NEWS IN BRIEF

Conference set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter plans an energy policy conference Monday at Camp David, a White House official said Friday.

The official, who asked not to be named, said Carter and his advisers would focus on policy options designed to offset the loss of oil imports from Iran, which formerly supplied 5 percent of the nation's oil requirements.

The source did not rule out the possibility that Carter also might consider decontrol of crude oil prices after May 31.

Change asked

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — Court officials were scheduled to revert to a more standard jury selection process today in hopes of quickly finding two alternate jurors to hear testimony in the murder trial of Gene Leroy Hart.

District Judge William Whistler ordered Thursday that six persons at a time be brought into the courtroom to expedite the selection of the alternates.

Prosecutor S.M. Fallis Jr. did not object, but defense attorney Garvin Isaacs unsuccessfully protested Isaacs lobbied for a continuation of the individual interviews used to seat the jury during the last two weeks.

Body found

CHICAGO (AP) — Investigators found the remains of another body Friday at the home of John W. Gacy Jr., bringing to 32 the number of bodies found at his home or in a nearby river.

It is also the number of bodies which Gacy has reportedly told police he disposed of — but investigators said they will keep hunting for more.

The latest skeleton was found as Cook County sheriff's investigators sifted through the dirt beneath floorboards of an addition to Gacy's home in an unincorporated area near Chicago. It was the 29th body found at his home.

Three bodies have been pulled from the Des Plaines River and linked to Gacy, authorities said.

Signing of MidTran's contract expected soon

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Differences between the Midland City Council and Department of Labor over wording in a funding contract for MidTran appear to have been worked out, and city officials expect the contract to be signed at the March 27 council meeting, a few days ahead of the early April deadline.

The council discussed the contract Friday during a special session, but delayed signing it.

MidTran is a proposed public transportation system for Midland designed on a demand responsive concept.

John Ingram, president of the MidTran board, said his group and the City Council have been working together for a long time to get the transportation system going.

Citizens pledge to contest decision on bond election

Citizens contesting the Dec. 5 Ector County school bond election said Friday they plan to appeal the Judge J.H. "Dick" Starley's decision to uphold the election results.

Starley threw the contesters' case out Friday after brief closing arguments in the suit which was based on the contention school officials "deceived" voters about the need for bond election items.

Starley ruled there was "insufficient evidence" to rule that the election was fraudulent.

The 13 contesters, who represented themselves during the hearing, said they would appeal the decision to the 8th Court of Civil Appeals in El Paso.

But differences between the council and the government arose when requirements imposed by the Department of Labor "were not suited to the uniqueness of our problem," Ingram said.

"We feel optimistically that we'll have an answer next week on this (wording of the contract) and be ready to go to work," he added.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, who represents Midland, talked with labor department officials early Friday and reported the problems are being worked out.

Council members were told Hance hopes to have a new version of the contract ready by Thursday or Friday.

The City Council pulled Hance into the picture after government officials first said they could not see a problem with the contract as presented and would not consider making minor changes.

An operating grant for $147,840 was approved by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, a division of the Department of Transportation, in early February. The city has 60 days in which to put its signature on the contract for MidTran to receive those funds.

Signing of the contract first was placed on the City Council's Feb. 28 agenda. But the six-member panel decided to see if the differences in wording first could be resolved.

Council Member Gordon Marcum II, who has talked with government officials, said the Department of Labor has a standard contract for cities receiving transportation grants, but the document is designed for large cities, such as Houston, that have mass transportation systems.

"In Midland we don't have any mass transportation, and they (government officials) didn't want to tailor their forms for a unique system like MidTran," he said.

The main problem arose over a provision which would leave the city open to suit if a taxi driver lost his job and wanted to blame the transportation system, according to Marcum.

Because of the federal money involved in MidTran, the government was trying to ensure that no other firm is displaced once the Midland system gets going. "They (the government) don't want to drive private enterprise out of business by giving federal monies to other people," said Marcum.

And convincing the Department of Labor officials that MidTran is not going to run the taxi services out of business has been the major obstacle, he added.

In a letter of certification, the

'Real test' will be after treaty signing

By The Associated Press

Egypt's Anwar Sadat warned Israel Friday that the "real test" of the Mideast peace drive will come after their treaty is signed, when both sides will give each other "hell" over Palestinian self-rule. A faction of the Israeli Cabinet, meanwhile, demanded a tougher Israeli stand on the Palestinian issue.

In Lebanon, Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat declared that Palestinian resistance in the West Bank of the Jordan River was a "time bomb" that would wreck the U.S.-Egyptian-Israeli "plot."

But the West Bank was generally quiet Friday after six days of disturbances.

The new discord within the Israeli Cabinet apparently was one reason Prime Minister Menachem Begin on Friday put off the Cabinet's consideration of the full draft treaty from Sunday to Monday. Begin's slight flu was officially cited as the reason.

The diplomatic campaign to sell the treaty to the rest of the world continued.

A high-level U.S. delegation, including National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and President Carter's son Chip, was heading for the Middle East and meetings with the leaders of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, two Arab states whose support for the treaty is considered crucial to the success of the U.S.-sponsored peace campaign.

Egyptian Vice President Hosny Mubarak met with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in Paris to try to enlist his support.

Sadat, speaking with reporters during a visit to his home village in northern Egypt, said, "The real test of the peace process starts after the signing (of the treaty) — it is not the signing itself."

One month after the treaty is signed, Egypt and Israel are to open negotiations that within one year are supposed to decide on arrangements for Palestinian self-rule in the West Bank and the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip.

In those talks, "I know Begin will be raising hell as he always does," Sadat said. "But by God I shall be raising hell for him."

The Egyptian president also quibbled over plans for the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli treaty, saying it all should be done in Washington because "it is Carter's show," and not in the three capitals, as Begin has proposed.

The signing is expected within the next two weeks.

Begin had scheduled a meeting for Sunday at which the Cabinet would approve the overall treaty, as Egypt's Cabinet already has done. But instead he postponed it until Monday and now plans to meet Sunday with the three National Religious Party members of his 17-man Cabinet, who have made new demands on the Palestinian issue.

Begin apparently will try to head off a clash that, though it might not directly threaten the treaty, could undermine his government and complicate the future West Bank-Gaza negotiations. The party is Begin's senior partner in the governing coalition, and the withdrawal of its 12 Parliament members from the coalition would leave Begin with less than a majority in Parliament.

As described to The Associated Press by a National Religious Party legislator, David Glass, the party's demands would amount to almost outright Israeli rule of the West Bank, which the party regards as God-given Jewish land, and would contravene the Camp David accords.

Two killed in accident

LAMESA — A head-on collision on a rain-slick road killed two men and injured five other persons Friday night.

The collision on State Highway 137 killed Louis Cano, 20, of San Angelo and Cecil Henry Vest, 67, of Lamesa, and injured the five passengers in Cano's car, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

Linda Cano, 21; Alma Cano, 20; Angel Cano, 15, and Tanya Cano and Monica Cano, both 11 months, were admitted to Medical Arts Hospital in Lamesa, DPS Trooper Tom Anderson said Friday night.

The accident happened about 8:30 p.m. Friday. Vest was pronounced dead at the scene. Cano died later at Medical Arts Hospital, Anderson said.

DPS personnel were still investigating the cause of the accident late Friday.

O'Midlanders don't set much store by blarney

The venerable Saint Patrick, patron saint of Ireland, is being honored throughout the Emerald Isle today, but in Midland "Saint Pat" doesn't seem to be creating much of a stir.

For most of the O'Grady's, O'Malleys and O'Neals in the city, not to mention the Rileys and Reagans and Ryans, Saint Patrick's Day apparently is no special cause for celebration. For them, Saint Pat's Day is just a bit of blarney.

A few of the locals who were queried said they weren't at all sure they were even Irish, even though they carried an Irish surname. And a few others said their Irish forebears were so far in the past they didn't feel any special kinship to the old country.

"Honoring Saint Patrick is fine in Ireland, but I'm not so sure about it in America," said one.

"Saint Patrick? Wasn't he the fellow who drove the snakes out of Ireland?" asked an area newcomer named O'Leary. "Sure, I've heard of him, but I don't know much about him."

For some residents in the city, Irish or otherwise, Saint Patrick's Day will be a fine excuse for a party, or for the "wearin' of the green," or both.

But for most Irish-Americans, Saint Patrick's day will come and go without fanfare or special notice.

THE TIMES OF MY LIFE: PART SIX

Betty Ford battled embarrassment, ignorance as well as drugs

From THE TIMES OF MY LIFE by Betty Ford with Chris Chase. Copyright (c) 1978 by Betty Ford. Published by Harper & Row, Publishers, Inc. and The Reader's Digest Association, Inc.

By BETTY FORD
with Chris Chase

It wasn't until after I retired to Palm Springs, and private life, that my family noticed I was in trouble. For 14 years I'd been on medications for the pinched nerve, the arthritis, the muscle spasms in my neck, and I'd lost my tolerance for pills. If I had a single drink, the alcohol, on top of the pills, would make me groggy.

In the fall of 1977, I went to Moscow to narrate "The Nutcracker" ballet for television, and later there were comments about my "slooeeyed, sleepy-tongued" performance. Still, I can't say I knew what was happening to me. Jerry and the children were worried, but I had no idea how much I had changed.

It was Susan who first went into action. She and I had both been patients of a particular doctor. I guess they got to talking about me and he decided that what I needed was an "intervention." (The thinking used to be that a chemically addicted person — whether on pills or alcohol — had to hit bottom, decide he wanted to get well, before he could begin to recover; but it's now been demonstrated that a sick person's family can intervene to help him despite himself. With this new intervention method, the recovery rate has increased significantly.)

Toward the end of last March, while Jerry was in the East, the aforementioned doctor, along with Susan, Clara (the Fords' former housekeeper), and my secretary, all came marching into my sitting room and started talking about my giving up all medication and liquor. It was brave of them, but I wasn't in the mood to admire them for their courage; I was completely turned off. I got very mad, and was so upset that, after everyone had left, I called a friend and complained about

*Betty Ford set thousands of American women to their doctors when she went public about her breast surgery. But the impact was even greater when she revealed her dependence on drugs and alcohol. the terrible invasion of my privacy.

That was just prelude. On the morning of the first of April, 1978 the front door opened and in came the entire family. At first, I thought they'd gathered because I wasn't feeling well, and I was thrilled. We hugged and kissed and then we went and sat down in the living room.

Besides Jerry and the children, Captain Joe Pursch, the doctor who's head of the Alcohol and Drug Rehabilitation Service at Long Beach

Naval Hospital, was there, and so was a Navy nurse. And they all proceeded to confront me with a second intervention. Only this time, they meant business. They'd met together, and with Captain Pursch's guidance, the family had prepared what they were going to say.

Jerry mentioned times when I'd fallen asleep in the chair at night, and times when my speech had slurred, and Steve brought up a recent weekend when he and a girlfriend had cooked dinner for me and I wouldn't come to the table on time. "You just sat in front of the TV," Steve said, "and you had one drink, two drinks, three drinks. You hurt me."

Well, he hurt me back. All of them hurt me. I collapsed into tears. But I still had enough sense to realize they hadn't come around just to make me cry; they were there because they loved me and wanted to help me.

Yet I continued to resist any suggestion that liquor had contributed to my illness; all I would confess to was overmedication. Captain Pursch told me it didn't matter, and gave me the book Alcoholics Anonymous, and told me to read it, substituting the words

"chemically dependent" for "alcoholic." A tranquilizer or a dry martini, each brings the same relief, so for drugs or alcohol you use the same book. And when I say drugs, I'm talking about legal medications, prescribed by doctors.

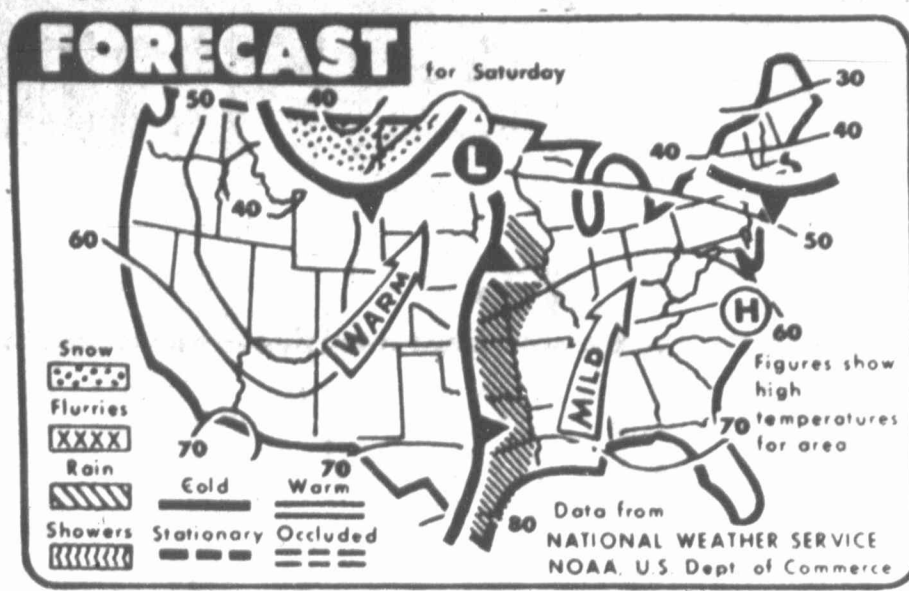

At first, I was bitter toward the medical profession. Fourteen years of being advised to take pills, rather than wait for the pain to hit. I had never been without my drugs. I took pills for pain, I took pills to sleep, I took mild tranquilizers. Today things are changing, doctors are being educated right along with the rest of us, but some of them used to be all too eager to write prescriptions.

I asked Jerry if it would be all right if I signed myself into Long Beach, and he said yes. I think it was very hard on him. When someone you love

Friction with Laos increases

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Laos and Vietnam accused China on Friday of sending troops into Laos and trying to topple its government, as the Chinese declared they had withdrawn all troops from Vietnam except for a strip of land claimed by both countries.

As the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict appeared to be winding down and both sides called for peace talks, friction increased between China and Laos, a Vietnam-dominated, pro-Soviet nation of 3 million.

Laos, which so far has escaped the recent fighting, said China moved two battalions almost two miles into its territory March 7 and 10 and dispatched agents to undermine its 3-year-old communist regime.

A protest note from the Laotian foreign ministry to the Chinese foreign ministry said the Chinese are massing troops, tanks, personnel carriers and artillery near the northern Laotian provinces of Luang Namtha, Oudomsai and Phong Saly.

