

Interest focusing on Carter's private lunch plans

DALLAS (AP) — The public highlight of President Carter's brief visit to Dallas was a scheduled address this afternoon to the opening session of the National Association of Broadcasters Convention. But Texas Democrats were more interested in the private 45-minute luncheon thrown by trade ambassador Robert Strauss at his north Dallas home.

Strauss estimated the guest list at more than 100 persons. "Ninety-five percent of the group will be Democratic officeholders of Dallas County and statewide officeholders," Strauss said.

The only exceptions, he said, were some of his personal friends... and his brother, banker-businessman Ted Strauss, head of a bipartisan committee working to bring the 1980 Democratic National Committee to Dallas. However, Ted Strauss called the lunch a "social" occasion, adding, "it would be improper to bring it (the convention) up."

The "small talk" theme was echoed by Democratic National Chairman John White, former Texas agriculture commissioner.

White, co-host of the affair, said it started as "an iced tea and fried chicken brunch with about 30 to 40 people."

The guest list grew, though, to include former Texas Attorney General John Hill, a Carter energy policy critic who lost last year's gubernatorial election; Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, another enemy of administration energy ideas; Texas Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg of Houston and State Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who was state co-chairman of Carter's 1976 campaign.

Also invited was the Dallas County congressional delegation. The White House said Carter was to arrive at 12:30 p.m., with Air Force 1 landing at Love Field.

Following the lunch, Carter was to travel by motorcade downtown to the Hyatt Regency Hotel, arriving at 1:45 to videotape brief separate interviews with reporters from four Dallas television stations. Carter then was scheduled for an hour of private time.

The hotel, though, was booked solid, so Carter was to use the manager's apartment.

Farmers grab attention

ELK CITY, Okla. (AP) — Tractor-driving farmers of the American Agriculture movement grabbed an early spotlight Saturday in this western Oklahoma town excited about the evening arrival of President Jimmy Carter.

In a procession stretching several miles, tractors and decorated pickup trucks gave a mid-afternoon parade down residential Washington Street, as police had nearby Main Street blocked off for the president's motorcade.

A hit of the farmer's parade was a pickup truck filled with young men with Arab headdresses, mimicking the group that has gained clout over the United States because of its oil.

Dozens of farm vehicles decorated with posters critical of Carter's agriculture policies were parked — with city permission — on Main Street, where the president's arrival motorcade was to pass.

Harvey Gardner of Hydro, Oklahoma state coordinator for the American Agriculture movement, said that by 2:30 p.m. more than 200 farm vehicles had arrived and more were on the way.

Oil decontrol more expensive?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group favoring government lids on energy prices said Saturday that decontrolling crude oil could cost consumers $68.5 million a day in higher fuel costs in 1980.

Energy Action said an oil deregulation proposal like the one being considered by President Carter would only put a higher price on oil which would have been produced anyway.

The president, expected to address the nation Thursday on energy issues, reportedly is considering taking steps to allow U.S.-produced oil to rise gradually to world-market prices.

The average price of domestic crude oil now is about $9 a barrel, compared with the $13.43 price set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

By 1981, both the U.S. price and the OPEC price will have risen to about $19 a barrel if phased oil deregulation comes about, Energy Action said. It said there is no indication decontrol will result in significant new supplies of oil, despite industry contentions that deregulation is needed to provide the incentive for new exploration.

Energy Action is a stiff critic of administration energy policies and waged a losing campaign last year against the president's plan to decontrol natural gas prices.

"The essential flaw in the whole decontrol theory is that Americans would have to pay decontrolled prices for huge amounts of oil which would have been produced anyway," said James Flug, director of Energy Action.

The group arrived at its $68.5 million-a-day fuel cost figure by assuming domestic production of 10 million barrels a day starting next January.

It said that without decontrol, the price at that time would be $10.40 per barrel, meaning a $104 million daily cost to consumers. With decontrol, the group said, the price would be $17.25 a barrel, meaning $172.5 million a day in consumer costs.

The group's $68.5 million-a-day figure is the difference between $172.5 million and $104 million.

Advocates of decontrol argue, however, that removing controls will have far less of an impact on the U.S. economy than that suggested by Energy Action.

On Friday, the American Petroleum Institute issued a study asserting that phased decontrol would add just 1.6 cents to each gallon of gasoline in 1979 and 1980 and 1.8 cents in 1981.

Gas prices now higher than ever

By The Associated Press

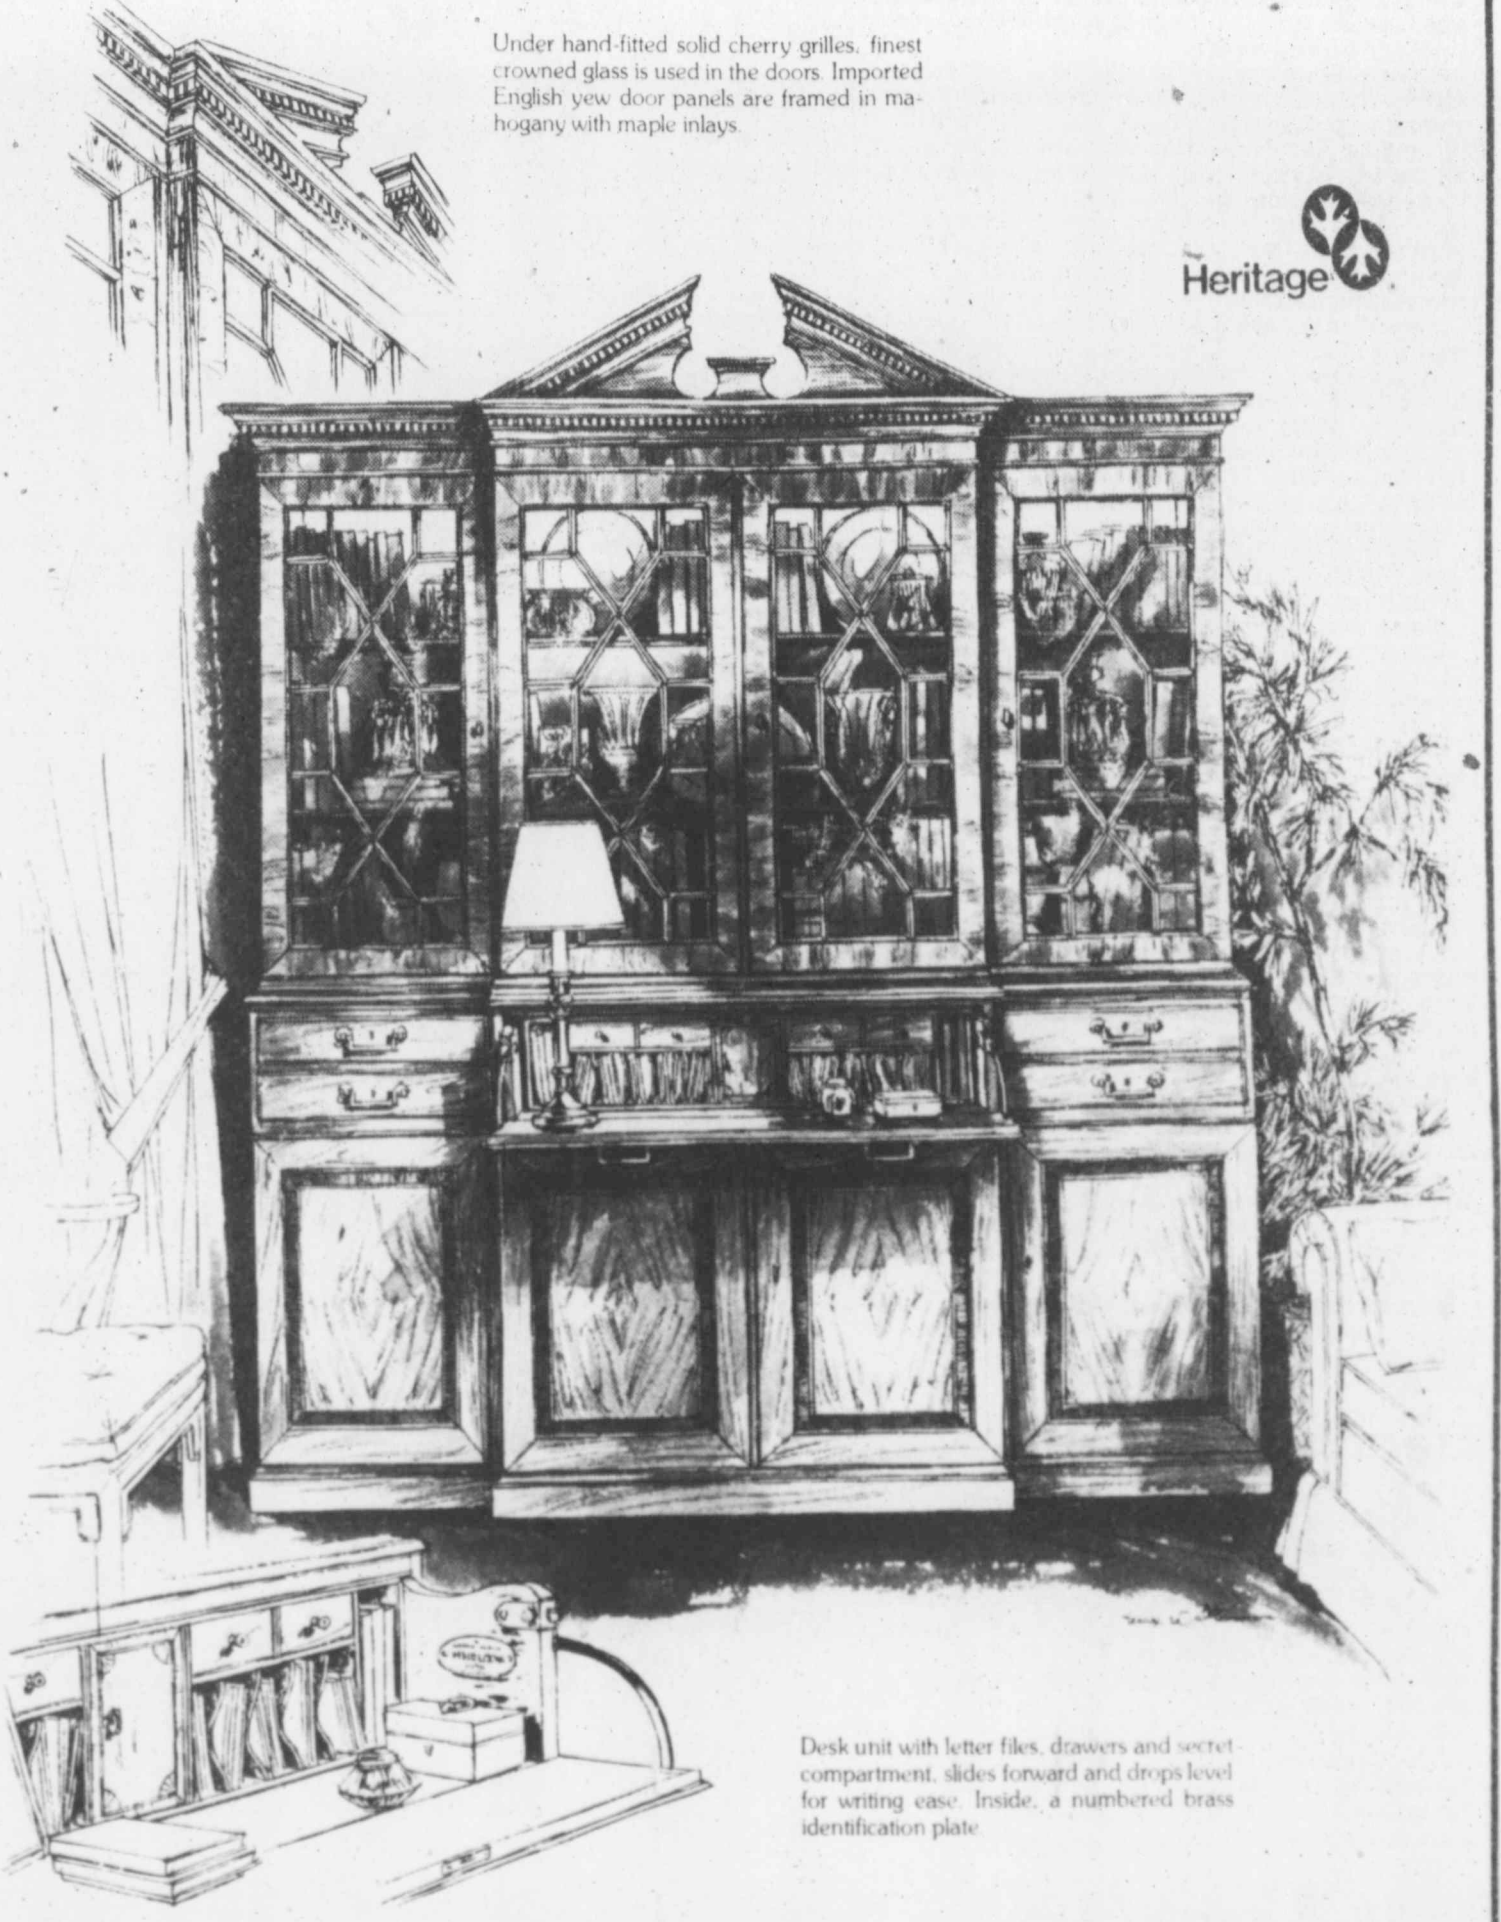

Gasoline prices across the nation are higher than ever, and many service stations are cutting hours or closing on week-ends because of tight fuel supplies, an AP spot check has found.

And connections don't appear to help. The gas station in Plains, Ga., owned by President Carter's brother Billy closed last week because it had used up its March allotment of gasoline.

According to the Labor Department's consumer price index, gasoline prices rose 2 percent in February and are up 18 percent since last June.

Prices have risen so much — in many cases a dime a gallon or more in the past year — that many gasoline dealers say $1-a-gallon gasoline could be a reality later this year.

"A dollar a gallon? Sure it's coming, and soon," said one dealer in a suburb of Chicago who now is charging 90 cents.

DIRT, SQUIRT & QUIRT

Weeds present stock hazards

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

Some areas of West Texas received good rains last week. The thunderstorm activity was quite spotty in some countries. Most of Midland County had only from a trace to a few hundredths with some scattered local areas receiving up to one inch.

The major farm activity is the final listing and chiseling of cropland in preparation for spring planting. Some supplemental feeding of livestock continues in the interim before forage supplies on native ranges become adequate.

THE ABUNDANCE of young, tender green weeds on area rangelands is a mixed blessing for West Texas ranchers. The weeds are the result of good fall and winter moisture and are a source of nutrition for livestock during the early spring before warm season grasses start growing. In fact, some of these weeds are so nutritious, therein lies a problem.

The lush weeds will have protein contents that range from 18 to 26 percent crude protein. Cattle grazing weeds of this type is near 100 percent of their diet will react much the same as cattle grazing green growing alfalfa. Bloat can result in killing animals within a few hours. To compound the problem, some weed species are toxic, causing abortion in pregnant cows and nerve disorders.

A few precautions can be followed to help prevent serious livestock losses. First, never turn a hungry animal on pastures with fresh, green weeds. Before turning animals out be sure they are allowed to eat all the dry hay they want. Do not move animals to fresh pastures until weeds have matured. Avoid any type of working conditions, such as penning for most of a day or overnight, that will cause animals to draw and then to fill more than normal on being returned to pastures.

The following are procedures to prevent losses in bloating of animals. If weather conditions, working with the animals, moving the cattle or bringing in new cattle are necessary, be sure that the cattle are fed plenty of dry hay and possibly feed that contains ploxalene. This is an anti-bloat substance that has low palatability, but can be mixed in cubes or molasses blocks and will furnish bloat protection if the animal consumes some each day.

Supplemental feeding, preferably grain cubes, should continue until the weeds become mature and grass begins to furnish a good part of the diet.

Some losses of up to 25 percent of the animals in a pasture have already been reported in some instances where the above described conditions have caused animals to overfeed on the lush weed growth.

MANY HOME GARDENERS in West Texas like to grow the Irish potato in the vegetable garden. Potatoes may be grown in all areas of the state at some time during the year. However, most gardeners experience at least some years in which their potatoes do not produce, even when they plant recommended varieties.

The tuber (or potato) is a shortened, thickened, underground stem and the process of producing a tuber is called "tuberization." Tuberization either does not occur or is severely limited under high daytime temperatures, high soil temperatures (over 70 degrees F), long days and an abundance of nitrogen.

Low daytime temperatures (64 degrees soil temperature), intermediate day length and low nitrogen content of soil favors tuberization. Potatoes should be planted early (February and early March). Mulching soon after emergence and hilling of dirt around the young plants can help keep soil cool. Do not apply nitrogen fertilizer at planting time (including manure).

Maintain adequate moisture and, about ten days after the potatoes have emerged, observe the foliage color. If the leaves are relatively green then no nitrogen fertilizer is needed.

Hearings on aging set

The Permian Basin Agency on Aging will conduct two public hearings on the 1978-79 regional plan for aging.

The first will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Dora Roberts Community Center in Big Spring. The second hearing will be held at 1 p.m. April 11 in the conference room in the Terminal Office Building at Midland Air Terminal.

Both meetings are open to the public. Information will be received concerning the needs for services, and an outline of goals and objectives for the next fiscal year will be presented.

Schwartz-Moore 20-year feud rises to surface

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The face-to-face confrontation may be over, but Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz continues casting verbal barbs at his old political foe, Sen. Bill Moore.

"I just don't think anybody that irrational in the face of responsibility has any basis being chairman of a committee," said Schwartz, D-Galveston, of his shouting match last week with Moore, D-Bryan.

Moore, dubbed the "Bull of the Brazos," traded insults with Schwartz at a Senate State Affairs Committee Monday before gaveling the session to an end and almost striking the Galveston liberal.

"Bill Moore and I are natural enemies," Schwartz said Saturday on State Capitol Dateline, a public affairs radio program of the Wendell Mayes stations.

"The best Bill Moore and I have ever been able to do is to engage in a detente from 1971 until Monday," said Schwartz, second in Senate seniority behind Moore. "That detente was brought about by (then Lt. Gov.) Ben Barnes."

The two men clashed after Schwartz insisted he had a right to question a committee witness although he was not a committee member.

"Having been in the Senate since 1960, there has never been a question in my mind, that a member of the Senate has a right to be involved in any legal part of the Senate process," said the 52-year-old Schwartz. "And I came to the Senate as a loner in 1960, did not like anybody in the senate and did not particularly care if anybody in the Senate liked me."

He admits he comes close to being out-of-hand sometimes during Senate debate.

"I get excited like everybody else and more so than some people," Schwartz said. "But I owe no obligation to anybody to forget that Senator Moore introduces legislation that sometimes is so bad in its content and so evil in its motivation that it must be identified for what it is and people have to know about it. The only way to make people aware of it is to stand up and shout about it over the din."

The Galveston legislator says he's watched Moore long enough to describe his style:

"Bill Moore is reacting from an emotion and hostility and a deep-rooted hatred of anybody who disagrees with what he says or stands for."

Senator says decontrol will arrive in stages

By TOM RAUM
WASHINGTON (AP) — Decontrolling crude oil price in stages will be the central element of President Carter's new energy plan, predicts a Kentucky senator active on energy issues.
Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., also forecasts that the president will couple deregulation with a call for an excess profits tax on oil companies — but leaving the specifics to Congress.

companies begin marketing gasoline, a gasoline-alcohol blend.
Also on Friday, Schlesinger and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams urged Congress to support massive improvements in auto and fuel technology and warned that failure to do so could immobilize a nation faced with a tripling of oil costs within 15 years.
The two, speaking at a Senate hearing, pushed for development of exotic new vehicles and alternative fuels, an effort which could cost the government $500 million annually, they said, but which would save billions by relieving dependence on foreign oil by the early 1990s.
By their scenario, the car sold in the year 2000 would average 50 miles per gallon of gas or be powered by something else.

Ford and six other senators met with top administration energy and economic officials in a two-hour energy brainstorming session Friday.
Participants said afterward that no hard decisions had yet been made on what will go into Carter's expected March 29 energy speech.
But Ford said he feels phased oil decontrol definitely will be included.
How does he know? "It's a gut feeling," the lawmaker said.
To the best of his knowledge, Ford said, the plan now under White House consideration would lift prices gradually and in different increments for different types of oil until mid-1981, when all lids would be removed.
Carter already has the authority to start doing this June 1. Present law provides for all price controls, including the president's, to end in September 1981.

TAOC revenue higher

Texas American Oil Corp. Saturday reported higher revenues and cash flow with a slight decline in earnings for the year ended Dec. 31.
Total revenues were $87.6 million, a 15 percent increase over the $76.2 million reported in 1977. Cash flow (working-capital provided by operations) in 1978 amounted to $9.5 million or $1.73 per share, compared to $7.5 million or $1.36 per share in 1977.
Income for 1978 was $3.3 million, or $0.61 per share versus $3.6 million, or $0.66 per share in 1977.

anticipate higher interest rate levels as it expands its exploration and drilling activities. However, these expenses should be offset by greater revenues resulting from increased exploration utilizing borrowed funds.

He said stockholders' equity continued to grow. Over the last five years, the company has experienced a 24 percent compounded growth rate in its stockholders' equity as it has grown from an adjusted $1 per share in 1973 to $2.95 per share in 1978.

The company reported that capital expenditures relating to oil and gas operations exceeded $11 million in 1978. Texas American participated in 163 wells, compared to 116 wells in 1977, completing 157 as producing oil and/or gas wells. Average participation in 1978 was 38 percent, or 61.87 net wells, compared to only 26 percent in the prior year.

Basin rotary rig tally lists increase of four

Drilling activity in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico, as recorded by Reed Drilling Equipment, showed a slight increase with 217 rigs making hole in the two-state area.
The previous weeks count showed 213 rigs going and a year ago at this time the Reed survey counted 207 rotary units drilling.
Eddy County, N.M., regained the lead as 27 units were reported making hole, gaining four operations from the previous week tally of 23.
Lea County followed close behind with 26 active units and showing no gain or loss of activity from the previous count of 26.
Pecos and Ward counties each reported 14 rigs going, with Pecos County losing one unit from the previous weeks count of 15 and Ward County gaining two operations from the previous count of 12.
Yoakum County reported 12 units making hole, gaining four rigs over last week tally of 8.
Sterling County gained activity as 10 rigs were spotted turning to the right, while Hockley County followed with 9.

Spending plan told

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Apache Corp. and its oil and gas programs plan record drilling expenditures of $120 million in 1979, with the majority anticipated to be spent for exploration and development of natural gas wells below 15,000 feet, Raymond Plank, chairman of the board, announced.
Last year, Apache and its programs allocated about 65 percent of an approximate $117 million drilling budget to deep gas wells and participated in one of every 13 wells completed below the 15,000-foot level onshore in the lower 48 states. Deep gas accounts for 58 percent of Apache's proven oil and gas reserves.

Apache Corp., an oil and gas program, exploration and production company, with industrial and agricultural operations, is listed on the New York and Midwest Stock Exchanges.

Shell plant hits milestone

ODESSA — The Shell Oil Co. refinery in Odessa celebrated 15 years of operation with a plant tour and barbecue for all employees and their families Saturday.
During the celebration, B.C. Bell, manager of the refinery, was presented with a safety award from the National Petroleum Refiners Association. The award honors the efforts of all employees in operating the refinery without a disabling injury in 1978. The safety record which began in 1977 now stand at over 600 consecutive days.
The presentation was made on behalf of NPRA by H.M. Miller, former safety representative at the Odessa Refinery. He is now staff safety representative in Shell's headquarters in Houston.
Shell purchased and took over operation of the Odessa refinery March 23, 1964, from El Paso Products which built it in 1958. Today, the plant operates on a 24-hour basis and processes about 32,000 barrels of crude oil daily, producing gasoline and other products for consumers in the southwest.
It employs over 100 Shell employees and about 40 contract personnel with an annual payroll that approximates $3.5 million.

Carter urges auto improvement

By LEE BYRD
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration urged Congress Friday to support massive improvements in auto and fuel technology, warning that failure to do so could immobilize a nation faced with a tripling of oil costs within 15 years.
Both Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and Energy Secretary James Schlesinger pushed for development of exotic new vehicles and alternative fuels. They said that while the effort could cost the government $500 million annually, it would save billions by relieving America's dependence on foreign oil by the early 1990s.

The two Cabinet officers appeared at a Senate Commerce Committee hearing into the future of the automobile. By their scenario, the car sold in the year 2000 would average 50 mpg of gas or be powered by something else.

Schlesinger said that while motorists likely will be dependent on internal combustion engines "for the next 10 or 15 years," there already are encouraging signs for the near future.

"With battery improvements, we can make the electric vehicle something more than a golf cart," he said. And Schlesinger reported that Mobil Oil Corp. may be near a gasoline-type synthetic distilled from coal.

The government now spends about $100 million annually on auto efficiency research, with auto manufacturers committed by law to double their 1975 mileage averages to 27.5 mpg by 1985.

As for the short run, Schlesinger offered some hope that motorists won't soon find themselves waiting in long lines at gas stations, as happened during the Arab oil embargo.

"We could well have some spot shortages, particularly of unleaded gas, at the peak of the summer driving period," he said. But he added that contrary to earlier estimates for the next three months, "We should be able to avoid major spot shortages" at least until then.

Dr. Weimer will speak

Dr. Robert J. Weimer, Getty Professor of Geological Engineering at the Colorado School of Mines, will be the speaker for the Tuesday noon meeting of the Permian Basin Geophysical Society in the Midland Hilton.
His lecture will begin at 12 o'clock. His address will be "Influence of Basement Tectonics on Depositional Systems and Seismic Stratigraphy."
Dr. Weimer is a Distinguished Lecturer for the Society of Exploration Geophysicists.
His current Getty professorship is the latest of five positions he has held at the Colorado School of Mines since 1957. He headed the CSM Department of Geology between 1964 and 1969.
Weimer was graduated from the University of Wyoming with a B.S. degree and an M.S. degree in Geology. He spent eight years in the business side of oil exploration as a geologist with Union Oil Co. of California and later as an independent consultant.

