Nuclear engineers cite three human errors

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — With a stable but still highly radioactive reactor ready for a cold shutdown, attention shifted to the cause of the Three Mile Island nuclear accident.

Engineers said three separate human errors contributed significantly to crippling the power plant eight days ago, at least one in violation of federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission regulations.

NRC engineer Darrell Eisenhut, who briefed the five NRC commissioners Wednesday, said mechanical as well as design problems also were "major contributors" to the accident. But he emphasized that eight similar plants around the country could continue to operate "without undue risk to the health and safety for the pub-

Physicists working round the clock at the contaminated Susquehanna River site examined a number of reactor shutdown options, including one proposed by the plant's designer, Babcock & Wilcox, that could do the job in 10 days.

"There's been a steady improvement in the status of the plant," said NRC official Harold Denton, who is personally supervising the work on orders from President Carter. 'We've made a lot of progress in planning for eventual recovery of the core (which) remains stable.

Denton said the Babcock & Wilcox plan proposed for the cold shutdown

- bringing the reactor to the point where it could no longer pose any risk of escaping control - was getting highest priority. It minimizes both the need for equipment inside the containment building to operate for a long time and the release of contaminated water outside.

"The plan is basically one that involves natural circulation within the reactor vessel and ... water in the steam generator to remove heat,"

Robert Bernero, another NRC official, said: "We're very concerned about the workers, and being very careful that they won't get any undue exposure. That's why we have a housekeeping team inspecting all the equipment, all the valves, all the pumps, before we begin the final step of the cool-down.

Bernero estimated it might cost upwards of $150 million to replace the damaged core and clean up the reactor. That price would have to be paid by the plant's operator, Metropolitan Edison Co., which could pass it on to its customers with higher rates.

Eisenhut said an analysis of the near-catastrophe found these errors:

—Valves on an emergency pumping system were closed when they should have been open

-The main emergency core cooling system was turned off at the wrong

-Four auxiliary water pumps were disengaged, in violation of NRC regulations, when they should have been ready for use.

Joseph Califano, secretary of health, education and welfare, said in Washington that federal officials planned long-range health studies of Three Mile Island employees and residents who might have been exposed to higher-than-normal radiation

"We will have to follow those individuals we choose for many years," he told the Senate Human Resources health subcommittee, which is conducting the first major congressional inquiry into the worst nuclear accident in American history

Califano said he expected no increase in the cancer death rate in the area as a result of the accident. But he suggested it was possible that radiation levels within five miles of the plant might continue higher than normal for months or years. This was disputed by other witnesses.

"It is weeks or months at most," said Shepard Bartnoff, an official of Jersey Central Power Co., which is one of the plant's owners.

ODESSA- A 19-year-old Odessa man drowned Wednesday afternoon, when he was trapped in a flooded

Reynaldo Mileg was sealing a joint in a 24-inch water main leading to a new water tower site in northeast Odessa, when an eight-inch water line ruptured and flooded the water main and a 12 foot-deep trench around part of it

"He didn't have a chance - no place to go," Bill Childress, Odessa fire chief, said this morning of Mileg

Childress said Mileg was about 30 feet into the new water main when a backhoe digging more trench footage for laving of additional pipe struck and ruptured the smaller, high pressure line. Water gushed in and quickly filled the trench

"It's just a freak accident." the fire hief said. "It (the work) is an oper tion that's done daily. Then some-

After water from the ruptured line was cut off, firemen pumped water from the trench and then dug out mud, which had filled the pipe, to recover Mileg's body

Childress said the force had pushed Mileg about 30 feet farther into the open end main. About 300 feet of the concrete jacketed and lined steel water main had been lain. He said the water main is covered with dirt as it is laid down and sealed

Mileg was working for a private contractor in the city of Odessa

Mileg's body was recovered about 315 hours after the flooding. He was alone in the main when the mishap occurred shortly before 4 p.m.

Carter's energy blueprint will increase gas prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is unveiling a approves the windfall tax proposal new energy blueprint for the nation tonight that will boost gasoline prices, perhaps by as much 15 cents a gallon over the next two years, and add measurably to inflation

Carter's plan, triggered by higher prices by oil exporting countries and an interruption in supplies from Iran, in cludes the gradual lifting of price controls on U.S. produced

Another component, facing an uncertain fate in Congress, would levy a new tax aimed at curbing windfall profits for

The basic components of Carter's plan were outlined by White House officials who asked not to be identified

Although a number of congressional sources say they doubt the tax can be enacted. Carter is expected to sweeten the pot by suggesting the extra tax revenues be earmarked for programs designed to conserve oil by encouraging production of gasohol - a blend of unleaded gasoline and grain alcohol - and the development of solar and other energy sources, all of which have support in Congress

The decontrol portion of Carter's new energy plan does dent will go ahead with it regardless of whether Congress

Carter goes on television from his Oval Office at 9 p.m. EST for a radio-television announcement of plans to gradually decontrol domestic crude oil prices starting June 1, with total decontrol scheduled by September 1981

Estimates of at the pump results of his strategy to both discourage consumption and encourage production through higher prices vary widely.

Gasoline could go up 7 cents to 15 cents per gallon by 1981, according to some unofficial estimates. But the American Petroleum Institute, an industry group, recently issued a study asserting that phased decontrol would add just 5 cents to each gallon of gasoline over the 212 year span. The inflationary impact is equally uncertain, with some forecasters seeing each stage of decontrol adding one-half of one percent to the federal cost of living index.

Carter's energy address will reflect fresh concerns aroused by the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania Before the accident, he had been expected to declare full support for an expanded nuclear energy program

Now, sources say, Carter is likely to announce appointnot require action by Congress and officials say the presi ment of a high-level commission to investigate the accident and reassess nuclear power safeguards.

Chamber accepts bid for new office building

Within a year Midland Chamber of Commerce officials expect to move to a new building to be located on the same block as the city Exhibit Hall, and a new owner already has been found for the present building.

The chamber board of directors Wednesday accepted a bid by HBF Construction of $562,000 to build the two-story structure, which will be designed with a capability to expand to three floors. Chamber President Joe Kloesel said the other contender for the contract, Area Builders, submitted a bid of $556,000. After considering some alternatives included in the bids and the length of time for construction, HBF was selected, said Kloesel. HBF listed 240 calendar days for the job, while Area Builders estimat

"The days to work on it became a very important factor, since we're already paying rent on the area," Kloesel said. The chamber's lease on land for the new facility began Sunday

The chamber moved into its current building in 1971. The second floor was used then for the federal court and jail, according to Fred Tyler, chamber executive vice president The new building will have 5,700 square feet of space on each floor, with the lower level to be leased for retail use and the chamber housed on the second floor, according to Kloesel. The chamber board approved selling the current building to J.L. Davis of Midland, who submitted a bid of $325,000.

Also at Wednesday's meeting, Harrell Feldt reported the 1979 Chamber dinner will be at 7:30 p.m. May 7 in Chaparral Center with Orson Bean, a nationally known entertainer, as featured speaker. Bids on MidTran vehicles will be opened May 15, John Ingram report-

Symphony does best for company

When company comes visiting, you strive to do your very best - don't

The answer is yes in the case of the Midland-Odessa Symphony which this week had "company" in the form of a guest conductor for its fifth pair of season subscription concerts.

On the podium for the concert pair in Midland and Odessa was Maestro Kurt Woss of Vienna, and the orchestra's instrumentalists rose ad-

Woss has led such renowned orchestras as the Vienna Philharmonic, The Berlin Philharmonic, the Munich Philharmonic, the BBC Orchestra of London and other noted ensembles.

The program for the concert pair was as Austrian as the guest conductor — the Symphony No. 3 in D major of Franz Schubert, and the Third Symphony of Anton Bruckner.

Conductor Woss is widely regarded as one of the foremost interpreters of the music of Bruckner, so it was no surprise that the orchestra's reading of that composer's sometimes sonorous, sometimes "angular" Symphony No. 3 emerged with clarity and

There are occasional banalities in this work but it is nonetheless a piece of dimension and majestic splendor, and Woss and the orchestra worked very effectively together to bring these laudable qualities forth.

The more melodic and romantic Symphony No. 3 of Franz Schubert received fine and deferential treatment from the orchestra and its leader; the performance was lustrous and polished, in the main.

In keeping with the concert theme, "A Night in Old Vienna," (which somehow sounded just a bit shallow for a concert offering two such "serious" works as the Schubert and the Bruckner), the orchestra and guest conductor offered a Strauss waltz as an encore. It hadn't the clout of the Bruckner or Schubert, of course, but it nevertheless was pleasant to hear. ---ROGER SOUTHALL

Brown lung bill pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forme cotton mill workers suffering from brown lung disease are urging Congress to pass a bill that would compensate more than 35,000 people afflicted by the respiratory ailment.

Brown says SALT could save U.S. $30 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today a new arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union would save the United States from spending an additional $30 billion over the next 10 years to maintain the nuclear balance.

Brown also said the SALT II agreement, which he described as "very close" to completion, would improve the "survivability" of U.S. land-based Minuteman missiles by restricting Soviet launchers and the numbers of warheads Without such curbs, Brown said, the Soviets could put up to 40 warheads on each of their biggest weapons and they "could have nearly one-third more strategic systems than with the agreement. The Pentagon chief made these points in a speech prepared for a New York City meeting of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Foreign Policy Association. It was the second shot in the Carter administration's new effort to sell the strategic arms limitation treaty Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, started the coordinated campaign Wednesday night by telling the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations that the United States and the Soviet Union "are on the verge of an historic achievement."

The administration's drive for support appeared aimed, at the outset, at influential groups whose members might persuade senators now wavering or opposed to the impending treaty to support it.

Some observers believe the administration will have to fight to muster the necessary two-thirds Senate vote for ratification. Without referring directly to the reportedly poor health of Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, Brzezinski urged that the arms pact be sealed soon so the next generation of Soviet leaders will "face clear and agreed restraints on the competition in stra-TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Equal Rights Amendment has run into a stone wall in the Florida Senate Rules Committee.

"It seems fairly clear that it will take some exceptional persuasion to get the votes, some exceptional persuasion that doesn't seem apparent at the moment," said Sen. Jack Gordon, the Democratic sponsor of the ratification resolution. "But ERA won't go away. If an opportunity presents itself later, we'll try to take advantage of it.

'Gasahol' exemption sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Motor fuel taxes on the mixture of gasoline and alcohol known as "gasohol" should be suspended until the new fuel becomes competitive, the Texas Senate decided Wednesday.

A voice vote sent to the House a bill by Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, that would exempt from the state 5-cent gasoline tax any gasoline that contains at least 10 percent alcohol by volume.

An amendment attached by Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, would bring the exemption to an automatic end in 1989. It could be phased out earlier if the "gasohol" got to be 10 percent or more of the retail sale of gaso-

Now to the polls!

Saturday is election day in the Tall City, and voters of the city, Midland Independent School District and hospital district have their work cut out for them -in having their say at the polls.

They may choose from 22 candidates who have offered their services for the various offices to be filled in the three-pronged election. They have a choice in all but one of the races, most of which are hotly contested - and then some.

The Greenwood Independent School District's election also is scheduled Saturday.

Much - very much - has been written and said by, for and against the various candidates in the Midland election, particularly in the school trustee races. The spirited campaigns have attracted a record number of "Letters to the Editor." Scores of individuals have been busier than usual in campaigning for the candidates of their choice. It is great to have so many individuals involved in election campaigns. But a cause, so to speak, was created a number of weeks ago in the Midland school district. It largely is responsible for the mounting interest which has been and is being shown in the upcoming election. It reminds somewhat of the torrid school board elections of 35 and 40 years ago in Midland.