Laos, Vietnam's neighbor to the west, has ordered the expulsion of all Chinese aid technicians. The Chinese have warned Laos not to "slip down the anti-China road."

Vietnam's official media said Friday that "the Chinese plan to annex Laos" and have built an ammunition depot in Laos defended by several battalions.

Although Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua announced all Chinese troops had withdrawn from northern Vietnam, which they invaded Feb. 17, he indicated they were still occupying several square miles of disputed frontier territory. He also said the Chinese forces would return if provoked by Vietnam.

Vietnam countered that heavy fighting continues, that the Chinese were shelling border districts and that they destroyed large sections of the railroad line between the provincial capital of Lang Son and Dong Dang, a town three miles from the border.

Huang Hua said at a Peking press conference Friday that Chinese forces were back in Guangxi (Kwangsi) and Yunnan provinces, according to Xinhua, (Hsinhua) the Chinese news agency.

But Japan's Kyodo news service quoted Huang as saying at the news conference that Chinese troops remained in some areas claimed by both countries and that China was applying a boundary agreement set by the Ching dynasty, which ended in 1912, and France when it ruled Indochina.

Kyodo said Huang acknowledged that boundary is not the same as the one Vietnam calls "the historical boundary line," and he told reporters the disputed area "involves only dozens of square kilometers of land." He was not more specific — 12 square kilometers is 4.6 square miles.

Warmer day in forecast

Midlanders probably can look forward to feeling warmer temperatures this afternoon, but not to seeing the sun.

Cloudy and not as cold this afternoon is the official word from the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport. The forecasters also threw in a chance of showers and thunderstorms through tonight.

Sunday, however, should be only partly cloudy and a little warmer, the weatherman said.

Today's high is predicted to be in the upper 60s, with tonight's low to be in the upper 40s. Sunday's high is expected to be in the upper 60s.

Probability of rain is 30 percent today, decreasing to 20 percent tonight.

Friday's high was a chilly 49 degrees, with the overnight low at 42. Neither temperature came close to the records set for the date of 86 degrees set in 1966 and 26 set in 1970.

The weather service gauge at the airport recorded only .02 inch of moisture from the intermittent drizzle that dogged the area Friday, which brought the monthly accumulation up to .20 inch and the annual total to .62 inch.

Area towns were experiencing the same gray, drizzly weather as Midlanders Friday, with Andrews weather watchers reporting "foggy and soupy" skies and Rankin reporting "just a few drops."

Bids for vehicles to follow signing

Labor officials are to revise the specifications with which the city must comply.

MidTran has been in the planning stage for more than two years now. Once the contract is signed, the city can advertise for bids on vehicles and start on the final stretch of putting the system into action.

Also Friday, the City Council heard a review of proposed zoning ordinance changes from Richard Hennessey, director of planning and community development.

Included were amount of paving in front of residences, parking requirements, regulations for lounges and revising the filing fee for planned district applications.

A public hearing on the proposed changes will be held at the March 27 council session.

Khomeini moves to halt trials, punishments that cause dissent

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini declared a halt Friday to all revolutionary trials, executions and punishment whose drumbeat swiftness had caused dissent in his government.

The suspension gave a temporary reprieve to former Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida, on trial for his life.

Khomeini, the 78-year-old leader of Iran's revolution, ordered the courts to suspend proceedings until new legal guidelines could be drawn up. He did not indicate what the guidelines would be.

The move was seen as a victory for Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, who has described the rash of trials and executions as "a disgrace." Bazargan has threatened to quit his post in frustration over the tribunals, which act independently of the government and heed only Khomeini.

Bazargan traveled to the holy city of Qum Thursday night to meet with Khomeini and it was believed he made the trip to protest Hoveida's trial and discuss its possible repercussions.

Khomeini's statement, read over state radio, complained of the speed of the trials and executions.

So far 62 people are known to have been tried and executed by revolutionary courts and firing squads. Most were former government and military officials, but some were executed for sexual offenses.

The announcement made no specific mention of Hoveida, who was charged with offenses ranging from spying for the United States and "Zionism" to smuggling heroin and allowing foreign exploitation of the country's natural resources.

Pale and groggy, Hoveida went on trial in the early morning hours Thursday in a makeshift courtroom set up in Tehran's Qasr prison. The prosecutor asked that the 57-year-old man be sentenced to death.

A close confidant of the shah, Hoveida served as the prime minister for 13 years and also as the marshal of the imperial court. He was arrested in November by the shah's military government in an attempt to appease the growing anti-shah movement. Freed when the shah was overthrown, he later surrendered to the revolutionary government.

Meanwhile, American feminist Kate Millett said she would remain in Iran until she received a formal notification of expulsion. Deputy Prime Minister Amir Entezam announced Thursday that she was being expelled for "provocations against the revolution."

"I haven't been expelled but if I am asked to leave, I will do so," Ms. Millett told reporters.

Ms. Millett said she came to Iran about a week ago at the invitation of Iranian feminists campaigning for equal rights. She participated in several marches to protest Khomeini's suggestion that women wear modest Islamic dress and his abolition of the family law, which gave women the same property and divorce rights as men.

Later Friday, an estimated 100,000 people gathered at the headquarters of the National Iranian Radio and Television network to show their support for Khomeini's policies towards women and his call for an Islamic republic.

Admission of alcoholism hardest is in trouble, you blame yourself, you think it must be partly your fault that you couldn't save the other person. Jerry had been trying to save me, but there wasn't anything effective he could do until he had gotten some expert advice.

My 60th birthday came at the end of that week which had begun with the intervention in Palm Springs. Two days later, I entered Long Beach to rid myself of dependence on drugs. I could have gone to a private hospital, but I decided if I was going to go all the way as far as my treatment was concerned, it was better to do it publicly.

I wrote out a statement which said I'd been overmedicating myself. "It's an insidious thing and I mean to rid myself of its damaging effects." This statement would be released to the press once I was safely ensconced in the hospital.

Captain Pursch met me and took me down the hall to what I expected would be a private room. Now we came into a room with four beds, and there were clothes around, and it was obvious other people lived here.

I balked. I was not going to sign in, I was not going to release my statement. Captain Pursch was used to this sort of thing. "If you insist on a private room," he said, "I will have all these ladies move out."

Brilliant man. He put the ball right in my court. "No, no, I won't have that," I said very self-consciously, and an hour later I was settled in with three roommates, and my statement was being read to reporters.

At the end of my first week in Long Beach, Jerry and I met in Captain Pursch's office with several doctors and a Navy man who was my group-therapy counselor.

Up until that point, I had been talking about medications, while everyone nodded respectfully. Now these doctors told me they wanted me to admit that I was also an alcoholic. They wanted me to make a public statement about it. I refused. "I don't want to embarrass my husband," I said.

"You're trying to hide behind your husband," Captain Pursch said. "Why don't you ask him if it would embarrass him if you say you're an alcoholic?"

I started to cry, and Jerry took my hand. "There will be no embarrassment to me. You go ahead and say what should be said."

When Jerry took me back to my room, I was still sobbing so hard I couldn't get my breath. I was gasping, my mouth wide open, sure my air was going to be cut off. I hope I never have to cry like that again. It was scary, but once it was over, I felt a great relief.

The reason I rejected the idea that I was an alcoholic was that my addiction wasn't dramatic. So my speech had become deliberate. So I forgot a few telephone calls. So I fell in the bathroom and cracked three ribs. But I never drank for a hangover, and in fact I used to criticize people who did.

At house parties, I would look at friends who knocked back Bloody Marys in the morning, and I would think, isn't that pathetic?

I hadn't been a solitary drinker, either; I'd never hidden bottles in the chandeliers or the toilet tanks. At Washington luncheons I'd never touched anything but an occasional glass of sherry. There had been no broken promises (my husband never came to me and said, "Please quit") and no drunken driving. I worried about my children too much to risk taking them anywhere in a car when I'd been drinking.

That night, I scrawled yet another statement: "I have found that I am not only addicted to the medications I have been taking for my arthritis, but also to alcohol..."

It was a big step for me to write that, to let it be printed and broadcast, but it was only the first of many steps that I would have to take.

Mornings I had group therapy at 8:45. Each group is composed of six or seven patients and one counselor. It's in these groups that you begin to feel the support, the warmth, the comradeship which will be your lifeline back to sobriety. Among my group were a sailor (quiet, sweet-faced, his skin too gray for a 20-year-old, eyes too tired); a young officer (twice married, twice divorced) and a clergyman (addicted to drugs and drink, living on the thin edge of his nerves). At first, I loathed the sessions. I was uncomfortable, unwilling to speak up. Then one day another woman said she didn't think that drinking was a problem, and I became very emotional. I got to my feet.

"I'm Betty, and I'm an alcoholic, and I know my drinking has hurt my family," I said. I heard myself, and I couldn't believe it. I was trembling; another defense had cracked.

In group, you can admit to having wrecked your car and your liver, broken your teeth and your marriage and your dreams, and your group mates will nod and say yes, yes, but you're not alone, and after all, it could be worse, you could still be conning yourself, or cursing your genes, or your doctors, or your luck.

In the end, what it comes down to is you have to take the responsibility for yourself. Never mind that your wife kept a dirty house, or your mother didn't like you, or your husband can't remember your wedding anniversary. Everybody's had disappointment. Blaming other people for your condition is a total waste of time.

Toward the end of my month at Long Beach, I tried to tell my group what they had meant to me, but I couldn't express it in words. I started to cry, and one of the fellows handed me some tissues and said, "Now we know you're going to get better."

After I came into the hospital, it was as though a dam had burst. Newspapers and magazines poured in, filled with articles about women and drugs and alcohol. Bags of mail followed, and flowers, and messages sent by well-wishers.

I got compliments in high places. The Washington Post ran an editorial declaring that my candor in discussing my mastectomy had given heart "to countless other prospective victims of breast cancer," and went on to praise me for revealing my present addiction to pills and alcohol: "Whatever combination of emotional and psychological stress and physical pain (she is arthritic) brought her to this pass, she is, characteristically, determined to overcome it. And she is unafraid and unembarrassed to say so."

I thank the Washington Post, but I don't deserve the accolade. I've been both afraid and embarrassed. I've gone through every possible emotion, suffered every possible mood, loneliness, depression, anger, discouragement.

Serenity is hard won, but I'm making progress.

I don't want to drink any more, and it's been a great relief to me to stop. Jerry has cocktails before dinner. It doesn't bother me. I enjoy ginger ale, I enjoy tonic with a lime in it, I enjoy Perrier water.

I've learned a lot about myself. Most of it is all right.

As I continue to study and learn and work toward an aware future, I'm sure more will be revealed to me, and I'm looking forward to that.

Stubborn Betty Bloomer Ford intends to make it.

Swiss pair bilks IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Swiss couple, submitting phony tax forms with fictitious names and using randomly selected Social Security numbers, bilked the U.S. government out of half a million dollars over a seven-year period, the Justice Department said Friday.

In the alleged tax fraud scheme, Arno Arndt and his wife, Marlise, obtained more than $500,000 in illegal refunds from the Internal Revenue Service, Assistant U.S. Attorney Raymond Banoun said.

He said the scheme, in which the Arndts also are accused of using W-2 forms with fabricated amounts of earnings and tax deductions, has "continued to this date." But Banoun also said the IRS now believes it will be able to stop any future false claims from the Arndts.

The tax returns always claimed a refund, Banoun told U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. The attorney said that since Oct. 27, 1971, the couple has claimed $673,000 in refunds and received $501,443 that the IRS knows about.

Banoun said the couple — she is Swiss and he is German — lived in the United States briefly about 10 years ago. But "neither defendant worked, or indeed resided, in the United States during the years in question under any of the fraudulent names," he said.

The indictment charges the couple with 30 counts of mail fraud based on 30 refund checks mailed by the U.S. Treasury. Banoun said. However, he added, the number of fraudulent Treasury checks has now reached 131.

The alleged scheme was outlined in an indictment handed down by a federal grand jury 14 months ago. The indictment was kept secret while the U.S. government tried to have the Arndts extradited.

Banoun said the Swiss government has informed the United States that the extradition request will be rejected. He said extradition will be pursued nonetheless and that the United States will consider a Swiss-government offer to try the couple in Switzerland on charges of violating that country's tax laws.

The alleged scheme worked so well that the amounts of fraudulent refunds jumped from $210,000, when the indictment was issued on Jan. 19, 1978, to $501,443 by Friday, Banoun said.

The indictment said the Arndts usually would make up names — in a few cases they used their real names — and mail in the tax forms from Switzerland.

With their returns, the couple submitted W-2 forms that listed phony earnings and deduction amounts, but named actual places of work.

It said the IRS then sent the refund checks to Switzerland, where they were cashed at three Swiss banks.

Murder suspect pleads 'innocent'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Roger Dale Stafford, the man suspected in nine Oklahoma murders, entered an innocent plea Friday afternoon in the slaying of one of six persons killed at an Oklahoma City steakhouse.

The 27-year-old Stafford was arraigned before District Court Judge Raymond Naifeh on one first-degree murder count in the death of 16-year-old Terri Horst.

The defendant was represented at the hearing by Gary Dean, an attorney from Pryor.

Naifeh set Stafford's preliminary hearing for April 30.

Bond was denied. Stafford, described as a drifter from Alabama, was arrested Tuesday night at a Chicago YMCA and was returned to Oklahoma City Wednesday afternoon after waiving extradition.

Tom Kennedy, director of the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, said Stafford is the lone suspect in the July 16 slayings of the Sirloin Stockade employees during a $1,500 robbery and in the June 20 killings of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, his wife and son of San Antonio, Texas.

The Lorenz' bodies were found in deep weeds along Interstate 35 about 35 miles south of here.

Stafford's brother, Harold Roy Stafford, was listed as an accomplice in the killings. He died six days after the steakhouse killings in a Tulsa motorcycle accident.

Police traced Stafford to Chicago after a relative tipped officers he was headed that way and probably would stay at a YMCA. His estranged wife, Verna, earlier was found in Chicago and returned to Oklahoma City with officers.

New airline set to take to skies in mid-April

A new airline could be flying out of Midland Regional Airport as soon as April 15, if the Texas Aeronautics Commission agrees.

Permian Airways is planning two flights a day from Midland to Lubbock and Amarillo pending route certification from the TAC.

The company will use Piper Navajo Chieftans for the flights, according to Pat Perez, general manager and vice president of the newly formed corporation. The company has one now and another is on order, Perez said.

Prices for the ride on the nine-passenger planes would be $33 from Midland to Lubbock and from Lubbock to Amarillo and $55 from Midland to Amarillo.

