

SUNDAY PREVIEW

Gymnastics Coming of Age

With gymnastics now a varsity high school sport, Midland athletes are trying to compete against other District 5-4A schools with even more intensive programs. And the young men are trying to get a toe-hold in what is still a female-dominated sport. The full story will be in Sunday's West Texas Life.

Daycare Dilemma

As more and more women join the work force in the United States, concern grows over the difficulty of obtaining quality child care. In Sunday's Lifestyle section, The Reporter-Telegram will look at dilemmas faced by Midlanders looking for daycare facilities for their children.

Iran and Deregulation

With a cutoff of oil imports from Iran dragging on, will national leaders be willing to deregulate domestic oil prices? Not necessarily. In Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, staff writer Linda Hill looks at how internal strife in Iran likely will affect U.S. oil supplies, prices and production.

$148,000 grant OK'd for MidTran vehicles

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

MidTran, a public transportation system for Midland, may get moving soon.

The Urban Mass Transportation Administration late Thursday approved a grant for $147,840 for the city of Midland to purchase the necessary vehicles.

The announcement first came from U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's office and later from U.S. Rep. Kent Hance. An official announcement came today during a news conference at the Chamber of Commerce.

The funds will finance seven transit vehicles, two with wheelchair lifts, and 15 two way mobile radios.

Les Riek, administrative assistant with Hance's Midland office, said today the grant will give MidTran a total of $184,800 for the project. Added to the federal grant are $12,936 from the city and $24,014 from the state.

UMTA, a division of the Department of Transportation, approved the grant only six weeks after its submission, according to MidTran President John Ingram.

"It's phenomenal," he said, noting that another Texas city has had its application on file for at least 11 months.

"THE GRANT WE WROTE was so uniquely attuned to Midland's needs," he said. "In no case has there been a program to coordinate all the transportation in the city."

A definite start-up date was not announced today. Ingram said MidTran will begin moving forward on the final procedures. "The major hurdle was this grant," he said today.

Transportation Coordinator John Schafer outlined the next steps. Bid-letting will take place this month, he said, with March to be spent finalizing the purchase order to the successful bidder.

Date to begin service will depend on delivery time of the vehicles, Schafer added.

Meanwhile, Schafer said, he will be coordinating work with Midland's social service agencies and applying for an operating fund grant.

MidTran, a non-profit corporation, was set up to implement a public transportation system designed by General Motors to meet the needs of Midland. It will employ demand-responsive and subscription services.

Subscription service has been designated for employees who will contract with MidTran for transportation to and from work each day.

DEMAND-RESPONSIVE IS for the general public. Passengers must notify the MidTran 24 hours ahead of time when and where they want to be picked up, where they want to be delivered and when they want to return home.

This will enable a MidTran employ-

Sewage plant hearing set

The Texas Water Commission has set a hearing on an application by the city of Midland to expand its main sewage treatment plant so it can employ an energy conservation process.

The hearing is set for 9 a.m. Feb. 13 in the Stephen F. Austin State Office Building in Austin, and will be conducted by a hearing examiner.

Midland's application seeks an amendment to the city's existing permit to provide for plant expansion and allow for disposal of domestic sewage effluent for the plant.

Director of Public Utilities John Lowe said a study on the situation at the sewage plant was conducted by Black and Veatch, consulting engineers of Dallas.

The completed report, presented to the City Council in June, concluded it was time to consider expanding the plant's facilities, Lowe said.

The proposed addition would allow the plant to handle sewage treatment for a town of up to 120,000 persons. Lowe said this should cover Midland's needs into the 1990s, or for about 20 years.

Currently, the treatment plant handles 5.3 million gallons a day and is capable of processing up to 6 million gallons daily. The new plant would handle as much as 9 million gallons a day.

The city currently has a no-discharge permit. If the commission approves an amendment, it will tell the city what type of plant the state would approve.

The new addition would take the waste and treat it through the same stages it already is going through, but would eliminate the most energy-consuming step, Lowe said. This would save taxpayers about $150,000 to $200,000 a year.

The effluent from this plant would be retained in storage pools and used for irrigation. No discharge to surface waters is proposed, according to Lowe.

The city currently has a contract with a farmer who has about 900 acres of land contingent to the sewage treatment plant. He also farms several acres of city-owned land and uses the treated effluent for irrigating it, the utilities director said.

"The nitrate loading rate is one of the primary things considered in this process," Lowe contended.

This "land treatment" process proposed by Midland would allow nature to make the final changes.

The same method was used by the city in the 1950s until the federal government ruled that sewage must be taken a step further in treatment.

To accent the added cost of the final step of treatment, Lowe said it used to cost the city about six or seven cents per thousand gallons to process waste water. After adding the new plant in 1971, it now costs about 15 cents per thousand gallons.

Lowe said the water used for irrigation would not be as "renovated" as that from the current plant. But, he said, water from the new addition could be used for irrigation while the water from the current plant is cleaner and could be used for an industry that would need recycled water.

"This gives us greater flexibility," he added.

Estimated cost of the addition at current prices would be about $3 million. If the city decides to seek federal funds, it could take several years to get the federal government's approval for the process and then funding.

Or the city could decide to go ahead and fund the entire project.

"The city may have to put out the same amount of money either way, if you consider the increased cost of building by the time the federal government approves it," Lowe said.

The Midland City Council will have at least two months before it must begin considering an expansion to the plant. Lowe said it will be about that long before the state commission announces a decision on the Feb. 13 hearing.

The only question Lowe thinks citizens may have about the plant is the connection between it and the proposed Odessa sewage treatment plant, which would discharge into Monahans Draw.

"We have a set of physical conditions that indicate it (the proposal) is an acceptable and good way to go," Lowe said. "It is a lot better than dumping it into the draw. This way it (water) is being used over and over again."

Braniff's first landing scheduled for March 15

Long-awaited first landing of a Braniff International aircraft at Midland Regional Airport should happen March 15, according to a spokesman for the airline.

That is the "firm target date" released Thursday by Braniff.

Approval for Braniff to start service to the Midland-Odessa area was given in late December by the Civil Aeronautics Board. At that time, airline officials were hoping to be able to get their planes servicing the Permian Basin by the middle of February.

But that date was conditional, depending upon when they could take delivery on their new 727-200s and start service at airports which had been approved before Midland.

A flight schedule for Midland-Odessa service still is being drawn up, said Mike Kaeser, director of public relations for Braniff, Thursday. Officials expect the schedule to be definite by next week, and it will be announced then, he added.

At that time, passengers can begin calling Braniff for reservations.

Plans for an opening ceremony at the Midland airport still are indefinite, Kaeser said.

The Permian Basin service will put Braniff at a total of 79 airports in mainland United States, Hawaii, Mexico, South America and Europe, with interchanges to Alaska and Canada.

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation for the city of Midland, noted Thursday that the airport is ready whenever Braniff is.

"It's just a matter of them (Braniff) getting their equipment in here and set up," he said.

The airline has had a mobile trailer located at the south end of the airport building converted into a ticket counter since early December.

The tentative March opening will be almost exactly nine months after Braniff first submitted its application to the CAB for approval. About that time, Continental had withdrawn some of its flights to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Braniff's service will be to DFW with connections to the East Coast. When the airline first submitted its application, tentative plans had called for six flights daily from Midland-Odessa to Dallas-Fort Worth.

Initial plans also called for one-stop service to Chicago, New Orleans and New York with similar return flights to Midland-Odessa.

The Midland flights also will hook up with Braniff's Concorde service to London and Paris.

Banks said although the CAB's December approval of a large number of new Braniff markets has delayed Midland's service, Braniff's arrival will give Permian Basin residents an increased availability of flights.

Midland Regional Airport already is serviced by Texas International, Southwest and Continental airlines.

Car accident kills Odessan

A 25-year-old Odessa woman was killed and three other persons were injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of Interstate 20 and FM 1788 in Midland County Thursday afternoon.

Linda Karen Morpew, driver of one of the vehicles, was pronounced dead at the scene shortly after 5:15 p.m. by Peace Justice John Biggs.

Larry Pierce, 25, also of Odessa, a passenger in the Morpew car, was listed in serious condition early today at Midland Memorial Hospital. He was receiving treatment for a broken left leg, a spokesman said.

Also injured in the crash, according to reports, were Jimmy Wayne Henderson, 31, of Odessa, the driver of the other vehicle, and Thomas Cooper, 58, of Odessa. Both men were treated and released from the hospital, according to a medical spokesman.

The Morpew car was westbound on the south service road of Interstate 20 and Henderson was northbound on Route 1788 at the time of the accident, said State Department of Public Safety officials.

Investigating the accident were DPS troopers Jim Swain and Hiland Priddy of Odessa.

Oil contracts precede Teng

HOUSTON (AP) — Untold millions of dollars in Chinese contracts with Houston firms preceded Vice Premier Hsiao-ping's visit today to this sprawling petroleum center.

Chinese delegations and Houston oilmen have been shuttling back and forth between Peking and Houston since the Shanghai Communiqué that followed President Nixon's 1972 visit to China.

There is every indication the shuttling will increase sharply with the normalization of diplomatic relations between China and the United States.

The president of the Petroleum Corp. of China is to head a delegation to the United States, possibly within a month, and National Council for U.S.-China Trade officials have said the trip will be "Houston oriented."

China is interested in petroleum and petrochemical equipment and technology and the Houston-Peking trade discussions have intensified since Chairman Hua Kuo-feng announced in 1977 a 10-year national modernization plan. Hua's program includes the development of a minimum of 10 major oil fields to meet increasing domestic and export demands.

China's petroleum reserves have been estimated at 20 to 25 billion barrels but its production approximates only 1.8 million barrels a day. By comparison, United States reserves exceed 19 billion but its production last year averaged 8.7 million barrels a day.

While most of the Houston-Peking negotiations have been of a hush-hush nature, contracts already announced run into the hundreds of millions.

Plant a tree to beautify a back yard and a city

The Midland Chamber of Commerce has a solution for that bare spot in the front or back yard — plant a pecan tree.

The chamber and The Reporter-Telegram are sponsoring a pecan tree sale, which has been extended to this weekend.

The trees, each 8 to 10 feet tall, cost $9.75, well below the approximately $17.50 usual retail price for a tree of similar size and quality.

The sale began last weekend, when, according to chamber Visual Improvement Project chairman Gordon Knox, approximately 3,000 trees were sold.

The sale will take place between 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday in the parking lot at Illinois Avenue and Baird Street, across the street from The Reporter-Telegram building.

Buyers may choose from the Stuart and Wichita varieties, the types recommended for Midland's soil.

The Lee High School Bandoliers will be conducting the sale. Checks will be accepted, but not credit cards.

This is the second year the chamber and The Reporter-Telegram have sponsored the project.

Knox said last year's sale was extended to Monday and Tuesday after the first weekend, but that was not possible this year. Thus, the second weekend of selling has been scheduled.

Knox cautioned buyers to keep the bare-root trees in a warm place until planting, which should be done as soon as possible after purchase.

The tree must be planted during cold weather and watered once a week for several years, he said.

It's Ground Hog Day folks, but...

If Midland had any groundhogs, they couldn't have seen their shadows on this foggy and gloomy Ground Hog Day morning. Whether that means an early spring, however, is open to challenge from purists who might insist a prairie dog won't substitute for the traditional ground hog as an indicator of when spring will come. Though this morning's fog didn't last long, the weatherman is calling for considerable cloudiness through Saturday. The low tonight should be in the upper 20s, and the high Saturday should be near 50. Winds are expected to shift to northwesterly at 10 to 15 mph tonight. A high temperature of 51 degrees was recorded Thursday at the airport. The record high for Feb. 1 is 80 degrees set in 1963. The overnight low was 29 degrees. The record low for today is 0 degree set in 1951. The extended forecast calls for a gradual warming trend Sunday through Tuesday, with temperatures reaching into the 60s.

A recently-produced, color film, "Of the people — the Texas Legislature," was shown as the program highlight at the Thursday noon meeting of the Downtown Rotary Club in the Midland Hilton. The film focuses on several members of the legislature, showing them in their home districts and in Austin, and on the overall workings of the legislature from the time proposed legislation is introduced until final voting on measures cleared for floor debate and final action. The program was introduced by Dr. Gene Grimwood, program chairman.

Israel reviving old British laws

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government is reviving hotly controversial laws inherited from the British to crack down on Arab terrorism in the occupied territories.

It is again bulldozing or bricking up houses and threatening suspects with banishment under 1945 emergency regulations enacted to control Jewish terrorism when Britain governed Palestine under a League of Nations mandate.

Israel made wide use of the regulations after it captured the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip in the 1967 war. The most extreme measures fell into disuse as Israel imposed firm control.

But on Dec. 4 army bulldozers flattened the houses of two Palestinians suspected of murdering Arabs they believed cooperated with the military government. They were the first demolitions in three years. Four more houses were demolished Tuesday and windows of two other homes Thursday.

In the same week, a Palestinian university student was handed a deportation order, also a rarely used device in recent years. The student is appealing the order to civilian courts.

The crackdown was a result of an intensified terrorist campaign apparently aimed at disrupting Israeli-Egyptian negotiations for a peace treaty, an army officer involved in the crackdown said.

Fifty-seven Israelis were killed in terrorist operations last year, 35 of them in a shootout with bus hijackers near Tel Aviv. In comparison only three Israelis died in 1977.

The officer said collective punishment "is one of the most effective deterrents at our disposal." He argued that destroying the homes of suspected terrorists was a legitimate form of psychological pressure.

"Unfortunately, this is a dirty war," he said. "We can't be expected to come away with absolutely clean hands."

The crackdown began while Parliament considered legislation rescinding some of the regulations and replacing them with laws curtailing the arbitrary power of the military government in the West Bank and Gaza.

The proposed law reforms the section on administrative detention and ensures judicial supervision of military arrests. Critics say the detentions should be outlawed, not reformed.

Maj. Gen. Avraham Orli told a news conference last month, shortly before he retired as Israel's top officer in the occupied areas, that 20 persons were now under administrative detention.

Under the existing regulations, the defense minister, the army chief of staff or a regional commander may detain a suspect indefinitely without trial. The case must be reviewed every six months.

Wisconsin couple say they win victory for fat people

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Barbara and Gordon Ray say they gained a victory for fat people when the state backed down and said they had as much right as thinner folks to adopt a child.

The state Thursday suspended a rule which barred the couple from adopting a child because they are overweight.

"I think we've served a function in getting the rules changed," said Gordon Ray. "I'm happy we could do some good for other so-called fat people."

The couple, both 28, began their efforts to adopt two years ago after doctors said they would probably never have children.

Social workers told Gordon, 6-foot-2 and 215 pounds, and Barbara, 5-foot-9 and 210 pounds, that she had to lose 40 pounds and he 25 pounds before they could be considered as adoptive parents. Reports of the obesity rule triggered a legislative investigation, criticism of the rule from Gov. Lee S. Dreyfus and suspension of the order by Wisconsin Health and Social Services Secretary Donald Percy.

