Five convictions in area tax cases deal blows to protest movement

By LINDA HILL Staff Writer

The conviction of an Midlland man on income tax charges in federal court in Midland Thursday dealt the last of a series of severe blows to the "tax protest" movement here during the past two weeks.

Midlander Richard L Enloe was convicted on one count of supplying a false Form W-4 and one count of failure to supply required information to the IRS

Enloe was the fifth person convicted in a two-week period by government prosecutors, including an assistant U.S. attorney and two Depart ment of Justice criminal tax lawyers from Washington.

Hospital board ponders its promises to voters

By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

Midland County Hospital District directors spent most of their meeting Thursday debating exactly what voters had been promised when the district was created last year.

The answer to the question eventually could determine whether taxes or room rates would be raised to compensate for bad debts.

The directors also officially called the election for three places on the board and let bids for a new computer system for Midland Memorial Hospi-

The discussion of election promises came up after the board approved the transfer of $150,000 of tax money to hospital operating accounts and wrote off some $141,000 in bad debts.

Director Michael Burleson questioned the use of tax money to fund "operational deficits" when private hospitals can pay off debts, operate and return a profit to stockholders "without charging significantly higher rates.'

Burleson, a physician, is a stock holder in a private hospital in Mid-

"The people were asked to pay for brick and mortar and indigent care. The people who use the hospital should pay for the operating deficits," Burleson said. About $36,000 of the $141,000 writeoff for the month was for indigent

"When you ask the taxpayers to pay for operating deficits, you lose a lot of incentive for operating efficiency. I'm not saying that's happening here, but I'm afraid of the concept," said Burleson.

Director L. Decker Dawson, however, remembered promises to the electorate differently.

"It is our philosophy that sick people in the hospital not have to pay for the bad debts they had nothing to do with. We promised the people they would pay only for the operation of the hospital."

While the question revolved around raising taxes or room rates, neither step necessarily will take place soon, Dawson pointed out.

"The hospital is in very healthy financial shape," Dawson said.

A total of $200,000 in tax money has been transferred for hospital use during the first five months of the district's operation. Some $600,000 was budgeted for the year to fund the bad debt and indigent care, so the hospital is operating under the budgeted amount, Administrator Wayne Ulrich

One reason the hospital operates in the red at all is its having to fund depreciation each month, Ulrich

Chinese planes hit near Haiphong port

By DAVID TERRY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - In an escalation of the week-old war, Chinese warplanes striking deep into Vietnam pounded targets near the port of Haiphong, where Soviet ships were unloading missiles and radar equipment for their Vietnamese allies, Thai intelligence sources said

Japanese reports said, meanwhile, that a third Vietnamese provincial capital, Ha Giang, may have fallen to the invaders, and that the Vietnamese defenders of Lang Son, a strategic crossroads town on the eastern front, apparently were under siege by Chinese ground troops

Farther east, closer to the South saying Chinese troops also were benamese infantrymen were fighting fiercely today to keep three Chinese divisions from cutting off a highway and outflanking the Vietnamese forces around Lang Son.

The Japanese Embassy in Hanoi reported to the Foreign Ministry in Tokyo that Chinese troops may have captured Ha Giang, capital of the central province of Ha Tuyen, Japan's Kyodo news service reported. The city is about 12 miles south of the Chinese border.

The invaders earlier this week captured Cao Bang, capital of the central province of Cao Bang, and Lao Cai, capital of Hoang Lien Son province in the west.

Kyodo quoted ministry officials as provincial capital 80 miles north of Hanoi and 12 miles south of the border, and a key staging area for the Vietnamese defense. If true, the report may mean that the Chinese routed Vietnamese artillery and infantry that had taken a stand in the hills just south of the village of Dong Dang, seven miles farther north from Lang Son.

Soviet Defense Minister Dmitiri Ustinov, in a speech today in Moscow, denounced China's "dangerous provocations ... against neighboring sovereign states" and said Peking is trying "to plunge the world into a

The Soviets have accused the ad ministration of collusion with the Chinese in the invasion of Vietnam and will get a chance to air that view at the United Nations debate.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke told reporters Thursday the American goal in the U.N. debate will be to demonstrate an U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, however, indicated that many U.N. members are leery of the American approach.

Billie Sol cited for fraud plots

DALLAS (AP) - More indictments have been returned against paroled West Texas con man Billie Sol Estes, this time charging that he plotted to bilk investors, operate businesses in violation of his parole and conceal assets to avoid paying income taxes.

On Thursday, a federal grand jury returned four lengthy indictments against Estes; two former associates, Raymond K. Horton and M.L. Copenhaver, and his long-time secretary, Sue Goolsby

Estes' attorney, G. Brockett Irwin of Longview, said his client would plead innocent at his arraignment

He was convicted in 1963 of building a fortune on mortgage loans using non-existent fertilizer tanks as collateral. A similar scheme involving the financing of non-existent oilfield steam cleaners was involved in Thursday's indictments.

Thursday's indictments detail a plot to defraud four leasing companies of more than $589,000 by financing 38 bogus steam cleaners and using a dummy corporation to sell them to another phony company. According to the indictment, the selling and purchasing companies existed only on paper - created by Estes, Horton and Copenhaver.

Another indictment naming only Estes and Horton alleges that the two ran firms in Horton's name that actually belonged to Estes, who, according to his parole, has been barred from self-employment or promotional activities. That indictment also charges Estes with conspiring to defraud the government of income taxes owed for 1959-1962, 1971 and 1977.

A separate indictment says Estes reported a net income of $11,200 on 1975 income tax forms when he ac-

Allegations that Midland oil man Ray K. Horton was involved in a scheme to defraud leasing companies of hundreds of thousands of dollars have resurfaced — this time in a federal indictment that links Billie Sol Estes to the alleged plan.

Horton already is under indictment on a federal charge of mail fraud in connection with allegations concerning purchase of 41 acres of land in Houston in 1973

That indictment charges Horton with bilking a mortgage company of several hundred thousand dollars.

An indictment returned Thursday charges Horton and Estes, along with M.L. Copenhaver, now of Houston, plotted to defraud four leasing companies of more than $589,000 by financing 38 bogus steam cleaners supposedly manufactured by one phony company and sold to another.

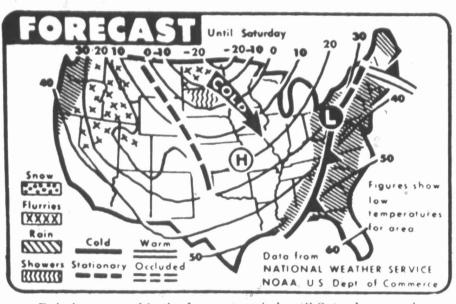

Another indictment charges Horton and Estes ran firms in Horton's name that actually belonged to Estes, in violation of Estes' parole conditions.

The allegations concerning the steam cleaners originally surfaced in August 1977, when the state attorney general's office got a temporary injunction which outlined the alleged scheme and ordered Horton not to engage in deceptive trade practices. Essentially, the attorney general's office maintained Horton had violated the Deceptive Trade Practices Act in the transactions because "in truth and in fact, no complete and working steam cleaners were manufactured, shipped or received" by the defen-

Lee High School teacher files candidacy for board spot

A special education teacher at Lee High School has created the first contested race in the Midland Independent School District election April 7.

Joyce Sherrod filed this morning for the Place 7 spot on the board currently held by Ann Page.

Mrs. Sherrod, who has 17 years teaching experience, has resigned her teaching position effective next year to pursue other career goals. Her goal is "quality education for all students with parents, teachers and the community working in partnership," she said in a prepared statement. She said she favors further study and time before a decision is made on the plan to consolidate the city's two high schools. "I feel this proposal has needlessly split the community and would not necessarily increase educational opportunities," she said. "An underlying problem is the board's lack of communication with the community, who has the right not only to know what decisions are being made, but to provide input before action is taken. Mrs. Sherrod, who said she feels her experience will help balance the board, has taught for the past 13 years in Midland schools in every grade level. In addition to all-level special education certification, she hold a master's degree in language and learning disabilities from UTPB. She and her husband have three children, all graduates of the Midland public school system.

Two other places on the board are up for election this year. Trustee Edward E. Runyan has filed for re-election to his Place 6 spot on the board. Trustee David Grimes has announced he will not run for re-election. Parker Humes is the only candidate so far for his Place 5 position.

Five men were in City Jail early today and a sixth man was out on bond following an early morning disturbance in a Midland bar.

Several police officers were called to the aid of the first two lawmen, who arrived at Phase One, 200 N. Lee St., shortly after 12:16 a.m. today, in response to a report a man inside the oar had a gun, officials said.

James E. Turner, 24, of 508 S. Carv er St. was released on $55 bond today ifter being charged with disorderly conduct by language, according to

Other Midland men who still were n City Jail early today included a 3-year-old arrested for alleged aggravated assault and disorderly conduct by language, an 18-year-old arested for alleged disorderly conduct by fighting, a 29-year-old and a 24ear-old arrested for allegedly refusng to comply with a lawful order, and 44-year-old arrested for allegedly censed premises, according to police eports. When officers arrived on the scene police said, an employee and several persons leaving the nightclub told hem a man wearing a white shirt and standing next to the pool tables nad a gun.

Police said there were several men near the man who reportedly had he gun and that those men were rguing with him

When officers reached the man, hey could see a gun in his hand and ne was waving it at officers, accordng to police reports.

At this point, police said, the offiers pulled their weapons on the man, rdering him to drop the gun. The man reportedly stuck out the gun and an officer grabbed the weapon away from him. The man was handcuffed and placed under arrest, said police.

However, according to reports, while two officers were taking the arrested man outside, they momentarily were detained by several people who tried to block the door with a Foosball machine:

Officers then pushed the machine out of the way and escorted the man to jail, reports indicated.

BRADY - Lawson J. Russell, 24, of Midland was in satisfactory condition in Heart of Texas Memorial Hospital here today following injuries he suffered Wednesday night in a traffic mishap.

He suffered facial, head, arm, hand and knee injuries, said a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The car Russell was driving was in collision with a tractor-trailer loaded with scrap metal about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. Both vehicles were traveling south on U.S. Highway 87 at time of the mishap, the DPS spokesman said. Russell, of 2439 Whitmire Boulevard, is a wire-line operator for Dresser Atlas Division of Dresser Industries in Odessa. Formerly, he was a fireman for the city of Midland.

The judge subsequently declared she had violated the order and, after Mrs. Duke refused to promise she would not do so any more; had her jailed for slightly more than 48 hours on a contempt citation.

Patterson disclaimed any connection to the "protest movement," but argued that Federal Reserve notes do not constitute legal money and thus taxable income. That argument frequently is used by members of tax protest organizations.

THREE JURORS WERE released from panels as a result of those conferences, although no official explanation was given at the time.

Thursday, William H. Mann Jr., who was defense attorney for four of the five defendants, said all three juror releases were the result of "innocent" incidents

In the most serious incident, said Mann, a juror in the Billy D. Cawthon trial talked to another defendant when the two met on an oil field job. Mann said the two chatted for a few minutes, and the other defendant said at one point, "It's a shame you're neg on my jury.'

dant reported the incident to Mann, and Mann reported it to the court. The juror was excused after a conference with Wood, who told the juror to leave the building immediately. However, Mann said, on his way out, the excused juror ran into Charlie Linebarger, a prosecution witness in still another case.

