

RESIDENTIAL AREA FLOODED — Houses in the River Plantation subdivision between Houston and Conroe remain flooded after two days of torrential rainfall. Up to a foot of rain has been recorded in the area and clouds continue to unload on the region. Many homes are flooded or isolated by water across roads and highways. The heavy rains moved into Houston Thursday night, snarling traffic and forcing some evacuations. (AP Laserphoto)

PUC Drops Fuel Cost Adjustment

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Public Utility Commission voted unanimously today to abolish fuel cost adjustment charges and ordered three electric utilities serving one-third of the state to refund $3.2 million to their customers for overcharges.

The refunds are the first ever ordered for an electric utility in the three-year history of the three-member commission.

The commission said a controversial series of transactions among subsidiaries of Texas Utility Fuel Co. was not necessarily illegal, but ordered cheap sales of gas from Texas Electric Service Co. to Texas Power and Light Co. halted and said the utilities must obtain advance approval for such transactions in the future.

Commission chairman George Cowden had recommended the state agency order Texas Electric Service Company, Texas Power and Light and Dallas Power and Light Companies to refund $3.2 million to their customers for overcharges collected through fuel adjustment costs.

Commissioner Alan Erwin had recommended the staff of the PUC prepare a new procedure for setting rates that will eliminate fluctuating fuel adjustment charges and force all utilities in the state to obtain specific approval from the agency for the fuel charges on a six-month period.

"What we have found in an investigation of this case is that abuse of fuel adjustment clauses can and has occurred," Erwin said. "Fuel adjustment clause had a good purpose when we did it, but it has a lot of holes."

Erwin said abolishing the fluctuating charges on fuel may reduce consumers' electric bills somewhat, and will even out the cost of electricity for utility customers.

Cowden recommended against ordering the massive $17 million refund urged by the PUC staff at the outset of the agency's investigations into a complicated series of transactions involving the three utilities which are subsidiaries of Texas Utility Fuel Company (TUFCO).

Cowden said the transactions criticized as "sweetheart deals" were not necessarily a violation of state law, but indicated the commission will insist utilities obtain advance authorization for such moves in the future.

In the controversial case of TESCO's trade of cheap natural gas to Texas Power and Light for a future share in the Martin Lake generating plant, the commission said it was not practical to order refunds but ordered the utilities to halt the deal.

"The commission is unwilling to require the companies (TP&L and TESCO) to look back and account for the cost of the gas at 22 cents per thousand cubic foot or at the cost of replacement gas or at the difference between the two costs," the commission said.

(Southwestern Public Service officials in Lubbock were surprised by the PUC decision, and said they are uncertain of its effects.)

(Roy Holmes, SPS district manager, predicted the order would not affect rates inside Lubbock, since the city council sets electric rates here.)

(Without seeing the order, Holmes said it seemed it would be "quite cumbersome" to roll the fuel cost into the base rate and said it probably would require an adjustment of the base rate "quite often.")

(Lubbock Power & Light rates would not be affected by the decision.)

Price Hikes On Gasoline Cited Here

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Gasoline prices in the Lubbock area may reach $1 a gallon before the end of the peak summer driving season if present trends persist, a survey conducted this morning by the Avalanche-Journal showed.

The survey indicated gasoline prices have continued their steady climb, most grades going up by about two cents a gallon.

Meanwhile, a nationwide poll conducted by the United Press International revealed prices were up as much as five cents a gallon over last week in some parts of the country. One dealer in Honolulu was reportedly selling gas for $1.02 a gallon, the highest in the U.S.

The average price for a gallon of regular leaded fuel in Lubbock hovered at 69.9 cents today at self-service pumps, up two cents from last week at most stations.

Increases in premium averaged a penny a gallon at most stations, from a low of 75.9 cents at one Chevron station to a high of 83.9 at one Texaco station, the highest in the city.

Self-service premium remained fairly constant in price. The low of 73.9 cents was reported at one Texaco station and the high of 76.9 at several Gulf and Exxon stations. The high octane premium is not sold at most stations, but remains the

Panel Moves To Preserve Old Houses

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Urban Design Commission Chairman Beverly Stribling has declared a moratorium on further dismantling of two 13th Street houses located on property the First Baptist Church plans to use for additional parking.

The moratorium applies to the houses at 2219 and 2223 13th Street pending a decision by the commission on whether to designate the Overton South Neighborhood a historic landmark district, Mrs. Stribling said.

That decision will be made May 17, the same day the Zoning Board of Adjustment will be asked to approve the use of the three lots for parking.

Mrs. Stribling said she was asked to issue the moratorium by members of the Overton South Neighborhood Association, who also requested the neighborhood be considered for historic landmark district designation.

The moratorium was the first decision of its kind made by the commission since it was formed in September.

The two houses affected by the moratorium also are potential historic landmarks, Mrs. Stribling said.

The owner of the two houses, E.G. Cone of E.G. Cone Construction, said he'll probably cooperate with the moratorium.

However, he said he planned to meet

Storm Drenches Houston

By United Press International

Torrential thunderstorms that inundated Southeast Texas with more than a foot of rain in the past two days produced waist-deep flooding in downtown Beaumont and Houston today, and turned some freeways and city streets into parking lots as motorists fled to higher ground.

Boats were used in Houston to evacuate persons from movie theaters and business places, with water up to the top of cars in parking lots.

At Port Neches, a lightning bolt from one of the severe morning thunderstorms ignited fumes aboard a drained Liberian oil tanker, sparking an explosion and a fire. Thirty-two crewmen jumped to safety, but one man was reported missing and feared drowned.

National Weather Service forecasters said Southeast Texas residents could expect no immediate relief from the spring-time deluges and predicted the seasonal showers would persist through the week-end.

Despite the two-day, widespread inundation of Southeast and Central Texas and the thousands of forced evacuations, only one drowning — in Austin 160 miles to the west — had been recorded in the floods. Flood-related injuries also were reported at a minimum.

In Houston, however, a teen-ager identified by police as Victor Ray was struck by a car and killed as he helped route traffic around the flooded areas.

And in Fort Worth, 300 hundred miles to the northwest, four teen-age boys narrowly escaped death Thursday after a wild ride through a flooded storm drain. The city in North Central Texas also reported minor flooding after a 5-inch rain fell in only two hours.

Despite the apparent harshness of the storms, the heavy rains — 12 to 13 inches in many areas — historically are not that uncommon to the marshy, bayou country of Southeast Texas.

"In North Texas (and other inland areas) you would have a limited moisture supply. Even if (the thunderstorm system) doesn't move off, it rains itself out," said NWS meteorologist Jack Stewart in Alvin.

"Here you get a booming system (the Gulf of Mexico) and it's got an unlimited moisture supply for all practical purposes and it just keeps raining. It can perpetuate itself."

Even as the high waters were beginning to drain off in Beaumont and Houston today and the cities were returning to some degree of normalcy, forecasters announced a new squall line had formed off

Davis Ordered To Pay Priscilla $3.4 Million

FORT WORTH (UPI) — T. Cullen Davis was ordered to pay his estranged wife Priscilla $3.4 million in cash and property, but can move back into his $6 million mansion after 30 days, according to the divorce settlement announced today.

Both Davis, the millionaire industrialist acquitted of committing murder at the mansion but awaiting another trial for attempting to have his first divorce judge murdered, and Mrs. Davis, whose daughter and lover were the two people Davis was accused of murdering, appeared happy at the size of the settlement.

In final arguments, attorneys for Davis had said the settlement should be $400,000 while Mrs. Davis' attorneys said it should be $50 million.

"I thought it was a fair decision," said the obviously pleased Davis. "But I was not pleased to give her that much money. I didn't want to give her anything. I doubt very seriously whether we'll appeal."

Priscilla accepted congratulations from friends with a quiet, "Thank you," but gave no indication whether she would appeal. Her attorney, Ronald Aultman, said, "We will have to talk to Mrs. Davis."

"I'm still trying to figure it out," Mrs. Davis said.

Judge Clyde Ashworth ruled that community property the couple must divide amounted to $6,949,999. Priscilla's half will include cash, property, her automobile and incidentals, and a $135,000 cash advance. The couple will be formally divorced after a 30-day waiting period.

The couple separated in 1974, but the divorce trial has been delayed repeatedly by Davis' criminal troubles. He was charged with killing two people — Priscilla's daughter, Andrea Wilborn, and her lover, Stan Farr, and wounding Mrs. Davis and a family friend at the mansion in the summer of 1976. He was acquitted of the murder of Andrea, but the other charges remain in effect.

Last summer Davis was accused of attempting to hire an FBI informant to arrange the murder of the first divorce judge, Joe Eidson, and another 14 persons described as Davis' enemies. His trial in Houston on that charge ended with a hung jury, but prosecutors in Fort Worth have said they will retry him.

Ashworth apparently gave the mansion to Davis because it was built on land he had inherited, and gave Mrs. Davis — who has lived there since the separation — 30 days to vacate. If she is not out within that time, she must pay Davis $50,000 a month.

Davis said he will move in soon after the 30 days, and indicated he will take his mistress, Karen Masters, with him.

"Karen will probably re-do it, but I liked it the way it was," Davis said.

Mrs. Davis did not say where she will go, but she said she certainly would go.

"I'll probably be out because $50,000 is a high monthly rent," she said.

Davis' attorneys seemed pleased.

Rail Wreck Injures 200

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — A passenger train collided with a work train on the former Penn Central main line across Central New Jersey today and authorities said up to 200 persons may have been injured.

A spokesman for the Edison Fire Department said most of the injuries were thought to be minor. The spokesman was not identified.

Area ambulance crews and fire trucks rushed to the isolated scene.

A spokesman for Conrail, which operates local trains on the track, was unavailable for comment.

The southbound train reportedly struck the work train while traveling slowly.

A flash fire possibly caused by falling electrical wire was extinguished quickly, fire officials said.

Nuclear Accident Will Likely Change Technology

EDITOR'S NOTE — A lot of things are bound to change for the nuclear industry in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident. Investigations, re-evaluations, and reassessments are already under way, and they're likely to touch every major aspect of energy policy and energy technology. This is the first of five articles exploring these changes.

By ANDREW SCHNEIDER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The scientist who wrote the textbook on risks of nuclear power says the nation will "learn more from the study of this one event at Three Mile Island than from 10 years of reactor experiments."

"Until now," said Dr. Norman Rasmussen of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, "we've only had hypothetical cases to deal with. Now we have the real thing."

Rasmussen is author of the "Rasmussen report," long considered the industry bible on reactor safety.

The accident at the atomic power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., has generated an intense review of the entire nuclear industry, its technology, safety, and future.

Within a week of the start of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident, nine congressional inquiries were ordered. More have been scheduled, and a presidential commission will conduct an investigation.

"It's time to stop for a moment, find out how we got to where we are and determine if it's where we want to be," said Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, chair of the House Interior Committee energy subcommittee. "If we don't do this now we may never get another chance."

The cry for a halt was picked up and echoed by hundreds of anti-nuclear groups throughout the country.

Several state officials also demanded a pause.

—In New York, Gov. Hugh Carey said he didn't think there would be any nuclear plants in New York's future "for many years."

—In South Carolina, Gov. Dick Riley said he would oppose any future nuclear energy facilities.

—In Oregon, on orders of the governor, the agency charged with approving new nuclear plants reopened hearings on a proposed twin-reactor unit along the Columbia River.

—In Massachusetts, lawmakers voted 151-1 for a resolution urging Congress to halt the licensing of all new nuclear plants.

But other state leaders thought no action should be taken. One, Texas Gov. William Clements, even said, "There are four plants under construction. I wish we had eight."

Critics of nuclear programs said indications of human error and the failure of six safety systems at Harrisburg prove that atomic plants are unsafe.

Yet, industry spokesmen use the same data to argue that elaborate, duplicated safety systems eventually worked and prevented a catastrophe.

Rasmussen said the statistical analysis in his report envisioned "a possible scenario of system failures" like those at the Pennsylvania plant.

"We knew it could happen some day, but we didn't expect it to happen now," Rasmussen said. "Our figures indicated that a series of problems such as reported at Three Mile Island could occur once in 20,000 reactor years. It happened in the first 500 years of operation and that was unexpected."

"It's like playing poker. You know that sooner or later you'll draw four aces. It could happen the first deal of the game or after playing for 25 years." Rasmussen said he remains confident of the safety of reactors but plans to reevaluate his statistical probabilities.

"Harrisburg will be a learning experience, he said, adding, "Oh man, have we learned."

While technical experts debate the mechanical problems, government and industry leaders are agonizing over another critical problem raised by Harrisburg — public reaction.

—From Maine to California, anti-nuclear groups took to the streets with banners saying "No Nukes" and "No More Harrisburgs."

—In the state of Washington, a judge dismissed trespassing charges against 148 anti-nuclear demonstrators arrested last year for occupying the construction site of the Satsop nuclear power plant. The Gray Harbor, Wash., county attorney requested the charges be dropped because he said the Three Mile Island incident would make it impossible to find six impartial jurors.

"All the talk about radiation dangers may serve to regenerate the public's persistent belief that anything nuclear can produce a mushroom-shaped cloud," said Dr. Robert Taylor.

Taylor, former director of the National Council on Radiation Protection, has been involved with the nation's atomic activities since the early 1930s. "We started off with the bomb and that set a bad image," Taylor said. "If the first use of electricity had been the electric chair we'd still be fighting for the light bulb today."

The nuclear power industry was in trouble long before the Three Mile Island accident. Utilities, wary of the rising costs and regulatory problems, have for the past several years canceled more nuclear plant orders than they have placed. Last year saw 12 cancellations and only two orders.

The four makers of nuclear plants were hoping Congress would act this year to shorten the long period — now up to 12 years — between the time a utility decides to build a nuclear plant and the time it begins operation.

Industry leaders said President Carter, in his latest energy message, had planned to press for a law to gradually shorten that period to six years. They said the president would have pointed to nuclear power's good safety record.

Instead, after Three Mile Island, Carter announced appointment of a panel to recommend improving the safety of nuclear plants.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said the administration will submit a bill to shorten regulatory delays, but its chances of passage seem slight.

For all the problems, some utilities remain devoted to nuclear power. "The way I see it, the country has absolutely no alternative," said O.J. Peterson III, the treasurer of Virginia Electric & Power Co., which is building three nuclear plants. "If they can't develop nuclear, they won't have enough energy."

The two largest makers of nuclear plants, General Electric and Westinghouse, have enough orders backed up to keep going for a few years, by which time they hope utilities will resume placing orders.

But some analysts have said they think the smallest manufacturer, Babcock & Wilcox, may abandon nuclear plants, which account for a relatively small proportion of its business. Babcock & Wilcox designed and built the Three Mile Island plant.

Base To Buy Fuel Pellets

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio wants trash and it has agreed to pay Baltimore County $27 a ton for it.

The first long-term contract for the sale of densified refuse-derived fuel has been signed between Baltimore County and the base for $27 a ton, or a total of $564,300.

The base is not going to buy raw trash, but rather fuel pellets made from trash. The County and Maryland Environmental Services have agreed to provide the military base with 20,900 tons of fuel pellets manufactured from solid waste between now and September, 1981.

The pellets are produced by the county at the Texas Resource Recovery Center from old newspapers, rags, plastic bags, and other solid waste materials collected by sanitation crews.

After scrap metals, glass, and non-recyclable matter are removed, the remaining material is processed at the plant into fuel and fuel pellets.

The pellets have a third of the heating power of coal, and cost about a third as much. They do not produce any of the toxic pollutants coal emits when burned.

The contract with Wright-Patterson is just the beginning in the use of fuel pellets, according to county environmental experts.

Soviets Rap Dissidents In 'White Book' Manual

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities have struck a quiet blow in their war against dissent and emigration with a 280-page paperback innocently titled "The White Book."

The volume names leading personalities of the dissident community and details their alleged activities. It amounts to an official manual for loyal Communist Party members and Soviet officials on the thorny problem of Jewish emigration and dissidents in general.

Among its pages are case histories of imprisoned dissidents such as Yuri Orlov and Vladimir Slepak, stories of Westerners caught trying to bring "anti-Soviet" material into the country, and the names and photographs of a number of U.S. reporters banned for alleged espionage.

The book goes into unusual detail on a topic normally taboo in the Soviet media and gives the official view on a series of controversial subjects. Published last November in 150,000 copies, the "White Book" definitely is not intended for wide consumption either at home or abroad.

A small number of copies reportedly appeared in some bookshops, but most are believed to have been circulated internally among Communist Party cadres, bureaucrats, police and the military.

Pair Travel

Via Canoe

WEST ALTON, Mo. (UPI) — The flooding along the Missouri River hasn't stopped Ken and Karen Dickson from getting to their jobs as teachers. They now take a canoe to work.

"We canoe through people's yards," Mrs. Dickson said. "We can tell the water's going down now because today we could see the top of a car we paddled over yesterday."

The couple leaves a second car at the point where they reach dry land after leaving their home. Then they drive the rest of the way to the Riverview School District in St. Louis County.

"We knew when we moved in here that it was a flood area," Mrs. Dickson said. "We deliberately chose a high spot for our house."

"So we can't use a flood as an excuse for not going to school."

In one of those paradoxes of Soviet life, unsolicited copies have found their way into the mailboxes of some Western news organizations.

The book was prepared by the Association of Soviet Jurists and the official group's president, Supreme Court chief Lev Smirnov, furnishes an introduction outlining Soviet arguments.

"The permanent uproar in the Western press and radio concerning exit visas to Israel for a certain portion of Soviet Jews, at the same time as the whole of mankind is receiving from the United States a neutron visa into oblivion, can only be called an intentional distortion of public opinion," Smirnov writes.

An interview with Deputy Interior Minister Boris Shumilin explains Soviet policies on emigration and human rights. "In the Soviet Union, there is the objective absence of a basis for emigration as a social phenomenon," he says. "It is well known that it is precisely in the United States that the rules and restrictions on receiving visas and crossing frontiers are stricter than in any other country which signed the Final Act (of the 1975 Helsinki Accords)."

The book gives a totally negative view of life in the West, especially as it affects Soviet emigrants. It quotes newspaper articles and letters to illustrate the disillusion of Soviet emigrants who find they are unqualified to work in the West, unable to find work because of high unemployment or just don't fit in.

It shows photographs of police breaking up demonstrations and of Israeli soldiers in training.

The meat of the book — "Espionage and Diversion Under the Slogan Defense of Human Rights" — deals with the situation inside the Soviet Union.

It denounces former Newsweek correspondent Alfred Friendly and Associated Press reporter George Krimsky as alleged Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) spies and attacks Washington Post correspondent Peter Osnes for allegedly gathering information through dissident contacts on secret installations.

Of the three newsmen, only Krimsky actually was expelled from the Soviet Union. The only accusation the Soviets leveled against him at the time was a minor infringement of currency laws.

A 1977 open letter written by turncoat dissident Sanya Lipavsky, who helped send dissident Anatoly Shcharansky to a 13-year jail sentence, is published in full.

The book makes some surprising omissions, however. The Shcharansky case is referred to only indirectly. And there is no mention of the dissident community's most distinguished spokesman, Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei Sakharov.

Biologist Eyes Sinai's Potential

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

University campuses and research centers all over Israel are busy these days trying to get a handle on what peace with Egypt will really mean for their nation's economy, as well as for Israeli society in general.

Some of the projects tend to be theoretical. But one that is very specific — and that could be meaningful for the United States as well — is under way at the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, not far from Tel Aviv.

We visited the world-famed research and teaching center recently to meet with Professor Haim Aviv, a 39-year-old molecular biologist who has developed a bold proposal for a joint Israeli-Egyptian project as an outgrowth of his work on improving the processing of sugar cane into chemicals such as ethanol.

Aviv proposes that the two countries join to turn the barren Sinai desert into an agro-industrial complex that could produce both food and energy. (Under the terms of the recently signed peace treaty, Israel will turn the Sinai over to Egypt in stages over three years.)

Although much of the Sinai is arid and rocky (reminding visitors of the bleak lunar landscape), he contends that a significant portion of the region is a sandy area that could be cultivated with the proper irrigation. Aviv points out that Egypt has excess water from the Nile which could be piped to the Sinai, while Israel is well-known for its expertise in irrigation.

He suggests that the two countries jointly develop the Sinai by establishing a complex of agriculture and industry to grow a crop that could produce both food, which is needed by Egypt's large and growing population, and energy, which an oil-short Israel badly needs. Sugar cane (or a similar high-yielding crop such as cassava, a form of sweet potato) would admirably fill the bill, he told us, since it can be converted into both sugar and ethanol, which can be used as fuel.

At the same time, Aviv noted, sheep and cattle could be fed on the by-products of the sugar cane processing and paper mills could use the cellulose wastes. Israel's experience in developing arid zones into modern agro-industrial complexes could be used for the settlement of the desert bordering on Israel and Egypt.

But crucial to his plan is the production of ethanol for use as fuel, which, he noted, is being aggressively developed in Brazil, but only limpingly in the U.S. "Most of the world can create a substantial amount of its own energy," he told us. "Even if the price is higher, it creates self-sufficiency and independence."

"It also becomes more and more competitive as the world price of oil rises," he added, even before the latest round of price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"It is extremely important for the United States to help develop such an alternative source of fuel, because it reduces the absolute dependence on oil," Aviv asserted.

"The Sinai project could be a model for other areas," he explained. "If such a desert could be turned into a man-made oil field, the same idea could also be applied to other regions." He cited India, Southeast Asia, South America, Africa and Australia as possibilities.

"South Africa quietly has its own program," he added. "It's in the interest of the U.S. to make the concept viable anywhere in the world, since it will show that there are alternatives to oil," Aviv said. "The technology to produce ethanol from agricultural crops and use it as fuel is all there. But it can be improved. Up until recently, however, there was no real need to do so."

Brazil, he noted, is planning to run its cars on fuel that is 50 percent ethanol.

Although he conceded that his figures were very tentative, Aviv estimated that an investment of $300 million to $400 million would be needed to plant an area of 250,000 to 500,000 acres. The sugar-manufacturing complex and the ethanol distilleries would each require capital of $200 million to $300 million.

The value of the products would be $400 million to $500 million a year, he said, and the agricultural area could sustain up to 40,000 families, while the industries would provide work for 10,000 to 15,000 more workers.

Detailed research would be needed to determine the economic feasibility of the project, he agreed. However, Aviv added,

"The Sinai would be an important showcase for a successful Israeli-Egyptian joint venture, which could also have important political implications."

"It could also serve as a model for the development of other underdeveloped countries which are badly in need of both food and energy," he said.

Soybeans Could Overtake Corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest figures on farmers' crop planting intentions this spring continue to show that, for the first time in history, U.S. farmers this year could harvest more acres of soybeans than corn.

Agriculture Department officials have been raising this possibility for some time, citing the tremendous growth of soybeans in recent years and the more recent trend toward a leveling off in land used for corn.

The possibility of soybeans taking over as the top crop in terms of acreage harvested doesn't mean much in itself, except that the "first" time for anything — even in agriculture — is worth mentioning.

Whether farmers will wind up harvesting a larger soybean acreage than corn this fall is still subject to many factors: the weather during planting in the next couple of months, participation in the government's acreage set-aside programs, and the growing season through August, a critical time when drought and other problems can shred earlier prospects.

But based on USDA's "prospective plantings" report issued earlier this week, here is how the corn and soybean acreage situation shapes up: Farmers indicated in April 1 surveys that they intend to plant 79.2 million acres of corn this spring, down less than 1 percent from 79.7 million a year ago.

The figures include "all corn" plantings, whether it will be harvested as grain — as most is — or chopped into feed and silage.

Last year, when exceptionally good weather prevailed in the major areas, farmers harvested 70 million acres of corn for grain. The remainder of what they planted — 9.7 million acres — was turned into feed before it matured into grain or was abandoned altogether.

In 1977 and 1978, the "shrinkage" between planted and harvested acres was about 13 million acres each year.

Thus, the 79.2 million acres farmers indicated they will plant to corn this spring — assuming this will occur w8 easily could shrink to between 66 million and 69 million acres for harvest this fall, depending on the weather.

Meanwhile, farmers indicated they will plant a record 68.8 million acres of soybeans. Last year's plantings totaled 64 million acres, with about 63 million acres harvested.

The soybean abandonment in 1977 and 1978 was 1.2 million and 800,000 acres, respectively, according to USDA records.

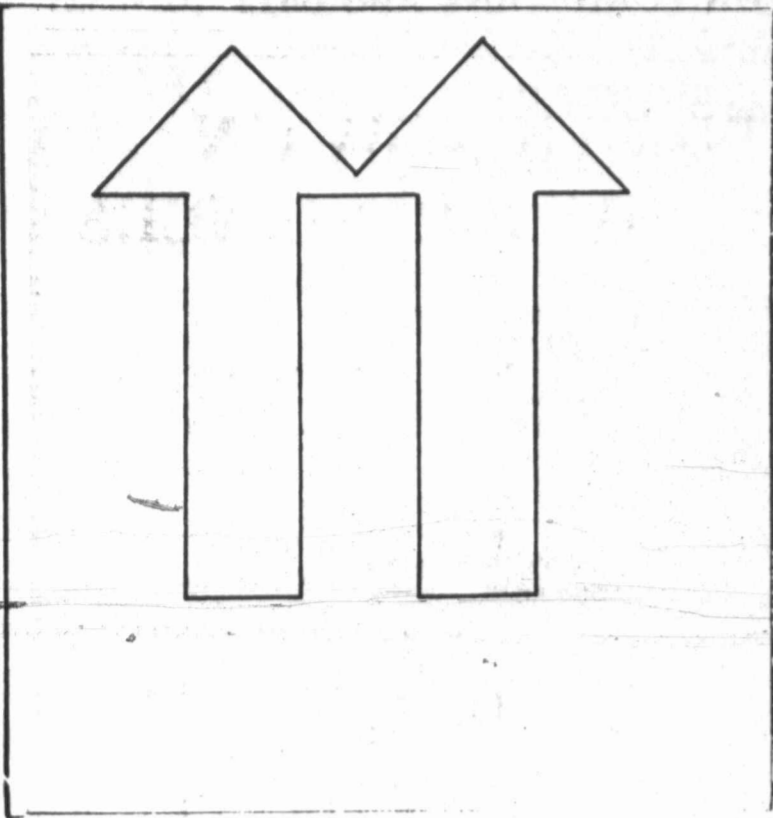

So if farmers do plant 68.8 million acres of soybeans for this year's harvest, the odds appear to favor a harvested acreage of around 67.8 million acres.

Because it is about 90 percent air, snow is an excellent insulator, according to the National Geographic Society. Snow helps keep croplands warm and can provide a refuge for small animals that burrow into it.

In that case, it appears now that corn — still the most valuable and important crop to Americans — could for the first time take a back seat to soybeans in terms of harvested acreage. But that is conjecture based on statistics. Two weeks of the wrong kind of weather at the wrong time could wipe out all such speculation. So could farmers, who might change their minds about what kind of "mix" they will plant in their fields this spring.

Stocking, Paper Make 'Brainy Monster'

By SHARI LEWIS

Here's something to do that's either wonderfully awful or awfully wonderful, depending on how you look at it! It's a way to turn yourself into a brainy monster.

Tie a tight knot the open end of a stocking. Cut across the leg halfway down (at about the knee). Wad up sheets of the classified section of the newspaper and stuff them into the knotted end of the stocking. Spread the wads out as you stuff them into that knotted end. Now pull the stocking over your head like a bank robber's mask, and look at yourself in the mirror.

What did I tell you — it's monster with paper brains! YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Arrange the figures 1 to 9 in such a way that their sum will equal 100.

Former Congressman Pleads Innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicholas Galifianakis, a former Democratic congressman from North Carolina, says he is innocent of charges that he lied to a House committee when he denied receiving money from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park. The innocent plea was entered Tuesday before U.S. District Judge Charles R. Ritchey in Washington.

Britain's 'Finest Hour' Revisited At Exhibition

By GREGORY JENSEN
 LONDON (UPI) — Air raid sirens wall through the galleries against the chattering background of ack-ack guns and swinging Glenn Miller music.
 Exhortations shout from every wall — "Careless Talk Costs Lives," "Is This Trip Really Necessary?" "Don't Waste Food," "Dig for Victory."
 This is "Britain at Bay," a nostalgic new exhibition about the home front in the good old, bad old days of World War II. It is an education for anyone under 40 and a collection of grim or not-so-bitter memories for everyone older.

 Here is Winston Churchill's tin helmet, his ration book, his silver cigar case and a typescript of the BBC speech which ended: "This was their finest hour."
 There's a Yank in uniform dancing happily with a full-skirted blonde, having a good time in the "After Hours" section. At his feet is a booklet to help GIs decipher "The Enigma of the British," something Americans are still trying to do.

 The deadly nature of war is everywhere. The show's corridors are strewn with rubble as if from from blasted buildings. There are relics of devastated Coventry cathedral, sections on the Blitz and V-bombs, horrific pictures of bomb damage and grim statistics on the 60,000 civilians killed by bombing.

Yet there is an almost lighthearted air to this recollection of the war which started 40 years ago this year. It proves beyond doubt that even in their darkest days, the stiff-upper-lip British never lost their sense of fun.
 Stringent rationing, backyard bomb shelters and supremely ugly "utility clothing" bring mostly smiles now that they're safely things of the past.
 So do the hundreds of mementoes people gave the Imperial War Museum for this home front survey, on show through next April.
 "One man sent us 51 cans of dried milk," said organizer Christopher Dowling. "I don't think he could have liked the stuff."

Another man donated a roll of wartime-issue toilet paper. Queen Elizabeth II loaned a letter which her father, King George VI, wrote to his mother, Queen Mary, describing the bombing of Buckingham Palace.
 "We heard the aircraft, saw the 2 bombs fall," the king wrote. "Then came the resounding crash in the courtyard... We felt none the worse and thanked God that we were still alive." But "it won't make me like Hitler any better."
 Adolf Hitler lurks in unlikely places in posters against loose talk. In one he peers from under a diners' tablecloth over the slogan, "Tittle Tattle Lost the Battle."

A section showing how seriously everyone took the possibility of gas attack has a mockup living room with mom, dad and junior all wearing gas masks — and Rover taking part in the activity.

New Video Tape Machines Can Record Longer

TOKYO (AP) — Three leading Japanese firms announced Thursday they will begin marketing new videotape recorders capable of recording up to 4½ hours of material. The recorders will go on sale in the United States in the fall.

A spokesman for Toshiba Corp. said the new model was developed jointly with Sony Corp. and Sanyo Electric Co.

The videotape recorders produced by those companies, and sold in the United States under their names and others, have faced competitive problems because their machines could record no more than three hours on a single cassette.

A competing type of recorder, produced by Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., can record up to four hours.

The Toshiba spokesman said the three companies will market the new model in the United States before the Christmas shopping season gets under way, probably around October.

The three companies are planning to put the new product on display at a consumer electronics show scheduled to be held in Chicago before actually putting the product on the market.

The new model can use conventional recording cassettes, with two-hour cassettes being stretched for three hours of use and three-hour cassettes up to four and a half hours.

The spokesman said the quality of the picture remains largely unchanged even when recording hours are stretched. The price for the new product hasn't been announced, but is expected to be at least 5 percent higher than for other models.

Nuclear Energy Foes To Rally In Capital

CHICAGO (AP) — Nuclear power opponents will converge on the nation's capital May 6 for a rally that organizers say is a reaction to the crisis at the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor near Harrisburg, Pa.

Biologist Barry Commoner of St. Louis, an organizer of the Washington protest, said on Wednesday that nuclear energy foes will call for a total phase-out of existing atomic plants.

The rally is planned by a new group called the May 6th Coalition, which organizers said includes 90 consumer and public action groups from across the nation.

U.S. Expects Chilean Agents To Be Tried

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States still expects the three Chilean agents allegedly involved in the 1976 assassination of Chilean diplomat Orlando Letelier to be brought to trial, a State Department spokesman says.

Spokesman Hodding Carter made his remarks Wednesday after the chief prosecutor for the Chilean Supreme Court said he would recommend that the secret police agents not be tried in Chile. Prosecutor Gustavo Chamorro also said he would recommend that the court deny the U.S. request for extradition of the agents, Gen. Manuel Contreras, Col. Pedro Espinoza and Capt. Armando Fernandez.

Curios Enliven Dull Meetings

SEATTLE (AP) — Questions from the floor and display of a firm's new wares can do wonders to liven up otherwise-boring stockholders meetings.

In the new wares department, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. did itself proud this week at its 94th annual meeting.

On display were items such as a remote control device for splicing undersea cables, and telephones hooked up to computers for the purpose of ordering merchandise from afar.

By far the most popular curiosity was a six-foot-long orking replica of a Trimline phone. People of all ages gathered around the oversized phone, waiting for someone to punch its huge lighted dial buttons.

No one did, so telephone company employee Bill Hawkins of Portland, Ore., stepped forward to demonstrate. He announced he would punch in the Time of Day service.

He punched. The white Trimline beeped, then hesitated and began to ring.

Another ring. An electronic bleep, then what was obviously a recorded female voice told those assembled: "The number you have reached is not in service..."

Apparently Hawkins punched in the time number for Portland, not Seattle. Hawkins blushed.

His misad might have been worse had it not been for Washington Gov. Dixy Lee Ray, whose voice came booming over a loudspeaker. The semicircle of phone watchers — now in giggles — ran to TV sets to watch the governor welcome them.

ATT Chairman Charles L. Brown told the 94th annual stockholders meeting this week that the firm experienced the best first calendar-year quarter in its 102-year history — earnings of $1.36 billion or $1.96 per share, up 7.4 percent from $1.27 billion or $1.88 a share from the same period a year ago.

But he cautioned that for the rest of 1979 profits would be harder to come by. Among other things, he said, costs continue to rise sharply.

Brown told the stockholders he was not able to say whether an economic downturn — which nearly everybody predicts — would occur in 1979 or hold off until 1980 or later. Nor could he say how severe a decline it might be.