Percy said he issued a directive that obesity should be ignored in state adoption proceedings except at the recommendation of physicians. He promised the Rays' application would be considered.

Percy cautioned that the Rays, certified earlier as healthy by doctors, must meet all other adoption criteria. He said one in 25 couples who apply actually receive a child.

Percy, who said the obesity rule had been implemented inconsistently on a regional basis throughout the state, defended the philosophy behind the rule but said he has nothing personal against fat parents.

Special education takes jump

AUSTIN—Educating Texas' 300,000 handicapped children may cost the state about $600 million over the next two years, Midland Sen. Pete Snelson predicted Thursday.

But the massive expenditure won't impair other education programs, he said.

Snelson, who chaired an interim legislative committee on special education, released the panel's 39-point plan for improving services to handicapped children in public schools. And although that spending estimate took a $105 million jump from 1978-79 figures, he said budget plans are in line with other preliminary spending figures.

"Our recommendations are already in the framework of the budget allocations of the Legislative Budget Board (the state agency responsible for writing budget proposals for review of the Legislature)," Snelson said.

And, he added, the committee is in "excellent shape to obtain legislative and administrative approval of most of the suggestions and recommendations" in the report.

Local school districts will have to take on an increasingly costly burden through state and federal requirements that handicapped children be educated in the "least restrictive environment," Snelson said. But, he added, that doesn't mean Texas schools are automatically required to "mainstream" all handicapped children, placing them in regular classrooms rather than in special education settings.

The report also recommended more coordination of services provided by 14 state agencies to handicapped children, more efficient use of the Texas Education Agency's 20 regional education service centers and providing special allocations to school districts with special needs.

GE nuclear power plant worker arrested

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A man who worked at a General Electric plant has been arrested on theft and extortion charges after 150 pounds of uranium was taken from the facility, the FBI says.

The slightly enriched uranium, contained in two canisters, was recovered by the FBI Thursday in an open field five miles east of the General Electric Nuclear Fuel Plant just outside Wilmington. Agents and others said the uranium posed no threat to health.

David Learned Dale, 39, of Wilmington, who was employed by a subcontractor working at the plant, was arrested at the facility at midafternoon. Dale was taken before a magistrate and ordered held on a $150,000 bond.

A GE spokesman said the canisters were discovered missing last Friday during normal computer monitoring at the plant, which manufactures radioactive fuel rods and pellets for nuclear power plants.

The extortion letter was found Monday, propped against an office door. The letter was said to threaten to release to the media information that the canisters had been stolen if GE didn't pay $100,000 within 48 hours.

No money was given, officials said.

A dangerous bill

A number of strange bills have been introduced during this session of the state legislature, but one of the tops in this particular category is House Bill 281, introduced by Rep. Arnold Gonzales of Corpus Christi.

The bill — "An act relating to social psychotherapeutic, psychological, and psychiatric treatment and counseling for minors" — would allow a child of age 10 and older to give consent on his own for the above mentioned treatment and counseling.

Yes, you read it correctly, the bill would allow the child to give consent on his own for such treatment and counseling.

Furthermore, the proposed legislation states that "If a minor consents under this section, no further consent is required of any other person."

And, "A person who is permitted under this section to give treatment of counseling to a minor and who has received that consent is not liable for injuries resulting from the treatment and counseling except for acts of negligence."

This bill not only is strange, it is ridiculous. Furthermore, it is hazardous to a marked degree.

But despite this, Section 2 of the bill states: "The importance of this legislation and the crowded condition of the calendars in both houses create an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the constitutional rule requiring bills to be read on three several days in each house be suspended, and this rule is hereby suspended."

How in the world can a 10-year old child give a truly informed consent in a situation of this nature?

The Texas Eagle Forum, a chapter of which is being organized here, says that the proposed legislation further "erodes the concept of the family. They are taking our children from us."

Surely, and hopefully, a bill of this nature will not get very far in the Texas Legislature. But it certainly wouldn't hurt to advise your legislators of your feelings in the matter.

Another provision states: "A person providing treatment or counseling services under this section to a consenting minor, with or without the consent of the minor, may inform a parent, managing conservator, or guardian of the person of the minor of the nature and extent of the services given to or requested by the minor." But the person providing the treatment is not required to inform anyone concerning the patient or the case.

Worth the effort

Independence, freedom, liberty — call it what you like, but no matter the label, people everywhere historically have been ready and willing to make sacrifices — even their lives in wars, if necessary — for the right of self-determination.

The 50,000 people of Greenland, didn't have to go to war to win home rule after 250 years as a colonial ward of Denmark. Under an agreement reached with the Danish Parliament after five years of negotiation, all they had to do was make their decision known through the ballot box.

And they did — most emphatically.

Greenlanders took to their dog sleds and snowmobiles, braving howling blizzards and forbidding expanses of rock and ice to register their votes for ending the ties to Denmark.

More than 70 percent endorsed home rule for their island, which is half again as big as Alaska.

The celebrations in Godthaab, the capital city, were similar to those which are traditional in the United States (rockets, fireworks, parades), as election returns were received from remote settlements.

Americans can understand the Greenlanders' response to the referendum and share their exuberance. Americans know how it is — even after 200 years.

CHARLEY REESE: Carter's budget anything but 'lean and austere'

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — Jimmy Carter's budget and the silly reaction to it is just more proof that we are living in an open air nut house.

If a $531.6 billion budget is "lean and austere," then Billy Carter is a Jesuit scholar. You know we are in trouble when you start dividing politicians into liberals and conservatives on the basis of what size deficit they advocate.

Carter's budget is spendthrift and extravagant and it's going to cost us all a bundle in higher taxes, worse inflation, and more meddling in our lives by bureaucrats who get paid to be obnoxious.

This whole business in Washington is one gigantic charade to fool the average, decent American. Let's look at just a few of the false notions they try to peddle to hide their own greed and incompetence.

One is that government budgets just sort of grow on their own like mushrooms. The sly way to put this over is to make statements like, "Why this budget just barely keeps abreast of inflation." The implication is that there is no way to really stop growth or to cut the budget decisively.

Well, the truth is you cut a budget the same way you expand it — by legislative action. The House of Representatives has the sole responsibility under the Constitution for all appropriations. If you want to know who's got his hand in your pay envelope, it's your local congressman.

Another phony notion is that the bureaucracy just hatches out of eggs laid by the Easter Bunny. "Well, these agencies exist and we have to fund them," they say.

No we don't. The Congress created them. The Congress can abolish them or vote them zero appropriations. Only the three branches of government mentioned in the Constitution can't be abolished by a simple majority vote in the House.

Still another false notion they peddle is a variation of the first one. Congressmen who pretend to be conservatives are especially guilty of selling this one. The donkeys pass a law and then when you complain about it, they say, "Well, I don't like that either but after all it's the law and we have to live with it."

No we don't. Repeal the sucker. The Congress puts laws on the books and it can take them off.

Our federal government has become a racket which fleeces the honest working man and woman and turns them into serfs who must support the politicians, the bureaucrats, and the special interests who are getting rich at our expense.

If you consider yourself poor, look around your room and ask yourself how much of half a trillion federal bucks are you getting. Then go visit your liberal congressman and ask him how much he's getting. Ask him why he's in the top five percent of the population in terms of income. Ask him about his pension and all the other goodies he's voted himself. Then ask yourself who's the dummy — he or you — who gave him the job and continues to believe that his big old heart just bleeds for you.

The biggest mental fraud they try to pull off is to convince Americans that we are helpless to change the situation.

Goose feathers. Nothing in this world of any importance happens without a reason and every problem has its cause and can be traced to specific decisions made by specific people. Furthermore, none of the problems is insoluble.

But to solve them, we have to wake up and shake out the cobwebs, poke around in the attics of our souls until we find the trunk where we packed our courage, and then get mad. Let's make sure the politicians and the bureaucrats share the misery they create.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Billing policies make them ill

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Lucille R. Hall of Columbus, Ohio, is 85 years old, with a monthly income of $302 from the Railroad Retirement Pension Fund. She is precisely the sort of person Medicare was set up to protect.

But because of the continuing battle between federal bureaucrats and the medical fraternity over what constitutes reasonable doctors' fees, the widowed Mrs. Hall was saddled with some $700 in bills following operations to install and then repair a defective pacemaker.

When measured against the more than $20,000 total of her medical bills for the two operations, $700 isn't much; when measured against a $302-a-month income, it's a staggering sum.

Grant Anesthesia Associates billed Mrs. Hall $210 for an hour's work. Mrs. Hall submitted the bill to Medicare and a private insurance company which sold her supplemental "Medigap" coverage. But they decided that a reasonable charge for the anesthesiologist's services would have been $122. Since Grant Associates had not agreed to accept the Medicare decision on its fee, this left Mrs. Hall to pick up the $88 difference. They are suing her for payment.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Hall's is not an isolated case. Increasingly, doctors across the country are refusing to take Medicare patients "on assignment" — the term for a doctor's agreement to accept the government's determination of a reasonable fee as full payment. When a doctor agrees to take a case on assignment, he in effect swallows most of the difference between the Medicare payment and his standard fee.

The major problem, according to the doctors, is that Medicare officials use formulas that are anywhere from six to 30 months old on which to base their determination of "reasonable" fees. More and more doctors are refusing to accept the government's assignment fees, which are lower than those paid by non-Medicare patients. Nationally, the assignment rate has dropped from 64 percent in 1967 to 50 percent in 1977. In Ohio, investigators for Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, found that only 35 percent of Medicare cases are accepted on the government's terms.

Whoever is to blame for the situation — greedy doctors or bureaucratic sluggards — it's the patient who pays. The difference between what Medicare will allow and what doctors charge, whether made up by supplemental coverage or paid out of the patients' pockets, has skyrocketed from $81 million in 1969 to a stunning $699 million in 1977.

For elderly Americans like Lucille Hall, whose inability to pay the ever-increasing cost of medical treatment is exceeded only by their need for medical services, the failure of the bureaucrats and the doctors to settle their differences is no cold, impersonal set of statistics. It is an acute, personal tragedy.

QUESTIONABLE STUDY? For years businessmen have been complaining about the federal regulations that hamper their productivity and force them to spend many man-hours filling out governmental forms in quintuplicate.

The most widely quoted study of the cost of federal regulations was made in 1977 by Murray Weidenbaum of the St. Louis-based Center for the Study of American Business. Weidenbaum estimated that federal red tape costs companies — and thus ultimately consumers — $102 billion this year. Accepted at face value, this estimate would be a serious indictment of the federal regulatory process.

But there is another study that casts doubt on Weidenbaum's hair-raising report. It was done by economist Julius Allen for the Congressional Research Service, and has gone virtually unnoticed.

A major fault Allen finds with the Weidenbaum study is that it "makes no attempt to determine the value of the benefits of regulation, so that a net cost of regulation, rather than a gross cost, could be determined."

In other words, Allen suggests that the saving to consumers achieved by keeping federal watchdogs on the tail of Big Business should be weighed against the cost of supporting the watchdogs.

Allen also questions the cost data Weidenbaum used to arrive at his $102 billion figure. And he concludes that, given what he perceives as the limitations of Weidenbaum's study, "it is impossible... to say whether this estimate is too high or too low, only that it has enough questionable components to make the totals arrived at suspect and of questionable validity."

CASTRO'S COMPLAINT: Cuba's Soviet-backed dictator Fidel Castro has let it be known that he doesn't think much of the new, cozier relations between the United States and Communist China. He complained to a visiting congressional delegation that our recent recognition of Peking was a power play by the Carter administration.

In his best professorial manner, Dr. Castro predicted that formal diplomatic ties with his mentors' Marxist rivals wouldn't be good for the future of U.S. foreign policy.

'UGLY INCIDENT' REVISITED: Mayor John Luby Jr. of Monroe Township, N.J., has written us about our report on Jozsef deKovaacs, a Hungarian refugee who ran against him in the last election.

Luby does not dispute the fact that deKovaacs was twice turned away from the polling place and had to get a court order to be allowed to vote. Nor does Luby deny that the challenge to deKovaacs was made at Luby's instigation.

But we owe the mayor an apology, not for the facts in our original column, but because we spelled his name Ruby instead of Luby.

INSIDE REPORT:

Behind Brown's balanced budgets: read all about it

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., far from flinching at the ridicule of Jimmy Carter's Washington over his demand for a constitutionally-imposed balanced federal budget, is convinced the U.S. is on the verge of fundamental, inflation-connected political changes that he intends to shape and lead.

In the few days of his second term, Brown has already wrought political change here that has split him from conventional party leaders and delivered stunning help from both elected Republicans and influential businessmen.

But it is the national Democratic party and the 1980 presidential nomination, which Brown clearly wants, that will feel the full force of Brown's political conversion. Brown is hurling his challenge directly at President Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy and the party's traditional constituencies. As he told us in his office here: "America is running on panic today" — and voters want basic fiscal changes to end the horror of inflation and make America competitive again.

Both Brown's principal legislative leader, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, and the state's top Democrat in Washington, Sen. Alan Cranston, have publicly broken with Brown on his Jan. 8 inaugural demand for a constitutional ban of federal red ink. Indeed, Brown is probably the first just-elected governor to be booed by his own state party, as he was at the Democratic convention here Jan. 20 when he first appeared at the podium.

Instead of backing down with apologies, Brown carefully built his case in a tightly reasoned explanation of fiscal "reality," then attacked "experts," "the Ph.D.'s" and the "timid souls" who defend red-ink spending even at the peak of today's recovery cycle. At the end, delegates in the nation's most liberal Democratic party gave him a standing ovation.

That is the quintessential Brown today: explain, then attack from what he feels is a secure position of political strength. Brown, an original foe of California's Proposition 13, had his eyes opened to reality when voters here approved it by a huge majority last year. As one of his top aides told us: "He feels he experienced something very personally about the voter mood today that few other politicians have felt."

Long considered a political oddball, Brown finds that his offensive has suddenly made him a fixture at podiums he used to shun. He showed up somewhat unexpectedly at the San Francisco convention of the National Food Processors Jan. 23 and talked for 45 minutes, highly unusual for Brown. Four days earlier he insisted on addressing the top brass of the Big Four auto companies (guests of the California Chamber of Commerce) at the Century Plaza Hotel. Out-of-state invitations for Brown are piling up in record numbers.

In his interview with us at the state capitol, Brown ridiculed opposition to his call for a constitutional convention to force an end of deficit spending and halt what he calls "this perverse government money machine." The decline of the U.S., he told us, is directly tied to the decline of its currency which in turn is directly influenced by the immense red-ink spending of the past dozen years. Politicians in Washington may have trouble understanding that, he says, but voters have no trouble at all.

