

Rio Grande Bridge Building Hinges On Politics

OLD BRIDGE — Traffic on this old railroad bridge connecting Brownsville and Matamoros, Mexico, is halted when freight trains cross the international span. The crossing is one of two often overworked bridges in Brownsville. Officials in the Rio Grande Valley are working toward construction of eight new bridges. (AP Laserphoto)

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — The Rio Grande is little more than a muddy creek in some spots but efforts to build bridges across it manage to get tangled in red tape that stretches from Washington to Mexico City.

"We have a little saying along the border," said Carl Griffin, superintendent of the bridge at Hidalgo. "If you want a bridge 10 years from now you better start today."

There are four bridges in Cameron and Hidalgo counties which span the border. But officials in six Rio Grande Valley towns — with their eye on increased trade with Mexican consumers — are working toward construction of seven new spans.

Nobody involved in any of the projects is willing to guess on when the next bridge will be built.

"It's strictly political," Brownsville Mayor Ruben Edelstein said of local problems blocking progress on a much-needed new bridge here.

Brownsville and the bustling Mexican city of Matamoros are now linked by a pair of often overworked bridges. The Gateway Bridge, owned by Cameron County, carries about 9,000 vehicles a day, according to bridge manager Henry Hickford. A smaller bridge, owned by the Mexican National and Missouri Pacific Railroads, carries about half that much traffic, Hickford estimated.

Edelstein said the need for new bridges is "extremely critical."

"If there is an emergency and we have to get firetrucks or medical vehicles across they just couldn't get there," he said.

The privately owned bridge offers little relief. It also is frequently backed up and it is barely two cars wide. The passenger traffic sometimes has to yield to freight trains.

Edelstein would like to see a new bridge downstream from the county bridge. However, city efforts toward that goal have been blocked by U.S. officials.

"The State Department wants to force the city to work out an agreement with the county for a joint venture on it," the mayor said. "I can't for the life of me understand why."

Officials from the city and Cameron County have yet to work out such an agreement. The State Department has made it clear that only such a joint application will be considered, Edelstein said.

County Judge Ray Ramon is optimistic an agreement can be hammered out.

"The basic difference is ownership.

The city wanted to work out a contract with the Mexicans where the city would own the bridge. We want the same thing," Ramon said.

Edelstein said the proposed bridge could cost as much as $3 million — not including about $10 million needed to extend an existing expressway to the river. Some local residents have also questioned whether the streets of Matamoros can carry more traffic.

The mayor also said a bridge in the city's western sector is being considered.

While Ramon is confident the city and county can work out their problems, he is not sure what the Mexican officials will do.

"It's always been our position that they pay 50 percent. It's a question of the Mexican government appropriating the necessary funds," he said. "Since we are dealing with the federal government of Mexico it's difficult to say if it will be in six months or six years."

Ramon is more optimistic about a bridge proposed for Los Indios — south of Harlingen and San Benito. He said officials in the two cities seem ready to work with the county on the project.

Tax Relief Amendment Gets House Attention

AUSTIN (AP) — City school districts and timber corporations won victories Wednesday as the House worked on a bill implementing the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

House members voted 84-51 to exclude intangibles such as stocks, bonds and bank accounts from the measurement of school district wealth used in parceling out state aid to public schools.

It was a major decision, one the legislature has been moving toward since the lawmaking session began in January.

Unless the legislature enacts the exclusion into law, most urban school districts would receive far less state aid than they do now — in some cases none at all — and their citizens would pay larger property taxes.

This is because the school finance law passed in 1977 mandates that intangibles be added to real estate in determining whether a district needs state aid and, if so, how much.

Intangibles would swell the estimates of urban district wealth so much that their apparent need for state aid would plummet.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, won the vote to drop intangibles from the school aid formula as the House worked on a section prohibiting taxation of intangibles which are not taxed now.

"If you can't tax them, I don't see why you should be able to count them in the state aid formula," Bryant said.

Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, objected, saying that even though intangibles could not be taxed, they indicate existence of income available for paying taxes.

Bryant failed, 76-60, with an amendment prohibiting taxation of timber corporations' land on productivity instead of market value.

The Tax Relief Amendment allows the legislature to grant timber companies the tax break but does not require it to do so.

Bryant said the result of a tax break for timber companies would be to raise taxes on others to make up the revenue loss.

"Timber corporations will be paying less, but 'Grandmother Blue Hair,' wearing a fruit hat, is going to be paying more taxes," Bryant said.

Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-Braunfels, said corporations are owned by individuals, who ultimately would benefit from productivity taxation.

The bill says the taxable value of timber land cannot be less than its market value in 1978, and the House refused, 87-50, to eliminate that provision.

In a related development, Attorney General Mark White issued an opinion saying the tax relief bill could apply to this year's taxes if it takes effect before tax rolls are established.

Suspect Called Troubled Wanderer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Roger Dale Stafford, the lone surviving suspect in nine Oklahoma murders, asked a minister last month "if God forgives people who take another life," his sister said Wednesday following Stafford's arrest in Chicago.

Stafford, whose estranged wife has linked him to other slayings across the country, was being transferred here Wednesday after he waived extradition earlier in the morning.

The 27-year-old Alabamian was arrested at a Chicago YMCA Tuesday night after a 2½-hour stakeout.

Stafford told Chicago police he wanted to return to Oklahoma to "clear his name."

Police said Stafford and his brother, Harold Ray Stafford, 29, are suspected of gunning down six employees of an Oklahoma City steakhouse July 16 and killing a San Antonio, Texas, couple and their 12-year-old son near here a month before that.

Harold Stafford was killed in a Tulsa motorcycle accident, six days after the Sirolo Stockade employees were slain during a robbery that netted $1,500.

Stafford has been charged with only one count of murder here and District Attorney Andrew Coats said the other five counts would be filed once Stafford was in custody.

Charges in the slayings of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, his wife and son will be filed in McClain County, where the bodies were found in deep weeds along Interstate 35.

Police said Stafford's 26-year-old wife Verna has placed her husband at various points across the country where unsolved slayings have occurred, including Speedway, Ind., where four employees of a Burger Chef restaurant were killed last October.

Arthur Linville, the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation agent who coordinated the mass-murder probe, said possible links between the crimes and Stafford "certainly bear checking."

Two Indiana State Police officers came to Oklahoma City on Tuesday to confer with local officers about the Speedway murders.

OSBI Director Tom Kennedy said Mrs. Stafford has been identified as the woman who drove the getaway car from the steakhouse and Lorenz murder scenes, but she did not participate in the killings.

Glynda Denning, of Chicago, said Stafford had been bothered recently, but she didn't know why.

Mrs. Denning said her brother left home at 17 and began wandering, troubled by mental problems and an unhappy marriage. He sought refuge from his troubles with homosexuals, she said.

Police records show Stafford was arrested in Baker, Ore., in January 1978, on a charge of first-degree theft. He served about a month in jail.

In 1971, the United States announced a decision to resume the sale of F-4 Phantom warplanes to Israel.

Chinese Official Says Most Troops Now Pulled Out Of Vietnam

TOKYO (AP) — A Chinese official was reported Wednesday as saying that most of Peking's troops have pulled out of Vietnam, virtually ending a nearly month-long war.

Japan's Kyodo News Service in Tokyo quoted the unidentified Chinese official in Peking as telling a correspondent that the withdrawal "will take another day or so."

Peking's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) News Agency reported the Vietnamese were launching harassing attacks and said the Chinese were striking back as they retreated.

"Part of the enemy troops were wiped out and the rest scuttled," the agency said. Xinhua did not mention casualty figures.

In a conflicting report, Hanoi claimed "there was indication that Chinese troops would remain in areas of the six border provinces for a long time."

Hanoi's latest battle report said the Vietnamese killed or wounded 1,100 Chinese and knocked out 104 military vehicles "in fierce fighting" Monday and Tuesday in the Lao Cai area, 156 miles northwest of Hanoi near the frontier.

A Voice of Vietnam broadcast said its correspondent saw Chinese troops building emplacements over the past few days in an apparent move to entrench themselves in border areas.

The radio report accused the Chinese of retaining many areas, shelling homes, destroying communication lines, setting mines along provincial highways and blowing up bridges on main roads.

Analysts in Bangkok said the Chinese were flying air sorties along the frontier but the Vietnamese Air Force was not responding. One source said the Chinese were dropping supplies by parachute to their withdrawing troops.

The war, which began Feb. 17, appeared to be characterized by small-scale infantry clashes, artillery duels and a Chinese withdrawal aimed at providing maximum security to its troops.

But the chief of Hanoi's general staff, Gen. Van Tien Dung, said Wednesday, "They are deliberately delaying withdrawal of troops and continuing to perpetrate more crimes against the Vietnamese people."

In New Delhi, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said Wednesday that China is lying about pulling out and said Peking actually "is consolidating its hold of the Vietnamese soil and continues its intervention."

"The Chinese leaders wanted to make a show of force and intimidate Vietnam and other Asian countries, but it has backfired," Kosygin said in a speech over Indian television concluding his six-day official visit to China's southern neighbor.

Observers said Vietnamese forces were trailing Peking's troops and the conflict had shifted closer to the border.

"There is some harassment by the Vietnamese but apparently not enough to provoke Chinese counterattacks," one diplomat here said. "The Chinese pull out of an area, then shell it to prevent immediate occupation by the Vietnamese and danger to their own troops," he said.

The Chinese reportedly plan to hold some border points they claim the Vietnamese used as staging areas for attacks into China, but the Chinese have provided little battlefield information.

Hanoi announced Wednesday that it had set up a commission to investigate "war crimes" allegedly committed by the Chinese.

There has been no independent confirmation of alleged Chinese atrocities. Peking has said its soldiers actually have shared food with the Vietnamese, fed livestock and cleaned up evacuated towns.

On Wednesday, Vietnam also released analyses of the war which said Hanoi out-fought and outsmarted Peking's invaders but warned the fighting might only have been the first round of confrontation.

Automakers Blast Gasoline Mileage Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disgruntled automakers told Congress Wednesday that impending gasoline mileage standards could prove far more costly than the moon-landing program and still fail to save precious fuel.

At issue are the Transportation Department's requirements for gradually doubling the fuel economy of vehicles, from an average of less than 14 miles per gallon in 1974 to 27.5 mpg by 1985.

"To accomplish all this," testified S.L. Terry, Chrysler's vice president for consumer affairs, "the American automobile industry will invest nearly $80 billion in new plants, tools, equipment and technology."

"That's more than double the amount the industry spent in the previous eight years, even after adjustment for inflation. It's three times what it cost to put a man on the moon, and it's more than the combined profit of all American corporations in 1975," Terry said.

His testimony came at a hearing of the House Commerce subcommittee on energy. A day earlier, several administration witnesses indicated they will review the fuel economy rules in light of the industry complaints.

Terry and other industry spokesmen did not quarrel so much with the overall goal of reaching the 27.5 mpg standard by 1985. Rather, they objected to the Transportation Department's "front-loading" of the program for the 1980-85 period. As now written, the rules require improvements of 2 mpg in each of the first three years, then 1 mpg and 1/2 mpg.

"The standards should increase by a constant amount each year on a straight-line basis to 1985," said Terry. "Several recent studies have shown that the front-loaded standards will add seriously to inflation at a time when the need is most urgent to hold prices down."

Because of the massive capital investment required to make larger improvements early in the program, he said, "the regulations in particular favor the larger companies" and could prove anti-competitive.

But Clarence Ditlow, director of the Center for Auto Safety, the consumer group founded by Ralph Nader, took issue with the automakers. "Front loading of the standards is particularly important because of the projected fuel shortages for 1980 and 1981," he said. "I'm convinced the industry has the ability."

Terry said a Chase Manhattan Bank study showed that using the front-loaded standards "will raise our nation's unemployment by one percent by 1984" and could "negatively affect our balance of trade by $5 billion" by forcing the industry to sell more imported cars.

The study also indicated a "cumulative loss of $220 billion in our gross national product between 1980 and 1990, Terry said. For that heavy cost, the study estimates that the country will reduce its annual oil usage at most by three-fourths of one percent a year."

David S. Potter, vice president for public affairs of General Motors, said that "even using maximum technology, we may have to resort to product restrictions, with their attendant risks of lost sales, reduced employment and impairment of the economy. This might well result in less fuel saving to the U.S. than under a more moderate improvement schedule," since drivers would be left with older, less efficient cars.

Rules Change Hurts Small Gasoline Firms

NEW YORK (AP) — If you buy gasoline at a service station whose sign doesn't carry the name of one of the big oil companies, you may have trouble filling your tank. The small distributors that supply independent dealers are having more trouble meeting demand than the industry giants.

The independent refiners and distributors say they've been caught in the middle because the government — at the behest of the large oil companies — changed the rules in the middle of the game.

"There are a lot of independents now — like we are — that are severely shaken," said Ash Gockel, executive vice president of Kerr-McGee Corp., the Oklahoma City-based energy conglomerate that sells gasoline in the central part of the nation.

"Our volume is off and therefore our distributors' or jobbers' volume will be off and then their dealers' supply will be off ... The same effect goes down the line."

Kerr-McGee is selling its dealers 85 percent of the amount of gasoline they got last year. But demand for the fuel is up more than three percent in the past year. Most of the major oil companies are giving dealers the same amount they got last year, although a few have cut back to 90 percent. Some independents, however, are down as low as 50 percent.

The reason, according to the smaller companies, is that they aren't getting as much crude oil or gasoline from their major suppliers — the big companies — as before the rules change.

The Department of Energy last month changed its rules on gasoline allocation, telling companies they could base the percentage they sell dealers on last year's levels rather than on 1972 levels, which had been the previous standard. The 1972 level had been used as a base because that was the last full year before the Arab oil embargo upset supply patterns.

The large oil companies asked for the new base, saying it would more accurately reflect recent market conditions. But the smaller companies are upset about the timing. "The new base period really caught us at a bad time," said an executive who didn't want to be identified.

That's because March is the first month it affected, and the companies say March 1978 was a bad month to base allocations on. Gasoline was very plentiful in January and February of 1978, and most buyers of wholesale gasoline cut purchases in March 1978.

Kerr-McGee had so much gasoline in March 1978 that it sold some back to one of its suppliers. Under the law, it is obliged to repeat that sale, even though Kerr-McGee would normally be buying fuel at this time of year.

For the motorist who gets gas at stations not flying the banner of Mobil, Exxon, Texaco or one of the other big companies, the occasional shortages may also mean higher prices.

Dick Brehme, president of Lerner Oil Co., which runs 120 gas stations in California, says his company's suppliers have cut back to 75 to 95 percent of last year's levels. So Lerner stations, selling less gasoline, have raised prices to keep their profit level up. Brehme said that regular-grade gasoline at Lerner stations has risen by about three cents a gallon, to a total of 70 cents, in the past two weeks.

Many of the independent refiners and dealers are asking the Energy Department for some sort of relief — ideally a revision of the base period back to 1972. But in the meantime, Brehme says, "It looks like a rough time ahead."

Alaska Eyes Mexico-Japan Oil Swap Arrangement

JUNEAU (AP) — Alaskan officials are pushing harder for permission to sell North Slope oil to Japan because of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio's decision to abandon plans for a pipeline from California to Texas.

The pipeline, which would have sent Alaskan oil to the Gulf Coast more cheaply than the present method of shipping it through the Panama Canal, was scrapped because of government red tape, the oil company announced Tuesday.

Sohio had said the pipeline would have eased the surplus of crude oil in California and increased the economic incentive in the eastern United States to use Alaskan instead of foreign petroleum.

Alaska wants permission to ship 150,000 barrels of oil a day — about 10 percent of the total produced — to Japan. In exchange, Mexican oil originally earmarked for Japan would be shipped to the Gulf Coast, eliminating the cost of shipping it through the Panama Canal.

