Youths in a convertible ride through the streets of Harrisburg, Pa., with a sign that, to some, isn't really funny - "Just out absorbing some radiation." The leakage of radiation from the Three Mile

Island Nuclear Generating Station just a few miles away has led to the voluntary evacuation of many families from the area surrounding the facility. (AP Laserphoto)

Risk of core melt-down still termed 'very remote'

Dick Thornburgh said late Friday no general evacuation is "necessary at this time," to cope the threat posed by the disabled Three Mile Island nucle ar power plant. A federal official said. the possibility of a melt-down of the nuclear core was "very remote"

Thornburgh told a news conference his earlier recommendation that young children and pregnant women within 5 miles of the plant would remain in effect. He said his advice to those living within 10 miles of the plant to stay indoors would expire at midnight Friday

There is no imminent danger. said Harold Denton, director of operations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission But he said. We are concerned about the status of fuel in the core (of the reactor)'

He said "this is easily the most serious accident in the licensed reactor program," saving there has been "extensive fuel damage" and "we must get the reactor in cold condi-

Crutchfield said a gas bubble has developed inside the nuclear reactor. creating a small risk of core melt down which would release large amounts of radiation. He said indirect evidence indicated up to one fourth of the 177 fuel rods may be damaged

Pre-school children and pregnant women began evacuating the area within 5 miles of the plant Friday about six hours after new radiation leaks were reported and more than 48 hours after the accident which touched off the first leak

More than 150 pregnant women and young children were at a shelter in Hershey And about 130,000 people reduce pressure inside the reactor living within a 10 mile radius of the vessel are handled carefully, the bub reactor were advised by the governor to stay indoors to avoid radiation

Government and plant officials is sued conflicting reports on whether the new leak was expected, but they agreed that the amount of radiation was a surprise "I did not expect the radiation

Plants 'safe,' officials say

By The Associated Press

Utility officials around the nation said Friday that while a nuclear accident can never be ruled out entirely, they feel their nuclear power plants are safer than was the crippled reactor leaking radiation near Harris-

Reaction from people living near reactors ranged from confidence to curiosity to anxiety, while some groups protested the licensing of new

"We are convinced our plants are operating safely and are confident that type of accident will not occur in our plants," Donald McCarthy, president of Northern States Power Co., said at a news conference in Minneapolis. But he added, "There's nothing in this world I can assure you will never happen.

"We are committed to public safety," said Fritz Draeger, spokesman for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Francisco. He said PG&E would study the accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania to see if it needs to modify plans for its Diablo Canyon plant, which is under construction

Jack Dyer, a spokesman for Toledo Edison in Ohio, said his company's Davis-Besse Unit Lat Port Clinton has a better safety design than the Harrisburg plant, although both were made by Babcock and Wilcox Co., which built nine of the 70 nuclear plants now in operation

"We don't know precisely what (type of equipment) the other plant has," said Dyer. "But we think because our construction was about two years later than that plant, our design would have that much more benefit of the technology.

And officials of Public Service Co. of Colorado, which operates the state's only nuclear plant, said that while an accident can never be ruled out entirely, they feel their plant is safer than Three Mile Island because it is designed differently. They noted their backup system worked successfully during a minor accident in January 1978.

"Our reaction is certainly one of deep concern, followed by the question, 'Why did it happen, and can it happen here?''' said John Baiar, spokesman for Florida Power & Light, which has four reactors. "We cannot guarantee that it won't. All we can guarantee is that we are using the highest safety standards science and technology allows."

Oregon Gov. Dixy Lee Ray, who was a chairman of the former Atomic , Energy Commission, said the Pennsylvania accident will lead to safer nuclear plants in the future.

She said at a news conference that because of that and other, less serious, mishaps, other plants now in operation or under construction will be reviewed and be made even

Accident may lead to stricter standards

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter said Friday the accident at the Three Mile Island power plant in Pennsylvania probably will lead to stricter safety standards for nuclear plants.

White House press secretary Jody Powell quoted the president as saying that the incident will make it necessary to reassess safety regulations and precautions

Carter said the accident "will probably lead inexorably toward even more stringent safety design mechanisms and standards. The president's comments about stafety standards were made in a meeting with out of town editors Carter also Friday instructed the chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to "err on the side of caution and safety" in response to the Earlier, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger had said that despite the spread of radiation from the damaged nuclear reactor at the Three Mile Island plant, "we will have to have nuclear power" to meet future energy needs

The energy chief told reporters, "I think overall we will have to have nuclear power" as part of the nation's energy strategy

Litigation on 'moral issues' legal group's main concern

A conservative version of the American Civil Liberties Union is the way Louis Ingram describes his Foundation for Law and Society

Ingram, president of the organiza tion, said the group seeks to provide legal representation for people bringing suit on "what we would call moral

In an early action, the three-yearold legal foundation represented plaintiffs who sued Jimmy Carter over amnesty for draft evaders.

They lost, but Ingram is quick to point out the defeat came in a procedural matter — the merits of the case were never heard before a court, he

And, said John Sullivan, business manager for the group, the suit kept the amnesty issue alive a good two years longer than it would have been

Currently, the foundation is representing six Christian schools taking on IRS regulations which impose complicated desegregation standards the schools must meet to retain taxexempt status

That suit brought Ingram and Sullivan to Midland Friday for a meeting with persons interested in the litigation, said Ingram. While here, Ingram will speak today to the Conservative Caucus in the Sheraton Inn. The caucus business meeting will start at 11:30 a.m., with a buffet luncheon at noon and Ingram's speech at 12:30 p.m. The Foundation for Law and Society also represents plaintiffs suing the International Women's Year Commission and 13 other government agencies which Ingram said transferred money to the commission. Ingram said the line of attack there is IWY funds, congressionally appropriated, which allegedly were used to lobby state legislators for the Equal Rights Amendment.

