The Reagan list also featured Hollywood celebrities, including singer Pat Boone and daughter Debby and actresses Irene Dunne, Merle Oberon and Loretta Young.

Egypt Hails Last 'Sprint To Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that peace in the Mideast "has come within reach," President Carter departed Wednesday for treaty negotiations in Cairo and Jerusalem.

Carter said his hope for a treaty is "tempered by sober realism," and subtly reminded the Israelis he expects them eventually to conclude a broader comprehensive peace settlement that would resolve the touchy Palestinian question.

Before he left, Carter told a group of about 40 members of Congress that a peace treaty isn't yet certain.

"Trip Worth Risk"
"He said he had no deal, but that the trip is worth the risk, and he hopes for the best," said Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Cal., said "the president spoke plainly of the risk to himself and the country" should his mission fail.

"He said he was not sure of success, but the mood throughout was one that gave optimism," Waxman added.

Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y., said Carter told the congressmen that "he would never pledge U.S. manpower" to guarantee a Mideast peace agreement and that no such pledge had been requested.

Overall Pact Needed
Carter, speaking on the South Lawn of the White House before departing, said real peace in the Mideast won't come until Israel strikes a comprehensive peace agreement with all her Arab neighbors, not just Egypt.

But Carter sounded an optimistic note nonetheless, saying, "For the first time in a generation, peace in the Middle East has come within reach" as a result of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative and the Camp David summit last year.

In his departure statement, Carter said the negotiations must address "the legitimate needs of all who are affected by the conflict," a reference to the Palestinians now living in Israeli-occupied territories.

Terrorists Plant Bombs
In Israel Wednesday, Palestinian terrorists planted three bombs on tourist buses to protest Carter's mission. Two of the bombs exploded and 12 persons were injured, police said.

The pro-Moscow Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine said in a statement released in Beirut, Lebanon, that it was responsible for the bombings.

Khomeini Calls Leaders 'Weak'

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's provisional government appeared headed for a crisis Wednesday after the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the architect of the revolution, called the nation's ministers "weak" and derided them for believing "everything should be copied from the West."

weak characters" for believing "everything should be copied from the West," in the speech to theological students and religious leaders in Qum, his residence 75 miles southwest of Tehran.

The Khomeini-appointed government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, primarily Western-educated liberals, has expressed anger over the wave of secret trials, executions and arrests carried out by Khomeini's followers. A revolutionary firing squad executed six men Tuesday night after they were found guilty of kidnapping boys and placing them at the service of homosexuals.

Bazargan threatened to quit a week ago after he bitterly attacked the "revolutionary committees," the Khomeini followers who have been running a parallel government and undermining the authority of the provisional government.

Gun Source Unknown In Jail Cell Death

CROSBYTON — Texas Rangers still are investigating circumstances surrounding the jail-cell shooting death Wednesday of John Thomas Carter, which may affect the trial of the woman accused of helping him murder an elderly Lorenzo couple last year.

will decide within a week whether to seek a trial change for Mrs. Bruce, who is to be tried in Crosbyton and housed in the same jail in which Carter died.

Laxalt said the Reagan team is "committing ourselves to develop and expand a base of public, political and financial support, which we feel certain will be unsurpassed by any candidate in either party."

Carter and Mrs. Bruce were arrested last October and charged with capital murder in the shooting deaths of Valton Vernoid Gandy and Cora Gandy, both of Lorenzo.

Sears said that while the Reagan organization expects its candidate to sew up the nomination early, it has the financial resources for a long fight, on the order of 1976, if necessary.

Jury selection in Carter's trial for the Oct. 2, 1978, death of Valton Gandy was to have entered its third day Wednesday.

Laxalt said "our doors will be open to every American who knows the time has come when we must once again put a true giant in the White House, and to provide the country with strength and skill in its leadership."

However, after learning the 34-year-old Lubbock resident had been found dead about 8 a.m. Wednesday in his cell at the Crosby County Jail, 72nd District Court Judge Denzil Bevers dismissed the jury panel in the case. Two area women had been empaneled out of 12 prospective jurors questioned. About 30 more county residents had been scheduled for interviews in the case.

Carter's body was found slumped across the bunk of his small, downstairs cell at the jail here, which is being remodeled to meet Texas Jail Standards Commission health and security guidelines.

He had suffered a single bullet wound to the right temple. A 22-caliber pistol was found on the cell floor, between the inmate's legs, which were hanging over the edge of the bunk.

The document is a rebuttal to a brief filed last month by plaintiffs in the class-action suit. The suit asks Woodward to scrap at-large elections in favor of a single-member district system.

Carter, who was the only prisoner in the two-story, 11-cell facility, had been transferred to the jail only Sunday because of the renovation work. He had been detained at Lubbock County Jail until the jury selection phase of his trial began this week.

Carter was arrested Oct. 21, 1978, in Lubbock, only 11 days after Crosby County commissioners accepted bids on the jail renovation. City officials deny the allegations. And they say that judging from the plaintiffs' post-trial brief, it would appear the plaintiffs and defendants "attended entirely separate trials."

A 27-YEAR-OLD man who, a psychiatrist testified, "thinks he's Dracula," Wednesday was declared incompetent to stand trial for aggravated robbery in the 237th District Court.

Both the defense attorney and prosecutor requested the incompetency finding for defendant Buddy Johnson, 27, after hearing testimony by Dr. Alvin Cronson, a psychiatrist, and Dr. Richard Lee Wall, a psychologist, both of whom had examined him.

Dr. Cronson said Johnson has delusions about being Dracula, the horror story vampire, and is not able to function in society.

He was sent to Rusk State Hospital, certified competent to stand trial and convicted of aggravated robbery in Amarillo in April 1978. He was given a five-year sentence in November and sent here to stand trial for three convenience store robberies that occurred in May 1977.

Crystal City Residents Flee Toxic Fumes In Wake Of Fire

CRYSTAL CITY (AP) — The continuous ringing of a fire alarm bell awoke the 10,000 sleeping residents of this Southwest Texas town Wednesday, warning them to evacuate because of toxic clouds of smoke overhead.

The smoke came from the Riverside chemical plant, about a mile south of the city, when fire broke out about 5:30 a.m. The plant manufactures pesticides and fertilizer.

The residents were not allowed back in their homes until midday.

Justice of the Peace Ron Carr said the alarm was sounded about 6 a.m. He said he manned the telephones at the Zavala County Sheriff's Office, where he answered about 150 calls in an hour and a half. Inquiring residents were told to evacuate as a precaution, he said.

"It was more of a question of potential danger," Carr said, adding that the "fumes were definitely toxic."

Law enforcement officers closed roads south of town leading to Big Wells and Brundage because the fire was in that area. Residents fled north along U.S. 83 to La Pryor and Uvalde.

Uvalde, Eagle Pass and Carrizo Springs, as well as surrounding counties, sent both fire and law enforcement personnel to help.

"We are waiting (until 3 p.m.) as a precautionary measure," Carr said when asked when residents would be allowed back in their homes. "Also, in case of wind change. The chemical people say that as the sun heats up, it more rapidly dissipates the fumes."

Carr said the fire caused no injuries, but he had heard of three auto wrecks and also three possible heart attacks caused by the evacuation.

Uvalde and Carrizo Springs dispatched ambulances.

Many residents stopped by the highway beyond the roadblocks, waiting for the all-clear signal, and others went to stay with relatives in surrounding towns, he said.

Les Gaddie, a spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Dallas, said an inspection team from Hartlingen is being sent to Crystal City "to determine if any federal violations occurred and, if so, the proper penalties to be imposed."

A team is sent, Gaddie said, whenever there is a mass evacuation, danger to employees or extensive public interest. He said the Crystal City case comes under all three headings. He said no one had complained about that plant and it has not previously been the subject of an OSHA investigation.

Gusty Winds Expected Today

Clouds propelled by southwesterly winds gusting to 25 mph will scuttle across the South Plains skies today and the afternoon temperature again will climb into the low 70s.

Although the gusty winds will blow steadily at 15 to 25 mph through Friday, no full-fledged dust storms are predicted this week, according to the National Weather Service.

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and an afternoon high of 72 degrees. Tonight's low will dip to the mid-40s. A low pressure system over the Panhandle will bring cooler, possibly wet weather into the area during the next few days. Temperatures are expected to rise into the 60s Friday afternoon, with the weekend weather to be fair but cool.

IRA Arms Cache Discovered In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police say they discovered the biggest cache of Irish Republican Army bombs found in Northern Ireland's 10-year-old sectarian feuding on Wednesday and foiled a "devastating and imminent attack."

A police spokesman said 42 gas cylinders, each packed with up to 40 pounds of explosives, were stashed in a workman's hut in the Short Strand quarter of Belfast, a small Roman Catholic enclave ringed by militant Protestant areas.

Security officials believe the target for the abortive IRA blitz was probably the sprawling Harland and Wolff shipyard near the Short Strand. The workforce at the yard, where the ill-fated Titanic was built, is staunchly Protestant.

Sir Kenneth Newman, the province's police commander, said, "This was to have been a concentrated, determined and particularly spectacular IRA exercise, possibly the biggest operation seen in Belfast."

Col. Brian Fox, the British army's chief bomb disposal expert in Northern Ireland, noted as his men began to defuse the bombs:

"We've got around 1,500 pounds of explosives here."

Troops and police evacuated several hundred persons, mostly Catholics, from streets around the bomb cache. They

Ryan Aide Gains Spot In Runoff

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Joe Holsinger, an aide to the late Rep. Leo Ryan, and Republican county supervisor Bill Royer clinched spots in a runoff next month to complete the term of the Democratic congressman killed in Guyana by Peoples Temple assassins.

With 95 percent of the votes counted, unofficial returns showed Holsinger had 19,602, and Royer had 18,636.

George Corey, an attorney who helped with Ryan's funeral arrangements, had 14,088 votes, and Jackie Speier, the 28-year-old Ryan aide who was wounded in the gunfire in Guyana that killed Ryan, trailed with 12,699.

Eight other candidates fell far behind. Holsinger and Royer will meet in the runoff April 3. Also on the ballot will be two minor party candidates.

Ryan was gunned down Nov. 18 on a jungle airstrip after a fact-finding visit to the Peoples Temple commune. Hours later, Temple leader Jim Jones led more than 900 followers to their deaths in a murder-suicide ritual.

The campaign on the San Francisco peninsula to fill his seat was highly emotional, with Ryan's own family divided in its support for Holsinger, 57, Corey, 45, and Miss Speier.

The infighting overshadowed the campaigns of the other candidates.

In addition to Royer, Republicans included Les Kelting, 50, a life insurance broker; Bruce Makar, 38, a real estate agent; Roger Canfield 37, a police management consultant; and David Welch, 35, a tax consultant who was defeated by Ryan last November.

Representing minor parties were Peace and Freedom candidate Wilson Branch, 64, a retired social worker, and American Independent candidate Nicholas Kudrovzoff, 57, an electrical contractor.

were put up in a nearby church and convent.

The discovery of the bomb cache caused dismay in IRA circles, informed sources reported.

But security authorities believe the IRA's "Provisional" wing will now seek to pull off another "spectacular" primarily aimed at drawing attention to their campaign to force the British to restore special political prisoner status for convicted guerrillas.

Security authorities declined to say how they found the bomb cache. But military sources disclosed it followed an intensive undercover operation in Belfast after intelligence reports said the Provisional IRA was planning a major blitz.

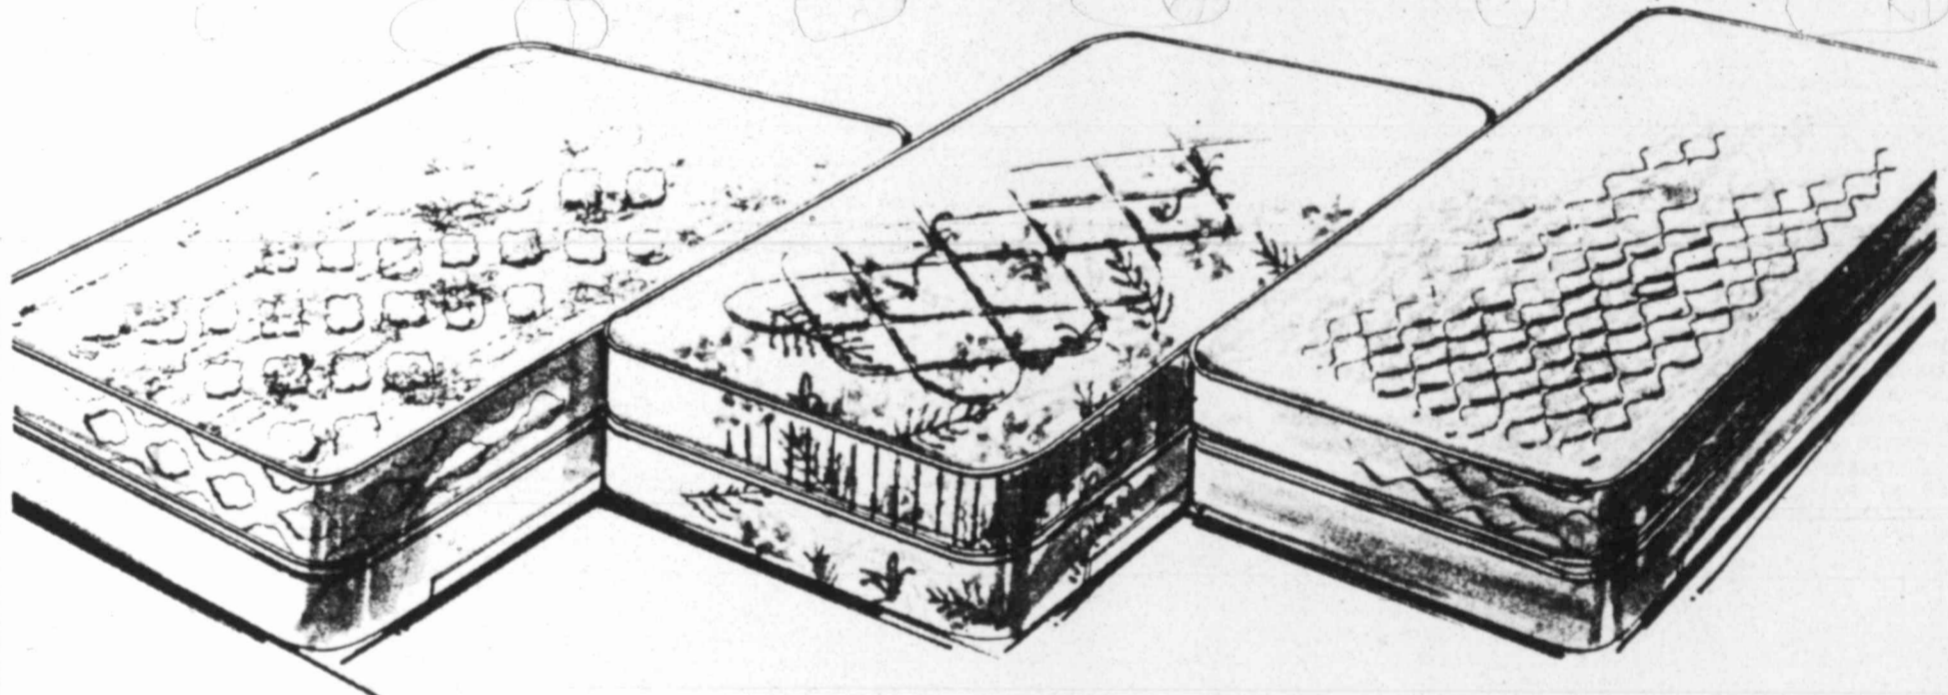

The IRA's ultimate aim is to reunite the province with the neighboring Irish Republic, which is overwhelmingly Catholic. Ulster's million-strong Protestant majority, who outnumber the province's Catholics by a 2-1 margin, say they want to remain under the British crown.

Meanwhile, police said British troops fought a brief gunbattle with IRA guerrillas manning an illegal roadblock near the border village of Bellaghy. One gunman was wounded and captured, police said.

In other action, police said IRA guerrillas badly wounded an off-duty militiaman in a country ambush and gunman boarded a ferry at Larne, north of Belfast, and stole an undisclosed sum of money.

Prosecution Opens In Huey Newton Trial

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The murder trial of Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton opened Wednesday with the prosecutor telling the jury Newton shot a 17-year-old prostitute because she "didn't know who he was and didn't show him the proper respect."

Deputy District Attorney Tom Orloff said Newton had an argument with a group of prostitutes on an Oakland street corner Aug. 6, 1974, and singled out Kathryn Smith. He said she told Newton she didn't care who he was and was too busy working.

Orloff claimed Newton first struck Miss Smith, then took out a small "The defendant hesitated over her for a moment, a strange look on his face, and hopped back into the car, which sped off," Orloff said.

Miss Smith never regained consciousness and died in October 1974.

Newton, who is free on $130,000 bail while he appeals a conviction of being an ex-felon in possession of guns, returned to the United States after he jumped bail in late 1974 and spent nearly three years in Cuba.

Newton, now 36, co-founded the once militant Panthers more than a dozen years ago. Defense Attorney Michael Kennedy reserved the right to make his opening statement later in the trial.

Orloff said he will call four eyewitnesses before Superior Court Judge Carl Anderson and the jury.

Two of the witnesses, are prostitutes, one is a confessed murderess and one has been promised a new identity in exchange for his testimony.

The gun possession charge stemmed from a case in which he was acquitted of charges of pistol-whipping his tailor, Preston Collins, who recanted on an earlier accusation and refused to testify against Newton.

Newton was sentenced on the gun possession charges to two two-year prison terms, to be served concurrently.

'STRICTLY A FABRICATION' — Black Panther leader Huey Newton walks with his wife, Gwen, through the courthouse in Oakland, Calif. ## Gacy Neighbor Welcomes Chicago's Cold Weather

CHICAGO (AP) — Lil Grexa welcomed the severe winter weather because it kept curious spectators and investigators away from the house next door, the one where 27 skeletons have been found.

The Grexas' neighbor, John W. Gacy Jr., has been charged in the sex murders of seven youths, and has reportedly told police he killed 32 young men and boys.

The first of the bodies was found in the crawlspace under Gacy's modest brick home on Dec. 21. The Christmas holidays were filled with news reports as the count of skeletons hauled from Gacy's home rose.

Hundreds of spectators came, TV crew after TV crew interviewed Mrs. Grexa and her husband, Edward. They said Gacy was a helpful, friendly neighbor, whom they sometimes heard working before dawn.

Then there was a heavy snowfall on New Year's Eve, followed by two weeks of sub-zero temperatures and then a 20-inch snowfall. More than 7 feet of snow fell by the end of February.

"The snow was a blessing to us," Mrs. Grexa said. "The crowds stayed away, then the reporters stopped coming and the digging stopped."

Investigators resumed digging on March 1, despite the protests of Gacy's attorneys. The investigators were dismantling Gacy's garage. One of the skeletons was found buried beneath the garage.

Authorities say they don't expect to find more bodies, but hope to find evidence that will help identify them. Only 10 have been identified, and medical examiner Dr. Robert Stein says he needs further leads. The state's attorney says more charges could be filed against Gacy if additional skeletons are identified.

"I don't know why they keep at it," Mrs. Grexa said. "Haven't they found enough?"

"Now it isn't a big deal anymore," she added. "Most people will forget about it. But John was our friend, and I'll never get over the shock."

"The crimes can't be undone, but I'll tell anybody who asks that I'll never understand why he had to bring shame to

Cost Conscious Carriers Eye Cut-Rate Air Fares

NEW YORK (AP) — Fly now or pay more later. The cost of jetting is going up.

Because of the rising costs of fuel and labor, the airlines are having second thoughts about those cut-rate fares that caused an air travel boom last year, according to industry analysts.

The airlines are not withdrawing the discount fares. They just won't be quite so cheap, nor quite so plentiful.

The price of an airline ticket probably will increase by 5 percent to 10 percent by summer, the analysts say.

Most of the major airlines already have asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for across-the-board increases in fares.

"Airline expenses are going to go up at a pretty stiff rate this year, and somehow they're going to have to get some additional revenue to afford that," says Michael R. Armellino, who follows the airlines industry for Goldman Sachs & Co., a New York brokerage house.

Armellino's counterpart at Crowell Weedon & Co. in Los Angeles, John N. Simon, agrees. "There are only two things they can do," he says. "Raise fares or lose money."

The price of jet fuel, which accounts for 20 percent of an airline's expenses, has been rising at a 6 percent annual rate so far this year. Analysts expect the increase to jump to 12 percent by the end of the year as a result of the cutback in Iranian oil.

Several airlines have canceled flights because of a lack of fuel. United, for example, said it would scratch 429 flights a week during March. The nation's largest airline, it has asked for a 1.2 percent increase in all fares effective May 15. Two months ago, United raised fares 0.7 percent.

At the same time, labor costs are expected to rise about 10 percent.

When airlines cut fares last year after the CAB loosened regulations on the industry, revenues topped $20 billion, with the industry turning an aggregate $1 billion profit, the biggest ever.

Revenues are expected to be up another 10 percent or so this year. But profits could fall to $700 million, according to Armellino.

The lower fares spurred an air-travel boom. Passengers were happy because flying was less expensive than before.

AN EDITORIAL:

Blue Law Repeal Has Appeal

SENSING THAT public opinion has switched to their side, and that legislators are in a mood to listen, retailers who favor repeal of Texas Blue Law are mounting an all-out effort in that direction.

"Times change. People's needs change," says the Retailers for Repeal of the Blue Law, a group claiming a membership of 2,500 retailers across the state.

"We no longer wish to be asked to enforce a law our customers don't want," says the group's spokesman, Lawrence M. Turner of Kroger Co.

It is a valid point.

TEXAS FIRST Blue Law, enacted in 1863, banned all labor or hunting on Sunday near churches, schools or homes. From 1887 until 1961, state law forbade any person to "labor or compel, force or oblige his employees, workmen or apprentices to labor on Sunday."

The law was changed in 1961 and further modified in 1967 to turn away from the traditional religious orientation of blue laws. The argument became that Sunday closings were necessary for the health and welfare of employees.

Actually, the big push for retention and reorientation of the Blue Law came from retailers who were alarmed when big discount stores began staying open on Sunday and attracting a heavy volume of business.

"To get away from the religious orientation, the law was modified to prohibit the sale of certain products on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays.

Inevitably, this led to confusion and to uneven enforcement from community to community. Customers griped constantly because they could not buy, say, screws on Sunday to go with the screw driver they were perfectly at liberty to buy.

"WE ARE TIRED," says the Retailers for Repeal of the Blue Law, "of trying to explain to customers what we ourselves don't understand."

Accordingly, members of the group are going to encourage consumers to complain to their legislators rather than to their clerks. The stores plan to "provide means and instructions" for writing letters urging repeal.

If the results reflect the findings of recent public opinion polls, lawmakers will be deluged with letters. A Dallas Morning News survey found 64 percent of the respondents in favor of repeal.

GOP Abandons Bipartisanship

THERE MAY have been considerable individual crossing of party lines and reversing of party commitments as the direction of American involvement in Southeast Asia progressed from the Kennedy through the Nixon administrations.

The Vietnam war was "the" hot issue in U.S. domestic politics during its very long day. But always there was a strong partisan tone to the debate.

In the end, what had begun as a Democratic adventure found a Democratic congressional leadership facing off a Republican administration on the war issue.

Partisanship also has figured in the Panama Canal treaties, African policy and the AN EDITORIAL:

ART BUCHWALD:

Windy City Blowhards In A Huff Over Muff

WASHINGTON—There is a bitter debate now going on in Washington as to who lost Chicago.