"What I can tell you is that as of now, demand for our services continues to grow at a good rate. We are adding telephones at a near-record pace. And we are handling about 11.5 percent more long-distance calls than we were at this time last year."

He said that the company had committed itself in 1979 to the largest construction program in its history. The program will cost $15 billion over the year, with operating subsidiaries expected to issue about $4 billion in debentures. "In short, from here 1979 looks like a very busy year indeed," he said.

to the Evergreen State. Unfortunately, someone in control central, or wherever such things are managed, didn't put the governor's picture on the screens to go with her voice.

Instead, viewers heard the governor while watching a man, lips moving, demonstrate a new phone company project.

During a question and answer session, each stockholder who wished to ask a question was ushered — appropriately enough — to a phone booth where he or she was introduced and spoke into telephones.

Evelyn Y. Davis, somewhat of a corporation gadfly, has become a fixture at these meetings.

Referring to board Chairman Charles L. Brown as "Charlie," the Washington D.C., resident questioned him on topics ranging from minority and female employment to the $10 million the company plans to spend to sponsor orchestras around the nation.

Brown answered each patiently. "And about yourself Charlie," she told the chairman near the close of the session. "I think you're getting paid a little too much, but I like the way you're conducting the meeting and you're much better looking than John D. deButt," whom Brown succeeded as chairman.

The hall broke into laughter.

DC Agrees To Allow Right Turn On Red

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massachusetts and New York City are now the only two jurisdictions in the country where drivers are barred from making right turns at red lights.

The District of Columbia threw in the towel Wednesday and reluctantly agreed to allow motorists to make the turns, once it has a chance to post signs at the intersections where the turns will not be allowed. The district had been resisting, arguing that the city's unique street patterns and the large number of pedestrians and tourists were not conducive to allowing the turns. A proposed Energy Department rule would require the turns as a condition for receiving federal money.

Surgical Method Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Russian surgeon's method of "curing" nearsightedness by cutting the outside of the cornea may work temporarily, but could create serious problems in the long run, several American eye experts say.

Dr. Svyatoslav N. Fyodorov claims he can help myopic persons with 20-200 vision achieve 20-20 or 20-40 sight simply by making a series of cuts on the periphery of the cornea.

The cuts allow the cornea to flatten out, thereby reducing the high curvature that caused the nearsightedness in the first place, Fyodorov said this week at a news conference at the Russian Embassy.

Several leading American eye surgeons expressed strong reservations about the technique in interviews Wednesday.

The cuts could permanently weaken the cornea, and the eye is likely to bulge back to its original shape in the long run, they said.

Nevertheless, a few American ophthalmologists are trying the Soviet surgeon's method.

Dr. Richard C. Troutman of the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital in New York said Fyodorov's procedure is not very precise. "It's like playing a little Russian roulette with your cornea — six shots and hope it comes out all right," he said.

Dr. Malcolm McCannell, a Minneapolis eye surgeon, said, "I don't think there are very many eye doctors in the Western world who would recommend" using Fyodorov's technique.

Robert Drews, a St. Louis eye surgeon, agreed with McCannell, noting that, "Myopia doesn't make people go blind or anything. You just have to wear glasses or contact lenses."

But Fyodorov, who speaks English, scorns the way "man has been held in bondage to spectacles for the last 500 years. His very nose and ears are imprisoned by glasses."

The enthusiastic 51-year-old Soviet doctor, who is a recognized expert on intraocular lenses for cataract patients, says he thinks his technique for nearsightedness will be particularly useful for pilots or others whose job requires them to have near-perfect sight.

Arkansas Court, Man Disagree On Law

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—David Pitchford went looking for a state where he could take a bar examination without "wasting time" on law school, and discovered Arkansas.

After poring over scores of state codes, he ran across Title 25-101 of the Arkansas state law. He's also run up against the Arkansas Supreme Court.

"It was like an act of God," the Virginia native, who has done undergraduate work toward an English degree at William & Mary, said of his find. "There it was in black and white, just what I was looking for."

The Arkansas law says every citizen at least 21 years old with good moral character and possessing the requisite qualification of learning and ability, may, upon application, take the bar exam.

"It doesn't mention law school anywhere," said Pitchford, 26.

But the Arkansas Supreme Court sees things differently. The state's highest court says a person must have a degree from an accredited law school to be qualified to take the bar exam.

It's that rule Pitchford will challenge Monday when he goes before the Arkansas jurists.

"They're saying a rule of court can supersede a law," he said. "I don't buy any part of that."

Pitchford moved from Virginia to Memphis in January so he could be closer to "the grounds of the war." He is working in the office of Southaven, Miss., lawyer Robert G. Gilder while he spars with the Arkansas court.

Pitchford said he has no doubts he can pass the bar exam, and he's even in favor of making the exams more difficult.

"I have learned law from my father since I was 8 and I've worked as a law clerk for several years," he said. "I have a very good understanding of the law."

"I don't think law schools are properly preparing graduates to practice law. A person goes to law school, crams for the last six weeks and takes the bar exam when he gets out. He remembers the law, but doesn't know law."

Pitchford said his father, Franklin Pitchford, passed the Virginia bar exam at 19 without going to law school. The Virginia law has since been changed.

Officials Oppose Proposals

By STEPHEN M. BROWN
NEW YORK (AP) — Officials in the savings and loan industry have been less than thrilled by recent proposals intended to give "small savers" bigger returns on their savings accounts.

Managers of thrift institutions say the ideas would create a problem in maintaining profits because the proposals deal only with interest rates on deposits, not on loans as well.

Thrift institutions that pay depositors more will earn less, or run deficits, unless they can charge borrowers more, officials in the industry have been saying.

And if they are allowed to charge more, prospective home buyers will have to pay more for mortgage money, most of which comes from thrift institutions.

Banking regulators and Congress are looking for ways to ease the plight of savers who, in times of 9 percent annual inflation, earn only 5 1/4 percent on pass-book savings and who have less than the $10,000 minimum required to acquire a six-month "money market" certificate. These certificates, whose rates are keyed to the yields on 26-week Treasury bills, have been paying annual interest at about 9 1/2 percent during the past year.

The thrifts had urged that regulators provide three kinds of changes.

—Permit "rising rate" certificates that would pay higher interest rates the longer the funds remain on deposit.

—Authorize variable rate mortgages, whose interest rates can rise over the duration of the mortgage if the costs of bank borrowings rise.

—Revise tax laws to encourage saving as much as they now encourage borrowing.

Thrift institutions are the largest source of residential mortgages. These loans, which are usually issued for 20 to 30 years, form the thrifts' assets. Savings accounts are liabilities, because they are funds that must be returned when depositors want them.

Harold W. Greenwood Jr., president of the National Savings and Loan League, recently testified before a Senate subcommittee on financial institutions: "You cannot expect to see higher yields paid on savings accounts without accepting offsetting adjustments to increase yields on the asset side of thrift institutions. Specifically, is the Congress willing to accept mortgage interest rates in the next few years in the range of 11 percent to 14 percent?"

Joseph T. Benedict, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, recently told a league conference in Salt Lake City that the proposals "would be an expensive set of regulations and would impose considerable burdens on our institutions."

He was referring particularly to the proposal to pay an interest bonus of one-half a percentage point on passbook account funds that remain on deposit for one year and to establish a five-year certificate whose rate would be linked to the yields of U.S. Treasury notes.

"Somebody is going to have to pay for the higher rates and the administrative costs," Benedict said. "That somebody ... will be the mortgage borrower," he added.

Charles A. Pearce, chairman of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, offered some "preliminary observations" on the proposals in testimony before the Senate subcommittee on financial institutions.

He said the proposals, if adopted as a package, "would have an enormously adverse cost impact on savings banks at a time when their net income positions are already under severe pressure."

Mutual savings banks do business in 17 states, mostly in the Northeast, and particularly suffer from a profits squeeze between high costs of acquiring funds and state usury laws.

The thrifts have already begun to get some support from their chief regulator, Chairman Robert H. McKinney of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He told Congress that profits at savings and loans will drop about 40 percent in 1979 and 1980 if interest rates stay at current levels.

Exhibition Dedicated To U.S. Expatriates

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition dedicated to the most illustrious Americans who became expatriates to England opens Friday at the National Portrait Gallery with more than 150 portraits and related objects.

The show includes artists and writers, inventors and financiers, businessmen and beauties who chose the Old World and left a significant mark on England.

"Return to Albion: Americans in England 1760-1940" will be on view at the gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution, until Sept. 16. Admission is free and there will be guided tours daily between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

A 304-page illustrated catalogue accompanies the show. The text was written by Peter Kenin, who spent four years putting the exhibit together.

There is an introduction by Alistair Cooke, who quotes John James Audubon and John Singleton Copley as saying they would never return to America.

"Whether or not the expatriate claims to be satisfied with his voluntary exile, the reviewers of his memoirs always see him as the victim of conflict of loyalties and habits," Cooke writes.

"This may be no more than a highly sophisticated brand of sour grapes patented by writers who, having chosen to stick in their native mud, cannot believe that distant pastures are as green as people say."

It was Benjamin West, the painter, who pioneered the return to Albion. He burst on the London scene in 1763 and in less than 10 years was appointed painter of history to the king.

Following him in the 18th and 19th centuries were men who became some of the most important American artists of their times. They included John Singleton Copley, Gilbert Stuart, Washington Allston, Samuel F.B. Morse and Robert Fulton, all of them encouraged by West.

Fulton spent more than 20 years abroad, although his paintings never won much renown. The exhibition includes the watercolors for a prospectus on his submarine, Nautilus, which was spawned in his imagination long before it appeared in the fiction of Jules Verne.

He bargained with England and France for the highest price, but neither bought. Disillusioned, he returned to the United States and invented the steamboat.

One of the American women who emigrated to England was Jennie Jerome, who married Lord Randolph Churchill and became the mother of Winston Churchill. Unlike British ladies, she was active politically, intellectually and socially. The press called her "the most influential Anglo-Saxon woman in the world."

Other American beauties who followed her were Mary Leiter, Lady Curzon; Consuelo Vanderbilt, Duchess of Marlborough; and Nancy Langhorne, Lady Astor.

Writers who chose England included Washington Irving, Ezra Pound and T.S. Eliot. A portrait of Eliot by Wyndham Lewis, from the Durban gallery, has never before been seen in the United States. The same is true of a self-portrait of Sargent, on loan from the Uffizi in Florence.

Justice Not Planning To Investigate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has no immediate plans to investigate allegations that the South African government kept a secret fund to promote its own interests among influential Americans, a spokesman says.

The charges were made by Eschel Rhoadie, South Africa's former information director, before he vanished several weeks ago. The claims sparked a political scandal over the alleged use of some $100 million to influence international public opinion in South Africa's favor. Justice Department spokesman Robert Stevenson said Wednesday that although there are no present plans for an investigation, the department "would like very much" to interview Rhoadie.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Goldie Hawn, the dizzy blonde of "Laugh-In" fame who went on to win an Oscar, has given birth to a baby girl.

Hospital spokesman David Parks said the child, Kate Garry Hudson, was born Thursday and mother and daughter are fine.

"Goldie wanted a girl, so it all worked out," said Parks. Kate Garry Hudson weighed 9 pounds, 4 ounces.

The actress and husband-Bill Hudson, a member of the Hudson Brothers rock-comedy group, also have a 2½-year-old son, Oliver.

MISS HAWN

Miss Hawn, 33, won an Academy Award for her first film, "Cactus Flower." She has appeared in several other movies, including "Foul Play," "Butterflies are Free" and "Shampoo."

Billy Carter To Talk With Reporters

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Carter will meet with reporters Monday for the first time since being admitted six weeks ago to the Long Beach Naval Hospital for treatment of alcoholism, his manager says.

Tandy Rice said Thursday the president's brother will give a brief statement and answer questions at the hospital.

Carter, who has been in the hospital's alcohol and drug abuse unit since March 6, has been paying the civilian rate of $266 a day.

When he was admitted, a hospital spokesman said Carter would stay six to eight weeks.

Soviet Poet Ends Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko has returned home with his British wife and infant son after a three-month trip to the West.

Looking tanned and fit, Yevtushenko proudly displayed his 3-month-old, blue-eyed offspring to airport officials and attendants Thursday.

The poet just concluded an extensive tour in the United States and Britain to publicize a new translation of his book of poems, "The Face Within The Face." He said American audiences had been "fantastic" and that the highlight of his trip was giving a poetry reading in a Washington, D.C., cathedral.

You're Forgiven, Whoever You Are

PRAIRIE VIEW, Ill. (AP) — A confession sent to high school principal Griff Powell included a vague but sober apology — a $51 money order and, of course, no signature.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

The principal of Adlai Stevenson High School in this Chicago suburb said Thursday that he received this letter with the money order:

"Dear Sir: We are part of a group of youths who recently performed some vandalism at your school. Upon realization of the severity of our act we decided to collect the enclosed money and send it to you in the hope that it will cover the damage."

"We don't know exactly what they were referring to," said Powell. "There have been the usual broken windows, and recently someone knocked some letters off the new school sign. The money will be used to repair the sign."

"I want the youths to know I sincerely appreciate the money, and I hope this starts a new trend and others will do the same," he said.

Rideouts End Rocky Marriage

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — John and Greta Rideout have gone their separate ways after agreeing to a friendly divorce in the same local courthouse where he was acquitted on a charge of raping her.

"I'm relieved it's all over with," Rideout said after the divorce hearing Thursday. "I'm kind of vague on my feelings for her. There are no hard feelings. It's more close to friendship."

The Rideouts chatted amicably in the hallway before the divorce hearing. They said they have seen each other recently and both agreed their brief but troubled marriage could not be saved.

The divorce becomes final in 60 days. The Rideouts reached agreement on child custody and property settlements before their court appearance, but they told the judge they have not yet resolved the issue of $18,000 in attorney fees.

Attorneys for the young couple said the dispute is over whether Rideout's defense fees for the December rape trial should be classified as a family debt.

Rideout's trial was believed to be the first of a husband accused of raping his wife while they lived together. The couple reconciled shortly after his Dec. 27 acquittal, then separated again last month.

Mrs. Rideout, 23, was awarded custody of their 3-year-old daughter, Jenny. Rideout, 22, agreed to pay $50 a month for child support and was granted "reasonable visitation" privileges.

Mrs. Rideout said Rideout filed for custody of their daughter "out of spite" when she left him in March, but later changed his mind.

Marion County Circuit Judge Albin Norblad granted the divorce after a 15-minute hearing. He also agreed to Mrs. Rideout's request to restore her maiden name, Greta Mary Hibbard.

Rideout, a former cook at a chain restaurant, said he is still hunting for a job. He refused to disclose how much he received for selling the rights to his life story to a movie company and said he also hopes to have a book done so he can "tell the whole story."

"It took a lot of work, but we're friends," said Mrs. Rideout, who plans to start a temporary clerical job Friday. "He realizes we have to get along."

Last October, Mrs. Rideout accused her husband of beating and raping her in their Salem apartment. She said she does not regret bringing him to trial on the charge.

The production company for a television film about the Rideouts attended the court hearing but refused to say how much was paid to obtain rights to the story. Producer Vanessa Greene said CBS will air the two-hour "docu-drama" which she hopes to film this fall.

Rideout said his attorneys receive about 50 percent of whatever he makes on his story, but his ex-wife does not have a similar arrangement.

The Rideouts lived together and their only child was born before their Nov. 15, 1976 marriage. They had been separated four times during their marriage and the state recently ordered Rideout to repay about $1,300 in welfare payments received by his wife and daughter during those separations.

Carter Administration Changes Stand On Shah

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has changed its stand on the Shah of Iran settling in the United States, and is now saying privately that he can live here when U.S. relations with Iran are more stable.

But it was learned that the administration is not putting any time estimate on when Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would be able to come to the United States.

The shah, his wife and children have been living in the Bahamas since March 30, but Bahamian officials said at the time of his arrival that they considered his stay a "brief visit."

Since being forced from Iran on Jan. 22, the shah and an entourage that includes 30 aides, have been living in exile — stopping briefly in Egypt and Morocco before going to the Bahamas.

While the shah was in Egypt, President Carter said at a Jan. 17 press conference that it was expected he would come to the United States.

But when the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took power in Iran a few weeks later, administration officials said they were worried about mob violence against Americans living in Iran if the shah was allowed to enter the United States. They also voiced concerns about providing security for the shah.

By the time the shah arrived in the Bahamas three weeks ago, administration officials were saying that while he had not been barred from the United States, he had been strongly urged not to come here for security reasons.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that the Carter administration dispatched an unidentified American — a private citizen — to Morocco in late March to tell the shah he was not welcome in the United States for the time being because of the delicacy of Iranian-American relations.

Before getting the private citizen to carry the message, the newspaper said, the administration asked both former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and banker David Rockefeller to carry the same message. Both men, who are friends of the shah, angrily refused. The Times said.

The newspaper said Kissinger, Rockefeller and attorney John J. McCloy had been exerting strong behind-the-scenes pressure on the White House to reverse its decision barring the shah from this country.

The newspaper also reported today that the administration intends to nominate Walter L. Cutler to replace William H. Sullivan as ambassador to Iran. Cutler is currently U.S. ambassador in Zaire.

A State Department spokesman refused to confirm The Times' report on Kissinger and Rockefeller being sought as emissaries or that Cutler was being considered as ambassador to Iran.

The shah would like to go next to Acapulco, Mexico, where a sister owns a house, but the Mexican government has not yet approved a visa for him, The Times said. The shah's last ambassador to Washington, Ardeshtir Zahedi, reportedly has been traveling to several Latin American countries discussing possible permission for the shah to enter, the paper said.

Jogger Sets New Goals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — It's not that Caroline Harrington likes to jog. Far from it. It's just that she likes to set goals for herself.

The 34-year-old San Franciscan's newest goal is to jog in California's 58 counties. So far, she has run in 36 of them.

Miss Harrington first got interested in running when she finished dead last in last year's Golden Gate Marathon.

Other goals she has set for herself — and accomplished — including memorizing President John F. Kennedy's inaugural address, a Gilbert and Sullivan opera and several poems. She tucked the works in her shorts and practiced them as she jogged all over California.

But what she really likes to do is "crossword puzzles in a hammock. That's my idea of a good time."

Strike Prompts Layoffs By Several Steel Mills

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week-long strike by steel-hauling Teamsters has prompted a number of steel mills to begin laying off workers.

The strike, touched off by demands for improved contract terms, has affected steel shipments hauled along routes as far east as Pittsburgh and west to Chicago, according to Teamsters for a Democratic Union, a dissident union group promoting the strike.

Although union leaders here first said the strike was a wildcat action and ordered steel haulers back to work, the union leadership indicated Wednesday it would sanction the walkout. Union spokesman Bernad Henderson said it could take several days to approve the strike formally under the union bylaws.

Republic Steel Corp. furloughed an undetermined number of workers at its northeast Ohio finishing mills Thursday and said it soon would have to shut the plants if the strike by thousands of dissident Teamsters continues.

Despite Accident, Carter Still Nuclear Advocate

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the hazards demonstrated by Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island nuclear plant accident, President Carter remains an advocate of nuclear power.

"There is no way for us to abandon the nuclear supply of energy in our country in the foreseeable future," Carter told a news conference recently.

He believes a presidential commission will be able to establish the causes of the accident, design better techniques for nuclear power plants and to create safer operating procedures.

Carter apparently feels there is no longer any question of whether the country should forge ahead with nuclear energy. He is proposing legislation to speed up the licensing of such plants.

It is understood that privately Carter is more vociferous in his defense of nuclear power than he is publicly. He also is reported to believe the news reporting of the Three Mile Island accident was overblown.

Carter has come up through the hard-line school of Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, who formerly headed the Atomic Energy Commission, and Adm. Hyman Rickover, chief developer of the nuclear submarine.

His own exposure to radiation — and survival — while serving in the nuclear submarine forces reinforced his opinion that nuclear power is here to stay.

Carter has faced up to more of the dangers of the nuclear age than most of his predecessors — seeking solutions to the so far insoluble problem of disposing of radioactive wastes, and directing that safety inspectors be stationed at nuclear plants.

The fact is that the United States has an impressive safety record in the nuclear age, enough to have lulled the people into complacency until the Three Mile Island incident. Except for a relatively few vocal anti-nuclear protesters, the public has generally accepted statements that nuclear plants are safe.

On the other hand, pronuclear forces believe no industrial endeavor is without risks, and cite as an example the thousands of coal miners killed in the past. They also point to the lessening of mine dangers as safety measures have been developed.

Still, the magnitude of dangers of a nuclear accident far outweigh others inherent in American society. The evacuation of a million people, which became possible at the height of the Three Mile Island accident, gave some insights into the dimensions of a wartime nuclear attack.

In this connection, the president believes the accident will enhance the chances of ratification of the strategic arms limitation agreement about to be concluded with the Soviets.

Much will depend on the recommendations of the presidential inquiry panel. But one thing is clear: The question of the nation's nuclear future is out of the laboratory and now, finally, in the public arena.

CBS To Continue PBS Grants

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — CBS, which since 1968 has donated about $5 million in cash and equipment to public television, turned back a proposal this week to end the grants.

Reed Irvine, a CBS shareholder and representative of the organization "Accuracy in Media," wanted to eliminate grants to public television because of AIM objections to recent Public Broadcasting System documentaries.

The documentaries, he said, were not objective.

The vote by which his proposal was defeated was not announced.

In other business at the CBS meeting, Board Chairman William S. Paley and President John D. Backe told shareholders current year revenues and earnings are expected to exceed 1978's record figures of $3.3 billion.

"Despite the recently announced decline in our first quarter earnings, we are confident that 1979 will be another excellent year for our company, both in revenue and earnings," Paley said.

He did not say how much CBS expects to earn.

Government Encourages Poultry, Pork Purchases

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Carter administration has its way, Americans will be eating less beef and more chicken and pork.

In an effort to slow rapidly rising beef prices, the administration announced Thursday it is sharply reducing government purchases of beef, including hamburger for the school lunch program.

Purchases of raisins also will come to a virtual halt, while buying of other high-priced fruits and vegetables will be curtailed.

Rising meat and other food prices are threatening to undermine the anti-inflation program, the administration said.

Beef and veal prices increased by 35.7 percent at the wholesale level during the 12-month period ending in March. Food prices generally have increased 13 percent at the retail level.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said Thursday that to reduce upward pressure on beef prices, the government's three largest food-buying agencies will cut their beef purchases by 25 percent during the next 18 months, turning instead to poultry, pork and cheese.

The agencies are the Veterans Administration, the Defense Department and the Agriculture Department, which purchased 81 million pounds of ground beef for the school lunch program at a cost of $93 million last year. The announcement urged consumers to follow the government's example.

"We encourage consumers to increase their purchases of lower-priced meat, such as pork and chicken, as well as lower-priced substitutes for high-priced fruits and vegetables, so that inflationary pressures on scarce items are moderated but the market for them is not disrupted," said a statement.

The statement, issued jointly by Carter inflation adviser Alfred E. Kahn and Esther Peterson, Carter's consumer affairs adviser, came after the government announced that economic growth slowed sharply in the first three months of the year, which should help in slowing "all price increases."

The Commerce Department said the nation's gross national product increased at an 0.7 percent annual rate in the January-through-March period, down sharply from a 6.9 percent rate of increase in the final three months of 1978.

The administration and Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board said the slower growth showed government economic policies are working. However, Miller said that if the economy should speed up rapidly again in the second quarter, additional slowdown measures might have to be taken.

Should the second quarter GNP exceed a 2.5 percent annual rate, Miller said, "We will have to seriously consider a more restrictive monetary action." That would undoubtedly mean higher interest rates.

Miller also said fighting inflation must be the government's top priority, even if it risks a serious recession. However, he said, the "odds are" that a recession will be avoided this year.

Chairman Charles L. Schultze of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said he expects significant improvement in inflation in the second half of the year.

The actions to slash beef purchases are unlikely to reduce prices, but the administration clearly hopes it will slow the rate of increase.

Strep Throat Cause Of Girl's Death

A 17-year-old New Home girl who was pronounced dead on arrival at a Lubbock hospital at 12:30 a.m. Thursday died of strep throat, a pathologist's report revealed this morning.

Rita Roman, a junior at New Home High School, was found unconscious at her home by a neighbor Wednesday night. She was taken by private vehicle to Lubbock's Community Hospital, where she was dead on arrival.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy had withheld a ruling in the death until this morning when he received an autopsy report on the girl.

According to a pathologist, the illness, marked by a severe sore throat, high fever and prostration, usually can be cured by a shot of penicillin.

The teen-ager apparently had not received such treatment.

A 13-year-old brother who was with Miss Roman when she was found unconscious at her home, told authorities his sister had taken several tablets of a prescription medicine belonging to their mother.

The mother reportedly had not been seen in several days, and LeCroy said he has referred the incident to the Hale County Child Welfare.

Services for Miss Roman will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in New Home First Baptist Church.

Burial will follow in Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park under direction of White Funeral Home in Tahoka.

Young Suspect Surrenders

Gregory Sanchez, 17, of 2124 Ave. V, charged with the attempted murder of a city cab driver, turned himself into the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department this morning.

Sanchez was being held early today in the county jail in lieu of a $25,000 bond. The suspect was charged with the shooting of Hank Eugene Dubey, employed by Yellow Cab Co.

Dubey, 28, of 1615 29th St., was shot about 10:30 p.m. Sunday on East 19th Street, about two miles east of Loop 289. The driver alleges he was shot by a passenger in his cab, after the suspect asked him to stop on the side of the road.

Formal charges were filed Monday against Sanchez, and authorities had been looking for him until he surrendered this morning.

Dubey was listed in serious condition at West Texas Hospital, but is said to be improving.

Window Washers Cling To Scaffold

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Three employees of a window washing firm had to cling to their dangling scaffold when a winch failed as they worked 18 stories up.

When the caged, 1,500-pound scaffold's winch failed Thursday, it dropped one end of the platform three floors below the other end, said Jim Grady, manager of the 20-story downtown Eighth and Main Building.

Rescuers hoisted the three men to safety. The scaffolding then was lowered to the ground without incident.

Morton Loses Cancer Battle

EASTON, Md. (UPI) — Tributes from political acquaintances poured in today for Rogers C.B. Morton, a GOP stalwart for more than three decades who lost a long battle with cancer Thursday. He was 64.

Morton was described as a "fierce partisan," but Republicans and Democrats lauded him for "integrity and decency." Former President Gerald Ford called him "one of the most decent, honorable, constructive, unselfish and lovable persons I've ever known."

Morton, a 6-foot-7 giant, served his party in Congress, in the Cabinet and as national chairman. A family spokesman said Morton had "been quite ill for the last few weeks."

Morton, a moderate who pleaded with his party to open its doors to blacks, young people, labor and ethnics, was a congressman from Maryland's Eastern Shore from 1963-1971 — and also served as President Richard Nixon's national party chairman from 1969-1971.

He was secretary first of Interior, then Commerce, and when he had to quit because of health reasons Ford named him special counselor for economic and domestic policy affairs.

In San Clemente, Former President Nixon said:

"As a congressman, cabinet officer and party leader, Rogers Morton served the nation with contagious enthusiasm and complete dedication. His quiet courage in his long battle against cancer was an inspiration to all of us who were privileged to know him."

Former chairman George Bush said: "Although he was a fierce partisan he will be missed by thousands of Republicans and Democrats who grew to admire and respect the decency and integrity he brought to America's political process."

Doctor Hopes Vaccine May Help Cancer Victims

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A medical researcher holds out new hope for some cancer patients through a vaccine using a person's own cancer cells combined with smallpox vaccine.

Dr. Marc Wallack, head of surgical oncology at Barnes Hospital and developer of the technique, cautioned the vaccine remains experimental and is at least three years away from individual use even if it is proved effective.

"I am not here today to announce a major breakthrough in cancer treatment nor am I here to make an outlandish claim for a potential cure for cancer," Wallack said at a news conference this week.

Oncology is a branch of medicine dealing with tumors.

He said the experiment involving 40 patients has been under way since January 1978 at Barnes and Jewish hospitals through the Washington University Medical Center. The research is conducted in conjunction with the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia and the Institut Merieux in France.

"Preliminary data obtained from trials on patients with advanced colon cancer and malignant melanoma showed the vaccine to be safe and provided us with some information as to its potential effectiveness if used at the right time," Wallack said.

However, he said it was too early to make any claims about the effectiveness of the vaccine.

The therapy is designed to stimulate the body's own cancer-killing mechanisms to eliminate residual cells left behind after surgery for cancer of the colon and rectum or for malignant melanoma.

The vaccine used in the treatment is composed of either the patient's own cancer cells taken during surgery or colon cancer cells grown in the laboratory modified by an infection with smallpox vaccine.

"The infection of the cancer cells with the (smallpox) virus increases the potency of the vaccine," Wallack said.

He said the therapy attempts to mobilize the body's own defenses against cancer.

"Scientists feel there are cells — lymphocytes and macrophages — in the body capable of killing cancer cells," Wallack said. "For some reason that capability fails in some people and they are the ones who get cancer."

He said in those people who get cancer, the host defense mechanism fails to recognize the cancer cells as foreign and does not kill them. The tumor continues to grow, and once it reaches a certain size, the body's anti-cancer cells no longer are capable of killing it. Immunotherapy tries to stimulate again the cancer victim's immune mechanism to attack and kill the cancer cells.

Wallack noted immunotherapy experiments are being conducted at various research centers. He said the St. Louis experiment is the first to use as the vaccine the patient's own defences combined with smallpox vaccine.

He said the side-effects of the vaccination have been minimal.

Gene Downey, one of the patients undergoing the treatment, told reporters he gladly consented to try the vaccine after he underwent surgery for cancer of the colon. Downey, 50, said doctors told him that without further treatment there was a 50 percent chance the cancer would reappear after surgery.

Portable Kidney May Be Available Soon

NEW YORK (UPI) — TV's Six Million Dollar Man is not so far away.

At the opening session of the 2nd Annual International Society for Artificial Organs meeting Wednesday, Dr. Eli A. Friedman said television's version of the bionic man "would probably cost $1 billion" today.

"Making it," he said, "would be easier than putting a man on the moon." "The people who could make it are attending this meeting. Collected here are 1,000 biomedical engineers, physicians, and other researchers who form the world's resource in devising new forms of artificial organs — the so-called science of bionics."

Friedman's chief concern is an 18-pound artificial kidney-in-an-attaché case that he says will be available commercially before the year is out for less than $6,000.

Friedman, professor at New York's Downstate Medical Center, said the state of the art is such that he could develop an implantable artificial kidney in "five years and probably $500 million."

A small portable kidney would free some 100,000 people who must depend on the kidney machine to cleanse blood of impurities for travel.

The small kidney has been in limited use around the world since its introduction for field tests 2½ years ago. Approval from the Food and Drug Administration Bureau of Medical Devices several months ago signaled the go-ahead for mass production of the little kidney.

"This little artificial kidney in a suitcase makes it possible to perform dialysis in hotel rooms or on battlefields," Friedman said.

In fact, conference participant, Dr. S. Stiller from the University of Aachen, West Germany, brought one of the portable kidneys to the meeting and is undergoing dialysis in his hotel room right on schedule.

Friedman said manufacturing and marketing arrangement have been made with American Hoechst Corp.

The artificial kidney goes back to 1943, when Dr. Willem J. Kolff, a Dutch-born surgeon, developed the apparatus while working in near-secret conditions in the Nazi-occupied Netherlands. Kolff now heads the Institute of Artificial Organs at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

He said the side-effects of the vaccination have been minimal.

Friedman claims the portable, lightweight kidney probably could save the government hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

Hospital dialysis costs the government $28,000 per patient per year and dialysis in a dialysis center $15,000, while home dialysis costs only $8,000.

The federal government will pay $1.2 billion for dialysis treatments this year.

DR. LAMB

Vitamins Not Enough

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am certain this problem will be of utmost concern to thousands of your readers who are faced with a similar situation. When my children lived at home I saw to it that they ate a balanced diet. Now that they are away at college I can no longer supervise their food intake. One of my daughters claims she no longer cares to eat meat and for the past year or so has been eating nothing but fresh fruits and salads every day.

I feel she must be doing some harm to her body but she disagrees and says she takes vitamins every day. I would discuss this in your column and tell me if I'm worrying needlessly. Also mention what harm is actually being done to her body, if any.

DEAR READER — You have every reason to be concerned. It's not absolutely essential to eat meat if you get an adequate amount of protein from other sources in your diet. Fresh fruits and salads are fine but they do not provide the complete proteins your daughter needs. And vitamin pills don't provide these either.

The body must have an adequate amount of essential amino acids to maintain health. These are the amino acids in complete proteins that your body cannot manufacture at all or in sufficient amount for the body's needs. There are eight of these for adults and 10 for growing children.

The two main sources for complete protein in the diet are meat and milk or milk products. If you don't eat meat, you should use plenty of milk or cottage cheese or yogurt. A quart of low-fat milk with 2 percent nonfat solids added provides a little more than 40 grams of good protein. This will go a long way toward meeting her daily requirements.

Mature bean seeds are a good source of proteins but they don't contain all the essential amino acids. Civilizations that have used a combination of mature bean seeds, corn and wheat have survived because the combination will provide all the essential amino acids. With ever-rising food costs, beans can be a good source of protein to stretch the food budget.

It's true that your daughter can satisfy her vitamin needs with vitamin pills, but that won't solve the protein problem. To give you more information about the protein content of foods, I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-6, Proteins: Part II. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

The absence of sufficient complete protein in the diet means your body cannot replace the daily loss of enzymes and vital hormones. In the growing stages, growth is retarded.

You cannot build new muscle if you don't get enough protein. The protein in your muscles may be used to supply more vital protein needs for the body. Hair and fingernails may suffer as both are protein structures. The endocrine and reproductive systems may not function properly. A girl on a protein-deficient diet may cease to have normal menstrual periods. There are many other causes for this too.