"This has nothing to do with whether one is in favor of ERA," the president said, but rather with what he contends are violations of federal law.

Of the suits it has filed, the group has won only three relatively minor education cases in Pennsylvania.

But, Sullivan said, that's not the point. "We don't necessarily become discouraged if we have a series of reverses," he said, because it keeps an issue before the public.

And, Ingram contended, the courts. properly, tend to move slowly in setting precedents. So it may take a number of suits over a period of years to make progress in some areas, he

If he could file a suit on any subject, it would be "educational malpractice," Ingram said, defining the term as a school producing a high school graduate who can't read and write. Education is "virtually the whole ball game as far as the country's future is concerned," he added. Reservation for the Conservative Caucus luncheon may be made by telephoning Ezra Isbell at 683-1891.

Trash fires receive least fanfare

The flashing red lights and wailing sirens of the Midland Fire Department's fire fighting equipment present quite a show to curious onlookers as the firefighters rush to the scene of

But there isn't much of a show as Midland firefighters respond to the fires that occur regularly in local trash containers.

Fire Chief Raymond Lewis said the fire units responding to those fires don't "go red." The flashing lights and wailing sirens are off, and the units obey all traffic regulations, said

Many of the fires that occur in trash containers are started intentionally, said Lewis, set by children who want to liven up a dull after-

During the school months it is not unusual to see five or six trash fires in one block, said Lewis. Seven fires were reported last weekend - four within a five-block radius.

The outbreak of trash fires over the weekend was unusual. Most of them occur in the afternoon when school lets out, the fire chief said.

"You can almost tell by the alarm bell ringing that school is out," said

For that reason the trucks are driven to the scene of the fire without the usual lights and sirens. Hopefully, the lack of a show will discourage the setting of such fires, said Lewis.

From January through February there were 47 trash fires in Midland, said Lewis. Those fires usually average 10 minutes to put out and require two to three men per truck, he explained. 'That adds up to a lot of man hours spent on these trash fires," he said. Included in the cost of trash fires, added Lewis, is the wear and tear on an $80,000 pump truck.

There also is a possibility that another fire might occur when the firefighters are busy putting out a fire that someone set on purpose.

There is a Texas law that states a person may be confined to a state correctional faciltiy for turning in an unlawful alarm said Lewis

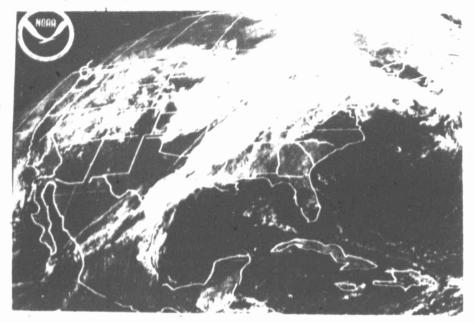

This law covers those people who set fire to trash cans and then call the fire department, Lewis explained.

Although Lewis knows of no one who has been arrested under this law, he noted some of the telephone lines coming into the fire station can be locked onto the number that called in, so the fire department can call that telephone number back.

This could be used to catch kids who make these calls, said Lewis. But regardless of who makes the call, said Lewis, "we have to respond

"We can't afford not to," he said. "It's too big a risk."

Nuclear mishap: The story keeps changing

By The Associated Press

Minute by minute, the official explanations of Friday's trouble at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant kept changing: The new release of radiation was unexpected. No it wasn't. Yes it was. We're considering evacuating. There's no need to leave. Some people should go.

From utility spokesmen, federal government representatives and state authorities: Conflicting re-

Contradictions started Wednesday, hours after the 4 a.m. accident. The first word of trouble came from James Cox of the Pennsylvania State Police: A "general emergency" had been declared at Three Mile Island near Harrisburg. "They said there is no radiation leak. Less than an hour later, from off cials of Metropolitan Edison Co. which operates the plant: A small amount of radiation has been released into the atmospher; no significant radiation is expected outside the plant area itself. By the end of the day: above-normal radiation levels reported as far as 16 miles from the 200-acre site.

Thursday morning, radiation was still leaking.

Thursday evening, with low-level radiation still beaming from highly radioactive water within the plant, from Charles Gallina, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspector at the scene: "At this time, the danger is over for people off site.

Friday morning. While Energy Secretary James Schlesinger tells a breakfast meeting that the accident, while serious, "underscores how safe nuclear power has been in the past,' there are reports of new problems. Here is a chronological look at what was said starting shortly after 9

-John Comey of the Pennsylvania

Emergency Management Agency: There has been an uncontrolled release of radiation. "We've notified all four counties (surrounding Harrisburg) of the potential situation. We don't know what it is yet or how

-Gov. Dick Thornburgh's office: The release was "unexpected;" evacuation of the four counties is being

-E.C. McCabe, section chief with the NRC: A 30-millirem-per-hour reading was taken south of the plant. It "is not an indication of a serious problem. It is indicative of a gaseous pocket that was released and dissipated. We have not heard of anything serious enough for an evacuation yet." (The average American is exposed to about 100 to 120 millirems per year.)

-Frank Ingrahm, an NRC spokesman in Washington: The release was not unexpected. It occurred as an automatic part of the recirculation of reactor cooling water. The amount of radiation released was higher than normal, but is decreasing "to somewhere near the normal range.

-Jan Strasma, another NRC spokesman: "Yes," it could happen

-Ingrahm: There are conflicting reports; my initial information might have been wrong.

