalks to every 10 feet in a row. He then dried some stalks in his oven, weighed them and determined that there are about 12 tons of dried cellulose per acre of cornstalks. "For convenience in figuring, make it 10 tons per acre," he said. "With each ton delivering one million BTUs, I did some calculating and figured that four acres of cornfield would provide all the heat I'd need for a year."

His next challenge was to find an engine that can run on cornstalks. Bradley turned to the Stirling Engine, which he says was invented by a Scottish minister more than 100 years ago but has been neglected because of the availability of oil and gasoline engines.

The engine generates electricity using any heat-producing material, Bradley says. Its pistons pump back and forth powered by air movement caused by the heating and cooling of the air.

A small model of the engine is available, but Bradley says no one produces it commercially. He figures he can build a demonstration unit without government money and set up an experimental installation at his home.

Bradley says he's not thinking about going into the cornstalk-fuel business, but he might be available as a consultant — a familiar role for him as a former member of President Eisenhower's Gaither Committee who now travels to Washington, D.C., twice a week to do consultant work for the Institute of Defense Analyses.

Meanwhile, Richard Shainline is casting his fate to the wind: Shainline, a 35-year-old wholesale tire warehouse worker who lives in Shippack Township, Montgomery County, is all set to sell energy to his local power company.

Shainline turned up his gigantic, 200,000-watt windmill in mid-September. And if the cost sounds exorbitant, consider the fact that the annual bill for his all-electric home had reached $1,800.

His windmill is not a creaking reminder of the Netherlands. A massive, steel-tube tower supports 40-foot blades made of high-tensile-strength aircraft aluminum and inspired by a NASA wingtip design.

It is directed by a control panel in Shainline's garage with solid-state plugs that permit the machine to operate unattended for long periods, turning itself off and on according to the wind speed.

Philadelphia Electric Co. officials worked with Shainline throughout planning and construction, devising a hook-up system that provides him with power during long windless periods — and enables PE to purchase power from Shainline when his windmill produces more than the household needs.

There is also the story of 10 mechanical-engineering students at Drexel University who, with assistance from two physics students and faculty members, have added a 21st-century touch to a 19th-century red-brick rowhouse.

The house on 34th Street looks much like its neighbors — but a second glance reveals a solar-energy system that provides about 80 percent of the energy needed to heat the water supply for the building's five apartments dubbed, predictably, the Solar Apartments.

The system uses student-built and student-designed solar panels — Drexel's Double Exposure Collectors — with mirrors that increase the amount of heat collected.

Dolphin Doctor Finds Duties Troublesome

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — In a profession where balky customers are the rule, J. Lawrence Dunn's are the slipperiest around.

Dunn, 37, is a dolphin doctor — the staff veterinarian for Mystic Marine Life Aquarium and one of only a handful of marine mammal specialists in the country.

Dunn sees his share of dogs and cats as head of a Charlestown, R.I., animal hospital. But twice a week he gets to deal instead with dolphins, whales, seals and other ocean mammals that pose problems not often seen by other vets.

Getting a blood sample from a dolphin, for example, means draining the animal's pool and enlisting a crew of helpers to hold the animal down.

Even then, Dunn says, a large dolphin can — and often does — knock over a half-dozen handlers before the deed is done.

Getting the needle in a vein is only part of the problem, Dunn says. Dolphins can shift blood away from their skins toward their vital organs, and getting a blood sample can easily take an hour.

The work also has rewards. Aquarium animals are much more on their own than household pets are, Dunn says. And, unlike some pet owners, the aquarium spends freely to ensure that its charges get the best possible care, he adds.

Dunn says marine mammals are a challenge because comparatively little is known about treating them.

"A drug you may be able to give to a land animal with no problems, you give it to one of these animals and you may have a dead dolphin," he explains.

Even something as simple as a skin irritation is not so simple when the skin is a whale's.

"If it were a dog, I would probably give the owner some ointment," says Dunn. "That's not going to work here. You often have to try to cure the condition which may have caused the problem."

Even though his unusual practice requires feats such as reaching down a whale's throat to check for growths or stomach ulcers, Dunn is happy with it.

Hillsboro Man Accepts Ride, Pays Consequences

A 44-year-old Hillsboro man told Lubbock police he was robbed Sunday by a man and woman who had offered him a ride.

Toni Valdez said he was leaving a pool hall on 13th Street when the couple asked if he wanted a lift. Reports indicate the couple drove the man to the 400-block of Oak Avenue, where the woman pulled a blue-steel pistol and ordered him out of the vehicle.

Valdez said the pair ordered him to put his hands on top of the car, then took his billfold containing $25. The bandits reportedly took Valdez' boot off looking for more cash, but the victim broke away and ran to a private residence and called police.

Another incident resulted in Gilbert Munoz Espinoza, 68, of 1213 Ave. T being sent to West Texas Hospital with a stab wound reportedly suffered at his home about 12:40 a.m. Sunday. He was listed in satisfactory condition today.

Espinoza, who took a taxi to the hospital, told police he was asleep when a Mexican-American man opened his front door and demanded money.

The suspect left, but not before he allegedly hit Espinoza on the cheek and stabbed him several times on the hands.

A 31-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was assaulted at her home about 9:20 p.m. Sunday by a man she formerly lived with.

She said she was confronted by the 29-year-old suspect at her sister's home in the 1100-block of Avenue V. She said she was grabbed, knocked to the ground and kicked several times after she bit the suspect on the finger.

The assailant was last seen running in an alley on Avenue V. Joel Beard of 2020 16th St., rear, suffered more than $1,000 in losses when burglars struck his residence between 8:30 p.m. and 2:20 a.m. today.

He said he came home to discover his door window broken out and property, including a stereo, guns and television set, missing.

Michael Rance Rhodes, owner of Papa Vincenzo Pizza and Italian Sandwiches at 2314 50th St., said his business lost $700 in cash when someone stole a money bag from a back office about 11 p.m. Sunday.

Police were investigating the reported aggravated rape of a woman who told officers a black man awoke her about 2:45 a.m. Saturday while she was asleep in her house.

She said the man, described as 26-35, tall and thin and wearing a gray coat with dark pants, told her the police were looking for him. He asked her to look for them out the window, she said, and when she turned, he grabbed her and forced her into the bedroom.

He held a knife to her throat and raped her, she reported.

A woman told police she was kicked and shot at by two men she had hired to drive her home.

She said she was walking in the 1100-block of North Avenue S when the two suspects in a car stopped beside her. She offered them $2 to drive her to her home in the 4500-block of 45th Street, she said.

Instead, they drove east to a dirt road, where she was ordered to remove her clothes, she said.

The victim reported that when she resisted, one of the men dragged her from the car, kicked her in the head and ribs, then shot at her. He missed, and the pair drove off, she said.

Jimmy Tipton told police someone entered his 222 37th St., Apt. A, residence between 6:30 and 10:30 p.m. Saturday and took $3,000 worth of household goods, including a black-and-white television, stereo system, tools and jewelry.

A reel-to-reel tape deck valued at about $400 was reported taken by Earl Johnson, who said the equipment was stolen from his 4900 Fourth St., Apt. 201A, home Saturday afternoon.

Price Of Fuel Oil May Increase Further

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of the fuel oil used to heat some apartments and buildings and to power factories and electrical generators may rise still further as a result of a reported increase in the price of the fuel by a key exporter.

The world's fourth-largest oil producer decided over the weekend to raise the price of some of its oil by 15 percent, according to industry sources.

There was no official confirmation of a price increase.

The oil affected would reportedly be mostly heavy refined oil used for heating some apart and other buildings and for firing factory boilers. Gasoline prices probably would not be affected by the move because that fuel is a different product.

Venezuela is a key source of heavy oil for the East Coast of the United States. The East Coast imports about 17 times as much of this oil as the rest of the nation.

The Middle East Economic Survey, an authoritative oil publication published in Nicosia, Cyprus, reported today that the increase will take effect March 1 and that it will vary from $2.10 to $2.51 a barrel.

It said the largest increase will be for the lesser polluting, low-sulphur crude oil from $16.49 to $19 with high-sulphur crude rising from $11.40 to $13.50.

The news letter said the Venezuelans also made it clear they have no fuel available for spot sales.

For East Coast fuel-oil customers, whose bills already have risen by about 15 percent this winter, the increase could mean an additional 10 percent rise, according to analysts.

The American Petroleum Institute said the reported increase would affect residual oil, but not such products as gasoline or No. 2 home heating oil, which is used in most homes that heat with oil. The API said it could not confirm the reports.

Not only will the increase drive heating bills up, but it will add to inflation in other ways. Factories will be paying more for fuel, an added cost that will eventually be passed on to customers. And utilities, which rely strongly on heavy fuel oil to power electrical generating plants, could probably be expected to ask for rate increases to cover the additional costs.

A.D. Price, a spokesman for Asiatic Petroleum Co., a major importer of fuel oil from Venezuela, said the reported increase probably was true.

"We have heard reports that they would raise the price of fuel oil on March 1, and on past performances we would expect that to happen," he said. "They've been raising it every month recently, and I wouldn't expect March to be any different."

And in Washington, Henry E. Bergold, assistant secretary for international affairs at the Energy Department, said when oil exporters decide to raise prices, "they don't phone anybody up; they just start charging higher prices."

Bergold said no price increase had been expected specifically from Venezuela but noted that several other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had raised prices recently in an attempt to take advantage of the supply squeeze caused by the shutdown of Iranian oil production. "That's the general trend," he said.

Analysts fear OPEC may decide to speed up its gradual price increases this year. Designed to raise the price of crude oil by 14.5 percent from last year's levels by Oct. 1, the increases begin with a 5 percent rise Jan. 1. The next, of about 4 percent, is set for April 1.

But several of OPEC's smaller members including Libya, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar — have pushed up prices by 5 percent to 7 percent on their own. And Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest member, is charging about 10 percent extra on the one million barrels a day it is making over its usual 8.5 million to cover shortages caused by the Iranian shutdown.

Analysts say the effect of those increases probably would not be felt on consumer prices of gasoline and heating oil, because the amounts involved are a small portion of total world oil supply.

Junior Historians Slate Regional Conference

About 200 junior historians will be on the Lubbock Christian College campus Saturday for a regional meeting of the Lubbock-Panhandle area Junior Historians chapters.

The idea of holding regional meetings around the state is an innovation begun by the state organization this year. Junior Historians cultivate a taste for the past by studying historical events of their own communities and regions.

The state director, headquartered at the University of Texas in Austin, believes the regional approach will serve several functions: to increase contacts between chapter members and faculty sponsors; to stimulate enthusiasm for the spring activities such as the state convention and writing contests, and to educate students about a historic community or institution in their area.

On Saturday, a presentation on the American cowboy and a visit to a museum plus a barbecue lunch await the Junior Historians who attend the daylong meeting.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. at the Mabec American Heritage Center on the LCC campus. The opening session is scheduled for 9:30 to 9:45 a.m., with rap sessions slated for 9:45 to 10:15 a.m.

Following a 15-minute break, Bill Lewtich, a Lubbock artist who for many years has been associated with LCC, will give a 90-minute presentation on the American cowboy.

A barbecue lunch will be provided at LCC by the South Plains American Heritage Program.

Following lunch, the group will tour the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech University.

Attendants at the regional meeting will be from Aspermont, Post, Petersburg, Wolfforth, Slaton, Plainview, Muleshoe, Floydada and Lubbock.

Local hosts will be the Plains American Heritage Program and the South Plains American Heritage Program.

Plans for the Lubbock meeting have been made through Dr. David DeBoe, educational services director for the Texas State Historical Association. Other regional meetings have been held at Austin, Waxahachie, Galveston and Jefferson.

Lack Of Fuel Forces Flight Cancellations

A-J News Services
Trans World Airlines today canceled five flights from Kansas City, Mo. and National Airlines suspended an international flight from New York because of shortages of jet fuel.

Several other airlines said they were keeping a close eye on tight fuel supplies, but that none of their flights have had to be canceled.

TWA canceled six of its 53 flights from Kansas City Sunday, which were reinstated today when five other flights were suspended. National Airlines, which has periodically canceled flights since Feb. 13 because of jet fuel shortages at Kennedy International Airport said its New York-to-Amsterdam flights today and Tuesday were canceled.

"We're continuing to monitor this on a day-to-day basis. We have no other problem throughout our system," said Harvey Berman, a National spokesman.

Trans World's cancellations, the airline's first since the widespread oil shortages caused by the Arab oil embargo of 1973, resulted from reductions in fuel from Texaco and Champlin, major TWA suppliers, said spokesman Larry Hilliard. National is also supplied by Texaco at New York's JFK Airport.

Texaco and other jet-fuel suppliers reported earlier this month they were experiencing spot shortages. The tight supply has been caused by the cutoff of oil from Iran, a result of political upheaval there, and by a travel boom that hit the nation's airlines last summer as deregulation led to reduced fares.

Spokesmen for airlines flying in and out of Lubbock said they have experienced no fuel shortages locally or system-wide, and do not anticipate any.

"We should have enough fuel to carry us through," said John Patterson of Continental Airlines regional office here.

Southwest, Continental, Texas International and Braniff International all have daily service through Lubbock International Airport.

Director of Aviation Marvin Coffee was not available for comment this morning.

Other airlines, including United, Eastern, American, Delta and Northwest say they have not had to cancel any flights so far. But several reported spot shortages developing at certain fueling terminals.

Bill Dreslin, a spokesman for American Airlines in New York, said the airline had made some adjustments by fueling some planes further along a route when shortages developed at some fueling stops.

"We haven't had to cancel any flights at this point. At the moment we are still hopeful we can work around any spot shortages which may crop up," he said.

Two of the canceled TWA flights Sunday were to Chicago, two to St. Louis, one to Boston and one to Miami. TWA said they would be reinstated today and the following flights would be grounded: two to New York, one to St. Louis, one to Pittsburgh and one to Columbus, Ohio.

If fuel supplies increase, the full flight schedule could be restored by Tuesday, TWA spokesman Louis Fourie said in New York.

Governors Attack Brown's Convention Crusade

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battery of his colleagues attacked California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s constitutional convention crusade today as theatrical politics and a simplistic approach to the balanced budget debate.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, also coached the governors on the constitutional problems of the balanced budget campaign.

"I for one am upset by the theatrical stage we seem to find in Washington," said Illinois Gov. James Thompson, a Republican, in response to Democrat Brown's insistence on a national convention to write a balanced budget requirement into the federal Constitution.

Speaking at the opening general session of the National Governors' Association winter meeting, Thompson attacked what he called "the state's holding the sword of a constitutional convention over their (Congress') head."

Democratic Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona also said, "This entire debate has taken on a positively poisonous cast."

"Like Gov. Thompson, I think that a call for a constitutional convention is simplistic, that it threatens to divert us from the real issues," Babbitt added.

And Gov. Richard W. Riley of South Carolina, also a Democrat, agreed that the convention idea is "an over-simplistic approach to a complex problem."

However, Brown, who has been leading a national drive to force a balanced budget through a constitutional convention, said Sunday he plans to press on with the effort despite a setback in his own state last week when the legislature refused to endorse the convention call. Twenty-eight states have issued some form of call for a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget.

In his speech, Rodino urged caution in dealing with a budget amendment.

He said the Judiciary Committee will open hearings soon for a careful examination of the growing demand for a balanced budget and suggested this is better than the constitutional convention being pushed by the more avid balanced budget advocates.

"Clearly, it is time to act, to provide a forum for full inquiry and deliberation on all aspects of this issue," Rodino said. "We are doing that in the Congress now, moving quickly on the preparations for hearings."

"We will seek to transform the babble on the budget balancing issue into distinct testimony, to move away from polemics and toward insights, to replace simplistic slogans or cumbersome complexities with clear and coherent understanding," Rodino said.

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll, also a Democrat and chairman of the government's association, said he invited Rodino because Carroll thinks the movement to call a constitutional convention that would draft a balanced-budget amendment is becoming so confusing as it is heated. And he called it "reckless" behavior.

Brown and Carroll did agree that the states should be prepared to do without their allotment of federal revenue-sharing aid if necessary to help Uncle Sam get his books in order. But this brought on another brouhaha from their colleagues.

The governors' executive committee promptly voted support of continued revenue sharing although they were willing, the members said, to accept "their share" of federal spending cuts.

Like President Carter, the governors have been on record for some time in favor of a balanced federal budget. They say they are required to operate in the black and Washington should do the same.

Panel Settles Misunderstanding

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Commissioner's Court this morning settled a misunderstanding over private sewage system regulations that may have caused many county residents to pay excessive permit fees.

Lubbock City Health Department officials brought the controversy to light by asking the commissioners for an opinion of the proper permit charge for county residents provided inspections by the health department under a city-county contract.

Under the existing contract which will expire in December 1979, city health officials are authorized to perform private sewage system inspections and percolation tests prior to granting a permit for construction in both the city and county. Within city limits, the health department is legally entitled to charge a $45 flat rate, health department director Dr. Marjorie Orr said, regardless of the number of percolation tests performed.

The existing contract states that permit charges in the county will be $10 for the inspection and $12.50 for each percolation test.

In responding to Dr. Orr's question about the difference in the rates, County Judge Rod Shaw said he had received a recent complaint from a county resident informing him that the health department charged the $45 fee despite having conducted no percolation test.

The commissioners and the health department officials did not resolve whether county residents erroneously charged the $45 fee would receive refunds, but Dr. Orr said the city Health Department now had a clearer understanding of its responsibilities.

In another matter, the commissioners voted to approve a request that the County Juvenile Probation Department increase its foster care rates to maintain competitiveness with state appropriations.

Lloyd Watts, county juvenile probation officer, told the court that the Texas Department of Human Resources in January increased its allotments for foster family-foster home care to $198 per month and for basic child care in institutions to $228 per month. The juvenile probation department currently pays local foster family-foster care facilities $100 per month and child care institutions $190 per month, Watts said.

The new appropriations will enable the juvenile probation department to pay $195 and $225 respectively. The appropriations to the juvenile department are necessary, Watts explained, because TDHR only provides care for neglected or abused children. The juvenile department cares for delinquent children.

Undernourished Infant Responds To Treatment

An infant, referred to this morning only as "Baby Boy Number One," was reportedly responding to treatment after being hospitalized Saturday for malnutrition and a possible injury to the cheek.