"Now that Sohio is out, it would seem to be further evidence of the need for moving oil and alleviating the surplus on the West Coast one way or another," said Alaskan Gov. Jay Hammond.

But the Alaskan plan to swap oil faces stiff opposition from Congressmen who don't want America exporting Alaskan oil while buying half the petroleum the country needs from other nations. Oil supply problems have reinforced that view.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said earlier this week that he has "not found rousing enthusiasm" in Congress for a trade of Alaskan oil. "There is no substantial political basis for swaps," he said.

Alaska's natural resources commissioner, Bob LeResche, said state consultants would meet with administration officials and congressmen in Washington next week on the export-trade proposal and that he will go to Mexico soon to resume talks with representatives of Pemex, Mexico's national oil company.

Industry experts say that Alaskan oil will not be a large factor in reducing U.S. reliance on imported oil unless some plan is found to distribute it more evenly across the country.

The legislation that authorized the trans-Alaska pipeline banned the export of Alaskan oil shipped through the pipeline. But more oil is flowing into West Coast ports than can be refined, so oil companies have been forced to ship it to the Gulf Coast through the Panama Canal, adding about $2.50 to the $13.35-a-barrel price.

Alaska argues that producers have no incentive to increase production because would cut the transportation cost by about $1 a barrel.

But on Tuesday, Sohio Chairman Alton W. Whitehouse said the $1 billion project was being dropped because of "endless" state and federal regulatory delays. California officials disputed that, saying a decision on the necessary state permits was imminent.

"We don't think a reasonable man could argue delay was their reason (for dropping the pipeline) when the permit process would be completed in eight days," said Gray Davis, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s top aide.

Alaska argues that producers have no incentive to increase production because the oil can't be used by California refineries, can't be exported and is priced too high by the time it goes through the canal.

Hammond argues that objection to swapping Alaskan oil for Mexican oil are invalid.

"The thing that gets lost here is that not one barrel of oil would go out without another one coming into the country," he said.

LeResche said that the "trade" — supplying Alaska's oil to Japan in exchange for Japan's oil purchases coming to the Gulf Coast — is not critically dependent on Mexico.

"They are just sitting in the best place geographically and we would like to do it with them," he said. "They want to start marketing to Japan, selling at the world price. We're looking at Mexican crude that is not now being produced."

"The arguments against exports are basically emotional," said Bob Maynard, an assistant attorney general who will testify on export restrictions before a congressional hearing next week. "Oil is oil, and it doesn't matter where it comes from," he said.

FTC Says Fuel Pumps Must List Octane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline pumps will carry signs telling the octane of the fuel inside beginning June 1 under a rule adopted Wednesday by the Federal Trade Commission.

The yellow-and-black signs will enable buyers to compare the octane of the gasoline with the octane recommended by auto manufacturers, which usually is listed in the owner's manual.

The recommendation for practically all cars is between 87 and 95. Regular grades of gasoline go up to 91 with higher-priced gasoline going higher. "The effectiveness of this rule depends on consumers' knowledge of the octane ratings of the gasoline and what is recommended for their cars," Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon said.

"All of us have at least once bought a tank of high-test instead of regular with the feeling that 'I'll get something special for the more expensive kind.' But what you get is more lead on the cylinder walls and sparkplugs that are worn out sooner," Dixon said.

Habitual use of too low an octane can result in engine damage. In avoiding this, many motorists buy a higher octane than their car needs, the FTC staff said.

Commissioner Robert Pitofsky said the rule "is aimed at gross overbuying, when someone whose engine calls for 88 octane buys 93, for example. That wastes money and harms the environment."

The Department of Energy has required different signs telling octane levels of gasoline, but Congress last year told the FTC to write a new requirement. A staff member of the House Commerce subcommittee on energy said Congress wanted the FTC to make the regulations "since it is a consumer protection agency."

Commission staff members said some owners' manuals for pre-1975 cars list octane figured by a different formula than the one that now is standard. Those listed as the "research octane number" are

Accord In Mideast Said No Oil Burden On U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's negotiation of an Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement apparently places no significant new burdens on U.S. energy supplies, an administration official said Wednesday.

The United States already guarantees Israel a reliable supply of oil under a 1975 agreement.

The official, an expert on international energy matters who asked not to be named publicly, took note Wednesday of news reports saying that Israel would return to Egypt the Sinai oil fields, which now provide Israel about 30,000 barrels of oil daily.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Butros Ghali said Egypt agreed to sell Israel oil at world prices, without special privileges.

But the U.S. expert pointed out that Israel is physically the nearest customer for Sinai oil, and so sales to Israel would be economically advantageous for Egypt.

For that reason, the expert said, Egypt's stated policy of nondiscrimination seems to guarantee Israel continued access to Sinai oil, for all practical purposes.

Even if it could not purchase Egyptian oil, Israel is protected by a 1975 agreement in which the United States guaranteed to maintain Israel's oil supply, using U.S. influence to help Israel purchase oil on the world market or, if necessary, selling Israel oil directly.

Israel had been purchasing some 80,000 barrels of oil a day from Iran before Iranian oil production was interrupted late last year by revolution in the Persian Gulf nation.

The administration official said Israel has replaced a large part of the lost Iranian oil with purchases from Mexico and the "spot" market of short-term sales on the world market.

Israel has not invoked direct U.S. oil assistance under the 1975 agreement, and if it did, its needs are not great enough to pose any serious problem for the United States, the expert said.

He said the Israeli-Egyptian accord might involve "updating" the 1975 agreement but could scarcely increase the U.S. obligation, which already represents a virtually complete guarantee of Israel's oil supplies.

Powell Attorney Pursues Challenge Of State's Death-By-Injection Law

AUSTIN (AP) — An attorney for Death Row inmate David Lee Powell Wednesday pursued a challenge of the state's death by injection law before the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals.

"This is one of the best shots we've got of stopping the death penalty, at least in the interim," said J.P. Darrouzet of Austin.

He said W.J. Estelle Jr., director of the Texas Department of Corrections, violated the Administrative Procedure Act by failing to publish the procedures for death by injection in the Texas Register.

Although a decision will not be rendered immediately, the three appeals judges advised Darrouzet a ruling was made a year ago that they did not have jurisdiction in cases pending in criminal court.

"There are no private rights affected in the case. This is the state," he said. "It concerns strictly a matter of internal management."

Darrouzet said he would pursue the question in the criminal courts if the civil appeals court rejects it.

If successful, he added, "That would take over 100 people and effectively say he (Estelle) couldn't kill them."

"I don't level any blame at Estelle in all this," he said. "The Administrative Procedures Act would not even occur to him that he came under it."

Billy Ware at the TDC records department in Huntsville said there are 100 convicts on Death Row.

Appeals Court Says County Court Right In Probation Case

A-J Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld a Lubbock County district court's order revoking the probation of Juan Longoria.

Longoria received a seven-year probation sentence in 1977 following his conviction for possession of heroin.

His probation was revoked about two months later after Longoria was found to have violated his probation conditions by possessing between two and four ounces of marijuana.

Longoria said evidence was not sufficient to prove possession.

But the court said circumstances surrounding his arrest after he was involved in an automobile accident on Sept. 30, 1977, show his connection with the offense.

Court records show the car Longoria was driving collided with another vehicle and while two investigating officers were at the scene, two occupants of the other car said Longoria was making several motions as if he were throwing objects away from him.

After the officers were told about the observations, they found six individual plastic bags containing marijuana around Longoria's car.

The court said Longoria's proximity to the marijuana and the witnesses' testimony about the throwing motions create a "reasonable belief" that Longoria violated his probation conditions.

1,000-Year Term Upheld By Court

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the 1,000-year prison term assessed Eugene Spencer in the 1972 slaying of a San Antonio policeman.

Spencer was convicted of murder with malice in the shotgun slaying of Officer Antonio Canales on May 17, 1972.

The policeman had stopped a car at 4 a.m. following a reported service station robbery. As Canales leaned over the car window, he was blasted with a shotgun and fell on the pavement.

The car sped away but crashed into a highway pillar and two occupants escaped.

Spencer and another man were arrested later and both were indicted for murder. The codefendant testified at Spencer's trial but was not identified as an accomplice witness.

Even without the codefendant's testimony, there was enough evidence to convict Spencer, the appeals court said. The service station attendant identified him as the man who robbed him and a ballistics expert said Canales was killed from a blast of Spencer's shotgun.

 The true history of the Stars and Stripes has become so cluttered by myth and tradition that the facts are difficult, and in some cases impossible, to establish. It is not certain who really designed the Stars and Stripes, who made the first such flag, or even whether it ever flew in any sea fight or land battle of the American Revolution.

Bazargan Raps Khomeini's Arbitrary Acts

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, who resigned last week but then agreed to stay on when Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini promised his support, criticized the religious leader Wednesday for issuing orders without consulting his premier.

Bazargan, in a nationwide radio broadcast, cited as an example Khomeini's order that water and electricity, as well as bus service, be made free for the lower class. As a result, Bazargan said, the holy city of Qom went bankrupt overnight.

Bazargan also cited Khomeini's decision to ban the sale of imported frozen meat.

Bazargan said last week he would resign if Khomeini did not stop bypassing his government. Khomeini responded by saying Bazargan's regime was weak and not committed to an Islamic republic. That set up a showdown in which Bazargan resigned, but was persuaded to stay on when Khomeini, the architect of Iran's Islamic revolution, promised to issue orders bolstering Bazargan's authority. Bazargan reiterated Wednesday his criticism of revolutionary secret trials. He said, "It is a pity that the trials are taking place behind the closed doors and are now becoming unreligious and unhuman."

He referred to Islamic revolutionary courts that so far have ordered more than 60 military men and civilians executed. Ten convicts also were shot for sexual offenses.

Islamic revolutionary firing squads on Wednesday executed five more officials who served deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. About 200 were believed awaiting execution after conviction by revolutionary tribunals.

Bazargan said human rights organizations that once helped Iranians who sought to overthrow the Shah now are criticizing the revolutionary government for the secret trials.

One source said Wednesday night the secret trials have caused a rift in Bazargan's six-week-old Cabinet and several ministers have protested them.

It was reliably reported that former Iranian Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida was being questioned and was expected to be tried on charges of brutally repressing dissent. Hoveida served as prime minister from 1963-76.

The shah ordered Hoveida's arrest Nov. 8 on corruption charges in an obvious attempt to pacify growing dissent. Islamic sources said Hoveida, who has said he was only following the shah's orders, would be used as a star witness if the shah is tried in absentia.

Three of Wednesday's executions were in the town of Dezful in Kuzestan province. The dead were Lt. Gen. Akbar Ghafarian, 1st Lt. Ali Rehdari and Police Chief Mohammed Taghi Hajajidi. All three were convicted of murder and torture.

In the town of Shushtar, also in Kuzestan, the former head of police, Lt. Haydar Jafarina, was shot after being found guilty of two murders during anti-shah protests. In another town, a fifth, unidentified, government official was executed after being convicted of ordering troops to fire on anti-shah demonstrators.

Bazargan then went on in his hour-long speech and advised workers to calm down and stop attempting to appoint their own managers in factories.

He also told the university students to attend classes instead of touring villages and towns to incite farmers and workers to increase their demands.

Bazargan said women's demonstrations protesting imposition of the veil made an "unnecessary fuss" over a small matter. This week thousands of Iranian women staged anti-government demonstrations and forced religious leaders to withdraw or amend their demands that women wear the "chador" — a head to ankle robe.

In other developments:

—The National Iranian Oil Co. announced that since exports were resumed March 5, 16 million barrels have been exported at prices ranging from $18 to $20 a barrel. The company said production in the past 24 hours stood at 2.5 million-barrels, with 700,000 barrels used for domestic needs and the rest exported.

—The wealth of the shah's family in Iran was reported by the president of an investigating committee to be "unbelievable," with properties in almost every part of the country, Mohammed Hoveida, who heads the committee, said. "Every day we receive reports of new properties discovered in various corners of the country," belonging to royal family members

Romance Calorie Cost Counted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even love has its price in an age when the energy conscious are counting up the cost of everything from gasoline to a kiss.

Italian nutritionists, armed with a computer, have calculated that the energy cost of a kiss varies between six and 12 calories, "depending on intensity," according to an article in the Environmental Nutrition newsletter.

A round of lovemaking can burn up as many as 300 calories or as few as 125. "Fervor" is the key to energy expenditure, the newsletter said.

On an annual basis, three kisses a day at an average cost of 9 calories add up to a 52-week tab of 9,855 calories.

Two amorous interludes a week at 212.5 calories per episode work out to 22,100 calories in energy use over a full year.

The grand total for kissing and lovemaking on that schedule is 31,955 calories of energy consumption in 12 months, the newsletter concluded.

"If you choose this as a method of weight reduction, you can expect to lose 9.13 pounds in a year's time," Environmental Nutrition said.

"If you are not interested in losing weight, you can instead consume an extra 13.77 pounds of milk chocolate in exchange for the calories expended in these activities."

Son Tells Of Father's Plot To Kill 50 At Polygamist's Burial

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 16-year-old son of fugitive cult leader Ervil LeBaron testified Wednesday his father ordered several cult members to kill 50 men at the funeral of rival polygamist leader Rulon Allred.

Isaac LeBaron, under cross-examination, acknowledged his father instructed the alleged hit squad to spray the Salt Lake funeral crowd with a machine gun while Don Sullivan executed Vernal LeBaron, brother of Ervil.

The mission was called off because of the large number of reporters and police, two previous witnesses said.

Isaac LeBaron testified in the jury trial of four persons accused in the gun slaying of Allred, a 71-year-old naturopathic physician who led the Apostolic United Brethren.

On trial are Rena Chynoweth, 20, her brother Mark Chynoweth, 26, and Edward Marston, 23, all charged with second-degree murder, attempted murder and conspiracy. Victor Chynoweth, 31, another brother, is charged with conspiracy.

The prosecution contends Ervil LeBaron, leader of the Church of the Lamb of God, sent a death squad to Salt Lake City where Miss. Chynoweth and Ramona Marston gunned Allred down on May 10, 1977 in his suburban Salt Lake City office.

The defense maintains a key prosecution witness, Donald Sullivan, was the triggerman.

Miss. Marston and Ervil LeBaron are still at large.

Also Wednesday, Allred's brother, Owen Allred, testified the Allreds and LeBarons had been friends, and the Allreds had lived for a time on Ervil LeBaron's compound in Mexico.

Verlan LeBaron, the alleged target at Allred's May 14, 1977 funeral, testified he attended the funeral, then returned to his church's Mexican headquarters in Baja California.

Two earlier witnesses testified that several cult members traveled to El Paso after the aborted murder attempt at the funeral, hoping to kill Verlan LeBaron at the home of Siegfried Widmar, a member of Verlan LeBaron's church.

Widmar testified he was in Mexico with Verlan LeBaron at the time the alleged hit team was waiting in El Paso.

Iranian Women Challenge Islamic Restoration

'OFF WITH THE VEIL' — During the long campaign to topple the Shah of Iran, Iranian women took to wearing the chador — the traditional robes and veil — as a symbol of opposition to the shah's modernization movement. Now the women (bottom photo) have again taken to the streets to protest the prospect of mandatory wearing of the chador. Iranian women, however, were not the first to take to the streets in protest, as seen in the top photo, taken in 1971 when Chilean women took to the streets to protest food shortages in Santiago. (AP Laserphoto)

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian women have again ripped off the veil and taken to the streets, shedding the long black robes of tradition and donning the contentious dress of liberation.

Considered among the most Westernized of Middle Eastern women, Iranian women now find themselves on a collision course with the new, conservative Islamic government of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

And they are not giving ground without a fight.

The immediate issue: their dress. Moslem leaders want women to wear the traditional chador, head-to-ankle black robes and veil.

The ultimate issue: the status of women in this male-dominated Persian Gulf nation.

The dress furor has overshadowed and left unresolved major issues in this revolution-torn country: resuming education, reducing unemployment, repairing the economy and shaping new foreign policy.