The decision of the school board to determine the feelings of the community at large concerning the proposed consolidation of the city's two high schools in a nonbinding referendum to be held in connection with the election has stimulated interest and enthusiasm in the upcoming balloting. This has proven to be an emotional, highly controversial matter, and voters will have the opportunity of voicing their views on the matter Saturday.

The Reporter-Telegram previously has stated its opposition to the proposal, feeling that it would be a step backward for the Tall City. And on Saturday, the voters will have the opportunity of saying "yes" or "no" in the matter.

The large number of absentee ballots cast in the elections indicates that the total number of votes cast will be unusually heavy, and, hopefully, this will be the case.

Please don't fail to fulfill your responsibility as a good citizen Saturday. Your vote counts!

This is Library Week in the State of Texas, as proclaimed by Gov. William P. Clements Jr., proclamation designating Library coinciding, as it does, with the national observance.

And in the Tall City, this really is an observance which has profound significance, since Midland is most fortunate in having one of the very finest, most complete and best-operated public facilities (Midland County Public Library) to be found in cities of comparable and above size anywhere. It also is fortunate in having the Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library, the J. Evetts Haley History Center, the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, as well as others, including those of Midland College, public schools and churches.

But it is the public libraries which are in the limelight across the nation this week. The active, aggressive organization, Friends of the Library, is coordinating the Midland observance, while statewide, the Texas Library Association is in charge of activities.

Gov. Clements, in his Week, noted that 1979 marks the 140th anniversary of the proclamation establishing a library for the Republic of Texas in 1839. This is also the 70th anniversary of the creation of the Texas Library and Historical Commission, the governing board for the Texas State Library.

The Midland County Public Library also has an interesting, colorful history, the facility being one of the community's oldest public institutions.

Dramatic changes have taken place in public library operation and management, but Texas libraries have managed to keep pace with progress in providing information, which is their basic

So, on this particular occasion, we gladly join with other Midland and area residents in directing a snappy salute of congratulation, appreciation and all best wishes to our libraries, of which we are proud, indeed.

WASHINGTON - When President Carter flew back last weekend from his political trip to Wisconsin he was very depressed. "It didn't go very well, did it?" he said to Jerry Rafshoon, his administrative aide in charge of Image-Making.

they don't hug?' 'They're behind you, but you're President of the United States. The people in Wisconsin would feel they

Saudi's oil production snares

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - The scare word today in Washington is "oil." It's a word that has the policymakers shutting doors, locking files and stamping their papers "secret." For their past policies have made the United States dependent upon overseas oil, which suddenly is

The Arab oil ministers last week not only raised the world oil price by 9 percent but agreed to rig production to keep the actual price far higher than the announced price.

From Saudi Arabia to Libya, the oil sheikdoms are preparing to cut back production. This will make oil supplies scarce and keep prices high. Some U.S. officials characterize the action privately as economic warfare against the West.

But the Washington policymakers are desperate just to keep the oil flowing. They are nervous, therefore, about offending the sensibilities of the Saudi Arabians who supply most of the oil that the United States imports.

This may be what prompted Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., to try to keep the American public from learning the contents of a secret congressional report detailing the serious problems of oil production in Saudi Arabia. The report is based on material subpoenaed fron Aramco, the consortium of four American oil companies operating in Saudi Arabia, Sources who read an early draft of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee report told our associate Dale Van Atta it contained "incredible" information on declining oil production in Saudi Arabia.

The gist of the report - that technical problems and possible political instability cast doubt on the Saudi's ability to increase production significantly - is actually nothing new. More than five years ago, we revealed that serious "pressure drops" occurred when the consortium tried to increase production toward the 20-million-barrel daily output it had claimed could be reached.

The Aramco colossus - Exxon, Standard Oil of California, Mobil and Texaco - heatedly denied our report at the time. Three years later, they disputed a similar report in The New York Times.

After we reported that the Saudis could not even make good on an Aramco promise of 15 million barrels a day, we were called to testify in February 1974, before the subcommittee headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho. We told the committee which Aramco documents should be subpoenaed.

Now, the subcommittee report, based in part on the documents we suggested be subpoenaed, has confirmed the major points of our fiveyear-old reports. The subcommittee report is less than 100 pages long, but it is a devastating indictment of the oil

It would be bad enough if the subcommittee had used material that Aramco could challenge, but the consortium was doubly embarrassed by being hoisted on its own petard. Unable to dispute their own internal memoranda, the oil companies decided their only recourse was to bring pressure on the subcommittee to suppress the report.

The oilmen found their staunchest ally in Sen. Javits. He listened to the arguments of the companies that the Aramco documents were corporate secrets and should never be released. Javits "actively stalled the report," according to our sources, sandbagging it at various stages by quibbling over the degree of detail it should include about oil production. Opposing his position, other senators on the subcommittee fought to maintain the integrity of the report.

Sources described it as a "fierce struggle." Several draft reports were drawn up, but none could meet the diametrically opposed requirements of the contending factions. Meanwhile, Secretary of State

Vance was concerned with the foreign policy implications of the report. Obviously, if the Saudis will not be able to increase production as Aramco had promised, it would be to the interests of the United States to take steps to ensure a continued supply of oil from other sources. The lesson of Iran and our misplaced support of the shah should have been clear.

But Vance, more concerned about embarrassing the Saudis than about re-thinking our foreign policy, argued that the report should be suppressed. For weeks he pressured Church not to make the damaging report public. He cited one "important" oil negotiating conference after another. Finally, Church was warned that the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty might be jeopardized if the report were released.

Vance's concern with hostile Saudi reaction was at least partially justified. According to our sources, the Saudi Arabian government is upset that a foreign power - the United States - has been able to learn the most intimate details about production of the Saudis' only appreciable natural resource.

This legal "leak" of confidential information, through subpoena power over American companies, is a significant factor in the Saudis' reaction to the report and Aramco's alarm over its release. A source explained that the oil companies fear Saudi Arabia may decide to freeze out the Americans to prevent such leaks in the future.

Vance has been described as "hypersensitive" about the subcommittee report. Yet signficantly, neither he nor Javits have disputed the report's findings. They simply feel the American public should not be given the facts about a situation that could have a drastic effect on our supply of oil and gasoline - and the prices we pay for them.

BROADSIDES

"I'm sorry, Mr. President. I didn't know you felt that way about it. If I had known, I would have had one of our advance people in Wisconsin find someone to hug you.' "It wouldn't have the same mean-would give their eyeteeth to hug you. I saw it when I was walking with you. But they were afraid that if they tried it the Secret Service would clonk them over the head." "I understand that. But the governor of Wisconsin could have hugged me when I got off the plane."

"He's a Republican, Mr. President. He could have gotten himself in a lot of trouble if he had been photographed hugging you.'

Three Mile Island story: let rationality take hold

WASHINGTON — One of the best moments of the Jimmy Carter Presidency was logged Sunday when he and his wife walked into the controlroom of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant at a time when 90 miles away hysterics were talking anxiously of fleeing even farther from the source of the big nuclear news.

Carter studied nuclear science, exposed himself to the hot stuff as a naval officer and realizes the safety record of the commercial nuclear industry is quite good. In going to Three Mile Island when doomsayers were mindlessly prattling on, Carter showed a command quality and a sense of teaching by symbolic presence which deserves a salute.

As I write this, there is good reason to expect that the potential great harm resulting from the accident at Three Mile Island — the worst in the history of commercial nuclear operations - is diminishing, and that rationality will prevail. In fact, it is entirely possible that the Three Mile Island episode will not only result in improved safety at nuclear plants, but also in a greater public understanding about how these plants work.

The ability to reason is what separates mankind from lesser animals. There is great and understandable fear of nuclear power. It was unfortunate that this power was revealed to the world in the horrible form of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. But then electricity can be a horrible power, too, and so can the combustion of coal, petroleum and gas. Our fears of these energy forms diminished long ago as an understanding of safety overcame the cries and warnings of doomsayers of another time.

Doomsayers are always with us. I was dismayed but not surprised by the quality of commentary during the early phase of the Three Mile Island story. It was the worst case and the likelihood of catastrophe which made the bulletins. At one point, NBC pundit David Brinkley virtually terminated the nuclear industry by doubting whether "it can survive after what happened in Pennsylvania," and concluding that "we might all wonder if they will ever be allowed to build any more at all anywhere."

We can expect irrationality from the likes of, say, a Jack Lemmon or a Jane Fonda, as dramatized in their film about a nuclear plant. After all, Ms. Fonda went to Hanoi during the Vietnam war, and used that regime's radio to propagandize American troops. She was sure that the Communists and the Viet Cong were nice guys, and she thinks nuclear power is intrinsically evil.

Most people have more sense than Jane Fonda, though, and can learn about radiation and nuclear power. Radiation has surrounded us since the beginning of time. It comes from the sun, and is in the air we breathe and the food and water we consume. If you live in a brick house, you get a bit more than in a wooden one. If you fly coast-to-coast you receive five millirems of it. If you live in Denver you get 52 more millirems a year than if you live in New York because you pick up one millirem for every 100 feet

If you live within a 50-mile radius of a nuclear plant you get less than one extra millirem per yer. If you live near the Three Mile Island plant, you pick up an estimated 12 additional millirems due to the accident, about half the amount of one dental X-ray. most Americans receive an annual average of 200 millirems of radiation, well within the safety limits; nuclear power plants contribute an infinitesimal amount of this total.

As of this writing, not one person has been killed or hurt as a result of a commercial nuclear accident -Three Mile Island included. The American Nuclear Insurers, recently noting the "superior" safety record of the nation's nuclear power plants, raised the coverage, and applied a substantial cash credit to continuance of this insurance.

According to government reports, coal mining, oil and gas extraction and electric and gas transmission are far, far more dangerous occupations than nuclear. In 1977, for example, 123 people were killed in coal-mining, 291 in oil and gas extraction, and not one

Yet there have been serious accidents in commercial nuclear plants. An electrical fire at the Brown's Ferry TVA plant once knocked out all safety circuits, but was brought under control. In 1969, a breeder reactor at the Detroit Fermi Plant overheated, causing fuel-rod melts, but again, there was no catastrophe, just a scare. It is the potential danger from a plant "meltdown" which causes nuclear engineers to work so conscientiously, just as it is the potential danger in a flight of a jetliner circling across the globe at 600 mph which causes pilots to pay attention to their work. It is far more dangerous to be a passenger in a car or commercial jet than to live near, or work in, a nuclear power plant. As one shrewd observer put it: "If you want to save thousands of American lives each year, just prohibit the left turn in traffic.'

Still, the Three Mile Island accident must be thoroughly investigated and reported on, particularly as it applies to radiation levels. The nuclear industry must give an accounting for itself, in the wake of this dangerous event. It was grave enough that government officials talked evacuation, and that the president found it necessary to march into the control room.

Getting up every morning, however, is a risk, as indeed are many of our daily activities.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices, which eventually are reflected in the prices that consumers pay, rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 14.1 percent during the first three months of 1979. It was the largest quarterly advance since the fourth quarter of 1974.

But a hint of some future relief from rising food prices was contained in the March price report. Consumer

Wholesale prices register continued climb in March

The Labor Department said whole sale prices were higher in March for beef and veal, which were up sharply for the fourth consecutive month, and for eggs, home heating oil, gasoline

The price report showed inflation continuing at well above 10 percent, a rate that has the Carter administration searching for ways to strengthen its battered wage and price guideline

Sarah's minding Midkiff's store

MIDKIFF — "Come in and look around," said the neighborly woman on the other side of the counter, "and do a little work if you see anything that needs fixing.'