The downfall of Mayor Bilandic and the Daley machine came as a shock to the White House, which had been assured by the CIA that Bilandic, backed by a powerful Department of Sanitation, had no chance of being overthrown.

When Bilandic was thrown out, President Carter was furious and demanded to know why he had been so misled.

Chicago analysts, in retrospect, now say that Bilandic tried to modernize Chicago too fast, and the Chicagoans could not absorb all the changes in such a short span of time.

THEY ALSO said that Bilandic was far more interested in purchasing every new snow removal piece of hardware that came on the market, despite the fact that no one in the city was capable of knowing how to use it.

Although American snow removal companies had sent technicians to Chicago to train Bilandic's people in the use of this equipment, most of it sat in garages for the lack of personnel who knew how to drive them.

As one Chicago-watcher put it, "We gave them bulldozers when most of them were just getting used to shovels. Bilandic had delusions of grandeur and dreamed of Chicago becoming a major city in one generation.

"He was encouraged in this thinking by officials in Washington, who gave the mayor any advanced snow removal equipment he asked for and talked themselves into thinking that Bilandic was capable of handling any blizzard that came along.

"WHEN PUSH came to shove, Bilandic's people could neither push nor shove the snow off the streets. And the writing was on the wall."

Henry Kissinger blames Carter for the downfall of the Daley machine. He told a reporter long debate on China—way back to the argument over who lost it.

THIS IS by way of an historical background for a current report out of Washington, D.C.

Republican leaders have decided to take a critical stand on the SALT II agreement, broadening the upcoming debate to take in the total U.S.-Soviet military and foreign policy relationship.

It is being read as a signal that the party may be ready to abandon bipartisanship in foreign affairs.

Bipartisanship as a supposed policy dates back to World War II and the conversion of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R-Mich., from isolationism.

Vandenberg's support for an active U.S. international role was useful to the Truman administration in smoothing the way for the United Nations, the Marshall Plan as well as NATO.

BUT IN LATER decades, there has been more talk about, than substance to, bipartisanship.

Partisanship, in fact, is almost always a factor to one degree or another in the shaping of American foreign policy.

As it should be, the nation's relations with the rest of the world are a legitimate public concern and as proper a subject for partisan debate as any other public issue. So on with the broadened SALT debate.

Whatever the GOP decision on the matter may be signaling, it certainly is not a revolution in the conduct of U.S. foreign policy.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Gasping For Air

AS WITH everything else, Jimmy Carter wants the air we breathe to be clean and pure in heart. As long as it doesn't cost too much.

Now, apparently, he's decided it does. Industry is on his back to "do something" about the Environmental Protection Agency. His own White House environment council is in with the bad news that air-pollution control last year cost business and government $13.1 billion.

Mr. Bosworth is the presidential house expert on wage and prices; smog control is not one of his fields of expertise. But you'd never guess it to hear him talk.

Seems Mr. Bosworth took a look at the Tennessee Valley Authority's recent agreement to clean up its pollution and pronounced it "an unnecessary cost burden."

THE CONSENT decree had been one of the EPA's big victories. After years of back-and-forth, it finally forced the huge utility to agree to spend $1 billion to remove pollutants from its smokestacks.

The Bosworth blast set up a real flap, during which even the chairman of the TVA accused Mr. Bosworth of not having "the foggiest idea of what he's talking about."

All this happened shortly after the EPA came out with the news that it has decided to relax the smog standard for cities. It's going to increase the allowable level of ozone (which in some places is mostly what makes smog) to .12 parts per million.

This is 50 percent more than the .08 standard the EPA set back in 1971, when the government first got serious about dirty air.

BUT EPA director Douglas Costle says he's not doing it because of White House pressure. He says new data from his health advisers indicate a little more smog won't hurt anybody.

Research shows, Mr. Costle went on, that even people suffering from asthma, bronchitis and other respiratory diseases can safely tolerate a higher level. And it will make things a lot easier for the cities.

Most importantly, it will cost them only $4.4 billion a year, compared to the $6 billion they would have to spend annually to keep ozone down to the original .08.

This outraged both business and environmental groups. The American Petroleum Institute went to court, arguing the rule is still a lot tougher than it has to be.

The API says ozone levels can go as high as .25 per million without hurting anybody.

CLEAN-AIR AND health groups are just as angry. They say the new standard is "dangerously high" and that the EPA is "playing Russian roulette" with our lungs. Even EPA officials squawked about White House interference.

Jody Powell dismissed those protests as nothing more than a "little outburst," and said, if any officials wanted to quit, their resignations would be "gladly accepted."

All the President is trying to do, the press secretary added, is bring "some realism" to the cost of clean air.

It's something of a moot point, anyway. Because, no matter what the cities are spending, they haven't been meeting the levels. Except for Honolulu and Spokane, every big urban area flunks the air test.

ONE REASON for that, according to the General Accounting Office, is that the EPA isn't doing an "effective job" of monitoring violators and enforcing the law. The EPA says it is, too.

For one thing, it conducts extensive aerial photographic surveillance of private industrial plants to collect evidence of pollution. It also is stepping up its campaign to force Detroit to produce fewer "smog makers" and to pay for any emission controls that don't work.

This produced the usual howl from Detroit, plus an equally loud protest from repair-shop owners, who said they would lose a lot of business if anti-pollution devices were covered by warranty.

And both camps agreed with the National Commission on Air Quality that much of today's smog can be blamed on car owners who either tamper with their anti-pollution gear to get better mileage or use the cheaper leaded gas that ruins their catalytic converters.

WHAT IT all boils down to is whether clean air is worth the billions it's going to cost us to get it. Carter seems to be having his doubts at the moment.

But a recent joint report from the EPA and the CAQ says any inflationary impact the anti-pollution programs have on the economy has been relatively small—and is getting smaller.

So far, its figures suggest, prices are about three-tenths of one percent higher than they would be without air and water pollution programs. And in the next eight years, they will drop to one-tenth of one percent.

That's not counting the cost savings in better human health, improvement in property values and bigger crop harvests.

Also, the study found that anti-pollution programs create jobs for builders and installers of equipment and, in the future, will increase employment for those who maintain and service it.

On the other hand, it could be argued that, if we cleaned up all the dirty air, it would put a lot of other people out of work—like doctors, nurses, hospital workers, undertakers.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

INVENTORS OF medical apparatus come up with all sorts of tricky devices. For example, there's one designed solely for the purpose of removing billiard balls from people's mouths.

Bellevue Hospital in New York City has such an instrument. Every now and then, somebody shows up at the emergency room there with a cue stick in his hand, a pool ball in his mouth, the removal of which permits him to explain how he just won a bet that he could get the thing in there. Nothing came up about getting it back out.

In this world are countries with names that start with every letter of the alphabet except X.

A bat's knees bend backwards.

Some prognosticators now think that half the country's Baptist ministers will have to find second jobs by 1985.

What Alexander Graham Bell was really trying to do when he invented the telephone was put together a hearing aid for his wife.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

EVANS

WASHINGTON—Jimmy Carter's efforts to stop brother Billy from alienating the President's remaining Jewish support not only came six weeks late but badly missed the mark, reflecting leadership problems that persist despite more than two years in power.

Carter's closest aides were too frightened of their chief during those six weeks to impress on him the need for total disassociation from Billy Carter's anti-Semitic outbursts; it took the redoubtable Robert Strauss to enter the tiger's lair.

Even then, however, Carter could not quite make the surgically clean division between himself and his brother that Jewish supporters demanded.

A completed Israel-Egypt peace treaty, unthinkable without Carter's courageous mediation, could restore much of the President's Jewish backing—but not all of it. Unfair though it is, Jimmy Carter's handling of his errant brother remains a stain on his record.

ANDREW TULLY:

Now Cut That Out

WASHINGTON—Mr. Snelling came to Washington from Vermont and brought with him the cool, cut-out-the-cackling realism of rocky, quizzical New England.

Snelling—first name, Richard, attitude, skeptical—is the Republican governor of Vermont, where people live by facing unpleasant facts.

He is in favor of a balanced federal budget who isn't, in these wild Proposition 13 days?

But he wants folks to realize that any sacrifices involved will not be confined to the guy next door.

Snelling's words to the winter meeting of the National Governors Association were, like his constituents back home, unadorned.

WITH EVERYBODY else discussing the campaign to balance the national budget by decree of a constitutional convention, Snelling reminded his colleagues that even governors can't have it both ways.

"We can't continue to adopt resolutions calling for a balanced budget and then complain when federal grants to states are cut," he said.

"We can't blame the size of the federal budget for inflation without taking responsibility for controlling it at home."

Snelling even coldly took on the celebrity of the show, California's Gov. Jerry Brown, who specializes in headline-grabbing ideas a minute.

Calmly cut, he cut Brown off in the middle of a plea that the governors jump on the Brown balanced budget amendment band-wagon.

BROWN, SNELLING remarked, hadn't boned up on the issue; he hadn't taken part in the work of a governor's committee, of which he is a member, that has been studying budget-balancing proposals.

Snelling also wanted to know why Brown hadn't answered a letter Snelling dispatched to all governors asking them to detail specific federal programs they felt could be eliminated to cut federal spending.

He complained to reporters later that he was weary of Brown's "grandstanding." Still calm, he claimed that Brown is always absent when the hard work of making government is done.

"I think the born-again lines (Brown) uses are reasonably offensive to those of us who have worked to reduce taxes for years," Snelling said.

SNELLING DIDN'T suggest Brown was 100 percent wrong.

There's, after all, something to be said in favor of Brown's call on Congress to initiate a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget, and his argument that if Congress fails to act the states should demand a constitutional convention.

But Snelling was on the button when he warned that the voters "want to see how we intend to manage if federal programs to state and local governments are cut, and what sacrifices we are willing to make."

So far, there has been too much talk about lowering thermostat settings and buying baloney instead of pot roast, while our ruling lords from White House to City Hall sacrifice only the hot air consumed by speech-making.

Gunfire From Auto Reported By Youth

Police Wednesday were investigating a reported shooting in which a 17-year-old Lubbock youth said four persons in another car shot at him as he was driving home.

The youth said the incident happened Saturday night but that he had been afraid and waited until Tuesday to report it to police.

He said he was driving near Loop 289 and the Amarillo Highway late Saturday when a car pulled up behind him and one of the occupants began shooting. He said he continued driving toward his home and that the second car eventually drove off.

Police reports indicate the youth was not injured, although his car suffered gunshot damage.

Bandits and vandals focused their attention on cars around the city, breaking into and damaging several vehicles in different locations.

Two Lubbock men, Enrique Cisneros of 1509 46th St. and Genovedo Esqueda of 201 N. Ave. O, said vandals had broken into their cars while they were parked at a club at 1708 4th St. Cisneros said the burglars broke out a window and took a tape deck, while Esqueda reported a broken window on his car. Police said the estimated damage for the two vehicles is about $260.

Jackie Becknal also reported a car burglary. He told police someone entered the car, which was parked at his 4809 29th St. residence, and removed about $250 worth of tapes.

Carroll Rock Sanders of 4906 44th St. told police some tapes had been taken from his car. He valued the missing tapes at about $120.

Two Officers Shot, Cincinnati Police Strengthen Patrols

CINCINNATI (AP) — Following the shooting deaths of two officers, the police department is resuming night-time two-man patrols, eliminated for several years in budget and manpower shortages.

"That's like locking the barn door after the cow is out," officer George Stewart said Wednesday. "And they tried it before and a report came out that it was of no benefit."

Officer Robert T. Seiffert was killed Tuesday after he stopped a motorist for questioning, and Dennis Bennington was shot when he answered Seiffert's call for assistance.

Their deaths bring to seven the number of Cincinnati officers killed in the past five years.

The alleged gunman, identified as Gregory Daniels, also was killed in the incident. A woman with him was injured.

"It's not worth the risk for what we're paid and what we have to go through," Stewart said. "I've been thinking about another occupation. I'd like to drive a truck."

Officer Rick Krummen, a six-year veteran, also questioned whether the job was worth the risk, but said, "this is in my blood."

"I like police work. I do provide services for the citizens of Cincinnati. I'm a cop. That's what I want to be."

Bennington often referred to himself as the last of the Three Musketeers, for himself and two other officers who were police cadets together. Of the other members of the trio, Charles D. Burdall was killed in July 1978 and David Cole was killed in July 1974.

"It seems like the public expects police officers to let the suspect have the first shot and this is the result," said Sgt. John Basham of the Regional Police Training Academy.

"You just can't draw and hold your gun on people if you're not sure," he said. "If you do that, you'll be down at City Hall the next day with complaints about police brutality."

Legislators Advocate Moving Texas Away From Oil Dependency

AUSTIN (AP) — Two legislators said Wednesday they hope to lead Texans away from oil and natural gas to the sun, wind and other not-so-exotic energy sources.

"Sunlight is not subject to embargo," said Rep. Bill Keese, D-Somerville.

"It is mind boggling why the state doesn't invest in alternate forms of energy that in essence provide free fuel instead of year after year throwing money away on heating, air conditioning and lighting," said Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio.

The legislators told a news conference they have introduced several proposals to encourage the use of less traditional forms of energy.

Their efforts, Keese said, might lead to heating the 91-year-old Capitol with the sun's energy. "I would like very much myself to see the Capitol converted" to solar energy, Keese said.

Vale said state government spends up to $175 million a year paying its utility bills.

"We need to start now rapidly developing sources of energy that will not be subject to cartels, price gouging or exorbitant prices," he said.

Vale said he has introduced seven proposals that "represent the first comprehensive attempt to legislatively enact a wide ranging alternate energy program for this state."

He said he would do all he could through tax breaks and other incentives to develop alternate energy sources.

"Some will say these sources of energy are 'exotic,'" Vale commented. "Usually those making such pronouncements are representatives of vested energy interests."

At one time, he added, crude oil was considered "exotic."

"The point is that as needs for different types of energy increase in demand what was one day deemed 'exotic' suddenly becomes ordinary," Vale said. "It would be short sighted, costly and plain inexcusable not to try to expand our inexhaustible energy sources now before we just run out of traditional fuels or pollute ourselves to death with coal and nuclear fuels."

Keese and Vale both are sponsoring a solar and wind energy bill and a measure providing a tax exemption for gasohol, a blend of gasoline and alcohol.

CAPE CANAVERAL space shuttle has a problem: it has a hole in its side. It is not soon enough for the job is dispatching.

It's been nearly a year since the shuttle was launched. The men into space, T. Curry and Gemini, silent now, many for scrap.

Space Center Eager For Shuttle Age To Open

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle has arrived, a new era of exploration is at hand, and it can't come soon enough for the people here whose job is dispatching men into the cosmos.

It's been nearly 10 years since Americans first set foot on the moon and four years since the United States last sent men into space. The launch pads of Mercury and Gemini, Apollo and Skylab are silent now, many gone, their girders sold for scrap.

The shuttle is a reusable vehicle capable of making 100 or more roundtrips into space. It will be used to carry up satellites, repair satellites in orbit and perhaps eventually lead to the first stations where man can live and work in space.

The work force at the Kennedy Space Center here, 27,000 in the Apollo heyday, is down to 10,600. Those left have watched with envy as the Russians have regularly launched men into space, breaking all American endurance records.

America's last manned space flight was a joint mission with the Soviets in 1975. Since then, 12 Soyuz craft, bearing a total of 24 cosmonauts, have rocketed into orbit.

While watching the Soviets, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has been developing a new manned craft — the shuttle.

That program reaches a milestone on Saturday, when a Boeing 747 jet sets down here. Perched on its back will be Columbia, the first shuttle earmarked for space. It is being ferried cross-country from the Rockwell International plant at Palmdale, Calif.

Thousands of workers and their families are expected to turn out to greet it. "They're excited, you can feel a great increase in the pulse here," center director Lee Scherer said in an interview.

"Their job is putting men in space, and finally, they're going to get another manned vehicle to work on," he said. "They can't wait to get their hands on the damn thing."

Months of work lie ahead before the shuttle is ready to fly. The main engines have to be tested, delivered and installed. Thermal tiles must be positioned to protect Columbia from searing re-entry heat. Booster rockets and fuel tanks must be readied.

The launch is scheduled Nov. 9. But Scherer conceded NASA is working on a "success-oriented" schedule. He said:

"If there's a problem of any magnitude, it could cause a delay. We'll have a better handle on how we're doing after a couple of months. We're dealing with a very sophisticated machine that is pushing the state of the art, and we won't launch until we are ready."

How sophisticated? The shuttle is a space plane — a hybrid of rocket, spacecraft and airplane. After each flight into space, it will glide back to a landing on a three-mile long runway and be towed to a hangar to be readied for another trip within two weeks or so.

Each of the four shuttles approved by Congress will be capable of making 100 or more roundtrips into space.

The main engine, the most advanced rocket power plant ever, is made to burn super-cold liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen. Pressures inside the chamber are four times greater than those in the engines that drove Apollo's Saturn V rocket.

Columbia's first flight will be relatively brief, a 54-hour orbital test. The astronauts will be John Young, a veteran of four space trips, including a moon walk, and Robert Crippen, a rookie spaceman.

Five or six test flights are planned before Columbia is operational, probably in 1981. Then it will be ready to do things never tried before in space. The first 28 flights are sold out to government agencies, industry and others who want to put payloads into orbit.

The shuttles will put satellites in space for research, weather forecasting, communications, and military reconnaissance. They will carry up a small European Space Agency station called Spacelab.

The space planes will have a capacity of hauling up to 65,000 pounds and, once in orbit, also will launch probes bound for other planets.

Each shuttle can carry up to seven people — some of them women. Six women are in training. Crews will be able to repair an ailing satellite in orbit or bring it back to Earth for maintenance, cutting costs and considerably extending the lives of many payloads.

Eventually, the shuttle fleet may ferry people and parts for building solar satellites, space factories, moon bases and habitats for colonies far from Earth. "The more we fly the shuttles, the more things we'll discover to do with it," said Scherer.

To prepare for an expected 40 to 50 launches a year in the 1980s, shuttle bases are being built here and in California.

First Aid Classes Begin Here Today

The Lubbock County Chapter of the American Red Cross has announced changes in this month's multimedia first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation classes.

The first aid classes will be conducted today from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Lubbock Fire Training Center on Municipal Drive, and again from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 24 at the Red Cross office, 4313 Ave. L.

Two cardiopulmonary resuscitation classes will be taught Wednesday and Friday, both from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Red Cross office.

The classes are open to the public. A fee will be charged for books and course materials.

Those wishing to attend should contact the Red Cross at 765-8534. Special sessions may be arranged for groups and organizations.

A foot tree may absorb 19 gallons of water a day in the height of the growing season.

Dick Lyon, chief of the project engineering office here, said that wherever possible, NASA is modifying Apollo facilities for the shuttle. "About the only things we've had to build are the 15,000-foot runway and two orbital processing facilities," he said. The latter are hangars where shuttles will be refurbished after missions.

After servicing, the shuttle will go to one of the world's largest buildings to be mated with two booster rockets and a fuel tank, then to one of the extensively modified Apollo launch pads.

The Apollo launch control center also will be used, but gains in computer technology mean the facility can be run by 45 persons, one-tenth the 450 needed for Apollo. The final countdown also will be slashed — from Apollo's 28 hours to 2½ hours.

The preparation of shuttle facilities is being done at a cost of about $600 million, Lyon said.

"Because of tight budgets, we had to really watch our costs," he said. "It's not like Apollo, where we had a national commitment and if you needed money to do something, it was pull out all the stops."

56 School Spelling Champions To Vie Here

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Winners of 56 spelling bees in Lubbock County schools will participate in this year's county spelling bee Saturday at 9 a.m. in Evans Junior High School auditorium.

James V. Baker, consultant for language arts for the Lubbock Independent School District, is bee director and Sharon Harris will serve as pronouncer.

Judges will include Wayne Dickey, school district consultant for Anita Smither, teacher at Hunt Elementary School.

This year's audience hosts will be Andy Turner, a teacher at Bayless Elementary School, and Joe Williams, a teacher at Overton Elementary School. Lucy Gutierrez, a teacher at Harwell Elementary, and Pat Russel, a teacher at Mahon Elementary, will act as stage hosts.

Recording judge for the competition will be Drew Jackson, principal at Overton Elementary. Drew Foster, consultant for language arts of the Lubbock schools, will be dictionary judge.

As recording judge, Jackson will record each word as it is spelled. If there are any questions regarding the spelling of a word, the recording will be played back. Any such questions from the audience should be directed to one of the audience hosts, officials said. Any protests must be made before the speller in question completes his turn.

The National Spelling Bee contest rules will be used. These guidelines are stated in the back of the "Words of Champions" practice booklet issued by the National Spelling Bee.

School winners and their alternates listed alphabetically by schools are:
Alderson Junior High — Don Armstead, Michael Madrid, All Saints School — Norwood Andrews, Niels Proctor, Arnett Elementary — Andy Bessire, Tamara Coffer; Atkins Junior High — Bobby Boynton, Christi Walker;

Millions To View Presidents

CAIRO (AP) — President Carter's whistle-stop train trip through the Nile Valley Friday will take him past bullocks slaughtered for the occasion, howling, wailing peasant women, documents of loyalty written in human blood and people, millions of them. There's nothing like it back home.

Carter and Sadat will take the five-hour trip from Cairo to the coastal city of Alexandria so Egyptians can show their support for the peace effort.

The trip, on Carter's first full day in Egypt, is something Sadat, himself a farmer-turned-president, planned in order to show Carter what the countryside looks like. Not incidentally, it should show that Sadat has the backing of his people in his peace drive with Israel.

To greet the crowds, they will stand in a wood-paneled Victorian coach with a carpeted open section in the center, the better to see and be seen.

The slaughtering of bullocks is a traditional Arab sign of hospitality. If the train were to stop, Carter would probably be invited to feast on the meat.

For Richard Nixon, Sadat turned out some 3.5 million people along the 150-mile route. For Carter, the turnout is expected to be larger, officials preparing for the visit said.

When Nixon came in 1974, in a respite from Watergate, Egypt's relations with the United States were just blossoming. Now Cairo is a large recipient of U.S. foreign aid and Carter is the key man in nailing down a peace treaty with Israel.

The two leaders will board the train from a siding at Kubbeh Palace, the former residence of King Farouk, where Carter will spend his first night in Cairo.

The fertile Nile Delta is home to 44 percent of Egypt's 40 million people, jammed between and around the two branches of the Nile that fan north from Cairo. It includes some of the most intensely cultivated land in the world.

The banner-wavers are usually organized by the government on such occasions. But the millions stream out on their own, anxious to see Sadat and, in this case, his guest.

The crowds are likely to chant "Carter, Sadat, we love you, men of peace." It is expected the same or similar messages of support will be handwritten in human blood on scrolls and tossed onto the train as a sign of utter loyalty.

On Sadat's last whistle-stop tour along part of the same route last December, about a dozen such documents landed near his feet, some tied neatly with pink ribbons.

The train will pass about 10 miles from the village of Mit Abul Kom, where Sadat was born to a rural family.

Plains, Ga., Carter's birthplace, has become a tourist attraction. Mit Abul Kom and its 3,000 people have remained pretty much off the beaten track, although the mud-hut village is being modernized with the proceeds of Sadat's autobiography, "In Search of Identity."

Egyptian Makes Peace Symbol

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Isaac Azmi hates wars. He almost was killed in the last one with Israel and says that's why he is preparing a special reception Thursday for President Carter — a huge man-powered dove of peace.