Brown is acutely sensitive to charges that he is a political opportunist who has undergone frequent conversions — now from a liberal Democrat (who managed Eugene McCarthy's 1968 presidential campaign here) to a conservative Republican. What has changed, he insists, are objective circumstances and the voters. "Before Franklin Roosevelt, no one could imagine the New Deal," he told us. "Now what is coming in the '80s no one can begin to appreciate. We are moving into a new cycle" — a cycle that will change the map of today's politics in unpredictable ways.

To Republicans and conservative

Democrats, this is like catnip. Fred L. Hartley, chairman of Union Oil, refused to give Brown a nickel for his re-election campaign; he recently sent $20,000 to help liquidate Brown's $800,000 campaign debt.

Republican Assembly leader Paul Priolo, the No. 1 opposition legislator, has informed his party he will do nothing to blunt Brown's balanced budget campaign. One of Speaker McCarthy's trusted Assembly leaders, a Democratic powerhouse on the Ways and Means Committee, warned McCarthy to expect no anti-Brown help from him, saying: "I'm sticking with Brown and the balanced budget right into the White House."

Brown himself is a man possessed of an idea and entirely convinced of his rectitude. It can convince his party and his country, the world will be hearing more from Jerry Brown.

Mark Russell says

One of the demonstrations against Vice Premier Teng was by the American Communist Party — which consists of a dozen 80-year-olds from New York's Lower East Side and a thousand FBI agents with beards, overalls and wing-tipped shoes.

There was also a demonstration by the original Formosans. They were on Taiwan first — sort of like the American Indians without Marlon Brando.

As Billy Carter would put it — There's a hell of a lot more Chinese than there is Formosans.

There was a reception for Teng in Washington attended by the top executives of 150 major corporations. On the wall was a poster which said — "Welcome Mr. Teng. Today is the first day of the rest of your life as an ex-Communist."

Fiddling keeps brothers in business

By JULES LOH
 HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Joe Dobbs works in a disheveled little shop where the tart smell of old-fashioned hide glue mingles with the sweet sound of old-fashioned mountain music and the wonder is that any work gets done at all.
 "On Saturdays," Dobbs said, "we don't even make any pretense at working. We push everything aside and play."
 What Joe Dobbs plays is that ancient music of Appalachia, music brought here by pioneers, handed down by tune from fiddler to fiddler, and somehow kept intact for 200 years.

WHEN HE ISN'T, oh, fiddling around, Joe and his brother, Dennis, repair the instruments that make those soulful sounds: dulcimers, fiddles, mandolins, banjos, instruments literally as old as the hills.
 "I couldn't have made a living 20 years ago," Joe said, "but since the recent revival of traditional music, fine old instruments have been coming out of attics by the dozens.

 "Somebody will come in with a sack of parts and say, 'This was grandpa's old fiddle and I want to learn to play it.'
 "Take a look at this instrument. It is a fretless banjo. The only other one I ever saw was in a museum. This one came out of an attic in Kenova. It was made before the turn of the century."
 THE DOBBS brothers' shop is located out on the edge of town in an area dealing in used furniture, second-hand clothes, feed, coal, life's earthy fundamentals, just the right place for a mountain music shop.
 People come from miles around to find the shop. When they do, they are likely to be treated to an impromptu duet, Joe stricking a fiddle, Dennis plucking a banjo. If the customer feels the urge to grab a guitar off the rack and join in, have at it. Let the work go.

 "If you get anxious about getting this back, Joe told a man the other day, who had brought in a guitar for repair, "call me up and give me a nudge."
 Joe Dobbs is a bouncy man of 45 put together in the shape of a barrel.
 When he tucks his fiddle under his chin, under a shaggy brown and gray beard, and cradles it in his big round shoulders and thick arms, the fiddle seems fragile, toy-like.
 THE MUSIC IT makes is far from fragile, though.
 Lids close over deep blue eyes, warm red wood presses against neck and the music is alive, driving, laughing, wailing. Fellow fiddlers at folk festivals from coast to coast count Joe Dobbs among the best.
 Joe was raised in Mississippi and Louisiana, out in the country. Like most country musicians, he is both self-effacing and self-taught.

"My father, working the cotton fields, used to whistle tunes like 'Turkey in the Straw' and 'Leather Britches.' I thought he made them up."
 "I learned all those tunes. You can imagine my feelings when I discovered, years later, that other people knew them, too."
 HE TRAVELED the southwest, working at this job and that, playing with amateur groups whenever he could, and learning that it was almost impossible to find someone who could repair a fiddle.
 At first he took on repairs as a sideline, mostly as a favor to fellow musicians. It soon became his livelihood.

though playing a fiddle, not fixing one, remained his first love.
 "When I came here in 1967 and saw these Appalachian mountains, saw where mountain music has come down in its truest form, it was as though I always knew this was where I wanted to be. I believe there are more pickers in these hills than anywhere.
 "Now there is one more. One more country fiddler. Say, if you want to hear some real mountain music, drop by Saturday."

IRS investigating Sherman church

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has launched an investigation of the First United Pentecostal Church and its pastor, the Rev. Charles E. Glass, sources told newspaper reporters.
 Glass, pastor here since 1958, is already under investigation by United Pentecostal Church district officials after several persons quit, alleging fanaticism and emotional terrorism. Glass has declined to comment on the allegations.
 Police say they have not received any complaints from members or ex-members of the church, but officers had to beef up security in the area Wednesday after an anonymous threat was phoned in.
 "Someone called the police department and said the church would be burned and for us to keep kids out," said Assistant Chief J.D. Pickens. "We stepped up patrols a little bit and that's all there was to it."
 The Sherman Democrat and the Dallas Times Herald quoted former members of his church who said they have been interviewed within the last month by IRS investigators seeking financial information on the pastor and the church. IRS officials in Dallas refused to confirm or deny the report.
 Grayson County tax records show a 1974 model Piper Cherokee airplane valued at $26,900 is registered to Glass, and a 1979 Cadillac purchased in December for $16,389, is registered to the church for the pastor's use.
 Joe Joiner, Glass' lawyer, also declined to comment on any specific allegations.

KGB involvement not a surprise

By CHARLES A. KRAUSE
The Washington Post

GEORGETOWN, Guyana — So many strange things happen in Guyana, long a playing field for the world's two foremost intelligence agencies, that it seemed almost inevitable to many informed diplomats and Guyanese that the KGB and CIA would somehow become involved in the Jonestown affair. True to form, both intelligence services have kept busy in the aftermath of the Nov. 18 tragedy. For all the recent failures of the CIA to remain clandestine, in this case it is the KGB that has come under public scrutiny.

It is generally known that the Soviet Embassy here was regularly in touch with the Peoples Temple over the last year and that the chief liaisons on the Russian side were KGB agents stationed here.

What could be worse for Valery A. Koval, a senior KGB officer and chief of the Soviet intelligence operations here, along with Alexander Kramerenko and Vladimir Kasatkin, reputed KGB officers, than having their identities known to almost every reporter in town.

Indeed, Western observers here can hardly contain themselves when they talk about how embarrassing Jonestown has turned out to be for the KGB and the Soviets, who initially thought they could reap a propaganda victory at the expense of the Americans when the 900 deaths occurred.

Within days after the world learned of the mass suicide-murder, the Soviet news agency Tass called the incident another example of the sickness and decadence that pervades the United States.

But that was before Guyana's prime minister, L. Forbes Burnham, decided that the way to dam the stream of embarrassing questions about his government's relationship with the Peoples Temple was to expose links between Jonestown and the Soviet Embassy.

Apparently the idea was to make clear that the Soviets stood to lose if Burnham's Marxist opposition — led by Cheddi and Janet Jagan, who have admitted close ties with Moscow — continued to insinuate that the Peoples Temple received special favors from the government in return for money, women and political support.

According to informed sources, Burnham's decision to play his Soviet card was made easier because he was disenchanted with the Soviets even before Jonestown gave him an opportunity to embarrass them.

Last spring, Burnham visited the Soviet Union, hoping to persuade Moscow to make massive loans, credits and grants available to shore up Guyana's tottering economy.

The Soviets refused to help Burnham, although his government is "nonaligned" against almost every position the United States supports. Last October, the prime minister, who was originally installed in 1964 with CIA support because Jagan was the only alternative, openly criticized Moscow for refusing to come to his aid.

After the incredible events of Nov. 18, the Mirror, the People's Progressive Party newspaper edited by Janet Jagan, pounced on Jonestown as an example of the poor judgment and corruption that it said pervades the Burnham government. The prime minister looked vulnerable.

But ever the master politician, Burnham began to dribble out bits of information — some of it available from Jonestown survivors questioned by Guyanese police, some available from documents seized at Jonestown and some of it already in the possession of Guyana's security police — detailing the Soviet links to the Peoples Temple.

Although Jonestown survivors told reporters soon after the mass suicide-murder that Soviets had visited the remote commune on more than one occasion, and that the Rev. Jim Jones spoke of moving the temple to the Soviet Union, the first hard evidence of how involved the Russians were came Dec. 6.

The Chronicle, a government-controlled newspaper, published a memo from temple files detailing a March 30 meeting between emissaries from Jonestown and Timofeyev, third secretary of the Soviet embassy. He is now identified as a KGB major.

The meeting, according to the memo, concerned the possibility of moving the Peoples Temple to a spot near the Black Sea. The meetings continued on a weekly basis, according to informed sources here, and Timofeyev visited Jonestown at least twice last year.

When the first Chronicle article did not stop the Jags from pressing their attack on Burnham, the government made public letters from Jonestown to the Soviet embassy sent just as the suicide-murder rite began.

The letters listed bank accounts where $7.2 million in temple money was deposited and instructed Timofeyev to withdraw the money for use as the Politburo in Moscow saw fit.

Last month, Guyana's Foreign Ministry said it had received from the Soviet Embassy a suitcase containing 8,000 Guyanese dollars and some tapes that had been brought to the embassy by the Peoples Temple hours after the suicide-murder was over.

The Guyanese pointed out that it took the Soviet Embassy 18 days to hand over the suitcase. Whether all of the tapes or money originally in the suitcase were sent to the Foreign Ministry is unknown.

Foreign journalists in the meantime were talking with Jonestown survivors — several of whom had met regularly with the Soviets. It did not take long for reporters to find Guyanese and Western sources who identified these contacts as KGB officers.

Declarer won the ace of clubs, took the heart finesse, continued with the ace of hearts and then led a low heart.

This is where West couldn't wait. He stepped up with the jack of trumps to win with a "useless" card.

West continued the clubs, and South ruffed. South then led another heart, and West's failure to ruff was very revealing. Clearly, East had the eight and ten of spades.

DEEP FINESSE

Declarer therefore led a trump from dummy and covered East's eight with the nine of spades. He could then lead the king of spades to drive out the ace, ruff the club return and draw the last trump.

West should discard on the third heart. South gets to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead another heart, and this time West can ruff with the jack of spades.

West gets out with a club, and now South cannot get to dummy to lead trumps. East gets two trump tricks, instead of only one.

Agency's effort on aluminum wiring stalled by challenge

WASHINGTON (AP)

A court challenge to its jurisdiction is keeping a federal agency from acting on its contention that aluminum wiring in an estimated 1.5 million homes may be a fire hazard.

In the latest court action, the U.S. Court of Appeals sent back to a lower court Wednesday a case involving the dispute between manufacturers and the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The appeals court said the case hangs on a legal determination of whether aluminum wiring systems are customarily distributed to consumers as "distinct articles of commerce."

If not, the court said, the safety commission has no authority to regulate aluminum wiring. The determination now will be up to a U.S. District Court in Washington.

The appeals court decision came in a case filed by the commission in 1977 against 26 manufacturers of aluminum home wiring.

The companies should be required to inform homeowners in booklets and advertisements that aluminum wiring manufactured between 1966 and 1973 may be hazardous, the commission contends.

The manufacturers contend the federal agency has no jurisdiction over aluminum wiring, saying it does not fit the legal definition of a "consumer product."

An estimated 1.5 million homes have the wiring, which came into widespread use by electrical contractors after copper wiring shot up in price in the middle 1960s. Since 1973, aluminum wiring and the conductors used with it have been made under different manufacturing standards and are considered safe.

Commission records show about 500 reported "incidents" in recent years involving aluminum wire, including hot electrical outlets, melting insulation, smoke coming from walls and fatal fires.

Mort Sahl knows what ails

Marlene Cimons
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Mort Sahl thinks he knows what ails America.

"Men have collapsed. They're like Cream-of-Wheat. From Che Guevara to John Travolta."

He puts his feet up on the desk. He is wearing sneakers and a baggy sweater and, except for a few extra pounds and facial lines, looks pretty much as he did in his heyday. "That's what the liberals say — you used to be liberal," he says. "Well, the liberals used to be liberal. They're the same people who voted for the Gulf of Tonkin."

He laughs, a boisterous, infectious sound. "The audience has changed," he says. "Those intellectuals from Berkeley who used to come to see me have now graduated and become doctors in favor of busing. They don't like me any more. They like the government. So my audience is, well, it's Americans who see things like I do. It's a coalition of intellectuals, students and disappointed women."

Having a conversation with Sahl is really more like hearing one of his monologues, or eavesdropping on his stream-of-consciousness. He has something acerbic to say about everything. "Disappointed women," he says. "Disappointed in American men. And with good reason, I believe. Damn good reason. Men have collapsed. They're like Cream-of-Wheat. From Che Guevara to John Travolta."

He pours himself some more Perrier. "That's what an intellectual sends when he's in trouble on an island: a note in a Perrier bottle," he says. Sahl says his present job is not a comedown from his past. In addition to a generous salary and several fringe benefits, which he will not disclose, he says that in Washington he can get his message across to the capital's powerful.

"It's basically what my programs in L.A. were," he says. "To prove to the ruling class that the working class is not fooled. And to the working class, as I said before, that they are not alone."

"The show is a place for people to say, 'Well, I'm not crazy. Somebody else thinks that.' It's a platform. It's an opportunity to come on and say something."

Birth control pill no disease preventative

Dear Dr. Solomon: As I approach my fiftieth birthday I'm beginning to experience twinges in my arms and legs that seem to me to be due to arthritis. I'm not interested in long, drawn-out tests to determine what the condition actually is. Wouldn't X-rays be the simplest method of showing whether I have arthritis?—Meg

Dear Meg: X-rays can be helpful in establishing the diagnosis of arthritis, but they are not always the best diagnostic tool. Early X-rays, in particular, often are misleading.

I believe you are erring, first, in making a self-diagnosis, and secondly, in assuming that long, drawn-out tests are required to establish the diagnosis. Even if you are correct in suspecting that your symptoms are caused by arthritis, your physician will need to determine which form of the disease is involved before instituting treatment. And X-rays are not the only—nor necessarily the best way—to make this determination.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If a woman is taking birth control pills, will they prevent her from catching VD?—Rachael S.