The baby, thought to be about 2½ months old, was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital about 5 p.m. Saturday by a child welfare worker.

Ann Ruten, case worker with the Texas Department of Human Resources, said the infant's parents left the child with a babysitter at 5 p.m. Friday, saying they would pick him up about 1 a.m. Saturday. They didn't.

The sitter, who notified authorities about 4 p.m. Saturday, said the infant was left with only a bottle of milk, and that was spoiled. Police at the scene said the infant appeared undernourished and possibly was suffering from a cigarette burn on the right cheek.

A hospital spokesman said today the baby weighed about 6 pounds. A pediatrician said the infant should weigh slightly more than 11 pounds.

The spokesman said, however, that the child was responding to treatment, and that he was in good condition this morning. He said the baby would remain in the hospital several more days, and authorities still don't know who the infant will be turned over to when he is dismissed.

Capt. Bill Cox, head of police juvenile division, said the parents had not been found, but it was thought they lived in a trailer house in East Lubbock.

City Unemployment Declines

Unemployment in the Lubbock area dipped significantly last month, the Texas Employment Commission, reported today.

The commission estimated unemployment at mid-January to be 2,600, or 3.5 percent of the Lubbock labor force. This represents a decline from 4,140, or 3.9 percent of the total work force, as of mid-December, 1978.

According to the commission, the drop is contrary to the usual pattern for this time of year, and well below the 4.2 percent unemployment rate recorded in January 1978.

This month's employment gain occurred in spite of regular seasonal layoffs in non-agricultural wage and salary employment. TEC officials said. Approximately 1,920 workers in that category were cut back between mid-December and mid-January. The commission attributed almost one-half of the total loss to a decline in retail trade after Christmas.

TEC officials say some improvement in the employment picture usually occurs during the early months of the year, but predict little variation from the present rate between now and April.

Transportation and allied fields are the only segment of the employment picture expected to show further declines by April, according to the report.

Knight was thrown 18 feet from the vehicle, which then rolled over four more times, police said.

He was transported to Methodist by EMS.

ATHLETIC SLEEPWEAR — "Jogging is fun" reads this two-piece polyester knit pajama set. A popular daytime sport, jogging has influenced the sleepwear styles for spring and summer, adding a cheerful note to the dreaded "bedtime" hour.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I just lost the only man I ever loved. When I came home last evening I found a note from Jimmy saying, "Goodbye" — after we lived together for a year.

In his note he said that my job was changing me into a hard person, and he couldn't ask me to quit because he thought it was what I really wanted to do. (It's not true. I hate my work, but the money is too good to pass up.)

Abby, I am a prostitute. The money helped pay our bills. Jimmy's job didn't pay much, but we needed the bread.

I know there will never be another man in my life like Jimmy. He loved the real me — not just my body.

Should I quit my profession and go after him? I know he still loves me.

Please don't say where this letter is from. My father is a minister and my folks don't know what I do for a living.

Working Girl

Dear Girl: Quit your job and go after him. Jesus forgave a woman in your profession. Could Jimmy do less?

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to Sparkling, who feels that her engagement ring is "on loan," disturbed me. (The ring was purchased by her fiancé's mother and given to her with the understanding that in the event of a divorce, it would be returned.)

Abby, a marriage that begins by working out a possible divorce settlement doesn't sound like it has too much going for it. And returning Mama's ring — as you suggest — just might speed up a split.

The first year of marriage is hard enough without playing hot potato with an engagement ring.

I say Sparkling should keep the ring. It, like her husband, now belongs to her — not Mama.

Long Island Laurie

Dear Laurie: A marriage with the divorce settlement worked out in advance is sometimes preferable to one without, should the couple split. (And today, one in three do.) I still think since Sparkling feels that her engagement ring is "on loan" she should return it and do without until her husband can buy her one.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ5 ♥K8 ♦AJ1075 ♠KQ4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With 18 points and a good five-card suit, your hand was too strong for a one no trump opening. Now, however, you must do something to show your strength. A jump to four clubs seems like the obvious choice, but that does have drawbacks—it exposes the king of hearts to a lead through and bypasses the no trump game, which could be the safest spot. We prefer a jump to three no trump to protect our tenaces.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♥KQ83 ♦KJ10752 ♠943
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
Pass 2 NT ?

What action do you take?
A.—Not vulnerable does not mean invulnerable. The auction has warned you that you can expect little, if anything, from partner and that East holds both missing diamond honors. To bid again simply means that you are offering the opponents two bites at the cherry—they can either bid game or double you, whichever they feel would be more profitable.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ1076 ♥A952 ♦K6 ♠J2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Dble.
Pass 2 ♥ 3 ♠ 3 ♥

What action do you take?
A.—Your side has the balance of power, but it is by no means certain that you can make game. Therefore, we would make an effort to penalize the opponents for what may be a major indiscretion by doubling. If partner has a distributional hand, unsuited for defense, he is free to pull the double.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦K73 ♥6 ♦KJ9632 ♠AQ8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—With a hand good enough to open the bidding, you must make some show of strength. You don't want to jump in no trump with such an unbalanced hand and only one stopper in the unbid suit, and a jump to three diamonds really suggested a better suit. The only reasonable option left is a rebid of three clubs.

Q.5—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K105 ♥AKJ6 ♦AJ92 ♠K8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Since partner probably has only three-card support for your suit, you don't want to bid game in hearts, but three no trump might also be the wrong spot. By bidding three spades now, you will give partner the additional information he may need to select the proper contract.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦95 ♥83 ♦A109762 ♠AJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ 1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's no trump overall shows the equivalent of a no trump opening bid, i.e., a balanced hand of 16-18 points. One glance at your fine six-card suit and side ace and the winning bid is obvious—three no trump. That should be a safer contract than the eleven-trick minor-suit game.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A92 ♥AJ1074 ♦KJ87 ♠8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?
What action do you take?

A.—There is no doubt that you can defeat two diamonds. However, if you double, the penalty is unlikely to be sufficient recompense for missing a vulnerable game—your spade holding weakens the defensive potential of your hand and increases its offensive potential. Therefore, we suggest that you respond two hearts. Reverse the spade and club holdings, and the double would be a standout.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦8752 ♥9542 ♦KJ6 ♠KJ
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ Dble. ?
What action do you take?

A.—With four-card support and some defensive values, we see no reason why you shouldn't make your normal bid. Raise to two hearts.

At Wit's End...

BY ERMA BOMBECK

It's coming and no one can stop it. I'm talking about the pairing up of people who share common attributes. The division of smokers vs. non-smokers, joggers vs. non-joggers, drinkers against teetotalers, those with exact change and those without.

Now it's a college in Maine which, in the hopes of cutting fuel bills, is asking students whether they're normally cold-blooded or hot-blooded. Once the division is made, all the cold-blooded students will be placed in the heated dormitories and the hot-blooded ones can sit by an open window and perspire.

Forgive my optimism, but I think this is definitely a breakthrough in the War of Differences. The reason why we have had so much trouble with human relationships in this country is we try to force mismatched people into understanding one another.

In the future, I'd like to see an application for a marriage license (circle the response that fits best) that spells it all out.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

Fat is...
AGE 5 — being the biggest little kid in kindergarten. Being called a "bully" if you hit back, and a "cry baby" if you don't. Being called "Patty" instead of your real name.

AGE 10 — looking big enough to be in junior high instead of the fourth grade. Grownups who expect you to act as old as you look. Learning to fight since you can't run. Or learning to hide since you can't fight. Using any excuse to get out of gym. Getting out of gym because you can't get a gym suit in your size. Hiding in the arts and crafts cabin at camp, even on sunny days, so you don't have to play softball. Being the last chosen on any team. Dreading the annual "weigh-in" at the school nurse's office. Being the only girl in school who looks like she needs a bra. Being the only BOY in school who looks like he needs a bra.

AGE 15 — being the only girl in school who actually DOES wear a bra. Or the only girl on the beach not wearing a bikini. Never going to the beach. Clothes shopping where your mother goes, where they have your size. Buying your jeans from a mail-order catalogue because the stores in town don't have your size. Never wearing jeans. Grownups who expect you to act like a 20-year old because that's how old you look, then treat you like a 10-year old when you don't.

AGE 20 — not getting into the right college. Not getting into ANY college. Not getting a job (because you didn't go to college.) Never having any dates. Having the person you're crazy about ask you to fix him up with your best friend. Not having a friend. Saying you can't stand disco music so you don't have to go (after all, who'd dance with you?) Really hating disco music, for the same reason. Being the only person you know who doesn't ski or play tennis. Not being able to learn, (because first of all, what could you wear?) Never, ever, having the right clothes for anything. Saying you don't care.

AGE 25 — being married to the first person you ever went out with. Not being married, because so far you've never gone out with anyone. Being assigned to the company mailroom, despite your high score on the aptitude test. Being eight months pregnant and nobody notices. Not being able to get pregnant.

AGE 30 — being the oldest person in the mailroom. Then the youngest person in your company to flunk an insurance exam. Automatically being given the biggest piece of cake at company birthday parties. Still wearing maternity clothes, months after the delivery. Being mistaken for the baby's grandmother.

AGE 35 — being mistaken for your husband's mother. Or your wife's father. Or your father's brother. Still going to singles bars, because you're still not married. Being married... and having your spouse go to singles bars. Being the oldest person still in the mailroom. Becoming the family photographer so you don't have to get in the picture.

AGE 40 — feeling like you're 50 and wishing you were 60 so you could quit the mailroom. Giving up on singles bars. Not being able to get insurance, and really needing it. Being told to lose weight (and give up sugar) because you're diabetic.

AGE 50 — being told to lose weight (and give up salt) because you're hypertensive. Being told to lose weight (and give up liquor) because your triglyceride level is high. Being told to lose weight (and give up eggs, butter, cheese, steak, bacon, fatty meats) because you've got high cholesterol. Being told to give up smoking, and being afraid of gaining even more weight. Wondering what will happen if you lose your job in the mailroom. Worrying if you'll live long enough to see your kids through college.

New Summit Plans Pondered By Begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter wants Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to come to Camp David by the end of the week to try to complete peace treaty terms with Egypt. The presidential announcement Sunday put Begin in the spotlight because it would be up to him to either approve or reject a combination of undisclosed U.S. and Egyptian proposals for dealing with the Palestinian issue. The door was left open for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to join the summit session in the Maryland mountains if the negotiations succeed. In the meantime, Egypt would be represented by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil.

Begin's response is expected after a special Cabinet meeting Tuesday. A government source in Israel said Begin was not likely to attend without Sadat.

In Jerusalem today, however, Begin told a group of Dutch reporters: "It's up to President Sadat to come or not to come... It's not a question of anyone's personal participation."

"Our country is a democracy and the government and the Knesset (Parliament) take the decisions," he added. "In Egypt, President Sadat is the man who takes most of the decisions. The issue is between the two countries, and not two individuals."

Several Israeli cabinet members told reporters they opposed Begin's accepting the invitation unless Sadat also attended. But the proposal for Begin to meet with Khalil and Carter bore the recommendation of Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, who helped draft Carter's statement announcing the invitations.

New U.S. ideas for resolving the Palestinian dispute reportedly were submitted by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance at Camp David last week in talks with Khalil and Dayan.

The idea is to link the treaty to civil self-rule for the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs living on the Israeli-held west bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza district.

The Begin government does not want peace with Egypt to be dependent on future negotiations over the Palestinians, particularly because no Palestinian leader has indicated he is willing to participate in those talks.

Dayan flew to Israel after Carter's announcement, which was drawn up with the approval of Dayan and Khalil. As a result, reports of surprise in Israel that a summit was being arranged with Begin but without Sadat were discounted by U.S. officials.

"Carter knows it is only Sadat and Begin who can make the decisions," said the Israeli source, who requested anonymity, in Jerusalem. "If Begin goes without Sadat, it will seem like Israel is being asked to make all the concessions."

Carter read his statement to reporters on the White House south lawn. Dayan and Khalil were at his side; Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, the U.S. national security adviser, were close at hand.

"I am prepared to spare no effort in achieving the peace settlement foreseen in the Camp David accords reached last year," Carter said.

"The other two partners in those negotiations share this determination," Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said that "sometimes, midweek or so, we ought to know."

LHS Will Offer Exotic Courses

With school board approval now secured, Irons said his staff will finish designing a brochure on LEAP. The brochure will be distributed to all Lubbock students who will be in high school next year and to their parents, he said.

Counselors and teachers also will do some recruiting for the Lubbock High program, Irons said.

Students will have to be screened to get into some LEAP courses, he added. Applicants will be considered according to "several criteria," such as grades, academic potential, attitude, achievement test scores and recommendations from their teachers, counselor and principal, Irons said.

In designing LEAP, the school district tried not to harm other schools' academics, Irons said.

In particular, the district was "very careful not to infringe on courses offered at Dunbar," where the school system's work-study and certain music-art classes are concentrated.

"We do not want in any way to detract from the Dunbar program," Irons said. That's why, for example, Irons scratched photography from the proposed LEAP menu — because photography is part of commercial art at Dunbar-Struggs.

Also, Irons said he did not want to curtail courses at other schools just to offer them as magnets at Lubbock High. As it turns out, only three classes — animal physiology, geology and marine science — will have to be discontinued elsewhere. Those courses are being offered this year on a pilot basis anyway, Irons said.

The Lubbock High program was designed this month by "central office administrators, directors, consultants and the advisory committee (of parents) appointed by the superintendent," Irons told the school board in a memo.

The program will have four components, he said.

First, there would be courses for regular students. These "would remain essentially the same as for students throughout the school district, except that in English language arts, the 10th, 11th and 12th grades would be restructured to allow students to test out of two quarters of grammar and thereby be free to enroll in other elective language arts courses," Irons said.

Secondly, LEAP will offer courses for academically talented students. "Honors classes would be provided in all academic areas such as math, language arts, social studies and science," Irons said.

Many of the honors courses would be new to the district. Also as part of this component, "a more formalized procedure for testing for advanced college placement and for college credit would be provided," Irons said.

The third component would be arrangements for students planning careers in engineering, law or medicine. The district will arrange the new and old courses into sequences that will prepare students for college work in these areas.

The fourth component would be courses completely new to the school system. New science courses will include second-year biology, chemistry and physics, medical-industrial technology, astro-science and horticulture.

In social studies, the new courses would be comparative political systems, western cultures, law and the legal process and philosophy (logic, ethical analysis, etc.).

New art classes would be life drawing, fashion illustration, sculpture, environmental design and heritage from the fine arts.

In language arts, the district would initiate two levels of technical writing, advanced fil analysis and production and a nongraded phase of elective language arts courses.

New math classes would be probability and statistics, linear algebra and computer literacy and elementary programming.

The district will start four dance courses — ballet, modern dance, ethnic dance and disco and contemporary dance.

In health and physical education, the new courses would be general health, human anatomy and kinesiology, human performance and disabilities, gymnastics and soccer.

Also, the district would continue offering certain courses at all schools but enrich or modify them at Lubbock High. These include algebra and geometry, which would be scheduled as a two-hour block, American history and government, driver education (offered to sophomores at no charge), and such language arts electives as creative writing, advanced plays, humanities, advanced reading and experimental theatre.

The new courses would put an emphasis on field trips. Geology, for example, would involve a five-day trip to Big Bend National Park; astro-science, three days at the NASA space center; marine science, five days on the Texas gulf coast; biology, four days to the southern Rockies and to the Piney Woods of East Texas.

The most expensive trip would be a two-week summer excursion to England, Holland, France, Switzerland and Italy for a study of Western culture. That would cost $40,000 for 30 students.

The American government honors class would spend three days at the state capital and 10 in Washington, D.C.

The honors American history students would compete for 10 scholarships the school district already has secured to Valley Forge. The remaining 20 students also may be sent at district expense.

The school board also added to the administration's list of recommendations such new courses as guitar, Russian, Chinese, Portuguese and swimming (if facilities can be leased).

Jay Gordon, assistant superintendent for instruction, said the courses — if all materialize, which is unlikely because some may have little student demand — would cost $258,000 next year. This is for equipment, books, supplies and field trips.

The recurring costs would be about 50 percent of that, Gordon said. Field trips would run about $85,000 a year.

Irons and his staff also are preparing for the school board's consideration a junior high magnet program.

Judge Aids Attorneys For Davis

FORT WORTH (UPI) — With the divorce trial of socialites T. Cullen and Priscilla Davis moving into its second week, attorneys for the millionaire believe he has been favored so far by the presiding judge in the case.

Attorneys for Davis appear extremely satisfied with District Judge John Barron of Bryan, a retired jurist who replaced Judge Joe Eidson in the case.

Eidson dropped out of the long-running divorce trial last August after prosecutors accused Davis of trying to hire someone to kill the judge — allegedly because the industrialist believed Eidson favored Priscilla Davis' side in the divorce case.

The couple is fighting over millions of dollars in community property. Attorneys for Mrs. Davis contend her estranged husband's business empire is worth between $150 million and $200 million.

But lawyers for Davis, coowner of the family-owned Kendavis Industries, have said the couple has assets of only $600,000.

Barron said he hoped to finish the divorce case, which in its first four days was full of tedious board room-like testimony, within three to four weeks, but said, "I'm prepared to die of longevity here in Fort Worth."

Barron said he was urging the attorneys for both sides to settle out of court.

Still, Davis' attorneys believe Barron has favored their client so far by: —Repeatedly charging Mrs. Davis' lawyers were going into "too much detail" in questioning Davis.

—Complaining that attorney Jerry Loftin has been highly repetitive in his questions.

—Muzzling efforts of reporters to talk to attorneys and witnesses in the case by issuing a "gag order" at the request of Davis' attorneys.

—Providing that certain information and evidence introduced in the trial by Mrs. Davis' attorneys be seen by him only and not reporters.

—Allowing witnesses to review daily transcripts of Davis' testimony.

The couple has been a major news item since 1976 when Mrs. Davis and a family friend were wounded and her 12-year-old daughter, Andrea, and her lover, Stan Farr, were shot to death at the couple's $6 million mansion.

Davis, 45, was charged with the shootings, but was acquitted of murder in a sensational trial at Amarillo. Less than a year later Davis was charged with soliciting Eidson's murder. A trial in Houston ended earlier this year with a hung jury.

A second trial has not been scheduled on the murder-for-hire charge.

Meanwhile, a public relation firm's bill revealed that a massive campaign was staged to manipulate public opinion in favor of Davis and against Priscilla before the millionaire's murder trial in Amarillo.