Only six rigs in Canyon after 10 explorers fail

By PETER MATTIACE
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — After nearly a year and 10 disappointing dry holes, exploratory drilling in the Baltimore Canyon Trough is now at an ebb with only six rigs working and one of them almost ready to leave.

Exxon, Mobil, Gulf, Texaco and Tenneco continue to drill for oil and natural gas between 80 and 105 miles off the coast of New Jersey and Delaware. Three other oil companies — Shell, Continental and Houston Oil & Minerals — have dropped out of the search for now.

Exxon began the hunt only a year ago next Thursday when its leased drillship Glomar Pacific dropped anchors and "spudded," or began drilling, about 101 miles off the coast. That well went to 17,620 feet and came up dry last December.

Drilling reached a peak about two months ago when nine rigs were working above the promising geological formation. At that time, Shell and Houston Oil & Minerals were still working on what proved to be dry holes in February.

In addition, Chevron had a drillship in 2,640 feet of water about 81 miles southeast of here working a test well for a number of oil companies. A "significant" strike of gas was reported in January. The experimental well, drilled only to explore geological formations, was soon abandoned.

The U.S. Geological Survey expects two or three rigs to return to the area in late summer to begin work on new tracts leased by the government on Feb. 28.

In that sale, the oil industry showed its pessimism in the Baltimore Canyon Trough by bidding only $41.7 million for 44 of the 109 nine-square-mile tracts offered.

Here is where the drilling stood on Friday:

— Exxon is now working two wells about 95 miles and 101 miles east of this resort. The semi-submersible rig New Epoch, the closer of the two, was drilling below 15,400 feet on a planned 18,000-foot well and had stopped drilling for minor repairs. The semi-submersible Semi I was reported below 12,700 feet at a spot less than two miles from Exxon's first failure.

— Gulf's semi-submersible New Era is nearing completion of a 12,800-foot well about 80 miles east of Atlantic City. Gulf officials say they will leave the area for now if this hole is dry. Gulf had a dry hole about 20 miles to the southeast in January.

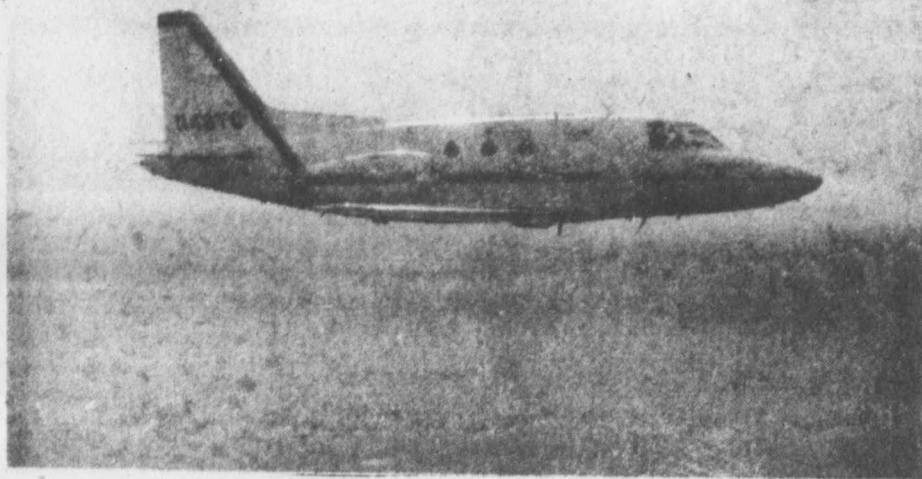

— Mobil is below 10,100 feet on a planned 14,000-foot well about 100 miles east of Cape May. The semi-submersible Western Pacesetter III is about 35 miles south of the first Mobil dry hole announced in December.

— Tenneco's Zapata Uglund semi-submersible is below 13,700 feet in its first well, which is planned for 19,000 feet about 102 miles east of Atlantic City.

— Texaco, which reported the only substantial gas strike, is about to begin its third well. The semi-submersible Ocean Victory, which had a "significant gas find" about 106 miles east of here last August, will work the same tract as Tenneco about three miles south of the strike. This and a second well, which came up dry 12 days ago, are meant to determine the size of the gas reservoir.

Auto leasing option for some individuals

Leasing of automobiles is becoming increasingly evident that not only application at an amazing rate. It is better served by leasing of their vehicles rather than purchase.

Leasing, essentially, is buying the USE of your car or truck rather than making a total investment in ownership. Savings are often made compared with financing outright purchase. Smaller principal payments reduce the amount of interest paid.

Leasing enables many individuals to drive a more luxurious car for an equal or lesser amount of money normally budgeted for transportation. Leasing can free cash for other purchases or services. In leasing, people pay as they drive, not in advance.

There is a business maxim: "Own things which retain value, lease things which do not." Leasing permits people to have the pleasure of driving a new vehicle without investing in it. Service is attained through the use, rather than ownership, of the auto.

Frank See Chevrolet leases not only Chevrolets but all other makes and models, as well. If you think you may benefit by leasing, do come to "See" for yourself at Frank See Chevrolet, 4100 West Wall. Phone 694-9601.

Tiger Charter flies incomparable Sabre

TIGER CHARTER CORPORATION received their FAA certificate on February 12, 1979 and are now operating out of Midland Regional Airport.

With their Rockwell Sabreliner (built by the people who built the space shuttle), Tiger Charter flies to New York in three hours, to the west coast in two hours and to Acapulco in two hours, forty minutes. The Sabre cruises at 41 thousand feet, 46 thousand feet higher than the airlines normally fly, and at 553 mph. "The Sabre is on top of the weather in smooth air 99% of the time while most of the airliners and other flights are down in the weather asking for vectors around rough areas," says Bob Reimers, vice president for Operations, who has been flying this aircraft for five and one half years since retiring from the USAF.

The Sabre was first built in 1958, and was the outgrowth of the F-86 (the Sabre fighter and Mig-killer of Korean fame). It has the best safety record of any corporate fleet aircraft. "Statistically, you are safer in the Sabre than you are in your own home," says Jim Sandell, vice president of Maintenance, who retired from a Texas Air National Guard F-100 (Super Sabre) outfit in San Antonio. He brings to Tiger Charter over twenty years' of maintenance engineering experience plus corporate jet pilot experience.

An executive's time is saved in the Sabre because he has ample space to work in comfort with good communications to carry on business as usual enroute. Catered gourmet meals, background music, telephone and a car waiting at the steps of your aircraft upon arrival at destination, are a few of the services when flying with Tiger Charter, also no waiting in line and no parking problems.

The Sabre is much larger and more comfortable than other chartered aircraft. You enjoy all the conveniences of your own office with a view that is often breathtaking. Frank Smisson, president of Tiger Charter, says: "I was on the receiving end of VIP treatment of Air Force flights and I know it allowed me to be much more effective by having the logistical details attended to. These services and extra efforts made for comfort, convenience, speed and enjoyment really pay big dividends in the long run. We have gathered together a team that is dedicated to providing the best possible service with the belief that we will grow because we are the best in the business. In effect, I have operated on this principle as a corporate department with this aircraft since the summer of 1972." Our sincere thanks to Dean Stoltz, chairman of the board of Tiger Charter, whose enthusiasm brought us to Midland two years ago. His encouragement and support have made this venture an exciting reality.

Presley leaves estate valued at $7.6 million

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley left an estate valued at $7.6 million, including almost $3 million in various royalties, an accounting shows. An accounting of the estate approved Friday by Judge Joseph W. Evans of Probate Court gave the first public glimpse of the singer's holdings.

Presley died Aug. 16, 1977, at age 42. The accounting covers the period from Aug. 16, 1977, until July 31, 1978. The estate was valued at nearly $15 million, but expenditures of more than $7 million dropped the net value to $7.6 million.

Presley left the bulk of his estate to his 10-year-old daughter, Lisa Marie, to his father Vernon and to Elvis' grandmother and Minnie Mae. The elder Presley, who has an ailing heart, also was named executor and trustee of the estate though Lisa Marie will inherit her father's entire fortune when she turns 24 or after the death of Vernon Presley and her great grandmother. The did not mention Priscilla Presley, the singer's former wife.

Presley's Graceland Mansion and the 14 acres surrounding it were valued at about $557,000 and a house and lot in Palm Springs, Calif., were valued at $364,500.

Budget revealed

WINTER PARK, Fla. — Florida Gas Co., a the diversified energy company located in Winter Park, Fla., announced its exploration budget for 1979, in addition to the expenditures it may make in two offshore lease sales currently scheduled for July and November 1979, is $57 million.

In a lease sale held in December 1978, Florida Gas purchased $15 million of offshore leases. The company spent $13 million in 1977 and $23 million in 1978 in oil and gas exploration activities.

The company also announced successful tests on nine of 15 wildcat wells drilled during the first two months of 1979.

Because of this high level of activity in the exploration for oil and gas and the proposed expansion of the company's business into a petroleum products pipeline and a coal slurry pipeline, management has recommended to shareholders that the corporate name be changed to TRENE X Corporation.

Selby W. Sullivan, chairman of the board and president of Florida Gas Co., said, "As the company has expanded its geographical scope and has diversified into the transportation and exploration of energy generally, the name 'Florida Gas' no longer accurately depicts the character of the Company."

TRENE X, representing transportation, energy, and exploration, will be appropriate to signify the future emphasis of the company, without limiting new areas of opportunity as the Company continues its growth.

Florida Gas estimates that in spite of the termination of two transportation contracts in June of this year, the natural gas throughput of its pipeline system in 1979 will again be at record levels.

The nine wells successfully tested by Florida Gas in 1979 were spread among its five exploration offices. Northeast of Midland, Texas, the Hopi wildcat flowed on potential test at 324 barrels of oil per day. The Company has 33 1/2 percent working interest in the well and a working interest which varies from 25 to 33 1/2 percent in a 4,100-acre leasehold.

In Andrews County, Texas, the No. 1-A FGEC University wildcat well at the Strawn Prospect produced 89 barrels of oil during a two-hour drill-stem test. The company has a 25 percent working interest in the well and in a 1,133-acre block.

Rules would be blocks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The American Petroleum Institute says proposed federal legislation for liquid petroleum pipelines would create additional "bureaucratic roadblocks" in the industry's attempt to distribute adequate supplies of gasoline and other petroleum products.

The declaration was made in a statement submitted by API President Charles J. DiBona to Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Subcommittee on Energy and Power, which is considering the legislation (H.R. 51). The statement makes these points:

—"The outstanding safety record of the nation's liquid petroleum pipeline operators is clear evidence that additional government legislation is not needed and would be counterproductive."
—"The U. S. Department of Transportation has sufficient existing statutory authority to address any liquid petroleum pipeline safety issues which have been raised either in the Congress or in other forums."
—"H.R. 51 is poorly conceived in that it seeks to address both liquid petroleum and natural gas pipelines coincidentally—in spite of the overwhelmingly distinct differences in their respective operations."
—"The costs to the industry—and therefore the consuming public—which will inevitably result from the reporting requirements and delays which will be inherent in the bill, run directly counter to President Carter's anti-inflation drive."
—"There is no greater national need than the ability to deliver energy from its sources to the consumer. Instead of making it easier to accomplish this goal, H.R. 51 would create additional bureaucratic roadblocks."

Mine permit requested

AUSTIN — Chevron U.S.A., Inc., has applied to the Railroad Commission for authorization to surface mine uranium ore in Karnes and Gonzales counties, the commission's Surface Mining and Reclamation Division reported.

The proposed surface mining operation, which will be known as the Jack Pump Uranium Area, is located approximately six and one-half miles east of Gillette and three and one-half miles north of State Route 119.

Notice of the proposal has been forwarded to all affected persons by the Surface Mining Division.

The applicant has proposed to mine approximately 186,000 tons of uranium ore annually from a 191-acre tract within the proposed permit operation area of 2,592 acres.

The company has said it would like to commence the operation in 1980.

The surface owners of the 2,592 acres as identified by the application are Rudolph and Emily N. Blaschke, John G. and Mary B. Thompson, Earnest J. Dragon et ux, Vincent Janysek et ux, Leitha Mae and Frank J. Simecek, Lamar R. and Rudolph T. Blaschke, Eva Frisbie et vir, Lamar R. and Billie Jo Blaschke, and Frank Anton Dragon.

Platform work starts

VENICE, La. — ARCO Oil and Gas Co. announced construction has started on a platform to provide space for drilling up to 24 wells to develop a new gas field in the Gulf of Mexico.

The announcement was made by Donald E. Jessup, a vice president of ARCO Oil and Gas and manager of the company's South Louisiana District.

The platform will be installed in Mississippi Canyon block 148, approximately 15 miles southeast of the mouth of the Mississippi River. Water depth at the proposed location is 650 feet.

The field is located in ARCO Oil & Gas' Block 148 and two offsetting blocks under lease to a group consisting of Gulf, Mobil, Chevron and ICI Delaware.

Jessup said that the successful drilling of four exploratory wells by ARCO Oil & Gas and three by the Gulf-Mobil-Chevron-ICI group established the presence of sufficient reserves to justify the cost of the deep water platform and its equipment, and the drilling of approximately 18 development wells.

Total cost to prepare these gas reserves for production will amount to about $100 million, not including the cost of the exploratory drilling or the $26 million in lease bonuses paid to the Federal government in the 1974 lease sale.

The entire field will be operated by ARCO Oil and Gas under a unitization agreement, and each company will sell its product separately.

B. G. Taylor

Taylor appointed

Lyle L. Livingston, president of Moran Exploration, Inc., (formerly Hytech Energy Corp.) has announced the appointment of Burrell G. Taylor as vice president of Production.

Taylor is a 1949 graduate of Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering.

Since 1949, he has worked for Kerr-McGee Corp. in various capacities relating to drilling and production, including vice president-Production U.S. and International.

He is responsible for drilling and producing operations of Moran Exploration.

Four courses set by center

The Permian Basin Graduate Center announces four more upcoming oil industry related courses.

They are "Drillstem & Production Testing," "Regulation of Investment in Oil & Gas," "Hydrogen Sulfide in the Drilling Industry," and "Surface Production Operations and Equipment."

Each of the courses will be held in the PBGC Building, 105 W. Illinois St., Midland.

"Regulation of Investment in Oil & Gas," will be offered from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday.

William C. Morrow, local attorney with Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe, Morrow & Dawson will instruct.

Some of the regulations to be discussed include SEC, State security laws, Schedule D, etc.

Fee for the course is $30.

Fee for the class is $275 including material. Registration is limited.

The center, in cooperation with RIKE Service, Inc., petroleum consultants, will offer "Surface Production Operations and Equipment," from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, April 2-13.

The instructors will be Ted M. Pledger and Alfred O. Fischer.

The 10-day short course provides comprehensive coverage of production equipment and production practices, including the practical as well as the technical considerations in the design and operation of a safe and economic production facility.

It covers lease equipment and practices, from the wing valve at the Christmas tree to the sales point, for the efficient gathering, separation, treating, pumping, compressing, injecting, storing, measuring and selling liquid and gaseous hydrocarbons.

The major topics to be covered are "The Production Process," "Gathering and Injection Systems," "Lease Facility Design and Operation," and "Maintenance and Economics."

Pledger has 17 years experience with Schlumberger, Exxon, Louisiana Land & Exploration, and production management in addition to his current consulting and seminar activities with RIKE Service.

Fischer is an active consultant with 30 years experience in research, operations, design and trouble shooting, and all phases of oil and gas facilities. He was in research and design with Stanolind Co., Parkersburg Rig and Reel, and Riley-Beard.

States battle to win prize in synthetic race

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The neighboring states of Kentucky and West Virginia are engaged in a battle to win what is described as the first big prize in the race to make a usable synthetic fuel from coal.

The fight is a strange one because it doesn't pit Kentucky against West Virginia. Instead, it has made allies of the two coal states against the Department of Energy and the Office of Management and Budget, which after promising a year ago to finance synthetic fuel projects in both states has now decreed that a competition should take place between the states for the best project.

"The way we look at it is there's strength in unity and that's why we're working with each other," said Sen. Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky., a member of the Senate Energy Committee. "We feel very strongly that two plants are significant and will help in our development of synthetic fuels."

At stake is at least a $700 million prize, the conservative estimate of the cost to build the nation's first commercial plant to extract from coal a fuel that leaves no ash and does not pollute the air with a lot of sulfur and nitrogen oxides. The idea is to first extract the ash from the coal, thereby making a smaller and lighter fuel that is far easier to transport.

There seems little doubt that a synthetic fuel plant will win government approval this year. The Congress wants one and President Carter apparently wants one, having promised some members of Congress that he will allude to it in his energy speech to the nation on Thursday.

Besides Kentucky and West Virginia, the competitors in the race for the $700 million coal plant are two industrial consortia headed by Southern Co. Services Inc. and Gulf Oil Corp. To spice the competition, Japan and West Germany are both committed to put up 25 percent of the money for the first plant, though both lean to supporting one approach over the other.

The Southern Co. approach is tied to the use of abundant, high sulfur coal in western Kentucky and involves the conversion of the coal into a solid fuel without ash and without sulfur. Gulf's way is to start with low sulfur West Virginia coal and convert it to a liquid fuel.

Pilot plants have already burned both the solid and liquid synthetic fuels. One burned 3,000 tons of the solid, and 4,500 barrels of the liquid.

Energy Department spokesmen said both burns passed "both the heat and the environmental tests."

Each synthetic fuel has advantages. The solid fuel will be more free of sulfur and will produce coke as a by-product to fire steel furnaces. The liquid fuel will be easier to transport and as a by-product will make gasoline, almost an invaluable edge in a day of dwindling oil supplies.

In agreeing last year to back the synthetic fuel venture, West Germany came down on the side of the liquid synthetic fuel. West German electric plants burn oil almost exclusively, so if they are to use the end product they want it to be liquid. Also, the West Germans are intrigued by the idea that gasoline will be a by-product of the plant.

Japan is said to feel the same way West Germany does and for the same reasons. If the Japanese are to buy a synthetic fuel, they want one easy to ship from the United States, where the coal lies to Japan.

Congress may decide to approve both plants, one in Kentucky near Newman across from Evansville, Ind.; and the other just north of Morgantown, W. Va. A week ago, the Senate Energy Committee told the Budget Committee it would authorize $59 million for next fiscal year to start the solid fuel plant and $45 million to begin the liquid fuel plant.

The House Energy Development subcommittee of the Science and Technology Committee recommended $40 million for the solid fuel plant and $50 million to begin the liquid fuel plant.

At the Energy Department Friday, sources said it was likely that both plants will be approved. There was talk even that President Carter would see the wisdom of such a move and say so in Thursday's energy address.

Operations hit record

CHICAGO, Ill. — Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) said in its 1978 annual report that "record operating levels were achieved in crude oil and natural gas liquids production, in refinery runs and in sales of both petroleum and chemical products."

Worldwide net production of crude oil and natural gas liquids rose 3 percent to a record average of 1,032,000 barrels a day. Natural gas production averaged 3.3 billion cubic feet worldwide, unchanged from 1977.

Standard drilling more U.S. exploratory and development wells in 1978 than any other single company and participated in many of the nation's key exploratory oil and gas plays, including the important Overthrust Belt and Louisiana Cretaceous (Tuscaloosa Trend) plays.

The company is also the largest single leaseholder in the U.S., with exploration and production rights on 34.1 million acres and plans "to capitalize on the strong domestic demand for energy by participating in most of the nation's active exploration play." It holds over 120,000 net acres in the currently defined productive portion of the Overthrust Belt of Wyoming and Utah alone.

Standard's U.S. exploratory drilling in 1978 cost a record $333 million and included participation in 791 gross completed wildcat and extension exploratory wells. The wildcats discovered 63 gross oil and/or natural gas fields.

The company also drilled 423 net development wells at a record cost of $226 million in the U.S.

Also a leading explorer in Canada, the company participated during 1978 in completing 213 wildcats and extension exploratory wells — 126 as gas producers, 36 oil and 51 dry.

Hartman is manager of gas engineering and engineering services for Atlantic Richfield's North American producing division. He was cited for his contributions to the gas engineering profession and for his leadership in the Association as president, vice president, director, and chairman of the Technical Committee.

The presentations were made by GPA President Harold R. Galloway at the close of the Association's 58th Annual Convention.

HOUSTON — Danny Stephens has joined K&A, Inc., a Keplinger company, as Gulf Coast Operations manager, reports Jim Howell, vice president of the Gulf Coast Region.

Stephens was drilling and production manager for a Houston independent oil and gas company before joining K&A. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Petroleum Engineering from Texas Tech University, graduating in 1969.

Stephens started as an engineering assistant at Shamrock Oil & Gas Co. in Amarillo while attending Tech in 1965. On graduation he went to work for Shell Oil Co. as operations engineer and senior drilling engineer during his seven years with the firm.

HOUSTON — Bryan Burk has joined Armo's Strata Energy, Inc., as vice president-land announced Strata president, R. E. Bennett.

Prior to this new position, Burk had been employed since 1974 by the First National City Bank of Houston. He was manager, petroleum and mineral, Trust Division, with principal areas of activity in Texas and the Louisiana Gulf Coast.

HOUSTON — Jesse C. Barbour, president of Barbour Energy Co., announced the selection of the Radian Corp. to perform an environmental impact assessment and to assist Barbour in obtaining the necessary permits for their 150,000-barrel-per-day grassroots refinery. Barbour Energy plans to construct the new facility on a 2,000-acre site leased from Brownsville Navigation District in Texas.

DALLAS — Texas Oil & Gas Corp. announced that John D. Huppler joined the company as manager of Engineering and Evaluation at the corporate offices in Dallas. Formerly, Mr. Huppler was associated with Exxon Corp. 13 years, servicing in various engineering capacities from senior research engineer to planning advisor for Carter Oil Company, a subsidiary of Exxon Co.

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. announced the promotion of Bruce Nacci to Landman for its Gulf Coast District in Corpus Christi. Nacci joined TXO earlier this year as landman trainee.

The company promoted H. Hunter White III to Landman for its Gulf Coast District in Corpus Christi. He joined the company in September 1978 as landman trainee.

Lee Van Ramshorst was named manager of production operation for the Northern Region of the Exploration and Production Division. He previously served as chief engineer in the Dallas offices. Mr. Van Ramshorst joined the company in April 1975 as staff engineer of Property Acquisitions and has served in various engineering capacities.

FINDLAY, Okla. — A. Sherrill Motesch has been named Casper district exploration geologist for Marathon Oil Co. Prior to assuming his new post, Motesch served as senior geologist in the Casper exploration district.

His appointment was effective Feb. 1.

DENVER, Colo. — Fred H. Ramseur, Jr., executive vice president and director of Cities Service Co. Tulsa, last week was named the 1979 recipient of the Gas Processors Association's Hanlon Award.

The Hanlon Award, highest honor in the gas processing industry, and one of the ranking awards of the petroleum industry, is conferred annually for distinguished service and significant contributions to the gas processing industry.

The award is named in honor of the late E. I. Hanlon, a pioneer of the gas processing industry, and founder of the Hanlon Companies. Hanlon initiated the award in 1937, making this year's presentation the 43rd in its history.

Ramseur was cited in the presentation made by GPA president Harold R. Galloway, Exxon Company, for his role in the development of large gas liquids processing, fractionation, storage, and pipeline systems that have provided market access to gas processing plants with large production capacity, particularly those located in West Texas and western Kansas. He was also recognized for his industry contributions through GPA and as President of the national LP-Gas Council.

He was later employed with the Lummus Co. as a senior project scheduler. Prior to his joining Orloff, Upton was a construction scheduling supervisor with Brown & Root, Inc.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The railroad commission has scheduled a May 22 hearing on an application by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. to require natural gas producers in the McAllen Ranch Fields of Hidalgo County to reduce its deliveries to Lo-Vaca.

Lo-Vaca wants producers to reduce their deliveries when it appears actual market demand for the gas is less than is available from producers.

Forest Oil Co. has complied with Lo-Vaca's requests in recent months to reduce deliveries, but Shell Oil Co. has refused, Lo-Vaca contends.

Hearing scheduled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The railroad commission has scheduled a May 22 hearing on an application by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. to require natural gas producers in the McAllen Ranch Fields of Hidalgo County to reduce its deliveries to Lo-Vaca.

Lo-Vaca wants producers to reduce their deliveries when it appears actual market demand for the gas is less than is available from producers.

Forest Oil Co. has complied with Lo-Vaca's requests in recent months to reduce deliveries, but Shell Oil Co. has refused, Lo-Vaca contends.

Requests OK'd

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has approved two applications to sell natural gas produced on state-owned lands for consumption in out-of-state markets.

State law and the commission's Rule 69 require RRC authorization of such sales following inquiry to assure there is no reasonable intrastate market for the gas.

Canus Petroleum, Inc., Denver, was granted authority to sell gas from Tracts 691 and 700 in the Nueces Bay, West Field area of Nueces County to United Gas Pipeline Co. which has a pipeline within close proximity to Canus producing wells. The operator has a single well on each tract.

At a public hearing on the Canus application last Feb. 13, evidence was introduced showing the Tract 691 well had been completed for an initial absolute open flow potential of 1,300 Mcfd (thousand cubic feet per day) and the Tract 700 well for 5,400 Mcfd.

The hearing examiners, Senior Legal Counsel J. Brooks Peden, Staff Legal Counsel William E. Black and Technical Hearings Director Billy D. Thomas, recommended approval of the application.

The examiners were advised that United Gas Pipeline has made a ten-year offer for the gas with an 85 percent take-or-pay provision of $1.85 per thousand cubic feet.

Canus has $1,553,931 invested in the Tract 691 and $1,818,067 invested in the Tract 700 well, the commission was advised.

"A rapid payout is not in prospect at either well," Peden advised Commissioners Mack Wallace and James E. (Jim) Nugent at the weekly conference on oil and gas matters.