Coincidentally, the attorney said. Linebarger, a real estate agent, was trying to sell the juror's house, and the two spoke about that matter, with a prosecution representative over-

THE SECOND JUROR on the Cawthon case was excused after a juror spoke to a prosecution lawyer about a similarity in names, Mann

The defense attorney said he insisted the juror be excused because he was afraid the name similarity would cause the juror to identify with the prosecution lawyer. In the third incident, said Mann, a juror was excused from the Thomas

O. Flournoy jury after the juror spoke to another defendant in the hall and was overheard by a prosecution representative. Mann said he was not surprised at the series of defeats in his four cases. "I assumed I'd lose all four," he said, adding that he plans to appeal. The defense attorney said he believes he has found one point the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals has not considered thus far. He said he plans to argue the failure of the IRS to outline the potential penalty for failing to supply information in the booklet that comes with the Form 1040 constitutes a violation of a federal statute which requires government agencies to tell what the effect of filling out a form will be.

The board also approved a bid of $17.585 to McDonnell Douglas Automation Co. for a new computer system for the hospital.

The new system will take care of patient billing and record keeping, payroll, accounts payable, inventory and general ledger processes and speed insurance processing, Ulrich said.

The McDonnell Douglas bid was the lowest of eight received and includes both hardware and software. as well as training some of the staff to use the equipment. There will be problems with any major change, however, Dawson noted. "I would estimate for about 90 days this hospital will be in total chaos," because of computer confusion, he said.

Estes' attorney, told The Reporter-Telegram Estes was employed by a division of Growth Energy Inc., one of the companies named in the injunction, with Fuell listed as president.

Bryant said Estes did consulting work for the company. "They used his brains," Bryant said at the time. Horton, however, denied any connection with Estes, other than having given Estes a job in a firm he formerly owned when Estes was released from prison.

"Everytime anyone starts a new investigation of Billie Sol. they start investigating me — just because I only tried to help the man after he was released from prison," Horton said in 1977.

In still another legal action, one of the companies named in the state action, Growth Energy Inc., which Horton controlled, was the subject of a lengthy bankruptcy proceeding in federal court.

Marine held by Iranians now on his way home

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) - U.S. Marine Sgt. Ken Kraus, held captive by Iranian revolutionaries for a week after the attack on the American Embassy in Tehran, left for Washington today after a stopover in Frankfurt, officials said.

Kraus, who was hidden by officials of the U.S. Consulate during a 21-hour stopover in Frankfurt, left for Andrews Air Force Base on an Air Force C-141, information officer Captain Bruce Fageley said.

Lynn Martin, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Consulate in Frankfurt, said Kraus, of Lansdale, Pa., was due to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base at 3:30 p.m. and that he would hold a news conference immediately.

Although Kraus talked with reporters before leaving Tehran, the consulate refused to let news people see or talk him when he arrived on a Pan Am evacuation flight from Iran Thursday afternoon. William Pugh, chief spokesman of the consulate, refused to explain why the consulate barred access to Kraus, who was wounded slightly in the attack on the Embassy Feb. 14.

"He seemed in good spirits to me, in very good spirits," Pan Am flight steward Charlie Mellodge of New York said when asked if Kraus appeared to be suffering any ill effects

Pugh said he thought Kraus was to have been taken to the U.S. Army's 97th General Hospital in Frankfurt for a checkup, but officials at the hospital denied that he was there.

Ms. Martin said today that Kraus had checked in with the Marines during his stay in Frankfurt, but she said she didn't know exactly where he Kraus, 22, was taken from a Tehran hospital last week by one Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's guerrillas. On Wednesday, the Iranian provisional government announced he was charged with "firing at Iranians" during the storming of the embassy and would be put on trial. But he was released in the evening after Ambassador William Sullivan spent the day conferring with Khomeini's officials.

American diplomats in Paris said the French Embassy also interceded for Kraus. The French government stands in better with Khomeini than any other Western government because it let him live in France and did not restrict his activities during the decisive past year of his campaign to oust Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Kraus suffered a slight head wound during the embassy attack. He told reporters at the Tehran airport Thursday the guerrillas did not mis-

Perot's commando raid won't bring him trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Texas millionaire H. Ross Perot thought hiring a squad of American commandos to stage a freedom raid on a prison in Iran might have gotten him into trouble with the U.S. government, his worries appear to be moot.

The FBI is not investigating, the Justice Department says it knows only what it reads in the newspapers and the State Department says it had no involvement in the "alleged"

And the ex-Army Green Beret colonel who commanded the mission is out of sight - leaving behind word he won't have anything to say about it even if reporters catch up with him.

When Perot, the computer whiz with a taste for taking matters into his own hands, called a news conference in Dallas Monday to give details of the raid - word was fast leaking out, anyway - he said he thought he might have some explaining to do to the U.S. government.

"I suppose our attorneys will be working on this for the next several months," Perot said.

"But that was not the issue. To save As Perot told it, he stayed behind in Turkey masterminding the operation while his 15-man squad hired a mob to storm the Gasre prison. His employees, engineers William Gaylord and Paul Chiapperoni,

Iranian flees Texas job

PASADENA, Texas (AP) - A young Iranian frantic over affairs at home scribbled a note on a cigarette box then fled a self-service gas station where he had worked for a month. Authorities said $609 was missing from the cash register Thursday.

The message read: "Dear Sir, I hope you won't think of me as a thief. I point to God as my witness that I will send your money back as soon as I get home. I hate to do it to you. I hope first all of you and then God forgive

"The reason I need this money is to take me home. Because I got a message that my sister and her husband were shot to death in Iran. And they have four kids. I have to go and take care of them...."

escaped — along with an estimated 11,000 Iranian prisoners in what has been called history's biggest jail-

Gaylord and Chiapperoni, who work for Perot's firm, Electronic Data Systems, Inc., had been jailed seven weeks, apparently in connection with allegations of official corruption involving a contract won by Perot's firm.

But Perot apparently need not have worried about U.S. investigators asking if his action violated American neutrality laws or introduced a new element into an internationally explosive situation in which the United States had been cautioning the Russians against involvement.

"We're aware of the news accounts of what went on, but beyond that we don't have anything to say," Justice Department spokesman Robert Ste-

Pressed on whether even a preliminary investigation has been ordered, he said, "We haven't made any decision as to what to do about it.

An FBI spokesman went beyond that. "We are doing absolutely nothing," he said. "We haven't been asked by the department to investigate. The people who handle neutrality matters don't anticipate that we will.'

At the State Department, spokeswomen Jill Schuker referred questioners to the Justice Department. 'We had no involvement in the alleged event, and I stress the word 'alleged,"' she said.

The breakout occurred the same day the government of Shahpour Bakhtiar fell to the revolutionary supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Even if the United States were disposed to ask questions, it would be difficult - in view of the chaos that day - to establish exactly what role Perot's commandos played.

One person who could provide answers, Arthur "Bull" Simons, 60, the retired Army colonel who led the Perot squad, left Dallas with word that he would have nothing to say about the operation.

A Perot spokesman, who requested anonymity, said he had been empowered "to say two things about Col. Simons: One, I don't know his whereabouts and, two, 'I (Simons) won't talk to the press.' . .. We agreed that we would hold a press conference and outline what happened and we would tell the story one time and then that was going to be it."

Iran Marxists challenge Khomeini

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - The Marxist People's Fedayeen guerrillas challenged Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today with a rally by 50,000 Iranians demanding that he transform the country into a leftist workers' state.

The biggest leftist guerrilla organization organized the rally at Tehran University, its headquarters, to demonstrate its strength after Khomeini ordered it not to hold a march it planned through Tehran

The conservative Moslem patriarch condemned the Fedayeen as "Communists and enemies of the revolution" in what appeared to be a complete Speakers at the rally read letters of support they said came from workers and farmers across the

Although Fedayeen officials concede that Khomeini has the support of most of the Iranian people, some of the speakers declared that the religious leader must realize that not everyone in the country wants a republic dedicated to the tenets of Moslem orthodoxy as he does. When a few Khomeini supporters in the crowd tried to chant "Our party is God's party and our leader is Khomeini," the loudspeakers drowned them out. But there was no vio-

The Fedayeen are angry because Khomeini's conservative bent is now apparent and Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, with the ayatollah's approval, has been staffing his provisional government with moderate democratic socialists of the National Front, the mildly leftist political coalition which opposed the shah vi for more than 25 years.

Khomeini's appeals for return of the 300,000 weapons reported looted from armories and other military bases have failed, and his revolutionary committee, a parallel government which operates inde pendently of Bazargan's provisional government, began preparations this week to try to bring the numerous guerrilla groups and other thousands of given free electricity and water and interest-free armed men and boys under its control.

The committee announced formation of the "National Guard of the Revolution" made up of legallyarmed Islamic revolutionary soldiers who would guard weapons storage depots and public and religious buildings.

Meanwhile, the provisional government is trying to reorganize the regular armed forces, the bestequipped military force in the Middle East except for Israel's. The revolutionary committee has not explained what will be the relationship between the national guard and the regular army.

Officials in Washington reported that nearly 4,000 of the 7,000 Americans who were still in Iran when the revolutionaries took over have been evacuated since last Saturday.

Amendment opposed

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has voiced strong opposition to legislation calling for the Texas Legislature to ratify proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States to provide voting power for the District of Columbia by adding two U.S. senators and at least one congressman.

The WTCC opposition is valid and it would be well for members of the legislature to give serious and, hopefully, favorable consideration to the recommendation.

The proposed amendment would give the voting privileges of a state to a city, which is not right or proper in any sense.

The regional chamber points out that the amendment, if approved, will result in the election of representatives and senators who will favor the continuing and accelerated growth of federal programs and bureaucracy. This reasoning undoubtedly would hold since a vast majority of the D.C. population is employed in government.

The WTCC says it also is opposed to the amendment 'because it will only serve to give additional voting powers to the strong coalition of Northeastern states which effectively could nullify the senatorial influence the State of Texas now has in matters of utmost importance to the best interests of Texas."

The coalition of Northeastern states largely is responsible for the proposed amendment in the first place, and it is that group which is pushing the measure. One can imagine how the D.C. senators and representatives would vote on matters relating to Texas' oil and gas resources and on the relocating of industrial plants in the North and East to the Sun Belt.

Ed Coltharp, executive vice president of the West Texas C. of C., offers the following suggestion:

"If a change in representation rights is needed for persons now residing within the District of Columbia, then a much fairer alternative would be to annex portions of the District to surrounding states."

The used car business would be hurt; the casualty insurance industry would suffer; but think how many dollars would remain in the family pot instead of flying out of the window. Deprived of wheels, youngsters might even find time to do their homework and get to know their neigh-

Deprived of backseats, the youngsters might rediscover the walk-inthe-park or the front porch swing and at the very least, they would be given an incentive to test their ingenuity.

Teen-age automobile driving is simply a phenomenon up with which we need not put if we only break the mental habit of believing that whatever is must always be.

I can personally attest to the fact that it is truly possible to survive an entire high school career without either a car or a driver's license. I may have ended up somewhat socially retarded, but, on the other hand, I didn't have to marry early. All of the politicians who love to weep, wail and scatter dark clouds over the subject of energy now have the opportunity to take a sensible step to reduce energy consumption. It's assinine to penalize adults who must use their cars to earn a living without first eliminating the purely luxury use of cars by adolescents.

we are going to revert to lowered standard of living as the antitechnology crowd wants, then let's lower it in a sane fashion by working on non-essentials first. Nothing is more non-essential than a healthy youngster driving a 3,000 pound automobile to school and home.

Actually, this idea may win more supporters than will be initially visible. I suspect many parents who are too timid to ground their own kids will write anonymous letters to legislators supporting the move.

Teachers who get tired of fighting the traffic jams around high schools may also help, though to be sure the automobile and insurance lobbyists will fight it tooth and nail to say nothing of the morticians and wheel chair manufacturers.

