Neugebauer wins runoff By MARSHALL STINNETT Journal writer

Bailey County voted for the winning candidate in the runoff election to fill the 19th Congressional District seat to replace the retiring Larry Combest. Randy Neugebauer of Lubbock carried the county 407 to 102 or by 80 percent over Mike Conway of Midland.

Neugebauer won the race districtwide with 687 more votes out of a total of 46,504. Neugebauer won Bailey, Parmer, Gaines, Howard, Lubbock, Lynn, Terry and Yoakum counties. Conway carried Andrews, Crane, Ector, Loving, Midland, Ward and Winkler counties.

Suspected cattle rustlin' in Muleshoe area By MARSHALL STINNETT Journal writer

Benito Villa has been charged with stealing cattle from his neighbor, Roger Gomez, after Gomez reported nine calves he was feeding turned up missing.

The sheriff's officers followed tracks of calves to Villa's place across the road. The tracks indicated the calves were being driven.

The calves had already been moved from Villa's place, but after questioning Villa led the officers to the calves in another location.

Villa was arrested June 6 and bonded out on June 7.

The officers are looking for two other suspects they think were involved in the crime.

Drug lab found in field By MARSHALL STINNETT Journal writer

A local farmer near Needmore called the Bailey County Sheriff's Office about

Johnny Vaughn-murder or drug overdose?

By MARSHALL STINNETT Journal Writer

Robby Vaughn, brother of Johnny Ray Vaughn, told the Journal he thinks Johnny was

Vaughn Highway 3269. The lab was partment, the Narcotics Division of the Texas Department of Public Safety and Muleshoe Police Department.

According to witnesses, Vaughn and his girlfriend, Cindy Barnes of Lubbock, left the site at 11:30 p.m. shortly before the raid. They took an ounce or more of methamphetamine to Lubbock where they were staying at the Koko Inn. A short time after they arrived in raided in a joint effort by the Lubbock, Vaughn became ill. The Lubbock police ordered an autopsy on Vaughn's body but it may take two to three weeks for the toxicology report, which may or may not determine the cause of death.

Robby told the Journal his brother was running the meth lab because he had gotten "too Cindy Barnes told police that many tickets" to continue in his truck driving job.

Storm creates confusion among citizens

(At left) Storm clouds rolled in over Muleshoe last week, Tuesday evening. (At right) People crowded into the Sheriff's basement seeking shelter after they were notified of possible severe weather.

By MARSHALL STINNETT Journal writer

A series of storms moved across Bailey County last week dumping a total of 2.5 to 3 inches of rain and hail accompanied by high wind and maybe a small twister near Progress on Tuesday evening.

With radio and television announcers telling the public to seek shelter immediately, people arrived at the court house in droves only to find the Public Library door locked.

The plan is for the sheriff's department to have a key to the Library but the key didn't work. People began filling the Jail complex as the storm worsened.

There is only one exit to the basement of the jail complex so it is not designated as a storm shelter. However it was packed with people young and old.

Finally after the storm was lifting, a jailer received the proper key to the Library from a city employee.

Some people drifted over to the Library basement which has two exits only to find the lights didn't work or were burned out.

The Journal understands all the above problems have been worked out between the city and the county.

County Judge Marilyn Cox described the problems as a breakdown in communication between the city and the county

In the meantime, more than 5000 to 7500 acres of cotton in Bailey County were wiped out along with 2000 to 3000 acres of cotton in southern Parmer County, according to the county agent's office.

The storms left the farmers who were hit by hail scrambling to plant other crops like soybean, blackeye peas or sorghum.

some drug paraphernalia in his field.

It turned out to be a small drug lab boxed up in large plastic storage containers sitting at the end of some rows. No arrests have been made.

Board votes in new system

The Muleshoe ISD Board of Trustees passed a new class rating system Tuesday night. The new system will determine how the Valedictorian and Salutatorian will be selected for the freshmen class of 2003-2004 when they are seniors.

The new system will determine class rating on a 5.0 system.

The board also approved a new junior high student handbook.

Man charged in store burglary

The Muleshoe Police appears to have solved two crimes with one arrest according to Chief Don Carter.

On Sunday June 8, a passer-by on American Boulevard noticed a smashed in window at the Family Dollar Store and notified the police.

During the investigation the police discovered a safe containing the day's sales, about $3000 in cash and checks, missing. They also discovered that the inside door to the office appeared to be jimmied open, but from the inside.