Also approved by the commission was the application of Union Oil Co. of California to sell gas produced on University of Texas Leases 49-1 and 48-5 in the Price (Grayburg) Field and UT Leases 49-6, 49-7 and 48-6 in the Block 49 (2450) Field, as well as UT Lease 48-17 in the V Bar Field. All of the leases are in Reagan County.

Peden and Thomas conducted a public hearing on the application on Feb. 13. In their findings of fact, they reported Union Oil of California "has been diligent in its efforts to develop a reasonable intrastate market and has been unable to do so."

The gas will be sold to El Paso-Natural Gas Co. Neither of the applications drew protests.

Coal pact inked

HOUSTON — Coastal States Energy Co., a unit of Coastal States Gas Corp., reported it has signed agreements with a subsidiary of Getty Oil Co. calling for joint venture development of two underground coal mines in central Utah.

The mines are to be developed near the town of Scofield on 6,400 acres of coal leases acquired last year by Coastal. Under the joint venture agreement, Getty has undivided 50 percent interest in the leases and will share equally with Coastal in development costs estimated at approximately $65 million over a ten-year period.

Independents find rough sledding

TULSA, Okla. — U.S. independent oil companies say the Government has provided more roadblocks than incentives in its efforts to involve small operators in Outer Continental Shelf exploration.

Those hurdles range from a $35-million oil-spill-liability provision in the OCS Lands Act Amendments of 1978 to an aggravating Department of Interior habit of rejecting their high bids for offshore tracts, reports the Oil & Gas Journal in its Mar. 5 issue.

Some independents find those disincentives coupled with the traditional high costs of offshore operations bar them from the OCS — particularly frontier areas.

Under the circumstances, "there just aren't any bargains left on the federal offshore," one independent claims.

Instead of plunging big on OCS tracts, most independents are making prudent part-interest investments in federal leases in the mature Gulf of Mexico areas or sticking to state tracts off Texas and Louisiana. Bidding and leasing terms are more hospitable and the drilling environment less demanding on the state blocks, independents say.

They add they're skirting high capital costs in those regions through farm-ins or by purchasing joint-venture interests. Few are seeking the role of operator. Most still are in the red or only now nearing the break-even point for their offshore investments. Independents probably are responsible for about 10 percent of industry's total investment offshore, one operator estimates.

Industry has paid total bonuses, royalties, and rents of $25.4 billion as of Jan. 1 for OCS acreage alone, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. USGS says total value of OCS production reached $33.3 billion on the same date.

Gas increase expected

CHICAGO — Amoco Production Co. expects its domestic net natural gas production to be at least 5 percent higher this year than in 1978, the company said.

"1979 should be the first year we have reported a domestic natural gas production increase since 1973," said Amoco President George H. Galloway. Amoco Production is the country's third leading producer of natural gas.

Most of the expected gain will come from Amoco's recent discoveries in Wyoming, East Texas, the deep Tuscaloosa play on the upper Gulf Coast in Louisiana, and offshore operations in the Gulf of Mexico, he said.

Galloway pointed out that Amoco's offshore Gulf of Mexico properties produced 10 percent more natural gas in 1978 than in 1977, helping the company report an overall 5 percent increase in the fourth quarter of 1978.

"These and other discoveries are the direct results of the several billion dollars Amoco Production has spent exploring for oil and gas in the U.S. in recent years," he said. "We have led the industry in number of exploration and development wells drilled in the past two years."

Amoco's discoveries "prove that the U.S. is still an important province for oil and gas exploration," Galloway stated, noting that Amoco's U.S. capital and exploration budget for 1979 will surpass $1 billion, a major portion of which will be spent finding and developing gas reserves. The company's 1978 exploration and production outlays in the U.S. amounted to $992 million, a 30 percent increase over 1977.

Galloway cautioned, however, that the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 could dampen Amoco's optimistic forecast.

Pd. pol. adv. by Scott Shelton for Hospital Director Committee, John Hyde, treasurer, 2610 Terrace, Midland 79701

Papa, do you have the brain damage? One of the neighbors came over this morning to borrow some coffee and told me she thinks you have the BD. She told me her husband told her that you use Sweet Molly pit liners and drilling mud and walk down the street looking at yourself in store windows and that is a sure sign your tilt light is on. You tell that old sister when I get the BD she will be the last one to know it. It's her tilt light that's on not mine. I wish I'd been here, that old sister wouldn't have mooched any coffee. Her old man is sorry too. I'll be glad when Sweet Molly saves me enough water hauling money and mud money; I'll move to the corner of Snob Hill and Rosie Road and dwell among the rich and get a lawn mower with a chair and an umbrella on it and get me a poodle and a diamond.

Axe Handle got mad and quit and went back to Oklahoma. But he called Friday and said he'd cooled off a little and would be back to work Monday. We think Cellophane went with him because no one has seen her since he quit.

Let us line your pits and/or supply your mud

People pay the costs of regulatory requirements

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — People are becoming aware that there are costs attached to government regulations and that they, not the government, end up paying them. Now the New York State Hospital Association has published a study which shows in dollars and cents just how much government regulations cost.

Politicians who are ranting about the rising costs of health care should read the study. Of course, they don't. The demagogue is never interested in really solving problems, only in making political hay.

The New York study showed, for example, that 25 percent of all costs are attributable to meeting regulatory requirements. The annual cost to hospitals and patients was estimated to be $1.1 billion. It required 115 million man-hours per year to meet the regulatory requirements imposed by 164 different agencies with jurisdiction over hospitals. This is the equivalent of 56,000 employees or enough people to staff 75, 250-bed hospitals.

Not only are these costs rising at about 4 percent a year, according to the study, but the number of regulations are increasing. A number of state governments are creating new bureaucracies to meddle in hospital administration.

This one area is typical of the broader problem. Almost every item we buy has been made more expensive by excessive and often foolish government regulations. The government's decision to require seat belts in cars added about $40 to the price of every auto. Most people still do not use them and of course prior to the regulation anyone who wanted them could get them.

Housing, energy, transportation, food, clothing are all made more expensive by the actions of governments. The problem is not regulation per se because few would argue that all government regulation should be abolished. The problem is that governments are doing such a lousy job.

Elected officials do a lousy job when they fail to study problems and rush into areas with unnecessary or poorly drawn legislation. Bureaucrats often do a lousy job because the system within which they operate is designed to reward conformity and passivity, not innovation and productivity.

Too often in the higher policy making positions we find people with no practical experience and common sense — lawyers fresh out of school, academics, ideologues and idealists who haven't the foggiest idea how the real world works and, naturally, political hacks whose primary goal in life is to perpetuate the career of the politicians to whom they have attached themselves like wood ticks.

The present situation involves danger. Obviously, excessive and foolish regulation contributes to the steady decline of the American standard of living. Labor involved in meeting red tape requirements is non-productive labor. The costs are non-productive. Small and medium-sized businesses where one most often finds the greatest efficiency and the most innovation are being killed off since the cash flow of these businesses is not sufficient to meet the non-productive costs of regulations.

Eventually, this trend will lead to a society totally dominated by the super-large corporation which suffers from the same problems of super-large government: inefficiency, bureaucracy, and fear of innovation.

A greater danger, however, is the disillusionment of the people with the government. Revolution is normally impossible so long as the majority of the people believe their government, no matter how imperfect, can still perform its basic duties.

Increasingly in our country, though, people are losing this faith. They are beginning to perceive that government is incompetent. They are beginning to perceive that no matter what the problem — crime, energy or inflation — the government seems unable to solve it.

People convinced that their government no longer works will be far more inclined to shop for a new one in a crisis and far more inclined to take the law into their own hands.

Ultimately, we are our own enemies. Self-government is a heavy responsibility and we should not expect to fulfill the duties of citizenship without investing time, resources and energy. By carelessly electing incompetents, by timidly suffering their mistakes in silence, we play a dangerous game with our own future.

The President has a good reason for visiting Elk City, Okla. He heard there was a friendly Democrat there.

President Carter is delighted that Sen. Lowell Weicker has entered the race. It's good to see somebody behind him in the polls.

Report on international banks

By JACK ANDERSON

Bank — largest lender of the international financial institutions — negotiated a "soft" (i.e. risky) $24 million loan to strife-torn Ethiopia, "when it apparently was evident" that an earlier million-dollar-plus loan from another bank would have to be written off, the House investigators found.

A $124 million loan to Mexico for a steel plant from the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank "happens to have been, in part, politically inspired," according to the unreleased report.

And the recommendations of the "Christopher Group," an advisory panel on human rights named for Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, are routinely ignored by the banks' boards of directors. Within the past 16 months, dozens of multimillion-dollar loans have been granted to notoriously repressive regimes, in flagrant disregard of the Carter administration's commitment to the fight for human rights around the world.

How is this possible when the United States puts up billions of the banks' largesse? Simple enough: Despite the sizable financial stake, the United States' voting representation is ineffectual, and top bank officials used to operating behind closed doors broach little opposition to their iron-handed rule.

If the U.S. position can be expressed in terms of economic development — a field of admitted American expertise — the other board members pay some attention. If other, political, considerations are involved, they ignore the American view, and the U.S. executive director "is isolated and ineffective," the investigators concluded.

To their surprise, the congressional investigators found that supervision reports on loan projects were not available to the executive directors "and accordingly were not available to the investigative staff."

And while the banks supposedly rely on accepted financial guidelines as safeguards against corruption, "marked deviations from the guidelines do not result in any harsh reaction," the report states.

Loan applications for millions of dollars are not given the hard-eyed scrutiny ordinary citizens encounter when they try to finance a home or a new car, the House investigators discovered. "Proposals are massaged to perfection and represent only an illusion of real conditions," the report says.

"Projects are treated by (the banks') economists as though they were being carried out in a high-powered social laboratory rather than in a poor underdeveloped country," the report notes. "Paper and bureaucratic procedures are substituted for substance."

In fact, the report concludes, "there exists no real proof that the poorest of the poor are being reached or that the long-range goals are being achieved."

Treasury officials who work with the international financial institutions are not happy with the House committee staff's report. They have strongly suggested dozens of deletions in the report, ostensibly to protect the banks' confidentiality — an excuse that has been used in the past to cover up ineptitude and gross mismanagement. The study notes, for example, that Justice Department investigations of cheating by U.S. firms overseas include two cases involving the international institutions.

The officials also deny the report's statement that "comparative weakness of the Inter-American Development Bank's management is conceded by U.S. Treasury Department officials."

Delayed recognition

The Industrial Foundation of Midland, Inc., during its 12-year history, has had only five presidents, including Howard "Rocky" Ford, who was elected at the foundation's recently held annual meeting.

Each of the four past presidents has played a major role in the highly successful development of the foundation and its Midland Industrial Park, yet, through oversight, not a single one of them had been recognized officially and publicly for their service until the March 14 annual meeting.

It was then and there that President Joe Kloesel of the Midland Chamber of Commerce presented engraved plaques expressing appreciation to the past presidents, one of whom had served as president on two separate occasions, for their outstanding, dedicated service to the foundation and to the community as a whole.

Although somewhat delayed, it yet was a fitting tribute and a meaningful show of appreciation to the past presidents who have given generously and unselfishly for the growth and betterment of the community.

Al Hamilton, who is now a resident of New Mexico, was the foundation's first president, serving in 1967-68. C. Winston Barclay, the retiring president, succeeded Hamilton, serving until 1971, when he was succeeded by John M. Grimland Jr., who held the post through 1973. Martin Allday then took the reins, guiding the foundation until Barclay again was elected president at the beginning of 1977.

And during their administrations the foundation has experienced tremendous success and widespread acclaim. Its Midland Industrial Park is almost completely filled by plants which have created hundreds of new jobs for Midland and area residents. Late last year, the foundation acquired additional property for development of the park's Phase II.

The past presidents most certainly merit the recognition which they have received, along with the thanks and appreciation of a grateful community.

And now the presidential reins are in the hands of another top-flight, experienced community leader, Rocky Ford. He is fully capable of following in the footsteps of his illustrious predecessors, and he is imbued with the interest and enthusiasm which will assure the success of his administration.

It just so happens that Ford also is a past president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, as have been Barclay, Grimland and Allday.

The Industrial Foundation of Midland, Inc., has been and continues in good hands.

Special prosecutor

Questions continue to arise concerning the financial deals made by President Carter and his brother, Billy, in connection with the Carter family peanut warehouse business at Plains, Ga.

Carter's former budget director, Bert Lance, a Georgia banker, and Charles Kirbo, the trustee for the president's business interests, are involved.

All of the questions are being investigated by prosecutors from the Department of Justice, which is headed by one of Carter's long-time political associates from Georgia, Attorney General Griffin Bell.

Bell, a former federal judge, is highly respected. He is a man of high personal standards. But no investigation conducted by so close a political friend of the president can escape the appearance of bias.

President Carter and Attorney General Bell should appoint a special prosecutor and give him a budget to hire special investigators to explore thoroughly into any allegation of misconduct involving the president and members of his family.

It will take an independent investigation to really clear the air.

A pleasant, lay-back spring comes to Washington

WASHINGTON — The weather was glorious here last week and gave the marbled monuments and buildings splendid opportunity to show off against the thin, blue sky and high-flying cirrus clouds.

People, as though they had been officially sequestered for winter, came out in crowds — on the downtown streets, on the Mall which offers a huge walkway from the Lincoln Memorial to the Capitol, and into those bazaars of the enterprise-goodies system, the great suburban shopping centers.

It is the season for kite flying, Easter egg workshops, crocuses, street peddlers, lovers lounging on the grass, armies of joggers, 10-speed bikers and tour buses loaded with young believers.

As it turns out this year, it is also the season for Congress to take a breath and maybe even lay back a bit. There really isn't that much doing on the Hill. Senators and congressmen who just can't stop are conducting a great number of hearings. There are shibboleths and buzz words in every session of Congress, and in this one the great cry is for "oversight." House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has urged the leadership and committee chairmen to exercise the flabby, seldom-used muscle available called "oversight." Congress was given the oversight function several years ago, but whenever it felt the urge to use it, Congress usually lay down until the urge passed.

"Tip" has also warned his colleagues that the American people currently don't want any more federal programs enacted, and that it is wise to heed the will of the people. Now this makes O'Neill, who would feel as uncomfortable being a Republican as wading nude in the Tidal Basin here, sound like he's with the other party. But O'Neill casts his exhortations to hold down spending programs in the context of doing what the public wants, and, by God, the Democrats have always been closest to the people.

Senate Leader Robert Byrd is also offering tranquilizers to his colleagues, though he pushes stimulants regularly on the White House. "Byrd is trying to conduct a slow-walking contest," one congressional aide said. "It's very, very slow up here already. We'll soon be frozen in our tracks."

By the time Congress goes home for spring holiday, April 12, it will have finished its work on the Taiwan Enabling Act which establishes a special relationship between the United States and Taiwan and very little else. But ahead are some jumbo matters — the debate on SALT, some sort of new legislation on energy, the Alaska lands dispute and action on the hospital cost containment bill.

Congressmen are expected to hear a lot from the home folks during Easter recess about the proposal to close gas stations on weekends, and a plan to set thermostats in federal buildings at 80 in summer and 65 in the winter, thus to serve as a model for private sector buildings as well. The crude oil pricing question, particularly if people come to understand it, could also provide conversation in the home precincts.

So while Congress goes easy and anticipates no difficulty in getting home on time for Easter, the great fretting exercises have fallen to the White House.

Mr. Carter must continue to monitor the back-and-forth on the Middle East "peace" agreement. He must come up with messages and legislation on energy, inflation (currently at 13.4 percent), the SALT agreement and the traditional generosity the Democrats are supposed to bestow on the citizenry.

The President has subjected himself to considerable physical and mental strain in recent weeks. The shuttle diplomacy in the middle East was a tiresome ordeal for him. The seven-day workweeks are hardly refreshing. He must feel new strain in the knowledge that his 1976 campaign will be opened up and revealed some if Paul Curran, the special counsel, pokes into the Carter family finances with even half the intensity of the Watergate investigation.

All this can make even a relatively young president like Carter grow old. Washington is more and more a young person's town, especially on the Hill where many young, high-salaried staffers would like to work their will on their bosses, increasingly confused by the legal thicket.

But the other day "Tip" O'Neill, an elder, passed the word to the young staffers that they should hold back in pushing more bills, that we are in an era of consolidation. If the earnest youngsters heed "Tip," they have the fine spring weather to enjoy, and soon it will be softball season.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reversed field

To The Editor:
In the March 18 edition of The Reporter-Telegram, young Brad Patten has completely reversed his field in conducting a personal attack on me in his letter to the editor.

Serving as hatchet-man for my opponent the last time I was opposed in an election, Mr. Patten used the theme that "Wright goes along to get along."

For those who consider the facts and think for themselves, let us take a brief look at history.

Ernie Crawford, former assistant city manager when Jim Reese was mayor of Odessa, is executive director of the Regional Planning Commission. Precinct 4 Commissioner Win-free Brown is a close personal friend of Mr. Crawford's.

I was instrumental in the formation of the Regional Planning Commission and was very vocal that it should be an organization of coordination between local governments only. If this organization becomes a political force in its 17-county region, then we have taken the first step toward regional government in West Texas.

Patten's reference to my part in the appointment of a county judge in March of 1978 can be quickly refuted by reading the transcript of the public hearing in which I served as acting county judge, pleaded for postponement of the hearings and did not participate in the vote.

The "checkerboarding" of Precinct No. 1 was carried out in 1968. Three Republicans, one an appointee, were on the court when that action was taken. I was not a member of the court at the time. It was not until the fall of 1977 that "checkerboarding" was ruled illegal by the Supreme Court. This decision was first called to our attention in 1978 by the attorney general's office. Because that was an election year, the court chose to postpone action until 1979. Commissioner Brown did not object.

I consider myself an independent thinker, fiscally conservative, knowledgeable county official. I disagree with and abhor the bureaucrats of Washington who continue to attempt to usurp the powers of local government, erode free enterprise and regulate almost every phase of our lives.

Durward Wright
Midland County Commissioner

Worth the effort

To The Editor:
How easy to criticize those who dare to move forward, and yet how rare to find a qualified person like Joyce Sherrod with the resolve to find a better way for our schools. Mrs.

Donnelly chose an easy route: to shoot down, without trying, a creative answer to Midland's public school dilemma — that of declining enrollment at the high schools and overcrowding in our elementary facilities. Joyce Sherrod's proposal would alleviate these two pressing problems, without building new facilities, and would create many positive effects, such as enhancing learning, improving continuity of each child's education, and saving tax dollars.

How very fortunate we are to have a candidate who has the expertise, dedication and concern to explore alternate solutions rather than being complacent with the "status quo." Joyce Sherrod is resigning her teaching position in order to serve on the school board. Her proposal is creative and flexible and those who want to improve the Midland school system should give it their careful attention.

As to increased and unequal busing at the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades, this simply is not true. We already bus these students, and with five middle schools throughout town, this could be done equitably with actually less disruption than occur presently. The middle school, housing six through eight, has worked beautifully many places, and with good reason. These ages are compatible biologically, emotionally and educationally.

Joyce Sherrod is aware we are under court ordered desegregation. Her concept would fulfill HEW guidelines. The benefits gained, such as not having to build new elementary schools, as the administration recently suggested, and maintaining our two high schools, would be worth the effort.

What is the incumbent's solutions to our problems?

Mrs. John H. Clark
1013 Tarleton St.

Unhealthy idea

To The Editor:
I am offended that the mayor and his wife are now asking us to elect her to the school board. Midland has lots of people with lots of ability and talent (including the mayor's wife's opponent), so that we don't need to concentrate so much authority in one family. It just isn't healthy.

Even though it is not against the law for husband and wife to hold office at the same time, there are some obvious conflicts of interest: example, negotiating city-school tax-collection contracts. The city council and the school board are supposed to be, and should be, totally independent of each other.

Deadline near

To The Editor:
The deadline for saving the Panama Canal is March 31. If we, the people, do not wake up in time the canal will be lost. According to the Constitution, the House of Representatives must also voice its approval if some territory of the U.S. is to be given away or disposed of, Article IV, Section 3, Clause 2.

Rep. John Murphy (D-N.Y.) returned recently from Panama and he was shocked at the new Panamanian demands. Panama wants the right to tax American companies in the Canal Zone retroactively back to 1903; they are demanding that all moveable property in the U.S. Canal Zone be given to Panama; that the Coco Solo naval base be completely restored after 20 years of non use. So we would have to give Panama about $150 million of moveable equipment, and millions of tax dollars to restore the naval base.

Does this sound like what the president said: that the giveaway would not cost America "a single dollar?" To give away the Canal will cost the U.S. a minimum of $4.1 billion. However, this does not include the replacement value of the lost facilities which could run to $20 billion.

Panama will increase the canal tolls by 25 percent.

Write your representative today and tell him you oppose the giveaway of the Canal for some of the reasons given above. Write Rep. Carroll Hubbard, who is the chairman of the House Subcommittee on the Panama Canal. Tell him you are opposed to the giveaway and urge him to express your views to the committee and the House members. His address is: Chairman Carroll Hubbard, Subcommittee on the Panama Canal, 3576 House Annex No. 2, Washington, D.C., 20515.

Rev. Robert Neumann

Discrimination

To The Editor:
The humor was obvious in the Thursday front page caption, "Dinner ended with a bang for Midlander." Reverse discrimination was also obvious. For although the incident could have proved fatal, the culprit involved was a woman; hence, a good opportunity for a front page humor story. But had the culprit been a man, the caption would probably have read "Woman abducted and held at gunpoint." Just goes to show — we still have a long way to go, Baby!

What apathy!

To The Editor:
I have been doing some campaigning for candidates running in the city elections coming up April 7 in Midland, Texas, and I have been appalled at the apathy, disinterest — and yes, ignorance — of some of the voting public! Not only do they not know that candidates for three board elections (hospital, city council, and school) are being voted on, but they don't even know who is running for what or against whom. Rather pathetic, isn't it, for a community that is known as having one of the highest per capita educational levels in the country!

You owe it to your elected representatives, to your community, to the democratic process and to yourself to be an informed voter. Know the issues, speak to the candidates, and discuss their platforms. And don't be confused by high-sounding rhetoric and campaign promises that sound like "motherhood and apple pie."

You can say your life is so busy right now you don't have time to "get involved." Well, if you don't take the time now, you will have plenty of time in the future to regret it!

The following is a quote of the Walt Disney Educational Media Co.: "Hearing is not the same as listening, looking does not always ensure seeing, and instant communication does not guarantee instant understanding." Think about it.

Kathleen Stewart
3608 Gulf St.

Note of support

To The Editor:
I address this letter to all Midlanders who pay taxes to the Midland Independent School District. If you have not been to a school board meeting lately, I suggest you attend. You will find that Ann Page, who is running for re-election to the board, is and has been one of the few members courageous enough to research and question many of the issues that come before the board.

Ann has three children who are attending public schools; therefore, they are directly involved in the decisions that are made by the board. She has been willing to take the time to study and evaluate problems and solutions which might otherwise have slipped past.

Ann is against the consolidation of our two high schools, but she knows that Joyce Sherrod's plan, though it sounds good to many of us, will not work. The obvious reason that it will not work is that it will upset the balance of the federally mandated busing system already in effect, unfortunately. As most of us taxpayers know, this would bring HEW back to Midland, and this time they would probably have to bus kindergarten through third-grade in order to comply with the federal court order.

A real shortage

To The Editor:
The causes of gasoline shortages are many and they are not fraudulent. A major cause is the increase in population. This country is still growing. Also, thousands of aliens enter the U.S. every day, legally and illegally. Sooner or later they buy automobiles, the only way to get around in most parts.

Another important cause is the scarcity of new oil discoveries. Most new wells in the Southwest find gas, with very little or no liquids. Most old oil fields are now declining in production.

Also, no new refinery has been built in the United States in several years. None is being planned. Environmentalists strongly oppose such plants and Big Brother in Washington imposes such restrictions that no company will tie up millions of dollars with little or no certainty of future profit.

R.L. Denton
Box 5122

New problems

To The Editor:
I agree with Mrs. Donnelly's letter to the editor last week in which she stated the problems with Mrs. Sherrod's plan to restructure our school district. I have four children, two of whom have already been involved in our elementary desegregation plan. Even though I would not have chosen for my children to be bused out of their neighborhood school, I feel we need to improve our present plan academically and thus improve our school system instead of making drastic changes in how we place students.

If Mrs. Sherrod's plan were put into effect, it would necessitate the busing of some seventh and eighth-graders who are currently in their neighborhood schools. These same seventh-graders were bused last year to comply with HEW. My daughter is one of these seventh-graders, and I feel that her world has been uprooted enough.

I worry, too, that the government would re-enter the picture and require even more busing than we have now. I do not want my younger children bused away from their neighborhood school for kindergarten through third grade.

Let's work out the problems we already acknowledge and improve Midland schools academically. Let's not create new problems with a new plan that will not work.

Donna Hewett

Note of praise

To The Editor:
We wish to publicly thank Sam Grove for what has been accomplished during the past four years at and with the Museum of the Southwest under his direction while the curator.

An enumeration of some of these achievements would include:

- 1. Becoming a sound fiscal operation;
- 2. The growth of permanent collections;
- 3. Being accepted by other institutions as a professional entity (of great value when borrowing exhibits).

Thanks to Mr. Grove, the Museum of the Southwest has achieved professionalism, and in doing so has become one of the examples of how to build a professional museum.

Thank you so much for your contribution to Midland.

Auto manners

To The Editor:
Here I am again concerning the traffic and/or drivers in Midland.

Every day one may observe two or three car accidents — fender benders some people say. However, have you had repairs done to your car lately? Expensive, isn't it?

I am glad to see, at least for the present time, Midland decided against one-way streets for some of the downtown area, as it would only confuse more the people that do not even know how to drive on the streets the way they are now. I say this because the four lane streets (two lanes one way and two lanes the opposite), with some having center left-turn lanes, seem to defeat most of the drivers in Midland.