Amid hurled rocks and shouts of "prostitute," 15,000 women have been marching this week in Tehran to protest calls for mandatory wearing of the chador. Four "uncovered" women were stabbed during a march.

Women civil servants in Western clothes were turned away from government offices until they put on the ancient style dress which they consider a symbol of backwardness and enslavement.

Ironically, in the closing days of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's regime, many Western-thinking Iranian women defiantly wore the chador as they marched in the streets. It became a symbol of opposition.

Today it is anathema to many. On Monday, under the protection of militia, 15,000 women poured into a soccer stadium to demand freedom of dress. They wore blue jeans, Western clothes, even the chador.

"When shall we force the men to throw away their suits and put on traditional sardari and aba (knee-length overcoat and robe)?" wrote Iranian newspaper columnist Janet Lazarian Shaghagi.

"To veil or unveil," she said, "is an individual right to be judged by a person's own beliefs and knowledge."

The chador is only the most emotional symbol of women's issues in Iran. The new government also has dissolved a woman's right to divorce, contest divorce and restrict her husband to one wife.

Women insist that equal rights be part of any constitution and they demand a role in government, as they had under the shah.

"We want to be amply rewarded for our role in bringing down the hated shah and the system," said one leftist feminist.

Perhaps the women have been heard. Some religious leaders now say the chador should not be a mandatory but a voluntary form of dress.

The women who are protesting today's restrictions made significant headway during the monarchy they helped to overthrow.

Iranian women's liberation began in 1936 when Reza Shah decreed the lifting of the veil. Reza, father of the deposed shah, also wanted women to be more active in public life and attempted to break their domestic chains.

But it took 27 years for women to get the right to vote and actually to hold public office. That was part of the shah's 1963 "white revolution" that stripped Moslem clergymen of vast land holdings and some secular power.

The Family Protection Law of 1967 gave women protection against legal and social abuses by their husbands and officially ended the keeping of concubines.

The government also sponsored the $20-million-a-year Women's Organization of Iran, which provided child care, taught women to read, gave legal aid and job training and helped with family planning.

But Iranian women were not the first to be awakened and to take to the streets. Across the globe in Chile, it has been said that women often have outpaced their men in zeal and activism.

Furious women helped bring down the Marxist government of Salvador Allende — so much so that leftist men complained that Christian Democrat and rightist men sent their women out to fight for them.

Women planned and carried out truckers' strikes and a great copper mine demonstration. The "empty pots campaign" was their handiwork.

On Dec. 2, 1972, "the Day of the Woman," 5,000 women grabbed empty pots and pans, flooded the streets of Santiago and raised a din to protest the high price of food.

The protesters primarily were middle- and upper-class women. Even general's wives marched and chanted to get the military to act.

Today, some women regret the effectiveness of the kitchen brigades in toppling Allende. Like the Iranian women, they are finding the revolution they helped bring about has borne some bitter fruit.

Chilean women currently are campaigning to locate more than 650 missing leftist loved ones. Women are so clearly in the vanguard that some Chileans say the wives are doing all the painful searching and the men are letting the women work.

200 Perish As Plane Hits Peking Factory

TOKYO (AP) — A British-built Trident aircraft crashed into a factory on the western outskirts of Peking Wednesday, killing about 200 persons, Japan's Kyodo news service reported.

The dispatch from the Chinese capital quoted witnesses as saying about a dozen crew members and passengers were believed killed when the aircraft ploughed into an assembly plant near an airport shortly after takeoff.

Other victims included workers at the factory, Kyodo said, adding that a government press officer said he had no knowledge of the crash.

Kyodo said it was unable to identify the passengers but said Trident aircraft often are used in China to transport government leaders and other high ranking officials.

A French correspondent said he saw many Chinese soldiers engaged in rescue work late into the night, according to the Kyodo report.

Kyodo said the French reporter saw debris but was unable to provide more details because it was so dark, indicating the journalist was not allowed into the crash area.

China's last major air disaster occurred in January 1976 when a Chinese airliner crashed near Changsha, capital of Hunan province, killing all 45 persons aboard.

The Soviet-made Antonov-type aircraft was en route from Canton to Shanghai when it went down.

Individual Reaction To Grief May Take Many Shapes, Forms

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Grief is a normal reaction to a loss, but the more the loss affects a person's self-perception the more difficult the loss will be, a speaker at Texas Tech's gerontology conference said Wednesday.

That means that if a widow saw herself primarily as a wife, she must learn how to cope with social, economic and other responsibilities alone.

Dr. Bobbie Stewart-Larson, a staff psychologist at the Seattle Veteran's Administration Hospital, said aging is accompanied by changes that can include death of spouse, loss of sensory abilities, reduced income, loss of health and other losses.

She advised counselors who work with senior citizens to assess the significance of such losses to individuals. "A loss means different things to different people," she noted. "You may think the loss is more significant than it really is to them."

B METRO

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Thursday, March 15, 1979

If a husband and wife had a bad relationship and one of them dies, the surviving spouse may have less bereavement than one might normally expect, she said. But sometimes the loss of an important object or possession can be significant.

To a physically active man or woman, a stroke that impairs physical activity can be a great loss, she said.

Society's attitude toward mourning, Dr. Stewart-Larson said, is that "initially there is a lot of support (for example, at the funeral), but if the mourning continues considerably afterward society says 'shape up.'"

Although younger people may be expected to recover from mourning within six months to a year, she said older people whom she has counseled in hospitals and nursing homes often take up to two years or even longer.

And she warned that mourning is a normal psychological necessity and that if people avoid grief because they believe in keeping a stiff upper lip, it will show up later in other ways. Over-reaction to a minor loss later is often an indication of that, she said.

People's reactions to a loss varies with their individual personality and their style in coping with past losses, she said.

But the loss that is most significant is one "that threatens the identity of the person and changes their self-perception," she said.

For a man who never learned to cook and do housekeeping, she said, the death of his wife may be accompanied by great anxiety over how to cope with the household and meals — skills that he will have to learn if he wants to remain in his own home.

Symptoms of grief can include shock, bewilderment, weeping, pangs of sadness in waves, difficulty in sleeping or insomnia and nightmares, the content of which can clue counselors to the stage of mourning the person is in.

If a lengthy illness preceded the death of a spouse, the surviving spouse may have an easier adjustment than if the death was sudden and unexpected.

A study on couples where the husband experienced a lengthy terminal illness showed the wives experienced a great deal of anticipatory grief when the couple first learned about the illness. This was accompanied by depression and anxiety of the wife.

The wife often has fatigue and physical disorders when her husband enters the deteriorating stage of illness.

By the time of the husband's death, the wife may harbor anger and resentment against the husband for causing her to feel abandoned and trying to be cheerful throughout the illness.

Often that anger is not expressed, Dr. Stewart-Larson said, because "There is a very, very strong norm that once somebody dies, you don't say anything bad about them."

Counselors can help senior citizens with that kind of anger by reassuring them that being angry is a normal reaction, she said.

Although grief is a normal part of life, she warned that counselors must look for signs that indicate more serious difficulties.

Bereaved relatives have a higher mortality rate than others and 12 percent of widows in one study died within one year of their spouse.

Dr. Stewart-Larson said the suicide rate for older white males is higher than that of the rest of the population and warned counselors that older people express suicidal thoughts differently from younger persons.

"I don't care if I wake up in the morning or not," may be such a clue, she said.

Such people may need professional counseling to deal with their mourning, she said, adding that older people may be reluctant to go to a psychiatrist.

"Older people may think you think they're crazy if you refer them to a psychiatrist," she said, adding that anti-depressant drugs may help the patient recover.

And of the senior citizens who smile and say, "I'm fine," she advised it might just be "a veneer covering their depression."

Mrs. Clements Calls Elderly 'Resource'

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Acknowledging the vast array of problems faced by persons over the age of 60, Texas First Lady Rita Clements Wednesday said the aged should also be considered a valuable human resource.

"We should look to their maturity to solve our problems," she said, not just treat them as a segment of society whose needs must be filled.

Mrs. Clements addressed a group attending a three-day conference on aging at Texas Tech University.

The new First Lady of Texas also called for a more individualized attitude toward the state's over 1.6 million old people.

"Not every old person needs or wants help," she said, referring to the many assistance programs available to senior citizens. She noted the contributions made in terms of volunteer hours by participants in such programs as Foster Grandparents.

Where women entering the job force has cut down on volunteerism, she said "old people are taking up the slack."

She stressed however that "the assistance programs should be available to those who do need them."

Federal funding for Texas programs aimed at assisting elderly citizens has been cut, Mrs. Clements reported. Governor Clements proposed a $1.3 million budget increase in the Governor's Committee on Aging allotment to replace the federal funds.

If the increase is not approved, she explained, services provided by the committee would have to be "curtailed or discontinued."

Older citizens would be the "ultimate victims" of a failure to pass the increase, she said.

The Governor's Committee on Aging provides assistance to the elderly in such matters as nutrition, employment, home repair, home health care, legal and medical advice, Mrs. Clements commented.

Mrs. Clements, who has spent every day this week in a different place, said she expects to be involved in the problems of the aged during her husband's term as governor, but declined to predict to what extent.

Her main priorities as first lady will be in the areas of education, historic preservation and volunteerism.

Along with the governor, she said she favors a "back to basics" approach to education. She hopes to see teacher training strengthened and requirements for teacher certification "tightened up," with merit-based pay raises for educators as compensation.

Mrs. Clements currently is involved in restoring the governor's mansion, built in 1855, which she described in one sense as "an old house."

Speaking later at a press conference, the first lady described her position on women's rights as middle of the road.

Homestead Exemption Forms Mailed

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock city school-tax office today mailed application forms for homestead exemptions which include a provision which can reduce most homeowners' annual school-tax bill by about $41.

Roland Wilkinson, collections supervisor for the tax office, said forms were mailed to 29,031 homeowners.

To be eligible for the tax breaks this year, homeowners must complete the applications and return them to the tax office, 1001 Texas Ave., by April 30, Wilkinson said.

In past years, when the only generally available homestead exemption was for persons over 65, homeowners had to apply for their exemptions in person.

"This is the first time applications are being solicited and completed by mail."

Tax authorities changed the practice in part because of the "Tax Relief Amendment" voters passed in November. The new state constitutional amendment increases the over-65 exemption and creates a new exemption available to all single-family residential homeowners, regardless of age.

Wilkinson said the tax office is sending each homeowner four items:

—An application for the general homestead exemption. This exemption, he said, knocks $5,000 off the market value of each home for school tax purposes. In Lubbock, where tax authorities assess property at 60 percent of market value, that would mean a $3,000 assessed-value exemption — translating into about a $41 reduction in school taxes.

—An application for the exemptions available to homeowners who were 65 or older as of Jan. 1. The school district provides such homeowners a $3,000 assessed-value exemption; the city, $10,000. In addition, the state is considering mandating for school tax purposes a $10,000 market-value exemption for the elderly, on top of the $5,000 exemption everyone gets.

—An information sheet explaining the exemptions. "To be eligible for either of the exemptions, for example, you must have owned and been living in your home on Jan. 1 of this year," Wilkinson said.

—A return envelope.

"People who apply for the over-65 exemption are automatically eligible for the general school-tax homestead exemption," Wilkinson said. "All they need to do is fill out the over-65 form."

Lubbock and other school districts can offer the new exemptions without having to raise taxes because the state is promising to reimburse them for lost revenue.

In fact, under a House-proposed bill for implementing the Tax Relief Amendment, Lubbock may be reimbursed for more than its losses.

An analysis of the bill, endorsed by the House Ways and Means Committee, says the Lubbock Independent School District would lose $1.6 million in local taxes because of the new blanket exemption and the increased over-65 exemption.

For the first year of the bill, Lubbock would be reimbursed dollar for dollar. But the second year, Lubbock would be reimbursed $2.3 million — because the bill includes a formula which rewards tax offices, like Lubbock's, which do an accurate job of appraising property.

The Tax Relief Amendment and its proposed enabling legislation also order school districts to tax agricultural land on productivity instead of actual market value. The bill's analysis says this would cost Lubbock about $293,000 in annual tax revenues. The state, however, would reimburse the loss.

Homeowners must know the legal description of their property to fill out the exemption application forms. Legal descriptions may be obtained from warranty deeds, past tax receipts or tax statements.

Persons needing assistance may call or come by the tax office, officials there said.

Style Show Features Designer Fashions

High fashion will come to the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center March 21, at 7:30 p.m. with the Ebony Fashion Fair. The fashion fair is brought by Ebony Magazine, and will feature professional models and more than 200 garments by top-flight designers, along with an entertaining program highlighted by elaborate staging and music. The show is sponsored by Theta Kappa Lambda, the alumni chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity. Eunice W. Johnson, producer and director of the fair, travels to keep on top of the latest fashions on the national and international scene. She will be bringing fashions by designers such as Christian Dior, Bill Blass, Halston, Anne Klein, Jeffrey Banks and Hanae Mori to Lubbock as part of the fashion fair. Entertaining is the key word, says Mrs. Johnson, in describing what she looks for at designer shows which take her frequently to Europe and New York. She picks styles for entertainment. St. Laurent and others annually come up with designs that "make you feel you should be onstage," Mrs. Johnson said. What's the appeal in "onstage" clothes for the middle-class buyer who's more likely to shop at Sears than Bonwit Teller? "It's the same reason you want to read about Elizabeth Taylor, or about what Jackie Onassis is doing. It's a lifestyle you can aspire to." Proceeds from the show will provide scholarship funds and support community projects of the chapter which include the Boys Club, Boys Ranch, the Juvenile Center and the Presbyterian Medical Center. Tickets may be purchased at Hemphill Wells, South Plains Mall, Diana's Doll House, Furr's Family Centers, Kenner's Barber Shop and Carville's Drug Store.

Area Teachers Meet Tonight

The Lubbock-South Plains Retired Teachers Association will meet this afternoon at 2:30 in the Municipal Garden and Arts Center. The theme for the monthly meeting will be "Show and Tell," and the members are invited to display their art and craft projects, collections, treasures, and other hobbies. There are 295 members of the association. Current officers are Dr. Mima W. Lamb, president; Marlin Hayhurst, president-elect; Ruby Lee Waller, first vice president; Weldon Snodgrass, second vice president; Faye Kuykendahl, secretary; and Hubert Burgess, treasurer.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband and I were married in the chapel at a military base. We received a beautiful linen-like paper booklet from the chaplain as a memento of our wedding day. It contained such pertinent information as the date, place, time, witnesses, name of chaplain performing the ceremony, etc. We were so proud of it.

Somehow or other I got a large spot of grease on the inside page of the booklet. I sprinkled a generous amount of talcum powder on the spot, put a blotter on top of it, and closed the booklet. I simply forgot about it for a couple of weeks. I opened the booklet, and to my surprise the spot had completely disappeared. I don't even know where I got the idea but, most importantly, it worked! — Mary Kelley

It is nice to have such a lovely memento; I'm so happy you were able to get the greasy spot out. This could also work on any legal papers, etc. that you happened to get soiled with these spots. — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:
I am one of those men who loves to cook, therefore I'm always looking for unusual foods to prepare and different ways to prepare them. The other day I really stumbled onto a goodie. Open a can of biscuits, separate and grease them as usual, and then pop them into your waffle iron. Set the iron on 300 degrees. If you like thin, crisp, biscuits you are really in for a treat. Be sure to keep a close watch on them because they cook quickly. — Less Lewis

U-m-m-m with good country butter (if you are lucky enough to find it) and homemade jelly. Boy, some treat! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Before I start to sew, I take a cotton swab and go all around under the needle and bobbin of my sewing machine. This will pick up all the lint and keep it from messing up your thread and clogging up your bobbin. No more costly repair bills and broken thread just when you are trying to get something finished in a hurry. — Dorothy Novak

DEAR HELOISE:
While riding in the car, my little one was always throwing his toys on the floor. Naturally, it's not so easy to retrieve them while driving down a busy street. So I took one of his ring toys and slipped it through the strap that holds down the bar across his car seat. Now he always has a toy to play with and I'm a much safer driver. — B.A.