It's true we can't turn back the clock but we can sure make the minor portion of the population think it's been turned back and who can argue that walking is not healthier than driving.

In our affluence, we sometimes lose our perspective and fail to see some of the silly things we do - like driving to a health spa or a YMCA and buying a car-per-kid.

INSIDE REPORT:

Who was minding store while Carter was in Mexico?

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - A shocked Secretary of State Cyrus Vance privately proposed that President Carter leave for Mexico Feb. 14 without him while he stayed in the capital to handle possible new emergencies in Iran or Afghanistan. He was turned down by Vance's strong concern was that the nation's capital should not be without one senior official to deal with the kind of crisis situation that cost the life of the American ambassador in Kabul and threatened the lives of Americans in Tehran.

With Carter, Vance and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski all scheduled for Mexico City, Washington was stripped bare of senior officials. Secretary of Defense Harold Brown was in the Middle East; Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was in the Far East.

That left Vice President Walter F. Mondale, touted by Carter as the only vice president with real clout in modern American history. But Mondale was on a skiing vacation in Vail. Colo., and neither he nor anyone else suggested his return to Washington.

Even more than other officials. Vance was both infuriated and grieved by the murder in Afghanistan of Ambassador Adolph (Spike) Dubs, one of the State Department's top diplomats. Vance took Dubs' murder and the invasion of the U.S. embassy in Tehran personally, explaining in part why he wanted to delay his departure for Mexico City.

TURKEY'S NO Just as U.S. diplomats were inEvans formed by the Turkish government that U.S. marines would not be welcome in Turkey for a possible rescue operation of Americans in Iran, the Pentagon leaked the news that Marines in HH-53 helicopters would soon leave for Turkey.

The result: another embarrassing setback for American diplomacy has damaged relations between the U.S. and Turkey. The Pentagon also spoke too soon several weeks ago when it announced that F-15 aircraft being flown as reassurance to Saudi Arabia would refuel in Spain. But Spain had not been notified, said no and made it

The results of the Turkish snafu may be more serious. Turkey never did object to the big rescue helicopters or to six C-130 personnel carriers being positioned at a U.S. base in Turkey. But the Turks felt U.S. Marines were provocative, and would hurt Turkish-Iranian relations. The Turkish consulate in Tabriz was burned down by Iranian nationalists re-

The deeper problem is the long congressional aid cutoff imposed on Turkey, insisted on by the Greek lobby. Although it is now ended, the arms embargo infuriated Turkey, one of the best cold war allies the U.S. has had. The stiff Turkish stand on the Marines could be a harbinger of worse times ahead between the two old allies.

HELMS VS. REAGAN

A simmering feud between two of the nation's leading conservative Republicans which started at the Kansas City convention in 1976 reached the boiling point recently when Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina refused to meet with presidential front-runner Ronald Reagan.

Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, Reagan's national campaign chairman in both 1976 and 1980, invited Helms to a meeting with Reagan during his recent visit to Capitol Hill. Helms' reply: If Reagan wants to see me, he can come to my office. There was no

Helms' complaint goes back to what started the trouble between them in the first place: Reagan's designation of liberal Republican Sen. Richard Schweiker as his 1976 running-mate, a brainchild of campaign manager John Sears. Helms had insisted that Sears be dropped from Reagan's 1980 campaign and was furious when told that Sears would have a key role.

It is unlikely that Helms will run for president himself or even endorse somebody else. But he may well be a favorite-son candidate in the North Carolina primary, posing potential difficulties for Reagan in a state where a 1976 upset victory kept him alive against Gerald Ford.

BUSH VS. REAGAN

Long-shot Republican presidential prospect George Bush lost - but only by the barest of margins - to frontrunning Ronald Reagan in trying to sign up a Reagan operative for the 1980 campaign. Bush offered a key nationwide organizing job (No. 2 in his organzation just below campaign manager James Baker) to David Keene, who organized the South for Reagan in 1976. Keene, a former national chairman of the Young Americans for Freedom and ex-aide to Spiro T. Agnew, would have improved Bush's credentials among conservatives. Instead, he accepted a lesser post in the Reagan campaign, probably as his emissary to Congress.

But Keene came close to taking the Bush job and turned it down only because of personal loyalty to Reagan. That he even considered leaving Reagan is the significant fact - reflecting more internal turmoil among Reagan aides and advisers than is generally realized.

Scientists said Thursday that Voyager was about 7.6 million miles from Jupiter, second only to the Sun in its dominance of the solar system, and closing at about 600,000 miles a day.

On March 5, the spacecraft, laden with cameras and instruments, will soar to within 173,000 miles of the 89,000-mile diameter planet.

Everything about Jupiter is oversized. Bigger than all the other planets combined, in comparison to

Pot smuggling bill approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A bill making it easier to prosecute marijuana smuggling cases along the Rio Grande has won final House approval.

The bill would enable prosecutors to obtain seek indictments in a county adjacent to the one where a smuggler was arrested as long as it was in the same judicial district.

Sponsors say many smuggling cases occur in counties whose populations are so sparse that it is hard to get people to serve on grand juries. As a result, they say, marijuana smuggling cases often go to multi-county federal grand juries.

The bill returns to the Senate for approval of a House amendment that requires a defendant's consent to prosecution in another county. A defendant who did not consent would be prosecuted by the U.S. Department of Justice in federal court.

Robert Parks, project manager, said there was a potential problem with the earth receiving stations. Antennas in California, Spain and Australia bring in the spacecraft signals.

In a test last month, scientists found that water from a rainstorm absorbed most of the frequency used by the prime spacecraft transmitter. If this happened during key transmission times, some valuable information could be lost, scientists said.

Another potential trouble area is the powerful radiation field surrounding Jupiter. In 1973 and 1974, two U.S. Pioneer spacecraft, the first to visit the planet, were almost disabled by surprisingly intense radiation trapped in Jupiter's powerful mag-

WASHINGTON (AP) cline in beef production. - Sharp new increases in consumer prices, particularly beef and veal, are giving the Carter administration a new case of economic indigestion.

Some government officials said they expected the Consumer Price pound. Index for January, due out later today, would show a startling 1 percent increase from December prices - perhaps even more.

A 1 percent monthly increase would translate to a 12 percent annual increase, but most analysts do not expect it to be that high over the course of a full year.

Most, but not all, of the latest increase is attributed to the soaring cost of beef, which is in short supply.

Gov. Clements proposes action

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - While Gov. Bill Clements' "austerity" budget proposes a state-wide 3.2 percent decrease from Legislative Budget Board recommendations for state support to colleges, The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is in line for a 15 percent increase.

The Clements budget calls for a two-year state appropriation of $10.6 million, compared to the LBB's proposed $9.2 million.

Both faculty salaries and organized research funding, two controversial areas frequently targeted as areas for budget cuts, enjoy small increases under the Clements budget.

Water revenues decline in January

BIG SPRING - Revenues of the Colorado River Municipal Water District were down and expenses were up, said district officials.

Revenues for January were $427,-466, or about $48,000 less than a year ago. Of this, $43,000 was in accrued interest on district funds which was paid in January of last year, following the 1977 refunding issue, a non recurring item, said officials.

Revenues from sale of water to cities stood at $276,453, up $10,000 because of an adjustment of rates. Revenues from water sales to oil companies stood at $135,595, down $14,000 because of substantially lower deliveries due to cutting these users off surface water, said officials.

Operating expenses for the month amounted to $281,498, up $23,875. Part of this was in higher energy costs of $134,235, up $8,700 due to a substantial rate increase Administrative and general expenses stood at $74,147, up $6,000 due in part to earlier payment of some expenses than a year ago and in bond handling charges. Also, there existed some increase in personnel costs.

Revenues of the district from sale of water were based on delivery of 87,000,000 gallons less water than in January 1978.

The problem for the house, which is the setting for the popular book, "The Amityville Hor- who have looked at it filming in New Jersey," ror," is too many curiosity seekers.

The Long Island house was where 23-year-old Ronald DeFeo killed his parents, two brothers and two sisters with a rifle. The book is the supposedly true account of the supernatural terror that befell the George Lutz family when they bought the house and moved in after DeFeo went to prison.

According to the story, soon to appear as a movie, the Lutz family was plagued with ghosts, one in the form of a pig, strange noises, foul smells, objects being teleported and even on one occasion Mrs. Lutz being levitated over her bed. A priest who tried to aid the Lutzes was the victim-of accidents and illness, the book alleged.

The Lutz family lived in the house only 28 days before leaving. After the bank repossessed the house it was purchased by James Cromarty and

Dear Ms. B.: You are increased risk of infection after a patient's spleen is removed? And if there is an increased risk, should the patient curtail his activities?

The answer to the first question is that there does appear to be a somewhat increased risk of infection in individuals whose spleen has been removed. Nevertheless, my answer to the second question is "no." Despite the increased risk, I feel a 19-year-old can continue to participate in all his normal activities.

If an infection does develop, however, he would be wise to obtain medical care earlier than he might otherwise have done. In the same vein, the physician might want to prescribe antibiotics earlier than he normally would. But the slight increase in susceptibility to infection would not warrant making an invalid of an otherwise healthy young man.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Should a patient with coronary disease be permitted to operate commercial vehicles, such as buses? What about private cars?-

Dear Tom: Patients with known coronary disease should not operate heavy vehicular equipment. It should be noted, however, that one year after an acute myocardial infarction, a survivor has a risk of less than one in 200 of having an attack sudden enough to interfere with his driving.

For those who drive their personal cars for brief periods of time, whether for work or pleasure, the likelihood of an attack while driving becomes remote. On the other hand, for a person who drives a bus eight hours a day, and has responsibility for the lives of his passengers, the risk of one in 200 is unacceptable. Heavy commercial driving should be restricted to individuals without such a risk factor.

Gasohol development questions: Is there an would be promoted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Dan Kubiak introduced a measure Thursday that would allow the state to promote the development of "gasahol" fuel in Texas.

"Missouri got the jump on Texas this week when they started selling gasahol there at the service station pumps," said Kubiak, D-Rockdale.

The measure would permit the state to make loans for production facilities for gasahol, or fuel derived from grains and other renewable resources.

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - My heart leaps up when I behold some junk mail in the pile.

Reading it usually makes my day. No one seems to understand me as well as the scribes who write those ingratiating letters asking me to take a free sample of their magazine, buy a condominium in Jonestown or help them sell soybean futures to my friends and neighbors.

"Dear Intelligent Reader," a letter began just the other day. Now how did they know that? They must have a computer some place monitoring library cards and book club membership lists.

I quickly dropped my copy of the Morning Telegraph, which requires a lot of intelligence, and read on.

IT WAS FROM A fellow named James H. Billington, director of the International Center for Scholars, which according to the letterhead, is located in the Smithsonian Institution building in Washington, D.C. Right off, Billington said he knew I was the type that had "probably absorbed and enjoyed more education, formal and informal, than most." recognized me as the type that "read widely and well," liked to keep his 'mind open to new ideas" and was "skeptical of easy answers.

He hit it right on the nail head. I wish I could have helped him out by subscribing to the Wilson Quarterly and joining that "well-mixed, brilliant, continually changing" company of scholars that currently includes "a former Japanese ambassador to the People's Republic of China, the editor of a famous women's magazine... and a philosophy professor from the Polish Academy of Science.

me to sit in with "historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr., futurist Alvin Toffler, Sounds a little bit like our bowling league. The trouble is the Atlas World Press Review that same morning had asked writer Isaac Asimov, scholar Jacques Barzun, newsmen Walter Cronkite and David Brinkley, White House foreign affiars adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and World Bank president Robert S. McNamara to "find out from firsthand sources what is really going on all over the world.