The police also estimated the burglar had only 8 minutes to enter the store and take the safe after the store was closed. The resulting investigation led to the arrest of James Andre Williams, the assistant manager.

Williams is charged with theft of approximately $2,991.96 in US currency and $443.15 in checks.

A routine search of the house where Williams is staying turned up a Craftsman power washer and video surveillance system reported stolen from McDonalds about May 13, 2003 where Williams was an assistant manager.

An additional charge of theft was added to charges against Williams.

rganization created to assist community

By VANETA GREGORY Journal writer

A new organization has been formed in Muleshoe. The Muleshoe Community Foundation is a bipartisan, non-profit organization dedicated to growth of the community. It has two major goals: to build a community recreation center and to work with non-profit organizations to find resources to help the community. According to Gary Sirkel, president, the theme of the organization is based on a quote from Thomas Edison, "If we can only accomplish what we are capable of, we would truly amaze ourselves."

The organization is already looking at prospective sites where the new community center will be built. They hope to have a temporary site functioning by the time school starts in the fall.

Gary Sirkel, president, presents $1000 checks to Rita Morris, representing Meals on Wheels, and Kay Mardis, representing the Hope Chest.

Within the community center, the Muleshoe Community Foundation plans to offer outdoor recreational activities, youth tutoring programs, youth mentoring programs, advanced training in music, advanced art studies, family counseling services, adult education programs, life and social skills training, an organizational meeting place and scheduled events.

Recently, the foundation awarded $2000 each to the Hope Chest and to Meals on Wheels. The checks presented were for $1000 and the balance will be received this summer. The organization hopes to pool resources to strengthen grant writings so more funding will be given to service providers in Muleshoe.

Last week, the Muleshoe Community Foundation elected its first officers. They are Gary Sirkel, president; Kay Mardis, vice president; and Gayle Gladden, secretary. Board members are David Marricle, who is also a business advisor, Eufemia Torres, Alice Hall, Adena Johnson, Kay Graves and Terome Clemmons. Representatives who will work in collaboration with the board are Donna Kirk, finance advisor; Dr. Robert Lepard, business advisor; Dr. Thomas Smith, medical advisor; LeAnn Gallman, city representative; Rita Morris, county representative; and Dana Wright, school representative. These people have all volunteered their time and efforts to the foundation.

One project already in the works is a youth courts system. The foundation hopes to have this system in place by September. Members of the foundation have already spoken with area Judges Marilyn Cox, Norma Perez and Herman Morrison who are in favor of this system. Instead of being tried for minor crimes in an adult. court, youth offenders would be tried in a court where the prosecuting attorney, the defending attorney, the jury and possibly the judge are all teens. Of course, the court officials would be properly trained and would have to adhere to a set of sentencing guidelines. Most likely, the sentences would involve community service and/or restitution. If the offender does not complete his or her sentence within 90 days, the case would be returned to the adult system. The school system is currently reviewing the program to determine if school related offenses could be tem as well.

Another current project is the youth mentoring program. The committee for this program is headed by Mayor Victor Leal. The Muleshoe school system has already agreed to participate in this program. "There is a huge need for male mentors for children," said Sirkel. The committee plans to furnish a weight room in the recreational center to encourage adult males to interact with teens.

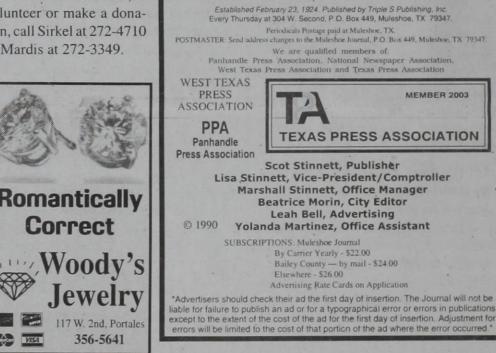

The center will probably have a Junior Board which will involve kids making the rules and enforcing them for the facilities. "Kids will make tougher rules and they are more prone to abide by them," said Mardis.

Although the services offered at the center will be free of charge, there will be membership fees. Types of memberships will include personal, commercial, business partnerships and individual donations. Arrangements will be made with those children who cannot afford to pay the fees.

For more information, to volunteer or make a donation, call Sirkel at 272-4710 or Mardis at 272-3349

OWN THE STREET

By LEAH BELL Journal writer

Down the street this week, I'm tellin' a story about an inspirational 20year-old who graduated from MHS in 2000 and I'm passing along some words of wisdom brought to my attention by Rose Sain, a faithful Journal reader.