And, boy-oh-boy, Andrews Highway, with three lanes in each direction with a left-hand turn lane, makes one cringe, especially if one is driving in the middle lane for straight-ahead driving. People change lanes with no thought that you are even there; no signaling, or even if they do signal, they just come on over whether it's clear or not. Just because you signal gives you no right to crowd me — I have no where to go as other cars are either on my right or left. You can learn more about a person's poise, consideration (or lack of it), and judgement by watching him at the wheel of his car than you can by studying him long hours in his living room.

Mud or water splashing either you or your windshield is another pastime of the inconsiderate driver.

Nowhere in the world are there so many privately owned automobiles as there are in America (and Midland) or such widely practiced bad car manners. It is curious how so many otherwise law-abiding citizens feel they can break traffic laws with impunity.

Oh, by the way, are the traffic lights on Andrews Highway set for any particular speed? If they are, there are no posted signs. Also, one is evidently not supposed to want to get across Andrews Highway at a traffic signal without a three or four-minute wait — the signals seem to be "green" only for travel on Andrews Highway.

Workable plan

To The Editor:
Linnie Donnelly's criticism of my plan to revise school grouping and solve problems caused by declining enrollment may indicate her lack of understanding of the total concept.

Several key points which make my plan workable were omitted from Mrs. Donnelly's letter.

Of the approximate 5,000 students expected next year in grades 9 through 12, some 1,350 are vocational whose work-study programs place them on campus only half a day. By rescheduling these students, i.e., half attend class in the morning and half in the afternoon, our two high schools will accommodate the expected students. This apparent problem will diminish as high school enrollment continues to decline.

The problem of limited elective courses will be alleviated by eliminating "senior privilege" and keeping seniors on campus for a full school day. This makes maximum use of facilities and staff, and broadens the academic base of our seniors who otherwise would graduate with only the minimum required credits. Also, the continuity provided with ninth-graders in the high schools would improve elective programs in future years.

The middle grades, six through eight, would of course be bused, as they are now, to achieve the proper racial mix. It shouldn't present any severe problem to move the sixth-grade from one desegregated building to another, and the lower grades structure would thus be: K through three using the Carver Center; grades four through five would continue to be clustered, and grades six through eight would form an age group which is a basic building block in an academically strong public school system.

The problems of declining enrollment are real and will continue to grow. My proposal offers a solution with many resulting benefits and deserves thoughtful consideration. However, it must be viewed in its entirety and not with several key points omitted.

Note of thanks

To The Editor:
As chairman of publicity for the Lee High School Bandolier group, which is a support group for the Rebel Band, I would like to express my appreciation to the news media in our city for publicizing band activities and fund-raising projects. Without this advertising our projects could not be as successful as they have been this year.

Also, I would like to thank The Reporter-Telegram and the Midland Chamber of Commerce for hiring our Bandolier group to handle the VIP pecan tree sale in January. Over 40 band parents spent many hours in a two weekend period selling and loading these trees for area citizens. I am pleased they were willing to handle this sale as a benefit to the community.

The funds which were earned by our group from this project will be used for summer band camp scholarships for the Lee High Band students.

Textbook time

To The Editor:
When you take the time to ask your child to look at his/her textbooks and you find something that you object to, you just might feel that you are responsible because you did not get involved in reviewing the textbooks they use in school. Now is the time to find out about next year's textbooks that will be proposed for adoption.

You do not need to be specifically trained, skilled or educated in order to review textbooks, but you do need to be prepared and you must do your homework. The time to protest books is before they are adopted and purchased. Find out what the state's adoption procedure is. Obtain copies of the texts to be offered. You must read every line to detect damaging content. For more information contact the Mel Gablers, Educational Research Analysts, P.O. Box 7518, Longview, Texas, 75602.

If you want to have another right to complain what is taught your children, you must get involved on the ground floor in reviewing textbooks, and that time is now. Thank you from me and our next generation of Americans. If you care now, they will have a reason to care later.

Here are a few famous statements that were omitted from eighth-grade American History texts offered in Texas in 1978: Nathan Hale's "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country;" Captain James Lawrence's "Don't give up the ship;" John Paul Jones' "I have not yet begun to fight," and Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty, or give me death."

Storm warning

To The Editor:
On March 7, Gov. William P. Clements Jr. designated the week of March 11 to 17 as "Severe Weather Awareness Week" by official memorandum. In the final words of the memorandum, appropriate recognition was urged.

I, for one, am very concerned because to my knowledge the governor's proclamation received no attention whatsoever from Midland city officials, the news media or agencies or organizations responsible for the transportation, care or treatment of the injured.

Although the governor's proclamation was intended to increase public awareness of all types of severe weather, I feel that Midland residents are more concerned about the danger and destruction that a tornado imposes upon their city than any other type of severe weather. In this respect, I submit that Midland definitely does not have an adequate tornado warning system.

What Midland residents have to depend on is a sighting of a tornado or funnel cloud and sufficient time to broadcast the warning on radio and television. It is obvious to most that this method cannot warn a sufficient number of people as we do not all watch television or listen to a radio 24 hours a day.

The watches and warnings which the television stations cause to be seen on our screens and the occasional explanations which go across the bottom of the screen are fine for increasing the public awareness that there is a possibility of severe weather and maybe even tornadoes. A tone or series of tones prior to the bulletin would be very helpful in getting one's attention if he or she is out of the room.

In addition, I sincerely urge city officials and other interested citizens to work toward the approval, purchase and installation of civil defense sirens to be located at strategic points throughout the city. I feel that the civil defense director is responsible for insuring that the citizens of Midland are adequately warned of all eminent disasters, and also for coordinating disaster relief programs and emergency medical assistance in the event such disaster occurs.

I feel that the citizens of Midland deserve an adequate audible tornado warning system so that they can sleep knowing that they will be awakened if danger is eminent and believe that the necessary action should be taken to obtain it.

POSITIVE THINKING

'Magic principles' reap success

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Is it possible to get on top of worry, depression and other negative emotions? Some have found that it is. A way that has proved successful for many is the use of 12 magic principles, magic because of the amazing way they work.

These 12 dynamic principles were first compiled by psychiatrist Dr. Smeily Blanton. I have passed these along to many defeated people who learned to eliminate defeat from victorious living through their application. I am sure they can produce results for anyone who really tries them.

It is possible to do little more than suggest these principles in the limited space of this column, but even a fragmentary statement will give you the general idea. Their proper use can help you gain freedom from those deadly destroyers, the negative emotions.

1. Think health, talk health, act health and you will go a long way toward being healthy — provided, of course, you observe the common laws of body control.
2. Be an actor, acting love instead of hate. What you act tends to become fact.
3. Shift your attention deliberately from the thing you are worrying about. The mind can only occupy itself with the object of its attention. So give attention to positive attitudes not to worry.

The second trilogy of principles continues:
4. Cultivate opposites. If you are fearful cultivate courage. If you are weak cultivate strength. If gloomy cultivate joy. Act "as if" and you tend to become that — the opposite of what you are.

5. Rationalize your worries, hates, jealousies. Put them on the dissecting table; ruthlessly take them apart. Usually you'll find there is very little substance to them.
6. Get a sense of the perspective of time and distance. How little great worries seem, how unimportant resentments, in the years after.

The next three principles are also vital ones:
7. Cultivate optimism. Always look on the bright side. Keep the mouth lines up. Smile and be happy. William James claimed that we are happy because we smile rather than smile because we are happy. In other words, the smile comes first. Well, maybe so, but it's still a fact that happiness puts a smile on the lips. Cultivate optimism and you are likely to develop a happy state of life.

8. Don't talk trouble. It only activates more of it. Talk life up, not down. Talking always tends to create for it activates the immense power of thought. Don't practice negative auto-suggestion by the use of destructive words. Remember Emerson's warning that a word is alive. It can be repeated use either create or destroy.

9. Develop ego-centric as well as ego-centric interests. Forget yourself, lose yourself in the big, exciting world. One of the greatest of all laws is that he who forgets himself really finds himself. When you get outside your little constrictive self-world you grow bigger in the larger world.
And the final three principles:
10. Superimpose the positive on the negative. When a negative thought comes along practice canceling it with positive thought and affirmation. Do this enough and you will become positive in your attitudes.

11. Practice strong affirmations like: "Life is good." "I believe." "People are wonderful." "God loves me." Such affirmations lift you into the area of power. Affirmations tend to reproduce in kind.
12. Assert and dwell on your divine origin. Say to yourself every day, especially when things get dark and trouble stares you in the face. "I am a child of God." Doing this will help you realize that whatever comes you have Someone watching over you and helping you.

Alaska pipeline tops list of 'war crimes'

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Ever since President Carter said that our energy crisis was the moral equivalent of war, I have believed we should have war crime trials for people who contributed to screwing up what little hope we had of not being so dependent on the Middle East.

High on my list of Energy War Criminals are the people who designed the Alaska pipeline so it would point directly toward Japan. After spending $7 billion constructing what was publicized as the eighth wonder of the world, these brilliant engineers, scientists and government bureaucrats have now discovered it is cheaper and more practical to send our Alaska oil to the Far East than to the United States.

Rather than admit they made a mistake, the oil consortium is lobbying to get permission to sell our Alaskan oil to Japan, and is suggesting that we buy Japanese oil supplies from the Middle East to make up the difference. At the moment the pipeline is running at half-capacity because there is a glut of oil on the West Coast, and to deliver it to the refineries on the East Coast the tankers have to go through the Panama Canal, to get the oil to where it is needed.

The main problem with finding Energy War Criminals is that no one will admit responsibility for selecting the route over which the pipeline was eventually built.

One engineer said, "It isn't my fault. I was only following orders."
"The oil companies all decided they wanted the pipeline to go to the coast of Alaska. I would have been shot if I hadn't built it where they wanted it."

The heads of the oil companies, of course, claim they're innocent. "We're small potatoes just doing our jobs. The State Department couldn't negotiate a treaty with Canada to put the pipeline on its territory, so we had no choice but to build it where it is. The environmentalists wouldn't let us bring the oil into California for refining so we had no choice but to ship it through the Panama Canal. We still could have delivered the Alaskan oil at a cheaper price, but they wouldn't let our supertankers go through the Panama locks."

A retired official of the Panama Canal said, "We wouldn't let the supertankers through because they couldn't get through."

I went to the pipeline people, and related to them what the former official said about the supertankers and was told, "That's exactly what he would say. But why couldn't they have widened the canal?"

No one at the State Department would admit having had anything to do with the Alaskan pipeline, and I was referred to the Department of Energy which refused to take responsibility because the agency did not exist at the time the pipeline was built.

Wall Streeters remain gloomy

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the stock market has borne up well in recent weeks, Wall Streeters remain uniformly gloomy about what most of them consider the economy's No. 1 problem — inflation.

The government is due to report this coming Friday on the consumer price index for February, and analysts see little chance that the figures will show any marked improvement. As the Merrill Lynch Market Letter summed up the situation: "Prices advanced 0.9 percent in January, 10.8 percent in an annual rate, in a series of broad-based gains led by food. The near-term outlook for smaller increases is not good."

The Washington Analysis Corp., a subsidiary of the brokerage firm of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields, recently estimated that the consumer price index will show a rise of 1.0 or 1.1 percent for February, with food and energy prices contributing heavily. "The CPI for March and April should show only slightly smaller 0.9 percent increases," the firm added.

For the first half of the year, Washington Analysis is projecting a rise at a 10.5-11 percent annual rate, followed by a slight easing to a 7.5-8.5 percent rate in the second half.

THAT WOULD add up to a net increase for all of 1979 of 9.5 percent, the firm figures.

Similar forecasts abound in the financial community. And stock market investors seem lately to have been taking them more in a mood of resignation than dismay.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 9.96 to a six-week high of 852.82 in the past week, after taking a 27.11-point jump the week before.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index gained .74 to 36.55, and the American Stock Exchange market value index jumped 6.11 to 172.77.

Big Board volume averaged 28.54 million shares a day, against 28.90 million the week before.

As the steady stream of adverse inflation news continues, the debate over its causes and the best possible ways to fight it shows no sign of dying down.

REPORTS SURFACED late in the past week that new anti-inflation measures were being considered by President Carter. His current program of wage-price guidelines has predictably met with a lot of criticism from many conservatively inclined Wall Streeters.

"High prices for petroleum products and for beef are not causes of inflation, regardless of what the administration people say," argued Heinz H. Biel at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc.

"Free market forces would take care of this quickly by reducing the use of oil, gas or meat, or, if that is not feasible, by curtailing spending on other items."

"HOWEVER, IF WE 'manufacture' the money in order to be able to consume as much of these items as before without reducing the consumption of other necessities or luxuries, we will have inflation regardless of guidelines and other gimmicks."

"Since there is no reason to expect that we will change our ways, continuation of a high inflation rate remains a certainty," Biel maintained.

E. Wayne Nordberg, chairman of the investment policy committee at Prescott, Ball & Turben, reached a similarly dismal conclusion: "What we have today in the United States is an economy operating at close to full capacity...with, in essence, a chronic $40 billion full employment budget deficit."

"Therefore structural price inflation and interest rates cannot be reduced."

Until the last few days, the subject of inflation had actually been getting less attention than usual in market commentaries, as Wall Street was preoccupied by broad international issues raised by the upheaval in Iran and the border fighting between China and Vietnam.

BERGLAND SAID the truth, as he sees it, is "we don't now have a workable policy on the structure of agriculture."

To the extent such a policy is talked about, he said, "it's focus is always on the number of farms" and not on the structure of farms — what they are and who operates them.

"With the exception of a few large corporations, every farmer claims to be a family farmer," Bergland said.

One of Bergland's associates said the secretary shares a view of some students of agriculture that the threat to family farming is not so much from big corporations — which often get the most publicity — but from other family farmers who want more land.

In his speech, Bergland did not focus on big corporations and talked mostly about large farmers and smaller farmers. The 200,000 largest farms — mostly family operations — produce nearly two-thirds of all agricultural products, he said.

The remaining farms, about 2.5 million units, produce the rest.

These are of the most concern to Bergland.

Since modern federal programs began in the early 1930s, they have been production oriented. That is, subsidies and other benefits are based upon how many bushels, bales and pounds a farmer produces.

Thus, a farmer who has more land and produces more wheat than his neighbor stands to get larger federal benefits.

"I see the benefits of many of our farm programs going not to improve the incomes of those rural families needing help but contributing instead to higher and higher land prices," Bergland said.

If government target prices used to compute federal payments when market prices falter are increased drastically — as some farm groups want — it would "accelerate the trend, resulting in even fewer farms owning even more of the land and controlling even more of the production," he said.

Government reports prices going up fast

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Government reports indicate prices are rising at their fastest pace in 4½ years and the amount workers have to spend, after inflation, is declining.

Still, the consumer buying boom remains strong.

The Conference Board, a business-funded research group, reported this past week that its February survey of consumers showed a 22 percent increase from the previous month in an index of buying plans for cars, homes, appliances or other major purchases in the next six months.

Levels of consumer debt also remain at high levels.

The reason, many economists think, is that consumers have become used to inflation. Instead of scaring off buyers, rapid increases in prices encourage them to buy now to beat price increases later — and borrow more to do so. That in turn helps fuel further inflation.

"The strong February buying figures indicate that the urge to buy now to avoid paying higher prices later is still pronounced and prevalent," said Fabian Linden, director of the Conference Board survey.

BUT LINDEN argues that continued "hedge-buying" not only fuels inflation but represents a borrowing from future sales.

"All this suggests that when the now widely anticipated business slowdown arrives, the decline may be somewhat greater than is generally expected," he said in releasing the latest results of the survey of 5,000 families.

The government reported this past week that consumer prices jumped 1.2 percent from January to February, or at an annual rate of about 15 percent if that rise continued for 12 months. That was the biggest inflation rise since a 1.2 percent jump in September 1974.

For the last 12 months, including February, prices have increased nearly 10 percent. But in the same period, largely because of inflation, the government said workers' spendable income declined 1.2 percent.

In the face of that, consumers have shown a willingness to take on more debt. And, if inflation expectations are a true indication, they may continue to do so as long as they are able.

An Associated Press-NBC survey of 1,600 people this past week found that an overwhelming 72 percent of those polled expected inflation to worsen over the next year. Only five percent expected improvement.

CONSUMER CREDIT rose 16 percent to a record $1.2 trillion by the end of 1978, representing 17.5 percent of total personal disposable income.

Whether there is a danger in that may depend on several factors.

"To the extent that people go deeper and deeper into debt and have less and less of a nest egg, at a time when there is universal agreement that the economy is slowing down, this does not bode well for the future," says Irwin L. Kellner, economist at Manufacturers Hanover. But he says that some slowing in "speculative" buying could occur if either inflation slows or the unemployment rate worsens.

Citibank, in a separate report, concludes however that "the debt position of the consumer sector gives no cause for alarm."

Citibank notes several reasons behind the willingness of consumers to take on increasingly high levels of debt now to finance purchases. One is the trend in recent years towards two-income households where both spouses work, enabling them to carry more debt. And banks have tended to extend the length of payments for auto and some other consumer loans to 48 or even 60 months, which leads to a lower monthly payment.

But much also is attributed to an inflation psychology, where consumers perceive that borrowing now means paying later in inflation-shrunk dollars.

"BASED ON THE experience of past recessions, the repayment behavior of all but the most marginally solvent borrowers should result in a marked slowing of credit growth and possible net liquidation in the amount of credit outstanding. In the meantime, the debt position of the consumer sector gives no cause for alarm," says Citibank.

In other business developments this past week:

—Commerce Department figures showed that corporate profits in the fourth quarter of 1978, which totaled $225.3 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, were up 9.6 percent from the third quarter and were 26.4 percent higher than the fourth quarter of 1977.

The report prompted a series of exchanges among business, labor and government leaders on whether profits were too high.

Alfred Kahn, the administration's chief inflation fighter, said large increases in corporate profits would strengthen "the widespread belief" that business isn't doing its part to fight inflation. But the Chamber of Commerce said profits weren't excessive and business shouldn't be made the scapegoat for inflation.

—THE ON-AGAIN, off-again plan by Standard Oil Co. of Ohio to build a California-to-Texas pipeline appears to be on again. Sohio canceled the $1 billion pipeline project March 13, claiming problems with getting the necessary government environmental clearances. But amid heated criticism from state and federal officials, Sohio reversed itself Wednesday, re-submitting applications for California air-quality permits, with the caveat that it would again drop its plans if approval dragged on for several more months.

—The trucking industry and the Teamster's union remained far apart as contract talks proceeded toward an April 1 strike deadline. The Carter administration has a crucial stake in the settlement with the nation's largest single union, because it could serve as a guide for other labor agreements. The union was reportedly demanding wage increases more than double the amount the Carter guidelines would allow. Meanwhile, negotiators for the trucking industry offered an 8.5 percent wage hike, over three years, and cost-of-living increases. A spokesman said that was "well within" the guidelines.

Building permits took a sharp jump last week as more than $4 million worth of valued new property or additions was reported in the Building Permits and Inspections Department.

Total for the week was $4,745,705, pushing the year's total to $17,801,687.85.

The largest permit was taken out by First National Bank for a $3,803,000 addition to its building at 303 W. Wall St. Plans call for adding office space and a cafe to the 24th floor.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. took out a permit to construct a $408,000 building at Avenue D and Airport Drive at Air Terminal. This building will store equipment for the firm.

Vector Corp. was issued a permit to construct a $14,700 sporting goods store at 3205 W. Cuthbert Ave. It should have 3,150 square feet of space.

T. June Melton and Associates took out a permit to build a temporary construction office at 3214 Mark Lane at a cost of $10,000.

Other commercial permits went to Church's Fried Chicken, 1400 N. Big Spring St., for a new sign, $2,000; U-Haul Rentals, 2803 W. Wall St., $2,000 in alterations, and Solomon Buntun, 1511 E. Front Ave., $1,000 in alterations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the National Association of Wheat Growers says the Carter administration's grain policy is "an insidious plan" that will lead to government-owned reserves and keep prices low at the expense of farmers.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced Wednesday that no changes will be made in 1979 acreage set-aside programs for wheat and feed grains from what had been announced.

Also, he said, no more 1978 wheat and corn will be admitted into the reserve program under which farmers can store grain for up to three years or until prices rise enough to trigger their release.

However, Bergland said, farmers will be allowed to extend their government loans on 1978-crop wheat an additional six months so that — if Congress soon approves — farmers can store grain in a special International Emergency Wheat Reserve that will be controlled by the government.

Winston Wilson, president of the Wheat Growers, said Friday that Bergland's "new direction" for farm programs was hatched by administration inflation advisers and represents "their ill-conceived, short-range objectives."

The association leader, a wheat farmer from Quanah, Texas, said that "supply management through use of the farmer-held reserve has been the cornerstone of Carter administration policy, but this concept has now been scrapped."

Bergland also had made it clear that "the administration will not accept any increases in commodity price supports or target prices" at this time, a move wheat growers and others have been advocating as a way to entice more farmers into the acreage set-aside program and thus curb production more effectively.

Wilson, in a statement issued by the association's office here, said the six-month extension in the wheat loan period means that the loans will come due "in the midst of harvest when prices will already be under heavy pressure."

Normally, the loans — which are made available to farmers who use their crop as collateral — mature in nine months. At that time, the farmer has a choice of paying back the government and selling the grain on the market or letting USDA have it as settlement of the loan.

Wilson said Bergland's intention to put the international reserve under government control is "planned economic captivity which could depress prices for a generation" by hanging over the free market.

"We have over a billion bushels of wheat we can't sell at home or abroad and we don't want another layer of wheat reserves which could be used to beat down prices when market conditions improve," Wilson said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest government figures illustrate again why consumers are seeing higher meat prices. Production is down sharply from a year ago.

In February, according to a monthly report by the Agriculture Department, total commercial production of red meat was 2.76 billion pounds. That was down 9 percent from 3.28 billion pounds in the same month a year earlier.

All categories of meat produced by slaughter plants were down, the report said.

Beef production, at 1.7 billion pounds, was down 13 percent. Cattle slaughtered totaled 2.74 million head, a 16 percent decline, but their average live weights were up 22 pounds to 1,052 pounds each.

Veal output dropped 37 percent from a year ago to 35 million pounds. Slaughter included about 240,000 head, down 38 percent, while average weights increased one pound to 244 pounds per animal.

Pork production totaled slightly more than one billion pounds in February, down 1 percent from a year earlier. The 5.95 million head slaughtered were down 2 percent, while average live weights rose four pounds to 237 pounds.

Lamb and mutton production declined 4 percent to 22 million pounds and included 364,000 head slaughtered, down 9 percent. Their average weights, at 117 pounds, were up four pounds.

Department experts say overall beef output will decline through 1979 but that farmers have indicated they are stepping up hog production significantly so that more pork will begin reaching the market soon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team representing the cotton industry and the Agriculture Department will spend the next two weeks in the Far East to promote sales of U.S. cotton.

Members of the team are: John E. Lawrence, Boston, and Peter Hirschfeld, Dallas, representing the American Cotton Shippers Association; Stanley Willis, Arvin, Calif., the producer steering committee of the National Cotton Council; Tom Akers Jr., Bakersfield, Calif., AMTOC, a national association of cotton cooperatives; Carl C. Campbell, Washington, Cotton Council International; and Joseph H. Stevenson of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service.

The team, which is scheduled to arrive in Japan on March 25, will be in the Far East through April 7. Other countries to be visited include South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Collectively, those nations imported more than 3.3 million bales of U.S. cotton worth about $1 billion last year.

Wage law proposal sparks confrontation

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Repeal of the prevailing wage law — as proposed in legislation by Rep. Lee Jackson, Dallas — has sparked the predictable confrontation between contractors and organized labor.

HB 1098 would repeal the existing law requiring local governments to determine — and contractors to pay — the "prevailing wage" paid construction workers in an area for public construction projects.

Jackson says the law hasn't been administered as originally envisioned when it was passed during the Depression Era (when it was intended to prevent non-local contractors from using imported, lower-paid workers from under-bidding local contractors).

Testimony to the House Employment Practices Committee by Jerry Arterburn, executive director for Associated Builders and Contractors of Greater Houston, supported repeal of the law — and so did that of Pat Bon, general counsel for Associated General Contractors of Texas.

Both questioned why the government would attempt to regulate wage scales for construction work and not for other types of employment.

Opposition came from several union officials, including Jackie St. Clair, executive secretary of Texas Building and Construction Trades Council — who said building standards would suffer.

"Lowering the standards," he added, "will not lower building costs."

The bill has been approved by a subcommittee, and faces a committee vote.

One of the other major business-oriented legislative measures of the current session, self-insurance for worker's compensation (at least for larger employers moved forward, with Employment Practices approving HB 438, by Don Henderson, Houston.

One change in the bill made in the committee was to require self-insurers to participate in assessments for operation of the worker's compensation assigned risk pool — something the insurance industry (which still looks askance at the bill) indicated as one of the original bill's principal shortcomings.

State Board of Insurance members directed the SBI staff to make a recommendation on a proposed home warranty policy filing by City Insurance Co., New York, relating to coverage of "major structural defects" on houses for specified numbers of years.

Part of the difficulty involves whether such coverage should be regulated by the SBI as to rates charged — and if so, just where such coverage would fit into the existing regulatory scheme.

The SBI also is moving on adoption of a revision of its auto liability experience rating plan, with June 1 as a target date, to use only Texas experience in the rating formula used.

In other matters relating to the SBI, it was reported the number of applications to the assigned risk auto plan for the first two months of 1979 are running behind 1978 levels.

Total for the two months was 25,159, compared to 27,339 for the first two months of 1978. February saw 11,900 applications of which 9,171 were renewals.

The State Securities Board reports considerable interest within Texas regarding mortgage-backed revenue bonds being issued by municipalities to finance single-family home construction.

Commissioner Richard D. Latham reports a number of out-of-state cities — including Chicago and Denver — have been offering such bonds, which are exempt from State Securities Board regulation.