DEAR HELOISE:
With the cost of food the way it is, you can't afford to waste anything. Today while peeling apples to make a pie I thought, "What a shame to throw these vitamin-rich peelings out when I paid good money for them too when I bought the apples!" I cooked the peelings in a cup of water with a dash of salt. When tender, I reserved the liquid and put the peelings in my blender with a tablespoon of water. I then blended them to the peeling left and added this to the reserved liquid. Mix one-third cup sugar, 3 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, add to liquid and cook until thickened. Pour over apples and bake as you would any other apple pie. Delicious and you have saved more of the nutrients. — Peggi Smith

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please discuss abdominal epilepsy. My doctor thinks I have it. Yet I can't find anything written on the subject. My symptoms are abdominal pain and headaches. — Ms. E.H.

It's probably just as well you were not able to find material on this, because you might have become more confused. There isn't a great deal written on this subject, which should tell you one thing — that we know little about it.

We know these pain attacks occur, and that they may be brief or last several hours. They may be associated with attacks of standard epilepsy (convulsions) and they may precede the common type of epileptic seizure. Nausea, vomiting or a sense of dizziness may occur, and there may be headache.

In any event, it appears to be a neurological (nerve-related) problem. In abdominal epilepsy the stomach is entirely normal. Electroencephalograms (brain waves) may show a slight abnormality.

Similar symptoms can occur in what is called abdominal migraine. They may begin with or come before the traditional migraine headaches along with nausea and vomiting. You give me only sketchy information. A condition called abdominal angina may enter the picture (more confusion). That is abdominal pain caused by impaired circulation to the area. Here, there would be other signs of stomach and intestinal disorder.

For all these reasons your doctor only thinks you have abdominal epilepsy. If further tests convince him, he may want to try anticonvulsant drugs, which sometimes are effective in controlling it, according to recent studies.

Special brainwave tests done while a person is sleeping have helped doctors confirm this unusual condition, and you may want to ask about them. A gastroenterologist might help pinpoint other trouble spots.

Dear Dr. Ruble: In writing about diverticulitis, you say the pockets in the bowel can be present and not give a person trouble. You also say that if they become infected they must be treated. How frequently does this happen, and what would the signs of infection be? — Mrs. T.V.

Knowing they have these little pockets worries folks. In most cases it shouldn't. Most people find out about them only after X-rays reveal them incidentally during examinations for other problems. Yet my mail on the subject is large.

Most people with them (and most get them, to some degree) live out their lives without symptoms. Usually, all that's needed are measures people should be taking with or without the pockets. Adequate bulk in the diet is in order to keep bowels active and to prevent enlargement of the pockets. In fact, it may be that a deficiency of bulk, which seems to occur with age, causes them.

Now, what about infection of them (diverticulitis)? Some of these pockets are deeper than others. Some protrude only through the first layer of bowel lining, others deeper into other layers that are richer in blood vessels. These are called true diverticula, and are the ones most prone to infection. From statistics I've seen, about 20 percent of these will become infected at some time. If this happens, diet needs are switched and low Slam depends only on a 3-2 trump break, almost a 68 percent likelihood. Even though declarer got the needed 3-2 trump break, careless play on his part led to defeat.

After winning the opening lead, declarer drew two rounds of trumps and saw that he would be able to ruff a club in dummy and discard his remaining club on dummy's fourth heart. The contract hinged on which order he chose to make these plays.

Without giving the hand sufficient thought, declarer played the ace and king of clubs and ruffed a club in dummy. He then played the ace, king and queen of hearts and was rudely awakened when East ruffed the queen of hearts and cashed the queen of clubs.

Declarer had ruffed that club too early. Once both opponents followed to the second trump lead South should have gone right after hearts. If East ruffed in on the third heart lead that last trump would still have been there to ruff a club and get him in dummy to discard the last club on the fourth heart.

If East refused to ruff declarer would get his club discard early and his club ruff later. Either way, the defense would just get their one trump trick.

Local Program Involves Many Senior Citizens

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

The week of March 11-17 has been proclaimed Older Worker Week by Lubbock's mayor, Dirk West.

Now that the retirement age has been raised to 70, Ed Marlowe says people over 55 "have more mileage left for employment." Marlowe is the director of the Senior Community Services Employment Program and has held that job since last October when the program began operation here. This program is one of several which are government funded and which have as a goal equipping and placing older persons in the job market.

Mayor West's proclamation points out that there are 45 million Americans 55 years of age or older, many of whom are having difficulty finding employment because of their age. He further called on Lubbock employers and particularly on public officials who are responsible for job placement, counseling, training and retaining services to "intensify throughout the entire year, their efforts to help older workers find suitable jobs and training opportunities."

The Senior Community Services Employment Program is working on just those problems. Persons in the program are 55 or older. Following initial contact with the program (whose office is in Metro Tower) persons are screened and then referred to a private physician for a physical examination for which the program pays. Eligibility for the program is also based on government guidelines for existing poverty level income.

Persons are then retrained or placed and put back into the work scene in jobs in non-profit organizations within the community. The salary funds are provided through the Department of Labor Title IX program. The non-profit agencies provide the jobs and the supervision of the individuals.

The program began nationally in 1969 with pilot projects in six cities. Lubbock is now the eighth such project in Texas due to the expansion of the program. Senior Community Services Employment Program places persons within the city of Lubbock. The Green Thumb Program is similar and finds employment for persons beyond the city into the rural parts of the county.

Persons in the Senior Community Services Employment Program are at work now in such places as the American Red Cross, the American Heart Association, Volunteers of America, Day Care Association of Lubbock, the Salvation Army, the DAV Thrift Store, Neighborhood House, Auxilio, and the Well-Baby Clinic. Employees are paid minimum wage and can work 20 hours per week. In some cases, this income makes the difference between bare subsistence and being able to buy needed food and other items, Marlowe said.

Supervisors are asked to turn in to the program's office regular evaluations for the participants. Employees are evaluated in such areas as attitude, punctuality, knowledge of the job, enthusiasm, getting along with co-workers and other facets of their particular job.

Marlowe stresses that the program funds go almost entirely to those enrolled in the program. He says he bought his own typewriter and borrowed a desk to set up the office last fall. His secretarial help consists of two part-time employees, both of whom are participants in the program.

Marlowe said that with the increasing popularity of the Sun Belt as a residence for older people, those in need of employment opportunities offered through such programs will increase also.

The Lubbock program is endorsed by the National Retired Teachers Association and also by the American Association of Retired Persons.

A HELPING HAND — John Fritchell of the Senior Community Services Employment Program keeps a friendly watch over two young pupils in Lubbock Day Care Center 1. Non-profit organizations and agencies within the community are glad to have the services of older citizens, in this government-funded program that aims at job placement and re-training for persons over 55. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: As a faithful reader may I have the last word on the "clean underwear in case of accident" syndrome? You've printed comments from medical people and an ambulance driver. Let's go one step further.

Several years ago I met our country coroner at a social gathering. I broached the subject of underwear and accidents and his response surprised me. He said, "We never see their underwear, but nothing stands out at the morgue like feet." He then went on to say I'd be amazed at how many otherwise well-groomed people have dirty toenails and filthy feet.

Ever since that conversation, I make sure my feet are presentable before I leave the house — just in case I wind up in the morgue. Tell everybody, will you, Ann? — Rochester Reader

Dear R.R.: You did — and I thank you. The things I learn from my readers!

Dear Ann: You backed away from this one. Please allow me to answer for you. The letter was from "Finding It Hard to Love My Neighbor."

Dear Hard to Love: I also find it hard — to love your cat! This morning while my husband and I laughed at the antics of a bluejay at our feeder, a cat like yours came out of nowhere. Before our eyes he killed that beautiful bird. Tell me, when did you last hear of a bird killing a cat?

I do not feel "sanctified" because I'm a bird lover, nor "holier than thou." As a matter of fact I think cats are beautiful, graceful creatures. Your lame excuse — "leashes are contrary to a cat's nature" — leaves me cold. Not a week passes that I do not see a cat dead along the roadside, struck by a passing car. Had the owner not been too lazy to walk that cat, it might have lived. On a farm, a cat can run safely across acres of land, but not in the city.

You say you don't like to be awakened in the morning by singing birds? What a shame! There is nothing more peaceful than to awake to a bright sun and singing birds. Come to think of it, what's so beautiful about a cat waking you up at 3:00 a.m. howling for a mate? — For The Birds In Ft. Lauderdale

Dear F.T.B.: I'm sure millions of bird-lovers across the land are appausing your well-worded letter. Add my name to the list of gratefuls.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

LOS ANGELES — The character of Greg Foster in "The Young and the Restless" is one of those rare soap opera males without a woman in his life. After losing out to his brother for the affections of Chris Brooks, Greg came up with a cropper again when he fell in love with a prostitute who forsook his offer of marriage in favor of taking the veil as a nun. All that happened years ago. Since then, Greg can't be bothered with romantic interests. He's too busy counseling his clan, most especially his defeated mother, who lost her love interest to her own daughter, Greg's sister.

Actor Wings Hauser, the third actor to play Greg, has a more interesting background than his fictional counterpart. He was born in Hollywood and started his show business career at age six under the theatrical direction of his father, the late Dwight Hauser, who was also a movie producer and radio writer. Wings flubbed a line on his dad's radio program, "Muppets USA," and was promptly canned. Wings later studied music and drama at Oregon State University where he played wingback on the football team and acquired the nickname he now uses professionally because of his fleet feet. He was a streetsinger in front of Hollywood movie houses before he recorded his first record album, "Vision of Sunshine," which was followed by another in 1975 entitled "Your Love Keeps Me Off the Streets."

The 6-foot-2, green-eyed actor has composed scores for B movies and has guested on nighttime TV series, as well as winning featured roles in movies such as "Dog Soldiers" and "Who'll Stop the Train." Wings' two marriages ended in divorce, but he is raising his young daughter, Bright, between car driving and emoting on "Y&R," for which he originally auditioned for the part of Lucas. The producers thought he was too clean-cut to play that character and inserted him in the show as Greg instead. Wings' latest off-show project is a movie script involving Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn as grownups.

If Wings could write a romance for Greg on "Y&R" he could have a little story activity of his own, rather than being the Foster family nudge.

SHORT TAKES:
NO SOONER WAS Gil Rodgers sent up the prison creek as dastardly Ray Gardner on "All My Children" than he was cast as Mayor Duncan on "Search For Tomorrow." Gil raised such audience ire as Gardner that when he first appeared on "SFT," the studio was inundated with angry calls, asking why they had hired that jail bird snake as Henderson's mayor. But Rodgers is a fine enough actor that he can tread both sides of the law with conviction.

IF YOU'VE NOTICED the cast credits for "General Hospital" lately, you spotted Ivor Frances portraying Dr. Eric Lombard. Ivor is a veteran character actor, as well as a producer and director. Not to mention, he's also the real-life father of Genie Ann Francis who plays Laura Vining on "GH." Also, during Lesley Webber's therapy sessions, former Miss America Mary Ann Mobley guested as a lady who shared Lesley's feelings of antagonism and alienation from her husband.

Dyslexia Affects Many Children

Have you heard the term dyslexia but you're not really sure what it means? Dyslexia is a reading disability that affects many children. Besides reading problems, dyslexic children also have time and space problems that interfere with learning to tell time or learning the order of the days of the week.

There's a lot of controversy about the causes of dyslexia. Researchers have suggested that prenatal and childbirth complications, brain injury, or delays in the development of the nervous system might be the cause. Others say malnutrition, emotional problems, a dyslexic child experiences disappointment, confusion and fear, when the child discovers that he or she can't do what other children do. Eventually the child may give up trying anything at all.

Many dyslexic children do not perceive images the way they are presented. For example, the dyslexic child may perceive a word as being upside down or backwards. This can be a real problem, especially since a young child may not be able to explain this. It's difficult for a child to tell a teacher or parents that a "b" looks like a "d" or a "p."

Other problems that dyslexic children can have include extreme restlessness, difficulty with physical coordination, and difficulty with memory. Some people mistakenly think dyslexia also means below average intelligence — it's just not true.

In school, the teacher may not know the student is dyslexic — and may think the child is lazy or unmotivated. To help you know what to watch for so you can help a dyslexic child, The National Institute of Mental Health has a new publication. For your copy of Dyslexia, send one dollar to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 97G, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL
DAWSON AHALT, AGRICULTURAL LIAISON for the Carter administration, says remarks made last week by Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation fighter, concerning meat import quotas may have been misinterpreted. Kahn told the Senate Budget Committee that changes in quotas laws affecting the importation of meat "are worth considering" as a means of stemming the rise of meat prices.

"PART OF THE PROBLEM WITH CATTLE prices today is because of action taken in 1973, particularly in respect to the cattle industry," Ahalt said. He referred to wage-price controls implemented in 1973 by then President Richard Nixon.
Ahalt said the administration is studying several options that could help to slow increased food prices. However, he said, "there is no quick fix to the problem."
He said some of the options under consideration by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and Kahn include improving productivity in food processing and distribution, changes in the government's food procurement plans, and investigation of possible benefits of more direct food marketing.

NO ACTION THE ADMINISTRATION MIGHT take, however, will bring about a dramatic reduction in the rate of inflation, Ahalt said.
"Increases of 10, 11 or 12 percent in disposable income each year" must be expected to affect the inflation rate and food prices, he said.
Meanwhile, a former "inflation fighter," Alan Greenspan, has offered his own view of rising food prices:
"Politically sensitive, but only moderately inflationary when compared with other economic factors."

HOUSE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN Thomas Foley says he opposes any efforts by the Council on Wage and Price Stability to increase the amount of beef imported in 1979.
The Washington Democrat told a meeting sponsored by the National Cattlemen's Association that raising beef prices would not be in the interests of consumers or farmers.
"If there is an increase in the quota, the action could delay the process of rebuilding herds to increase supplies in later years," he said.
"If we send cattlemen a discouraging economic signal now by a further increase in import quotas, the government would simply prolong the period of low supplies."

Chicago Cattle Futures Close 40-147 Higher

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 40 to 147 points higher Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.
The June contract, which was up the limit early along with August, led the advance. Sales totaled 25,999 cars.
The market was higher from the start, with August, October, January and February at new contract highs.
Buying was sparked by the constructive cattle on feed report, released after the close Tuesday, with a cash-connected commission house an aggressive buyer and also noted selling at times.
Wholesale beef was unchanged at 100 1/2 to 101 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. The six markets expect 13,000 head today.
Cash cattle were off $1.50 to up 50 cents per hundredweight. The best top was $71.50 per hundredweight. The Omaha top was $71. Slaughter was 108,000 head.
Feeder cattle futures closed 85 points to the daily limit of 150 points higher, led by May through January. Sales totaled 5-127 cars.
Earlier, all contracts except April were up the limit, and March set a new historic high at $93.65.
The market recovered from Tuesday's losses on short covering and other buying touched off by the constructive cattle on feed report. Buying came in the face of

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET AMEX

Market Mixed As Trade Lags

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in slackened trading Wednesday, registering little response to prospects of a Midwest peace treaty.

One of the few pockets of strength was the American Stock Exchange, where the market value index reached a five-month high.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange slipped 1.56 to 845.37, erasing some of its modest 4.07-point gain Monday and Tuesday.

Big Bond volume tailed off to $4.63 billion shares from 31.17 million the day before. But the Amex index chalked up a .68 advance to 170.83, continuing its recent strong advance. The index has climbed 20.25 points, or about 13 percent, since the start of 1979, moving back within halting distance of its peak of 176.87 Sept. 13.

