Weekend vote may have buried Plan O

Midland Independent School Board members interviewed today agreed the board probably will follow the wishes of voters in Saturday's elec-

Thus, Midland voters apparently buried Plan O, the controversial proposal to consolidate Midland's two high schools, at the polls Saturday with a five-to-one defeat of a nonbinding referendum on the item.

Trustees were to have met at 5 p.m. today to canvass the election results. The Plan O vote, which helped attract near-record crowds to the polls

Saturday, came as no surprise to most board members.

The school board voted to put the non-binding referendum item on the ballot to get input on the subject from a wide range of Midlanders.

Trustee Marshall McCrea Jr., who originally suggested the referendum, said the margin of defeat for the proposition was "just about what I expected.

"That was about the same margin as the phone calls I'd been get-

While the board does not have to follow the dictates of the referendum, "I feel like I made a committment to McCrea said, "and that's what I'm going to do.

Trustee Joe Dominey also expressed no surprise at the margin of defeat for the proposition. "I think it was one of the main reasons for the heavy turnout," he

'The voters have expressed their feelings on Plan O. It's a dead duck, at least for the next few years. "Hopefully our enrollments will turn around, and we won't have the problem more than a few years," Dominey added.

While making no comment on what his vote on the matter would be, Trustee James Ramsoure cited a lack of organized campaigning in favor of the proposition as a reason for the resounding defeat.

"The people thought there would be a cut in participation in the schools (if they were consolidated,)" Ramsoure said. "That was a major theme. I don't think the general public ever got past that point.

"I don't think we ever got over to parents the point that this is a way to get quality education at a reasonable

"I as a board member was not so much concerned with having a superduper football team or band, but with looking at declining enrollments and the city's belief in getting a good education in the public schools.

Voters Saturday also turned one school board incumbent out of office and sent another into a runoff, while electing a businessman over the mayor's wife in the other race on the

One-term incumbent Ann Page was narrowly defeated by Midland teacher Joyce Sherrod for the Place 7 spot on the ballot, while broadcast executive Parker Humes overcame Penny Angelo, wife of Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., by a two-to-one margin in the Place 5 seat being vacated by David Grimes.

Humes and Mrs. Sherrod are expected to be sworn in at the April 17

Incumbent Ed Runyan, who faced three opponents for his Place 6 seat on the school board, will now engage retired teacher Alice Greer in a runoff election April 28.

By garnering other votes in that race, candidates Oralia Corrales and Raul Salazar set up the runoff in their losing bids for the seat.

Voters Saturday also returned three City Council members to their posts and chose three hospital district

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) - Hoisting hand-made signs reading "No Nukes Is Good Nukes," 1,000 people demonstrated on the steps of Pennsylvania's Capitol while engineers tried to decontaminate a simmering reactor at Three Mile Island

Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh was expected to announce today whether he will lift his 10-day-old advisory that pregnant women and preschool children stay at least five miles from the crippled nuclear

'He's just waiting for a little bit longer period of further sustained progress," press secretary Paul Critchlow said Sunday night

He said Joseph Hendrie, chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and NRC operations chief Harold Denton told Thornburgh Sunday night that conditions were safe enough to lift the advisory soon

Engineers worked Sunday to plug radiation leaks at the reactor, a contaminated cauldron that won't be brought to a cold shutdown for at least five more days. Cold shutdown is the point at which temperatures in the reactor fall below the boiling point of water, and there is no more risk of the reactor going out of control.

Meanwhile, in voices echoed at 10 other weekend demonstrations na tionwide, angry and frightened neighbors of the disabled nuclear reactor chanted "No Nukes! No Nukes!" at a rally on the state Capitol steps The near-disaster fresh in their minds and their attention riveted on

Roloff's 'sweetest girls on earth' tried murder

The Rev. Lester Roloff says the five teen age girls now are "among the sweetest girls on earth," but the girls say they tried to stab another girl to death at the evangelist's rehabilitation home less than a year ago. The Corpus Christi Caller-Times, in a copyright story in its Sunday editions, said the girls received "licks" and solitary confinement as their punishment from Roloff. The unsuccessful attempt to kill

16-year-old Misty Hardman occurred

July 1, 1978, according to Rhonda Loftis, 16, a Tennessee native. Roloff said each of the five girls, which he describes affectionately as "my little murderers," now claim salvation. And the evangelist says their new outlooks constitute one of his "greatest victories." Roloff's Rebekah Home and other facilities for wayward children have been under scrutiny by the state in a continuing flap over inspections. Ro-loff has prevailed. "Sometimes I can't believe we have come so far...changed so much," said Miss Loftis. She said she stood watch while the stabbing occurred. Angie Griffin. 17 of Virginia, said the attack happened after the five had been at the home about a month

'We hated it here," she said. "We thought if maybe a girl would die. we'd all get to go home." Miss Griffin said she did the actual stabbing with a serrated kitchen knife while Rhonda Meyers, 15, and Kathy Ticer, 14, held the victim down. Miss Mevers is from Dayton, Ohio, and Miss Ticer is from Corpus Christi.

Terrie Thomas, 17, of Cincinnati said she was the "mastermind" of the scheme. She said she was sent to the Roloff home by an Ohio court after she was arrested for armed robbery and receiving stolen property.

'The way I had it planned, if Misty didn't get killed, we would stab someone else until someone died and we could leave," Miss Thomas said. "We chose Misty because she was weak and wouldn't fight back.'

Nueces County District Attorney Bill Mobley said he was "shocked that something this serious and severe went unreported," adding he will ask a grand jury to look into the stab-

"It was (Roloff's) law-abiding duty to report it," Mobley said.

The prosecutor added it will be difficult to pursue the case now if the Miss Loftis said. "I was so excited victim's family refuses to cooperate. He also said the jury could subpoena Misty's purported testimony if neces-

Roloff said he did not report the incident because he believed the girls are better off at his youth home than

'We were sitting around and we just decided this was the right time," Miss Loftis said. "I tricked her (Misty) into going into the prayer bing to happen.

We hated it here.... We thought if maybe a girl would die, we'd all get to go home.

'The way I had it planned, if Misty didn't get killed, we would stab someone else until someone died and we could leave.

in prison. If the girls "had succeeded in murder, I would have reported the crime. Not to would have made me dishonest," he said.

Mobley replied, "That's the most bizarre thing I've ever heard. If this kind of thing goes unchecked, next time there could be a murder...there could be a death.'

The girls said they stole the weapon from the home's kitchen and hid it in a toilet tank

Me and Kathy held her down while Angie stabbed her," said Miss

"I stabbed her three times in the back," Miss Griffin said. "When I did it, my heart was so hard I didn't even feel guilty. When we got the whippings, I didn't even cry. The first time I cried was when Roloff said he still loved us.

Miss Loftis said she heard Misty "I was such a child of the devil," cry, "Oh God, help me. They've stabbed me." The girls said they fled to their rooms, leaving the victim lying on the floor.

'After it happened, I was crying and shaking," said Miss Meyers. "I couldn't believe I had done it.

Misty was able to get up and make her way to an office. The girls said she was treated with antibiotics and bandages at the home by staff mem-

"We try to steer away from unnecessary publicity," Roloff said when asked why the girl was not taken to a hospital. "If it had been real serious, however, we would have taken her to the hospital.

"The police would have come out and we'd have lost all our girls. Why file charges and put them in a prison? We wanted another chance to help them. We loved them.

The victim's mother, Dorothy Hardman of Marysville, Kan., said the family was not notified of the stabbing until two days after it happened. "We were so frightened, we drove so hard to get down there," she

Mrs. Hardman said Roloff aides asked her, "You aren't going to press charges, are you?"

"They knew we were Christians and meek and didn't want to cause any trouble," Mrs. Hardman said.

She said they took their daughter to a Kansas doctor and were told one of the wounds "was deep enough that if it had been a little over, it would have been fatal.

The doctor, Donald Argo, said the wounds were large enough to have been "quite serious

Mrs. Hardman said no compensation was offered by the Rebekah Rhonda Meyers said, "It's really a miracle we were saved. Misty's mother could have pressed charges...we'd have gone to prison, instead of staying here where we are loved." Roloff said he gave each of the girls about five "licks

"I told the girls they could take their camera and take pictures of their behinds and take it to the welfare people, but if they did, I'd go to the police and charge them with attempted murder," Roloff said.

"It was a risk, but it worked. If I had only rescued one of them, that would have been wonderful. But five of them — that's a miracle."

Exile forces hold Entebbe against Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Tanzanian and Ugandan exile invaders held off a major weekend drive on Entebbe airport by fresh Ugandan troops brought in by President Idi Amin from his northwestern homeland, exile sources said today.

Several reliable exile sources, quoting witnesses to the battle, said Amin's reinforcements, backed by tanks and armored cars, attacked the invaders five miles south of Kampala in a bid to recapture the airport, 21 miles south of the capital, which fell to the invaders last week.

The battle began Saturday and continued Sunday, the informants said. One exile said Amin's troops suffered their heaviest casualties of the war and lost some of their armored vehicles. He gave no account of the invaders' losses.

Residents of the capital reported seeing large numbers of new Ugandan troops in Kampala today. They were said to be from the Rhino or Bondo Battalion, which was based in Amin's native West Nile province and had seen no earlier action in the Uganda-Tanzanian war.

The defiant Amin had appeared on the brink of defeat Saturday and there was a flurry of reports he had fled Uganda. But sources in Kampala said he was spotted Sunday driving his racing car through the streets of the capital.