Latham says it's likely the bonds may be coming in for more attention from the Internal Revenue Service, since the issues are tax-exempt.

Latham also reports that while there's not been any unusual amount of enforcement activity, securities involving gold and precious stones continue to come in for scrutiny by his agency.

Chrysler strike tentatively settled

DETROIT (AP) — A tentative settlement was reached Saturday between Chrysler Corp. and 1,000 drivers and mechanics who had struck the automaker on March 15.

Members of United Auto Workers Local 412 will vote on the settlement today, UAW officials said. If it is ratified, the workers will be back on the job Monday morning.

The dispute was over work assignments at Chrysler's engineering division at the company's headquarter complex in Highland Park, an industrial Detroit suburb.

The tentative agreement came after an all-night bargaining session, said UAW spokesman Jerry Dale.

A Chrysler spokesman, who asked anonymity, said operations at the engineering division were not disrupted by the walkout.

Arthur Avnon

Avnon to speak to Downtown Lions

Arthur Avnon, vice consul, Consulate General of Israel, Houston, will be the speaker Wednesday noon at the meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

Avnon was born in Bucharest, Rumania, and immigrated to Israel with his parents at the age of four.

He received his education at Kfar-Saba, served in the Israel Defense Forces for two and a half years as an artillery crew commander, then attended the Hebrew University where he received a degree in International Affairs.

Avnon worked for three years at the Institute for Applied Social Research in Jerusalem. He joined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1972 and later was appointed to the desk in charge of Western European Affairs.

He was appointed vice consul at the Consulate General of Israel in Houston in 1975.

Most Americans see U.S. as powerless

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans now see this country as powerless to influence the course of international affairs, a new Associated Press-NBC News poll has found.

And, the poll revealed, they don't like this situation. They want the United States to exercise its power in the international arena when this country's interests are involved.

The litany of recent events involving U.S. power or a lack of it is long — Iran, Angola and Vietnam can head the list. The oil-producing nations have imposed price hike after price hike. Cuban troops have become a fixture in conflicts around the world. And so on.

This poll finding does not necessarily mean that the public would like to see U.S. intervention in any particular international situation. It shows instead a perception of U.S. powerlessness in general and a desire not to be that way, a desire to have the power to act if necessary.

Fifty-eight percent of those interviewed Monday and Tuesday agreed that, "Recent events have shown that the United States has lost its power to influence events around the world."

Thirty-five percent disagreed with that perception and 7 percent were not sure.

This powerlessness is not what Americans want.

More than two-thirds of the public — 71 percent — said that "the United States should try to influence events in other countries, if the U.S. government thinks our interests are involved."

Twenty-one percent say the United States should not intervene in other countries. Eight percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

This perception of powerlessness permeates the public in interesting ways.

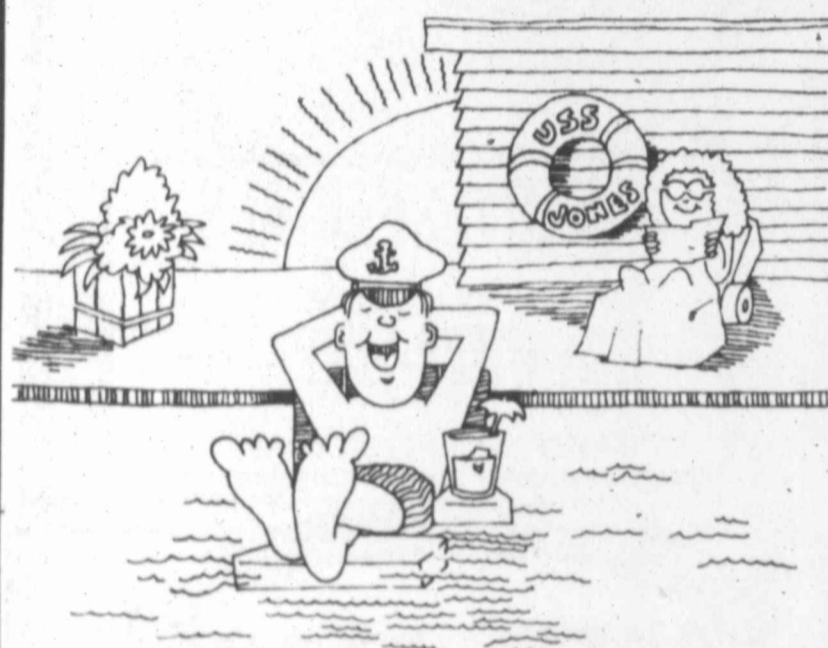

For example, men are more likely than women to say the United States has lost its influence. Men think the United States is now powerless by a 62-33 margin, while the margin among women is a smaller 53-38.

And this perception is related in some ways to American views of other events, like the Middle East.

Those who think the United States is powerless say by a 51-33 edge that Israel will not be able to reach peace agreements with its other neighbors, even after signing a treaty with Egypt. However, those who see the United States as still retaining its clout are optimistic — by a 47-35 margin — that such broader agreements can be reached in the Middle East.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

Dolphins hunt for 'Nessie'

MIAMI (AP) — A naturalist who is training two camera-equipped dolphins to search for the legendary Loch Ness monster says he hopes to locate "Nessie" by mid-summer — unless his animals get overly ambitious. "One of the problems is that dolphins tend to get innovative," said Harold "Rusty" Nielsen. "One of my animals brought me back a live shark (on Friday). We don't really want to capture one of the Loch Ness creatures alive — not yet."

Project officials refused to display the equipment being designed for the search, but it is believed the cameras mounted on the dolphins' backs will be activated by a sonar-like device when a large object is approached.

The project is being backed by the Academy of Applied Sciences, a Boston-based organization that has sponsored some of the most ambitious searches of Loch Ness in recent years.

He said two 500-pound, female dolphins are being trained to seek out sharks and sea turtles as preparation for this summer's search in the chilly, land-locked waters of Scotland's Loch Ness.

The annual event presents a wide variety of art items as well as many craft specialties created by persons in all parts of the state, and from such neighboring states as Oklahoma and New Mexico. Back for the second, third or fourth year are numerous artists and craftspeople, who will be joined by many other talented artists and artisans showing their work here for the first time.

Arts festival set

ODESSA — Fiesta del Arte, Odessa's spring arts and crafts festival, will be held Saturday and Sunday in Ector County Coliseum, 42nd Street and Andrews Highway.

The annual show is sponsored jointly by the Fiesta del Arte Guild and the Odessa Rehabilitation Center, with proceeds from the show going equally to the rehabilitation organization's budget and to a fund to help build an art museum in Odessa.

The show will open Saturday morning and continue all that day, then will reopen Sunday noon and run until late afternoon. A nominal fee is charged for admission to the show.

Business vandalized

About $1,458 in damage to a business on the Rankin Highway was reported Friday to the Midland County Sheriff's Department.

Bill Wells of 3122 Thomas St. told deputies someone caused the damage at H&W Tool Co., 7900 Rankin Highway.

A car window and flood lights were shot out, a water hose cut up, some parts taken from an old car and a number of chickens let out of a pen, he told deputies.

Man charged in 3 Conrail murders

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A former railroad worker was in jail today following arraignment on three counts of murder in the New Year's Eve slaying of three Conrail employ-

Rudy Bladel, 45, of Elkhart, Ind., was arraigned Friday in District Court here and a plea of innocent was entered on his behalf. A preliminary hearing was set for April 3.

Boy Scouts from the Chaparral District will be conducting their Exposition Saturday in the Midland County Exhibit Building from 1 to 5 p.m. The purpose of the event is to promote scouting. Troop 85 members Dean Preston, left, and Dodd Griffith will be demonstrating gun safety. (Staff Photo)

Death sentence for Bhutto upheld by Supreme Court

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The Pakistan Supreme Court on Saturday unanimously upheld the death sentence against ousted Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. But the court recommended clemency, thereby leaving him one last hope of escaping the gallows.

The ruling threw Bhutto's fate into the hands of the man who toppled him from power in 1977, President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq.

Gen. Zia, who has refused clemency to almost 400 condemned murderers in his 20 months in power, had no immediate public comment on the decision. He said previously he would support the high court's findings, but it was unclear what influence the clemency recommendation would have.

Bhutto, convicted of murder conspiracy, has said he will not ask for mercy because it would be an admission of guilt, and he has forbidden his family from doing so.

Dozens of world leaders, including President Carter, Pope John Paul II and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, have asked Zia to spare the 51-year-old Bhutto's life. But a formal application for executive clemency must be made, something any Pakistani citizen can do.

But after the court recommended clemency Saturday, his lawyer, Yahya Bakhtiar, concluded: "The death sentence is out. I feel re-

Bosox, Angels post exhibition victories

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The Boston Red Sox scored twice in the eighth inning off rookie Randy Scarbery and twice in the ninth off veteran Lerrin LaGrow to defeat the Chicago White Sox 7-6 Saturday.

Lansford hit a home run in the fifth when California added three runs. The Angels got three more in the sixth, three in the seventh and four in the ninth.

Three Boston singles and Gary Hancock's sacrifice fly provided Boston's margin of victory.

The Giants sent eight players to their Phoenix farm club. They included pitcher Bill Bordley, the highly rated left-hander who led the University of Southern California to an NCAA title last year.

The Red Sox, who also got a two-run homer from Butch Hobson in the second inning, had to overcome a five-run, fifth-inning attack by the White Sox off rookie Chuck Rataj.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Tony Armas hit his third home run of the baseball exhibition season, a two-run shot in the second inning, as the Oakland A's beat the Seattle Mariners 5-2 Saturday.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Carney Lansford and Tom Donohue had three hits and four runs batted in apiece Saturday, leading the California Angels to a 15-1 exhibition victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Armas, the A's center fielder, has driven in 10 runs so far in Cactus League play. The A's 8-5 record is the best in the Cactus League.

Repman posts lone Pack win

BIG SPRING — The Midland High girls' track team didn't fare too well here Saturday in the Big Spring Invitational Track Meet.

The Pack scored only 16 points, far below what they have been doing this year.

Donna Repman was the only winner with a 5:41.6 in the mile, and easy victory but not her best time.

Jana Trolinder was fifth in the 440 with a 1:04.9 and what has been a strong mile relay team this year with no finish below second was fifth here with a 4:25.4.

Plan O would carry impact on sports programs

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Plan O, a proposal to consolidate Midland's two high schools, has never been pushed as an athletic question, but it would have a considerable impact on most aspects of the athletic program.

In fact, with or without Plan O, there are some problem areas in the high school athletic program. Midland voters will go to the polls April 7 to voice their opinion on Plan O in a non-binding referendum.

That vote ultimately could decide which road Midland's overall athletic program will take in the future.

Just as in the academic community, those involved with athletics are very much concerned with projected declining enrollments at both Midland High and Midland Lee.

Some say Midland schools will have a hard time being competitive in sports if the projections hold their course. Others are saying that athletic tradition in Midland is strong, and that decreased enrollments will not affect athletic excellence. These are interesting claims — ones that need looking into.

High had an enrollment of 1,936 students while Midland Lee had 1,856 for a city-wide total of 3,792 students. If the projections are correct, Midland High will hit a low of 1,527 students and Lee a low of 1,552 in 1984 or a combined total of 3,079. There will be a gradual decline in 1985, but there will not be 3,800 high school students again until 1992.

During this period of decline, the two schools will have to compete in District 5-4A, which is considered across the state as one of the toughest districts to compete in year after year. The drastic declining enrollments naturally have Midland athletic officials worried.

One of the major controversies in the area of athletics concerns how many students it takes to successfully compete in the AAAA classification, and especially in 5-4A?

Sam Cox, Midland's high school athletic director, said recently: "It really depends on how one defines success. If we are speaking of consistently competing at a championship level, then 2,000 or more students are needed. Generally speaking, the smaller schools in a given division are seldom found wearing district crowns.

"There are exceptions to this, of course, but one only needs to check enrollments of successful schools around the state to bear out this contention. A 1,800 enrollment would generally represent a break-even situation in AAAA most years, particularly in most team activities, although it might be possible to compete on a championship level periodically.

"AS ENROLLMENTS decline below this point, win-loss records are proportionately affected. One needs only to recall the early 1960s when Lee first opened and the Midland High student body was divided. The enrollments were relatively small and won-loss records reflected this for a time until growth began to provide opportunities for improvement. There were exceptions such as the Midland High basketball teams. There was an unusual wealth of material for this particular activity during those years, however."

Many opponents of Plan O also fear a decrease in athletic participation with only one high school. And it is difficult to make a blanket statement regarding participation in all athletic activities at all three grade levels involved.

Under Plan O, participation at the sophomore and junior levels would either be maintained or would increase in most activities. There would be some scheduling difficulties initially in certain activities, especially on the sophomore levels, but this eventually would be overcome.

Senior students largely would comprise the varsity, but any sophomore or junior with the capability also would be included. Junior and varsity participation obviously would increase. Varsity participation would decrease were it not for the fact that, with increased numbers, no longer would it be necessary for a youngster to play both offense and defense.

With 180 or so students now turning out for football in the city, decreasing enrollments also would shrink that number. There are fears that the turn-out might drop to around 70 or 80 at each school, which would be on a par with Big Spring. There simply will be fewer and fewer students to compete.

Under Plan O, there would be two sophomore teams playing, logically enough, sophomore schedules instead of a junior varsity schedule. The juniors would play a junior varsity schedule.

Senior students largely would comprise the varsity, but any sophomore or junior with the capability also would be included. Junior and varsity participation obviously would increase. Varsity participation would decrease were it not for the fact that, with increased numbers, no longer would it be necessary for a youngster to play both offense and defense.

With 180 or so students now turning out for football in the city, decreasing enrollments also would shrink that number. There are fears that the turn-out might drop to around 70 or 80 at each school, which would be on a par with Big Spring. There simply will be fewer and fewer students to compete.

NUMBER DO SEEM to play a big part in the success of team sports such as football. In last year's AAAA playoffs, 18 of the 32 schools (56 percent) had enrollments of 2,000 or more. Only three were below the 1,600 level — Tyler John Tyler, Plainview and Houston Yates. Plainview and Yates were in the playoffs for the first time in the schools' history. Plainview also lost only two games all year, and both losses were to 5-4A teams — Lee and Permian.

Obviously, participation would decrease at the varsity level in sports such as basketball, golf and tennis. Decreased enrollments, however, would solve some of the problems with fewer kids to participate. In golf and tennis, sophomore level competition would be added.

Currently, sophomores have to compete with juniors and seniors for the opportunity to participate. Basketball already has a sophomore and JV schedules, and could be the sport hardest hit by Plan O.

However, coaches would have more quality players to use during the course of the game, and the actual number of players playing would remain about the same.

According to Cox, athletic costs would remain approximately the same under Plan O, unlike the ac-

Tracy Austin slams a return on way to victory over Dianne Fromholtz.

Martina, Tracy clash in finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova will play tough little Tracy Austin in Sunday's final of the $275,000 championship of the winter tennis tour.

Navratilova took just 50 minutes to oust Britain's Sue Barker 6-1, 6-3 Saturday, and Austin, who had knocked down Chris Evert two night before, beat Australian Dianne Fromholtz in the semifinals 7-5, 6-2.

Spectacular Bid in runaway

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Young Ronnie Franklin kept Spectacular Bid on the outside until he moved into the lead around the first turn, then let the Kentucky Derby favorite run away from the field for a record 14-length victory Saturday in the $149,000 Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah.

Strike the Main was second and Sir Ivor Again edged King Celebrity for third. Spectacular Bid covered the 1 1/4 mile in 1:48.5, two seconds slower than the track record. His victory was the longest in Flamingo History. Honest Pleasure had the previous record with an 11-length victory in 1976.

Tanner advances to finals

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Roscoe Tanner, the No. 2 seed, defeated unseeded Ferdi Taygan 6-1, 6-2 Saturday to advance to the finals of the $175,000 New Orleans Tennis Festival against the winner of a later semifinal match between Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe.

In a doubles semifinal Saturday, No. 2 seeds Bob Lutz and Stan Smith defeated unranked brothers Tom and Tim Gullikson 6-4, 6-2.

Sugar Ray flattens Gonzales

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard used two lightning rights to the jaw to dispose of Daniel Gonzales of Argentina in 2 minutes and 3 seconds of the first round in a nationally televised welterweight bout Saturday.

The 22-year old Leonard remained unbeaten in 20 pro fights, scoring his 14th knockout almost before the crowd of 9,000 in the Tucson Community Center was settled down for the scheduled 10 rounder.

WTC, OC share title in golf

BORGER — Western Texas College and Odessa College Saturday tied for the team championship of the Frank Phillips College Tournament here. But more importantly, Midland College, with a fourth place finish, leads the conference standings.

Western and OC each shot 290 while New Mexico Junior College was third with 293 and the Chaparrals had 300. Frank Phillips College was fifth with 337 and New Mexico Military Institute was sixth with 349.

The individual medalist was Britt Lindsey of Western Texas with 69. Midland College was led by Tim O'Connor with 72 and other Chap scores were Alan Coe, 73, Kelly Eng 74, Bert Wimberly and Mike Yell, both 77, and Denny O'Connor 78.

MC has 19 points to top the conference, although Odessa is right on their tail with 18 1/2. NMJC is third with 16 1/2 followed by Western Texas with 16, NMMI with seven and FPC with five.

The Chaps will play in the Abilene Intercollegiate Tournament this Monday and Tuesday.

Diablos' Moose switches sports

Sports in short takes... El Paso Diablos' manager Moose Stubing spent the off season officiating college basketball games, 43 of them, mostly in the WAC, plus the Louisville-Southern Alabama NCAA playoff at Dallas. "It's a great way to stay in shape, but it's difficult to make the adjustment back to baseball," he says.

TEDE BATTERS
BATTLE SCENE

Stubing's Diablos won the Texas League West, knocking Midland out of the running in the process, by winning 11 straight at the tailend of the season. Stubing, in training with the California Angels' farm clubs at Holtville, Calif., feels this year the Diablos will be a different type club. Not only will El Paso lose its entire infield, but says Moose, "I imagine we'll have to really fight for the runs this year instead of powering them in like last year. We'll have to run more because we won't have a big hitter like Bob Clark (31 homers, 111 rbis), who will be moved up for sure..."

Incidentally, the Lenny Wirtz who officiated the SWC championship game between Arkansas-Texas and the Indiana State-DePaul game Saturday is the same one who once headed the LPGA tour back in the days when it made an annual stop in Midland for the Tall City Open.

Sale of Birds gets preliminary approval

BASEBALL—A $2.5 million bill said by Baltimore legislators to be a necessary ingredient for the proposed sale of the Baltimore Orioles has received preliminary approval in the House of Delegates. The legislation endorsed would permit Baltimore City to use $2.5 million from its tax revenues to cover operating losses for new owners of the team. The action came about an hour before the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to give the city a $1 million grant for improvements to Memorial Stadium, a project which already has cost state taxpayers $1,850,000.

The Detroit Tigers bought third baseman-catcher Ed Putman from the Chicago Cubs on Saturday and sent him to their Triple A Evansville farm of the American Association. Putman, 25, was signed by the Cubs in 1975 from the USC and spent two seasons with the Midland Cubs. Last season he batted .268 with 24 home runs and 81 RBIs batted in for Wichita. 17 games with Chicago, he hit .200 with three RBIs.

BASKETBALL—Western Texas College lost to Three Rivers, Mo., 109-103, in double overtime Friday in the semifinals of the National JUCO tournament at Hutchinson, Kan. Also advancing to the finals was Mercer, N.J., a 69-57 winner over Dixie, Utah.

Old Dominion guard Nancy Lieberman says the key to winning the AIAW national basketball championship 3 p.m. today hinges on how well the top-ranked Lady Monarchs can neutralize Louisiana Tech's intimidating 6-5 center Elinor Griffin while Tech Coach Sonja Hogg says the obstacle to Tech's title bid is 6-5 Inge Nissen, Old Dominion center. "We've got to stop Elinor to win," said Lieberman, a 5-10 junior who scored 15 points Friday night to help Old Dominion post an 87-72 victory over defending champion UCLA. Old Dominion improved its record to 34-1 with the triumph while six-ranked UCLA fell to 24-9. In the other semifinal match, Louisiana Tech, now 34-3, defeated third-ranked Tennessee 102-84.

The 1979 Kodak Women's All-America team, selected by AIAW coaches, includes Cindy Brogdon, Tennessee; Caroly Chason, Valdosta State; Pat Colarusso, Montclair State; Denise Curry, UCLA; Lieberman; Jill Rankin, Wayland Baptist; Susan Taylor, Valdosta State; Rosie Walker, Stephen F. Austin; Frani Washington, Ohio State; and Lynette Woodward, Kansas University.

GOLF—Walter Godfrey shot a 72 for a 211 and a first place tie with Irene Legaspi in the Dunlop Masters tournament Saturday at Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Taiwan's Hsu Chi-sen fired a 67 to take the third round lead from Mike Krantz in the Indian Open at New Delhi Saturday, posting a three-day total of 210 as Krantz slipped two behind with a four-over 76.

SKIING—Norway's Oddvar Braa, World Cup x-country ski champ, won the 15-kilometer in 44 minutes 22.8 seconds at Vaniem, Finland Saturday. Finland's Juha Mieto too second, 20.3 seconds back and Bill Koch, Brattleboro, Vt., was third another 25.9 seconds back.

SINCE PENN'S basketball team was confused with Penn State, which merely dabbles in the sport, one wonders if Indiana State would have been confounded with Indiana if the Hoosiers hadn't had a team outstanding enough to win the NIT. Probably not, since IU is an established national power of some duration.

With the American League adopting a balanced schedule, six games against every opponent, it means inter-division games will take on increased importance. In fact, teams in one division will be playing more inter than intra division games. And how could the Red Sox and Yankees agree to chop off games from their goldmine series?

HOUSTON (AP) — Calvin Murphy pumped in a season-high 38 points, including 26 in the second half, to spur the Houston Rockets to a 120-116 National Basketball Association victory over the Atlanta Hawks Saturday night.

The triumph boosted Houston into second place in the NBA Central Division, one game ahead of the third-place Hawks. The Rockets trail first-place San Antonio by 1 1/2 games. The Rockets never trailed and took their biggest lead of the game, 75-55, early in the third quarter.

Gophers win NCAA hockey

DETROIT (AP) — Neal Broten scored the game-winner early in the third period as the Minnesota Gophers defeated North Dakota 4-3 Saturday night for the university's third NCAA hockey championship.

The Gophers scored three times in the first period and never trailed in the game as they collected their first national title since 1976.

In the consolation game, Ivy League champ Dartmouth routed New Hampshire 7-3 behind two second period power-play goals by Mark Culhane.

Minnesota's opening-period goals were scored against Bill Stankover, a senior who had appeared in just 14 games for the Fighting Sioux this season.

Ellis wins handball

Odessa's Tim Ellis won the 1979 Covington Invitational Racquetball Singles title Saturday at the Central YMCA with a 14-21, 21-1, 11-1 victory over Odessa's Jim Latham in the finals.

Consolation honors went to Odessa's Gary Bittick with a 21-6, 21-4 win over Midland's Kevin King.

Midland's Kyle Covington won the Class B event with a 21-8, 21-13 finals win over Midland's Butch Traeder, and Midland's Pat Owens took the consolation prize with a 21-16, 21-14 win over Odessa's Tony Jackson.

Another Midlander took the Class C title when Jimmy Porter defeated Big Spring's Oscar Flores, 15-21, 21-14, 11-5, in the finals. Bob Rymal won consolation honors with a 21-5, 21-13 victory over Tommy Garth in an all Midland final.

In the Ladies Division, Midland again came out on top. Kathy Eudy defeated Midland's Camilla Porter, 21-19, 21-13, to win the division while Cindy Dale of Midland won the consolation trophy with a 21-1, 13-21, 11-9 victory over Odessa's Debbie Dugan.

Bill Cope is BJ's Mr. Nice Guy—when the chemist's right.

Bill is Midland Region Engineer. When he's sure our cementing and stimulation recommendations are right for the customer's well, Bill is soft-spoken and smiles a lot.

Until he is sure, he can carry a big stick.

Bill has 23 years of engineering experience with BJ-HUGHES and a degree in chemistry that help him understand what is needed. He has formulated cementing and stimulation treatments for wells all over North and West Texas.

During this time, he's seen the scientific and technical side of BJ's business leap squarely into the computer age, with a terminology that bears little resemblance to that used when he began.

We like to keep Bill Cope smiling. He's the kind of person who keeps BJ's service out front.

Plan O would carry impact on prep sports

demically side of the question, which has projected a saving.

Under Plan O, there would be the costs of adding teams at some levels and reducing teams at others, depending on the activity involved.

Many opponents say that additional facilities such as a new football stadium and new gymnasiums would be needed under Plan O.

Cox answered, "We need additional facilities now, particularly gymnasiums. The need would not increase under Plan O, but neither would it cease to exist."

Many feel that Midland schools can continue to compete at the same level as they did during the 1978-79 school year, a good one athletically for both schools. Cox said he disagrees.

"I think we can compete very well for one or two years, perhaps longer in individual sports. Team sports will find it increasingly more difficult to do so as the enrollment declines. I believe Midland's athletes will always compete to the best of their abilities, but it is difficult to do so at a championship level when considerably outnumbered."

COX ALSO SAID he doesn't feel that Plan O necessarily will make Midland a powerhouse in all sports.

"I don't believe this can ever be assumed. It would, however, provide Midland with an opportunity to compete at a championship level."

Cox also was asked if future athletic policy, without Plan O, would involve keeping both high schools at or near equal enrollments.

He replied, "Only the board of trustees can establish boundary lines. If enrollments are kept equal, considering the anticipated decline in same, it will be difficult to compete at the championship level."

No one seems to dispute whether Midland is experiencing a severe enrollment decline.

In fact, other 5-4A schools also are experiencing declines to varying degrees. However, the perennial contenders are larger than each of the Midland schools by 100 to 400 students, and projections show that this difference gradually will increase.