The dove, the size of small airplane, and a flock of 40 smaller artificial birds carried on motorcycles will lead the Carter motorcade from the airport when the president arrives for his talks with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

Three hundred live doves will fly from the huge man-made bird; some when Carter steps from his plane; more as he leaves the airport lounge, the rest as he steps into the palace where he will stay.

A man will be stationed inside the big dove, which will be mounted on a bus chassis, and manipulate metal bars to flap the dove's wings as it proceeds down the street. Three well-known Egyptian entertainers will sing songs about peace from inside the dove.

As Azmi and his team of art students, carpenters and painters worked on the gypsum and fiberglass bird, scores of electricians, painters and gardeners tied up Kubbeh Palace, the 400-room 19th century royal residence where Carter's official party will stay.

Cairo's main streets are being repaired and American flags flutter from lamp posts along with pictures of Carter and Sadat.

"Carter has to know we, all 40 million Egyptians, want peace. Carter is the president of the biggest nation and he can make peace a reality for us all," Azmi said.

"I have two sons and I don't want them to die on the sands of Sinai," Azmi said. He was a front-line army officer in the 1973 Middle East war.

London Garbage Workers End Strike; Others Remain Out

LONDON (AP) — Garbage men began cleaning up rubbish-strewn London Wednesday at the end of a strike by most public service workers who walked out seven weeks ago.

Ambulance drivers and some hospital staff refused to accept the settlement, and municipal crews asked for extra payments to clear the backlog of dirty work. There was no word on whether the demands for extra pay would be met. Some claims ran as high as $680 per person for the extra week of work involved. End-of-strike claims often have been paid in the past.

A union official asked for a "blacking" order against Labor government Health Minister David Ennals, hospitalized with a blood clot.

The secretary of the hospital's National Union of Public Employees branch, Jamie Morris, called on members to "black" Ennals, which means banning all services to him. That could mean no meals or clean sheets, all brought to wards by union members.

Ennals told reporters he has been treated well. "I have had all the cups of tea that I wanted and am getting the same treatment as other patients," he said. Most of the nation's 17,000 ambulance drivers and 250,000 hospital cleaners and porters voted Tuesday and Wednesday to reject the nine-percent-plus deal accepted by other members of the four main public service unions. They said they will continue to handle emergencies only.

The strike by 1.1 million public service workers began in mid-January. The unions demanded a $120 minimum wage, complaining that their lowest-paid members earned just $84 a week.

Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government tried to keep the increase within the anti-inflation guideline of 5 percent but settled for 9 percent, plus $2 a week. In addition, supplements will be paid this August and in April of next year.

U.S. Outlines Antitrust Probe Of Auto Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government outlined Wednesday a major antitrust investigation of the auto industry that could eventually lead to such drastic action as breaking up General Motors, the world's largest auto maker.

The investigation, first announced in 1976, resulted earlier this year in government-issued subpoenas for voluminous data from the four American auto makers. Federal Trade Commission officials said at a background news briefing. These officials refused to be identified publicly.

This move was challenged in federal court in Detroit by three of the automakers — General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp., and American Motors Corp. Ford Motor Co. didn't join the suit, choosing instead to fight the subpoenas before the commission.

The government's investigation has been stymied by a recent decision by U.S. District Court Judge Fred W. Kaess of Detroit. The judge said the subpoenas need not be complied with because of questions of unconstititutional vagueness involving the FTC probe.

In a message that may have been aimed at the federal judge in Detroit, the FTC officials told reporters that the government's investigation concerns several issues.

Among the issues, these officials said, is the question of why some automakers have far higher profit levels than others. They said the answer could be either monopoly power or greater efficiency. Another issue is what factors explain the industry's pricing behavior.

"Where you have an industry as important and as concentrated as the auto industry, we have a responsibility to take a look," one official said.

Another said the probe is "not necessarily a law enforcement investigation," although he said the FTC has the authority to break up General Motors by ordering divestitures.

Asked the reason for the investigation, an official said, "The U.S. auto industry has been concentrated for a long time.

The three leading companies today are the same three companies as in 1946. ... But the last major antitrust investigation of this industry was in 1939."

An official said the investigation could be concluded in as little as two to three years, at which time the government antitrust experts could issue a report and ask for congressional action or file a case charging monopoly power in the industry.

The FTC officials said Ford's refusal to join the Detroit court suit was the proper way to contest the subpoena. They said this move by Ford has resulted in many items being dropped from its subpoena.

Subpoenas directed at the other auto makers would likewise be panned if they followed Ford's example, the officials said.

The FTC is appealing Kaess's decision to a federal appeals court. In the meantime, commission officials said the investigation is at a standstill.

They also said that similar subpoenas would be issued soon to the four largest foreign automakers.

Bear Undergoes Dental Surgery

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Doctors performed dental surgery Wednesday on "Chiquita" the bear, hoping all the while she wouldn't shake off the sedation before the job was finished.

Chiquita, on loan from the New Orleans zoo, had a chronic problem with an abscessed tooth.

A team of eight doctors and nurses worked on the sun bear for an hour at University of Tennessee's Veterinary Hospital before sending Chiquita back to her den at Knoxville's zoo.

Although groggy, she left sporting a new silver-capped incisor.

"I didn't notice any bad breath," said Dr. William Powell, a local root canal specialist, who worked on Chiquita.

When asked what he and his colleagues discussed while the 220-pound Chiquita lay on the operating table on her stomach, Powell said, "We kept saying how we sure hoped this thing wouldn't wake up."

Suction tubes hung from her clamped-open mouth as greensuited attendants kept tabs on 11-year-old Chiquita's vital signs with stethoscopes and other equipment as she lay on the steel operating table.

Nurses wearing surgical masks, caps and shoes patted and rubbed her dark brown back nervously, and one doctor even held her paw to comfort her.

But Chiquita never budged after being tranquilized at the zoo earlier in the day. She was kept asleep during surgery with anesthetics similar to those used on humans.

Weathermen Warn Of Tornado Complacency

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The storm came right up the street, peeling up houses, cement, people, poles anything and everything, peeling it all up like you would peel a potato. I don't know how I got out, how I lived at all."

Those were the words of one dazed survivor after a tornado that took 746 lives in three states swept through his hometown of Murphysboro, Ill., March 18, 1925.

The more than 50 years since that catastrophe have seen thousands of deaths and millions of dollars in property damage from tornadoes, vicious windstorms that the National Weather Service warned Wednesday will take another 100 lives this year if 1979 is a "normal" season.

Last year 53 Americans died in the 788 tornadoes that struck the nation, but "a one-year decline in tornado deaths is hardly a trend," cautioned Allen Pearson of the National Severe Storm Forecast Center in Kansas City. And Richard E. Hallgren, director of the National Weather Service, expressed concern the comparatively low death toll in 1978 might result in public apathy toward the tornado threat.

"We like to think that our forecasts and warnings, together with preparedness actions at the community level, were responsible for the low death count last year. But the possible public apathy that might follow causes all of us... a lot of uneasiness," Hallgren said. "That apathy could be a killer."

While tornadoes usually tend to be local storms, that 1925 twister described in Jay Robert Nash's book "Darkest Hours" started near Annapolis, Mo., and roared 219 miles across Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana, causing damage estimated at $16.6 million.

Pearson also recounted the deadly outbreak of tornadoes on April 3 and 4, 1974, when 148 tornadoes in 13 states killed more than 300 persons, injured another 6,000 and caused $600 million in damage.

Described by the weather service as "one of the most violent meteorological episodes in U.S. history," the 1974 disaster had the benefit of providing scientists with new information on the fury of tornadoes.

The author describes one elderly woman in Xenia, Ohio, whose home was blown away, leaving her sitting in a rocking chair in the middle of the debris. A man found nothing left but a case of unbroken eggs, a hall mirror and a box of Christmas ornaments.

David Heath, a school teacher who rode out the storm in a hallway with some students, commented later:

"When we went outside the school, the park across the street looked like a part of a planet that had burned up years ago. Then I turned around and was completely stunned. The entire top floor of the high school was missing. Rubble was everywhere. Fountains of water were streaming up from where the second-floor chemistry lab had been."

Ranking third in tornado destruction was the infamous Palm Sunday outbreak of April 11, 1965, when 30 tornadoes took 256 lives in five states.

Most damage is done by what the weather service calls maxi tornadoes, those with winds of more than 200 mph and which remain on the ground for more than 30 miles. While maxi tornadoes represent only about 3 percent of all twisters, they account for 90 percent of tornado deaths.

More difficult to predict, Pearson said, are the smaller but equally dangerous funnel clouds, which drop suddenly from the parent thundercloud, strike and lift back up again.

Pearson's Kansas City office issues a "watch" when tornadoes threaten anywhere in the country, and local weather offices issue warnings when the twisters are sighted locally. New radar units are being used experimentally to help predict the storms in the Midwest.

Officials say persons in the danger area should be prepared to take cover immediately if threatening conditions are sighted.

Passman Jury Selection Moves Slowly

MONROE, La. (UPI) — Jury selection in the bribery and tax evasion trial of former Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., moved agonizingly slow Wednesday with more than one third of first group of prospective jurors already dismissed for cause.

Court sources said jury selection was proceeding at such a slow pace that opening testimony probably could not be presented until Friday at the earliest. Passman, 78, is accused of taking $213,000 from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park to push legislation through Congress by which the United States would sell rice to Park's country. He also is accused of failing to pay income tax on the bribes.

The former official lost his congressional seat in a 1976 election after serving for 30 years. The trial is taking place in Passman's home town even though the indictments were returned in Washington.

Six out of the first 28 persons to sit in the jury box were dismissed for cause by U.S. District Judge Earl Veron. The questioning took place in the privacy of the judge's chambers, so the reasons for the dismissals were not known.

Thirteen others returned to the jury box after questioning. The remainder awaited their turn to go before the judge.

All the dismissals thus far have been by the judge, leaving prosecutors and defense attorneys with all 22 of their peremptory challenges — challenges they may use to dismiss a juror or alternate without being forced to provide a reason.

A jury of 12 and six alternates will be chosen.

Park, who said he gave $800,000 to various congressmen and other officials, was kept secluded in a hotel under the protection of federal marshals. He is expected to be the prosecution's first witness.

Public sentiment in the Bible belt of north Louisiana was strongly in favor of Passman.

"Somebody had to be the fall man and Otto was it," said James Mullican, 71, of West Monroe.

Park refused all comment about the Passman case but talked freely of other matters and spoke respectfully of the former congressman.

"I have a certain degree of immunity with the news media," he said. "I feel at home. I have nothing to hide. I have nothing but great respect for Mr. Passman."

Park said he was surprised that some people in the area were hostile to him.

"I don't know why. I've helped Louisiana get rid of one of its biggest political and economic headaches — rice," Park said. "I've helped sell thousands and thousands of tons of rice, that translates into millions of dollars for the state."

Park has visited New Orleans during Mardi Gras and made trips to other Louisiana cities, but this is his first to Monroe.

"It's like coming to a town I've known all along," he said. "I just wish we didn't have to go through the trial."

Michigan Court Bans Radar Detector Use

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Motorists using radar detectors to avoid speeding tickets can be prosecuted for breaking the law, the Michigan Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday.

Equipping a car with a radar detector could bring a driver a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and a year in jail, or both, under the law.

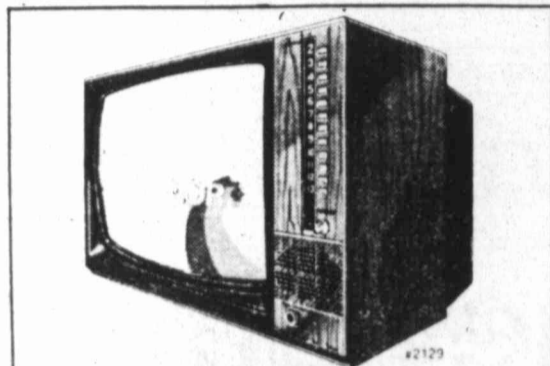

The court said using a radar detector violates a state law which makes it a misdemeanor for a person without a license to use car equipment which receives signals on frequencies assigned by the Federal Communications Commission for police purposes.

In its ruling, however, the court dismissed charges against Daniel Gilbert, stopped in the Detroit suburb of Troy in 1976 and charged with equipping his car with a radar detector. But the appeals court said radar detectors will be illegal from now on.

"When a statute requires a judicial clarification in order to make its language clear," the court said, "it can only be applied to future defendants. As of the date... of this opinion, those persons equipping their vehicle with a radar detector may be prosecuted under the statute."

Radar detectors are small electronic units, usually mounted on a car's dashboard, which sound an alarm when they sense radar signals. They are intended to give the driver time to slow down to the legal speed limit.

Mexican Oil Price Increase Forecast

NEW YORK (AP)—Mexico's national oil company said Wednesday its oil prices will "almost certainly increase" April 1, but prices of some oil products are falling on the spot market.

Meanwhile, with airlines continuing to cancel flights because of tight fuel, Texaco Inc. said it was limiting airline fuel purchases to 80 percent of previous levels.

And Gulf Oil Corp. became the latest in a string of U.S. oil companies limiting gasoline sales to retailers.

Gulf said although its gasoline sales volume has been running 20 percent ahead of a year ago, it is limiting its customers to the amount of gasoline they bought in March 1978.

A spokesman for Pemex, Mexico's oil company, said the price of Mexican crude oil would rise in April from the current $14.10 per barrel to reflect world increases.

OPEC is scheduled to raise its prices by 3.9 percent April 1, and may decide at its meeting scheduled March 26 to make the increase larger because of supply problems caused by the Iranian revolution.

Mexico traditionally bases its oil price on the OPEC price, although it is not a member of the cartel. Mexican officials had indicated last week that Mexico would probably match whatever OPEC did April 1.

OPEC's current base price is $13.35 per barrel, but some members have raised prices on their own by 7 to 10 percent to take advantage of a supply squeeze. Prices for crude oil on the spot market, where oil not covered by long-term contracts is sold, have been running at about $20 a barrel lately. Many former customers of Iran have had to turn to the spot market to meet their oil needs.

The spot market price of heating oil, however, is coming down after hitting record levels in recent weeks, according to Vince Sgro, editor of Oil Buyers' Guide, an industry newsletter.

But Sgro added that prices of heating oil usually fall at this time of year as the weather warms up and demand for the products slackens.

"Buyers are stepping out of the market," Sgro said. "We're seeing a rapid decrease in the price of all products, except gasoline."

Sgro noted that No. 2 heating oil, used primarily for home heating, had been selling for 63 cents a gallon on the spot market last week, but has now dropped to 58 cents a gallon.

But, he said, the drop won't be reflected in consumer prices for heating oil, which have climbed above 63 cents in some areas of the Northeast. Sgro said oil companies had been unable to raise heating oil prices as fast as costs had gone up and will use higher prices to compensate earlier differences.

Several airlines have announced flight cancellations in recent days because of jet fuel shortages. United, the industry leader, says it will scratch 429 flights a week during March.

Texaco, a supplier for most major airlines, said it would limit sales to 80 percent of what airlines had ordered or 80 percent of their order last year, whichever is less.

Airline analysts have warned that rising jet fuel costs could lead to higher fares and fewer discounts. United Airlines Wednesday asked the Civil Aeronautics board for permission to raise all fares by 1.5 percent May 15.

Meanwhile, Phillips Petroleum Co. said Wednesday it was raising the limit on gasoline sales to dealers in March from 70 percent of previous levels to 75 percent to reflect new federal allocation regulations.

Iran Effect On U.S. Economy Cited

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Iranian oil shutdown will result in a 7 percent average increase in world oil prices above previous hikes announced by oil-exporting countries, a congressional study indicated Wednesday.

A preliminary report by the General Accounting Office also said the loss of Iranian oil could raise unemployment in the United States by 100,000 in 1979 and by another 100,000 in 1980.

It could also boost inflation by seven-tenths of one percent in 1979 and four-tenths of one percent in 1980, the GAO study said.

A draft of the report was released by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee.

The size of the oil price increase is directly related to our own failure to conserve and replace oil with other more abundant fuels and to stimulate additional domestic energy production," Jackson said.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to a 14.5 percent hike in December 1978. However, the GAO said that because this increase was to be phased in, the average worldwide hike without considering Iran would have been closer to 10 percent.

The GAO study said the Iranian shutdown will likely add another 7 percent to this increase during 1979—for a total hike of 17 percent.

Iran's provisional government has renewed selling oil, but at prices far above the posted OPEC price of $13.50 a barrel.

The report by the GAO, an auditing branch of Congress, also questioned the effectiveness of some of the energy-conservation steps the Carter administration is considering to deal with the Iranian situation.

It said the administration plan to encourage oil-using industries to switch to coal or natural gas could take from six to nine months "before it can make a significant contribution."

And it said the administration's plan to dip into the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve to avoid shortages of heating oil next winter wouldn't be very effective, either, because the reserve's "present capability...is very limited."

Viets Claim Chinese Troops Plundering

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam accused Chinese troops Wednesday of "plundering, burning people's homes and shelling" as they withdraw from Vietnam, but the Chinese-Vietnamese war appeared to be coming to a close.

It was the first confirmation by the Vietnamese that the Chinese, who announced Monday they were pulling out of Vietnam, had begun moving back.

Fighting in the 17-day-old conflict reportedly continued. Chinese sources said withdrawal might take two weeks or more because "pulling out is more difficult militarily than advancing," according to the Japanese news service Kyodo.

Hanoi radio said Chinese troops were still shelling the provincial capital of Cao Bang on Wednesday and had destroyed two bridges east of the city, 15 miles inside the border. The VNA broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, also said Chinese troops were looting villages.

Local armed forces were fighting back, and have "dealt harsh punitive blows at the enemy troops and caused them many losses," Hanoi radio said.

Kyodo said China claimed to have killed or wounded 10,000 Vietnamese and to have taken 1,000 prisoners.

The Vietnamese news agency claimed Vietnam had "put out of action 45,000 enemy soldiers, knocked out 273 tanks and armored personnel carriers and hit hundreds of artillery pieces and mortars." The claim was quoted in a dispatch by the Soviet news agency Tass from Hanoi.

The Vietnamese confirmation of the Chinese pullback, coupled with Vietnam's promise to refrain from attacking withdrawing troops unless they were provoked, made it appear the war was nearing an end. Both countries have claimed victory.

However, Western observers were wary. In Washington, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke said "certain Chinese units" have returned to China. But he said, "I am not prepared to call it a withdrawal. It may be only redeployment."

Town Police Chief's $102,000 'Pay' Eyed

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The police chief of Jordan Valley, Ore., — population 210 — apparently grossed a personal income of $102,117 last year, making him one of the highest paid law enforcement officials in the nation, according to traffic-fine documents filed with the Oregon Department of Revenue.

Chief Paul Arritola, 38, recently indicted on charges involving falsifying records, refused to comment on the report and Jordan Valley Mayor Ed Krupp, said, "I'd rather have no comment. He has done a pretty good job."

Arritola, who has been accused of running a speed trap in the tiny town on the main highway between Boise, Idaho, and Reno, Nev., was arraigned Monday on charges of tampering with public records and making false statements on official documents.

Three counts accuse the chief of making false entries in expense account records and the fourth count accuses Arritola of making false written statements when applying for certification as a police officer before the Oregon Board on Police Standards and Training.

The city granted Arritola a five-year contract for Jordan Valley's police services in July, 1977. Under the contract, none of the traffic fines, which are Arritola's earnings, goes to the city.

Arritola, who served seven years as an Oregon state policeman, hired an assistant for $800 per month, then bought a radar set and a police car. During the first six months of business, he collected $8,000 per month from speeding motorists.

"It was interesting to watch," a law enforcement officer told the Oregon Journal recently. "Jordan Valley is an L-shaped town. When you go around the corner on Highway 95, you look ahead and see a sign 'Speed Limit 40.' People assume they can do 40 when they see the sign. It induces them to speed up in front of a school."

"Arritola or his helper would sit outside of town, up ahead of that sign, and shoot their radar back toward town. They'd catch one car after another speeding up in front of the school."

Decontrol Of Natural Gas Called Gamble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' decision to lift price controls on natural gas is a gamble that hasn't yet paid off despite sharply rising consumer prices, the government's No. 1 federal energy regulator said Wednesday.

Charles Curtis, chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, said some natural gas prices already have increased by 40 percent under gas deregulation legislation passed by Congress in late 1978.

The most fiercely debated part of President Carter's energy bill, the legislation set a timetable for lifting price controls, resulting in nearly complete deregulation of the clean-burning fuel by January, 1985.

Natural gas users will pay from $1.7 billion to $2 billion extra this year as a result of the legislation and should expect prices to continue rising for years to come, Curtis said.

"That is the reality. Consumers will not be sheltered from it," he told a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee.

But the federal regulator, whose agency is charged with overseeing the act, said there's still no guarantee that deregulation will yield significant increases in natural gas supplies as administration officials had predicted.

"This remains to be seen," Curtis said. The bill was "a wager," he added, "a wager on the part of the American public. It remains to be seen if that wager will pay off."

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., told Curtis: "Some of us are asking if we made a bad bet."

Sasser said natural gas consumers in Memphis already have had their rates raised 20 percent because of the 1978 legislation.

Curtis said the bill, which between now and 1985 allows different maximum prices for different kinds of gas, depending on location and the age of wells, is proving extremely difficult to enforce.

It may prove impossible to enforce effectively, although this also remains to be seen, Curtis testified.

Administration officials have said phased deregulation would provide the incentives industry needs to find new supplies of the fuel.

Newly drilled natural gas that sold for $1.51 per 1,000 cubic feet last October before Congress passed the energy legislation is now selling for the maximum allowable price of $2.11 for the same amount — or about a 40 percent hike, Curtis said.

open court, but no response was reported.

Meanwhile, oil sources said they expect production to level off at around 3 million barrels daily with 2.4 million going for export, compared to 5.4 million out of 6 million barrels under the old regime.

After a 75-day break, exports resumed Monday as a supertanker loaded 250,000 tons of crude for Japan. Another arrived Wednesday to take on oil for the U.S.-based Ashland Oil Co.

National oil director Hasan Nazih refused to say whether gas exports will be resumed to the Soviet Union, which used to buy 30 billion cubic feet annually before the revolution. "We will export gas to any country we think fit," he said.

Hance Backs Anti-Busing Legislation

Lubbock. The Lubbock Independent School District's current court-ordered desegregation plan requires busing about 2,500 of the city's 30,500 students.

The Lubbock case is on appeal, with the U.S. Justice Department seeking a much broader plan.

Court-ordered busing is "certainly not the end of the world," Hance said. However, he said he opposes busing as a tool for integration because:

—It's costly in terms of money and fuel, especially in light of the nation's energy shortage.

—Recent studies conclude that "busing does not improve the quality of education" for children.

Seale said he has heard that Rep. Ronald Mottle, D-Ohio, will reintroduce his anti-busing constitutional amendment. Like McDonald's bill, the Mottl proposal last year was bottled up in the judiciary committee, which is "stacked with liberals," Seale said.

Mottl almost got his amendment out of committee last year by getting more than 200 congressmen to sign a discharge petition.

"Things look excellent this session for something to happen" on anti-busing legislation, Seale said.

He said the Lubbock anti-busing chapter will meet March 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the First Federal Savings & Loan Association branch office, 2220 34th St., to discuss legislative strategy.

At the time they decided to try him as competent, Amarillo authorities did not know Johnson had spent most of life in state schools in Austin, Abilene, Lubbock and Mexia, Holder said during the trial.