I received a call last week from Deb Stone, wife of Pastor Jack Stone, about their son, Joey, and his acceptance into Texas Tech University's nursing program.

At first, we had discussed placing the information in the Journal's "honors" section, but once I heard "the rest of the story" (as Paul Harvey might say) I decided to let my readers in on the story of this amazing young man.

Joey graduated from Muleshoe High in 2000 but had basically already chosen his career by the time he was a junior, partly as a result of a shadowing program at the school and partly because, at the time, he had already been nursing his own diabetes since the eighth grade.

Joey has Type I diabetes which affects children and can be onset at birth. He was diagnosed at the age of 14. Today, he's six foot two inches tall and weighs 225 pounds. He'll be 21 in November.

Deb recalled when Joey was diagnosed. He had dropped from 171 pounds to 131 pounds in a few short months his eighth grade year but the family thought he was losing weight because of a teenage growth spurt. While on vacation (something they hadn't done in many, many years according to Deb) Joey collapsed. Results of his blood sugar test were dangerously high - 595. He was placed in ICU immediately and began doing for himself, what he didn't know then, would be his career - nursing

According to Deb, Joey hasn't been hospitalized since. He was placed on the insulin pump in the ninth grade and has managed to control his diabetes very well for the past seven years.

For those who aren't familiar with an insulin pump, Deb gave me a general description of what it looks like and what it does.

The pump is a pager sized device that is (in Joey's case) worn at the waist and is attached to his belt. The pump holds a reservoir of insulin which is

Stone skin into the abdomen area. Joey programs the pump to inject a certain amount of insulin throughout the day. When he needs extra insulin, he just pushes a button and the pump does its job. Joey's job is to know when he needs this "bolus," or injection of extra insulin.

According to Deb, Joey counts the carbohydrates he has on his plate each meal. For every ten grams of carbs he eats, Joey needs a unit of insulin. He calculates the ratio and programs the numbers into the pump.

In addition to the pump, Joey works out, eats right and visits Dr. Beceiro, his diabetic doctor, quite often.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Beceiro calls Joey his prize patient according to Deb.

"Joey keeps his diabetes

Beceiro's nurses for saying something a long time ago, when Joey was first diagnosed, that really hit close to home in Joey's mind and has stayed with him all these years. The nurse told Joey not to get down about having diabetes because "you can either control it or it can control you. It's your decision." He's lived by that sentiment every day since according to Deb.

Deb also said that Joey is very open about his disease. Back in high school, he even helped a neighbor, Evelyn Ellington, insert her new pump.

In a phone interview with Evelyn, she said that Joey was caring, concerned and very gentle. (All three signs of a good nurse in my book. How about yours?)

Joey will be starting nursing school on July 7. The Texas Tech School of Nursing only accepts around 50 new applicants per semester. He is classified as a junior at TTU and is expected to graduate from nursing school in two and a half years. He works at Play It Again Sports in Lubbock in addition to achieving a 3.7 GPA this last semester.

Joey has two sisters who have also graduated from Texas Tech.

His sister, Misty Hull, is married to Steve and they, along with their two-yearold daughter, Makenzie, live in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Misty received a double master's degree in counseling from Tech and currently works as a professor of psychology at Pike's Peak Community University. She also works for Children's Ark, a program supported by the state of Colorado designed to help troubled teenagers. Steve works in the architecture business.

Joey's other sister, Micha, lives in Vail, Colorado. She graduated from TTU with a degree in human resources and is the human resource director for Cascade Resorts.

Rose Sain stopped by with a short poem written by Ozella Jenkins of Lubbock that appeared in another newspaper. She wanted me to share it with our readers so I am!

Words to remember by Ozella Jenkins: It is time for Little League and Pee Wee games. I am writing this poem so maybe someone will think while watching the games.

"Just A Little Boy" He stood at the plate with his heart pounding fast. The bases are loaded, the die has been cast. Mom and dad cannot help him. He stands all alone. A hit at this moment would send the team home.

The ball nears the plate. He swings and he misses. There are groans from the crowd, with some "boos" and hisses. A thoughtless voice cries out, "Strike out the bum!"

Tears fill his eyes. The game's no longer fun.

Remember, he's just a little boy who stands all alone.