The body degenerates and you may lose vital chemicals from the heart. In a sense it is a form of starvation and in severe cases, death can occur.

Linguists Discuss Work

Ever tramped the survey trail...in Africa no less?
Ed Mueller — who has lived with his family in West Africa for five years — has!

"In rain time mudholes and swollen rivers are problems, but in dry time we eat dust!"
Serving as Sierra Leone Field Director for Messengers of Christ — Lutheran Bible Translators (LBT), headquartered in Orange, Calif., Mueller can't count the miles he and his wife have traveled over rough terrain in search of languages.

But they wouldn't change a thing. They have come to love the country and her people.

The language hunt and details of it are being discussed during a dinner Monday at the Holiday Inn-Casa Grande, 6624 Ave. H.

Mueller, Dr. Modupe Taylor-Pearce, and Jeff Baker are discussing the LBT work during the dinner. Reservations must be made before Sunday by calling Nita Kiesling at 799-5928.

Targets for Lutheran Bible Translators are geographical areas where the language has been traditionally oral. Once the survey worker has defined the geographical boundaries of a given language, the missionary linguist enters the scene.

LUBBOCKITE ELECTED OFFICER — Larry Lindstrom of Lubbock, left, was recently elected president of the Campus Congregation at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin. Also elected officers were Mindy Manz of Arlington, secretary, center, and Keith Hill of Wethersfield, Conn., treasurer. They will serve as leaders of the campus ministry council during the 1979-80 school year.

Church News Universalists Meeting Here

Unitarian-Universalists from six states across the South will convene in Lubbock today when the local Unitarian Church hosts the annual Southwestern Unitarian-Universalists (U-U) Conference.

The Hilton Inn is the meeting place for most sessions of the conference, which features as speakers Rev. Judith L. Hoehler, minister of First Parish Church in Weston, Mass., and John J. McAward, five-years a staff member for the Peace Corps and presently associate director of the U-U Service Committee.

More than 150 persons are expected to attend the conference, according to registrar Dr. Doris Blaisdell.

This evening's festivities include a songfest led by Rev. Eugene Navais from Boston and a session of liturgical and folk dance conducted by Peggy Williams, associate professor of physical education at Texas Tech University.

Saturday morning, there will be a celebration of the Eucharist led by Rev. J. Frank Schulman of Houston and Rev. Matthew McNaught of New Orleans, followed by the denominational program by McAward, workshops in Religious Education, Trusts and Deferred Gifts, Church of the Larger Fellowship, U-U Service Committee, Songs for Young and Old, and Poetry. The poetry session is being led by Del Marie Rogers of Dallas.

Saturday afternoon, after an annual business meeting, conferees will visit the Rancing Heritage Museum or attend an autograph party for author Jeanne Williams of Kerrville at Hemphill-Wells Bookshop in South Plains Mall. Rev. Hoehler will give the Saturday evening banquet address, "What's Our Good News?"

Sunday activities to be held at the local church include a 9 a.m. debate between Rev. John Wolfe and Rev. Bill Gold, both of Tulsa, and the worship service by Rev.

Alfred Judd and guest minister William P. Holway of Metroplex. Luncheon at the local church will conclude the conference.

Rev. Hoehler, the first woman minister invited to address the annual conference, received a bachelor of arts degree from Douglass College, Rutgers University, and a bachelor of divinity degree with high honors from Harvard University. She is editor of the Weston Curriculum and was Berry Street Lecturer at the denominational General Assembly in 1976.

McAward received his bachelor of arts degree from Queens College, City University of New York. He served five years as a staff member of the Peace Corps; area director, Cali, Colombia; director of recruiting, Peace Corps and VISTA, Northeastern United States. He recently returned from his third fact-finding mission, the latest to El Salvador, with Congressman Robert Drinan and Thomas Anderson. In his address he is discussing the ongoing humanitarian work of the U-U Service Committee.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 14:12-24. The Living Bible

12 Then He turned to His host. "When you put on a dinner," He said, "don't invite friends, brothers, relatives and rich neighbors! For they will return the invitation!"

13 Instead, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame and the blind.

14 Then at the resurrection of the godly God will reward you for inviting those who can't repay you."

15 Hearing this, a man sitting at the table with Jesus exclaimed, "What a privilege it would be to get into the Kingdom of God!"

16 But Jesus replied with this illustration: "A man prepared a great feast and invited many to come.

17 When all was ready, he sent his servant around to notify the guests that it was time for them to come.

18 But then they all began making excuses. One said he had just bought a field and wanted to inspect it, and he asked to be excused.

19 Another said he had just bought five pair of oxen and wanted to try them out.

20 Another had just been married and for that reason couldn't come.

21 The servant returned and reported to his master what they had said. His master was angry and told him to go quickly into the streets and alleys of the city and to invite the beggars, crippled, lame and blind.

22 But even after he had done this, there was still room!

23 "Well then," said his master, "go out into the country lanes and out behind the hedges and urge anyone you find to come, so that the house will be full.

24 For none of those I invited first will get even the smallest taste of what I had prepared for them."

This delightful season draws us like a magnet to the magic world of the great outdoors. Flowers begin to bloom in all their radiance, and birds sing once more. There's an assurance in the air itself of fresh, new hope.

Spring is also a time when we're more receptive to thoughts of the eternal mystery of life. It's a special time to marvel at God's supreme plan for each of us and for all of His creation.

This week discover a new sense of wonder of the divine power that sends us a bright, new spring year after year . . . in church.

Israel To Hold Golan Area

By United Press International
Israel said today Defense Minister Ezer Weizman will go to Egypt for three days next week for talks about Israel's withdrawal from the Sinai, but at the same time vowed Israel will "never get off" the strategic Golan Heights.

The pledge to remain on the Golan Heights was backed up with the announcement that four new settlements will be established in the area, which was seized from Syria in the 1967 Middle East war.

Israel is to return the northeastern Sinai town of El Arish May 27 and to complete the first phased pullback from the peninsula by about the end of the year. It is to withdraw totally from the Sinai in three years.

The defense minister said in an interview with the armed forces radio that implementation of the peace process with Egypt should be handled slowly, with the first exchanges of visits to be done by professionals such as academics.

to avoid consequences which could be negative," Weizman said. He did not elaborate.

In southern Lebanon, a United Nations military spokesman said six Irish and two Dutch soldiers were wounded in Thursday's rocket and mortar attack on the U.N. headquarters by Israeli-backed Christian militia.

President Anwar Sadat in a national referendum described by an official as a "new covenant between the people and their leader."

Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon told Israeli settlers in the Golan Heights Thursday that he had the authority of Prime Minister Menachem Begin to promise them that Israel will never leave the area.

"I came here at my own initiative to spell out for you the position of the government, on behalf of the prime minister and his cabinet, that we will never get off the Golan Heights," Sharon said.

His remarks apparently were designed to counter a statement by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan Sunday that Israel may, one day, have to give up the Golan Heights in a peace treaty with Syria.

Dayan's remarks angered the Golan settlers and sparked calls for his resignation.

In a related development Thursday, Interior Minister Yosef Burg presided over the founding ceremony of the first regional council incorporating seven Jewish outposts in the Samaria region of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan river.

The new council will oversee municipal affairs of the Israeli outposts, all of which were established by the ultranationalistic Gush Emunim (Bloc of the Faithful) movement.

The Christian militia, led by Maj. Saad Haddad, marked the first day of the self-proclaimed independence of their tiny enclave on the Israeli border with a rocket, mortar and machine-gun attack on the U.N. base near the coastal town of Naqoura.

The U.N. spokesman said the militia pounded the base with 150 mortar and rocket rounds and then raked a compound with machine-gun fire. Two helicopters and a number of vehicles were damaged in the attack and access roads to Naqoura were cut throughout the day.

It was the fifth consecutive day Haddad's militiamen, who are supplied and paid by Israel, had shelled U.N. positions and Palestinian camps in the region in an unsuccessful effort to prevent the deployment of Lebanese army regulars with U.N. troops.

Incomplete results of the Egyptian referendum released Thursday by the Interior Ministry showed that voters approved the peace pact and the proposed reforms by a majority ranging between 98.9 and 100 percent in some areas.

The voting was peaceful except for the fatal letter-bomb explosion the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said was mailed to Cairo from an unnamed Arab country.

The blast at Cairo's main post office killed one woman employee and wounded three people. A high Interior Ministry official said the booby-trapped cigarbox was one of 70 "samples" sent to Egypt.

The official discounted claims made in Beirut that the bomb was planted by a group calling itself the "Eagles of the Palestinian Revolution." He said the bomb arrived by mail, though he conceded that Palestinians might be responsible.

Iranian Regime Boosts Execution Toll To 149

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, rejecting criticism from Iran's political leadership, declared the Islamic committees and their armed militias were needed to defend Iran's Islamic revolution.

Revolutionary firing squads today executed the deputy chief of the SAVAK secret police and two other former officials of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's regime, but an Islamic court in West Iran acquitted another officer, Tehran radio said.

The executions brought to 149 the total known shot since the Pahlavi government was toppled in February.

revolution, faced down criticism of the Islamic committees, or "komitehs," in meetings Thursday with Prime Minister Medhi Bazargan, members of his Cabinet, and Ayatollah Mahmoud Taleghani, the popular spiritual leader of Tehran.

Khomeini appeared to hold firm to his view that the komitehs could not be dissolved and replaced by the reorganized army and police until the arms in their possession were returned and the government was able to enforce its will.

The only concession made by Khomeini in talks with Taleghani were assurances of a firmer control over the committees, religious sources said.

rupt individuals and put honest people to work," Khomeini said. "We will not set aside the (revolutionary) guards to leave the door open for the enemy."

Taleghani, who went into self-exile last week to protest the free-lance activities of revolutionaries, scheduled an address to his followers in Qom later today, indicating he would not return to Tehran immediately.

But he backed Khomeini's leadership in a nationally broadcast speech Thursday night that made only passing reference for the need to control the committees.

The leadership of Ayatollah Khomeini is not only accepted by me, but the world has accepted it. He is the source of belief, sincerity, determination and honesty. I have always approved of his struggles, his words and his projects."

The remark was intended to end speculation that his self-exile, followed by countrywide demonstrations in his favor, were an expression of independent political action.

The 72-year-old leader shut down his offices and left Tehran for an undisclosed hideout after revolutionaries arrested his two sons and daughter-in-law last Thursday. The three were released after intervention by Haj Syed Ahmad, Khomeini's son.

Lt. Gen. Fazlollah Jaafari, deputy chief of SAVAK, was shot to death for wide-ranging offenses including torture. Another officer tried in the West Iranian city of Qahramanshahr, formerly known as Kermanshah, was acquitted for lack of evidence, Tehran radio said.

Tehran radio said Thursday Taleghani decided to reopen his offices and return to Tehran after talks with Khomeini. But his aides denied the offices had opened.

Political sources said the Qom talks had decisively identified the sources of power in revolutionary Iran.

Each committee is headed by a local mullah loyal to Khomeini, who controls a precinct with more powers than the police once exercised in Iran.

Though revolutionary authorities have banned arrests without warrant, political sources, including Taleghani's aides, admit arrests have taken place without government authorization.

NLRB Official Eyes Complaint

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The National Labor Relations Board will file a complaint against a striking laborers union that has been accused by a local contractor of unfair picketing, a NLRB official said today.

Investigation also has begun in Lubbock into charges of failure to bargain in good faith filed by the same union against seven city contractors, according to the NLRB agent in charge of the case.

Page & Wirtz Construction Company filed charges with the NLRB stating that Laborers Union International Local 1253 has not given proper notice of intent to picket at two New Mexico hospital construction sites.

An absence settlement issued by the NLRB requiring the union to cease picketing was refused by the union this week.

The settlement would require that the union cease picketing at the two sites and inform the hospitals of their intent to picket in 10 days before they could resume the strike.

Peter Maydanis, resident office at the Albuquerque, N.M., NLRB office said that a complaint will now be issued next week out of the Phoenix, Ariz., office.

"The absence settlement can still be settled any time," said Maydanis. "We'll take the settlement any time we can get it."

He said that the complaint will "set forth a date for a hearing" should the settlement not be accepted in time. The hearing before an administrative law judge will consist of consideration of the merits of the complaint.

Page & Wirtz has charged that the union did not inform two hospitals of intent to picket 10 days before picketing began and that they didn't state day and time of the start of picketing.

The contractor said the union was thus in violation of a National Labor Relations Act provision requiring such notification procedures when picketing is involved at a medical facility.

Union spokesman John Wallace, however, said that the provision does not apply to construction unions, but to hospital employee unions.

He said today that the union's legal department has advised him to go ahead and face the charges. "We're going to prove they're (Page & Wirtz) wrong," he said.

Meanwhile, Fort Worth NLRB agent Charles Steere has been in the city since Wednesday to interview the parties involved in charges of failure to negotiate in good faith.

The union filed the charges with the board on March 30, one day before a contract expired between area contractors and the union.

While the seven contractors involved have said that they have bargained, Wallace has contended that the seven firms have met with him, but haven't made a real effort at negotiating.

Steere said today that he has interviewed all of the union people involved in the issue, but has not seen all of the contractors. He will return to Fort Worth today but hopes to return to Lubbock to resume interviews at a later time.

After the investigation is concluded, he said he will decide if the charges have merit. If that is decided, the NLRB will file a complaint against the contractors or issue a settlement.

An attempt at negotiations between Wallace and some contractors failed Thursday when contractors decided not to attend the meeting.

According to contractors' spokesman H.R. Bundock, the joint meeting "was pointless" because the contractors had withdrawn their bargaining rights as a group in December 1978.

He said he discussed that problem with Wallace, but said that the union spokesman wanted to try anyway.

Bundock reiterated that "we're willing to meet anytime on reasonable notice with labor individually."

Wallace said today that he attended the meeting, but "no one showed up but Bundock." He said that the problem with meeting with each contractor separately is that "they won't agree to anything individually. There is no way."

most expensive fuel at full service stations.

Unleaded fuel took the biggest price jump at most full service outlets, gaining from three to four cents. The reported low was 73.9 cents at one Chevron station and the high was $1.9 at a Texaco station.

Self-service unleaded ranged from a low of 72.9 to a high of 78.9, up one or two cents at most stations in the survey.

Dealers across the city say their allotments have been cut back and that they have had to shorten their hours as a result.

Businesses Must Obey Credit Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board says companies which regularly refer customers to lenders must abide by the same federal credit rules banning discrimination by the lenders themselves.

A Federal Reserve official who asked to remain anonymous said Thursday the change would make the businesses, such as automobile dealerships and real estate firms, subject to penalties if they discriminate on the basis of race, religion, sex or source of income.

stone, as well as petrified wood, he said.

However, Cone said the second house under the moratorium doesn't have the same historic value.

Materials taken off the house have been placed in interior storage and marked so the house can be reassembled following the move, he said.

A damaged portion of the roof has been removed, he said, but the floors of the house have been oiled and will be covered with plastic to protect them from weather damage, he said.

FLOOD REFUGEE — Linne Sibley, 11, licks a lollipop as she sits on the back of a pickup truck waiting to move to higher ground at Morgantown, Miss. ## Deluges Swamp Coastal Cities the coast for yet another assault on the rain-drenched state.

"Residents should be on a continuous alert for rising water in the already flooded areas and along the Neches and Sabine rivers and their tributaries," an NWS spokesman said from the beleaguered city of Beaumont. "Be prepared to go to higher ground."

Meanwhile, emergency evacuation measures were set up for areas along Lake Houston and the San Jacinto River, which were expected to crest later today, feeding their swollen waters into bayous and waterways from northeast of Houston to the southeast.

"The river came in so quick there was just no way to get anything out," said Robert Lorenz, whose home in the Lake-side development near the San Jacinto River and Lake Houston flooded.

"We didn't have it so bad here in '73 when the river set a record. I didn't carry flood insurance on the one house in there. I know better now."

Lorenz and two other families were forced to flee after the water reached the second floor of his home. Today the water stood at the eaves of his home and showed no indication of abatement.

Dick Hawkins, communications officer for Houston and Harris County, said, "The problems probably are going to be worse Saturday. That's what we're sweating out now."

Four shelters were set up for evacuees in the Beaumont area and water was reported in downtown stores and office buildings. Rain continued to fall in the city throughout the morning.

In Houston, thousands of cars were stalled in the streets, and many people were stranded in offices or homes. Boats were used to remove residents from inundated areas, including a movie theater and freeways, which became huge parking lots because exit ramps were rendered unusable.

Houston Independent School District Superintendent Billy Reagan said there was major damage reported in many schools. Public schools were opened an hour later than usual.

"We're just having a helluva time of it here," said civil defense spokesman John Caswell. "We've got about eight boats working in the city and are using three underwater vehicles that are equipped with waterproof engines."

Hawkins said floodgates north of Houston had been opened, and low-lying areas along the San Jacinto River would have to be evacuated later today because of flooding. Although bayous across the rest of the city appeared to be leveling out, Hawkins said the flooding should be record-setting.

The lake level gauge at Sour Lake, near Port Arthur and Beaumont, stood at 30.61 at midmorning, only four-tenths of a foot from the record stage set in 1917.

Conroe, 40 miles north of Houston, received major flooding Thursday, forcing evacuation of an estimated 1,000 people. High waters still were engulfing much of the city today.

"We're having a wonderful time other than the fact we might not have nothing when we get back home," said A.J. Bustamante, who moved his wife and 14-year-old daughter into a shelter when floodwaters reached halfway up the walls of his riverfront home in Montgomery County.

Front Rolls Into Plains

A-J News Services
A Pacific front pushing eastward across the South Plains today is expected to bring cooling temperatures tonight and fine weekend weather.

Lubbock skies, forecast to be partly cloudy this afternoon, are expected to begin clearing tonight and remain mostly fair through Saturday.

Accompanying the clear conditions, Lubbock temperatures will warm to the mid-70s Saturday. From Sunday into early next week, South Plains mercury readings will peak in the 70s and 80s, according to the National Weather Service.

Lubbock temperatures tonight are forecast to drop to the low 50s — in sharp contrast to the Thursday night low of 64 degrees, which established a new record for the highest minimum temperature on April 19. The old record was a reading of 63 degrees in 1966.

Matador, with 24 of an inch, had the only significant precipitation reported on the South Plains in the 24-hour period ending at 8:45 a.m. today.

rently participate in the program.

The bill, which advanced in the state House of Representatives by a vote of 108 to 23 in a second reading Tuesday, will be considered by the House for final approval by early next week, Prenal said.

"It's already cleared the Senate, but it will have to go back because of a change in the form of an amendment," said Prenal. "I don't foresee any problem in the Senate," he added.

The bill does not contain a provision for funding, meaning that if the proposed legislation becomes law, a separate appropriations bill to TDH will be necessary to provide for increased milk inspection staff.

Prenal said such legislation would be presented if the current bill is enacted in law.

One opponent of the bill, state Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, has called it a "$3.3 million gift," representing the five-year cost to the state to assume sole milk inspection authority.

Solons Push '80 Primary

AUSTIN (AP) — House members added a rider to the $20.2 billion 1980-81 state budget bill today that could — if left intact — force a "same-day" presidential primary.

There was no objection to the rider, no debate and no record vote.

Floor leaders evidently believed the rider could be removed when the general appropriation bill goes to a House-Senate conference committee.

The rider, by Rep. Mel Chavez, D-Harlingen, says simply that no state funds could be used for a presidential primary held on any day other than the normal primary election day.

Anti-Inflation Guidelines Beginning To Suffer

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Six months after they went into effect, President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines are beginning to suffer from the same kind of credibility problem that scuttled Gerald Ford's WIN program in 1974.

Ford's Whip Inflation Now campaign became a national joke as people soon realized that WIN buttons and letters from school children were not enough to keep prices from rising. The program was quickly forgotten as the nation sank into a deep recession.

Carter's wage and price guidelines, which were announced with considerable fanfare last October, also have fallen on hard times, in part because inflation has gotten worse.

But Carter never promised all the guidelines would work. The credibility problem has arisen because the administration has said they are working in instances where they clearly are not.

Furthermore, it has failed to follow through — or think through — some of the things it said it would do.

The recent Teamsters settlement is only one example, although a big one. The administration claimed that a 30 percent increase over three years met the 7 percent per year wage guideline.

To make that claim, it bent the guidelines in all sorts of ways to make the Teamsters contract fit. This was in contrast to Carter's statement in October that if violations of the guidelines oc-urred "the government will respond — using the tools of government authority and public opinion."

There are other examples of administrative actions undermining the program's credibility:

—Carter announced a plan for inflation insurance for workers who cooperate with the guidelines, but the plan was not well thought-out and the administration didn't push it very hard with Congress. It is now a dead issue.

—Carter said the government would withhold government contracts from businesses that violate the guidelines, even though the administration knew it would be on questionable legal ground. It hasn't yet withheld a contract, and the government loses its credibility when it makes pronouncements to that effect," Burns said.

When he announced the guidelines last October, Carter asked people not to "ridicule them" and give them a chance to work. But it is the administration's on conduct in running the program that could invite ridicule.

"I see no advantage to saying 10 percent or more than 10 percent is equal to 7. ..."

—Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation adviser, said the administration would list the names of companies that defied the guidelines. And although he said a month ago such a listing was imminent, no names have been forthcoming.

—The administration published the names of 447 of the nation's 500 largest corporations that it said had pledged cooperation with the program, but declined to provide the names of those that had not done so. A spokesman said the remaining 53 corporations "are not necessarily in violation of the guidelines; they just haven't made an explicit commitment to them."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Motorists burned 320.5 million gallons of gasoline per day last year, up 11 million gallons or 3.6 percent from the previous year, the Transportation Department reported.

The 1978 gas consumption reflects a 12.2 percent hike in daily consumption over 1975, the report indicated.

Three states and the District of Columbia reported decreases in gas consumption — Alaska 5.9 percent; Delaware 2 percent; District of Columbia 7 percent; and Iowa 3 percent.

Grave Incident Saddens Writer

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Out for a walk on a rainy day, I paused for a moment in the small overgrown family graveyard down the road from my house.

The quarter-acre plot overlooking our little lake contains less than two dozen tombstones.

Since I had last been here, Wm. M.J. Selleck, died May 12, 1857, and James Selleck, died April 25, 1859, had toppled over on their faces. They had stood here for more than a hundred years, since the towering shagbark hickories shading the plot were only saplings, and now each was separated from its base and broken in two more pieces.

You could still read the faded inscription on the protruding stump of James Selleck's headstone:

"Dear brother, thou hast gone to rest;
We will not weep for thee.
For thou art now where oft on earth Thy spirit longed to be."

I hoped that William and James Selleck had been disturbed and brought low in their final rest by the record low temperatures and fierce storms of the past winter and not by the mindless vandalism so common everywhere these days.

My mind dwelled in sadness and revulsion on a recent newspaper picture showing 811 tombstones overturned in the Mount Hebron Jewish cemetery in Flushing, Long Island. A few days later, nearly 700 headstones were toppled at the United Hebrew Cemetery and the adjoining Mount Richmond Cemetery on Staten Island.

Under the headline "DOMINO THEORY OF HATE," a newspaper editorial speculated that all three nocturnal atrocities against the dead may have been committed as some sort of sick revenge for the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

It takes a special kind of meanness, beyond the police blotter terminology "malicious mischief," to knock over 1,500 grave markers for fun and kicks. It takes a special kind of madness, almost beyond the bounds of pity, to vandalize a burial ground as a protest against peace.

The dead at least, you would think, are beyond hate, beyond hurt, too late to join or oppose any protest procession.

William Wadsworth Longfellow thought so when he walked one evening among "sepulchral stones, so old and brown" of a Rhode Island graveyard and wrote his memorable lines, "The Jewish Cemetery at Newport":

"How strange it seems! These Hebrews in their graves,
Close by the street of this fair seaport town,
Silent beside the never-silent waves,
At rest in all this moving up and down."

As they slumber undisturbed, keeping "the long, mysterious Exodus of death," the poet ponders the lives of anguish and misery they led in the ghettos of Europe before emigrating to America:

"How came they here? What burst of Christian hate,
What persecution, mindless and blind, Accursed at every gate, mocked, jeered, spurned, they kept alive the ancient faith in a new land until death at last brought rest and peace."

"Closed are the portals of their Synagogue,
No Psalms of David now the silence break
No rabbi reads the ancient decalogue
In the grand dialogue the Prophets spake.
Gone are the living, but the dead remain,
And not neglected: for a hand unseen
Scattering its bounty like a summer unseen
Scattering its bounty like a summer rain.
Still keeps their graves and their remembrance green."

But now on Staten Island and on Long Island an unseen hand of hate, of vengeance, has desecrated sepulchral stones which to the poet seemed "like the tablets of the Law, thrown down and broken by Moses at the mountain's base."

Finding a moral in all this, or at least a way out of the graveyard, I hope again the Selleck brothers were felled by some bitter wintry blast and not the wanton wickedness of some graveyard ghouls.

Maybe wind and freeze and thaw were the felons. Squire Lewis Selleck, who was 3 years old when the Declaration of Independence was signed, still stands in a corner of the family plot, as he has since 1855. And the brothers Joseph and Nephi Whitlock, who went off to fight the Rebels with the Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, still stand sentinel near the old stone wall at the opposite corner.

Joseph died July 16, 1863, probably from wounds received at Gettysburg. Nephi came home and lived to May 2, 1912.

How come the wind and snow haven't toppled them.

April Beef Prices Rise Average Of 13 Cents

DENVER (UPI) — Retail beef prices have risen an average of 13 cents per pound since April, the National Cattlemen's Association reports in its monthly survey of 19 cities.

"Cattle and wholesale beef prices have continued to increase recently as beef supplies have decreased, and this has been reflected in higher average retail prices," NCA President Lauren Carlson said this week. Carlson said one factor in the higher prices is the survey was completed the week prior to Easter, when supermarkets do not "feature" cuts of beef for special pricing.

The association surveys supermarkets in 19 cities each month for prices on five cuts of beef. The average price in the April 12 survey was $2.38 per pound, compared to $2.25 per pound March 8 and $1.78 per pound on April 12, 1978.

The only city showing a decline in the five-cut average during the past month

Originally in ancient Greece an idiot was a private person not engaged in any public office. The term has come to mean an ignorant, uneducated and uninformed person.

was Atlanta, where the average price declined from $2.22 to $2.06 per pound.

Lubbock Merchants Pull Hair Dryers

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Five Lubbock retailers have removed certain hand-held electric hair dryers from their shelves since the Consumer Product Safety Commission reported that more than 100 models of the dryers sold in the United States contain asbestos, an insulation material that has been linked to cancer.

Local spokesmen for Best Products Co., Sears Roebuck & Co., Montgomery Wards, Woolco Department Store and Gibson's Discount Store said Thursday they have pulled the hair dryers in question from their stock.

A spokesman for Best said the local firm only had been carrying one model containing asbestos insulating liners — the General Electric Pro 6. "But, as soon as we received notice of any problem, we took them off the shelves and shipped them back to the manufacturer," he said.

He added the firm also is taking the dryers back from consumers with "no questions asked."

Al Thom, local manager for Sears, said, "If the hair dryer is in question and if we had it in stock, it has been removed."

Sears hair dryers listed by the consumer commission include the Men's 1000 Model 253-6385; Women's 1000 Model 253-8714; the Men's 1000 Model 253-6314; Women's 1000 Model 253-8736; and the Women's 1000 Model 253-8754.

Thom added that any consumer who was not "comfortable" owning one of the Sears dryers in question could exchange it or get a money refund.

He stressed that the company is no longer manufacturing hair dryers with asbestos and instead is using mica, a cheap insulation material.

Garland Barnes, local manager for Montgomery Wards, said the store had only two hair dryers with asbestos, and they were removed from stock April 6 when the commission released its first report. Within the past few days, Barnes reported, the local store has placed "contains no asbestos" stickers on its hair dryers.

A Woolco spokesman said four different hair dryer models representing three major firms were removed from sale within two days after the April 6 announcement.

However, he added that he thought most people were not very well informed of the situation since "we've received very, very few questions from the public."

Don Ewing, manager of the Gibson's at 5025 50th St., said the store has removed any hair dryers in question from their shelves and has quit purchasing asbestos-lined hair dryers since he was notified of the possible problem earlier this month. Ewing added that he has not had a single inquiry from his customers about the possible problem.

"It's another instance where you have someone saying 'it's cancer-causing,' and the people have heard that so many times, they're just disregarding any warning," Ewing said. "But sooner or later, people are going to ignore a cancer warning once too often."

Spokesmen for two Kmart Discount Stores said Thursday they had not heard anything from their head office or from their customers concerning the hair dryer situation.

Earlier this year, the Environmental Defense Fund demanded that the Consumer Product Safety Commission order the recall of millions of hand-held electric dryers, saying they may contain harmful amounts of asbestos that could be blown into the user's face. Asbestos is a known cause of cancer and the government has established several standards for consumer and workplace exposure.

The commission said consumers may obtain a free complete list of the hair dryer models believed to contain asbestos by writing: Hair Dryers, Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207.

Thursday, the consumer commission announced it had identified more than 40 additional models of hair dryers that contain asbestos. The new list brings to 111 the number of different models containing asbestos.

The original list, released April 6, prompted a record flood of calls by consumers to the safety commission's telephone hotline, with staffers handling an

Laborers Protest At Capitol

AUSTIN (UPI) — What occurred on the steps, the stairways and every floor of the Capitol rotunda was not a mere protest. It was a working man's convention that took as its first order of business to let legislators know they would have 9,000 fewer constituents if they didn't pay attention.

More than 9,000 union laborers laid down their tools Thursday — leaving many construction yards quiet — and picked up their protest signs to converge on the state Capitol and warn legislators to kill a bill that would repeal the state's prevailing wage law for public works projects or face looking for new jobs.

"We'll either get their attention or we will run them out of office," said Tom Upchurch Jr. of Amarillo, the general counsel for the Texas Buildings and Trades Council.

"They can cut prices and profits but they are not going to start the cutting at the wage level."

Along with their spouses and children, the laborers swarmed the Capitol screaming "kill that bill."

Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard said the workers came aboard 101 buses from Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and Amarillo and in private cars to make their feelings known.

The bill, which would allow government entities, such as cities and counties, to set any wage for workers on public construction projects, is sponsored by Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan. Under current law, the government entities must pay all workers the prevailing wage for that geographical area.

The Texas AFL-CIO is supporting a bill by Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, that would allow workers to renegotiate the prevailing wage if they feel the government's offer is too low, and appeal the government's decision under the Administrative Procedure Act.

Moore's bill passed the Senate Economic Development Committee Thursday although labor leaders and some building contractors spoke against it. The Associated Builders and Contractors of Texas Inc. are pushing for the bill's passage claiming it will benefit not only contractors but taxpayers too, by lowering the cost of public works projects.

A similar bill was defeated in the House earlier this session meaning the House would have to reverse its position for Moore's bill to become law.

Opponents of the bill said cutbacks will be felt in other construction areas, not just on state projects, if the bill is passed.

"If you cut here where the state work is involved, then eventually it will spill over into the private sector," Upchurch said. "They are talking about cutting us back to the 1970 (wage) levels."

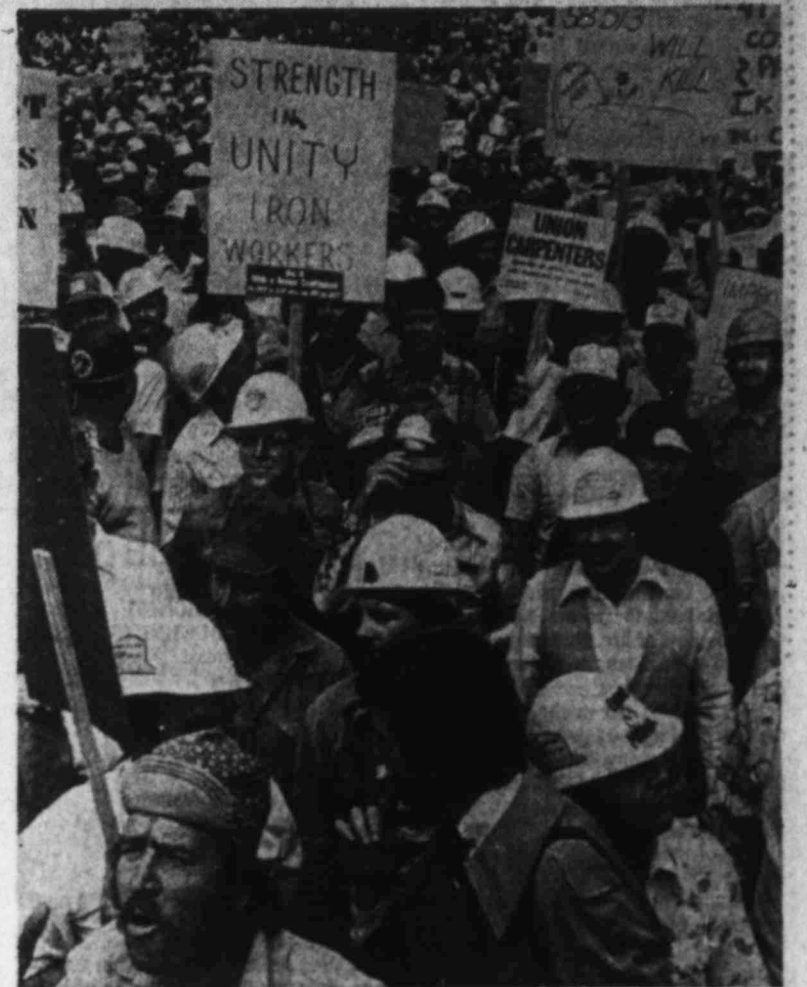

Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong played his guitar and sang at the convention of union members touted as the biggest labor rally in Texas history. Workers, who marched from the Austin Municipal Auditorium where the rally began to the Capitol, took off their mud-covered work boots to rest their feet as they sat under the shade of the Capitol's oak trees and sipped drinks from tall thermos bottles.