He added that Johnson met the other men after getting lost at an Arlington recreation park while on a Mexia State School outing.

Since last November, Johnson has been in Lubbock County Jail, where other inmates have complained that he behaves bizarrely and sometimes howls like a wolf at night.

Holder speculated after the hearing that Johnson, whose four front teeth are missing, believes he is Dracula because children called him that because of his teeth.

Howell said after the hearing that Johnson will be sent back to Rusk State Hospital.

recreation facilities in the city, and citing health and other services provided to minorities, the city's post-trial brief said the "inference of neglect becomes ludicrous."

What the city may be guilty of, the brief said, "is perhaps a failure of the city to communicate to its citizens that which it has accomplished, rather than a failure in accomplishment itself."

The brief notes it is true that a racial minority has yet to win election to the city council. But that fact alone, city attorneys argue, is not evidence that the present system is discriminatory — or that a single-member district system, by which certain seats on the council would be designated for particular geographic areas of the city, would be an improvement.

"To show dilution of their voting, they (minorities) must show more than a mere disparity between the percent of minority residents and the percent of minority representation and must affirmatively demonstrate that the minority group has less opportunity to participate in the political process," the city's brief says.

"Obviously, this has not been demonstrated."

Carter Says Mideast Peace Within Reach

The statement said the blasts were designed to "confront Carter's visit to the area, which is aimed at achieving unilateral peace between Egypt and Israel at the expense of our Palestinian people's rights."

The guerrilla group said orders were issued to its fighters "to step up the military operations against Israel to protest Carter's visit."

Also in Beirut, Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization called on Palestinians living under Israeli occupation to greet Carter with a general strike and demonstrations.

The president, after flying across the Atlantic overnight, will ride in a motorcade into the capital to open a three-day visit that Egyptians hope will boost President Anwar Sadat's image. Tens of thousands of spectators are expected to line the route.

Also mixed in with the negotiating are a Carter train ride on Friday to Alexandria and a speech Saturday to the Egyptian Parliament in Cairo. He also will inspect the pyramids.

The 100-mile train ride to Alexandria, the historic city on the Mediterranean, will attract considerable local attention.

Carter's high visibility is designed to rub off on Sadat, who is distrusted in much of the Arab world for pursuing peace with Israel. Having the president prominently in Egypt as the final issues are tackled is a way of showing the United States stands with him.

Carter's Mideast mission won't be easy to overlook at home, either. Television screens, the radio and newspapers will drive his peacemaking image home to the American public.

Carter will shuttle to Jerusalem on Saturday evening, planning to remain at least until Monday. Beyond that, his itinerary has not been disclosed and may not even be set.

He could be coming home at that point, if an agreement is in hand, or he might participate in an initial ceremony.

If one or two key issues are unresolved, he might conduct a bit of shuttle diplomacy between Cairo and Jerusalem.

A White House official who asked not to be identified cautioned late Tuesday that it will be impossible to conclude all formal action on a treaty during Carter's trip.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who was leaving New York Wednesday evening, was asked to compare his feelings now with those after last fall's Camp David summit meeting. He told reporters:

"There was euphoria (last fall), not only in this country, but in Jerusalem and Cairo and throughout the world. Now we must be very careful. I am hopeful."

Egyptian officials, led by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, were equally positive about the treaty outlook.

In Cairo, Zbigniew Brzezinski, the U.S. national security adviser, outlined Carter's latest proposals to Sadat. His reaction was not immediately known, but Egyptian officials said Carter's trip may mean "the final sprint" to a peace treaty.

An Egyptian spokesman said the outlook is "rather good in my opinion." He said the Egyptian cabinet would study the U.S. proposals today and may seek some changes, although he added that the proposals "did not deviate much" from the agreements reached at the Camp David summit meeting last fall.

Murder Trial Defendant Dies In Cell

arrived with breakfast at the locked 8-by-5-foot cell that usually is used to detain the county's female and juvenile prisoners.

Authorities said they could not determine how long Carter had been dead. Ralls Justice of the Peace Jim S. Travis, who pronounced Carter dead, said he will await final autopsy analyses before ruling in the case.

Autopsy samples, including the .22-caliber bullet removed from Carter's head, and the pistol, will be taken to the Department of Public Safety laboratory in Austin by Texas Rangers.

Although authorities refused comment on how the weapon came to be in the cell, one source indicated Carter may have had the gun with him when he left the Lubbock jail.

Crosby County Attorney Bill Marley said the last persons to see Carter alive before his body was discovered Wednesday were deputies Red Riley and Paul Stone, who delivered the prisoner's dinner to his cell about 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Sheriff Fred Owen and his family live in the same building that houses the jail, about 100 feet from Carter's cell. The sheriff's residence, however, is separated from the cells by a large, open area — which will be the jail's new booking and interrogation area when renovation is completed — and by a 4-inch thick steel door.

Fitts, who serves as jailer, lives in a trailer adjacent to the jail. His home can be seen through a steel-screened window outside Carter's cell.

Owen told Carter's brother, James, and his 52-year-old mother, Bonnie McKinney, of the death about 9 a.m. Wednesday when they went to the courthouse where jurors were being selected.

Mother Hospitalized

After hearing of her son's death, Mrs. McKinney was admitted to Crosbyton Clinic Hospital. She reportedly suffers from a nervous condition but hospital officials would not comment on her condition Wednesday night.

Alton Griffin, former Lubbock County criminal district attorney who is special prosecutor for both Carter's and Mrs. Bruce's trials, said he does not know what effect Carter's death will have on the second trial.

Ralls attorney Lee said no decision has been made yet whether to file a change of venue motion.

"I met with Judge Bevers this afternoon (Wednesday) to determine when the judge would be able to try Mrs. Bruce's case," Lee said. "At this point, it looks as if the judge will not be able to hear the case (in Crosbyton) until late April or early May."

As for a change of venue, Lee said, "There are so many factors to consider, such as public reaction to Carter's death and the people already questioned during his jury selection proceeding."

The Ralls attorney said if the investigation of Carter's death is completed soon, he has no qualms about trying the case in Crosbyton.

"If this thing drags on, however, it might be better to move it because (the case) will be in everyone's mind," Lee added.

If a change of venue is approved, the case probably will be moved to Lubbock, the other county in the state's 72nd District.

Mrs. Bruce, 57, was arrested Oct. 30, 1978, after she went to Lubbock DPS headquarters for questioning in connection with the killings. She is in Lubbock County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Services for Carter, who was raised in Lorenzo, are pending with Carter-Adams Funeral Home of Ralls.

Home Siding Contracts Questioned

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Human Relations Commission members Wednesday night vehemently condemned what they termed a siding company "ripoff" that may be causing many north and east Lubbock residents unwittingly to mortgage their homes to finance aluminum siding.

A Fort Worth company apparently is selling siding that costs more than the houses are worth and is including in the contract a mortgage provision in case of non-payment, HRC director Luciano Perez told the commission.

Perez, who declined to name the firm, said the company is offering the siding at what seems to be fair price but that ends up costing up to $10,000.

"The people are signing contracts and then finding out that the fine print says they have mortgaged their home for payment," Perez said. "The people do not know what they are signing, and the commission has the responsibility to tell the community."

The Better Business Bureau is looking into the practice and is seeking complaints from people who feel they have been taken advantage of, Perez added.

Legal Counsel Urged

He said he also is preparing public service announcements in Spanish to inform residents of the practice and to advise them to seek legal counsel before signing any contracts.

"It could be that there's nothing illegal about it (the siding contracts)," Perez said. "But at this point I think the best we can do is tell people not to mortgage their homes."

Commission members also decided to include in the April HRC newsletter, which is sent to minority businesses and media, an explanation of the siding practice.

Urban Renewal Discovery

Perez said he learned of the practice from the Urban Renewal Agency, which encountered it in houses marked for demolition.

In other business, the meeting which the commission has been trying for some time to set up with City Council to discuss the functions of HRC agains has been put off because of the continuation of the redistricting suit.

A decision in that suit has not yet been reached, according to Perez, and because HRC's function between council and HRC may take place.

Panel Formed For Reagan '80 Campaign

Dwight D. Eisenhower to the White House in 1952. "has there been such a perfect 'fit' between the man and the public mood as there is today with Governor Reagan and the American people," he said.

Laxalt also said that Reagan and his campaign workers would sever their connections with Citizens for the Republic, the political action committee that Reagan formed to support his activities between elections.

Laxalt said Reagan would continue working as a syndicated newspaper columnist and radio commentator at least until he began campaigning formally.

By authorizing a campaign committee to act in his behalf, Reagan became the ninth GOP candidate. Regardless of whether he has formally announced, a person becomes a candidate under the Federal Election Act when such a committee is formed, unless he expressly disassociates from it.

Announced GOP candidates include Crane, former Treasury secretary John Connally, former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen and Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez.

Others who are unannounced but are candidates by virtue of having a registered committee are former CIA Director George Bush, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

No Democrats have announced or have registered campaign committees, although one is expected to be launched for President Carter next week.

Food Price Increases Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential inflation-fighter Alfred E. Kahn said Wednesday the Carter administration is weighing a series of options to slow the escalation of food prices, even as government economists reported no end in sight to skyrocketing beef and dairy prices.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, which Kahn heads, reported that farm prices of food rose over November, December and January at a 40 percent annual clip, compared to 21.7 percent for all of 1978.

"We should have a list in two weeks of things that are feasible — that make sense" in the effort to slow inflation of food costs, Kahn told the Senate Budget Committee.

"It would be silly for me to speculate" now on what form the food-price fight would take, he added, saying he and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland had met twice in the last several days to talk about the program.

Kahn ruled out absolutely any mandatory price controls. But he refused to close the door on the possibility the administration might raise quotas on imported meat in an effort to increase supplies and, thus, reduce prices.

"I do not regard relaxing import quotas on beef with the same distaste as I do price controls," Kahn said. But he added that such action would have little long-run effect on prices.

He rejected the idea that the 0.9 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index in January means Carter's anti-inflation program is not working. The increases in energy and food prices were caused mainly by bad weather, decline of cattle herds, the oil cartel and the trouble in Iran — events over which the government has virtually no control, he added.

Kahn's testimony came as the Council on Wage and Price Stability reported that the surge in beef and dairy prices cannot be viewed as temporary. "In the three-month period ending in January, farm prices rose at a 40 percent annual rate, and preliminary data for February indicate continued large increases," the council reported. "These increases are concentrated in meats, fruits and vegetables and dairy products, and imply that the rapid rise in retail food prices will extend through March."

Beef, fresh vegetables and energy were the big factors in the 0.9 percent increase in consumer prices January, which translates into inflation at the rate of 10.8 percent a year.

Inflation overall last year was 9 percent, and a major factor in that escalation was a 21.7 percent increase in farm prices. Continuation of the 40 percent increase in farm prices in the first quarter of 1979 could result in overall inflation far above the Carter administration's forecast of 7.5 percent.

The council repeated the often-expressed concern about the cost of energy and hospital services. One of the few bright spots in the report forecast moderation in housing prices by mid-year.

Kahn, who often reminds listeners of his optimism, told the Budget Committee that the spell of bad news should not be interpreted as proof that the president's anti-inflation program is a failure.

"How could we have (failed) in only three months, after 10 years of chronic inflation and mounting inflationary expectations?" he asked.

The nation's largest business firms are supporting Carter's voluntary guidelines on wage and price increases, Kahn said.

Pompeii Exhibit Packs Dallas Art Museum

DALLAS (AP) — Call it preoccupation with man's mortality. Call it fascination with death, destruction, violence. Call it the lure of past ages, of things unknown.

Whatever your explanation, curiosity or something more cosmic is drawing 4,000 to 5,000 persons a day to the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts. The attraction: the destruction of a city, Pompeii A.D. 79.

"We got up at 6:30 to get here at 8:15 this morning to get our tickets," said a weary Margie Franks, trying to subdue her wiggling 4-year-old son. "We got them at 9:15 and now it's 12:15 and we're finally getting in."

"We almost didn't get tickets," said Kay Daniel, leading a group of 10 Girl Scouts from Christi Elementary School in nearby Plano. "We got here at 9:30 and they were selling out."

Tickets are given away, not sold, near the museum at 9 a.m. and museum officials report they usually are gone by 11 a.m. About 200 tickets for each quarter hour are handed out. The private tours, from 9 to 11 a.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., have been full for months.

Teachers and parents seem at a loss to explain why youngsters who can't remember their lunch money and don't give a hoot about the Alamo can remember obscure details about the destruction of the Roman colony Aug. 24, 79.

"It was their (the girls') choice to come here," said Karen Felknor, another Christi Girl Scout leader. "We studied the encyclopedia some, and tried to make a presentation to one of the girls' meetings.

"But they knew everything we did and more. They were telling us things," she added.

It is easy to explain the enchantment of the exhibit, which closes March 18. The citizens of Pompeii lived and died in the shadow of Vesuvius. We only have nuclear destruction to worry us.

"I asked my (three) girls if it happened to them now, what would they grab. What would they do," Mrs. Franks said. "She (pointing to 10-year-old Suzanne) said she'd grab her Daddy."

"What would you grab?" she asked 13-year-old Ruthanne.

"I don't know," the girl answered, obviously cataloging the contents of her room at home. What would she be remembered by 1,000 years from now? Coke bottles, albums, cosmetics, blue jeans, televisions, Frisbees?

"Your Andy Gibb poster?" her mother prompted.

"Yeah," the girl answered, blushing.

Visitors find themselves standing transfixed, mouths agape, in front of certain exhibits.

"It's not just a lot of paintings," Ruthanne said later in the tour.

"It's neat because it's real," added her friend, 13-year-old Michelle Smith.

Trawler Nets U.S. Sub; Catch Catches Catcher

LONDON (AP) — A Scottish fishing trawler got its nets tangled with a submerged U.S. nuclear submarine off Scotland Wednesday and was dragged through the water for about 45 minutes, the British coast guard and U.S. Navy reported.

There were no injuries or serious damage to the trawler or the submarine, officials said. A coast guard officer at Ardrossan on Scotland's west coast, said the fishing boat lost about 1,200 feet of line and had to cut its nets.

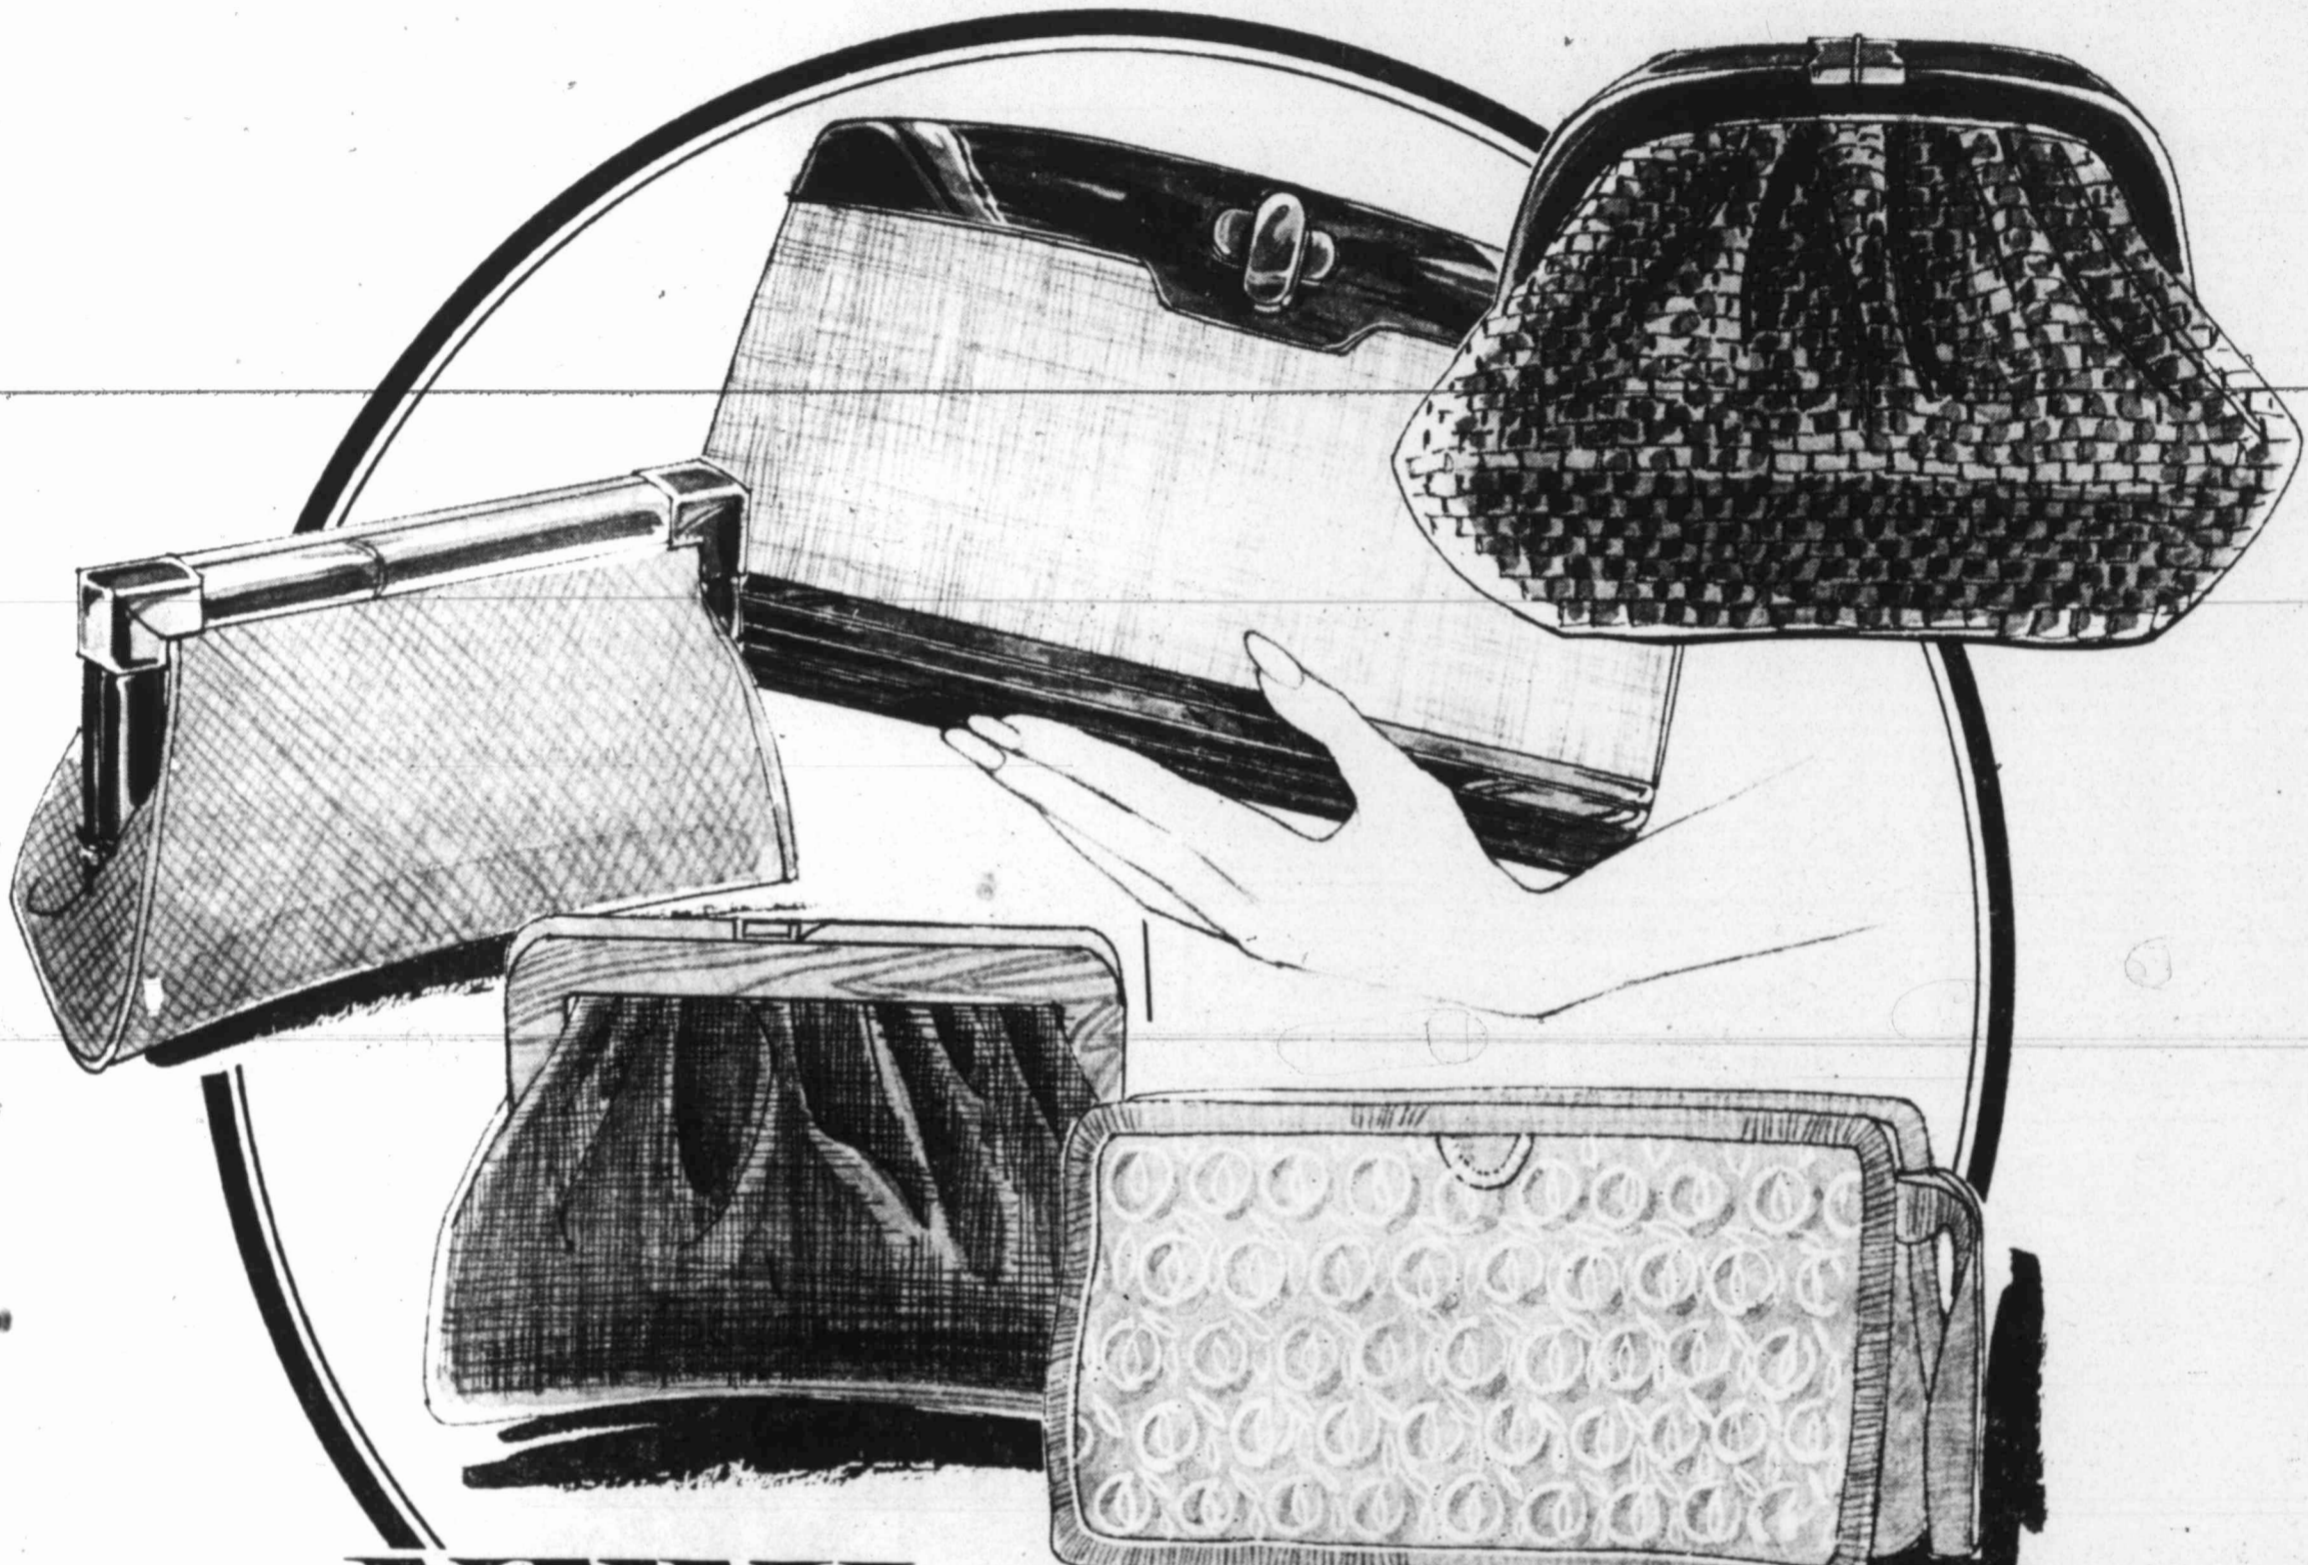

Lt. Cmdr. Tim Mennuti, a spokesman for the U.S. Navy in London, confirmed that an American nuclear submarine was involved but declined to give the sub's name or details of its operation. There is a U.S. nuclear submarine base at the Holy Loch in the Firth of Clyde near Ardrossan.