The setting was country, really country-rural, though it was somewhat affected by distant city life.

And there was work - some "fixing" - that needed doing: straightening up and dusting, culling, patching up over here and there, painting all over, and getting in some fresh supplies - groceries, mostly - to fill in the gaps in the counters.

The old weathered store was abounding inside with friendliness. But forget the touching up. Too much sprucing up would take the color and character out of the country

It would be like outfitting a farmer in his Sunday suit or an oil field hand in a tuxedo and expecting them to put in a day's work out in the field. The tractor probably wouldn't plow and the pumping jack would choke

The woman minding the country store was Sarah Whisman; it's been her work-a-day routine for years. Her husband, Bob, runs the filling station next door.

Mrs. Whisman was holding on to a 10-month-old tot, the old cash register was silent, the television set in her cubbyhole was bright and barely turned up, and the traveling salesman was taking orders.

George Southard and his wife, Ruby, were picking up a few groceries in an easy and unhurried man-

Nobody was rushing to go somewhere and do nothing. "It's kind of the community gathering place, I guess," Southard said of the store. "I don't know everything that goes on." The Midkiff community is at the crossroads for much oil field, farming, ranching, selling and other traffic in the "boondocks" 37 miles southeast of Midland. Back in the store, Mrs. Whisman still was caring for the babe, Landon Brantley, as if he were her own. Soon, she returned the child to his mother, rung up some bills and finished giving her orders to Ray Moya, the traveling salesman, who works for a San Angelo wholesaler.

Moya drops by on Wednesday afternoons on his 400-mile route, which covers communities such as Royalty, Grandfalls, Midkiff, St. Lawrence and Garden City.

"It's a good run," said Moya. "I meet a lot of good people. They make you feel at home. I look forward to it every time I make the run."

It's unlike work and living in the urban areas. "You go to the stores in the city, and they won't tell you the time of day," the saleman said. "They're so busy.

Not out here, though.

They may or may not say a lot depending on the time of day - but they'll sure talk to you and make you feel at home Just act neighborly.

Egyptian Cabinet requests peace referendum

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Egyptian Cabinet recommended to President Anwar Sadat that he hold a national referendum to demonstrate that his peace treaty with Israel has the support of the Egyptian people. There was speculation that Sadat would call for the national vote in a speech to Parliament today opening a debate before it ratifies the pact.

Government sources said a referendum could be held within a few days to show Sadat's outspoken Arab foes that the peace drive has overwhelming popular support. The government keeps a tight rein on dissent in Egypt and only minimal opposition to the treaty has surfaced.

Sources said the Cabinet proposed the referendum at a two hour meeting Wednesday at which it reaffirmed support for the treaty and endorsed for the first time the interpretive memos accompanying the pact.

Opponents of the pact apparently were responsible for bombings today at the Israeli Embassy and the Egyptian airline office in Nicosia, Cyprus. The blasts before dawn in downtown Nicosia caused slight damage and no casualties, the Nicosia police said.

An Israeli newspaper, The Jerusalem Post, reported from Washington today that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance would join Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin when they meet May 27 at El Arish, the capital of the Sinai Peninsula, to declare the border between Egypt and Israel open after 31 years. The Post said Vance's presence would demonstrate the U.S. government's determination to remain closely involved in the Israeli-Egyptian peace process. Egyptian officials said that Egypt

Klansmen indicted on many charges

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) -Twenty Ku Klux Klansmen, including a police officer, have been indicted on charges ranging from shooting into homes to impersonating an FBI

Justice Department spokesman John Wilson said in Washington Wednesday it was the largest number of Klan members indicted and arrested at one time in the agency's history. He also said it was the biggest case since the peak of the civil rights movement in the mid-1960s.

The Klansmen, including Childersburg police officer William Rayfield, are members of a Klan chapter at Sylacauga, southeast of Birmingham, authorities said.

The FBI said all 20 were arrested and bonds had been set at $5,000.

and Israel would exchange ratified copies of the peace treaty at a U.S. listening post in the Sinai instead of in Cairo and Jerusalem at Egypt's request, Deputy Foreign Minister Butros Ghali said. The change in plans was announced by Begin Wednesday. Informed Egyptian sources said Egypt believed Arab opposition to the treaty would be aggravated by a high-profile ceremony in Jerusalem that would imply Egyptian recognition of the city as Israel's capital.

One of the major Arab objections to the treaty is that it does not provide for Israeli withdrawal from East Jerusalem, the site of some of Islam's holiest places Egyptian Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali announced that beginning today, military permission would not be required for civilian travel along the main roads and into inhabited areas of the Sinai Desert controlled by Egypt. He said this was a step toward the "normalization of civilian life" following the treaty signing.

Billy's getting better

JIMMY'S WHITEHOUSE

WASHINGTON (AP) The word from Georgia is that hospitalized Billy Carter is "feeling like a Marine again."

The monthly Plains Statesman, a hometown tabloid born of brother Jimmy's successful campaign for the presidency, reports that Billy is following an arduous exercise regimen that includes "miles of running on top of pushups.

Billy, described by the newspaper as a reformed "professional drinker," is being treated for alcohol abuse at the Long Beach, Calif., Naval Hospital.

PRESIDENT Carter's early rising aides have solved a problem that had proved an embarrassment in dealings with counterparts at the Pentagon, State Department and Central Intelligence Agency.

Almost routinely. Carter folks get neardawn calls from bureaucrats outside the White House who want to discuss articles appearing in morning editions of the New York Times.

Until quite recently, however, copies of the Times which, along with The Washington Post, are must breakfast reading in high government circles, were available around town before reaching the desks of the Carter people.

Now the White House has achieved parity with the departments and agencies. By ordering the Times direct from the local distributor, bypassing the middleman news dealer, presidential aides no longer have to confess they don't know what early morning callers are talking about when they cite articles in

The early morning debate and let it be LCRA lobbying fails in House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Reported lobbying by the Lower Colorado River Authority did no good Wednesday as the House voted to put all LCRA water transactions under state regulation.

A final vote was expected today on a bill by Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, which advanced

The bill would require the LCRA to obtain approval of the Texas Department of Water Resources just as other water districts do - to store, divert, sell or distribute water.

Massey said the LCRA regularly submits water use reports to the department but always adds a proviso that, "We don't have to do this, we are just cooperating with you.

Massey said it "just plays havoc with the orderly adjudication of water rights" to have a river authority take the position its water outside the jurisdiction of the state water agency.
"And this is what the LCRA does time and time again," Massey said. A House subcommittee studied the LCRA after the authority obtained a contract to sell water from the Colorado River to the South Texas Nuclear Project's reactor at Bay City for $10 an acre-foot. An acre-foot is 325,851 gallons.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, attempted by amendment to restore the LCRA's total control over water in the lower Colorado and was defeated, 90-39.

He said rice farmers in his part of Texas can go to the LCRA board every year and get a quick determination that their water needs will be met. But if they must go to the department of water resources, he said, they will "run into delay and misinterpretations and we might not be able to farm rice as we have been doing.

"I understand the LCRA is about as popular as poison ivy in our districts. If somebody wants to slap the LCRA's hand or Mr. (Charles) Herring's (LCRA general manager) hand, we would be willing to help, wouldn't we?" asked Rep. John Wilson, D-La-

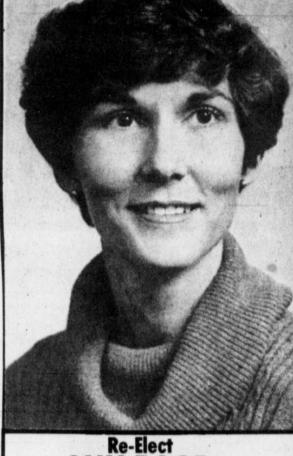

"That's right," Uher said, adding that passing Massey's bill wasn't the way to do it.

Political prisoners in Mexico

HOUSTON (AP) More than 400 political prisoners languish in secret, underground jails in Mexico, according to witnesses for Hector Marroquin Manriquez, a Mexican national seeking political asylum in the United States.

Manriquez said he fled his native country in 1974 because authorities ac cused him of murder and he fears he will be immediately jailed and tortured if he returns.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is seeking to deport him as an illegal alien.

Robert K. Goldman dean-designate of the American University Law School, disagreed Wednesday with Mexican contentions there are no political prisoners in that country.

Goldman, who is co-author of a report on political dissidence in Mexico, said if political prisoners do not exist, there would have been no need for Mexico to pass an amnesty law last Septem-

He said interviews with 120 political prisoners in Mexican jails last year indicated most were arrested by paramilitary groups and held incommunicado long periods until they con fessed to crimes. Most are not charged with political crimes, he said, but are convicted on such charges as murder and armed robbery

Rosario Ibarra de Pedra, the mother of a young man she said disappeared in 1974, testified for five hours. She told of torture and human rights violations in Mexico.

She is the founder of a committee to defend political prisoners and has spoken with the United Nations and Mexico President Jose Lopez Portillo concerning her son and other prisoners.

WASHINGTON (AP) Even if John Louis Evans III is executed as scheduled Friday in Alabama's electric chair, his death is expected to have little bearing on the overall status of the capital punishment issue in the United States.

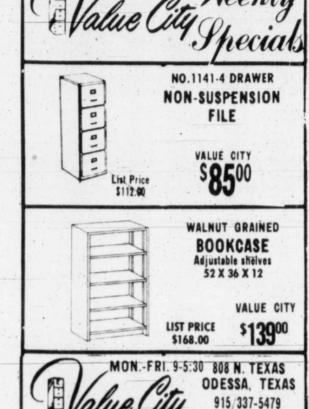

The reason is that Evans, as did Gary Gilmore, who died before a Utah firing squad Jan. 17, 1977, has stopped trying to stay alive through court appeals. Evans has said he prefers to die rather than spend the rest of his life in jail.

MIDLAND AT OUR BEST!

Midland Alliance - with Parker Humes as chairman - was totally and completely a Midland project. Endorsed by over 60 civic groups, many of our churches, all the financial institutions, and many businesses, the Alliance worked to make certain our schools would not be taken over by the Federal Courts, and that there would be no violence or upheaval in Midland as there was in Boston, Louisville and other cities. Parker Humes demonstrated great leadership in this endeavor - and he will help restore respect and confidence in our public schools as School Trustee.

Ruling supports credit investigators

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) - Ruling in favor of a nationwide credit reporting firm, a Maine judge has held that a person's right to privacy is outweighed by "commercial speech" rights that allow credit investigators to collect and report facts on the person's life without permission.

Superior Court Justice Lewis E. Naiman ruled in favor of Equifax Services Inc. of Atlanta, the nation's largest credit reporting firm. The ruling struck down portions of Maine's 18-month-old Fair Credit Reporting Act as unconstitutional. Equifax sought-to prevent the law from taking effect in December 1977, and failing that, challenged its constitutionality. Naiman enjoined the state from enforcing the

The decision, which is being appealed to the Maine Supreme Judicial Court by the state attorney gener-al, would significantly extend First Amendment protection for commercial credit firms, lawyers said

And it expands the emerging doctrine of "com-mercial speech," which grants some First Amendment rights to business. In his ruling, Naiman held that any privacy rights enjoyed by Maine citizens were not strong enough to counter-balance the "commercial speech" rights enjoyed by Equifax. He "summarily" rejected the state's argument that "there is a constitutional right to privacy which is applicable here."