Flights would leave Midland at 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., arriving back in the city at 10:45 a.m. and 7:15 p.m., Perez said.

No hearing date has been set for the application for route certification, TAC officials said. Company officials said they hope the application will be approved by April 5, allowing flights to begin April 15.

Members of petroleum group dispute accounts

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association Friday took issue with a news story circulated by a wire service on the Texas Railroad Commission hearings on Whalen Lake.

That story did not appear in The Reporter-Telegram, but was printed in several other area newspapers.

The story implied the commission ruled in favor of those who want to close down Whalen Lake permanently to disposal of oil field discharges.

The Railroad Commission, in fact, made no ruling on Whalen Corp.'s request to resume dumping brine into the playa lake, and no answer is expected for several weeks.

The news story said opponents of the disposal application had achieved a victory, because the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency had asserted jurisdiction over Whalen Lake, claiming it is a navigable body of water.

"Any time any federal bureau or agency takes control of any segment of American Society, it is never a victory...Everyone loses," said Al Dillard, president of the petroleum association.

Accused hijacker arrested

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A well-dressed man claiming to have a knife was arrested Friday after hijacking a Continental Airlines Boeing 722 and demanding $200,000 and passage to Cuba, FBI agents said.

John Carleton Kivlen, 52, of San Rafael, Calif., was arrested at Tucson International Airport after a stewardess being held hostage dashed into a plane laboratory on the signal of FBI agents who had gone aboard, said

FBI Agent Leon M. Gaskill.

The stewardess, Mary Ellen Paul, 31, of El Paso, Texas, was not harmed, and Kivlen gave up peacefully, Gaskill said. He said the man, who passengers said was carrying a shaving kit, had only a nail file.

Formal charges were not filed immediately, as FBI agents were interrogating Kivlen.

The plane, Continental Flight 62 from Los Angeles to Miami, with stops at Phoenix, Tucson and Houston, was hijacked about 9:15 a.m. MST, minutes after leaving Phoenix for the 30-minute flight to Tucson, Gaskill said.

The man, who was dressed in a gray business suit, approached a stewardess and "told her he was taking over the plane and said he had a cutter," Gaskill said. He said he wanted $200,000 placed in two bags under the wings of the airplane after it landed at Tucson.

After landing, the plane taxied to a remote part of the airport and all 89 passengers and seven of the eight crew members got off, Continental Airlines officials said.

FBI agents boarded the plane almost immediately after the passengers and crew departed, Gaskill said. Negotiations with the hijacker were carried out mostly by passing notes and, at one point, the man said he wanted to go to Havana, Cuba, he said.

Most of the passengers on the plane apparently did not realize a hijacking was in progress until they were getting off.

Richard Paul, a Los Angeles actor who played the mayor on ABC-TV's "Carter Country" series, said the pilot made an unexplained announcement over the plane's intercom system that all passengers would have to get off at Tucson.

Enrollment continues climb, MC's spring figures show

Enrollment at Midland College continues to inch upward, according to a report issued this week by Registrar Dee Windsor.

For the current spring semester, enrollment at the community college is 2,164 students. This is a slight increase from the 2,153 persons enrolled during the 1978 spring semester.

But while the number of students is up just slightly, the contact-hour count increased by 6 percent.

Contact-hour count, the number of class hours for which students are in enrolled, is the measuring unit used by the state in payment to state-supported colleges and universities.

For the spring semester, the contact-hour total is 428,368. During the 1978 spring semester, 405,392 contact-hours were generated.

Some 66 percent of the contact-hours are in academic studies, and 34 percent are in vocational studies.

This is a slight shift from the 64-36 distribution for last year. Of course, a number of vocational students are taking some academic courses, such as English, history, math or science, officials pointed out.

For the current semester, there were substantial increases in biological science, business and management, communications, fine and applied arts, mathematics and physical sciences among the general academic areas.

Vocational course increases were sizeable in mid-management, machine shop, welding, automotive, industrial engines and petroleum technology. New programs in electronics and respiratory therapy added more contact hours.

Courses in apprentice automotive technology and postal technology were not offered during the current semester.

Most of the students at Midland College come from within the college district, some 1,809 of them. There are 292 students enrolled from 52 other Texas counties, 39 students from 22 other states and 24 students from nine foreign countries.

There are 1,442 part-time and 711 full-time students. Based on an average of 12 hours for a full-time student, there are the equivalent of 1,518 full-

Mondale stands in WASHINGTON (AP) — Standing in Friday for a weary President Carter, Vice President Walter F. Mondale accepted the Irish government's annual gift of a Waterford crystal bowl filled with fresh shamrocks.

The St. Patrick's Day ceremony, although a day in advance this year, has become a White House tradition.

Mondale explained to Irish Ambassador Sean Donlon that Carter could not be present because he was resting at Camp David, Md., after an exhausting Middle East journey.

Donlon asked Mondale to convey his government's congratulations to Carter for the accomplishments of the Mid-east peace mission.

Mondale's office announced late Friday that Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch would visit the United States.

time students. The male-female ratio is almost even with 1,107 men and 1,057 women attending.

There are 215 students, about 10 percent, who are listed as members of minority races. And 928 students are married, with 1,236 are single.

The military veteran population continues to decline, as it has in the past few years, officials said.

There are 193 students receiving educational benefits because of prior military service, compared with 207 last year.

Eighty-six students are high school students who have enrolled as part of Midland College's Early Admissions Program, 43 students are attending after earning GED Certificates and 374 students are transfers from other colleges or universities.

Sohio's abandonment of project 'no great loss'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the president's Council on Environmental Quality said Friday abandonment of a pipeline project to carry Alaska oil from California to Texas was no great loss to the nation.

Charles Warren, onetime chairman of the energy committee of the California legislature, said the pipeline proposed by Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio) would not have saved U.S. consumers any money.

In an interview, Warren said the price ceilings established by Congress allow Alaska oil to claim prices similar to those prevailing in the world market when delivered to refiners, no matter how the oil reaches them.

Of the 1.2 million barrels of oil flowing daily through the trans-Alaska pipeline, some 700,000 to 800,000 barrels a day are delivered by tanker to the West Coast.

The other 400,000 to 500,000 barrels continue by tanker to U.S. refining areas along the Gulf of Mexico.

Warren said the proposed pipeline from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, Tex., would have reduced the transportation costs — at least as originally proposed — but not the delivered price of the oil. Thus, the company would have enjoyed a higher profit, but the public would not have saved any money, he added.

Although the project was delayed for several years by environmental reviews and regulatory procedures, Warren said it appeared the necessary permits would have been issued soon.

"The Sonshiners," a nine-member ladies' ensemble of the First Baptist Church of Midland, will be one of more than 20 groups and individual entertainers performing today at the Downtown Lions Club's Pancake Jamboree in Dellwood Mall. Members of the group are Kay Burchard, Ann Campbell, Gwen Carley, Marriana Crose, Bettye Dellis, Fuffy Green, Sharon Hyde, Doris Lloyd and Barbara Slaughter.

Today is "THE" day — all day — for pancakes. They will be available, with all the trimmings, from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Downtown Lions Club's 23rd annual Pancake Jamboree in the Dellwood Mall.

Ray Gwyn, general chairman, and Morris Hulsey, assistant chairman, said last night that everything is in readiness for the big event, at which it is hoped to feed 10,000 pancake-hungry men, women and children of Midland and vicinity.

They said club members worked most of the day Friday in setting up for the big feed.

forks and spoons for the diners.

It is estimated that 2,500 pounds of pancake mix will be used during the day, along with "no telling how much sausage and syrup." Milk, orange drink and coffee also will be served.

Al Dirnberger and Larry Ivy of the equipment committee said that plenty of griddles, fryers and warmers will be in use to assure fast moving lines at all hours.

Continuous entertainment, arranged by Chairman Duke

Jimerson, will be presented throughout the day, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

President George Weis said that all proceeds from the event will be used solely for funding the club's many and varied special projects and programs, for which more than $20,000 is budgeted this year.

Weis emphasized the fact that the jamboree is open to the public and that everyone is invited to eat pancakes — all day.

Jerry Speck, chairman of ticket sales, said several thousand pancake tickets have been sold in advance by club members. Tickets also will be available at the mall entrance today.

Nordic skiing gaining favor

By MICHAEL HOFFMAN

ANDOVER, Ohio (AP) — Sure it's fun to ski downhill, but it's not the only way to enjoy yourself on the snow-covered slopes.

In fact, purists maintain that cross-country, or Nordic, skiing is the only real way to ski. True or not, the variation has swept the country, with new adherents lining up to buy and rent equipment wherever they can.

Its popularity is traced by some adherents to the 1976 Winter Olympics, when an approving America saw Vermont's Billy Koch do something no American had ever done before — win a medal in cross-country skiing.

If nothing else, the event focused attention on the sport, which, combined with a growing national awareness of physical fitness, sent sales of Nordic gear skyrocketing.

During a recent cross-country workshop at Pymatuning State Park, hard by the Pennsylvania border in northeastern Ohio, about 200 enthusiasts — many of them first-timers — heard some pointers on the sport.

It was the fifth annual state-sponsored winter workshop at Pymatuning, and one measure of the growth of interest in Nordic skiing was the fact the agency running the event had to turn down reservations. In fact, it was one of four cross-country workshops — single-day affairs — on the same weekend in different parts of the state.

Cross-country skiing involves a good deal of exercise, if the participant's objective is to get someplace in a hurry. If not, cross-country skiing is akin to walking, more precisely strolling, as the spirit demands. It is graceful and easy. Addicts insist that if you can walk, you can ski.

Nordic skiers wear light boots with three small holes in a toe extension that fit over corresponding pins on a binding mounted on the ski. The skis are slender, and the poles generally are made of either aluminum, fiberglass, cane or graphite.

When compared to downhill skiing gear, the cost for cross-country equipment usually is substantially less, with some shops offering specials that include skis, poles, boots and bindings for as little as $90.

Another attractive aspect of the Nordic sport is the fact that any terrain is fair game. Rolling countryside, golf courses, parks, hiking trails, a back yard — all are prime prospects for a ski outing. The only requirement is some snow.

"I got into it because of my interest in backpacking," said Beth Weaver, 31, of Fairlawn, Ohio. "That's where my original interest came from."

"Winter is beautiful when you can be out there in it. It's exhilarating," she said.

Vicki Snyder, 28, of Columbus, said she'd done a little downhill skiing, but was turned off by lift lines and lift tickets.

"I'm always looking for ways to enjoy the outdoors, particularly when it's active," she said. "I think it would be unusual if it (cross-country skiing) didn't grow enormously because it's more pleasant than downhill."

Her husband Otis Snyder, 34, said there are some practical applications for cross-country skiing. "There is a definite application to ice fishing," he said. "Especially if you have a sled to pull your equipment."

Ain't me, says MP

LONDON (AP) — A member of Parliament is suing for libel damages because his name was used in a fictitious conversation in a book on English usage.

Sir Nigel Fisher, a Conservative, has issued a writ contending the authors of the book, "Contact English I," gave examples of a grammatically incorrect conversation with a member of Parliament of the same name.

Opening lead — ???

Schenken knew his partner could have only one or two trumps. If East had the singleton or doubleton king, and dummy had three spades to the jack or queen, immediate action might steer declarer to a losing trump play.

Schenken therefore opened the nine of spades.

NATURAL ASSUMPTION
 Declarer naturally assumed East had the king and ten of spades. Since East might also hold the five of spades, declarer played dummy's jack of spades at the first trick. Schenken eventually got the setting trick with the ten of spades.

With any other opening lead declarer would begin the trumps by leading a low card from dummy. East would play the king, and there would be no chance for South to go wrong.

DAILY QUESTION
 Partner bids one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-J63; H-85; D-AQ7; C-K9542. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three notrump. Since you have 10 points in high cards, the combined count must be 26 to 28 points, enough for game in notrump but probably not quite enough for game in clubs.

API fund drive seeks $1.22 million

RESTON, Va. (AP) — The American Press Institute announced a campaign Friday to raise $1,228,000 to construct an addition to its building so that two seminars can be conducted at the same time.

Howard H. "Tim" Hays Jr., API chairman and editor and co-publisher of the Riverside, Calif., Press and Enterprise, said contributions would be sought from daily newspapers in the United States and Canada.

The chairman of the campaign will be James H. Ottaway, immediate past chairman of API and chairman of Ottaway Newspapers Inc., Campbell, N.Y.

API, now in its 33rd year, is a nonprofit training center dedicated to the continuing education and training of newspaper men and women.

Each year the institute holds a series of seminars for experienced members of newspaper staffs.

The action by the board of directors to expand was taken because of a sharp increase in nominations for seminars in the last three years.

Serving on the building fund committee are: William J. Carradine, vice president-administration, Southam Press Ltd., Toronto; Robert W. Chandler, president and editor, The Bulletin, Bend, Ore.; Richard J.V. Johnson, president, Houston Chronicle; Peter Macdonald, chairman of the board, Harris Enterprises, Inc., Hutchinson, Kan.; Wayne Patrick, president and publisher, The Evening Herald, Rock Hill, S.C.; Eugene S. Pulliam, publisher, The Indianapolis Star and The Indianapolis News; Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher, The New York Times; and Turner Catledge, executive editor (retired), The New York Times. Catledge was chairman of the 1972 building fund campaign.

Teachers' pay raise plan opposed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Teachers deserve the same 5.1 percent pay raise as other state employees but not automatic salary increases, Gov. Bill Clements said Friday.

"I do not favor the automatic pay raise in the step-up plan as they have now," Clements said at his weekly news conference.

"I want to abolish that and give the teachers only and solely 5.1 percent, the same as other state employees," the governor said. Merit raises should be retained, he added.

Clements' plan would be subject to legislative approval. Legislators have written an adjustable 13-level teacher pay ladder into the Texas Education Code.

The governor's news conference followed a speech to the Association of Texas Educators on the same subject.

"I want to state unequivocally that I favor granting the teachers of Texas at least a 5.1 percent pay increase, the same as other state employees," Clements told the group. "This is not a new position for me."

The Legislative Budget Board has recommended giving teachers a 5.1 percent pay raise in addition to 3.2 percent to 4.9 percent annual step-up raises.

"I do not believe this is equitable, particularly in view of the fact that teachers have received salary adjustments and other benefits which were substantially ahead of those granted other state employees in every recent session of the Legislature," Clements added.

Approximately 25 teachers plan to leave Dallas at 4 a.m. Saturday on a marathon run to Austin in protest of Clements' education budget proposals.