Mennuti said the trawler "reported being towed astern by a submerged submarine in the Sound of Jura on the western coast of Scotland at about 10 a.m."

"It could have been nasty, really," the coast guard official said. He said the training area is "also one of the major fishing areas. So you can't win, really."

Former Atkins Coach Airs Case At Hearing

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas Education Agency Wednesday opened a hearing on the case of ousted teacher-coach Elton Conger, who wants to get his job back with the Lubbock Independent School District.

An attorney for Conger, who contends he was the victim of racial prejudice and lack of due process, attempted to dispute the district's allegation that the black coach was insubordinate.

Much of Wednesday's testimony before TEA hearing officer Margaret Cooper centered around comments of Atkins Junior High School head coach Gordon Nelson, who said Conger did not fulfill his repeated promises to clean up his language, that he did not supervise properly the assistant eighth-grade coaches or correctly use all the football plays as Nelson had instructed him.

Nelson said that while he had never known Conger to "cuss out" an athlete, and that profanity is nothing new in coaching, Conger had failed to follow instructions.

Conger's attorney, Barbara Hoffman, called into question the "direct order" school administrators say Conger received Oct. 19 not to coach his team that afternoon.

In that meeting, Conger, Nelson, Atkins Principal Waylon Carroll, Pete Regas, athletic director for Lubbock public schools, and Hollis Gaiety, assistant athletic director for junior high school programs, discussed the situation, Nelson said.

At the end of the meeting, Regas reportedly instructed Conger not to coach his team until he had decided whether to give up either his coaching duties or to be reassigned, two options Nelson said he and the other three men had discussed in an earlier meeting without Conger.

Nelson said there was "no doubt" that

SERVICE TO EXPAND

Conger was not to coach the team until a decision was made. Conger has said there was no "direct order," only oral instructions.

Conger's attorney also said the other men had not told Conger that Nelson would coach the team that afternoon, although Nelson said it was "understood" that the team would be supervised.

Before they are called on to exercise their minds, boys and girls at Hardwick Elementary exercise their muscles — first by jogging around the campus, then by dancing disco in the school's "Song and Sweat Shop."

"Dancing is fun. It wakes you up before you have to go to class," said fourth-grader Dann Goen, one of about 25 volunteers for the 7:45 a.m. routine at Hardwick, 1420 Chicago Ave.

The "Early Morning Awakening" sessions — during which students boogie to such disco hits as "Macho Man" and "Le Freak" — are sponsored by teacher Sandra Carter as part of National Physical Education and Sport Week, March 1-7.

"The kids enjoy getting up early and doing something fun and active. This really gets them in gear for the day ahead," Mrs. Carter, who has been teaching 13 years, half of them at Hardwick, said.

Mrs. Carter opens the half-hour pre-class sessions by taking students on a 10-minute run. Then they meet in the Hardwick music-physical education room, nicknamed the "Song and Sweat Shop," for what officially are called "aerobics and rhythmic activities."

The teacher plays a tape of disco songs and leads the children through routines that include jumping jacks, pushups, running in place, bends, twists and hottest-to-goodness disco moves.

The kids are allowed to improvise with splits and steps that would do John Travolta proud.

Today the volunteers will get some professional advice from dance instructor Karla Parks, who conducts "Disco Minutes" for a local television station. She has accepted an invitation from Mrs. Carter to demonstrate disco-steps for the children this afternoon.

Students have different reasons for turning out for the early morning activities.

"You get to jog," said fifth-grader Amy Damron, who added that the running will help prepare her for track competition. "And you get to dance."

Remarkable classmate Raychelle Darty, who stands five feet tall and weighs all of 98 pounds: "I feel I'm a little overweight for my age and need the exercise."

Texas House Supports Oil Superport

AUSTIN (AP) — House members overwhelmingly voted Wednesday to pump another $2.4 million in tax dollars into Texas' efforts to build an offshore port for jumbo oil tankers.

A 114-26 vote advanced the money bill (SB126), and a final House decision will come Thursday. The measure still will need Senate approval of House amendments.

Backers said the superport would keep oil flowing into refineries and chemical plants along the Gulf Coast when Texas production no longer can supply them.

"I want those refinery and chemical jobs to be in Houston and on the coast when we run out of oil, and that day will come," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado.

The major change made by the House was to give the money to the Texas Deepwater Port Authority in stages. Most of it — $1.6 million — could be spent only if federal authorities license the port and Gov. Bill Clements approves $1.2 billion in revenue bonds for its construction.

The state appropriation would be repaid from the first proceeds of the bonds.

In 1977, the Legislature appropriated $500,000 for the port authority's efforts but the money has been spent. Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed the authority after a consortium of oil companies called Seadock abandoned its efforts to obtain a federal license and build the port.

Rep. Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton, said several oil and chemical companies are interested in using the superport 26 miles south of Freeport but won't commit themselves publicly at this time because they fear anti-trust actions.

"They all say, 'We are interested but we can't lobby for it,'" Benedict said.

"The basic consideration is do we or don't we want a deepwater port. If we want it, we had better get it done right now," said Rep. Cullen Looney, D-Edinburg.

Reps. Milton Fox, R-Houston, and Fred Agnich, R-Dallas, both of whom have been in the oil business, opposed the bill.

Agnich said "nothing could be further from the truth" than to say Texas' coastal refineries and petrochemical plants might shut down some day if the state has no port for supertankers.

"If they were in jeopardy the oil and chemical companies would be down here fighting to protect their investment," Agnich said.

He said the future of the port was questionable because oil companies never have agreed to ship enough oil through it to generate sufficient revenue to pay off the bonds.

Fox said supertankers are useful only for long hauls such as from Africa or the Middle East but the most logical source of imported oil for Texas is Mexico.

He tried and failed to add an amendment requiring the Deepwater Port Authority to repay the state double the amount of the appropriation in recognition of the "risk" to the taxpayers.

"If you were going to Vegas with your money, I don't think you'd want a game where the best you could do is get your money back," Fox said.

Woman Held In Jail-Break Case

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Authorities had in custody Wednesday a woman believed to be partly responsible for helping free a Missouri jail prisoner last March.

The prisoner, William Gregory Forbes, was shot to death last Friday by authorities in his hometown of Wichita Falls.

Sharon Louise Dearing, 25, of Odessa was arrested, along with three others, at her mobile home in the Odessa suburb of Gardendale Tuesday night.

She was charged Wednesday afternoon with possession of a prohibited weapon and possession of marijuana. She also faces charges from Wichita Falls on auto theft, and for aiding in the Newton, Mo., jail break.

NUTRITION WEEK — An economical casserole can include foods from the four basic food groups, dairy, meats, vegetables and bread. Milk and a citrus salad are tasty accompaniments.

Known Physician Discusses Seven Good Health Habits

Emphasizing health and nutrition during National Nutrition Week, which ends Saturday, Dr. Laurence M. Hursh, a consultant to the National Dairy Council, discusses health habits.

Are there seven good health habits your doctor wishes you had? According to the American Medical Association, there are. And to promote this fact, AMA ran an advertisement in the Wall Street Journal, listing the seven habits. In case you missed the publicity this ad generated, here are the seven habits:

Three meals a day at regular times and no snacking. Don't skip breakfast — it'll just get you in trouble later on in the day when you're apt to eat more than you should.

The other six "good habits" were listed as moderate exercise, adequate sleep, no smoking, immunization, moderate weight, and alcohol in moderation.

Dr. Hursh questions only the rigidity of three meals a day and no snacking. For there may be many people whose schedule would permit them to eat more frequent but smaller meals each day — or to indulge in nutritious snacks that would otherwise be part of regular meals. In other words, if people choose their foods wisely and keep their weight ideal, he is not concerned if they do it outside the "three-meals-a-day" pattern.

SAN JOAQUIN BOLOGNA RIBBONS

- 12 slices raisin bread
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish, well drained
- 18 slices bologna
- Lettuce leaves
- Olives, chili peppers or pickles (optional)

Spread raisin bread with mayonnaise. Set aside. Blend cream cheese and pickle relish. Spread evenly on 12 of the bologna slices, dividing equally. For each sandwich, stack two cream cheese-bologna slices; cover with reserved slice of bologna. Sandwich meat stack and lettuce leaf between two slices of bread. Cut into four triangles. If desired, thread three or four triangles on wooden skewers and garnish with olives, chili peppers or pickles. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Six diamonds would have been an excellent contract, but it is difficult to reach in any system. After the spade lead on the diagrammed hand, nine tricks were there for the taking. But the game was duplicate, so overtricks were extremely important. Frequently in duplicate bridge, declarers will take great risks as they strive for the highest score, even if they risk the original contract.

Declarer on this hand found the best of both worlds: He discovered a way to play for overtricks and still not endanger the contract.

East covered the opening spade lead with his king and declarer won the trick with the ace. Declarer knew that West had the queen of spades because if East had both the king and queen, he would have played the queen at trick one.

Declarer wanted to establish his diamond suit and at the same time keep East away from the lead. If East got on the lead, he would be able to lead through declarer's jack-four of spades.

Thus, declarer crossed to dummy's king of hearts and led a small diamond from dummy, finessing the jack and losing to West's queen. West could now do no more than cash his queen of spades to hold declarer to two overtricks in the three no trump contract. If West had not taken this trick, declarer would have made an additional overtrick.

A safe play that does not endanger the contract should be sought in any form of bridge. Even if this hand came up in rubber bridge, declarer's play on the diagrammed hand still had everything to gain and nothing to lose.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found good use for self-stick felt protective pads (or circles) other than for the bottoms of figurines, etc.
I also use them on my sliding closet doors that do not have "stops" on them. The doors kept "banging" against the woodwork so I just stuck two of the circles (one on top of the other) at both top and bottom of the side of the door that butts up against the woodwork, and it stopped the banging and is a real good butler for the door and woodwork as well! — Grace D.C.

DEAR HELOISE:
For those of us who own drip coffee-makers, instead of throwing the used paper filters away, try rinsing them and saving them for some of those dirty jobs you wouldn't want to use your dishcloth for, like scrubbing ashtrays, getting the preliminary "gunkies" out of the casserole dish, and endless other little dirty jobs.
They're stronger than paper towels, and who could argue with the economic and ecological pluses?
The filters can be thrown away after one extra use because it seems we always have another filter shortly thereafter. — The new Mrs. J.H.

DEAR HELOISE:
Remember the time you forgot to take your polyester dress out of the dryer? Then when you did remember, it was too late! Oh so many, many wrinkles, you couldn't even iron them out.
Next time, just put the dress back in the dryer with a wet towel. The steam created from the towel will pull the wrinkles right out. Now, isn't that easy? — Cindy Wing.

Well congratulations, Mrs. Harris, from all of us here in the office.
You know your idea really works, we tried it. It seems that there are always some dirty jobs to be cleaned up and who wants to ruin a nice, pretty dishcloth? — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Do you have the problem of large dogs tipping over your garbage can?
Drive a stake or broom handle into the ground, about the height of the can, and slip one handle of the can over it. You may have a frustrated dog, but you will not have to collect garbage from the neighbor's (and your) yard each day! — Marietta Jack

DEAR HELOISE:
I place plastic bags over my daughter's shoes before she puts her rubber boots on. They slide on and off very easily without the shoe coming off with the boot.
This is especially good when the boot is a little too small. — Linda Feiler

Boy, you have certainly solved a problem for me. I generally take out my garbage at night or did, until my neighbor got a monstrous dog! In the morning the trash would be all over the neighborhood, and guess who had to pick it up? But not anymore! Since I did what you suggested in your hint, the dog doesn't even come around!
Why should he? All the fun is gone out of eating! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Soon after the birth of our first grandson (about 18 months ago) we began saving the plastic containers from products such as shampoo, conditioner, hand lotion, etc. — even the small ones. After getting them cleaned up and dried out, my husband would put a bean or pebble in the small ones and several in the larger ones. Then he would glue the tops on so the beans or pebbles could never get out and the baby couldn't open them.
We even have several of the large fabric softener containers (with handle on the side) which, when combined with a handful of small rocks, make terrific "rattles." Now when we have little ones around to visit, we have a huge box full of great toys. They are harmless, indestructible, inexpensive, and they love them. — Martha C. Watkins

Tots Learn Music By Imitation

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A 2-year-old picks up a little violin and plays a few notes. She is learning to play the instrument nearly as soon as she has learned to speak.

More than 100 young children attend Suzuki violin classes in Topeka.

They are using a method created in Japan more than 40 years ago by Shinichi Suzuki. They learn music the same way they learn to talk.

"Suzuki conceived the idea that children could learn music by listening and imitation, the same as they learn to speak," says Katherine Service, a local Suzuki teacher. "A baby learns its mother tongue easily. There's no reason he can't learn music the same way."

Ideally, Mrs. Service said, Suzuki begins when babies are brought home from the hospital and their mothers begin playing certain recordings over and over, encouraging the children to recognize tunes.

Practically, however, children usually are at least walking and talking before they get their first exposure to the violin through Suzuki.

Mrs. Service and another teacher, Lola Dexter, have pupils as young as 2. They have been teaching Suzuki five years in the Topeka area.

The preschoolers are soon able to play

"Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" in various rhythms as the fundamentals of correct wrist and finger positions are reinforced. Classic children's tunes give way to Bach minuets before the youngsters are old enough for school.

After they begin reading from their first-grade primers, the pupils learn the notes of the pieces they've been performing for years and how to spot those notes on a musical staff.

But pieces are played without looking at music, for that is how they are learned, said Mrs. Service. And that, perhaps, is the major difference between Suzuki and traditional violin pupils.

Many Couples Still Favor Traditional Party Custom

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

The tradition of "shivaree" or harassment of newlyweds has thankfully died. But the bridal shower is alive and well and serves a very practical purpose — the provisioning of a new home.

Bridal showers have not changed much over the years and remain essentially the same. Those planning a bridal shower usually say, "Oh, dear, can't we think of something else to do, except play those silly games?"

Usually, however, no one can think of anything different and "add a word" in a variety of guises or recipes for the bride-to-be are still favorite activities of bridal parties.

Refreshments, too, are unsurprisingly similar, with finger sandwiches still in vogue. After all, everyone knows the familiar pastel cake (decorated with calorie loaded icing) will follow. Naturally, punch is always accompanying fare.

Certainly the soon-to-be-couple finds the bridal shower highly desirable — homes are not established inexpensively these days. Besides, can't the four toasters (five received) be exchanged for other things?

Do away with the traditional bridal shower? Of course not — the giggles and "oohs" are too much fun.

Prospective bridegrooms today generally reiterate that having a formal bachelor's party hadn't even occurred to them, so perhaps the tradition is not so popular today.

But if the traditional bachelor's party has almost died, then informal gatherings hosted by friends has not.

One male said that recently when he and some friends were planning such a gathering, the suggestion to feature something ribald was quickly voted down.

"So, I rather expected the party to be strictly 'a drag' and it was. We played a little poker, had a few beers, someone told a lewd joke or two (though no one knew very many), but I guess it was pretty boring."

"After lingering as long as we could, the party closed down about 4 a.m."

Did the party-pooper plan to disdain the "bachelor" when he got married?

"It's a tradition, I guess. I don't know why we still have them. I've been to so many of these parties — I can't count how many — and they're all alike. I'd like mine to be the same though."

Colorful Kites Signal Spring

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Kites and kids and Spring all go together and this year is no exception. Neither the origin nor the inventor of kites is known, however according to history it seems that the first kites were made and used in China. The highest form of development occurred in the Far East. Chinese kites were often built large enough to bear a man aloft and were used militarily as observation posts. Surprisingly there is no evidence that these kites were used for pleasure.

Kite-making spread from China about 1,900 years ago to neighboring countries such as Malaya, Polynesia, Asia Arabia, and eventually to England and Europe.

According to "Kites — An Historical Survey" by Clive Hart, kites have been used for fishing, pulling horseless carriages across land and boats across water, carrying men in wars, life-saving at sea and innumerable other things. Of kites, he also says, "Their most important role was as the prototype of the airplane wing. The kite may, in fact, be regarded as a tethered glider."

Eventually kites arrived in West Texas and were built by their owners for reasons of pleasure.

As a general rule, "butcher paper" was used by early West Texans to construct their kites. With homemade sticks and "bought" string, kite-making involved the whole family. And with a "tail" added from a "ragbag," the kite was ready to fly — at West Texas winds obliged (which they usually did).

According to local hobby shops, kites are still popular today. But few people purchase materials to make kites from scratch — except for a few students who are assigned to make kites as projects. The stores report some purchases of balsawood and colored tissue paper for this purpose.

One shop manager said the most popular, as well as most expensive, kites this year are the "sea serpent" and "wind dragon" which have 25 foot tails. Less expensive kites include "skyniks" and "tetra."

Perhaps most popular among the young crowd this year are kites sporting Mickey Mouse and bird motifs — prices ranging from 99 cents upward to $5.98. Kites are going like "proverbial hot cakes," said the hobby shop owner, but he admitted, "they always do in Spring." So when West Texas breezes blow, you're sure to see kids and kites silhouetted against a blue Spring sky.

Weddings

WHITNEY—STALTER
ROSWELL, N.M. (Special) — Debra Denise Whitney and Robert Wilson Stalter Jr. exchanged vows Saturday in ceremonies at the First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Roland McGregor officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Whitney of Roswell and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson Stalter of Lubbock.

Honor attendants were Diane Whitney, sister of the bride, and Marty Hegdal.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will live in Lubbock.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: My daughter had her spleen removed. She is 29 now and in fairly good health except for frequent colds, which she passes on to her young daughter and her husband. Someone told us recently that after spleen removal the person should be on continuing doses of antibiotics to prevent infection. Would you please advise? — Mrs. H.M.

Wrong. Antibiotics are not needed because of spleen removal. Its absence would have nothing to do with her frequent colds. Even if it did antibiotics would not affect the cold virus. She'll have to look to other reasons for the family's apparent susceptibility to colds.

Dr. Ruble: What can be done for ingrown hairs? I get them on my face and shaving does not eliminate them. — H.R.

A recent study by the Army indicates that dealing with ingrown hairs successfully should begin with letting the beard grow out for 30 days. This eliminates the ingrown hairs. Afterwards, shaving should not be too close, and preferably with an electric razor. The problem is more severe in dark-skinned people. During the growing out phase, the skin should be kept very clean. The military's aversion to beards makes this a hardship for some servicemen.

Dear Dr. Ruble: You wrote about pacemakers recently. My heart goes about 52 beats a minute, but sometimes drops to 40. Would you recommend a pacemaker for this? — H.R.

You can't use heart rate alone to determine if a patient would be helped by a pacemaker — which is a tiny battery-operated device to control heart rate by delivering electrical impulses when needed. It depends on symptoms the slower rate causes. Some people are healthy and have no problems with a heart rate of 40. Others may become confused, faint, and even disabled by such a rate.

Thus, each case has to be evaluated individually. This usually involves use of a portable heart monitoring device and a careful diary of the person's activities over a specified period of time — a day or two. Special tests to measure the heart's electrical impulses (conduction tests) may be necessary before a final decision is made.

If you have untoward symptoms related to slow heart rate or fluctuations in rate, get an examination.

This inflammation is called "cheilosis." The splitting and soreness are usually due either to dentures, dental problems or to poor nutrition. In some, chronic angular cheilosis (both corners of the mouth) may indicate an infection with the candida organism. That should be investigated after all this time.

Usually, though, correction of the dental or nutrition problem corrects things. If it is the candida germ causing it, local applications of nystatin will help. The infection should be seen firsthand for proper diagnosis. It is true, incidentally, that nuts and chocolate, as well as citrus or other spicy foods, might cause the sores to appear, but eliminating those foods will not prevent them from coming back.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My mouth continually splits on both sides. For the past two years it seems there is always a split at both corners, sometimes very sore. At one time I was told it was from eating peanuts or from coffee drinking. But after eliminating these from my diet, it is the same. Hope you can suggest something. — F.A.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've never read anything on this subject in the way that I am going to present it. I hope you will print my letter. I am the Other Woman.

Dear Wife of My Lover: I am younger than you, more sensitive, more cultivated, more interesting and more responsive to your husband's needs. I am not a ravishing beauty, but I do know quality when I see it — and lady, he's got it.

If you don't want him, just keep on nagging, complaining, being a frump and a bore. Make him feel guilty and he'll continue to escape from that icebox you call a home. I'll see to it that he finds plenty of comfort in my warm and loving arms.

This is my first affair, and his too. Ours is no bedspring romance. We are in love and it is pure magic. No guilt, no shame, and no future. No future, that is, if you see yourself in this letter and go to work to get him back. Half of me hopes you won't — because I want this man more than I've ever wanted anything in my life. But the other half of me knows he must have loved you once and his young children need him. No man leaves a wife and a family without paying a tremendous price.

I am writing this letter because I need to go on record. I must tell myself, "You warned her. You gave her a blueprint. You tried to wise her up but she wouldn't listen." I hope and pray with all my heart that you will ignore this letter. Then it will be mine — Patience.

Dear Patience: Your chances are excellent — unfortunately. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann: Can I play Ann Landers and answer "Had It in Janeville" who was miserable because her parents always seemed to belittle her and make her feel as if she was failing them?

Dear Had: You are the only one who has control over your feelings. No one can "make you feel" inadequate without your permission. Take responsibility for your own feelings, and allow others to be responsible for theirs.

If your parents constantly find fault with you, that's their problem. See the irony and the humor in it. Accept your parents as they are, and let it be. Their behavior has nothing to do with you — it has to do with them.