AND I WOULD HAVE, too, only it turned out that Fortune magazine was hunting all over the place for me.

"You're hard to find, Mr. Mulligan," their letter began. I was here all the time, but the doorbell hasn't been working since that last big snowstorm and I felt guilty about putting them to so much

"Locating individuals who have the income, position and business interests of Fortune subscribers — yet are not already Fortune subscribers themselves - is like trying to find a Phi Beta Kappa without a key, began William C. Taylor, the circulation director, a trifle petulantly I thought. But he soon calmed down and settled into the kind of suave, seductive pros that George Brent used to coo to Bette Davis:

"And now that I've found you I don't want to lose you. So I'm going to make you an offer you can scarcely refuse."

WHAT HE HAD IN MIND was a trial copy of the magazine. "Look it over," he pleaded. "That's all I'm asking. If it doesn't involve you — if that doesn't make you want to continue your subscription - then I was wrong about your needing Fortune. And my mistake won't cost you a cent. You'll be under no obligation to continue your subscription. That was awfully decent of him, but another letter warned against getting too smart for your britches. Right on the envelope it asked: "Do People Hold Your High IQ Against Well, since I picked the Steelers over the Cowboys by exactly 4 points, I had noticed some clamming up when I came into the barbershop, and in the Army they always put us college boys on K.P. Also, that mopey kid down at the gas station laughed a little too loudly and long when I pulled into the self-service aisle and didn't know they had hidden the fuel tank under the license plate. He's probably just bitter because the editors of Fortune never spent any time hunting for him, although his probation officer probably has.

I bet that punk kid would have changed his tune if he'd seen the letter I got just yesterday from the Shell Oil Company.

"Dear Valued Customer," it started out. "We feel strongly that our most valuable asset is you, and that's why we strive constantly to serve you in more ways.

UNFORTUNATELY, W. H. Cothern, Shell's manager of credit services, wasn't demonstrating his affection with a free set of radials or even a plastic snow scraper, but he was offering to let me in on their group hospital insurance plan. "In times like these," he confided, "I personally can't think of a better way for you to serve your family."

It's nice to know so many people writing letters are so concerned about me and the family. The noon mail brought a promise from Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine: "Twelve Months from today, you can have more money in the bank, be on a sounder financial footing, even without an increase in your family income."

All I had to do was read their magazine for the next 11 issues at the "special introductory rate of $7 (regular rate $12)."

Soviet Union candidates running' for election

The Washington Post

MOSCOW - On the stage in the ornate Moscow House of Architecture's upstairs meeting hall, a phalanx of soberly dressed men and women listened distractedly while a hero of socialist labor told how his Moscow locomotive station saved more than 10,000 kilovolts of electricity in 1978.

He talked of plans to exceed the 1979 plan and how some workers had dedicated themselves to achieving the goals of the current five-year plan by April 22, 1980, the 110th Anniversary of the birth of Lenin.

An audience of perhaps 300 Moscow citizens, sitting beneath placards bearing the somber official photos of Leonid Brezhnev and his Kremlin colleagues, listened attentively, barely listened or dozed through the cascade of statistics from the hero before them. The man was Sergei Yatskov, a red-faced, 52-year-old locomotive engineer, who as the nominee of the Bolshevik Candy Factory and other enterprises and collectives in his part of the city, is a freshman candidate for the Supreme Soviet, the U.S.S.R.'s rubber-stamp parliament. This is national election year here and along with Brezhnev and his leadership, Yatskov and more than 1,500 other workers, factory hands and intellectuals are "running" for fiveyear terms.

LIKE THE OTHERS, Yatskov, despite his relative obscurity, doesn't have to run very hard. In fact, like the politicians of any powerful, superbly funded, and pervasive political apparatus, Yatskov and the others could walk, crawl, or perhaps sleep through their campaigns and still wind up with enough votes to win.

He is the Communist Party's only candidate from his election district for the deputy's seat in the Soviet of the Union, one of two houses in the Supreme Soviet, which usually meets twice a year for a series of unanimous votes approving the policies of the party leadership.

Yatskov's district, called Krasnaya-Presinsky, includes about 250,-000 of Moscow's 8 million citizens, although among the current 1,517 members of the Supreme Soviet there are more than 400 who are not Communist Party members, none of the candidates or their predecessors ever had to run against an opponent for election.

Differences of opinion within the party cadres over nominees seldom surface. The candidates are chosen, continued or dropped from office in a process that occurs out of sight of the public, except in rare cases.

Yatskov indicated in an interview, for example, that he had no idea why his predecessor in the deputy's job, a woman from a weaving enterprise, had been withdrawn.

IN HIS SPEECH TO THE voters. who attended by invitation only, he asserted he would "apply all my knowledge and strength to justify your support.... The whole pulse of the party is aimed at developing economic power. We welcome the election at the highest possible levels of our

He told how vast sums had been used for public services in recent times in the district, and boasted that "the best traditions of the working class are developed at our locomotive station. The Communist party has created all the necessary conditions for the work of the Soviet people. Do everything to fulfill your civic duty."

There was applause when he mentioned Brezhnev's name and applause at the end of his 20-minute speech, one of about five similar speechs he will read to voter gatherings in the days between now and the March 4 elec-

Agreement likely on disability law

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration and key congressmen appear in basic agreement on proposals to add new work incentives to the federal disability insurance program.

Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, outlined President Carter's plan Thursday and said he saw no serious differences between it and congressional proposals.

Carter's bill, by limiting disability benefits to about 80 percent of a worker's normal pay, is designed to prevent recipients from receiving more in benefits than they would while working and paying taxes. Califano said about 6 percent of disability recepients fall into this category.

Testifying before the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, Califano said the current disability program also ends cash and medical benefits too quickly when a recipient tries to return to work. He said that further discourages workers from leaving the disability rolls.

Members of the subcommittee generally supported the work incentive proposals, and its chairman, Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, who has sponsored a similar bill, predicted a compromise measure will be

The major criticism of the administration's plan came from a consultant and several subcommittee members who said the 80 percent cap would be unfair to low-income workers.

The consultant, Robert J. Myers, said that under the administration's plan a disabled worker with a $4,000-a-year income would receive a lower percentage of his normal after-tax earnings than would many higher-paid workers. Myers proposed a formula that would, in effect, scale benefits to give the lowest-paid worker a higher share of his after-tax earnings than higher-paid workers would receive. Califano said he had no objections to Myers' approach although adding that he favored helping low-income, disabled workers through the supplemental security income program, which would provide immediate payments and medical coverage.

Under the disability program, a worker often must wait six months to receive benefits and 24 months to qualify for Medicare or Medicaid, the secretary

"There was no intent of weighing the proposal against the lowest income brackets," he said. The administration's proposal would also:

-Make the number of years a worker can exclude in computing disability benefits proportionate with his age. The current flat five-year exclusion of lowest income years helps younger workers and discriminates against older ones, Califano said. -Provide a 12-month "safety net" for employees who have returned to work for a year. Although benefits would still be stopped after the first year on a new job, the payments would automatically resume if a worker was forced to leave his job during the next 12 months. -Extend medical benefits an additional three years after a disabled worker returns to work.

Benefits now end after one year, discouraging some people from trying to return to the work force, Califano said. -Eliminate a second 24-month waiting period for disabled worker to qualify for Medicare or Medicaid if he returns to work but is disabled again within

FUNKY WINKERBEAN

BIOLOGY II -

Biology Two is for people who managed to pass Biology One and don't know how to quit when they're ahead. You'll do things like cutting up worms to find their nervous systems, which is nearly impossible. Face it, have you ever seen a worm with the shakes? Besides, there's a perfectly good picture of one in your book! And speaking of pictures, for those with other interests, the good stuff is on page ninety-eight, if page ninety-eight is still in your book.

Thrift is not paying off for small saver

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Thrift has been so esteemed by society that there exists hardly a person who cannot recall an adage to honor it less quickly than they can fetch a penny from their pocket.

Those maxims need not be repeated — just their message, that God and thrift are synonymous, and that great blessings are bestowed on those who save their pennies. Everyone knows they grew into dol-The child's penny savings bank became Americana. And there exist even today great savings institutions that were founded on the nickels and dimes of workers. No coin was too small. Didn't pennies become dollars? They did, but they usually don't anymore. If you put $1 into a savings account last year, inflation left you with 97 cents worth of purchasing power.

Ben Franklin might have been right when he said, "A penny saved is two pence clear." It wasn't so last year. Had the dollar been spent, it might have purchased more. In postponing buying, the saver

The reason: Passbook savings at savings banks and savings and loans institutions, called thrift institutions, earned 5.25 percent last year, and they pay the same this year too. Consumer price inflation was 9 percent.

It is true that savers could have earned more than 8 percent had they agreed to leave funds on deposit for years. And more than 9 percent if they had $10,000 to tie up for six months. But those are special The fact is that thrift, which helped supply the capital that built America, has not been paying off for many Americans, the small saver especially.

Even U.S. Savings Bonds cost them dearly last Adding to the losses, and to their sense of outrage, is the equally destructive practice of taxing the illusion of profit. There were no profits; inflation took them. But savers still paid taxes on interest. Now the Carter administration is considering a change in banking regulations that might lead to some improvement. The biggest change would be to bend or break Regulation Q, little known but all-pow-'Q" is a Federal Reserve Board regulation setting the interest that commercial banks may pay on savings deposits. It has its equivalent at the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings Interest rates on savings, therefore, are not free to float to the skies, as they are on the commercial deposits made by corporations. They are set, arbitrarily. And they haven't changed since 1973. But the marketplace has. Inflation has accelerated, and now seems likely to remain at levels once believed intolerable. And the longer it remains at those rates, the more will small savings evaporate. There is a reason, of course, for attempting to keep consumer rates low, and it appears perfectly logical. If thrift institutions were free to compete by offering high interest on savings, for example, wouldn't they be compelled also to charge more for the money they No question, they would. And among those higher rates would be those for home mortgages. If home ownership were discouraged, it is generally felt, damage to the economy would be intolerable. But damage to savers has also become intolerable and the Treasury Department therefore has released proposed changes on which it agrees "there is substantial disagreement." Among the proposals is one to permit interest rates to fluctuate on savings certificates of less than four years maturity, and eliminate them on those of more than four years. In addition, the minimum denomination on those six-month savings certificates, now paying more than 10 percent, would be lowered from $10,000 to $5,000. That change would take place two years

If the proposals are agreed on, will they help the smaller saver? Yes, but none too soon. The thrifty, whose savings for a rainy day help finance the country, have been out in the rain a long time.

Marines concerned about guardian role

WASHINGTON (AP) - The over-running of the U.S. embassy in Iran last week has raised concerns in the Marine Corps about its role as guardian of U.S. diplomatic missions.

The Iranian arrest of a wounded Marine guard, Sgt. Kenneth Kraus of Lansdale, Pa., at a civilian hospital sharpened those concerns even though Kraus was released under U.S. pressure. Saying the proper role of the Marine security guard is a touchy and difficult issue, a veteran Marine officer said, "We are concerned about it."

Marine sources, speaking anonymously, indicated they are disturbed because the 19 guards at the Tehran embassy were only lightly armed despite an atmosphere of spreading chaos and hostility to Americans in Iran. One source noted that the Marine guard detachments, totaling about 1,100 specially trained noncommissioned officers, are subject to rules laid down by more than 100 civilian ambassadors, "each of whom has his own ideas" about the security of their

One of the uncertainties they mentioned is whether the Marine guard is intended to discourage attacks on embassies or consulates.

