"FIRST In Lubbock—FIRST On The South Plains"

REMEMBER WHEN? — Joe Hornaday, Texas Tech's assistant sports information director, holds one of a series of paintings that will decorate the new lettermen's lounge-athletic ticket office at the north end of Jones Stadium. The picture shows highlights of Tech's Southwest Conference football championship in 1976. Other drawings, by sports artist Ted Watts of Oswego, Kan., will depict other sports as well as past Raider all-Americans and football coaches. Cost of the art, financed by Tech ex-lettermen, will be more than $10,500. Also to be displayed in the lounge and financed by ex-lettermen will be an 8x13 1/2-foot tapestry incorporating SWC school emblems. This wall hanging will cost $10,000. The tapestry and the paintings will be hung as they are completed, with all to be in place by next fall. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

Begin Comes To U.S. For Pact Signing

By The Associated Press
ISRAELI Prime Minister Menachem Begin, "praying from the bottom of my heart" that the treaty with Egypt will foster a wider Mideast peace, flew to the United States Friday for the signing ceremony. Within hours a terrorist bombing in Jerusalem killed one person and wounded 14.

In a brief statement on arrival at Kennedy International Airport in New York, the Israeli prime minister said, "We have some problems, but I have come to sign the peace treaty." He said he wanted "to congratulate President (Anwar) Sadat and express our gratitude to the president of the United States for his great efforts."

Begin said he would stay in New York until Sunday, when he leaves for Washington. Most of the other members of Israel's 40-member delegation for Monday's signing ceremony at the White House will leave Israel later.

President Sadat of Egypt is to arrive in the United States on Sunday. A planned stopover by Sadat in Spain has been canceled, and the Madrid press speculated it was because the Spanish government feared adverse reaction by the Arab nations that supply most of Spain's oil.

Israeli authorities said the Jerusalem bomb was hidden in a garbage can 30 feet from a line of persons waiting for taxis. The blast occurred near Zion Square, frequent scene of terrorist bombings.

The military command of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut, Lebanon, claimed responsibility for the bombing, saying it was intended to counter the treaty signing.

Arabs Furious
Arab nations, furious over the treaty, continued plans to derail it and to punish Sadat for coming to a bilateral agreement with Israel.

In London, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Hameed Khaddam said Friday that Syria and other Arab countries would foster efforts to overthrow Sadat.

"We shall help the Egyptian people to restore the legitimate situation in Egypt," he told reporters at the end of an official visit.

Iraq has called for a meeting of Arab League foreign ministers in Damascus, Syria, next Tuesday to invoke sanctions against Sadat, probably in the form of an economic boycott.

Iraq Warns Of War
Iraqi President Ahmed Hassan Al Bakr sent messages Friday to French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing as a leader of the European community, to William Gopallawa of Sri Lanka, head of the non-aligned movement, and to President Gaafar Nimeiri of Sudan, head of the Organization of African Unity, warning that the treaty would increase chances of a Mideast war.

He asked the three leaders to use their influence to block the signing.

In Israel, Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon confirmed that new Jewish settlements would be built in occupied territories after the treaty is signed.

Settlement officials said the government has allocated funds for three new outposts, and radio reports said Sharon will support the establishment of 10 new settlements in the fiscal year starting April 1.

Israeli news reports said Begin made a private deal with his coalition partner, the National Religious Party, to speed up development of Jewish settlements in exchange for their support of the treaty. The settlements will be in areas to be governed by autonomous Palestinian rule within 13 months of the treaty signing.

Sharon is one of two Cabinet members who will support the establishment of 10 new settlements in the fiscal year starting April 1.

Flood Aid Withheld In County

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IF A FLOOD should occur in Lubbock County, rural homeowners will be in serious trouble; the federal government won't provide financial assistance to help them recover from such a disaster.

Federal officials say the Lubbock County Commissioners Court is to blame for putting rural residents in that predicament.

The government has "taken sanctions" against the county because commissioners have refused to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, a spokesman for the program told The Avalanche-Journal.

Under the sanctions, he said, landowners and residents of unincorporated Lubbock County cannot obtain:

—Federal disaster relief funds in the event of major flood damage.

—Flood insurance, at federally subsidized rates, to protect their property against such calamities.

—Direct federal loans, from the Veterans Administration or Federal Housing Administration, to buy or build in areas identified as flood-prone by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"The repercussions are rather severe," said hydrologist Roy Sedwick of the Texas Department of Water Resources, the state agency helping implement the federal flood insurance plan.

"But we consider flooding to be a very serious problem. Here's a program that can protect citizens against floods. We strongly believe counties ought to make the program available to their residents," he said.

Private insurance companies do not offer flood insurance of their own, Sedwick said. So in 1969, the federal government established the National Flood Insurance Program.

The insurance is available only to residents of communities which agree to participate by regulating construction in flood-prone areas.

Federal officials approached Lubbock County about the program almost three years ago — and controversy has been raging ever since.

February Inflation Skyrockets To 15.4 Percent Annual Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by sharply higher food, fuel and housing costs, consumer prices increased 1.2 percent in February, the worst one-month rise in inflation in 4 1/2 years, the government said Friday.

The increase dealt the Carter administration's anti-inflation program another blow. The February figures showed inflation increasing at an annual rate of 15.4 percent, more than double the administration's goal of 7.4 percent.

Food prices increased 1.6 percent, led by a 4.9 percent rise in meat costs, while housing was up 1.3 percent, due partly to a 3.1 percent rise in mortgage interest costs.

"There is obviously nothing good that can be said about figures at this level," said White House press secretary Jody Powell. But he added that the economic conditions that created them built up over several years, "and it will take awhile to do something about them."

Two of the nation's top labor leaders said the administration's voluntary wage and price guidelines are not working and said workers cannot be blamed for seeking wages that keep up with prices. The February increase came on the heels of an 0.9 percent rise in prices in January.

"The only answer is full and complete controls on the price of everything and the income of everybody," said President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, who again demanded that Congress approve mandatory wage and price controls.

Frank Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters union, which is negotiating a key contract with truckers, issued a reminder that the union's willingness to comply with the 7 percent wage guideline depended on the administration's success in slowing rapid price increases.

"It puts me in my original position," he said of the February price report.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll, meanwhile, showed that an overwhelming 72 percent of Americans expect inflation to get worse over the next year. The poll of 1,600 persons was conducted prior to the release of the February price report.

Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation adviser, said it is too early to judge the president's program a failure, although he acknowledged, "I surely did not expect" that inflation would be as bad as it has become.

"I am still confident the rate will slow as the year goes on," he said.

Kahn also declared the administration will not resort to wage and price controls, but he disclosed that it will announce soon intensified monitoring of price increases by business. He also said the president will become more active in the program.

Kahn also said the administration would deny plans to impose wage and price controls even if it planned to impose them. "But I would not administer such a program — period," he said.

Kahn said he is convinced there is "widespread non-compliance" by business with the president's voluntary program, especially by small businesses.

Another high-ranking official, Lyle E. Gramley of the Council of Economic Advisors, said the program is "not working."

Area Weather Among Best

SNOW, FREEZING rain and powerful thunderstorms raked the nation from the Rockies to the Midwest Friday while Texans enjoyed a respite from a week of storms.

Emergency crews in four-wheel drive vehicles were out before dawn trying to restore power to 6,000 people in snowburied rural areas of eastern Colorado Friday.

Some rural residents were without electricity for 48 hours and some still awaited restoration of power late Friday.

On the South Plains, and through most of Texas, clearing skies and warmer temperatures dominated. More of the same is in store for today, according to the National Weather Service.

Friday's high in Lubbock was 59, and today's forecast is for a high in the upper 60s, with light and variable winds.

Mexican Plate 'To Go' Due For President

DALLAS (UPI) — When President Carter requested no-frills tamale dinners for his entourage this weekend in Texas, the local restaurateur chosen for the honor tried his best to dissuade him.

Tex-Mex is fine, said Chicharonos owner Gene Street, but how about something special. After all, it is the president of the United States.

"The regular old Mexican combination plate just isn't what you serve a man like that," he said.

But Carter's advance men were specific: The president wanted to sample some Tex-Mex tamales and enchiladas. He wanted 80 orders. He wanted them simple, nothing fancy. And he wanted them "to go."

Putting together 80 Tex-Mex dinners isn't difficult, even take-outs for Air Force One. But how about at least sending out for some special peppers.

"Nothing special," the advance man said. "That's the whole idea. The president wants to eat what all your other customers eat."

So Street has put in an order for the Mexican combination plate at $4 a head: beef and chicken enchiladas, tamales, bean and cheese nachos, refried beans and rice.

Chef Miguel Frias, whose U.S. citizenship papers came through just a few weeks ago, was thrilled at the honor of cooking for the president.

Good Rains Cheer Area Farmers

SOUTH PLAINS RAINFALL totals since last Saturday's stormy introduction of the tornado season reflect even greater dividends for area farmers than earlier anticipated.

Up to eight inches of rain over the six-day stretch should help soothe memories of anxious skywatching this week.

And even in those counties to the south of Lubbock where the rains were less general and productive, excellent ground moisture from the fall and winter is expected to set up an excellent crop year for farmers.

Farm observers say that farmers who irrigate their crops like to put between four and six inches of moisture into the soil during March, and that each inch of rainfall saves an inch of expensively-produced well water.

Reports of eight inches of rain came from parts of Floyd County, where water still stood deep in bar ditches late Friday.

Floydada had recorded 4.5 inches of rain and Lockney 4 inches by late Friday, while Petersburg, Cotton Center and Hale Center, to the west of Floyd County and north of Lubbock, reported 3.3, 2.5 and 1.5 inches, respectively.

Matador's moisture total may ease the inconvenience caused some of its residents when picture tubes of more than a dozen television sets were damaged by lightning bolts that struck homes during the week's storms.

Bob Stanley, of 1325 Eubanks Street in Matador, reported that one home was left without any operable electrical appliances after lightning blasted an 18-inch hole through the roof of a home a block east of his house.

Despite the general rainfall through most of Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Terry and Kent counties, moisture totals were less helpful in other counties.

In Dawson County, Lamesa netted only .35 of an inch of moisture, and in nearby Lynn County, O'Donnell pulled in only .25.

However, Leroy Colgan, former county agent for Dawson County expressed optimism for the southern county crops anyway.

"We have wonderful underground moisture this season," he said, "the moisture goes down to 4 inches in this area, from the fall and winter rains and snows." "Of course, in this area, we normally need a planting rain to hold the land and get the crop started, so we'll need rain the last of April or first of May, but if we get that, everything will be in ideal shape," he continued.

"If the planting rains come, we are in wonderful shape to make an excellent crop, unless hail or other problems get in the way." For dryland farmers, as one Anton farmer put it, "We've been thoroughly enjoying every drop of it." (Area rainfall breakdown on Page 18, Sec. A.)

Egyptian First Lady Expresses Support For Iranian Women

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Jihan Sadat, Egypt's activist first lady, said Friday she has "great appreciation and respect" for Iranian women who have taken to the street to demand equal rights and protest the wearing of the Moslem veil.

"I wanted to send them a cable but my secretary asked me 'To whom?'" she said the 44-year-old wife of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

"They stood firmly in such a way that we are all proud of them and were against these things which will bring them backward," she said in an interview with an Associated Press reporter in the sprawling garden of the Sadats' home on the Nile river side.

As her griffin hounds Beauty and Pepper romped on the lawn, Mrs. Sadat also said she fears impoverished Egypt could someday explode in turmoil the way Iran did.

The elegant first lady will accompany her husband to Washington for the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty on Monday. She said she would like to visit Jerusalem someday.

Mrs. Sadat, who has three daughters and a son, supports a civil rights bill to improve the situation of women in Egypt but said it has been shelved because of opposition from Islamic fundamentalists.

Young Egyptian women more and more are wearing the traditional veil, said Mrs. Sadat, who during the interview wore a stylish brown summer dress and brown boots.

Speaking in fluent English, smiling and joking about her busy schedule, she predicted that the veil would lift as the standard of living rose. Mrs. Sadat, one of the most active first ladies in the Middle East, is working on a master's thesis in Arabic literature and is active in promoting population control and charitable groups.

"The new generation, they are a little bit fanatic," she said of the growing religious fervor. "But when peace prevails it will help a lot."

She described the trend toward fundamentalism as natural. "You go to God when you are in difficulties."

This ancient land has suffered great difficulties in recent decades: four wars, grinding poverty and constant economic turmoil. Two years ago bloody riots broke out when the government removed food subsidies and prices shot upward.

Mrs. Sadat believes that if the economy does not improve her husband's popularity could not survive and Egypt could become another Iran, where a bloody revolution fed by Islamic orthodoxy deposed the shah.

rebuild the country and improve the standard of living."

Mrs. Sadat said she and President Sadat watched television in amazement as members of the Israeli Parliament heckled Prime Minister Menachem Begin with President Carter present last week.

"When we watched the Knesset debate, we were shocked really," she said. "What is going on?" she said they wondered. "When Carter came back we were confused and a little bit upset, to be honest."

She said her husband "had no doubts, never," that peace was possible, but "there were ups and downs all the time."

Mrs. Sadat said normal relations between Egypt and Israel would come gradually and that she was very concerned about the Palestinians.

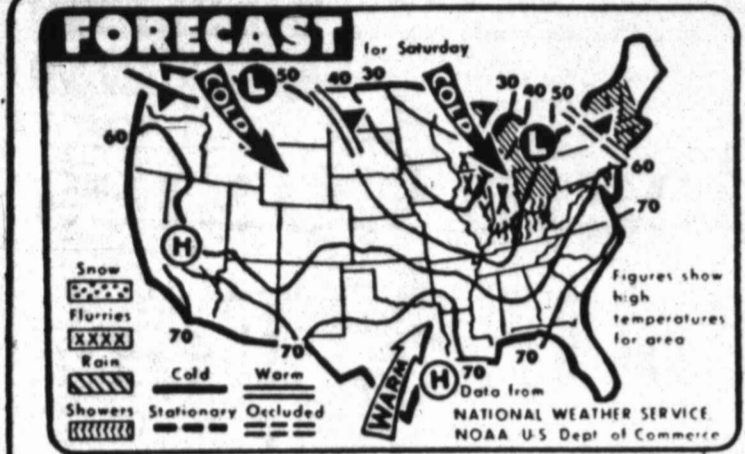

"I want them to be satisfied also so they will join with us later on," she said. "We want the Arabs to join us. It will come one day," she added, referring to Arab opposition to the treaty and threats against her husband.

"Since the revolution in 1952, we have been threatened all the time," she said. "Of course, we are expecting that after the peace treaty is signed that they will concentrate on this. But if you think too much about the threats you might as well stay home."

Illinois Prepares For More Flooding; Governor Appeals For Disaster Aid

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Residents of inundated communities along the swollen Illinois River filled sandbags and stood in boats to board up their windows Friday in anticipation of the area's worst flooding in history.

Hundreds of residents have fled to higher ground. Some businesses are closed, streets are covered with water and damage already is estimated in the millions of dollars.

Gov. James Thompson, who toured the area by helicopter earlier, asked the Small Business Administration to declare 26 counties disaster areas, enabling flood victims to apply for low-interest loans for repairs.

The Red Cross estimated that more than 2,000 persons have evacuated their homes in low-lying areas along a 100-mile stretch of the river between Hennepin and Beardstown.

Some communities have the look of isolated ghost towns with only the tops of roofs poking through the muddy floodwaters.

Barge traffic was halted. Huge logs and debris were floating in the swirling water and county officers were patrolling in boats to guard against looting.

"I've lived here 26 years and I ain't never seen nothing like this here before," said Butch Black of Liverpool, which was virtually deserted with most of its houses encircled by water.

The Illinois River on Friday was less than 1 inch below the record flood stage of 28.8 feet.

Crews worked around the clock all along the river sandbagging and shoring up levees damaged by wind and water. The river was expected to remain at high levels for several days even if there was no more rain.

could be devastating," Parr said as he toured flood-ravaged communities by boat. "Waves resulting from winds would knock a lot of these houses off their foundations. And the river could be far out of its banks for six or eight weeks."

Flooding at Norris Farms near Havana has inundated thousands of acres of farmland. Workers at the farm had been sandbagging low sections along the top of a permanent levee which was broken in the flood.

"But when it began going over the top they just gave up the fight," Parr said.

In rural Mantio south of Pekin, farmers began transferring grain to elevators on higher ground. Farmer Howard Sauder said he was shipping "as many hogs as possible" to the yards on high ground in Peoria.

Further north, 15 families have been asked to leave their homes in DeKalb due to the flooding Kishwaukee River, a swollen tributary of the Rock River.

Although there is no official flood stage for DeKalb, officials say the Kishwaukee was close to reaching the highest point in 50 years.

A levee 15 miles northeast of the Quad Cities burst overnight, sending a wall of water over the streets and around homes in Osborn. There were no injuries and residents were moving into and out of the area by boat or four-wheel drive vehicles.

Signing Celebration To Dwarf State Dinners

TREATY TABLE — This is a view of the eight-foot table in the White House Treaty Room which will be used for the signing of the Middle East peace treaty on Monday. The table was used in the cabinet room during the administration of President Grant and as recently as 1972 for the signing of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Workmen dug trenches Friday outside the $6,700 rented circus tent on the White House South Lawn. Inside the tent, others painted the poles green, built a stage and installed wiring for electric chandeliers.

These were a few of the preparations for a banquet to be given by President Carter for 1,300 guests Monday night after the signing of the peace treaty between Egypt and Israel on the front lawn of the White House.

Chief Usher Rex Scouten said it probably will be the most expensive state dinner in the history of the White House, but no one was willing to estimate the cost. A dinner of similar size was given in 1973 by President Richard M. Nixon, but costs have since escalated with inflation.

"It's a huge undertaking," said Scouten, who has spent most of the past three days inside the tent supervising about 30 workmen.

The red and yellow tent, measuring 100 by 180 feet, was rented from a company in suburban Rockville, Md. The tent was one of many special items obtained from outside the White House for the banquet, which will be 10 times the size of a normal state dinner.

"It's the largest tent that fits between the trees," Scouten said.

Four smaller yellow and white serving tents were set up nearby.

Because the White House is not stocked for such a mammoth dinner, china, crystal and silverware for 1,300 guests also will be rented, Scouten said. So will the round dining tables that seat 10 guests each.

The White House has its own staff of butlers, and 26 are required to serve guests at the normal-size state banquet. This time 260 butlers are needed, and they are being recruited from caterers and hotels in the Washington area, Scouten said.

In addition, three extra cooks will be brought in to help the three White House chefs prepare the Monday night meal of salmon, cheese straws, roast beef, vegetables, mousse, petit fours, demitasse and three California wines.

Scouten said the meat probably will be prepared at a local hotel.

The temperature forecast for the dinner is about 50 degrees — a bit chilly for evening wear. So special heating ducts are being installed in the tent to keep the guests warm.

The last time a dinner of this magnitude was held at the White House was in May 1973, when Nixon entertained 1,300 former prisoners of war and their guests under a huge tent on the South Lawn.

"It rained for four days," Scouten said. "We used carpets and burlap and everything we could to protect the grass. It was the first time I ever had people mopping grass."

This time, as a precaution, workmen dug trenches around the tent to divert the water if it rains.

Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and their wives will share one of the 130 forsythia-decorated tables under the tent Monday night.

Entertainment will be provided by Egyptian, Israeli and American artists.

Sadat has invited the musical trio of Omar Khorshed, Gamal Said Raheem and Mohamed Helmy Ameen to perform. Begin has invited violinist Itzhak Perlman and pianist Pinchas Zukerman. Carter has invited opera singer Leontyne Price.

The treaty signing will take place at 2 p.m. EST on the North Lawn of the White House facing Pennsylvania Avenue, a site rarely used for such ceremonial occasions.

About 1,500 persons, including every member of Congress, have been invited to see Begin and Sadat sign the peace accord at an historic walnut table which also was used to sign the peace protocol ending the Spanish-American War in 1898.

A demonstration sponsored by the Organization of Arab Students at Lafayette Park across the street from the White House was expected to attract about 1,000 persons.

Carter, who says he has invested hundreds of hours in mediating a peace settlement between Egypt and Israel, planned to meet separately with Begin and Sadat Monday morning. Just before the signing, the three leaders and their wives will have a private luncheon at the White House.

Investigation Probes Identity Of Killers

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Investigators from three nations joined forces Friday to try to track down the killers of a British ambassador and Belgian banker, and to determine whether the slayings were linked in an international plot of political murder.

British, Dutch and Belgian police officials were known to be checking the possibility that the Irish Republican Army was responsible for the slaying Thursday of British Ambassador Sir Richard Sykes in the Netherlands, and for the murder later Thursday of banker Andre Michaux in Brussels.

Unverified reports said the Irish guerrillas were responsible.

Dutch police said they were sure Sykes, cut down by two gunmen outside his home in The Hague, was the intended target of that attack. But Belgian authorities speculated that the two men who several hours later shot Michaux may have mistaken him for a neighbor, said to be an assistant to Britain's NATO representative.

Dutch police, noting Brussels is only a two-hour ride by train or car from The Hague, said it was possible the killings were carried out by the same assailants. They were huddling with Belgian authorities and with two agents sent to The Hague by Scotland Yard.

In Amsterdam, the daily newspaper De Telegraaf said Friday it received an anonymous call claiming Sykes was killed by the IRA, which is fighting to oust the British from Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, two newspapers reported receiving calls purporting to be from IRA Provisionals, the group waging the guerrilla war, saying both killings "could be the work of our groups, but if it is, we know nothing about it." In a subsequent check, however, Provisional sources denied such a statement had been made to the newspapers.

Sykes, 58, and his Dutch valet, Karel Straub, 20, were fatally shot by two gunmen as the envoy was preparing to drive from his home to his office.

Britain Eyes Conservative Win

LONDON (AP) — Stocks soared Friday on the London Stock Exchange as the nation headed toward a crucial confidence vote in Parliament that many Britons believe will topple the Labor government and clear the way for the Conservatives to take power for the first time in five years.

Boosted by the prospect of an end to socialist government in Britain, investors began pouring in buy orders as soon as the exchange opened its doors. The Financial Times industrial index, the main market indicator, jumped 20 points to end the day at 534.6.

"People are saying it does not matter what you buy, it's all going up," said an excited stock dealer.

But Prime Minister James Callaghan's minority Labor Party government played it cool and said it is confident of victory in a general election battle.

Margaret Thatcher, the Conservative

Party leader, decided Thursday night to put the Laborites to the test with a "no-confidence" vote in the House of Commons next Wednesday.

She says she is sure she can win with the help of the small parties in the Commons. If the Laborites cannot muster a majority to vote its confidence in the Callaghan government, a general election will be required.

The 53-year-old Mrs. Thatcher, who would be Britain's first woman prime minister, is relying on anti-Labor feeling generated by crippling strikes this winter in which cancer patients were turned away from hospitals and children from schools, garbage piled up in the streets, food shortages developed and the already shaky economy was further undermined.

The Labor Party is the political arm of the labor movement and traditional supporter of the workers against big business.

An Encounter Of Worst Kind

THE STORY was the sort of thing you would expect to read about an event somewhere else. We refer to the account of a rock concert this past Tuesday at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium...

one of the three bands performing had requested no uniformed officers be stationed near the stage, we do not think that is a decision to be left up to performers—or the customers. THIS IS NOT the first time so-called rock concerts have threatened to get out of hand in the city...

AN EDITORIAL:

TV's Definitive Alternatives

FEDERAL OFFICIALS have decided that their best chance to improve television viewing is to encourage alternative sources. It has become popular to criticize most television programs as unimaginative, too heavy on sex and violence, and created by a few isolated trendsetters...

This means 15 of the 30 stations affiliated with a network in the biggest dollar markets are owned by the networks and, consequently, hardly likely to do anything not in the best interests of the networks. Rep. Lionel van Deerlin, D-Calif., chairman of the House Communications Subcommittee...

Daily News Choked Off By Union Stranglehold

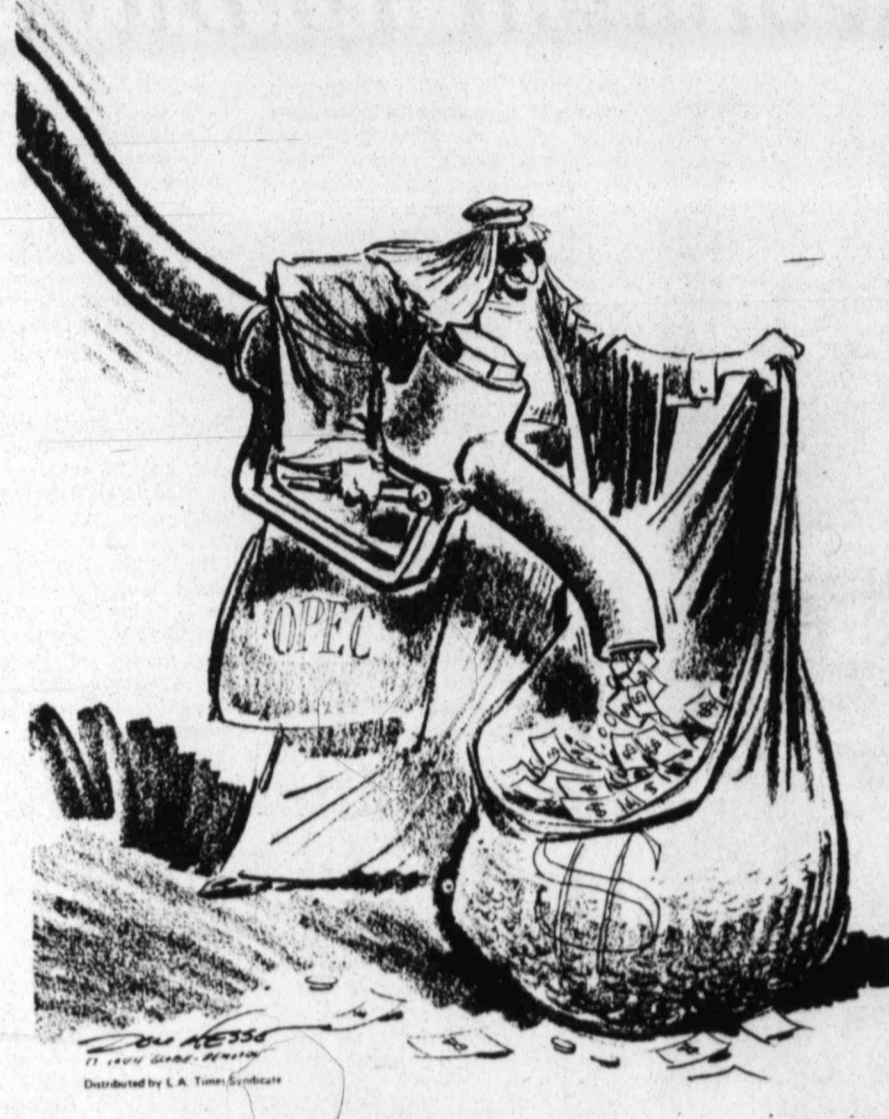

LONDON—Among the many object lessons it has to teach, the current experience of Great Britain suggests the great fragility of freedom. In particular, the recent trend of events in England exposes the fallacy of the view that a society can have a collectivized economy and still retain its political liberties...

fashion in which economic controls can lead by withholding some material element of the production process, the unions can stop the papers from conveying their message to the reading public. Political freedoms, in other words, are clearly dependent on economic ones. Now, however, the threat to freedom is growing even more explicit. The Labor government and the unions have moved to create a system of licensing, vesting potential power over all of British journalism in the hands of union leaders...