What I am talking about has nothing to do with blame. It doesn't have anything to do with changing things or fixing them up. It has to do with growth. When you can deal with things as they are, you can become unstuck. — Been There

Dear Been There: Thanks for sitting in my seat today. Your advice was right on.

Dear Ann Landers: I am probably wasting 15 cents, but I just had to speak up about the fellow who didn't say "God bless you" when his girlfriend sneezed.

Maybe if the guy understood the background of WHY people say "God bless you," he would do it. Many years ago a doctor told me that when a person sneezes his breath stops for a minute and the blessing is to ask the Lord to bring him back from the "near death" state and help him breathe again so he may live.

Have you ever heard of this? — J.G. (Age 81)

Dear J.G.: Yes, I have heard of it — and several other folk tales connected with sneezing, but yours is the most logical. Thanks for writing.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON—MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK—Weddings can be the kiss of story-activity death for soap opera characters.

Audiences beseech serial writers to unite soap lovers legally. But the writers have a tendency to lengthen courtships into years and sometimes decades by interrupting marriage plans with a host of stymying tactics.

After true love has vanquished years of problems and man and woman finally make it to the wedding altar, the characters usually find themselves put on the storyline activity backburner. And that can be upsetting to actors who relish the limelight.

Jed Allan admits that he is jittery about his character's upcoming wedding. Jed plays Don Craig on "Days of Our Lives," and Don's slated to tie the knot with Marlena Evans, if the new headwriter doesn't change plot course, that is.

"Look what happened to Doug and Julie on the show," says Jed, "after they were wed. The audience insisted that they remain happy, so the actors haven't had much to do since the nuptials, because happy doesn't play in Poughkeepsie. For better or for worse, worse is better in soapland. Also, it seems to me that Don and Marlena really haven't had a great traditional soap history of trials and tribulations. After all, they've only been trying to get together for about three years, which in soap time is relatively short. They haven't paid their suffering dues as much as they could have. But we'll see what happens."

Perhaps most popular among the young crowd this year are kites sporting Mickey Mouse and bird motifs — prices ranging from 99 cents upward to $5.98. Kites are going like "proverbial hot cakes," said the hobby shop owner, but he admitted, "they always do in Spring."

So when West Texas breezes blow, you're sure to see kids and kites silhouetted against a blue Spring sky.

On the other hand, there are marriages like Jackie and Alan Spaulding's on "Guiding Light" which are doomed from the start. But unhappy, ill-fated marriages, that's a whole other bag of beans.

SHORT TAKES:
HALLELUJAH — "RYAN'S Hope" has finally found a replacement of Irene Krusten in the coveted role of spoiled sex goddess Delia Ryan. After months of auditioning talent around the country and an open call notice in the trade papers (highly uncommon for serial casting) Randall Edwards debuts as Delia next week. Randall is a California actress with credits in theater, movies, nighttime TV and bit roles on "The Young and the Restless" and "General Hospital." She's a singer and dancer with a degree from the California Institute of Arts.

She plays the flute, is a pool hustler and black jack whiz, and is a swift maneuverer in the material arts. The producers report that they're ecstatic with Randall. "She truly is the embodiment of Dee," they claim.

JOHN ANISTON (Martin Tournour on "Search For Tomorrow") opens in the play "Murder Among Friends" in Albany, N.Y., in three weeks. This is a revival of a Broadway flop from two seasons ago in which John costarred with the late Jack Cassidy and Janet Leigh. It is hoped that the revival in Albany will spur another Manhattan production in the spring. Meanwhile, John's still pushing pasta and vino at his Big Apple eatery, The Fives.

"ROOTS II" is barely ended and already there's talk that Al Freeman (Ed Hall on "One Life to Live") will garner an Emmy nomination for his role in the nighttime miniseries in which he played Makolm X.

KATHLEEN NOONE and Mark Lamora (Ellen Shepherd and Mark Dalton on "All My Children") will be in Palm Beach, Fla., March 16 and 17 as special guests for Kathleen's favorite charity, The Special Olympics. Thirty-three countries will be represented in the games for mentally-retarded children and adults. Kathleen has been a booster of the Olympics for several years and has contributed both her time and her bank account to the charity.

RICK WEBER (Tom Crawford on "Love of Life") will be seen wearing a cast for several months for the sooper. Seems that Rick tore leg ligaments while getting off a ski lift in Vermont. Things are tough all over, aren't they?

DONNA PESCOW, played a hat-check girl in Tony's club on "One Life to Live" two years ago. Then she was gang-raped in the film "Saturday Night Fever." Now she's the star of ABC's "Angie." Like we said, tough all over.

Tune in tomorrow for more rough times.

City, County To Discuss SPAG Troubles

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council and Lubbock County Commissioners will discuss mutual problems with the South Plains Association of Governments at noon today.

The SPAG discussion, triggered by city complaints of the inequitable distribution of federal criminal justice funds, is part of the council's regular meeting which begins at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers.

The council and commissioners are expected to discuss a possible revamping of the SPAG committee system, and the manpower consortium agreement which expires Sept. 30.

The manpower consortium, with membership from the City of Lubbock, Lubbock County and Garza County, contracts with SPAG to run Comprehensive Education and Training Act (CETA) programs.

Also at the meeting, council members will consider appointing an architect for the new branch library to be built at Quaker Avenue and South Loop 289 in Leroy Elmore Park.

The city staff recommendation is to contract with BGR Architects and Engineers to draw up the plans for $32,000.

Joan Baker, chairman of the Civic Centers Board, will ask the council to allow construction of women's dressing rooms in the Municipal Coliseum.

The Civic Centers Board recommended the city pay $15,000 of the estimated $85,000 cost to build the dressing rooms.

Council members also will consider reallocating $347,600 in Community Development funds to be used in the Arnett-Benson addition south of Amherst Street and east of Gary Street and in the Butler Heights area.

The funds were earmarked for the Ruel Martin Area, but are no longer needed according to the Urban Renewal Agency.

Also the council will consider contracting with the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council to distribute portions of a 1 percent tax on hotel and motel room rentals. There is about $50,500 in the fund now which is designated for arts programs.

Dupre Elementary Sets Fantasy Show

Dupre Elementary School is holding a Mouseketeer extravaganza at 7:30 p.m. today in Lubbock High School Auditorium.

Almost 60 children and 16 faculty members will appear in the presentation.

The event will include presentations from the Mouseketeer Mouseketeer Club, Three Little Pigs, Snow White, Pinocchio, Cinderella, It's A Small World, Mary Poppins, and the Jungle Book.

Construction of the 10-12,000 square foot library is expected to cost approximately $360,000, most of which will come from federal revenue sharing funds.

Council members are scheduled to receive the city's annual audit at 10:30 a.m. from the firm of Mason, Nickels and Warner.

GRADES BEHIND BLAZE

TOKYO (AP) — A 15-year-old girl burned down her junior high school building last month because she was upset over her poor performance on an examination, police said.

Police in Misaki on the island of Shikoku said the girl told them she was upset because another girl received a better grade. Police said she broke a window in the school building, intending to steal her test papers, but decided to set the building on fire with kerosene instead.

Texas Tech Journalism Students Sue County Hospital District

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock County Hospital District was sued Wednesday by three Texas Tech University student journalists who claim the district's board of managers has "flagrantly and openly disregarded" state laws on public meetings and public records.

The plaintiffs, members of the staff of The University Daily, Tech's student newspaper, are seeking an injunction to prevent future occurrences of the alleged violations.

Filed in 237th District Court here, the complaint cites about 25 incidents in which the hospital district board allegedly violated the law.

Most of the reported violations, dating back to 1975, involve inadequate posting of agendas for board meetings.

The suit said the board has met at least 13 times without "filing an agenda within the specified time span." By law, an agenda must be posted at least 72 hours

Part-Time Use Of Hospital Service Seen

Lubbock County Hospital District officials said Wednesday they probably no longer need Hyatt Medical Management Services Inc. on a full-time basis, but may call on the consultants part-time.

Jack Strong, chairman of the district's board of managers, made that statement after the board met for two hours in closed session to consider renewal of its contract with the California-based management firm.

Hyatt was chosen in April 1977, to help run the district's Health Sciences Center Hospital. The two-year contract, which expires next month, cost the district $305,000.

Extending the contract reportedly would cost the district about $200,000 a year.

"We've asked them to come back to us with part-time cost figures. We don't feel we need them full-time, as we have the past two years," Strong said.

He said the district may want to keep Hyatt only "on retainer, so we can call on them from time to time," to advise hospital officials on such areas as personnel recruiting and patient billing.

The hospital board will meet March 16 to continue consideration of Hyatt.

before the board convenes for a regular or special session. However, the suit contends the hospital board has convened upon as little as 20 hours' public notice.

Most of the other allegations concern times when the board reportedly convened in closed sessions without first citing provisions of the Open Meetings Law allowing it to do so.

The plaintiffs said the hospital district also has refused to turn over tapes of meetings they have requested to hear.

One passage of the seven-page complaint questions the board's 1977 hiring of Gerald Bosworth as executive director of the district and the district-owned Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The plaintiffs said they "can find no record of a public vote in an open meeting having ever been held in regards to the hiring of Mr. Bosworth, all in flagrant violation of the spirit and letter of the Open Meetings Law."

Unless the board is enjoined from future violations, the plaintiffs said they "will continue to have inadequate notice of meetings, although specific notice is required by state law, and plaintiffs will continue to be denied access to information."

The plaintiffs are Gary Skrehart, editor of The University Daily; Janet Warren, news editor; and Tod Robberson, reporter.

Plaintiffs include Bosworth and current members of the hospital board.

City Teachers Give Ideas To Commission

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Provide more college scholarships for young people studying foreign languages. Make the study of a foreign tongue a prerequisite for college graduation. Encourage schools to offer bilingual education to all children, starting in kindergarten.

Those are the things three Lubbock schoolteachers Wednesday told a presidential panel of government, education and business leaders at a hearing in Houston.

Testifying before the President's Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies were Jo Daugherty, Spanish teacher at Evans Junior High School; Betty Wekerle, who teaches French and German at Coronado High; and Suzanne Abbott, Spanish teacher at Coronado.

The three instructors, identified by the Texas Education Agency as tops in their fields, were among educators from a five-state area to testify at the regional hearing.

Mrs. Abbott, who has taught in the Lubbock Independent School District for 19 years, stressed to the commission "the need for scholarships for foreign language students."

Such scholarships — there presently are "very few" available — are needed to encourage students to be proficient in both a foreign language and some other field, such as business or engineering, Mrs. Abbott said.

"Businessmen of America are realizing that there are very few in their ranks who can buy and sell products abroad," she said. The importance of international trade and international relations dictates that future businessmen be fluent in a foreign language, Mrs. Abbott said.

The 25-member commission appointed by President Carter has recognized that importance in a pamphlet stating the group's purpose. The brochure notes that between 1960 and 1970, the number of Americans employed abroad increased 40 percent, that one American in six now owes his or her employment to foreign trade, and that foreign companies invest more than $30 billion in American business.

In her testimony, Mrs. Wekerle supported "the reinstatement of foreign language as a requirement for college graduation, and the establishment of definite rules for college placement" for students coming out of high school.

"Right now, it's a mess," Mrs. Wekerle said of college placement procedures. She said, for instance, that a student who has had four years of a foreign language in high school often "gets an easy A" in college because the student is assigned an unchallenging course.

Besides the foreign-trade importance, knowledge of a foreign language is necessary for a "well-rounded education," said Mrs. Wekerle, who has taught for eight years in Lubbock.

"So many people are afraid of taking a foreign language. But once we get them into a course, they often find it more useful than they ever imagined," she said.

In particular, she said knowledge of a foreign language is necessary to "share the great literature of other countries."

Mrs. Daugherty, who has taught for 12 years, emphasized the need for bilingual education, "even in kindergarten," for all children.

"The United States is the fourth largest Spanish-speaking nation in the world," she said. "Especially in the Lubbock and West Texas area," a working knowledge of the Spanish language is important for business and social reasons, Mrs. Daugherty said.

Bilingual workers, she added, have a "big advantage" over other workers when they enter the business world.

The presidential commission will make a final report to Carter in October. The report will recommend ways to improve the study of foreign language and international relations.

The Houston hearing encompassed input from Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. Similar hearings are being held throughout the U.S.

Engineers' Dinner To Hear Oil Leader

Howard H. Hinson, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Texas Pacific Oil Company Inc., will discuss the energy shortage at the Engineers Week dinner at 7 p.m. today at the Hillcrest Country Club in Lubbock.

The dinner is open to the public. Tickets are $9 each and may be obtained by calling David M. Hansen, (806) 742-4228.

Hinson is a graduate of Lubbock High School and holds the bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas Tech University. He has been presented both the Distinguished Engineer and the Distinguished Alumnus awards at Texas Tech.

He is a member of the board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute and a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, Society of Petroleum Engineers, Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association and Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Hinson began his career with the U.S. Bureau of Mines at Amarillo but joined Continental Oil Company in 1948. When he took early retirement in 1966, he was president and senior director for 22 CONOCO subsidiaries.

He was employed as consultant by Joseph E. Seagram & Sons in 1971 to evaluate their exploration activities. He was appointed president and chief executive officer of Texas Pacific Oil Company Inc., a wholly owned Seagram subsidiary, in 1972. Five years later he was named chairman of the board.

Hinson's topic for the address is "Why the Energy Shortage?" Engineers Week is a national event. The banquet is sponsored by the South Plains Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

Big Bowling Alley To Ask Zoners For Small Parking Lot

The Zoning Board of Adjustment will meet in special session at 8:15 a.m. today to consider a request to vary parking requirements for a 40-lane bowling alley to be erected in the 5200 block of 69th Street.

Harold Pigg, representing Brunswick Corporation, will ask the board for a 142-space variance in the parking requirements at the meeting in city council chambers.

The more than 36,000 square-foot bowling alley would be required to provide 62 parking spaces for every 100 square feet under city regulations, but plans for the facility show only 220 spaces.

When constructed, the bowling alley will be the largest in the city.

Pigg is expected to argue city parking requirements are too strict and should be varied in this case.

Neighborhood Ire Rises At Retarded-Home Plan

McHENRY, Ill. (AP) — It seemed the perfect neighborhood for them: towering elms along quiet streets; transportation, shopping, banking, medical care, churches and recreation nearby.

So the McHenry County Association for the Retarded bought a vacant lot in the neighborhood. The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development agreed to loan money to build a one-story brick home with 11 bedrooms, one for each of the 11 moderately retarded people to live there. The association said the group home wouldn't detract from the neighborhood. There would be full-time supervision.

"All seemed perfect — until the neighbors found out."

The association requested a zoning variance so non-retarded persons could live on the residential property. Neighbors hired an attorney and protested to the city zoning board, which will vote on the request Friday.

"We have no lack of compassion for the cause," says Bea Newkirk, one of the 67 neighbors who signed a petition opposing the home. "It's just that we just want to keep the neighborhood the way it is. We object to changing the character of the neighborhood."

Mrs. Newkirk refused to be more specific about her fears, but David Mack of the HUD office in Chicago said the typical objections to group homes are fears that the retarded persons are "perverted people. They have these false impressions about retarded people. The neighbors are afraid their children will be molested."

Max Addison of the National Association for Retarded Citizens noted that the problems in McHenry are typical. He says there are 165,000 retarded persons living in institutions and with relatives nationwide who could live in community homes, if space could be found. But efforts to build homes have met resistance nationwide.

Mack said that in Illinois, HUD funding for such homes has been available since 1974, but no projects have gotten beyond the planning stage, mostly because of problems similar to those in McHenry.

"The biggest problems," said Addison, "are zoning requirements and the misguided belief that a retarded person is a sick, dangerous person."

But, he added, moving retarded persons out of institutions "is a trend that won't be stopped. In the past, these people were just shoved into a corner. They never had a future. They weren't expected to contribute to society. That's all changing now."

Opposition to the McHenry project was organized at a meeting of neighbors, but one neighbor who wasn't invited was Kathy Alvary. She lives about a block from the proposed home and she and her husband have a daughter with learning disabilities who lives in New York.

"My neighbors know I've represented this community on the special education board and would speak out in favor of a group home. But they didn't want to hear the positive side," she said.

Mrs. Alvary testified before the zoning board in February, urging approval of the variance.

"I've been neighbors with the people for many years and I'm very disappointed. I'll never feel the same again about my immediate community," she added.

"I'm pretty sure we'll lose, both at the zoning board and the city council," said Robert Lambourn, executive director of the association for the retarded.

Lambourn described the neighborhood, which includes the country club, as one of the best in this city of 10,100. "Sure, we'd have an easier time in a less desirable neighborhood," he said, "but who says retarded persons can't live in the best environment?"

Joseph Condon, attorney for the neighbors, said his clients feel "the area is the most stable and long-standing single-family neighborhood in the city, and are only interested in maintaining that status." He added that his clients would oppose "any commercial facility in the neighborhood, whether it be a Lions Club Hall, hardware store or doctor's office."

"I've had the sense that some people suspect my clients have a 19th century mentality toward the developmentally disabled," Condon said. "This is not true, in fact many of my clients have been financial contributors to the cause of the developmentally disabled."

Lambourn said, "The communities in McHenry County have always been wonderful about supporting our programs. But everything we have so far is ... away from the neighborhoods where people live."

Lambourn's association, private and non-profit, runs programs for the mentally retarded including vocational rehabilitation, day care for children and adults and a community living facility for 20 mildly retarded persons on the outskirts of nearby Woodstock.

The group home would be for persons more retarded than those living at Woodstock. No residential facility for moderately retarded adults exists in the county — a gap the group home would fill.

Dr. Robert H. Bruinks of the University of Minnesota, who recently completed a study on facilities for the retarded, said the theory is that such group homes can help them to "grow and learn." But he said a wide range of services must be available nearby.

Lambourn said 109 retarded adults in the county would qualify to live in the group home. Bill Pierce's son, Robbie, 23, is one.

"My wife and I have given him as good a home as possible," said Pierce, who does not live in the neighborhood of the proposed home. "But we realize that at our age we have mighty few years left, and Robbie will have to have a new home."

"We've been to the state institutions in Dixon and Lincoln and we know we'd never let him live in a place like that. When he was born a mongoloid child, the doctor told us to put him in an institution and forget him. We thank God we never did that. We don't want him going there after we're gone."

Said Mrs. Newkirk: "Our objection has grown out of proportion. We don't hate the mentally retarded. We're not against motherhood or apple pie. We just want to keep our neighborhood the way it is."

OLDEST VISTA WORKER — America's oldest VISTA worker, Lewis Leach, 83, says a good, hard day's work leads to a long, healthy life. He notes that he joined VISTA because he wanted to help his fellow man and work with children. (AP Laserphoto)

Country's Oldest VISTA Hand Says Hard Work Is Beneficial

FORT GIBSON, Okla. (AP) — The country's oldest VISTA volunteer says the one thing that can lead to a long, healthy life is "a hard day's work."

"I go to bed around 6 so I can get up about 4 o'clock," says Lewis Leach, 83. "I used to go to bed at 10 o'clock and get up at 4 o'clock. I mean, I worked all day."

"There wasn't any grass growing under my feet in those days," says Leach, a former town marshal, constable and city judge in this northeastern Oklahoma town.

Now for Leach, work means a variety of things: performing VISTA, or Volunteers in Service to America, duties with children; working his fields as a farmer; or just mingling in downtown Fort Gibson, inspiring his fellow senior citizens.

He entered VISTA work two years ago and was assigned to the Eastern Oklahoma Human Development Corp., a service organization that helps the elderly in a six-county region.

Leach's reason for joining VISTA is simple: "I just wanted to help my fellow man. VISTA is a great program because it benefits many elderly in our state."

VISTA officials say Leach is senior among about 4,000 workers across the nation, whose average age is 30. Leach says that by serving as a VISTA volunteer, he helps bridge the generation gap by working with children, teaching them about farming and other aspects of agriculture.

"I enjoy teaching younger kids," he says. "We're in bad need for agriculture teaching. The younger generation doesn't know anything about it — especially people in town don't know anything about it."

"I like to take them to the field and show them how to grow and cultivate and harvest."

"For one thing, they are forgetting it fast, fast, fast, and the farmers of America are quitting day by day. We're going to need them and need them bad. That's one reason why stuff is so ridiculously high today."

Leach says he feels satisfied about his long life.

"I was born and raised on a farm, and I've loved it," he says. "There are a lot of other things I could have done and made a lot more money, but it was not what I wanted. The money was not what I was after — it was the pleasure."

As for his work with the Human Development Corp., he says, "We've been building ever since we got started and getting stronger. The way I look at it, together we stand, divided we'll fall."

"There will never be anything I'll do that will make it fall. I'll make it stand."

Carrier Sent To Arabian Sea As Symbol Of U.S. Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 80,000-ton U.S. supercarrier Constellation sailed Wednesday for the Arabian Sea to reassure Saudi Arabia and demonstrate concern over the Soviet-backed South Yemeni invasion of North Yemen.

The Pentagon announced the Constellation's departure from the U.S. naval base at Subic Bay in the Philippines, along with the oil-replenishment ship Kansas City. They will join the guided-missile cruiser Sierrett and guided-missile destroyer Waddell in the South China Sea.

Officials estimate it will take the carrier task force 10 to 14 days to make the long voyage to waters near the Arabian peninsula.

At the same time, the Navy sent the carrier Ranger from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to replace the Constellation with the 7th Fleet. The Ranger will join the Midway as the second carrier in the western Pacific.

The Pentagon declined to discuss how long the Constellation and its escorts will remain in the Arabian Sea and western Indian Ocean. The Constellation and its crew of more than 5,000 was scheduled to return to the U.S. West Coast this month after a six-month deployment with the 7th Fleet.

The huge Constellation carries about 80 planes, including F-14 fighters, A-7 and A-6 bombers, and anti-submarine warfare planes and helicopters.

The number of Marines with the task force is put at 55. They are described as security personnel.

The United States has maintained a constant naval presence in the Arabian Sea and Indian Ocean since mid-November, originally because of the turmoil in Iran and now because of the war being waged by South Yemen against North Yemen with the support of between 800 and 1,000 Soviet military advisers and large quantities of Soviet weapons.

Saudi Arabia, a major supplier of U.S. oil, is a neighbor of both warring Yemens and apparently is nervous about the major Soviet involvement in that fighting.

The deployment reflects continued U.S. interest in the stability of the region, "the Pentagon said in disclosing the Constellation's departure from the Philippines. "The present situation along the (South Yemeni-North Yemeni) border has arisen because of attacks across an international frontier in an area of great importance to the United States."

Late last year, President Carter ordered the Constellation to head from the Philippines toward the Indian Ocean, but reportedly changed his mind about sending the big carrier toward the Persian Gulf after news of the move aroused protests in Iran from forces which later toppled the shah.

The U.S. Navy now has 11 ships in the Indian Ocean, but three of them have been relieved and are headed back to the western Pacific.

The Russians normally maintain about 20 ships in the Indian Ocean area and have used the South Yemeni port of Aden as a fleet base since they were ousted from Somalia in 1977.

As the Constellation headed for the Indian Ocean, defense sources discounted reports that the United States had offered to send armed F-15 fighter planes to Saudi Arabia during the present crisis.

These sources said the possibility of such an F-15 deployment was raised by American officials among a wide range of possible options discussed with the Saudis. They said no firm proposal was made and the Saudis indicated they were not receptive to the idea at this time.