"If we let this kind of thing happen, where is the deterrent value of the security guard?" questioned a Another officer said the Marine security detach-

As the situation in Iran deteriorated earlier this month, Ambassador William Sullivan reportedly asked for Marine reinforcements to stand by at a base near Iran in case they were needed in Tehran. State officials just scratching surface on trail of radium

DENVER (AP) — State health officials warn they have just scratched the surface in efforts to trace a potentially deadly trail of radium, produced in Colorado during the early 1900s and buried there and in other states at long-forgotten radioactive dump

The department's investigation was broadened Thursday to include the western slope of the Rocky Mountains, the Chicago metropolitan area and several towns in Pennsylvania, said Paul Smith, regional director of radiation programs for the Environmental Protection Agency.

"The machinery is just getting into action," said Smith. "We have done considerable more literature research and alerted other areas potentially in-

State health department investigators are also examining water tables under all 14 of the dump sites found so far in Denver and Boulder, Colo., and are trying to track down private drinking-water wells near those dumps, said Jim Montgomery, chief of the health department's radiation control section.

In addition, the department has suggested surveying both banks of the South Platte River west of Denver, into which the city's booming radium industry apparently dumped large amounts of radium between 1915 and 1927, Montgomery said.

Hundreds of tons of Colorado uranium, from which radium is produced, were shipped to a site in Chicago, which has still not been pinpointed, and to Cannonsburg and Lansdowne, Pa., during a period from 1915 to 1920.

In Colorado, there has so far been no public danger of exposure to high levels of gamma radiation, which has been associated with leukemia, said Dr. Stan Ferguson, director of the Health Department's epidemiological and disease control division.

But Ferguson said experts are completely in the dark on the effects of small doses of gamma rays and other radiation. "There are just no data that address that concern," he said. Examinations of five employees of the Robinson Brick and Tile Co. indicated no ingested or inhaled gamma-ray contamination, said Ferguson.

It was the discovery last week of a radioactive dump under the Robinson plant that spurred the intensive health department investigation of a list of possible dumps that Montgomery said now includes more than 40 sites across the nation. Sixteen sites were eliminated as radiation sources.

Montgomery said his agency's plans include monitoring gamma rays at all confirmed sites for the next 30 days to pinpoint their strength and monitoring alpha particles produced by radon, a gas created by the molecular decomposition of radium.

In the heyday of the radium-processing industry in the early 1900s, the element was not considered hazardous. It was thought to be a medical panacea and was incorporated into a variety of products, including hypodermic needles and liquid medi-

The National Radium Institute built a radium mill at what is now the Robinson site on a federal contract inspired by the fear that World War I would create a worldwide radium shortage, Montgomery said.

Killer says he invented demons

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — For months he stalked a terrified city as the Son of Sam, the .44-caliber killer, eager to satisfy the bloodthirsty desires of his demanding demons and talking dogs.

Now, 1½ years after the last of his brutal attacks in which he killed six persons and wounded seven, a calm, coherent, smiling and polite David Berkowitz says he made it all up.

"I've let people step on me just once too often and now I've had enough. It's time for the truth to come out — not a story about demons, talking dogs and legions of Satan's henchmen," Berkowitz said Thursday in his first prison interview. He said it was also his last interview. He said the demon story was invented by his "wild imagination so as to find some form of justification for my criminal acts against society. Berkowitz said he has no substitute reason for the killings, but he added that he no longer has the urge to kill. "Whatever it is has left me. I've mellowed," he said. Berkowitz said he granted the 66-minute interview to The Associated Press, The New York Times and Newsday after reading - with displeasure - an AP story concerning a book-movie deal about his life being put together by McGraw-Hill Inc. The 25-year-old curly-haired killer - inmate number 78-A-1976 - said he wanted people to know the truth behind his claim he was commanded to kill by demons who spoke to him through a neighbor's dog. He said people might be discouraged from buying the book or watching the movie once they learned he had lied.

The interview in a small meeting room on the grounds of the New York State Correctional Facility at Attica was casual. Hands were shaken and a microphone was clipped to Berkowitz's gray corduroy shirt to record his remarks, then the confessed killer explained to the reporters why he had called the meeting.

Berkowitz said the book deal sounded as though "greedy vultures" — including his former lawyers and a court-appointed conservator who arranged the publishing pact - were out to make money at the expense of the families of his victims.

Under state law, profits from such books go to the victims of a crime, after expenses paid to lawyers and publishing agents. It is these expenses which Berkowitz says he is disturbed about.

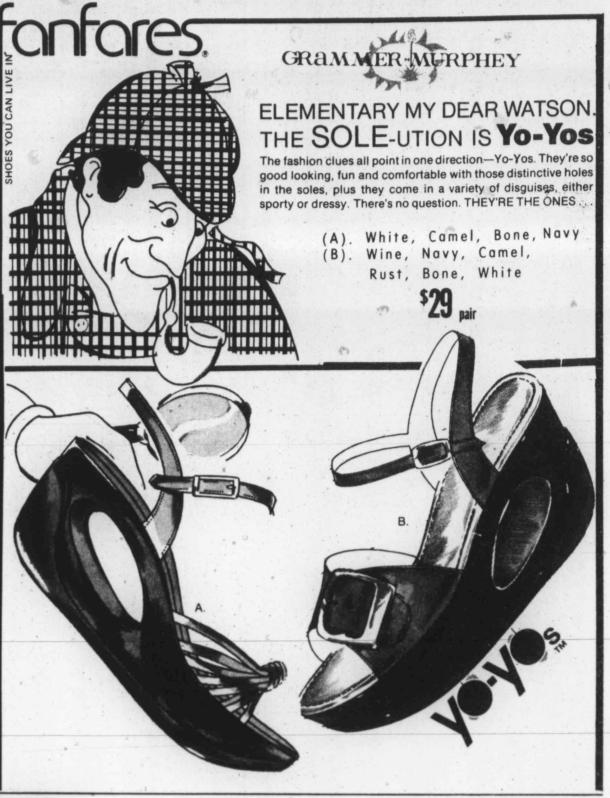

Berkowitz said he wrote McGraw-Hill to protest the proposedbook, saying: "I cannot stop you from publishing your 'Hollywood' book filled with all the outrageousness and absurdity that usally goes with mass killer and supernatural stories. However, I will tell you right now that I will do everything in my power to see that your multimillion dollar venture becomes a flop."

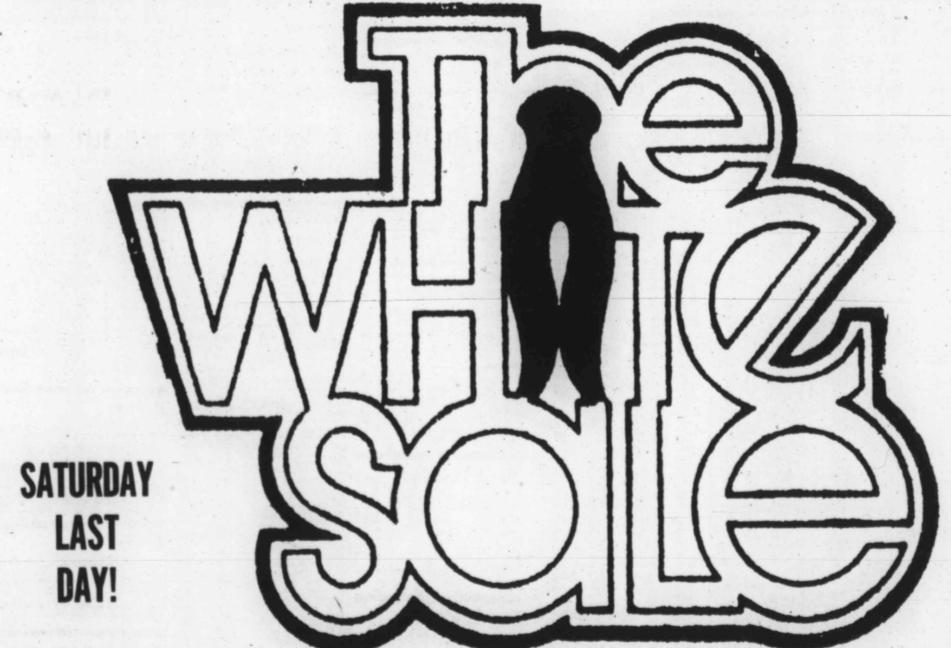

McGraw-Hill officials said they had not yet re-ceived the letter but noted that their contract was with author Lawrence David Klausner, not Berbefore Circuit Court Judge Richard J. Fitz-

With that said, Berkowitz spent the rest of the session posing for photographs, joking about his prison job as a porter and discussing a variety of topics. When it was over, he asked the reporters to send copies of their stories to him.

Berkowitz, who is segregated from other prisoners at Attica, said he misses only two things from the outside world: "One is visiting my family, playing with my nieces and things. And the other is driving my car. Those are the only two things I miss.'

Sentenced to serve 315 years, Berkowitz will be 54 when he becomes eligible for parole. He says his only future plans are to study yoga and astral projection and "just exist until the Angel of Death greets

McGovern says burgers nutritious

By MARIAN BURROS The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern now believes that "On the whole, quick foods are a nutritious addition to a balanced died.'

McGovern's remarks, at the first of three hearings he is holding on food labeling, came as a surprise to many people. Michael Jacobson, director of the Washington-based Center for Science in the Public Interest is "deeply troubled" by them. In a letter sent to the senator this week, Jacobson expressed dismay that "one of the nation's most astute and ardent advocates of good nutrition endorsed the food served at fast food and other franchised restaurants." He urged McGovern "to correct misinterpretations left by your recent state-

In an interview last week, McGovern explained his position: "There's nothing wrong with eating a hamburger or a piece of chicken," he said. "It's no violation of dietary goals to make an occasional trip.' Nobody's recommending that you eat there every day. But it's not correct to say what they're serving is junk." Exactly what is served at fast food restaurants is unknown, partly because of widespread confusion over nutritional labeling regulations as they apply to restaurants. Under a 1973 law, manufacturers who make nutrition claims for their products must provide nutrition labeling. And those labels must follow a specified format for calories, carbohydrates, fat, vitamins and min-

She has had a part in a Hollywood movie and now she is in a dilemma on whether to pursue a career in motion pictures or not. Paula Kay Baldwin of Santa Fe, N.M., formerly of Snyder, and daughter of Bill Baldwin of Midland, was in the Tall City recently to visit her father and his soon wife-to-be, Mavis West. Her mother, Jackie Baldwin, still calls Snyder home.

She is just stepping back from the theater and is taking a look at it. "You have to put up with an awful lot."

But the pay isn't something to scoff at."I was paid $225 a day just to wait until they got ready to shoot my scene," which took less than a hour to shoot.

Miss Baldwin, a member of the Greer Garson Repertory Company at Santa Fe, played the part of a teenage hippie in the movie "Convoy," which starred Kris Kristofferson and Ali

"I don't know if I will continue in acting. There are a lot of things I want to do before I die. Maybe I will be a vet," said Paula, who studied acting with Elaine Lambert in Snyder.

She has done a couple of shows this year and plans to do the musical "The Boyfriend" this spring.

Her career really began with dancing lessons at the age of 5. "I was one of those hyperactive kids. They (my parents) didn't know what to do with me, so they gave me dancing lessons to keep me occupied."