-Paul Critchlow, spokesman for the Pennsylvania governor: "We are advising people within a 10-mile radius to stay indoors throughout the morning until further instructions are handed down. There is no need for an evacuation. There was a series of uncontrolled bursts of radiation from about 6: 40 a.m. until about 9 a.m. this morning. Our people do not believe there is any immediate danger ... The heavier dose of radiation that was released into the atmosphere will be ty much down to normal." -McCabe: "I did not expect the dissipated by noon ... Levels are pret-radiation levels to be that high. The venting of the tank because of the pressure is necessary. The plant is not cooling down as fast as would be expected. There have been some problems with the letdown system. It has been slower than we would have liked, but we are progressing."

-Critchlow: "The company had hoped to shut the reactor today. But they are finding more fuel damage than they had anticipated and this apparently is resulting in the increased radiation charge.

-Comey: "Businesses in Harrisburg appear to be releasing employees. People are leaving the Harrisburg area."

-David Milne of the State Department of Environmental Resources: Company employees "were transferring radioactive waste from one storage area to another and this apparently caused the higher radiation eruption.

-Jack G. Herbein of Metropolitan Edison: The release was between 7:30 a.m. and 8: 15 a.m. and was intentional. "The situation is under control ... I suspect we will have to vent gas from the same tank again.'

Midland boy, 13, injured in mishap with skateboard

A 13-year-old Midland boy was listed in "fine" condition in Midland Memorial Hospital Friday after the youth, aboard a skateboard, collided with a moving motor vehicle earlier the same day, said Midland police and a hospital spokesman.

The hospital spokesman also said the boy was scheduled to go home

Friday night.

Matt E. Cavanaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Cavanaugh of 3201 Douglas Ave. received minor injuries in the accident, said a hospital

Midland police said the accident took place in the 2000 block of North Big Spring Street and the 300 block of George Street shortly before 4: 14 p.m. Friday

A 1972 Chevrolet Impala driven by Elisa Carrasco Hernandez, 29, of 222 N. Main St. was traveling south on North Big Spring Street when the boy rolled into the road from George Street aboard a skateboard, according to reports.

San Angelo officials want one thing — a final verdict SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - San Angelo leaders say their local economy will certainly survive without Goodfellow Air Force Base although they would prefer to keep it.

What the city officials really want is the Air Force to say once and for all if the base will stay open or get shut down in an economy move.

The government said Thursday the base will close but military authorities disagreed on a timetable.

Grady Elder, manager of the Chamber of Commerce-Board of Development, said, "There is no question that we will keep on fighting. In no way are we giving up.

But he tempered those remarks by adding, "We must be prepared for a closing. We've been planning for some time for the re-use of the base in case an announcement was made. If we find out we can't buy a six-month delay and that closure is imminent, then we will look into re-use plans.'

Mayor Tom Parrett, who carried 20,000 signatures to Washington earlier this year in efforts to save the base, said, "I think the citizens of San Angelo can face this thing with pride with the feeling we have done everything possibly can. I do not think we need to apologize for the effort we have put forth.

'My feeling is — and I have talked to several people in San Angelo who have the same sort of feeling - that if this is something definite, we don't want any more of a reprieve. If it's going to happen, let's get on with" plans for adjusting to the closure.

Chamber President Joe Mertz said he didn't thing the economic impact would be as bad as some have thought, although Goodfellow is one of the largest employes in this widely diversified ranching, farming, industrial and educational center.

At least two committees met to determine how to put the base to its best use should the Air Force leave

Most of the outcry from the local citizenry came from the area of town where Goodfellow civilian employees and retirees live.

Terms of the tentative agreement on economic issues were not immediately available, and it was not known whether the agreement would meet the wage guidelines under President Carter's antiinflation program.

While there were numerous reports that the two sides were about ready to wrap up their contract, sources also said unexpected last-minute snags could hold up agreement. Negotiators were working against a midnight Saturday deadline.

Jurors to spend weekend at home

HOUSTON (AP) - A long, nervous weekend loomed Friday for three former Houston policemen hoping for a jury verdict that will favor them in the Randall Alan Webster civil rights trial.

Some 20 hours of deliberations in four days had proven fruitless by day's end, and the jury decided to work during the weekend.

The families of Norval Wayne Holloway Jr., Danny H. Mays and Paul D. Dillon filled the hall outside the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Finis E. Cowan Friday, joking nervously with the defendants and whiling away the long hours reading, knitting and doing needlepoint. The three officers were charged in connection with the Feb. 8, 1977, shooting death of Webster following a high-speed police chase in southwest Houston. Attorneys for the defendants contended during the trial that Mays shot Webster in self-defense. The prosecution contended Mays' pistol went off when he struck the 17-year-old Shreveport, La., youth in the head while he was trying to surrender.

The government accused all three former officers of conspiring to cover up the truth by planting a "throw-down" gun next to Webster's body and lying to the grand jury that investigate the incident. Cowan, who presided during the four-month trial, had already left town Friday for a speaking engage-ment in San Antonio and had a full docket of cases scheduled in Galveston for the upcoming week.

So he left U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals to take a verdict. But Cowan is the only one who can advise the jury further if it reaches an impasse, or declare a mistrial if the panel can't reach a ver-

Police said an estimated half-pound of explosives placed in the front of Neave's blue sedan detonated as he was driving up the exit ramp from Parliament's underground garage, beneath a flowe-decked yard adjacent to Big Ben, the clock tower that is Parliament's hallmark.

Scotland Yard sources said it was not clear whether the bomb was planted in Neave's auto while it was parked in the Parliament garage, or was a time-bomb planted earlier in the day elsewhere. A man on a scooter reportedly sped from the scene after the blast.

A man purporting to represent the Irish National Liberation Army, military arm of the Irish Republi-can Socialist Party, telephoned a Dublin newspaper

"This is the first attack in a new campaign against the British political and military establishment and will continue until there is a complete withdrawal of the British political and military presence" from Northern Ireland.