THESE PROBLEMS have arisen on the mechanical side of the papers, demonstrating the So They Say... The most important task of a journalist, and nobody espoused this better than Daniel Webster, is not to be popular but to try to be right. Nobody's perfect. Nobody has a monopoly on truth or on brains...

AS MISS Beloff points out, there is no longer any legal curb to prevent one single union from deciding who may write in British newspapers. Nor is that union, the NUJ, bashful about using its power. It already has exacted an agreement limiting intake into the profession from the colleges, moved to limit contributions by outside writers, and sought to harass journalists who resist its leadership...

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

King Of The 'Erode'

BOSTON—Growing expectation that Gov. Edward J. King will succeed after all in significantly lowering the incredible property tax burden in Massachusetts means that his revolution may be ending its Valley Forge phase, with prospects that could radically transform politics in the citadel of liberalism. It has been an exceedingly wintry beginning for King, who staged a new Boston Tea Party against taxation with his unexpected defeat of Gov. Michael Dukakis in last year's Democratic primary...

football lineman holding his first elective job may be emerging from Valley Forge. Although his property tax cut will be less than he promised or wants, chances now look good for lower tax bills later this year. That is the only true criterion of success for King's revolution, whose fate could influence other states where low economic growth and liberal political control have gone hand in hand. That revolution originated in the anti-tax uprising by the overburdened citizens of "Taxachusetts," but was not strictly limited to protests against being the most heavily taxed state...

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Shake Up In Malta

THE SOVIET vise is closing in on Malta, a strategic imperative for the U.S. Malta is to the Mediterranean what Cuba is to the Caribbean. Malta is really five islands: Malta, Gozo, Comino, Filfla and uninhabited Cominotto. They stand 58 miles south of Sicily and abut the narrow bottleneck channel along Africa's coast, 225 miles from Libya. A Soviet-sympathetic Malta means that, at any time, the USSR could drop the boom at the Mediterranean's absolute crossroads. NATO's entire southern flank would not be secure. Our great U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean could not freely function. "Mediterranean" means "Middle of the World." Except for Turkey, Israel, Egypt, Tunisia and Morocco, the vital Mediterranean's entire southern rim is hostile to the U.S. Algeria allows the Soviet to use the former French Mrs-el-Kerib naval and air base near Algiers. This establishes the Soviet within 200 miles of Gibraltar, crouching like a lion. The USSR is prepared to block the Gibraltar Strait and confront, or deny, the access of Western navies to the Mediterranean...

HE RECENTLY reiterated support for capital punishment. He is a cheerleader for private enterprise and he declares his intent to shrink the government machinery. "Everyone can't work for the government; now, they make an all-out effort here in Massachusetts, but they can't do it." King's creed is more than a hodgepodge of conservative rhetoric. He intends by friendlier treatment of business, new alternative sources of energy and reduced taxes to lure corporations back to Massachusetts; that in turn will generate more revenue and permit additional tax reduction. Liberal Democratic state Rep. Barney Frank, who supported King's Republican opponent, thinks the governor's program won't work but concedes, "it is an exceptionally coherent program for a politician." IT IS ALSO the last chance for Massachusetts, say politicians and businessmen who agree with the governor that the "fastest growing industry in Massachusetts is inefficient government."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Easy As A-B-D-C

CONGRESS COULD have saved a lot of time (not to mention money) on deciding whether Washington, D.C., deserves its own senators and representatives simply by doing a little browsing through the history books. The solution to the uproar is so simple you wonder why our fearless leaders didn't think of it themselves. (Unless, of course, you happen to be familiar with the thought processes of our fearless leaders.) Instead, it fell to two Maryland women to come up with the only suggestion that makes sense: Give Washington back to Maryland and have done with the whole silly squabble. No more devious debates on the constitutionality of the proposed 27th amendment, no more tortured explanations of why Washington deserves one of the privileges of a state, without becoming a state; no more racist fears over how the capital's heavily black population might try to influence Congress. AS NEWLY MINTED residents of Maryland, they would be represented by Sens. Charles Mathias and Paul Sarbanes, and by eight representatives, already elected and already on the job. Can you think of a simpler solution? I wish I could take credit for it, but it is the brainchild of Yvonne Lonschein and Katherine Connolly of Pikesville, Md., who offered it up in a letter to The New York Times. The ladies could not be reached for further documentation, but you can find it in your local library. But to save you the trouble, here's how it is: According to Louise Payson Latimer, author of "Your Washington and Mine," Congress, on July 16, 1790, passed a bill authorizing President Washington to choose a spot on the Potomac to be the permanent seat of the federal government. He could select any site he pleased, within a given 105-mile stretch. Although he knew the territory well, having hunted over it and surveyed it as a young man, Washington mounted his horse and rode the banks of the river. Finally, with the approval of Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, he picked the Maryland side. THEN HE GOT to thinking, and decided that both sides of the Potomac should become government territory. He also proclaimed that no buildings should be erected on the Virginia side. In what you might call the first federal land grab, Virginia, on Dec. 23, 1788, ceded her designated territory to the U.S. government. Shortly thereafter, Maryland did the same. They also agreed to help out with the building costs. Virginia voted a grant of $120,000 and Maryland, $72,000, and that, keep in mind, was a lot of cash in those days. (It might even have been what started Congress on a 191-year career of money-snatching.) That done, there was still the matter of paying off the landowners. All Maryland and Virginia had done was to renounce their jurisdiction over the land; the actual property rights remained with the owners. THOSE WORTHY fellows sold out for $66.67 per acre for land to be used for public buildings, made an outright gift of "all spaces to be occupied by streets and avenues," and dickered individually for the rest of their lots. Washington then called in the architects and things hummed along for the next 50 years or so, but only on the Maryland side. Business was bad on the Virginia side, barred as it was from sharing in the pork barrel of government building. Also, Miss Latimer records, the citizens "felt keenly the deprivation of political rights" they had enjoyed before Virginia ceded the land to the United States. They wanted to be part of their home state again. So, in 1846, Congress granted Virginia's request to take back its gift, leaving the entire capital on land that had once belonged to Maryland. Officially, that's called "an act of retrocession"—and it would work as well today for Washington's 700,000 voters as it did back in James Polk's day. ALL CONGRESS HAS to do is pass a law rescinding Maryland's gift. As near as anybody can figure out, Maryland cannot refuse to take it back. (The legal aspects get a little vague here.) And, as the ladies from Pikesville point out, it's much simpler for Congress to pass a law than it is to amend the Constitution. The only hitch in that argument is that registered Democrats in the capital outnumber Republicans 9-to-1. Under the 27th amendment, Congress would be pretty sure of picking up two more senators and a couple of representatives—and Congress is controlled by the Democrats. So much for simple solutions. L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On HOW WILL YOU ever be a successful radio-TV announcer, if you stumble over the pronunciations of such a simple speech as this? "Sheep shouldn't sleep in a shack. Sheep should sleep in a shed." No, say it faster. If a soldier could dig a slit trench as swiftly as a gopher can dig a tunnel, said soldier would be able to dig 300 slit trenches a night, thus to provide cover for the whole bloomin' outfit. Crackdown Omits Pending Bingo Bill

A bill pending in the Texas Legislature to take bingo games out of the realm of illegal gambling is not a consideration in the recently announced crackdown on bingo games in Lubbock County, a criminal district attorney's office spokesman said Friday.

David Nelson, chief of the misdemeanor or prosecution division, said the crackdown announced earlier in the week will be carried out so long as the law is in effect.

"As long as there's a law on the books that says it's against the law, it's our responsibility to enforce that law," Nelson said.

Noting that most bingo games are operated here "by charitable organizations and at public meetings for fellowship and not to gain a great deal of revenue," Nelson added, "I'm sure we've got personal opinions on gambling by charitable groups and organizations, but we've got to be able to set those aside and enforce the law."

He suggested that persons opposed to the law making bingo games operated by charitable groups illegal write their legislative representatives and ask that the law be changed.

8-Year-Old Reportedly Molested

Police Friday night were investigating a report of by an 8-year-old girl who said she was sexually molested.

The girl told officers she was assaulted by a Mexican-American youth just after 4 p.m. at a residence in the 2000-block of Fifth Street. Reports show the suspect was between 13 and 15 and was last seen on a red bicycle.

Checks and cash totaling $950 were reported missing Friday from a tire company at 1302 50th St. Manager Michael D. Smith said the burglary occurred Thursday night and the intruders apparently gained entry to the firm through an overhead door.

Timmy Daniel Beard of Abernathy said that between 10 a.m. and noon Friday two rifles were taken from his locked vehicle, parked in the 1500-block of East Broadway. Reports show that entry to the 1972 Ford pickup truck was gained by prying open the right side vent window to unlock the door. Beard estimated the loss at $250.

A shotgun, clothing, stereo equipment and a Dunbar High School class ring were reported missing from the 1331 E. 25th St. residence of Raphael Dion Scott. Scott told police his home was ransacked during the break-in, which netted the intruders an estimated $425 in property.

A 24-year-old Lubbock man was in Health Sciences Center Hospital this morning with a gunshot wound in the chest.

Marvin Jackson of 709 Ave. R, Apt. 21, reportedly was shot about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by one of three black women who came to his residence wanting to fight his female companion.

He was reported in satisfactory condition by hospital personnel.

Reports show the women came to the apartment demanding that Jackson's friend come out and fight. When she refused, one of the women reportedly fired three times at the house — twice through a window and once through the front door.

Jackson was hit by a small-caliber bullet that came through the door, according to police.

The three women, two in their late teens or early 20s and the other between 35 and 45, were taken to the police station and questioned. However, police say no arrests had been made by early today in connection with the incident.

In a holdup reported Thursday afternoon, Lester J. Inkam, 71, of 4905 12th St. said he was robbed of a bank bag containing a $100 watch by a tall, muscular black man.

Inkam told police he got out of his car about 3:25 p.m. and was walking to the side of his house to pick up some trash when the man approached and asked directions to the 4900-block of Vicksburg Avenue.

Inkam said the man then put his hand in his pocket, pushed something against his stomach and knocked him to the pavement.

The man grabbed the bank bag from Inkam and ran east from the residence and then south on Vicksburg, according to reports. The bandit was described as between 26 and 35 years old, wearing a blue coat, blue or gray pants and black shoes.

Alvis Ray Sanders, 28, of 2721 E. Colgate St. told police a man standing outside his house about 2:30 a.m. today threatened, "I'll kill all you in there," then fired a gun into the residence.

Sanders said the man and another person were inside his house when the suspect became angry and hit a coffee table, knocking off a gun which was on top of the table. He said the man picked up the weapon, went outside and fired four or five rounds.

The suspect, who fled east after the incident, was described as a tall, young black man, wearing a blue cap and blue shirt and pants.

A 29-year-old Lubbock woman reportedly was beaten by her ex-husband about 1 a.m. Friday outside a club in the 300-block of North University Avenue.

When police arrived, they found the victim's eyes bruised and bleeding. She also reportedly sustained injuries to the abdomen, jaw and thigh, and was taken to Methodist Hospital, where she was treated and released.

An 18-year-old Big Spring woman was arrested by city police about 1:45 a.m. Friday after she allegedly went berserk inside a North University Avenue club and shattered bottles containing about $1,800 worth of liquor.

The club manager told police the woman became hysterical, walked behind the bar and started breaking bottles and knocking down shelves. The woman was taken to the county jail.

The woman told authorities she had been assaulted by the manager and a bouncer when she was made to leave the nightclub.

Ricky Rangel of 2108 28th St. said he came home about 11 p.m. Thursday and found his place burglarized and more than $700 in property stolen.

A break-in at Ruben A. Champion's 402 39th St. residence between 7:30 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. Thursday netted burglars $1,450 in property, including a TV set, radio, tape player and Home Box Office television accessory.

Dean Trotter of 6410 Fourth St. said he lost a stereo, tools and hair dryer, totaling $1,755, when his place was burglarized between 6:30 a.m. and 2:55 p.m. Thursday.

Albert Lee Williams said the back door of his 2917 E. Baylor St. residence was pried Thursday morning, the house ransacked and $2,000 worth of property, including two televisions, four guns, clothing, stereo equipment and tools, stolen.

DIANNA JANE BOMAN

Dianna Jane Boman

Services for Dianna Jane Boman, 29, of Clifton will be at 2 p.m. Sunday in Sanders Memorial Chapel with the Rev. Ross Spencer, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Red Mud Cemetery in Spur under direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

Mrs. Boman, a former Lubbock resident, died in an automobile accident near Clifton Thursday.

Survivors include a son, Jimmy Don Bolt of Clifton; two daughters, Melody and Sherry Bolt, both of Clifton; her mother, Margaret Hill of Lubbock, a brother, Don Hill of Lubbock; a sister, Susan McLearn of Lubbock; and a grandmother, Cora James of Lubbock.

Willis E. Burgess

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Services for Willis E. Burgess, 82, of Plainview will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Timeon Funeral Home Chapel in Perry, Iowa.

Burial will be in Violet Hill Cemetery under direction of Timeon Funeral Home.

Burgess died Thursday at the Care Inn here following a brief illness.

A native of Tullon, Ill., Burgess lived in Perry and Colorado before moving to Lubbock in 1976. He moved from Lubbock to Plainview in February. He was a retired manager for White Trucking Co.

Survivors include two daughters, Beatrice Wood of Wichita, Kan., and Barbara Finger of Albuquerque, N.M.; a son, J. E. "Jim" of Plainview; a brother, Tom of Eagle Group, Iowa; five grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

Sylvester Kilpatrick

Services for Sylvester Kilpatrick, 37, of 1810 Third St., Apt. 228, will be at 2 p.m. today in Bethel AME Church with A.W. Wilson, pastor, assisting the Rev. Charles Tanner, who will officiate.

Burial will be in City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Sedberry Funeral Chapel.

Kilpatrick died Tuesday afternoon in Methodist Hospital of a gunshot wound he received about 2:15 a.m. March 17 in front of a club in the 2300-block of East 37th Street. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack ruled the death a homicide.

Mayor Of Plains Indicted On Counts Of Embezzlement

PLAINS (Special) — The mayor of Plains, who also is an officer at Plains State Bank, was indicted Thursday on seven counts of embezzlement by a federal grand jury.

Ben E. Pate was indicted on five counts of misapplication of funds and two counts involving "certain false entries" in bank records.

He appeared Friday in Lubbock before U.S. magistrate Bill Brister, who released the mayor on a personal recognizance bond and set a May 14 trial date for Pate.

Officials refused to disclose the amount of money involved.

First Assistant City Attorney Selected

Don Vandiver has been named first assistant city attorney. City Attorney John Ross announced Friday.

Vandiver, an assistant city attorney since October 1972, is a former reporter for The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and newspapers in Amarillo and Austin.

He replaces Ken Jones who resigned earlier this month to enter private practice.

Vandiver, 33, received his law degree from Texas Tech University in 1972 and received an undergraduate degree in English literature from the University of Texas.

As assistant city attorney, Vandiver has handled legal work for 13 city departments, including the police department, fire department, health department and Lubbock Power and Light.

WILD FLIERS

The dark meat of the turkey is dark because it has been well supplied with blood vessels. The white meat of the breasts — the muscles that power the wings — indicates that bred-for-eating turkeys are weak fliers at best. Wild turkeys, on the other hand, may be able to fly a mile, hitting a speed of 45 mph.

Interstate Gas Tax Endorsed To Favor State College Fund

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he endorses "in principle" a bill taxing interstate gas to endow a special fund for state college construction.

"It has a lot of appeal," Clements told his weekly news conference.

The bill would change the way Texas taxes natural gas, from 7 1/2 percent of market value to a flat rate of 12 1/2 cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf).

Sponsors say this would increase taxes on gas sold out-of-state while not affecting those paid by Texans. The added revenue would endow a $360 million State Higher Education Assistance Fund (SHEAF) for construction and repairs at state colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

After two years, the natural gas tax would revert to 7 1/2 percent of market value unless the Legislature decided to continue the flat rate.

Clements said he told one sponsor, Rep. Wayne Peveo, D-Orange, "I would support it as he would develop the details." Clements said Peveo had asked Attorney General Mark White for an opinion on the bill's constitutionality.

Clements' news was not so good for sponsors of a House-passed bill authorizing state payments of up to $15,000 a year toward salaries of medical residents in teaching hospitals. The bill would subsidize eight hospitals by a total of $30 million annually.

He said he would look carefully at the bill, if it passes the Senate, before deciding whether to sign it. He said cities and counties agreed to operate the hospitals as a condition for getting medical schools built in their communities.

"The cities that undertook those obligations did it with careful forethought. I don't think we should change the rules in the middle of the game," he said.

On another legislative matter, Clements said emphatically, "I will!" when asked if he would call a special session should legislators fail to submit a constitutional amendment on initiative and referendum.

The amendment would enable voters to repeal legislative enactments and to vote directly on new state laws without going through the Legislature.

Clements announced that Dr. George Race, associate dean for continuing medical education at the University of Texas medical school in Dallas, would be his special adviser on human and animal disease control programs.

Specifically, he said, Race would look into the "failure" of the brucellosis control program and "see if we can't turn that program around."

Clements said the best alternative appeared to be mandatory vaccination of all calves against the disease, which causes cows to give birth to stillborn offspring.

Clements said he had talked with Comptroller Bob Bullock about the failure of the sales tax and natural gas tax to live up to Bullock's revenue forecasts for the past six months.

He said, however, that what looked at first like a potential $500 million to $600 million shortfall in revenue "may not be that after all."

Sales tax collections increased 5.8 percent, short of the anticipated growth of 13.2 percent, he said, and natural gas tax revenues are "flattening" because of a leveling in prices.

But, Clements added, "there are some others that are up, so there should be a net balance."

Walter Lillie, the comptroller's chief of research, said he was "still basically optimistic about the Texas economy."

Clements acknowledged that he has the Department of Public Safety make a "security check" of employees of his office and his nominees to posts on state boards and commissions.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union issued a statement saying the practice "smacks of a Nixonian paranoia and all of the abuses that followed."

But Clements said it was simply a records check to determine whether a job applicant, employee or appointee had ever been convicted of a crime. He said he would not rule out hiring an ex-convict but this would "depend on the sensitivity of the job."

He denied having bankers pressure senators to vote this week for confirmation of W.B. "Monk" Edwards to a Houston district judgeship. Edwards was rejected by two votes. Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said his banker had pressured him to vote for Edwards.

"If Mr. Brooks' banker applied pressure on him, I suggest he get another banker," Clements said. He added that he called five or six senators himself, "and I have no apologies to make for that. That is in the normal course of events, and I expect to do that in the future."

Clements again said he was "still thinking about" what position he should take toward bills creating a presidential primary and raising the interest ceiling on mortgage loans from 10 percent to 12 percent.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This day and evening have two powerful influences in effect. The first demands that you do nothing of a drastic nature. But secondly, you are under excellent aspects for relying upon your intuitive perceptions and gain much.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Look into some new outlet that will give you added income so that you need not worry so much about bills. Don't argue with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Not a good day to confer with associates, since there could be big arguments arising. Be busy at work at hand and accomplish much.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Study a new project that will help you to advance. Forget dull duties that yield you nothing. Listen to what one of character has to suggest so you have greater happiness in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Keep focused on your work and do an efficient and exact job so that your benefits increase. Improve your diet if you want your health to be better.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Be more optimistic where your partners are concerned and cement better relations with them, become more successful. Use a more up-to-date system that will improve the quality of your work.

VIRGO (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Contact those who can assist you to do a better job at your work, but don't spend money foolishly. Be cheerful and impress them favorably. Make sure you pay bills on time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Contact those who can assist you to do a better job at your work, but don't spend money foolishly. Be cheerful and impress them favorably. Make sure you pay your bills on time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): If you listen to what home ties have to suggest, you can add much to present abundance now. Your own ideas are to advanced to use now. Make a favorable impression on newcomers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Go ahead with ideas you have since your thinking is clear and so is your vision. Go after the information you need at right sources. Don't permit a personal worry to deter your progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Seek out an expert who can assist you where practical affairs mean much to you. Don't listen to a well-meaning friend who has little know-how. Try to control your temper or you get into big trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Pay attention to what an honest friend has to suggest and forget that bigwig who is too busy to help you. Follow rules that apply to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Stop concentrating on troublesome affairs and get busy on the constructive, show you are a conscientious citizen. A higher-up can be helpful to you in the future but avoid a new contact.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be a born philosopher and have most enlightened thoughts, so be sure to screen playmates so that your progeny will not get in with the wrong company and upset the fine promise here. This can be a successful life, especially in foreign countries.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

BALLOON MAIL

The French created the first postal system of modern times in 1450 and launched air mail over a century ago. A balloon carrying 500 pounds of mail soared aloft from Paris on Sept. 23, 1870, during the Franco-Prussian War. Because the free-floating balloons landed in the Prussian camp, Parisians soon switched to pigeons. Before Paris capitulated, the birds delivered some 115,000 messages to the surrounded city despite German efforts to intercept the mail with hunting falcons.

Officials Hopeful Of Renewed Baltimore Canyon Drilling

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Exploratory drilling off the mid-Atlantic coast is in a lull now with only six rigs working and one of them almost ready to leave.

But after nearly a year of work and 10 dry holes, federal officials believe there will be more wildcat wells offshore this summer.

Exxon, Mobil, Gulf, Texaco and Tenneco continue to drill for oil and natural gas between 80 and 105 miles off the coast of New Jersey and Delaware. Three other oil companies — Shell, Continental and Houston Oil & Minerals — have dropped out of the search for now.

Exxon began the hunt nearly a year ago on March 29, 1978, when its leased drillship Glomar Pacific dropped anchors and began drilling about 101 miles off the coast. That well went to 17,820 feet and came up dry last December.

Drilling reached a peak about two months ago when nine rigs were working above the promising geological formation. At that time, Shell and Houston Oil & Minerals were still working on what proved to be dry holes in February.

In addition, Chevron had a drillship in 2,640 feet of water about 81 miles south-east of here working a test well for a number of oil companies. A "significant" strike of gas was reported in January. The experimental well, drilled only to explore geological formations, was soon abandoned.

The U.S. Geological Survey expects two or three rigs to return to the area in late summer to begin work on new tracts leased by the government on Feb. 28.

In that sale, the oil industry showed its pessimism in the Baltimore Canyon by bidding only $41.7 million for 44 of the 109 nine-square-mile tracts offered.

Here is where the drilling stands this weekend:

•Exxon is now working two wells about 95 miles and 101 miles east of this resort. The semi-submersible rig New Epoch, the closer of the two, was drilling below 15,400 feet on a planned 18,000-foot well and had stopped drilling for minor repairs. The semi-submersible Semi I was reported below 12,700 feet at a spot less than two miles from Exxon's first failure.

•Gulf's semi-submersible New Era is nearing completion of a 12,800-foot well about 80 miles east of Atlantic City. Gulf officials say they will leave the area for now if this hole is dry. Gulf had a dry hole about 20 miles to the southeast in January.

•Mobil has drilled some 10,100 feet of a planned 14,000-foot well about 100 miles east of Cape May. The semi-sub-mersible Western Pacesetter III is about 35 miles south of the first Mobil dry hole announced in December.

•Tenneco's Zapata Uglund semi-submersible is drilling at 13,700 feet on its first well, which is planned for 19,000 feet about 102 miles east of Atlantic City.

•Texaco, which reported the only substantial gas strike, is about to begin its third well. The semi-submersible Ocean Victory, which had a "significant gas find" about 106 miles east of here last August, will work the same tract as Tenneco about three miles south of the strike. This and a second well, which came up dry 12 days ago, are meant to determine the size of the gas reservoir.

Aides Prep Senators On Energy Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter dispatched his top energy and economic aides to the Capitol Friday for a two-hour brainstorming session with senators on his upcoming energy program.

Although senators emerged from the session claiming the administration still has not made any hard decisions on what the plan will contain, one participant, Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said it will almost surely call for phased decontrol of crude oil prices.

And Ford said there is a good chance that Carter, in his March 29 address to the nation, will call for some general kind of tax on excess oil industry profits while leaving details entirely up to Congress.

Meeting with senators were Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Budget Director James McIntyre and White House domestic affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat.

"They kept bouncing ideas off us," said Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H. "They did not unveil any concrete proposals and I got the impression that a decision has not been made."

Durkin said that although decontrol of crude oil prices was the chief item under discussion at the meeting, no consensus was reached on whether the president was prepared to lift the price lids on June 1, when he gains that authority under existing law.

However, Ford said he had a "gut feeling" as a result of the session that administration officials had already made the decision to begin lifting oil price controls — an action which, if taken after June 1, does not require congressional approval.

Other senators attending the session included Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia and Sens. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas; and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

According to participants, administration officials at the session disclosed that the items they are considering recommending to the president include:

—Possibly a mandatory program requiring oil companies to begin marketing gasoline — a gasoline-alcohol blend.

—Development of two $700 million plants to transform coal into clean-burning synthetic fuels — one in Kentucky and the other in West Virginia — instead of the current plant to support one but not both of these projects.

—Establishment of a "North American Energy Alliance" to oversee agreements between Mexico and the United States on gas and oil imports.

Energy Leadership Predicts $2 Gasoline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned American motorists Friday that the price of gasoline is likely to soar to more than $2 a gallon over the next 10 years.

His grim picture of motorists forced to pay 300 percent more for gasoline came in congressional testimony on a government proposal to develop a fuel-saving car of the future.

"We must anticipate that oil prices will probably triple in the next decade," Schlesinger told the Senate Commerce Committee.

Regular gasoline currently is costing an average of about 71 cents a gallon.

On an optimistic note, he said drivers should manage to get through this spring without "major spot shortages" of gasoline. "We are not in any danger at this time," he said.

But he warned of possible gas shortages as Americans take to the highways to reach beaches, campgrounds and resorts during summer's heavy travel months. "There might be some spot shortages this summer, particularly of unleaded gasoline during the peak travel weeks," he said.

Turbulent Iran, the focal point of the latest oil crisis, exported 5.5 million barrels a day of petroleum before the nation's new revolutionary rulers shut the tap last December.

But Schlesinger noted that other nations stepped up oil exports by 2.5 million barrels to meet some of the shortage and Iran recently resumed fuel shipments — although at less than half the old level.