Dear Rachael S.: No. Birth control pills of any type will not prevent VD. They have no relation to the spread of syphilis or gonorrhea.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been having an argument with my parents about the correct way to take blood pressure and what normal blood pressure is. Could you solve this argument by telling us the correct way to take blood pressure, what it means, and what is the normal adult blood pressure.—J.R.

Dear J.R.: These five steps tell you how blood pressure is taken.

(1) An inflatable armband is wrapped around your arm just above the elbow. It is filled with air by squeezing a bulb attached to the armband. This tightens the band and temporarily stops the blood flow in a large artery in your arm. At this point, the pressure from the armband on your artery is greater than the push of your blood in the artery.

(2) This pressure is registered either on a dial attached to the armband or in an attached glass tube filled with a substance called mercury. The tube has numbers marked on it, rather like a thermometer does.

(3) A stethoscope (the device used to hear heart beats) is placed just below the armband on your arm.

(4) Air is slowly let out of the armband. This causes the level of mercury on the dial to go down. When the pressure in the band is less than the push of blood in the artery, the beat of the heart through the artery is heard. The number on the dial or in the glass tube when the first beat is heard is noted. This shows the amount of pressure your heart exerts to pump blood, or how hard your heart is working, called systolic (upper) pressure.

(5) As more air is let out of the band, it loosens. The blood starts to flow more steadily through the artery, and the beat is no longer heard. The number on the dial or in the glass tube at the point when the beat is no longer heard is also noted. This shows the least amount of pressure in your artery or how well your heart is relaxing, called diastolic (lower) pressure.

Burn victim to be transferred

ODESSA — Plans were being made late Thursday to transfer an Odessa man, who was burned in a house fire late Wednesday, to the burn center in Galveston for treatment.

Melvin Riggins, 41, received severe burns when his residence caught fire.

An amputee with only one leg, he was dragged out of the home by some individuals before the firemen arrived, according to Odessa Fire Marshal Wayne Coggins.

Riggins was taken to Odessa Medical Center, where he was listed in satisfactory condition. A spokesman with the hospital said Riggins received first and second-degree burns to his leg, left hand and inside of both thighs.

According to a fire department spokesman, the front room of the home was completely destroyed and the rest of the house received heavy smoke damage.

Coggins said the fire apparently started near a sofa.

Streetcleaner receives sentence

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's richest streetcleaner has been sentenced to 11 years in prison for bilking people out of $126,000 by promising she could get them good apartments, the newspaper Trud reported today.

The trade union paper said Lesya Treshchova, a streetcleaner in the Ukrainian city of Kharkov, collected from 150 to 4,000 rubles — $226 to $6,040 — from apartment seekers by claiming to have influence with housing officials.

She would take her clients to building sites and ask them which floor they wanted to live on, the report continued. When the apartments did not materialize, some people began complaining and threatened to beat her up. But she continued her swindle, Trud said, and laughed at her victims when the case came to trial.

The young business people also are preparing to attend a trade fair in Hobbs, N.M., Feb. 10.

Junior Achievement is a program designed to teach young people the free enterprise system through actual experience.

Settlement near in club fire?

CINCINNATI (AP) — The owners of the Beverly Hills Supper Club, where 165 persons died in a Memorial Day weekend fire in 1977, are reportedly close to an out-of-court settlement.

The Cincinnati Enquirer reported today that the settlement is imminent but says the final agreement has not been reached. The litigants are scheduled to go to trial in U.S. District Court at Covington, Ky., on Feb. 13.

The reported settlement negotiation was indicated in Judge Carl Rubin's trial order last week.

However, one of the defendants in the first scheduled trial — the Union Light, Heat & Power Co. — was not negotiating a settlement, the court order said.

Federal prison to be open in Big Spring by October

BIG SPRING — Preliminary preparations at the Federal Minimum Security Facility at Big Spring Industrial Park should be under way within 90 to 120 days, according to John Allman, new warden of the facility.

By October, the open, community-involved facility should be in operation with 60 staff members and 200 to 250 inmates. Full capacity will be reached after that with 96 staff members and some 500 inmates, Allman said.

About half the staff members are expected to be recruited from the 50-mile radius around the city, the new warden said.

Staff will be recruited during the six months before operations begin. During the same time, utilities will be installed, equipment moved and the facility general restored to a usable position.

Allman toured the facility with a small group of federal and city officials and airport manager Harry Spannus Jan. 26. He also met with managers of all the local utilities to discuss installations at the future prison site.

He noted some inmates in the minimum-security prison might be employed in the community and added "we hope to be involved with the local college, community churches and local religious and social groups."

Allman currently is the warden of the federal corrections institution at Pleasanton, Calif.

Lawyer may seek subpoena power

ODESSA — The family of Catherine Ann "Fifi" Murphy has authorized an attorney to seek subpoena power in an effort to locate the young woman missing since July 20, 1978, Odessa lawyer Will Hadden said Thursday.

Hadden, retained by the Thomas D. Murphy family to find the missing 19-year-old, said he may petition district court for the "power of subpoena" to take statements from individuals questioned in the case.

Miss Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy, disappeared in the early morning hours July 20 and has not been heard from since. Hadden and the Murphys suspect foul play.

Hadden said taking statements from the individuals would ensure having the information on hand for later use.

Spain expels Albanian king

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Self-styled King Leka I of Albania was expelled from Spain and went to Rhodesia after police discovered an arsenal of pistols and submachine guns in his suburban Madrid home, government and police sources said today.

The sources said Leka, 39, was kicked out Wednesday.

They said the pretender to the former Albanian throne, who had lived in Spain since 1962, told police the weapons were for self-defense. But a Madrid newspaper said he was in close touch with ultra-right-wing Spanish groups.

Pinto crash survivors sue Ford Motor Co.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Survivors and family of two men killed in a fiery Ford Pinto crash Jan. 20 have sued Ford Motor Co. and a local dealer in federal court for $4 million.

Bill McMorris of McMorris Downtown Ford Inc. said he had not received a copy of the suit and had no comment.

A spokesman for the law firm representing Ford said a response will be filed within 20 days.

Plaintiffs in the suit — all residents of Mexico — allege the car was defectively designed and this caused the deaths and injuries sustained in the 2 a.m. crash.

Killed in the wreck were Miguel Mirales, 18; Juan Urbina, 30; and Josephine Maldonado, 53, the driver of the Pinto. She is not a party, however, in the suit.

Luciano Urbina, Juan's brother, had minor injuries, and Genaro Serna, 26, is listed in fair condition at Brackner Hospital.

Criminal charges of involuntary manslaughter have been filed against the driver of the other car, Jose Carlos Gonzales Hernandez, 25.

Filing the damage suit were Mireles' parents, Urbina's widow, Luciano Urbina and Serna.

The Pinto burst into flames when it was struck from the rear as it pulled out of a parking lot at a night club.

A spokesman for the county medical examiner said Ms. Maldonado and Urbina died from burns and broken necks, and Mireles died from burns.

According to the petition filed in federal court, Ms. Maldonado, owner of the Pinto, received a recall notification from Ford Motor Co., advising her to have a modification kit installed on her car to reduce the hazards of a gasoline tank rupture in the event of a rear-end crash.

Dallas judge who favored some Initiative gets support fails to get senate's approval from Jarvis

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Dallas family district court judge who once presided over Sen. Oscar Mauzy's property settlement suit has lost his job at the hands of Mauzy's colleagues in the Senate.

Judge Steven G. Condos had been relieved last month of presiding over the Dallas senator's case. On Thursday, Mauzy's colleagues voted 16-4 to remove Condos permanently from duties in the 330th family district court by rejecting his appointment to the bench. Seven senators, including Mauzy, abstained in the vote.

"There are indications he has favored certain lawyers he has been associated with in law practices," said Mauzy.

Rejection of the nomination was among the Legislature's last acts before weekend adjournment. The House turned sports-minded by passing a resolution challenging their peers across the Red River in Oklahoma to a basketball game.

Senators approved bills that would add cocktails to room service menus, ban dangerous toys and give judges the option of ordering juvenile offenders to compensate their victims for property damage.

Condos, 47, was nominated to the family district court bench by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe late last year. Gubernatorial appointments require a two-thirds vote for Senate confirmation.

Mauzy said he abstained because of his personal involvement in Condos' court. The senator's ex-wife sued him in a property settlement matter. Condos was assigned the case but later was removed.

Condos should have excused himself immediately, Mauzy said, and not forced another judge to take the case from him.

The senator said judges usually don't want to handle cases when the parties involved are attorneys, who the judges have dealt with in court.

"But the main reason the Senate rejected him was because of the complaints I've had from other lawyers of his lack of impartiality," Mauzy said. "Every litigant is entitled to a fair and impartial judge."

Condos does not live in Mauzy's district, and the senator did not invoke senatorial courtesy to block the nomination.

Mauzy told reporters he talked to senators about the judge before Thursday but did not speak against Condos during the closed session.

The judgeship remains vacant until Gov. Bill Clements nominates a replacement.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, has introduced bills in other lawmaking sessions allowing hotels to serve mixed drinks anywhere — not just in designated bar areas. But the legislation has died in the House.

He said out-of-state guests frequently are baffled by Texas laws when they try to make a phone call from the hotel lobby and take their drink with them.

Toys that could shock, burn or mechanically injure a child should be added to the state Hazardous Substances Act, said Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Under his bill, the Texas Health Department would ban sales of dangerous toys, some of which already are outlawed by the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Federal laws do not cover toys made and sold only in Texas, he said, adding the law would close any gaps between state and federal regulations.

Juvenile offenders placed on probation could be ordered to pay their victims or repair any property damage they committed under legislation by Sen.

Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena.

"The main purpose of the bill is to aid in the rehabilitation of the juvenile," Brooks said. "By making the young person pay or work to repair the damage, the seriousness of the destructive act will be better understood."

Under present law, parents can be ordered to pay for their children's crimes, but juvenile courts have no authority to order youths to compensate victims.

Clements criticizes proposed budget

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday he will not accept a 1980-81 state budget that is 22 percent over current spending, as proposed by the Legislative Budget Board.

The LBB budget version is backed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"In about two weeks I will submit my budget and I will show the differences in the two," Clements told a news conference. "The LBB budget is 22 percent over two years ago and I am not going to approve that, that's excessive."

"My budget will show an increase but not 22 percent ... a 22 percent increase is not acceptable."

Clements refused to reveal details of his budget but he said the difference with the LBB would "fall somewhere in that area of $1 billion, I have been telling you about."

He was asked again about opposition that might come from Hobby and other legislative leaders. "When it gets down to push and shove, I think there will be some flexibility," he said.

Clements said he was glad to hear recent news stories that Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton want a presidential primary.

"Having said all that, I'm going to let these various people who have these ideas — early primary, late primary, restrictive primary, purified primary — get their knives out and carve each other up and have a real donnybrook. I'm going to sit by the side and listen and learn," he said.

But Clements said he would veto any bill that changed the dates for regular Democrat and Republican primaries, in May and June. "If the dates were good enough for LBJ it's good enough for me," he said, referring to the setting of the May and June dates when Lyndon B. Johnson was a vice presidential candidate in 1960.

Clayton and Hobby are supporting a bill that would call for a presidential primary in March, followed by the regular primaries in July and August.

On other matters, Clements said:

— He has not made up his mind whether criminal appeals should be handled by the 14 courts of civil appeals.

AUSTIN (AP) — Howard Jarvis, California's advocate of tax relief, said Thursday he will actively support efforts to introduce the right of initiative and referendum in Texas.

California voters used that procedure last year to approve Proposition 13, which provides for a sweeping cutback in property taxation.

Jarvis spoke at a Texas Farm Bureau conference here.

Texas voters approved a Tax Relief Amendment in November developed during a special summer session of the Legislature.

"I want to tell you this is a great thing for Texas to do," said Jarvis.

Initiative and referendum proposals stalled at the special session, but numerous similar measures have been introduced during the current regular legislative session.

Jarvis said initiative and referendum — or the right to vote on specific issues at citizens' requests — are the taxpayers' strongest weapons.

"Even if you never use it, it keeps them (public officials) honest," he said.

"We can't let an exorbitant tax reach the farmland in this country because that's where we eat," Jarvis told farm bureau members. "What we need in government is less lawyers and more farmers."

...Was it chicken every Sunday growing up at your house? Or was a fryer dipped and cooked to a turn the mid-week special?

Whatever your family's way, chicken probably appeared regularly on the dinner menu. Now is the time to dust off those old recipes — or shine up some new ones — and enter them in the National Chicken Cooking contest.

April 1 is the deadline to mail recipes to contest headquarters in Washington, D.C. Five Texas finalists will be selected from recipes submitted and will compete in the Texas Chicken Cooking Contest June 1 at the University of Texas at Austin.

The state winner will get an expense-paid trip to Charleston, S.C., where she will compete July 25 with cooks from 49 other states and the District of Columbia for a first prize of $10,000. Four runners-up will split another $10,000.

Contestants may enter as many recipes as they want to, but each recipe must be written on a separate sheet of paper with the entrant's name, address and telephone number.

Recipes must be for broiler-fryers, whole or any part or parts. Exact amount for ingredients must be specified and ingredients should be familiar and available nationally.

Recipes will be judged on simplicity, appeal, appearance and taste, and should provide at least four servings. Preparation time, including cutting and marinating, cannot exceed three hours. Anything not necessary to the finished product, such as a garnish, should not be included.

Contestants must be Texas residents who will be living here at the time of the national cookoff. Previous $10,000 winners cannot enter.

Flamboyant is word for men's dress

By BETTY OMMERMAN
(c) 1979, Newsday

LOS ANGELES — Add "flamboyant sophistication" to the growing list of fashion phrases being batted around these days.

The latest flimflam of phraseology applies to the majority of spring and summer designs unveiled here last week by the 150-member Men's Fashion Association. What it boils down to is a resurgence of natural fibers and earth tones for business and the unexpected use of natural fibers for sportswear. Combine them with a looser fit, a few eye-blinking colors, reversible outfits, a regional flavor and marked detailing, and you have the meaning of the new phraseology.

Translated into a warm-weather wardrobe this means:

—For the conservative male, there are alternatives to navy and charcoal striped wool business suit — muted plaids and light-colored solids in linens, silks, cottons; sometimes even a blend of all three. And for the fussy executive, who still hasn't gotten the message that wrinkles are "in," a bit of polyester is added to the blend.

—Jackets are looser, with padded square shoulders and elongated narrow pocket flaps and lapels. Pierre Cardin is one of the designers to advocate a new, narrow silhouette, along with softer, more comfortable fabrics — silk, linen and cotton. As for the continuing controversy around double- or single-breasted styling, both are acceptable, with double-breasted the more popular.

Several designers have borrowed their pleated or shirred shoulder treatments from women's wear. Others feature outerwear with elongated ribbed waistbands held in place with double belts.