Amin reportedly has moved his headquarters to the Jinja area, 50 miles east of Kampala. Exile sources said he has one other loyal battalion that has not been brought into action

Phone call leads to arrest in Odessa burglary case

ODESSA - A Sunday morning telephone conversation ended with an Odessa man's arrest when police and sheriff's units zeroed in on the phone booth from which the man was call-

According to authorities, arrested and charged with two counts of burglary was Robert E. Swink, who remained in the Odessa city jail early today in lieu of $30,000 total bond set on the charges Sunday by Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee.

Swink was charged in a case involving stolen equipment from two Medical Service ambulances, police

One theft occurred at the fire station, where the ambulance was left while the crew was answering a fire call. The other theft took place at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital after the ambulance had delivered a patient, authorities said.

After the missing equipment was reported, Ector County Fire Department officials said, Fire Chief James Wiggs and a department dispatcher called on the radio asking for the 'stolen unit." About 4 a.m. Sunday, a voice answered and for two hours Wiggs and the dispatcher talked to the voice by both radio and telephone, officials

The voice at one point in the conversation was reported to have said, "I just saw a police car drive by... I don't like that.

The fire department officials said they asked for the number of the car, which the voice on the other end gave

A quick check with the police department revealed the location of that unit and an arrest soon was made, officials said.

Swink allegedly was in possession of a radio unit when he was arrested at the phone booth, police said. Other missing equipment was discovered in a nearby trash container, according

Police seek victim's watch as evidence in Stafford case

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Oklahoma City police are seeking a watch belonging to one of the victims of the Sirloin Stockade killings to be used as evidence in the slayings case.

The watch was allegedly taken from assistant manager Louis Za-carias the night he and five other persons were executed in a restaurant meat locker, a detective said.

Detective Sgt. Mike Heath said investigtors are looking for the watch as a piece of evidence officers hope will point toward suspect Roger Dale Stafford, and as corroboration for statements given to police by Staf-ford's wife, Verna. Mrs. Stafford has supplied investigators with information implicating er husband in the July 16, 1978, steakhouse killings and in the June 22. 1978, shooting deaths of the threemember Melvin Lorenz family of San Antonio, Texas. Stafford, 27, was named the prime suspect nearly a month ago on the basis of statement given by Mrs.

Heath said detectives knew early in the investigation that Zacarias, 43, routinely carried two watches with him to work. The victim's work watch was found on his body, but a more expensive watch was missing. It is believed the watch was traded for cash sometime after the steakhouse slavings. Mrs. Stafford volunteered the information about the watch without prompting, police said. The existence of the timepiece had been kept from the media as one of the investigation keys, police said.

"It would definitely help the case," Heath said. Police hope reports will prompt public assistance in locating the watch

Heath said the watch is a gold Bulova wristwatch with a bracelet band. The watch has a standard face and is luminous.

"It's a rather expensive watch," he

Police capture man charged in shootout

PAXTON, Ill. (AP) - After a daylong manhunt, police said they captured a man charged with murder in a bloody shootout in which five persons, including two police officers, died.

The suspect, Monroe Lapkin, 43, was captured without resistance Sunday night on a state highway just east of Paxton, said Les Pauley, a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement.

Lampkin, who had been shot in the wrist, was captured about three miles from the site of the Saturday night gunfight, Pauley said.

The suspect fled on foot after the battle, in which a state trooper, the trooper's brother-in-law, a Paxton policeman and two of Lampkin's brothers were killed. A murder warrant was issued Sunday, and police spent the day following a two-mile trail of blood through farmlands near this east-central Illinois town.

Authorities had thought that Lampkin was armed, but he was carrying no weapon when he was arrested by two Paxton police officers acting on a tip from a citizen, Pauley said.

Lampkin was taken to Paxton Community Hospital and was to be transferred later to the Ford County Jail, Pauley said.

State Trooper Michael McCarter, 32, one of those killed in the shootout, stopped four speeding cars Saturday. night, investigators said. They said about 30 rounds were fired in the shooting that followed.

Authorities found three pistols in the two Lampkin vehicles and a highpowered rifle near the body of one of the brothers. Another was carrying about $1,700 in cash, police said, but no motive was established for the shooting spree. Clyde Lampkin, 48, of Gary, Ind., was arrested at the scene Saturday night and charged with violation of weapons statutes. He was being held in the county jail.

McCarter apparently was shot first, investigators said. Paxton patrolman William Caisse, 32, came to McCarter's aid and was slain. Donald Vice, 43, the trooper's brother-in-law, had been riding in McCarter's car and also was shot to death, police said.

During the shootout, Cleveland Lampkin, 46, and Davis Lampkin, 32, were killed, and Paxton patrolman Larry Hale, 27, was wounded, police said.

Ford County State's Attorney James Benson said that while he believed Davis Lampkin killed the two officers and perhaps Vice, Monroe Lampkin was charged with murder under a state law that allows such a charge to be filed against an access-

Austin affirms nuclear project; Two big city mayors defeated

By The Associated Press

It was a day to beat the odds. Austin affirmed its commitment to the South Texas Nuclear Project, two big city Texas mayors apparently lost and a "fierce write-in campaign" foiled the plans of an unopposed mayoral candidate in Murphy.

The nation's eyes were fixed on Austin Saturday, trying to gauge the fallout from Harrisburg, Pa., in the first referendum on nuclear power since the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

Supporters of a proposition to keep Austin's 16 percent share in the nuclear plant under construction near Bay City had all but conceded defeat last week in the wake of the incident in Pennslyania.

But Saturday Austin voters, for the fourth time, opted to retain their ownership in the plant.

Apparent victors in the Fort Worth and El Paso mayoral elections may be casting a nervous glimpse over their shoulders at the incumbents who refuse to concede defeat and promise Councilman Woodie Woods appeared to have won a stunning upset, defeating his former ally, incumbent Mayor Hugh Parmer, by 23 votes in the Fort Worth mayoral race. However, problems at several voting precincts have cast a cloud over the election. Parmer asked his personal attorney, Harold Hammet, to take "whatever action is necessary to impound, secure and seal," all boxes. In El Paso, former FBI agent Thomas D. Westfall seemed to have upset one-term incumbent Mayor Ray Salazar.

But the votes have been ordered impounded and a judge has asked District Attorney Steve Simmons to investigate the election and to canvass the returns.

Westfall got 50.1 percent of the unofficial total to about 40.3 percent for Salazar. The rest of the votes were split by other candidates. If Westfall's total were to fall below 50 percent he would have to compete against Salazar in a runoff.

Councilman Weaver Lafferty was. the only name on the ballot for mayor in Murphy, north of Dallas, but he lost to incumbent Mayor Tom-Clevenger.

"It was not really a surprise. I was at a decided disadvantage being the only candidate that had filed, knowing an organized write-in campaign was ongoing. It kind of tied my hands behind my back," said Lafferty.

Clevenger insists he had nothing to do with the write-in campaign, but said he will accept his fifth two-year term as mayor. "I couldn't say no," said Clevenger. "I am as surprised as anyone about this."

Hidalgo voters put an end to a year-old squabble over the mayor's office Saturday when they elected Enedina Garza by 30 votes out of 800

A year ago then-incumbent Mayor Ed Vela beat Mrs. Garza by a single vote in the mayor's race. Howeve, the challenger filed an election contest claiming irregularities at the poll. A state judge ordered Saturday's special election.

In Amarillo incumbent Mayor Jerry Hodge scored a lopsided threeto-one victory over realtor and developer Franklin Jeffers.

West Texas: Partly cloudy Wednesday through Friday with mild days and cool nights. Highs in the was and GOP candidates prefer to campaign alone and with contract to the upper 30s. Steept 80s extreme southwest. Lows in the upper 30s. GOP candidates prefer to campaign alone

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) - GOP presidential contenders who appeared at a gala fundraiser this week end agreed such events are tremendous money-raisers, but many said the affairs do little for individual candidates. Some indicated their campaign groundrules will change.

"I will hereafter be concentrating on events that will be the most productive to me," said former CIA Director George Bush. "If we are going to raise money, I want to raise money for George Bush. I want to help the party, but after having done that I want to work for Bush."

One spectator at the gala "Salute to the Next President" said the event resembled a cattle show. The Republicans were arranged all in a line, as photographers and reporters jockeyed for position around them.

"I guess it gives all the people who pay a chance to see all the animals in the zoo at one shot," said Kansas Sen. Robert Dole. "But I don't think it is very meaningful.'

You might have called it the handshake before the fight. Bush, Dole, former Texas Gov. John Connally, Illinois Reps. Philip Crane and John Anderson, perennial candidate Harold Stassen and Connecticut Sen. Lowell Weicker all smiled and stood together, 10 months before the New Hampshire primary they all want to

It was a sight that probably will not be repeated before next year's GOP convention.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan was represented by his wife, Nancy, and Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch. Weicker appeared briefly, then left to join several hundred New England fire chiefs in Bedford. He said the Bedford appearance gave him a better opportunity than the fundraiser to meet and talk with people.

Not all the Republicans scorned the carnival atmosphere.

John Connally; who would later steal the show with a dramatic speech, said he did not come to New Hampshire to display his own wares. "We (Connally and his wife, Nellie) came because this is a party function and all of us, if we are going to be party members, should contribute something to the party," he said.

But Dole, Gerald Ford's running mate in the 1976 presidential election, said, "It's impossible. There are seven or eight speakers and everybody is trying to outbid everyone else (thinking), 'What can I say that'll electrify the crowd.' It doesn't have to mean anything.'

The Republicans drew lots to determine their speaking order at the din-

Anderson came out last.

"You obviously do not get the focus of attention ... particularly when you land in a less than fortuitous position in the order of speaking. It is good for the party organization, but of less than optimum value for the individual candidates," he said.

The parade of would-be candidates took the podium for about six minutes each, blaming the Carter administration and Democrats in Congress for everything from inflation to dependence on foreign sources for energy.