He warned, however, that Iran's oil output is "unpredictable," with the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini challenged by leftists, separatists, liberals and feminists.

He made his comments during hearings on Transportation Secretary Brock Adams' call for a $500 million program to invent an auto able to travel up to 50 miles on a gallon of gasoline — or some other fuel.

Adams said the development of a "socially responsible" car to deal with America's energy troubles is "technologically feasible."

Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, called for a five-year "national goal" to develop an energy efficient auto "just as John Kennedy proclaimed the moon landing in 1961."

Elk City Rolling Out Red Carpet For Carter

DISCUSSING SUNDAY'S SERMON FOR CARTER — Dr. John Dugger, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Elk City, Okla., discusses the sermon he will deliver Sunday when President Carter is slated to attend services in the church. Dugger, who is expecting about 900 regular members to pack the 850-seat capacity church, says he will try to conduct the services as he would any other Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

ELK CITY, Okla. (AP) — Unless some opponents surface at the last minute, President Carter may get the impression when he visits Elk City today and Sunday that everyone in this booming western Oklahoma area voted for him.

He did carry Beckham County in 1976, but President Ford also had strong support throughout western Oklahoma while carrying the state's eight electoral votes by a slim 13,000-vote margin.

Carter will be presiding over a nationally televised "town meeting" and attending church services here to fulfill an old campaign promise, and city officials say if he thought he was popular here when he was just a candidate, wait until he sees the welcome mat this time.

Red, white and blue placards and signs proclaiming "Elk City Loves Jimmy Carter" adorn this city of about 10,000 persons, and crews of volunteers were going to work right up to the president's arrival to make sure everything was spotless for his visit.

Representatives of the American Agriculture Movement want to publicly protest the president's farm policies, but they have not been able to get city officials to give them a permit to demonstrate.

Carter was a little-known Democratic presidential candidate in November of 1975 when he made his first visit to Elk City, but he received a royal welcome and was so impressed he promised to come back after he was elected.

Some campaign promises are forgotten, but that one was not. Democratic Gov. George Nigh remarked several weeks ago that Carter was trying to work out the details of a visit to Oklahoma.

Asked if it would include Oklahoma City and Tulsa, the two big cities which generally attract politicians of national stature, Nigh said, "All I know is he definitely is going to Elk City. He told me he wasn't treated any better anywhere during his campaign than he was in Elk City."

Nigh said Carter "told me he had made a commitment to the people of Elk City and he was going to keep it the first chance he got, the first time he visited Oklahoma again."

This will be Carter's first trip back to Oklahoma since his election, and if the residents of Oklahoma City and Tulsa want to see him in person, they'll have to go to Elk City.

He is scheduled to arrive at the Clinton-Sherman Air Park at nearby Burns Flat at 6:30 p.m. today, then go by motorcade to the Elk City High School gymnasium where he will preside over a town meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The 1,100 persons attending the town meeting were chosen by a lottery. Some, whose names were entered by relatives in the Elk City area, may come from as far away as California and Virginia.

A select few questioners will be chosen to represent the group, and the president will answer as many questions as the hour-long meeting permits.

Following the town meeting, Carter will meet with members of the state Democratic Party Executive Committee, then go to the home of Elk City Mayor Larry Wade to spend the night.

Wade, publisher of the Elk City Daily News, has been a long-time Carter booster. He jumped on the Carter bandwagon before the crowd started gathering and was a Carter delegate to the Democratic National Convention.

Carter will leave the Wade home Sunday in time to reach the First Baptist Church of Elk City for 10 a.m. services.

After church, he will return to the airport and leave at 11:30 a.m. for Dallas, where he will address the annual meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters Sunday.

St. Luke's Methodist To Consecrate Sanctuary

Church News

Bishop Alsie H. Carleton, resident bishop of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference and the New Mexico Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, will formally consecrate the new sanctuary of St. Luke's United Methodist Church during the 10:55 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Assisting the bishop in the formal consecration will be the Rev. Carlton Thompson, acting superintendent of the Lubbock District and the district superintendent of the Plainview district, Dr. Lloyd Hughes, acting district superintendent of Lubbock and district superintendent of Big Spring, and Dr. William Fleming, pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church. Music for the service will be led by Robert M. Wert. Bishop Carleton has served as a delegate to the World Methodist Conference, Jurisdictional Conference and General Conference. He is president of the General Board of Pensions, a member of the Executive Committee of Council of Bishops, the jurisdictional Council on Finance and Administration, and is a trustee of many universities throughout the Southwest.

He was ordained in the Methodist Church in 1938 and was elected a bishop at the South Central Jurisdictional Conference July 25, 1968.

A project of more than 14 months, the new addition to St. Luke's United Methodist Church includes the sanctuary with adjoining business offices and a choir assembly area.

The sanctuary and balcony area contains 13,200 square feet of floor area while the business offices contain 2,604 square feet. The new facility is designed by architect Bill Box to be compatible with existing structures and is constructed of masonry and structural steel. Covered walk areas tie the new facility to the existing buildings and parking areas.

The sanctuary foyer features an up-turned ceiling with light cove and faceted glass windows. Incorporated into the foyer design are full length windows between the foyer and sanctuary to allow visual contact with the chancel area.

The sanctuary features a fan-shaped seating pattern which focuses on the chancel area with the choir located to the side of the congregation. The seating pattern allows more than 800 people to be within 55 feet of the chancel area. The sanctuary is highlighted by symbolic faceted ribbon glass windows, cross and dove oak structures at the chancel and a 200-square-foot faceted glass skylight above the main seating area.

The entire structure is finished with carpet and a variety of wall finishes and natural wood tones.

The completion of the sanctuary ends this phase of construction for the church, which is located at 44th Street and Memphis Avenue. Future building plans include the addition of a chapel and Sunday School rooms.

The first worship service was held in the new sanctuary Feb. 4. The formal consecration Sunday will be the first visit by the bishop since the congregation began worship in the sanctuary.

Bible Translators Banquet Scheduled

A local Wycliffe Bible Translators banquet will be at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Holiday Inn to celebrate the completion of Wycliffe's 100th New Testament.

Copies of the Amuesha New Testaments, translated by Martha Duff Tripp and Mary Ruth Wise, will be shown at the banquet. Miss Tripp and Miss Wise have worked with the Amuesha tribe in Peru for several years.

The program will feature Ralph Happers, missionary guest speaker, who will present highlights of Wycliffe's ministry, personal tribal experiences, and the accelerated program of Wycliffe as it expands or moves into the countries of Surinam, Ghana, Cameroon, Bangladesh and Pakistan.

The banquet and program are sponsored by Wycliffe Associates, the lay ministry of Wycliffe Bible Translators. Further information about the ministry or banquet may be obtained by calling Gwin Harris at 799-2589.

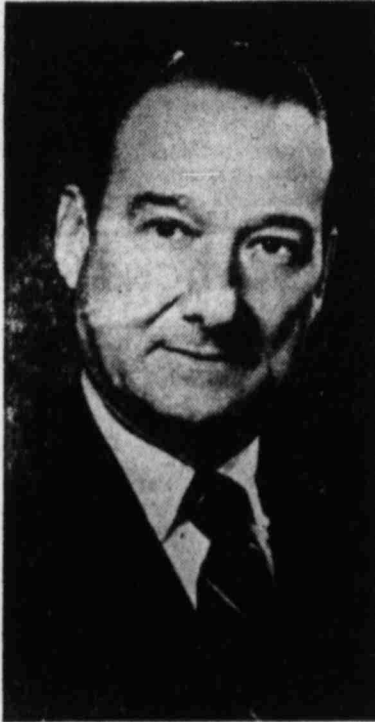

Quaker Avenue Church Sets Gospel Meetings

Quaker Avenue Church of Christ will present evangelist George Gray of Fort Worth in a series of gospel meetings April 1-4.

Services April 1 will be at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. An early morning service will be held at 7 a.m. each weekday with coffee and doughnuts served in the church's fellowship hall. Weekday evening services will be held at 7:30 p.m.

Gray has for many years been resident minister of the Baker Boulevard Church of Christ in Fort Worth and has held gospel meetings in Lubbock in past years.

Quaker Avenue Church of Christ is located at the intersection of 17th Street and Quaker Avenue.

BISHOP ALSIE H. CARLETON

Southcrest Church Sets Evangelist For Revival

Southcrest Baptist Church, 4810 Ave. P. is holding a revival Sunday through April 1 with Rev. Larry Walker as evangelist and Larry Russell as music evangelist.

Services are slated daily at 11:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the church. The 11:45 a.m. services Monday through March 30 is a free luncheon and Bible study for businessmen and workers.

Rev. Walker is staff evangelist of the First Baptist Church in Dallas. He is past host for Protestant Profile on ABC television network, host for youth panel shows on NBC television network, commentator on Southern Baptist Convention Radio-Television Commission programs "Master Control," "OmniScope," and "Powerline." He is a member of the New York chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

Rev. Walker graduated from Baylor University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He pastored several churches for a total of 10 years. Russell is minister of music at First Baptist Church in Dalhart.

Ranchvale Baptist Church In Clovis Has New Pastor

A-J Correspondent CLOVIS, N.M. — The Rev. Roy Vest has been selected as new pastor of Ranchvale Baptist Church.

He comes to Ranchvale from Lovington, N.M., where he was minister of education and youth at the Jackson Avenue Baptist Church. Before holding that position, he held the same post at the First Baptist Church in Portales.

The Ranchvale church is Vest's first full-time pastorate. The Ranchvale Baptist Church is located six miles north of Cannon Air Force Base. The community was named Ranchvale in 1916 when a post office was established in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Tate to serve the homesteaders of the area.

A school was built one mile south of the present site of Ranchvale. When a new grade school and high school were built in 1920-21 the name Ranchvale remained for the community.

On Aug. 14, 1921, when the Baptist church organized in the new Ranchvale School building, it was named Ranchvale Missionary Baptist Church of Christ.

It later affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention and was known simply as Ranchvale Baptist Church.

From 1920-1943 the Methodists and Baptists in the community worshipped together as a community church. The two groups took turns every other Sunday and held revivals for both denominations during the summer.

In 1943 the Baptists began building a church of their own across the road from the school. It was finished and dedicated Easter Sunday of 1944.

The first fulltime pastor was Rev. H.E. Bergstrom, who is now pastor of the First Baptist Church in Portales.

Despite the drop of farm population in the area in prior years, the church continued to grow, according to a church spokesman. Cannon Air Force Base became larger, and many of the Air Force families stationed there began to attend the rural church. Today more than half of the 200 members of the church are military.

In 1976-77 a large education building was added to the original building and two former army barracks which had been in use for classrooms were removed.

Today the church is a brick building on a corner across from the Ranchvale School.

Vest is a graduate of Wayland Baptist College in Plainview with a bachelor of science degree in psychology. He has a master's degree in education, counseling and guidance from Eastern New Mexico University at Portales.

Vest grew up in Midland and his wife, Susan, was raised in Albuquerque. They met while attending Wayland and Mrs. Vest hopes to complete her bachelor's degree in home economics and music. They have two daughters, Lynette and Melody.

The church's services Sundays begin with church school at 8:45 a.m. CST, worship service at 10 a.m. CST, church training at 5 p.m. CST and evening worship at 6 p.m. CST.

Vest said the services are geared to all age groups and the church provides nursery facilities.

Seminary Leader Booked For Sunday Meetings

Dr. Milton Ferguson, president of Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City, Mo., will be the pulpit guest for both morning services at 8:15 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. Sunday at First Baptist Church, Broadway and Avenue V.

Dr. Ferguson is an Oklahoma native, graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He also attended Texas Christian University and did post-doctoral research at Yale University. Prior to February, 1973, when he assumed his present position, he served as a professor in the School of Theology at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

He was ordained by First Baptist Church in Harrah, Okla., in 1948 and since 1950 has conducted more than 125 revivals and evangelistic efforts in churches, on college campuses and in city-wide campaigns.

He has served as associate pastor of Crown Heights Baptist Church in Oklahoma City and pastored the Hebron Baptist Church in Hebron. He also served interim pastorates at the First Baptist Church in Lawton, Okla.; First Baptist Church in Stillwater, Okla.; Wilshire Baptist Church and Hampton Place Baptist Church in Dallas; First Baptist Church in Vernon; First Baptist Church in Corpus Christi, and the Broadway Baptist Church in Fort Worth.

During his tenure as president of Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, which is one of six graduate professional schools training men and women for church leadership in the denomination, the seminary has set enrollment and financial records and long-range improvement and construction programs have been established and partially executed.

During the past six years, he has served terms as secretary and chairman of the Council of Southern Baptist Seminary Presidents and has traveled extensively speaking at the Southern Baptist Convention, state Baptist conventions, evangelism conferences, university and college commencements, as well as general church and denominational engagements. In 1976 he was vice president of the Association of Southern Baptist Schools and Colleges.

Dr. Ferguson is a member of the American Academy of Religion, the Southwestern Association of Religion and the American Society of Phenomenology.

He and his wife, the former Bettie Fae Wiles, were married in 1951. They have three daughters.

Churches Realign Boundaries

Companerismo Emanuel, one of 21 fellowships of Spanish-speaking Southern Baptist congregations in Texas, has realigned its boundaries to coincide with the geographic area of the Lubbock Baptist Association.

"The new structure provides better coordination of mission efforts, reduces conflicts in calendaring and will result in more effective leadership training," said Gilbert Oakeley, president of Companerismo Emanuel.

Oakeley also is pastor of the First Mexican Baptist Church in Lubbock, one of 17 Spanish-speaking churches and missions affiliated with the Lubbock Baptist Association.

Eliseo Aldape, president of the Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas and pastor of Arnett-Benson Baptist Church in Lubbock, said, "There has been a good spirit of cooperation in the new arrangement, and we hope it will prove to be an example for other fellowships whose boundaries don't coincide with associations."

Some of the state's 21 Spanish-speaking fellowships were established before the Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas was organized in 1910. The convention, composed of about 500 Spanish-speaking churches, affiliated with the Baptist General Convention of Texas in 1961.

The fellowship unification on a local level will answer a request of Companerismo Emanuel to provide leadership training, according to Doyle Holmes, director of missions for the Lubbock Baptist Association.

He added that officers of the fellowship have been incorporated into the association's organization. "Two of our major committees are chaired by Hispanic pastors and others serve on committee," Holmes said.

DR. JULIAN C. TRAWECK JR.

Teaching Sessions Planned At Church

Dr. Julian C. Traweck Jr. will teach the Gospel of Mark Sunday at Antioch Baptist Church, 111 E. 82nd St.

The first session of his teaching will begin at 9:45 a.m., the second at 11 a.m., and the third at 5 p.m. There will be a break for sandwiches and fellowship before the last session Sunday at the church.

Traweck is the director of the Baptist Bible Chair, Amarillo Junior College, and director of seminary extension for the Amarillo Baptist Association.

The guest teacher is a graduate of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He has taught at Decatur Baptist College and has pastored and taught in the Amarillo area for many years.

Methodist Women To Meet

Mrs. Mia Adjali, director of the United Methodist Office for the United Nations and United Nations Observer for the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church, is the guest speaker for the annual meeting of United Methodist Women of the Northwest Texas Conference.

The meeting will be March 30-31 at the First United Methodist Church in Borger. Theme of the annual meeting is "On Our Journey Toward Wholeness."

Mrs. Adjali has held her current position since 1971.

Talk Time

Communication . . . that's the name of the game. As long as you keep the channels open, you are in business. People don't get divorces when they can sit across a breakfast table and smile at each other, sharing coffee and conversation. People seldom get fired when they can express themselves, make their ideas known, say what they think.

And there's another kind of communication. The kind you find in church . . . with your pastor . . . with the other people in the congregation . . . but, most of all, with God.

Don't miss out.

Mart Ends Busy Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed out its busiest week in almost six months with a mixed showing Friday. Analysts said most of the sharp rise in consumer prices in more than four years had a minimal impact on the market since it had been so widely expected. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.56 to 859.75, pulling back a bit from the five-month closing high it reached on Thursday. The average nevertheless chalked up a 6.93 advance for the week.

Broader Powers Given Carter Probe Counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, who has been under sharp attack from Republican members of Congress, announced Friday he is broadening the powers of the special counsel he named to head an investigation into President Carter's family peanut business.

Bell told a news conference the changes should guarantee that Republican New York Attorney Paul J. Curran will have the same degree of independence that the office of the special procurator had in investigating the Watergate scandal.

Under a formal charter issued by Bell's office Friday, Curran will have authority to seek indictments without clearing his decision with anyone in the Justice Department.

However, Curran still would be required to get Bell's approval before granting immunity to any witness in exchange for testimony.

Bell said that restriction also applied to Watergate prosecutors and that it is a requirement of law that the attorney general approve any request to a court for immunity for a witness.

But in practice, Watergate prosecutors got Justice Department approval in every case where they asked for immunity, said Henry S. Ruth, one of the four former Watergate prosecutors. This was to avoid testing whether the immunity statute gave a special prosecutor the right to seek immunity for a witness without the attorney general's approval, Ruth said.

Initial reaction from Republican critics indicated they were pleased with Bell's action. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Bell "has apparently moved in the right direction to allay fears that justice might not be done in this case." Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., said Bell "has acquiesced in everything except" changing Curran's title to special prosecutor "and that doesn't bother me at all."

County Officials Spurn Flood Insurance Plan

ance Administration published official "flood hazard boundary maps" of Lubbock County.

Although floods are considered rare here, the maps label as flood hazards large portions of the county's unincorporated territory — an estimated 30 to 40 percent. That's because the county has hundreds of plays lakes, and because the maps are calculated on floods that would be expected to occur over a 100-year period.

HUD gave the Lubbock County Commissioners Court one year, until Nov. 29, 1978, to voluntarily participate in the flood insurance program.

To do so, commissioners would have to adopt ordinances setting building standards for flood-prone areas and requiring permits on all rural construction.

Under the program, county officials would review all permits, determine which projects fall in flood zones and require those projects to meet standards for anchoring, drainage and the like.

In return, the federal government would make low-cost flood insurance available to rural property owners. In fact, future loans for building or buying a structure in a flood zone would require borrowers to carry such insurance.

The insurance costs 25 cents per $100 value — or $75 a year on a $30,000 home.

The commissioners court allowed the November 1978 deadline to pass without implementing the flood insurance plan. The court declined to participate for several reasons — which Commissioner Alton Brazell believes still are valid.

"The (HUD) maps are too inaccurate" to carry out the insurance program, he said. Lubbock Chamber of Commerce officials, real estate agents, lenders and such agencies as the Soil Conservation Service find the maps questionable, Brazell added.

County officials see two kinds of inaccuracies:

—Some obviously flood-free areas, they said, are identified as hazards by HUD. If the county participates in the program, future homeowners in those areas would be forced to buy insurance they really don't need.

—Some obviously flood-prone areas are not identified as hazards. Commissioners said the homeowners there, who actually could benefit from the insurance, might be discouraged from buying it because they think they are safe. And if it floods, commission they fear the county might be held legally liable for the maps' mislabeling.

Another problem with the National Flood Insurance Program, commissioners say, is that it would require them to set up a building permits bureaucracy.

Sedwick said the problems cited by Lubbock County officials can be overcome easily.

"If they don't agree with the maps, the maps can be changed," Sedwick said. All commissioners have to do is document the alleged inaccuracies, and HUD will revise the maps accordingly, he said.

Individual landowners also can appeal to HUD if they feel their property has been improperly zoned as a flood hazard, Sedwick added.

He also said the county cannot be held liable for map errors.

Indeed, the legal complications may be just the reverse, Sedwick said. In some counties that have refused to participate, landowners are suing their commissioners on grounds that they have been denied the right to buy flood insurance, he said.

Moreover, Sedwick said, counties need not create a bureaucracy to monitor rural construction and regulate building standards in flood zones.

For example, instead of making tedious on-site inspections, the county simply could require an architect's or engineer's letter as evidence that a project complies with the county's standards, he said.

Many counties actually make money from the permits process because it allows them to charge fees and to get new construction immediately on the tax roll, Sedwick said.

About 60 Texas counties participate in the flood insurance program, he said. "There are ways to overcoming the objections Lubbock County has."

The program has worked well in several municipalities, including the City of Lubbock. It is relatively new to counties. Because cities already have building departments, and they cover smaller areas, they generally find it easier to implement the insurance program.

Because of Lubbock County's refusal, residents in unincorporated areas "are in effect barred from buying flood insurance," Sedwick said.

"If a flood hits, prior to anyone receiving federal disaster relief funds, the county would have to qualify for the National Flood Insurance Program. This can be done after the fact, but it's awkward."

Sedwick also said that "in Lubbock County, no FHA or VA loans are being made in the identified flood zones." Banks and savings and loan associations confirmed that.

So far, said one lender, no major problems have developed because conventional loans can be made, and because there is not that much rural construction anyway.

But the lender said "things could get difficult" because some proposed new residential developments outside the City of Lubbock would fall in the HUD flood zones.

who voted against the treaty draft that was approved 15-2 at a Cabinet meeting Monday.

He is considered a hawk, and declined to join the Israeli delegation for the treaty signing, saying it was too large.

Sharon, in an interview on Israeli television, repeated his complaint that a U.S. Embassy official in Israel, Thomas Feifer, has made "unacceptable" contacts with Palestinians in the occupied Gaza Strip. He claimed Feifer has told the Palestinians that Washington would pressure Israel to limit its activities in the areas slated for self-rule.

Feifer was not available for comment, but embassy spokesman John Touhey said Feifer's activities were "entirely proper" diplomatic activities in accordance with U.S. foreign policy.

In Washington, negotiations continued on a "memorandum of understanding" between the United States and Israel that will outline the grounds for U.S.-Israeli relations following signing of the pact. Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan met twice with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

State Department officials said the memorandum would not include any specific statement concerning possible U.S. negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Little Price Impact Seen In Pipeline

NEW YORK (AP) — The on-again, off-again plan by Standard Oil Co. of Ohio to build a California-to-Texas pipeline appears to be on again, but the project is unlikely to have any impact on what Americans pay for gasoline or heating oil.

Sohio is looking for the most economical way of transporting its Alaskan oil to the eastern half of the United States. Cutting transportation costs will reflect in the firm's profits, not in consumer prices. But the company says higher profits will increase incentives to further develop the Alaskan oil reserves.

Sohio — and other companies involved in Alaskan production — want to get the pipeline completed as soon as possible, so it can be operational when Alaskan production is at its peak in the next few years.

When Congress gave approval for the Alaskan pipeline, lawmakers stipulated that any oil shipped through the pipeline from North Slope fields must be used domestically. It could not be exported.

The reasoning was that with the United States' large reliance on foreign oil, it seemed to make little sense to send American oil out of the country.

So the pipeline's 1.2 million barrels of oil daily — about 6 percent of U.S. consumption — began flowing down to Valdez, Alaska last year. There it was loaded on tankers and shipped to the West Coast.

But it soon became apparent that the West Coast couldn't absorb all that oil. There just wasn't enough refinery capacity in that part of the nation to transform the crude oil into needed products such as gasoline and heating oil. The result was described as a "glut" of Alaskan crude on the West Coast — about 400,000 barrels daily, most of it belonging to Sohio.

Clearances Blamed

Sohio canceled the $1 billion pipeline project March 13, claiming problems with getting the necessary environmental clearances from state and federal governments to build it.

That provoked criticism from California officials, who said regulatory approval was not far away. And that raised questions about Sohio's motives in abandoning the idea. Some analysts theorized that the company was trying to pressure the government into letting it sell some of its Alaskan oil abroad.

Doing that would be even cheaper — and hence more profitable — than building the pipeline, which in turn would be cheaper than the present means of transportation of Alaskan oil to the East: shipping it through the Panama Canal.

Hance Says Hearing Set On Pipeline Bill

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance said Friday that a hearing date has been set for his bill to reopen construction on a controversial crude oil pipeline from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland. He also disclosed that several influential government figures would appear in Lubbock next week to discuss issues concerning South Plains farmers.

Hance expressed pleasure with the April 2 hearing date on his "Crude Oil Transportation Amendment Act of 1979," which would allow the president and Congress to waive all regulations holding up construction on the $1 billion TEXPAC pipeline. "We can't afford to let one state tie up a project like this, which can benefit the entire nation," he said.

Hance said he has asked California Gov. Jerry Brown to appear as the first witness at the hearing, noting "Gov. Brown says he's for the pipeline, and we're going to give him a chance to prove it."

The Lubbock Democrat last week sharply criticized Brown for "selfishness" and "incomprehensible inaction" in allowing the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio) to cancel its plan to finish the $1 billion pipeline because of what the oil company termed "a quagmire of regulations" in California.

Sohio officials have said they are willing to complete the 700-mile pipeline linking importation and storage facilities in Long Beach with refining and distribution facilities in Midland if regulatory problems can be resolved. The oil company says it could pump up to 200,000 barrels of oil through the pipeline daily at a saving of $3 per barrel.

Hance also announced at Friday's news conference that U.S. Department of Agriculture assistant secretary Rupert Cutler will be in Lubbock Wednesday heading a special crew representing the President's Water Task Force in a major hearing designed to gather information to be used in the planning of future national water programs.

"This hearing is vital to the future of South Plains water supplies," Hance said. "It's our only chance to have any say into what happens to our water."

The hearing is scheduled for 10:15 a.m. Wednesday in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, and "all input from area citizens is urged," Hance said.

Hance will return to Lubbock Friday with U.S. Reps. Charles Stenholm of Stamford and Charles Rose of North Carolina. Members of the House Agricultural Committee, they will speak on the situation involving the committee and the nation's farmers.

"There is an internal struggle in the House Ag committee now," Hance said. "Some members want immediate action on several proposed changes to the 1977 Farm Act, while others want no action at all."

"We had a caucus Tuesday, and should know by next weekend whether there will be a hearing on our proposed changes."

On the diesel oil situation, another area of concern for local farmers approaching planting, Hance commented, "I feel that, if no hoarding occurs or panic sets in, we'll get the diesel situation straightened by planting time."

"Two possible causes of the diesel problems are that some jobbers panicked and began hoarding the oil when they learned of the Iranian situation, and that there might have been some distribution problems," he added.

The Department of Energy is looking into the alleged distribution irregularities, Hance noted, and also into whether diesel could have been diverted into other states.

Hance also said he is looking forward to serving on the House Consent Calendar Committee, a watchdog committee responsible for preventing potentially bad or controversial legislation from passing through the House without proper consideration. The freshman representative is one of only six congressmen, three Democrats and three Republicans, on the committee.

"This appointment means other congressmen have placed their trust in me to watch out for legislation which needs closer review," Hance said.

"This will be a time-consuming job," he added, "but I look forward to it because it will allow me to become better acquainted with many members of the House, and get to know the special needs of my districts."

Under fire from state and federal officials, Sohio suddenly reversed itself Wednesday, resubmitting applications for California air-quality permits, with the caveat that it would again drop its plans if approval dragged on for several more months.