The bill for services from Allman Business Communications was introduced last week during Davis' divorce trial, but it received little attention from attorneys.

According to the evidence, Davis paid the Dallas-based firm $6,000 for their work.

NO SMOKING

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore is making it hot for smokers. Tourists are being reminded that smoking in air-conditioned taxis is illegal and could result in a fine of $500 or three months imprisonment.

High Court Will Decide Wife's Right To Testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said today it will decide whether to allow an exception to the legal doctrine that prohibits wives and husbands from testifying against each other.

The justices voted to hear the appeal of convicted Los Angeles heroin smuggler Otis Trammel Jr., who contends his trial was tainted by his wife's testimony against him.

A federal appeals court ruled that Elizabeth Trammel's testimony was permissible because she was an unindicted co-conspirator who had agreed to testify for the government in return for immunity.

—In other action, the high court: —Agreed to study again the scope of the so-called Miranda rights of criminal suspects, this time in a case from Rhode Island involving a suspect who waived his rights and led police officers to the shotgun used in a murder.

—In a similar case, left intact a New York state court ruling that a person in police custody who obtains a lawyer's help may not later waive that right to counsel outside the lawyer's presence.

—Said in effect that prospective airline passengers who voluntarily enter an airport security area may not avoid a baggage search by deciding not to board their intended flight. The justices left intact a federal appeals court ruling that prohibits prospective passengers from withdrawing from the screening process once a decision has been made to search the baggage.

—Turned down a General Motors Corp. appeal aimed at removing an Internal Revenue Service lawyer from a federal grand jury inquiry into GM's tax payments.

—Left intact a ruling by the Oregon Supreme Court that a prison guard was denied his constitutional rights when he was fired in 1974 for absenteeism without being given a pre-firing hearing.

In the airline search case, the decision involved a 1976 search of Stephen R. DeAngelo's briefcase at Washington National Airport in which small amounts of marijuana and hashish were found.

DeAngelo had passed through the metal detector without incident, but an X-ray of his briefcase showed a suspicious area. A security officer started to search the briefcase, but DeAngelo protested and said he would find other transportation. After an argument, an FAA official ordered the briefcase searched and the illegal substances were found.

In the husband-wife case, Mrs. Trammel was arrested in Hawaii two years ago and charged with attempting to smuggle in heroin from the Philippines.

She agreed to cooperate with federal authorities and lead them to others in an alleged drug-importing ring. She carried a drug delivery to Denver, Colo., where other members of the alleged ring were arrested.

Trammel, described by his lawyer as a military veteran in his early 20s who served in the Philippines, was arrested and convicted for his role in the ring. He is serving time in a federal prison.

After his conviction in a Denver trial, Trammel's lawyers argued unsuccessfully before the 10th U.S. Circuit Court that Mrs. Trammel's testimony should not have been allowed.

Northwest Awed By Total Eclipse

The Federal Aviation Administration duty officer at Boeing Field in Seattle said "the airspace is saturated" with aircraft hoping to carry observers above the clouds for a view of the eclipse.

"I understand it's in that optimum flight area," he said. Some flights were being held on the ground.

The tower at Boeing Field said at least one charter jet was not allowed to take off.

In Pasco, Wash., breakfasters at the Red Lion Motor Inn watched from the window as the moon moved slowly between the sun and Earth, dipping in and out of the clouds.

Among groups chartering planes, the Seattle Science Center offered an unobstructed view plus a champagne brunch 35,000 feet above the Columbia River gorge. The ride on a chartered Alaska Airlines 727 jetliner cost $115 to $135 a person.

Today's eclipse was the first total eclipse visible in the United States in nearly nine years and another will not come around until 2017. A total solar eclipse occurs when the moon moves between the sun and Earth.

The 175-mile-wide moon shadow hit the West Coast near Portland, Ore., and crossed Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec at more than 3,000 mph. Along that path, the eclipse was to last from 45 seconds to a top of 2 minutes, 36 seconds — in Helena, Mont.

Other parts of North America had to settle for a partial eclipse — weather permitting.

Despite the overcast, thousands of travelers from around the country mobbed small towns of the Pacific Northwest and northern Great Plains in a replay of the solar mania that seems to grip humans when the moon blocks the view of the sun.

Ira Schneider, 46, of New York City led a group of 75 amateur astronomers to Lewistown. He went to South American last year for a total eclipse in Colombia, but he was foiled — by clouds. Still his mood was upbeat.

"There is a festive air about the whole occasion," Schneider said, as Lewistown's 8,000 residents girded for an expected 4,000 usually conservative and scientific.

School authorities in Yakima, Wash., and Butte, Mont., ordered schools to open an hour early so children would be in class and not staring at the eclipse, possibly damaging their eyes. Pendleton, Ore., school officials urged parents to keep children home until after the eclipse.

During the last total eclipse visible in the United States — on March 7, 1970 — 121 people suffered permanent eye damage from looking directly at the sun.

Paper Bares Federal Gas Ration Plan

DETROIT (AP) — Motorists would be limited to two gallons of gasoline a day under a White House standby rationing plan to be submitted to Congress, the Detroit News said today.

The two-gallon limit would apply to all private and commercial vehicles.

Motorists needing more would have to buy them from those needing less and it could then cost $2 a gallon or whatever the market would bear, the newspaper said in a dispatch from its Washington bureau.

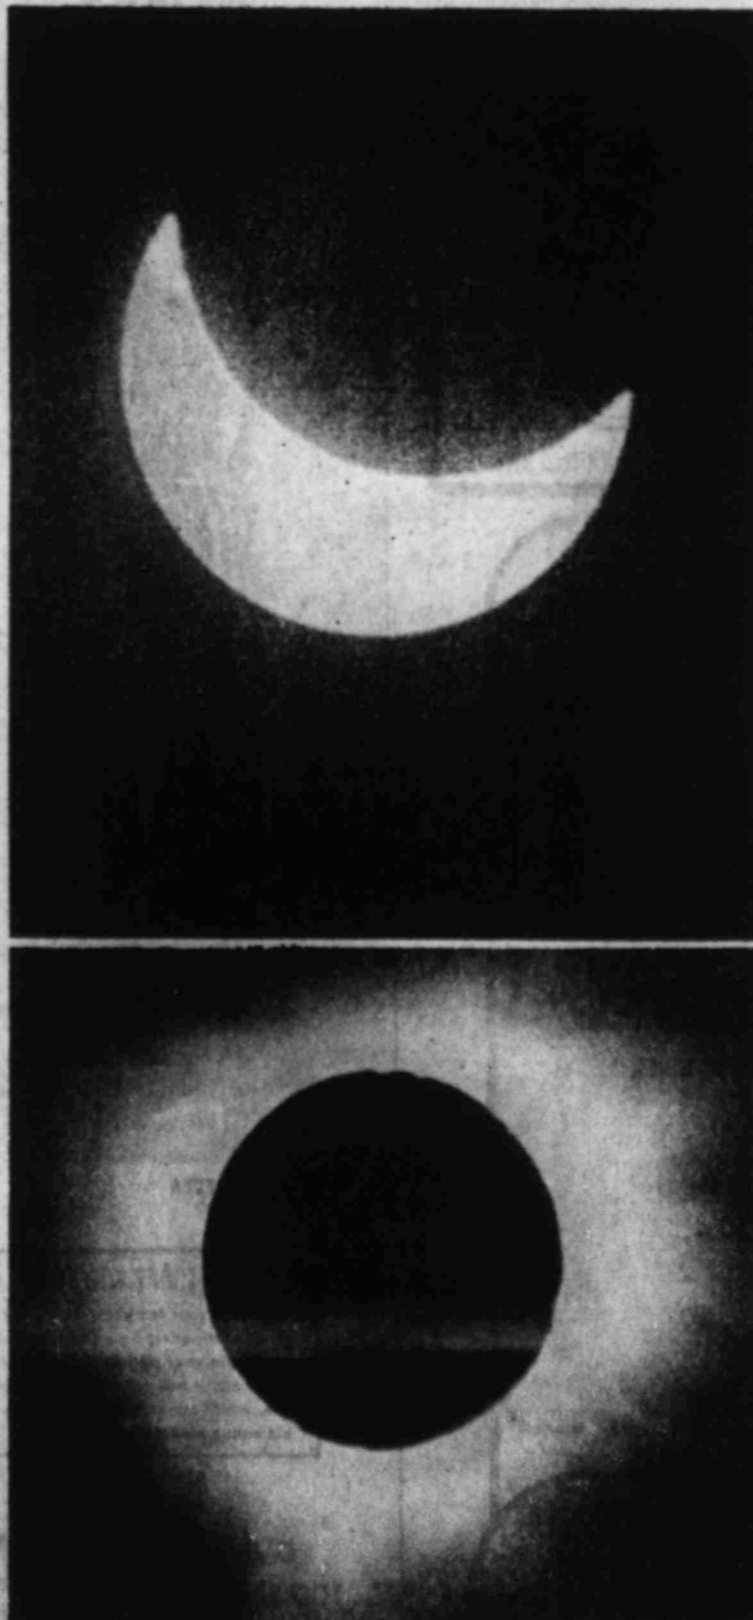

"We want to emphasize over and over that this is a last-ditch plan," said an unidentified Department of Energy analyst.

The White House is expected to submit two proposals, the one on rationing and the other providing standby authority for:

—Stopping weekend gasoline sales, limiting weekday hours for gasoline stations, restricting downtown parking to encourage use of public transportation, requiring commercial and public buildings to cut down on energy use, and limiting use of lighted advertising signs.

The proposals are part of an overall strategy to deal with shortages of imported oil. Some of the measures might be applied by June.

Under the rationing plan, the government would allocate equal amounts of gasoline to the owner of each registered vehicle. Coupons would be needed to buy gasoline.

VIEWS OF ECLIPSE — Persons in the Pacific Northwest region got the best view of the total eclipse of the sun this morning as the bottom photo, taken by an AP photographer in Portland, Ore., shows, but it was an impressive sight even as far south as Lubbock. The photo at top was taken shortly after 10 a.m. by Avalanche-Journal photographer Dennis Copeland.

Homes Still Suffer Lightning Damage

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1752, Benjamin Franklin invented the lightning rod to intercept a lightning bolt and lead it harmlessly into the ground, leaving the house untouched.

But more than 200 years later, American homes are still suffering damage from lightning, says Lee Meyer, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

More than 50,000 homes in the United States are hit, directly or indirectly, each year by some 90 million lightning bolts, he says. Of the total hit, he adds, about 15,000 to 20,000 homes suffer significant damage, some 30,000 have less serious losses to wiring, appliances and plumbing, and some 1,500 homes burn to the ground.

Lightning is one of nature's worst destroyers, causing 500 deaths, 1,500 injuries and some half-billion dollars-worth of property loss each year, say members of Meyer's group, local agents who counsel on homeowners' insurance. They offer this advice in the area of lightning:

—Evaluate your home's need for lightning protection. If it is surrounded by other houses on level land, it won't be the primary target it would be if it were alone on a hilltop. Then, too, your chances of being struck by lightning vary from place to place. Some parts of Florida have 10 times as many electrical storms as California.

—Since lightning starts fires, you'll want to question how far your home is from fire protection. When you evaluate the location of your home, its closeness to fire protection, perhaps even your own fear of lightning, you may find that lightning rods that are properly grounded and installed by an approved electrician will be well worth the cost.

To protect yourself during a storm: —Do not use the telephone or television set.

—Keep away from open doors and windows. Lightning can strike an indirect, but powerful, blow.

—Don't run outside to close the windows of the car or to take the bikes in.

Dexterity Not Needed To Do Card Trick

By SHARI LEWIS

You can do this trick. Yes, you. Don't tell me you are all thumbs. Just read on, then grab a deck of cards and surprise your friends with your new dexterity. Here's what you do:

Divide a deck of cards into two piles and let your pal pick a card from one pile, remember it, show it to everyone else (but not to you) and then place it in the other pile. Ask your friend to shuffle the second pile (the one into which he has put his selected card). Now you take those shuffled cards from your friend, and instantly you tell the name of the card that was selected from the other half of the deck.

Here's how you do that: Before you start, you divide the deck so that all the red cards are at the top.

All the black cards are on the bottom, and you pinky is separating the two. So when you divide the deck into two piles, one is all black, the other all red. When your helper puts a black card into the red pile, or vice versa, you can spot it instantly!

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: This was sent in by Patricia van den Henenberg of Cumberland, Ontario, Canada. How long would it take a train one mile long to pass through a tunnel one mile long if the train travels at the rate of one mile per minute? Judge Says Gavel Taken From Court

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Wyandotte County District Court Judge John Mahoney has had his gavel stolen from the top of his bench.

Mahoney believes it disappeared a day before he discovered the loss, but he admits it could have been missing for as long as 10 days.

"I don't have much use for it to pound lawyers into submission," he said, chuckling.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM the Newspaper Bible.

Luke 11:10-10. The Living Bible

Once when Jesus had been out praying, one of His disciples came to Him as He finished and said, "Lord, teach us a prayer to recite like the one John taught his disciples."

2 And this is the prayer He taught them: "Father, may Your name be honored for its holiness; send Your Kingdom soon!

3 Give us our food day by day,
4 And forgive our sins—for we have forgiven those who sinned against us. And don't allow us to be tempted."

5, 6 Then, teaching them more about prayer, He used this illustration: "Suppose you went to a friend's house at midnight, wanting to borrow three loaves of bread! You would shout to him, 'A friend of mine has just arrived for a visit and I've nothing to give him to eat.'

7 He would call down from his bedroom, 'Please don't ask me to get up! The door is locked for the night and we are all in bed. I just can't help you this time!'

8 But I'll tell you this — though he won't do it as a friend, if you keep knocking long enough he will get up and give you everything you want — just because of your persistence!

9 And so it is with prayer — keep on asking, and you will keep on getting; keep on looking, and you will keep on finding; knock, and the door will be opened!

10 Everyone who asks, receives; all who seek, find; and the door is opened to everyone who knocks.

Doctor Believes Saving Babies' Lives Priority

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Saving the life of a tiny premature baby costs up to $40,000, but the director of Yale-New Haven Hospital's newborn care unit says that's not much "in terms of the wealth of our society."

"We have the resources and we don't have other priorities, I don't think, that are more important," Dr. Joseph Warshaw said.

Policeman Cleared In Fatal Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — A grand jury has cleared transit policeman Patrick Townsend of any wrongdoing in the fatal shooting of a teenage girl who was killed while he was trying to arrest a knife-wielding man.

The grand jury on Friday indicted Herberto Cochado, 32, on charges of attempting to assault Townsend in the crowded IND-Herald Square subway station platform on Feb. 5.

Townsend had halted Cochado after he allegedly failed to pay the fare and Cochado slashed him with a knife, police said. After a chase Townsend fired three shots, one of which fatally wounded Carmen Orsini, 17.

His unit handles about 1,000 babies a year in rooms equipped with incubators, specially designed bassinets and sophisticated monitoring devices.

Few of the premature babies require $40,000-worth of care, but the cost usually runs into the thousands. The average is about $8,000, he said.

"If it comes down to feeding the population or saving babies, then that's different," the professor of pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology said. "But at this point, we can afford the luxury of taking care of the babies."

"Relative to the cost of our unit, it's a bargain," Warshaw said of the facility that opened in May 1967.

But cost is never a factor in care, he said, adding that for most parents, insurance or Medicaid pays the bill. The hospital also "writes off a lot of billing."

Babies born seriously underweight, a problem usually caused by prematurity and which accounts for about half of the unit's patients, have close to a 90 percent chance of surviving, he said. Followup studies show that 80 to 90 percent of the survivors develop normally, he added.

In theory at least, the healthy survivor eventually becomes a productive taxpayer, he said.

Ten years ago, when special care for premature newborns was a relatively new field, 70 to 80 percent of the babies died, he said. Of those who survived, many had brain damage, requiring billions of dollars-worth of special care and education.

"One disabled baby could pay for the care of 10 to 20 of the babies in this unit," he said. Warshaw describes the purpose of his special-care unit as "applying Band-Aids to the failure of prevention."

Many of the conditions afflicting the infants have socio-economic implications, he said, including poor nutrition and little or no prenatal care for the mother.

Yale-New Haven's newborn intensive-care unit and one at the University of Connecticut Health Center's John Dempsey Hospital are hubs in a regionalized special-care system. They have facilities for transporting babies from other hospitals in the state. And they work with other hospitals to improve awareness of medical advances in the field.

Any obstetrician in the state can have temporary privileges to use the Yale-New Haven facilities for delivery for a high-risk patient, Warshaw said. A high risk is indicated in women with such diseases as diabetes and women who have been determined to be carrying more than one child.

The most common problem among the patients at the Yale-New Haven unit is low birth weight, which can result from prematurity and poor nutrition or disease, among other things, Warshaw said.

At the Dempsey unit, respiratory disorders, usually caused by prematurity, are the most frequent problems seen, said Dr. John Raye, director.

Warshaw and his staff, in addition to social workers and psychiatrists, work closely with the babies' mothers and fathers, encouraging interaction with the child from the start. He said inadequate interaction between a mother and her child might explain a high incidence of abused babies who were treated in special-care units.

When it comes to GENEROSITY some folks stop at NOTHING

By SHAUNA HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Dr. Rhodes Boyson resembles a turn-of-the-century businessman from a Dickens novel. His bushy, mutton-chop sideburns, pocket watch, and three-piece suit give him an aura of gentility, as does his clipped English accent.

But the impression of belonging to a time past vanishes when Boyson, an outspoken, often-controversial leader in the British Parliament, begins opining about world problems.

His beliefs are not always popular. He opposes labor unions in a British economy dominated by the Labor Party. He opposes detente with Communist powers in a world whose nations often subscribe to Communism. He advocates aggression in a Western culture in which aggression is contrary to democratic ideals.

"I'm a hard-line conservative," acknowledged Boyson, who ironically was raised in a family that embraced socialism and whose father was a trade union leader.

"I believe in a strong defense, law and order, maintenance of the Constitution and the queen, and the free enterprise system."

Boyson is in Lubbock to address the Lubbock Christian College Board of Governors at 7:30 p.m. today. He will speak on the "Preservation of a Free Society" and will discuss the effect of socialism on Britain.