The IRSP, a left-wing revolutionary splinter group of the IRA's Marxist "Official" wing, is allied to the movement's "Provisional" wing fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Soon after, a further claim was made to the same newspaper by a man claiming to represent the Provisional IRA. He said, "We have this message for the British government: Before you decide to have a general election you had better state that you have decided not to stay in Ireland.'

Britain's ambassador to the Netherlands, Sir Richard Sykes, was shot to death in The Hague on March 22, and anonymous callers later claimed responsibility for the Provisional IRA.

Strike may be ending

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - A 15-day-old teachers' strike showed signs of weakening Friday as more teachers returned to classrooms. Some 1,300 pledged to continue their walkout,

For the first time since the strike began, there were no pickets at some schools. At others, the number of teachers on the picket lines appeared to dwindle.

Superintendent of Schools Clyde Lindsey said some teachers had appeared at the school board offices this morning to have anmesty agreements signed so they could return to classes.

However, he said he did't know as yet how many teachers would return to work.

At a five-hour meeting Thursday, Lennie Penn, president of the striking East Baton Rouge Parish Association of Educatos, said the vote was 1,342-460 against accepting a "reconciliation res-olution" offered by the school board. The resolution included full amnesty for all teachers who walked out March 16.

Roloff gets Clements' support for his fight against licensing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Evangelist Lester Roloff saw the Capitol's political "facelifting" for himself and collected Gov. Bill Clements' support Friday in his fight against state licensing of his homes for wayward children.

Clements told a news conference he supports regulations from applying to his homes. legislation to exempt the Roloff homes from state Department of Human Resources licensing. "I support what Roloff is doing in his schools and I am going to support the bill to correct this inequity," The governor met Roloff for the first time Thursday night at a fervent, Bible-and-flag-waving rally

The attorney general said he had asked the state declined to hear his appeal last fall.

Former Attorney General John Hill, whom Clements defeated in the governor's race last November, won several court decisions that Roloff's homes must be licensed.

"We will enforce the law. I don't think there's any doubt about that," White said. He said any decisions to prosecute depend on the information he receives from the human resources department.

The attorney general added he was personally opposed to excessive government regulations. House Speaker Bill Clayton told the rally he was proud to have cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of a 1977 bill to exempt from state regulation all child care institutions operated in the name of religion.

No trace' of asbestos found in city schools

Midland's schools have "not even a trace" of asbestos on their walls or ceilings, according to a report received by the district Friday.

Scrapings from three representative schools were tested this week by chemists at Southwestern La-boratories and were found free of the substance which the Environmental Protection Agency has called a health hazard.

The EPA had urged school districts throughout the nation to check for the potentially dangerous material, which was sprayed on the walls and ceilings of some 10,000 schools in the country.

If the sprayed-on coating flaked or deterior ated, it could constitute a health hazard, the EPA said. Test scrapings were taken from Lee High School, San Jacinto Junior High School and Rusk Elemen-

Claims faith healers make may meet with doubt

By ROBERT DI VEROLI Copley News Service

Tales of hypocritical faith healers are part of the nation's folklore. The outlandish claims sometimes made in their behalf, their concern for money and their posturings as God's emissaries have combined to give many faith healers a distinctly malodorous reputation.

Even devout Christians have been alienated, for while they believe Christ worked miraculous cures in New Testament times (and that God still can do so), they doubt His power is so easily transferrable to the selfstyled 20th-century itinerant faith healers.

There is also the question of why, since anyone can pray directly to God for help, faith healers are even needed. Faith healing, in other words, has a much better name that faith heal-

"It shouldn't be, but it's true," says the Rev. Francis MacNutt of St. Louis, a Roman Catholic charismatic and author of "Healing."

"The picture faith healers have given the public over the years is not very good in a lot of ways, but that's a shame because after all, Christ himself was a faith healer," says Mac-Nutt. "But 'faith healers' had acquired a band connotation because of the cheap showmanship and so on often connected with it.'

DR. ROBERT YOUMANS, a Chula Vista, Calif., surgeon who also runs a faith healing oriented practice, says some faith healers are charlatans. "I've known people who've said they were cured of something when they never had what they were told they had. It's just been the power of suggestion at work," Youmans says.

This is the only kind of power, in fact, many will concede to faith healers. "Faith healers can do little more than any autosuggestionist, hypnotist or other mind-manipulator," says John M. Banks of the Church of Christ. "All these reports of faith healers curing arthritis, cancer and other physical conditions have never been proved. The only cures they've ever brought about have been psychosomatic and the result of the power of suggestion.

Like many other critics, Banks says Jesus worked miracles to prove he was God and that his apostles were empowered to work miracles to help spread the gospel, but that miracle should not be commonly expected

He says faith healers are much better at making money than at mak-ing people well. "Whether or not they can do what they say they can do, no one will argue they get rich quickly,"

Baptist revival to begin Sunday

Evangelist Kenneth Bobo of Hope, Ark., will be the preacher for special revival services next week at Midland's Dellwood Baptist Church.

The evangelistic emphasis will begin Sunday and continue through April 8, said the Rev. J. P. Jones, host pastor. Services this Sunday and next will begin at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., while weekday services are scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Singing and special music at services will be under the direction of Alva Boyd.

Dellwood Baptist Church is at West Ohio avenue and North Midkiff Road. The church nursery will be open to care for infants and small children during all services. The public is invited to attend the revival events.

says Banks. Not all faith healers are wealthy, but some are undeniably doing very well indeed, thank you. Tulsa's Oral Roberts, for example, presides over a multimillion-dollar ministry crowned by a university bearing his name. But Youmans, for one, says clergymen should be careful about their

"IF THEY LIVE in a high style not in keeping with biblical humility, a style that doesn't in any way contribute to the effectiveness of their ministry, that's wrong," says Youmans. "A man may need a car, maybe even a good car, but he doesn't need dozens of fine silk suits."