"The Secretary of Energy and various members of Congress made it very clear in our meeting in Washington (Tuesday) that they wanted the PAC-TEX pipeline project to go forward promptly in the national interest and that they will do all they can to encourage the issuance of the necessary permits and approvals," Sohio Chairman Alton Whitehouse said in a statement.

"If we received the green light within 90 days there is a strong possibility we would proceed. If we received the green light within six months there is a probability we might proceed," he added. "The project is losing strength and character with the passage of time."

February Inflation Skyrockets To 15.4 Percent Annual Rate

visers, indicated the administration now believes inflation may be worse than its 7.4 percent forecast for the year.

"It is possible the rise in prices this year will exceed our forecasts, but I don't know by how much," he said. Asked if he thinks it could be as high as 10 percent, Gramley said: "No, I do not."

But Republican National Chairman Bill Brock said the administration is to blame for much of the inflation and declared that Carter's anti-inflation program has "failed miserably."

"The administration's total lack of an energy policy and its inability to develop reliable energy sources abroad and at home puts the country squarely in the face of another round of energy cost-induced inflation," he said in a statement.

Fuel oil costs increased 3.2 percent in February. Gasoline prices rose 2 percent, and have increased at an annual rate of 18 percent since June, the Labor Department said.

Overall consumer prices were up 9.9 percent during the 12 months ending in February. Food prices were up 12.7 percent in the period, and housing costs, 10.6 percent.

The 1.2 percent monthly increase was the highest since an identical increase in September, 1974.

The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index in February stood at 207.1 percent of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods priced at $100 then had risen to $207.10 last month.

It also said that the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck declined 0.8 percent during the month and was down 1.2 percent for the 12-month period ending in February, with inflation chiefly to blame.

Among foods, the 4.9 percent increase in meat prices brought the total increase for the 12-month period to 26.4 percent. There were also sharply higher prices during the month for poultry, fresh fruits, bakery products, dairy products and fats and oils.

The department gave the following breakdown for price increases in February compared to increases in January, plus the increase for the 12-month period:

- All items: 1.2 percent, 0.9 percent, 9.9 percent.
- Food and beverages: 1.6 percent, 1.4 percent, 12.7 percent.
- Housing: 1.3 percent, 0.6 percent, 10.6 percent.
- Apparel and upkeep: 0.3 percent, 0.2 percent, 4.5 percent.
- Transportation: 1.1 percent, 1.1 percent, 9.9 percent.
- Medical care: 0.6 percent, 1.1 percent, 9.9 percent.
- Entertainment: 0.4 percent, 0.8 percent, 6.9 percent.
- Other goods and services: 0.7 percent, 0.7 percent, 7.2 percent.

WORDY GURDY

BY TRICKY RICKY

Every answer is a rhyming pair of words (like FAT CAT and DOUBLE TROUBLE), and they will fit in the letter squares. The number after the definition tells you how many syllables in each word. Jury Convicts Seaman In Rape-Mutilation

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Merchant seaman Lawrence Singleton, accused of kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old hitchhiker and then hacking off her arms with an ax, was convicted Friday of all seven charges against him.

LAWRENCE SINGLETON

Mary Bell Vincent of Las Vegas, Nev., who survived the attack and testified against the defendant, did not register any emotion as the verdicts were read. Her mother sat beside her in the courtroom, holding the hook of her artificial arm.

Singleton, 51, did not make any comments after the nine-man, three-woman jury returned the verdict. He is scheduled for sentencing April 20, when he faces a maximum term of 144 years in prison.

Miss Vincent, who seemed cheerful and joked occasionally with her parents, sat outside the courtroom playing backgammon with a family friend as the charges were re-read to the jury earlier in the day.

Singleton, who has homes in San Pablo, Calif., and Sparks, Nev., was convicted of a total of seven counts of attempted murder in the first degree, kidnapping, rape, sodomy, forced oral copulation and mayhem.

The jury, which reached the verdicts after 12 1/2 hours of deliberations covering three days, did not find that Singleton had used a deadly weapon in the course of the kidnapping.

Miss Vincent testified that Singleton picked her up while she was hitchhiking in the San Francisco area last Sept. 29 and promised to take her to a freeway in Sacramento where she could continue her trip to visit her grandfather in Corona, Calif.

Miss Vincent said she had run away from her Las Vegas home because of "a lack of communication with her parents."

Singleton did not testify in his own behalf but in the tape played at the trial said he had picked up two other male hitchhikers along with Miss Vincent, who had agreed to have sex with him as one of the hitchhikers drove.

The defendant said he had been drinking and passed out but when he awoke the girl was gone and only the two male hitchhikers remained.

Miss Vincent, however, testified there were no other hitchhikers. She said she fell asleep while traveling with Singleton and when she awoke, they were traveling in the wrong direction.

The prosecution said Singleton pulled off a road in Stanislaus county, tied the girl up, raped and sodomized her and forced her to perform oral copulation on him. He drove on and then repeated the forced acts at another remote location.

Miss Vincent testified Singleton then chopped her arms off with an ax and dumped her in a culvert to die. After waiting for him to leave, she said she staggered to a nearby highway and flagged down a motorist for help.

President Launches Appeals To Palestinians

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Carter, unable thus far to win broader Arab backing for the Egyptian-Israeli settlement, has made a new overture to the Palestine Liberation Organization, repeating his offer to deal with the PLO if it will recognize Israel's right to exist.

The PLO has spurned similar proposals in the past. Carter's offer to "immediately start working directly" with the PLO came in an interview with Egyptian television broadcast here Friday, as Egyptian and Israeli leaders prepared for Monday's signing of the historic treaty between their two countries at a Washington ceremony.

Carter said his offer depends on PLO acceptance of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242.

The resolution, accepted by most Arab states as a basis for a Middle East peace, calls for Israel to return war-won Arab lands in exchange for Arab guarantees of Israel's right to exist within secure and recognized boundaries.

The interviewer, Adib Andrawes,

Washington correspondent of Egypt's official Middle East News Agency, asked Carter whether the United States soon might start talks with the Palestinians over their grievances.

"Yes, we would like to have direct relations with the Palestinians," Carter said. "We will do this as part of the negotiating process in the future."

"We have a problem with the PLO," Carter went on. "The PLO has totally rejected U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 and it is the basis for the Camp David agreements.

"Also, the PLO has not recognized at all Israel's right to exist. As soon as the PLO expresses its acceptance of these principles, we will then immediately start working directly with this organization, on this basis."

The interview was conducted Thursday.

Carter also told his Egyptian interviewer he believes "the threats of terrorism and the hatred that presently exists, the threat of war, the threat of economic boycotts and punishment against Egypt, are certainly not conducive to realizing the hopes of the Palestinian people."

In a companion interview with Dan Shilon of Israeli television, Carter predicted a "relatively brief" period during which "the PLO and some of the Arab countries will threaten increased violence or economic punishment, terrorism, instability."

The treaty to be signed Monday has been loudly condemned by PLO leader Yasser Arafat and by radical Arab states, and criticized as insufficient by such "moderates" as Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

An American delegation visited Jordan and Saudi Arabia last week to seek support for the treaty, but apparently failed to get it.

Arafat and other Arab leaders have called a conference of Arab League foreign ministers for next Tuesday to endorse sanctions against Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to punish him for the treaty, which they consider a separate peace with Israel and a sell-out of the Palestinian cause.

Under the treaty provisions, Palestinians in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip are to get

Peace Treaty To Omit U.S.-PLO Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S.-Israeli document to accompany the Mideast peace treaty will omit any specific reaffirmation of the American refusal to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization, State Department officials said Friday.

Officials denied, however, that the Carter administration has any plan to change the longstanding American policy that bars negotiations with the PLO unless the organization recognizes Israel's right to exist.

The assertions came as State Department officials, requesting anonymity, discussed the "memorandum of understanding" that will outline some of the bases for dealings between the United States and Israel after the signing of the treaty between Egypt and Israel.

Diplomatic sources said Israel was trying to persuade the United States to reiterate its 1975 guarantee that it would not recognize or talk to the PLO unless it accepted United Nations Resolution 242 and Israel's right to exist, which it has not done.

Israeli officials have said they would be satisfied if the commitment were restated indirectly, perhaps by affirming that all of the previous American agreements with Israel would remain in effect after the treaty is signed.

Negotiations on the memorandum continued here Friday. Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan met twice with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and his staff.

After the second meeting, Dayan told reporters that there were still problems in agreeing on the wording of the memo. But he said he hoped that it could be completed at a meeting this morning.

U.S. officials said they were not seeking flexibility that would permit U.S. dealings with the PLO. They said they simply wanted to restrict the memorandum to the subject of assurances of American political support for Israel if the treaty with Egypt is violated.

In 1975, in a then-secret memorandum accompanying an agreement under which Egypt and Israel would remove forces from the Sinai peninsula to establish a buffer zone, the United States promised Israel to "not recognize or negotiate with the PLO so long as the PLO does not recognize Israel's right to exist and does not accept Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338."

Those resolutions set forth the principle that Israel and the Arab world will have peace if and when Israel makes a vaguely defined withdrawal from the lands it captured in the 1967 Six Day War.

American officials stressed Friday that they had no intention of changing that policy. They pointed to a statement made this week by President Carter in an interview with Egypt's Middle East News Agency.

"We have a problem with the PLO. The PLO has never yet been willing to accept the applicability of United Nations Resolution 242. Also, the PLO has never recognized Israel's right to exist. And as soon as the PLO itself as an organization is willing to accept these bases, then we will immediately start working directly with that organization as such," Carter said in the interview.

Meanwhile, the American officials said that all of the United States' Western European allies except France have informally expressed their pleasure with and support for the Egypt-Israel peace treaty.

Waste Of Taxpayers' Money?

G-Men Dubious About Hoffa Hunt

By Tom Tiede

DETROIT (NEA) — On the afternoon of July 30, 1975, James Riddle Hoffa left his suburban home and drove alone to a restaurant in nearby Bloomfield Township. There he apparently got into another car containing three men, was taken from the parking lot into the streets, and then abruptly vanished.

JIMMY HOFFA

In the 44 months since the incident the United States government has conducted one of the largest and most expensive investigations in its history. Scores of Department of Justice lawyers, hundreds of FBI agents, and small armies of local police have been employed in the hunt.

They've only found an enigma. The gumshoes believe they've learned why Hoffa was killed, and who killed him, but after questioning thousands of people, following up hundreds of leads, and spending as much as $3 million in public funds, Jimmy Hoffa is still missing and his case remains unsolved.

Now there is growing sentiment among federal law enforcement people that the government overreacted to the Hoffa caper. Even some officers who have worked on the probe say taxpayer money has been wasted and police priorities miscarried. They say the Hoffa matter is just not that important.

B DIMENSIONS

O. Franklin Lowie, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office, says he still has more men working on Hoffa than on any other criminal investigation. Four hundred people are murdered in Detroit every year, he says, 8,500 others are reported missing, but only Hoffa gets special attention.

Within the FBI, actually, the special attention has been unprecedented. The Bureau says the Hoffa incident has resulted in the largest investigation in its history involving a person thought to be dead. The Bureau says the Patricia Hearst search cost more ($9 million, "but we knew she was alive."

At one time the FBI has more than 100 agents trying to find Hoffa. The Detroit office has assigned so many men to the task that many other important investigations have been interrupted. One estimate is that the Bureau has spent $1.5 million on Hoffa; the total for all agencies may be twice that.

And why? Agent Lowie says he can't explain it other than to say that "all men are not created equal." Lowie says that if Joe Blow is abducted, or even if Special Agent Frank Lowie is murdered by the mob, the federal interest may only be routine. But Jimmy Hoffa is quite another matter.

And indeed, Hoffa has for decades been another matter. As absolute ruler of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (1957 to 1971), he and his 400,000 truck drivers had the muscle to cripple a city, or the nation. In the 1960s he was very likely the most powerful private citizen in the land.

He may also have been one of the most corrupt. A friend and confidant of numerous hoodlums, Hoffa was tried for criminal activity on five occasions. He survived them all except the last: in 1967 he began serving a stiff 13-year sentence in Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary, for tampering with a jury.

In prison, Hoffa served some time with another Teamster operative, Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano of New Jersey. The FBI says the two had furious arguments behind the walls. Provenzano is said to have told Hoffa that he would be killed one day, and buried "so they won't even find your fingernails."

Then in 1971 Richard Nixon commuted Hoffa's sentence on condition that he retire from Teamster affairs. Hoffa accepted the release but not the condition. Once free, he tried to regain union influence by exposing Teamster evils. His split grew with the mobsters, particularly Provenzano.

Many FBI agents say they are convinced Provenzano engineered Hoffa's presumed death. They say Hoffa was probably knocked unconscious in that car in 1975, and then strangled; afterward, regarding Provenzano's "no fingernails" promise, he may have been mangled in a trash shredder and scattered in a mob-owned dump.

But as yet the FBI theory can't be corroborated by proof that will suffice in court. As for witnesses, the FBI says that Salvatore Briguglio, believed to be one of Hoffa's killers, was a potential informer — but he was assassinated last year. And so the costly investigation will continue until some proof is found.

Right now, over 3½ years later, FBI agent Lowie has "several" men working full time on the case. The U.S. Attorney office here is also supplying manpower. One source says that if people from Washington and the Northeast are counted, more than a dozen federal officers spend all of their time on Hoffa.

Of course, the probe hasn't been a total waste. Since it began, Provenzano has been convicted of an unrelated murder, and a rash of indictments have been handed down on other Teamster major-doms. But is Jimmy Hoffa really worth $3 million in public funds? Too late, many observers are beginning to wonder.

Wednesday Parade To Open Rodeo

A parade through downtown Lubbock at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday will help launch the 37th annual ABC Rodeo on a four-day run.

The parade will feature more than 140 mounted riders, mule teams, beauty queens and various rodeo and local officials, according to Tom White and Don Stringer, co-chairmen for the parade.

The parade will form at Broadway and Avenue E, will move west on Broadway to Avenue X, north on Avenue X to Sixth Street, then west on Sixth Street to the Municipal Coliseum area.

The rodeo, sponsored by the Downtown Chapter of the American Business Club and sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, will be held daily at 8 p.m. March 28-31 in the coliseum. Tickets are $4 and $6 only this year. Further information may be obtained by calling 793-5800.

McDonald's "Hamburglar" will serve as parade marshal. Bob Romer and Wilbur Plaugher will be clowns and John Mann will serve as the announcer. The featured performer will be Rick Presley with his "Tribute to Elvis" act. Jiggs Beutler of Elk City, Okla., will provide the stock.

The rodeo ticket office is located in a trailer on the northeast corner of the South Plains Mall parking lot. Tickets also are on sale at all western wear stores. Dunlap's and Hemphill-Wells (mall store only).

Prizes in a beard-growing contest will be awarded on the first three nights in the categories of neatest beard, best mustache and "anything goes." Preliminary winners will be invited to return for the Saturday night finals. No entry fee is charged and the contest is open to the public.

Proceeds go to the capital improvement fund of the Lubbock Boys Clubs. Joe Ince is rodeo chairman.

Teacher's System Simplifies Penmanship Learning Process

By BARBARA McDOWELL

NEW YORK (NEA) — First came the new math, then the new grammar. Now there's the new penmanship.

It's called "D'Nealian Handwriting" after Donald Neal Thurber, the Michigan elementary school teacher-turned-principal who developed it in the mid-1960s. Within a decade, Thurber predicts, every youngster in the nation will learn to write by his simplified method.

Thurber says the "lightning bolt" that led to his invention struck in 1960 as he was printing on the chalkboard of his first grade classroom.

Suddenly, it did not make sense that he was teaching his students to print straight up and down when they would have to learn to write slanting cursive two years later. And why were they making discontinuous "circles and sticks" when they would later have to connect their letters with a flowing rhythm?

"There was no evidence for most of the stuff we were doing," says Thurber. Teaching of printing had changed little in the half-century since it was brought to the United States from England. Before that, students simply started out writing in cursive.

So, Thurber threw out the circles and sticks. With them went the wide-lined paper and fat pencils.

He introduced streamlined characters that could be printed without lifting (regular-sized) pencil from (standard-lined) paper. The only exceptions are f, x, the cross in the t and dots over the i and j. Letters are written at a "natural" slant instead of vertically.

Thurber gave his students simple step-by-step instructions for forming each letter, his voice rising on the upstroke and lowering on the downstroke.

A lower-case g, for example, is described as "around, down, up, down, and a fishhook under water." A small b is "high start, down, around, up into a tummy." And an m is "down, up, hump, hump and a monkey tail."

Thurber doesn't teach letters in alphabetical order. Instead, he introduces similarly written letters as one group: the first group is a, d, o, c, g and e.

He claims a major advantage of his method is that it leads naturally into cursive with little more than the addition of connecting strokes. Only five letters — f, r, s, v and z — are written differently. Many students switch on their own to "grown up writing" by the end of the first grade.

"They don't have to literally unlearn 2½ years of circles and sticks," he explains. "And it probably saves 50 percent of teaching time."

According to Thurber, students using D'Nealian average at least half a year ahead of their peers in handwriting. Even those with learning disabilities have less trouble with the new method.

He claims students prefer D'Nealian because it more closely resembles adult handwriting and because it removes the pressure of struggling to conform to a copybook model of penmanship.

A student is allowed to develop a personalized script as long as it is legible and consistent in the "three s's" — size, slant and spacing. So, small or backward writing no longer dooms one to low marks in penmanship.

"Writing is tremendously individualistic, like a fingerprint," says Thurber. "We should get away from, 'Everyone must do it like it is on the board or you can't go out for recess.'"

LEARNING TO WRITE — Michigan educator Donald Neal Thurber claims youngsters prefer his simplified D'Nealian Handwriting. Not only does the new printing method look more like "grown-up writing," but it allows them to develop a more individualized script.

Thurber — who says he would give his own penmanship only a C — even believes this attitude will help keep handwriting legible in later life. He theorizes that people resort to unreadable scrawls in frustration at not being able to match the ideal.

"If you have more pride in your writing, the end result should be better," he explains.

After three years of developing his method, Thurber typed up an 18-page instructional manuscript that he copied on his school's mimeograph. In 1968, he started peddling the booklet at teachers' meetings until he finally persuaded one teacher to try it.

"She liked the method and the children liked using it, so she told a few more teachers about it," Thurber recalls. "And so it went by word of mouth for almost 10 years."

Now, D'Nealian has been expanded into a series of texts for grades kindergarten through eight, published by Scott, Foresman and Co. The original 18 pages have grown to more than 1,000.

Thurber estimates that about 12,000 students from 4,000 schools have already learned to write by his method.

But does this mean parents can no longer help their youngsters with handwriting as well as math? Thurber says no. At his school, parents of pre-kindergartners are given materials explaining D'Nealian; they can easily master its basics if they want to start their children printing at home.

In fact, he muses, maybe instructions on D'Nealian should be given to new mothers at the hospital instead of the usual baby powder and paper diapers.

Ringling Brothers Acquires Ice Shows

CHICAGO (AP) — Ringling Bros. Barnum Bailey Combined Shows Inc. said it has acquired two ice shows from Wirtz Productions Ltd. — "Ice Follies" and "Holiday on Ice."

The company will assume operation of the ice shows immediately, according to Thursday's announcement. The purchase price was not disclosed. The 43-year-old Follies was the first ice show introduced in this country. Its 1936 kickoff in Chicago featured skater Sonja Henie. "Holiday on Ice," which has two touring companies, was founded in 1947.

Fetal Monitors Spark Controversy

By MARIA TAYLOR

(c) Pacific News Service

Two-thirds of all babies born in American hospitals come into the world watched by an electronic monitor — many with electrodes planted in their scalps, attached by wires to machines that track their heartbeats.

This machine, the fetal monitor, allows physicians to leave women in labor alone for hours while their progress is watched on printouts that are sometimes down the hall at a central nursing station.

Such monitoring probably saves some infants from brain damage by quickly detecting signs of oxygen deprivation. It also prompts needless medical intervention — caesarean surgery, forceps delivery, and use of drugs to induce birth. And it raises the cost of the average childbirth by at least $50, and an additional $2,300 if a caesarean results.

Since it was introduced into American hospitals during the 1960s, the fetal monitor has become the focus of a national debate over an issue that has grown apace with increasing sophistication and automation in medical technology.

When does medical technology cease to benefit and, instead, begin to cause harm? Is the cost-benefit ratio better for the monitor than for the stethoscope, the traditional means of observing the fetal heart beat? And who is to judge — the doctor, the woman in labor, a federal regulatory agency?

These questions are urgent because fetal monitoring is fast becoming a routine part of labor and birth. Already many obstetricians suggest that failure to monitor routinely constitutes malpractice. And in today's litigation-happy climate, that's a strong incentive.

Yet at the same time, evidence is accumulating that there is good reason to question the use of the procedure.

In a critical analysis of studies on fetal monitoring, the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment, an advisory body to Congress, last January issued the strongest public indictment of this technology.

The evidence indicates that electronic fetal monitoring (EFM) has little if any proven benefit not given by regular auscultation (listening with stethoscope), and that EFM is a costly and dangerous procedure," concluded the authors of the report, Dr. David Banta of OTA and Dr.

Stephen Thacker of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

In addition, since 1975, four studies have shown that there was no statistically better outcome among babies monitored electronically than among those watched by a conscientious nurse with a stethoscope.

But three of these studies did find that among the electronically monitored infants, the number of caesarean sections was two to three times greater. A caesarean section is a major operation with dangers of death and infection to both mother and infant. In the U.S., up to 30 times more women die during caesarean deliveries than during normal birth, according to the OTA report. Babies risk suffering respiratory distress syndrome.

Drs. Thacker and Banta's finding have aroused ire among the monitor's advocates.

"OTA is an arm of Senator (Edward) Kennedy's attempt to promote national health insurance and lower the cost of medical care," which has "prompted mass hysteria," charged Dr. Barry Shifrin, associate director of obstetrics and

Waste Of Taxpayers' Money?

G-Men Dubious About Hoffa Hunt

By Tom Tiede
 DETROIT (NEA) — On the afternoon of July 30, 1975, James Riddle Hoffa left his suburban home and drove alone to a restaurant in nearby Bloomfield Township. There he apparently got into another car containing three men, was taken from the parking lot into the streets, and then abruptly vanished.

JIMMY HOFFA
 Justice Department lawyers, hundreds of FBI agents, and small armies of local police have been employed in the hunt.

In the 44 months since the incident the United States government has conducted one of the largest and most expensive missing persons investigations in its history. Scores of Justice Department lawyers, hundreds of FBI agents, and small armies of local police have been employed in the hunt.

They've only found an enigma. The gumshoes believe they've learned why Hoffa was killed, and who killed him, but after questioning thousands of people, following up hundreds of leads, and spending as much as $3 million in public funds, Jimmy Hoffa is still missing and his case remains unsolved.

Now there is growing sentiment among federal law enforcement people that the government overreacted to the Hoffa case. Even some officers who have worked on the probe say taxpayer money has been wasted and police priorities miscarried. They say the Hoffa matter is just not that important.

O. Franklin Lowie, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office, says he still has more men working on Hoffa than on any other criminal investigation. Four hundred people are murdered in Detroit every year, he says, 8,500 others are reported missing, but only Hoffa gets special attention.

Within the FBI, actually, the special attention has been unprecedented. The Bureau says the Hoffa incident has resulted in the largest investigation in its history involving a person thought to be dead. The Bureau says the Patricia Hearst search cost more ($9 million), "but we knew she was alive."

At one time the FBI has more than 100 agents trying to find Hoffa. The Detroit office has assigned so many men to the task that many other important investigations have been interrupted. One estimate is that the Bureau has spent $15 million on Hoffa, the total for all agencies may be twice that.

And why? Agent Lowie says he can't explain it other than to say that "all men are not created equal." Lowie says that if Joe Blow is abducted, or even if Special Agent Frank Lowie is murdered by the mob, the federal interest may only be routine. But Jimmy Hoffa is quite another matter.

And indeed, Hoffa has for decades been another matter. As absolute ruler of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (1957 to 1971), he and his 400,000 truck drivers had the muscle to cripple a city, or the nation. In the 1960s he was very likely the most powerful private citizen in the land.

He may also have been one of the most corrupt. A friend and confidant of numerous hoodlums, Hoffa was tried for criminal activity on five occasions. He survived them all except the last, in 1967 he began serving a stiff 13-year sentence in Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary, for tampering with a jury.

In prison, Hoffa served some time with another Teamster operative, Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano of New Jersey. The FBI says the two had furious arguments behind the walls. Provenzano is said to have told Hoffa that he would be killed one day, and buried "so they won't even find your fingernails."

Then in 1971 Richard Nixon commuted Hoffa's sentence on condition that he retire from Teamster affairs. Hoffa accepted the release but not the condition. Once free, he tried to regain union influence by exposing Teamster evils. His split grew with the mobsters, particularly Provenzano.

Many FBI agents say they are convinced Provenzano engineered Hoffa's presumed death. They say Hoffa was probably knocked unconscious in that car in 1975, and then strangled; afterward, regarding Provenzano's "no fingernails" promise, he may have been mangled in a trash shredder and scattered in a mob-owned dump.

But as yet the FBI theory can't be corroborated by proof that will suffice in court. As for witnesses, the FBI says that Salvatore Briguglio, believed to be one of Hoffa's killers, was a potential informer — but he was assassinated last year. And so the costly investigation will continue until some proof is found.

Right now, over 3½ years later, FBI agent Lowie has "several" men working full time on the case. The U.S. Attorney office here is also supplying manpower. One source says that if people from Washington and the Northeast are counted, more than a dozen federal officers spend all of their time on Hoffa.

Of course, the probe hasn't been a total waste. Since it began, Provenzano has been convicted of an unrelated murder, and a rash of indictments have been handed down on other Teamster major-doms. But is Jimmy Hoffa really worth $3 million in public funds? Too late, many observers are beginning to wonder

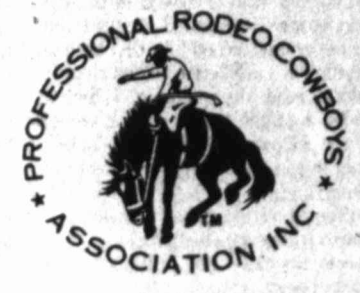

McDonald's "Hamburglar"

Wednesday Parade To Open Rodeo

A parade through downtown Lubbock at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday will help launch the 37th annual ABC Rodeo on a four-day run.

The parade will feature more than 140 mounted riders, mule teams, beauty queens and various rodeo and local officials, according to Tom White and Don Stringer, co-chairmen for the parade.

The parade will form at Broadway and Avenue E, will move west on Broadway to Avenue X, north on Avenue X to Sixth Street, then west on Sixth Street to the Municipal Coliseum area.