The crowd roared its approval when Connally said the country cannot halt nuclear plant construction because of the accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania.

He played down the seriousness of the accident, which leaked radioactive steam into the atmosphere, exposed several plant employees to rauation of pregnant woman and young children and damaged parts of the plant beyond repair. "Yes, there was almost an accident there were no injuries, no damages, ' Connally said. All airplanes are not grounded because some of them crash, auto production continues despite thousands of traffic fatalities, and "we can't stop building nuclear power plants," he said. Most of the other speakers criticdiation, prompted the voluntary evacized the Carter administration for failing to ease the country's dependence on foreign sources of energy. Crane called that dependence a "horrifying state.

at Harrisburg, but no one was killed, Regardless of whether a person has formally declared, he automatically becomes a legal candidate when he registers a committee with the Federal Election Commission.

Weicker, Connally, Crane and Stassen have announced. Dole and Bush have registered committees but have not announced officially. Anderson has created an "exploratory committee.

Sen. Doggett prepares filibuster against bill for auto dealers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Senators take up today where they left off Thursday, with Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, threatening a filibuster.

Doggett, 32, the youngest senator, planned to attack a bill that would let automobile dealers charge $35 on each sale for paperwork costs.

He put on the white tennis shoes made famous from last week's 15hour filibuster over changes in the Consumer Protection Act. When colleagues saw Doggett's preparations, they agreed Thursday to break for the weekend.

The automobile dealer-backed bill by Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, is pending on today's agenda. It is not the only legislation expected to provoke Doggett this week

In India, Pakistan and Bangladesh there is almost no new land which can be brought under cultivation

But experts of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization point out that much land damage and loss is man-made or due to human negligence.

They cite as some of the causes animal overgrazing, forest clearing in flood-prone areas, poor planning and maintenance of irrigation systems, and lack of greenbelt planting to block wind and water erosion.

Infections remain big health problem

Dear Dr. Solomon: With all the antibiotics available today, why are infections still a problem?— Ms. A.W. Dear Ms. W.: While we now have many highly effective antimicrobial agents, it is true that bacterial infections have not been completely licked. There are a number of

First, organisms are showing increasing resistance to the most frequently used antibiotics. Some strains of staphylococci, for example, appear to be resistant to all penicillins. Additionally, many patients have become sensitized to various drugs because of overexto them. Finally. patients whose ability to resist infection already is impaired by an underlying disease have their resistance lowered even further because of their need for immunosuppressive drugs. Such patients may lose the ability to fight infection despite the availability of antibiotics.

As you indicate, bacterial infections remain a problem despite the introduction of some potent antibiotics.

Dear Dr. Solomon: The daughter of a close friend of mine recently had an abortion at a local clinic. It seems to me a hospital would be a much safer place to have this done. Wouldn't you agree?-Cathy

According to statistics compiled by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, firsttrimester abortions done in hospitals resulted in a death rate of 1.1 per 100,000 abortions. The corresponding figure for legal abortions in nonhospital facilities was 1.0 per 100,000 abortions. Over 90 percent of the life-threatening complications in either group developed either during the abortion or within three days.

Pauling, vitamin C still partners

By LEW SCARR Copley News Service

It was a rare event and the old man with the shining pink head and white tufts showing over his ears was enjoying it immensely. Eventually, Dr. Linus Pauling would tell these doctors attending a recent meeting of the American Medical Association in Las Vegas, that if they give their patients 10 grams of vitamin C a day they can expect that they will live about 16 years longer than those who take low doses of vitamin C or none.

But he was working his way toward that startling recommendation in his own good time.

It was the first time that this double

Nobel laureate (for peace and chemistry) had ever been invited to address this large, sometimes stuffy but surely prestigious bastion of American medicine.

In the past, Pauling has made rather sweeping claims for vitamin C against the effects of the common cold, the ravages of cancer and almost every other disease that afflicts humankind.

Many physicians have viewed Pauling's recommended dosages with skepticism and some have pointed out that large doses can be harmful.

Doctors, especially those who pay their dues to the conservative and full treasury of the AMA, have been reluctant to accept his views, and not until now had he been invited to lecture at an AMA scientific meeting.

Finally, here he was. They had asked him to submit a paper but he said he didn't have one.

He just stood in front of the gold caduceus and the red shield of the AMA and kind of rambled on in his tentative, sometimes shaking voice.

When you say that Vitamin C is good for you no matter what is wrong with you, people say you are a quack," Pauling said, waiting for the few, somewhat embarrassed laughs that followed.

"We are not really sure how vitamin C works against disease," he said, "but it surely does. Vitamin C in large doses, I think, potentiates the immune system in the human body and keeps us from being ill.

'It may attack the vectors of disease directly, but we are not sure." The lecture hall in the huge convention center was full. Physicians stood along the walls, shifting from one foot to the other, but did not begin to leave until the end of the 90-minute presentation when Pauling began to repeat him self.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Senior citizens lead diverse lives, with a few common problems but many differences in the way they live. This is the second of a seven-part series on Midland's elderly, using portraits of individuals to indicate a range of responses to growing older.

> By LINDA HILL Staff Writer

While many elderly couples find themselves looking around for a smaller place to live, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Emmons went out and bought a larger house.

'So we wouldn't run into each other," Mrs. Emmons explained. Both husband and wife are retired school teachers - he taught for 39 years; she, for 32. Emmons retired at 65, in 1971. Mrs. Emmons retired the same year, though she is two years younger. "He retired and I was tired," she said.

"I asked for another year," said Emmons, a former assistant principal at Alamo Junior High School. "They refused me, and I'm so glad."

The couple spends more time together than they used to, but both older

The two live in a comfortable home in a well-kept residential area. They seem content with their lives, and with each other.

Emmons said his wife worried that he would spend all his time watching television when he retired, but it hasn't happened that way. They both watch some television, and have some favorite shows. And he goes to the library almost daily to read newspapers and books, "politics mostly," and all the things he never had time to read when he was teaching

They go to Texas A&M football - he, a former track letterman, is chairman of the A&M Lettermen's Committee. Both also are avid Dallas Cowboys fans.

Emmons likes other sports as well, though Mrs. Emmons doesn't care for baseball ("too slow") or basketball ("usually too fast")

He also likes to do yardwork. Mrs. Emmons joined the Women's Club after she retired, something she hadn't had time to do before.

"I was an old-fashioned teacher. I spent hours grading papers," she

She also does needlework, some of it adorning the walls of their comfortable home. "It used to aggravate me," Emmons said of the hobby, 'but now I'm kind of proud of it."

Executions confirmed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - The" Ugandan foreign ministry said today that four foreigners had been cap tured and shot in Uganda, apparently confirming reports that four Western journalists had been executed, Ugandan sources reported.

The Ugandan statement issued in Kampala said: "Four foreign mercenaries, uniformed and armed, have been shot dead after coming into Uganda in a boat over Lake Victoria."

The announcement came the day after reports that two Swedish and two German journalists had been captured and executed in eastern Kampala after trying to sneak into Uganda by boat from Kenya.

The four missing journalists were Karl Bergman of Svenska Dagbladet, Arne Lemberg of Expressen, Wolfgang Stiens of Stern magazine and Hans Bollinger of the French photo agency Gamma.

Colleagues said the four had hired a boat to smuggle them into Uganda last Thursday by crossing over Lake Victoria.

Reports reaching Nairobi said the four were captured shortly after landing near the Ugandan capital of Kampala on Friday.

They were reportedly taken to a nearby police station, interro-gated and shot. Some sources said their bodies were left lying near the station for a day after te shootings.

Colleagues of the four said it was extremely unlikely that any of the journalists were carrying guns.

Bollinger had been held in a Kampala jail for four days two weeks ago after flying into the Ugandan capital, now threatened by invading troops from neighboring Tanzania. He was FUNGUS IND OVES

Uncle Sam, business cater to borrowers

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The country seems to love debtors. Uncle Sam, feeling kinship perhaps, gives the borrower every break in the Internal Revenue Service code. Life insurers cater to him. Banks, too.

Your identity might even depend on your debts. Your good name, your reputation, your self respect might accompany you on a trip, but if you have no credit card you might not be able to cash a check.

You might not even get on the road in the first place. Try renting an automobile without a plastic credit (call it debt) card. Your money means nothing to a car renter. Your debt potential does. The IRS allows the borrower to deduct interest costs on his or her tax return, in effect subsidizing debt. The practice is challenged from time to time but it gets nowhere; Congress too is full of debtors.

Turned down for life insurance? Take out a personal loan and almost have it forced on you. It's low-cost insurance too, and you're not likely to be asked about your physical problems either.

But you need more coverage? In that case, determine if your bank offers mortgage insurance, then see if you can get in on it. Mortgage the house. Lots of people get $40,000 of coverage that way

Banks almost always love debtors, as you would too if somebody agreed in contract to give you back money you lent them. Sometimes the more you borrow and the more you owe, the more they love you. Recognizing that such romances might be based on flimsy credentials, some sharp borrowers go into debt over and over again to build their reputations for the day when they might really need a sizable sum.

They do it this way: They request a $3,000 loan for two years. They put the money into a 90-day account. Then they repay the loan early. It costs them a bit, but how can you price tag a good reputation?

Sometime thereafter they apply anew. This time they seek twice as much. Impressed by the repayment record, the bank officer feels his customer is worth the risk. And on it goes to a really big name.

On many a Main Street, acknow ledged as among the most important people in town, strut some of the county's biggest debtors. They may be more honored than the biggest saver. Savers are idlers; debtors are

That, at least, is a common misconception. But savers are at least the equals of borrowers, since the latter could not even be were it not for savers. Seldom, though, does the borrower acknowledge it. Almost never.