If those styles are too avant-garde, there are off-white, nubby wool blazers and terrycloth jackets styled to resemble business jackets. Keep in mind that sleeves on casual styles are still meant to be pushed up. The "men in the know," however will roll them.

—Vests remain a mainstay of the spring-summer business wardrobe, with a few collared styles helping to make the vest the latest look in layering.

—Trousers are usually pleated, with the avant-garde opting for clusters of pleats rather than the evenly spaced variety. Also watch for the re-emergence of the button fly front. This is the first time since the end of World War II that it's become a consideration for business hours. Pant legs are getting longer, breaking at the heels, with the width tapering from 20 inches at the knee to 19 inches at the leg.

—Shirts were unveiled in a variety of fabrics ranging from pure silk crepe de chine to cotton and polyester blends. Many of the high-fashion designers favor the smaller rounded collar and the 2 1/2 inch button-down collar for business hours, while the wing collar is "in" for formal attire. The banded or pet collar is advocated for leisure styles, and the impact of the western look was evident in shirts with embroidered yokes.

It's apparent that the bodysuit is dead. Looseness is what counts. Such looseness is especially noticeable in the surgeon shirt, a kind of stylish Dr. Kildare treatment in a V-necked pull-over.

DEAR ABBY

Friend's laughable, unsnug rug draws an ugh

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you had a friend who wears a hairpiece that makes him look ridiculous?

The man I have in mind has a terrific personality and is happily married to a beautiful, intelligent woman.

He must care about his appearance or he wouldn't have bought a hairpiece in the first place. He can well afford the best, but instead he wears one that looks cheap, is too dark, too full, and doesn't fit. He looks laughable, but I like him so much that it bothers me.

Abby, what would you do if he were your friend?—ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: I would assume that since he is married to an intelligent woman, if he looked ridiculous to HER, she would surely tell him. I'd curb my compulsion to "help" him, and would keep my well-meaning nose out of his business.

DEAR ABBY: My friend and I have a problem. We want to know how to attract guys.

If you're loud, they think you're a big mouth. If you're quiet, they don't notice you. If you tell a guy you like him, he says you're bugging him. If you don't tell him, how is he supposed to know?

Thanks for any help you can give us.—BEWILDERED IN BRENTWOOD

D E A R BEWILDERED: The secret is to get the guy interested in YOU. First, get him to talk about himself, his work and his hobbies. Feed him questions and he'll open up like a flower. The more he talks, the more convinced he'll become that you are the most interesting conversationalist he's ever met.

DEAR ABBY: Our 14-year-old daughter (I'll call her Meg) has been corresponding with an English pen pal for nearly a year. Derrick is 16. She found his name and address in a magazine.

Well, it seems that Meg told Derrick a lot of things in her letters that were not true. For example, that we were very wealthy, lived on a 3,000-acre ranch and kept horses, etc. Actually, we are far from rich and live in a three-bedroom home in a project in New Jersey. (By "we" I mean my husband and I, Meg and her two brothers, an older sister and Grandma.)

Derrick TELEPHONED Meg to tell her that he was coming to visit us! She broke down and told us, and of course we have no room for this English fellow. I am a nervous wreck and could cheerfully wring Meg's neck, but that won't solve anything.

How can we head off Derrick?—MEG'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Meg that fantasie is lovely, but they're like dream castles—fun to postpone his visit. Then have Meg write him a long, true-confessions type letter to set the record straight. And tell Derrick and advise him

Safe use of microwave ovens controversial

By MARIAN BURROS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Are microwave ovens safe? Of course, says the industry. Of course not, say scientists such as Dr. Milton Zaret, who discovered the relationship between microwave radiation and cataracts.

How much this continuing controversy has affected the sales of a very expensive kitchen gadget is impossible to determine. Some retail appliance stores acknowledge, as one owner said, that "fear of radiation dangers is holding a lot of folks back."

This kind of statement infuriates manufacturers who insist that microwaves are absolutely safe. "There has never been a fatality connected with the use of microwave ovens," said Jane Pazlar, customer service manager for Litton Industries.

On the other side is Dr. Zaret, associate professor of clinical ophthalmology at New York University Medical Center and one of the foremost ophthalmological surgeons in this country. Dr. Zaret says the ovens aren't safe at all "because they are permitted to leak."

In between these opposing points of view are those admittedly unsure about the safety of the 8.9 million microwave ovens that have been sold since 1972. Forecasts are for sales of almost 3 million more this year.

SUSAN FREEMAN, assistant to the president of Microwave Cooking Etc., a chain of stores that sells ovens and offers classes in their use, paused before she answered the question. "Let me hedge," Freeman said. "I feel that from all the information I have read, I find no reason to believe they are not safe."

But one of the authors of a government report on microwave radiation says he would not have the appliance in his home. Stuart Fleschman, who worked on the Government Accounting Office report, "More Protection From Microwave Radiation Hazards Needed," said, "I guess I'm conservative. Certainly some studies show the effects are cumulative. It's kind of tough to deal with because so little is known. Most people who look seriously at the area are concerned because no one knows if there is a safe threshold."

Fleschman went on to say he really doesn't feel there is a health hazard if the ovens meet government standards, "but I wouldn't have an oven, just because so little is known."

Those standards are set by the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Radiological Health (BRH), and they are based on occupational guidelines for exposure set more than 20 years ago. The man responsible for them, Herman Schwan, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania's school of engineering, told a 1968 Senate hearing the standards were "the best we can formulate on the basis of presently available knowledge." He acknowledged that they had been "crud-y ut" — and "badly need refinement."

In fact, there are two sets of criteria for microwave radiation. The standard that is for exposure to microwave radiation is, in microwave language, 10 milliwatts per centimeter square.

DR. SCHWAN has not changed his mind. "A good deal of recent evidence suggests we should lower that standard to 1 milliwatt," Schwan said last week.

FDA's standards for microwave emission from ovens is based on the 10 milliwatt figure. The agency has set the emission standard, which is taken 2 inches from the oven, at 1 milliwatt before the oven is purchased and 5 milliwatts after its sale. The farther one stands from the oven, the less the exposure. A 1976 FDA report, which analyzes General Electric's unsuccessful attempt to contest the agency's recall of some 36,000 ovens leaking above the standards, puts this in some perspective. In order to maintain exposure below the level considered safe for workers in the Soviet Union, one must remain four feet from an oven emitting 5 mW.

Schwan, who was paid by General Electric as a consultant to testify at those hearings, says he is not concerned with the safety of microwave ovens because the emission standards are "pretty well enforced." But Fleschman said the "5 milliwatt standard is not based on any hard information."

Referring to the occupational guideline for exposure, Fleschman said: "From what I saw, I don't know how they can determine that 10 is a safe level. A number of studies have raised questions about the safety at less than 10."

DR. ZARET, who was one of the first to establish the relationship between microwave exposure and cataracts while doing research for the armed forces, calls the 5 mW levels "a lot of baloney." The first assumption they used, said Zaret, referring to the 10 mW exposure level, is not "based on any science. All the Bureau of Radiological Health has done is set a performance standard for the oven. It means how badly an oven can malfunction before they can say it is unsafe. That's quite different from finding out what is safe from chronic repeated usage over a long time."

Says Paul Brodeur, author of "The Zapping of America" and a journalist who has become an expert on microwave radiation: "If microwave radiation were a food additive or drug under the laws of our land, it would be banned."

Alan Anderson, chief of standards support staff at the Bureau of Radiological Health, acknowledges that scientists "don't know all the answers about chronic use in the home." Another BRH scientist, referring to the current FDA standard, puts it more strongly: "The standard was arbitrary and capricious."

"We use about six-tenths milliwatts as an internal factory standard that doesn't change." He says the design of the microwave oven has "advanced to the point where there is no longer a concern for wear or transportation damage." (Brodeur took exception to that statement: "Would you," he asked, "believe a car salesman who told you that the car door will never leak air?")

Part of the problem is said: "It's technically impossible to set it at zero. We haven't spent $50 billion developing that instrumentation. You can continue to develop instrumentation that will do it, but pursuing it further would be of no value."

That may depend on what is meant by value. In FDA's analysis of the GE recall case the agency said: "The possibility that cumulative effects of microwave radiation can occur has been raised through research and cannot be ignored. The potential exists for exposure of young and very young people repetitively as ovens come into common usage, and effects may result. Substantial follow-up studies of exposed populations will be needed to examine the question of such effects."

Commenting on the last sentence, Paul Brodeur asked: "Can FDA really be saying that people exposed repeatedly to the radiation leaking from microwave ovens may, in effect, be test animals in a vast biological experiment whose results will only be known at some future date?"

INDUSTRY EMISSION standards are lower than the government's. According to a Litton Industries vice-president, Verle Blaha,

"There is no meaningful standard," Dr. Zaret said, because no one knows what levels of radiation cause "cataracts, retinal diseases and other eye pathology."

Asked if it is possible to produce a microwave oven emitting zero detectable levels of radiation, Litton's Blaha

United Methodist Women's group holds annual prayer observance

An annual observance, the Call to Prayer and Self-Denial, was held by the United Methodist Women of St. Luke's United Church Sunday.

Sponsored by the Women's Division of the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church, the Call to Prayer and Self-Denial is observed by United Methodist Women throughout the United States.

The observance features a Quiet Day program and the description of the mission projects for which a special offering is given. Each woman who takes part is asked to pray and give for others by denying herself in some way. Purpose is to experience a spiritual oneness through prayer and sacrificial giving with planners, mission workers and those serving in church-related ministries.

Coordinator for the program at St. Luke's was Virginia Jones. She was assisted by Jeanette Gardner, Carrol Edgell, Joan Warner and Marydel Watkins. Organist was Mona Ruth Dickson.

Two aspects of the large United Methodist mission program are designated for giving this year. In the United States, the offering will be used for Deaconess and Home Missionary Pensions. These persons have served many years in appointments such as Wesley Houses, Bethlehem Centers, mission schools, hospitals, rural churches, parish work, etc.

Overseas, the offering will be used for Leadership Development, particularly to build a society where human rights are safeguarded. The offering will go to such projects as those in which women are trained at the community level to deal with the changes taking place in their society; to give poor people the skills to improve their economic situation; to provide free legal aid to persons in need of legal counseling; and to assist in church food programs for impoverished school-age children.

About 1.5 million women in 33,000 local units in all 50 states joined in the observance. Last year, the offering totaled $733,895.

Service for the Quiet Day was written by Faye Nabours Matthews. The service focused on prayer and the interior life. Meditations from several writers emphasized the "shared aliveness" by opening up to the presence of God before becoming involved in tasks.

Lignite operators likely big backers of mine bill

By MITCH GREEN
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas lignite operators are likely to be among the strongest supporters of a bill that will make it easier for the Railroad Commission of Texas to fine them and more likely that they will be sued by environmentalists.

The magic ingredient in this fairy-tale-like transformation is not a kiss from environmentalists, but what the industry sees as the ominous threat of the Wicked Witch of the North—federal regulation.

Under federal strip mining legislation, enacted after Texas' 1975 law took effect, states have a choice of developing a regulatory program of their own that complies with federal standards, or submitting to a federal regulatory program.

Lignite operators don't hesitate to express their preference. "No one likes to be regulated," says Hal Reagan of Alcoa's Rockdale lignite operation, "but if we've got to be, we'd prefer it to come from the folks closest to home."

Environmentalists, state officials and lignite operators all agree that the changes necessary to bring the 1975 Texas Surface Mining Act into compliance with the federal law will be minor and mostly semantic, but they will also require the addition of some procedures which are distinctly at odds with the way Texas does things.

Most notably, the federal law requires a "citizen standing to sue" provision that allows any citizen with an interest to file an environmental suit against a lignite operator.

Current state law limits this standing to citizens of the county in which the lignite mining operation is located and the adjacent county.

The legislature has rejected the broadening of citizen standing in environmental matters in three of the last four sessions.

Complying with federal guidelines will also require giving the Railroad Commission significant new powers to levy fines directly, instead of the current procedure where the attorney general asks the courts to assess a penalty.

Federal requirements that states legislate authority to place liens on private lands reclaimed by the state after strip mining are also contrary to Texas traditions and strike a blow at the almost religious sanctity Texas lawmakers attach to private property rights.

"There's already not much we can do about all this," says John Schratwieser of Shell Development Co.

"Most of the language is in the federal law and either we adopt it or the Office of Surface Mining sets up operations in Texas."

Schratwieser says he doesn't think there would be too much of a difference between the stringency of enforcement under a federal program and a state program, but that state regulation is "basically a philosophical matter."

"The state regulators just know more about the specific circumstances of our operation and are therefore better able to regulate us than people all the way off in Washington."

Schratwieser says forcing states to decide between federally-approved state programs and federal programs is an increasingly common federal tactic especially in the environmental and energy areas.

Texas industry, for instance, must deal with a dual system of state and federal water quality permits because the state has not met Environmental Protection Agency standards.

Unless the legislature acts during this session to approve state programs, federal regulation could prevail in these areas:

- Energy performance standards for the design of all new buildings.
- Energy conservation in public buildings and private homes.
- Coastal zone management.
- Air pollution.

Getty buys oil tankers

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — Getty Marine Corp. announced the purchase of two Swedish-built oil tankers, one to be named the Kansas Getty and the other the Texas Getty. This acquisition expands the Getty Oil Co. subsidiary's international fleet to 13 vessels.

Both of the new Getty tankers—each with a 156,000 deadweight-ton capacity—will be altered to 79,000 deadweight-tons, allowing the company greater flexibility in determining where it can transport cargoes. The company said the new tankers initially will be used to transport crude oil from West Africa to Getty's refinery at Delaware City, Del. Each ship will carry an average of about 555,000 barrels of oil. One of the ships is scheduled to begin service in late spring, 1979, with the other scheduled to commence operations during the summer.

The diesel-propelled motor tankers—both purchased from the Swedish shipyard, Gotaverken Arenalid Ab of Gottenburg, Sweden,—were built in 1975 but have never been in service. Terms of the purchases were not disclosed.

The Getty Marine Corp. fleet comprises 1,638,000 deadweight tons. These latest acquisitions bring the number of diesel-propelled ships in the Getty Marine fleet to five.

The tankers will exceed the safety and pollution standards established by the Intergovernmental Maritime Consulting Organization in 1973. They will be fitted with crude oil washing, inert gas and segregated ballast.

This 'guidance' not parental

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

OVER THE GULF OF MEXICO (AP) — Flying down to Mexico, the stu got on the horn to announce which in-flight movies had been mandated for our compulsory viewing.

In the aft cabin it will be "Somebody Killed Her Husband" with Farrah Fawcett-Majors," she intoned, "and in the forward cabin it will be "Hooper" with Burt Reynolds. Except she renamed it "hooker," which raised some leering expectations among the macho oil workers in the smoking section.

"Both movies," she added, "are rated PG — parental guidance."

There were a number of urchins abroad. I looked around to see if any of the parents were stuffing them under the seats with the carry-on luggage.