The rodeo, sponsored by the Downtown Chapter of the American Business Club and sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, will be held daily at 8 p.m. March 28-31 in the coliseum. Tickets are $4 and $6 only this year. Further information may be obtained by calling 793-5800.

McDonald's "Hamburglar" will serve as parade marshal. Bob Romer and Wilbur Plaugher will be clowns and John Mann will serve as the announcer. The featured performer will be Rick Presley with his "Tribute to Elvis" act. Jiggs Beutler of Elk City, Okla., will provide the stock.

The rodeo ticket office is located in a trailer on the northeast corner of the South Plains Mall parking lot. Tickets also are on sale at all western wear stores, Dunlap's and Hemphill-Wells (mall store only).

Prizes in a beard-growing contest will be awarded on the first three nights in the categories of neatest beard, best mustache and "anything goes." Preliminary winners will be invited to return for the Saturday night finals. No entry fee is charged and the contest is open to the public.

Proceeds go to the capital improvement fund of the Lubbock Boys Clubs. Joe Ince is rodeo chairman.

Teacher's System Simplifies Penmanship Learning Process

By BARBARA McDOWELL

NEW YORK (NEA) — First came the new math, then the new grammar. Now there's the new penmanship.

It's called "D'Nealian Handwriting" after Donald Neal Thurber, the Michigan elementary school teacher-turned-principal who developed it in the mid-1960s. Within a decade, Thurber predicts, every youngster in the nation will learn to write by his simplified method.

Thurber says the "lightning bolt" that led to his invention struck in 1960 as he was printing on the chalkboard of his first grade classroom.

Suddenly, it did not make sense that he was teaching his students to print straight up and down when they would have to learn to write slanting cursive two years later. And why were they making discontinuous "circles and sticks" when they would later have to connect their letters with a flowing rhythm?

There was no evidence for most of the stuff we were doing," says Thurber. Teaching of printing had changed little in the half-century since it was brought to the United States from England. Before that, students simply started out writing in cursive.

So Thurber threw out the circles and sticks. With them went the wide-lined paper and fat pencils.

He introduced streamlined characters that could be printed without lifting (regular-sized) pencil from (standard-lined) paper. The only exceptions are f, x, the cross in the t and dots over the i and j. Letters are written at a "natural" slant instead of vertically.

Thurber gave his students simple step-by-step instructions for forming each letter, his voice rising on the upstroke and lowering on the downstroke.

A lower-case g, for example, is described as "around down, up, down and a fishhook under water." A small b is "high start, down, around, up into a tummy." And an m is "down, up, hump, hump and a monkey tail."

Thurber doesn't teach letters in alphabetical order. Instead, he introduces similarly written letters as one group: the first group is a, d, o, c, g and e.

He claims a major advantage of his method is that it leads naturally into cursive with little more than the addition of connecting strokes. Only five letters — f, r, s, v and z — are written differently. Many students switch on their own to "grown-up writing" by the end of the first grade.

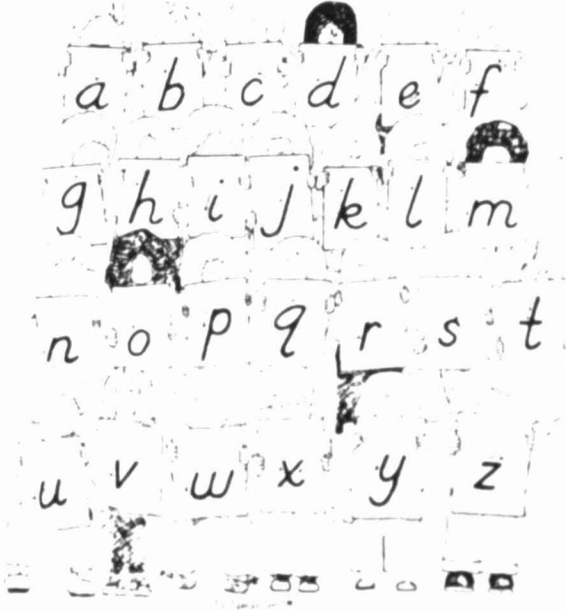

"They don't have to literally unlearn 2½ years of circles and sticks," he explains. "And it probably saves 50 percent of teaching time."

According to Thurber, students using D'Nealian average at least half a year ahead of their peers in handwriting. Even those with learning disabilities have less trouble with the new method.

He claims students prefer D'Nealian because it more closely resembles adult handwriting and because it removes the pressure of struggling to conform to a copybook model of penmanship.

A student is allowed to develop a personalized script as long as it is legible and consistent in the "three s's" — size, slant and spacing. So, small or backward writing no longer dooms one to low marks in penmanship.

"Writing is tremendously individualistic, like a fingerprint," says Thurber. "We should get away from 'Everyone must do it like it is on the board or you can't go out for recess."

LEARNING TO WRITE — Michigan educator Donald Neal Thurber claims youngsters prefer his simplified D'Nealian Handwriting. Not only does the new printing method look more like "grown-up writing," but it allows them to develop a more individualized script.

Thurber — who says he would give his own penmanship only a C — even believes this attitude will help keep handwriting legible in later life. He theorizes that people resort to unreadable scrawls in frustration at not being able to match the ideal.

"If you have more pride in your writing, the end result should be better," he explains.

After three years of developing his method, Thurber typed up an 18-page instructional manuscript that he copied on his school's mimeograph. In 1968, he started peddling the booklet at teachers' meetings until he finally persuaded one teacher to try it.

She liked the method and the children liked using it, so she told a few more teachers about it," Thurber recalls.

And so it went by word of mouth for almost 10 years.

Now, D'Nealian has been expanded into a series of texts for grades kindergarten through eight, published by Scott Foresman and Co. The original 18 pages have grown to more than 1,000.

Thurber estimates that about 12,000 students from 4,000 schools have already learned to write by his method.

But does this mean parents can no longer help their youngsters with handwriting as well as math? Thurber says no. At his school, parents of pre-kindergartners are given materials explaining D'Nealian; they can easily master its basics if they want to start their children printing at home.

In fact, he muses, maybe instructions on D'Nealian should be given to new mothers at the hospital instead of the usual baby powder and paper diapers.

Ringling Brothers Acquires Ice Shows

CHICAGO (AP) — Ringling Bros. Barnum Bailey Combined Shows Inc. said it has acquired two ice shows from Wirtz Productions Ltd. — "Ice Follies" and "Holiday on Ice."

The company will assume operation of the ice shows immediately, according to Thursday's announcement. The purchase price was not disclosed. The 43-year-old Follies was the first ice show introduced in this country. Its 1936 kickoff in Chicago featured skater Sonja Henie. "Holiday on Ice," which has two touring companies, was founded in 1947.

Fetal Monitors Spark Controversy

By MARIA TAYLOR
 (c) Pacific News Service

Two-thirds of all babies born in American hospitals come into the world watched by an electronic monitor — many with electrodes planted in their scalps, attached by wires to machines that track their heartbeats.

This machine, the fetal monitor, allows physicians to leave women in labor alone for hours while their progress is watched on printouts that are sometimes down the hall at a central nursing station.

Such monitoring probably saves some infants from brain damage by quickly detecting signs of oxygen deprivation. It also prompts needless medical intervention — caesarean surgery, forceps delivery, and use of drugs to induce birth. And it raises the cost of the average childbirth by at least $50, and an additional $2,300 if a caesarean results.

Since it was introduced into American hospitals during the 1960s, the fetal monitor has become the focus of a national debate over an issue that has grown apace with increasing sophistication and automation in medical technology.

When does medical technology cease to benefit and, instead, begin to cause harm? Is the cost-benefit ratio better for the monitor than for the stethoscope, the traditional means of observing the fetal heart beat? And who is to judge — the doctor, the woman in labor, a federal regulatory agency?

These questions are urgent because fetal monitoring is fast becoming a routine part of labor and birth. Already many obstetricians suggest that failure to monitor routinely constitutes malpractice. And in today's litigation-happy climate, that's a strong incentive.

Yet at the same time, evidence is accumulating that there is good reason to question the use of the procedure.

In a critical analysis of studies on fetal monitoring, the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment, an advisory body to Congress, last January issued the strongest public indictment of this technology.

The evidence indicates that electronic fetal monitoring (EFM) has little if any proven benefit not given by regular auscultation (listening with stethoscope), and that EFM is a costly and dangerous procedure," concluded the authors of the report. Dr. David Banta of OTA and Dr.

Stephen Thacker of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

In addition, since 1975, four studies have shown that there was no statistically better outcome among babies monitored electronically than among those watched by a conscientious nurse with a stethoscope.

But three of these studies did find that among the electronically monitored infants, the number of caesarean sections was two to three times greater. A caesarean section is a major operation with dangers of death and infection to both mother and infant. In the U.S., up to 30 times more women die during caesarean deliveries than during normal birth, according to the OTA report. Babies risk suffering respiratory distress syndrome.

Drs. Thacker and Banta's finding have aroused ire among the monitor's advocates.

"OTA is an arm of Senator (Edward) Kennedy's attempt to promote national health insurance and lower the cost of medical care," which has "prompted mass hysteria," charged Dr. Barry Shifrin, associate director of obstetrics and

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I parked my car in a parking lot and happened to glance up and notice a child in the car next to mine. The boy couldn't have been more than three years of age. The motor was running and the doors were locked. I decided to wait till the driver of that car came back because I wanted to tell that idiot a thing or two.

In about 15 minutes the child's father appeared. He looked like a perfectly nice fellow and I'm sure he was, but he had a lot to learn. I tried to be calm as I spoke to him and I must say he took it rather well. I let him know what could happen to a youngster who is locked in the car and left alone. He seemed shocked and said it never dawned on him that he was risking his son's life. Since people all over the world read your column, I feel it would be a public service if you would quote the following information. Young children left in locked cars can meet the following fate:

1. Suffocation from exhaust fumes.
2. Burns from cigarette lighters.
3. Accidents caused by putting the car in or out of gear.
4. Strangulation caused by playing with power windows.
5. Kidnapping or rape. (There are lots of lunatics running around these days.)
6. Accidents caused by someone hitting your car.
7. Heat prostration.

If any of your readers think that I am Mr. Gloom, they should talk to anyone who has worked in an emergency room of a hospital.

The above-listed accidents are everyday occurrences. Needless to say, the parents are guilt-ridden and can never forgive themselves. All they can say is, "I didn't know such a thing could happen." So here it is in the newspaper for all to see. Don't let it happen to your dear little boy or girl. — A Mother Who Cares

Dear Mother: I appreciate your having taken the time and trouble to write. You may have saved a life or two, or three, or four — who knows?

early 30s who is very confused and in need of some sound advice.

I've been seeing this man off and on since 1976. He moved in with me in '77. I lost a child last year and now have a five-week-old son by him. I used my cousin's name when I went to the hospital because the man is married.

I finally called his wife to ask her to give him a divorce so he could marry me. She said, "You did it for revenge. I still love my husband. I've forgiven him for this mistake and now I hope you will leave him alone."

I told my lover I would pay for his divorce, but he has done nothing. He visits or calls his wife every day and says he doesn't love her but he needs to know about their children.

He is still living with me as I write this and I need to know what to do. — Messed Up Life

Dear Messed Up: (1) See a lawyer. The man must support the child whether he is a married man or not.

(2) Ask him to leave at once and tell him not to phone or show his face until he has started divorce proceedings. (P.S. Don't stand on one foot waiting. He sounds like a clinker to me.)

Confidential To Lots Of Problems In Milwaukee: You need a "parentectomy" — which means to become completely independent from your parents. You must support yourself, make your own decisions and assume total responsibility for your own actions. At 30, you are old enough. Get going.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:
I want to pass along a little tip I learned from my mother.

Mother always had her kitchen carpeted, and it was so soft to walk on and so easy on your feet.

When I got my own apartment, she gave me a scrap of carpet that was about three feet long and two feet wide to put in front of my sink.

She said, "When you stand up a long time on a bare floor it is hard on your feet and your back."

Boy, was she right! That little piece of carpet makes all the difference in the world when I'm standing for a long time in front of the sink.

So do yourself a favor and put a big, plush, soft piece of carpet in front of your kitchen sink. I think you will really feel the difference it makes.

Happy feet to you! Hugs — Heloise

This could be a sticky situation but, thanks to you, we can handle it without getting all stuck up. You can also keep the pin in the glue. This works for me. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have thrown away many small tubes of the extra strength instant glues because after using for the first time, the cap is glued on so tight you cannot use the glue again.

I found a way to use this glue many times for that one miracle drop. Instead of removing the cap (you can't get it off anyway), take a pin and punch a small hole near the bottom corner of the tube to get just the amount you need. When finished, lay the tube down with the hole Pessimistic Pete looked over the dummy happily. The hour was late. It was the last rubber of the evening and Pete expected to win it and go home.

"Can anything bad happen to me?" he asked himself. "Give East the king of spades and five diamonds to an honor. He can get in and lead a diamond from five to an honor. Then, if I have to lose a club I can wind up two tricks down."

After this though, Pete played the ace of spades from dummy. Now he could count at least four clubs unless West held all four of the missing ones plus two spades, two hearts and a diamond.

Then he saw that if East held all four clubs he could get in trouble unless he made the sort of safety play that he, Pete, was famous for.

At trick two he led a club from dummy and carefully covered East's seven with the eight. West showed out and Pete's pessimism was well-rewarded. He wound up making an overtrick on a hand that would have been set without the super-safety play.

Ask the Experts

A Wisconsin reader asks if we ever pass as dealer with 14 high-card points.

The answer is a decided "no". When we have the equivalent of one ace more than an average hand, there is too much chance that a pass will cost us a game.

Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Experts," P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019. Individual questions will be answered if accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of Jacoby Modern.

Luncheon Honors Award Recipient

Mrs. H.A. Anderson, Lubbock Woman of the Year, will be the honor guest at a luncheon today at the Lubbock Women's Club. Hostesses will be those who have been women of the year in past years.

Mrs. Anderson's honor was announced March 1 at the Altrusa Club banquet. Annually since 1946, Altrusa has made such an award from nominations made by women's organizations throughout Lubbock.

Inez Moore, present president of Altrusa, will be a special guest at the luncheon.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 64 years old, a male, and today I had an extraordinary experience. While urinating I had a terrible sensation. The hairs on the back of my head prickled up and it brought tears to my eyes. I passed a little bead about half the size of a BB. It plopped into the water. If you think lead is heavy, this seemed ten times heavier. I imagine this was a gallstone. What can you tell me what to do about this situation? — W.B.

You have passed a stone, but not a gallstone. Gallstones don't reach the urinary tract, but may enter the digestive tract (bowels) and exit via that route. I hope you saved the stone to show to friends. Now take it to your doctor. Future treatment depends on the composition of the stone.

Based on chemical tests of the stone the doctor might want to do certain blood tests — for uric acid and calcium, for example — as well as x-rays of your kidneys.

Always save any abnormal objects passed for your doctor. They are very valuable in diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Should a person with high blood pressure get more sleep than other people? — H.F.

Probably Blood pressure tends to go down during sleep, so in that sense sleep might be considered therapy of a sort. Just how much sleep would vary with the individual. For some, a nap in the afternoon might be advisable if it's practical to do that. Even lying at rest can be beneficial. On the other hand the role of exercise is being emphasized more and more these days, so it's really a two-way street, a blend of appropriate exercise and adequate rest. My booklet, "Controlling Blood Pressure," explains the problem in more detail than I can go into here. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it true that vomiting is one of the very early signs a woman is pregnant? — F.P.

Yes, frequently it will occur after the first missed period and may last four or five months. In fact, it's estimated about 75 percent of women have this problem, most of them in their first pregnancies. Severe, persistent vomiting may require hospitalization, although most women can weather this storm. The chief danger is malnutrition.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I've been unable to find bananas in my calorie count chart. Wouldn't you know I love bananas? — H.D.

A banana of average size has about 100 calories.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please settle an argument between my husband and me. He claims that eating cured meats will make him less potent. He says they use saltpeter, and that this was used in the food when he was in the armed forces. I disagreed. I tell him that once the meat is cured and cooked, the saltpeter has no effect. — Mrs. J.B.

The "saltpeter" rumor dies hard, and is heard from these days on college campuses. Saltpeter is the familiar name for nitrate salts used to preserve bacon, cold cuts, hotdogs, etc. It has no effect on potency whether in cooked or uncooked meats, in spite of the common belief. Nitrates are not to be taken lightly, however, even though the small amounts used in food do not cause poisoning. The main concern now is the possibility of nitrate being a carcinogen (cancer producer), a question the Food and Drug Administration is investigating, as they did earlier with Red Dye No. 2 and the cyclamates (artificial sweeteners). Often, in matters such as this, the thought is the psychological father to the fact. If your husband has this idea let's hope this note sets matters straight.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have heard from time to time that animal dander is frequently a cause of allergy, to the point where some people cannot have animal pets. Just what is dander? — M.E.

Dander are tiny skin particles shed by animals. It's comparable to human shedding of normal skin, ordinarily not visible.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I saw the word cholelithiasis on a medical report recently. Translate, please. — J.S.

You must have gotten a good look because you spelled it correctly. It means gallstones.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill., 60611, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

JAMES EARL JONES meets one of the regulars on "A Walking Tour of Sesame Street."

'James Earl Jones Effect'

When James Earl Jones became the first guest star to appear during the first season of "Sesame Street" in 1969, he had to be convinced that his size and deep voice wouldn't frighten the program's young viewers.

"With my bald head (shaved for his role of Jack Johnson in the Broadway play "The Great White Hope"), I thought I'd terrify them," says Jones.

Instead, his recitation of the alphabet earned him a small niche in the lexicon of educational psychology, ac-ording to the Children's Television Workshop producers. They coined the phrase, "The James Earl Jones Effect" to describe the slight dramatic pause between the appearance of a letter and Jones' intoning of the sound.

It's no wonder that Jones has been chosen to guide viewers on "A Walking Tour of Sesame Street With James Earl Jones." The special is a documentary look at the evolution of the prize-winning educational PBS-TV series.

SOPHISTICATED SOUND is the specialty of Britain's Dire Straits.

Wrong name, right sound

Dire Straits, the new English band whose first album by the same name (Warner Bros.) is on its way to platinum, is in anything but dire straits these days.

One of the latest wave of British musicians to hit these shores, Dire Straits has arrived with all the force of a tidal wave.

Dire Straits fits into no set category. They're sharp but not savage, mellow but not mawkish.

Although shadows of Jim Morrison and Bob Dylan may be heard in the voice of lead singer-composer Mark Knopfer, the group's haunting, seductive sound, as evidenced by their hit single "Sultans of Swing," is unique.

At the recent SRO concert in NYC's Bottom Line, the four-man band presented a stage presence that was as well-received as their music. Their infectious good spirits were buoyed by their obvious camaraderie.

With only seven months on the charts, the first album is hitting No. 1 around the country. A new lp is in the works, to be released late this summer.

What's up in car imports?

The multitudes of Datsuns and Toyotas on U.S. highways attest to the fact that Japan is the nation's leading source of foreign cars. These were the leading exporters of new passenger cars to the United States in 1976, the last year for which figures are available:

Country	Number of cars

SHAUN? — Teenyboppers everywhere may be in for a shock when they see their idol Shaun Cassidy shorn of his long locks and satin jumpsuits for an upcoming ABC movie. Cassidy sports a three-piece suit and specs, as well as a new haircut, for the role of a young retarded man who falls in love with a young retarded woman (Linda Purl) in "A Very Special Love," based on a true incident. In this scene from show, set to air March 30, the two prepare for their wedding.

What's up in hitting?

Strike three? Not if you heed this advice for young sluggers from Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox. The American League most valuable player is one of the pros participating in the major leagues' "Pitch, Hit & Run" youth program, sponsored by Burger King.

According to Rice, the five important elements in becoming a good hitter are:

1. Confidence: As you stand in the batter's box, tell yourself you can hit any pitch thrown in the strike zone.

2. Concentration: Watch the ball from the time the pitcher steps onto the mound until he releases the pitch. Keep your head down. You should see the ball hit the bat.

3. Stance: Find a comfortable position at the plate that keeps you ready to hit the ball. Relax your legs. Keep your knees bent and your bat high.

4. Swing: When swinging, stride forward with your front foot, but keep your bat back as long as possible. Swing all the way through the ball. Use your hips along with the stride to gain more power. Your swing should come down over the plate and be level as it meets the ball. Be sure to follow through.

5. Discipline: That means knowing what you are capable of doing. Learn the pitchers, the strike zone, what you can hit and what you cannot.

What's up on television?

Women are reading more and watching television less, says a recent Good Housekeeping poll.

Some 64.5 percent of the 60,000 women surveyed by the magazine reported viewing less television now than they did three years ago. These were their leading complaints about TV and the percentages who cited each:

Complaint	Percent
Too much advertising	77.0
Offensive advertising	74.7
Too much violence	71.9
Programs are too similar	66.5
Too much sex	64.3
Programs talk down to viewer	52.1
Poor writing	45.3
Poor acting	28.4

What programs do the women like? Their top 10 were: "M*A*S*H," "Little House on the Prairie," "60 Minutes," "The Waltons," "Three's Company," "Family," "Eight Is Enough," "Phil Donahue," "Quincy," and "Love Boat."

Pentagon Studies Demise Of New Jersey Base

FORT DIX, N.J. (AP) — When there's talk here about closing this 62-year-old military installation, the conversation quickly gets down to basics.

"Don't say that — I'm a homeowner," remarked Staff Sgt. Thomas Bash of Cleveland, a drill instructor running recruits through a physical training session of pushups and jumping jacks.

With 15 years of service behind him, Bash recently returned from an assignment in Germany, bought a house in nearby Browns Mills and wants to settle in the area as a recruiter after a two-year stint as a drill sergeant.

"If they close Dix, I figure it would cut the value of my home in half," he added.

The prospect of padlocking the gates is THE hot topic at this patchwork base of modern brick and decrepit frame structures, which first sprung up from central New Jersey corn fields as a World War I infantry training camp, and was named after Maj. Gen. John Adams Dix, a one-time New York governor, U.S. senator, and ambassador to France.

But the closing announcements are nothing new, according to Command Sgt. Maj. Alejandro Murphy, who came here from Ponce, Puerto Rico, for basic training 26 years ago.

"Every year, it's the same rumor and every year things turn out the same," he said. "It's usually around Election Day, but nothing happens."

The rumor wave this year, however, is being buoyed by a yet-to-be officially released Pentagon study, which reportedly suggests there could be more profound, long-range public economies by deactivating Fort Dix and developing Fort Jackson in Columbia, S.C.

Consolidation is called for because the number of recruits in basic training this year — 200,000 — is about half the total groomed annually for warfare during the Vietnam conflict, the year-long study reportedly concludes.

Military officials estimate closing Fort Dix in favor of Fort Jackson would save

TIMES HAVE CHANGED — Sgt. Antoinette Beck of Albany, Ore., one of the first female drill sergeants at Fort Dix instructs her male charges on their first day in the army. Mrs. Beck says she often reminds recruits who want to quit the service that they weren't drafted, they enlisted. (AP Laserphoto)

$20 million immediately and an extra $14 million annually.

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Sennewald, commanding general here, declined to comment on recommendations in the study of Fort Dix.

"The Secretary of the Army has forwarded his recommendation to the office of the Secretary of Defense. Any further comment is inappropriate until the Secretary of Defense has made his decision on the matter," said Lt. Douglas Kremer, an information officer, reading an Army Department statement.

With a combined annual payroll of more than $100 million for 11,000 military personnel and more than 3,300 civilians, the economic impact of a closing would be considerable on the areas of Burlington and Ocean counties which surround this 55-square-mile military base.

Supplies, equipment and services purchased locally amounted to more than $20.6 million last year, said Kremer.

In addition, the Army estimates it has an investment here of more than $174.5 million in buildings and related military structures, $37.7 million in utilities and more than $2.4 million in land acquisitions, Kremer said.

The desolate aura at noon inside Corti's Diner just beyond a fort gate in Wrightstown is testament to the decline in training here.

"We used to be open 24 hours a day and this place would be packed with parents, wives and girl friends," said waitress Bea Murray, a former WAC from Arkansas who stayed and married after getting out of the Army 12 years ago. "But look around — times have sure changed."

Virtually every local and state official has voiced opposition to the frequent threats of a possible shutdown, a process described by Rep. Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., as "part of the annual rites of Congress."

But there's also the assessment available at the Hilltop gasoline station on Route 68 in nearby Springfield Township, which John Hippenstiel runs along with the motel next door.

"It'll kill us," he says of a possible shutdown. "Even now things are bad enough — 18 rooms in that motel and every one's available."

Arguments in favor of closing Fort Dix mention bad winter weather here, antiquated facilities and lack of a nearby urban center.

Fort officials predict that a "mothball" order for basic training here wouldn't affect every operation. There are more than 36,000 National Guard and Army Reserve units who drill here on weekends, the 500-bed Walsom Army Hospital and the drill sergeants academy.

After World War I, what was then called Camp Dix was the main separation center for returning servicemen. In the Depression, it was a training center for 300,000 Civilian Conservation Corps members.

With the start of the draft and then World War II, the camp became a permanent Army installation and its name was changed to Fort Dix.

Miller Renews 'Beer War'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Miller Brewing Co. is renewing the "beer war" with an accusation that arch-rival Anheuser-Busch is watering down some of its brew and calling it "light."

The nation's top two brewers have been skirmishing for months. Their ammunition is in the form of documents and protests filed with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"We understand that Anheuser-Busch produces Michelob Light simply by brewing a batch of regular Michelob and then diluting it with carbonated water," Miller said.

Busch retorted: "We find it hard to understand how we can be accused of misleading consumers with our Michelob Light since every can and bottle of the product prominently displays the statement 'contains 134 calories, approximately 20 percent fewer than Michelob.'"

In earlier encounters Miller accused Busch of unfairly claiming its products were "natural," and top-selling Busch accused Miller of promoting Lowenbrau as an import when it is made in this country.

Miller, which pioneered the "light" beer phenomenon with its "Lite" brand which has 96 calories — and which helped push Miller from back in the pack to the No. 2 spot — said the government should ban use of the phrase "light" for any beer containing more than 100 calories.

Busch said the difference is in the tast-

Gold Price Jump Seen By Mine Executive

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Gold prices may reach $300 an ounce this year, Dennis Etheridge, vice president of the South African Chamber of Mines, said Thursday.

In an interview published here, he predicted prices would jump after September when the United States stops gold auctions. Gold on the London market was selling for $242.90 an ounce Thursday.