"They're full of vigor and vitality, there's no question about that," he said. "How much good it will do, I put a question on that. I don't think it helps their cause any. And I don't think it helps the education of the children of Texas." Teachers are free to express their feelings, he added.

Spiff the Clown romps and rollicks through the American Continental Circus, to the delight of young and old alike. Spiff and several other clown acts will be among the specialty entertainments featured in circus performances at 1 and 5 p.m. Sunday in Chaparral Center at Midland College. The performances are sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Eagles here, and tickets will be for sale at the box office before the start of each show.

Clements suggests one-year spending bills, extra session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday that in the face of an uncertain economy and rising inflation it might be best for the Texas Legislature to write only a one-year spending bill.

Second-year appropriations could be handled in a special session called next summer solely for money matters, he told a news conference.

"A slowdown in our economy certainly could have an adverse effect on our revenue," Clements said.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday there was a slight downturn in state and local sales tax revenues for the three months of the year. He said he was watching it closely and would have a revised revenue report in the next 15 or 20 days.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said last week a one-year budget might be a good idea.

Clements said he had not talked with either Jones or Bullock.

"This is most interesting and has several benefits," the governor said when asked about a one-year budget. "It's not entirely a new idea to me in view of our uncertain economy and gloomy forecasts. It would give us better control over our revenues. That's a real plus. It also would be helpful to me. I personally like that part of it. I certainly would give it every consideration."

Clements stressed that he was not advocating a permanent change to annual sessions of the Legislature.

"I am not in favor of that. But due to the uncertain economy and rising inflation we might make an exception this year for a one-year budget and have a special session next summer limited only to financial matters," he said.

"I would be interested in it and would have no opposition."

Clements was asked about the time former Gov. Preston Smith vetoed the second year of a general appropriations bill and later called the Legislature in special session to appropriate for that year only.

"I know what Preston Smith did," Clements said, "but I'm not there yet and I would not want to comment on it."

On other matters, Clements said: — He, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton and the Texas Railroad Commission had agreed on a "Texas Position" opposing the Carter administration gasoline rationing plan. He said Hobby would go to Washington next week to urge support of the position by Texas congressmen.

— It's up to W.B. "Monk" Edwards to decide whether to fight out his controversial nomination for a Houston district judgeship. The Senate postponed action on the nomination last week, apparently allowing him time to withdraw. "I'm leaving it in his hands," Clements said.

Neither fog, nor foe can stop Lee

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

A London type fog rolled over and through Memorial Stadium Friday night, but the Midland Lee Rebels made like Jack the Ripper and cut up the seven team Tall City Relays field in little pieces.

The Rebels scored 157 points, scored points in every event, won seven of 14 races for the second week in a row and won the meet by a 79 point margin for the second week in a row. Currently, the Rebs are swinging a wicked knife blade and teams across West Texas are feeling the fury.

Midland High scored 61 points for fourth place, 10 points behind third place Amarillo Tascosa. The Bulldogs captured two first place wins.

The Midland High girls just missed out on winning their first track title in history in a 129-127 loss to Odessa Ector, and Ector's win the mile relay over the Bulldogs was the only difference. Midland High won five events. Lee finished last with 32 points, but it was their best outing of the year.

IN THE Junior Varsity division, Amarillo Tascosa outdistanced Lee 156-104 1/2 for the title and Odessa High had 103 points, Midland High and Palo Duro followed with 40 points each.

Lee got off to a fast start to win the varsity division when they scored 55 points in the field events. Lee swept the long jump with a 1-2-3 finish from Elmer Montgomery, 21-3 1/4; Jody Sessom, 20-6 1/4; and Forrest Allen, 20-6. All were season bests.

Then Jeff McCowan rolled out to a victory in the shot put with a 59-9, not his best, while Rodney Taylor had a 54-0 for fourth and Herb Pearce a 52-9 for fifth. MHS' David Simmons picked up third with a 55-0 1/2.

Simmons came back to win the discus with a good effort of 160-10 considering the heavy air conditions. MHS' James Lary had a fifth and Lee's Brian Briscoe had a sixth.

SESSOM HAD his best of 13-6 in the pole vault for second place while Allen and Montgomery picked up points in the high jump.

Then came the running events, and Lee again was the main benefactor. Montgomery, Mark Landers, Phil Carleton and Dwight Washington teamed for a 43.0 to win the sprint relay, and Montgomery, Arthur Pertile, Carleton and Washington later ended it all with a victory in the mile relay with a 3:24.3.

In between, the Rebs didn't do too badly either. Pertile pulled out his first victory of the year in the 880 with a 2:02.8, not his best, but he did have his strongest finish to come from behind to beat San Angelo's Frank Rodriguez. Gary Butler also picked up a fourth and MHS' Gene Tuttle was fifth.

Carleton also came back after last week's scratch in the 440 to win here with a 50.4 in a tough race, and Washington tied a meet record in the 220 with a 22.4 for another win, but it wasn't his best time of the year.

MIDLAND HIGH got a victory from Jeff Robnett with a 9.9 in the 100, a very good showing with the cold conditions. Billy Taylor was third with a 10.2 and Landers had a second 10.1 for the Rebels.

Robnett also had a second in the 220 with a 22.6, following Washington, and Taylor was fifth. Landers also had a third in that event with a 23.1, a good time for the sophomore.

Midland High's Bob Glenn pulled off a surprise second place finish in the mile with a 4:38.9 and Lee's Steve Hooper slipped to third with a 4:43.3. Midland High sophomore Jerry Zachery turned in his fourth straight 14.9 in the 120 hurdles, but it was good only for third this time and Link Grimes surprised with a sixth place for the Bulldogs. Stewart Lauffer of Lee had two fifths in the hurdles. Lee's David Harwell had a fourth in the 2-mile run.

Donna Repman broke her own mile record with a 5:48.6 in the mile run for the Bulldog girls and teammate Lisa Harrison was second with a 6:13.5. Margaret Christian won the long jump with a 15-8 1/2 while Renee Ramsey took the 880 with a 2:42.4 and Eleanor Scott was third with a 2:49.0.

The Bulldogs continued to roll with a 1-2 run in the 440 as Jana Trollinger posted a 1:04.8 to win and Nan White was second with a 1:07.8. Susan Shoemaker finally completed an 80-yard hurdle run and won with a 12.0. Lee's Deborah Ledbetter placed second in the hurdles with a 12.1 and Lori Breeding was fourth. Ledbetter also placed second in the high jump with a 4-10.

GLORIA REYES, Kerri Shaw and Eleanor Harris all had fifth place finishes for the Lee girls.

Midland High's Karen Mays had a third in the 220, a fourth in the triple jump and a fourth in the 100 while Hartman had a fifth. Karen Kuykendall was third in the high jump with a 4-8. Shelly Paxton had a sixth in the discus.

In the junior varsity division, Lee's Keith Brown, Scott Stovall, Keevin Harper and Steve Waldron all took home first place finishes in their events. Midland High did not win an event in the JV run.

Lee's mile relay team seems to be getting better and better. They won Friday by 50 yards over second place San Angelo.

The 157 points is a new school team record for the second week in a row. They scored 141 points last week in the West Texas Relays in Odessa.

All the thinclads seemed primed for this meet, but heavy fog, light mist and a slow track helped keep the times up. Only three girls' records were broken, an oddity since they have been running only three years, and only one boys' record was tied—Washington's victory in the 220.

Almost no one showed up for the meet except the runners and track officials. It was a grizzly night, and it was more of an endurance contest than a track meet. Lee again proved to be winterized through it all, and District 5-4A warnings have been sounded.

Such an injured player would have to be out of action four weeks of the regular season.

If injured in the preseason, he would have to be included in the final cutdown to 45 before being put on the injured reserve and then miss at least four games. If hurt in the regular season, he would have to miss at least four games.

This gives each team a total of three moves after the roster is cut to 45 and the league eliminated the 1978 rule which required them to cut to 45 and then add two players to reach the showdown with No. 2 UCLA. "It would fulfill one of my dreams — to get into the final four. I never said I wanted to win it," the 65-year-old Meyer added with a grin. "I just want to get in the final four."

Zahn wants help against The Bird

CINCINNATI (AP) — With a little help from his friends, Alan Zahn hopes to bring Larry Bird down to earth Saturday.

"No one player can stop him, so I'll definitely need some assistance," says the Arkansas forward who has drawn the tough assignment of corraling the Indiana State great in the finals of the NCAA's Midwest Regional basketball playoffs here at the Riverfront Coliseum.

So the Razorbacks will use what amounts to a buddy system to bottle up Bird.

"We have to stop him from catching the ball as much as we can, and force him to the middle where I can get some help from my teammates," Zahn noted Friday at a pre-game press conference.

Bird lived up to his rave notices Thursday night, when he amassed 29 points, 15 rebounds and five assists in leading the top-ranked Sycamores to a 93-72 victory over No. 16 Oklahoma in the Midwest semifinals.

Bird's mesmerizing performance overshadowed a splendid effort by another fine player, Arkansas' Sidney Moncrief, who put in 27 points to pace the fifth-ranked Razorbacks to a 73-62 triumph over No. 13 Louisville in the other semifinal game.

AND WHILE the Razorbacks are dramatically concerned about Bird, the Sycamores have every right to be worried about the ubiquitous Moncrief.

"You will see the two best players in the nation tomorrow," said Arkansas Coach

Eddie Sutton, referring to Bird and Moncrief.

Indiana State Coach Bill Hodges, riding the crest of a mountainous 31-game winning streak, wasn't as revealing about his game plan as was Arkansas. But he did allow that defending Moncrief was one of the keys for the Sycamores.

"Carl Nicks will probably guard Moncrief," Hodges noted, somewhat grudgingly.

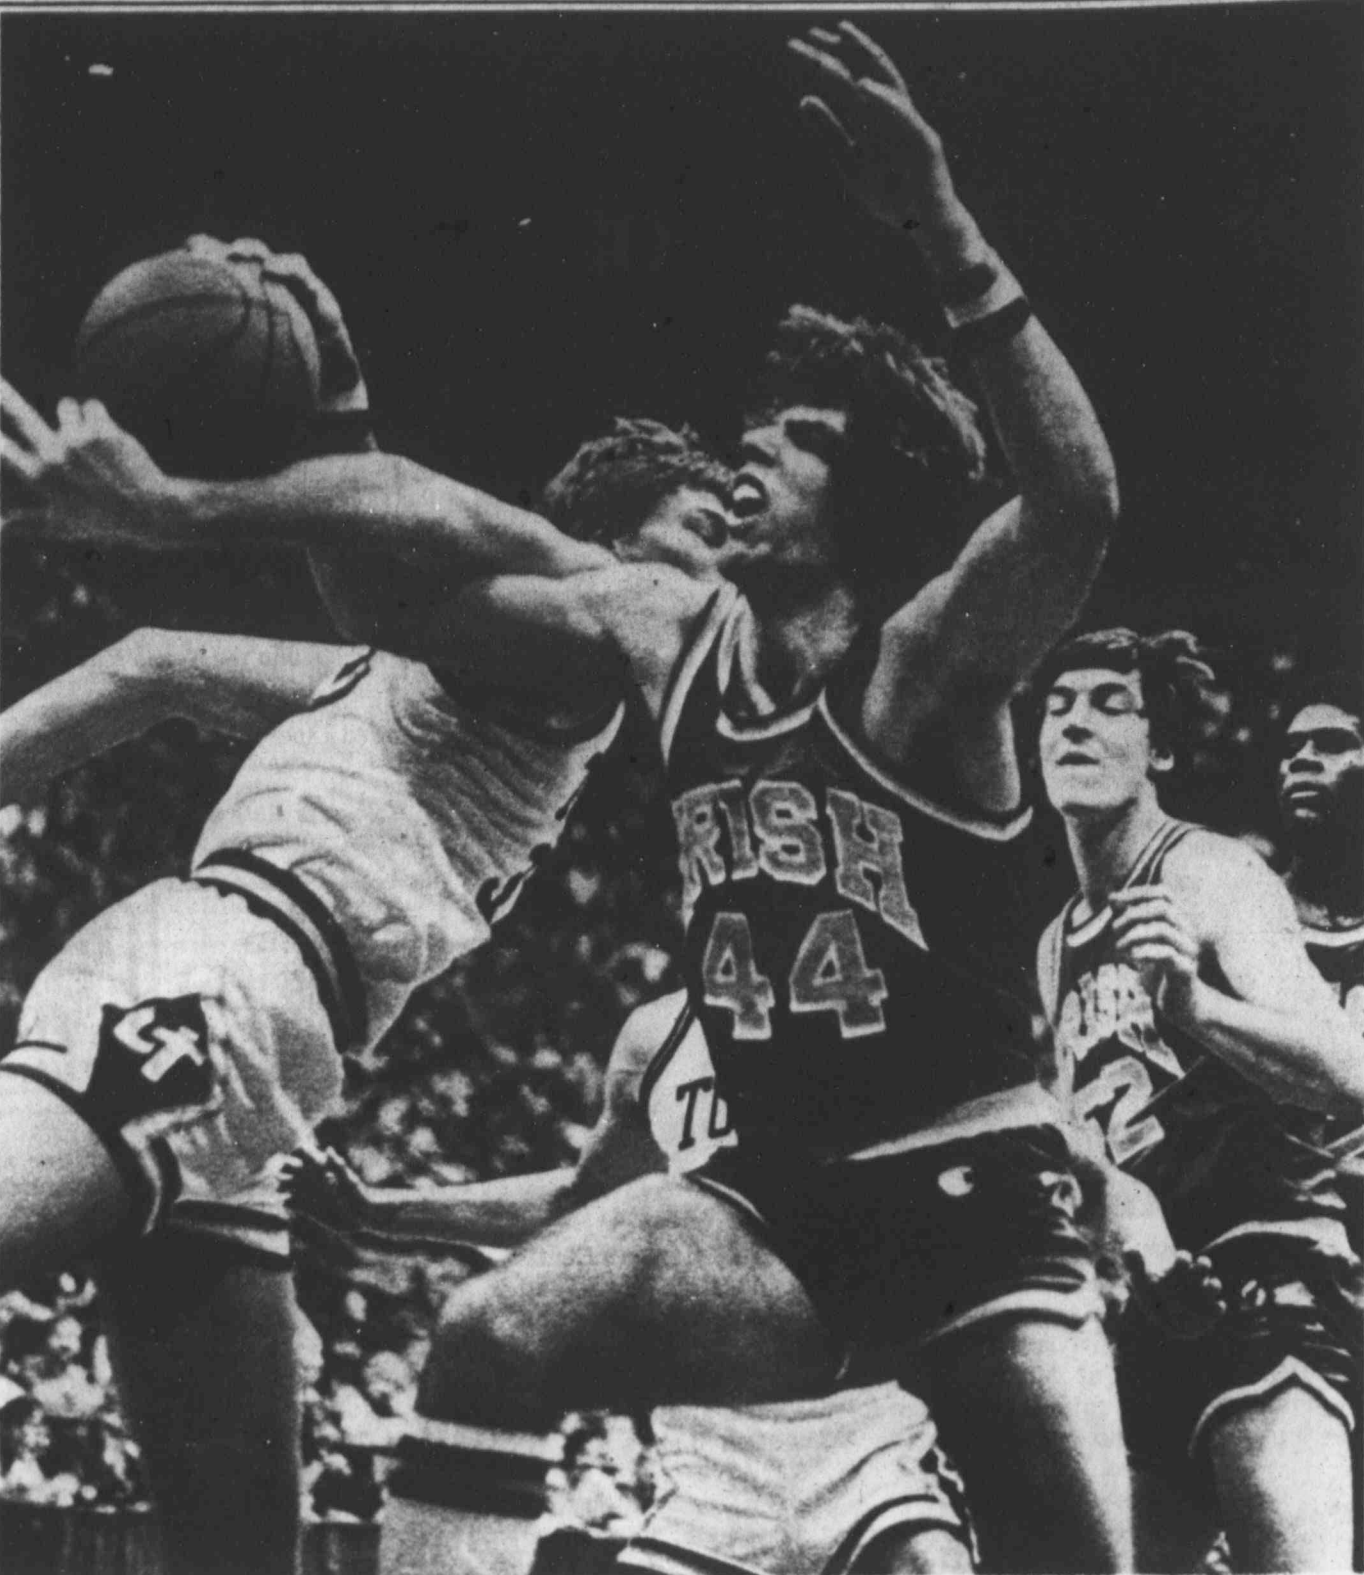

Although Bird and Moncrief are the two best-known players in this crucial game, others have been just as instrumental in bringing their teams to this point, which will send the winner to the national final round of four in Salt Lake City next weekend.