Maybe declining to rent the earphones at $2.50 a set might be a partial exercise in parental guidance, but even with the sound shut off there was no getting away from the picture. The seats didn't swivel in the direction of the tail, and leaving the reading-light on or the window blind up was considered an anti-social act that brought a stern reproof from Big Sister on the microphone.

"Passengers will better enjoy the film if they draw the shutters," she scolded those trying to hide behind newspapers. When they still didn't get the point that the movie really wasn't optional, she came down the aisle to bully them.

The executive-looking type in the tortoise shell glasses and the three-piece brushed denim suit across the aisle finally gave up on dictating into his hand-sized tape recorder and fiddling with his credit card sized calculator. The oil workers obediently folded up their gin game.

Sixteen priests heading down to a conference of Latin American bishops squirmed perceptibly behind their Roman collars and settled back for simulated naps as the title credits for "Hooper" flashed on the screen in that dark aluminum tunnel.

It was a moderately amusing and adventurous flick about Hollywood stunt men.

The characters for the most part were amiably violent people who mouthed a number of four-letter rudities which have become fashionable on the silver screen.

This is called an adult movie because adults are supposed to talk like that all the time. However, if anyone on board had started using the language heard on the sound track, the pilot would have been summoned from the flight deck to make a command decision about cutting off his or her booze ration.

Burt Reynolds was roguishly charming as "Hooper," the bravest, devil-may-care stunt man of them all, even if Errol Flynn would have been better and a trifle more refined in his vocabulary.

Sally Field, as Burt's live-in girl friend, which I suppose was one area where the parents were required to provide some guidance, still looked like the Flying Nun out of habit, even in the dimly lit scene where she didn't seem to have any sort of habit on at all.

A fine old-fashioned barroom brawl from which no one emerged bleeding or bruised rates as one of the best I have seen since the cross-country Donneybrook between John Wayne and Victor McLaughlin in "The Quiet Man." But parents engaged in any guidance might have had reservations about their teen-agers emulating the drag race scene in which our heroes pass beer cans back and forth and change seats at 100 miles an hour, and the comic way they unsaddle a state trooper from his motorcycle by attaching a long wire to his pistol belt.

Over the Gulf of Mexico, the weather turned frightful. The pilot put the seatbelts and rafts-under-the-seat sign on. The stewardesses shut off cabin service just at the time when everyone could have used an anxiety quencher. The screen started bouncing about in a most ominous way, as if by lightning and thunder God's sriptwriters had decided to expunge some of the racy dialogue.

All 16 priests had their reading lights on and their briefcases out on the serving tables. They could have done a good business in confessions. At 40,000 feet, up there on God's turf, a lot of white knuckle flyers get nervous about meeting their Maker fresh from a risque show or its parentally guided Hollywood equivalent.

The plane bucked and bumped and shuddered with a terribly tinny sound, as Burt took the deity's name in vain. "High altitude chop and clear air turbulence," the pilot called it. The priests shook their heads knowingly or at least two of them did.

Maybe what the airlines require at time like this, for the comfort of their passengers, is a "Smut" and a "No-Smut" section for content mandatory in-flight movies with a high raunch content.

Darvon questioned in committee probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of drug experts says Darvon appears no more effective than common aspirin and says abuse of the popular prescription pain reliever has been implicated in a number of deaths.

The Senate Small Business subcommittee on monopolies was to hear further viewpoints today on the drug, once the most popular pain reliever prescribed by doctors.

The Health Research Group, which was formed by Ralph Nader, has asked the federal government to either ban the use of propoxyphene, a basic ingredient of Darvon and several other compounds using different trade names, or to place federal limits on its availability.

Darvon is a trade name used by Eli Lilly and Company.

Dr. Charles G. Moertel of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., told the subcommittee Wednesday: "I would seriously question whether the use of Darvon is good medical practice at all."

Eli Lilly officials did not testify Wednesday but the company said in a statement Darvon had given relief to millions of persons during the past 21 years and there was no evidence that propoxyphene products "have ever caused death or serious injury when used as recommended."

It also said a study of propoxyphene-related deaths showed "most of the deaths involved use of propoxyphene at doses far in excess of their therapeutic levels and in combinations with alcohol and other drugs."

One witness, Kenneth A. Durrin, director of the Office of Compliance and Regulatory Affairs of the Drug Enforcement Administration, told the Senate subcommittee reports from medical examiners indicate that propoxyphene "ranks third behind heroin and alcohol (in combination with other drugs) in terms of drugs associated with deaths."

Durrin said the reports indicated 502 deaths in 1975 and 528 in 1977 were related to propoxyphene overdoses. He said suicide was indicated in 44 percent of the cases.

Slot machines such as these in Old Orchard Beach are proliferating in bars and hotels across Maine, despite the fact the state's gambling law permits small-stake gambling only when proceeds go to charity and churches. (AP Laserphoto)

Maine's small-time gambling now $17 million big business

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Maine's nickel-and-dime gambling law was passed to benefit cub scouts, churches and other charities. Six years later, it has opened the door to a multi-million dollar operation with salesmen for Nevada companies pushing slot-machines in bars, hotels and bowling alleys.

Today, more than 700 "non-profit organizations" are licensed to run one-armed bandits, wheels of fortune, poker games, beano, craps.

And of about 400 licensed slot machines, about 150 are set up in bars and hotels — even though they are sponsored by "charities."

Slot-machine proliferation has been especially heavy in the last six months, helping gambling to become a $17-million business in Maine last year, according to State Police records.

Of that total, slot-machine distributors from as far away as Nevada took $4.2 million out of the state, according to State Sen. Richard H. Pierce, who wants the one-armed bandits restricted.

Maine's new Commissioner of Public Safety, Arthur Stilphen, says he has no evidence that organized crime is behind the expansion, though he concedes that gambling "may have burgeoned beyond what the Legislature thought it ought to become."

Stilphen jokes about it: "It may be that we have to put gambling in this state back into the country fairs and churches where it has always been."

But to Pierce, it is no joke. He thinks organized crime is involved, and he wants a law passed to sharply restrict the one-armed bandits.

"It stinks," says the Waterville Republican.

But even Pierce is pessimistic about the chances for his bill.

"How are you going to fight the Elks, the American Legion..." he says. "It's politically impossible to wipe the thing out."

The law says gambling is permissible only to benefit charity. It restricts bets to a quarter and the return on a bet to $150.

It also was written to bar slot machines — "any machine which operates by inserting a coin, token or similar object." But machine distributors got around that with "remote control gambling devices" — with the whirling symbols of slot machines but no slot coins.

These, the bartender triggers electronically, after a customer pays at the bar for "credits" equivalent to nickels and dimes.

No change pours out when a gambler wins — those, are toted up as "credits" — but lights flash, bells ring, and customers warm to the thrill. A gambler may drop $5 or $10 a night before ambulating back to his seat at the bar for another drink.

"I might play it for a dollar, or for five," says Steven Sargent, exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge in Augusta. "Last night a fellow played $1 and won $150. It was a little moment of joy."

At first, these "slots" sprouted up in Elks clubs, American Legion Halls, and recreational clubs with names like the Montagnard Snowshoe Club and the Kitty Cat Club in Lewiston.

It soon became clear that a private lodge could average $150 a night from each slot machine. Many clubs have two. Then, six months ago, mini-casinos began popping up in hotels and taverns in virtually every large city.

Now salesmen for distributors actively recruit "charities" to sponsor the slot machines, says State Police Corporal Robert McLaughlin, who licenses games of chance for the state. He adds that charities are being "founded overnight and applying for gambling licenses the next day."

"They hold no meetings, have no activities. They just register with the secretary of state as non-profit corporations," says McLaughlin.

Many of the charities are legitimate. The Band Boosters in the coastal resort of Old Orchard Beach, for example, say they earned $17,000 last year from their casino and bought new band uniforms.

But McLaughlin says he gets five to ten applications a week from organizations he terms "pretty shaky."

And a non-profit sponsor generally earns only 25 percent of the take from slots placed in bars, after prize money is subtracted. The bar gets 25 percent, the distributor 50 percent.

Hazel Green's, an Augusta restaurant near the capitol which attracts many lawmakers, put two Bally slot machines, made in Nevada, into its lounge last October to benefit the Augusta Youth Hockey League.

Records filed with the State Police show that in one month, one of the slots took in more than $2,000, and the hockey players got $292.

Sometimes, McLaughlin says, the bartenders who handle the cash from the slot machines are routinely handed membership cards by the non-profit sponsor. On the Canadian border in Caribou, for example, bartenders at the Hotel Caribou had to join the Jaycees to keep their jobs.

Drunk hunt draws fire

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A new Corpus Christi police policy aimed at hunting down drunks before they get behind the wheel has come under fire from some local barkeeps and city council members.

About two weeks ago Police Chief Bill Banner, alarmed at the traffic fatality rate in 1978, authorized uniformed officers to go into night spots in search of drunks.

"They can be arrested for public intoxication if they are deemed drunk enough to constitute a danger to themselves or others," Banner said. "The policy is designed to reduce the number of DWIs by getting to drunk people before they get in their automobiles."

The first weekend of the program did not lead to a major increase in the number of public intoxication arrests here.

The chief said he does not know of other cities using similar tactics. Plain clothes officers routinely check bars and clubs in many cities — but the use of uniformed officers may be a new idea, Banner said.

It is the uniforms and the tactics that have upset some of the 340 liquor license-holders here.

"There is an undercurrent of intimidation and harassment," said B.D. Horton, owner of the Embers. "Not only against the club operators and business people but against the customers."

A committee of club owners took out ads in the local papers to bring its case before the public.

"These actions smack of a police state and do not present the proper public image for a tourist and convention-oriented city," the ad stated. "We believe that everyone concerned with this situation realizes that human nature being what it is, that the sight of uniformed patrolmen walking about an establishment makes patrons somewhat fearful, apprehensive and they tend to think, 'there must be trouble here, perhaps we should leave.'"

But Banner says customers will become accustomed to the sight of cops in the night spots. The chief also says some club owners have voiced support for his policy.

Nevertheless, city councilman David Diaz has sided with the disgruntled club owners. Diaz sees the tactic as one of intimidation.

"We are allowing our personal freedom to be whittled out. That's how socialism gets started, and then communism," he said at a council meeting this week.

The city council was split on the matter and city manager Marvin Townsend said he will study the policy.

Horton said receipts at his place have dipped 20 percent since Banner authorized the program. Lou Gray, owner of Lou's Bar-B-Que and Saloon, said business is down 35-40 percent.

"We have no quarrel with chief Bill Banner," Horton said. "We think he is a fine man and we have much respect for him."

"We just think the new policy is ill-advised and that we are getting more than our share of the blame for something that is an ill of society."

Improvement noted by Presley's father

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Doctors reported some improvement in the health of Vernon Presley this morning, but the 62-year-old father of the late Elvis Presley was still in critical condition with a heart ailment.

"Mr. Vernon Presley's vital signs are remarkably stable at this time," said Dr. Roger Cunningham, associate director of the cardiology laboratory at Baptist Hospital. "He has had no chest pain or irregularity of his heartbeat during the last 18 hours."

Cunningham said, however, that Presley was still listed on the critical list "due to the uncertainty of his immediate prognosis."

Thursday, doctors implanted a temporary pacemaker after Presley's heart developed an irregular rhythm. A few hours later Cunningham and Dr. Nathan Salky, a cardiology consultant, said they feared for Presley's life.

"They said the pacemaker helped restore a normal beat to Presley's heart. It was later turned off, but still left attached.

This moving picture show was really a skin flick

HOUSTON (AP) — It was a moving picture show of a most unusual kind.

The medium in this exhibit wasn't film but skin. And the pictures were tattoos, covering arms, backs, shoulders, stomachs and legs, moving with their owners, who displayed them proudly as a peacock might show his plumage.

Variegated bodies covered with dragons, eagles, flowers and intricate designs caused more than one double-take in the lobby of the tel hosting the North American Tattoo Club's fourth World Tattoo Convention.

Some 275 illustrated men and women from throughout the country, as well as Belgium, France, New Zealand, England, Japan and Canada, were here to display their talents and themselves, while swapping ideas with one another.

The tattoo artists, as they prefer to be called, were also here in an effort to dispel the negative image they say has been hung unfairly on tattooing.

They say they view the body as an empty canvas to be covered by their works, while society tends to classify the skin paintings with graffiti on bathroom walls.

"Society has attached a stigma to tattoos, saying they are the domain of drunken sailors and loose women," said Robert Hardt of Seattle, Wash., who wears a rendition of J.R.R. Tolkien's "Lord of the Rings" across his shoulders, arms and back the way another might wear a cape.

"But we are all trapped in a prison of flesh, so don't think me wrong if I draw on the walls," the 32-year-old said with a grin.

He was always fascinated by tattoos, and got his first when he was 19 years old.

"It's a form of self-expression — it makes you unique," Hardt said as he tried to explain the whys of tattooing to a blank canvas who found it hard to understand. "It makes your fantasies live."

The president of the 650-member club, Dave Yurkew of Minneapolis, Minn., says tattooing is gaining more respect as an art form throughout the world.

"You still get a negative reaction from people who haven't really seen tattooing," he said. "And when they do see them, there seems to be less shock than there used to be."

"A question I used to hear all the time — 'Why in the hell did you do that?' — is getting asked less and less," he said.

Yurkew said he refrains from counseling potential customers when they come into his shop.

"The thing I hate most is when a customer asks which design they should get," he said. "I don't want to put any pressure on them to get a tattoo. It has to be their decision."

"But many people tell me they've been thinking about getting one a long time," he continued. "Sometimes they've been thinking about it as long as two or three years."

He said there are a lot of reasons why people get tattooed, and many of them are the wrong reasons.

"A lot of times it's emulation of a relative, like an uncle or a brother, while others do it because of peer group pressure," he said. "Someone will get a tattoo to get back at someone else or because they're angry."

"But many people tell

Black feminism theme of new book

NEW YORK (AP) — The title of the book Michelle Wallace wanted to write since she was 18 could come straight from a black exploitation movie. But the subject could not be further from the celluloid world of the super cool "Super Fly."

"Black Macho and the Myth of the Superwoman" is a discussion of myths Ms. Wallace said she feels have made black men think of freedom in terms of sexual politics. And this thinking, she said, has in turn kept many black women powerless and dependent out of guilt over what black men have been through.

The 27-year-old writer said in a recent interview that the book is based on her own experiences and took form after she became involved in feminism.

Through it, she said, she would like to encourage dialogue between black women and men which she said she hopes would "strengthen the black community and perpetuate black culture."

"There is a tremendous problem of getting black women to deal with their situation, to get them to talk to one another," she said. "There is a lot of competition among us — for men, for jobs, for security."

Many black women, she said, have not felt comfortable with the feminist movement, "primarily because they see it as something white and are afraid of being ripped off again."