"The company has been vindicated," said Gordon Grimes of Portland, the Equifax lawyer in the case. Grimes termed the decision "an extremely important" and "pecedent stting" ruling.

Grimes said the decison effectively warns other states that "before you go out and start passing similar laws, you have to consider the First Amendment and what it stands for ... Privacy is not broad enough to cover access to public information as long as the information is truthful and accurate."

Troubles continue to multiply for reactor builder

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) - Times have been rough lately for J Ray McDermott & Co. Inc., the conglomerate whose Babcock & Wilcox Co. subsidiary built the damaged Three Mile Island nuclear power reactor near Harrisburg, Pa.

McDermott already was plagued by a lengthy decline in profits from its sizable oilfield construction business. Then former chairman Charles L. Graves, who stepped down March 2 because of "medical problems," pleaded no contest in a federal court March 30 to conspiracy and fraud

The charges were related to an investigation of price-fixing in the offshore oilfield construction industry. McDermott, a leader in the industry, earlier had pleaded no contest to a conspiracy charge and was fined $1 million.

The Three Mile Island plant was damaged by an accident March 28 that sent radiation into the surrounding area and brought threats of a "melt-down," the worst possible disaster at an atomic reactor. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has said three separate human errors contributed significantly to the failure.

The NRC said it has no immediate plan to close the seven other Babcock & Wilcox atomic power plants in other states, athough it is sending inspectors to them.

Things haven't been all bad for Babcock & Wilcox, which has a healthy business building coal-fired power plants. And McDermott — despite the legal troubles and a pessimistic profit outlook - easily raised $150 million on Wall Street on March 21.

Some of that went to pay bills McDermott ran up two years ago, when it spent $748 million in cash and stock - and outbid conglomerate United Technologies Corp. — to buy Babcock & Wilcox.
Until 1977, McDermott's business was the construction of offshore oil and gas production platforms and underwater pipelines. But offshore drilling activities worldwide have slackened while competition for the remaining business has

As a result, earnings from oilfield construction "have been deteriorating very sharply for the past 18 months to two years," said analyst Michael L. Gordon at the brokerage house of L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin.

Although government action this year may spur the oildrilling business, and give a boost to oilfield builders, McDermott has been counting on the 112-year-old Babcock & Wilcox to ease its profit squeeze.

So far. McDermott's expectations have come true. Babcock & Wilcox has performed well, analysts say, largely because of earnings from sales of coal-fired power plants, nuclear systems for Navy ships and oil-well tubing.

Its commercial nuclear power plant business may be less profitable, although exact figures have not been disclosed. McDermott's new chairman, John D. Ritchie, and chief executive officer, James E. Cunningham, were unavailable for comment despite requests for interviews.

At the brokerage house of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., analyst Jeffrey Freedman estimated the atomic power stations provide only a small portion of McDermott's profits today and will not make "a substantial contribu-

Government has no immediate plans to close nuclear plants

The government has no immediate plan to close nuclear power stations because of the accident at the Three Mile Island reactor in Pennsylvania. Critics say, however, that such a move is long overdue.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission received a detailed preliminary report Wednesday that said human error as well as technical and possibly design problems were "major contributing factors" to the accident near Harrisburg.

President Carter, who has promised a "thorough inquiry" into the accident, is considering forming a presidential commission to look into the accident.

He is expected to outline details of his plan in a nationwide energy address tonight.

Regulation of lay midwives source of controversy

By SOLL SUSSMAN

AP Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lay midwives who deliver thousands of Texas babies each year may be endangering lives through lack of knowledge, the House Committee on Health Services was told Wednesday.

"This is a profession where a majority of them are in their late 50s and 60s," said Arthur Munoz, a Texas Department of Human Resources investigator.

"They feel that they know it all. They learn a lot of it along the way, he said. "How many babies and children are injured while they get that experience?

Government owes bill

DELLE, Utah (AP) - The Delle Motel and Cafe, closed last week when it was unable to pay its power bill because of the large tab built up by its biggest customer — the federal government — is back in business with lights and heat on.

The Delle couldn't pay Utah Power & Light Co. its $2,000 because the Bureau of Land Management hadn't paid its $5,500 tab.

But Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, stepped in and had his staff make a few phone calls. Utah Power agreed to resume service with a guarantee to be paid when the government funds are received and the BLM and Bureau of Reclamation said checks would be issued this week, Hatch

The BLM lodged work crews from the Young Adult Conservation Corps at the motel, and they ate at the cafe. Unfortunately for the Delle's owners, the BLM takes awhile to pay its

Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, has introduced a bill to allow the State Health Department to provide some regulation and establish a voluntary training program for lay midwives.

Lay midwives, unlike certified nurse midwives, may not have any medical training other than knowledge passed down from mother to daughter.

Uribe said it was important that the education program remain voluntary because "coercion" could force lay midwives even farther from standard medical channels.

Dr. Ed Gibbs, an obstetrician at the University of Texas Health Services Center at San Antonio, said he thought lay midwifery was an "inferior method of human birth."

He said lay midwives, however, deliver about 9,000 babies a year in Texas, about two-thirds of them Mexican-Americans

"I think we have to deal with the problem as it exists," Gibbs said. 'The avoidance of an underground system is very important.'

The doctor said quick access to hospitals is crucial in case emergencies develop during the delivery.

spring or Easter brunch. There's no need to get up in the wee hours of the morning to prepare a tasty Orange Nut Swirl or a Raspberry Twist Kuchen. Both of these yeast breads begin with a prepared-ahead refrigerator roll dough developed in test kitchens. This dough combines all the old-fashioned flavor of a potato roll dough, with the modern day ease of a dough that rises in the refrigerator.

The instant potato flakes used in this recipe create a nice texture, while orange juice and dehydrated orange peel add to the irresistable flavor of these breads.

The two coffee cakes are easy and fun to shape, even for a beginner. Yet your guests will think you've worked for hours to create them.

The trick in preparing the Raspberry Twist Kuchen is to use a doughnut cutter. The "holes" are arranged first to form the center. Then, merely twist the doughnut-shaped pieces of dough to form figure eights which surround the center section. Small spoonfuls of raspberry jelly add the final touch.

The Orange Nut Swirl boasts a tempting filling of graham cracker crumbs, orange marmalade, and nuts. Rolled jelly-roll style, cut and

Committee OKs bill to substitute inexpensive drugs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Persons over 65 pay 25 percent of the national drug bill, and one older Texan was so excited about committee approval of a drug substitution bill that he spread the news throughout the press room.

The bill allowing the substitition of cheaper but equivalent - drugs for brand name drugs was sent to the Senate on a 6-3 vote of the human resources committee Wednesday.

The measure was worded to give physicians close control over substitutions.

Based on a survey of 60 drugs, it has been estimated that the bill could save Texans up to $22 million a year.

The rate of brandname prescribing has soared from 10 percent in 1909 to 90 percent in 1972, according to committee informaton. Witnesses for consum-

Baseball opens without umpires

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Los Angeles Times The 1979 baseball season opened in Cincinnati Wednesday with Pete Rose and Sparky Anderson heading an absentee list that also included the regular crew of four major league um-

Rose and Anderson are now employed by the Philadelphia Phillies and ABC television, respectively.

The umpires are unemployed

And it is not known when or if they will be rehired.

Fifty of the 52 previously under contract to the American and National Leagues have made a collective bid ("a blood pact," National League umpire salaries by refusing to sign for

The amateur, semipro and minor league umpires who worked the spring training exhibitions will continue to work the regular season games with some being hired on a full-time basis.

In fact, because their 1978 contracts have expired, severing official employment with the two leagues, each of the striking umpires has been notified by telegram that while he is welcome to reapply for a major league position, he cannot be guaranteed a job since a replacement may already have

NATIONAL LEAGUE president Chub Feeney said that and more in a phone interview.

"We want these people back," Feeney said, "but at this point I'm not very optimistic that anything will happen quickly. We are in the process of hiring some of the umpires who were on option last year and some who worked at Triple A and would be next in line. We will bring up people on a selective basis. We will not hire 50 minor league umpires at one sweep.' Reached at his strike office

("We prefer to call this an 'action' rather than a 'strike' or 'work stoppage' ") in Clearwater, Fla., Philadelphia attor-ney Richie Phillips, counsel to the Major League Umpires Association, said that his group is "like steel" in its determination to get "what it deserves," that all 50 "are prepared to take their lives in other directions, to face the possibility" that they will lose or have already lost "They have been abused and driven out of the game," Phillips said, "and the only thing at can change the current situation is for the owners to stand up and be counted. It is up to the owners to throw it at the league presudects, to let them know valid and just cause and should be paid a figure at least partially commensurate to their contributions. We're talking about the 50 finest umpires in the world. And no matter who they put out there, amateur umpires, or. Chaos will result."

IT'S YEARS in the minors with scant financial reward. It's an anonymity interrupted only when the crowd chants "Kill the umpire." It's six months away from home and the frustration of watching what American League umpire Dave Phillips calls "marginal players...real dogs making as much as $150,-000 a year for working 30 to 50 games while I'm working 162 and not making near that.

It's Ken Kaiser, 33, a secondyear American League umpire who thought of quitting "50,000 times" while never making more than $650 a month during 13 years in the minors.

"Just try to get an offseason job," he said: "It's murder. I was everything from a pro wrestler, to a used-car salesman, to a

Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — According to most District 5-4A track observers, the Midland Lee Rebels will have to do little more than show up here Friday to win the District 5-4A thinclad team title.

They tried to give me the team trophy Tuesday at the scratch meeting," Lee coach Sam Volpe said with a smile on his face, "but I told them we had better show up first. A lot of strange things happen in the district meet. There have been a lot of favorites that have lost in this meet. In 1975, we were favored to win the track title, and we failed to get points in five events that we were supposed to, and we ended up losing to Odessa Permian by one

AND WHILE the Rebels are predicted to easily capture this year's running, things aren't as simple in the girls division. No one really seems to know how this team run will turn out, but Midland High girls coach Helen Barton is optimistic.

"I think we have as good a shot as anyone," Barton says. "If we can come away with some points in the field events, we should stand a good chance. San Angelo scores a lot of points in the field events and we can't let them get too far out in front. Friday's action begins here at noon with the field event finals. Running preliminaries will start at 1:30 p.m., and the running finals will be under the lights

While the team titles are important, the District 5-4A meet also serves as qualification for the Region I track meet in both divisions, which will be held in Lubbock on separate weekends. Top qualifiers there will head to Austin and the state track

So, each event in the district meet is of utmost importance to all 5-4A competitors. The top two in each event will earn a regional berth.

Here is how the events stack up for the boys:

THE SHOT PUT appears to be a one man show in Lee's Jeff McCowan, who has not been beaten this year and who owns a toss of 61-2 which is better than the district mark. The second spot should belong to Midland High's David Simmons, but Lee's Herb Pearce has moved into contention by beating Simmons last week in San Angelo. Lee's Rodney Taylor and Midland High's James Lary are long-

Simmons is favored to win the discus. He owns the state's best throw of 186-11, which would be another district record. But he has slipped in recent weeks while San Angelo's Doug DeWitt has come to the front. Lee's McCowan and Brian Bricoe could also

The pole yault has been unpredictable this season, but Abilene High's Monte Hamilton is the favorite with a best of 15-2. The battle for second should be between Tim Prine and Scott Estes of Cooper, Jack Fannon of San Angelo, Terry Permenter of Permian and Jody Sessom of Lee.