South Africa supplies about 65 percent of the world's gold. The Chamber of Mines is a private association of mine owners.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAR. 24, 1979

PHYSICAL
 Criticals: 5, 16, 28, 39, 51, 62, 74 ... Deadbeat physically
 Highs: 6-15, 29-38, 52-61, 75 ... You have a lot of energy
 Lows: 1-4, 17-27, 40-50, 63-73 ... Pace yourself

EMOTIONAL
 Criticals: 14, 28, 42, 56, 70, 84 ... Avoid stress
 Highs: 15-27, 43-55, 71-83 ... Can be happy day for you
 Lows: 1-13, 29-41, 57-69, 85 ... Look for peace and quiet

INTELLECTUAL
 Criticals: 9, 26, 42, 59, 75, 92 ... Brains not reliable Highs: 1-8, 27-41, 60-74, 93-95 ... Come up with something new Lows: 10-25, 43-58, 76-91 ... Read fine print twice

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Lab Keeps Up With Latest In Fungus

IN AMERICA

By PATRICK REID
 ARCATA, Calif. (NEA) — A few refrigerators in a basement laboratory at northern California's Humboldt State University hold the results of countless years of research.

Among the samples worth millions of dollars are no new wonder drugs, synthetic fibers, radioactive isotopes or exotic forms of plant life.

Instead, the refrigerators contain about 3,500 samples of the common orange bread mold Neurospora and the fungus Aspergillus, a third cousin of penicillin.

This Fungal Genetics Stock Center is the only such repository of mold and fungi samples in the world. It serves thousands of biologists, chemists, pharmacists and researchers.

"These things are irreplaceable," says curator William Ogata of the mold samples. "Some represent 10 years' work...others may have taken 10 days."

Ogata says the center processes about 1,800 requests for samples each year. The center's resources are indexed in the "Neurospora Newsletter," an annual publication that also announces new research projects and provides other mold information.

An annual $60,000 grant from the National Science Foundation supports the newsletter and allows the center to distribute Neurospora and Aspergillus free of charge.

More than 6,000 research papers have been published by scientists working with Neurospora, says Ray Barratt, director of the center and dean of the HSU School of Science.

Neurospora is a valuable tool for geneticists because mutations produced in it by X-rays, ultraviolet light and other techniques can be inherited, and each gene controls a single metabolic step. That discovery won a Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine for George Beadle and Edward Tatum in 1958.

Barratt says the primary advantage of working with Neurospora is its rapid growth. Its entire life cycle lasts just 14 days. In a relatively short time, therefore, a researcher can observe several generations, determining which step in the mold's metabolism has been interrupted as the result of a mutation.

"It's easy to make a bunch of mutants," Barratt says. "It's hard to find where the damage has been done."

Although the bread-mold mutants at HSU are relatively simple organisms, their genes and chromosomes function in the same manner as those in all other sexual life forms. As a result, says Barratt, research using Neurospora helps scientists gain a better understanding of metabolic processes in the human body.

The center grows Neurospora on a synthetic medium, reducing the number of variables that may affect an experiment.

"And it can be grown in very large quantities," says Barratt.

After the mold is incubated, samples are freeze-dried or dried through absorption on silica gel for storage. Mutant strains can be held in a state of suspended animation for 20 years or more.

Because the food source for the bread mold is limited, the organisms can be easily controlled.

"Once they get out of the lab, they have to compete with other organisms in the soil," adds Barratt.

As a precaution against fire or an extended power outage at the lab, one set of duplicate samples is stored at Stanford University.

DATING CUSTOM

The custom of dating events B.C. (before Christ) and A.D. (Anno domini, in the year of our Lord) was introduced about 525 by Dionysius Exiguus, a Roman abbot and astronomer who set Christ's birth 753 years after the founding of Rome.

"YANKEE DOODLE"

The origin of the song "Yankee Doodle" is unknown, but it is believed to have been composed in England in the 1750s and used to deride American colonials. It became instead a patriotic American air.

Parents Sue Manufacturers Of Fatal Toy

ATLANTA (AP) — The parents of a 4-year-old boy who died when a toy missile lodged in his throat filed suits totaling $14 million in federal court Friday against Mattel Inc., manufacturer of the toy.

Attorney Wade Hoyt III filed the suits on behalf of John D. Warren and his wife, Doris Warren, of Gwinnett County near Atlanta.

Their son, Robert Jeffrey, died last Dec. 31, two days after he "either shot the red missile attachment down his throat or was attempting to load the missile" into a "Cylon Raider" toy of the company's Battletar Galactica product line, the suits said.

In one suit, Mrs. Warren seeks $3 million in damages for the "wrongful death" of her son and $10 million in aggravated damages "connected with the defendant's negligence."

In the second suit, the father seeks $5,995.54 in medical costs and $1 million in damages for the "pain and suffering" caused his son.

"We have not been served with that suit, so we will have no comment," Deanna Xavier, Mattel manager of corporate affairs, said from the firm's headquarters in Hawthorne, Calif.

The suits charge negligence on Mattel's part for failure to issue warnings about the toys' potential danger, saying the toy manufacturer "knew or should have known well in advance" of the boy's death that the toy was dangerous and-or defective.

The suits cited as an example a toy-related injury of a 3-year-old New York child last November, which was reported to Mattel.

The suits also charge Mattel with designing a defective toy and with failing to initiate a voluntary program of attaching warning labels to its Battletar Galactica toys.

"None of these have any economic value nor are they pathogens," Barratt notes, explaining that some bacteria viruses used for genetic research can be quite dangerous. Among the most valuable cultures are barley and yeast strains used by brewers and wine makers.

Barratt says similar genetics stock centers have been established to preserve research on subjects ranging from algae to primates.

Brothers Charged With Murders

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Authorities who have charged three Maryland brothers with killing several prospective witnesses to their alleged burglary ring have amended the trio's indictment to include conspiracy to kill yet another witness. Bruce Johnston Sr., 39, is being held on six murder charges. His brothers, David, 28, and Norman, 30, are being held in connection with five of those killings.

Winter Snows Leave Americans Dazed, Weary

By Barbara S. Moffet
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Poets rhapsodize over it. Children frolic in it. Most of the rest of us curse it.
 And there has been plenty to curse about this year. The blankety-blank snow that has blanketed much of the country since the onset of winter has shown little mercy. Even southern California got a taste Jan. 31 when a major storm piled up drifts four feet high and shut down Los Angeles highways.
 But that is only the tip of the iceberg. Chicago has almost been snowed off the map. By mid-February its cumulative snowfall for the season — 84 inches — had already surpassed winter totals since record keeping began there in 1871.
 Not only has it snowed big in Chicago, but the snow has had a nasty sense of timing. The National Geographic Society says.

"Our snows have been in close succession, so there hasn't been much recovery time," said Ray Waldman of the National

Prison Magazine's Censorship OK'ed

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court said Friday prison authorities have a perfect right to censor prison publications.

The censorship rule had been challenged by inmate editors of a magazine at the Virginia State Penitentiary who contended it violated their constitutional rights of free speech.

Their petition for an injunction was denied by a U.S. District Court and that ruling was upheld by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday.

The appeals court said it agreed with the lower court that certain articles in the November-December 1977 issue of FYSK (Facts You Should Know) were "definitely inflammatory."

It said prisoners do not automatically give up their rights of free speech when they go behind bars, but that this right must be considered in the light of legitimate penological objectives.

Bill Would Put Boxing

Panel In Labor Agency
WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel will hold hearings next week on legislation that would create a federal boxing commission as part of the Labor Department.

The hearings will be held by the House Education and Labor Committee's standards subcommittee, headed by Rep. Edward P. Beard, D-R.I., a former amateur boxer.

Among those who have confirmed they will testify before the panel beginning next Wednesday are onetime middleweight boxing champions Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano, former lightweight champion Carmen Basilio and onetime featherweight champion Willie Pep.

During the Middle Ages, a pound of ginger was equal in value to a sheep.

Weather Service there. "Besides, they've all come when it has been very cold. That has made it difficult for the snow removal equipment to operate, not to mention the people."

Chicago started out the New Year with a bang — bearing the brunt of a whopper storm that extended from the Far West to Missouri. The snow stopped as many as 100,000 travelers in their tracks at the city's O'Hare International Airport.

Victims of canceled flights waited two and three days in the coffee-stained, trash-strewn terminal while, in some cases, their baggage flew on to St. Louis or Albuquerque.

For those saddled with the task of keeping O'Hare's roads and runways free of snow and ice, winter '79 quickly became the one they'd most like to forget.

Things got so bad in mid-January that the airport completely closed down for about 40 hours.

"I'm guessing our snow and ice removal costs will add up to nearly $7 million," said John Carr, acting airport manager. "And that is a record."

United Airlines, headquartered in Chicago, also has put "snow" on the dirty word list. In the first seven weeks of the year snow forced the airline to cancel a record 7,500 flights nationally.

Chicago restaurateurs have a few naughty words for snow, too. The Chicago & Illinois Restaurant Association estimates that since the first of the year, snow has cost the city's restaurant owners at least $5 million in lost business.

For much of the Midwest, January was one big snowstorm. Milwaukee had four big snows in a row. The city quickly exhausted its $3 million budget for snow removal.

"Our big headache was cars — the plows couldn't get through," said a tired assistant-superintendent of sanitation and snow removal, Ray Caplan. "In the month of January, if I got three hours' sleep I was fortunate."

People were not the only ones to suffer this winter. Thousands of deer, antelope, and elk died in Colorado and Wyoming when an unusually deep pack of ice and snow blocked them from their food supply.

Cattle in Nebraska died when the snow got too deep for them to reach their food. Even some farmers in isolated areas relied on airdrops to eat.

As February came to a close, the Midwest was struck again. More than two feet of snow fell in parts of southeast Missouri, and drifts were as high as 10 feet in southern Illinois. A doctor and nurse in Fredericktown, Mo., had to ski to a rural house to deliver a baby.

February was cruel to the East Coast as well. A snowy rampage in mid-month paralyzed the Atlantic Seaboard and parts of the South. For a short time, all air travel east of St. Louis came to a halt.

More than a foot of snow fell on New York City. In Delaware, the governor declared a state of emergency as snow in Dover reached a depth of 25 inches.

The storm brought Washington, D.C., to its knees. Adding 18 inches to the half-foot already on the ground, it ranked as the most severe snowstorm since 1922.

It foiled Washington's birthday sales and stopped up the mass transit system. Violence broke out among people turned away from jobs shoveling snow from exposed subway tracks.

The snow made temporary heroes out of farmers who have been in town for weeks protesting farm prices. Tooling around in the snow, their tractor tires treading over cars, the farmers ferried doctors and nurses to hospitals and pulled marooned motorists out of drifts.

Meanwhile, the federal government all but shut down. The normally traffic-choked streets turned into a pedestrian paradise as suddenly carefree Washingtonians celebrated the snowfall. A few dedicated bureaucrats and Capitol Hill workers skied to their jobs. But many others, including some Cabinet members, didn't make it at all. That innocent looking white stuff had taken on the nation's capital and won.

Some People Can Tell 'Shocking' Tales About Static Electricity

By WILLIAM J. O'NEILL
 National Geographic News Service
 WASHINGTON — The shocking touch of a doorknob after walking across a carpeted room can cause some people to break crockery.
 A Bethesda, Md., housewife remembers once receiving such a jolt that a cake platter flew out of her hand and broke against the sideboard.

Such doings aren't the work of ghosts, but of static electricity. Friction caused by a person's feet brushing the carpet builds up an electrical charge that is suddenly released when the individual touches a grounded object — which could be a doorknob or another person.

One man was so startled when stung by this miniature lightning that he crushed a newly lit cigar in half. His wife likes to think of it as "a bolt from heaven."

 Carpet manufacturers are working to remedy the problem, less from concern for cigars or china than for computers, which go haywire when zapped by static electricity.

The Seattle Times, for example, found its computer scrambled stories and garbled letters when static electricity built up on cold days. Employees solved the problem by placing a wok filled with water in the computer room.

Moisture in the air gets into the carpet, reducing the dryness and friction that cause static electricity to build up.

"It's effective, but not always practical," according to Ned Hopper, the Carpet and Rug Institute's director of consumer affairs. "In some areas, you can end up with condensation running down the walls and freezing the windows."

Hopper told the National Geographic News Service that manufacturers use various methods to enable carpeting to conduct electricity, so that when people walk on it they won't be shocked.

"The latex backing on a carpet can be treated chemically, or chemicals can be added to man-made fibers while they're still in the liquid state," he explained. "Or steel or copper wires — no thicker than a human hair — can be tufted or woven into the fabric."

Such carpeting normally is produced for computer installations or public buildings where there is a lot of traffic, Hopper said. "Antistat" wires usually are not found in carpeting for homes, because the wires would increase the cost.

For people bothered by static electricity at home, he suggested spraying the offending carpet with a commercial preparation.

"These tend to make a carpet soil faster," he warned, "and they aren't permanent. The treatment wears off as you walk on it. But spraying every autumn is generally adequate."

Synthetic shoe soles on a nylon carpet will create a bigger charge than leather shoes on a wool rug, Hopper said. And he noted that some people are more susceptible to static electricity than others.

"People who shuffle instead of picking up their feet can get a jolt from almost any carpeting made," he said. Giving a boost to dieters, he added: "Anyone who is overweight puts more friction on a carpet and gets a bigger shock."

White Says Fees Should Go To County

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White has said the fees a justice of the peace receives for copies of birth and death records should go to the county that bears the expenses of his office.

The written opinion referred to a Dallas County justice of the peace serving as a registrar for the entire city of Grand Prairie, which extends into Tarrant County.

White said the money should be deposited in the Dallas County treasury.

The opinion responded to an inquiry from Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade.

Elizabeth I of England was excommunicated by Pope Pius V in 1570.

Shah's Overthrow Ended Nixon Doctrine

By FRANZ SCHURMANN
(c) 1979 Pacific News Service

The overthrow of the Shah of Iran demolished one of the key U.S. policies for the assurance of U.S. interests in the Indian Ocean and especially the oil-rich Middle East.

Those policies grew out of the Nixon Doctrine proclaimed on Guam in July 1969. Also dubbed the "offshore strategy," the Nixon Doctrine was motivated by two critical situations: U.S. over-involvement in Vietnam and the British military pullout from the Persian Gulf announced in 1968. The Nixon Doctrine had three key aspects:

• U.S. ground combat forces would be substantially reduced in all areas of East Asia;

• Certain surrogate powers would undertake to play roles of regional peacekeepers for which they would be armed and supported by the U.S.;

• And the U.S. would maintain an offshore naval presence from which military power could be brought to bear in support of regional military operations.

The central thrust of the Nixon Doctrine was to substitute bilateral alliance to regional powers for what had turned out to be costly and ineffective direct U.S. involvement in overseas conflicts. Its most concrete result was to project U.S. military power into the Indian Ocean for the first time in history. The first appearance of a U.S. carrier force came when the Enterprise steamed into the Bay of Bengal during the Indo-Pakistan war in December 1971.

Nowhere was the need for regional defense partners more urgent than in the oil-rich Persian Gulf where the U.S. had no military presence and the British completed their pullout in 1971. Though for years kept apart by bitter hatreds, Iran and Saudi Arabia forged a powerful common alliance through OPEC. During the critical December 1970-January 1971 oil negotiations, Iran and Saudi Arabia emerged as the two most vehement oil hawks.

During his 1972 visit to Tehran, President Nixon gave the shah a virtual blank check to procure whatever arms and in whatever amounts he needed for his conventional forces, a secret deal ferreted out by the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey. U.S. arms poured into Iran and then, as Israeli fears were calmed, into Saudi Arabia.

With its 34 million people, however, Iran played the key regional defense role. New naval base began to spring up on the south Iranian coast at Bandar Abbas and Chah Bahar. The Iranian Navy ranged deep into the southern Indian Ocean. Secret understandings between Iran and South Africa on anti-Soviet defense matters were rumored. Iranian troops fought a major counter-insurgency in Dhofar, a western province of Oman.

The Iran-Saudi "twin pillar" strategy eventually paved the way for drawing in Egypt, which had expelled all its Soviet advisers in July 1972. As Egypt's ties to Saudi Arabia and Iran tightened, its links also grew to bitterly anti-Soviet China, which supplied it spare parts for its Soviet-made weapons.

As "normalization" of U.S.-China relations began to turn China into an informal ally of the U.S., China began to assume a de facto role as one of the Nixon Doctrine regional powers, a part of the containment ring against the Soviet Union whose western anchor was Egypt.

Nevertheless, the Nixon Doctrine over the years suffered a series of setbacks. Australia during the Gough Whitlam government refused to provide the U.S. with a naval homeport. Thailand, terrified by the fall of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia warmed up to its Communist neighbors. Pakistan was battered by India and lost East Pakistan, which became Bangladesh.

But it was the fall of the shah that administered the coup de grace to the Nixon Doctrine and its offshoot, the "twin pillar" strategy. This has confronted the U.S. with the stark alternative — either withdraw from the Indian Ocean region or move in directly. All signs indicate the U.S. is making the second choice.

Correct Form For Society Usage Set

LONDON (UPI) — Suppose you're writing the pope and aren't sure about the proper way to begin the letter. Or the queen is coming to dinner and you don't know where to seat her. Or maybe you need the proper form for saying good evening to a knight ("night, knight").

The answers are all in Debrett's Correct Form, a guidebook to etiquette by the same authorities who put together Debrett's peerage, a guide to who's who among the nobility.

The latest edition of Debrett's Correct Form, published this week, is subtitled "an inclusive guide to everything from drafting wedding invitations to addressing an archbishop."

That it is virtually no social occasion or situation, however far-fetched to the average reader, left untouched. After all, you never know when you might need to apply for admittance to the royal enclosure at Ascot.

And while most of us may not write the pope on a regular basis, it's comforting to know that in case we do, the proper beginning is either, "your holiness" or, "most holy father."

How to behave with the queen and royal family is given full treatment. First, it should be noted that upon being introduced, one bows from the head only — not from the waist, Debrett's says firmly.

Introducing the queen to another person is an exercise in discretion. You state only the name of the person to be introduced ("May I present — your royal highness"), and certainly never do anything so gauche as complete the introduction with the obvious "and this is the queen."

Is the queen coming to dinner? Then you need to know where to seat her. The answer to that's easy enough: "the host always surrenders his place to her, he himself being seated on her right."

But you also need to hope no royal guest is in the mood for dancing till dawn because "no guest should leave a function before a member of the royal family, except in special circumstances where prior permission should be obtained."

But not all questions of etiquette involve royalty and Debrett's makes sure the reader is not left to blunder into disgrace on any social occasion.

How to address a nun in final vows? ("the formal style of address and reference is 'dame'"), or what about a retired armed forces officer who has entered holy orders? ("The Reverend John Smith, commander, Royal Navy").

And for those who still wonder, yes, you can say "night, knight."

FISHERMEN MISSING

TOKYO (AP) — Sixteen Japanese fishermen remained missing Friday more than 24 hours after their 59-ton boat capsized off Shimoda, central Japan. A spokesman for the Maritime Safety Agency said two crewmen of the boat, Kaitoku-Maru, were rescued late Thursday night but an extensive search from air and sea failed to find the others.

Daring Thieves Threaten Valuable Rugs

BOSTON (AP) — Homeowners are learning the hard way that their most valuable possessions may not be paintings, jewelry or even silver. Instead, they are the rugs under their feet.

Police say a specialized breed of burglar is emerging — crooks who steal only Oriental rugs.

In one break last year at the Commonwealth School, a private prep school in Boston, thieves broke into an auction gallery set up for a weekend sale and made off with about 100 rugs valued at $100,000.

Sgt. John Doris, who investigates break-ins in Boston's Back Bay section, commented: "You don't expect somebody to come out and just steal the rug off the floor, but it happens. It has really increased in the past two years."

Police say burglars are attracted to Orientals because they are easy to sell, hard to trace and very valuable.

The thefts are most frequent in areas where the wealthy live.

"All of a sudden, there's a big interest in Oriental rugs," said Sgt. Brian Roche in Palm Beach, Fla. "It's something that's picked up in the past year. The thieves seem to be content to just break in and take one rug. Usually, it's the rug in the entryway."

Especially vulnerable are Oriental carpets in public places, such as doctors' offices, Doris says. Sometimes the thief will casually walk in, snatch the rug off the floor and run out the door, leaving behind a waiting room full of gaping patients.

In Montgomery County, a wealthy Maryland suburb of Washington, Detective James King said Oriental rugs are stolen once or twice a month.

"I can think of occasions when they've left behind new (machine-made) Karastans but taken old Orientals that look so bad you wouldn't want your dog to lie on. But these old rugs are valuable, and they know what they're doing."

In Wellesley, an affluent Boston suburb, Detective Paul Maccini agreed: "There are thieves who just go for Orientals. And they are choosy. Sometimes they won't take a small runner, but they'll take rugs that are worth some bucks. They know what they're doing."

"At least once a week, I get people who come in and say they have been cleaned out of Oriental rugs," said John Gregorian, a Boston-area rug importer.

Police say some of the hot rugs are sold to shady dealers. But others are quickly sent out of the country, especially to Europe.

Gregorian said many of the American thieves have European contacts, and stolen rugs are sent air freight.

The prime motivation, of course, is money. The price of new rugs has risen dramatically in recent years, and even frayed Orientals increase in value. A typical 9-by-12 foot rug that was worth $2,000 in 1970 now costs $5,000.

Gregorian said Oriental rug prices have risen because of increasing demand and diminishing supply.

"It used to be that a relatively small number of people in the United States could afford these rugs. Today the U.S. has become an important market. People want Orientals both because they appreciate them and as a hedge against inflation."

Doctors Defend Electronic Monitoring

gynecology at Cedars Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles.

The rationale for the technology is that it gives an early indication of lack of oxygen and stress that could lead to brain damage, cerebral palsy and mental retardation.

Dr. Julian Parer at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco argues that listening with a stethoscope cannot detect asphyxiation until it is almost too late. He said the monitor is especially beneficial in high-risk cases where the mother is older, has been ill, or where baby is premature or of low weight. As to caesareans, Dr. Parer said "monitoring per se. does not lead to caesareans. Inappropriate monitoring does."

There are several techniques for electronic monitoring and they are often used in tandem. The internal monitor involves the attachment of electrodes on wires to the mother's uterus and to the baby's scalp. The wires are hooked to an oscilloscope that displays patterns that indicate force of contractions and the strength of the infant heart beat.

Another version of the system uses ultrasound waves and is strapped onto the mother's abdomen.

Most critics of the monitoring technique agree that it can be useful in high risk cases. But in routine use, they say, the potential damage is greater than any benefit.

"As a nurse I now have two things to worry about — the patient and the monitor," said Peggy Vincent, who has worked 16 years as an obstetrical nurse.

"External monitors especially are always showing distress. They are useful for tracing contractions and (therefore) can help a woman with her breathing. But other than that they just cause anxiety for everybody. It's hard to watch the baby's heart rate drop and not do something."

"That kind of anxiety, pushing the panic button, leads to frequent and often unnecessary caesarean sections."

The very act of monitoring can give rise to signs of distress because in most instances the mother is confined to her back, lying on the principal blood vessel leading to the baby, some critics of the monitoring have pointed out.

Drs. Banta and Thacker, in the OTA study, found that up to 90 per cent of monitor signals of fetal distress could be false alarms. The external monitor, especially, is known to shift and measure other things, such as the mother's movements instead of the baby's heartbeat.

To many of its critics, the monitor has come to be a symbol of all that is wrong with modern hospitals. They see depersonalized flashing and beeping devices increasingly replacing the human exchange between a woman in labor and her doctor.

"Normal labor is not as interesting to many physicians as working with the technology of modern obstetrics," observed Madeleine Shearer of Berkeley, a childbirth educator and editor of Birth and the Family Journal. "Monitoring is useful for research and teaching too. It gives a physician the false confidence he can do many things and any ill effect will show up on the monitor. So they'll say — we'll induce and monitor, we'll give morphine and monitor. They feel now they can do many things you'd otherwise feel a little hesitant about doing."

The worst harm done by the monitor, according to Shearer, is that it has led to a potentially dangerous dependence on highly sophisticated machinery, despite indications that it is trouble-prone and inaccurate.

Many young physicians and nurses, because they are trained by people who rely on the devices, do not even know what normal labor is anymore. Shearer claims. And they do not learn the fine skills of the stethoscope.

Dr. Lewis Mehl of the Berkeley Family Health Center agrees with Shearer, though he believes that the monitor can be useful with high risk births.

"One is taught in medical school that EFM is the only way to do things. That's partly because in medical schools people are doing research and they need a certain number of tracings. Doctors are also taught that labor is an intensive emergency situation. They get very insecure if they don't know what the heart rate is every second."

As the debate over the device, and about other medical technology, continues, the Food and Drug Administration is considering regulation of ultrasound devices, including the external monitor, based on preliminary animal studies indicating that continued bombardment with high frequency sound waves may cause genetic damage to the fetus. The FDA is also checking indications that the low radiation level advertised by the monitor's manufacturers are not always fixed but tend to range upwards with age.

Nuclear Warfare Survival Problems Probed In Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Survivors of a massive nuclear attack on the United States would be plagued by psychological problems and would face devastating shortages of food, fuel, and medical services, a congressional study said Thursday.

“Even the simplest requirements of survival will become major tasks,” the study said.

It estimated it would take at least five years for the country to generate the industrial and agricultural surpluses necessary for rapid economic growth and recovery.

The study was conducted for the Senate Banking Committee by Dr. Arthur Katz, a chemist, during research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Most analyses of nuclear warfare focus only on the number of fatalities and destruction of cities, and overlook the ripple effects of damage throughout the economy, Katz said.

Food shortages would be severe, Katz said, because of the concentration of food processing facilities in areas that would be heavily damaged — in the Northeast, Great Lakes and Southwestern regions.

These same areas are dependent on food grown or produced in other regions of the country, and an attack would leave the food distribution system in disarray, Katz said. He predicted that survivors in the Northeast might not get large-scale resupplies for up to several months after an attack.

In the area of energy production and distribution, Katz said a full-scale nuclear attack would knock out 98 percent of the nation's petroleum-refining capacity. What was left would not be enough even to meet farm needs, he said.

Foreign sources of oil, which fill 40 percent of the country's requirements, might be curtailed or cut off, and the petroleum would have to be refined even if it were delivered, he said.

Katz said it probably would be several years before the country had the capacity to efficiently convert domestic or imported fuel.

In the area of medical care, Katz said the pharmaceutical industry would be virtually eliminated because it is a top priority target.

A high proportion of doctors and medical specialists would be killed because of their concentration in cities, he said.

In a major attack on 71 large urban areas, perhaps as many as 75 percent of the physicians would be killed or injured, Katz said, leaving a ratio of 200-to-600 surviving casualties to each doctor.

Immediately after the attack, the number might be as high as 1,000 casualties per doctor because of the large number of “dying and injured,” the study said.

Record Setter Seeks Bride Number 23

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Glynn de Moss “Scotty” Wolfe, 70 years old and already listed by Guinness as the World's Most Married Man, says he's looking for bride No. 23, and his Hollywood press agent will help him choose her.

After all, Wolfe says, she'll be marrying a star. Wolfe has been a minor celebrity for years as the number of his wives, and ex-wives, increased.