One of the most important backup men on Indiana State is Nicks, a sturdy player who gives the Razorbacks almost as much cause to worry as Bird does.

"He's a quick guard and a great shooter," says Moncrief. "He loves to penetrate. We'll have to keep him from scoring 20 or 25 points tomorrow. When he does that, Indiana State usually builds up a big lead and it's all over."

BEHIND MONCRIEF are guard U.S. Reed and frontcourt players Zahn, Steve Schall and Scott Hastings, a cool and capable freshman. This complement of players has helped the Southwestern Conference power carve out a 14-game winning streak.

"We're a couple of fine teams," is the way Sutton described the styles of Saturday's opponents.

Irish, Spartans post victories

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — All-American Earvin Johnson scored 24 points as third-ranked Michigan State beat Louisiana State 87-71, and fourth-ranked Notre Dame, led by Kelly Tripucka's 24 points, defeated Toledo 79-71 Friday night in the Midwest Regional semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Michigan State will play Notre Dame Sunday for a berth in next week's NCAA finals at Salt Lake City.

NFL owners nix instant replay

HONOLULU (AP) — National Football League owners tossed out television instant replay as an aid to their officiating in the final action of their annual meeting Friday.

The owners approved and will tell officials to whistle plays dead quickly when a defensive player encircles a quarterback or when a wide receiver, for instance, is in the grasp of a defensive player.

Michigan State, 23-6, broke its game open early, limiting the Tigers to just 13 points in the first 17 1/2 minutes as it built a 33-13 lead.

The Spartans forced 15 turnovers and made seven steals in the first half and outscored LSU 12-1 from the foul line to lead 36-19 at the intermission.

Seventh-ranked LSU, led by the outside shooting of reserve guard Jordy Hultberg, closed to 48-36 midway through the second half. But Michigan State wheeled off the next 11 points to ice the victory before a noisy, sellout crowd of 16,823 at Market Square Arena.

Ron Charles, starting in place of injured center Jay Vincent, who missed the game because of a bruised foot, added 18 points for Michigan State. Greg Kelsor, who sat out about 10 minutes because of foul trouble and fouled out with three minutes to go, scored 15 points.

Penn, St. John's win in NCAA

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Wayne McKoy converted an offensive rebound into a basket with five seconds left and gave upstart St. John's a 67-65 victory over Rutgers Friday night in the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament.

Notre Dame freshman Mike Mitchell hit a 12-foot jumper from the left side with 7:05 remaining in the first half to snap a 25-25 tie and start the Irish on an 18-8 tear that gave them a 43-33 halftime lead.

But Tripucka bulled his way to an offensive rebound and a layup, and then Notre Dame put the game away at the foul line, hitting 11 of 12 free throws in the final 3:51.

Both teams forced jump ball situations on five-second violations in the final minutes, and it was a missed free throw by Strickland with 40 seconds to go that gave St. John's possession that led to McKoy's winning basket.

Meyer one away from Final 4

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Roly poly Ray Meyer, who looks like he should be playing the kindly grandpa on "The Waltons," is a lone victory away from reaching one of the few plateaus that has eluded him in 37 years of coaching college basketball.

Cannon, Billy, that is, revisited, 20 years after war

By BOB OATES
The Los Angeles Times
 Twenty years ago Billy Cannon was a college football player, the most famous of his day. A 210-pound half-back, he represented Louisiana State University and, as a senior, won the Heisman Trophy at a most opportune time: Just as a new pro football league, the AFL, was cranking up to challenge the half-century-old NFL.

Big-hearted and impartial, Cannon promptly signed with both leagues.

So this is the 20th anniversary of the first battle of the long war between the NFL and AFL, a battle that spread eventually and perhaps inevitably into a courtroom in Los Angeles.

There a judge said "this naive country boy from Louisiana" could toss away the contract he had signed first ($50,000 for three years with the NFL Rams) and take the later offer: $110,000 for three years (plus a new Cadillac for his father, a one-armed LSU janitor) from the AFL Houston Oilers.

Doing so made Cannon the richest football player of all time up to them. He became the nation's first $100,000 football player in an era when All-Americans often accepted salaries of $6,000 and $7,000 and few quarterbacks earned $20,000.

THIS TAUGHT the country boy something about contract law and the U.S. business world — expanding on what he had already learned from Houston owner Bud Adams and Rams general manager Pete Rozelle, later

NFL commissioner. Both Adams and Rozelle signed him secretly ahead of his last college game, thus professionalizing him if anybody had found out.

Nobody did.

And whatever happened to Billy Cannon?

Well, considering his training, he turned out all right. After seven years in dental school — during his last seven years in pro ball as a tight end for the Oakland Raiders (for whom he played in the second Super Bowl) — he's Dr. Billy Cannon now.

A onetime prep All-American at Baton Rouge, La., he has returned to the city of his childhood as an orthodontist.

This is his seventh year on that job and, says Baton Rouge sportswriter

Gil LeBreton, "The kids love him. He has a heck of a practice. I hear he has to turn people away."

Says LSU publicist Paul Manasseh: "My oldest son needed braces on his teeth when he was about 14 and after talking it over we decided to take him to Billy. The boy had never heard of Billy Cannon the Heisman winner but swears by him as a dentist. Billy has great rapport with young people."

THE CANNON dental office is in a shopping center in an outlying Baton Rouge district near a multiple-lane expressway and his residence is less than a mile beyond.

Those visiting Baton Rouge these days are intrigued by Cannon's home, a big, attractive, four-bedroom ranch type in an upper-middle-class neighborhood. But it isn't the architecture that's unique. What's special is that Cannon built built the place more than 19 years ago in his first year as a pro football and has lived there with his family ever since (except when away studying dentistry or playing ball).

"I put the first money I made into it," he says, referring to the $10,000 bonus he got from Houston when he was 22 years old. He is now 43. "At the time, I overbuilt. The land I got was then in the country, well out of Baton Rouge. I looked up a contractor who was building his own house out there and bought an acre across the street from him. He told me: 'Forget today. Build for 20 or 30 years from now.' I took his advice. In the meantime, subdivisions have gone up all around us."

It is characteristic of Cannon to stay put if things are going well enough. "I'm a close man with a nickel," he says, noting he spends each Wednesday — a day medical men like to take off — in his other office at Donaldsonville 50 miles south. "You're open Wednesdays, you catch all the emergencies," he says.

Cannon's interests are his practice, his home, LSU football, and, first, his family. His wife, Dorothy, had been a high school chum in Baton Rouge. He was an LSU student when their first three daughters were born. Son Billy and another daughter came along later.

Houston two weeks before the game.

So what? the attorneys asked. They made these points:

— Cannon's action was irrelevant in light of the fact that the Rams were trying to mislead him.

— The action of Rozelle and Adams against the colleges was also irrelevant in light of the fact that college football imposes an eligibility deadline for "purely selfish" reasons. There's no law against a pro team signing a college player. The only harm is in the eyes of college administrators "who impose artificial eligibility standards because they feel threatened by the pros."

Billy Cannon Jr., 17, is a high school junior who letters in four sports.

"He was an All-State defensive back this fall," says the old man. "Last spring he hit .460 as a shortstop, then usually got off the bus in time to run the 220 and the relay at night. And he's playing basketball now."

At 6-4, Junior is two inches taller than dad and at 195 a lot thinner. Like many ex-athletes, the head of the house has put on too much weight. He looks much as he did in Los Angeles in 1960 — big, clean-cut, dark-haired, neighborly — except that he's so much bigger.

CANNON'S BIGGEST disappointment today is the LSU football program. He has quit recruiting for his old school "for the time being," he says.

"Most people think Billy led the fight against Charlie McClendon," says Baton Rouge sportswriter Bernell Ballard, referring to the LSU coach who will retire after another season. "Billy was quiet about it but everybody knew where he stood. Prominent athletes have a lot of clout in Louisiana. Guys like Jim Taylor (Green Bay Packers), Bob Pettit (NBA) and Cannon could be elected anything. I think Billy likes dabbling in politics — and he's never backed a loser. Every now and then you'll see a newspaper ad with his name on the bottom in small type: 'This ad paid for by Dr. Billy Cannon.' You might as well vote for that guy. He's going to win."

Two decades after his last LSU game Cannon remains as popular in Louisiana as ever.

"I can't go in to buy a shirt and get out in an hour," he says. "I have to meet this guy and that guy and we talk football. And I love every minute of it."

This year Cannon is the king of his krewes — the marching club that runs the Mardi Gras in Baton Rouge. Members of a krewes only have four known responsibilities. They parade, blow horns, throw trinkets to the kids and kiss all the girls.

"All my life I've wanted to be a king," Cannon says, "and it only lasted a week."

MISSISSIPPI BORN, he has always been fond of Baton Rouge (pop. 200,000), a perpetual boom town on the Mississippi River with a hopelessly humid climate, a funny old fort downtown, the LSU campus, and the state capitol. Says sportswriter Ballard: "Nobody ever leaves here, almost. If you stay a little while, you stay long while."

Cannon: "I'm a small-town person. New Orleans (pop. 600,000) is just too big. It's all right for a visit but I wouldn't want to live there."

Big money for the athletes of all sorts is commonplace enough today. The high draft choices each year, one assumes, will get a fortune from the pros. But this is a very recent phenomenon. It began barely 20 years ago with the rise of the American Football League, which demonstrated to the promoters of all sports that there's nothing like competition. And specifically it began with Billy Cannon.

Before Cannon, in the 1950s, the athletes had finally won a living wage, but not much more. After Cannon they had financial dignity and a measure of the security that anyone else with talent earns almost automatically in other fields.

American closes gap in skating

VIENNA (AP) — American figure skater Linda Fratianne led the field in the short program Friday and closed in behind her old rival, Anett Poetzsch of East Germany, in the chase for the world title.

Poetzsch, the defending champion, who built up a lead in Thursday's compulsories, still was ahead fractionally in the overall standings, with Dagmar Lurz of West Germany second and Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., third.

A good performance in the free skating Saturday night could win back the crown for the 18-year-old American. She was the champion in 1977 but lost the title to Poetzsch last year.

Poetzsch led with 13 ordinals and 83.96 points in the overall standings. Lurz had 22 and 82.76 and Fratianne had 20 and 83.32.

FRATIANNNE BEGAN her program with a beautifully executed double axel to the cheers of the crowd in Vienna's Stadthalle.

That helped her close the gap, and Poetzsch helped when she lost her balance after attempting a jump and staggered awkwardly.

Other stars of the day were Emi Watanabe of Japan and Susan Driano of Italy, who finished third in last year's championships.

Fratianne's score for the short program was 12 ordinals and 40.52 points. Watanabe had 31 and 39.96, Driano 35 and 39.76, Lurz 37 and 39.84, while Poetzsch placed fifth with 40 and 39.80.

The Viennese crowd gave the biggest cheers to local skater Claudia Kristofics-Binder, but she got a bad score and was in sixth place for the day's skating.

The overall leaders were Poetzsch, Lurz, Fratianne, Watanabe, Driano and Kristofics-Binder, in that order.

Fratianne was drawn to skate first in the leading group of six in Saturday night's free skating.

Umpires deserve everything they're asking for

By THOMAS BOSWELL
The Washington Post

Rarely is baseball faced with an ethical and financial crisis that has only one correct and simple solution. That, however, is the case with the current umpires' holdout.

If major-league baseball's 52 arbiters, 51 have not signed their contracts and threaten to sit out the season if their salary demands are not met.

The just and proper solution is this: Give the umpires everything they want. Then give them more. The men in blue still won't be getting their due.

Few stories in sports are as disgraceful as baseball's treatment of its umpiring staff. Or as little told.

Every labor demand made by the umpires in the last year is not only valid and belated but modest.

The response of baseball's owners, speaking through the two league presidents, has been cheap, vengeful and unworthy of the game.

Baseball has counted on the public's ingrained "Kill-the-Ump" mentality to take a legally correct but ethically nauseating hard line.

IF FANS understood the life of the average umpire — what he endures, what he earns and how little he asks — then the moguls of the game would be shamed into coughing up the pittance it would cost to bring dignity to umpiring.

No talk of demands means anything without a sense of the umpire's condition. Let us look at two typical: second-year man Ken Kaiser and veteran Ron Luciano.

"I was in the minors for 13 years," said Kaiser. "I thought about quitting 50,000 times, like we all do."

"In my last year in the minors ('76), I was making $650 — a month, not a week. That's for five months a year."