Hubbard and wife, Steve and Susan Johnson of McDee explained how the bill would affect their lives if passed. Johnson is a member of the electrical workers union and Susan, in her own orange hard hat, said she came along to support him.

"A lot of companies on state jobs could employ unqualified people and pay them lower wages," Johnson said. "It would put us in a position of directly competing with unskilled labor. It would have the effect of lowering wages for everyone."

"It would allow some of these construction firms to hire wetbacks, or any other unskilled labor and it would keep us from getting jobs," Johnson added.

Union member Larry Zimmerman, who is currently helping to build a Marriott Hotel in San Antonio, said the construction project had completely shut down for the day, with most of the workers traveling to Austin for the rally.

UNION MEMBERS RALLY — Carrying signs and wearing hard hats, thousands of union members rally at the state Capitol in Austin Thursday to protest attempts to repeal the state's prevailing wage law. The crowd was estimated between 5,000 and 9,000. (AP Laserphoto)

Lubbockite Arrested On Assault Charge

A 22-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 2 a.m. today after he allegedly assaulted the woman he lives with, and then followed his victim to Health Sciences Center Hospital, where she was being treated for scratches on the back and chest.

The woman, 30, said the man had come home shortly before 1 a.m. today drunk and violent. She said he became angry at her and began beating her.

Nurses in the HSCH emergency room later called police, reporting that the man was causing a disturbance there. The man was apprehended as he attempted to drive off from the hospital, and was taken to the county jail.

In other activity, a teen-aged woman was arrested at her residence about 9:45 p.m. when she offered sex for money to an undercover policeman.

Reports show the officer called a number given in a classified "nude modeling" advertisement in The Avalanche-Journal and the 19-year-old suspect gave him her address and invited him over. She was arrested after reportedly leading the vice officer into her bedroom and offering him sex for $60.

Police answered an alarm about 12:15 a.m. today at a home construction company at 9602 S. University Ave. and found that the building had been vandalized, with damage estimated at $3,000.

Doors, windows and the sign outside the business had been torn up, and a tractor had been left running outside. Witnesses said they saw two men drive around the business several times and then heard a loud crash. Police were searching for a man who had been fired from the company last week.

Burglars continued to roam the city, with several Lubbockites recently suffering heavy losses.

Chaney Robinson Hall of 3010 E. Fourth St. told police that between 6:20 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Thursday his residence was broken into and $4,610 in property stolen, including jewelry, guns and clothes.

Five shotguns and five rifles, totaling $2,000, was the loot taken when burglars entered William Ross Anthony's 3202 43rd St. residence between 4:25 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

Mario Perez Jr. of 2023 17th St., rear, said burglars struck his apartment Thursday and made off with a guitar, television and stereo equipment, totaling $1,150.

A food supply company manager told police two 10-foot cedar trees, worth $60 each, were cut down and dragged from in front of his office Wednesday night.

Larry Ray Luman, office manager for White Swan Co., said the two trees were gone from in front of the business' 913 E. 50th St. office when he arrived for work at 8 a.m. Thursday. Police reports indicate the trees apparently were dragged several blocks before being loaded into a vehicle.

In other activity, Alfredo DeLaCruz of 2420 36th St. said a $500 cast iron pot was stolen from the front yard of his residence. DeLaCruz said the theft occurred

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

At least a dozen times during a year, I will hear from a reader who wonders what a superficial column on Monday dieters, oversized coat hangers, legally dead football enthusiasts, and siblings who argue for a living, is doing in a newspaper.

It does seem incongruous — in the midst of global wars, energy crises, unemployment, rising food costs and nuclear threats — that my prime concern is taking the static electricity out of my underwear.

On occasion when the criticism gets through to me, I pull out a letter written by a surgeon in Derry, N.H. In it, he describes the cardiac operating suite in a general hospital.

"I stare in wonder like any visitor.

"The blood sweeps rich and red through the bypass pump, its pulsating progress checked constantly by the 'pump driver,' the technician entrusted with this flow of life. Other artisans huddle over their machines and monitor the rhythms of existence.

"The knives flash in the brilliance of the overhead lights. Clamp, tie, cut.

"The hours go by. The surgeons stand like storks over the patient and by their side leans the nurse orchestrating with gow weary gestures the clamor and chatter of the instruments, the sounds of survival.

"All is science. Technology is god. The room is a cathedral to the detachment, the unreality and the impersonality of modern life. And to life's inconsistencies.

"Because there, over there in the corner, beside the stainless steel supplies, the burnished sinks, the abundant accumulations of the systems of surgery, there on the notice board with all its checklists and warnings and instructions to those who worship at this temple, is stuck a piece of newspaper, the down-to-earth, back-to-basics benediction of the Erma Bombeck columns.

"I call it re-entry to reality. A welcome home."

I've read that letter a thousand times. Maybe I need reassuring more than my readers that this day a new baby will utter his first words, "Make him stop looking at me," a bird will get sauced on pyracantha berries, and my mother will duly report that she became constipated...in Mexico.

OLD-FASHIONED JELLY DOUGHNUTS

1 pkg. active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water
3/4 cup milk, scalded and cooled to lukewarm
1/4 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 egg, at room temperature
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine, melted
3/4 to 3/8 cups unsifted flour
3/4 cup concordgrape jelly
Confectioners' sugar
Dissolve yeast in warm water. Stir in milk, sugar, salt, egg, butter and 2 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough flour to make a soft batter.
Turn dough out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; let rise till almost doubled again, about 30 minutes. Roll dough about 1/2-inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut with floured biscuit cutter into 2-inch circles. Place on greased baking sheets. Handle as little as possible.

Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Fry in deep hot oil 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown on both sides; turn once. Drain on absorbent paper. Cut slit in side of each and force jelly through pastry tube into doughnuts. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar when cooled. Makes about 2 dozen doughnuts.

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

"The place of an ace is on the king" is an axiom handed down from whist. True enough, but there are certain important exceptions. While you should never refuse to win a "heavy" trick "on general principles," it might be necessary to do so to sever communications between the enemy hands. Declarer failed to realize that precept and went down in a game he should have made.

South had a difficult decision to make at his second turn. While he had two honor cards in his partner's suit, he felt that his heart suit was so good that it should be stressed in preference to raising clubs. When North could take another bid, South ventured on to game on the strength of the double fit.

West led the four of spades and declarer captured East's king with the ace. Two rounds of trumps were drawn, and the club finesse lost to the king. East returned a spade to West's queen, and the marked diamond shift gave the defenders two tricks in that suit for down one.

South bemoaned his fate. "Any one of two key cards with West and the contract would roll home!" That was indeed unlucky — almost as unfortunate as was declarer's play.

Declarer could have assured his contract simply by making sure that West does not regain the lead to attack the diamond weakness. The only card with which West could possibly be put on lead was the queen of spades. The precautionary measure is simplicity itself.

Just refuse the first trick!

East will probably continue with a spade to the ace. After drawing trumps, declarer can take the club finesse. Even though this loses, East cannot reach his partner for a diamond lead through the king. Declarer will thus be able to discard two diamonds on the long clubs, and he will lose no more than one trick in each side suit.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I met this good-looking girl who waits on tables in a place near where I work. She came on like a sweet country kid who worked hard for a living and wouldn't let a guy get to first base with her, which I liked.

Well, I took her home from work a couple of times, and all she'd give me was a goodnight kiss at her door.

I asked her what she wanted for Easter and she gave me a list of clothes to buy and where to buy them. I went around and bought all the things she wanted, which set me back $400.

After I gave her these gifts, I asked her how about driving to Palm Springs for the weekend. She said nothing doing — she wasn't "that kind" of a girl.

She already wore the clothes I gave her, so what do I do now? After all, 400 bucks ain't hay.

Denny In Pasadena

Dear Denny: If it were, you'd have enough to eat all winter. Call it a $400 lesson.

I know that Christians should forgive, and I have prayed to the Lord for my feelings to change, but I still feel the same toward her. What should I do?

Unforgiving Christian

Dear Christian: Keep praying, but to thine own self be true. And unless you feel completely comfortable with this woman, tell Greg that you, too, are "only human," and you'd rather not be in her company. The Lord will understand.

***

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend's mother lets her kids call her "Yetta," and I think that's neat.

I tried calling my mother "Sheila" and nearly got hit in the head.

My Mom said when kids call their parents by their first names it shows lack of respect, and there would be none of that in our house.

I wonder how you feel about that, Abby.

Sonia

Dear Sonia: I think your mother's wishes should be respected.

Eating rare ground meat is risky because the grinding process results in many surfaces on which bacteria may grow, warns Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist. Frequent handling during preparation causes active bacteria growth if proper sanitation is not practiced.

CAPROCK SHOPPING CENTER

Ultimatum Given To Jack Ford

By SHEILA RABB WEIDENFELD
SEPTEMBER 18, 1975
Jack just returned from a camping trip. A much-needed camping trip. Not necessarily for the camping, just for the pleasure of spending nine days not being Jack Ford.

"Man, I'll tell you it was such a relief. I was really going crazy around here. I couldn't sleep. I couldn't do anything. I felt imprisoned. Getting out of Washington was wonderful. I dropped my Secret Service detail, too."

"Dropped your detail? What do you mean 'dropped'?"

"I told them not to come. I refused to let them come. It's my choice, you know."

"Jack, that's irresponsible—irresponsible and dangerous. This is not a game. They are there to protect you."

"Do you know what it is like to have them shadowing me all the time? Participating in every aspect of my life? I have no privacy. I have no freedom. And even if I forget they are there, no one else does. Everyone I'm with feels this obligation to invite them in, to feed them, to talk to them."

"You could try a different tactic. You could try talking to them, too."

"I've tried. Some of them I can talk to, but the others speak a different language."

"You know, Jack, you could request a new detail, or at least substitutions for the agents on your detail you don't get along with. I'm sure they would rather reassign people than have you drop the detail."

He is really having a hard time. I think it is Jack's ambivalence about the White House that makes him so vulnerable. Michael and Steve want no part of it. Jack is not so sure. An avid political observer, he is frankly fascinated by what he sees in the White House. If only he could see without being seen.

OCTOBER 6, 1975
Eleven different State's Chairmen were scheduled to attend the Republican Western Region Conference in Portland, Oregon, last week. They requested a Ford family member. The White House sent Jack with everyone's blessing.

This, we all agree, was a perfect place for Jack to begin actively campaigning for his father's re-election, the perfect place for Jack to declare himself.

But the declaration was a surprise.

"I've smoked marijuana before and I don't think that's so exceptional for people growing up in the 1960's," he told the Oregonian, the state's largest newspaper. He went on to say that he had not tried hard drugs, but some of his friends had, "and I don't think that will exclude them as my friends."

OCTOBER 7, 1975
Jack's role in the campaign was short lived. The marijuana statement infuriated

Stu Spencer of the President's campaign committee who told Jack he could forget New Hampshire, and for that matter he could forget any role in the presidential campaign.

The President had given Jack a deadline to find a job, and when the deadline passed, both father and son became quite upset. Jack began frantically considering a variety of offers which included a job in the tuna industry in California, another in a bank, and another working on the Alaskan pipeline. I tried to discourage him. The only thing I thought he would find more depressing than no job was a job he didn't like. He needed something he could enjoy, and something he could be good at: His self-confidence was at an all-time low.

OCTOBER 9, 1975
People magazine has heard that Jack and his father are not seeing eye to eye these days, and that Jack is into hard drugs. The Los Angeles Times has heard that Jack's Secret Service detail had to going to set up a rumor and then deny it."

"Sheila, there are too many people saying too many things."

NOVEMBER 9, 1975
"Did you see it?"
"See what?"
"What do you mean, 'see what'?" Jack raged on the phone. "Don't you read the newspapers? Isn't that part of your job?"

The "what" turned out to be an item in a Washington gossip column, "Ear," saying that Jack was seen in a gay district in Washington, a few nights ago.

"Were you—"

"Absolutely not!" he yelled into the receiver. "I was at your house that night as a matter of fact. Remember?"

"Yes, you're right, you were—"

"And if they need more proof, they can ask my Secret Service detail. They were with me. Wow, I mean this is really it."

"Look, Jack, I'll correct the story if I get any calls."

"Correct it! Is that all?"

"What do you want me to do?"

"Make them admit it's a lie!"

"Jack, just think for a minute. Think about what that would mean. Do you want a follow-up story in the column that says, 'Mrs. Ford's Press Secretary called to say Jack wasn't gay'?"

"I'm not gay!"

"You are not gay, right. But gayness is one of the all-time touchy issues. Getting excited and denying it would make it explode. I think if I personally deny the column and publicly ignore it, the whole thing will fade away."

"It better."

"It will."

NOVEMBER 26, 1975
No, Jack did not purchase cocaine from a drug dealer in Salt Lake City, Utah, last year. In fact, he was not even in Salt Lake City at the time of the alleged transaction.

A rumor that he had made the cocaine deal was circulating several weeks ago, and when he was informed, President Ford told the Federal Narcotics agents to proceed as they would in any other investigation. They did, and have now officially announced that the rumors have been proven false.

Other rumors appear to be harder to squelch.

The letter from the National Gay Task Force was addressed to Jack in care of me. I called Jack and read it to him.

"Whether or not you are gay, we staunchly believe in your right to privacy. If you are gay, you should have the freedom to come out at your own pace."

He groaned.

NOVEMBER 27, 1975
We had a little excitement here last night. A man identified as Gerald Bryan Gains Jr., 24 years of age, lurked around the White House environs for about two hours and then climbed over the fence. He was within about five feet of Susan, who was outside taking a walk, when he was apprehended by the Secret Service. He said that he wanted to talk to President Ford, in hopes of securing a pardon for his father, an Air Force sergeant convicted of smuggling drugs. They're checking it all out now.

The Secret Service was quite upset—after all, he got very close to a Ford "principal." But Susan was not upset—at least not when it happened. She said she was totally unaware of anyone there. (It was pitch black. She couldn't see anything.) All she knew was that the Secret Service agent told her calmly, "Susan, could you please go upstairs? You can come down in about 10 minutes. Okay?"

NEXT: The Queen of England comes for dinner and the Fords cut the rug until 2 a.m.

'Liberty' Gives Birth

It was a home delivery. But what a home.

Everything done in the White House is done right. Liberty gave birth in a bedroom transformed into a delivery room on the second floor, where an enormous box for giving birth—a whelping box—had been built and expert medical assistance was right at hand.

"Several puppies had already been born when my husband Edward and I arrived. Mrs. Ford was taking a nap, after having been up half the night patting and soothing and talking to Liberty. She left her in good hands: the medical team consisted of Bill Brockert, her trainer, and her veterinarian as well. Spectators included Susan, Edward, and me, and—later—the President, who walked in wearing casual Sunday attire and puffing on a pipe.

One or two were born while we watched. I'd never witnessed a birth of any sort before, and I was fascinated by the process. Nature provides. The body works. It was biology at its finest.

It all looked like a Norman Rockwell painting: The President of the United States, pipe in mouth, patting his fine dog, Liberty, as she brings forth a new generation.

protect a party he gave from a local plain-clothes drug raid. And Time magazine has heard that two of Jack's Secret Service agents are quitting because they find themselves in the awkward legal position of protecting him when he smokes grass.

Nothing like bringing an issue out in the open to dispel rumors.

Consciously avoiding Jack's agents, I called Jack Warren, the assistant to the director of public affairs for the Secret Service. He said he'd check and call me right back. He did.

"Not true," he reported. "Nobody on Jack's detail has asked to leave."

Voila: the official line. I called Bonnie Angelo of Time magazine and diligently gave her the report.

"I don't believe anything that comes from an official Secret Service spokesman," she told me.

"Bonnie, he meant it. It was a definitive answer."

"I'm sure."

"How are you going to write the story?"

"I'll say, 'Jack's agents say they are leaving because of this and that and the Secret Service officially denies it.'"

"What kind of a thing is that? You're

TWASO State Convention To Be Held In Lubbock

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

The annual meeting of the Texas Women's Association of Symphony Orchestras (TWASO) will be held in Lubbock Sunday through Tuesday. The Lubbock Symphony Guild will be the host organization.

Mrs. Jack Wirtz of Lubbock is conference chairman and Mrs. Douglas Sanford, vice chairman.

TWASO, founded in 1965, is one of just a few state groups for women's associations supporting orchestras. The state organization is affiliated nationally with the American Symphony Orchestra League.

In recent years the Texas Association has met in Abilene, Richardson, Midland, Austin and Fort Worth.

The purpose of the state meeting is to share ideas for the promotion and support of the symphony orchestras represented by the women from the 22 cities which are sending delegates to this year's meeting.

Presiding at the sessions to be held here will be the current TWASO president, Mrs. Harold B. Eudaly, Jr. of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Eudaly, wife of a psychiatrist and mother of four children, has been active in the Symphony League of Fort Worth since 1962 and served as its president in 1976-7. She was conference chairman for TWASO last year at the convention held in her home city.

Other community activities which have claimed her attention are the board of Planned Parenthood, the Tarrant County Medical Auxiliary, the Texas Christian University Fine Arts Guild. She serves as a Camp Fire leader as well. Dr. and Mrs. Eudaly are members of the University Christian Church where she sings in the church choir.

Approximately 200 persons are expected to attend the three-day Lubbock meeting. Each city may send delegates and alternates. Many men, accompany their wives and special activities have been planned for them alongside the women's activities.

The Lubbock Symphony Guild has planned many varied activities throughout the course of the conference. Workshops and panels will cover such topics as youth concert, developing an audience, season ticket sales, symphony debts, fund raising projects of all sorts, public relations and many other areas which concern these women as they aim at more effective support for the orchestras in the cities they represent.

Luncheons and dinner parties will allow the delegates to share ideas with each other informally as well.

Naturally music plays an important part in the program planned for the state meeting. During a Sunday afternoon tour of the Ranching Heritage Center, the visitors will be entertained by the Country Sunshine Singers and the Square and Round Dance Club. Later that evening dinner music will be provided by the Flatland Bluegrass Band.

Featured at Monday's breakfast program will be Terry Cook and at luncheon that day soloists will be Sarah Watkins and Bill Hartwell. A marimba quintet conducted by Ron Dyer will play for Tuesday's luncheon at the Lubbock Country Club.

A Tuesday afternoon treat will be a mini-concert on the Holtkamp organ in the recital hall at Texas Tech University.

Tuesday evening the entire conference group will attend together the annual Pops Night Concert of the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra directed by William A. Harrod at the civic center.

The conference will conclude with a reception following the concert.

Stamps Commemorate International Air Rally

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

The 25th International Air Rally has received philatelic tribute from the Island of Jersey in the Channel Islands group. The aerial event is sponsored by the Channel Islands Aero Club, which held its first rally in 1954.

There are five new stamps in the commemorative set. Depicted are various aircraft which have participated in the 25 rallies. The 6-pence shows the single-wing Mew Gull, the 8-pence shows the Chipmunk, the 10½-pence shows the Turbulent, the 11-pence shows the Tiger Moth, and the 13-pence shows the Harvard.

Each stamp bears the inscription "International Air Rally — 25th Anniversary" and the Queen's silhouette in the upper right corner.

The annual air rally is now a premier event in the European flying calendar and attracts competitors from France, Germany, the Benelux and Scandinavian countries, Great Britain, Ireland, plus entrants from Australia and the U.S.

Oklahoma will be going all-out to celebrate the centennial of Will Rogers' birth this year. A U.S. commemorative stamp will be issued in November as part of the Performing Arts Series. But ardent philatelists in that state will further honor Rogers at the Oklahoma City Stamp Club's 6th Annual OKPEX '79 on May 4, 5 and 6. Joining in the event will be the United Postal Stationery Society which will be holding its annual national convention at OKPEX '79. One of the highlights will be a special competition for the Will Rogers Centennial Award to be presented to the "Best Exhibit of Will Rogers Material." For further information you may write directly to "OKPEX Exhibition Chairman, P.O. Box 26944, Oklahoma City, Okla., 73126."

The first stamped pictorial envelope to be produced by the British Post Office in almost 90 years (and only the fourth in its history) has been released to the public. It was issued to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the opening of the National Postal Museum in London.

The envelope bears a printed 9-pence stamp of the type used on the current stamped letter-card. The design is similar to that used on the 1953 Coronation air-letter, incorporating the floral emblems of the four home countries above a royal cipher.

Although the British Post Office has issued many special pictorial airletters, starting in 1953 with the Coronation issue, the National Postal Museum souvenir envelope is the first stamped pictorial "envelope" issued since July, 1890. It was put on sale to honor the jubilee of penny postage.

Stamp Notes: Israel has announced a special stamp to honor the signing of the peace treaty with Egypt. The Republic of China (Taiwan), which has been issuing some beautiful stamps, has just released a new one in tribute to "Youth Day," featuring a portrait of Lu Hsiang-shan, a martyr of the Chinese people who died in 1895 as a follower of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founding father of the Republic of China.

Topical collectors — those who specialize in topical subjects on stamps — will be interested in a new handbook published by the American Topical Association. It reviews over 100 topics shown on some 6,000 stamps issued by various countries during the past year. The stamps are arranged alphabetically by topics and within each topic. Some of the topics listed are: Americana, art, bridges, Christmas, coins, fish, flowers, horses, medicine, music, Olympics, Queen Elizabeth II Jubilee, railroads, Scouts, space, sports, women, etc.

The cost is $4 and it may be purchased directly from American Topical Association, 3308 N. 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis., 53216.

Pillows Make Unique Presents

Do you have to get a graduation gift, but you've run out of ideas and the decision has narrowed to pajamas or a pen set? Or maybe your grandchild will be celebrating the first full year of life and you'd like a unique gift idea?

Whether you must buy a gift for an 18-year-old going away to college and dorm life or want to give something special to a special wee-one, these soft-sculptured Live Flavors will delight the object of your affections.

The kit makes the Live Flavors container and eight Live Flavors. The container measures 39 inches by 15 inches and each pillow is 14 inches in diameter.

They're great play things and "sit upons" for the younger set and they look super tossed on a bed or hanging from various points on the ceiling for the college crowd. They'd make a fine giant mobile, if you can figure out the various balancing angles. Then use the Live Flavors container for a clothes hamper or duffle bag.

Best yet, they're a snap to make. You'll need to buy some stuffing and thread and you'll need to supply the scissors and a sewing machine — other than that, the kit has everything.

Saw Attachment Used For Cutting Circles

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — I have been given a second-hand, portable, saber saw. It is in good condition and seems to work very well. I really don't know how I did without one all these years. However, I am having some difficulty cutting perfectly round circles. Is there some knack to this?

A. — Not especially. Just buy a circle-cutting attachment.

Q. — In buying a house, I noticed while shopping around that some houses which seemed far less livable than others were priced much higher. Since I had never looked at older houses before with the intention of purchasing one, I was somewhat surprised. Is there some way to determine why such unexplainable differences exist?

A. — In nearly all cases, when a house appears to be, as you put it, "less livable" than others yet has a higher price, it is because of the neighborhood. An old house, greatly in need of repair, may cost far more in one neighborhood than a new house of comparable size in another.

Many persons seeking a different residence will confine their house hunting to a single, particular neighborhood because they decided ahead of time, for whatever reason, that they wanted to live there.

Q. — After pricing some new bedroom bureaus, we decided to bring an old one upstairs from the basement and refinish it. It is very dirty and messy. If we clean it with denatured alcohol, as a neighbor suggests, can we then go ahead with a varnish remover or will the alcohol react with the chemical in the remover? And, of course, are we correct in using denatured alcohol in the first place?

A. — Denatured alcohol is often used for that purpose. I recall using it myself years ago and following it with a varnish remover — without any bad effects. If the remover is of the flammable or volatile type, try to use it outdoors. If not, be sure there is complete ventilation and no pilot lights or other flames in the area. Better yet, use one of the types that are less likely to cause trouble indoors.

Information May Be Helpful, Interesting To Handymen

By The Associated Press

Bits of information that may be interesting or helpful or both:

Sandpaper contains no sand. It has any one of several other materials, depending on the kind you purchase. So-called flint sandpaper is usually the cheapest and has many uses in light work. Garnet paper is fairly hard and tough, and is a good, all-purpose abrasive for the woodworker. Emery paper is even tougher, which is why it is used so much on metal. Extremely hard are aluminum oxide and silicon, which can be used on woods and metals and which will stand up under heavy-duty power sanding.

While many holes in pipes can be patched, an opening which is the result of corrosion is likely to be the forerunner of other holes, especially in the area of the first break.

When using a spackling compound or any similar patching material, be sure to read the label on the container to see whether the repaired area must be primed before the application of paint or other finishes.

Home owners in warm, humid areas now can buy asphalt roof shingles with fungus- and algae-resistant white granules designed to help white roofs stay white longer.

There is sometimes a little confusion over the difference between mortar and grout with reference to the installation of ceramic tiles. The material that bonds the tile to a surface is usually known as mortar; that which fills the spaces between tiles is called grout.

In selecting resilient floor tiles, remember that light colors reflect more light, making things seem larger than they are; dark colors absorb light, making things look smaller and heavier; and colors always seem stronger when applied to a large surface.

If you intend to place mineral-wool batts or blankets or other insulation on floors above cold spaces, R-19 is recommended for homes in the northern half of the United States and for homes in the southern half that are heated by oil or electricity. Otherwise, R-11 is usually sufficient. The "R" numbers stand for resistance to heat loss in cold weather or heat gain in hot weather and are more accurate than inches as a means of designing insulation performance.

GROWING OLDER

Paper Helps Elderly Lobby Legislature

By LOU COTTIN

My spy network grows apace. I now have spies in eight states. The task of Cottin spies is to pass on data and ideas that have helped seniors in their areas. Here, then, comes Mike P. Harmon, my chief spy in West Virginia. Every state should have a Mike Harmon. He is the executive coordinator of the Council of Senior West Virginians. First Harmon brought together six activist groups in his state to form COLE, the Coalition on Legislation for the Elderly. The member are the Joint Legislative Committee of the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association, the Council of Senior West Virginians, the Mountain Community Union, the West Virginia Citizens Action Group, the West Virginia Labor Federation (AFL-CIO) and the West Virginia Social, Economic, Political Issues in Appalachia. Then he brought in such units as the regional agencies on aging, the directors of senior programs, the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, the state Commission on Aging and the Virginia Legal Services, Inc. The coalition greeted the last session of the state legislature with a wonderful newspaper. Similar publications should be established all across the country. Here's how the coalition stated its purpose: "Legislation is extremely important to the state's elderly this year. With a united effort, we can have fair utility rates and regulations, substantially lower prescription prices, improved housing opportunities and a decent minimum income for elderly and disabled West Virginians. "This newspaper contains most of the information you need to help your local senior citizens lobby your legislators to make sure they enact legislation to improve the quality of life of all West Virginia seniors." What followed were position papers that stated the legislative priorities of the coalition.

The housing paper, for example, demanded laws covering landlord-tenant relations, corporate ownership of land, financing, use of public funds and water and sewer matters. The coalition also called for an increase in state investment in Supplementary Security Income (SSI). It requested tighter laws on geriatric drugs. "West Virginia stands on the threshold of some crucial social policy decisions concerning programs for the elderly," the publication noted. "It seems to us we have two choices. "The first would be continuation of past policies of small incremental increases in appropriations that only insure inadequate services. "The second choice breaks our historical patterns of neglectful social policies. It calls for some substantial increases in state appropriations to develop, improve and expand senior citizen programs. "In summary, we are asking the state of West Virginia to back up its stated commitment to West Virginia senior citizens by increasing state appropriations in the following manner: "West Virginia Commission of Aging — $2.3 million. West Virginia Department of Welfare — $11.55 million. "In most states, the newspaper would have stopped there. But not in West Virginia. On the center spread of the paper were listed the coalition's seven basic demands. All members of the state legislature were rated on those issues: nursing-home regulation, freedom of information, food tax, public-service commission reform, tenant-landlord questions, health and certification of need. Politicians who rated less than 70 percent in support of senior issues now had a warning. What the West Virginians did, groups in other states can do, too. We can start our own newspaper. When politicians next run for office, let's publish a record of their votes for or against our interests. Thank you, Mike Harmon. Thank you, COLE. You've given us seniors a great idea.

Jeep Sales Give AMC Much-Needed Boost

DETROIT (AP) — Runaway Jeep sales have given once-troubled American Motors Co. record sales and profits for the first three months of this year. Profits for the three months, the second quarter of AMC's fiscal year, were $32 million or $1.06 per share, a 12-fold increase from $2.67 million or 9 cents per share in the 1978 quarter. Thanks to Jeep, AMC sales rose 21 percent from $640 million to $773 million. Jeep sales climbed 41 percent, from 44,944 to 63,436, while sales of AMC cars fell 23 percent from 47,340 to 36,307. The second-quarter results include a one-time tax credit of $7 million or 23 cents a share in 1979. The credit for the second quarter of 1978 was $1 million or 3 cents a share. The profit from continuing operations was therefore 73 cents a share, about in line with forecasts by Wall Street analysts. "I would say it's on the high side of expectation," said Arvid Jouppli of John Muir & Co. "It's remarkable they could show earnings as good as they did. Jeeps are buying time for AMC until they can get their best act together on cars." The four-wheel drive Jeep vehicles are taking an ever larger share of their market. Spokesman Richard Priebe said the small Jeeps had 69 percent of the "sport" market segment for the model year through January, up from 55 percent the previous year; the van-type Jeeps had 25.5 percent, up from 22.7 percent, and trucks had 3.5 percent, up from 2.7 percent. Chairman Gerald C. Meyers also said the "gratifying" earnings were the result of "continuing high demand for Jeep vehicles and operating cost savings actions."

For the first half of the fiscal year, AMC earned $58.2 million or $1.92 per share on record sales of $1.5 billion. In 1978's first half, earnings were $4.6 million or 15 cents a share. One-time tax credits in the first half were $14.3 million or 47 cents a share in 1979 and $1.6 million or 5 cents per share.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International Today is Friday, April 20, the 110th day of 1979 with 255 to follow. The moon is moving from its last quarter toward its new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus. Movie comedian Harold Lloyd and actress Nina Foch were born on April 20—he in 1894 and she in 1924. On this day in history: In 1926, a picturegram of a bank check transmitted from London to New York by RCA was honored and cashed. In 1972, Apollo 16 astronauts John Young and Charles Duke landed on the moon. In 1976, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled federal courts could order low-cost housing.

Debtors' Prison Now Museum

By JULES LOH
MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — If you have not yet paid your income tax and feel nervous, go visit Nick Kurti. You will feel better.

"They used to toss people in here who owed somebody as little as one dollar," Kurti said. "Nowadays, with credit cards and all, who could escape? I can't conceive of a worse fate."

Kurti leads the tourist tours at one of the last remaining debtors' prisons in the land, and his conception is accurate.

It is a wretched place: dank stone walls 20 inches thick, ugly old iron bars, thick oaken door with a foot-long key. A dungeon.

It was designed in 1810 by Victor Hugo — no, according to the brochure, by a Philadelphia architect named Robert Mills — and was the most elegant penal institution, in the current designation, of its day. Now it is on the National Historic Register. A grand slammer.

The horror is that it served as the Burlington County jail from that nostalgic era until just 14 years ago. Unchanged except for the addition of bare light bulbs and equally elaborate plumbing, it rendered 155 years of continuous service to the family of man.

Its alumni association numbers in the thousands. It includes an insignificant draftee at nearby Ft. Dix, Albert DeSalvo, who went on to become the Boston Strangler, and it includes Doc Jones, who hated to see the old lock up go out of business.

"Everybody knew Doc Jones," Nick Kurti said. "He used to hang around the river at Florence, where I grew up. He slept here and there, and every winter the poor old guy did something to get himself put in jail. He had no place else to go.

"I caught some tourists chipping at the peeling paint in one of the cells. They almost erased where Doc Jones had scratched his name. I stopped them just in time."

Nick Kurti is a garrulous and compassionate fellow who himself has 59 years of continuous service in the family of man.

He retired from his job at a rope and cable manufacturing firm 10 years ago, after three heart attacks. The job as assistant curator at the debtors' prison museum, he says, was literally just what the doctor ordered.

It gives him time to interest himself by idly poring over yellowing jail registers, discovering who has dwelt in these ancient walls, and why.

"I have come across some names that have really shocked me," he said.

Suspect Renounces U.S. Citizenship

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The trial of a man accused of slaying his wife was rescheduled after the defendant surprised court officials by firing his court-appointed attorney and renouncing his U.S. citizenship.

James Naum, charged with first-degree murder in the Jan. 17, 1978, slaying of his wife, Maria, declared he was a political prisoner. He called on the United Nations for assistance in leaving the country.

Tulsa County District Judge Margaret Lamm postponed the case until May 7, when a new jury panel will be available.

"I grew up in this county and I know a lot of people. I could go to some people and say, 'Did you know that your great-grandfather spent time in the county jail?'"

"But, oh, no, I dare not say it."

"I do like to chat with the old timers who drop by. They tell me things about this place that aren't in the brochure."

"For instance, we had one sheriff who dealt with troublemakers by making it easy for them to escape. The sheriff would wait for the escapee on the other side of the wall, catch him, and send him off to the state penitentiary for jailbreaking."

If the most illustrious inmate of the Burlington County jail tried to hunt out, it has escaped notice. It is known only that he did not like the joint.

That would be James Wilson, who did a stretch in a debtor's cell until he could come up with $300 owed to one Gratz, of Philadelphia, whom Wilson's son finally paid off.

It availed Wilson not a bit that he was a justice of the United States Supreme Court at the time of his jailing.

That was in 1797, so it was not this edifice that caused his "corroding torment," as he expressed it, but its predecessor. That, Nick Kurti agrees, must have been a charming place too.