Recently, there have been suggestions about adding the ninth grade to the two high schools to keep enrollment up. This could prove to be an athletic-program nightmare. Freshmen could do very little to help on the competitive side of sports.

Also, gymnasiums at the two schools are already overcrowded and practice sites in other sports would be critical. Most of the people involved with sports do not think this would be a functional idea athletically.

COX AND MANY Midland coaches also feel that they are at a great disadvantage to all other 5-4A schools, including Big Spring, because of court-ordered busing.

Under the Midland schools' present structure, it is impossible for any one high school head coach to provide explicit direction to junior high programs in terms of formations, alignments, techniques and off-season training because junior highs in Midland are not "pure feeders." Cox said he feels that this is one asset inherent in Plan O.

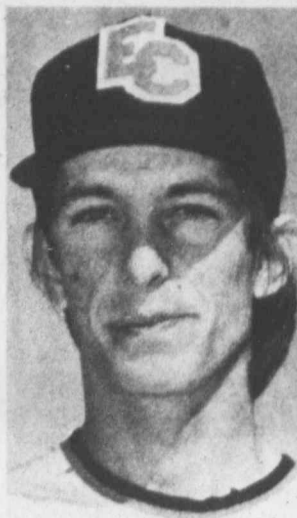

"Every head coach could provide direction in these areas from a time a class entered the seventh grade. This is far more important in terms of ultimate success than those who are not closely associated with the athletic program could possibly imagine.

School enrollment, tradition, coaching and strong feeder programs are all a part of being competitive at a championship level."

COX ALSO STATED, "Extra-curricular activities, including athletics, should not comprise the major focal point for determining the organizational structure of the Midland Independent School District."

"Midlanders must realize, however, that under the present structure, and with a seemingly unavoidable decline in enrollment, the competitive level to be expected without Plan O likely will be below that to which they have grown accustomed. It would then seem inappropriate to seek the dismissal of coaches on the basis of won-loss records alone."

Plan O is not wholly dismissable taken in perspective. And neither is the prospect of remaining with the present situation. Now remains the choice.

Junior Michael Hunt, who played on Midland High's 1973 state championship team, is a mainstay for East Central Oklahoma State as a short-stop. ECOS posted a 19-23 record last year.

Benitez risks title today

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Wilfredo Benitez of Puerto Rico is a solid favorite to retain his World Boxing Council (WBC) welterweight title in San Juan today against Harold Weston of New York.

Benitez will be making his first defense of the 147-pound title since stripping the crown from Carlos Palomino of California in San Juan Jan. 14. The fight will be staged in the open air at Hiram Bithorn Stadium.

Both fighters were confident of victory.

So sure of a win, Benitez said he already had plans for a second title defense against David Green of England. And Benitez' father, Gregorio, who is also his trainer, said Wilfredo had been offered $500,000 to fight Sugar Ray Leonard of the United States.

THERE WAS one important change in the Benitez strategy for Sunday's fight. He will not have former welter and middleweight champion Emile Griffith in his corner when he steps into the ring against Weston.

Griffith was credited with getting Benitez ready for his successful fight against Palomino, but he apparently had conflicts with the champion's father.

"My father is the one who helped me most in becoming champion," said Benitez without going into details. "He is my best trainer."

Also a former junior welterweight WBC champion, Benitez said his father made it possible for him at the age of 17 to gain a title win over Antonio Cervantes of Colombia in 1976.

WESTON ALSO expresses confidence, recalling that he fought Benitez to a 10-round draw in a non-title fight in February of 1977—the only outing that hasn't ended in a victory for the young Puerto Rican.

Benitez' record is 35-0-1, while Weston has a mark of 48-7-5.

Weston had one other title opportunity and lost it. He was knocked out by Jose Cuevas of Mexico last year. Cuevas is the World Boxing Association (WBA) welterweight champion. For the fight, Benitez is being paid $140,000 and Weston is getting $40,000.

Great things forecast for huge pile of dirt

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Twenty-one months before the futuristic Meadowlands Arena is scheduled to open, only a huge pile of dirt represents what officials claim will put New Jersey on the sports map.

"I think this will be the finest complex in the world," claims Loris Smith, general manager of Giants Stadium and the new $56 million arena. "No other complex has as diverse kind of entertainment as this will offer."

The Meadowlands Arena is scheduled to open Dec. 15, 1980, when the New Jersey Nets transfer basketball operations from their temporary home at Rutgers University, about 35 miles away in Piscataway.

Situated adjacent to Giants Stadium — the home of the football Giants, the soccer Cosmos and college football — and the Meadowlands Racetrack — one of the most successful standard and thoroughbred tracks in the country — the Meadowlands Arena will give the sports complex an indoor site.

THE MEADOWLANDS Arena will seat 20,100 for basketball and 19,000 for hockey with parking for 4,000 cars, making it the largest indoor arena of its kind.

The Meadowlands sports complex is located less than seven miles from Madison Square Garden in New York and will be competing for virtually the same entertainment dollar.

Besides the natural rivalry of the Nets and Knicks, the Rangers and the as-yet-unformed New Jersey hockey team, the two arenas will be bidding for many of the same events.

Smith is interested in staging championship fights, wrestling, the NCAA basketball playoffs, college basketball doubleheaders, rock concerts, camping shows, ice shows, the circus — enough events to keep the building operating six nights a week during the winter sports season and four nights weekly in the summer.

"WE WANT to play everything there is to play," he said. "We will have a complex with three very fine facilities to do all kinds of things."

Smith also said: "Conversations have led me to believe we will house an NHL (National Hockey League) team. I'm sure the NHL recognizes the importance of the arena as a showcase."

Ex-Midland Cubs provide news with Big Cubs

MESA, Ariz.—The Midland Cubs fan will find more news-worthy items on the Chicago Cubs over at Ho Ho Kams Park or with the Wichita Aeros who are sharing the Fitch Park complex facilities with Midland than he will on the team Manager Randy Hundley is rounding into shape for the opening of the Texas League season April 11.

Kurt Seibert, who played second base for Midland last year, for example, got a ninth inning game winning hit for Chicago Thursday, giving Donnie Moore, another ex-Midland Cub, the pitching victory. Bruce Sutter, making his first appearance in 10 days, struck out two of the three batters he faced. Mike Krukow, a teammate of Sutter at Midland in 1975, is trying to work out the rigors of a winter in Chicago, namely a silly sciatic nerve from shoveling snow.

It's finally responding to treatment and, as Mike explains it, "I was walking around 5-10. Now I'm back up to just under 6-5."

DENNIS LAMP, the Cubs hardluck rookie of a year ago, is busy campaigning for supportive runs among teammates, which if he had had last year would have turned around his 7-15 record. Dennis, however, earned himself a place in the starting rotation with a 3.29 earned-run-average and 224 innings pitched, a total topped only by Rick Reuschel, the staff's ace.

Now that Chicago has returned from its Yuma, Palm Springs trip, a major league roster cutdown is imminent, but until then lefty George Riley, Herman Segelke, Byron Wilkerson, Dave Gessel (pitchers); catchers Mike Gordon and Greg Keatley; infielders Seibert, Ed Putman, Mike Sember, Steve Macko and Steve Davis; outfielders Karl Pagel and Scot Thompson are battling for spots on the varsity. All are recent vintage Midland Cubs with Riley, Segelke, Keatley, Macko and Seibert playing here as recently as last season.

THE CUBS Hundley will bring back to Midland will contain many familiar faces now operating with one of the higher level clubs, but the Midland team which began playing exhibitions this week is composed mostly of players up from the A and Rookie league teams and it's Randy's job to find the ones that will help this year's club. Having managed the Rookie League team last year, the one-time Chicago catcher has a head start.

While Hundley is readying his team, General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., is putting the finishing touches on preparations in Midland. The new scoreboard has arrived and the concrete pillars for its erection are ready

The Big Four of the 1975 pennant winning Midland Cubs are now mainstays of the 1979 Chicago Cubs. for pouring. Two small concession booths for under-the-stands service have been installed and will replace the makeshift freezer operation at the ramps to the stands.

"We will serve draft beer instead of the canned variety," says Rigney. "Which may mean more lines, but it will eliminate a lot of our other problems and make city officials happier..."

A Midland Cubs Booster Chamber of Commerce group will leave Midland for a Thursday through Sunday spring training stay in the Mesa-Scottsdale area, providing an opportunity to look at the new Midland Cubs, visit with some old ones and do some funnin' in the sun while catching a few major league exhibitions. It's a popular and annual excursion...

Expos not yet ready to concede to Phils, Bucs

By DAN SEWELL

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Impressive off-season acquisitions by Philadelphia and Pittsburgh seem to have insured that those two teams will run away from the rest of the National League Eastern Division again this year.

But after a flurry of less-publicized transactions, the Montreal Expos feel ready to add an international flavor to the Pennsylvania-dominated division race.

"The players are very optimistic this year. Everybody says Philadelphia and the Pirates would be the next team. But we like to think that we're a young team that can move in there if we get the chance," says Manager Dick Williams.

"We look good on paper. Last year we didn't play the way we're supposed to play. We made a lot of mistakes. But the young players have another year, another year for experience," veteran first baseman Tony Perez says. "Our eight regulars are as good as anybody, and our bullpen is better this year."

THE EXPOS were fourth last year, 14 games behind the Phillies. But Williams notes that his team lost 36 games by one run.

"That can be attributed to my bullpen and my pinch-hitters. My pinch-hitters batted .165, and the only reason it was that high was because sometimes I rested my regulars and used them to pinch-hit. Without them, we batted .125 pinch-hitting," Williams says.

But the off-season shuffling has given Williams' bench and bullpen a new look:

—Veteran catcher Duffy Dyer was acquired to give Gary Carter some rest.

—Outfielder Jerry White and infielder Rodney Scott, both switch-hitters, are expected to add better pinch-hitting and speed to the bench.

—Tony Solaita was acquired as a left-handed pinch-hitter and to spell Perez at first base.

—Veteran infielder Jim Mason can be used for late-inning defense.

—Elias Sosa, 8-2 with 2.64 ERA at Oakland, is expected to go a long way toward solving the relief problem.

—Bill Lee, who has pitched extremely well when not causing controversy with his talking, is expected to move into the starting rotation, freeing veteran left-handers Woodie Fryman and Rudy May for relief.

And, of course, Williams is counting on strong seasons from young pitchers Scott Sanderson (4-2, 2.51 last year), Dan Schatzeder (7-7, 3.06) and Hal Dues (5-6, 2.36), who's recovering from elbow surgery. The one-two punch of Steve Rogers and Ross Grimsley is solid.

NONE OF his new faces can be compared to Pete Rose or Manny Trillo, but Williams is pleased.

"We feel like we've solved our biggest problems, and we did it without touching our starting eight," he says.

Despite the acquisitions of Rose and Trillo, the Expos feel the Phillies can be had.

"They're most vulnerable in their pitching. Larry Christiansen hurt his shoulder (in a bicycling accident), Steve Carlton had a shoulder problem at the end of the season, Jim Lonborg had some problems and Dick Ruthven is hurting now. They have a good bullpen, but it's going to have a lot of pressure on it," Williams says.

IF THE Phillies falter, the addition of reliever Enrique Romo and the return of injured second baseman Rennie Stennett makes the Pirates their logical successor, he adds.

"They're going to have outstanding relief. I like their ballclub," he says. "Their big question is their defense.

"It'll be interesting. We have a lot of ballplayers who've never been in a pennant race. We'd like to see how they do."

Whether Williams' team is a contender this year, the Expos are an intriguing collection for sociologists. They have more Latin-born coaches than any major league team (Felipe Alou and Ozzie Virgil).

They also represent more nationalities than any other team: Canada (Bill Atkinson), Cuba (Perez), Dominican Republic (Pepe Frias, Sosa), Puerto Rico (Tony Bernazard), Samoa (Solaita) and Outer Space (Lee).

And they also have as a manager that rarest of all birds: a former Oakland A's manager who wasn't fired by Charlie Finley.

TSTA approves collective bargaining

HOUSTON (AP) — Delegates to the annual convention of the Texas State Teachers Association overwhelmingly approved a resolution Saturday urging collective bargaining rights for the state's teachers. It was the first time in TSTA history that such a resolution has been approved. Delegates passed the resolution 884-549 in what some observers described as a reaction to Gov. Bill Clements' proposal to give Texas teachers only a cost-of-living pay raise. The result came as a surprise to most delegates, including those who have worked unsuccessfully for the proposal in at least four previous conventions. "I think that for educators in this area to go on record in support of collective bargaining is a reaction to what is happening with our governor and the Legislature," said Peggy Willis, president of the association's District Four, which includes school districts in Harris, Galveston, Fort Bend and Brazoria counties. "We'd rather settle things differently, but with teachers continually put down, it looks like collective bargaining will be the next thing we'll have to try," she said. Signa Segrest, president of the Houston Teachers Association, emphasized that the association's support for collective bargaining didn't mean it also supported a right to strike. State law prohibits public employees from striking. "Collective bargaining means we'd be equal partners in making decisions," she said. "There are many ways to achieve equality without striking." One of those who voted against the proposal, Ray Winburn of the Spring Branch School District, disagreed, however, saying collective bargaining ultimately would mean teacher strikes. "I don't think collective bargaining would be good for the total educational program," he said. "It would lose public support for us and we can't exist without public support."

Collective bargaining would allow teachers to negotiate and approve local decisions dealing with teacher salaries, hours and working conditions. The working conditions would include class size, disciplinary policy, text books and curriculum. Segrest said the support for collective bargaining arose from frustration among rural and urban teachers "who haven't had a voice in matters which directly affect kids in the classroom."

Downtown block to be barricaded

Downtown employees who have been fighting for a free parking place will find one block less available starting Monday. City engineer George Medley said the block bordered by Main, Baird, Wall and Texas streets will be barricaded. This block is next to the block on which the city's Exhibit Hall is being constructed. Medley said this block will be paved in the future and used as paid parking spaces for daytime use and as a free parking area at night for use by people attending functions at the Exhibit Hall.

Controversial pastor recalled by presbyters

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Presbyters of the Texas District of the United Pentecostal Church have again summoned the Rev. Charles Glass of Sherman to Lufkin. Glass was censured by the same group at a hearing earlier this month. The panel found him "guilty of unbecoming conduct with regard to practices which have been permitted in his pastorate."

Museum funding might end

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Thirteen university-operated museums will close under a budget proposal adopted by a legislative subcommittee, the Texas Association of Museums said Saturday.

The House Higher Education appropriations subcommittee has eliminated funding for the museums. The full committee is expected to consider the budget recommendations next week.

"University museums should be the showcase of Texas' finest; instead they are reduced to caretaker status by the Legislature," said Jerome Collins, executive director of the association.

Collins' comments came in a letter to Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, which writes the final budget draft that is submitted to the House and Senate.

The museums affected are at Lamar University in Beaumont, North Texas State University in Denton, Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Stephen F. Austin University in Nacogdoches, Sul Ross State University in Alpine, Texas A&I at Kingsville, Texas Women's University in Denton, the University of Texas at El Paso, West Texas State University in Canyon, Laredo Junior College and Hill County Junior College.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Safety seat suggestion

Dear Dr. Solomon: Some time last year you had some advice about safety seats for very young children in cars. I clipped your column—and now I can't find it. We have a three-month old baby and also a 4-year old who needs a new seat. We'd be grateful for any advice.—Virginia.

Dear Virginia: I'm glad to pass on the latest information I have on this, as automobile accidents are the leading cause of death among children and young adults. Every young person in a car should have an appropriate restraint. And be sure to follow manufacturer's instructions exactly in installing and using it. The following products have passed the standards for crash protection set by Physicians for Automotive Safety.

Newborns and infants should be protected with one of the following semi-reclining carriers:

—For this youngest group only: Dyno-o-Mite Infant Carrier (Questor); Infant Love Seat (General Motors).

—Convertible carriers which can also be used by children who can sit up: Bobby-Mac 2 in 1, Bobby-Mac Deluxe (Collier Keyworth); Kantwet Car Seat No. 985, No. 986, No. 988 (Questor); Safety Shell No. 74, No. 75 (Peterson); Sweetheart No. 11 (Bunny Bear); Trav-L-Guard (Century Products); Wee Care No. 597 (Strolee).

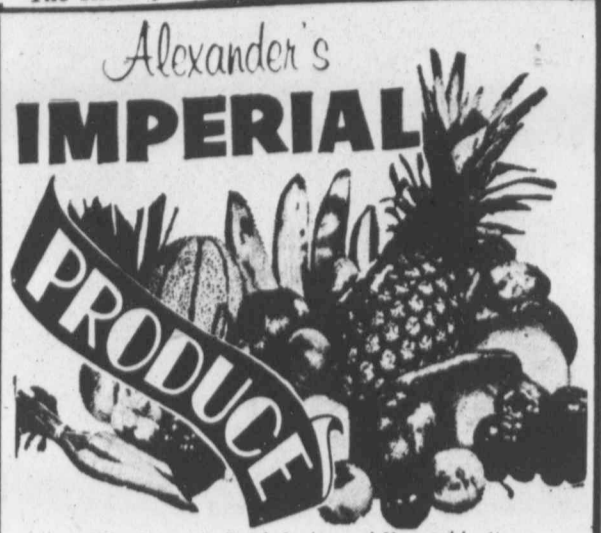

—Children under 4, or under 40 to 50 pounds, who are able to sit up without support, should be protected by special car seats or harnesses. You can use one of the convertible carriers just listed. Or choose one of the following, which are not suitable for infant use: American Safety (S w y n g o m a t i c); Astroseat No. V (International Mfg); Child Love Seat (General Motors); Kantwet Car Seat No. 785, No. 885, No. 597 (Questor); Mopar Child Seat (Chrysler); Motor Toter (Century Products); Positex Car Seat (Hedstrom); Tot-Guard (Ford Motors); Little Rider Harness (Rose Mfg.).

—Children over 4 or who weigh more than 40 to 50 pounds should be protected with adult lap belts. Small children should sit on a low (2 in.) firm cushion to help keep the belt low over the hips and the top of the thighs. The lap belt should be snug. A shoulder belt fastened moderately snug is good if it does not cross the face or neck. A lap belt should be available for and used by every child you transport in your car.

—For older children and young adults, lap belt plus shoulder belt provide the best protection. However, don't use the shoulder belt if it crosses the face or neck. And never use a shoulder belt alone. A lap belt alone should be used if a shoulder belt is not available or is not appropriate. The lap belt should be snug, and low over hips.

Inexpensive caviar

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — While some Canadians are buying imported caviar for $80 a pound, others are selling domestic caviar to Japan for $5.50 a kilogram. The small yellow eggs of freshwater whitefish, of which more than 4.1 metric tons were harvested in Canada last year, has the same texture as classic sturgeon roe but a slightly different flavor.

An officer on patrol about 12:30 a.m. Saturday noticed a car going east on Florida Avenue, allegedly in the wrong lane. The officer pursued the car, the spokesman said, and a high speed chase began.

Involved in the chase were five city police units, a Midland County Sheriff's Department unit and a Texas Highway Department vehicle.

During the chase, the driver was reported to have hit the officer's car several times with his vehicle, according to the spokesman.

The chase stopped about 19 miles southeast of Midland when the driver being pursued wrecked his car. The man then was arrested, the spokesman said.

Shop Midland And make it grow.

Shop Midland. And make it grow.

Midland has enjoyed real success in its growth in recent years, with industrial diversification providing a broader base for our economy. We're proud of the accomplishments of the Industrial Foundation of Midland and our Chamber of Commerce's Midland Area Sales Team. The men and women who work with these organizations are skilled specialists in the fields of labor, education, real estate, public utilities and finance.

You can help, too.

There's something that each one of us can do to boost our economy and help create new jobs, and it won't cost an extra penny.

Midland National recognizes that the growth of retail trade in Midland is the equivalent of adding another large industry. Our city is growing at an astounding rate, and retail growth must keep pace if we are to have the products and services we need.

We can shop Midland.

We're suggesting that we all buy right here at home, rather than spend our money elsewhere. It's time we all realized that the money we spend away from home never comes back. But the dollars we spend here in Midland circulate many times through our local economy, making Midland a better place to live.

Midland merchants pay their share.

Midland merchants are tax-paying citizens. Through property taxes they provide more than $1,135,000 to our public schools, Midland College, Midland Memorial Hospital, police and fire departments, and city and county services. They also provide employment for more than 18 percent of Midland's total work force. Fifteen percent of local support to The United Way last year came from retail business gifts.

Retail sales tax receipts this year to date have increased 43 percent over the same period last year.

Make Midland a better place.

Our retailers offer a wide selection of goods at competitive prices. They assist their customers any way they can, because they want them to return often. They welcome your suggestions.

The dollars we spend in Midland make Midland a better place to live. Shop Midland. And make it grow.

Judge declares mistrial in Newton murder case

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A judge declared a mistrial Saturday in the Huey Newton murder trial after the jury reported it was hopelessly deadlocked after four days of deliberations.

There was no immediate word on whether the prosecution would seek to retry the Black Panther leader on the charge of killing a prostitute in 1974.

Prosecutor Tom Orloff, whose case suffered a serious setback when the key witness against Newton recanted earlier testimony during the 3½-week trial, made no immediate comment.

Newton, 37, sat impassively in the packed Alameda County Courthouse as jury foreman Janet Hurly reported the panel was deadlocked 10-2 on its third ballot. She did not say which way the majority voted.

Newton, who fled to Cuba in 1974 to avoid prosecution in the murder case and on other charges, could have faced 15 years to life in prison on a conviction of first-degree murder. The prosecution, however, had asked for a conviction for murder in the Nicaragua bank robbers give selves up to police

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Two robbers who held hostages in a Managua bank for three days after an abortive holdup surrendered to police Saturday morning. Their nine remaining hostages, all bank employees, were released unharmed.

The robbers' lawyer, Aquiles Centeno Perez, who helped negotiate their surrender, said the man and the woman, whose identities were not immediately disclosed, were taken to police headquarters, where they were booked on preliminary charges of armed robbery.

The two claimed to belong to a previously unknown guerrilla group called the People's Military Organization, dedicated to the overthrow of the authoritarian regime of President Anastasio Somoza. The president is chief owner of the bank they tried to rob.

Managua Police Chief Col. Nicolas Valle Salinas promised the pair that in return for their surrender their lives would be protected and they would not be tortured. Amnesty International and other international human rights groups claim police in Nicaragua often mistreat prisoners.

The robbers, described as a man about 22 and a woman about 18, demanded that Valle Salinas, their lawyers, bank officials and a journalist be present when they surrendered.

After the assembled group entered the bank, the robbers, their faces covered with handkerchiefs, emerged with their hostages, ending the 65-hour ordeal.

Police surprised the robbers as they tried to flee with their loot after the Wednesday afternoon robbery.

Artists to exhibit

Planning is under way for the 13th annual Southwestern Area Art Show scheduled in Midland in late spring.

The event in previous years has been jointly sponsored by the Museum of the Southwest and the Midland Arts Association. Assisting them in sponsorship of this year's show is the Junior League of Midland Inc.

Journalist and art authority Janet Kutner of Dallas will serve as juror for this year's show, which opens May 1 in the Museum of the Southwest's Turner Memorial Gallery. Ms. Kutner writes for The Dallas Morning News and for a number of prestigious art journals.

Paintings, sculpture, ceramics and crafts, graphics and photography will be accepted for entry in the show. All artists over the age of 16 in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona and elsewhere in the Southwest are invited to participate.

Each artist may submit three works produced within the last year and not previously exhibited in competition in Midland.

Cash awards totaling $1,000 will go to winning works in the show. The Midland branch, American Association of University Women, will give its annual purchase award for a graphic.

Entries for the annual show will be accepted at the Museum of the Southwest during regular museum hours on April 20, 21 and 22. A fee of $4 will be charged each entry. Following its May 1 opening, the show will be on public view daily through June 3.

Houston organist Clyde Holloway will play a public recital at 8 p.m. Friday in the sanctuary of Midland's First United Methodist Church. His appearance is sponsored by the West Texas chapter, American Guild of Organists.

Holloway to give recital

Houston organist Clyde Holloway comes to Midland this week to play a public recital in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, North Main Street and Ohio Avenue.

The program is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and will be open, without charge, to the public.

Sponsoring his recital is the Midland-based West Texas chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

For his recital, Holloway has programmed the Introduction and Passacaglia in D minor by Max Reger, the Passacaglia in C minor by J.S. Bach, the "Sonata I" by Paul Hindemith, a chorale-prelude by Bach and a prelude and fugue on Bach, by Franz Liszt.

A native Texan, Holloway attended the University of Oklahoma where he was an organ student of Mildred Andrews. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in music at OU and then received a Fulbright Scholarship to the famous Amsterdam Conservatory, where he had study in organ, harpsichord and chamber music with well-known Gustav Leonhardt.

Later, he studied organ with Robert Baker as a doctoral student at Union Theological Seminary. At the same time, he served as assistant organist at St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City. Holloway has received high acclaim for his concerts throughout the nation. He has played at national conventions of the American Guild of Organists and has concertized in Mexico City, in the West Indies, and in several major European cities.

In 1965, Holloway joined the faculty of Indiana University, as professor of music.

Southwest art now on display

ROSSELL, N.M. — The Roswell Museum and Art Center currently is host to a circulating art exhibition, "Works on Paper — Southwest 1978," from the Dallas Museum of Fine Art.

Since 1948, the Dallas museum annually has sponsored a juried, circulating exhibit titled "Southwestern Prints and Drawings." This year, the format was changed and the exhibit retitled.

The competition was open to artists throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado.

Juror for the competition was Weston Naef, associate curator of prints and photographs at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. His selections resulted in an exhibition of almost 100 works on paper in all mediums, including photography.

In addition to the juried section, the current show displays works by three artists who were specially invited to exhibit — Carlotta Corpron of Denton, and Carole Scholder and Dan Rizzie, both of Dallas.

Naef chose the exhibition from almost 2,000 entries submitted by more than 600 artists from the six-state Southwest region.