Actively traded Amex energy stocks Wednesday included Crystal Oil, up 1 1/2 at 28 1/2 as of the 4 p.m. close, and Canadian Superior Oil, 2 1/2 higher at 87 1/2.

Zoning Board To Consider Library Status

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Zoning Board of Adjustment will be asked to approve a special exception to permit construction of a new branch library in Southwest Lubbock at its meeting at 8:15 a.m. today in city council chambers.

The special exception is necessary because the library is to be constructed on property zoned for single family residences.

The Lubbock City Council wants to build the $360,000 facility on the west side of Leroy Elmore Park at Quaker Avenue and South Loop 289.

The board also will be asked for a special exception to allow a dance floor in a restaurant and a variance in the parking requirements for a proposed restaurant at 4th Street and Slide Road.

Ron Beard will ask ZBA members to permit a dance floor in the basement of the restaurant and to allow the facility to meet its parking requirements by providing more than half the spaces off the premises across Slide Road.

Shannon C. Hughes, representing Burger Barn Car Wash, will request a variance in the sign requirements for a business at 1935 19th St.

Hughes is allowed only one free-standing sign per lot, but wants a variance which would allow three — one for the restaurant and two for the car wash behind the eatery.

Guilty Verdict Handed Down In Sierra Case

It took a jury 25 minutes Wednesday to find Manuel Sierra of Lubbock guilty of murder in the Nov. 4 shooting death of a 30-year-old Lubbock man, and 50 more minutes to sentence him to 60 years in prison.

Witnesses told the 237th District Court jury that Sierra, who lived a quarter-mile north of Lubbock International Airport, pointed a pistol at Elutrio "Joe" Gonzales in the early morning hours Nov. 4 and shouted "I'm going to kill you!" just before the gun discharged.

Gonzales, who lived at 806 40th St., No. 3, died of a gunshot wound to the forehead at mid-morning that day at West Texas Hospital.

Witnesses Israel Gonzales, 46, and Tony Gonzales, 24, brothers of the victim, and Linette Jaime, 20, said the four went to the house to drink beer after encountering four men, including the defendant, at a convenience store in Lubbock.

Their accounts indicated that they were there about two hours before guns were drawn on them, money and valuables taken from them and Elutrio Gonzales was shot during a scuffle with Sierra.

Tony Gonzales and Miss Jaime identified the defendant as having fired the shot.

A .25-caliber automatic pistol was confiscated by Lubbock County sheriff's deputies two days after the shooting and introduced as the murder weapon in the three-day trial.

In final arguments, Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride asked the jury "to help establish what will and will not be tolerated in this community" and asked a 99-year sentence.

"It's not up to people like Manuel Sierra to decide who lives and who dies," McBride said.

Defense attorney Frank King asked a 10-year sentence in the punishment phase of the trial.

Bodies Recovered In Gulf Blowup

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The body of a fifth victim of an offshore natural gas well explosion and fire in the Gulf of Mexico has been recovered, but three are still missing, officials say. Meanwhile, natural gas continued on Wednesday to blow wild on the rig 45 miles south of Morgan City. The fire went out March 6, the day after the blowout.

The fifth body, found Tuesday, was identified as that of Jeff Stultz of Columbia, Miss. James King, a spokesman for Placid Oil Co. of Houma, which owns the well, said workmen were trying to stop the gas flow. Thirty-five men were aboard the rig when the well exploded, but most escaped in an unsinkable rescue capsule.

A representative of American Sign and Indicator will appear for West Texas Savings to request a variance in sign requirements on property at 3400 50th St.

The variance would permit the savings and loan to place a time and temperature sign 16.7 feet closer to Indiana Avenue than regulations permit. The required setback for the sign is 43 feet.

A similar case was recently denied by the ZBA.

Daie Edler will request a variance in the sideyard setback requirements for a building at 1502 34th St. which would allow expansion of the business to the side property line. Normally, a one-foot setback is required.

A request which already has drawn opposition is that of Ed Hoople, representing Georgia Hoople, for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used as a dwelling at 6308 Fremont Ave. Hoople claims the exception is needed because of a medical hardship.

Windal D. McGinnis will ask the ZBA a second time to approve a variance in the height and sideyard setback requirements for a two-story play house at 3109 43rd St.

The play house, which is three-quarters finished, violates a prohibition against such two-story structures and is too close to the property line.

McGinnis proposes to cover the upper-story windows so they can't be seen out of.

Other requests of the ZBA include: —Roy Middleton for a variance in the requirement that townhouses be built from street to street and that a required screening fence be deleted at 64th Street and Gary Avenue.

—Ted Ratcliffe for Revere Homes, Inc., for a variance in the sideyard setback requirement for a residence built 1.4 feet too close to the property line at 3101 92nd Street.

—Troyce R. Waggoner for a special exception to allow a mobile home to continue to be used as a dwelling for security purposes at 902 E. Purdue.

—Randal Partain for a variance in the sideyard setback requirements for a storage shed at 4912 71st St.

—Charlotte M. Hendricks for a special exception to allow a monogram business in a residence at 3313 89th St.

RAT POWER — This is the device developed by government scientists to determine the strength of rats. (AP Laserphoto)

Scientists Make Device To Gauge Rat Strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of government scientists has developed a new device to measure the strength of a rat's hind leg.

The device consists of a gauge on a T-bar, on which the rat's hind feet are placed and a platform on which the rat rests its front feet, the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences reported.

The person giving the tests startles the rat with a puff of air from behind, causing it to jump from the T-bar to the platform, the scientists said.

When this happens the gauge measures the force of the jump reflex, which can be compared with other jumps by the same or other rats.

Institute scientists said the measurements are needed to detect changes in the strength of a laboratory rat which might be caused by chemicals or other contaminants used in rat experiments.

The device is much more accurate than earlier systems in which a rat was timed while pulling itself along an inclined plane, institute spokesman Hugh James Lee said.

Lee said the cost of the new equipment is difficult to calculate, but is believed to be inexpensive.

Drug Paraphernalia Stores Need Regulation, Convict Says

AUSTIN (AP) — A convict presented himself to a Senate committee — and the public — Wednesday as an example of young people who should not follow.

Michael Wayne Odom testified in favor of a proposal to allow cities and towns to regulate stores where drug paraphernalia is sold.

The state affairs committee approved the bill, 8-3.

Odom said he was serving six years in prison for possession of heroin. He said he had a $100-a-day habit and had started selling drugs to make money. He said he had "used all types of drugs and sold it as well."

"I hope to serve as a negative example that young people won't want to follow,"

Odom said. He said drug paraphernalia shops "set a bad example — they appear to condone the use of illegal drugs. ... for example, you can walk into a store and learn how to grow marijuana, how to process it, how to make it better."

James Frederick of Crockett also supported the bill, saying, "We want to head off the 'head shops.'"

He displayed water pipes, 60-cent-a-pack "reefer rollers" and "roach clips" that he said could be purchased in drug paraphernalia shops.

"We don't pretend the bill will solve the drug problem, but it will help," said Frederick.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am a married woman, 41, with $14,000 of my own money in a savings account and a four-year savings certificate. I withdraw the interest every three months for spending money. I look forward to doing that, as this is the only money I have on my own.

The problem is that my husband has to pay income taxes on this interest. He is not at all pleased about this. He keeps urging me to put the money into some non-taxable investment, such as municipal bonds. What is your suggestion in this case?

A. I have two suggestions from which you can pick. But, somehow, I doubt that you will choose either. 1. Put the money into a municipal bond mutual fund. 2. Turn over to your husband enough money out of the interest you receive to pay the income taxes.

Why a municipal bond mutual fund, rather than individual municipal bonds? That's simple. You can buy 14 $1,000 municipal bonds and pay the going market price. If, however, somewhere down the road you sell that relatively small amount, you will get less than the going market price. Most municipal bond trading is done in numbers of $100,000 and up. When the "little guy" or "gal" sells smaller amounts, he or she normally must do so at a "discount."

With a municipal bond mutual fund, you would avoid that problem. But it must be pointed out that market prices of all securities, including individual municipal bonds and municipal bond mutual funds, can rise or fall. In recent months, they have fallen. You may not be ready for that risk. There's no risk in keeping your money where it is.

So, the second suggestion seems more suitable for you. From your letter, I have to assume that you and your husband file joint income tax returns. The money for the taxes on his salary comes from his salary. Why shouldn't the money for the taxes on your interest come out of that interest?

Maybe we're old-fashioned but my blue-eyed finance officer and I have never segregated our income by "his" and "hers." It all goes into the family pot, from which taxes and other things are paid.

Q. I have an insurance policy which has a "loan value" of $3,200. I can borrow that money from the insurance company, at 5 percent interest. I'm thinking of doing so and putting the money in savings certificates, bonds or some other high-yield investment. Your opinion?

A. Good idea, as long as the investment you pick is not a risky one. Too bad the loan value of your insurance policy isn't $10,000. Then you could borrow on your insurance policy and put the money into six-month savings certificates, which are currently paying very high interest but which come in minimum denominations of $10,000.

You have a "whole life" insurance policy, which builds up "cash surrender" or loan value at a low rate of interest. That's typical of such policies. More and more people who recognize the expensive disadvantages of whole life are doing what you are considering.

Just remember that when you borrow on your whole life policy, you reduce the death benefit by the amount of the loan. But, if the money you borrow is put in a safe investment, that makes no difference.

Q. Does the price of a mutual fund's share go up and down according to the value of the investments the fund holds? Or does it go up and down according to the number of shares the fund sells?

A. That's a multiple choice question. The answer is number one. The value of a mutual fund share — the "net asset value per share" — rises or falls in direct relationship to the day-to-day change in value of all the securities in which the fund has invested.

The number of shares a mutual fund sells to new investors or redeems from old investors has no effect on the value of the fund's shares.

Housing Starts Slowdown Predicted For This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts will fall sharply this year to mid-1970 recession levels, the president of the National Savings and Loan League predicted Wednesday.

"I think housing starts are going to drop to the 1.4 million figure on an annual basis," said Harold W. Greenwood Jr.

Greenwood, president of Midwest Federal Savings and Loan in Minneapolis and head of the 300-member trade group, said the causes of the housing construction decline will be inflation and a drop in mortgage money because of recently announced changes in money market certificate rates.

Lombards Share Life — Plus State Cage Titles

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
HALE CENTER — If the TV boys ever found out about the Lombards, they'd probably just go on ahead and chunk Donny and Marie into the nearest dumpster faster than you could say Neisen Kating.

Even their names — Joe and Babs — bring back memories of things like 19-cent gasoline, picnics on Sunday afternoon, holding hands and church socials in Fellowship Hall.

Everything that's American, in other words.

The Joe and Babs Show could certainly pull in its market share even against other noted couples like Starsky and Hutch.

For you see, the Lombard's story has what every old softy likes — a happy ending.

It's the yarn about an almost-to-good-to-be-true couple that just so happens to win state girls basketball championships. Not years apart, either, but in the matter of only a few hours — something that has never happened before.

And, seriously, it couldn't happen to a nicer pair.

In his first year of coaching since graduating from Wayland Baptist College six years ago, Joe guided the Nazareth Swifters to the Class B title. Then, wife Babs did the identical thing with the Hale Center Owlettes in Class A.

Aggies Eye Spot In NIT Semifinals

By The Associated Press
The road-weary Texas Aggies return to the scene of their last road loss tonight when they "host" Alabama in a quarter-finals game of the National Invitation Tournament in the Summit.

The winner will advance to the tournament semifinals in New York Monday night against the winner of the Purdue-Old Dominion game being played tonight at West Lafayette, Ind.

The Purdue-Old Dominion game will begin at 6:30 p.m., the Aggies-Alabama battle an hour later.

Playing on the road hasn't been too unpleasant for the Aggies, who lost in overtime to Texas Tech in the Southwest Conference tournament at the Summit, but then beat New Mexico and Nevada-Reno on the road in their first two NIT appearances.

"I'd have lot rather drawn the bye, but Aggies have never done things the easy way," A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said, referring to the coin toss that gave Ohio State and Indiana byes into the semifinals.

A&M has a 13-7 road record this season including impressive victories over Kentucky, Indiana, Nevada-Las Vegas and San Francisco.

AM's most impressive moment of road glory came when the Aggies beat Nevada-Las Vegas and NCAA entry San Francisco on successive nights to win the San Francisco tournament.

The Aggies, 24-8, were supposed to have the home court advantage for their matchup with Alabama, 21-10 but the game was moved to Houston's 15,500-seat Summit in hopes of netting a larger crowd.

A&M's G. Rollie White Coliseum at College Stations seats only 7,500 and the campus currently is shut down for spring break.

Vernon Smith, A&M's leading scorer figures one more road game won't hurt. "To me, you go out and play the best you know how to play, and the crowd shouldn't bother you," Smith said. "Besides if you knock off a good team in front of their crowd, that just proves it to people."

A&M played before 18,000 fans en route to their victory over New Mexico and a capacity 6,300 watched the win over Nevada-Reno.

Alabama beat Virginia 90-88 to gain the quarter-finals.

"We're very tired and obviously we would rather have gotten a bye," Tide coach C.M. Newton said, "and our next choice would have been to play in Birmingham or Tuscaloosa."

Alabama beat Virginia on the 43-point and 12-rebound production of Reggie King, who did not warm up prior to the game because of an upset stomach.

The Aggies nudged Nevada-Reno 67-64 after almost blowing a 12-point lead in the final 2½ minutes of the game.

While the Aggies are gearing up in Houston, 6-7 junior Arnette Hallman's strong jumping ability and willingness to accept his role as a forward who concentrates on passing, rebounding and defense has helped Purdue compile a 25-7 record and reach tonight's quarter-final match.

Hallman wasn't expected to play Monday when Purdue defeated Dayton in second-round play, but the team doctor said his sprained ankle had healed enough to allow him to play just before the game.

"Hallman played awfully well," said Purdue coach Lee Rose. "He didn't practice for three days and his ankle was extremely tender. He played better than he has in a while. I hope it stays tender."

Hallman, a high school star from Chicago, had 15 points, five rebounds and four assists against Dayton. Each figure was the second highest on his team.

"He really played a very fine game," Rose said.

For the season, Hallman has averaged 8.6 points and is second to 7-foot-1 center Joe Barry Carroll in rebounds, blocked shots and dunks.

"We've been learning to play together and I think we're beginning to develop some confidence," said Rose about his Big Ten co-champions.

"Hopefully, this will carry over into next year. Each person has a role and he plays it well."

Tech Workout Set; Shift Planned

To wind up the first week of spring football drills, the Red Raiders will conduct their first controlled scrimmage of the spring in Jones Stadium at 4:30 p.m. today. The session is open to the public.

Heretofore, the Raiders have concentrated on individual and group work since beginning spring drills last Friday. However, coach Rex Dockery wants a look at his players in team situations.

Also, Wednesday, Dockery reported he has changed the format for the spring game by inviting fans to be honorary coaches in the spring game.

For the past four years, Tech has used such city celebrities as Mayor Dirk West and Sen. Kent Hance as coaches in the spring contests.

But Dockery's plan is to select four coaches from advance ticket purchasers prior to the April 14 game.

Advanced tickets (to go on sale later this month) will be numbered. On the Thursday (April 12) prior to the Saturday game, four names will be drawn as coaches.

Only persons 18 years and older will be eligible, and the four — two for each team — will be invited to work with the team on Friday. Each set of coaches will be allowed to devise one trick play for use in the contest.

The spring game will be an afternoon affair, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Hogs, Louisville Vie In Midwest

By The Associated Press
The UCLA Bruins, whose basketball championships were once as certain as spring following winter, hope to take a step toward the title that has eluded every current team member except one when they face San Francisco tonight in the semifinals of the West Regional of the NCAA tournament.

In the first game of the West Regional doubleheader at Provo, Utah, Marquette meets DePaul beginning at 8:06 p.m. CST. The UCLA contest starts at 10:36.