He is listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as making the greatest number of marriages in the monogamous world. His first marriage was in 1927. Many of his brides were teen-agers, and some of his wives have been recycled. He says his longest marriage lasted five years, the shortest 38 days. He claims to have 39 children.

“This is as close to heaven as I can get,” marrying all the time, Wolfe said in a telephone interview this week, adding that he's “lovin’ every morning and every night.”

But the attention his marriages received wasn't enough. Now he's gone Hollywood — an agent, news conferences and attendant hoopla.

He says he's eager for recognition and figures he can live in Blythe, a little desert town 225 miles east of here, where he owns a hotel, and travel into Los Angeles whenever fame beckons.

Don Janklow, the agent, is hyping his client as “a celebrity who gives love” and who is ready to spread that love around the world.

The planned path to stardom will start in Australia, where a television executive says he will broadcast Wolfe's next wedding live, according to Janklow. Then comes a round-the-world honeymoon.

But therein lies the quandary. Now that bride-to-be No. 23 will be taken along on a whirlwind trip to fame, Wolfe wants to be extra careful about who she is.

Wolfe had planned to marry a 17-year-old last month, but court permission hasn't yet been granted for a wedding involving a minor.

Englishman Pursues Ancestry Here

By JEFF McCASLIN

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Tracing family ancestry has become a popular pastime for thousands of Americans, especially since the television miniseries “Roots” topped the all-time viewer ratings a couple of years ago.

The British, however, have always been interested in tracing family trees, hoping to turn up a distant cousin or great-great-grandfather with royal blood.

Most English families have well-charted pasts and crests proclaiming their heritage while many Americans must delve deeper to chart their ancestral beginnings.

Peter J. Lubbock, a British advertising executive, visited the Hub City this week in search of familial offshoots who came to America to settle. And if his name sounds strangely familiar it is because he came here hoping to link the Lubbock family in England to the same family in Texas for which this city was named.

Although the Londoner was unable to unravel that link during his library search here the past couple of days, he did trace back the Lubbock family in Texas to a Capt. Richard Lubbock, who died in a South Carolina in 1724.

Capt. Lubbock was the grandfather of Col. Tom S. Lubbock, a confederate officer for whom the South Plains city is named.

You won't find any Lubbocks in the phone directory because none of them, including the colonel, ever lived here, he says.

“Most of Col. Lubbock's descendants are living in the San Antonio and Austin areas. I couldn't find a single one who ever lived in Lubbock.”

He said the English family can be traced back to the 1300s, when the family occupied areas in Germany and the name was spelled Lubeck. He said the family began spreading into England and settled along the east coast of the British Isles in Norfolk County. He added the Lubbock name includes a member of the House of Lords as well as wealthy merchants and bankers.

Lubbock said he has been fascinated with tracing his family roots, a task he says lured him to Texas.

“I've known about this city (Lubbock) for the past 25 years and have always wanted to come here and research the family name.”

Teamsters Leader Wants To Organize N.Y. Prostitutes

NEW YORK (AP) — The Teamsters leader who heads the city and state public employee lobbies wants to organize the city's prostitutes if the “oldest profession” is legalized here.

Teamsters leader Barry Feinstein said he supports legalization of both prostitution and casino gambling for the city.

Feinstein predicted casino gambling would be in operation here by 1981 or 1982, but offered no timetable for legal prostitution.

The remarks were for a Victor Riesel Interviews broadcast being aired Friday night over WEVD-AM-FM.

Asked outside the studio whether he would be interested in enlisting the ladies of the night in one of his unions, Feinstein said he would.

Question Popped In Style

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — When Bob Amstrup of Grand Forks popped the question to his girlfriend, he lit up the night sky to do it.

Amstrup, 27, engaged a Fargo advertising firm to carry his message on the wings of an airplane.

Pilot Lynn Larson said the plane flew over Grand Forks Wednesday night carrying the 44-foot-wide message, “Deb, I love you. Will you marry me? Bob” in letters 10 feet high.

Amstrup said he and his fiancée, Deborah Waxvik, 24, Grand Forks, were enjoying a champagne dinner on his apartment balcony when the plane flew over around 9 p.m.

“I just wanted everyone to know about it,” he said. “I thought, what a fantastic way to get a message across.”

Amstrup said he and Miss Waxvik plan a June wedding.

'Tex-Mex' Food Ordered

DALLAS (AP) — Presumably, Mexican food prepared Texas-style inspires no presidential fears of “Montezuma's revenge.”

A remark by Jimmy Carter about the dysentery-like affliction prompted a chilly diplomatic reaction during a recent visit to Mexico.

But Carter has requested a sample of “Tex-Mex” cooking during his weekend trip to Dallas to address the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters.

White House advance men told a local restaurateur that Carter would like a no-frills meal put aboard Air Force One for the return to Washington on Sunday night.

So 80 plates costing $4 each will be brought to the aircraft Sunday. They'll include tamales, enchiladas, chili, rice, beans and nachos.

Travolta not Travolta?

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Is a secret still a secret when it's been a public announcement?

The center of this puzzle is John Travolta, the television and film star known to just about everyone in the United States. So where does he go when he wants to be just plain folks?

Papeete, Tahiti, apparently.

What happened was that the manager of the Maeva Beach Hotel here announced that Travolta was going to arrive here Saturday for a two-week rest. According to the announcement Travolta would be “completely incognito.”

So even though the cat is out of the bag, that fellow who looks like Travolta arriving at the Maeva Beach Hotel on Saturday isn't. Or at least that what the announcement said.

Hungry Pigs Get Off Fast

MONTROSE, Colo. (AP) — It's relatively easy to train a racing pig, says champion speed-pig trainer Ron Adams.

All one needs is a little food, a bell and three weeks' spare time. And two things help: a hungry pig and a wife willing to do the training.

Adams' stable of racing pigs took the first four places in the first annual Swine Downs, conducted during an agricultural fair here last weekend. His porcine pacers accounted for nine of the 12-pig field as about 1,000 swine fans cheered on their favorite entries.

But Adams still was not completely satisfied with the pigs' performances. “They reached their peak speed last week,” he said.

The training method is simple. First of all, start the daily workouts early in the morning, when the porkers are hungriest, said Adams.

“I would sprinkle a little feed on the floor, ring a bell and the open the gate,” he said. “Gradually I moved the feed further away from the gate, and I always made sure I rang a bell before the pigs were fed.”

Palestinian State Urged

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Author-historian Alfred Lilienthal says creation of a Palestinian state is necessary for peace in the Middle East.

“The surest way to make this state a Russian outpost is for the Israelis or the United States to deny the right of the Palestinians to have a state,” he said in an interview.

The Egypt-Israeli peace treaty will only further polarize U.S. relations with Arab countries, claimed Lilienthal, because the Palestinians were excluded.

Lilienthal spoke Thursday night at San Diego State University.

Sexy Zoo Gets Aardvark

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Zoo, once described in a national magazine as the “world's sexiest zoo,” is about to try to earn those tributes once again.

On Tuesday, Cincinnati City Manager William Donaldson — a zoo devotee from way back — will pick up a female aardvark at Greater Cincinnati International Airport from the Point Defiance Zoo at Tacoma, Wash.

Donaldson knows aardvarks well because of his connection with the zoo in Tacoma, where he was city manager until taking the Cincinnati job in 1975.

Donaldson said he offered to get the aardvark from his old friends in Tacoma after zoo officials in Cincinnati discovered that both of their aardvarks were males.

Donaldson said the mistake was natural because of the conduct of the pair. It is also difficult to determine the gender of an aardvark, which has internal sex organs, Donaldson said.

The Point Defiance Zoo got into the aardvark breeding business years ago, Donaldson said.

“They've got aardvarks up to their ankles,” he said.

Parable Pays Off, Thrice

WESTERLY, R.I. (AP) — A Catholic priest who distributed $2,000 in $5 bills among his parishioners to illustrate a parable has gotten triple returns on his investment.

He got $7,000 back.

The Rev. Norman Guilmette of the Church of the Immaculate Conception said he passed out $5 bills at Sunday Mass last November because he wanted to illustrate St. Matthew's “Parable of the Silver Pieces.”

The story is about a landowner who gives a large sum of money to each of three servants. Two of the servants doubled their money by investing it. A third servant buried his and earned nothing but the landowner's wrath.

It was the talk of the town when Father Guilmette gave the money to churchgoers in Westerly's largest Roman Catholic parish.

“For a while, the catchword around town was, ‘What are you doing with your five?’” he said.

The answers to that question have been pouring in this week.

A family of four who invested their $5 in jute wound up making $425 by selling macramé plant hangers.

Two women who used the money to start baking and selling pies brought in $185. A girl who sang carols at Christmas in Merchants Square turned over $50.

Half the earnings will be distributed among the poor and the other half will be used to pay for repairs to the parish center.

Father Guilmette said the message of the parable — that gifts should not be kept, but shared — is understood by most parishioners.

One who got the message was a churchgoer who parlayed his $5 into $17.50 at the poker table.

Joan Mondale Visits Wyeths

CHADDS FORD, Pa. (AP) — Joan Mondale, the vice-president's wife, paid a surprise visit to the Brandywine River Museum here Friday to see the permanent collection of paintings by the Wyeth family.

Artist Andrew Wyeth and son Jamie accompanied Mrs. Mondale on a 30-minute tour of the galleries, before the museum officially opened.

Mrs. Mondale said she was impressed by Wyeth's Siri Erickson paintings, of a young girl in Maine. She also commented on “Roasted Chestnuts,” a painting of a young boy dressed in a World War II army jacket standing along a road.

The painting had hung in the Oval Office at the White House during the Eisenhower administration.

Gift Becomes Battleground

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marlon Brando's 40-acre gift of land to the Indians has become a battleground, pitting the Sierra Club and one group of Indians against another group of Indians who want to sell the land to a developer.

The land, now owned by the Survival of the American Indian Association, has been offered for resale to developer Alan Satterlee for a 40-home upper income subdivision.

But the Los Angeles chapter of the Sierra Club, with some Indian support, appealed the Regional Planning Commission's approval of the project at a hearing Thursday of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. No decision has been made on the appeal.

The land, located north of Malibu Creek State Park, would have a visual impact on the recreation area if it became a development, Sierra Club official David Brown said.

Brando and the Indian group which owns the land, as well as the developer, are defending its sale. In a telegram sent to the Supervisors, Brando said he felt it would be “a real injustice” to the Indian group to delay the sale.

Women Jurist Confirmed

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Phyllis Kravitch brings 35 years of legal experience to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

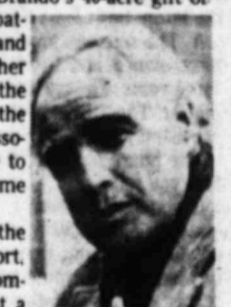

But the 58-year-old jurist, the second woman to be confirmed by the U.S. Senate to serve as a federal appeals court judge, said she takes no special goals with her except “to be a good judge, a fair judge and to see that justice prevails.”

“That's the purpose, of course.”

Miss Kravitch said she also hopes to be courageous, an adjective Sen. Edward Kennedy used to describe her at last month's confirmation hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

“That's a very important attribute for any human being, but it is indispensable for a judge,” she said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Miss Kravitch will move into an Atlanta office of the 5th Circuit court, joining 14 men on the bench that handles appeals from Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and the Canal Zone.

Canada Expected To Raise Natural Gas Prices

By The Associated Press
Canada, supplier of 5 percent of America's natural gas needs, is expected to raise the price of natural gas exported to the United States by 6.5 percent in 60 days, Canadian government sources said Friday.

The increase, from $2.16 to $2.30 per thousand cubic feet, would be the first since an 8 percent boost was announced last April.

The increase would affect customers in northern states more than others, and one utility spokesman said the move would mean a $1-a-month rise in homeowners' gas bills in several states which rely on imports from Canada.

According to the Canadian sources, the government's National Energy Board recommended the price boost to Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie. Gillespie was reported to have won Cabinet approval for the increase at a meeting Thursday and now is expected to announce the decision.

It was not known when Gillespie would announce the gas price move. Energy officials refused to comment on the matter. The energy board, which turned down suggested gas price increases twice last year, was said to have backed higher prices now because of a drop in the value of the Canadian dollar and because of the recent increase in world oil prices.

Industry sources also noted the Canadians might be attempting to follow Mexico's lead. Mexico last year unsuccessfully sought to export gas to the United States at $2.60 per thousand cubic feet. Despite the rejection it remains an important prospect for U.S. gas imports.

In other energy developments Friday: President Carter sent top energy and economic aides to the Capitol to brief senators on his upcoming energy program. Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said the program probably will call for a phaseout of controls on oil prices.

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana (Amoco) said in the wake of the worldwide crude oil squeeze caused by the curtailment of Iranian petroleum production, it will take on no new commitments to sell crude oil to outside customers.

The move by Amoco, the nation's sixth largest oil company, followed a similar step taken earlier this month by Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil firm. Exxon said about 10 percent of its crude oil supplies had been going to outside customers, but it "did not have, and could no longer hope to have, oil to share."

Amoco spokesmen were unavailable for comment on the company's announcement. In a short prepared statement, Amoco said crude oil is "expected to continue in short supply," and added its cutoff on new sales to outsiders will continue "for the foreseeable future."

Canada, which supplies the United States with nearly 1 trillion cubic feet of gas annually, is the nation's largest source of foreign gas. But its gas shipments are most important along the northern tier of this country.

Bill Wortley, a spokesman for the Washington Natural Gas Co. in Seattle, said the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho get 65 percent of their gas supplies from Canada. He added a Canadian boost would add up to "about $1 a month or $12 a year" on home gas bills in the region.

Elsewhere, the impact of a Canadian increase may be masked by a recent rise in ceiling prices for domestic gas under the terms of last year's Natural Gas Policy Act.

Increases posted under that legislation may add $20 to $30 to the average homeowner's gas bill this year, the American Gas Association, an industry association, has estimated.

Because of the increase in American natural gas prices, Canada's expected move "doesn't surprise me," said analyst Mary A. Dunlea at the New York brokerage house of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields

Inc. She added that the boost would bring Canada's export prices "above our legal price limit — but not by much."

Last year's U.S. gas legislation raised the price of gas from new wells and sold across state lines by 40 percent, from $1.50 to about $2.10 per thousand cubic feet. Gas produced from new offshore wells is being allowed to rise to about $2.16 a thousand cubic feet by April. The 1978 law also allows periodic future price increases for new natural gas. Through April 20, 1981, prices will be allowed to rise annually by the rate of inflation plus 3.7 percent. After that time, the annual increase would equal the inflation rate plus 4.2 percent.

Bids Begun On Defunct Supermarkets

NEW YORK (AP)—Bidding began briskly Friday at a bankruptcy court auction of leases for supermarkets recently closed by Food Fair, Inc., in the areas of western Florida and Pennsylvania-southern New Jersey.

About 300 bidders jammed a large courtroom as bids topped $1 million each for five of the first seven store leases offered at a sale supervised by federal Bankruptcy Judge John J. Galgay.

The all-day auction was scheduled for the sale of leases for 31 of 123 Food Fair, Pantry Pride, and Penn Fruit supermarkets closed with court approval last Jan. 27. Another 28 store leases will be auctioned next Thursday, and the remainder will be sold in the future.

Food Fair filed its Chapter 11 petition for reorganization under bankruptcy court protection last Oct. 2 after suffering huge financial losses.

Its plan is to dispose of unprofitable holdings, and its first move was to shut down 89 supermarkets in the New York metropolitan area last November.

The lease for a supermarket in Turnersville, N.J., was the first offered for sale Thursday and it brought a high bid of $1,550,000 from Pathmark Stores.

The leases for four other choice properties, three in Philadelphia and one in suburban Bala Cynwyd, brought similar bids. Genardi Markets bought one for $1,650,000. AP stores bid $1,550,000 for one and $1,500,000 for another.

After the choice properties were disposed of, the bidding started to decline and lower offers were entered as the day wore on.

Inmate Allowed To Keep Baby

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—By court decree, the Broward County Women's Correctional Institution will soon have a new inmate — convict Terry Moore's newborn baby.

The 23-year-old inmate, who won a court ruling allowing her to keep her child with her in prison, gave birth Thursday to a 7-pound, 9-ounce girl.

Miss Moore, under guard at a hospital, and her yet-to-be-named baby are doing fine, attorney Jacquelyn Steinberg reported today.

When mother and child are released from the hospital, the prison will have to provide facilities for Miss Moore to care for the baby for at least the next 18 months, under the court order.

"At least it's a girl so we still have all women here," quipped Prison Superintendent Anna Gespert, who announced the birth to the 283 inmates.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. You contend that most bonds are traded on an "and interest" basis and that there is no "ex-interest" procedure in bond trading comparable to the "ex-dividend" procedure in stock trading. If my experience is any guide, you're wrong.

A. I sold a bond issued by a big corporation on Jan. 31. The next semi-annual interest payment was due Feb. 1. I received from my broker a check for the going market price of the bond, plus six months' interest. And, on Feb. 1, I received the semi-annual interest check from the company just as always.

Q. I told my broker about this. He said to wait to see if anybody complained. Nothing has happened. So, I must conclude that the bond went "ex-interest" a few days before the Feb. 1 interest payment date.

A. No it didn't. I repeat: There is no such thing as "ex-interest" with marketable bonds. Stocks go "ex-dividend" — meaning that a person who buys on or after the ex-dividend date is not entitled to the next scheduled dividend payment but that the person who sells gets that dividend. That's simply not the case with marketable bonds — bonds bought and sold in the marketplace. (Please, dear readers, don't confuse these with U.S. Savings Bonds.) Except for those bonds which are traded "flat" — without interest — marketable bonds are traded on an "and interest" basis.

Q. A person who buys a bond pays the going market price, plus an amount equal to the interest that has accrued since the last interest payment date. A person who sells gets the market price, plus the accrued interest.

A. That's why, when you sold a bond, you received the market price plus interest. That's what you were entitled to. But you were not entitled to the next interest check. That check belongs to the person who bought the bond you sold.

Q. Your broker should have explained this to you. He then should have collected six months' interest from you and sent that money to the person who bought the bond you sold. As you tell the story, your broker either doesn't know his business or tried to help you cheat the buyer.

Q. The new federal income tax rules provide that people 55 or older will not have to pay tax on up to $100,000 from the profit on the sale of their home which they "owned and lived in for three of the last five years." What is meant by "three of the last five years"? We bought a new home in April 1978. I will be 55 in three years. Will this rule apply to me? Or must the house be at least five years old?

A. The rule will apply to you, after you have owned and lived in the house for three years. The age of the house doesn't matter. The "three of the last five years" provision just means you must have lived in the house for 36 of the 60 months before you sell.

Q. If you buy a house and live there for one year, move away and rent the house out for two years, then move back in for two more years, you'll still qualify.

A. This once-in-a-lifetime exclusion from tax on up to $100,000 on the capital gain on a home applies only to a "principal residence" — the place you actually make your home. It does not apply to summer places and other vacation homes.

Q. My husband died 11 years ago and left me 14 shares of stock. The stock pays dividends totaling $30.80 a year. I need money desperately. Should I sell this stock?

A. If there is any way you can make ends meet, I advise you to keep that stock. As I write this, that stock has a market value of $30 a share. Its $2.20 a share annual dividend rate, therefore, results in a current yield of 7.3 percent. That's better than you can get on that amount of money most other places. And the stock you named in your letter is a good one.

Q. By selling you would get about $420, less a brokerage commission of about $25. But, if you absolutely need the money, the unfortunate fact is that you will have to sell.

A. Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Q. For information on retirement, and pre-retirement planning, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to William A. Doyle, care of King Features Syndicate, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y., 10017.

CUTTING THE CORDS — Indiana State University all-America Larry Bird reveals his bandaged left wrist and thumb as he cuts down the net following the Sycamores' 69-59 win over New Mexico State for the Missouri Valley Conference championship earlier this season. Bird received a slight bone chip in the tip of his thumb during second half action of the New Mexico State game and says the injury still affects his shooting. He will be seeking another cord-cutting assignment today, when the Sycamores play in the NCAA semifinals. (AP Laserphoto)

NCAA Looks For 'Magic'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Smiling and confident, the favored Michigan State Spartans pranced through their final tune-up for today's NCAA semifinal against Penn. considered by far the least likely to succeed.

Michigan State, the odds-on favorite to take home the 1978-79 collegiate basketball championship, meets the Penn Quakers, the surprising winners of the East Regionals, at 1:45 p.m. CST. Thirty minutes after they finish (about 4:15 p.m.), top-ranked Indiana State puts its 32-0 record on the line against a quick but depth-thin DePaul team which got good news Friday when it was announced that premier forward Curtis Watkins, hobbled with a knee injury, would be able to play.

Coach Ray Meyer of DePaul said Watkins would start and they will stay with him as long as he's effective.

"I think we have an excellent club, and we are playing well at the present time," said Spartan coach Jud Heathcote, who says he's surprised at being the favorite.

"I have a lot of respect for the other three teams in the finals. There's four left, out of 40, and they didn't get here with mirrors or luck."

The Spartans will not be at full strength. Center Jay Vincent, who averaged almost 14 points a game this year, is nursing a foot injury.

"He's moving around better and he can play," Heathcote said. "His will be a limited capacity. He definitely will not start."

Heathcote insisted he feels less pressure being in the Final Four than everybody seems to think he should feel.

"I don't see how the No. 1 team, who is 32-0, isn't favored, but if the media wants to make us the favorite, we will accept whatever extra pressure that might put on us."

"The pressure is there," agreed Earvin "Magic" Johnson, Michigan State's all-America point guard. "But I grew up with pressure and I thrive on it."

The Quakers have been thriving on being overlooked. They never were listed in the Top 20 during the season and seem to be getting used to the tag "Cinderella" and underdog.

"We went into the NCAA playoffs with great incentive," said coach Bob Weinbauer. "We were aware of our abilities, even if the rest of the country wasn't. I feel we don't have to prove anything to anybody or apologize to anyone for being here."

Weinbauer has assigned Tim Smith the dubious honor of guarding Johnson.

"Johnson is a great player and I plan to force him to give up the ball," said

Smith, at 6-foot-5 three inches shorter than Johnson. "Once he gives up the ball, I'll try to keep him from getting it back."

Tony Price, Penn's leading scorer, will guard Spartan forward Greg Kelsey, who slarn-dunked nine baskets over frustrated Notre Dame defenders in the Midwest

Regional. "I'm going to try to keep Kelsey in front of me," said Price. "I want to make him take more jump shots than he wants, and make him a perimeter player. I'm going to try not to give him a lot of dunks on national television."

Holmes Beats Ocasio In WBC Title Fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes smashed young Ossie Ocasio to the canvas four times in the seventh round and stopped the Puerto Rican challenger at 2:38 of the round to retain the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship Friday night.

It was simply a matter of too much size, too much power and, most importantly, too much experience. Ocasio, making only his 14th pro fight, tried with all he had but he was never really in the fight.

In a preliminary to Holmes' second title defense, Earnie Shavers shocked a crowd of about 5,400 at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion and a national television audience by knocking favored Ken Norton down twice and stopped him at 1:02 of the first round.

The victories by Holmes and Shavers set up a title match between the two in September, although Holmes is expected to defend against Mike Weaver of Los Holmes, who weighed 214 pounds to 207 for Ocasio and who enjoyed a 3/4-inch height advantage and a four-inch reach advantage, came out at the opening bell looking to land a big punch.

But Ocasio hung tough, crouching and bobbing and weaving, and keeping Holmes' timing off just enough to escape disaster. In the fifth and sixth rounds, however, the 6-foot-3, 29-year-old champion began finding the range to both the head and the body.

City Schools Scatter For Track Competition

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Tom Phelps isn't ready to holler 'call rope' just yet, but he's gradually getting there.

"My wife told me I'm even driving her crazy," laughed the Lubbock High track coach. "I just don't know what to do."

Phelps' current problem — and the one that might lead to his demise — is the Westerners' inability to score points. At last week's City Meet, LHS had only 16, finishing last in the five-team field.

But the Westerners will attempt to top that faulty showing today when they enter the six-team Big Spring Relays. The Monterey Plainsmen will also compete at the day-long encounter. Meanwhile, Coronado and Estacado will vie against a strong field at the Mustang Relays in Andrews. Dunbar is entered in the Canyon Reef Relays in Snyder.

"We're just not performing that well at all," said Phelps, pointing out that the majority of the LHS team is composed of underclassmen.

"It is really hard to run on the varsity level with that many (nine) sophomores," he continued. "Every week you go out and get waxed... that's hard to do and come back the next week."

"But I have to give my kids credit. The next week they are right back out there, working even harder."

Prior to the start of the year, Phelps had counted heavily on the return of sprinters Glenn Francis and Darryl Hicks. Hicks was a surprise winner in the 220-yard dash last year at the district meet, upsetting favored Archie Moore of Coronado.

But, according to Phelps, neither Hicks nor Francis has started to blossom this year. "They have been slow coming around," lamented Phelps. "But I like to think they'll be ready for the district meet. That's what happened last year."

There is another prime reason Phelps — no doubt — hopes the two start coming around: They comprise the nucleus of the LHS sprint-relay team. They are joined by Johnny Johnson and Johnny Ray Connor.

"At the Odessa meet (West Texas Relays), we had a 44.2 (in the sprint relay)," said Phelps. "So the potential is there if we can put it together. But the competition has been so tough these last couple of weeks it's really been hard for us."

During the City Meet, the Westerners dropped the stick as did Monterey and favorite Estacado.

"After we get things together I really think we'll surprise some people," said Phelps. "But that might be a couple of weeks away."

And the person that will be most surprised, Phelps concluded, might just be himself.

Featuring the state's top long jumper, sophomore Van Percy (23-10), the Mustang Relays in Andrews might prove to be the top meet of the day. Also entered in the meet is David Simmons of Midland High, the current leader in the discus.

Wadkins Beats Wind For TPC Golf Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, boldly attacking the pins despite whipping winds that raked the course, cut out a 4-under-par 68 and established a 3-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $440,000 Tournament Players Championship.

Wadkins, bubbling with confidence, put together a 36-hole total of 135, 9 strokes under par on tough Sawgrass. The course, toughened by the prevailing winds, regained its unforgiving nature and sent such standout performers as Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player, Lon Hinkle and Seve Ballesteros down the road to the next event.

Kermit Zarley, who held the first-round lead, made triple bogey-7 on his first hole and eventually finished with a 79—145. He later was assessed a $200 fine for slow play during Thursday's round, when he shot 65.

Under the conditions, Wadkins said, "this is maybe the finest round of golf I've ever played. I think getting around without a bogey is an even greater accomplishment than the score."

It didn't come easily, however. The little man who is seeking to become the first double winner of the year had to one-putt to save par five times.

"It's funny, but the harder the wind blew, the better I seemed to putt," he said.

around par would be a good score today," said Nicklaus. "I missed it by one so I'm not at all disappointed. I'm just a little surprised someone is that far in front."