In medium, the works range from prints, drawings, watercolors and photographs, to mixed-media such as oil and acrylic on paper, collage and handmade paper. Many styles are represented.

As in the past, the exhibition will travel for one year. The show will remain on view in the Marshall Gallery of the Roswell Museum through April 16.

The display is open to the public daily, including Sunday afternoons. The show was organized by the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts with the aid of a financial grant from the Mobil Foundation Inc.

'Manon' scheduled

FORT WORTH — A strong cast of New York City Opera and Metropolitan Opera singers has been engaged by the Fort Worth Opera Association to appear in the association's final production of its 33rd season.

The upcoming production, to be sung in English, is only the second presentation of "Manon" in the Fort Worth Opera's history. The dramatic and melodic operatic masterpiece by 19th Century French composer Massenet had its initial Fort Worth production back in 1960.

"Manon" performances at 8 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. April 8. David Hicks is the stage director and sets, on loan from the Houston Grand Opera, were designed by Allen Charles Klein.

Tickets for the pair of performances range in price from $4 to $17, with special discounts offered in some areas of the theater for student-teacher groups. Tickets are now on sale at Central Ticket Office in downtown Fort Worth, as well as at the Scott Theater box office and the opera office at 3505 W. Lancaster Blvd. Preston Ticket Agency in Dallas and Entertainment Ticket Agency in Denton also are handling tickets.

ENTERTAINMENT

New York City Opera soprano Diana Soviero will be featured in the title role in the upcoming production. Miss Soviero has appeared with the Fort Worth Opera in two previous productions, "Gianni Schicchi" and "La Perichole."

Joining these pivotal performers will be baritone John Darrenkamp as Lescaut, City Opera and Santa Fe Opera tenor Douglas Perry as Guillot, City Opera baritone Thomas Jamerson as DeBretigny, and City Opera bass Will Roy as Count des Grieux.

Elvis' will gets audit

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley had little life insurance but left an estate valued at $7.6 million after taxes when he died at the age of 42, a court-approved accounting showed. Presley, who left the bulk of his estate to his daughter, his father and his grandmother, died with $1.4 million in his checking account and $747,000 in a saving account, the audit showed. The estate accounting approved Friday by Judge Joseph W. Evans of Probate Court provided the first public glimpse of the singer's holdings since Presley's death Aug. 16, 1977.

Renewal of conflict reported

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hanoi radio claimed Saturday that Chinese troops penetrated into Vietnamese territory again and that two regiments of Vietnamese troops were sent to defend the northern frontier.

The broadcast suggested the reported new incursions might jeopardize planned peace talks.

A Vietnamese broadcast quoted a note issued by the Foreign Ministry in Hanoi as saying the Chinese were not withdrawing their invasion forces but moving "many troops to the Vietnam border" and have "intruded into many places on Vietnamese territory."

It did not specify locations but said Chinese troops "were digging trenches and building strong fortifications for long-term occupations."

It called on China to withdraw to "the other side of the historic border line," so that "negotiations may start in Hanoi March 29 as proposed in the March 21 note of Vietnam's Foreign Ministry."

A second broadcast said two regiments, equipped with "full-scale weaponry" were being sent to the border to face the Chinese if they "come back to attack our

The Chinese, who invaded Vietnam Feb. 17, said they have withdrawn and are ready for talks to resolve the border dispute. But Vietnam has charged repeatedly in recent days that China still has troops inside Vietnam and has demanded that they be withdrawn before talks begin.

There has been no independent verification of the claims.

Pastor answers need for meals on weekends

By LINDA HILL
Staff Writer

Meals on Wheels provides manna in the form of hot lunches for elderly persons who can't cook for themselves — but only Monday through Friday.

Likewise, Need-A-Meal, a similar service without subsidy, is only a weekday affair.

So what do the participants in these programs do on weekends?

Elizabeth Glenn, director of both programs, raised that question in a Reporter-Telegram story about the services.

And it got First Christian Church's senior minister, the Rev. Steve Edwards, to thinking.

That, said Pat Faulkner, led to "Share-A-Meal," a program, begun this month, in which families share their weekend meals with some of the handicapped elderly of Midland.

Mrs. Faulkner emphasized that the Share-A-Meal plan is not connected officially in any way with either of the other two programs, and that Mrs. Glenn is not involved in the administration of the new weekend service.

The funding set-up for the other two programs prohibits her from devoting time to the new venture, Mrs. Glenn explained.

Mrs. Faulkner, who does volunteer work for Meals on Wheels and Need-A-Meal, has been responsible for compiling a list of about 40 such persons or couples who are in particular need of weekend meals — and for matching volunteers to the participants.

She also gives a lot of credit to Edwards, saying Share-A-Meal not only was his idea, but also that he and his family began delivering meals to a family before the program got under way.

And, she said, Marion Fisher and the First Christian Outreach Committee, official sponsor of the program, have helped get things moving.

"We just take them part of what we're eating," said Mrs. Faulkner of the plan, in which a family takes on the responsibility to deliver lunch or supper each Saturday and Sunday for a month.

Most of the individuals chosen for Share-A-Meal are handicapped or bedridden, and do not have family available to provide for their weekend needs, she said, adding that no special diets, except perhaps a need for ground meat, are involved.

In addition to the meal, the service insures that someone checks to make sure the participants are "all right" on the weekends, she said.

First Christian hopes to convince other Midland churches to enter the program, rotating cooking and delivery duties, such as driving responsibilities for Meals on Wheels are divided among participating churches each year, said Mrs. Faulkner.

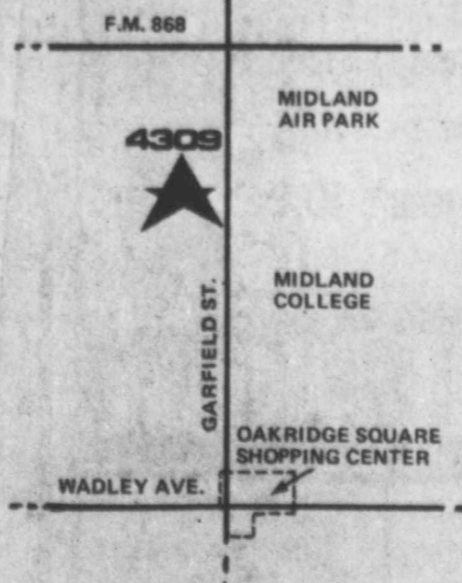

St. Paul's United Methodist Church and Covenant Presbyterian Church have signed up for April and St. Luke's United Methodist Church, for May, she said.

"So far, so good," was her evaluation of the program's early progress.

Churches or individuals wishing more information on the program may call Edwards at First Christian or Mrs. Faulkner, 682-2219.

MORTGAGE SHARE AGREEMENTS

Sometimes mortgages are held by a number of individuals in shares, rather than by one person or a financial institution. This arrangement usually follows one of the two types of patterns. A mortgage loan can be split up AFTER the mortgage is created. In this instance it's a good idea to have a written agreement among the individuals who have subscribed. This is called a share ownership or participation agreement. It tells about the older and amount of the various shares. It also covers, among other items, the distribution of interest and principal and the method of collection. Operation and management of the mortgage are also provided for in this agreement. Share ownership agreements are usually used when there is a junior and a senior share involved. On the other hand, a group of two or more people can get together at the TIME the mortgage is created and contribute the amount of the loan. When this happens the mortgage is made out to ALL of them. Their names appear along with information on each person's share. Data as to whether all the shares are equal or whether there is some priority is also put into the mortgage.

OPEC members to study pricing strategy, supplies on oil markets

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meet here Monday for crucial discussions on pricing strategy and supplies on world oil markets disrupted by the revolution in Iran.

There is considerable speculation that the meeting will endorse surcharges already imposed by individ-al OPEC members in response to the tight supply situation.

The ministers are also expected to probe allegedly excessive profits made by Western companies in connection with the Iranian crunch. These "windfall profits" have been cited by Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheik Ahmad Zaki Yamani, usually a price dove, as having spurred the "temporary surcharges."

Sheik Ali Khalifa al-Sabah, Kuwait's oil minister, said earlier that OPEC might "take certain decisions" if oil companies continue "to exploit the current shortage in the world oil markets to reap huge profits."

The meeting in a Geneva hotel coincides with the signing of the Israeli-

Egyptian peace treaty in Washington, an accord that has no backing among the Arab OPEC members. The Geneva delegation of Saudi Arabia, "the leading OPEC producer, will be closely watched for indications whether displeasure with the treaty may prompt a harder stance in its oil pricing attitude."

The Geneva meeting has a "consultative" status. Under OPEC rules, this means it cannot take any decisions like changing the basic price structure agreed upon last December at the cartel's Abu Dhabi meeting. But a simple majority would suffice to upgrade the session to an "extraordinary" meeting that could make such decisions.

Under a plan for quarterly increases agreed on at Abu Dhabi, the basic oil price is to go up by an aggregate 14.5 percent in quarterly increases during 1979. The present benchmark quote is $13.35 per barrel of Arabian light crude following a five-percent hike Jan. 1. But actual prices are already well above that level.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Newsman spoof officials at annual gridiron gala

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the tune of "Anything You Can Do, I Can Do Better," newspapermen caricaturing Democrats sang in spoof Saturday night to Republicans: "Anything you could do, we can do cheaper. We can cut anything deeper than you."

In the same Washington rite of spring, a character portraying Henry Kissinger sang to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance: "When I write history, I'll be the greatest. History will show that I'm greater than you."

Someone playing the part of Phyllis Schlafly sang of Bella Abzug: "Any cause she supports, I could not work for. I won't knee-jerk for the things she supports."

And a character portraying Ronald Reagan sang to John Connally: "Anything you can do I can do slicker. I can win delegates quicker than you."

These parodies were delivered at the 94th annual attempt by the Gridiron Club to find fun in the news from Washington.

If it's good enough for Canadians...

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government challenged domestic and foreign auto manufacturers Saturday to provide American car buyers with the same rust warranty they give Canadians.

The challenge was issued in a letter to 18 auto companies signed by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and Esther Peterson, director of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs.

They noted that Canada recently adopted a rust protection code that covers new cars with three-year or 74,000-mile warranties against perforations and one-year or 24,000-mile warranties against surface corrosion.

Most new cars bought in the United States are granted no specific rust warranty protection. The exceptions are Honda, which has a three-year rust warranty, and Toyota, which has a one-year warranty.

Space shuttle arrives in Florida

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia arrived at the nation's space port Saturday to the cheers of thousands of technicians eager to begin a new era of space transportation.

Riding piggyback atop a giant Boeing 747 jetliner, the 75-ton orbiter ended its trouble-plagued journey from California to its new home by landing on the 3-mile-long runway it will use when operational in 1981.

Flynt says trial 'almost hopeless'

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Flynt, owner of the sexually explicit Hustler and Chic magazines, said Saturday his obscenity trial is "almost hopeless" because the judge has refused to allow evidence showing prevailing community standards.

Flynt is charged with 11 counts of distributing obscene materials. He was arrested when he rented an Atlanta bookstore to sell the magazines in a challenge of state obscenity laws.

"I think we've been destroyed by the judge," Flynt said in an interview. "He has denied any attempt we've made to submit community standards."

During the trial last week, Fulton County State Court Judge Nick Lambros disallowed testimony of witnesses who conducted a survey of the Fulton County community standards.

Menard's gas shortage alleviated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grant from the Economic Development Administration has been earmarked for the West Texas town of Menard to tie into a gas pipeline, alleviating a serious gas shortage among the town's 306 customers.

The federal grant of $180,000 will be combined with $20,000 in state money to finance the 4.5 miles of pipeline needed to make the connection.

Menard, a town of 2,000 between San Angelo and San Antonio, gained attention last December as falling temperatures caused the municipal gas system to malfunction.

Repairs were made to the aging lines, but dwindling supplies caused city officials to look elsewhere for gas.

RINGING THE BELL

With BOB TIEUEL

The Brown Experience: Since the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights attacks the unfair depiction of blacks, Hispanics, Asian and Pacific people, Indians and even Aleuts (but not Arabs) and since it is correctly verboten to stereotype Jews and other minorities (once a target), the public, aided by TV and the media, finds the Arabs an easy goat, even villains, believes columnist Nick Timmesch.

Many bellringers remember the Anti-Defamation League that fought the unfair and often vicious depiction of Jews as folks with strikingly Semitic features, as greedy businessmen, or cowards or slysters. Certainly the ADL deserves an orchid for its success in stopping most of this slander.

Apparently today, it's the Arabs where there is fear and slander. They are depicted with "buying up the country" when the fact is that Arabs have bought proportionately little in the United States, outside of Treasury bills which amounts to buying inflation and a piece of our national debt, according to Nick. According to a recent study by Newsweek, the Dutch, British, West Germans and Japanese are the big investors in the U.S.

There are some cases of course of Arabs flaunting their oil wealth, the great majority of the 100 million Arabs in the world are a poor but emerging people; nonetheless they are bound to play an increasingly important role in our world to come. If you will search history, you will find many cultural highpoints in the Arab world. They have made their contributions to western culture—in astronomy, mathematics, literature, physics, medicine, philosophy and history.

IN RETROSPECT: The late Ms. Annie L. Fegan of Pecos was a longtime bellringer. We shall miss her as well as her many friends from over West Texas and New Mexico. Her biographical sketch read in part: "Ann" (as she was known by friends) was a faithful member of Friendship C.M.E. Church for many years, serving as pianist of the senior choir, chairperson of the building fund and very active in local and district as well as annual conference missionary work.

TO DR. R.H. REID Jr., editor of the A.M.E. Christian Recorder: (oldest black periodical in the United States): We have asked that the Boley, Okla. Chamber of Commerce mail to your office an active paid-up membership for one year with our compliments. I regret that owing to present serious illness in our family in recent months, the press of our mission work in West Texas, and public relations duties, we have not been able to work on the "Committee of 100" to establish a National Afro-American Park in Boley, as we would like. The chamber in Boley is very active and they are open for ideas and plans that will keep alive the town that Booker T. Washington once described as "the grand experiment" in Black self-government. After almost 80 years, the experiment is still going strong (Bob). Until later, be a good neighbor. They come in all colors.

HOW GOOD ARE THE ENROLLMENT PROJECTIONS

The administration of the MISD is trying to abolish our two high schools and consolidate them into one. The excuse for this action is an enrollment decline based on their projections. How good are these projections? Consider the following points:

- Point 1. The administration has a history of low projections. Projections made in 1973 predicted 3770 students in grades 10-12 for the current year. The actual number was 3899, 129 higher than predicted.
Point 2. The administration shows a growth rate of about 1% per year for classes entering school in the years ahead. Projections used by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission show Midland County growing at more than 3% per year in the 1970's and predict growth in excess of 2% per year in the 1980's.
Point 3. The administration's predicted enrollment decline is more than 1 1/2 times that predicted by Abilene, a city that had 7 fewer pupils than Midland this year and is experiencing less growth.

How good are the enrollment projections? You be the judge. There will very likely be a slight decline but not of the magnitude the school officials predict. Enrollments are expected to drop nationwide for a few years but it is only a temporary situation. Even the projections of our school officials show enrollment going back up in a few years. What are we to do then? Are we to spend millions expanding our one "super school" or perhaps even millions more to build another new high school? You be the judge of that too. Any enrollment drop that may occur will not affect the relative competitive position of our two existing schools. Uesasa, San Angelo and Abilene also project enrollment declines. There is one important difference in these cities. Their school officials are not proposing consolidation plans. The school administrations in other cities seem to be able to handle their problems. WHY CAN'T OURS?

THE SCREENERY

1201 Garden City Hwy. 682-8432

Charles D. Vertrees sits with one of the pictures he has painted and a book he has authored, entitled "History of the West Texas Geological Society." A resident of Midland since 1929, Vertrees long has been associated with the oil and gas development of the Permian Basin in his field of geology. (Staff photo)

Vertrees can recall when Midland wasn't so 'tall'

By MIKE SLATON Staff Writer

The skyline of Midland was not as impressive in those days. The oil industry had just begun to suspect the wealth that lay below the shifting sand and grazing cattle of the Permian Basin; the not-so-tall city was then a small ranching town.

That was 1929, when Charles D. Vertrees moved to Midland from San Antonio to open an exploration office for the Marlin Oil Company, later to merge with the Continental Oil Company.

Vertrees was a 30-year-old when he made the move to Midland. The un-tall city of those days had a population of about 2,700, and that was reduced considerably when the ranchers' children, who stayed in homes in town during the school year, returned to the ranches with the arrival of summer, said Vertrees.

Midland has been through a great deal of change since Vertrees moved to Midland. "I don't suppose there was a three story building in Midland," said Vertrees.

PAVED ROADS were none too plentiful in 1929 either. "In Midland there was probably a block and a half of pavement, and narrow pavement at that, running between the railroad tracks and the old location of the First National Bank," said Vertrees.

"In fact," he said, "I don't think there were over a few miles of paved road anywhere in West Texas."

The water in Midland is pretty good today, said Vertrees, compared to how it used to taste.

And the dust? It was worse in 1929, too, said Vertrees.

Charles Vertrees and his wife live in the same house they bought when they came to Midland. The towering shade trees in his front yard were six feet tall when Vertrees planted them, and he says he used to hunt jack

Midlander in Profile

He worked in the oil fields of Tampico, Mexico to earn money for college after graduation from a Brownsville high school in 1918.

The oil industry has changed since those days too," said Vertrees. "It was all done with cable tools back then. There weren't any rotary rigs at all, and when you hit pay you could hear that rumble down there and you knew you had better start running."

"The rig crew would sit back from the derrick a few hundred yards," said Vertrees, "and wait for the tool to come out of the hole."

"If it came out and stuck in the ground a hundred yards off, then you knew you had a good well."

Vertrees went to school at the University of Texas and was graduated in 1923 with a degree in geology.

He was married to Eloise Faulkner, also a geologist, while employed by the East Coast

Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Southern Pacific Railroad in Patuxent, Mexico.

In 1925, Vertrees moved to San Angelo where he was hired by the Marlin Oil Company.

"During that period of time, Mr. Marlin had been very active in the Permian Basin," said Vertrees.

When the Marlin Oil Company transferred Vertrees to Midland there were only two commercial fields in West Texas. Those fields were the Big Lake field and a field along the eastern shelf near Colorado City, said Vertrees.

Vertrees retired from the Continental Oil Company in 1958 and for a number of years ran a geological consulting office in Midland.

Today he paints, landscapes mostly, and is a ham radio operator.

Vertrees and his wife also find time to do a little traveling outside of West Texas and recently returned from a trip to the Caribbean.

Vertrees remembers what it was like, though, when Midland was just a tiny rancher's town and neighboring Odessa was just "a wide spot in the road."

Who will help the children?

Texas has been called the buckle of the booming Sun Belt. But if one looks closely enough, the luster of the buckle is deeply tarnished in spots.

There are several reasons for this. Of the 10 urban areas in the country with the lowest per capita personal income in 1976, five are in Texas.

The Rio Grande Valley has the distinction of being where the poorest people in the nation live, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The number of poor people in Texas is declining, but at about one-half the rate it's declining in the rest of the country, reports the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

What do these facts mean when translated into numbers? They mean that more than 1.8 million Texans, roughly 15 percent of our population, live below the federally designated poverty level in one of the richest states in the United States.

They mean that the Texas Department of Human Resources, the agency charged with helping the poorest of the state's poor, must squeeze out its assistance and services more carefully than ever before to stay within a budget that is being eaten away with inflation.

They mean that the Texas Board of Human Resources must ask for $3.86 billion in federal and state funds, an increase over the last biennium of 46.8 percent, just to do the job the law requires.

For the past several years, about 37 cents of each dollar the department spent was primarily state money, with the remaining 63 cents coming from the federal government. In the department's 1980-81 request, the federal portion of each dollar shrinks to 57 cents and the state and local portion grows to 43 cents.

Department initiatives, which are in direct response to public testimony, account for about 24 cents of every state dollar asked for in the increase.

One of these initiatives is increased financial help for children under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

AFDC is basic financial aid for children who are poor because of the death, absence or disability of at least one parent. In most cases, the children's father has abandoned them.

It has been 10 years since an increase to these children has been granted. In 1969, 75 percent of the money needed for bare necessities was paid. This is an unrealistic level today. An increase of 100 percent of 1969 levels is being requested in the 1980-81 biennium budget request.

Representatives of 10 church, civic, social welfare, business and labor groups have told lawmakers who control state purse strings that $32.58 a month is not enough to meet basic needs of a dependent child.

A so-called "bonus" of $5 per month is being paid during the current two-year appropriation period and has been recommended by the Legislative Budget Board and Gov. William P. Clements Jr. for continuation in the next biennium.

The $5 bonus amounts to $30 per child paid twice a year, according to Joan Morris, program chairman of financial services for the TDHR office in Odessa.

"This is paid in December, and late in the summer before school starts, so the family will have extra money for clothing, school supplies and etc."

But the 10 groups that came before the Senate Finance Committee and the House Human Services Committee recently said the state should do more.

Noting that the basic grant of $32.58 has not changed in a decade despite a 74 percent increase in the cost of living, the advocates of more help for needy children recommended an increase of approximately $9 in the basic grant.

"This legislature may give no clearer indication of its concern for people than it will give in its response to this issue," said a statement prepared on behalf of the League of Women Voters of Texas, Texas Catholic Conference, National Association of Social Workers, Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, Texas United Community Services, Inc., Texas IMPACT (a political arm of the Texas Conference of Churches), the Texas Conference of Churches, Levi Strauss and Co., Texas AFL-CIO and Texas Child Care '76.

Recipients receive free medical care and social services from DHR, said Ms. Morris. "They must register for work, if able-bodied, not in school and not caring for someone at home. The mother must agree to help DHR find the children's father so DHR can collect child support from him," she added.

"Inflation has zoomed," said Frank Taggart, regional information director for DHR at El Paso. "We are only meeting 40 percent of families basic needs, including the other benefits the AFDC recipients get, such as Medicaid and food stamps."

Under the present system, a mother and one child gets $86 per month, a mother and two children, $116; a mother and three children, $140; a mother and four children, $164 and up to $300 a month maximum.

If the mother works, the amount of wages earned, minus certain deductions such as child care payments, are subtracted from the applicable amount received in AFDC payments.

"To be eligible for the $300 a month, it must be a family of 12 or more," explained Ms. Morris.

"The recipients do get Medicaid and the children are eligible for dental care and periodic screening of medical problems," added Ms. Morris.

The amount of the food stamps depend on the income, she said. "Recipients of AFDC payments no longer automatically get food stamps. They have to meet the same requirements as anyone not getting AFDC payments who apply for food stamps" because of a new food stamp program that went into effect March 1.

The $8.81 increase, boosting the average AFDC grant to $41.39 per month, would eliminate the present $5 bonus so the net dollar gain for a dependent child would be only $3.81.

Making the increase a part of the basic grant instead of a bonus will have the effect of making more dependent children eligible for AFDC payments and would boost their benefits under the Medicaid program when they are ill, said Taggart.

The state's share of the $32.58 average monthly AFDC grant is $9.70. The federal government puts up $22.88. The combined total makes Texas rank third from the bottom among the 50 states in AFDC. Texas outranks only Mississippi and South Carolina.

The average-size AFDC family is 3.2 so the combination of AFDC grant, including the $5 bonus and food stamps, means a typical AFDC family is receiving $216 a month. That totals $2,595 a year, which is $2,365 below the level set as the federal poverty guideline.

Children can receive AFDC payments and live in homes of relatives not receiving AFDC aid. "A child in the home of his grandparents can receive $24 a month plus medical coverage," noted Ms. Morris.

Statewide statistics show that Texas, during January of this year, provided 90,040 AFDC payments, which included 211,675 children.

The most startling facts involve Midland and Odessa Counties. During the same month of this year, Ector County DHR office gave out 283 payments, including 630 children, while Midland County AFDC payments totaled 371, including 860 children.

The regional office of DHR covers the same 17 counties which make up the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

AFDC recipients are expected to average during the next biennium about 297,000 including 210,000 children and 87,000 mothers or caretakers.

Terry White, supervisor of the AFDC program in Midland County, said, "It is extremely difficult here (Midland) for the poor because of the lack of low-income housing," like most of the other cities in Texas have.

"I would like to see them raise the amounts because we (DHR) are no longer a helping agency when the payments are so low," said White.

White agrees with a statement made by Phil Strickland, associate director of the Christian Life Commission, who was discussing the reason there has not been an increase in AFDC payments. He said, "The practical reason for the past 10 years has been that poor people don't have much clout or political influence so when it comes to a decision, it's fairly easy for legislators not to increase the AFDC amount for people who don't have political power. So far, the political repercussions of not meeting the needs of poor kids have been minimal, but in terms of repercussions in the effect on children, I think it's been significant."

"Demographic data indicates a trend of the wealthy getting wealthier and the poor getting poorer, with 20 percent of the population in the wealthy class and 20 percent in the poor class in terms of personal income."

Strickland said Texas has about 15 percent of its children living under the poverty level.

White said, "It's sad and is getting worse. I hope we don't get into the same situation as Mexico, where children roam streets hungry, dirty and unclothed."

White feels "the best aspect of AFDC is the fact that the AFDC families get Medicaid. It sees that the children get adequate medical care. Without it, they would die somewhere in a hovel."

According to Ms. Morris, "Texas has a low rate of fraud. The quality of cases is very high." The percent of fraud in Texas is 4.1.

Inflation has hit us all, but the poor the most. Especially the little children who are innocent of having anything to do with the state of our society.

No money to spare

"If I had lots of money, I would help other people," said Mrs. X. But Mrs. X doesn't have any money to spare because she is mostly dependent herself on welfare payments from the state of Texas.

She doesn't like to be on welfare, and isn't on welfare when she can work. But she has to be right now because she is disabled.

Mrs. X's husband left her 14 years ago with eight daughters and one yet to be born.

Mrs. X was on welfare right after this until she went to work for a local motel for many years. She stayed with this job before her bad back began bothering her and was told by the doctor she could not work any longer.