The borrower's vacation trips and automobiles are courtesy of those who postpone their good times in order to build a nestegg. The borrower says the future is now; nesteggs are to use. They use them.

Prudent pessimist recognizes dangers

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD When a pessimist has a choice of two evils he takes both. In a bridge player that attitude is called simple prudence. Today's declarer optimistically ruffed the second spade, drew trumps (using all of his own in the process) and tried the diamond finesse. East won and returned his last spade, whereupon West took three spades, collecting a penalty of 200 points. ASSUMES BAD BREAKS

A pessimistic declarer would might break 4-2 rather than 3-3 and that the diamond finesse might lose. Fortunately he can guard against both of these evils by discarding instead of ruffing the second spade.

South then ruffs the third spade, draws four rounds of trumps and loses the diamond finesse. The difference is that East is out of spades. Declarer can win any return and take the rest of the tricks DAILY QUESTION

U.S. congressmen become involved in fuel shortage

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-U.S. congressman became involved last week in Texas' diesel fuel shortage that threatens to cripple High Plains agriculture and immediately got a stong dose of bureacratic mumbo jumbo.

State Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka. chairman of a State Subcommittee on Diesel Fuel Shortages in Agriculture, sought the aid of U.S. Reps. Kent Hance of Lubbock, Jack Hightower of Vernon and Charles Stenholm of Stamford.

Short, in a conference call to the congressman, asked them to investigate whether the federal government-if Texas is declared a disaster area because of the diesel shortage-could help farmers pick up the transportation costs of moving diesel in from other states.

Hance's office began checking to find out what various governmental agencies knew about the diesel fuel shortage. Marshall Farr, administrative aide to Congressman Hance, got this kind of runaround:

Farr called for a "Mr. Caldwell' with the Dept. of Petroleum Allocation and Regulations under the U.S. Dept. of Energy. Caldwell being unavailable, Farr was directed to Jim Berry at another number. Berry referred Farr to Nick Murphy, with Gov. Clements Dept. of Energy Resources in Austin. Murphy referred Farr to Curtis Carlson with the U.S. Dept. of Energy in Dallas. Carlson referred Marshall to the

Dept. of Energy Fuel Allocation in Washington to speak with Yvonne

Allen. Yvonne Allen referred Farr back to Region 6 Dept. of Energy in Dallas.

Farr got nowhere, but did learn in the process rumors were widespread that brokers were counting on the federal regulation of fuel as an effective means for stockpiling diesel or 'buying on the future market." Short, a farmer himself, said dealers began telling Plains and Panhandle farmers a few weeks ago that no diesel fuel was available for them to run their farms. This poses potential crises to farmers, especially those growing cotton and wheat.

'Sometimes, after a rain, farmers have only a few hours to harvest their crops or the entire crop is lost," Short

"Farms run on diesel fuel and without it, they can't harvest the crops.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, as chairman of the Texas Energy Advisory Council, appointed the Short sub-committee to find out why the diesel fuel shortage came about and what could be done to help the affected farmers. The sub-committee held its first meeting last week when farmers and oil distributors agreed a shortage of diesel fuel exists in some areas of 'We've got tractors sitting in the field and they can't run because there is no fuel," Dale Glasson of Farmland Industries, Inc., testified

He estimated 15,000 farmers were affected in West Texas. A 12 percent shortage in March led to a general shortage throughout West Texas, Glasson said.

The Governor's Office of Energy Allocation requires fuel dealers to set aside 4 percent of the diesel they get for emergency needs. The office is taking emergency requests for diesel fuel and will notify farmers where they can get fuel.

However, Glasson said he does not believe the 4 percent set aside would be enough.

He also said farmers would have to pay up to 8 cents a gallon extra to transport the diesel fuel from points hundreds of miles away.

Short said he has learned that the Oklahoma Panhandle, New Mexico and Arizona are also experiencing shortages in diesel fuel. Wheat is harvested in June or July and that's when farmers fear their worst crises. Shorts sub-committee was to meet again at 3 p.m. today to hear testimony from six to eight top level refinery management officials. "The committee will attempt to find out the status of available fuel and get short and long range projections on future supplies," said Short.

Floyd sees win as Masters omen

Floyd read a little something extra into his dramatic victory in the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tour-

"It may be an omen," Floyd said after birdies on the final two holes gave him a five-under-par 67, a comeback from a six-shot deficit and sent him to Augusta, Ga. and the Masters as pro golf's most recent winner.

'There's certainly no reason I shouldn't be a factor in Augusta," Floyd said Sunday. "The year I won (the Masters) I did the same thing. I shot 66 in the last round here in Greensboro. Maybe it's an omen.

"Just like then, I've been playing better every week. When you're striking the ball well, making some putts, you get used to shooting good rounds and when the heat gets there you can handle it."

He was in plenty of heat in the final round. With two holes to play, he trailed two golfers by two shots and another by one.

"AFTER THE 16th, I looked at the leader board. I was four under (par). I told myself, 'Well, you've just got to birdie the last two holes. It's that simple.'
"I figured six under par was the number I had to shoot," he said.

Drawing on 17 years of pro golf tour experience, he ignored the two-iron shot the par-3 17th called for and hit a four-iron low, "right through the wind," then birdied from 20 feet. And

Then he had to wait for the other challengers — Bobby Wadkins, George Burns and Gary Player — to

"I knew that if I could get in the clubhouse, get the number posted, it would put some pressure on them. It can force you to hit some bad shots if a guy's sitting in there with a number on the board," he said. From a share of the lead, Burns bogeyed the 16th in the gusty winds that swept the 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course. Wadkins, hoping to join brother Lanny on a trip to the Masters, bogeyed two of the last three holes. And Player came to the 18th needing a birdie to force a playoff. He hit his approach to within six feet of the flag, but missed the putt and Floyd was a winner with his 282 total, six under par.

BURNS, WITH a 70, and Player, with a 71, tied for second at 283. Wadkins was next at 74-284.

Jack Renner, who led or shared the lead through the first three rounds, collapsed on a string of five bogeys in six holes on the front side, made a triple-bogey seven after hitting out of bounds on the 10th and finished with an embarassing 80. He was far back

M-Cubs juggle roster before leaving Mesa

The Midland Cubs added a catcher and made a couple of pitching staff changes before leaving Mesa, Ariz., for Midland today and their Texas League opener Wednesday night against the El Paso Diablos.

Manager Randy Hundley "picked" up Ted Trevino, a second year player, who batted .363 for Geneva of the New York-Pennsylvania Class A League club last year. Trevino knocked in 29 runs in 42 games and with Bill Hayes, completes the Cubs' catching corps.

Although Trevino wasn't added to the Midland roster until Friday, he has been with Midland throughout spring training, so Hundley knows what he can do.

The Cubs also added Bill Early, who posted a 10-3 record for Geneva last season after being drafted in June. Early had a 2.18 earned-run-average and whiffed 94 in 95 innings and displayed good control to go with it, issuing only 35 walks, four of those

Calvin Beal, a right-hander from Southern University, also was added to the staff. Signed as a free agent last spring, Beal, who was a batterymate of Danny Goodwin, last year's Texas League batting champion in college, posted a 4-4 record for the Class A Pompano Beach team in the Florida

Early and Beal join Henry Mack, acquired from the Philadelphia organization in the off season, as the Cubs' rookies. Mack had a 15-4 record last year in the A Carolina League and between them, they compiled a 29-10 record-last season.

The rest of the staff will be made up of veterans who pitched at Midland last season. They include Herman Segelke, Lee Smith, Jack Ledbetter, Tom Butler, Mike Allen, Jeff Albert Albert, who started and relieved, but enjoyed most of his success as a starter last year, led the staff with an 11-9 record, including a staff high of eight complete games. Smith was 8-10 and accummulated the most innings pitched with 155.

Segelke, who was with Chicago early this spring and spent most of his time this spring with Arizona before the "numbers" caught up with him, was 8-8 for Midland last year with six complete games.

Allen, Butler and Clark were in the bullpen last year with Butler seeing some duty as a starter. Allen was 1-1 with three saves in in 16 tames, Clark was 4-3 with four saves in 40 games while Butler was 5-7 and 10 saves with two complete games to boot.

Ledbetter was a starter for the Cubs in 1977 and was one of the staff aces with a 12-9 record and nine complete games. However, plagued by arm and shoulder miseries last season, he dropped to 3-5 and his role this year probably will depend on how his arm feels.

The rest of the roster will have Jim Tracy at first, Javier Fierro at third, Ed Alfaro at short, Dan Rohn at second and Mike Turgeon at second. In the outfield, Eric Grandy and Brian Rosinski return from last year and Carlos Lezcano is back from 1977. They will be joined by newcomer Jared Martin, who played at Bakersfield last year.

The Cubs arrive at Midland Air Terminal at 7:45 p.m. today and will workout for the first time at Cubs Stadium from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and then open a six-game homestand against the defending West Division champion Diablos Wednesday.

Villeneuve captures 2nd Grand Prix in row

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) -Gilles Villeneuve, a slightly built Canadian, has his second consecutive Grand Prix auto racing victory of 1979, moving the young driver ahead of his senior compatriots in this sport

The nine points awarded for his record-setting triumph in the $600,000 Long Beach race gave him 20 for the four Formula One races and a margin of two points over Jacques Laffite of France, who went out shortly after the start of this race.

Villeneuve made the 2.02-mile, 12 turn, course that traverses city streets a total distance of 161.6 miles. Villeneuve did it in 1 hour, 50 minutes, 25.4 seconds, an average speed of 87.802 mph, about seven tenths of a mile faster than the record. He finished 29.38 seconds ahead of Ferrari teammate Jody Scheckter of South Africa.