"Just try to get an off-season job. It's murder. I was everything from a pro wrestler, to a used-car salesman, to a bouncer in a bar. I tried to get an American Express card and they laughed at me. They told me I could make more money on welfare."

What is the princely major league salary that all rookie umpires receive after this brutal apprenticeship? Answer: $16,500 a year. Luciano, 41, president of the umpires association is the most famous arbiter in the game today, a showman and comic who quotes Shakespeare.

"Umpires have kept this game honest for 100 years," says the former All-America football tackle (Syracuse) with a degree in mathematics. "We must have integrity, because we sure don't have a normal family life. We certainly aren't properly paid. We have no health care, no job security, no tenure. Our pension plan is a joke."

"WE TAKE more abuse than any living group of humans," he said. "If we're fired without notice our only recourse is to appeal to the league president, and he's the guy that fires you. That's gotta be unconstitutional."

"If you ask for one day off in a seven-month season, they try to make you feel three inches tall. I once went four months without seeing my (now former) wife," said Luciano. "This job is perfect for broken marriages and alcoholism."

What does Luciano, who draws more fans to the park than many players, earn after five years in the minors and 10 in the majors? "Last season, I finally nudged over $30,000," he said.

So, what enormous demands did the umpires make last season before going out on strike for one day in August?

Three of their requests were simple: job security after three years in the majors, cost-of-living increases and increased disability benefits.

The fourth request caused laughter. The umpers asked for the formation of one additional "relief crew" — four men earning less than $100,000 a year total.

THE ROTATING crew would allow each of the other 13 fourosomes to have a total of three weeks of rest and recuperation spread over the 200-game season.

Naturally, baseball's brass called this "vacation," rather than a "sanity break," and the press and public swallowed that description.

"The presidents of the leagues have let us know that they think, with our lack of education, we're lucky to have the jobs we have and be making the money we're making," said Bob Engel, past umpire's union president.

That is baseball's vicious scissors play. The sport grabs hundreds of young men in its minor-league umpiring net and encourages the best, promoting them promotion.

Then, one day, the cream of that young crop wakes up in middle age with 20 years of professional umpiring behind it. Those men are untrained for any other job. And baseball says, "Take what we decide to give you and shut up, or we'll fire you and hire some jerk from a bar who can yell, 'Out' and 'Safe.'"

What are the 52 umpires, and their new lawyer, Richie Phillips, finally standing up and demanding?

A decent pension? More disability benefits? Job security? Or even a relief crew.

Answer: None of the above.

The umpers know they can't get them. They are locked into a collective-bargaining contract that runs through 1981. If they strike for standard union benefits, they will be hit with a court injunction, just as they were last August. National League President Chub Feeney has hinted he'll ask for one if his umpires don't report to camp today.

THE ARBITERS have played their one loophole card, an ironic one. Baseball insists that each umpire sign an individual contract, not one linked to any union or grievance procedure. That way, the umpers can be kept on a short rein, and fired on a moment's notice.

But nothing, the umpires feel, keeps them from holding out as a group, with Phillips negotiating raises for each individual umpire. The key is that none will sign until all are satisfied.

"Some of the umpires are asking for almost 50 percent raises," said a source close to the negotiations on management's side of the table.

Well, bully for them. If every umpire in baseball got a 50 percent raise, it would cost baseball less than Pete Rose's annual $800,000 salary.

BOWLING BEAT

When mercury climbs, so does Sutton's pin score

By RANDY ISENBERG

Sometimes it takes all year for a bowler to get cranked up, but, in the case of L. Ray Sutton, it is generally the time of year when the weather starts to clear and the temperature starts to rise that he starts churning.

This past week, L. Ray mowed down the maples to the tune of 725, with standout games of 266 and 245 pacing the way. The top performance category this week, however, doesn't belong to L. Ray. Jim Rodgers rolled a brilliant 279 game, and 661 series; Charlie Lacy bowled consistently well to the tune of 689, 645 and 641; and Jerry Delk rolled an impressive 888 four game set with games of 245 and 236 being the highlights and a 672 three game set highlighting the meat of the series.

This week's column was originally designed to give recognition to some people who are really improving their game. Judy Luna, who has bowled well for the last two seasons in the Tuesday Morning ladies league, put it all together for her first 600 series, a blistering 645 set on games of 242, 202 and 198. Eleanor Shelton also rolled a 600 series, a 614 set.

Over the past couple of weeks, Leroy Miller averaged close to 200 bowling in two leagues, a fine feat for a steady 175 average bowler who credits the Pro Bowlers Tour on television for his improvement.

Sonny Poole rolled two 600 series and bowled a 258 game to boot. Ron Moore, averaging 150, stroked a 233 in one league and a 593 series in the other. Bob Nordling rolled a 616 series in the Gulf Oil league, and Bill Tampke rolled a 247 game in the Shell league.

Beginner bowlers April Newton and Sherry Luckett rolled their first 200 games ever and Sherry followed that up with her first 500 series.

Don Boydston, rapidly improving his game, has rolled two 600s in the last three weeks, culminating in a terrific 212-236-647 set in the Air-Park Men's league. Larry Alldredge, another real worker at his game, stroked 252 and a 615 series in his Friday Night Mixed and Linda Decosta rolled two 200s and a 553 series in the same league.

On the youth league front, Rusty Stewart bowled his first 200 game and he did it in style with a 241 gem. Rusty's been bowling about one year and is an eighth grade student at Alamo Junior High. Robbie Powell, with the same experience, rolled two 500 series in the same afternoon, bowling in two different leagues. Scott Gunn, another fine shooter and senior bowler in the past three weeks, has turned a 600 series and this past week a very creditable 224-569.

NHL to offer 4 WHA teams membership 22

An AP Sports Analysis
By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

If the National Hockey League's Board of Governors follows through on its plan to meet at Chicago on March 22, it will offer membership to four teams from the World Hockey Association.

And if that takes place, the Canadian consumer will have won The Battle of the Bottle.

Last week, when the NHL's negative vote on expansion was announced, people in Winnipeg, Edmonton and Quebec City started boycotting the products of Molson's brewery.

Molson's owns the Montreal Canadiens, one of five NHL teams which helped kill expansion to WHA cities "once and for all" by voting against admission of Winnipeg, Edmonton, Quebec and New England.

AT THE WINNIPEG Arena, where the WHA Jets play their home games, a Molson's plaque was torn off the wall. The brewing corporation, which sponsors the "Three Stars of the Game" awards, reportedly was informed it no longer was welcome to do so.

A Winnipeg paper ran, on its front page, a coupon which readers were asked to send to the seat of government in Ottawa, protesting restrictive trade practices by the NHL.

And people started returning their Molson's for refunds. Suddenly, Molson's announced it wanted the NHL to reopen the expansion talks. Speculators assume the Canadiens are under pressure to reconsider their negative vote.

It seems Vancouver, another member of the anti-expansion faction, also has changed its mind. So the NHL governors will gather for a recount favorable to expansion — or it will not gather at all.

"John Ziegler, as president of the National Hockey League, would have to know he's not going to be wasting everybody's time by calling this meeting," said Philadelphia Flyers President Ed Snider.

"I don't think there will be a meeting without the feeling that it would produce a positive vote on expansion, and I certainly wouldn't attend this meeting if I felt there was no hope," said Snider. To their credit, the WHA isn't taking anybody's word for anything. The WHA has learned the simple lesson that banging one's head against a wall incurs a severe headache, so it is implementing its five-year plan for expansion of its own.

THE MEADOWLANDS of New Jersey, Dallas, Seattle and New Orleans are the cities on the drawing board. There will be eight WHA teams in 1980-81 and 10 in 1982-83 — unless there is an NHL meeting next Thursday.

And in 1980-81, the WHA will feature a European division, including an interlocking home-and-road schedule with a yet-to-be-determined number of European cities — unless there is an NHL meeting next Thursday.

WHA President Howard Baldwin said in a statement Tuesday he had told Ziegler: "That when and if he has an expansion proposal to the WHA I would be willing to talk with him and bring it up with our six franchises. Rest assured that whatever will be done will be done in the best interests of the WHA."

And that is a subtle but marked change in Baldwin's public position on the matter. In the past, when such items were discussed, Baldwin said he would act "in the best interests of hockey."

NO LONGER. Too many headaches from too much head-banging have taught Baldwin it's every league for itself until the NHL wises up. He's got a business to run, and that's what is foremost on his mind. He has come to the NHL on his knees enough times, and seen the WHA treated shabbily enough times.

For once, it's time for the NHL to put up or shut up. It better realize extension of this ludicrous exercise might place hockey directly behind camel racing as a spectator sport, and the NHL would have no one to blame but itself.

John Ziegler is in favor of expansion; so are most of the governors, most of the players, a number of the fans and a lot of people who once drank Molson's. Minority rule has never been very popular, and it has overstayed its welcome in hockey.

Yancey admits to lengthy mental illness

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — In 13 seasons on the Professional Golf Association tour, Bert Yancey won seven tournaments and $688,125. He also made the record books of police stations and mental hospitals.

"I'm mentally ill," Yancey says. "Have been for some time."

Yancey, here Thursday for an appearance in behalf of the Mental Health Association, spoke quietly.

"I'm not afraid to discuss my mental illness openly," he said "People who are mentally ill or people who contribute to the Mental Health Association want to hear from people who are up and at it."

"I'm living a normal life. Not as successful as I once was, but normal."

Less than two years ago, Yancey couldn't have said the same thing. In May 1977, he succumbed to a "manic episode" at his home in Hilton Head, S.C.

"You become irrational, creative, superficially dramatic," he said. "When the episode reaches a higher stage, you become more irrational. Maybe grandiose. You think you're really great. If you can't control yourself, you become belligerent, troublesome. "The person uneducated about mental illness, a bartender, a policeman, wouldn't recognize you as mentally ill as opposed to being drunk."

THE POLICEMEN called to Yancey's home by neighbors on that day in 1977 didn't understand. "I told them (the police) I wanted my drugs," Yancey said. "Within 20 minutes I was in a straitjacket, lying face down on a dirty floor of a jail cell."

"I spent the night that way. I was in jail for 30 days without any medication."

Drugs have become the mainstay of Yancey's life. He'll take lithium carbonate the rest of his days.

"Last week I had a manic episode," Yancey said. "I have some alternate medication. I took it. I called the doctor. He said come in. I went. He prescribed some more medication."

"In four days, I had returned to a normal operating life without any more problems than someone handling a common cold."

"I did that by controlling the same thing that put me in a mental hospital for nine months the first time it happened."

That first time was in 1960, when Yancey was a cadet at West Point. He never finished school, spending the better part of a year undergoing electroshock therapy and other treatments.

MENTAL HEALTH associations, Yancey said, have "done wonders in the last 20 years. There are better tranquilizers now. They don't have to use shock therapy. You can control patients and get them out of the screaming idiot stage."

Yancey stuck with the PGA tour until 1976, even though the lithium carbonate made him tremble at the top of his backswing.

"I couldn't break 80. The low point came at Hilton Head," he said.

Only thing that could keep up with Hayes was trouble

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate Nobody — with or without a football — ever ran faster than Bobby Hayes. The only thing in the world that could even keep up with him was trouble. Trouble runs an 8.6 hundred.

It beat him again the other day in Dallas. Bobby hit a broken tape for, like, the second time in his life.

The first time I saw Bob Hayes was in the Olympic village in Tokyo in 1964. Now American sprinters, one the eve of Olympic heats and finals, can be pretty uptight human beings. Even their eyeballs are clenched.

You would have thought Bobby Hayes was going to the beach. He had his shades on and a tape deck blasting Cannonball Adderley, and he was as cheerful as a kid going fishing.

The U.S. had a disaster in the sprints at the Olympics four years before when Ray Norton finished last in the 100 and 200 and dropped the baton in the relay.

Was Hayes, therefore, worried? Hayes flashed a smile. "I'll run a 10.1 hundred if I have to, don't worry," he said cheerfully.

HE RAN A 10-flat hundred. The runner-up was several yards behind. I remember sitting behind Jesse Owens at the time and Jesse was bug-eyed. "That's the first time anyone won this race by daylight since I did it in 1936!" he exclaimed.

Bobby not only didn't drop the baton in the relay, he made up more ground than a cheetah going for a square meal. The U.S. was a beaten fifth when Hayes took command, and he ran an 8.6 anchor on four clocks.

Bobby traveled faster than bad news. He had more moves than Little Egypt. He was one of the few Olympic stars who didn't have to move only in a straight line.

So when the Dallas Cowboys drafted him, all they wondered about was whether he might have bad hands. In pro football, this is the euphemism for a dozen other serious maladies. Your sainted grandmother can hold on to a football. It's not bad hands that makes you drop a football. It's good hearing. You hear Jack Tatum coming. It's fear that makes you drop passes, not fingers.

Bob Hayes drew more coverage than the White House. Even a random search of Dallas Cowboy statistics turns up some boggling records. Hayes in a Buffalo Bills game, two receptions for 91 yards; Hayes against the Patriots, three for 83; Hayes against the Rams, one for 51; Hayes against the Giants, four for 154; Hayes in the Super Bowl, two for 23; and Hayes against Houston, four for 246 yards and a Cowboys record.

ONCE, BEFORE fame, and, presumably, misfortune came his way, Bobby found something he couldn't outrun — a warrant. Bobby was in the company of a fellow undergraduate at Florida A & M one night in 1961 when the fellow turned to a life of crime. That is to say, he pulled a water pistol on another undergraduate and pulled off an 11-cent armed robbery — a nickel, a penny, and a package of chewing gum. A police car pulled around the corner just as this big heist was in progress. The Brinks robbery they blew, but this one they were right on top of.

Bobby took off. The police fired, but Bobby won this one by daylight, too. But, the next day, he was arrested. The football coach, Jake Gaither, got him off.

The story would have died on a police blotter. Bobby Hayes, a sophomore running back from a segregated college leaving the scene of the crime was not news, but an Olympic gold medalist coming home four years later was. They dusted off the story when Bobby came back with his gold medal and put it on Page One, along

Oakland downs Giants

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Wayne Gross gave Oakland the lead with a 10th inning, run-scoring double off the center field wall and reliever Dave Heaverlo blanked his former team in the bottom of the 10th as the A's beat the San Francisco Giants 8-6 Friday.

The victory gave the A's, who lost Thursday, a split in a two-game California League series between the Bay Area baseball neighbors.

With one out in the 10th, Dave Revere drew a walk off the Giants' Gary Lavelle. Gross' double scored pinch runner Dell Alston, and Gross scored when shortstop Johnny L-Master made a throwing error on a ground ball.