Mrs. X sprained her back when she worked in the cotton fields as a young child.

Still she was told by Social Security officials she didn't qualify for disability benefits.

So she was forced to go on strictly welfare, except for the few dollars she picks up baby-sitting.

Mrs. X has two children at home, six are married and one ran away from home.

The two children and Mrs. X live on $116 a month from Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments, which has to be stretched between $50 rent, $60 utilities, clothing, gas for the car to go to the grocery store and the doctor's office and any extra necessary expenses.

There is nothing left over for the movies or any other type of entertainment.

Also to be paid is $19 a month insurance and $161 yearly taxes on the house. This has to be borrowed and paid back when can.

The family's groceries come from $145 in free food stamps. This averages about $48 a month per person.

"On weekends, said Mrs. X., we eat sandwiches. But on weekdays I make tortillas and beans, hamburgers and sometimes chicken."

If her family should help her with expenses, this would be deducted from her AFDC payments and she wouldn't be any better off.

Mrs. X is bitter only about one thing. "I used to loan money when I was working, but the people who borrowed it didn't pay it back. Now that I need help, I can't borrow any money."

The only entertainment the family has is watching television. The only visiting done is going to the welfare and doctor's offices.

Even knowing she is on welfare, creditors hound her every day for the overdue payments on accounts she made while working.

The family lives in a three-bedroom home devoid of any fancy frills, just the barest necessities.

Some time when you are bored with your life, why not try Mrs. X's way of life. You might decide you weren't so bored with your own after all.

Reasons for increase

● In response to public testimony, the DHR Board voted to allow recipients the full amount of the basic needs standard established in 1969. Recipients are receiving 75 percent of that amount. Allowing the full amount will raise average monthly grant to $41.39 per person. The average monthly increase, per child, is $5.16.

● Raising the needs standard to 100 percent will qualify more people for the program.

● Raise foster care rates to compensate care givers for the higher costs of feeding, clothing, and sheltering foster children. This request is in response to public testimony.

● Add staff to handle a likely increase in the number of AFDC applicants and to review cases more frequently.

World of extrasensory peception explored in Midland

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

Fascinating psychic tests with enthusiastic audience participation made Friday's Midland Country Club Ladies Association monthly luncheon program a great success.
The program was presented by Dr. Robert F. Schwarz, former dean of the Purdue University North Central campus.

Professor Schwarz amazed the association of some 200 persons present with his skill in extrasensory perception which he believes will one day be considered as just another human skill, "much like playing the piano."

Dr. Schwarz spiked his professional performance with lots of fun and humor, matching numbers with that of members of the audience, and "guessing" letters and drawings which had been picked at random by individuals present.

Highlight of the performance was the climax...the opening of a sealed envelope which Dr. Schwarz said he had mailed a week ago to Sarah Branum, program chairman, who confirmed his statement. In the envelope were the most recent news headlines of the Reporter-Telegram, which Dr. Schwarz had guessed all most word for word.

He also explained the various levels of ESP, including mental telepathy, clairvoyance and precognition, the ability to predict things in the future.

DEAR ABBY Abby's commandments for connubial content

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I teach a Bible class for adults and was told that you had written a set of "Ten Commandments for Husbands" and also one for wives. Will you please run them again?—M.B. IN PASADENA

DEAR M.B.: Although I've published these "Commandments" three times, and have granted literally hundreds of reprint permissions for church publications (always without charge), here they are again:
TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR HUSBANDS

- 1) Thou shalt put thy wife before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter and thy son, for she is thy lifelong companion.
- 2) Abuse not thy body either with excessive food, tobacco or drink, that thy days may be many and healthful in the presence of thy loved ones.
- 3) Permit neither thy business nor thy hobby to make of thee a stranger to thy children, for the precious gift a man giveth his family is his time.
- 4) Forget not the virtue of cleanliness.
- 5) Make not thy wife a beggar, but share willingly with her thy worldly goods.
- 6) Forget not to say, "I love you." For even though thy love be constant, thy wife doth yearn to hear the words.
- 7) Remember that the approval of thy wife is worth more than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers. Cleave unto her and forsake all others.
- 8) Keep thy home in good repair, for out of it come the joys of thy old age.
- 9) Forgive with grace. For who among us doth not need to be forgiven?
- 10) Honor the Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will rise up and call thee blessed.

P.S. Next Sunday, Ten Commandments for Wives.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this guy for five months. Both of my parents liked him a lot until he grew a beard. When he showed up at my house with his new beard, my parents were actually rude to him.

They said he looked like a bum or someone who was trying to overthrow the government. Abby, I think his beard looks great and told him so. It's not shaggy or neglected-looking—it's carefully cropped and really looks neat.

I was so embarrassed when my folks put this guy down, I didn't know what to say or do.

Abby, how do you feel about beards?—PAM DEAR PAM: If they're neat and well-cared for, I think they're great. Some of the most important men in history had beards: Moses, Jesus, Abraham Lincoln and Sigmund Freud, to name a few. And don't forget the Smith Brothers, who coughed up a fortune.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SAD IN ROCKVILLE, MD.": You can't MAKE anyone like you, but you can make yourself more likable...

Do you hate to write letters of condolences, congratulations, and thanks. It's not difficult when you let Abby guide you in her booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

According to Small, though, most recent American textile industry innovations have been aimed at creating practical consumer benefits, rather than styles or "fashion."
"We're constantly trying to produce top-quality textiles which wear longer, perform and look better and require less attention," he says.

He cites the development of a new, 100 percent polyester fabric which, without potentially harmful chemicals, meets all government standards for flame resistance. Also important, he says, is that the industry has greatly improved carpeting - making it more durable, soil resistant and, in some cases, giving it acoustic properties - and at the same time has brought down its price, so that carpets are no longer a luxury for most Americans.

Meat prices a legacy

By The Associated Press

Why are meat prices so high? Because they used to be so low. That may sound ridiculous, but it's true. Today's high prices are, in large part, a legacy of the low prices of 1976 and 1977.

The steady increases — 4.9 percent in February alone, according to the Consumer Price Index released Friday — are due to the fact that we have less beef and veal. Smaller supplies mean higher prices.

In 1976, a record 42.6 million cattle were slaughtered. Per capita beef supplies on a retail weight basis — the amount available for purchase in the store — reached a record 95.7 pounds, according to the National Cattlemen's Association.

The average retail price of a pound of choice beef dropped from $1.55 in 1975 to $1.48 in 1976. But the large supplies meant low prices for cattlemen. So they cut back their herds and sold animals they normally would have kept for breeding.

In 1978, only 39.5 million cattle were slaughtered. Per capita supplies were 88.8 pounds. The average retail price of a pound of choice beef was $1.82.

The cattlemen are getting high prices for their animals again and are rebuilding their herds. But it will take several years. And, meanwhile, they are keeping animals for breeding that otherwise might go to market.

Study seaweed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists are experimenting with the fastest growing seaweed in the world, hoping their findings may help solve the nation's heating problems.

They are working with a plot of giant kelp planted on an artificial structure four miles off the coast of California. If successful, the research may point the way to creation of a huge supply of natural gas, according to the National Geographic Society.

AT WIT'S END

Living a fantasy becomes hard reality

BY EBMA BOMBECK

Since I work from home, I fantasize a lot on how it would be to climb into the car every morning and drive into the city to an office in carpetland.

I see me sitting behind the wheel looking cool... my lip gloss shimmering and my solar hair looking like an unmade bed as I sip my Spartan breakfast of black coffee from a steaming mug.

Sometimes, a man three times larger than his sports car with license plates "MACHO I" pulls next to me and tries to catch my eye, but I stick-shift into low gear and pull off, leaving him in a cloud of exhaust without a thread of hope.

Oh, I could pull it off. After all, I'm not without credentials. I have transported three dogs to the vet with three children! One with stomach flu and one blowing bubbles from his own saliva in my ear, arguing over two windows in the back seat when an umbrella opened automatically.

It's just that the opportunity didn't present itself until yesterday when I found myself in the early morning traffic going into the city. This was my chance to fulfill my fantasy.

I ran a brush through my hair, put on a skirt, topped by a jacket with one of those five-foot scarfs that just hang around the neck. Next came the lip gloss, and finally the mug of steaming hot coffee.

When the motor finally turned over, the vibration spilled part of the coffee all over the dashboard where it dripped down on my leg, causing me great pain.

I balanced it on the console and reached for it a few times but cars were passing me on the right and cutting in. One time when I shifted gears, my entire hand went into the cup and sloshed coffee all over the carpet.

Once, I nearly had it to my lips when the cars in front of me braked suddenly and I got a lap full. Ahead, I could see a light. If I timed it right, I could put the cup to my lips and look cool. We inched our way forward and finally my moment had come. I brought the cup from my side, threw my hair back with the assuredness of a woman executive on the move, and started to sip my coffee.

The light changed. The car behind me blew his horn. I jumped a mile. The coffee dribbled down my chin and onto my jacket. My scarf fell into what was left of the cold coffee. The man in the sports car alongside me laughed until I thought he would have a hernia.

I drink too much coffee anyway.

French Easter meal features Lamb Navarin dish

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Easter has generally been regarded as the principal religious feast of the year in Christendom, with the dishes served varying from country to country.

In most lands, however, either lamb or pork have played the star role on the festive board.

The lamb is one of the traditional symbols of Christ, harking back to John the Baptist's "Behold the Lamb of God."

In Britain, it is considered a good omen to see a lamb on first looking out of your window on Easter morn, especially if it is facing your house.

Lamb was the traditional dish of the Pope's Easter dinner and the Roman Catholic Church provides for the blessing of the Easter lamb.

It is in France that the lamb has become an epicurean delight, with most French chefs serving roasts delicately pink in the center. Navarin Printanier, lamb stewed with spring vegetables, is a favorite Easter dish in France.

Some nations serve Easter lamb in symbolic form, like the sugar lambs in Mexico and pastry ones in Russia.

Many countries feature pork as the Easter entree. The United States favors ham for the holiday feast, while the Russians and other nations of Eastern Europe serve suckling pig.

In Poland, the pig is optional or is accompanied by other meats. The midday meal on Easter Sunday in Poland is usually an elaborate buffet that must strain the budget of many a modest homeowner. In the center of the table stands a little Easter lamb made of sugar or sculpted from butter. Surrounding it are platters containing the suckling pig, plus roast veal and turkey. There are also moulds of jellied pigs' feet, garlands of sausages, pickled mushroom and so on.

But it is lamb all the way in France, where a good chef can transform milk-fed lamb into a culinary delight. Here's a recipe for Navarin.

2 1/2 pounds boneless lamb cut into 2-inch cubes
3 tablespoons peanut oil
3 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups water
1 cup tomato sauce
2 ounces cognac
1 garlic clove

Bouquet of bay leaf, parsley sprigs, thyme sprig
Salt and pepper to taste

6 carrots, scraped and cut into 1-inch slices
4 white turnips peeled and quartered
12 small onions, peeled
1 10-ounce box frozen peas
3 tablespoons butter
Brown lamb cubes in oil, add and brown chopped onion, then add flour, water, tomato sauce, cognac, garlic liquid over it. Season with peas. Cover and simmer 40 minutes. Remove meat to a saucepan and strain. Add to meat and liquid, and simmer 40 minutes. Serves 4-6. Good with chilled rose wine.

Jihan Sadat gives Iranian women support

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Jihan Sadat, Egypt's activist first lady, said Friday she has "great appreciation and respect" for Iranian women who have taken to the street to demand equal rights and protest the wearing of the Moslem veil.

"I wanted to send them a cable but my secretary asked me 'To whom?'" said the 44-year-old wife of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

"They stood firmly in such a way that we are all proud of them and were against these things which will bring them backward," she said in an interview with an Associated Press reporter in the sprawling garden of the Sadats' home on the Nile river-side.

The first lady will accompany her husband to Washington for the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty on Monday. She said she would like to visit Jerusalem someday.

Mrs. Sadat, who has three daughters and a son, supports a civil rights bill to improve the situation of women in Egypt but said it has been shelved because of opposition from Islamic fundamentalists.

Young Egyptian women more and more are wearing the traditional veil, said Mrs. Sadat, who during the interview wore a stylish brown summer dress and brown boots.

Speaking in fluent English, smiling and joking about her busy schedule, she predicted that the veil would lift as the standard of living rose. Mrs. Sadat, one of the most active first ladies in the Middle East, is working on a master's thesis in Arabic literature and is active in promoting population control and charitable groups.

She described the trend toward fundamentalism as natural. "You go to God when you are in difficulties."

Try fun along with fundamentals

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 2 million children will start piano lessons this year but only 2 percent will actually enjoy lessons and continue them beyond 1980, says Dr. Robert Pace, executive director of the International Piano Teaching Foundation.

"The problem is that the traditional one-on-one teaching method, in which children learn pieces by rote, is not enjoyable for most of them," Pace explains. "And it teaches them very little about the fundamentals of music. They don't like it, and they don't understand why they should bother."

Pace has a remedy. He prescribes fun and fundamentals to replace boredom and non-understanding. His teaching technique is based on peer group learning situations and "comprehensive musicianship." Groups of students, age 4 and up, are taught not only repertoire, but also the fundamentals of music, rhythm, melody and harmony.

Pace has been teaching children in groups since 1952. As professor of music education at Teachers College, Columbia University, he has been teaching teachers to teach children in groups for as many years. In 1977 he assumed directorship of the foundation to train teachers across the country in his method.

"Peer learning really means peer teaching," says Pace. "Children learn directly and honestly from each other. I can teach music as a musician. But only an 8-year-old is an expert at being an 8-year-old and thinking like one."

Children are encouraged to listen to each other, observe one another, and offer constructive criticism. Every child has his or her strength, the music professor points out. One might be good at sight reading, another at improvisation. The students become role models for each other, and stimulate healthy competition, he says.

Under his method, Pace says, piano instructions no longer seem like solitary confinement to children. "Practice becomes a time when children prepare to go back to their friends with new accomplishments, ideas, and even a composition. If children learn the fundamentals of music, they can improvise on the piano and write it down," he says.

Ear training is one fundamental taught right from the start. The teacher strikes a low note and a high note on the piano, showing them to the student, then "hiding" a note in between. The child at a second piano, unable to see the note the teacher has played, has to find the note based on what he or she hears played, working on its relation to the other two notes.

Sight reading is another basic skill. From the beginning, children are taught to read in all keys with correct rhythm and phrasing. Reading notes on flash cards helps them to read music from a book as they play. In peer learning, a classmate will watch the player to make sure that he is not looking at the keyboard and that fingers are properly curved.

The piano is used in Pace's technique because it is a perfect vehicle for getting across the fundamentals of music, he says, adding that, once learned, they can be easily transferred from the piano to another instrument.

"The piano is like a big audiovisual tool," Pace explains. "Children hear the differences between a high and low note, a marching or waltzing rhythm, a major or minor progression. On the piano they can also see and feel music."

The activities are paced so that no one concept is worked on for too long, he notes. Children take turns frequently at the piano or blackboard. They play their compositions for each other and take part in mini-music festivals.

Physical living space in home can affect psyche

By BARBARA BASLER
AP Newsfeatures
Social scientists say that just as we need food and exercise for a healthy life, we also need space — pure physical space for moving and living.

And after we have the proper amount of space, we need the proper kind of space, or everything from our peace of mind to our pocketbook can suffer. Researchers today are just beginning to explore the ways in which physical places — the spaces in which we work and play and live — help shape our attitudes and actions. This study of man and his immediate physical surroundings — proxemics — is opening some fascinating new doors. And one door leads straight into the home.

"We know that each of us has a personal need for a special space, and these needs can vary, just as our physical and emotional needs vary," says Bryna Eill. Ms. Eill teaches a course in the physical environment and social behavior at the New School for Social Research in New York. And she says the home "space" can have a real effect on the psyche. Some people, for example, feel safe, secure and comfortable only in closed rooms with small windows or no windows at all.

"Other people need a room with a view, and if they have a home or apartment without a view, all the plants and posters and fine furniture won't compensate," she explains. Generally, personal space needs seem to be shaped by childhood experiences. "This is an extreme example," Ms. Eill says, "but it illustrates the point. I have a friend who grew up in a house on a tree-nursery lot, and she is about to marry the head of a botanical garden and live there, on the garden grounds."

For the man or woman raised in a rural or suburban setting, even a spacious city apartment can seem oppressive. And for the couple raised in a city apartment, where a varied social and cultural life flourishes right outside the door, even a five-bedroom suburban house can seem prison-like. Often, Ms. Eill says, we may not feel consciously depressed or deprived by our living space. But if that space isn't right for us, subconsciously we do indeed feel deprived. And, she says, we waste time, energy and even money trying to assuage that feeling.

Studies indicate that when people are deprived of the proper amount of space, or live in unsuitable spaces, they suffer anxiety, nervousness and restlessness, Ms. Eill says.

Hobbyist gets hooked on miniature objects

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Marion Workman lives in a small world. She's big on little things. She makes and collects miniatures, a hobby that is attracting widespread interest in this area.

She got hooked on the miniature life a couple of years ago when she was looking for a change from her sewing and knitting. It wasn't long before her deft fingers and eye for beauty were being used on tiny models of furniture, doll-house-like settings and accessories.

Her new hobby brought about changes in the Workman household. Her husband built her a workbench in the basement, bought her a jig-saw, lathe and jeweler's saw.

She read books on electrical wiring so she could wire the shadow boxes to give them depth. She uses transformers inserted in the backs of the cabinets. Light bulbs, made from a grain of wheat, end up about the size of a matchhead. She once created a chandelier from fishhooks.

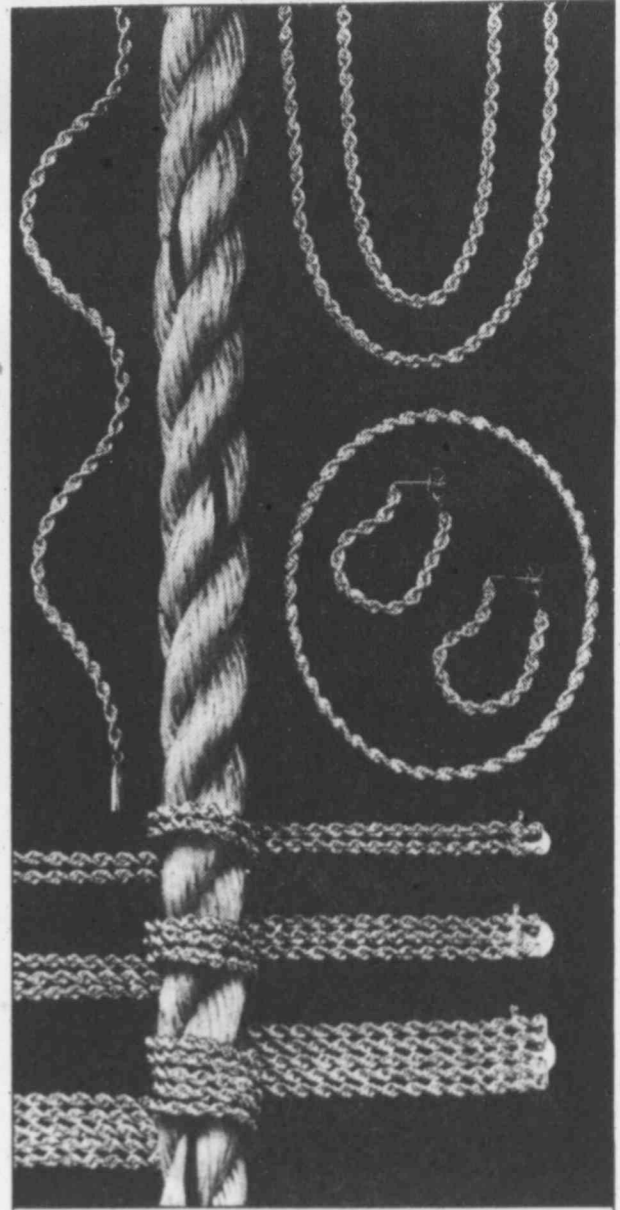

"I learned a lot from reading books and following directions," she said.

She asked her brother, Louis Hübach, to teach her how to solder when she needed to know. He did.

Mrs. Workman said she might spend three months on one project and the cost could run to $200. She buys some of the little things but prefers to make most of the miniatures herself.

"Part of the fun of this hobby is building your own furniture and accessories," she said, pointing to a tiny piano stool.

"The legs are fine but you can see the seat is too large," she said of the stool's proportions. "I'll have to make another seat." She uses a scale of 1 inch to 1 foot but says when she is in doubt she makes the item snail.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

Wife afraid to be alone with him

By the Staff of Family Services of Midland

Q. I'm so afraid to be alone with my husband, that when our daughter visits friends, I go out or get very busy by myself. He notices this and gets furious enough to hit me.

A. I. Your asking for advice for the two of you may mean you already know it's taking two to create this problem. Patterns can get to be second nature, resulting in you anticipating one another. Of course, you'd be afraid and withdraw if he gets so violent looking. So, too, would he get angry at being helpless to get you involved with him. And there you are again locked into this discouraging rut.

You will inevitably be alone together at times. In some instances, a key word to break the tension and break the ice may help. A good one, like "abracadabra," should be agreed on so you will both know it means "Hey, let's stop this and enjoy each other!"

It is likely that both of your ways of acting have very clear purposes to them. For example, two people afraid of having a poor sexual experience, might avoid this by creating another issue which would effectively rule out any intimacy. This sort of problem may take exploration which a skilled counselor to figure out and correct.

If talking it out is possible, start there. It would be a good sign if you both felt free to say what was bothering you and were able to listen, too.

If you need help or have a question you would like to ask this column, write: The Family Counselor, c/o Family Services, 2101 W. Wall, Room 9, Midland, Texas 79701. We are a United Way agency.

Insulation break means draft

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Q. — In two of the rooms in our house, there is a draft coming from under the baseboards. Both these rooms are at the rear of the house and share a common wall. I know there is insulation in this wall. What can be causing the drafts?

A. — There is probably a break in the insulation somewhere accompanied by one or more openings in the actual exterior wall. To stop the air from entering the house, you must inspect the outside wall carefully, especially around window frames and where dissimilar materials meet.

A quick glance is not enough. You will need a ladder and possibly a flashlight, looking for tiny openings. When you find them, caulk them well. Go back inside the house and check the baseboards. Obviously, they are not flush against the wall or against the floor. If necessary, you may have to remove the baseboards, and re nail them to eliminate any openings.

Men resist changes

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — It will take Puerto Rican men at least until the next century to change their attitudes of superiority toward women, a leading local feminist says.

Dr. Milagros Lopez Garriga, president of the governor's commission for the improvement of women's rights, said men would adopt more liberal attitudes on women's rights "in two or three more generations." She notes that the island's deep Hispanic roots were inbred generations ago and that it's more convenient to keep the "status quo."

Despite 80 years of U.S. influence on this U.S. commonwealth, many of the social mores that dominate the lifestyle here are Spanish in origin.

In an interview, Dr. Lopez Garriga said that men's attitudes toward their female counterparts "date back to Puerto Rico's agricultural era" in the 1930s when women were expected to stay at home.

In spite of the industrial advancement made in the past 25 years, Puerto Rican society "is still underdeveloped regarding its attitudes" toward the woman's role.

Dr. Lopez Garriga said most Puerto Rican men resisted these social changes but would have no alternative but to accept them eventually. She pointed out that many U.S. laws regarding women's rights were also applicable here.

The university professor said social "equality is a more comfortable role" for both men and women.

"Men would not have to maintain the image of being a good provider and a tremendous lover, while women could cast aside their role as sweet, weak doves," she said.

However, not all Puerto Rican women agree with the liberationist views of the organization, the president acknowledged, "because they believe it's not in their best interest."

Ohio teacher of elderly finds students enthusiastic

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — As a teacher, Jim Walter couldn't have it any better.

The students dress up for his lectures, seldom question his statements, provide him with between-class snacks and often compliment him.

At the end of the class comes the most startling gesture — applause.

"Can you believe it? Applause! It really threw me the first time it happened," Walter said.

But it happens at Trinity Retirement Home where Walter teaches an introductory course in humanities once a week. Walter, 33, is less than half the age of his youngest student. His oldest student is 95.

The class is part of Sinclair Community College's effort to serve older citizens who can attend state institutions tuition-free after they reach 60.

There are 28 students in Walter's class and attendance is high despite some of the ailments that afflict the elderly residents.

It doesn't bother Edna von Barga that her eyesight is failing. Nor does it bother her that she is beginning college at the age of 95. What matters to her is that she's learning.

Miss von Barga, who graduated from high school in 1902 and taught school for 36 years with no college training, said:

"People come to visit me from my hometown and wonder why I'm going to college now.

"I'm basically a nosy person so I want to know more. I'm learning a lot in this course.

"They ask me, 'How can you go to school if you can't see?' I tell them, 'I can see through my ears.' I'm enjoying everything I've heard."

For some students, such as Elora Dunlap, the course is a trip down memory lane. She and her husband visited Rome and Florence some years ago and saw the Renaissance paintings being talked about in her class.

"I just eat this stuff up," Mrs. Dunlap said. "It's like I'm in Italy all over again."

Drug said cancerous

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A pain killer found in several common headache powders may be linked to urinary tract cancer, researchers at Bowman Gray Medical School report.

The drug, phenacetin, is found in both prescription and non-prescription preparations.

In a recent report in the medical journal Annals of Internal Medicine, Dr. Vardaman M. Buckalew says there is mounting evidence linking excessive use of phenacetin-based analgesics with cancer of the urinary tract.

Buckalew says most kidney specialists have known for several years that excessive use of the substance can cause kidney disease, but the possible cancer link is a relatively recent discovery.

Non-prescription drugs containing phenacetin must carry warnings on their labels cautioning that extended and excessive use may cause kidney damage, said Peter S. Howsam, vice president for marketing of Burroughs Wellcome Corp., makers of Emprin Compound, which contains phenacetin.