The "again" refers to the disillusion she said many black women felt when they repressed their own desire for freedom in favor of "the needs of the revolution" preached by the men in the black power movement of the 1960s.

She said she feels the central point is that black women are not the pillars of strength they have been made out to be, and that many of them — and their children — are among the most powerless, lowest-paid, most neglected people in this country.

Just trying to do research for a book on black women is an exercise in frustration, Ms. Wallace said. "There is little solid information — some papers and articles but no real scholarly work.

"A subject like black women and the kind of medical care they receive is a blank page," she said. "Black women seem to have all sorts of high blood pressure and tension and gynecological problems that no one ever writes about."

How can black women — and men — go beyond what she sees as myths? By dealing with the problem openly, she said, through community organizations and discussions — through consciousness-raising, a technique itself popularized by the women's movement.

"We'll just have to deal with sexism," she said. "We may pass through a period of hostility. It may be divisive, but we have to deal with it. Black women have to decide what they're going to do — and black people do, too."

Ms. Wallace, now at work on a book about three generations of women in her Harlem-based family, acknowledged dealing with black men today as a feminist is not easy.

"I broke two rules in writing my book," she said. "Black people aren't supposed to show their dirty laundry in front of whites, and women aren't supposed to tell men how they really see them."

AMC CONCORD DL.

Everything about it says luxury... except the price!

One look tells you that the new 1979 AMC Concord DL, 2-Door is a very luxurious car. Formal landou vinyl roof, opera windows, white sidewall tires, color-keyed styled wheel covers and a striking new formal grille with quad rectangular headlights neatly accentuate the Concord's clean, elegant lines.

Inside the impression continues. Because you're surrounded by velveteen crush velvet upholstery, plush cut-pile carpeting, digital quartz clock and woodgrain instrument panel overlays as you relax in the individual reclining front seats.

And on the road, that feeling of luxury is even stronger. The ride is uncommonly smooth, stable and quiet. And Concord's size makes handling and maneuvering a breeze.

In every way, the Concord DL is like an expensive luxury car. Except one. It isn't expensive at all. The sticker price is surprisingly low. Come in and see for yourself.

Arkansas beats Texas as tempers flare

By The Associated Press

Arkansas stormed back into the Southwest Conference basketball race Thursday night as the 19-ranked Razorbacks thumbed 11th-ranked Texas 68-58 in a bout accented by a rhubarb between the two opposing coaches.

an Arkansas player and Texas guard John Moore that prompted a shoving match between Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton and Longhorn mentor Abe Lemons.

Sutton said after the collision he went up to Moore and said, "John, you're too good to take a cheap shot like that."

And the Arkansas Coach said Lemons then grabbed him by the coat.

"I probably shouldn't have said it and I apologize," said Sutton.

Tempers snapped in the spirited rivalry following a collision between to do something like that," said Lemons.

In the end it was the pinpoint shooting of the Razorbacks that parlayed a slow-down offense into an upset victory.

Sutton said the his team went into a slow-down offense to wear down Texas physically.

But it wasn't the slow-down offense that drew Lemons' ire, it was the officiating.

all over us," said Lemons. "They play too rough for us...It really baffles me. I get out of my chair and the official tells me to shut up and sit down. The other guy (Sutton) is running all up and down the sideline. Maybe they think I look meaner and will go out there and choke them."

Lemons added, "There was one official, if they were paying $100 for every toot on his whistle, he wouldn't have enough for a sucker."

In the only other conference game Thursday, Texas Tech thrashed Rice 78-56 in Lubbock to raise its conference record to 6-4. Rice dropped to 3-7 SWC play.

cold second half shooting performance by the Owls to take a commanding lead.

Rice coach Mike Schuler could find nothing worthy of praise in his squad's showing.

"It was a matter of us just not getting out there and hustling," Schuler said. "I can tolerate just about anything but that."

"We jumped out and won a few games early and we got an over-inflated opinion of ourselves," Myers said.

said. "Then we went the other way and lost all our confidence. Now we're starting to get it back."

Bulldogs own 5-4A driver's seat

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

Midland High is in the driver's seat as far as the District 5-4A basketball race is concerned.

Coach Don Humphrey's Bulldogs, currently on a 12-game winning streak, hit the road for a game with the San Angelo Central Bobcats while Midland Lee is at home against the Big Spring Steers.

Radio Station KBAT, FM-93, will handle the broadcast between the Bulldogs and Bobcats with Rick Casey doing the play-by-play with tip-off set for 8 p.m.

MIDLAND HIGH won the first half of the 5-4A race with a perfect 7-0 reading and stands 3-0 going into tonight's game. San Angelo, meanwhile, is 2-1 and shares second place with Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper.

Lee is 1-2 after its heart-breaking 46-45 loss to Cooper in the Lee Gymnasium Tuesday night. Midland High downed Abilene High, 48-42, in the Key City and tonight's game is the last road contest for the Pack in loop play with the last three games to be played in the Tall City.

While Midland nears a playoff spot, District 6-4A still has a hot race going. Wichita Falls High's Coyotes were the first half with a 4-1 record and are tied with the Wichita Falls Rider Raiders in the second half with 2-0 records.

Rider was the last team to defeat Midland and that was a 58-55 overtime win back in December. Since that time, the Purple Pack has piled up that 12-game winning streak which includes 10 in a row in 5-4A competition.

year with a 17-5 record.

Big guns for Big Spring are Mark Poss and James Mager while Central has been getting consistent scoring from Rene DeLeon, Darrell Pearson and Mark Ryan.

In other games tonight, Odessa Permian is at Abilene Cooper and Abilene High takes on the Odessa High Bronchos in the OHS Fieldhouse.

Lee will be looking for revenge against the Steers tonight since they upset the Rebels in Big Spring during the first half of the race.

Minnesota denies trade mill open for Foreman

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings say they haven't talked to any other National Football League Club about a possible trade for running back Chuck Foreman.

"Chuck asked me a couple weeks ago about these rumors," said Coach Bud Grant. "I told him there has been absolutely no talk by me to any owner, coach or general manager in the NFL about a trade of Chuck Foreman. I told him if there ever was, he'd be the first to know, not the last."

STARTING TONIGHT for Midland

will be Herbert Johnson, 6-foot-8 sophomore; Milton Sanders, 6-5 senior; Charles Johnson, a 6-4 senior; Roy Lee Jefferson, 6-2 senior and Walter Bryson, a 6-0 senior. Also slated for plenty of duty will be Tim Spirling, a 6-6 junior. The Pack has a 22-8 season record and the MHS junior varsity is 23-1 on the year.

Starters for Lee against Big Spring will include Mike McGaha, 6-5 senior; Arthur Pertile, 6-3 senior; Bruce Crawford, 6-2 senior; Tyler Alcorn, 5-11 senior and Ernest Merritt, a 6-1 senior. Lee sports a season mark of 12-14. The Rebel JV is having a good

Sooners may get Dickerson

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bluechip running back Eric Dickerson of Sealy will pay a "courtesy" visit to Texas this weekend — and possibly Texas A&M — but is expected to announce next week he will sign with Oklahoma, according to Lou Maysel of the Austin American-Statesman.

Maysel said several sources had indicated Dickerson, 6-foot-2½ inches and 205 pounds, would sign with the Sooners, who have great success recruiting star Texas schoolboy backs.

Dickerson ran for 2,642 yards during the past season in leading Sealy if he wants to be eligible for high school track, in which he is the defending 2A 100-yard and 200-meter dash champion.

He has made school-paid visits to Oklahoma, Southern California and Texas Tech. This A&M would be at Dickerson's expense.

Midland, Lee fems stay on title track

Midland High jumped into the driver's seat in the District 5-4A girls basketball race by defeating San Angelo, 58-35, at MHS gym Thursday night. The Bulldogs raised their second half record to 4-0, to share the lead with crosstown rival Midland Lee, but Abilene bowed to Odessa, 44-43.

Midland Lee kept pace with Midland by defeating Big Spring, 49-24, at Big Spring as Dee Dee Pool scored 19 points and Debra Ledbetter had 11 to pace the Rebels. The loss for Big Spring was their fourth without a win in the second half. Debra Ausbie had 11 for the Steers.

Since Midland and Abilene shared the first half title, the Pack girls can win the overall title by sharing or winning the second half title outright. However, that may be easier said than done, since Lee and Midland still must meet in the final game of the second half.

Midland Coach Jane Young, however, said that both the Rebels and Bulldogs have some tough games ahead and she isn't jaking anything for granted. "We have three tough games coming up in a row, starting with Odessa."

For the Eagles, it was their second loss of the second half, leveling their record at 2-2 and barring a complete collapse by Midland and Lee, Abilene's chances of catching up seem remote.

San Angelo hung close to Midland for a half, trailing 10-6 after a period and 26-20 at half before Coach Jane Young's cager turned on the heat in the third quarter to open a 38-24 gap.

Susan Rock led Midland with 16 points on eight field goals while Karen Cook contributed 11 points. Ruth McDevitt and Cindy Bell each had 11 points for San Angelo.

The loss dropped San Angelo to 1-3 in district and 6-15 for the season while Midland boosted its season's record to 23-10 going into Monday's game at Odessa.

San Angelo won the JV game in overtime, posting a 53-48 victory after the teams tied at 44 at the end of regulation play. Black with 15 and Gilchrist with 10 led the Midland scorers while Lacy's 16 topped San Angelo.

Carner takes lead

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Defending champion JoAnne Carner took a 3-up lead over Debbie Massey Thursday midway through the opening round of the women's $100,000 Triple Crown match-play tournament, but Nancy Lopez stood even with Sylvia Bertolaccini through nine holes.

Carner opened a 1-hole advantage on the first hole when Massey took a bogey five and Carner had a par. She extended her lead to two on the third hole with a birdie three, then, after bogeying No. 6 to lose a stroke, got a pair back with birdies on Nos. 7 and 9.

Bertolaccini moved ahead of Lopez on the opening hole with a birdie three, but lost it on No. 2 when Lopez birdied it. Lopez won two other holes on the front nine, with a birdie two on No. 5 and a four on the par-five ninth.

Bertolaccini kept their match even by winning the sixth hole with a birdie three and the eighth with a par three as Lopez had a double bogey five.

The opening round at Mission Hills Country Club was played despite some intermittent rain showers, with temperatures in the 60s. There was some doubt the opening round would be played since this desert resort area had no an extremely rare snowfall on Wednesday.

Seattle uses first refusal

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks retained the right of first refusal by extending qualifying offers to five members of the National Football League team who became free agents Thursday.

Receiving qualifying offers were cornerback Dave Brown, safety Doug Long, wide receiver Sam McCullum, linebacker Charles McShane and punter Herman Weaver.

Abe Lemons still irate after shoving incident

By The Associated Press

Eddie Sutton and Abe Lemons met at midcourt in a real Texas-size shouting match, tempers exploding. "You're too good to take cheap shots at us," Sutton told Texas player John Moore, triggering a harsh reaction from Lemons. Pretty soon the basketball coaches were knocking into each other in full view of the near-16,000 fans at the Super Drum arena in Austin. "He has no right to talk to one of my players like that," said Lemons after his 11th-ranked Texas Longhorns lost a rough 68-58 battle to Sutton's No. 19 Arkansas Razorbacks Thursday night.

WHAT GOT Lemons angry in the first place was what Sutton said to Moore as the teams walked off the court at halftime. Sutton felt that the Texas players were unduly rough on his team, especially Moore. "I probably shouldn't have said it and I apologize," a cooled-off Sutton said later. Lemons wasn't so magnanimous, however. "Sutton has no call to do that to one of my players," noted the Texas coach. "He called Moore a dirty player and shoved him. That's not his place. No coach has a right to do something like that."

From his side of the fence, Lemons naturally had a different view of the game. He saw Arkansas getting away with murder throughout the night. "We can't play with people hanging all over us," Lemons said. "They play too rough for us. It really baffles me. I get out of my chair and the official tells me to shut up and sit down. Then the other guy (Sutton) is running all up and down the sideline. Maybe they think I look meaner and will go out there and choke them."

ELSEWHERE, OHIO State suffered its first Big Ten conference loss this season when the seventh-ranked Buckeyes dropped an 84-79 decision at No. 15 Michigan State. Second-ranked Indiana State barely preserved its unbeaten record with a tense 91-89 overtime decision over New Mexico State with the help of a miraculous, 50-foot shot at the end of regulation. Top-ranked Notre Dame stopped Xavier of Ohio 66-57; fifth-ranked UCLA whipped Oregon 65-58; No. 14 Illinois beat Minnesota 67-57 and No. 18 Temple crushed Hofstra 92-70 in other action.

Lemons felt that the officials were partly to blame for that, not calling enough fouls against Arkansas. "There was one official, if they were paying $100 for every foul on his whistle, he wouldn't have enough for a sucker (a lollipop)," Lemons said. "I guess he had a good time, though, watching the game and looking at the crowd."

EARVIN JOHNSON'S 23 points led

Michigan State's conquest of Ohio State.

"We went out to prove we were a good basketball team," said Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote, whose Spartans lost to Michigan and Northwestern last week. "We were tired of 'What's happening to the Spartans?' In beating Ohio State we beat a super club."

Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller said his team played well offensively, "but our defense was not what it should be and Michigan State took advantage of that. The determining factor was that Michigan State played better than we did. It's that simple."

Bob Heaton's desperation 50-footer at the buzzer in regulation brought Indiana State back to life and propelled the Sycamores over New Mexico State. Brad Miley's three-point play with 2:23 to go in overtime put Indiana State on top for good at 90-87 as the undefeated Sycamores won their 19th game.

Indiana State's Larry Bird scored 37 points before fouling out and moved into 13th place on the all-time NCAA scoring list, passing former Tennessee star Ernie Grunfield.

Tracy Jackson hit four free throws in the final 24 seconds as Notre Dame held off upset-minded Xavier. "Xavier came ready to play," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps.

"They played with a lot of emotion because we are the No. 1 team and that gave them a lot of incentive. I was happy, though, that we did not lose our composure."

ROY HAMILTON scored 18 points, leading UCLA over Oregon in Pacific-10 action at Eugene.

"Every game we win up here is a big plus for us," said Hamilton. "We know this is a very important road trip."

Levi Cobb scored 19 points and Mark Smith added 18 to lead Illinois over Minnesota. Ricky Reed and Bruce Harrold teamed for 42 points to pace Temple over Hofstra.

In other games, Alcorn State improved its record to a glittering 20-0 with a 95-89 decision over Arkansas-Pine Bluff as James Horton scored 22 points; Pitt defeated Duquesne 89-83 behind the clutch foul-shooting of Terry Knight and Wayne Williams in the last two minutes; Jeff Taylor's 18 points led Texas Tech past Rice 78-56; Sammy Drummer scored 25 as Georgia Tech beat Western Carolina 100-75; Mike Woodson's 23 points paced Indiana over Michigan 68-62; Purdue defeated Northwestern 68-58 as Joe Barry Carroll scored 30 points and Portland whipped San Francisco 85-82 as Rick Raivio and Jose Slaughter scored 22 points apiece.