Wadkins played when the gusty winds were at their toughest. He didn't make a bogey in his remarkable effort that gave him firm command of the event that is billed as the annual championship of golf's touring pros.

George Burns had to score eight birdies and match the Sawgrass record of 66 to keep Wadkins in sight at 138.

Lee Trevino, who has returned to an old set of irons with which he won the 1971 U.S. Open and the 1974 PGA, maneuvered his way to 69 and a tie at 139 with Canadian Dan Hallidorson and Bill Kratzert. Hallidorson and Kratzert each shot 70.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus slipped to a 73 that left him at 140. Also at that figure were Ed Fiori and Mark McCumber, the rookie who scored an upset victory last week in the Doral Open. McCumber had another 70 and Fiori shot 71.

Tom Watson, Player of the Year for the last two seasons, had a 72 and was at 142. Arnold Palmer shot 75—147.

But the links-type course, which yielded some surprisingly low scores in the calm conditions that prevailed Thursday, snapped back at the game's greats. The winds had the flags standing straight out as errant shots flew into the marshes, sands and piney woods.

Weiskopf, for example, shot 82—155. Ballesteros, Europe's greatest player, was 81—157. Hinkle, winner of the Bing Crosby title, shot 80—155. Fuzzy Zoeller, the year's leading money-winner, was 77—150. All missed the cut for the final two rounds.

Campbell Accepts 28th Honor

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers running back Earl Campbell, who accomplished near-impossible feats on the field during his rookie National Football League season, said Friday an impossible chore would be to show up to accept all 28 of his post-season awards.

The former Heisman Trophy winner accepted The Sporting News' awards as Rookie of the Year and Player of the Year at a local restaurant.

Campbell created a stir when he failed to show up for a Super Bowl pre-game show to receive the Pro Football Writers Association Player of the Year award. Campbell said at the time he had to be in classes at the University of Texas.

He's remained mostly off the banquet circuit ever since. Campbell made opponents restless during his memorable rookie season with the Oilers. His 1,450 rushing yards surpassed the single season rookie record of 1,162 set by Don Woods of San Diego in 1974.

It also broke the all-time Oilers record of 1,194 set by Goyle Granger.

Astros May Be Sold

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — The president of Astrodome Corp. says the Houston Astros, operated by two credit corporations since September 1976, could be sold within one to two years after a three-step plan is implemented.

"We don't have to make a decision now," said Astrodome President William E. Odom. "If somebody knocks, we'll talk. But we don't feel compelled to sell."

Odom said following a monthly board meeting at the club's spring training site here that a sale of the team is not imminent and that Ford Credit Corp. is not in a hurry to sell.

Odom said the conditional rent of the Astrodome to Harris County must be considered, all operational cost-saving improvements must be considered and, capital improvements must be made, including the leaky portion of the Dome roof. Ford Credit Corp. and General Electric Credit Co. took over operation of the National League team from debt-ridden owner Judge Roy Hofheinz in September 1976. Ford Credit bought out General Electric's share last November.

Hockey Merger Draws Closer

CHICAGO (AP) — Merger talks between the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association recessed Friday, but NHL President John Ziegler said his league was closer than ever to admitting four of the six WHA clubs.

A source close to the talks had said earlier Friday that the WHA had accepted the NHL's offer to put New England, Edmonton, Quebec and Winnipeg in the NHL starting next season and folding the WHA, which also includes Birmingham and Cincinnati.

Problems developed and blocked an effort to achieve final agreement on the words and conditions of the NHL proposal. Neither side would reveal the difficulties.

Local Dragway To Hold Race

Lubbock Dragway will launch its 1979 racing season with a "warmup" race Sunday afternoon that will provide fans with a preview of things to come and racers with an opportunity to check out their winter's work.

Racers are scheduled in three cash purse classes and three trophy classes, with contestants in the former ineligible for competition in the latter. Money classes are super/pro, stree/heavy and motorcycles, while trophy events will lure contestants in three brackets, times 14.99 and lower, 15 through 16.99, and 17 seconds and above. There is no motorcycle trophy event.

Gates at the track, two miles south of Idalou on FM 400, will open at 10 a.m. Tech inspection will shut down at 1 p.m., and the first race is set for 2 p.m. Admission, pit side only is $3 for adults and $1 for children.

The first regular season race will be April 21-22.

Foyt Heads Auto Race List

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — A. J. Foyt head the drivers list for Sunday's Twin 200 auto races but many are skipping the United States Auto Club's 1979 opener because of allegiance to a new rival group.

Foyt, four-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, will be in the race here for that type of vehicle and also in the companion stock car competition.

Other top drivers entered are Dick Simon, Bill Vukovich, Jim McElreath, Janet Guthrie, Gay Battenhausen and Roger McCluskey.

Many other outstanding drivers have joined a rival group called Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART) and refuse to compete in USAC events other than the Indianapolis classic.

Rain Hampers Stock Car Race

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bad weather, after a one-week absence on the circuit, returned Friday to disrupt preparations for this weekend's Grand National stock car race here at North Wilkesboro Speedway.

A steady rain all day prevented any activity at the track, although officials waited until late afternoon to suspend operations officially. Practice and the first round of a unique two-day system of qualifying had been Speedway officials announced an all new schedule of activities for Saturday, as a result of the Friday cancellation. Sunday's schedule, with the 400-lap race to start at 2 p.m. EST, remains the same.

"Practice will begin at 8 a.m. with regular Grand National style qualifying to begin at 1 p.m., a half hour earlier than originally scheduled," said speedway owner Enoch Staley.

Should the rain continue through Saturday, officials of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing will have the option of filling the 30-car field through assignments or drawings, or a combination of both.

Blazer Boss Denies Rumors

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The general manager of the Portland Trail Blazers, Harry Glickman, says there is absolutely no truth to rumors that Bill Walton is about to rejoin the National Basketball Association team.

"That's a sample of the most incredible irresponsible reporting I've ever seen," Glickman said Friday. "If Walton were going to play, we wouldn't keep it a secret."

Glickman was referring to a series of rumors broadcast by Portland television station KATU this week. The most unlikely rumor had Walton playing Saturday night in Portland's contest against Kansas City.

Glickman said that even a player with Walton's abilities could not immediately begin to play in the NBA after a year's absence without any practice sessions with the team.

Walton returned to his home at Balboa Island, Calif., Wednesday after spending 17 days in the Philippines helping to film an American Sportsman episode. As is often the case with the former UCLA all-America, he was not available for comment.

Toney Homers Stop Chaps' Skid

PHOENIX, Ariz. (Special) — Kenny Toney slugged two home runs and drove in six runs Friday afternoon as Lubbock Christian College snapped a three-game losing streak by outlasting the University of Northern Colorado 15-10.

Earlier Friday, Northern Arizona University beat the Chaps 5-1.

Now, 17-10, LCC will conclude its week-long stay in Phoenix today with Gary Swann (2-1) going against powerful Grand Canyon College at 1 p.m. CST.

UNC's season got off to a shaky start as the Chaps leaped to a 10-0 advantage going into the bottom of the fourth.

Another top competitor is Dwight Washington of Lee, currently seventh in the 220 with a 21.9 and tied with Sherman Hall of Angleton.

McCowan is also ranked second in the shot put with a 61-2 best. However that is well behind the current national record-holder, Michael Carter of Dallas Jefferson, who owns a 73-4 1/2 put.

Although neither team has anyone listed among the state's elite, a fierce battle for the Mustang Relays team title looms between Odessa Ector and Estacado. Both teams feature top sprinters and outstanding relay teams.

Bryan Millard of Dumas, ranked fourth in the shot put with a 58-11, will compete for the Demons.

frame. Steve Brigante and Tim Leslie drove in first-inning runs. Toney and Brady Brashear plated second-inning runs and Brigante's RBI single preceded Toney's third homer of the year, a 3-run shot in the fourth which gave LCC that 10-0 pad.

But the Bears took advantage of seven walks, an error, and two hits to score 7 times in the fourth and the added 2 more in the fifth on Rick Melvin's 2-run single.

Scott Wolfe's sacrifice fly and Brashear's RBI single gave reliever Bob McNichol some breathing room in the sixth.

Monterey Team Gets Win

ABILENE (Special) — Monterey's Curt McFarlin and Kenneth Coulter knocked off the second seeded team in A boys doubles of the Abilene Invitational Tennis Tournament Friday and will play in the finals at 8:30 a.m. today at the Rose Park Tennis Center. Coronado and Monterey will be represented in semifinal action, which also begins at 8:30 a.m. today.

Lori Humphreys, a winner in last week's Lubbock Invitational, will play for MHS in the semifinals of B Girls' Singles. Kelly Martin and Katy Weaver, the MHS B Girls' Doubles team, will also play in the semifinals.

David Farrell and Gregg Conaway will represent Coronado in the semifinals of B Boys' doubles, after winning two matches Friday. Maggie McNamara and the doubles team of Susan Mangum and Beth Nickels will compete for the Mustangs in B Girls' singles and B Girls' doubles semifinal action.

Raiders Corral Ponies 6-2 In Twelve Inning Affair

DALLAS (Special)—The Texas Tech baseball squad upended a struggling SMU team 6-2 in twelve innings of heated play Friday night to extend their season record to 10-8 and raise their conference slate to 5-9.

The two teams only managed one run apiece after six frames and that was how it stood until the twelfth.

Tech exploded for five runs in the twelfth though to seal the win. SMU managed to push another run across in it's half but by then it was to late.

Centerfielder John Keller and freshman Jeff Harp both blasted round-trippers for Tech—both in that final frame.

Second baseman Johnny Vestal picked up four hits in seven at bats to pace the Raider hitters.

Mark Johnston notched the win for Tech, making him 4-0 on the year.

The two teams will pair off again today in a double header in Reverchon Park at 1 p.m.

Three Rivers Nips Westerners

HUTCHINSON, KA. (Special)—Western Texas College finally ran out of gas here Friday night and dropped a tough double overtime contest to Three Rivers, Mo. 109-103.

Dwight Williams hit a short jumper at the buzzer for WTC, after stealing the ball, to send the game into overtime at 8:44. The Westerners led throughout the first overtime until Thurian Weaver hit with three seconds remaining to tie it at 93, thus setting up the second overtime.

With a minute and a half remaining in the final OT, Three Rivers reeled off three unanswered buckets that sank WTC.

The Westerners play Dixie College, of St. George, Utah, in the consolation contest at 6:30 p.m. tonight. WTC is now 34-4 for the year—Three Rivers is 36-3.

Greg Stewart paced the Westerners with 44 points and Freddy Davis added 19. The winners got 34 from Thurian Weaver and Marvin McCary added 32.

Daryl Devero scored a game-high 20 points for Mercer, N.J., Friday night to help Mercer down Dixie Utah, 69-57, in a semifinal National Junior College Athletic Associations men's basketball game.

Building onto a 32-29 halftime lead, Mercer never trailed in the second half. Jeffery Carrion added 16 for the winners. Dixie plays for third place Saturday.

In consolation games, Brevard, Fla., beat Coffeyville, Kan., 95-91; Burlington, Iowa, defeated Westchester, N.Y., 81-69; and Niagara, N.Y., downed Vincennes, Ind., 75-70.

Leonard, Gonzales Eye Title

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — "Sugar Ray" Leonard and Danny Gonzales of Argentina will meet today in a nationally televised 10-round welterweight fight that could boost the winner into a shot at the title — World Boxing Association version.

Leonard and Gonzales, ranked third and fourth, respectively, both would love a shot at Jose Cuevas of Mexico, the current WBA welterweight champ.

"I've been training very hard for this fight because of what I've heard about Gonzales," said Leonard, the former U.S. Olympic champion now undefeated in 19 pro-fights. "The only thing I know about him is that he likes to bore in and he's a hard puncher. I want to be ready."

"He's got 38 knockouts, but knockouts come when a guy makes a mistake or if a guy sticks his chin out. I'm not going to do that."

"I've got a few knockouts myself, and speed is my greatest asset. My main objective is to control the tempo of the fight, so I'm going to come out and get moving right away. I think it's going to be a dynamite fight," added the 22-year-old from Baltimore.

"As for a shot at the title, Leonard said, "I'm ready mentally and physically for a title shot, but I'll have to wait my turn. I don't want it until it's worth my while, but I'll get it eventually."

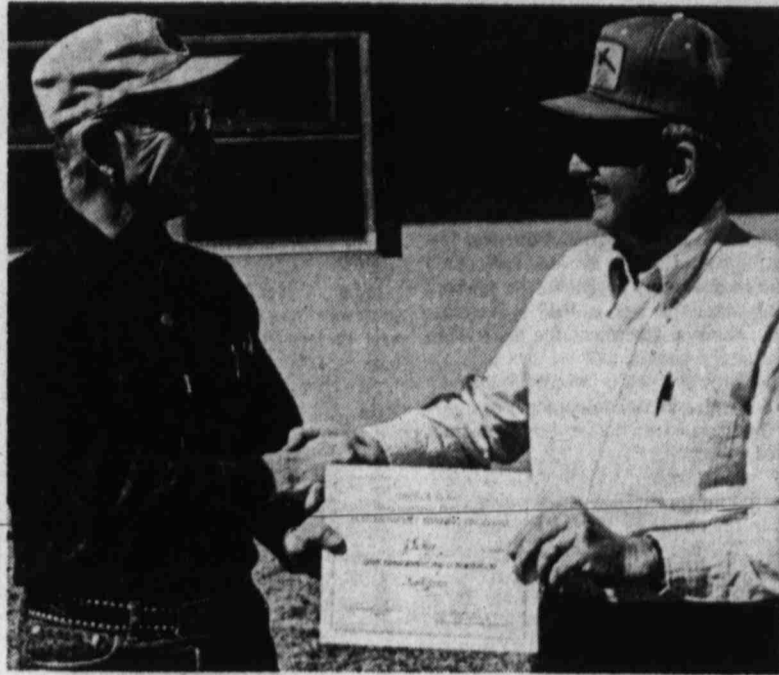

"The Spanish-speaking Gonzales, talking through an interpreter, said, "I've never seen Leonard fight and don't know anything about him. But I'm ranked No. 1 in Argentina, and my job as a fighter is to get myself up in the rankings. To do that I need to fight rated boxers."

"If I keep beating rated boxers, I'll eventually get my chance to win the title. That's what I'm aiming at."

Sending a message to Leonard, Gonzales said, "I have 38 knockouts, so that shows I'm a strong puncher. I'm also a smart fighter. There's nothing on my face because I haven't really been touched."

"I have quick feet, too, and like to move around in the ring, but not stay too far away from my opponent," added the 29-year-old Gonzales, whose 15-year pro record stands at 62-2-2.

McGuire May Seek NBA Coaching Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Al McGuire, the former Marquette coach who this week quit his $75,000-a-year job with a sporting goods manufacturer, says he might be interested in a job with a National Basketball Association club — as long as he could be the boss.

McGuire's comments were reported in Friday's editions of the New York Post.

"I don't want to step on toes, so all I can do is describe the kind of situation that might appeal to me," said McGuire, who led Marquette to the NCAA championship in 1977, his final season in the college ranks. "I want to be boss. Yes, that could involve coaching, but I wouldn't want to be a coach and be under a boss."

McGuire, a native New Yorker, often has been mentioned as a candidate for

Wanted: Big Bass

A super-size aquarium that has provided enjoyment for visitors at Sportsman Supply was damaged recently, resulting in the loss of several large bass. It is believed that the glass tank was cracked when one of the fish knocked a submerged rock against the enclosure.

The aquarium has been rebuilt, but remains empty of any large bass for display. The Lubbock boat dealer will appreciate the donation of healthy lunkers that are caught by South Plains anglers.

various jobs with the Knicks and even held preliminary talks with Madison Square Garden president Sonny Werblin last year, talks that ended with McGuire saying he wasn't interested in taking a job.

Even though McGuire's attitude has apparently changed, Knicks president Mike Burke — who recently signed a new five-year contract — says his club isn't interested.

"We have a full house," Burke said of the Knicks, whose staff includes coach Red Holzman and general manager Eddie Donovan. "We did have some superficial talks and it wasn't about coaching, but I don't think we'd be interested in talking to him about anything now."

However, Werblin will have the final say in the matter and he has long expressed a desire to have one man take over the basketball operation of the Fred Shero has rebuilt the Garden's hockey team, the New York Rangers. Werblin tried to lure Red Auerbach away from Boston last year, but Auerbach chose to remain with the Celtics.

One NBA executive who said he was interested in McGuire was Carl Scheer, president of the Denver Nuggets. The Nuggets are being coached on an interim basis by Donnie Walsh, who took over after Harry Brown resigned.

Texas Gets Pronghorn Antelope

AUSTIN (Special) — Texas' population of pronghorn antelope was increased in late February when 82 were brought in from Wyoming. Parks & Wildlife Department biologists trapped the animals on Warren Air Force Base on the outskirts of Cheyenne and later released them on three ranches in the Texas Panhandle.

A helicopter was used to herd the antelopes into a net corral, the least injurious and most efficient method. Funds for the helicopter service were provided by the Panhandle Chapter of Safari Club International, an organization of hunters and conservationists dedicated to the enhancement of wildlife resources.

After being captured, the antelope were tranquilized and given antibiotics then transported to Texas in specially equipped trailers.

Although more females would have been preferred, the sexes of the transplanted animals were about even, said Charles Winkler, P&WD big game program director. One group went to a ranch east of Amarillo in Armstrong and Donley counties; another was released south of Vernon in Wilbarger County, and the third to an area north of Albany in Shackelford County.

Much of the present Texas pronghorn population is the result of restocking. Winkler said. Some 4,000 antelopes were transplanted between 1938 and 1951, with trapping and release sites all within the state. Another 1,100 were transplanted in 1972 and 1973 from a ranch near Barnhart on 1972 and 1973 and populations are increasing on several others.

This latest restocking effort is the first

State, Feds Work On Eagle Program

AUSTIN (Special) — West Texas ranchers with golden eagle depredation problems have been asked to contact the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for help.

The F&WS notified the Parks & Wildlife Department they are developing a plan to manage the eagles in Texas and New Mexico. "balancing concerns for livestock losses with law protecting eagles."

The plan will involve research on the population status of golden eagles in the west and identification of livestock losses. Once the problem birds are identified, F&WS personnel will attempt to live-trap the eagles and relocate them away from sheep and goat areas, the federal agency said.

A team of federal biologists has been selected to work in the field with ranchers and eagle researchers.

17 Hunter-Safety Teachers Graduate

CHILDRESS (Special) — A thorough study of wildlife management and conservation was presented to 17 area hunter safety instructors by the Parks & Wildlife Department during a recent workshop held here.

Hunter-safety instructors from Amarillo to Odessa to Wichita Falls were in attendance while P&WD personnel presented the status of conservation in Texas today.

The principles and practices of conservation were presented by Richard Deament, extension biologist from Wheeler. During the workshop, the instructors went to the Matador Wildlife Management Area where they were briefed on the current management practices conducted on the department-owned land by Charles Boyd, Matador WMA supervisor.

Sally Field Takes Big Step Forward With Role In 'Norma Rae'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Part of the excitement of covering the Hollywood scene is watching a career take a quantum leap. It happened with Jane Fonda. Now it's happening with Sally Field.

Just as Fonda's later performances wiped out the memory of "Hurry Sundown" and "Barbarella," so Field is making us forget that she was Gidget and the Flying Nun.

Sally Field is starring in "Norma Rae," which continues the 20th Century-Fox policy of providing strong roles for women. She meets the challenge, brilliantly portraying a Southern mill worker who awakens intellectually, becoming a union militant. Beau Bridges plays her bewildered husband and Ron Leibman is the labor organizer who opens her mind to a broader world.

The husband-wife writing team of Irving Ratvetch and Harriet Frank Jr. wrote the script, which was inspired by real-life experiences of women whose personal lives were reviled when they tried to help organize the mills. Martin Ritt, an old hand at social causes, directed.

The character of Norma Rae was crucial for the film's success, since the events whirl around her. Miss Field, 32, proves totally believable.

How was she able to submerge her own personality into the work-weary Norma Rae?

"I prepared for it the same way I prepare for everything, whether it's 'Sybil,' (for which she won an Emmy) or a comedy," she said during a brief visit at her Laurel Canyon home.

"I take certain steps in analyzing the character, figuring who she is and where she comes from. I sift through the script, absorbing anything that might be of help. I apply all the facts and logic that I can muster."

"With Norma Rae, she started to take focus when I actually visited the mill where she worked and the house that she probably lived in. I talked to the people she worked and lived with, and by osmosis the character started to gel."

"Fortunately, we had two weeks of rehearsal, which is unusual for a movie. Wearing Norma Rae's clothes and talking to the townspeople, I became so much the character that I dreamed like her in my sleep. I walked and talked like her. In fact, the Southern accent is so persistent that it was two months before I got rid of it."

"Norma Rae" was filmed in and around Opelika, Ala. The Alabama Film Commission helped the producers find the location, which had a working (and unionized) clothing mill that proved all too realistic for the actors. "The noise is unbelievable," Miss Field recalled. "The workers have to wear ear plugs, which are made of a liquid plastic that hardens inside the ear. Without the plugs, you would become temporarily deaf within a half-hour. The sound is of the frequency of a jet airplane taking off. "The weave room is on the second, wooden floor and when the machines are running the whole room shakes. Gail Strickland, who plays my girlfriend, actually became seasick from the movement."

Another hazard was the lint, which "looks like a snowstorm." Said Miss Field: "I have a tendency to hay fever, which turns into asthma, and I was affected by the flying lint. My lips and eyes puffed up until I looked like Kutka and Ollie."

Herbicide Application Techniques Offer Savings To Farmers

New techniques for applying herbicides may save several million dollars for farmers on the Texas High Plains, says a researcher with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) at Lubbock.

"In some instances," Dr. John R. Abernathy said, "new techniques still being tested already have proven highly effective in controlling the six most troublesome perennial weeds in cotton at reduced costs to producers."

Abernathy is TAES weed scientist at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

The research said the six perennial weeds which cause most problems for cotton producers are silverleaf nightshade, johnsongrass, woollyleaf bursage, yellow nutsedge, field bindweed and bermudagrass.

"Economically," Abernathy said, "silverleaf nightshade is most important because more than 2 million acres are infested."

The conditions under which cotton has been grown for the past 10 or 15 years have provided an ideal climate for its spread, he noted.

Control measures for it in cotton are being developed, he said. "However, many farmers have achieved best control with a spot-spraying technique using Roundup." They have found it cheaper and longer lasting than hand labor, he noted.

If the herbicide is applied in the fall at the proper stage of weed development, it will control the perennial the following year, he said.

"Johnsongrass is a problem across the cotton belt," Abernathy said, "although infestations in the western part of the country are not as serious as in the Mississippi Delta."

The most promising new control technique, using Roundup in a recirculating sprayer, spot-spraying and through a rope-type applicator, is providing excellent control of johnsongrass, he said.

"Another perennial weed that is causing problems in High Plains cotton production is woollyleaf bursage," the TAES scientist said.

control method is the use of a soil sterilant, whereby the land is fallow for four to five years," Abernathy said.

"Yellow nutsedge is a problem across the Southwest and often is mistaken for a grass by many farmers," Abernathy said.

It is spread by tillage implements dragging through it, distributing tubers across the field.

"The weed gradually loses its competitiveness," said the TAES researcher, "but early season nutsedge is a serious threat and causes economic loss."

Control of yellow nutsedge in cotton consists of post-directed or topical application of MSMA, Fluoridone and Dual, experimental herbicides in cotton, also have performed well against the weed, he said.

"In the past, control measures in cotton have been lacking, but there are some new methods which may have potential," the TAES weed scientist reported.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed 35 cents to $2.25 a bale lower Friday.

Most prices eased in fairly good trading, brokers said.

Colson Disbarred By Washington Bar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles W. Colson, a top White House aide under Richard M. Nixon, was disbarred from practicing law in the nation's capital because of his 1974 guilty plea in connection with the Pentagon Papers case.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals ruled 7-2 Friday that the city's laws require the disbarment because Colson was convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude.

The court said such crimes include acts that offend the generally accepted moral code of mankind and acts of baseness, vileness or depravity.

The decision overruled a 4-3 ruling by a disciplinary board of the Bar of the District of Columbia, which suspended Colson but did not disbar him from practicing in city courts.

Colson served seven months of a one to three-year sentence after pleading guilty to one count of obstruction of justice. He was accused of releasing derogatory information about Daniel Ellsberg, who was on trial for leaking the Pentagon Papers to the news media.

Colson previously was disbarred from practicing law before the U.S. District Court in Washington and also was disbarred by the Supreme Court of Virginia.

Iranian Tribesmen Agree To Cease-Fire

SANANDAJ, Iran (AP) — A cease-fire between Kurdish tribesmen and government troops restored peace to this strife-torn western city Friday after the Kurds gained promises of at least limited autonomy from the Tehran administration.

In central Sanandaj, several hundred men loaded their bags and weapons aboard buses, trucks and cars for the journey back to their villages. Loudspeakers blared messages of appreciation from the people of Sanandaj for their help.

The cease-fire went into effect Wednesday night after almost four days of fighting claimed some 200 lives and wounded hundreds. Many victims were women and children wounded by army mortar barrages and by machine-gun strafing by military helicopter gunships.

Religious and government officials from Tehran had reportedly worked out an agreement with local Kurdish tribesmen granting the Kurds a "semi-autonomous" status. But Kurdish officials said it had been "simply proposed" by Inter-or Minister Seyyed Javadi and was not yet agreed to.

Javadi and Ayatollah Mahmoud Taleghani, Tehran's Shiite Moslem leader, met with Kurdish officials but it was not disclosed whether Sheik Ezzedin Hosseini — acknowledged political and religious leader of the Kurds, who are Sunni Moslems — was at the meetings. Hosseini was in Sanandaj Thursday and was hailed by thousands of Kurds at an open-air rally.

The 4 million Kurds of Kurdistan province, which borders Iraq and Turkey in western and northwestern Iran, have been pressing for a separate state for centuries.

They altered their demands to autonomy within a greater Iran after Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's monarchy was toppled Feb. 12 by an Islamic revolution. The revolution was inspired by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, leader of Iran's dominant Shiite Moslems.

The Kurds belong to the rival Sunni Moslem sect, which dominates most other Moslem nations.

At a mosque packed with thousands of Sanandaj residents Friday, Ayatollah Mehdi Beheshty, an aide to Taleghani, spoke in favor of Kurdish demands for autonomy.

"The Islamic republic will give you the rights of nationality because you took part in the revolution," he said. "You don't need another revolution, and those telling you that are anti-Islamic people."

Taleghani said, "You can have your own representatives and everything in Kurdistan belongs to you first then to the rest of the country."

But he made it clear that some hostages held by the army would be freed only when the Kurds gave up the radio station and airport they captured earlier. Release of the hostages reportedly had been a part of the cease-fire agreement.