In an interview Sunday, he said he believes the Dark Ages could return at any point in history, but that the current turmoil in Asia, the Middle East and Africa could be the catalyst that begins the new age.

"I believe the West could be heading for another Dark Age. Our lack of philosophy and will could lead to another age without progress or thought."

The British Conservative Party member attributes the tension in the Middle East and "Communist oppression" in Eastern Asia to the United States.

"The United States pressured Britain into de-colonizing Eastern Asia and India," Boyson said. "When we left, we left a vacuum which other nations have filled. Iran would not be the way it is if we had kept bases on the 700 islands near India. The shah never could have taken power if there had been British troops near the area."

"The real tragedy was when the U.S. took in 1956 the viewpoint that the Suez Canal should not be operated by Britain and France," he continued. "That caused us to lose much of our influence in the area."

Boyson added, however, that Britain should have fought with the United States in Vietnam. "It was as much our problem as it was yours," he said.

Energy is not one of Boyson's primary concerns. He says he is not an environmentalist and that another energy supply will be invented to replace current sources. "After all," he explained, "who would have believed 70 years ago that the internal combustion engine would be a reality?"

Boyson said his attitude toward future energy supplies does not prevent him from wanting a steady supply of energy and raw materials that is available now.

"Africa is the key to raw material and energy supplies," Boyson said. "Somebody eventually will gain control of the continent and it might as well be the West."

"South Africa and Ian Smith's Rhodesian government are the only things keeping Africa together right now, so we had better back them and gain some control ourselves."

"It's not really a question of human rights in Africa because the people over there are just waiting to see who will win," he said. "They don't want independence. They want peace in the village to live and be happy."

Boyson said he knows that his hard-line attitude toward Africa is against American interests.

GERLACH'S LAW: WHEN IT'S ALL SAID AND DONE IT'S STILL NOT DONE SAYING...

Government Subsidies Allow Authors To Write Books

WASHINGTON (AP) — No one exactly planned it — and the Founding Fathers might have recoiled from the idea — but in a substantial way the government has become a patron of the loneliest art, the process of writing a book.

Ever more frequently books are being issued with an author's acknowledgement along these lines: "This book was made possible through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities" or "My thanks to the National Endowment for the Arts."

Just published is "Gritty Cities," a handsome book of photographs of the old industrial cities of the Northeast.

Also recently out is a $200, four-volume, 1,900-page, "Encyclopedia of Bioethics," which probes ethical questions raised by life-science technology.

And in Charlottesville, Va., historian Dumas Malone has been plugging away since 1943 on a six-volume biography of Thomas Jefferson.

In each case, the government subsidized these enterprises. Without government support, they probably would not have been undertaken.

And government officials say they are sensitive to the fear that they might create a collection of books reflecting any sort of official government "line." They stress that government financing does not mean interference, control or censorship.

Each year the National Endowment for the Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts put millions of dollars into underwriting authors. The NEA also subsidizes small literary magazines and the small presses where authors often first break into print.

When the humanities endowment asked its librarian, Jeannette Coletti, to round up all the books which resulted from NEH grants, she managed to find 839 of them.

At the NEA, 3,000 to 4,000 writers, playwrights, essayists and poets are competing for 218 fellowships of $10,000 to enable them to keep on writing. William Gaddis wrote his prize-winning novel, "JR," on an NEA grant.

Many government-backed books are studies with limited audiences and no profit potential: "The Relevance of Natural Science to Theology" or "Vietnamese Folk Poetry" or "Mark Twain's Letters to His Publisher, 1867-1894."

But not always. Inside the paperback cover of "Fear of Flying" is this description: "Erica Jong's gloriously wicked, sexy novel about the way things ought to be for a woman."

A few pages later, in her acknowledgments, Miss Jong writes: "And thanks to the National Endowment for the Arts for a grant which helped."

Miss Jong received $5,000 from the NEA to meet her living expenses while she wrote the novel.

When it appeared, eyebrows were raised in Congress but the fuss was surprisingly short-lived.

Livingston Biddle Jr., chairman of the arts endowment, smiles away criticism. He says Miss Jong earned so much in royalties and paid so much in taxes, "that the taxpayer got his money back."

Leonard Randolph, who ran the endowment's literature program since 1970, is more defensive about underwriting "Fear of Flying."

"I will go to my grave saying it was a damn good book," he says.

Biddle says the endowment is careful to recognize that there is a risk of creating a body of government-sponsored literature, with judges shying away from supporting authors who can be counted on to bite their patron's hand.

He cites precautions. The panels which recommend awards are composed of people from outside the government and the applicants are asked to submit examples of their past writings (to prove their talent) but are not even asked for an outline of what they intend to produce under government funding.

Suit Claims Long Imprisonment Caused Man's Mental Condition

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (UPI) — Jack Smith has spent more than a half-century behind the walls of state mental institutions. He was born in one, grew up in others and, his attorneys say, simply "wilted away" in the process.

A $3 million lawsuit filed on his behalf says the 54-year-old Smith — now considered functionally retarded — was born a normal child and has been made a mental cripple by his lifetime of institutionalization.

"He is retarded because he has been a captive. In plain words, his being imprisoned 54 years made him a social and intellectual vegetable," said Kenneth Walz, an attorney representing Smith.

The suit filed against the state this month in the Michigan Court of Claims contends Smith was falsely imprisoned and his constitutional rights violated.

"Jack never had any bugs in his brain," Walz said. "His brain was like a muscle that wasn't used so it atrophied and became smaller and smaller. He merely needed love and attention, but instead he wilted away."

Smith's mother, Minnie, was admitted to Traverse City State Hospital in February 1925 when she was 8½ months pregnant.

Medical reports at the institution said she was "laughing and crying almost all of the time" and unable to work due to some sort of paralysis.

Two days after she was admitted, Mrs. Smith gave birth to a baby boy. She died several hours later.

Records imply the child was deemed retarded because of his mother's bizarre behavior and assumptions about the "feeble mindedness" of the boy's father, who disappeared after Mrs. Smith was admitted.

The child never was put up for adoption or placed in a foster home. He was sent to a state orphanage at Coldwater instead.

Shortly after his first birthday, the boy was sent to Lapeer State Home and Training School, where he spent the next 38 years.

In early childhood, Smith constantly got into fights. One examiner said in an annual report the boy "acts as if he were seeking a place for his restless spirit to settle down."

During his 20s, Smith's rebellion intensified and he spent time in a maximum security division.

He was transferred to a mental hospital in Traverse City in the mid-1960s after he was re-examined and classified as "dangerous and aggressive."

In 1976, the state's mental health system underwent a massive reorganization and Smith was allowed to move to a community foster home in Traverse City.

Traverse City psychiatrist Walter Turke diagnosed Smith as mildly retarded.

"Although there is evidence of chronic institutionalization and mental retardation, I do not see any evidence of mental illness," Turke said.

Chavez Uses Convention To Launch Texas Drive

SAN JUAN (AP) — Cesar Chavez, whose United Farm Workers Union has stalled in previous efforts to organize Texas farm workers, used a day-long pep rally-like convention here to launch a new drive in the state.

A crowd that swelled to upwards of 1,000 here Sunday offered enthusiastic rhythmic applause to a lineup of union leaders and clergymen who told them that a solid union offers the quickest route to a better life.

"I can assure you it will be much easier for you than it was in 1962," Chavez said, referring to the beginning of the UFW in 1962. "The people were scared then. Nobody should be afraid here."

The UFW effort in Texas has been plagued by a split in the ranks. But, with solidarity as the key word here, the 320 delegates worked themselves into a minor frenzy unanimously approving a resolution calling for "Una Sola Union" — one union.

"We don't want to be confused with that man with the black hat," one speaker said.

The "man with the black hat" is Antonio Orendain — a former Chavez aide who split from the UFW in 1975 and started the Texas Farm Workers Union. Orendain's group was some 500 miles away — in Dallas on a march to Austin — as the delegates here shouted the "one union" cheer.

At a press conference later, Chavez said he is "open" to allowing the TFWU to rejoin the UFW. He said he knows of no philosophical differences between the two organizations.

The solidarity theme carried through the day as some 33 resolutions were approved unanimously. The resolutions call for increased wages, better working conditions, workmen's compensation coverage and other issues.

Chavez also backed resolutions opposing President Carter's 7 percent wage guidelines and the Bracero program.

The longtime farm workers leader said the presidential wage guidelines do not apply to growers and therefore should not be applied to field laborers.

The resolution opposing the Bracero program branded the system as "semi-slavery." The Bracero program ended in 1960. For two decades it had allowed Mexicans to work in the U.S.

"It would wreck the entire wage system," Chavez complained.

The union president told the delegates that the Texas branch of the UFW had come a long way, but still has much organizing to do.

At the press conference, he said the Texas workers are not ready for a large-scale strike — such as the violence-marred work stoppage now going on in California lettuce fields.

"I think that unless the workers are really educated about the strike and have been able to build solidarity behind one another, and you have money, I mean lots of money, then a strike would be suicide and everybody knows it," he told reporters.

The call for solidarity was echoed by Harry Hubbard, president of the Texas AFL-CIO. He pledged labor support for the UFW and advised the farm workers to become involved in the political process.

CONNALLYS CELEBRATE — Nellie Connally, wife of Republican candidate for president John Connally, cuts a birthday cake presented them Sunday at a political rally in Connally's hometown of Floresville. Watching are four of the Connally's seven grandchildren. Connally will be 62 Tuesday and his wife celebrated her 60th birthday Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

Sen. Bentsen To Deliver Address

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, will deliver the 1979 commencement address at Texas Tech University May 11. Tech President Cecil Mackey has announced.

Degrees are to be conferred upon about 2,000 candidates during the graduation ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Coliseum.

Bentsen was elected in 1976 to his second term in the Senate. In addition to his chairmanship of the Joint Economic Committee, he is a member of the Finance and the Environment and Public Works committees. He chairs the Public Works Transportation Subcommittee and the Finance Subcommittee on Financial Markets.

Bentsen earned his law degree at the University of Texas and was an Air Force pilot in World War II.

He returned to his home town of McAllen after his military discharge and entered private law practice. He also became active in local Democratic Party politics and was elected judge of Hidalgo County in 1946. He served one term before being elected to Congress in a special election in 1948.

Bentsen was re-elected to the 81st, 82nd and 83rd Congresses but decided not to run for election in 1954. He left Washington in January 1955 to go into business in Houston.

He became president of Lincoln Consolidated, a financial holding company, and he served as director of several major corporations before returning to politics. He resigned all directorships and management positions upon being elected to the U.S. Senate in 1970.

Bentsen has served on the boards of the Society for the Performing Arts in Houston, the United Funds of Houston and Harris County, and the Houston Chamber of Commerce.

can idealism, but that he does not want to see the Communists gain control of a whole continent of raw materials.

Boyson said the United States also should take steps to control Cuba's interests in Africa. Cuba has sent more than 45,000 troops to Africa to aid black independence movements, he claimed.

"The U.S. really should be able to stop the threat nearest their doorstep (Cuba) before some 45,000 troops get control of the whole African continent," he said.

Political aspirations are part of Boyson's future, but he said he does not know what form the aspirations will take. "I could be on the front or I could be in the back throwing tear gas bombs. The times will determine my future," he said.

Boyson is the Spokesman on Education and Science for the British Conservative Party's Front Bench, a position equal to an American congressional committee chairman.

'CLASSROOM FUN, ACHIEVEMENT CAN BE YOURS' — New art and craft classes begin this week at Mrs. B's widely-known shop in southwest Lubbock. Shown are oils and tote paintings from former classes there, together with flower arrangements for which all products are stocked. Check the accompanying story for the instructor list and other pertinent situations at Mrs. B's.

New Class Schedule Invites Early Enrollment At Mrs. B's

Exciting, new classes begin this week and next week in the continuing program of instruction opportunities at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts. This means that immediate arrangements should be made to assure a place in one of the art and craft classes at this 5105 29th Drive shop in Lubbock. Canvas oil painting instruction will again be by popular teachers Jo Daugherty and Frankie "Pee Wee" Lanier. Tote instruction will be by recognized authorities in the field, Charl Egeland and Sarah Stora. Also, in the near future Jeanie Lewis of Houston will return for a workshop at Mrs. B's. For the classes commencing within just a few days, sessions will be available during the day and in evening hours. Pre-registration is necessary due to the traditional popularity of this instruction at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts. Supplies for all instruction courses are stocked at the shop. Specials On Frames A new shipment of frames in the popular sizes has been received, and most are marked at a big 25% off regular price! For Flower Creations Also just received are materials for gorgeous polyester, silk and wood fiber flowers. Mrs. B's owner Margie Berryhill has returned from a special course in flower making, conducted in Dallas, and she not only has stocked the materials but will be glad to show, without charge other than purchase of the materials, how to construct those so-pretty morningglories, mums, roses, daisies, gardenias, apple blossoms, "pretty petals," etc. Only quality art supplies are stocked at the popular west-Lubbock art and craft shop. Included are oils by Grumbacher, Rembrandt, Windsor Newton, Shiva and Permanent Pigment, together with the newly-added Louvre oils that Mrs. B's reports of quality nature but priced most economically. Studio and table easels are stocked, as are numerous other supplies. One is invited to inquire for full details regarding classes, instructors and supplies.

A large selection of wood, in unusual and popular shapes, is stocked for the tote painter. There's plaster, too, in many designs. Weekly there are new arrivals throughout the diversified stock, and this has been noted by customers of longstanding, with new patrons expressing like appreciation of the type shop provided. This attractive and well-marked shop is at 5105 29th Drive (on the cutoff between Brownfield Highway and Slide Road) and is under ownership and active operation of Margie Berryhill. Everything is designed for efficiency and ease in shopping and in studying and participating in classes or workshops. Everything says "We're glad you are among our friends and customers." Projects by the scores can originate and develop to completion at Mrs. B's. For shopping satisfaction, pleasure in browsing and selection, and for learning from "pros," a tremendous number recommend Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts!

WILKISON RADIATOR SHOP

NEW LOCATION FOR VETERAN FIRM

Wilkison Radiator Shop, Long In Lubbock, Tells New Location

"Did you realize that the oldest radiator service in Lubbock has a new home?"

It is Wilkison Radiator Shop, now at 19th Street and Avenue C since January 1.

A vital part of the Lubbock Service community since back in 1943, the Wilkison Radiator Shop served thousands of customers for 31 years at its most recent 915 Ave. H location.

(It is not in the habit of moving frequently!) The well-known firm is headed by V.E. "Mac" McCallon and wife, Bobbie (who is bookkeeper), owners since back in '59.

Free Pick Up, Delivery
Free pick up and delivery still is one of the appreciated services at Wilkison Radiator Shop, phone 765-7749, at 19th & C, remember.

Open from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, the Wilkison firm caters to dealers, garages and drop-in trade alike.

Wide Service
"Anything in radiators" probably best describes the firm, with service including radiator, heater and gas tank clean and repair, new re-cores, flushing radiators, and radiators for cars, tractors and industrial needs alike.

Mac and Bobbie and staff have an enviable reputation of integrity, service and products, proven time and again throughout their ownership tenure dating back to 1959.

Children's Learning Center 'Developing Whole Child'

Dedicated to the development of the whole child, the Children's Learning Center of Lubbock, 3514 22nd Place, is now open.

Opening Jan. 22 in all-new, modern, spacious, specifically designed facilities for best interest of the children, the response already has been tremendous.

And it is small wonder, once one visits the Center and observes the functional design and the personalized, qualified, interested care of its management.

"We appreciate the confidence and trade of our longtime customers, at the same time inviting and equally appreciating the trade of newcomers to the area."

The new location of Wilkison is easy to reach and easy to spot. Watch for the sign and the spacious paved parking area to front of Wilkison Radiator Shop, now at 19th & C in Lubbock.

Day care, night care and drop-ins can be accommodated in the three shifts for the convenience of working parents or guardians. (First morning shift from 6:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.; second morning shift from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.; and the afternoon shift from 2:30 until 11:30 p.m.)

The Center is state licensed to handle 100 children per shift, reports Richard Ybarra who with his wife, Elaine, are founders, owners and operators.

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe Seen Solution In Apparel Budgeting

Are wardrobe expenditures being sacrificed for other needs of the season? Is your clothing budget less than desired and needed?

Your answer to either likely will focus attention on a ready and sensible solution... recognition of Hallie's Thrift Shoppe as a great place to trade and save.

Hallie's has a very good selection at this time... including formals and fashionable coats.

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe, 3510 Ave. Q, can appreciably aid the fashion need and the economy need "for you, too" in every season of the year.

It's a reality: One can beat inflation, beat the rising apparel costs, by depending upon Hallie's Thrift Shoppe for the right apparel at lowest prices.

At Hallie's Thrift Shoppe there is lots of new merchandise plus consignment items that are strictly "first class" that can be a smart solution to the wardrobe budget.

With the increased costs at every hand, it is exciting to find a firm that can greatly reduce some of this cash outlay.

One can dress smartly for every season, and at a cost "that can be lived with," thanks to Hallie's Thrift Shoppe's full selection and unique business concept.

Hallie's, primarily a resale shop for better merchandise, has been at its present 3510 Ave. Q location (with off-street parking) more than four years, with owner-operator Hallie Payne formerly at another Avenue Q location for five years.

The exceptional stock, attractively displayed with plenty of room for selection and fitting, involves top quality new and nearly new formal wear, school and street wear, etc.

There are clothes for the entire family (sold on consignment) and the prices are most appealing.

"If you have items suitable for consignment, call Hallie's at 744-6772 for appointment and arrangements."

Though a wide stock is on hand, Hallie's at the present especially solicits consignments of top quality and fashionable long dresses and men's wear.

New merchandise from area stores also is stocked by Hallie's and new arrivals in this category present special values.

Easy off-street parking at both front and rear is just one of the conveniences at Hallie's Thrift Shoppe.

Business & Industrial Review

Associated Builders-Realtors Announce New Home, Location

A lot of people have depended upon Associated Builders-Realtors, for a new home... and now Associated Builders has a new home of its own!

Formerly at 4901 Brownfield Highway, this 2 1/4-year-old Lubbock firm now is at 5102 29th Drive (the cutoff between Brownfield Highway and Slide in southwest Lubbock) with all-new facilities and convenient, spacious off-street parking, easy access and egress.

Staffed To Serve

A really blue-ribbon team is on hand to serve at Associated Builders-Realtors, with each member on the staff since founding of the firm. Doesn't this speak well, in itself?