Alan Jones of London was a surprsing third in his Williams, and fourth went to Mario Andretti, last year's world driving champion, in his Lotus. Patrick DePailler of France was fifth in a Ligier, and Jean-Pierre Jarier of Paris was sixth in a Tyrrell. A crowd of 81,000 watched the race.

Villeneuve, 27, won his third Grand Prix and said it gave him the most satisfaction.

"At Montreal last year, Jarier had trouble and in the South African race this year it rained and people said I wouldn't have won had there been good weather," he said. "I didn't jump the start and I don't think the pole sitter should be penalized for what happened."

The crowd was befuddled at the original start, which is believed to be the first time a pole position winner has been fined for a bad start.

Motor racing history contains several examples of overanxious drivers illegally jumping the start, but never the pole sitter in the recollection of Grand Prix experts.

Villeneuve, however, was involved in a nearly identical mistake last September following the fatal injury of Sweden's Ronnie Peterson in the Italian Grand Prix at Monza.

The race was stopped to clear away wreckage and when it was restarted, Andretti was in the pole position and Villeneuve beside him.

The Canadian jumped his car prematurely and Andretti followed. Both were assessed one-minute penalties Andretti finished first and Villen-them down a notch each and Niki Lauda was awarded first. This time the penalty was in money and the same 10,000 Swiss franc assessment was mae against Carlos world champion. The total purse of $600,000 will be distributed by the Formula One Constructors Association, but the actual distribution never is announced.

Shuffling Celtics look for coach, owner, Bird

BOSTON (AP) - After months of turmoil and the most disastrous season in 33 years in the National Basketball Association, the Boston Celtics are looking for new low-key ownership, a new coach and, hopefully, All-American Larry Bird to restore

The Celtics, missing the playoffs for the second year in a row with 13 NBA championship flags hanging from the Boston Garden rafters, ended a 29-53 campaign Sunday with a 127-101 romp over the New Jersey Nets. Then, veteran center Dave Cowens, who became player-coach when Tom Sanders was fired last November. announced he was dropping the coaching position to concentrate on playing.

COWENS DROPPED the bombshell even as Bird was in another corner of the dressing room for a quick visit that wound up a weekend trip to Boston before he returned to Indiana State University.

Earlier, Harry Mangurian, a multimillionaire businessman-sportsman who has been virtually a silent partner in ownership of the Celtics, said the "deal is all set" for him to acquire flamboyant John Y. Brown's 50 per cent share of the club at a meeting in Louisville, Ky. today.

Bird, the nation's college Player of the Year, was drafted by Boston last June. He was given a whirlwind tour of the city by his attorney, Bob Woolf, who will begin negotiations with the Celtics Tuesday.

Yanks' John quells Milwaukee

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer It was sinker or swim for Tommy John "I thought I was on a boat out there," said John. "My foot was hitting the ground either too soon or too late.

Trying to maintain balance in his return to the American League, the left-hander eventually found his equilibrium as the New York Yankees beat the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 Sunday.

"First-game-itis," was the way John described his opening Yankees' performance - a shaky first inning followed by a creditable six. He gave up six hits overall.

"The first game you've got to get your feet on the ground whether it's your first game of the season, the first game of the playoffs or the first game of the World Series," said John, who spent seven years with the Chicago White Sox in the American League, then seven with the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League.

The Yankees obtained John from the Dodgers as a free agent last win-

"My last five or six warmups and the first five pitches in the game didn't come anywhere near the strike zone," said the sinker-ball specialist who pitched on the very same Yankee Stadium mound in last year's World Series against New York. "I'll pitch that way 90 per cent of the time. If I

Sandra Post gives vent to emotions.

Post strikes it rich in victories

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) -Sandra Post hasn't won that many tournaments since joining the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in Post, with only four career victories, outdueled Nancy Lopez Sunday to win the $305,000 Dinah Shore Winners Circle for the second consecutive year. The triumph was worth $37,500, the LPGA's biggest prize. "I hold this tournament in the highest esteem of any I've played," Post said after shooting a closing 70 and breaking a tournament-long deadlock with Lopez.

LOPEZ HAD a 71 Sunday and finished one stroke back.

Post and Lopez had identical rounds of 68-70-68 for the first three days, then Post's final round gave her a total of 276, 12-under-par over the 6,272-yard, par-72 Mission Hills Country Club course. That bettered Sandra Palmer's tournament record of 283

"I'm not disappointed to lose," said Lopez, who had a two-stroke lead on Post at one time during the final round. "My father's always told me that you're going to lose more than you're going to win ... I felt good, and I feel like I played well. I knew I was fringe, then chipped in."

going to have to play well to beat Sandra."

LOPEZ, who won nine tournaments 1968, but precisely half her victories as a rookie last year and already has have come in the women's richest two victories in 1979, also lost a finalround lead in the previous LPGA tournament, at Costa Mesa, Calif. She collected $24,500 for her second-place finish, her third of 1979. Pat Bradley and Donna White, who finished in a tie for third with sevenunder-par 281s, received $15,000 each. Judy Rankin, seven strokes behind Post, won $10,000. JoAnne Carner. who struggled to a 75 on the final round, finished at 284 and won $8 .-

Post had trailed by two strokes at the turn Sunday, after shooting a 37 and Lopez had a 35. But Post, a 30-year-old Canadian who now lives in Florida, made a 30-foot birdie putt on No.11, chipped in from off the green for a birdie on No.12, then carded another birdie with a 30-foot putt on No.16.

That gave her a two-stroke lead as Lopez, playing in the group ahead of Post, bogeyed No.17 after hitting her tee shot on the par-3 hole into trouble on the right. "I think No.12 was really the turning point," said Post, who drew even with Lopez on that hole. "I hit my drive into a bunker, hit out to the

have a problem, it'll be the first three or four innings."

The Texas-Detroit game was postponed by bad weather.

John yielded a run in the first inning before settling down. He walked Paul Molitor on four pitches to start the game. Molitor advanced on Don Money's grounder and scored on a single by Cecil Cooper.

Jim Spencer blasted a two-run homer in the second for the Yankees' runs, then John - displaying his wellknown sinker ball - had the Brewers well in hand before Rich Gossage pitched the last two innings.

"John was definitely impressive," said Milwaukee's Larry Hisle. "He kept everything down. When he needed a ground ball, he put it where he wanted it."

White Sox 5, Orioles 1

Rick Wortham and Lerrin LaGrow combined on a three-hitter as Chicago defeated Baltimore. Wortham had a no-hitter until Larry Harlow doubled with one out in the sixth. Rick Dempsey, who had walked, took third on the hit, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ken Singleton.

LaGrow pitched out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the eighth to preserve Wortham's victory.

An RBI single in the first by Chet Lemon and a run-scoring hit by Greg Pryor in the fifth provided the White Sox with all the runs they needed. They chased loser Dennis Martinez with a three-run seventh, capped by Claudell Washington's RBI single.

"His slider was the best I've seen. said Baltimore's Rich Dauer of Wortham's performance. "It's better than Sparky Lyle's."

Royals 8, Blue Jays 3 Paul Splittorff pitched a five-hitter and George Brett collected four hitsand scored three runs as Kansas City beat Toronto. Splittorff got in trouble just once, when he walked the bases full with one out in he third. He then settled down and retired 13 batters in a row before Rick Cerone walked with two out in the seventh.

A three-run rally in the fifth gave the Royals a 4-3 lead and all the runs they needed. Brett singled, Hal McRae was hit by a pitch and Amos Otis doubled them home following a double steal. Darrell Porter then drove in Otis, ruining the American League debut of Toronto starter Mark Lemongello.

Red Sox 7, Indians 6

Jim Rice scored on Jack Brohamer's infield out in the 12th inning. lifting Boston over Cleveland. Fred Lynn had hit a pair of two-run homers and Rice added a two-run single, giving the Red Sox the lead three times during the first nine innings. However, Cleveland kept chipping away and finally tied the score in the bottom of the ninth on Toby Harrah's RBI sin-

Twins 3, A's 1

Geoff Zahn pitched a three-hitter and Minnesota capitalized on early wildness by Oakland pitcher Mike Norris to beat the A's and sweep the season-opening, three-game series.

Minnesota scored two runs in the first inning without a hit off Norris, who walked four batters and hit one in the inning.

Zahn retired 19 consecutive batters during one stretch. He finished with seven strikeouts and no walks. Angels 7, Mariners 5

Dan Ford knocked in three runs with two homers and a double and Carney Lansford's double in the eighth scored the winning run as California beat Seattle.

Lansford doubled after Joe Rudi walked, breaking a 5-5 tie. Ford then hit his second homer of the game in the ninth inning for the final run.

"I didn't get it all together at the start," said Ford, who was struck out by Paul Mitchell before hitting his first homer in the fourth. "He threw me three curve balls in a row and made me look bad. Next time out, he hung it up and I hit it good enough to get out of the ballpark.

It took the Cincinnati Reds four games to get untracked without Pete Rose. After 21/2 games, Philadelphia still hasn't won with him - but at least the Phils are on the right

Cincinnati, which had lost its first three games to San Francisco, used Rick Auerbach's pinch-double and Joe Morgan's run-scoring single in the 10th inning for a 7-6 victory over the Giants Sunday.

The Phillies, who have shown only occasional bursts of punch in this young season, had dropped their first two games to St. Louis. They were on their way to a victory over the Cardinals Sunday when the rain dampened

But because of a new rule, they'll be able to keep their 3-2 sixth-inning lead when the teams resume play June 29, so at least they're a little more than halfway to a victory.