U.S. officials said the idea of a possible F-15 deployment in the future was not ruled out. In January Carter sent 12 unarmed F-15s to Saudi Arabia as a gesture of support at a time when the shah was being overthrown in neighboring Iran.

Unwary, Slow Burned By Hot Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Have you ever snatched your hand back from a stream of unexpectedly hot tap water?

That little surprise happens to millions of people, and most suffer only momentary discomfort. But the Consumer Product Safety Commission says about 2,600 people a year suffer serious scald injuries in such cases.

Either because of lack of awareness or inability to react quickly, persons over age 65 or under 5 suffer many of these painful injuries, the commission says.

For youngsters, one of the big dangers is playing with the water tap while in the tub, while some injuries to the elderly are caused by the victim slipping or falling into a tub of hot water.

The commission is considering a petition that it move to prevent such injuries by requiring that residential water heaters have a maximum setting of 130 degrees Fahrenheit.

Alternatives to such a requirement are being considered, but in the meantime the commission urges caution in dealing with hot tap water.

The commission also urges parents to never leave a baby or small child alone in the bathtub or even in the bathroom for any reason. Children can be burned easily if they turn on the hot water faucet or fall into a tub of hot water.

Tap water scalds may be prevented by lowering the temperature at the water heater. This also saves energy.

Tech, Indiana Vie In NIT

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Last time Bobby Knight was in Lubbock Coliseum, the crowd was seated on the floor below him, the only picks in evidence were the ones used to dislodge bits of barbecue from the molars, and the audience politely applauded some of his jokes.

That was a couple of years ago when he spoke at the annual Red Raider Club banquet.

But, tonight, Knight will be back, but in a much more serious atmosphere. It's the opening round of the 42nd annual National Invitation Tournament, as Indiana's Hoosiers take on Texas Tech.

Tipoff is at 7:30 p.m., and a capacity crowd is now in the forecast. Chances are good for that sellout, too, as only a limited number of tickets remained after the Tech athletic ticket office closed Wednesday. The remaining tickets will be on sale this morning, and a few could be available tonight at the gate.

It's Tech's first trip to the prestigious NIT, and Indiana is bouncing back to the post-season arena after winning the NCAA championship in '76. And in both instances, the teams had to win late games to get this far.

Tech's 63-62 overtime win over Texas A&M in the quarter-finals of the Southwest Conference tournament evidently turned the trick for the Raiders. And the Hoosiers had to win — and did — over Illinois last Saturday to earn a trip.

That win for the Hoosiers was their 18th against 12 defeats; and Tech comes in with a 19-10 record, the last loss coming to Arkansas in the SWC semifinals.

Records, however, don't bother Raider coach Gerald Myers as much as the size and talent level of the visitors. He knows personally of one Indianan, 6-5 Mike Woodson, the team's leading scorer (21.2 points) who was on a U.S. team which Myers helped coach on a trip to Russia last summer.

In addition to Woodson, there's the overall Hoosier size Myers' Raiders will be facing.

Indiana's set lineup has 6-5 Randy Wittman, 6-9 Landon Turner, 6-5 Butch Carter, and 6-9 Ray Tolbert.

"We'll have some mismatches," admitted Myers. "And these guys can move, too. They don't just stand around under the goal."

"I imagine we'll try to use Ben Hill (6-6) on Woodson, but even that way, we will give away some size."

To help fight that size deficit, Myers could come with 6-9 Ralph McPherson with 6-5 Ralph Brewster inside, along with 6-5 Kent Williams and 6-2 Geoff Huston outside.

If McPherson doesn't trot out on the court for the opening tip, it will be 6-5 Jeff Taylor.

"But, they're a great team," said Myers of the Hoosiers. "They play great defense, and they just don't make many mistakes. You're going to have to beat them; they won't beat themselves."

"They're going to work the ball, get the percentage shots off their passing game. They'll put the ball up, but they can be very disciplined also. And, being a big team, they're a solid rebounding team."

"They're just so sound in every phase of the game."

But, Woodson is the one the Hoosiers will be looking to — and the Raiders will be watching also. "They set picks for him, trying to get him open. He's a great shooter."

Woodson hit 48 in that 72-60 win over Illinois at Champaign, a game in which the Hoosiers hit 56 percent from the floor.

Indiana's only other double-figure scorer is Tolbert, who is averaging 11.7.

But, the Hoosiers, following Knight's defensive scheme, has allowed but 61.5 points a game this season.

"We've been up and down," observed Knight, prior to Wednesday's workout in the coliseum. "We lose our first two (including a 54-49 loss to the Aggies in a tournament in Alaska), won six in a row."

And, lately, they have been on the upswing, winning four of the last five, dropping only a 55-48 verdict — on the road — to Purdue, which is also playing in the NIT.

Tech is averaging more offensively but also allowing more on defense. But, with a late rush in the bucket department, Huston has joined Williams and Brewster as two-digit scoring. Williams leads at 12.6, Brewster is hitting 11.5, and Huston is averaging 10.7.

Huston, the lone senior in the Raiders' starting unit, has been the most consistent player this year, Myers said. It was Huston who put in the winning bucket to beat the Aggies last week.

WHERE IS THE BASKET? — John Campbell (23) of Clemson University looks for the basket as LaVon Williams (52) of the University of Kentucky applies the defense during Wednesday night's action between Kentucky and Clemson. The game was an opening-round contest for both teams in the National Invitation Tournament, played in Lexington. (AP Laserphoto)

Kentucky Defeated By Clemson In OT

By A-J Wire Services

Billy Williams hit two free throws with 12 seconds remaining in overtime Wednesday to lift Clemson to a 68-67 victory over Kentucky in a first round game in the National Invitation Tournament at Lexington, Ky.

The victory moved the Tigers, 19-9, into the second round of the NIT against Old Dominion. Kentucky finished its season 19-12.

Chubby Wells put Clemson ahead 66-63 when he scored on a back-door play with 33 seconds left in overtime, but Kentucky's Fred Cowan hit a jumper 19 seconds later to draw Kentucky within 66-65.

Cowan, who had 15 points, committed his fifth foul seconds later to send Williams to the free throw line.

Kentucky's Kyle Macy, who led all scorers with 20 points, hit a 13-footer at the buzzer to produce the final margin.

Williams, who led Clemson with 16 points, hit a three-point play with 1:28 remaining in regulation to give Clemson an apparently comfortable 55-49 lead. But Macy sank a 12-footer and Chuck Verderber tipped in a missed shot to draw the Wildcats within 55-53 with 46 seconds left.

VIRGINIA 79, NE LOUISIANA 78

Lamp's basket came just 10 seconds after Calvin Natt, who finished with 38 points, had given the Indians their only lead of the second half with two free throws.

State Tournament Opens For Fems

AUSTIN (AP) — The girls' high school state basketball tournament featuring three defending champions — one of them undefeated — opens today.

It will be the first time for the girls to compete in the 29-year-old tournament with five-player lineups, instead of six.

The first game (8:30 a.m.) matches Class B semifinalists Avinger and Weatherford Brock, neither of which has ever won a girls' basketball title.

Nazareth, 34-4 and seeking its second consecutive Class B championship, meets D'Hanis in the second contest at 10 a.m.

Slaton, 31-2, will open defense of its AA title with a first-round game at 2 p.m. today against Comanche, which is 26-1, losing only to Brock. Three 1978 all-tournament players — Cynthia Robinson, Chris Kennedy and Debbie Bednarz — return for Slaton.

The four Class AA teams have won a total of 113 games and lost eight, with Pflugerville, 36-0, carrying the best record. Pflugerville plays Universal City Randolph, 20-5, in the other AA semifinal contest at 3:30 p.m. and is favored to meet Slaton in Saturday's state finals.

The AAA semifinals tonight match Dumas against Georgetown at 7 p.m. and Sweeney against Athens at 8:30. It is the first trip to the tournament for all but Georgetown, a 1978 semifinalist.

Class A competition begins Friday, with Rogers playing Bogata Rivercrest and Wall meeting Hale Center, 28-3. None of the teams has ever won a championship.

Dallas South Oak Cliff, in quest of its third straight Class AAAA title, plays Friday against Alvin, 27-7. South Oak Cliff has compiled a 42-0 record and has defeated other teams in the tournament, including Victoria, another AAAA semifinalist.

Bridgett Phillips, a 5-foot-10 senior who was all-tournament last year, is South Oak Cliff's scoring star with a 17-point average.

Victoria, 30-7, meets Plainview, 30-2, Friday night. Victoria has won three titles and finished second three times in six tournament appearances.

Plainview and Alvin are making their first trips to the tournament. All five championship games are scheduled for Saturday.

Snake Still Wants Out Of Oakland

GULF SHORES, Ala. (AP) — Ken Stabler, the Oakland Raiders quarterback who found Super Bowl glory three seasons ago but suffered a winter of discontent this year, doesn't want to play for Oakland again.

Stabler, 33, said Wednesday he wants to be traded because of personal animosities with Oakland's managing general partner, Al Davis.

"I just don't appreciate being blasted by Mr. Davis," said Stabler. "I don't have to work under those conditions, and I won't."

As Stabler's request for a trade surfaced Wednesday, there was another development in a Gulf Shores drug case that has been a gnawing off-season concern for the former Alabama star.

In Montgomery, Attorney General Charles Graddick said he was shelving an investigation into the apparent drug frame-up of a California sportswriter, Bob Padecky of the Sacramento Bee, who had gone to Gulf Shores last Jan. 22 to interview Stabler.

winner of Thursday night's St. Bonaventure-Alabama game.

After six lead changes early in the game, Virginia went ahead 23-22 and built the margin to 40-30 at intermission.

But Natt, who hit all 10 shots he took and scored 28 points in the second half, scored nine points in the first four minutes after intermission to the pull the Indians, 21-6, to within 48-45.

Natt, who was 15 of 18 from the floor for the game, twice stole the ball, feeding off to his brother Kenny for one basket and scoring himself on a dunk, to make it 73-72 with 2:05 left.

Two free throws each by Jeff Jones and Lamp offset two baskets by David Hall, but Virginia's Bobby Stokes missed the front-end of a one-and-one situation, Natt was fouled on the rebound and made both free throws to send the Indians in front.

Lamp, who had 10 of his 20 points in the last six minutes, then hit the game-winner and Northeast Louisiana was unable to inbound the ball, turning it over to Virginia.

OHIO STATE 80, ST. JOSEPH'S 66
Kelvin Ransney and Herb Williams combined for 35 points to lead Ohio State to a 80-66 victory over St. Joseph's (Pa.) at Columbus, Ohio.

Ransney, scoring in double figures for the 60th consecutive game, pumped in 19 points, and Williams, a 6-foot-10 sophomore center, added 16 to help the Buckeyes snap a three-game losing streak.

Norman Black's 21 points paced St. Joseph's, bowing out with a 19-11 record.

MARYLAND 67, RHODE ISLAND 65
Albert King, who sat out the first 27 minutes with a foot injury, scored all four of Maryland's points in the third overtime to give Maryland a 67-65 victory over Rhode Island.

The Terps, 19-10, play Ohio State at home Monday night in a second round game. Ohio State defeated St. Joseph's 80-66 in the first round.

Pro Umpires Absent During First Day

By The Associated Press
Major league baseball's exhibition slate got under way Wednesday with plenty of balls, strikes, runs, hits and errors... but no big league umpires.

A slim five-game opening day schedule included only one game between major league teams. In that one, rookie Barry Evans drove in three runs to lead the San Diego Padres over the California Angels 4-1.

The three umpires who worked the contest at Palm Springs, Calif., belonged to the Coachella Valley Umpiring Association and work college games in the area.

There was no word of any progress in the contract dispute between the two leagues and the Major League Umpires Association. The 51 big league umpires have authorized their attorney, Richie Phillips of Philadelphia, to negotiate individually even though the group's contract with baseball has a few more years to run.

The Padres collected 12 hits, including a first-inning homer by Evans of California ace Frank Tanana. The rookie third baseman later added a single and double.

Takao Ohana, a 21-year-old right-hander, blanked Seattle on four hits as the Yakult Swallows, the defending Japanese champions, edged the Mariners 1-0. The run came on consecutive fourth-inning triples by Tsutomu Wakamatsu — center fielder Ruppert Jones lost the ball in the sun — and Katsuo Ohsugi off Floyd Banister.

Three members of the Central Arizona Umpires Association, which handles college and high school contests, worked the game.

Another Japanese team didn't fare as well. Willie Stargell's solo home run, Bill Robinson's two-run double and Steve Nicossia's two RBIs paced the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-3 triumph over the Seibu Lions with local umpfs doing the honors.

Reserve catcher Cliff Johnson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and rookie right-hander Mike Griffin pitched three scoreless innings as the world champion New York Yankees defeated Grambling State University 7-2. College umpires worked the game, which was halted by rain after six innings.

A three-run homer by Keith Hernandez in the first inning powered the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-3 decision over the University of Missouri with a couple of minor league umpires making the calls.

There were the usual abundance of intrasquad games, most of them meaningless. However, Baltimore pitching ace Jim Palmer was tagged for three runs in the first inning, including a two-run homer by Eddie Murray. Palmer, a 20-game winner in eight of the last nine years, later said his back was a little sore.

Westerners Rip Tascosa 14-0 On One-Hitter

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The only thing the Lubbock High Westerners didn't win during a nondistrict baseball game with Amarillo Tascosa Wednesday was an argument in the fourth inning.

Lubbock High dominated all the other categories of the game to record a 14-0 victory on a one-hitter.

The Westerners put the game out of reach in the bottom of the third with 9 runs. Six of those scores came with two outs.

"I told the team before the game that we've been playing like light bulbs," said LHS coach Bart Hernandez. "We've been off and on, off and on. It was time for us to get consistent. I'm pleased with the way they played."

Centerfielder Larry Walker and shortstop Noel Jaime ignited the Westerner rally in the third. Jaime, who scored 3 runs in the game, and Walker, who supplied four hits, both singled.

After left fielder Jaime Green walked to load the bases, third baseman Andy Vasquez hit a line-drive single into right centerfield to score both Jaime and Walker.

With two out, Thomas Romero scored pinch runner David Garcia and then first baseman Paul Mendoza gave Romero time to get back into his catching gear with a double. When Romero crossed the plate, Lubbock High had a 7-0 lead.

But the big blow was still yet to come. Designated hitter David Rush calmly stepped to the plate and got all of a fast ball. Rush's shot left center traveled an estimated 360 feet. Scoring in front of Rush was Mendoza.

"I think not keeping Jaime and Walker off the bases was a factor," said Tascosa coach Stan Moore. "They also did a better job of hitting and fielding the ball."

The Westerners outthrew the Rebels 16-1. Winning pitcher Sammy Chavez struck out eight. Rebel Andy Juett prevented a no-hitter with an infield hit in the fourth inning.

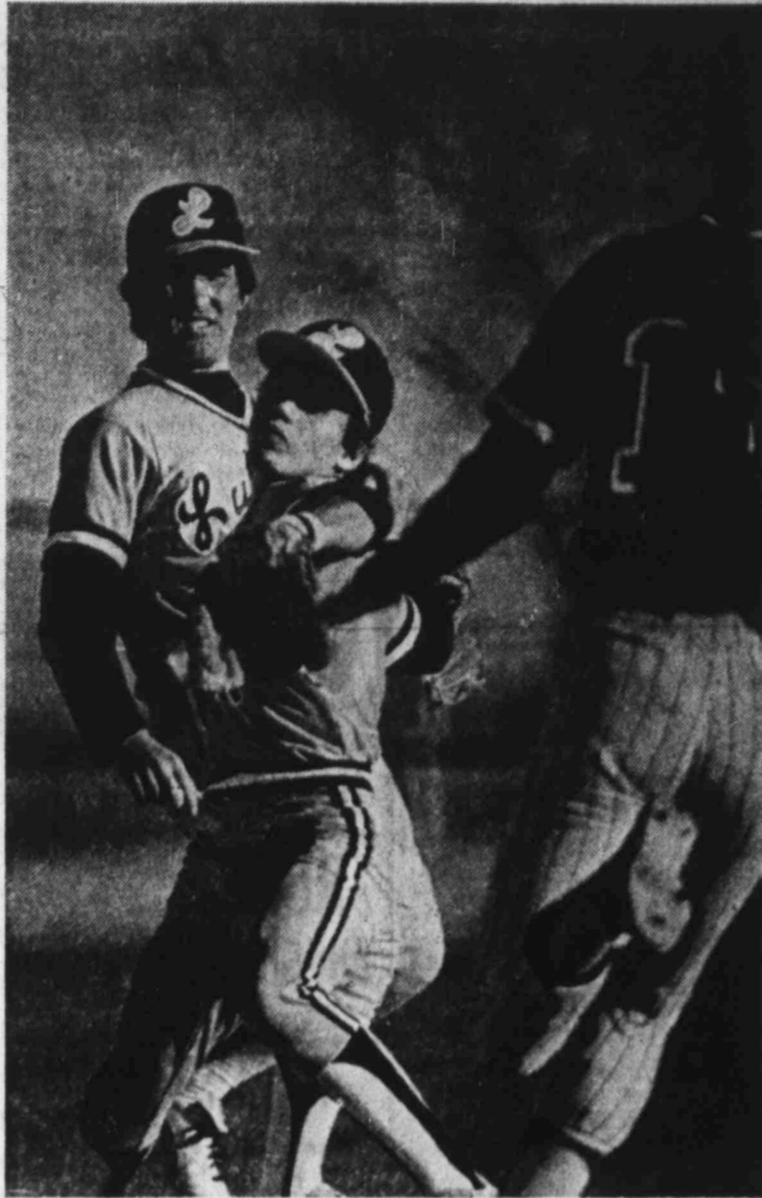

However, any hope of a Tascosa rally was quickly wiped out as pinch hitter Eddie Delgado hit into a double play.

"I was pleased the way we played," said Hernandez. "We started sluggish, but things turned out well."

Oh, the argument: The Westerners lost that in the bottom of the fourth by putting Rudy Robles in the lineup without informing the umpire. Robles was going to pinch hit for Mendoza.

"Oh yeah," said a smiling Hernandez. "In our big inning (the third), Rudy was penciled into the lineup. We checked him in during the third inning with the umpire. I don't know what happened in the fourth."

Nicklaus Reaches For Fourth Straight

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will be going for a rare triple — or quadruple, depending on how it's figured — in the $300,000 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic.

The game's greatest player won the last two Gleasons and, in 1976, took the Tournament Players Championship when it was played on the same Inverrary Country Club course. While he's won only two consecutive Gleason titles, he's unbeaten on the flat, 7,127-yard course in three years.

Johnny Miller was the last man to win the same tournament three consecutive years, taking Tucson 1974-6. Before that, it was Nicklaus' three straight in the Walt Disney World Open.

And, although his two previous appearances this year have resulted in less-than-outstanding performances, Nicklaus is a solid choice to make it three in a row in the 72-hole chase for a $54,000 first prize that begins today.

"Actually, I'm playing pretty well," he said. "Obviously, I didn't play at all well in the last round last week but, generally, I'm striking the ball pretty well."

"My game is about where it should be at this time of the year. I just need some tournament competition. The important thing is that I have the desire to play golf. I want to play. I'm interested in playing."

That interest and desire has been whetted by a layoff. He had played only three times in three months going into last week's Bay Hill Classic.

"I have to let myself down, then, when I have the desire to play, gradually build myself up again. I've been playing quite a lot at home the last few weeks."

As always, his first big goal of the season is the Masters in Augusta, Ga., next month.

"But," he said, "you always try to do as well as you can in every tournament. That's why it was important for me to cut back on my schedule, so I'd have the interest and the desire to give my best."

"As for the Masters, at this stage it is important for me to start playing well, start scoring well. It's always nice to go into Augusta with a win behind you."

He'll be seeking that victory, and a successful defense of his title, against a strong field of 144 that includes six of the eight men who have won 1979 titles — Ben Crenshaw, Lon Hinkle, Bruce Lietzke, Lanny Wadkins, Fuzzy Zoeller and Bob Byman, the rookie who took last week's Bay Hill Classic.

Other standouts in the field include Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Ray Floyd, Mark Hayes, Lee Elder, Hale Irwin, Gil Morgan, U.S. Open champ Andy North, Jerry Pate and Andy Bean, who has challenged strongly several times and has had a chance to win three or four times this year.

Wayland Crushes McNeese

TULSA, Okla. (Special) — Jill Rankin scored 36 points to lead the Wayland Baptist College Flying Queens to an easy 91-58 win over McNeese State during an opening-round game of the Southwest Region AIAW basketball tournament Wednesday afternoon.

The Queens, now 21-8 for the year, will now meet LSU today at 3 p.m. in the second round. LSU advanced by thrashing Texas Tech 84-56 earlier Wednesday.

Miss Rankin, an all-America from Phillips, hit 17 shots from the floor and a pair of free throws to help the Queens to the victory.

Valerie Goodwin also added 18 points she and Miss Rankin were the only Queens in double figures.

Wayland had absolutely no trouble with McNeese, jumping out to a 49-11 halftime lead. The Queens added 42 more points in the second half, while McNeese scored only 27.

Ailene Gundry was the top scorer for McNeese with 15 points.

In another game, Lisa Brewer poured in 22 points to lead LSU to its easy win over Texas Tech and end the Raiders' season with a 14-19 mark, the first losing record in the school's history.

The win lifted LSU to a 13-11 mark for the year, going into today's game with Wayland.

The Tigers started tough against Tech, hitting their first six shots from the floor, while the Raiders went 0-12 during the same period. LSU also dominated the backboards, outrebounding Tech 47-34.

Jill Owens paced the Raiders' offense with 12 points, and Donnette Marble added 11. Tech hit 22 shots from the floor and 12 rebounds.

LSU, which hit 38 floor shots, was led by Miss Brewer and Renee Moran, who had 15 points. Miss Moran also had nine rebounds to pace the team in that department.

Hines Sees Potential In Estacado Tracksters

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Percy Hines is a man who likes to talk about "potential."

"We really have the potential to have a fine track team," the Estacado cinder coach pointed out. And "the potential is there, too," he said when asked about the chances of yet another Matador sprint relay team heading to the state meet in a couple of months.

No doubt, Hines is right. And it really doesn't take a track expert to figure out why.

So far, the Matadors have entered one track meet. And so far, they stand 1-0 in competition against other Class AAA teams, winning their division at the Lubbock Invitational meet last Saturday.

"It was a pleasant surprise," said Hines, who will carry the Matadors to the West Texas Relays in Odessa this weekend. "I told them before the meet to go out and do their best and not worry about their times."

"We're more interested right now in getting better from week to week than we are about winning."

Hines added, "I really didn't expect to do so well, especially since eight of them are really just out of basketball."

One of those cagers that turned in top performances for Hines were high jumper Craig Harris. He placed third after jumping 6-0. Also, Dewey Turner, the Texas-bound tight end, set a new school record with a toss of 54-6 1/2 in the shot put.

"Those were a couple of pleasant surprises," said Hines. "Both of them, Harris and Dewey, both have the potential to become top individuals."

There he goes again.

Although Turner is certainly a potential state performer in the shot, Hines said the 6-5, 225-pound senior is having some trouble in the discus. "It's not one of his better events," said Hines, "but he is really concentrating hard on it."

In winning at the Lubbock meet, the Matadors took first places in the shot, 440 relay (Todd Parsons, Robin Gatewood, Kenneth Henderson and Robert Humphrey), 100 (Humphrey) and 220 (Gatewood).

The Matadors' mile-relay team — a unit Hines also feels may also come on strong as the season progresses — finished third in 3:36.6 Rival Dunbar was about four steps in front of the Matadors at 3:26.2.