DEBTORS PRISON — Assistant curator of the Mount Holly Prison Museum, Nick Kurti, stands behind bars that once were used to restrain debtors in the "Common Rooms" for debts as small as one dollar. The prison, built in 1811, once housed U.S. Supreme Court Justice James Wilson, founder of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, for a debt owed to a Philadelphia merchant. (AP Laserphoto)

Beef Pricing Task Force To Have Free Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new task force investigating the nation's beef pricing system has been told by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland it will have a free hand to carry out what he called "probably the most important" study on the subject ever undertaken.

The task force has scheduled three hearings to gather information on beef pricing.

The task force, appointed by Bergland last month, represents producers, the meat industry, consumers, the retail and wholesale sector and academic interests.

It was formed after department investigation reports late last year, although not citing any illegal doings, showed that a relatively small number of large meat packers, brokers and supermarkets have the major voices in setting daily wholesale beef prices.

Bergland spoke briefly Tuesday at the pane's organization meeting at the Agriculture Department.

"I can assure you that I have absolutely no notion as to where this department should be going in this matter and will reserve all judgments and all opinion until you get done," Bergland said.

Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, as chairman of the House Small Business Committee, has been pushing for legislation aimed at making the market reporting system and daily price quotations reflect more accurately the amount of cattle and beef bought and sold in the country.

Bergland noted that the Senate and House agriculture committees also have a "strong interest" in the pricing system.

Former French Teacher Vows Fight To Preserve Language

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — James Faulk, a nearly blind, former French teacher, has lost a round in his fight to preserve his native Cajun French language, but while packing up his cache of phonetic textbooks and tape recordings he vowed to pursue his dream of preserving the language of Louisiana.

"A lot of people don't know their hard-earned tax dollars are being used to destroy our own language," said Faulk, author of "Cajun French I."

"(State educators) are imposing a foreign language on us."

Faulk's book — composed of phonetically spelled Cajun French words along with English and standard French translations — was labeled "a bunch of chicken scratches" by James Domengeaux, director of the Council for the Development of French in Louisiana.

He said the book at best would confuse secondary school students and at worst teach them a nearly dead, unwritten language that is incomprehensible by the rest of the French-speaking world.

For more than 200 years, the French survivors of a British-forced exile from Acadia — now Nova Scotia — fished and trapped in the isolated, swampy bayou country of South Louisiana. Their language remained a curious remnant of 17th century French that survived nearly unchanged except for the addition of a few Indian, Spanish and English words.

Darry Ancelet, director of the Center for Acadian and Creole Folklore at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, said the fight over Faulk's book was irrelevant to the future of Cajun French.

He said the Louisiana dialect was as much a part of standard French as the dialects spoken in rural areas of France and the Cajun version could be taught in Louisiana as part of standard French courses.

"There is no reason why a Louisiana French student should sound like he grew up in Paris," Ancelet said. "When well-spoken, the French language spoken by Cajuns does not differ substantially from standard French any more than other regional variations of the French language throughout the French-speaking world."

Thus the speaker of the Louisiana Cajun French shares in the literature and history of the French language as much as the Belgian, the Swiss, the Marcellais, the Bordelais, the Quebecois or the Parisian for that matter.

"The standard French student does not need to learn only of the Eiffel Tower and the Arc De Triomphe, but they can learn of Bayou Teche, the Mardi Gras and the boucheries."

He said Faulk's book would be of vast help to graduate students in linguistics, but would confuse secondary language students.

Endangered Longhorns Make Strong Comeback

By K. MACK SISK
SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The rangy Texas longhorn, once in more danger of extinction than the buffalo, has surged as a desired American cattle breed and is steadily increasing in numbers and prestige.

At a recent sale in Amarillo, an average of 30 bidders cast lots to see who could buy 163 longhorn bulls for about $1,100 apiece, and one of the bulls was sold for $15,000 at another auction.

On Friday dozens of cattlemen plan to gather at the Johnson City ranch of B.J. "Red" McCombs for the first Texas Longhorn Futurity, judging 24 of the best longhorn heifers in the nation, and the sale of 95 prime females to the highest bidder.

McCombs, an automobile dealer and major owner of the San Antonio Spurs basketball team, is a relatively new longhorn rancher, but is pioneering a form of planned parenthood for the once rare animals that promises to further increase their numbers to match a growing demand for longhorns as breeding stock.

In the futurity, the top 24 longhorn breeders in the nation will enter one heifer each in the judging in an effort to collect prize money from $250 apiece entry fees plus $1,000 donated by McCombs. After judging, all the heifers will be sold at auction.

Longhorns, brought to North America by Spanish conquistadors in the 1400s and left to forage for themselves in the Spanish dagger and mesquite of the Southwest, became the most hardy breed of cattle in the United States. But by 1926, they nearly were bred out of existence by ranchers trying to transfer their hardiness to other breeds of cattle.

That year Congress approved legislation to round up and preserve the longhorn at a refuge near Lawton, Okla., and later another breeding herd was established at Fort Niobrara, Neb., both of which conduct annual sales to keep the species abundant.

"I would like to say the longhorn is back," said David Sweet, executive director of the Texas Longhorn Breeders Association. "There's more demand than there is supply. I imagine at auction a good herd prospect bull would probably average around $2,000 to $2,500. It compares equally with other breeds selling now on an overall average."

Sweet, who reports registrations now total 22,000, said the longhorn probably has done more than any other breed to make the American cattle industry what it is today.

"I think it's safe to say, and every other breed organization would agree, that if it wasn't for the hardiness of the Texas longhorn, the beef industry would not have grown so fast in this country, because the others (breeds) could not trail to Chicago or to Kansas or to anyplace from down here. They just weren't tough enough."

"The longhorns have been in this country by themselves for 400 years. By natural selection, survival of the fittest, they became hardy. The ones that couldn't calve died, so they didn't pass on the genes for infertility. The ones that were weak and couldn't pass on any genetic defects, so they just finally have all been a very hardy, disease resistant breed."

Today, the longhorns are highly sought as breeding stock, particularly by angus and hereford ranchers who want to breed their heifers with longhorn bulls because of the easy calving characteristics, Sweet said.

"The whole livestock industry and its future are based on a live calf every year out of every female that's in a herd," he said. "Up until this point, all other breeds that we've imported have had calving problems and they lose up to 15 percent of their calf crops each year because the calf is too big to be born."

"We don't have any calving problem in the longhorn breed. The calves are smaller. They're more angular and they're longer. Our people don't have to pull calves. They don't watch them being born. Every year the longhorn has its calf and it brings it up alone."

McCombs, a native of Spur, said he became interested in longhorns in 1966 when as president of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce he discussed the cattle with veteran longhorn rancher Charlie Schreiner who was helping re-enact a longhorn drive down the Old Chisolm Trail.

"I began to get a feeling for what the longhorn has meant to the cattle industry in Texas," said McCombs, who has built a sizable herd since he became a longhorn breeder in late 1977.

During 1978-80, McCombs plans to make extensive use of artificial insemination, which has been used for several years, and to pioneer embryo transplantation of longhorn calves, "a more rapid lay of maintaining genetic superiority."

The embryo transplants involve impregnating a cow by artificial insemination, then transplanting the embryo in another cow, usually a dairy breed, which will carry the purebred longhorn calf full term.

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP) — A two-day strike by black workers halted production at the world's largest diamond mining operation, an official said Thursday. A spokesman for Consolidated Diamond Mining Co. said nearly all the 5,200 miners at Oranjemund on the territory's southern coast stayed home Wednesday, and only half returned the following day. Workers complained of "domestic grievances," but there was no pay dispute, the spokesman said.

AEC Confused Utah Residents

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Southern Utah residents were uncertain about what dangers were posed by nuclear tests in neighboring Nevada during the 1950s, and newly declassified documents show the confusion was what then-President Dwight D. Eisenhower wanted.

At a time when pressure was mounting to move open-air testing elsewhere, Eisenhower told the Atomic Energy Commission in 1953 to keep the public "confused" so research could go on, according to materials declassified for a joint congressional committee.

The committee held a one-day hearing Thursday to study a possible link between the tests and cancer.

The federal agency frequently told southern Utah residents they were in no danger from the reddish clouds that drifted over their homes after the nuclear tests, the documents show.

Gordon Dean, then-chairman of the commission, appeared reluctant to ask Eisenhower for permission to conduct a test because an outcry lingered over a previous blast, according to a diary written by Dean.

Eisenhower gave his permission on May 27, 1953, and "expressed some concern, not too serious, but made the suggestion that we leave 'thermonuclear' out of press releases and speeches. Also 'fusion' and 'hydrogen,'" according to the diary.

Dean, writing in his diary, continued, "The President says, 'keep them confused as to 'fission' and 'fusion.'"

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., read the document into the record of the hearing, which he co-chaired.

Kennedy also called for declassification of more records from the testing era and related health data emitted since then.

Kennedy read an excerpt from the transcript of a 1955 AEC meeting that he said typified what he called a pattern of deception. Then-Commissioner W.F. Libby was quoted as saying, "People have got to learn to live with the facts of life, and part of the facts of life are fallout."

Another commissioner, Thomas E. Murray, was quoted as saying, "We must not let anything interfere with this series of tests — nothing."

Other documents showed the commission was careful not to detonate bombs on days when winds blew toward Las Vegas or Los Angeles, but did nothing to protect Utah and Arizona residents from fallout.

Although there is no proof linking radioactive fallout to cancer, residents from southern Utah told the panel about dozens of cancer deaths among relatives and friends.

The hearing lasted only one day, but Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, Kennedy's co-chairman, said a similar hearing would be held Monday in Las Vegas. The panel is trying to determine if allegedly affected residents should be compensated by the government.

Elbert Pickett testified that he lost 10 members of his immediate family to cancer in 10 years.

"It was quite a sight," he said of the blasts. "These red-colored clouds would

New Principal Chosen For Junior High

A junior high counselor Thursday named the new assistant principal at Matthews Junior High by Lubbock public school trustees.

Bill Gonzales, counselor at O.L. Slaton Junior High, will assume his new position in August.

He will replace David Vasquez who has been serving as interim assistant vice principal. Vasquez has filled in for Jesse Garza who was moved up to the principal's position at the school.

Vasquez will return to his former position as physical education instructor and will also act as assistant football coach at Matthews.

Gonzales, 30, previously taught social studies at Matthews and served as a coach there beginning in August 1971.

His educational degrees include a bachelor's in history from Sul Ross University and a master's from Texas Tech University. He also is certified as a professional counselor.

In connection with his social studies program, Gonzales worked as coordinator of a guidance program that was a joint project between Texas Tech and the Lubbock Independent School District, said Superintendent Ed Irons.

Gonzales has been a counselor at Slaton since August 1976.

Said the new assistant vice principal, "I'm very happy. I'd been wanting an administrative position for awhile. I'm looking forward to going back and working with some of the same teachers I worked with before and to working with the students at Matthews."

RECOMMENDS GROUNDING HELICOPTERS — Brad Dunbar, spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, uses a photo of the helicopter that crashed Wednesday night at Newark International Airport to show where the tail rotor assembly broke off, causing the accident which killed three persons. ## Official Says Access To X-Rays Limited

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Karen Silkwood didn't have access to the quality control X-rays of fuel rod welds, a Kerr-McGee Corp. official testified Thursday.

At the time of her death in a 1974 auto crash, Miss Silkwood allegedly was gathering information about falsified fuel rod quality control documents.

Martin Binstock, 57, of Oklahoma City said fuel rod quality control X-rays were kept in a locked room to which only supervisors and quality control workers had access.

On cross-examination, he said he didn't know if any of Miss Silkwood's friends worked in or could get into the X-ray room.

Binstock said she did have access to photos of the welds taken through microscopes in the lab where she worked. He said negatives used to print photos of the welds she listed in a notebook turned over to an Atomic Workers union official five days before her death all showed some irregularities.

The Silkwood estate is suing Kerr-McGee for $11.5 million alleging negligence in connection with Miss Silkwood's contamination with plutonium. The company claims she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking her urine samples. Documents discussed during Thursday's proceedings showed Kerr-McGee apparently threatened to pull out of the nuclear fuel business at least twice when confronted with allegations by federal regulators.

Binstock was asked about a 1975 General Accounting office report revealing one of the threats. He said he was unaware of the report and the Silkwood estate wasn't allowed to introduce it into evidence. U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan., said the report can be introduced after Kerr-McGee rests its defense case.

The GAO document says Kerr-McGee wanted to be either "charged or cleared" in connection with allegations concerning welds on its fuel rods. The report said Kerr-McGee notified the government contractor it was selling to, the Westinghouse-Hanford Corp., it "was not interested in any future contracts" with the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration if such action wasn't taken.

GAO investigators asked whether the ERDA team was affected by Kerr-McGee's position. Team members said they weren't.

Japanese Police Beef Up Security For Summit

TOKYO (AP) — Police have begun a nationwide security check and are buying $1 million in bullet-proof cars for what they intend to be the best-protected international summit meeting ever held.

The nation's entire 200,000-man police force eventually will be involved in security for the meeting of seven heads of state in June and a state visit preceding it by President Carter, said Tomoharu Yoda, chief superintendent of the national police security division. Leaders of France, Britain, Canada, Italy, West Germany, the United States, and host Japan, will meet in Tokyo.

"We will use 25,000 police per day in Tokyo during the two-day meeting including 15,000 riot police," he said. With the guard for Carter's expected state visit before the summit, the country's entire police force will be involved.

Traffic jams will be a problem in already overcrowded Tokyo because, Yoda said, streets will be blocked off around the state guest house, where the meetings will be held; the New Otani hotel, where staff and reporters will be staying; at embassies if the heads of state choose to stay in them, and along the travel routes of the leaders.

Yoda said the police were considering asking people not to drive their cars during the summit, especially in the busy Akasaka area where the meeting is to be held.

He said police expect "many demonstrations" by leftists and other radical students. Demonstrations will not be allowed at the conference site or along the travel routes, he said, but permits apparently will be issued for other areas.

"The radical leftists were able to gather 6,000 to 10,000 people at Narita (the new international airport north of Tokyo, subject of violent opposition over the past few years). We expect many more in Tokyo, which is more convenient," Yoda said.

Many of the leftists are not united, he said, so they are more likely to stage many small demonstrations than one large one.

Yoda said the possibility of problems from organized terrorist groups was "remote," but international police organizations and other countries are cooperating in checking on such groups. He said stringent precautions are being taken to keep known terrorists out of Japan.

The 4,000 journalists expected to cover the summit are being screened carefully but "discreetly," Yoda said. Police are handing press credentials for the 3,000 Japanese journalists expected, and embassies of the countries involved are issuing credentials "under severe checks" to their own journalists. Police and the foreign ministry are taking care of the rest.

Seven bulletproof limousines are being ordered from the United States at a cost of nearly $1 million, Yoda said.

A nationwide apartment check is being done through neighborhood police "boxes." In Japan, each neighborhood has one of these tiny police stations, and their officers will have to vouch for the residents of every apartment in their area. Those they are not sure of will be searched by police, Yoda said.

Only apartments are being checked, not homes. Officials indicated this was because apartment dwellers were more transient.

Japanese police are not too worried about the bane of many other security forces — the single insane or enraged person with a gun who attacks, with little regard for his own safety.

"Guns are illegal in Japan," Yoda said. The few hunting weapons allowed are under strong controls, and even gangsters here are unable to obtain more than a few weapons.

As usual, one of the security forces' biggest problems will be controlling the people they are supposed to protect. Yoda said former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda snarled his own security arrangements with an unscheduled walk at the Bonn summit, and he noted that President Carter is known for his penchant for unexpected strolls.

"If the leaders follow the schedule, there will be no problems," Yoda said.

Terror Attacks Slow Rhodesian Voting

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Voting slowed to a trickle today in Rhodesia's first universal-suffrage election, but officials hoped for a last-minute surge to bring the turnout over the 60 percent mark.

Officials said by noon today, nearly 52 percent of the estimated 2.9 million voters had cast ballots. They expected a big turnout during the afternoon, a half holiday, and on the last day of polling Saturday.

Since the voting started Tuesday, black nationalist guerrillas have killed an election official, burned at least one village, mined a truckload of voters and intimidated many other blacks to keep them from the polls. But the widespread attacks that were feared have not materialized.

The turnout among the 2.8 million black voters was reported strongest in urban areas, ranging up to 70 percent in and around Salisbury, the capital, and in northeastern Rhodesia. The response was much lower in some of the rural tribal areas, which are heavily infiltrated by guerrillas.

"People in some areas don't want anything to do with the terrorists or the army," said Ian Matheson, district commissioner of the guerrilla-plagued Tjolojolo tribal reserve. "They don't want to vote. They just want to be left alone."

He said none of the 8,000 voters in the North Natal tribal reserve voted.

The heaviest casualties reported from guerrilla action since the voting started Tuesday occurred when a truck carrying blacks home from a polling station set off a land mine 28 miles north of Karoi, a remote village in northwestern Rhodesia. Officials said four persons were killed, including a one-year-old boy and a woman eight months pregnant, and 41 were injured.

The military said a guerrilla band burned 70 huts in a village in the tribal trust area of Mtikwe after the villagers voted, but there were no reports of casualties.

The army also reported that guerrillas killed election supervisor Gerald Ross in the village of Nkai, in central Rhodesia.

Italian Government Supports Official

ROME (AP) — The Italian government formally expressed guarded support today for Mario Sarcinelli, the Bank of Italy official who faces charges he misused his office to cover up a credit scandal.

After a two-hour cabinet meeting, the government issued a statement that it had "a favorable opinion" of a Bank of Italy request to fully reinstate Sarcinelli in his position as vice director of the central bank.

However, Sarcinelli won't be able to resume his duties because investigating magistrates suspended him earlier this week as part of the investigation.

In its statement, the government effectively criticized the judiciary's action against Sarcinelli. However, the cabinet emphasized that it didn't have the authority to overturn the magistrates' suspension of the official.

"The council of ministers noted the very delicate functions of the Bank of Italy but didn't enter in an examination of events which are the proper responsibilities of other organs of the state," the statement said.

The cabinet's declaration of support was widely interpreted as necessary to prevent the resignation of Bank of Italy Governor Paolo Baffi and other top bank officials. Baffi conferred with Premier Giulio Andreotti Thursday.

Baffi faces the same charges as Sarcinelli but hasn't been suspended from his job. Both men have been accused of withholding the results of an inquiry into low-interest loans by state-controlled credit institutes to a near-bankrupt chemical company with close links to the Christian Democrat Party.

The central bank officials have received strong support from leaders of virtually every major political party, including Treasury Minister Filippo Maria Pandolfi. Thursday the Communist Party

Accused American Spies Leave South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The last two Americans ordered out of South Africa for involvement in alleged aerial spying have left aboard an Air Force plane, U.S. officials said today.

Col. Alvin M. Crews and Maj. Bernard McConnell and their families flew out of Jan Smuts Airport in Johannesburg Thursday on a C-141 Starlifter transport flight.

Officials said they could not say when the men would arrive in the United States or where. The transport makes regular, although unscheduled, round-trip flights between an air base in Florida and Johannesburg, stopping at several satellite tracking stations along the way.

The two officers and Sgt. Horace Wyatt had been given a week to leave South Africa after Prime Minister Pieter Botha's televised charge April 12 that the U.S. embassy's light plane was used to take aerial photographs of South African installations.

The U.S. State Department has denied using the plane for spying and has expelled two South African military attaches in retaliation for South Africa's action.

In a speech to Parliament Thursday, Botha said U.S. officials had been warned as early as Feb. 9 to cease their alleged aerial photography. The prime minister also charged that American officials had gained entrance to restricted areas under false pretences, and had made "unauthorized contact" with South African military attaches.

Crews Escape Injury In Jet Collision

INVERNESS, Scotland (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force F-111 fighter-bombers collided over the North Sea today but all four crewmen bailed out in what was called "a miracle" double escape.

The planes, on a training mission from a base in England, crashed into the sea in Dornoch Firth 20 miles north of Inverness off the northeast coast of Scotland, an Air Force statement said.

Both two-man crews parachuted safely and were rescued from the sea, apparently uninjured, by a Royal Air Force vessel in the area and a fishing boat that went to the scene. An RAF spokesman called it a "miracle" double escape.

They were flown by RAF helicopter to a hospital at the British air base at Lossiemouth, Scotland, 40 miles northeast of Inverness. The Air Force statement said they were "in a good condition."

The Air Force identified the crewmen, all 28 years old, as: Capt. Stephen R. Ruttman, of Norman, Okla.; Capt. Timothy A. Schlitt, of Afton, Mo.; Capt. Roger L. Webb, of Staunton, Va.; and Capt. Joseph Pluso, of Rosedale, N.Y.

All were assigned to the 48th Tactical Fighter Wing at Lakenheath air base in Suffolk county in eastern England where the two planes were based, the statement said.

The men were taken to the hospital within 40 minutes of the crash. An RAF spokesman said: "The first miracle was that both crews should come out OK from a mid-air collision. The second was that they should be picked up uninjured in that kind of time."

The planes were on a training flight over the Tain bombing range on the Dornoch Firth at the time of the collision.

IRA Begins New Wave Of Terror

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Bloodied and battered by nearly 10 years of guerrilla warfare, Northern Ireland is reeling under a new wave of IRA terror that has killed 12 members of the security forces in two weeks.

The spring offensive of the outlawed Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing began in London with the bomb assassination of Airey Neave, the Conservative Party's spokesman on Northern Ireland, on March 30, the day after Prime Minister James Callaghan scheduled a general election for May 3.

The new guerrilla campaign opened in Northern Ireland six days later with an ambush outside a British army base in which two soldiers were killed. The IRA's 10 other victims since then have included three more soldiers, four policemen blown up Tuesday as their Land-Rover passed a parked, booby-trapped van, a part-time member of the Ulster Defense Regiment, a prison officer shot as he left his sister's wedding with his 3-year-old daughter and a woman prison officer and an army cadet killed Thursday.

The situation stirred up a storm today between U. S. House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill and British political leaders after O'Neill accused Britain of using Northern Ireland as a "political football." O'Neill made the remark in Dublin and then flew here with a congressional delegation.

In London, Shirley Williams, education minister and a leading member of Britain's Labor Party, said Irish-Americans have "very little idea of the truth of the situation in Northern Ireland."

Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher, hoping to become Britain's first woman prime minister, said the events in Northern Ireland "are too deeply tragic" to be used politically.

The spate of killings has hardened the British government's resolve that IRA terrorism would not force it to hand over the province to the neighboring Irish Republic.

Roy Mason, the cabinet member for Northern Ireland, has called for a "relentless drive" by the province's 1.5 million people against the guerrillas.

"They will not and must not succeed," he said. "Each incidence of violence creates a greater and growing determination on the part of the government and people to resist the imposition of a state of anarchy in which the gunman and the bomber hold sway. I am determined that they shall not achieve such a state."

Prime Minister James Callaghan said that if his Labor Party was returned to office in the election, he would try and try again to find a political solution which would bring peace to the province's two bitterly opposed communities, the million Protestants and the half-million Roman Catholics.

But he had no new proposals to end the centuries of enmity that erupted in the summer of 1969.

Callaghan is heckled at every campaign meeting by a small group of demonstrators waving banners, shouting "Troops out of Ireland!" and accusing the army and the police of torture.

On Tuesday, a few hours after the four policemen were blown to bits, he told the hecklers, "You should go and hide your heads in shame." The audience cheered him.

When the demonstrators turned up Thursday after the woman prison officer was shot, he commented: "I wonder if they are really prepared to defend the murder of a mother of six children by their so-called friends."

The killing of Neave resulted in an unprecedented tightening of the traditionally low-key security for campaigning political leaders. It appeared to many observers that the IRA was trying to bomb its way into the British election. But in a statement Thursday the guerrillas said they were "committed to a war of national liberation that will continue well after May 3."

A total of 1,902 persons, 73 percent of them civilians, have been killed since August 1969, when Catholics living in a Belfast apartment block stoned young Protestants marching by and the Protestants responded by smashing nearly every window in the block.

Within two weeks, British troops stationed in Northern Ireland were called out for what Callaghan, then the cabinet minister responsible for the self-governing province, called a "limited operation."

The violence turned into an IRA war to sever the Protestant-dominated province from the United Kingdom and unite it with the Irish Republic, which is 94 percent Catholic.

In 1972, the provincial parliament, the Stormont, was suspended, and the government in London took direct control. Militant Protestants responded to the largely-Catholic IRA by forming the Ulster Defense Association and other private armies. The British army now has 13,000 troops in the province to restrain the Protestants as well as hunt the Catholic guerrillas.

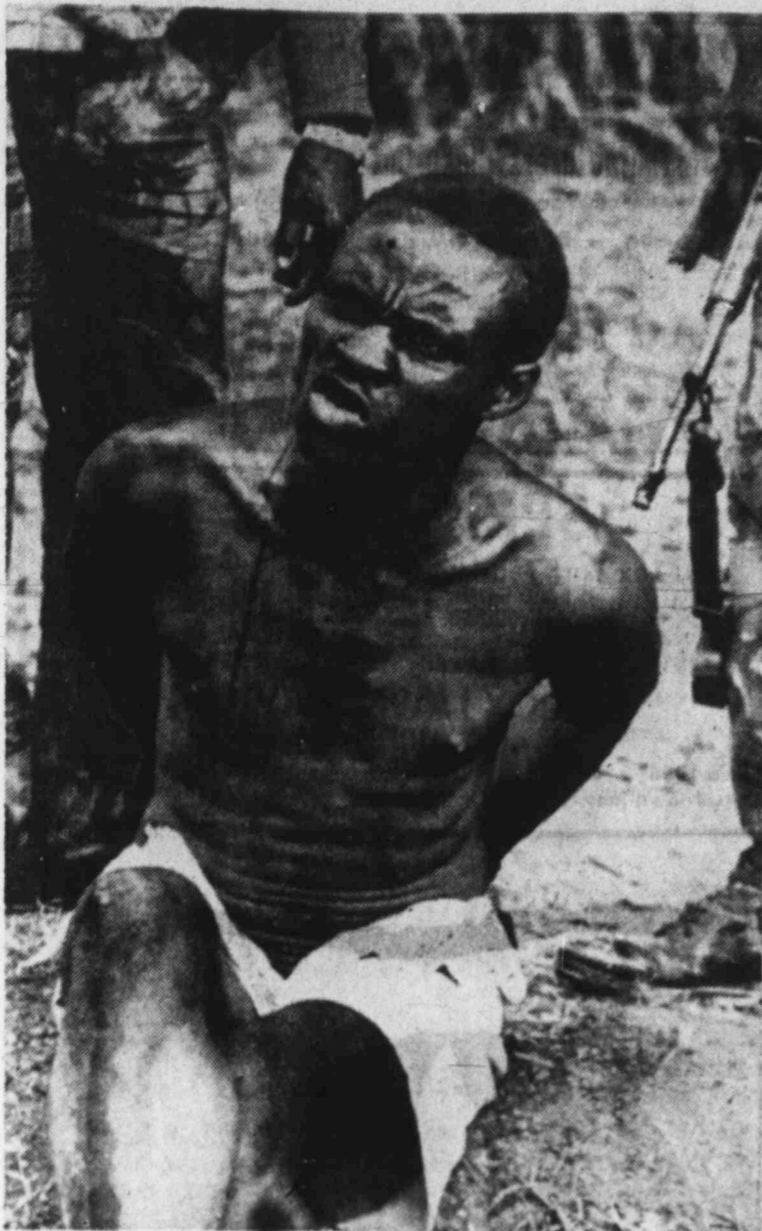

The Catholics charge that the 11-battalion, local militia, the Ulster Defense Regiment, is also a front for Protestant extremists. Some 30 of its members have been jailed for terrorist crimes, and dozens more have been discharged for belonging to the Ulster Defense Association or other such groups.

In the first five years of warfare, an average of four people a week were killed. By 1976, the average rose to nearly six a week. For more than two years it has been two or fewer, but now it has taken a sudden jump back up.

Each upsurge of IRA attacks in Northern Ireland or in Britain touches off demands in Britain to get out of the province and let the Irish settle things for themselves. But that would touch off full-scale civil war in which the Irish Republic inevitably would become involved. And both the Labor and the Conservative parties are committed to defend the rights of the Protestant majority in Northern Ireland.

The Labor Government in 1973 tried to start the Protestants and Catholics toward reconciliation by joining them in a provincial coalition government, but it collapsed under a Protestant boycott. There have been similar British attempts since then, but the Protestants refuse to accept anything less than unrestricted majority rule.

New Ugandan Government Sets Elections

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's new provisional government announced its first local elections today and broadcast fresh appeals for troops backing deposed President Idi Amin to surrender.

Radio Kampala said residents of towns in the Kampala area, the capital, would go to the polls to elect local parish leaders Saturday, eight days after the new government took office pledging to restore democracy after eight years of Amin's dictatorship.

Two of Amin's officers went on the radio, appealing to soldiers to stop fighting and back the new administration. "I appeal to all soldiers to renounce Amin, because they will be well treated," said Maj. Joseph Adeke, senior Anglican chaplain to Amin's forces. "There should be no more bloodshed. Put down your weapons and come forward." A similar appeal was broadcast by Lt. Col. Are Kit-za.

Tanzanian and provisional government forces continued their drive east and north in a campaign they hoped would conquer remaining Amin forces in about one month.

Although Kampala was taken April 10, its lifeline east to neighboring Kenya has remained unsafe because of resistance by remnants of Amin's army. Widespread looting, murders and massacres have been reported in the area, with violence attributed to both pro-and anti-Amin factions.

A newspaper in neighboring Kenya reported that Amin troops ambushed four truckloads of refugees being escorted toward Kenya by Amin's foes. According to the report in the Standard, the escorting forces said 150 people were killed in the gunbattle that broke out after the convoy came to a roadblock near the border.

The Kenya government continued its roundup and screening of Ugandans who have fled into the country since Amin's ouster from Kampala. Ranking officials in the Amin government were said to be among refugees in Kenya and it appeared some might face extradition to be tried by the courts of the new Kampala government.

Amin's whereabouts were not known. Students in the provisional government army said in Kampala that they had been assigned to sort through papers of the State Research Bureau, Amin's dreaded security service, in an effort to identify its agents and try to bring them to trial.

Thailand Will Not Accept Cambodian Refugees

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — More than 5,000 Cambodians have crossed into Thailand seeking asylum and more are expected, but Thailand's interior minister says his government's policy is to "push everyone out."

Gen. Prem Tinsulanonda, the interior minister and army commander-in-chief, said Thursday Cambodians who have tried to flee into Thailand to escape Vietnamese-led forces were not regarded as refugees but escapees who would be pushed back.

He admitted some have been allowed in but that the overall policy is to "push everyone out." An Interior Ministry source, who asked not to be identified, said today that only the wounded, the young and elderly would be accepted.

That excludes many of the Cambodians who entered Thailand on Thursday north of Aranyaprathet, including about 1,000 soldiers loyal to toppled Premier Pol Pot.

Thailand's refusal to accept the fleeing Cambodians has spawned a controversy between the government and the U.N. High Commission for Refugees.

A spokesman for the agency said the government had promised refugees would not be turned back against their will but that "subsequent actions were different from what was promised."

Gunfire could be heard along the border area today. Reliable sources here said although attention has been focused on fighting near the Thai border, clashes were still going on in other parts of the nation.

The Pol Pot radio claimed its side had killed 240 Vietnamese troops in fighting between March 19 and April 5 in five areas of the country. It also claimed that the body of one Soviet combatant was found in northeastern Cambodia.

In the town of Samut Prakarn, on the Gulf of Thailand, the government has ordered a Thai freighter carrying 518 Vietnamese refugees to leave Thai territorial waters, provincial officials said today. The ship arrived earlier this month.

Bomb Damages Rome Building

ROME (AP) — A powerful bomb exploded early today at the entrance to Rome's city hall, blowing off the portal and breaking windows in the building designed by Michelangelo, police reported.

The explosion on the Piazza del Campidoglio occurred about 1 a.m., and no one was in the building, the police said. But experts said the damage was "extremely serious."

The bomb exploded at the convergence of the double staircase in front of the building, behind the fountain with figures representing the Tiber and the Nile rivers.

Sunshine, Water Aid Tomatoes

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Just about every vegetable-garden popularity poll will include as a winner tomatoes, which can be a most rewarding crop. If you want a better harvest, there are a few ideas.

Tomatoes need sunshine. Plant them where they will get plenty of it — all day if possible. If you have no room elsewhere, stick in a few, well-staked, among the flowers. They blend in well.

Don't plant them too early. Start them indoors rather if you use seed. You are better off buying started plants in the long run. As a guide, don't plant tomatoes outside until the topsoil temperature is at least 55 degrees.

In short, delay planting outdoors until all danger of frost has passed. Wait until mid-May to mid-June in northern states, where the growing season is short; mid-April to early-June in temperate states. In the far south, you may plant tomatoes any time except April, May and June, when the temperature might be too hot for good tomatoes in the summer.

Select your variety carefully. Choose for disease resistance and adaptability to your climate. If there are letters such as VF or VFN after the variety name it will mean it has been bred to be resistant to the common tomato diseases verticillium (V), fusarium (F), and nematodes (N), a root-invading soil pest. Such diseases may cause plants (and fruit) to wither and die. Among disease-resistant varieties are Big Girl Hybrid, Jet Star, Super-sonic, Better Boy, Beefmaster, Burpee's VF Hybrid, Ramapo Hybrid, Wonder Boy and others.

If you live in an area with a short growing season select an early-maturing variety.

If you buy seedlings choose short, compact, sturdy ones. These will probably be six to eight weeks old. When you plant them apply a starter-food solution high in phosphorus around the plant but not directly on it. Then when the plants begin fruiting, apply a general fertilizer such as 5-10-5 to stimulate new growth.

Don't forget to give the plants a good watering if the weather stays dry.

Black, leathery spots on the bottom of garden tomatoes indicate they have a common garden disease termed blossom-end rot. This will attack both ripe and green fruit. Scientists describe it as a "physiological upset" of the plant, one that does not involve disease organisms.