Chaps lose hold on first

HOBBS, N.M.—New Mexico Junior College staged a blistering second half to beat Midland College, 83-76, and knock the Chaparrals out of a tie for first place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball race here Thursday night.

Western Texas defeated Howard College, 97-66, at Snyder to raise its conference record to 8-2 and its season's record to 20-3.

Midland slipped to 7-3 in conference and 15-8 overall.

The Chaps led by as many as 12 in the first half before the Thunderbirds, now 7-3 and 16-7, whittled the margin to 28-26, before Midland built it up to 37-32 lead at intermission.

However, the Chaparrals couldn't a buy a bucket in the second half as NMJC outscored MC 24-6 at one stage to take a 60-43 lead. Midland whittled it to as few as nine with a full-court press, but it was too big a handicap to overcome.

Part of Midland's problem was foul trouble. Cullen Mayfield, Tim Shelby and Robert Tate picked up three quick ones, and Luis Alvarado, who went into the second half with only one foul, was one of three Chaps to foul out.

Mayfield and Alvarado each had 14 points for Midland while Kirk Eubanks scored 22 for the Thunderbirds, Ronnie Black chipped in with 16 and Rod Camp had 14. In other WJCC games, Odessa beat Frank Phillips, 102-89. Amarillo downed Clarendon, 89-79, and NMMI beat South Plains, 89-79. As a result, Midland, NMMI and NMJC are tied at 7-3 while Odessa is a half game back at 6-3.

New Jersey Nets may lose cool million dollars

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)—Despite a 500 record and a shot at the playoffs, the New Jersey Nets will finish the season more than $1 million in debt, principal owner Joseph Taub said Thursday.

"We'll lose over $1 million this year," Taub said. "But it could be more than that. What are you going to do?"

Taub realized all sales were final when he purchased the Nets from financially strapped Roy Boe last September. He also realized that he was in a can't-win financial situation until the team moves into the new Meadowlands Arena, which is expected to open Dec. 15, 1980 at the earliest.

The Nets, in their third year in the National Basketball Association, play in the Rutgers Athletic Center in Piscataway, where they are averaging about 4,000 spectators a game.

"It's impossible to make money at Piscataway, between the overhead and the players' salaries," Taub said.

"Maybe if we filled the place up and had more cable television revenue, we would have a slight chance of breaking even."

Taub and nine investors got the Nets by absorbing Boe's debts totaling $15 million.

"He owed creditors in the neighborhood of $15 million," said Taub, 48, who founded the Automatic Data Processing company and owns a stable of 60 horses, including Sensitive Prince, a 1978 Kentucky Derby participant.

"We assumed his debts, we settled with all the creditors. Roy was glad to get out, otherwise there would have been serious problems."

Taub said he and his partners felt a civic responsibility to buy the Nets and keep them in New Jersey.

"If we didn't take over the team, there would be no New Jersey Nets today. No one else was interested in the team," he said.

Taub feels there are too many variables to believe the Nets own a stable financial future once they move into the Meadowlands.

Bradshaw endures blitz

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Bradshaw is feeling the effects from the blitz of attention that annually is attracted by a Super Bowl hero. It's the kind of blitz the Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback welcomes.

"It's been a hectic week," said Bradshaw Thursday. "But I'd rather it be hectic than be down home right now as a loser of the Super Bowl thinking about what I had done wrong."

So, Bradshaw withstood another barrage of questions and posed for another batch of pictures as he received a car from Sport Magazine as the Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl in which he passed for four touchdowns in the Steelers' 35-31 victory over Dallas 35-31.

Sitting quietly at one end of the dias Thursday, wearing an ice cream-white vest over a dark shirt with a bloody red tie, he was Jo Jo Starbuck, a pro figure skating star who is Mrs Bradshaw.

She also welcomed media spotlight focused on her husband. "He's a better football player than I am a skater," said the former Olympian. "He's like an Olympic champion and I'm proud of it."

The just-completed National Football League season was great for Bradshaw, a nine-year veteran. The success was made sweeter by the memory of some seasons past when Bradshaw's ability often was overshadowed by inconsistency and a reputation he had gained a county bumpkin — a reputation "I've learned to live with but don't like."

"The low point in my career was being benched in 1975 (in favor of Joe Gilliam)," said Bradshaw. "I learned a lot ... humility was one thing. I learned how much I like to play ball."

Now, the possessor of three Super Bowl champion rings, Bradshaw is on top of his profession — a very precarious perch as he is well aware — but he doesn't think he has hit his peak as a player. It is a peak he hopes he never scales.

"I hope I never peak," said Bradshaw, who is under contract to the Steelers for three more years. "When I retire I hope I can say that if I had played one more year, I would have been better."

Carew resents bartering

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew said Thursday that he resents being tossed around like a grocery item by baseball clubs bartering for his life.

"It's nerve-racking — the wait, the frustration, it's terrible," insisted the perennial American League batting champion of the Minnesota Twins, speaking of stalled negotiations in his projected deal to the New York Yankees.

"I don't like the idea of being pushed around, cooling my heels while they go fishing and play golf. If they think they can wait until the last minute and tell me to start packing, they are out of their minds."

"I plan to exercise my rights. I want them to know nobody can buy me — I can't be bought. I'm going out of town and get lost. If they want me, they will have to track me down."

"This has been very painful for me. I have to go somewhere and get my head together."

Carew expressed his impatience and chagrin to The Associated Press after being reached by telephone at his home in Golden Valley, Minn.

The 33-year-old premier batter in the game, with one year to go on his contract, has been regarded as "trade bait" since the end of the last season when he expressed a desire not to continue at Minnesota.

A deal with the California Angels fell through. Then the Yankees moved into the market, offering first baseman Chris Chambliss, center fielder Juan Beniquez, two minor leaguers and close to $400,000 in cash.

Late this week George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the Yankees, personally got involved in the dealings, meeting with Calvin Griffith, president of the Twins, in Orlando, Fla. The talks seem to have stalled. One day Steinbrenner said he was taking off "to play golf."

Carew, seven-times AL batting champion, said he was personally offended by the suggestion that "anything George wants, George gets."

"They can't sell me all that New York City stuff — you know what they say, 'Come to New York and you have all those opportunities to make money in commercial things.' I don't need that. I make my living playing baseball on the field."

The lean, mild-mannered Panamanian said while he New York would not be his first choice as a future home, he felt he could adjust to it.

"I have a good relationship with some of the players," he added. "Thurman Munson and I have been carrying on a little friendly war at the plate for a long time. I feel I can play anywhere. It's just that I might be more comfortable somewhere else."

Carew said he had felt good about possibly going to the California Angels.

"I went there expecting to spend a day haggling. They met my terms in 15 minutes," he said. "But Griffith upped the ante, and the deal fell through."

Carew said that he had set a personal deadline — Feb. 5.

"If they don't do something by then, they can forget it. I will play out my option and go on the free agent market next fall," he added.

The Minnesota infielder said he was at a loss to understand why the Yankees and Angels were battling over his services when they could wait a year and pick him up without compensation.

"Take the Yankees," he said. "They don't need me this year. They've got Chambliss. I think he is a heck of a ballplayer. Not only that, he is a nice guy, gets along with everybody."

"If I were in their place, I wouldn't let Mr. Griffith get away dictating a deal. I would just bide my time."

Carew said, knowing his own feelings in the matter, he could imagine the anxiety and frustrations of Chambliss, Beniquez and other Yankee players being bandied about in the proposed trade.

"I at least have a choice of saying 'yes' or 'no,'" he added. "They have no choice at all. The only thing they can do is sit and wait. I really feel sorry for them."

Carew said he personally preferred not to play the final season with the Twins.

"At first, I thought I might be satisfied going on and playing out my option. Not any more. I really am pretty well fed up."

He indicated that part of his disenchantment stemmed from the controversial talk which Griffith made to a small town group last October in which he referred to Carew as "damn fool" and added other remarks construed as racist.

NCAA starts crackdown

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Focusing on six "hotbeds of football recruiting," the NCAA this week is launching a bold, nationwide crackdown on recruiting violations and early returns indicate the program may be a huge success.

"The information is already starting to filter in," David Berst, director of the NCAA enforcement department, said Thursday. "We're going to get after it."

In a complete departure from past procedures, the NCAA, in effect, is going to the scene of the crime. After carefully putting together a list of the top 100 football prospects, including junior college players, investigators were dispatched to every part of the country to talk to the recruits, their coaches and family members.

College recruiters, now heading into the final climatic weeks of the football recruiting season with the national signing date on Feb. 21, were given no warning that investigators would be in the field.

Win costly to Pistons' Dick Vitale

By The Associated Press

Coach Dick Vitale will always remember how he celebrated the Detroit Pistons' 120-116 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers Thursday night. What he said was probably something akin to "Ouch!"

Vitale was so overjoyed by the Pistons' triumph in the wake of their dismal showing against the New York Knicks one night earlier that he jumped around and threw his arms in the air at the final buzzer — and pulled a muscle in the back of his shoulder.

In other National Basketball Association games, the Washington Bullets nipped the San Antonio Spurs 123-122 in a battle of division leaders, the Philadelphia 76ers drubbed the Chicago Bulls 128-105 and the Seattle SuperSonics dished the New Jersey Nets 107-102.

Bob Lanier and M.L. Carr poured in 29 points apiece for Detroit. The Cavaliers fell behind 113-106 with 3:38 remaining but made one last run. However, Carr hit two free throws with 59 seconds left and Lanier hit three more in the final 16 seconds to preserve Detroit's fifth victory in its last six games. Campy Russell had 29 points and Austin Carr 26 for the losers.

Bullets 123, Spurs 122
Elvin Hayes and Bobby Dandridge, Washington's All-Star forwards, combined for 66 points and Tom Henderson hit two key free throws with seven seconds remaining. Hayes, who finished with 30 points, put the Bullets ahead for the first time since early in the second quarter with a three-point play at 1:07 left.

San Antonio's James Silas connected on a 20-footer with 59 seconds remaining to put San Antonio ahead 120-119 but Hayes threw in a fallaway jump shot with 25 seconds remaining to give the lead back to Washington. Henderson then hit the two-free throws that iced the game.

76ers 128, Bulls 105
Darryl Dawkins scored 12 third-quarter points and Julius Erving added 15 in the final eight minutes and wound up with 32 points. The Sixers, who had dropped four of their last six games, handed the Bulls their fourth straight loss and ninth in their last 10 games.

Dawkins, who finished with 16 points, said his performance "was a long time coming, because I've really, in my opinion, let the team down in the last several weeks. I've been very inconsistent and it's been now or never for me."

SuperSonics 107, Nets 102
Lonnie Shelton slapped the ball loose from New Jersey's Eric Money and Fred Brown scored on a subsequent fast break as Seattle rallied in the final 30 seconds. Money, who scored a career-high 40 points, had pumped in three straight baskets to give the Nets a 102-99 lead with 1:04 to play. Shelton made his key steal after Seattle's Jack Sikma, who scored a career-high 30 points, sank two free throws with 50 seconds left.

Nets Coach Kevin Loughery was tagged with two technical fouls in the first half and automatically ejected for the third time this season.

Berst admitted eight investigators may have difficulty checking into 100 players and said they may home in on "some hotbeds of football recruiting."

He declined to identify those areas but a source close to the program told The Associated Press they are Texas, New York, California, Florida, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

"It just started this week and it's already starting to bear fruit," said an NCAA insider who asked not to be identified. "We don't know yet what we've got, but it looks like this may be an idea whose time has come."

All pending investigations and cases have been put on the back burner while everyone concentrates on the new program, dubbed by some as "Project Intercept."

"I don't know if I would call it that," said Berst. "But it really is a dramatic change in procedures. We may be noticed by some schools out there. They may find themselves tripping over us on their way to violate a rule. The next knock on the door could be us."

Berst said the NCAA is "tired of just building cases. We want to go on the offense a little bit. We're just like another college coaching staff, figuring out who the great prospects are and going out to talk to them."

From the NCAA offices in suburban Mission, Kan., Berst and his administrative assistants, Ron Stratten and Hale McMenamin are coordinating the travels of the eight field men.

The investigators are talking to college and high school coaches and mothers, fathers and girlfriends of young men now being recruited.

"We're also talking to the kids," Berst said. "That's as important as anything we do. It may be educational for them as well as helpful to us."

"We want to do more than just react to old charges, react to things that filter in to us a year or two after the fact," Berst added.

"For instance, we're going to University X and talking to them about all the people they think are cheating right now. Then we go to University Y and ask them the same questions. Then we get an overlap on various schools and find out the ones we ought to be watching."

The NCAA plans to list the top 100 basketball prospects and launch a similar program when basketball recruiting season climaxes this spring.

"About three weeks ago we started taking newspapers from various parts of the country and assigning them to investigators," Berst said. "We now have daily newspapers from all over the country and we're clipping out items of interest. We plan to use these as background information to try to find people who may know what's going on out there."

Berst said many coaches, especially basketball coaches, have urged the NCAA for years to get out and talk to young men as they are being recruited.

"They've wanted us to go to things like high school all-star games," he said. "We're always looking for ways to do a better job and this seems logical. With the list of the top 100 football and basketball prospects, we'll canvass some coaches in the field. We pick out coaches to talk to to find out what's on their minds and where they think cheating is occurring right now. And we're going to give that information a high priority right now. By focusing in on people who are being recruited right now, we should have more impact and be more current."

Hecklers get real workout

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Two Nebraska basketball players, heckled throughout their 66-57 loss to Oklahoma State Wednesday night, charged into the stands after the heckler with 21 seconds left.

The game was halted briefly as police separated the combatants and escorted Carl McPipe, the Cornhuskers' 6-foot-8 center, and Andre Smith, a 6-7 forward, to the locker room.

McPipe and Smith, along with the rest of the Nebraska team, had to deal not only with verbal abuse but also with ice and paper cups the hecklers were tossing.

Fans sitting around the heckler alleged that McPipe not only exchanged blows with the unidentified heckler, but also struck the heckler's girlfriend with a straight punch.

Daytona has pole surprise

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The 24 Hours of Daytona endurance race got a surprise pole position starter, and a definite Indianapolis flavor Thursday.

The unheralded turbo Porsche entry of Italians Carlo Facetti, Martino Finotto and Gianpiero Moretti earned the pole position with a record speed of 130.276 mph around Daytona International Speedway's 3.84-mile road course in the opening round of qualifying. Qualifying for a race of this length is considered almost meaningless.

Facetti, who was behind the wheel on the qualifying attempt, edged out the second place qualifier by six-tenths of a second. That was another turbo Porsche qualified at 129.503 mph by John Fitzpatrick of England.

It'll be a cold day in July, before prices are this low again.