Whatever excesses may be practiced by others, however, have not deflected Youmans from the faith healing approach to medicine, which he practices under auspices of the Christian Healing Ministry. For both Youmans and MacNutt, moreover, Christian healing means more than curing arthritis, broken bones or can-

"It means healing a person's whole outlook on life, including his spiritual outlook, as well as curing in physical ailments he may have, says Mac-

"It's concern with a person's whole value system and what that does to real power of Jesus Christ to trans- just hormones, but that we're spirit, form people's lives."

movement, which seeks to treat the whole man (mind, body, soul), is currently in vogue because people are dissatisfied with establishment medicine's segmented approach to

"It's a movement that believes style, and that's how we treat his body as well as an openness to the we're not just a body or just a mind or too, and that to have wholeness, to Youmans says the holistic health have real health, you've got to minister to the spirit as well," says You-

> "THERE'S NO QUESTION but that a person's pain, his health, is related to his spiritual condition.'

> Youmans says he treats patients the same as other doctors "except that we honestly and straightforwardly look for the spiritual aspect. If they have and ulcer or a weight problem, that's not just something physical. It's a matter of their whole life-

MacNutt, moreover, denies that only psychosomatic, but not physical, ailments are susceptible to faith healing. "I've done enough of that myself to be able to tell the difference," says MacNutt.

"People with cancer we've prayed over for years are still alive today. That doesn't mean everybody we pray for is healed, but there definitely have been many healings of this

"Besides, many doctors say cancer has a psychosomatic origin and that up to 80 percent of all illnesses are psychosomatic, so I don't think too much of that kind of criticism."

Hobbyist prowls remote villages hunting relics of long-gone days

By TIMOTHY HARPER

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - O.J. Thompto is a gas station freak. The dinging bells, the pungent gasoline fumes, even the grime of oil and grease: he loves it Thompto, 49, makes it a particular habit to prowl the isolated rural highways of the Midwest and South on auto vacations and business trips for his insurance and bonds agency.

He can't pass an old station without stopping to chat, browse and perhaps strike a deal to add to his already formidable collection of antique filling station memorabilia.

"This is something from my childhood that's leaving America," Thompto says. "It's nostalgia, from when things were simpler, easier, when people were a bit closer together.

Thompto remembers working in the tiny New Auburn, Wis., station where his father and the other area menfolk would gather.

"Gas-pump politics replaced cracker-barrel poli-tics," he said. "We really don't have anything like that now."

Thompto, quick to point out that he began using his initials before O.J. Simpson was a gleam in a football coach's eye, has an old skinny gas pump from the Alcorn is appealing a complaining about the 1920s in his back yard. There are 30 big glass globes that used to sit atop gas pumps: the four red, white, blue and gold Standard Oil crowns, the Shell mollusk and the various domes of DX, Shelly, Sinclair, Unique, Fiore 100 and other oil companies

There's a dollhouse-sized model of an old station fronted by twin brick columns, a battered five-gallon tin for Wadhams Tempered Motor Oil, several big signs, a carving used as the symbol of the Black Eagle Oil Co., a bunch of old quart oil bottles and a soda pop thermometer sign.

He values his junk at about $5,000 but says the real heart of his collection is the more than 300 photos he has collected of all sorts of gas stations: a Wadhams pagoda, a station with domes and minarets in Opa-Locka, Fla., a giant shell-shaped building in Winston-Salem, N.C., a pirate ship in Seattle and a castle in Madison that was voted "second most beautiful gas station" in a 1927 national contest.

Eight ministers try life of panhandler

By LOU NELL HALE The Lamar Daily Democrat

LAMAR, Mo. (AP) - "Hey, buddy gotta quarter?"

The congregation of the First Baptist Church in Lamar would never have recognized their minister on the cold winter night he spent begging on the streets of Kansas City using that age-old line.

The Rev. Robert Marti was alone, cold and broke during a program in which he learned to relate to the vagabonds who roam city streets seeking handouts.

"I cheated a little. I was warmly dressed while there were some I met throughout the night who weren't. But I was broke except for the quarter I started off with," he said.

Marti was joined in the experiment by eight other ministers studying at the Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City.

"Primarily, the course is a study of how churches and ministers can minister to society through government agencies as well as through resources of the church and power structures of various communities," Marti said.

Temperatures dropped to a chilly 9 degrees on the night of the "urban plunge" as Marti started roaming the streets of the central city area. 'We were allowed to carry our driver's license and a quarter," he said. "We were instructed that at no time were we to reveal our true identity and we were to remain on the street at all times unless it was absolutely necesary" to leave.

Other ministers who posed as beggars in the urban plunge were the Revs. Gary Fenton, Windsor, Mo.; Virgil Ichtertz, Trenton, Mo.; Robert Perry, mission in Mexico City; Brantley Harwell, Carrollton, Ga.; Wayne Combs, Gilbert, W.Va.; Maxie Harris, St. Joseph, Mo.; Carl Anderson, Independence, Mo., and John Click, Wichita, Kan.

Four of the ministers spent the night at flophouses and the others, including Marti, remained on the

"I was pushed, shoved, cursed and belittled for not working," he said. "And I was physically removed from one establishment.

Self-preservation forced Marti to change tactics. "I learned in a hurry that you can work people.'

Mati said he had rubbed drty ice on his face, hands and clothing. He roled in the snow and the stood in the wind so ie would form on his jeans. And he turned into a hump-shouldered character who shuffled as he walked.

"I would shuffle up to someone, drag off a stocking cap in such a way that my hair looked terrible and hold out a dirty, gloveless hand," he said, adding that he removed a partial dental plate that left a toothless gap in

Before very long, Marti said he could almost tell at a glance who would give him a handout and who wouldn't. He said the very poor appeared to be far more generous than the affluent

Marti said once he approached a man who appeared to be an "honest bum," and the man shared half of the dollar he had just begged. "That made me feel bad because at the time I had accumulated more money than he had.'