The cause of blossom-end rot is inadequate soil moisture during the early growing season, leading to calcium deficiency in the young fruit, causing fruit cells to die. A preventive step for the home gardener is to irrigate when the soil becomes dry early in the season.

Other contributing factors are hoeing too close to the plants, too early transplanting and too much fertilizer early in the season.

Another serious tomato problem is early blight, a fungus that marks lower leaves with round target spots. Most leaves on the lower half of the plant may die and drop, robbing the plant of food-making capacity and permitting fruit sunburn. To fight this fungus, caused by frequent rain and heavy dew, spray weekly with fungicides (such as maneb, mancozeb or zineb).

Ex-Officials Disagree On Spy Capability

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a vivid example of the complexity of the approaching SALT debate, two of America's former top intelligence officials are in direct disagreement on the ability of U.S. photographic satellites to monitor an arms agreement.

On one side is retired Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, who says a former CIA agent who sold a copy of the KH-11 "Big Bird" satellite manual to the Soviets completely destroyed the satellite's usefulness.

Graham told a news conference last week it would now be easy for the Soviets to take counter-measures to conceal any cheating. On the other side is Herbert "Pete" Scoville, former deputy director of the CIA.

He told a news conference Thursday, "It is hard to believe that Gen. Graham put his signature on a statement like that about our satellites. He must be aware that the Soviets know they are being photographed, and the fact that they have a manual that shows how it is done doesn't change anything."

Scoville, and former Defense official Townsend Hoopes, another pro-SALT spokesman, were asked at their news conference how they would explain such wide disparity on technical issues between two former intelligence officials who are operating from the same basic information.

Hoopes said, "The difference goes to the bottom of the debate, to a different perception of what the Soviets are. They (the anti-SALT forces) assume that the Soviets are seeking to wage war and impose their will on the rest of the world."

"Their perception goes back to World War II and they tend to see the Soviets as an extension of Hitler, with a boundless appetite for territory."

"We tend to see the Soviet Union as a sterile country, in a world without friends, with their situation aggravated by the Chinese trying to put together an anti-Soviet coalition. We think they are aiming at a war avoidance strategy although their nuclear planning is far less sophisticated than ours."

Another point of difference is whether the loss of the Iranian bases will damage the U.S. ability to verify a SALT treaty.

Graham, speaking for the anti-SALT forces, said that the bases were important, and their loss will be critical.

Rains Bring Relief, Woes To Farmers

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Rain that fell across much of Texas this week added to the woes of farmers in Central Texas, but brought relief to farmers with young crops in southern areas and in West Texas, the state Agricultural Extension Service reports.

The service also said the sugar cane crop in the Rio Grande Valley has been harvested.

The rains continued to delay spring planting in South Central, Southeast, Central, East and North Central Texas, the extension service said, but new crops in South and Southwest Texas were in need of the moisture.

Needed rain also fell over parts of the High Plains and far West Texas and will help in spring planting and in improving range conditions, the extension service said.

Early planted crops are generally making good progress, said the extension service, and pastures and ranges are improving rapidly due to good soil moisture. Small grains are growing well, and many fields will be grazed out due to high cattle prices in comparison to grain prices, the extension service said.

Early planted vegetables are doing well although heavy rains in some locations have caused damage, it said. Planting of potatoes and onions is about complete over the state and strawberry harvesting is active in Atascosa County, according to the extension service.

While some sugar beets are still being planted in the high plains, the sugar cane crop has been harvested in the Rio Grande Valley. A total of 31,711 acres were harvested, said the extension service, producing 58,858 tons of sugar and 83,311 tons of molasses.

Two hard freezes in December and January reduced production by about 42 percent, according to the extension service.

The livestock picture continues to improve as more grazing becomes available. Producers are fertilizing pastures and hay crops in many locations to boost production. Cattle prices remain strong, and many calves are moving to market as soon as they are weaned, said the extension service.

Carburetor School Set

A four-day carburetor teardown school open to Lubbock area mechanics will be conducted here next week under auspices of the Texas State Technical Institute's Mobile Automotive Program.

Directed by Donald L. Chiles, the 12-hour short course will be conducted Monday through Thursday evenings, 7-10 p.m., at the National Distributing Company, 1012 17th St., which is cosponsoring the school.

Cost of the course is $15, which covers tuition and materials. A spokesman said 21 mechanics already have signed up for the course, but said every effort will be made to accommodate all who want to participate.

"The course is designed for the employed service technician who wants to advance his knowledge and skill on the newest type of carburetion units," said National Distributing's Jim Lindsey.

Lindsey noted that the course primarily would deal with exotic carburetor types found on the smaller, fuel-economical engines now assuming prominence in the industry.

Reservations to attend may be made by calling National Distributing Company, 744-1215.

Government To Sell Less Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to halve the amount of gold for sale at its monthly public auctions starting in May, the Treasury Department has announced.

The decision to sell some 750,000 ounces "monthly until further notice" came as the Treasury announced the results of the April sale of 1,500,100 ounces. The April sale brought the government $346.1 million, down from the previous month's proceeds of $361.4 million.

Less gold, and of lower quality, will be offered to the public May 15, with "the actual amount and grade of gold ... to be announced about four weeks in advance" of future sales, the department said in a statement.

"The amount of the monthly sale is being reduced in light of improved conditions in the foreign exchange markets and the fact that gold no longer appears to be a destabilizing factor in these markets," it said.

"Sales in the magnitude maintained in recent months — 1,500,000 ounces monthly — do not appear to be needed under current circumstances."

The sales were initiated a year ago to help supply domestic gold needs and bolster the U.S. dollar.

The dollar has been strong against major foreign currencies in recent weeks, but was down slightly the last few days.

The Treasury said its April sale of 1 million ounces of high-quality gold sold for an average of $230.96 per ounce.

Successful bids for the gold bars with fine gold content from 99.5 percent to 99.94 percent ranged from $230.13 to $232.10 per ounce, the agency said.

The 500,100 ounces of lower-quality gold sold for an average price of $230.17 per ounce. Successful bids for bars with 89.9 percent to 91.7 percent fine gold content ranged from $229.27 to $231.53 per ounce.

The government said the chief successful bidders were the Deutsche Bank of Germany, 269,200 ounces, and the Swiss Bank Corp of Zurich, 392,000 ounces.

The May sale, which will be the government's 13th such public auction, will involve 750,000 ounces of gold bars with a fine gold content of 89.9 percent to 91.7 percent.

One Treasury official said the gold content could vary from sale to sale, with high-quality offered at times.

The first sale involved 300,000 ounces. The amount went to 750,000 in November and reached 1,500,100 in December as the government's dollar-boosting efforts began in earnest.

BANKAMERICA INCOME UP
 SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — BankAmerica Corp. has reported a 26 percent increase in net income and in consolidated income before securities transactions for the first quarter of 1979. The firm, parent corporation of giant Bank of America, said income jumped to $129.2 million for the first quarter from $102.5 million one year ago. Corporation president A.W. Clausen credited most of the increase to BankAmerica's continued growth in earnings assets, as well as to improvement in the net interest margin.

Architect Considering Designs Offered For Branch Library

Recommendations by library board members for design of the new southwest branch library are currently being considered by project architect Joe McKay, the chairman of the board said Thursday.
 Chairman Charles Burford said members of the coordinating committee for branch development met with McKay on April 12 to review a list of "functional spaces" that McKay felt the library needed.
 Burford said that one suggestion for the new building is the design of a meeting room that will also serve as an "above-grade tornado shelter." He said that McKay, representing BGR Architects-Engineers, is now looking into the cost of such plans.
 The library, to be located at Leroy Elmore Park, Quaker Avenue and Loop 289, is scheduled to open its doors "no later than July 1980", according to Jim Weston, director of community facilities.
 Burford also said that members of the coordinating committee accompanied McKay to Dallas at the end of March to study the design, facilities and operations of five libraries there.

He said the group was "amazed at the amount of money spent on aesthetic considerations," and said that all committee members agreed that money for the Lubbock library should be concentrated in the area of function rather than decoration.
 Board member Bill Stewart told members that the Texas legislature is currently considering upgrading library service in public schools to include employment of librarians in all schools.
 He said that the junior highs and high schools in the city all have at least one librarian, but stressed the need for such a service in the grade schools.
 He said that HB 1309 and SB 894 have been introduced to "get more librarians in the schools" and help update the library programs altogether.
 Stewart also announced a committee proposal at the recent Texas Library Association Conference that would revise the Texas Library Systems Act.
 The proposal, which Stewart said came as a surprise to most delegates, would make possible the transfer of the major resource center to any type of public-funded library.
 Following the meeting, Stewart explained that the state has 10 major resource centers, including one in Lubbock, that are, as required by the act, located only in public libraries.
 The proposed revision would allow the centers to be located at public-funded college, school and special libraries also.
 The act has been funded for the past four or five years by combined state and federal funds, said Stewart. He said that a disadvantage of the revision from the public library point of view would be that the money would no longer be available for collection and distribution.
 "There would be no money to buy books to put into the library," he said.
 He said he doesn't know whether any further action will be taken on the proposal, but said that the committee sponsoring the revision hopes to get all members of the association to agree on the change so that it can be presented to the state legislature in two years.
 In other business, Friends of the Library representative Pat Judd announced that their annual book sale is set for Sept. 27-29 at the Godeke branch library.

 Donated books may be brought now to the Mahon library. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Friends group which in turn will donate the funds for library improvements.

U.S. Objects To Tax Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department is objecting to Poland's plan to charge foreign journalists a $350 tax while covering the visit of Pope John Paul II.
 "It strikes us as probably an unwarranted obstacle to journalism that is not in the spirit of the Helsinki Agreement," spokesman Hodding Carter said Thursday.
 "The charge seems excessive, especially to a journalist who makes plans to stay only a few days."
 Carter said such a move would create "a considerable amount" of ill will.
 Under the plan, foreign journalists would have to pay the $350 fee while covering the visit of Polish-born Pope John Paul II to his homeland in June.
 "We have conveyed our concern about the fee to the Polish government, but we are frankly not sure what specific services that money is supposed to be covering or purchasing," Carter said.
 The Poles' basic position, Carter said, is that the money is intended to alleviate the cost of building special facilities for this visit, organizing a press center, and assuring accommodations for what they expect to be a very large and unusual flow of journalists.
 "They have also told us," Carter said, "they are going to provide us with more information about what it is they intend to use the money for."

Lubbock Man

 between 11:50 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday and dirt in the pot, which had been used as a planter, was dumped in his front yard.
 Anna Herzer of 4610 19th St. told officers two bicycles, worth a total of $416, were stolen from her yard between Tuesday and Thursday. The bikes, she said, had been chained to a gate.
 Bernardo Garza said while his 1974 Pontiac was parked in a Lubbock High School parking lot in the 1800 block of Avenue U, someone stole $80 worth of tapes from the vehicle.

Yacht Club Plans Tune-Up Day

The White River Yacht Club will hold a "tune-up day" beginning at noon Sunday at the Buffalo Springs Lake location of Lubbock Boat Club.
 Informal races, announcements of upcoming yacht club activities and "shaking the sand out of the rigging of members' boats" are planned.
 All sailors are invited, including cats, board boats, day sailors and cruisers, a spokesman said. Additional information may be had by calling Am Freund at 797-6073.

University Gives Awards To Engineering Alumni

Texas Tech's College of Engineering today presented Distinguished Engineer Awards to four of its graduates, Homer A. Nelson, Norman M. Jasper, Lynn H. Elliott and Scott G. Arbuckle.

Presentations were made at a noon luncheon in the University Center Ballroom.

Nelson is president and owner of Nelson Petroleum Co. of Tulsa. Jasper, of Austin, is IBM account executive for the state of Texas. Elliott is chairman of the board and president of EIM Co. Inc. of Dallas and Houston. Arbuckle is president of Thorsen Tool Co., Dallas.

The Distinguished Engineer Award, first presented in 1967, recognizes graduates of the College of Engineering who have become community leaders as well as leaders in various engineering fields.

Nelson, born in Rails, was graduated with a degree in petroleum engineering in 1947. He worked with Amoco Production Co. and Blackwell Oil and Gas Co. before joining the Calvert Exploration Co., which acquired Blackwell. He was executive vice president and then president of Calvert before retiring in 1974 and forming Nelson Petroleum. Nelson has served as a member of the Executive Committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America and as chairman of the association's Oil Recovery and Research Committee.

Jasper, a Silverton native, earned his industrial engineering degree in 1960 and has been chairman of the Industrial Engineering Department's Advisory Board. He first worked for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and in 1962 joined Mason and Hanger, a division of the Silas Mason Co., as manager of quality engineering. He was a senior process engineer when he left Mason and Hanger to join IBM in 1967. Jasper is past vice president of the American Ordnance Association and a former officer of the American Society of Quality Control.

Elliott, born in Kansas City, Mo., attended Tech on a football scholarship and was graduated in 1958 with a degree in electrical engineering. He is vice president and director of Pike Road Investors, of M.O.V. Inc. and of Nelson-Gulf Coast; executive vice president and director of EIM Controls Ltd. In addition to business interests, Elliott has been active in numerous organizations, including the American Water Works Association, Criswell Bible Institute Radio and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Arbuckle, an Amarillo native, is a 1957 industrial engineering graduate who began his career as a research and development engineer with Freepport Sulfur Co. He later was departmental industrial engineer for Texas Instruments. He left TI to join United States Brass Corp. and was vice president of manufacturing when in 1971 he went from U.S. Brass to Thorsen. Arbuckle, recipient of the Northwood Institute Automotive Replacement Education Award, is a member of the Texas Tech Industrial Engineering Advisory Board, past president of the Dallas Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers, Boy Scout Councilman and former member of the Richardson City Charter Review Board.

Production Of 'La Perichole' Operetta Worth Seeing Twice

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Here's a hint on how you can recognize a critic who has been completely blown away by the entertaining professionalism of a theatrical performance: he'll sit down at his typewriter and, still stunned, lead off his review with the cliché "words can't describe..."

A-J FILM REVIEW

It's a common trap most of us have fallen into once or twice, usually after seeing a show on the same level as the Texas Tech Music Theater's production of "La Perichole" at the Civic Center theater. In reality, however, the problem is not that there are no words to describe the production, but simply that there are not enough.

Words like witty, spectacular, mesmerizing, colorful, graceful, magical, superb and funny-funny-funny all fit the bill, but where do you go from there? Well, if you're smart, you go back to the Civic Center the next night — because "La Perichole" just happens to be one of the best productions ever staged in Lubbock and it's well worth seeing twice. To purposely refrain from seeing it even once could be likened to turning your back on a rare event.

"La Perichole" is an operetta by Jacques Offenbach, but please don't let those stuffy names scare any of you first-timers. Even if you can't stand opera, you'll love this production. "La Perichole" is much more light hearted and faster paced, and operettas also make use of dialogue. Though the purists may balk at my description, I'd have to say the current production more closely resembles contemporary musical comedy than anything else. It's easy to follow and an absolute hoot to watch. Filled to the brim with song, dance and laughter, it may be the first locally produced, big-budget, lavish musical production which the youngsters will enjoy as much as the adults.

The plot concerns two street singers in old Peru. La Perichole and Paquillo, who are drawn into a series of emotional confrontations with the Viceroy (call him a king, if you find it easier). Young Perichole is starving and, for want of nothing more than a hearty meal, she leaves her true love, Paquillo, and agrees to become one of the palace's ladies-in-waiting. But ladies-in-waiting must be married, and the Viceroy's aides are instructed to find a husband for the girl. They come back with the desolute Paquillo, so drunk that he doesn't even recognize his bride. There follows segments of recognition, feelings of betrayal, a prison escape and a happy ending. But the storyline is but a device enabling individual performers to show off their talents.

And show off they do. Sarah Watkins as Perichole, Bruce Ford as Paquillo and James Toland as the Viceroy each sparkle throughout, masterfully combining vocal capabilities with a refined sense of comic timing. Ford, especially, seems to capture audiences with his total realization of character. He may sing his heart out at one point, then get shrieks of laughter by trying to hang himself with his guitar strap and telling the audience, "This isn't as easy as it looks." Ford seems wonderfully animated at times, and his beautifully choreographed bits where he falls into step with Michael Medley (Don Pedro) and John Pridy (Count of Panatellis) are some of the show's funniest.

Miss Watkins, who has performed in the past as guest soloist with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra, was also in excellent voice Wednesday — but she also did her part to keep the audience in stitches. She boasted quite a stage presence throughout, but was never funnier than during her marriage scene in the first act.

Pled with liquor until she agrees to take a husband, she walks out on stage — no, she reels out on stage with a lush grin on her face that immediately captures every viewer in the house. And she capitalizes on that rapport, combining drunk and dainty characteristics as she musically admits to being a "fittle tight" and teeters precariously on the lip of the stage.

But for sheer hilarity, look no further than James Toland as the Viceroy. From the moment we see him cruising in on a gigantic fake llama, patting the beast and eyeing the women, Toland has us chuckling. Toland, who has earned laughs with more than one character part in the past, makes use of every common possibility. The way he walks, the way he fiddles with his fake beard or prances about when disguised as the "jingling jangler," the way he lasciviously eyes Miss Watkins at the beginning and tells her, "I mistook you for the naked truth. You're a bit overdressed" — all work for the common comic cause. Here is an actor who knows how to make us laugh.

It must also be said that Joe Goodin, playing an old prisoner trying to dig his way to freedom with a penknife, and Medley and Pridy all have their moments of glorious approval.

But so much more played a part. The Lubbock Civic Ballet, for example, also took part, dancing for the amusement of the Viceroy. And during a very special segment in Act Two, Soili Arvola and Leo Ahonen, principals with the Texas Ballet, were introduced as guest soloists and apparently intrigued their fellow performers as much as the audience. Just as quickly, however, the breezy mood returned with a can-can routine which saw Toland leave his throne, throw caution to the wind and join in just for the fun of it.

That, perhaps, may be the key to the production: that months of rehearsal time went into making it look like everyone on stage was having just as much fun as the folks in the paying seats.

John Gillas, as producer and director, is the man probably most responsible for this crowning theatrical achievement and should be allowed to go on stage and take a bow with the cast. He has kept his fingers on the pulse of the stage business throughout, using his ensembles effectively and keeping his lavish, professional look without hampering audience involvement. The costumes are gorgeous and the sets, designed by Hal Mack of Indiana University, are positively breathtaking. Equally as good as anything you'll see on a New York stage, these sets — Spanish courtyards, sparkling fountains, dingy dungeons and glorious palace halls — are as movable as they are gigantic, as effective as they are stunning.

The orchestra, conducted by Kyung Wook Shin, also plays an important role in keeping the mood light and the feet tapping.

Good theater has never been all that rare in Lubbock, but it's not that often I'm moved to such raves about family entertainment. "La Perichole" deserves raves and more, however. Awash with color, it richly stands out as an example of musical theater at its very, very finest. Those who love music, those who love comedy, those who frequent the theater often and those who have never stepped inside one before will all find this production a favorite which will be remembered and discussed for some time to come. There's not a dull moment in the entire show, and every single act is worthy of standing ovations.

Other than that, words can't describe it.

"La Perichole" will be performed at 8 p.m. today and Saturday at the Civic Center theater. Tickets remain available for both performances. Tickets are on sale at the Civic Center box office, and are priced at $4, $6 and $8. Students and children may purchase tickets at half price.

Gem Show Features All Lapidary Arts

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Rocks of the world and how man has turned them into jewelry and fine art will be shown at the annual Lubbock Gem and Mineral Show this weekend at the Merchants Building at Fair Park.

All the lapidary arts, from specimen collecting to faceting and silversmithing, will be on display along with rocks, gems and minerals from all over the world.

Something new this year is an exhibit of a new material from Russia, called Russian Charoite.

Special exhibits will include an opal, a tiffany lamp with a shade made of agate slabs and a display from the Texas Tech geology department.

Members of the sponsoring Lubbock Gem and Mineral Society will be demonstrating all phases of the lapidary craft, including cutting, grinding, polishing and faceting stones.

Featured craftsmen during the two-day show will include Red Wilson of Clovis, N.M. with marble making, Jim Cook of Abilene with silversmithing, Orley Green of Borger and Claude Martin of Lubbock with faceting.

One of the biggest parts of the rock-hound hobby will occur Saturday from 2-4 p.m. with a special rock swapping session.

Show times are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Exhibits from area clubs as well as the Lubbock group will be on display throughout the show.

Among the Lubbock cases will be one from a new member, Behrooz Pirzadeh, whose accomplishments with rockhound crafts almost matches his enthusiasm for the hobby.

The senior at Christ the King School, who will enter Texas Tech next fall, jumped into the hobby as soon as he came to stay with his uncle, Dr. Ali Amir-Moez, one of the few life members of the Lubbock club.

Painting with crushed rock in the manner of Amir-Moez, Tech math professor who also is an artist, is coming along slower than his wire jewelry and his fast hand with cabochon creating.

The young Iranian's lapidary prowess is growing rapidly in the workshop of Leonard Mains, who furnishes the knowhow and material. Mains, who began his own rock hobby eight years ago, crushes rock and minerals for Amir-Moez rock painting.

Mains' son got him into the hobby about the time the electrician was looking for retirement pastimes. Since retiring he has spent much of his time with things like poppy jasper, lizard rock, Montezuma agate, snowflake obsidian, rainforest jasper and honey onyx.

Bits of these and other colorful rocks will be included in grab bags Mains will donate, like other members of the club, to make money for the club's Tech scholarship for a geology student.

METRO QUEEN — Terri McMillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.G. McMillian of 4002 68th St., has been named queen of the Metro Lions Club. Miss McMillian, a senior at Monterey High School, is competing for the district title at the Lions District 2-T2 convention in Plainview this weekend.

Ag Students To Gather For Contest

About 1,600 vocational agriculture students from throughout West Texas will converge on the Texas Tech University campus Saturday to participate in the 52nd annual Texas Tech Vocational Agriculture Judging Contest.

Coordinating the event is general superintendent Jerry D. Stockton, chairman of the university's Department of Agricultural Education. A special guest will be W. H. Meishen, executive director of the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, Austin.

Eleven contests will be held, with winners in six of them going on to represent Areas 1 and 2 in state Future Farmers of America competition.

The five other events are known as Texas Tech contests. These are related to cotton, wool, crops, land and range and pasture plants. The latter contests were established because of their importance to the economy of the South Plains.

The livestock, dairy cattle and wool contests will be held at the new Livestock Arena, the first time this facility has been used for the annual vocational agricultural judging events.

Events begin at 7:30 a.m. and results are to be announced to 2 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. Immediately after these announcements Jay Eudy, Area vocational agriculture supervisor, and supervisor Hulan Harris of Area 2 will certify the teams from their areas who qualify to attend the state FFA judging contests April 28 at Texas A&M University.

FIVE ARRESTED

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Authorities rescued a disabled fishing launch off the south coast near the Haitian border this week, found two pistols, three rifles and 600 rounds of ammunition, and arrested the five men aboard, the military said.

City Services Directory Off Press

It's called the "red book" by some. To others in the human service field, it's called the Bible.

It's officially called the Directory of Health, Welfare and Recreation Resources in Lubbock, published by the Community Planning Council, the planning division of the United Way.

The 1979 edition is off the press and will be first distributed at the annual agency orientation institute scheduled from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. Wednesday at Reese Air Force Base officers' club.

According to Kathryn Powell, Community Planning Council director, the 1979 edition of the red book contains 48 pages more than its 1978 predecessor, reflecting a growing number of human service agencies in Lubbock.

The subject index includes information on adult classes, services to aged, adoption, counseling and guidance, civil defense, family services, financial assistance, information and referral, recreation and volunteer services, plus a number of other human services indexed categorically and alphabetically.

Provided free to agency personnel in the field, to public schools, to churches, counselors and others who use it as the referral source in Lubbock, the directory is available to private citizens for a nominal cost of $2, according to Mrs. Powell. Copies may be obtained at the United Way office.

The agency institute, sponsored by the Community Planning Council and Intergovernmental Action Council, this year is based on the theme of "growing up," and concerns the child and his environment.

Reactor Temperature Drops Below Boiling

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Temperatures in the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor dropped below the boiling point for the first time since a March 28 accident, federal officials said today.

Temperatures in the reactor's primary cooling system, which averaged 235 degrees on Thursday, are now at 182 degrees, according to Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman Jan Strasma. Water boils at 212 degrees.

"The drop in temperature was caused by opening a flow path for steam through the turbine and spinning the turbine at slow speeds," he said.

In addition, the hottest spot in the uranium core dropped from 330 degrees to 284 degrees. Though there is no atomic reaction going on in the core's 100 tons of uranium oxide, decay heat is still being produced.

"There is still decay heat. What this means is we're taking it out of the core faster," Strasma said.

But Strasma added a backup cooling system is still being designed to establish a natural cooling circulation. Natural circulation is important because loss of cooling water without a backup could cause the reactor to heat up again, officials said.

"The plant is not considered to be in cold shutdown at this point," said Strasma. No timetable has been given on when the backup system would be completed.

Meanwhile, officials reported a sharp drop in iodine 131 levels coming from the plant, although small leaks were continuing.

Small quantities of iodine 131, a cancer-causing isotope that collects in the human thyroid, were measured earlier this week. Though they posed no health threat, officials hoped to isolate and plug the leaks.

One suspected source of the troublesome iodine was an auxiliary building, where radioactive wastes were spilled onto the floor after the accident.

Workers wearing double layers of plastic clothing and breathing through respirators trapped the iodine Thursday by spraying chemicals on the auxiliary building floor. They also installed fresh charcoal filters that catch iodine particles before air is vented into the atmosphere.

Metropolitan Edison, which operates the plant, had removed 20 saturated filters without replacing them, a move federal officials said may have caused the increased releases. Such filters now are replaced one at a time as soon as they're removed.

"It is anticipated that (the new system) will further reduce the iodine release," Strasma said.

Meanwhile, Pennsylvania consumers won at least a six-month reprieve from paying higher rates while the state Public Utility Commission considers billing questions raised by the accident.

The regulatory agency ordered a freeze Thursday on a $49 million rate increase. The increase was granted to Metropolitan Edison Co. just six days before the March 28 accident.

"All we've really done here is to maintain the status quo in terms of rates," PUC Chairman Wilson Goode said. "We do not ... make a judgment about who is right or who is wrong. We ... say things should stay the same until we look at the facts."

Family Typical (Almost)

Patricia Youth Stock-Raising Standout

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

PATRICIA — West of this wee farming community, down a gravel road to a simple country home there lives a farm family.

Several yards to the left, down a turn row to a few blossoming fruit trees there stands some stock pens and a shed surrounded by miles of sandy soil waiting for the upcoming cotton crop.

This typical High Plains scene has the typical freckle-faced, teen-age son who likes to drive Mom's car if only to the nearby stock pens, and the typical blue-eyed, blond-haired, 4-year-old sister.

The only thing not typical about this farm family is that both the Houston Livestock Show and the Southwest Junior Livestock grand champion steers for 1979 were raised here.

Jim Bob Beam, an eighth-grader at Klondike Junior High School, raised and exhibited the winning animals. According to Beam, raising a grand champion steer requires knowing what the beef industry is looking for and finding a good steer to match that.

"I go with my father sometimes to buy steers," Jim Bob said. "To find a good animal, you look at the legs, the bone structure and the overall appearance of the steer."

Jim Bob, who has been showing steers for three years, said there should be no boundaries in trying to find the right steer if the person is serious about trying to win a grand championship.

"We got the Limousin that won in Houston from South Dakota and the Chianina-Angus cross that took the Southwest Junior Livestock show title from Oklahoma," he noted. "We buy the animals when they are around one year old."

The Dawson County 4-H member said showing steers interests him more than sheep or swine, though a display of trophies included several champion lambs from community and county shows as well as steer honors.

"Steers are not a lot of work," he said. "I usually work with them about one or two hours a day in the summer."

"The first thing you have to do is halter break them, which takes a lot of time, then you can start tying them to the fence and brushing them."

Keeping the animal fed right is really the only major concern, according to Jim Bob. His steers are fed a show mix consisting mostly of corn and other grains with cottonseed meal. Each steer is fed 20 pounds a day for 300 days and is allowed to graze some. The steers also receive vitamin shots.

"Limousins are my favorite breed," the fourteen-year-old said. "They are generally calm and they feed out well."

"However, Limousins sometimes tend to develop a leathery neck," Jim Bob pointed out. "If this starts to become obvious, they must wear a sweat collar at all times."

Unsured of what he would like to major in at college, Jim Bob said he might like to become an aerospace engineer, but of course he would like to raise a Limousin herd in his spare time.

"In the future, I would like to get a good bull and raise show steers," he said.

Selling the Houston grand champion at a world record $70,000 might enable the young Beam to initiate a breeding venture.

"I want to get some good heifers and raise some of my own calves for a Future Farmers of America project next year," Jim Bob said. "We will probably use artificial insemination on the heifers."

Most of the money made on selling his two grand champions will be put away for college and some will go into a livestock fund for the purchase of more steers and the heifer project.

Beam said he pays $1,200 on the average for each steer and feed for each animal costs about $540.

Incidentally, in reply to various requests to borrow money, the young cattleman says he charges "20 percent interest compounded daily."

"I would advise all young people to show animals and get involved in 4-H and FFA," Jim Bob stressed. "It's fun and you get to go a lot of places."

But, the eighth-grader warned, it helps to have parents to help and sometimes it is hard to keep up with school work.

Livestock Futures Mart Stages Rally

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed unchanged to up 95 points led by April on sales of 30,919 cars Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The market rallied 100 after slipping 45 earlier.

Aggressive short covering ahead of the cattle-on-feed report turned the market around after carryover selling from Wednesday's limit level declines. Selling was also touched off by the weaker turn to cash cattle and beef after record high prices Wednesday.

There have been 354 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was off 1 to 2 cents at 110 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off $1 to up 25 cents with the best top $78 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 342,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to be 4,900 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed up 30 to 110 led by November after September top $137 per hundredweight at Oklahoma City. The major markets are expecting about 3,200 head today.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reported U. S. cattle and calves on feed in 23 states as of April 1 totaled 11,074,000 head, down six percent from the 11,741,000 a year ago.

Cattle and calves placed on feed during January through March totaled 5,876,000 head, down nine percent from 6,490,000 a year earlier.

Marketings of fed cattle during January through March totaled 6,771,000 head, unchanged from the 6,771,000 in the year earlier period.

Chicago Mercantile Exchange floor traders immediate comments on the cattle on feed report were neutral.

Placements at 91 percent were above the average as were marketings at 100 percent with numbers on feed at 94 percent and under the average.

Hog futures closed 30 higher to 12 lower on sales of 5,660 contracts. June was up the most with July pacing the setback after losing 60.

Farmer's Decision Time Here

Beans, Corn, Or Shot At Feeder Cattle?

CHICAGO (UPI) — Decision time has arrived again for some farmers as they try to determine whether to plant corn or soybeans — or go for the big money that cattle feeders have received in recent weeks.

Feeding cattle sounds attractive at today's prices of more than $70 per hundredweight, compared with corn, for example, which is priced about the same as it was a year ago. But the investment in a switch to cattle is dear.

"You're talking about a half million dollars," said Carl Brush, manager of Mechanicsburg Farmers Grain Co., a joint cooperative with a membership of 592 farmers in central Illinois.

"A man can't just go into cattle because the big money is there right now," Brush said. "He's got to be equipped. There's a lot of pavement required. He'll need storage for corn and silage. He'll need a feed mill to grind soybeans and a feed wagon to haul the stuff from the mill to the feed boxes."

Another formidable expense, Brush said, is price of calves, running at about $90 per hundredweight.

"And don't forget, it takes time. A newborn heifer is three years from dropping her first calf. Then it takes one more year for the calf to grow to market size."

Brush once calculated it would take 12 years to develop a herd that would produce 100 marketable animals annually if 10 cows were used to start the program.

But he cautioned farmers about expecting some terrain to produce the desired results and noted "there's too much mud in Illinois for cattle feeding."

The ray of light for Illinois farmers, Brush said, could be in raising soybeans, currently selling at about $1 per bushel higher than a year ago.

Published industry forecasts projecting sharply higher demand from abroad this year for U.S. soybeans could stimulate interest of profit-conscious farmers. Improved relations with China coupled with drought-crippled production in Brazil, the world's second largest soybean exporter behind the United States, are regarded as short-range favorable factors for American farmers.

But even if Brazil's weather turns more favorable in 1980, business with China figures to continue to grow for many years as that nation moves toward greatly expanding its industrial output.

Brush expects some farmers in his cooperative to try to take advantage of high prices in soybeans by increasing acreage in the crop by 10 to 15 percent — all of it at the expense of corn in an effort to pick up some of the slack in corn prices.

One reason Brush thinks a big switch to beans is possible is the depressed market in corn.

"It's selling at about $2.23 per bushel. But it takes $2.45 to break even," Brush said. "Our farmers are living on soybeans and depreciation money."

"I can see why those guys in poorer dirt like Georgia and Nebraska and other states where they've got to irrigate went to Washington. We can raise corn $40 an acre cheaper than they can. We're in the best dirt in the world right around here and the corn farmers still are losing money at today's prices."

Other elevator managers Brush has talked to indicated they expect similar planting changes. But he is not too sure there will be a happy ending at harvest time in the fall.

"I'm afraid we're going to screw up the system," Brush said, "because if too many soybeans are raised, the price will drop."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL COTTON Council Thursday called for "more practical" transportation regulations, but cautioned against any deregulation that might adversely affect the economic and efficient movement of farm commodities and other essential products to market.

Hoke Leggett, Hobgood, N. C., producer, made the remarks in an address at the annual meeting of the Cotton Warehouse Association in New Orleans.

He especially warned against changes that would allow railroads to: — Raise freight rates "whenever or how ever much they like." — Abandon spur lines regardless of the consequences to rural communities. — Indulge in "predatory pricing" that would eliminate healthy competition from trucking lines.