Also on tap tonight are the Midwest Regional semifinal games at Cincinnati, where Louisville plays Arkansas at 6:06 p.m. CST and Oklahoma meets top-ranked and undefeated Indiana State 8:36.

Friday night, it will be the East Regional at Greensboro, N.C., without an Atlantic Coast Conference team, and the Midwest Regional at Indianapolis. The East pairings are Syracuse against Penn and Rutgers against St. John's. The Midwest matchups have Toledo playing Notre Dame and Louisiana State meeting Michigan State.

UCLA's Marvin Thomas, a seldom-used player, had the distinction of sitting on the bench in San Diego when the Bruins beat Kentucky 92-85 for the NCAA championship in 1975.

It was the 10th NCAA title in 12 years for the Bruins under legendary coach John Wooden, who retired following that victory.

Thomas red-shirted the next season when new coach Gene Bartow welcomed incoming freshmen David Greenwood, Roy Hamilton and Brad Holland. This highly regarded trio has led the Bruins to four straight Pacific-8 (now it's Pacific-

10) titles and berths in the NCAA Tournament each year.

After a fourth-place finish in the NCAA tournament in 1976, the Bruins never made it out of the West Regional the next two seasons. This year, second-ranked UCLA, 24-4, is the top seed in the West Regional but must beat No. 12 San Francisco and then the winner of the Marquette-DePaul game to reach the final four at Salt Lake City.

"They (San Francisco) are big and physical, but also very quick. They like to run," said UCLA coach Gary Cunningham, who succeeded Bartow in 1977. "They're the biggest team we've played this season."

San Francisco, 22-6, is led by first team all-America center Bill Cartwright. But the Bruins can match that with their own first team all-America, Greenwood, a forward, and then top the Dons with third-team choice, Hamilton, a guard.

"Bill Cartwright is an outstanding player," said Cunningham. "I don't think, though, that one player can beat you."

The Midwest Regional will showcase two other first-team all-American — Larry Bird of Indiana State and Sidney Moncrief of Arkansas.

Arkansas knocked UCLA out of the tourney last year and finished third. But the Razorbacks lost two star players — Ron Brewer, now with Portland of the National Basketball Association, and Marvin Delph, who plays with the touring amateur group, Athletes in Action.

That left it up to Moncrief, a guard, who led the Razorbacks in scoring (21.8) and rebounding (9.6) this season.

"We've got as good a shot as anyone," said Moncrief. Arkansas' all-time leading scorer with 2,015 points.

Nicklaus, Weiskopf Join Field For Doral Open

MIAMI (AP) — Tom Weiskopf and Jack Nicklaus, the principals in a dramatic stretch run for this title a year ago, both are on hand for the $250,000 Doral Eastern Open Golf Tournament that gets under way today.

Their presence in the 144-man field represents a distinct turn-around. At one time both were listed as non-starters.

Nicklaus was a late entry. Originally, he had planned to skip this one, but some relatively weak performances the last two weeks prompted him add Doral to his schedule.

"I'd purposely left two weeks — Doral and Hilton Head — open on my schedule," he said, "with the idea that if I felt I needed more work, I could add them.

"Right now, I'm a little behind schedule. My game isn't as sharp as it should be at this time of the year. It just needs more work. So I added Doral."

Weiskopf, who beat Nicklaus by a single shot in this tournament a year ago, has been suffering from some stomach troubles this year. He'd been forced to withdraw from the last two tour events. Early last weekend he informed tournament officials by telephone from his home in Phoenix, he would be unable to play here.

A day later, however, he had another medical examination and was given the OK to compete.

"It's a severe stomach acidity," Weiskopf said. "I just have to be careful with it."

Despite their problems, both have enviable records on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club and both must be ranked high among the list of challengers for the $45,000 first prize.

In addition to his victory last year,

Weiskopf has had two runner-up finishes in this tournament, was third once has been eighth or better a total of six times.

Nicklaus is a two-time winner, a three-time runner-up and has 11 finishes in the top 10.

Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, Europe's leading player and a winner at Greensboro last year, starts a mini-swing in America, which will end at the Masters.

Hubert Green, Bruce Lietzke and Ben Crenshaw — all 1979 tournament winners — will be seeking a second title that would give them automatic entry to the World Series of Golf later this year.

Some other standouts include Andy Bean, a consistent challenger this season; U.S. Open champ Andy North, Gil Morgan, Ray Floyd, Mark Hayes, Grier Jones and Tommy Aaron.

City Golf Teams Go On Road

Local high school golf teams will be busy this weekend as the girls teams will be in Plainview and the boys travel to Hereford for competition.

The Monterey, Coronado and Lubbock high boys teams will compete in the Deaf Smith Invitational at Hereford. Junior varsity action begins today with the varsity linksters starting on Friday and finishing up on Saturday.

The Deaf Smith tourney is a non-district affair, but in District 4-AAAA competition Monterey has moved well out in front of the rest of the teams after two matches.

The boys will get back into district action next week when they again travel to Hereford for a loop meet.

The Monterey and Coronado girls will play their second 4-AAAA match of the season on Friday and Saturday in Plainview.

Coaching Team Conquers Austin

She wasn't whistling the National Anthem, either. Five days a week, and sometimes even more, Joe kissed his wife goodbye, so he could drive the 45-mile distance from his home on W. Sixth Street in Hale Center to his place of employment — Nazareth High School. And, yes, Joe admits, it did get old at times.

"Going wasn't so bad," said Joe (looking as though he could still handle his own under the bucket if called upon) "as it was coming back at night. Sometimes it really got long. . . . But only after the Swiftettes lost — which wasn't that often since Nazareth won 36 of its 40 regular and post-season games."

What the pair missed — even more than each other — was their inability to watch each other's games, something Joe had done plenty of times prior to taking over the Nazareth post.

"Sometimes I'd look around at half-time to see where he was," said Babs. "That's what I used to do last year. If we were behind, or something needed changing, I'd talk with him then. But he wasn't around this year. And I missed that."

There was one night, though, in Kress when the two watched each other's teams. Only it was from the bench and not the stands. In the finals of the tournament, Joe handed Babs' team one of its only three losses of the year, a narrow 33-32 setback.

"When we got home," recalled Babs, who like her husband graduated and played basketball at WBC, "there was a doghouse in the front yard with a sign on it. 'Happy Sleeping, Joe.' But I didn't make him sleep in it."

"That's because it was too small," laughed Joe, "but I did have to knock on the door before she let me in."

The doghouse stayed for a week in front of the Lombards' blue frame house. But the memories have certainly lingered a little longer.

"That was an important game," ex-

COACH QUILTS

HOUSTON (AP) — Chip Travis, Rice University's tennis coach the past three years, has resigned effective at the end of the current season and has applied for admission to the Texas Chiropractic College. Travis played on three Rice conference championship teams. Travis became interested in chiropractic treatment and preventive sports medicine two years ago after suffering a back injury.

plained Babs, "but I don't think we (she and Joe) were as nervous as the kids. They really wanted to win it (Nazareth for Joe, HCHS for Babs)."

That was just a beginning of the nervous times the two basketball enthusiasts would share together. Both not only sweated through a series of post-season games for their own teams, but they also did some for the other's club.

"We helped each other and worried with each other all year," said Joe. "I helped her with some offenses and defenses before the season ever started. But after it (the season) got started, we didn't talk that much basketball at home."

Both agree, now, they wish the season hadn't ended last Saturday night in the Superdome at Austin.

"There's been a letdown since winning," said Babs, "I guess, that's only natural, though. I wish we were still playing. I wasn't ready for the season to end. I just wish it could keep going."

Joe agreed: "It's really been a special year for me. I told the kids after we won, it was one of the biggest thrills of my life. You have to realize only about two percent of all the athletes ever win a state championship in anything. There are some great athletes that never do."

A state coaches poll which appeared in December listing Hale Center and Nazareth as the two top fem teams in the state is what set Joe and Babs to thinking that "yes, we could both win titles."

"But it was still so far away (the tournament) with so many tough games to play, that we could only hope," said Babs.

After Nazareth moved into the finals by defeating D Hanis and Hale Center did the same to Wall, the stage was set; now all they needed was a win apiece during Saturday's finals. Joe got his championship ring about 11 a.m., Babs' hers about 8:30 p.m.

And those nine hours Joe had to wait certainly took its toll.

"I was enjoying our win, but at the same time worrying about her game," said Joe. "It was certainly a thrill when we could enjoy each other's success."

This time Babs agreed: "It (Nazareth's win) sort of took a lot of pressure off me. I was really nervous for him."

Even worse than the long wait between games, Joe said, was the night before the finals, a period the two were separated, because there was no room at the Inn — Holiday that is.

"We talked to each other quite a bit," said Joe. "But I wish she could have been there. But things didn't work out." They did in the end.

Various Sites Needed For Tennis Meet

Jim Carter, Coronado tennis coach and director of the Lubbock Invitational Tennis Tournament, has announced the locations for the different divisions that will be competing in the weekend event which gets under way Friday.

All A division schools will compete at the Municipal Tennis Center on 66th Street. That includes both singles and doubles, boys and girls, Carter reported.

B Division boys will be playing at Monterey high school and the B Division girls will meet at Coronado. Boys in C Division will play at either Estacado or Dunbar. A and C division girls will compete at Lubbock High.

All action will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Coaches and teams should contact Carter at Coronado High School for further information.

Mats, LCHS Collide; Tourney Action Starts

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
It was not an uncommon sight Wednesday afternoon to find Estacado baseball coach Vince Buffamonte popping a blue towel adjacent to his desk with a thick elastic band.

For Buffamonte, it was a way to release the frustration of a loss to the Coronado junior varsity Tuesday afternoon. Fact that the towel was shredded revealed that Buffamonte had trouble getting the game off his mind.

Today, Buffamonte and the Matadors will try and erase the memory of the defeat when they visit Lubbock Christian High School in a nondistrict game. The action is slated to begin at 4 p.m.

In other action, Dunbar will visit Lamesa, with Lubbock High and Coronado competing in tournaments. Lubbock High will be in Monahans, while Coronado will play in Hobbs.

"What was so frustrating about that game Tuesday was that we were in the thing until the final inning," said Buffamonte. "We lost because one of our kids who plays the outfield quit the team to go to work just before the game. That forced us to put people out there (the outfield) that are not used to the position."

Ramon Salinas had to leave the team to support his family.

"He's been married for a year and a half," said Buffamonte. "Heck, I don't blame the kid. He has to work. I agree with him that his family has to come before the team."

The loss to the Coronado JV left the Matadors' record at 3-4.

"I think the loss hurt out confidence a bit," said the Estacado coach. "I think we'll bounce back fast. You could see when the kids came back into the locker room that they were mad. That's good. Because they cared."

So what about Lubbock Christian?

"To be honest, I don't know anything about the team," said Buffamonte. "Nothing."

Maybe, Buffamonte just needs more time to get the JV game out of his mind. One coach that probably has the clearest mind in the city right now is Dunbar mentor Kelly Rogers. Though his Panthers fell to Andrews 5-2 Tuesday afternoon, Rogers was impressed with the improvement his team made.

"The pitching of Daryl Green and cutting down on the errors we've been making was what I'm happy with," said Rogers. "Even though we're 0-6, we continue to make improvement in every game."

Coronado, at 5-4, will open the Hobbs tournament today with El Paso Coronado at 1 p.m. CST.

Coach John Dudley feels that Midland Lee is the team to beat in the tournament.

"They are an experienced team that plays good defense," said Dudley.

If the Mustangs beat El Paso Coronado today, the Mustangs will play the winner of the Carlsbad-Midland Lee contest at 3:15 p.m. Friday afternoon.

Meanwhile, Lubbock High coach Bart Hernandez isn't quite sure who the West-erners will face in the first round of the Monahans Tournament.

"A couple of teams dropped out and I just don't know," said Hernandez.

But one thing for sure is that Lubbock High will bring a 6-2 record into the action.

Women Golfers Play At Austin

AUSTIN (Special) — The Texas Tech women's golf team will compete in the Betsy Rawls Invitational Tournament here today. The competition will take place on the Morris Williams golf course.

Two-time national titlist University of Miami will head an 18-team field, reported Tech golf coach Jay McClure.

Besides Tech, other Southwest Conference schools in the tournament include No. 4-ranked Texas, the hostess team, and No. 5 SMU.

Tech will be represented by Liz Remy, Kerri Kranz, Mary DeLong, Linda Hunt and Jane Gray.

Astros Plug Holes

By FRED McMANE
COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — As a soothsayer, Bill Virdon was strictly a 125 hitter a year ago.
Last spring training, Virdon was confident his Houston Astros would be a contender in the National League West. But a slow start and some injuries to key players resulted in a next-to-last place finish and a bit of embarrassment for the skipper.
So this year, Virdon isn't making any forecasts.
"I'm not going to make any predictions because they never seem to work out the way you plan on them," said Virdon. "All I'll say is if everybody stays healthy on the pitching staff and things go like we think they can go, it could be an interesting season.

NOT ALL WORK — The major-league baseball teams may be in the sun states to prepare for the 1979 season, but it's not all work. Here, New York Mets Joel Youngblood left, and Doug Flynn sneak away from the batting cage to play Frisbee with their dogs outside their beach cottage at St. Petersburg, Fla. The two bachelors share the cottage with their dogs Sanger, left, and Woody. (AP Laserphoto)

The Astros were very busy during the off-season filling a couple of their gaping holes. They acquired an everyday shortstop — Craig Reynolds from Seattle and a first-string catcher (Alan Ashby) from Toronto. But the cost was high.
To get Reynolds and Ashby, the Astros had to part with two of their young pitchers, Floyd Bannister and Mark Lemongello. So while the pitching staff is still strong, it is not quite as deep as it has been in recent years.
"If we end up having three or four injuries on the pitching staff, we could have some problems," Virdon admits.
Offensively, the Astros should be among the better teams in the league. Although they lack a consistent long ball threat, they will start seven players who hit .281 or better last season.
Obviously, the return to top form by center fielder Cesar Cedeno is a necessity if the Astros are to do anything at all. Cedeno suffered torn ligaments in his left knee in June and underwent surgery in July. So far, the knee has responded well to the rigors of spring training.

STRENGTHS — Solid pitching staff, anchored by big-league winner J.R. Richard; good overall batting attack; team speed rates among league's best.
WEAKNESSES — Not enough power to light a night porch; shaky defensive infield; very little depth.
NEW FACES — Reynolds and Ashby will join regular lineup; rookie Jeff Leonard should stick as regular outfielder.
OUTLOOK — Everything would have to go right to Astros to improve on last year's record. If club starts on launching pad again, it may not escape the basement this time.

Dimmitt Girls' Trio Rates 3-AA Honors

DIMMITT (Special) — Dimmitt paced the 3-AA all-district girls basketball team with three players selected.
The Dimmitt players chosen included junior Lori Dyer, junior Vicki Cleveland and senior Sue Rita King.

Staub Vows To Quit If Pact Not Extended

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Detroit Tigers general manager Jim Campbell turned down a suggestion Wednesday from players' representative Marvin Miller to telephone Rusty Staub and try to settle their differences.
"I absolutely will not...I have no intention of calling him, nor will anyone else from our organization call him," Campbell said. "Our positions have not changed one iota."
Miller's suggestion came during a news conference at which he discussed the contract problems designated hitter Staub is having with the American League club.
"I do not think the media have been given the facts in describing what the problem is," said Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association. "They were led to believe it was an ordinary contract and this came out of the blue."