She has been a ballet dancer for 15 years and did the choreography for A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." She also acted in the play at the repertory company. Paula fell into acting by accident at Western Texas College at Snyder, where she was cast as Peppermint Pattie in "Charlie Brown" and did the choreography for "The Fantastiks." One year at Western Texas she was

The myth of sexual decline in later life has its origins in our Puritanical taboos, according to Dr. Pfeiffer. "While many have managed to abandon these taboos in their attitude towards young people -- admitting that sex is a significant means of expression - they still tend to apply the taboos to the elderly. Some people still feel uncomfortable with the notion that their grandparents and parents can enjoy sex. This attitude also affects older people who may feel guilty because they still have sexual

Men who believe their sex life is waning are probably wishing the phenomenon upon themselves because they fear the end of life is near; they equate this end with the cessation of sexual activity. > Q. - I will soon be putting up paneling in a utility room which has concrete block walls. I have been reading instructions on how to handle this. One magazine says to attach furring strips directly to the wall. Another source, a book, says that 2-by-2 lumber should first be nailed with concrete nails and that the furring strips should be attached to the lumber. Which is correct?

> A. - It depends on the condition of the wall. If it is reasonably even, only the furring strips are necessary. If the wall is irregular and especially if horizontal furring is required, then attach 2-by-2s to the wall vertically and install horizontal strips over them. However you lay out the wood preliminary to the installation of the panels, use wood shims to level off surfaces when necessary.

Q. — Where can I get information about building a house made of logs sort of an oversized log cabin?

A. — Every bookstore carries one or more books on that subject. Your library also probably has a few. One of the latest books, "How to Build Your Own Log Home" is by S. Blackwell Duncan (Tab Books).

Q. - For years we have kept our luggage in the basement of our house. We never had any trouble until a heavy storm caused water to enter our basement. A few weeks later, after we had cleaned out the basement, we discovered that mold had grown on the inside of two of the suitcases. We tried without success to rid the luggage of the mold. Someone suggested that we take the bags to a dry cleaning store, which we did. When we got the luggage back a week later, it seemed to be perfect and we were well satisfied, but a few weeks after that, the same trouble occurred. Can we hold the cleaning store responsible?

A. - You can ask the cleaner what might have happened, but you would not have much of a case because the same conditions that caused the mold in the first place would cause it again. In short, even if the cleaning establishment killed every bit of mold in the two suitcases, new mold would grow if the bags were left in a damp location. You surely didn't put the luggage back in the basement, did

Mrs. Alan Leeper presented a program on the Tarahumara Indians of Copper Canyon, Mexico, at the recent meeting of the Woman's Wednesday

The group met in the Woman's Club parlor.

Mrs. Leeper described the Indians as "runners" who have great stamina and can run down a deer in hunting. They are very primitive, she said, and subsist on corn, grain and the game they hunt.

Copper Canyon is comparable in land description to the Grand Canyon, Mrs. Leeper added.

Mrs. John Terry presided. Two uests were introduced, including Virginia Kirkpatrick and Estelle Repp. Two new members, Mrs. Ross Bozeman and Mrs. L. E. Gaston, were ganization.

Mrs. German announced that the Woman's Club had been able to pay off the parking lot debt.

Hostesses for the tea hour were Mrs. John Terry and Mrs. C. W. Chancellor. The serving table was centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthymums and porcelain birds. Twenty members attended.

Free of censorship, poster artists of Poland among world leaders

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Almost and you'll look and you'll probably anything goes in Polish poster art: read." sex, graffiti, surrealism. Unencumbered by the censorship typical of most Communist countries, Poles have become world leaders in the

"They grab you," said Professor Norman Lundin, director of painting at the University of Washington in Seattle, who was in the Soviet bloc to study artistic freedom. "You'll stop Polish artists have consistently dominated international poster competitions, having won prizes in Paris as early as between World War I and World War II.

"The art of the poster originated in the ateliers of the great Polish painters of the end of the 19th century,' said art historian Janina Fijalkowska, curator of Warsaw's poster muse-

She said Polish poster art had flourished since World War II because of a big demand for cultural advertis-

In other Communist countries, posters are primarily used to promote the party line. Lettering is often unimaginative and block-shaped, and workers are represented in the stiff, socialist-realism style of muscular men and amply bosomed women, usually well-clothed.

In Poland it's left to the artist to choose the most effective way to attract attention for the event being advertised, even if it means using a nude in the "decadent" art-nouveau

"For every premiere of a theater production or an opera, for every movie, for every circus, there is at least one poster," Dr. Fijalkowska told The Associated Press. "Sometimes there are two or three for one

She said these state-owned enterprises commission the posters from free-lance artists, who use their own imagination to portray the subject.

"There is no interference," she said. "If the customer doesn't like a poster, he may have another done. But every poster that is submitted is printed and displayed.

"Of course, the customer knows what each artist does best." In contrast, Lundin said, he found on a trip to the Soviet Union, "It seems that the government does not care what the artists produce, but unless it is officially approved, they cannot exhibit in the U.S.S.R."

Among posters to be seen along the streets and in other public places in Warsaw recently were locally designed advertisements for two American films, "New York, New York" and "A Bridge Too Far."

Polish posters range from the funny to the macabre.

It is four miles south of Seagraves and 1,980 feet fromnorth and 1,300 feet from east lines of section 112, block G, WTRR survey.

Contract depth is 13,530 feet. The field discovery is Shell No. 1 Texas Commerce Bank which was completed in 1978.

The stepout is Shell No. 2 Texas Commerce Bank.

The new well is Belco Petroleum Inc., of Midland No. 4-2 Souhteast Seminole San Andres Unit, two miles southeast of Seminole in the Seminole, Southeast (San Andres) field.

The operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 33 barrels of 29.5-gravity oil and 35 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,-276 to 5,294 feet after a 4,500-gallon acid treatment.

The gas-oil ratio is 1,364-1. Total depth is 5,485 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

The well was drilled 500 feet from north and 860 feet from west lines of section 16, block C-44, psl survey. It is 1/2 mile north of other produc-

DOE updates ration system

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department announced Thursday it is updating the basis of its allocation system in case gasoline shortages develop from the loss of Iranian oil production.

The department did not predict shortages, but said there was a "serious possibility that gasoline supplies will in general be inadequate to meet total demand and supplies will have to be allocated ...

The department's action involves possible limits on the amounts of gasoline made available by refiners and distributors to service stations, but will not entail gasoline rationing at

The department said some refiners have indicated they might soon have to allocate gasoline instead of selling distributors all they want. This would allow a buildup of large inventories for the summer driving season.

The order, issued Thursday, activated a limited portion of the department's standby allocation plans.

Gaines unit approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - An application of Knox Industries Inc., Midland, to operate two oil fields in Gaines County as a unit and to start a secondary recovery program has been approved, the Texas Railroad Commission said Thursday.

The order calls for the unitization of the Robertson and Robertson, North (Clear Fork 7100) fields, for an expected recovery of an additional 680,-000 barrels of oil as a result of waterflooding. Leases in the unit have produced nearly 1.3 million barrels of oil

Disco in America: An $8 billion crazy business

By ALEXANDER AUERBACH The Los Angeles Times

Disco. Once the chic entertainment of European trendsetters, Hollywood celebrities and New York gays. Poundingly sensual music and extravagant costumes, all hidden behind the guarded doors of private

Many of those discotheques are still around, but disco has changed. America has popularized, merchandised, sanitized and even franchised

Nebraska farmers go to discos after a hard day on the tractor. Sears, Roebuck and Co. and J.C. Penney sell disco gear. A "Disco Olympics" will jam 40,000 bodies into the New Orleans Superdome on Memorial Day, and entrepreneurs are negotiating to open a disco at the other Olympics, in Moscow.

By one estimate - which may be inaccurate, since statistics are scarce - there are about 20,000 discos in the United States, from the exclusive Studio 54 in New York and Moody's in Santa Monica, Calif., to a small Chinese restaurant in Washington, D.C., that has an old phonograph and a scrawled sign in the window, "Disco On Saturday.'

This new industry is built around a peppy, dance-oriented style of music that stresses a brightly orchestrated, high-stepping beat. Lyrics and melodies tend to be repetitive, even mechanical, so as not to distract from

THE POPULARITY OF disco, brought to the attention of Middle America by the film and soundtrack album of "Saturday Night Fever," has not deflated the eccentricity of its devotees Disco Sally, the 78-year-old New Yorker who says she has about three good years left and wants to end them dancing, has challenged Washington's Disco Granny to a dance contest. Granny, 81, makes the rounds of Tramp's and other posh D.C. clubs, not the Chinese restaurant.

Film stars still pop into Fred Segal's in West Hollywood for a $60 pair of skintight Spandex pants in hot pink, or a see-through silk blouse, stopping to dab on some glittery body makeup at the cosmetics counter.

Other companies do a booming business in shoes that have flashing, battery-operated lights in their acrylic heels, or illuminated dance floors for the home.

But an industry cannot survive on just the chic and the bizarre, and disco has become an industry. By the same unscientific estimates that led to the count of 20,000 discos, the total amount that Americans are spending in energetic release under flashing lights is about $8 billion a year.

that is, turning it into a hit — is a finely calculated business. Tom Hayden, at 25 a veteran record promoter who heads his own promotion company, says "hot records usually start off in gay discos," so it is to the deejays at those discos that new records are sent first.

Usually they are sent to the deejays' homes, because many discos don't open until 6 p.m. or later, and some are only open four days a week.

'The straight market seems reluctant to dance to a hot new record, preferring to wait until they have heard it on the radio or in the club a few times and are familiar with it. Gays are open to new sounds," Hay-

...but disco has changed. America has popularized, merchandised, sanitized and even franchised disco.

THE NUMBERS ARE rough because the industry is so young. Billboard magazine, a record industry trade paper, this year switched its annual "Disco Forum" convention and trade show to a semi-annual schedule to keep up with the explosive Bill Wardlow, who runs the conventions and covers disco for Billboard, says the $8 billion is his estimate, and that is only for the admissions, food and beverage sale in discos. Clothing, records, sound and lighting equipment sales are all additional sources of revenue. Disco accounts for 10 percent to 20 percent of total record sales, which last year were close to $4 billion, Wardlow said. But he thinks it's just a beginning.

'Only a few large radio stations have a disco format, although more are switching over from rock or other formats all the time," he says. As they do, more listeners will buy disco albums or $3.98, 12-inch singles. 'About 40 percent of Billboard's Hot 100 (list of best-selling records) is disco now," he said. "In a year it will be 60 percent."

Record sales are a good indication of disco's popularity, because main disco hits have sold 100,000 to 250,000 copies without receiving airplay. Disc jockeys in discos played the tunes, usually without announcing the titles. but fans found out the names and artists and bought them, often with no other promotion.

"BREAKING" A DISCO record -

In New York, Los Angeles and a few other cities, there are a relative handful of discos that are regarded as gay clubs, although most have some straight clientele as well.

To preserve the sexual orientation of the club, some gay discos screen customers at the door.

IF TOO MANY HETEROSEXUAL couples show up, door atendants may turn away all women wearing opentoed shoes, claiming that the footwear would be dangerous if a dancer dropped a beverage glass. Since disco fashion calls for open-toed shoes, that effectively screens out all mixed cou-

But most disco-goers need not fear that kind of inspection. Most discos are open to anyone willing to pay the cover charge, if there is one, or to buy a drink. And that's a lot of discos: if your neighborhood has a McDonald's, Texan dies after chances are it has a disco, too, or soon will have one.

Several companies are setting up franchises to tap the expanding market. A firm called 2001 Clubs of America, in Bridgeville, Pa., will turn a willing partner into a disco club oper- man on trial for murder ator for a fee of $35,000 plus 6 percent of the gross.