Whether one deals with Steve Von Phul, broker, Carol Gilmore, sales manager, or any of the staff, qualified assistance is assured.

New, Pre-Owned Homes

Associated Builders-Realtors represents several builders including Stanley Reed Construction, Cherry Dale Homes, Inc., and Contempo Homes, with houses in the range of $33,000 to $135,000. Purchase is available on FHA and VA basis.

As realtors, the firm holds membership in the Lubbock Board of Realtors and in Multiple Listing Service (MLS).

New homes are available in Shallower, Wolforth, Lake Ransom Canyon and in most subdivisions of Lubbock, Carol Gilmore emphasizes.

Also, the firm has individual listings of pre-owned homes in all areas.

Each staff member can count years of residence in Lubbock, and this familiarity with the area, with local conditions and with the needs and preferences of the home-buying public contributes in no small amount to the "satisfaction" picture at Associated Builders-Realtors.

"And please don't forget our new home... 5102 29th Drive, phone 797-4147!"

Cruz's Bicycle & Lawnmower Repair Shop Readies Resources For Spring

"Don't let the weather fool you; it is time to 'think of' and prepare for beautiful lawns this summer!"

And Cruz's Bicycle & Lawnmower Repair Shop, at 4204 1/2 W. 19th St., not only is ready with a big line of power and hand tools for lawn care but also suggests early attention to repair services at which the firm excels.

In fact, it is urged that mowers be brought in just as soon as possible to avoid delays at a later date when it seems everyone wants a mower repaired at once!

Names To Trust

Among the new products stocked are: Toro, Snapper and Lawn Flite power mowers; the Whipper Clipper edger/trimmer; and K & S gasoline edgers. Mower models include both rear and side discharge units.

Accessories are stocked and include such items as the popular scalping blades and springs.

And bags for most mowers; a good selection of garden tools; the Spintrim electric trimmer, even garden hose and more.

Cruz is factory authorized sales and service dealer for the Briggs & Stratton, Tecumseh and Kohler motors.

A number of Teel centrifugal pumps are stocked, in multiple sizes.

Actually, the Cruz firm has just about anything one could imagine to make lawn preparation and care both pleasant and efficient.

Bike Special

Vista and Ross bicycles are stocked. Presently, all three, five and 10-speed bikes are marked at 10 per cent off on cash sales!

Bike wheels, seats, baskets and other parts and accessories are stocked, even all sizes of bike tubes.

Mini-bike parts and repairs also come in for full attention at Cruz Bicycle & Lawnmower Repair Shop, just across from the Fox Theatre on West 19th Street, phone 795-4331.

Repair Specialists

The big shop is open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and there is plenty of at-the-door off-street parking for customer convenience.

All brands of mowers are repaired, re-member.

With more than 30 years experience, owner Cruz Ramirez came to Lubbock in 1964, working as a mechanic for some time at another firm, opening his own business that has grown and prospered at the present West 19th Street location several years ago.

Cruz started out in the business of "serving the public" as a Western Auto employe in Midland more than a quarter century ago, and there he later owned his own shop for eight years. He is factory trained in both the mower and bicycle field, and continually keeps up to date in new methods, new models, products and service techniques as a factory authorized dealer.

Whether for any of the above quality products and services, or others, such as machine sharpening of blades, Cruz has a wide following, a wide selection, and a sincere desire to serve.

Phone 795-4331 or visit the 4204 1/2 W. 19th St. facility for full details about a particular product or service needed to "get the jump" on summer yard beauty!

GREETINGS FROM CRUZ RAMIREZ — Everything at the big Cruz's Bicycle & Lawnmower establishment on West 19th Street is in readiness for new-season convenience and efficiency. Many related yard and bicycle products are stocked in the versatile store headed by Cruz, his wife, Josie, and sons Angel, Dan and Joe in the family operation.

Actually, jogging season is any season, always in style, and Woolco stocks accordingly. The low, low cost of sport oxfords today will continue throughout this week at Woolco.

The invitation is given to "stop by our family shoe department and take advantage of the many specials we have for you!"

This is just one of the many ways that Woolco proves that "we want to be your favorite store."

Fashion Shoes, Too

Not only is a large selection of men's and boys' jogging shoes noted at this time, but there is a delightful array of the latest in ladies' fashion shoes . . . at Woolco.

"We also carry men's and boys' western boots and work boots, always priced at a figure to be appreciated."

"Whatever the footwear need, the capable and friendly sales staff in the Woolco Shoe Department is anxious to be of personal service to you. May we have the opportunity?"

(And don't forget the special prices for a limited time on jogging shoes.)

Completeness Marks Woolco's Tire, Auto Service Center

Springtime . . . warm weather vacations! Really, they're on the way!

So . . . now is the time to get all one's transportation needs in order, ready for a safe and pleasing season ahead.

"We in Woolco's Tire & Automotive Service Center would like to take this opportunity of inviting you to this department of the Lubbock facility where we have at your disposal a modern, well-equipped service center and store with all your car care products.

Accessory Bonanza

"For your car or pick-up, we have our great All-American Tire line custom designed and made to fit your driving needs. You also will find the highest quality of shocks, mufflers, brakes, front-end parts, oils, spark plugs and a complete line of auto/truck accessories including lights, floor mats, seat covers, stereos and many, many more items to make your driving experiences more pleasant.

"Let us extend to you an open invitation to visit your Woolco Automotive Department where a qualified staff is on hand to render a service you'll appreciate."

Mike Mathys is department manager. Mike underwent training at the Lubbock store and then was transferred to Amarillo as department manager. Now, with his years of experience in the tire and automotive area, he is back at the Lubbock store to serve in a manner wholly consistent with Woolco's dedication to excellence and customer consideration.

Mike has a staff around him that further adds to the Woolco image of customer service. Bob Burgasser, originally from Nevada, is an assistant department manager, and his varied background experience in the automotive field is a welcome addition to the trained staff.

"In our Service Department, we are very fortunate to have Alvis Hasley, service supervisor, who is a longtime Lubbock resident. Alvis has over 30 years experience and training in the automotive mechanical field, with the last six years at Woolco. His competence is such that the Woolco Service Department well deserves the outstanding reputation it enjoys, a reputation growing with each customer we assist.

"Stop in and meet our trained staff and let us add your name to our list of satisfied and happy customers! Come in and say 'hello' and let us express a 'thank you' for allowing Woolco to become your favorite store."

HIGHEST QUALITY PRODUCTS, SERVICE — Bob Burgasser and Department manager Mike Mathys are among those emphasizing attention to quality, service and sensible pricing in automotive needs at Woolco.

EARL RAY

SOUTH PLAINS' LEADING BAND HOUSE

5302 AVENUE Q
Briercroft Shopping Center

SERVING FOR OVER A QUARTER CENTURY

Earl Ray Music Enables Easy Solution In Musical Progress

"If you are the parent or other near relative of a band student, likely you know first hand of the valued services and products of the Earl Ray Music Company, the 'South Plains' leading band house,' located in Briercroft Center, Lubbock.

For decades, Earl Ray has served as a firm sincerely interested in your welfare, in seeing that the student or other musically-inclined person is set with the best in instruments... whether purchase, rentals or repairs are involved.

"Trading up" is a very popular program presented by Earl Ray, making for ease in securing a quality instrument to best serve in the progress one has made in any musical pursuit.

Service does not end with the rental or sale at this leading band house. Earl Ray maintains the largest band instrument repair department on the South Plains, with fulltime specialists on the job.

Reliance upon the Earl Ray Music Co. can solve (and easily so) the many situations and every problem for the music minded.

Long a standby as "the South Plains leading Band House," the Earl Ray Music Co., at 5302 Ave. Q in the Briercroft Shopping Center, pledges the finest in instrument repair and sales, even leasing and trade-up, it is emphasized.

For more than a quarter century of being known and trusted by band directors, parents and bandmen throughout the area, Earl Ray Music Co. early in 1974 moved to the large modern home it now enjoys — a facility that has met with exceptional response from customers who appreciate the added conveniences and still-fine service at Earl Ray's.

Selling, servicing and trade-rent-lease of fine instrument lines still is the whole business of Earl Ray. Whether selection of Conn, Vito, Selmer, Bundy, LeBlanc, Ludwig, Bach, Olds, Gemeinhardt, etc., quality is assured.

More and more students throughout Lubbock and the entire area are learning the advantages of "trading up" to a better instrument at Earl Ray Music Co. As the students progress in their musical careers, the "trading up" is especially advantageous.

"Whether or not you purchased your present band instrument from Earl Ray, they will be glad to give you a price you are sure to appreciate with trade on a better one.

James Mears Mazda Relating 'Experience Is What Counts'

"Well, folks, it is almost that time again! All the new car dealers are gathering at the Civic Center March 9-11 to show their new lines for '79 and to blow their horns... (not meant literally!)"

"This year, it's our turn at James Mears Mazda, 1211 19th St. in Lubbock, to blow our horn!

"Whether you believe there is a gasoline shortage or not makes no difference in the fact that gasoline prices are going to soar. Or gas will be rationed, or both, and there is not one thing any of us can do about it except go to the smaller, more economical automobiles.

"And this is where James Mears Mazda comes in, always having had the best on the market, and now presenting a complete line.

among the most reasonable of the smaller cars and least operating cost is reported.

"What I like most of all, besides the fact that it is fun to drive, is the all-around visibility plus the contoured reclining seats that are so comfortable. I like the rear defroster and washer and wiper, too. There isn't enough space to tell everything I like about it, and the only way you can really appreciate it is to drive it; you'll love it!"

"A lot of our customers at James Mears Mazda will be glad to know that this year we get pickups; at least, we're supposed to! A B-2000 comes in standard box and long box and with each in the deluxe model. Great performance and operating efficiency, with low maintenance and fuel cost, is reported.

course on how you drive it, and everybody knows that some drag races are unavoidable.

"The powerful and quiet rotary engine and the car's superb handling tends to make everybody who drives one a sports car fan.

Great Handling

"Speaking of superb handling, you ain't seen nothin' yet! Just wait until you slip behind the wheel of the brand new and beautiful Mazda 626!"

"Fully equipped, the 2-door or 4-door provides all the comfort and styling to please even the hardest-to-please big car fan. Luxury in a small car that is second to none, with less fuel consumption than anything that competes with it, what are we saying is that there is nothing that can compete with it!"

"Come in at the Civic Center during show dates and look at all our new models on display, or better yet, come by 1211 19th Street and test drive one. Any of our sales people will be glad to help you, and you're really gonna love 'em! (You're gonna love our cars, too!)"

MODERN UNITS FOR TODAY'S DEMANDS

Leaseway-Southwest Services Utilized Throughout Wide Area

Leaseway-Southwest, at 409 E. 50th St. in Lubbock, offers a complete transportation service to busy companies that simply cannot devote the time, space or money required to own and maintain a fleet of vehicles, or in some instances, just one or two units. This progressive leasing firm provides transportation vehicles to serve any size or type business.

Full Service

"Corporations as well as small operators find that full-service transportation package is more efficient from every standpoint."

"Full service" as provided by Leaseway-Southwest Transportation Corp., is exactly what the name implies. The firm provides the maintenance and inspection and even supplies the fuel and pays the taxes on the vehicle!

Personnel there are most adept, serving in a professional but considerate and friendly manner to meet the particular transportation needs of every customer.

Upgrading and additions to its stock is a continuous operation at Leaseway-Southwest.

Leaseway-Southwest's understanding of the short-term, peak and long-term needs of area industry and business is well recognized, contributing to its own growth, too.

Half-a-hundred Lubbock businesses (and even more) depend on Leaseway-Southwest for transportation vehicle needs.

There must be a very good reason.

In Tune With Times

Keeping abreast with the needs of the area is one of the convincing reasons. Leaseway-Southwest continually adds new equipment for rental and for full-time customers of this service-oriented firm.

"Utilization of leased vehicles is the growing trend in transportation management" it is emphasized by Ken Wright, president.

Home Improvement Center Stocks Heavily, Includes Noted Amerock Line

"Have you discovered the beauty and utility of Amerock decorative hardware?"

"And have you realized that Maxey Home Improvement Center includes a huge Amerock display and stock among its many products for the home?"

For fine decorative hardware, whether the item is an entry lock, towel bars, switch plates, and more, the Amerock collection at Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, is most impressive.

At this time of year, Maxey also directs special attention to the convenience and other benefits of storm doors and of automatic garage door openers. These have emerged from any luxury category to a necessity, in comfort and safety.

And smoke alarms, too.

Not only is there a wide variety at the Maxey firm, but prices are kept in line throughout the stock, with specials arranged whenever possible to further assist.

There are very good buys on water heaters, bathtubs, marble top vanities, faucets, light fixtures, paint, etc.

And some may not realize that the Maxey Home Improvement Center stocks a good assortment of hand tools, both in sets and individual pieces, for auto repair.

Storm Door Values

And for those storm doors... some are available with speaker; they are available in gold finish, bronze and white, featuring safety glass, with heavy extruded corners assuring no sag and no warp, with black Colonial key lock and pneumatic closer with all screws, and in standard sizes.

"We take pride in offering the best storm door selection in Lubbock, and for all storm doors sold by us there is only a $1 installation and delivery charge within the Lubbock city limits!"

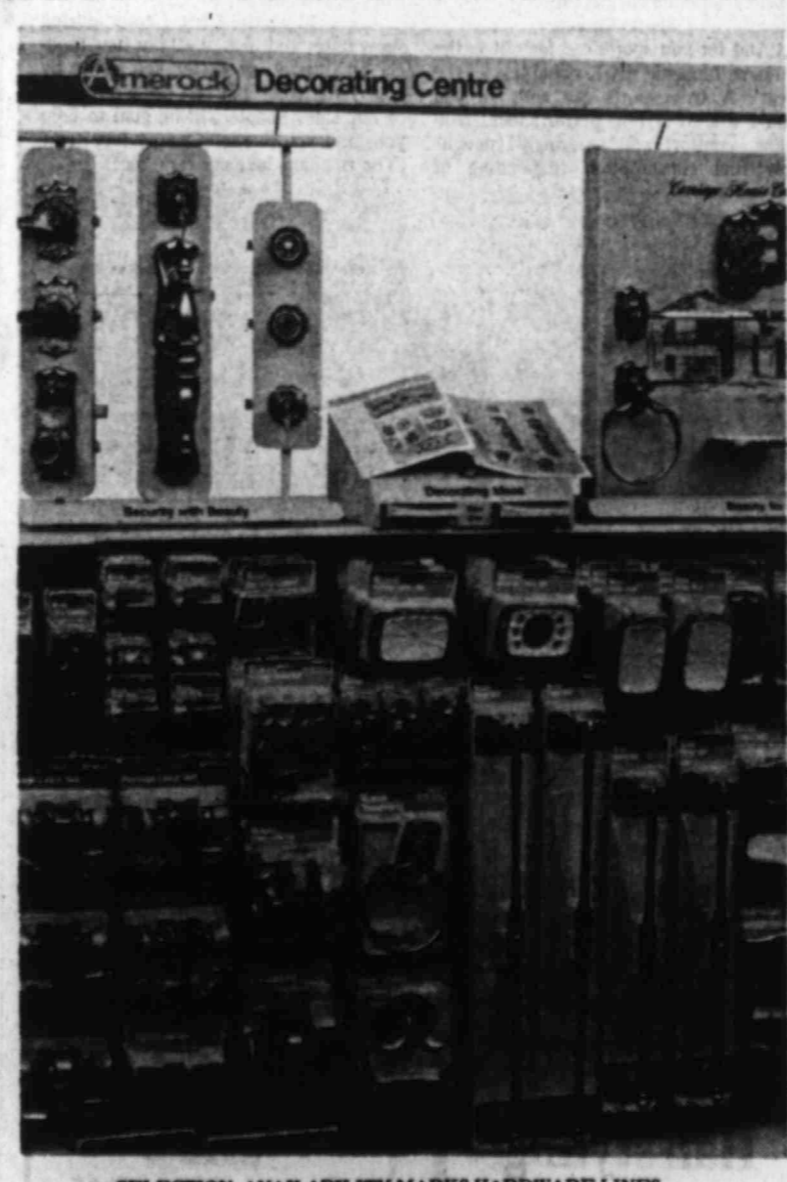

Genie Recommended

Genie automatic garage door openers are featured by Maxey, and one is invited to come in and learn all the details of why a Genie "should be in your immediate future."

Maxey Home Improvement Center is glad to help one locate the hard-to-find items, getting them or telling where they may be found.

Finally and foremost, remember this:

"Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University, wants you to have the very best at a price you can afford."

Deteriorated Leg Found Near Road

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — Part of a human leg found last week about 2½ miles north of the city will be sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory in Lubbock, today for tests.

Deputies who checked reports of missing persons and accidents, looking for a possible link with the leg, turned up no leads.

The deteriorated lower leg and foot was found alongside a little-used side road off U.S. 83 by a prospective ranch land buyer.

Sheriff J.E. Benham estimated the limb and foot with a man's shoe still attached had been at the site more than a month.

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and rain are expected in the forecast period through Tuesday for the Northeast. Sunny skies are expected for most of the country. Some warming is expected for the Southwest but most of the country is expected to be seasonably cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Snow, Ice Cripple Much Of Country

A-J News Services
A nasty winter dumped more crippling snow on the reeling Midwest today and pushed streams and rivers to flood stage from North Carolina through New England.

Snow, ice and floods closed schools, stranded motorists and knocked out power as the storm pushed eastward.

And in the Northeast, a mattress of clouds thousands of feet thick threatened to block out North America's last view of a total eclipse of the sun until the year 2017.

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson declared 30 counties in the southern part of the state snow emergency areas and mobilized National Guard units, mainly to aid an estimated 2,000 motorists stranded on highways. Armories in Salem and Cairo were converted to emergency shelters.

At least six deaths were blamed on the storms. Evacuations were under way in Maryland and Virginia, and rescue crews were on alert all along the Atlantic Coast.

Snow and ice forced schools to close in many areas from Cleveland to Boston and Massachusetts authorities set up evacuation centers to prepare for flooding in coastal communities where 14.6-foot tides were expected.

Fair skies prevailed over much of Texas today, offering a clear glimpse at the partial solar eclipse during the mid-morning hours.

The phenomenon of nature was visible in Lubbock skies from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., and as full sunlight returned, temperatures this afternoon were forecast to climb to the mid-60s.