Elesehwere in the National League Sunday, Houston blanked Atlanta 2-0, Montreal shaded Pittsburgh 5-4 and Los Angeles beat San Diego 6-5 in 12 innings. The New York Mets' game against the Cubs in Chicago was rained out.

THE FACT that Rose isn't around has had no dramatic effect on the Reds, veteran pitcher Bill Bonham

"Really, it's too early to tell," he said. "If Philadelphia had won three quick games, they would have said it was because of Rose. And I suppose since we lost three somebody would say that's because of Rose. But with both teams losing, I don't think anybody really cares.

Another Cincinnati pitcher, Fred Norman, agreed that Rose's absence 'doesn't have anything to do with it. What we're trying to do is establish a sort of commune atmosphere. We've got to pull togther as a unit and just forget about Pete."

George Foster hit his seventh career grand-slam home run, two shy of club leader Johnny Bench, and Dan Driessen hit a solo homer for Cincinnati. Roger Metzger had a two-run triple and an RBI single for San Fran-

Larry Bowa, who had gone 0-for-11 before setting up the Phfls' go-ahead run with a sixth-inning single, added: "We're the kind of club that people expect to win. I think it puts a little pressure on us. After Bowa singled, Mike Schmidt doubled, breaking a 2-2 tie. The Phils' lead would have been washed away and the two teams would have had to start the game over if last year's rule had been in effect. As it is, the game will pick up where it left off with the Cards batting in the bottom of the

"All I can do right now is defend the rule," said Danny Ozark, the Phils' manager. "I think it's a good rule. I think it's got a certain amount of merit to it."

Perry defies traditional Young winner image

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate Gaylord Perry looks as if he might have been a Cy Young Award pitcher, all right - but not lately.

You study the balding pate, the graying locks, the wise old eyes, the body that tapers the wrong way and you conclude that Gaylord might have been in the rotation with Grover Cleveland Alexander, knew exactly how to pitch to Shoeless Joe Jackson, or had some great duels with Dazzy

Vance. But there's no way this old gaffer could have beaten out Vida Blue, Burt Hooton, Tom Seaver, Steve Carlton and all for last season's Cy Young. But he's not only the only man to win the Cy Young Award in both leagues, he's the oldest man to win it in any league.

'You think of a Cy Young pitcher and you think of some broadbacked, burly youngster in a tailored uniform, gleaming black hair, and blazing stuff. Tom Terrific and his Electric

He studies the hitter's feet, stance, checks for telltale anxiety. He looks as if he should have a tall, pointed black hat with holes in it, bib overalls, and a squirrl rifle on his lap.

He's a country boy. Son of a share-cropper, the first indoor plumbing Gaylord ever saw was in high school in Williamston, N.C., which he describes as "a two-hour walk from my

In a disco age, he's a waltz. In a private-plane era, he'd rather have a dog. He'd look right at home in a nightshirt. In a day when players come to the park in earrings and gold necklaces, he probably carries a railroad watch.

He doesn't pitch a game, he orchestrates it. He gives a textbook lesson on the art of throwing a baseball. The whole secret is putting the baseball in locations the batter has given up all hope of ever seeing again.

"DO YOU find this generation of batters any easier to fool than the last two?" a mischlevous journalist asked him the other day. Perry smiled. "There are a lot of free-swingers out there today," he allowed softly. Gaylord always speaks as if he were in a church, or hiding in a cellar being searched by the Gestapo.

He gives lessons in the science of pitching. What he doesn't talk about anymore is how he got his foothold in his 268-win career and Cy Young Awards. The start that will land him in the Hall of Fame one day.

Gaylord publicly confessed some time ago in a show-and-tell biogra-"Me And The Spitter," written with Bob Sudyk, when he was bouncing around the American League winning 20 games a year for laughingstock teams.

It was in the 13th inning of the second game of the longest doubleheader in baseball history, May 31, 1964. The Mets were playing the Giants, and the Giants had just won the first game routinely enough, 5-3. But in the second game, the score was 6-6 in the 13th inning and was to go 23 when Gaylord Perry entered the

In the bottom half of the 15th, the Mets got a man on second, and Gaylord called a meeting with himself.

"I WAS 25 years old, and had spent most of my six seasons in the minors. The season before I'd gotten in 31 games for the Giants. I'd won one and lost six. My worst season in any kind of baseball. I hadn't started a game in a year. I thought of my wife, Blanche and my very young children, an. Mama and Daddy back down on the farm, all counting on me, and my taking home only $9,500 a year. I remembered what veteran pitcher and my good friend, Bob Shaw, told me. 'Gaylord, I don't think you've got enough stuff right now to be a starting pitcher. There comes a time when a man has to decide what's important. We're not high school boys anymore. Hitters are taking the bread out of our

Gaylord Perry took a deep breath and threw a spitter, a pitch that had been outlawed in the major leagues for 20 years. The "country sinker" they called it. "The Load."

The historic occasion did not go unmarked. Casey Stengel from the other dugout roared for the ump to get a tarp out right away before Gaylord made the infield unplayable, and he suggested a spittoon be brought to the mound promptly. But Gaylord won the game, his second of the season, and was on his way.

Gaylord claims he doesn't need the damp-digit pitch anymore. It was just something to get him over the bridge from rookie to pro till he could perfect more legitimate stuff to fool the batters. But he was a leading consumer of Vaseline, K-Y jelly, and slippery elm and chewing gum for a while to say nothing of tobacco. And, back when the rules called for a drying-out of the fingers via the resin bag before each pitch, Gaylord perfected the art of holding a resin bag between the pinkie and the thumb, for weeks.

MAYBE THE great expectorations are over but Gaylord picked up in 19.9 the way he finished 1978 last Thursday when he set down the Dodgers on opening day, 4-3, striking out his 3,-003rd and 3,004th batters in the process. Steve Garvey thinks Gaylord has substituted the dry look. "There's so much resin flying off that ball, it looks like a sandstorm coming.'

Gaylord is still thinking of the farm and the old folks at home. When he won the Cy Young last year, he thought it would be a nice gesture if the club gave him a bonus. Now,

Reggie Jackson might have wanted a Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow, but Gaylord wanted a stick-shift tractor. His idea of great literature is not Playboy but a seed catalogue, and a porno flick would be uninteresting to him unless the principals were cattle.

When you win the Cy Young at 40, and you look down lineups that don't have Willie Mays or Henry Aaron or Roberto Clemente or Mickey Mantle or Frank Robinson on them anymore, you're apt to think you've outlasted the competition and it's an easy game. Gaylord, who is only two years younger, spotted Sandy Koufax, who has been in the Hall of Fame for eight years now, in the runway at Dodger Stadium the other day. He drew Sandy aside. "Hey!" he whispered conspiratorially, "You quit too

People foot the bill

If President Carter is looking for a domestic issue that should prove wildly popular with the electorate, he could do far worse than to raise the banner of regulatory reform as he did recently.

No one knows the exact cost government regulation imposes on the American economy. But, by any calculation, the total cost is staggering and every nickel must ultimately be paid by consumers in the form of higher prices for virtually every product and service they purchase.

A notable study last year by the Chase Manhattan Bank put the cost of all government regulation at $103.1 billion during 1977, with the vast balk of this sum attributable to the regulatory web spun by federal agencies.

What does a $100 billion price tag for regulation mean? In 1977, it equalled:

- $470 for every man, woman and child in the United States, or $1,880 for each family of four.

- Five percent of the nation's gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced in the United States that

- 25 percent of the entire 1977 federal budget.

- Nearly three-quarters of all private investment in plant and equipment during 1977.

At General Motors, more than 20,000 employees work full time trying to keep the nation's largest corporation in compliance with government regulations.

In New York state, one-fourth of a hospital patient's bill reflects the cost of meeting regulations issued by no less than 164 government agencies.

The impact of regulation on small business frequently is even more devastating. U.S. News and World Report noted the case of a gasoline station owner who spent 610 hours each year - nearly onefourth of his total working time filling out forms required by federal, state, and local government agencies. Part of this effort, and its attendant cost is, of course, the price we pay for cleaner air, less polluted waters, safer work places, purer drugs, uncontaminated food, and other generally recognized social benefits.

And yet, no one would seriously contend that the vast fortune expended on the administration of and compliance with government regulations is without its quota of waste. Indeed, there is every reason to believe the regulatory thicket has become impossibly tangled and is in desperate need of pruning.

As the president noted: "It should not have taken 12 years and over 100,000 pages for the Food and Drug Administration to decide what percentage of peanuts there ought to be in peanut butter."

Given that some regulations are necessary and others are not only unnecessary but harmful, the trick is to distinguish between them. What the president proposes is to subject each regulation to a careful analysis of its costs versus its presumed benefits. Assuming competent cost-benefit analysis, no single reform would exert a more constructive influence on federal regulatory practice.

The president also plans to propose a package of additional regulatory reforms including periodic reviews of existing regulations, reduction in paper work requirements, and extensive revision of current regulatory procedure. All are needed.

This is the year to transform the impetus into workable legislation and, in the process, to liberate the economy from the onerous burden of regulatory overkill.

INSIDE REPORT:

Danger of Soviet takeover disturbs oil-rich Iraq

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

BAGHDAD - Behind the tough talk against the Egyptian-Israeli treaty in this militant, oil-rich country is a danger scarcely mentioned in the controlled press: the danger of Soviet subversion and takeover. That danger is regarded as acute by the handful of top officials who are pushing Iraq to lead the third world and who exert total political control. Indeed, in a heavy irony, the anti-Soviet warning being sounded througout the Middle East by President Carter and his men in seeking Arab acceptance of the new treaty finds a powerful (though publicly silent) echo here. Yet this is the only Arab state that has a "friendship" treaty with Moscow.