Depending on the size of the club, which might include a dining room and bar as well as a ballroom, the investment is from $200,000 to $750,-000, Westbrook said. (Clubs have opened for much less, and some are rumored to have cost in the mil-

The Disco Works is taking a slightly different route. A subsidiary of Accurate Sound International of Redwood City, Calif., a supplier of recording studio equipment, The Disco Works provides expertise for a fee but doesn't put its name on the disco.

RONALD M. NEWDOLL, president of Accurate Sound, says a typical disco has about $50,000 worth of equipment split about equally between sound gear and special light-

Two sets of amplifiers usually are required, one for low frequencies, the other for the rest of the sound spectrum, with power output of 200 to 500 watts. Four large speaker units complete the typical layout, Newdoll

Lighting equipment includes floodlights, spotlights, revolving mirror balls, colored filters, strobes and even low-powered lasers (which require special licensing in some cities). Microcomputers sometimes are used to control the lighting systems.

However, opening a disco is not an automatic route to fortune. Joe Hanna, co-owner of Pal Joey's, a Palm Springs restaurant and disco, says "a disco by itself can be very short-lived.

"Most people don't go out dancing until 8 or 9 at night, and in California you have to close at 2 a.m. if you serve liquor. So you have to make it all in those few hours." Pal Joey's operates as a regular restaurant until 10 p.m., when tables are pulled off the dance floor and the deejay goes to work.

Palm Springs Calif., has a large population of senior citizens, and Hanna says that many of those on the dance floor at closing time are more than old enough to be John Travolta's

Other disco operators say that, except for the most exclusive clubs, the age span of their clientele is extremely broad. They think that helps to explain the broad success of disco, and it is some insurance that it won't fade away.

"DISCO IS FOR ALL age groups," Billboard's Wardlow said. "Rock wasn't. Disco is mainly for the 18-to-35 group, but there are teen discos, even kiddie discos with soft drinks, and senior citizen discos. The music hasn't divided parents and children, as previous popular music did."

At one extreme, Lawrence Welk has recorded disco tunes, and his accordion player, Myron Floren released an album, "Disco Polka," for those who like to boogie to "I Want a Girl Like the Girl..."

A&P-Borden milk deal not antitrust violation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the A&P supermarket chain did not violate federal antitrust law in a 1965 agreement on milk sales with Borden,

The court's decision, reached by a 7-1 vote, appeared to give big-volume buyers broad, new leeway in their attempts to drive down the prices they pay.

The ruling overturned a Federal Trade Commission victory won in a federal appeals court, and releases A&P from possible FTC sanctions. In writing for the court, Justice

Potter Stewart said the lower court's finding that A&P had violated a section of the Robinson-Patman Act by receiving unlawful price discrimination was wrong.

Stewart's opinion said a buyer cannot be guilty of violating the Robinson-Patman antitrust law when the seller's price offer was made to meet competition.

Any inducement short of misrepresentation that the buyer makes to gain such a price is legal as long as the seller can raise a legitimate meeting-competition defense, Thursday's decision said. A&P and Borden entered into an agreement 14 years ago under which Borden supplied A&P with milk bearing the A&P label for some 200 Chicago-area stores in Illinois and Indi-The agreement resulted from

A&P's effort to save money by switching from the sale of "brand label" milk to its own "private

A&P asked Borden to submit a price offer for supplying the milk, and initially was told by Borden that the switch could save A&P $410,000 a year in dairy product costs.

A&P was not satisfied with the offer, and solicited offers from other dairies. A Borden competitor, Bowman Dairy, submitted a bid it said would save A&P $737,000 in annual dairy product costs.

Borden was contacted by an A&P buyer and told that its bid was "not even in the ball park." Not wanting to lose A&P's sizeable account, Borden submitted a second bid - one estimated to save A&P $820,000 a year.

A&P accepted that bid. The FTC filed a complaint against A&P in 1971. The complaint charged the supermarket chain with violating Robinson-Patman by inducing and receiving price discriminations and with violating other laws.

Eventually, however, all charges but the Robinson-Patman violation allegation were dropped.

Justice Thurgood Marshall voted to uphold the ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that A&P had violated the law. Justice John Paul Stevens did not participate in deciding the case.

Town rejects grant because of 'strings'

STAFFORD, Texas (AP) - The Stafford City Council has decided the strings attached to a federal grant would cost more than the grant.

The council turned down Wednesday a $2,800 street sign replacement

"This is a classic example of getting a little bit from the federal government and ending up spending more than you get," Mayor Leonard Scarcella said.

In view of the numerous Robinson

It was magic work, starting when the screen showed the two giant eggs floating on a lake. You heard gunfire, then saw the eggs exploding and two clowns treading water amid egg-shell fragments.

Many Customers Think It's Just Sound Business To Buy A Used Car.

Year in and year out, we have certain steady customers who buy nothing but used cars.

To them, it makes good business sense to buy a good used car. In many cases, aside from the mileage...the only difference between a new car and a late model used car is the price! And if you'd like to pay hundreds of dollars less, we'll be glad to show you how. Here are just a few examples:

The victory boosted the Westerners to 14-2 for conference and 26-3 for the year and mathematically clinched the title they win as regularly as the Montreal Canadiens win the NHL.

The loss left Midland with a 10-6 record, leaving the Chaps tied for third place in the standings. Odessa College climbed to second by virtue of its 67-37 win over winless Clarendon College, a game that was called with 10 minutes remaining to play. Odessa is 10-5 for the season.

Stewart converted a free throw and the Chaps countered with a Young lay up on a feed from Cullen Mayfield, a 25-foot jumper by Mayfield and Tim Shelby's basket for a 22-14 lead with eight minutes left in the half.

Bulldogs battle Dunbar

ABILENE — The Midland skyline may be in for an abrupt change if the Midland High Bulldogs can pull off a Region I basketball championship here today and Saturday at the Taylor County Coliseum.

There could be two new domes in town if the Purple Pack can pull out a title. It seems that MHS head cage boss Don Humphrey and assistant coach Eddie Shirley made a promise to a couple of the Bulldogs before the season ever started. That promise will have to be fulfilled at a pep rally next week if the 'Dogs can accomplish their goal of winning the regional tournament. And it is the domes of Humphrey and Shirley that will undergo the change.

"WALTER BRYSON and Charles Johnson made a deal

Coach Humphrey would don an Afro hairdo if the team went to the state tournament this year. It's all written down on a piece of paper, and we're going through with it if the team responds to the challenge. I could be 'Slick Shirley' by this time next week."

Charles Johnson, Midland 6foot-5 senior forward, affirmed the deal. "Yea, they made the deal, and they're going to have to do it too because we are going to win it. I would really like to see that.'

But the Bulldogs will have to take first things first, and first is Fort Worth Dunbar, one of the meanest kids alive in the state of

"Ken West, who is the head coach at Richland, has been a good friend of mine for a long time. His team lost to Dunbar in bi-district (84-59), but he feels that they can be beat. His team could not line up with them from a height standpoint. Dunbar likes to run and gun and they don't like to go against a solid pattern offense. We've worked on both styles of play this week, and I think we will be ready to go after Dunbar," Humphrey stated Wednesday.

Midland Lee girls down Midland to capture 5-4A basketball title

downed the Midland High girls, 47-32 before more than 1,500 fans in Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus Thursday night to move into the Class AAAA state playoffs for the second consecutive year in a row.

Lee will square off with Carrollton-Turner at 8 p.m. next Tuesday at McMurry College in Abilene in a bidistrict playoff game. The Regional Tourney will also be played at McMurry three days later, so the winner between Lee and Carrollton-Turner will have the advantage of already playing one game on the McMurry campus.

The only common opponent during the year was Arlington High which Lee beat 12 points and Turner turned away by one point. Coach Stephenson was thrilled with the victory by her Rebels and pleased with the large crowd. "The exposure here at Midland College is great and should help our girls program, " stated Stephenson after the big victory over the cross-town Bulldogs and sister Jane Young, who guides the Midland High fortunes. "It really helped to get those three quick baskets at the offset and I feel like both teams played so much better than the last time around in the Midland High Gymnasium, " added a happy Stephenson. She quickly added that it was nice to win, but beating her sister was tough because they are close. "I know what Jane is going through and how hard it is to sleep when you lose. I even have a hard time sleeping when I win. I do know that there is a good attitude between the two schools and that really helps."

AS FAR as pointing out individuals, Coach Stephenson hesitates, because she likes team play, but she couldn't overlook the play of super sophomore Gale Wilson who fipped in 15 points along with junior Leisha Watkins who added 11 more. Stephenson also heaped praise on Midland's Margaret Christian who was the game's leading scorer with 19 points. She was the only Bulldog in the double figures as they wind up the season with a 26-12 rec-

Lee jumped off to 6-0 lead before Midland looked up as the jittery Bulldogs had the ball stolen five straight times, due to some poor ball handling. Wilson, who stands 5-foot-9, hit three shots from the corner to get Stephenson's outfit off to a running start.

Christian hit one for Midland to cut the lead to 6-2, and LaSchell Schrock connected on a pair of free throws to make it 6-4, but Deborah Kittle, 5-8 senior forward, hit a 12-footer and it first period lead and never had any problems the rest of the way.

LEE AND MHS scored 10 points each in the second period to make the score 23-18, but Midland had another cold period in the third stanza when Lee outscored the Pack, 13-4 for a commanding 36-22 lead going into the final eight minutes.

Randy Hundley named manager of Midland

Former major league catcher Randy Hundley has been named manager of the Midland Cubs, it was announced by General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., today. Hundley replaces Jack Hiatt, who was moved to Wichita of the Class AAA American Association without ever having managed an inning in Midland. Hiatt was promoted when Jim Saul, who had been elevated from Midland to Wichita during the off season, but then resigned to accept the third base coaching job with the Oakland A's under Jim Marshall.

Hiatt had been moved up from Pompano Beach to Midland during the off season. Hundley, a native of Martinsville, W. Va., played with the Chicago Cubs for eight seasons and last year managed the National League's Bradenton club to a third place finish in the rookie league.

Hundley was ticketed to manage Quad Cities of the Midwest League this year and will be replaced there by Jim Napier, another ex-catcher.

This will not be Hundley's first association with the Texas League. He played at El Paso in Hundley already is at Mesa, Ariz., and will take over the Cubs at mid-March as they begin preparations for the TL opener in Midland April 11.

Snyder is beaten by Mineral Wells

ABILENE - Tommy Spencer gunned in 19 points here Thursday night to lead powerful Mineral Wells to an impressive 85-70 victory over the Snyder Tigers in a Class AAA bi-district basketball game.

Spencer was one of four Rams in double figures as they eliminated Coach Jack Stephenson's Tigers from the state playoffs.

Joining Spencer in the double figures were Darrell Minton and Rory Nowak with 22 each, but it was Spencer's 11 points in the first period that got last year's state runnerup off to a quick start and 32-16 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Mineral Wells led by as much as 26 points in the third period as the Rams chalked up their 30th victory in 33 outings.

Big gun for Snyder was Greg Hinton with 20 points while Bradley Richardson, a sophomore, added 14 and Richars Crayton 10 more.

Humphrey's Bulldogs appear to match up with Dunbar pretty well. Charles Johnson, a 6-5 forward, carries a 13 point per game average while Herbert Johnson, a 6-8 sophomore, holds a 10 point mark. Walter Bryson, a 6-0 senior guard, is hitting at an 11 point clip and he bombed in 20 points against Wichita Falls in Midland's 59-56 bi-district win.
Milton Sanders, a 6-5 forward, is a rebounding plus for the Pack while 6-2 senior guard Roy Lee Jefferson gives the Pack a scoring attack from long distance. Jefferson can pump them in from 30-feet out with consistency, and he hit two of them against Wichita Falls.