THE COUNCIL PRESIDENT SAID he was concerned about deregulation that might have a harmful effect on shipments of baled cotton and cottonseed products as well as those of fertilizer, fuel, chemicals and other supplies vital to cotton production.

Noting that boxcar shortages are continuing to delay raw cotton shipments, Leggett pointed out that some rail lines in the Cotton Belt are now showing renewed interest in upgrading their lines and ordering new freight cars.

As an example, he cited Illinois Central Gulf's recent announcement that its 1979 capital spending program will be the largest in the company's history. Plans call for adding about 2,000 new freight cars, rebuilding another 800, and improving locomotives and tracks.

Reviewing other issues, Leggett noted that cotton dust continues to head the list of industry concerns. He said an appeals court decision on the Labor Department's strict new cotton dust standard could come as early as June or some months later.

"BUT NO MATTER WHAT THE COURT decides — whether it's in our favor or in the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's — the cotton dust problem will remain our most critical issue until we can eliminate or deactivate the unknown factor in cotton dust that potentially can cause byssinosis," he emphasized.

In this regard, Leggett said the council has urged Congress to restore agricultural research cuts proposed in the administration's fiscal 1980 budget.

"Unless Congress restores the funding to its present level, over half a million dollars would be taken away from USDA's Southern regional lab in New Orleans where important work is being done on the cotton dust problem," he added.

The Interior Department's proposed regulations to enforce acreage and residency requirements of the 1902 Reclamation Act were cited by the council president as another issue with widespread implications for cotton.

NOTING THAT THE PROPOSED RULES would set a 160-acre limit on the amount of land a farmer using water from a federal project could own or lease, Leggett said this would mean the federal government for the first time would be putting a limit on the size of a farm.

He pointed out that under a recent court ruling these same acreage limitations also would apply to farmers using water from Corps of Engineers projects serve our producers." Leggett noted. He said the council and a number of other groups are supporting repeal of the act's acreage and residency limits as "outdated and inequitable" in today's agricultural economy.

"We think it's short-sighted to put any kind of acreage limitation on farm size," the council president said. "With the rapid changes in farming, any figure put on acreage might be just as obsolete a few years from now as 160 acres is today."

Young Snake Vendors Arrested As Thieves

DENVER (AP) — Four teenagers were arrested when they tried to sell six snakes, including a 5-foot-long Burmese python, stolen from the Denver Zoo's reptile house, police said.

The reptiles were recovered in good condition, authorities said, after the owner of a pet shop reported he had received a call offering the snakes for sale.

The burglary was the fourth at the zoo's snake house in five years, Paul Linger, assistant zoo director, said.

Women Nominated For SPC Honor

LEVELLAND (Special) — Woman of the Year for 1978-79 at South Plains College will be named April 23 at the 11th annual Women's Recognition Banquet.

Selection will be made from among 13 young women, nominated for the honor by SPC organizations and dormitories. A committee headed by dean of women Carole Blair will name Woman of the Year. The event is sponsored by the SPC Faculty Women's Club.

The banquet is scheduled for 6 p.m. April 23 in the Sundown Room, and guest speaker will be Cathy Wilson, coach of the Slaton High School girls basketball team which recently won state.

Nomination is made on the basis of service and loyalty to SPC, participation in and contribution to student activities on campus, scholastic achievement, ability to deal with people and good character, said Blair.

Belgian farmers number only 3.5 percent of the Belgium work force, but they produce some 85 percent of that nation's food.

EARLY MATURING Variety

GOOD COLD TOLERANCE
Reports from growers say that Quapaw can withstand more adverse conditions than most varieties resulting in "less plant over."

GOOD HERBICIDE TOLERANCE
Especially to overspray with GSMA and MSMA for control of Johnson grass.

GOOD MICRONAIRE
Quapaw's early maturity gives consistent good fiber with micronaire normally between 3.8 and 4.5.

GOOD PRODUCTION
Quapaw has a consistent high lint yield with approximately 85 pounds per bale more seed production than most other varieties.

GOOD STAPLE
QUAPAW cotton matures early resulting in consistency of fiber elongation. Staple length normally 31/32 to 1-1/16. QUAPAW is a mature fiber of high natural luster. "The mills like it."

Corn Growers Eyeing Ensilage

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Area corn ensilage producers made plans to plant corn varieties that can be harvested either for grain or silage, and put further negotiations for 1979 ensilage contracts with area feedlots on hold during a recent special meeting here at the Community Center.

After lengthy discussion of production costs and the prospect for considerably higher harvesting and hauling costs this year, due to spiraling fuel prices, the gathering of some 30 local silage producers decided to delay indefinitely any further negotiations on silage contract prices.

"Some corn for grain is being contracted right now for $4.75 to $5 per hundredweight, and if these price levels are possible with grain, ensilage should certainly be worth more than the $16.50 per ton currently being offered by local feedyards," one grower commented.

The meeting here came as an outgrowth of the formation of a special silage subcommittee of the High Plains Farm Bargaining Association, which was involved in negotiations with Frito-Lay Inc. of Dallas over a three-month period concerning contracts for food corn production in the area.

Weldon Davis of Hart, president of the association and an active member of the committee which helped secure a boost of 50 cents per hundredweight in the food-grade yellow corn and $2 per hundredweight in white food-grade corn contract offers, commented on the silage subcommittee effort.

"Experience taught us our timing was off a bit in attempts to negotiate a corn contract with Frito-Lay, and that cost us some money. For that reason, I think you might be a little early in nailing down a contract price right now, although it's not too early to work toward that end. All the feedlots haven't contracted their silage requirements, and this product belongs to the farmers until they turn it loose," he said.

Robert Wagner of Hereford, who is chairing the silage subcommittee, reported that one of the obstacles in the path of securing a better contract offer for silage is the fact that different feedyards have a varying view of the feed value of corn ensilage.

"One nutritionist will tell us it's excellent feed, and another will say it's really not that good," said Wagner.

Committee member Harold Bob Bennett of Hart emphasized the feed value of silage, commenting on his own cattle feeding experience.

"Silage isn't that good for finishing heavy cattle of 1,000 pounds or so, but it is about the best growing feed you can get for light cattle, so don't be fooled when someone tells you it's good feed. The feedlots will probably be getting in a lot of lighter cattle, and they are going to need a lot of silage. If you can't get a workable price for silage locally, I'd suggest digging a pit, purchasing some light cattle and feeding them straight silage. I guarantee it will make you money," said Bennett.

Other producers in the gathering of farmers agreed with the statement, citing their own cattle feeding experience.

Silage committee members cited varying production costs, none of which fell below $220 per acre.

Larry Walterscheid of Hereford reported a $227 per acre production cost on rented land to raise ensilage, based on many of last year's production costs and at last year's contract price of $14.50 per ton with a 20.4 ton per acre average yield.

"That was cutting it myself, and that price just won't reach for this year. I can't make $16.50 per ton work this year either. The only way I'd have a chance is to raise 30 ton silage, and that's 10 tons above the average," he said.

Dick Fellers, who farms near Hereford, reported that his production costs on corn planted specifically for silage were $219.28 per acre with harvest at a custom rate, and irrigation costs at a greatly reduced level due to favorable rainfall last summer.

"Fuel was a lot cheaper when this crop was harvested, and costs will have gone up considerably by harvest time this year," said Fellers.

Bill Paetzold of Hereford, a custom ensilage harvester, reported that growers will be looking at harvest costs of a minimum of $1.60 per ton and 10 cents per mile in hauling fees.

Growers originally agreed to seek a contract price of $18 per ton for ensilage this year, but several pointed out that even at that price growers might have a hard time breaking even with high harvesting and hauling costs.

"If you raise silage as a crop and take care of it, your expenses will be as high as growing grain corn. Everyone farms a little different, and costs will vary slightly, but it is evident growers need a better price than what is being offered here currently," said Wagner.

After surveying growers present to determine the basis of participation activities, a good character...

Man Survives Tornado By Clinging To Toilet

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dennis Spruill, city editor of the Wichita Falls Times, survived the April 18 tornado by lying in his bathroom while the twister destroyed his home. This is his account of the few terrifying seconds when the storm hit.

By DENNIS SPRUILL
WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Fear gripped me as I realized that the monster was sucking at my clothes. My hair whipped back and forth, then was yanked toward the gaping hole where the roof had been.

The vicious vacuum was trying to pull me up, and I clutched the bottom of the commode. My fingers and arms hurt from the pressure I exerted.

The toilet lid was sucked open and the water in the bowl gushed through the roof. The vacuum seemed to let up a little.

"Oh, God, let it be over," I said out loud. "Please let it be over." I began to cry, sobbing loudly, my shoulders heaving.

But it was not over. The hall echoed with the sound of a man wildly slinging a sledgehammer from wall to wall.

The bathroom door burst open. Embedded in it was a jagged board. My stomach retched with new fear, but I stopped myself before throwing up.

The window above the tub exploded. A board blew through the bathroom door and shattered one of the plexiglass panels above my head. Another board hit me in the back.

"Oh, God, if you let me and my wife live, I'll never complain about what's happened to the house," I cried loudly. The horrible roar was the first thing to end. Then the sledge left the hall. My nose and mouth were full of dirt and I was having trouble breathing. Dirt clung to my clothing.

I dug out from under two feet of rubble and walked out of the bathroom. The devastation was unbelievable. Homes were flattened and people were sitting in their yards weeping.

Someone called my name. "You all right?" my neighbor asked. "Look in your back yard."

I turned around and saw his pickup truck in the alley. I found the dog huddled in the closet among torn clothes. I picked her up and began to walk to the bank to find my wife.

Cars and debris were strung everywhere. I felt like my wife could not possibly be alive. Then I passed a woman who called out. "Hey, you with the dog. Jeanette's all right. She was in the vault."

I began to cry and ran toward the only thing standing at the bank. I saw my wife crawling over boards in the ruins. I dropped the dog and ran to her, crushing her with a gripping hug.

"Dennis, when we saw the houses, my friends began to prepare me for you being dead," she cried.

"We've lost everything," I said. "Everything, Jeanette."

"It doesn't matter," she said. "You're here and nothing else matters."

We sat down amid the rubble, the dog lay at my feet, and we wept.

Government-Provided Trailer Gives Family New Security

WICHITA FALLS (UPI) — The first government trailer provided tornado victims in Wichita Falls may not be "plush," but it has provided the Don Briscoe family with the first sense of security since their home was blown off its foundation 10 days ago.

"It was complete ecstasy, I'll tell you," Briscoe said of moving into his new home.

"We didn't think we'd be the first. There was a lot of people injured and things like this that we thought would be ahead of us. This (government-provided) trailer will give me the opportunity to go back and work on the house and maybe save some money that way."

The mammoth tornado that swept through Wichita Falls 10 days ago left only a bathtub and a bedroom standing on the spot where the Briscoes' house had been. The twister killed 44 people, left 20,000 homeless and inflicted more than $200 million in damage.

But Thursday, the family moved out of a two-bedroom residence they had shared for a week with Briscoe's 73-year-old mother, the three children bought $450 worth of new clothes and a new washer and dryer was installed at the trailer. And Thursday afternoon Don Briscoe was able to return to his job at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The Briscoes' new home, anchored at the Lakeside Village Mobile Home Park, "looks very good to me right now. It's brand new. It's not something plush, but it's something we can live with till we get our house rebuilt. And I can tell you this, it's much appreciated."

The Briscoes were shopping April 10 when the half-mile-wide twister pushed toward their southeast Wichita Falls residence. From his vantage point, Briscoe, 48, "could see that it was doing some damage. We were just hoping it wasn't our house."

But an inspection confirmed his fears. To compound his misery, Briscoe learned the same storm had tracked north, striking Lawton, Okla., where his daughter lives.

"I missed (my daughter) by about three blocks," he said.

As a veteran of the U.S. Coast Guard, Briscoe said he had seen many disasters and had grown a bit "calloused" to the needs of other victims.

"I've never been on the receiving end of any of this. I didn't fully realize what the agencies, the church groups and just the general people can give you in the way of compassion. It's just marvelous. It's certainly a relief to find that there are wonderful people in the world."

San Antonio Begins Fest

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of celebrants began readying today for the 88th Fiesta, San Antonio's giant city-wide, 10-day festival.

The first of the celebration's 125 events gets under way today. The traditional St. Mary's Oyster Bake is planned for Saturday at St. Mary's University, while the installation of the 57th King Antonio, the royal head of the celebration, will take place Saturday night in front of the Alamo.

The first of the parades, the floating River Parade, winds its way through downtown Monday night.

The 84th Battle of Flowers Parade, around which the Fiesta grew up, is scheduled for the afternoon of April 27 and the Fiesta Flambeau parade is scheduled the night of April 28. More than 300,000 spectators crowded into the downtown area last year to view each of those parades.

Night in Old San Antonio, a festival of food and drink in the historic La Villita complex downtown, will be held four nights, beginning Tuesday. More than 120,000 persons visited the festival last year.

Officials estimated 3.5 million Fiesta customers last year pumped $20 million into the city's economy during the 10-day celebration.

Cuevas' Attorneys Request More Time

HOUSTON (AP) — The retrial of Ignacio Cuevas, accused of causing the death of a hostage during a 1974 prison break, was delayed until Monday when defense attorneys asked for more time to find three missing witnesses.

Defense lawyer Will Gray said the three witnesses were inmate hostages during an 11-day siege at a Texas State Prison and since that bloody episode have been paroled.

"We haven't been able to find them," Gray said, "but we have a private investigator looking for them and we are sure we can have them here by Monday."

Mark Ward, district attorney for Walker County, said Gray should either produce his witnesses or rest his case. The state ended its presentation last week.

State District Judge Miron Love said he would grant a recess until next week but warned Gray, "This will be the only delay. I expect you to have your witnesses here by then."

Gray has called four witnesses thus far and said he had eight more he wanted to take the stand.

In the first Cuevas trial, four years ago, Gray didn't call a witness.

Cuevas was convicted then and sentenced to die. After three years on death row, Cuevas was granted a new trial by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on the ground of a judicial error.

Cuevas and two other inmates, Rudol-pho Dominguez and Fred Carrasco, took over the education building at a Texas prison unit called The Walls. They staged the longest siege, 11 days, in U.S. penal history.

Then, they attempted to escape, using a moveable shield of lawbooks and chalkboards, surrounded by hostages.

Dominguez and Carrasco were killed. Two hostages, prison librarians Julia Standley and Elizabeth Beseda, were shot to death.

Gray told newsmen he planned to rest his case by the middle of next week.

High School Students Invited To Reception

A reception for high school students interested in attending McMurry College in Abilene will be held from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Sunday in the home of Dr. Royce Lewis, 5233 W. 19th St.

Dr. Thomas Kim, McMurry president, and other members of the faculty will be present. A multimedia presentation is planned.

FBI Agrees To Conduct 'Limited' Investigation

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The FBI has agreed to conduct a "limited" investigation into the shooting of a 19-year-old Mexican-American curfew violator by a rookie Wichita Falls police officer. The investigation was requested by a group of Mexican-Americans.

"We are conducting a limited inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death," said FBI supervisor Jerry Geary in Dallas Thursday night.

A statement issued by the Wichita County grand jury this week said Officer Jay L. Wright "acted in the line of duty" when he shot Rosendo Sosa Ortiz shortly after midnight Monday. Wright said he stopped Ortiz, believed to be an illegal alien, for violating the tornado-stricken city's 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew.

Wright said at the time he thought Ortiz was reaching for a gun in his pocket as he ran from the officers.

The victim was unarmed. A twister that swept through North Texas April 10 claimed the lives of 47 persons and cut an eight-mile path of destruction through the city's south side.

An emergency curfew was imposed as authorities tried to curb looting in the damaged area.

Lee Hale, FBI agent in Wichita Falls, said his superiors told him an investigation would be conducted, but they have not ordered him to begin the inquiry.

Earlier this week, the head of the American G.I. Forum called for an outside federal investigation into the shooting because "the only recourse we have is a violation of the civil rights of an individual."

The local leader of the American G.I. Forum Thursday criticized the Wichita County grand jury's report.

"I'm not surprised at all," Paul Vasquez Jr. said of the informal statement.

District Attorney Timothy Eysen said formal action conceivably could be taken at a later date. But Eysen said his office found "no racial overtones" in the shooting or the subsequent investigation.

Police Chief Curtis Harrelson said his department's investigation should be complete by the end of the week.

Watson Eases Into Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — The deep, deep rough and small greens demand the most accurate drives, Tom Watson said after establishing the first-round lead in the $300,000 Tournament of Champions.

"The course demands good iron shots," Watson said after firing a 3-under-par 69 Thursday, "but driving is paramount. Because of the rough, you absolutely have to drive it in the fairway."

"If you don't, you can find some lies out there that only Tarzan and Jane can play out of."

The rough is up higher than usual on the tough, 6,889-yard La Costa Country Club course and, Watson said, the greens have been reduced in size and are extremely hard.

"They're the hardest greens in the world to chip to," said the man who has won Player of the Year honors the last two seasons.

"You've got a collar around the greens that the ball sits down into and is very hard to chip from," he said. "Beyond that, you've got the deepest rough on the golf course around the greens. That makes it really tough."

"But, in my opinion, you've got to drive it in the fairway to have any chance to win the golf tournament."

He missed 4 fairways "and it cost me 2 bogeys," said Watson, who came into this exclusive, winners-only event as the leading money-winner on the pro golf tour this year.

One shot off his lead with a 70 was surprising Ron Streck, 24, who got into the elite, 28-man field off his only pro victory in the San Antonio-Texas Open last fall. Streck broke up with his girlfriend shortly after that triumph and has been in a deep slump ever since. He pulled out of it with birdies on his first 3 holes here.

Tied at 71, and the only others under par, were defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, Ray Floyd, Mexican Victor Regalado and Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won a record five times in this event that brings together the winners of regular PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months, topped a strong group at par 72.

Also at that figure were Lee Trevino, Australian Jack Newton, Canadian Open champ Bruce Lietzke, Lee Elder and Jerry Pate, who scored the only eagle of the cool, windy day.

U.S. Open champ Andy North shot 75 and Fuzzy Zoeller, who beat Watson in a playoff for the Masters crown last week, struggled to a 77 that left him far back. PGA titleholder John Mahaffey was unable to compete because of an injured hand.

Watson, who came into this event with finishes of second, first and second in his last three starts, said he still didn't feel comfortable with his putting and missed once from about 2 1/2 feet to save par. He retained sole control of the lead, however, with a four-footer to save par on the final hole after he'd driven into the rough.

The key to his round was a string of three birdies beginning with a sand wedge shot to eight feet on the second hole. He hit a 4-iron only two feet from the flag on the third and scored from six feet on the next.

Bucs Trade Taveras To Mets For Tim Foli

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Frank Taveras, a shortstop often booed by Pittsburgh baseball fans, has been traded to the New York Mets for another player with a reputation for trouble.

"Everytime he made a mistake, everybody was all over him," Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner said Thursday after the team traded Taveras for shortstop Tim Foli and minor league pitcher Greg Field.

"I think he's always had a tough time in Pittsburgh because the fans thought he couldn't do anything right even the year that he led the league in stolen bases," Tanner said.

"There was just something, I don't know what it was. He's a good ball player and I think he'll do better in a new location."

Cowboys Lose Another!

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It turned out that the Dallas Hoopsters had just as difficult a time with the Lubbock All-Stars as they did arriving in town Thursday.

The Hoopsters, made up of players from the Dallas Cowboys, didn't get to Lubbock until 7:30 p.m. for the scheduled 8 p.m. tipoff.

And when they finally arrived at Lubbock Coliseum, the Hoopsters must have been suffering from jet lag — or were affected by the change in climate — as the All-Stars escaped with a 103-100 victory in a basketball game to benefit St. Mary of the Plains Rehabilitation Center.

Maybe, the Hoopsters just weren't familiar with the South Plains. Said running back Tony Dorsett: "I've only heard of Lubbock one time. That was last year."

Whatever the reason, when the All-Stars built a 20-point lead in the second half, Dallas fullback Scott Laidlaw sat by the scorer's table and granted interviews in exchange for a glass of beer.

The Cowboy fullback, who will be in the option year of his contract next season, didn't mind recalling his longest run from scrimmage of 59 yards against the Washington Redskins last season.

"I haven't seen that much open field in my whole career," laughed Laidlaw. "I was waiting for someone to come by and get me. I ran out of gas, but I don't feel bad about getting caught from behind. Sometimes even Tony (Dorsett) is caught from behind."

"I would like to play more," said Laidlaw, "but I have no control over that. If I don't think I got enough playing time after this year, I'll asked to be traded."

The Stanford graduate has played in three Super Bowls with the Cowboys.

"I'm disappointed that we lost this last one," said Laidlaw. "But I'm glad I could contribute in the best Super Bowl that's been played."

However, for the second time, Dallas lost a Super Bowl to Pittsburgh. Could the Steelers have a whammy over the Cowboys?

"Oh, I don't know," said Laidlaw. "I know that the fans are glad that the two best teams played, which has never happened before."

What Laidlaw does know is that Dallas has given the Los Angeles Rams the reputation of not being able to win the big one.

"That's something I just can't figure out," smiled Laidlaw. "I think that they just try so hard to win that they screw up. You have to stay loose and fluid."

As Laidlaw talked, the Cowboys were able to cut a 20-point deficit to 5 points. So, he felt that he better end the interview and rejoin the team.

So back to the action, where Tony Hill led the Cowboys' scoring with 26 points, while Drew Pearson had 23 and Ed "Too Tall" Jones added 12.

Despite a successful output, Hill wasn't exactly thrilled by the way fans were being assessed during the final moments.

"I hope the NBA isn't this bad," said Hill, who chose football over a pro basketball career.

Ex-Raider Geoff Huston paced the All-Star scoring with 29, while former ABA star Larry Lawrence added 19.

The loss drops the Hoopsters exhibition record to 27-3, while the victory gives the All-Stars a 1-0 record.

Pitching Duel Ends Shootout

By The Associated Press

It was to have been a classic pitching duel. Two Cy Young award winners ... the kind of matchup usually reserved for opening day or Game 1 of the World Series.

Gaylord Perry vs. Vida Blue. The situation began to deteriorate quickly, however.

The 40-year-old Perry came up with a bad back minutes before game time, and the San Diego Padres' 1978 Cy Young winner checked out of the starting lineup.

Blue, who won the Cy Young in 1971 with Oakland, didn't come up with a bad back, but then he didn't come up with much of a performance, either. He yielded 11 hits, nine earned runs and left after the eighth for a pinch hitter. Still, he was credited with the win as San Francisco defeated the Padres 14-10 Thursday afternoon.

"My overall performance was awful," Blue said. "It's really hard when you get a big lead so early, but I have to give the Padres credit for coming back."

"I made a lot of bad pitches. I just threw a lot of them down the middle. I'm sure I've given up 10 runs before, but I don't think I ever gave up 10 and won," Blue said.

Cy Young's name also came up in a different context. Mickey Lolich, who replaced Perry on the mound, tied Young with 2,818 career strikeouts when he fanned Dave Winfield in the third. That mark is fifth on the all-time list.

There was little consolation in that strikeout, however. Lolich left in the third inning, when San Francisco scored five runs, capped by catcher Marc Hill's three-run homer. Hill had four RBI in the game, as did the Giants' Terry Whitfield, who extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Padres public relations man Bob Chandler said Perry wanted to pitch, "but his back was hurting too much. It's a day-to-day thing. He may be ready as soon as tomorrow or it may be several days."

In the only other National League game Thursday, the Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis 3-2, and Cincinnati blanked Atlanta 2-0.

Cubs 3, Cards 2
Chicago right-hander Dennis Lamp scattered six hits over seven innings in his first start of the season — yielding St. Louis' runs on Lou Brock's RBI single and a fielder's choice grounder. Relief ace Bruce Sutter worked the final two innings for his second save.

Ivan DeJesus homered for the Cubs, and Chicago scored two more runs on an error by Brock in left field in the second inning and third baseman Ken Reitz' throwing error in the fourth. The fourth-inning run became earned when Cards right-hander Bob Forsch, 0-2, followed with a wild pitch.

Reds 2, Braves 0
Tom Seaver tossed his 48th career shutout, allowing just two hits, and Ken Griffey and George Foster smacked solo homers to help Seaver even his season record at 2-2.

Griffey broke a scoreless pitchers duel between Seaver and Atlanta starter Phil Niekro, 1-3, with his first homer.

Seaver struck out five and walked three, and the only jam he was in came in the eighth after Royster singled. That put men on first and third with two out, but he got out of it by getting Glenn Hubbard to line to left.

NOW WHAT? Red pitcher Tom Seaver was terrific again Thursday night, two-hitting Atlanta for his second win of the year. (AP Laserphoto)

Angels Pound Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Brian Downing, a player the Chicago White Sox didn't want two years ago, and Carney Lansford, a player Minnesota wanted desperately this winter, put the whammy on Mike Marshall and the Twins.

Downing stroked a two-run single off the former Cy Young winner in the eighth inning and Lansford added a solo home run in the ninth as the California Angels overcame the Twins 6-4 Thursday and extended their winning streak to eight games.

In other American League games, Boston clipped Milwaukee 5-3 and Baltimore defeated the New York Yankees 6-3.

"I hate to say this, but last year I only faced Marshall once and I hit a home run to center field here," said Downing, whose single erased a 4-3 deficit. "That was a fastball up high. I hadn't even seen his screwball until I hit it today."

The 28-year-old catcher was obtained by California in the Bobby Bonds deal with the White Sox before last season. He said he received criticism from the media in Chicago and felt rejuvenated once he got to the West Coast.

The Twins tried to avert a three-game sweep by the Angels, but it was not to be. A two-run home run by Glenn Adams capped a three-run outburst by Minnesota in the first inning, and Adam's RBI single in the fifth snapped a 3-3 tie.

In between, the Angels blasted three solo homers against Paul Hartzell. Joe Rudi and Willie Aikens connected consecutively in the fourth, and Bobby Grich hit his fifth of the year in the next inning.

Marshall took over for Hartzell to start the eighth but walked Rod Carew and hit Don Baylor. Rudi's sacrifice advanced both runners for Downing.

Lansford, whom the Twins tried to get in the trade for Rod Carew last winter, belted a one-out homer off Marshall.

"I thought he (Lansford) should have been the rookie of the year last year," Fregosi said. "I don't consider him a power hitter, but he has the potential to hit 15 or 20 homers a year. He's the best player we've developed in our own farm system."

Red Sox 5, Brewers 3
George Scott belted a pair of doubles to drive in two runs, and rookie right-hander Chuck Rainey spaced four hits in 72-3 innings for his major league victory to help Boston whip Milwaukee.

Rainey needed relief help from Dick Drago after the Brewers scored their third run in the eighth on a double by Paul Molitor and Cecil Cooper's two-out single.

All five Boston runs were unearned on errors by Milwaukee shortstop Robin Yount and first baseman Cooper.

Orioles 6, Yankees 3
Jim Palmer, 2-1, gave up all of New York's runs in the first two innings on five hits, then settled down to handuff the Yankees on three hits the rest of the way.

Girl Golfers Continue

Amarillo, paced by the 86 round turned in by Donna Veregin, stroked its way to the first-round lead in the Class AAAA regional girls golf tournament at Meadowbrook Golf Course Thursday.

And meanwhile, the Kermit girls, following the leadership of Becky Hix, marched to a 23-stroke lead over Seymour in quest of the Class AA championship.

The second and final rounds will be played today at Meadowbrook.

In both divisions, the winning and runner-up teams will qualify for the state meet in Austin next Monday. Also, the top two individuals — if not on the two qualifying teams — will earn trips to Austin.

Next Major League Hero?

Brad Mills, a senior on Arizona's baseball team, has major league credentials. The college star was a 2nd team All-American last year and, so far this spring, is hitting, .375, with six home runs. If he were to continue his current home run pace and play 162 games, he would wind up with 41 home runs.

Chase For 1-AAA Title Heating Up

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
DUMAS — John Ford smiled so much and so often at the Levelland Relays last week his teeth and gums were probably submersed.
Pass the Coppertone, please.
But the Dunbar coach had every right in the track world to grin as the Panthers pulled off a coup d'etat, of sorts, in beating rival Estacado for the team title. It was the first time DHS had accomplished that not-so-minor feat this year.
Now, a week later, the Panthers will attempt to put another notch in their belt when they go gunning for the District 1-AAA title today at the Dumas High School track. But don't bet Estacado or Dumas or Borger or Levelland or Canyon will take a Dunbar assault laying down as the loop race may prove to be one of the tightest ever.

It will also be the first time Dunbar and Estacado vie for a 1-AAA title. Until a change of districts, the two Lubbock schools had competed in 3-AAA.

At stake, along with the team title, are trips to the Region I meet next week in Odessa for the first and second place finishers in each event.

"I'm glad it's not next week," is how EHS coach Percy Hines summed up the setback in Levelland.

At Levelland, the Matadors were without the services of sprinter Robin Gatewood, who was away attending a family reunion in Houston. And his absence was felt quite heavily as the Matadors were beaten in the 440-yard relay by the Panthers.

"Robin (Gatewood) not running hurt us," said Hines. "That probably took about 16 points away from us, counting a high finish in the long jump and a couple other races."

Gatewood also runs the short sprints a leg on the mile relay which still managed to turn in a 3:18.1 despite his absence.

His presence, moaned Hines, was missed.
On the same day, state-ranked sprinter Robert Humphrey (9.5 in the 100) also scratched himself out of the 100 finals when he jumped the gun, opening the door for Dunbar's Jerry Isaacs (also state-ranked earlier in the year) to win the 100 and the 10 points that go with it. (Dunbar eventually won the meet 102-95).

Isaacs is again expected to pull most of Dunbar's weight in the sprints at the district meet. He poses as a possible threat to win both the 100 and 220-yard dashes, should Humphrey falter.

However, sophomore Kelvin White is also very much in the picture since he has beaten Isaacs once this year in the 100.

But the team title won't be settled in either the 100 or 220, most feel. Ford pointed out earlier that Estacado's overall depth will probably be the deciding difference. In most races, the Matadors are one and two deep, indicating teams will have to score a lot of first place finishes just to off set the Matadors' third, fourth and fifth place finishes.

"It's going to be tough to beat them," foresaw Ford before the season even got underway. "But not impossible."

Shot putter Bravn Millard of Dumas is expected to steal the thunder in the field events. The 6-3, 240-pounder is currently the second-ranked shot-putter in the state with a best of 63-0. Any other year that might have been close to the lead, but with Michael Carter of Dallas Jefferson out to 74-8 1/4, it's not.

Dewey Turner, like Millard bound for Texas University next fall, is out won at Levelland with a 54-3 3/4.

Girls' Regional Track Starts Here Today

Strange as it seems, Mindy Mayfield does some of her best training for the mile sitting in a La-Z-Boy and relaxing.

Explaining her success in the mile, the Monterey High School sophomore commented: "I read a lot... like 'Runners World' and books like that. It gives me hints on what to do during a race and the right kinds of food to eat... things like that."

But she admitted, a lot of road work doesn't hurt, either.

Considered one of the top prospects for a state berth from Lubbock, Miss Mayfield will compete in the Region I-AAAA track and field meet which gets underway today. Finals will be run at 1:30 Saturday.

Also at the Tech track, the Region I-AA action will start today, following the same today-Saturday schedule. Meanwhile in Levelland, the Region I-B action starts today, while classes A and AAA compete in Odessa.

Although only a sophomore and competing in the regional meet for the first time, Miss Mayfield feels quite confident about her chances.

"I'm looking forward to it (the regional meet)," she said. "I've got a lot of experience. So I don't think that's going to hurt me not running before."

A state qualifier for the AAU Junior Olympics and the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation meets last year, Miss Mayfield has a personal best of 5:35 in the mile this year. And she says that's not a bad time.

"I really didn't have any competition on the district level," she pointed out. "No one really pushed me at all. So I think if I am pushed I can get down between a 5:20 and 5:25."

However, even if she does manage to drop to 5:20, it might not be enough to overtake Paty Norman of El Paso, Miss Norman, a state qualifier as a freshman, owns the best time coming into the meet, a 5:19.

"She's the one to beat," said Miss Mayfield.

Talking about her jump from the ninth grade where she was the city champion in the 400, Miss Mayfield said: "I've had to work a lot harder. In the ninth it seemed like I just coached myself. But this year I've been introduced to what real work is."

"I've had to work a lot on my speed and, of course, a lot of distance training, too. And it's paid off."

Also competing from Monterey is teammate Jana Field.

EHS Team Confident

ODESSA (Special) — It was a good year for the Estacado tennis teams. For the first time in the history of the school both the girls and the boys captured the district title.

It was an especially big breakthrough for the girls, who hadn't captured a net title since 1967.

But the EHS girls can't afford to rest on their laurels now. Kathy Taylor and Gracie Mendez, who finished 1-2 in District 1-AAA singles play, will join two Dunbar doubles teams here today for regional competition.

Representing Dunbar will be Rosaland Hamilton and Cheryl Flewellen, who took the doubles crown, and Rena Flewellen and Sheila Knighton — who finished second.

"Our No. 1 girls have a real good chance of doing something," said Dunbar coach Charles Morris. "They've already beaten the team from Pecos that is going to be down there."

But Estacado's Ralph Cox expects things to be a little bit tougher in the singles action.

"Andrews has a girl named Joanie Russell who's already been to state twice in singles and once in doubles," said Cox. "So we'll have our work cut out for us."

"The girls aren't afraid of her, but they aren't overconfident either. It's just that they've never seen her play."

Still Taylor considers himself fortunate even to have two girls make it to regionals.

"Gracie (Mendez) kind of surprised me in the district tournament," he said. "She beat the No. 2 and 3 seeded girls to make it to the finals."

But once Miss Mendez reached the finals, she was unable to overcome teammate Kathy Taylor. Although she's only a sophomore, Miss Taylor pretty much dominated 1-AAA singles play this year.