The unobstructed view of the atmosphere is likely to be short-lived, however. A developing low pressure system, which stretched from central New Mexico to western Kansas early today, should bring increasing cloudiness to the South Plains tonight, Tuesday and through much of the week, the National Weather Service said.

Accompanying the clouding skies, Lubbock temperatures will drop slightly to a high in the low 60s Tuesday and, continuing the weak cooling trend, peak in the 50s by Friday, said the NWS.

Low temperatures will hover in the mid-30s tonight and the low 30s during the mid-week, before sliding to the 20s near the weekend.

State forecasts today show widespread fair and warm weather. Temperatures were expected to range this afternoon from the upper 50s in Northeast Texas and the Panhandle to the mid 70s along the Rio Grande River.

Long range forecasts indicate a chance of snow in the Panhandle about Wednesday, but there is no mention of precipitation on the South Plains.

National Guard units were standing by in Atlantic City, N.J., and Long Branch, N.J., where abnormal high tides also were expected. National Guardsmen earlier in the morning evacuated 75 residents from a mobile home park in Vineland, N.J., flooded under 3½ feet of water.

In New York State, hundreds of schools were closed as ice-heavy limbs crashed onto power lines. In an area south of Buffalo and Rochester, snow was reported up to 2 feet deep.

Authorities evacuated the residents of tiny Brems Bluff in central Virginia as the James, Shenandoah, Roanoke and Dan Rivers rose.

Evacuations continued up the coast. Some residents of Greensboro, Md., were asked to leave their homes when the Choptank River overran its banks, while in Federalsburg Police Chief Joseph Koski imposed a 10-hour curfew Sunday night.

"I'm concerned about people traveling around and looking," Koski said. If the water did come up fast, I want to be able to get police into the area to move stuff without interference."

The Allegheny River flooded the business district of Oil City in northwestern Pennsylvania, leaving stores and restaurants under four feet of water.

The National Weather Service said the Monongahela and the upper Ohio rivers from Pittsburgh to Wheeling, W.Va., would continue to rise today with more rain.

"Holdall" was the word that won the Posey Elementary spelling bee for Greg Carey, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carey of 5701 72nd St. The word missed by alternate Pam Simmons, sixth-grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Simmons of 5721 76th St., was "hoax."

James V. Baker, language arts consultant for LISD, was pronouncer for the Wheelock Elementary spelling bee. Judges were Barbara Colwell and Carole Mainwaring. Twenty-seven students were entered in the bee, which lasted for nine rounds. Stephanie Roberts, 11-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Jerry Roberts of 3111 43rd St., won the bee when alternate Jeff Chaffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Chaffin of 3202 41st St., misspelled the word "havoc." Stephanie correctly spelled the word and went on to spell "homonym" for the championship.

Haynes Elementary had a repeat winner in their recent school spelling bee. Doug Stevick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Stevick of 3621 59th St., and a sixth-grader won the contest. Another sixth-grader, Scot Brakeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Brakeley of 3808 52nd St., is alternate. The word misspelled by Scot was "piety," giving Doug the chance to win the bee with the word "pigeon-hole."

Thirteen-year-old David Criado, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Criado of 3322 Harvard, was the school spelling bee winner at Matthews Junior High. Alternate Martin Diaz, eighth-grade son of Mr. and Mrs. Gill Diaz of 2907 Grinnell, lost the winning position when he misspelled "piety." The winning word was "pigment." Director of the bee were Janice Graham and Judy Braun. Bill Larmer served as pronouncer.

John Hasselmeier, principal of Arnett Elementary, served as director and pronouncer for that school's recent spelling bee. Winner of the contest was Andy Besire, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Besire of 509 E. Stanford. Tamara Colfer, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Colfer of 1515 E. Queens, is alternate. The word misspelled by Tamara, giving Andy the lead, was "caneoe." The winning word was "canteen."

While persons in immediate contact with dead bodies, such as pathologists and medical researchers, often require that a body be embalmed before they will work with it, Dr. Marjorie Orr, director of the city health department, said she believes that an unembalmed body usually is not a health hazard to the public.

Dr. Orr explained that most bacteria are transmitted through bodily discharges, which a dead body would not produce. Spores, which would live longer in the soil, would have no way of spreading unless someone handles the body, she added.

Dr. Orr, however, acknowledges that the preservation achieved through embalming is a demand of today's society.

"I suspect most people today would request it anyway. With all the other things present in the last part of the 20th century, embalming would go with all other cultural attainments," she said.

Dr. John Board, Lubbock regional director for the state health board, also said he believes proper burial practices and techniques lessen the chance for the transmittal of diseases through bodies.

He added, though, that the issue "is a debatable subject that I really have no answer for."

Persons who frequently have close contact with bodies seem more wary than public health officials on the dangers of bacteria, spores and viruses remaining in a body after a person dies.

Dr. John Ray, of Physicians Pathology Service, and another Lubbock pathologist both stated that in cases in which a person had died of certain contagious diseases, they would not perform an autopsy until the body was embalmed.

They pathologists also said organisms in the form of spores could become a public health hazard in urban burial plots.

"In our culture, one of the main objectives is to stop disease and there are many organisms in the spore form that would last a long time if they were to get into the soil," said Dr. Ray.

Pathologists, Morticians Back Embalming Law

Although state health officials in March will consider repealing a state law requiring a body to be embalmed or refrigerated within 24 hours of death, many local authorities continue to support the post-mortem process.

Some Lubbock health officials question the value of embalming for health reasons, but local pathologists, physicians and morticians agree the technique is essential for the accepted funeral practices of today's society.

The State Board of Health will determine at a March meeting if those values merit the continuation of the current law, passed in 1951.

While persons in immediate contact with dead bodies, such as pathologists and medical researchers, often require that a body be embalmed before they will work with it, Dr. Marjorie Orr, director of the city health department, said she believes that an unembalmed body usually is not a health hazard to the public.

Another Lubbock pathologist said embalming "cuts down organisms or micro-bacteria tremendously, so that an embalmed body is of no practical threat to anyone."

Dr. Ray seconded Dr. Orr's belief that today's funeral practices require the use of embalming. He said the "accepted funeral process almost depends on embalming from start to end."

Bodies donated to research at Texas Tech Medical School also must be embalmed "for preservation and sanitation," said Claud Lodstein, coordinator of the Anatomy Department.

Lodstein also noted that commercial transporting companies require that bodies be embalmed before they will carry them, for both health and aesthetic reasons.

Monta Wolfe, a mortician at Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home, said most health authorities are uncertain about the need to embalm "because nearly everyone is embalmed."

The rate of deterioration of a body depends on temperature, moisture, and the condition and bacteria present in the body at the time of death. Without embalming, which costs about $100, odor, swelling and puffiness begin to develop when decomposition starts.

Wolfe said the public usually "thinks the body remains in fairly good state for two or three days, but it just doesn't do it."

"Discontinuing embalming would eliminate paying respects to the dead," he added.

The mortician agreed, however, that embalming is not necessary if the body is disposed of within 24 hours of death.

Financial Managers' Seminar Scheduled

The Southwest School of Municipal Finance, inspired by a successful start in 1978, will sponsor a second seminar for financial managers and administrators in state, county and city governments on May 13-17 in the Texas Tech College of Business Administration.

The school, part of the Center for Professional Development at Texas Tech, has been established "as a vehicle for improving finance officers' knowledge of legal, governmental and financial dimensions involved in effectively discharging their responsibilities." Director Michael D. Joehnik, professor of finance at the university said.

Dr. Joehnik cooperates with Texas and New Mexico professional institutions, including the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, Texas Association of School Business Officials and Texas City Management Association. Advisory board and faculty include professional practitioners and professors from Texas, Florida, New York and Indiana.

Last year three-quarters of the more than 50 seminar participants rated the three and one-half day program "excellent." They had been offered 16 hours of core courses and eight elective seminars.

This year the program offers 20 hours of core courses, including "Financial Administration," "Municipal Accounting," "School District Accounting" and "Cash Management." The seminar has been expanded to offer 12 different topics, covering complementary issues such as mathematics, credit analysis, computer applications and others.

Tuition fee per registrant is $385, covering single occupancy dormitory accommodations, course materials, all meals and social and recreational activities. Enrollment is limited to 90 persons.

Registration will be accepted in received order. Full refunds will be made for cancellations before May 1. Programs, enrollment forms and detailed information are available from Center for Professional Development, College of Business Administration, Texas Tech University, P.O. Box 4320, Lubbock 79409.

MADISON, Ga. (AP) — A delegation of Chinese farm officials is studying agricultural technology in Georgia.

The 12-member delegation arrived from Washington on Sunday. The group is to visit a seed company and the University of Georgia College of Agriculture before flying to Memphis, Tenn., Tuesday. Earlier this month, Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping visited Atlanta and three other U.S. cities.

The Arkansas Razorbacks have won 10 games in a row and at the end of the regular season probably were playing the most consistently quality basketball in the Southwest Conference.

But now it's time to get serious. "We're going to have hard practices before the tournament," said Arkansas (SWC Final Standings On Page 4) coach Eddie Sutton. "We're going to have practices like the ones we had after we lost to Baylor (the Razorbacks' last setback which came more than a month ago).

"We have to improve before the tournament."

The Southwest Conference post-season tournament, which will play to three days worth of sellout crowds at Houston's Summit Arena, opens Thursday night.

Texas A&M (22-7) will meet Texas Tech (18-9) in the tourney opener and Baylor (16-11) will face defending tournament champion Houston (15-14) in the second game of Thursday night's double-header.

Arkansas (21-4) and Texas (20-6), regular season co-champions for the second straight year, will appear Friday night — the Razorbacks meeting the Tech-A&M winner and the Longhorns facing the Baylor-Houston winner.

The championship game Saturday night will decide which team receives the conference's automatic NCAA tournament bid.

"I think the tournament is more wide-open than ever," said Sutton. "Anybody who gets to the semifinals has a chance to win. Tech and A&M will play Thursday night and either of those teams could win the tournament. Either Baylor or Houston is capable of pulling off the upset."

The tournament began last Saturday with Houston, Baylor and Texas Tech winning as expected. Houston pulled away from Southern Methodist in the second half to win, 74-67; Baylor overwhelmed TCU, 104-78; and Texas Tech had little trouble with Rice, 82-49.

The Baylor-TCU game was the final one for Tim Somerville as Horned Frogs coach. Southern Methodist officials, meanwhile, are expected to announce Monday that Coach Sonny Allen — under fire in some circles for not producing a team that has challenged for the league title — will be kept on and given a larger recruiting budget.

Somerville, whose teams won only two league games in his two-years as head coach at TCU, announced his resignation last week.

"All I know is that I'm going to play a lot of golf," said Somerville. "I've had a couple of job offers, but I'm not going to make a quick decision."

Thursday's two opening games should set the tempo of what could be one close contest after another.

"As far as the tournament goes," said Tech coach Gerald Myers, "all we can look at is Texas A&M. They are rested and I'm sure they will play hard. We're in the tougher bracket — no doubt about that."

Just to reach the finals of the tournament Tech would have to beat Texas A&M and Arkansas.

Earl Scudday Off And Running

DALLAS COWBOY FOOTBALL players live like members of the jet set in the off season, as everyone knows. Trips to Honolulu and Bermuda, performances on video shows, banquet appearances across the land — it's great to be young and a Cowboy!

Not all the troops are living it up in the plush playgrounds of the world, however. Back at the ranch in North Dallas, some of the hands already are working like demons to prepare for the upcoming season. The official start of the off-season drills still is a month away, but try to tell that to Todd Christensen, David Hudgens, Kenny Randle and Rayfield Wright.

Everyone knows big Rayfield, the former All-Pro offensive tackle who has been slowed by knee ailments in recent years. The veteran is trying to strengthen his wheels for what he hopes will be one more time in the big time.

But what about the rest of those guys sweating and straining on the muscle machines and running 40-yard dashes when they ought to be home shoveling snow off the driveway?

CHRISTENSEN AND HUDGENS were two of the Cowboys' top three draft choices last year, but were injured in training camp and placed on the injured reserve list for the remainder of the season. Experts evaluating Dallas' prospects in 1979 better not forget these two dedicated young men, because they could give the 'Pokes more depth and scoring punch.

Christensen, the former Brigham Young backfield whiz famed for his pass-catching, has lifted a million pounds of iron the last six months and now is an impressive physical specimen at 6-3 and 242. Gil Brandt recently clocked "Toddzilla" at 4.7 seconds in the 40, too, which ought to get Coach Tom Landry's attention.

Christensen wants to play fullback, but Dallas insiders say he is more likely to be assigned to tight end because of his good hands and blocking strength.

ANOTHER REGULAR PATRON at the practice field just off the LBJ Freeway these cold February days is Hudgens, a defensive line standout at Oklahoma in 1977. The Cowboys made Hudgens their third-round draft pick a year ago, drooling over his 6-5 x 250 size and strength. But he came up lame at Thousand Oaks and was placed on the injured reserve list.

Cowboy coaches think he can make the shift from defense to offense, following in the footsteps of Blaine Nye and Pat Donovan. If he does, there is going to be some kind of battle for places on the roster, because he'll join such other promising young blockers as Andy Frederick, Jim Cooper and Tom Randall.

Hudgens' injury last summer was, in fact, a blessing in disguise for both the 'Pokes and the former Sooner star. Landry could not have retained possession of all those prospects if Hudgens had not gone on injured reserve. Now he's back to make another try for a job.

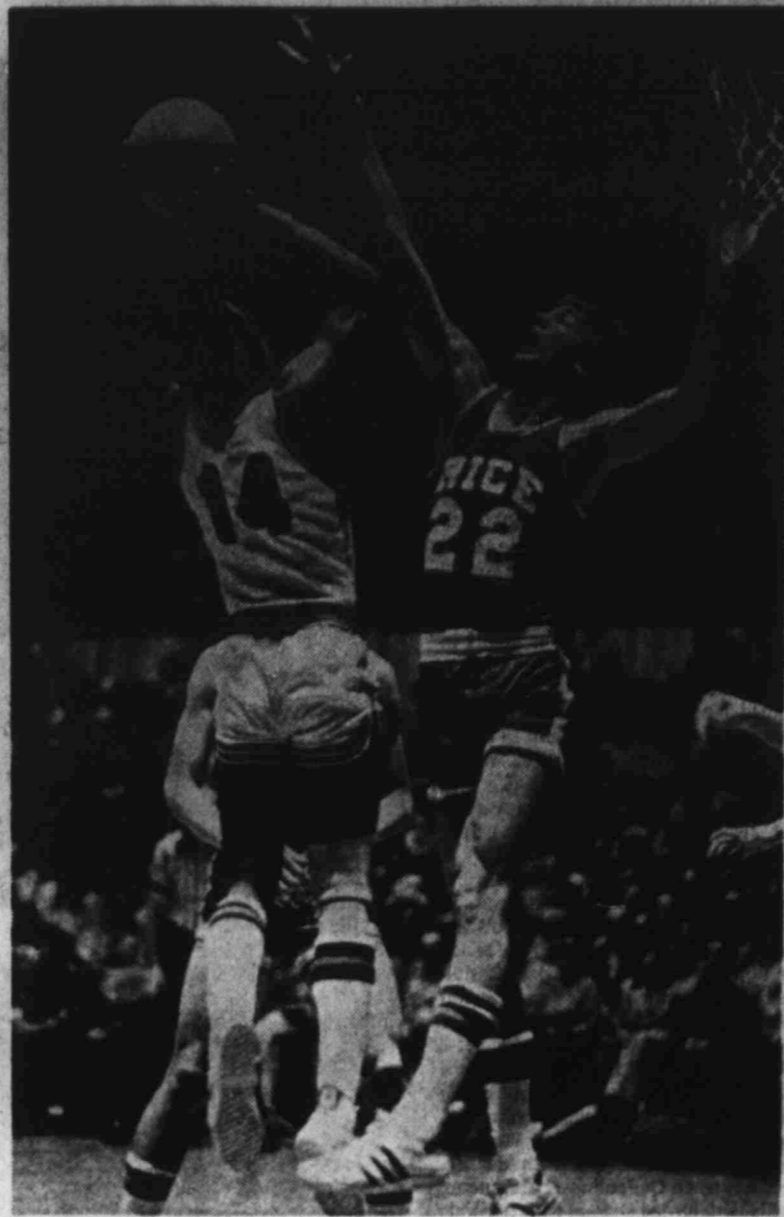

ANOTHER OF THE off-season participants is Kenny Randle, who Cowboy fans may confuse with rookie guard Tom Randall. Kenny was a football and track standout at USC a couple of years ago and was drafted by Cleveland in 1977. He didn't make it with the Browns, but Dallas scouts still thought he had ability and signed him as a free agent.

An injury slowed Randle last summer, so he also went on injured reserve. Dallas coaches plan to give him another look at cornerback, where he has more size than Aaron Kyle and more speed than Benny Barnes.

The mentors are not all that unhappy with the two incumbents, understand. They had problems covering those Steeler wide receivers in Super Bowl XIII, but who doesn't when Terry Bradshaw has a hot hand?

Still, the coaches always are looking for help at those vital cornerback positions and Randle, with his 6 x 200 size and 9.7 sprinter speed, looks like a prospect.

At this stage of the off-season, that's good enough!

Whitharral Gets Class B

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

LEVELLAND — There is a popular country-western lyric that gives some good advice to wayward men. It goes, "You don't go writing hot checks down in Mississippi, and there ain't no good chain gang."

The Channing boys basketball team might have been tempted to give a little advice of their own after they finally succumbed to the Whitharral squad 49-42 Saturday night here in the Texan Dome in the Region I Class B championship tilt.

If they administered any advice at all it would probably be, "You don't go hooking it up with the Whitharral Panthers in regional competition, and they're ain't no bad Jim Avery."

Avery, a 6-4 senior, caused the Eagles nothing but misery all night long as he ripped the nets for 25 points (12 of those in the second period) to open up a wild Whitharral scoring spree.

Although Channing managed to tie the score several times late in the third quarter with the help of hot shooting Tim Price (who netted 18 points as the Eagles' high scorer), it was Avery who commanded control of the game.

With only one minute gone in the final period and the score standing at 33-33, Avery dropped in two straight buckets to put the Panthers out in front for the final time of the contest.