Gregg Cruse of Cooper is the favorite in the long jump since Lee's Elmer Montgomery may not be able to participate because of grades. Montgomruns in the 220 and on b

Midland Lee's Jeff McCowan

for the Rebels. Sessom, Jones of Big Spring and Lee's Forrest Allen are other hopefuls for the second

San Angelo's Scott Leverett is the only real talent in the high jump. He has a 6-4 this year. The second place berth will be wide open.

THE 220 should be one of the best matchups of the day when Cooper's Charles Rainey takes on Dwight Washington. Washington won the only meeting between the two, but Rainey has the fastest season mark of 21.46. Washington has a 21.9. Midland Eddie Gullien, Big Spring's Mark Evans and Lee's ground Mark Landers will fight for points while hoping one The 3 of the top two falters.

In the 100, Rainey appears to be the class of the field with a 9.5 this year while Robnett looks good for Permian's Glenn Kennedy have all been under 40 second. Robnett has a 9.8 this year. Taylor, Landers seconds. Leverett's best of 38.7 makes him a slight and Cooper's Billy Anderson also look strong in the battle for third.

Lee's Phil Carleton is the defending 440 champion, but even a repeat regional berth may be hard to come by this year. Gullien has a 49.1, Ray Crumley of Permian a 49.3 and Cooper's Ricky Thompson a 49.4. Carleton stands at 49.66, but has beaten Crumley this

The 880 looks like a three man race between San has a 3:20.6 this year, but has not beat Lee. Angelo's Frank Rodriquez (1:57.07), Lee's Arthur Pertile (1:59.0) and Odessa High's John Herrera Lee's Gary Butler and Midland High's Gene Tuttle with Montgomery in the field. Cooper could give a also hope for points in this event.

Midland High's David Simmons

the mile run title with his 4:24.2 this year. Second place is at stake between Lee's Steve Hooper, Big Spring's Kirk Davis, Abilene's Greg Carter, San Angelo's Julian Mata and Midland High's Bob

THE TWO hurdle events also promise to be exciting. In the 120 highs, Odessa's Glen Fink, San Angelo's Scott Leverett and Dennis Nolder and Cooper's Terry Simmons all have a shot at the top two spots. Midland High's Jerry Zachery would be among that list, but has missed two weeks with an High's Jeff Robnett and Billy Taylor, Abilene's injury. He will run, but he may have lost too much

The 330 hurdles could be the other classic matchup. It has been an up and down event for all 5-4A runners. Lee's Stewart Laufer, Leverett, Fink and favorite, but has been beaten by Laufer and Fink this

Lee is a solid favorite in both relays even without Montgomery. Butler, Pertile, Carleton and Washington will probably form the mile relay. With Montgomery running instead of Butler last week, the Rebels produced a 3: 16.2 in meters. They won't lose enough with Butler to make any difference. Permian

LANDERS, SESSOM, Carleton and Washington (1:59.7). Herrera may run in the mile, however. are also favored in the sprint relay. Lee owns a 42.15

Fairbanks wants to run

Chuck Fairbanks finally arrives.

DENVER (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks, arriving 3½ months late for his introductory press conference before the Denver media, said he was going to work immediately to establish a solid running attack which he promised would bring championshipcaliber football to the University of Colorado.

"You can mark this down - we will win," he said Wednesday. "I don't know how long it will take, but we'll get it done.

Last December, Fairbanks decided to break his contract with the New England Patriots and become Colorado's new head coach, but protracted legal difficulties blocked that move.

Finally, a settlement was reached Monday in which a CU booster club agreed to pay the Patriots $200,000, Fairbanks agreed to waive $105,000 in deferred compensation owed him by the Patriots, and the National Football League team dropped all pending legal action against Fairbanks and the university.

CHARLES BREGA, an attorney representing Athletic Director Eddie Crowder in the dispute, disclosed that the Patriots initially demanded $2 million in damages from the school even if Fairbanks remained at New England, That demand gradually was scaled down to the $200,000 figure, which Brega said approximated the Patriots' legal costs in the contract

Colorado's legal fees, which are expected to total about $50,000, are to be paid from private donations, Crowder said. "I don't think any of you can know how really pleased I am to be here," Fairbanks told reporters. He said he almost felt like apologizing to school officials for the problems created by his attempts to leave New England, where he had four years remaining on his contract. "It was my intention not to hurt anyone, to be honest in dealing with everyone," he said. "It would have been nice to have had a smooth transition. But it didn't work out that FAIRBANKS, 45, said he "fully expected things would be worked out" when he first talked with Patriots' owner William Sullivan about his decision. But Sullivan resisted the move, and the legal machinery was put into gear.

The ensuing legal hassles proved "expensive to everyone, including myself," Fairbanks said, and also hurt Colorado's recruiting efforts.

But Fairbanks said he was determined to raise the school's football program "to the top echelon in the Spring practice begins Saturday, and Fairbanks said he was eager to talk to the players.

That's all he can do now, watch, but for the man who devoted his life to the game, it's enough.

"I have no regrets, no matter what happens now. I'm 75 and I would do it all over the same way," Hubbell reflects. "I pitched in the majors until I was 43 and then Mr. (Horace) Stoneham gave me a the chance to stay in baseball working with the Giants' farm system, so I have been in baseball all my life."

After finishing high school in Oklahoma, Hubbell said, "I had no idea how much talent I might have, but I wanted to see if I could pitch in the majors. I took a job in the oil fields, because they had a baseball team that played on Sundays after we worked six days. Then I read about this league in Oklahoma, it was Class D, where they played baseball every day...and got paid for it. I decided to give it a try.

Hubbell showed up outside the gate where kids waited before and after the game and the manager "just tried to chase every one home.

"All I want is a chance to pitch batting practice," Hubbell pleaded with the manager. Hubbell was persistent enough so that the manager finally gave him a chance, just to get rid of him. Carl did well and earned a contract. The next year he was with Oklahoma City in the old Western League.

"There were no farm systems in those days to baby a prospect up through the ranks. If you were good enough, the owner sold you to a higher league. That's how he made his

After two years at Oklahoma City, the Detroit Tigers took Hubbell to spring training two years in a row. "I never threw a pitch for Detroit in two springs. I guess they looked at me and decided I wasn't a prospect." The Tigers finally used up their options on Hubbell and he wound up in the Texas League and eventually went to the Giants.

It was in the Texas League that Hubbell developed his famous screwball, the pitch that made righthanders realize that there had to be a better way to make a living than hitting against lefthanders. We had two pitchers. Joe Brown was a big hard thrower and there was Joe Thomas, a pitcher who didn't seem to have that much stuff, but always wound up in the win column. I decided that's where I wanted to be and watched him to figure out how he

"What Thomas had was a fast ball that sank low and away from righthanders. They'd try to pull the ball on him, but wound up as easy outs,"

Hubbell recalls. "That's when I began fooling around with the screwball, a pitch that breaks down and away from righthanders, who loved to hit against lefties because the curve broke toward them. I had good control and wasn't afraid to use it when I was behind. It wasn't a difficult pitch for me to master, I guess because I had loose, flexible wrists and was able to turn the ball over. Someone with tight wrists wouldn't be bable to get the snap that would make the pitch rotate properly."

OF COURSE, the rest is history...253 victories in the majors, 36 shutouts, five 20-victory seasons and, naturally, the Hall of Fame in 1947.

Hubbell says yes, he remembers his mid-summer visit to Midland in 1975 and that trivia question over the PA about his All-Star whiff feat. "The young man got carried away and blurted out the answer as soon as he finished the question," he grinned.

Hubbell's feat of fanning Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in order remains unmatched in All-Star Game

While Hubbell no longer is in charge of the Giants' farm system, his baseball judgement is still respected and the afternoons in the hot Arizona sun at the minor league complexes, the major league exhibitions or even the college and high school games in the Valley of the Sun are not wasted. The Giants take advantage of his observa-

It's strange, but as one chats with Hubbell, it is difficult to realize he is recovering from a serious stroke. You look for signs and suspect something now and then, but only because you are looking for telltale signs. They really aren't that evident.

"The worst thing," says Hubbell as he walks away from the field with deliberate steps after the game, "is that I have to think about everything I do. Nothing comes natural.'

Somehow there's still the hint of the persistent kid hanging around outside the gate, looking for a tryout. Carl may be on "borrowed time", but he doesn't act like a guy who's ready to toss his glove in the dugout and head for the shower.

Chicago Black Hawks goalie Mike Veisor stops shot on goal, but has to duck quickly to avoid teammate Tom Lysiak, who rushes in to help out in NHL game. (AP Laserphoto)

Montreal superstar Guy Lafleur let his temper get the best of him while the Canadiens were getting the best of the Detroit Red Wings.

Sun Devils pace golf

HOUSTON (AP) - Arizona State has the top team and individual going into today's second round of the 25th All American Intercollegiate golf tournament at Atascocita Country Club. The Sun Devils' Scott Watkins blasted a six-under-par 66 Wednesday to tie for top individual honors with Fred Couples of the University of Houston after one round of the 72-hole tournament. Following Watkins and Couples were John McGough of North Carolina and Greg Young of the University of Texas, who each had 67s. Only 18 of the 150 golfers entered in the tournament bettred par, with six equalling the mark.

Watkins performance, along with those of teammates Dan Croonquist (69), Tom Gray (73) and Dan Forsman (74), lifted Arizona State to a 282, two strokes better than second-place Houston's 284. Team scores are decided by taking the top four scores of the five members playing each day. New Mexico was third at 286 and Oklahoma State was fourth at 287, while Georgia and North Carolina were tied for fifth at 288.

Rounding out the top 11 teams were Florida and Texas (289); Texas Christian and Texas A&M (293); and Rice (296).

Challenge-relishing Rosenbloom 'too young'

By JIM MURRAY

Los Angeles Times Syndicate Carroll Rosenbloom did not go gen-tly into that good night. He died as he had lived, raging against the dying of the light, challenging overwhelming forces, no doubt surprised and hurt he was losing. Not for him any wan and palely loitering. I'll bet it was a helluva fight.

What other 72-year-old man would challenge five-foot seas alone, unafraid, and plunge into surf that would broach a lifeboat?

A man that lusty is too young to die no matter what his chronological age, but Rosenbloom relished challenge.

He was a complex man. He had the fierce eyes of a Tartar on horseback, the pugnacious jaw of an Irish cop, and the build of a light-heavyweight prizefighter.

He was a vain man. He would comb his thinning locks forward like a Julius Caesar. He was a "Gimme the damn ball" halfback in football and pitcher in baseball.

He was aggressive. He loved contention. If there were two ways to do a thing, he chose the way with the most

He was thin-skinned. Or pretended to be. He would seize on the most miniscule detrimental writing as a frontal attack, probably on the theory that massive retaliation for pin pricks would forestall a broadsword assault later. The Allies could have used the theory pre-Hitler. When he urged this writer to "say something nice" about the then-new Ram coach, Chuck Knox, I wrote that, "Well, he has the bluest eyes in the NFL," Carroll reacted as if I had ransacked his bedroom. He dropped leaflets. He served notice you are in for a fight if you so much as crossed his border

HE CONCEIVED the function of the press, generally, or again pretended to, as that of a fifth man in the Rams - or Colts - backfield. He knew better - some of his best friends were the most liberal in Washington - but figured a scrimmage line was no place to be hampered by principle.

By any yardstick, he was pro football's leading ground gainer. The family rag business, which was good enough to put him through prep school and the Ivy League, and dates with cafe society's most promising beauties, took a quantum jump when it supplied uniforms to the U.S. Army in World War II, probably the world's biggest single garment contract.

He was at pains to conceal the rough underside of his personality. He affected a slow, professorial manner of speaking, which gave you the impression you were listening to a Ciceronian oration instead of a guy who had made a killing in football.