The Dunbar girls were just as dominating in the doubles bracket of the district meet. And if confidence means anything, the Dunbar girls could do well in Odessa today.

"We'll make the finals," said Rena Flewellen confidently.
"Whoa, listen to that," said Brewer. "Now all you have to do is back up that kind of talk."

In fact, all the girls expressed confidence about the regional meet. A finish in the top two in Odessa also means a ticket to the state meet in Austin. And although they might not make it to the state capital, the Lubbock girls definitely dominated the district meet.

And as far as Estacado coach Cox is concerned, from here on out it's all gravy.

"It's been a surprising year. We've got a real young team, we don't have any seniors, yet we still managed to win district."
"Gracie and Kathy have both been playing real consistent lately."

Prodigal Author Lyle Returns To Face Big Apple

An AP Sports Analysis
By WILL GRIMSLEY

Sparky Lyle, the newest literary rage, was around town Thursday, appearing in book stores, signing his name on the flyleaves of his controversial best-seller and holding press conferences.

Tonight, he has to go back to work in the bullpen, possibly facing for the first time as a Texas Ranger his old New York teammates whom he unfrocked in his first-person expose, "The Bronx Zoo."

The flighty left-hander, Cy Young winner in 1977 and frustrated bench-sitter in 1978, was asked if he had sent advance copies to his former buddies over in the other locker room.

"Naw, I don't want to rub salt in old wounds," he said. "If they want to read the book, they can buy it."

The book is advertised as an "astounding inside look at the World Champion New York Yankees and their coast-to-coast rivals." It's a kiss-and-tell book. Critics refer to it as a sequel to Jim Bouton's "Ball Four" which a decade ago took readers into the private lives of such heroes as Mickey Mantle, Whitey Ford, Elston Howard and other Yankees.

Why did he write it? Some critics say he needed the dough (he may get $200,000). Others contend he wrote it out of pique and frustration. Sparky said he did it just for fun.

Someone asked if he had ever read "Ball Four?"

"Naw," he replied.

"What books have you read?" a questioner persisted.

"None but my own — and I've read it six times."

Of the hundreds who queued up outside two book stores on busy Fifth Avenue to get volumes signed by the author, some important people were conspicuously missing.

Here are a few you didn't see in the lines, and what Sparky says about them in his book:

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner: "The man is ruthless ... George can get away with treating an accountant or a secretary like a pack rat ... I heard he fired one secretary because she didn't bring him a sandwich fast."

Superstar Reggie Jackson: "Reggie's really a piece of work. He'll say anything and be real quotable every time, whether what he says makes any sense or not ... He wants to be idolized, not recognized."

Jeff Torborg, manager of the Cleveland Indians: "Genius Torborg is nothing but a showboat. He's always saying, 'We're going to be the spoilers and beat the Yankees.' That's because the only thing he has to look forward to by the All-Star break is beating the Yankees — and then it's too late."

Billy Martin: "Billy's problem is his temper. Plus he always wants to be boss, which offends the guys who own the team. Unfortunately, he can't fire them. They can fire him, and often do."

Calvin Griffith, owner of the Minnesota Twins: "Nobody wants to go to Minnesota. Nobody. Anybody who wants to go there would be crazy. Calvin Griffith (owner) wants only to be respectable. His philosophy is to bring as many people into the park as inexpensively as possible."

Charley Finley, Oakland A's owner: "He likes things to be colorful. Cat (Catfish Hunter) tells stories about the damn mule Finley had out there. Finley took it everywhere he went, even into the hotels. The mule had gotten so old his hair had fallen out, so Finley had a tail made for it."

Yogi Berra: "Since I've been a Yankee, I've been trying to figure out what Yogi's job is. He hits fungoes to the outfielders ... sometimes he even hits grounders to the infielders ... To me, he doesn't do anything. Yogi's supposed to have said a lot of funny things but I don't know how anybody hears all the things he says because he doesn't talk."

Los Angeles Dodgers: "As soon as we started winning, they started crying. They were such crybabies. They have about zero class. They kept making excuses like, 'If only the ball hadn't taken a bad hop.' 'If only Nettles hadn't made those great plays' ... The Dodgers weren't even the second best team in baseball. There's no doubt whatsoever that Boston is a lot better team than they are, in every way."

Red Raider Baseballers Start Last Home Series

The season winds down for the home fans this weekend, as Texas Tech hosts defending Southwest Conference champion Texas A&M in the final three-game series in Lubbock.

The Raiders host A&M in a single game today, and Saturday the teams will meet in a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m.

The Raiders, after losing three in a row to the University of Houston, stand 7-11 in conference play. The Aggies, meanwhile, were sweeping three from SMU (one on a forfeit) and now stand 10-4 and third in the league behind Texas (14-1) and Arkansas (14-4).

In addition to the series here, the SWC has Houston playing at Arkansas, Rice at TCU, and Texas at SMU. Baylor plays a nonconference series against Oral Roberts University at Tulsa.

Jamie Miller, who carries a 1-3 record for the year (0-2 in SWC), will pitch today's games for the Raiders, against Aggie Mark Ross (6-3). On Saturday, Tech coach Kal Segrist is expected to throw Mark Johnston (4-4) and Robert Bryant (3-2) against Mark Thurmond (8-1) and Steve Davis (3-0).

Davis was on the mound in the third game of last weekend's series against SMU. The score was tied at 3 after 12 innings when it had to be called because of darkness.

The game could have been resumed the next day, but the SMU players voted not to stay another day and complete the game, so the Aggies won via forfeit. Earlier, the Aggies whipped SMU 5-3, 3-2.

"Texas A&M, along with Texas and Arkansas, is one of the quality teams in our league," observed Segrist. "They have the ability to put on an outstanding offensive show when they are at the plate.

"The combination of Thurmond and Ross and their outstanding offensive talent make them one of the toughest teams in the Southwest Conference. We will have to play a total game to beat them."

Tech continues to get the hitting but weaker pitching. The Raiders, as a team, are hitting .275 for the year, .267 in conference.

However, the combined earned-run average is 5.74, against the opponents' 4.96. And Tech batters have walked 178 batters, while its hitters have walked but 109 times.

In the hitting department, the Raiders continue among the best in the league, as Larry Selby tops the SWC in hits, with 27, and is tied with Rodney Hodde of A&M for the top spot in doubles, seven.

Raider John Keller shares first in RBIs, at 22, and Selby is two stolen bases back of Joe Bruno of Texas in that category.

Randy Woodruff, the Aggie second baseman, is hitting .413 in conference. Shelton McMath is hitting .362 in conference. Bryan Little .375.

Powell Four-Hitter Paces CHS

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Coronado, led by the four-hit pitching of Ricky Powell, clinched a tie for the first-half championship in District 4-AAAA by beating Plainview 12-0 in high school baseball action Thursday.

The game was called after five innings on the 10-run rule.

Coronado, which lost a doubleheader to Monterey Tuesday, finished the first-half race with a 6-2 record, same as the

Monterey Unloads

Steve Coleman went four-for-five at the plate and drove in 6 runs in leading Monterey to a 23-6 victory over Big Spring in a makeup baseball game here Thursday.

The win boosted the Plainsmen's record to 18-5 for the season. They will return to District 4-AAAA action Saturday in a doubleheader against Lubbock High. They shared the first-half title with Coronado.

Plainsmen. Powell, who evened his record to 2-2, teamed with catcher Allen Harp to help finish the Bulldog's first half with a 4-4 record.

The Mustangs won the game, for all practical purposes, in the first inning, when they jumped out to a 1-0 lead. Donald Ewing scored the winning run when Jeff Turner singled. Ewing had walked and reached second on a wild pitch by starter Irvin Davis.

Coronado has Saturday off and will begin second-half play next Tuesday against Lubbock High.

Business Partnerships Chancier Than Marriage

By LeROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans frequently are accused of rushing into marriage recklessly. They also rush into business partnerships that are almost certain to come to grief because of personality clashes, says D.C. Hillery.
 Hillery is a psychological consultant for Don Aux Associates, a New York management consulting firm that numbers a lot of partnerships among its clients.
 Aux President Michael Karp said partnership is a more popular vehicle than the corporation for organizing a small business in these inflationary times because it is cheaper and more flexible. It also draws together many firms that normally would remain one-owner operations in order to save on overhead by sharing office rent and secretarial services.

 Karp said about one million of an estimated 12 million small businesses in the country are partnerships. He said he finds himself devoting ever more of his consulting services to the special problems of the partnership form of business.

 "These can result in financial fiasco and personal tragedy," he said.
 "People go into business partnerships a lot more hastily than they go into a marriage as a rule," said psychologist Hillery.
 "Before a marriage, there's usually a protracted period of courtship, in which the man and the woman learn much about each other. On the other hand,"

Hillery said, "many business partnerships are formed on the spur of the moment to take advantage of an idea or a favorable circumstance and the awakening after the honeymoon can be much more traumatic than in a marriage."
 "The big difficulty," Hillery said, "is that, all too often, each partner has his eye on several goals and only one of these may be shared by the other partner and this is not recognized until both partners have tied up their money and futures in the venture."
 Disaster is just as likely to come because the business is successful as because it is disappointing. In fact, Hillery said, more partnerships may founder because they succeed too well in earning profits. This brings a showdown on the differing personal aims of the partners. One wants to take it easy now that money is rolling in, but the other is interested only in steady growth and expansion.

"A born-again Christian and a swash-buckling libertine are bound to clash sooner or later," Hillery said. "They may clash even while they are both having to struggle to keep the business alive, and it's a cinch there will be a blowup once both have money and time to spare."
 "We see far too many partnerships in which the partners hate each other," Hillery said, "but neither will quit because of the money involved."
 Family partnerships are no protection against these risks but neither is a partnership with a relative any riskier than joining a total stranger in business, Hillery said.

Firms like Don Aux can give counseling that may prevent the formation of partnerships that are doomed to fail, Hillery said, but professional psychological advice on the subject is not easy to come by.
 "Personally, I think the prospective partners should do their own analyses of the chances of personality or goal clashes," Hillery said. "Each should make a check list of his own goals as of now, five years hence and 10 years hence, and they should be compared."
 "Personality traits should be explored to determine if serious conflicts are inevitable."
 "If real incompatibility shows up in either area, the venture should be abandoned."

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: What's Johnny Carson really like? — L. Brady, New Orleans.

A: If Johnny only pocketed the return postage enclosed with letters asking that question since he went on his Tonightly coffee klatch, he'd be a millionaire without depositing any other checks. We've known Johnny (if "known" is the correct word) since he hosted "Who Do You Trust?" on TV and wondered why he wasn't kind to his grammar and have the title changed to "WHOM Do You Trust?"

If you're really serious about finding out more about him without asking his ex-wives or his pal, Ed McMahon, we suggest you pick up a copy of the March 22 issue of Rolling Stone magazine with Carson smiling at you from the cover. In it you'll find about a dozen pages of incidents and facts even Carson can't remember. It's a candid, sometimes comical appraisal by writer Timothy White who left no rolling stone unturned in his research.

For example, he drops names like his subject ad-libs asides that some of his contemporaries could use to develop an entire routine. White includes an anecdote revealing that the extrovert-introvert also is a practical joker. Once one of his writers recalls going into the Polo Lounge in Beverly Hills with Johnny when the guy at the door insisted that Carson put on a tie before he entered. So he went off to his room and put on a tie, but took off his shoes and socks. He then sat down and put his bare feet up on the table. The guy at the door was stunned. It was a hilarious sight.

With material like that, Johnny doesn't need any guests to talk to. He could stop the show just by talking to himself. And be sure he'd be invited back again and again.

Q: Settle a bet. I say that the residents of Beverly Hills, Mich. have a higher income than those who live in Beverly Hills, Calif. Right or wrong? — M. Thomas, Lansing, Mich.

A: Right! The far lesser-known Beverly Hills, Mich. (with a median income of $22,909 at last report) outdid the more glamorous city of the same name by some $2.475 per person.

Q: We've been heartbroken that Miami Beach didn't get the okay to have legalized casino gambling, slot machines, etc., es- pecially after seeing how much money Resorts International is taking in Atlantic City. Any idea what their latest profit statement shows?

A: We hate to further depress you by reporting that the International scored a net win of $14,800,000 at its hotel-casino for the 28 days ending Feb. 28, 1979. Daily net win for the month was $529,272, a 20 percent increase over January. The net win is defined as winnings from gambling operations before deduction of overhead expenses. Incidentally, slot machines accounted for 35 percent of February's take. It proves again, as in Las Vegas, that the one-armed bandits still have plenty of mechanical muscle.

Some famous readers write:
 Robert Q. Lewis: I just discovered a personal ad in an underground newspaper in which a boy with A-bomb expressed interest in meeting a girl with H-bomb. Object — Nothing!
 Buddy Hackett: I know a hillbilly who set up a trust fund for his new bride. It's payable when she reaches the age of 13.
 Henry Morgan's quickie — about a psychiatrist who eats only Freud chicken.

Q: Does our prison system obtain feature movies to show to men and women behind bars? And which is the favorite film? — J.R.S., Trenton, N.J.

A: Most popular for awhile was the Burt Reynolds comedy, "The Longest Yard," which had the prisoners playing a team of guards in a no-holds barred football game. The flickures are booked by inmates, an improvement over the days when the titles were chosen by wardens and chaplains. However, as a general rule, the prison programmers are advised not to book movies degrading law enforcement, authority and scenes depicting homosexual rape. Though action pictures and adult R-rated movies are acceptable, Linda Lovelace's "Deep Throat" hasn't made its debut yet in any Big House.

Tragic Air Crash Blamed On PSA Crew's Laxness

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 182 descended for a landing in San Diego, its flight crew joked about a small Cessna that was supposed to be in sight but which the crew had lost sight of.

Thirty seconds later the two aircraft collided and plummeted to the ground, killing 144 persons in North America's worst air disaster.

The National Transportation Safety Board decided tentatively Thursday that the crew of the Boeing 727 was responsible for the Sept. 25 accident and said it might have resulted from a lax, unprofessional atmosphere in the cockpit.

The safety board was expected to formalize the finding as it met again today to draw up its final report.

The board tentatively adopted two contributing causes putting some of the blame on the two-man Cessna crew. Board members said the smaller plane had deviated slightly from its assigned course, putting it on the same heading as the jet, and said it had not followed mandatory visual flight rules.

If there had been no Cessna flight path shift, the two planes would have missed by 1,000 feet, the board said. But after reviewing evidence and staff recommendations, it concluded unanimously that the primary cause of the accident was the PSA crew's failure to keep the Cessna in sight and then not to report to the ground when it disappeared from view.

"The PSA plane had a responsibility to keep the Cessna in sight," said board chairman James B. King. "I feel the Cessna was a victim."

The board said air traffic controllers gave the jet clearance to make a visual separation approach into San Diego's Lindbergh Field and advised the crew of the Cessna's location. The PSA pilot, Capt. James E. McFeron, acknowledged he had the Cessna in view.

Once the jet accepted visual clearance instead of radar approach control, the board said it was the crew's responsibility to keep track of the Cessna and to report to controllers if it lost sight of the craft.

A cockpit voice recorder tape revealed that the crew had lost the small plane and was scanning the sky for it up to the minute of the collision.

The board cited a transcript of the tape as evidence that the crew wasn't too concerned about the Cessna's whereabouts and that this indicated possible lack of discipline in the cockpit.

It noted this exchange shortly before the collision:

First Officer Robert Fox: "Are we clear of that Cessna?"

Second Officer Martin J. Wahne: "Suppose to be."

McFeron: "I guess."

The transcript at this point notes a sound of laughter, and an off-duty PSA captain riding in a jump seat, Spencer Nelson, said: "I hope."

"It seems there was a lax atmosphere in the cockpit," said board member Francis H. McAdams. "It doesn't sound as if anyone was assigned to look for the target, or even that the crew was particularly interested in where the Cessna was."

"It's not the type of atmosphere we like to see in a professional setting," said William Hendricks, chief of the board's aviation division.

Lack of discipline on the PSA flight deck is being considered as a contributing cause of the collision.

McAdams recommended that the Cessna's course deviation be cited as a major cause of the accident. But the board voted tentatively 3-1 to make it a contributing cause.

The Cessna was ascending at the time of the accident after practicing an instrument approach landing with an instructor and student on board. One minute and 16 seconds before the crash, the craft turned slightly from its assigned course for an unknown reason. That put it on the same heading as the jet.

Other possible contributing factors the board is considering include the air traffic control procedures at San Diego that authorize controllers to use visual separation clearance when two types of controlled radar separation are available.

Others include failure of the air traffic control system to establish procedures for the most effective use of a conflict alert system, failure of controllers to restrict the jet to a minimum altitude of 4,000 feet until it became clear of air space at nearby Montgomery Field and the fact that two separate air traffic facilities were controlling planes in the same air space.

Television Characters Give Different, False Views Of Real Life

By DAVID DUGAS
NEW YORK (UPI) — How do you end a telephone conversation? Goodbye? Bye-bye? So long?

People in television shows don't. Not Lindsay Wagner. Not Eric Estrada. All those farewells would bore a viewer to tears.

TV characters just say what they have to say and hang up.

When TV characters make appointments — say for dinner or a date — the time is never, ever specified unless some plot element is involved. A real person might say, "Want to see a movie at 7?" To which the reply might be, "Can we make it 8?"

"Nothing wrong with that, but it's not drama. On TV, people omit any mention of time, although in the days before women's lib the male might have said to the female, "I'll pick you up at 6," a declaration that allowed for no discussion.

Americans who still leave their house of apartment door unlocked diminish in number every year, but you wouldn't know that from television. Except in comedies set in New York, where three locks on the front door is an essential gag, characters nearly always leave their doors unlocked. That permits the surprise entrance of the mate, ex-lover, killer, mother-in-law and innumerable neighbors required to keep the story moving along.

It goes without saying TV characters never hear the call of nature, not even Jim Rockford. Also, when entering a dark room they don't sneak a look behind the door to make sure nobody's going to jump out at them as real people invariably do.

They may drink themselves blind, if the plot so dictates, or shoot up or even OD on some controlled substance. But almost nobody smokes a plain cigarette, unless he or she is a villain clearly undeserving of emulation by a 7-year-old viewer.

Fortunately, cops and fleeing felons seldom drive as they do on TV. Imagine the pedestrian carnage if they did.

Imagine what the 900 million Chinese will think of the West — Los Angeles in particular — if Deng Xiaoping's modernization drive ever results in Peking TV airings of "Starsky and Hutch."

Almost nobody writes letters any more, at least on TV. Not even in historical dramas, maybe because letter writing always was sort of boring, film-wise.

A Midwestern film exhibitor once sent a telegram to a distributor that said:

"Please don't send no more movies about people who write with feathers." In courtroom dramas, English ones anyway, the jury foreman eventually gets to say, "Your honor, we the ladies and gentlemen of the jury find the defendant (pause) guilty." I was snagged for jury duty a couple of months ago and wound up as a foreman. When the moment came, all I got to say was, "Guilty." But the next day a fellow juror told me she thought I did a fine job. "It was just like TV," she said.

Newport Announces Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — Six late afternoon solo piano concerts, something new this year, will "whet the appetite" for evening events at the 1979 Newport Jazz Festival, scheduled for June 22-July 1, festival impresario George Wein says.

Pianists for the hour-long concerts at 5 p.m. in Carnegie Recital Hall will be Al Haig, Roland Hanna, Muhal Richard Abrams, Barry Harris, Pat Brown and Barbara Carroll, Wein said this week at a news conference.

He said this year's festival will have an "umbrella" concept, to include all kinds of jazz. Opening night will be a Dizzy Gillespie concert, entitled "Unity with Diversity", in Carnegie Hall.

"The Stardust Road" on June 27 at Carnegie Hall will be a tribute to Hoagy Carmichael by some two dozen musicians. A couple of unpublished Carmichael works will be played and the composer, who lives in Palm Springs, Calif., has been invited to play the piano.

"Getting enough new music on the festival has always been a serious problem," Wein said. This year, on June 22 and 29, concerts by Cecil Taylor and Sun Ra and by the Art Ensemble of Chicago and the World Saxophone Quartet will be held at Symphony Space, Broadway and 95th St. Anthony Braxton, Leroy Jenkins and Oliver Lake will be at Alice Tully Hall in Lincoln Center on June 27.

Other Carnegie Hall concerts feature artists Betty Carter, Sonny Rollins and Gato Barbieri, Count Basie, a Billie Holiday tribute with Carmen McRae, Dave Brubeck and Woody Herman, and a tribute to the pop song.

Avery Fisher Hall will host Pat Metheny; "Black Broadway, 1900-1945," with Adelaide Hall coming from London; Earl Klugh and Michael Franks, Maynard Ferguson and Ronnie Laws; Freddie Hubbard and Woody Shaw; Lionel Hampton, and "Jazz Latino."

This year's only midnight concert, to be held at Radio City Music Hall, will be a tribute to bluesman Muddy Waters.

Free events include afternoon concerts by a dozen groups, one from Bulgaria, on two blocks of 52nd Street July 1; Max Roach at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine; a salute to women in jazz, outdoors at Lincoln Center, and Buddy Rich playing in a Long Island park in Bellmore, N.Y.

There will be noon to midnight music at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., on June 30 and July 1, as well as a concert and picnic at Waterloo Village in Stanhope, N.J., on June 23 and 24.

The most drastic updating on this year's festival lineup has happened to the annual swing-band dance at Roseland. This year it will be a disco dance and, instead of Basie, music will be by Chic.

Thieves Steal Six Snakes From Zoo

DENVER (AP) — Police say thieves who weren't easily rattled made off with six snakes — including a family of three rare pythons — from the reptile house at the Denver Zoo.

Curator Ed Schmitt said the reptiles, the longest about 6 feet long, probably were headed for sale to private collectors or to the thieves' homes.

Vietnam Musical 'Dispatches' Not Doing Well On Critic's Chart

By JAY SHARBUTT
 NEW YORK (AP) — During the Vietnam war, the best of anything in Vietnam was called Numbah One and the worst Numbah 10. "Dispatches," a new Vietnam war musical, is Numbah 9½.

It premiered this week at Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival, which gave us the late 1960s musical, "Hair," where innocent flower children cavorted and protested the war.

Here they cavort in the war, with much macabre spirit, and also do a Woodstock caper, shifting back and forth from the war to a rock 'n' roll concert, ultimately becoming casualties of both.

The dual-casualty idea is from a passage in Michael Herr's book on which the show is based. The rock concert is used as a metaphor for the war, or vice versa, depending on your point of view.

Herr covered the war 11 years ago. His book, mostly done in a gonzo Ernie Pyle style, consists of vignettes and thoughts about the war.

The gifted Elizabeth Swados, the show's director and tunesmith, simply took selections of his work and used them verbatim as lyrics for the 20-odd songs she wrote for the three-woman, eight-man cast.

A bold concept. It fails. His prose suggests a rock beat, but the meter is ragged. Result: Her music usually has a tough time finding a home in the words. It tends to thrash about aimlessly.

The rock-war-rol theme becomes a generally loud, noisy, undistinguished blank-verse combat bag of rock, country and gospel and is often booby-trapped with obscenities.

The troops go through their often-frenzied paces in baggy fatigues and helmet liners, occasionally donning faded hippie garb over their war threads to let us know they're now in rock-concert mode.

They occasionally pause to simply speak passages and bits of dialogue from the book. But it seems unwise to assign the womenfolk the lines Herr quotes Marines, GIs or male reporters as saying.

For example, it's well, silly to have one woman calling another "man" when it's obvious two guys are talking. And when talking dirty, the ladies just don't do it as casually, as easily, as men.

'Fotonovel' Brings New Movies To Paperback

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Just when Hollywood cynics agree there is no new way to turn a buck, along comes Fotonovel, a company which combines paperbacks of movie scripts fully illustrated with frames taken directly from the picture.

So far Fotonovel has produced "The Champ," "Grease," "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," "Hair" and "Ice Castles" with 30 new books due for publication this year.

It would appear at first blush that the colorful picture books simply contribute to the "Why can't Johnny read?" syndrome.

Some 350-400 photographs from a particular movie crowd the pages of Fotonovels without a single page of printed matter. But on each photograph — sometimes several to a page in collage — the film's dialogue is superimposed in print.

The man behind Fotonovel is Herb Stewart, a youthful classical guitarist who was unable to make a living playing guitar in this country.

Reared in Hollywood, Stewart, the son of a retired TV producer, studied guitar with Segovia in Spain and toured successfully in Europe for several years.

On returning to the United States, he discovered classical guitarists weren't in great demand. Stewart and a friend, Lazlo Pappas, remembered the "fotonovela" soap opera books they had seen in South America and Europe.

These books were simplistic stories told in photographs for the near-illiterate. They had been around for 40 years.

Partners Stewart and Pappas saw the possibilities of using similar techniques with TV shows and movies, taking individual frames directly from films.

"It took us a long time to find anyone that would listen," Stewart said. "After a year and a half 'Gunsmoke' gave us film for a two-page mockup. Two years ago Paramount came through with 'Star Trek'."

"The first four 'Star Trek' Fotonovels sold 235,000 copies. We published eight more which sold 170,000 apiece in our deal with Bantam Books."

"In May of last year the young entrepreneurs put together 'Close Encounters of the Third Kind' with Dell Publishing. It didn't do as well as Stewart hoped. But it did sell 450,000 copies.

Stewart decided to go into the publishing business himself when he saw "Saturday Night Fever" six months before its release. He was unable to convince any established publisher the picture would become a hit.

Stewart managed to convince the major movie studios — excepting Disney — and most independent producers to allow him to transform their movies into "the ultimate rerun."

Fotonovel's publication of "Grease" was on the stands two weeks after the picture's release. It sold 1.2 million copies, making the best-seller list.

"I see every movie personally and decide whether it will make a good book," said Stewart. "We select each frame on an individual basis, whether it is a close-up of an actor or a long shot in a panoramic scene."

"We don't use still shots at all. Everything comes directly from the completed movie — scenes the audience sees in theaters."

"Not a word of the dialogue is changed. So far, all our books have been based on PG movies. There's no problem with four-letter words. We can control nudity and violence by leaving out shots we think might be offensive."

Stewart and Pappas gamble heavily with each decision. The Fotonovel, which retails for $2.75, costs $150,000 to produce. The studios are guaranteed an advance against a substantial percentage of the royalties.

The young publishing company must sell 200,000 copies to break even.

Stewart is convinced Fotonovels published concurrently with the release of films helps bring customers to the box office. He says his books, which are also published abroad, are worldwide promotional aids for movies.

"Sometimes it's difficult to get our books printed while a film is still in release," he said. "There are situations where the producer can't get a good print of his movie until 10 days before the film is released."

"It takes us a month to six weeks from the time we are given a copy of the print until the book comes out."

Stewart resents insinuations that Fotonovels, like TV, contribute to illiteracy. "Just the opposite," he said. "Librarians and school teachers say kids who don't read anything will read our books. We're getting distribution into schools now because Fotonovels encourage reading."

"You can't follow the story of any of these movies without reading the dialogue and the additional exposition we add to keep the plot flowing.

"There's no denying our books attract mainly kids, but we also do a lot of business with college students, film buffs and even professors."

TV's 'Friendly Fire' Says Something About Vietnam Conflict

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — They called it the living room war, the war that was brought to you daily in living color, compliments of the evening news. When it ended, it quickly became the war to forget.

It was a war that didn't make heroes, not the kind Hollywood favored, anyway. If indeed "the media reflect the national consciousness," as screenwriter Fay Kanin suggests, then America is suddenly willing to remember Vietnam. A string of fine books about the war was followed last year by four major movies concerning Vietnam, two of which ("The Deer Hunter" and "Coming Home") dominated this year's Oscar giveaway.

Fittingly, a new Vietnam movie, perhaps the best so far, is a movie made for television, the medium that defined the war for millions of Americans. "Friendly Fire," Sunday night on ABC, is the true story of an American family that tried to understand the death of a son accidentally killed by American artillery. Miss Kanin adapted the movie from a book by C.D.B. Bryan.

It is the story of just one Iowa family, but their loss and bitter disaffection came to speak for a nation. They searched for meaning, but could find none. In that sense, "Friendly Fire" says why Vietnam became the forgotten war.

Carol Burnett and Ned Beatty give extraordinary performances as Peg and Gene Mullen, fifth-generation bread-belt Americans who became unlikely antiwar heroes. Heartland folks, people of the soil who would have smiled bravely and proudly buried their dead son in any other war.

That they went a little haywire over this loss in this war said more about the Vietnam conflict than all the anti-war shouting at Columbia or UCLA. The radicalization of the Mullens meant something: America's sense of right and purpose had gone off-track.

The Mullens were shocked by the death of their son Mike, but from the beginning, something seemed wrong. Mike was killed by friendly fire, from a defensive missile that struck his chest, the Mullens were told.

But the mortician that received Mike's body from the Army told Gene that his boy had only suffered a small wound — the size of a bullet — in the back.

This helped turn a normal sorrow into an obsession. Peg and Gene Mullen spent every waking moment turning over in their minds the scattered, sometimes conflicting information they had gathered about Mike's death. They braved resistance from the Army and from their Iowa neighbors, but in the end, the only purpose they found was their own pacifism.

Their son's death and their own home-front saga were microcosms of the nation's experience. Hurt, they were forced to look at the war. And the war could not bear up to the scrutiny of good Americans' common sense.

The Mullens represented an America that had had enough, an America that finally asked, with Peg Mullen, "Oh Dear God, what did we do to our sons?"

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — By getting to work by car pool, bus, bicycle or even walking, employees of two of the nation's largest insurance companies can eat breakfast or lunch at half-price.

Mutual of Omaha and United of Omaha announced Tuesday that beginning April 23, employees who come to work by means other than their own cars will be issued a two-week discount pass providing half-price meals at the companies' dining facilities.

Dow Jones Average Falls 3.03

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined moderately today, continuing its recent pullback after a broad early-spring rally.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.03 at 852.22.

Analysts noted some caution among investors over the outlook for inflation and interest rates.

G. William Miller, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said the Fed will consider tightening credit if the economy grows at faster than a 2.5 percent annual rate in the second quarter.

In the first quarter, economic growth slowed to an 0.7 percent annual clip.

Overseas Shipping Group led the active list, up 1 1/4 at 25 1/4. A 353,800-share block traded at 24 1/4.

General Public Utilities dropped 1/4 to 1 1/4 in active trading. The company, which owns the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania where an accident occurred last month, said a postponed meeting of its board to consider dividend action and other matters would be held next Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 18 to 56.91. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 0.33 at 180.40.

Volume on the Big Board came to 12.19 million shares at noon, against 13.73 million at the same point Thursday.

Silverman, Carson At Odds

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Johnny Carson wants to quit the "Tonight" show, the popular NBC program that made him probably the highest paid entertainer in television, a source connected with the show says.

But ratings-boost NBC apparently has no intention of letting Carson leave the show, one of the network's successes and a big revenue producer. Carson's current contract runs through the spring of 1981.

Carson was unavailable for comment late Thursday, but another source connected with the late-night talk show who also asked not to be named said Carson's request was sparked by an ultimatum from NBC President Fred Silverman, who reportedly was upset by Carson's frequent absences from "Tonight."

Silverman is in Los Angeles this week for corporate meetings. He could not be reached for comment.

Under terms of his contract, Carson is required to act as host no more than three times a week 25 weeks a year and four times per week 12 weeks a year — with 15 weeks vacation.

Silverman, who joined NBC last June after leaving top-rated ABC, has noted that the show's ratings dropped when guest hosts sat in for Carson. He reportedly told the entertainer to do more shows or not do any at all, according to one source. Carson apparently asked to exercise the latter option.

Carson told The Associated Press last month that "I get a lot of flak about my time off. But if I had to work the same schedule I had when I started there's no way I could do the show. When I started, I did five shows a week, 47 weeks a year. That's a lot of TV."

NBC's contract with Johnny Carson continues to the spring of 1981 and we expect him to honor it.

NBC officials would say whether they expected Carson to try to get out of his contract or not.

From NBC's standpoint, it would make sense to try to keep Carson and "Tonight" together. The show grossed nearly $80 million last year. The profits from "Tonight" accounted for about 17 percent of the network's total pretax profit of $122 million, industry sources say.

For about 130 to 140 appearances a year, Carson is paid what is believed to be the highest salary for any television performer. Although the figure has not been disclosed, it's estimated Carson earns $4 million annually from "Tonight," and from his Las Vegas appearances and business enterprises.

Carson began on the "Tonight" show on Oct. 1, 1962, after five years as host of the small-name game show "Who Do You Trust." He succeeded the mercurial Jack Paar.

It took nearly two years for Carson to catch on in a big way, but once he did, he became the top banana of late night TV programming.

Comedian Bill Cosby, a frequent guest host who is scheduled to fill in for Carson next week, said he was not aware that Carson planned to quit, but said it did not surprise him.

Chinese Group To Visit Textile Mill
The American Cotton Growers textile mill at Littlefield will be visited Saturday by a delegation of high-ranking officials in the textile industry of the People's Republic of China, accompanied by a top official of Levi Strauss & Co.

Melvin L. Bacharach, executive vice president of Levi's in San Francisco, was scheduled to bring the 12-man PRC delegation to Lubbock today. They will be guests of the AGC for a dinner at the Lubbock Club tonight.

Accompanying the group are David Smith, vice president-international for Levi's, and Suzanne Reynolds and Stephen Watson of the National Council for U.S.-China trade in Washington.

Levi's is the principal customer of AGC, the 3,000-member farm cooperative which owns and operates the heavy-weight denim facility at Littlefield.

C.L. Boggs is general manager of the cooperative and L.C. Unfred of New Home is president of the board of directors.

The PRC delegation is headed by Hu Ming, vice minister of the country's textile industry, and Wang Mingjun, managing director of China National Textiles Import and Export Corp.