That effort was nothing new for Avery, though, as he has averaged more than 20 points a game this season. Earlier this week, he devastated Southland in the bi-district match with a sum of 29 points.

"At first Jimmy got intimidated by Tim Price's coverage in the first half," said Whitharral coach Phil Warren. "But he came back in the fourth quarter and helped us out tremendously."

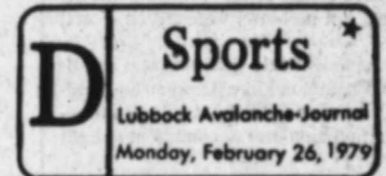

"We have a good team and everybody pitches in, and I think that the mere fact we made it to the regional playoffs proves that," said Warren. "There is no way you can reach the playoffs through the play of just one man, but Avery is definitely the middle of the wheel for our team and makes things roll for us. I think he is going to be an excellent college prospect," said the coach.

If Avery was the middle of the Whitharral wheel then Rodger Reding must have been one of the main spokes. The 6'1" Panther (also a sr.) added up his share of the points for Whitharral's side of the board as he shoved in 12 points to follow Avery in the double digit range.

Unlike the outside shooting of Avery, Reding preferred to drive in for the sure shot. Late in the fourth quarter the Whitharral cager ended one of the many attempted Channing comebacks as he dropped in a fast break layup to give the Panthers a four point advantage. Then on the next Whitharral possession, he barreled in for a baseline layup his fourth of the night.

"Rodger did a real good job for us tonight too," Warren said. "But there were quite a few other players that did equally as good, and we had some other factors in our favor also. One was that we did better off the foul line than Channing did and that always helps win a game."

The Panthers outmatched Channing in the charity shot department 13-6.

Not even the accurate shooting by Price — with most of his shots coming from the 20-25 foot range — could save Channing's hopes for a 12th visit to the state competition since 1963.

Instead the Whitharral Panthers will travel to Austin to represent the region with a 27-8 mark. Channing closed its season with a 22-9 record.

ACC Meet Tickets Scarce

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In the four-state Atlantic Coast Conference region, tickets to what is shaping up as one of the best conference basketball tournaments in the country are as scarce as preachers at an X-rated movie.

In other words, they aren't to be found. This year, Georgia Tech is receiving 16 tickets to the ACC Tournament at Greensboro as a gift to the league's newest member. Although the Yellow Jackets won't play an ACC basketball schedule until next year, it was as good a time as any to begin the painful division of what has become a precious commodity in this basketball-crazed region.

"Like they say, the only people who get to see the ACC Tournament are the high rollers," said Marvin "Skeeter" Francis, the league's associate commissioner. "The high rollers are the ones who can afford to make big contributions to the schools."

The tickets to the tournament, which begins Thursday, are $40 each and that covers all six games including the championship game on Saturday. The problem is there has been no public sale of the tickets in the past several years and the prospects aren't improving.

Fortunately, for the first time, all of the games are being televised.

At most of the ACC member schools, about 10 percent of the 2,100 tickets allotted are earmarked for students. A lottery determines those who can purchase them.

The rest of the allotment is set aside for the "high rollers."

"It isn't the man coming off the street to see a basketball game," Francis said. "The thing that makes this tournament unique is the audience. You might see a Kiwanis Club president standing up and screaming his head off at the officials. They are doctors, lawyers, judges — people for the most part who you would normally associate with strong supporters and financial supporters of the institutions."

If you're neither a lucky, select student nor a "high roller," you must go to outside sources for tickets. This year, a toll-free number was found in the classified personals of some newspapers that guaranteed the best seats in the house.

A reporter's telephone call failed to produce any results. A mysterious voice promised that someone would return the call, but nothing ever happened.

A Wilmington man said his call was returned, and he was told he could have any number of tickets for $225 each.

Those associated closely with athletics at the member schools often find that friends from years past suddenly try to renew their friendships around tournament time in the hope of securing a ticket or two.

Rick Brewer, sports information director at the University of North Carolina, said he gave one ticket to a girlfriend in 1975, Phil Ford's freshman year. As she was walking toward the coliseum, a man thrust a $100 bill in her hand and begged for the ticket.

"But she wouldn't go for the deal and North Carolina came from eight points down with 56 seconds left to win in overtime over Wake Forest. I figure she got her hundred dollars worth."

Bird Flies High On National TV

By The United Press International
All-America forward Larry Bird and his Indiana State cohorts finally got a chance Sunday to show their stuff to all the skeptics who have denied the Sycamores the laurels usually due an undefeated team.

In a nationally-televised game, Bird closed out his regular college career with a career-high and school record breaking (Complete College Standings On Page 4) 49 points to lead the second-ranked Sycamores to their 26th straight victory, a 109-84 rout over Wichita State.

The victory gave the Missouri Valley champions their first undefeated season ever and might be the key to the elusive No. 1 ranking.

Bird, who was drafted in the first round as a junior by the Boston Celtics after last season, scored 22 points in the first half as ISU took a 48-42 lead. After the Shockers narrowed the margin to 52-50, he triggered a 15-2 scoring spurt to put the game out of doubt. The 6-foot-9 Bird also grabbed 19 rebounds.

Carl Nicks scored 25 points and Leroy Staley and Steve Reed 10 each for ISU. Lynbert "Cheese" Johnson led the Shockers with 21 points and Steve Kalocinski added 14.

The Midwest was the center of excitement Saturday night, too, when 11th-ranked Iowa handed No. 13 Ohio State 83-68 and No. 8 Michigan State topped Illinois 76-62 to throw the race for the Big 10 title into a three-way tie between the Hawkeyes, Buckeyes and Spartans. No. 17 Purdue downed Michigan 67-59 to remain just a game behind with one week of league action left.

Ronnie Lester matched his career high with 31 points to lead Iowa. Kelvin Ransey paced OSU with 22 points.

Greg Kelsner and Earvin Johnson combined for 45 points to power Michigan State to its ninth straight victory. Kelsner scored 24 points and Johnson had 21 points. Eddie Johnson paced Illinois, 19-9, with 18 points.

Big 10 leading scorer Joe Barry Carroll scored 35 points to lead Purdue, which hosts Indiana and Ohio State this week.

Elsewhere, top-ranked UCLA edged Washington State 110-102 in triple overtime, third-rated Notre Dame trounced LaSalle 93-70, No. 7 Duke topped No. 4 North Carolina 47-40, No. 5 Louisiana State was upset by Mississippi State 65-57, No. 6 Syracuse stopped Colgate 113-62 and ninth-rated Marquette fell to No. 20 DePaul 61-60. No. 10 Texas was idle.

Brad Holland, Roy Hamilton and Kiki Vandeweghe each scored four points in the third overtime as UCLA struggled to boost their Pac-10 record to 13-3 and remained one game ahead of Southern California. Holland led UCLA with 28 points and David Greenwood added 22. WSU's Don Collins led all scorers with 36.

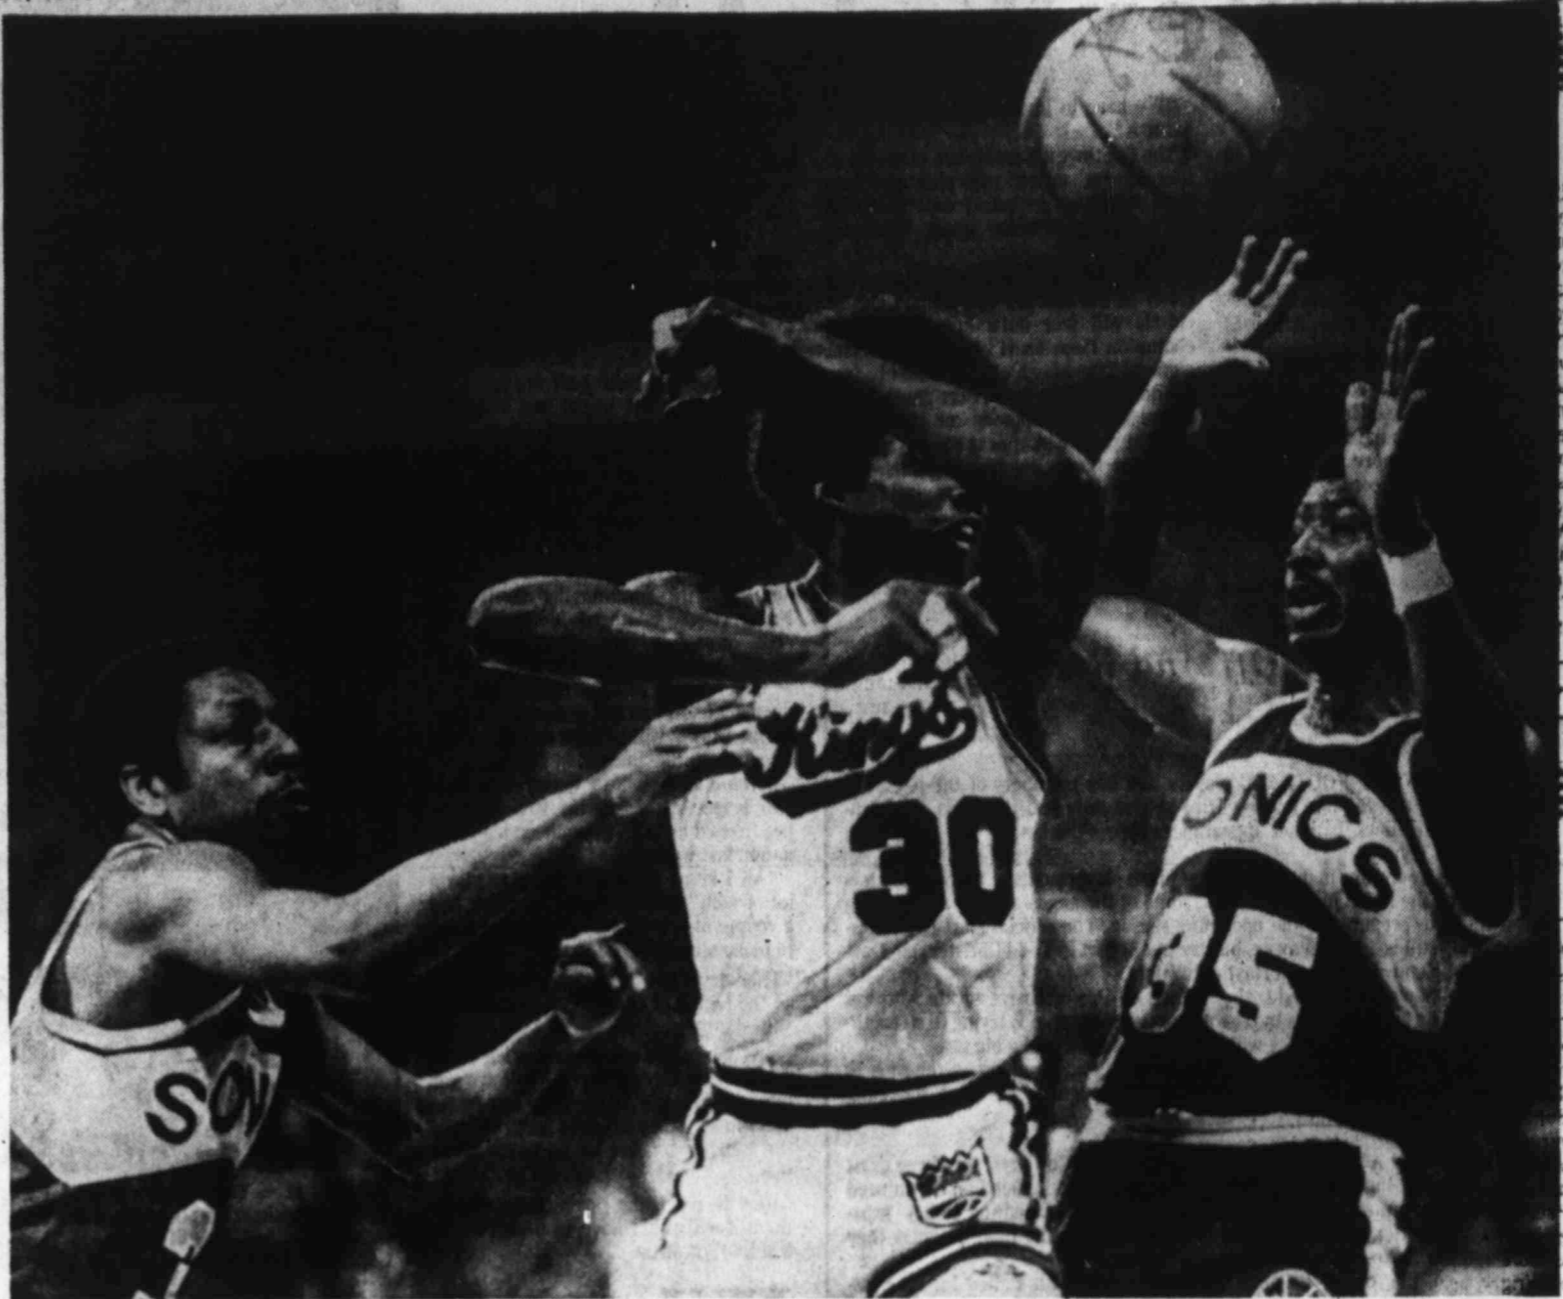

Orlando Woolridge scored a career-high 21 points to pace Notre Dame, 21-3, over LaSalle.

Rickey Brown scored 18 points and Mississippi State hit three free throws in the last 30 seconds to upset Louisiana State. Jordy Hultberg came off the bench for 18 points to pace LSU, which has already clinched the regular season Southeastern Conference championship with a 14-4 mark.

Marty Headd and Louis Orr sparked a 27-2 Syracuse scoring spurt early in the second half as the Orangemen routed Colgate.

Gary Garland hit a tip-in with four seconds left when DePaul upset Marquette. Curtis Watkins led DePaul with 19 points while Mark Aquirre and Garland each had 18.

Rounding out the top twenty, No. 14 Louisville stopped Tulane 95-71. No. 15 Temple topped Dayton 66-63. No. 16 Georgetown downed Holy Cross 63-54 in double overtime and No. 18 Detroit edged Loyola (Ill.) 72-69. 12th-ranked Arkansas and 19th-rated Vanderbilt were idle.

Wadkins Makes Choice, Wins LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Facing a 613-yard hole, a par 5, and you have a great tee shot with a driver where the wind isn't much of a factor, what club do you take from your bag for that second golf shot?

Lanny Wadkins just kept his driver and used it again from the fairway and got close enough to the 17th hole to use a sand wedge to the green even though he wasn't in the sand.

The ball stopped two feet from the hole, Wadkins carded a birdie and that brought him the championship of the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open by a single shot over Lon Hinkle.

With the birdie, Wadkins carded a 69 Sunday, giving him a total score of 276, eight-under-par for the 72 holes. Hinkle finished at 70-277.

"I have lost tournaments before by hitting high shots onto wet fairways," Wadkins said after his victory. "This time I wanted a shot that would be low, hit and roll and that's why I used the driver on the second shot."

"I didn't want to get stuck in the mud and even with the wedge shot, I wanted it to hit and run," the winner said.

The hit and run wound up two feet from the hole for a birdie, the stroke that won, but it took a pressure 10-foot putt on the 18th to wrap up the victory as a gang hit the finish line.

Behind Hinkle was Kermit Zarley at 71-278, Andy Bean, 70-278, Fuzzy Zoeller, 70-279, Ed Sneed, 69-279, Jim Colbert 69-280, Tommy Aaron 69-280, and Rod Curl 66-280. The latter carded a 32 on his final nine.

Wadkins, 29, from Advance, N. C., changed putters after the second round and made some alterations in his grip in the final round.

"It was so minor that nobody would notice it, but I could feel it," said the winner, who has criticized his putting all season.

Now the golfers leave the West and head for Florida and the tournaments there. Wadkins said he will play in the first one but then take a two week vacation.

At the 18th tee, Wadkins pulled back before hitting his tee shot.

"When I looked up, I saw a bird and with my luck, I might have hit it," he commented.

Two years ago, Wadkins finished second in the Los Angeles Open and he says the Riviera Country Club is one of his favorite courses, a demanding layout that requires both strength and finesse.

If the winner had a complaint, it was

Sanedtki Takes Race

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Bill Shoemaker, the masterful veteran jockey, literally got a ride in the $125,000 Santa Margarita Invitational Handicap at Santa Anita.

"This mare is a real runner, but she has some ideas of her own," Shoemaker said Sunday after his winning ride aboard Irish-bred Sanedtki. "She was really wanting to run down the backside, but we had nowhere to go with two leaders in front and another horse alongside."

"As soon as there was an opening," Shoemaker continued, "I knew I had to go even though I'd rather have waited a little longer. The moment she got the lead, she started pricking up her ears and looking around."

The single-minded Sanedtki was a nose ahead of fast-closing longshot Queen Yasna at the wire, with Surera another 1 1/2-lengths back in third. But Queen Yasna was disqualified down to seventh for interference in the stretch, moving Surera to second place and Ida Delia from fourth to third.

Sanedtki was clocked in 1:47.4 in the 1 1/2-mile event contested by 11 fillies and mares, 4-year-olds and up. She carried 124 pounds and returned $6.40, $5.20 and $5.40. Surera paid $42 and $14, while the show payoff on Ida Delia was $5.80.

Dottie's Doll, who had been running back in the pack but was beginning to make a move in the turn for home, was thrown offstride in the bumping incident, and finished sixth. Grenzen, the high weight at 125 pounds, was well in contention early but had no drive late and finished 10th.

Francisco Mena, who rode Queen Yasna, said: "I didn't think my filly came in and bothered those other horses. It seemed to me the inside horses were coming out. She was the best because she came around everyone."

general — the officials allow golfers to play at too leisurely a pace.

"I'm a fast player and it disturbs my game," he said.

Wadkins, Hinkle and Zarley entered the final round deadlocked at 207.

Zarley hit the green with his second shot on the par 5 first hole and sank his putt for an eagle to go ahead. But by the end of the nine he had a bogey and double bogey and Hinkle led.

From the 13th to 15th there was a three-way tie with Wadkins, Hinkle and Zarley. Then the latter bogeyed the 15th and it was Wadkins and Hinkle until the crucial 17th.

Wadkins might have missed his 10-foot putt at the 18th, but he stepped up and knocked it into the hole, something he had failed to do often in the earlier rounds and he had bogeyed the 18th in each of the first three days.