In addition to justifiable fear over Soviet efforts to use the small and virulent Communist party as a lever to heighten Soviet influence — or eventually actual control - the ruling, highly nationalistic Baath party faces potential harassment from other quarters: the two million Kurds, one-sixth of the population, and sectarian troubles between Moslem sects. Iraq could be infected by both the Kurdish revolt and Shiite fundamentalism which are helping fuel the revolution in Iran.

But with both the Kurdish and sectarian dangers now under tight control, the persistent threat to Iraq's decade of unaccustomed calm and isolation from the world lies in Sovietstyle communist subversion. That provides the first faint shadow of mutuality between the U.S. and Iraq. It is a mutuality neither country publicly admits in their arm's-length relationship, conducted without benefit of formal diplomatic ties. But it could conceivably become important in the tian-Israeli treaty. The event that tipped Iraq to the approaching disaster of close relations with Moscow was last year's Soviet-engineered coup in Afghanistan. Although the secretive government says almost nothing about that takeover publicly, one respected authority here described it as "a matter of nothing less than life or death" as a forewarning to Iraq.

Afghanistan galvanized the politically-led army to check on activities by known members of the legalized Com-discovery was quickly made that party cadres had set up forbidden cells inside the army — the obvious first stage of a possible future coup like Afghanistan. At least 21 party members (some munist party within its ranks. The say as many as 40) were executed by firing squads. Nothing has ever appeared in the controlled press, but angry organs in other countries, including Italy's party newspaper Unita, thundered against such nasty measures of self-protection.

At least four separate protests from the Soviet Union and its Eastern European satellites were summarily rejected by the government on grounds of outside intervention with a purely domestic affair.

In addition, the government is continuously worried about Soviet pressure for more oil from the country whose reserves may prove to be larger even than Saudi Arabia's. Typically, Moscow in the past has brought oil from Iraq, then sold it to satellites for huge profits. The "friendship" treaty still has half a dozen years to run, and Moscow holds one ace - spare parts for Iraq's mainly Soviet-equipped military hardware — which Baghdad cannot trump for now.

Fear of Soviet subversion, so heightened by Afghanistan, explains Iraq's key role in helping defuse the border war between Saudi Arabiabacked North Yemen and Sovietbacked South Yemen. Not only was Iraq the only Arab state both able and willing to help primitive North Yemen with its Soviet-built military gear when South Yemen attacked it. it and Syria were the two Arab states to bring at last a temporary truce to the border war.

In Yemen, Afghanistan or any future Soviet "destabilizing" campaigns in the Mideast, Iraq's mutuality with the U.S. to deny Moscow an entry permit now seems assured. Considering Baghdad's potential as the only Mideast state with rich resources in both oil and agriculture, this narrow confluence of interests deserves more attention in Jimmy Carter's Washington than it gets, despite Iraq's demands on behalf of Palestinian nationalism.

Libya. Qaddafi contends that the people rule themselves in his country, that they have created a political system without a government, that he is merely the motivating force behind this system but does not rule the people. "This is an idea that the philosophers and the thinkers dreamt about a long time ago," he said. "That a people might exist without a government. And the wealth and arms could be distributed justly to all the people ... Authority, weapons and wealth should be distributed among all the people. This will create a happy society because it is free, no authority, no government. All the citizens are equal. The authority, the wealth, the weapons are in their hands." He called this the "theory of tomorrow.'

I agree that Congress needs a break, but this is what happens when you treat Tongsun Park so shabbily.

In order to gain public support for giving themselves a tax break senators should do TV commercials like the ones for Geritol: "After working all day for others, I take a tax break every day. It's just a little something I do for myself."

Then the senator's wife puts her arm around him: "This is my husband and he takes good care of himself. I think I'll keep him."

Coin could save money

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - If the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin becomes accepted by the public, the federal government could save $30 million a year, the director of the U.S. Bureau of the Mint says. Mint chief Stella Hackel said Friday that $260 million worth of the new coins are already in the vaults and ready to go into circulation on July 1, with plans for another $240 million to be minted when Congress gives authorization.

'It costs 1.8 cents to produce a dollar bill which lasts an average of 18 months," Ms. Hackel said. "It will cost 0.3 cents for each of the coin dollars and they will last at least 15 years."

Floods send famed gourmets to our door

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - As near as I can remember it, the bridge was out. "Rampaging spring floods," as we wordsmiths in the news business always called it when the Mississippi got uppity, had turned the little stream at the foot of our hill into 'a raging torrent."

That's how Mimi Sheraton, Stendahl, Gael Greene, the two inspectors from Guide Michelin and John McPhee all came to our house on the same historic

They were on their way to the opening of a chic new restaurant on the other side of the Interstate, and the bridge washed away just as they tried taking the shortcut up our narrow winding road. Marooned and famished, the eminent food critics came begging at our door. Frankly, they could have picked a better night. Left over meatloaf and potatoes Colcannon are not everyone's piece de resistance, but they were our table d'hote specialty that night as they usually are on a Monday. And there was no a la carte menu. The chef, however, was prepared to meet dietary laws and individual taste preferences if anyone had a particular craving for liverwurst, canned corned beef hash, frozen pizza, stewed prunes or cream cheese and jelly sandwiches.

UNDER THE GUISE of freshening up for dinner, Stendahl who does Restaurant Reviews for the New York Daily News, checked out the wash room facilities. The hair blower, clothes hamper, kitty litter, economy-sized jar of epsom salts and two pair of drying tights were all in their alloted places. So was a slightly used guest towel that seemed to be property of the Pullman Company.

Ms. Sheraton of the N.Y. Times and Ms. Greene from New York Magazine checked out the spice rack, which included among other recherche condiments hot dog relish, crushed chili peppers, a jar of vitamin tab'ets, a coffee can half full of pennies and saucer of light fuses.

The two Frenchmen descended into what they hought was the wine cellar and came face to face with the lawn furniture, the Christmas decorations, cherished family menus, and a jug of cider left over discovered another favorite eating haunt which he from Thanksgiving that hopefully was fermenting would write up in the New Yorker? BOISE, Idaho (AP) -Idaho State Penitentiary officials have ordered Roman Catholic priests to stop giving inmates wine as part of Holy Communion during masses at the institution, bolic importance to Catholic liturgy.

The use of wine during vices also was banned.

The wine ban has upset members of Idaho's Catholic community and raised questions about the state's right to dictate conditions for religious services.

Prison policy prohibits bringing any alcoholic beverages into the prison, said Corrections Director C.W. Crowl.

"It's been traditional that we don't allow alcohol into the institution for any reason," Crowl said last week. "The inmates make enough of it illegally as it is. To let them bring it in would set a precedent that couldn't be defended."

Carter's decision on oil decontrol opens many avenues for debate

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - By his decision to end price controls on U.S.-produced oil, and his simultaneous proposal to tax away any so-called windfall profits to oil companies, the president has reopened the big de-

It will involve the liberals, the conservatives, the neutrals, the producers, the consumers, the retailers, the informed, the confused, the outraged, the proponents and the opponents. It will be a free-for-all.

The surface issue is energy, but it floats on deep waters and strong currents. Less conspicuous, but probably more important, is the ongoing battle over how the economic system should be harnessed to serve.

On the far right are those who defer decisions to the market pricing system. It is, they feel, the supreme monitor of supply-demand, the beneficent servant of social good, an unseen hand that might be God's.

Far, far to the left are those who denounce such notions as economic theology, who feel government has an affirmative responsibility to control the market, to wrestle it, to make it serve the greatest good.

And in between? You soon will hear every conceivable argument, because everyone has notions on what the economic system should be. It has always been so; the American system has always been changing.

What President Carter has done is to twang that quivering nerve and set off the cacophony again. Under his plan, price controls would be lifted in stages between June'1 of this year and September 30, 1981. Since supply-demand rather than government edict will then determine prices, those prices should rise.

At one and the same time the president praises and denounces this all but certain outcome. It will, he says, provide the companies with cash to develop more resources. But it will, he says, enrich them too. The dilemma demanded compromise, or so it appears from the second major part of the president's plan. Rather than see the companies get rich unfairly, he said, let us tax away most of the "windfall."

The money obtained by a 50 percent tax on "the huge and undeserved windfall profits" would be channeled into in an Energy Security Fund, which would then be used to finance development of more resources.

ER

The criticisms are predictable. Industry's argument is one that it has used time after time: The American system is that of free enterprise. Through free enterprise we obtain the best allocation of the nation's re-

The counter contention is that the marketplace doesn't allocate well, and that it often causes great expense to those least able to pay. The marketplace is mindless, it is said. It must be lead.

Says business, "There is usually no such thing as excess profits. Profits don't go into one group's pocket. The corporation is merely a vehicle for redistribution - to workers, shareholders, suppliers.

Without profits, says business, we cannot invest in new sources of supply. And if we cannot afford to do so it is the consumer who is hurt. The only way out is to give us the profits so we can invest them. Critics maintain that isn't the American way at all. Business isn't to be trusted, they say. It does not represent the people; only the government does. Only government can be trusted with big decisions.

And business responds: Government too often is a ripoff. Why funnel $100 to Washington only to get $75 in return? The bureaucracy is counterproductive. Why support it?

There's probably no resolution of such differences; at least there hasn't been in more than 200 years of discus-

And now the president has reopened the big debate, about which every person beyond age 15 has an opinion, usually a bit doctrinaire but some times unique, enough so to almost assure a great free-for-all.

Crude price decontrol means more for gas

Byrd backs windfall profits plan

By ROBERT PARRY

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd on Saturday strongly endorsed President Carter's decision to decontrol domestic oil prices and declared it is too early to "write the obituaries" on Carter's proposed excess profits tax on the oil companies.