Tech Women Tracksters Entertain Angelo State

The Texas Tech women's track team will make its home debut today, playing hosts to Angelo State at the Tech track stadium. Field events will begin at 11 a.m., with the running events slated to start at 1:05 p.m.
This will be the fourth meet for the Raider women, who have captured first and second place finishes in triangular meets this year.
"We'll be competing against ourselves and even go with two teams in some of the relays, hoping to improve on previous times," said track coach Beta Little.
Tech is strong in the running events led by Falecia Freeman. Sharon Moultrie and Pam Montgomery.
Miss Freeman's best event is the 220-yard dash and Miss Montgomery has been turning in the fastest times in the 100-yard dash.
In the field events, Miss Moultrie has been a winner in the long jump. She has, however, yet to surpass 19 feet.
Tech should do well in the weight events with three athletes capable of qualifying for nationals, according to the coach, Rose Kuehler. Jennifer Perdue and Cindy Luna have been tossing the shot put and discus to Raider records.
Two other areas that show the squad's increased depth this year are in the hurdles and the quarter-mile.
Three returning athletes, Sue Sutz, Loann Phillips and Dana Nichols give the Raiders scoring potential from the 60-yard hurdles up to the grueling 400-meter event. Miss Nichols' 63.9 in the 400-meter event is only 1.9 seconds off the state qualifying standard.
Dora Bentancourt leads the quarter-milers with her quick start. She has already turned in her career bests in the 440, Judy Butler, Miss Nichols and Jacqueline Poth round out the quarter-milers.

Meanwhile, the New York Yankees Three Braves pitchers combined to limit Texas to three hits. Phil Niekro worked the first three innings, allowing one hit, Don Collins gave up no hits in the final three innings to cop the victory.
Both Texas runs, one of them unearned, came against Buddy J. Solomon. Atlanta now is 4-2 in exhibition play and Texas is 3-4.

Pittsburgh Home Runs Edge Philadelphia 7-6

By The Associated Press
Willie Stargell, Ben Oglivie, John Hale and Dan Norman played double or no nothing Wednesday...in the home run department.
Stargell hit a solo homer in the fourth inning and a three-run blast in the eighth, powering the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-inning 7-6 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies in exhibition baseball.
Milwaukee's Oglivie reversed Stargell's order with a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the fifth as the Brewers downed the San Francisco Giants 6-3.
Hale drove in five runs with his two homers — Nolan Ryan and Ken Brett were the victims — and Danny Meyer also collected five RBIs with a bases-loaded triple and a pair of doubles, leading the Seattle Mariners to a 17-9 rout of the California Angels.
Norman, a rookie who is trying to win the New York Mets' right field job, matched Hale with two homers and five RBIs in a 10-7 slugfest over the Montreal Expos.
The Chicago White Sox didn't have any one hit two home runs but Jorge Orta and Lamar Johnson belted consecutive homers off Boston rookie John Tudor in the third inning as the Sox hosed down the Boston Red Sox 6-4.
Rookie Mike Macha doubled home the tying and winning runs in the seventh inning as the Atlanta Braves defeated Texas 3-2.
Macha's double came with the bases loaded and enabled the Braves to overcome a 2-0 deficit. Barry Bonnell also had a run-scoring single in the inning.
Macha is trying to wrest Atlanta's third base job from Bob Horner, the 1978 National League Rookie of the Year who is a holdout in a contract dispute with the Braves.

winless except for a victory over Grambling State University, lost for the seventh time in a row against major league opposition, dropping a 3-2 decision to the Kansas City Royals on Willie Wilson's ninth-inning single. Ron Guidry, the Yanks' Cy Young Award winner, made his spring debut with three scoreless innings.
Tom Seaver hurled five scoreless innings but the Cincinnati Reds needed Mike Grace's run-scoring single in the 11th inning to nip the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5.
Ted Simmons' three-run homer helped the St. Louis Cardinals defeat the Detroit Tigers 6-3.

Steve Macko singled home the tying run in the seventh inning and scored on Steve Davis' double as the Chicago Cubs nipped the Cleveland Indians 5-4.
Joe Wallis delivered run-scoring singles in the eighth and 12th innings to pace the Oakland A's over the San Diego Padres 7-6.
Ron Jackson slammed a two-run home run and Minnesota scored four unearned runs of Joe Niekro in the second inning as the Twins bombed Houston 8-2.
The Astros, 2-4, took a 1-0 lead on a run-scoring double by Tom Wiedenbauer off Twins' starter Dave Goltz. It was the only run Goltz allowed in four innings and the first he's given up in seven innings pitched this spring.

Shipwrecked Alaskans Survive On Kelp, Fish

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A man and his three teen-age children, shipwrecked in icy Alaskan waters on Valentine's Day, say they survived on kelp and shellfish during the bitter-cold month they were marooned on a remote island.

Elmo Wortman, 53, his son Randy, 16, and daughters, Cindy, 17, and Geana, 13, managed to survive the ordeal in the coldest February on record on icebound Dall Island.

The four, all with severely frostbitten feet, are now hospitalized in Ketchikan.

Wortman said Wednesday he won't talk with reporters until they are on the mend. But he said information they supplied to a U.S. Coast Guard debriefing officer following their rescue March 11 accurately describes their ordeal.

The Wortmans, who live at Port Refuge, a tiny harbor on a small island in southeast Alaska, were aboard their 33-foot sailboat "HOME" when it ran aground and broke up in icy, stormy surf early on Valentine's Day.

They had on their flotation jackets, but lost their boots.

At daybreak they set off in search of shelter, hiking and paddling about 25 miles aboard a raft made from a badly damaged skiff, some plywood and styrofoam blocks recovered from their broken up boat.

They had also salvaged a gallon of corn oil, six apples, two onions and some dry Tang from the boat, a gallon of diesel fuel and foam mattress pads.

On Feb. 25, the girls were set up in a makeshift shelter on the beach, while Wortman and his son struck off in search of a cabin Wortman knew about.

They would not be able to return for 13 days.

"When Elmo and Randy failed to return as promised, Cindy moved the camp up the beach for better shelter from the wind and to avoid the tide, which was coming in higher each day," the Coast Guard report said. "Geana did not leave the shelter at all for the last seven days (before their rescue March 10). Cindy gathered kelp and shellfish for food."

Meanwhile, Wortman and his son, abandoning their raft, finally reached the cabin of Pat Tolson, who was not there. They found a citizens band radio, but couldn't get it to work.

"Both were frequently in delirium due to pain of thawing feet," the Coast Guard report said.

The weather remained below freezing. Waist-deep snow surrounded the cabin. The inlet was iced in.

"By this time, they had given the girls up for dead," the report said. On March 4, the weather started to break. The men found an old damaged fiberglass skiff on the beach and started repairing it.

By March 10, they had it ready to sail and left to see what had happened to Cindy and Geana.

They found the girls alive.

Claimed Ringleader To Face Murder Trial

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — A burglary ring's alleged leader — a man accused of killing a stepson, raping another son's girlfriend, and trying to kill the son — will face trial for murder, perhaps by this summer, along with two brothers.

The charges against the father, Bruce Johnston Sr., killing six people who went to police with information on his illegal activities.

His brothers are charged with murder in five of the killings.

On Tuesday, after an eight-day hearing, District Justice Eugene DiFilippo ruled the state had produced enough evidence to hold without bail Bruce Johnston Sr., 39, of Elkton, Md., David Johnston, 31, of Kennett Square, and Norman Johnston, 28, of West Grove.

No date was set for trial, but Chester County District Attorney William Lamb said they will be arraigned March 28, and probably will be tried this summer.

It is a complicated case, in which the prosecution has relied on the testimony of admitted killers, and in which the seaminess was underscored by the district attorney himself.

"I wish we could have priests, rabbis and ministers as witnesses," Lamb said. "Unfortunately we only have murderers and thieves. Those are the kind of people who engage in conspiracies, and this kind of criminal activity, to pervert American justice and kill witnesses."

According to prosecutors, Bruce Johnston Sr. led an interstate burglary ring that did a million-dollar business in stolen trucks, cars, tractors and drugs.

Two men who said they had killed for Johnston testified for the prosecution that the brothers schemed last summer to execute "snitches." Another witness said he heard the brothers talk about the murders.

And another key prosecution witness was Bruce Sr.'s son, Bruce Jr. — who said he turned informer "because my Dad raped my girlfriend."

On the other hand, the leader of the Johnston clan was overheard telling his lawyer at one point: "Those guys lied to railroad us," and the defense stressed the deals for lighter sentences which the two admitted killers said they had made with prosecutors.

The defense also claimed that prosecutors are exaggerating the fear of retribution and denying the defendants their rights. The defense claims, for example, that the defendants are being discriminated against in jail by not being allowed daily showers or use of telephones — an issue on which they will get a hearing Friday.

The courtroom was heavily guarded during the hearing. Police searched spectators and the magistrate permitted, over defense objections, the videotaping of four key witnesses so their testimony would be available in case they couldn't appear at the trial.

"They were not surprised by the result," defense attorney Lawrence Goldberg said of his clients.

All three brothers are charged with attempting to murder Bruce Jr., 20, who survived being shot eight times in an ambush that killed his 15-year-old girlfriend, Robin Miller. Bruce Sr. is accused of paying his brothers $15,000 for the bungled attempt.

The other victims were James Johnston, 18, stepson of Bruce Sr.; Wayne Sampson, 18, and his brother, James, 24; Duane Lincoln, 17, and Gary Crouch, 30. Only Bruce Sr. is charged in the Crouch killing.

The bodies of Crouch, Wayne Sampson, James Johnston and Lincoln were found in crude graves in nearby woods. The body of James Sampson, which one witness said was dumped in a landfill and buried under more than 30 feet of garbage and dirt, hasn't been found.

At the hearing, Ricky Mitchell, 37 — who is himself charged with the same five killings as Norman and David Johnston — testified he heard Bruce Sr. say, "I want my son brought to me alive so I can have the pleasure of killing him."

Mitchell said he was present when four persons were shot and buried, and he was forced to assassinate one or end up in the grave himself. He said he was paid by Bruce Sr. for it.

Leslie Dale told of firing a bullet into the head of Gary Crouch, 30, in July 1977 while they rode in a stolen car which Bruce Sr. drove and which they later burned.

Another major prosecution witness was James Griffin, 27, who said he committed burglaries and robberies with the Johnstons "but never murder." Charged with conspiracy in the killings, he also told of overhearing the Johnstons "argue over persons squealing to the police and how they had silenced some of them by assassination."

Thievery Within Television Industry Inspires Disgust

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Robert Stack stars in "1941," a new movie about which he can say little except that he portrays Gen. Vinegar Joe Stillwell in a comedy about Southern California panic following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

The reason for secrecy, according to Stack, is the rampant thievery of ideas by television and other movie companies. Stack, a normally easy-going actor, is outraged at the piracy of scripts, story ideas and even sets in and among movie and TV producers.

Many film directors and producers are unwilling to reveal more than the title and the casts of their new movies for fear that unscrupulous TV hustlers will beat them to the punch with a ripoff version of their properties.

Stack is celebrating his 40th year as a screen actor, going back to the memorable first screen kiss he planted on Deanna Durbin. But in all his years, he's never seen anything to compare with the plagiarism and theft that prevails in Hollywood today.

"Television is a scabrous medium," said Stack, who starred for years in TV's "The Untouchables" series.

"TV producers steal anything they can get their hands on.

"It's like the garment industry where spies are employed to steal designs from various fashion houses. But in Hollywood they steal movie ideas and make quick, cheap TV movies to get to the public first."

"Movies generally take a year from a completed shooting script through production and post-production to get to the screen. A TV outfit can steal it all and get on the air in a matter of weeks."

"John Frankheimer made 'Black Sunday' and TV came up with a bunch of quick copies of panic stories in ballparks and other crowded places. They figure why spend time and money working on original ideas when they can steal something for nothing. Frankheimer's new movie is being made in total secrecy."

Moviemakers fear other moviemakers, too. "Black Sunday" involved a blimp crashing into the Super Bowl. Before Frankheimer could get it released, "Two Minute Warning" was in theaters with the story of a sniper amok at a Los Angeles Coliseum pro football game.

Sometimes TV doesn't act quite fast enough. "Star Wars" managed to make it to the screen before it could be ripped off. "Battle Star Galactica" was clearly of the same genre and lawsuits are pending now.

"Not long ago a guy was caught stealing the blueprints for the sets of the 'Star Trek' movie right out of Paramount Studios," Stack said.

"It's crazy - like the KGB and CIA. There are spies and counterespies. It is worst in the recording industry, where organized crime has moved in. The hoods can make more money overnight by stealing records than they can with dope and prostitution and it's less risky."

"They have a system of taking a hit album, copying it in their own factories and reproducing the album covers so exactly that even the artists and original record company can't tell the difference."

"Nothing on TV is original anymore. 'Mork and Mindy' came out of 'My Favorite Martian.' Inventiveness doesn't work out in the computerized world of TV which requires a girl, a boy and a dog and no brassieres."

Stack himself has been victimized by rippers as evidenced in his role of the INCAS.

The powerful Inca empire had its seat at Cuzco in the Andes and covered most of Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, as well as parts of Colombia, Chile and Argentina. Building on the achievements of 800 years of Andean civilization, the Incas had a high level of skill in architecture.

Brynner Builds Second Career Around Revived 'King And I'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - It is a puzzle: How can a 28-year-old musical be the biggest money-making attraction in the American theater today?

First of all, it is not just any musical. It is that jewel of the Rodgers and Hammerstein collection, "The King and I."

Secondly, it is not being performed by a shop-worn road company. Yul Brynner is repeating the role that won him Broadway stardom and an Academy Award. His Anna is the accomplished Constance Towers, and the rest of the company is equally first-rate.

Brynner sees to that. "I am a fanatic about this show," he admitted before a Sunday evening performance at the Hollywood Pantages.

"The other day I asked for rehearsal time so I could help the kid who plays the crown prince. He is extremely talented, but he needed more polish in his role."

"This play takes so much care. It is a great classic, a perfect mixture of words and music, the plastic arts and ballet. It must be kept in perfect tune, like a precious musical instrument."

Brynner happily reeled off records for this new edition of "The King and I": $19.5 million for 96 weeks at the Uris Theater in New York; $2.5 million for six weeks at the Arie Crown in Chicago - 108 percent capacity (with the aid of benches) despite blizzards.

The first week total here at the Pantages was $368,111, a new Los Angeles record. On June 12 he opens "The King and I" at the London Palladium with Virginia McKenna as Anna; the advance sale is reportedly the biggest in English history - already sold out until October.

Why has the show struck such a responsive chord with audiences? "Because it is what people want now," Brynner declared. "It is entertainment that appeals to everyone. I have four generations of the same family coming to the show. People who have never been to the theater are coming - many call the box office and ask how they should dress. It is not a play, it is a happening."

On April 14, Brynner will mark his 2500th appearance as the Siamese king (not counting the 1956 movie and the brief TV series of 1972). He performed in the original company three years in New York, one on the road. Despite all this, Brynner professes never to tire.

"It's like going to school every day," he said. "I am always discovering new things about the role, and I never repeat the same performance. I have such a love for the king that I like to share my enthusiasm with people. I never, never feel tired after a show."

He believes he is giving a better performance now than he did 28 years ago: "I was much too young. Historically, the king was already in his 60s when the events took place. I played him somewhere over 50. I am 58 now, and I think I can handle the role better."

"When I reread the play, I was amazed how much Oscar had put into the character. There is more to him than bluster; there is also his innocence and his purity."

Before, I was not adult enough to portray the innocence.

Eight performances a week in such a commanding role requires a special regimen. Brynner needs no daily exercise; the role itself provides that. "I am in better shape than I have ever been," he said. "I gave up smoking 10 years ago, and I have never been a boozier."

"I allow myself a glass of red wine after performance. This was recommended to me by Charles Boyer, who said in a typically French way that the wine is 'some-what soporific as well as somewhat laxative.'"

How long can he continue playing the king? The London date is open-ended, and he has offers from 20 countries "with money no object." An American tour could doubtless last to the end of the century. He indicated he wouldn't mind.