Title Fight Falls Flat After Referee Dispute

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — There was an abundance of angry finger-pointing, heated accusations and hostile name-calling, but no blows were struck — and that was the problem.

The World Boxing Association's light-heavyweight title fight that was scheduled Saturday instead became a title fiasco. Champion Mike Rossman and challenger Victor Galindez never even saw each other on fight day, as a standoff between the WBA and the Nevada Athletic Commission over appointment of fight officials caused the bout to be canceled.

The WBA wanted to name its own judges and referees, using just one Nevada official and having the rest from foreign countries. The Athletic Commission, however, named its own Nevada people to work the fight and would not back down.

The dispute had surfaced Friday, and a lengthy meeting extending into Saturday morning failed to resolve the issue. Still, Rossman, a crowd of 4,200 at the Caesars Palace Pavilion, and ABC-TV were caught almost totally surprised when Galindez left just before the fight was supposed to start.

The WBA had told the Argentinian that if the fight were staged without referees it had chosen, it wouldn't be sanctioned. So in effect, he wouldn't be fighting for the title.

Promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc., tried desperately to resolve the dispute as fight time neared. When it became apparent there would be no bout, he stood in the center of the ring and said the fault lay with "your athletic commission," then he added "the fighters want the fight to go on."

He had also called the Nevada Commission "amateurs" who are ruining boxing in the United States.

Sunday, Arum said that plans are in the works to stage the title fight sometime in April and he added that if the Nevada Commission would change its position on fight officials, there was a possibility the bout could be staged in Las Vegas.

After the fight was called off Saturday, athletic commission members predictably enough accused the WBA of last-minute pressure tactics.

"Arum knew when he brought the fight these were the rules," said commission chairman Robert Shields. "We have had this policy with the World Boxing Council. Until last night, we had never heard of any of the three people they recommended to us."

Rossman, who won the title from Galindez last Sept. 15 in New Orleans, sided with Nevada, while Galindez predictably agreed with the WBA.

"No matter where a fight is, that state should put its own people in," said Rossman. "I think the state should be able to determine its officials, not some organization that has no base in the state. No foreign fighter should be able to dictate who does the fight."

"I have a contract with the WBA, and I respect the people I am fighting for," Galindez said through an interpreter. "I thought I was coming here to fight for the WBA championship; we were deceived."

Fatal Gas Leak Changed City

YOUNGSTOWN, Fla. (AP) — Marjorie Dillard dreaded this day's coming. Her 14-year-old son, Matt, died a year ago. His brother, Eddie, now 18, spent four weeks in intensive care.

The two boys and six friends had squeezed into a car for a late-night cruise on U.S. 231 when they ran into a strange dense fog.

The engine died. The boys began choking. Within minutes, four were dead, victims of chlorine gas.

A 146-car train carrying 20,000 gallons of pressurized chlorine to two paper companies had derailed a mile north of Youngstown. A tanker car was punctured, spewing thick, green chlorine gas into the moist night air.

This Florida Panhandle community of about 750 hasn't been the same since. Eight area residents died. Nearly 150 were hospitalized and hundreds more were nauseous for days.

Legal maneuvering has blocked resolution of lawsuits totaling $317 million filed against the railroad, tanker company and chlorine gas company involved. But the night is etched painfully in the minds — and lungs — of local residents.

Edward and Marjorie Dillard and four children live on a small farm five miles from the wreck site. Their meager financial resources were depleted by the tragedy. Matt's grave in a small cemetery in town has no headstone. They couldn't afford one.

Eddie spends his time tinkering with an old car. He doesn't have the stamina to do much of anything else.

"If I can make it through Monday, I think I'll be OK," said Mrs. Dillard.

The Atlanta & St. Andrew Bay Railway Co. freight train still rumbles nightly from Panama City to Dothan, Ala. Invariably, it awakens the Sullivan family.

"I used to never notice the train," said Ruth Sullivan. "Now, whenever I hear it, my stomach tightens up."

The Sullivans recall how they had to pass through the chlorine cloud when they were ordered to evacuate at 3:30 a.m.

"The past year has been miserable. There have been so many doctors' bills," Mrs. Sullivan said. "It's all you can do to get by."

Four times Bob Sullivan has been rushed, gasping for breath, for emergency treatment. He's had six bouts with bronchitis.

Mrs. Sullivan said she was hospitalized five days last October with lung problems. And, she added, her son, 16-year-old Bobby, has had bronchitis five times.

Jacquelyn Hopson wants to sell her house near the tracks, but no one is interested. Clarence Jones, a former mechanic and bar owner, has been in and out of hospitals and hasn't worked a day since the wreck.

James and Rosie Brown, who gave food and sanctuary to vomiting victims and exhausted rescue workers that night, want to sell their general store. Brown, 64, has been plagued by lung problems.

The U.S. Transportation Safety Board ruled the derailment was caused by sabotage. J.W. Cunningham, the railroad's vice president for operations, said he knows "in the bottom of my heart" that the track was tampered with.

The FBI says its investigation "has not developed any information of physical evidence as to the cause of the derailment as being either intentional or accidental."

Lawyers on both sides have spent most of the year arguing what court has jurisdiction. The first lawsuits were filed in federal court. U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow recently dismissed them, saying they were state cases because Florida citizens were suing Florida companies.

Twelve plaintiffs have hired the firm of attorney F. Lee Bailey, which recently has begun seeking disaster cases around the country, to refile their suits in state court. A suit filed by Bailey for the Dillards demands $100 million.

Everywhere, there is bitterness. "Ain't nobody out here said nothin' about nothin'," Brown said. "Nobody's even said they was sorry."

Small Town Remembers Tragedy Of Last Year

WAVERTLY, Tenn. (AP) — The bells of five churches pealed softly 16 times — once for each life lost.

For those who lived through the holocaust of an exploding railroad propane tanker it was a sad commemoration of a year-old disaster.

"Let's have complete silence, because it's 2:50 and exactly one year ago this disaster occurred," the Rev. Dwight Hatley said during a memorial service Saturday.

Sixteen people, including the town's fire chief, Wilber York, and police chief, Guy Barnett, died from the explosion and fire Feb. 24, 1978. Scores of people were injured.

Where once stood 11 homes and six businesses near the center of town, there is level ground and a little park to mark the tragedy. Relatives of the victims filed by a stone marker in the park, many pausing for a few moments to leave single roses.

Nearly 600 people, including the families of the victims, gathered at the site of the explosion where the ruptured Louisville & Nashville tanker exploded two days after it derailed and shortly before it was to be drained.

The town's 13 volunteer firefighters sat in a special section during the observance. Two of them, Frank Craver and Riley Turner, had been injured in the explosion.

"I think God makes things happen for a reason," Turner said. "I think he was trying to tell me something. It was a terrible thing to happen. I try not to think about it, or let it bother me. I just live day by day."

Craver said he spent 145 days in the hospital recovering from his burns.

"The main thing that helped was the fact that we knew the people back home cared. They showed they cared and that's what brought us through the whole ordeal," he said.

Craver and Turner still help the volunteer firefighters, working as dispatchers when needed.

Among the speakers was Phil Hooper, Louisville & Nashville resident vice president.

"While L&N want to do everything possible for the families of the people, there is no way that dollars or courtrooms can make up for what they've lost," he said.

NBC Trying To Restore Reading With 'Novels For Television'

By PETER J. BOYER
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — There is at least one happy consequence of NBC's entrenchment in third place — the network is occasionally willing to try a novel idea.
 Like "From Here to Eternity," "Studs Lonigan," "Brave New World" and "Shogun," popular classics on which NBC has based a series called "Novels For Television."
 "What we're hoping to do is get people to do what they used to do — read a book," says Deanne Barkley, vice president in charge of miniseries and movies-for-TV. "Only we're letting them read a book by watching television."
 Now that sounds typically television, anti-intellectual and all that. But, consider — television is going to do a bunch of miniseries and TV movies anyway, it might as well be stuff based on quality material.
 And, curiously, some of these classics seem perfectly suited for TV, such as the "Novels for Television" opener, James Jones' "From Here to Eternity." Had there been no James Jones, had a TV hack written the thing for a Wednesday Night Movie, it would have been called trashy TV — lots of sex, brutality and a brewing war.

 Then there's Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," a project Hollywood hasn't been eager to tackle. If you remember sophomore literature, you'll recall this as a metaphorical satire on the loss of self, or something like that, heavy with deep meaning. How do you get folks to watch something like that?
 Easy. "There's also a straight story there, too," says Miss Barkley, "a story about a future world and test tube babies. And what have we just seen? Test tube babies. It's all in what you say, in how you promote it."
 Because much of television sometimes seems designed for an audience of illiterates, it's easy to forget that great literary works are often built on the same foundations that make a smash TV show.

 "I think that these books, the stories that stand out forever, have to do with human relationships, and human relationships are based on life and death, sex and violence, love and hate," Miss Barkley says. "What makes a successful book can make successful television."

 One of the problems facing "Novels for Television" is that the stories and characters are forever changing, and the series can't ride on the strength of familiarity. One of TV's favorite theories is that after a show has been on for a while, it's easier to slip in a few turkeys. Viewers watch the character, not the show.

 But with "Novels For Television," NBC is not as likely to get a series type of audience loyalty. Viewers who loved "From Here to Eternity" may hate "Studs Lonigan," and may be lovelier to "Novels." Each novel has to stand strong on its own.
 I hope "Novels" makes it. There's the nice prospect of new faces every couple of weeks, and those are pretty fine stories. NBC is doing it. It promises a pleasant alternative to ordinary TV movies. I've seen enough of killer bees and shark-eaters. Well, enough of killer bees, anyway.

Show Blends Mime, Ballet, Humor, Music

By JAY SHARBUTT
 Associated Press Writer
 NEW YORK — "Coquello" is the show. It has mime, ballet, tumbling, slapstick, jazz, rock, classical music. It's done live and with film shown on a semi-circular combination screen and curtain.
 It's from, and its stars are members of, the National Theater of Prague. You'd best Czech it out — a thousand pun pardons — before the rush starts at the new 22 Steps Theater, where it bowed last week.
 The show involves the birth and passage through life of two clowns who keep bumping into a tall, Satanic-looking chap billed as The Tempter and a lady of great beauty and goodness called Venus.
 Wait. Keep reading. I had the same feeling what all this threatened — a dull, murky symbolic night for dozing. The feeling grew as a huge red poppy floated about in the opening moments.
 And as The Tempter cavorted beneath two giant white eggs, I had a severe urge to tiptoe out and go have a beer or 12. Glad I didn't.
 Because "Coquello" suddenly became a lively, whimsical, eye-catching show, a seamless blend of mime, dance, Ernie Kovacs, Monty Python cartoons, Punch 'n' Judy and Cinerama, to cite a few elements.

 The four stars and supporting cast capered on stage, then whisked off, immediately popping up in a variety of film sequences matching not only what they'd been doing on stage but in about the same spot.
 It was magic work, starting when the screen showed the two giant eggs floating on a lake. You heard gunfire, then saw the eggs exploding and two clowns treading water amid egg-shell fragments.
 Bingo, they popped up on stage, the Venus on film walking toward them. Then the screen-curtain lifted and there she was, in the flesh, joining them, followed moments later from film by The Tempter.
 On and off they went, from stage to screen and back again, separately and collectively, through a gypsy camp, a windstorm, clouds, and a red and yellow circus tent, first outside, then in.
 Only two bits, both filmed in the circus ring, grew stale — a lion act too much like those cloying freeze-frame cat-food commercials, and a trained-horses bit that went on too long.
 But the rest was downright amazing, ditto the fluidity of dancing that went from tumbling to ballet and back with no waste motion.

 With its sight gags, whistles, odd noises, circus fire, stunning ride in a hot-air balloon and more, "Coquello," like Walt Disney's "Fantasia," has to be experienced to be believed.
 It was created, written and directed by Josef Svoboda of the Prague National Theater, with the film direction by Ewald Schorm and the superb choreography by Karel Vrtiska, both of them also Czechs. It was brought here by co-producer Olivier Coquelin with aid of three fairly well-known gents from film and Broadway — Gene Kelly, Allan Jay Lerner and Michael Butler.

 Good idea it was, too. Not only is "Coquello" a grand show for grown-ups, I suspect kids will get a tremendous kick out of it, too. It bounces about one's imagination. Yes, you'd better go see it.

Motorists Regret Loss Of Bridge

OLDTOWN, Md. (AP) — Allegany County residents now face a 40-to-50-mile detour through Cumberland to get to West Virginia in the wake of the collapse of the last privately owned toll bridge in Maryland.
 The Oldtown Bridge was ripped from its bearings by a massive wall of ice Friday night and washed down the Potomac River.
 The bridge, which its owner said was the only one of its kind between states left in the country, spanned the Potomac between Oldtown and Green Spring, W. Va.
 It was used heavily by Western Maryland residents who worked in Green Spring.
 Owner Charles O. Walters charged 1939 prices to 1979 travelers, who paid 25 cents for a one-way trip or $2.50 monthly to drive back and forth over the one-lane span.
 But the 323 feet of railroad tracks and cross-tied oak planking could not stand up to an ice jam estimated to be 30 feet high, said bridgetender Harold Dickson, 66.

Stock Mart Continues Slow Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today, continuing the sluggish trend of the past two weeks.

Losers held a 6-5 lead over gainers in the mid-day count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.03 at 822.25.

Analysts said investors remained cautious over border fighting between China and Vietnam, rising oil prices and inflation.

News reports over the weekend said a 15 percent increase was in the offing in the price of oil imported from Venezuela.

Late last week the government reported that the consumer price index climbed at a 10.8 percent annual rate in January. The rise of the index, though not as severe as some economists had feared it might be, was still seen as a restraining influence.

Resorts International class A and B shares were delayed in opening on the American Stock Exchange.

New Jersey authorities were expected to decide today whether to grant the company a permanent license for its casino in Atlantic City.

Caesars World jumped 4 1/2 to 42 1/2. The company said it expected to report a substantial earnings gain for the quarter ended Jan. 31.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .02 to 54.86. At the Amex, the market value index was off .05 at 162.50.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 9.3 million shares at noontime, against 9.27 million at the same point Friday.

Inflation Lessens Buying Power Of Saved Money

By JOHN CUNIFF
 NEW YORK (AP) — Thrift has been so esteemed by society that there exists hardly a person who cannot recall an adage to honor it less quickly than they can fetch a penny from their pocket.
 Those maxims need not be repeated — just their message, that God and thrift are synonymous, and that great blessings are bestowed on those who save their pennies. Everyone knows they grew into dollars.
 The child's penny savings bank became Americana. And there exist even today great savings institutions that were founded on the nickels and dimes of workers. No coin was too small. Didn't pennies become dollars?
 They did, but they usually don't anymore. If you put $1 into a savings account last year, inflation left you with 97 cents worth of purchasing power.
 Ben Franklin might have been right when he said, "A penny saved is two pence clear." It wasn't so last year. Had the dollar been spent, it might have purchased more. In postponing buying, the saver wasted.
 The reason: Passbook savings at savings banks and savings and loans institutions, called thrift institutions, earned 5.25 percent last year, and they pay the same this year too. Consumer price inflation was 9 percent.

 It is true that savers could have earned more than 8 percent had they agreed to leave funds on deposit for years. And more than 9 percent if they had $10,000 to tie up for six months. But those are special cases.
 The fact is that thrift, which helped supply the capital that built America, has not been paying off for many Americans, the small saver especially. Even U.S. Savings Bonds cost them dearly last year.
 Adding to the losses, and to their sense of outrage, is the equally destructive practice of taxing the illusion of profit. There were no profits; inflation took them. But savers still paid taxes on interest.
 Now the Carter administration is considering a change in banking regulations that might lead to some improvement.

The biggest change would be to bend or break Regulation Q, little known but all-powerful.
 "Q" is a Federal Reserve Board regulation setting the interest that commercial banks may pay on savings deposits. It has its equivalent at the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings institutions.
 Interest rates on savings, therefore, are not free to float to the skies, as they are on the commercial deposits made by corporations. They are set, arbitrarily. And they haven't changed since 1973.
 But the marketplace has. Inflation has accelerated, and now seems likely to remain at levels once believed intolerable. And the longer it remains at those rates, the more will small savings evaporate.

 There is a reason, of course, for attempting to keep consumer rates low, and it appears perfectly logical. If thrift institutions were free to compete by offering high interest on savings, for example, wouldn't they be compelled also to charge more for the money they lend?
 No question, they would. And among those higher rates would be those for home mortgages. If home-ownership were discouraged, it is generally felt, damage to the economy would be intolerable.
 But damage to savers has also become intolerable, and the Treasury Department therefore has released proposed changes on which it agrees "there is substantial disagreement."

 Among the proposals is one to permit interest rates to fluctuate on savings certificates of less than four years maturity, and eliminate them on those of more than four years.
 In addition, the minimum denomination on those six-month savings certificates, now paying more than 10 percent, would be lowered from $10,000 to $5,000. That change would take place two years hence.

If the proposals are agreed on, will they help the smaller saver? Yes, but none too soon. The thrifty, whose savings for a rainy day help finance the country, have been out in the rain a long time.

City Workers Like Living In Country

MAYS LICK, Ky. (AP) — Truman Ritchie and his commuter friends would rather commute 170 miles round-trip to work every day than live in the city.
 At age 51, Truman Ritchie has spent the past 20 years commuting from his home here to the General Motors Assembly Division plant in Norwood, Ohio.
 "It's like driving to the grocery store," he exaggerated, adding that he sleeps better because it's quieter in the country, although he doesn't get as much time to sleep.
 When he first started with GM, Ritchie took an apartment in Norwood.
 "I couldn't stand the noise," he said. "I like to lie down and have my quiet. We lived near some railroad tracks."
 In a couple of weeks, Ritchie was back living in the country.
 Back then, there wasn't another job to be had in his area. Now, he can't afford to leave General Motors.
 So he gets up at 3 a.m., in order to be at work by 5:30 a.m. He often works nine hours a day, six days a week. He leaves work at 3:30 p.m. and it's time to make the trip back home.
 "I get three or four hours (of sleep) and take off," he said. "They say when you get older, you need more sleep, but it doesn't seem to bother me."
 Ritchie alternates driving with four other men so each one has to drive only one day a week, unless there's overtime. Like Ritchie, the other men want to keep their homes in the country.