He said three black youths apologized for not having money for a cup of coffee but offered to share a marijuana cigarette with him. Marti said one of them told him, "Here, take this joint. It will make you feel as warm as the coffee would.

An elderly woman who said he reminded her of a grandson bought Marti a meal. Another minister in the group said a liquor store owner gave him money but warned him not to spend it on cheap wine.

Marti said he gave away all but 78. cents of the money he collected.

"Two people I approached that morning could obviously afford to help another," Marti said. "When they brushed me aside, saying they had no money, I gave them a dol-Marti said he told them: "I know what it means to be broke - and I don't want anyone to be in that situation. Here, let me give you a dollar.' "I'll bet they had a miserable day," Marti said their attitude reflected what appears to be a common fault of most people. "We're too busy - we overlook the needs of others. We think of ourselves as better," he said

Obsolete laws still on books

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Think twice before you discard that banana peel.

Modern-day littering laws notwithstanding, it has been illegal since 1911 to throw a banana peel on the street in Tennessee. The law prescribes a $50 fine.

The banana-peel law is one of many unusual or undated statutes on the law books in Tennessee.

A 1939 state criminal law says marathon dancing and other endurance contests can't last more than eight hours. It says those involved in the contest must take a 48-hour break before competing It is illegal to call an-

Brasilia's grand design fails to draw masses from coast

By RICHARD W. FOSTER

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) - This city of gleaming modernity, built 20 years ago on a barren plateau as the national capital, has yet to attract a mass movement from the crowded coast to occupy and develop an empty central Brazil, as its planners had said it

The "cerrado" - the prairie-like scrubland of central Brazil that is about half the size of the U.S. Midwest - remains as poor and as thinly populated as it was before a modern, concrete and glass Brasilia rose up from the plateau's red soil. Development efforts are only now beginning to reach into the cattleraising towns on the plateau, where electricity and telephones still are novelties and dirt roads are virtually impassable six months of the year. When Brasilia officially became Brazil's capital city on April 21, 1960, it was considered a daring experiment in urban design ad economic development. It was supposed to awaken the federal bureaucracy from sleepy habits in tropical, oceanside Rio de Janeiro and to serve as the magnet to draw Brazilians from their crowded Atlantic coast to the empty, undeveloped interior.

THE BASIC ELEMENTS of the city were built in three years, including the futuristic architectural designs of Oscar Niemeyer in the main government buildings.

The federal bureaucracy is now comfortably housed in a pollutionfree city of broad avenues, cloverleafs and superblock buildings laid out on an airplane-shaped grid. The population of the city is a million. Highways link the capital with the Amazon jungles to the north and industrial Sao Paulo to the south. The federal highway known as the Belem-Brasilia, built at the same time as the capital, cuts through 1,200 miles of jungle to link Brasilia with the port of Belem at the mouth of the Amazon But the capital sits in the center of a region still dominated by absentee landowners whose herds of white, hunchbacked Zebu cattle are tended by lean, leather-skinned cowboys, eking out a living for their families on small plots that produce rice, manioc, bananas and beans.

To these people, Brasilia is a distant presence and there is little direct help forthcoming. "FROM WHAT I can see they are still spending more money on Brasilia than they are on us," said Alfredo Fernandes Neto, the young mayor of Sao Domingos, a town of cobblestone streets, cowboys and horse-drawn carts 250 miles north of Brasilia - a 15-hour drive during the rainy sea-

According to economic planners in the capital and small town mayors like Fernandes, Brasilia contributes little to the progress of cattle towns such as Sao Domingos, founded by Portuguese priests during an 18th century gold rush.

construction of a new park in Brasilia, featuring a $800,000 swimming pool which produces ocean-like "I guess after they built the park, there was no money left for us." Fernandes said. The park, which cost $18.3 million, benefits almost exclusively the middle-class residents of the capital. By comparison, a fledgling program of economic assistance to towns like Sao Domingos in the surrounding state of Goias distributed $19.4 million from 1975 through 1978, according to a government report.

late Juscelino Kubitschek, was Brazil's president from 1955 through 1960. In a 1957 New Year's message he urged Brazilians to get behind the construction of the new capital:

gest countries on this planet but we continue to live in crowded conditions. We are surrounded by vast open spaces ... but we nonetheless huddle on the coast, watching the tide rise and fall. It has become a monotonous refrain to say we must occupy our country, take possession of the land. march toward the west and stop our eternal gazing at the sea as if we hadn't made up our minds to stay."

highly industrialized states of the south and southeast, in cities such as 4.23 percent of Brazil's population in the time of a national census in 1970, its share of the national total had increase was due to population conmained empty.

To critics, the construction of a swimming pool with waves is just one sign Brasilia has not created a new pioneer mentality different from the carefree, fun-loving spirit engendered by the sun and waves of Rio de Janeiro 600 miles to the east-south-

Says an economist with a federal planning agency, "Brasilia has not yet directed its attention to the region it has occupied. The government policy not to allow industry here allows for a pollution-free environment but leaves the city dependent on federal funds needed elsewhere.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Houston's Moses Malone hit two free maining. Houston's Mike Newlin stole the in-bounds pass, drove the length of the floor but missed the easy layup, The Rockets missed another tip and Malone was fouled by Mike Gale when he went up for a last shot as time expired.

Malone's second shot was delayed briefly because many of the 15,764 fans were pelting the court with ice. Referees Earl Strom, Ed Middleton and Blane Reichelt were escorted off the court by police as some of the bitter fans fired ice at them.

The wild ending overshadowed a 46-point performance by San Antonio's George Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer.