"The president took a very courageous and realistic step in moving to phase down the controls of domestic oil," the West Virginia Democrat said at a news conference.

He also said Congress has a responsibility to enact the president's proposed windfall profits tax, which would redirect half of the oil companies' higher income into a fund to pay for mass transit, energy research and fuel bills of low-income Americans.

'Who in Congress is willing to stand by and see the American public sacrifice and suffer without spreading the sacrifice around?" he asked. "The heat's going to be on. The public is going to demand fairness."

Byrd added that those who oppose the tax could expect trouble in the 1980 elections. "Don't write the obituaries (on the tax proposal) yet," he cautioned.

Byrd's strong endorsement of Carter's plan represents a boost for the tax proposal which has so far met widespread congressional skepti-

The majority leader said he intends to discuss the windfall profits tax with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who is expected to be a major obstacle to the plan as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Byrd also said Congress should follow the president's lead in eliminating free parking on Capitol Hill for members, their staffs and the press as another fuel conservation step. He noted that legislation has already been proposed to require fees to be paid for the 8,000 congressional parking spaces.

On Thursday, Carter announced that he would gradually lift price EDDY COUNTY controls on domestic oil over the next two year. Under existing law, he has that authority beginning in June. The law would lift controls automatically in 1981, regardless of presidential ac-

Administration officials have predicted that the gradual decontrol would increase gasoline prices 4 to 5 cents a gallon by September 1981. However, congressional experts say the price rise will range from 15 to 20 cents a gallon.

On other issues, Byrd said:

-An amendment intended to return prayer to the public schools should be taken off a Senate bill to establish the Department of Education. He said another bill on court jurisdiction td 10,415 feet, plugged and abanwould be "a better vehicle." The school prayer amendment was tacked on to the Education Department bill Thursday. A vote to reconsider that action is expected Monday.

-This year's slow congressional start partially reflects the mood of the American people for fewer new programs and better oversight of government programs already in place.

Scoop plans block try

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the Senate energy committee says he will try to block President Carter's plan to lift price controls on domestic oil.

The decontrol plan, says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, would help boost gasoline prices 15 cents to 20 cents a gallon by the time all controls end in September 1981 — about quadruple the impact administration officials initially pre-

Jackson, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he estimated that about half the increase would result from price rises by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"In addition, we did not crank in the inflationary impact that would occur during that period," the Washington Democrat said. "So what I would say is that ... of the 20 cents, half of that would be the president's program, the other half is OPEC," he said.

Last week, President Carter announced he would gradually lift prices on domestic crude oil so they would rise to world prices and ask Congress for a windfall profits tax on oil companies.

sumption of oil as higher prices discourage use. And it could mean a reduction in the United States' dependence on foreign oil.

Under the plan announced by Carter Thursday, the price of U.S. crude oil, now held at an average $9.65 a barrel, will be allowed to rise gradually to the world price of about $16 a

Under the plan, the first part of which takes effect June 1, so-called "new" oil will be decontrolled earliest. New oil is the most recently discovered oil, and the purpose in decontrolling it first is to encourage exploration and development of new areas of production.

On June 1, oil from 80 percent of the nation's smaller wells would be decontrolled, with the rest following a year later.

Oil from wells opened since 1972 will begin to shed controls Jan. 1, 1980, with the price rising in gradual increments to the world price the following October. Older oil will be allowed to rise 3 percent a month Jan. 1.

As the price of crude oil rises, the price of gasoline will also increase. For each 5 percent increase in the price of domestic oil - which generally will occur monthly beginning next year — gasoline prices can be expected to rise about a penny a

Since about half of our oil comes from abroad, the average price of a barrel of oil now is about $13. An increase from there to the world price of $16 a barrel would be about 23 percent, thus raising gasoline prices by about 5 cents a gallon by Septem-

Gasoline prices are also rising for other reasons. The government's decision earlier this year to implement "tilt" regulations, allowing gasoline refiners to pass on to gasoline customers more of their refining costs, has already added a couple of cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline and is expected to add a couple cents more by this summer. And further increases in the price of imported oil will also drive prices up; the increases approved by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries two weeks ago will mean three cents a gallon more over the next couple of months.

But it is hoped that decontrol of domestic oil will slow the spiraling cost of imported oil by cutting our reliance on it. The White House esimates that decontrol will save the nation 200,000 barrels of oil a day about 2 percent of current consumption - next year.

By 1985, administration officials say, the saving would be 1.1 million barrels daily — 6 percent of current consumption. Of that amount, 75 percent would be the result of higher production and 25 percent would come from a cut in consumption resulting from higher prices.

The oil saved as a result of decontrol would come off the top of the United States oil import bill. Michael K. Evans, chief economist for Chase Econometrics Associates Inc., a leading analysis firm, estimates that decontrol will save the United States $25.2 billion in oil imports between now and 1984

By NIKKI FINKE

KYSYL SYR, U.S.S.R. (AP) - For Siberians, it's "in" to be out.

Outdoors, that is. And nothing drives away the wintertime blues better, Siberians say, than going for a picnic out on the ice.

Bundled in their warmest clothing, these hardy souls of the Far North trot to the rivers on weekends to squat in tiny tents and nibble at raw frozen nesslike nets. fish chased down with Russian vodka.

It's a cold way to spend an afternoon, as a group of American correspondents learned on a recent visit to this Siberian settlement.

Yet in a land where man is forever battling an inhospitable climate, to sit through a Siberian picnic can be as satisfying as a mountain climb, a parachute jump or even a marathon

The cold does something to food. It makes it taste better. Even the most ordinary meal suddenly becomes extraordinary - bread is crustier, fish fishier, spirits tinglier.

A steaming hot bowl of fish soup served up in double-digit minus temperatures beats anything a cozy kitchen could produce.

A Siberian picnic takes the entire day - a morning's worth of preparation and an afternoon full of eating. The evening, of course, is spent recovering from too much blood-warming vodka

On the recent picnic, a jeep caravan brought the reporters several miles out onto the ice of the Vilyuiy River here. The picnic fixings already were underway: fishing holes were drilled, nets hung in the bluish-grey waters, and fires started to boil kettles of stew

The purpose of picnicking here is to to get away from whatever little civilization Siberia has to offer, and one first-time visitor noted: "This is what I imagine the moon to be.

It's easy to see why. Miles of flat. snow-blanketed ice crunched softly under the weight of humans stepping on its surface. The "crunch, crunch" of winter boots walking on dry, packed snow echoed off the water that lay hidden underneath. One reporter recorded the sound and played it back for the group. It could easily have been Neil Armstrong taking his first step on the moon. Suddenly, a shout broke the soli-the picnic burst into activity. They rolled up the nets strung between the two ice holes, and started flipping fish left and right onto the river, where the small creatures froze the instant they hit the air. In this area where the ice is three feet thick, some two dozen fish were caught.

"Isn't this kind of cheating?" asked one American who had expected to see hooks and lines instead of busi-

"No, no," a Siberian host reassured. "This is the modern way."

Modern it may be, but there are still hundreds of Siberians who sit beside their little holes the old-fashioned way. Ice fishing remains a popular winter sport.

Three types of fish were caught: perch, pike and a northern fish that belongs to the salmon family.

Siberians take their fish seriously, and often eat it at all three daily meals. Even fish eggs are whipped into a tasty paste.

The fishermen set to work cleaning the catch. One man with a goldtoothed smile used his bare hands to stroke a knife up and down the fish, trimming off the head and scales.

Within minutes, reporters were ushered into a nearby tent, where a wood-burning stove had been carted to lend a little heat to the outing, and to keep the kettles warm as they bubbled up fish stew.

Rounds of vodka were first on the menu, and even the slight moisture from drinking lips created a frosty ring on each glass. Then, nutty tasting brown bread emerged from a sack, followed by foot-long strips of a Siberian appetizer of raw frozen fish. The fish tasted like soggy cardboard. To eat it correctly, the strips must be dipped in a salt and pepper blend, which bring out the pungent flavor of

While Siberians and Americans toasted each other's health, way of life and love of outdoors, large metal cups of fish broth were passed around. The boiled fish, mixed with potatoes and a hint of greens, was served up in separate plates to be ladled into the soup.

Daylight began to slip away and the temperatures started their evening dip as the cold-numbed reporters headed back to heated jeeps. But the fishermen were still busy at their picnic, ladling out yet another bowl of stew before calling it a day.

Director says bank didn't lose money on Carter deal

ATLANTA (AP) - A National Bank of Georgia director who investigated the bank's loan practices says NBG "didn't lose a cent" on the transfer of part of its $6.5 million Carter Warehouse loan to other banks.

The director, Church Yearley, made the comment in response to a Washington Post article that said NBG had to reimburse the banks to which it sold $1.5 million of the loan in

Yearley and Lindsey Hopkins III were appointed directors under Securities and Exchange Commission auspices to investigate NBG's financial dealings while former Budget Director Bert Lance was NBG presi-

Whether the bank sold such a "loan participation" wasn't within the scope of the directors' internal investigation, Yearley said.

Such loan transfers among banks are legal and common, Yearley said.

The Post, quoting informed sources, said NBG sold a $1.5 million participation to the Commercial State Bank in Donalsonville, Ga., in December 1975. That bank in turn sold $500,-000 shares to the Bank of Terrell in Dawson and the Citizens State Bank in Reynolds, the Post said.

When the Carters fell behind in their payments, NBG had to dip into its own assets to repay the banks. The Post said.

"All of the Carter loans were eventually paid off," Yearley said. "If the bank had to pay them off early, they were paid back by the warehouse. The bank didn't lose a cent." In such an arrangement, the outside banks help support the loan principal and share in profits when the loan is paid off. NBG President Robert Guyton and