JUNIOR TIM Spirling is also expected to come off the bench for Humphrey with his patented rainbow jumper that can befuddle opponents.

The 6 p.m. contest also looks like a good one. Coronado's 6-7 forward Travis Salem, who owns a 15.4 scoring average, and Monterey's 6-5 forward Craig Ehlo, who has an 18 point per game mark, are expected to put on a scoring battle.

All the teams in the tournament have good height and scoring punch. Every game could be a real nail biter.

Csonka to rejoin Miami Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) — Larry Csonka, a born-again Miami Dolphin, was careful not to get carried away by the jubilation of his reunion with Coach Don Shula.

"The celebration of coming back is one thing," he said Thursday after signing a one-year contract with Miami. "Getting ready to play for Shula is another.

Csonka, the muscle runner in Miami's consecutive Super Bowl years, became a free agent after the last National Football League season when the New York Giants declined to extend his contract.

He'd spent three unsatisying seasons with the Giants where he landed after the 1975 collapse of the World Football League, which had lured away Csonka and teammates Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield.

Csonka said he was close to retiring after being cut loose by the Giants. He and Shula left no doubt that this will be Csonka's last stop in the NFL. He is 32 and gained only 311 yards last

Diepraam, Lingen win national doubles title

ST. LOUIS - Midlander Keith Diepraam teamed with Peter Van Lingen to win the doubles title in the National 35 and over Indoors Tennis Tournament here this week Diepraam and Lingen defeated Butch Bucholz and Butch Newman, 7-6 (5-4), 6-2 in the doubles finals for the national title.

But Shula said he's hoping Csonka's return will be more than just a sentimental journey — the Dolphins need a power back. Norm Bulaich has said he wants to retire. Jim Braxton was ineffective and battled a weight problem after being acquired from Buffalo last season. Leroy Harris, an outstanding rookie in 1977, was mediocre last year and his two fumbles may have cost the Dolphins a playoff loss to Houston.

"I'm convinced in my mind that Larry still has a lot of football left in him," said Shula. "There hasn't been much of it used up in the last four

He said Csonka is in good physical condition but will require exercises to build up a left knee still weak from surgery in 1976.

The key question, he said, was "how bad Larry wanted to return." Csonka said that's not an issue and "I'm ready to go to the well to do whatever I have to do." Csonka said he simply didn't fit the Giants offense and never had the chance to use his bullish running skill. "I don't think I've had a power offensive line in front of me in the last three or four years," he said.

Financial details of the new con tract were not disclosed.

Csonka was a first-round Dolphins draft choice from Syracuse in 1968. And when Shula's 1970 arrival signaled the start of a power running attack at Miami, Csonka fit perfectly. He led the team in rushing from 1970 through 1974 and had 1,000-yard seasons in 1971-72-73.

Those three teams went to the Super Bowl, winning twice. In 1972 with Csonka, Kiick and Mercury Morris in the backfield, the Dolphins finished 14-0 and defeated Washington in the Super Bowl.

Miami won its second Super Bowl by defeating Minnesota 24-7 in January 1974. Csonka carried 33 times in that game, gaining 145 yards and scoring two touchdowns. He was selected the game's most valuable play-

HONG KONG (AP) — Australian Graham Marsh surged into a twostroke lead after the second round of the $100,000 Hong Kong Open golf championship Friday with an 8under-par score of 131.

Giants name Perkins head coach in hopes of strong offense EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) Perkins plans on being his own quarterback coach and most likely

- Ray Perkins is an offensive-minded football coach who prides himself on putting points on the board. And it's a good thing, because the New York Giants were one of the poorest offensive teams in the National Football League last season Perkins, 37, the San Diego Chargers offensive coordinator in 1978, was hired Thursday as head coach by the "The offense is determined by the strength or weakness of the defense,' he said. "If you have a strong defense you can do a lot more things. If it's weak, you have to do things to keep the ball away from the other team. I expect to throw the ball.

Despite one of the stronger defenses in the league, the Giants scored an average of just 16 points a game during their 6-10 season. The Chargers, conversely, with Perkins calling all the plays, led the NFL in passing offense, ranked fourth overall and were No.6 in point production.

Their quarterback, Dan Fouts, finished third overall, behind Terry

Bradshaw and Roger Staubach, the Super Bowl quarterbacks. And much of the credit for San Diego's 7-1 record nd 213 points scored over the final half of last season went to Perkins.

The Giants don't have anyone the caliber of Fouts currently on the roster. They went last season with Joe Pisarcik, Jerry Golsteyn and Randy Dean, none of whom proved they are quality NFL material.

Perkins outlined what he will look for in a quarterback.

"A quick head is number one, a guy that can make the right decision. Naturally an arm — some people rate that first, I don't. Then there's quick feet, vision, reading defenses. But the biggest thing is consistency," he will call all the plays. "The biggest challenge right now is to win football games. I know how to win. I've only gone through one losing season in my life. I don't like to Perkins succeeds John McVay, fired by the Giants on Dec. 18. Perkins' selection was made by General Manager George Young, who himself was only hired eight days before Per-The length and terms of Perkins contract were not revealed, but it is believed he signed for three years. Young and Perkins struck up a lasting friendship when Perkins was a wide receiver with Baltimore and Young was the Colts' offensive line coach. Young, however, claimed his friendship had nothing to do with hiring Perkins.

"We picked the best guy available for the job. I have lots of friends I love dearly that I wouldn't hire," Young Perkins retired as an active player in 1972 after knee surgery and be-came receivers coach at Mississippi State in 1973.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Sidney Moncrief, the leading rebounder and scorer in Arkansas history, has been named The Associated Press 1978-79 Southwest Conference Playerof the Year.

Typical of Moncrief's performances was the final regular season game of his career against Texas Tech when he hit a jump shot in the final seconds to give the Razorbacks at 66-65 victory and a tie for the title with the University of Texas.

Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers said of Moncrief: "I'd have to say that Sidney is the Player of the Year in college basketball.

Myers added "He (Moncrief) has been good for Arkansas and the conference but thank goodness we don't

Washington stuns UCLA on buzzer shot, 69-68

By The Associated Press Remember when Washington's

Birthday used to be celebrated on Feb. 22? Coach Marv Harshman did and his University of Washington Huskies went out and chopped down the nation's No. 1 college basketball

The rest of the nation observed the holiday on Monday, but the Huskies celebrated Thursday night thanks to a 69-68 victory over top-rated UCLA on Stan Walker's 23-foot shot with three seconds to play.

"We finally got our miracle," said Harshman. "When I was driving down here (Seattle's Edmundson Pavilion) tonight, I told Dorothy (Mrs. Harshman) that it would be appropriate if Washington won on Washington's Birthday.'

Elsewhere, fourth-ranked North Carolina clinched at least a tie for the regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference title by trimming North Carolina State 71-56, fifth-rated Louisiana State trounced Alabama 86-66 and captured its first outright Southeastern Conference crown in 26 years, No. 14 Ohio State took over sole possession of the Big Ten lead by drubbing Illinois 73-55 while No. 12 Iowa was beaten by Indiana 64-62 and Pacific backed into the Pacific Coast Athletic Association throne room despite a 84-77 loss to Utah State when Fresno State lost to San Jose State 49-46.

TWO OTHER members of the Top Twenty were in action. Seventhranked Michigan State tied Iowa for second place in the Big Ten, one game behind Ohio State, with a 73-67 triumph over Purdue and No. 16 Detroit was upset by Duquesne 93-84.

Washington's upset of UCLA negated a late rally by the Bruins which saw them come from a 50-38 deficit to take their only lead 68-67 on Brad Holland's two free throws with 15 seconds remaining. Petur Gudmundsson, Washington's 7-foot-2 center, led the Huskies with 17 points and Walker added 14 while UCLA's David Greenwood took game honors with 22 and grabbed 17 rebounds before fouling out with 36 seconds left.

"It's not our greatest win, but a great win," said Harshman. "Our greatest win was when we beat John Wooden's last UCLA team. That was a championship team."

The current edition may wind up winning the Pacific-10 crown, too, but UCLA's lead was sliced to one game with three to go when runnerup Southern California edged Washington State 71-69 behind Steve Smith's 23 points and three free throws in the final 30 seconds by Maurice Wil-

"Everything we did tonight paid off," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "I hope people will realize this team is for real. We're here to stay as a power in the SEC."

MIKE WOODEN'S 31 points led Indiana over Iowa but the Hoosiers needed some clutch free throws down the stretch to hold on, including both ends of a 1-and-1 by freshman Randy Wittman with 14 seconds left.

"I told our guys if we wanted to lose on this trip it was against Indiana, because at Ohio State a loss for us is a win for them," said Iowa Coach Lute Olson, whose team visits Ohio State on Saturday.

Meanwhile, Herb Williams, Ohio State's 6-10 sophomore, matched his career high with 34 points and Kelvin Ransey added 16 as the Buckeyes whipped Illinois. They turned the game into a rout with a 14-2 burst in the closing minutes. The explosion came just after it was announced that co-leader Iowa had been beaten.

"The announcement on the Iowa game had a lot to do with it," conceded Illinois Coach Low Henson. Ohio State's Eldon Miller agreed. "I don't think it cooled us off," he quipped. How does Miller see the torrid Big

Michigan State tied Iowa for second place by posting its eighth consecu-tive victory behind Gregory Kelser's 29 points while Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll, the Big Ten scoring leader, was held to 10.

Southwest Texas seeded No. I in cage tournament

By The Associated Press

Southwest Texas State has won the position as the No. 1 seed in the Lone Star Conference basketball tournament that begins Saturday, having finished its regular season on top of the standings in the league with a 12-2 record.

Conference officials annouced the parings Thursday.

Southwest Texas State will take on No. 8 seed and host team Sam Houston State at 7 p.m. Saturday in Huntsville. Sam Houston ended the season tied with Stephen F. Austin for last place in the conference.

In other pairings, Texas A&I and Abilene Christian clash at noon Saturday, Howard Payne meets Angelo State at 2 p.m., and No. 2 seed and defending LSC champion East Texas State meets Stephen F. Austin at 5

Semi-final games will be played Sunday at 2 and 4 p.m. in Sam Houston State's University Coliseum. The title game is set for Monday at 7 p.m.

"Winning the round robin has taken weight off our back," said Southwest Texas State Dan Wall, whose overall record is 20-6 for the second season in a row. "I don't think the team will let up now."

The tournament champion and the round robin winner advance to the NAIA District IV playoffs against the champion and runner-up of the Big State Conference beginning March 3. If Southwest Texas State, winner of the round robin, wins the LSC tournment too, the runnerup in the tournament also earns a berth in the playoffs.

Rozelle pleases Landry

DALLAS (AP) - Even on the record. though Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry had to read a newspaper to find out about it, he nevertheless praised NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle for conceding that a referee blew a controversial Super Bowl game call against the Cow-

Rozelle said in a letter to a Cowboys fan, printed Thursday by Dallas Times Herald sports columnist Blackie Sherrod, that the referee was wrong. Dallas lost Super Bowl XIII, 35-31 to Pittsburgh, and many fans complained the bad pass interference call in question sparked the Steelers' win.

brought Pittsburgh to the Dallas 23-yard line - a 33-yard gain that Landry, the Cowboys and some of the Pittsburgh squad later called "the key play" in the game.

The Steelers scored, and on the ensuing kickoff, Dallas fumbled, and Pittsburgh added another quick TD for a 35-17 lead. "We all knew that was