When most people think of the Matadors, the first thing that pops into their heads, usually, is power in the sprints. And this year should be no different, Hines said.

"Of course," agreed Hines. "That should be our strength again. But we lost some very good sprinters off last year's team (Michael Sims and Kenzie Burrell). They'll be hard to replace."

Only Humphrey returns on the sprint-relay team that went to Austin last year, only to suffer a bad exchange and fail to place. Humphrey posted a personal best of 9.8 year and Hines expects even greater things this time around — probably a 9.5 or better in the 100.

In winning the 100-yard dash Saturday, Humphrey posted a 10.0.

Sophomore Kelvin White (third at the Coronado track in 10.1) and Preston Davis (fourth in 10.2) are also expected to carry much of the sprinting load for Estacado.

And, according to Hines, when senior transfer Robin Gatewood gets into a little better shape, "he should get down to the low 22s in the 220." Gatewood is also Estacado's best long jumper, placing third Saturday with a leap of 20-4 1/2. "He (Gatewood) could develop into a class long jumper," said Hines.

"It's going to take another month or so to get down to some good times," said

Hines. "I think we started off well, now all we have to do is keep on improving. That's what we want to do each week, improve. And maybe we can peak out by the time we get to Austin."

LHS Coach Concerned About Lack Of Size

By BOB BAJACKSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
While leaning against a door in the hallway at Lubbock High School, baseball coach Bart Hernandez motioned towards the window to prove a point.

Catching Hernandez' attention were centerfielder Larry Walker and shortstop Noel Jaime. The two Westerner baseball players crossed 19th Street en route to the field house. Walker and Jaime then followed the path of a residential sidewalk. Even standing side by side, the two Lubbock High baseballers had room to spare within the sidewalk's bounds.

"You see?" asked Hernandez. "I'm not exaggerating. We don't have any monsters on this team. Larry and Noel are our leading hitters. You can see that Larry is only about 5-8 and Jaime about 5-6."

I don't think they weigh more than 150 pounds.

Jaime's 571 average leads Walker by 71 points. Jaime also has slapped three triples.

"Jaime is our leadoff hitter," said Hernandez. "Though he has shown some power, I don't plan on moving him down in the batting order. I want Jaime to bat as many times as possible in a game."

According to Hernandez, pitcher Andy Vasquez has also been impressive in the early going, winning twice without a loss.

"He's just about the only pitcher that's been able to throw strikes consistently," said the Westerner baseball coach. "Andy is a sneaky pitcher. He'll throw you in tight to get you a little off balance and then slip a pitch by you."

But Hernandez doesn't want the compliments out of hand. The Westerners need to correct some problems before they can be a contender in the 4-AAAA race.

"We have the talent," said Hernandez. "How that talent develops is the problem."

And the question marks?

"Right now, it's defense, pitching and who will be the regular third baseman and left fielder," said Hernandez.

Regarding defense, the LHS coach has a simple solution.

"I figure hitting 1,000 ground balls a day will solve things," laughed Hernandez.

The coach feels that patience is the key to both the pitching woes as well as deciding on a third baseman and leftfielder.

"Our problem right now is inexperience. It's just a matter of finding the right combination as far as third and left field are concerned. That, again, just comes from playing games."

Candidates at third base include Sammy Chavez and Rudy Barrera. In left field, Hernandez is trying to choose from David Rush, Eddie Trevino and Jaime Green.

"At third, Sammy is a better hitter, but Rudy is better defensively," said Hernandez. "In left field, David judges the ball better. Eddie is quicker and Jaime is a better hitter."

Hernandez wants to talk about his battery.

"Thomas Romero has taken over at catcher and has been hitting the ball consistently," said Hernandez. "He's also been playing good defense, and is just a sophomore."

"Since taking over the catching duties in the second game of the season, Romero has five hits in eight times at bat."

Anything else coach?

"Only that it's hard to tell our pitchers from the catcher," said Hernandez. "All are squatty. Or let's just say that our team is built low to the ground."

Hack Wilson Selected For Baseball's Hall

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Hack Wilson, one baseball's top sluggers in the era of Babe Ruth, and Warren Giles, who had an illustrious career as an administrator, were named posthumously Wednesday to baseball's Hall of Fame.

They were chosen by the 18-member Veterans Committee, impeded to review the careers of players bypassed by the Baseball Writers Association of America during their period of eligibility and executives, umpires and Negro leaguers.

Wilson, who played for the New York, Chicago, Brooklyn and Philadelphia National League clubs, was a heavy drinker who died broke on Nov. 23, 1948 at age 48.

Giles, who served as president of the National League for 18 years after successful operation of minor league franchises and the Cincinnati Reds, died Feb. 8 this year at age 82. He returned from the NL post in 1969.

Wilson and Giles were chosen from a list of 20 players and officials who received votes. As in the regular Hall of Fame balloting conducted by the writers a 75 percent vote of the committee members was needed for election.

The two latest honorees will be inducted along with Willie Mays at the annual Hall of Fame ceremonies in Cooperstown, N.Y. Aug. 5. Mays was chosen earlier this year by the BBWAA.

Wilson was a standout hitter from the time he entered with the New York Giants in 1923 until he closed his career with the Dodgers and Phillies in 1934.

In 1930, the hard-hitting outfielder slammed 56 home runs, had 190 runs batted in — a major league record which still stands — and a .356 average. He had a lifetime batting mark of .307.

Burlough Grimes, one of the legendary pitchers of the National League and a member of the Veterans Committee, recalled Wilson's batting prowess after the announcement.

"He was a short man, only 5 feet 6 inches and 190 pounds," Grimes said. "He was hard to pitch to and he had tremendous power. He was one of the most dangerous men I ever faced."

Grimes recalled that he was a member of the St. Louis Cardinal team that beat the Chicago Cubs out for the pennant in 1930, ultimately losing to the Philadelphia A's in the World Series.

"After that season I was traded by the Cardinals to the Cubs for Wilson. I'll never forget the time I had to face Hack Wilson. You had to be careful as hell against him and it wasn't until late in my career that I was able to get him out effectively."

Gabe Paul, president of the Cleveland Indians, who formerly held the executive post with Cincinnati and the New York Yankees, said he got his introduction to baseball through Giles.

Boating Week Slated Here

Persons interested in any phase of boating (fishing, skiing, or family outings) will have the opportunity to see the latest in boats, motors, trailers and other marine accessories during the Let's Go Boating Week.

The three participating boat dealers in Lubbock — Furr Marine, Inland Discount Marine, and Sportsman Supply — are extending hours of operation (weekdays 8 a.m.-8 p.m., Sundays noon-6 p.m.) now through March 18 for the special boating display.

Manufacturer representatives will be on hand to answer questions about various boating subjects and to help novice boaters find the right equipment for their particular boating requirements.

On March 17 and 18 (Saturday and Sunday), Bill Owens, a professional fisherman from Lowrance Electronics, will present free seminars on electronic depth (finder) fishing at the three participating marine firms.

Furr Marine, Inland Discount Marine, and Sportsman Supply will have more than $1 million in new '79 boats and motors on display during the event. Free refreshments will be served, and more than $2,000 in door prizes will be given away.

Superman's Mom Recalls Early Days

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Although comic books, television shows and movies claim Superman was born on a faraway planet called Krypton, there's at least a bit of truth to the story that he grew up in Princeton.

And while some townspeople refer to Barbara Johnson, a resident of Princeton for 23 years, as Superman's mom, she prefers to think of herself, simply, as "the mother of a young man who has always wanted to be an actor."

Mrs. Johnson said her son, "Superman" star Christopher Reeve, 28, began dreaming of an acting career at an early age, but never was interested in Superman as a kid.

"He didn't watch Superman. He watched Batman a little. I don't think we even owned a television until the Kennedy-Nixon campaign in 1960," Mrs. Johnson said in a recent interview.

Mrs. Johnson came to Princeton with sons Chris and Ben on New Year's Eve in 1956 and has lived there ever since. Her ex-husband, Chris's and Ben's father, graduated from Princeton in 1950.

Georgia Legislature Hears New State Song Live

ATLANTA (AP) — The Georgia House chamber rang with a husky blues song instead of debate Wednesday as singer Ray Charles appeared before a joint session of the legislature to sing the state's new official song — "Georgia On My Mind."

The Albany, Ga. native drew a thunderous standing ovation on several occasions from an estimated 600 persons who filled the House chamber to standing room only.

been rolled into the chamber ahead of time for the special ceremonies.

The song's composer, Hoagy Carmichael, spoke to the group by telephone hookup from his home in California.

Both composer and singer said the Legislature's action designating the song as official state music was a deep honor.

Charles said, "It is very difficult for me to know how to handle a compliment. I think just to say 'thank you' even though it comes from the bottom of my heart, seems so inadequate."

'Days Of Heaven' Called Profound Work Of Art

"Days Of Heaven." Written and directed by Terrence Malick. Photographed by Nestor Almendros (with additional photography by Haskell Wexler). Music composed and conducted by Ennio Morricone. Edited by Billy Weber. Costumes designed by Patricia Norris. Stars Richard Gere, Brooke Adams, Sam Shepard and Linda Manz. Rated PG. At Showplace Six.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

"Days Of Heaven," certainly one of the American cinema's most profound works of art, is a film lush with irony and quiet desperation. It is that rare sort of motion picture which easily wraps us up in its visuals and still forces us to care about an earlier period's loss of innocence. It speaks of loneliness, of isolation, of hopes and dreams squashed into the mud by fate more than anything else. And it speaks of the tenacity of life. The tragedy of "Days Of Heaven" was born in Greek drama, and yet it leaves us dwelling upon the new stories to come.

Death arrives at one's doorstep, but "Days Of Heaven" tells us life goes on for the survivors.

Dallas Times Herald film critic C.W. Smith, a reviewer with a literary background, has called "Days Of Heaven" the finest American film to appear in the last 30 years. Many other critics were shocked that the film and its writer-director, Terrence Malick, did not win Oscar nominations. (No matter that the film DID win nominations for cinematography, music, sound and costume design, or that director of photography Nestor Almendros is a shoo-in to win.) All of these accolades are inspired by a film which actually bares its soul and speaks of a communion between the fates and both nature and man. A film which can contrast the fear of a quivering animal hiding in a wheat field with the inborn fear of every human striving for survival.

It is a film which deserves to be seen more than once. And indeed, audiences will no doubt want to see "Days Of Heaven" more than once.

The story begins with Richard Gere working in the din of a Chicago steel mill. In a fit of temper, he accidentally kills his foreman and is forced to flee the city. With younger sister Linda Manz and his lover Brooke Adams in hand, he joins the hordes seeking work in the Texas Panhandle wheat fields. The time is 1916, but the farm seems almost entirely isolated from the oncoming world conflicts. Only the arrival of a bi-plane pilot, the rapid wisp of a train carrying the president on a whistle-stop tour and a headline in the Amarillo Dispatch remind us of the outside world.

Gere and Miss Adams masquerade as brother and sister to avoid undue questioning and conflicts. But as in most Greek tragedy, their attempts at disguise only enhance their fates. The farmer, you see, is a wealthy, shy and lonely man, portrayed with a sense of jealous dignity by Sam Shepard. When Gere discovers Shepard is expected to live only one more year, he pushes Miss Adams into marrying the farmer. His hope, naturally, is that the farmer will die and his wife will inherit the wealth. A chance for the meek and poor to overcome.

Except the farmer does not die. And the wife grows to love her husband. The triangle of two men loving the same woman, of a woman loving two men, has raw and cutting edges. And we know blood will result.

Linda Manz serves as a guide throughout. She is the child-wise narrator who

TWO SIDES OF TRIANGLE — Brooke Adams and Sam Shepard rest in the Texas Panhandle wheat fields shortly after being married in Terrence Malick's artistic film, "Days Of Heaven." Tragedy is inevitable, though, because Miss Adams is also involved with Richard Gere. The film, a visual-work of art, is rated PG and currently playing at Showplace Six.

tells the story. Our characters are not really evil, she says, since, "nobody's perfect; you just got half devil and half angel in you." But she has also told us earlier, "If you're bad, God don't even hear you."

The acting is universally excellent throughout this wonderful movie, but there is no denying the cast is almost ornamental at times. Director Terrence Malick, who wrote this story 15 years after working in the wheat fields as a teen-ager, relies on his cinematographer and Ennio Morricone's bittersweet music, rather than dialogue, to tell his story. There are three killings in the film, the first two accidental and the third a result, and none offers expository dialogue. Instead, we rely on the cameras to show us what is happening.

We rely on Nestor Almendros' ability to give the farmer's fields an aura of beckoning beauty, so that we might understand how a poor man from Chicago could find life in the Texas Panhandle to be his days of heaven.

The scenery is vivid enough to be likened to paintings given the breath of life. Simply by watching our characters throughout a working day, by seeing their food and their labor, their sweat and their dreams, we feel we know them intimately. A wonderful shot of a champagne glass drifting slowly to a river bottom tells us everything about the dreams which are out of reach of the working class. A shot of a woman dancing alone on a farmhouse porch, speaks more intensely of happiness and hope than do any words.

And the gorgeous attraction of the combines in the fields, the wind ripping the cattails and the sheer water surface, the happiness of a Doug Kershaw fiddle-led bonfire celebration, makes us aware of the life's sensual appeal. Even the horrors, the locusts destroying the crop and the fire which sweeps across the land, are mesmerizing in their beauty.

In short, this film speaks eloquently of hopes and dreams, of innocence lost and the human situation. It is Terrence Malick's first film since 1974's "Badlands," and one can only hope he doesn't wait another five years to re-surface with another motion picture. Because "Days Of Heaven" has thrilled us with its splendor and dazzled us with its awareness. It is a film to cherish, to study, to think about and see over and over again. I beg you: See it.

A FINAL NOTE: Showplace advertisements have included the statement that "Days Of Heaven" was filmed in Alberta, Canada, reportedly the last remaining place in North America where wheat is cultivated in large, open fields. With Canadian filming completed, post-production, looping and editing were done in Los Angeles.

Script Writer Fights To Control Product

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The writer in Hollywood is low man on the totem pole, ignored, demeaned, expendable.

Hollywood may pay millions to such authors as Irving Wallace, Harold Robbins and Sidney Sheldon but movie versions of their novels seldom reflect the content of their books.

While authors may be enriched by film companies, their creative egos are stripped to the bone.

Author Jeffrey Konvitz sought to escape having his work ruined by movie-makers by becoming a moviemaker himself. He wrote a novel solely to produce it as a movie himself. It was his way of fighting the system.

Konvitz, a 34-year-old lawyer, has been an agent, MGM executive and producer. Konvitz's "The Sentinel" sold some 2 million copies. Universal financed the film. Michael Winner directed. It bombed.

"I was producer in name only," he said. "I had very little to say about the film, and that was my mistake."

"Once a project is packaged — script, actors and director — it becomes the director's film. But movies are a collaborative art."

"I think movies would be better off if the writers had something to say about casting, locations and directing. Of course, the writer is often subjective and unable to objectively collaborate on a movie. But he should be heard."

"Creativity begins with an author who starts with a blank page and comes up with a total concept. That's very different from hiring a writer to adapt someone else's idea."

Konvitz has written a sequel to "The Sentinel." Titled "The Guardian," the novel takes the reader into further occult adventures of the original characters.

He says his new book is better written, more frightening and suspenseful than "The Sentinel." He plans to make "The Guardian" into a movie — this time with more personal control of the film.

Konvitz is handicapped by the fact that "The Sentinel" failed at the box office and it's a rare studio that will follow an unsuccessful film with a sequel. Few sequels measure up to the originals anyhow. "The best way to make movies is to be born with $100 million, like Howard Hughes," Konvitz said. "Then you can make all the films you want — good or bad."

"Failing that, the best route is being an agent with packaging power. These are agents who leave an agency and carry forward into production with actors, writers and directors they've represented."

"It's a matter of having access to packageable material. If you can walk in with a script, stars and director the impetus is there to make a deal with a studio or financier."

"Of course, the star himself must be packageable, people like Eastwood, Streisand, Dreyfuss, Reynolds or Travolta."

Marvin Property Trial To Resume Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Lee Marvin property-rights trial was recessed Wednesday to allow Michelle Triola Marvin's lawyer to recover from a bronchial attack that hospitalized him a day earlier.

The presiding judge's clerk said Marvin Mitchelson was resting at home and had been advised by his doctor to take a day off before returning to the trial.

Mitchelson was taken to a hospital after a coughing attack struck during cross-examination of a witness. He underwent tests at Queen of Angels Hospital and was released Tuesday night.

The trial on the issue of property rights of unmarried couples was scheduled to resume today.

Mitchelson was taken from the courtroom on a stretcher with a sheet pulled over his mouth.

Mitchelson, who has a history of asthma, has had periodic coughing spasms throughout the 8-week-old trial as a result of a severe case of flu just after the trial opened in January.

Tuesday's coughing attack struck at mid-afternoon. Mitchelson was cross-examining another attorney, Louis Goldman, and the two men were clashing in angry tones.

Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall, who recessed court when the attorney was stricken, went to see Mitchelson as he lay on a cot in the jury room.

Miss Marvin appeared distraught as her attorney was wheeled out. She followed the ambulance to the hospital to be with Mitchelson.

Mitchelson is scheduled to resume his cross-examination of Goldman on Thursday. Goldman has said Miss Marvin asked for some of the actor's property in 1968 and that Marvin refused to give her anything.

Miss Marvin, a former singer, had her last name changed legally before the couple's six-year romance ended in 1970.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAR. 8, 1979

PHYSICAL

Critics: 12, 23, 35, 46, 58, 69 — Care crossing streets
Highs: 13, 22, 36, 45, 59, 68 — Sensations of vigor
Lows: 1, 11, 24, 34, 47, 57, 70, 75 — This is a sluggish day

EMOTIONAL

Critics: 12, 25, 40, 54, 68, 82 — Beware today, slow up
Highs: 1, 11, 27, 39, 53, 67, 83, 85 — Be with peace
Lows: 13, 25, 41, 53, 69, 81 — Try to postpone decisions

INTELLECTUAL

Critics: 10, 26, 43, 59, 76, 92 — Avoid casual decisions
Highs: 11, 25, 44, 58, 77, 91 — Your thoughts abound
Lows: 1, 9, 27, 42, 60, 75, 93, 95 — Tough decision day

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Prices Of Some Farm Products Take Sharp Jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices that farmers get for raw products rose another 3 percent in February, breaking records set the previous two months, the Agriculture Department said.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said higher prices for cattle, soybeans, hogs, calves, oranges and broiler chickens contributed most to the gain in the price index from January.

However, lower prices were reported for cotton, potatoes, turkeys and barley, which partially offset the gains for the other commodities.

Beef cattle prices, already at record levels, jumped another 7.2 percent from January. Vegetable prices, led by cabbage and lettuce, rose 7 percent.

Farm prices over-all in February were up 24 percent from a year ago, the report said. The commodity price index was 240 percent of a 1967 base used as a standard.

— the biggest gain in more than four years — to 232 percent of the 1967 base. The index in December broke the previous record of 221 set in August 1973.

Economists do not consider farm prices in a single month good indicators of future food price because they often fluctuate.

But over the longer pull higher farm prices do have an impact on grocery prices and this has been happening the past year.

Higher livestock prices, particularly, were a major reason for a 40 percent boost in farmers' net incomes last year to $28.1 billion, compared to $20.1 billion in 1977, according to the department.

With farm prices still rising, the department says farmers' net income will rise again this year, although not so sharply, to about $30 billion.

Most Cattle Futures Advance Limit Up

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 50 to 150 points higher led by most contracts at the limit level advance Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 30,920 cars. The market rebounded after an early loss of 22.

Prices rallied after Tuesday's limit level losses across the board. Aggressive buying on the part of a cash connected commission house uncovered stops which led the upturn. Record high cattle and beef remained the prime factors in the upturn.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 1 cent at 106 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a record high. Cash cattle were steady to up $1.50 with the best top $72.50 per hundredweight, which is a new record high. Omaha's top was $71.

Slaughter was 133,000 head. About 13,500 head are expected at the major markets today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 72 to 150 higher led by March and April at the limit level advance.

level advance. Volume was estimated at 6,537 lots. The market rebounded after an outset loss of 147. Demand spilled over from limit higher cattle pits.

Outset selling carried over from Tuesday's limit level losses across the board. Continued strength in cash feeder cattle and beef uncovered buying and the advance accelerated as stops were touched off on the scale-up.

Deliveries total 151 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were up $3 to off $2 with the best top $149 per hundredweight at San Antonio. The major markets are expecting 9,100 head today.

Hog futures closed 50 to 145 higher led by July with most contracts at the day's highs. Sales totaled 8,969 contracts. The market rallied after an early loss of 20.

Lower cash hogs and easier pork trade brought early selling as did heavy kill Tuesday. Sharply higher cattle futures touched off buying as did the discount of futures to cash hogs and cattle futures.

Wholesale hams were unchanged at 97.50.

88A to 92 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off 50 to 25 cents with the best top $53.25 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 328,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to be 27,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 35 to 92 higher led by May after March rose 117. Sales totaled 6,500 cars. Early, the market slipped 35.

Much of the demand spilled over from limit level higher cattle futures and there was also technical support after prices fell to one month lows. Heavy out of town storings and increased kill yesterday accounted for early pressure.

There have been 37 deliveries thus far. Wholesale bacon was off 1/2 to up 1 cent at 56 1/2 to 59 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Triazine Neutralizer Revealed

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Corn and sorghum farmers who use triazine herbicides can now have the freedom to choose alternate crops without the problem of triazine residuals," Dennis Owens of Lubbock told a press conference Wednesday at the South Park Inn.

Owens, a graduate of Texas Tech University, developed a triazine neutralizer called "Notox" designed to remove the harmful triazine residues within 72 hours after application, leaving virtually no trace of itself.

"The advantage of the product," Owens said, "is that the farmer is able to switch to a different crop in a short period of time. If a corn acreage is hailed out, for example, the farmer could replant something else within three days with the use of Notox."

Outset selling carried over from Tuesday's limit level losses across the board. Continued strength in cash feeder cattle and beef uncovered buying and the advance accelerated as stops were touched off on the scale-up.

Deliveries total 151 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were up $3 to off $2 with the best top $149 per hundredweight at San Antonio. The major markets are expecting 9,100 head today.

Hog futures closed 50 to 145 higher led by July with most contracts at the day's highs. Sales totaled 8,969 contracts. The market rallied after an early loss of 20.

Lower cash hogs and easier pork trade brought early selling as did heavy kill Tuesday. Sharply higher cattle futures touched off buying as did the discount of futures to cash hogs and cattle futures.

level advance. Volume was estimated at 6,537 lots. The market rebounded after an outset loss of 147. Demand spilled over from limit higher cattle pits.

Grain Futures
CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean, wheat and corn futures were mixed in uneventful dealings Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A government report, set for release after the close, was expected to show a sharp drop in anticipated year-end supplies of soybeans because of an increase in anticipated exports, analysts said.

The increase was expected because Brazil's soybean crop, U.S. farmers' main competition on world soybean markets, has been damaged by drought.

Nearly soybean futures fell slightly as more distant months, including those that will be affected by next fall's soybean harvest, rose as traders executed "spread" positions against old-crop months.

sharply, recovering from recent losses as traders continued to make no deliveries of wheat against maturing March futures contracts.

In export markets, India reportedly declined sellers' offers at its recent tender to buy soybean oil. Brazil was reported to have split a wheat purchase between Argentina and the United States.