Larvell Blanks led the Rangers' nine-hit attack with a single and a double and two RBI.

Dock Ellis started for the Rangers, giving up two runs on five hits in five innings.

Expos beat Astros

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tony Perez and Ellis Valentine hit solo home runs to start the Montreal Expos to a 9-3 exhibition baseball victory over the Houston Astros Friday.

Perez homered off Houston starter Tom Dixon in the second inning, and Valentine gave Montreal a 2-1 lead with his homer in the bottom of the sixth. The Expos scored two more runs in the inning on errors by Astros third baseman Jimmy Sexton.

Cubs edge Angels

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Tim Blackwell drew a bases-loaded, ninth-inning walk off losing pitcher Dyar Miller to force in the winning run and give the Chicago Cubs a 7-6 exhibition baseball victory Friday over the California Angels. Gene Clines had driven in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Clines, his status uncertain with the Cubs, had two other RBI on a single and another sac fly.

The Angels went ahead in the top of the ninth after two men were out. Carney Lansford doubled and scored on Rod Carew's double. Carew then came across on Dan Ford's triple off winning pitcher Manny Seoane.

Steve Macko singled to start the last of the ninth for the Cubs and went to third on a passed ball and an error. Larry Blittner was hit by a pitch and Macko scored on Clines' sacrifice fly. Scot Thompson singled and Sam Mejias walked to load the bases, setting up the game-winning walk to Blackwell.

Reds trip Twins

ORLANDO, Fla., (AP) — Cincinnati scored four runs in the ninth inning, keyed by Junior Kennedy's two-run single, to defeat the Minnesota Twins 5-3 Friday in exhibition baseball.

The Twins grabbed a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning on an RBI-single by Ron Jackson and a two-run triple by Ken Landreaux.

Luzinski homers

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Greg Luzinski smacked a two-run homer, and the Philadelphia Phillies snapped a three-game losing streak by edging the Boston Red Sox 3-2 in exhibition baseball Friday before an all-time record crowd here of 5,214.

Luzinski started the Phillies' scoring with a towering home run inside the left field line in the first inning, scoring Larry Bowa, who had doubled. Losing pitcher Bob Stanley was tagged for the Phillies' third run in the second, as Jim Lonberg got the RBI on a fielder's choice.

Parker leads Bucs

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Pittsburgh's Dave Parker cracked two hits, one a double, scored twice and drove in a run as the Pirates defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-1 in an exhibition baseball game Friday.

Parker was the first to score when he slammed a double in the fourth and came home on a single by Rennie Stennett.

Tribe wins, 9-1

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Catcher Ron Hassey and first baseman Andre Thornton each belted two-run doubles to help the Cleveland Indians to a 9-2 Cactus League baseball victory over the Seattle Mariners Friday.

Rookie right-hander Nate Puryear started for the Indians and gave up a pair of hits and no runs in four innings of work for the victory. The loser was Seattle starter Odell Jones, who left after four innings with Cleveland ahead 7-0.

Braves bop Birds

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Chico Ruiz, Cito Gaston and Hank Small had three hits apiece Friday as the Atlanta Braves downed the Baltimore Orioles 4-1 in an exhibition baseball game.

Three Atlanta pitchers — Larry McWilliams, Adrian Devine and Gene Garber — held Baltimore to just three hits.

Oops, Yanks slip

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Garry Templeton collected three hits off two Yankee pitchers, including a single in the Cardinals' six-run ninth inning, as St. Louis beat New York 8-5 in an exhibition baseball game.

The Yankees, now 1-8, led 4-0 after two innings. Roy White loaded the bases with a single, Willie Randolph walked to force in a run, and Lou Pinella singled to score another in the first inning. In the second, White scored as Reggie Jackson grounded out. Graig Nettles' drove in the fourth run.

Jays rap Chisox

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays pounded out 18 hits including home runs by rookie Joe Cannon and veteran Otto Velez and routed the Chicago White Sox 8-2 in exhibition baseball play Friday.

Cannon and another rookie, Alfredo Griffin, contributed doubles to a three-run uprising in the second inning. Cannon's homer was in the fifth and Velez hit his in the sixth, both off Pablo Torrealba.

Sharon seeking career in NHL

With Laserphoto MILLETSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Sharon Grammer has eyes for Philadelphia Flyers center Bobby Clarke and goalie Bernie Parent, and Washington Capitals goalie Gary Inness.

Her attraction isn't the crush of a 15-year-old high school sophomore who has fallen into puppy love. She wants to be just like them when she grows up.

Sharon is the only girl playing for the Benfield Flames' hockey team for 15-17 year olds.

When other teams meet the Flames on the ice, their pucks are deflected by a female goalie, although its hard to tell with her 115-pound feminine figure hidden beneath mounds of padding and her short blonde curly locks tucked under a helmet.

"I WANT to go all the way and be pro hockey's first woman," she said in a matter-of-fact way. "The only downfall I find is I can't have children until I retire."

Clarke is her idol, but she spouts off names in the hockey world like most girls her age can rattle off the names of the most popular boys in their high school.

And for Christmas, she gets tickets to a Flyers-Capitals game, she said. Sharon became hooked on the sport when she was eight and her father took her to an American League hockey game in Baltimore. Since her parents were divorced, she said, her father wanted to find something they could enjoy together.

"I watched the goalie and I knew then I wanted to be one," she said. But her parents weren't exactly excited at first about the thought of their daughter playing one of the roughest sports.

"My mother said girls don't do that and my father said I never skated before." In fact, she said, "The first time I put on the pads was the first time I was ever on skates."

THE 5-FOOT-3 goalie can handle herself on the ice. "I've been knocked down and I've been in some fights," she said. "Sometimes I figure the boys are out to get me because they don't want to be beat by a girl. They also try to agitate a fight to see if I'll back down."

Road trips with the Flames, a member of the Capital Beltway League, are tough for the team's only girl. "It gets lonely at night. The guys never go to sleep, but I have to sit in my room and am bored," she said. "The bus trips are fun, though. I get just as rowdy as the guys."

She's also been in some "really cold and dirty" bathrooms because there are no accommodations for girls to change their uniforms.

When Sharon began playing hockey three years ago, the boys on the team and the coaches wouldn't accept her, she said. "I sat on the bench most of the year," she recalled.

Later however, her teammates offered her some respect. "When she's good, the boys are pleased, but when she's bad, they're disappointed," said Coach Paul Kennedy.

He said her position is a tough one because "when you goof as a goalie, there's nobody else to blame."

Kennedy said Sharon is the team's only goalie since the other one quit. Sharon said her male counterpart left the team because she was getting more ice time than he was.

Sharon's father attends all her games, but her mother doesn't. Besides being tied up raising two small children, Sharon said, her mother "thinks I'm going to get killed."

LOOKING FOR a sports scholarship, Sharon, who wants to study journalism to become a sports writer, has contacted several schools, particularly in the North, about joining the hockey team. She said Ohio State has responded to her letters and "wants to watch me play."

She said she would never join a girls' team because "I find girls are my rival. Right now, I want to go pro and a girls' team wouldn't help me. I like the competition the boys give me."

Sharon recently competed in a contest sponsored by American Girl Magazine for female achievers. She went to New York in January as one of five finalists, but was beaten out by a violinist.

Her one big dream is three years away. "The Capitals contacted my father and coach," she said, "and said if I was determined, they'd give me a tryout when I'm 18."

Taking the bumps and bruises of playing with boys, and the occasional joking isn't hard for Sharon. She has just one tip for any girl who wants to follow in her footsteps: "Don't date anyone on the team."

Happy Indiana State fans cheer as team retained its No. 1 ranking and unbeaten record, now 31-0, through NCAA Midwest Regional semifinals against Oklahoma Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Kratzert nabs Doral lead on 69

MIAMI (AP) — Bill Kratzert, playing almost errorless golf in howling winds, fired a 3-under-par 69 and moved into the second-round lead Friday in the $250,000 Doral-Eastern Open.

Kratzert, who hasn't made a bogey in the tournament so far, finished two trips over the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club in 136, eight shots under par.

Jack Nicklaus, meanwhile, developed a kink in his back and husted off in search of a doctor after posting a 74. His 147 total was just good enough to make the cut for the last two rounds.

"When I bent over to tee up the ball on the 15th (his sixth hole of the day) I felt the back go. I didn't know if I could straighten up," he said.

"It was just a muscle spasm. It's nothing to worry about. I've had 'em before. But it hurts."

He paused for a moment, and then smiled. "Maybe my back was out and it came back in. You know, after that happened, I started getting through the ball better than I have in a long time. Seriously, maybe the back was out and it came back in."

"I made a couple of double bogeys, but I hit the ball much, much better. The difference between now and last week is day and night. The score doesn't show it, but I know what I've accomplished."

Kratzert, considered one of the more promising young players on the tour, fought 25 mph winds and was in danger of making a bogey only once. A 30-foot putt solved that problem.

"I have good confidence in my swing," he said. "I think I can hit it where I aim it and that's the whole secret, hitting it where you're looking."

One shot off the pace at 137 was Alan Tapie, the first-round leader, who dropped a 25-foot birdie putt on his final hole for a 71.

Jack Renner, Mark McCumber and Bill Rogers were another shot back at 138. Rogers closed up with a 68 that included four birdies in a stretch of five holes. Renner and McCumber matched 71s.

Jim Dent was next at 71-139. The group at 140 included Andy Bean, England's Edward Clark, Wally Armstrong and rookie Larry Webb. Clark shot a 70, Webb 72, Bean and Armstrong 71s.

Kratzert, who once gave up golf in disgust and took a job as a fork-lift operator in Indiana, won in both 1976 (his rookie year) and 1977. He collected more than $180,000 last year but failed to win which, he said "kind of takes away something from the season."

He got it one under par for the day on his front nine, holed a 15-foot birdie putt on his 11th then made the big, 30-foot save on his 13th.

He followed that with another 30-footer, this one for birdie, on his 14th, then parred home routinely.

"Needless to say, I'm tickled to death," he said. "If someone had told me before I started I could have a round of par, I'd have taken it and run."

Nicklaus filed a late entry to this event because, he said, he needed more work.

Doc looks to future

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Doc Medich, the dugout doctor, says baseball players are foolish in not preparing themselves for another career while active on the diamond.

"Once they are through, the drop in pay scale is precipitous," added the towering right-handed pitcher of the Texas Rangers.

"I wonder about all the guys who don't seem concerned about the future. Most of them have the attitude that the high-living will go on as usual. They will get a shock when the find out such is not the case."

Medich, 30, now entering his eighth year in the majors, is a second-year resident in general surgery at Pittsburgh's Allegheny Hospital. He is preparing for a career as an orthopedic surgeon.

He has three more years to go on his current Texas contract and indicates he may continue in the game until he finishes his training, which, taken in four-month mini doses, may require six more years.

REPORTS ARE that his Ranger contract has a shirttail clause guaranteeing him $50,000 a year as consulting physician after he has finished playing.

"I feel every player should prepare himself in another field," he said. "It is crazy to waste those four months between baseball seasons."

"I realize that some of the fellows feel that they can get by on investments, deferred payments or maybe the baseball pension. What they don't realize is that with inflation increasing 8 percent a year their nestegg may be almost negligible by the time they need it."

The Los Angeles Dodgers' Sandy Koufax, one of baseball's ablest and highest paid pitchers, recently re-donned a Dodger uniform to help in spring training. He gave his reason as "inflation and economics."

Medich has figured in two dramatic incidents in which his medical training came in handy.

7,000 enter Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Few are threats to win, but nearly 7,000 qualified runners will toe the mark April 16 in Hopkinton, Mass., for the start of the 83rd Boston Marathon.

The huge increase in official entrants stuns race organizers who thought last year's record 4,800 runners made the 26-mile, 385-yard event nearly unmanageable.

"Appalling as it is logistically, you can look at it positively," race director Will Cloney said Friday. "It's a tribute to the marathon."

Deadline for applications is Monday and, as usual, Cloney is swamped. Hundreds of unofficial entrants also will clog the course.

Qualification time for men is three hours in an AAU-sanctioned marathon and 3½ hours for women — unchanged from last year.

Defending champion Bill Rodgers is entered, despite angry statements about allegedly poor treatment of top runners by the race officials — the Boston Athletic Association aided by the Prudential Insurance Co.

Bow hunter Jim Benton, left, picks up some javelina bristles outside a cave, but the object of his hunt, the javelina, above, eluded him on this particular day's search in the Arizona desert 60 miles southeast of Phoenix. The javelina looks and smells like a pig, but its is actually a member of peccary family - with an ornery reputation.

Javelina hunters live in highly competitive world

By EARL GUSTKEY The Los Angeles Times

PHOENIX, Ariz. - Jim Benton motioned suddenly for silence, then loosened a four-bladed, razor-sharp broadhead arrow in his quiver. He had spotted a dark cave on the bank of a rocky desert wash and believed his quarry was lurking inside. He removed a 66-pound, compound bow from his shoulder, notched the arrow in the bowstring and walked quietly across the wash toward the cave. Twenty feet away he prepared to shoot, anticipating a possible charge by the fearsome little animal with flashing tusks that he was hunting. Then he relaxed, lowering his bow. The cave, he could see, was empty. "Damn, I thought I heard something from the ridge," he said, kicking a rock.

BENTON AND THREE other bowhunters were combing Arizona desert 60 miles southeast of Phoenix for javelina - pronounced hav-el-eena - a hairy little beast that looks like a pig, smells like a pig, walks like a pig, sounds like a pig, but isn't a pig. Benton climbed the wash's bank. Kneeling, he peered into the cave. Javelina tracks dotted the ground. He picked up a few javelina bristles. The cave, about six feet deep, had a strong, musky odor. "Nothing looks fresh," Benton said. "Don't think they've been here the last two, three days."

It was 10 a.m. on an almost freezing morning. Benton had been prowling desert washes since daybreak and had been skunked. Of course, bowhunters get skunked even before they start. They use products like Skunk Skreen. Just a few drops of Skunk Skreen solutions No. 1 and 2 mixed together produce a skunky, eye-watering, gagging stench. The concoction is mixed inside a pillbox-sized container and clipped to a hunter's pants cuff.

"BOWHUNTERS HAVE to get much closer to their quarry than rifle hunters," Benton explained. "This stuff masks human scent, if I'm walking with the wind toward javelina." Benton climbed the ridge above the javelina cave. He scanned the desert with binoculars, looking for his hunting companions. He wondered aloud how they were doing. Then he looked for javelina, but saw none. "Doesn't look good," he said, "doesn't look good..." Benton's instincts proved accurate. The four hunters failed to bag a javelina, after 10 hours of searching. It was another triumph for the little big-game animal Arizona hunters call the "gray ghost."