NBC Airing Tape Purportedly Made During Cultist Suicides

NEW YORK (AP) — A tape recording NBC says was made during the last moments of the Peoples Temple commune indicates the Rev. Jim Jones had decided on mass suicide before he learned an attempt to kill all members of a visiting congressman's party had gone awry.

After the cult leader learned the congressman had been killed on the ground — not in the air, as planned — the tape indicates he urged others to "get moving, get moving, get moving" with the "medication" which would kill them in a mass poisoning.

And later, a voice identified as Jones's exhortations to "get on with it" and "stop this hysterics" as the screams of children are heard in the background.

At another point, a woman identified as Christine Miller debates him: "I look at all the babies and I think they deserve to live." Jones replies: "I agree ... But also they deserve much more. They deserve peace." Noises of approval can be heard from the crowd, and an unidentified man says: "It's over sister, it's over."

Last Nov. 17, more than 900 persons died in a mass suicide-murder at the cult's agricultural colony in Guyana, most from drinking a cyanide-laced fruit drink.

On Wednesday, NBC-TV broadcast on its "Today" show four minutes excerpted from a 43-minute tape recording it said NBC News correspondent Robert Hager obtained from sources close to an investigation of the tragedy.

The mass deaths occurred after Rep. Leo Ryan and several others had visited the settlement to investigate charges of coercion. Survivors have said there was a plan to sabotage Ryan's flight home by causing a crash in which all in his party would die.

As things worked out, though, the party was attacked on the ground. Ryan and four others, among them an NBC newsman and an NBC cameraman, were killed by gunfire at the airstrip.

On the tape, a voice identified as Jones's is heard at one point — evidently before learning of Ryan's death: "What's going to happen here in a matter of a few minutes is that one of a few on that plane is gonna ... gonna shoot the pilot."

"I know that. I didn't plan it but I know it's gonna happen. They're gonna shoot that pilot and down comes that plane into the jungle. And we had better not have any of our children left when it's over cause they'll parachute in here on us. So, my opinion is that we'd be kind to children and be kind to seniors and take the poison, like they used to take in ancient Greece and step over quietly, because we are not committing suicide: it's a revolutionary act."

Later the transcript quotes Jones as interrupting someone else with: "Keeping talking, the congressman has been murdered ... the congressman's dead. Please get us some medication. It's simple. It's simple, there's no convulsions with it, it's just simple. Just please get it before it's too late. The G.D.F. (Guyanese army) will be here. I tell you, get moving, get moving, get moving."

In the community's final moments, Jones's voice sounds calm and rarely rises in volume as he speaks to followers over a loudspeaker:

"Please, for God's sake let's get on with it. We've lived ... Let's just be done with it. Shouts of support can be heard occasionally — and, in the background, the cries of the dying.

"Die with respect. Die with dignity. Lay down your life with dignity. Don't lay down with tears and agony. Stop this hysterics," Jones says. "Children, it's just something to put you to rest. O, God!" he declares.

In obtaining the tape, Hager had to agree to not disclose how he got it, and to make public only four minutes from it, NBC said.

NO QUESTIONS — Actor Lee Marvin pauses outside the courtroom in Los Angeles, Wednesday, with his wife, Pamela, during a recess in his property settlement trial with Michelle Triola Marvin. Earlier, Judge Arthur Marshall ruled that Miss Marvin's attorney could not ask Marvin whether he had sex with any partner other than Miss Marvin during a 1966 trip to London. Judge Asks Reticence In Testimony Of Homosexuality In Marvin Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the Lee Marvin trial urged attorneys Wednesday not to present testimony about the alleged homosexuality of a key witness who claims he was Michelle Triola Marvin's lover.

"Even assuming he is a homosexual, aren't many homosexuals bi-sexual and engage in bi-sexual activities?" asked Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall.

Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchellson, said he would raise the homosexuality issue, charging that Richard Doughty lied when he testified he had sex with Miss Marvin about 25 times.

Miss Marvin is suing Marvin for $1.8 million, half the money she claims the actor earned while she lived with him.

Mitchelson said he planned to call several witnesses to testify about Doughty, including a woman investigator and a male member of the homosexual community.

"The investigator would testify that Mr. Doughty is a man known as 'a walker,' a term we will define later," Mitchellson said.

Marvin's attorney, A. David Kagon, protested, saying, "Mr. Doughty has vehemently denied to us since this matter hit the press that he has had any homosexual relations with anyone."

The exchange came after Kagon volunteered to turn over notes he and another attorney took during interviews with Doughty. On Tuesday, Marshall quashed a subpoena for the notes, ruling they were privileged.

Marshall proposed that the attorneys submit agreements including testimony Mitchellson's witnesses would offer if called and denials Doughty would present if recalled.

The attorneys tentatively agreed to work toward such a solution.

Before Wednesday's court session, a contingent from the Women's Equal Rights Legal Defense and Education Fund denounced new coverage of the trial.

"We feel that she (Miss Marvin) has often been treated as many rape victims have in criminal proceedings ... Miss Marvin's sexual history is recounted. Further, various allegations impugning her reputation have been made," the group said.

INTRODUCED AT OPERA — Lorene McClintock is introduced by Julius Rudel at a gala celebration of the New York City Opera Guild at Lincoln Center.

Guild Honors Miss McClintock

Lorene McClintock, widely known in the Lubbock area as a teacher, author, and originator of the "McClintock Piano Course," was an honored guest at the spring season opening of the New York City Opera at the State Theater.

The opera company paid tribute to the 20th anniversary of the Opera Guild, of which Miss McClintock is a cofounder. It originated with thirteen active members and has grown to 3,500.

It provides substantial funds to the opera company's maintenance. Julius Rudel, director, presented Miss McClintock with a silver tray as a memento of the occasion. The president of the Guild is Martha Moore Sykes, also a cofounder.

Court Threatens Reporter With Jail, Fine

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning newspaper reporter David Chandler insisted Wednesday he will go to jail rather than reveal his news sources to a grand jury.

"If they pointed a shotgun between my eyes, I wouldn't be able to get the names out fast enough," said Chandler, an investigative reporter for the Norfolk Ledger-Star.

"But there is no reasonable punishment they can impose, including jail, that will make me reveal the names."

The 42-year-old newsman has until Tuesday morning to persuade a higher court it should suspend a contempt citation handed down Tuesday by Richmond Circuit Court Judge James B. Wilkinson.

If that effort fails, Chandler could face a jail sentence and $100-a-day fine that could continue indefinitely.

Wilkinson imposed the sentence after Chandler twice refused to tell a special grand jury the names of persons who told him gifts had been made to employees of the Virginia Division of Purchases and Supply.

The grand jury is investigating reports of improper dealings by division employees, including kickbacks, "sweetheart contracts" and the acceptance of expensive gifts.

Chandler was the leader of a team of reporters in Panama City, Fla., that won a Pulitzer Prize in 1962 for local reporting.

In sentencing him to jail Tuesday, Wilkinson said, "Corruption goes to the heart of our republic. Any person who has knowledge of corruption should reveal it."

Air Force One Leaks Story

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Richmond dermatologist got a sneak preview of President Carter's Middle East victory speech hours before the president landed at Andrews Air Force Base on Wednesday to deliver it.

Dr. William P. Jordan Jr. had his ear to his all-band shortwave radio Tuesday night while presidential adviser Gerald R. Fehon was reading Carter's speech on the peace negotiations to "someone named Becky."

After the Chicago Tribune reported last week that an amateur radio operator had picked up Air Force One, Jordan decided to give it a try.

"I spent about an hour looking for it," Jordan said. He used the megahertz figure given in the earlier newspaper story as the basis for his hunt.

What he picked up, Jordan said, apparently were two-way conversations between Air Force One passengers and Andrews Air Force Base.

He did not, however, get to listen in on any of Carter's conversations.

The mood among those he did hear seemed to be one of elation at the success of the Middle East peace negotiations, the Medical College of Virginia dermatologist said.

Although he was hearing Carter's speech hours before it was given, Jordan said, there was nothing all that exciting in it.

Akabane, a 4-foot-6 muscleman who was lured to the United States six years ago by the prospect of making more money as a wrestler, was granted permanent resident status Monday.

"Great. It's great," Akabane said of the news that the seven-month legal battle was over.

Akabane, 38, was told in September by the Immigration and Naturalization Service that his temporary labor certificate had been extended to the limit and he would have to apply for a permanent certificate.

His employer, the Worldwide Midget Wrestling Association, advertised in newspapers for midget wrestlers in an attempt to show that Akabane would not be depriving any American citizen of a job. The association said it received no response to the ads.

'Snuggle' Discount Offered

SEATTLE (AP) — How would you promote winter tourism in a city known for a rainy season stretching from October to May?

The Seattle-King County Convention and Visitors Bureau's answer: offer a "Snuggle Up In Seattle" package of discounts of 10 percent to 50 percent from December through March on everything from hotels to basketball games.

The campaign's logo shows a man and a woman in a single raincoat, sharing an umbrella and holding aloft filled champagne glasses.

"Run away from home this weekend," the ads entice. "We'll show you how to laugh at the rain."

Those who write in get a numbered piece of plastic about the size of a charge card, good for discounts at places listed in a brochure.

Gary Odegard of Cole and Weber Advertising says that last year, "the revenue to merchants increased 17 to 20 percent in the winter months," as 10,000 people asked for the package.

Perhaps they needed a good laugh. Or perhaps it was because the ad campaign is aimed primarily at Western Canada and Alaska — where the winter weather is even worse than Seattle's.

Ohio Town Elects Sorehead

WAYNE, Ohio (AP) — Wayne, Ohio, may be the only place in the country which holds a popular election yearly for town sorehead.

The winner gets his or her name painted on the sign on the brick wall of Russ Snyder's barbershop in the Wood County town.

The sign proclaims: "Welcome to Wayne. Population 948 nice people one sorehead. If you can't stop — just smile and wave as you go by."

The plaque carries the sorehead's name. "It started about 20 years ago when someone erected a sign out on Ohio 23 that welcomed people to Wayne," said John Bowe, who runs a gas station in Wayne.

The first sign just said Wayne had one sorehead. Two years ago Bowe and his four brothers decided the town should elect the sorehead. So they took nominations and held an election.

Undertaker Charlie Berndt won and sign painter Dave Sharp executed the results on the barbershop wall.

Last June Berndt ran again, but lost to retired plumber Dustin Whitman.

"It stirred up so much interest people were demanding absentee ballots if they were going to be on vacation or couldn't get out of the house," Bowe said.

Firefighters Lose Pants

ANADARKO, Okla. (AP) — Anadarko firemen are thankful that no alarms were called in early Tuesday morning. Someone had stolen their pants.

The thief evidently walked into the room where three Anadarko firefighters were sleeping early Tuesday morning and took the pants off racks at the head of beds, Police Detective Larry Harrison said.

Wallets containing about $73 in cash, credit cards and car keys are reported missing.

Texans Honor Einstein

AUSTIN (AP) — You don't have to play football to be an important person, the Texas Senate heard Wednesday.

"Albert Einstein is equally as important as anybody that played football for the University of Texas," Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, said. "That might come as a surprise to some people here."

Schwartz apparently referred to Houston Oiler Earl Campbell's appearance in the Senate Monday. Campbell won the Heisman Trophy his senior year at the University of Texas.

Senators unanimously adopted Schwartz's resolution recognizing the 100th anniversary of Einstein's birth.

Performer Disappoints Fans

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Fans of both Donald O'Connor and the hit play "The Music Man" were disappointed

Tuesday night when the performer stumbled through a disastrous opening night in Portland.

A full-house audience had come to St. Mary's Academy to see and hear the star that made his film debut in 1938 in "Sing You Sinners" and made history with his classic "Be A Clown" in the 1952 film "Singin' in the Rain."

But O'Connor fluffed lines, forgot lyrics, rambled helplessly and was obviously unprepared for the role, according to Robert Lindstrom, music critic for the Oregonian, Portland's morning newspaper.

After a few measures of "We've Got Trouble," in which O'Connor skipped over and left out lyrics, he stopped conductor Fyrell Pratt with the explanation, "This is such a lovely song, I hate to lose it up."

Lindstrom said the restart was no more successful than the initial attempt and words continued to be mangled and unconvincingly improvised. But the audience tried to stay with their star in anticipation of improvement — which never came. Lindstrom said.

After the show, O'Connor offered an apologetic curtain speech in which he explained, "I don't think anyone can learn this role in seven days."

Clark To Manage Theater

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Clark, the star of television's "American Band Stand," will take over management of the scandal-ridden Westchester Premier Theatre, it was announced Wednesday.

A management agreement signed Monday between the Lincoln Savings Bank, which owns the theater, and Dick Clark Presentations gives Clark an option to buy the 3,571-seat entertainment hall within two years for between $3 million and $4 million.

Richard Gersh, speaking for Clark, said the bankrupt theater will reopen in June and will feature a restaurant, Las Vegas-style cabaret acts, industrial shows and conventions.

Edward Rose, a vice president of Lincoln Savings Bank, said he hoped the Clark name would overshadow the theater's past. The bank bought the theater at auction last year for $2.5 million.

The theater went bankrupt last April with federal prosecutors charging key operators and investors of the reputedly mob-linked theater with a series of complex stock and bankruptcy frauds. Two of 10 men indicted await sentencing on guilty pleas; the others were due for trial later this month.

The new Dick Clark Westchester Theater will be managed by Timothy Tormey, a longtime associate of Clark's.

Creative Holiday Gaining Momentum Among Finns To Poke Fun At Irish

MADISON, Wis. UPI — The Finns have found an answer to the Irish St. Patrick's Day wearing of the green — St. Urho's Day — and they celebrate it with the wearing of the purple a day before the Irish holiday.

Friday is St. Urho's Day, honoring the man legend says rid Finland of a plague of grasshoppers. A dozen states, most recently Wisconsin, officially recognized the Finnish holiday, based on a "legend" little more than 20 years old but claiming roots dating to the Ice Age.

Legend says succulent grapes that grew wild in the area now known as Finland before the last glacial period were threatened by swarming grasshoppers.

Urho stood on the shore of one of Finland's many lakes and chanted:

"Heinasirkka, Heinasirkka mene taalta hitteen." That means "grasshoppers, grasshoppers, go away from here."

The power of the Finnish language, the story says, drove the grasshoppers into the water and Finland's grapes were spared. The Finns proclaimed Urho a saint and designated his day a holiday.

Now thousands of Finns arise early March 16, dress in royal purple and nile green — the colors of grapes and grasshoppers — and stand at the edge of a lake or stream, repeating the words of St. Urho.

There are parties, dances and parades — even St. Urho's Day cards.

Straight-faced Finns tell you it's for real. The Irish suspect they're the object of a joke. And the Irish are right.

"It's kind of a hoax holiday that the Finns started up several years ago in northern Minnesota," said Carl Salo of Owen, who got Gov. Lee S. Dreyfus to proclaim March 16 St. Urho's Day in Wisconsin. More than 700 persons signed the petition.

"There were a lot of Irish working in a Finnish department store and they always made a big deal out of St. Patrick's Day. The Finns decided they needed a day to celebrate, too. So they made up this story."

It was at Ketola's Department Store in Virginia, Minn., that Mrs. Gene McCavic put the tall tale on paper in 1956. It was conceived as a joke for a coffee break party in Ketola's basement and was never intended to go any further.

But Salo, who operates a Finnish import business, said the story of St. Urho spread rapidly. Arizona, Delaware, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin now recognize the holiday.

He said the holiday has even spread back to Finland.

"Up until a couple of years ago you didn't even hear of Urho in Finland," he said. "But now they're starting to celebrate it over there, too."

FLAG CONFUSION

The true history of the Stars and Stripes has become so cluttered by myth and tradition that the facts are difficult, and in some cases impossible, to establish. It is not certain who really designed the Stars and Stripes, who made the first such flag, or even whether it ever flew in any sea fight or land battle of the American Revolution.