And a killing he made. The Baltimore Colts franchise was handed to him on a salver in 1953 by the then commissioner of football, Bert Bell. Rosenbloom had played football under Bell at Penn and Bert was looking for a doorstep on which to land the orphaned Dallas Texans franchise, a gypsy band of footballers which wore cowboy hats on the street but played all of its games on the road out of Hershey, Pa.

The club had $300,000 in the till from preseason ticket sales before Rosenbloom took over. All he had to do was underwrite potential future losses.

THERE NEVER were any. The Colts got Johnny Unitas for an 80-cent phone call and, 19 years later, Rosenbloom persuaded an Illinois refrigeration magnate, Robert Irsav, to buy the Los Angeles Rams out of probation for $19 million and trade them to him for the Baltimore Colts.

scored 30 points for the Rockets.

Rosenbloom thus got to Hollywood and Bel-Air, where he always hankered to be, and without paying capital gains taxes on an investment that went from no dollars all the way to $19

Like many trigger-tempered people, he was capable of great forgiveness. When he was blackballed by an elitist country club in Los Angeles, he forbade aides to quit in protest, recognizing that the rejection was not based on anti-Semitism so much as on vengeance from burned business competitors. "Besides, he might want to move the club to Anaheim," a member quipped.

His move to Anaheim was considered pure chutzpah by some critics, but Rosenbloom wanted a football franchise the way Vanderbilt wanted a yacht — as a place to entertain his friends, as a social entree. His dream

There is still plenty of distance between NBC and frontrunning ABC — and No.2 CBS, for that matter. ABC's rating for the week was 20.2, with CBS just over a point behind at 18.9.

An estimated 18 million people watched Michigan State defeat Indiana State in the NCAA championship basketball game, and nearly as many saw the opening chapter in a four-part rebroadcast of Franco Zeffirelli's dramatization of the life of Jesus Christ. But neither show could crack Nielsen's Top 10.

His paintings have no message

By BETH MOHR Copley News Service

Gino Hollander looked at a painting he named for his daughter, Lisa, and said:

'She could be my daughter, or your daughter or anybody's daughter. I make no demands about the faces I paint and I have no stories to tell.'

Lisa's expression is decidedly pensive and gentle tints establish her youth, but those who look at her will form their own opinions of the depth and direction of her thoughts.

The desire to get behind the girl's mood is almost irresistible. This quality of making the viewer a part of what is going on in the canvas is typical of Hollander's captivating paintings and drawings.

Lisa's father probably knows her as well, or better, than many parents know their children. Hollander, his wife, Barbara, and their five children left the United States to live in Spain in 1962.

Their home in the quiet countryside near Torremolinos, Andalusia, is where he paints and where the children were educated until time for "We sent them to schools back here because they have to learn about the world and their country, but we had them 24 hours a day for 15 years and we wouldn't change a minute of it," Hollander said. Lisa is a junior at Barnard; Siri, 18, is a sculptress working in Spain; Jim, 28, is a photographer specializing in Paleolithic wall paintings discovered in caves, and Scott, 16, is preparing for college. The Hollanders lost a son of 24; he died four years ago. "The children were involved with us," Hollander said. "We shared trips and interests. If they wanted to stay up until 1 or 1:30 in the morning, that was all right with us. But, we never pushed them into careers. We never said, 'Hey, do this.' We want them to do whatever makes them happiest.'

Hollander, 53, didn't begin working at what he liked best until 13 years ago. Before he began painting at 40, he and his wife were filmmakers in

"I did documentary and art films that made pretensions of having something to say, but they didn't satisfy me," he said. "You have to like working with crowds of people and putting at least three months into making one film. I didn't. "A painting takes, maybe, an hour and what happens is between me and the canvas. I am in love

His style has been tagged abstract impressionism and he has been called "one of the first of the new figuration painters." Whatever the labels, his works command emotional response in the United States and Europe. That is what he wants.

"In a world filled with emotion, emotion in art

His paintings are filled with affection, sadness, happiness, quiet. He prefers the gentle to overpowering moods.

"I don't want to use art for screaming. What's the matter with the other emotions. I've had my screaming times too but there is still hope.

"I hear the ringing of a little bell and a shepherd with 50 sheep passes by. That gives you a good feeling. I am riding and the horse stumbles. That shoots a little adrenaline. A letter arrives from one of the kids. ..

And, sometimes the memory that one child will never write?

Black and gray tones add age and a mood of mourning to one of Hollander's most-moving protraits. Slashes of color lend a feeling of expectation to another.

Of the latter, Hollander said: "To me, it says something about what has been and what is in the future. To someone else, it will say something different.' In his painting, "Figures In Harmony," the harmony is unquestionable. Figures touch affectionately and are more strongly linked by a flow color. But, they have no age and belor to no specific place or era - except that given by the While subtle color places the emphasis on soft moods in many of the paintings, a vibrant sunset sky gives bright color the lead in one seascape. Then, the pale gray sea begins to captivate. The water is as weightless as the air.

Everything Hollander puts on canvas is done with ease and freedom. He refuses to force an idea or a

"If you think about a painting too much, it becomes a head thing. When you try to think it through you lose the emotional thing. If I work for half an hour and feel I am losing what I want, I put it aside. I can come back later and find it.

"I push the paint around and can see it start to happen. Everyone has something to say and this is one way of saying it. I have been painting long enough to know it is going to come out if I let it."

Hollander has a kind of reverence for the ancient ability of art to communicate.

"We have gone into some of the caves to see the Paleolithic drawings photographed by my son. They tell us about the way man lived 15,000 to 30,000 years ago. We can learn about some of the earliest things we had because one of those things was art.

"Cave drawings not only tell us something, they are beautiful. I looked at one drawing of a pregnant woman and her face might have been done by Modigliani."

Hollander recognizes and responds to man's

Buchanan dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Character actor Edgar Buchanan, known to millions as the irascible Uncle Joe on the "Petticoat Junction" television show, has died at age 76 from complications after brain surgery, a spokesman for Eisenhower Memorial Hospital said.

The portly Buchanan, who appeared in dozens of movie westerns, had been in a coma for six weeks. He died at 5:50 a.m. Wednesday as a result of the prolonged coma, complicated by pneumonia and a stroke, spokesman John Millrany said.

Buchanan contracted meningitis and a severe case of pneumonia following surgery Jan. 29. The operation was to remove a tube placed in his brain four years ago to help circulation of spinal fluids, Millrany said. A stroke last week further weakened the aging actor.

The gravelly-voiced Buchanan became one of Hollywood's most succcessful supporting actors after giving up dentistry at age 38. Usually cast as a likable rogue, he had appeared in more than 80 movies and 150 television dramas before landing the role of Uncle Joe in the "Petticoat Junction" series on CBS in the 1960s

Day of deaths described by former prison hostage

HOUSTON (AP) - A former teacher in the Texas Prison System, who was held a hostage for 11 days during a siege by three inmates in 1974, told a jury Wednesday of the final day when four persons were killed in an escape attempt that failed.

Ronald Robinson, now a professor of criminal justice at East Tennesse State University; testified he heard "shouting, the screaming, and the shooting"as hostages and inmates pushed a homemade shield down a ramp at a prison unit called The Walls.

Robinson said he did not know who fired the shots but "they sounded close and were muffled."

He was the second prosecution witness in the retrial of Ignacio Cuevas, accused of causing the death of a hostage.

Cuevas was convicted in the spring of 1975 and sentenced to death. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted him a new trial, after he spent four years on death row, on the ground the presiding judge at the first trial had erred when he failed to disqualify a juror.

Robinson said none of the hostages was physicially abused during the longest siege in U.S. penal history. Using a shield of chalkboards, lawbooks, and hostages, the three inmates attempted to escape from the prison but were met by a blast of bullets and the stinging stream of high pressure fire hoses. Two convicts, Fred Carrasco and Rudolpho Dominques, were shot to

Two hostages, Julia Standley and Elizabeth Beseda, were shot to During Wednesday's session the jury was dismissed and Robinson testified that on the last day Mrs. Standley, a prison librarian, had told him, "Ron, tonight you can sleep in your own bed again.

Robinson said he answered, "Julia, you have never been more beauti-

She was dead a few minutes later. State District Judge Miron Love refused to permit the statements to be heard by the jury. After the Wednesday proceedings that lasted only a half day, prosecutors indicated additional hostage survivors will be called to testify.

80-story building nixed

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston will have to be satisfied at least for a while that the 75-story building now under construction will be its tallest structure.

A Federal Aviation Administration ruling has canceled possible plans to increase the El Paso Tower in Texas Commerce Plaza to 80 stories.

Ansel Windham, FAA area coordinator, said the 75-story limit is needed to protect traffic patterns for the two major airports in Houston and 17 satellite fields that operate through the control tower at Houston Intercontinental.

Anything higher than 998.50 feet above the ground and 1,049 feet above sea level would threaten takeoff and landing patterns, Windham said. He said builders could exceed such standards but would then be fully liable in case of an air disaster.

The El Paso Tower will be 998.50 feet above the ground and 1,107 above sea level.

Originally planned for 70 stories, developers added another five stories last month, attributing the change to heavy demand for lease space.

Ben Love, Texas Commerce Bancshares chairman, said another possible increase to 80 stories is being canceled to stay within the safety guidelines.

The 50-story One Shell Plaza is now Houston's tallest structure, 949 feet above sea level and 899 feet above the ground.

Compensation bill meets with setback

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The House dealt a possibly fatal blow Wednesday to a bill allowing large businesses to pay for their employees' on-the-job injuries instead of buying workers compensation insurance. A 76-59 vote postponed floor action on the bill (HB438) until May 4 against the wishes of the sponsor, Rep. Don Henderson, R-Houston.

The postponement means the bill would have only about three weeks to complete its trip through the legislative process before the lawmaking session ends May 28. Henderson's bill, a major legislative goal of the

with a $4 million annual payroll to drop their workers compensation coverage and become "self-The TAB repeatedly goes before the Stae Insurance Board in opposition to rising workers comp premiums, which now total about $1 bilion a year in Henderson sought a one-week delay in the bill because, he said, "we are trying to come to an agreement among the parties interested in this legislation." He said it was intertwined with another bill that would attempt to deal with the product liability "crisis" by making it harder for injured consumers to win suits against manufacturers.

Trial lawyers are against both bills. But Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, a lawyer, moved for the delay to May 4, saying, "if they are trying to reach a compromise, a week is not enough time. This is a major piece of legislation that will affect millions of workers in the state of Texas.

Trial lawyers, who handle contested workers com-pensation cases for a fee of one-fourth the benefits, strongly oppose the bill. Opponents maintain an injured worker would be reluctant to sue his or her employer for adequate compensation for an injury. Bush said the bill would "set up a dual system of workers compensation, one for giant corporations and the other for small businesses."

Bills to control open trucks referred to Senate committee

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Ever get peeved because your auto windshield has tiny holes from gravel flying from those big open trucks lumbering along ahead of you?

Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston says he is — the windshields of both his cars are peppered — as he brought up an old issue of requiring truckers to cover open trucks with tarpaulins while hauling loose materials.

Schwartz argued before the Senate Economic Development Committee on behalf of his SB 84 which would require vehicles hauling loose material to be covered by canvas, tarps or similar covering. His legislation would have teeth: a fine of up to $2,000 and-or a jail term of up to a year for a third or subsequent conviction for violating the law. His bill would also require the violater to pay treble damages to the injured party if the law wasn't complied with.