What's a javelina? "A JAVELINA IS not closely related to the domestic pig, but he's in the same sub-order," said Ron Smith, an Arizona Game and Fish Department big game biologist.

"He's a member of the peccary family. And even though we have a lot of them in Arizona, maybe 50,000, this is really marginal habitat for them. They're more of a subtropical animal. They're fascinating little animals and they've grown to be very popular among our hunters." To start with, javelina are mean. A Porky P-Pig, he's not. Of course, you'd be mean, too, if you ate cactus. Tales of javelina pugnacity are legend in Arizona: -In 1972, an Arizona Game and Fish Department biologist involved in a penned study of javelina, made the mistake of turning his back on one. With a tusk, the javelina opened up the back of the biologist's leg from his Achilles tendon to the top of his calf. And that was a tame one.

-RECALLED A hunter: "They're unbelievably tough. I got one once with a lung shot with my .357 magnum. Unfortunately, I only had one shell in the gun. But instead of going down, he came after me and attacked my boot. He chewed halfway through my boot before he died." -Rolla Williams, outdoors writer for the San Diego Union: "I knocked one down near Globe seven years ago with my .30-06. I went over to him and he was so mean looking he scared me to death. I jumped behind a tree and poked him with a stick to make sure he was dead."

-Jim Benton recalls this story: "A friend of mine, Jim Wooster, climbed a steep river bank once to check out a cave. We hadn't seen tracks, so we assumed it was empty. Jim set down his bow because it was a steep climb. He got up there, hanging on to the bottom edge of the cave with his fingernails, and was suddenly eyeball-to-eyeball with an old javelina. It went 'woof!' Jim fell backwards off the bank, all the way down and broke his collar bone."

-And then there was the Tucson handgun hunter some years back who was hunting with his friend. His pal jumped a dozen-or-so javelina from the other side of some thick, scrub oak. They charged out at the handgun hunter, who, in fast-drawing, dropped his gun. He ran, then fell. The poor devil took a fearful pounding, the worst of his wounds a deep bite in the gluteus maximus.

THE JAVELINA, among Arizona hunters, seems to be a subject of enthusiasm or scorn. Aficionados reverently call them the desert's "gray ghosts" or "cactus rooters." Others call them "pork chops with B.O." Stories abound of the javelina's durability. Accounts of javelina running a hundred yards and more before toppling over after taking an apparently fatal hit with a bullet or arrow are common. Javelina hunters rave about javelina meat. It's lean in texture, mild in flavor, they say.

Arizona javelina hunters get downright competitive. In Globe, 90 miles east of Phoenix, the Chamber of Commerce has conducted an annual javelina derby for 22 years. "We have about 250 entrants every year, both bowhunters and gun hunters," said chamber president Donna Anderson. The record derby javelina: 54 pounds, taken in 1976.

Javelina populate desert terrain in southeastern Arizona, a small portion of New Mexico and Southwest and Texas. Trivia question: Name a college nicknamed the javelinas. Answer: Texas A & I University.

Scrolls solve mysteries

By JOHN DART
The Los Angeles Times

Rigid rules on defecation and divorce in the last complete Dead Sea scroll, now published, go a long way toward solving two 1,900-year-old mysteries, a California scholar says. Ever since the first Dead Sea scrolls were discovered in the late 1940s and studied in the 1950s, scholars have tried to answer two questions in a conclusive way: Were the owners who hid the scroll-filled jars in caves prior to the Roman destruction of their desert community in A.D. 68 the same group as the ascetic Jewish sect known as the Essenes?

Could early Christianity have been influenced by the ideas and practices of this community at Qumran near the Dead Sea?

The last and largest scroll — the Temple Scroll — now published with extensive commentary, provides additional evidence that the answers are "yes" in both cases, said Jacob Milgrom, professor of Hebrew and Bible at the University of California at Berkeley.

Milgrom was the only scholar to write a chapter in the 10-year study of the Temple Scroll published by archaeologist Yigael Yadin, who is also Israel's deputy prime minister. The Essenes of Jerusalem provided places outside the city for disposing of their bodily wastes and were prohibited from defecating on the Sabbath, according to first-century Jewish historian Josephus.

Though Josephus' works are highly valued, generally reliable descriptions of first-century Jewish life, scholars wondered about that. "We thought he was off his rocker," Milgrom said. But the Temple Scroll described purity laws for the sect, including a law that defecation, a defiling act, must take place in enclosed toilets about 1,500 yards from the walls of Jerusalem.

From study of other Dead Sea scrolls, Milgrom said, it was found that one rule designed to keep Sabbath activity to a minimum was to prohibit the sectarian from walking more than about 1,000 yards on that day.

Thus, the distant outposts mentioned in the Temple Scroll provide strong evidence that the Essenes decifixion about A.D. 30, but both Yadin and Milgrom believe some early church thinking against divorce and for celibacy can be traced to Qumran.

The Gospel of Mark, believed written about A.D. 65-70, has Jesus prohibiting divorce altogether (10th chapter).

Divorce was generally permissible among Jews of the era. "There was a whole range of opinions among Jewish teachers then," Milgrom said, adding that the view attributed to Jesus was closest to that of the "super-legalistic" sect at Qumran.

The Temple Scroll, in setting down religious law for the king of a future theocracy, said the king could have only one wife and could not remarry until she dies. Milgrom said such rules would not be any less strict for ordinary subjects.

"In effect," Milgrom said, "polygamy and divorce are forbidden, and important light is cast on the antecedents of Mark 10:2-12."

RELIGION

scribed by Josephus were linked to the Qumran community which existed at least from 150 B.C. to A.D. 68.

More speculative are the connections with early Christianity, founded amid the events following Jesus' cru-

Gospel broadcaster to speak here

Bill McClure, director of Gospel Broadcast Mission, will be guest speaker Sunday night at the Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely Ave.

The 7 p.m. program will be open to all residents of the city and surrounding area, said Robert E. Blazek, minister of the Christian Church of Midland.

According to Blazek, Gospel Broadcast Mission is a worldwide radio ministry. Through cooperation with missionaries, ministers and others, GBM establishes and supports radio programs in a wide variety of languages, including Korean, English, Rawang, Lisu, Kachin, Khasi, Polish and Nigerian.

Gospel Broadcast Mission was initiated in 1952 with one broadcast per week over Radio Luxembourg. There now are almost three dozen broadcasts per week.

Lubbock group to perform here

"Sunshine," a singing drama group from Lubbock, will present a special program at 8 p.m. Friday in Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford St.

The ensemble's Midland appearance is being sponsored by the youth committee of the Midland Baptist Association, representing all Southern Baptist churches in the county.

"Sunshine" has performed and led worship services in numerous churches in West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

The ensemble's music is contemporary, but with appeal for all age groups. Members of the ensemble are affiliated with Calvary Baptist Church at Lubbock.

The March 23 concert here will be open to the public without charge.

Church of God to hold special revival services

The Midland Church of God, 5300 Thomason Drive, will hold special revival services next week and the week after.

Phillip Meadows of Weatherford, state evangelist for the Church of God denomination, will be the revival preacher.

The evangelistic series will begin Monday and continue through April 1, with services scheduled for 7:30 p.m. each weekday, including Saturdays. Sunday services will begin at 7 p.m.

Special music provided by the congregation and guest singers will be a feature of all services. The public has an invitation to attend the revival events.

Presbyterian Week to feature services

Presbyterian Week, an annual pre-Easter event in the city, will be held April 1 through 4.

The Lenten season services are sponsored jointly by the city's Presbyterian churches, including First, Covenant, Trinity and Christ churches.

Featured speaker at this year's Presbyterian Week services will be the Rev. Hugh Anderson, a well-known Presbyterian theologian, educator and author. He has filled teaching posts at Duke University and the University of Edinburgh.

Tasting luncheon set

Goodwill Baptist Church, 1508 S. Main St., will hold a tasting luncheon today, to which the public is invited.

The event between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. will feature foods of various nations, including China, Mexico, Italy, France and Hawaii. "Soul" food also will be available.

A gospel talent program is planned to follow the luncheon. Participating in the 8 p.m. show will be outstanding soloists and gospel groups from Midland as well as from out of town, said the Rev. A.W. Washington, host pastor.

The congregation of First Presbyterian Church is holding its annual arts and crafts festival through Sunday in the church fellowship hall, West Illinois avenue and North B street, with members displaying their needlework, original jewelry, paintings, drawings and other art items. Above, Nancy Doss, chairman of the festival, is with several artists and craftspeople having works in the show, including Karen Lang, and Gini and Billy Sanderson, children of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sanderson. (Staff Photo)

Dallas musicians set to perform Bach's 'St. Matthew Passion'

DALLAS — Saint Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church of Dallas is in final rehearsals for its presentation of J.S. Bach's "The Passion of Our Lord According to St. Matthew."

Better known as the St. Matthew Passion, the monumental Bach masterpiece will have performances Thursday, Friday and next Saturday in the sanctuary of Saint Michael and All Angels Church, 8011 Douglas at Colgate.

Under the musical direction of Paul Lindsley Thomas, music director for Saint Michael and All Angels parish, and Roger McMurrin, music director of Highland Park Presbyterian Church, the presentation will be a fully-staged, fully-costumed 2½-hour music drama. Participating will be the Saint Michael Oratorio Choir, the Chancel Choir of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, the boys' choirs of both churches, as well as several professional singers. In addition, the performances will utilize the Dance Ensemble directed by Jerry Bywaters Cochran and Joan Amick, and instrumentalists of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

The St. Matthew Passion had its first presentation in St. Thomas Church in Leipzig, in 1729, with Bach directing. This year marks the 250th anniversary of the first performance of what has long been considered one of the great musical masterpieces of Western civilization. It is a majestic work with magnificent choruses, beautiful arias and poignant drama.

It is also a deeply-moving religious experience, being the story of the events of the first Holy Week from the Last Supper on through the crucifixion of Christ.

Tickets for performances may be purchased at the office of Saint Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church, or at the Dallas Symphony Orchestra box office. Patron tickets are $8 apiece, while general admission tickets are $4 each.

Missionary Conference slated

St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, is completing plans for its 15th annual Missionary Conference, to be held Sunday school hour and in the morning worship hour. Highlight of the morning worship service will be the making of Faith Promises for mission support.

Motorists looking for cheaper gasoline are being frustrated by "closed" signs on the self-service pumps at their neighborhood gas stations.

The closings are part of the continuing spiral of gasoline prices caused by tight oil supplies and changes in government regulations.

"Self-service prices are beginning to disappear, mostly at split-island stations," said Mark Emond, editor of the Lundberg Letter, an industry newsletter. "Since most retailers will be able to sell all the gasoline they can get, they will go for top dollar."

Gasoline you pump yourself generally costs 4 or 5 cents less than the fuel from full-service pumps.

Self-service stations became popular a couple of years ago, when gasoline was plentiful. Dealers trying to increase sales made some of their pumps — or the whole station — self-service.

"This kind of marketing is recognized as a volume-producing strategy, not a money-making one," said Emond.

Gasoline became scarce this winter because of the Iranian crisis, high demand and limited refining capacity. Most oil companies are selling dealers the same amount of gasoline — or slightly less — than they did last year, even though demand is up about 3.5 percent.

The dealers, trying to make the same profit on smaller volume, are raising prices — and eliminating sales at self-service pumps.

The profit margin from self-service gas sales is about 7.1 cents on a gallon of unleaded gasoline, according to the Lundberg Letter. That is about 2.5 cents below the profit margin at a full service station. The difference is even wider for regular- and premium-grade leaded gasoline.

"With the volume incentive gone, the desire to sell at self-service prices loses its fervor," said Emond. Dealers who have not closed self-service facilities often have boosted the do-it-yourself prices by more than the full-service ones.

Since February, the national price of a gallon of unleaded gasoline at full-service pumps has risen 2.3 percent — from an average of 73.8 cents to 75.5 cents, according to the Lundberg Letter. But the price of a gallon of unleaded you pump yourself has gone up 3.6 percent, from 70.3 cents to 73.8 cents.

Prices of all kinds of gasoline have risen in recent months because of the Iranian fuel squeeze, the 5 percent increase in world oil prices Jan. 1 and, most recently, the decision by the federal government to change regulations to allow refiners to pass along more of their costs to gasoline consumers.

That move, made at the beginning of this month, is expected to add several cents to the price of gasoline over the next few weeks. In the past week, nearly every major oil company has added a penny or more to the wholesale price of gasoline.

Park says Carter 'coerced' him

MONROE, La. (AP) — South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park said Friday that he became a government witness against former Rep. Otto Passman and other congressmen only because of pressure from President Carter.

"The president of the U.S. made a personal effort by writing the president of South Korea," Park testified, in explaining why he returned to the United States to face the rice sale scandal.

Park left the country in 1977 shortly before he was indicted in Washington on 36 counts of conspiracy, mail fraud, bribing congressmen and failure to register as a foreign agent. He was granted immunity later in return for his testimony before a congressional committee.

The one-time Washington socialist was cross-examined Friday for the first time at Passman's trial in U.S. District Court.

Passman, now 78 and ailing, is charged with conspiring with Park in the rice sales from 1972 through 1975, taking bribes from Park, accepting illegal gifts and evading income taxes.

Defense attorney Camille Gravel asked whether the pressure to force Park's return did not include a threat to reduce foreign aid to South Korea by "hundreds of millions of dollars."

"That's not quite correct," said Park. "Congress did attempt to reduce some aid, but finally had the realization that that was the lowest form of threat. And it would have reduced military aid because that is vital to both nations."

Gravel contends Park told South Korean officials he was spending a great deal of money on congressmen to help influence foreign aid, but HOUSTON (AP) — A former director of a Harris County home for neglected children entered a plea of innocence Friday to 18 counts of sexual misconduct with teen-age boys from the home.

Robert J. Cuellar surrendered to police March 7 and was released Thursday night from the Harris County jail on bonds totaling $58,000.

actually put most of it in his own pockets.

The defense also contends Park lied about giving $193,000 to Passman because he needed something to swap to Department of Justice officials in return for legal immunity for himself.

Three sitting congressmen were reprimanded by the House in connection with taking money from Park. Passman and former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., were the only persons indicted.

Hanna pleaded guilty in a plea bargain to attempting to defraud the government and was sentenced to six to 30 months in prison.