Midland's Terlingua faces stiff challenge

By The Associated Press

Flying Paster will try to win a major pré-Derby derby Sunday at Santa Anita when he runs against nine other 3-year-olds including two colts who finished ahead of him two weeks ago and a Midland filly who beat him last year.

The race is the 11/4-mile, $150,-000-added Santa Anita Derby, an important race which is doubly important for Flying Paster, considered one of the leading threats to early Kentucky Derby favorite Spectacular Bid, the B.J. Ridder-owned colt had a seven-race winning streak snapped when he finished third in 11-16-mile San Felipe Handicap at Santa Anita March 17.

The two colts who finished ahead of Flying Paster in the San Felipe were Eldorado Stable's Pole Position, who is not eligible for the Kentucky Derby, and Jack Van Berg's Derby nominee Switch Partners. But in being beaten a head and a nose in the San Felipe, Flying Paster, high-weighted at 127 pounds, spotted eight pounds to Pole Position and 13 to Switch Partners. Pole Position was supplemented for $5,000 in the Santa Anita Derby in which all starters will be equal-weighted at 120 pounds, except the filly Terlingua, who gets a five-pound sex allowance.

Midland's own Terlingua, L.R. French and Barry Beal's extremely swift daughter of Secretariat, beat Flying Paster by 21/2 lengths in the six-furlong Hollywood Juvenile last year, but 11/4 miles might be too far for her. The filly, nominated for the 11/4-mile Kentucky Derby, won a sprint stakes in her 1979 debut, but finished second in the 11-16-mile Santa Susana in her last start.

Others' entered, all nominated for the Kentucky Derby, are Marketti, Beau's Eagle, Kamalii King, Shamgo, Instrument Landing and Grand Alliance.

Three Kentucky Derby nominees also will be in action today at Latonia in the one-mile, $40,-000-added Spiral Stakes, which drew a field of nine 3-year-olds. They are Fred E. Lehmann's top-weighted Lot O'Gold, second to Spectacular Bid in the Hutcheson; Fountain of Youth and the Florida Derby, and Leo's Danny Boy and Will Henry, 113 each.

"Well," he replied, "they kind of back off for a minute, but they don't let it bother them too much.'

It was 4 shots back of Wadkins to the threesome of Tom Kite, Bill Rogers and Mike Morley tied for third at 137. Kite had a 68, Morley and Ed Sneed, with a 69, and Bob

Turbulent WHA era comes to halt

NEW YORK (AP) — The National venation of hockey in North Ameri-Hockey League's Board of Governors ca," said Ziegler. approved a revised expansion proposal today, accepting four clubs for next season and effectively ending the turbulent seven-year history of the World Hockey Association.

The New England Whalers, Quebec Nordiques, Winnipeg Jets and Edmonton Oilers - four of the six teams in the WHA - will join the NHL, boosting that league's complement to 21. The other WHA teams, the Cincinwill cease operation.

The Bulls and Stingers will have their closedown costs covered by contributions from the four incoming members, with $3.5 million going to the Stingers and $2.85 million going to the Bulls.

"I'm happy to see that the effort both leagues have put into fighting each other now will be channeled into the development of our sport in North America," said NHL President John Ziegler in a joint news conference with WHA President Howard Bald-

"I look at this not as the end of the WHA but as the threshold of the reju-

"IT'S HARD to believe that after seven years and something like 35 ownerships in something like 23 cities that here we are today with four teams entering the NHL," said Baldwin, who turned to his right to Ziegler and continued his remarks.

"I can say to you, John, with no hesitation whatsoever, that you are gaining four very good partners."

The Whalers, Nordiques, Jets and Oilers will enter the NHL as expansion franchises. Their entry fee will be $6 million each, with $4,625,000 to be made as a downpayment and the rest to be paid in the future with revenues realized through exhibition

The payment schedule, along with the incoming clubs' rights to keep their players, had been among the bones of contention at last week's meeting in Chicago. The 17 NHL governors voted 14-3 to approve that proposal, but requests for changes in the terms of the agreement forced the meeting today which settled all deing the mild revisions in the document and embracing four teams from the league which has been its adversary virtually since its inception in 1972.

THUS ENDS hockey's seven-year civil war, at the cost of countless franchises and millions of dollars in legal fees spent on suits from league to league. Now, it appears, there will be peace, though the NHL Players Association — which was empowered to tear up the existing collective bargaining agreement if the two leagues "merged" - has not yet visited the negotiating table.

The expansion will force realignment of the four NHL divisions, with Quebec joining Boston, Buffalo, Toronto and Minnesota in the Adams Division while Edmonton and Winnipeg join the Smythe Division with Chicago, Vancouver, Colorado and St.

The New England Whalers enter the Norris Division with Montreal, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles while the Washington Capitals - a current member of the Norris sector - shifting into the Patrick Division with the New York Islanders, New

They voted 14-3 again today, favor- York Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers and Atlanta Flames.

The teams will play a balanced 80-game schedule with each club making two visits to each of the other 20 arenas.

Sixteen of the 21 teams will make the playoffs. The first-place finisher in each division would determine four of the qualifiers, with the other 12 spots, the so-called "wild cards" going to the remaining teams with the most points in the standings.

THERE WOULD be no "byes" in the preliminary round of the playoffs. Until now, the first-place finisher in each division had been exempt from preliminary-round action. The format of the preliminary round also was changed from a bestof-three to a best-of-five with the home-ice advantage going to the team with more points in the standings.

The four expansion franchises will stock their rosters through an expansion draft. They would protect only two of their current skaters and two goaltenders from the June 13 expansion draft.

Unprotected players whose rights are owned by NHL teams would become property of those teams, with all remaining players forming the pool from which the expansion clubs would select. The NHL teams will compile protected lists of 15 skaters and two goalies, with the incoming clubs choosing - at $125,000 per pick until their rosters had 15 skaters and two goalies:

No current NHL team would lose more than four players and no club may lose more than one goaltender without its consent.