A host of industry representatives appeared to testify against Schwartz' bill and another "loose gravel bill" by Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston. The Ogg bill is like Schwartz' except it doesn't contain the penalties.

Both Schwartz and Ogg said existing laws regulating open trucks hauling loose materials are not being Schwartz presented committee members with a sheaf of newspaper clippings and editorials citing the problems and damages caused by flying gravel on Texas highways. He reminded the committee he tried unsuccessfully two years ago to get a similar law passed. He accused fellow senators of being relucant "to offend anybody who owns or drives a truck."

It costs less, Schwartz said, for a trucker to cover his truck with a tarpaulin than the costs of replacing a single broken auto windshield.

A 1971 law, which witnesses agreed was not being adequately enforced by the Department of Public Safety, calls for open trucks to not be filled with loose material to higher than six inches below the top.

Wayne King, representing the American Automobile Assn., said there is widespread public support for the Schwartz-Ogg legislation. "We have problems all over the state with sand and gravel and trash and garbage," he said. "The problem concerns safety as well as the environment."

Industry spokesman argued that a $5 per load surcharge for tarpaulin-covered transports imposed by the Texas Railroad Commission, and other costs that would have to be incurred, would cost the industry millions of additional dollars every years. These costs, the witnesses said, would be passed on to consumers.

Tom Johnson, representing the Texas heavy-highway branch of Associated General Contractors, said member-contractors build 95 percent of the state's new highways. He said requiring tarps would cost his contractors a total of $11 million a year.

Since present contracts are already awarded, the contractors would have to pick up the tab for the additional costs the first year. From then on, Johnson said, the costs would be passed on to the taxpayers.

The Ogg and Schwartz bills were sent to a subcommittee.

Field classed as major reservoir

HOUSTON (AP) - A Chinese geologist has placed the Gudao field near the mouth of the Yellow River among the world's largest oil fields.

Wang Ping, a senior geologist for the China National Oil and Gas and Exploration and Development Co., said Gudao reserves approximate 700 million barrels.

Wang made the disclosure while participating in a symposium on new giant oilfields during the 64th meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. The three-day meeting ended Wednesday.

Wang later pleaded confidentiality while declining to give newsmen additional details about Gudao which was discovered in 1968 and placed on production in 1971.

Geologists classify giant fields as those capable of producing at least 100 million barrels of oil or 1 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Fields in the Middle East, North Africa or Asiatic Russia, however, can gain such a classification only if believed capable of producing 500 million barrels of oil or 3 trillion cubic feet of gas.

T.A. Fitzgerald, Exxon Corp. exploration advisor, said 288 giant fields were discovered during the 11 years ending with 1977.

Moran well completes

HOUSTON - Moran Bros., Inc., Itoday announced the completion of its No. 1 Porter in the West Yukon field, Canadian, County, Okla. The operator finaled the well in the Mississippian-Hunton zone from 8,594 to 9,170 feet and in the Skinner-Oswego section from 8,160 to 8,282 feet. On the 24-hour potential test on the Mississippian-Hunton, the well flowed 334 barrels of oil, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,272-1, on a 14/64-inch choke. Flowing tubing pressure was 425 pounds. No water was produced with the gas and oil. From the Skinner-Oswego, the well flowed 100 barrels of oil on the 24-hour potential test through a 24/64-inch choke. The gas-oil ratio is 4,550-1 and the flowing tubing pressure is 475 pounds. Moran Exploration, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Moran Bros., is the operator of the well and owns a 38.5 percent working interest. Other working interest owners are ABT-Windfohr Oil Co. of Fort Worth and William Moss Properties of Dallas. Moran has completed two other wells in the area and two more are in the process of being completed.

Coal yield Most of gasoline cost may triple Gold Most of buy crude goes to buy crude

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) - When you're pulling out your wallet to pay the ever-higher price of gasoline, ever wonder where all that money goes?

Who is getting the lion's share of that 72 cents American motorists pay on the average for each gallon of gasoline? How much of it goes to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries? What is the profit for the oil companies? And how much does the guy who is pumping the gas make off each gallon?

Most oil companies and gasoline analysts are reluctant to hazard even the vaguest of guesses about what percentage of the price of a gallon

And those who will, point out that generalizing the percentages is difficult because taxes vary from state to state, dealer profit margins differ, and the cost of the crude oil used to make gasoline depends on whether the oil comes from a foreign or a domestic well

But a composite of several estimates of how gasoline costs break down goes something like this:

The biggest chunk of the cost - the 72-cent figure is a basic average for all types of gasoline - goes to pay for the oil from which the gasoline is made. This portion is bigger for some companies than others because some, like Mobil and Exxon rely more heavily on foreign oil, which is more expensive than domestic petroleum. But on the average, about 45 percent, or more than 32 cents, of the cost of a gallon of gasoline is for the basic ingredient — crude oil.

The second largest component in the price of gasoline is federal, state and local excise taxes. These vary from locality to locality and state to state, but in general, account for 20 percent, or more than 14 cents, of the cost of a gallon of gas.

Gasoline dealers are the next to dip their hands into the income from the sale of the fuel. By law, their profits from the sale of a gallon of gas are limited to those of May 1973 - before

Fuel shortage idles tractors

COTTLE COUNTY AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Farmers and oil distributors agreed Tuesday there is a shortage of diesel fuel in some areas of Texas and the nearest available supply may be several hundred miles away.

"We've got tractors sitting in the field and they can't run because there is no fuel," Dale Glasson, Farmland Industries Inc., told a special subcommittee of the Texas Energy Advisory Council. He estimated about 15,-000 farmers are affected in the West Texas area.

Glasson estimated there was a 12 percent shortage in March. "There is a shortage from one end of West Texas to the other," he said.

Bill Nelson, Texas Wheat Producers Board, said there were no wheat farmers needing diesel now but he estimated the need for deisel d; uring the June and July harvest season would more than double last Carl King, Texas Corn Growers Association, said corn, milo and cotton growers are faced by the "biggest pinch" at the present time.

Nick Murphy of the Governor's Office of Energy Allocation said fuel dealers are required to set aside 4 percent of the diesel they get for emergency needs. His office is now taking emergency requests for diesel fuel and in turn will notify farmers where they can get the fuel.

several hundred miles away, said. "I do not believe we can find a convenient dealer in West Texas. I do believe we can find it somewhere in the Arab oil embargo upset petroleum markets - plus three cents for infla-

But because this rule is not very tightly enforced, some dealers are taking a penny or so more in profit these days. The reason for that is the current tight supply of gasoline. With less gasoline to sell, dealers are pushing the profit margin up as high as they can in an attempt to keep their income the same while selling less Analysts say, however, that the highly competitivee nature of the gasoline business - even with supplies tight — is limiting this sort of price gouging to about a penny a gallon at the most. In many cases, dealers are still operating below the profit ceiling set by the government, because if they do not, they cannot stay competitive in their market. So on the average, dealer profit margins are running a bit above 9 cents a gallon — about 13 percent of the total. Before gasoline can be sold, it must be created from its crude-oil source, and that accounts for about 12 percent of the total cost of a gallon of gas, or not quite 9 cents. That goes to pay for refining, storage and transportation.

And the price of refining is going up, because of the Department of Energy's recent decision to allow a "tilt" in refining costs - meaning that refiners can pass on more of their costs to gasoline customers rather than to customers of other fuels. The tilt regulation will add about a nickel to gasoline prices this year. The purpost of the tilt is to encourage production of unleaded gasoline, which in the past few years has risen from almost nowhere to a third of the market because of federal regulations requiring that most new cars have anti-pollution catalytic converters that burn only unleaded fuel. Unleaded gas is more expensive to produce than gas with lead, because when lead is not used as a performance additive, gasoline must be refined much more carefully to reach an equivalent quality.

Once produced, gasoline must be marketed, and the factors involved in this - advertising, accounting, credit-card bookkeeping and others - eat up 7 percent, or about 5 cents, of the price of a gallon of gas.

And if the gas is successfully marketed by the oil company, the results are reflected in profits - which are about 3 percent of what motorists pay at the pump, or 2 cents a gallon.

Laetrile's record offers little hope

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read occasionally about claims that Laetrile can help cancer patients. Is there any evidence to the contrary?-Mrs. M.H.

Dear Mrs. H .: There is much more evidence of cancer patients who used Laetrile and were not helped by it than there is of successful treatment with the drug. In response to a nationwide appeal to physicians and patients to report anyone who has been helped by Laetrile, the National Cancer Institute received only 22 records of patients it could use for a retrospective study. Of these 22 patients, seven were found to have progressive malignancy while on Laetrile, and nine had stabilized. Only two patients were judged to have responded completely, and four

On the other hand, about 220 physicians responded by volunteering information on more than one thousand patients who had not benefited at all from Laetrile therapy. A controlled clinical study of Laetrile has been proposed. Dear Dr. Solomon: Our son has been diagnosed as a hyperkinetic child. Since he was placed on medication, his behavior, both at home and in school, has become much easier to deal with. We are wondering whether the condition is something he will outgrow, or is he destined to be a partially.

hyperactive adolescent and adult?-Mr. and Mrs. M.H. Dear Mr. and Mrs. H.: Symptoms of hyperactivity tend to decrease with the onset of adolescence. However, if there are perceptual-motor or learning disabilities, these tend to persist and may even be aggravated by the additional stresses of adolescence.

Many adults who were hyperactive as children report high levels of "nervous energy" or "a need to keep busy;" still others continue to show a low tolerance for frustration, distractibility and lack of coordination. The crucial determinants seem to be how successfully the child was taught to monitor his own behavior, and how well his home and school environment were managed.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If a woman uses a vaginal douche after sex, will it kill the VD germs?—Candy T.

Dear Candy T.: If a woman douches immediately after sexual intercourse, the chances of contracting VD are lessened. Nevertheless, women who are suspicious of contracting VD should be examined by a physician. The examination will include a blood test and a smear test examinations of fluids from the female sex organs. Dear Dr. Solomon: Both my wife and I have sickle cell trait. What is the chance that we will pass it on to our children?-Mr. A.B. Dear Mr. A.B.: The chances are two in four that each child of a man and a woman who both have the trait will have the trait just like its parents; one in four that the child will have the serious form of the disease known as sickle cell anemia; and one in four that the child will have no form of the disease at all.

Others' smoke very harmful

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A cancer researcher has told members of a House committee to think about cigarette smoke the next time they wake up with red eyes, stuffy nose and a cough after a night on the

Dr. Carmault Jackson Jr. of The University of Texas Health Center at Houston said Wednesday studies have shown a non-smoking passenger in a train's club car has inhaled in one hour as many carcinogens as if he had smoked 17 to 35 ciga-

"We're talking about the sidestream smoke, the smoke that you inhale as a non-smoker," he told the House Committee on Health Services.

A bill to close "a lot of exceptions and loopholes" in the 1975 no-smoking law was sent to subcommittee

Armadillo dealers beware

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - House members planned to vote final passage today on a bill making criminals of people who sell skunks and armadillos.

The bill, by Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, advanced on a voice vote Wednesday.

Hollowell's bill provides penalties of up to a $1,000 fine and 180 days in jail for selling skunks and armadillos or possessing them for sale. "We have a rabies epidemic in Texas from El Paso to the Louisiana border," Hollowell said, with skunks one of the major carriers. He said experts testified that armadillos carry leprosy. He told the House the reaction of one member of the House Environmental Affairs Committee, Rep. Ron Bird, D-San Antonio, to the testimony

'Mr. Bird ... was a consumer of armadillo meat. He had an icebox full. He has emptied that icebox since hearing that testimony," Hollowell said as the House guffawed.