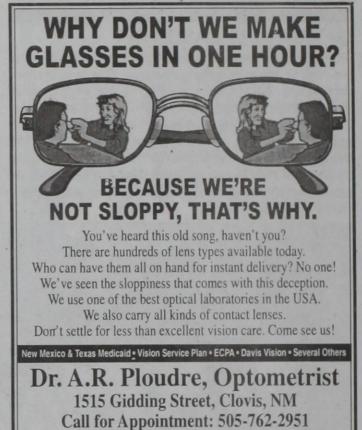

So, open your heart and give him a break.

For it's moments like this a man you can make.

Keep this in mind when you hear some forget.

He's just a little boy and not a man, yet.

so well in check that the doctor brags on him to other patients," she said.

Catherine Schacher, Kevin Wallace marry in Amarillo

Catherine Lynn Schacher and Kevin James Wallace, both of Amarillo, were married at St. Thomas The Apostle Catholic Church in Amarillo on June 7, 2003. Officiating the ceremony was Msgr. Tash. Organist was Denise Wecke and soloists were Lisa Schilling, Karen Schilling and Reuben Uriegas.

Catherine is the daughter of Vernie and the late Eugene Schacher of Lazbuddie. Kevin is the son of Jim and Nancy Wallace of Houston.

Given in marriage by her brother, Daniel Schacher, the bride wore a romantic gown of white Venise lace and chiffon from the designers of Alfred Angelo. The short sleeve gown featured a scoop neckline and back. The bodice was covered in a beautiful floral Venice lace that was further embellished with pearls and crystal sequins and the soft chiffon shirt flowed from the waist gracefully to the floor and swept into a chapel length train. She carried a bouquet hand-tied with purple roses, white hydrangeas, stock, sweet peas, freesia and many more shades of purple and white

A Story of Two Fathers and Two Sons

Had the brokenhearted father been one of the self- or demondeluded pagans whose lives are described in the same amazing volume which chronicles his, perhaps the grisly request of a bloodthirsty "deity" for still more blood would have made a kind of morbid sense.

Exactly how the request came, and what form it took, we're not told, but that it was a true and authentic command of the only true and living God was absolutely a matter of no doubt.

Not to him. Not to Abraham.

The "father of the faithful," the "exalted father," the one christened by God "father of a multitude" was being asked by the Father of the universe to offer as a sacrifice, killed by a sharp knife, and consumed by fire atop an altar, that son of promise, the only son through which that "multitude" could be born and the promise could be realized. Yes, Abraham would have expected such a command from a god or gods deluding pagans, but it was unlike any command he had ever received from the living God. It was absolutely unlike . . . well, unlike God.

God knew what he was asking. God the Father was asking father Abraham to take Isaac to Mount Moriah and to give him up.

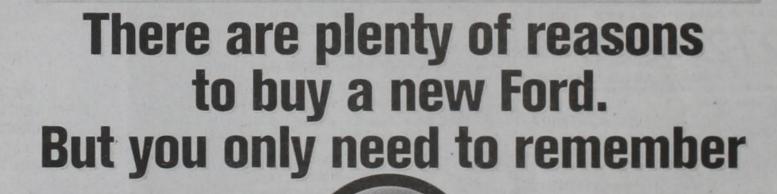

God knew that Solomon would later build his temple atop that hill.

God knew how many lambs would one day be slaughtered there and how many sacrifices would be made. Atop that hill.

And, as brokenhearted but absolutely faithful Abraham was himself dying inside with every step towards Moriah, who knew better than God the thoughts that go through the mind of a brokenhearted father about to watch his son die at the top of a cruel hill? God knew Abraham's son was old enough to carry the wood for the sacrifice. Isaac was old enough to realize that this sacrifice was like none he had ever before witnessed. Isaac was old enough to resist when his old father, with tears streaking down his face and wetting his gray beard, placed him on the altar, bound him, and raised a knife. Abraham was a heartbeat away from piercing his dear son, slashing his own soul, and watching his own fondest hopes bleed out as Isaac's life-blood stained the altar.

But God stayed his hand. Now both God and

But it was indeed God's command.

What son was he to offer? God himself had said it-that dear son, dearer than life itself, the son "whom you love."

Abraham knew that Abraham would be absolutely faithful. What Abraham couldn't know was that God's own Son would humbly and obediently allow himself to be bound to wood atop another terrible hall. Hands would be raised to pierce him. And God would not stay those hands.

God the Father of all life and all love would through his own tears be absolutely faithful.

ETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

After reading the last two letters to the editor, the officers of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8570, more commonly referred to as the VFW, felt it necessary to clarify to all readers that as a club we have not asked Juan Chavez to look into allegations of the local law enforcement targeting our club. We are aware of patrons having commented to Juan Chavez of being "targeted." The VFW and local law enforcement have always worked together. There has always been an open invitation to any officer to come in at any time for any reason.

ride home to any patron who feels he will be a danger to himself or the community. At one time, and maybe even now, Chief Holmes and Chief Dominguez offered safe rides home to anybody from any location. All they had to do was call the P.D. We are fully aware of the fact that the general consensus of the community believes that the VFW is , a "beer joint for drunks." (Our club is very misunderstood.) They are not aware of the scholarships awarded from the Voice of Democracy contests and the Patriots Pen contests offered to any student at the high school and Jr. High but what we would really like from these fine people is a pat on the back to all veterans for fighting and dying to give them the right to express their views in any media form. We do not believe this is an issue of race or social status for the simple reason we have a range of members and patrons that include people from the working class to the prominent and everyone in-between.

If the VFW has anything to present to the council, we will take care of it ourselves. We have worked with local city officials and officers since we were chartered in 1969 and we will continue to do so.

By DELTON WILHITE Journal sportswriter

Coach Shana Simms' Lady Mule Camp of Champs held this past week set a record with 80 young ladies attending. Thirtyseven fourth, fifth and sixth graders met in the mornings and 43 seventh, eighth and ninth graders worked out in the afternoons.

"This was by far the best camp we have had" said Simms. "The numbers really illustrate the level of interest our young ladies have in the sport of basketball. Their skill levels have steadily increased each year."

"Mrs. Shelly Turnbow has done a great job of teaching ball handling skills in elementary before the girls get to the junior high level. It will pay big dividends for us as these girls go through the program."

The camp is four intense days of work on the funda-Kellie Morris honored mentals of ball handling, dribbling, shooting and passing. All the work is generously mixed with fun and competitions. The morning group's emphasis remained on the fundamentals.

The older girls practiced the basics also, but teams were chosen and a minitournament was held during the week. The tournament provided game experience as well as emphasized teamwork.

Coaches involved in the camp along with Simms were Carey Sudduth, Linda Pshigoda, Amy Carlyle, Priscilla Aguirre and Candace Hutto.

"I was very pleased with the turn out for our camp this year" continued Simms. "As coaches, the camp provides us with a window to the future of Lady Mule basketball. These are Lady Mules in the making and our future looks very bright."

Muleshoe High School percussionists attended the Texas 4-H Roundup at the Texas A&M campus in College Station June 12 and competed in the "Share The Fun" musical. The students competed with 11 other schools for the state title. The statewide contest, which has over 30 different competition categories, is for 4-Hers who qualified through district. Gathered are (back row, from left) Cristobal Almanza, J.C. Orozco, Shanna Rempe, Brant Wedel; (front row, from left) Cydni Vandiver and Cami Jo Vandiver. Not pictured is Dal Grumbles.

lished a process for credit by examination without prior instruction. Any student, grades K-12, who wishes to receive credit for a class or a grade level and move to a new grade may do so within the following guidelines. A test will be administered free of charge and will be aproved, furnished and monitored by a representative of the Muleshoe Independent School District.

Elementary students must score 90 percent or more in areas of language arts, math, social studies and science to advance to the next grade.

Secondary students receive credit by scoring 90 percent or better on tests in individual classes, (i.e. English I)

Parents or legal guardians must notify the principal of the intentions to test at least 30 days before the date of testing.

Gourd artist to be featured at Carolyn's July grand opening

MULESHOE — Make plans now to be at the July 4th grand opening of Carolyn's Christmas Creations at its new location on the corner of Main Street and US Highway 84 in Muleshoe. Carolyn hopes a bangup crowd will join her as she opens the doors to a store teeming with five times the merchandise her current location at 224 W. 2nd holds.

Stop in to see hundreds of new items, including food, purses, jewelry, antiques, fine and reproduction furniture, bronzes, gift items, home decor, baby and wedding merchandise and ornaments. Carolyn is planning customer contests and is showcasing five of the most creative and unique artists to be found in Texas and New Mexico during the grand opening festivities.

One of the artists scheduled to attend is gourd artist Sue Haberer, now of Levelland and formerly of claimed gourd "addict" and has turned her hobby into a thriving business named Earthly Creations. Sue