Christina Corsac has noble goal

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

There might be another Ron Guidry, Jim Rice, Davey Lopes or Christina Corsac out there somewhere. We'll find out next July 17 at baseball's All-Star Game in Seattle. Christina Corsac?

She's not quite in the same company as Rice and his friends - yet. But the 12-year-old from Worcester, Mass., says she'll be there soon, namely as the first woman to play in the major leagues. She and thousands of other youngsters will be registering this month for the third edition of Pitch, Hit & Run, baseball's answer to pro football's highly successful Punt, Pass & Kick program.

Pitch, Hit & Run involves competition for ages 9, 10, 11 and 12 on the local (May 5-30), district (June 1-16) and divisional (June 21-July 7) levels before the national finals at the All-Star Game. It's sponsored this year by Burger King along with the National Recreation and Park Association and the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

'Baseball is all I care about - until basketball season comes along," admits the 5-foot-5, 110-pound pitcher and shortstop. "I guess sports is about all I care about. When baseball ends, then it's basketball and other,

"I hope to get a baseball or basketball scholarship to some college,' Christina said, looking half a dozen years into the future.

And what about beyond that? "I'd like to be the first girl to make it in baseball, in the major leagues,"

But what would she do if she showed up at spring training and found a "No Girls Allowed!" sign on the door?

"I think if I felt strongly enough to try out for a baseball team I'd feel strongly enough to try and do something about it if they didn't let me

Like what?

"I think maybe I'd sue." Last year, Christina fell just one step short of reaching the nationals, winding up as district runnerup. "She could have won it - not just the district, the whole thing," said her mother. Judith. "It was a bad day for her. She'd run a lot faster and hit the ball a lot farther than she did that day. This year I think she's got an even better chance to go all the

That's interesting talk from a woman who, a couple of years ago, believed strongly that baseball and girls (her girl, anyway) didn't belong

'The first year I was very much against it," she admitted. "My husband (Thomas, a police officer) and I tried to discourage her. She was an excellent athlete then, too, but I felt she was being singled out because she was equal — if not far better — than most of the boys. I was worried that because of her ability and all the attention she was being pulled away from her friends.

"As we noticed, though, that we couldn't supress her talent, we decided to let her go. And suddenly we were like peacocks, walking around looking so proud.

"Now we're behind her 100 percent," her mother continued. "We're no longer concerned. In fact, the way things are going today, sports is geared toward the girls. It's not like years ago, when the girl who liked athletics was either a tomboy or a 'Christina's old enough now that her opinion of herself has been formed, and it's a good, strong one,' she said. "A few years back I think she would have had a lot of trouble handling the razzing from the boys in Little League. I know we had problems with some of their parents. I mean, here they were, all proud of their sons and thinking how great their boys were and then finding out they'd been struck out by a girl. I mean, those parents sometimes got real obnoxious.

Tiny Tracy Austin now proving to be master

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) - Youthful Tracy Austin, a tennis professional for less than six months yet firmly established as one of her profession's finest, is short enough on experience that she accomplishes something new on the courts with regularity.

It's gotten to the point that the 16-year-old Rolling Hills, Calif., schoolgirl is running out of firsts and personal records.

Last week, there was her first victory over Chris Evert and an all-time high $52,000 paycheck in the championship of the winter women's tennis tour. This Sunday, it could be another all-time high payday and her first title in a major competition.

Austin, Martina Navratilova, Evert and Dianne Fromholtz are entered in a $200,000, two-day event at Rancho La Costa with $100,000 going to the winner.

"I certainly would have loved to win but I'm happy with how I did," said Austin after losing to Navratilova in last Sunday's finals of the winter tour championships at Madison Square Garden in New York. "I'm not going to come to the dressing room crying or anything.'

Austin faces Evert, whom she defeated last week 6-3, 6-1, in Saturday's opening match. Navratilova then meets Fromholtz. The winners play Sunday followed by a match for third place.

Runner-up in the competition earns $50,000; the third-place finisher will collect $30,000 and the two-time loser picks up $20,000.

Navratilova will be going for her second straight $100,000 paycheck while the 24-year-old Evert will be attempting to rebound from a tournament in which she lost to Austin and Fromholtz in the preliminary rounds and didn't make the final four.

Navratilova, 22, won last week's $275,000 tournament by downing Austin 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 before a crowd of 13,752 in the finals. Fromholtz, also 22, finished fourth, dropping a 6-2, 6-2 match to Sue Barker that determined third Correa's hot streak out paced Guy Conley for the second consecutive week while Conley rolled his second consecutive 700 set, and for the second week in a row bettered the 270 mark with an even 270 total.

Meanwhile, Diana Carlson, bowling well for the past month, skyrocketed to the 279 mark in the Texas Tornadoes League and finished the morning with a 623 series, and Gene Johnson jumped on the 270 parade with a 275 game in the Shell Mixed League, bettering his 156 average by 119 pins. Diana earned her 100 pins over average for her 279 game, as did leaguemate Sally Castleberry, who rolled a beautiful 254 game and 588 series.

Other highlights among womens bowling during the past week included Charlsie Van Liew's 604 set in the Bluebonnet League, Silk Stocking bowlers Mary Jo Parmer, 606, and Evelyn Eaton's 245-591 total, with Gwen Coleman just missing the 600 mark at 598. Corina Torres of the Pins Up League bowled a 244 game and 573 series, and scratch league bowlers Fran Krebbs, 233-617, Edith Hall, 614, and Lily Lacy, 614, also reached the 600 plateau for women.

Charlie Lacy bowled the high game of the week with a resounding 284 in the Industrial League. Among the men to reach 600 for the first time were Gary Parson with an even 600 in the Air Park Men's and Bub Brewer in the His and Hers League with 626.