United talks collapse

WASHINGTON (AP) - Contract negotiations between United Airlines and striking machinists are collapsed after only one day, apparently ruling out any chance for a swift end to the 6-day walkout that has grounded the nation's largest air carrier.

Sources close to the talks said late Wednesday that company representatives flatly rejected contract proposals made by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers as negotiations resumed under the auspices of federal mediators.

Company bargainers, who did not meet union representatives face to face, were said to have left the Washington hotel where negotiations were being held for Chicago, where United is headquartered.

More than 18,000 union members struck the airline Saturday, two days after a rebellious union rank and file rejected a tentative accord worked out by nego-

Flynt charge dismissed

CINCINNATI (AP) - A state appeals court has dismissed an organized crime charge against Larry Flynt and opened the door for a new trial on a pandering of obscenity charge against the Hustler magazine owner.

The 1st Ohio District Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that prosecutors could seek a new trial on the pandering obscenity charge. But the court unanimously threw out the organized crime charge, citing a companion decision that concludes parts of the state's organized crime statutes are vague and unconstitutional

Flynt's trial here in February 1977 attracted national attention when a jury convicted him on both charges. He was sentenced to 7 to 25 years in prison

Diggs charged by House

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Charles Diggs, already appealing his federal court conviction on 29 counts of mail fraud and filing falsified payroll forms, must now defend himself against a congressional committee's charges that he violated House rules.

The House ethics committee Wednesday accused Diggs, the senior black member of Congress, of 18 violations of the chamber's rules. That action opens the way to a possible "trial" of the Michigan Democrat by the panel and subjects him to the possibility he could eventually be punished by the full House.

BART resuming service

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The Bay Area Rapid Transit district is resuming trans-bay service to Oakland after an 11-week shutdown that followed a fatal fire in an underwater train tube.

The state Public Utilities Commission, warning it would keep a close watch on the transit system, decided at an emergency meeting Wednesday that service could resume.

Science panel urges physicians to prescribe fewer sleep aids

WASHINGTON (AP) - Doctors should strictly limited numbers and for short periods of time. limit sleeping pill prescriptions and better warn their patients of the medications' potential health hazards, a National Academy of Sciences panel

The panel, in a report published today, said sleeping pills normally should be prescribed only in

'Prisoners' held over

"The Prisoners of Second Avenue," now on stage at Theatre Midland, has been held over for one additional performance Friday at 8:30 p.m. The trials and tribulations of life in the big city jungle is the theme of this comedy by Neil Simon. Darrell Ward plays Mel Edison, a harassed individual trying to cope with New York, being unemployed and middle aged. Coila Morrow plays his wife, Edna. The grimness of the situation does not keep

"The Prisoner of Second Avenue" from being a convulsing comedy, organizers said. Reservations may be made by calling the Theatre Midland boxoffice at 682-4111.

Physicians should rarely, if ever, prescribe the drugs to new patients for more than two to four weeks, the study said. For patients already taking sleeping pills, doctors should refrain from providing automatic refills, it said. Although the report called current practices of prescribing sleeping pills "difficult to justify," it said there is no need to ban barbiturates, as has been suggested, even if they are sometimes abused.

In 1977, 8.5 million American adults used prescription sleeping drugs, mostly barbiturates and benzo-diazepines, according to the report published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

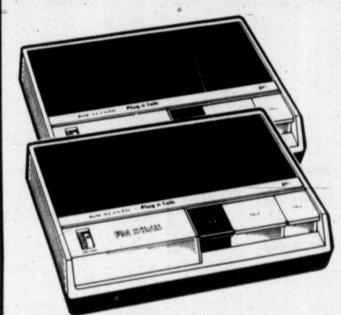

About a quarter of those used the drugs every night for two months or longer, it noted, even though there is little evidence the pills are effective beyond a few

The prescribed use of barbiturates has been declining steadily since 1970 and accounted for only 17 percent of the sleeping aid prescriptions in 1977.

The study was conducted by the academy's Institute of Medicine at the request of the White House and the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market headed higher today, showing no ill effects from the news of another sharp rise in wholesale prices. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off a fraction in early trading, was up 3.03 at 872.83 by noontime.

Gainers held a 7-5 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The government reported early today that wholesale prices of finished goods rose percent last month, making a net increase of 3.3 percent for the first quarter of the year. Fisher Foods fell 1% to 12%. The company said it had a significant decline in its first-quarter earnings, and added that recent activity in its stock might have stemmed from unfounded rumors of an impending takeover.

The NYSE's composite index rose .16 to 57.87. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.22 at 181.87.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.19 million shares at noontime, down from 20.03 million at the same point Wednesday.

BUSINESS MIRROR Small business, creator of jobs, being strangled

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Everyone seems to love small business, and well they should when they look at its record for new products and new jobs. But nobody seems to do very much for it. Rarely is its voice heard above the shouts of Big Business, Big Unions and Big Government. Sometimes it squeals in frustration, but it runs out of breath and patience, and sometimes it fights with Squeezed by the big three, it shrinks in size. Between 1950 and 1976, big firms increased their percentage of manufacturing assets to 45.5 percent from 39.7 percent, according to congressional hear-Onerous government regulatory and tax policy helped move the trend along. Government reporting requirements, for example, are said to cost some small businesses 38 times more than the very largest corporations. Labor unions haven't always been sympathetic, often applying to small enterprises the same wage standards as for giant industries, even though small business doesn't enjoy the same economies of vol-All three tend to overlook small business contributions to the economy. As put by the House Committee on Small Business last year, it is the cutting edge of competition, the innovator-inventor, the source of leadership, the entrepreneurial outlet, the job creator. "It is surprising to some that between 1969 and 1976, small businesses accounted for what can be considered virtually all the new private sector employment in this country," said the committee.

It found that while total employment rose by 9,583,000, the 1,000 largest companies accounted for only 74,897, while state and federal governments accounted for 3 million. Smaller firms employed the

Will lack of appreciation give way to support? Arthur Levitt, Jr. thinks so. Levitt is head of the American Stock Exchange, which has its share of smaller companies, but he has additional input too. As chairman of the White House Commission on Small Business, Levitt is charged with the job of picking the brains of small business people, 25,000 of them in 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Out of it, Levitt vows, will come remedial legislation: reform of taxes, government regulations, paperwork, international trade and the correction of other areas of irritation and perhaps injustice.

But why, he was asked, has small business smaller business would be the correct term, because as generally used it excludes only the 1,000 largest concerns - been unable or unwilling to state its

Based on his attendance at many of the state hearings, and on "hundreds of conversations with small-business people," the chairman reduces the various explanations to two vital ones:

1."Fear of government retribution." They fear, he said, that the government will "get even" if they shout too loudly. They fear the bigness of government, he said. They fear the "faceless bureacracy.

2."It doesn't make any difference." He believes both attitudes will change. The committee, he says, has a commitment to action from President Carter, and Levitt himself has courted the White House and Congress. He promises legisla-

Given hope and better organization, he insists, the small business lobby can become the most powerful in history. It has to be that way, he suggests, if the economy and the marketplace is to be saved.

Proposal would extend bilingual education plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A committee audience applauded Wednesday as a senator with only a passing knowledge of Spanish dashed in to cast the deciding vote on a $7 million bilingual education program.

Minutes before, a bilingual San Antonio school official had called the program "corrupt" and suggested the Senate investigate it.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, spent five minutes in Capitol corridors and rooms hunting two senators to send the bill to the floor on a 6-0 vote.

No. 6 was Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, who joined Truan, then a House member, to sponsor the original bilingual education bills in 1967. He said he knew only a little Spanish. Access to bilingual education is now mandatory through the third grade in school districts with large Spanishspeaking populations, and Truan's proposal would extend the program through grade five. Truan's last-minute amendment cut the estimated $9.1 million cost by $2 million. Truan, D-Corpus Christi, introduced his bill after the State Board of Education refused Nov. 11 to extend the program through the fifth grade. Jose Vara, the school official who was the lone witness against the bill, said he recalled speakers that day criticizing board members as "gringo racists" and demanding that "board members, their children and their children's children" be forced to learn Spanish.

"I always thought bilingual programs in Texas were designed to teach English," said Vara, director of plant operations for the South San Antonio Independent School District.

Asked by Ogg what he meant by "corrupt," Vara said, "The theory has become corrupt, not the financial Vara said the attitude of personnel in the bilingual program is, "Let's keep the program going, because it will mean more jobs for Mexican-Americans." "Ahhhhh," responded alargely

Mexican-American audience of 50 persons. Vara said 80 percent or more of the students in bilingual education speak English, and he added, "It's high time for the Senate to investigate before any more funds are expended." Truan interrupted Vara's 45-minute testimony four times, admonishing him to finish soon. He finally threatened to call him out of order if he did not finish "I thought the purpose of a committee hearing was to get evidence," said

Vara. "I want to give you all the evidence you need. Vara said he had been an elementary and secondary school teacher for 17 years in San Antonio before serving for 10 years as a principal at Kindred and Palo Alto elementary schools, also in San Antonio. "Ours is a history of educational neglect," testified Ruben Bonilla Jr., state director of the League of Latin American Citizens and one of five witnesses supporting the bill.

Bonilla said Truan's bill would "bear fruits far richer than the estimated cost.'

Judge recommends air merger bids be denied

law judge.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Civil Aeronautics Board law judge recommended Thursday that the board deny the bids of both Pan American World Airways and Texas International Airlines to merge with National Airlines

Judge William H. Dapper said either of the mergers would violate federal anti-trust laws and would not be in the public interest because they would reduce competition. The judge heard both cases in the same proceeding. Another proposal to acquire National, filed by Eastern Airlines, is being heard by a separate

The full board will make a final decision in all three cases after reviewing the records and recmmenda-

Dapper also found that Texas International had violated the Federal Aviation Act by purchasing National stock before obtaining approval of the

He said TIA should be required to divest itself of its holdings of National stock and should submit a divestiture plan on which other parties in the case can comment. Dapper found that Pan American's purchase of National stock had gained proper board approval. But he said the board might want to consider divestiture in a separate proceeding. Pan Am and TIA each own about 23 percent of National's stock, while Eastern owns a token 100 shares. National's directors last year approved a merger with Pan Am, which has offered $41 a share for the stock Eastern has offered $50 a share, and TIA has offered a combination of cash, debt securities and its own stock valued at $50 a share. Dapper said the airline deregulation act signed last October made clear that Congress "intended to establish a regulatory regime in which vigorous competition among air carriers would be the touchstone.

If several pending merger and acquisition pplications were approved, he said, several airlines would be eliminated.

"Moreover," he added, "it is reasonable to expect that board approval of the TIA and Pan American proposals would trigger an additional wave of merger applications which would further reduce the number of carriers available for the traveling public." Dapper said his conclusion that both applications violated antitrust laws was based on the finding that in both cases there would be substantial loss of actual competition in the geographic areas involved and a substantial loss of competition.

He found both an Am and TIA a potential entrants into many markets served by National.

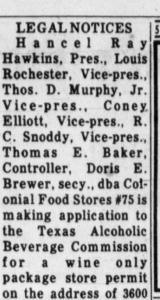

There would be substantial loss of competition in the Houston-New Orleans market now served by both TIA and National.

Many Customers Think It's Just Sound Business To Buy A Used Car.

Year in and year out, we have certain steady customers who buy nothing but used cars.

To them, it makes good business sense to buy a good used car. In many cases, aside from the mileage...the only difference between a new car and a late model used car is the price!

And if you'd like to pay hundreds of dollars less, we'll be glad to show you how. Here are just a few examples:
